Canton to lose funds as housing values drop

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Residential property assessments in Canton dropped 7.5 percent from 1982 to 1983, according to a study by an appraisal firm hired by the township.

That's good news for residents who may see a drop in their property taxes. But lowered assessments could prove costly for the township.

"It's good news for some people and bad news for others," said Canton Supervisor James Poole. "It's all bad news for the township because we're going to have less money to operate. Canton Township will lose $210,000 in taxes (because of lowered assessments)."

Last December, the Wayne County Appraisal Co. of Westland completed three months of field work surveying residential properties in Canton. It was the first study in several years.

The study, which cost about $170,000, was prompted by:

- Heat from angry taxpayers complaining that high assessments failed to reflect the slumping real estate market.
- A dispute between Canton Township and county taxation officials over assessment reductions given last year by the local tax board of review.

APPRAISERS SURVEYED 11,000 homes in Canton, said Glenn Shaw, president of Wayne County Appraisal Co. Field workers took photographs of homes, examined measurements and checked building-permit records. Information was updated and measured against similar homes in the same subdivision.

Questionnaires were mailed to residents for additional data.

According to the report, Canton's total projected residential assessed valuation for 1983 will be $367 million, a decline of $24 million from figures at the beginning of 1982.

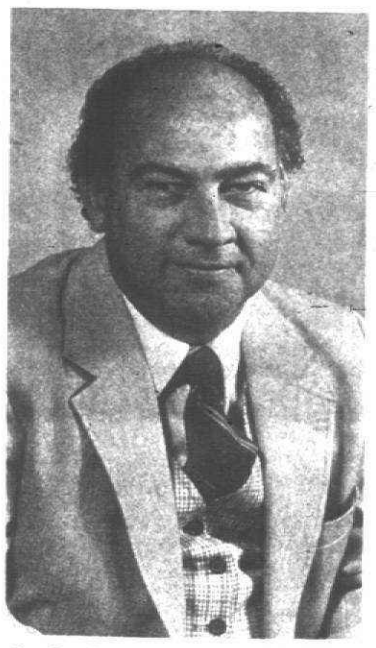
The reduction will mean a revenue loss of about $210,000 for the township, said Finance Director Mike Gorman. The other taxing units (schools, county) also will suffer, according to the reports.

Some of those losses may be offset by projected increases in valuation for commercial and industrial properties, Gorman said.

Poole plans to form a committee of residents to make suggestions on how the township can save or make money. Township officials are predicting losses from state-shared revenues, which will tighten the pinch.

"It's rather unusual (for a community) to reduce assessments," Shaw said. "Canton Township's approach is they definitely want assessments to be right (correct) even if they have to take a loss. It's refreshing."

THE ASSESSMENT adjustments will result in higher taxes for some people and lower taxes for others, Shaw said. Some assessments were raised because of home improvements previously omitted from the tax rolls, he said.



Jim Poole
Canton Supervisor

The new assessment figure soon will be mailed to the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation, officials said. Notices of the proposed 1983 figures are going out this week to property owners, Shaw said.

People who believe their 1983 assessments are too high may file appeals with Canton's tax review board, which begins meeting by appointment March 8.

A representative from Shaw's firm will be present during the tax review meetings to answer questions. "We feel very comfortable of the information we have," Shaw said.

Poole said he has "no reason to believe" the new assessment figures will be challenged by county officials, who last year disputed Canton's assessment rolls.

The flap began with a 1981 state law which mandated changes in the way property taxes are computed. As a result, many Canton residents were hit with stiff hikes on household property taxes.

About 1,400 property-owners appealed their assessments to the Canton tax board of review in 1982. The review board surveyed the township using home-sale listings and information from the county registrar of deeds.

THE TAX BOARD slashed total assessments by $21 million. Most people receiving assessment trims hadn't applied for the cuts.

But county taxation officials said the review board "went too far" and made too many cuts. County officials applied an equalization factor to make up the loss in tax revenues.

Canton subsequently appealed the factor to the Michigan Tax Tribunal. The township later dropped its appeal because it failed to meet the tribunal's criteria that the factor was unjust and discriminatory, Poole said. The decision to hire an appraisal firm followed.

Assault charge dismissed against woman's friend

Charges have been dropped against a Detroit man accused of beating and stabbing his girlfriend recently at the Canton Commons townhouse complex.

Police last week charged Walter Mullen Veysey, 23, of Detroit with assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than murder. But the girlfriend, 27-year-old Renee Davis, failed to appear to testify Monday at a preliminary examination in 35th District Court.

According to Canton Officer Davey LeBlanc, Davis has no car. She wasn't home when officers went to pick her up for the court examination.

Davis phoned the court and told Judge Dunbar Davis (no relation) that she wanted to drop charges because of the penalty, LeBlanc said. The assault charge, a felony, carries a 10-year prison sentence.

She said her boyfriend's alleged assault was "her fault" because she 'made him' mad," according to LeBlanc. Without the victim's testimony, the charges had to be dropped, police said. Veysey was released from custody and the case dismissed.

THE ALLEGED assaults took place Feb. 19 at Davis' home on Canton Court, where Veysey often stayed, police said. Davis was hospitalized overnight with multiple stab wounds and bruises.

Veysey also poured gasoline on Davis and threatened to set her afire, police said. Officers, summoned by neighbors, found a strong odor of gasoline in the home, police said.

According to police reports, this is the second time since December that Davis has filed — then dropped — assault complaints against Veysey.

In early December, police charged Veysey with felonious assault after Davis complained he had threatened her with a knife. That earlier charge was dropped when Davis failed to appear as a witness for the preliminary examination, police said.

School board weighs budget cuts

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education in one breath Monday night wiped out a deficit in its current budget and was told of a pending $2 million deficit in its upcoming budget.

After adopting an adjusted operating budget for 1982-83, the board was told that the budget for '83-'84 will have to be cut by about $2 million to be balanced.

The current operating budget was adopted after some $1.2 million in cuts and expense-saving moves were completed. The adjusted budget reflects those changes.

FOR THE COMING fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1983, the district is looking at costs of $41 million and income of about $38.8 million which means it must raise $2.2 million income or cut expenses by that amount to balance.

A key to the balancing act is the $855,000 the state owes the district in state aid. The payment has been delayed until this June but is expected to be taken away again in August and not repaid until June 1984, Hoben said Monday.

Because of the uncertainty of the $855,000, Hoben said, the amount has not been included in '83-'84 operating income and could be used to help reduce the $2.2 million imbalance if the state improves its financial status sufficiently to meet its obligations.

A major loss of income for '83-'84 will be due to an expected decline in the taxbase of about $25 million or 2.5 percent resulting in a loss of $875,000 in revenue.

The school district is projecting that total state equalized valuation (SEV) will decrease by $13.5 million or 2.9 percent in Canton, by $7.7 million or 2.1 percent in Plymouth Township, and by $3.1 million or 2.1 percent in the city of Plymouth.

Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, said that the administration won't know the actual reduction in SEV until April 15, 1983. If total SEV should end up at 3 percent instead of 2.5 percent, the total income loss would be about $1 million as the district loses some $350,000 in revenue for each $10 million reduction in taxbase.

BESIDES THE reduction in taxbase, the district expects to lose state aid as student enrollment continues to decline.

The administration is projecting a loss of 500 students or 3 percent next school year. This will result in a loss in general state aid which is paid on a per pupil basis.

Because of the loss in students, though, the administration projects it will reduce the faculty by almost 18 percent to save $373,000 in salary and fringe expenses.

The district also will save about $245,000, including the layoff of two administrative positions, by discontinuing year-round school at Field Eriksson elementaries.

The school board must give layoff notices to administrators by March 14 and to teachers by April 11.

Residents say 'no thanks' to tax hike

Many Plymouth-Canton residents prefer cuts in state government to Gov. James Blanchard's proposed income tax increase.

Blanchard recently proposed a 1.5-percent increase to finance current state operations and another 0.25-percent "debt surcharge" to pay off the state's $800 million in bills accrued over the last seven years.

Amid Monday afternoon's sunshine and warm temperatures, the Observer stopped residents outside the Plymouth and Canton post offices to talk about Blanchard's tax plan.

"Hell no, I don't support it," Lewis Huddleston of Canton said. "I'm too dumb to know what to do, but I wouldn't support the plan he's got."

"I don't support it because I'm already paying so many taxes," Jackie Clerc of Canton said.

"I think something needs to be done in Michigan, but I really haven't thought about it," Clerc said.

Clerc wasn't the only resident without a solution to the state's economic problems. Many people refused to comment because they didn't know enough about the tax increase.

Only a small percentage of those stopped by the Observer favored the increase.

"If it needs to be done," Barb O'Connor of Canton said. "Normally I wouldn't favor a tax increase, but in this case I think Michigan needs the money."

William Brown of Plymouth supports a part-time legislature instead of the tax increase.

"They should start right up at the supreme court and come right down to the legislature and cut everything one-third," Brown said.

"The structure in Michigan has to be changed, it just can't keep going on and on and on," he said.

Likewise, Charles Lewis of Plymouth supports a cut in government staffing. He suggests an increase in the gasoline tax "since the price of gasoline is coming down" and people "already can afford the price at $1.25 a gallon."

Any tax increases will kill smaller businesses in Michigan, according to Pat Touhey of Plymouth Township.

"I talk to a lot of business people, and they're just all going to go away if the taxes keep going up," Touhey said.

"It's poor management by the government. They take a dollar from here just to put a dime over there. It's ridiculous," he said.

NAOMI M. COOPER

Funeral services for Mrs. Cooper, 67, of Traverse City, and a former resident of Plymouth, were held recently in the Martinson-Covell Funeral Home in Traverse City with burial at Grand Traverse Memorial Gardens. Officiating was Coleman K. Allmond. Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Heart Association.

Mrs. Cooper was an attendant nurse at Traverse City Regional Psychiatric Hospital. She was born in Berne, Ind. Survivors include: husband, Owen; daughters, Marlene Olszewski of Stevensville, Virginia Quante of Silver Bay, Minn., Helen Stachnik of Cedar, Mich., and Leona Kolody of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; sons, John Steinebach of Buckley, Mich., Donald Steinebach of Traverse City, and Robert Steinebach of Plymouth; stepsons, Eddie Cooper of Westland, and Steven Cooper of Whitemore Lake; stepdaughters, Lisa and Beth Cooper of Plymouth, Nita Gaynor of Chattanooga, Tenn.; sisters, Cecil Pike of Mesick, Mich., Ruth Lee, Jean Pate, and Helen Tanzey of Mt. Clemens, Treva Grewe of Richmond, Beth Boggs of Cincinnati, and Emma Steinebach of Traverse City; brothers, Roland Duff of Buckley, Mich., Marlin, Allen and Thomas Duff, all of Mt. Clemens, and Robert Duff of Hermiston, Ore.; 18 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

EARL S. MASTICK

Funeral services for Mr. Mastick, 85, of Chelsea were held recently in Milford with burial at the West Highland Cemetery. Officiating was the Rev. Henry Stenner.

Mr. Mastick, who died Jan. 19 in the Methodist Retirement Center in Chelsea where he had lived for the past five years, was born in Ridgeville, Ind., graduated from Milford High School in 1915, and served in World War I for three years. In 1929 he moved to Plymouth, where he was in business for more than 25 years. He was an automobile dealer for Dodge, Plymouth, and Packard and later had a farm implement business in Plymouth and Walled Lake. He was an active member of the Plymouth Kiwanis Club. In the 1950s he moved back to Milford, where he raised Black Angus cattle on the family farm, Stone Rowe, which has been designated by the state as a historical site.

Survivors include: son, Thomas of Northport, Mich.; daughters, Nancy Breeze of Gainesville, Fla., and Betty Gauss of Jackson, Mich.

IRWIN B. BRADFORD

Funeral services for Mr. Bradford of Huntington Woods were held recently in the Schrader Funeral Home in Plymouth with burial at Riverside Cemetery, Plymouth. Officiating was the Rev. Stephen E. Wenzel. Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Mr. Bradford, who died Feb. 25, was a supervisor of education and capital with the Grand Trunk Railroad, retiring in 1970 after 29 years employment. A member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, he moved to Huntington Woods in 1968 from Royal Oak.

Survivors include: wife, Lenore; daughters, Charlene Sharp of Royal Oak and Dianie Schultheis of Milford; and two grandchildren.

Scholarship honors former teacher

Seniors aiming for higher education can now apply for the Wayne Weimer Memorial Scholarship offered to an outstanding student at Plymouth Canton High School who has been active in history and basketball.

Applications are being accepted for the new scholarship commemorating the late Wayne Weimer, a former Plymouth Canton High School history teacher and coach. Plymouth Canton seniors with at least a "C" average may qualify for the scholarship if they have demonstrated an interest in history and participated in basketball during their senior year.

Applicants must demonstrate enthusiasm, concern for others and high moral and personal standards. Letters of reference are required from at least one history teacher, one coach and an adult not associated with the school other than a parent. Students will be required to furnish proof of acceptance to a college or university.

THE SCHOLARSHIP applicants are also asked to submit a 500-word essay describing their goals, interests and career plans. A statement describing the student's attitudes toward history and the role of basketball in developing character and moral values should be included in the essay.

Weimer taught history at Canton for more than a decade and showed his enthusiasm for sports through coaching junior varsity basketball and freshman football, Principal Kent Buikema said.

"He was highly thought of by his students and well-liked by his colleagues," Buikema said. "From a student's standpoint, he made history an interesting subject. He was always a warm kind of person."

The scholarship awards will continue as long as funds are available, guidance counselor Gloria Banks said.

Livonia company sets sales record

Photon Sources Inc. of Livonia, a leading manufacturer of high-power carbon-dioxide laser equipment for industrial material processing, reported record sales for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Net sales reached a record level of $9,522,282, compared with net sales of $8,727,141 for fiscal 1981. Earnings were $254,713, compared with $347,280.

Earnings per share were 17 cents based on an increased weighted average number of common shares outstanding of 1,527,463, which reflected the partial conversion of debentures on Dec. 31, 1981, and the company's public equity offering of March 30, 1982. For fiscal 1981, earnings per share were 27 cents, based on a weighted average number of common shares outstanding of 1,307,788.

IN REVIEWING the company's operating results, president Richard P. Scherer explained that the delay in shipment of a single major transaction — a multi-axes, computer-controlled welding system — was the primary difference between profit and loss for the fourth quarter.

"Last-minute complications in the computer's software kept us from final customer acceptance," he said. "The equipment was accepted shortly after the end of the fiscal year and will contribute to first-quarter earnings of fiscal 1983.

Waving tea bags as a symbol of his anti-tax increase stance, Paul Rojeck of Redford Township joined others in the Lansing tax protest rally. Also joining the group was Julie Kopriva, Redford Township coordinator of a group calling itself Tired of Taxes.

A crowd of about 350 tax foes from suburban areas of Detroit joined in a caravan to Lansing on Tuesday to tax their protest to members of the state Legislature.

Legislators hear protest from suburban tax foes

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"First time I've ever done anything like this," said one suburban tax protestor after another among the 350 on the steps of the State Capitol Building.

They spent Tuesday's lunch hour protesting Gov. James Blanchard's plan to raise the state personal income tax to 6.35 percent.Blanchard is asking increases of 1.5 percent for operations and .25 percent to retire an accumulated deficit.

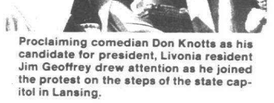
The House passed a modified version of the proposal by 59-51 vote Wednesday. The bill will go to the Senate for further discussion.

'Those business and industry leaders are . . . part of the problem.'
—Jim Geoffrey Livonia

JIM GEOFFREY, a Ford Motor Co. engineer from Livonia, got a lot of amused attention with his sign that advocated "Don Knotts for Governor" with a dozen teabags suspended from it. To this first-time demonstrator, Knotts symbolized the stumbling, ineffectual comedian. The teabags recalled the anti-tax fervor of the pre-Revolution Boston Tea Party.

"Blanchard is giving us a red herring with this Economic Alliance," said Geoffrey. "Those business and industry leaders are in bed with him. They're part of the problem.

There were mixed feelings on whether a sales tax increase from 4 percent to 5 would be more acceptable. "If we had to have a tax, I would prefer a sales tax because you can avoid it," said Winky. But Geoffrey said,"A sales tax would be no less onerous. We just assume a tax increase is needed. We can't tax our way to prosperity."



Proclaiming comedian Don Knotts as his candidate for president, Livonia resident Jim Geoffrey drew attention as he joined the protest on the steps of the state capitol in Lansing.

ED MARVILLE and son Dennis of Canton Township went in for flags. Ed carried a standard American flag, but Dennis had a yellow Revolutionary War reproduction with a snake threatening "Don't Tread on Me."

"A reduction of government is all we're asking for," said Dennis.

"I've lived 11 years in Canton. I can't afford to keep my house when I retire," said Ed. "The donothings get grants to go to college. I have one daughter in college — at Schoolcraft. She pays her own way."

The speeches were cheers rather than orations: "Tax, tax, tax, spend, spend, spend, with you guys it never ends." "Hear our cry, pay attention, we're the ones who pay your pension."

THE EVENT was a field day for Republican legislators, whose caucuses are working to come up with figures showing the state is overspending on such matters as colleges and welfare, and that no permanent (18 months or longer) tax hike is needed.

Republican Reps. Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, Jack Kirksey of Livonia, Frederick Dillingham of Fowlerville and Sen. Ed Fredericks of Holland all denounced the tax plan.

"The governor and the Democrats are now on a fast track. They're going to run it through beginning Wednesday," said Dunaskiss.

"There are fewer and fewer productive people left in Michigan because we are driving them away," said Kirksey.

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, did not attend the rally but afterwards told a group of anti-tax Redfordites meeting in his mezzanine office, "People should have worked harder to put (Republican gubernatorial nominee Richard) Headlee in in the first place."

In his ground floor office, Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, promised to vote "no on a permanent increase. Maybe yes on a temporary. Maybe."

Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, observed the rally standing next to the statue of Civil War Gov. Austin Blair. The freshman lawmaker was frustrated that he had to make a yes or no decision on a tax increase while no visible effort was being made to work out a long-term financial plan.

"You come up here, and it's assumed — you have a deficit, so you raise taxes," Law said. He said he opposed a permanent tax hike, then gritted his teeth as he philosophized that temporary measures have a way of becoming permanent.

DAVID LITTMAN, vice president and senior economist at Manufacturers National Corp., urged lawmakers to put Michigan's house in order before even considering a tax hike.

