Road patrol funding gets reprieve

A reprieve may be in order for seven western Wayne County townships fighting to retain the services of the Sheriff's Road Patrol.

On Thursday, April 24, the Ways and Means Committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners voted to fund the patrol for an additional 90 days.

A final determination of the funding extension will be made by the entire board of commissioners Thursday, May 1.

The funds for the patrol are currently scheduled to expire at the end of April, and the extension would allocate money for the patrol through the end of July.

"It's not what we asked for," said Plymouth Township Supervisor J.D. McLaren of the Ways and Means vote. "We asked them to fund the patrol until a final legal determination was reached. Instead they have chosen to continue this 90 day harassment.

"I guess they didn't buy our arguments. We'll probably have to go through this 90 day thing until the courts rule on the appeal."

McLAREN ADDED, "I'm sorry they didn't see it our way because it's rough on all concerned; the county, the townships and the sheriff's men."

"The worst thing about these 90 day extensions," said Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein, "is that it's detrimental to the morale of the sheriff's men. How can they put forth a decent performance when they're constantly under the gun. They don't know if they are going to be working the next day."

Before the Ways and Means vote, representatives from the seven townships, (Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Sumpter, Van Buren, Brownstown and Huron) met with members of the county Public Safety and Judiciary Committee to request the patrol be funded until the end of the fiscal year (Nov. 30).

According to a county spokesman, the meeting was unproductive, "and nothing new was discussed."

Greenstein said the townships were united in their demands. "We stood firm. We shouldn't have to pay until a final verdict from the courts is in," he added.

A MARCH 27 ruling by Circuit Court Judge Thomas J. Foley dismissed the townships' request for a declaratory judgment ordering the county to fund the patrol.

Foley said in his opinion the county was not obligated to fund the road patrol, although he did add that sheriff's men would be expected to answer calls.

Supervisors from the seven townships met after that ruling and decided to appeal the case. They hired a new attorney, Bert Burgoyne of Detroit, and an appeal was filed about two weeks ago.

According to Burgoyne, however, a final legal determination will probably not be made for at least three months.

Greenstein said, "We intend to pursue another legal argument in the appeal. Except for a few, the roads in townships are owned by the county. Those streets are the responsibility of the county through the road commission. A concomitant and concurrent legal responsibility of the county is to patrol those roads.

"I have talked this over with Burgoyne and he thinks it is an exceptional argument."

"They already have to answer calls. You add that together with them having to patrol the roads and you get the road patrol back where we started."

Symphony band bound for Lansing

CANTON— The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Symphony Band will add another honorary performance to its resume next Wednesday, when it treks to Lansing for one of the highest honors ever bestowed upon a Michigan band.

The 92-member group will perform April 10 before Gov. William Milliken and other top state officials at the third annual Michigan Governor's Concert in the Lansing Civic Center.

Before staging the performance at 8 p.m., band members will meet Michigan legislators and attend a banquet in their honor where each will receive the Governor's Medal.

"We're deeply honored and flattered, and we look forward to it with great anticipation," said band director James Griffith. "This is an extremely proud and happy moment for us."

The Plymouth Symphony Band was selected from more than 500 high school bands in Michigan on the basis of an audition tape recording and letter relating its background.

The selection committee which judged the tapes included such music educators as Kenneth Bloomquist of Michigan State University; Norman Dietz, Central Michigan University; Gene Salamony, president of the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association; Frank Mills, director of the Saginaw Community Youth Band; and Edward Downing, director of the Ann Arbor Huron High School Band.

But Wednesday's performance will not be the first honor bestowed on the Plymouth band.

THE BAND participated at the Orange Bowl Parade at Miami, Fla. this year as well as the 1973 Tournament of Roses Parade at Pasadena, Calif. and the 1973 J.L. Hudson Thanksgiving Parade in Detroit.

The band presented the finale concert of the 23rd Annual National Mid-West Band and Orchestra Clinic at Chicago in 1969 and presented a clinic concert for the 3rd Annual Contemporary Music Festival, sbonsored by Western Michigan University, in 1971. In 1972, the band presented the final concert at the 16th annual Conductor's Conference, sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi, at Hattiesburg, Miss.

The band has received 26 first-division class AA ratings in district and state festival competitions since 1959 and has presented five solo post-game shows in the University of Michigan stadium since 1965.

WHAT MAKES a high school band so outstanding?

"The kids really work hard," said Griffith, "and we have a lot of parental support. We have a great middle school music program, and many of the students study privately."

The band learned of its newest honor about a month ago, Griffith said, and has been preparing ever since.

On the program for next week's performance are the "Purple Carnival March" by H. Alford; "Punichinello" by A. Reed; "Prologue to Elsinore and the Court of Claudius" from music for "Hamlet"; "Buglers Holiday" by L. Anderson; "Mass and Aztec Dance" from "La Fiesta Mexicana" by H. Owen Reed; "Rag" from "Suite of Old American Dances" by R. R. Bennett; "Tamboo" by Cavez and Werle; "Glory of the Yankee Navy March" by Sous; and "Broadway Curtain Time" by Krance.

The Governor's Concert is sponsored by McDonald Restaurants of Michigan, which feels outstanding high school bands should be honored and allowed to give command performances for the highest office in the state.

The Saginaw Community Youth Band lauched the Governor's Concert program in 1973, and the Ann Arbor Huron High School performed in 1974.

MEMBERS OF the Centennial Park Band's flute section include Sue Pocklington, Karen Kan, Barbara Dusseau, Linda Lowing, Carrie LaMirand, Karen Decker, Jane Visser, Karen Nance, Joyce Luce, Denise Rowe, Pamela Wehmeyer, Karen Routson, Deborah Wise, Nancy Birge, Cheryl Nelson, and Anita Huibergtse.

Members of the clarinet section include Diana Barber, John Nichols, Lynne Lesmeister, Nancy Horstman, John Barnes, Donna Smiatacz, Denise Ruttenberg, Eric Kramer, Lewis Burton, Kathy Koza, Clarisse Hartnett, Robert Adsit, Julie Boye, Susan Jeffries, Valerie Dreyer, Mark Chatterley, Annette Krause, Donna McCourt, Kathy Gladden, Lynne Stroebel, Carol Masora and Paul Schnoes.

On alto clarinet are Jill Baskins and Gail Johnson, while Julie Nyhus and Laurie Upton play bass clarinet.

Members of the French horn section include Steven Knope, Steven Hawkins, Kristi Sorensen, John Birge, Thomas Chiatalas, Joseph Roose and Nance Scruggs.

On cornet are William Lucas, Julie Schubert, William Steel, Mark Sudhoff, Edward Koza and Thomas Powel.

In the percussion section are Ronald Grogg, James Schlotz, Heidi Foster, Carol Stone, Deborah Phelps, Theresa Secord, David Messacar, William Sweeney and Diane Harder.

OTHER BAND members in the wind section include Barbara Dusseau on piccolo. Elain Guregian and Mary Schroeder on oboe, James Hewitt and Deborah Russell on bassoon.

The saxophone section features Ann Davis, Michael Etienne, and Wayne Heinmiller on alto sax; Robert DeLano and Timothy Goudeseune on tenor sax; and Barbara Tatzka on baritone .

Trumpeters in the band are Arthur Larson, James Schnoes, includes Jack Overhiser, Jeffery Kelterborn, William Christie, Melvin Lane, David Clinton and Paul Bacheldor.

Mark Stamper and Kurt Olson are featured on euphonium, while Kenneth Martinek, Theodore Burton, and Jeffery Valle are on tuba.

DPW workers vote union in

CANTON—By a vote of 4-2 Wednesday members of the township building department voted to join the American Federation of State County, and Municipal Employes (AFSCME, AFL-CIO), while employes in the township offices rejected union membership by a 5-4 margin.

Charles Thompson, head of the building department, said: "The inspectors and ordinance officers voted to become union but I don't think it will make any particular difference. I don't see any problem as far as inspection work."

Bruce Phillips, the assistant ordinance officer, commented: "How much was really said. The pros of joining were job security, better benefits and increased pay and the cons were stricter controls and regulation.

Supervisor Robert Greenstein said: " I can't really react to the vote yet because I am given to understand a second vote is necessary because the procedure wasn't exactly cricket."

"I think the girls made an extremely wise decision. By comparison, they are paid very well and the working conditions are good. As far as the building department vote, it's unfortunate that one vote subjects them to a union and drastically alters current conditions.

"The building inspector job is not conducive to strict hours and punching a clock. It's strictly a demand situ-

Suburban leaders force water rate change

By DENNY COFFMAN

DETROIT—An effort begun Feb. 28 by Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara, and aided by other suburban officials, finally had its impact on the Detroit Board of Water Commissioners.

It was Feb. 28 when McNamara called representatives of Western Wayne County suburbs to Livonia to urge them to band together in opposing what appeared would be a 35 per cent increase in suburban water rates.

A subsequent meeting was held in Southfield when suburban elected officials met with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, who promised at that time suburban water rates would remain unchanged.

After that meeting, Young ordered Ernest Cedroni, director of the Detroit Water Department, to reconsider the proposed rate increase. The matter then appeared settled.

THURSDAY NIGHT, however, the water board voted to rescind the water rate increase but the matter remains unsettled.

Before the water board met an opinion was issued by Assistant Corporation Counsel Darryl F. Alexander, that the final decision on a water rate increase was up to the Detroit Common Council.

It had been assumed the water board had sole authority to set rates, but Alexander's legal opinion is that the new Detroit City Charter makes the Common Council sole arbiter of the rates.

CEDRONI later included the increase in a budget approved by four members of the water board within minutes after their suburban counterparts had left a meeting April 21.

