Revenue cuts send Yack to Lansing

BY JACK GLADDEN
STAFF WRITER

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, angry – again – at Gov. John Engler, is heading to Lansing on Tuesday to lobby state legislators to override the governor's veto of more than $8 million in revenue sharing money.

And he's urging residents who are concerned about potential cuts in services or increased taxes to do the same thing.

"In my entire time in office, no vote has ever been more critical locally than the override vote scheduled for Aug. 13," Yack said in a prepared statement last week

"Any other deal, delay on the vote or a vote not to override, all have the same effect, lower service or higher taxes. I urge everyone to contact their local representatives and senators and demand that they vote to override the governor's veto on Aug. 13."

Engler's controversial veto of the revenue sharing funds late last month has caused consternation among local gov-

Plymouth High School opened its doors for the first time on Tuesday to throngs of students and parents eager to see the new building they'll call home for the next four years.

In an effort to make the transition to high school smooth for the first-ever Wildcat class, PHS hosted an open house for incoming freshmen and their parents to tour the new facilities as well as meet members of administration, counselors, teachers and coaches.

District looking at artificial turf for stadium

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

A synthetic grass surface may be in the works for the varsity football stadium at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

The school district has received permission from the state Department of Treasury to use $1.3 million from the 1997 bond issue passed by voters to construct Plymouth High School.

"Soon we will have three high school football teams, three boys varsity soccer teams, three girls varsity soccer teams and the marching band using the same field," interim superintendent Jim Ryan said. "The question is, can we handle all the games on that field the way it is? We believe an artificial surface will be a good investment for our students."

Last year, a football game had to be canceled because of an unsafe playing surface, and a marching band competition had to be moved to South Lyon as a result of a muddy field.

The real problem, according to Ken Jacobs, the district's executive director of support services, is two-fold.

"The track has areas where it's caved it, and is unusable. We just can't make any

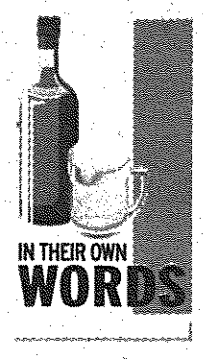
Teens talk about their experiences with drinking



As summer interns for the Observer, Greg Migliore, Katy Batdorff and Christine Broda wanted to give a voice to young adults willing to talk about their experiences with alcohol. The young adults profiled in the following stories live right here in our own backyard. Over the course of this two-part series, which appears today and Thursday, take the time to get to know these young adults and to understand what life is like... in their own words.

STAFF WRITERS

At about 11 p.m. on July 19, four cars rolled into the parking lot of a Sunoco gas station in Canton.

This was not a typical Friday night for the dozen teenagers who piled out of the vehicles, talking on cell phones. Usually by this time they would have found a place to hang out, a place where they would be free to party and drink with friends.

"Everything went so wrong – it'd be off the hook at my house right now," Casper, 22, said, lamenting the evening's dire partying prospects.

Casper's original plan to throw a bash at his house was foiled when his parents didn't leave town as expected.

While others repeatedly dialed numbers, trying to reach someone who might know of something going on, Drew, 17, leaned against the hood of his friend's car. Although he had come all the way from his home in Port Huron to hang out with friends, he was apparently unfazed by the lack of party destination.

Rather, Drew was looking forward to enjoying the fifth of E.J. Brandy V.S.O.P. he was about to split with his friend, Matt, 18, of Plymouth.

"That's my s...," he said, explaining that E.J. Brandy chased with Pepsi is his favorite drink.

Although he is well under the legal drinking age, Drew has developed a preference for liquor since he started drinking at age 12.

"I've been hanging out with an older crowd all my life," he said, explaining that many of his initial drinking experiences stemmed from the influence of his brother, who is three years older.

"My dad knows (I drink) and my mom probably has her suspicions, but I tell her I don't like it," he said. "My dad doesn't mind and my mom probably wouldn't care – she's an alcoholic."

Drew dropped out of high school after 10th grade and started working 50 hours per week at a restaurant. He says he plans to go back to school for his GED after he turns 18.

'THE CAPTAIN MAKES IT HAPPEN'

Joe, 16, of Canton, shares Drew's taste for liquor. His favorite is Captain Morgan's rum. "The captain makes it happen," he said.

In a pinch, however, he said he will drink just about anything and usually gets alcohol from older friends.

Joe dropped out of Wayne Memorial High School after the ninth grade because of "weed and dumb stuff" and is now home-schooled. He said he was athletic in middle school and played on the basketball team.

Joe started drinking after getting caught with marijuana and said he would probably stop drinking for the same reason.

High school students and drinking have been happening for years. But today's students are finding more ways to get alcohol and more places to drink it.

Change is the only constant, Domino's CEO tells chamber

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER

'When you call us you're hungry. That's a very strong emotion.'
David Brandon

The customer is always right – and usually impatient.

That's the key lesson David Brandon has learned during his three years in the pizza business.

"When you call us you're hungry," the Domino's CEO said Wednesday at the Canton Chamber of Commerce luncheon. "That's a very strong emotion."

Brandon said surveys show feelings about the company begin to slide from positive to negative as delivery time crosses the 30-minute threshold. Once you exceed 40 minutes, it's unlikely you're going to get repeat business from that customer, he said.

Brandon's easygoing talk to about 150 chamber members and guests focused on how to handle change in both business and personal situations. On the business side, he said, the first rule is to make sure you're making changes for the right reason.

The 49-year-old corporate chief also addressed the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, recent business scandals and a personal health crisis during the speech and a short question-and-answer session at the Summit.

Canton resident John Sommers said he enjoyed the program. "His being so candid was kind of a surprise," Sommers said.

Domino's founder Tom Monaghan sold the company in 1998. Before accepting an offer from Bain Capital to run the Ann Arbor-based pizza maker, Brandon had been CEO of Livonia-based newspaper insert manufacturer Valassis Communications.

Brandon said his most cherished achievement during 10 years at Valassis was guiding the company to a place on the Fortune Magazine list of 100 Best Companies to Work for in America. Some of that management style, including more casual dress and open communication between employees has been transferred to Domino's, he said.

"The majority of our waking hours are spent working," he said "I want that to be a positive part of my life. Coming to work shouldn't be drudgery day after day."

He acknowledged that thriving during an economic downturn is exceedingly difficult and changes that include "reducing headcount." Long-range economic forecasting is nearly extinct, he said, noting an unexpected 73-percent increase in the price of cheese (a 9-percent increase was built into the budget) last year.

"We spend $200 million a year on cheese. It's the most expensive ingredient in your pizza," he said. "That came on top of fuel prices jumping above $2 a gallon last spring. Our drivers drive nine million miles a week."

Brandon was diagnosed with colon cancer last spring. He opted for radical surgery and recently received a clean bill of health. He said early detection through a PSA test was crucial and encouraged men "and the women in their lives" to insist on having one.

State-of-the-art school expands options

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

Freshmen preparing to start classes this fall at Plymouth High School are in for more than a typical first year student's share of new experiences.

"Everything we do for the first time becomes our tradition," said Barb Zdrodowski, secretary to the principal, Michael T. Bee. "We're starting from scratch."

But starting from square one doesn't mean students and faculty will be working with the bare essentials.

Actually, it's quite the opposite.

The new high school, located at the corner of Beck and Joy roads in Canton, boasts an extensive assortment of new capabilities that complement and expand on current offerings at Canton and Salem.

According to Bee, one of the things he is most excited about is the new technology.

"We have unbelievable technology," he said, explaining he is still in the process of learning how to work all the new equipment. "It's totally overwhelming and I'm just scratching the surface."

New facilities at Plymouth include an exclusive long-distance learning lab that will allow students and faculty to communicate with people all over the world.

For example, Media Specialist Charlie Jones explained that students studying culture will be able to connect with a classroom in Japan to ask students questions about their traditions, gaining perspective from a first-hand source rather than from a textbook.

In fact, students won't find many physical books in Plymouth's library. The media center of the new school will offer primarily e-books and computerized databases for student research.

"Kids are different these days," Jones said, explaining that many students utilize computer resources for their research. "They don't just use books, they go right to computers. But I don't want kids to think they have to get all their information from the Internet."

That's why Jones has subscribed to a number of educational databases that offer information in every subject imaginable, from English and science to culture and sports.

Another unique aspect of technology at Plymouth is the ability for students to have round-the-clock access to computers. Jones said he is trying to arrange for students to be able to use school computers and databases at home.

"It'll be like having a library in their home," Jones said, explaining that future plans may allow students to check out laptops and other computer equipment in order to work on projects and homework outside of school.

Each classroom will be equipped with a television and computer, which will allow teachers to access a video database with capabilities beyond normal VHS and DVD.

Plymouth is one of 50 schools in the county experimenting with a program offered by United Streaming, an education company based in Chicago, Jones explained. With the program, teachers will be able to download entire videos, or just certain parts, to be used for classroom instruction.

Aside from the technology aspect of the new school, the building's design is more accommodating to interdisciplinary teaching. The building is organized into three pods, each of which has a teacher workroom that allows faculty to meet and collaborate on assignments.

The addition of the new high school affects the rest of the Park, as well. The nationally renowned P-CEP band will move into new state-of-the-art music facilities located at Plymouth.

The student newspaper, yearbook and television station will also be housed in the new building, as well as a significant portion of the Park's special education programs.

the kids' faces when they see this building for the first time," said Barb Zdrodowski, secretary to PHS Principal Michael T. Bee. "This is what all the hard work has been for."

According to Zdrodowski, all the long days and nights spent preparing for the open house and the upcoming school year paid off when she felt the energy of the crowd packed into the student union Tuesday night.

"We are just filling this room, it's phenomenal," Zdrodowski said, explaining that she sent out more than 460 invitations for the event. "And what an incredible turnout from the staff – this is fabulous."

WILDCAT SPIRIT

Bee kicked off the evening with a spirited welcome to future Wildcat students and parents. After expressing his excitement about the upcoming year, the new principal introduced members of the faculty and coaching staff, many of whom were clad in the school's colors of black and silver.

According to Bee, the purpose of the night was two-fold.

"We wanted to allow our students and parents to see their high school building first," he said. "We've worked all last year meeting with the middle schoolers and this is the next step in that relationship."

Like Zdrodowski, Bee was enthusiastic about the night as well as the students' response to the forthcoming year.

"I think they've got a most marvelous place to learn," he said. "I could not have better hand-picked a group (of faculty) if I had the whole world to choose from."

Bee said the message he wanted to send to freshmen was "be involved, be involved, be involved."

"There's something for everyone," he said. "(Students) need to take advantage of that."

English teacher Marybeth Turner agrees opportunities for students at Plymouth are exciting because everything is so new. That's one reason she transferred to Plymouth after teaching at Salem for four years.

"I loved Salem. I was enormously happy there but it's fun to do something new," she said. "The opportunity to be founding faculty in a new building is so rare. I think it'll be a really fun opportunity."

Turner is most excited about the energy of the new students.

"Their enthusiasm is contagious," she said. "We had a really great turnout tonight. They were really itching to get into this building."

Turner will also serve as advisor to the Plymouth Executive Council, the student government body that presides over individual class councils. According to her, the group of about 20 students has already met to work on plans for homecoming.

"We're starting a lot of traditions; it's really very exciting," she said. "We want to try and make it different."

On the sports side of things, Athletic Director Terry Sawchuk said he was gearing up for a great first year of athletics at the new school.

"The interest (in sports) has been unbelievable," Sawchuk said. "We have great numbers (of athletes) so far."

Sawchuk joined the rest of the coaching staff in recruiting middle school students for PHS athletics throughout last school year. And although all Wildcat teams will field only freshmen the first year, Sawchuk said he expected Plymouth athletes to be competitive on the freshmen and junior varsity level.

"The key for us is that we have high expectations for our kids," he said. "We expect them to work harder because they're behind the eight ball a little bit. But we've summoned a pretty good staff (and) all the coaches are supportive of each other."

Incoming freshman Sean Dillon is one student-athlete looking forward to starting high school as a Wildcat.

"It's exciting to be the first to do everything," the Canton resident said, explaining that he plans to play soccer for Plymouth in the fall and has already been conditioning with the team for a few weeks.

In addition to soccer, Dillon's mom, Elaine, is looking forward to all the opportunities available at the new school. She's particularly excited about the library, computer labs and state-of-the-art technology.

Officer's hunch spurs man's arrest on weapons charge

When a Canton police officer on routine patrol pulled into the Sze-chuan Restaurant parking lot on Ford Road Wednesday afternoon, something didn't look right to him.

He saw a white box truck parked next to Smoker's Express, with men unloading products and taking them into the store, according to his report.

A tall man was standing at the rear of the truck, with his hands crossed in front of his chest.

He was wearing combat boots, fatigue pants and a black tactical vest with numerous pockets.

As the man disappeared behind the building, the officer asked the others who he was. They identified him as a security guard for them and the cigarettes and said he had gone next door to Taco Bell.

The suspicious officer called for a backup and they confronted the man as he stood in line at Taco Bell. As they patted him down they found in the pockets of the vest a collapsible baton, a flashlight, two cans of pepper spray and a police type microphone attached to the vest.

A records check revealed that he had an outstanding warrant out of Ferndale for driving with a suspended license.

He was arrested on the warrant and for illegally possessing pepper spray. At the station, as he was being booked, an officer patted the vest down again and felt a bulge in an inside pocket.

He then discovered a fully-loaded .45 caliber semiautomatic handgun. The Detroit man was booked on an added charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Hockey skills fundraiser to help teen

Money raised from the raffles and autographs will help the family of Noell Pringle with ongoing medical expenses.

Registration is due Thursday for a hockey skills competition fund-raiser on Saturday, Aug. 17, at Redford Ice Arena, on Beech Daly south of I-96.

The Redford Jaycees are hosting the "Drop The Puck" benefit for a 13-year-old girl who has been diagnosed with Pilocytic Astrocytoma, a life-threatening brain tumor.

Money raised from the raffles and autographs – including the appearance of 14-year NHL veteran and Toronto Maple Leaf Mark Osborne – will help the family of Noell Pringle with ongoing medical expenses.

The event runs from noon to 4 p.m. Admission for spectators is $2 for adults, with children 12 and under free. House Level skaters, Mite through Bantam, who wish to compete are invited.

Residents of Redford pay $15; non-residents pay $17. Each division is limited to the first 50 participants.

The event will offer hourly 50/50 drawings, raffle drawings for items such as autographed memorabilia from Dominik Hasek, Darren McCarty, Chris Chelios, as well as gift certificates, Plymouth Whalers tickets and so much more. A raffle will also feature the two-year pre-paid lease of a Ford Focus by Stark Hickey Ford.

On hand to sign autographs for minimal fees (to be donated to Noel) will be a number of Whalers & their Mascot, NHL Alumni and Detroit Tiger Alumni, in addition to Osborne.

Visitors are invited to participate even if they do not have to have a skater competing or to purchase tickets for raffle items or purchase autographs. Raffle participants must be present to win. Tickets will only be sold to 18 years and older.

In late January, Noell was diagnosed with Pilocytic Astrocytoma, which is a life-threatening brain tumor lodged in her Neuro Optic Pathway that is currently being treated with intense chemotherapy.

Her parents, Joe Pringle and Rene Summers, became concerned after noticing unusual behavior in Noell. She also began to decline in school, have headaches and nose bleeds which prompted them to take her to the doctor.

Noell is being treated at Mott Children's Hospital where she's undergoing chemotherapy treatment. Thus far, Noell has undergone two surgeries to try to remove the tumor.

They were unsuccessful at removing the entire tumor due to the location on the Optic nerve. The tumor has since then grown and a second surgery involved a placement of a port in her chest to be able to connect her for chemotherapy.

"It's wearing on her," said Joe Pringle, Noell's father. Her parents have been by their daughter's side from the beginning. "She's is one scared little girl. She's trying to keep a positive outlook."

Noell is a student at Piece Middle School. She loves to bake and read.

For competition registration, visit www.redfordjaycees.org or contact Maxine Hunter at (313) 255-8758.

Registrations can also be obtained at all local ice arenas in Dearborn, Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Wayne and Compuware.

ernment officials throughout the state and has caused legislators to schedule a vote to override the veto when they return to session on Tuesday.

Engler reportedly also plans to meet with legislators on Tuesday in an attempt to reach some sort of compromise to withhold the funds from local communities until three potentially costly statewide ballot proposals are voted on in November. But Yack said that's not good enough.

"It appears that Governor Engler is attempting to negotiate with the legislature to strike a deal to restore partial revenue sharing for local governments," he said. "It should be clear that anything less than an override of the veto will have serious repercussions throughout local government. Specific to Canton, every one percent cut translates to $20,000 in either reduced local service or higher taxes."

Canton will lose just over $2 million in revenue sharing funds if they are not restored.

"That's on top of reductions that have already taken place,"

Canton will lose just over $2 million in revenue sharing funds if they are not restored.

Yack said Friday. "Not all areas of state funding have been affected the same way. Schools and higher education have seen continued increases in revenue. We feel put upon that the governor and the legislature have singled out local government for their budget balancing."

In order to prepare for the worst case scenario, Yack said he will ask the Canton Board of Trustees at their regular meeting on Tuesday night to "keep open the option of raising taxes by setting the millage maximum: 0.8 mills higher than last year."

While the actual tax rate will not be set until late September, Yack said he wanted to leave open options for addressing a potential reduction in services.

The current tax rate is 1.51 mills, according to Tony Minghine, Canton finance director. If it were increased to the maximum of 2.31 mills, he said, the owner of a $300,000 home would be paying an extra $120 a year in taxes.

Both Yack and Minghine stressed that taxes are not being increased now. They're simply leaving themselves that option, depending on what happens in Lansing.

"We have the luxury to wait until all this is worked out in Lansing," Yack said. "Some communities are already taxing at the maximum and don't have that option."

Yack called the governor's action in eliminating the revenue sharing funds an "indirect attempt to raise taxes."

"Those taxes that have already been collected would then be denied to local communities," he said.

He predicted that if the funds are not restored there would be "hundreds of millage requests" in local communities throughout the state.

"Some will pass, some will not," he said. "So they (the state) just transfer responsibility to the local level. I wish we could pass it on to someone else."

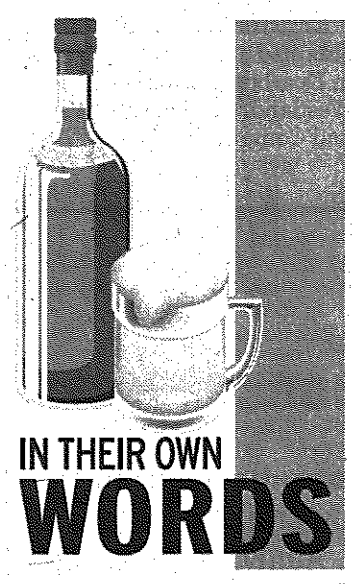
'Legal' drinker celebrates with mom, friends

Tim's Mom, Barb met him at the first bar, Good Time Charley's to buy him his first legal drink.



