Builders owe Canton $800,000

Canton administrators received a jolt last week when the results of a special audit of the general fund and water and sewer budgets revealed the township had been shortchanged almost $800,000 from 1971-1974.

The money, all owed by builders and developers for planning and engineering fees, may not be recoverable, said Treasurer Carl Parsell.

PARSELL ESTIMATED more than $600,000 is owed the water and sewer department in builder and developer fees and and additional $200,000 is owed the general fund.

Parsell said the problem was discovered during a routine audit of fiscal 1974.

"There was more than $700,000 listed in accounts receivable in the water and sewer fund for last year. The auditors said most of it was uncollected fees from builders," explained Parsell.

"So I ordered an audit of the last three years, because that's when the big development of the township started. When they went back they found the same thing for every year."

Parsell, who has been instituting new billing procedures, filing systems and cross checks, said a list of who owed what was being developed.

"There are certain people who owe us quite a bit," he said. "But I don't want to name people."

Parsell said he didn't know why the money went uncollected. "I don't know if it was an error and was overlooked," he explained, "or if the builders were told they didn't have to pay.

"If they were told they didn't have to pay, we could have a problem."

The treasurer said no one has been billed for back debts, but that billing would start as soon as the list is completed.

PLANNING AND engineering fees, which compose all of the money owed, are paid by builders to cover the cost to the township incurred by planners, engineers and inspectors who must go over builder's site plans, engineering designs and building sites.

The money is paid in three stages—at first when the builders submit a site plan, after the site plan is submitted, and before the sewer and water mains go in.

"The bad thing about this," said Parsell, "is that the money has been paid to our planners and engineers as the builders came in. Right now the township has footed the bill instead of the builders and developers."

He added, "We have also lost a substantial amount of money that could have been realized on interest. We haven't determined how much, but part of the time this was going on, interest was up to 10 per cent."

PARSELL SAID the problem started because of the poor billing procedures in the township offices.

"The township was run like a country store, and part of the country store atmosphere came from not keeping up with the rapid growth in population.

"Records were behind as much as six to nine months. I'm not pointing my finger at anyone, but the township started out at 4,000 people and then all at once you have over 20,000 people. They just didn't keep up with it.

"Things were so bad some bills were paid twice because a record was never kept properly and there were no checks or balances. I still expect someone to come in with a handful of money, two sheep and a bag of corn to pay taxes," he said.

Committee will study CEP scheduling

A citizens advisory committee is in the process of being organized to study class scheduling at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

The school board agreed 6-0 Tuesday night to speed up formation of the scheduling study committee because of concerns expressed in the community about modular scheduling at the CEP and in response to survey results submitted by Concerned Parents.

The survey taken by Concerned Parents indicate that 2,200 of 3,700 persons surveyed are opposed to modular scheduling at the CEP.

The school district had earlier agreed to establish a Citizens Advisory Council (CAC) of 12 committees with 12 members each to study a variety of topics, one of which is class scheduling at the CEP.

INSTEAD OF waiting until January when the process will begin to fill the 12 committees, the board authorized formation of the scheduling committee immediately with the other 11 to be organized next month.

The administration's recommendation is that the 12 members be apportioned as follows: three parents and one student to be suggested by the high schools (Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton); three parents and one students to be suggested by Concerned Parents; and four citizens-at-large to be suggested by the administration. The four at-large will include a 1975 graduate of the CEP.

The proposal on composition of the committee was made by Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations.

Once names are suggested for the committee, the list of nominees will then be presented to the school board for approval.

The administration will attempt to nominate for the four at-large positions "neutral" persons who don't have a definite opinion—pro or con—about modular or traditional scheduling.

THE EXACT make-up of the committee wasn't approved by the board Monday night, however.

In its resolution, the board simply directed Mrs. Beier to "compile a list of citizens interested in serving on the district's Citizen Advisory Committee Scheduling subcommittee" and "that the process for selection and representation be reviewed by the president of the board and submitted to the board of education for approval."

Although there wasn't any definite indication Monday the board would change the composition, one trustee expressed reservations after the meeting adjourned.

Marcia Borowski, board vice-president, commented that there are many groups in the Plymouth community which should be represented on the subcommittee. "I have serious questions, in my own mind, about the equity of one group—Concerned Parents—being given one-third representation on the study committee."

The district was going to begin forming the 12 CAC committees Jan. 10, explained Supt. of Schools John M. Hoben. "In the interest of speeding up examination of scheduling at the CEP, and in light of the Concerned Parents survey, we are asking the board to establish the scheduling subcommittee before Jan. 1."

Once the students and parents are named to the subcommittee, a teacher and an administrator will be named to serve as liaison persons, added Mrs. Beier. She hopes to have names to submit to the board for approval at its Dec. 22 meeting with the subcommittee begining to meet shortly thereafter.

Concerned Parents disgruntled

Concerned Parents met last Wednesday night in a meeting of its board to determine what action to take in view of the Plymouth Board of Education's reaction to its survey.

After submitting its survey to the school board Nov. 24, Concerned Parents asked the district to take action soon to deal with what it sees as swelling dissatisfaction with modular scheduling at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

The survey showed that 2,200 of 3,700 residents returning questionnaires were opposed to modular scheduling. A larger percentage of those turning in surveys expressed concerns about lack of discipline at the CEP.

PARTLY IN reaction to the survey, the school board has taken the following actions:

- Speeded up formation of a citizens committee to study scheduling at the CEP;
- Authorized the administration to seek bids from three major state universities to conduct an evaluation of the CEP's effectiveness.

At Monday's meeting, Concerned Parents spokesman George Merchant told the board that both actions were totally unacceptable to his group.

Merchant's initial reaction was that Concerned Parents was largely underrepresented on the study committee. That assumption was based on a misunderstanding of the relationship of the CEP study committee its parent group—the other 11 committees of the Citizens Advisory Council (CAC).

The board earlier had authorized formation of a CAC made up of 12 committees of 12 members each to study a variety of topics. One committee will study scheduling at the CEP.

Concerned Parents, in the initial proposal, would receive the chance to nominate four of the 12 members on the scheduling committee. Merchant misunderstood this, however, and thought the plan was to have all 12 committees involved in study of the CEP.

This led him to reason that Concerned Parents representation amounted to one third of only one of 12 committees, which he computed at 2.8 per cent. Marcia Borowski, board vice-president, pointed out that the other 11 have nothing to do with modular scheduling and so Concerned Parents actually are being offered a one-third representation on the committee, which she feels might be too high.

MERCHANT ALSO was upset that the evaluation to be done by a university research team wouldn't be completed until April.

He feels this is a ploy by the board to delay having to answer the concerns of his group and disregards Concerned Parents request for quick action. Merchant told the board that delaying a decision on the CEP until April was totally unacceptable.

Merchant told trustees Concerned Parents is asking for one of two alternatives to be followed at this point—either abolish modular scheduling completely, or offer traditional scheduling in one building and modular scheduling in another building to completely physically separate the two systems.

Trustee Gary Mirto told Merchant that the school board had to represent all residents of the district and would be acting irresponsibly if it were to abolish modular scheduling without serious study.

"Your group doesn't represent the majority of residents in the district," said Mirto. "With millions of dollars spent at the CEP, we would be derelict in our duty to cancel modular scheduling solely on the basis of your survey which doesn't represent the majority of residents.

"What would happen if we abolished modular scheduling and were then presented with a petition from another group with more signatures than on your survey asking that modular be reinstated? We cannot act as quick as your group wants us to."

Mirto added that the board's primary responsibility was to make decisions in the best interests of the district's taxpayers and registered voters, not to bow under pressure of one lobby group.

Risinger found innocent

By RICHARD GOLD

Slaughterhouse owner Dale Risinger won the first round of what could prove to be a 15 inning battle Friday night when a six-member jury ruled he was innocent of expanding his pet food operation and plant illegally.

Risinger, who opted for a jury trial after Canton Township officials issued him separate tickets for expanding his building and his business in a non-conforming area, walked out a winner in Judge Dunbar Davis' 35th District Courtroom stating, "The jury listened to both sides and came to their conclusion. I think it was a fair trial, and I think I was treated fairly by the court.

"The judge handled it well—there was no hanky-panky—and I am quite pleased with the outcome."

Risinger's business, Redmeat Dog and Cat Food Inc., is located at 46800 Geddes Road between Beck and Canton Center.

The area is zoned residential, but Risinger has been allowed to run the slaughterhouse because it was in operation before the land became residentially zoned.

Because the land is now residential, it is considered a non-conforming use. According to township ordinances, non-conforming uses cannot be expanded, and Canton officials contend that not only has Risinger increased his facilities, but his operation as well.

RISINGER ARGUED in court that he had met his legal obligations while owner of the slaughterhouse. "My attorney told me to go to the township in advance of buying the property to make sure it would be all right," he explained.

"So before I bought the slaughterhouse, I went and talked to the head building inspector and he assured me he knew the place and that it would all right. It's way out in a rural area, whether it's zoned residential or not.

This sign on Geddes Road will remain until a decision concerning Dale Risinger's slaughterhouse is arrived at in circuit court. Risinger won the first round and was found not guilty of two charges brought by the township in Judge Dunbar Davis' 35th District Court. (Staff photo by Maurie Walker)

Board wants cost effectiveness study of CEP modular scheduling

Within the next couple weeks the Plymouth Board of Education will commission a state university to do an analysis of the effectiveness of the modular scheduling at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

Solicitations now are being made to research staffs at University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University to determine their abilities to conduct such an evaluation.

School officials—based on preliminary discussions—expect each university is capable of doing the evaluation for about $6,000 and deliver a final report by April 5, 1976.

THE ADMINISTRATION had recommended that WSU be commissioned to perform the evaluation, but some trustees Monday night had reservations about awarding the contract to Wayne State at this time.

Trustee Joel Gray spoke up first saying that the first proposal raised by the board was to spend $600 for a cost analysis study only. Since MSU and U-M can do the study for about the same cost, he added, those institutions should be given a more formal chance to bid before the job was awarded to WSU.

Gray also questioned whether WSU was the best university for the evaluation because some of their research persons are on familiar terms with administrators at the CEP.

Trustee Gary Mirto said that after he returned from a vacation last week he discussed the matter with the board president and believes the study is both necessary and timely.

• "However, I echo support for member Gray's comments that if we are going to spend $6,000 it would be advisable for us to listen to research proposals from MSU and U-M."

Mirto added he would like the study to examine the support system at the CEP—the counselling-guidance office, area coordinators and the general relationship between professional staff to teachers and their responsibilities to monitor students.

"I would like to look at the whole CEP program from the point of management soundness. "We shouldn't tonight offer the contract to Wayne State because no institution has the luxury of dealing with only one bidder. That's just sound business."

A motion to award the contract to WSU was defeated 4-1-1. Marcia Borowski voted no, E.J. McClendon abstained because he is a member of the professional staff at U-M, and George Lawton was absent.

WHILE DISCUSSING what procedure should be followed to allow MSU and U-M the opportunity to submit research proposals and a formal bid, McClendon and Ms. Borowski pointed out that it was short notice to give MSU and U-M just two weeks to prepare a proposal.

Trustee Tom Yack, who made the original motion to allow Wayne State to conduct the study, cautioned the board against delaying initiation of the project and urged that effort be made so the contract can be let and evaluation begin in January.

He added that if individual board members add on requires requirements for the evaluation, because of individual areas of concern, that the cost would go up and it would take longer to complete the evaluation.

Gray commented that if MSU and U-M were really interested in doing the study they would be able to come up with a proposal in two weeks.

Board president Marda Benson first suggested that trustees discuss the evaluation's specifics at the Dec. 15 workshop session. Ms. Borowski objected that this session was to be saved for a discussion with representatives from Lansing and shouldn't be cut short by taking up the CEP evaluation.

Mirto suggested having the board meet after Monday night's meeting adjourned to discuss their views so the administration would have a sense of the board's wishes, and then the board could approve a proposal Dec. 22.

The board finally agreed with Ms. Borowski's proposal to delay consjderation until the end of the meeting and then discuss it in public before adjournment.

AFTER CLEARING away the other agenda items, the board returned to discussion of the CEP evaluation with Gray saying his main interest was to find out how much modular scheduling cost and how the cost of modular compared to the expense of traditional scheduling at comparable high schools.

Mirto commented that circumstances have arisen since the intitial discussion of having a cost analysis which seem to require a more extensive evaluation, referring to the campaign and survey of Concerned Parents.

"I believe a strict cost study will show we can get by spending less by going to a pure traditional schedule. We could also spend less by shoving kids in study hall all day, but that's certainly not what any of us want. Effectiveness is the key word.

"Furthermore, I'm convinced that we cannot put in a strict traditional schedule and eliminate discipline and attendance problems. As an example, just look at the problems at Southfield High with all its controls, procedures and guidelines.

"My personal opinion is that modular scheduling itself isn't wrong but the problem is we have a faulty support system which needs to be improved."

The motion which was finally adopted by a 6-0 vote directed the administration to approach the three universities and ask for a detailed proposal for evaluation of the CEP to be presented to the board as soon as possible. The proposals, as they come in, will be presented to Board President Benson who will contact each trustee for an opinion to encourage an earlier start-up of the research.

The evaluation will include a cost analysis of modular scheduling. That analysis will be related by the research team to the effectiveness of the two high schools based upon stated goals of the school district.

The evaluation is to focus on such activities as independent study time, use of resource centers, and the effectiveness of area coordinators, counselors-guidance professionals.

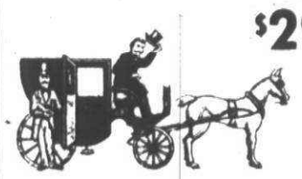

The research team also will be asked to evaluate the effectiveness of the modular scheduling program based upon the perception of teachers and students.

More than 50 take police test

An auxiliary police force in Canton came one step closer to reality Saturday when more than 50 township residents made official application for at least 20 positions as reserve police officers.

The 50 candidates appeared at the township meeting hall (at Cherry Hill and Canton Center to take the first of several tests for the auxiliary force.

The examination, a 102 question multiple choice and fill-in-the-blanks test is designed to test both attitude and intelligence and will be used to weed out the prospective auxiliaries, according to supervisor Robert Greenstein.

"It's a test designed for reserve police," said Greenstein. "It'll be graded for correctness and time, as reaction time is important in police work. It's an excellent test and it should be quite helpful in grading the applicants."

LESS THAN HALF of the applicants will be accepted for positions in the reserve officer training course, starting early next year in Redford Township.

"Right now, there are 20 openings at the school," explained Greenstein, "but we may be able to go as high as 25. That has yet to be worked out."

The tests will be graded this week, and interviews will begin on Saturday. According to the supervisor, several interview boards will be used—staffed by township board members, and experts from nearby police departments.

Among those expected to assist in the interview process will be Chief William Rechlin of Westland, Chief Tim Ford of Plymouth, Captain Al Stewart of Redford, and Dick Novak, chief inspector of the Wayne County Road Patrol.

