Plymouth and Canton met on the hardwood floor for the first time this season in district action at Southfield. It was a rough and tumble contest, as Rock guard Brian Wolcott's pained posture indicates. For the results and more pictures see page 1-C. (Staff photo by Gary Friedman)

New boundaries released

New attendance boundaries for elementary and middle schools were recommended to the Plymouth Board of Education Monday night by the district's attendance and boundary committee.

The committee also recommended that all students currently enrolled in Plymouth-Salem and Plymouth Canton remain in their respective high schools, and that the feeder system to the high schools remain unchanged.

The committee suggested that Geer Elementary remain open during 1976-77 with an expanded enrollment, and that a second 45-15 (year-round) school be added the following academic year in 1977-78.

The report was received by the board which will now conduct a public hearing beginning at 7 p.m. Monday, March 8, in the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High. The board expects to make a final decision on boundaries at its March 22 meeting.

AMONG THE first four recommendations were alternatives which could be taken if either of the new elementary buildings in Canton aren't ready for use next fall.

If financial reasons require the closing of any of the 14 elementary buildings, the committee recommended that Geer, Starkweather and Truesdell be selected to close first.

To prepare for future growth in grades K-12, the committee suggests that the 45-15 extended school year could be used on a one-track schedule district-wide. "Tracks would be added where needed. Miller would stay on a four-track 45-15 extended school year program. This committee also sees the need to prepare one more school attendance area for 45-15 extended school year in the 1977-78 school year on a four-track schedule."

Another recommendation was that the CASTLES building could be relocated in the building which now houses the Michigan State Police with the present CASTLES building used to house transportation, maintenance and custodial departments.

Plymouth Canton High is projected to have an enrollment next year of 1,739 with the feeder schools remaining to be Central and East middle schools. Canton's capacity is 1,812, excluding the new addition.

Plymouth Salem is projected to have an enrollment of 2,280 with a capacity of 2,224. Pioneer and West middle schools will continue to be the feeder schools.

The committee feels it desirable to balance the enrollment between the two schools, but feels the process may take three to four years without serious disruption of the student body.

Maps showing the proposed boundaries may be found on Page 3A of today's edition. The narrative description of proposed boundary changes at the elementary and middle schools follows.

Residents fight land plan

By RICHARD GOLD

If Monday night's hearing is any indication of support for the proposed master land-use plan, there is little or none.

Old-time residents, farmers, businessmen, and lawyers representing landowners in Canton virtually filled Salem High School auditorium to object to the plan.

Money and taxes were the issues, and many residents complained of having paid high taxes for land that under the proposed plan would lose much of its worth.

While some of the residents who opposed the plan referred to land parcels east of Canton Center that had been down-zoned, the greatest amount of testimony was against provisions in the plan to save almost 9,000 acres for farming in the western half of the township.

Some residents did endorse the plan, or the concepts behind it, but most who commented on the plan objected to it.

Lawyers were almost as plentiful as residents, and several who spoke implied approval of the plan would result in court action.

Some residents warned of suits, and Frank McMurray, a homeowner in Holiday Park suggested the planning commission recommend that the township put aside a sizeable amount of money for legal defense of the plan.

"IT APPEARS to me we are just taking ourselves to court with this plan unless we can find some way to reimburse the people who will be hurt," he said.

Martin Weissman, an attorney for a group of landowners holding 630 acres in the township, commented, "In 1968 my clients invested close to $1 million, and they have a right to be protected from deprivation of property rights."

"They will be compensated because the actions here will result in deprivation, and just compensation should be part and parcel of this plan."

"They have been paying taxes at an ever-increasing rate and they deserve better treatment."

"Judging from comments from the podium, it seems your minds are already made up, and I sincerely hope this is not a charade," Weissman said.

Jacob Farmer, an attorney from Ann Arbor, cited a recent court decision where-in it was ruled that just reasons had to be given for rezoning land.

"Before rezoning you have to show a mistake or that the neighborhood character has changed substantially. In the case of my clients, I see no such proof."

"If this plan is adopted, I think I would be forced to recommend to my clients that the matter be taken to court."

Norman Hyman, a Detroit-based attorney representing a landowner with property just west of Canton Center near Palmer, argued that his client's land was in a flood plain, fronted on Canton Center, was adjacent to a mobile home park, and was therefore not farmable.

"AS I UNDERSTAND it, the underlying factor and the purpose of this plan is to preserve agricultural land and to protect the farmer who can't compete because of high taxes."

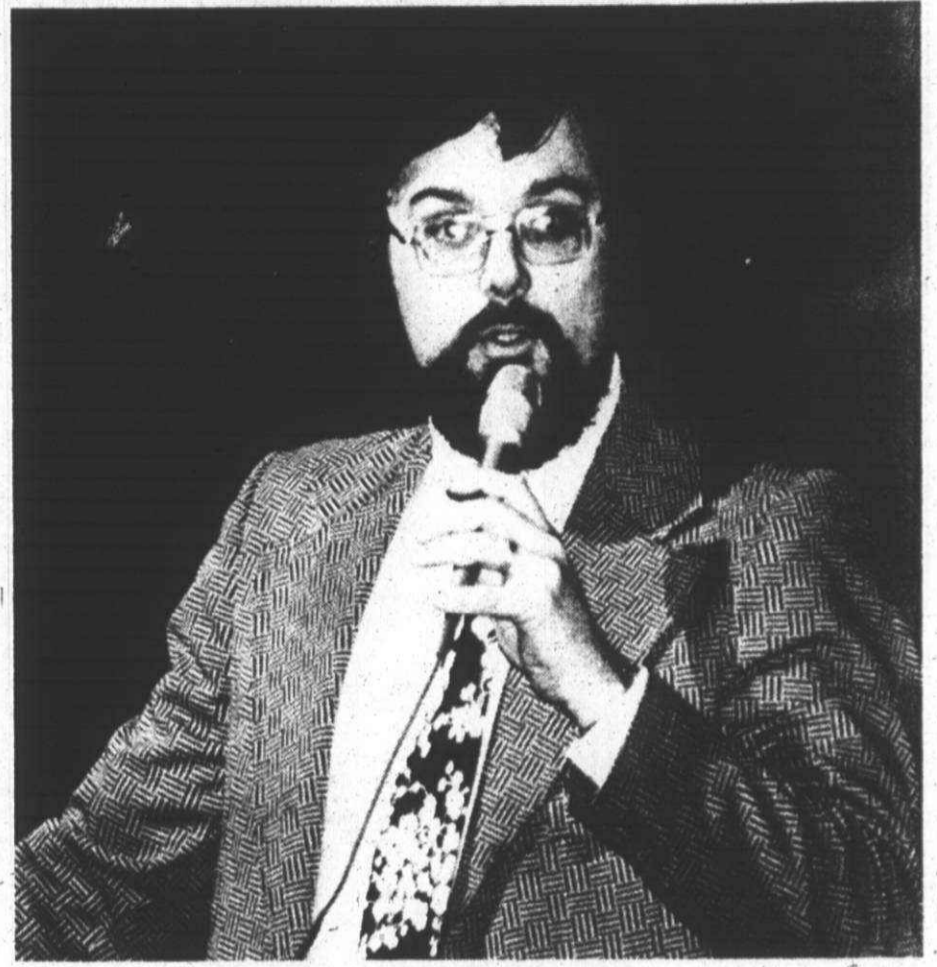

"This doesn't apply here. There's no farmer or agricultural land to protect. My client has owned this land for years—he's no 'Johnny-come-lately.' Part of the land has been tenant farmed but that hasn't even paid 10 per cent of the taxes. This isn't viable farmland."

James Williams, another attorney, represented a woman who owns 140 acres fronting on Geddes across from a mobile home park. Under the new plan, the land would be rezoned from multiples to agricultural-industrial.

"Sewers are only 300 feet away," Williams said, "and the land is ready for development."

"My client has paid $87,000 in real estate taxes in the last 40 years, $19,000 last year alone."

"She's never asked for any protection, but her dollars were used to build up this township. The zoning has been the same since 1961, and she asks that it be continued."

Planner Mike Manore was the man on the hot seat Monday night as Canton residents spoke their minds on the master land use plan. (Staff photo)

Several township farmers echoed the same sentiments. One said, "Little has been thought about the position this plan puts us in. We've been counting on our land appreciating."

"This is an idealistic plan, and it would look fine in magazines. It's a pipe dream. You're 10 or 15 years too late."

"THOSE OF US here tonight have spent all our lives in Canton. It was us who let the subdivisions move in here."

"Now the times and the rules have changed, and our lives are controlled by the people we let move in. Now you're telling us we have to farm and if don't want to, who are we going to sell the land to?"

Fritz Lobbestael commented, "I farm for a living—it's a non-profit organization, but I may not farm much longer unless I fancy bankruptcy."

"Land west of Canton Center has bad drainage and soil, the brush hasn't been

VFW pickets Meijer

Supporters of the United Farm Workers and members of the UAW and AFL-CIO chose Meijer Thrifty Acres as a picketing site Saturday, in the latest round of protests over mistreatment of farm laborers in California.

As estimated 200 union members and labor supporters picketed the store at Ford and Canton Center Saturday for two hours.

Dan O'Rourke, who led the protest, said Meijer was chosen for two reasons.

"The main focus of the effort was to protest the sale of Sun Maid raisins and Sun Sweet dried fruits. They represent almost 5,000 growers in California, and those growers were instrumental in cutting off funds to the California labor board. "Meijer sells large quantities of these brands and this is their largest store in the state."

"The other reason we're here is because Meijer's has a company union and in the labor movement, that's no union at all."

THE LATEST round of protest by UFW supporters was sparked when the California legislature failed to allot more money to the state labor board to continue conducting elections so farm workers could decide whether they wanted the UFW or the Teamsters as their bargaining representatives.

According to O'Rourke, the number of elections that were held was unexpected and the board ran out of money.

Allegedly, a large combined lobbying effort by the Teamsters and the growers prevented the labor board from getting more funds.

"With this action, the farmworkers have been denied their right to a free secret ballot to choose their representatives and were protesting for that right," said O'Rourke.

"We expect to be back here again in the future, if this doesn't change, although we haven't set a date."

"We want to talk to Fred Meijer to see that these products are removed from his stores, and until he talks to us we will continue to picket Meijer throughout the state."

Paving cost is adjusted

The assessment roll for the City of Plymouth's 1976 local street improvement project was lowered Monday night by the city commission to reflect a $270 drop in cost on South Holbrook Street.

The lower cost resulted from a change in plans for the street negotiated between the city and residents from a cul de sac to a T-turn at the end of Holbrook.

Streets to be improved are: Davis from Farmer to the C&O tracks; Cherry from Dunn to West Pearl; West Pearl from the C&O tracks to Starkweather; East Liberty from N. Mill to York; and S. Holbrook from Union to the south end of the street.

The commission also confirmed the re-appointment made by Mayor Joe Bida of Clifford W. Tait Sr. to the Board of Review.

W-W millage approved 3-1

By JANAN GHANNAM

Wayne-Westland school officials are "elated" at the passage of a 21-mill renewal election Monday where the yes votes outnumbered the no votes 6,332 to 2,078.

Dr. Dennis O'Neill, deputy superintendent, attributes the millage success to the "hard work put out by all the school principals, election workers and residents."

"Because it was a renewal election, the voters were receptive to passing it," O'Neill said.

"Residents of the Wayne-Westland district have always been concerned about their children's education," board member Agnes Greene said.

"I've been in this area since 1946 and I've never come across a community so loyal in the time of need."

WITH THE SUCCESS of the millage renewal, school officials were asked if the district would make a third attempt at a bond election.

In June, the district sought voter approval to borrow state funds to repair and renovate buildings, boost special education and vocational education offerings, replace two elementary schools and the central administration building and to build swimming pools at the junior high schools.

After the June defeat, the district returned to the voters in December with a slimmer bond proposal. The erection of the new buildings was eliminated and the pools were listed as a separate issue.

But both the pools and the renovation issues were defeated.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS remained mum on the possibility saying it had not been "officially" brought up.

But board member Vince Pettipren commented:

"If it's going to be brought up by the voters, it would have to be trimmed and shaved down to its basic needs or else it shouldn't be brought up at all."

A consensus of school officials contended that any bond proposal issue would be limited to building repairs and renovations.

"We must study why the last two bond issues failed," O'Neill said, "and decide what the vital needs are before presenting it to voters again."

THE MILLAGE RENEWAL is expected to generate 55.7 per cent of the local property taxes, 28.4 per cent of the district's operational budget or $10.3 million in total revenue.

Voters had been warned that had the renewal been defeated, half day sessions and elimination of extracurricular activities would be the result.

Despite the rain and snow, the election drew as many voters as the June election when board members were elected and the first bond issue were on the ballot.

DESPITE REPORTS that a "loophole" in the current state aid act could cause a loss of revenue to districts passing higher millage, the loophole will not work against Wayne-Westland.

"We will not be affected in any way," O'Neill said, "because the residents passed a renewal and not a higher millage."

"But even though we are not hurt this time, Supt. Timothy Dyer will be meeting with our legislators to try to get the section changed for future needs," O'Neill said.

The millage renewal will be in effect for five years.

Aid formula may hurt W-W

Wayne-Westland Community School District may lose about $897,000 in revenues for the coming year, if a section of the state aid act isn't changed.

Richard Keilhacker, assistant superintendent of business and finance, explained section 143 was actually implemented by the legislators to make up for the revenue losses that result from the single business activities tax. In essence, this tax allows businesses to refrain from paying taxes on personal property inventories until they become businesses.

Keilhacker said that, overall, this means a loss of $33,793,590 in the district's evaluation worth. Wayne-Westland will lose about $1,348,000 in revenues for one year.

"Section 143 is supposed to provide the entire amount of revenue lost through the single business tax, but so far, all that has been provided is $451,000," said Keilhacker. "That puts the district at a loss of $897,000."

Both Supt. Timothy Dyer and Keilhacker have appeared before the subcommittee of the Senate and House appropriations committees in an appeal to have the formula changed.

"It's a very complicated and confusing act," said Keilhacker, "but we are going to continue to try to get the legislators to change the formula of this section."

Not only do districts have to face the loss of inventory taxes, Keilhacker explained, but, in the case of a district's passing a higher millage, they may never receive the revenue due them because of a loophole oversight.

"Wayne-Westland voters passed a millage renewal Monday night, not a higher millage," Keilhacker said, "so our district isn't affected by the loophole."

Meijer is picketed

AFL-CIO News, said ultimately the issue would have to be decided in California.

"Our aim here is to cooperate with other labor groups when we can and that's why we backed the protest at Meijer," Vagnozzi said.

According to Vagnozzi, support of the UFW has caused some friction with local Teamsters.

"The differences here have not been as great as in California, but the Teamsters is the parent organization.

"The position of the AFL-CIO and the UAW here is to support the UFW. We are not against the teamsters but rather supporting the UFW."

"It's a delicate matter."