IN THEIR OWN WORDS

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

At 10:55 p.m. on July 24, Tim stood in the bedroom of his Ann Arbor apartment clutching a beer, a football tucked under the arm of his free hand.

According to the soon-to-be 21-year-old, it was his second beer of the night. So far, his shot count was up to six.

Since he started drinking shortly after 9:30 p.m., the University of Michigan senior had consumed a total of eight alcoholic drinks.

And the night was far from over.

Ten minutes after the bedroom scene, Tim's roommate, Trevor, wrestled the football away from him on the balcony of their third-story apartment. Tim fought hard to maintain control of the pigskin, but in the end all he had to show for his efforts was a spilt beer. Trevor raced back into the apartment, arms raised in victory, shouting, "Score!"

Tim dutifully made his way to the kitchen, while a third friend poured him another shot. Tim took a deep breath, threw back his head, downed the Bacardi and chased it with a long drink of water.

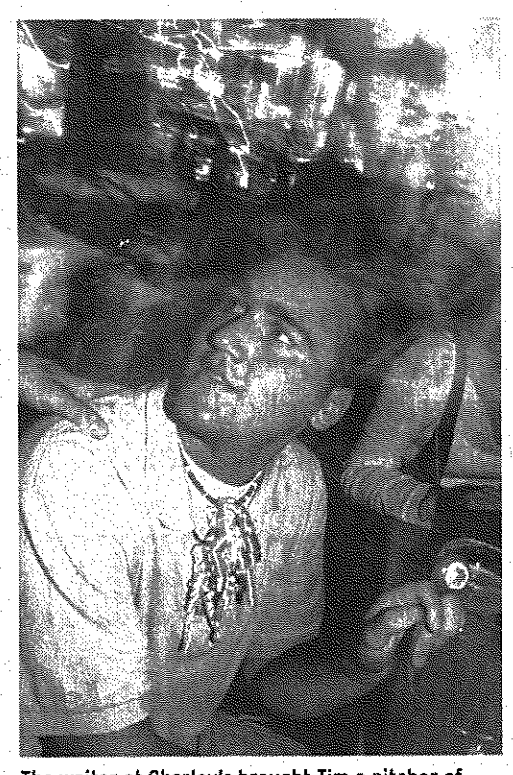
The events unfolding that night were not part of some bizarre hazing ritual, but they were a sort of rite of passage.

As is common practice for many young people on the eve of their 21st birthday, Tim was preparing to celebrate his right to legally drink alcohol by getting, well ... drunk.

Friends of the Canton resident had gathered at the apartment to pre-drink before accompanying Tim to the bar where, at the stroke of midnight, the birthday boy would confidently display his ID.

DRINKING GAMES

Tim explained that the football was part of a game devised by a friend to help him stay focused in the face of rising levels of inebriation – every time Tim lost possession of the ball, he had to take another shot.



The waiter at Charley's brought Tim a pitcher of water and advised Tim to "wait ten minutes between shots".

At 11:30 p.m., Tim's drink tally was up to three beers and seven shots. But for as much alcohol as he was taking in, Tim was sure to pace himself with water. He wanted to have fun, but he also wanted to stay in control.

In less than half an hour, Tim would be reaching a significant milestone. Although one's 21st birthday is an event anxiously anticipated by many young adults, Tim said he didn't really feel any different.

"In all seriousness, I'm not really that excited about it (turning 21)," he said. "It's not like it's my first drink or my first time at a bar. I'm looking at it as a cheap night."

Five minutes before 12 a.m., Tim and a group of about 12 other friends left the apartment and made the short walk to Good Time Charlie's, a popular restaurant and bar in the central campus area of Ann Arbor.

At 12:14 a.m., Tim – a large grin spread across his face – presented his driver's license to the host at Charlie's. The host carefully checked the date on the ID and, wishing him a happy birthday, stamped a purple roller-skate onto Tim's hand, validating his legal right to be there.

DRINKING PANTS

Right inside the door of Charlie's, Tim's mom, Barb, was waiting with a birthday present for her son. Tim opened the package and unveiled a pair of black pajama pants decorated with brightly-colored bottles and cans.

"Drinking pants!" Barb explained with a smile.

Tim chats with his friend's girlfriend about the new "drinking pants" that his Mom bought him for his birthday.

Mother and son made their way to a long table in the back of the restaurant. Before even taking their seats, Barb flagged down a waiter and ordered her son his first legal drink – a large lime margarita with salt.

At 12:30 a.m., the drink came. After taking a long swig, Tim gave the thumbs up sign to show his satisfaction.

Five minutes later, Tim sat down at the head of the table as friends began ordering shots from the menu.

The first to arrive was called a "Stoplight," and it came in three separate shooter glasses – Southern Comfort and cranberry juice for the red light, vodka and orange juice for the yellow light and melon liqueur and Sprite for the green light.

By 12:40 a.m., two more rounds of shots were lined up in front of Tim, whose smile was becoming increasingly more broad. This time the birthday boy downed a "Prairie Fire" (tequila and Tabasco sauce) followed by a "Three Wise Men" (Jack Daniels, Jim Beam and Jose Cuervo).

KNOWING LIMITS

When a shot called "The Dragon" (151 and Tabasco sauce) arrived a few minutes later, Tim, recognizing his limits and anticipating his intolerance for the potent drink, hid the glass behind a stack of menus.

"I can't do shots of anything – I gag," Tim said as he sucked down water through a straw. The waiter had brought him the large pitcher of water and, as a measure of safety, told Tim to wait at least 10 minutes between shots.

The waiter explained that a lot of 21-year-olds come to Charlie's to celebrate their birthday, and the restaurant has a policy to keep the new drinkers safe and under control.

"We see a lot of twenty-ones," the waiter said. "We're told to keep it responsible at all times... but we want them to have fun."

Glancing over at Tim he added, "But the last thing I want is for him to throw up at my table because I have to clean it up."

At the other end of the table Tim's mom, who was socializing with her son's friends while keeping an eye on his actions, said she wasn't overly concerned about the celebration.

"I wasn't worried," she said. "He's a very responsible young man – I think he knows his limits. But I can't believe he can handle his liquor like he does – I would be on the floor."

An hour into his actual birthday on the 25th, the shots appeared to be taking their toll on Tim. After downing a fruity shot that consisted of peach schnapps, cranberry juice and Jagermeister, Tim tried to explain he liked it because it smelled good.

"... because the sense of smell comes from... oh wait, I'm drunk – I can't even remember what part of the brain it (sense of smell) comes from and that's my specialty."

To avoid drinking and driving, Tim and his friends walked everywhere they went, even to a party after the bar closed to continue drinking.

At 1:10 a.m. the waiter came by to check on the birthday boy again and told him to take it easy.

"Do me a favor – slow up a little," he said to Tim, explaining that he could stay until last call at 2 a.m. if necessary.

ANOTHER LAST CALL

Ten minutes and two shots later, Tim announced he was ready to go. After a quick bathroom break, Tim and company made their way to another bar down the street.

"We're hittin' another last call right now," he said, explaining that this next bar was "the fun place."

"I've been here eight... seven... eight or nine times," he recalled.

With a Bud Light in his hand at 1:40 a.m., Tim reflected on the events of the night.

"I'm excited that it's my birthday, but I've done this same exact thing before," Tim said. "The thing that was the coolest was that my mom came – I loved that."

Tim explained that, although he got fairly intoxicated, he still managed to stay in control of himself and the evening.

"I stood up to my friends – they were pushing me to do shots," he said. "At the bar I was selective with my shots. I drank more than usual but I didn't max out. I wanted to have fun and I did."

Binge drinking has serious consequences

While college students may not think they're doing themselves harm by "binge" drinking, consuming too much alcohol in too little time can have serious physical consequences.

According to the National Institute on Alcohol and Alcoholism, the U.S. government's recommended "safe" levels for alcohol consumption are one drink per day for women and two drinks per day for men. One bottle of beer, one 5-ounce glass of wine or 1.5 ounces of 80-proof liquor all meet the definition of a "standard drink."

Binge drinking is defined by researchers as five or more drinks in a row for men and four or more for women. A 180-pound man's blood alcohol level will be approximately .04 after two drinks and will rise to .11, well over the legal limit, after five.

For women, the effects of alcohol can be impairing after just two drinks. A 140-pound woman, for instance, would have a blood alcohol level of .09 after only three drinks.

The Web site www.collegedrinkingnews.net relates results of a Harvard School of Public Health College Alcohol Study, which showed two out of five students on college campuses binge drink.

Alcohol is involved in two-thirds of college student suicides and 95 percent of violent crime on campus. Alcohol is involved in 90 percent of campus rapes, according to Columbia University's National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse. A study on campus rape published in the Journal of American College Health found 73 percent of the assailants and 55 percent of rape victims used alcohol or other drugs prior to the assault.

Three out of four non-binge drinkers and abstainers who lived in dormitories or fraternities and sororities reported experiencing at least one second-hand effect from binge drinking. The 1999 Harvard survey found that 36 percent had been insulted or humiliated and 71 percent had sleep or study interrupted. A smaller share of students had experienced an unwanted sexual advance (23 percent), been assaulted (11 percent) or had property damaged (16 percent).

Each year, college students spend about $5.5 billion on alcohol, mostly beer. The annual overall costs of alcohol use by those under 21 is estimated at more than $58 billion dollars, according to the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. This estimate, based on current health and criminal justice data, assigns costs associated with violent crime, traffic crashes, treatment, and alcohol poisonings, among other variables.

For more information about the affects of binge drinking, go to www.collegedrinkingnews.net or www.brad21.com, a Web site established by the family of Bradley McCue, a Michigan State student who died on his 21st birthday of alcohol poisoning brought on by consuming 24 shots of liquor in less than two hours.

DRINKING HABITS

Starkweather Education Center in Plymouth. Like Drew, he also started drinking at a young age because he hung out with an older crowd.

A drinker since the eighth grade, Mark said he prefers the taste of tequila and beer, especially Budweiser.

He relies on friends who are 21 or have fake IDs to buy drinks for him. When all else fails, Mark said he and friends will occasionally steal their liquor.

Now that he is of legal age, Casper doesn't have to worry about how to get alcohol. His only concern is where to drink it.

The Wayne resident said he will sometimes go to bars on weekends or drink at other friends' houses.

Despite the fact he occasionally hangs out with a younger crowd, Casper said he does not like to purchase liquor for minors.

An 18-year-old female, who wished not to be named, migrated to where Drew and Matt were standing next to a car. Like the rest of the teen-agers, she appeared to be losing her patience with the lack of action: "I need a beer," she announced.

The girl, who said she had been drinking since age 13, added that she had also delved into drugs during the two and a half years she was going out with her now ex-boyfriend. She was proud, however, of having made significant changes to her lifestyle since breaking up with the 19-year-old.

"Now I got my s... straight," she said, explaining that she has a 4.0 grade point average, is on the honor roll and plans to continue attending classes in the fall.

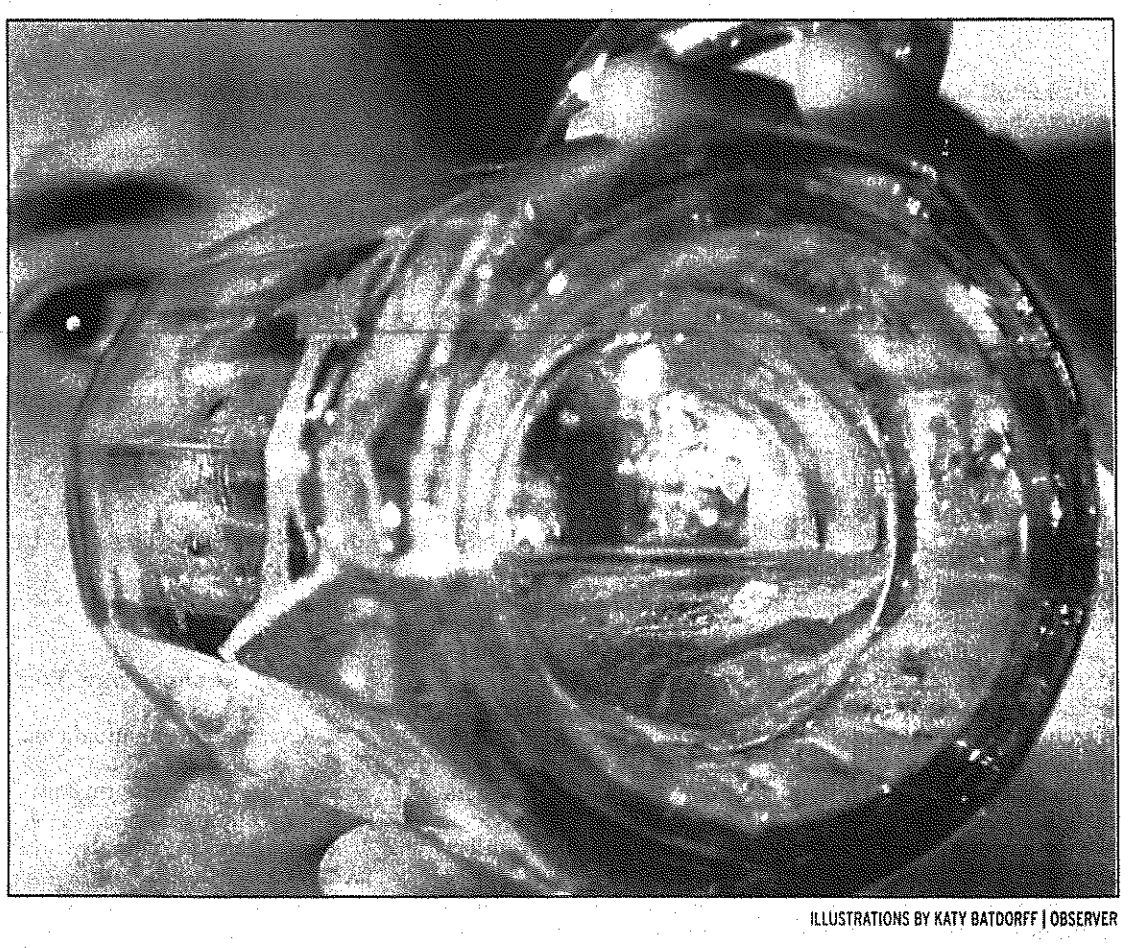
The girl, who says she now has a good job, also said her mom knows she was a drinker.

"My mom's OK with what I do, but she doesn't really know what I do," she said.

The girl also has a fake ID she says she obtained from a "carnie" at a recent festival. She explained that the man just gave her the ID, which says she is 26 years old, while she was waiting in line for a ride.

"It works – I've had it for a month... It looks nothing like me," she said, explaining that she has successfully bought alcohol at gas stations with the ID.

He relies on friends who are 21 or have fake IDs to buy drinks for him. When all else fails, Mark said he and his friends will occasionally steal their liquor.



ILLUSTRATIONS BY KATY BATDORFF | OBSERVER

According to the girl, the most alcohol she ever consumed at one time was on her 18th birthday in the beginning of July.

She helped finish off two fifths of liquor with three people before drinking a 40-ounce and a six-pack of beer by herself. She also downed three beers using a bong, which is an apparatus that allows users to drink an entire beer in one swallow.

The girl said she blacked out at 10 p.m. – she had been drinking since 2 p.m.

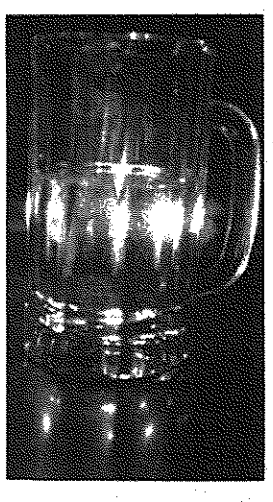
"I don't know how I'm still alive," she said, explaining that she never plans to drink that much at one time again.

"I'm lucky if I could take a fifth," Drew said as he listened to the girl explain the events of her birthday. "You won't run across too many guys that can do that."

GETTING 'SMASHED'

When asked about the frequency of his drinking habits, Drew said it depends on what's going on and how he feels. He said he usually drinks about three nights per week, although some weeks he won't drink at all.

"It all varies..." he said. "Sometimes I drink after work to relax. I don't drink to get drunk all the time. I can control it – I'm not an alcoholic. Sometimes I do drink for the buzz, like if I'm depressed... Once a week I'll get totally annihilated – just smashed."



Matt said he hung out with older kids, which is one reason why he started using substances. Unlike Joe, he is unrepentant for smoking marijuana.

"I've always hung out with bad kids," he said. "I liked weed. I'll probably smoke it till the day I die."

Matt said he was supposed to graduate this year, but dropped out of school for two years. He said he was on the honor roll in middle school.

According to him, alcohol was often present in his home.

"My dad had alcohol in the house at all times," he said.

At about midnight, nearly an hour after they arrived at the gas station, someone spotted a police car pulling into a nearby parking lot.

"That 'po-po' rollin' in here," Drew informed his friends. "Cover up that fifth..."

The teen-agers scattered to their cars and, shouting directions to the next destination, drove off into the night.

Plymouth-Canton school officials are looking at replacing the grass field at P-CEP with artificial turf.

more repairs to it," said Jacobs. "It's a problem with the drains. Some of the drains under the football field are collapsing as it goes underneath the track in certain locations."

The field needs to be torn up to repair the drains and build a new track. The second problem is there are too many teams using the field.

"It wasn't able to hold up with two schools using the field," said Jacobs. "What will happen when we add more teams?"

That's the same logic that led to South Lyon spending $630,000 to install artificial turf on its football field last summer. Superintendent William Pearson, who remembers the muddy field conditions when his daughter was a member of the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band, said the weather is just too unpredictable, and the upkeep too expensive.

"You get a limited amount of days you can use the field in the fall, and we knew we had football, soccer, the band and local community groups that wanted to use it," said Pearson. "It looks gorgeous, and you don't have to spend a lot of money on maintenance. The amount of money to put it in is not insignificant, but it's well worth it."

'You get a limited amount of days you can use the field in the fall, and we knew we had football, soccer, the band and local community groups that wanted to use it.'

William Pearson

Ryan said the board may discuss the issue at its Aug. 27 meeting. "If the board decides to move forward, we need to get bids out by December, so we can install it next summer," said Ryan. "If all goes well, we'll have a new artificial surface for soccer and football, and a new track around the surface, by the fall of 2003."

