Covered walkway dropped as option for Canton High

Almost $4 million will be spent on the final phase of construction on Plymouth Canton High School.

The Plymouth Board of Education Monday night approved bids for Phase III, primarily music and physical education facilities, with construction and equipment totalling $3,975,000.

The building trades work will cost $2.35 million, mechanical trades $719,900, electrical trades $328,750, supplementary equipment $142,945 and a contingency amount to cover musical instruments, gymnasium equipment, furniture and furnishings, plan review and inspection fees, permit and tapping charges, and architects-engineers fees.

LOW BIDDERS accepted for the work were:

Fordon Construction Co., low bidder for building trades and also general contractor; Christini-McDonald Plumbing and Heating Company, mechanical work; and Scheper's Electric, Inc.

Both Fordon and Christini-McDonald were contractors for the original Canton High construction and for Phase II — the vocational education addition.

Among the alternate bids approved by the board was $13,600 for deep strength asphalt and $1,600 for a dual boiler which will burn natural gas or fuel oil in case of a shortage of natural gas in the future.

Another alternate accepted was $4,750 for an emergency power supply to provide lights in case of power failure for night events in the school or for security reasons.

THE BOARD decided against alternates for a covered bridge walkway between Canton and Salem high schools and opted for the open walkway that was included in the base bridge.

The architectural firm of Wakely Kushner Associates prepared two alternates for the walkway — a covered walkway enclosed with glass at $125,000, and a covered walkway without glass enclosure for $65,000.

The board decided against the enclosure and the cover, with knowledge that the bridge construction allows a cover or enclosure at a later date if deemed desirable.

Total length of the bridge will be 64 feet and the length of the walks on either side of the bridge is 162 feet. The bridge is for pedestrian traffic across Willow Creek and the walks connect the new addition on the north side of Willow Creek with the present school on the south side of Willow Creek.

Also rejected as alternates were a

Marda Benson elected president of school board

Marda Benson was elected president of the board of education of the Plymouth Community School District during the board's organizational meeting Monday night.

She moves up from the position of board vice-president, a job she held last year, to succeed Dr. E. J. McClendon. Elected vice-president was Marcia Borowski who served last year as board secretary.

Thomas Yack was re-elected treasurer. Trustee George Lawton was elected board secretary.

All board officers were elected without opposition as other trustees who were nominated declined to run for positions. Gary Mirto had been nominated for board president but declined to run, and Yack was nominated for vice-president and declined.

THE ORGANIZATIONAL meeting, held the first meeting after each school board election in June, preceded the board's regularly scheduled meeting.

In an effort to shorten the length of regular meetings — most of which continue until midnight — the board decided to hold three regular meetings each month.

There was no debate on the extra meeting with all trustees in agreement that meetings should be held the first, second and fourth Mondays of each month.

There was some discussion, however, on the starting time. Mrs. Borowski wanted to begin meetings at 7 p.m. with the first half-hour for comments from residents, the next 30 minutes for curriculum presentations, and the business meeting to begin at 8 p.m.

She also asked that a time limit be set on the length of meetings with any unfinished business carried over until the next meeting.

McClendon objected that those who held jobs would have trouble finding time for dinner before 7 p.m. McClendon did feel a curfew was in order and suggested 10 p.m.

A resolution to begin the meetings at 7 p.m. and an amendment asking an 8 p.m. starting time were both defeated. The board then approved a resolution offered by Lawton to start meetings at 7:30 p.m.

Without taking formal action, trustees agreed a good format would be to hear comments from residents during the first half-hour and try to have the business concluded by 10 p.m.

Joseph Gray, elected to the board last month, suggested a formal curfew be set with board president having the choice to suspend rules when matters of importance could not be taken care of by 10 p.m.

Lawton suggested the curfew matter, and suggestions on format, be studied by the board's bylaws committee and considered later.

IN OTHER organizational business, the board approved authorized signatures for school district business and named the depository for district funds and investments.

National Bank of Detroit, Plymouth branch, was named depository for district funds with Michigan National Bank named depository for the 1974 debt fund.

The board voted to retain the district's auditor, legal counsel, and insurance agent of record.

Named as representatives to the Plymouth Canton Development Commission were Mrs. Borowski, Raymond Hoedell, assistant superintendent for business, and Thomas Turner, former school board member.

Yack was named board representative on the new construction committee. Mrs. Benson was reappointed as representative to Intragovernmental Council with Yack as alternate.

Many dentures in area made in Plymouth lab

The "Made in Plymouth, Mich." label appears on articles which find their way all over the world, but the dentures, gold crowns and partial plates manufactured at 274 S. Main bear no such marking.

Pete Melenyk of Livonia has been operating his dental laboratory above the Colonial restaurant for 14 years. He does the lab work for many area dentists.

Metal partial plates, veneer crowns, gold crowns and full sets of dentures are assembled in Melenyk's laboratory.

The plastic and porcelain teeth are bought ready-made, and he keeps a stock on hand—all shapes and shades—enough to assemble 200 sets of dentures.

Making dentures or partials is an exacting and time-consuming work, with great cooperation between the lab and the dentist.

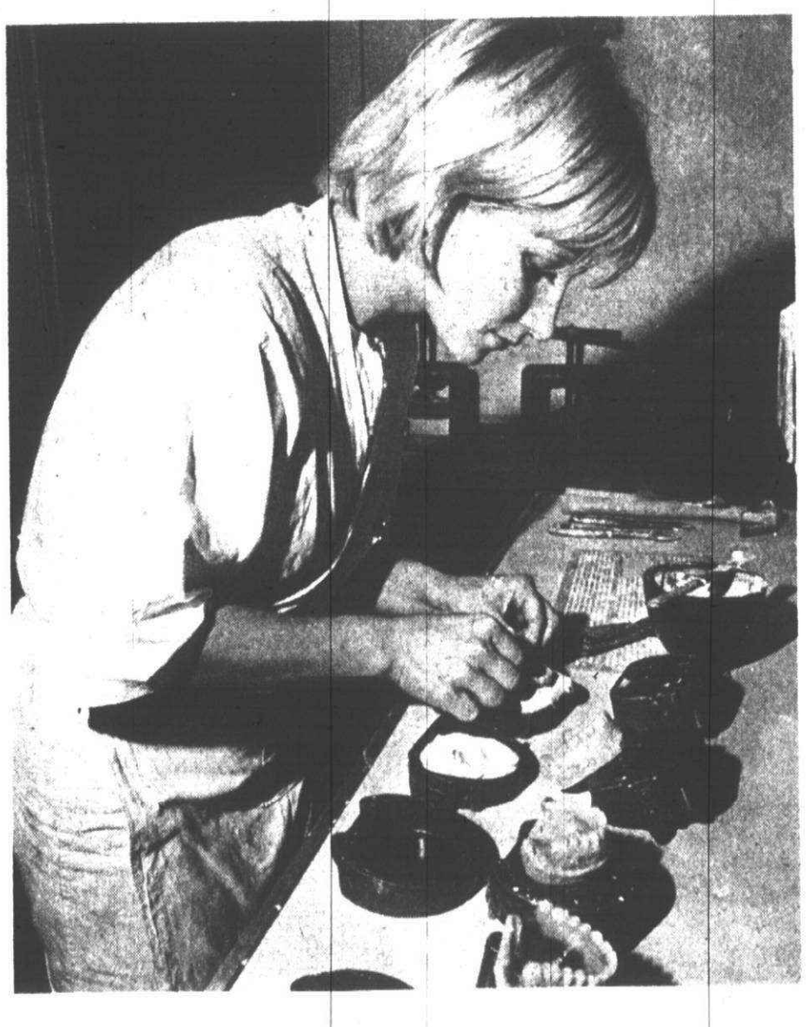

The carefully carved wax molds require the hands of an artist and the expert impression taken by the dentist.

Once the dies are made, they are sealed in metal molds and placed in a boiler. The wax melts and the resulting cavity is filled with acrylic (a nice, healthy gum color) which is the denture base.

Before they are completed, they go through a curing process. According to Melenyk there is an eight-hour slow method and a faster method which takes four hours—two hours of slow curing and two hours of boiling.

After a final boiling, finishing, and cleaning, the dentures are ready for the dentist to make the last fitting and eliminate any uncomfortable spots.

"Every once in a while we get a request to put a gold filling in a new set of dentures," said Melenyk. "But it's a rare thing anymore."

Compromise...

Is intramural debate winding up?

There remains disagreement among members of the Plymouth Board of Education on the proposed intramural program but trustees seem confident a compromise can be reached.

The question of the intramural program, and expanded high school varsity sports, was first raised by newly-elected trustee Joseph Gray at Monday night's regular board meeting.

Gray asked a series of background questions to familarize himself with how the programs would be implemented, whether sufficient space was available, and asked questions about cost-effectiveness.

JOHN SANDMANN, director of physical education, health and athletics, gave the board a progress report on implementation of girls' golf, girls' tennis and varsity boys' hockey programs in the high schools.

He reported there will be two girls' gymnastic teams with each participating in eight to 12 meets. The golf team will play in the spring at Brae-Burn Golf Club on Napier Road, Plymouth Township, which is the course used by the boys' team in the fall.

The girls' golf and gymnastic teams won't officially belong to a league until the 1976-77 school year, Sandmann explained, but their acceptance into the league is assured. They will be playing league teams this coming school year.

SOME HOCKEY games have been scheduled, Sandmann said, and coaching assignments decided upon, although the contracts won't be signed until late summer.

All equipment needed will be sent out for bid, he added.

For hockey, there will be 11 games scheduled for one school and 10 for the other. The district is presently negotiating for use of the Plymouth Cultural Center ice rink with practice from 5:30 to 7 each morning and games played Monday nights.

Thi 0was the only ice time available, Sandmann explained, and would cost the district $35 per hour in the morning and $43 per hour Monday nights.

By state law, a hockey team is limited to a 25-game schedule. Presently, all the Monday nights available have been scheduled for home games so any additional games scheduled will be away contests.

Gray said he supported the hockey program but had concerns about cost and the number of players that would benefit.

Gray wondered how many players would try out for the team, suggesting a detraction might be plans of the Plymouth Hockey Association to send a travelling team to Sweden this fall.

Sandmann explained that the girls' coaches would be paid the same as the boys' golf coach.

THE INTRAMURAL proposal has been presented by the admministration twice to the board and sent back for revision.

The intramural program is an item of discussion for the July 18 workshop meeting of the board.

The last time the matter came up, trustee Marcia Borowski expressed concern about allocation of funds between elementary and secondary school programs and questioned the need for transportation at the high school level.

Trustee Gary Mirto expressed strong support for intramurals and said he hoped a decision would soon be reached. "If we cannot reach closure on intramural, I'll drop my support of the hockey program. Either both programs move in tandem or neither goes—that's my personal position."

Gray said he supported hockey and the intramural program but wouldn't want to see the activities launched without well qualified coaches being picked.

Sandmann was instructed by the board to continue his negotiations for ice rink time and to continue his planning efforts. In giving the instructions, the board's consensus seemed to be that the differences would be somehow ironed out and planning efforts should not be delayed.

Pursell balks at Detroit's hold on SEMTA governing board

LANSING—Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) is digging his heels in for a battle for at least equal suburban representation on the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) governing board.

Detroit Mayor Young and other city leaders are pushing for majority control of the regional transit authority. Suburban spokesmen insist that no major SEMTA project proceed unless suburban citizens are guaranteed no less than equal representation on the board.

A proposal now moving in the backrooms of the Legislatureassures that one group or the other will dominate the board, and leaves the decision on how to tip the balance to the governor.

UNDER SENATE BILL 931, the present nine-member SEMTA board would be expanded to 13. Detroit's mayor would appoint five members and the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) would name five who cannot be Detroit residents. The governor would appoint the remaining three members with advice and consent of the Senate.

Gov. Milliken originally proposed that his appointees be subject to approval by six of the 10 members appointed by the Detroit mayor and SEMCOG.

The make-up of the new board is considered crucial, as it will make lasting decisions on transportation systems throughout the region.

"ALL MAYOR Young wants is four aces to begin with, and then he'll take his chances on the deal of the remaining cards," Pursell said. "He wants full control of the SEMTA board and its decisions. In return, he's willing to let the suburban areas pay for his city transportation system.

"Frankly, we're not ready to play to such a stacked deck. If Detroit isn't willing to agree to equal representation and equal service, then, as far as I'm concerned, they can pay for their own transit system. And I believe I represent the sentiments of the vast majority of suburban citizens in the area under SEMTA jurisdiction," said Pursell who represents Redford, Livonia and Plymouth.

"A Detroit stranglehold on SEMTA decisions can't be justified. Not on the grounds of area to be served. Not even on the grounds of population to be served. I'm willing to let this issue bedecided on a one-man, one-vote basis, but Mayor Young is not... Equal representation actually involves us doing Detroit a favor, not the other way around."

RICHARD G. STEVENS of Westland has been named Livonia manager for the Automobile Club of Michigan. Stevens, who lives at 31726 Conway, was a staff assistant in the Auto Club's field operations department before his new appointment.

SC schedules open house

Schoolcraft College will hold its annual community information night at 7:30 p.m. July 17, to acquaint the community persons with the college and its offerings.

The program will begin with a general introduction and then break into small groups that will discuss information about admissions, counseling, financial aids and student activities.

Programs are developed for every student from the high school graduate to the returning student. The college serves students from 18 to 80 , said Edward McNally, vice-president for student affairs.

The college is at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Pupils adjust well to summer classes at Miller Elementary

By DARLENE STINSON

Monday seemed like a fall day under the cool, cloudy skies at Miller Elementary School.

Children, wrapped in bright yellow, red and blue parkas, swarmed over swings and monkeybars and filled the schoolyard with the din of children's voices.

Inside the building, pupils surrounded round tables with crayons in hand and giggled over the events of "summer" vacation. Others sat cross-legged in front of their teachers and asked questions about the coming year.

MONDAY, THE FIRST day of the pilot 45-15 program at Miller School, progressed smoothly from start to finish with enthusiasm expressed by all.

Attendance was good, according to Principal Shirley Spaniel.

Under the pilot 45-15 program, four tracks or groups of students will attend school for nine weeks and remain home for three. Starting Sept. 15 students enrolled on Track A will take their first three-week vacation. Three tracks of students will continually pack the school, allowing Miller to house 25 per cent more children than under the traditional calendar system.

A group of 230 students returned Monday to their pencils and books to begin the year-round program. The remaining 570 children enrolled at Miller will return to school on Aug. 4, Aug. 25 or Sept. 15.

"I liked it," said fourth grader Kathy Korcek, as she pufled a jacket from her locker at the end of the program's first school day. "I like work— mostly reading—and I'd rather be in school, because I can read more here."

Fourth grader Mike Killingbeck dabbled with his crayons and said he likes 45-15.

"I think it's nice, because we get more vacation at Christmas." Mike confided, as he gave his finished project a final survey. "My sister, who's older, keeps saying she's got it better, but I don't think so. I like school, because you learn more here."

TEACHERS BACKED up their students' enthusiastic comments and noted the absence of boredom and resentment in their classrooms.

"It was just fantastic," grinned Marianne Wieczarek, who teaches kindergarten and first grade. "They didn't even ask when their vacation was or when was lunch. This is the very first year that's ever happenned."

First and second graders in Jim Mazen's class composed a slogan about their 45-15 experience: "This year I am going to school all summer. But I get five weeks vacation at Christmas time."

The slogan sums up his students' feelings and reactions toward year-round school, Mazen says.

"It's kind of bittersweet. They're looking forward to the vacations other students won't have. In a way, they're kind of excited about being part of something new."

Barb Velzy said her first and second graders won't need the review period they usually need in September.

