Schools may seek semi-annual tax collection

The first steps are being taken for summer collection of school taxes to save residents of the Plymouth Community School District $160,000 a year in interest payments.

The school district has completed a study of the advantages of school taxes being collected in June—instead of December—by the City of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth Townships.

The board of education Monday accepted the concept and asked that it be taken before the Intragovernmental Committee for consideration.

TOM YACK, school board treasurer and the district's representative on the Intragovernmental Committee, had planned to ask the committee last night (Wednesday) to form a subcommittee to study the implications of collecting school taxes in June.

After a subcommittee studies the issues, Yack hopes the Intragovernmental Committee will make a favorable recommendation and then go back to the three governmental units and request formal action.

The school board is asking that school taxes be collected semi-annually—half in December and half in June. If this is done, said Yack, the necessity of the school district having to borrow money in the form of tax anticipation notes to meet expenses until taxes are collected could be avoided.

This fiscal year the school district had to borrow $5.6 million to operate until the December tax revenue came in, at an interest cost of $162,000.

During the past five years, reports Raymond Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, the school district has had to borrow $18 million at a cost of $537,480.

"Because the budget is increasing," he added, "the result is a need for larger borrowings at expected increases in the interest rates."

SCHOOL PROPERTY taxes, which now represent 80 per cent of all operating revenues, are collected totally in December to February each year—six months after the need for them begins.

Yack said that Dec. 15 of each year the district has already spent 45 per cent of its budget, yet it has collected only seven per cent of its revenue.

While local property tax revenues are received from December through February, payments of state aid (20 per cent of the budget) arrive in two periods: August to October, and February to April.

"I realize this request will involve expense for the muncipalities," Yack said, "but it won't cost as much as the $160,000 paid out each year in interest. Most of the added expense would fall on the townships who only collect taxes now in December. The city collects twice a year and the expense would involve it shifting the school tax and collecting it semi-annually."

HOEDEL REPORTED that the experience in the Troy School District when it went to summer tax collection shows that the escrow accounts for the vast majority of homes weren't increased or adjusted by the lending institutions when notification was given in advance of the change in collection timing.

Hoedel anticipated the school district won't have to borrow to meet expenses, and will thus save the interest expense, if taxes are collected semi-annually.

Of the 80 per cent of the budget which comes from local property tax, more than half is collected from the two townships with the City of Plymouth contributing 18 per cent. Canton Township contributes 33 per cent of the operating taxes and Plymouth Township contributes 45 per cent.

Of the six municipalities in the school district, Plymouth Township has the largest tax base—$215 million—followed by that portion of Canton within the Plymouth school district which has a tax base of $156 million.

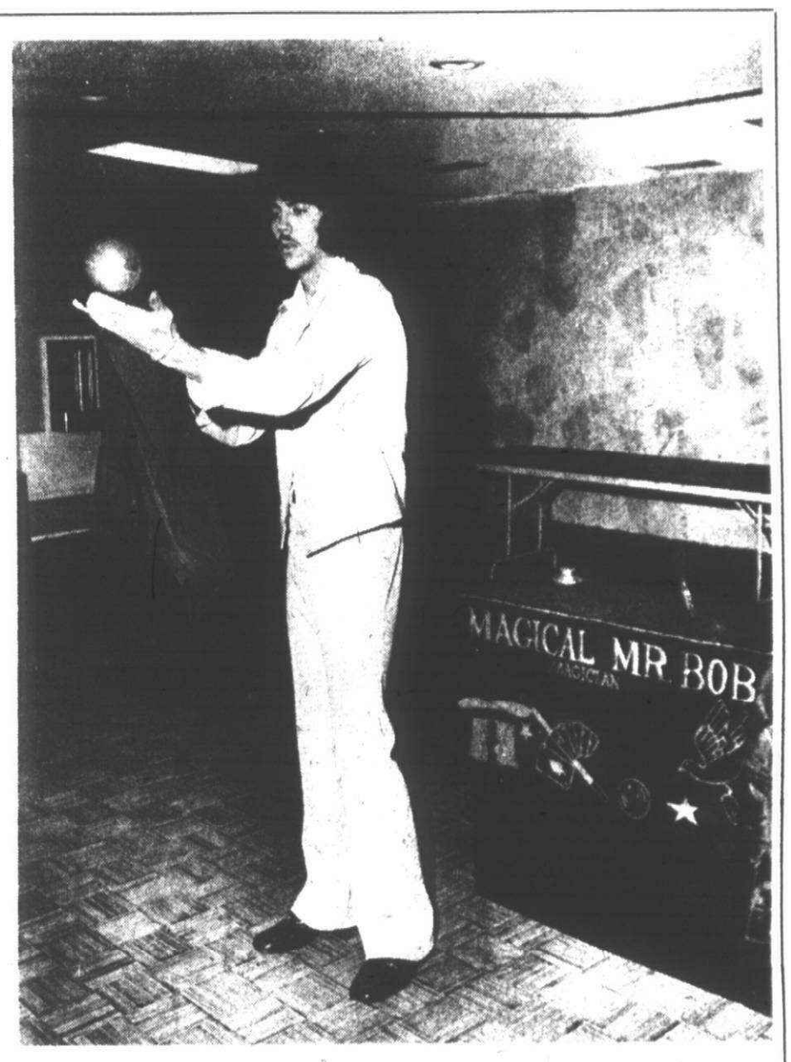
Tax bases of the other communities in the district are: City of Plymouth, $87 million; Salem Township, $10 million; Northville Township, almost $7 million; and Superior Township, $3.5 million.

In 1975, Plymouth Township produced $6.2 million in operating revenue for the school district, Canton $4.5 million, City of Plymouth, $2.5 million, Salem, $300,000, Northville Township, almost $200,000, and Superior Township, $102,000.

An analysis prepared by Hoedel shows the district's operating budget increasing from $10 million in 1971-72 to $17 million in 1975-76. During this same period, the revenue produced by local property taxes increased from $7.9 million to $13.8 million.

As a result, the annual borrowing in August to meet expenses has increased from $2 million five years ago to $5.6 million. Interest paid on these loans grew from $40,535 in '71-72 to $162,000 this year.

Mystery of magic



Deer Creek Apartments clubhouse was the scene for a Thanksgiving play and the mysteries of a magician. Seventy-five children from the Canton and Plymouth areas enjoyed a pantomime skit presented by Cub Pack 867 fom Westland's Patchen School. The "actors" included Jeff and Joe Potts of Plymouth, and Westland residents Roger and Joe Ash, Denny and Dewayne Covington, Chris French and Kevin Bookout. The play was under the direction of Cub Master Doug French assisted by his wife, Charlotte, a den mother. Magic tricks were offered by Magical Mr. Bob. The program, one of several activities offered at Deer Creek throughout the year, was arranged by Judy Gottlieb, socia. director for the apartments. A movie program, Christmas bazaar and the arrival of Santa Claus by helicopter, are programs planned for the December.(Staff photos by Maurie Walker)

Hearings to start in January

MLUP 95% complete

Final revisions to Canton's master land use plan Monday and Tuesday by a joint committee of board members and planning commissioners are paving the way for presentation of the plan early next year.

The plan, some six or seven months overdue, and still not finalized after 14 months of meetings, study, retreats and hard work, is still in attorney Burt Burgoyne's office for advance approval.

"What we're trying to do," explained supervisor Robert Greenstein, "is get pre-approval legally and technically for the plan. We have Dr. Robert Hotaling (Michigan State University professor of land use planning) and Burgoyne looking at it now before we present it to the public.

"We want to make absolutely sure in advance that it is technically and legally correct before we introduce it. That way if we should end up in court, we'll have two of the most knowledgeable people on our side."

THE PLAN, 95 per cent complete according to planning consultant Mike Manore, was expected to be unveiled late this summer, but a freak accident to Manore, set the schedule back "some several months."

Manore chopped of a toe with an axe late in July and was idled for more than two months. "It took us about three months to get going again. I guess it just goes to prove I'm an urban planner, not a woodsman."

The plan when finalized will include both a 50 page text and a map showing intended land uses. If approved, they will be followed by a complete zoning ordinance enforcing the use of the land.

"We have to give 30 days notice for a public hearing on the land use plan," explained Greenstein. "At that point we will ask for general and specific observations from the public and that input will be discussed by the planning commission.

"Then they can either table it for further discussion or adopt it. I'm hoping we can hold the hearing sometime in January.

According to the supervisor, few problem areas in the plan still exist. "We are having to look at a couple of spots that are residential, commercial and industrial. When we get those problem areas solved, we'll be done."

THE NEW LAND use plan is an out growth of an earlier plan presented to the public in September, 1974.

"Originally we started in 1972," said Manore. "We set up a preliminary type plan and at the public hearing before the planning commission last year, public sentiment was strongly against it.

"We went back to drawing board and began revisions which we are just about done with. There's been a tremendous amount of study put into this plan. The joint study meetings have generated a lot of thought.

"We've spent a lot of time going over every area in the township and there have been some significant changes made—particularly in the area agricultural-industrial zoning. I've been involved with a lot of master land use plans—but none has been studied so thoroughly as this one."

Manore said he hoped the hearing process would begin no later than early February. "Barring any unforseen problems, we should be ready at the start of the year."

According to Greenstein, the most significant changes in the new plan will be the amount of land dedicated to agricultural use and low density subdivisions.

HE SAID 27 per cent of the township will be zoned agricultural, while smaller amounts of land will be used for multiples, 60-foot lots, local and regional shopping, and highway commercial.

"It's a 20-year plan," said Greenstein. "We expect a revision after 10 years. Right now it calls for a total population in the township of 105,000 rather than 200,000 as called for in the earlier plan.

Although the plan allocates a greater amount of land for larger lots and less for multiples and smaller subdivision lots, Greenstein said he did not think the township was being priced out of the housing market.

"We offer something to everyone," said Greenstein. "I think its a very fair and open plan and it protects the township."

Hunt ban to take at least 6 months

By RICHARD GOLD

If the experience of Plymouth Township is a portent for the future, Cantonites can expect a long and confusing wait before finding out if hunting will be banned in section five of the township.

Plymouth Township is currently embroiled in a hassle with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in its attempt to get land west of Beck Road declared off-limits to hunters. That effort started more than eight months ago, and it appears the answers will not be in for several more months.

In Canton, more than 80 per cent of section five's residents, a one-square mile section bounded by Joy, Ridge, Warren, and Beck roads, petitioned the township board last month asking that section five be declared a no-hunting area.

Although a hunting ban was turned down in section five several years ago, the township board voted 6-1 to begin action on the hunting ban.

Clerk John Flodin was instructed to ask the Department of Natural Resources to schedule public hearings on the ban request.

Currently, 19½ of the 36 one-mile square sections in Canton are closed to hunting. All land east of Canton Center, the Centennial Education Park site, and land in the southern half of section six, a region bounded by Warren, Ridge, Napier roads, is off limits to hunters.

THE PROCEDURE to get hunting banned in township sections is a long and complicated one, with final jurisdiction belonging to the state Joint Administrative Rules Committee, a legislative body composed of three state senators and five representatives.

The procedure is outlined in Public Act 159 of 1967 and provides a series of steps for townships or unincorporated areas to follow.

Cities with homerule have the power to ban hunting by regulating the discharge of firearms within city limits.

Townships have no similar powers and must go through a procedure run by the DNR. It is a complicated process that involves the following steps.

- The township requests the DNR to schedule a hunting ban hearing.
- The DNR forms a committee called the Hunting Area Control Committee (HACC) composed of one representative from the county sheriff, the state police, the DNR and the township board.
- After the committee is formed, 15 days notice is given and a public hearing is scheduled.
- Information is gathered at the public hearing and the committee goes to the land site under question for personal observation.
- The information is digested and a recommendation is made at a second public hearing.
- If the recommendation remains unchanged, it is then forwarded to the township board, which may in turn approve it, reject it, or request that it be amended.
- The township board then forwards the recommendation (either amended or approved) to the DNR which then takes it to the attorney general to have the legal language studied.
- From there it goes to the Joint Adminstrative Rules Committee where it is either approved or rejected.
- The joint committee sends it back to the attorney general for final verification and it becomes law.
- The final step occurs when the township passes an identical ordinance.

"IF EVERYTHING goes perfect, the process can be handled in about six months," explained DNR conservation law executive Bruce Andrews. But it can easily be stalled at any of the steps and take much longer.

W-W may return for third bond attempt

By DENNY COFFMAN

The Wayne-Westland School District is faced with two possibilities—neither of them pleasant—in the wake of the narrow loss of one bond issue proposal and the landslide defeat of another.

"We'll be making some (budget) cuts," said Timothy Dyer, W-W school superintendent, minutes after the defeat of the two bonding proposals Monday.

But Dyer, and School Board President Thomas Barrett left the door open for consideration of another attempt to pass a bond issue for repairs, renovations, special education and vocational education facilities.

"We'll assess whether to ask the people again," Dyer told 100 disappointed election workers Monday in the board room of the Central Administration Building.

"I guess the tight economic times and uncertainty have got people concerned," he said.

"The closeness of the defeat of Proposal A means the voters are at least willing to give it a long, hard look," he said.

WE'LL ASSESS whether to ask the people again," said Dyer. "Our problems will continue to mount. We've had to send home students in the past (because of the disrepair of school buildings). Today (Monday) five of our boilers went out."

Proposal A, which would have provided the district with about $20 million for building repairs and special education and voc-ed facilities, was defeated by 89 votes. Proposal B, which would have provided about $5 million for the construction of physical education additions, including swimming pools in junior high schools, went down to a 4,353-2,161 defeat.

"The people have spoken loud and clear on the pool bond issue. I think that is an issue to forget about," said Dyer.

Barrett was visibly moved by the defeat of the two bond issues.

"We were so optimistic," he told election workers. "How often do you lose two in a row?"

Voters had turned down a $28-million package combining both proposals last June. By splitting the package into two proposals, the board reasoned, Proposal A would have a better chance of passage on its own merits, and it almost did.

"WE'VE GOT to do something," said Barrett. "We're talking about keeping our schools from falling apart. We've played 'patch-up and fix-up' as much as we can. The renovations and improvements must be made and in the least painful way. It cannot be put off much longer."

If the board and administration decide to make another try at passage of the bond issue, it would parallel similar attempts in 1966.

In that year, millage proposals were put to the voters three successive times, until one finally passed.

If the question is brought up again, it most likely would be on the June 1976 ballot, exactly 10 years after the district's last "triple try."

"We'll try to avoid closings," Dyer told the Observer & Eccentric Monday. He described the voter turnout as "decent."

BOTH DYER and Barrett thanked election workers, who alternately cheered and sighed as the election returns were posted on the wall of the board room Monday.

Only three precincts—Tonquish (31), Elliott (4) and Vandenberg (23) voted in favor of Proposal B.

Proposal A, on the other hand, passed in 13 precincts (out of a total of 32). The breakdown, by precinct, is as follows:

National pride shown in bicentennial essays

What Americans have to be thankful for was the theme of an essay contest recently completed at East Middle School of the Plymouth Community School District.

With thinking tuned to thankfulness for America, sixth, seventh and eighth graders put their pen and paper talents into competition.