Wendell Ray, director of labor relations for Meijer, said the protest was over the folding of the state labor board in California, something Meijer had no control over.

"We have had numerous talks with the UFW and we couldn't be assured of union sources of supply for farm produce that would meet our needs."

Ray added that the union Meijer employees belonged to was a viable bargaining unit. "It's a consolidated independent union and we have been negotiating with them since 1961. The union has expanded since then just as we have."

"They have negotiated very competitive contracts and they compare very well with other retail-type union contracts."

Livonia O&E tops LWV study

Observer & Eccentric newspapers fared substantially better than average in a fair housing advertising survey conducted by the League of Women Voters. Results of a 30-month LWV monitoring project of 5,000 real estate display ads in 19 area newspapers indicated only 14 per cent of advertisers were in full compliance with fair housing guidelines established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in 1972. However, the number of advertisers complying at least in part with the guidelines jumped from 31 per cent in the summer of 1973 when the study began to 60 per cent when it was concluded in the summer of 1975.

OF THE daily, semiweekly and weekly newspapers in the tri-county area, only the Livonia Observer & Eccentric was 100 per cent in compliance.

In the Birmingham Observer & Eccentric, the study indicates, 67.9 per cent of the ads met HUD requirements.

Figures for the Farmington Observer & Eccentric indicate 54 per cent compliance; Plymouth Observer & Eccentric, 49 per cent; and Southfield Observer & Eccentric, 44.6 per cent.

Other papers not in the Observer-Eccentric group ranged from 2.3 per cent to 54.1 per cent in compliance.

The results of the monitoring were announced at a press conference sponsored jointly by the LWV and the South Oakland County Board of Realtors.

WE ARE generally pleased with the cooperation of the area Realtors. Almost all of them make an effort to comply with the law," said Arthur Langer, Observer & Eccentric classified advertising manager.

"Occasionally through an oversight on either their part or ours, the fair housing logotype might be accidentally omitted from an ad. It is our policy to comply with the law."

The housing action committee of the League of Women Voters of the Detroit Metropolitan Area conducted the study. Paula Tobocman of the West Bloomfield-Farmington League, Joyce Mittenthal of the Detroit League and Ann Wettlaufer of the Birmingham-Bloomfield League directed the committee. Representatives from each of the 16 local leagues in the tri-county area participated in the project.

"WE BELIEVE the study shows the league's monitoring has made a real difference in the indication of equal housing opportunities in real estate display ads," said Mrs. Wettlaufer, who tabulated the survey results.

League results show that the 209 firms monitored and contacted in 1973 showed a significant increase in their compliance with advertising guidelines in 1974. But the high percentage of the 130 non-complying firms monitored for the first time in 1975 indicates a lack of awareness of federal guidelines.

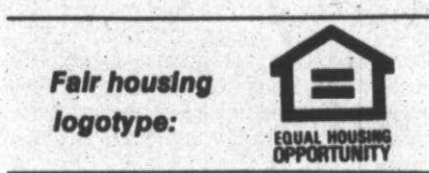

HUD'S ADVERTISING guidelines for fair housing specify how the fair housing logotype should be used in all real estate display ads of more than four column inches. The logotype is a house with an equal sign inside and the words "Equal Housing Opportunity" underneath. It signifies that housing is available for sale or rent to everyone.

Discrimination in advertising, renting and selling houses is illegal. The league believes the public is not aware that equal access to housing is required by the 1968 federal and state fair housing laws.

Failure to comply with HUD guidelines in real estate or building ads is insufficient evidence of discrimination and can not be prosecuted without specific complaint.

"WE KNOW that more than advertising is needed to make all persons aware that equal housing is available to them," Mrs. Wettlaufer said. "Some of the necessary steps are the combined efforts of government agencies enforcing fair housing laws; the real estate industry affirmatively marketing; the mortgage industry affirmatively lending; and the news media publicizing that all housing is available to everyone who can afford it wherever it is."

A second part of the league's effort to educate the public to the equal housing opportunity logotype is a 30-second television public service film. The spot announcement, funded by the Ford Foundation and created by Crunch Bird Studios of Detroit, has been distributed nationally. The study was undertaken in connection with the national LWV position of support of equal housing opportunity programs. The project was begun after both HUD and state civil rights officials told the league that no government agency had the staff to monitor housing ads.

The league hopes this study "will encourage the appropriate agencies and society as a whole to work for compliance with the fair housing laws," Mrs. Wettlaufer said. Copies of the final report are being given to HUD, the U.S. Justice Department, the Michigan Department of Civil Rights and area real estate groups.

Open house slated on reading

Reading is an area of education—whose importance no one questions—that should be emphasized all through school, according to parents and educators alike. The high school reading program in the Plymouth Community School District will be demonstrated at an open house on March 10 from 7-9 p.m. Parents, interested residents, and teachers or administrators from other school districts are invited.

Four teachers at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools work with more than 800 students per year in two levels of reading classes. Students may take either Basic Reading, or Reading

Board opposes LCC change

Plymouth Township Board of Trustees recently voted to send a letter to State Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ann Arbor), whose district includes Plymouth Township, stating its opposition to a bill amending the Michigan Liquor Control Act. The bill, if adopted, would grant tavern licenses to retail food establishments selling meals for consumers on the premises without regard to the population limitations now contained in the Liquor Control Act. The board acted in response to a resolution from the City of Grosse Pointe Woods taking similar action against the proposed legislation.

Mrs. Matthews is appointed

Mrs. Mabel G. Matthews of Plymouth has been appointed by Gov. Milliken to a two-year term on the Michigan Public School Employers' Retirement Board. Mrs. Matthews of Ann Arbor Road is a retired Detroit School principal. She is treasurer of the Detroit Retired Teachers Association, past president of the Detroit Education Association, and past member of the board of directors of the Michigan Education Association. The appointment was made under Public Act 259 of 1974 which called for an additional member to the board. She will serve a term expiring March 1, 1978, subject to Senate confirmation.

SC eyes bonds for fine arts building

By TIM RICHARD

"Man does not live by voc-tech alone," smiled Trustee Leroy Bennett as the Schoolcraft College board gave preliminary approval to a longtime dream—construction of a fine arts facility with a major auditorium.

Trustee Gerald Cox agreed: "It's in our master plan, and we're way over due in terms of having a fine arts center. It's very timely to give the go-ahead."

The fine arts facility would be one project among six covered by a $10 million bond issue.

THE BOARD of trustees Wednesday authorized the administration to begin working with legal counsel on the bond issue resolution. Formal consideration is scheduled for the March 24 meeting.

There are no individual price tags, but these projects would be covered during a five-year period:

- Completion of an addition to the culinary arts program.

- A new learning resource center and remodeling of the existing library.

- The fine arts facility—classrooms and an auditorium with seating capacity of 2,000 to 2,500. It would cost in the neighborhood of $3 million, officials estimate.

- Preliminary engineering plan for the campus.

- An addition to the applied science building.

- A final addition to the Waterman Campus Center.

College officials are not counting on state or federal funding. But they will seek 50 per cent state funding on every part of the program. To the extent they're successful, they'll pay off the bonds early.

THERE WAS DISSENT from two corners.

Trustee Ron Cowden favored the projects but felt the board should ask for voter approval. "The public doesn't understand we have this power (to issue bonds without a vote). We should go to the public," Cowden declared.

He abstained, and the vote was 6-0. Trustee Arch Vallier was absent.

'In the past, the City of Livonia talked about having an auditorium of this scope, but they didn't get it passed. Now we are 'it' in western Wayne County.'

—Gerald Cox
SC trustee

Richard Arlen, a business instructor and president of the Faculty Forum (instructors' union), said "A plan of operating costs should accompany this plan. This could either drain our present budget or we'll have to go after more millage."

"Let's not kid the public. We'll have to subsidize this," said Arlen of the fine arts project.

BENNETT AND Trustee Mark McQuesten defended the fine arts part.

"The instructional costs have been built into the budget," said Bennett, adding that the costs of operating the theater portion had not been calculated.

But McQuesten said theater operations "are potentially self-supporting. I've talked to people who know about these things."

Dr. Cox said, "I recall students coming in and complaining about the lousy (existing) facilities for fine arts. I looked at it next day. It is lousy."

"In the past, the City of Livonia talked about having an auditorium of this scope, but they didn't get it passed. Now we are 'it' in western Wayne County," said Cox.

THE KIND OF auditorium Schoolcraft is considering is more than double the size of Clarenceville's Schmidt Auditorium, Garden City's O'Leary Auditorium and Plymouth Salem's auditorium.

Schoolcraft's would be smaller, however, than the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium, Detroit's Ford Auditorium and the Masonic Temple which has more than 4,000 seats and can cope with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

There were plans for such a fine arts facility in 1968, but they were put on the shelf as Schoolcraft moved into the voc-tech area.

At times, Bennett was the only board member who actively favored it.

Board members and administrators alike felt the 1968 plans would be set aside and new plans drawn.

THE BOARD thought for a while of building the fine arts facility in two stages and floating only an $8 million bond issue.

But Bennett argued: "With only an $8 million bond issue, we'd have to design it in two sections. It might be more efficient to build it all at once. It's generally cheaper to do it in one phase."

Board Chairman Paul Kadish agreed: "If it's the feeling of the board we should have a fine arts center, let's have a fine arts center, not half a fine arts center."

Kadish added that $10 million for the six projects is "an outside figure."

"I have a gut feeling about $10 million," said a worried Vice-Chairwoman Rosina Raymond. "Maybe I'm getting conservative in my old age."

KADISH ALSO felt the auditorium would draw people to the campus: "Eighty per cent of the people in the district aren't aware we're here."

Bennett said all the projects in the bond issue are either vocationally oriented or adult-oriented.

Board Treasurer Nancie Blatt noted that regular classrooms weren't provided for in the bond issue—and shouldn't be—because "there are too many empty ones available throughout the district." "As a former Schoolcraft student," said McQuesten, "I'm in touch with the aspirations of students. I'm for it. This area is culturally devoid."

SC opens some lists to students on the waiting list will not be identified by name.

That compromise decision was offered by the Schoolcraft administration and confirmed by the nodding of heads among the board of trustees.

"IT'S A QUESTION of the rights of students who are on the list and don't wish their names made public," said President C. Nelson Grote, "and the rights of those who want to see where they are on the waiting list."

"Our attorney advises it's up to our discretionary judgment. There's no requirement (in law) that the lists be made public," Grote said.

Waiting lists are maintained for automotive technology, culinary arts, electronics technology and health career programs.

THE LISTS had become a matter of controversy. Some students claimed their names had been moved down on the list rather than upward as others were accepted into the program.

Health careers—particularly nursing—had been the source of that complaint.

"The demand for these programs can be attributed to the closing of entry level positions in traditional women's occupations such as education and library science, the unwillingness of women to enter less traditional fields, as well as a greater number of women seeking preparation for entry into the labor force," according to an administration memo.

"Currently, an applicant must wait for admission to some of the health programs for one to two years. In programs such as associate degree nursing, the time is longer."

IN RESPONSE to an audience question, Admissions Director Barbara Geil said the

Editorial Opinion

Farmers deserve better treatment under plan

If there was ever any question that Canton is a divided community, it was answered Monday night at the public hearing on the proposed master land use plan.

The tension and undercurrents between the old and the new surfaced clearly in full view of the public and press.

The division is Canton Center Road or "the north-south Mason Dixon line," as some oldtimers call it—and the split is between those who live west of Canton Center, the farmers and oldtimers, and those who live east, the new subdivision dwellers.

With the phenomenal growth of the past several years, however, those west of Canton Center really don't have to be answered to politically.

Democracy is a game of numbers, and the sheer weight of those numbers is in the new subdivisions. That is where the power lies.

Carriage Hills, Windsor Park, Pickwick, and Holiday Park—that is where the next election will be won or lost—and that is why politically at least, the master land use plan is viable.

People in the eastern half of the township, it seems, want open space and agricultural land in the west.

But those who stand to lose if the new plan is adopted are in the west. Their numbers, by comparison, have dwindled in recent years. Their voice is weak.

What they had to say Monday night may not have been eloquent, but it was true.

THEY WANT OUT. They want to sell their land for development. They are the stragglers—farmers in the east sold out and that is where all the subdivisions are now.

Many farmers in the west have tilled the land for generations in the face of ever increasing taxes, and in many cases, losses.

Their hope was to sell the land to developers so that they might retire. As one woman so poignantly stated, the land was her pension—and the proposed plan would take it away from her.

She was not talking in abstract terms about the public good, or urban sprawl—she was talking about real hurt, real loss, and lifetime dreams being crushed.

She was hardly what one would call a speculator—her family had owned the land before most of us were born.

Very simply, many farmers west of Canton Center are getting a raw deal under the master land use plan.

They have paid taxes for years, taxes that allowed this township to grow and prosper, and expand services to the new subdivisions. They have paid back bonds for sewers they never saw or used—only now to be slapped in the face.

The master land use plan has been presented in the name of those farmers, yet none spoke Monday night in favor of it. They say it is some 20 years too late. Maybe it is.

DEVELOPMENT in the east has forced their property taxes up and they have, in effect, subsidized municipal services for those in the east.

Now comes the day of reckoning for them—and who benefits from the plan?

It certainly isn't those in the west. It is those in the east who want open space and green pastures close to their homes.

And if that is the case, let the subdivision homeowners, the ones that want it, pay for it.

Supervisor Robert Greenstein has been pushing this plan, this would-be "pilot program" for the nation. He has talked of reimbursing the farmers by buying their development rights as one would buy mineral rights.

Perhaps that is the answer, but it won't do some 20 years down the road if it happens at all.

If there are to be green fields west of Canton Center, someone must pay for it other than the farmers.

And if that question is put to those in the east, perhaps the answer will be different. Perhaps the desire for agricultural land is not so great if it has to be paid for.

Let the township buy the land, or part of it for open space; or let the administration come up with a way to reimburse the farmers—they were the backbone of this community for many years and they deserve better.

THIS IS NOT to say that saving agricultural land is a bad idea. On the contrary, it is an ambitious, progressive notion.

No one likes urban sprawl, inefficient planning, traffic congestion and blight, but the question is simply who is going to pay to avoid those problems.

It shouldn't be just the longtime residents of this community.

Political signs all point to state tax hike by '77

As I dope it out, we can expect a major state tax boost—or "reform," as it's sometimes called—within a year.

There are those who are in a bigger rush, notably the Michigan Education Association. The teachers union is worried sick about the rounds of budget cuts school districts have had to make after the fiscal year started and the deleterious effects those cuts have not only on jobs temporarily but on programs for years.

Special interests with state funds to protect would like to see a tax increase, too.

To be sure, hiking tax rates would be the simplest way out.

BUT THINGS AREN'T as simple as they seem.

Gov. Milliken has vowed to veto any tax increase. He points to the recession and the retardant effect a tax increase would have on recovery.

It's an election year, too. An aroused public is likely to punish severely whatever politician and party it perceived was to blame for a tax increase.