"The kids were really enthusiastic and ready to work—just like the first day in September. It was just great. The kids were really turned on."

HOW DO TEACHERS feel about their summer job assignments?

"It was a short vacation," said Mrs. Velzy, "but I'm ready to be back."

"I'm excited about it," said Mazen. "Just when you've had enough of teaching, you get a three-week break."

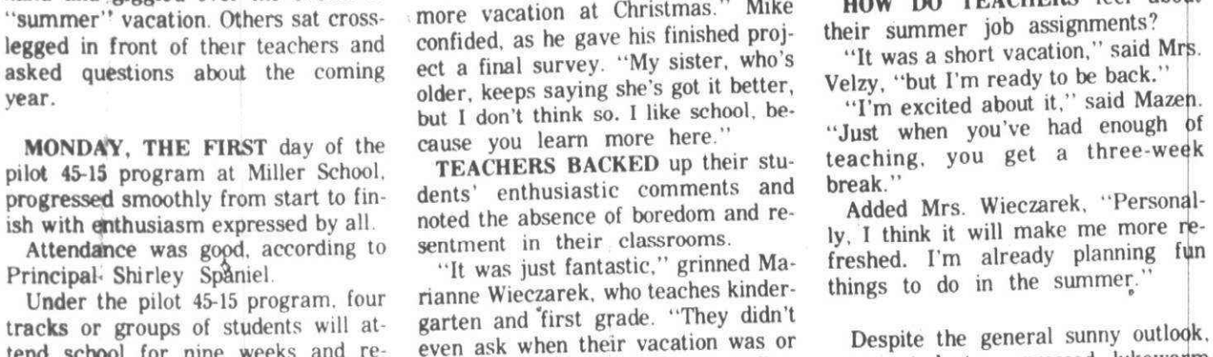

Added Mrs. Wieczarek, "Personally, I think it will make me more refreshed. I'm already planning fun things to do in the summer."

Despite the general sunny outlook, some students expressed lukewarm feelings toward 45-15.

"It's OK," said fourth grader Caryn Alderman. "I like meeting new friends, but I'd rather be at home."

Fourth grader Candy Normand said 45-15 is "all right."

"At home I would have played, but I would have got bored, because all my friends would have been in school."

IT'S SEPTEMBER in July at Miller Elementary School, where some pupils enrolled in a pilot year-round program returned to school this week. First and second graders in Barb Velzy's class intently listen to their teacher's words.

Reward to be given for lost dog

CANTON— A township resident is offering a cash reward for the return of his eight-month-old Irish setter.

The 75-pound dog, named Shane, has been missing from his home on Bart Strret for two weeks. Residents in the area of Warren and Haggerty have reported seeing the dog with a wounded paw.

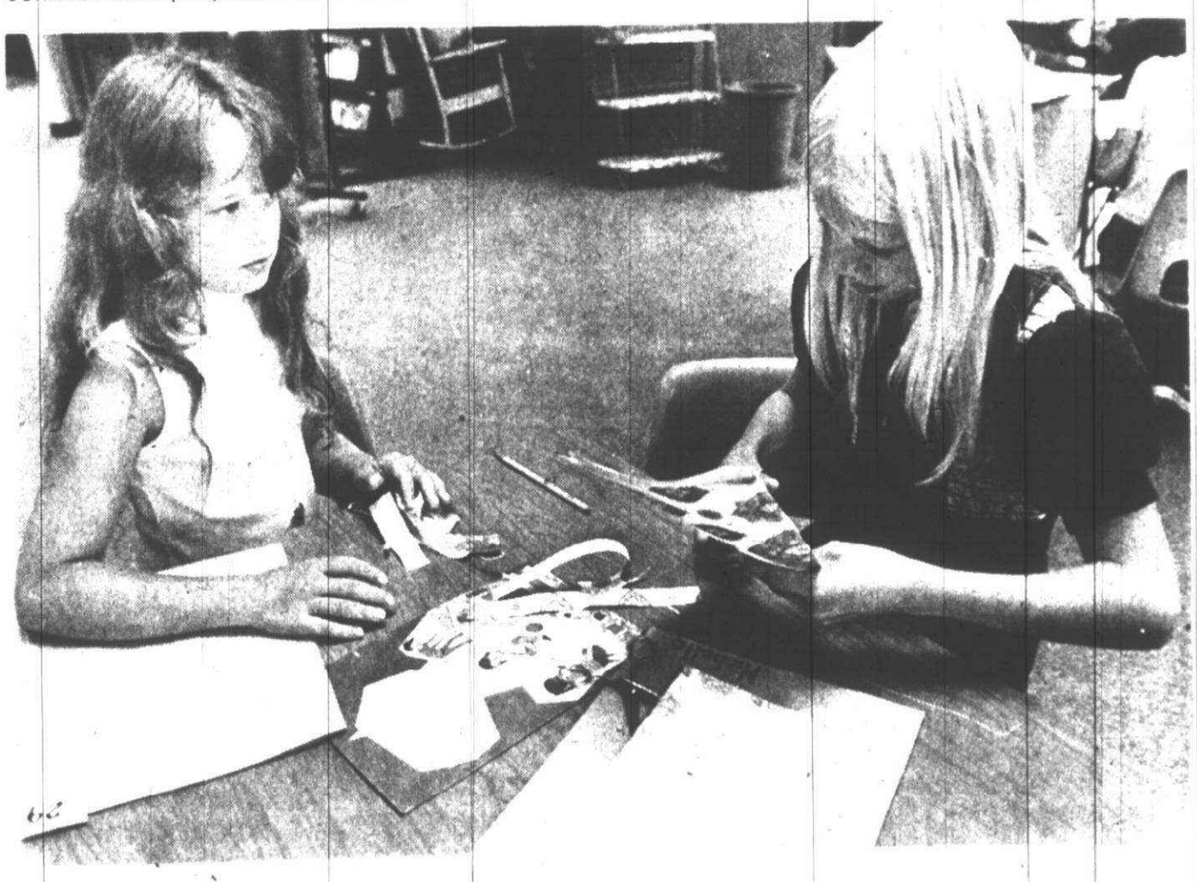

Owner Peter Bundarin said Shane is a light red color with fur beginning to feather. The dog is friendly, and is wearing a leather collar. The dog has had all its shots.

"I don't sleep well at night, thinking about this dog," said Bundarin. "I'm a softy on animals, and my kids are all upset. The sad part is when people tell me he has a wounded foot and is stealing food."

Persons with information about Shane's whereabouts are urged to contact Bundarin at his law office, 5773 Canton Center, or at his home, 39564 Bart.

CO-COA, MILLER Elementary School's pet monkey, provided additional excitement to the opening of the 45-15 program at Miller this week. Holding the furry creature while student Diana Krevinko looks on is Linda Doerings, a third and fourth grade teacher.

lightning protection system at $22,700 and an auto-timing swimming score system at $12,600. The timing device was for swimming starting and finishing time accuracy, touched off by the swimmer at the finish line, and instantaneous posting of times on the scoreboard.

The board also accepted bids for equipment, except for some metal instrument lockers which will be rebid.

The total bids were within $100,000 of the budget. The architect, Robert Wakely, reported that some $200,000 remains in the Canton construction budget for supplemental music and gymnasium equipment.

IN OTHER business the board ratified an agreement with the Secretaries Association calling for an eight per cent pay raise in 1975-76.

For the following year, there won't be a wage increase, but the district will pick up the pension cost of five per cent of the employe's salary.

The new contract also calls for an improvement in longevity pay from 1½ per cent after eight years to one per cent after seven years. The contract will cost the district an added $34,000.

The board accepted the low bid of $19,075 from the New Hudson Fence Co. for fences to enclose property at Miller and Smith elementary schools and East Middle School.

Canton planners stalemated

CANTON—Three empty chairs at Tuesday's planning commission meeting brought a stalemate and split vote on rezoning matters.

The rezoning issues and commission's no-position vote will be sent to the Wayne County Planning Commission for a recommendation and to the board of trustees for final action.

TOWNSHIP Planner Michael Manore had recommended the rezoning, according to Carl Parsell, planning commission member and township treasurer. Land parcels considered for rezoning were:

- Eight acres at the southwest corner of Ridge and Ford Road from commericial to agricultural. A previous board of trustees had rezoned the land commercial in May 1974.
- A total of 80 acres at the southwest corner of Geddes and Beck from single-family residential to agricultural. The single-family zoning had been granted in November 1974.
- About 125 acres, north of Geddes and east and west of Beck, from single-family residential to commercial.
- About 83 acres, east of Canton Center near Proctor, and about 50 acres, north of Geddes and west of Canton Center, to a less dense single-family residential zoning.

Parsell and planning commission member Robert Miller voted in favor of the rezoning in all cases. Planning commission member Bart Berg, Canton Chamber of Commerce president, voted against the rezoning matters. Commission member Robert Simmons voted against the rezoning in three cases and abstained in two, since he knows the land developer.

Absent from Tuesday's meeting were planning commission members Augustin Matzo, Flossi Tonda and Tom Timbario.

THE LAND parcels were rezoned to more intensive uses by a previous planning commission and township board in preparation for a land use plan proposed last fall. That plan has been discarded, and a new plan soon will be unveiled.

"I question the viability of some of this as agricultural land," Berg objected. "You can't raise your voice on some of it. There's been a complete about-face since last November."

Said Parsell: "The planner has had a change of mind in a few areas. But just because you're doing something different doesn't mean it's wrong. There's no reason to have sporadic building out here and then try to fit it into our new plan.

"That's all we're trying to do."

Board requests business input on licensing law

CANTON— All businesses within the township may one day exhibit Canton licenses on their store or office walls.

Township Treasurer Carl Parsell last week presented a "skeleton" business licensing ordinance to the board of trustees and general public. The township administration, which drafted it may amend the ordinance after receiving input from the public and business community.

"We want to give a fair amount of time for input— mainly from the business community," said Township Supervisor Robert Greenstein. "This directly affects businesses in the township.

UNDER THE proposed ordinance, all businessmen, excluding those who operate political, charitable, religious or governmental agencies, must obtain an annual license from the township to begin or continue a business establishment.

The licensing procedure, the proposal says, would provide township officials with information helpful in a myriad of areas, including provision of more adequate police and fire protection; more equitable taxation procedures; more efficient public utility services; and better planning and zoning.

Licenses would be used to establish a registry of businesses operating in the township for informational and promotional purposes.

A $25 licensing fee would accompany each licence application and finance the proposed consumer protection agency, if that agency is approved.

THE CONSUMER agency, now under the scrutiny of the Michigan attorney general's office for a legal opinion, would investigate and solve consumer complaints.

"If this business licensing ordinance is passed, any reference to licensing in the consumer protection ordinance would be removed." Greenstein said. "These ordinances are separate, but it's conceivable they may work together someday."

Under a state law approved last winter, townships have the right to license and punish businessmen who fail to meet local standards.

Failure to obtain a license under the proposed ordinance is punishable by a maximum $100 fine or 90 days in jail.

Music meeting open to public

Residents of the Plymouth Community School District interested in the music program at Canton and Salem high schools may attend a July 21 study session of the board of education.

The board has scheduled a special workshop to discuss proposals for the music program at Canton High in line with music facilities to be added to that building.

The workshop will begin at 7 p.m. Monday, July 21, in the board office at 454 S. Harvey.

The board will discuss the proposal presented by the administration and hear the recommendation made by James Griffith, band instructor at Plymouth Salem.

Members of the audience will have the chance to listen to discussion of the two proposals. If time allows, comments from the audience will be heard at the end of the meeting, but the basic purpose of the session is for trustees to study both proposals and ask questions.

It will become an agenda item at a regular board meeting at a later date.

Chamber office will be moved

CANTON—Members of the Canton Chamber of Commerce are planning to pack up chamber belongings within the next two weeks and move them to another site.

Chamber members will abandon their current office, located in the Wayne Bank at 41652 Ford, when bank officials replace the temporary structure with a trailer.

The new offices of Forwood Realty, located in the Harvard Square Shopping Center at Sheldon and Ford, will house the chamber's new home by the end of July.

Chamber officials hope to retain the same telephone number.

William Copeland, "Five Hou. From Isfahan." The threat of assassination is real as a band of Nazis terrorize the countryside as a prelude to their superact — the extermination of the Allied heads of state: Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, gathered for the 1943 summit conference. The race across the desert to secure Tehran and foil the assassinations pulls the American embassy staff from its leisurely, sybaritic life and forces an aide into the roll of hero.

Nathan S. Kline, "From Sad to Glad." Writing to educate and assure the public, Dr. Kline outlines the social history of depression, the medical detective research involved in tracing causes and cures, and the current methods of treatment (including an indictment of certain current misapplications of psychoanalytic methods). He also details the chemical processes of the brain and the function of antidepressant drugs on it.

Bud Vestal, "Jerry Ford Close Up." Who is Jerry Ford? Never before has the answer to that question held more meaning for so many persons. From relative obscurity, Gerald R. Ford has suddenly emerged into a position of national political power. But until then not a single word had appeared about the man. The reader meets the real Jerry Ford in this biography, researched by a team of seven Michigan journalists.

New voices

Mr. and Mrs. David Tilford of Novi, formerly of Redford Township, announce the birth of a daughter, Jodie Jeanne, on June 2 in St. Mary Hospital.

The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James E. Anderson of Redford Township and Mrs. Jane Tilford, also a former Redford Township resident now living in Novi.

Military wedding in Plymouth church

The Air Force song tolled on the tower bells of the First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth as Sue Ann Stringham and Lt. Karl F. Gabrys Jr. walked under the crossed sabres of the Air Force honor guard, after their double-ring, candlelight wedding ceremony.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stringham of Brentwood Drive, Plymouth, and Mr. and Mrs. Karl F. Gabrys Jr. of Detroit.

The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a white chiffon gown with chapel length train and headpiece and carried a bouquet of white snowflake mums, stephanotis and pink sweetheart roses.

The bride's sister, Ann Stringham of Plymouth, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Melinda Bidwell of Plymouth and Karen Gabrys of Detroit, sister of the bridegroom.

Lt. Gary Craig of Danville, Ky., was the best man and the groomsmen were Lt. Robert Akers of Cincinnati, and Jim Giordano of Detroit.

Sabre bearers at the wedding were Cadet Jeff Stringham, brother of the bride, from Plymouth; Cadet Wally Johnston of Livonia; Lt. Claude Irving of San Antonio; Lt. Chuck Dohner of Pontiac; Lt. Bruce Linster of Rockford, Ill., and Lt. Jim McBride of San Francisco.

Over 200 guests dined at the reception in the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth where live white doves in gilded cages hung throughout the hall.

The five-tier wedding cake was made by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Karl F. Gabrys Jr.

After three weeks of honeymooning in Florida, the couple will make their home at the Reese Air Force base in Lubbock, Texas.

MR. AND MRS. KARL F. GABRYS III
(Sue Ann Stringham)

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Plymouth High School and a 1974 graduate of Michigan State University where she received a B.S. degree in physical education. She is employed by Berkshire in Colorado Springs, Colo. as activities director.

The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of Bishop Borgess High School and a 1975 graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy. He has a B.S. degree in engineering and will be entering jet pilot training in Texas.

Teachers' vows taken St. Andrew

Two teachers exchanged marriage vows in St. Andrew Episcopal church of Livonia July 12 when Ann Meredith Watt became the bride of Jerry Martin Van Dusen.

Both are employed in the Kentwood district near Grand Rapids.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Watt of Oakley Street, Livonia, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Van Dusen are the bridegroom's parents. The Rev. Jack Savage officiated.

Organza and lace fashioned the bride's A-line gown and headpiece. Her veil was fingertip length and she caried gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Sandra Watt of Livonia, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Cheryl Enright of Livonia, Mrs. Douglas Kline of Lake Orion, Mrs. Daniel McShannock of Saginaw and Mrs. Edward Kotarski of Kentwood.

