Master land use plan to be unveiled

By RICHARD GOLD

After more than 16 months of work, Canton's new master land use plan is ready to be put before the public.

On Tuesday night, the planning commission voted to hold a public hearing on the plan March 1 or 2 at either the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park or the UAW union hall 48055 Michigan Avenue in Belleville.

The plan, which has been stalled by assorted problems, was given the green light by land use lawyer Burt Burgoyne and consultant Professor Robert Hotaling of Michigan State University recently, paving the way for its presentation.

Originally, it had been hoped by the township administration that the plan would be ready last summer, but an injury to planner Mike Manore held up the plan for almost three months.

AFTER HIS return, the plan was completed and turned over to Burgoyne and Hotaling several months ago. Since then, township officals have been waiting for the go ahead from them.

"We wanted to make sure the plan was defensible both legally and technically," explained supervisor Robert Greenstein, "so we brought in two experts to look at it.

"Legally, Burgoyne gave it the OK, and Hotaling was really pleased with it.

"He said it was are volutionary plan and one that may set the pace for everyone else in the next 15 years.

The decision to go ahead with a new master land use plan was made by the previous township administration in December 1972.

The following March, a Citizens' Advisory Committee was formed to help direct the planners in formulating the plan.

In September 1974 the plan was brought before the public where it met with negative response and the planner went back to the drawing board.

"There was great concern about the entire fabric of the plan," explained planner Mike Manore. "There were objections to the goals, objectives, and the heart of the plan; so we started again.

"Much of what was said at that public hearing is reflected in this plan.

Manore said many reasons accounted for the delay in presenting the new plan. "The public hearing in 1974 set us back quite a bit, my accident slowed it down, and more importantly, we were dealing with many new concepts— when you're pioneering something it takes longer to work out the details.

"In terms of planning, I think Canton is in the forefront.

"We have had to proceed slowly and at every point along the way, we have had to reassess and resolve how far the public can go in determining land use versus the individual's private property rights.

"Often they are in conflict and that's what the whole planning process is about.

Hearing date set

"Some will say this plan is confiscatory, but I don't think so—I think it's a solid piece of work."

Although the plan is virtually ready for publication, minor changes have to be made, Manore explained. " I met with Burt Burgoyne and we went over the text and map and he suggested several areas be modified. That shouldn't take more than a few days."

If a large room, either the Salem High auditorium, or the Canton auditorium is available on March 1, the planning commission members said they would go ahead with the hearing.

If not, the public hearing will be held the next day at either the CEP or the union hall.

Copies of the entire text, a 180-page document explaining the map, will be available next week at the township business offices, the firehall, and the chamber of commerce office in Harvard Squre shopping center, Ford and Sheldon.

Fifty texts have been ordered along with 1,000 five- or six-page summaries of the text. The summaries, which will include 24-by-36 inch maps, will be distributed free to the public at the hearing.

"The summaries will explain the plan and the objectives of the work in very broad terms," said Manore. "It will deal with the most basic aspects."

Additional copies of the full text will be sent to Plymouth Township planners and board members and they will be invited to sit in on the public hearing.

ALTHOUGH THE township board can take no action on the land use plan, it is responsible for passing a zoning text that will implement it. That text will follow the passage of the plan.

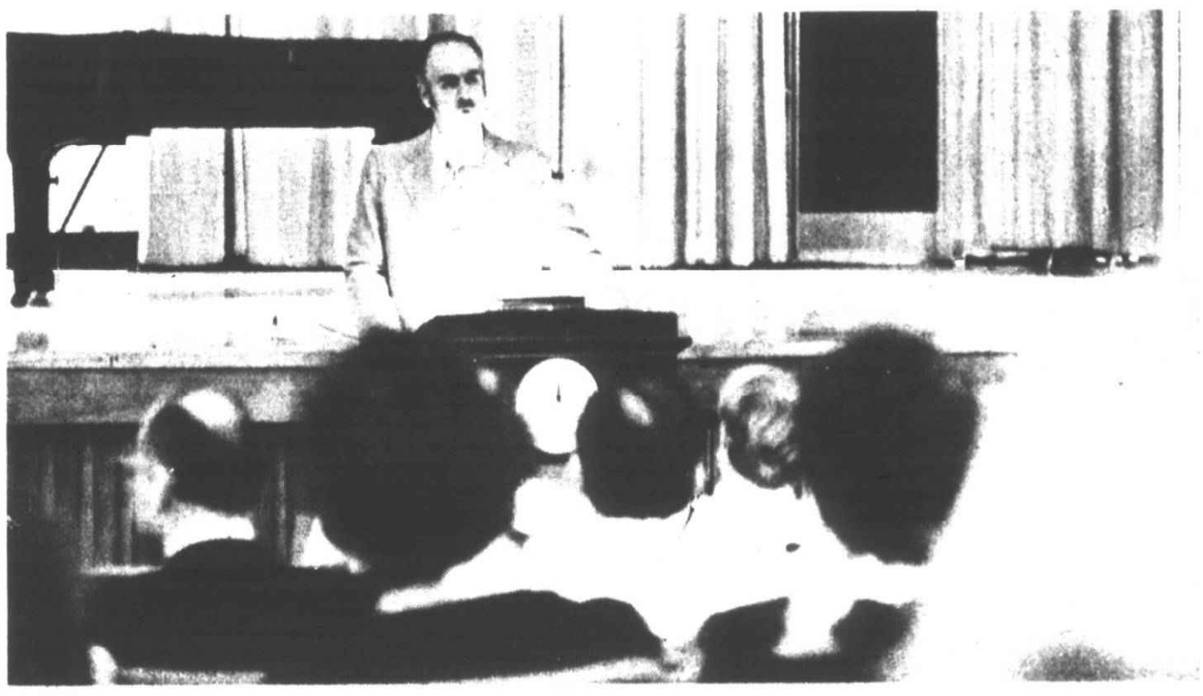

The planning commission will conduct the public hearing and act on the plan, possibly the same night as the hearing.

The zoning text will then go before the planning commission and a recommendation will be made to the board, which must then approve or reject it.

"The reason for the joint meetings between the board and planning commission was so they could coordinate the plan and zoning ordinance," Manore explained. "We can't have each group going off in different directions.

"Because the zoning ordinance implements the plan, it's imperative we prepare it as soon as possible. It's a horse race because there's no good or clean way to protect the plan until the ordinance comes out. But I can't say right now how long it will take. Some take as long as six months."

The exact date, location and time of the public hearing will be published in a legal advertisement next Thursday in the Canton Observer & Eccentric, and, at that time, maps and texts will be available to the public.

Telling it like it is

Canton Township Treasurer Carl Parsell, a former Detroit police officer for 26 years, including 18 years on the beat, tells those attending the police reserve training sessions about the frustrations and pitfalls all police officers run into on the job.

Public information service

Phone system ready

Canton residents wishing to know more about upcoming board and planning commission meetings, club activities and important actions of the township administration will be aided by a new direct-dial phone service installed last Friday at the township business offices.

By dialing 326-6416 township residents can get "a synopsis of meeting agendas, updates on important board actions, and news of club and recreation activities in the township."

Currently that is all the recording tells callers, but on Friday (tomorrow), officials are hopeful the phone system will be in full swing.

Cost of the recording device is $25 a month, according to Trustee Gerry Cheske, who learned about the system from Westland, which has a similar model in operation.

"THE SYSTEM WILL be completely apolitical," said Cheske. "We will use it basically as a community calendar of events. Prior to meetings we will run the agenda, and the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday following a meeting, we'll run information on senior citizen, club and civic association activities."

The phone recording is a 24-hour system and is operational on weekends. It carries either one or two-minute messages.

"There's a couple of problems with it," explained Cheske. "Each time you call, it goes through twice, and it won't store calls, so residents often may find it busy.

"There are models that can handle more than one call at a time, but they are much more expensive. We'll have to wait and see how this one is accepted before thinking about going to something like that."

Cheske said the township will monitor use of the device initially to see if it is a worthwhile expenditure of money. If no one is using it, it may be dropped after some time. If too many people can't get through, it may be expanded.

"Ideally, we'd like to limit use of it to one-minute tapes," explained the trustee. "Two minutes is a long time and it could prevent more people from getting through, so we may have to edit the routine things out of the agenda when we put it on the recording.

"I THINK THE thing will be quite valuable. There are a lot of people interested in attending township meetings, and with the master land use plan hearings coming up, even more people will be interested."

Cheske said when nothing is available to put on the tape, a stock recording explaining the purpose of the phone system will be played. "There won't be any dead air," he said. "There's nothing worse than calling up and having nothing to listen to. Anyone that did would never use it again."

Cheske said he will be writing the copy, and Pam Phillips, secretary to the supervisor, will be making the recordings.

The silken voice you hear when calling Canton Township Hall for information on what will be on the agenda for the next board meeting belongs to Pam Phillips, secretary to the supervisor.

Family concert is Sunday

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's annual family concert at 4 p.m. Sunday will carry on the tradition of music for all ages—from great-grandmothers to four-year-olds.

With conductor Wayne Dunlap on the podium for the first time since his heart attack last summer, it will be more of a family affair.

"It was just as if he had never been away," said Bill Beitner, trumpet player. He was referring to Dunlap's first rehearsal with the orchestra since his illness.

"You'd never know he'd been sick," Beitner added.

This season marks Dunlap's 25th year with the local orchestra.

FOR MANY of the musicians, each rehearsal and concert is a family experience.

The two young soloists in Sunday's concert, Scott Woolweaver and Charles Roth, almost grew up in the orchestra.

Scott is the grandson of Marcie Woolweaver, a cellist with the group until she and her husband Herb moved to their retirement home in northern Michigan.

Six members of the Roth family have been members of the orchestra.

Father William Roth plays viola, mother Louise Roth plays bass, younger brother Peter plays cello, and Charles has been principal in the second violin section for two years. Sisters Sarah, cellist, and Eleanor, violinist, are studying music in Ann Arbor. Charles is a freshman in the University of Michigan School of Music but has maintained his membership in the orchestra.

Janet Holt, cellist, and Jean Braun, principal in the viola section, are sisters. They joined the orchestra about 15 years ago.

Dunlap has said, "When George Marsh's children come into the orchestra, I'll know the time has come for me to retire."

George Marsh is assistant concertmaster and his father, Doug Marsh, used to be principal cellist.

PEGGY BUNGE, violinist and personnel secretary for the orchestra, is the wife of percussionist Earl Bunge. For a while there were four Bunges on the roster with one son a violist and the other joining his father in the percussion section.

Violinist Rebecca Nichols is the daughter of Ervin Nichols who plays both piccolo and flute.

Marion Gross, first violin, and Wilfred Gross, second violin, were married last spring. Another husband and wife team are Charleen Wilson, trombone, and Merrill Wilson, French horn.

Paul Wingert, principal cello, is the son of Marian Wingert who used to be principal bass.

MEMBERS of the orchestra are high school and college students, mothers, homemakers, teachers, professors and engineers. There are also businessmen, a psychiatrist and a prosecuting attorney.

The family concert is the fourth concert of the 30th season. It begins at 4 p.m. in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, Joy Road at Canton Center. Kindergarten through 12th grade students will be admitted free. There will be babysitting provided for children three years of age and older.

Tickets at door are $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for senior citizens.

The Plymouth Symphony League will serve coffee at intermission in the lobby. After the concert there will be a bake sale in lobby sponsored by Girl Scout Cadet Troop 626. The girls provide the babysitting service at the concerts and are raising money for a trip to the Upper Peninsula this summer.

School safety group offers winter warnings

The safety committee of the Plymouth Community School District has issued a reminder to parents that winter snow sometimes can be as dangerous as it is fun for children.

The committee is asking parents to help provide a good safety program for their children, especially when there is snow.

PARENTS ARE asked to encourage children not to throw snowballs at each other and especially not at motorists or bus drivers.

"We have had bus drivers and students injured by such incidents," comments Flossie Tonda, chairman of the safety committee.

Another dangerous practice, notes the committee, is "shagging" or grabbing the bumper of a vehicle for a ride down a snow- or ice-covered roadway.

Problems are being caused by children at bus stops standing in the roadway instead of on the shoulder of the road.

"Motorists are concerned and fearful that students may be injured if cars are unable to stop on the snow or ice.

"Students must be aware of these hazards because they far outweigh the importance of being first on the bus. To prevent an accident, please observe your child's actions at the bus stop," suggests Mrs. Tonda.

RESIDENTS SHOULD clear their sidewalks of snow if at all possible because many children are walking in the streets instead of walking on snow-covered sidewalks.

"The streets are very hazardous when covered with snow and ice. The children don't seem to realize these hazards because most of them are too young to drive.

"Your understanding and patience is requested if you live in a subdivision or on a road where the Wayne County Road Commission doesn't clear way the snow. The school bus may not be able to stop for your child at the regular stop because of the snow and parked cars.

A SCHOOL bus is 35 feet long, eight feet wide and weighs seven tons. A bus needs much more area for making turns and needs more space between cars—especially when cars are parked on both sides of the street.

City to build DPW locker-lunch annex

An architect has been hired to prepare drawings so the City of Plymouth can obtain bids on an employee locker and lunchroom facility for the Department of Public Works.

Monday night the city commission approved an agreement with Graham-Culotta Architects of Plymouth to design a prefabricated building to house a combined lunchroom-locker room for DPW employees.

The preliminary requirements for the building are a one-story free-standing structure which would provide for two shower-dressing stalls, toilet facilities, a locker room with 25 lockers, and lunchroom for 25 employees.

Early estimates are that the structure will cost $40,000. John Culotta was hired for a flat fee of $2,500.

IN OTHER action, the commission confirmed Mayor Joe Bida's nomination of Bill Saxton to the zoning board of appeals. Saxton, who has been a member of the ZBA, recently was appointed vice-chairman of that board.

The commission also voted to recommend an extension of a Class C liquor license to Joseph Nahra for a restaurant he plans to open at 555 Forest. Nahra has received a commitment for a bank loan and hopes to have construction completed by the end of April.