But McNamara got quick revenge only three days after the four Detroit commissioners approved the rate hike, which would be passed on to the suburbs, dependent on the Detroit Water System.

In a bitter three-hour meeting April 24, McNamara, Oakland County's

Technicality nearly defeats suburbs

DETROIT—Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara got what he wanted—the Detroit Board of Water Commissioners rescinded its earlier approval of increased water rates—but only after a heated three-hour meeting, the conclusion of which was almost spoiled by Robert's "Rules of Order."

Angry because he and two other suburban representatives had been left out of the voting that raised water rates to Detroit and the suburbs April 21, Macomb County's Willard Back opened a special meeting April 24 by demanding that the board follow parliamentary procedure using Robert's "Rules of Order" as a reference.

Board President Carrie Thompson called for a vote on the matter, but it was later learned she called for "yeas" but not the "nays."

When, three hours later, another suburban representative—McNamara—moved that board members rescind the water rate increase, they voted 4-3 in favor of McNamara's motion, only to learn that under Robert's rules, a two-thirds vote is required to rescind a motion that has been carried previously.

For a few moments, it looked as though the suburban ship had sunk, with the help of its own crew, until President Thompson remembered that when calling for a vote on the motion to adhere to Robert's rules, she had forgotten to ask for the "nays."

Therefore, she ruled, Robert's had not been duly approved as the authority on board procedure and a two-thirds' vote was not required—only a simple majority.

And because the board had voted to rescind the water rate increase by a majority of 4-3, the rates were, in fact, legally rescinded.

Commissioner Thompson herself had voted against rescinding the rate increase.

Nevertheless, because four of the seven commissioners represent Detroit, the suburbs couldn't have done it without the vote of Commissioner Charles Beckham, brother of Detroit's deputy majoy.

So Livonia Mayor McNamara, Macomb's Back and Oakland County's John Lamerato got what they were after, ironically with the help of two Detroit-oriented commissioners.

Schoolcraft trustees settle membership issue

By DENNY COFFMAN

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees again voted down a proposal to place an advisory vote on the July 9 ballot to obtain voter preferences on the composition of the board.

Trustee Nancie Blatt April 23 proposed that the question on the election of trustees (at-large or by district) and the number of trustees (seven or nine) be put to district voters, who will also vote to fill a seat on the board vacated by Trustee John LaRue.

Trustee Ron Cowden will seek re-election to the board, which is now composed of eight members.

MRS. BLATT'S motion was supported by Trustee Gerald Cox, but went down by a vote of 4-2. Five votes are required for passage.

Voting for the advisory question were Mrs. Blatt, Cox, and trustees Paul Kadish and Rosina Raymond. Trustees Cowden and Leroy Bennett voted against it.

The same proposal went down to defeat a week earlier, at a special meeting of the board.

Cowden said he could see no reason to place the proposal before voters, when the board did not see fit to ask voter advice on a millage increase.

Mrs. Raymond replied: "There is a difference between an advisory vote and a matter of policy."

Cox, who voted for the advisory question, stated: "The more we get the interests of the people, the better."

Bennett said he was suprisedd at the turnaround in board sentiment since the matter of a seven or nine member composition was last discussed.

"We seemed agreed that we wanted seven. Now I find that this has changed," said Bennett.

The board was not in total agreement on whether the Legislature would take the district voters' wishes seriously, even if an advivory vote were taken.

The Legislature has the final word on how the board is to be composed, though it is assumed the feelings of board members would be considered.

IN OTHER business: •The board was told by Ed McNally, vice-president for student affairs, that 20 graduating students were informed by letter that they would be required to pay outstanding traffic fines before they could graduate. Staff members were informed, too. •A petroleum technology course is among several new offerings being considered for the 1976-77 school year. Others are an emergency medical technology course and an auto body and collision technology course. •Applications for admission to the college are up, compared to spring and summer, 1974. For the spring session this year 606 persons applied and 490 were accepted. Last spring 480 applied and 374 were accepted. For the summer session, 88 have appliedthis year and 39 have been accepted. Last summer, 51 applied and 22 were accepted. •The board approved the installation of a traffic light on Haggerty at the south entrance-exit to the south parking lot because of frequent accidents there. •Trustee Kadish was chosen to represent the college at a meeting of the Association of Community College Trustees May 22-24 in Milwaukee. •The board accepted a gift of $4,660 worth of engines and carburetors from Cadillac Division, General Motors. The equipment will be used in the auto service and management courses.

6 win special honors at S'craft commencement

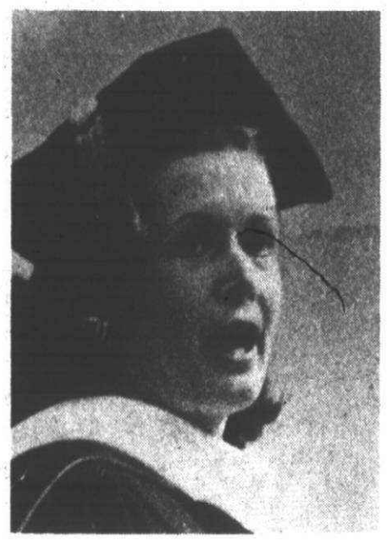
"The traditional commencement address," said Schoolcraft College commencement speaker Sarah Goddard Power, "assumes you're still wet behind the ears.

"You are not wet behind the ears," she told the 235 graduates in blue in gold academic gowns Sunday in the college gym. "You have experience in the world."

Indeed, the age range of persons receiving associate degrees from the two-year college ran from 20 to 65, many of them military veterans and working women who attended evening classes.

Nearly 2,000 persons jammed the building to capacity to see the traditional ceremony. The college this academic year awarded 777 degrees–333 in the arts and sciences and 444 in applied sciences. Many who earned their degrees in the 1974 spring, summer and fall semesters, however, were unable to attend the ceremony because they are already in four-year colleges or on jobs outside the community.

The official list of graduates will be published by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers when it is officially tallied by the college—in about four weeks.



SARAH POWER
Commencement speaker

THE 10TH commencement was the largest ever for the 13-year-old college which enrolls 9,000 students and serves the school districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth.

Six honorary degrees were presented this year, the largest amount the school has ever bestowed in a single school year.

Commencement speaker Sarah Power, a recently elected University of Michigan regent active in many civic organizations in western Wayne and Washtenaw counties, was awarded an honorary associate in arts degree.

Mrs. Power, the wife of Observer & Eccentric co-publisher Philip Power, was recognized for her work with such groups as the Institute for the Administrative Advancement of Women; the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO and National Endowment for the Humanities. She was born in Detroit; earned a bachelor's degree in history at Vassar College and master's degree at New York University.

Richard T. ("Tommy") Thompson received an honorary associate in arts degree posthumously for his "exceptional press coverage and support to the establishment and development of Schoolcraft College" and "giving unselfishly of his time and talents in this constructive effort."

Thompson, who until his death of a heart attack two weeks ago was on the editorial board of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Plymouth managing editor of the group after serving as executive editor, came to the O&E in 1962.

Thompson, declared the college, "earned the praise and recognition of readers and his fellow journalists" and "devoted 48 years to his life's work of newspapering, a craft whose demands place it among the hardest things men and women can do..." Thompson was a Redford Township resident.

It was Thompson's first degree of any sort. In the depression, he was forced to drop out of Ohio State University when he was maneuvered out of a dishwashing job.

Robert Breithaupt, Livonia, was awarded an associate in applied science degree. He is one of the nation's six executive master chefs and director of food services at Schoolcraft College. Breithaupt founded a gourmet club at the college and was faculty advisor in team competition that earned several "best in show" awards for the school.

Philip Ogilvie, Northville, was awarded an honorary associate in arts degree. Active in community and youth-oriented endeavors including the Boy Scouts, Presbyterian Church and Rotary Club, Ogilvie has served as Northville's city attorney since 1953. He helped establish a probation department for the municipal court and was also a member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

Charles Kirkpatrick, Birmingham, was awarded an honorary associate in applied science degree for his participation in Livonia scouting, church, civic association and school matters.

A former Livonia resident, he was elected to the first board of trustees of Schoolcraft College and served as its first treasurer; he was a member of a citizen's study committee for the college.

Miriam King, West Bloomfield, received an honorary associate in arts degree for active leadership roles in youth activities in Livonia; she has been a rehabilitation consultant with the Oakland County Intermediate School District for the past 10 years and was appointed by Gov. Milliken to the Michigan Commission on the Employment of the Handicapped.

She is chairperson of the committee for a Barrier Free Environment and was chairperson of the Livonia Citizens Action Committee advocating passage of the initial property tax in support of Schoolcraft College.

MRS. POWER'S theme was "the movement for a partnership (of men and women) for a better world," a phrase she prefers to the "women's movement."

"Things are still grim, but they're getting better," she said, noting that 80 to 90 per cent of the world's 700 million illiterates are women but that "at least educated equally with men."

"The legal position of women has vastly improved since 1945," she said, "but it's a drop in a vast ocean."

Mourning the defeat of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution in the Florida Senate, Mrs. Power said, "Ponder this: As the 20th century draws to a close, we are still debating equal rights for women."

She praised Schoolcraft programs benefiting women, notably biomedical technology, special workshops, the women's resource center and flexible class hours.

MIRIAM KING, who received an honorary associate in arts degree, has maintained her interest in education since serving as first head of a committee backing a property tax for Schoolcraft College.

EVELYN THOMPSON, widow of former Executive Editor Richard T. (Tommy) Thompson, accepted the posthumous associate in art degree for her late husband from Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote. Thompson covered and editorially endorsed the formation of Schoolcraft College, maintaining a paternal interest in the school until his death on April 14. (Staff photos by Art Emanuel)

CHARLES KIRKPATRICK, former Livonia resident, was awarded an honorary associate in applied science degree. He was first treasurer of the college board.