David Powers of Grand Rapids served as the best man. Groomsmen included Ronald Baum, Robert Demmink and Ronald Hall, all of Kentwood, and James Nieboer of Cutlerville.

Over 200 guests were received after the wedding in the Behnan Hall in Southfield.

The couple took a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, visiting Toronto and northern Ontario as well.

Both are teaching in the Kentwood Public Schools, and plan to make their home in Kentwood.

MRS. JERRY VAN DUSEN
(Ann Meredith Watt)

Shaw-Davis

Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Shaw of Glennada Street, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kim Michelle, to Michael David Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Davis of Sunnydale Street, Livonia. The bride-elect is a 1974 graduate of Bentley High School and employed by Zeller's Custom Drapery. Her fiance graduated from Bentley in 1972 and works for National Set Screw. Their wedding date is Oct. 25.

How to put a little more on your serve.

It's an unexpected pleasure.

CALF ROPING will be featured in the Farmington Founders Festival championship rodeo July 25 and 26.

Farmington Jaycees hold annual rodeo July 25, 26

Big-time rodeo is coming to Farmington on July 25 and 26 when the Farmington Area Jaycees present the third annual Founders Festival championship rodeo at Twelve MIle and Farmington roads.

Sanctioned by the International Rodeo Association, the rodeo has attracted cowboys from across the country. Competitors from Florida, Texas, Okalhoma and Oklahoma and California, we well as Michigan and surrounding states, come to Farmington to compete for more than $4,000 in prize money.

Tom Decker, of Farmington, will serve as rodeo judge and timer. Decker joined the rodeo circuit in 1950 at 13. He competed regularly across the United States for 15 years. He has won several awards including Midwest Cowboy Association Champion bareback rider in 1958, 1959, and 1963, and all-around champion cowboy in 1963. He served as president of the Midwest Cowboy Association in 1960.

After a layoff of several years, Decker came back to ride in the Farmington Jaycees first annual rodeo in 1973, and won the bareback bronc riding event.

Among the top attractions in this year's rodeo is Nightmare, the US bucking horse of the year in bareback riding for the last three years. The only mare ever to win the title, the black 11-year-old was originally purchased from a Michigan riding stable as an outlaw horse.

Butterbean, a grey-blue spotted high-horned Brahma bull, will be another standout at the rodeo. He is six-years-old and has been bucking for four. In about 200 attempts, the 1,550 pound bull has been ridden to the eight second limit just four times. He has been featured in the international finals rodeo for two years and was runner-up for bucking bull of the year for the United States.

Besides bareback, bronc and Brahma bull riding, the rodeo will offer calf roping, barrel racing, saddle bronc riding and steer wrestling.

Other acts include The Rowes, of Whites Creek, Tenn. Lenore Rowe will appear with her snow white dressage horse, El Capitan, while her 13-year old son, J.T., will perform a Roman-riding on his Flying White Chargers. Also featured will be Mr. Mighty Bee, the Shetland Pony that jumps over full-sized horses.

Rodeo livestock is provided by Jim Zinser's J Bar J Rodeo Co. of Clare. More than 150 head of horses, bulls, calves and steers will be seen.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. on July 25, and 2 and 8 p.m. July 26. Advance tickets, good for any performance, are on sale in the Farmington Chamber of Commerce office, 23715 Farmington Road. Advance tickets prices are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 15. Tickets at the gate will be $3.50 and $2.25 respectively. Proceeds from the rodeo will fund the jaycees' and auxiliary's community service projects throughout the city, county and state.

Jimmy Launce at SC concert

Radio personality Jimmy Launce will appear as narrator with the Court Orchestra and duo-pianists Donald Morelock and Lynne Lynch in the final concert of the 1975 Schoolcraft College Music Festival. The concert, which is free and open to the public, will be at 8:30 p.m. Monday, July 21, in Schoolcraft's Waterman Campus Center. The college is at 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

Star of his own morning show on WJR, Launce loves the theater, making a number of stage appearances yearly, as well as behind-the-scenes writing. He is a member of the Metropolitan Drama Quartet, a Detroit group that toured nearby campuses and entertainment establishments.

The featured work at Monday's concert will be Camille Saint-Saens' "The Carnival of Animals" played by Morelock and Ms. Lynch. Morelock is head of the piano department at Schoolcraft, and Ms. Lynch is on the faculty of the University of Michigan.

Launce will recite the humorous verses written several years ago by American humorist Ogden Nash. Nash was commissioned by Godard Lieberson of Columbia Records to write poems which were first recorded by Noel Coward in a performance with Andre Kostelanetz.

The Court Orchestra, composed of members of the summer school faculty and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will be conducted by Richard Saunders, summer school director, and Allen Shaffer, assistant director.

The concert will open with the canon and gigue in D major by Johann Pachelbel. Flutist Clement Barone will be the featured soloist performing concerto in C major for piccolo, strings and continuo by Antonio Vivaldi. Barone teaches at the Schoolcraft summer music school and is piccolo soloist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. The first half of the concert will conclude with symphony No. 40 in F major by Franz Josef Haydn.

The concert is sponsored in part by a grant from the Musicians Trust Fund of the American Federation of Musicians.

Are bus ramps for handicapped needed now?

By TIM RICHARD

When you've come to know a person in a wheelchair, you never look at the world the same way again.

With ramps, the person can get into a building, maneuver around on a job and depart easily. Streetside curbs are no longer a problem. With a job—the world's greatest wealth—a person in a wheelchair is transformed from a patient into a productive worker with a lot of drive and pride.

Knowing such a person, you begin to look at all curbs, theaters, public buildings and businesses and calculate how much more accessible the world would be if they all had ramps.

YET IT WAS with sadness that one read that the Easter Seal Society, some chapters of the National Association for the Physically Handicapped and others had succumbed to the "sue the bastards" mentality that infects our political life.

These groups filed suit against the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) and various state and federal agencies over the issue of equipment that would allow handicapped persons to get onto buses.

Specifically, they are asking Federal District Court Judge Damon Keith to stop SEMTA from ordering $40 million worth of new buses unequipped to handle wheelchairs.

It calls to mind the flap over anti-pollution equipment for automobiles. The idea in itself is sound, but the flap occurred at the same time as a serious inflation and an oil crisis. No one appreciates getting asphyxiated by fumes from the internal combustion engine, but it's also pretty clear that the timing helped send our economy skidding into a recession.

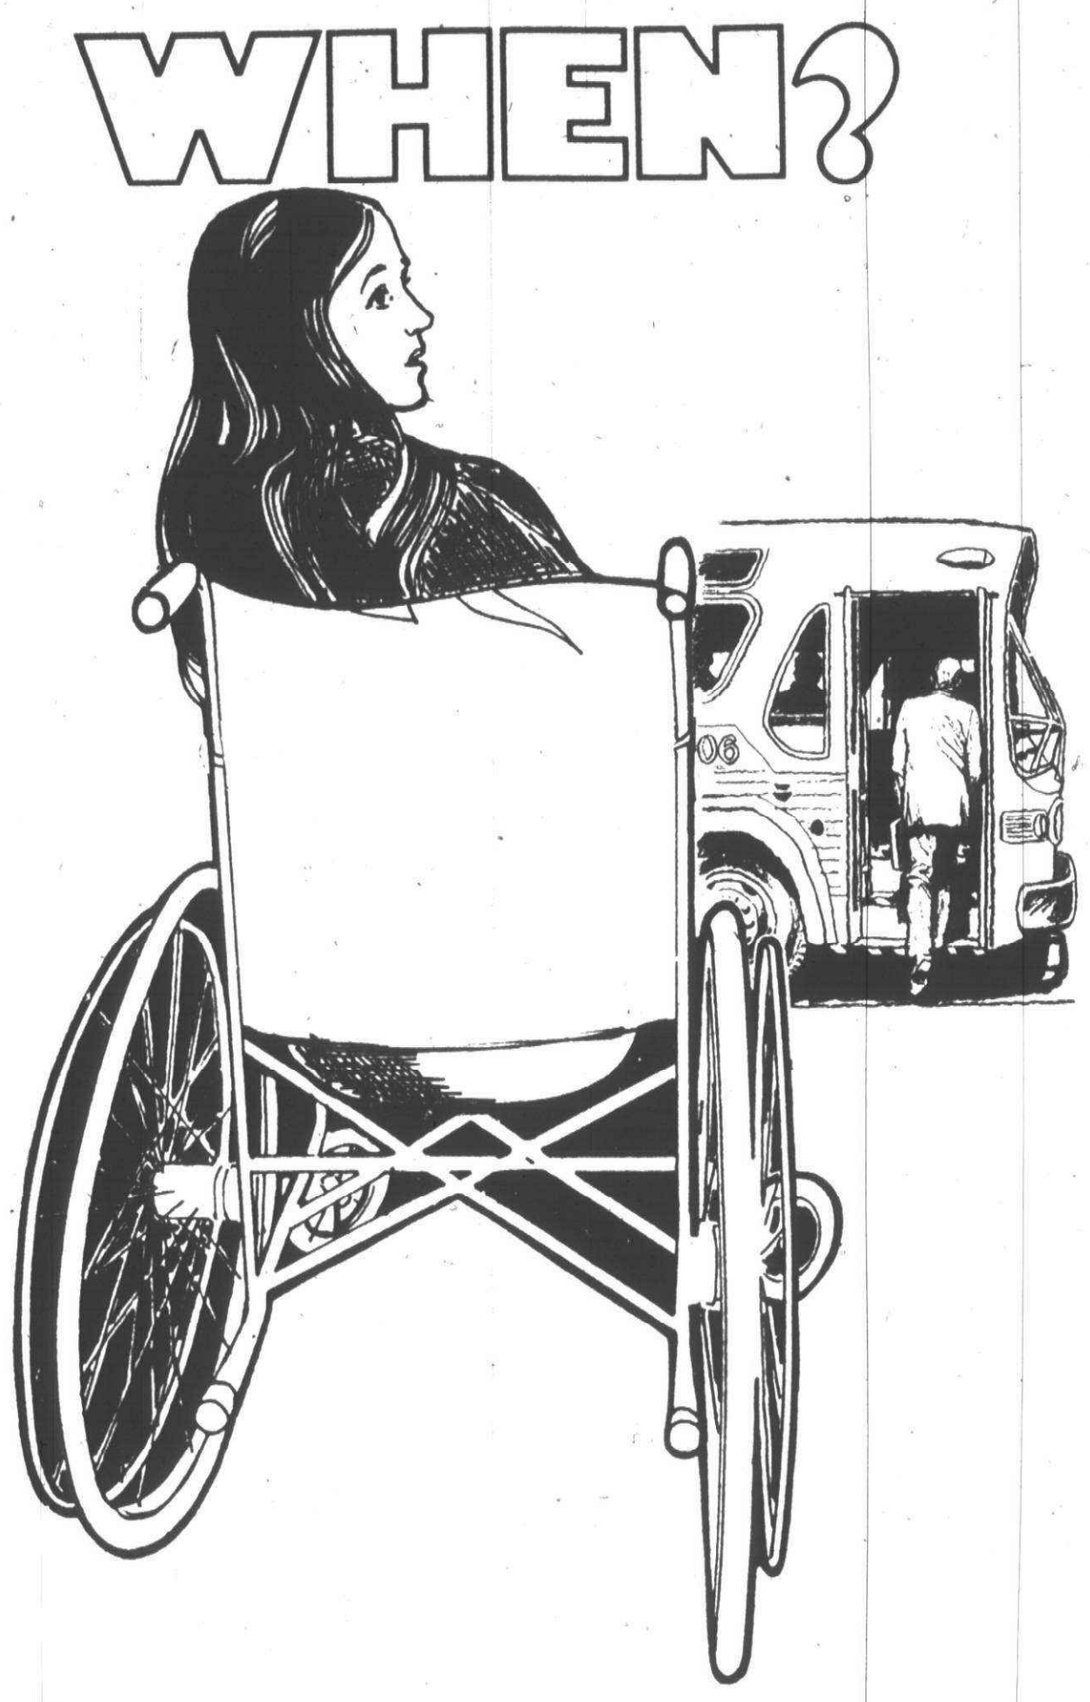

AND SO IT is with the bus issue. After years of planning, planning, planning, public transportation in southeastern Michigan is starting to become a reality. SEMTA has made heroic efforts to set up employment express bus lines and dial-a-ride services, and Gov. Milliken is hustling the Legislature for a transportation bond issue.

In the middle of it all, we get hit by a lawsuit contending that we've got to stop ordering standard buses and instead order them with goodness-knows-how-much special equipment.

Some say simple ramps will do the jobs; others say it will add $5,000 to the cost of each bus, and history tells us the more expensive solution usually will be adopted.

Sheldon Wachler, an attorney for the Easter Seal Society et al, is impressive when he declares that "the aim of the suit is to insist that the law with respect to physically handicapped persons be honored." And he tugs at the heartstrings when he visualizes "virtually imprisoned handicapped citizens."

But the timing of the suit couldn't have been worse.

By SHELLY GUGGENHEIM

To bus or not to bus—that is the question on a number of issues.

The Easter Seal Society has asked the Federal District Court to enjoin the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) from ordering $40 million worth of new buses unequipped to handle wheelchair riders.

Some argue that, of course, it's right to provide physically disabled persons with public transit, but not right now, not when the metropolitan area is getting its first taste of mass transit it so sorely needs.

It would be expedient to put off the needs of a not-so-vocal minority so that thousands of others can get quickly to and from work, entertainment and the necessities of life.

After all, our country has a long history of putting off the needs of some so that the needs of what-seems-to-be-the-majority can be met.

I GUESS it's a matter of priorities.

It makes a difference whether you count the rights of individuals first or the rights of society as a whole.

If the buses are unequipped to handle wheelchairs, whose rights will be infringed upon most? Those who will doubtless find another means of transportation to their place of employment? Who will unfortunately have to fight traffic jams a few years longer because specially equipped buses will cost more and take longer to buy?

Or those who are denied access to a trade or profession in too many ways? The physically disabled are discriminated against in employment when their capabilities are equal to the job. While strides are being made, it often takes some "tender-hearted" businessman to give a sitting-down job to someone who sits all the time.

When they get a job, should we deny them a way to get there? Should we hope they have the financial and/or physical means to drive a specially-equipped car for a few more years?

Why should they, who usually have to wait for everything else, have to wait for transportation too?

IT SEEMS that under the law they have an equal right to access to transportation. Their rights should be served on an equal basis too. Now when everyone else's is.

You know it's peculiar, when those of us who walk get to a door, for instance, at the same time as a handicapped person, we usually let them go first. But then, of course, money and a great deal of time aren't involved. Now, we're telling the handicapped to get behind the buses. Sound familiar?

Time of politicians is over — pros should run cities

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

I was talking earlier this week with a banker who works throughout the northwestern suburbs. A distinguished and capable man, he prefers (like most bankers) a low profile in dealing with the press; "the last banker I know who got his name into the paper got transferred to northwest nowhere. . .pronto," he explained.

Anyway, we got to talking about money and interest rates and the national debt and politics and just how bankrupt New York City is these days, and he produced a fascinating argument about the shape of things to come.

"Pretty soon, we're going to learn that the politicians simply cannot be entrusted to run our big cities. The training of a politician is to wheel and deal, placate and compromise, and when he's working in a purely political and non-financial environment that's probably OK. But politicians have no training in administration, and when they start getting into negotiations with city labor unions or making financial judgments about how to run a big city, they're gonna give the store away.

