Nepotism charged in Canton hiring

CANTON—What started as a legal issue turned into a personality conflict as Trustee Brian Schwall and Supervisor Robert Greenstein argued over the propriety of hiring Bruce Phillips as assistant ordinance officer.

Phillips was hired last week under Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds available to the township. He was assigned assistant ordinance officer.

THE DEBATE began when it was noted by a member of the audience that he had campaigned for Greenstein and lacked the right qualifications.

Schwall zeroed in on the problem by quoting CETA guidelines on nepotism. He claimed Pam Phillips, who is the new employe's wife, and Greenstein's secretary was involved in the hiring of the CETA employes.

According to the CETA provisions on nepotism, said Schwall, "It's illegal for a relative of an applicant to have anything to do with the hiring of CETA employes. We could forfeit the money."

Greenstein responded that the move was not political. "Just because Bruce is a friend of mine and politically active doesn't mean that he is disqualified from the job. He's a hard worker and is concerned about the township.

"It's a dirty job and Bruce is the man to handle it. I think he was the best applicant for the job. Not only that, but as a census enumerator he will save the township over $3,000, the cost of hiring another person for the job."

Schwall countered, "I don't know Phillips personally, and am not attacking him. But I think it violates the nepotism section of the act."

Greenstein responded, "I suggest you look at the dictionary to see exactly what nepotism means."

Schwall countered that according to the act Phillips didn't have to be a relative of an officer of the township (such as Greenstein) but rather a relative of someone involved in processing and evaluating CETA applicants.

With his voice rising, Greenstein replied, "As far as I am concerned, this action is final. Bruce is the best man. He was not hired for political reasons. If you want to check with a lawyer or the Wayne County Manpower Center you're welcome, but as far as I am concerned, he stays."

Schwall replied that he would. "I intend to write them as a citizen and file a complaint."

Greenstein asked, "Are you going to do this as a private citizen or as a member of the board. I don't really care, but we would like to know what you intend to do."

Schwall replied he would write "as a citizen."

TRUSTEE GERALD CHESKE interrupted the debate and said: "I think we should move on to new business; this is a personal fight now."

The issue was dropped until the final segment of the meeting when Trustee James Poole raised the topic in his motion to have Phillips hired as census enumerator pending his approval by CETA officials.

He added: "I have nothing against Bruce Phillips. I don't know his qualifications, but I think we ought to make sure he is a legitimate employe under CETA rules. Personally I think the hiring stinks."

Following audience applause the board resolved to have Flodin write the Wayne County Center for Manpower asking if Phillips was in fact legally hired.

Canton census may be delayed

CANTON—The township board voted 5-1 Tuesday night to hold a census in the township and to name Bruce Phillips as enumerator, pending his approval as a township employe.

Questions were raised by Trustee Brian Schwall as to whether or not Phillips violated the nepotism clause of the CETA (Comprehenisve Employment Training Act) because of his wife's (Supervisor Greenstein's secretary) possible involvement in the hiring of the CETA employes.

Phillips was hired as the assistant ordinance officer and if he is cleared as a legal employe by CETA officials he will save the township the cost ($3,000-4,000) for a separate enumerator, according to Greenstein.

ALL TOWNSHIP board members agreed that a census would be beneficial to the township, even at a possible cost of $15,000. But there was some concern over Phillips' legality and credentials.

According to Greenstein, if he is found to be a legitimate employe of the township under the CETA act, the census door-to-door work will begin "immediately after the spring thaw."

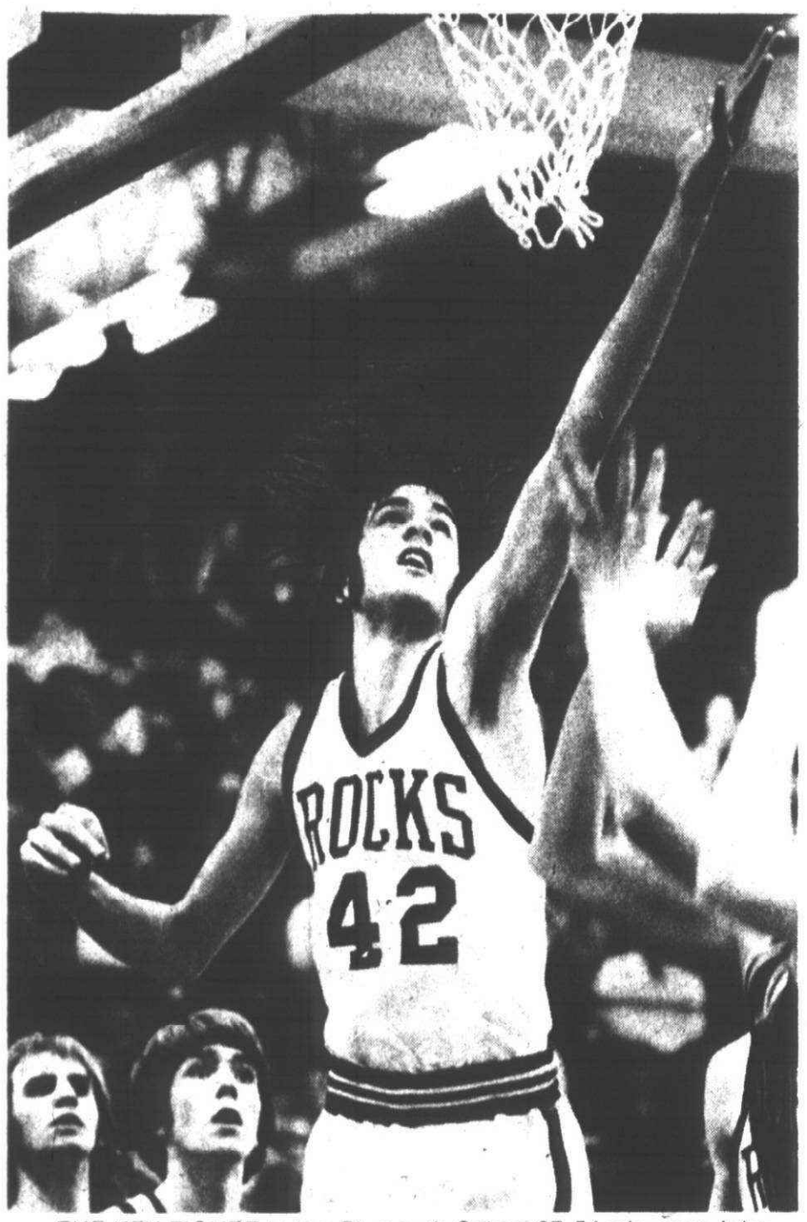

The supervisor said that many benefits could result from the census. He added a census would:

- Increase the number of liquor licenses allocated to Canton and help attract restaurants with banquet facilities.
- Show how zoning affects both population and density.
- Help the school system plan for the future.
- Help the township plan services for the future and indicate how many men would be necessary for the DPW and the fire department.
- Help the township attract industry.
- Help justify more state and federal aid because the census would reflect the increased population.
- Help attract more grant money for parks and recreation.

GREENSTEIN also said that the census would be a valuable tool because it could be used to gather data on important issues in the township such as:

- Attitudes toward maintenance of agricultural space.
- Attitudes toward multiples, PUDs, and lot sizes.
- Attitudes toward the new master land use plan.
- What the citizens consider the most important priorities.

"When we get this thing done," he added, "we'll be able to plan ahead, instead of behind, as in the past."

Residents irked by tap-in fees

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—Angry residents have persuaded the Canton Township Board to reconsider a recent increase in sewer tap-in charges from $3 to $9 a front foot. The board's next regular meeting is Feb. 25.

Even before the meeting started, emotions ran high. One man shouted at and threatened Clerk John Flodin.

Later, in the meeting, the unidentified man was asked by two Wayne County sheriff's officers to leave and replied: "You'll have to move me. I'm not going."

The deputies dragged him from the room. Eyewitnesses in the hall told this newspaper the man suffered a gash on his forehead when he fell in the hall.

OTHER RESIDENTS appeared almost as angry at the fee increase.

Said one, "This move was made without informing anyone. It's unfair, and I question the morality of it."

Supervisor Robert Greenstein responded, "We would have liked to have given a grace period to pay this, but the sentiment of the board was that we thought it fairer to move immediately rather than wait. If we had said we'll give two weeks to pay at the old rate, those who heard about the change would get the old rate and those who didn't would suffer. We thought that would be inequitable."

Greenstein defended the rate change, adding, "The old administration failed to increase the charge when they should have. It should have gone from $3 to $4 or $5 a long time ago, but it didn't. That's why we have to raise it so high now. I realize it's a horrendous jump."

Several residents complained they had tried to pay the front foot charge in advance of their sewer tap-in and had been turned down by employes in township offices.

Greenstein concurred that this was unfair and said that if it could be proved the township would charge those individuals the old rate.

BUT THE MAJORITY of the audience was angered by the fact that "they had given easements rights for a sewer at $3 a front foot and now would have to pay $9 a foot to tap in."

Several residents asked if it would be possible for those with a sewer in front of their homes to tap in at the old rate and charge those who don't have the sewer already installed in front of their property the new rate.

The supervisor responded, "There's nothing I'd rather do, but before we went ahead with this move, we checked with our township attorney, William Sempliner. He informed us that a court case in Warren had raised the same question and the ruling was that it would be discriminatory to charge those with the sewer already installed one fee and everyone else another."

Budget hearing set by schools

PLYMOUTH—Citzens will have an opportunity to voice their opinions on what they would like to see added or deleted from the coming year's school budget next Saturday.

The Plymouth Community school board has scheduled a public hearing for Feb. 22 at 9 a.m. in the East Middle School cafeteria, to hear what citizens have to say about the budget before it enters its beginning stages.

Tentative estimates for the 1975-76 school year indicate the school district will be spending approximately $17 million in the general fund.

This figure is separate from funds used to pay for construction, or land acquisition for new school sites. General fund money is used to pay for teacher and other salaries, textbooks, supplies, buses, and other items necessary for the day-to-day operation of the school district.

Members of the board have already drafted a tentative list of items that could be added to the budget, which could force cost saving measures or cuts in other areas if they were implemented.

Among the items already suggested by some board members are: the addition of an elementary curriculum director; possible reductions in class size at the elementary level; adding vocational education at the elementary level; beginning a counseling program at the elementary grades; and review of already completed curriculum council studies with an eye towards implementation.

The projection of $17 million in revenue for the school district in the upcoming school year is strongly based on Gov. William Milliken's recently proposed state aid formula. That formula will guarantee the school district $1,120.50 for each student.

Revenue not generated by a local scoool district will be matched by the state to bring a district's total up to the $1,120.50 per student level.

School officials caution, however, that the governor's proposal has not been approved by the Legislature and could change substantially by the time a final state aid formula is hammered out sometime this summer.

On teacher strike legislation

MAISL sets position

By DARLENE STINSON

New state legislation will avert teacher strikes, like those which hit the Garden City and Crestwood school districts this year, if the Metropolitan Association to Improve School Legislation (MAISL) has its say.

Four members of the Plymouth school board met Monday morning with other school district representatives in the MAISL group to form a position on changes in Public Act 379, which currently gives teachers the right to bargain collectively and labels teacher strikes illegal.

Reaching general agreement on five points they hope to see incorporated into new teacher legislation were Plymouth Supt. John Hoben, administrative assistant for personnel Norman Kee, school board secretary Marcia Borowski, school board treasurer Thomas Yack and representatives from the Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Redford Union, Inkster, Taylor and Cherry Hill school districts.

Also present at Monday's meeting were State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), State Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland) and State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland).

MAISL executive secretary Gerald R. Dunn, who acts as a lobbyist for the group, will take these five points to Lansing:

- Teacher negotiations should be conducted in private as in all other sectors of labor management relations.
- A statewide calendar for all Michigan school districts should be established.
- The Tenure Act should not apply to teachers who are represented by bargaining units.
- If classes have not begun by the legal calendar date, certain penalties should be imposed upon striking teachers and school boards.
- If binding arbitration is mandated in new teacher legislation, the arbitration panel should consist of one member chosen by teachers, one member selected by the school board and one member whom both parties select. The panel should arbitrate the last best total offer of unresolved issues and should not grant a settlement that exceeds certain limits.

"All of the districts don't like all of the things," said Kee. "But this is what Dunn could draw as a general consensus of the group."

Plymouth board members met two weeks ago to formulate their ideas on the issue, as did other MAISL members. A struggle to reach consensus at two MAISL meetings, held on con-

Mental facility might close

The Fieldbrook unit at the Northville State Hospital, which serves mental patients from Plymouth, Livonia, Redford Township and Northville, may be forced to close its doors by 1976 because of lack of funds.

Dr. Richard Budd, superintendent of the hospital, says because of the recession and removal of the tax on food, money shortages also will cause the hospital "to drop 100 positions out of 927 by June 30 of this year.

He expects a total of 327 employes to be dropped by June 30, 1976.

"The Department of Mental Health has to cut $15-$18 million from its budget," says Dr. Budd. "So we will have to cut back to a minimum basic operation.

"We admitted 3,587 patients in our last fiscal year, but with budget cuts that will have to be greatly reduced. "In fact, we'll probably have to cut about half of our admission load."

Detroit will be particularly affected. Most of Northville's patients come from the Detroit General Hospital crisis center.

"If we can't accept people, then Detroit General can't accept any psychiatric patients. If our beds are full, we can't take patients. Yet the new mental health law says we have to take patients."

Dr. Budd finds the whole situation very ironic. "Northville just got back its accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

"But to keep it, we are under pressure to maintain certain standards of treatment, to have so many psychiatrists, psychologists, nurses, housekeepers, etc. But with our budget cuts, we must lar off some of these people.

"It is an impossible situation."

The Fieldbrook mental health center, a special building set up to meet local psychological needs, may also get the ax.

"We have been providing this community service from our own budget," says Dr. Budd. "But now we will be forced to draw back. The community will have to provide its own facilities."

Budd is surprised communities in this area are not already providing mental health services for their residents.

"In terms of modern approaches to psychiatry, the communities are supposed to set up their own mental health programs. It's the latest trend.

"That's why we have Public Act 54 giving federal money for community mental health centers. California already has set up 300 such centers."

However, to date this area has not qualified for federal funds because it is not considered disadvantaged. Only after the poverty areas in Detroit acquire mental health facilities, can this area qualify for federal money.

Dr. Sun Cho, director of the Fieldbrook unit, is currently working with communities to set up local boards, which can put in proposals for federal funds.

Pursell joins justice study

State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) is among 23 persons appointed to a special task force to study gun control over the next three months and report back to the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice.

Other task forces with the same mandate are studying victimless crime and capital punishment. The three state task forces are composed of experts in the field of criminal justice, legislators and members of the general public.

Pursell's district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Livonia, Redford Township and part of Westland.

THE COMMISSION on Criminal Justice is chaired by James H. Brickley, former lieutenant governor now serving as president of Eastern Michigan University. Its vice-chairman is Michigan Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh.

The victimless crime topics to be studied include: decriminalization of the use, not sale, of marijuana, heroin and amphetamines; sexual acts among consenting adults, including homosexuality and adultery; prostitution; gambling; obscenity and pornography, and non-dangerous traffic violations.

Col. George L. Halverson, director of the Michigan State Police and chairman of the victimless crime task force, has asked for written comments and suggestions from organizations and special interest groups throughout the state.

Halverson said the task force will use the written comments in its deliberations as resource material. He said the task force would like the material to review early in March.

Written comments on victimless crimes, gun control or capital punishment may be sent to the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice Programs, Lewis Cass Building, 2nd Floor, Lansing 48913.

In attempting to take positions in the area of victimless crimes, the task force will study existing Michigan law and practices, federal laws and court decisions, and alternates to present laws.

THE OTHER TASK forces also are soliciting written comments on capital punishment and gun control.

The commission was established by Gov. Milliken in June 1973 to write goals and standards to improve justice and reduce crime.

The bulk of its recommendations were approved on Dec. 16. When positions are taken on these remaining issues, the commission's task will be completed.

Leaders of the three task forces are: gun control, William E. Delhey, Washtenaw County Prosecutor, chairman, and Leo Cardinal, Bay City Chief of Police, vice-chairman; capital punishment, Leonard McConnell, chairman of the parole board of the Michigan Corrections Department, chairman, and Frederick E. Davids, director of safety for administration building at University of Michigan, chairman; victimless crime, Halverson as chairman and Kenneth Preadmore, Ingham County Sheriff, vice-chairman.

Besides Pursell, the capital punishment task force includes Oakland Circuit Judge William Hampton; Robert Fryer, director of the Michigan Municipal League; Sen. David S. Holmes, Jr.; and Col. John R. Plants, Automobile Club of Michigan.

The gun control task force includes Lorraine Beebe, former state senator whose district included Redford Township; Detroit Councilman Ernest C. Browne, Jr.; Wayne County Prosecutor William L. Cahalan; Larry Doss, president of New Detroit, Inc.; Sen. Jerome Hart (R-Saginaw); At-

W-W schools set new goals

By STEVE BARNABY

WESTLAND — After a month of study, the Wayne-Westland School Board will consider approval of major goals for 1975-76 as outlined by Supt. Timothy Dyer and his staff.

Vowing to achieve 85 per cent of these objectives by June, 1976, the administration has already seen some of the goals accomplished.

In composing the goals, the administration prioritized them in numerical order from one to five. Categories considered were administration, business and finance, curriculum and instruction, physical plant and maintanance, personnel and community relations and general transcending goals not directly concerned with departments.

"The Wayne-Westland Community School District has been recognized as a district of quality and excellence. It is the first goal of this administration to maintain that high standard and performance and continue to merit such a reputation," says the report.

"The time, energy and effort necessary to maintain the school district at its present level is extensive and requires major efforts by all employes. In so doing, a foundation is built upon which improvement of existing programs and the introduction of new concepts are permitted."

IN COMPLETING THE study, the central administration issued a directive to building principals requesting an outline of goals, objectives and activities for school years between 1973-75.

This procedure, says the report, is one of the first attempts by a major school district to have each school and department on a set plan of objectives and goals.

The board already has appointed a citizens committee to study vocational education, facilities and upgrading of buildings. It will report in March.

"The school sends no more than 30-35 per cent of our students on to higher education," according to the report.

"About 70 per cent of our students end their formal education with the completion of their senior year. It is encumbent upon us to maximize their educational training in such a way that they are ready for the world of work."

The committee also is studying physical needs of exisitng buildings. Asst. Supt. Bates Landis estimates nearly $5 million in repairs are necessary.

The committtee also is reviewing other areas of curriculum such as a nature center, outdoor education facilities, alternative education and expansion of the curriculum resource center.

Successful negotiations and enhancing the working relationship with bargaining units have been given the highest priority under the general administration goals. The district has had strikes in 1966, '72 and '74.

"Major efforts will be expended this year to create a positive relationship with all employe groups. Adversary roles need not dictate hostile dealings. Understanding, cooperation, compromise and conciliation all are important parts to good labor-management relationships."

Another completed goal has been the study made by the citizens committee investigating the P.D. Graham attendance problem. A special board meeting on Feb. 17 will decide what should be done.

ALSO UNDER consideration in the general administration area are the child accounting and attendance departments, monitoring of the school security system, a study of the printing department and studying the implementation of the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Emphasis is being put on a improving efforts for property tax reform.

"Proper funding of formulae of various categorical areas in the state aid bill is of a maximum necessity. The superintedent will personally spend considerable time and energy working for improved fiscal assistance to this district," states the report.