ROBERT BREITHAUPT, executive master chef, was the first member of Schoolcraft's faculty or staff to receive an honorary degree.

Suburban leaders force change

John Lamerator and Macomb's Willard Back barely gave Cedroni a chance to defend the rate increase as they argued his recently-approved budget point-for-point.

McNamara asked Cedroni why he brought a budget back to the board with a water and sewer rate increase when the budget formerly approved by the board, including McNamara and the suburban representatives, contained no water rate increase and showed a $1.6 million surplus.

Lamerato wanted to have the resolution containing approval of tthe water rate increase, and passed in his absence, read to him. He was told minutes of the April 21 meeting were not ready but the rate hike was passed and public hearings would be held "concurrent" with the increase.

Back, McNamara and Lamerato were incensed because the four Detroit members had approved a five-year water rate plan that seemed to only increase the water department's surplus of funds.

"Did the Detroit commissioners meet with Mayor Young before they approved the water-sewer rate hike?" asked McNamara.

"No," replied Carrie Thompson, president of the board of commissioners, "but some of Young's staff had met with the Detroit commissioners."

"Was the meeting publicized?" asked McNamara. "I don't know," replied Miss Thompson.

"At the Monday morning meeting with Young, was the rate increase discussed?" asked Back. "Yes," replied Cedroni. "Then why," asked Back, "were the suburban commissioners not given that information before our meeting Monday at 2:30 p.m.?" "I don't know," answered Cedroni.

"The meeting with Young was not a formal meeting," said Miss Thompson, "We didn't agree to anything."

"I heard Young supported a 30 per cent increase because he had additional information that convinced him of the need for the increase," said Back.

Miss Thompson insisted that "nothing had been decided beforehand."

CEDRONI TRIED to continue his presentation to the board, insisting "the sewage fund is in trouble and the water fund is in trouble. We need revenues this year or we are actually broke."

"Your records show an $8.8 million surplus, don't they?" asked Lamerato. Instead of answering, Cedroni contended the rate increase to Detroiters and to the suburbs was "not significant."

Commissioner Charles Beckham, who had moved for passage of a water rate increase at the April 21 meeting, said he had worded his motion to get additional information.

McNamara then attempted to rescind the motion to increase sewer rates but was defeated, with the four Detroit commissioners voting against him and the other two suburban commissioners voting with him.

Back harshly criticized Cedroni's budget and water rate increase, claiming there was no necessity for a financial "cushion" when "we have a moral responsibility to hold rates down in this deep economic recession."

"This is not a 'suburbs versus Detroit' issue," Back said.

"Our "cushion,'" said Cedroni, "is in doubt, because we're not sure of the projected usage of the water from the system." Cedroni's budget and rate increases are geared to projected water sales figures through 1980.

"We have capital improvements down the road, such as Waterworks Park," he said.

Cedroni cited needs for water mains, pump stations, relining old water mains and installing new valves and other capital improvements.

"These things were not in the budget we approved," said McNamara, referring to the budget passed when all were present, including suburban commissioners.

"But they were necessary," said Cedroni.

"You revised the budget on your own," Back charged.

ation. In the past we have trusted them to use their time wisely. Now it will be using the time clock."

According to one member of the office staff, before the vote "everyone seemed to be in favor of the union. "I don't know what happened, but everyone seemed to change their minds real quick. We checked everything out with the union and had a meeting with some union representatives. Everyone seemed to want it, but when the vote came, they changed their minds.

"Maybe it was the meeting we had with Carl Parsell on Monday. He came in and talked to us and said a contract was ready, but that joining the union was up to us.

"That might have changed everybody's mind."

Sheldon widening set

CANTON—A $160,000 widening program of Sheldon Road at the intersection of Ford and Sheldon in Canton Township is expected to begin by the end of May.

Lew Sugo, director of public information for the Wayne County Road Commission, said about three-tenths of a mile north and south on Sheldon will get new pavement. There will be widening and new curbing installed at the intersection, Sugo said.

Bids were taken last Thursday but no announcement as to which firm received the job were available.

Ford Road will be widened at the intersection to make it uniform with its width in front of shopping centers immediately west.

While Sheldon is a county road, Ford belong to the state which will pay for the work done at the intersection.

No plans for detouring traffic during construction have been announced, Sugo said. It is expected traffic will be able to use the roads while work is in progress.

Residents in the fast-growing area have complained for some time about the rough paving of Sheldon Road north of Ford.

Sugo said, depending on the weather, the work could be completed within three months.

Traffic on Sheldon Road has increased considerably during the past year and with construction trucks using the road, ruts and chuckholes have increased considerably.

How children's sex problems can be prevented by parents

BY SHERRY KAHAN

"Sexuality includes everything that has happened to you, everything you have learned, thought about, dreamed of or done that relates to being male or female."

This definition of human sexuality was offered last week to an audience at Schoolcraft College by a woman who has been characterized as "an aging libertine" and "a corrupter of youth."

Dr. Mary Calderone, 70 and wearing a saucy red suit, explained that she took up the cause of human sexuality because most education about sex centered solely on medical matters.

"Not enough was being done to consider relationships between men and women. Everyone should understand that a relationship is involved here."

She added that the organization of which she is executive director aims mainly to establish sexuality as part of total health.

The Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S. (SIECUS) also is working so that "in the next 10 years sexuality will be regarded as a human right."

THE WOMAN, who has also been called "a moral degenerate" and "a child seducer," disclaimed a role by her organization in the direct sex education of children.

"Our primary work has never been in the schools. We have never made up curriculum guidelines — that job should be done by the community. Our job mainly has been working with professionals."

Dr. Calderone believes that "the sense of self as a worthy person is essential to acting as a sexual being.

"For centuries human sexuality has been the exclusive property of the churches. They took over a whole part of the human being and told him how to feel and act. He was badly served."

Today Catholics, Lutherans and Methodists have created strong groups at the national level to develop new ideas on the subject.

"The sexuality of the child frightens people most of all. They really believe children should be non-sexual. Actually they are sexual, but in a different way from adults. Yet sometimes adults project onto the child, adult feelings.

"They believe children should be pure in mind, have no fantasies or erotic feelings. Adolescents have been expected to receive information carefully doled out by a parent in an uncomfortable session.

"They don't know the erotic drive makes itself known early in life, soon after the baby is born."

DR. CALDERONE, who before her present job worked as medical director of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, noted most persons accept the idea that children with certain organs grow up to be male or female.

"But a child is also programmed by parents to be male or female. There are all sorts of messages from parents and the culture on this.

"By the age of two, children identify themselves with one or the other sex. This is core gender identity that you can no longer change. Any attempt to change it risks tremendous upheaval in the child's life.

"The primary sex education of the child is done by parents by the time the child is five, and the parents don't even know they are doing it.

"If the child has no role model, he might become a homosexual, but there are no absolute answers on this."

Dr. Calderone observed that "parents who are comfortable with their own sexuality will be more comfortable with their children.

"I mean joyously comfortable. What you are doing with the children is letting them in on a great thing — opening a part of life you find wonderful. That's the best kind of sex education."

ANOTHER GOOD kind of sex education is coming from the young, she believes, as they move toward changing traditional male and female role.

"The young are changing these concepts by living them. They know that maleness doesn't depend on baking bread, being aggressive or changing diapers. It depends on the feeling of satisfaction in being male.

"With men it has been found that sexual release is a spontaneous happening. In women it is more of a learned behavior. It doesn't happen as spontaneously. difference may lie in parental reaction. Many regard an indication of sexuality as frightening. Girls may be punished more for this."

She pointed out that the lines between sexual normality and abnormality are becoming less and less distinct. "At SIECUS we no longer even use the word 'deviant' any more. We use the word 'variant' which carries with it no moral judgment."

SEVEN STATES have recently adopted improved laws concerning sexual activity. "Any sex in private between consenting adults is no longer of concern to the law in these states," she said.

"But there are still unrealistic laws in most states. These will be changed only when the public demands it."

Thinking in this country is changing about rape, she noted, adding that women in Bangladesh were raped by Pakistan soldiers were regarded as outcasts.

"We have always looked on rape as terribly damaging. What is damaging is the violence. One woman who had been raped told me how much she hated the violence.

"But I am still me. I don't have to feel my life is ruined."

In conclusion, Dr. Calderone passed on to her audience a comment made to her once by a student in her audience. It pleased her because it so neatly summed up her philosophy.

"I can see now there is more to sex than just doing it," he said.

THE WOMAN once described as a moral degenerate and child seducer, Dr. Mary Calderone, was in town this past week to speak for the Schoolcraft Series. (Staff photo)

Bike Day is Saturday

The first of four Bike Days on Edward Hines Drive this year will be held Saturday, May 3, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Only this year, bicyclists will get more mileage from the Bike Day outings. State Rep. John F. Markes (D-Westland), whose district includes part of Livonia, says the Hine Drive section to be closed to motorized traffic and turned over to bicyclists will be two miles longer this year.

The change will make the bicycling course 12 miles long — from Ford Road in Dearborn to Haggerty Road in Plymouth Township.

Markes, chief sponsor behind the event, says arrangements have been made with the Wayne County Road Commission to close Hines Drive for bicycling on four Saturdays — May 3, June 7, Sept. 6 and Oct. 4. This is the second consecutive year four days have been set aside for bicyclists on Hines Drive.

Motorized traffic is kept off the roadway by barricading the access points along the course, just like the county does when the floodplain is inundated. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department, with help from local police departments, will provide manpower to supervise the event.

"The local governments of Livonia, Westland, Plymouth Township and Dearborn Heights have joined in the effort to make the event a safe bicycling activity everyone can enjoy," said Markes, "Bike Days have turned out to be lots of fun for thousands of persons. It's the kind of thing the entire family can take part in and is safe, healthful, and enjoyable.