The commission decided to allow to expire a request for a liquor license for 885 Starkweather. Plans for a restaurant there fell through after the C&O Railroad declined to extend an option on the property.

The commission adopted a resolution setting the interest rate at seven per cent for special assessment projects payments for 1975 improvements.

A traffic control order was approved to ban parking at any time on the south side of Church Street from the alley to the corner of Union Street.

Central band needs help

The bands at Central Middle School are in need of instruments to fulfill the growing number of talented students in the bands.

To meet this need, parents have formed a Central Band Boosters organization which has been trying to raise money to buy instruments, music and other supplies for the bands.

Donations or information on new or used equipment would be extremely helpful. Anyone would can help is urged to contact Booster Club President Jerry Hotchkin of 42118 Lakeland Court, Plymouth.

Drums (parade or trap set), cymbals, French horns, baritone sax, and sheet music are a few items which are needed.

This is only the third year that Central has been a middle school. Although it has a good music program, the school is lacking sufficient equipment.

Excellent food, music, company highlight chamber dinner dance

If Saturday was any indication, things are getting bigger and better for the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday was the second annual "Get Acquainted Dinner-Dance" for the chamber, and it was a full house that attended the festivities at the Hawthorne Valley Country Club.

Good food, drink, music and a contest highlighted the evening, along with a talk from keynote speaker James Barrett.

Barrett, assistant to the president of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, urged businessmen to get involved politically, telling the packed dining room that pending legislation in many areas threatens the welfare of businessmen across the state.

Barrett pointed to the workmen's compensation bill and a bill to increase and expand unemployment benefits. "Right now, he said, "You can quit a job and draw unemployment benefits in 13 weeks. New legislation will be harder on Michigan employers."

The keynote speaker told those attending they could expect ever-increasing costs and higher taxes in the future, and that local involvement was the best way to fight for the businessman's rights.

THANKS TO a contest, the dance actually made a little money this year—about $100—according to chamber president Bart Berg.

"We had about 115 tickets sold," said Berg, "and the contest put us up and over for the evening."

The big prize, a weekend stay at one of four hotels, in Plymouth, in Sarnia, in Windsor and in Ann Arbor, was won by Township Clerk John Flodin.

While the chamber paid for the big prize, local merchants donated other prizes.

Free meals at McDonalds, free games at Canton Bowl, a dinner at the Italian Forum, and a family portrait were among the those prizes.

Supervisor Robert Greenstein was the other big winner for the evening, garnering a free meal for three at McDonalds and four free games of bowling. Dick Palmer won the meal at the Italian Forum, while Berg also received four free games at Canton Bowl, to be located at Ford and Canton Center.

Jim Barrett of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce was the keynote speaker.

UNLIKE LAST year, township officials were well represented at the dinner, cementing feelings of conciliation between the chamber and the township board.

The entire administration and all the trustees were at the dinner.

"I'm very happy the board came," said Berg. "Attitudes have changed, and I think we can now all work together and talk to one another.

"Overall, I'm very pleased with the dinner. It did the job. It was entertaining, people met one another, we visited with township officials and everyone had a good time."

Greenstein echoed Berg's sentiments. He commented, "I'm pleased at the large turnout of township officials and township businessmen, and I thought it was very worthwhile evening.

"We got to meet a lot of businessmen, and we were able to learn of some of their feelings and problems."

Clerk John Flodin was the big winner of the evening winning a weekend vacation at his choice of four hotels.

The battle in 1926 for Plymouth's 1st ward school

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

"As certain as death and taxes," wrote Daniel Defoe in his History of the Devil (1726). Had the author of Robinson Crusoe ever presided over a school board, he might have amplified his much quoted remark to include the certainty that argument will always follow policies set by those who run our educational system.

Few decades in the history of Plymouth have passed without at least one major controversy centering on local school activities. Today, the argument focuses on the value of modular scheduling. Fifty years ago, in the summer of 1926, the local school board found itself defending the concept of centralization as opposed to the demand for neighborhood, or "ward," schools.

IN 1926, School District No. 1, Fractional, included the townships of Plymouth and Northville.

The five-member board of education included John W. Henderson, president, Frank J. Pierce, Ada Murray, Charles H. Bennett, and William Sutherland. The Superintendent of Schools was George A. Smith, and the principal of the high school was Edna Allen. Of parenthetical interest, the high school track team was champion in its league that year.

The high school graduating class in 1926 had only 32 students, but enrollment at elementary level was rapidly increasing. A census taken in the previous year by the Chamber of Commerce placed the population of the village at 3,877, up almost 1,000 from the 1920 figure of 2,857.

The school board decided to meet the problem of rising enrollment by constructing an addition to the central school on Church Street. The addition could be heated by the school's existing heating plant, saving the expense of a new heating system. That was the decision which brought a flood of protest from residents of what has been variously called over the years: Lower Town, Upper Village, Old Village, and the North Side.

The North Siders were led by Karl Starkweather, who worked for the Ford Motor Company, and Russell Wingard, who was in the insurance business. Starkweather, a local historian, was the great-grandson of the pioneers who built the first home in Plymouth. He declared that the Plymouth School Board was "unfaithful to the people." Its reason for not building a new elementary school was only an excuse to cover "a scheme to increase the size and capacity of the central school plant."

STARKWEATHER WROTE a series of handbills expressing the views of those who favored the establishment of Plymouth's first ward school. Three of them were run as paid advertisements in the Plymouth Mail, then published by L.B. Samsen. The fourth was rejected by Samsen who, unlike modern journalists, eschewed controversy.

Starkweather and Wingard took the rejected material to a Farmington printer. Two thousand copies, in the form of handbills, were paid for by "thirty Plymouth taxpayers, residents of the North Side and elsewhere."

In the handbill, Starkweather made these points:

(1) The electors of Plymouth had twice defeated a proposition to buy more sites for centralized schools.

(2) The voters, by a margin of 4-1, had declared in favor of a ward school for the North Side.

(3) In not having a ward school system, Plymouth was far behind other communities in the state. Allegan, which had about the same population as Plymouth, had four ward schools.

(4) Midland, "a little up-state town some twenty miles west of Bay City," had six schools situated in four widely separated districts within the town limits, while Plymouth's two schools were situated in a single location.

Starkweather conceded that Midland's population was 50 per cent greater than Plymouth, but, in a burst of parochialism, added, "Midland is not now, and never will be, in a position to grow as fast as Plymouth. Plymouth will have overtaken Midland in population within a year or so."

(5) It was not sound policy to spend $20,300 for an addition to the present site, rather than to buy a better site for $8,000, and only for the reason that purchase of the central site addition would save the cost of another boiler and a fireman's salary." The handbill made no reference to the estimated cost of constructing the new school which the North Siders advocated. (It was later built for $156,000).

AFTER THE handbills were received from the printers, it was discovered that the pencilled note Samsen had scribbled in the margin ("We do not care to publish this article") had been inserted by the printer at the bottom of the page. Starkweather told me it was not his intention to have Samsen's note printed, "but, after it was done, it was all right with us. The Plymouth publisher, it would seem, was pro-school board."

Across the bottom of the handbill, in bold-face, Starkweather had written, "Plymouth did not shoot off all her fireworks on the Fourth. There may be some left over for the annual school meeting."

Starkweather and Wingard began their battle with the board because they decided "it was time for Plymouth to have its first ward school, and that the new school should be erected in our end of town. We then looked the ground over, privately and by ourselves selected the site where we believed the new school should be located, obtained an option in the amount of $8,000, and started our campaign. We packed the annual school board meeting in July with citizens from our end of town, using our respective Model Ts to do so."

"Finally," Starkweather wrote to me, "after the school board saw the handwriting on the wall and could perceive which way the wind was blowing, it came over 100 per cent on our side. So did the Plymouth Mail. When it came time to name the new school, the named it the Starkweather School. That was in deference to my grandfather, but, secretly and under my hat, I took some of that deference in my own behalf."

SINCE THE Starkweather School was built in 1927, the practice has been to disperse elementary and middle schools, but to centralize at the high school level.

There was very little controversy when the Centennial Educational Park was opened at Joy and Canton Center Roads in 1968, except for a bit of grumbling on the part of those who believed the high school should have remained near the city center. In recent times, some residents have wondered at the wisdom of putting all of the area's high schools at the one location.

Man, woman-of-year winners to be known Friday

The winners of the man of the year and woman of the year awards will be announced by the Plymouth Jaycees Friday night at its annual Distinguished Service Award banquet.

The nominees for man of the year are Jeffery L. Cardinal, manager of WSDP radio station at Plymouth Salem High, Lt. Dallas Raby of the Plymouth Salvation Army, and Plymouth City Commissioner Scott Dodge.

Those nominated for woman of the year include Nancy Browne, Ann Lindamood, Janet Curlee, and Norma Cassady.

THE WINNERS will be selected by a committee of residents serving as judges.

Those picked will be announced Friday night at the DSA Banquet which begins at 8 p.m. in the Mayflower Meeting House. Guest speaker will be Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) whose 2nd Congressional District includes Plymouth, and master of ceremonies will be W.W. "Eddie" Edgar of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

CARDINAL, 27 of Simpson Street, Plymouth, works as manager of the student-operated radio station, WSDP, at Plymouth Salem High School.

He is a member of the Plymouth Community Arts Council and is chairman this year of the Plymouth Cultural Committee—an umbrella-type organization represented by groups interested in art, music, drama and books.

Cardinal has a degree in communication arts from Michigan State University and is now working on a master's degree.

LT. RABY, 34, of Hartsough, Plymouth, is in charge of the Plymouth Salvation Army, is a member of the Rotary Club of Plymouth, and active in the FISH organization.

He oversees the Drop-in-Nursery program, works with youth groups, and works with probation officers to help people. At the Salvation Army chapel, he organized a special Sunday School class for adult mentally retarded.

Raby is especially known for helping people in need. He once took a stranded man into his home for the night, and often has picked up people in the Plymouth police station, arranged for a meal, and found them a place of lodging for the night.

He has arranged some 28 outings for 282 senior citizens, including shopping trips and to Wayne County General Hospital for flu shots and for visits to Rochester, Frankenmuth and Greenfield Village.

DODGE, 29 of Blunk Street, Plymouth, was elected to the Plymouth City Commission in November 1975 and led the field of eight candidates in his first try for elected office.

He was born in Plymouth, raised here, and now practices law with the firm of Draugelis, Ashton and Scully in the city. He is a member of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments executive committee and will be serving on the Council on Environmental Strategy.

Dodge is a member of the board of directors of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and has served on the Chamber's downtown development committee. He is a member of the board of directors of Easter Seal Society—Wayne County, worked on the 1975 Peter Falk Telethon, and served as division chairman for the Plymouth Community Fund.

He is an officer and director of the Plymouth Fall Festival board, a member of the Rotary Club of Plymouth and of the Plymouth Jaycees. Dodge also is a volunteer director of the Hutto Foundation whose purpose is to send needy boys to summer camp, and a member of the Plymouth Historical Society. He joined Rotary, the Jaycees, and the Historical Society in 1975.

MRS. CASSADY of North Territorial, Plymouth Township, is a longtime resident of the Plymouth area.

Mrs. Cassady attended Plymouth Public Schools from 1898-1910 and the next four years attended Ypsilanti State Normal as a music and art major. She taught music and art in Colon, Mich., from 1912-14 and the next two years at Detroit University School.

She received a real estate brokers license in Plymouth in 1925, operated a women's clothes and accessories shop from 1933-66. She has been a soloist for 20 years and Sunday School teacher for 28 years for the Christian Science Church.

Mrs. Cassady is a charter member of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club, charter member of Plymouth Historical Society and its first vice-president, is curator of the Polley House Museum, and was a board member of the Plymouth Symphony Society when it welcomed Wayne Dunlap as orchestra conductor 25 years ago.

MRS. BROWNE of Beechcrest Drive, Plymouth, is active in Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic parish in Plymouth.

She was secretary of the Rosary Altar Society in 1974 and president last year. She served as secretary of the Good Counsel School Board from 1971-75, was a den mother for the Boy Scouts, and a religious education teacher for seven years.

She earned a BA degree from St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, and earned an MSW degree from St. Louis University. Her hobbies are bowling, swimming, reading and travelling. She is the wife of a radiologist and mother of five boys and four girls.

MRS. LINDAMOOD of Ivywood Lane, Plymouth, graduated cum laude with a BS in nursing from The Catholic University of America in Washington DC, from the University of Detroit Graduate School in clinical psychology, and from University of Michigan in special education.

She has been a member of the Western Suburban Junior Woman's Club for five years. She initiated the Kidney Foundation library program, organized and took part in the pick up and delivery of books, opened her home to sorting of more than 2,000 books, and arranged for the excess books to go to school libraries and to the cancer unit at St. Mary Hospital.

She has worked for the Channel 56 fund drive, assisted the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, set up interest group discussions in oriental philosophy, and organized a wine and cheese party and brunch for UNICEF.

She has made terariums for senior citizens, is active in recycling activities, helped the hygiene drive at Northville State Hospital, and gave assistance to a girls home in Belleville.

Mrs. Lindamood has served on the St. Kenneth Council and and has been a subsitute teacher for St. Kenneth School. She has composed six liturgies throughout the year and with her husband's help composed a religious service to celebrate marriage anniversaries of the entire congregation.

She is a staff worker at Our House crisis intervention center, and sponsored the Parents Anonymous group formed in Plymouth to help parents with problems of child abuse.

MRS. CURLEE, of Dover Street, Garden City, was attending Concordia Lutheran College in Ann Arbor with the intention of teaching deaf children but had to drop out of school in 1969 because of the death of a parent and the need to work.

She worked five years for the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. During that period she was president of the secretarial-clerical organization of almost 27 co-workers.

She handled the Pride program for the Detroit Chamber, which was a community-wide clean up project in 1971. Mrs. Curlee joined the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce in November 1974 and in the summer of 1975 was named executive secretary. Since that time she has been instrumental in helping the Chamber become an expanded organization to serve the needs of the total community.