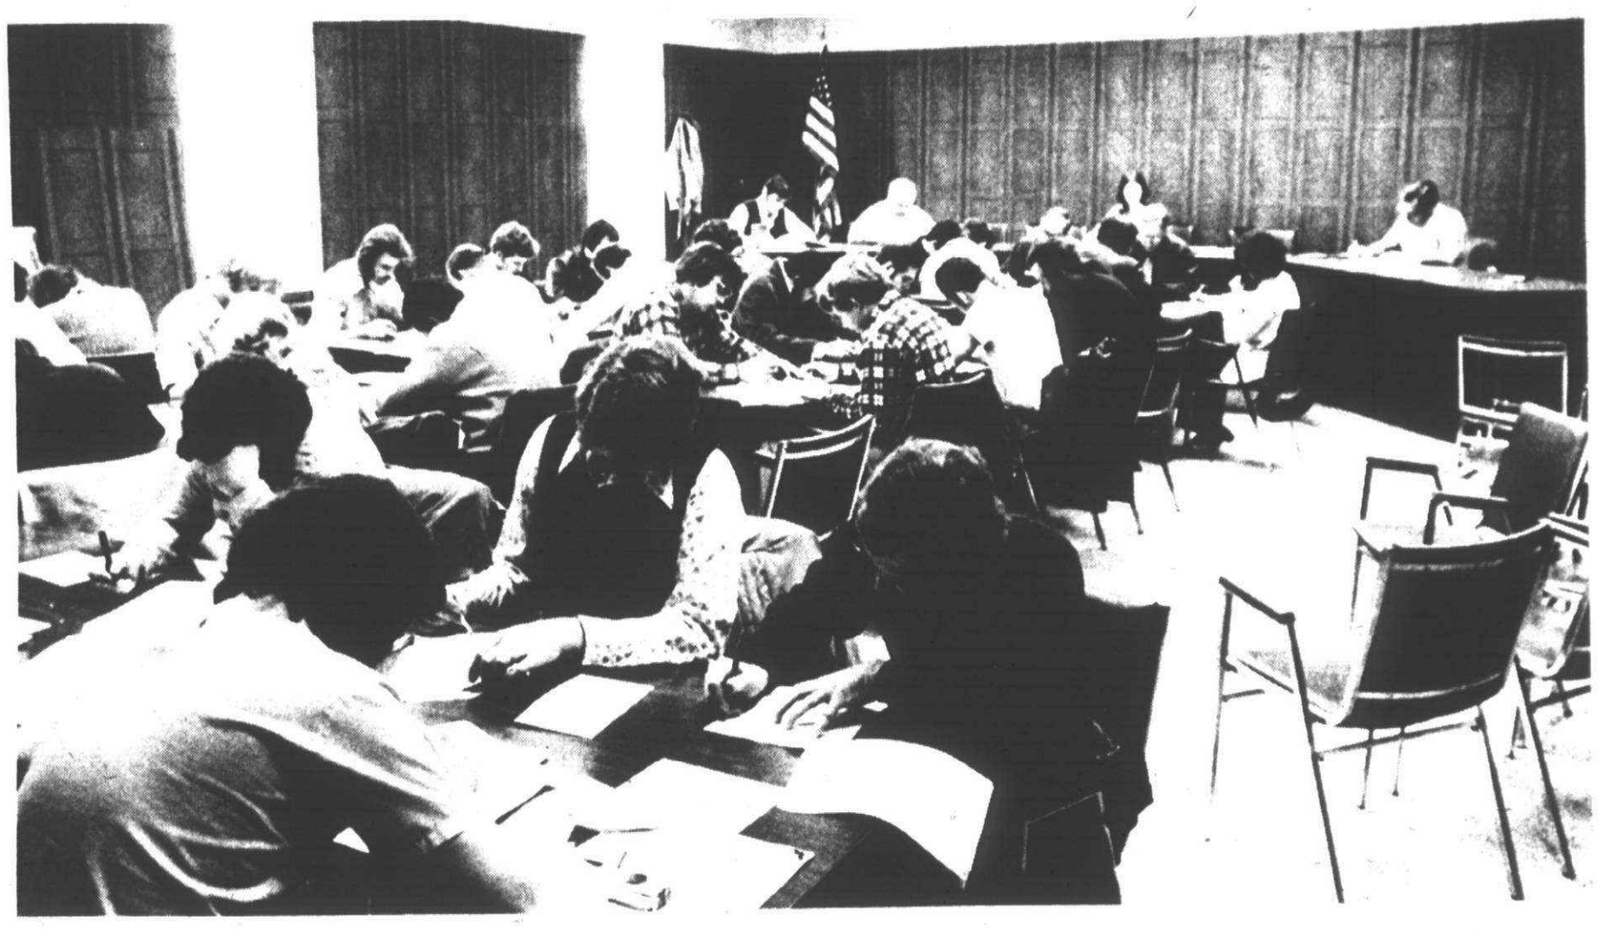

"We hope to have four or five people on each board and they will grade the applicants from a series of preconceived questions," said Greenstein.

"We'll all get together afterwards and review the candidates."

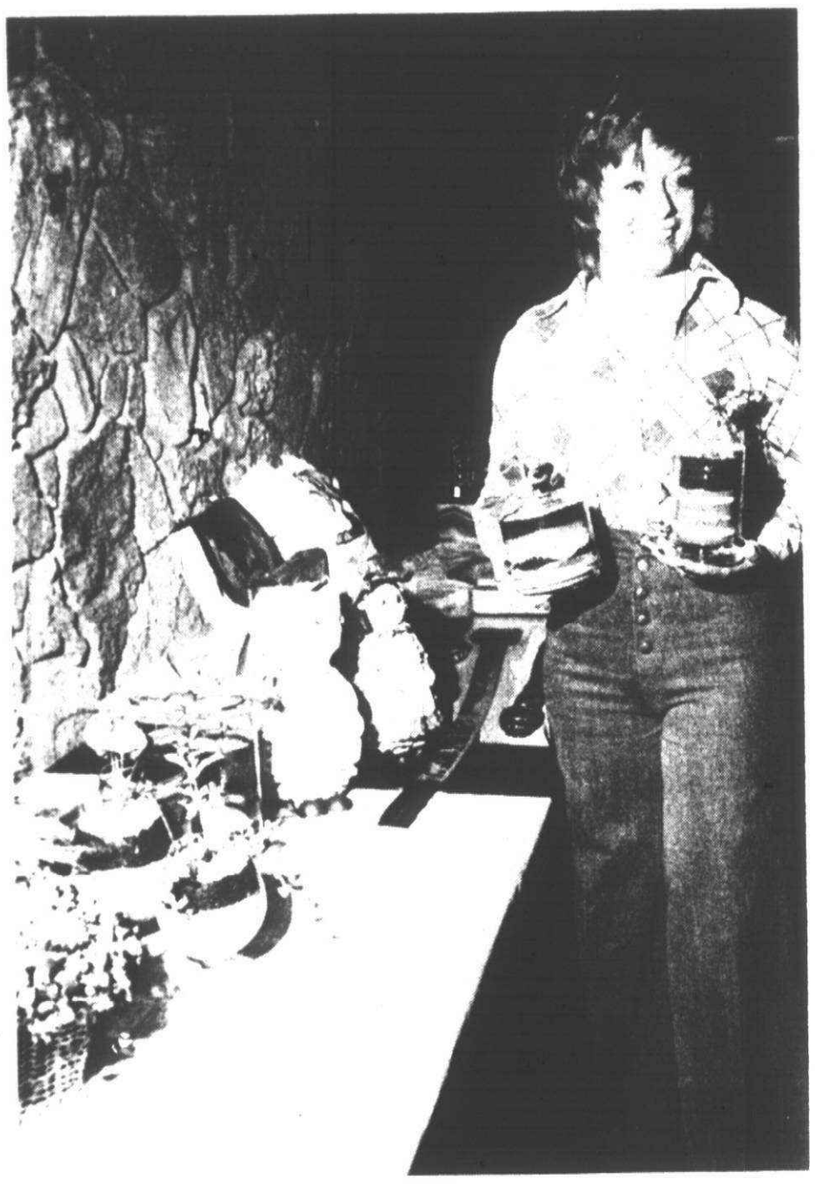

CLASSES FOLLOW the selection of the applicants. The course will beGin Jan. 8 and will involve 30 three and one-half hour training sessions. Greenstein said the auxiliaries should be able to start work in late June or July.

"I was impressed with the people that showed up Saturday," commented Greenstein. "They showed a lot of interest. There were some excellent people and quite a few women. They all applied knowing full well that it was a poor-paying position and that it wasn't a glamour job.

"I think it was an excellent turnout—all these people wanting to dedicate time to a community service."

More than 50 applicants showed at the fire hall Saturday to take the first of several tests to become auxiliary police officers.

Energy use to be monitored

A five-year contract has been awarded by the Plymouth Board of Education to Honeywell Corp. for a pilot energy-saving project at Plymouth Salem High.

The pilot involves use of a remotely located computer center in Farmington Hills to control the temperature settings and operation of mechanical heating-cooling equipment in Salem High seven days a week, 24-hours a day.

The remote system is known as BOSS—Building Operation Services System—and has been serving industry since 1968.

The school district learned of the system last October when Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, attended a Honeywell open house to hear a presentation. He passed the idea on the district's energy conversation committee which has studied and endorsed the proposal.

HOEDEL POINTED OUT Monday night that Salem High accounts for 25 per cent of the district's total utilities expense, which reached $75,000 this year.

Honeywell estimates it can reduce utility costs at Salem High by 13 per cent the first year. Hoedel reports the system will pay for itself in utility savings after the first year of operation. The system costs $25,500 plus $5,500 for electrical hook-up.

Because the district doesn't have the cash available to pay for the service this year, it will finance installation and hook-up expenses over a five-year period at a cost of about $14,300 depending upon financial arrangements made.

The system should be operational by Feb. 1, 1976, Hoedel says, and the first payment will come due July 1, 1976—the first date of the next fiscal year.

Hoedel is examining the possibility of paying the electrical hook-up expense out of building and sight funds if possible to avoid a service charge on this cost. Unless more money can be found in building and sight funds, which Hoedel doubts, the $25,500 must be financed with a portion coming out of each year's operating budget until 1981.

THE COMPUTER control system can start a boiler in a building from a remote point without using labor manhours.

An employe of Honeywell pushes a button on a computer, in Farmington Hills and a boiler is turned on in Salem High. Temperatures in areas of the school can be controlled at various times according to a plan worked out in advance with modifications made with a phone call when needed.

The system also monitors operating efficiency of equipment and can spot a malfunction when it occurs. In case a fan belt breaks, the computer reports the malfunction and the maintenance staff at Salem is notified so the repair can be made.

BOSS is a lease-automation system which started in the Chicago area in 1968 with one center serving seven buildings. In Chicago alone, there are now two computer centers serving 142 buildings.

A representative from Honeywell told the board Monday night that the actual savings from the system usually exceed the projected savings made by the firm. The 13 per cent projected was a conservative figure, the salesman added, and most often the savings in the first year is in the 30-40 per cent range.

A PRESENTATION made to the board showed that in 1974-75 the total electrical bill for Salem High was $108,412 and the gas bill was $57,141.

The projected savings was based on a 13 per cent reduction in electrical cost ($14,388), natural gas ($7,808), and an equipment savings of $1,500. The $1,500 equipment savings is an amount representing a savings in equipment replacement because the equipment won't be running as much under the new system.

The amount saved after one year is projected to be $24,736.

The program for Salem will involve 26 start-stops of mechanical equipment, 33 equipment alarms, and 16 areas in the school where temperatures will be controlled.

Equipment will be turned on and off according to use of the building and weather forecasts, with maximum efficiency being expected during the 36 hours a week when maintenance persons aren't working in Salem.

Hoedel says if the system proves profitable, the district might be able to request change orders to add BOSS to the three elementary schools now under construction.

In voting 6-0 to approve the five-year contract, the board instructed the administration to direct its auditor to explore all alternative means of payment available to avoid the need of paying for the system entirely from operating funds. The district will have between now and July 1 to come up with a payment and financing plan.

James Symonds, director of maintenance, said installation of the BOSS system won't result in any reduction in maintenance-custodian staffing.

Disability classes expanded

The Plymouth Community School District expects to be able to accommodate all children with learning disabilities in special education classrooms by the first of the year.

The district has approval to deviate from Michigan Department of Education guidelines. The department granted a local request to raise the maximum classroom size for children with learning disabilities from 10 to 15.

THE REQUEST was made after a parent complained to the district after being told his child would be placed on a waiting list for acceptance into a classroom for children with learning disabilities; the classroom was filled to capacity.

The district, unable to find additional classrooms, appealed the state for permission to exceed the maximum and permission was granted. The deviation, however, is only for the current school year.

The changes will be completed after Christmas so the enrollment will be expanded the first of the year. At that time, the there will be no waiting list, according to Dr. Ed Page, director of special education.

ONCE THE STATE granted permission to exceed the maximum enrollment limits, Dr. Page realigned the special education staff and placed an additional teacher in the learning disabled program in the middle schools.

The new maximum of 15 is for students who attend classes on a full-time schedule during a school day.

Page told the school board last week that two students will be moved into the classroom for children with learning disabilities Monday (Dec. 8) and two more Friday (Dec. 12). This will leave room for one additional student to be enrolled.

A teacher from one of the high schools is going to be transferred to the learning disabled program in the middle schools after Christmas. Once that is done all students on a waiting list will be enrolled. During the interim those on waiting lists will be helped by teacher consultants.

In response to a question from Trustee Marcia Borowski, Page said the district shouldn't have any capacity programs for middle school children with learning disabilities for the balance of the school year.

Page added that he cannot give any guarantees for the elementary level and said the high school special education program is near capacity.

The relaxing of state enrollment guidelines was for the impaired verbal communication students as well as for children withlearning disabilities.

Planning resources offered

Sally DeRoo, University of Michigan graduate student and teacher in the Plymouth Community School District, told the Intergovernmental Committee of resources about funding available in a pilot school site planning program.

Ms. DeRoo already has the promised cooperation of the school board in the three-year project which would be part of her doctoral thesis at U-M. In asking the blessing of the communities represented in the Intergovernmental Committee, she described the facilities of both U-M and the University of Pennsylvania which would be at the disposal of the project. She also mentioned possible federal funding.

GRAD STUDENTS, naturalists, landscape architecture students and the Department of Natural Resources would contribute at no cost to the communities or the school district.

The object of Ms. DeRoo's project is a master plan for school site planning which coordinates community planning in the area.

Surveys of the community, residents, their needs and even types of creative play equipment would be included in the plan.

Committee members were asked to sound out their government officials for reaction to the proposal.

W-W administrator rejects year-round school concept

By JANAN GHANNAM

"Kids no longer have to work on the farms in the summer, so it seems feasible that schools should be opened all year," said Dr. James Doyle, director of curriculum research and evaluation of Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

But, in the 13—page report he presented to the Wayne—Westland Board of Education Monday night, Doyle warned the board "not to jump on the bandwagon" by implementing the year round school program and then "open a can of worms."