The winners in the eighth grade were Scott Adler, Ann Choe and Debi Johnson. Seventh grade winner was Darcy Finner and sixth grade winners were Dough Clough, Dawn Drummond and Mary Beth Perrot.

Special commendation was given to Maria Campeau, Doug Dingeldey, Michelle Perrot and Robert Richards.

Eighth graders earning honorable mention were Cathy Campbell, Denise Dee, Pam Dugan, Diane Durkin, Nancy Grazal, Tracie Halley, Kelly Hartley, Lori Heinz, Guy Kananen, Margaret Kaziak, Tammy Mehmed, Paul Mooney, Leslie Ponder, Trina Pisarski, Judy Schumacher, Kevin Sockow, Julie Stanley, Terrie Stanley, Cindy Stevens and George Trudell.

Seventh grade honorable mentions were Brad Herman, Rhonda Johnson, Diane O'Dell, Laura Stevens and Kim Tramski.

Sixth grade honorable mentions were Julie Ahrens, Scott Bublis, Kevin Czapla, Barry Edison, Laura Esson, Terri Holton, Helen Klassen, Kurt Lienhard, Ken Penar, Scott Schwab, Brian Seeman, Alan Sigrist, Kathy Stevenson, Tricia Thomas and Debbie Teele.

ANN CHOE wrote, in part:

"First of all, this is such a free country. People from all over the world come to this country to find peace and freedom. Different from most countries in the world, people, not the government, have the most power.

"I, as a Korean, was really suprised to see American people making the President resign from his office. I know this is impossible in most other countries.

"Secondly, this is a country of chances. I mean, you can climb as high as you can no matter what you are' (Oriental, European, etc.). There are thousands of books you can read if you want to. I think we are just too fortunate compared to other people in other countries....I love this country because this is my home where I can rest and stretch my hopes and dreams as far as they can go."

SCOTT ADLER used a poetic essay to express his thoughts.

Among the lines he penned were: "...Freedom is the first that I declare, And for those that are without it, it just isn't fair.

"I'm thankful for the Freedom of Speech And the educators that are paid to teach.

"I'm not thankful for the polluted air. To me it matters, but others don't care. This land is made up of 50 states, Yet one flag unites us at any rate...

"The economy is bad, I'll admit. But it'll shape up from its hopeless pit....The world is like a huge book. Some play golf while others cook. But from Chapter One to the very last, We're the best nation—Both present and past!"

DEBI JOHNSON asks the question what makes America beautiful?

She suggests the answers might lie in education, buildings, medicine and technological breakthroughs, the republic form of government. And then she adds:

"Once again, this doesn't make all of America's beauty. America's beauty isn't each of these things separately. Put them together, though, and you will start to put part of America together. You will also find something more.

"Amercia is another word for people. People are America, now and 20 years from now. People made America, brought it where it is now. People are what I am thankful for in America today....

"The American people are always willing to help neighboring countries. Below is a cinquain on what I mean:

"America, country, land, helper, giver, developer, proudly bound, togetherness, People."

DARCY FINNER wrote: "The best think I like about America is that we have free speech. We can say what we want without being thrown in jail. We can leave our country any time we want. We have more freedom than any other country.

"The standard of living is higher. This country makes it possible for us to have many luxuries such as washers, dryers, dishwashers, color TVs, and they are priced so most people can afford them.

"It makes me proud that our country was the first to make it to the moon. As far as technology is concerned, we are superior with the best fighter jets, missiles and ships. Other countries are afraid to drop bombs on us, so I feel secure and safe living here.

"We are lucky that this land is so rich in natural resources. We produce so much wheat and corn and vegetables and fruits that we have enough left over to feed other countries."

DOUG CLOUGH writes he is thankful for the freedoms given him by our forefathers.

DARCY FINNER

DEBI JOHNSON

SCOTT ADLER

"Men like George Washington, who was the first commanding general of the First Continental Army; Paul Revere, who rode his horse to tell everybody the Redcoats were coming either by land or by sea; and Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence helped make America free. Patrick Henry and others also did their part by organizing a Congress; that made America free too.

"Now we can do anything we want except break the law. We have freedom of the press, the right to trial by jury, the freedom of choosing the religion we want, the right to leave the country, the right to protect ourselves, the right to try for any job we want, and the right to vote for those we want for leaders....

"We have the latest modern equipment like atomic bombs, heart pacers, robots, spaceships, computers, communication systems and others. We also have good schools and education...."

MARY BETH PERROT writes:

"I'm thankful I go to school to learn to be smart. Thanks to the military strength, I know I am safe from enemies.

"Communication is handy too; we should be thankful for it. I am thankful that we have plenty of clothes, entertainment, and especially food.

"What I am most thankful for, though, is modern medical care. If we didn't have it, people would be dying or dead from serious diseases, injuries, or serious sicknesses like a tumor or a stroke. I am thankful for the trained and experienced medical people....Our nation stuck it out through thick and thin. Now here we are, a beautiful and strong nation almost 200 years old."

DAWN DRUMMOND is thankful that "I live in a free country and that we are at peace with other countries. I am thankful that all the killing has been stopped and that most of the men have come home.

"I am thankful that the government is finally doing something about the ecology problem. Programs are being organized to control endangered wildlife, air, water and land pollution; to develop new ways of disposing of trash; and to conserve our natural resources.

"I am thankful that we have new methods of farming so that we have a surplus of food. This helps to prevent starvation in other countries, because we can send over the surplus to the country in need...."

MARIA CAMPEAU received a special commendation for her poetic essay, which reads in part:

"We have right now all we really need. While others have to beg and plead. While others plead for what they get, We hoard money acting rich. You'll feel better if you show, How thankful you are; don't say no. If you have enough to be thankful for, it wouldn't hurt to give some more. But if you're a hog, Go ahead and live in fog.

"Put yourself in their place. It would be nice to have a chubby face, Instead of seeing their bones. They'd have good and clothes of their very own. So don't be sad, don't be rich. Just try to give a little bit....

"Time goes slow—time goes fast. Don't close you eyes, watch everything pass. I love my family; pets and friends. I'm thankful this world is not at an end. Our state is much more than a mitt. Our state is a beautiful, beautiful gift."

He subsequently studied with Arnold Schultz, and later became one of the last pupils of Ernst von Dohnanyi.

He has appeared as soloist with several American orchestras and throughout the United States on television and radio as well as recitals.

Internationally, Pope has given recitals and appeared on television throughout Central America and Mexico. In 1968 he gave recitals in Asia and has had three concert tours in England and the continent.

ALTHOUGH PLANS for "Amahl and the Night Visitors" at this concert did not materialize, the orchestra will perform the Introduction, March, and Shepherd's dance.

The complete Menotti opera was presented in Plymouth on Dec. 20, 1959 by the NBC Company and the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Wayne Dunlap. A set of three instrumental excerpts from the opera was presented by the symphony at the Christmas concert in 1966.

The one-act opera was commissioned especially for television by the National Broadcasting Company and was first performed on Dec. 24, 1951. Since that time it has become a staple feature of the Christmas season in its annual presentation.

Concerning the commission and medium requirement, Menotti has said: "I am often asked how I went about writing an opera for television, and what are the specific problems that I had to face in planning a work for such a medium.

"I must confess that in writing 'Amahl and the Night Visitors' I hardly thought of television at all. As a matter of fact, all my operas are originally conceived for an ideal stage which has no equivalent in reality, and believe such is the case with most dramatic authors...."

GUEST CONDUCTOR Emil Raab will open the program with Chadwick's Jubilee and Noel from Symphonic Sketches. Following the "Amahl" and Mozart Motette, will be Christmas--A Medley of Carols arranged by Arthur Harris.

Members of the Plymouth Symphony League will serve coffee to the audience and orchestra members in the lobby during intermission.

Buckaroo Holiday, Corral Nocturne, Saturday Night Waltz and Hoedown from Copland's "Rodeo" and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" continue the theme of performing works by American composers during the bicentennial celebration.

The toe-tapping fun of the "Rodeo" dances and the drama of "Rhapsody in Blue," performed by an international soloist, complete the Christmas package.

Students K-12 will be admitted free and baby sitting is provided by a Girl Scout troop for youngsters over three years of age. Tickets are available at the door, $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for senior citizens.

In keeping with the Shaker theme of the Symphony's specially commissioned work to be performed in March, the Symphony Society will have a display and sale of Shaker items in the lobby.

This youngster gets some help from mom as she goes through the children's buffet line of the Toyland Brunch. (Staff photos).

Daddy, under the guise of showing his daughter the toys, takes a dreamy look at a train set which was part of a toy display Sunday in the Mayflower Meeting House.

Toyland Brunch a child's dream

Planned entirely for the enjoyment of youngsters, the Toyland Brunch in the Mayflower Meeting House had to be extended for two hours to accommodate the crowds.

Kirk Lorenz conceived the idea of the brunch after watching his children, Eric, 10, and Heather, 5, react to the annual pre-Christmas toy hustle on television. The children were convinced they needed just about everything they saw.

Lorenz decided if they had the opportunity to handle and play with the toys and games, they would be more selective. The Kmart store on Sheldon supplied the toys, Muriel's Doll House brought dolls, the Book Nook in Forest Place Mall offered a selection of books. Jerry's Bicycle Shop arranged a wide choice of tricycles and two-wheelers.

THE BRUNCH was completely kid-oriented. Their buffet was spread on tables of a convenient height—all finger foods and paper plates.

There were quartered oranges, wingdings, small hotdogs in blankets, and little doughnuts. The children consumed 2,300 doughnuts. Their punch flowed from a fountain and there was no limit on the number of refills.

Once they were convinced that it was perfectly all right to handle and play with anything they wanted to, it was like a dream come true.

And they were very careful.

Lorenz said they even wiped their feet when they climbed out of the sand box.

Parents and grandparents had their own brunch buffet and no worries about chaperoning their offspring.

The Toyland Brunch opened at 9 a.m. and was supposed to close at 3 p.m. When 600 guests arrived, the party was extended to 5 p.m.

Jerry Mahoney bobs his head rapidly trying to gain the attention of this infant who hasn't had a chance yet to select Christmas gifts.

Station may take Yule mail

A contract station equipped to handle all postal services within the Canton limits may save some township residents a trip to Plymouth, Wayne, Belleville or Ypsilanti.

But Cantonites must still make those trips during the holiday season as the station won't be open as early as originally hoped.

Joseph J. Loukotka, Detroit Deistrict director of the U.S. Postal Service's customer service division, had hoped earlier to establish the contract station in time for the Christmas mailing rush.

But a decision this past week to reject bids received because they were too high have smashed those hopes of opening for the Christmas deluge.

Postal authorities had received bids for the station from three Canton organizations, Loukotka said, but all the bids were higher than anticipated.

Detroit District authorities have recommended rejection of the three bids and will probably let bids out again as soon as approval is received to do so from the regional postal office in Chicago.

The bidder to whom the contract is awarded could probably begin offering postal services within two or three days of the recommendation's approval, says Loukotka.

Located in a drug store or other commercial establishment, the station would offer all customer services of a traditional post office. It will be supplied with stamps and other equipment by U.S. Postal Services and will receive a fee for services rendered.

The decision to establish a contract station in the township supplements another postal decision, christening Canton with its own zip code and mailing address.

Hunting hearing requested

"The thing to note is that the final say lies with the Joint Rules Committee. The DNR is just the secretary and the both the township and the HACC are only advisory bodies—they cannot enact the ban."

Andrews said the only way a ban can be imposed is if it can be proven there is a "bona fide safety problem."

"These bans are based on safety—not trespassing problems, litter problems, or to protect animals. A lot of people want to use the law to their own advantage. They build a house on a lake and they tame the wildlife and then they want to protect it from hunters—even if there is no safety problem. We aren't interested in that.

"We at the DNR have to sort of play the devil's advocate. These people don't realize that when you close off the land, you close it off to the owners as well as the public. They don't realize that when you when close off more land, you compress hunters into smaller and smaller areas and it becomes more dangerous for them.

"Some ask why don't they go up north and hunt. There's a lot of land up there. Well the hunters may not have the time or money to do that."

Andrews added that often other problems are mistaken for hunting problems. "The question is can hunting be safely pursued as provided by law. There are other ways to prevent people from hunting on your land through prosecuting them for trespassing or using the Safety Zone Act.

SUPERVISOR ROBERT Greenstein, who cast the only vote against the public hearing request, feared residents could jeopardize the area's five-acre zoning if the hunting ban were imposed.

"We're trying desperately to stave of that kind of development west of Beck," explained Greenstein—"but I've been informed a hunting ban could put 60-foot lots or multiples out there."

Andrews said he had never faced such a situation. "That's like putting the the cart before the horse. Hunting bans follow when an area becomes residential in nature, they are not used to make an area residential."

An alternative to the hunting ban considered by the board was to investigate the possibility of having section five deemed a state wildlife sanctuary. But DNR officials have responded that "proof must exist that a wildlife sanctuary would benefit rare or endangered wildlife. There is no need to protect rabbits, deer, pheasants, squirrels and other upland game from hunters with sanctuaries," they say.

DNR representatives said that large tracts of land, usually marsh-like are the best candidates for sanctuary status.

Currently, the township is awaiting a response to Flodin's letter from the DNR. Once that is received, the long process of scheduling the hearings and acting on the request will begin.

The legal tail of Rose of Aberlone

Past & Present

A cow, named Rose 2nd of Aberlone, gave rise to a legal controversy in the 1880s which went as high as the Supreme Court of Michigan.

Professors at the Harvard Law School still cite the court's decision as the best ruling ever made for teaching a certain point of law to their students.

A law professor at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) was so tickled by the litigation that he made it the subject of a lengthy peom.

THE CASE IS of interest to Plymouthites because the plaintiff was a prominent local resident, and the defendant's name is still a household word in some circles.

The plaintiff, T.C. Sherwood, was president of the Plymouth National Bank from 1884 to 1889. He also was president of the Plymouth Fair Association and a well-known local farmer. He was wearing his farmer's hat the day he became involved in the matter of Rose of Aberlone.

The defendants, Hiram Walker and Sons, included the founder of the distillery and his three sons of Walkerville, Ontario. Walker was a native of Massachusetts who settled in Canada, on the east side of the Detroit River, in 1858. Walkerville, the town that grew up about the distillery founded by Walker, is now part of the City of Windsor.

THE DISPUTE began in the spring of 1886, when Sherwood visited Walkerville to buy livestock.

The Walkers, in addition to making spirits, were importers and breeders of polled Angus cattle. Sherwood found nothing at the Walkerville farm to suit him. The Walkers suggested that he visit their Greenfield farm in Wayne County, where they had a few head, but indicated that the cows there were barren and wouldn't breed.

Sherwood saw the cattle at Greenfield, about 15 miles from Plymouth, on May 5. He selected Rose 2nd of Aberlone, and it was agreed that he would play $80 for the cow. Sherwood asked that the terms be put in writing. He received a letter of confirmation, dated May 15, containing instructions to pick up the cow and to leave his check with George Graham at the Greenfield farm.

Sherwood went to pick up the cow on May 21, but was told by Graham that the Walkers had changed their minds. Graham refused to give up the cow. Sherwood tendered his $80 to the Walkers who also refused to accept it, or to make delivery. Sherwood then instituted the law action.

THE CASE commenced in the justice's court where judgment was rendered in favor of Sherwood, who secured possession of the cow.