An antique show will be March 5, 6, 7 in the Cultural Center with free admission. From 6-9 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Bruce Young, TCP founder, stricken

Bruce Young, founder of Total Citizens' Power, a non-political township organization dedicated "to investigating issues and educating citizens," was stricken Saturday night with an apparent heart attack.

Young was removed from intensive care Tuesday.

"We're still awaiting the results of tests to determine if it was a heart attack or hyperventilation," explained his wife Elsie.

Young was attending the annual chamber of commerce dinner-dance when stricken and was taken by ambulance to Wayne County General where he remained in intensive care until Tuesday. Young, 55, had been dancing prior to the attack.

"We had eight minutes of heavy rocking and rolling," said Mrs. Young, "and I think it might just have been over-exertion."

Young, proprietor of Bruce's Auto Sales on Michigan Avenue, is expected home within the week, according to his wife, and is in good spirits.

Bicentennial has calendar, programs

A prime endeavor of the Community Bicentennial Commission is the assembly of a monthly calendar of bicentennial events which will be published in this newspaper.

Any club or organization with a program that the general public may attend can notify the commission.

"We will be glad to include it in our calendar of events," said Gloria Kinsler who is in charge of the project.

Schools, theater guild, symphony orchestra, arts council and other clubs have scheduled special happenings in keeping with the bicentennial year. A coordinated calendar of the events will result in wider recognition of the projects and less chance of duplication of dates.

The Community Bicentennial Commission represents Canton and Plymouth townships and the city of Plymouth. The office is at 859 S. Main Street in Plymouth.

THE COMMISSION has programs suitable for schools, clubs and service organizations available at the office.

Working with the American Association of University Women, the commission will help schedule drive-by tours of unusual older homes in the area. Staff members have asked that persons who own centennial homes or farms in the area call the commission office and give the addresses to help organize the drive-by tour.

The office is staffed by volunteers and Elizabeth Folger, commission chairman, says the group needs staffers on Tuesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon, and from 1 to 3 p.m. Anyone with a couple hours of free time to contribute on either of those days would be welcomed.

Winter warnings

"The bus driver must be concerned about the safety of the children on the bus when making decisions to travel roads and streets not cleared of snow. If you feel it is impossible for the school bus to pick up your child, we suggest you take them to the main road in your area."

Motorists following a school bus are reminded to allow enough space between them and the bus to stop on snow and ice. A school bus will make many stops when loading and unloading students and there are many children on the bus who could be injured in case of an accident, the committee adds.

State reform act under fire

Suburban city officials are clearly unhappy with the state's new Political Reform Act.

But a legislative staff member told members of the Michigan Municipal League last week the law is better than one proposed originally by Common Cause and that few persons, if any, will be forced out of office.

"When California passed such a law, public officials were not resigning en masse," said Richard Cole, executive secretary to Senate Majority Leader William B. Fitzgerald.

"In the whole state, there were only 55 resignations, and 75 per cent of those involved persons in real estate in both their public and private lives.

"In Washington, a legislator resigned on principle. He later decided he had made 'a wrong choice.' The governor reappointed him to the Legislature," said Cole.

CAMPAIGN REFORM involves three separate, complex bills. In a nutshell, it provides for public officials to disclose their sources of income and for a system of political ethics.

Cole said Common Cause, the citizens group which proposed the acts, wanted officials to disclose exact dollar figures and sources.

Instead, Michigan legislators tried "source disclosure, a new concept," said Cole. Officials must disclose all major sources of income to themselves and to members of their immediate families, but not the dollar amounts.

If the Legislature hadn't compromised, Cole said, Common Cause would have gathered petition signatures to put its version on the ballot.

INKSTER CITY Manager David Williams, on the same panel, blasted the acts because "they make the unofficial assumption that public officials are corrupt and it's the state's responsibility to control local public officials."

Grosse Pointe Councilwoman Jeanett Duffield urged legislators to extend some deadlines (which begin April 1 and May 1) or there will be "nightmarish" administrative tangles.

All elected public officials, whether or not they plan to seek re-election, are considered "candidates" and must file expense statements with the county clerk before May 1, she said.

Panelists noted one oversight in the law as it passed: Such city officials as the mayor, councilmembers, planning commissioners, the clerk and various appointed board members must file statements, but city treasurers were excluded.

The oversight is expected to be corrected in the next session of the Michigan Legislature.

Real estate seminar set

Schoolcraft College has scheduled a Real Estate Investment Seninar from 7-9 p.m. Feb. 2, 3 and 4 in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building.

John Clemente of Management and Consultants, Inc., will conduct the program. According to Clemente the seminar is designed to assist those interested in understanding the real estate market today. It will cover dealing with the future market and how to successfully analyze the commercial market.

Topics for discussion include syndications, acquisition analysis, debt service, capitalization rate, depreciation, tax appeals, commercial leasing and negotiation techniques.

Individuals may register by mailing a $30 check payable to Schoolcraft College to "Cashier/Real Estate Seminar" by Jan. 29. Registration in person can be made at the Waterman Campus Center from 1:30-7 p.m. on Jan. 27-28.

Parking proposals

Proposals to restrict parking along Edward Hines Drive won a cool response Jan. 20 from members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners' public safety and judiciary committee.

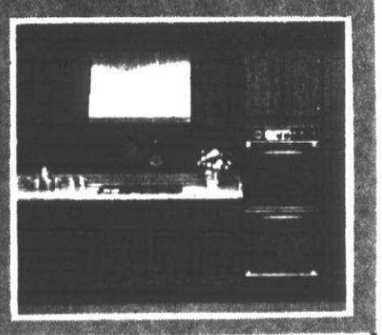

A proposal to prohibit parking along Hines Drive has been referred to the road commission.

A Northville Township proposal to allow any law enforcement agency to tow away improperly parked cars was referred to the county corporation counsel. The county's attorney was asked to determine whether fees and fines would go to local, county or state governments and where towing costs would be charged.

Want to converse with witches? Here are Gundella's 'witch words'

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

Some of my readers have pointed out to me that I frequently use "witch words" which are not familiar to them. For this reason, I have drawn up a list of such words and their meanings. This list will be printed in several parts, the first of which appears below. You may wish to clip these and keep them for future reference.

Lexicon of Witch Words
Part I

abracadabra—a mystical word used mainly for protection; it was usually written in the following way and worn around the neck to cure illness.

alchemy—a combination of chemistry and magic studied in the middle ages. An alchemist tried to find or prepare a liquid which would change cheaper metals to gold, and to cure ailments and prolong life.

aleuromancy—divination (fortune-telling by using meal or flour.

alomancy—divination by salt; this accounts for some of our superstitions about salt.

aphrodisiac—anything that increases sexual desire.

apparition—the appearance in visual form of some paranormal phenomenon, for example a ghost who can be seen.

arcana— profound secrets. When spelled with a capital letter, it refers to one of the two parts (major or minor) of the Tarot deck.

Artemis—the mythical goddess of the moon (also called Diana).

arsupex—the art of telling fortunes or divining the future by the observation of birds; factors involved are the kinds of birds, the number, the formation in flight, their flight direction, and the time of day they are observed.

astral body—the spiritual being as opposed to the physical body.

astral travel—out-of-body travel.

asafoetida gum— a substance believed to keep away enemies and evil spirits; because of its foul smell, it is commonly called "devil's dung."

athame—a black-handled knife used by witches in preparing materials for rituals, spells or potions.

augury—the general act of divination or "reading" the future.

aura—the field of vibrations surrounding the body.

Baculum—the wand (sometimes disguised as a broomstick) used by witches in various rituals.

bale fire—a ritual fire.

ban—to curse.

bane—a poisonous or bad thing.

Beltane—the April 30 witch festival.

Bibliomancy—this involves closing your eyes, opening the Bible at random and placing your finger on the open page, then reading the verse your finger points to for a special message of divination.

bolline—a knife with a curved blade, like a sickle, used for drawing ritual circles.

Brigid—Feb. 2 witch festival.

Lexicon of Witch Words will be continued next week.

County clerk predicts November 'disaster'

The November election could be a "disaster" in Michigan and make the state the "laughing stock of the nation" due to a proliferation of minority parties and the limited capacity of mechanical and punch card voting machines, Wayne County Clerk James R. Killeen has warned.

Killeen said he has had discussions with state legislative leaders concerning the problem, but no solutions have been found as yet.

The burgeoning number of minority parties could result in paper ballots being used throughout Michigan, causing long lines at polling places and delaying the state's presidential election results until two days after the Tuesday, Nov. 2, election.

"In that event, Michigan could be the laughing stock of the nation," Killeen stated.

HE SAID there is room for only nine political parties on the voting machines. Six of the nine parties on the 1974 general election ballot are already qualified to appear on the 1976 ballot and at least five others are attempting to get on the ballot, with some expected to succeed, Killeen said.

Where punch card voting is used, it appears the number of prospective candidates will make them inoperable also, Killeen added.

Should paper ballots be necessary, it will take up to five separate paper ballots to cover all offices, candidates, and propositions, Killeen said. He predicted confusion among voters and election workers who have never had experience with paper ballots.

PAPER BALLOTS also could cost local communities in Wayne County an additional $1.5 to $2 million, and the county itself and additional $50,000, Killeen estimated. This is because a state law requires that precincts using paper ballots can have no more than 400 registered voters.

Currently, Detroit's 1,122 precincts average 600 to 800 voters and, with the exception of Dearborn, all other communities in Wayne County have between 1,000 and 1,400 registered per precinct. This means that there will have to be a redistricting of precincts requiring increased numbers in election workers and the acquisition of new equipment. Even without the redistricting of precincts additional equipment will be needed, Killeen said.

Killeen stated: "Weather and darkenss, coupled with an unduly long wait to vote and the slow process for voting, are crippling the elective process. We should be looking to better ways of conducting the elections."

Master land use plan ready for public input

It took awhile—about three years— but after much intensive work, revisions and more revisions, Canton's new master land use plan will be unveiled to the public next week.

It is, in the words of those who spent so many hours, days, and months on it, "a revolutionary plan."

It will be dedicated in part to staving off growth in the western portion of the township. An effort has been made to retain the rural flavor of Canton west of Canton Center, where most of the township's still fertile farm land can be found.

Zoning changes and land uses will be changed throughout the township, and the most profoundly affected by the plan will be residents in the western half.

SOME MAY suffer financial loss as a result of implementing the plan; others may receive economic gains. Most Canton residents will probably not be directly socked in the wallet one way or another.

Those who do have a vested interest in land will certainly be vocal at the public hearing. They will have much to say. Some will claim their private property rights have been infringed upon.

But even those not directly affected by zoning changes have something at stake. It is the future direction of the township and the immediate area where they live.

The plan portends something for all, possibly more recreation sites, cleaner air or a different tax structure. We don't know because we haven't seen the plan.

ONE THING IS sure. Government for the people is by the people. So far the only people shaping the direction of the plan have been members of the township board and planning commission along with the professional planners.

Input is needed from everyone in the twonship. Acquaint yourself with the new plan, decide what it means to you, and when the public hearing is held either March 1 or 2, voice your piece.

If you like it, say so. If you don't, say so. Board members and planning commissioners have an idea, but until the public speaks, the plan is unfinished. It needs the public's reaction.

Copies of the text and the map will be available next week in the township business offices, the township fire hall and the chamber of commerce office in the Harvard Square shopping center.

Know your alcohol limit

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

According to the Automobile Club of Michigan, more than 50 per cent of the fatal accidents in the state involve a drinking driver.

We can pass all sorts of laws requiring the use of seatbelts, and air bags, but the priority to save lives really revolves around alcohol and automobiles.

In many countries in Europe, people who are arrested for drunk driving will lose their driver's license for life. This harsh penalty means that these people must use taxis or hire drivers, because the risk is not worth the chance of punishment.

IN MICHIGAN a person is presumed to be driving under the influence of liquor if his blood alcohol concentration by weight equals 0.1 per cent.

At 0.07 per cent a driver can be arrested for impaired driving.

These various percentages mean very little if one doesn't know how alcohol affects one's own particular system.

Under Michigan law, if you are stopped by a peace officer he can ask you to take a breathalyzer test. If you refuse, you can lose your license for 90 days.

THE BREATHALYZER is a little metal box into which you breathe through a long, plastic tube. The box then calculates your blood-alcohol concentration.

From experience, experts tell us that a 150-pound person would have to have consumed five ounces of 80 proof liquor within a one-hour period to reach 0.1 per cent blood-alcohol level.

Most drinks served in a home run at least an ounce and a half, which means three drinks gives you very close to the limit.

One beer is equivalent to one ounce of liquor.

A 200-pound person can drink seven ounces of 80 proof liquor in an hour before he will hit 0.1 percent.

THERE IS A DELAY of about 20 minutes between the time a drink is finished and the time it reaches the blood stream. Also, the body will use up approximately 0.015 per cent for each hour that elapses from the last drink.

Thus, to be safe, a 150-pound person must drink no more than three ounces of 80 proof liquor in an hour, which will put him at 0.06 per cent.

After his initial drink he can not consume more than one ounce of liquor per hour if he expects to avoid being an impaired driver.

AS AN EXPERIMENT, I tested the system with the Michigan State Police. I drank three highballs, each containing one ounce of liquor, in a one-hour period and registered 0.05 per cent on the breathalyzer, and I weigh slightly over 160 pounds.

It is very important to know your own limit before you get behind the wheel of a car. The life you save may be your own, or that of a loved one.

A TOUGH NUT TO CRACK

Two big ideas, but they won't produce more jobs

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

High unemployment is Michigan's biggest problem.

Gov. Milliken made it the crucial issue in his State of the State message last week when he said, "With the state's unemployment rate hovering in the 10-15 per cent range, it becomes critical to make every effort to alleviate the situation through the creation of new jobs and the revitalization of existing unemployment activities."

Ten to 15 per cent unemployment statewide means thousands out of work. In the metropolitan area, the situation is worse; high unemployment has been a disease in Detroit for many years.