The district has had to implement more than $200,000 of cutbacks this year because of state funding losses.

Inflation, according to the report, is compelling the district to study the food services department.

Business and finance department goals include installation of new computer equipment and conversion of the computer programs to fit the new equipment. The district has purchased Honeywell equipment. Installation will be completed by July, 1975.

Because the district receives several million dollars for federal and state programs, an accounting system is being studied similar to that used with the general operating budget.

"We have not had the ability, nor has there been constructed an accounting system, that would give the type of information and knowledge we have of the general fund. We shall construct and build a program to render similar data so a complete set of information is available on funds from the state and federal sources."

The district is preparing a feasibility study on the purchase of a camp. Because of continuing camping programs and the introduction of new camping activities, the wisdom of purchasig a site is under study.

Under curriculum and instruction, the district is planning in-service training of staff.

"Staff development is an ever paramount responsibility of the curriculum department. With changes occurring almost daily in education, the in-servicing of our staff is a top priority."

IN-SERVICE CONCEPTS under cons ideration are elementary reading textbooks, reading management, sex education and district accountability models. Offering technical assistance for classroom teachers is another goal.

Vocational, career and adult educational programs are slated for facelifts. Also of importance is defining and expanding special education programs.

"The people have taxed themselves highly to provide services for students with special needs. Expansion of this program will be a hallmark of these goals."

Included in special education goals are expansion of learning disabilities programs in junior high school, implementation of mandatory special education guidelines and expansion of programs for emotionally disturbed students in secondary schools.

TZe district has committed itself to an advocacy role with innovational, experimental and exploratory programs.

"The Wayne-Westland District has long been recognized as a district that advocates programs and methodologies that assist the child in learning and advances the educational process. The district commits itself to this concept and its continued expansion."

Innovations include project metric, racial studies for elmentary schools and computer terminals in secondary and selected elementary schools.

Goals in the physcial plant and operations area include assisting citizens advisory committees, procedures for replacing equipment, in-service training for operational personnel, maintenance employes and bus drivers, and coordinating requirements for safety regulations.

PERSONNEL PROGRAMS will be upgraded by developing a program for administrators in handling personnel problems.

"With a new contract, plus arbitration and court cases shedding new light on employe relations, it is important administrators become as familiar and as updated as possible on various ways to deal with employes."

Other goals in personnel are to update and define existing personnel practices, developing comparative contract reports and examining the substitute teacher system.

'Exciting schools' is speaker's topic

PLYMOUTH— A nationally renowned educator will visit the Plymouth Community School District to vitalize its classes with a healthy boost.

Edward C. Pino, president of the International Graduate School of Education (IGSE) and former superintendent of the Cherry Creek School District in Denver, Colo., will address parents and students on their involvement in the Plymouth schools and conduct a five-day workshop for teachers and administrators.

Assistant School Supt. James L. Leary hails the parent-student presentation as "a fantastic opportunity to hear a dynamic speaker."

Pino will discuss the topic, "Creating Exciting Schools is a Total Community Affair," on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Canton High School Little Theater.

PARENTS AND STUDENTS from Plymouth and surrounding school districts are welcome to attend. Tickets, limited to 300, are $2 and may be obtained from Phyllis Sullivan, 39620 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

The presentation could be a first of several, offered to Plymouth School District residents.

"This is a first attempt to bring in a nationally known person to speak and find out if the community wants more," explained Leary. "The purpose is to explore ideas and possibilities."

The presentation, Leary hopes, will foster increased parental and student involvement in the Plymouth schools.

"Parental involvement is vital in Plymouth," Leary maintains. "A community that's growing mandates change. We should be able to cope with change and not be afraid of it. We should have parents involved, so we can work cooperatively.

"All the things we're trying to do involve parental interest and support," he said. "When parents know what you're trying to do for their child, they're not skeptical of change."

IN ADDITION to the parent-student presentation, Pino and five other IGSE faculty members will conduct a workshop for teachers from Feb. 26 to March 2.

Purpose of the workshop, according to Leary, is to "implement individualized learning techniques in all subjects and grade levels."

"I would certainly encourage teachers to attend this," Leary said. "I think teachers can come out of this with ideas to use on Monday morning."

The IGSE teacher workshop is offered on a money-back guarantee basis, if the district is not satisfied with its results, Leary said. Tuition ranges from $85 to $95 per teacher, depending on the size of participating teacher groups from each school and time of registration.

Fees from the parent-student presentation and the teacher workshop will cover the cost of Pino's visit, Leary said.

NOW PRESIDENT of IGSE, Pino is hailed by the Kettering Foundation as "the world's most innovative educator." Holder of a doctorate degree, he was educated at Michigan State, George Washington, Maryland and Stanford universities.

Pino has served in nearly every capacity in the field of education. He has held teaching positions at the elementary, secondary, junior college and university levels. He has served as school superintendent, assistant superintendent and assistant principal in school districts and scools throughout the United States, Europe and Asia.

IGSE, founded in 1971, is a nonprofit university, offering graduate training to educators at any location throughout the country. Although IGSE offers no degree programs, its credits are accepted by many accredited universitites.

Tax deadline moved back

CANTON—The township board resolved Tuesday night to extend the deadline for paying taxes without penalty to Feb. 28.

The originally decided upon date was Feb. 15, but as in past years, the board moved to extend the deadline to the end of February.

Tax bills not paid by the end of February will be subject to a three per cent penalty charge and an additional one half of one per cent carrying charge will be added for every month thereafter.

After March 1, all property taxes must be sent to Louis H.Funk, Wayne County Treasurer, 208 City-County Building, Detroit, 48111.

As of Jan. 30, 50 per cent of the township property taxes had been collected.

New attorney takes Moceri case

CANTON—The "Moceri Case" will be in court sometime in April, according to Supervisor Robert Greenstein, and the township is "pulling out the stops to win it."

Greenstein announced Tuesday the hiring of attorney Burt Burgoyne to handle the case for the township. According to the supervisor, "He is a top notch lawyer in condemnation hearings and land use matters." Greenstein also noted that as an expert witness, the township will have Prof. Robert Hotaling of Michigan State University and the Kresge Institute.

Greenstein said that he is "an expert in the field of planning and will help tremendously in the case."

"Canton Tonwship is declaring war in no uncertain terms on anyone who wishes to build or develop in the township through the court system rather than the planning commission and the board.

"In the past, innumerable developers have either openly or by reference, threatened lawsuits if their demands weren't acquiesced to by the township.

"In the future, Canton Township will retain the best legal counsel available in each specialized area of law and will retain, for the purposes of testimony, the best, most knowledgable and noted experts in the field."

Greenstein also said that Hotaling will help the township develop its master land use plan at no cost and that both Burgoyne and Hotaling will work with the township in other problem areas until further notice.

"Professor Hotaling will work with our planning commission and our consultant, Mike Manore, to help give an overview to the master land use plan," said Greenstein.

The supervisor added, "Burgoyne is an excellent lawyer, he's beaten us several times when he worked for the builders. I think we are most fortunate to get him, cosnsidering the fees the builders are offering. He won't cost us any more."

Walter Guth, of the firm of Sempliner, Thomas and Guth of Plymouth, has handled the case up to the present, and he concurs with Greenstein about Burgoyne's abilities. "I understand he's highly qualified in municipal law. I guess Greenstein wanted a specialist for the case because it's so important to the township."

William Sempliner, one of Guth's partners and township attorney for Canton for many years added, "Burt is a fine trial lawyer. He is very thorough and a hard working man."

The court case that Burgoyne was hired for concerns rezoning for a regional shopping center proposed by land developer and builder Dominic Moceri, at the southeast corner of Joy and Sheldon.

The rezoning was rejected by the township board, on April 9, 1974. The denial by the board followed approval by both the township and county planning commissions.

After the board's denial, Moceri took the issue to court to get a rezoning.

The shopping center was to be accompanied by Canton Center Woods, a planned unit development (PUD). Although a PUD for the residential development contract was signed by the township board, an altered site plan submitted to the board two weeks ago was rejected.

The future of the project seems uncertain in light of the recent changes in the zoning ordinance because the section on PUDs has been deleted.

State police to survey Canton

CANTON—"It's just a fancy name for crime prevention," said state police trooper Michael F. Garrison. He was referring to the state police's new "community problem indentification concept."

Garrision made a presentation to the township board Tuesday night of a program the state will be offering to Canton.

"What we are going to do is identify the crime problem here in Canton and talk to concerned groups on how to minimize it. We will tailor ou program to the needs of the township."

Garrison added, "In the past we've been passive about this. We have talked to groups when they have asked for a presentation. Now we'll actively seek out civic asociations, homeowner groups and any group of individuals who wants help and we'll help them to safeguard themselves and their property against criminals."

The trooper noted that while the state police have programs for all sorts of crime problems, such as bad checks, shoplifting, breaking and entering, and self protection, his presentations will be devoted to what the township needs based on its crime statistics.

After the meeting he commented, "Right now we are in the preliminary stages of this thing. I don't see any door-to-door work yet, just meetings. I hope we can work with the county to establish the nature of the crime problem in the area."

Garrison also said that one of the major reasons for the program in Canton was because of the tremendous growth the township has experienced in recent years.

He instructed those interested in the program to contact him at the Plymouth state police sub post.

Meeting set on McIntyre fate

CANTON—The township board will hold a special meeting next Wednesday Feb. 19 to decide the sewer issue for residents of McIntyre Manor, an old subdivision located at Ford and Sheldon Roads.

Residents of the subdivision have petitioned the board for the past two years for a sanitary sewer system because their drain fields are no longer operational.

According to township clerk John Flodin, the tile fields have lost their ability to absorb waste matter and as a result effluent has surfaced.

Residents claim that in the summer, the stench of the waste "becomes unbearable."

They had hoped that the formation of the Canton—Van Buren Sewer and Water Authority would remedy their situation through a bond issue.

But the bonding unit was formed by the previous township administration, and the new board members wnat time to investigate the matter.

At their first meeting in November, they requested a 60-day extension to study the issue.

Since then, board members have been presented with numerous ways to construct a sewer in the subdivision. Township engineer Glenn Roberts has shown them various alternatives, from pumping out holding tanks to construction of a gravity sewer.

There is a great difference in cost among the alternatives, and the township board will report Feb. 19 to the public what they consider the best type of sewer and how they think it should be paid for.

Unemployment rules may pinch schools

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH—A new state law, bringing school district employes under the Michigan Employment Security Act for the first time, could eat holes in the Plymouth Community School District's budget.

The new act, effective Jan. 1, enables teachers, substitute teachers, custodians, bus drivers, cafeteria workers and all other district personnel to collect unemployment benefits, if they are laid off, fired or quit the district with an adequate number of work weeks and wages on their records.

The law could prove costly to the district, required to reimburse the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) for all benefits paid to school district employes.

The district's administration has not yet determined how large that drain on funds will be.

"WE REALLY don't know at this point how much money we'll have to budget," said Norman Kee, administrative assistant of personnel. "It's new, and we really don't know the total implications yet. We do know it will cost us money. The legislature just passed this thing and said, 'Do it. You come up with the money.'"

The law is most applicable in the Plymouth School District to substitute teachers and such non-certified personnel as bus drivers and cafeteria workers, whose jobs are marked with a high degree of transiency, according to Kee.

Although classroom teachers fall under the provisions of the act, Kee said the district's expanding enrollment has not mandated teacher layoffs in recent years. Teachers who quit or are fired for disciplinary reasons are eligible for unemployment benefits.

All school district employes, including substitutes, are eligible for unemployment benefits, funded by the district, if they work a minimum of 12 hours a week for 14 weeks in a calendar year and earn at least $25.01 a week.

KEE SAID about 1,000 district employes could qualify for benefits, arranged on a sliding scale from $16 to $106 a week, depending on wages earned and number of dependents.

Under the act, a school district may reimburse MESC for all unemployment benefits paid to former employes or contribute 2.7 per cent of its taxable payroll (up to $4,200 of an individual's salary) to cover compensation costs.

The Plymouth School District chose the reimbursement plan.

"We elected to go that option, because we think it will be cheaper," Kee said. "It's especially cheaper in a growing district (like Plymouth), because it probably won't be necessary for us to lay off people."

The new act, Kee explained, does not require the district to reimburse MESC for unemployment benefits paid during the 1975 calendar year until July 1976.

"We'll have a little advance knowledge of how much we'll have to put in the following year's budget," he said.

But costs are already accruing.

To keep track of hours worked and wages earned, the district has hired a fringe benefit clerk for about $7,000 a year to determine which employes would be eligible, Kee said.

IN ADDITION, Kee said, the administration may propose that the district employ a tax firm to investigate which claims filed with MESC are eligible under the new act. The district must respond to claim statements, submitted by MESC, within seven days.

"That's why we have to keep such accurate records," Kee explained. "Once they start paying, we're responsible. They (MESC) are willing to pay on the words of the employe.

"There's a lot of refinements that need to be put in the law," he said. "Legislators pass laws and sometimes don't realize all the implications for school districts."

A major implication of the law regards substitute teachers. The act, coupled with the qualifying number of weeks substitutes must work to obtain unemployment benefits, could refrain school districts from calling their best substitutes as frequently as before, Kee said.

"I see that as a real potential problem," he said. "That's why we don't feel substitutes should be on this."

Kee said the Plymouth School District already employs its 200 substitutes on a rotating basis.

"With the number of substitutes we have and the rotating basis," Kee said, "it would be difficult for substitutes to get in the qualifying number of weeks—not that we're doing it deliberately (to avoid unemployment payments).

"WE KNOW we're going to have a certain number of substitutes who probably will qualify," he said. "But it will be a limited number."

Caralyn Hargraves, recently hired to keep track of employe's wages and hours, added, "We really don't know how this act will affect schools in terms of money. It's all new and kind of an adventure. There will probably be some cases that have to be tried."

MAISL position

secutive Mondays, amended some positions.

To protect districts on a year-round school year, Plymouth board members originally ruled against a statewide calendar. Because of that position, MAISL members excluded districts "using the extended school-year concept" from the statewide calendar provision.

Under MAISL's calendar proposal, school would begin within the first two days following the first Monday in September and end no later than the last Friday of the second full week in June. Classes would not be scheduled on weekends, and student vacation periods would total no less than 18 days.

Students would receive a two-day vacation at Thanksgiving, 10 days at Christmas, a five-day break in the middle of the second semester and one day at Memorial Day.

MAISL is proposing the statewide calendar, Kee explained, to levy strike penalties against teachers and school boards. Penalties would be imposed if classes have not begun by the legal starting date.

Under the proposal, striking teachers would lose one day's pay for each day of the strike, while school districts would lose two-thirds of their daily state and local revenue for each day schools are closed. Since most districts spend about two-thirds of their revenue on teacher's salaries, the remaining one-third would pay working employes, buy textbooks, pay fixed charges and maintain buildings.

The reduction in revenue would be credited to taxpayers the following year.

Althouth MAISL does not favor mandated binding arbitration, the group ruled that an arbitrator's settlement should not cause a district to eliminate current programs, if binding arbitration is mandated in new legislation.

Tap-in fees irk residents

ciation commented, "I think what you have gained here in financial terms you have lost in good will. To change this fee without public notice is not ethical. We have public hearings for just about everything else."

An other resident added, "You have referred to past mistakes of the old administration. They didn't raise the fee when they should have to reflect the current costs. Is it fair to make 80 families pay for this mistake?"

Greenstein replied, "If I could be sure all the families affected could be informed of this change beforehand and had an opportunity to pay for the front foot charge, I would be willing to rescind the resolution for several weeks."

The Stroller

Sometimes people are funny

— By W.W. EDGAR

When the late Will Rogers, the Oklahome cowboy humorist, used to walk to the center of the stage leisurely twirling his lariat, he'd stop in the middle of a joke, shrug his shoulders and say, "People are funny."

With memories of his dry wit, The Stroller can't help but wonder what he would be saying today if he was here to witness some of the goings-on of the present generation.

THIS WAS brought to mind during a recent discussion with Jack Salvadore, an old political friend who now spends much of his time trying to help untie knots in the South Redford school system.

"For a little diversion," he said, "I went to the harness races at Northville the other night and was amazed at what I saw—and it wasn't the performance of the horses, either.

" Standing there, near the betting booths, I couldn't help at being amazed at the type of person frequenting the heavier betting windows.

"Watching them bet $10 and $20 on the nose of a horse must have been a real gamble for them as they didn't seem to be the type that could afford such a thing."

Then he added, "People are funny."

Shades of Will Rogers.

It isn't only at betting booths at the horse parks that people are funny. You'll find them all around you.

For instance, with the present rate of unemployment and the high cost of living brought about by the spiraling inflation, one would think that the various sports events would have the lowest priorities.

BUT IF YOU look over the lists, the Detroit Red Wings, with one of their poorest seasons, are drawing close to capacity crowds for games with old rivals. The Pistons are playing to capacity crowds in Cobo Hall at a time when most people fear going downtown to do any shopping.

The Detroit Tigers, finishing last in the American League, drew more than a million fans for fourth place in the attendance race among major league cities.

THEN THERE IS the present trend of trying to spur the purchase of new automobiles by offering cash bonuses. From many sectors comes the report that most people are flocking to the show rooms and passing up the bonus cars to purchase the larger and costlier models.

The Stroller can't help wondering what Will Rogers would think of that.

Just look around and you'll see many other sights that cause one to murmur "people are funny."

Take men's clothes for example. There was a time when the well-dressed man wore a business suit to work and the women wore pleated skirts or fashionable dresses.

NOW THE complete suit for men is almost passe as they turn to flashy slacks and sports coats, even at social events. Women are wearing slacks or pants suits at high society affairs.

Many of the men frown on wearing a necktie. There was a time when a fellow didn't feel dressed unless he had a tie. More than that, you were denied entry into many dining rooms without a tie.

All of which recalls a day at the Sheraton Cadillac Hotel when Groucho Marx, the famed comedian, was denied admission to the dining room due to the absence of a tie. When offered a tie, Groucho wrapped it around his arm and dared anyone to deny him admission.

THEN THERE is a tale from a rotund innkeeper, an old acquaintance, who claims the people have him puzzled.

"Here we are, on the brink of depression," he said, "and more people than ever are dining out. Business never has been better. If this is a depression, I don't notice it here.

"But people are funny. You can't figure them."

Will Rogers would have liked that.

Cookie sales to start soon

The Huron Valley Girl Scouts will fight a faltering economy this year when they set out to sell 25 per cent more cookies than last year.

The announced goal of the council is $350,000, more than $80,000 above last year's sales, according to sale chairman Ruth Weber of Ann Arbor.

The increased sales are needed to maintain the same profit level as last year because while costs of the cookies have risen, the Girl Scouts will be offering the same $1 a box arrangement as last year.

Cost of the cookies has increased eight cents from last year and now cost the girls 51 cents a box.

To aid in reaching their sales goal this year the scouts will be offering two new items, sesame crisp crackers and Girl Scout tea, an authentic English breakfast blend of teas from the Keemun district of China.

Profits from the cookie sale will be shared between the selling troops and the Huron Valley Council. They will go to finance community service projects, camping expeditions, and other troop programs.

The cookie sale will cover Washtenaw, Livingston and Western Wayne County and will run for two weeks beginning in late February. Orders will be taken from Feb. 21 to March 9 and the cookies will be delivered April 8-22.

Keith committee readies teacher strike bill

By BOB ERICKSON

GARDEN CITY—State Rep. Bill Keith is an important man in Lansing these days. He chairs the committee which this month is supposed to present a proposal to curb teacher strikes like those that occurred here and in the Crestwood district.