From students' and teachers' point of view, the concept of year round school is desired and advantageous. For the Wayne—Westland school district, the concept may not be feasible at this time, Doyle's report concludes.

Doyle explained to board members that the year round school concept is implemented by a school district because of: lack of space, suppossed cost benefits and educational advantages.

Usually, the first two reasons force or justify the school district for activating such a program.

"The cost—saving aspect is a myth," Doyle said. "The only way you could save money in a year round school program is to increase class size and utilize less teachers."

THE REPORT PREPARED by Doyle and assistant superintendent for curriculum, Frank Higgins, gave a total estimated cost of $216,750, plus the amount for additional teachers, would be needed to implement the year round program in Wayne—Westland.

This amount does not include the extra salaries and maintenance costs of transportation, cafeteria, custodial and secretarial personnel. Secretarial salaries alone could be as high as $120,000, Doyle said.

Doyle gave examples of possible year round school models. The quarter, quinmester, tri-mester, and 45—15 plan were discussed, with Doyle's recommendation that the Wayne—Westland district could adopt a 45—15 program if it so desired, but stressed that it should not adopt a district wide (K—12) program at this time.

Under the 45—15 plan, students and teachers would have 15 days of vacation every 45 days of classes. Three—fourths of the students would be in class all year round and only one-fourth would be on vacation.

Doyle cited the Northville School District which implemented the 45—15 model on the elementary school level, which then resulted in an enrollment increase.

"The idea never caught on at the high school level," Doyle said, " because everyone wanted to take their vacations in July.

"The major criteria for sucess of a year round school program are committed people who believe in the concept, community support and sound administrative leadership."

DOYLE EXPLAINED that most U.S. school districts implementing the year round program did so because of enrollment increases, not voluntarily.

Historically, districts that enter the year round program go back to the traditional Sept. to June schedule when space becomes avaliable, Doyle said.

The board agreed that there were educational advantages in the year round program such as: better feelings between students and teachers, less of a "loss of learning" which exists from the end of June to the beginning of September, and more frequent vacations which are specially advantageous for the hyperactive student.

However, the board agreed with the report which said, "The cost benefits do not appear to exist for Wayne—Westland because we are not in a severely increasing enrollment stage."

"I don't want to bad mouth the program," Doyle said, "I just want to caution you."

THE BOARD VOTED to accept the report with recommendations for further study.

In other board action, an effort to save the Wayne—Westland Community School District money was set when the board approved the appointment of Dale Goby as director of transportation, safety and driver education for the district.

Supt. Timothy Dyer, explained consolidating the positions of transportation, safety and driver education director under one person, would result in a savings of about $4,000.

Dyer reported that overall savings for the 1974—75 school year by consolidating 13 positions amounts to $253,162.

Risinger innocent

"I've never had anyone or any neighbor complain to me about the operation and if they did I would do everything in my power to solve any problem.

"When this area does become residential in nature, I realize I'll have to move on. But by then, at least I'll be able to make some profit out of the land, so I can afford to move somewhere else."

Township officials said Risinger was issued a building permit to eexpand his facilities in error; and that a letter was sent to Risinger indicating a mistake had been made.

THE SLAUGHTERHOUSE owner explained, "The main thrust of the thing is that they issued me a permit and then they said it was an error. How am I supposed to know when they give it to me to that it's a mistake. The addition was for the benefit of the people around here anyway.

"It's to improve health control."

Supervisor Robert Greenstein said he was surprised by the jury's decision and claimed that contrary to Risinger's statements, he never went out to get dogbones from Risinger before "suddenly changing his mind."

The supervisor said he was only on the property once to inspect it. "I didn 't even know the guy," said Greenstein.

Risinger had told the court that he had given bones on several ocassions to the supervisor before the township ticketed him.

"I just wish we had been able to rébutt what he said," explained Greenstein, "but we didn't get the chance."

The supervisor said lawyers representing the township were considering an appeal, and that a civil suit in circuit court had been instituted.

WALTER GUTH, of Sempliner, Thomas and Guth, represented the township in the most recent suit. He commented, "The jury heard both sides and decided the man was innocent. It was a well tried case—but I thought he was in clear violation.

Although Guth did say one of the avenues open to the township was an appeal of the case, he declined further comment saying he did not want to affect any further action the township may decide upon.

Burt Burgoyne, a Detroit attorney, is handling the circuit court action, a separate case in which the township is asking for an injunction to prevent the slaughterhouse from operating.

ACCORDING TO Guth and Greenstein, the circuit court trial will involve different procedures. "In a criminal suit," said Greenstein, "you have to prove he's guilty beyond a shadow of a doubt. In a civil case, the preponderance of the evidence has to indicate he's guilty, and that's not the same requisite."

Risinger said he was aware that a circuit court case was being considered. "I haven't answered," he said, "I'll have to check with my attorneys. The township seems to be giving me every trouble they can.

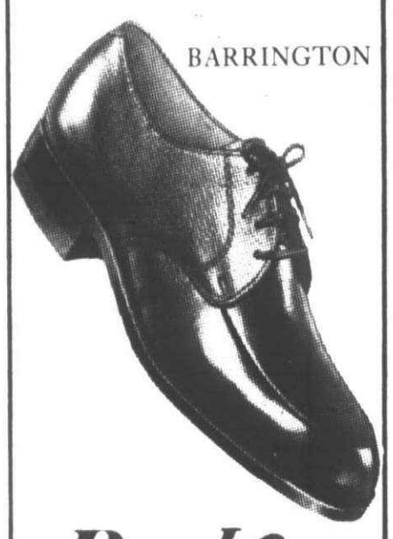

"I have to pay for my lawyer, they don't.",

He added, "I just don't understand it. I haven't had one person complain. I'm not bothering anyone."

Bright children deserve better

Bright and gifted children should be permitted to begin school earlier, skip grades and enter college at the age of 16 if they are qualified, a University of Michigan educator maintains.

"We've got to break the educational lockstep," said education Prof. Warren A. Ketcham, "that groups youngsters according to age instead of learning ability."

Early enrollment, accelerated courses and the multi-age open classroom were among the topics being discussed in the U-M's summer workshop on the education of gifted children. "We have basically the finest educational system ever created," Ketcham said. "But for the gifted, it is in danger of becoming too rigid and bureaucratic. The schools must incorporate more flexibility, diversity and choice.

"THE CHALLENGE, however, begins at home. Even as an infant, the gifted child will be larger and stronger than others in his age group. He will walk and talk earlier, ask and notice more about his surroundings, act more independent and need less rest."

Parents can provide a stimulating home environment at little or no cost, Ketcham says.

"Many things a family discards can be tools in the hands of a gifted child: old clocks and radios, wood scraps, 'dress-up' clothing, and picture magazines, such as National Geographic and Look."

The U-M professor favors the simplest toys: paper, scissors, crayons and paste.

"In general, the more expensive and elaborate a toy is, the less educational it is," he said. "The creativity and challenge is taken out of it.

"GIFTED CHILDREN are probably the most appropriate candidates for pre-school education. We have tended toward the opposite view, creating programs for slow learners and youngsters from deprived environments.

"But at an early age, the gifted have the need and capacity to expand their world beyond the home and family."

Ketcham believes bright children should be allowed to skip a grade or two in order to associate with students who are their intellectual equals.

"Among all the programs that have been proposed for the gifted, acceleration requires no changes in curriculum or teaching methods, no extra cost, and the effects are immediate."

He urges, however, that secondary school curriculums be made more flexible.

"For example, one Michigan high school has split the traditional sophomore-junior-senior English classes into 29 electives — literary criticism, speech, mass media, reading skills, theater arts. All youngsters need choice and diversity, but especially the gifted.

"MOST EXPERTS agree that the gifted child is capable of self-determination at 12 or 13 — six to 10 years earlier than the average person. All too many youngsters become frustrated with 'the system' by this point, and hit the open road. The basis of a sound home and school environment must be laid during the first 10 years; after that point, it may be too late."

Bright and gifted children represent two to five per cent of the population, Ketcham said. Why should such a tiny minority rate special attention?

"Because these are the people who are going to contribute a very important category of ideas — not just technological inventions, but social and scientific philosophy that will give our culture a sense of purpose. They are the Einsteins, the Edisons, the Emersons.

"Through their own intellectual strength, they will follow their own destinies. But in a world as large and complex as this one, we cannot leave this to chance.

"When you are talking about only two to five per cent of the population," Ketcham said, "think what it means to lose just one?"

Stamps do their bit

Postage stamps do more than carry the mail. They also fight for causes.

In March 1971, a public service commemorative was issued bearing the words, "Giving Blood Saves Lives." According to the American Association of Blood Banks, this stamp produced enough blood donors to replenish blood bank shortages for six months.

In the past years, the Postal Service has used the heavy exposure of stamps to get messages across on various public service projects.

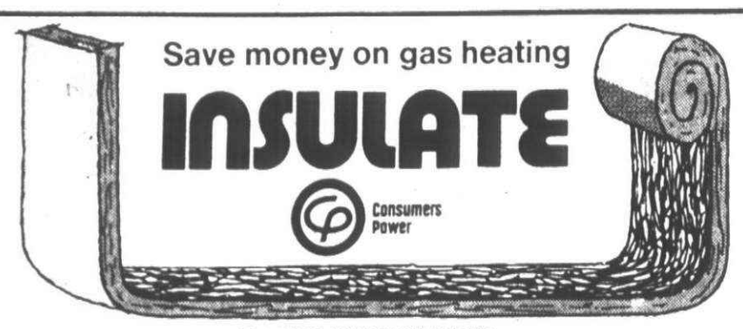

Stamps have urged Americans to register and vote (1968), to preserve the environment (1974) and to help retarded children (1974). In 1965, a commemorative brought attention to traffic safety and another to the cancer crusade with its reminder that early diagnosis saves lives. In 1968 a law-and-order stamp was issued.

A COMMEMORATIVE issue of 1974 stressed energy conservation. A stamp in 1972 brought attention to family planning and wildlife conservation. Drug abuse prevention was the theme of a 1971 stamp. Water conservation was stressed in 1960 and was again highlighted in 1970 when a block of four stamps carried the expanded message: "Save our water, save our soil, save our air and save our cities."

"Food for Peace-Freedom from Hunger" in 1963, "Employ the Handicapped" in 1960 and "Forest Conservation" in 1958 are but a few of the messages carried by public service commemoratives.

Even stamps like the recently issued "Skylab" mission can be categorized in this manner when you consider that the basic space mission was to study earth and its sun and, due to this study, patterns of air and water pollutants were identified.

Area reps vote to modify Environment Act

Western Wayne County representatives voted 4-2 in favor when the State House last week gave 84-18 approval to a watered-down modification of the Environmental Protection Act.

As passed and sent back to the Senate, the bill tells courts to give speediest treatment to citizen suits aimed at stopping industrial and mining projects alleged to have a harmful effect on the environment.

Voting "yes" were Reps. Tom Brown (D-Westland), whose district includes Canton Township and a corner of Plymouth Township; R. Robert Geake (R-Northville), whose district includes northern and eastern Livonia; William Keith (D-Garden City); and John Markes (D-Westland), whose district also includes southwest Livonia.

Voting "no" were Reps. John Bennett (D-Redford) and Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti), whose district includes most of Plymouth.

"THIS BILL has nothing to do with the original bill," said Geake, citing terms of Senate Bill 1003 introduced by Sen. Joe Mack (D-Ironwood).

Mack's bill would have altered the Environmental Protection Act to require that citizen lawsuits seeking to halt industrial projects harmful to the environment would have to be filed within 30 days of the date when the firm gets its permits.

"This version of SB 1003 will help in that industries will get an early determination from a court," said Geake.

Bennett voted against the House version because "some of the language didn't look right. It was ambiguous, and I didn't understand it."

But Bennett still felt that the House version "doesn't downgrade the EPA" and was a harmless compromise.

AN ANGRY Sen. Mack charged the House version of his bill would have a "devastating effect" on industrial expansion in Michigan.

His efforts to curb environmentalists' suits began when a Marquette citizens' case tied up progress on a $750 million expansion plan by Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co.

Because the House and Senate versions differ, the bill will go to a conference committee. The conference may either persuade one house to accept the other's version or attempt to write a compromise for both houses to reconsider.

If a stalemate occurs, there is no action, and the EPA is unchanged.

Commissioners balk at super-agency plan

Wayne County commissioners are telling Lansing that they don't want the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) disbanded because they fear that a new super agency proposed as an alternative might devour taxpayers' money without offering additional services.

The commissioners, at their Dec. 4 board meeting, unanimously voted to oppose H.B. 5527, a state proposal that would create a new layer of government at the regional level.

"SEMCOG is a highly effective voluntary association of local governments that has made real progress in the areas of transportation, housing, criminal justice, land use, recreation, and sewer, water and storm drainage," explained Commissioner Richard E. Manning (D-Redford), who chairs the general government committee.

"Why should we trade grass roots-level cooperation in solving regional problems for a high-powered bureaucracy empowered with the right to bill all of us for its existence? It doesn't make sense to abolish something that is operating successfully and embark on an uncharted course with a very expensive price tag," Manning said.

COMMISSIONER CONRAD L. Mallett (D-Detroit), who also serves as chairman of SEMCOG, couldn't agree more.

"SEMCOG represents a considerable investment of funds and time by officials and citizens," Mallett said. "The largest investment has been one of good faith and dedication by local officials who are committed to making local government more effective and responsive through a voluntary approach."

Mallett cited a 10 per cent increase in SEMCOG membership during 1975 as evidence that the voluntary approach has wide regional acceptance. The total membership stands at 104.

Water quality workshop set Dec. 11 in Plymouth

Wayne County residents will have an opportunity to learn about water quality management planning and to comment on water quality problems throughout the county at a workshop Thursday, Dec. 11, in Plymouth City Hall, 201 S. Main, in Plymouth.

To make it easier for all interested persons to attend a workshop, identical sessions will be held in the afternoon from 1-3 p.m. and in the evening from 7-9 p.m.

Opening remarks in the afternoon will be given by Joseph Bida, Plymouth mayor. Plymouth Councilwoman Beverly McAnich will open the evening session.

This workshop is the first of three series of workshops sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) to keep citizens informed about the planning process and to solicit comments on water pollution problems in the county.

The water quality management plan for southeast Michigan is currently under development in SEMCOG's Council on Environment Strategy (CES), a committee of citizens, local elected officials and technical experts from around the region.

Watch your garden grow in time for Christmas

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

A miniature herb garden is a thoughtful, interesting and inexpensive gift you can make to give to a very special friend. If you start it now, it will already be green in time for Christmas giving.

Choose an attractive container in which to plant your garden. A fish bowl, brandy snifter, large salad bowl, apothecary jars, lined wooden tub or nail keg, or just plain clay pots all will do nicely.

Remember that different herbs grow to different heights, so plant accordingly.

Here is a list that may help you decide what to plant:

Anise—grows three to four feet tall; great for flavoring breads, cakes and cookies. Is said to aid digestion.