All bicyclists are invited to participate. Persons transporting their bicycles to the area will find ample parking west of Haggerty and at the Warren, Telegraph and Merriman Road access points.

Smith opposes new airport

A proposed airport in the Plymouth-Northville area is getting opposition from Wayne County Commissioner Royce E. Smith who represents the 27th district including part of Canton Township, Plymouth and Belleville.

A hearing on the proposal is set for 8 p.m. Thursday, May 1, in the Plymouth City Council chambers.

Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation Bureau of Aeronautics is studying the possible location of a general aviation airport for business and private craft.

"In my opinion, there is no need for another airport in that area, and there is no way an airport can be located there without stirring up a hornet's nest of opposition," Smith said.

He charged at least 200 homes would have to be condemned to assemble enough land for an airport.

"This would be a waste of public money and a needless imposition on more than 200 families. When I-275 is completed — and that will be before any new airport could be in operation—Willow Run and Pontiac airports will be only 30 minutes away from that area."

During the hearing bureau of aeronautics representatives will conduct an informational panel at the hearing.

Hearing on U.S. Census aimed to aid 1980 count

The public will have a rare chance to do the asking when the spokesmen from the Bureau of the Census are in Detroit Wednesday, April 30, to answer questions and gain public input.

The Detroit meeting, first in a series of free, public meetings to be held nationwide, will be in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center at Wayne State University.

Opening the conference will be a 9 a.m. session dealing with all aspects of the content and collection of data. The afternoon nession, beginning at 1:30 p.m., will consider what data shall pe published, how to present it, and when and how to make the data available.

SPONSORS HOPE the conference will gain local participation in planning the 1980 census of population and housing.

While the conference is expected to draw census data users and potential users, the entire public is invited to attend.

"We're coming prepared to listen," said Edgar Elam, suprvisory statistician of the Bureau's Demographic Census staff. "With federal revenue sharing allocations based on population, local areas have a bigger stake in the census than ever before."

Staff members will answer questions and carry back all comments, suggestions and criticisms voiced at the meeting.

"We expect to hear some griping about the 1970 census, but we hope to get suggestions that will help the 1980 census be the most accurate ever.

"This kind of feedback from ordinary citizens and from census data users is important to us so we can make the data as useful to as many persons as we can."

IT WASN'T until 1900 that Congress established the bureau on a permanent basis as part of the Department of Commerce. The first census (Constitution Article I stipulates one census every 10 years) was directed by then Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson in 1790. He delegated the job to 17 U. S. Marshals who hired assistants called enumerators.

The task was difficult. Few roads linked settled places, boundaries were poorly defined, paper was expensive, and many persons were suspicious and uncooperative.

Originally used for apportioning seats in Congress, census dat today is used for city planning, revenue sharing allocations, marketing research, economic and other social research.

SEVERAL THINGS have not changed since 1790, though.

One is the serious problem of undercounting. Minority groups and many cities have complained about being undercounted. Bureau spokemen hope the local meeting will generate suggestions for reducing undercounting.

Cosponsors of the meeting are: The Detroit Chapter of the American Statistical Association, American Marketing Association, Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Detroit Regional Census Advisory Committee, EAstern Michian University, Merit Computer Network.

Also: Michigan Bureau of the Budget, Michigan Library Consortium, Michigan Municipal League, Michigan State University, Oakland University, Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments, United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit, University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

MADONNA COLLEGE students Laurie Nolta of Livonia (center) and Rita Vano of Southfield (right) demonstrate with Sr. Kathleen Marie a comparative technique which teachers can use to explain the metric system in the schools.

Metric magic begins June 23

The "Magic of Metrics" will be taught in a one-week workshop at Madonna College, Livonia, beginning June 23. Classes will meet from 1 to 4 p.m. daily.

Intended to introduce teachers to the metric system, the course taught by Wayne State University graduate Sr. Kathleen Marie is also open to other adults and advanced high school students.

Because metric measure is based on multiples of 10, Sr. Kathleen believes persons will like it better than the English system once they learn it.

"We will deal with linear and liquid measure as well as mass and temperature," said Sr. Kathleen noting that some elementary textbooks are already using a dual system to acquaint students with basic metric units.

Although the U.S. is the only major world country not using the metric system, she said some communities are using signs to indicate distances in kilometers.

Tuition is $35 for the one semester hour course. Registration may be completed at Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft.

Karate instruction will meet Thursday evenings from May 1 through July 23 at 6:30 p.m. Fee is $20 for the non-credit course offered in the college activities center. Instructor for the class is William Thompson, a second-degree "Black Belt" who has studied Korean, Okinawan and Japanese styles of self-defense.

Five free courses for persons 65-years and older are being offered during April, May and June.

Creative writing will encourage persons to record their life experiences and reminiscences. An improvisational drama workshop will provide an opportunity for them to write and produce their own skits or plays.

Discussion of the problems and opportunities of retirement will pe the central theme of a seminar featuring films, tapes and group dynamics. Nutrition for the elderly and oil painting as a Gastime will also be offered.

For a schedule of other offerings, contact the student service center at the college.

Legal aide open house

A program to train legal assistants at Madonna College in Livonia will be discussed at an open house session at the college beginning 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 1.

The open house will include a description of the legal assistant program which will begin in the fall by Dennis Bozyk, coordinator of the program and chairman of the social science division at Madonna.

Application and admissions procedures, financial aids, and employment opportunities will be discussed.

Thirty students seeking career preparation as paralegal professionals, legal secretaries or legal assistants seeking career advancement will be accepted initially into the program.

Greek dessert, baklava, on foreign pastry cart

By ETHEL SIMMONS

When Kingswood and Cranbrook Schools got together to plan their first joint fund-raiser, the result was the upcoming "Foreign Connection."

An international supper, from 5 to 8 p.m. in the baronial hall, is part of the day's activities Saturday at Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills.

According to Sally Parsons, whose daughter attends Kingswood, "We were going to have the Cranbrook dining room do the whole menu, but so many mothers wanted to do desserts, the pastry carts will bring with their contributions."

Also wanting to share in the dessert making were students of Francine Rode from her January enrichment course in Greek culture and cooking.

Teacher Francine Rode (center) and Kingswood School Cranbrook girls help in preparation of baklava (Staff photos by Barbara McClellan)

A TEAM of girls gathered last week in the Kingswood School kitchen where they made the Greek, honey-drenched dessert, baglava.

Ms. Rode, who heads the English department, is not Greek herself but explained, "My major in school was classical studies. I've been to Greece many times and wound up with Greek friends. I've got a lot of Greek recipes."

She describes Greek food as "very traditional home-type dishes. They have unique spices and flavor."

To make baklava, you alternate layers of Greek filo ("It's really strudel dough," Ms. Rode said) brushed with butter and a maxture of nuts and spices.

"GREEKTOWN tends to be expensive to buy things," she said, "so I just buy the specialties." She added, "But they have fantastic prices on lamb. The traditional lamb chops are always good for a meal."

A Kingswood girl removed the damp towel that kept the filo from Greektown moist, then tenderly lifted and folded a sheet before laying it in the baking dish.

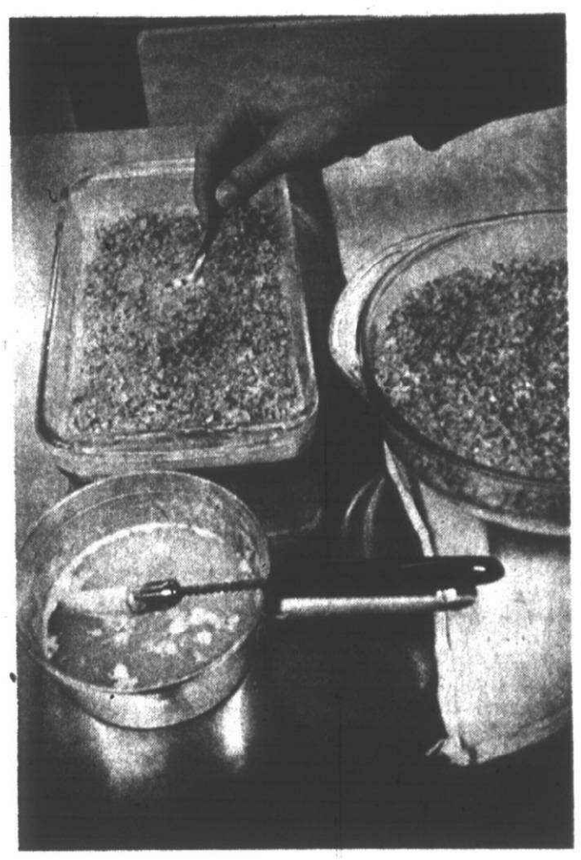
"It feels like parchment," she said.

Other students chopped almonds and walnuts.

"It takes forever," one girl declared.

Mrs. Rode said making baklava isn't difficult. "It's just tedious."

The baklava was to be baked that evening, then covered with the syrup before going into the freezer. It would be thawed out a few days before the supper and refrigerated until the day of "The Foreign Connection."



Nuts and spices go together and top buttered sheets of Greek filo (strudel dough)

Good Life

BEFORE THEY get to pastries, Cranbrook guests will enjoy English roast of beef, French green beans almandine, Swiss potatoes and Greek salad. Tickets for the modestly priced supper can be purchased by calling Cranbrook.

Other events Saturday include a fair with an assortment of booths from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Cranbrook Little Gym and an evening coffee house, with live dance music, for older students in the Cranbrook lower dining hall.

"The Foreign Connection" proceeds will be used to sponsor foreign exchange students, as well as students on special scholarship programs.