The statistics understate the size of the problem because they measure only those persons who are actively seeking work and ignore many thousands who have given up the quest.

What makes it even worse is that the automobile industry—by far the greatest source of jobs in the area—went through substantial belt-tightening over the past 18 months while car sales were collapsing. Even with rebounding consumer demand for cars spurring high production, industry sources estimate this rate can be sustained with 100,000 fewer jobs overall than in comparable past years.

GIVEN THESE FACTS, it would seem obvious that the governor and the legislature would be placing the greatest possible emphasis on producing an economic climate which would favor job creation.

Yet the two most significant state economic policies of the past year—the new single business tax and the governor's proposal for a real estate tax plan to favor Detroit and older suburbs at the expense of rapidly growing ones—will both result in reducing the number of jobs made available by the private sector.

Take first the new single business tax, which replaced eight separate business taxes (on profits, inventories, liquid assets, shareholders' equity and so on) this year.

The new tax is based on the sum of profits, total payroll and a percentage of depreciation charged to plant and equipment.

Milliken claims that "by affecting every business identically, regardless of the economic size of the business or means of financing employed by the business," the new tax will be equally fair to all businesses. This is certainly true.

THE PROBLEM lies in what economists call "differential tax incidence." This is a fancy way of asking whose ox is being gored deeper by the new tax than it was under the old package.

As between types of businesses, the new SBT will favor capital-intensive ones over labor-intensive ones, mature businesses with high profit margins over new businesses with low profits, manufacturing concerns over service concerns.

A new structure which favors buying machines at the expense of hiring workers and gives comparative tax relief to older manufacturing companies at the expense of new and growing service businesses is hardly an incentive for business to create lots of much-needed jobs.

A SIMILAR contradiction emerges when Milliken's proposal to change the real estate tax system is examined.

The aim of the change appears sound: to allow growing suburban communities to retain one-half the increased property tax resulting from new developments, such as shopping centers, while allocating the other half of the increased revenue to older suburbs not experiencing growth and to Detroit.

This proposal, in theory, strikes to the heart of a serious problem in this region—i.e., that development in the new suburbs sucks tax base out of the older areas, thereby contributing to their deterioration.

In practice, however, there are difficulties with the plan.

First, allocating only half of the increased tax revenue generated by new developments to their suburban community may well not cover the additional service costs such developments generate. Suburban officials are worried whether the added tax base from developments can fully cover the added costs of roads and traffic congestion, police and fire protection, and other services required as a result of business growth.

If only half the new taxes were available, growing suburban communities might well opt for sharply reducing their rates of growth.

"Fine," say the advocates of more balanced regional growth. "Such a decision will force new development back into the older suburbs and Detroit, which is where it belongs."

A GOOD THEORY, again, but a weak one under examination.

Any development worth much in real estate taxes—a new shopping center or a new factory—takes a lot of land. But older urban areas' land costs are so high, and assembling many little pieces of land into an adequately sized parcel is so difficult, that large-scale developments in the core city seem unlikely.

So the net result of the proposed tax sharing plan would be to slow down new developments and the new jobs they create in the suburbs, while at the same time doing nothing to insure that new development can effectively take place in Detroit or in the older suburbs.

WHAT WE HAVE here are two excellent illustrations of the difficulty of trying to meet social objectives by government act.

In the case of the single business tax, state government's attempt to give a tax break to the automobile industry will result in a disincentive to other, more rapidly growing sectors of the economy to create the new jobs which everybody agrees are needed.

In the case of the proposed property tax sharing plan, a governmental attempt to spread out tax revenues and promote development in older areas will likely result in stopping development altogether.

These cases are perfect examples of why the public is so suspicious of government actions: They often are conflictive with social goals, and they just as often produce precisely the reverse of the result they were intended to promote.

A new twist to an old property tax plot

Tim Richard writes

It was a new twist to an old idea when Gov. William Milliken proposed a "share the wealth" property tax plan to help aid Detroit and some of the older suburbs.

Milliken proposed that half of the property tax levied on new business growth in southeastern Michigan go into a common pot and be allocated to cities, villages and townships.

For years, farmers have been advocating a similar idea. They would like to see industrial property taxes collected on a countywide basis and parcelled out to school districts on a per-pupil basis. Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti) has such a bill in the hopper.

The farmers would thus have the best of both worlds: They could sink their pitchforks into the urban industrial tax base; but they wouldn't have to give up their little kingdoms, they wouldn't have to annex to the city school districts and they wouldn't have to share the taxes on their farms.

MILLIKEN'S PROPOSAL uses the same general technique but with different anticipated results: Detroit and such low-growth suburbs as Oak Park and Inkster would be the beneficiaries—Detroit in particular.

Milliken spent little time on the rationale, but I've heard the line of reasoning before, and it goes like this:

"Business is running away from its responsibilities to the city. Industry really belongs in Detroit. A free society can't stop industry from moving out of Detroit, but it can make sure Detroit gets the tax advantage so that it can care for the problems that are left behind."

If implemented, the "share the wealth" system could be expected to have a dampening effect on industrial mobility. The theory is that industry would get no tax break by escaping to the suburbs, so it wouldn't abandon Detroit.

INDUSTRIALISTS I've talked to who have moved to the suburbs from Detroit commonly give two reasons.

First, on the record, they say they had no room to expand in their old, cramped Detroit quarters.

Second, off the record, they say they got sick and tired of having their places vandalized by what is euphemistically known as "the community," and they feared for the safety of their employees—the females, in particular.

Taxes almost never enter the discussion.

ON ITS FACE, Milliken's proposal has a major soft spot. "Sharing the wealth" would apply only to municipal taxes—not to school taxes.

Industrial taxes are gravy to school districts. They are pure revenue, and the schools don't have to perform services for them.

But for cities, townships and villages, there is cost as well as revenue when industry moves in—traffic congestion, building inspection, fire protection, trash collection, beautification, and so on. There's strong logic for letting communities keep all the taxes that industry generates.

Ken Courtney, Troy's finance director, put a philosophical objection rather well: "You go ahead and do all the work, and I'll take the benefits." He is referring to the unfortunate polarization of American government into two classes—the taxpayers and the tax eaters.

ONE HATES to cuss Milliken, who has demonstrated more concern for urban areas (not just core cities but entire urban areas) and the environment than any five other governors.

But his zealous idea to help this region help itself is full of pitfalls. The Legislature hasn't fallen for the farmers' trick to get industrial taxes, and it's unlikely to buy this one.

The world's going to the rocks

Some folks were baffled when they opened their holiday presents to discover they had received a plain, old stone.

Not a piece of coal, like Santa used to give bad little Dutch and German children. A stone.

The instructions with it said the rock could be trained to do tricks and would become a nice pet if treated with love. You could even paper-train it.

It was a perfect gift for apartment dwellers who aren't allowed living, breathing, furry pets. A pet rock is a good listener, for one thing, and doesn't lip off at you, bark or whine in the middle of the night.

And it doesn't need to be taken for walks in frigid weather.

A local television station got into the act by having a load of rocks dumped in its parking lot. Their object: to find homes for homeless rocks.

Suburbs can't buy into Detroit water

By TIM RICHARD

"It's our water. You don't own any of it . . . But there has been a lack of understanding and a failure of communication, and we'll be glad to sit down with you and tell each other our problems."

That message, simultaneously conciliatory and absolute, was delivered to suburban city officials by Charles Scales Jr., new director of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department.

Scales told mayors, councilmen and other officials at a regional meeting of the Michigan Municipal League that there was no possibility the suburbs could ever become part owners of the system.

"When you buy a car, you don't get stock in General Motors. You buy a kilowatt of electricity, but that doesn't give you stock in Detroit Edison," said Scales.

THE QUESTION arose last week when city and village officials held a seminar in the Detroit Yacht Club. A questioner asked Scales, a panelist on the topic of water, whether suburbanites were contributing, through their water and sewage treatment bills, to capital funding of improvements within Detroit's city limits.

The question went to the heart of the controversies over water rates between Detroit and the suburbs, and the perpetual 4-3 advantage Detroit has on the department's governing board.

Suburbanites have frequently suggested the water department become a regional facility with the "one person, one vote" principle applied to board representation.

A recent 39 per cent rate increase was adopted when the four Detroit members outvoted the three suburban members.

Scales' answer left no room for doubt: There is no possibility the suburbs can buy their ways into the system and become partners. It's Detroit's system, period.

SCALES ACKNOWLEDGED Detroiters and suburbanites alike had reason to be unhappy at the 39 per cent rate increase. But he defended it with the help of the other panelist, Dearborn Heights Mayor John Harris, newest suburban member of the water board.

Labor costs are rising, he said, pointing to union contracts, cost of living allowance improvements, social security tax increases, hospitalization and workers' compensation cost hikes.

The electricity bill from Detroit Edison Co. is $400,000 monthly. Edison got a recent 15 per cent rate hike, is expecting another 18 per cent hike and will probably ask for still another 15 per cent hike, Scales said.

Lawsuits arising from the Lake Huron intake tunnel explosion have been expensive, said Scales. The water department thought it would be exempt from such suits until the courts ruled otherwise.

ON THE CONCILIATORY side, Scales said many of the service contracts between Detroit and the suburbs are 20 years old.

"There have been changes. We would like each of you to invite me to sit down with you. We can tell each other our problems. We will either reach agreement or at least delineate the issues."

He said the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. has been asked to make a computer model to aid the department in rate fixing.

A significant problem in the next four years, Scales said, will be raising $400 million for water pollution control equipment. The department raises such capital through bond sales and through revenues generated by water sales.

HARRIS, APPOINTED by Detroit Mayor Coleman Young after Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara was fired, said water board differences are "based upon personalities, not Detroit versus the suburbs."

Harris called the board's representation "fair."

He recalled that at one time Detroit and outer Wayne County had separate systems. "It was a good idea, but we (the suburbs) didn't know how to do it. When we found out how to do it, we found we couldn't afford it."

The result was that Wayne County closed its system. Wayne County supervisors (as they were then called) asked for representation on the water board. At present, three suburbanites are appointed, but the appointments are made by the mayor of Detroit and not by suburbanites themselves.

How to discover a better way to be a parent

Young Erik Huysken is entering childhood with a big advantage. His parents, Micki and Bud Huysken, have learned to be positive parents through a course at the Livonia Family Y. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Does parenting have to be all feuding and fussing, anger and anxiety?

No, say men and women who have participated in Positive Parenting classes offered by the Livonia Family Y, 14255 Stark. In a new class to start Wednesday, Feb. 11, in the Y, parents will have a chance to learn how to take some of the hassle out of parenting and put in a little more fun.

In this class, Mom and Dad will quickly find out that it is not always easy to be a child. They will discover, among other things, that it doesn't hurt to show children anger. But they also learn they shouldn't attack the kids verbally, because it doesn't help a bit.

Mrs. Micki Huysken of Livonia, one of the many parents in the area to take this course, pointed out that during the session on role playing, she took the role of her child while other class members acted as parents.

"YOU'RE STUPID," she was told. "You don't even know how to tell time so you can get home when you should."

"It really made me see how we parents place them on the defensive," she said. "Without realizing it, the parent can attack the child. Children don't like to have someone call them stupid."

She advised against these surprise attacks as well as surprise punishments. "You can't punish if there was no rule set down," she maintained. "So instead of attacking them in your anger, explain how you feel about it when they come in late.

"Show them you were worried. You didn't know what happened. You feared they were in an accident. After that, set up a punishment in case it happens again.

"Let the punishment fit the crime. Don't take away their allowance for coming in late. Tell them that if they are late again they will have to come in earlier the next time. Then don't vary the punishment."

MRS. HUYSKEN is one of many parents in the area who feels she is a more positive parent as a result of the class, which was developed by Dr. Kenneth Green of California Polytechnic Institute and used exclusively by the YMCA.

Another positive parent is Jay Zrimec of Farmington, who took the course at the Family Y because his wife had taken it a year earlier.

"The changes in our family life were so significant that I decided to take it too," he explained. "Actually, it is more successful when both parents come, rather than having the other parent learning about it secondhand.

A consultant for the Xerox Education Group and a former consultant in guidance and counseling at Wayne State University, Zrimec will teach a course in positive parenting in the Farmington Community Center starting Tuesday, Feb. 3.

He explained the course dealt with five major areas of interest including parental style, discipline and parental openness. Another segment concerns the language of acceptance, also called effective listening.

As a conclusion to the class, parents involve themselves in productive problem solving and a discussion of their values.

PARENTAL STYLE includes a consideration of the method by which parents bring up their children. Is it traditional or permissive? How effective is it?

Parental openness involves "letting kids know how you feel," according to Zrimec, who added, "It encourages a freer and more honest kind of communication between you."

The class on dicipline stresses teaching the youngsters, when necessary, that what they did is unacceptable to you.

Effective listening, most parents think, sounds easy, claimed Zrimec. "But it is difficult to do. You have to learn to listen between the lines. The child is saying much more than his words reveal.

"Observe the child, his voice, his body movements, his emotions. Encourage him to talk about what is on his mind.

"Let's say he doesn't want to go to school. He is really saying something else, that he can't read, that is is having encounters with a bully, or perhaps experiencing friend trouble."

MRS. HUSKEN feels parents have to recognize that their child has feelings.

"They often have the solution all worked out for the child," she noted. "Billy comes in from the sandbox and says he hates Johnny, the boy with whom he has been playing.

"Right away the mother says, 'You don't hate Johnny.' Then she tells him to give back the toy they were fighting about and be friends.

"It would be better if she merely said that it's too bad he hates Johnny. Express interest in how the friend might be feeling about the fight. She could then inquire about what made her son so mad. When he tells her that Johnny threw sand in his face and that's why he ran away with the toy, tell him that it would make you mad too."

As Billy cools down he is faced with the problem of making up with his pal or having Johnny go home, leaving him alone for the remainder of the afternoon.

"This is something Billy has to work out for himself," Mrs. Huysken declared. "Then he becomes responsible for his own actions rather than having his mom patch up everything."