Balm—grows 12-18 inches; good with soups, stews, fish and lamb. Used to aid digestion, circulation and healing of wounds.

Basil—grows to various heights; use with tomatoes, curries, salads, eggs, cheese and all meats. It is said to cure nervous headaches.

Bay—a tree that may grow 60 feet tall; enhances stews, soups, meat and fowl. Also good with tomatoes and tomato juice. Culpepper said, "No witch or devil, thunder or lightning can harm a man where there is a bay tree."

Borage—grows 18 inches to two feet; delicious in salads and in ice cold drinks. It is said to increase a sense of well-being.

Carroway—grows to more than two feet; use it in flavoring salads, soups, vegetables, especially cabbage and potatoes; also good with bread, baked apples and some wines. It is said to keep lovers from straying.

Catnip—grows to three feet; makes a delicious tea, and is drunk to prevent colds and to aid digestion. Some say that if you chew its roots it will give you enough courage to undertake impossible tasks.

Chervil—grows from four inches to two feet; good in soups, broccoli and other green vegetables; also good with baked potatoes. It warms cold hearts and chilled stomachs.

Chives—grows to about six inches; delicious with bread and butter or sprinkled on cheese or salads; marvelous in omelets or on baked potato. The Chinese used it as an antidote for poison and a remedy for bleeding.

Coriander—grows from 15 inches to three feet; Used in soups and salads. Is said to inspire love.

Dill—grows from two-and-a-half to three feet; Used in making pickles, but also very good on apple crisp or apple pie. Traditionally used to thwart witches and protect one from evil spells.

Fennel—grows from two-and-a-half to six feet. Roots, stems, and leaves and seeds are good in salads, cooked with vegetables and baked in bread and cakes. Herbals accredit it with almost every cure imaginable. Use it for general good health.

Lavender—Grows 30 inches to four feet. Used as a sachet because of its beautiful fragrance. People used to wear a cap of its seeds to cure a head cold.

Mints—various varieties grow 14 inches to three feet. Used in flavoring candies, dessert, teas, apples, pineapples and oranges; also good sprinkled on some salads. Try it chopped finely in vegetables, potatoes and so on. It is said to be very good for the stomach.

Parsley—grows to three feet; try it in soups, salads, with meat, poultry, fish and cheese. Excellent on mashed potatoes. Filled with minerals and vitamins.

Sage—grows from 18 inches to two feet tall; used with meats of all kinds, and poultry. Sage tea is said to increase fertility.

Summer Savory—grows from 12-18 inches; elevates the taste of bean dishes, soups, salads and other vegetables. Is said to quicken dull spirits.

Sweet Marjoram—grows 8-12 inches. Is used in biscuits, sandwiches, jellies, potato pie, soups, dumplings, chops, sauces, stews, meat loaf, pastes, rice and string beans. Both Greeks and Romans crowned young lovers with it. It was supposed to encourage faithfulness in love.

Tarragon—grows to two feet. Use it with roast chicken, stuffed eggs, tomato and fish, salad, asparagus, beans and other vegetables. This is not an easy herb to raise.

Thyme—grows to about six inches. Use it with cottage cheese or cream cheese. Add it to vegetable salad. It's good with eggs and is excellent in stuffing for poultry. Adds a new taste for clam chowder. Mixed with honey, it's said to be good for a hangover.

Four-wheelers do good turn for needy Indians in U.P.

The Wolverine Four Wheelers are best known for having fun with recreational vehicles—camping, trail runs, rodeos.

But now they're getting double-duty with their trips to Michigan's hinterlands by transporting gifts of canned food, toys and clothing to needy Indians.

Jim Sternett, who holds one of the 130 family memberships in the tri-county area, told how he met members of the Western Wayne County Conservation Club's committee on Indian affairs, which collects the goods.

"It was at that Hunting and Fishing Day show at Westland Center," said Sternett. "The Western Wayne Club had the booth next to ours, and I got to talking to Hank Chruscial. Hank said he didn't have much trouble getting clothes and toys, but he didn't have transportation to get them to the Indians."

AT THE NEXT meeting of the Four Wheelers, 50 persons volunteered to use their heavy-duty vehicles and camping trailers to carry the goods.

Wayne and Diane Macy of Livonia last month took 14 crates of toys and nearly 250 cans of food to St. Catherine Mission in the upper peninsula town of L'Anse, where they were deer hunting.

Rev. Elmer Stoffel said in a letter to the Observer & Eccentric, "We will distribute the toys on Dec. 21 at a Christmas party for the children. We had something like that last year, and it made the children very happy. So may God bless and reward all of you!" he said to the Four Wheelers, the Western Wayne Club, the businesses, clubs and individuals in this area who made donations.

Mrs. Macy described the mission as a little church and a settlement of perhaps 200 families. The Macys and Four Wheelers President Baldus ("Baldy") Pohl are planning another trip this month.

POHL MADE a trip to L'Anse late in November with 45 crates of toys and clothing. His carrying capacity was enhanced by the donation of a trailer from U-Haul.

That load, which included 700 toys, will be shared with another Indian settlement near Watersmeet, at the western end of the UP.

Sternett said club members will take loads of toys to the State School for the Blind in Lansing, a load of 500 toys to the North American Indian Association in Detroit, several hundred cans of food and other gifts to Indian settlements at Harbor Springs, Petoskey and Manistee.

Not confining their activity to hauling gifts, the Four Wheelers used one of their monthly general meetings, held in donated quarters of an RV dealer, to collect 100 cans of food.

"OUR CLUB is a family-type," said Sternett, "although when most folks think of four wheelers, they think of someone tearing up the woods."

While the club holds road rallies and driving events, it also conducts cleanups of sand dunes at Silver Lake on the west side of the lower peninsula and near Caseville at the Thumb, Sternett said.

Two new projects are in the works—a winter "rescue squad" for motorists and transporting volunteer scouting groups to build wild game shelters in state forests. The rescue squad project will require a radio license, which the group is obtaining, Sternett said.

MEANWHILE, Hank Chruscial of the Western Wayne Conservation Club, said local persons have donated nearly 1,000 cans of food to take to Indian settlements in time for Christmas.

Chruscial's home at 19345 Brentwood, Livonia, is the collection point.

Local postal needs are pressing

The U.S. Postal Services has some tough decisions to make about meeting the growing needs of the Plymouth-Canton community.

The present Plymouth Post Office is overcrowded—inside and out. Serious problems are insufficient parking space and cramped working conditions inside.

At the same time, Canton Township has grown to the point where it can no longer be adequately served by four postal districts—Plymouth, Wayne, Belleville and Ypsilanti.

CANTON REQUIRES a post office of its own for more efficiency in mail delivery and for reasons of developing a stronger community identity.

The separate mailing address and zip code promised by the postal service will help in the process of developing community identity, but these steps will do little to bring more efficient mail delivery.

As one of the fastest growing suburbs in southeastern Michigan, Canton needs a post office of its own to serve Canton residents. The fact that the postal service lacks money now doesn't lessen the demand—it only makes it more difficult to meet the need.

It is easy for the U.S. Postal Service to plead poverty and delay construction of a new post office in Canton. But this community is faced with the same economic constraints and still manages to educate its children, pick up trash, and provide police and fire protection.

With the prices for postage stamps going up, some of that additional revenue would be well-invested in the Plymouth-Canton community.

EVEN IF a new post office is established in Canton, the need still exists to expand the present Plymouth post office—if physically possible—or relocate it.

Although the volume of Canton mail that passes through the Plymouth office is large, the Plymouth facility would still be over-crowded if Canton were to get its own post office.

The present post office serves Plymouth Township, a large residential community with undeveloped land which promises continued growth and more demands for postal service.

The present facility also serves the downtown business district—a much denser concentration of addresses than residential—which is demanding and will so continue.

Postal officials have made assurances they will make some type of improvements in the present facility to relieve the pressure. Hopefully, these "improvements" will involve some type of physical expansion.

Postal officials are faced with some tough economic choices in this area. They must recognize, though, that the Plymouth-Canton needs aren't an either-or alternative but necessarily involve a recognition that "both" must be pursued.

Voters don't have equal voices

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

Americans will be force-fed a lot of information about our constitution during the bicentennial celebration next year.

In its 200 years of existence, the Constitution has been a living document which has been changed to meet the times through amendment and interpretation.

One major defect still exists.

The defect is frustrating because it keeps our nation from being a true democracy.

Under the Constitution of the United States, the president is not elected by the people.

EVERYONE WHO HAS had a course in American history knows the president is elected by the Electoral College and when we go to the polls in November of a presidential election year, we are really electing only a slate of candidates to the Electoral College when we pull the lever under the name picture of a presidential contender.

We actually have 50 mini-elections, one in each state, and the person who polls the most votes cast in an individual state is given all that state's electoral votes. There is no apportionment of the vote in relation to the number of votes cast.

That is why, in the last presidential election, while Nixon received a little over half of the popular vote in the country, he received the electoral votes from every state except Massachusetts.

After the infamous conventions of 1968, a constitutional amendment was passed by the U.S. Congress to provide for the direct popular election of the President of the United States. To date, the amendment is awaiting ratification by 36 states to become part of our Constitution. And no one seems very interested.

THE AMERICAN BAR Association feels the present system is defective for several reasons:

First, the popular will of the majority of the nation can be defeated by mathematical flukes. Three times in our history, in 1824, 1876 and 1888, the popular vote loser was elected president.

Second, the choice of the president can be thrown into the House of Representatives, where each state has but a single vote. While this hasn't happened in 144 years, it has happened, and it means the will of the individual voter could have no impact on the results.

Third, presidential electors can take matters into their own hands and reject the will of the people who chose them. The law allows a person, once elected to the Electoral College, to vote any way he pleases.

On top of this, the Electoral College system violates fundamental democratic principles because the winner-take-all feature of the system suppresses, at an intermediate stage, all minority votes cast in a state.

The present system also discriminates against voters on the basis of residence. A small-state voter receives an electoral vote advantage because each state receives at least three electoral votes, regardless of population.

There is no sound reason why every citizen should not have an equal voice in the election of our one official who serves as a symbol and spokesman for all of the people.

While they're talking about swapping votes...

Tim Richard writes

What's political reform got to do with Detroit's proposed income tax increase on commuters?

Plenty, in the world of legislative politics.

Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young wants the Legislature to pass a law allowing the financially distressed central city to increase its income tax on residents from two per cent to three and on nonresidents who work in Detroit from 0.5 per cent to 1.5 per cent.

Most suburban legislators, be they Republicans or Democrats, are opposed. Their constituents who work in Detroit would find the taxes they're paying there tripled.

But out-state legislators say, What the heck? Give Detroit the authority to raise its taxes if it needs to—it won't cost the state anything.

BUT THE PLOT now thickens.

It seems that out-state Republicans are unhappy with the political reform act that aims at controlling campaign spending and shedding light on the personal finances of public officials. In their book, the act is too easy on organized labor, which backs Democrats, and too tough on business, which tends to support Republicans.

So the deal would be this: Out-state Republicans would vote against the Detroit income tax increase if suburban Democrats would deliver some votes to amend the political reform act, easing up on how business handles its funds.

Scholars call it "quid pro quo"—this for that. It's also called vote trading and a number of other things.

SUBURBAN LAWMAKERS need to be wary of knee-jerk reactions against giving Detroit the kind of taxing authority it needs to avoid New York City's plight.

On its face, the Detroit proposal seems to be tripling the income tax on nonresidents while increasing it only by half for residents. Actually, when the income tax was first passed in the Jerry Cavanagh days, the rates were one per cent for residents and 0.5 for nonresidents. A few years later, the Legislature allowed Detroit to raise the rate to two per cent on residents, but it kept the rate on nonresidents at 0.5 per cent.

Young's proposal to lift rates to three per cent on Detroiters and 1.5 per cent on nonresidents who work there restores the 2:1 balance.

Young's administration may be in deep trouble if he can't get that legislative authorization to hike the income tax.

On the other hand, suburbanites have been griping and moaning and screaming for years about the water rates Detroit charges its suburban customers.

And the suburbs have noted how Detroit's charter grossly violates the "one person, one vote" principle by giving the shrinking city four votes on the Metropolitan Water Board and the growing suburbs only three votes—with the mayor retaining and using the power to kick off the suburban members.

WELL, IF YOUNG really wants that income tax increase, what price is he willing to pay for it? Would he be willing to support a state law (which would supersede the city charter) loosening Detroit's grip on the Water Board?

Would he be willing to see more suburbanites on the Water Board? Would he be willing to give up his power to fire those suburban members? Would he be willing to have water rates reviewed by the state Public Service Commission—just like those nasty ol' gas and electric companies have to do?

Come on, suburban legislators, let's do some hard-nosed bargaining!

City-suburbs war damaging

I cannot remember a time when relations between the suburbs and the center city have been as bad as they are these days. Even when fears about cross—district school busing were at their height two years ago, there was comparatively little direct clash between the interests of the suburbs and Detroit.

Today, it's all different. Leaders both in the suburbs and in Detroit are beginning to adopt a "begger thy neighbor" approach, as they begin to realize that their financial resources are limited and their problems of policy are vast.

The squabble between Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara over the activities of the Detroit Water Board was not really resolved when McNamara was fired from the board. The issues—who runs the board, how much of a cost load should the suburbs bear, how are such decisions made?—remain, with no effective mechanism to resolve them.

Faced with what looks like a $75 million deficit next year, Detroit is again faced with the need to raise money. Mayor Young has taken a fairly obvious approach to do so by proposing an increase in the city income tax which would hit suburbanites who work in the city. There will be a fight in the State Legislature about this one, and you don't have to think very hard about it to figure out how lawmakers with suburban districts are going to vote. Again, it's a direct clash of interests with no real mechanism available for resolving the issues short of a straight political fight.

IF THIS wasn't enough, a little-noticed suit filed recently in federal court escalated to full-fledged war from mere hostilities.

Brought by the City of Hartford, Conn., the suit charges that the surrounding suburbs have failed to provide or plan for the low-income housing and economically viable communities that were the original goals of federal legislation. It also claims that the urgent needs of the city, such as housing for the poor and elderly, should have priority over suburban roads, parks and sewers.

The remedy the suit seeks is to block the U.S.Department of Housing and Urban Development from giving grants to the suburbs.

The point the suit is making is that the present practice of the federal government in making grants is actually accelerating the decline of the center city by strengthening and developing the suburbs. Federal HUD grants for industrial parks in the suburbs, for example, typically do nothing about providing low-income housing in the suburbs for the workers who will work in the industrial park. By taking the industrial tax base out of the center cities and leaving them with the burden of providing services for the homes of workers, such federal grants are counter-productive to the cities.

IN SHORT, what the suit seeks to do is force an examination of the very federal grant practices which helped create and feed the suburbs in the first place.

There is no question in my mind that such an examination ought to take place, just as I have no doubt that such an examination will in the long run not work against the real interests of the people living in the suburbs—good schools, a pleasant place to raise a family, a few trees and open space.