Most importantly, 1976 isn't the year to raise state taxes because the local units are seeking boosts. Many K-12 school districts as well as Schoolcraft College are going to the voters for millage increases. Detroit's woes are so thoroughly aired by now that there's little doubt the legislature will help out with some kind of additional taxing authority, be it more income or "nuisance" taxes.

In that environment, a state tax hike would kill the local units' chances of getting voted increases. So a state tax hike is improbable until after the November voting.

THE PRESSURE is building up in Lansing, however, to come up with some additional aid to cities and schools.

School budgets, in particular, run in a historical pattern. First, there is a shot of new state money; then it turns out to be inadequate compared to "needs." Finally there is a new tax package . . . and so on.

Tim Richard

In the depression of the '30s, property taxes were inadequate to help schools, so the state came up with the three-cent sales tax with two cents diverted to schools. In the '50s came special voted millages; in the '60s came the four-cent sales tax followed by the income tax.

Such school districts as Bloomfield Hills and South Redford get no general state aid at all these days, what with all those funny appropriations formulas. On top of that, schools with industrial property are getting walloped by the repeal of the personal property tax (on machinery and inventories of business).

The time will be ripe within a year for a new dose of state money.

WHAT FORM will that tax increase take? Under the present constitutional provisions, it must be an increase in the flat-rate income tax.

Meanwhile, the Michigan Citizens Lobby (MCL)—the folks who gave us the 1974 sales tax exemption on food and drugs that was followed by the 1975 income tax hike—has put its sharp pencils to work and is proposing a constitutional amendment to soak the upper 15 per cent of the income brackets.

The Southfield-based MCL is saying, in effect: "85 per cent of us are voting ourselves an income tax cut and sending the bill to the other 15 per cent." It's a practical application of the "us versus them" or "do unto others before they do it unto you" philosophy.

It's coming.

GUILTY UNTIL PROVEN INNOCENT?

Bail clogs the jails

American judges misuse old system

In the United States, a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law. Prisons are for guilty people, not for innocent people.

Yet, in the United States today there are more people detained in jail awaiting trial than there are incarcerated in our jails after conviction. With the overcrowding of jails in this country, how could we have gotten to where we are?

THE ANSWER is a little four-letter word called bail.

Under the English common law we inherited, because there was a gap in time between arrest and trial, there was a problem of how to assure that an arrested person would appear for his trial.

The English solved the problem by either putting the accused in jail or having a friend bail him out by promising that if he did not show up for trial his friend would go to jail in his place. This was not offensive because, under English law, a man was presumed guilty until his innocence was proven.

Over the centuries, the good friend was replaced by dollar bonds, under the theory that the accused would show up for trial if he were to suffer a large enough economic loss by failing to appear.

The whole bail theory was not to detain a dangerous criminal to protect society. The only excuse for setting bail was to guarantee that the person would appear for trial.

HISTORY SHOWS that no matter what type of bail is set, whether it is purely a personal recognizance or a million dollar bond, only two per cent of the people fail to show up when they are supposed to.

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

In this country now, the courts are using bail punitively for persons who have been arrested for a highly publicized crime. It is a way of punishing them by keeping them in jail before conviction. They also set bail so high that the indigent has no choice but to stay in jail until his trial date, whether or not he is finally found guilty.

Forty per cent of the people arrested for serious crimes can be detained anyway because they have violated some sort of earlier parole or probation. But judges find it easier to set a high bail to keep them confined than to use the proper method of making parole violations.

The federal government is working in Washington, D.C. on a program to solve the ills of bail which keep the first offender out of jail.

It will be less costly in the long run because we won't need as many jails, and it is certainly more fair to the 60 per cent who should be treated as innocent until proven guilty.

We, in Michigan, must start a state program that will accomplish the same thing. Not only will we save money, but we will save people, because any period spent in jail is said to be a condensed course in the finer art of crime, and many formerly innocent people learn a new way of life while waiting for their day in court.

That is the question

To buy or not to buy?

Bad business decisions with taxpayers' money is a serious matter and there is little question that purchase now of the township recreation center by Canton could be a foolish decision.

Last year, in a move to expand the township business offices and improve recreational facilities, the recreation department was moved across Michigan Avenue to a rented building.

The township, after attempting to buy the building, according to Clerk John Flodin, elected to rent it for five years.

An option to rent at the same rate for an additional five years was also negotiated.

Shortly after the leasing arrangement was made, the township sank more than $20,000 in federal bloc grant funds into the building to fix it up as a recreation and senior citizen complex.

Little was said of the move at the time.

BUT WHEN the administration recommended that more money be spent this year to air condition the facility for summertime use, there was considerable debate at the township board level.

Some trustees, it seemed, didn't want to put any more money into a building the township didn't own.

As Trustee Jim Poole said, "It's money down the drain to keep improving a building you can't buy."

Since the debate, Poole, along with fellow trustees Bob Myers and Brain Schwall, has been delegated to once again investigate the possibility of buying the building.

The problem simply is, what will the building now cost?

If the owner should agree to sell now is he going to ask that the building be sold at fair market value?

If it is, that of course will include the $20,000 worth of improvements the township has already sunk into the building.

Then, in effect, the taxpayers will be charged twice for the original $20,000 in improvements—hardly good business.

Unless the cost of improvements is removed from the purchase price, the township is far better off continuing to rent the building.

In the future, it might be wise for the township to think twice about improving a property it doesn't own—even if the rent is minimal.

UAW members help salaried staff get rich

Editor:

After reading Tim Richard's one-sided column in your Feb. 5 Livonia Observer & Eccentric, it is quite evident your knowledge of GM or the UAW is very limited.

As a 22-year man for GM I feel I have done as much as any salaried man for our company. As a UAW member I, as well as all hourly people, have been treated as a second class worker. Every benefit the UAW has won through strikes and hardships, the friendly auto giants have given to salary people plus.

For example: better Blue Cross, better dental plan, better pension, preferential parking, bonuses, etc. All the while the so-called company people (salary) look down their noses and criticize hourly people for hurting the company financially by their huge demands.

Yet they sure accept all these fringes that the UAW has won.

Also, about the 20 per cent imports. Most of these are imported by the Big Three because they get them built by slave labor in underdeveloped countries. Now GM, the friendly giant, is building a truck plant in commie Poland. Do you believe that?

Some of the imports are: Opel, Pinto, Capri, Valiant and Maverick.

GM just made a movie "Buy American" to show to their employees on closed-circuit TV (a Sony by the way!).

Also, on the front page is a picture of a GM manager giving away approximately $300,000 to salaried people. Multiply this by over 100 plants, plus another $62 million to GM biggies in bonuses. This tells me where all the overhead is going.

With this stock give-away, with this huge overhead, a clerk makes more than a man on the assembly line. If poor GM ever trimmed all this give-away plus their huge waste, their earnings would dwarf the profits of the oil czars.

The UAW people have helped make many a wealthy man out of people who criticize them the most. There is no perfect union, but all-in-all the UAW is one of the better ones.

It's quite apparent that the Observer & Eccentric in non- and anti-union. I just hope that the management at your paper doesn't have any friends or relatives out of work or you may find out first-hand what a union means.

But never worry, you can always hire in at Fisher Body on hourly UAW (scale) and get "rich" in a hurry.

Prepare yourself for psychic work

Dear Gundella,
I heard you speak at a club in Detroit recently where you described a certain spell, and mentioned that it was necessary to prepare oneself before working it. Among other preparations, you mentioned the need for fasting.

I don't want to hurt your feelings, Gundella, but you must admit you don't look like you ever fasted in your life.

Mark M.
Southfield

Dear Mark,

If you are to be successful with any psychic experiment we have been discussing here, it is very important that you prepare yourself.

Fasting for a few hours before working does not mean that one must go for days without eating. It simply means that you don't begin on a full stomach. After your work is over, you may eat whatever you please.

It is also important that you be completely relaxed and comfortable before beginning this type of work. Be sure to wear loose-fitting clothing with no straps, belts or other uncomfortable features.

Some people find that it helped them to do a few relaxing exercises. You might like to try this routine:

FIRST, SEAT yourself on a straight-backed chair. Your buttocks should be well back on the seat so that your back is straight but not rigid. Allow your hands to rest comfortably in your lap.

Begin with your toes. Curl them up so tightly that it almost hurts. You will feel the muscles tighten in the calves of your legs as you do this. Now, relax your toes completely.

Raise your right leg as high as you can, sticking it straight out in front of you. Point your toes toward your chin and push your heel forward until you can feel it in the back of your knee. Lower your leg slowly, and relax it completely.

Now, follow the same procedure with your left leg.

NEXT, CLOSE your hands into tight fists. Bend your elbow and raise your fists to shoulder level, flexing the muscles in your upper arms. Keeping your fists closed as tightly as possible, raise your arms very slowly over your head. Now, relax your fists and slowly, very slowly, lower your arms and open your hands, relaxing them completely.

Pull in your stomach and breathe deeply, taking in as much air as you possibly can. Hold your breath until you feel as though you will burst, then very slowly exhale. Continue to breathe out until every last possible bit of air is expelled from your lungs. Then relax and breathe slowly, rhythmically in and out.

Clench your teeth tighter and tighter, until your jaw hurts. Now, relax your jaws completely.

Close your eyes tighter and tighter until you see stars and colors. Then relax your eyes until they are almost, but not quite, open.

PRETEND YOUR head is a watermelon. It is so heavy that you cannot hold it up. Let it drop to your chest and let it roll all the way to the right until it flops backward. Now, let it roll on to your left shoulder and complete the circle until your head is again hanging forward with your chin resting on your chest.

Reverse this procedure, rolling your head to the left, the back, the right shoulder, and finally back to the chest. As you do this, you may hear a faint noise in the back of your head and you will feel the tension leave your head completely. (This is very good for nervous headaches.)

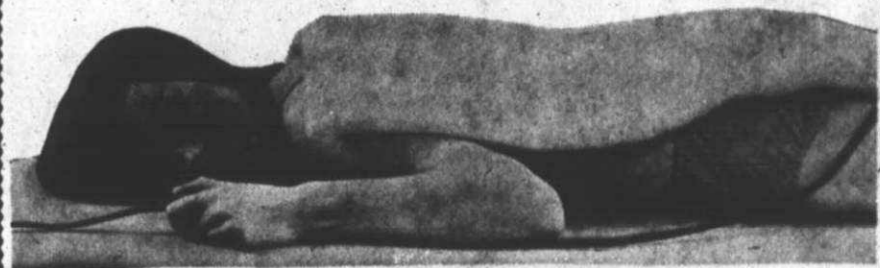

When you have completed this entire exercise, sit quietly, completely relaxed. Imagine that you are a lump of butter that is melting, melting, slowly into a pool.

Now you are physically ready to begin your psychic work.

Next week: two Ghosts' Stories.

You may write Gundella at Box 434, Garden City, Mich. 48135. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sister Mary Calisantia, St. Mary administrator, announced the awards.

Evelyn Thompson accepts a certificate of appreciation plaque from Patric E. Ludwig of the Michigan Hospital Association on behalf of her late husband, former executive editor of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Inc.

W. W. Edgar receives congratulations during the short reception that followed the award presentation. In the background are two of Thompson's brothers, Jack (left) and Bill.

To Eddie and Tommy Thanks from a hospital

Two newsmen who chronicled the story of how St. Mary Hospital grew are recipients of the highest accolades the grateful Felician nuns who administer the Livonia institution can bestow.

The hospital administrators joined with the Michigan Hospital Association Tuesday to honor the late Richard T. Thompson, former executive editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., and W. W. Edgar, staff writer for more than a decade.

Both were named in Certificates of Appreciation inscribed on plaques by the state association.

Patric E. Ludwig, president and executive director, made it clear in handing the plaques to Thompson's widow, Evelyn, of Redford Township, and to Edgar that "we're quite stingy with these awards—they're given only after concentrated research."

The hospital, for its part, dedicated staff rooms to each of the men, the library for Thompson and the medical records room for Edgar, as well as announcing that a private room in the cardiac care wing had been paid for by the late editor's family and friends.

SISTER MARY CALISANTIA, hospital administrator, said the plaques on the doors of the library and record rooms announcing that they honor "Tommy" Thompson and "Eddie" Edgar.

"No high-falutin titles here—these are the names we know," she said.

Sr. Calisantia told of the hospital's long association with the two newsmen and explained why the hospital had presented its detailed clipping scrapbooks and applied for the award well before the death of Thompson nearly a year ago.

"We've known Eddie Edgar since before the first shovelful of dirt was turned to build St. Mary," she said. "When the Felicians were just planning the hospital, we had heard about him as an influential resident of the community and we asked him to be our first board chairman."

"He was always willing to help."

Thompson, she added, "we knew first as a reporter who always was ready to write about the building of the hospital."

Later, the administrator went on, "he was like a father advisor to us—we felt so comfortable going to him for help on what we should do to inform the public of our program."

BOTH MEN, she added, put foremost the best interests of the community—they have always been willing to help put before the public what it needed to know about our programs."

The inscribed plaques state that the men were honored "for valued service to the health care industry in the state of Michigan and to St. Mary Hospital in developing and reporting news features and stories which broaden the basis of knowledge and understanding between the public and health care institutions in Michigan and the Livonia area."

Ludwig said Thompson and Edgar were named after careful scrutiny of the scrapbooks compiled by the St. Mary administrators.

"Awards like these," he added, "go only to people whose contributions have been outstanding."

THE LIBRARY and records room, said Sr. Calisantia, were selected for dedication "because it was about the closest we in a hospital could come to journalism." They are in the administration section of the hospital and open into a common lobby.

The administrator said the cardiac care room will bear the inscription "Dedicated in loving memory of Tommy Thompson by his wife, family and friends."

All the contributions received by the hospital after his death are included in the funding for that room," Sr. Calisantia added.

"I think half of Livonia helped pay for it."