THE QUESTION of who is responsible for whom surfaced in the session on specific problems raised by parents.

"One of my daughters was slow is getting off to school," said Mrs. Huysken. "I would always nag and then she'd go off unhappy. In the problem-solving class we asked whose problem it was, mine or hers. We decided it is her problem to get to school on time.

"Putting her on her own seemed to work. She took the responsibility for her own actions."

A problem Zrimec and his wife solved after the positive approach to parenting involved the daily visit of the popsicle truck, which both found disturbing. Inevitably their boys clammered for a treat.

"We all sat down and talked about it as a problem," recalled Zrimec. "And we found a way to solve it. For doing certain chores, the boys would earn stars. So many stars would earn them a popsicle."

Many parents have teenagers who use the telephone too much. Mrs. Huysken said, "Get the family together and have everyone offer solutions," she advised. "Listen to all suggestions—tear out the phone, set a fee for each call, whatever. Then work out an answer that is agreeable to all family members.

"It might be the use of a timer setting a limit on calls, or having no one call between 5-7 p.m. when their father usually calls home. If you don't find a solution, keep working on it."

Zrimec claimed that the session in which specific problems like these are raised and often answered is very significant.

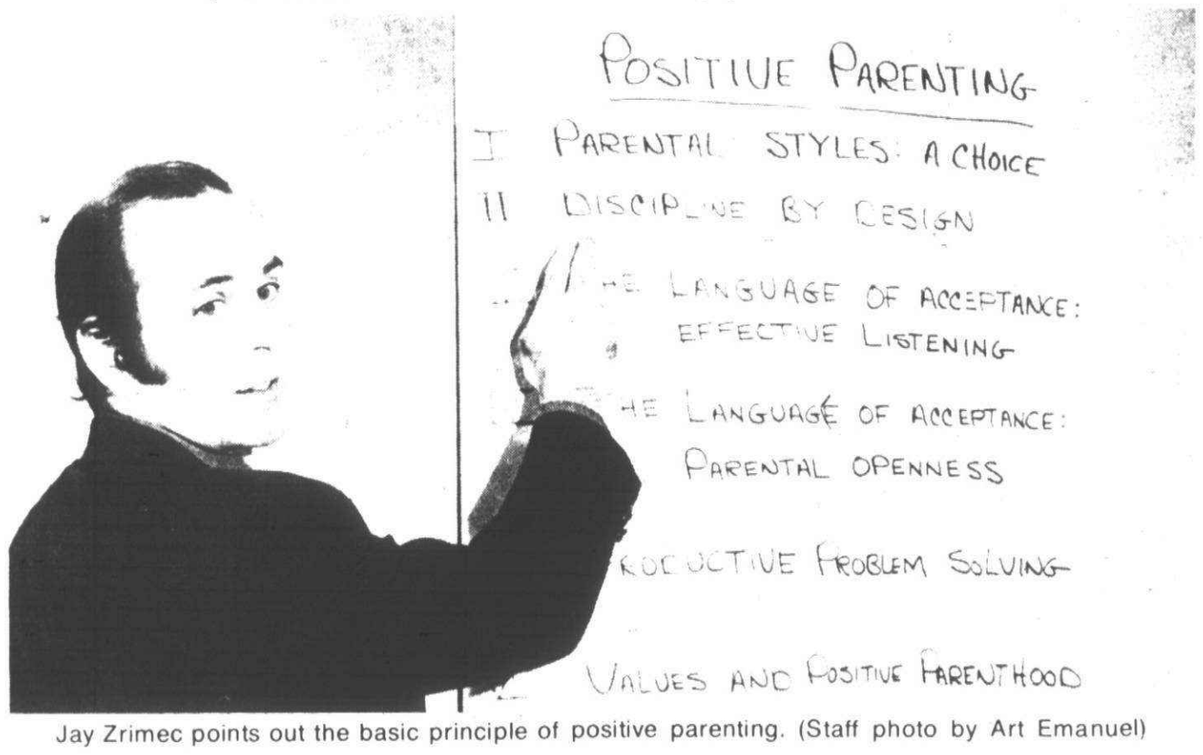

"They are trying to learn new skills to do a demanding job, that of being a parent," he said. "By going to a class like this they are expressing a real commitment to parenthood."

He reported that at the end of the class he had a feeling of confidence. "When the problems come, I think I'll have the skills to solve them," he stated.

Mrs. Huysken seconded his statement. "I'm more confident in my judgements," she said.

Her husband, Bud, who took the class at her urging, finds it was time spent usefully. "You would certainly come out better than you went in," he said. "You're a better parent than before."

Cost of the class at the Family Y is $20 per person or $30 a couple. It will be taught by Sherry Hyde.

In developing countries

'Population control follows proper nutrition'

By MARGARET MILLER

More food for the hungry peoples of the world will help limit population rather than cause it to increase, according to a Methodist clergyman who has made a study of the world food problem.

The Rev. Royal Synwolt, a member of the staff of the United Methodist Detroit Conference and a leader of its Church and Society agency, wants church people to realize there's a fallacy to an argument advanced in recent years. It involes the idea that feeding hungry people in developing countries simply means their population will rise faster.

"People who do not have enough food, depend upon their progeny not only to give meaning to life but also for support in later life," Rev. Synwolt told an adult education study group in Newburg United Methodist Church of Livonia.

"They need many children to have one or two to survive and take care of them.

"Affluent countries of the world are controlling their populations because they ARE affluent. When people get enough to eat, they can start turning their attention to birth control."

In his remarks, Rev. Synwold was reinforcing a portion of a film strip on the interdenominational organization Bread for the World, a group seeking in various ways to attack the mammoth problem of world hunger.

THE FILM and the speaker emphasized several other aspects of the world food picture.

"We do not have a food shortage," Rev. Synwold said. "What we have is inequitable distribution of food. We should think in terms of two worlds—a satisfied world and a hungry world.

"Then we should realize that in the hungry world, the average grain consumption is 400 pounds of grain a year, mostly directly as grain food. But in the satisfied world, the average consumption is 2,000 pounds of grain per year, mostly in meat and poultry that was fed with that grain."

ANOTHER STATISTIC the clergyman quoted was from Georg Borgstrom, professor of food science at Michigan State University.

"Borgstrom's studies show that the rich world imports more protein from the poor, hungry world than we export to it," Rev. Synwold stated.

"For every three million metric tons of cereal exporteded, the satisfied world has received four million metric tons of protein like fish meal for feeding its livestock"

The problem is complicated, he added, by the fact that some of the best land in developing countries is used for export materials.

"The land these developing countries need to grow nutritious food for their own needs is used instead to grow bananas and cocoa for export," he stated.

REV. SYNWOLD also referred to studies by a Quaker economist, E. F. Schumacher, in a book titled "Small is Beautiful, an Economics as if People Mattered."

"He gets into the need to help with intermediate tools, the kind that are hand-driven rather than the kind that use oil products, but still can enable people to increase food production and become more independent," he stated.

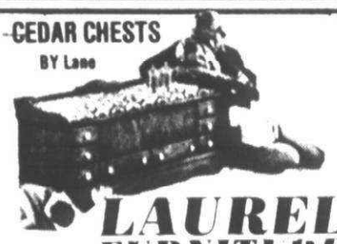

He recommended that Christians concerned with the hunger problem join forces with the Bread for the World organization.

"We should write to our senators and representatives in Washington," he stated, "supporting our nation's decision at the recent Rome world food conference to establish a World Food Council which would serve as an umbrella organization for funneling food and money to hungry nations.

"We also should write about the distribution of food stamps in this country, and about a proposal by Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon to provide for a food administrator with cabinet rank who would coordinate and administer our foreign and domestic food programs."

Dan Kachnowski (right) chairman of the Livonia Bicentennial Committee, points to posters that "want you" to attend the "America, I Hear You Singing" musical that will open Livonia's bicentennial observance. The show will be held on Saturday, Feb. 7 in Schmidt Auditorium, on Middle Belt, north of Seven Mile. It will feature the Max Davey Singers and Orchestra. Tickets are $4. With Kachnowski are the Daveys —Margaret and Max.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Alumnae and collegiate members of Alpha Omicron Pi in the Detroit area will celebrate the fraternity's Founders' Day with a luncheon Saturday, Jan. 31, at 11:30 a.m. in the Dearborn Inn.

Members of the Northwest Suburban Chapter, including residents of Livonia, Northville and Plymouth, may make reservations with Mrs. Lee Wollgast, 40991 Ivywood, Plymouth, and Redford Township and Dearborn alumnae may call Mrs. Fred Kalsic, 7590 Ziegler, Taylor.

Alpha Omicron Pi was founded in 1897 at Barnard College. It supports the Arthritis Foundation as a philanthropic project and the Northwest group also collects postage stamps to provide food for people in other parts of the world through Church World Service.

REDFORD PIONEERS

The Descendants of Redford Pioneers will hold their regular potluck luncheon meeting Thursday, Jan. 29, at noon in Redford Baptist Church, Grand River and Seven Mile, Redford Township.

GR BAPTIST SENIORS

Glen Libby, a member of the Grand River Baptist Senior Citizens, will give a report of his trailer trip to the west when the group meets Friday, Jan. 23, at noon for a potluck luncheon at the church, 34500 Six Mile, Livonia.

Libby will show slides of a New Mexico ranch, mountain climbing, rock hunting and a ghost town exploration.

Music for the meeting will be furnished by the Bentley High School Male Choral under the direction of Jerry Smith, and the Rev. Fred Guenther will lead devotions. Seniors who wish to attend should call the church for reservations.

Retirement class set at Y

Looking to retirement is the subject of a class to start Tuesday, Jan. 27, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the Northwest YWCA, 25940 Grand River, Redford Township.

Registration is now being taken for the five-week class open to men and women. It will cover such subjects as social security, wills and legal affairs, mental and physical health, places to live and activities for retirement years.

The class is specially geared for people in their late 40s and 50s so they will have time to make arrangements for their future.

'Treasures' store adds international touch to Mall

A friendship that began in the center for foreign students at Wayne State University is continuing to flower in one of Livonia's new stores.

And "Treasures of Asia," since before Christmas a new part of the scene in the Livonia Mall, carries on the tradition of blending of cultures that Livonians Aftab and Najina Khan and Bharat and Jaydevi Sanghvi found in the college center.

The store, first opened for a month at Christmas, 1974, and returning in a more permanent role in the holiday season just past, sells art and craft work from all over the world.

Owner Aftab Khan was a resident of Kenya until a few years ago. After coming to this country, he and his wife met Jaydevi Sanghvi, at the Wayne State center.

Former residents of Pakistan and India, she and her husband had come to this country several years before and he was studying at WSU.

The friendship grew as the two families settled in Livonia, so when Khan and a brother switched from their importing business to the retail store, it was natural that Jaydevi, and sometimes her sons-Rajn and Binito-should come to take a part in its day-to-day operation.

Customers who stop to browse will find unusual items like animals of dyed goatskin, lamps made of hand-painted camel hide, boxes and bowls of mother of pearl on brass and a wide assortment of candles, beveled jars and chess sets.

They also can meet members of a couple of families who have brought to this area the charm of two cultures very different from the suburban scene.

"In this bicentennial year," says Jaydevi, now an American citizen, "a store like this truly represents an exchange of cultures through the medium of the panorama of gift articles from Asia, South America and Latin America."

Jaydevi Sanghvi and her son, Binit, show a tampura, an Indian instrument that is one of many unusual items in the new Treasures of Asia store in Livonia. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

m.m.memos

A strange company occupies our front yard these days, testimony to the fact that this is indeed an especially cold January.

Seven figures are ranged out in front of the house and around the big blue spruce. The snow people were created by our youngest daughter and her friend out of the wet snow that blanketed things just after Christmas.

I use the term snow people rather than snowmen advisedly, because these characters represent pals of the builders and all have names.

In most winters, there would have been a thaw soon and they would have disappeared. But, as this weather has turned out, Craig and Sally and Peter and Ed and Ann and Cindy and Steve seem to have a long-term job as guardians of our property.

WITH A FEW mild days, some of them started to lean a bit, and I suggested to our daughter that she had some rather tipsy friends. This she denied indignantly, and, sure enough, no one fell down.

Then the ensuing cold froze them into lean-to positions. The heavy snows of the last week have given them caps and cloaks, but their arms still stretch out and even their faces are discernible.

And they've watched considerable activity. For one thing, they waited out the arrival of three family cars through two early evening snow storms.

AND WHILE I didn't hear any offers to help as we shoveled our long, long driveway and walk—twice yet—I'm sure they were giving moral support when we got our car stuck on the coldest Sunday morning and had to rock a bit to get going.

I have to admit I really would prefer the kind of weather that would have had the company long gone. But if I must put up with all this snow and cold, those folks out in the yard add a cheery touch to my least favorite season.

—Margaret Miller

SC series deals with single life

Two programs at Schoolcraft College in coming weeks will look at aspects of living alone.

One is a seminar for senior adults and retired persons, co-sponsored by the college and the University of Michigan under a federal grant through the Wayne County Consortium on Aging.

It will be in the Livonia Senior Center, Farmington Road and Five Mile, and will run Jan. 28 to March 17 with weekly sessions.

The format will include discussions of topics such as personal fulfillment, money management, family relationships and self-protection.

Peggy Price, widow program coordinator, and Maud Piggot, community liaison for senior adults, will serve as instructors.

Enrollment is limited to 20 people, and the senior center can arrange transportation for Livonia residents. To register, call Mary Naboychik at the senior center or Ms. Price at Schoolcraft.

THE OTHER PROGRAM is under sponsorship of the SC women's resource center and involves a five-part open forum series titled "Single Adult Living."

It will open Thursday, Jan. 29, from 8 to 10 p.m. in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the Livonia campus, with a discussion of divorce and the church.

A panel including the Rev. Paul Koons of Nativity United Church of Christ, the Rev. William Lindholm of Holy Cross Lutheran and the Rev. Bob Shaden of Schoolcraft's Newman House will discuss the effect their churches' spiritual tradition has had on the adjustment of divorced persons within their religious orientation.