Part of the Plymouth High School construction included building a new football stadium, complete with lights, press box and concession stand. However, the district promised North Pointe subdivision residents, who live next to the stadium, the facility would be used only to play junior varsity games to cut down on noise and traffic.

School board Trustee Judy Mardigian isn't certain spending more than a million dollars on the artificial turf is the best use of district money.

"I'm not an expert on turf science, but maybe we can explore other options for the field," she said. "I think the money could be better spent inside the buildings, or purchasing additional buses."

Ryan believes that with the improvements to the track and football field, as well as the newly constructed baseball fields at the high school complex, along with other amenities like restroom facilities and ticket booths, Plymouth-Canton could put itself in a position to host playoffs and league meets.

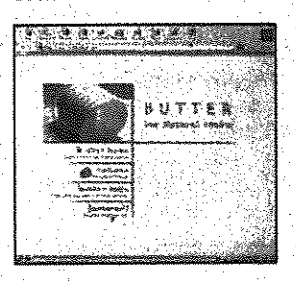
Butter-up

If you love smooth creamy butter, then check out www.butterisbest.com.

Sponsored by the American Dairy Association, the Web site is a "one-stop shop" for butter information.



It's easy and fun to navigate, and you'll find lots of recipes to butter up family and friends, along with cooking and baking tips, and answers to commonly asked questions like how to make clarified butter.

To make one pound of clarified butter, you will need about 1 1/4 pounds of unsalted butter. Melt butter over moderate heat. Stir butter but don't let it boil; this allows the milk solids to separate from the liquid butter. Upon heating, butter will separate into three distinct layers: foamy milk solids on top, clarified butter in the middle and milk solids on the bottom.

As the butter continues to warm, skim froth from the surface and discard. When froth is eliminated, carefully pour off clear, melted clarified butter into another container, leaving the milk solids at the bottom of the saucepan. Discard milk solids.

Clarified butter can be used immediately or kept in an airtight container in the refrigerator for up to three or four weeks. Re-melt to use.

Cheesy

"Ahh the power of cheese" - learn how to host a cheese and wine tasting for friends at www.ilovecheese.com. This colorful, fun, interactive Web site, hosted by the American Dairy Association, offers a wealth of information about everything cheesy including recipes, tips for buying and storing cheese.

Back to School

It's time to start thinking about school lunches and you'll find lots of healthy suggestions at Whole Foods Market, including kid-size boxes of raisins, animal cookies and peanut butter.

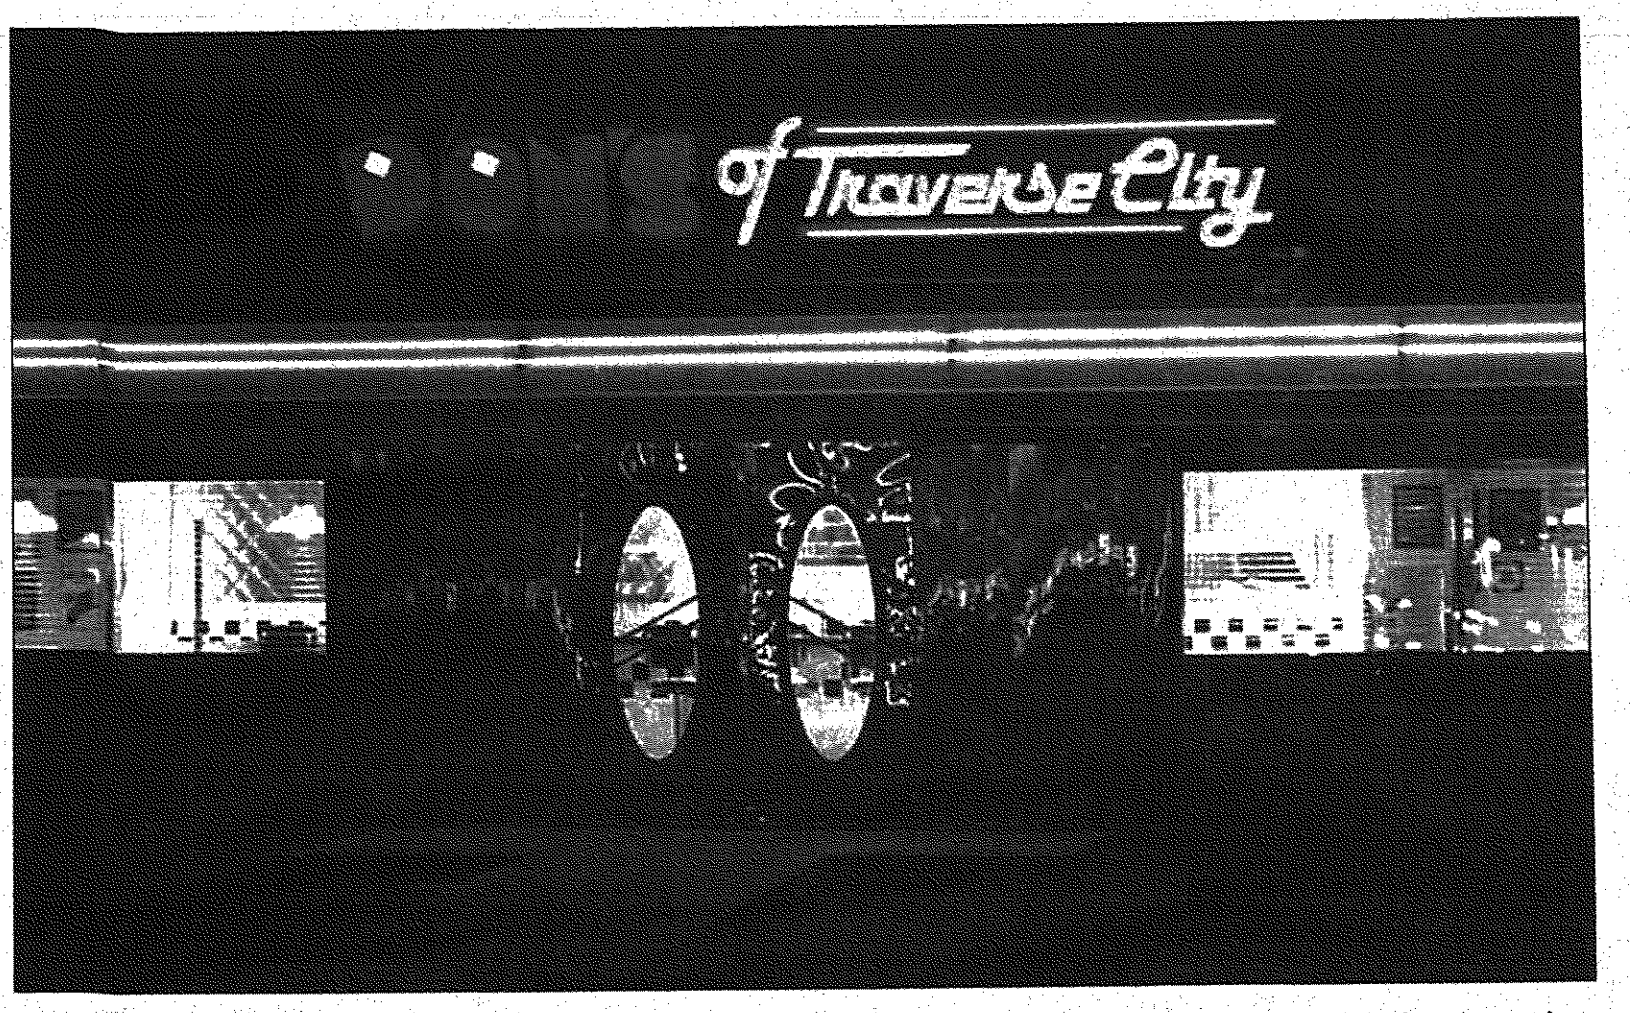
Here are some more tips from the folks at Whole Foods:

Substitute chocolate soy milk for regular milk.

Replace fruit punch boxes with 100 percent organic grape, apple or orange juice.

Make vegetables incredibly edible. Put carrots in a cinnamon raisin pita pocket, or top celery with peanut butter and a sprinkle of raisins.

Whole Foods has locations in Ann Arbor, West Bloomfield and Troy. For more information, visit www.wholefoods.com.



Don's Diner in Novi is a classic diner that classic car lovers enjoy on warm summer months. Drive-in diners like A&W in Clawson and Southgate are some of the few remaining places still in existence where curbside service is available.

STAFF WRITER

Bob Wilson cringes a little inside when people request a glass of water with lemon.

"It was never like that in the old days. Water was water."

His inner frown doesn't last long, Wilson knows how to laugh and roll with change. Business is brisk at Don's Traverse City Diner, 48730 Grand River in Novi, one of the few classic diners that remain in metro Detroit. Wilson's happy that people still enjoy them.

Besides, most customers prefer chocolate milkshakes over lemon water anyway — especially if they drive classic cars.

The Motor City area, of course, loves the automobile and the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise is its biggest honor. Milkshakes and hot dogs are classic cars fare, and next weekend businesses like Don's of Traverse City, A&W, and other drive-in restaurants will be filled with car lovers wanting 1950s style meals.

There might be a lemon in the water nowadays, but other than that, little has changed on the menu at places like Don's.

"People still want milkshakes made with hand-dipped chocolate, vanilla and strawberry ice cream," Wilson said. "We give that to them — we don't use machines. And they like the old-fashioned atmosphere — girls dressed in pink using the old silver money changers."

The first place that allowed Americans to eat in their cars was The Pig Stand in 1921. A&Ws followed years later and Bob's Big Boy in Southern California really popularized drive-ins when the curbside drive-in was used in movies such as American Graffiti. The eateries created a place for teens to meet friends, look for dates and grab a 10 cent root beer. They were places for families to stop for a quick meal while discovering the joys of a vacation road trip across the country.

Don's is a classic diner and its sister location in Traverse City is a drive-in. A&W in Clawson has curbside service as do many Downriver A&W locations like Southgate and Taylor.

The servers at those locations aren't on roller skates but they are at Eddie's Drive-in on Jefferson Avenue in Mount Clemens. At Eddie's, roller-skating servers approach parked cars and serve foot-long Coney's and malts while listening to 1950s music.

"It's a one-of-a-kind spot," Dave Taggert said of

Dutton-Goldfield pushes the quality envelope

Only last year, Dan Goldfield, one half of the partnership that makes up Dutton-Goldfield Winery, said, "In a period of only 10 years, a small contingent of growers and winemakers has made Sonoma Coast pinot noir the rival of any wine made anywhere. The exciting thing is we haven't come close to making our best wine."

OK, modesty will get you everywhere. The truth is that Dutton-Goldfield wines have caught the attention of pinot noir and chardonnay lovers in the know. We've been hot on these wines since we tasted the first releases in summer 2000. No sense telling our Observer-Eccentric readers about them because that would only have been dangling carrots – until now. The wines are here and this is the scoop.

Focus on Wine

Eleanor & Ray Heald

COLD-CLIMATE GRAPEGROWING

Winemaker Dan Goldfield and his grapegrower partner Steve Dutton have promoted vineyards in California's coldest regions since the early 1990s. They cut their teeth on the coldest areas of the Russian River Valley appellation and make dynamite chardonnay and pinot noir from there.

They've pushed the envelope by developing vineyards in areas of western Sonoma County, such as Sonoma Coast, considered cattle grazing land only a few years ago. Even Marin County to the south, near the Point Reyes Peninsula, has vineyards that Dutton-Goldfield considers premium.

"In the Sonoma Coast appellation and other cold-coast regions of California," Dutton said, "site selection is crucial. The cold winds and heavy fogs are unforgiving. There, if your vineyard isn't just the right combination of elevation, exposure, variety and clone, you can easily end up with unripe grapes on your hands in late October. This isn't the kind of problem most California grapegrowers are used to facing. But when it all comes together, you've got grapes

A simple summer sauce from Italy

Pesto is easy to make, especially in the summer when tomatoes are at their best.

*Pesto, once an exotic Italian sauce, is now so common and popular that it can be found ready-made on supermarket shelves. But it's much better home-made, and easy to make, especially in the summer when tomatoes are at their best.

Pesto originated in Genoa, where it is made with basil, olive oil, garlic, pine nuts, butter and grated cheese. Sicilians make a red-and-green pesto with cherry tomatoes and herbs. Whatever goes in it, pesto is good over pasta, on sliced tomatoes, or heaped on toasted bread. Traditionally made with a mortar and pestle, it can be prepared far more easily and quickly in a food processor or blender.

Pesto includes culinary herbs which contain natural antioxidant substances that help prevent and repair cell damage linked to cancer or heart disease. According to research by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, oregano and mint are extremely high in antioxidant power, as are dill, thyme and rosemary.

According to another study, herbs contain many cancer-fighting phytochemicals that stimulate the immune system, block carcinogenic damage to the DNA in our cells and inhibit a variety of hormones and enzymes associated with cancer development.

Cooking with herbs is also good for weight control. Herbs add flavor and richness to prepared dishes, easily replacing fat and salt. This Sicilian recipe contains no cheese and is best made with salted capers, available in specialty food stores. It shouldn't be hard to find sweet cherry tomatoes in July, but if you can't, farm-grown tomatoes, so plentiful at road stands and farmers' markets, are usually quite sweet at the height of summer.

Besto Pesto

- 3/4 cup loosely packed flat-leaf parsley
- 1/3 cup loosely packed basil
- 1/4 cup loosely packed celery leaves
- 1/4 cup loosely packed mint leaves
- 1/4 small red onion, chopped
- 6 blanched whole almonds
- 1 Tbsp. capers, rinsed and drained*
- 1 garlic clove, chopped
- 1/2 tsp. dried oregano
- 12 cherry tomatoes
- 3 Tbsp. extra virgin olive oil
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- 6 cups cooked pasta or 6 slices bruschetta

Place the parsley, basil, celery leaves, mint, onion, almonds, capers and garlic in a food processor or blender. Pulse 6-8 times to chop them. Add oregano and tomatoes and chop coarsely. With the motor running, gradually drizzle in olive oil. (Herbs and vegetables can also be hand-chopped, then placed in blender to pureé with oil.)

Transfer pesto to a bowl. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Let sit 30 minutes to allow flavors to meld. Toss with hot, cooked spaghetti or other pasta, or spread on bruschetta (toasted slices of Italian bread).

Store leftover pesto in the refrigerator, tightly covered. Use within 24 hours. *Salt-cured capers are preferable to those preserved in vinegar, but rinse in tepid water to remove salt crystals.

Build on pasta for quick summer meals

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pasta makes a great base for a quick meal, offering many shapes and sizes to choose from. This recipe from the August issue of Cooking Light magazine tosses together orzo, dill and chick peas. Pair it with a side of romaine-mint salad and it becomes a light summer meal.

Orzo Salad with Chickpeas, Dill and Lemon

- 1/2 cup thinly sliced green onions
- 1/2 cup (2 ounces) crumbled feta cheese

- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 11/2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon bottled minced garlic

Cook pasta according to package directions, omitting fat and salt. Drain and rinse with cold water; drain. Combine pasta, onions, cheese, dill and chickpeas in a large bowl, tossing gently to combine. Combine juice and remaining ingredients in a small bowl, stirring with a whisk. Drizzle over pasta mixture; toss gently to coat.

Dip fish, chicken in grape, avocado salsa

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grapes mix well with other foods, offering cooks many options when preparing them beyond just being a snack food. This recipe combines grapes with avocados, another California favorite, for a salsa that can work either as a side for dipping or a garnish over chicken or fish.

Grape and Avocado Salsa

- 11/2 cups coarsely chopped seedless grapes
- 1 medium avocado, diced 1/4-inch.
- 1/4 cup chopped sweet red peppers
- 2 tablespoons each diced sweet onion and fresh Anaheim peppers
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh cilantro
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime or lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- Dash of ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Cover tightly and refrigerate at least 30 minutes to allow flavors to blend. Serve with grilled fish or chicken. May be served with tortilla chips or toasted bagels.

Makes about 2 cups.

Roast the corn and put the butter away

It's peak corn season right now, and time for simple ways to enjoy the natural sweetness of fresh corn-on-the-cob.

Most folks equate corn-on-the-cob with plenty of melted butter. But you will be pleasantly astonished to discover, like the AICR staff who taste-tested this version, how wonderful corn can taste without butter. Really. No butter. Just plenty of juicy flavor.

As soon as corn is picked, its natural sugar begins to convert to starch - making the corn taste less sweet. So ideally, buy corn as soon after it's picked as you can, and cook it as quickly as possible. But even corn that has been trucked in or refrigerated is delicious grilled or roasted, which heightens the sweetness and adds a nice smoky taste.

When selecting corn, pick ears with bright green, tight-fitting husks and golden brown silk. The kernels should be milky, plump and in tightly-spaced rows that reach all the way to the tip of the ear.

Corn is believed to contain cancer-fighting properties. Recent studies suggest that higher consumption of lutein (part of the carotenoid family that includes beta-carotene) helps fight cancer. One study reported that women with the highest blood levels of lutein faced about half the incidence of breast cancer as those with the lowest. Other research shows that people with the highest dietary intake of lutein had a substantially lower incidence of colon cancer than those with the lowest intake.

Although yellow corn contains less lutein than dark green, leafy vegetables, it's still an excellent source of this cancer-protective phytochemical. Lutein may also reduce the risk of heart attack and stroke.

Corn roasted in the following way is so good you may want to roast a few extra ears and cut the kernels off the cob for salads, salsas, or soups.

Roasted Corn with Cumin and Lime

- 1 Tbsp. fresh lime juice
- 1 tsp. ground cumin
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tsp. extra virgin olive oil
- 6 ears fresh corn, in the husk
- 2 limes, cut lengthwise into wedges

Heat the grill or preheat the oven to 500 degrees.

In a small bowl, whisk together lime juice, cumin, salt, pepper and oil. Prepare corn, one ear at a time. Pull off and discard the 2 or 3 tough outer leaves. Carefully pull back remaining leaves, one at a time, exposing as much of the ear as possible. (It is better to uncover only half the ear than to tear the husks.) Pull off all the silk.

Brush kernels with oil mixture, using just enough to coat corn lightly. Smooth folded leaves back into place, one by one, until ear is completely covered.

Arrange corn on the grill or place in oven. Roast 15 minutes. If using a grill, turn ears 2 or 3 times. (This is not necessary if oven-roasting.) Serve corn immediately, accompanied by additional salt, if desired, and lime wedges, which are squeezed over the corn as it is eaten.