Littman, a member of the Bloomfield Hills school board, gave a detailed analysis, with chart, contending "Michigan has consistently outspent its peer group of states (the 13 most populous) . . . in many of the key budget areas."

Littman's examples included spending on education, welfare and libraries. He said that if spending was reduced to the 13-state average in either education or welfare, the state's budget could be balanced.

"All economic forecasts have been revised upward," Littman said, adding that existing taxes would produce $500 million more than projected as the economy improves.

JIM MORBERG, director of the House Fiscal Agency, called Medicaid "the worst fiscal problem in this state. Medicaid costs are going up 12 to 15 percent a year, and it doesn't care whether we're in a recession or not."

Hospital costs, rising relentlessly, are helping to push up Medicaid costs. Asked about the state's cost-containment efforts on hospitals, Morberg said "very little progress" has been made. Many cases have been taken to court, and the state has lost most, he said.

Asked about staff estimates of the budget deficit that have been lower than Blanchard's, Morberg said the House and Senate Fiscal Agencies have revised their earlier estimates, as low as $614 million, upwards to the $700-plus million mark. He said Blanchard's $900-million deficit estimate was "reasonable."

Dennis Marville of Canton Township traveled to Lansing with his father to protest the proposed hike in state income taxes. Marville carried a yellow Revolutionary War era flag.

State Rep. Jack Kirksey of Livonia joined other Republican legislators in bemoaning the loss of Republicans in the state. Using a quotation from Abraham Lincoln on her sign was Stephanie Banners of Mt. Clemens.

Robbers hit restaurant

A Canton McDonald restaurant last weekend became the third recent target of robberies against the fast-food chain.

Four armed men wearing ski masks held up the McDonald shop on Michigan Avenue and I-275 moments before the 11 p.m. closing Saturday, police said. They escaped with about $1,000, according to reports.

Similar robberies have recently occurred in Westland and Van Buren Township, said Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart.

"Eleven o'clock (p.m.) is their target — just before closing," Stewart said.

FOUR EMPLOYEES and two customers were in the restaurant when the holdup occurred, Stewart said. The robbers were armed with handguns and one sawed-off shotgun, according to reports.

One of the men put a gun to the manager's head and demanded that the safe be opened, Stewart said.

"People were diving for cover," he said. No shots were fired, and there were no injuries in the incident.

The men are described as black, between the ages of 18-21. They fled on foot through a field and escaped. Police believe an accomplice was waiting nearby in a car.

Aid students, says Ford

"Financial assistance to graduate and professional students can be the next frontier in federal policy for post-secondary education," U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) said at the national forum on financing graduate and professional education in Arlington, Va.

His district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton and half of Livonia.

Ford, ranking member of the House Subcommittee on Post-secondary Education and a member of the National Commission on Student Financial Assistance, issued "a call to action by those in the higher education community and the nation who are concerned about graduate education.

"We do not need to wait years until a grand new legislative mechanism is in place.

"The tools are at hand and with your commitment and your efforts, we can get on with the job now."

He cited several problems in graduate education related to what he believes is inadequate financial assistance for graduate and professional students:

The congressman said:

- Fewer of the best students are choosing graduate study in the arts and humanities, threatening to erode the quality of scholarship and teaching in these fields as well as denying education opportunities to those with the talent to pursue these disciplines.
- In engineering, there is a severe shortage of doctoral-level engineers leading to large numbers of unfilled faculty positions, particularly in fields such as computer engineering.
- We are losing ground in opening graduate educational opportunities to poor and minority students. We are in danger of making graduate education, particularly in the professions, once again the preserve of the rich and privileged.
- The inadequacy of federal financial assistance is highlighted by the dramatic decline in federal fellowship awards for graduate study in the last decade and the increasing reliance on loans. We have replaced what was once a balanced system loans and fellowship support for graduate education with a virtual dependence on loans alone.

FORD, CITING the administration's budget proposals for fiscal year 1983 and 1984, said this administration has met the needs and challenges of graduate student aid "not only with indifference and insensitivity, but also with proposals to further reduce and retrench the already meager levels of financial assistance for graduate and professional students." Ford proposed a program that would be a "strong beginning in meeting our national need for adequate graduate student financial assistance."

He proposed:

- Directing the secretary of education to set higher guaranteed student loan annual limits for graduate students in "exceptionally expensive" programs.
- Repealing the 5-percent origination fee in the guaranteed student loan program.
- Continuing capital contributions for the national direct student loan program at the current level, $179 million.
- Increasing appropriations for the college work study program by $150 million.
- Spending $60 million for the new campus-based fellowhip program for graduate and profession students.
- Spending enough to provide the maximum 450 fellowships of the new national graduate fellows program.

Board weighs cutting losses

Central administration will come to the board with a recommendation on administrative pinkslips at its March 7 meeting. The board will be holding a weekend workshop on the budget before March 26 on the '83-'84 budget.

The board expressed a desire to give out fewer pinkslips than it did this year to avoid staff disruption and morale problems as much as possible.

The district presently receives $43 per student in state aid and now projects that next year it will receive $19 per pupil in state aid.

GLENN SCHROEDER, board treasurer, said Monday night that work done so far on the upcoming budget is based on the board's goal of making as few cuts as possible in the classroom or in other areas which directly affect student learning.

The initial draft of the '83-'84 budget includes the incremental raises negotiated with the teachers union, said Schroeder, and includes a reduction in the number of teachers based on declining enrollment.

Initially, said Schroeder, the board's budget subcommittee was looking a $4 million imbalance for the coming year but that has been cut to a potential $2 million imbalanc.

The cuts needed could drop as low as $1.2 million, he said, if the district gets the $855,000 in state aid which has been delayed.

"If the $855,000 is delayed again until June 1984," said Schroeder, "than for all practical purposes we don't have that money to spend. So we are not now including that sum as income in our budget."

Schroeder said it will be hard to cut the budget by $2 million without laying off personnel. Approximately 85 percent of the budget is salary and fringes, he said, and it will be almost impossible to cut $2 million from the remaining 15 percent of the budget.

The board presently is considering holding a budget workshop on Monday, March 21, and then meeting all day on Saturday, March 26. The board also is considering a weekend budget workshop starting Friday, March 25, and continuing the next day.

S'craft buys equipment

Schoolcraft College trustees approved spending $130,162 for a new photocopy machine.

The machine will be used by instructors and administrators.

Trustees said they bought the machine because it is more efficient and modern than the equipment they now own.

College officials plan to pay for the equipment over a five-year period.

The five-year contract was awarded to Xerox Corp., Southfield.

INSURANCE INFO WITH LARRY FISHER
PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE CO.
569-2222
Q. Do insurance companies offer IRAs?
A. Definitely! In fact, Prudential is a leader in IRAs. Furthermore, years before anyone ever heard of IRA or even Social Security, Prudential was helping people plan for retirement. And when you retire, only an insurance company can provide a retirement income you can't outlive.
Naturally, you get a tax deduction fro your qualified contributions like any other IRA contract, and income tax on dividends and interest is deferred until withdrawal.
IMPORTANT NOTE: Most taxpayers have until April 15, 1983 to contribute to an IRA and still claim the deduction on their 1982 income.
Questions can be sent to Larry Fisher, P.O. Box 9106, Livonia, Mich. 48151.

Should Detroit waterboard be regionalized?

Suburban officials are moving on three levels to regionalize the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (DWSD) in the wake of federal indictments against a Detroit city official and contractors.

"The rate increases, combined with these serious clouds — it's intolerable," said Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn, who has long battled the city's sole control of a facility which serves Detroit and 103 neighboring communities.

The battlegrounds will be U.S. District Court, the Michigan Legislature and possibly the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, Kuhn said.

IN FEDERAL Court, Kuhn's attorney, William P. Hampton, this week will join the U.S. attorney's office in asking Judge John Feikens to remove Charles Beckham as director of the DWSD. Beckham and five others were indicted on charges of bribery and racketeering in connection with a sludge-hauling contract.

But Kuhn said he will go one step beyond the U.S. attorney and ask Feikens also to remove Detroit Mayor Coleman Young as special administrator of the DWDS, which is under the supervision of the federal court since a 1977 anti-pollution case.

"He is all powerful, and he has violated his trust," Kuhn said of Young. "He went around the city council and unilaterally took power into his own hands."

At the beginning of the case in 1977, suburban officials had asked Feikens to appoint an administrator not connected with the city of Detroit. Among the names tossed around were the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Lee A. Iacocca, then out of work after being president of Ford Motor Co. "He had a higher calling, God bless him, and saved Chrysler," said Kuhn.

Feikens instead picked Young, citing the principle of city home rule and cloaking the mayor with great powers in dealing with the sewage treatment plant.

KUHN SAID he is seeking help from several senators in getting state legislation to regionalize political control of DWDS. The seven-member governing board, though it has three suburban members, is appointed and removable by the mayor of Detroit.

"A regional authority would not be beholden to any one mayor," said Kuhn. He added that state Sens. Richard Fessler, R-Union Lake, and Gilbert DiNello, D-East Detroit, are interested in the project.

"I want them to get all 38 senators surveyed. This should not be a one-man or two-man bill," Kuhn said.

The general plan is to have a nine-member water board with representation based on population — three from Detroit and six from the customer communities.

BESIDES BOARD control, a second target is the Detroit city charter provision which allows only city residents to work for DWSD. A major operating problem has been hiring qualified persons to operate the plant.

"Every engineer in the state of Michigan has been surveyed twice on working there," said Kuhn. "The pay is infinitely better, but they (engineers) don't want to live there."

He added, "Detroit does not own the plant. It was paid for with massive federal and state grants, and 65 percent of the revenues come from the 103 customer communities."

Kuhn acknowledged his own petition drive fell 20,000 signatures of what was needed to place a similar change in state law on the ballot.

Detroit will resist any effort to regionalize the DWSD. In a 1981 interview, Beckham called the system one of Detroit's greatest civic prides.

Salmon fishing seminar, dog classes scheduled

More things to do when it's too soon to fish trout and too warm for snowmobiles and cross country skis:

outdoors

You don't have to go to the far north to fish for salmon, and you can learn how to do it near home.

The Four Seasons Fishing Club will hear Ed Tinsley, skipper of the "Wendy K" out of Port Huron, when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 9. The gathering spot is the Fr. Lord Knights of Columbus Hall at 39050 Schoolcraft, west of Newburgh, Livonia.

Tinsley is a Budweiser Salmon Tournament winner. Club publicist Tony Brehler says new prospects are always welcome to this family-oriented club.

MARK APRIL 4 on your calendar if your dog has never been to obedience school. Beginners classes start at 7 p.m. that Monday, according to the Detroit German Shepherd Dog Obedience Training Club.

The classroom is the American Legion Hall at 31775 Grand River, Farmington.

Leave Fido home the first night and bring a health certificate showing shots and worm check.

Advanced, open and utility classes start at 7 p.m. the following Wednesday with dogs. Bring the health certificate, too.

For other registration details, contact Thelma Gothan at 935-4225.

THE 12TH Huron-Clinton Metropark has been launched. It's a nine-hole golf course and other facilities to be known as Huron Meadows Metropark south of Brighton in Green Oaks Township of Livingston County.

Huron River canoeists who have seen that funny green spot on the river west of US-23 now have the answer.

The HCMA board recently awarded a $359,000 contract to the Jack B. Anglin Co. of Novi for the golf course, irrigation system, service drive and parking lot of 120 cars. Development will take several years.

WANT TO LEARN wood carving? The Downriver Chippers will present a program from 1-4 p.m. Sunday, March 6, at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock.

The Chippers will demonstrate relief, round, caricature, miniature, folk figures and waterfowl decoy carving. They answer any and all questions about their hobby.

The program is free, but there is a vehicle entry permit at the park gate.

KENSINGTON Metropark near New Hudson has these nature programs brewing for the forthcomng week:

"Plants and People" at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, March 6 — a slide program on the involvement of people and plants. Naturalist Pat Carlson will lead the 90-minute program in the nature center.

"Woodland Wisdom Walk" at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 6 — a 90-minute stroll with naturalist Mark Szabo starting at the nature center.

"Nature's Night Life" at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 8 — Mark Szabo starts with an indoor talk and then leads a jaunt along night trails.

All programs are free. There is a vehicle entry fee. Better yet, get a season pass for $7.

Dems back Blanchard but worry U-M regents

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan Democrats gave Gov. James J. Blanchard a blank check to solve the state's fiscal crisis but gave direct orders to the University of Michigan Board of Regents to sell its stock in companies doing business with South Africa.

"They're giving Blanchard the same latitude I wish they'd give me," said U-M Regent Thomas Roach, who lost in his state convention effort to argue down the South Africa resolution.

Otherwise, last weekend's convention was tranquil. In the words of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young — "Nobody got punched out, not much bad names and bad language."

The climax came at 2 p.m. Sunday in Detroit's Cobo Arena when the 2,000 delegates by acclamation elected Rick Wiener, 35, state chairman to succeed Libby Maynard. Wiener's nominating speech was given by Blanchard himself.

DELEGATES approved a resolution urging "all Democratic legisators . . . to support the governor in his efforts to resolve this (financial) crisis."

No one mentioned either a permanent income tax increase (Blanchard's proposal), a temporary income tax increase (some legislators' proposal), a graduated rate income tax (a perenniel Democratic favorite) or a sales tax (proposed by the business-labor Economic Alliance).

But in one of the few split votes of the day, the convention shouted its approval of a resolution asking all public college boards to sell their stock in companies doing business in South Africa "so that business as usual cannot go on."

It was a victory for state Rep. W. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, author of a law requiring divestiture. Bullard also argued in favor of the resolution from the convention floor, noting such policies had been adopted by religious groups, labor and even the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Bullard's act takes effect April 1.

"White South Africa must learn they must begin to change and grant the fundamentals of human dignity to all citizens," Bullard said.

"THAT RESOLUTION gives me a problem two ways," said Roach, an Ann Arbor attorney who was re-elected to the U-M governing board last November.

"First, it follows an unconstitutional law. The state constitution, since 1850, gives the regents power over the expenditure of funds. It's an important constitutional isue. For 15 years, the Legislature had run the university.

"Governor Milliken, when he signed the law on his last day in office, suggested it might be unconstitutional. It's probably the unanimous feeling on the board that it's unconstitutional and that we should attack it.

"Second, it's not an apprpriate response to South Africa's apartheid. Everyone agrees apartheid's immoral, unconscionable. That's a given.

"But how do we best end it? We own stock in many Michigan companies — Ford, GM, Chrysler, Burroughs, Kellogg — which have divisions or subsidiaries in South Africa.

"Divestment is a symbolic act which, when done, accomplishes nothing. If we sell our stock, who will buy it? Someone with a more responsible position?"

In 1978, the U-M board in 1978 adopted a policy requiring companies in which it held stock to report progress in such areas as desegregation of the work place, equal pay for equal work, training and promoting blacks to supervisory and management positions and providing equal medical benefits, Roach said.

"Ford Motor Co. is one of the best achievers," said Roach, citing promotions, housing and health care, wages and dealings with black unionists.

"These things are resulting in change in South Africa — too slowly, but change. They are more effective than to sell our stock."

Two consulting firms monitor such corporate practices for a fee, he said. When Black & Decker, the tool making firm, refused to comply, U-M sold its stock. Stock in a second firm, which he did not name, might also be sold, he said.

IN OTHER business, the convention resolved to oppose President Ronald Reagan's proposed arms buildup, advocated a local content bill for auto parts, asked corporations to exercise "a social responsibility" on plant closings and urged a boycott of Apex (formerly Cunningham) Drug Stores.

On education matters, the Democrats accused Reagan of undermining separation of church and state with a tuition tax credits proposal, asked Michigan congressmen to make education a priority of the federal government, advocated training in the schools in computer programming and electronics, asked improvement in the quality of vocational education, and asked colleges to work to eradicate racism and prejudice on college campuses.

MEETING IN congressional district caucuses, Democrats elected local officers and representatives to the Democratic State Central Committee, governing body of the party between conventions.

2nd District officers: Chair, George Wahr Sallade, Ann Arbor; vice chair, Barbara Johnson, Livonia; secretary, Nancy Kinnard, Clinton; treasurer, Warren Bracy, Ann Arbor.

2nd District State Central members: Ann Graham and Duane Lapp of Jackson, Albert J. Tavarozzi of Plymouth, Jo Mickelson of Clayton, Shiela Cumberworth, Thea VanHouten and Michael Koen, all of Ann Arbor.

15th District officers: Chair, Tom Anderson, Southgate; vice chair, Ethel Howard, Ypsilanti; recording secretary, Helen Waino, Taylor; corresponding secretary, Cathy Shivers, Westland; treasurer, Earl Hayes, Taylor.

15th District State Central members: Royce Smith of Belleville, George Hiner of Taylor, Tim Meldrum of Westland, Mildred Bacigalupo of Garden City, Pat Cullin of Van Buren Township, Pat Tallmadge of Wayne and one vacancy.

17th District officers: Chair, Marie Weigold, Detroit; vice chair, Mark Glazer, Royal Oak; secretary, Lorenzo Moner, Inkster; treasurer, Ann Malzberg, Southfield.

Storm spotter training slated

Two classes are scheduled this month to train volunteers interested in serving as tornado spotters.

Plymouth Area REACT, Inc. is holding training classes to teach tornado spotting and reporting for the National Weather Service.

A spotters class will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 10, in Plymouth City Hall at 201 S. Main, and a public awareness class will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 23, in Plymouth Township Hall at 42350 Ann Arbor Road at Mill.

"With the lack of ice on the lakes and snow on the ground to absorb the energy of the sun, the atmosphere may become heated to present an early spring-like condition, bringing about unusual weather patterns," said Bill Deedler of the U.S. Weather Service.

SPOTTERS would be trained to recognize cloud formations and other conditions that could bring on severe weather.

Paul Cook, commander of Plymouth Area REACT, said: "This is the sixth year our team has studied severe weather. For the last three years we have been spotting not only for the Weather Service but also for the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township."

Cook urges interested residents to attend the classes.

In times like these, you need
I.R.A.
For retirement income you can count on.
If you are a wage earner, you can put real security into your financial future by establishing a tax-sheltered "Individual Retirement Account" (I.R.A.) at First Federal of Oakland — even if you already have a pension plan where you work . . . and especially if you don't.
Start your I.R.A. at First of Oakland with as little as $10 and contribute as much as $2,000 a year ($2,250 if you have a non-working spouse), up to $4,000 a year for working couples. Then, with an I.R.A., you'll save on taxes now and in the future, too, because all the money you save — plus all the interest that accumulates — is totally tax-free until you retire, when you will likely be in a lower tax bracket.
So, for a retirement income you can count on, stop by and ask us about our wide range of I.R.A. investment options today. You'll receive personal, knowledgeable counseling without having to pay a cent in fees or commissions. Besides . . . in times like these, who can afford to be without an I.R.A.?