Keith's committee has until Feb. 15 to draft its proposal which is then scheduled to be acted upon by the Legislature by April 1.

THE COMMITTEE has been carefully selected to include legislators with backgrounds that give them familiarity with school situations, to insure both Republicans and Democrats are well represented on the body, and to make certain a cross-section of the state's legislative districts are represented.

Among those on the committee are state representatives: Keith (D-Garden City), a former banker and Garden City School Board member; Edgar A. Geerlings (R-Muskegon), a former high school math teacher and member of the Michigan Education Association (MEA); Daisy Elliott (D-Detroit), an influential member of both the education and labor committees in the House; Melvin Larsen (R-Oxford), a former school administrator; John Mowat (R-Adrian), a former school board member and past president of a county school board association; Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon), a former teacher; Harold Scott (D-Flint), a former teacher, school board member and officer in the MEA Political Action Organization; Francis Spahiola (D-Owasso), a former teacher and staff assistant on the house education committee; and Thaddeus Stopczynski (D-Detroit), a former member of the Detroit Central Board of Education, Michigan Association of School Boards, National Association of School Boards, and a former Detroit police officer.

The school related credentials should allow them to come up with a proposal to the Legislature in time for the deadline. Most committee members are confident such will be the case.

WHAT KIND of proposal will develop and whether it will be acceptable to the Legislature, teacher and school board lobbyists, and citizens is another matter.

There are several forms the Keith Committee's proposal might take, and there are several existing bills the committee may use to model its own proposal. One of those was previously introduced under sponsorship of two members of the current committee—Keith and Larsen, from whom the bill takes its name.

While Keith insists the committee will write an all new bill, it is expected any written will contain some of the ideas of previously introduced legislation. Keith seems to believe the proposal committee will at least resemble the Larsen bill.

That bill essentially calls for a timetable to be established for teacher negotiations. Each step in negotiations would be completed by a specific time before the opening of the school year.

At points of impasse, mediation or arbitration mechanisms would automatically go into effect. School would start on time, whether or not a contract had been agreed upon, and the process would continue if no agreement had been negotiated, and the bargaining process would continue. At the final impasse, binding arbitration would be imposed.

OTHER BILLS presented in the past include the Jowett Bill, allowing unqualified rights to strike by teachers, and the Stopczynski Bill which simply provides for binding arbitration of all issues in all cases.

All the bills are complicated, and all have proponents and opponents both on the committee and in the Legislature, but with the committee headed by Keith, bolstered by Larsen, and with the strong backing for a timetable-style proposal by House Speaker Bobby Crim (D-Davison), it appears some version of the Larsen Bill may be forthcoming.

Most recently, Keith reports, his committee has decided whatever bill it develops will have a sort of trial period recommended. That is, the committee hopes to set a June 30, 1977, expiration date on the bill that will allow its review at that time.

Secondly, Keith says, his committee has decided it will deal only with revisions of Public Act 379, and not go into the teacher tenure laws.

Third, he says, the committee intends any bill it reports to only deal with school employes—not public employes in general.

Now, Keith's committee is beginning to put together the actual proposal which it will then report out to the Legislature. That bill may then go to either the education committee (from which it would likely be immediately reported out because six Keith committee members also sit on that committee) or to the House Labor Committee, headed by Daisy Elliott.

In the meantime, members of the State Senate are also working on bills of their own. But it is expected the Keith committee may complete its work before the hearings on those measures are finished.

Len Charney. "Build a Yurt." The yurt is sturdy, well-designed and organically beautiful. That is why it has been used by nomadic Mongolian herdsmen as an ideal structure for centuries. But until now, yurt-building know-how could only be acquired through word of mouth or by a journey to Asia.

This is the first guide to constructing the solid, round-roofed house called the yurt. You only need a few hundred dollars to build it. You don't even have to be mechanically talented. It is less expensive and easier to build than either a geodisic dome or an A-frame. Charney tells us how.

Olle Hogstrand. "The Debt." The Debt" is this Sweidsh mystery auth r's best tale of murder and espionage ye He sets up the exciting milieu of international intrigue in a Swedish se"ing. An employe of the Psychological Defense Department is murdered. Suspicion centers on three suspects, two of them within the department. An astonishing climax provides a special treat to mystery fans.

Norman Partington. "Master of Bengal." A vivid novel of 18th century India introduces some fascinating characters along with scenes of intense action–on the battlefield, in the horror of the Black Hole of Calcutta, and in the splendor and intrigue of the court. The novel is an imaginative reconstruction of Robert Clive's life and the beginning of Empire in India.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, "No Final Victories." Taught by his father at an early age to organize local elections, the author used that knowledge to great advantage when a relatively unknown congressman asked him to direct his long-shot race against Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge. The rest is history—John Fitzgerald Kennedy took O'Brien along on the most important partnership in the history of American politics.

This is not just another history of the Kennedy years, nor of O'Brien's chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee (in which spot he became a primary target of Nixon's plumbers). It is a call for honesty and decency in American politics, for political combat that is tough but clean.

Judith Helmker, "All-Terrain Vehicles." What is that blue bathtub with wheels that looks like a hermit crab and has an interior that can seat at least two people? A UFO? No, probably an ATV—an all-terrain vehicle. This comprehensive guide gives a great deal of information about these fascinating machines.

ATVs take passengers up mountainsides; across swamps and lakes; over, around, and through snowbanks; and into the thickest, most inaccessible jungles. Driving can be quickly mastered, and the five-gallon tank will take you at least a hundred miles. The author discusses the historical development of ATVs, how to buy one, the ecological implications of ATV usage, and even includes a chapter on ATV legislation.

Legislature may aid county with new jail

LOBBYING FOR STATE AID to build new county jail facilities, Wayne County Commissioners Mary Dumas (R-Livonia) and Royce E. Smith (D-Belleville) met with State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), in the center, during the Michigan Association of Counties meeting last week in Lansing.

Leaders of the State House and Senate have assured Wayne County Commissioners they will take steps to help the county finance additional jail facilities.

House Speaker Bobby D. Crim said last week he would appoint a special House committee to explore all possibilities of state assistance in building the $30 million detention facilities needed in the county.

Later, Senate Majority Leader William B. Fitzgerald said he would ask that the committee be set up as a joint House- Senate Committee.

ROSCOE L. BOBO, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, told the legislators that the present jail "with its obsolete building and its overcrowding, continues to be one of the most unfortunate public problems in metropolitan Wayne County." He said the problem will be solved only with additional detention facilities.

The county is under a court order to expand its jail facilities and limit its current prisoner population to no more than 799 prisoners.

Bobo said the board has acquired downtown property and has had preliminary plans drawn for a 350-prisoner facility there and another 400-prisoner facility in western Wayne County.

THE TOTAL cost of the two jails has been estimated at nearly $30 million, but is thought to be increasing at a rate of one per cent per year. Financing for the project is the county's key problem.

"We have found no feasible way to raise the money out of present revenues without unacceptably drastic cutbacks in necessary public services," Bobo said.

He pointed out that voters had turned down a proposed levy of 0.6 mill (60 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation) in 1972 by a margin of 98,000 votes. Without voter approval, the county is powerless to levy taxes for construction.

Bobo urged the legislature to approve a county proposal which would provide that the state advance the construction money, with the ocunty paying back the advance with interest from payments expected from sale of a water plant to the City of Detroit.

County OKs continued road patrols

Sheriff's road patrols will be continued in Canton and Plymouth townships at the present level of service through April.

The continuation was authorized Feb. 6 by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to enable its subcommittee to pursue cost negotiations with seven western Wayne County townships.

The townships, including Canton and Plymouth, have filed suit in Circuit Court charging the sheriff with a legal obligation to police their areas. The suit came in response to a commissioners' demand that the townships foot part of the cost of the road patrols or face its abolishment.

In a court hearing Jan. 31, Judge Thomas J. Foley postponed decision on a motion by the board's Office of Corporation Counsel to dismiss the suit.

No further court action is expected until April 30, but in the meantime the commissioners are still asking the townships to contribute an additional $97,000 to maintin the present level of service through the current fiscal year ending Nov. 30. Full-year operational cost at the present level is $467,000.

2nd chance to register at Schoolcraft

Residents may have a second chance if community services classes they wanted to take at Schoolcraft have been filled. Walk-in registrations will be taken Feb. 19-20 on the campus to provide that second chance.

That's the word from Director Ron Griffith who says withdrawals from mail-in registration will enable the college to accept students in a number of popular classes, earlier thought to be filled.

Students eye mass media as tool for public interest

Bruce Ballenger is heading up a group of "powerless, moneyless" and even textbookless group of students.

But he is hoping this group will someday be able to persuade the mass media to do more coverage of environmental issues, resulting in the same public interest that launched the celebration of Earth Day in 1970.

Ballenger, a University of Michigan graduate student, is teaching Mass Media and the Environment at the school's Dearborn campus. His aim is to teach students to evaluate the media as a means of environmental education.

"WHAT WE WANT to do is analyze the media and the way it handles environmental issues, and then develop a strategy of haw to deal with the media more effectively," Ballenger says.

"We'll be looking into all aspects of the media from advertising to newspapers to television shows.

"Part of our class has been to study the Madison Avenue approach to advertising and try to find out just why Crest toothpaste ads sell Crest.

"Then we did our our own commercial, centering it on an ecology issue and tried to compare the effectiveness of the two."

BALLENGER has shown his class a movie called "Say Goodbye," which he said resulted in a 15,000-letter response from its television audience.

"The movie concerned the decimation of wildlife and our project was to examine why the movie was so effective."

Ballenger's class, which has been aught for three years on the Ann Arbor campus, will also look at the imits of newspaper coverage.

"For instance, a newspaper might not want to get into the environmental effects of new building in its community because the growth issue would eventually result in more sales.

"The paper might feel that it is in its economic interest not to cover the environmental issues opposing the growth."

BALLENGER FEELS the media has cut its coverage of ecology-oriented issues since 1970, but he also believes that environmental groups may have something to do with the lack of coverage.

"We make mistakes, so we're trying to educate people in the area of journalism," he said.

"An environmental group should know not to send a newspaper a five-page news release or to ask them to cover an event that really isn't newsworthy."

Ballenger and his class, comprised of mostly teachers, will also be studying "eco-pornography."

"WE WANT to be able to spot false advertising and find out how to stop it," he said. "There's also deductible advertising in which we're paying for firms to give themselves a good image. We see a lot of that with the advertising oil companies are doing."

Ballenger also mentioned group called Keep America Beautiful, which he labels as "the public relations arm of the aluminum beverage container industry."

"The message they advertise is that people start littering and so people can stop littering. There's a guilt factor built into their message, while they fail to mention where the disposable containers originate from."

BECAUSE Ballenger's class is new to the natural resources field, it has no textbook and students rely on popular magazines for their information.

"I think environmental issues are viewed by people as being just as important as they ever were but mass media coverage has cooled off a bit, Ballenger said.

"That's why we'd like to focus on popular publications rather than professional journals.

"ONE OUT of three Americans receives 'Reader's Digest.' There's tremendous potential there, but their editorial policy on evironmental issues has been inconsistent. We'd like to find out why."

Since I've been teaching this class I've found out that people know a lot more about the mass media than I realized. By the time my students get out of class I want them to be politicalfy effective.

"The mass media can and should be a means of mass education for environmental issues."

Hall fire ends fair in 1903

(Part III)

Karl Starkweather, who was 10 in 1899, when the Plymouth Fair was still in full swing, recalled that the merry-go-round at the Fairgrounds was operated by horse-power. A single horse, harnessed between the outer circle and the organ in the center, hauled the device around and around, urged on by the young cowboys and girls astride the horse's wooden counterparts.

The ferris wheel was run by man-power. "Stationed at ground level and on either side of each basket section, as it reached the bottom, stood a man of muscle," Mr. Starkweather told me.

"At the proper moment, and in unison, each man would give each section a powerful upward push and so continue until the scheduled number of wheel revolutions had been accomplished. We kids never gave the matter a thought at the time, but, as I think of it now, those basket pushers must have earned their money by day's end."

Sideshows, eating counters, and shooting galleries lined the midway on the road which led from the grandstand. Concessions included one in which rings were to be tossed over pegs, and one in which the player tried to knock over dummies with baseballs.

BALLOON SELLERS and taffy dispensers were favored by the younger set. The taffy--white, pink or chocolate in color--sold for five cents a package. By closing hour any taffy left over was sold for the bargain price of three for 10 cents.

Games of chance and feats of legerdemain were part of the carnival atmosphere on the midway. Starkweather remembered watching shell games being played without hindrance from officialdom. "Of course, the shell man always won, except occasionally when he would purposely let someone win in order to bring on a new batch of suckers."

Among the tricks Mr. Starkweather saw at the fair was one in which "a Negro, after first saying his prayers, consented to having his head cut off. We all saw it fall into a bucket. Then, magically, it was placed back on his body again. He walked off as good as new."

Aside from serving as a launching pad for the balloon ascension, the race track oval was used for ballgames. In the 1890s the Plymouth Pearls baseball team played most of its home games at the Fairgrounds on Saturday afternoons. The Pearls usually played Northville, Wayne and Farmington.

THE 1895 version of the Plymouth Pearls, a group of high school boys who played their home baseball games at the old fairgrounds. Members of the team included (top row from left) John Herdman, Charles Riggs, Sam Spicer, Bert Ray, Reg Oliver, Arthur Todd, (bottom row) Arthur Briggs, William Peck, George Smith, and Floyd Allen. (From "Pictures of Plymouth Past and Present" with permission of the author)

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

A "REST TENT" at the fair was staffed by the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union which had more than 100 members. The tent was equipped with rockers, chairs, a couch, tables, cribs for infants and a variety of home remedies. A popular place with mothers, the rest tent had at least two WCTU members on duty throughout the day.

Many attempts were made to sell liquor at the fair but all were beaten back by the WCTU, the Fair Association and the Village Council. "One year," wrote Mrs. Todd, "the rumor spread that an effort was being made by one of the businessmen to rent the vacant lot across from the Pelham House, where a tent could be set up and a bar installed.

"When he could not secure the use of that corner, he tried to establish some such place directly opposite the front entrance. The people all over that end of town kept things stirred up until they found there was no chance of it being allowed."

The "Plymouth Mail" published a special "Plymouth Fair Daily" during fair days. Women of the community had their own editor and their own staff which sold ads. Clara Todd's mother, Phoebe Patterson, who was Michigan's only woman justice of the peace in the 1920s, was an active participant.

Mamie Conner was not the only one who learned to ride a bicycle on the Fairground race track. "Everyone in town learned to ride his bicycle on that track, including my mother and the Pelham girls," Mrs. Todd recalled. "Poor dad (Melvin Patterson) ran behind them, hanging on to the seat. My mother seemed to know just the minute he let go, and then she usually ran into the fence."

ALTHOUGH the fair closed in 1903, the wooden fence which enclosed it was still there when Clara graduated from high school in 1906. It probably came down in 1907, giving the Patterson's, who lived by the railroad tracks, an unobstructed view "all the way downtown to the point of the park."

The baseball diamond was in use until 1905. After that most games were played at a new high school athletic field built that year back of McLaren's Coal and Lumber yard.

Mrs. Todd remembered that Floral Hall was destroyed by fire on a cold winter's night in 1902. In 1903 the exhibits were held in a big tent. The weather was bad that year. Rain came down most of the week and the grounds were covered with mud. Attendance was poor and the fair was not re-opened in the following year.

All of the property which had been the Fairgrounds became a real estate development known, appropriately, as the Fair-ground Subdivision. Maple Street (formerly Bowery) was extended.

Aside from the memories of those old enough to remember their childhood visits to the Plymouth Fair, more than 70 years ago, the only thing left to remind us that the fair was once a major happening in the life of the community are the names of two streets--Fairground Street, which runs south off Ann Arbor Trail; and Fair Street, which runs west off Mill Street.

My sources for these three articles about the Plymouth Fair were Mamie Conner's journal, Silas Farmer's history, and particularly, Karl Starkweather's letters to me in 1967 and Mrs. Clara Todd's excellent paper which she read to the Plymouth Historical Society in 1954.

These teachers about to become obsolete

Some teachers worry about becoming obsolete, but there is a Livonia resident who is actually planning on it.

Dr. Richard Dahlke of Livonia and Ronald Morash of Ann Arbor believe such "planned obsolescence" is a key to their success as mathematics professors at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

THE TWO PROFESSORS are teaching calculus through the "Keller Plan," a program of individualized instruction which Dahlke describes as "self-paced, mastery-oriented and student tutored.

"Our major educational goal with the Keller Plan courses is to prepare students to learn on their own," explains Dahlke.

As a result, students enrolled in the two courses at UM-D, Calculus I and II, don't attend lectures or turn in specific homework assignments. Instead, they proceed at their own pace through a series of 14 units, which must be completed to pass the course.

EXAMS ARE a basic part of the Keller Plan, but they are exams with a difference — no stigma is attached to failure.

"Because we base our course on 100 per cent mastery of each unit, the student can keep taking the unit exam until he or she passes it, and then move on to the next unit."

As might be expected, most students who actually complete the course receive an A or B for their efforts, which is just fine with the mathematics educator. "I want students to be more concerned with learning than with grades."

STUDENT TUTORS play an important role in the Kellar Plan, which was originally designed about seven years ago by Fred Kefler, a psychologist at University of Arizona.

"While we are on hand during each class to oversee the general working of the course and to confer with students and tutors, it is really the tutors that the students have the closest contact with," says Morash.

The tutors grade the unit exams and answer exam-related questions and problems. "They really have to know what they are doing," adds Morash.

One tutor is Doug Clark of Livonia. Although he thinks the plan "isn't for everyone," Clark also calls his Keller calculus courses "the most satisfying I've ever known."

Clark completed the calculus classes under the Keller Plan before becoming a tutor in the program. He notes that "students aren't afraid to approach me with their problems." He also finds the teaching experience is helpful in other classes.

Clark and other tutors taking Calculus III have designed their own "Keller Plan" to make studying easier and more interesting for the advanced course which is taught in the regular manner.

THE KELLER PLAN isn't without flaws, though.

"It isn't of much value at this point for non-math oriented students — some persons can't get the concepts fast enough to finish all 14 units during the semester," admits Morash.

Early discouragement is another major problem. Almost all of the students in Calculus I are freshmen, and some find the difficulties of coping with the first year of college plus a new concept of teaching a bit too much. "We have to find a way to reduce the frustration and fear that hits some students," says Morash.

The survivors, however, generally find the experience worthwhile. Clark, for one, appreciates the independence that learning how to read math gave him: "I don't need to be spoon-fed anymore."

DAHLKE, who holds a doctorate in math education, believes the long-range benefits of the material and techniques in the plan can be transmitted by students into other courses and into their daily lives.

"The lecture methodology will probably achieve short-range objectives better for some students, but, in the long-run, students will gain the most who learn how to learn."

Dahlke regrets the limited relationship with students he is afforded by the plan but says "you cannot go halfway with individualized instruction." He spends considerable time meeting and working with student tutors, and he and Morash have written about 500 pages of special material for use as "study guides" in the courses.

Dahlke thinks the concept can be easily utilized in many courses, "especially those which involve considerable factual material."

State study to refute federal railroad plans

A just-completed study of Michigan's railroad needs is expected to help the state fight a federal plan to abandon almost one-third of the lines in the state.