Makes 6 servings. Per serving: 91 calories, 3 g. total fat (less than 1 g. saturated fat), 17 g. carbohydrate, 2 g. protein, 2 g. dietary fiber, 207 mg. sodium.

WINE

no winemaker in the world would turn down."

Winemaker Dan Goldfield is not an industry newcomer. After graduating with an M.S. in Enology from the University of California Davis, he worked at Robert Mondavi Winery, at the renowned Napa sparkling wine producer Schramsberg, at La Crema, long-known for pinot noir excellence. He developed Hartford Court, a winery in the Jackson Family Farms estates, also focused on cold-climate pinot noir and chardonnay grown in western Sonoma County.

What about the price?

Because the yield per vine for pinot noir is small and the best require aging in premium French oak, the price of delicious pinots is high. But if you compare an ultra-premium quality producer like Dutton-Goldfield with a small-estate red Burgundy from France, California is the better buy.

There's chardonnay and then there's a rich and broad Dutton-Goldfield Dutton Ranch Chardonnay with a core of bright acidity achieved only when grapes are grown in a cold climate. So, no, this is not your average chardonnay at an average price.

AVAILABLE WINES

■ 2000 Dutton-Goldfield Dutton Ranch Chardonnay, Russian River Valley $35 has citrus and tropical fruit aromas with an attractive buttery element that makes the lush, rich and creamy finish even more delightful.

■ 2000 Dutton-Goldfield Rued Vineyard Chardonnay, Green Valley-Russian River Valley $45 entices with exotic tropical fruits such as mango, papaya and kiwi. Flavors mirror aromas and climax in an elegant, clean and refreshing finish.

■ 1999 Dutton-Goldfield Dutton Ranch Pinot Noir, Russian River Valley $40 delights with aromas of dried rose petals, fragrant dried leaves and exotic spices. High-toned dark cherry and other red berry fruit flavors carry through to the elegant and silky finish.

■ 2000 Dutton-Goldfield Maurice Galante Vineyard Pinot Noir, Marin County $50 is a dramatic wine statement with blackberry and dark Bing cherry aromas. Concentrated dark fruits mark flavors that last long in the lush finish.

Have fun experimenting with tofu

BY J.M. HIRSCH
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Bad tofu recipes abound. Frankly, I blame it on the fact that soy is good for you. Seems the health benefits have persuaded everyone, and not just vegetarians anymore, to put tofu in everything from chocolate-chip cookies to ravioli.

Some ideas work: There are some exceptional soy-filled ravioli on the market. Many do not: Hunks of tofu may look like white chocolate chips, but taste tells a different story.

Frustrated to find one cookbook after another claiming to be the complete encyclopedia of how to turn tofu into anything from salad dressing to spare tires, I decided to cast a wide net over the tofu world and see what it caught.

The plan was simple: Call tofu manufacturers around the country and ask them for surprising, exciting, even unusual and, most important, tasty recipes that use tofu. From them I'd choose the most appealing. Not as easy a task as it seemed. For many tofu makers, English isn't a first (or second or third) language.

Also, tofu-making machinery apparently tends to be big and loud, because at some companies it was impossible to scream above the churning noises.

At those with whom communication was possible, some were bemused, others offended. "Those recipes are proprietary," one tofu-marketing woman told me.

Most were more giving. Soon my mailbox overflowed with nifty, if not always tasty, ideas for using bean curd.

Some, including creamy peanut-butter pie, sounded decadent. Others were outright disgusting, among them Russian noodle pudding – not even the cat would touch it.

In the end, three merited passing on.

Start with spicy Mumbai potatoes, an Indian take on the twice-baked favorite. This recipe, offered by Morinaga Nutritional Foods, maker of the very versatile Mori-Nu silken tofu line, puts tofu in its place: the background. It adds body to the dish, but doesn't detract from the flavors.

Then move on to Eden Foods' vegetable saute. The plain name disguises creative ingredients including dried lotus root and dried tofu, which is dense and chewy, with a taste and texture remarkably different from regular tofu.

Finish your tofu experiments with the deviled tofu recipe offered by Small Planet Tofu.

This dish is easy to whip up, but packs plenty of flavor. Use it as a sandwich filling, or pate for crackers and vegetable sticks.

SPICY MUMBAI POTATOES

(Preparation 1 hour 15 minutes)
4 large Idaho or russet potatoes
2 teaspoons canola or olive oil
1 cup finely minced leeks
1 tablespoon finely grated ginger
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon ground coriander
1/8 teaspoon turmeric
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1 cup fresh or frozen peas
3/4 cup firm, silken tofu, pureed
2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
Canola oil cooking spray

Preheat oven to 425º F. Wash and scrub each potato well. Dry and prick each with a fork a few times. Bake until tender, about 40 to 60 minutes depending on size of potato.

While potatoes bake, combine oil, leeks, ginger, garlic and salt in a large skillet and saute over a medium-high flame for 6 to 8 minutes, or until leeks are soft.

Add pepper, coriander, turmeric and cumin, and cook another 2 minutes. Add peas and cook until tender, about 5 minutes.

When the potatoes are done, remove from oven and allow to cool. Reduce oven to 350º F.

Cut the potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out the innards, leaving the skins intact with about 1/4 inch of potato. Set the skins aside.

Transfer the scooped potato to a large bowl. Use a potato masher to combine the potatoes and tofu puree, then stir the leek mixture into the potatoes.

the business owned by his soon-to-be in-laws, Bruce and Debbie Meek. "And burgers and fries are just as popular now as they were 25 years ago."

TIME STANDS STILL

Like life at Don's, little has changed at Larry Streetman's job since 1966 and that's just the way he likes it. T-Birds with white convertible tops still pull into his business at the A&W in Clawson. Customers still order root beer soda in glass mugs. The faces are the same too, except now those lovebird-customers from the 1950s and 1960s bring their children and grandchildren to show them what the good ol' days were like.

"It's something different for parents to show their kids," Streetman.

Streetman started working at A&W as a counter boy in 1966 when he was in the 10th grade. Today he and his wife Nancy are proud owners of A&W restaurants in Berkley and Clawson. Their children Rusty and Ron work there, too.

The biggest change Streetman has seen at A&W is requests for chicken sandwiches. Customers still ask about the difference between a root beer float and root beer cooler. Coolers are soda blended with ice cream to drink through a straw; floats are literally that – soda with floating ice cream meant to be eaten with a spoon.

What's also changed is that those customers who once drag-raced down Woodward Avenue now drive a little slower, showing respect for their now-classic cars.

Other than that, they still want burgers and Coney dogs loaded with everything. Low-cal food isn't requested much here. People want French fries instead, Streetman said.

Enjoy car food at home.

Milk shakes and fries are cruisin' delights

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE THE EASY WAY

Put three tablespoons chocolate sauce in tall glass. Fill glass with cold milk or soymilk. Shake thoroughly and top with frozen whipped cream if desired.

Source: www.recipesource.com

COCOA MILK SHAKE

3 tablespoons cocoa
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 pinch salt
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
3 scoops vanilla ice cream

Mix cocoa and sugar with a little milk. Add remaining ingredients. Beat well. Add ice cream.

REAL ROOT BEER

7 cups distilled or purified water
1 1/2 cups white Sugar
1/4 teaspoon of active dry yeast
1 teaspoon of root beer concentrate

(Look for the concentrate in the spice and extract section of your grocery store)

Measure the water into a glass bowl and heat it in a microwave on the high setting for three minutes. You can also heat the water in a non-aluminum pan on a stove burner until the water is lukewarm. Do not overheat it though, or you will deactivate the yeast. Add the sugar, dry yeast, and root beer concentrate to the water and stir slowly until the sugar and yeast dissolve.

Bottling Your Soda:

Set a small plastic funnel into the mouth of a 2-liter plastic bottle. Use a small cup or ladle to pour the soda mixture through the funnel. Fill the bottle, leaving about 2-3 inches of air at the top. Remove the funnel and screw the bottle cap tightly. (If air leaks out, the root beer will not carbonate properly.)

Adding the Fizz:

Lay the filled bottle on its side in a warm place and leave it undisturbed for four days. During this time the root beer will carbonate-the sugar and the yeast react to form tiny carbon dioxide bubbles that give the soda its fizz. On the fifth day, put the root beer in the refrigerator to chill. It will be ready to drink the following day.

Taste Testing:

The best way to serve your homemade root beer is in a frosted glass mug. As you unscrew the bottle cap, listen for the soft woosh sound as the pressurized air at the top of thee bottle escapes. When you pour the root beer, you should see bubbles on the sides of the glass and foam forming at the top. You'll notice a slight yeasty flavor to your homemade brew, as well as a hint of anise and wintergreen. If the flavor is too strong, just add a small amount of cold water.

Or make a root beer float by putting one scoop of vanilla ice cream or sorbet in a tall frosted glass. Pour in enough root beer to cover. Top with a second scoop of ice cream, whipped cream, and a cherry, and serve with a spoon and straw.

BAKED FRIES

1 large baking potato
1 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon onion powder

Preheat oven to 450ºF. Cut potato into wedges. Mix olive oil, paprika, garlic powder, chili powder and onion powder together. Coat potatoes with oil/spice mixture and place on a baking sheet. Bake for 45 minutes in preheated oven.

Michigan State Fair brings old favorites and new events

BY SHARON DARGAY
STAFF WRITER

Sure, you'll find a few new wrinkles — new pedestrian entrance, a visit by Thomas the Tank engine — at this year's Michigan State Fair, which begins Tuesday, Aug. 20.

But the significant changes are in the wings for the 2003 fair.

"Next year, what will happen is the Michigan State Fair will go to a three-weekend state fair," said General Manager John C. Hertel, speaking before members of the press and sponsors at a fair preview on Thursday. "We'll start four days earlier. Instead of two weekends, we'll have three. And one weekend will coincide with the Dream Cruise. I'm certain we'll do some special auto displays."

The fair will run full days, from 10 a.m.-midnight, Friday through Sunday, next year, but open at 4 p.m. on weekdays.

"During the week next year, we will go to an after school start," Hertel said.

He said daytime weekday attendance lags during the fair's second week, when many school districts start fall classes. He estimated total fair attendance at 450,000-500,000 last year.

"Even during that first week when kids are not in school, it takes a while for people to get into the mode of understanding that the Michigan State Fair is on," he added.

The fair will offer bargain admission to midway rides during the fair's early four-day start next year.

And this year?

Hertel calls the fair "the best entertainment value in the state — maybe in the Midwest."

"You can bring a picnic lunch. You don't have to spend a lot of money on food. It's the fifth year in a row we've had the same (admission) price," he said.

"It is America's safest and cleanest state fair." New this year are:

■ A stage show starring Thomas the Tank Engine aimed at children under 6.

■ An antique tractor exhibit

■ The Department of Natural Resources and Huron-Clinton Metroparks team up to bring additional wildlife displays to the Outdoor Zone, a two-acre nature area at the fair. Visitors can use binoculars to spot and identify ducks, try on a fish mask, negotiate a straw bale maze, play disc golf, handle live reptiles, catch and release fish, shoot a pellet gun and try archery.

■ DaimlerChrysler will sponsor the Outdoor Zone this year. General Motors lends its support to the contest pavilion.

"Before 1998, we probably weren't doing even a dozen contests during the fair," said Pat Boyer, Sterling Heights, a former fair volunteer who now supervises the fair's 500 volunteers and grounds activities, including contests.

"Now we do three contests a day and four on weekends."

Most contests are open to all ages and everyone wins at least an honorable mention. The fair keeps track of winners from year to year — and awards plaques — in some favorite competitions, including the husband and wife calling contest. In others, the top three contestants receive medals.

Boyer, the mother of four children, used her experience as a Girl Scout and Brownie Scout leader to create contests like "bee ball" and "whining."

"We'll have a stuffed (toy) bee and the kids will toss it around like a hot potato," Boyer explained. "The whining contest came right out of the husband and wife calling contest."

A complete schedule, and a second story on State Fair musical events is on the next page, B6.

FOR THE KIDS

It's aimed at children, but anyone with an ear-grating whine can give it their best effort.

"Eating contests are very popular. We have corn eating and pie eating, pudding slurp, applesauce slurp."

If you plan to enter a contest at the fair, arrive about a half hour before it starts and have fun, Boyer suggested.

Contests run at 1:30, 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. every day. An additional contest is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Contest highlights:

Tuesday, Aug. 20 — Somersault race, balloon run, ping pong toss.

Wednesday, Aug. 21 — Bee ball, busy bee, spaghetti eating.

Thursday, Aug. 22 — Baseball toss, asparagus shuttle, balloon blowing.

Friday, Aug. 23 — Disc golf, cherry spit, cherry pie eating.

Saturday, Aug. 24 — Grape race, grape smash, hog calling, milk mustache, whining.

Sunday, Aug. 25 — Basketball toss, cheese please, bubble gum blowing, big cheese.

Monday, Aug. 26 — Senior contests, carrot drop, hot potato, potato sack race.

Tuesday, Aug. 27 — Soccer toss, hedge trimming, rope skipping.

Wednesday, Aug. 28 — Ring toss, don't spill the beans, corn eating

Thursday, Aug. 29 — Apple run, water balloon toss, applesauce slurp.

Friday, Aug. 30 — Christmas tree decorating, cookie stack, doughnut eating, parent/kid calling.

Saturday, Aug. 31 — Football pass, soccer kick, bean bag toss, longest ponytail, hula hoop.

Sunday, Sept. 1 — The Sweep, horse shoe toss, husband and wife calling, egg throw, pudding slurp.

Monday, Sept. 2 — Sack race, sheep herding, wool toss, balloon break.

Cruise the Great Lakes for summer sun, fall color

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

Vacationers from all across the nation set their sights on new waters during the summer cruise season. Michigan's Great Lakes have become the destination of choice for many travelers looking for a cruise experience to satisfy their desire for interesting yet local ports-of-call.

"Nationwide people are being attracted to the Great Lakes," said Chris Conlin, president of Ann Arbor-based Conlin Travel, which sells chartered cruises through the lakes via the Great Lakes Cruise Company, a division of Conlin Travel. "It's an area we (Michigan residents) take for granted, but others view as an up and coming destination."

According to Conlin, the idea for the Great Lakes Cruise Company originated in 1997 when he and his father Tom Conlin – founder of Conlin Travel – read an article about a German ship sailing the lakes with only German passengers.

"It can be said that the Germans truly re-discovered the Great Lakes as far as cruises go," Conlin said.

The father-son team of Conlin Travel, which has been creating unique experiences for the sophisticated traveler all over the world since 1958, decided to extend the company's repertoire to include offerings on the Great Lakes based on the growing popularity of this inland cruise destination.

"It's an opportunity for many people to see a part of the world that's right in their backyard," Conlin said. "It's very convenient."

Now entering its fourth season, the Great Lakes Cruise Company – which bills itself as the only travel company in the world to specialize in Great Lakes cruises – offers three distinctive cruise ships sailing a variety of exciting itineraries. All three ships are foreign-owned and provide a unique cultural experience in addition to the natural lure of the Great Lakes.

"What people find fascinating is that it's a foreign ship, with a foreign crew, sailing in mostly American waters," Conlin said, referring to the experience of cruising on one of the vessels his company charters.

MV COLUMBUS

- Sept. 4-11, Voyage of Discovery, Toronto to Port Huron.
- Sept. 11-17, Voyage of Discovery, Port Huron to Port Huron.
- Sept. 17-23, Voyage of Discovery, Port Huron to Port Huron.
- Sept. 23-27, Voyage of Discovery, Port Huron to Port Huron.

Below, the MV Columbus sails the Great Lakes through September.

THE SHIPS

The MV Columbus, the largest of the three ships chartered by the Great Lakes Cruise Company, makes its way to the Great Lakes during the summer season after having spent the rest of the year sailing abroad. Built in 1997 and modeled after Germany's finest luxury ships, the vessel was designed specifically to accommodate the locks of the Great Lakes.

Well on its way to claiming four-star status, the MV Columbus accommodates 420 passengers and offers a variety of eloquent facilities including a large restaurant, a lounge for dancing and special events, and a Palm Garden with a bar. Flying under the flag of the Bahamas, this ship boasts an international crew with a distinctive German flavor.

The LeLevant is a top-of-the-line, five-star vessel that travels to all five Great Lakes. Built in France in 1998 and flying the French flag, this French luxury yacht was constructed for year-round travel in the Western Hemisphere, but was designed specifically for navigating inland seas. The LeLevant is equipped to take passengers to secluded coves, remote coastlines and hidden tributaries larger cruise ships are forced to bypass.

Accommodating a maximum of 95 guests, the LeLevant is serviced by a primarily French crew and offers fine French cuisine. Passengers enjoy spacious private cabins, which are all suites, as well as a variety of public areas including the Grand Salon, a verandah restaurant, a wood-paneled library, a gymnasium, and an outdoor pool and bar.

The Georgian Clipper is the first and only Canadian-registered cruise ship in over 30 years to ply the waters of Georgian Bay – often referred to as the "sixth Great Lake" – and the world-famous North Channel. Sailing just off the coast, this vessel is almost always in sight of land, offering passengers the unique opportunity to view both Canadian and American vistas.

Small enough to venture where larger ships cannot, the Georgian Clipper accommodates 18 passengers and offers relaxing voyages, first-class facilities with outdoor and indoor lounging and fine French-Canadian cuisine.

According to Conlin, cruises on the Great Lakes offer numerous benefits distinctly different from those of ocean-going cruises. He explained that many people looking for an itinerary experience often find the ship to be the destination on ocean-going cruises, while he says the area is the destination for Great Lakes cruises.

Conlin also noted that a cruise is a unique way to see the Great Lakes and surrounding shorelines as never before.

"Many people have experienced the lakes from the shore, but it's a completely different experience from the water," Conlin said, noting that many cruises keep passengers within sight of land at all times.

On-board features offered by the Great Lakes Cruise Company include carefully selected enrichment lecturers and expert tour guides dedicated to helping passengers truly understand and appreciate the vast beauty and history of the Great Lakes.

Shore excursions are also a popular attraction of Great Lakes cruises, and Conlin's company offers a veritable list of intriguing destinations.

According to Conlin, a favorite excursion is the trip to Manitoulin Island where passengers witness an Indian powwow performed by members of the First Nation Ojibway tribe.

At the Sault Ste. Marie port-of-call, cruisers get the unique experience of rising some 23 feet to the level of Lake Superior as they pass through the Soo Locks. Also at this destination, passengers have the opportunity to venture deep into the forests of the Canadian Shield, passing through awesome granite rock formations while they ride on the Algoma Railroad.

Hikes, historical tours and special trips to well-known tourist attractions such as Niagara Falls and Mackinac Island help round out the Great Lakes Cruise Company's extensive list of shore excursions.