"I am virtually certain that in a few years the big cities will get into so much trouble and into so much debt to the banks and other lending institutions that they will be required to bring in professional managers to run the cities. At that point," my friend continued, "maybe they'll let the politicians decide where to put the drinking fountain in city hall, but they sure won't let them decide whether or not to buy it."

HE'S GOT a point.

It now seems clear that one of the biggest reasons why the core cities of our country are in deep trouble is that they are locked into ferociously expensive long-term labor contracts and pension agreements. These, coupled with a deteriorating tax base, have produced near-crisis for Detroit and what looks like catastrophe for New York.

Mayors, as elected officials, have a near-impossible negotiating situation facing them when they bargain with municipal unions. On one hand, often such unions themselves constitute an important bloc of votes, and no politician likes to offend big hunks of votes. On the other hand, when unions go on strike, the voters in the city are incensed when garbage starts rotting in the streets, and they are as inclined as not to blame the mayor.

This, certainly, was one of the major things worrying Detroit Mayor Coleman Young while he was trying to figure out a way to lay off police officers recently. And the only reason suburban mayors have not yet faced the problem is that their tax base — so far — has remained firm and growing.

THIS IS the same problem facing school districts as they try to figure out how to cope with teacher union negotiations — assuming that the Legislature has at last solved the problem of the legal status of teacher strikes. The problem is basic: When mayors or school boards negotiate with public employe unions, the easy temptation is to settle now and hope to raise the taxes to pay for the settlement later. . . somehow.

As long as the tax base is growing, this does not produce too much trouble, but once ability to increase taxes is curtailed, the city or the school district is in grave trouble.

And, as is usually the case, it's the public which has to pay the bill. But the public is not at the bargaining table when the settlement is reached, and more often than not elected public officials take the easy and politically expedient way out.

My friend the banker may well be right. To retain the financial integrity of our cities and schools, we may have to bring in businessmen and professional managers, who are appointed and thus insulated somewhat from politics. And who will be happy to let the mayor pick the site of the next fountain in city hall.

Students must not be the losers

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

The question of whether a teacher has the right to strike has dominated the Legislature for the last couple of weeks.

Under present law, teachers do not have a right to strike, but judges, unwilling to enforce this law because of political considerations, have allowed strikes to occur.

A strike is a union's most effective weapon to gain its demands.

In the private sector, if employes go on strike, the employer has to decide whether he can afford to meet the employes' demands or to wait a long enough period without their services until they moderate their demands.

THE ONLY LOSERS in this situation are the employe, who loses his wages, and the employer, who risks loss of profit from lack of production.

The public sector is a different world. If teachers can go out on strike, they don't end up in losing their wages because the school year is extended so that the proper number of days are taught to qualify the school district for receiving state financial aid.

School board members don't lose anything out of their pockets, because for all intents and purposes they are not compensated for their responsibility.

WHO, THEN, is a loser in a teacher's strike?

The answer, of course, is the innocent children who are not part of the negotiations.

Some will say that if you take the right to strike from the teachers, then teachers must accept the dictates of the school board without the opportunity of improving his or her lot in life. There is much to support this point of view, because teachers' incomes have improved dramatically since teachers' strikes began several years ago.

On the other hand, a large part of the community will say that teaching is a profession and to have gullible children see their teachers on picket lines destroys the whole concept of teaching as a profession.

THERE IS A middle ground to keep teachers in school and which will allow both the improvement of their lives and preserving their image of professionalism.

It's not a new concept, and it's called binding arbitration.

Teachers' unions don't like it because it blunts the power they have in threatening a strike and adds an element of reasonableness in negotiations.

School boards don't like it because it allows an outsider to set wage rates or working conditions that the particular school district may not be able to afford.

But if it is bad for both the teachers and the school board, it is certainly not bad for the most important person in the educational process, the student.

THE STATE LAW could easily say that if a new contract has not been arrived at between the school board and the teachers' organization by the first day of school, the school board will select an arbitrator and the teachers' union will select an arbitrator, and these two arbitrators select a third, independent arbitrator.

The teachers' union then lays its demands before this three-person board, and the school board lays its financial condition before the board, and these three persons make a decision that is binding on all parties, retroactive to the first day of school.

IT'S SO SIMPLE that it is unbelievable that the Legislature has to argue over how many weeks a teacher is allowed to strike and how many weeks teachers should be penalized in pay while they are out on strike.

Let's get teachers their dignity and their opportunity to have a say in wages and working conditions, but let's keep away from a display of dirty linens in public, which the young student will never understand.

The Legislature must recognize that the first priority is quality education.

LaRue: Efficient, effective

John LaRue, outgoing chairman of the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees, recently thanked the community and his fellow board members for the chance to be a part of Schoolcraft's development over the last six years.

Then, with a tap of his gavel, LaRue moved to other items on the lengthy June 25 agenda, which marked his last meeting as chairman.

LaRue's low-key farewell was characteristic of his two-year terms as an efficient and effective chairman. His gavel, fair but firm, always invited discussion and often prompted decisions that will affect the college for years to come.

LaRue and his wife Barbara recently moved from Livonia to Seattle, Wash., and the chairmanship has passed to Trustee Paul Kadish.

During his four years on the baord, Kadish has displayed an impressive knowledge of board procedure. He demonstrates a skill for decision-making, and he understands the meaning of compromise. Recognizing his leadership qualities, the board unanimously selected him as its chairman.

Time will confirm Kadish's capabilities.

Firefighters deserve rescue credit too

Editor:

I have just finished reading your article on the Newburgh Lake rescues (June 30 edition). Having heard the story from the first rescue squad member who "arrived to lend help," I was quite upset that more credit was not given to the firefighters for their part in the rescues.

Mr. Hammett certainly deserves praise for his part. However, were it not for the firefighters who began immediately administering cardiopulmonary resuscitation, Mr. Hammett's efforts would have been in vain.

It seems as though all we ever read in the Observer & Eccentric about our Livonia firefighters are negative comments. I feel very secure knowing they are there if I need them and know of many others who share this feeling.

I think it's about time we hear some praise for our firefighters—they deserve it!

Animals have feelings, too

Editor:

I too would like to add my comments on the subject of caring for pets. Mary Plank's opinion is worth reading and abiding by.

If only people would realize a pet is a responsibility and not a whim to pamper or just ignore.

Animals have feelings, too, and should be treated as we ourselves wish to be.

Society should realize the terrible waste of having to sponsor pounds. These would not be necessary if all would awaken to their responsibilities.

Marine's family very grateful

Editor:

As the parents of Lt. Cpl. Kenneth J. Fry USMC, who was seriously wounded during the recent military operation to secure the safe return of the merchant ship Mayaguez and her crew from the island of Koh Tang, we want to express our deepest thanks to all the wonderful people who expressed their deep concern by sending mass cards, letters, telegrams and phone calls. We especially want to thank all the churchs which held prayer services and offered masses and prayers for his recovery. And to our families, friends and neighbors who gave us strength by their love and concern.

A special thanks to Keith Geiger and Mary Cervas who did so much for us by obtaining early information and arranging for us to talk to our son in the Philippines. And to the principal and cooking staff at Franklin High School who offered moral and material support.

The Most Rev. Philip F. Smith OMI, Vicar Apostolic of the Philippines, who gave us spiritual comfort and assurance that our son was receiving excellent care. U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin, who sent a personal letter telling of his and Mrs. Griffin's concern and prayers for Ken's speedy recovery. He added, "I would like to join the President and other Americans in my heartfelt thanks for his valor and sacrifice. I know that you must be proud, as we are, of his dedicated service to our country."

State Sen. Carl Pursell, who wrote saying, "I am unable to express in words my feeling for both of you and especially for young Ken who has given so much at such an early age.

We are overwhelmed with the kindness and thoughtfulness of so many people. May God Bless each and everyone of you, as He has blessed us, with His divine goodness.

"I like to keep in touch with my customers. Sometimes I can offer tips that help them enjoy their new Olds more. I believe in treating customers like friends. It pays off in the long run."

"I review every single customer order from both the sales and service department. I check to make sure the amount you paid has been figured correctly. That way you know your bill is a fair and accurate one."

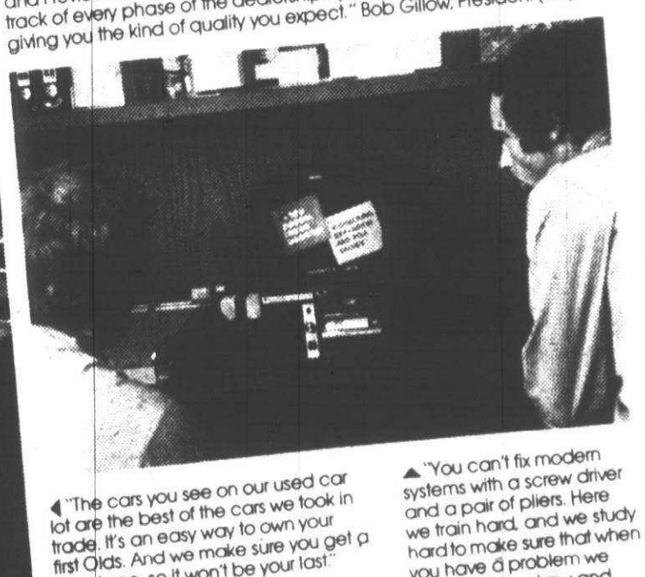

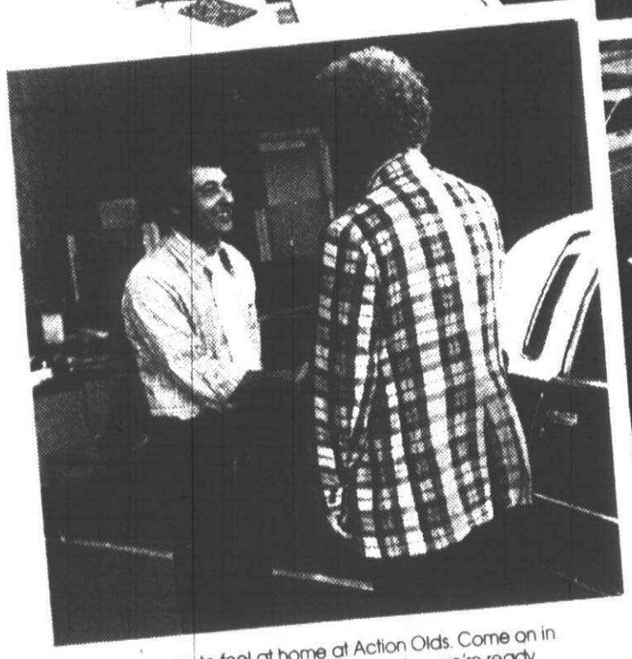

"I want you to enjoy your new Oldsmobile from the first day you own it. I like to be around when you take your first ride, because I've had your car checked out by the service department, and I know it's ready to go."

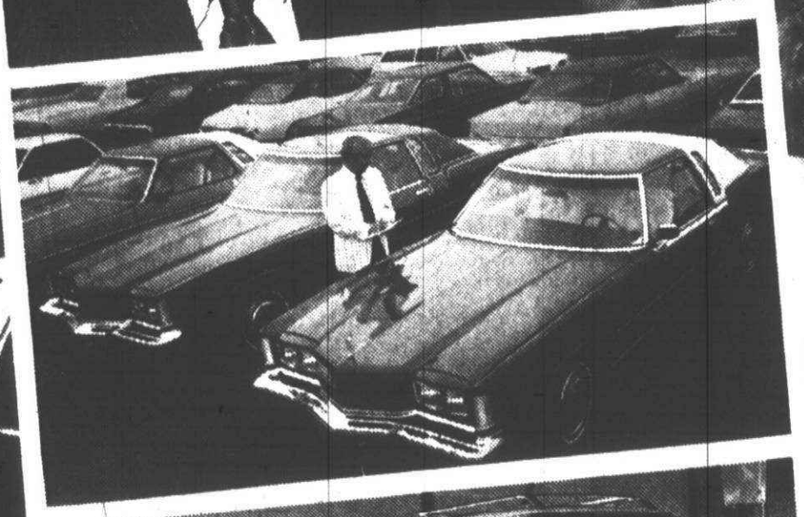

"We want you to get the type of service that makes you willing to recommend us to your friends. My General Manager, Stud Holdon and I review our Operating Control Sheet every day. It helps us keep track of every phase of the dealership operation to insure that we are giving you the kind of quality you expect." Bob Gillow, President (left).

"You can't fix modern systems with a screw driver and a pair of pliers. Here we train hard, and we study hard to make sure that when you have a problem we have the know how and tools to do something about it."

"We like to stress maintaining cars, not fixing them. In other words, my job is to keep you out of trouble. Stop in and I'll show you how to get maximum satisfaction from the car you're driving now...no matter who made it."

"Running a bump shop is tough. That's why many dealers won't do it. But we promised to help you take care of the whole car. And that includes the ding or dent you got in the parking lot last week or even greater misfortunes."

Clinches division title

Top Berry team MNB survives on pitching

In baseball, the name of the game is pitching. And it is that elusive commodity that has been the mainstay of Michigan National Bank in the Livonia Berry League.

In the last four games, for example, MNB has amassed three one-hitters and a three-hitter and has become the first team to clinch a post-season berth in statewide competition.

The latest gem came Tuesday night when Greg Sipus allowed only Bill Bardwell's fifth inning triple and MNB rolled to a 3-1 victory over a young Berry Red team.

The victory gave MNB a 12-1-1 record and Red fell to 3-9 and virtually out of contention for the playoffs.

"There's no doubt about it. Pitching has been our strength," said MNB Manager Pat Ruvolo Sr.

Ruvolo has divided the pitching chores between three hurlers and there's little to chose from among them.

Sipus currently has a 1.89 earned run average through 37 innings. John Kolis has a 1.68 ERA through 29 frames and Ruvolo's son, Pat Jr., is at 1.00 after 28 innings.

"But our bats have not been consistent. In a situation such as we are in, I feel that we have to wait and have patience. We're just not hitting as well as we should be right now," Ruvolo said.

EVEN SO, MNB has some impressive averages.

Ron Colone, who is not a regular, leads the team with a .450 mark.

And what is more impressive is the youth of the team. With the exception of his son, Ruvolo will have everyone back on a team which includes 11 juniors and two sophomores.

Record handle marks '75 Wolverine opening

The sudden and almost unbelievable harness racing boom on the Detroit-area sports scene was no early summer mirage.

Wolverine Raceway, opening its twenty-sixth season at the Detroit Race Course, confirmed the surging popularity of the sulky sport Tuesday night when its inaugural 10 race program smashed an opening night mutuel handle record at the big mile track.

Bucking the annual All-Star baseball game on television, Wolverine began its 83-night meeting with a crowd of 8,007 and a pari-mutuel figure of $733,943. The old record of $606,349, set in 1967, fell and the 1974 opening night handle of $532,034 paled in the contrast.

The Wolverine opening, of course, comes hard on the heels of an 82-night Hazel Park harness meeting that upended nearly every Michigan attendance and pari-mutuel record in sight. With the same strong stables moving directly across town to Wolverine under the new back-to-back schedule of Detroit's two largest tracks, it was felt by most racing officials that the "boom" would continue unabated.

"We've enjoyed three record Wolverine seasons in a row and I think this will be the biggest yet," vice president Dick Wilson said following the opening night turnout. "We'll have the best overall population of harness horses that's ever been in our barn area and I think the racing public knows it already."

WILSON ALSO CITED Wolverine's early September Grand Circuit dates as sure to be a late summer "lift" and a healthy bridge between vacation time and the first cool days of autumn. The track's Grand Circuit period of September 1-5 is likely the most choice in the county.

The scheduling is such that Wolverine will attract the country's top 3-year-old trotters fresh from their late August Hambletonian engagement in Du Quoin, Ill., and also the sport's best 3-year-old pacers readying for Little Brown Jug competition later in the month at Delaware, Ohio.