SUBSEQUENT FORUMS include: Thursday, Feb. 5, counseling resources and where to go for help; Tuesday, Feb. 10, single parenting; Thursday, Feb. 19, happily single, and Tuesday, Feb. 24, social alcoholism, the use and misuse of alcohol.

All the open forum programs are free and no pre-registration is necessary. On-going discussion groups may be formed from interested persons who attend the meetings.

Teen sessions in new location

Regular Friday evening meetings for teens seeking to stop using alcohol and drugs have moved to a new location.

Dennis Nadratowski, leader of the group that used to gather regularly in Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church in Northville, said the sessions now are held in a house, loaned by an area church for the purpose, at 15138 Cavell.

The meeting site is the first house south of Five Mile and Cavell is two blocks west of Inkster. Meetings are held from 7 to 9 p.m.

Nadratowski has been leading the group, which varies in size from week to week, for about a year. Young people interested in knowing more about the informal program may call him at the office of the 16th district court in Livonia. He serves as a counselor at the court during the day.

Getting settled made simple.

New-town dilemmas fade after a WELCOME WAGON call.

As your Hostess, it's my job to help you make the most of your new neighborhood. Our shopping areas. Community opportunities. Special attractions. Lots of facts to save you time and money. Plus a basket of gifts for your family. I'll be listening for your call."

SIGNS OF CHRIST'S RETURN

Nearly 2000 years ago the Bible foretold the events that would mark Christ's return. Israel restored. (Matt. 24:32, Jer. 16:14-15). Men cry fearfully for peace (Luke 21:26, 1 Thess. 5:2-3). Possible extinction of human race by pollution or nuclear weapons (Matt. 24:22). United Nations in a no-way-out situation. (Luke 21:25). Trouble everywhere (Matt. 24:21-22) in the form of unprecedented capital-labor strife (James 5:1-4), wars and armament race (Joel 3:9-10), revolution and racial conflicts (Zeph. 1:7-9). Sound like our generation? (Matt. 21:34).

A startling discovery. Secular, fundamentalist and evangelical scholars now agree that the Greek word parousia, mistranslated "coming" in Matt. 24:3, means "presence." Look it up in any Greek dictionary. "What shall be the sign of Thy PRESENCE." Therefore the above signs reveal a secret presence (Luke 17:20, 1 Thess. 5:2), discerned by watching Christians before "every eye shall see Him" (worldwide revealment) (Rev. 1:7). Then Christ's Kingdom will fill the whole earth. (Dan. 2:35,44).

Ready for circus

Devin Strong (center) of Livonia is an honorary ticket chairman for a benefit performance of the Shrine Circus to be sponsored by the Metropolitan Society for Crippled Children and Adults Jan. 30. Devin and Ricky the Clown are accepting a contribution from Devin's father, Tom, to help cover expenses for the project. Other contributions may be mailed to Circus, Box 1976, Detroit, 48235.

'No brainwashing,' says former Plymouth resident

"There is no form of brainwashing or mind control tactics used in the Unification Church unless one wants to consider all forms of education—be it catechism or an economics course— as brainwashing," wrote Cheryl Smith, director of the Unification Church center in Rapid City, S.D.

She was responding to an article in the Observer & Eccentric in which Kathy Buttery of Plymouth discussed a young man, Arthur Roselle, who is now a member of the Unification Church.

"I am convinced that mind-control techniques have been used on him," claimed Miss Buttery.

"If he is not being held against his true will, why doesn't he come home for a month, as his mother has asked," she queried. "If it were really free will, he could prove it by doing that. He always was close to his family, and now I cannot believe the way he talks to his mother."

Miss Buttery also showed concern over the wealth of Sun Myung Moon, the Korean evangelist who leads the Unification Church.

"He says he wants to take over the world as the second Messiah," she said.

She added that a group called the Citizens Freedom Foundation has been formed across the country by distressed parents and friends to free individuals from various religious cults.

IN HER LETTER, Ms. Smith pointed out that Roselle should be writing but "he would not be believed, either by his parents or by Miss Buttery because in their minds he is a completely 'programmed' person and is without a mind of his own."

She added: "This description of Arthur is absolutely false but unfortunately for Arthur, he has found it impossible to penetrate the mental barrier possessed by his family and friends.

"The question could feasibly become who is brainwashed, the deprogramees or the deprogrammers?"

Ms. Smith said she had worked at the Detroit Unification Church for two years during which time she gave Roselle several lectures on unification principles and talked with him about membership.

"I have also lived in Plymouth for six years," she noted. "I am concerned that the citizens of Plymouth not be led into any misconceptions about the Unification Church.

"To read of brainwashing and mind-control techniques is so incredibly absurd, I want to laugh. They are not true. Lectures at the center are presented formally or informally, questions are encouraged, and the atmosphere is very relaxed and friendly."

SHE ALSO DISCUSSED an unsuccessful attempt at deprogramming by members of the Rozelle family, Miss Buttery and others.

Roselle had been told that a young woman was interested in the church and wished to talk to him.

"When he opened the motel door, he found not only some strange girl, but Miss Buttery, his brother-in-law and two deprogrammers," wrote Ms. Smith. "They explained how Arthur should come with them to talk about the Unification Church, but Arthur was angry at the way he had been deceived and said he didn't want to talk and left to go.

"The two men tried to stop him and in the struggle to get free, Arthur received a black eye. He walked out and drove back to the center. I was present when he left that afternoon and when he returned. He knew he had been tricked by his own family and was very upset.

"Later he told me his mother had paid $2,000 to get Arthur deprogrammed and all it resulted in was getting her son a black eye."

Church Bulletin

ST. MAURICE CATHOLIC CHURCH, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia, will conduct a "Vigil for Life" mass Thursday, Jan. 22. The Rev. Thomas Cain of St. Maurice will officiate and the Rev. Leonard Partensky, associate pastor of St. Michael Catholic Church of Livonia, will speak during the homily.

Refreshments will be served following the mass. All parishes in the area are invited to participate.

ROSEDALE GARDENS UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia, will host the Covenant Players, a traveling Christian repertory company, in a program Sunday, Jan. 25, at 7 p.m.

The church's youth fellowship is sponsoring the program and will offer refreshments and babysitting in addition to the performances by the players.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. The Covenant Players, now a gropof 125 actos, have given 130,000 performances during the 11 years they have been organized.

CALVARY MISSIONARY CHURCH,29850 W. Six Mile, Livonia, will observe Youth Week in its programs Jan. 25 to Feb. 1.

Young people will share teaching positions in the church nchool and will participate in all services both Sundays.

The week also will include a Mid-Winter Youth Rally for youth from all over the area. Programs Friday, Jan. 30, and Saturday, Jan. 31 at 7:30 p.m. will feature talks by Marty Mikelson of Rochester, Mich., both evenings.

Music will be provided Friday by the "Gospel Echoes," a singing group heard on local radio, and on Saturday by metro-region Missionary Churches with Bob Phelps of Livonia as songleader.

Adat Shalom is registering

Registration for the spring semester, which runs from Feb. 2 to June 11, is being accepted by the Adat Shalom nursery school of the Adat Shalom Synagogue, 29901 Middle Belt, Farmington.

The bi-cultural program offered is dedicated to the social, emotional, intellectual and physical growth of preschoolers. It is provided by a professional staff, aware of the needs of young children.

For registration, visitations and detailed information regarding programming and transportation, please call Carol Snelling in the synagogue's nursery school office.

Ward holding missions meet

Fifteen missionaries whose work takes them all over the world are converging this week at Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia for the church's annual missions conference.

"Ward's Outreach Festival" is the them of the meetings extending from Wednesday, Jan. 21 through Sunday, Jan. 25. The church is located at Farmington Road and Six Mile.

Visitors for the conference include the Rev. Robert Malcolm, missionary to the Philippines, the Rev. George Ledden, director of the Far Eastern Gospel Crusade; the Rev. and Mrs. Haman Cross, directors of the Afro-American Mission in Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. George Dee, missionaries to Rhodesia.

Others are Al Kuhnle, executive director of the Voice of Christian Youth in Detroit; John Natelborg, area director of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Warnemuende of Mission Aviation Fellowship; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Woodward of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Eric Denial, who works with Campus Crusade for Christ in California, and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Crumley, missionaries to Zaire.

THE CONFERENCE began with talks by the visitors during regular Christian education classes Wednesday evening.

Six home meetings of women's circles Thursday, Feb. 22, are featuring mission reports, and a talk show is scheduled for an All-Nations banquet Friday, Jan. 23 beginning at 6:30 p.m. Missionaries will relate interesting experiences and there will be special music by "The Northern Lights," a team of eight students from the Scandinavian Bible Institute in Sweeden. Reservations are needed for the banquet.

A CHILDREN'S rally and luncheon is planned Saturday, Jan. 24, from 9 a.m. to noon.

All children in the area are invited to hear George Dee tell about his work in Africa among tribal people and to see the displays of African artifacts.

A movie on African life and a free lunch also will be on the program.

Saturday evening's program, scheduled at 7:30 p.m., will have a youth emphasis, with Al Kuhnle speaking and showing the film "Devil at the Wheel." There will be more music by the Northern Lights.

There's never been a better time to get to know us better. Because 1975 was our strongest year to date. A year of solid growth and fiscal strength. During the year we expanded banking services into the Detroit suburbs of Livonia, Troy, Southfield and Warren. In addition, a leasing company was established. The results of our efforts produced a new record of deposit totals and consolidated earnings. Good reasons to get to know us better. After all, we've been growing steadily ever since 1849.

Vows spoken in Plymouth

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Peyton of Plymouth announce the marriage of their daughter, Pamela Kay, to Stanley J. Kava, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Kava of Livonia, in a Jan. 10 ceremony in Plymouth.

A buffet reception for 150 guests was held in the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. After a Florida honeymoon, the couple live on Northville Road in Plymouth.

Eaton-Buckman

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Eaton of West Chicago Street, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynne Ann, to David Paul Buckman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Buckman of Washington Street, Livonia. Both are 1971 graduates of Franklin High School. The bride-elect is employed as a secretary by GSE, Inc., Farmington Hills. Her fiance graduated in 1975 from Eastern Michigan University with a degree in business administration and is employed as an accountant by Michigan Wisconsin Pipeline Co. in Detroit. Their wedding date is May 15.

Layman-Korte

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Layman of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter Rebecca to Martin T. Korte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin F. Korte of Plymouth. The bride-elect is enrolled in the medical laboratory technology program at Schoolcraft College and her fiance is in the aviation engineering technology program at Western Michigan University. The couple plan to be married in July and will live in Kalamazoo.

Pownall-Croskey

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pownall of Donald Street, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana L., to Gary F. Croskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Croskey of Provincial Court, Plymouth. The bride-to-be is a 1971 graduate of Churchill High m at Central Michigan University. She is employed by the Farmington school district. Her fiance graduated from Stevenson High School in 1970 and earned a degree in civil engineering from Michigan State University in 1975. They plan to be married in March.

Duplicate play in Northville

A novice duplicate bridge club will begin meeting Friday, Jan. 23, in the Scout Recreation Building, 215 Cady, Northville,

The games, scheduled at 7:45 p.m. each Friday, are intended for average bridge players interested in duplicate. A charge of $1 will cover prizes and refreshments. Those interested may come as often as they wish.

DIALING DOWN

...the "setback" that puts you ahead!

Dialing down the thermostat each night at bedtime is just as important as setting the alarm. It saves energy and money. For example, reducing your thermostat setting to 65 degrees for an eight-hour period each night will save more than 1 percent for every degree you dial down.

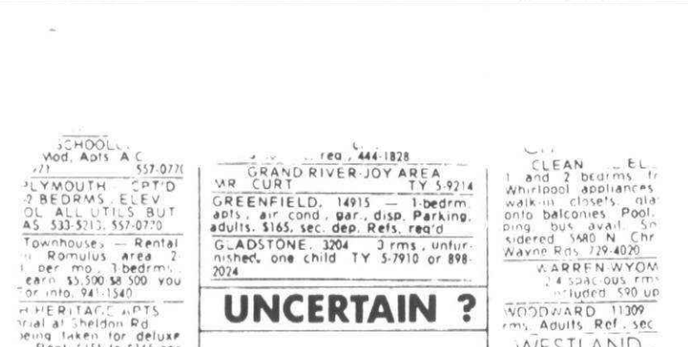

And, anytime you're going to be away from home for at least five hours, dial down and save even more. By using your thermostat in this, and other ways, to maintain lower temperatures, you can save as much as 20 to 30 percent annually.*

*Ask your heating dealer about automatic setback thermostats that help you save energy and money.

Remember..."the energy you save is everyone's... the money you save is yours."

Two scholarship-winning young musicians will be twin soloists in the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's annual family concert at 4 p.m. Sunday in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

Violinist Charles Roth and violist Scott Woolweaver will be heard with the orchestra in the first movement of Mozart's "Sinfonie Concertante."

Both are members of the symphony. Young soloists are a tradition in the Plymouth orchestra's family concert.

ROTH, A GRADUATE of Livonia Bentley High, is a freshman at the University of Michigan, where he is a pupil of Angel Reyes. Later this year he is scheduled to go to the Canary Islands with the university orchestra.

He is attending U-M on a full tuition scholarship. He attended the all-state orchestra at the Interlochen music camp for three summers and took part in the annual Congress of Strings at Cincinnati.

Several members of the Roth family have performed in the Plymouth Symphony. Cellist Sarah Roth, Charles' sister, was soloist in 1973 in a Haydn concerto.

WOOLWEAVER WILL attend U-M, too, on a full tuition scholarship after he graduates from Garden City West in June. At West, he is a member of the choir, orchestra and singing ensemble.

Woolweaver won the Joseph E. Knitzer memorial scholarship to Interlochen, has won two blue ribbons at solo and ensemble festivals and was a finalist in the Youth Arts Festival at Mt. Pleasant. His grandmother, Marcie Woolweaver, was a founder and long-time member of the Plymouth Symphony.