The Walkers appealed to the Wayne County Circuit Court, which also found for Sherwood. The Walkers then took the case to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Sherwood's claim was that title had passed. The Walkers claimed that, at the time of the alleged sale, it was believed by both Sherwood and themselves that the cow was barren and wouldn't breed; that the cow cost $80, and, if not barren, would be worth from $750 to $1,000; that after the date of the letter, and the order to Graham, the Walker's were informed that the cow was with calf, and therefore they instructed Graham not to deliver her to Sherwood. On May 20, they said, they telegraphed Sherwood that Graham thought the cow was with calf and that they wouldn't sell her.

Judge Morse wrote the Supreme Court's opinion in 1887. Here are a few excerpts from his decision.

"A party who has given an apparent consent to a contract of sale may refuse to execute it, or he may avoid it after it has been completed, if the assent was founded, or the contract made, upon the mistake of a material fact,—such as the subject matter of the sale, the price, or some collateral fact materially inducing the agreement; and this can be done when the mistake is mutual...If the thing actually delivered or received is different in substance from the thing bargained for and intended to be sold, then there is no contract...If the cow was a breeder, she was worth at least $750; if barren she was worth not over $80. The parties wouldn't have made the contract of sale except under the understanding and belief that she was incapable of breeding, and of no use as a cow...She wasn't in fact the animal, or the kind of animal, the defendants intended to sell or the plaintiff to buy...The thing sold and bought had in fact no existence. She was sold as a beef creature would be sold; she is in fact a breeding cow, and a valuable one."

ONE OF THE four judges dissented, but two of his colleagues concurred with Judge Morse, thereby reversing the decisions of the lower courts and finding for the Walkers.

The case of Sherwood vs. Walker became "the single most loved law case" at Harvard. John P. Dawson, a native of Detroit and professor at Harvard Law School since 1956, has made use of it in his contract classes for many years.

Another professor, Brainerd Currie, wrote a poem, "Aberlone, Rose of," when he taught law at UCLA in 1950. In it he describes banker Sherwood as "He twirled his mustache and his bill of sale,
And the words he uttered 'urned Walker pale;
"I am come to claim such as is mine own--
To wit, Rose Second of Aberlone!"
to which Currie has Walker respond.
"I said I was selling, but now I ain't--
For Rose is, mirabile dictu, enceinte.
You bought but a leathern bag of bone.
Not Rose the Second of Aberlone."

So Rose of Aberlone went back to the Walkers in 1887. Two years later, T.C. Sherwood, who lost Rose, won a new job; he was appointed the first Commissioner of Banking in the State of Michigan.

I thank Bruce Richard and Roy Fisher for calling to my attention this incident in the history of Plymouth.

Denny Regal gets 'dream' business

Long before he graduated from Plymouth High School in 1969, Denny Regal dreamed of the day when he would be a hair stylist and have his own business in a nice, quiet neighborhood.

That dream was realized recently when he officially opened "Denny Regal's Hair People" in a new shopping mall at Seven Mile and Merriman in Livonia.

Seated in one of the easy chairs in the stylish shop, he told of his last days in high school when his studies no longer heald a great interest for him and his eye was on the hair styling business.

AFTER GRADUATION, he entered Detroit Barber College and completed a 2,000 hour course. He is still going to school to keep up with trends and constant changes in styling.

"As a young man going to school, I always felt that the barbers were going about hair cutting the wrong way. I felt there was a better way for the younger generation. With my own shop I am finding that true."

In the short time he has been in business he first opened on Plymputh Road Shop in Redford before coming to Livonia, Denny has seen many changes in hair styling.

"The women are now wearing their hair a bit shorter and they are getting away from the shag and layer styling. They are moving into a trend where smoothness is the main object," he said," and I think it will continue in that direction."

As far as the men are concerned, they are moving toward a moderately shorter style, with some layer cutting.

"IT ALL comes under waht we call 'precision cutting" he said, " and this is becoming more and more popular."

This styling is a far cry from the old time barber and beauty shops, both in service and in price.

"We try to spend about an hour with each customer." Denny explained, "and the cost runs from $12 to $15 depending on the condition of the hair. If it has been neglected, it is only natural that the cost will be greater."

U.S. invades Canada

By PROF. ROBERT E. BROWN

The big news in November 1775, was an American invasion of Canada. Having failed to win French-Canadian support for the American cause through persuasion, Congress had decided in October that Canada must be taken to prevent British use of the colony as a base of operations.

In particular, Americans desired to secure the Hudson River-Lake George-Lake Champlain water route between Albany and Montreal.

The invasion was to be two-pronged. General Richard Montgomery would advance by way of the water route to Montreal, while General Benedict Arnold would march through Maine to Quebec.

Montgomery entered Montreal on Nov. 12, then moved on toward a junction with Arnold. At this point, Americans had high hopes of a quick conquest of Canada.

MEANWHILE, Washington and Howe warity eyed each other at Boston, and Gov. Dunmore continued his naval depredations in Virginia rivers and coastal areas.

Dunmore also made an unsuccessful attempt to prevent a part of Patrick Henry's army at Williamsburg from crossing the James River and posing a threat to Norfolk.

Dunmore did win a skirmish against Virginia militiamen and used his victory to issue what came to be known as "Dunmore's Emancipation Proclamation" freeing all slaves and indentured servants who would fight on the King's side.

Dunmore gained the title "King of the Blacks," and his regiment of black soldiers became "Lord Dunmore's Ethiopian Regiment."

ON THE civilian front, British authority continued to evaporate as Congress advised New Hampshire and South Carolina to set up quasi-independent governments.

This trend was recognized by George III, who allowed all colonial officials to abandon their posts if threatened with loss of life or property.

Gov. Tryon in New York speculated that repeal of Parliamentary taxation might bring peace. Otherwise, he said, the sword was drawn and the sword must settle the issue.

Tryon made the unrealistic prediction that 5,000 troops could restore British authority in New York.

From Massachusetts came the threat of a separate declaration of independence unless Congress took action. James Warren wanted to stop petitions to Britain and declare independence, saying that the sentiment for a complete break was universal in the Bay Colony.

JOHN ADAMS assured Warren that the colonies had been independent since Lexington and Concord. But John Winthrop feared that unless Congress acted, Massachusetts would go ahead with its own declaration.

Pierce plans Sunday party

Edward Pierce MD, Democratic candidate for the 2nd District congressional seat, will hold a fund-raising party 3-7 p.m. Sunday, featuring Iris Bell, pianist and entertainer.

The event will be in the Ann Arbor Inn, 100 S. Fourth, corner of Huron, Ann Arbor.

Tickets are $10 each and available at the candidate's headquarters, 201 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor, or at the door.

Iris Bell recently entertained at Mr. Kelley's in Chicago.

Pierce announced his candidacy in Livonia last month and hopes to win the Democratic nomination next August. The congressional seat is now held by U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) who last week announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

A spokesman for Pierce said that some of Ann Arbor's best known gourmet chefs will provide hot hors D'ouvres for the cocktail concert.

Our Schools Today

This column is written for the Observer & Eccentric's readers by Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations of the Plymouth Community School District.

"It's time to clean up now," says the third grader in a soft but firm voice to the little boy who is solving multiplication problems with number blocks. At learning centers around the room 30 children, age six to nine, put away their reading books, journals, math bapers, and projects.

Because it is a half-hour before lunch, they all sit down together to report on the morning's activities to the teacher and each other. Perhaps there will be time for a story or poem.

THIS IS A scene you might see in a child-centered or "open" classroom. What the children do and learn there isn't new, but the structure has been modified to make individualization easier.

Books, worksheets, cards, tapes, and study tools in most classrooms today are similar; the differences are the arrangement of time and furniture. The structure of a child-centered classroom is, if anything, more sharply defined.

"Learning centers" made up of chairs at a table, a group of desks, or a soft rug with bookcases, include materials needed for a specific learning activity. A sign may identify the purpose of each area.

In a child-centered classroom certain times are set aside for planning, sharing, and work th whole group does together. Other blocks of time can be organized by each student for his or her individual work in basic skills or special projects.

Meticulous records are kept of progress, with continual assistance and checking by the teacher. Sometimes a child works along, other times with students who are at the same iesson, who can help or who need help.

IN PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY School District there are many kinds of elementary classrooms. Most schools have a variety of teaching styles within the building.

In Smith Elementary School second grade teachers Isabel Lutz and Alice Chrenko have combined their rooms to develop a team approach to the child-centered integrated day. In their spacious double-room are centers for reading, language arts, math, spelling, journal, art, music, cooking, woodshop, and special interests.

"Teaming will help bring out our individual strengths and provide more group activities," they say. "Therefore a greater number of ideas can be pooled, not only between teachers but of children learning from children."

In their enthusiasm the two teachers have visited the homes of each of their students and have invited the parents twice into their classroom.

Children from first, second, and third grade levels work together in Judy Ireson's class at Miller Elementary School. Because nearly half the children are in their second year in her class, they are adept at organizing their time and can assist the younger students. Each child can progress in every area at his or her own rate, learning each concept thoroughly, but not being held back by slower learners.

An advantage of open classrooms is the encouragement of initiative, responsibility, and enthusiasm for learning. However, with a skilled teacher, these same virtues also develop in other settings.

Learning comes in many shapes and styles. This is just the briefest of overviews and cannot begin to describe all approaches nor details. In all classrooms, whether they be open or traditional, careful structure, communication with parents, and caring for the individual child can result in effective education.

Part of the wall has been knocked out to combine two classrooms with work areas divided according to subject matter.

The Stroller...

Bring back putz

By W. W. EDGAR

As the yuletide season approaches each year, The Stroller suffers pangs of regret that one of the most fascinating of all Christmas customs has been side-tracked and pushed to the abyss of forgotten things.

This is the old Moravian custom of building what they called a putz in their churches and in many cases in their homes to display the Christmas tree and the Nativity scene. The putz is a platform on which the tree is placed and folks worked for hours on end to outdo each other in portraying the scene and the spirit of the season.

That's why, at this season in early December, The Stroller gets a feeling of homesickness and yearns for another trip through the foothills of the mountains and a visit to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, where the scene is best portrayed.

When The Stroller was a young lad, the city of Bethlehem was the center of attention, not only because it was the home of the Bethlehem Steel Company, but because it boasted one of the oldest Moravian settlements in the country. And at Christmas it was a joy to visit.

NO SOONER had the last month appeared on the calendar than everyone turned to the task of getting ready for Christmas--a day they deemed the greatest of all holidays.

The steel company erected a huge star atop old South Mountain and at night this star of Bethlehem vould be seen for miles. Meanwhile the Moravians prepared the official putz in the basement of the church, hard by the banks of the Lehigh River.

This putz was no ordinary job. It was a masterpiece and required most of the floor space in the basement. When it was finished people came from miles to see it.

This putz was a replica of the Holy Lands, the mountains, streams and all the little towns along the way to Bethlehem. Off in one corner was the Christ child, laying in the manger with Mary at his side. Over the hills the star of Bethlehem was shining and the three Wise Men, sighting it, were following it to pay a visit to the Christ child.

This was the background of the putz. But along the way the three Wise Men were to travel were such things as small water falls, oxen and sheep roaming in the fields—and all this in over-all scene. It was as close to the Holy Lands as could be portrayed.

The putz custom wasn't confined to the basement of the Moravian church. Most of the townspeople erected a putz in their living rooms and the custom grew in interest to the point where prizes were offered for the best displays.

THE STROLLER well remembers one of the prize winners. It was different and a thing of beauty.

The chap who built it invaded the neighbroing woods and cut off the top of a sassafras tree instead of taking the usual evergreen. After getting it home he wired the branches and the trunk, then covered the sticky surface with cotton.

Underneath he placed several mirrors, then a few pillows to give the effect of mountains and covered the entire area with white sheets, leaving the mirrors to stand out as lakes. Over the sheets and the tree he sprayed synthetic snow and used blue bulbs for tree lights. You can imagine the beauty of such a setting when the lights were turned on.

To make the setting all the more colorful, this chap also placed candelabras in each window from the basement to the attic. When the shades were drawn the lights stood out for long distances to let folks know that the putz was on display.

It's too bad this custom is fading away for it was one of the most fascinating of all Christmas displays.

And if The Stroller were asked what he wanted for Christmas he could think of nothing better than the return of the old Moravian custom of the Christmas putz.

Jail improvements: too costly?

Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas said a circuit court order aimed at improving Wayne County Jail conditions will throw the already strained budget out of kilter by another $2.5 million.

A ruling by a three-judge panel comes at a time when county commissioners are scraping up funds to build a new jail, Mrs. Dumas said. She said the court order "compounds the problem" and makes it harder than ever to fund a new jail.

If the county loses an appeal, Mrs. Dumas said, she will "propose one of two alternatives: either a reduction of the circuit court by that amount ($2.5 million) or an across-the-board wage and salary cut of 10 per cent for all county and court employes."

A PANEL OF judges Victor Baum, John O'Hair and Thomas J. Brennan ordered Sheriff William Lucas to reduce the jail population to 720. The previous limit was 799. Current jail population is about 950 and is expected to rise to 1,200 soon.

The judges ordered jail officials to provide psychiatric care for jail inmates at least 40 hours a week. But the same order prohibited psychiatrists who treat prisoners from determining whether those prisoners are fit to stand trial.

Combining those tasks, the judges said, would put the psychiatrist in a conflict of interest situation, violating the physician-patient relationship.

The court order also requires jail officials to provide outdoor recreation 12 months of the year.

MRS. DUMAS CRITICIZED a portion of the order as exceeding judicial sense in two other ways.

First, the court told the sheriff to find "suitable, temporary detention space outside the present county jail facilities when overcrowding impends."

Mrs. Dumas said Wayne County attempted to do that in the past but was turned down by other counties. She said neither the court nor Wayne County officials can force other counties to provide space for Wayne prisoners.

Second, the court asked the sheriff to consider deputizing police chiefs and officers "for the purpose of having such deputies discharge the sheriff's responsibility to take into custody any prisoner lawfully remanded to him."

Mrs. Dumas said the sheriff cannot force anyone to accept deputization, and even if he could, it would be an improper imposition on local authorities.

Workers are needed in agricultural industry

About 7,000 jobs open each year in Michigan's agricultural industry and the supply of qualified workers comes nowhere near meeting the demand.

This is shown in a research project conducted by the Agriculture and Natural Resources Education Institute (ANREI) at Michigan State University and the MSU College of Education.

As a result, Director C. H. Wamhoff and other ANREI specialists are developing ideas and materials that would help increase the number of qualified applicants in the agricultural job market.

The state is being urged to develop more, and a greater variety of, teaching programs at the high school level. ANREI and College of Education experts are developing new and improved instructional programs for existing teaching facilities, based on industry skill needs.

"By improving and intensifying educational programs at the high school, university short course and industry levels, we hope to eliminate the discrepancies between job market demand and applicant skills," Wamhoff said.

"Most of the Michigan vo-ag programs prepare students for jobs in agricultural production," he said, "but there aren't even enough graduates in this area to fill the 3,600 yearly job openings at the farm level."

Other segments of the agricultural industry that have an annual need for skilled and semi-skilled workers include:

Ornamental horticulture, 1,800 openings per year;

Agricultural mechanics, 500 openings per year;

Supply and service industries (such as feed, seed and fertilizer distributors), 340 openings per year; and

Food products and processing industry, 400 openings per year.