The "Michigan Railroad Needs Study" provides an overview of all operating railroads in the state, more as an integrated system than as 23 separate railraods.

Although couched in terms of "developing the required assistance for a healthy and effective railroad transportation system," the study is obviously an effort to counter a federal preliminary plan to cut rail service in the state.

The U.S. Railway Association (USRA), created by 1973 federal legislation to reorganize railroads, is scheduled to issue its preliminary system plan on Feb. 26. Five months later, a final plan will be presented to Congress for implementation.

The USRA plan is expected to detail an integrated railroad system for the northeast quarter of the nation, including abandonment of low density and unprofitable lines, some in Michigan.

Earlier plans by the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) recommended abandonment of more than 15,000 miles of track in the area affected by the federal law—more than 2,000 miles, or one- third of all the track, in Michigan.

Interstate Commerce Commission hearings on the DOT plan indicated "Michigan must be prepared to plan with federal authorities for service retention and improvement later this year," according to John P. Woodford, director of State Highways and Transportation and chairman of Gov. Milliken's Interagency Railroad Task Force.

Five public hearings on the state's study have been scheduled out state to drum up support.

"We hope railroad user groups, communities and businesses dependent on rail service, and the railroad industry itself, will demonstrate interest and support for Michigan railroads by participating in the February public hearings," Woodford said.

The hearing schedule, with times and dates to be announced, is: Feb. 14, Escanaba; Feb. 18, Traverse City; Feb. 19, Saginaw; Feb. 21, Grand Rapids; and Feb. 24, Adrian.

Information on the reports is available from Edgerton W. Bailey, Manager of the Railroad Planning Section, Department of State Highways and Transportation, Lansing 48904.

How consumers are protected against high-pressure salespersons

The next time a door-to-door salesperson comes calling at your home and interests you in a product or service he or she is selling, you should look for new safeguards to resist high-pressure sales tactics.

A Federal Trade Regulation Rule provides, among other things, that you may cancel any order or purchase of $25 or more within three business days.

THIS RULE from the Federal Trade Commission (FIC) strengthens the hand of consumers in many parts of the nation.

In most states, consumers already have had this right to at least a three-day cooling-off period because of state laws that preceded the new FTC regulation.

What the federal provisions does is assure every consumer in the country the same minimum rights in dealing with door-to-door salespersons who are operating in interstate commerce.

Let's suppose, for example, an encyclopedia or vacuum-cleaner salesman knocks on your door hoping to make a quick sale. It doesn't matter whether you invited him ahead of time or he just stopped by unannounced. Either way, to complete a sale, he must furnish you immediately with:

A fully completed receipt or copy of any contract pertaining to the sale in whatever language (English, Spanish, etc.) that was principally used in the oral presentation. This document must show date of sale, name and address of the seller, and (in large type) a statement explaining you may cancel the transaction at any time before midnight of the third business day (not counting Sundays and holidays) after the date of the transaction;

A notice of cancellation, which is a separate form that more fully explains your right to cancel without penalty, plus the wording that may be used in making the cancellation. On this form, the seller must indicate the deadline by which you may cancel te transaction. If you decide to cancel, you can sign this form and deliver or mail it to the seller at an address shown on the form or send a telegram of cancellation;

An oral explanation of your right to cancel. The seller isn't allowed to ask you to sign a waiver of any of these rights, so don't be fooled into thinking that by buying something you really want (or think you want at the time) you have to give up your right to cancel the order within three days.

NOW LET'S suppose the salesperson has satisfied all these requirements and has convinced you to sign a sales contract.

Perhaps you have even made a down payment in cash or check, or have given up your old vacuum cleaner as a trade-in.

But then, the minute after the salesperson has gone out the door, or after you have had a chance to discuss the sale with your spouse or friends, you decide the price is too high or you really don't need whatever you agreed to buy. You want to cancel. What do you do?

The Better Business Bureaus suggest you, first, make sure you date and sign the notice of cancellation the buyer left with you at the time of sale. Then deliver or mail it before the three-day deadline expires.

And if it's already the evening of the final day, you could help to avoid a possible dispute by mailing the notice at a main post office or putting it in a mail box where the mail will be picked up and post marked before midnight.

If you cancel during the three-day cooling-off period, the seller then--within 10 business days--must:

- Refund any payment you have already made.
- Return any item you traded in, in substantially as good condition as it was when the seller took it.
- Cancel and return any contract, agreement, check or other negotiable item you signed in connection with the sale.
- Make arrangements to have picked up at your house--or have you send back at the seller's expense--any goods which were left with you in connection with the sale. If the seller doesn't make such arrangements within ten business days after receipt of your notice of cancellation, or if he or she fails to pick up the goods within 20 days of the date of your notice of cancellation, you may keep them at no obligation.

AS ALREADY noted, these procedures are minimum steps required under the new FTC Rule.

If you have questions about the regulations that apply in your area, contact your nearest Better Business Bureau, or your state or local government consumer office.

Meanwhile, If you have difficulties with a door-to-door salesperson, who doesn't appear to be following requirements of federal rules, you can complain to your Better Business Bureau or to the Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, DC 20580.

BBB investigates phony job offers

The state of the economy and the high unemployment rate in the Detroit area make job hunting a painfully competitive and frustrating experience.

This frustration leaves persons desperate for any implied promise of employment, says Katherine Manley, director of consumer service for the Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Metropolitan Detroit.

Consequently, the BBB is closely monitoring advertised job opportunities, which may turn out to be come-ons for job "training" requiring some investment and long months of minimal earning time.

As an example, the BBB is now reviewing the operation of a northwest Detroit firm (International Employes Association, 18505 Eight Mile). Ads without company identification have been run recently in the "help wanted" columns of a local newspaper for key punch trainees.

Persons interested in the ads have reported to the BBB that no actual position is offered or described as available. The bureau's research has indicated the firm is licensed as an employment agency.

Bureau personnel posing as applicants over the telephone have been told by International Employees Association they would probably need further training before placement, and their training may be paid through government funding or by grants from the City of Detroit.

Thus far, BBB representatives have been unable to find a city or federal government agency wich verifies the funding claimed by the firm, says Ms. Manley.

Part of the screening process for applicants involves determining their financial status based on 1973 federal income tax returns. Suitable applicants are interviewed by the firm and charged a $20 "processing fee."

Because there are many highly reputable employment agencies in the Detroit area, the BBB urges residents to check thoroughly before committing themselves to any "training" programs, and to assure themselves of the professional level of any employment agency from whom they seek assistance while job hunting.

Awrey Bakeries loses labor case

Awrey Bakeries, Inc., headquartered in Livonia, has been found guilty of violating federal law by refusing to bargain properly with a union selected by its employes in Flint.

The decision against Awrey was made recently by Administrative Law Judge Thomas A. Ricci, a judge for the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) in Detroit.

After completion of the administrative trial, the NLRB ordered Awrey Bakeries to reinstate to their former positions seven employes who had been fired. The employes will also receive back pay dating to their discharge on July 8, 1974, plus six per cent interest.

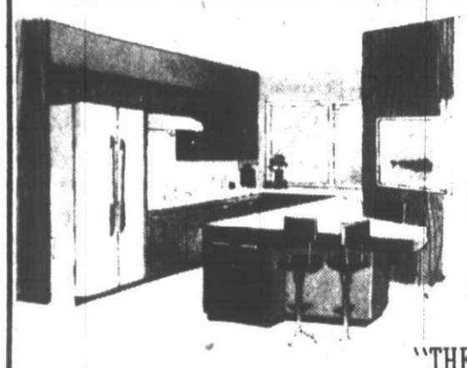

The case involved seven women employed by Awrey as hostesses of baked goods in seven of the Hamady retail chain stores in Flint.

They were dismissed after Awrey decided its drivers would deliver stock directly to the shelves inside the stores instead of leaving them at the store loading platforms.

Judge Ricci said Awrey erred by making the decision unilaterally without first notifying the union, representing the seven women, of the impending discharges and changes in working plans.

"Bargaining, in the intendment of the statute, not only means meeting with union agents and in good faith discussing matters with them at their request," said Ricci, "but it also means not running the business — where it affects the employes — as though the union didn't exist, or in a way that the cases refer to as 'unilaterally.'"

Meijer realigns executive jobs

Several management appointments have been made by the board of directors of Meijer, Inc., the Grand Rapids-based firm which operates a hypermarket at Ford and Canton Center roads in Canton Township.

Fred Meijer will assume the post of chairman of the board and continue as chief executive officer. Succeeding him as president will be Harvey E. Leemen, formerly executive vice-president. Lemmen will continue as general manager.

Earl D. Holton has been named executive vice-president and will continue his duties as assistant general manager.

GEZINA MEIJER, who has served as chairman of the board, was designated chairman of the board emerita. She is the widow of Hendrik Meijer, founder of Meijer, Inc., and the mother of Fred Meijer.

"The promotion of Lemmen and Holton is in recognition of the duties they have already assumed," explains Meijer. "It has always been my desire to develop a strong management responsible to our family of employes as well as our customers and the public.

"As long-time Meijer employes, they have contributed to the development of the Meijer philosophy and well-being of our company.

"In their new positions, they will further enhance our management capability to lead the growth of our independent chain of Meijer supermarkets and Meijer Thrifty Acres hypermarkets."

LEMMEN, 52, joined Meijer in 1949 as accountant and office manager.

He was appointed merchandising director in 1961, vice president-general manager in 1970, and executive vice-president in 1973. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, with a BBA in 1944 and an MBA in 1949.

Holton, 41, joined Meijer in 1952 as a clerk, moving up to store management positions and becoming district manager in 1960. Promoted to operations manager the next year, Holton was subsequently named vice president-operations in 1966 and senior vice-president and assistant general manager in 1973. Holton presently

State reacts too slowly on 'big ditch' barriers

Will it take a death or two to awaken the State Highway Commission to the fact that work on the I-96 freeway along Schoolcraft Road in Redford Township and Livonia has turned it into a gigantic death trap? Or did a near-fatal accident in front of Thurston High finally get the ball rolling?

Those are the questions students of Thurston, residents of Redford Township and the thousands of drivers who use the highway daily are asking.

They know it is a dangerous situation. They have read about the dangers in a series of editorials in these columns in the past few months. They have read about an accident that all but took the life of a young father who is still receiving therapy months after the incident.

They know about the accident less than two weeks ago involving two members of the Thurston High swim varsity, one of whom suffered a fractured vertebra and faces a long period of rehabilitation.

R. T. Thompson writes

They have heard of the senior at Thurston, a teen girl, who skidded and rolled over the deep embankment into the "big ditch" but fortunately escaped with minor bruises and a wrecked car.

They have heard of another accident in front of the school that included five girls, none of whom was seriously injured, but their car was totaled when it skidded over the edge of the wide open embankment and rolled over and over to the bottom of the excavation of what one day will be a depressed highway.

WHAT IS THE REASON for all of these accidents? An excavation for a superhighway— often as deep as 50 feet, with no safety barriers along the sides of the service roads, and long spans where the edge of the curb and the "ditch" are less than six feet apart.

One doesn't need imagination to know what happens if a car starts to skid, hits the curb, swerves and flips into the deep "ditch." It's small wonder the corridor hasn't become known as a death trap. Probably the only reason is that there haven't been any fatalities, only injuries that have crippled persons for life.

Who is responsible for lack of safety barriers?

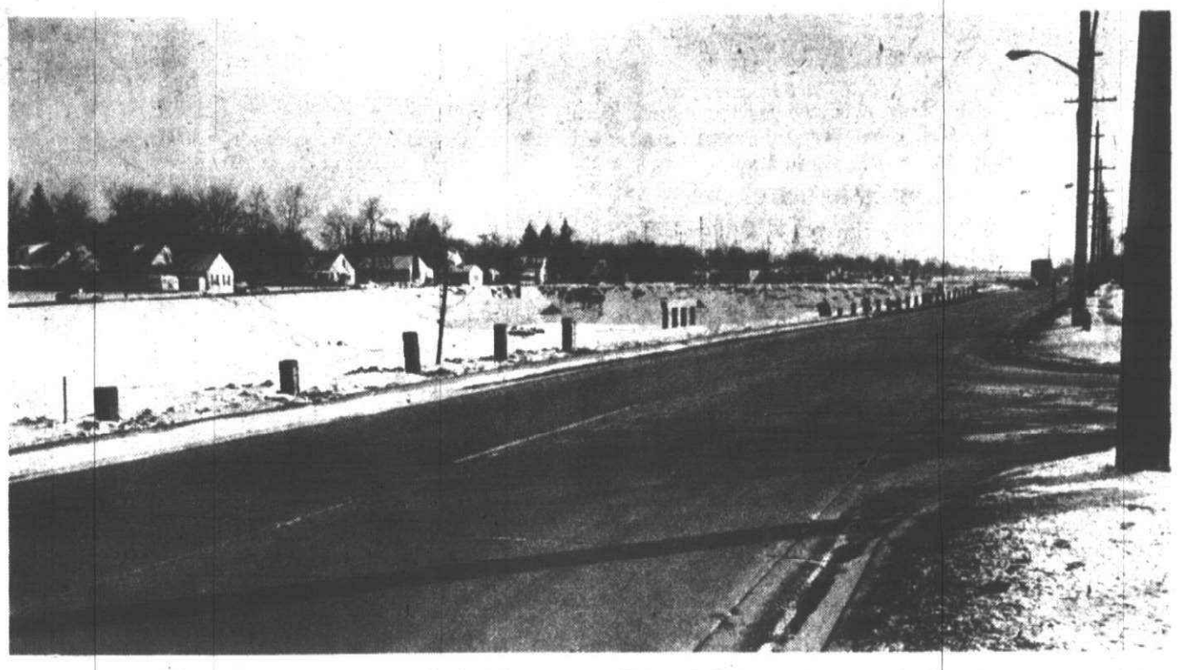

That has to lie with a State Highway Commission, which hasn't enforced contracts signed by firms installing the depressed highway. It is our understanding that each contract has a clause which calls for the contractors to install safety barriers at every T intersection going north or south into Schoolcraft where digging has taken place.

Since the Schoolcraft or I-96 freeway originally was scheduled for completion in 1972 and since this is 1975 and it still appears to be a long way from being near a ribbon-cutting ceremony, it would appear the State Highway Commission should explain the delays or explain why it is taking so long.

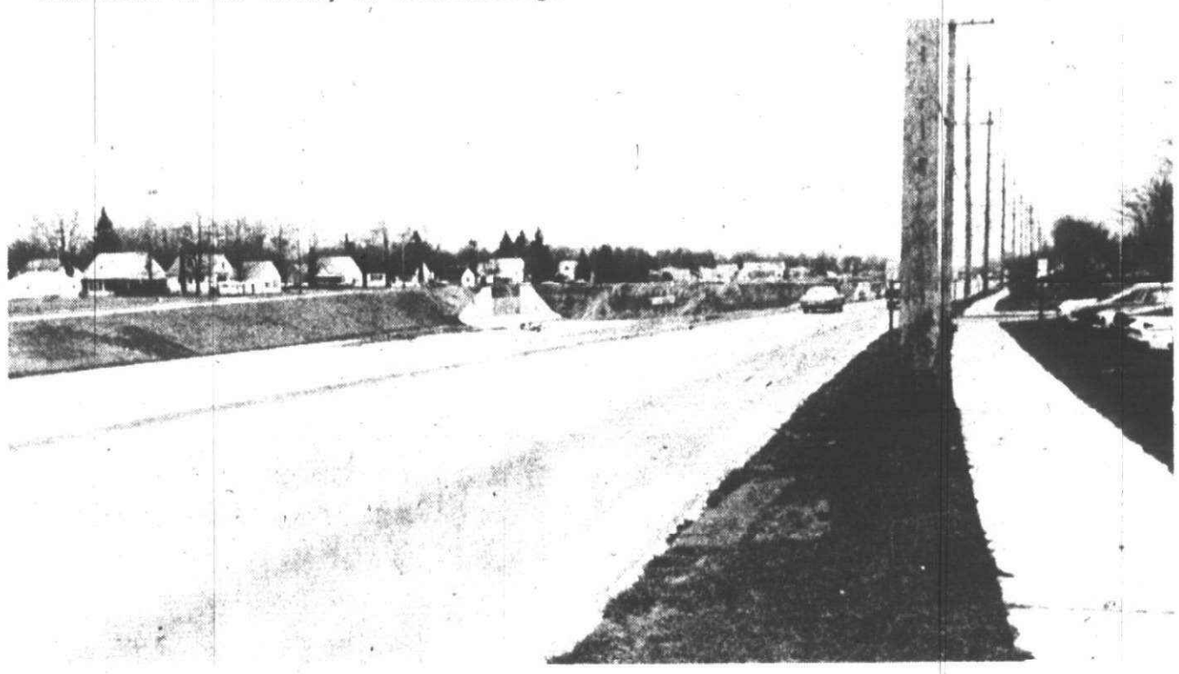

Further, it should be thoroughly explained why safety barriers haven't been erected as agreed to in contracts.

THIS NEWSPAPER started a campaign for safety barriers last fall, pointing to the wide open areas in Livonia and in Redford Township where eastbound motorists are very close to the edge of the embankment with no protection.

The campaign actually started when it was pointed out that trucks hauling dirt on the westbound lane were driving side by side and holding up long lines of traffic.

AT LEAST workers have installed poles to which steel sheets will be attached for safety barriers along the eastbound lanes of Schoolcraft Road in the vicinity of Thurston High School. This work started after the most recent accident in front of the school. (Staff photos by Maurie Walker)

THIS IS ANOTHER picture of the same eastbound lane showing no barriers of any type and showing how close autos are to the edge of the "big ditch."

This was quickly corrected, probably because the earth moving companies informed their drivers to conform with the laws and get to the right as quickly as possible. We haven't seen any trucks going side by side since... a big hand to the drivers and to their bosses.

Then came a complaint about the amount of dirt being dropped on Schoolcraft by trucks which made driving very slippery in rainy or snowy weather. We don't know how this was corrected, but very quickly the matter was straightened out and earth on the highway no longer was a problem. Another tip of the topper to the drivers and their bosses.

In the meantime, there was a constant query about why the State Highway Department was not doing anything about erecting safety barriers at the most dangerous points along the lengthy I-96 freeway.

THEN CAME THE NIGHT when a young father missed a turn and roared over the side and down the embankment, suffering near fatal injuries that find him taking therapy now, several months after the accident.

Then, and only then, did the State Highway Department show even mild interest in the situation. That came after the writer arranged a tour with the head of the traffic division in Wayne County. Paul Riley, accompanied by State Sen. Carl Pursell, made a tour of the highway. All of the most dangerous spots were pointed out, and emphasis was placed on the fact that the entire corridor was dangerous and should have safety barriers from Telegraph to Newburgh roads.

Indications were given then that such barriers would be erected within three or four weeks.

Despite the fact that Sen. Pursell notified State Highway Director John Woodford of the situation and State Rep. Robert Geake followed with a similar letter a few days later, nothing was done.

Then came the accident involving the two swimmers. The Observer & Eccentric immediately notified Riley of the latest accident and was referred to a higher authority, Bruce LaFrance, senior district engineer.

LA FRANCE SAID a meeting had been held with the contractors, who had been told to move as quickly as possible to install the guard rails at all T intersections with north or south approaches to the freeway and to line the road with striped barrels along the edge of the road.

LaFrance said there are an awful lot of intersections with costs of between $40,000 and $50,000 to the contractors. The answer is that it has taken an awful long time to order them installed and the contractors knew when they signed the contract they were going to have this expense.