With similar Grand Circuit dates in 1974 the first four finishers in the prestigious Hambletonian, including the winning Christopher T, were racing at Wolverine one week later in the track's rich Matron Stake.

North America's hottest driver, starting off at Wolverine right where he left off at Hazel Park 72 hours earlier, will also add excitement to racing at the Livonia harness track. He's Windsor-born Greg Wright, who set a new all time Michigan record at Hazel Park with 100 victories and proceeded to log a racing "triple" in his season's debut at Wolverine Tuesday night.

It all happened after Wright had been spilled at the finish line in a sulky collision in the very first race, too. Leaping unhurt from his careening bike after another horse had knocked his own pacer Curious Byrd off his feet, the handsome Canadian proceeded to win the very next race with Skippy Lee, added the fifth event behind Knoxmite, then salted away the featured ninth race trot with Smug.

Smug broke going away from the gate, was back in stride but dead last in the clubhouse turn and still won by nearly two lengths over On Schedule under Wright's masterful handling. Now with more than 200 victories for the season, Wright trails only New Yorker Carmine Abbatiello in the national standings and by a mere half dozen according to the latest official statistics.

"We have the horses and we have the drivers," Wilson said Wednesday morning. "It's major league harness racing on one of the fastest tracks in the country, and who could ask for a better way to get started than that."

Open was biggest thrill for Plymouth's Robinson

By BILL COLLINS

It's a long way from a driving range in Plymouth to competing with the world's best golfers at the Medinah Country Club. But 25-year old Gary Robinson took a step towards becoming one of the touring pros three weeks ago when he placed in the prestigious U.S. Open.

Robinson finished in a 49th place tie with Gene Littler which was good enough for a $905 share of the prize money. "I treated this tournament just like any other. I got accustomed to the pressure early, so it didn't bother me that much."

Robinson carded a pair of 72s in the first two rounds to put him in the top 10 after 36 holes. He then watched his next two rounds tail off in the sweltering heat to 76 and 79.

"It's an honor to play in a tournament like the U.S. Open even if you didn't play very well. At least you know you can play with golf's elite. I'd have to say it was the greatest thrill of my 25 years."

For Robinson it was another leap in what looks to be a golf career on the rise. "The thing that separates me from most golfers is the way that I practice. I've practiced the right things."

The Plymouth native commented further on his game. "The strongest aspect of my game is off the tee. Depending on the condition of the course where I'm playing I usually drive between 260 and 290 yards."

He also stressed the mental aspect of the game. "Concentration is 90 percent of my game, the other 10 percent is the mechanics I've practiced."

Robinson took a serious interest in golf when he began high school. He was voted Plymouth High's MVP in golf during his junior and senior years.

When he graduated with the class of '68 he embarked on a college golf scholarship at Eastern Michigan University. As a member of the Huron golf team he was named All-American in 1971.

Among his accomplishments after graduating from college are a sixth place finish on the Publinx circuit in New Jersey, Publinx champion of Michigan in 1973, a quarterfinalist in the Michigan Amateur.

Robinson works at the Oasis Golf Center on Haggerty and Five Mile as an assistant and golf instructor. He works with many different golfers but finds a common problem among many.

"The mistake a lot of people make is they lift their head when they swing at the ball."

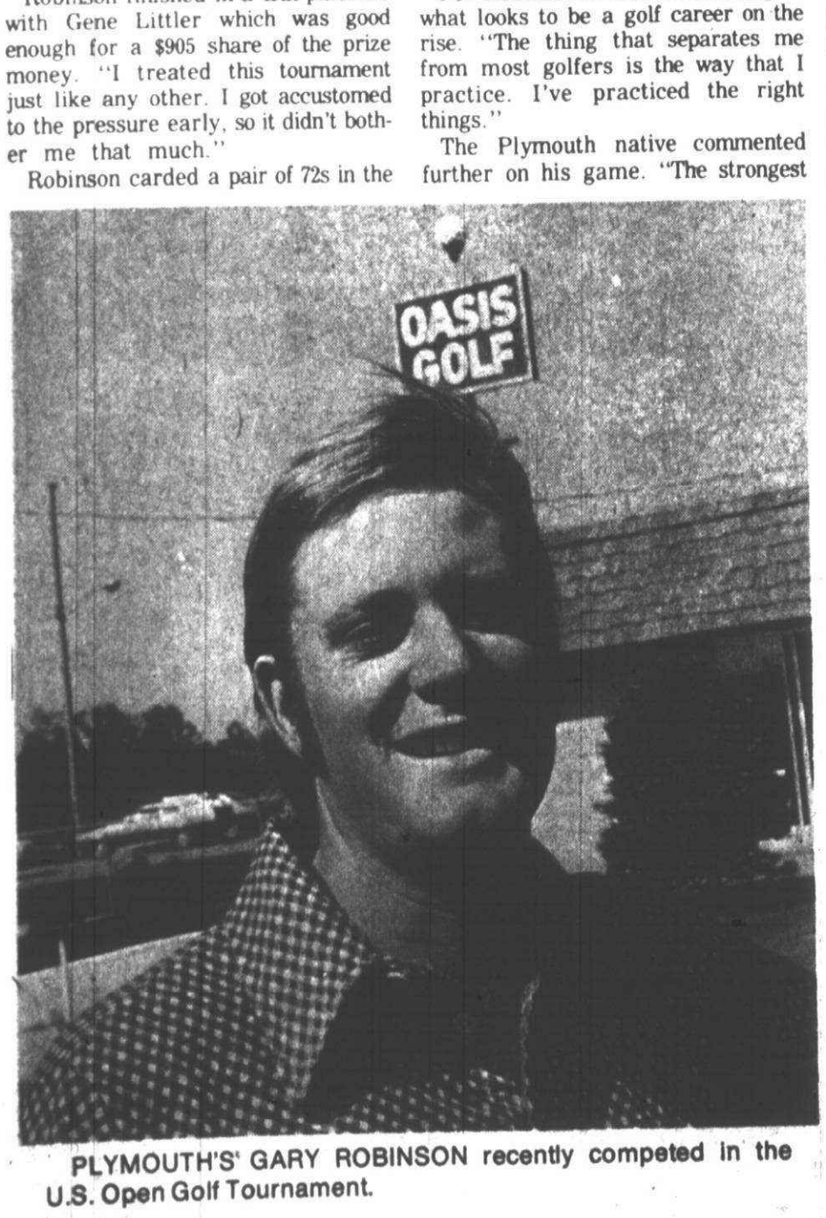

As an instructor he added, "The big difference between professional golfers and weekend golfers is a negative attitude. When a duffer comes to a water hole he'll pull out a sliced ball figuring his shot going in the water, that's a negative thought."

Before the year is over Robinson said he will play in the Canadian Open and Michigan Open. "And hopefully I'll be able to earn my professional card by the end of October," Robinson said.

He estimated, however, it would take $25,000 in sponsorship money to tour with the pros for a year.

With the right mixture of confidence and talent Gary Robinson could be a name to remember in the near future.

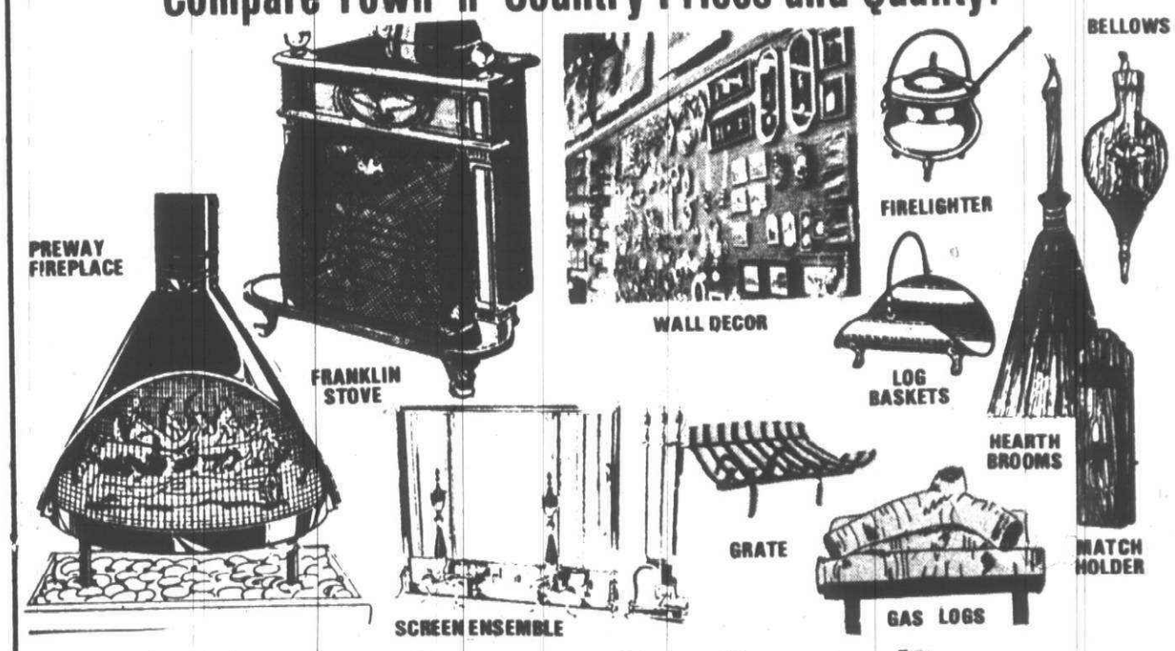

"I feel I'm ready for the tour, I feel I can make money. If I didn't feel this way I wouldn't have entered the U.S. Open."

PLYMOUTH'S GARY ROBINSON recently competed in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

Mistakes costly to Plymouth Legion

By JIM BRADLEY

One of the hardest jobs in baseball is knowing when to send the man home when your're coaching third base.

And Coach Fred Crissey is honest enough to admit he just might have made a mistake in not sending a runner home as the Plymouth Merchants dropped a nine-inning, 8-4, decision to Stitt on Monday.

Crissey's team dropped two out of three this past week and the baseball strategist wishes he 'had it to do over.'

"Dave Pink is on third with the bases loaded and nobody out in the fourth," Crissey explained. "The Stitt catcher misses a pitch and it gets by him to the backstop but I thought he would be right on it, so I held Dave. However, the ball bounced away from the catcher and Pink could have scored."

Most coaches would agree with Crissey in not wanting to "kill" a rally by having a man thrown out at the plate with nobody out.

"Then, we have a man on third and when our hitter lines one to the left-fielder, the man hesitates and then doesn't score on the fly."

Bill DenHouter, who recorded the only win this past week with a brilliant one-hit, 9-1, win over Grosse Ile Wednesday, couldn't hold Stitt. He permitted only four hits in six innings, but was wild and kept himself in hot water before leaving the mound in favor of reliever Don Nalepka in the seventh.

When Randy Besh bashed a three-run triple in the first inning, Plymouth looked home-free but, as Crissey said: "It just wasn't meant to be, I guess."

Stitt nibbled away with single runs in the third and fourth before the Merchants combined singles by Pink, Brian Stemberger and Chris Martucci to lead 4-2 going into the sixth.

Dearborn Heights' Stitt knotted the count when a bobbled grounder gave a visitor life at first base and then John Weeski of Bishop Borgess High School slammed a 370-foot circuit blast to score behind his mate and tie the game.

Then when Plymouth missed opportunities to win, Stitt rapped a pair of two-run singles in the ninth to take the marathon game.

PLYMOUTH — GROSSE ILE

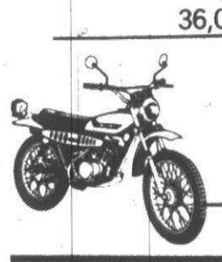

Crissey's crew had a field day in this one as Bill DenHouter gave up only an infield hit to spoil his no-hit bid. He fanned four and walked only two in the performance.

His brother, John, contributed two-for-two and catcher Tom Close rapped two-for-four to highlight the attack. Pink crashed a 350-foot homer in the third and Bill Parson cleared the 330-foot fence in the seventh with a man on to increase Plymouth's margin.

Dearborn Earl Kiem made it 'black Friday' when it stung Plymouth with a 6-0 loss. Cosmo Dezapaz, a fine hurler out of Detroit Chadsey, turned off the fireworks with a stingy three-hitter and struck out 10.

Tom Close and Bob Ayotte represented Plymouth in the American Legion All-Star game Saturday played at Wyandotte. Playing for the Nationals, who won 5-0, Close caught five innings and went hitless in two at-bats. Teammate Ayotte banged a single up the middle and fanned in his three-inning appearance as an outfielder.

By Tom Schram

Every avid golfer in the country knows the feeling of driving to a crowded parking lot at his favorite public course and waiting for one to two hours in the clubhouse to get on the course.

It's a problem that you're going to run into once in a while and almost every course in the area admits that there are times where there is just no room to give everyone a reasonable tee time.

On the other hand, every course in the area has lull periods when there is no waiting time whatsoever.

Brooklane Golf Course, at Six Mile and Sheldon, reports that even on weekends the average wait is no more than 15 minutes and immediate access is available every morning except Wednesday.

Plymouth's Dun Rovin course is one of several in the area that requires reservations on weekends and rarely gets more than five minutes behind on tee times.

Brae Burn Golf Course, which is readying for the Publinx tournament on July 20, requires reservations Saturday and Sunday and reports Friday to be its lightest day.

Bill Curtis and Pete Owens are among the standout local players who will compete in the Publinx which will make its second appearence at Brae Burn with 150-180 players to come out.

Reservations are also a must on weekends at Idyl Wyld Golf Course in Livonia which is also busy with league play from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. every day but Friday.

You can usually get on Hilltop Country Club in Plymouth at almost any time but proprietor Tom Ross has leagues running from 4 to 6 p.m. every day but Monday and Ross says that Sunday morning is usually pretty busy.

AGE IS NO BARRIER in the game of golf and Earl Kline proved that when he shot a 54 with the Presbyterian Golf League last Monday at Glenhurst Golf Course in Redford Township.

Kline, who has been at the game for 50 years now celebrated his 90th birthday with the round.

THE MIGHIGAN Golf Center on Michigan in Inkster will start junior and senior citizens programs next week.

Friday is the last day to register for the junior program of lessons at Hilltop Golf Course.

Garden City hosts tournaments

Garden City will host two post-season baseball tournaments at City Park, Cherry Hill and Merriman, beginning with tonight's Colt Area playoff game at 6 p.m. between St. Clair Shores and North Farmington.

Garden City will play Thursday's winner at 6 p.m. on Friday.

There will be two games on Saturday with the two losers playing at 6 p.m. and the two winners at 8:30 p.m. If a Sunday game is necessary in the two-game knockout series, it will be at 2 p.m.

The second tourney hosted by Garden City will be the Regional playoffs of the Bronco League (ages 11 and 12) which begins on Thursday, July 24, with games at 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

The regional, which will also have two games Friday and Saturday at 6 and 8:30 p.m., will include teams from Redford and Farmington as well as Garden City's American and National squads.

A 2 p.m. game will be played Sunday, July 27, if necessary, and the winner will advance to the national playoffs in Illinois.

Livonia golfer takes tourney

At the age of 15, Steve Gabrian of Livonia knows the difference between success and failure in tournament golf from personal experience.

Two years ago, Gabrian lost a sudden death playoff for second place in the 13-14 year-old's Detroit Free Press Junior Golf Tournament.

And Tuesday the young Livonian was in a playoff for first place in the 24th annual event and won. After shooting a round of 76, Gabrian, who will be a junior at Livonia Stevenson next year, was tied for the championship with Kevin Mitchell of Grosse Pointe Shores.