Schoolcraft labor negotiations may be tough

By Carol Azizian
staff writer

Schoolcraft College employee unions may face tough negotiations this year when contract talks open in April.

That's mainly because of the uncertainty surrounding state aid payments to the college.

"It's obvious that what happens in Lansing will have a definite impact on what we can offer," said Michael Petrack, who will act as the college's chief negotiator in talks with three of the four unions whose contracts expire June 30.

THE COMMUNITY college could lose nearly $75,000 in state money as a result of Gov. James Blanchard's proposed budget cuts. In addition, the governor has delayed two monthly payments totaling $834,000 to the college.

State aid accounts for roughly a third of the college's revenues. The other two-thirds comes from property taxes and tuition fees.

Lawrence Ordowski, president of the 22-member union representing assistant deans and directors, agrees with Petrack. But he's still optimistic.

"A lot depends on what Gov. Blanchard is able to pull off in Lansing with regard to the income tax hike," he said. "If we don't panic early, we may wind up getting more than we anticipated."

BUT ANOTHER union spokesman, Bonnie Bryant, doesn't buy the argument that the college may be financially strapped this year because of the state's budget crisis.

"I know there are problems with cutbacks in state aid," said Bryant, president of the 51-member union representing secretaries.

But, Bryant said, the college gave pay hikes to faculty, non-union personnel and some executive administrators this year. The other four unions should get their fair share, she said.

"Job security will also be a big issue for us," Bryant added.

THE COLLEGE laid off eight secretaries and four custodians and maintenance workers last year.

The secretaries union, the Schoolcraft College Association of Office Personnel, is awaiting the outcome of an unfair labor practices suit it filed last year after the layoffs.

The suit was filed because the college failed to meet contractual obligations, Bryant said.

"They were supposed to give us raises in the second year of our contract. But they gave us an ultimatum last year — either take a pay freeze or face layoffs. They didn't budget for the pay increases."

Secretaries and administrators are only two of the four unions facing contract talks this year. The other two represent 30 custodians and maintenance workers and 11 food service personnel.

Drug abuse group formed

What began as an informal talk at the high schools has developed into a substance abuse intervention committee for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The committee will examine concerns and problems of student use and abuse of drugs and other substances.

The committee expects to work with substance abuse issues ranging from policy change through community feelings to examination of curriculum.

Members are: Nic Cooper, chairman; Sally Wisotzkey and Steve Foley of the Alternative Education project; Bob Weiner, school social worker; Audrey Bricker, school psychologist; and administrators Patrick Fitzpatrick, Ken Jacobs, Pat Patton, Bill Brown, Kent Buikema, and school trustee Dr. E.J. McClendon, who also is a professor of health behavior in the School of Public Health at University of Michigan.

The committee, after meeting four times, has formed a number of goals and is considering subcommittees to assist the main group in reaching its goals. Parents and other community resource persons will be asked to serve on the subcommittees.

The committee recognizes the increasing use of drugs and other illicit substances, which has been taking place more heavily since the early 1960s, Cooper said.

Thus far members have visited Maplegrove Rehabilitation Center to learn of available services, have attended a session at Intervention Associates, examined Southeastern Michigan Substance Abuse Service, and developed proposed policy changes.

SC's friends give $36,415 in month

Schoolcraft College last month received $36,415 in gifts — an "unusually large amount" for a single month, college officials said.

Industrial Metal Fabricators, Detroit, made the biggest contribution — steel valued at $14,030. The steel will be used in the college's welding and industrial fabrication and manufacturing and production planning programs.

The second largest gift — a metallograph with attachments valued at $10,000 — was given by Federal Mogul, Romulus. The device will be used in the metallurgy program.

A hydraulic power supply costing $9,000 was given by Climax Molybdenum Co. of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Students in the robotics program will use this.

OTHER GIFTS were:

- 14 power supplies, valued at $840, from the Cleveland Institute of Electronics, Cleveland, for the electronics department.
- Two plants, valued at $475, from Frank Winay of Troy, for the college's dining room.
- $400 from James Ingall of Dearborn for the metallurgy department. Ingall — who has made contributions annually for the past seven years — applied for matching funds from the Ford Motor Co.
- Electronic equipment, valued at $300, from Anthony Miltich of Ann Arbor for the electronics department. Some of the equipment will be used for a public address system in the physical education department.
- $200 from the Ford Motor Company Fund, Dearborn. This matches contributions accepted by the board last May. The gifts were $100 from Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brda for the civil technology program and $100 from Mr. and Mrs. W. Dale Compton for the welding program.
- The following contributors gave $180 each for a physical education class designed to help physically handicapped students: Plymouth Kiwanis Club, Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth and Canton Kiwanis Club.
- A fencing jacket, valued at $110, from Larry Leonard of Canton Township for students taking fencing classes.
- $100 from the Bechtel Foundation, San Francisco, Calif. This matches contributions accepted by the board in January. Deborah Dillon gave an equal amount for the college's physical education department.
- Refrigerator, valued at $100, from Patricia Gugel of Brighton, for the office of instruction. Gugel is college coordinator of prison programs.
- Refrigerator and freezer parts, valued at $100, from K.D. Callow of Farmington Hills, for the climate systems technology department.
- Powdered metal, valued at $100, from Quebec Metal Powders Ltd., Sorrel, Quebec., for the metallurgy department.
- $85 from Mr. and Mrs. Elwin C. Meyers of Livonia for the college to use at its discretion. They have applied for matching funds from Ford Motor Co.
- $35 from Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for discretionary use. This matches contributions from John H. Cruse, accepted by the board in December.

Quality is the key edge in market, says resident

Selling top management on quality control was the topic of a presentation given recently by a Plymouth resident employed by Ford Motor Co..

Dave Schwinn spoke on "How to Get Your Boss Interested in Quality" at the Quality in Management and Service mid-year conference of the American Society for Quality Control in Chicago.

Quality professionals continually bemoan the lack of support they receive from their management in the assurance of quality excellence, said Schwinn, who works in quality engineering for Ford's.

The presentation given at the conference told how to discuss quality in terms management can understand — profitability, said Schwinn.

The frequently misunderstood relationship between quality and productivity was explored in the presentation by Schwinn who also discussed Ford's recent heightened interest in quality and productivity.

SCHWINN BEGAN his career after earning a bachelor of mechanical engineering from General Motors Institute.

He spent the next six years with Frigidaire Division of General Motors in the automotive and home appliance industries performing process engineering, quality engineering, and quality control supervision.

By the time he left General Motors, Schwinn also had earned a master's in business administration degree from Wright State University and a professional engineering certification from the state of Ohio.

At Ford Schwinn has worked in process engineering, product planning, product design engineering, reliability and quality engineering.

His present assignment involves making management presentations on the use of statistics to improve quality and productivity, and on Employee Involvement (EI) which is a form of participative decision-making in place at Ford's.

Schwinn also prepares statistical training materials and consults with on the use of statistics in business management.

IN HIS TALK at the conference, Schwinn said that in its early stage of development the importance of quality control never got to top management in a way that encouraged its commitment.

"Although the message did not move U.S. management, it did move Japanese management and the results are obvious throughout the U.S. economy. A few U.S. managers are beginning to understand, but the message must spread."

The message which must be given to top management is that improved quality leads to improved productivity which results in improved profitability, said Schwinn.

"Managers understand that, above all else, they must have profitability. Quality control, from the manager's viewpoint, is often perceived as a drag on profits not a propellant."

Profits increase with increased sales or decreased costs, said Schwinn, and improving quality almost always does both.

One concept not always understood by top management, said Schwinn, is that the most effective way to improve quality is to change the production process — not the inspection process.

"Americans are used to 'burning the toast and scraping it.' Americans expect the plane to be late, the food to be cold, the luggage to be lost, and the car to go back to the dealer for service. Management can no longer accept these conditions if the U.S. is to compete with Japan."

If this is to happen, Schwinn stressed, professionals in the quality control field must avoid the trade jargon and communicate to management in simple terms consistent with the background of managers.

In summary, Schwinn said that to get management interested in quality the quality control professional must explain how quality effects profitability; propose and plan to improve quality and productivity; and, show positive results from a pilot project.

Bloodmobiles make suburban rounds

American Red Cross bloodmobiles will accept donations at four western Wayne County locations this month.

March has been proclaimed Red Cross Month by President Ronald Reagan.

Southeastern Michigan Regional Blood Service supplies the needs of 75 hospitals in five Michigan counties. In order to meet those needs, the Red Cross depends on community blood donors to help out.

Donors should be between the ages of 17 and 65 and weigh at least 110 pounds.

Bloodmobiles will be located at:

Perfection Auto Products Co., 12445 Levan, Livonia, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday. For an appointment, call Cliff Waters, 591-0111.

Newburg Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., March 20. For an appointment, call Larry Johnson, 522-1977 (home) or 492-1175 (work).

Clarenceville High School, 20155 Middlebelt, Livonia, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., March 24. Appointments may be made with Evelyn Cohen, 476-2270.

Plymouth Church of the Nazarene, 41550 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, 3-9 p.m., March 30. Appointments may be made with Dean Hamlin, 420-2950 (home) or 459-7660 (work).

Donations also are accepted at the Livonia Donor Center, Bell Creek Office Plaza, 29691 W. Six Mile, Livonia. Hours are 2-8 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays; from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays. For an appointment, call 422-2820.

HOW TO MAKE A TAX DEDUCTIBLE CONTRIBUTION TO YOURSELF.

Open a Standard Federal Savings IRA plan.

Every working person with earned income from performing personal services is now eligible for an Individual Retirement Account. Contributions to this account (a maximum of $2,000 per year or 100% of income—whichever is less) are TAX DEDUCTIBLE each year and earnings are also TAX DEFERRED until retirement (age 59½).

You actually save money two ways:

1. Tax Deduction

A $2,000 annual contribution to your IRA can mean real savings right NOW.

For example, even though an actual cash contribution has been made in the amount of $2,000, it will cost the tax payer (in the 40% tax bracket) only $1,200 in actual dollars because of the $800 tax savings incurred.

TAX BRACKET	20%	30%	40%	50%
IRA ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000
ANNUAL TAX SAVINGS	$ 400	$ 600	$ 800	$1,000
YOUR ACTUAL YEARLY NET CONTRIBUTION	$1,600	$1,400	$1,200	$1,000

2. Tax Deferral

1½-year certificate account — Current rate 9.25% per year—paid and compounded quarterly — 9.57% effective annual yield

A $2,000 annual contribution to your IRA also means tax-deferred savings until retirement when tax brackets are usually lower. Here's what you'll earn with our 1½-year fixed rate certificate at 9.25% if reinvested at the same annual interest rate.

YEARS OF CONTRIBUTION	10	20	30	40
IRA ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000
FUNDS AVAILABLE AT RETIREMENT	$34,224.60	$119,630.18	$332,755.04	$864,596.25

STANDARD FEDERAL SAVINGS

2401 West Big Beaver, Troy, MI 48084 (313) 643-9600

Many other savings plans are also available for IRA.

Call or visit us today to learn how Standard Federal Savings can help you save TWICE for retirement.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate accounts, and withdrawals from your IRA prior to age 59½ may result in tax penalties. When you withdraw the money in your IRA Account at retirement after age 59½, your withdrawals will be taxed as ordinary income at a time when your tax rate is likely to be lower.

IRA Accounts are insured separately to $100,000 by the FSLIC.

12 robots to join Schoolcraft faculty

They may not carry notebooks or be invited to campus parties, but Heros and Rhinos will be just as much a part of the Schoolcraft College scene this fall as the students.

Heros — R2D2 look-alikes — and Rhinos — resembling a mechanical arm — are robots. They represent the college's leap into the technological future.

College trustees last week approved spending nearly $87,000 to bring 12 robots to the Livonia campus. A state grant, which the college received to develop a robotics laboratory, will cover the cost.

THE ROBOTS will be used in the college's newly expanded robotics program.

"This program will be targeted for underemployed and unemployed workers such as tool-and-die makers and machinists," said Fernon Feenstra, assistant dean for technology.

Feenstra believes the program will be a big drawing card. "We offered three introductory robotics courses in January, and they were all filled within two weeks," he said.

Part-time instructors from area industries will teach the classes, Feenstra said. "We'll be asking for a full-time instructor for the 1983-84 school year, beginning in July."

STUDENTS MAY opt for an associate degree program either in robotics application or service.

In robotics application, students will learn how the robot fits into the manufacturing process, Feenstra said.

Classes in manufacturing, industrial management, engineering and computers supplement robotics courses.

Students who opt for the robotics service program will learn how to set up, tear down and repair robots and use a computer to control the robot's movements.

Classes in electronics, hydraulics pneumatics, systems analyis and trouble-shooting are part of that curriculum.

Robotics courses currently are conducted in the evenings and on weekends. The fall schedule has not yet been determined.

SC trustees cut junkets

In an effort to cut costs, Schoolcraft College trustees said they plan to curtail out-of-state conferences for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Trustees will miss three college conferences which will be held in April.

Typically, it costs between $300-$600 to send one trustee to each conference.

Trustees said they made the move because of the college's revenue problems.

The college could lose about $75,000 this year as a result of Gov. James Blanchard's proposed budget cuts, trustees said.

In addition, the state has delayed some $835,000 in payments, which it owed the college in January and February.

'Y' elects board

Russell F. Hoisington has been elected president of the executive board of the Plymouth Community Family YMCA.

Elected to serve as officers with Hoisington were Al Calille, vice president; Judy Berry, secretary; and Paul Bieritz, treasurer.

Selected as members-at-large were Thomas Healy and George Johnson. Past presidents of the YMCA Board include Burt Dickinson and Smith Horton.

County commission names 7 committees

TheWayne County Commission will have seven committees instead of five this year.

Under requirements in the new county charter, the board now has 15 rather than 27 members. All serve on committees.

The new structure, approved by board chairman William Suzore of Lincoln Park, places six members on the ways and means committee, which reviews and makes recommendations on the annual budget proposal. Suzore appointed chairman Clarence Young of Ecorse, vice-chairman Joseph Jurkiewicz of Taylor, Kay Beard of Inkster, Freddie Burton Jr., Jackie Currie and Stanley Rozycki, all of Detroit.

Previously, all 27 board members served on the Ways and Means Committee.

A NEW AUDIT committee has been formed to review reports of independent audits and of the auditor general. Members are chairman Richard Manning of Detroit, vice-chairman Samuel Turner of Detroit, Mary Dumas of Livonia, John Hertel of Harper Woods, Arthur Carter and Bernard Kilpatrick, both of Detroit.

Both the ways and means and audit committees are equally balanced between Detroit and out-county members.

The other four committees retain the same titles and functions:

General government — Rozycki, chairman; Carter, vice-chairman; Turner and Beard.

Public works — Jurkiewicz, chairman; Milton Mack of Wayne, vice-chairman, and Burton.

Public safety and judiciary — Dumas, chairman; Currie, vice-chairman, and Hertel.

A committee of the whole, consisting of all 15 commissioners, also has been formed.

Vice-chairman is Edward Plawecki Jr. of Dearborn Heights.

Joint concert was a first

To the editor:

As a charter member of the Plymouth Community Chorus, active board member, and historian of the chorus, I wish to address myself to the letter written recently by Wayne Dunlap, former conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

The Plymouth Community Chorus that hosted the Michigan State "Johnny Mann's Great American Choral Festival" was founded in September 1973 by William Grimmer and had never sung with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra before Friday, Feb. 11, 1983, in that stirring and memorable concert through the foresight and efforts of Michael Gross, musical conductor of the Plymouth Community Chorus.

The chorus, orchestra, and narrator of the "Lincoln Portrait" (the Hon. Dunbar Davis) were brought together for this wonderful community endeavor. The facts in the Observer were accurate in reporting this successful event of the season.

On Feb. 3, 1974, the chorus made its debut on the stage of Plymouth Salem High School auditorium with the Plymouth Community Band in a "Tribute to Sigmund Romberg" directed by Mr. Grimmer.

Mr. Grimmer was our first musical conductor from 1973-77, David Gladstone from 1977-78, and Mr. Gross from 1978 to the present date. Fred Nelson, mentioned in the letter, never has been associated with our musical ensemble.

From the success and standing ovations received on Feb. 11, 1983, in our first joint venture, let's hope our two quality musical organizations can do it again sometime.

From casual to elegant

Every cruise ship offers an ambiance all its own

A CRUISE SHIP is a sensory experience. The taste of food. The rattle of slot machines. The feel of the hot Caribbean sun against your skin as you bake beside the pool. The sight of seagulls circling against island shores.

That's what we're all doing here, at sea aboard the cruise ship Mardi Gras, enjoying the sights and smells of another world, but something else creeps up on you as the week goes by. People.

There's Manuel from Honduras, and Louis from Haiti, who serve us 10 courses at breakfast, lunch and dinner every day, pamper us with special orders and even dance around the dining room holding flaming desserts aloft when the theme of the day requires it.

Both Manuel and Louis have wives and families at home. They sail these ships, pampering a new set of tourists every week, because they can earn more money afloat than at home.

There's Cruise Director Gary Hunter and his cast of characters: Kiki, Buford, Doug, Andy, Dale, who organize silly games during the day, a bingo party every evening, and a different show twice every night in the Grand Ballroom. You'll find one of them performing after midnight every night in the Point After Club and later winding down in the disco.

Your table mates are the same at every meal, so after a while you have a family growing around the soup and the pate, the fish and seafood, the meats and pies and flaming desserts.

Whether or not you play together during the day, you take your table mates home with you in the pictures you paste in your album, and you write to them every Christmas until you can't remember which one was which.

TRAVELERS PICK a cruise ship for its ambiance and its ports of call. The Mardi Gras is the oldest of the Carnival Lines, known as the "fun ships" because they cater to a casual crowd. This is the old Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines cruiser the Empress of Canada, renovated 10 years ago.

It has the larger cabins, polished wood and brass of an older ship; of course it also lacks the luster of a new ship. The newest ship on the Carnival line, the Tropicale, has all that new luster and none of the old glow, so you take your pick.

The Mardi Gras sails out of Miami every Sunday afternoon at 4; there are three days at sea and three days in port. The ports are Cozumel, on the gulf coast of Mexico; Georgetown on Grand Cayman Island; and Ocho Rios, Jamaica.