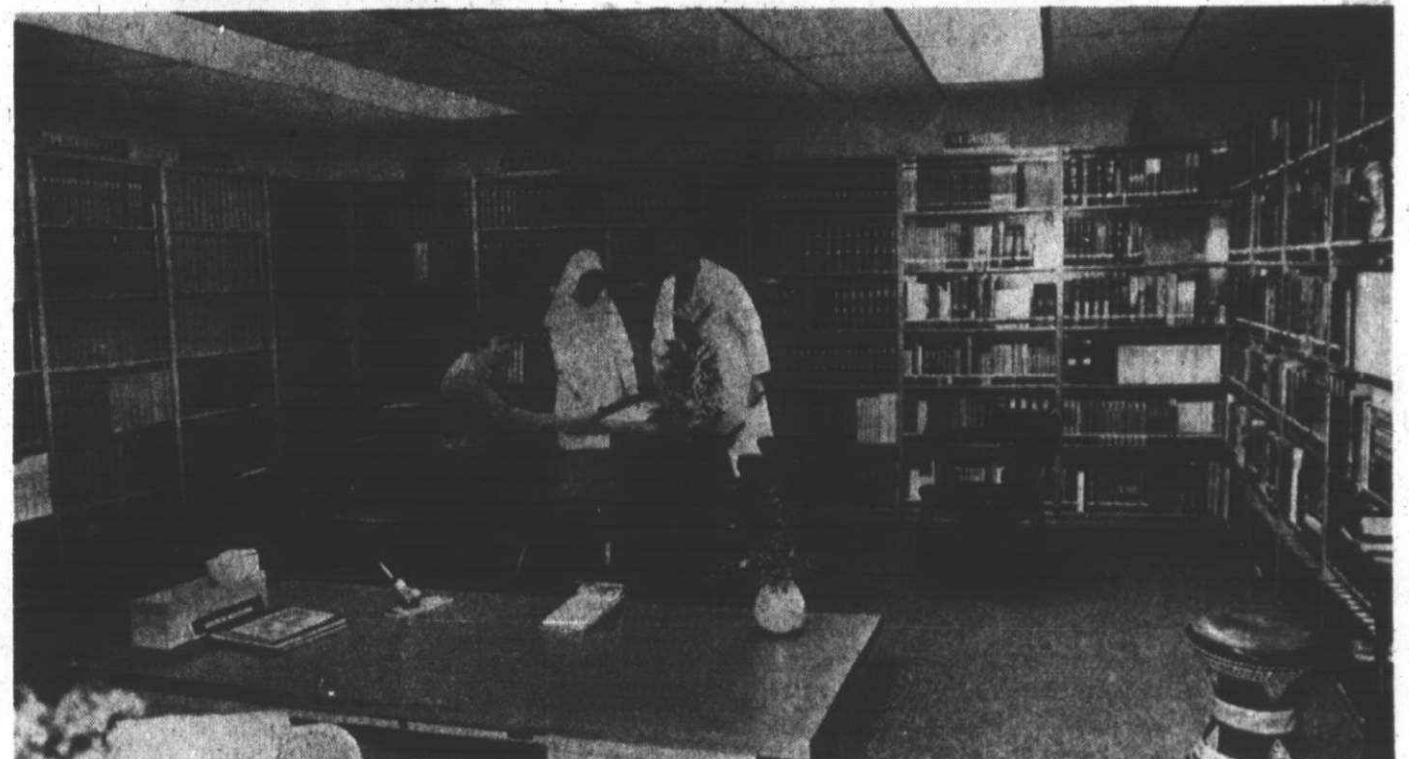

PRESENT FOR THE program in the hospital chapel were several members of the St. Mary Board of Directors, including Sister Mary Carmeline, foundation director for the Felicians; Sister Mary Serra, director of education, and Sister Mary Emilita.

Others of the board on hand were Jacob Sobieraj, Fred Davids, Dr. Malcolm Delaney, Bernard Kearney and Betty Stahl.

Two of Thompson's brothers, Jack and William, came from Ohio to be present for the program, and a sister wrote that she and her family were sorry to have to miss the ceremony because "Tommy was always so grateful for the care he received at St. Mary—he just wanted to spread the word."

And Eddie Edgar, receiving the congratulations, just commented:

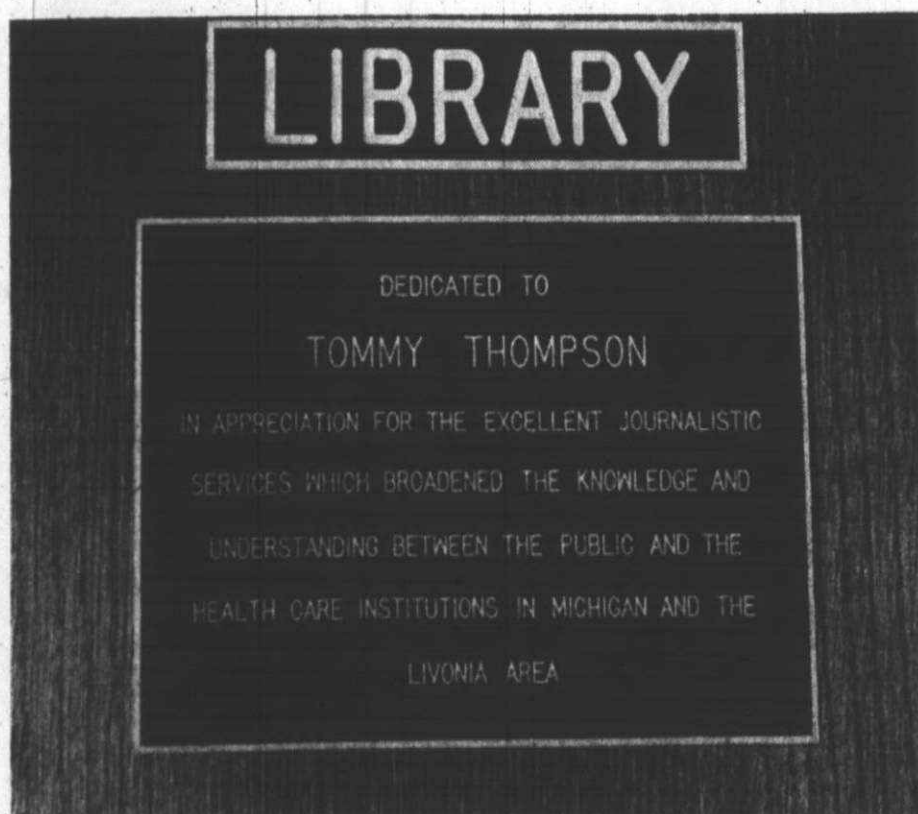

"It doesn't seem quite right to get an award for doing what you love to do."

The library of St. Mary Hospital has been dedicated in memory of Tommy Thompson.

The medical records room now honors W. W. Edgar.

The plaque now on the hospital's library door honors the memory of a man whose byline appeared on many St. Mary news stories.

Administrators and department heads of the bustling hospital were on hand for the presentation ceremony.

Scouts learn colonial skills

Girl Scouts in this area will learn colonial crafts ranging from making corn husk dolls to churning butter at a program scheduled Saturday, March 6 in Franklin High School.

The program from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. is part of a Skills Day series sponsored by the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit.

At Franklin on Saturday, as in three previous programs, Girl Scouts in the Brownie, Junior and Cadette levels will learn from trained Senior Scouts an assortment of colonial skills like weaving and quilting and preparation of food by old methods.

The girls also will be taught a variety of old fashioned games, songs and dances.

The bicentennial skills day program was created and organized by the GSMD senior executive committee, headed by Nannette Brown of Livonia.

In preparing for it, the older girls had workshops with Gail Arner, curator of the Detroit Historical Museum.

Miss Brown said all four skills days scheduled were filled and some 3,000 Girl Scouts had put their names on a waiting list.

"Right now, we're considering conducting more skills days in the future," she added. "We're just delighted with the response."

A young friend of mine has just invested her life savings (well, most of it) in her first car.

I've not yet had the opportunity to inspect this vehicle or admire its sleek lines, but I've heard from her mother all about the determination of the search, the excitement of the decision and finally the trauma of plunking down the down payment.

And, of course, the blow-by-blow report started me remembering my own first car, and my brother's that preceded it, and, more recently, the first second-generation car in our family, bought by our living-at-home college student.

CERTAINLY, the event is a major one—to be ranked with the first day of school and a first job and buying a house and saying "I do," and having a child.

Increased maturity doesn't automatically go with any of these milestones, but they sure are points of no return.

You start school and you study for what seems like forever. You get that first job and there you are, part of the work ethic.

And you buy a car and you're making payments from then on, on that car and the next and the next and the next. Once a car owner, you may jog but you seldom walk.

Even if you avoid the installment payments for part of your car-owning years, there are those regular trips to the gas station and the insurance agent and the service department of your friendly dealer to remind you you're a mighty important part of the consuming public.

As the man of our house told his car-owning daughter: "What you support with that part-time job is your car."

BUT WHILE SOMETIMES I feel the weight of auto ownership a bit heavy, I wouldn't for the world have missed my brother's ecstasy when he drove home his first heap, or the thrill I knew over a robin's egg blue convertible that reduced my bank account to nil quite a few years ago.

Or the pride of ownership that is lavished on a certain maroon Mustang that parks in our garage when it's owner can't think of any more exciting place to put it.

To the purchaser of that beige and brown Dart, I offer congratulations with just a pinch of condolence. Her life won't be the same again, but then, why should it?

Free Pap testing set in Plymouth

Free Pap testing will be offered March 15 through 19 in the Plymouth Veteran's Building, 173 N. Main, Plymouth, under the sponsorship of the Plymouth Nurses Association and the Western Wayne Unit of the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Testing will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

The Pap test can detect cervical cancer in its earliest stages. If detected and treated early, the cure rate for this disease is almost 100 per cent.

The test is a painless procedure administered by a physician or registered nurse. It takes about five minutes and can be taken at any time except during a menstrual period and for four days thereafter.

The test requires a collection of cells from the cervix which are examined by microscope for abnormalities in color, size and shape. If a woman's test is negative she will be informed. If the test shows some abnormality, the woman and her physician will be notified.

Physicians recommend that a woman have a Pap test at least once a year. It indicates signs of cancer long before the visible signs are present.

Mrs. Lorene Blome, head of the Plymouth Nurses Association, will serve as Pap clinic chairman. Scheduling appointments will be Mrs. Millia Dely, MCF Plymouth branch volunteer. Appointments may be made by calling the Michigan Cancer Foundation, Plymouth branch, 173 N. Main, on weekdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Others assisting Mrs. Blome in coordinating the work of volunteers will be Mrs. Ardith Eidson and Mrs. Joan Funkhouser, members of the Plymouth Nurses Association civic interest committee.

Make and take your own aids to teach math

A "Make and Take Math Workshop" for teachers and prospective teachers will be presented at Madonna College of Livonia, Friday, March 19.

The day-long session, sponsored by the Madonna Student Teacher Association will focus attention on new and creative ways to make math an exciting experience in the elementary schools.

William Grogan, a curriculum director for the Detroit Public Schools and an expert in the field of math instruction, will demonstrate and display a variety of manipulative and visual aids teachers and students can construct.

Each person will receive a packet of materials and will make 10 to 12 items to take back to his school for immediate use.

The workshop will be held in the west dining room of the Madonna College Residence Hall, 14221 Levan, beginning at 9 a.m. There is a fee of $3.

Because materials will be provided, registration must be made and fee paid by March 8. Checks should be made payable to Madonna College and mailed with name, address, and phone number to the Student Services Center, Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

World Day of Prayer gets local programs

Churchwomen in this area will join on Friday, March 5, in two special services marking the 90th annual World Day of Prayer, an occasion observed by churchwomen around the world.

Church Women United of Livonia will sponsor a service in Ward United Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington Road, and women from Redford Township will take part in a program in Redford United Presbyterian Church, 17226 Redford, Detroit.

Both will begin at 1 p.m., and both will follow the world-wide theme, "Education for All of Life."

The Rev. William Moore, minister of evangelism at Ward, will be speaker for the Livonia service. Babysitting will be available for 50 cents per child.

The service in the Detroit church will feature dialogue skits by women from different denominations.

A NUMBER of local women have been part of the planning for the Redford area service.

Among them is Thelma Ritter, who is second vice-president of Church Women United of Detroit and a member of Rice Memorial United Methodist Church of Redford Township.

Others are Veronica Chapman, also of Rice; Betty Dahlstrom and Jean Waara, Good Shepherd Lutheran, and Ada Beschel of St. Martin Episcopal.

Providing the program skits will be women from Christ the King Catholic, Faith-Bethany United Methodist and Redford United Presbyterian.

MUSIC WILL be by an ecumenical choir, as well as a handbell group from Redford Presbyterian and Spanish-speaking women from Faith-Bethany UMC who will sing "A Prayer for Peace" in Spanish and in English and also will lead the congregation in singing.

Refreshments will be served during a fellowship hour that will follow the service. Child care will be available during the entire program.

World Day of Prayer began in the United States in 1887, and now is marked with services in many different languages around the world.

The two services in this area are among 21 scheduled Friday for metropolitan Detroit.

Dance offers 'Holiday in Greece'

Authentic Greek food and Greek entertainment complete with belly dancers are offered in the "Holiday in Greece" dinner dance March 20 to commemorate the first anniversary of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox church of Plymouth.

The event will be held in the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall in Dearborn Heights. Tickets are $12.50 per person and may be reserved by calling Dr. John Stathakis, 1470 Woodland Place, Plymouth.

Fashions of '76

Mrs. John Riordan (left) and Mrs. Tim Collins, both of Livonia, are on the committee planning the "Spirit of '76" luncheon and fashion show to be presented by the Catholic Central Mothers' Club in Raleigh House of Southfield at noon Thursday, April 1. Styles will be from Claire Kelly of Northville, and television newsman Jac LeGoff will be on hand to receive the club's "Mr. Nice Guy" award. Proceeds will be used for improvements at the boys' school in Detroit. Tickets, priced at $8.50, may be reserved by calling Mrs. Frank Semer, 8470 Grayfield, Dearborn Heights.

St. Timothy names organist

John Roberts, a Wayne State University music student, is the new organist and choir director for St. Timothy United Presbyterian Church, 16700 Newburgh, Livonia. Roberts' responsibilities will be directing the chancel and junior choirs as well as being responsible for the church's music program.

Formerly director of music at Bethany Baptist Church of Detroit, he is on the board of directors of the American Guild of Organists and an active member of the Motor City Theatre Organ Society.

The Rev. E. Dickson Rorsyth is pastor of St. Timothy, which holds services Sundays at 9 and 11 a.m. and church school at 10 a.m.

JOHN ROBERTS

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF PLYMOUTH, 701 Church, will welcome the Rev. Norman Roadarmel, former missionary to Thailand, as speaker for its potluck dinner meeting beginning at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 10. Rev. Roadarmel, whose 14 years in the Thailand mission field ended with a personnel cutback, now is a self-supporting mission interpreter providing materials to churches and available for church-connected speaking engagements.

While in Thailand, he and his wife included in their work pastoral care for a congregation of lepers, a hospital chaplaincy and relief activities in the rural life department of the Thai church.

They also built and supervised a boarding hostel for village children so they could stay in school longer, trained Sunday school teachers, designed churches, taught seminary courses and counseled opium addicts.

Rev. Roadarmel's talk will be accompanied by a slide presentation. Babysitting will be available. Those attending are asked to bring tableware and a dish to pass.

Plymouth first Presbyterian's Sunday worship during Lent will feature a series of sermons with titles of spirituals by the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee, senior minister.

His topic March 7 will be "Let Us Break Bread Together on Our Knees." Later he will use as titles "I Got Shoes," "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," "There Is a Balm in Gilead," and "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child."

BEREAN BIBLE CHURCH, 35627 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia, will welcome the Dimensions in Brass, an instrumental group from Grace College in Indiana, to its 11 a.m. service Sunday, March 7. The group is directed by Jerry Franks, who recently was listed in a publication, "Outstanding Educators of America," and it includes in its repertoire classical, popular and sacred works.