Nursing home closes doors

The Michigan Department of Public Health today reported the voluntary closing in October of a 62-bed nursing home in Livonia.

Citing major physical plant deficiencies, the department last April had moved to deny the license of Ardmore Acres, 19810 Farmington Road, Livonia.

The facility had continued to operate pending resolution of an appeal which it had filed. The facility, however, withdrew the appeal and voluntarily closed its doors Oct. 17.

Frederick A. Traill, chief of the division of health facility standards and licensing, said that during October the department issued annual renewal licenses to 28 nursing homes, seven homes for the aged and six hospitals.

A list of classes for the related instruction program is available from the program coordinator. The coordinator will also meet with any student in the program who needs course advisement.

Classes for the Winter term will begin Jan. 6. Tuition for residents will be $11.50 per credit hour; for non-residents, $22.50 per credit hour and for out of state students, $33.50 per credit hour.

Construction: General gloom, a few strengths

Usually, construction is a leader during an economic recovery. But it won't happen in 1976, according to a pessimistic Arthur Pulte, president of his own construction company and of the Associated General Contractors in metropolitan Detroit.

Inflation, uncertain recovery in the auto industry, slowdowns in school and public works projects and past overbuilding of offices were blamed for the gloomy outlook.

Pulte painted the darkest picture of the new year's economy of a panel of five speakers before the Economic Club of Detroit.

BUT THERE WERE a few bright spots:

"There is a trend toward lower interest rates," Pulte said.

"A large number of major construction projects in the metropolitan Detroit area are still in the process of completion. Renaissance Center, Prudential Town Center, Ford Fairlane, the Detroit medical complex and others could cause additional satellite construction.

"The discontinuance of utility projects (electric, gas telephone) is only temporary and eventually must go ahead. Hopefully this will be in 1976.

"Some construction material prices are levelling off, and a few have actually come down." There the bright spots faded.

HERE WAS Pulte's analysis of construction prospects by segment of the economy:

•Residential construction—"on its knees. . .the hardest hit of all." Wayne, Oakland and Macomb communities issued 24,000 building permits in 1972, then 22,000 in '73, just 13,500 the following year and 8,544 this year (all figures are for the first nine months of each year). The second half of '76 could bring improvement if money loosens up.

•Business construction—"no great increase" in '76 for industrial plants, retail stores and utilities. Offices are overbuilt. Utilities would go ahead with their projects if they can come up with the funds.

•Institutional—"a flourishing program of hospital projects" began in 1975 and will carry over into '76. School enrollments are falling, and voters in '75 said no to 90 per cent of school bond proposals even where they were needed. Overall, this segment will be down five per cent in '76.

•Public works—"1976 is not promising." The state highway construction budget is down $35 million or 12.5 per cent in 1976 from '75. Environmental protection funds, impounded in '74 by President Nixon, have been freed for "one of the few bright spots." Mass transit funds are being increased at the federal and state levels and could help construction if they are used on rapid transit systems instead of buses.

Standard jury introductions clarify technical language

New instructions on the state's sexual conduct laws are included in a set of standard jury instructions published recently by the State Bar of Michigan.

The instructions are to be used in criminal cases by prosecuting attorneys, defense counsels and judges to simplify technical language for jurors.

Although most other instructions in the new 1,000 page volume are streamlined versions of more traditional instructions, those on sexual conduct laws are new material designed to set precedent and end confusion among jury members.

The pattern instructions are expected to reduce error, expedite dockets, bring together traditional piecemeal instructions, increase accuracy of language and provide a new definitive group of instructions for jurors on points of law. The increased accuracy of language may reduce the number of appeals and overturned verdicts because of confusion and errors in jury instructions, reports Judge Donald L. Reisig, chairman of the bar's committee on standard criminal jury instructions.

Until now, instructions to the jury on key points of evidence and law which it must weigh have been given in technical language. The proposed instructions simplify both the format of jury decision and legal and factual issues. The result could be a significant saving to taxpayers and defendants alike, the committee says.

The committee and its consultants concentrated upon simplifying the language of the traditional instructions to assure comprehension by laymen.

"The retention of precise meaning in all terms was a major goal, and we feel we have achieved that end for the protection of both the public and all defendants," says Reisig.

The standard instructions have the potential to help clear dockets by reducing hours which judges must now use in writing instructions to the jury.

Prosecutors and attorneys also will have a source to check for acceptable instructions which they may petition the judge to use.

Although use of the new instructions is voluntary, the state bar and Michigan Supreme Court expect them to be widely used from the start.

Members of the committee which spent 2,000 man-hours in preparing the new volume for publication are: Judge Susan D. Borman, Detroit; Judge Samuel C. Gradner, Detroit; Thomas J. Kizer Jr., Howell; Dorean M. Koenig, Detroit; Bruce T. Leitman, Bloomfield Hills; Leo E. Maki, Caro; Judge James Montante, Detroit; Judge Timothy C. Quinn, Lansing; Joseph D. Reid, Lansing; James Renfrew, Lake Orion; Theodore F. Spearman Jr., Detroit; Arthur T. Tarnow, Detroit; Joseph V. Wilcox, Albion; Edward Riley Wilson III, Lansing; and Judge Frederick Z. Ziem, Pontiac.

The reporter for the project was Ms. Dorean Koenig of Detroit.

Hush retires

Howard Hush, executive director of Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County, will be honored at a reception at the University Club on Thursday, Dec. 11. Hush is retiring from the position which he has held for 15 years. Hush has seen the United Foundation supported family service agency grow 400 per cent since he took over as director in February, 1961. His retirement culminates 40 years of service in social work.

Race heads bicentennial parade

Bicentennial plans and activities have already gathered a full head of steam and Michigan is making its plans not to be outdone by any other state. The Wayne County Bicentennial Committee is putting together a 250-float parade that will travel nine miles down Woodward from the Michigan State Fairgrounds to the Detroit Civic Center on May 2, 1976.

"This will be the largest bicentennial celebration in the nation," Ervin A. Steiner, county commissioner and chairman of the county's bicentennial activities, said, "and I am confident it will do much to promote tourism in this state."

Starting off the parade will be the Bicentennial Committee's nine mile race at 10 a.m. All running clubs within a 200 mile radius of Detroit are being invited to participate as well as runners from Chicago to Toronto.

The only qualification needed to enter the race is that you must be able to run the distance at a pace better than 10 minutes per mile. "This run may not be as long as the Boston Marathon, but it will serve as the harbinger of the world's largest parade," Steiner said.

Anyone interested in the parade race is urged to write Neil O'Connor at 27265 Terrel, Dearborn Heights 48127. O'Connor is serving as the race coordinator.

Cities and townships throughout the state that would like to enter a float from their community should contact the parade chairman, Mary Lou Carey, 37290 Huron Drive, New Boston 48164.

Food film available from MSU

A new color movie called "Unfinished Miracles" is showing in Michigan but you won't see it in your local theater.

The film is about science and nature and people and how they all fit together to generate food for the ever increasing world population.

"This is a film for everybody, because everybody is in the food business," said Dr. S. H. Wittwer, director of the Michigan State University agricultural experiment station and chairman of the national committee which produced the film.

"Some of us grow food, some process it, some ship it, some sell it, some study it and all of us eat it," Wittwer said.

"Unfinished Miracles" was produced to help observe the 100th anniversary of formal agricultural research in the U.S. It runs 28-and-a-half minutes.

The film captures the depth and scope of U.S. agriculture from coast to coast and examines milestones of discoveries over the past 100 years. It also identifies lingering problems facing agricultural producers "as they struggle to feed the hungry world," Wittwer said.

Those wishing to obtain the film for viewing should contact the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station, 101 Agriculture Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824.

Economic recovery slow in '76

By TIM RICHARD

Although the economy began to recover in mid-1975, the going will be slow next year, and 1976 will be "more like the opening stage of a recovery" than the second phase.

That assessment was made by Dr. Barbara B. Murray, associate professor of economics at the University of Detroit. It summed up not only her own views but the views of four businessmen who addressed the annual economic outlook luncheon Monday of the Economic Club of Detroit and the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

"There are some questions of the strength of the spirit of '76," Dr. Murray observed.

THE REASON experts are getting a "scrambled" message, she said, is that some internal changes are going on within the economy of the U.S. and of metropolitan Detroit. She listed four changes:

1. Consumers are shifting expenditures from manufactured goods to services. Historically, services have little opportunity to expand worker productivity. Service industries will be under great pressure to increase productivity and hold profits.

2. Greater numbers of families have more than one wage earner. The resultant increases in family incomes have gone into savings and services rather than into consumer goods and durables. Unemployment has had a lesser effect on male heads of households than on teenagers and women.

3. There has been a "phenomenal increase in transfer payments"—economist's jargon for social security, unemployment compensation, welfare, veterans aid and other forms of government assistance. Transfer payments are now $180 billion a year—about one-fourth the level of wages and salaries. Welfare is so high that "many persons are priced out of the labor market."

4. Inflation has been built into the decision-making process of business and government.

IN THE MONEY market, Dr. Murray sees changes on both the supply and demand sides of the equation.

Capital will seek "quality and liquidity."

Interest rates will be lower in the first quarter but may rise later in the year.

State and local governments will reduce their capital demands, which have been high since the end of World War II.

Contradicting Washington economists, Dr. Murray said "there has not been the predicted Treasury drain of the capital market." The Ford Administration—particularly Treasury Secretary William Simon—has repeatedly warned that large federal deficits will eat up available new capital, hampering the private sector from expanding.

Dr. Murray saw continued caution among both consumers and business, with business having "little incentive to increase investment."

Local equestrians win in competition

Ronald Brillinger of 28750 Buckingham, Livonia, placed seventh in the men's division at Michigan State University's sixth annual horse judging roundup competition.

Kathy Koster of 46213 Five Mile, Plymouth, corraled 10th place in the youth division.

Kenneth Kocher has been named the new child accounting supervisor and attendance officer for the Wayne County Intermediate School District. Kocher had previously been in charge of child accounting and attendance in the Wayne-Westland school district. He will be responsible for the annual membership audit of each local school district within Wayne County, used to determine state aid.

Auxiliary police force is needed

Although there are bound to be problems in the future, Canton Township has taken a step in the right direction by passing an emergency ordinance to establish a police auxiliary force.

Members of the township board have recognized the need—and it is a growing one—for more police protection in Canton.

For the past several years, the situation with the Wayne County Sheriff has been at best "iffy." Despite the fact that the county road patrol has been funded for 1976, the coverage it provides is far from adequate.

Twenty-eight men are assigned to cover seven townships comprising 200 square miles. Even top officers in the road patrol readily admit this is not sufficient. It means that at best there are three cars on the roads at one time covering all seven townships—not just Canton.

That type of coverage may have been adequate in Canton's earlier days but with the astronomical growth of the past seven or eight years and the coincendental lack of growth of services provided by the sheriff, the road patrol is no longer capable of meeting the community's need for police services.

THE STATE POLICE offers additional services, but it, like the sheriff patrol, are not equipped with the manpower to handle Canton's ever growing needs.

Because the township is presently unable to meet the financial obligations generated by starting a full-time police department, another means of protection is necessary.

We think the township has hit upon that means with the auxiliary force.

This is not to say that we don't have reservations about the auxiliary concept. The township will be putting 20 men, fully armed and equipped, on the streets to deal with lawbreakers. The potential for abuse of authority, error or just plain overzealousness is great, and it is a problem that concerns all of us.

Certainly the possibility of innocent bystanders or reserves being injured is greater than if there were no auxiliary—but the need for more police protection overrides that concern.

The township has taken precautions. A committee of interviewers using top police officers in nearby communities has been established and they will be of immense aid in screening applicants.

The training course, we are told, is top flight.

Further precautions will be taken when the reserves take to the streets by instructing them to call in the sheriff in sticky situations.

But despite every conceivable safeguard used in advance, problems may arise.

The answer, of course, is to establish a full-time force when the needs become even greater and the budget permits—but until then, we hope the problems do not result in tragedy.

Seafarer vs the untouched woods

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Somehow it seems that around this time of year, everybody I know in the suburbs decamos for the north country to go deer hunting. On a trip to the Upper Peninsula over the Thanksgiving weekend, I ran into all kinds of people from this area who were in search of their bucks.

Judging from the numbers of deer fastened to vehicles coming south, it was a good season, although members of one hunting party said the rain over the weekend spoiled tracking in the last hours of the season.

Most people, in my experience, who go in search of their deer do so as much for the overall feeling of getting out into the woods as for getting venison on the table for the winter.

THAT'S WHAT brings a big government program called Seafarer to mind.

Seafarer is an idea to string more than 1,000 miles of cable across the UP to establish a communications system with our submarines when they are under the water anywhere in the world. It is being promoted by the Navy as an important part of our defense system as well as a project which would provide lots of jobs for the economically troubled area.

What troubles the people in the UP is that the project might very well destroy massive amounts of the wilderness that make the UP the remarkable natural resource it is. Linked to this is a growing question about just how many jobs the project would really create, together with a persistent suspicion that the project would constitute a public health hazard.

FIRST, the jobs. Those backing Seafarer estimate the construction phase would provide 1,000 to 2,000 jobs, but these will only last for a year or two. Manning for the project afterward is now estimated at 200 to 300 men, most of whom would by Navy technicians imported from outside the state.

Net effect on the economy of our state: Little of lasting importance.

Next, health hazards. Navy experts have been assuring state officials that Seafarer would pose no health risk for people in the area, on the grounds that the extremely low frequency waves that the system would generate have not been proven harmful to humans or animals.

But over the weekend, the Detroit Free Press broke a story claiming that a report saying that Seafarer might cause harm to human life had been hushed up by the Navy. At the same time, a UP group opposed to the project demanded that Gov. Milliken order the Navy to stop further work on Seafarer.

At present, the best that can be said is that the project might be risky, and that all information on the risks should be promptly released to the public.

THIS BRINGS us to the environmental questions.

The Navy says that the project involves burying cables under ground, with only 25 feet of cleared area to the sides of each cable, together with monitoring stations here and there. By implication, the Navy is arguing that in the countless miles of UP wilderness, a few 25 foot strips of clearing will hardly make much difference to the environment.

In strictly mechanical terms, this is probably so.

But what such a line of argument neglects is that the woods are a fragile, interconnected system of land and trees and animals, all functioning together. When you slash 1,000 miles of cable through the wildest parts of the UP in a grid, you inevitably destroy that interconnection.

As one UP opponent of Seafarer said recently, "Somewhere else there are higher mountains, bigger trees and tall waterfalls. But here they've all come together — and that's what really makes this peninsula."

And that's just why Seafarer would be the first step toward ruining it and toward ruining the thrill of the sport and the calm of the wilderness for all of us in the suburbs who see the UP as one of the greatest, untouched resources of our state.

The project will provide little economic benefit for Michigan; it may pose a health hazard; it surely will ruin some of the very little wilderness area we have left. Seafarer should be stopped, pronto.

A pattern of local violence

Tim Richard writes

CBS's anti-hunting tirade, "The Guns of Autumn," is now scoffed at by everybody except the Bambi Lobby. Yet the sad truth is that a lot of damage is being done to Michigan's woods and waters in some quiet ways.