These destinations, combined with the natural beauty and allure of the Great Lakes, are what makes cruising on the famous inland seas an inviting option not only for those people who have never seen the Great Lakes, but also for those who have grown up or lived around them, says Conlin.

Pitching lifts Rams to pair of wins

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

If the first two games are any indication, the Michigan Lake Area Rams could be in for a fun World Series stay in Ohio this weekend.

The Rams routed their first two opponents Wednesday and Thursday at the National Amateur Baseball Federation. World Series in Springfield, Ohio.

The Rams easily cruised past the Crystal Lake (Ill.) Cardinals 7-0 Wednesday, and the Carroll County (Md.) Rangers 6-1 Thursday. As coach Rick Berryman predicted, pitching has been the biggest reason why the Rams have done well, with the staff pitching 18 innings while allowing only one run on nine hits.

In the first game against Crystal Lake, pitcher Steve Kniebbe (Oakland University) was brilliant, tossing a three-hit shutout while the Rams picked up single runs in the first, fourth and fifth innings before piling on four more in the ninth to wrap up the victory. Kniebbe faced just four batters over the minimum (31) and fanned six while walking two and allowing three lone singles, none in the same inning.

Offensively, Garden City's Rob Hudson (Jacksonville University) led the way by going 3-for-5 with a run scored and a stolen base. Ryan Freiburger didn't get a hit, but scored three runs and walked three times. Ty Herriott drove in three runs, while Plymouth Salem's Chris Trott

Martin dinner

Madonna University will hold its inaugural Julie Martin Scholarship Award dinner, 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5, at the University Center Dining room on campus.

The dinner is in honor of 1998 MU alumnus Julie Martin, a former NAIA All-America volleyball player who died of cancer in 1998.

The event is one of the primary fundraising vehicles for the Julie Martin Endowed Scholarship for Academic and Athletic Excellence.

Its goal is to provide financial assistance for MU student-athletes both now and in the future.

The cost of the dinner is $25 per person with all proceeds to benefit the scholarship fund.

It will also kick off the fourth annual Julie Martin Women's Volleyball Tournament, Friday-Saturday, Sept. 6-7, hosted by Madonna.

Martin, a 1994 Livonia Stevenson High graduate, competed on four nationally-ranked NAIA women's volleyball teams while at MU.

For ticket information, call Rizzo at (734) 432-5604 or Dr. Richard Sax, Dean of College of Arts and Humanities, at (734) 432-5542.

Oaks U-13 champ

Outscoring their opponents, 15-0, the Canton Oaks under-13 premier league boys soccer team captured the Cherryland Invitational soccer tournament, Aug. 2-4, in Traverse City.

The Oaks are coached by Drew Crawford and Chuck Thomas.

Lots of Pride

The Plymouth-Canton Pride 12-and-under premier girls softball team concluded its USSSA season with a No. 5 ranking after going 3-3 in A Division of the 64-team USSSA World Series held July 29-Aug. 4, in Fort Collins, Colo.

The Pride also captured first in the USSSA World Series Warm Up Tournament held July 20-21 in Rochester Hills.

Need help

The Plymouth Whalers hockey team is searching for host families for its players for the 2002-03 season.

Each year, players on the team live with host families in the Plymouth area while they play and go to school.

The families will be responsible for providing a home to the players for the season, which runs from September until June.

Anyone interested in being a host family should contact Alex Roberts at (734) 453-8400.

Schoolcraft spikers eye strong year

BY BRAD EMONS

Tom Teeters didn't mince words.

His Lady Ocelots have to do a better job at the net.

"I have high expectations for all my teams," said the Schoolcraft College women's volleyball coach, who has 13 conference, nine regional and one NJCAA championship (1988) to his credit. "Our goal is to play St. Clair well, but we also need to average more blocks per game. We need about four or five per game to be successful."

Schoolcraft is coming off a 40-12 season, which included an Eastern Conference co-title (15-1) with nemesis St. Clair. The Lady Ocelots also won last year at St. Clair, the 2000 NJCAA Division II champion, and took invitational titles at Flint Mott and in St. Petersburg, Fla.

All-Region, All-State and All-Eastern Conference picks Andrea Kmet, now at Northern Michigan, and Fran Hamilton, both graduated.

Another All-Conference selection, Kellie Kern, did not return, opting to play in state pro beach volleyball events.

But don't feel sorry for Teeters, who is trying to get back to the nationals for the first time since 1995. Last year the Lady Ocelots came close in Division II regional, finishing runner-up in Division D.

So what are the chances this year?

"We have more size, so I think we have more hitting and blocking this year," he said. "If we read well, we could be formidable. It just depends on the system we use. Any one game we can go 10 players deep."

The team's top blocker, 6-foot-2 Kerstin Marshall (Livonia Franklin), returns along with the most improved player and team's best leaper, 5-11 Carly Szajnecki (Dearborn).

Young heads to Belgium for pro shot

Chris Young is used to playing basketball in his own backyard, but now the Plymouth native and Redford Catholic Central High grad is taking his game overseas.

The 6-foot-9, 252-pound starting center from the University of Michigan embarked Wednesday for Brussels to play for Antwerpen (R.B.) Racing Basket of the Belgium Professional League.

the 23-year-old Young spent the summer working out at Detroit's St. Cecilia, Michigan and Eastern Michigan, while awaiting a call from his agent, Herb Rudoy, of Interperformances (based in Milan, Italy).

"Herb came highly recommended by Tommy Amaker (Michigan's coach)," said Tom Young, Chris's father. "Herb's represented quite a few Duke players. It was the best location and the best money.

"They play only once a week so he'll have a lot of free time. They speak Flemish, French, and most speak some English. There are two Americans per team. The other is a guard from Pepperdine (Calif.) University."

MU women's soccer strong with returnees

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

All the pieces appear to be in place this season for the Madonna University women's soccer team with one exception.

On Friday, second-year Mark Zathey greeted his veteran team for practice wishing his new assistant coach, goalkeeper Jenny Barker, had another season left of eligibility.

"We're still lucky to keep her expertise around," said Zathey, referring to the four-year standout from Livonia Stevenson. "Goalkeeping is a key position. It's a big if, but if the rest of the team stays healthy . . .

"I don't want to underestimate our conference (Wolverine-Hoosier) because there's always a lot of turnover of players in the NAIA, but I feel comfortable about the strength of the team coming back."

Hurn leads way for C'ville club

Livonia Stevenson High swimmer Andrea Hurn, a member of the Clarenceville Swim Club, placed in six events while earning a pair of sectional and zone cuts at the 2002 U.S. Swimming Michigan Long Course State Championships held Aug. 1-4 at Oakland University.

As a team, Clarenceville finished 19th overall with 283 points.

Hurn, competing in the Girls Open Division, captured a third in the 100-meter freestyle with a sectional cut time of 1:01.55.

She also added a fifth in the 200 freestyle (2:13.4) and 200 breaststroke (2:51.58), a sectional cut. Hurn took sixth in the 100 breaststroke (1:19.49, a zone cut, and 200 backstroke (2:32.57. She also added a seventh in the 200 individual medley with a zone qualifying time of 2:33.07.

Young, who started 57 games in his U-M career, averaged 11.4 points and nearly six rebounds per game as senior. He scored a team-high 25 points in a December loss against Duke. He also led Michigan in blocked shots (40) while appearing in all 29 games, averaging a career-best 31.6 minutes.

Young also won Michigan's Iron Man Award and joined fellow tri-captains Leon Jones and Rotolu Adebiyi as winners of the Thad Garner Leadership Award.

Last year, Madonna shared the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference regular season crown with Siena Heights, but won the WHAC playoffs and eventually reached the NAIA Region 8 championship final, only to lose to Indiana Wesleyan in a shootout following a scoreless draw.

The loss prevented Madonna from its ultimate goal, playing in the NAIA Championships held at Lindenwood (Mo.) University. (The Lady Crusaders qualified for the nationals in 2000 after going 19-3-2.)

Lost to graduation are Barker and two other key contributors, defender Paula Shureb (Livonia Stevenson) and midfielder Jamie Scott (Livonia Churchill).

Expected to vie for the goalkeeping position is Kristin Datte (Jackson County Western), who opted not to go to Western Michigan University, and Sarah Hartsell (Churchill), who played football (yes, football) last year for the Chargers. But the Lady Crusaders may have enough firepower on the field to offset their inexperience in goal.

"We have 15 to 16 starters," Zathey said. "But it boils down to the players knowing their roles and what to expect in their new roles. Our goal is to get there (the nationals). And it can happen if this team comes together, stays healthy and trains hard."

To prepare for a late season run, Zathey has loaded up his schedule before WHAC action begins.

"We play five of the top 25 teams early," he said. "Early on we'll experiment with different systems and formations."

Two first-team All-Region players return for MU in left-defender Christen Shull, a junior from Plymouth Salem, and center-fullback Kelly Delaney, a senior from Madison Heights Bishop Foley.

Second-team All-Region choice Emily Jackson, a junior midfielder from Farmington Hills Harrison, also returns. She was the team's co-leading scorer last year.

"Delaney is our top all-around player, she led our team in scoring in 2000 (13 goals and 19 assists)," Zathey said. "She sees the game and is a good leader. Shull is our most fit. She ran a 12:31 in the two-mile. At left-halfback she's a big threat. And Jackson is a an artist, she creates our attack in the midfield and has loads of skill."

Another player to watch this season is defender Michelle Vettraino, a senior defender from Stevenson.

"She's real solid, very tough," Zathey said. "She's aggressive and gives us a fast attack who can release out of the back."

The team's other top two scorers also return in sophomore forward Sarah Pack (Westland John Glenn), who had 10 goals and four assists, and junior center-midfielder Becky Guibord (Dearborn), who racked up eight goals and two assists. Other returnees include senior midfielder Emily Neiiendam (Plymouth Canton), senior forward Megan Thiry (Pontiac Notre Dame Prep), junior midfielder Susannah Bryant (Southfield Christian), senior outside-midfielder Nicole Allevato (Dearborn) and sophomore forward Danielle Strickland (Harrison).

Also returning off the 2000 squad after delivering twin daughters is center-midfielder Tanya Bruce.

"She's making a comeback and we're glad to have her," Zathey said. "Tanya has a great approach to the game and a great demeanor. She'll help at center-mid with Jackson."

Zathey also brought in five other field players in addition to keepers Datte and Hartsell. Among the new recruits are midfielder Lacey Catarino, a transfer off the Henry Ford Community College volleyball team; defender Kara Wisniewski, Livonia Franklin; Laura Hicks, Bishop Foley; Angie Antonnicola and Diane Foley, both from Riverview Gabriel Richard.

"Catarino had a rotator cuff injury which prevented her from playing volleyball for Henry Ford," Zathey said. "It's something we have to be concerned about, too, but she should have an immediate impact.

"Hicks is a utility player with a good soccer I.Q. Both Antonnicola and Foley will most likely be red-shirted."

MU opens its season Friday, Aug. 30 in Fort Wayne, Ind. against College of St. Francis. The following day the Lady Crusaders take on host Indiana Wesleyan in a rematch of last year's Region 8 final.The home opener is Tuesday, Sept. 17 against Rochester College. Home games will be played at Greenmead Field, located at Eight Mile and Newburgh roads, in Livonia.

(Albion College) delivered a run-scoring triple.

Charlie Anderson added two hits and two RBI.

Complementing Knibbe's fine pitching performance was the defense of Central Michigan University catcher Brian Campbell (Livonia Stevenson), who picked off two of the five runners to reach base. Thursday's game was closer only on the final scoreboard, as the Rams used more of the same to win its second straight game, this one played at Wright State University.

Wayne State's Gary Zielke (Livonia Stevenson) was the winning pitcher, going 7.2 innings with six strikeouts, five hits and one run in an outstanding effort. Madonna University's Mike Hayes (Redford Union) came in and pitched well in relief for the Rams. The Rams made hay in the middle innings against the Maryland squad, scoring once in the third, three times in the fourth and twice in the fifth innings. Hudson and Trott were once again offensive catalysts, combining for six hits and 4 RBI. Trott stole a pair of bases and Hudson scored twice. Campbell went 2-for-3 with an RBI and two runs scored. Herriott added a run-scoring double, and Anderson went 2-for-5 with a run scored.

Timson, a member of the Ann Arbor Swim Club, also achieved a YMCA National qualifying time in the 50 breaststroke and the was youngster swimmer in the state to qualify and swim in the Open Division 200 breaststroke, earning a to 16 finish against 30 other girls ages 15-18.

She also earned a top 15 finish in three other individual races, achieving personal-best times in five events at the meet.

SPIKERS

They will officially open their season Friday-Saturday, Aug. 30-31, in the six-team St. Clair Tournament.

The Ocelots' top defensive player from a year ago, Meghan Mitchell (Dearborn Divine Child), is back along with the Comeback Player of the Year Noelle Swartz (Westland John Glenn).

The 6-foot Swartz could give Schoolcraft a huge lift as a left-side hitter, while the 5-7 Mitchell has elated her game from a year ago.

"Noelle played beach (volleyball) all summer and has really improved her defense," Teeters said. "And Meghan not only improved defensively, but also in the passing department and serve receive."

Others returning players include top setter Ioana Vescan (Romania), defensive specialist Desiree Betts (Livonia Ladywood) and middle hitter Katie Drews (Livonia Stevenson), the latter whom stands 6 feet tall.

With such versatility, Teeters may tinker around with either a 6-2 or 5-1 attack.

Vescan is the most experienced setter, but should she should get ample support from the 5-3 Betts and 5-1 recruit Kimm Sheridan (Riverview Gabriel Richard).

Other newcomers include Sheila Gillies, a talented 6-foot middle and outside hitter from Livonia Churchill; 5-9 left-side hitter Stephanie Koslowski from Walled Lake Central; 5-9 left-side hitter Holly Soldenski from Warren Woods Tower; 5-5 defensive specialist Emily Sorensen from Rochester High; and 6-1 right- and middle-hitter Katrina Napier of Belleville.

"Gillies is one of our more versatile front row players," Teeters said. "It depends how we use her and Noelle for matchup purposes."

Often practicing twice per day, the Lady Ocelots will finally see a live opponent when they travel Saturday, Aug. 17 to face Owens Tech in Toledo for their first preseason scrimmage.

They will officially open their season Friday-Saturday, Aug. 30-31, in the six-team St. Clair Tournament.

"I believe we have the size and the work ethic," said Teeters who is 637-232 in 20 seasons at Schoolcraft. "I think we have a combination of athleticism and experience, and the ability."

Now only if the blocking comes around.

LCBL champion Bulls wind up 2-2 in AAABA at Johnstown

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Bulls split their four games at the recent All-American Amateur Baseball Association World Series in Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

The Bulls opened with two victories 7-1 and 5-4, and dropped the final two, 11-1 and 8-5. The Bulls finish their 2002 campaign with a 30-9 record.

In the opening game, the Bulls, the first-place team in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, capitalized on their chances in defeating the team from Buffalo, N.Y. 7-1. Jarrod Resendez went 2-for-4 with 2 RBI to spark the Bulls' offense.

Will Tollison (Oakland University) also went 2-for-4, drove in a run and scored a run. Kyle Boehm (Oakland University) was the winning pitcher, going five innings with six strikeouts, issuing no walks and allowing four hits and one run in an effective performance.

The Bulls used late runs in the second game to edge Chicago Metro 5-4 at the Roxbury Park in Johnstown.

In a game that saw the teams combine for seven errors, the Bulls rallied from a 4-3 deficit to pull out the 5-4 win. They scored once in the eighth and the ninth innings to advance.

Dan Baker (Hillsdale) singled home the winning run that scored Bret Gove (Clarkston, Albion) to make the difference in the game. Mark Abro (Troy Athens) drove in two runs and went 1-for-4 at the plate. Gove went 2-for-3 with an RBI in the win.

Dominic Carmosino was the winning pitcher for the Bulls, pitching 6 1/3 tough innings, striking out seven batters. Doug Brooks and Ross Winiemko were solid in relief.

The third game, played at Point Stadium in front of a crowd that would make the Florida Marlins envious (5,500 fans), the Bulls ran into a buzzsaw known as the Johnstown Grays, dropping an 11-1 decision.

Johnstown jumped all over pitcher Heath Craven for seven runs in the third inning, and the game wasn't in doubt from there.

Sean Gallagher went 3-for-3 for the Bulls, the only player to collect more than one hit. Derek Feldkamp (Blissfield) pitched 3 1/3 strong innings, allowing a run and three hits to a strong Grays team. Feldkamp and Winiemko joined the Bulls after playing in the LCBL for DCI.

In the final game, the Bulls played well, after the third inning. Unfortunately for them, New Orleans scored two, three and three runs in the first three innings to emerge with an 8-5 win.

Winiemko came into the game in the third inning, and after getting rocked his first inning, settled down to toss six scoreless frames, striking out seven batters.

Jim Geldhof (Troy, Central Michigan), another pickup player from DCI, went 3-for-4 with two runs scored. Tollison added two hits, and Abro drove in a run.

Cunningham runs away with GAM trophy

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Leave it up to Darren McCarty to spread a little Stanley Cup magic.

The Detroit Red Wing forward golfed with Russ Cunningham of Dewitt on Aug. 2 at the Oakhurst Golf & Country Club in Clarkston. Cunningham wanted to play a practice round to prepare him for the Golf Association of Michigan championship at Oakhurst, and McCarty obliged.

Playing with a member of the Stanley Cup champions paid dividends for Cunningham, because he walked off with a cup of his own on Wednesday – the trophy of the GAM championship.

Cunningham shot an 8-under-par 280 over four rounds of the three-day tournament. Cunningham shot consistently in three of the four rounds with scores of 68-77-68-67. Cunningham's total was six strokes ahead of three second-place finishers. Colby Beckstrom of Muskegon won a playoff for second place with Andrew Ruthkoski, also of Muskegon, and Rob Tighe of Traverse City.

Cunningham met McCarty for the first time that Friday as part of a foursome with Oakhurst members Ken Hudson and Dr. Rob Roehrig.

"It was really a lot of fun and it gave me a lot of confidence," Cunningham said. Cunningham shot 65 that day.

Roehrig, a member of Oakhurst Golf & Country Club in Clarkston and a dentist in Rochester Hills, caddied for Cunningham.

Roehrig was impressed with Cunningham's game. "I just confirmed all the things he wanted to do," Roehrig said of his caddying duties. "He can read this place (Oakhurst) better than I can. He played absolutely perfectly, except for maybe one shot."