But while this process is going on and while more suits similar to the one filed by Hartford are being brought forward, the clash of suburban and city interests will be direct, bitter and damaging to both.

It's been said so many times that it sounds like a broken record, but the suburbs need the city just as much as the city needs the suburbs; each, without the other, is doomed.

The problem is that there is no present method forcing both sides to understand just how interdependent they are. Without it, the prospects for progress are very, very dim.

Sense And Nonsense

OUR BELOVED Legislature is making a heroic effort to restore Memorial Day to its original purpose—to honor those who died in uniform—by designating May 30 for that purpose. A lot of orgiastic three-day weekends will be eliminated.

It's too bad mere lawmakers can't do the same for Advent, the four solemn weeks prior to Christmas, and for the Christmas season itself.

The Christmas season, as any Sunday school or catechism graduate will tell you, actually begins Christmas day and ends 12 days later.

The commercial Christmas—the one we know—begins after Halloween and comes to a screeching halt Dec. 24.

THE ENERGY crisis had one excellent side. Subdivision dwellers stopped their frenzied keep-up-with-the-Joneses efforts to decorate their houses with garish lighting. For a couple of seasons, neighborhoods looked like neighborhoods instead of like aluminum shopping centers.

But time heals, and we note sadly that in 1975 the bright lights are back on suburban houses, the theory apparently being that the Holy Family will respond to the grossest display of kilowatt consumption.

Retirees' claims irk employers

By TIM RICHARD

Western Wayne County businessmen this week are prodding Democratic state senators for modifications of a revised workers' compensation bill. Democrats have enough votes to pass the bill but not enough to override a veto by Gov. Milliken.

Businessmen were taking the advice of Keith Molin, a top official in the Milliken administration, that they should offer "constructive alternatives" rather than "curl up and wait for the bombs or picket for a no vote."

Molin, other top state officials and two legislators spoke Saturday to nearly 100 businessmen from western Wayne County and Farmington as they gathered at Madonna College under the sponsorship of their chambers of commerce.

WITHOUT QUESTION, workers' comp benefits need to be raised and probably will be, they were repeatedly told. The fight is over the details—especially benefits to retirees.

Michigan is the only state in the union which pays workers' comp benefits to retirees.

Tom Jones, state insurance commissioner, said retirees last year got $73 million, or some 14 per cent of the $500 million-plus program. Large self-insured firms, mainly the auto companies, found 32 per cent of their claims going to retirees, he said.

Purpose of workers' comp, according to insurance expert Bud Richter, is to build the cost of workers' injuries into the cost of the product by assuming no fault on the part of the worker and having the employer pay the cost.

What businessmen consider an abuse, however, is that persons who have retired—voluntarily left the labor force—are filing claims for hard-to-disprove lung and back injuries years after retirement.

Molin said the precedent of paying benefits to retirees won't be totally removed. "By case law and precedent, it's part of the system. It's even part of labor-management contracts."

Instead, Molin said, businessmen should hope at best to pay retiree claims when they're filed in a "defined, reasonable time and when they're not considered a bonus to retirement income."

POLITICALLY, Molin added, Democrats are under great pressure to pass a bill by the end of the year—they're shooting for Dec. 19—so that it can take effect next April 1, in time for the 1976 campaign.

Milliken will probably veto the Democratic "vehicle" bill (Substitute SB 181) as it stands, Molin said, unless it provides for controlling costs and administrative changes to eliminate loopholes.

Jones, the insurance commissioner, pegged cost of the Democratic-labor bill at $214 million, a 40 per cent increase. The governor's proposals would cost $21 million, an increase of 4-5 per cent over the present level, and a management-backed bill would reduce costs $9 million, or 1.7 per cent, he said.

State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), one of the organizers of the meeting, said Senate Democratic leader William Fitzgerald will be "in trouble with his caucus" if he misses the Dec. 31 deadline for having a bill on the governor's desk. Pursell advised businessmen to pinpoint specific objections to the bill, rather than issuing a blanket condemnation, when talking to the bill's Democratic supporters.

OTHER OBJECTIONS which businessmen had to the bill:

- It would allow injured workers to collect double their regular paychecks. Benefits should be pegged to take-home pay so there is at least some incentive to work, Milliken believes.
- A beneficiary can collect benefits for a hearing loss even though a hearing aid has restored much of his hearing.
- Mental disability is not defined.
- The bill fails to speed up the "delivery of services"—that is, the administrative process. Claims sometimes take two years or more to settle, and the bureau in charge is understaffed.
- It fails to confine benefits to work-related injuries, allowing workers to collect even for an injury suffered while playing Frisbee during non-working hours if the accident occurred on the employer's property.

Now Geake's against it...

State Rep. R. Robert Geake, a Republican, says he gained "leverage" by supporting a Democratic-labor workers' compensation bill that employers strongly oppose.

Geake was one of only eight Republicans among 67 sponsors of that workers' compensation bill, roundly condemned by the State Chamber of Commerce.

But Saturday Geake said he would vote against the newest version of that measure, Substitute Senate Bill 181. "To increase the costs of workers' comp by $214 million, as SB 181 would do, is just as much an assault on the pocketbooks of taxpayers and consumers as would be an increase of $214 million in ADC or some other part of the welfare budget," Geake said.

He said he supported the original measure because, as a co-sponsor, he would be able to offer amendments with more credibility than if he were an avowed opponent. Geake's 35th House District includes Northville and two-thirds of Livonia.

Similarly, State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) was the only Republican among 10 sponsors of the original Senate bill on which SB 181 is based. Pursell said he would vote against SB 181 in its present form.

Christmases past live in their home

By MARGARET MILLER

In her first Christmas as a wife, back in 1953, Mrs. Robert Ewald of Redford Township went to the home of her new mother-in-law and had her first view of a tree decorated with antique ornaments.

"I'm afraid my reaction then was that it was very nice but why would she want all that old stuff," Ruth Ewald laughs now.

But by the next Christmas her husband's mother had begun to interest her in the unusual collections she had been garnering—lovely tree ornaments purchased in the 1920s and 1930s and tiny Santa Clauses of assorted materials and shapes.

And when the younger Mrs. Ewald was hooked, it was all the way. She now deals in antiques, and she and her 14-year-old daughter, Laurie, have some of their best fun discovering and collecting treasures.

THE EWALD collections of old ornaments and St. Nicks, along with some antique toys Mrs. Ewald started buying because Laurie was interested, come out of storage boxes to decorate two Christmas trees each year and give the family home an old-fashioned holiday look.

Other antique furnishings and a case of lovely old dolls are more permanent parts of the decor.

"Strictly speaking, Christmas tree ornaments aren't antiques," Ruth Ewald points out. "The first ones were made in the 20s, and that's pretty recent when you think of the antique market.

"Before that they didn't hang things on trees much—if you had a tree you trimmed it with candles and had to watch out that you didn't burn the house down."

BUT THE ORNAMENTS collected by her mother-in-law, Emma Ewald, she feels are some of the finest examples of the early ones that came on the market.

"The family may have been frugal in most of its spending," she said, "but she bought what she liked when it came to these ornaments."

The oldest ones, she pointed out, came from Germany and seemed to be mostly what Mrs. Ewald calls "parachutes," consisting of an umbrella-like section with a figure hanging from it, and clip-ons like birds. Fragile balls and realistic shapes started appearing on the market a little later.

THE COLLECTION of miniature Santas also shows some evolvement according to Mrs. Ewald. "I took over her collection and have added to it," she said. "They are made of a lot of different materials—a lot of the earlier ones are celluloid and one of my favorites has a gold mesh bag for a body with head and arms and legs attached."

A Santa that Mrs. Ewald would date in the early 30s is fashioned of fluted crepe paper, and a more recent one is made of yarn.

"They've changed in shape quite a bit, too," she commented. "The more modern ones are fatter."

COLLECTING TOYS and games has become Mrs. Ewald's newest enthusiasm.

She finds she can pick them up quite reasonably on antique hunting trips into rural areas, and though she sells some when she participates in antique shows, she's noticed that so far "they don't go as fast as some things because not everyone is as crazy about toys as I am."

But she has a few favorites she and Laurie will keep in the family—a snake game that dates back to 1857, a toy typewriter made about 1898, an alphabet game, an early-vintage jack-in-the-box, some bone chessmen and a set of checkers.

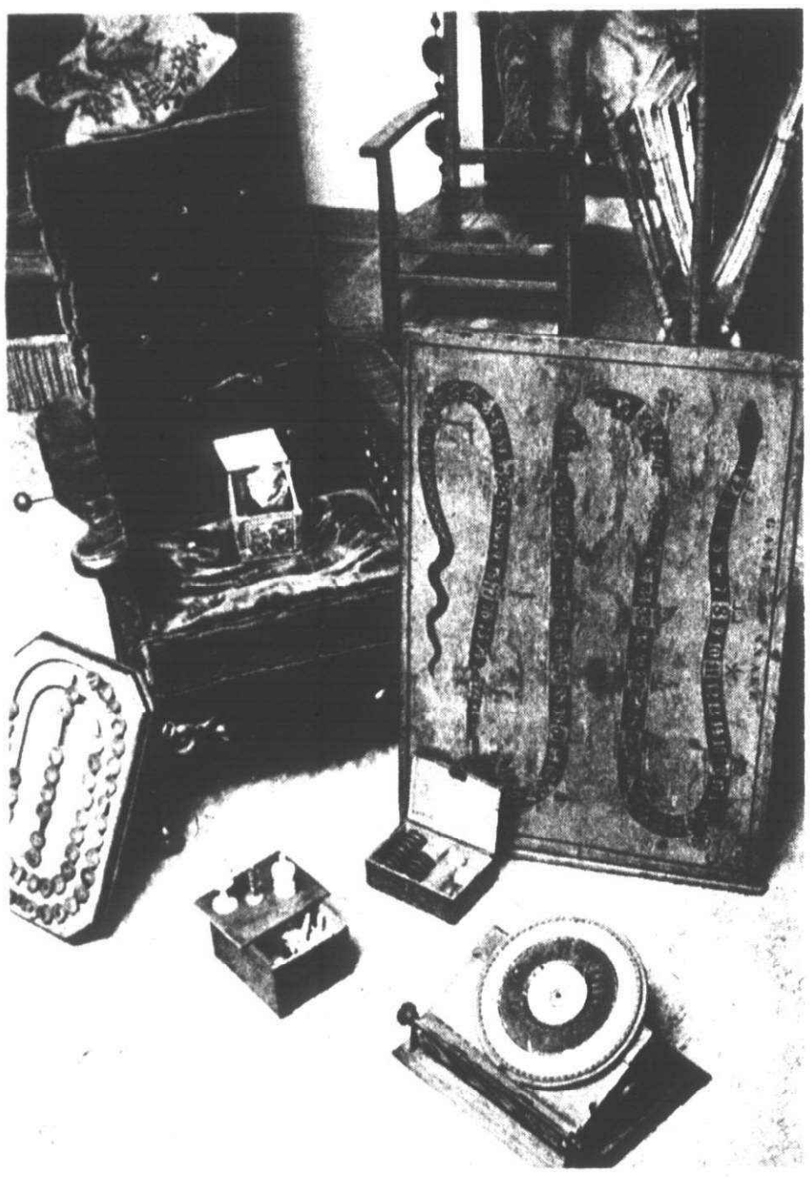

MRS. EWALD is a member of the Bell Branch Quester group and teaches part time at Bulman School in the Redford Union district.

And her collecting urges so far haven't caused her checkbook too much damage.

"I pay a dollar or two for an ornament and add a few each year," she said. "Yes, I see some that are $8 or $10, and I suppose I might pay that much if I were really crazy about something.

"But I see so many, I don't have to be that crazy about anything."

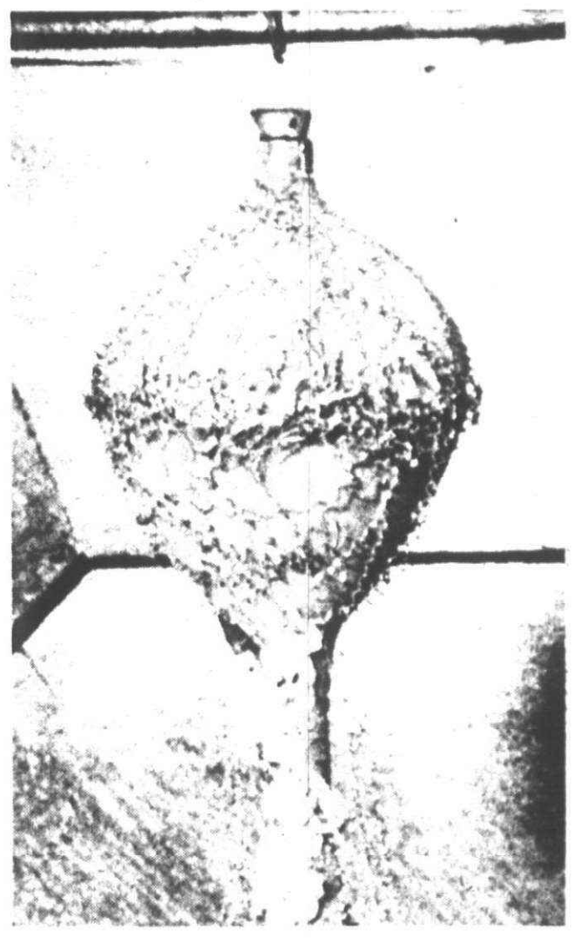

Favorite antique toys include at the right, a snake game more than 100 years old.

Two Santas-a plump one from the '40s and a more lean one from the '20s-are included in the Ewald collection.

This is one of the oldest ornaments in Mrs. Ewald's collection.

Heart center opening

A newly-organized Western Wayne unit of the Michigan Heart Association will open a heart information center on Dec. 12 in the Westland Senior Citizens Center, 29303 Ann Arbor Trail, Westland.

Announcing as its goal the reduction of premature death and disability from heart attack, heart disease and stroke, the group in its first moves elected as president Dr. Lester Eisenberg, medical director of Garden City Osteopathic Hospital and named Pat Melville of Livonia to head its center.

Mrs. Melville said the center's opening day would be marked by an open house from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with the official hanging of an identifying banner set for 11 a.m.

Blood-pressure tests will be given on that day, Mrs. Melville said, and the plan is to have them available later on a regular basis.

There also will be sign-up sheets for volunteers who want to take cardio-pullmonary recusitation, she added, and the association's Recusic-Annie will be on hand for demonstrations.

THE WESTERN Wayne unit is the 24th such volunteer organization in the MHA and the only one serving the communities in western Wayne County.

Meeting in Livonia Fire Station No. 1, the group elected officers and a board of directors.

Dale Walley of Livonia is vice president and Sandy Burgis of Livonia is secretary. Keith McLachlan of Dearborn Heights and Pat Melville of Livonia are delegates. Joan Valente and Craig Dunham of Westland are alternate delegates.

Dr. Eisenberg appointed chairmen of three standing committees, which he said would provide the organization's major thrust during the coming months.