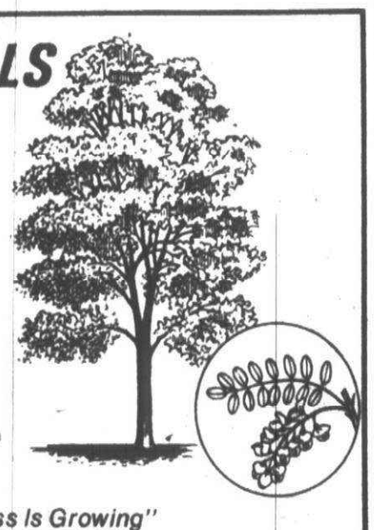

On the first extra hole, Gabrian sank a 10-foot putt for par and the title.

Gabrian survived a field of 140 entries in the tournament which was held at Palmer Park Golf Course in Detroit. It was his first title in a major amateur event.

In The Pocket.

By W.W. EDGAR

A general reshuffling of the Classics along the bowling front is now going on in the western suburbs.

In a desire for larger prize funds, the top prizes are being raised and the cost to the individual bowler is getting another boost.

As a result, there are some surprising changes. For instance, the Westland Bowl Classic is changing its identity to the Senior House League and boosting the top prize to $3,500. Meanwhile, the Junior House League is boosting its top award to $4,500. This is a figure almost unheard of until now for the second-rate league in any establishment.

The same is true at Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington, where the Classic will be known as the Bel-Aire Men's League with a top prize boosted to $3,500.

The lone exception to the shuffling is at Wonderland Lanes, where the 20-team loop will continue as in the past with a top award of $2,500.

There also is the possibility that the Classic will be revived, after a year's absence, at Garden Bowl. No details have been announced, but it is almost certain that the prize list will not be in the upper bracket.

THE REGIONAL championships of the All-America Youth Bowling Congresss staged at Satellite Bowl over the past weekend proved how much the youth movement has grown since its creation by the Bowling Proprietors Association 15 years ago.

So great has been the response of the young bowlers that the nation had to be divided into regions, and eight states were represented in the eliminations for high school graduates.

This is a new concept for the youth, as the top scholarships are not awarded on bowling ability alone, but also on scholastic rating. The scholastic tests were given to these high school graduates after the qualifying rounds.

It was tournament competition at the highest level.

THE TEAM of Evans and Holloway continues to lead the best ball tournament at Merri-Bowl with its count of 841, though there was a change in the standings over the weekend.

Mary Giberton and Elllie Vance teamed for an 828 and moved into the runner-up spot.

MIKE OERAITIS took top honors in a week of good scoring in the summer leagues at Garden Lanes.

He posted a 628 series to beat Al Runschlag, of the Wednesday mixed circuit by six pins. Other good scores included Bill Carter with 620, Bill Rol with 616, Doug Fybranjds with 604 and Harry Tapp with 603.

BETTY LITTLE, a 140-average bowler at Westland Bowl, had her best night of the summer season with games of 198 and 194 in a 540 series. Meanwhile, Sue Kidd came through with a 203 in 481 in the "Wake-Up" league.

In the men's trio, Rick Clark paced the field with 633, and Jeff Allen rolled the season high single of 231 in a 578 series.

THE SENIOR CITIZENS are still knocking them over in grand style at Plymputh Bowl.

In the latest outing, Merle Ffanagan rolled a 560 series, while Boyd Murray had a high single of 224, and Dottie McClain posted a 187.

Collectors' convention convenes

When you were a kid...

The black-gray clouds swept in from the western horizon, enveloping you in a gloom. Housebound. With nothing to do.

But of course you remembered. Hidden deep in the recesses of your closet, away from the prying eyes of your parents, tucked snug against your yellow rain slicker was, The Collection.

Your molars gave a small tinge each time you looked or even thought of those prizes from Topps. The pink slab of suger lying atop the five cards. The series was incidental to your mother, she only objected to the gum. Boy, did she object.

BUT IT was there, your wealth in 1,033 baseball cards.

Birdie Tibbets, Gail Harris, Ted Williams, Hank Aaron, "Paw-Paw"; these were your friends and idols.

And when you finally realized you were a little old to be in this vanguard of the faith, you didn't just chuck the whole collection. You passed it on to a younger dreamer.

Some never lost that exuberant innocence.

THEY'RE GATHERING Friday through Sunday (July 18-21), at the Troy Hilton Inn to trade stories and memorabilia, and relive the true Golden Age of Sports.

The Midwest Sports Collectors Convention, opening to the public Saturday at 9 a.m., has expanded to two ballroom-exhibition areas with more than 100 collectors in attendance.

Highlighting the convention will be a dialog between Detroit Tiger manager Ralph Houk and Joe Falls of the Detroit Free Press. Convention-goers are expected to add their own comment and opinions when the two sports personalities take the stage at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Convention Chairman Jay Barry said attendance for this year's gathering is expected to top the 2,000 attracted last year because the convention will offer two rare sports memorabilia auctions for advanced collectors at 10 p.m. both Friday and Saturday.

Saturday hours are 9 a.m.-11 p.m., and Sunday the convention runs from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Tickets are priced at $2 per individual or family.

Bright family room

COORDINATED wall coverings and draperies and a new no-wax floor brighten a dining area-family room with adjoining kitchen. Once plain cabinets now have stylish wall covering panels trimmed with wood molding. Samples of the no-wax floor and swatches of coordinated fabrics and vinyl wall coverings can be seen together in a special binder at stores which stock Armstrong floor products.

Extra living room in attic, garage

Attics and garages can be converted into living space by anyone who knows how to handle a hammer and a tape measure.

Such an area already has basic wiring for lights, four walls, a floor and a ceiling. Buy some type of paneling for the walls and tiles for the floor and ceiling, and you've improved the value of your home by several thousand dollars, plus acquiring a new room.

The most popular flooring for such remodeling projects (and one of the least expensive) is vinyl asbestos tile because it can be installed over any wood subfloor or directly on cement.

According to the Better Floors Council, vinyl asbestos also can be used as a wall covering.

It is not suggesting four walls of tile, but used as a feature wall or wainscoat, tile makes a very attractive surface that doesn't need painting and withstands knocks better than paint. Dirt and smudges are easily wiped off with a damp cloth or sponge.

This easy-to-clean feature is especially important in a remodeled attic that is to be used as a hobby room or a child's room, areas that get a lot of wear and tear.

Such "new" space can also be used for a bedroom, store room, TV room, study or music room.

Avoid paving gypsies

Many thousands of dollars will be wasted this summer by Michigan people who think they're getting something for next to nothing when, in reality, they're getting nothing for something," warns Walter Tervo, executive secretay of the Michigan Asphalt Paving Association in Lansing.

Tervo is referring to the annual "gypsy paving racket" in which bands of itinerate gypsies go house to house offering to resurface your driveway with a tar-based substance for a few dollars.

Actually, a worthless paint compound, similar in appearance to the sealing compound used by reputable firms, but lacking proper chemical ingredients used by the band, says Tervo.

"Cost usually is whatever the market will bear. In the past, threats of physical violence have been used against people who complain or threaten to talk to authorities. They seem to be active when the economy is down, as it is now.

"Reputable paving firms would do a far better job at less cost than that extorted by the gypsies working the [illegible] says Tervo.

Need space

"You will still need your conventional range top and oven after buying a microwave oven," says Marilyn Mook of the Michigan State University Extension Service.

The microwave uses much less electricity than conventional type ovens. But it is not free-standing like a range. It requires counter space. This can be a problem if you have a small kitchen or counter space already being used.

Virgin pine forest

Hartwick is nature's paradise

At Hartwick Pines State Park near Grayling, one of Michigan's most popular parks, a visitor may walk amoung huge, towering white pine and relive the state's past lumbering era or just enjoy the quiet offered by a deep forest.

The park features 85 acres of virgin white pine, the last remaining such tract in the Lower Peninsula. Hartwick Pines is a living, lasting monument to the lumber era between 1840 and 1900 when virgin forests carpeted Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas.

HARTWICK PINES is seven miles northeast of Grayling on M-93.

A tour of the park will cost a carload of visitors either $1 for a one-day entrance permit or $5 for a season entrance sticker that can be used at all Michigan state parks. Campers pay $3 a day for a site at the campgrounds.

"Before viewing the Lower Peninsula's last large stand of virgin pine, visitors should stop first at the Interpretative Center building," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"Exhibits and pictorial displays will provide a better understanding of points of interest in the forest. On display are many of the tools used for logging, and miniature replicas of the camps, railroads and mills that turned trees into lumber. Early photographs are convincing evidence that the life of the lumberjack was rugged and lonely."

After learning that 160 billion board feet of white pine went to the saw mills from Michigan's forests between 1840 and the start of the 20th century, visitors should set out to see the woods, he added. The forest walk is about 1¼ miles long and can be made in 45 minutes.

Down the trail lies the original cedar crossties of a logging railroad that once passed through the forest.

THEN HALFWAY through the walk the visitor comes to the Monarch pine, largest tree in the park.

Standing 155 feet tall and 45 inches in diameter, this white pine contains enough lumber to build a five-bedroom house. The Monarch is estimated to be 300 years old and lumber in the tree is valued at more than $3,000. Although mammoth, the Monarch does not approach the size of trees six feet in girth familiar to lumberjacks a century ago.

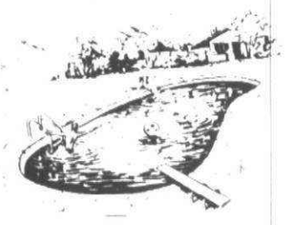

From the Monarch, the trail leads to the Lumberman's Museum, which contains in two buildings several features found in a logging camp. There is the blacksmith shop, a dining hall set for breakfast with "morning glories" (pancakes), and a bunkroom, where the men slept on straw and huddled around a small stove for warmth.

Outside is a set of huge logging sheels, pulled by horses and used to carry felled trees from the forest to the logging railroad.

A fitting end to the hike is the Chapel in the Pines. Built on a hilltop, the small log-structure was donated anonymously to the park more than 20 years ago. The chapel's doors are open to those who want to sit and meditate in the serenity of the woods.

Hartwick Pines was a gift to the state in 1927 from Mrs. Karen B. Hartwick as a memorial to her husband, Major Edward E. Hartwick, killed World War I.

Bill would give the suburbs equal voice on water hikes

Suburban communities would have an equal voice with Detroiton the Detroit Water Board under a package of bills introducedin the State House last week.

State Rep. John Bennett (D-Redford) introduced three billsto increase suburban representation on the water board,require public hearings on rate hikes and require audits of the water department. The bills are the product of an investigation into the water rate structure conducted by a special House committee chaired by Bennett.

The investigation was prompted after the water board increased water and sewage disposal rates to its customers when the three suburban representatives on the board were absent. The water rate hike was later rescinded, but the sewer hike of 38 per cent takes effect Sept. 1

"THE PURPOSE of the bills is to give the suburbs equal representation on the Detroit Water Board and some control over the rate setting policy," said Bennett. "Some Detroit board members say we want to take over the board. But this is not our purpose. We want to be partners."

Included in the proposed legislation are recommendations made by suburban officials led by Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara in their fight to gain some control over the water department and setting of water rates.

The key bill, said Bennett, would create a nine-member water board composed of four Detroit members appointed by the mayor of Detroit and four suburban members elected by an assembly of suburban communities. The ninth member would be selected by the other eight members.

Each suburban governmental unit would have one representative vote for each 10,000 population at the assembly, with each unit assured of at least one vote. The assembly and the Detroit mayor would have to make selections within 30 days of the effective date of the state act, if approved. If the ninth member isn't chosen within 60 days, the appointment would be made by the governor, Bennett said.

"The people of the suburban communities served by the water system should have some voice in the operation of the system," Bennett said, noting that the Detroit mayor currently appoints all seven board members. Although the current board has three suburban representatives, the mayor could appoint seven Detroiters.

A SECOND bill in the package would define by law what constitutes fair and equitable water rates. It would require that rates not exceed the actual cost of delivering water to a local unit. The board would also have to determine its rates in accordance with the results of study conducted by a nationally recognized rate study firm.

During the water rate debate, the suburbs charged the rate hike was to finance improvements to the Detroit system which wouldn't benefit suburban units.

"Present law does not require rates to reflect the cost of service to a community," Bennett said. "This seems to be the crux of the conflict between the City of Detroit and its suburban customers. If a city water system is allowed to charge out-city customers up to twice what is paid by its own residents, it leaves little need for the water supplier to show accountability in its rate structure."

THE THIRD bill would require an annual independent audit of the water system, require public hearings at least 120 days before a rate increase could take effect and establish an appeal procedure for local units contesting a rate increase.

The appeal procedure would allow one-third of the municipalities served by the water system to petition to circuit court for a restraining injunction to halt the rate increase. Any violation of the law governing operation of the system would provide the basis for a restraining order.

Bennett said he has received 50 resolutions from suburban communities served by Detroit water since the controversy erupted last spring. All resolutions call for a greater suburban voice on the water board.

DURING PUBLIC hearings held by the House committee, local communities questioned the need for the proposed 35 per cent hike in water rates and 38 per cent hike in sewer rates.

"There were questions about the necessity for these rate increases which were not fully answered to the satisfaction of the committee," Bennett said.

"During the hearings, the director of the water system, Ernest Cedroni, took the position that the water department is the private domain of the City of Detroit. This isn't true. The water system was built and expanded with public funds. Millions of dollars of state and federal funds have been poured into the system."

He estimated Detroit received $90 million of a $335 million water pollution abatement bond issue approved by Michigan voters in 1968.

After Wayne County sold its water system to Detroit, Detroit failed to complete payments, Bennett charged. "I think they still owe $40 million."

After Wayne County sold its water system to Detroit, Detroit failed to complete payments, Bennett said. "I think they still owe $40 million."

"It is my feeling the system belongs to the people."

The early days of public health

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

"I reckon being ill as one of the great pleasures of life, provided one is not too ill and is not obliged to work till one is better." — Samuel Butler

Those who lived in Plymouth in "the good old days" had their share of dangers mixed in with the delights. Sickness, or death, from accidents or disease, were more prevalent then today. Fortunately for us, health in the United States has improved consistently for the past 100 years.

Many accidents in pioneer days were caused by the kind of work necessary to clear the land and erect shelters. Felling trees, splitting rails and raising log cabins developed muscles, but often led to mishaps. Many persons were injured or killed by horses that had a propensity to kick at the wrong time.

WHAT WAS CALLED fever and ague—actually malaria carried by the waves of mosquitoes bred in the swamps which abounded before the land was drained—made its victims shiver and shake with successive cold, hot and sweating fits.

Infant mortality was high. Contagious diseases, such as scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, mumps and smallpox took a heavy toll. After a long spell of bad weather, the chief topic of conversation was who was down with "La Grippe," the old name for influenza.

Interment records of the Plymouth Village Cemetary from 1845 to 1853 indicate the kinds of diseases and accidents which the early residents had to guard against. Three babies died of thrush; a disease of infants caused by a parasitic fungus which produces white specks on the inside of the mouth and throat; one died from drinking lye; and one from the "summer complaint." Another infant died from an opium fit; it was the custom in the 19th century to give opium-laced potions to infants to keep them quiet.

The records show that a 24-year-old man was killed by falling on a pitchfork; another by a fall down a cellar; a third by a fall from a tree. Deaths are also listed due to chronic diarrhea, scarlet fever, consumption and dysentery. The good old days had their dark side, too.

THE MOVEMENT for public education in health matters in the United States began about 1900.

Public health officers were appointed by municipalities to help prevent and control communicable diseases, to suppress sanitary nuisances, and to make sure drinking water was not contaminated.