"Everyone wants violists," Woolweaver says of the instrument that gets little public attention. "If you're a good violist, everyone wants you."

He performed in several orchestras and earned money for college by playing in churches and with community choirs.

CONDUCTOR Wayne Dunlap announced late changes in the program.

Copland's "Lincoln Portrait" was dropped because the music failed to arrive from the publisher.

The first movement of Dvorak's Symphony No. 5 ("New World") will be performed in the "American heroes" section of the program to honor the immigrants.

Also added will be "Dance Rhythms" by Wallingford Riegger.

Dunlap is returning to the podium for the first time since his heart attack last August. "American heroes (and anti-heroes)" and "American places" are the twin themes of this fourth concert of the season.

"We will open with 'Music from the Days of George Washington' by Richard Bales, a contemporary American," Dunlap said. "These are simple tunes from the Revolutionary era which Bales edited and arranged for strings."

TWO WORKS by Aaron Copland are devoted to American figures.

"'John Henry' is based on the old folk tune in six different settings, one of which has a steam drill background," Dunlap said. A railroad builder, John Henry ran a successful race against a steam drill driving steel.

The orchestra will perform two sections of Copland's "Billy the Kid," a ballet written for Martha Graham.

"One of the first American attempts to use local color and ideas was Edward MacDowell's 'Indian Suite,' of which we'll do one movement, the dirge. To my knowledge he doesn't use Indian tunes, but he does emply Indian motifs," Dunlap said.

Highlight of the "places" part of the program will be a movement from Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite."

Tickets at the door are priced for adults and senior citizens, with kindergarten through high school students admitted free. Free nursery service is provided for children ages three-five.

The salvation Army bus will give senior citizens free transportation from the Tonquish Manor in Plymouth.

In Cleo's concert

Gene A. Wabeke (left), a music teacher for the Livonia school system, rehearses with the chorus of the Kurt Weill-Bertolt Brecht one-act musical "The Seven Deadly Sins" which will make up the second half of a concert by Britain's Cleo Laine. Wabeke will appear with Ms. Laine in her concerts Jan. 27 through Feb. 1 at Detroit's Music Hall Center.

2nd weekend for 'Godspell'

"Godspell," a musical interpretation of the Gospel, continues for a second weekend this month on Friday and Saturday at Schoolcraft College's new student cabaret theater in the Waterman Campus Center.

Ticket prices include a French cuisine of gourmet snacks and wine. Dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. with the performance at 8 p.m. Tickets are available Monday through Friday at the campus bookstore in Livonia.

New classes begin Feb. 2

Winter-term classes offered by the Plymouth Department of Parks and Recreation will begin the week of Feb. 2 in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

Day courses include golf (adult and youth), yoga, knitting, crocheting, quilting, china painting, houseplant care, youth crafts, creative movement, jazz exercise and ballet for adults and children including preschool ages.

Evening classes include belly and tap dancing, judo, karate, golf, square dancing and fly tying. For information, contact the Plymouth office, 455-6620.

Dinner theater gains popularity

Getting Around

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Suburban audiences are taking to the dinner theater concept. Newest addition to an evening of dinner theater is the Somerset Mall in Troy, which has opened Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" on Fridays and Saturdays.

Edgar A. Guest III of Birmingham is directing the comedy, which moved to Troy from the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills.

"It had run its gamut there," Guest said. "It opened on Sept. 18 and played Thursday nights to excellent houses."

Pierre Turgeon of Farmington Hills heads the cast, playing the husband who decides he deserves an extramarital fling and goes about it, entirely unsuccessfully.

COSTARRED as the three women with whom he tries to become romantically involved are Kathryn Sutton of Detroit, Nancy Gurwin of Southfield and Delores Shevlin of Farmington.

At the Botsford, another Neil Simon comedy will open in dinner theater format Feb. 12. This one stars Ed Guest. Mary Geiger of Birmingham, who played the woman in Act I of "Lovers," will be his costar in "Plaza Suite."

Director/actor Guest has been wearing a beard off and on since he appeared in a production of "Kismet" at St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook last spring. He shaved it after the show, but his friends were disappointed. So, he grew it back again.

Now he's about it shave it once again before he goes in front of an audience.

Guest said Somerset Mall's show is, "as far as we know, the only dinner theater in a major shopping center in the country."

The cast of "Lovers" did a portion of the play last fall during Theatre Arts Week at the mall. That prompted Peg DuBois, mall promotion director, to suggest bringing the entire show there.

THE NEW ALFRED'S restaurant (former Schrafft's restaurant in the mall) provides the buffet dinner of beef stroganoff, sweet-and-sour chicken, side dishes and dessert.

The mall auditorium on the lower level houses the Somerset Dinner Theater. There is cabaret seating at tables for two, four, six or eight to accommodate 125 show-goers.

Guest said "Lovers" is "a very, very funny show. Not what I would call risque in any way. There's a lot of truth in Neil Simon things."

The dinner-theater concept has been blossoming in the United States for the last five or six years, according to Guest. He said people like to have their entertainment closer to home.

"It's a real shot in the arm for the theater," Guest declared. "There are over 170 dinner theaters in the country, some seating as many as 2,000 people."

RECALLING THE unsuccessful effort of the Elmwood Casino in Windsor to institute dinner theater, he said, "It didn't go. I don't think it was the theater's fault.

"Mercy College (now offering Phil Esser's "Personals") has really been successful. Others didn't seem to catch on."

At Schoolcraft College in Livonia, a new student cabaret theater which opened last November is resuming weekend performances of the musical "Godspell."

Explaining the popularity of dinner theater, Guest said, "It allows people to relax a little more than they would in the theater. They can drink and smoke during the performance."

The combination with dinner in a convenient, often economical package, is another plus.

Guest was asked about the difference in the dinner-theater audience from an actor's point of view.

"There might be a tendency for the audience to talk among themselves a little more. It's more distracting to the actors at the start. The audience is so close it's a bit unnerving," Guest replied.

BUT THE ACTORS get used to it. They say, "My god, an orchestra pit!" once back on a regular stage, he said.

Guest claims one woman in a dinner theater audience told him, "That's the first time my husband has stayed awake during a play."

John Anhut, who owns the Botsford, has long been theater-oriented, Guest said. He had a theater on the grounds in the '50s. Last year Botsford started its dinner theater with "Facades," which ran through the summer.

"Then John asked Pete (Pierre Turgeon) to come up with a show during the fall," Guest said.

Turgeon asked Guest to direct, and they formed a production company. The two men had first met in a Franklin Village Players production of "Kiss Me Kate."

"We both played gangsters," Guest said. "We had great rapport."

"Lovers" will continue at Somerset, "as long as somebody's gonna buy a ticket for it," he said. Hopefully, the show will run through March. Then, the company will bring in "Plaza Suite" or another show.

Rockets misfire, Salem keeps rolling

By FRED DeLANO

An awesome defensive performance parlayed with a well balanced offense enabled Plymouth Salem's unbeaten basketball troops to roll to an astounding 57-18 lead over Westland John Glenn in the first three periods Tuesday before second and third stringers mopped up for an eventual 70-37 victory.

"They're by far the best team we've seen this season, and they undoubtedly have the best defense," said Glenn Coach Gordon Davis whose team is now 6-7, including a hard-fought loss to unbeaten Garden City West.

Plymouth is 12-0 after this non-league conquest, all eight remaining games on the pre-tournament schedule being against Suburban Eight rivals as the Rocks bid for their third straight undisputed title. The next game will be at Dearborn High Friday.

GLENN TRIED double teaming Plymouth's scoring ace, Jim Ellinghausen, in the opening minutes and if falling behind 10-4 to the effective outside shooting of Bob Evans and Brian Wolcott can be dubbed success, then that's what Glenn had.

But as soon as Glenn broke from that pattern Ellinghausen stormed to a game-leading 26 points in less than three quarters of action, and the show was over.

"Even when you do penetrate through their first line of defense to charge the basket, there's that big guy with the long arms blocking shots all over the hall," admitted Davis at game's end as he spoke admiringly of Ellinghausen's performance.

In the first quarter alone tS- all-state candidate with a 31 point scoring average blocked five Glenn shots and grabbed six rebounds. He was 10 and 10 for blocks and rebounds when he finally went to the sideline, but it was far from a one man show.

Mike Primeau with eight rebounds and Wolcott with six, plus floor shooting that has the starting quintet well over 50 per cent for 12 games, carried their share of the load—and well.

GLENN BATTLED all the way but was no match for the Rocks in team quickness. If there is a team with quicker hands in the state than Salem, it will have to show itself in the tournament playoffs. None has showed itself to date.

The ever-pressing flow of the Plymouth attack toward the basket in Coach Fred Thomann's offense saw the red hot Rocks frolick to a 23-4 lead for the first quarter, and it was an unbelievable 37-9 at halftime over what is regarded as one of the better clubs of the Northwest Suburban League.

A play-by-play account of such a runaway is meaningless, but of significance in the scoring pattern is the fact that while Glenn was trying to tie Ellinghausen up in a tandem vice Wolcott got free for eight points and Evans seven.

Those who look at basketball only through scoring statistics may not believe it, but the Rocks live by their passing game — not just the deadly eye of an Ellinghausen. Four other 50 per cent or better shooters are the men who opened it up for Eli to can nine buckets in the middle quarters against Glenn.

When Glenn finally had given up the ghost, Tom Jurewicz came off the bench to pick up eight personal points in the fourth quarter as the Westlanders' leading scorer. It had to look good to Davis after his starters had tallied only four points against the rollicking Rocks in the first quarter, five in the second and nine in the third.

All right!

Canton dropped

Plymouth Canton	10	20	17	9	—5
Livonia Stevenson	20	16	14	13	—6

Plymouth Canton let Livonia Stevenson jump out to a 20-10 advantage after the first quarter in a nonleague basketball contest Tuesday. The Chiefs fought back to within three after three periods, but just couldn't come up with the equalizing points in the finale, bowing to the Spartans 63-56.

Stevenson showed good execution and employed the fast break on several occasions in the opening eight minutes to forge to a 10-point advantage. The Chiefs quickly changed their defensive alignment from man-to-man to zone in an effort to shut down the Spartans' fast moving offense the rest of the night.

THE CHIEFS also went into their bread and butter pattern offense after the initial quarter and began to connect on open shots, slicing the Stevenson lead to 36-30 at the intermission and 50-47 after three periods.

The action was back and forth during the fourth quarter and the Livonians were able to gradually build their margin back up to 10 points throughout the final eight minutes.

The victory hiked the Spartans' overall record to 7-5, while the Chiefs fell to 2-7 in defeat.

"I think, overall, our first five played well," assessed Stevenson coach George Van Wagoner. "I was mostly pleased with our effort, but I think we could have showed better ball-handling."

The Stevenson scoring thrust was pretty well balanced, as four Spartans, Rob Rose, 20, Dave Haberman, 14, Dave Gilland, 11, and Ron Colone, 10, hit the double figure column of the scoring book.

Canton, meanwhile, had three players with double digits—Keith Osborne, 17, Tom Close, 15, and Rob Mandle, 12.

Both teams are home tomorrow (Friday). Canton hosts Walled Lake Western, while the Spartans meet Milford Lakeland. Both contests are league affairs.

Plymouth Canton-Livonia Stevenson

Livonia Stevenson (63): Rob Rose 8, 4-4 20; Ron Colone 4, 2-2, 10; Dave Haberma 5, 4-5, 14; Steve Gabrian 1, 2-2, 4; Dave Gil land 5, 1-3, 11; Brent Erickson 2, 0-0, 4 Totals: 25, 13-16, 63.

Total Fouls: Plymouth Canton 15, Livonia Stevenson 13. Fouled Out: Osborne.

Rocks second at invitational

At the first Plymouth Wrestling Invitational, John Glenn garnered 158 points to top seven other area school teams.

The Rockets captured seven gold medals, one silver, and took two fourth places. Glenn's Argon Vasha was awarded the tournament's most valuable wrestler trophy. During the day's events Vasha, a 121 pound senior, won his 100th match in his third year of wrestling for John Glenn.

Annapolis finished second with a solid 100 points as nine of their grapplers finished in the first four places.

Trailing the two leaders were the Farmington Falcons with 81½ points and Plymouth's own Salem Rocks with 71 points.

The Rocks picked up four seconds: Rene Leist at 100 pounds, Carl Schultz at 128 pounds, Richard Costantino at 147 pounds, and Dave Champion at 187 pounds.

Third place winners were: Les Hassen at 114 pounds, Jeff Fidge at 140 pounds, and Dave Kolb wrestling at heavyweight.

The invitational's other host team, the Plymouth Canton Chiefs, had Jeff Rey, 121 pounds, and Scott Collins, 140 pounds, placing fourth.

ROCK CAPTAIN Carl Schultz's contest for the championship with Bill Ficyk of John Glenn proved to be one of the best matches in the finals, as Schultz, leading 5-3 in the final period, lost when Ficyk executed a reversal and then a takedown to win 7-5.

Dave Champion, fighting off illness and a fever, still won his matches very decisively all day only to succumb in the evening event.

Very reluctantly Coach Ron Krueger took Champion out of the finals for the 187-pound division, giving the match to the Rockets' Mark Grabowski by a forfeit.

This was the first time Grabowski finished above Champion in their three meetings.

In his first match in the 114 class, Less Hassen tied his own record of 10 falls from last year.

At 140, the meeting of the Rocks' Jeff Fidge and the Chiefs' Scott Collins was the only match pitting the two host teams of Plymouth and friends against one another.

The two matmen evenly matched, fought a close duel with Fidge taking the 6-4 decision in the last fifteen seconds.

The three trophies awarded to the invitational champ, runnerup, and most valuable wrestler were contributed by the Plymouth Elks Club.

They also donated the gold, silver and bronze medals given to the top three place winners in each of the 12 weight classes. This is part of the Elks' involvement in the community and its Youth Activity Program.

JV Rocks roll past Ford

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

It was the same act, same players as the Plymouth Salem JVs won their eighth game in a row, dumping Allen Park 75-49.