However, LaFrance's message to the contractors must have reached home in a hurry. No later than two days after the latest accident, crews were busy erecting barriers at the exits from Thurston High onto Schoolcraft and at other points along the eastbound lane.

There still remains a long span which is now protected by striped barrels, and we don't think that is enough. There has been some limited work on the westbound lane, but basically the dangerous open area still exists on the opposite side of the highway from the high school building.

Meanwhile, Thurston students are circulating petitions throughout Redford Township demanding the State Highway Department take action immediately to correct the dangers surrounding the "big ditch."

Eccentricities

A man who fought uphill

No one can seriously doubt that this country is faced with many problems—fighting inflation, a recession and developing an energy conservation program among them.

The president has made some proposals, and in the last week Congress has attempted to scuttle each and every one of them without any demonstrated program of its own, to this point.

It seems as though the country is drifting, and you can't blame the people for having a feeling of despair.

WITH THESE PROBLEMS facing the country, it is appropriate to write this week about a man who faced many odds.

He failed in business in '31.

He ran and was defeated for the state legislature in '32.

He failed again in business in '33.

He was finally elected to the state legislature in '34.

His sweetheart died in '35.

He had a nervous breakdown in '36.

He was defeated for the speakership of the state house in '38.

He was defeated for presidential elector in '40.

He was defeated for Congress in '43.

He was finally elected to Congress in '46.

His successor in his own party was defeated in '48.

He ran and was defeated for the U.S. Senate in '55.

AND HE WAS ELECTED the 16th president of the United States in 1860.

This repeated failure was none other than Abraham Lincoln.

His record should be an inspiration to those who feel they are always facing an uphill battle with few tangible results.

Lincoln, in his own time, was not considered a great man. He was accused of splitting the Republic with his meddling in what we now call "civil rights."

Even the speech he made at Gettysburg was considered trite by the press of his time.

Yet it has survived long after its critics were buried.

And it is still appropriate today as the democratic system has been threatened.

". . .That this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

There is still hope for our nation.

Boosting car sales

Rebates good, but why not cut prices?

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

It took quite a while, but there's finally some good news for the suburbs. The auto industry's rebate plan is working!

In a special Observer & Eccentric poll of local auto dealers, it was commonplace to hear such remarks as "fantastic," "wonderful" and "best sales in years."

Dealers along Telegraph and Twelve Mile Roads in Southfield reported the best sales in many months during the first weeks of the rebate period. In Troy, where a large collection of dealers is located off Maple Road, salesmen were pleased that many customers were buying models on which no rebate plan applies.

"Our floor traffic increased about 50 per cent right after the bonus plan was announced," said Hugh Coughlin, sales manager at Bill Brown Ford on Plymouth Road in Livonia. "Our sales are up about 75 per cent," reported Rick Tonkinson, sales manager at B. J. Ratigan Chrysler Plymouth down the street.

John Chott, at Gene Merollis Chevrolet, on Ford Road in Garden City, called the past January "the best month we've ever had, "estimating that the dealership sold between 175 and 200 cars in the first few weeks after the rebates went into effect.

Clarence DuCharme, president of Fiesta Motors, an AMC dealership on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, enthused: "In four days we did more business than in the previous 20."

SEVERAL COMMON trends stand out from the survey:

•The rebate plan vastly increased traffic in showrooms -- some cases as much as 300 or 400 per cent.

•The old dealer axiom, you can't get sales without showroom traffic, proved accurate, as sales increases closely followed traffic increases.

•Unexpectedly, there was almost as much interest in models on which rebates were not offered as in those covered by the plan.

•The rebate plan appears to have stimulated confidence in customers that things will get better, so they are willing to even buy cars not covered by rebates.

One dealer summed up: "I think people are excited and have a new air of confidence. They think this is going to get the ball rolling again.... There are people who are laid off -- I'm not an ostrich with my head in a hole. But the people who are working have money."

QUITE TRUE, and even many of the workers laid off have SUB funds coming in to keep the wolf from the door.

That's what distinguishes the present recession from the depression of the 1930s, and that in turn is why business leaders here in the suburbs are guardedly optimistic instead of terrified.

The success of the rebate plan is an enormously important symbol for everyone in this area, which is so dependent on the health of the auto industry.

BUT WHY, one wonders, did we have to wait so long for price reductions (the net effect of the rebate plan) to be instituted to stimulate sales?

One possible answer was suggested recently by University of Michigan Business School Prof. Ross Wilhelm. He points to 1971, when the Nixon administration suddenly imposed price control and caught a lot of companies with their prices down. Without effective price relief from the feds, these companies found themselves in a terrible profit squeeze.

This time around, Wilhelm suggests, nobody wanted to get caught out in the cold again. Which is why the price cutting took the form of a rebate plan, and why the rebate plan itself is being limited in duration to the end of this month. Then, at a minimum, the industry will be protected if Congress suddenly decides to push a price freeze on the economy.

Wilhelm's point is clear: We are still suffering from the unsuccessful experiment with economic controls by a federal government ill-equipped to do anything of the sort.

College followed right hiring procedures

Editor:

Reference is made to your article in the Jan. 30 edition of the paper regarding the National Organization for Women (NOW) objections to the hiring of Mrs. Christensen for a staff position with Schoolcraft College.

Your reporter quoted me correctly, but he only printed part of my statement. I said, "The selection of Mrs. Christenson was none of NOW's darn business or any business of the board of trustees as it is the responsibility of the college administration to fill open positions on their staff."

In spite of statements in trustee Rosina Raymond's so-called position paper, it is only the responsibility of trustees to see that the administration fairly follows approved procedures in the searching for, screening and selection, and not to determine which applicant is most qualified.

Before Mrs. Vukmirovich (of NOW) sent her letter of Dec. 29 directly to the board of trustees, she did not contact Dr. Grote, the president; Dr. Keene, the vice president fhr institutional affairs; or Mr. Munroe, director of personnel, to find out what procedures were followed in the selection of Mrs. Christensen. Nor, for that matter, did Mrs. Raymond before writing her so-called position paper.

If they had done this, they would have found the opening was posted to the faculty and advertised in The Detroit News and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, and they received 118 applications, including one male with a doctor's degree.

Mr. Griffith, the director of community affairs, and Mr. Munroe, director of personnel, reviewed all 118 applications and reduced them to 10 for further consideration.

Mr. Munroe, Mr. Griffith and Mrs. Betty Andrews, assistant to the director of community affairs for senior adults, reviewed and reduced the number to six.

READERS FORUM

Limit letters to 300 words.

Mr. Griffith, Mr. Munroe, Dr. Keene and Mrs. Andrews interviewed these six applicants and reduced the list to two. By mutual agreement, they agreed as to the one applicant they thought best qualified and sent their recommendation and the applicant's file to President Grote for final confirmation, and she was hired.

Therefore, it seems to me the administration fairly followed the approved procedures.

Which adults, which animals?

Editor:

The epitome of many neighbors' lack of concern for the peace of others is reflected in their attitudes with their dogs.

Some will only let their animals out very early or very late. After barking for maybe 15 mintues and awakening others who don't keep the same hours, they are brought in. Others will not allow their animals out when most people are sleeping but will allow them to bark, howl, yip and whine all day.

Many people are in a noisy environment all day due to employment and would welcome the quiet after coming home to an otherwise peaceful neighborhood. After being awakened early every morning and late every night month after month, it becomes very annoying and could be stopped so easily.

Try talking to the individuals? That was the biggest mistake of all. Nothing will create hostility quicker than suggesting control of a person's animal.

Comment on their children, lawn or life-style and you can remain friends if they are adult, but try to receive cooperation in regard to a problem animal, and it seems the only way is to initiate court action. Suddenly they are not adults but hostile children, and the friendship is gone, all over a dog.

Perhaps they see the animal as an extension of their own mentality. One or several families cannot carry much legal weight if they are surrounded by people who care only for themselves. Our family would really like to live in peace, and if your newspaper could do anything to make people more aware of the friendships that are being lost because of dog owners' disregard for others, it would be much appreciated.

I sincerely believe this is a legitimate complaint, but because of the hostility and viciousness that it has brought out in otherwise rational adults, it is not in my family's interest to have any names mentioned. The way my wife and children are now treated over this is another story. It really makes me wonder which of our neighbors are the rational adults and which are their animals.

Near misses on Middle Belt

Editor:

Can something be done about the asinine markings on Middle Belt between Industrial Drive and Schoolcraft? At Industrial Drive, there is a left turn lane marked on the road, and at Schoolcraft at the bridge, a left turn lane, but between the two sections the lanes northbound swing into the center and out again.

Drivers do not follow the painted lines, such as they are, but follow the concrete lanes. About half way, cars move over in front of those on the left—near misses are too close.

How about making that left turn section at Industrial Drive and Schoolcraft one lane and painted so it can be seen, or am I asking something that can't be done because the Highway Department can't see the problem?

That railroad bridge is still a year away from completion, and traffic on Middle Belt has always been one big pain.

By making those lanes straight from Schoolcraft to Industrial Drive, I know traffic will move in some kind of order.

Retail unionizing intensifies

By ALICE COLLINS

A major drive for unionization of retail store employes in the Detroit metropolitan area has developed in the wake of post- Christmas economic layoffs at Sears, J. L. Hudsons and other retail giants.

Organizing director Joe Ferrante of Retail Store Employes Union local 876 said more than 50 per cent of the 2,300 employes at Sears stores at the Macomb Mall, Lincoln Park and the Livonia Mall have petitioned the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) for a hearing and and unionization vote.

The signatures of only 30 per cent of the employes in a store are required to secure the hearing, Ferrante explained.

NLRB petition siging is also going on in Sears stores and outlets throughout Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties.

"The need for job security is the reason for the big push," Ferrante said.

He said Hudsons employes in the downtown store have already had an NLRB hearing and are waiting for an election to be scheduled.

Retail Store Employes local 876 now represents some 23,000 employes in the metropolitan area including three Sears stores in downtown Detroit, the Korvette stores, and six Montgomery Ward stores, according to Ferrante.

THE RECENT Sears drive for representation started at the Macomb Mall, hit hard by the job terminations. Twenty-seven of those laid off brought suit in Oakland County Circuit Court to get their jobs back, charging the store with "unfairly retaining part-time Christmas help and letting full-time employes go."

Judge William J. Beer on Feb. 5 denied a motion by Sears for a summary judgment against the employes and set the case for trial on Feb. 21.

Since the original filing of the suit, Detroit Attorney V. Paul Donnelly said another 50 plaintiffs have joined the case from among 590 workers laid off for economic reasons at 18 area stores. Donnelly is representing the laid off employes in the suit.

The employes claim they are victims of "unfair, wrongful, malicious and retaliatory termination in employment contrary to oral agreements in reference to pensions and profit sharing."

AT THE TIME of the firings, Sears officials said 590 persons were terminated for economic reasons. The former employes have charged the number of firings was higher than the company's claim and that they were being replaced by part-time workers whose salaries are lower and who receive no fringe benefits.

Many of the people fired said they had worked for nearly five years, the time when they would have gained a vested interest in Sears profit sharing plan.

The suit claims the company fired the employes without regard to seniority.

"We wouldn't be angry if Sears had done it the way Hudsons handled their situation," said Ben Emberton, chairman of the committee of terminated employes. "Hudson's didn't terminate but laid off employes on a day-to-day basis, and according to seniority."

Detroit Attorney Richard L. Lehman, representing Sears in the suit, has labeled the employes' charges "great rhetoric" only serving to give the employes "false hope."

The Sears suit was filed in Oakland County because the company's regional office is at the Oakland Mall in Troy.

Most cities underassessed

All but one municipalitity in the Observer & Eccentric area have assessed real property locally below 50 per cent of true market value, as required by the Michigan Constitution.

As a result, the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation will apply a multiplier against each local tax base to raise it to 50 per cent of true market value. This multiplier is the state equalized valuation (SEV) factor.

THE ONLY municipality to be assessed at 50 per cent is Garden City, which subsequently has an SEV multiplier of 1.00.

Livonia, however, has assessed its property during 1974 at only 23.88 per cent of true market value and faces an SEV multiplier of 2.10. The affect is that the city's tax base will be raised by 110 per cent.

Redford Township is assessed locally at only 20.27 per cent — requiring an SEV factor of 2.47 to be imposed by the county to meet constitutional requirements.

Canton Township is near the state requirement with local assessments at 47.04 per cent and an SEV factor of 1.07.

Plymouth Township's local valuation is at 44.82 per cent of true market value requiring a factor of 1.12 — a 12 per cent increase in the township's total tax base.

The City of Plymouth is almost at 50 per cent with local valuation at 47.24 requiring a factor of 1.06. The City of Westland, however, is assessed locally at only 31.1 per cent, requiring an SEV multiplier of 1.61.

Area showdown is no contest

Salem's 'little men' bump off Glenn

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

The 32 minute clash on the hardwood court that had been labeled the area cage showdown simply wasn't.

It was a 15-1 Westland John Glenn team invading Plymouth Salem that sported a 13-2 mark.

The invasion never came.

Fred Thomann's Plymouth Rocks thumped Glenn, 67-54.

It was simply no contest.

The battle between Plymouth's big men and Glenn's hot shooters was never to be. It was Salem's "little men" who throttled Glenn, and the Rocket shooting game was pressured into playing catch-up the entire night and just never panned out.

"It was just a bad game," commented Glenn Coach Gordie Davis after his squad's lowest output of the season.

"Plymouth's guards really caught us off guard and that, coupled with a bad night, did us in. We fell behind early and had to play catch up, and we never did adjust back into a game plan."

For Thomann and his Plymouth Rocks, it was a step into the area's No. 1 cage slot and one really has to wonder these days just to the hows and whys of Salem actually losing to a now 9-8 Bentley team.

It was obvious from the opening tipoff that Glenn was going to key on Salem's big men, 6-foot-10 Eric Agardy and 6-foot-8 Jim Ellinghausen.

Thomann pulled a switch and his three guards, Dan Moore, Brian Wolcott and Tim Dillon, actually took charge on the court, aided by reserver John Maloney and Howard Inch.

This had to be a complete opposite of the contest with Belleville a week prior when Agardy and Ellinghausen scored 50 of the Rock's 59 points in a 66-59 losing effort.

Glenn stopped Agardy, who had been averaging more than 20 points per game, with a season low of six. Ellinghausen came up with 19 but the big stoxy was in the guards.

Moore popped in 12, Wolcott added 11 and Dillon pumped in seven. Maloney added seven and Inch two.

Salem danced right off to a 17-11 first quarter lead. Both teams scored 13 in the second to make it 30-24 at the half. That six point spread had to be contributed to the charity line where Salem made good six of eight and Glenn only four of 11.

The Rocks all but blew the Rockets off the floor in the third.

Ellinghausen scored six, and Salem romped to a 22-10 advantage to carry a 52-34 lead into the final eight minutes. The rest was a mere formality as the Rocks wrapped up their 16th straight victory at home.

Salem hosts Allen Park tomorrow (Friday) and the Rockets of Glenn can sew up the Northwest Suburban loop with a win at Garden City East. Box score:

Aggies blitz Clarenceville

A cheerless streak is over for the cagers of St. Agatha High.

After 62 games spanning four seasons, the Aggies finally won two consecutive contests.

Since Jan. 21, 1972, when the Aggies bounced St. Hedwig, 59-56, St. Agatha has won only eight and lost 54 and had failed to win two straight 32 minute clashes.

The unwanted string came to a halt Tuesday in the Aggie gym.

And ironically enough it happened against a club that also broke the same sort of streak four weeks prior.

St. Agatha whipped the Trojans of Clarenceville, 66-49, and it was this same Clarenceville team that snapped a 55 game string of failing to put together two straight wins.

"The kids just did a super job," commented Aggie Coach Jim George. "Defense was the name of the game and we did it all."

It was the third win overall this season for the first year mentor against 14 losses. For Clarenceville it was setback No. 13 in 17 outings.

It was also revenge for the Aggies, who fell to Clarenceville

After an 8-8 first quarter, the Aggies pushed ahead at the half, 31-27. The third quarter all but wrapped things up for the Aggies as they hit for 20 points while holding the Trojans to just eight.

Gary Beyrand popped in 10 of his 18 points for the Aggies in that stanza and Greg Sipus seven of his game high 21.

The Aggies also came up with their season's "best" in the shooting department with 25 for 56 for 45 per cent. Clarenceville wound up 18 of 61 for 30 per cent.

St. Agatha hosts Orchard Lake Waterford Friday (Feb. 14) while the Trojans travel to Bloomfield Andover. Box score:

ST. AGATHA (66): Beyrand, 9--0-0--18; Brazzil, 3--3-5--9; Sipus, 7--7-8--21; Higgins, 2--3-7--7; Ruvolo, 4--3-5--11. TOTALS, 25--16-25--66.

GC West Tigers destroy Melvindale, 75-60

By JIM BRADLEY

"Our team came of age tonight. They knew they had to do the job without our top scorer, Mike Susko, and they did a great job."

The speaker was Chris Babler whose Garden City West Tigers had just finished riddling the nets with a 71 per cent shooting spree in ripping first place Melvindale, 75-60, to throw the Tri-River League race into a three-way tie for first.

Babler's Tigers, playing with the 6-foot-6 Susko who was in bed with the flu, upped their Tri-River record to 10-2 to tie them with Melvindale and Cherry Hill.

West has a golden chance to share the league championship as it faces Shafer and Southgate in its two remaining conference games. Meanwhile, favored Cherry Hill invades Melvindale tomorrow night and the loser will probably be bounced out of any chance for the title while the winner should share pennant honors with West.

"They came of age tonight," Babler repeated in the exhilarating atmosphere of victory. It was the second time the Tigers had dealt the Cards a loss, in fact the only two defeats in the league for Wes Danyo's squad.

"I knew I had to go with seven players because of Susko's illness and Tom Poole's injury, and everybody did the job to perfection," Babler exclaimed.

"I've been waiting for weeks for the boys to play together like this and tonight they really did the job," the veteran West mentor pointed out just moments after his club had defeated Melvindale before a packed Parent's Night crowd.

Playing without the flu-stricken Susko, who carries an 18-point average, West sent guard Dave Niles and forward Randy Shelly to the gunnery range in the first half and it paid handsome dividends.

Niles was magnificent in canning six of six in the first quarter and seven of 10 in the half to chalk up 21 points. Shelley, who hasn't quite played up to his potential this year, did it all Tuesday night. He was a strong force on the boards and caught the infectious shooting touch of Niles as he ripped the cords with seven baskets in nine shots the first half in gunning 16 points.

"I told Randy he could do the job if he would only buckle down and execute the way he can," Babler pointed out. "Shelley did a great job on the boards and had his highest scoring night of the season." West led handily at the quarters, 24-16, 43-26 and 57-41.

Niles finished with 23 points and Shelley 18 as West's second-half scoring was divided between "Babler's Bullpen" who came off the bench and did a fine job. The other starter, Gary Hutnik, chipped in 12 points.

Ron Carr and Terry Bradley did an outstanding job, according to Babler, in scoring eight and seven points, respectively, and playing tough defense.

In fact, he considered one of the most satisfying things about the game to be the play of the four-guard offense when his big men got into foul trouble.

I had to use Niles, Chavis, Carr and Bradley as well as forward Hutnik when Shelley and Gooch drew their fourth fouls," Babler pointed out. "And Melvindale couldn't cut into our lead even with our shorter players in the game."