Cruising veterans know that every cruise ship has its own ambiance and caters to its own crowd. The Mardi Gras is for the traveler who doesn't want to dress up for dinner. Those who like tuxedos and glamor choose other ships. It's casual, although some people find life aboard a little more structured than they want it to be.

Industry experts will tell you, however, that only 3 percent of Americans have ever taken a cruise. Most of us are exploring an entirely new way of spending a vacation. Here is a typical day:

The daily newsletter is under your door when you wake up. If you hung your card on the doorknob the night before, your cabin steward will bring you breakfast. Otherwise you must choose between all those fattening courses in the Flamingo Dining Room, or eat with your feet up from the Seaview Snack Bar on deck.

What time you go to breakfast depends on whether you chose the early or late sitting when you came aboard. That is certainly the most important decision of the week, because a 7:45 a.m. breakfast, a noon lunch and a 6 p.m. dinner give your day a different rhythm than meals eaten at 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

After all this heavy early-morning decision making — "should I have eggs, pancakes, crepes, omelets, or all four?" — most people spread their bikini'd and lotioned bodies on deck chairs around the small pool forward, the deck bar that overlooks the pool or the sundeck that overlooks both.

During days at sea, some people don't leave the lounge chairs until dinnertime. You can eat hamburgers on deck any day you like instead of shrimp, quiche, pate, steak and all that fattening stuff in the dining room.

During shore days, the launches leave early for optional tours or late for those who want to wander on their own. Most people return for dinner, and a rattle-and-spin through the gambling rooms before settling down to floor shows and late-night activities.

If its the last day aboard, on any cruise ship, its tipping time: usually $2 per person per day for the waiter, $1 for the bus boy, $2 for the cabin steward, plus anything you are inclined to give to the maitre d's or the wine steward. Figure $50 each per week, tops. Tips, drinks, gambling, optional tours and shopping are your only expenses. Everything else aboard a cruise ship is free.

Cruising veterans know that every cruise ship caters to its own crowd. The Mardi Gras is for the traveler who doesn't want to dress up for dinner. Those who like tuxedos and glamour choose other ships. It's casual, although some people find life aboard a little more structured than they want it to be.

Off-season cruise rates start soon

Off-season runs from April to December in the cruise business. Spring and fall offer good weather at savings off-season rates on the four Carnival Line ships range from $860 for an inside cabin with upper-lower bunks to $1,205 for an outside cabin with twin beds on an upper deck to $1,595 for a verandah suite.

The four ships are Mardi Gras, sailing Sunday from Miami for Cozumel, Caymen Island, Jamaica; Carnivale, sailing Sunday from Miami for Sammana, San Juan and St. Thomas; Festivale, sailing Saturday from Miami for Nassau, San Juan, St. Thomas; the brand-new Tropicale, sailing Sunday from Los Angeles for Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas.

SINGLE TRAVELERS should check out Norwegian American Cruises, which joins with Singleworld to feature cruises for singles. Singleworld is a reputable New York-based tour operator.

Norwegian American also offers two-, three-, nine- or 14-night cruises to Alaska and Canada during the summer, and theme tours like the Gold Rush to Alaska on the five-star liner Sagafjord. The five-star rating was given by Fielding's Worldwide Guide to Cruises. The Sagafjord was voted cruise ship of the year by the World Ocean and Cruise Liner Society.

The brand-new Nieuw Amsterdam from Holland America will make its maiden voyage from Le Havre, France, to New York City, May 15-23, rates $2,085 to $3,385 per person, including air fare to Europe. This superliner was built by the same people who built the Ile de France, now the Norway.

Royal Viking just released its 1983-84 schedule, highlighting four-day Mexican cruises starting at $540, and a 99-day Grand World cruise with a penthouse suite price of $70,884. They do two-week jaunts between Australia and Tahiti; around Bali; through the Panama Canal and on the Mediterranean. The long ones go for 60 days around South America, three weeks Singapore to Sydney or Sydney to Hong Kong.

Some of you might prefer the summer New England and Canada cruises: 14 days round-trip between New York, Prince Edward Island, Montreal, Quebec, Maine, Massachussets, Rhode Island, New York. Or the 21 days from London to New York or from Copenhagen to New York. You also can cruise to Russia.

The most important financial information for your consideration: It's a buyer's market, because the lines have introduced large new ships into a recession period. Check your travel agent for fly-cruise or other money-saving ways to sail.

Finally, watch for Ethel Blum's new book, "The Total Traveler by Ship," available after April 25 from bookstores, Hipporcrene Books Inc., New York, or by mail from Travel Publications Inc. One Lincoln Road No. 214, Miami Florida 33139 ($12.95 plus $1 postage).

Party regulars target Nystrom's fees and tactics

Bob Wisler

DENNIS NYSTROM, who is Wayne County Executive William Lucas' acting chief of staff, is well on his way to becoming the county's most controversial political figure.

In a government dominated by Democrats and labor, Nystrom stands out like an investment banker at a UAW rally.

Nystrom is a successful attorney with a law firm in Southfield, a Bloomfield Township resident and a staunch Republican who was active in the political campaigns of such Republicans as former U.S. Senator Robert Griffin and, for a time, gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee.

Then what is he doing holding the second-most powerful job, if not the first, in county government? That's what a host of county politicos would like to know.

Various Democrats in high standing have put pressure on Lucas to dump Nystrom, but Lucas, who admires Nystrom's abilities as an idea man, program developer and administrator, has resisted steadfastly. Nystrom, who ran Lucas' campaign for county executive, says he admires Lucas and is willing to slight his law practice to help Lucas reform Wayne County government.

BUT NYSTROM has managed in the two months since Lucas took office to alienate a host of county political figures, and his standing with the County Commission is about as high as that of Herve Villechaize.

Lucas, who handily won six Wayne County elections as a Democrat (four as county sheriff), attended the Democratic state convention last weekend and was politely snubbed by major party figures.

A big reason: Nystrom's political status is anathema to Democratic party regulars.

Union chiefs, especially, are unhappy with the idea of a budget-cutting Republican commander marching their troops out of jobs.

There are also complaints that Nystrom is abrasive and uses tactics better suited for courtroom jousting than political negotiating.

A MAJOR SORE point is Nystrom's renumeration as Lucas' chief of staff. Nystrom is working on a contractural basis rather than for an employee's salary and terms of the arrangement have so far been kept secret.

A number of estimators think this means he is working on an hourly attorney's-fee basis which equates to $100,000 a year or better. Nystrom came to the Lucas camp after representing the Wayne County Sheriff's Deputies Association, and then the association and Lucas, in court battles with the county board over the size of the sheriff's road patrol.

Lucas, the deputies and Nystrom lost last year. Nystrom's $256,000 fee has not been paid. Lucas has asked county commissioners to pay the bill out of county funds, but commissioners have so far stalled. Nystrom has been talking about salary concesssions and layoffs, but the unions are already pointing to Nystrom's financial arrangment and saying there is no equal sacrifice in the executive's inner circle.

When the figure for the current contractual arrangment finally becomes public, it is liable to be up there in the same attorney-fee strata, which will create a new clamor.

The odds are that shooting at Nystrom has just begun. Whether Nystrom will want to remain in the circle of wagons remains to be seen. He may decide to return full-time to his law practice before the controversy over his job becomes noisier and more public.

Blanchard's tax proposal needs major revisions

HAVING AN old governor with tired, worn-out ideas was a hard enough pill for Michigan taxpayers to take. But having a spanking new chief executive peddling the same old tax elixir is much more than the hard-working people of this state can be expected to swallow.

But that is what the young, new Gov. James Blanchard, in collusion with like-minded legislators, is attempting to force down our throats — an increased income tax, from 4.6 percent to 6.35 percent, mixed with educational budget cuts which would prove harmful to the state's recovery.

Frankly, we expected better.

SINCE TIME immemorial, the income tax, especially the flat-rate genre, has been known for its unfairness. As Plato once told us, "When there is an income tax, the just man will pay more and the unjust less on the same amount of income."

Blanchard's tax plan not only is innately unfair, it is an unimaginative prescription for a state which cries for bold new ideas. We strongly urge the governor and his legislative cronies to return to the drawing board.

Blanchard should take a closer look at combining a temporary sales tax with a temporary income tax. Although far from perfect, the sales tax does lift some of the burden from state taxpayers to the many persons taking vacations in this state.

The sales tax's regressive features happily have been modified by the 1976 exemption of food and drugs.

Besides, the division between the haves and the have nots has increased considerably during the recession. We believe those who have the ability to enjoy economic buying power should pay more in taxes.

Although the Economic Alliance for Michigan, a group of the state's business and labor movers and shakers, has endorsed Blanchard's plan, it also has recommended a sales tax plan.

Blanchard should take a closer look at combining a temporary sales tax with a temporary income tax.

BLANCHARD has leaned toward high-handedness in dealing with sales tax advocates. A sales tax increase would require a vote of the people to amend the state constitution. Because of the economic conditions, Blanchard says there isn't enough time to put it in place.

Michigan taxpayers have made it emphatic they want more of a say. We've survived the economic mess this long. We can survive until taxpayers express their wishes.

Those who advocate passing the income tax increase now and asking the people about a sales tax later are dabbling in political sophistry. Implementing an increased income tax now would certainly kill any chance a sales tax proposal would have in the future.

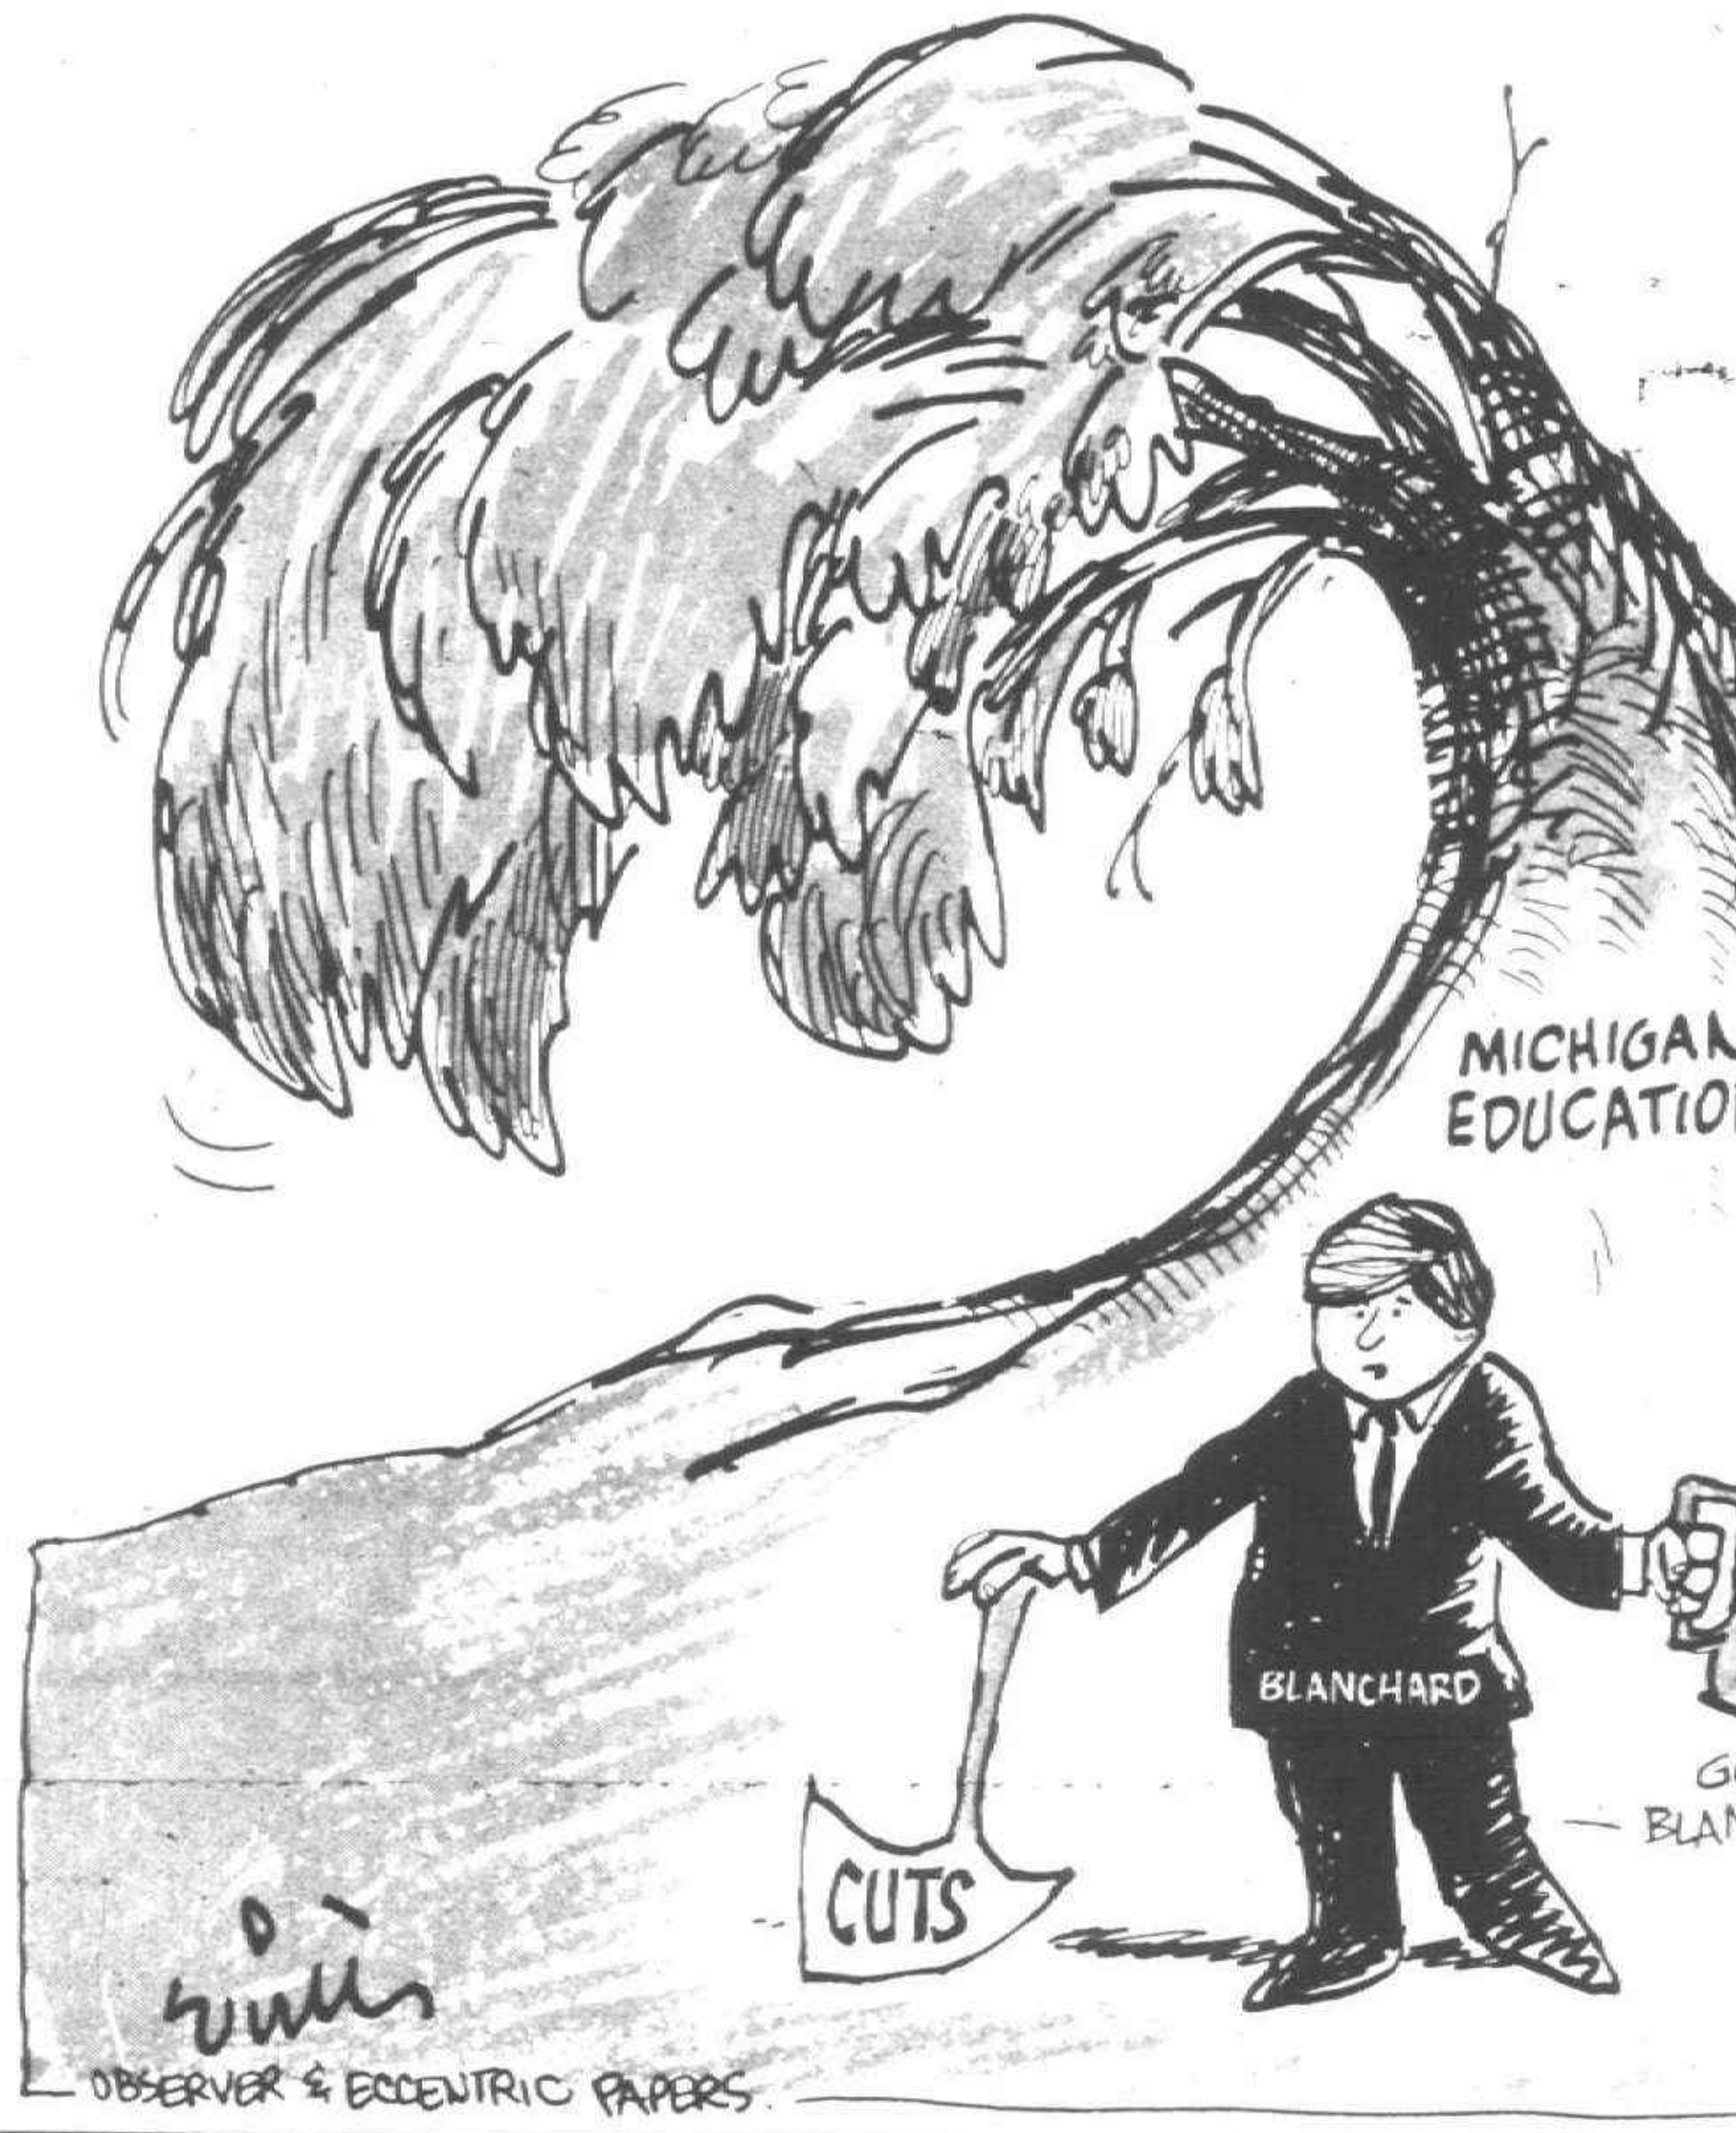
WE ALSO QUESTION Blanchard's priorities in the $225 million of cuts he has proposed. His proposed educational cuts are distasteful and counterproductive to Michigan's economic recovery.