What seems to get public attention is the rich, big city guy banging away at the game preserve. In practice, the pattern of violence to our fish and game laws is different.

Michigan Out-Of-Doors, the publication of the conservation clubs, provides a public service by listing violators of fish and game laws who paid penalties of $25 or more for a month, and you learn some interesting things as you wade through the small type.

NO DETROITERS and very few suburbanites are listed for anything except fishing without a license, a relatively minor offense usually committed by the guy who fishes once a year or just forgets.

When, however, you come to the offense of "shining," which is using a light at night to attract fish, you come up with an interesting pattern.

Four of the "shining" violators in August were from Skandia, in the backwoods of Marquette County between Harvey and Kiva. Other shiners came from Rapid River, Indian River, Onaway, Flint, Ann Arbor and Midland.

In other words, a disproportionate number came from the rural hamlets of the state.

Fellows caught keeping undersized fish were from Vassar, Wellston, Gwinn (two), Hales Corners, Wis., and Delton, Ill. Vassar is a village in Tuscola County, Wellston is in the backwoods of Manistee County, Gwinn is about 15 miles from the aforementioned Skandia, and the two non-Michigan residents were hardly city slickers.

THERE WERE TWO cases of illegal possession of deer—one chap from Wayne and the other from Mikado, which is in the boondocks of Alcona County between Glennie and Greenbush. Lest one jump to the conclusion that our law enforcement officers are tougher on the country boys than the city boys, let it here be noted that the violator from Wayne was fined $200 and the one from Mikado $30.

The foregoing are matters of public record. It doesn't tell the stories of the outdoorsmen who do other unsportsmanlike things and get away with it...

Like the rural landowner who puts out a salt lick for months so the deer get into the habit of using it, then has the unmatched skill to pick off his buck the morning of opening day...

Or like the clever fellow who follows the DNR trucks to the streams and finds out where the trout are being stocked, then proceeds to "slaughter" them, taking his limit once or twice or thrice a day, while the supply lasts.

Now you know why I shudder when I hear that song, "Thank God I'm a Country Boy."

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

The academics in perspective

A friend of mine claims he received the following letter:

Dear Mother & Dad:

It has now been three months since I left for college. I have been remiss in writing and I am very sorry for my thoughtlessness in not having written before.

I will bring you up to date now, but before you read on, please sit down. You are not to read any further unless you are sitting down. Okay?

Well, then . . . I am getting along pretty well now. The skull fracture I got when I jumped out of the window of my dormitory when it caught fire shortly after my arrival is pretty well healed now. I only spent two weeks in the hospital, and I can see almost normally and only get those sick headaches once a day.

FORTUNATELY, the fire in the dormitory and my jump was witnessed by an attendant at the gas station near the dorm, and he was the one who called the fire department and the ambulance.

He also visited me at the hospital, and since I had nowhere to live because of the burnt-out dormitory, he was kind enough to invite me to share his apartment with him. It's really a basement room, but it's kind of cute.

He is a very fine boy, and we have fallen deeply in love and are planning to get married. We haven't set the exact date yet, but it will be before my pregnancy begins to show.

I know how much you are looking forward to being grandparents and I know you will welcome the baby and give it the same love and devotion and tender care you gave me when I was a child.

I also know you will welcome my friend into our family with open arms. He is kind and, although not well educated, he is ambitious. Although he is of a different race and religion than ours, I know your oft-expressed tolerance will not permit you to be bothered by the fact that his skin color is somewhat darker than ours.

I am sure you will love him as I do. His family background is good, too, for I am told that his father is an important gunbearer in the village in Africa from which he comes.

NOW THAT I have brought you up to date, I want to tell you that there was no dormitory fire, I did not have a skull fracture, I was not in the hospital, I am not pregnant, I am not engaged, and there is no Schvartze in my life. However, I am getting a D in history and an E in science, and I wanted you to see those marks in the proper perspective.

Your loving daughter,
Becky

We're a poor first in one business

When government takes an action affecting the economy, it's much like a chemical used on a tree—it sets off a chain reaction of effects that change the total environment for miles around.

And so it seems to be with the new Michigan "business privilege tax." The case was put rather well this week by Arthur Pulte, president of Pulte Construction Co. and also of the Association of General Contractors in metropolitan Detroit.

Keep in mind, to begin with, that construction is an ailing industry with a jobless rate of 25 per cent, pretty bad even in our slumping economy. Now hear Mr. Pulte:

"Supposedly, this law would encourage capital intensive industries to expand present plant and office facilities. But in talking with representatives of auto companies (autos being a capital intensive industry), I find there are apparently no plans to do so."

That's probably because auto firms have unused capacity. They'll put folks back to work in the plants they have now before they expand to any great extent.

Pulte goes on:

"Even if capital intensive industries initiated a program of expansion, any gains in tax credits under the new law would be offset by tax increases to contractors under the new law—which would be passed along to the owner in the form of increased building costs."

In other words, the state eases up on capital intensive industries so they can expand, then socks it to a labor intensive industry that's supposed to construct the expanded facilities. Construction costs rise, putting a damper on expansion plans of expanding industries.

And we're right back where we started.

"Additional costs of doing business are now being considered by our State Legislature," Pulte observes, "in the form of new unemployment compensation and workers' compensation laws. Yes, Michigan will be able to say, 'We're No. 1'—but unfortunately, No. 1 in the cost of doing business."

Sense And Nonsense

On Nov. 26, Hon. Thomas M. Holcomb (D-Lansing) arose on the floor of the august House of Representatives of the Michigan Legislature and intoned the following invocation:

"Almighty God, we pray today for wisdom, for knowledge, for patience and for accurate budget figures. Be with us, Lord, in our deliberations in this chamber today and Lord, if it be Thy will, this Saturday in Ann Arbor, let us have roses instead of oranges. Amen."

The Lord heard him not, for none of the prayers was answered.

Editor:

I am quite upset by the two editorials that appeared in your paper on Thursday, Nov. 13. They both seem to represent either incredible ignorance or extremely distorted thinking.

First—Henry Hogan's editorial. I don't see that we are slaves at all because of our high tax bills. Because this is a democracy, we are the government. We elect the people in government that decide how to spend our tax money as well as how much to tax us. If we don't approve of the amount of taxes or how they are spent, we have only to change the people in government to those who advocate doing what we want done.

That we need more people voting and a better informed electorate aren't the fault of the system. But Hogan might better ask whether our hard won freedoms are being lost to apathy and ignorance.

Now, for Tim Richard's editorial. Can it be that Richard is seriously suggesting that we do away with child labor laws, minimum wage laws and the few laws we have to protect the migrant farm worker? Is Richard aware that the migrant farmer has a life expectancy of 49 years (20 years less than the national average)?

While we spend less than one quarter of our income on food (which is hardly too much), a farmworker family of four, all working fulltime, makes an average of $2,700 a year. Do we really want to keep people employed at those kind of wages so that we can continue to have cheap food?

Tens of thousands of farmworkers are poisoned by pesticides each year and of those, almost 1,000 die each year. Should they die for the sake of cheap food? Those of us with our suburban station wagons can hardly complain about the cost of strawberries. We do have those station wagons, color TVs, carpeting on the floors of our roomy suburban homes, washing machines and stylish wardrobes.

If we have to pay a little more for our food and agonize a bit more over the purchase of non-necessary items such as these, I hardly think we have cause for complaint. We would have fewer welfare payments to make if only we would be willing to pay a decent wage for jobs we really want done.

I, for one, want those crops picked and am willing to pay higher prices for it. If we are willing to make people work for starvation wages and then write cute editorials about the loss of "the good old days" or the loss of our revolutionary ideals, I really have to wonder about your commitment to those ideals.

Maybe you really mean to be saying that slavery for the poor is all right, just so long as the newspaper writers and publishers of this world can have cheap food and low taxes.

Atons thankful for assistance

Editor:

On behalf of Randy and the Aton family we would like to thank everyone for their kind words, cards and contributions.

We want to especially give a big thanks to the Cub Scouts of Pack 293, Cubmaster Dick Kleabir, and the students and classmates at the Bird School for the fundraising projects, and for the flowers and encouraging words sent while Randy was in the hospital.

We also want to give thanks to the following: CPHA employes, The Main Street Baptist Church, the Goodfellows, Central Baptists Temple, Pastor Billings, Plymouth Metropolitan Club and the many numerous Plymouth residents.

It is so easy to say thank you, but that just doesn't half express our warm appreciation toward you wonderful people. God bless you all.

Sentence disgusts him

Editor

It is with great disgust that I read the front page story in Wednesday's Canton Observer & Eccentric about Circuit Judge Montante's sentence of three years probation to a Canton Township man found guilty of the charge of first degree criminal sexual conduct in the alleged raping of a Westland woman.

It is court sentences such as these that make citizens take "the law into their own hands." If this man perpetrated this crime on one of my loved ones, he would be most fortunate to stand trial.

Wishing can make things happen

"...I wish I may, I wish I might, have the wish I wish tonight."

Wish . . .

on the first star of the evening on a falling star
on the new moon
on a white horse on a hay wagon
on the first robin of spring on seeing a chimney sweep on seeing a wild rabbit
as you toss a coin into a well or fountain.

WISH AFTER DINNER as you and a friend break a wishbone together. Witches call this "merry thought," and say that the one who gets the piece with the flat head of the bone attached will have his or her wish come true. But if the bone breaks in such a way that no one gets it and the part falls to the floor, the wish goes to the "old cat."

Wish...

when you blow out the candles on your birthday cake

when you blow away the seeds of a dendelion

when you put your clothes on backwards or inside out

when putting on new clothes for the first time when the hem of your dress is turned up

Wish, wish, wish, wish! The list of superstitions about wishing is endless.

I BELIEVE in wishing. Wishes can and do come true. But when I make a wish, I seldom leave it up to chance. Instead, I get busy and help it along.

Some say you should never tell your wish to anyone else or it won't come true. But I've found that if you tell it to the right person, it sometimes helps make it happen.

Remember when I told you how to cast a spell? I said there were three things you had to have to make a spell work—emotion, imagination and belief.

Think about that for a minute.

If you have the emotion to really want something, the imagination to picture it taking place, and the belief in your own ability, there isn't any wish you can't make come true.

Beethoven wished to write a symphony.

Thomas Edison wished for a better way to light the darkness.

Wilber and Orville Wright wished they could fly.

You may wish to be rich or famous, or just to be happy in love. And you can be. If you work toward that goal with a positive thought and the faith that you can not fail, your wishes will come true.

You may write Gundella at: Box 434, Garden City 48135. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Peace and Joy From Madonna's Sister Angeline

By MARGARET MILLER

Sister Angeline, head of the art department at Madonna College, thinks it might be nice to spend her time just designing greeting cards.

And if you were to peek into the card shop where the college sells her creations, you might think she already had her wish.

Cards by the score, for Christmas, New Year's, Easter and many other occasions are lined up there, along with items like informal notes and sets of posters—all in the distinctive style of this prolific artist.

And all have been turned out in the spare minutes that Sr. Angeline manages to fit into a busy schedule of classes.

SELLING THE CARDS, in a room specifically designated for the purpose and presided over by another Felician nun, Sister M. Gualbertha, helps the order raise funds for college-activities.

And because these are numerous, Sr. Angeline became pretty indignant recently when she discovered one of her card messages, lettered in her hand, on a commercial card.

"Sometimes people just steal these designs," she said, "and that is not right. They should pay, and the college could use the payment."

IT WAS SOMEWHAT by accident that Sr. Angeline's card business started 15 years ago.

A member of the Madonna staff since the college's earliest days, she was asked on one occasion to design a thank-you card to be sent out by the Felician order's Provincial Superior.

"People liked them so well that she asked for more," Sr. Angeline remembers, "so I tried some other designs and before long the business was started."

She started with the silk-screen variety of card, using up small stocks of paper left over from projects in the art department. Some of her cards still are made by this process, on a special piece of equipment one of the college workers constructed for her recently.

Others, in larger quantities, are prepared for three-color printing and produced by John Miller Printing Co. in Redford Township.

"They do a good job for me," the artist said.

THOUGH HER CHRISTMAS cards are lovely, they are not Sr. Angeline's favorites nor her best sellers.

The reason is that everybody has cards available at Christmas, but for other holidays she has the market more to herself.

"We sell a great many Easter cards," she said, "because they are harder to find. And New Year's cards are very popular, especially with the teaching nuns who like to use them to write thank-you notes."

Sr. Angeline also designs recovery, birthday, congratulary and other special occasion cards as well as sets of posters popular with the younger set.

"My cards have messages with religious significance, but not necessarily preaching Catholicism," she said. "The designs are not realistic—they're more symbolic, the food-for-thought kind of pictures and words."

THE TIME IT TAKES to produce a design varies, she said, explaining that "it depends on whether I'm inspired."

Once inspiration hits, she can turn out a complete card in about seven or eight hours "if free from other work."

That doesn't happen too often, though. Sr. Angeline directs the art department faculty and teaches classes for local teachers and art enthusiasts as well as Madonna students.

She also continues to enlarge her own expertise and currently is adding the study of stained glass methods and design to her skills in drawing, painting, lapidary, woodcarving and calligraphy.

The cards are sold to indivudual customers who stop by the room near the Madonna art department as well as being mailed out to schools, bookstores and hospitals all over the country.

The sorting, packaging and mailing is handled by Sr. Gualbertha with the help of a few volunteers and employes.

The card shop is open from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. each Monday through Friday.

Kathy Barczak, a Madonna student, looks over the rack showing some of Sr. Angeline's designs.

In the card shop

Posters also attract plenty of attention in the card shop. A new set of four comes out each year.

Christmas cards are in varied sizes and styles. The one just below is new this holiday season.

Boyers living in Westland

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy James Boyer are making their home in Westland following their marriage in Aldersgate United Methodist Church. The Rev. William Wager officiated.

Mrs. Boyer is the former Laurie Ann MacDonald, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Denis MacDonald of Ellen Drive, Livonia. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Boyer of Joy Road, Westland.

For the ceremony, the bride wore a sheer gown and picture hat and included in her attire the handkerchief her mother carried for her wedding and a sixpence in the shoe, both from Scotland. Her bouquet included Scottish heather and was tied with MacDonald tartan ribbon.

Karol Lazur, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Sheila MacDonald and Shelley Wise, wore blue chiffon floral print dresses. Flower girls Carol MacDonald and Meridith Heller were in white.

The bridegroom's attendants, best man Hubbard Stone and ushers Donald Whiting and Bruce MacDonald, wore blue tuxedos.

After a church reception, the couple went to a northern Michigan cottage for their honeymoon. The new Mrs. Boyer graduated from Stevenson High School in 1974 and is employed by Sears. Her husband is studying at Schoolcraft and working for United Parcel Service.

Plymouth woman talks of cult

'Mind-control techniques' are charged

By MARGARET MILLER

Sun Myung Moon, the Korean evangelist accused by many of seeking a political power base through control of thousands of young people, has no more determined adversary than Kathy Buttery of Plymouth.

Soft-spoken and articulate, this young woman is quietly beating the drums in this area on behalf of an organization that seeks ways to get "believers" out of the ranks of Moon's Unification Church and other religious cults operating in this country.