While Susko was sick at home, Melvindale coach Danyo was "sick at heart."

Stellar junior guard Rick Charney again led the Cardinals with 17 points and lefty Jim Lankford added 12.

Stevenson slaps Edsel Ford, 84-75

It was "charity night" at Stevenson High.

The Spartan cagers did all the taking and Dearborn Edsel Ford all the giving.

Making good 40 of 49 free throws, Stevenson romped to an 84-75 non-league victory over the Thunderbirds of Edsel Ford.

"It was a real pitchers' battle," joked Stevenson coach George VanWagoner whose now 13-5 crew has two remaining Inter-Lakes battles on tap to close out the season.

"Edsel Ford kept right on fouling us and we kept right on making good from the line," he added.

Edsel Ford won the field goal game hands down with a 31 for 55 performance for 56 per cent. Stevenson hit on 22 of only 48 shots for 46 per cent.

Heading up the Stevenson attack at the charity line was Rob Rose with 11 popped in out of 11 attempts and Jim Mikula with an eight for 10 showing.

Edsel Ford was called for 33 fouls while Stevenson committed just 16 and Ford hitting on 13 of 21 at the line.

It was 15-15 at the end of one quarter. The Spartans then exploded for 25 points in the second, Ron Colone and Dave Haberman hitting for eight each and Rose for seven, and Stevenson had a 40-31 lead at the half.

Stevenson won the third quarter, 24-19, and despite Edsel Ford slicing it to five points midway in the fourth, held on to lead at the end by nine.

The Spartans are at Milford Lakeland tomorrow (Friday) and travel to Farmington in the loop finale on Feb. 21. Box score:

RU rolls over Thurston, 69-48

Redford Union basketball coach Carl Andrews was all smiles.

For the first time in two years, his Panther crew sported five players in double figures.

And after suffering two setbacks to Redford Township rival Thurston last year, Andrews' RU team set things straight this time around.

RU beat a path to the free throw line and knocked down the Eagles of Thurston, 69-48. It was win No. 8 for RU against nine setbacks and for Bill Croteau's Thurston crew, loss No. 10 in 17 contests.

"You know, I don't usually like to complain about officiating," said Croteau. "..ut this one really left something to behold. It was just one of those nights."

Thurston was called for 20 fouls and RU made good 27 of 34 charity tosses while RU was hit for 11 fouls and Thurston connected on four of six at the line.

The field goal game saw Thurston pump in 22 of 47 for 47 per cent and RU 21 of 50 for 42 per cent.

RU's players in double figures consisted of Tom Sweeney with 10, Ted Ackerman with 12, Tom Helzer with 13, Craig Hill with 14, and Randy Aardal with 10.

RU hosts Edsel Ford tomorrow (Friday) while Thurston hosts Franklin. Box score:

Northville Mustangs pummel floundering Franklin, 73-61

The Patriots of Franklin High were once again gracious on the hardwood court.

"We gave away another one," commented Coach Bob Visser after watching his cagers drop No. 13 in 73-61 style to the Mustangs of Northville.

"We gave Northville just about every second shot it wanted."

This 13th setback for Visser and his crew equals the number of defeats Franklin complied the past two years in 22-4 and 15-9 showings.

"Things just haven't panned out at all," added a frustrated Franklin coach whose 3-13 team is at Thurston High tomorrow (Friday) in a Northwest loop battle.

Northville won the rebound battle, 40-24, and hit on 30 of 52 from the floor for 58 per cent. Franklin shot 37 per cent, 20 of 54.

It was Northville, 17-10, after one quarter, and 34-21 at the half. An 18-12 third period margin made it a walkaway in the fourth. Box score:

Panthers now 9-7

Fordson mauls GC East, 73-57

A shaken Garden City East team hopes to pull itself together for tomorrow night's crucial Northwest Suburban League showdown with Westland John Glenn in the Panthers' gym.

Glenn is 8-0 in first place and the second place Panthers (7-1) must upset the Rockets if they hope to tie for first place. The Rockets, who easily won the first round game with East, 66-57, had their 14-game winning streak snapped in convincing fashion, 67-54, at Plymouth Salem.

However, an accident to Garden City East guard Jim Peter overshadowed the Panthers' 73-57 drubbing at the hands of Fordson Tuesday night.

Peter, a hustling 5-foot-5 bundle of energy, fell to the floor in a pileup in the second quarter and had to be rushed to Dearborn's Oakwood Hospital by his father. Coach Billy Joe Young, heartsick over the injury, went to the hospital as soon as the game was over and stayed after midnight to see how Jim was doing.

Fordson's Tractors plowed through East's defense in running to quarter leads of 18-11, 38-20 and 58-34 before coasting home.

In the Tractor's driver's seat was 6-foot-3 guard Keith Szajnecki with 24 points and teammates John Gajor and Gary Sipos stayed in gear with 18 and 10 respectively. Gajor, a 6-4 center, dominated the boards with 17 rebounds.

East had two players in double figures as forward Ken Tomaszewski pumped in 18 and center Greg Emery tallied 14.

Are you one of the 40 million people who will retire without a pension?

Now there's good news from NBD. If you have no employer-sponsored retirement plan, read how we can help you take advantage of a new tax shelter to create a substantial retirement income for yourself.

Under a new federal law, millions of wage and salary earners can now set aside as much as $1500 of tax-free income annually for their retirement.

To help you take maximum advantage of this new tax shelter, National Bank of Detroit now offers Individual Retirement Accounts—special savings accounts that can multiply a surprisingly modest investment into a substantial retirement nestegg.

A double tax savings.

The boon of an NBD Individual Retirement Account is that both the money you put into it, and the interest your money earns while on deposit, are tax exempt until the time of withdrawal.

This means you can take a tax deduction on the amount deposited into your IRA each year, allow the earnings to accumulate tax-free, then withdraw your money when you retire and are more likely to be in a lower tax bracket.

As you can see from our chart, this can mean a spectacular savings compared to an ordinary savings account.

End of Year	Example 1	Example 2	Example 3
1	$1,500	$1,125	$750
5	$8,456	$6,155	$3,982
10	$19,771	$13,824	$8,598
15	$34,914	$23,382	$13,949
20	$55,178	$35,293	$20,153
25	$82,297	$50,136	$27,344
30	$118,587	$68,633	$35,682

Example 1: $1500 of tax-free income put into an IRA each year. Example 2: A person in the 25% tax bracket puts what's left of $1500 each year, after taxes, into an ordinary savings account on which the interest is taxed. Example 3: Same as Example 2, except the individual is in the 50% tax bracket. All figures computed on a conservative 6% annual interest.

Who qualifies.

Anyone who is not now covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan, may open an Individual Retirement Account at NBD.

15% of your income tax-free.

By new law, you may put away as much as 15% of your annual earned income—up to a maximum of $1500—into an IRA. This means that you can choose any of our NBD savings plans that best suits your needs. Our Time Deposits, for example, earn you a full 5-1/2% interest, are automatically renewable, and may be started with as little as $50.

For the maximum possible return on your investment, however, you should look into our Investment Savings Certificates that are guaranteed to earn you a full 7-1/2% interest over six years in amounts of $1000 or more. (By contrast, our chart is figured on a conservative 6% annual interest).

However—there is a substantial interest penalty for withdrawal before maturity.

Your money is safe—and available.

When you build a retirement income through an Individual Retirement Account at NBD, your money is protected by the federal government, and backed by the substantial assets of Michigan's biggest bank.

Act now.

There has never been a better time to begin providing for a comfortable retirement than right now.

Interest rates at NBD have never been higher. And now you can put this higher interest to work for you with tax-free dollars.

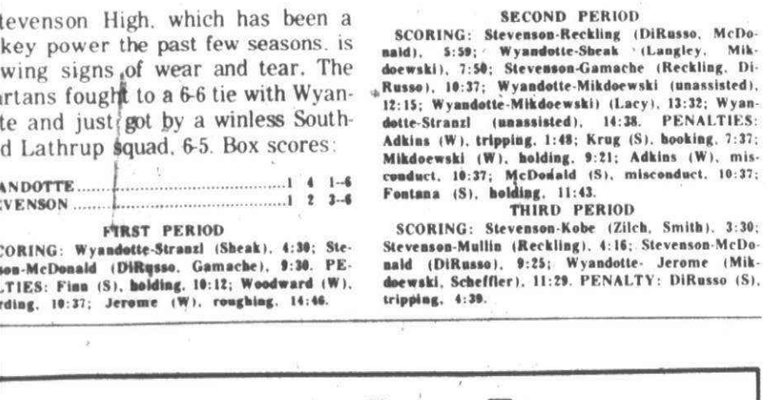

Why not look into an Individual Retirement Account today? The officer at your nearby NBD office will be happy to help.

A NOTE TO EMPLOYERS: IRA may be an ideal way for you to offer your employees the benefits of a retirement program without the headaches of bookkeeping and administration. Our NBD officers will be happy to assist.

NBD Making banking better for you.

introducing the forest home

Forest homes are, of course, built in the forest, but our forest has something special. A Lake. That's right, all Locklin Pines homes are not only surrounded by a lush forest of pines, the entire development surrounds a lake as well and is adjacent to a wildlife sanctuary. Locklin Pines Forest Homes are built like single family homes, they are all separate from each other and no two homes ever touch, but they are really condominiums. We're the first developers in the state to offer detached condominiums. Building our homes in clusters enables us to leave most of the forest as natural as it has been for over a hundred years. There are only 2.4 of our homes built per each acre of land in the entire development. There are five models in all to choose from at Locklin Pines with from 2 to 5 bedrooms. They all have standard features that include 2 car garages, basements, kitchen appliances, carpeting, Andersen windows, decks, balconies and some even feature private courtyards and atriums. You will also find an unusually high level of craftsmanship throughout all Locklin Pines homes.

Stevenson gals 9-0 in volleyball

Stevenson High's girls volleyball squad dumped both Thurston and city rival Churchill to remain unbeaten at 9-0.

Both matches went to the full three sets.

It was Stevenson 15-10 over Thurston in the first game, Thurston in the second, 15-13, and Stevenson in the finale, 15-5.

Stevenson overpowered Churchill in its first set, 15-3, but the Spartans fell in game two, 16-14, only to bounce back to take it all, 15-9.

Mara Richters paced the Stevenson crew with a better than 70 per cent striking mark.

Turf Tips, Quips

By DOC MINARD

As usual during negotiations between a union and management, very little information sifts out to the ears of members of the public. That's the story of the current meetings between management of the Detroit Racing Association and the mutuel clerks union... the two teams have held several sessions but apparently aren't close to an agreement.

Since Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson, of the DRA, has announced publicly that the track will not open without a contract, it would appear racing will not begin on Feb. 21 as scheduled.

More and more horses are checking into the premises at the intersection of Schoolcraft and Middle Belt Roads in Livonia daily. Enough that it appears Racing Dirctor Tom Dorsey wouldn't have any trouble arranging programs but most everything else is at a standstill pending outcome of the negotiations.

INASMUCH as the agreement reached at the DRA will set a pattern for the other tracks, who generally follow the terms of the initial contract rather closely, then one can understand why both the track and the union are reluctant to give.

Everything one hears are rumors but if there is any truth to them, then there is going to be a lot of giving by both sides before negotiations even begin to take an optimistic look.

IMPRESSED WITH the way fans and horsemen have taken to the Saturday matinees, Northville Downs will present the third of a series this week.

Again it will be an eight-race program between Michigan-owned and bred pacers and trotters, with a purse of $1,000 for each race. There won't be any admission charge, children under 12 will be admitted and post time for the first race is 2 p.m.

Just to make the afternoon even more attractive, Racing Secretary Harry Peterson will stage several qualifying events. Sometime the qualifiers are better races than the ones with purses.

Although the extreme cold weather and a forecast of snow held down last weekend's attendance, Executive Director John Carlo is looking forward to excellent turnouts Friday and Saturday.

As usual, the Saturday feature will be the open pace where five or six of the fastest and best at the track will try again to beat Bob Kalish's Spanish Mac.

The star of Kalish's table was unbeaten in six starts up to two weeks ago when he faded back to fourth. Then he came right back last Saturday with Lee Sattelberg in the sulky and whipped his competition again. Seems like the half-mile track is just what the five-year-old likes.

JOE MARSH JR., the Findlay, O. veteran driver-trainer who did most of his learning on tracks in the metropolitan Detroit area before shifting to Chicago where he was the champion for three or four years, has been selected to represent the United States in the sixth World's Driving Championships.

Joe carried the colors of the U.S. in the championships a year ago when the competition was held in Europe, this time it's going to go to Australia and New Zealand from April 2 to April 12.

A second American reinsman will be selected prior to the departure for Australia a week in advance of the opening date.

O'Bet, a six-year-old mare owned by Ed O'Hare of Southfield, turned her first start of 1975 into the fastest trotting mile of the year with a victory at Pompano Park. O'Bet was clocked in 2:02.4.

GENE RIEGLE, of Greenville, O., who is well-known to fans at Wolverine Raceway and Hazel Park Raceway for his fast pacers, has placed some of his stars up for sale.

Riegle won quite a few faces during the past two years at Wolverine with Our Bret and Big Lahuna.

But his advertisement indicates he likes to race two and three year olds and thus it is necessary to reduce the size of the stable by selling some of the older race horses. Our Bret and Big Kahuna are just two of eight proven stars Gene has up for private sale.

GREENWOOD RACEWAY in Toronto, Canada has had four million dollar programs thus far in 1975 including a record high of $1,060,360 on Saturday afternoon, Saturday, Jan. 25.

The purse for the 10th Provincial Cup pace at Windsor Raceway on Sunday, March 30 will be $50,000. That was the announcement by Director of Racing Joe DeFrank who also announced an across the board increase in purses. Purses for most classifications will go up 20 per cent and several as high as 25 per cent.

Invitationals will go for $7,500, a hike of $1,000, and purses for $25,000 claimers and winners of over $7,500 in 1974 have been boosted from $3,000 to $4,000.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

The recent announcement by the American Bowling Congress that Earl Anthony, the west coast southpaw, was the first bowler in history to earn more than $100,000 in a single year, called attention to the vast change that has taken place in the competitive side of the game.

There was a time before the automatic pinsetter came into being when the very thought that any bowler could earn that much money was considered wild dream.

As a matter of fact the only money a bowler could earn with his ability to topple the pins was a share of the prize money in his league or what he would win with side bets.

In those days this condition brought about the wealth of match game competitions in the team event, doubles and singles.

One of the main reasons the Stroh team was formed in the early '30s was to enter the match game field and thus bring national recognition tothe sponsor. And when any of these team matches were bowled, crowds flocked to the lanes.

It was customary that the bowlers put up the side bets, which in the case of teams, was $100 per man. This meant that the winning team could earn no more than the $500 put up by the other side.

Detroit was always s a hot bed for this type of competition with the Stroh team and E&B, and later Pfeiffers, holding their own with any teams in the country

One of the greatest matches, though, was the meeting of Joe Norris, then of Stroh, and Johnny Crimmins, who bowled under the sponsorship of Paris Cleaners.

When they finally met on a home an d home basis, it was for a purse of $1,000 of which each man put out $500. Norris won and the $500 he earned was a far cry from the thousands now being offered each week on the nationally televised pro tour.

THE 700 CLUB gained a new member during the past week and he came from an unexpected source.

Bowling in the Sundowners Mixed League at Plymouth Bowl, Robert Tressler put together games of 256, 237 and 233 for a 736.

It was the highest series bowled in the Bowl this season.

Another surprise came when Ray Lewis fired a 243 in the senior citizens league and Ann Hennington came through with a 211.

THE WEEK was not without its unusual performances. One of them came at the Plaza Bowl when Thelma Lomax rolled an all-spare game of 180.

Sharing honors with her was Gary Holt who paced the Elks League with a 254 game in a 616 series.

MIDGE PASHKAT, one of the day managers at Westland Bowl, had an unusual time of it Sunday afternoon when she went to the Town & Country Lanes to bowl in a doubles event.

Opening with a 124, she climbed to 197 in the second and then to 253 in the third for a 575 series. Her partner contributed a 511 and the team finished out of the top group. But Midge enjoyed what she termed a "very unusual" series.

The sharpshooters failed to break the 700 barrier in the Westland Classic, but the competition did furnish one of the week's oddities.

Bob Garrett set the pace with a 677 and gained the top only because Rick Capaldi, son of the owner, had an unusual moment. After listing nine strikes in a row to start his series, he left up the 6-10 and missed it. He settled for a 267 and wound up with a 670 series. Third place went to Ed Marzka with 646.

JOHN LENNON had one of best weeks at Bel-Aire Lanes when he paced the Businessmen's League with a 685 and came back to show the way in the Thursday Mixed circuit with a 671. Trailing him in the businessmen 's circuit was Bill Etherington with a 639 and Howard Davis with 636.

Jack Brown returned to the winner's circle in the Classic with 683 to lead Jim Staigne with 675. Art Libbers landed third with 668 and Bob Wood posted 664 for fourth place.

In the Senior House League, High Brotherton was high man with 629 that gave him a nine pin margin over Jack Dahlstrom, and 14 pins over Larry Kubert who landed third place with 615.

SCORING WAS RATHER low in the Garden circuits. Top honors went to Harry Topalian with a 685 in the Vinco League. Fred Smith paced the Moose with a 584 and Gerry Beattie paced the women's classic with 626.

ONE OF THE MOST SURPRISED bowlers in the area last week was Rosemary Dobson. Bowling in the Sunday mixed league at Country Lanes she converted the 'impossible' 4-6-7-10 split and still doesn't know how she did it.

In the men's division, George Jacoboni, a 184 average bowler, had a 243 in the Elks League. The 243 was high game of the league.

Other high scounts included John Sherman with 549, Bob Burke with 671 and Jerry Gatti with 608.

ANOTHER NEW NAME came to the front in the Noon Classic at Farmington Lanes when Jean Miller posted a 209 in 601. Others in the top three were Virginia Harris with 595 and Jan Schoenberg with 594.

Tips for condo owners

By MICHAEL D. SAMONEK
Executive Vice President
United Northwestern Realty Association

Condominiums are commanding an ever-increasing share of the housing market. Here are some tips to prospective condo owners:

Analyze your lifestyle to make sure it fits the condominium concept. Some condo owners moving from single-family houses report a feeling of overcrowding and a lack of desired privacy and quiet.

Make sure you know exactly what you're buying. Read your contract carefully before signing.

Find out exactly what the management fee covers. Will there be special assessments for such things as use of swimming pool or parking spaces?

GET SPECIFICS on maintenance. Does the developer promise exterior maintenance only, or is interior maintenance included? What are your maintenance responsibilities?

Will the builder pay full maintenance costs for complete but unsold units, or will this expense be added to your costs?

If recreational facilities are promised but not yet built, make sure the developer has the necessary permits.

Check the developer's estimate of property taxes and fire insurance costs. If you are buying a converted apartment, ask to see actual figures on taxes, utilities, upkeep.

Look for condos with soundproof walls, enclosed patios, playgrounds set far from the units. Find out what protection you have against noisy and unruly neighbors.

FIND OUT what restrictions are imposed in connection with resale of the unit.

Find out whether the developer is retaining the right to manage the project and whether residents can fire him, if they find cause.

Inspect your housing unit, if you can, or a model if one is completed. If only plans are available, find out precisely how big the unit is and determine if it matches your space requirements.

Talk with present tenants about the homeowner's association. This group, with each unit owner a member, is responsible for landscaping and maintenance. If the association is badly managed, it can be a problem.