Cunningham climbed back into the hunt after Johnny Strawser of Flushing fell from first place on Monday into fourth place on Tuesday after he shot an 82 in the third round. Beckstrom had a 1-stroke lead going into Wednesday's action over Ruthkoski and Cunningham. Cunningham managed to catch and then build a 3-stroke lead going into the 15th hole.

Cunningham hit a drive that ended about 40 feet from the hole. He putted it from six feet out for birdie. "I hit that drive and it really helped me out," Cunningham said.

Cunningham said he made mental mistakes on the first day of the tournament when he shot 77 in the second round.

Local pros take shot at Buick glory

BY MARTY BUDNER
AND JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITERS

So what if they don't hit it as far as Tiger Woods?

So what if they don't have the following of Tiger Woods?

So what if they don't have the bank account of Tiger Woods?

So what?

Bob Ackerman, Tom Gillis, Kevin Muir and Jeff Roth all can match the love and passion, drive and determination on the golf course as that of the great one himself.

The Eccentric-area foursome found themselves in the midst of the Tiger-mania that highlighted a week-long of excitement at the 2002 Buick Open held at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club in Grand Blanc.

Though not as successful as Woods on the leaderboard, Ackerman, Gillis, Muir and Roth each hope the recent experience serves as a springboard for their future dreams.

TOM GILLIS

The return to friendly turf may be just the remedy Tom Gillis is looking for.

The Lake Orion native made what he called a "real risky decision" recently when he elected to forego a sense of security playing on the European Tour and opt for the trials and tribulations of competing on the PGA Tour.

"It was a big decision," informed Gillis, who appeared comfortable over the first two days on the 7,127-yard, par-72 track at Warwick Hills by shooting rounds of 71 and 69. "I made a really risky decision by leaving Europe because I had status over there.

"It made me a lot better player, but I wasn't totally happy," continued Gillis, who began his European play in 1997 and estimated that he had teed up the little white dimpled golf ball in some 25 countries each year. "I had been teetering a couple years because it's been a tough place to play. The travel and not having any real interaction with family and friends were tough. I just finally woke up one day and said 'I'm not having any fun and I'm not enjoying this.'"

Gillis' return has already produced some shining moments as solid play in the first two rounds of June's U.S. Open Golf Championships on the treacherous Black Course at Bethpage State Park allowed the 33-year-old to make the cut.

"I made the cut at Bethpage, played all four days, and got some demons off my back knowing I'd done it," Gillis said. "It was a good experience. I'd love to play in another."

At the Buick, steady play from tee to green on Thursday led to a 1-under 71 and more of the same Friday resulted in a 69 and two-day total of 140. In two previous appearances ('93, '95) in the Buick, Gillis missed the cut each time.

"The game is pretty good right now," said Gillis, who was looking forward to weekend play. "I'm trying to get my health back (Gillis said he's still recovering from a bout with mononucleosis) and a good solid week here will do great things for my confidence."

JEFF ROTH

Jeff Roth planned on a long golfing weekend. It didn't happen.

The Knollwood Country Club head professional teed off in his seventh Buick Open golf tournament Thursday afternoon. After missing the cut his first three times out, he's managed to stick around for two more rounds in each of his next three appearances.

This year was a different story.

Roth, 44, finished with a 1-over total 145 (72-73) on the par 72, 1,127-yard Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club course. Unfortunately for Roth, only scores in the red (2-under, 140) made the final cut. That left Roth a rather disappointed golfer, according to his pre-tournament goals.

"I expect to play well. I've kind of gotten past that point of 'just being happy to be here,'" said Roth two hours before his 1:30 p.m. tee-off time on Thursday.

"Realistically, I would expect to make the cut," he said. "I think a good tournament for me would be a top-25 and an awesome tournament would be a top-10."

Roth tied for 56th place in 1998 with a 285 to win $3,960. In 1999 and 2000, he finished with identical scores of 280 and placed 33rd each time to earn a combined total of $25,267.

Roth knew he'd have to finish with low numbers to make any type of impact this year.

"To get to that top 10 you'd have to shoot maybe 15 or 16 under par, and that's a pretty good number" said Roth, a 1979 University of Arizona graduate.

"The key for me to have any kind of success is to drive the ball in the fairway and have a good week putting," he said. "If you drive the ball in the fairway you're going to have a lot of birdie opportunities. If you don't drive the ball well, you're going to be looking for the birdies and the pars."

Roth, a former pro at the Birmingham Country Club and for 12 years at nearby Flint Country Club, qualified for the Buick Open by winning the Michigan PGA last year at Shanty Creek. It's a championship he eagerly anticipates.

"You always enjoy playing against the best players in the world," he said. "For one week anyways, I can play with anybody. There's too much talent out here to think that week-in and week-out I could beat these guys. If I was playing fulltime my game would elevate itself."

BOB ACKERMAN

For a man doing a lot of teaching, Bob Ackerman was busy doing a lot of learning the first two days of the Buick Open.

Learning to cope with the many distractions associated with the PGA TOUR.

"Coming into this tournament, it's a different environment than what I'm used to, and I was aware of that," said the West Bloomfield resident, who earned a berth in the 156-player field by carding a spectacular 66 at The Fortress in Frankenmuth during a Michigan PGA Section Qualifier. "You just have to adjust.

"You have to try and get in a concentrated frame of mind and pay attention to just playing golf instead of getting caught up in the thrill and excitement of being around all these great players and nice people that bend over backwards to make it good for you."

Ackerman's adjustment, unfortunately, didn't include the scores he was looking for as too many bogeys and not enough birdies resulted in an opening-round 76 on Thursday. That was followed up by a 78 on Friday.

Despite the disappointment in not qualifying for weekend play, Ackerman was still thrilled to being playing "with the best players in the world.

"It's seeing if you can get your game in shape to compete with them," he said. "I enjoy the challenge to see if I can get ready for that."

Ackerman involves quite a bit of preparation in his day-to-day activities as he spends the better part of each one instructing students on how to improve their games.

Ackerman pulls double duty by teaching in an indoor facility in Commerce Township and also outdoors at the Links at Pinewood.

KEVIN MUIR

The birdies were flying at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club in the first two rounds of the Buick Open in Grand Blanc. Unfortunately for Kevin Muir, he found more bogeys than birdies.

The Director of Golf at The Wyndgate in Rochester Hills had a rough two rounds Thursday and Friday. Muir finished with a 9-over par 153 (76-77) and missed the cut of 142. His two-day total included four birdies, nine bogeys and two double bogeys.

It was a score that would never hold up in a tournament where the winner is normally somewhere around 15-under par. "I just didn't get the birdies and that's what you need on that course," said Muir, a Birmingham resident who attended Eastern Michigan University and Dearborn Divine Child High School.

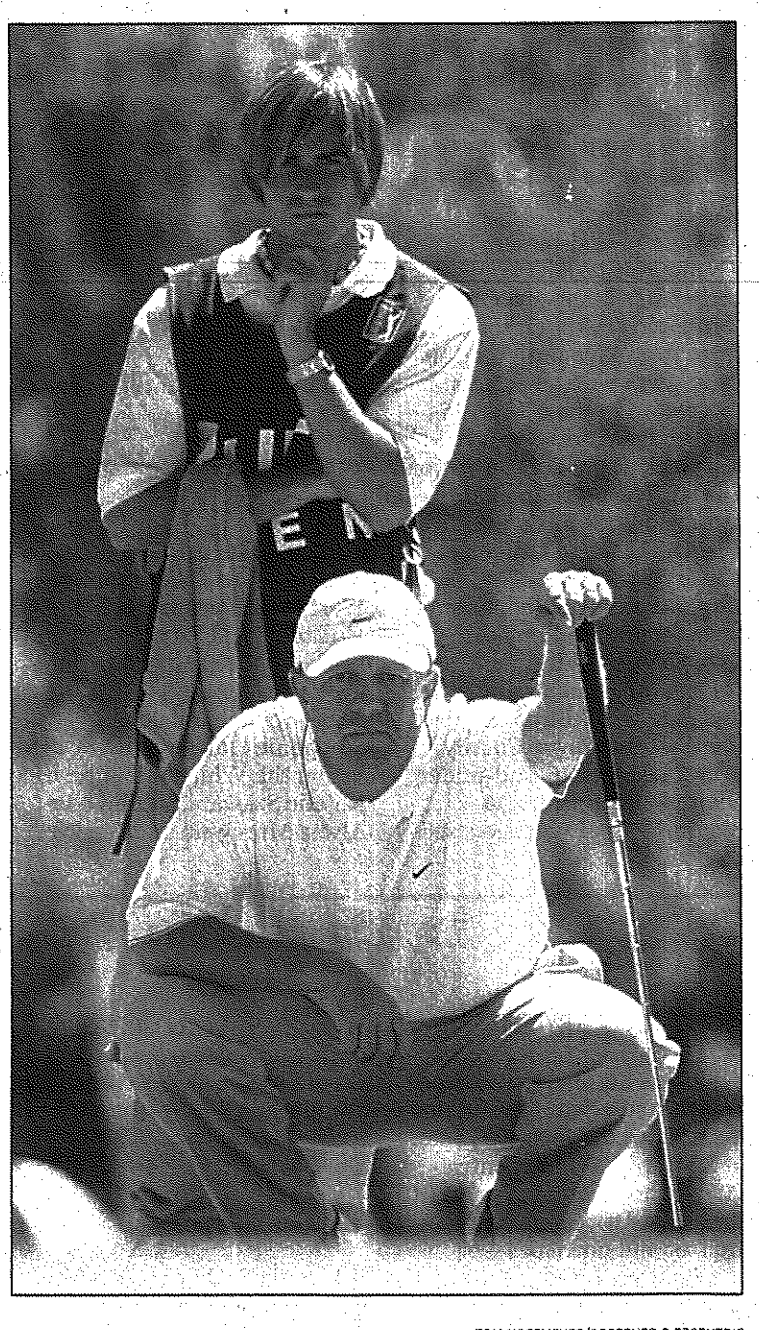
"Normally I'm a very good driver and I struggled with that," he said. "If that's happening it affects other parts of your game. And, coming from my level as a club pro, there were a lot of tough pin placements. I just didn't have it."

It marked Muir's second Buick Open tournament. He previously played in 1992 when he also missed the cut.

He was greeted warmly by family, friends and club members when his name was announced as he teed off for the first time 1:40 p.m. Thursday.

"Obviously, playing this tournament is a learning experience," he said. "I felt I could have done better. But it was very nerve-wracking. Why? I don't know.

"Knowing the field was as strong as it was is probably one reason. Last time they probably had half the amount of people out there," he said.



TOM HOFFMEYER/OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC

Jeff Roth, in his second year as Knollwood Country Club's head professional, has a pair of helping eyes in studying this putt on hole No. 6 Friday at the Buick Open in Grand Blanc. The Plymouth Salem graduate and former state prep champion, who had made the cut in his three previous Open appearances, missed out this time with rounds of 72 and 73.

Thunderbirds team enjoys successful softball season

These 16-and-under Thunderbirds don't know of the term of being obsolete.

The girls fastpitch softball team from Plymouth Canton came away with a respectable 4-3 record in the USSSA 16-and-under World Series held last week at the Canton Softball Center. The tournament attracted 90 teams from all over the U.S. and Canada at Victory Park. The Thunderbirds met opponents from Colorado, Illinois, Louisiana and Virginia.

During the months of June and July, the T-Birds captured the Western Wayne County Travel League's 16-and-under championship with a 14-1 record. They also added a second place finish in the Michigan Heat World Series Warm Up Tournament held in Holland. Kelli Szczepanski and Michelle Jurcak split the pitching duties for the T-Birds backed by the infield of Stephanie Harrier and Samantha White at first base; Natalie Szawara, second base; Alycia Murawski and Jessica Bonello, shortstop; and Amanda Bradley, third base.

The tournament attracted 90 teams from all over the U.S. and Canada at Victory Park.

Meanwhile, Sarah Amann and Murawski handled the catching duties. The outfield consisted of Susan Woodard, Michelle Manery, Allie Sturk, Tina Sniegowski and Kelly Elbers. Also taking a turn in the outfield was Bonello, Szawara, Szczepanski, Jurcak and Amann.

"Besides being very successful, this talented group of players and coaches had a tremendous amount of fun," said manager Dan Amann, who was assisted by Frank Szczepanski and Fran Jurcak. "Combined with the great support from families and friends, it all adds up to a magnificent summer."

The Thunderbirds of Plymouth Canton High School finished 4-3 recently in the 16-and-under USSSA World Series after going 14-1 in league play.

Local doctors save boy from partial foot amputation

BY PAM FLEMING
CORRESPONDENT

An 8-year-old boy from Pune, India, who was scheduled to have a foot partially amputated, is now running, jumping and enjoying a normal life back in his native country thanks to the efforts of several local physicians. Area doctors recently donated their time and medical services to help this young boy suffering from a serious bone infection.

Dr. Mohammed Arsiwala, of Michigan Urgent & Primary Care Physicians in Livonia, learned about the case of Huzefa Kapuswala during a visit back home to India. The boy has spina bifida, a congenital defect in which the spinal cord is not fully closed. Children with spina bifida often develop clubfeet, as was the case with Huzefa.

The boy had surgery within his first day or two of life to close the hole in his spinal cord, but his clubfeet were not corrected. His case became complicated when he developed a severe bone infection in one of his feet.

After meeting and examining Huzefa in India in August 2001, Arsiwala learned the following December that doctors in India were prepared to perform a partial amputation of Huzefa's foot to prevent the spread of infection. Arsiwala then contacted Dr. Jeffrey Szczepanski, a doctor of podiatric medicine who works two floors above him at the Providence Professional Building at Seven Mile and Newburgh. Szczepanski and his partner, Dr. Neal Mozen, of Foot Healthcare Associates of Southfield and Livonia, agreed to take on the boy's case free of charge.

AMPUTATION STOPPED

Arsiwala was able to contact Huzefa's mother and have her stop the amputation the day before the surgery was scheduled. The boy's family then made plans to come to the United States to meet Szczepanski.

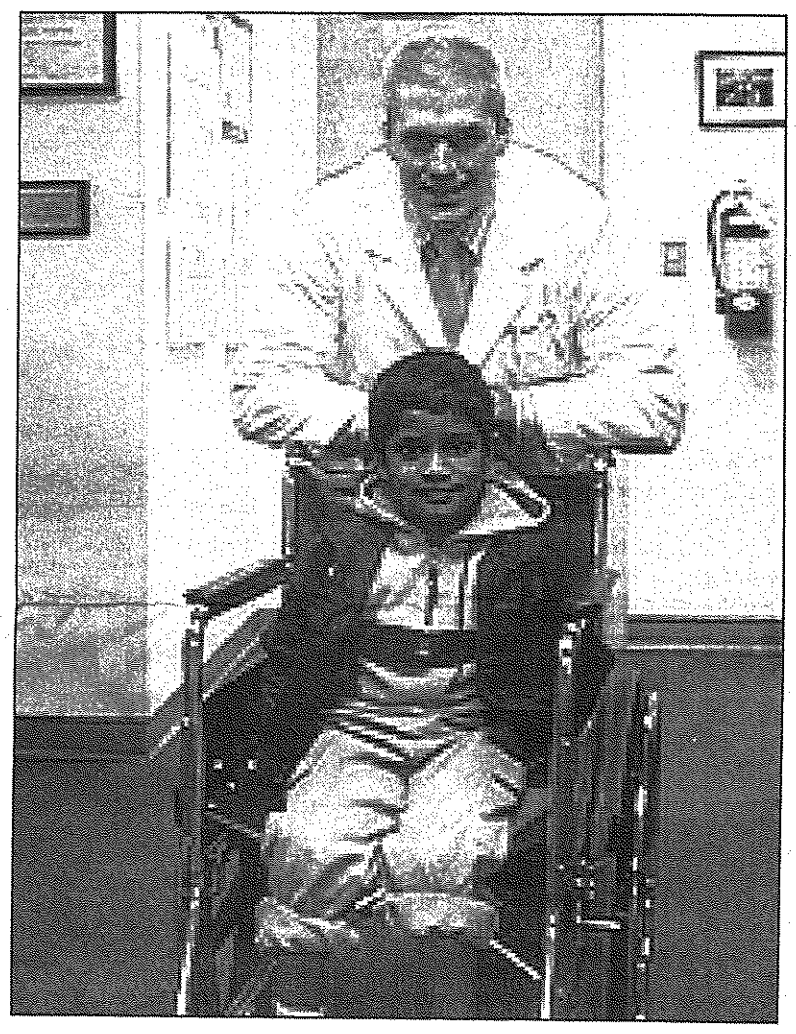
Huzefa and his mother stayed with his aunt Alefia Hakim of Canton and his uncle Akil Kapuswala of Westland during his medical treatment. Hakim said that her nephew was able to attend Batchin Elementary School in Westland after the six weeks he was on IV antibiotics before the surgery.

"He made many friends while he was here," she said.

Kapuswala's uncle, Akil, said, "The school was just amazing. They went out of their way to help him. They had to help him get to the bathroom and they had a special wheelchair lift on the schoolbus. These little things were very much appreciated."

Akil said that his nephew wanted to go through with the surgery.

"He came here with a brave attitude. The doctors became his buddies, and he wasn't intimidated by the surgery at all. He was in a lot of pain afterwards, however, and it took some time for him to be able to put weight on his right foot again," Akilsaid.



Dr. Jeffrey Szczepanski gets ready to say goodbye to Huzefa Kapuswala.

CLUBFOOT COMMON

Szczepanski said, "Clubfoot happens quite often in children in America, but we treat it quite aggressively from the time they're born. We try to straighten the foot out as early as possible, so you don't develop this type of problem."

He noted that treatment of clubfoot in children with spina bifida is much more difficult.

Getting Huzefa and his mother to the United States took time. After a letter writing campaign helped to acquire the necessary visa, they arrived on Feb.

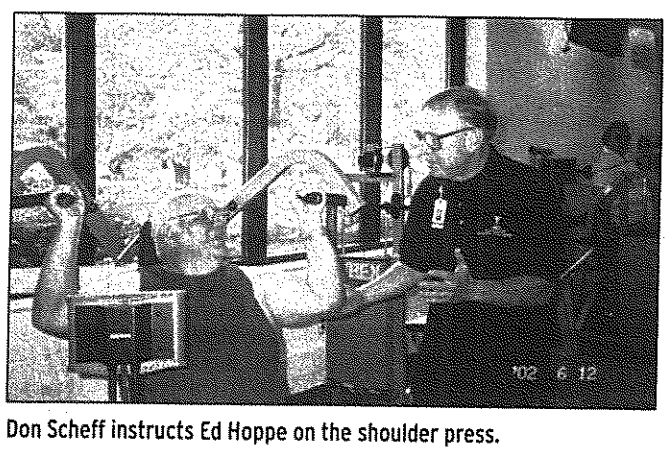
Senior athlete helps aging adults get moving at the Y

BY JENN KENNEDY
CORRESPONDENT

Group fitness instructor. Personal trainer. Cyclist. Active older adult. Master gardener. Livonia Family YMCA Volunteer of the Year. These are some of the titles Don Scheff of Northville Township holds at age 68.