NAMED CHAIRMAN of the cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) committee—an emergency technique of mouth to mouth resuscitation and heart massage for victims of cardiac arrest—was Keith McLachlan.

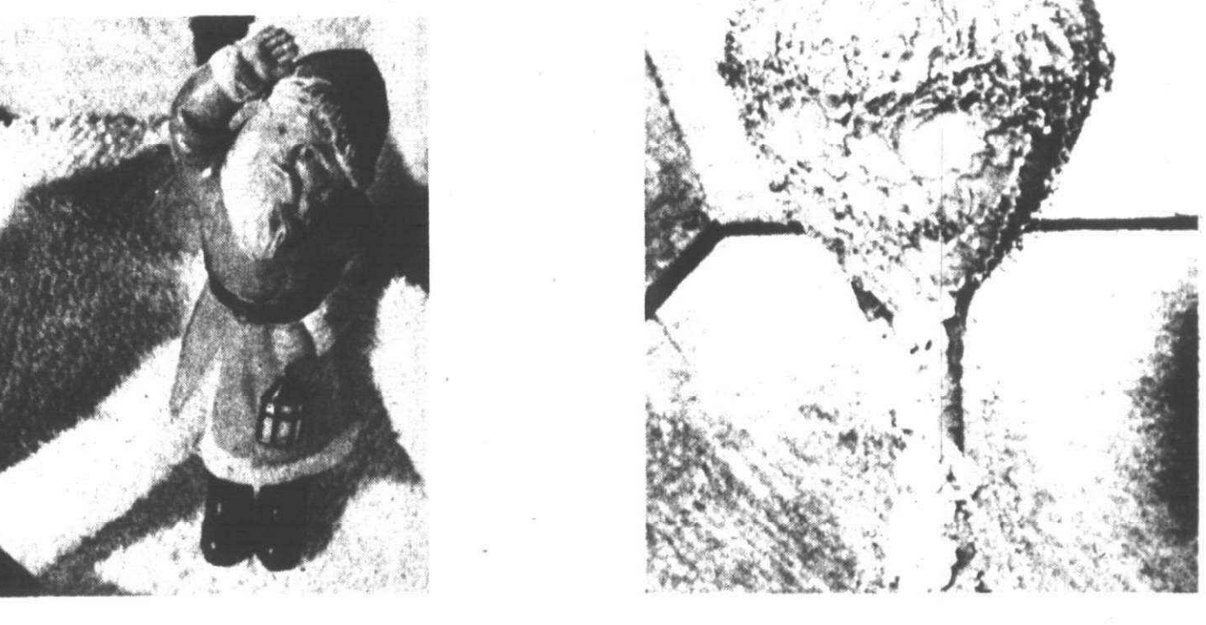

McLachlan noted that the committee and its volunteers have actually been in operation for the past nine months teaching classes in the community.

"We would like to have every citizen in our community know how to do CPR in an emergency," he said. "We hope they will call us so we can set up a class for them."

Jim Gignac, Plymouth Township Fire Chief, was appointed chairman of the hypertension committee which will conduct free blood pressure screening programs during the coming months.

Mollie Evans, RN, and Joan Valente, RN, of Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, were named co-chairpersons of the post coronary committee.

The committee plans to investigate the possibility of conducting classes to assist heart attack patients and their families.

Santa needs some help

Santa Claus may not arrive for children of women inmates at the Detroit House of Coorection unless he is given some help.

The Lifeliners Auxiliary of the Plymouth Branch of the American Association of University Women is trying to insure that 500 children will receive Christmas presents.

It is working in cooperation with the Seekers Club, an inmate organization at DeHoCo, to provide a gift valued from $2 to $5 for each inmate's child.

Groups or individual who would like to assist in the project, either by donating money or gifts for boys and girls ages 1-16 may contact Mrs. Stephen VanderWeele, 39890 Edmunton, Canton Township.

Homes needed

Youth for Understanding is looking for homes for a number of foreign exchange students who will be arriving in January for a six-month stay in this area.

All will attend local high schools, and the local families' responsibility will be to provide food and a place to sleep. Those interested should call Mrs. James O'Day, 1325 Park Place, Plymouth.

Course lets volunteers earn credits, aid elderly

Volunteers are being recruited for a program at Madonna College, Livonia, to assist the aging while earning college credit.

The program is partially funded through a $24,000 training grant from the Michigan Commission on Aging and Office of Services to the Aging, Lansing.

Volunteers will attend a 45-hour seminar and earn four semester hours upon completion of the program. Each of the 100 volunteers will be required to identify the aging in their community and assist two homebound elderly on a six-hour a week basis for six months.

Classes are scheduled for Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m., beginning Jan. 13.

THIS IS THE SECOND year Madonna College will train volunteers to assist the aging. The school, which has had degree programs in gerontology since 1970, will contribute tuition scholarships for those enrolled.

Course work will include lectures, discussions, videotapes, and films on the physiology and psychology of aging, nutrition and health, legal and financial planning for the elderly, social service programs, social security, retirement, and preparation for death.

"Volunteers will be trained to identify the aging in their own communities and to help them on a one-to-one basis," said Sr. Colleen Morris, director of the program.

According to Sr. M. Danatha, president, Madonna College was the first in Michigan to train volunteers to assist the homebound elderly in this unique program.

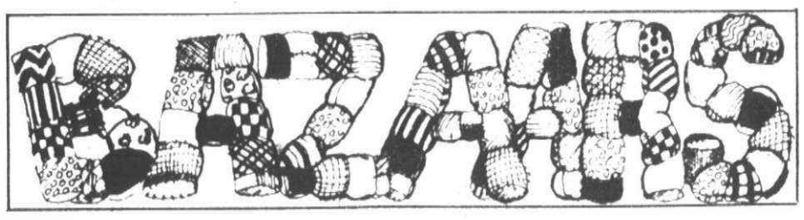

VOLUNTEERS MAY BE men or women over 18 years of age.

"We would also welcome young retirees who wish to earn the semester hours while helping other seniors," Sr. Colleen said.

"We hope the volunteers will be able to help with driving, taking people to doctor appointments or shopping," she added. "Perhaps they can read to them, help them write letters or provide other types of needed service."

Although the government is aware of many senior citizens who live in nursing homes and senior housing, it is estimated there are more than 7,000 unidentified elderly in Livonia and Westland alone.

Those interested in volunteering for the program are asked to contact Sister Colleen Morris, Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

Wednesday, Dec. 10—The resident volunteer division and friends of Williamsburg Convalescent Center, 21017 Middle Belt, Farmington Hills, will host their annual Christmas Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Handmade gift items, wrapping, Williamsburg centerpieces, holiday decorations, baked goods and other treasurers will be sold. Proceeds will go into a field trip fund for residents. Refreshments will be served.

Friday and Saturday, Dec. 12 and 13—An old fashioned Christmas bazaar and bake sale will be held in Salem Township Hall, Six Mile and Dickerson (west of Northville, between Chubb and Currie roads). Sponsored by the Salem Historical Society, it will feature a craft show, candle dipping, quilting and spinning, a children's art show and a euchre tournament.

Santa Claus and a puppet show will be included on Saturday from 3-5 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. The event will be held from 2-9 p.m. on Friday and 12-9 p.m. on Saturday.

Saturday, Dec. 13—The Livonia Jaycettes will run a special shop for youngsters who wish to buy Christmas presents in the Marketplace at Wonderland Center, Plymouth and Middle Belt, Livonia, from 1-3 p.m.

Parents may browse while their children are helped with their shopping by the Jaycettes. All items are under $2, and it is suggested that children have a shopping list with them so they don't forget anyone.

Saturday, Dec. 13—The Panther's Tale, the student newspaper at Garden City East High School, will sponsor a holiday bazaar from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the gymnasium of the school at 6500 Middle Belt.

On sale will be white elephants, candles, stuffed animals and leather goods, with tacos and pizza available for lunch. Booths may be rented for $5, and those interested should call Mrs. Columbe Kaukala at the school.

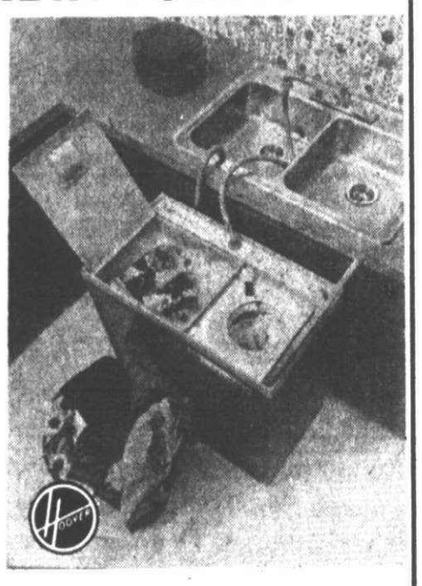

Saturday, Dec. 13—A Christmas bazaar is scheduled in the Norris School, 31627 Palmer, Westland from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The school is devoted to special education, and many of the items for sale have been produced by workers in the Pridecraft Workshop located there.

Besides the gift items, there will be baked goods, games, lunch and a visit from Santa Claus.

Sunday, Dec. 14—A country kitchen sale, with holiday goodies, heirloom ornaments and handmade gifts will be part of the Livonia Historical Society's old-fashioned Christmas at Quaker Village, Seven Mile west of Farmington Road.

The store will be in Shaw House, a building to be opened to the public for the first time, and the event will run from 1-5:30 p.m. Admission is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children under 14.

The new St. Theodore Catholic Church in Westland will be dedicated Saturday, Dec. 13, at 10 a.m. This view shows a statue of the saint for whom the parish is named.

St. Theodore plans dedication of new church

John Cardinal Deardon, archbishop of Detroit, will officiate at the dedication of the new St. Theodore Catholic Church in Westland, Saturday, Dec. 13, at 10 a.m.

Among the other invited guests are priests of the archdiocese and local government officials.

The Rev. John A. Blaska, pastor of the church, stated that "completion of this new house of worship is a sign of the beautiful faith and spirit of sacrifice of the good people of St. Theodore."

He pointed out that the fan-shaped interior of the church with its sloping floor will provide good visibility and closeness to the altar.

"This should bring about a new relationship between sanctuary and community so that Christ, represented by the priest, can easily speak to his people from the pulpit and be in their midst at the altar table," he said.

THE SEATING capacity is 916 and the farthest seat from the altar is 76 feet. Other features are a day chapel, a Casavante Freres pipe organ, a stone baptismal font and a fine accoustical environment.

There were several factors which led to the decision of the parish council to undertake the building of this new church at 8200 Wayne.

The initial factor was the favorable response to a questionaire study conducted in 1970, which indicated that the majority of parishioners wanted a new church.

Another factor was the information gained from a study conducted in 1972, which examined the projected population growth for the portions of Westland and Livonia located within the parish boundaries.

Aided by the Westland and Livonia planning commissions, it was determined that the parish would grow from 1350 families to approximately 2000 families by 1990.

THE PARISH COUNCIL also considered the fact that St. Theodore's religious education classes are presently being conducted in public schools.

Upon completion of the church, many of these will be transferred to the present building which will be an educational and activities center.

Joseph St. Cyr and Associates was the architectural firm for the new facility.

Father Fedyszak joins Sacred Heart

The Rev. Joseph Fedyszak is the new pastor of Sacred Heart Byzantine Catholic Church, located at 29125 Six Mile, Livonia.

He arrived this fall for his new assignment after serving the St. John the Baptist Byzantine Church in Minneapolis and teaching philosophy at SS. Cyril and Methodius Seminary in Orchard Lake.

FR. JOSEPH FEDYSZAK

Fr. Fedyszak succeeds the Rev. Donald Freude, who went to the Church of the Dormition in Akron after five years at Sacred Heart.

The new Livonia clergyman is a native of Warren, Ohio, and graduated from Dusquene University in 1955. He received his licentiate in theology from Catholic University in Washington in 1959 and was ordained April 23, 1959.

He taught at the Orchard Lake Schools seminary from 1959 to 1966 and then served the Minneapolis church until his call here.

The congregation he will lead began in this area in 1957 as a mission church of St. Nicholas Byzantine Church in Detroit. It met for several years in a building on Beech-Daly in Redford Township before laying the cornerstone for its present building in 1967.

The church now has about 130 active families and a complete religious education program.

Advent's anticipation sets ecumenical service theme

By MARGARET MILLER

An ecumenical service that underlines the feeling of anticipation of the Advent season will draw members of eight Redford Township churches to Good Shepherd Lutheran, 26212 Six Mile, on Wednesday, Dec. 17.

The service is the biggest project yet for a group of ministers and priests seeking to join in a more effective ministry for their community.

Scheduled at 7:30 p.m., it has been planned with many unusual features designed to build up the feeling of expectancy that precedes the religious celebration of Christmas, said the Rev. Donna J. Lindberg, pastor of Rice United Methodist Church and one of the members of the newly-organized Redford Clergy.

"I can't say a lot about the service because that would spoil the impact for those who attend," she said, "but I will say I hope the worshipers get as much out of it as we have gained in the planning."

REV. LINDBERG will be the preacher for the evening, and she plans to use the topic "Expecting the Unexpected." Leading the liturgy will be the Rev. Kevin Britt, co-pastor of St. Agatha Catholic Church, and the Rev. Bob Miller, minister of St. Martin Episcopal.

The Madrigal Singers from Village Presbyterian Church, directed by Rodger H. Phillips, will sing.

Other churches involved, so far mainly through their pastors, in the ecumenical program, are St. John Lutheran, pastored by the Rev. Robert Johnson, Augsburg Lutheran, with the Rev. Ron Johnson as pastor, Lola Valley United Methodist, with the Rev. George Kilbourn as minister.

Members of Rice Memorial and St. Agatha—two churches that are close neighbors along Beech-Daly—will add another dinension to the evening's spirit of ecumenity.

Before the service, they will meet in the Rice fellowship room for a soup and sandwich supper. It will be served from 4:30 to 7 p.m.

IF THE FEELING of expectancy is being instilled into the plans for the special service, it also pervades the group of clergy that organized it.

Rev. Lindberg explained that the group came together some months ago, partly as a means of helping several of its members who were fairly new to the Redford area acquaint themselves with its resources.

"We thought it might be a good idea," she said, "if we met as a group and had representatives of such institutions as the Redford Community Hospital, the Neighborhood Watch Program, and RICOD (Redford Information Center on Drugs) come to us.

"We also felt there were many things we as Christian leaders could do for the community, and we could do them better together."

THE NEXT STEP, Rev. Lindberg said, is helping members of the various congregations get acquainted, so they too can work together for the total community.

This was begun Dec. 7 with an exchange of pulpits.

Members of the clergy group picked three Advent season texts from the Old Testament book of Isiah, the New Testament book of Second Peter and the gospel of Mark.

"We all used these texts and exchanged pulpits in a sort of round robin," she said.