The Citizens' Freedom Foundation, she explains, is one of several groups that have formed across the country as distraught parents and friends of cultists seek a means to change for their loved ones a life that former members have described as "enslavement."

The CFF, organized originally in California, now has the beginnings of a chapter in the metropolitan area and will hold a meeting Friday, Dec. 5, in Trinity Lutheran Church, Hall Road and Van Dyke, Utica.

KATHY BUTTERY has good reason to know how the Unification Church, which established a base in Detroit about two years ago, can work in the life of an idealistic young person.

A young man she had dated for several months suddenly was enveloped in its ranks, she said, and in the process has cut himself off from friends and family. It is his parents and sister who have been instrumental in helping establish the Citizen's Freedom Foundation in this area, she added.

Kathy tells the story of Arthur (Skip) Roselle with an evident hope that it may still be possible to get him out of his present situation, though one attempt at the process called "deprogramming" has failed.

"We got Skip to a hotel room in Dearborn," she said, "but he became violent and returned to his group. From what I observed of him that day, and from what I have learned by talking to former members of cults and reading their experiences, I am convinced that mind-control techniques have been used on him."

KATHY SAID she had known Skip as a free-spirited person, the kind of person witrh an open mind, ready to try new things.

"I think that's how the cult got to him," she added. "Their appeal is to that kind of person."

"He had been in the service, and then sort of bounced around for a while," she went on, "and finally he found a job he liked but it wasn't working out well because it was a family-owned business."

He called her one day several months ago, she related, and said he had "moved into a house with some beautiful people and had never been happier."

"He asked me not to tell his mother about the move," she said, "and I said I would not, but asked him to come with me to a church I occasionally attended the next Sunday. He said he would, then called back and said his instructor would not let him."

IT WAS AT THAT point, Kathy said, that she talked to Skip's parents, Arthur and Joanne Roselle of Utica, and his sister Janis Secord of New Baltimore, and they began a joint effort, so far unsuccessful, to get him out of the group.

But they did make contact with Ted Patrick, a Californian who has done a lot of work in "deprogramming" young people who are in a number of cults, and they began to meet other families estranged from sons and daughters in cults.

They also began reading reports of young people who had come out of such groups, and some of the things that had happened with regard to Skip began to fall into a pattern, Kathy said.

"For instance," she explained, "I called Skip one day and asked him to come with me to see his new niece who just had been born. He said yes at first, and then changed his mind and cut off all contact. Later I learned that's a typical experience; in times of birth or death or illness they make sure there is no contact so they can keep control.

"I think there was someone either listening in on the telephone or standing right there to make sure Skip did not get out of line."

PAUL ENGEL of Binghamton, N.Y., a young man whose story Kathy has read with interest, stated in the account of his programming and deprogramming in the Unification Church that techniques akin to hypnotism and such things as limiting sleep and foods are used to keep members from straying.

Kathy said she had had a glimpse of this.

"I went with a friend to one of their lectures in Detroit," she said. "I could see what was happening—the lecture ran from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and you could feel the hypmotic techniques being used. But I was asking questions and I heard the director tell someone to get rid of me."

IN A SERIES on the "new religions" and their effect on the young, Charles Thomas of the Macomb Daily quoted Skip Roselle as denying that such techniques were used and insisting that the deprogrammers failed with him because "they did not have the ammunition to convince me that what I am studying is wrong."

He also intervied John Schuhart, minister at the Unification Church, located at 18977 Schaefer, Detroit, as calling "absolutely crazy" the suggestion of the use of mind-manipulation or hypnosis.

BUT KATHY BUTTERY and others in the Citizens' Freedom Foundation cannot believe the protestations.

"If Skip is not being held against his true will, why doesn't he come home for a month, as his mother has asked," she queried. "If it were really free will, he could prove it by doing that. He always had been so close to his family, and now I cannot beleive the way he talks to his mother."

She also said she now is fully convinced that "brain-washing is not just a funny little word."

"I think about the Patty Hearst case," she went on, "and I think of what I've read about Moon's wealth and his apparent quest for political power.

"He says he wants to take over the world as the second Messiah. "What might he tell these people to do some time, and who's going to protect them when they do it."

Those interested in learning more about the CFF may contact Kathy Buttery, 711 Starkweather, Plymouth, or Mrs. Joanne Roselle, Box 228, Utica.

JOHNNY HALL

Johnny Hall to sing in 2 area churches

Johnny Hall, singer, composer and recording artist, will give performances in Plymouth and Livonia on Sunday, Dec. 7.

At 11 a.m., he will present a program in Alpha Baptist Church, 28051 W. Chicago, Livonia. At 6 p.m. he will sing in Calvary Baptist Church, 43065 Joy, Plymouth.

As a minister's son, Hall spent his early years performing in rallies and crusades with his father.

He attended National Music Camp at Interlochen during high school, and later graduated from the School of Music at the University of Michigan.

New addition dedicated

The rite of dedication will be read by the Rev. Leonard J. Koeninger, pastor of St. Peter Lutheran Church of Plymouth, in honor of the new addition to the church's educational complex Sunday, Dec. 7, at 4 p.m.

The Rev. Karl Peterson, prinsipal of Huron Valley High School, will be festival speaker. Special music will be furnished by the senior choir and parochial school children under the direction of David Jacobs.

The $400,000 addition includes two classrooms, a gymnasium, locker rooms, shower rooms, a kitchen and storage room. Members of the church volunteered many hours of volunteer labor to complete the building, doing all the interior and exterior painting, landscaping and tiling.

St. Peter has maintained an elementary school for 27 years with an enrollment of 115 students.

Church women schedule lunch

The Livonia Youth Choir and the Frost Bel Canto Choir will present a musical program at the Christmas luncheon of Church Women United of Livonia on Friday, Dec. 5, at 12:30 p.m. in Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia.

Both choirs are directed by Henry Naasko.

Cost of the lunch is $1.50. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Jack Brown, 9811 Blackburn, Livonia. Babysitting is 50 cents per child.

Bachelor of the Month sings like Sinatra, too

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Bob Anderson (his real name) is a great looking guy, with brown curly hair, sincere brown eyes and a flashing smile. He's got a terrific build. He sings, some say, as good as Sinatra.

With all this going for him, what more does he need?

Showcase launched

A new Wednesday entertainment feature called T.O.P. Showcase has been launched at Top O' The Pontch to provide exposure for rising stars of the Detroit entertainment scene.

Running from 5 to 8 p.m. each Wednesday, T.O.P. Showcase spotlights a different musical group or individual each week. Talent is being chosen by a panel of music critics.

The November issue of Cosmopolitan named him "Bachelor of the Month" and letters are pouring in at the rate of 50 to 100 a day from young women who adore him.

He's right here in our own backyard, a native of Warren, Mich., whose family now lives in Ortonville. Anderson himself has an apartment in Rochester, which he plans to keep, even though he is going to move to Las Vegas.

ANDERSON IS poised on the brink of success, waiting for the big break. He admits it takes more than the looks, the body and even the personality and the voice.

"It's not enough anymore just to be a good singer," he said, leaning forward in his chair, eager, friendly and composed.

In the home of his manager, Daniel J. Rappaport of Bloomfield Hills, Anderson talked at length about his plans and dreams.

"My goal is to sing a song for nomination on the Academy Awards," he said with enthusiasm.

Anderson and Rappaport first got together five years ago. At the time, they predicted it would be 90 days to stardom. Today they laugh about that.

The 28-year-old singer has appeared on network TV and is booked for performances on Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin.

TO GIVE him an edge over competing talent, Anderson is now doing impressions of popular ballad singers.

"I'm hoping that the impressions will make the difference," he said.

He called Rich Little "the greatest impressionist of all time," but explained that Little and others do talking impressions. As a singer, Anderson does impressions of the vocalizing of Robert Goulet, Tom Jones, Tony Bennett, Jerry Vale, Frank Sinatra and Steve Lawrence, to name a few.

Said Rappaport, "Tony Bennett's manager heard him imitating Tony Bennett and almost fell off his chair."

Anderson's own voice has been compared to Sinatra's.

"It's hard to think of youself on that level," Anderson admits. "Sinatra has always been my idol.

Two will perform

Concert-goers at the Toledo Symphony subscription concerts Friday, Saturday and Sunday will hear the Brahms Double Concerto performed by two members of the symphony, Kathryn Stepulla, assistant concertmaster, and Debra Fayorian, principal cellist.

Both instrumentalists have been with Symphony several seasons. Miss Fayorian performed as soloist in a TSO Lenten concert at St. Joseph's Church in Sylvania in 1974.

Miss Stepulla, a graduate of Wayne State University, was concertmaster of the University Orchestra there for three years and has been a member of the Detroit Metropolitan Orchestra, of which she was concertmaster. A member of the Cornerstone String Quartet, she has attended Meadow-Mount School of Music in New York several summers.

Miss Fayorian, a native of Livonia and a graduate of the University of Michigan, was a member of the U-M Symphony and numerous Detroit Community Orchestras, performing frequent recitals in the Detroit area and in New York for the Pro Musica Series. While attending the National Music Camp, she performed as soloist. She has played with the Aspen Festival Orchestra.

Horatio Gutierrez will perform the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3 in the December concerts, and the orchestra, under the baton of Serge Fournier, will play the Unfinished Symphony (No. 8) by Schubert. Tickets for the three concerts are available at the symphony office, 241-1272.

Show runs 3rd week

The musical "Man With a Load of Mischief" continues for a third weekend, Friday through Sunday, presented by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the guild playhouse at 15138 Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile Road, in Redford.

Further information is available by calling Mrs. Gregory G. Nelson, 30742 Ann Arbor Trail, Westland.

Rocks bombard Franklin

By FRED DeLANO

Livonia Franklin's pre-game plan to play tight, ball control basketball against Plymouth Salem went out the window in the opening minutes Tuesday night and the gamble was exactly what the offense-crazed Plymouthites wanted as they stormed to their 19th successive home court victory, 94-59.

The 94 points went into the books as an all-time team scoring record for the Rocks, erasing the former high of 93 posted against Allen Park five seasons ago.

Along the way, Salem's 6-8 senior center Jim Ellinghausen treated the throng to the fanciest shooting night of his career as he scored 14 field goals in 21 tries besides hitting five of five from the foul line for 33 points.

The lean, all-state prospect also hauled down nine rebounds, sharing the lead in that department with Mike Primeau, and he blocked six of the Patriots' shots.

Eleven of the 13 Rocks who got into the game put points on the board, Brian Wolcott and Primeau being the others in double figures with 14 and 11 respectively. Top scorers for Franklin, now 0-2 for the season, were Dennis Wesley with 16, Sam Williams with 15 and Dan Pederson picking up 10— all of his coming from the free throw line.

ARMED WITH a slim lead in the early going, the Patriots couldn't resist the temptation to try and match the Rocks at run and shoot tactics. In the end it was their undoing, even though Franklin held the height advantage. "We wanted to be more deliberate, but we just didn't play good half-court basketball," said Franklin coach Bob Visser, three of whose starters moved to the basketball court from the state championship Patriot football club only last week.

"We wanted to run and did," was the way Salem coach Fred Thomann put it. "They've been playing football and weren't ready for that."

It was the first time Salem had faced Franklin on the court since the latter had knocked Plymouth out of the state regional tourney two seasons ago, and the win gave the Rocks a 2-0 mark to carry against Redford Union Friday when they begin their quest for a third straight Suburban Eight league title. Franklin will now be idle until meeting crosstown rival Bentley in a non-league affair next Tuesday.

ALTHOUGH SALEM stole the show by outshooting the Patriots from the floor, 42 goals to 15, Franklin's team performance at the free throw line is likely to stand as one of the most impressive in this area all winter.

The Patriots made 17 straight from the charity stripe in the first half and were 22 of 23 in this department after three periods. They added seven more in 14 tries during the wild fourth quarter when both coaches emptied their benches.

Behind six baskets from Ellinghausen, the Rocks forged to a 24-12 first quarter lead and then maintained their hot hand in the second stanza to outscore Franklin, 23-17, for a 47-29 edge at halftime.

Twenty-two and 25 point quarters in the second half carried Salem to its record-setting total of 94, the honor of scoring the 94th point going to Chris DeBear, a 6-2 junior second stringer, on a free throw.

Williams, who also was a gridiron standout for Franklin, was the only consistent Patriot from the floor with seven field goals.

Triggering the swift power attack of the Rocks was the splendid floor work of Wolcott at guard, who not only popped in seven buckets himself, but time and again fed Ellinghausen passes for scoring setups. His six assists were tops for the contest.

Stevenson dumps RU

Livonia Stevenson stepped back into its good habits while Redford Union slipped back into a bad one Tuesday night as the Spartans took a 73-64 non-league baskeball encounter.

For Stevenson it was the start of a 1975-76 campaign which holds the promise of last year's fine 17-7 mark and Inter-Lakes League title.

For Redford Union, the game was a turnabout from the Panthers' opening game win and followed a winless football season.

"The big thing was their rebounding advantage. They had a 53-45 advantage on the boards and that was the ballgame," said RU coach Carl Andrews.

A big reason for the Spartan dominance in the carom category could be attributed to the absence of Panther center Tom Sweeney in the late goings.

Sweeney, who shared Redford Union scoring honors with forward Steve Shultz with 15 points each, got himself into foul trouble in the latter part of the third quarter while RU was still very much in the game.

The Panther big man stayed out of the game until the four minute mark of the final period and lasted only two minutes at that point before fouling out.

The difference was apparent with Sweeney out of the game.

Redford Union went to a press and Stevenson blew open a game that was tied 50-50 with eight minutes remaining.

"The press just didn't stop them, in fact, it opened the scoring up for them," Andrews said.

The Stevenson forward combination of Rob Rose and Steve Gambrain did the greatest damage to the Panthers as the two scored 20 and 17 points respectively.

Stevenson outshot RU from the floor 42 per cent to 38 per cent.

Redford Union's Gary Stafford and the Spartans' Dave Haberman were the only others in double figures, each tallying 12 points.

Stevenson continues its non-league campaign Friday when it hosts Garden City East while Redford Union will get its Suburban Eight campaign on the road Friday when powerhouse Plymouth Salem invades the Panthers' gym.

Livonia Stevenson-Redford Union

Livonia Stevenson (73): Bob Rose 8, 4-5, 20; Ron Colone 2, 4-4, 8; Dave Haberman 5, 2-2, 12; Steve Gambrian 6, 5-8, 17; Dave Gilland 2, 0-0, 4; Bill Mullally 1, 0-0, 2; Greg Sipus 4, 2-3, 10. Totals: 28, 17-22, 73.

Redford Union (64): Tom Sweeney 6, 3-8, 15; Jim LaLonde 2, 0-0, 4; Steve Schultz 4, 7-10, 15; Gary Stafford 4, 4-4, 12; Ted Ackerman 3, 2-4, 8; Mark Ryder 2, 2-4, 6; Jeff Bennett 1, 0-0, 2; John Gazley 1, 0-0, 2. Totals: 23, 18-30, 64.

Total fouls: Livonia Stevenson 22, Redford Union 19. Fouled Out: Colone, Sweeney.

Salem star looks to future

By BILL COLLINS

Those who follow the women's tennis scene with any amount of regularity are somewhat familiar with Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, or any one of the playing professionals who capture the recognition and admiration of tennis enthusiasts wherever they perform.