For this state to become economically viable once again, we need to retrain our present work force. We need to train the next generation for the next technologies in which this state must be proficient.

We need to develop research facilities and programs such as the Metropolitan High Technology Center at Wayne State University. This was established to attract research-oriented high technology firms in the state. The concept already is providing badly needed jobs and revenue.

Axing $60 million from the state's educational budget will abort such progressive attempts at economic recovery.

'Which shall I use, folks?'



Anorexia: slim isn't beautiful

Nick Sharkey

From outward appearances, she's a typical suburban housewife.

She lives in a ranch house with a husband and two children. She's active in school, civic and church affairs. She is seen frequently herding her children in and out of the family station wagon.

But look a little closer.

Her appearance is fashionably slight, maybe too slight. Her face is often red, as if she has just returned after some vigorous exercise in the cold.

Those who know her well seldom see her eat. She has taken the fitness craze to an extreme. It's exercise class every day. After that, she's out jogging 10 miles a day.

This woman is suffering from anorexia nervosa. It's a condition where persons (95 percent are females) starve themselves in order to keep their bodies slender.

Singer Karen Carpenter, who died a few weeks ago at the age of 32, was suffering from this disease.

Although the disease is associated with teen-age girls, it also occurs in persons who are older — as in the case of the suburban housewife and Carpenter.

It's a deadly illness with a 15-21 percent mortality rate, according to the American Psychiatric Association. Treatment takes many years and requires numerous hospital stays.

ANOREXIA NERVOSA occurs at relatively higher rates in the suburbs.

"It is seen in upper middle class suburbs as opposed to central cities," said Dr. Charles Goss, a psychiatrist with Botsford General Hospital in Farmington. "Young women who are overly concerned about their outward appearances may get the disease. This is more likely to occur in the suburbs."

Females suffering from anorexia strive for illusive perfection. Typically, she is a hign-achieving, energetic young woman. Often this young woman comes from a closely-knit family which emphasizes accomplishing goals.

Persons suffering from anorexia eat little. When required to eat, they feel guilty. They try to get rid of what they have eaten through induced vomiting, use of laxatives and excessive exercise. The result is starvation.

Dr. Goss estimates that one out of every 250 girls between 12 and 18 years of age suffer from it. Figure out for yourself the odds at your local high school.

THIS ILLNESS is both a psychiatric and biological disorder.

"The person views her body as fat, when in fact it may be malnourished," said Dr. David Fachnie of the division of metabolic diseases at Henry Ford Hospital.

"The body then goes through many changes," Dr. Fachnie said. "Typically, the woman stops having her monthly period before she begins to lose weight."

The remedy for anorexia is complex. As suggested by the 15-21 percent mortality rate, thearapy is often not successful. Many times a "cured" patient ends up living her life in isolation as a chronic invalid.

Botsford's Dr. Goss says many of his psychiatrist cohorts refuse to treat any more cases. "The therapist has to be directive and active in teating the patient," he said. "Sometimes even after the psychiatrist understands a patient and the patient intellectually knows how to cure herself, she is not able to change. That makes it so frustrating."

TV's gift: uneducated millionaires

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

WHAT A WONDERFUL thing it has been to sit back on your favorite chair and watch the top football games of the country or have the Detroit Tigers play right in your own home.

And how wonderful it has been to start the New Year right by watching the famous Rose Parade strut across your living room and the biggest college game of the year being waged within arm's length.

Sure, these things have been wonderful, and little thought has been given through the years that the same television that is providing so much free entertainment is also starting to create a lot of harm.

This has come to light in the past several weeks as the United States Football League — a loop that hasn't played a game — wages a war of dollars to sign players.

THE REAL THREAT came the other day when it was learned that the Jersey City team in the new league has signed — and guaranteed — $16.5 million over five years to Herschel Walker, the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Georgia. Walker has another year to go to earn his degree from the University of Georgia. To top it off, Walker was paid, so it was stated, $1.5 million for agreeing to leave school and sign the contract.

That means he will be paid more than $3 million a year for carrying a football, compared to the $200,000 that is paid the president of the United States for carrying the burden of our government.

To make matters worse, Walker couldn't have attained his high ranking if there had not been linemen in front of him to open holes through which he could race with the football.

WHERE IS ALL the money coming from to pay these high salaries to athletes? Surely not from paid admissions. Sellout crowds in every stadium could not come close to paying the bill.

The answer is that television is taking over sports spectaculars.

Several years ago, the TV folks startled the sports world by paying each team in the National Football League $1 million each season. That figure has grown, so it is said, to $15 million a season.

And mind you, that is with "free" television.

Now that cable television serves many more homes, the time has come when these stations will take over the bonanza paid each team. And where will most of that money come from? It will come from the customers of cable companies who will be asked to pay a monthly rate for the privilege of watching the sports events — and other entertainment — at home.

THAT MAY NOT be too bad. But where the harm is being done is taking these young fellows out of college before their graduations. Sure, they are making millionaires out of the stars, but without an education.

What's more, they are removing the athletes from such world events as the Olympic Games and giving them the riches that seemingly are unearned.

Another thing to ponder: How do these bloated salaries affect the ranks of the unemployed and those who stand in line to pick up a package of cheese or a few loaves of bread at the welfare center?

It is bringing some unrest in the country, and the television we thought was so great is to blame for it.

Is it worth it?

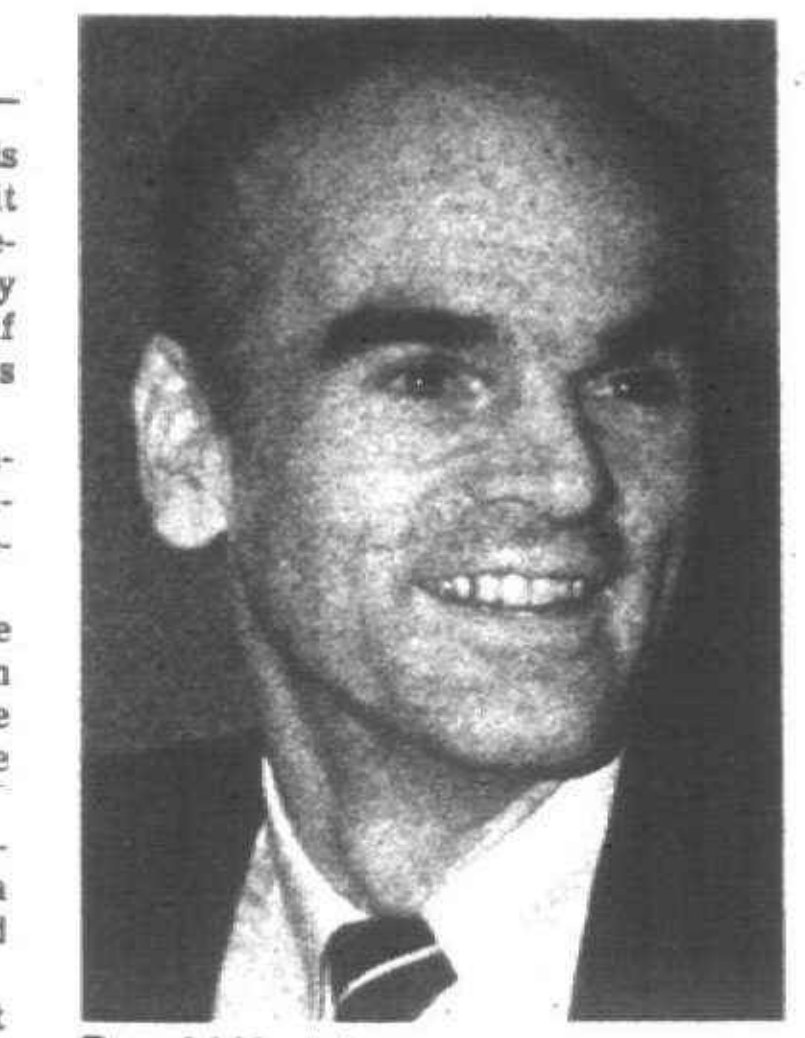
Surprise! New energy chief is friend of solar

By Penny Wright
special writer



Donald Hodel
energy secretary

A new boss at the top always sends stress signals through the system. So it is with Donald Hodel, the new secretary of the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE), who jokingly refers to himself as the "last male appointee to Reagan's Cabinet."

Since assuming the post last December, Hodel has given few public indications of what his leadership of the Department of Energy will mean.

Hodel was in Detroit recently to give the keynote address at the Michigan Republican Convention. In an exclusive interview, Hodel gave a look at the course he is setting.

The surprise is that in an administration known as a friend of oil, Hodel is a strong advocate of conservation and renewable energy technologies.

Unlike his predecessor, dentist James Edwards, Hodel is no stranger to energy issues. The attorney from Oregon has held key positions in the energy sector for 15 years, including a five-year stint as administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration in Oregon. Before assuming the DOE job, Hodel was undersecretary of Interior.

As we talked, Hodel revealed an enthusiasm for the new job and a commitment to laying the foundation for a revised national consensus on energy policy. Excerpts:

Q. The DOE budget seems to be tilted in favor of the nuclear industry, with little or no funding for conservation and renewable energies. Do you agree?

A. That's not correct. When I came on board, I found a 1984 budget that was 95 percent out of the station. I realized that we needed to do more in conservation and renewables than we had been proposing.

So we increased by 4½ times our proposal for 1984 over what we had proposed in 1983. We went from $22 million to $102 million in conservation.

In solar and renewables we went from $74 million to $102 million. The preception is that we are hostile to these energy options. I am trying hard to turn it.

Q. How are you planning to do this?

A. I've asked the director of SERI (Solar Energy Research Institute) to give me a back-of-an-envelope analysis — I don't want a fancy analysis yet — of what it would take in terms of capital and operating expenses to turn SERI into a real national solar lab, so that in five to 10 years we could expect to be in the forefront of solar technology.

I have, in the same spirit, asked the conservation and renewables assistant secretary to give me a list of options — what we can do to highlight the importance of conservation and renewable activity.

Also I have met with a lot of environmental groups and asked them for options.

Q. What about the nuclear side of the budget picture?

A. Our budget, with $848 million for nuclear this year, is a 1-percent increase over last year's request. Two-hundred-seventy million dollars is for the Clinch River Breeder reactor.

In March, I have to go back to Congress with a proposal as to how we are going to get that off the federal funding role. If I'm successful, we will see a significant drop in the amount of funding we spend on nuclear.

Q. Does this indicate a change in policy for the DOE?

A. I think this is an important trend, a shift in the role of the department — more toward a scientific and technological orientation. I think that's the role it ought to play.

I was out at the Fermi Lab — fascinating experience. They are working on technology transfer, how to move the technology into industry so that jobs and economic activity is created. These are the areas I think the department can move into most effectively.

Q. It sounds like federal involvement in determining energy policy will diminish.

A. I do not believe it is possible, and I don't believe it is proper, for a federal department to try to tell the American people what to pay, when to pay, or how much to buy of any particular energy source.

That market out there is so much more complex than you would believe, and when we have tried to control it, we have screwed up enormously. We must let the market work.

Q. How "free" do you propose the market should be?

A. The free market extends to all energy forms, which means letting even nuclear stand on its own feet.

One of the things we have in our budget is Clinch River as a demonstration project. Now I say we can't afford to buy demonstration projects anymore.

Q. Our domestic energy industries fear that the technical leadership they currently enjoy will be eroded without federal support.

A. There may be a risk of that. I get that argument from the nuclear people, breeder people, and the coal and fusion industry. It would take an enormous volume of money to try to do all those things.

I think what is important is that we continue the tax incentives and keep reminding ourselves that the iniative and flexibility that has come out of this country in the technical areas is astonishing. The $80 billion that is sent on research each year in the United States offsets the combined total spent by the rest of the free world.

Q. Has Washington given any thought to the plight of a state like Michigan, which is currently importing 87 percent of its energy?

A. In a broad context, yes. We are trying to see to it that you have a wider array of options, including conservation and renewables. We are not inclined to meddle in the market.

The reality is that Michigan has been a tremendous industrial producer, and the income from exporting products to other states has in the past more than compensated for the import of energy.

I come from an energy-deficient state. The state of Oregon is a net importer of energy. When the building industry went on the skids in the late 1970s, the state had trouble paying its energy bills. The fact is the market was not working well.

In the long run Oregon was better having flexibility than having the iron hand of government coming into the situation.

Penny Wright is a free-lance writer on energy and part-time instructor in energy courses.

Certificate requirements boosted by Schoolcraft

Schoolcraft College trustees raised the college's graduation requirements for students who enroll in one-year programs.

Trustees last week changed the requirements from a 1.5 (D-plus) to 2.0 (C) grade point average.

"It's important for any institution of higher education to have a little higher criteria," Trustee Rosina Raymond said. "This will make our school a little more prestigious."

The new standards will apply only to students who plan to enroll in the college, not to those currently attending classes.

Students who complete a one-year program are awarded a certificate of completion.

Those who opt for the two-year or associate degree program have always been required to earn a 2.0 grade point average to receive the degree.

THERE MUST have been a brisk northwester blowing the night of Saturday, Feb. 12. That was the day Louis and Helen Gest of Livonia took their grandchildren, Lauren Rotole, 8, and Ronnie Rotole, 11, out to dinner at Mr. Steak. Lauren and Ronnie live in Plymouth and attend Our Lady of Good Counsel School.

A birthday celebration was in progress at a nearby table in the restaurant. The guest of honor, a woman, had been presented with a helium-filled balloon and as she left the restaurant, she gave her balloon to Lauren.

Before the Gests and their grandchildren finished dinner and departed, Ronnie attached a note to the balloon. The group returned to the Gests' home on California and as they were getting out of the car, there was a slight "difference of opinion" between the children. As they argued over who would carry the balloon into the house, it got away from Lauren. That was Saturday night.

On Tuesday, Ronnie received a letter from Agnes Ager of Carrolltown, Pa. She said her 14-year-old son, Eric, had caught the balloon as it was coming down in an open field near their home, Feb. 14 (Monday).

Mrs. Ager wrote that finding the balloon had "put a lot of excitement in our lives." She is a part-time nurse and her husband is a state trooper. Son Eric is a mechanical whiz who fixes and sells bikes. She described Carrolltown as being near Pittsburgh.

They estimated that the balloon had soared about 400 miles in its journey over Lake Erie to its landing place in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Gest said, "Our grandson was just beside himself."

THREE STUDENTS at OLGC school were named local winners in the America & Me essay contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group. Topic for the essays was "Why I Am Important to America's Future."

Mike Boyle, Danielle Krall and Paula Finnegan came in one-two-three. Each received award certificates and Mike's name will be engraved on a plaque to be displayed in the school. His essay goes on to state level competition.

CANTON TOWNSHIP will mark its 149th anniversary March 7. It was March 7, 1834 that an act of Congress declared Town 2, South, Range 6 East of Plymouth Township, a separate territory called Canton Township.

Plans are under way for Canton's 150th birthday celebration next year. The Canton Historical Society has appointed Dorothy West, Ruth Wiles and Charles Zazula to serve on the Sesquicentennial Committee.

CONGRATULATIONS to the Plymouth Salem High School Pompon Squad. The girls brought home a trophy last Saturday for coming in fourth in Class A final competition. The squad was among 15 finalists selected earlier in February in regional contests.

Novi High School hosted the state finals. The 20-member teams were judged on timing, rhythm, kicks, ripples, pompons, and so on. Livonia Churchill High School squad was first. Clintondale was second, Livonia Stevenson, third, and Plymouth Salem, fourth.

Four tropies were awarded.

C.L. COOK had high score at last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center. Hugo Niemi was second high.

CHRIS JANOVSKY has the role of Ezekiel Cheever in the production of "The Crucible" at St. Edward's University in Austin, Texas. He graduated from from Plymouth Salem High School in 1981 and is the son of Charles and Carol Janovsky of Canton Township.

Chris is a sophomore at St. Edward's and has appeared in "Equus," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "Camelot" at the university. He was active in drama at the CEP during his high school years.

CHRISTINE BENNETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bennett of Plymouth, took part in the Harvard National United Nations Conference in Boston.