The moves for a day took Rev. Johnson to Rice, Rev. Kilbourn to St. Agatha, Rev. Miller to Good Shepherd, Rev. Don Herdman of Good Shepherd to Village Presbyterian, Rev. James Crawford of Village to Augsburg, Rev. Ron Johnson to Lola Valley, Rev. Lindberg to St. John, Rev. Robert Johnson to Lola Valley, and Father Britt to St. Martin.

The clergy group is continuing its regular meetings and planning future joint projects, but in the meantime urging everyone to attend the Advent service.

"People go through Christmas after Christmas and often they find nothing," Donna Lindberg said. "We want to awaken the feeling of expectancy and perhaps show what we are waiting for."

A huge Christmas-wrapped box will be a focal point in the Redford community Advent service Wednesday, Dec. 17, at 7:30 p.m. But pastors Donna Lindberg (left) of Rice United Methodist, Donald Herdman of Good Shepherd Lutheran, the host church, and Joseph Romano of St. Agatha Catholic, aren't saying yet what's inside. Choirs join for cantata

The choirs of Alpha Baptist Church of Livonia and Nankin Mills Baptist Church of Livonia will join in presenting John Peterson's newest Christmas cantata, "Christ Is Born," on Sunday, Dec. 14.

The music will be sung in Nankin Mills Church, 32430 Ann Arbor Trail, at 9:45 a.m. and in Alpha, 28051 W. Chicago, at 7 p.m. Nursery care will be provided during both concerts.

Featured soloists will be Joan Russell, John Ashford, Wesley Duncan and Alice Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. John Homes will sing a duet. Mrs. Martha Radionoff is directing the cantata, and David Langlois will be narrator.

Clown show to aid children

Members of the Pathfinders Club of the Plymouth Seventh-Day Adventist Church will sponsor a clown and magic show Saturday, Dec. 13 at 7 p.m. in Plymouth Salem High School, with proceeds going to the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The youth group led by Steven Baggett is presenting Ricky the Clown and his puppets and dogs, and clowns of the Galicia Caravan, International Order of Alhambra, along with Felix Lorenz Jr., a member of the Plymouth church who does a musical magic act.

Ricky and the Alhambra entertainers are regular contributors to funds for retarded children, and the church youth group will join them in donating proceeds to that cause.

Tickets are $1 if ordered in advance from Barry Good, 18537 Westmore, Livonia, or $1.25 if purchased at the door.

Citadel songs

The Salvation Army's Danforth Citadel Songsters from Toronto will present a choral Christmas concert Saturday, Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Dearborn Heights Citadel, 26700 W. Warren, between Beech Daly and Inkster. Tickets are $1.50 and available at the door.

Schoolcraft choirs join for Christmas concert

The choirs of Schoolcraft College will present a winter concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14, in the chapel of St. John's Seminary, Five Mile near Sheldon, in Plymouth Township.

Both the chorale and the symphonic choir will perform under the direction of Marilyn Jones. They will be joined by regular accompanist Tamara Najar, and also by instrumental ensembles.

The Schoolcraft Chorale will present as its major work the "Magnificat" by Bach. Student soloists Judy Wheeler, Jackie Kozyn, Sue Stott, Margaret Graham and Chris McAuliffe, along with alumnus Robb Morisi, will be featured in this work.

Morisi will also perform the tenor solo in Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity," the Symphonic Choir's offering of the afternoon. Soprano Valerie Loiselle will perform the part of Maria, and will be joined by her brother Dan in the combined choirs' performance of Gabrieli's in "Ecclesiis."

Because of its unique monastic seating plan, the chapel of St. John's was selected for this joint concert by the Schoolcraft College day and evening school choirs. The organ will be played by seminarian Ed Perrone, with other instrumental accompaniment provided primarily by Schoolcraft music students.

Theater group holds auditions

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will hold open auditions for "The Rope Dancers" at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 14, and Monday, Dec. 15, at 15138 Beech Daly (just south of Five Mile Road), Redford. This play, the first by Morton Wishengrad, won the respect and praise of the New York critics when it was presented with a cast headed by Siobhan McKenna, Art Carney, and Joan Blondell.

Of special interest to child actresses, the play offers roles for two girls of approximately 11 or 12 years of age.

Performances are scheduled for the last two weeks of February and the first week of March.

Rock matmen capture invitational

Coach Ron Krueger relaxes on the bench as his wrestling team captures first place in the Allen Park Invitational. (Staff photo by Maurie Walker)

There may be a new one word cheer echoing through the halls at Plymouth-Salem High School. It's wrestling Coach Ron Krueger's quote describing his grapplers performance Saturday at the Allen Park Wrestling Invitational. The word is, "dynamite."

The Rock matmen not only won first with 125 team points but senior Captain Carl Schultz earned the Most Valuable Wrestler honors.

Seeded as number one in the 126-pound class Schultz pinned Paul Chladzinski of Taylor Kennedy in 1:18 and Tony Tiberia of Melvindale in 1:08.

In the championship match with the Jaguar's Paul Smith, who also had two falls, Schultz won by a decisive margin, 12-6.

Three other Rocks won first place medals. Junior Les Hassen at 112 pounds, junior Dave Champion at 185 pounds and senior Dave Kolb at heavyweight.

Dave Tamagne, 1974 Plymouth-Salem graduate, who is the assistant wrestling coach, said "I thought it was great. A couple of surprises came through and some good tough wrestling was done when it was needed."

The host team, Allen Park, was right up there for second place in team standings with 114 points. Coach Robert Seman saw three of his Jaguars take the championship spot. They were: Ron Vig at 98-pounds, Randy Mrock at 132 pounds, and Bob Loyd at 138 pounds. Both Vig and Mrock had two falls to their credit.

RESULTS:
Team Scores

Salem tankers nip Northville

By BILL COLLINS

It was nip and tuck from the beginning before the Plymouth Salem Rocks came up with the first two places in the final event to whip the Northville Mustang swimmers, 87-85.

"Our team is not used to Tuesday meets, and we didn't swim as well as I expected, but it was well enough to win," said coach Byron Williams jubilantly after edging the defending Western Six champions.

Plymouth swept seven of 11 firsts during the evening but the lead by both teams never exceeded more than two points. The Rocks were carried by a pair of double winners.

Junior Ron Finley set a new school record in the 200 I.M. with a 2:09.1 clocking, eclipsing the six year old record by a full second. Finley also won the 100-yard butterfly in a time of 57.6.

Sophomore Tom Griffin was the other dual winner for Salem, touching first in both freestyle sprint events. Griffin won the 50-yard freestyle in 24 seconds flat, and captured the 100-yard free event in 52.4.

Both senior co-captains won their specialties as Bill Chlopan won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:02.1, while Tom Smith conquered the field in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:58.1 timing.

Coach Williams explained the drama towards the end of the meet. "They (Northville) won the 100-yard breaststroke 11-5, which meant that we had to place both our relay teams in the top two spots in the final event to win. They figured there was no way we could do it, but we showed them," he stated.

Salem won the final race 12 points to two, giving them the favorable verdict in the 87-75 decidion over rival Northville. The win boosted Salem's overall record to 2-0 in dual meet action.

The winning crew in the 400-yard freestyle relay was composed of Alan Hunter, Tom Robadue, Mike Etienne and Ron Finley with a winning mark of 3:35.

Finishing in the runnerup position a safe two seconds ahead of Northville was the team of Dave Schroeder, Craig Richter, Tom Smith and Tom Griffin in a 3:36.5 clocking.

Plymouth Salem now enters the Redford Union Invitional Relays to be held Saturday at R.U. High School. Of the 13 schools competing there'll be five Suburban Eight schools which will tell quite a bit as to the way things will run in that conference this season.

Coach Williams figures on Northville and Salem being the prime contenders in this invitional that begins with the preliminaries at 3 p.m. and the final to be held at 7 p.m.

An offense breaks down

Chiefs fall to Belleville

By BILL COLLINS

For the first two quarters, it looked as if this match would witness an upset.

However, the Plymouth Canton Chiefs' hopes of surprising the Belleville Tigers were dashed when the Chiefs went scoreless in the third quarter, ultimately losing to Belleville, 54-30.

Canton played even with their Suburban Eight foe for the first half as both teams committed turnovers while Belleville was chalking up unnecessary fouls.

But when the pace settled down, neither team could string a few buckets to take command of the game.

Belleville, a team that relies heavily on the rebounding and scoring of their frontcourt duo of Narvell Turner and Dennis Easley, couldn't hit the outside shots and were forced to spend most of their time playing defense.

AFTER AN 8-8 first quarter deadlock, Canton utilized the rebounding of Steve Salyer and Bill Parsons along with the many opportunities they had at the foul line to snare a 21-18 margin with two minutes left in the half.

Keith Osborne and Bill Parsons combined for 11 points in the second period to keep the Chiefs on an even level with the Tigers, as the half ended with Belleville on top 22-21.

When the third quarter opened Belleville's man-to-man press forced two Chief miscues which were converted into points, giving the Tigers to a 30-22 lead.

It seemed that someone had either turned out the lights, or put a cover on the Chief basket as all 12 of their shots bounced in every direction but in.

Canton's offense was a study in frustration, as the chiefs fell to a 17-point deficit at the end of the third quarter, 38-21.

The tandem of Turner and Easley led the offensive surge for the Tigers in the second half.

TURNER TOOK game scoring honors with 21 points with Easley adding another 17 to total 38 of their teams 54 points.

Canton was led in scoring by junior forward Mike Albright with 12 points, eight of which came from the charity stripe.

Tom Close and Keith Osborne added eight each.

Coach Casey Cavell didn't need to say anything after the game. His club had lost their third on a row shooting 21 percent from the floor, lowering their team scoring average to 40 points per game.

Canton will try to forget their non-league games when they open up their Western Six conference schedule with the Livonia Churchill Chargers tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Livonia.

Wayne takes own invitational

An air of rivalry was apparent even before the first match took place at the twelve team Western Wayne Wrestling Tournament last Saturday at John Glenn.

Very little if anything seldom comes out what actually happens behind the closed door session when the coaches meet to decide on the order of seating their boys for a tournament. However, this area's two wrestling deans, Bob Lusk, of John Glenn, and Don Haney, Wayne Memorial's coach, apparently had a verbal match of their own that set the stage for the rest of the day. The outcome may have been a draw but the wrestlers' matches that followed were decided with no quarter given by anyone.

The Wayne Memorial Wolfpack took home the first place team trophy with 181½ points and their own Doug Cunningham, 155-pound tournament champion, also won the most outstanding wrestler award. An elated coach Don Haney remarked, "I'm very happy with my boys' performances and the season is just starting. We have some holes to fill and some rough spots to work on but the team is in good physical condition."

He added, "Of course, we have this great cheering crowd behind us."

Following the Wolfpack for second place with 154½ team points was John Glenn's Rockets. The man that drives those young grapplers, Bob Lusk, said "We're just warming up." Coach Lusk recognizes a competitors ability.

He commented, "Wayne Memorial is definitely a tough team and in top condition."

During the finals in the evening the cheering sections of Wayne Memorial and John Glenn, sitting across the gym from each other, jockeyed back and forth from one mat to another. The semi-finals and championship matches were alternated on the two remaining mats, and the galleries were following their teams enmasse to cheer each grappler on to victory.

Belleville's Tigers were right behind the top two teams earning third place with 149½ points. The Tigers have claws and this team will be one of the top contenders for the Suburban-Eight title.

Barry Walsh is Farmington's new coach. He replaced Richard Cook and the man beside him is Paul Osentoski. These two young men saw their Falcons earn 110½ points to finish in fourth place in the team standings. Walsh is a fine wrestler in his own right and will be trying out for the 1976 Olympics. Osentoski last year was an outstanding wrestler and captain of Eastern Michigan's team.

Barry Walsh spoke of his team. "We have this great gallery support and following and for the first outing I'm very pleased with the team's showing."

Most wrestling coaches look like former matmen but Vern Logan, coach of the Romulus Eagles is a very polite soft-speaking man. His enthusiasm showed when he spoke of his boys and especially when talking of his heavyweight, who took first place by coming from behind in his last two matches and pinning both Jerome Pershon of Taylor Truman and then the Rockets Chuck Squires. "Abbot is a senior and has so far 3-0 this season, I feel he'll go on," Coach Logan said. The Eagles place fifth in the team standings with 101 points.

The remaining order of team results were: sixth Crestwood with 57 points, seventh Garden City West with 41 points, eighth Bentley with 27 points, ninth Taylor Center with 24 points, tenth Cherryhill with 23½ points, eleventh Taylor Truman with 15 points and twelfth Plymouth-Canton with 10 points.

Chief matmen fall to Bulldogs

Coach Dan Chrenko and his Canton Chief matmen were at Bentley Thursday for their first dual meet this '75-'76 season. The Bulldogs took the junior varsity meet 42-24 and the varsity meet with a score of 45-19.

This is Coach David Mineau's second year as head wrestling coach at Bentley. He was somewhat surprised with the final results as he said, "I thought we would win, but not by that much."

It was practically an all-or-nothing meet for both squads. Bentley's matmen had 7 pins in each meet and the Chiefs had 3 pins for the JV's and 2 pins with one 4 point major decision at the varsity level.

Plymouth-Canton has only had a wrestling team since the 1973-74 year with Dan Chrenko as the varsity coach. Coach Chrenko appraised his team by saying, "We're a young team and I think it's important to realize that here our wrestlers had their first mat experience in competition."

The Chief's varsity team consists of one freshmam, eight sophomores, one junior and two seniors. The Bulldogs, a more seasoned team has only three sophomores.

Coach Mineau points with pride to his 145-pound senior, Bill Brandon, who has a record of 3-0 and all are falls for the start of the year.

The high point of the night for the Chiefs was at their final match when sophomore, Bob Yauck recorded the fastest pin of the meet in :32 seconds.

Yauck is also a varsity football player and he started this wrestling season by placing fourth at the Northville Invitational.

Bentley cagers squeak by Franklin

Livonia Bentley and crosstown rival Franklin matched basket for basket the first three quarters Tuesday night before the Bulldogs turned on the defensive crimp midway through the final period,, propelling Bentley to a hard-fought 59-55 verdict over the Patriots.

Utilizing a 1-3-1 zone defense and the box press, the Bulldogs forced several turnovers in the deciding period, then followed up with several easy markers, forging to a 10 point lead from which Franklin could not come back.

Jim Rhodes played an outstanding game for Bentley, canning 11 field goals and five free throws to lead all scorers with 27 points. Rhodes also added 13 rebounds and four assists, while Bulldog center Tim Weiss tossed in 13 points and hauled down 14 caroms.

Franklin played a tough, physical game all the way as three starters, all members of the Patriots' championship football team—Sam Williams, John Elmore and Dennis Wesley—fouled out.

Williams tallied 12 points for Franklin, while John Lyons added 11 and Dan Pederson and Jim Gleason had 10 apiece.

Garden City East—Wayne Memorial

The Panthers won their third game in four decisions this season Tuesday by downing Wayne Memorial 83-73 in a contest punctuated with a rash of fouls. East actually won the game at the charity stripe, connecting on 39 of 51 opportunities.