Annual reports issued by village and city administrations in Plymouth are a source of information about the state of public health in the community from the late twenties on.

In 1929, when Dr. A. E. Patterson was the health officer of the village, whooping cough was unusually prevalent, accounting for 60 cases, compared with 21 in 1928. There were eight cases of diphtheria, which was then beginning to decline in the United States as a result of a campaign by the medical profession to encourage immunization against the dread disease.

Dr. Patterson indicated that he was behind the police department's efforts to round up stray, unlicensed dogs, noting that every such dog was a potential source of rabies infection.

In 1930, when Adolph K. Koenig was the village manager, there was an outbreak of typhoid fever in Plymouth. There were five cases and one death. Typhoid fever and other intestinal infections are transmitted by water, milk, food and flies.

Noting that much criticism had been leveled against it because of the typhoid outbreak, the village administration declared that "the enactment of a proper milk ordinance is an immediate and pressing need as a safeguard of the public health." Milk ordinance No. 91 was adopted by the city commission which took over the reigns when Plymouth became a home rule city in 1932.

THE FIRST FULL year of the Great Depression, 1930, must have been a bad year from a health standpoint. Besides the typhoid scare, Plymouth had an epidemic of scarlet fever. There were 74 cases, but no deaths.

In his report, Dr. Patterson wrote that "the incidence of two terrible epidemic diseases of the past, diphtheria and smallpox, continues to decline. Approximately 90 per cent of the Plymouth school children at present are immunized against diphtheria and 75 per cent against smallpox."

Before 1934, the health "department" consisted of the physician, employed on a part-time basis, and a few quarantine cards. It was, according to the 1936-37 report, the most unimportant in the whole makeup of the city's departments.

It was in 1934 that L. P. Cookingham, who succeeded Koenig as village manager in 1931, decided to reorganize the public health department in the interest of efficiency and to give it greater stature. He transferred the department's headquarters from Dr. Patterson's office to City Hall and saw that the clerical work was performed by the administration staff.

In addition, the health officer was assured of maximum cooperation by the police department in his efforts to control communicable diseases. This reorganization, put through by Cookingham, was a big step forward in the history of public health in the City of Plymouth.

DR. PATTERSON died in 1935. One of the oldest residents of the community, he had held the post of health officer for many years.

He was succeeded by Dr. Luther Peck, a dapper, bearded gentleman, who also held the office for a long time. In his report for 1935-36, the health officer said the most serious sanitary problem the city faced involved the collection and disposal of garbage. Aside from those who used the service of a private collector, post residents buried or burned their garbage.

In his 1938-39 report, he was happy to report that "for the first time in the history of our city, the main creek that runs through the business district has been covered permanently."

Peck's achievements on behalf of public health in the City of Plymouth were recognized by the Plymouth Rotary Club which presented him its community service award in February 1938.

How the aged can be given assurance

Early September has been set as the time goal for the start of a telephone reassurance project in the Plymouth—Canton area.

Jean Vicini is spearheading the drive for volunteers to make daily calls to senior citizens and handicapped persons. She also is asking for names of persons who would benefit from the service.

Mrs. Vicini became interested in the project during an "assisting the aging" course at Madonna College. After her graduation in April, she set the wheels in motion to introduce the service in this area. It has been warmly received in several communities, including Redford Township and Inkster.

The program works on a one-to-one basis.

The elderly person, or shut-in who lives alone, is called every morning by a volunteer, just to check up on their well-being and to chat.

A friendly, concerned voice, actually caring about them, can be a very bright spot in a lonely person's day.

The fear of something happening to them and no one discovering it for days is no longer a worry.

Mrs. Vicini has been in touch with local FISH organizations to gather names of persons to be called. She welcomes any additions. Families going on vacation may call with the request. "Would you please give mother a call while we're out of town for a couple of weeks."

For the volunteer caller, concern and a few minutes out of a busy day are the only requirements. For the person called, it means reassurance and something pleasant to look forward to each day.

Anyone wishing to join the service, either as a caller or one who wishes to be called, should talk to Mrs. Arthur Vicini on Sheridan Avenue, Plymouth.

School district buys former MESC office

The former Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) office on Mill Street is being purchased by the Plymouth Community School District for $96,000.

The building at 987 S. Mill was leased by MESC until it moved to new quarters on Joy Road west of Haggerty Road. The building will initially serve as location of the CASTLES program for the 1975-76 school year.

Later the building will be used as office area for buildings and grounds, maintenance and operations, and some special education functions.

School Supt. Mike Hoben said the location is a good one because it is across the street from the district's bus garage property.

Land in that area is worth about $20,000 an acre, Hoben told the board, and so the $75,000 for the building breaks down to about $21 per square foot.

"It is much cheaper than a similar area would cost to be constructed and is immediately available."

The building is being purchased on a land contract basis with funds being withdrawn from the building and site account to make payments as they fall due.

Under this arrangement, the district will have the option of paying off the balance of the land contract at any time without penalty. The transaction was handled by Thompson-Brown Co.

The MESC item on the agenda caused a member of the audience to ask about the legality of the district's hiring personnel from another country for an extended period of time. The two administrators of the CASTLES teachers' training program are from England.

Hoben explained that the CASTLES directors are hired by the Wayne County Intermediate School District on a cooperative basis with the Plymouth, Northville and Novi school districts and that the intermediate district was responsible to ensure legal requirements are met.

The winners were determined by the bike rider who collected the most money, rode the most miles, and rode with the most sponsors. The bikeathon was conducted by the American Diabetes Association and District 30 Jaycettes. Plymouth area route riders have collected almost $22,000 to date.

Kathleen Harrington of Blunk Street, Plymouth, will return to Plymouth Monday, July 14, after spending five weeks at the Symphony School in Dodgeville and La Crosse, Wis. While at the school, she has been attending daily rehearsals and sectionals, playing side by side with 20 professional artists. She will be performing in a concert today (Thursday) at Richland Center, July 12, 13 at Gov. Dodge State Park, July 19, 23, 30 at the University of Wisconsin.

A special honor has been earned by Mike Alimpich, 18, son of George and Nadejda Alimpich of Michigan Avenue, Canton Township. Mike, who graduated from John Glenn High in Westland this past June, was nominated for an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. by U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) whose 15th District includes Canton Township.

Mike was selected and July 7 left for West Point to attend the select military academy. In school, Mike was a seven varsity letterman and had two junior varsity letters. He was named to the second team of the all area team picked by this newspaper in his junior year. This past year, he was all league defensive end, all area Observer & Eccentric team, and all league and all area in high jump. He also was named to the all area Observer & Eccentric track team.

While at Glenn, he played bass in the symphony orchestra and bass guitar in the stage band. He was a member of the honor society, vice president of the orchestra, and graduated cum laude. Besides football, track and band, Mike also played three years of high school basketball.

The film will be shown Wednesday, July 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The documented drama in full color tells the story of a cop-hating junkie delinquent and her conversion in New York's ghetto. Wilkerson is the author of the best-seller "The Cross and the Switchblade," and the film was produced by World Challenge Films.

RICE MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 20601 Beech Daly, Redford Township, will hold an elementary children's festival for youngsters four years through sixth grade July 21 to 24 and July 28 to 31 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The festival will include arts and crafts, stories, music, recreation, refreshments, outings, worship and an ice cream social. Children attending are asked to bring a package of presweetened powdered soft drink the first morning.

ROSEDALE GARDENS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 9601 Hubbard at West Chicago, Livonia, plans an evening family Bible school Friday, July 25 from 7 to 9 p.m. in addition to its vacation Bible school July 21 to 24 from 9:30 a.m. to noon. The morning program is for children aged four to sixth grade, and there is a registration fee. Registrations will be accepted at the door.

ST. JOHN ARMENIAN CHURCH, 22001 Northwestern Highway, Southfield, will hold its annual church Picnic Sunday, July 20 from noon to 7 p.m.

There will be shish kebab dinners, Armenian delicacies, an Armenian band and games for the children. The public is welcome.

Chaplains help spiritual healing

"Some staff people think we only talk to patients about God," says University of Michigan Hospital chaplain Noel Brown.

"When the occasion calls for it, we do," he adds. "But hospital ministry means different things to different people. It is intended to help patients and their families uncover their own particular strengths — and make use of them."

The recognition that there is a spiritual dimension to healing lies behind all of the programs sponsored by the chaplaincy department of the U-M Hospital.

In effect, contends Herbert Hillebrand, head chaplain for the hospital, the daily concerns of a medical center are religious. Despite the prominence of change in the history of medicine, the basic dynamics of sickness and care have remained constant through the ages.

FOR THE PATIENT, illness has always meant failing self-confidence, and troubling questions about the future. For those who treat illness, it has always implied a heavy responsibility to counter disease with all available skills, knowledge and finally, love.

"Religion and medicine are both deeply concerned with life and how it may best be lived," says Brown.

Although much of a hospital chaplain's work is conducted in the face of crisis, it doesn't take catastrophe to make illness a time for serious reflection.

"The hospital stay can be a catalyst for unrelated life change," says staff member Evan Sherrard. "Patients are given to introspection. They may simply want somebody to talk to, someone who really seems to care, but is not necessarily family or old friend."

On one occasion a woman about to undergo minor surgery indicated a willingness to talk to a chaplain about a long-standing conflict with her father-in-law.

"It's a problem I haven't been able to share with my husband because I don't want to hurt him," she said.

"WE'RE NOT ESSENTIALLY advice-givers," remarks Hillebrand. "In most cases, we help raise possibilities or clarify issues, as the woman in question did for herself.

"What's important is that someone be available to listen when necessary, and to recognize the myriad forms which religious expression might take."

In keeping with its tradition of training and utilizing chaplains, the U-M hospital is exploring other new dimensions of ministry to the sick and their families.

In one effort, program member Kenyon Edwards spends evenings in the emergency service, working with people traumatized not only by disease or injury, but often by the sheer suddenness of its onslaught.

"It is the extension of the total care concept to those who may need it the most," says Hillebrand.

Ward youth on mission to San Salvadore

By MARGARET MILLER

A dozen teenagers from Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia are off this week on a work mission trip that should help them see a lot and grow a lot as well as develop a few sore muscles.

The group, headed by Dan Schar, Ward's director of youth ministries, left early Tuesday for a mission post near the city of San Salvadore in the country of El Salvadore.

There, for two weeks, they will assist in the work done by the Rev. Robert Gibbard and his wife, Jean, working on repairs for a mission house and grounds and building a volleyball court for students at the mission school.

They also will lead and share in worship services and get in some sightseeing, perhaps to an old volcano that is a favorite recreation site for mission families in the area.

THE TRIP IS the first foreign jaunt for youth of Ward church in five years, and Schar sees it as an enriching experience in several ways.

"The church has been very supportive of this kind of mission work right along," he said, "but putting together a trip like this takes a lot of effort on everyone's part."

Students making the excursion include Sylvia Salsbury, Shirley Lee, Marie Wolfe, Richard Gong, Jim Roberts, Jeri Reum, Paul Coe, Cindy Andres, Debbie Weidner and John Meyer, all of Livonia.

Others are Andy Griffiths of Westland and Char Hardy of Dearborn Heights.

They won't admit to being in the least superstitious, but they make sure their numbers are listed as 12 students plus one adviser instead of 13 travelers.

TALKING THINGS over before leaving, the young "missionaries" described their venture as "a whole new experience," a chance to practice high school Spanish and the opportunity to make new friends among young people of other cultures.

Schar went a bit further in describing the goals.

"There's learning about the country, of course," he said. "Marie did a paper for school on El Salvadore, and we all picked up a lot of information from that."

Any of the students can tell you quickly that the country is the smallest in South America, even smaller than Michigan's Upper Peninsula, but the most densley populated.

All are learning "uno pocito" Spanish, too, Schar said. "We've been working on some simple songs in Spanish," he added. "People really appreciate it when you expend the effort to learn about their culture."

A SECOND important goal, the adviser added, is to give the young people a glimpse of what mission work is like.

"This was a big part of my previous mission visit," he said. "It was then I realized missionaries aren't perfect, as we might believe by reading Sunday school books. But they also aren't misfits but very capable people. They're also very human, with human problems and frustrations."

Learning to work together has been perhaps the most important aspect of the project, Schar said.

The teenagers have earned a good share of the $7,000 the trip is costing, so they've had to develop cooperative habits on projects like weeding, window washing and cleaning up a rundown home.

"Then we relate this to Bible study," Schar said, mentioning particularly passages from the book of James: "Count it all joy, my brethren, when you meet various trials, for you know that the testing of your faith produces steadfastness," and the 139th Psalm.

WE'RE WORKING to become the kind of people God wants us to be," Schar said, "and I have found it great to see this kind of growth and respond to it."

The two-week visit, Schar said, is about right—"It gives you time to get over the culture shock and become useful and avoids the much higher expense of an extended visit."

Greek youth elect officers

The young people's group of Holy Cross Greek Orthodox Church, Farmington Hills, recently elected new officers for the coming year.

Called GOYA (Greek Orthodox Youth of America), the national organization was founded in 1951. The goals include helping their church, fostering individual spiritual betterment, instilling of religious pride, and encouragemeing leadership and community service.

New officers are: Diane Anthony of Farmington Hills, president; Dino Thanos of Farmington, vice president; Connie Kourtakis of Farmington, corresponding secretary; Mary Christo of Farmington Hills, recording secretary; Spero Koulouras of Southfield, treasurer.

Board members are: Valerie Kapas of Southfield, James Van Vonderer of Livonia and Christine Christy of Birmingham.

The group advisors are Mrs. Stephen J. Anthony of Farmington Hills and Mrs. Peter E. Georgeson of Franklin.

Armenian benefit set

A three-day carnival, scheduled July 18 to 20 on the grounds of St. Sarkis Armenian Church, 19300 Ford, Dearborn, will raise money for the new Armenian Day School to be opened at the church in September.

The school, which already has 70 students enrolled, is the first in the country to be operated by the Armenian Relief Society.

The carnival will be open beginning at 6 p.m. each evening and will feature 12 rides.

Workshop set on aging

"Pastoral Work and Aging" is the title of a six-day workshop to be offered from July 21 to 26 by the University of Michigan Institute of Gerontology.

The leaders will be Dr. William M. Clements, area director of pastoral counseling in the Baptist Medical Centers in Birmingham, Ala., and Dr. Elbert C. Cole Jr., executive director of Shepherd's Center and the Mid-America Resource and Training Center on Aging, both in Kansas City, Mo.

SC concert series offers change of pace

By TIM RICHARD

In summertime, music is as luxuriant as suburban grass.

Plymouth's band performs in the park on Thursday evenings in tones that cheer the citizens and fill them with pride.

Farmington has embellished on its summer offerings with its own band and others, earning the little city on the old stagecoach trail a place on the modern musical map.

Big, strapping Livonia brings in local and area performing groups on Tuesdays and Thursdays when folks can sit on park benches and listen in a town that allegedly lacks a downtown and "character."

BUT THE MOST unusual summer offering of all has been occurring at Schoolcraft College, a community jewel that folks tend to forget about. In air-conditioned buildings with modern architecture, Director Richard Saunders and an impressive faculty have re-created the conditions, the innovations and the excitement that chamber music was born into.

These recreations occur on four Monday nights, and the final one is coming up July 21 at 8:30 p.m. in the Waterman Center at the north end of campus.

One characteristic of chamber music is variety: Mozart, Schubert and the gang wrote for whatever instruments and performers were at hand. Last Monday's concert, for example, began with five early 18th century dances for viola (which most of us Romantic slobs wrongly considered the wallflower of the string family) and piano; the soloist was a newcomer to the faculty, Meyer Shapiro, the kind of person one instinctively likes just listening to him.