Check the zoning around the project to see if you will be surrounded by residential, commercial or industrial development.

Find out if pets are permitted.

YARD 'N GARDEN

Plant rhubarb and asparagus in early spring

Is rhubarb a vegetable or a fruit?

It grows like a vegetable, we eat the stems like some vegetables, but we serve it like a fruit. All I know is that rhubarb, along with asparagus, is usually found in a corner of the vegetable garden, so I'll call it a vegetable for simplicity's sake.

SOME PEOPLE start preparing for the planting of these vegetables the previous fall. They will add peatmoss or manure to the soil and till it in to allow the area to lie fallow over the winter.

Then in spring, additional organic matter (compost, peatmoss or manure) is added to the soil exactly where the plants are to be put in.

Both are planted in the early spring. It would be wise to order the plants early so you will have them on hand at the proper time.

The earlier you plant the better—you don't have to worry about late spring frosts or cool weather.

Let's talk about asparagus first. Dig a trench about 15 inches wide and eight inches deep. This is where you put your organic material. Put it in the trench and mix it well with the soil at the bottom.

Place the plants about 15 to 18 inches apart. The plants you receive will be a crown and roots—no tops. Be sure to spread out the roots so they will not be matted.

PLACE ALL the plants in the trenches before filling in with soil. The rows should be about three feet apart. For a family of four you'll need 25 plants.

Now start filling the trench. Just cover the crowns. As they start to grow, fill in a little more until the trench is filled.

Don't cut asparagus the first year. Just let the plants grow into fern. The second year you can cut all spears that are as thick as a pencil. Cut for about four weeks.

The third year, and thereafter, you should be able to cut all the spears for about six weeks. Then let the plants go to fern. You must let it grow in the summer to rebuild new roots for next season.

RHUBARB IS a big producer. Four hills will be ample for a family of four. In fact, I have heard of people growing a single plant in a tub on a patio; they can get one rhubarb pie a month all season.

It, too, is a long-lasting plant and needs proper soil preparation. Dig and enrich a trench just as we do for asparagus. Just cover the crowns with soil, again just like asparagus. If planting in a clump, just put the the crowns in a slight depression and cover as it grows.

Another similarity with asparagus is that you should refrain from pulling stalks the first year. Let the plant develop.

When picking, pull the stalks right from the bottom; don't cut the stems. Naturally, as the plant grows, you will pull the outer stalks and let the inner ones continue to grow. Leave some to allow the plant to rebuild itself for more growth next year.

You only consume the stalks of rhubarb. Never eat the foliage. There are some toxic substances in the leaves that can be harmful. But the stalks are not only edible— they're delicious. Once you taste real fresh rhubarb, you'll never want anything else.

Fresh rhubarb may surprise you with its sweetness. Fresh rhubarb doesn't demand as much sugar when cooking. It can be eaten raw.

We often couple asparagus and rhubarb together for several reasons. First, they are both planted once and will continue to produce for many, many years, coming up from the same plants each season.

This makes them both perennials. Also, because they are both long-lasting perennials, the planting is similar.

Theater offers 'Death of a Salesman'

Play selection is one of the most difficult tasks facing a community theater. Although production costs and difficulty of staging are important considerations, audience acceptance is of prime concern.

In selecting "Death of a Salesman," the Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford had some doubts about presenting a play about a man who loses his job at a time when the unemployement has reached such alarming proportions, says Mrs. Judy Pierson, theater guild member.

"However, the theme of this show has little to do with economics," she adds, "and the loss of his job is a small part of the tragedy of Willy Loman.

"His is the tragedy of a common man who wasted his life trying to become what he didn't want to be. He was betrayed by his American competitive soul and blinded to real values by a spurious show of success. So, the guild decided that this show, which opened in 1948, has something especially pertinent to say to us today when so many need to reset our 'moral compasses.'"

"Death of a Salesman" opens tomorrow (Friday) in the guild playhouse at 15138 Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile Road, Redford Township. Performances are scheduled Feb. 14, 21, 22, 28 and March 1. Tickets are $3. Students rates of $2 are available Feb. 14 and 21. Seating is limited and reservations are recommended. For ticket reservations call Mrs. Gregory Nelson, 30742 Ann Arbor Trail, Westland, or Mrs. C. Foster, 16772 Country Club Drive, Livonia.

UM-D drama club holds auditions

Local thespians will have a chance to demonstrate acting abilities when the University of Michigan-Dearborn Drama Club auditions for a new play on Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 18 and 19.

Open to members of the campus and local community, the auditions are from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in Room 242 of the UM-D Classroom Administration Building and from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday in Room 216.

No acting experience is necesary for try-outs, according to Susan Flieril, UM-D instructor in speech and producer-director of club productions.

S'craft presents classical guitarist

Schoolcraft College will present classical guitarist Oscar Ghiglia in a solo recital in Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Born in Livorno, Italy, Ghiglia started playing the guitar at an early age. He graduated from the Conservatorio di Santa Cecilia at Rome and enrolled in the Accademia Chigiana at Siena, where he became the student of, and later an assistant to, Andres Segovia. Critics believe Ghiglia will be the artist who will reach the international acclaim that Segovia now receives.

The guitarist is well known to American audiences, having appeared in major cities and with the Julliard String Quartet.

Ballet company taps local resources

By SUE ROSIEK

Mrs. Jean Newell, artistic director of the Livonia Civic Ballet, feels there is a vast amount of untapped artistic talent in Livonia and surrounding communities, and hopes to recruit this talent to benefit area residents.

Mrs. Newell founded the Livonia Civic Ballet in 1969 to give students of dance an opportunity to experience performing at the company level and to give young people and the community the chance to see live dance productions.

THE COMPANY presently has 13 members, five men, and eight women, ages 14 and up. Mrs. Newell also operates a dance studio with more than 200 students. But she thinks there's still a lot of talent yet to be found, and hopes to attract it by making the Livonia company a viable artistic force throughout the area.

The company schedules a recital every two years. This event includes company members and dance students. On off-years, students study to take ballet examinations.

The company's next performance will be Sunday, Feb. 16, at 3 p.m in the Madonna Activities Center on Schoolcraft Road at Levan. Madonna College, with the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts (MCA) will present the ballet company in a combined performance with the Oakway Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Francesco DiBlasi.

The symphony will perform "Overture, Der Frieschutz," by Weber, the moderato and andante con moto movements of Schubert's symphony No. 8 in B minor-unfinished, and excerpts from "Damanation of Faust," by Berlioz.

THE BALLET will perform a Russian Divertisement to selections by Khachaturian, including Dance of the Young Maidens from "Gayne" and several number from "Masquerade."

They also will stage a Russian Sailor Dance from "The Red Poppy" by Gliere and a ballet jazz to the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar."

The company has prepared for the show since Nov. 1, says Mrs. Newell.

"It's been difficult but I don't believe in the phrase 'I can't.' Rather I say 'You can try.'"

Mrs. Newell, lives in Livonia and has been teaching ballet for nearly 30 years. She started dancing at age four, and received much of her primary training in New York.

She returned to Michigan and studied with Theodore J. Smith, one of the innovaters of the Cecchetti method of ballet in the United States. She was a member of the Detroit Civic Light Opera and the Joey Harris Ballet Company. Mrs. Newell has danced in serveral musical comedies in New York.

She is presently choreographing musicals for Stevenson and Ladywood high schools in Livonia.

MRS. NEWELL characterizes the Livonia company as a semi-professional group.

"We approach our work professionally and work hard at it but I wouldn't feel right comparing us to groups like the Royal Canadian Ballet. That would be foolish."

She is very proud of the male members in her group. "We have more male members than most groups in the Detroit metropolitan area. They joined to learn theater movments, because many are involved in community theaters. They liked dance and performing so much they decided to stay."

Besdies symphony performances, Mrs. Newell is anxious to have the company perform in school lecture-demonstrations.

"We are trying to be representative of the arts in this area. We want people to be aware of what the immediate community has to offer. in artistic resources."

Mrs. Newell devotes about 2½ days to teaching an offers classes for students age four and up. On weekends she travels throughout the country conducting examination in the Cecchetti method.

ADVANCE TICKETS for the symphony and ballet performance may be purchased from members of the dance company or at Madonna College, Hudson's ticket service, Grinnell's and the Hammel Music Stores.

General admission is $2 and $1.50 for students. Because of the support of the MCA the college is making complimentary tickets available to handicapped persons and senior citizens.

For more information call Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150.

JANICE ROGGENBECK of Redford Township and Stephen Chmielewski of Livonia are principal dancers in a joint performance of the Livonia Civic Ballet and Oakway Symphony Orchestra.

THIS BOY AND THIS GIRL ARE MISSING

This boy and this girl are missing out on a lot of things they could be having as carriers for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. They could be earning such things as money, merchandise prizes and tickets to special events.

But earning pocket money and winning special prizes are just two of the nice things that can happen to carriers. There are bigger advantages. A carrier goes into business for himself. At an early age, he or she learns how to get along with people. They do a bit of bookkeeping. They learn responsibility. They gain additional confidence.

Is your child missing out on these things? If one of your children is 12 years old or more, we suggest you get in touch with us, and hear about our carrier pr[illegible].

If you're interested, fill out the coupon below and send it to the Circulation Department of our newspaper.

People getting involved. They're behind a whole new way of banking

Not so long ago, we decided there was need in Livonia for a new kind of bank. A bank built on services people needed. Explained in language they could understand. By people willing to get involved—from teller right up to bank president.

Some said you couldn't run a bank that way anymore. But the first customers of Manufacturers Bank of Livonia didn't agree. They told their neighbors. And the bank grew.

Soon you'll find even more reasons for banking under the Green Sign.

Stop by our convenient office soon. You'll find your kind of people ready to help with your kind of banking needs—Monday through Saturday.

Mail carriers threaten spring strike

The Observer & Eccentric Spotlight / Classified Ads
Thursday, February 13, 1975 *1C

A controversial method of evaluating letter carriers' routes could lead to a national postal strike sometime this spring.

Most western Wayne County letter carriers are determined to take part in a national work stoppage if LCRES (Letter Carrier Route Evaluation System) is adopted by the Postal Service following a three-city test in March.

The system, which uses computers to determine how long it ought to take a carrier to deliver his route, is now undergoing tests in Kokomo, Ind., Providence, R. I. and Portland, Ore.

WILL COMPUTER evaluation bring a halt to mail carrier service?

It will measure virtually every movement a carrier makes in delivering his mail, from vehicle to house, from house to house, and back to the carrier's vehicle.

Time values will be established for every action along the carrier's route, including opening screen doors and reaching for a mailbox.

THE CONTRACT between the Postal Service and the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) expires July 30, 1975 and negotiations are scheduled to begin 90 days before the expiration date.

However, local union officials have indicated that they will join a work stoppage if LCRES is approved by Postal Service management.

That means a strike could take place as early as March.

As was true with western Wayne County teachers, the fact that a postal strike is illegal is not likely to stay the letter carriers from their strike.

What is there about LCRES, also called the "Kokomo Plan," that carriers dislike?

"IT'S DEHUMANIZING," says Dwight White, president of Branch 4010 of the NALC, which includes Garden City carriers. "It means that carriers will have to cut across people's lawns. It measures how you reach for a cup of coffee. It tells you that you have to hold your mail in a certain way. Every second of a carrier's time is accounted for," says White.

"Instead of making 400 stops, a carrier might have to make 550, 600 or even 700," he says.

Perhaps worst of all, according to White, the proposed new system would defeat the purpose for which it was intended—cost cutting.

He says carriers could not complete their routes in the time allotted by the computer and would have to put in overtime, an additional expense to taxpayers.

White says flatly: "If the Kokomo Plan is implemented as it is, there will be a national work stoppage. We're all behind the national."

WESTERN WAYNE COUNTY postmasters are as much in favor of LCRES as the letter carriers are opposed to it.

Though some of them privately concede that the plan faces strong opposition by the carriers, the reaction of Livonia Postmaster Don Majkowski is shared by most.

"I think it will be good for the country but for a few carriers, it will mean more work. The only way to cut costs is mechanization, by the use of electronic gadgets. People themselves just can't handle the volume of mail," he says.

Majkowski's Livonia station covers an area of 36-square-miles and employs 186 persons. In 1971 there were 138 letter carriers in Livonia; today there are 117, though the volume of mail has remained about the same.

MAJKOWSKI says he doesn't think LCRES will necessarily increase work loads for carriers, but will probably weed out the sluggish ones.

"The new plan will be based upon an employee's capability and will take into consideration whether the carrier is young or old. It will be adjusted to as near eight hours as possible," Majkowski says.

He adds that a "letter of understanding" between the NALC and management permits the union to observe tests of LCRES and advise if the plan is "fair and equitable." But lately, the postmaster indicates, there has been a "lack of communication" between the union and management.

WILLIAM STOTTLEMYER, Wayne-Westland postmaster, generally approves of LCRES, too.

"I think the system will benefit the good carrier. I don't see how it's going to hurt anybody. As a manager, I ought to try to save money," he says.

Stottlemyer indicates that 85 per cent of Postal Service costs go toward wages. But he agrees with Majkowski, that trimming the number of employees is not enough.

His Wayne-Westland station has declined from 114 to 108 employes in recent years, despite a relatively constant volume of mail in that growing area.

He figures that LCRES might actually lessen the burden on some carriers in that busy station, where the number of stops (customers) per carrier is somewhat higher than at most western Wayne County stations.

WAYNE-WESTLAND UNION officials don't agree, however. Beverly Liverance, president of Branch 2992, a 90-member NALC unit representing Wayne-Westland carriers, claims: "They're trying to add on to our routes to save money. My own route has gone up by more than 90 stops; everybody's has increased."

Lee McGinnis, vice president of the same local, also claims LCRES will increase route sizes.

"We have quite a few that are overburdened now," she says. "In Kokomo, only three routes out of 30 had reductions in deliveries. Instead, 10-20 per cent increases resulted overall in the two stations tested."

She adds: "We're adamant about the Kokomo Plan. When it comes to cost cutting, the carrier is the end result and has already taken the brunt of the economy moves."

LOUIS SMIERTKA, president of Branch One NALC, which includes Livonia and parts of Detroit, says the Kokomo test has done nothing but add overtime to the routes to which LCRES was applied, and makes no allowance for carrier fatigue.

A sampling of Garden City carrier opinions reveals constant criticism and strong sympathy for a national work stoppage.

"They're pushing too hard. We won't even be able to say hello or talk to customers unless it's about post office business," says Richard Evans, 29879 Cambridge, Garden City.

"The plan is too way out," says Edward Laginess, 28960 Dawson, Garden City. "We'll have to run across lawns and over hedges."

"I don't like it," says James Lovett, 28658 Leona, Garden City. "It will add more work because the number of carriers will be reduced."

JOHN MULLIGAN, Plymouth postmaster, on the other hand, says, "It's the greatest program that's come along in a long time. It will minimize carrier work and bring cost savings. It will minimize lost time.

"We're still moving mail the way we did in Ben Franklin's time. But if this system is put into effect the way it was designed, it will be a great program," says Mulligan.

Plymouth has 86 postal employes—53 of them carriers— and covers a 36-square-mile area.

Right now, it appears that union and management are sharply divided into confronting battle lines. The NALC claims the Kokomo Plan turns mail persons into robots with no margin for human error; management says the system will take into account the differences between each carrier.

CARRIERS will be able to avoid walking across lawns, greet their customers, take a rest break and coffee break and still get their routes delivered, management says.

The carriers say no, the niceties will have to be cut out and only the agile will be able to retain the pleasantries along their routes.

Someone is wrong, probably each to a certain degree. But one thing is certain.

Neither snow, rain, heat nor dark of night shall stay these carriers from a work stoppage if the Kokomo Plan is approved in March. With the prospect of a national postal strike, and a hike in the price of a first class letter stamp to at least 12 cents by the end of spring—it looks as though the American public, as usual, will take the licking.

On Valentine's Day, kids like 'candy and cards and love'

By SHERRY KAHAN

Romance is in the air at the Botsford Elementary School in the Clarenceville district.

Just a month ago there was the wedding of Mike and Susan Shearer, Botsford's physical education teacher and its kindergarten teacher.

And now it's Valentine's Day.

Hearts are bursting out all over the place. If this school is typical of all those in the area, there will be no chance that a small, chubby boy named Cupid will have to stand in the unemployment line looking for a job that calls for a bow and arrow.

ED DUDEK'S fifth grade class is putting on a play, which will pit true romance against computerized dating. Naturally Cupivak is the name of the computerized Cupid, and its credentials are impressive.

It has matched Robin Hood with Mary Poppins and Sleeping Beauty with Rip Van Winkle.

But when it matches its programmer, Dr. Mentor) (played by Chris Bordnick) with one of the ugly stepsisters of Cinderella, that is too much.

Dr. Mentor destroys his machine, deciding instead to rely on Cupid.

CHRIS HIMSELF no longer thinks that Valentine's Day is any big deal. But he does think that by fifth grade, boys like girls.

"I'm not going to bring a special card myself, but maybe my friend, Fred Ringrose, will. He likes Carol Sarten. He won't mind my telling you."

Fifth grader Tracey Lessen once got a special card from a boy, but this year will send such cards only to girls. Tracy admits to the fact that girls have boy friends at this age.

"I know some people who are going to send a boy a special card, and I think they'll sign them.

"Boys don't like Valentine's day much — they don't like the whole idea of love and everything. Girls like it more than boys, but not much.."

Asked if girls start thinking about boys before boys start thinkin about girls, Tracey said, "Definitely."

Since she plays the part of the computer in the class play, making a light flash on and off and activating a tape recorder with realistic computer noises, she seemed the logical authority to ask about computer dating.

Would she favor it?