The Panthers held a slim 33-32 advantage at halftime, staying in the ball game even though Wayne's Pat Sheridan hit for 12 points during the second eight minutes.

East coach Billy Joe Young put center Creg Emery on Sheridan in the second half, and the Panthers' mentor said the big senior responded by holding the Wayne sharpshooter to one basket through the first 11 minutes of the second half.

At the same time, Emery was responding with 34 points on the evening with eight field goals and 18 of 23 from the foul line. Wally Krol and Dan Loacano each added 13 points for the Panthers.

"We only had 13 turnovers during the game," said a pleased Young, "and Wayne is a super, super aggressive team, so that indicates to me that our lads were doing some real fine ball handling."

Young added that he was pleased with the vast improvement in his team's foul shooting—the Panthers connected on 16 of 19 chances in the fourth period—and the progress shown by the defense the last two contests.

JV Rocks edged

Salem went ice cold in the third period scoring a total of five points, and strained for eleven more in the fourth period as they lost their suburban eight season opener to a scrappy Redford Union team.

Stealing the ball several times in the first period; along with the sharp shooting of Dan Brightbill, the Rocks led at the end of the first 18 to 17.

It was John Broderick's turn in the second, just about everything he threw went into the hoop along with some great assists from Rich Hewlett and Doug Agnew. The half ended with Salem ahead 36 to 30.

Opening the second half, Plymouth could not penetrate inside RU's tight defense, and missed shots from the outside. The Rocks were outscored 16 to 5 in this period.

Salem stayed within 5 points throughout the fourth but could not get the big basket.

Mitch Haas, one of the Rocks leading rebounders, fouled out with 7:07 left to play.

Rich Hewlett, freshman guard, put on a tremendous display of defensive basketball in the fourth quarter, trying desperately to get his team back in the game.

But a game total of 7 steals, most coming in the frantic fourth, wasn't enough even with his 30 ft. basket at the buzzer.

One of the things which has hurt the Rocks has been at the foul line. They made only 4 out of 13.

A good team with some outstanding talent the Rocks should be exciting to watch in the future with players like Broderick who led the scoring with 18 points, Brightbill with 10, Mitch Haas with 9 and that young freshman sensation Rich Hewlett.

When it comes to close finishes, you won't find any more dramatic than those posted along the west suburban bowling front during the past week.

Two of the best examples came in the senior house league at Westland Bowl where only 10 pins separated the top three scorers, and in the invitational ladies doubles at Merri-Bowl where nine pins separated the top four in the standings.

Bob Wright survived a close battle at Westland where he linked games of 205, 202 and 249 for 656 to beat out Mark Stawski by a single pin with Wayne McKay in third place with a 645.

In the Merri-Bowl drama, Kay Markell closed with a 214 for 576 to win top honors. The battle for second place was a dandy and Barb Smith won it with a 569, one pin ahead of Sarah Mertz, with Marge Ankrell one pin further back in fourth place. It was the closest battle of the season in the circuit.

High game for the week at Merri-Bowl went to Vito Tetrul with a 289 in the senior house league.

TELMAN DOZIER set a new high for the industrial league at Plymouth Bowl with a 268 game while Jim Klebba won high series with a 638.

Consistent bowling brought its reward for Jerry Turner in the Bel-aire senior house league. He opened with a 233, matched that figure in the second for 233 and closed with a 225 for 691.

His closest rivals were Stan Wilkins with 623 and Bill Lessway with 605.

THE JUNIOR HIGH girls had a new leader this week at Farmington Lanes. Joan Theisen took over the pace-making role with a 202 in 539.

SCORES SOARED a bit at Country Lanes and Bill Gascon profited by the colder weather with a 266 in 665. It was the highest series of the season in the league.

Ru hosts relays

Seven local high school swimming teams will be among 12 squads from the Detroit area which will battle for early-season supremacy Saturday (Dec. 12) at the twelfth annual Redford Union Relays.

Teams with local followings scheduled to compete are Livonia Bentley, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Salem, Redford Thurston and host RU.

Unlike regular dual meets, where nine of the 11 events are individual-oriented races, each event in the RU Relays will feature a four-man team swimming in relay fashion.

Relays are scheduled utilizing the four basic strokes—freestyle, back, breast and butterfly. A pair of medley races and a diving relay also are on the schedule.

Individual medals and ribbons will be awarded in each relay, a school trophy will be presented to the winner of each event and a championship and runner-up trophies will be conferred on an overall performance basis.

The preliminaries begin at 3 p.m., with the finals slated to start at 7 p.m.

Tickets, priced at $1 for students and $1.50 for adults, may be purchased at the door starting at 12:30 p.m. The door will open at 6:30 p.m. for the finals.

RU is located on Kinloch Avenue, four blocks west of Beech Daly and half-way between Six and Seven Mile Roads.

HOLIDAY ART CONTEST

Dear Kids,

It's holiday time again, and that means it's time for the annual Observer & Eccentric Holiday Art Contest! If you're a boy or girl in any grade between 1 and 6, and if you live in our newspaper circulation area, then you can enter our Holiday Art Contest and maybe win a prize!! All you have to do is create your own work of art. When you do, try to think about the "holiday" theme. Show us, in your own way, how the holidays make you feel, or what the season and these special times mean to you. Show us in any form you like: drawing, painting, collage, sculpture, mixed media, even 3-dimensional creations. But — there is a size limitation. 2-dimensional (basically flat) works can be as big as 11"x14", and 3-dimensional works can be as large as 16"x16"x16".

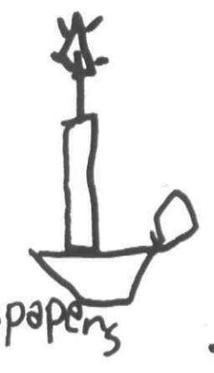

Merry Christmas

Glenn cagers bow

A cold, cold shooting night, in which the Westland John Glenn Rockets could capitalize on only 15 of 50 field goal attempts, spelled trouble for coach Gordon Davis' charges, as Taylor Center upended Glenn, Tuesday, 55-39.

"Taylor played good defense, but we just weren't converting tonight," Davis summarized. "We missed several close-in shots and they were controlling the boards which pretty much tells the story."

The Rockets fell into a pattern which has plagued them during all four of their games played this season—poor offensive showings in the opening and final quarters.

Taylor Center, led by 6-7 center Tom Shinn, held a 14-5 first period edge, but, as in the past, Glenn pulled itself together in the second stanza to stay in the game at the intermission, 32-22.

"We came back in the second quarter and got within four, but then Taylor Center spurted up by seven and we just couldn't whittle it down," Davis concluded.

The Rockets showed some poise and courage during the third period, outscoring Taylor Center 11-8, but the mysterious fourth quarter jinx struck again, as Glenn managed only six points when offensive punch was most needed.

Taylor's Shinn counted 20 points on the contest and numerous rebounds to pace the visiting contingent, while the Rockets received balanced scoring from Dan Diadiun, George Roberts, and Todd DeLuca, who tallied 12, 11 and 10 points respectively.

Plymouth's rural past measured in 'minutes'

Evidence of Plymouth's rural past abounds in old minutes of the township board.

Proceedings of the board from 1898 to 1902 illuminate an era when domestic animals were of great importance to the local economy, when the safety of local bridges was a prime concern, and when prices and wages were unbelievably low compared with those in today's bloated economy.

SEVERAL ENTRIES in 1898, when local farmers raised sheep and Plymouth merchants bought wool, indicate that the township board reimbursed owners for sheep killed by dogs.

The sheep owner presented a bill, the justice of the peace examined the dead sheep, certified that a dog or dogs were responsible, and the board paid the owner the prevailing rate.

On Aug. 15, 1898, after Robert Maiden, Justice of the Peace, had examined the carcass, J. J. Shearer was paid $3 for a sheep killed by a dog. On Nov. 30, Horace Smith requested $4 a head for nine sheep killed "by a dog or dogs," but the board paid him its ususl rate of $3 a head. On Sept. 18 of the following year, Oliver J. Loomis, then Justice of the Peace, certified that Charles Forsyth was due $3 each for two of his sheep killed by dogs. For his examination and certification services the Justice was paid $2 per visit.

ONE SECTION of the township records was devoted to "estrays"—domestic animals found wandering without an owner.

Those who found stray livestock were obligated to report their finds to the township clerk. On May 6, 1901, Fred A. Dibble, the Clerk, reported that a local resident "found running at-large in the public highways and opposite his farm, and took same into custody, the following described animals: one brindle cow and six young cattle, one of these young cattle being white and five of them being red with white spots."

On Sept. 26, O.H. Cook reported to Dibble that "on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 17, there came wandering into my field (farm belonging to John Kellogg) one roan mustang pony with brand on right shoulder, white star on forehead and one white hind foot."

THE TOWNSHIP BOARD was frequently called on to make decisions about the safety of local bridges.

On May 9, 1898, it condemned the Shattuck Bridge for reasons of safety. Shattuck Bridge, so named after the Shattuck family whose farm is now part of Riverside Cemetery, crossed the Middle Rouge River just east of the village on Plymouth Road (formerly called the Plymouth Plank Road).

The Shattuck Bridge over the Middle Rouge River was just west of the Hillside Inn's present location. The view is toward the City of Plymouth. The house in the distance at left is probably the Pfeiffers. (From "Pictures of Plymouth Past and Present" with permission of Sam Hudson)

To replace the Shattuck Bridge, bids were solicited for furnishing plans and materials and constructing a 54-foot steel span "to be planked with three inch white oak plank of good quality." The job was awarded to the Groton Bridge Company, Groton, N.Y. In October, the board accepted the new bridge and authorized the borrowing of $1,462 from the First National Bank of Plymouth to pay the Groton firm.

On June 30, 1899, the bridge over Tonquish Creek on Golden Road (Ann Arbor Road) was condemned and repaired. In June, 1900, the Harvey Street Bridge over the Tonquish (since piped and covered over) needed two stone abutments. The job was awarded to George King, a local stonemason, who bid $150.

On July 16, 1900, Highway Commissioner William Henry reported that abutments at the Charles Allen Bridge needed repainting and the bridge needed repainting. The Phoenix Mill Bridge also needed repainting.

Stone abutments of the town line bridge between Plymouth and Northville were in bad shape and the bridge needed repairing, but Northville Township, which had split away from Plymouth only two years before, refused to share in the cost (estimated at $50). Henry recommended that Plymouth proceed with the work and attempt to recover half the cost from Northville at a future time.

THE AMOUNT of work a dollar could command in Plymouth at the turn of the century was prodigious.

In 1899, Adelbert A. Tafft, the township clerk, was paid a yearly salary of $75. Dr. F.B. Adams' yearly salary as health officer was $12. George Starkweather assessed property for the township at the rate of $2 a day. In 1901, local men who painted bridges were paid $1.50 per day. A man who worked on the roads, providing his own team of horses, was paid $3 a day.

Township payments for materials and services were comparably low. In 1899, Gifford Chase's bill for 72 days hire of his horse for road work was only $15.

During an election, John Klee, landlord, asked a total of $1.25 for five lunches served to election workers (and lunches in those days were considerably more substantial than a hamburger and a cup of coffee). In 1901, Ed McClumpha charged the township the going rate for 34 loads of gravel—10 cents a load!

THE MUNDANE matters which occupied the attention of the township board 75 years ago bring to mind the opening line of a famous sonnet by Wordsworth "The world is too much with us; late and soon."

Worldly preoccupations, however, whether we like it or not, are vital to the running of the social machinery. The only way to escape them is the final one, as we are reminded by this entry in the township minutes:

"At a meeting of the Plymouth Township Board held on the 9th day of January, 1900, Mr. Israel F. Chilson, one of its most highly esteemed and efficient members, made no response at roll call, death having released him from further earthly troubles."

Center to be entertained by barbershop quartet

The children at the Plymouth Center for Human Development will be entertained Dec. 15, for the eighth consecutive year, by members of the Motor City Chorus from the Detroit No. 1 Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. (SPEBQSA).

The evening of Christmas entertainment, barbershop style, is an effort made by the Detroit chapter each year to honor the children in the center at Sheldon and Five Mile with seasonal harmony and delivers to them a nice gift from Santa. Last year's gift was a stereo record player.

The membership of Detroit No. 2, which stands at 122, includes eight members from the Plymouth community: Ed Conn, Wally Dorosh, Harold Kendall and Don Smith from Plymouth; Rene LeBlanc, John Longridge and Chuck Mills from Canton; and Pat Ryan from Northville.

This annual visit is but one of many charitable services performed by the Detroit chapter each year and by other chapters of the society.

Dedication Service

More than 500 persons sat down to a bountiful potluck dinner last Sunday following dedication services of the addition to St. Peter Lutheran Day School on Penniman Avenue. Before breaking bread in the multipurpose room, the Rev. Leonard J. Koeninger asked, in his blessing, that this be but the first of many such happy occasions. He added that if the good Lord is willing, "We may win a few basketball games here too." (Staff photos)

It was a happy day for Dave Jacobs, principal of St. Peter Lutheran Day School and his family, from left, Kristi, Mrs. Jacobs, Dominic, Tanya and Jacobs.

Record deer

Michigan's record whitetail deer was shot near Trout Creek in 1919 by Albert Tippett of Flint. The Department of Natural Resources says Tippett's deer dressed out at 354 pounds and was estimated 425 pounds live weight.

Richard Brucker, building committee chairman, left, and the Rev. Leonard J. Koeninger of St. Peters Lutheran Church.

Winners

A pair of Redford Township students, Bill Stachura and Mark Holowchak, has won the men's doubles portion of the Henry Ford Community College Intramural Ping-Pong Tournament.

Stachura, a sophomore, and Holowchak, a freshman, compiled a perfect 12-0 record during the round-robin matches to garner the title.

Holowchak had earlier won the men's singles crown.

'Sing America' is presented for 3 schools

"Sing America" has been presented at four schools in the Plymouth community by the Detroit Youtheatre.

The bicentennial musical revue was presented as part of the Detroit Institute of Arts Youtheatre Show-on-the-Road program, made possible in part by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, a state agency.

The performance was presented Wednesday, Dec. 10, at Bird Elementary and Our Lady of Good Council Catholic School. Today (Thursday) it will be presented at Smith and Gallimore elementary schools.

"Sing America" is a musical revue in song, dance and story. In 10 scenes, the history of America's first 100 years comes to life through traditonal North American folk songs and ballads.

Each scene deals with a major historic development including the American Revolution, the Civil War, the Gold Rush and homesteading.

With the aid of dramatic narrative and dance, professional singers and dancers set the story of America moving. The performance featured Calamity Jane as its main character, telling her exciting story with her fictional partner Johnny Flint.

DEAR READERS,
I have opened a most unusual gift shop, Gusta's Boutique, at the SOMERSET INN HOTEL. I design most of the jewelry. I also have on display my own bronze work. They are originals, only one of each in the world. Everyone says it is different. I agree. They also say it is great work and again I agree. What do you think?? Of course, if you come out and look at them, we will be happy to have an opinion. This is an invitation! 643-8257