Grace College is a coeducational liberal arts school affiliated with the National Fellowship of Grace Brethren Churches.

AUGSBURG LUTHERAN CHURCH, 24801 West Chicago, Redford Township, is beginning a new worship and church school scheduled Sunday, March 7.

One worship service will be held at 10 a.m., and the church school children will attend for the first half hour. They will then be dismissed to attend an hour of classes.

Adult worshippers will have a fellowship time following the morning service, with both church school and coffee hour ending at approximately 11:30 a.m.

The Rev. Ronald N. Johnson, pastor, said the schedule change is being done on an experimental basis, and the congregation will vote early in April on whether it should continue.

WESTLAND COMMUNITY CHURCH, 34033 Palmer, will show a youth-oriented full-length film, "What's Up, Josh?" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 6.

The film is a release of Gospel Films, Inc., of Muskegon and stars Josh McDowell of Campus Crusade. It is set on a college campus and its plot involves the reactions caused by McDowell's visit.

GRAND RIVER BAPTIST CHURCH, 34500 Six Mile, Livonia, will present Dan Martin of Transworld Cinema in a travelog color documentary film on "Israel" at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 7.

A graduate of Detroit Bible College, Martin has made numerous tours of the Holy Land to film the biblical and historical sites.

Special music also is planned.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia, will honor those involved in its Christian education program with a reception in the church's fellowship room at 6 p.m. Sunday, March 6.

Words of appreciation will be given to workers in the Sunday school, the Wednesday night school of Christian education, the Christian Service Brigade, Pioneer Girls, Vacation Bible School, the youth programs and the media center.

Charles Fay, director of Christian education, will be master of ceremonies and will present special awards.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF PLYMOUTH, 45201 N. Territorial, will conduct a paper drive Saturday, March 6. Those making donations are asked to bring papers tied in bundles or packed in large paper bags. Those who wish to have papers picked up may call the church office.

ALPHA BAPTIST CHURCH, 28051 West Chicago, Livonia, will present the Rev. Alfred Cole of Hulett, Wyo., at its evening service Sunday, March 7 at 7 p.m.

Rev. Cole is pastor of the Community Baptist Church of Hulett and also is a registered nurse and emergency medical technician. His ministry is to ranchers in a wide area around Hulett and involves setting up small groups for Bible study and discussion.

Swedish evangelist to be in Plymouth

Harry Ossmo, Salvation Army brigadier who is a native of Sweden and an accomplished musician, will lead evangelistic services in the Plymouth Salvation Army, 290 Fairground, at 7 p.m. each evening from March 9 to March 14.

Brigadier Ossmo is territorial evangelist for his organization in 11 central states.

A native of Sodertalje, Sweden, he came in contact with the Salvation Army during a children's meeting in his home city. He first was active in youth activities, and later, as the corps bandmaster, traveled extensively through Scandinavia, Estonia and Latvia.

The brigadier was commissioned an SA officer from the school in Sweden in 1936. After marriage, he and his wife served in the Swedish territory for 11 years before being transferred to this country.

Here, they have served together as corps officers and divisional officers in Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Iowa and Missouri.

In the evangelistic services he leads, Brigadier Ossmo features musical selections, using a variety of instruments.

He is an accomplished cornetist and also plays the concertina. He and his wife also feature vocal duets in their services, and their repertoire includes songs the brig-

BRIGADIER HARRY OSSMO

dier has composed. The Ossmos have two sons, Torre, of Chicago, and Lars, of Minneapolis.

Our Schools Today

(The following column is written by Flerence Beier, community relations director for the Plymouth Community School District. Residents with questions they would like explored in this column may contact Mrs. Beier at the Plymouth Board of Education offices.)

Transportation is big business for the Plymouth Community School District. We employ 60 drivers and eight substitutes to cover 48 regular runs, and 12 vans for special education students.

Our buses consume about 1,100 gallons of gas per day, which we purchase under a bulk contract for 38 to 39 cents per gallon. To keep the buses running on time to the right places requires a bus supervisor, a router, a dispatcher, a secretary, three mechanics, and three high school cooperative education mechanical assistants.

TENTATIVE OPERATING budget for transportation for 1975-76 was $709,175 or 4.06 per cent of total budget.

The State of Michigan reimburses us for each child we transport who lives more than 1 1/2 miles from the school attended. The PCSD policy is to transport all students from kindergarten through second grade who live more than a mile from school, even though we don't receive state funds for these children. We also transport children who face safety hazards in walking.

Drivers include 56 women and 12 men. Transportation employees are represented as a bargaining unit by the Transportation Employees Association.

WHAT IS IT LIKE to drive a bus? To have some first-hand experience, I recently rode along with driver Mary Lou McCarthy on her afternoon run.

We started out from the bus yard at 2:30 p.m. Before we could move, she had to reclose the back door because a warning buzzer was sounding. Before her morning run she had checked tires, brakes, and turn signals. We headed for the high school.

I noticed the front of the bus decorated with numerous valentines which Mary Lou, as all the children call her, had received from her elementary school riders that morning. She knows every child on her route by name. One of her greatest pleasures, she says, is watching them grow up year by year. This is her sixth year on this route.

Mary Lou drives her bus 88 miles per day. To cover her route, she has to cross Ford Road six times where there is no traffic light. Some of the roads she drives on are so full of holes at this time of year that she can go no faster than five miles per hour.

But, like the other drivers, Mary Lou started out with a bus driving class and takes a refresher course every two years. Her bus is inspected by the state for safety every year.

WE LOADED UP the high school students behind Plymouth Salem High School. We had to cover this run as quickly as possible to get back for the next group from Pioneer Middle School.

At the first stop, a car passed us, even though the bus flashers were going. Both the students and Mary Lou noted the license number. That car, and any other passing a stopped school bus, would be reported to the police for violating the law.

The high school students were friendly and talkative. Some of the girls had painted hearts on their cheeks to celebrate Valentines Day. They complimented Mary Lou on her valentines from the younger children. At one stop, a mischievous boy stood in the bus door chatting with the driver until his buddy could make a snowball to throw at the bus as it drove off.

The middle school students told me "jokes" for the whole run. Mary Lou kept a sharp eye on them in her rear view mirror and insisted each one stay seated. The last load was a full bus of Isbister Elementary children, excitedly counting their valentines and sharing the goodies from their class valentine party.

For all students who ride a bus, the first and last school person of the day with whom they have contact is the bus driver.

Farmers protest land use plan

cleared out and now the drain commission is trying to run water uphill. I don't know of anyone that has bought a large farm out here in the last 10 years. The land just isn't that good.

"If the land is so wonderful, why hasn't anyone bought out here?"

He added, "I've been farming at a loss out here for years, hoping I could sell the land for my retirement. Now I can't, under this plan. How many farmers did you talk to when you decided we needed to save the land for farming out here?"

Others complained they hoped to retire on the money they made when they sold their land. One woman commented, "I own 18 acres on Van Born Road, and since the taxes have been going up, I've been losing about $1,000 a year."

"I've been waiting to sell this land for when I retire. It's the same as a pension plan for me. Now it's farmland and no farmer will buy it. I will just lose my pension. So what if the taxes go down?"

"I'm a Canton farmer's daughter," said Kate Seymour, "and my family has farmed in Canton for generations."

"You say this saving of agricultural land is for survival. Whose survival are you talking about? None of the old families support this plan. It's not our survival."

"Who are you protecting the farmland for, and against whom? I think there are three things that can be done here."

"The western half of the township can secede; or if the township is so concerned about open space it can do it through eminent domain, not planning; or some of us can stay farmers."

"But don't tell us we must farm, or we'll just let the land go back for taxes."

Kingston, said, "For a long time, farmers weren't popular here. Our land was rezoned R-1, and we were told if our barn burned down it wouldn't be replaced."

"So we moved, and now they tell us that the land we have left is agricultural. We can't pay off the mortgage on the new farm because no one will buy this land for farming."

Mrs. Ross Hawk, the wife of one of the biggest farmers in the township, said her family had recently purchased another farm in Deerfield that produced twice as much on the same acreage.

"This puts us in a bind," she said. "Our land on Cherry Hill was industrial, and now it's going to be agricultural. It would have helped us pay off the new farm. I can't understand why you just couldn't leave it alone."

"My husband has been a farmer all his life, and I'd like to think most people don't want this plan. I just don't see how you can say what's right for all the people. How can you tell me this is right? It just isn't fair."

Others complained of down-zoning, particularly from commercial to residential. Jim Fulkerson commented, "I moved here in 1966, and you told me my land was commercial. Now you come along and tell me it isn't, after I've sunk all that money into it."

"You say you have to honor the contracts for PUDs. Well, I figure you have a contract with me you have to honor."

"You said the last board didn't know anything; and the next board will say you don't know anything; and I think I might have to agree with them."

SOME RESIDENTS wanted to know if they'd be reimbursed for their losses. A Belleville man with property in Canton asked, "Is there going to be a rebate if the plan is passed?"

Planner Mike Manore responded, "There is no guarantee that a person will be protected from loss."

Others wanted to know who would pick up the slack if the taxes were reduced in the west. Members of the planning commission responded the state would, under the state-aid formula to the schools.

Todd Ehrhart commented, "The way I understand it, someone has to pick it up somewhere. I only went to high school, but I know this much. There's going to be money gone, and someone is going to have to pick it up."

Some residents did favor the plan or parts of it. Pat Malone, speaking for the Pickwick homeowners, said his civic association endorsed the intent of the plan.

"WE COMMEND your efforts because there is a need for long-range planning, but this endorsement is not to be misconstrued as complete support. It is for just the general intent of the plan."

Jack Marx, a northwest Canton homeowner, said, "I well remember the public hearing three years ago. The picture has changed significantly since then, and under this plan we will not be another victim of urban sprawl. I commend you for your vision, because with this plan, maybe our children and grandchildren will want to live in Canton."

Planning commission chairman Robert Miller said the tapes of the hearing would be reviewed thoroughly before any decision is made on the plan. "I don't know when we'll act on it; we have a lot of studying to do first," he said.

Editor:

On the weekend of Feb. 7-8, two teams from the Niagara Falls Minor Hockey Association played a tournament against two of your local teams. As parents of one of the boys from Niagara Falls, we would like to express our sincere appreciation and thanks for a super weekend.

The hosts who took our boys into their homes really made them feel comfortable and certainly did everything they could to make us feel welcome both at the arena and later at the hotel.

The lunch we were served at the arena when we arrived was absolutely delicious and the women who prepared it must take a lot of credit considering we were an hour late in arriving then we had planned on.

The whole tournament was a complete success thanks to Mr. Schmidt and his co-workers. It is very gratifying to meet people who are so congenial and fun to be with. The sportsmanship displayed by the teams made us very proud to be a part of it. Our accommodations were excellent at the Plymouth Hilton Hotel and we know many of the parents as well as the boys enjoyed the swimming in the evening.

We are certain some lasting friendships have been made and we shall look forward to meeting again in the future.

Congratulations and thanks to everyone concerned and keep up the good work.

CAROLE VALLESKEY and PETER FONESCA

Livonia dancer joins Joeffrey

Carole Valleskey, 20-year-old Livonia graduate, has joined the Robert Joeffrey Ballet Co. of New York.

The company, which appeared in Detroit recently at Ford Auditorium with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, is one of the best known dance companies in the U.S.

Ms. Valleskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Valleskey, 14378 Melvin, Livonia, joins Joeffrey after a year with the American Ballet Repertory Co., touring California, Arizona, Texas and the Midwest.

She was one of the principal dancers with the repertory company when they appeared with Valery and Galina Panov at the Masonic Temple in December last year.

The Panovs' appearance was widely acclaimed by Jay Carr, dean of Detroit's music-drama critics, who called their appearance a "triumph...they lived up to all the hoopla that preceded them to this country and to Detroit."

Carr labeled Ms. Valleskey and her partner, Peter Fonesca, as "winning soloists" for their performance of Hanson's Concerto on the Panov program.

Ms. Valleskey began ballet lessons at age 5 and started with the Severo School of Ballet at age 11.

After graduation from Bentley High School in 1973, she studied under a scholarship at the American Ballet Theatre in New York, followed by a year in Houston, Tex. with the Houston Ballet Co. She then returned to New York and continued her studies under Maggie Black and the ballet-master of the now-defunct Harkness Ballet, before joining the repertory company.

Area residents may recall Ms. Valleskey's televised performance at Ford Auditorium in the Severo Ballet Company's "Coppelia" several years ago.

A review by Carr was highly complimentary of the student troupe, stating it "was special...capable of technical execution that can by no means be taken for granted in companies that call themselves professional."

Carr said Ms. Valleskey was "doubly impressive" in her role as the heroine in Debilis' fairy tale about young rustic love and life-size mechanical dolls.

"She projects remarkable degrees of personality and aptly mimed the good-natured pertness in the role of the venturesome peasant girl. Her fluency and geniality were a sort of signature for the entire production..." Carr wrote.

A plant talks back

Everybody's busy talking to their plants, but do the plants ever get a chance to talk back? Good Life Editor Ethel Simmons recently pursued the houseplant phenomenon and interviewed a plant.

Q. Do you think people should talk to their plants?

A. It all depends. Some people are really boring conversationalists, and we have to listen to a lot of dull stuff.

Q. Yes, but isn't any conversation at all good vibes for you?

A. No. Some people I'd rather turn off. They definitely don't turn me on, make me tingle and grow.

Q. What about being touched? Are you sensitive to this? A. Well, I'm really more interested in meeting another plant. Being petted and koochy-cooched by your owner just isn't the same thing.

Q. What about being watered? Do you like this? A. It's essential to my well being. It makes me feel good right down to my toes—er, roots. Some times I'm overwatered. Then I'd like to gurgle. "Stop!" but do you think anybody would listen? The conversation around here is strictly one-way. They like to do all the talking.

Q. Have you ever suffered from underwatering?

A. Wow! That's even worse. I'm dying for a drink sometimes. A good belt is just what I need to loosen up. My dirt could be as dry as the Sahara for all the attention that's paid.

Q. What about when your owner goes on vacation?

A. Right. They leave you with a neighbor. How would you like to be flung in with strangers? You might get overwatered, underwatered, yakked at, ignored—you just don't know what to expect. It's nerve jangling.

Q. What about your looks. Are you vain?

A. About my veins and leaves and stems and blossoms. Sure, I admit it. I like to look good. What's a plant for, if not to be attractive?

Q. If you had a choice, would you rather be a plant or a person?

A. Oh, a plant any day. Sometimes it's dull just hanging around the house. But there's usually TV and I'm right by the window which make it fun for plant-watching, especially those sitting outdoors in nice weather.

Q. How do you feel about being transplanted?

A. At first I didn't believe in it, but the older I get and the more I expand, I realize a one-pot life can't be all that there is. Of course, you may think I'm really potty talking this way, but I seldom get asked what I think.

Q. Do you have any questions you want to ask me, about myself?

A. No, I don't really care what makes you tick. I enjoy a simple life, and the complexities of people just makes me want to curl up my leaves. So, if you don't tell me what's on your mind, then I'll forgive you for not asking me any more about mine.