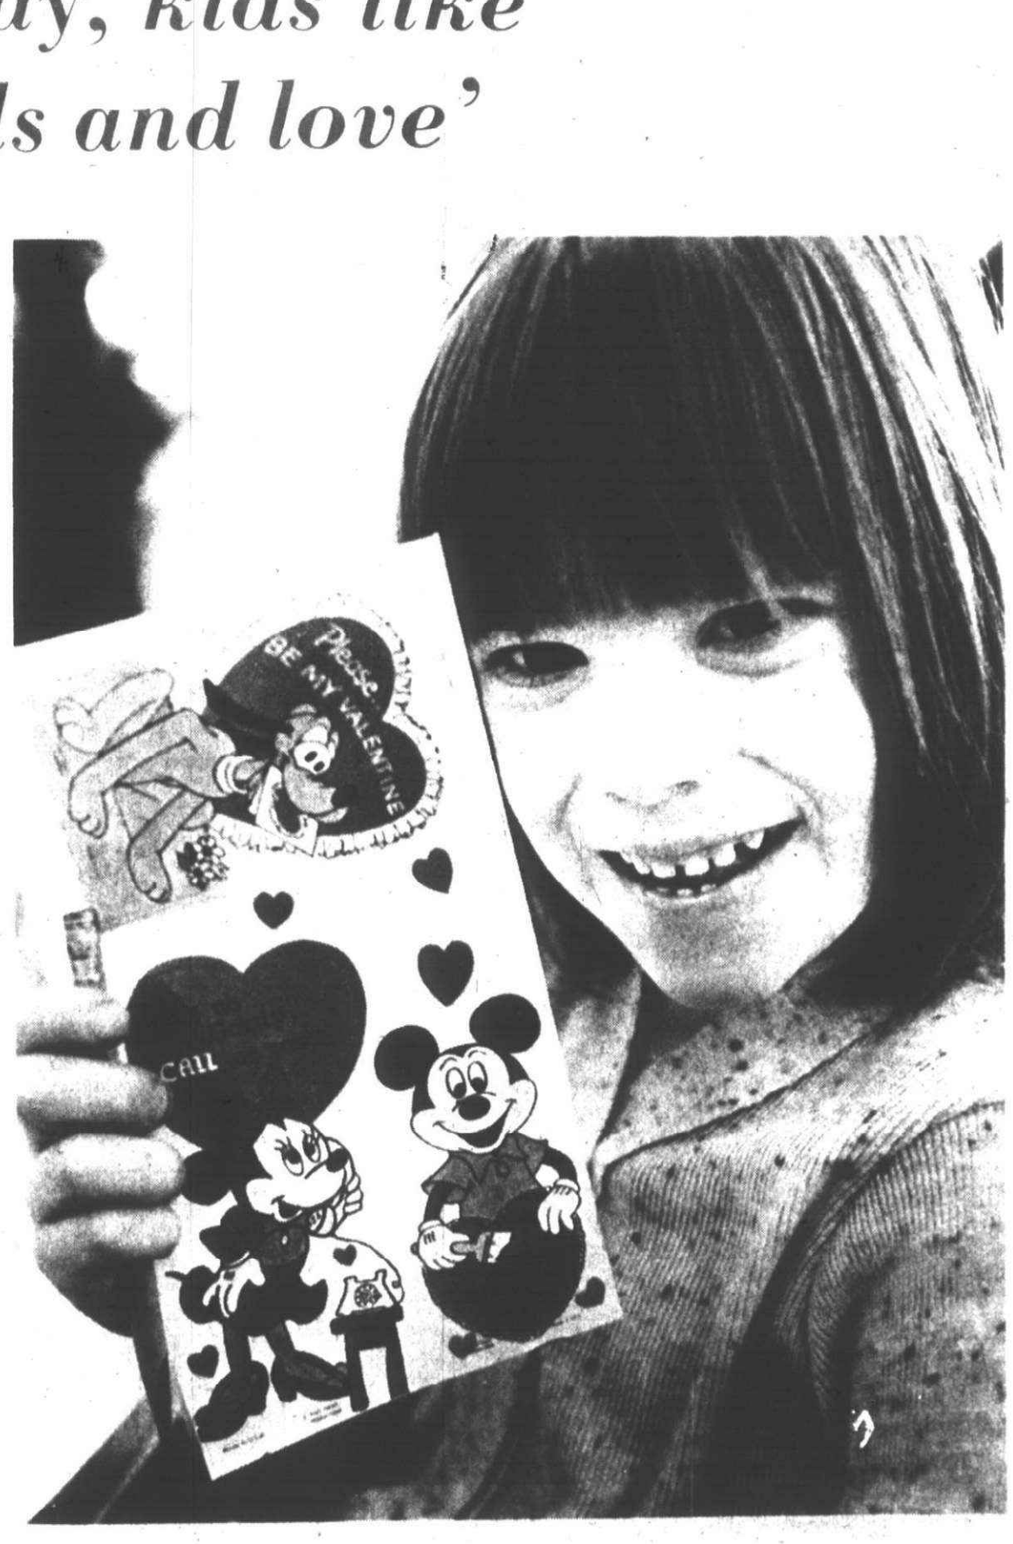

"It would be nice, if your mother couldn't find someone for you," she replied.

Third grader Kathy Trestain likes getting Valentine cards. In her class everyone is asked to bring a card for each member of the class.

"Sometimes girls put in heart candies or a lollypop for boys they like best," she said. "Boys don't do it as much as girls. We sometimes pass out treats and have a party here at school. We think it's pretty exciting. It's fun opening cards."

IT HASN'T taken Heather Wiese, a kindergartner, long to figure out what Valentine's day is all about.

"You love each other and you find friends and make friends," she said earnestly. "You have parties and get cards and have candy."

A SMILE and a Valentine from Alice Varner. (Staff photos by Bob Woodring)

Taking a few minutes away from cutting and pasting hearts, Robbie Carner said he is going to bring a special Valentine to one girl and one boy. Heather is the girl and Matt Shearer is the boy.

Of the coming day he said, "You're supposed to love each other, and be friends forever and ever.."

Another kindergartener, Amy Van Kamp, a blue bow in her hair, said, "I like candy and cards and love.

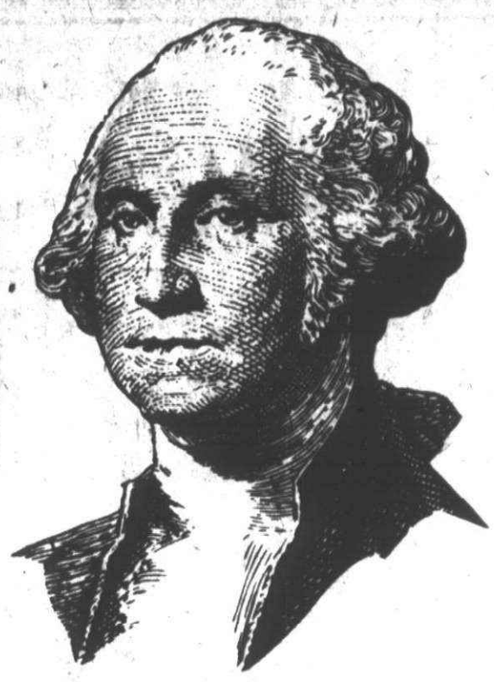

"I like Lisa, that's my friend," she continued. "I like Heather and Tommy and my sister — she's in nursery school.

"And I like Kathy, Dawn, Jilly and Joseph, Michael and Joey and Abbie and Linnie — she lives far away."

LEO LARUWE, principal of Botsford, said that Valentine celebrations are up to the individual teacher. "But we hesitate giving every holiday too big a splash because it would take up too much time," he said.

"Most of the grades exchange cards, but the lower grades have a little more going on," he added. Parents come in and set up parties. In the upper grades if they have a party, the kids take care of it themselves."

Debbie's ready for a year in Japan

American Field Service exchange students are world travelers--and friendly ambassadors

By MARGARET MILLER

"This is going to be a challenge," says Stevenson High School junior Deborah Zold, who is heading for Japan next month to live for a year as an American Field Service exchange student.

Her words have to represent a major understatemnt.

All Debbie has to do by mid-March is complete course work in her current Stevenson classes, digest a long list of Japanese characters and their matching phonetics and pack for a year abroad.

Then, when she gets to Tokyo, she'll have two weeks of intensive training in the language before she joins her host family, mainly not English-speaking, and begins school in which all classes are conducted in Japanese.

AND THIS HONOR student, daughter of Melvin and Jackie Zold of Ingram Avenue in Livonia, is absolutely amazed and delighted with these rapid-fire developments in her young life and is looking forward to a terrific year "if I can just get past this communications thing."

"I just have to learn enough of the language and customs so I don't say something terrible and get deported as an undesirable alien," she grinned.

"A Korean friend of mine who knows some Japanese is coaching me, and I think the thing I'm going to learn first is how to say 'Run that one by me again!'"

Her mother, who went to Germany as a GI bride after World War II, agreed it would be a good idea.

"The first thing I learned in German was 'I do not understand, please speak more slowly,'" she said.

DEBBIE, WHO APPLIED for the AFS Americans Abroad program at the urging of her German teacher at Stevenson, said she was amazed to be chosen and even more astounded to learn her destination would be Japan rather than somewhere in Europe where she could make use of her facility with German.

"I guess it has to do with the families involved," she said. "In the AFS program they try very hard to match up families and visitors who will get along together."

She's sure already she's going to like her Japanese family.

The Watanabe clan lives in the town of Yamato, in the Kanagawa prefecture which is located on the island of Honshu northwest of Toyko.

"THE FATHER, Shizvo, is a parts supervisor for a steel construction firm," she said. "There's a son, Yoshihiro, who is my age, and a daughter, Yoshiko, a year older. The mother is Michiko, and she teaches knitting, and the grandmother, Ichi, makes Japanese dresses."

Only the two teenagers speak English, Debbie said.

She has a copy of the application the family sent to American Field Service to indicate it would like a visitor from the United States.

"Those application forms must be very difficult for someone who doesn't speak English," she mused. "But there's a list where those filling them out can check off traits that describe their family and those that definitely do not.

"They said they are affectionate, closely-knit, happy, warm and tolerant, but not busy, devout, fromal, noisy or strict."

THE SCHOOL Debbie will attend is a private all-girl academy at Kamakura, 40 minutes away by commuter train. It's on the campus of Kehin Women's College.

"The students wear uniforms, so that simplifies the clothes problem," Debbie said. "And they wear no jewelry or makeup. I understand the Japanese are very strict about things like that.

"I've also been told I should be less outspoken—women's lib hasn't hit Japan yet."

Her studies will include physics, Japanese language, Japanese history, math and probably English—"the only one where I'll understand what's going on, probably."

And mastering the tough academic program will be necessary, because Debbie plans to return to Livonia next March and graduate with her Stevenson class of 1976.

"I'm really glad to be able to do that," she said. "Ours is the bicentennial class, and a very special one. The teachers at Stevenson have been wonderful. I'll be able to finish all my courses early and get full credit, and my history teacher is setting up an independent study course on Japan which should be a big help.

"Anything I can find out now about the country and its customs is going to be valuable."

DEBBIE'S TRYING to find out if it's worthwhile to take along the clarinet she plays in the Stevenson band, but in any case she has some definite instructions from director Richard Neal. "He wants me to find out more about recent Japanese music," she said.

Another assignment comes from the instructors of her Hebrew classes at Temple Israel in Detroit, the Zold family's synagogue.

"I'll be able to graduate with that class, too," she said, "but I'm to do some research on Judaism in Japan while I'm there."

Debbie is determined to do well in all the studies because, looking beyond graduation from Stevenson in 1976, she plans to attend University of Michigan medical school and will apply for its selective six-year program.

"I'd love to play in the marching band there too," she added.

INVOLVEMENT in the AFS program at Stevenson is pretty new for Debbie and the Zold family.

"There was an announcement last fall that applications were being taken from those interested in spending a year abroad," she said.

"I've always been interested in doing more traveling, and my German teacher was urging me to apply, so I did."

She learned in November she was one of 11 students picked for interviewing. Then she and another Stevenson student, Andy Piunti, were named semi-finalists and their families were interviewed.

The big news came a couple of weeks ago when a big brown envelope arrived at the Zold address. Debbie tore it open and after a moment of stunned silence told her family "I'm going to Japan."

Others in the Zold family are almost as excited as Debbie. Besides her parents, there are Denise, an eighth-grader at Bryant Junior High, Elaine, 6, in kindergarten at Tyler efementary, and Edward, 4, who attends pre-school.

"It's going to be a vicarious trip for all of us," Mrs. Zold said. "We'll miss her, but we're delighted she has this opportunity. And we are tremendously impressed with the American Field Service program and the helpfulness of all those involved."

DEBBIE AND Mrs. Zold mentioned that the Stevenson AFS chapter currently is looking for a family to host a young man for the coming academic year.

"The AFS has a boy who wants to come and has been approved for the program, but so far no suitable host family has been found," Debbie said. "Anyone interested should get in touch with the AFS chapter at Stevenson."

When she gets to Japan, Debbie has two definite plans—in addition to fearning the language and getting acquainted with her new family.

One is to locate the MacDonald's restaurant she's been told is near the Watanabe home.

"I may be living on their hamburgers," she laughed. "I'm afraid eating raw fish just is not my thing."

The other will be to renew her friendship with Nabuko Okamoto, a visitor to Stevenson High on the AFS program last year.

"She lives in that general area," Debbie said, "and I intend to get together with her. We used to eat lunch together last year and discuss American schools as opposed to Japanese schools.

"I really never expected to get the other side of the picture first-hand."

BY SHERRY KAHAN

When Heidi Hepler set out from Livonia to Australia more than a year ago, she looked forward to learning about another culture.

But when she arrived, she found herself studying two cultures. The American Field Service, which sponsored her trip had arranged for her to live with an Italian family.

As a result, part of her day was spent savoring the Italian way of life, and other part was spent enjoying the Australian people, classes, sports and customs.

"It was a great chance to gain an insight into two cultures on one AFS trip," said Miss Hepler.

"I lived with the family of Joe Balista, a bricklayer," she continued. "Mrs. Balista was Mum. Mrs. Balista was Papa, and I had a brother, who was 18 and a sister, 17.

"My life was more Italian than Australian.. Our activities revolved around our family. In order to communicate better with them I went to school for two hours every Saturday and studied Italian. I loved it."

ONE OF THE questions Heidi's fellow students asked most frequently was "Were you disappointed when you didn't find kangaroos hopping all over the place?"

They knew this is a an idea about Australia held by many tourists. Yet these students themselves were not completely immune from stereotypitis.

"They associated cowboys with America. They also thought it was fascinating that I had squirrels running around in my backyard at home. They don't have squirrels in Australia."

This visitor didn't come face to face with exotic creatures from down under until she took trips away from the Melbourne area.

"The first time I saw a koala bear I shrieked with joy," she recalled. "Then I climbed up the tree he was in and took a picture.

"There was no danger because with the exception of the Tasmanian Devil, which is about the size of a dog, Australian animals are very peaceful and eat vegetation.

Koala bears live mainly in protected sections, she explained, although once in a while you might run across one in a wooded area.

She also saw kangaroos. "Which can be a problem because they sometimes ruin crops, and she met a wallaby, which came hopping out of the woods in a park area.

THE FAMED beaches of Australia were also popular with Heidi. "I lived five minutes from the ocean and we could drive over whenever we wanted to see a sunset," she said. "We body surfed a lot. I really miss the water."

Even school made a hit with her and she described it as "really great."

She added: "We had about 650 students, with grades seven through 12 in the same school. My graduating class had 68. I liked the smaller number. Everybody knows what everyone else is doing. It's a more personal atmosphere.

"There were few social activities at my school. School let out about three and 10 minutes later you couldn't see any left around the building.

"The 12th year is especially hard there because of the matriculation exam which all 12th graders in the whole state take at the same time.

"This exam can determine your life. Some students said that if they didn't pass, their life was over. That's a sad feeling at 17 or 18. Throughout the whole year the seniors were worried. There was a lot of social stress and family stress on them because it determines whether or not they can go to the university."

HEIDI became something of a public speaker in her days down under. "I gave a lot of speeches during assemblies," she said. "The impromtu ones were the most fun.

"The junior high students asked cute questions. One asked if we have great bubblegum in America. When I told her we have grape, banana and cherry bubblegum her eyes opened wide.

"These younger kids were always around my locker and would walk down the hall singing 'Yankee Doodle.'

June, July and August are winter months in Australia and it rained a lot in Melbourne.

"The cold really penetrated," she said. "They didn't have central heating. Sometimes I would study with my gloves on. My Poppa thought it a riot.

"On a trip to Tasmania, I slept with hot water bottles for the first time in my life."

She found it was not difficult for a foreign students to get a job and she worked at several. "The one that was the most fun was in a bake shop run by a Hungarian family," said Heidi. "I helped the baker bake. I washed gigantic pots, sold goods and tried to refrain from eating anything."

While abroad, Heidi urged AFS to send another student to Australia. It is still a source of satisfaction to her that one of the last things she did while in the country was to interview a family, which applied to be a AFS host family.

"Today there is an AFS student from Minnesota staying with the family I interviewed," she said.

Bible study goes with lunch in Schoolcraft rap sessions

BY SHERRY KAHAN

The Rev. Bob Schaden of Newman House at Schoolcraft College believes the Bible is indeed good news for modern man, rather than a book of ominous news or a book of magical answers.

To make sure that good news travels far, he has organized a bring-the-Bible-to-lunch session each Tuesday at Schoolcraft College. He hopes it will become a continuing event.

Working with him on this enterprise is the Rev. E. Dickson Forsyth of St. Timothy United Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

Rev. Forsyth was unable to attend the first meeting because of illness. The attendance was small, but Father Schaden was not discouraged.

"If numbers are your criteria, then Jesus flopped," he said. "He got only 12."

THE DISCUSSION of the Bible ranged over a number of subjects — prayer, Jonah and the whale, Jesus — and finally settled on water symbolism in the Bible.

"Water is the symbol of life," said Father Schaden. "It appears all through the Bible. Water was scarce and it became a powerful symbol to the Hebrews."

He referred the students to a passage the fourth chapter of John, in which Jesus talked with a woman at the well.

"Everyone who drinks of this water will thirst again," Jesus told the woman as she drew up the water. "But whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst; the water that I shall give him will become in him a spring of water welling up eternal life."

Father Schaden explained: "This passage tells you that you might get things you think you want, but they will not be satisfying to you.

IF I REALLY am contented and feel I have been having a positive influence, this is a pretty good indication I am doing what God wants. If I'm not, I'll get thirsty again."

A question arose. How do I know what God wants?

AT AN INFORMAL LUNCH HOUR Bible session at Schoolcraft College the Rev. Bob Schaden (right) explains a point in the New Testament to Lisa Frank and Gregg Vorbeck. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

"If I have to make a decision, I ask myself what would Christ do if He were in my shoes," said Gregg Vorbeck, who would like some day to become a radio minister.

"I ask myself if what I want to do would take me away from Christ; would it affect my relationship with God."

The two clergymen started the noon hour class because of the what Father Schaden called "the fantastic interest in the Bible on the Schoolcraft campus."

He added: "Young people are plugging into religion as they never have before. They are looking for something that is positive, a meaning to life."

The sessions are held in a room net to the cafeteria in the Waterman Center.

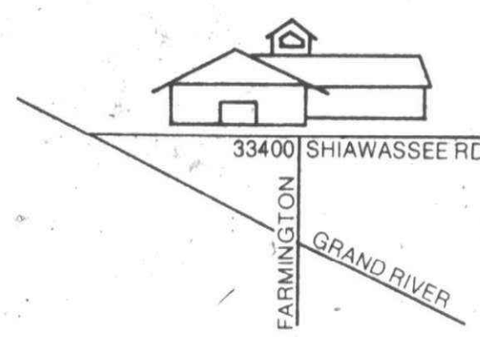

Madonna leaders guests

Sister Mary Danatha, president of Madonna College in Livonia, and Sister Mary Lauriana, dean of the college, were guests of President Gerald Ford at the national prayer breakfast held in Washington.

It was the 24th annual prayer breakfast organized by members of Congress.

Dr. Billy Graham gave the opening call to fellowship, and Gov. Reuben Askew of Florida led the prayer for national leaders.

Thinking Day brings out cooks

They're cooking for Thinking Day in te five troops that comprise the Allen School cluster in Plymouth.

A potluck supper, scheduled in the school Tuesday, Feb. 18, is the event planned to mark the special day in which Girl Scouts all around the world think and talk about their program.

The supper and program and skits that will follow have been planned by representatives of the troops, two Brownie, two Junior and one Cadette, working with Mrs. D.H. Sarkozy, troop services director.

About 100 girls will be involved in the program, which will include a flag ceremony, skits, songs and dancing after the supper. Cooking for the meal is being done entirely by the scouts with leaders and mothers supervising.

One feature of the program is that each troop will represent a different country, dressing in that nation's contume and cooking its food.

Troops involved in the project are Brownie troops 208 and 328, Junior troops 201 and 216 and Cadette troop 367.

Their leaders are Arlene Bettega, Carol Barber, Doris Rorabacher, Mary Lou Johnson and Joan Fee.