BAKLAVA

½ pound sweet butter, melted
½ pound filo
½ pounds blanched almonds, chopped
½ pound walnuts, chopped
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
15-18 whole cloves

Syrup

1 cup honey
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
1 cinnamon stick
½ teaspoon grated orange peel
½ teaspoon vanilla

Depending on individual taste, the recipe for the syrup may be halved to cut down on the sweetness a bit.

Combine all ingredients for the syrup in a saucepan, bring to a boil, simmer for 10 minutes, strain and allow to cool.

Coarsely grind or chop the almonds and walnuts. Mix thoroughly with cinnamon, allspice and sugar. Brush an 8x8x2-inch pan with butter, law a sheet of filo in the bottom, brush with butter, cover with another sheet of filo, brush with butter, and repeat process until about 6 sheets are used.

Then spread one thin layer of the nut mixture on top of the filo; cover with a sheet of filo, brush with butter, cover with another layer of nuts, and repeat process until all nuts are used.

Then cover with remaining filo sheets, brushing each sheet with butter. With a very sharp knife, cut the top filo sheets into rectangles. Insert a clove in the center of each rectangle, and bake at 350 degrees for one and one-half hours.

When the baklava is evenly browned, remove from oven, and pur the cooled syrup evenly over it, so that it penetrates the layers and covers the baklava. Allow to cool several hours before serving. Makes 15-18 pieces.

From society's banquet table

By MARGARET MILLER

If you had been one of those who attended the society banquets of a few years back, you'd know all about cocoa paintings. Also ice carvings and tallow figures.

These works—edible but never eaten—graced many a delicacy-laden table in the days of more lavish and leisurely dining, says Laura Kriss, a brand-new graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program.

But they have become pretty much lost arts, according to Miss Kriss, who is delighted that she had a chance to learn them during her studies in the Livonia school.

Cocoa painting involves pictures created in intricate detail on a hardened gum-paste base that resembles fine china. You don't see it often, but Miss Kriss and her fellow student, Pam Michael of Garden City, intend to do something about that with a small business.

Ice sculpture is better known, but not often practiced because facilities and materials to learn the art aren't very available.

Tallow work involves molding the tallow you render from animal fat around a wire form to create a sculptured figure. It's impressive, Miss Kriss says, but she has to admit there are drawbacks.

The tallow is greasy to work with, she says, and pretty smelly when soft. (It arrives at the banquet table refrigerated and odorless, though).

MISS KRISS, a Northville resident, showed samples of cocoa painting and tallow figures in the recent culinary arts salon at Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge campus.

She nd Mrs. Michael have concentrated on the cocoa works during the Schoolcraft term just completed.

"The gum-paste base," she said, "is made of sugar, glucose, cornstarch and a little water. You roll it out like pie dough— it's that consistency—and then form it over the back of a dish. It has to dry for a couple of days, and when ready to paint it's more delicate than fragile china."

The picture is outlined first and then painted with a fine prush dipped in a melted chocolate mixture.

"Or you can use cocoa mixed with cocoa butter," Miss Kriss said. "We use white chocolate for the shading, and sometimes white chocolate is tinted for pastel pictures."

MISS KRISS does her paintings free hand. "I studied at Schoolcraft for two semesters," she said. "It helps if you're an artist."

Mrs. Michael isn't an artist, but comes up with attractive paintings by tracing lines sketched in.

Both have studied the art with Jim Van Buren, one of the chefs in the culinary arts program.

They are following in the tradition of many great chefs of the past who did decorations of this kind for their elegant banquets.

Most good pastry chefs today are learning the art, Miss Kriss added.

PASTRY CHEF WORK is Miss Kriss' ambition, with her culinary arts training now completed. She said she got into the program "because my father wanted me to get some training I could use to support myself."

He recommended the culinary arts program because his daughter had thought of restaurant and hotel work, and she has found it a fine outlet for her artistic talent as well as being a practical skill.

Mrs. Michael, who has won 25 ribbons in cake-decorating shows, is employed by a Detroit bakery and makes special occasion cakes.

The two women currently are working on a supply of cocoa paintings to offer for sale.

They figure the paintings will be back soon as decor for the elegant banquet.

The water rate flap: Is there a better way?

PSC should take a look

By KATHY MORAN
Redford Editor

Last week's action by the Detroit water board hiking rates for all its customers presented the strongest argument in favor of placing the board under control of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

And it may, in fact, light a fire under State Rep. Alfred Sheridan's (D-Taylor) bill pending in the House Committee on Public Utilities which would do just that.

Currently the water board, a creation of the Detroit city charter, answers only to the Detroit mayor and city council. The state has no voice in its operations, and suburban interests are outnumbered on the seven-member board. This is all in spite of the fact that nearly half of Michigan's residents buy Detroit water, and of 96 communities pay into the water system.

The sheer size of the system mandates some type of state supervision. The entire suburban and out-county area served by the Detroit water system has only three representatives on the water board, and conceivably those appointments made by the Detroit mayor could go to Detroit representatives in the future.

If the water board was placed under supervision of the three-member Public Service Commission, public hearings would be mandated before rate hikes could be effectuated. The commission, whose two Republican and one Democratic members are appointed by the governor, would be able to look into the system's operation before approving the rate hikes.

Although the commission is already overburdened with problems facing the gas, electric, telephone and transportation systems, it appears the best existing authority to assume responsibility for the water systems.

Currenty the water board is the only utility which operates almost autonomously without any state supervision. If it isn't placed under the Public Service Commission, local residents may continue to be threatened with rate hikes at the whim of the Detroit water commissioners.

Let SEMCOG control water

By STEVE BARNABY
Westland Editor

Last week's bombshell decision by the four Detroit members of the Detroit Metropolitan Water Department (DMWD) board to raise water rates for suburban customers is a case pointing to the increased need for regional cooperation.

For years, fearful suburban politicians have warned against regional cooperation.

If, however, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) had control of the metropolitan water board, suburban communities would have had a voice in the water rates reflecting the population.

The point in last week's incident wasn't the need for a rate increase but the suburbs' right to have a voice in the decision. The water board is operated under an archaic system, logical at its genesis when Detroit constituted the entire urbanized area. Today a Detroit-controlled system is outmoded, unresponsive and wrong.

The decision was nothing short of political chicanery on the part of Mayor Coleman Young. He continually will be able to make such arbitrary decisions as long as he holds the reins.

Twenty years ago, the suburbs were toddling communities, dependent on their well-to-do mother. Today the suburbs are of age and should grasp the responsibilities that come with growing up. Detroit shouldn't hold the purse strings of economically thriving suburbs.

Some would endorse turning the responsibility over to state agencies. That, too, would be a mistake. The state has more than it can handle.

Regional government is tailor-made for water control. The suburbs would have overwhelming control of their own destinies.

Not only would it prove advantageous in determining water rates, but regional control also would benefit the suburbs by having an agency of professionals available to research avenues for a more efficient water system.

Water board plays sneaky

By LEONARD POGER
Livonia Editor

The Detroit Metropolitan Water Board of Commissioners—particularly the Detroit members—staged a public ripoff of its millions of customers last week in trying to railroad through a 30 per cent boost in water rates.

Fortunately, one of the commissioners changed his mind three days later, and the board, with its suburban members present, killed the rate boost 4-3.

But the memory lingers, and the earlier action demonstrates that some public officials will violate basic rules of decency and political ethics when given the chance.

The commissioners voted on the rate increase after the two suburban members present had left the meeting. The printed agenda for the meeting listed only a sewer rate increase and didn't suggest that a water rate boost was to be discussed.

The board, just one month earlier, with support from Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, said there would be no water rate boost for the new fiscal year.

The procedural point about the agenda is important because most school boards, city councils and township boards have rules requiring that no action be taken unless the issue is on the agenda.

The only exception is when the board of council members unanimously approve the action on the unscheduled issue.

The Detroit water board should take note of that policy and prevent another disaster from repeating.

Public should get a hearing

By BOB ERICKSON
Garden City Editor

Despite last Thursday night's reversal of the decision of the board of water commissioners to impose a massive water rate increase, problems continue to exist with regard to that body's policies and practice.

Among those is the matter of public participation in the decision made by the water board. The board of commissioners constitutes a governmental body not unlike township boards and city councils. Those governmental units would not be allowed to impose new taxes or rate increases without the benefit of public hearings. Neither should the water board have such a privilege.

"Imperial decisions" made from on high without regard for citizen involvement are often bad ones. The commissioners' reversal of the increase would seem to substantiate that. The commissioners apparently only took notice of the public when the hue and cry reached the lofty recesses of the City-County Building.

Whether the increases are needed by the board to maintain its budget is one question, the needs and wishes of the citizenry is another.

Such public bodies must realize the importance of public hearings, both for the purpose of hearing the public voice, and for the equally important purpose of informing the public of the needs and reasons for increased taxes and service rates.

The public is not unreasonable, if need can be demonstrated. Why does the board of water commissioners seem so reluctant to do so?

There's a way

By MIKE ARNHOLT
Plymouth and Canton Editor

A family of four that I'm familiar with used 100,000 gallons of water last year. That was used to run the dishwasher, fill the washing machine, bathe the kids, water the plants, flush the toilet, shower, shave, and cook.

Of course, the kids occasionally have "tea parties" where the bathroom sink is filled to overflowing and the bulk of the water in the tea cups gets spilled on the dining room floor. Then there's that leaky faucet in the basement, and the toilet that just won't stop running unless you "jiggle" the handle in the proper manner.

The cost for all that water which is considered "free" (the landlord pays the bill) is in the range of $75 per year. And while that is cheaper than the electricty and the gas, it's still quite a bite out of the budget for someone.

Lacking any better solution to the proposed rate increase by the Detroit Water Board, I would humbly suggest some alternatives for at least this particular family of four:

Put a brick in the toilet tank to reduce the amount of water used when flushing.