However, few stop to consider that before these women blossomed into celebrities, long and laborious hours were spent practicing well in advance of their arrival into stardom.

At the high school level, fame and fortune are relatively foreign to tennis competitors.

But the amount of publicity hasn't stood in the way of Plymouth Salem senior Ceci Warrick, who continues to command the attention of local tennis buffs.

Since picking up a racket five years ago, Ceci has left an indelible mark in the annals of interscholastic play. During the past fall season in which the Plymouth Salem girls team shared the Suburban Eight league title, Ceci led the way going undefeated in singles play, and capturing her second league championship in the singles category.

Ceci also took top homors in doubles competition with her partner Karen Cook.

It was their second league doubles championship in three years. The combination of Warrick and Cook swept to a regional championship before bowing out in state play.

"Playing doubles is not necessarily easier than playing singles. You have someone to work with and you must work as a team," said Miss Warrick.

Although Ceci stands 5-2, her diminutive presence is not indicative of her capabilities on the court. "The strongest aspect of my game is in the backcourt. At my height I have better agility and am able to hit the groundstrokes easier," she said.

During the winter months, Ceci plays three to four times a week indoors to keep a sharp edge on her game. She has been ranked in the Top 10 of her class by the South East Michigan Tennis Association, (SEMTA), for the last four years.

Competing in the spring and summer months, the Salem senior notched triumphs in State Jaycees Tournament, Mackinac Island Tourney, and the Motor City Invitional, all in the women's singles division.

"During the summer there are more players to compete against and the calibre of play is much better. More people take advantage of these tournaments because they count towards your SEMTA rankings," she explained.

After going 62-3 in dual meet competition, her high school career is now history—but she maintains a standard she'd like to achieve this summer. "I'd like to qualify for the national tennis tournament. There are only eight players from each division who qualify from each regional," she said.

Ceci's keen athletic edge has not dulled her academic prowess. As a member of the National Honors Society, she carries an 'A' average, and also participates in student government. Miss Warrick is also the senior class secretary and a member of the forensics team.

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs earned 43½ team points for sixth place and brought home five individual medals at the Northville Invitational Wrestling Tournament.

The Canton matmen third place winners were: at 105 pounds, Craig Lee; 112 pounds, Mark Barlett; 138 pounds, Jeff Rey; and 155 pounds, Kyle Heaton.

Placing fourth at heavyweight was Bob Yauck. All wrestlers are sophomores and this was their first competition of the 1975-76 season.

Eight teams participated in the tournament with the host school, Northville, taking first place. Final team standings were: second Willow Run, third Dearborn Heights Crestwood, fourth Clarenceville, fifth Hartland, sixth Plymouth-Canton, seventh Cherry Hill, and eighth Milford.

Tonight (Dec. 4) the Canton Chiefs first dual meet will be at Bentley starting 6:30 p.m. and the Salem Rocks will be opening their season at John Glenn, also starting at 6:30 p.m.

Junior Rocks win

The Plymouth Salem JV basketball team opened the season with a 59-42 non-league victory over Walled Lake Central.

Central was no match for the taller Salem team in the important rebound department, and consistent defensive pressure caused numerous Central turnovers.

Rick Hewlett led the offense with 17 points followed by Dan Brightbill, 14; Bob Hassen, 11; Dave Monk, seven; Mitch Haas, six; and John Broderick, four.

The Rocks travel to Redford Union Friday. The game starts at 6:15 p.m.

Rockets defeat Cherry Hill in overtime

By DOUG FUNKE
Sports Editor

Westland John Glenn coach Gordon Davis said earlier this season that he had a relatively inexperienced team which would make mistakes in the early going.

However, the Rockets picked up a ton of savvy Tuesday night, sweeping past Inkster Cherry Hill in a thrilling overtime contest 66-63.

The game was relatively even all the way, as the host Spartans jumped out to a 16-13 first quarter lead, but the Rockets came back during the second eight minutes to hold a 35-31 intermission advantage.

GLENN extended its margin to six points after three periods, but problems arose for the Westlanders in the fourth quarter when center George Roberts picked up his fourth personal foul with only a minute gone, and was forced to the bench.

With Roberts out, Cherry Hill narrowed the gap, eventually taking a two point lead with under a minute to play in regulation time. The Rockets' Todd DeLuca, however, canned a 20-foot jump shot with only 13 seconds remaining to force the overtime.

Both teams attempted to score the winning points in the waning seconds, but both efforts were unsuccessful.

The scoreboard read 61-61 after 32 minutes of play.

The Rockets drew first blood in the extra period when Tom Jurewicz connected on a foul shot. However, Cherry Hill came back down the floor to do Glenn one better, scoring a field goal to forge ahead, 63-62.

Those points turned out to be all she wrote for the Spartans, as Glenn's DeLuca hit another field goal attempt and a pair of free throws with eight seconds remaining to wrap up the Rockets' first victory of the season. Gfenn's overall record now is 1-2.

The loss was Cherry Hill's second heartbreaker in a row, as the Spartans fell to Garden City East 51-50 last Friday night.

An unusually high number of personal fouls were called during the contest, and neither team was able to connect with any sustained authority from the charity stripe. The Rockets went 28-46 at the line, while Cherry Hill was 9-24.

Glenn's Davis said he was especially pleased that his team kept their poise in the early moments of the contest, when Cherry Hill came out with a hot offensive hand and stormed to an 11-0 lead.

In view of the Rockets' comeback, perhaps the Glenn cagers are taking a crash course in experience which they hope will propel them to greater heights this season.

Tiger wrestlers seek to repeat championship

Garden City West returns one all-Tri-River League wrestler and three league meet runners-up from last year's contingent and will be strongest in the middle weight classifications during 1975-76, says West coach Stan Worrell.

The Tigers will be on the prowl to win the conference wrestling title outright this season after sharing it with Melvindale last winter.

"We have a young team as opposed to last year's mostly senior team," Worrell assessed. "However, we have a good varsity and we'll be expecting a lot out of the boys."

THE TIGERS have the unusual good tortune of having the younger brothers of two former state champions on their roster, and Worrell is hoping that some of that old family talent will rub off on the pair.

Larry Steckroth, a sopomore in the 138-pound class, "looks pretty good," according to his coach. Steckroth's brother, Randy, went to the state finals three years ago as a 119 pounder.

Ken Graham, a junior, will compete for West at 167 pounds this year. His brother, Walt, won the state title in the 180-pound class when he was a student at Garden City East in 1964.

ALL IN all, 13 wrestlers, including seven letter winners, are back from last season's co-championship team. Jim Miller, a senior in the 132-pound class and the school's only league champ last year, is back to captain the current breed of Tigers.

The league runners-up, who provided the margin to enable West to capture the league meet and who return this season, are Steve Graham, 105 pounds and no relation to Ken, Gary Joniks, 126 pounds, and Matt Shinsky, 155 pounds.

Worrell also said that good things are expected from Don Rago, a 112-pound senior.

WEST LAST week finished a surprising second to Livonia Franklin in a four-way meet, as Worrell said the performances of his charges indicated the need for more practice on fundemental.

Yet, the coach remains confident the Tigers will sharpen their claws and come out fighting the rest of the way. "We have a young team and most of our boys have been interested in wrestling since junior high school," Worrell said. "Our feeder system helps and we expect to be tough out there this year."

Churchill comeback prevails

Livonia Churchill, expected to challenge for Western Six basketball honors this season, got things off on the right foot Tuesday night, rallying from a big second-quarter deficit to upend Dearborn 56-51 in a nonleague bout.

The brand of basketball was a far cry from the likes seen at the Newburgh Road school during the 1974-75 campaign when the Chargers finished a miserable 5-15 and dead last in the Western Six.

Tuesday it was balanced scoring and some timely pressing that heralded a turnabout in Churchill's basketball fortunes.

Dearborn grabbed an early lead and steadily increased it, taking a 12-8 advantage after one quarter and building that margin to 10 points midway through the second stanza. It was at that point that Churchill coach Pat Montagano did his first bit of defense juggling, and the results were immediate and obvious.

From that 10-point deficit the Chargers began to press and forged a 30-30 tie at the intermission.

Montagano switched defenses again at the start of the third quarter, going to a zone, but the results were hardly as dramatic as the Chargers trailed by a point after three quarters.

The zone took its effect in the fourth quarter, however, as the Chargers held Dearborn to 14 points while tallying 20 of their own to make opening night a happy event.

Football captain Matt Foster continued his leadership role on the basketball court as he took game honors for Churchill with 17 points. The only other Charger to hit double figures was forward Dave Clare with 14.

Jim Heiler topped Dearborn with 13 points.

Churchill will take its show on the road Friday when it travels to Ann Arbor to take on traditional Class A power Ann Arbor Pioneer with junior varsity action getting under way at 6:30 p.m.

That game may go a long way towards telling just how good the Chargers will be this season.

But if Tuesday night's game was any indication, nobody will be complaining in the least when comparing this year's version to last year's team.

Spartan tankers set title as season's goal

The boys' swimming team at Livonia Stevenson, coached by Lois McDonald, has a tough act to follow. The girls' varsity tankers, coached by the same Lois McDonald, recently finished second at the state swimming meet in Ann Arbor.

However, the Spartans' coach exudes confidence about a successful upcoming season with the boys, saying, "I've got some talent and we should do well."

Thirteen lettermen and a like number of seniors, led by co-captains Greg Santo and Dave Mueller, return for what McDonald anticipates will be a most exciting swim campaign.

Teamwork appears to be the trademark of this Stevenson squad. "We have all the strokes covered," McDonald stated. "We may not have any super talents except for Santo and Mueller, but we have a lot of depth."

Mueller, whom McDonald suggested was her most versatile swimmer, is expected to go in the 50 and 100-yard freestyles, and possibly as a swing man in other events. Santo, meanwhile, will be called upon in the strenuous 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke.

McDONALD SAID that Gerry Seih, another senior, will carry the Stevenson banner in the long distance individual races, the 200 and 500-yard freestyles.

Also singled out for their ability to swim in a variety of events were Dave Walter and Bill Hoeft.

"Walter can handle all four strokes," McDonald said. "He's a junior showing strength and versatility, and as far as I'm concerned, he can be entered in any event."

Hoeft, a tall, thin senior, was hailed by McDonald as one of the best student-athletes at Stevenson. "He's one of the top debaters and a good kid who knows all the swimming strokes," his coach summarized. "He works so hard, I don't know how he can't be successful."

The Spartans' best diver at this stage of the season appears to be Greg Johnson, a senior who attended a diving camp this past summer. "He really looks good," McDonald commented on his technique.

The Spartans' mentor said that she has been working her boys hard since early November and that there have been many rough workouts in preparation for competition in what McDonald termed "not a super-strong" Inter-Lakes League this season.

GC East tripped up by Borgess

The Garden City East cagers fell victim to a tight Redford Bishop Borgess zone defense Tuesday, and the visiting Spartans also used their quickness at the offense end of the court to down the Panthers, 62-51.

"They (Borgess) had a tough, tough defense, straight and tight on the inside and we just did not penetrate," summarized East assistant coach Mike Riley.

Riley added that he didn't think East played up to par against its Catholic League opponent, but head coach Billy Joe Young expressed even more bitter disappointment.

"I didn't see any improvement at all," Young stated, comparing his Panthers' performance Tuesday to that of last Friday, when East nudged a 52-51 decision over Inkster Cherry Hill.

The Panthers led Borgess after the first quarter 13-8, but the visiting Spartans outscored East 35-19 in the middle two periods to steamroll ahead, never to be threatened.

Jim Riley and Greg Emery carried the bulk of the scoring load for the Panthers, garnering 20 and 17 points respectively. The remainder of the East lineup contributed little to the offesnive cause.

Bishop Borgess received balanced scoring from its roster, as four Spartans ended up with double figures. Dave DeCoster counted 18 points, Gary Mufka and Dave Priebe chipped in with 12 each, and Bialowicz added 10.

LWV announces position on presidential reform

A consensus position on presidential reform has been reached by the League of Women Voters of Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi.

The league believes there should be periodic review by the Congress and-or the public on changes in presidential powers.

Executive agreements which should be reviewed, the LWV feels, are those that have large policy implications—particularly those that commit manpower, funds or other resources.

A strong majority of the league members favored the War Powers Resolution of 1973 but thought it should be amended to include that the president should seek the advice and counsel of Congress before deciding to use armed forces overseas.

The consensus also supported the ideas in the National Emergencies Act passed by the Senate in 1974.

THE LWV CONSENSUS supported the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act as passed, although there was concern with impoundment of funds by a president.

The Congress should be encouraged to use the powers it has to force the president to carry out the law, the LWV believes, and the public should be informed of the provisions of the act so they may pressure Congress to carry out its part of the law.

Concern was expressed about the proliferation of offices that become unessential and the number of presidential staff members and advisers. League members feel congressional budgetary powers should be used to restrict the total number of White House staff members. The idea of approving senior White House staff members was discussed but wasn't supported.

TWO SESSIONS met to reach th consensus on the presidency, one in th morning and one group in an evening session.

The morning session felt that the maximum length of executive agreements should be the time the president who made the agreement has in office. An alternative offered was that important executive agreements should be reviewed by Congress every four years.

The evening session discussed time limits in terms of the length of time to approve an executive agreement which they felt should be 60 days in session.

Th morning session felt that if the president successfully defers spending of funds there should be a review by Congress every three months. The evening group felt that recessions and deferrals should be acted on within 60 days by Congress.

The LWV took positions against: a special election to fill a vacancy in the office of vice president; repeal of the 25th amendment; changes in the Presidential Succession Act; abolition of office of vice president; election of two or more vice presidents; and a single term for president.

The LWV consensus supported: special election if vacancies occur in both presidential and vice presidential offices; special election for both offices when an appointed vice president has succeeded to the presidency; a time limit on congressional confirmation of vice presidential nominees under the 25th Amendment.

The league was undecided on these issues: selection of all vice presidents using 25th Amendment procedures; changes in the presidential terms of office; and repeal of the 22nd Amendment.

There was general dissatisfaction with current procedures used for presidential selection with the morning session favoring taking more time at political conventions to select a vice presidential candidate. A minority opinion was that the president pro tempore of the Senate should be out of the line of succession because of health and age problems.

On whether there should be changes in presidential terms of office, the vote was split 10 yes, six no, and five undecided.

One suggestion made was that the president should be held more accountable through more frequent consideration of impeachment.

The local consensus is being passed on to the national league, through the state chapter, for a national league position on presidential reform.

Pollution study to be made

The city has authorized a study of water pollution problems in Plymouth to be undertaken with federal funds.

The federal funds are allocated to the state and then distributed to local communities on a priority basis to assure cost-effective means of achieving water quality goals.

When planning is completed, and construction begins, the federal grant will cover 75 per cent of the cost and the state will fund five per cent with local municipalities paying 20 per cent.

The study will look at Plymouth's sewerage and drainage systems and identify problems which affect water quality. The local study will identify problems in the city which need correction. Once the study is completed, it will be compared with studies conducted by other municipalities and priorities will then be set on which cities will be awarded construction grants.

The Plymouth study will look at problems of the city's combined sanitary and storm sewers, and the degree of infiltration into the water system, explains City Engineer Alan Gove.