The Rocks started out slow, leading at the half 32-22 with center Mitch Haas pumping in 12 points.

Plymouth pulled away in the third stanza by limiting Allen Park to just eight points while they scored 14 to increase the lead 46-30.

Again, Plymouth went to their reserves. Their strong bench, featuring Dave Menk, Jim Van Boven, Stu Roth, Bob Hissom and Pat Cavanaugh, helped the Rocks continue their assault by scoring a season high of 29 points in the fourth period.

Mitch Haas led all scorers in this romp with 14 points, Dave Menk had 13, Rich Hewlett and John Broderick 10 each, Agnew seven, Brightbill six, Kral six, Marks four, Genrich, Cavanaugh and Roth two apiece.

This week two players were outstanding: John Broderick and Dave Menk.

Broderick didn't allow his opponent much breathing room, with his sticky defense, and his rebounding strength is one of the reasons Plymouth has a 10-1 won-lost record.

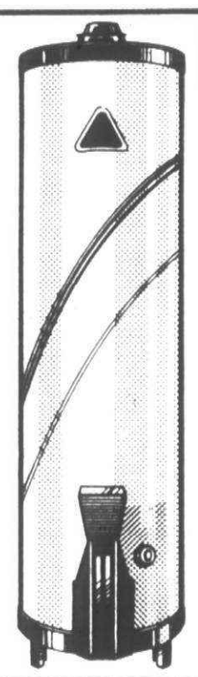

Dave Menk will come into a game and quickly score six, eight or 10 points to go along with his aggressive play.

The Rocks travel to Dearborn Friday, Jan. 23.

Harrison nips Eagle cagers, 68-63

By DOUG FUNKE

In a contest which was nip and tuck all the way and a lot closer than the final score indicated, Farmington Harrison bested Redford Thurston Tuesday in nonleague basketball action 68-63.

The proceedings fluctuated to the advantage of each team at different stages of the game, as Thurston led 19-16 after the opening period, Harrison scrambled in front at the half 30-29, continued to hold a one-point margin after three quarters, and eventually won by five, although everything was tied up at 62 with under a minute to play.

During the final 60 seconds, the Hawks connected for a foul shot and a field goal to go up 65-62. Thurston scored on the front end of a one-and-one situation to pull within two, missed the second free throw, then missed several tip-in opportunities which could have been the equalizing points.

Harrison finally obtained possession of the ball and with five seconds to play, Rob Skolnick was fouled by the Eagles in a desperate attempt to regain possession.

Thurston called two timeouts before the Hawk could shoot from the charity line in an attempt to unnerve Skolnick. However, when the marbles were on the line, the Harrison cager made good on his first free throw to seal the victory.

Skolnick missed his second attempt, but the ball was batted out to Harrison's Brian Gilbert, who canned a long shot at the buzzer for the final points of the game.

"Their kids (Harrison) did a nice job tonight," said Thurston coach Bill Croteau after the contest. "They had nice balance."

Four Hawks hit the double-figure mark on the evening—Jeff Otto had 14 points and Mike Redford, Lou Vulaj and Gilbert all ripped the cords for 10.

The Eagles' mentor also had some good things to say about his charges' play. "My kids were playing good defense, but they couldn't pick up that needed notch."

Thurston scorers were paced by Brian Barver with 20 points, Dave Beebe, 18, and Randy Rodriguez, 12.

Bentley icers catch Chargers

Livonia Churchill notched the first goal of the game after less than five minutes had been played against crosstown rival Bently last week, but after that, it was all Bulldogs, as Bentley stormed back to trim the Chargers in a ruggedly played hockey contest 4-1.

Bill Bardwell connected for Churchill's only goal during the 45 minute battle at 11:46 of the opening period, beating Bentley goalie Tim Oakley on an unassisted effort.

The Bulldogs, shut out during the first period by netminder Rick Parks and the Chargers' defense, came back during the second period to score three unanswered goals.

Don Delabbio and Rob Marderosian picked up unassisted markers for the Bulldogs during the first half of the second period and Bentley's Byron Freshwater dented the Chargers' net, Tony Givas and Phil Sexton assisting, with under two minutes to go in the period to up the Bulldogs advantage to 3-1.

Delabbio scored the last goal of the contest, Jim Cox assisting, at 10:35 of the final stanza, as both teams played the balance of the game without generating any scoring plays.

The intensity of the rivalry was reflected in penalty statistics, as six 10-minute misconduct and two game misconducts were called by the officials. Additionally, Churchill collected 11 minor penalties and Bentley accumulated eight.

Livonia Franklin—Southfield-Lathrup

The Patriots connected for two goals in the first three minutes of play last week, saw the advantage evaporate early in the third period, but scored twice more during the final three minutes to chill Southfield-Lathrup 5-3.

Franklin goals were scored by Joe Lubig, from Blair Warner and Lee Juntila, and Nelson Yanick, from Mike Barta and Steve Pellegata in the first period.

Yanick connected from Bob McKay in the second stanza, and Lubig scored from Ken Franklin and Dan Garbutt, and Rick Chapp dented the Lathrup cage from Lubig during the final period.

Livonia Stevenson—Wyandotte

After fighting back from a two-goal deficit through most of the hockey contest and eventually forging to a one-goal lead, Stevenson last week was tied by Wyandotte 6-6 when the downriver icers scored on a desperation effort with only 57 ticks remaining on the clock.

Frank Finn scored the three-goal hat trick for the Spartans, while single goals were notched by Jeff Bond, Dave Stewart and Tom Bowie. Stewart also contributed three assists and Larry Mullin, Ken Morrell and Bond recorded three assists apiece.

Bentley tankers earn 1st league win

Paced by junior Jim Mooradian, who earned first-place finishes in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke, Livonia Bentley last week swam by Redford Union 101-77 in a Suburban Eight League duel.

The victory was the first in four meets for coach Patrick Lee and his sophomore-laden swimming team.

"I'm very impressed with the sophomores and the leadership of the seniors," stated the Bulldogs' coach. "I think we have a lot to look forward to in the years ahead."

Lee, although pleased with the performance of his entire squad against RU, reserved special kudos for Mooradian, calling the hard-working junior "the outstanding swimmer on the team."

Although Mooradian was the only individual double-winner of the meet, several tankers from both teams turned in outstanding efforts.

Bentley reaped the rewards of Dave Lamarch, Brian Vance, Bob Roussey and Bob Staff, who all finished in the top three of three events, while RU received many points from Leith and Lesstad, who also placed in the top three of all events entered.

Curlers to vie for coveted Alandt Trophy

Top prize in the 19th annual Detroit Rockettes Bonspiel will be the coveted Alandt Trophy. The large silver punch bowl on its much-engraved base has been the goal of women curlers in the Midwest and Canada since 1957.

The trophy was donated by longtime Plymouth residents Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Alandt who now live in Dearborn.

Visitors may attend the two-day bonspiel 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Jan. 28-9 in the Detroit Curling Club, 1236 W. Forest, Detroit. There will be no admission charge.

Twenty-four teams, or rinks, will compete—six from Detroit and the remainder from other Michigan cities, Illinois, Ohio and Canada.

The Alandts were introduced to curling by the late Judge James Sexton and his wife, Dolly, of Plymouth. At the end of the 'spiel prizes will be awarded to each member of the seven top teams. The top rink will also receive the Alandt Trophy, presented by Mrs. Alandt.

By W. W. EDGAR

Charity has become the key word in the area's bowling centers these days and, from all indications, the bowlers will establish new highs in their contributions to the unfortunate.

The annual statewide event sponsored by the bowling proprietors heads the list and more than $60,000 is expected to be realized for a series of worthy causes.

On Sunday, Feb. 1, one of the most interesting of the charity events in the annual battle between Father Kramer Knights of Columbus and Ivan Bloch Lodge B'nai B'rith at Oak Park Lanes with the receipts going to the Michigan Special Olympics for the Handicapped.

Later, there'll be the Tournament with a Heart in many of the centers. And the bowlers always have come through.

KATHY SPRINGS staked out a strong claim to being the best of a younger crop of bowlers over the past weekend when she paced the field in the Mid-City Open at Luxury Lanes. She rolled a 1307 to take top honors.

IT IS BECOMING an old story in the ladies classic at Garden Lanes as Mary Mohacsi, the Livonia school teacher, goes merrily on her way of pacing the field. This time she contributed a 601 to gain the top for the second week in a row.

She was hard pressed, though, as Linda Frohlich was only five pins back with 596 while Louise Hirsch landed third with 593.

In the Garden Men's Classic, Gordie Cantwell was the top performer with a 656. Behind him came Ron Brennan with 644 and Roger Thorpe with 641. Dave Litterel and Dave Ciolek tied for the next place with 640.

AMONG THE outstanding performances of the week was a 714 series turned in by Don Potts, of Stan's Market, who rolled a 289 to break the 700 barrier.

Sharing honors with him was Chet Lipa, manager of the Michigan National Bank-Metro West, who turned in a 279 which was 124 pins over his average. Not bad, eh.

TED BAKATSELOS, the powerful Greek who does a lot of his bowling at Westland Bowl, won his fourth Michigan Majors title last Sunday at South Lanes in Southgate. He averaged 210 while losing only one of his 12 matches.

FINDING THE RANGE for the high single game of the season, Darlene Marrow showed with way in the Livonia Ladies Classic.

She rolled a 239 for the high game and with a spot of 14 won the third game with a 253 and the series with 574-42—616.

In the other games, Dee Briggs won the opener with 196-32—228 and Pat Coombe took the second with 192-34—226.

FRED R ROSSMAN moved to the head of the parade in the Bel-Aire Classic with a 693 that included a 247 opener. He was way ahead of the field as Tom Reeves landed second along with Bill Walker tied at 658. Two pins back, B.C. Nunnery took fourth place with 656.

THE WOMEN'S TRI-CITY association is looking forward to its 23rd annual tournament which is scheduled to open with a specual bicentennial ceremony at Westland Bowl over the weekend of Feb. 7-8. The ceremony is set for 12:30 on Sunday. Entries for the affair close Jan. 31.

Chiefs, Rocks win at volleyball

The Plymouth Salem girls' volleyball team beat Livonia Churchill 2-0 in a non-league encounter Monday, Jan. 19.

The Rocks took the first game of the match 15-7. In a tougher battle for the second game they defeated the Chargers 18-16.

There was definite improvement in their playing since Friday's tournament, said coach Brian Gilles. "We played better, had exceptional blocks and good serving and spikes," Gilles said.

The Rocks' leading server was Peggy Moore who went 8 for 8.

Cheri Levielle got 13 points with three aces.

Peggy Moore and Karen Prikosivits were leading spikers, and Linda Agardy had six blocks.

Salem will host John Glenn, the team which defeated the Rocks 3-2 in the Plymouth tournament Monday, Jan. 26.

The Plymouth Canton girls' volleyball team defeated Northville 2-1 in their first match of the season Monday, Jan. 19.

The Canton squad had "complete control over the ball" according to coach Cyndi Burnstien as the Chiefs took the first game of the match 15-5.

In the second game, the Chiefs started out strong but had a problem holding on to their lead and were defeated 15-12.

Canton came back in the third game and won 15-8.

Coach Burnstien said saves and good team work led the squad to victory.

"Karen Decker was outstanding in her performance. She made some unbelievable saves," said Burnstien.

Decker led the Chiefs with 24 points against Northville and was followed by Sue Reque with nine points.

Kathy Sojocki led the Chiefs in spikes with 14. Jan Haarer had 10.

Canton's next game will be Jan. 26 at Redford Union.

JV Rocks down AP

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

It was the same act, same players as the Plymouth Salem JVs won their eighth game in a row, dumping Allen Park 75-49.

The Rocks started out slow, leading at the half 32-22 with center Mitch Haas pumping in 12 points.

Plymouth pulled away in the third stanza by limiting Allen Park to just eight points while they scored 14 to increase the lead 46-30.

Again, Plymouth went to their reserves. Their strong bench, featuring Dave Menk, Jim Van Boven, Stu Roth, Bob Hissom and Pat Cavanaugh, helped the Rocks continue their assault by scoring a season high of 29 points in the fourth period.

Mitch Haas led all scorers in this romp with 14 points. Dave Menk had 13. Rich Hewlett and John Broderick 10 each. Agnew seven, Brightbill six, Kral six, Marks four, Genrich, Cavanaugh and Roth two apiece.

This week two players were outstanding: John Broderick and Dave Menk.

Broderick didn't allow his opponent much breathing room, with his sticky defense, and his rebounding strength is one of the reasons Plymouth has a 10-1 won-lost record.

Dave Menk will come into a game and quickly score six, eight or 10 points to go along with his aggressive play.

The Rocks travel to Dearborn Friday, Jan. 23.

WHODUNIT?

The sofa, the chair, the stove and the dresses . . . all sold in a single day. Who could have gotten away with it? It's really not such a mystery. Every clue points to the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds: the quick response, the number of calls, and most important, the results-SALES.

Consider the opportunity . . . the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are read twice each week by more than 155,500 families in Wayne and Oakland Counties --families next door to you and in neighboring communities.

Consider the motive . . . the Observer & Eccentric Want Ad Department has a strong desire to satisfy your needs, whether you're selling a couch or looking for a job.

Consider the weapon . . . the Observer & Eccentric Family Want Ads have a double edge because they're placed in two consecutive issues (Monday/Thursday or Thursday/Monday) and are seen each time by more than 155,500 witnesses. And these Family Want Ads (no changes in copy, no cancellations) cost only $6 --that's a savings to you of $2 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

It's a modus operandi that is well known and makes the solution to this case elementary.

Lexington Condo Homes
City of Northville

The warmth, the friendliness, the security of the old-fashioned neighborhood - it can't be created, but somehow we've captured it. Maybe it's because we're in Northville—two square miles of turn-of-the-century charm. Dotted with green hills and mill ponds, quaint shops and historic homes, tree-lined streets and friendly people. Or, maybe it's because we're blessed with gentle people right here.