Fix those leaky faucets and the running toilet.

Don't let the water run while shaving, brushing teeth, or doing dishes (the dishwasher broke).

Reduce the number of "tea parties."

Not only would this family save on their landlord's water bill (and probably on their rent) they'd also be using only what they need, leaving more water for others to either use or abuse.

If Plymouth voted again...

By FRED DeLANO
Managing Editor

"A rise in rates as high as 120 per cent is what City Commissioner and Wayne County Supervisor Arch Vallier predicted it would cost Plymouthites if the city were to accept water from the City of Detroit."

That's a quote from the old Plymouth Observer of June 9, 1964, telling of Vallier's remarks to a Chamber of Commerce forum, and it helps demonstrate how long water has been a hot political topic in Plymouth.

It was back on the front burners during the past week because of the on-again, off-again antics of the Detroit Water Board.

MANY YEARS of loud emotional debate in Plymouth were climaxed March 24, 1970 when exactly 1,030 of us who live there voted "yes" on the question: "Shall the City of Plymouth enter into a contract with the City of Detroit for furnishing of water to the City of Plymouth?"

There were 1,014 who voted "no"—meaning that what I considered at the time, in my role as Plymouth editor, to be forwward-looking, metropolitan minded good guys had won by 16. In due time we all got Detroit water, just as the majority had asked, but along with it we also fell prey to the tactics of the high-handed Detroit Water Board.

When that special election was held five years ago, the average residential water user in the city of Plymouth was paying 34 cents per thousand gallons for the hard-as-nails, brackish stuff that came from the city's own wells. Now the same dweller is paying 78 cents per thousand gallons for the nectar from Lake Huron and never knows when the Detroit Water Board will sneak up on his blind side and hoist the price even more.

THE THOUGHT that Plymouth might quit the Detroit system in disgust and reactivate its own wells is far-fetched, for the city is hooked on a 35-year contract that leaves little room for escape. But if that election of 1970 were being held tomorrow, after the sordid power play we have just witnessed on the part of the water board, it's six, two and even the "no" votes would win resoundingly.

As City Commissioner Harold Guenther said in a commission debate Nov. 24, 1969, "I abhor getting in bed with Detroit for the next 35 years with no control over rates."

The people had been forewarned time and again; let's hope the nectar is worth the price.

AAUW and Jaycettes offer plenty of books

A cooperative venture shared by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women and the Wayne-Westland Jaycee auxiliary should keep everyone well supplied with reading matter in the months ahead.

The two groups are joining forces to sell some 15,000 used books, records and magazines in the Westland Center Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 1 to 3..

From 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, book lovers should be able to pick up a wide variety of volumes to suit just about every taste.

THE SALE IS the 21st annual one for the AAUW group, which each year uses proceeds to promote education of women through local, national and international scholarships.

The branch grants three scholarships through Schoolcraft College and the University of Michigan Center of Continuing Education, and also makes a contribution to the AAUW national fellowship fund.

The Jaycette group, cooperating in the book sale for the second year, will donate its proceeds to the Wayne-Westland YMCA and to Westgate Towers, a senior citizen housing unit in Westland.

A RECORD NUMBER of used books have been sorted and marked for sale this year.

Of particular interest to collectors and history buffs is the high number of rare, signed and unusual books.

Among these, said Elaine Kirchgatter, heading the AAUW committee processing the rare books, are two volumes of Shakespeare illustrated by Charles Knight and a book titled "Pinocchio," specially illustrated and printed in Italy.

Also on the rare books table will be "A History of the United States of America," written by Richard Hildreth and published in 1849. The book tells about the organization of government under the federal constitution.

Julie Gauer is chairman of the Jaycette sale, and her committee includes Faye Conley, Barbara Fleming, Jana Sammut, Carol Rosati and Suzanne Pickering.

Heading arrangements for the AAUW is Linda Osborne.

She is being assisted by committee heads Cheryl Holmberg, Irene Truesdell, Esther Hulsing, Sally Rowland, Liz Gribble, Klo Phillippi, Phyllis Theroux, Irene Whitmore, Mary Beth Wrubel and Jan Dersey.

How area schools operate at lunchtime

BY MARGARET MILLER

Down but not out is the way you'd have to describe the Type A lunch program for school districts in this area.

Type A lunches get plenty of competition—from vending machines full of snacks, from brown bag lunches from home, from fast food eateries near some schools, from a la carte offerings in the cafeterias.

But still they are served and eaten in quantity, because many of the money-conscious recognize them as a filling value.

In the Livonia school district,this federally-fun and specifically outlined type of school lunch no longer is served. The reason is money.

But in other districts—Plymouth, Redford Union, South Redford, Wayne-Westland and Garden City—it's still going strong or not so strong, depending on a number of factors.

THE TYPE A LUNCH is delineated by the federal government as to what kind of food it must provide from a nutrition standpoint.

Required in each lunch served are two ounces of cooked meat, cheese, eggs or other protein, three-fourths cup of fruit or vegetable, a slice of bread, roll or muffin with butter or margarine and eight ounces of milk.

When the lunches served meet these requirements, the government supplies some of the ingrediments, like ground beef, canned beef, cheese, dry milk, peanut butter, frozen vegetables, noodles, cooking oil and canned pork.

This year it hasn't supplied as much flour as formerly because it is in shorter supply nationally.

EVEN WITH THIS help, Livonia district administrators came to the conclusion several years ago that serving Type A lunches was not economically feasible.

The district that once had had the nation's model satellite food service system—foods prepared in central kitches and shipped to surrounding schools—began phasing out that operation six or seven years ago.

"It was a matter of inflation and the higher cost of kitchen help and less government subsidies," said Geraldine Joyner, school board member. "You could buy prepared food cheaper than you could prepare it, even with what was provided."

The decision to discontinue the Type A lunch came, said Mrs. Geraldine Tobin, director of school food services, when studies showed that only about 10 per cent of the students were choosing that lunch but the from-scratch preparation was taking about 70 per cent of the kitchen time.

SO NOW LIVONIA junior high schools and three senior highs— Bentley, Stevenson and Franklin—have a la carte selections and a complete lunch costing 65 cents, but the district does not have to meet the federal requirements and does not receive subsidies. Churchill High, built without an expensively-equipped kitchen, uses vending machines.

And Mrs. Tobin, while worrying about the lack of fruits and vegetables in the selections as students move down the lunch line, is pleased to see less wasted food than in the days when kids were dumping into the trash barrel the fruit dessert required by the Type A lunch standards.

Rising food and labor costs and a changing philosophy about lunch hour led to elimination of hot lunches in Livonia district elementary schools.

"The decision was that the dollars we had should be used first for education rather than food," explained Mrs. Joyner, "and there was a strong feeling among elementary teachers and administrators that it was better for children to go home for lunch."

Elementary brown-baggers still use the cafeteria, and lunches are provided for some children from low-income families.

OTHER DISTRICTS have worked out a variety of solutions to the school lunch needs. All include Type A lunches and a la carte offerings too.

Redford Union's entirely "home cooked" lunches are served in all schools, with the high school also offering selections off the Type A program.

The students select the full lunch most of the time, said Mrs. Mary LaCroix, food services director, because it's available for 55 cents and an a la carte meal is likely to run close to $1.

The same is true of South Redford's lunch picture, although the preparation there is done by an outside contractor, American Retailer Association. Type A lunches at Thurston are 60 cents.

Indications are, though, that changes may have to be made in the South Redford program.

"We are operating the food service completely with no contribution from the school district," said Horst Achenbach, district manager of ARA. "With increased food costs, it is not a profitable operation, even though we receive the government food subsidies.

"We are planning to outline a different proposal to the school district early in May to see if we can change this arrangement and continue to serve the district. It is most unusual for a private firm to operate in a school setting on a strictly profit-and-loss basis."

IN PLYMOUTH, hot lunches are strictly Type A in elementary and middle schools and both Type A and a la carte in the high schools.

Raymond Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, said a recent lunch count indicated an average of 3,621 Type A lunches were served per day in a district that has some 11,430 students in grades one through 12. Of those, 428 were purchased by high school students.

Hoedel pointed out that many elementary students go home for lunch and many in high school are on modular schedules and probably do not eat at school, but agreed the figures indicated the a la carte selections and the full range of vending machines are more popular.

"They offer a wider choice, and I think that may be needed at that age," he said.

THE GARDEN CITY school district serves Type A lunches in all schools with an a la carte alternative offered in the two high schools. A cafeteria supervisor in Garden City West indicated the choice among students who buy lunches goes about 90 per cent to the Type A.

"A complete lunch for 65 cents is a good bargain," she said, "and we try to plan the menus to give a choice and the kind of things kids like, hamburgers, hot meat sandwiches, swiss steak, fish on a bun. These meet the requirements and still are popular."

The Wayne-Westland district has Type A lunches in all schools except Wayne Memorial High School, but John Glenn High students seem to buy more a la carte items.

It's 44th anniversary time

Five local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi, a non-academic social, cultural and service organization, will celebrate at a 44th anniversary dinner party Wednesday, April 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sherwood Inn of Livonia.

About 100 women from all parts of this area belong to the international organization, which now has some 10,500 chapters in 24 countries and some 250,000 names on its membership rolls.

The anniversary dinner here will involve members of chapters Xi Beta Pi, Eta Psi, Lambda Kappa, Xi Delta Eta and Xi Delta Psi.

Cocktails will be served for an hour before the dinner, and the entertainment program will feature music by the Stevenson High School choir.

"Stairway to Happiness," is the theme this year for the entire Beta Sigma Phi organization. In this area, as in others around the country, service projects form a major part of the annual program.