A hockey player in his 30s, Scheff used to just cycle for exercise and coach his sons. However, he began exercising on a regular basis in 1999 at the Livonia Family YMCA through the HAP SilverSneakers* Plan.

That is when Don Scheff was introduced to the world of weight training, group exercise and personal training programs. Although HAP no longer offers this plan to seniors, the YMCA has continued these classes as part of its Active Older Adult Program (AOA). Scheff not only continues to exercise, he has become a certified group fitness instructor and now teaches classes in the program.



Don Scheff instructs Ed Hoppe on the shoulder press.

Accompanied by his wife of 36 years, Phyllis, Scheff came to the Livonia Family YMCA and to his first group fitness class with hesitation.

"I was reluctant and had the same degree of enthusiasm as a Viking would have taking a ballet class," he said. "But my wife encouraged me, so I agreed to attend one class."

That one class led to another, and what was once reluctance has become a lifestyle.

"I started attending the indoor studio cycling class and weight training in the Wellness Center once I became more familiar with exercise," he said. "I work out six days a week now, with a combination of weight training and cardiovascular exercise."

HEALTH BENEFITS

Over the years, Scheff has sustained his share of aging aches and pains, but exercising has helped. " I had back problems and my doctor advised me to strengthen my abdominal and back muscles, so I began attending the Pilates class. It helped significantly."

Since 30-50 percent of infirmities are associated with age and inactivity, it is

Viagra helps men with heart failure

Men with congestive heart failure and erectile dysfunction safely used sildenafil (Viagra) to improve sexual function in a study reported in the Circulation Journal of the American Heart Association.

The popular medication may even make patients more likely to take their heart failure drugs, says author Dr. Edimar Alcides Bocchi, associate professor and chief of the heart failure clinics at the Sao Paulo University Medical School in Brazil.

"Heart failure patients may become noncompliant with their congestive heart failure treatment if they feel it causes or aggravates their ED," Bocchi said. "However, our study suggests that treating the ED may make patients more motivated to take their medicines."

Sildenafil caused no harmful effects and improved exercise performance during treadmill exercise tests in 23 men with congestive heart failure (average age 50) and a history of ED, says Bocchi.

Sildenafil blocks the activity of enzyme phosphodiesterase type 5, which is active in multiple tissues and cells.

The effects of PFE5 inhibition include increased production of nitric oxide, which is associated with improved function of the heart and blood vessels.

The cardiovascular effects of sildenafil have created some concern that the drug might be harmful in men with congestive heart failure.

But there's not enough data on the safety or potential harm of sildenafil in those patients.

Most of the men had moderate or severe heart failure and each had been referred for treatment of ED.

On separate days, the men underwent two exercise treadmill tests, which consisted of six-minute walk and a maximum exercise test.

About an hour before the first test, the men received either 50 milligrams of sildenafil of a placebo. On the second day, the men received the opposite treatments before the exercise.

Those treated with the sildenafil had significantly lower blood pressure and heart rate and improvement in measures of oxygen consumption and carbon dioxide production compared with those on placebo.

Total exercise time also increased. A separate evaluation showed that treatment with sildenafil was associated with higher scores on questionnaire related to erectile dysfunction.

"Frequently, CHF patients and especially their wives are afraid their spouses will have heart failure symptoms or even death during sexual activity," says Bocchi.

"Our study shows that the benefits may outweigh harmful effects of treatment with sildenafil.

The successful treatment of ED in CHF could not only improve sexual relationships but overall quality and success of CHF treatment."

New procedure may end chronic sinus troubles

Doctors at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital-Ann Arbor are using a new technology to treat patients with chronic sinus problems, a condition which has become the number one chronic illness for all age groups in the United States, according to the National Center for Disease Statistics, affecting 35 million Americans each year. The LandmarX ENT Image Guidance System provides a three-dimensional view of the sinus area. This enhanced view increases procedure efficiency and safety and eliminates cumbersome setups for the patient.

Currently, doctors can perform sinus procedures with the use of an endoscope – or tiny camera – which provides them with a two-dimensional view of the path of their instruments.

"This can be risky in patients who have had previous sinus surgery or have congenital abnormalities because the endoscope does not provide us with a three-dimensional picture of the affected area. Image guided surgery provides the sinus surgeon an additional tool allowing him or her to operate with confidence," said Dr. Paul T. Hoff, otolaryngologist (head and neck surgeon) at St. Joseph Hospital.

With the new technology, patients report to the hospital's radiology department for a CT scan. The image is then downloaded onto a disc, which is inserted into the LandmarX System. The system displays three views of the patient's head on a screen while also providing a view from the tip of the surgical instrument that is also attached to the LandmarX System. As the surgeon navigates the instruments through the sinus cavity, the system shows the surgeon the exact location of the instrument in relation to the surrounding tissues in three dimensions.

As a result, procedures take less time to complete and safety is improved because the surgeon can see what to remove and what to leave alone.

College students expand their minds and waistlines

College students with visions of expanding their mind and horizons, often fail to realize that their new surrounding can also lead to the expansion of their waistlines.

College freshmen are warned about the legendary "Freshman 15," the 15 pounds students are said to gain in their first year at college.

This legend is partially correct. According to a Tufts University study, the average male student gains approximately six pounds, while female students gain between four and five pounds their freshman year.

The first year of college is usually the time when student first make their own meal decisions by selecting food in the cafeteria or buying their own groceries and preparing their meals.

Parents are no longer present to see that their child eats a healthy diet.

Students need to adjust to limited time and availability of "home cooked" meals.

TIPS FOR ON-CAMPUS

1. Eat three meals a day. Always eat breakfast in the morning whether it is a bowl of cereal or a whole-grain bagel on the way to class.

Breakfast not only gives you the energy to start your day but will help curb your hunger throughout the day.

2. Carry a bottle of water at all times. Quench your thirst without spending money on pop and other sugary fruit drinks, which contain unwanted calories.

3. Snack on-the-go. Carry pieces of fruit or vegetables with you.

4. Try not to eat and study at the same time. It's easy to overeat when you are concentrating on something else.

5. Don't forget the fruits and vegetables. Not only do they have important vitamins, minerals and phytochemicals, but they are a great source of fiber, which will help keep your hunger under control.

6. Keep cafeteria portions small. The cafeteria may offer a variety of foods that are tempting, but only take a sampling or small portion of each. It is easy to overeat in the cafeteria.

TIPS FOR OFF-CAMPUS

(Keeping in mind the previous tips)

1. Buy items in bulk. Divide the item(s) into individual portions before putting them away.

2. Brown-bag it. Save money, time and calories by packing a lunch the night before, instead of waiting in the lunch-time rush lines on campus.

3. Cook one large meal a week. On Sunday night, cook your favorite meal and divide it into individual portions for future meals. Or try sharing cooking responsibilities with others in the house or apartment. Taking turns preparing meals gives everyone a break and a chance to try new foods.

4. Freeze leftovers. Always freeze leftover food if you are not going to eat it the very next day.

5. Take advantage of the fruits and vegetables that are in season. These tend to be less expensive and better tasting. (Examples: apples and pears are fall fruits, while strawberries, cherries and apricots are spring and summer fruits.)

Or buy frozen fruits and vegetables in a bag and reseal after you've taken out what you're going to use.

6. Choose store brands instead a name brands. You will find there is little difference between the two, other than the price.

7. Always shop with a list and on a full stomach to avoid unplanned purchases.

8. Buy 100-percent fruit juice as frozen concentrate instead of by the carton. Both have the same nutritional content, but the frozen variety is usually less expensive.

9. Become coupon savvy. Clipping coupons and taking advantage of in-store bonus cards can save you big bucks.

10. Be portion conscious. Many restaurants offer substantially larger portions than dietitians recommend. Eat only half of what you are served and take the rest home for lunch the next day.

15 and began the long process of healing Huzefa's infection before Szczepanski could perform the surgery. During Huzefa's medical care in the United States, his father and 3-year-old sister stayed in India.

Husefa's medical treatment was a long process.

"First we had to identify the type of bacteria that was causing the bone infection. Then Huzefa was on IV antibiotics for six weeks to clear up the infection before we could perform the surgery.

If not, the infection would have continued to spread, and we would have had to perform an amputation anyway. The problem he was having in India was that doctors could not get his foot to heal," said Szczepanski.

After surgery at Providence Hospital in Southfield on May 10, Huzefa and his mother returned to India on June 28. The five-hour operation was videotaped so that Indian doctors could perform the surgery on his other foot in a year or so. He may, however, return to the United States to let Szczepanski and Mozen do the surgery.

RECOVERING WELL

Hakim talks to her nephew about once a week since he returned to India.

"He's doing good and continuing his physical therapy back home. He does all the normal activities like walking, running, biking and swimming," Hakim said.

Szczepanski confirms that Huzefa's recovery is going well.

"She's e-mailed me every week and given me updates on his progress," said Szczepanski. " I would recommend several months to a year before the other foot is operated on."

Szczepanski is glad that he was able to help this young Indian boy who had to travel such a long distance for medical care.

"I have four kids of my own who are 5, 3, 2 and 10 months. My heart just sinks when I think about one of them having to have a foot partially amputated. When you know that you can help somebody and make a big impact on their life, it's very rewarding," he said.

Szczepanski added that Huzefa's family is most grateful for the care provided by local physicians.

"His mother has been so appreciative," he said. " She has thanked us a thousand times."

It's also touching that after his experiences with local physicians that Huzefa now wants to be a doctor so that he, too, can help children with problems like his.

increasingly important for older adults, both men and women, to maintain healthy habits with exercise and proper nutrition. For perimenopausal and menopausal women, a combination of weight bearing exercise and cardiovascular exercise halts, and can even reverse, the effects of osteoporosis.

"Hundreds of studies show that even the frailest individuals have strengthened their muscles to keep from falling as they get older. It is never too late to start," said Scheff.

Cycling had been Scheff's primary source of cardiovascular exercise for 25 years. He rode in two Centuries (100-mile tours), his last one being the Apple Cider Century near Holland, Mich., in 1990 with his sons, Ed, 35, and Patrick, 33. Now, he is a volunteer instructor for indoor studio cycling one day per week and for group fitness for the AOA program another day. He also volunteers his time as a certified personal trainer.

Scheff trains by appointment two days per week at the Livonia Family YMCA. He also uses the YMCA's FitLinxx program both for himself and for his clients. FitLinxx is a computerized workout notebook connected to the resistance equipment in the Wellness Center that guides the user through proper range of motion, speed of lifting and proper seat settings. It also tracks a personal workout so nothing has to be written down on a workout card.

"The FitLinxx program is like having an exercise partner. It is simple to use even if you have computer anxiety. One of the oldest members who works with it is 87," said Scheff.

Scheff lost 20 pounds the first year he belonged to the YMCA and has maintained that healthy weight ever since. He and his wife have made exercise a part of their daily routine.

PERSONAL REWARDS

Not yet a grandfather, Scheff has been assisting the childcare professionals in the Livonia Family YMCA ChildWatch to get his dose of grandkids.

"I love children, and until my own grandchildren come along, I want to spend time with kids. They keep me young," he said.

"In the baby-sitting room, he is known as 'Gramps,'" said senior program director Bob Reithmiller. " He can be seen sitting right on the floor with kids hanging all over him. They love him."

Scheff recently was awarded the Livonia Family YMCA Volunteer of the Year Award at the YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit's Annual Meeting and Awards Ceremony in April.

Once a Ford Motor Co. human resource manager, Scheff retired in 1991 after 35 years of service. After retiring, he attended Michigan State University to obtain his certification as a Master Gardener and was the groundskeeper at Lawrence Tech from 1991-1993. He has put his gardening talents to work at the Livonia Family YMCA by planting flowers in front of the building.

What is Scheff's secret to a healthy lifestyle?

"Staying active," he said. " The socialization is just as much a part of my routine as the physical exercise is. Volunteering is very rewarding, too."

Scheff believes limitations are self-imposed. He suggests starting out gradually until exercising becomes a lifestyle.

When asked what advice he would give other seniors, Scheff summed it up in two words: "Get moving!"

The Livonia Family YMCA offers two types of AOA group fitness classes: "AOA on Your Seat" for those who need more support for balance and strength and "AOA on Your Feet" for those stronger or more advanced. Fitballs, bands, weights and music are all used to motivate the participants. Seniors also can learn the weight training equipment, cardiovascular machines and free weight exercises through a Wellness Center orientation from a certified personal trainer. You may request Don Scheff. For more information, call Jenn Kennedy at (734) 261-2161, ext. 3303.

OSTEOPOROSIS OR OSTEOARTHRITIS

The terms 'osteoporosis' and osteoarthritis' are confusing. Both words contain the same beginning letters 'osteo.' That phrase stands for bone, beyond that the words have far different meanings.

Osteoporosis means that the bone being described is porous, and is weak bone. Technically, the term describes bone that has insufficient calcium lining the network of protein that is the scaffolding for bone. A related term is osteopenia, which means bone that has less then the best amount calcium in it. At times, your doctor can make a guess if your bones are osteopenic or osteoporotic by looking at an x-ray that includes bone such as in the leg, arm or back. These interpretations are often faulty because of the x-ray voltage used or the angle of the x-ray beam.

The best way to determine if your bones are lacking calcium is by a measure of bone density. This test is designed to concentrate only on the bone itself, and compare the findings with standards agreed upon by the medical community.

Osteoarthritis refers to changes in a joint such as the wrist, shoulder, knee and ankle. When your doctor uses this term he is talking about a joint that is wearing out as a result of loss of cartilage. The change is comparable to a tire losing tread. Osteoarthritis is most simply diagnosed by x-ray. For the knee and ankle, weight-bearing films are excellent ways of bringing out the presence of osteoarthritis.

Osteoarthritic joints can also be osteopenic or osteoporotic, a combination that is common for the hip. Therefore, you need to listen carefully when your doctor discusses your arthritic joint.

Value, schools, nearby golf course draw condo buyers

Long driveway aprons outside complement interior designs of attached condominiums at Golfside.

Affordability of the attached condominium component at Golfside Village of Westland is important to builder Steuer & Canvasser.

Prices start at $159,900 for a ranch of 1,100 square feet with two bedrooms and two baths.

Base price for the most expensive of the five plans, an 1,800-square-foot two-story with three bedrooms and 2½ baths, is $189,900.

Sixty-three condos, clustered five to a building for the most part, are going up at the southwest corner of Henry Ruff and Palmer next to the county-owned Inkster Valley Golf Course.

"You can't buy a new home or condo in this area at this price," said David Steuer, partner. "Not with Wayne-Westland schools, having a master suite on the first floor and a golf course next door. There's a lot of value in this."

Visitors to the model, a two story with an upstairs bedroom, loft and full bath, are impressed with many features, said Jeanne Harker, sales rep.

"It's a wonderful product," she said. "It's a very open floor plan. It feels like you're walking into your own house, not an old-style condo. They love the full basement, two-car garage. Upstairs units have a loft area. They love that.

"They love the county golf course adjacent," Harker said.

The long driveways from the street to individual garages present a residential feel and will especially come in handy for parking during gatherings, Steuer said.

Then, there's the location, a short hop from the airport, stores and restaurants, plus freeway access for more distant destinations.

"Westland has a good reputation," Steuer said. "They have a tremendous parks and recreation program."

But then it comes back to the homes, themselves.

"We do a great job with sound-proofing," he said. "We use Merillat cabinets and think that's important.

"When you look around, you see a flair in these homes," Steuer said. "I think a lot of people want to stay in the area but want a new home with big windows, high ceilings.

"There's a lot of value in this overall. The whole idea is to get the base price at the lowest possible point so more people can participate," he said.

All the attached condos at Golfside Village will include at base price landscaping, two-car garage, basement, first-floor laundry, range and dishwasher, and carpeting.

The model, the Barclay, is a two story of 1,600 square feet.

The main level features a kitchen with pass-through wall and sink oriented to the dining area, plus a great room with sloped ceiling. The master with cathedral ceiling includes a walk-in closet and combination tub/shower.

A loft with a bridge overlooking the great room is upstairs, as is a bedroom and full bath.

Base price is $179,900.

Other spec homes are available. The Ashbury, a ranch, has unusual volume ceiling treatments. The Dorchester, also a ranch, situates the two bedrooms on opposite sides of the unit.

Brick, vinyl siding and dimensional shingles are primary exterior materials on all the buildings.

The attached condos at Golfside Village of Westland will be serviced by city water and sewers. Water is included in the monthly association fee initially set at $105. Pets are allowed.

The property tax rate is now $36.01 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of $165,000 home there would pay about $3,000 the first year.

Thirty single-family,detached condos are planned for the western portion of the community.

The Steuer & Canvasser sales office/model at Golfside Village of Westland, (734) 641-0500, is open noon to 5 p.m. daily, closed Thursday. The Web site is award-winnerhomes.com

Vaulted ceilings, convenient spaces give ranch an open appearance

The Williamsburg 2 (406-49) is ideal for a first-time buyer, or couple seeking convenient spaces for retirement.

The 1,528-square-foot ranch has an open floor plan that could easily be made wheelchair accessible by changing the front steps to a ramp and enlarging doors.

The Williamsburg 2 is moderately sized.

Its entrance is vaulted with a coat closet on the left. A vaulted great room is in the center of the home with a vaulted dining room on the right side to the rear.

The kitchen, with large amounts of counter space, is in the front corner of the great room. It has a dishwasher and a window over the sink for extra light.