Roles open in 'Bus Stop'

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will hold open auditions for "Bus Stop" at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and Monday at 1138 Beech Daly (just south of Five Mile Road), Redford. In addition to the role of Cherie (played by Marilyn Monroe in the movie version), parts are available for other young women and one mature woman. Five men of various ages are needed. For further information, call 472-8325.

Glee club to sell tickets for contest

To raise funds for its upcoming European tour, the Wayne State University Men's Glee Club will sell contest tickets at Westland, Wayne and Warren roads, at 1 p.m. Saturday. To draw people to the ticket table, the club will perform free mini-concerts in the mall.

Bicentennial revives 'big romantic concerto'

PIANIST WILLIAM DOPPMANN
Folks 'go home happy'

William Dopmann is one who's glad the American bicentennial has revived interest in Edward MacDowell's Piano Concerto No. 2 in D Minor.

"It's a big, romantic concerto—a good solid work," said Dopmann, who will be soloist Sunday with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. Concert time is 4 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, Joy west of Canton Center roads.

"It's like a lot of music that is popular for awhile—the Grieg concerto and some of the works by Liszt. They become hackneyed, but later they're revived again," said Dopmann.

THIS IS THE FIRST performance of the MacDowell concerto for Dopmann, currently pianist in residence at Grand Valley State College.

Plymouth Conductor Wayne Dunlap picked the MacDowell in line with a policy of featuring at least one American composer in every concert this season.

FM stations this year have been playing parts of the MacDowell second concerto occasionally. It will be performed in the University of Michigan's May Festival. The Schwann catalog lists only one recording—Van Cliburn's, which Dopmann called excellent.

"MacDowell was American-born, but he got most of his training in Germany, and his music is really European of the 19th century," Dopmann said.

Only some of MacDowell's short pieces—"Fireside Tales" and "Woodland Sketches," which includes "To a Wild Rose"—are in the American or folk style.

"FROM THE VERY beginning, it was popular," Dopmann said of the MacDowell second concerto.

"The piano is sometimes a protagonist against the orchestra, sometimes works with the orchestra. The first movement is dark and brooding.

"The second movement is a scherzo—light, in contrast.

"The third movement returns to the same brooding material of the first but has a positive and bright ending. It concludes in a burst of glory.

"It starts with some feeling of conflict, but it's resolved and everyone goes home happy."

TECHNICALLY, the MacDowell second concerto is "one of the more difficult virtuoso piano concertos," Dopmann said. MacDowell wrote it while in Europe and dedicated it to an early teacher.

MacDowell himself was a virtuoso pianist and often performed the work to great acclaim before American audiences.

"His earlier piano concerto has to be counted as a student work," Dopmann said.

Tickets at the door are $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for senior citizens and free for K-12 students.

This concert is the fifth in the Plymouth Symphony's regular series of six in its 30th season.

Lahser next in tourney

Rocks KO Canton

By FRED DeLANO

Tonight's the one that makes the difference. It will be 20-1 Plymouth Salem against 19-1 Bloomfield Hills Lahser in one of the top games in Michigan's Class A high school basketball eliminations, and immediate recognition as a prime candidate for the state championship will be the winner's reward.

Salem's Rocks battled their way into this crucial milepost by turning back an inspired Plymouth Canton team Tuesday night in the Southfield High School district, 74-55. It earned the Rocks the right to meet Lahser at 7 this evening in the same gym. Saturday's finals will pit the Salem-Lahser winner against the survivor between Southfield High and Bloomfield Hills Andover.

AT LEAST 500 Plymouth basketball diehards wallowed through Tuesday night's heavy downpour to be in on the Salem-Canton duel and they were rewarded with one of the finest basketball games of the winter.

CANTON ASKED no quarter and gave none as Coach Casey Cavell chose to challenge Salem's run-and-gun brand of basketball with his own all-out attack—and for a while it looked as though it might work.

The Chiefs, who finished with a 6-15 record for the campaign, saw all five starters put points on the board in the emotionally charged first quarter which ended with Salem nursing a 20-18 edge.

Keith Osborne, with eight points, led the Canton attack in that stanza, but it didn't quite compare with the 12-point production by Salem's all-state prospect, 6-8 Jim Ellinghausen.

IN THE SECOND quarter, where Salem had a 20-14 bulge, Tom Close paced Canton with a spurt of six points, but Rock guard Brian Wolcott countered with seven. Close led Canton for the game with 20.

It was that sort of a battle until the four-minute mark of the second period, the lead changing hands 10 times up until then with the score being knotted on 10 other occasions.

Then came the turning point just after a free throw by Close had given the Chiefs the lead for the last time at 30-29.

A beautiful turn-around jumper by Jim Ellinghausen with 3:41 left in the half not only put Salem in front 31-30 but started the Rocks rolling to 11 straight points that boosted their lead to 40-30.

In that surge Jim Ellinghausen contributed four points, Ellinghausen three, Wolcott two on a driving layup through the lane and Bob Evans two on a rebound shot.

THE ROCKS remained hot as the second half opened as they outscored Canton 13-4 in the first four minutes of the third period.

Jim Ellinghausen was good for nine points in that drive, two more coming from brother Tom and two from Mike Primeau.

Jim Ellinghausen finished with 34 points as high scorer for the game, this total pushing him to 613 for the season. His career total in three seasons on the Salem varsity stands at 1,289, putting him within 11 of the 1,300 mark.

Against Canton he popped in 14 of 21 field goal attempts as the Rocks shot a fine 62 per cent as a team compared to 35 per cent for the Chiefs. Wolcott canned six of seven shots and Primeau four out of five. Ellinghausen also hauled in 11 rebounds as the Rocks led in that department, 39-16.

It was the first time since beating Edsel Ford Jan. 13 in the 10th game of the season that Salem outscored its opponent in each of the four quarters.

CANTON GAVE IT a real try and Cavell praised his players as "going out there with lots of intensity."

"I'm very proud of these kids," said Cavell. "We played very well defensively, but just couldn't get the shots we wanted."

Salem Coach Fred Thomann commented that his team's defensive play improved after the first quarter, and had a particular pat on the back for the offensive shooting of Wolcott and Jim Ellinghausen, plus the overall play of freshman Rich Hewlett.

Hewlett scored six points, blocked three shots and was credited with five assists as he played more than half the game at a guard post. His poise made it hard for onlookers to believe that he's just a ninth grader.

For those who can't make it to the Southfield game tonight, the game will be aired live beginning at 7 p.m. by the high school radio station, WSDP, 89.3 on the FM dial.

JV Rocks win last 3

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

Dan Brightbill scored nine quick points to help pave the way for the Plymouth Salem JV's resounding 68-48 victory over Edsel Ford.

It was another display of outstanding playmaking for the young Rocks who show greater poise and style with each game.

They took a 24-11 lead into the second period and the half ended with Plymouth ahead 41 to 20.

It was no contest as the Rocks out-rebounded, outshot and outlasted the undermanned Ford team.

Playing less than a quarter, Brightbill lead all scorers (there were 13 of them), with 12 points. Dave Monk and John Broderick had eight each, Mitch Haas had six, Jim Van Boven nine, Bill Kral five, Doug Agnew, Stu Roth, Steve Horton four, and Bob Hissom, Mike Genrich, Bucky Marks and Andy Melin had two apiece.

There are many fine young players on this Craig Bell coached, Rock team. One is 5'11" freshman guard Richard Hewlett who was promoted this week and helped spark a varsity victory.

While with the junior varsity, Hewlett lead the team in scoring with a 163 points; with 95 assists; recoveries with 57 and was third in rebounds with 92.

It's becoming a matter of statistics with the Plymouth Salem JV basketball team. The outcome is generally known, only the score and the players' individual statistics are in question.

Allen Park was the victim last week by a 67 to 49 score.

The Packers tried to run with the Rocks which proved to be a mistake as Plymouth took a 17-6 first period lead.

Allen Park decided to slow it down, which also didn't work out. The Rocks moved out to a 42-22 halftime lead.

The reserves took over in the second half. John Broderick added 14 points, team high, to his credit, all coming in the first half. The versatile Broderick was pumping them in from outside and inside with driving layups.

Steve Horton took over where Broderick left off. The 6-6 center added 11 points, all but two coming in the fourth period.

Doug Agnew added nine while Mitch Haas and Dan Brightbill accounted for eight each. Bill Kral had six; Dave Menk, Jim Van Boven and Pat Cavanaugh had four.

Last Friday the Plymouth Salem JV basketball team completed a very successful season with a 62 to 58 win over Dearborn. This gave the highly talented Rocks a 17-2 record, tops for a JV club.

Throughout the year, it was the Rocks unselfish balanced offense and excellent defense that dominated play.

Plymouth had a 38-25 lead at the half. Dearborn outscored the Rocks by a 20-8 count in the third but Plymouth held on for the victory.

John Broderick's 17 points lead all scorers. Doug Agnew added 11, Mitch Haas and Bob Hissom had 10 each. Dan Brightbill had eight and Dave Menk 6.

Local grapplers shut out

Area wrestlers, spearheaded by Westland John Glenn's Agron Vasha, showed excellent performances last weekend at the state grappling finals.

Eight wrestlers from area schools, including four Rockets, competed at Michigan State University in the Class A finals, while Jeff Heidelberg, from Clarencville, carried the Trojans' banner in the Class B finals at East Kentwood High School near Grand Rapids.

Vasha, Glenn's first state champ, culminated a spectacular three-year varsity career by sweeping to victory in four straight matches to claim the 112-pound state title.

The senior decisioned Joe Craig from Hazel Park, 18-2, decisioned Bill Smiddy from Portage Northern, 9-3, decisioned Dan Lindberg from Redford Union, 6-2, and pinned Mark Messer from West Bloomfield to win the crown.

The title match was sweet revenge for Vasha because Messer had administered Vasha's only defeat of the season earlier in the year.

Mark Coulston, a 155-pound Glenn grappler, finished fifth in the state in his weight class, while Scott Davis, at 132 pounds, and Dan Paciocco, at 119 pounds, failed to place, although each won a match and scored points for the Rockets.

The Westlanders finished with 35½ points, good enough for the ninth spot in team standings.

Other area grapplers who finished high in the Class A meet were Lindberg, fourth at 112 pounds from RU; Mike Kucera, fifth at 98 pounds from Livonia Franklin; Scott McKay, sixth at 105 pounds from LIvonia Bentley, and Carl Schultz, seventh at 119 pounds from Plymouth Salem.

Heidelberg failed to place at 122 pounds in the Class B meet, but he did win a match in quest of the title.

People who buy and people who sell get together in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Buyers and sellers are "strange" people. Strange to each other, that is. People with lots of different needs and wants, people who need to get together. They need to get together in the quickest, least expensive and most effective way possible—the Observer & Eccentric Want Ads.

Say you need a buyer for a bunch of baby basset hounds, or a really good home for a litter of antiques...How do you meet those unknown admirers with an eye for your special goods? How do you keep track of sellers with garage sales, and owners of autos and pets to trade? It's easy -- when you know where buyers and sellers get together best—the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

It's easy to get double buying and selling results, too. Double-Action Ads bring people together from all over Wayne and Oakland Counties. These suburban communities include: Birmingham, Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Rochester, Avon Two., Southfield and Troy in Oakland County; Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Canton Twp., Redford Twp., and Westland in Wayne County. Smart buyers and sellers place a Double Action Family Want Ad (non business) of 15 words or less in two consecutive issues, with no changes in copy and no cancellations -- and they pay only $6. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

When you have something to sell...when you have something to buy...you've got a lot in common in the Observer & Eccentric Classified Want Ads.

BMW 530i

One test drive and everything else will seem like basic transportation.

What is it that makes a car so exceptional that the editors of Road & Track magazine flatly proclaim it "...the best sports sedan in the world...?"

Technically, the BMW 530i is a unique combination of a turbine-smooth, 3 liter engine, supremely efficient electronic fuel-injection and a four-wheel independent suspension system that's a model for modern design.

Yet, to really comprehend exactly what makes the BMW the choice of serious drivers in all parts of the world, you must drive one. And we'd be happy to arrange a thorough test drive for you.

The ultimate driving machine.

There is lots of shopping and eating in Vancouver's Gastown.

rant in Vancouver's westend district.

Floors of beach pebbles remind one of walks on the beach as patrons and waiters manipulate in this tiny basement restaurant which, constantly smells like a special pow wow, is taking place. (All the food is cooked over open alderwood fires.) You can forget the soap suds. It tastes just like the first four letters of its name.

Small cafes line the streets of Gastown, a charming section of town, done up mostly for tourists, which is named for the politicians who once roamed the area.

If you tire of the city life, hop a ferry to Vancouver Island where the capital of the province, Victoria, exists regally.

The British proclivity for gardening is very apparent in all of gardenable B.C., but especially on this elegant island. There are enough gardens to keep you walking for a lifetime. The famous Butchart Gardens are gorgeous almost any time of the year. It's all the rain that keeps them so healthy and beautiful.

If you run out of things to do (which you shan't) there's nothing quite so refined as tea on the veranda of The Empress Hotel. What a way to end a honeymoon. Right, old chaps?

White House brides marry in opulence

Although the miracle of modern communication made it possible for a recent White House wedding to have the honour of the presence of the general public, the Cox-Nixon ceremony in the Rose Garden was not otherwise a first.

1600 Pennsylvania Avenue boasts an extensive record of nuptial ceremonies held there starting with John Adams and Mary Catherine Hellen.

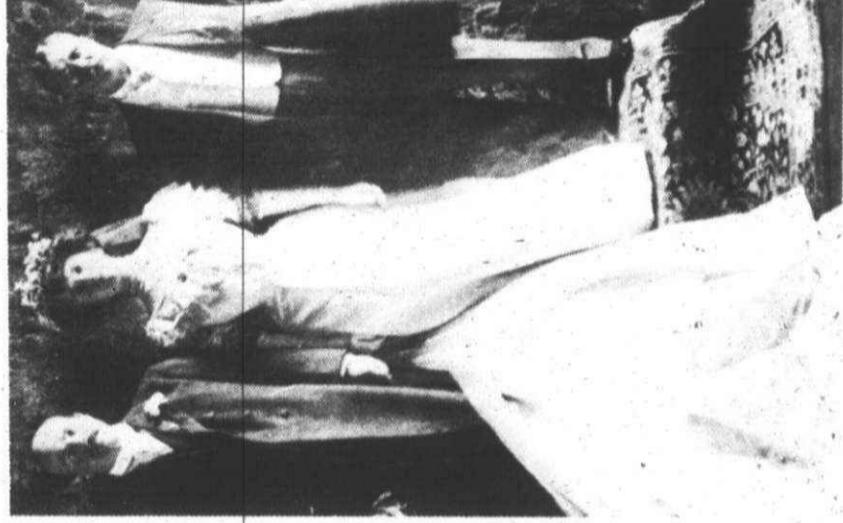

John was the second son of President and Mrs. John Quincy Adams. Mary Catherine lived with the Adams family and managed to become romantically entangled with the bridegroom's two brothers, George and Charles, before she settled on John. He was the first, and only president's son, so far, to be married in the White House.