Xi Beta Pi members support the Children's Leukemia Foundation and the Easter Seal Foundation and work with a teen club.

For Eta Psi, there are four projects, support of the Michigan Cancer Association, making Goodfellow dolls and mittens, financial aid to TV Channel 56 and making up Thanksgiving and Easter baskets.

Lambda Kappa members donated an exercise cycle to the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities for use by children with special problems and have adopted a senior citizen for a year.

This group also gives parties at Christmas and Mother's Day for residents of a home for seniors.

Two parties for children at the Plymouth Center for Human Development are sponsored by the Xi Delta Eta chapter. Members also go Christmas caroling at the Northville State Hospital and make holiday favors for nursing homes.

Xi Delta Psi members supply Thanksgiving and Easter baskets to needy families.

Schools plan shotgun campaign

By STEVE BARNABY

WESTLAND — School administrators, board trustees and parents in the Wayne-Westland School District are gearing up for the campaign to persuade residents to approve the $28 million bond issue on the June 9 ballot.

Committees to organize both parent and school employe support have been instituted, according to Deputy Supt. Dennis O'Neill. A speakers' bureau of board members and administrators also is available to interested groups wishing to learn more about the bond effort.

"We are going to have to use a shotgun approach campaign this time," says O'Neill. "We want the residents to know that this money will provide for the school district's needs for the last 25 years of the century."

IF APPROVED, the bonds would pay for improvements in special education, elementary and secondary facilities and junior and senior high schools. A new administration building would be constructed, as well as improvement of vocational educational facilities at John Glenn High School.

Because of a special School Bond Loan Fund provided for by the State of Michigan, district taxpayers will be required to pay 0.7 mills, with the state picking up the remaining 90 per cent of the tab, according to school officials.

The average district taxpayers' increase in the district would be $9.10.

This computation by the administration is based on a house with state equalized evaluation of $13,000.

The district already is at its maximum tax limit for debt retirement (7 mills) so is eligible to dip into the state funds.

"We are talking about philosophy rather than mortar and bricks in this campaign," says O'Neill. "Programs like improved vocational education are imperative."

The district has allocated $1.5 million to vocational education under the bonding program. Strong emphasis is put on this educational area, say school officials, because nearly 70 per cent of the district's students don't go on to higher education.

In presenting the program to the board of education, Supt. Timothy Dyer told trustees, improved vocational facilities were necessary so as to provide students skills necessary to enter the industrial, business and commercial world.

O'Neill says the feedback from the public over the vocational education plan has been "fantastically positive" since the program was announced.

IN DRAWING up its program, the administration relied on an in-depth report from a resident committee which studied future needs of the district.

But some of the planned expansion may have less enthusiastic support, admits O'Neill. He specifically pointed to the plan of building swimming pools in the junior high schools.

"I suppose there will be questions from some residents in the community of whether we really need the swimming pools," says O'Neill. "But kids, especially for their safety, should learn to swim."

Learning to swim is important, says O'Neill, because of the vast number of lakes in Michigan and hence the large degree of contact youngsters are liable to have with the water.

An advantage to the program, according to proponents, is that while the district is technically borrowing 90 per cent of the money, in reality it will never have to pay back the funds.

"This particular program is tailormade for the Wayne-Westland School District. It will allow monies that the local taxpayers pay the state to be retruend to the district to be returned to the district for its local needs," says Dyer.

Other programs, such as special education, will sell themselves,says O'Neill. The district is planning to grant $2 million for additions and renovations to provide orthopedic facilities at Nankin Mills Junior High School and John Glenn. The physical plant changes are necessary, say administration officials, to provide quality education for othopedic students.

A large part of the campaign will revolve around the elementary principals, who will act as coordinators for the precinct. The district is divided into precincts, with the elementary schools the hub of each one.

State test results presented to board

PLYMOUTH—Fourth and seventh graders in the Plymouth Community Schools have met or surpassed all but two of more than 50 test objectives in the Michigan Educational Assessment Test.

That is the word school board members will receive tonight (Monday) in a report to the board on the statewide test results.

The tests are given each year to fourth and seventh grade students and contain questions geared primarily to math and reading skills.

ACCORDING TO Pupil Services Director Dr. Edward Page, "Our fourth and seventh graders, by and large, did better than children in the same grade levels statewide."

Fourth graders only scored below the desired state norm on one question out of 49. The question involved reading a thermometer.

Seventh graders also were only off on one item, out of 60 presented, and fell below the norm in comparing fractions with like denominators.

Page pointed out however, that both items produced low scores statewide, and Plymouth students had outperformed scores of last year's fourth and seventh graders on the items that were under the norm.

Page said this year marks the first time in the six-year history of the state assessment tests that comparisons can be made from the previous year.

UP UNTIL LAST YEAR, the tests changed each year and scores from various school districts were compared with the overall average to determine which curriculum items were lacking.

Last year, the state switched to an "objective reference test" which established that a student must answer four out of five questions on a given skill to be deemed proficient.

According to Page, more than 80 per cent of all fourth and seventh graders in the school district were above the proficiency standards on all but one question for each grade level.

While all students, statewide, showed an improvement over last year's results, Plymouth students' scores increased more in most categories than the statewide increases.

Page added that the information supplied to each teacher is also more concise. "The data we're getting back is much more meaningful than it was in the past. The teacher now gets a computer printout on the performance of each student in the class," he said.

Unbeaten Churchill, Franklin next

Top area trackmen Glenn face tough week

Everyone knows and admits that Westland John Glenn has the best track team in the northwestern suburban area.

Everyone, that is, except Rocket coach Barry Basel.

But as Glenn heads into a week in which it will face two undefeated Livonia teams, the fact that the Rockets are among the best squads in the state may become obvious even to the "underconfident" Basel.

GLENN WILL go against a strong Livonia Churchill team Tuesday and Churchill coach Fred Price admits his team will play the role of the underdog.

"Glenn is just too talented. They're a very good team and I don't see how we can beat them," said Price.

But Basel, whose Rockets sport a 6-0 record, said a Glenn victory would be "an upset."

"Churchill is a very deep team and they are particularly strong in the field events," Basel said.

Then Thursday, the Rockets swing back into league action when they take on unbeaten Livonia Franklin.

Basel also was pessimistic about his team's chances in that meet.

"Franklin has to be considered the favorite in the Northwest Suburban League."

But Franklin coach Bob Holmes retorts that "we have our best hurdler out with an injury and without him there's absolutly no way we can win that meet."

Last Thursday, Glenn took it out on North Farmington in Northwest Suburban action, 83-40.

TOM JACUBOWSKI CONTINUED his standout performance for the Rockets, taking firsts in the long jump, the high and low hurdles.

Terry Bixler handled the dashes for Glenn, winning both the 100 and 220-events and competing on the winning 880- relay team.

Fred Shoemaker anchored that team and took a second in the 220. Shoemaker double-faulted out of another sure place in the 100-yard dash.

"I lost my concentration. I've been running long enough so that shouldn't happen," he said afterwards.

Dave Johnson picked up the only other Rocket double win with victories in the 880 and 440-yard run.

Boxing main event canceled

By TOM SCHRAM
Sports Editor

The big fight which was scheduled Friday night in Livonia's Ford Arena never came off.

The scheduled five round flyweight main event between Westland's John O'Neill and Livonia's Danny Marderosian was canceled an hour before it was to take place when word was sent to the arena that Marderosian would not appear.

MARDEROSIAN'S trainer, Marty Gilday, apparently canceled his fighter's scheduled bout with Golden Gloves champion O'Neill in lieu of the upcoming Michigan AAU championships early in May.

"His trainer told me he did not want the fight two weeks ago but he said because Marderosian wanted it he would allow it," said O'Neill's trainer Emmanuel Stewart.

Apparently Gilday won out prior before the fight deadline.

"I'm really disappointed," said O'Neill when informed of the cancellation. "A lot of people were looking forward to this fight."

As always, though, the show went on.

The crowd at the arena was treated to nine bouts and several exhibitions. O'Neill fought a three round exhibition versus Don Schmidt of Flint.

In the featured preliminary bout, Mickey "Sneaky Pea" Goodwin of Melvindale recorded his sixth straight knockout, sending Jim Goodman to the canvas at the 1:10 mark of the first round.

GOODWIN HIT HIS opponent with a vicious right hand to the temple and Goodman fell to the canvas and then rolled out of the ring onto the floor.

Following the match, Goodman was shaken but coherent.

In the other preliminary bout, Southfield's Dan Humphrey scored a decisive technical knockout against Flint's Robert Schmidt. Humphrey was in command all the way and drove his opponent repeatedly to the mat. At the 1:23 mark of the second round, Schmidt was unable to continue.

Don Schmidt, also of Flint, took on O'Neill in the main event.

Schmidt held a 24-pound advantage over O'Neill but neither fighter scored a knockdown in a ragged three-round affair.

"He never really hit me. I got in some good punches in the first round," O'Neill said.

"I didn't avoid clinches enough. He was a good inside fighter."

No decision was announced because the match was an exhibition.

O'Neill will fight next in the Michigan AAU championships starting on May 3 in Ford Arena.

Marderosian is also scheduled to fight in that tournament and it is possible the two Golden Gloves champs will meet in the AAU, provided they are entered into the same class.

Who won?

Churchill-RU track meet results still in question

The question is, who won the Redford Union — Churchill — Farmington triangular track meet last Tuesday?

"As far as I'm concerned, we outperformed the other teams and as far as I'm concerned we won the meet," said Redford Union coach John MacKenzie.

"We won. They can protest that fact but until the protest is upheld, the victory remains with us," said Churchill coach Fred Price.

"We didn't win," said Farmington coach Jerry Young who wishes that the whole thing would just go away and let him get back to practice.