Christine, a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, is a sophomore at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va. The 12 students from her college assumed the roles of economic and social council representatives from Guatemala and General Assembly representatives from Sweden.

'Falling in Love'

"Falling in Love" will be the theme of the fashion show scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, March 11, in the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium. Models and professional entertainers are contributing their talents for the benefit of the fight against multiple sclerosis. Linda Milligan (above, left), Mark Mousesian, and Theresa Pavone model fashions from Chic Boutique and John Smith of Plymouth. Bonnie Coughlin (at right), Chuck O'Flaherty and Michelle Samouelian model Sportsventure fashions. The Plymouth Park Players, directed by Gloria Logan, will provide between-the-scenes transitions by dramatizing one-minute skits from "Feiffer's People." They also will have a concession stand at the show to earn money for the cast's trip to the Austrian Drama Festival. There will be prizes, music, and dancers. Lark Samouelian is producing the show, which will be co-hosted by Denny Campbell, general manager of Metro 13 cablevision.

Scholarship ball honors 17 seniors

The Woman's Club of Plymouth will set another precedent in celebration of its 90th anniversary. The club's scholarship ball March 11 in the Mayflower Meeting House will honor 17 outstanding high school seniors for their academic accomplishments and their contributions to their schools, churches and community.

There will be a dinner, awards ceremony and dancing at the benefit ball. Each candidate will have an escort for ball and each will receive an honor certificate and a memento of the evening.

The ball's chairwoman is Mrs. Lawrence H. Mueller. Serving on the benefit ball committee are Mrs. Roger Centofanti, Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. Vern A. Hackett, Mrs. Robert Kenyon, Mrs. Conrad Krankel, Mrs. Charles F. Lang, Mrs. Robert Pawling, Woman's Club president, and Mrs. Jean Sigmon.

Special contributing sponsors are Mary Fritz of Plymouth Apa Apartments, tickets; Al Larson, Frameworks, framing certificates; Peas Pease Paint and Wallpaper, materials for mementos; and Sparr's Flowers, flowers and table decorations.

Supporting sponsors are Beginnings, Chic Boutique, Dick Scott Buick, Inc., Draugelis Ashton Scully and Haynes, Jean and Jim Jabara, John Smith Men's Wear, Mayflower Hotel, Millar Weinberg Necker Johnson Wagner and Clark, Plymouth Newcomers, Friends of the Plymouth Symphony Society, and Ford Motor Co. Sheldon Road Plant.

Special programs will be keepsakes of the evening for the candidates and their families. Each of the candidate's pictures will be included as well as the names of the individual patrons, patronesses and sponsors whose contributions are making the ball and the scholarship grants possible.

She belongs to the International Dramatic Honor Society and is an honor thespian. She is the daughter of Norma and Joseph Cleveland of Plymouth Township.

Girl Scouts set up cookie booths

The Girl Scout cookies arrived Monday. Trucks hauling semis delivered the thousands of cases to cookie chairmen in the Plymouth-Canton area. Scouts and Brownies will be making deliveries this week, filling the orders taken earlier in the year.

Because some areas were missed during the original canvass, booths will be set up for direct sale of cookies. The Cadette and Junior troops involved in booth sales will be at the following locations:

- Friday, March 4, 5-9 p.m., Junior Troop 304, at Farmer Jack's, 705 S. Main Street, Plymouth.
- Friday, March 4, 4-8 p.m., Junior Troop 244, at Kroger, Ford and Sheldon roads, Canton Township.
- Saturday, March 5, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Junior Troop 639, Great Scott's, Sheldon and Ann Arbor roads, Plymouth.
- Saturday, March 5, all day, Junior Troop 205, K mart, Ford and Sheldon roads, Canton.
- Saturday, March 5, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Cadette Troop 367, Family Discount Drugs, Sheldon and Ann Arbor roads, Plymouth.
- Saturday, March 5, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., Junior Troop 244, Farmer Jack's, 705 S. Main, Plymouth
- Wednesday, March 9, 4-6 p.m., Junior Troop 615, Kroger, Ford and Sheldon roads, Canton.

Kathy bids farewell to readers

Roy Monk, cubmaster for Pack 898, was also emcee for the annual Blue and Gold Banquet last week. Gloria Krazel, assistant district Cub Scout commissioner, was the guest speaker. Tippi the Clown held the audience spellbound with his magic tricks and balloon animals.

A variety of awards and patches were presented to a number of the Scouts as their parents escorted them to the podium. Angie Lane was honored for her untiring work throughout the year with the Cub Scouts and for starting the new Tiger Cubs.

Recruiting for new Scouts is done on continual basis. If you live in the Eriksson School area, call 981-1626.

MARIA STERLINI hosted her annual Christmas-in-February party last weekend. This is a special treat for the midwinter blues, although we have not seen much of a winter so far this year.

A large nativity scene welcomed 90 guests to the holiday party. Every room had a touch of Christmas with all of the delicious yuletide favorites for all to enjoy. Santa made a special appearance with a bag full of goodies. He whistled and shouted but his reindeer never showed up to escort him home.

Folks from all corners of Canton and Plymouth look forward to celebrating Christmas again with Maria and her family.

WITH THE WARMEST of regrets I must make this my last column for Canton Chatter. My children and I will continue to reside in Canton, but I feel there is a need for fresh ideas in Canton Chatter.

In 2½ years with this column, I have met many wonderful and interesting people in and about Canton. The service organizations for men and women make Canton an ideal place to work and play. The numerous churches which have sprouted up within our boundaries in recent years offer exciting places or worship for family and friends.

The preschool programs in our township have given my children a giant step toward a good background for life. I always have expressed a strong positive feeling for the public elementary schools we have in Canton. A school is only as good as the teachers. My children always have had a dedicated professional in charge of them during the school day.

THERE WERE times when I have attended the township board meetings to complain about something in my neighborhood which did not suit my fancy. Our local government is doing its best with what is available.

We are not lacking for enthusiastic and energetic members of our recreation department to keep everyone from the tiny toddler to the musical senior citizen busy. The continuing education department of the high school continues to offer numerous courses to improve you, your body, your mind or even your household skills.

The Country Festival in Canton continues to grow because we are growing stronger every year as a community working together.

I WILL MISS staying in touch with many folks who only saw me when I stopped over to talk about information for my column. Staying close to my friends in this area is important to me, but the extra time in my busy days does not permit a great deal of chatting over a cup of coffee.

My neighbors have been in the limelight of this column many times. They are the most loving, caring, helpful, and kindest people I have ever known, and this is a special thanks to all of them.

I hope you will be responsive to the new Canton Chatter columnist by communicating your parties, birthdays, anniversaries, school functions and community activities to her.

I have enjoyed my six years in Canton and look forward to a bright future for all of us who care about Canton.

SATIN™ PRESENTS

two week TV entertainment

A SCHEDULE OF MOVIES, SPORTS AND SPECIAL INTEREST PROGRAMING.

© Lorillard, U.S.A., 1981

PROGRAMS SUBJECT TO CHANGE

movies

SAT., MARCH 5

9-11:30PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)

THE JAZZ SINGER
NEIL DIAMOND
LAURENCE OLIVIER
LUCIE ARNAZ

THE JAZZ SINGER The most recent version of movie's very first "talkie" 1927 with Al Jolson, who said "You ain't heard nothin' yet!" Yeah? Well, you ain't seen nothin' 'til you see Neil Diamond as a talented musician torn between a life of familial and religious traditions, and the lure of a show business career.

SUN., MAR. 6

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
BABY SISTER Passion between a beautiful young woman and her sister's boyfriend threatens to destroy a family forever. Sultry romantic drama with Phoebe Cates, Ted Wass, Pamela Bellwood and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr.

MON., MAR. 7

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)

LIVING PROOF: THE HANK WILLIAMS JR. STORY WITH RICHARD THOMAS

LIVING PROOF: The Hank Williams Jr. Story Richard Thomas as the young country music singer struggling to establish his own identity after years of performing in the shadow of his folk-hero father.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)
DEADLY LESSONS Teleflick unpreviewed at presstime.

TUES., MAR. 8

8-10PM NBC (7 Central/Mountain)
THE SWARM Michael Caine, Richard Widmark, Richard Chamberlain and Katharine Ross pick up a pay cheque from Hollywood's ole master of disaster, Irwin Allen. This one is about these killer bees.

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)

THE MIRROR CRACK'D
GERALDINE CHAPLIN
TONY CURTIS
EDWARD FOX
ROCK HUDSON
ANGELA LANSBURY
KIM NOVAK
ELIZABETH TAYLOR

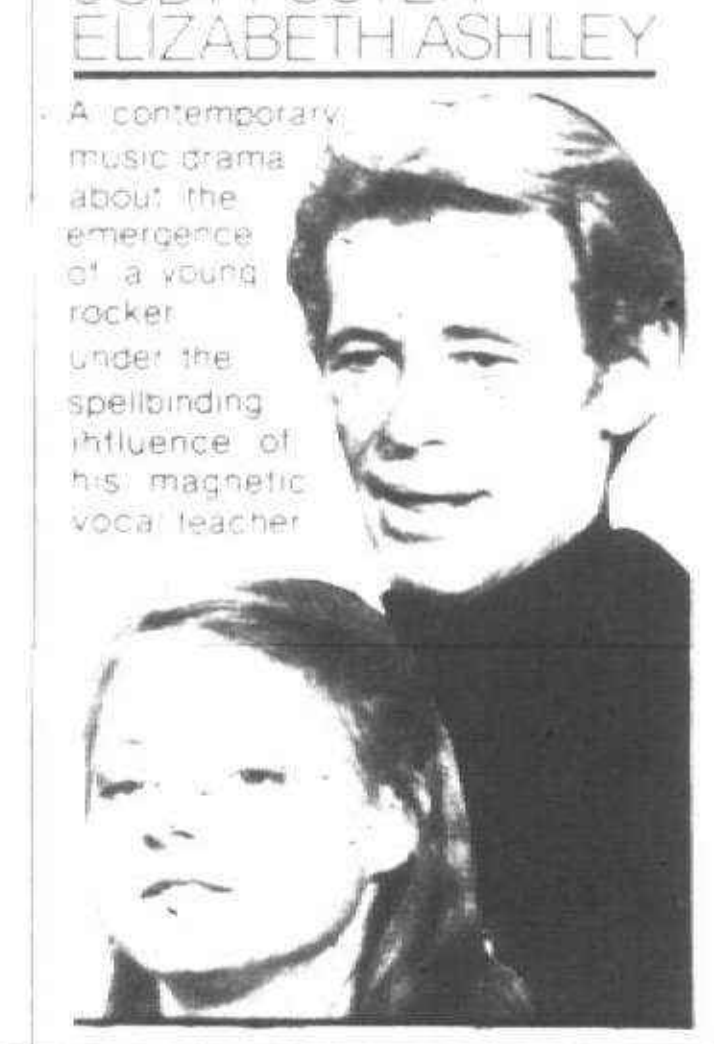
THE MIRROR CRACK'D Lukewarm Agatha Christie with Ms. Lansbury as Miss Jane Marple, polking around the small British town of St. Mary Mead looking for a killer in the midst of a troup of movie stars on location for a motion picture. Hudson, Chaplin, Fox and Curtis are on hand but it is Novak and Taylor as aging movie queens (hummmmm!) hissing insults at each other that lends interest to this one.

WED., MAR. 9

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)

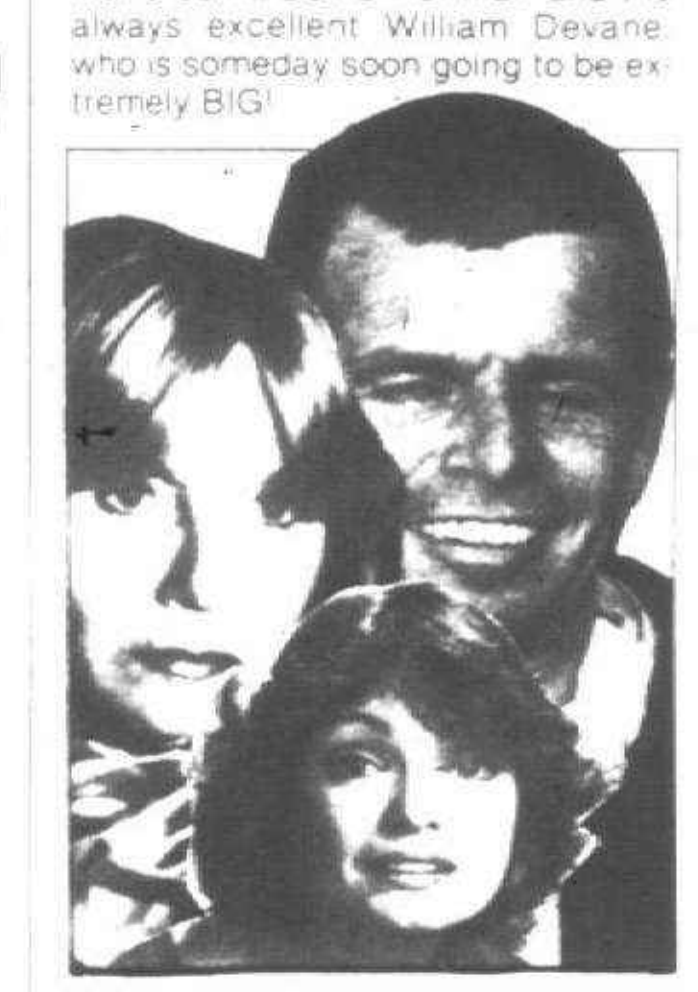
SVENGALI
PETER O'TOOLE
JODY FOSTER
ELIZABETH ASHLEY

A contemporary music drama about the emergence of a young rocker under the spellbinding influence of his magnetic vocal teacher.



SAT., MAR. 12

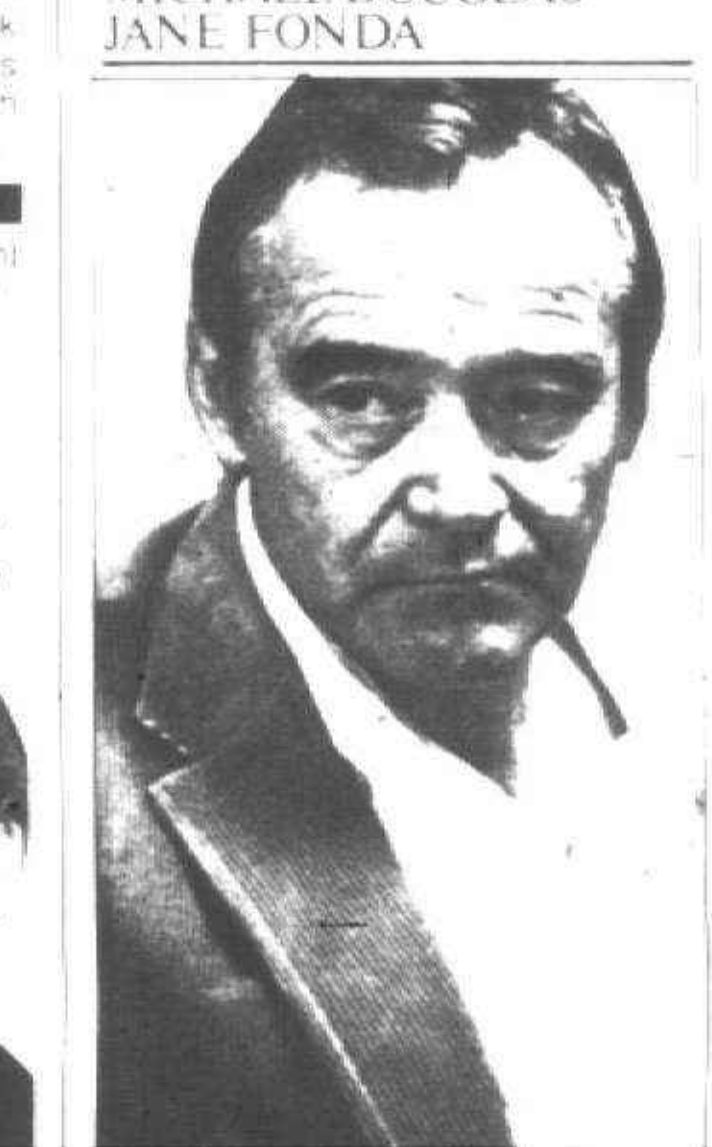
9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain)
JANE DOE Suspense thriller about an amnesiac's life and death race to recall her past. Karen Valentine, Eva Marie Saint, David Huffman and the always excellent William Devane, who is someday soon going to be extremely BIG!



SUN., MAR. 13

9-11:35PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain)

CHINA SYNDROME
JACK LEMMON
MICHAEL DOUGLAS
JANE FONDA



THE CHINA SYNDROME An absolutely gripping thriller involving an all too possible senario for the end of the world as we know it. Jack Lemmon has never been in a more important film and it is doubtful if second generation movie brats Jane Fonda and Michael Douglas ever will be. A first rate and chilling film all the way.

MON., MAR. 14

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)
M.A.D.D.: The Candy Lightner Story True tale of the California housefrau whose sorrow at the death of her daughter leads to the formation of a national organization (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) lobbying for political action that results in the strongest anti-drunk driving legislation in the nation's history. With Mariette Hartley, Paula Prentiss, Bert Remsen, Cliff Potts, John Rubinstein and David Huddleston. Sorrow, rage and action in a very timely teleflick!

specials

Choral music concert features Lutheran Singers

Eric Freudigman directs Lutheran singers

The Detroit Lutheran Singers will be presented in a concert of sacred choral music at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, March 13, at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 30650 Six Mile Road, Livonia.

The program will feature selections from Bach's "Mass in B Minor" and choral favorites by Brahms, Handel, Schelle, Vaughn Williams, Randall Thompson and others.

The singers will be directed by Eric Freudigman and accompanied by Kenneth Sweetman. Sweetman will also present a brief organ prelude to the concert.

Freudigman, who also directs the professional Kenneth Jewell Chorale, uses the group to present a variety of both old and new sacred choral works.

church bulletin

● BEREAN BAPTIST

Dr. Bill Piper of Easely, S.C., will begin meetings Sunday in Berean Baptist Church of Livonia, 38308 Eight Mile, Livonia. They will continue through Friday, March 11. Hours are 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, and 7 p.m. during the week. There will be special music every night, and a nursery will be provided.

Dr. Piper is regarded as an in-depth Bible-teaching evangelist. He has held meetings in several area churches in recent years.