Neither rejected suitor attended the nuptials which took place Feb. 25, 1828, in what is now the Oval Office. At that time the room was furnished in imported French furnishings.

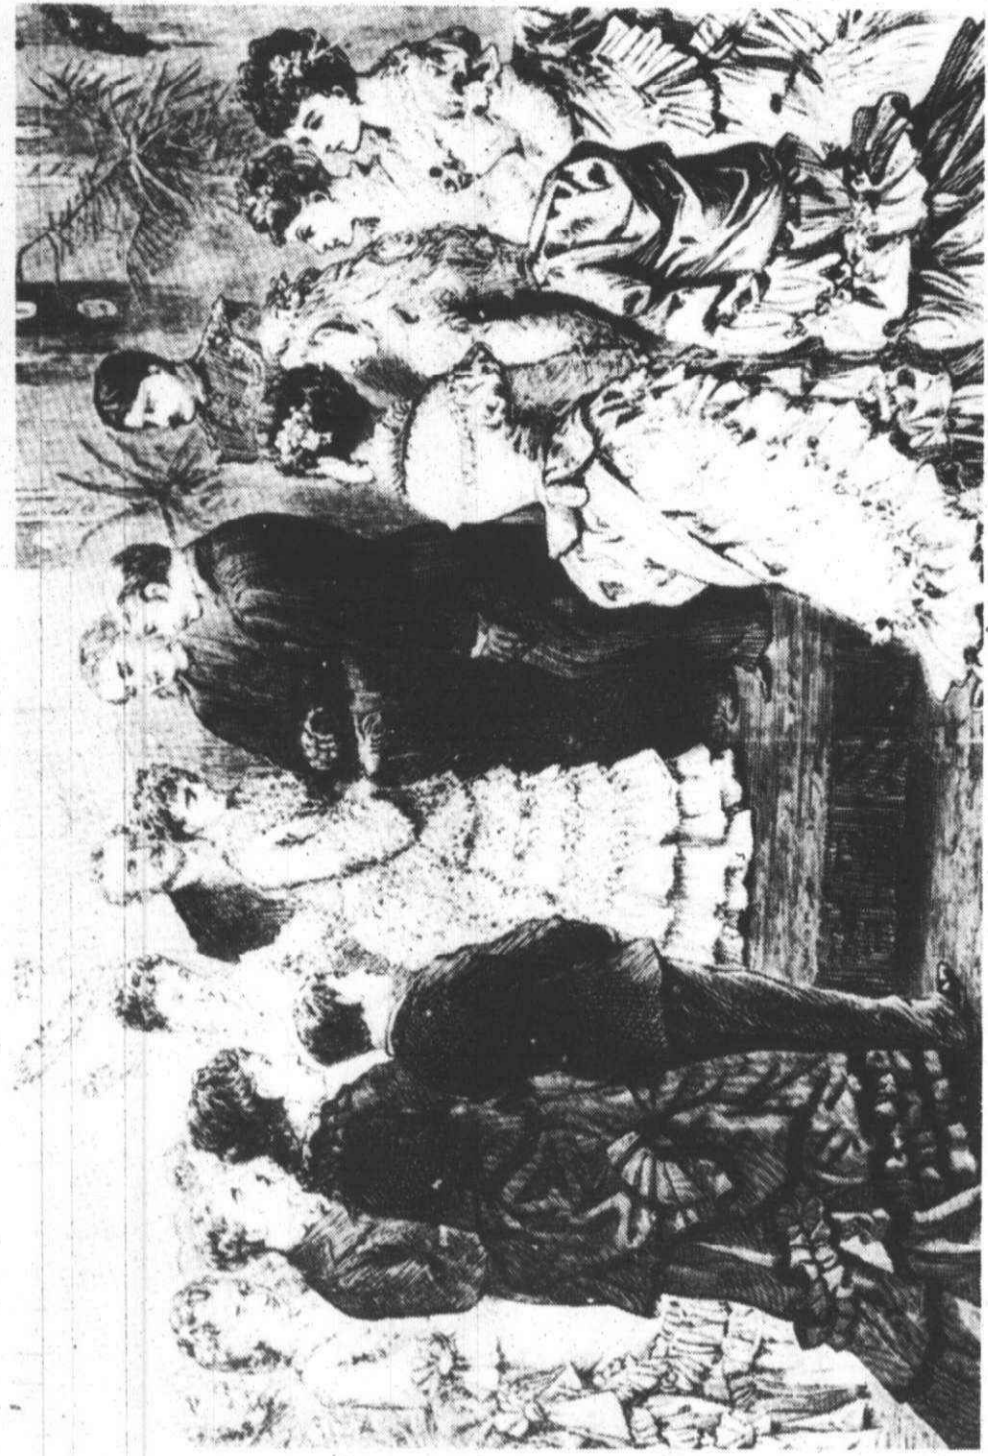

In December of the year she was married, Mary Catherine gave birth to a daughter, who was the first female child born in the White House and the first to be christened there.

John Tyler was the first incumbent president to celebrate his own wedding in the White House. The actual ceremony took place in New York two years after the death of Tyler's first wife.

The second Mrs. Tyler (Julia Gardner) was 23 at the time, considerably younger than the bridegroom. Her father was a former

The Marine Band played at Alice Roosevelt's wedding to Nicholas Longworth in 1906

When Nellie Grant married Algernon Sartoris in the White House she wore a gown which had $4,000 worth of Brussels point lace sewn into it there was to be a wedding, where, and at what time.

The subsequent event, according to the New York Herald reporter who managed to worm his way in, although the press had been officially barred, "nothing to equal it was ever before witnessed."

The bride's gown, costing $5,000, was white satin. She had eight bridesmaids all clad in white.

And the bridegroom added his own far out note by carrying a bouquet of orange blossoms and tuberoses from which protruded a small banner bearing the word "Love."

The breakfast menu consisted of soft-shell crabs on toast; chicken croquettes with green peas; lamb cutlets with tartare sauce; aspic of beef tongue; woodcock and snipe on toast; salad with mayonaisse; strawberries with cream; orange baskets garnished with strawberries; Charlotte Russe; Nesselrode pudding; blancmange; ice cream with preserved fruits; water ices; wedding cake; petit fours; Roman punch; chocolate and coffee.

Matters matrimonial at the White House fell off somewhat after the Grover Cleveland nuptials but picked up again when the Theodore Roosevelt moved in. Princess Alice, still living in the Capital city at a spritely 92 years old, was married in the East Room to Nicholas Longworth.

There were no bridal attendants--nothing to take away from the bride herself. She entered on the arm of her father to the march from "Tannhauser."

Even the floral decorations in the room were sparse so the guests, numbering between 700 and 1,000, could concentrate on the tall slender bride in the white satin gown with a six-yard train of silver brocade and an equally long veil pinned into her pompom.

The wedding was Feb. 17, 1907. The wedding gifts ranged from sublime (a long mosaic-en-crusted table from Italy and a Gobelin tapestry) to the freakish (dust mops, a box of snakes and a mouse trap).

After that, the hearts-and-flowers events declined. It is doubtful that when they picked up again in the Johnson and Nixon administrations the pace was the same, although even the simplest ceremonies will generate excitement.

But experts say the most far out ceremony of the 60s couldn't top Algermon's bridal bouquet--or the barrel of popcorn which turned up on the list of Roosevelt-Longworth loot.

Is giving advice

"Sex," said the gentleman with the proverbial Jewish mother, "was never mentioned."

Whether your mother was Jewish, Catholic, Protestant or none of the above, chances are you got no advice on sex or anything else before you got married. The same goes for any advice from your father.

Parents don't lecture young people about to marry on sex. They don't warn them about the pitfalls of society, as Polonius did Laertes. Mothers don't even tell their daughters about household products, except in television commercials.

Possibly the subject is too embarrassing. Possibly parents feel their youngsters have had 20 or so years to learn by their example or have picked up enough in biology, family life or consumer economics classes in school.

But it doesn't follow that new-lweds don't get any advice at all. "When I announced my engagement," said a Farmington woman who worked several years before settling down, "all the men in the office said, 'Buy a house while you have two salaries. It's impossible to do it later.'" Advice? "None whatsoever."

said a Redford woman. But she did recall how she learned about the facts of life.

"Nobody had ever told me a thing, and I was 19 years old. One night a girlfriend of mine was babysitting. We prowled through the young couple's books until we found one on sex. "I was shocked at the idea of having my person invaded. Neither of us dated for six months after that."

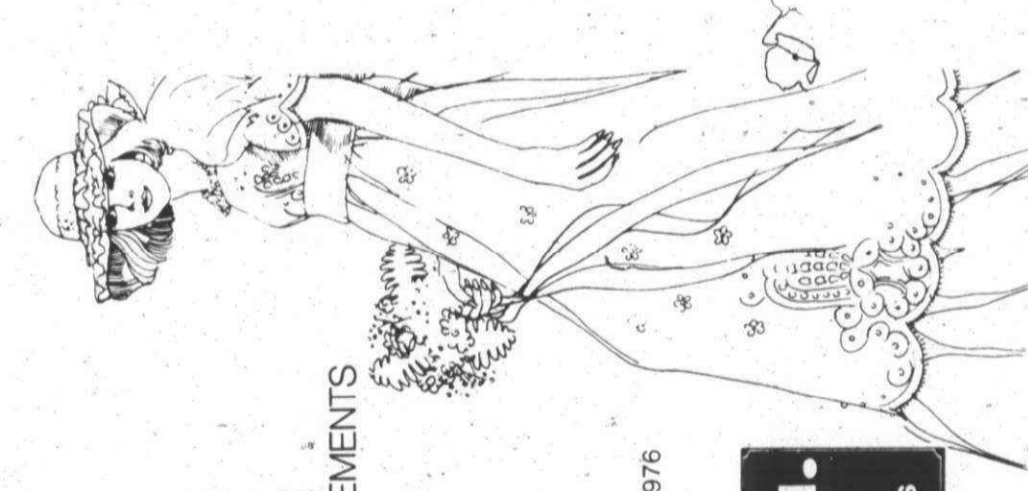

Her story has a happy ending: marriage and two lovely children. Somewhere along the line, the shock must have worn off.

"The only advice we ever had was social pressure to get married because we were living in sin," said another man.

"It was worth getting married to stop the pressure."

Didn't he save money on income taxes by having some legal deductions? "No, it cost us money because she lost ADC," he answered.

A man from Redford got no parental advice, and his wedding is today just a blur in his mind, but he recalls someone telling him, "When you and your wife stop fighting, you stop being mar-

remain objective

Echoing Trenz's emphasis on communication, counselor George J. Schrauder from the Wayne County Marriage Counseling Service said, "Communication is something I would stress to a couple about to get married. It sounds so simple and so easy, but it becomes more difficult as time goes on."

"Communication of feelings is most essential because if you can do that, you can handle most any problem," he explained. "We've been taught to be nice. So we keep things, particularly hurt and angry feelings, inside us. But the more we let ourselves be known, the more chance we have of being liked."

Young women seem to be communicating more easily than they once did, according to Dr. E. Cashman, a gynecologist who is president of the medical staff at Providence Hospital in Southfield.

"I think the old-fashioned approach of not talking is over. That is good, of course. Old wives' tales create misunderstandings and anxieties, for instance, that sex is an unclean thing. This makes it difficult for the act," said Dr. Cashman.

"Young ladies that I see now seem to be more worldly and have grasped a better knowledge of their physiology. Whether that's from school or wherever, I don't know," he continued.

Marriage is serious business, requiring forethought and plenty of communication. All work and no play, however dull marriage.

"Maybe people shouldn't take marriage so seriously. Problems can be fun," said Trenz.

"Marriage is like a garden. The joy of fighting is like weeding and getting your fingernails dirty. It's toil, but it can be rewarding."

He speaks from personal experience.

"Marriage is a central part of my life because it is my work, but also because my marriage is extremely happy. I work at it and play at it. So what I'm saying as advice, I really believe."

Professional advice:

Marriage doesn't end with a withered bouquet and the frozen memories of eight-by-10 photographs.

But that's the biggest misconception many couples have as they enter marriage, according to Bob Trenz, a Rochester marriage counselor and columnist for the Observer & Eccentric.

"People think marriage ends after the ceremony. Actually, it's just exactly the opposite," said Trenz. He believes that is the time to "produce something individualized, with a custom fit."

When it comes to marriage, misconceptions abound, "particularly when any couple brings to the marriage a model which is romantic, idealized and unrealistic," continued Trenz, "yet people tend to cling to that model no matter what. Just about the time they get married, two people don't hear objectiveness."

"Divorce is caused by the unrealities of marriage. When two people get divorced, they are divorcing what the marriage has meant to them," said Trenz. Marriage should be something that makes people happy, not just something to come home to.

Each marriage is so different. What is needed is flexibility," explained Trenz. "I think, the whole way of experimenting is good. My hope for marriage comes from this new flexibility."

Now, as the married life continues, how does a couple introduce flexibility to produce a customized fit?

"If they haven't been trained by the time they're approaching marriage, it's almost too late for that. They've missed the boat by about five years," said Trenz.

Marriage doesn't have to end in divorce, however, and Trenz had a couple of suggestions for improving marriage.

"Read. There are a lot of good books*psychology and marriage pocketbooks*that range from mediocre to very good," he said.

"Talk with other people," he said. "Everyone has some problems, and we don't find general solutions unless we talk about what the problems are."

Trenz stressed that it is good to talk among friends and to share problems. He added that, in the past, not discussing problems has prevented professionals from finding solutions.

ried because you're not communicating any more."

"I found that to be the truth," he said. "Fighting doesn't mean beating each other up; just arguing."

A Livonia couple got one bit of advice from a relative; an elderly but high-spirited great-uncle:

"Buy a bed with a footboard on it!" Whereupon he launched into a denunciation of the so-called Hollywood bed that was a fad in the '30s and '40s.

Myself, I can recall reading only one piece of information that ever stuck. It was in one of those short little paragraphs tucked at the end of a magazine article.

Honeymoon 'north of the border'

Aunt Dorothy might think it a bit unpatriotic, but in this year of the American Bicentennial, if you want to be alone on your honeymoon, Canada may be the nearest place to do so.

On the home front, if you haven't already made reservations, you may find yourself competing for space with people from all over the world—including lots of foreign honeymooners who've picked the U.S. for their special week or two together.

To avoid the crush of Canada's big 1976 celebration—the Olympics—stick to western Canada for the treat of a lifetime.

The two westernmost provinces, Alberta and British Columbia, have natural wonders galore, from the Rocky Mountains (complete with alpine valleys and snow-capped mountain tops to rival the best in Switzerland), to canyonland and the Pacific Ocean for starters.

For city slickers, there is Vancouver, a lively city on British Columbia's Pacific coast. It is very cosmopolitan, but has a decidedly British air about it.