The mystery of the missing victory continued to flare last Friday as hot as Agatha Christie's latest offering. Unofficially, the score now stands at Churchill 63 points, Redford Union 61.5 points, Farmington 31.5 points.

But MacKenzie is not satisfied to allow things to stand at that.

The controversy in the meet revolves around the running of the 220 yard dash.

Due to the size of the track at Farmington and the number of schools competing, the shorter races had to be divided into two heats.

The faster runners were to compete in the first heat and the slower runners in the second.

Churchill's Jim Wright took the first, supposedly faster, heat with a time of 23.5 seconds.

BUT IN THE SECOND heat, Jim LaLonde of Redford Union, who had never run the event before, surprised everyone at the meet, including and especially MacKenzie, when he turned in a 23.2 clocking.

The question then became who would be awarded first place in the event when it was determined that the entire meet hung on that decision.

Then things started to get confused.

Price claimed that LaLonde and another RU runner, Dane Echmaker, who took fourth overall by finishing second in the slower (faster) heat, should have been disqualified altogether because both were scheduled to run in the faster (slower) heat.

According to Price, MacKenzie admitted such but later MacKenzie stated that the starter would not allow Echmaker to run in the first heat and that LaLonde was scheduled for the second heat all along.

The argument went on for more than an hour and in the end, the decision was placed in the lap of Young who was not affected and who really wanted no part of the argument.

Young, who achieved his designation by virtue of the fact that he was the meet host, ruled that Wright was first with a time of 23.5, LaLonde was second with a time of 23.2 and that Echmaker was fourth.

Under that theory, Churchill won the meet, proving again that the race goes not always to the swiftest.

Officials breathe easier after Washington trip

By RICHARD GOLD

Smiles, optimism, and (maybe) money resulted from the Washington trip Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein and Plymouth Mayor Beverly McAninch took Wednesday (April 23).

Greenstein and McAninch were a group of five Wayne County supervisors and mayors who journeyed to the nation's capital with a handful of questions about the federally-funded block grant program, in which their communities are tentatively enrolled.

They talked with congressmen Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor), William Ford (D-Taylor), John Dingell (D-Dearborn), Lucien Nedzi (D-Detroit) and David Meeker, an assistant secretary of the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and director of the block grant program.

"The answers we got were more satisfactory than we had even hoped for," said Greenstein. "We had a multitude of questions from our sister townships and the results we got were very pleasing."

McANICH added; "I am most happy with the answers we got. There were an awful lot of bad comments before the trip and I am pleased to report that we got a lot of good comments."

"We were reassured, particularly by Meeker, that no community would be any more restricted by accepting the block grant money than they were when they accepted CETA funds and money from revenue sharing."

McAninch said the actual contract for the grant would be between Wayne County and HUD. "The county would be liable if anything were to go wrong and there's no way they could share that liability with us."

Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships are among 19 communities vying for the federal money. They have joined in an application with the county for the funds, currently estimated at about $700,000. Plymouth and the two townships stand to receive $33,000 apiece if they choose to remain in the program.

CANTON and the City of Plymouth have signed a cooperative agreement with the county and have until May 15 to back out, while Plymouth Township officials have been waiting for the results of the Washington trip before making any decisions about formally joining in the application.

The questions McAninch and Greenstein posed to federal officials concerned control of housing and the grant money. There was some trepidation over who would administer the funds, and what would be required of communities accepting funds.

Other fears concerned the relationship between first year grants and later monies, and who would have responsibility for enforcing EPA requirements.

"We discovered there were no hidden zombies or tricks in the closet," said Greenstein. "HUD is making a sincere attempt to help those communities in the program upgrade their housing stock and assist in the rehabilitation of housing. They are also making an effort to assist communities in the aid of senior citizens."

McAninch said: "I think one of the prime motives behind this program is to get communities to take a good look at their housing situation and then act on it."

Although the county has completed the application, it has not been submitted to HUD. Gordon Ruttan, a county employe involved in the application, said it has undergone the necessary reviews. "SEMCOG has gone over it and it is ready for submission, but we are going to wait intil the advisory council meets again on May 7 before we submit it. Our deadline is May 15, and if we get it in by then, there's a good chance we will know whether we get the money by July 4."

RUTTAN SAID there is a 75-day limit on processing applications but the average time has been about 41 days. "That's a whole lot better than the 700 days it took for urban renewal grants."

The advisory council, a committee established by the 19 communities involved in the grant application and the county will reconvene May 7 in Plymouth City Hall to discuss the results of the Washington trip.

Several municipalities have been awaiting the outcome of the trip before making a final decision about joining the application. Among those communities is Plymouth Township.

The Plymouth Township board empowered Supervisor J. D. McLaren to withdraw from the application at his discretion. "I haven't talked to anyone about making the trip. I'll have to wait until the next meeting before making a decision. If the answers are good, I'd say there's a 50-50 chance we'll stay in the program."

ALTHOUGH THE APPLICATION has undergone the necessary reviews before submission to HUD there is still a question about whether the funds will be granted.

The county needs cooperative agreements from enough communities to represent an aggregate population of 200,000 to be eligible for the grant. According to Ruttan, the county has secured agreements for 138,000 and is waiting for the other communities to respond to the results of the Washington trip.

Commented McAninch; "I'm most optimistic. I think there's a good possibility we'll get it.

"My understanding is the grant will double next year to $1.3 million and will be up $2 million in the the last years."

Plymouth has proposed to use the money for a housing study, while Canton will use the money, if it is granted to renovate a building at the corner of Michigan Avenue and Sheldon for use as a senior citizen's activity center.

"If there is any money left, we'll probably use it for the recreation park at the corner of Cherry Hill and Canton Center or for the McIntyre sewer project," said Greenstein.

Pair of 1-0 victories

Canton, Salem take diamond wins

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem both tried losing once this year but it apparently was not a pleasant experience and the two teams have remained perfect since.

Both teams took league victories this week to stay in contention for league honors and both games were won by 1-0 counts.

On Thursday it was the Chiefs who ousted Farmington Harrison by the narrowest of margins.

Chris Martucci picked up the win for Canton, going the distance and limiting the Hawks to just three hits.

Canton scored the game's only run in the first inning.

Paul Major opened the game with a ground out to bring up Chief catcher Tom Close. Close picked out the third pitch from loser Greg Matchiak and sent it soaring over the wall in left-center field.

"There was never any doubt. The ball went about 340 feet," said Canton coach Fred Crissey.

It was the third home run of the year for Close, tying him for the team leadership in that category.

The victory gave the Chiefs an 8-1 record and kept them atop the Western Six league.

IT TOOK SALEM nine innings to achieve its 1-0 count in Suburban Eight action versus Allen Park.

Tom Willette went the distance for the Rocks to record his fifth victory against one setback.

Willette walked only two while striking out 15.

The Rocks scored in the bottom if the ninth when John DenHouter and Willette walked.

Dan Moore sent a sinking drive to right field which Bruce Antioch caught in the webbing of his glove on a diving attempt.

The ball squirted loose as Antioch hit the ground, however, and Moore was credited with a hit as DenHouter scored.

The victory lifted the Rock record to 6-1 with a 4-1 mark in the Suburban Eight behind unbeaten and league leading Thurston.

Batteries: Canton — MARTUCCI and Close. Harrison — MATCHIAK and Rogind.

Cheri Leveille starred for the Rocks with a 6:10.7 clocking in the mile.

"I changed my relays around and we ended up losing two of the three relay events," said Rock coach Fred Thomann.

Chargers stay perfect, Canton falls in track

Livonia Churchill track coach Fred Price replaced several of his seniors with sophomores and juniors Thursday and still came away with an easy 92-31 victory over a young Plymouth Canton squad in Western Six action.

Churchill took 12 of 15 firsts in the meet and every first was taken by an underclassman. Most notable of the missing was area shot-put leader Bill Reardon.

Mike Welch filled in for Reardon and came up with a winning toss of 42-3.5.

There were no double winners in the meet but Larry Janowski came up with a first in the long jump and a second in the 220 dash. Clint Deroche took a first in the low hurdles and a third in the highs.

Churchill swept four events and took two of three relays. Fred Powers and Paul Shulz tied in the pole vault, each going a height of 12-6.

The victory increased the Chargers' record to 5-0.

REACH OUT AND TOUCH

IT'S NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK April 20-26! One out of every five Americans makes a gift of time and talent to some type of volunteer service --- helping others or working towards a community project. Just look around --- your School Board, workers for Community Chest drives, Boys' and Girls' Clubs, health clinic aides, friendly visitor for shut-ins...the list is endless.

BUT WHAT CAN I DO? From Auto safety campaigns to Zoo guides, volunteers serve in many varied areas. Anyone can help including career men and women with free weekends, retired couples, those adjusting to shortened work weeks and teenagers. Short term projects such as a baseball coach or spring flower planting exist as well as weekly assignments for craft class teachers and transportation.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR ME? Establishing a new program, fun during off hours, meeting new people, developing new friendships, exploring a different career field are reasons to help; but, most of all, the personal satisfaction involved adds a new dimension to a volunteer's self esteem.

MANY MEIJER EMPLOYEES join in as volunteers in their communities. Heres a few.....

DON SCHUTTER from the Muskegon Thrifty Acres has been a "Big Brother" volunteer to a fatherless boy for 1½ years to provide male companionship for him.

JILL GEASLER, Secretary at the General Office is an assistant area representative of Kent County for "Youth For Understanding", which is an exchange student program.

DURING National Volunteer Week we say thank you to all the men and women who give an hour of themselves so generously. Call the Voluntary Action Center in your community -- find out what you can do to make this world a better place.

CHECK YOUR PHONE BOOK for the Voluntary Action Center nearest you.

HAPPINESS IS... SERVING YOU