● KIRK OF OUR SAVIOR UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

The Kirk Kurtain Kallers, a drama group, will present a performance of the play, "Attention Must Be Paid," by Lan O'Kun Sunday at Kirk of Our Savior United Presbyterian Church, 36660 Cherry Hill, Westland. A chicken dinner will be served at 6 p.m. followed by the play at 7:30 p.m. A free will donation will be asked.

● ST. PAUL PRESBYTERIAN

Lori George, director of the Livonia Youth Assistance Program, will speak at the 11 a.m. Sunday Forum at St. Paul Presbyterian Church, Five Mile at Inkster, Livonia. In a talk sponsored by the Adult Studies Committee, George will explore the problems of youth and families in Livonia, and the work of the assistance program.

● NEWBURG UNITED METHODIST

Mother Waddles of the Mother Waddles Perpetual Mission in Detroit, will be the first Sunday seminar speaker at 7 p.m. Sunday in Newburg United Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia. Child care will be available.

● REDFORD UNITED METHODIST

Sponsored by Church Women United, a World Day of Prayer program will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday, March 4, in Redford United Methodist Church, 22400 Grand River. Speaking will be the Rev. Juanita J. Ferguson, pastor of William S. Ford Memorial United Methodist Church in Warren.

● MERRIMAN ROAD BAPTIST

Family fun night is to take place 7-10 p.m. Friday, March 4, in Merriman Road Baptist Church, 2055 Merriman, Garden City.

● RICE MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST

The Rev. William Quick, who has served churches in Virginia and North Carolina, will speak at a Lenten dinner at 6:30 p.m. Monday, March 7, in Rice Memorial United Methodist Church, 20601 Beech Daly, Redford Township.

Quick was appointed senior pastor of the Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Detroit in 1974.

Quick is heard on radio, and is host of a monthly television program called "Open Doors."

● FIRST UNITED METHODIST

David and Terry Gladstone will present a musical evening Lenten service at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 8, in First United Methodist Church, 6443 Merriman, Garden City. They are music education and Christian education directors at Newburg United Methodist Church, Livonia.

A potlock dinner at 6:30 p.m. will precede the program.

A pancake supper sponsored by the Junior High students of the church will take place 5:30-7 p.m. Saturday, March 12. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for children 12 and under. Children under 5 are free. Tickets may be purchased at the church office.

● CHRIST THE KING LUTHERAN

Soup and bread Lenten dinners followed by worship services will continue through March in Christ the King Lutheran Church, 9300 Farmington, Livonia, Wednesday evenings. Food is served at 6:30 p.m. followed at 7 p.m. by services in the form of short plays.

The theme is "Overheard - Conversations at the Cross." Members of the congregation act the parts of Barabbas and Caiaphas, Pontius Pilate and his wife, Simon of Cyrene and the centurion and John and Mary.

Prayer in life of Jesus theme of conference

A three-day conference on the necessity of prayer in the life of Jesus and the prayers of the Old Testament saints will be lead by Dr. Van Groningen beginning Friday, March 11, at Ward Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington roads in Livonia.

The 7:30 p.m. Friday session will be followed by breakfast at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, a lecture, discussion groups, workshops, lunch and a wrap-up at 2:30 p.m. Sunday's schedule calls for Groningen to address the congregation at each of the services at 8:30 a.m., 10 and 11:30 a.m. His topic will be "Jesus Prayed."

CHILDREN'S WORKSHOPS on the same theme are also being planned all three days. Nursery service will also be provided.

The speaker is the father of eight children, all now in Christian service. He was a missionary to Australia for 13 years and is now president of Trinity Christian College, Palos Heights, Ill.

Mother Waddles at Newburg Sunday

Mother Charleszetta Waddles of the Mother Waddles Perpetual Help Mission, Detroit, will be guest speaker at 7 p.m. Sunday at Newburg United Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia.

Her topic will be "Let Go and Let God," taken from the Book of Romans, 12:1.

The colorful Mother Waddles has written a book entitled "Self-Awareness According to the Holy Scriptures" which she will have on sale that evening and will autograph. A soloist will be part of the service. A coffee hour will follow the 1½ hour service, and child care will be provided. The public is invited.

Blackburn choir performs Friday

The first in a series of new concerts sponsored by the Northville Presbyterian Church will featured the Blackburn College Choir and Madrigal Singers 8 p.m. Friday, March 4.

The student singers from the Carlinville, Ill, college are on an annual spring tour that has them performing in a six-state area. The choir will sing a varied program of Renaissance and Baroque motets as well as folk songs, spirituals and 20th century sacred music.

The madrigal group will sing "The Wedding Cantata," by the 20th century composer Daniel Pinkham. The final portion of the concert will feature "Three Nocturnes" by the contemporary Norwegian composer Hildur Lundvik.

The series will continue March 20 when a choir of singers from the community will present Schubert's Mass in G.

Paying attention

The healing power of love in a senior citizens home is the theme of the latest "Super Supper" event being presented during the Lenten season by Kirk of Our Savior United Presbyterian Church, Westland. A chicken dinner in the Fellowship Hall will be followed by the Kirk Kurtain Kallers' production of "Attention Must be Paid" in the santuary. The play is an adaptation from the popular TV series "Insight." The public is invited to attend both events. However, reservations for the dinner must be made by calling the church at 728-1088. Reservations are limited to 150. The church is located at 36660 Cherry Hill. Shown here are two of the leads in the play, Kathy Forgacs (left) and Betty Hesselgrave.

Group to fight drunk driving

Area residents concerned about drunk driving may help in the founding of a local chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 8 in Geneva United Presbyterian Church, 5835 Sheldon, Canton.

A nationwide organization, MADD welcomes men and women whether they are parents or not.

The impetus toward forming a chapter came from the Rev. Kenneth Gruebel, pastor of the church, following the recent deaths of two parishoners who were victims of drunk drivers. They were Madonna Tharp, who was killed last December, and Lawrence Konkol, who died in January.

Wesleyans host missionaries

The Rev. Roger Bassett, a missionary of the Wesleyan Church to Zambia, Africa, will speak at 11 a.m. Sunday in Livonia Wesleyan Church, 14560 Merriman.

In his missionary work, Bassett has served as mission station superintendent, hospital administrator and, since 1977, as mission coordinator.

At 4 p.m. the church will join other area Wesleyan congregations at Wayne Wesleyan Church for the concluding service of a jointly sponsored missionary convention to be held this weekend. Eight Wesleyan missionaries to five different countries will speak at this convention. Evening services on Friday and Saturday will be at 7 p.m.

Speaks Sunday

Dr. Anthony J. Shipley, superintendent of the Detroit West District of the United Methodist Church, will preach at the 10 a.m. service at the First United Church in Garden City Sunday. Born in Harlem, Shipley serves as the administrative officer for 54 United Methodist churches in Wayne, Oakland, Huron and Monroe counties. He assumed his present position after 11 years as the conference council director of the Detroit Annual Conference.

Conversation needed to keep wisdom alive

moral perspectives
Rev. Charles Erickson

During an intense experience someone will say, "I could write a book." Despite electronic communication we still want printed words to convey what we feel is important. We respect experience which reveals enough wisdom to merit printing.

In any waiting room most people are reading. It is the popular leisure activity. We regard someone as an expert if their writing is published.

Our president declares this a "Year of the Bible" in a pluralistic nation with vast numbers of citizens who do not regard it as a holy book.

Those who do revere the Bible are splintered by differing interpretations. Most divisiveness in religion is rooted in clashes over Holy Word.

WHAT IS going on? Why do we hold writing in such high regard and yet have our most vigorous disagreements about the meaning of books? I offer two hunches with consequences in each.

Hasty repartee cheapens life. Oral communication in face-to-face relationships is essential to be fully human. But most of our conversations are merely exchanging quick retorts.

We retreat from disturbing interchanges into the safety of being alone with a book. Evading essential communication points to a need to change habits.

It is morally imperative to exchange ideas with each other. Ideas from books are needed. We must develop listening skills. Printed words are merely aids to grow beyond confusing smart remarks with truth. Wisdom is the property of people who keep it alive in high-quality conversation.

A second hunch is that we confuse information with wisdom. We give too much reverence to printed words. Something is not automatically true just because it is printed.

WISDOM HAS an ingredient of personal spirit. It is understanding reached in serious discussion of great ideas and real problems. Meaning is developed as personal tones and nonverbal nuances bring ideas to life.

Truth is simply common sense. Great literature was created with more oral communication and interpersonal experience than we will ever know. Thinkers share ideas to distill wisdom from the experiences of the day.

We are stimulated and guided by people who probe for practicality and consequences as they discuss questions. Ordinary and common concerns of people are the topic of conversations which produce moral conclusions and great literature. The essence of wisdom is relating eternal truth to daily decisions.

Society changes because of where we focus respect. Improvements come from respecting people. Respect for life is participating in active discussion in the quest for living truth. A few changes over many centuries make the point.

INFANTICIDE is virtually wiped out, not by laws, but by respecting the dignity of each life. Disrespect for women isn't legal, but women's rights advance as people in polite company no longer sneer about an inferior sex.

Violence and the criminal justice system are increasingly examined with some humanitarian impulses. We have the sense to at least blush if someone talks about proverty and disease by blaming victims. We have the grace to be ashamed in the presence of cruelty.

Humanity has increased in wisdom in these examples, and we have more growing to do. Progress hinges on common sense.

Is winning at all costs worth the sacrifice?

SUCH A SIMPLE question, Eric. Why wouldn't you answer it?

Eric is Eric Kopsch, the wrestling coach at Southfield-Lathrup High School. He has an outstanding athlete in senior Chris Parent, a 138-pounder who'll be shooting for a state championship this weekend at the Class A finals at Lansing Eastern High School.

Parent, who has lost only three of his 52 matches this season, won a regional title and finished second in the district despite being hobbled by a severe ankle sprain suffered in an earlier tournament.

Parent wore a special bandage during the regional competition last weekend. His coach doesn't think he'll need it in the finals, however.

Just an idle question: Which ankle is hurting, coach?

But the coach wasn't saying, although he had plenty to say about why he wasn't saying.

"You don't reveal which ankle," said Kopsch, a disgusted tone creeping into his voice. "People (future opponents and their coaches) may read the article and shoot on that ankle. Some people out there still might not know which one is injured."

Kopsch's concern stems from an incident he says happened at the district tournament two Saturdays ago at Troy High.

"Chris reinjured that ankle last week (in the district) because an (opponent's) coach had fire in his eyes and yelled, 'Grab it and hurt him!'"

REMEMBERING THAT incident really got Kopsch going on ethics — or, more properly, the lack of ethics — in sports today.

"All these years in football, the rule in any league I've ever been in seems to be: Get the guy where he hurts. In hockey, it's the same thing: Hurt a guy.

"Where's he bandaged? Hurt him there. Put the quarterback out of the game and we'll win.

"Hey, we've lived on that philosophy for how many years now? It's gross. It's indecent. But it's what they're doing.

"I watched matches all day yesterday (last Saturday at the Hazel Park Regional). I watched people I've known for a long time. Their sons were wrestling. If there was a bandage on (an opponant's) arm, sometimes the father'd yell, 'Pull on his arm! Pull on his arm!'

"I just don't know what's happened to people."

Well, Eric, you could always plead insanity — theirs, not yours.

MAYBE IT WAS the words "girls basketball" which woke me from my 5 a.m. stupor Monday.

The old Sony Digamatic had just clicked on and some woman was talking about her daughter's elementary school girls' basketball team.

The program was called "Point of View." It was the station's attempt to give John/Jane Q. a chance to air his/her views over 50,000 watts, sort of an electronic letter to the editor.

The woman became concerned while witnessing the basketball game because most of the little girls, her daughter included, seemed to be exhausted after just one trip down the court.

An assistant principal had the answer: Because of money problems, all the physical education teachers had been fired. No phys-ed teachers, no phys-ed classes.

That's when the woman became upset.

Fortunately, "Point of View" was rebroadcast at a more reasonable hour, and I was able to copy her words.

"But we still have teachers," she said, presumably to the assistant principal. "Since all elementary teachers are required to have physical education as part of their training, I thought they should be teaching it.

"We are aware that fitness of the body has a great deal to do with learning and life success in general.

"Schools which cannot afford a specialist still should have a planned physical education program, taught by teachers and principals — yes, even assistant principals, if necessary."

This statment was delivered in a tone of voice which said very clearly, "Don't give me any of your guff, you paper-pushing bureaucrat."

Well said, woman! That's my point of view, too.

Hope your words look as good in print as they sounded to me at 5 o'clock the other morning.

An intense John Cohen passes off on a Salem fast break. The Rocks rolled over Northville to advance to the WLAA tournament finals opposite Livonia Stevenson.

Series finale

Salem vs. Stevenson

By C.J. Risak

basketball

Four weeks ago, Plymouth Salem basketball coach Fred Thomann stood on the Livonia Stevenson court after the Rocks' 55-50 conquest and said:

"I'm looking forward to when we play them again."

Thomann knew that the only way Salem and Stevenson could meet again would be in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) finals. The Salem coach's prophesy proved accurate — the Rocks disposed of Northville Tuesday, 63-47, in the WLAA semifinals to insure just that.

Stevenson advanced to meet Salem in the WLAA championship game with a 53-43 victory over Livonia Churchill Tuesday at Churchill. The final contest in what has become a best-of-three series will start at 2:45 p.m. Saturday at Salem.

"I THOUGHT BOTH games were close and intense and I think this one will be, too," said Thomann of the two previous meetings. Stevenson won the first one Jan. 7 at Salem by a 49-48 margin.

"I don't think either team will do much different. Both are playing awfully well right now. I don't think either will screw around with what they're doing."

What Salem is doing is riding a 13-game winning streak, ignited by balanced scoring and solid defense. The Rocks had both phases going for them against Northville Tuesday, racing to a 28-14 halftime lead. Northville never got closer than 13 the rest of the way.

Glenn Medalle popped in 16 points to top Salem's scorers. Dave Houle contributed 14, Matt Broderick had nine and Erich Hartnett tallied eight.

Bob Pegrum's 13 points led Northville.

THE MUSTANGS inability to convert at the free throw line was damaging. They hit on just six of 13 in the first half as Salem built its lead and were only 13-of-27 for the game, crippling their comeback chances.

Thomann's strategy against Stevenson has not changed much since their last meeting. He referred to Pete Rose as "the key to their team,", called 6-7 forward Tom Domako "an excellent scorer and rebounder" and said his team "can't let (guard Gary) Mexicotte run wild.

"We're going to have to make those people play and then go after them at the end," he said, adding that he figured the championship game would once again be close.

"It's going to be a great game," Thomann predicted. "I'm just glad that we have the opportunity to play in it."

FARMINGTON 61
CANTON 46

The Chiefs collapsed in the second half with a lackluster effort, losing their second straight game Tuesday at home.

"We came out totally flat," said Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner. "We played a horrible basketball game.

"We played terrible, terrible defense. It was uninspired basketball — by far the worst game we've played all year."

Canton's poor defense led to a battle at the free throw line, which Farmington won handily. The Falcons canned 29-of-38 tries to 10-of-24 for the Chiefs.

The score was close throughout the first half, with Canton clinging to a 14-11 lead after one quarter but trailing at the intermission, 30-28. But the Chiefs managed just nine points in each of the final two quarters and Farmington gradually pulled away.

Ron Rienas was the only Chief to reach double figures in scoring, netting 15. Mike Scarpello and Mark Bennett accounted for eight each. Scott Hayosh dumped in 20 for Farmington, with Chris Keller and Terry Geistler bagging 12 apiece.

Canton, now 9-10 for the season, hosts Livonia Bentley at 7:45 p.m. in Thursday's Parent's Night game.

3 Chiefs qualify for finals

Salem sends 4 to state

By C.J. Risak

wrestling

A week ago, Plymouth Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger predicted that "the team that wins our regional will win the state."

Krueger based his assessment on the talent of the teams competing in the Trenton regional last weekend. And, if the Rock wrestling coach is accurate, the state Class A title tilt this weekend will be a hard-fought battle — just like the regional tournament.

The Class A tourney will be at Lansing Eastern High School. Six area mat teams will be represented in the Class A finals. Preliminaries begin at 10:45 a.m. Friday, with semifinals (10:45 a.m.) and finals (5 p.m.) slated for Saturday.

Prior to the regionals, Detroit Catholic Central, winner of the tough Temperance-Bedford district, seemed to have the inside track to the state title. That changed in the tight struggle at the Trenton regional tourney last weekend.

NO TEAM DOMINATED, but Temperance-Bedford, a long-time wrestling power, survived to capture team honors with 99½ points. Wayne Memorial was close behind with 94½, followed by CC with 80, Plymouth Salem with 60½ and Westland John Glenn with 48.

Other local teams that will be represented at the state finals are Plymouth Canton, which finished 10th (27½), Livonia Bentley, which was 16th (18½), and Garden City, which tied for 17th (16).

CC and Salem will both send four wrestlers to the finals. John Glenn and Canton qualified three each, Bentley has two and Garden City one.

THE SHAMROCKS and Wayne Memorial each crowned three regional champions. Temperance-Bedford had just one weight class winner, but placed eight wrestlers in the final four. The top four finishers in each weight division qualify for the state finals.

Mike Palajac got CC's first title, capturing the 112-pound class by outscoring Mike Budziak of Trenton, 10-4, in the finals. Enroute to the crown, Palajac sidelined a pair of local wrestlers, Canton's Todd Bartlett (5-0) and Bentley's Anwar Yaffai (7-0).

Bartlett finished fourth, losing in the consolation finals to Walled Lake Central's John Andrews, 7-1.

MIKE DiMANNO (145) pounded out a 16-3 decision over Glenn's Rob Paciocco in the finals for a second CC title. Canton's Marty Heaton, who lost to DiManno, 9-4, in the semifinals, took third with a 9-3 victory over Adam Siedlecki of Temperance-Bedford.

CC's Matt Readle rounded out the Shamrocks' trio of champions by claiming the 185 title with a 3-1 triumph over Jerry Curby of Ann Arbor Pioneer.

For Salem, John Beaudoin continued to prove that moving up a weight class would not hinder his quest for a second-straight state championship. The defending 132 champ won two straight matches on pins, then rolled over North Farmington's Eric Collier, 21-4, in the 138 finals.

JOHN GLENN'S DON Forchione also claimed a title, romping over Ken Lucas of Dearborn Edsel Ford, 7-1, in the 155 finals. Forchione's biggest challenge enroute to the crown came in the semifinals against CC's Jeff Alcala. The Rocket wrestler earned a narrow 5-3 decision.

Alcala placed third when he pinned John Woochuk of Salem in the consolation finals.