Bentley wins thriller

By RON GARBINSKI

In a thrilling overtime period which saw the lead change back and forth, Bentley High School's Tim Weiss sank his second free throw attempt with one second left on the clock to give the Bulldogs a 74-73 victory over Farmington High School.

Bentley, leading by as much as 10 points in the second quarter, saw its lead slip in the third as the Falcons started the second half with a new defense minus a big man in the middle. Brain Steusloff, Farmington's center, sprained his ankle in the early minutes of play and from there on the Falcon's strategy changed.

"We had to get out of our zone defense when we lost our center," said Farmington coach Bruce Brown. "Bentley was a big, strong team and when we lost our man in the middle we had to switch to man-to-man and start running with the basketball. When you start fast breaking all the time, that tends to cause turnovers and mistakes."

And tunrovers and mistakes are what really hurt both teams. "We had a good first half, but we made a lot of mistakes. When a team makes 30 turnovers in one game, then something is wrong," Bentley's coach Larry Jackson said after his team's narrow victory.

"THERE WERE a lot of costly mistakes that almost lost the game for us, especially when a technical foul was called on me with less than a minute left to play with the game tied at 69-all. But things worked out to our benefit and that's all that counts."

The Falcons started the first half slowly and had almost as many turnovers as Bentley. But their downfall throughout the half was their failure to score points on follow-up attempts after their second and third shots missed.

"It was disappointing to lose that close, but it was good to stage the comeback we had," said Brown. "I wasn't pleased with our first half play at all, and we played really sloppy. But we played well in the second half, coming on strong and almost pulling it off."

The pace of the first quarter was slow as both teams were playing tight in their first games of the season. Bentley managed to maintain the lead throughout the first period, taking a 18-17 quarter lead.

Play in the second quarter was about the same. The Falcons scored a buzzer basket, narrowing the Bentley lead to only eight as the Bulldogs took a 37-29 halftime advantage.

Coming on strong and quick at the start of the third quarter, Farmington pulled within three points of the lead. Using their fast break, finding the open man underneath and forcing Bentley into several turnovers, the Falcons outplayed the Bulldogs.

BENTLEY'S BIG men under the backboards maintained the rebounding advantage, but it was not good enough to hold back the Farmington attack. Time and time again the Falcons made the quick baskets and kept the game close in the final minutes of play.

With 52 seconds left on the clock and the score tied at 69, Farmington went into a stall, hoping to win the game on a last-second shot. But Randy Meier's jump shot was blocked and Rick Milhizer's attempted rebound was knocked out of bounds.

With three seconds left in the game, Farmington failed to get away another shot and the game went into overtime.

Both teams slowed the game down considerably as fouls and turnovers cost the game for Farmington. The Falcon's had yet another opportunity to win the game with 11 seconds remaining, but Meier's free throw attempt missed and Bentley grabbed the rebound, calling time out.

Bringing the ball down from midcourt, Weiss was fouled attempting a lay-up. He missed his first shot but sank the next one to put the game away for Bentley.

Clarenceville doomed by poor foul shooting

Livonia Clarenceville had a "free" game on its hands Tuesday night, but Christmas is still three weeks away and the Trojans turned down the gift and fell 77-71 to Hartland.

"We lost the game at the free-throw line," observed Clarenceville coach Bob Wolfe.

The Trojans hit on a miserable 48 per cent of their charity tosses for the night with 17 for 35. Hartland connected on an identical 17 free throws, but in only 25 attempts in a sloppy game which saw three players from each team foul out and 50 total fouls.

And while the referees were busier than cops in a Sunday afternoon traffic jam, Clarenceville's George Scholes was equally busy vying for game scoring honors with Hartland's Ernie Sweeten.

Clarenceville came out second best in that battle, too, as Scholes ended up with 25 points to 30 for the Hartland ace.

Clarenceville out-rebounded its opponents, but Hartland built up a 14-point lead before the Trojans staged a dramatic comeback.

CLARENCEVILL ACTUALLY pulled to within four points with two minutes remaining in the game only to miss a one-and-one opportunity, its seventh of that dismal quarter, and see Hartland come back with a bucket to take a commanding lead and the game.

And although Wolfe admitted that the foul-shooting aspect of the Trojans' game needed a bit of work, he saw a bit of light at the end of a tunnel which now has Clarenceville 0-2 on the year.

"There was improvement in all-around play over the first game. I was particularly pleased with the kids who came off the bench to pick up the slack. And we played a pretty good zone defense," Wolfe said.

This week in practice, however, a significant portion of the time will be spent exactly 15 feet from the bucket.

"The major thing we need to work on is obviously our foul shooting," Wolfe said.

Clarenceville will have until next Tuesday to work on that part of its game. Tuesday the Trojans travel to Riverside High School for a game with the Dearborn Heights school with junior varsity game begining at 6 p.m.

DEAR READERS,
I have opened a most unusual gift shop, Gusta's Boutique, at the SOMERSET INN HOTEL. I design most of the jewelry. I also have on display my own bronze work. They are originals, only one of each in the world. Everyone says it is different. I agree. They also say it is great work and again I agree. What do you think? Of course, if you come out and look at them, we will be happy to have an opinion. This is an invitation! 643-8257.
Sincerely, Gusta

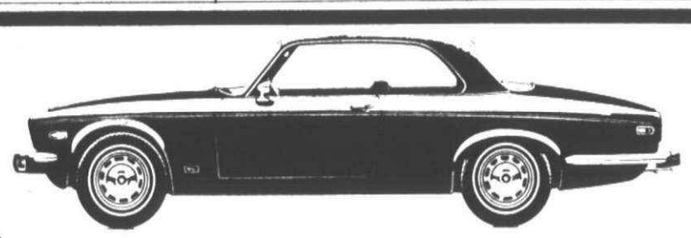
THE EXECUTIVE EXPRESS.



The men who move most nimbly to the top very often drive Jaguars. A case in point is our Jaguar XJC, the only two-door hardtop built like a Jaguar XJ. This means luxuries like real leather, vinyl roof, authentic cabinet woods and stimulating sports car performance.
XJC has four-wheel independent suspension, four-wheel disc brakes, rack and pinion steering. Also standard: the new Jaguar warranty.
XJC moves powered by your choice of two justly famous Jaguar engines. You can order the LeMans overhead cam Six, or the astonishingly smooth and powerful electronically fuel-injected aluminum-alloy overhead cam V-12. Decide in favor of the extraordinary. Drive the Jaguar XJC, soon.

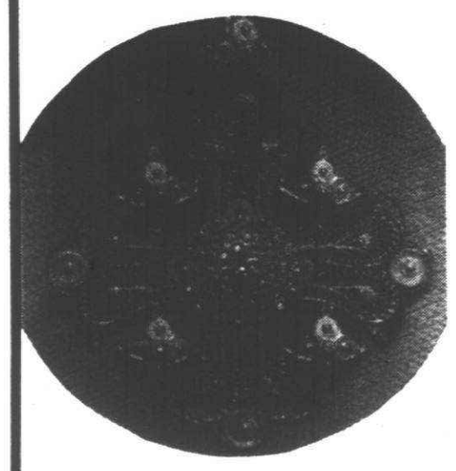
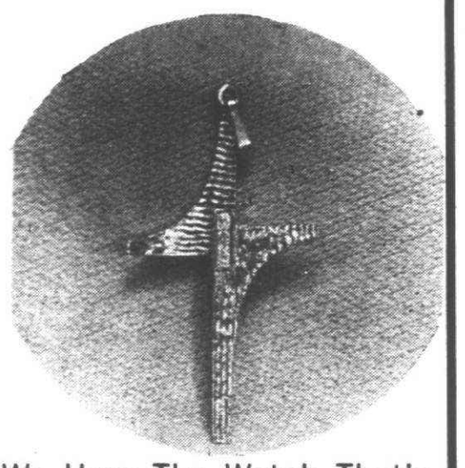
Two Unique Christmas Gifts. . . from a Unique Shop!

HOLY LAND CROSS



This design, handed down from the time of the Crusades, is done here in 18 kt. Gold Feligree. The same design is also available in Sterling Silver. The large cross in the center represents the main body of troops in the Crusade, England. The other four small rosetta crosses represent France, Italy, Germany and Spain. This cross will be a fine and unique gift for someone you love.

CONTEMPORARY CROSS



This beautiful white and yellow 18kt Gold cross is just the right gift for that up to date modern women of today's world. The center of this cross is set with three full cut diamonds.

We Have The Watch That's Changing the World's Standard of Accuracy. The Seiko Quartz.

The Seiko Quartz has no mainspring, no balance wheel, no tuning fork. Instead, the time is kept by a tiny quartz crystal. A quartz crystal can oscillate at tens of thousands of times per second and more. That makes a quartz watch at least four times more accurate than any other type of wristwatch. The Seiko Quartz is accurate not just within seconds per day or per week, but within seconds per month.

We have a complete selection of Seiko quartz models, priced from $150 to $950.

Remember: Shop early

Chances are that anyone who hasn't done their Christmas shopping by the time this is read, there's no need to remind them to "shop early."

But then again, it may be that early December is just as "early" for some people as it is late for others.

If you're among those smug people who have every last gift purchased, wrapped and stored away, then you need read no further.

Perhaps "smug" should read "organized."

There were a few times that I was organized and had all my shopping done early. Those were the times that allowed me to sympathize with a woman bemoaning the fact that after she had purchased all her gifts and had them wrapped, the future recipients had completely changed their minds about what they really wanted for Christmas.

Or that's the time when you paid a top price for a particular gift to please someone only to find it marked down in price a couple of weeks before Christmas.

Now is the time for Christmas bargains and still a time when most stores have a pretty full line of stock to satisfy the needs of shoppers of all ages and categories.

If you're looking for some silly gadget gifts, there's a bigger selection from which to choose at the present time. How can you resist those wooly stockings with multi-colored "toes"? The perfect gift for staid Aunt Maude.

Or an ash tray shaped like a large bare foot for Uncle George? He's the one that still carries a pocket watch and has a chain draped across his prominent stomach.

Ladies: Not inspired? Get your husband a fancy medal or figure on a chain to wear, even if he's the type that won't be seen in public wearing jewelry outside of a wedding ring and a watch. Maybe he'll wear it with his pajamas to please you.

Then there's getting gifts to take into consideration. Be sure to mention the name of your favorite perfume or cologne well in advance to the man in your life. Otherwise you may end up with a decanter of an expensive scent that smelled good on his secretary, the saleslady, the teen-age babysitter or your mother-in-law.

Gentlemen: If you can't decide whether your wife is the black negligee type, there are some cute snuggly sleepers, complete with feet, on the market, believe it or not. Just the thing for the lady with the cold feet. Not a bad idea either for college coeds, teens who like pajama parties and for comfortable lounge wear.

I guess the idea is that if you can't be glamorous, be cuddly.

If you are a parent or grandparent who has been eavesdropping on the youngsters' conversation around the television set when the toy commercials come on — forget it.

Either you have to be a genius at second-guessing a child's changing moods or a millionaire to indulge their whims in full, and in view of the present economic atmosphere that's unrealistic.

About the best way to cope with the Christmas list of the younger members of the family is to buy them something they didn't know they wanted. Because, let's face it, no matter what they get, they'll either really like it and have fun with it, or will let you know that what they REALLY wanted was the blue or red one (you got yellow).

Teens are more easily pleased. Either they are the well-intentioned types who will sound sincere in their appreciation of whatever they get, or they'll be the practical type that settles for something green — like money.

And of course, the man of the house will find himself amply supplied with aftershave, cologne, neckties, shirts, sweaters and such other necessities thanks to the women in his life.

Men with hobbies and special interests make gift shopping a little easier for their loved ones. That is, unless he selects something that's way out of line, such as collecting diamonds, first editions, full-size railroad engines or such other trivia, or even real race horses.

If you've bought the wrong thing for the wrong person, don't fret. Just console yourself with the thought that it is the THOUGHT that counts. Then exchange the gift.

Mailing cards' custom recent

When you made out that annual Christmas card list, did you ever wonder just how it all began? Or have you wondered if everyone sent out as many as your list called for?

Would you believe that about four billion Christmas cards are sent every Christmas? No wonder the post office hired extra help each year!

It does sound like an insurmountable job! But what a lovely way to wish friends and family well and to renew old friendships. But do you know that exchanging Christmas cards is a comparatively recent custom?

Although there are several claims as to who originated the sending of Christmas cards, there is evidence this lovely custom began in England in the early 1800's. It is generally acknowledged that Louis Prang, a native German who settled in Boston, introduced them in America in about 1875.

His early cards, produced by a process of color lithography, were models of expert craftsmanship. They featured flower designs such as daisies and roses, and were quite unlike Christmas cards of today.

By 1881, Prang was turning about about 5 million cards a year, and as time went by he offered more typical Christmas scenes, including the visit of Santa Claus, Madonna and Child, and blazing fires.

In 1880 or 1881 Prang sponsored an open competition for Christmas card designs, offering prizes that came to about $3,000. More than 600 entries were received and were exhibited in galleries. Noted personalities of that time acted as judges.

The superior quality and workmanship of the Prang cards added to their popularity. However, with an increasing demand for cards, inferior, inartistic, cheaper cards came flooding in from Europe, and Prang found it hard to compete. He stopped producing his beautiful cards, but they are still highly valued and sought after by collectors.

Now we have cards available to fit our every mood, and one would be hard pressed to imagine the number of artists and verse writers who make up the creative forces of this vast industry. Sending and receiving Christmas cards is one of the delights of the holiday.

There is no doubt that this heart-warming custom will continue and so we say "thanks" to Mr. Prang, wherever he may be, for adding great spirit to Christmas in America!

DANGER: New Snow

There's nothing prettier than a new-fallen snow—nothing more dangerous either.

Each year, we hear about the numerous heart attacks and strokes that occur as the result of overexertion. The tragedy of the fatal or near-fatal result of an apparently healthy person succumbing to shoveling snow tends to overshadow a hazard that is even more common.

The same snow which causes heart stress also causes dangerous spinal disc stress to the shoveler. When you consider that a shovel of snow weighs 5 to 7 pounds, you realize the tremendous accumulative weight one has to lift to clear an area. The average driveway or walk will hold hundreds of pounds of snow.

Snow seems to present a challenge to most shovelers, the cold air invigorates them to action; and, the same cold air numbs their sense of pain and fatigue, thereby masking the severity of sprain and strain. The result: too much exertion and too much work without rest breaks.

Doctors of chiropractic, who are specialists in helping patients with back problems, recommend the following rules to guard against the snow-shoveler syndrome:

1. Dress warmly, but don't bundle up so as to make it difficult and awkward for you to move naturally.

2. Use a lightweight pusher-type shovel. Spray it with Teflon so snow will not cling to it.
3. Try not to lift the snow or pitch it. Merely push it into a pile.
4. Avoid sudden twists of the torso. Move the entire body.
5. Keep your back straight when you lift. Use your legs rather than your back.
6. Work slowly.
7. If you feel tired or short of breath, stop and take a rest. Stand up straight and breathe deeply.
8. If you feel a twinge of back pain, stop completely and go inside the house, sit down and rest. If pain persists, see a doctor of chiropractic immediately. With snow, it's wiser to use the head, instead of the back!