A sonata for flute, viola and harp had to be dropped from the program, and we were treated to the intimate intelligence that the harpist had banged her finger in a car door. So the reliable, versatile, unflappable Donald Morelock, with Lynne Bartholomew Lynch, substituted a Satie piano work for four hands.

That's another characteristic of Schoolcraft's chamber offerings — intimacy. "Chamber" means room, after all, and sounds that would rattle around in a concert hall can fill the college room. Meadow Brook's rolling football field is no match.

IT'S DIFFICULT to "review" such a concert in the traditional sense. A reviewer should have heard the work previously, preferably several times, but Schoolcraft's summer offerings are totally new to those of us who indulge in the orgies of Liszt and Schumann the other 11 months of the year.

"Babar, the Little Elephant" is a tale that French kids love but is unfamiliar to midwestern American ears. Robert W. Jones' recitation, to the music of Francis Poulenc played by pianist Allen Shaffer, had to be one of the highlights of the series.

That, by the way, is another characteristic of the Schoolcraft series. Poulenc's music has been transcribed for many combinations of instruments, but Shaffer, chief programmer of the series, chose to perform the original piano version.

They're doing the same thing next Monday night—a chamber version of Saint-Saens delightful "Carnival of the Animals" with the Ogden Nash verses narrated by Jimmy Launce, who is stepping up from the cellar of radio broadcasting for this event.

No one's knocking Sousa performed in the band shell in the park, but for a mind-bending barrel of fun, the most unusual thing around has to be Schoolcraft's summer chamber series.

'75-76 Hilberry season accents American drama

The Hilberry Theater has announced a repertory of seven plays, with the accent on America drama and history, for the 1975-76 season. The emphasis on America to celebrate the bicentennial year, will culminate with the premiere production of the winning play in Wayne State University's bicentennial playwriting competition.

The fall repertory will consist of George Bernard Shaw's witty treatment of the American Revolution, "The Devil's Disciple," and two American drama classics, Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" and John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men." The latter is being held over from last year's repertory.

In December there will be change of pace when Georges Feydeau's French farce, "The Lady from Maxim's," is added. The '75-'76 season's Shakespeare offering will be "As You Like It," which opens in February, and a continental classic, Moliere's "The Miser," is scheduled to join the repertory in March.

The focus returns to America in the spring, when William Saroyan's award winning "The Time of Your Life" opens in April and plays until late May.

The premiere production of the bicentennial contest's winning play, which will follow the repertory season, is part of the dual prize to be awarded to the first place winner. The other is a cash award of $3,000 offered by the WSU Bicentennial Commission, cosponsors of the contest with the Hilberry Theater.

Competing plays, now being judged, deal with some issue in American history which affects us as individuals and as a nation as we enter our third century. The playwrights all have had some affiliation with WSU or have lived in Michigan at some time.

The plays and dates of the regular season are:

- "The Devil's Disciple," opens with the President's Preview for theater sponsors Nov. 7, closes Feb. 28.
- "Death of a Salesman," Oct 10-Feb. 21.
- "Of Mice and Men," Oct. 3-Jan. 21
- "The Lady from Maxim's," Dec.5-March 20.
- "As You Like It," Feb. 6-May 19.
- "The Miser," March 5-May 22.
- "The Time of Your Life," April 16-May 21.

Plays may continue in the school matinee repertory beyond the closing dates listed if there is demand.

Brochures with the complete performance schedule and ticket information will be available late in the summer and may be obtained by calling the Hilberry box office, Cass at Hancock.

Ursula Walker will appear with the Brookside Jazz Ensemble in Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Amphitheater Sunday, July 20 at 8 p.m.

Standard Federal Savings

GROWING THROUGH SERVICE.

We're people helping people. MAY WE HELP YOU?

TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

Standard Federal Savings experienced the greatest growth in its history during the first six months of 1975. In fact, we grew more in the first half of 1975 than we ever did in a full year.

Assets increased by $148,752,191 to a new record high of $1,314,472,751. The Association added $147,489,798 to our savings totals which are now $1,175,656,818. Total Mortgages are now $1,033,025,434. Reserves and Surplus increased to $68,685,200. Standard Federal Savings therefore continues as one of the largest and fastest growing savings associations in America.

During the first six months $72,705,358 in mortgage loans were granted. We also loaned $5,816,620 for consumer loans.

Our office at 50 West Big Beaver, near Woodward, was moved from a temporary facility into a beautiful new building. We hope to be able to serve our customers living or working in this community much better as we have an enlarged parking area, a drive-up window and a much more spacious office for customer convenience and service.

A larger parking area as well as an expanded drive-in facility were also added to our office at 25501 Harper, near 10 Mile Road.

Standard Federal Savings is also building four new offices to serve the Metropolitan Detroit community. These offices will be at the corner of the Metropolitan Parkway and Schoenherr Road; at the Winchester Mall at Rochester Road and Avon Road; at the Fairlane development on Southfield Road near Michigan and on the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Haggerty Road.

Several new customer services are also available for your benefit. We now offer Keogh and IRA retirement accounts. Our customers can now have their Social Security or other checks directly deposited to their Standard Federal account. The service will let you start earning interest on your check from the day it arrives rather than waiting until you can come into our office. We also offer a Tel-A-Transfer account for businesses whereby they can earn interest on funds usually sitting idle in checking accounts.

For the remainder of 1975 we expect economic conditions to improve and for inflation to moderate even further. Savings should continue to flow into our savings department due to the very favorable savings rates we offer which will enable us to continue our very active mortgage lending program.

On behalf of all of the directors, officers and employees, I would like to thank all of our customers for their continued confidence and we look forward to continuing to serve your financial needs.

Sincerely,

Thomas R. Ricketts

Sports enthusiast is named Ms. Wheelchair Michigan

By VICKY BILLINGTON

A Royal Oak clerical worker who loves sports will reign as the 1976 Ms. Wheelchair Michigan.

Pat Karl, 25, was chosen at the third annual pageant held at Madonna College over the weekend and she will be the spokesperson for the 900,000 physically limited persons in Michigan.

"I want to get people to realize that people in wheelchairs are people first, and that the wheelchair is just a mode of transportation, a secondary thing," she said.

Chosen from 12 finalists who had competed throughout the state, she will receive a four-year Madonna College scholarship.

First runner-up at the pageant was Nancy Jachim of Warren and second runner-up was Glynice Mrozek of Saulte Ste. Marie.

There was a tie for Ms. Achievement between Kathy Delaney of Farmington and Mary Lou Van Tol of Essexville. Ms. Congeniality, chosen by the contestants, was Melaine Groth of Mt. Clemens.

THE OTHER contestants were Susan Castle of Hazel Park, Kimberly Smagghe of Detroit, Helen Wyzgoski of Mt. Clemens, Salli Phillips of Grand Rapids, Barbara Caplia of Farmington and Charlotte Lory of Taylor.

The pageant was sponsored by the Michigan Jaycees and the Mobility Awareness Team, a non-profit corporation committed to community awareness of the needs and problems of the physically limited.

Ms. Wheelchair Michigan was chosen by eight judges, based on her poise, personality and accomplishments from a wheelchair.

Judges included Sheldon Wachler, attorney for the Michigan Paralyzed Veterans of America; Father Ed Courtney, priest at the Christ the King Church in Detroit; Tom McKelvey, physical therapist and Ulysses S. Beasley, who works for the Michigan Department of Transportation, dealing with programs for the physically handicapped and the elderly.

Others were Sally Patterson, vocational rehabilitation services consultant at the University of Michigan; Irv King, vice president and personnel director for Winkelman's Incorporated; Euline McCorkle, member of the NAPH Civic Presence Groups and chapter president of Ypsilanti for NAPH and Dr. Larry Handelsman of the University of Michigan Hospital's physical medicine department. He also served as medical advisor at the pageant to assist the judges in understanding the types of disabilities represented.

THE PURPOSE of the pageant is to choose a spokesperson to help promote mobility awareness for physically limited people, to recognize a woman in a wheelchair for her poise, personality and accomplishments despite a handicap, and to select a Michigan candidate for the Miss Wheelchair America pageant.

The contestants for the pageant had to meet certain requirements. The women had to be Michigan residents, be at least 18 years old, must use a wheelchair at least 50 per cent of the time and could not have been in the previous state pageant. The women could be single or married.

Giving up her title to Pat Karl was Wanda Stevens of Jackson, Ms. Wheelchair Michigan for 1975.

Also at the pageant was Miss Wheelchair America 1975, Diana Kendarian of New Jersey.

PAT KARL will go to Ohio in the fall to compete for the title of Miss Wheelchair America 1976.

Miss Karl received a BA degree in psychology from Oakland University in 1973 and will start this fall at Eastern Michigan University to work on a MA degree in guidance and counseling.

She has worked for over two years for Oakland County doing clerical work.

IN WHEELCHAIR sports for the last three years, Miss Karl has competed in javelin, discus and shot put. She has gone to regional meets and to a national competition where she placed third in discus.

She is one of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Karl. Besides her Madonna scholarship, she will receive a bicentennial medallion, a $400 cookware set and several gift certificates.

The first runner-up gets a two-year community college scholarship, and she and the second runner-up will receive merchandise and gift certificates.

The Livonia Jaycees awarded $50 gift certificates to the two who tied for accomplishments.

The pageant started in 1973 during the Michigan Wheelchair Games, and last year it became a separate event. This year the state Jaycee committee approved the pageant as its project.

First Sunday message:

'Child's death loss enough...don't add isolation'

By MARGARET MILLER

First Sunday is an organization for parents who have known the desolation of the death of a son or daughter.

With regular talk meetings and simple liturgical services, it helps them face their grief, understand their feelings of loneliness and helplessness, and grapple with the problems that may result.

But when it comes to helping those who live with death to keep life going on, First Sunday can't go it alone, its leaders say. That's the message several brought to a Madonna College lecture room.

HOSPITAL PERSONNEL, from surgeons to aides, should be sensitive to the needs of the dying person and his relatives, said the Rev. Russ Kohler, a priest at St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Detroit and one of the founders of the group.

So should clergymen and the friends of the stricken family, he said. And then the priest and several bereaved parents went on to point out that the community as a whole needs to understand that great loss should not mean isolation.

"What matters most are the little kindnesses," Rev. Kohler said. "Just being there is important."

FIRST SUNDAY, a panel of parents and clergymen told the group gathered at Madonna, was formed two years ago and now has two groups meeting, the newer in Mercy College of Detroit, 8200 W. Outer Drive, at 8:30 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

The audience included many employed in the medical profession as well as clergy and teachers.

"These people break the pattern of isolation by coming together," Rev. Kohler said. "They deal with grief, and share grief's problems, like what do you do when a surviving child starts taking on the personality of the dead one.

"But I have challenged this group to stay together, to go after the professional people whose work takes them into the most direct contact with those sustaining great loss."

ANOTHER FACET of the need for understanding was explained by James Reynolds, a Detroiter who helped found First Sunday after he and his wife, Mary Ellen, lost their small daughter in an automobile accident.

"My wife and I reacted differently to Tracy's death," Reynolds said.

"I had my work, but she was at home surrounded all day by all the visual reminders of our daughter. And it didn't help that we have six other children—they're all individuals."

Those of First Sunday have found, Reynolds went on, that "often the wife needs to talk about the lost child but the husband, not feeling the same need, doesn't want her to go to meetings because he says she'll just get all emotional again."

So for those unable to be a part of this organization, he added, there is a great need for more understanding on the part of the the public.

JIM AND MARY ELLEN Reynolds, whose daughter was hurt in a Maundy Thursday accident as she attended a Seder, joined with a number of other parents in telling of their experiences with professional people in the time of their great crises.

"Tracy had been improving," Mrs. Reynolds said, "and then she was worse, and the head nurse who told me about it was so matter-of-fact I could not believe it. I asked how she could be saying it that way and she said she was a trained professional."

Then there was Brian Zale, whose son was a crib death victim.

He said he and his wife were treated well because his father is a police officer and "he was the first one we called."

"But we read of a couple jailed after their baby died that way," he added. "They were held several months until a coroner insisted on exhuming the body and doing the autopsy again."

MARY GESCH, who lost one child and has watched her daughter, Deborah, through four years of operations to remove tumors, had stories that told both sides of the coin in the matter of the medical professio's attitude.

Her doctor, she felt, had been less than candid with her about Deborah's condition throughout the illness.

"I could not question what he said," she stated. "He went to school all those years." But several operations later, she added, "I told him I'd lost one and he'd have to level with me. He has, but it's too late."

But Mrs. Gesch also related a positive experience, she said she told the the head nurse at the hospital where Deborah was being treated she was planning to bring in her daughter's pet dog to cheer her up.

"She told me she couldn't hear me, and when we got up to the floor with the dog you should have seen the nurses scatter. There wasn't even one on the floor to see us."

Then she added: "There are loving people on that hospital staff. I've seen a couple crying because they love Deborah, and there's nothing wrong with that."

TWO OTHER MOTHERS on the panel were Kathy Wolson and Rosemary Bronsing. Mrs. Wolson said that after her 19-year-old son died of cardiac arrest while jogging, she took the other children in the family in for a cardiac checkup.

"Our youngest is a worry wart," she said, "and he showed it. Then the doctor said—in his hearing—that he really needed a psychiatrist.

"I wanted to punch him. I really did."

Mrs. Bronsing told of having to go to court to get the results of an autopsy performed after her nine-year-old son died, also of cardiac arrest.

"The doctor would not let me see the results," she said, "and that was a hell I would not put anyone through. I finally got the results, and it has given me some peace of mind."

REV. KOHLER and the Rev. James Myers, also a First Sunday leader and chaplain at Children's Hospital, had some words for clergymen who deal with families visited by death.

"There comes a time when a priest should keep his mouth shut and just be there," Rev. Kohler said. "We certainly should not be like the priest who suggested that a mother hadn't prayed enough.

"And often mentioning 'a little angel in heaven' is the wrong thing to say. The mother would far rather have a little devil in her arms."

Rev. Myers said hospital personnel should remember they are dealing with people, not cases, and help families understand the machinery of hospital care.

THE MOST SUCCINCT words on the role of the friend or acquaintance came from Jim Reynolds.

"The death of a child is loss enough," he said. "A person should not also lose other contacts.

"So be present. You don't have to worry about what to say. Nothing you can say can make the grieving parent feel better, I can assure you. But be there. Be supportive."

Mrs. Reynolds said the First Sunday groups, so named because a liturgy mass is held the first Sunday of each month, were organized primarily for parents who have lost a child, but have some members working out the grief over the death of a mate or a parent.

Members are not all Catholics, she added.

Information about membership is available through Mrs. Reynolds and Assumption Grotto Catholic Church, 13770 Gratiot, Detroit, or Rev. Kohler, St. Aloysious, 1234 Washington, Detroit.

The gathering of the Merrions

IT'S BEEN 10 YEARS since all four sons of Livonians Francis and Ruby Merrion have been together, and to celebrate the occasion, more than 40 other members of the Merrion clan joined in a reunion in the Rosedale Gardens Clubhouse.

Shown above are Mr. and Mrs. Merrion and the boys, Larry, 40, who brought his wife, Joanne, and three sons from Berkeley, Calif.; David, 38, who moved to Howell with his wife, Jean, and four children; Richard, 35, a resident of Indianapolis with his wife, Sandra, and family of four, and 25-year-old Chris, a drummer in a band headquartered in Atlanta.

At the right are Mrs. Rose King, Merrion's aunt and at 85 the oldest person present, and Richard's nine-month-old son, Robert, the youngest.

Larry, an architect, and David and Richard, both engineers, graduated from Bentley High School and Chris is a Franklin graduate. This is the seventh Merrion family reunion but, as Ruby Merrion put it, "the first when EVERYBODY was there." (Staff photos by Art Emanuel)