Garden City's Kevin Richardson reached the heavyweight finals after besting Chris Sobbe of Milford, 8-4, and Bob Petties of Ann Arbor Pioneer, 10-3. In the finals, Richardson dropped a 4-1 decision to Doug Johnson of Ypsilanti.

BENTLEY'S PAUL DOULETTE and Glenn's Tom Gibson vied in the consolation finals at 105. Gibson had beaten Doulette earlier in the tournament, 7-4. The Glenn matman was then sent to the consolation bracket by Doug Harper of Temperance-Bedford, 14-7. Gibson won the rematch with Doulette as well, 7-1.

Canton's Tim Collins was a 6-2 first-round loser to Temperance-Bedford's Roger Witaszek in the 126 class. Collins regrouped to place third, however, with a 3-1 win over Dave Millitello of Walled Lake Western in the consolation finals.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

In February of 1976, rated for just one week in most of the popularity polls as the No. 1 Class A basketball team in Michigan, the Rocks tasted defeat for the first time as Belleville's Tigers posted a 63-57 triumph. Nonetheless, Salem, which is now 16-1 overall, still leads the Suburban 8 in its drive toward a 3rd straight undisputed championship with a 10-1 mark. "They beat us square up," admitted coach Fred Thomann of the Rocks, as he avoided offering any form of alibi. Belleville astounded the packed house by racing to a 13-0 lead in the first 5 minutes and from then on it was all up hill for the Plymouth troops. High scores for Salem were two brothers, all-starter Jim and Tom Ellinghousen. Mike Primeau and Brian Wolcott.

Archer's aim: Spartan success

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

The combination of old friends, a building program and a close location was more than Kim Archer could stand.

That's why the Livonia Bentley athlete has decided to take her awesome basketball skills to Michigan State University this fall.

The decision was not an easy one. Choosing a college never is. For Archer, the finalists were Purdue, Indiana and MSU.

So many different factors to be weighed in making such a determination, and yet for Archer the simplest of all proved decisive: the desire to be seen by her greatest fans, her parents.

"It would be kind of a letdown if they weren't there," the Bentley senior said.

THAT'S BECAUSE they always have been, according to Tom Lang, who coached Archer at Bentley in basketball for four years and in softball for two.

"They haven't missed one of Kim's games since she was in eighth grade," Lang said.

"She would have been happy with either Indiana or MSU. But (the proximity) was the ultimate reason she chose State."

Lang has referred to Archer as "the best athlete to ever attend Bentley." Her talent is indeed plentiful; she's been the top player in Observerland by a vote of the coaches for the last two years — in both basketball and softball. In her last Bentley basketball campaign, Archer averaged 17 points, 14 rebounds, six assists and five steals per game.

"SHE'S AN OUTSTANDING athlete," said Karen Langeland, MSU's coach for the past seven years. "She's the best to come out of Michigan in a long time.

"She has great court sense, she's a great passer and rebounder and she shoots the ball well."

Lang figures Archer will make an instant contribution to the MSU program.

"State really needs Kim," he said. "They really don't have anyone who dominates out on the court the way Kim can. It's not going to be in scoring but in rebounding and passing that she'll really contribute.

"I really think Kim will be a dominant player in the Big 10."

Langeland agrees, adding that this season MSU, 5-8 and seventh in the Big 10, has a problem Archer can solve immediately.

"Passing has been one of our team weaknesses this year," the MSU mentor said. "She should help improve that."

THE PLAYERS ARCHER will be passing to are familiar faces: Ronna Greenberg, an All-State selection in Class B at Livonia Ladywood, played together with Archer in junior high. Greenberg is a transfer from Louisville and will be eligible to play for the Spartans Jan. 1.

Starting for MSU this year is Livonia Franklin graduate Mary Kay McNall. A 6-3 freshman center, McNall has been a pleasant surprise for Langeland, averaging 10.4 points and 7.5 rebounds per contest.

MSU's starting forwards, Jackie Carter and Lil Preston, graduate this year. Archer will get a shot to fill one position, with Langeland's other recruiting prize, Sue Tucker of Okemos, getting a shot at the other. Greenberg also figures to be in the battle.

"We think Sue Tucker and Kim Archer will complement each other well," Langeland said.

AND WHAT DOES Archer think about all these plans?

"It seems like their program is becoming a lot stronger," she said. Asked if she felt the MSU program was on the road to success, and if she thought she would be a part of it, Archer answered, "I think so" and "I hope so."

There won't be any softball — at least not for the first year. "I'm going to concentrate on basketball," the All-State softball selection said. "Academically, it's going to be tough for me."

Athletically, it shouldn't be. Not with the support in the stands, the friends on the court and a program on the rise.

UM puck coach is Over 40 speaker

Al Renfrew, former University of Michigan hockey coach and now Athletic Department ticket manager, will be the keynote speaker for the Plymouth Men's Over 40 Basketball banquet beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 8, at the Box Bar.

He follows Michigan State Athletic Director Doug Weaver, who addressed the group last season.

Renfrew starred for the Wolverines as a player, 1945-49, leading U-M to its first ever NCAA championship in 1948.

He later served five years as head coach at Michigan Tech and spent one year at the helm of North Dakota.

In 1958, Renfrew took over the Michigan hockey program and coached for 16 years, compiling an overall record of 222-207-11.

He directed to the Wolverines to five Big Ten titles and one NCAA championship (1964).

Synchronized feat makes GC proud

The Garden City synchronized swim club dominated the Michigan State Age Group meet last weekend in Lansing by taking first place in solo, duet, trio and team competition.

Over 100 girls participated in the event.

The team, sponsored by the Garden City Parks and Recreation Department, advances to Sectional Age Group competition March 12-13 in Chicago, Ill. That meet is sponsored by the U.S. Synchronized Swimming Association (USSSA). Winners advances to the Junior Nationals in Indianapolis (date not yet determined).

GC swimmers gaining first in solo competition were: Karen Lemon, 10-and-under; Debra Pawelak, 11-12; Jennifer Perry, 13-14, and Paula Tatro, 15-16.

In duet competition, GC winners included Brandy Jenning and Danielle McKarge, 10-and-under; Erin Driskell and Robin, Silkowski, 11-12; Jennifer Perry and Nancyu Szeromski, 13-14; Jennifer Findley and Chrysann Winnie, 15-16; Paula Tatro and Penny Hershey, 17-18.

GC also swept the trio and team events.

Pee Wee travelers blaze tourney route

The Garden City Pee Wee 'A' travel team went undefeated last week in grabbing the District I hockey playoff crown.

The team advances March 11-13 to the state playoffs in Flint.

Garden City, coached by Mario Contreras, Mike Curylo and Wes Morton, defeated Dearborn Heights for the district championship, 4-2.

Garden City won two other district games — a triple overtime decision against Taylor and one-goal win against Mic Mac.

Gospel singer creates music with love

JOHN GALLOWAY

Recording artist Betty Flanders rehearses a song at her home in Northville. She is active in the Grand River Baptist Church of Livonia.

By Mary Spry
special writer

BETTY FLANDERS' stage name was chosen because her manager heard her voice and thought she sang like an angel.

"So I became Betty Angel because of that, and also because I love Willie Nelson's song, 'Angel Flying Too Close to the Ground,' " she said.

The Northville-based singer recently released her second album, "The Lighthouse — Betty Angel Sings Gospel," a collection of music which she arranged. Her first album, "Introducing. . .Betty Angel," is a blend of ballads and love songs.

THE GOSPEL SINGER is an involved member of the Grand River Baptist Church in Livonia. She is on the board of Christian education, is mission chairwoman and is starting a musical trio for the church.

"That congregation is so beautiful. It was like I never left my home church. There is such a feeling of warmth and love there," she said.

"That's why I made two albums. I feel there is so much love I could get across to people. I don't want to become rich and famous. I just want to share.

"I've known nothing but music since I was 5 years old. My paternal grandparents give me a piano when I was that age, and I've been playing for 55 years now."

Flanders and her parents moved from South Dakota to Ann Arbor in 1941. "When I graduated from high school, Mom and Dad wanted me to go to the University of Michigan's Music School, but that was postponed when war clouds came on the scene.

"I MET MY husband when he was in the Civilian Conservation Corps, and they were working across the road from my house in South Dakota. I tell you I made sure we had the cleanest porch in town. For some reason, he followed us to Michigan."

They were married soon after his arrival in Ann Arbor, and with war just a few months away, her husband enlisted in the Army. He was sent to Fort Riley, Kan., and Flanders joined a USO troop that was scheduled to follow his unit.

"We were there for two years, and when his unit was being transferred to Europe, and our troop was being sent along, I was five months' pregnant, and they told me I couldn't go along because I would have had a foxhole baby."

After the war, Flanders and her husband came back to Ann Arbor where she began singing and playing piano with local groups.

"It was in the 1950s I started my own group, Betty Flanders and the Alley Cats."

FLANDERS ALSO BEGAN entertaining veterans' groups.

As part of her USO duties during the war, Flanders would help soldiers send home messages. "I used to accompany these kids who were so homesick and dying inside. I worked on a disc-recording where the soldiers could send messages or songs back to wives and sweethearts and mothers. There was one soldier who really got to me, he was so sad. It was then that I developed a bond with these people.

"I also realized that this is the way you pay rent for another day, by helping people. If I can help in some way, then that's the way I pay my rent."

She credits her compassion for people to her father. "My daddy was one of the best neighbors I've ever known. It's just a desire I have to share what the Lord has given me."

Flanders and her husband went to Florida in 1977 when he was diagnosed as having bone cancer. "We were there three years because he needed the warmth to be comfortable. But, after he died, I decided it just wasn't home, and I came back to this area."

Flanders has put hundreds of volunteer hours into entertaining at various veterans' hospitals in the state. She has received voluntary service awards from the Veterans Administration in recognition of her active participation in their programs.

Blue Smurfs performing with Ice Capades show

TV characters the Smurfs will make their first live appearance in the new edition of Ice Capades, Tuesday, March 15, through Sunday, March 20, at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

Tickets are available at the arena box office, Hudson's and all CTC outlets. For general information and group sales, call 567-6000.

The Smurfs were created more than 20 years ago by Belgian artist Pierre "Peyo" Culliford. They currently are stars of their own Saturday morning animated television series.

Papa Smurf, Smurfette and all the rest of the little blue people are featured in their own production number, one of six production numbers in the show.

Headling the Ice Capades are special guest stars Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, who are world champions and five-time U.S. national champions, and Sandy Lenz, U.S. national bronze medalist.

Leading a group of novelty acts is David Comb, who leaps over beautiful girls, somersaults through a maze of fire and launches himself headlong through the teeth of seven rotating steel blades.

Company does improvisation

The Fourth Street Playhouse will present improvisational comedy with the Detroit Times Theatre Co. beginning Monday, March 7.

Performances will continue at 8 p.m. Mondays-Tuesdays through April 5 at the playhouse, 301 W. Fourth, just west of Washington, in downtown Royal Oak.

The theater company is a 10-member troupe, directed by Jonathon Round. Its performances will consist of selected game forms, improvisational sketch material and skits based on audience suggestions. The company also performs at the Soup Kitchen Saloon.

Tickets at $3 for adults, $2 for students and seniors with ID, are available at the door.

Getting together

Jan Salisbury and Ralph Rosati appear in a scene from the comedy hit "Same Time, Next Year" by Bernard Slade, at the Komedy Players Dinner Theatre in the Allen Park Motor Lodge, on Southfield Road between I-75 and I-94. The dinner-theater show about lovers who meet once a year is presented by Premiere Productions of Farmington Hills. For further information or reservations, call 386-1300.

Shrine Circus offers anniversary show

The 75th anniversary edition of the Shrine Circus opens Friday, March 11, at the State Fair Coliseum in Detroit. Thirty-eight performances will continue through Sunday, March 27.

Tickets are on sale at the State Fair Box Office, Hudson's, Sears, Montgomery Wards and Michigan National Bank branch offices.

The Shrine Circus has been a wintertime tradition in Detroit since 1906.

As a special attraction for the 75th anniversary, a circus fantasy will be presented in the adjoining Agricultural Building. Circus-goers are being invited to come early for elephant rides, clown makeup demonstrations, circus wagon restoration, calliope music, a sword swallower and other side-show novelty acts, petting zoo, clowns, and a historical display on the Shrine Circus.

Inside the coliseum, new arena decorations, concession stands, ringmats and props have been specifically designed to highlight the anniversary celebration.

THE NEW SHOW for 1983 features 20 displays directed by the ringmaster, Senor Rai.

Second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"Citizen Kane" (1941), 1 p.m. Saturday in the library meeting room of Canton Township Hall on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill, phone 397-1000, free. Running time 118 minutes.

You've seen "Kane" several times you say, so why go see it again? Well, if you've never seen the film on the big screen, you've never really seen it at all. And if you've never heard the film on a good sound system, you've never really heard it at all.

Remember, Orson Welles' background was in radio, and "Citizen Kane" is a very aural film. You easily can tell what's happening on the screen by listening to the film, which brings us to the question of who wrote the thing, Orson Welles or Herman J. Mankiewicz?

The pair are listed as co-screenwriters but Mankiewicz is considered the driving force behind the film by "revisionist" critics seeking to dispell the "boy wonder" moniker earlier attributed to Welles. But Mankiewicz's background was in pictures, so it's more likely that the sound-oriented Welles scripted the film. In fact, it's more likely that cameraman Gregg Toland had a greater impact on the picture than did Mankiewicz, because Welles had never worked behind the camera before.

At any rate, "Citizen Kane" is one of the best films of the last 50 years; we can only hope that the Canton library is equipped to display the film as it deserves to be displayed.

Welles, Joseph Cotten, Everett Sloane, Agnes Morehead, Dorothy Comingore, Ray Collins and George Coulouris star.

Rating: $3.85.

"A Streetcar Named Desire" (1951), 2 Friday night on Ch. 2. Originally 122 minutes.

Two of the best performances of the last 50 years are ones given by Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando in the late Tennessee Williams' "Streetcar Named Desire," directed by Elia Kazan. Both are marvelous — she as Blanche DuBois, a faded southern belle, and he as the course, sensual Stanley, husband of Blanche's sister, Stella (Kim Hunter). Karl Malden also stars as Blanche's potential love interest.

Leigh and Brando are so good together, though, that, despite fine supporting performances, you long for them to interact more often than they do. It's this chemistry, for instance, that makes the scene in which Stanley "clears" the table work so well. Were Leigh left out of that sequence, it wouldn't have half the impact it has.

Rating: $3.80.

U-M Players to do tragedy

The University of Michigan's University Players will present Elizabeth Sprigge's translation of August Strindberg's classic tragedy "The Father" at 8 p.m. Monday, March 7, through Saturday, March 12, and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 13, in the New Trueblood Arena, Ann Arbor.

Tickets at $3.50 are available at the Professional Theatre Program ticket office in the Michigan League.

● ACTORS ALLIANCE

John Urbinati will direct the Actors Alliance Theatre Company production of Peter Weiss' "Marat/Sade," opening Friday at Lycee Interntional, 30800 Evergreen, Southfield. A 28-member cast will appear in the production at the Detroit-area's only theater in-the-round. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays and 6:30 p.m. Sundays through April 10. For reservations or information about group rates call the box office at 642-1326 from noon to 8 p.m. weekdays and until 9 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays.

Mahler's symphonic trip still unequaled

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Whenever a reference is made to one of Mahler's symphonies, there is a temptation to refer to it as a "monumental Mahler symphony" — or something to that effect.

The term is a glaring redundancy.

"A Mahler Symphny," in itself, already has the term "monumental" implicitly implied. His third symphony, in addition to its monumental structure, which is axiomatic in view of the foregoing observation, also happens to be one of the longest. For that reason, it was the only work on last week's program.

Not everybody might feel comfortable with sitting through such a long composition, especially when it is performed without intermission. This might explain the many empty seats on Thursday night.

But the fault doesn't lie with the symphony, which was profound and glorious in every bar. Rather, the problem is in the sad fact that not many people are fortunate enough to be sufficiently exposed to musical creations on such a high level.

IF YOU WERE to combine Mahler's symphonies end to end, you would reach the stars — at least symbolically. This is also true if you combine the third symphony with one of the best orchestras, a top-rate conductor, a talented singer and two good choirs.

All of these things materialized in this performance, resulting in the most rewarding program this season.

Guest singer was French-born opera star Jocelyn Taillon, mezzo-soprano. In addition, there were the Women of the Kenneth Jewell Chorale and the Chirst Church Choir of Boys and Girls.

These choirs, with their directors Eric Freudigman and Frederic DeHaven, respectively, deserve high credit for their contribution to this magnificent performance.

Maestro Gary Bertini is known for his affinity to Mahler, whose second and fifth symphonies he conducted here on previous occasions. His profound, demonstrated ability will cause him to be even more sorely missed following his expected departure at the end of this season.

With all the extensive orchestration and monumental structure (here we go again), there is nothing redundant or obsolete in this compostion. Each group of instruments, as well as many solo ones, play crucial roles.

If you have the impression that the task of a percussionist boils down to pounding away at the drums, such a simplistic notion would be quickly dispelled after listening to the various shades of drum-rolls, combined with other percussions, displaying refined and controlled sounds ranging from pianissimo to fortissimo, with superbly shaped crescendos in between.

PROMINENT SOLO parts were expertly done by principal trumpet Ramon Parcells and principal trombone Ramon Turner.

Parcells also played the fluegelhorn, a refined and mellow sounding trumpet, behind the stage in the third movement. His and Turner's rich and colorful tunes provided yet another element that was elevating to the spirit.

HEART TO HEART
Find that Someone Special when HEART TO HEART debuts Monday, March 21, 1983.

If you are looking for a special someone who will enrich your life, our exciting new service, "HEART TO HEART" could be a great beginning. Here is an example of the kind of message which will appear in "HEART TO HEART"--

Young woman, 24, with interests in sports, dancing, fireside conversations, good wine, gourmet cooking and a love for the outdoors, wishes to meet gentleman who shares similar interests. Must be between 25-30 years old. Please send photo, phone number and address to Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 48150 BOX 0000.

We will keep your name and telephone number confidential; the box number will allow us to identify your replies.

Studies* have shown that the people who read the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are high income, educated professionals. So, if you are into ballet, opera or Shakespeare as well as the usual dining dancing and theatre, "HEART TO HEART" is a great place to start.

FREE ADS
There will be no charge for ads appearing when "HEART TO HEART" premieres--so compose your message now, give us a call and become a "charter HEART TO HEART-ER." (All future ads will carry a charge)