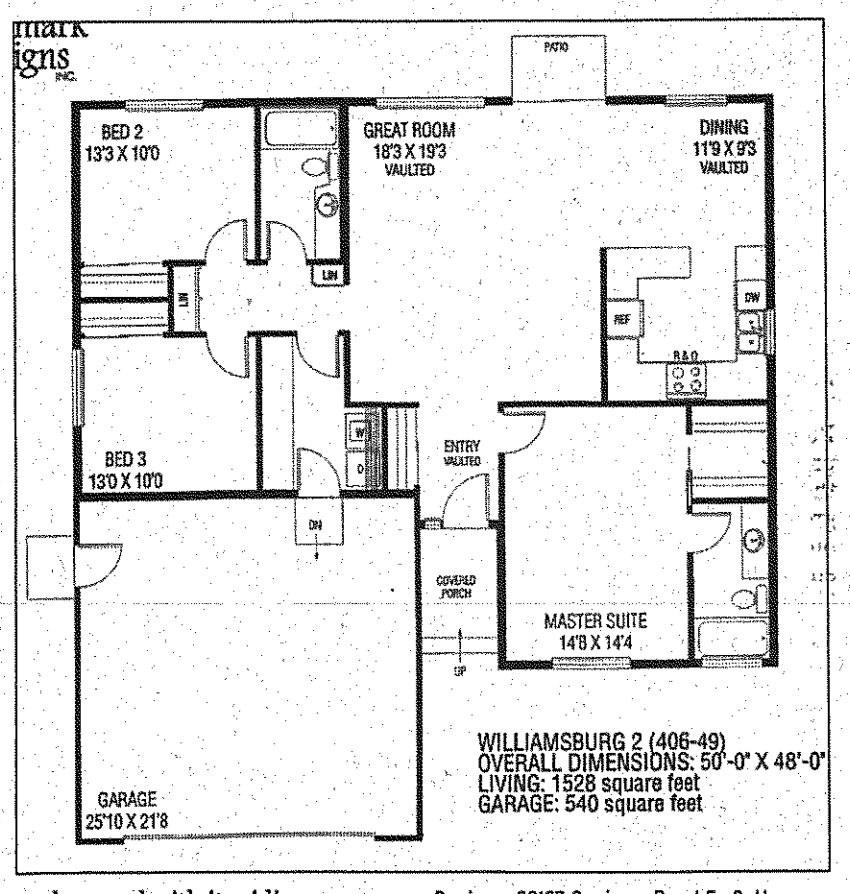
The master suite is off the entry adjacent to the kitchen. There's one large window in the main suite and one over the tub. The walk-in closet is conveniently situated behind sliding doors.

Two other bedrooms, each with a large window and wall closet, are on the left side of the home.

A larger linen closet is in the hallway between the secondary bedrooms and close to the utility room.

The utility is long with the washer and dryer tucked back in an alcove and a counter for sorting and folding clothes. A door to the two-car garage is at the end of the utility room.

Overall, the Williamsburg 2 has curb appeal with its siding enhanced by brick around the base, shutters on the windows, a half moon vent over the garage door and varied roof lines.



For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, sections and an artist rendering, send $19.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name (Williamsburg 2) and the number (406-49.)

Summit reaches consensus on use of housewrap

To wrap or not to wrap, that is the question

There's been a meeting of the minds, so to speak – a summit of a grand scale – to settle the issue of housewrap.

Now, the housewrap dilemma isn't a problem of monumental scale, granted. It may not even be on the radar screen for most people.

But for years, we at Detroit Edison recommended against using housewrap, or the insulating material installed under the vinyl or aluminum siding of your home.

There was a simple reason for our disdain. For housewrap to be effective, it has to be installed properly and we found that it wasn't in 95 percent of the jobs.

The main culprits were improper taping and the nails used to affix the siding to the house. The nails penetrated the housewrap, which made it ineffective as an air barrier. But it is an effective water barrier to keep a house's frame from rotting.

Of course, while we recommended against it, others said it was a must for energy-efficient home construction.

There was only one way to settle the matter – to bring the different points of view together and discuss it.

And after just two hours, Detroit Edison, Dow Chemical, Hansen Marketing Services, Michigan Energy Services and Home Building Workshop, reached a conclusion.

Larry Kaufman

If you install blown cellulose or foam insulation as an insulator, you don't need housewrap. But if you use Fiberglass insulation, you do.

Housewrap must be sealed with housewrap tape or caulk to form an airtight seal. While it does resist water, it isn't a vapor barrier.

The most common insulation, Fiberglass, doesn't stop air leakage. In older homes, dirty Fiberglass is a telltale sign of air movement as it simply collects dirt like a filter.

Certain types of insulation, such as dense-packed cellulose and certain foams, can be effective at reducing airflow as well as heat flow.

For more information or to make up your own mind on housewraps please visit the DOE web site at www.eren.doe.gov.

Now resolved, the issue of whether to wrap or not to wrap shows that discussion can lead to understanding and changes for the good.

Larry Kaufman of DTE Energy's Residential and Small Business Marketing group has conducted more than 50 energy savings workshops for the utility and is an expert advisor on home energy efficiency.

Buying a dream house may mean building it

(NAPSA) – Building your dream house may be easier with the help of someone who feels at home with the complex process.

In many cases, that person is a real estate agent. Since purchasing a new home is not something people do very often, it can be a very intimidating experience, filled with uncertainty and anxiety. That's why home buyers may benefit from the experience and expertise of a trained real estate professional.

Real estate agents can also bring up other factors that home buyers may not previously have considered, such as the suitability of a particular project or community to the home buyer's lifestyle. Do you really want a community with a pool or would you prefer a walking trail? Is it important to have a nearby golf course? Would you like an easy-to-care-for yard?

Also, similar-looking new houses often come complete with restrictions imposed by the developer on house color, landscaping, renovations and anything else a homeowner could possibly do to make their house deviate from the preferred look.

Families still love safe feeling living on cul-de-sacs

(AP) – Jenny and Rick White enjoy living on their cozy cul-de-sac, where traffic is light and neighbors are friendly.

"There are a lot of advantages," she said. "It's safer for kids because people don't drive as fast and we know everyone who lives on this street."

People cherish the privacy and peace of mind they get from living on the dead-end streets.

Children can play basketball and ride their bicycles without the threat of heavy traffic. Generally, anyone who drives by belongs there, and neighbors often meet for block parties or barbecues.

Because so few vehicles use the streets, residents say they are free from noise and air pollution.

But the suburban oasis of the cul-de-sac can create traffic gridlock elsewhere, transportation experts say.

That is one of the reasons urban planners are starting to return to more traditional developments reminiscent of neighborhoods in the early 1900s – straight streets laid out in a grid pattern, smaller lots and sidewalks.

Steven Bodzin, a spokesman for the San Francisco-based Congress for the New Urbanism, said there are about 250 grid-pattern developments around the country, with hundreds more in planning.

"We see a higher level of devotion to the towns and a better sense of community," he said of the grid developments. "I think people are missing that in conventional suburbia."

Planners say the dead-end streets, which usually don't have sidewalks, also can discourage social interaction, isolating residents.

"Virtually every trip involves getting in the car, even to get a gallon of milk or a loaf of bread," said Greg Dale, a Cincinnati-based urban planning consultant who has worked with communities across the country.

"People used to be able to walk to the corner store. Too many cul-de-sacs can create isolation between neighborhoods. There's a sense of community that's lost," he said.

Ninety-five percent of the 120 subdivisions being built in southwest Ohio's Warren County, where the Whites live, include cul-de-sacs.

Roger Young settled on one of the dead-end streets two years, with his wife and three daughters. Safety was a major reason.

"There's a lot of trust between neighbors, a real neighborhood feeling," he said. "We have Fourth of July parties and block parties in the summer. If you're teaching your kids to ride their bikes or sending them out to play, you don't worry at all."

However, county Engineer Neil Tunison said the few main streets serving such subdivisions often become clogged with traffic.

"We're seeing a lot of backups, delays and congestion," he said. "We've got large subdivisions that have only one access road. That becomes a choke point if you need to evacuate people. It makes it difficult for fire departments to respond to calls."

Bodzin said cul-de-sac neighborhoods discourage racial and economic diversity.

"In these developments, you usually have one culture, people of the same economic class," he said. "Studies have shown they have less interest in their community and belong to fewer social clubs. Everyone tends to do their own thing instead."

French for "bottom of a sack," the cul-de-sac has been around for hundreds of years. However, it didn't become popular in the United States until the mid-1950s.

Radburn, N.J., was one of the first cities to use no-outlet streets, said Jeff Spech, an urban planner and co-author of the book Suburban Nation.

"The idea was to separate cars from pedestrians," he said. "Developers saw that people liked them, so they started building whole developments of them."

The greatest concentration now is in the Sun Belt, especially near Las Vegas and Scottsdale, Ariz.

The aging of baby boomers has contributed to the popularity of grid layouts, Bodzin said. With their children grown, people are looking for alternatives to large lots and single-family homes and want to be close to stores.

The grid developments include mixed zoning, so corner groceries and other small businesses can co-exist with housing.

Bodzin said the new movement started gaining momentum with Seaside, a 1981 development near Panama City, Fla. Seaside has a town green and retail shops within walking distance of homes.

Developers around the country, including some in Maryland, Tennessee, Texas, Arizona and Colorado, have followed suit. The change has been slower in the Midwest, where there are fewer new developments, Bodzin said.

But other developers say families still find cul-de-sacs the most desirable.

Jim Obert, planning director for Great Traditions Land & Development Co. in Cincinnati, said developers can get higher prices for homes and lots on a dead-end street.

"That's absolutely a selling point," he said. "It's perceived to be safe for kids, and that's what most people look for. We respond to demand."

The Whites, who have a son in high school and daughter in middle school, lived on another cul-de-sac before moving to Mason. But they acknowledge the drawbacks.

Her cul-de-sac is so narrow that it's difficult to back out of their driveway if cars are parked along the street, Jenny White said.

"In the winter, we're about the last street to get the snow cleared," she said. "They're not as worried about us as with the main streets."

Wood is natural building choice, wood promoters say

(NAPS) – Green building is a hot topic today for some builders and home purchasers.

While new buyers are increasingly sensitive to green building, a new survey reveals there are wide gaps in knowledge of which building materials actually are best for the environment.

According to the National Green Building Gauge, a survey of 1,000 prospective home buyers to measure their understanding on a range of green building decisions, nearly four out of five believe that minimizing environmental impact is an important factor in selecting home construction materials.

But when it comes to rating common building materials, only 50 percent of buyers believe that North America's most enduring building materials, wood, is a good environmental choice.

Perhaps the biggest gap in knowledge revealed in the survey surrounds the state of forests.

While more than 60 percent of prospective buyers believe that wood is an excellent renewable and recyclable resource, less than a third believe that forests in North America are abundant, even though the best available data proves otherwise.

Two successive State of the World's Forests reports, released by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, show that North America's forests have increased in size and are about 20 percent larger than they were in 1970.

"Steady regeneration efforts have helped to sustain the growth of our forests while ensuring that millions of environmentally and structurally sound homes are built – and will continue to be built for generations to come," said Kelly McCloskey, president of the Wood Promotion Network.

"Not only are our forests abundant, but wood is the only major building material to embark on environmental certification programs.

"Today, North America has the largest area of independently certified forests in the world – well over 200 million acres," McCloskey said.

"Despite this progress and solid body of evidence behind it, many people still don't know that North American forests are increasing and continue to produce a continuous, sustainable supply of wood," McCloskey said.

The survey also reveals that many prospective homeowners are unaware of the environmental impacts of building material choices they face.

Nearly 40 percent believe the manufacturing of concrete and steel is less intrusive on the environment than the harvesting of trees for wood.

"In our culture's constant search for new and better things, it's counterintuitive that the material we've relied on for years is still the best, especially for the environment," McCloskey said.

"All human activity has an impact on the environment, but when making material choices, science shows us the way.

"Wood is the natural choice. For more than 200 years, North America has used wood to build the vast majority of its homes and today, a growing body of research proves that building with wood is something we can feel good about," McCloskey said.

That research includes some of today's most advanced technology, like satellite mapping to track North America's growing forests.

It also includes a software modeling system that lets builders, architects and engineers measure the environmental impacts of the building materials they consider for each project.

Developed by the ATHENA Sustainable Materials Institute in 1977, a non-profit organization supported by all the major building material manufacturers, nearly every application of the ATHENA model run since it's inception can be distilled into one simple rule.

That is, where practical, the more wood used in a home, the better the home is for the environment.

For more information about the ATHENA model, green building tips and North American forests, visit www.beconstructive.com

Fences help create a secluded oasis

(NAPSA) – Adding a privacy fence to a backyard can create a secluded outdoor room for entertaining or relaxing, and adds security to a home as well. Privacy fences are also a popular way to enclose a swimming pool and can provide a barrier against noise and unattractive adjoining properties.

Traditional board fences are offered in both wood and vinyl, and come in a variety of styles and colors. Slatted chain-link fences also offer homeowners privacy. Fences can completely shield a property from its neighbors or have a slightly open design to allow air to flow through to keep backyards cool and better withstand high winds.

Some popular styles of board fences include the semi-open shadowbox, or good neighbor style, where boards are affixed to both sides of the fence, creating a pleasant, uniform look that hides the fence posts and allows air to circulate through the yard. Fences can also be constructed of boards of varying widths to create a semi-open look.

Privacy fences can be constructed with arched or concave curves, and post caps, finials or latticework are often added to provide architectural detail. Boards can also be personalized with cut-out designs or by shaped tops.

For a reputable fence contractor, visit the American Fence Association Web site at www.amer icanfenceassociation.com or call (800) 822-4342.

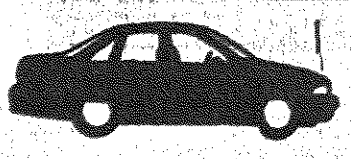
2002 Subaru Outback AWD: It's a great, American-made car

Advertising Feature

CAReport



By Anne Fracassa
Avanti News Features

ANNE FRACASSA

Value and Comfort: 2002 Subaru Outback AWD. Vehicle Class: Compact sports sedan. Power: H6-3.0-liter engine. Mileage: 20 city/26 highway. Where built: Lafayette, Ind. Price as tested: $28,520.

Last redesigned just two years ago, the 200 Subaru Outback H6 3.0 sedan is still one of the strongest offerings in this segment. I've recommended the Outback to several colleagues and friends and family, and at least eight people who took the plunge and bought one still thank me today.

One particular friend who was T-boned on the driver's side about six months ago in her 2-year old Outback actually walked away from the accident without a scratch or being sore. She was impressed the side doors held so well in an impact like that.

The Outback I drove this week was assembled in Indiana and loaded to the max. It had everything but the kitchen sink and stove in it. The price reflected it at nearly $30,000. But there are quite a few models to choose from, including the Outback Wagon, Outback Limited Wagon, Outback Limited Sedan, Outback H6-3 L.L. Bean edition and the Outback H6-3.0 VDV Wagon and the sedan edition I drove.

Lots of choices to choose from, all with different levels of equipment and bottom-line prices.

New equipment this year includes an air filtration system, dual illuminated visor vanity mirrors, ignition switch illumination ring (really great in the pitch dark), off-delay dome light, internal child safety trunk release with self-illuminating handle, variable-intermittent windshield wipers and woodgrain patterned interior door switch trim that's actually elegant-looking rather than tacky.

This year, Subaru has introduced yet another 6-cylinder engine. A new 212-horsepower box six powers the sedan I drove and shares its all-wheel drive and stability technology with the wagon model. There's an off switch for the Vehicle Dynamics Control system which turns it off when trying to remove the car from deep snow or mud.

Standard power - - available on three H4 models, is a 2.5-liter horizontally opposed single overhead cam 4-cylinder engine that promises 165 horsepower. It's been a long time since I've driven the 4-cylinder Subaru technology, but I can tell you that the 6-cylinder engine is certainly a head-turner,. As in, your head turning and you thinking, "Wow, did I go past that faster than I thought it could!"

The power is absolutely a blessing when merging on freeways and when passing a slow vehicle in traffic. And the cool thing about the new H6 engine is that it doesn't take up any more under-the-hood space than the H4 engine,. Remarkable.

Some of the stuff you'd expect to see on true luxury models but you'll find on the Outback offerings include full-time all-wheel independent suspension, 4-wheel disc brake, anti-lock brakes, air conditioning, 12-volt cargo-area power outlet, 60/40 split rear seat, AM/FM cassette stereo with weatherband (I love that feature!), fixed intermittent wiper, keyless entry system, power windows, tilt steering wheel and foldaway power sideview mirrors and 24-hour roadside assistance for three years or 36 months.

You want creature comforts, you've got creature comforts.We're talking about available dual-mode heated seats, heated outside mirrors and a windshield wiper de-icer on the Outback Limited and standard on the wagon model.

Here we go -- the safety issues. Remember my friend with the accident?

Subaru's own ring-shaped reinforcement frame body structure allows Outback to provide its owners with much-better-than average protection in frontal, offset, side and rear collisions. There are two safety beams and shoulder-line reinforcement bars in the front doors and one beam in each rear door to aid in side-impact collisions.

But it doesn't stop there. Standard safety features include 3-point seatbelts for all five seating positions, 4-channel 4-sensor ABS and dual front airbags.

The interior of The Outback has changed as well. There's a new climate control panel that is streamlined and much more pleasing to look at. Everything is actually reachable without leaving your seat. Nothing is difficult to find, reach or operate. The larger-than-normal instrumentation leaves nothing to the imagination because it's all up there, up front and in your face, that's the way it should be.

When driving, you don't need to be hunting for stuff on instrumentation. It should be large than life so you don't take your eyes off the road for more than a second -- because a second is all it takes for an accident to happen.

Seat comfort is really a plus. There are a lot of positions to place the front seats in and I found comfort in a instant.The sears are comfortable and produce no fatigue on long drives. Actually a joy to behold.

Finally, the mileage on the Outback models are much better than I expected, frankly. The 5-speed manuals produce the best mileage numbers, understandably. Try 21 mpg in the city and 27 on the highway.

But surprise, surprise. With the automatic transmission, you enjoy 20 mpg in the city and 26 on the highway. It's negligible. Chose the automatic if you wish. Chose the 5-speed for optimum control. The mileage is the same, in my eyes. One mile doesn't make for a decision, here, does it?

I always ask my back-seat passengers (my kids) for a quick opinion on some of the vehicles I drive. Sometimes even my husband, but he doesn't know as much as they do. My daughters were highly irritated by one minor (at least I consider it minor) quirk in the Outback. Their opinion is that the trunk should have a handle release on the exterior. You need a key to open it or you have to release it from the inside. The key fob doesn't offer a button to open the trunk, either.

Picking your kids up at the ice rink after a coaching session is a bit annoying when you have to open the trunk for them or open the driver's door to release the hatch, because they're so used to opening it themselves. Oh, well. My attitude about the value and comfort of the Outback hasn't changed at all this year from the previous year.I recommend it. It's a strong offering and worth a serious look from anyone looking for a safe sedan for their family to an all-around safe vehicle that's really strong in the snow. Go drive one and see if you'll agree. E-mail me with your thoughts -- I welcome them.

Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than 5 working days before the survey beings. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to: Division of Accreditation Operations, Organization Liaison, Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Services, One Renaissance Boulevard, Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181. The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time and place of the meeting.