Inland are charming Banff and Lake Louise, in Alberta. These places have well-known reputations as honeymoon spots superieur. Another out-of-the-way honeymoon spot is Harrison Hot Springs in British Columbia. In this tiny town looms a giant hotel which can accommodate hundreds of guests in a luxury setting.

Built in 1885 as the St. Alice Hotel (named for one of the provincial governor's daughters), it is on the shores of one of B.C.'s longest lakes—Harrison Lake.

What could be more romantic than hearing stories of the Sasquatches, Harrison Hot Springs fabled abominable snowmen? The story-tellers say the hairy characters roam the shores of this incredible lake.

Even if you never see one, you can eat sweet kisses named for them and made at the Echo Chocolate Boutique in town. After years as the pastry chef at own use "a little bit of everything, but probably not enough."

His bride-to-be was looking forward to acquiring "nice things like china, silverware, crystal and a set of pots and pans—things that will last."

She heartily approved of the idea of a bridal registry, and had already registered her preferences in china, crystal and silverware at J.L. Hudson.
Wendy Burrows of Redford Township feels that special friends should give special gifts that will be around for a long time. "Then each time we use the gift we will think of them," she said.

With a wedding planned for June, she had registered her fondness for blossomtime pattern in china at Hudson's—white with a flower decoration.
Like other future brides she favored the trend toward stainless steel in flatware. Wendy has been busy looking for an apartment with her fiancé, Daniel Cerulla of Redford Township. She visualizes it with nice lamps, towels in brown, rust or orange, and baking utensils.

However, she has also observed that some girls are aware that it might be a good idea to register at the store for fine china because "when they want it they may not be able to afford it."
—SHERRY KAHAN

"I like to bake, so things like cookie sheets would be welcome," she said. "I also think a teapot is a nice gift." She would also be pleased as punch to receive mixing bowls, a toaster or a toaster-oven.

But brides and bridegrooms are not the only ones tuned into wedding gifts as the June wedding season approaches. Mrs. Joyce Mazzoni Pappas, registered bridal consultant at Orin Jewelers in Garden City, also has bridal presents on her mind.

She noted a trend today toward casual china, such as stoneware and stainless steel silverware.
"Things are more casual today," she said. "Living is fast. Both the husband and wife work and when they get home they're hungry. They're not willing to fuss much with meals."

While styles in weddings seem to be changing rapidly from day to day, wedding gift styles appear to remain the same.

Women in the area who are about to be married indicate that as far as they are concerned wedding presents still fulfill their original function. They help the bride and bridegroom off to a good start in furnishing their residence.

"I have a set of stoneware dishes and a set of stainless steel silverware already, but not much else," said Denise Folsom of Livonia, who plans a June wedding with Bruce Whitaker of Westland. "We need things like lamps, blankets, sheets and towels. A mixer and a toaster would also come in handy."

Like other women interviewed, Denise thinks of wedding gifts as practical items. "Although I wouldn't mind getting a picture or a piece of sculpture," Friends and relatives who may be wondering what to give her should know that she plans on a bedroom furnished in early American style, possibly to honor the bicentennial year.

Miss Folsom appreciated the tradition of giving shower and wedding gifts. "You need these things," she said. "It's a big help to get them from someone."

Linda Noutko of Westland will also have to "start from scratch," even though she already has some embroidered pillow cases and a set of stainless steel silverware in her hope chest.

She likes the idea of coordinated gifts, bedspreads that match sheets and pieces of matching china.

"Everything we see at the stores we'd like to have," she laughed. "But we plan to acquire things, like furniture, that are built to wear and are not too elegant looking."

A 1974 graduate of Churchill High School, Miss Noutko has more time than most brides to decide on the kind of dishes, towels, cooking utensils and glasses she would like to ornament her home. Her wedding will probably be in the spring of 1977.

Chris Simms of Plymouth was interviewed before her Feb. 28 wedding to Bob Mayer. Now as Mrs. Mayer she is living in the Plymouth condominium purchased by her husband before the wedding.

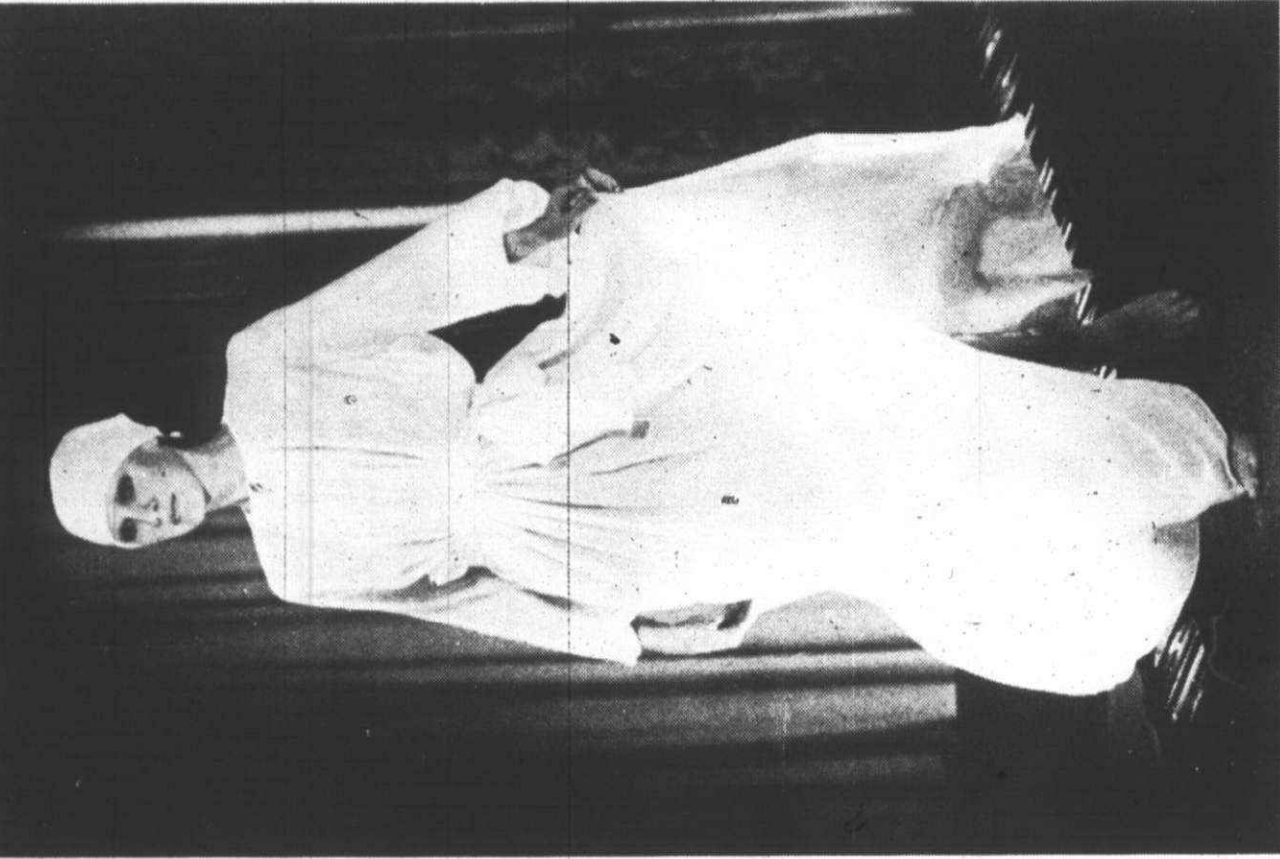

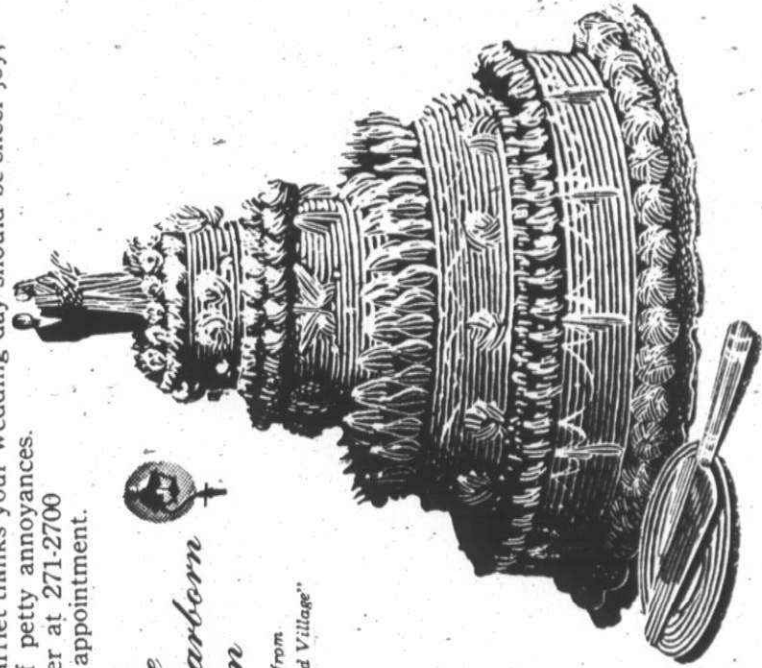

Having lived in the condominium a while before his marriage, Mayer had bought for his

If there's more money to spend, the couple should consider matched luggage. Matching will give them more flexibility when traveling together and individually. In addition to being strong, durable and lightweight, the pieces should be able to travel by plane, train, ship or car.

Both husband and wife should have an overnight case, weekend, and pullman case. Dress- and suit-carriers are also handy for hanging clothes without crushing.

The linen closet comes next. While the temptation is great to overbuy, care should be given because styles change and apartment-size linen closets don't hold much.

The experts recommend three complete changes of bed linen, one electric blanket, one summer blanket, one mattress pad, and one bedspread for the bedroom.

For the bath, couples setting up housekeeping will need six bath towels, six face towels, six washcloths, six guest towels, a bath mat, shower curtain, and rug and cover set.

Moving into the kitchen, there should be one dozen kitchen towels, one dozen glass towels, one formal tablecloth and matching napkins, two sets of place mats and matching napkins, four potholders, and aprons.

To set the table, homemakers need eight five-piece place settings each of casual and formal china, eight crystal settings of water goblet, champagne or sherbet glasses, and wine glasses; eight of each casual water and juice glasses; and eight five-piece place settings of both silverware and stainless.

The final additions to the trousseau include kitchen, laundry cleaning and electrical utensils and equipment.

To wrap up the whole package and put the seal on it, many trousseau items may be monogrammed. Usually the first initial of the husband's last name is used on silverware, glasses and table linen. The bride's monogram—the initials of her first, maiden and married names—can also grace the top sheets and silverware.

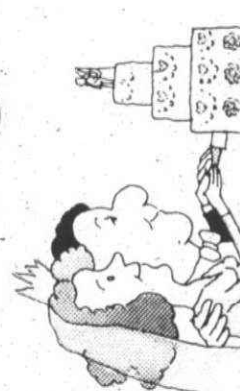

Linda Noutko of Westland displays the objects already in her hope chest, but knows that much more will be needed in order to furnish a house or apartment. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Cash clicks as gift

Weddings, like people, come in all different shapes and sizes and with varying price tags.

The same goes for wedding gifts. But in the long run, the gifts most remembered probably don't depend so much on size, shape, or price, but on how useful, thoughtful and needed they are.

Despite arguments to the contrary based on proper etiquette, or propriety, my favorite gift was cash.

Cash comes in varying quantities and denominations, but the color is right and it can be easily transformed into the "perfect gift" that no one besides the bride and groom could have picked out.

That's not to say that the assorted sheets, pillow cases, towels, plants, dishes, flatware, crock pots, napkins, place mats, lamps, table cloths, original artwork and a honeymoon weekend in a secluded hideaway weren't appreciated. We kept most of the things, returned a few, paid for the wedding, and had enough money left to buy a beautiful mantle clock.

No one in their right mind would have bought us a beautiful mantle clock, but thanks to the nice people who kept the baggage to a minimum and dropped a check in with the "wishing you all the happiness for the next 200 forevers" cards, we can tell what time it is when the clock chimes every half hour. It doesn't matter much that we don't have a mantle, or that the present didn't come from a favorite aunt, uncle or friend.

It's a special gift that means a lot, and not one relative or friend can be offended that we've picked it as the favorite over all the others.

I still give wedding gifts, and I still prefer to make an attempt at picking out that "perfect gift" that will keep my wife and I in the memory of the newlyweds until they're ready to celebrate their 50th. But when I'm torn between giving a combination water pic-giving a, combination water pic-giving a check in with a card, I go for the checkbook without one bit of remorse. It could be a small percentage of the loving couple's most cherished gift.

—MIKE ARNHOLT

bride will want to discard her tailored underwear from school and build a wardrobe for her casual and dressy needs. "Married in white you've chosen right."

While white was once the only color allowed a bride, her lingerie can now be in pastels, for those who cling to tradition and anything up to and including red for those who have other ideas.

Nylon and other easy-care fabrics are best for suitcase-packing and no-iron ease. Their fragile looks belie their practicality.

On her lingerie list:
1 bridal nightgown, negligee and slippers
2 lacy nightgowns
2 tailored nighties or pajamas, either longer or shorter
1 winter robe
1 summer robe
1 opaque brunch coat
1 lounging or hostess gown or pajamas

2 slips, either full or half, one light colored and one dark
1 long slip for formal wear
1 dozen stockings or pantyhose
8 pairs of panties
3 bras

Taking stock of what she already owns, the bride's underwear should be in top condition, and completely flattering to her coloring and proportions.

What colors she chooses are a matter of taste but according to ancient custom the bride should not choose green because it is the fairies' color and their resentment towards those who wear it could bring unhappiness. This applies to all except, of course, Irish women who wear the color for good luck.

Summer and winter wardrobes should include:

1 dressy coat
1 casual coat
1 raincoat and umbrella
1 skirt suit
2 pants suits
1 good skirt
2 everyday skirts
1 cocktail outfit
1 formal outfit
jeans and pants
shoes
blouses

sweaters, both heavy and lightweight purses
scarves
jewelry

While trousseaus are usually for women, the newly married male should not be neglected. His clothing should appear well, feel comfortable and be serviceable.

His closets should be filled with:
1 overcoat
1 raincoat
1 summer jacket

Let's talk trousseau

Whoever said that two can live more cheaply than one must have been thinking that the bride would be bringing a traditional trousseau into the marriage with her!

The trousseau (true-so), which supplanted a dowry, usually has included not only the bride's own personal wardrobe for the first year of marriage but also a wealth of household goods.

The raft of 'homely' items—linens for bed, bath, table and kitchen, luggage, china, silverware, glassware and kitchen equipment—was not unusual in the past because certainly every bride expected with certainty that the household would be her domain.

But today's bride has come a long way and her domain is as likely to be professional as it is domestic.

One traditional source for building a home, the hope chest—where bright-eyed teens once stored sweet embroideries and other provisions for the cozy life—is now outmoded—for what may be "cool" to a teen's eye may be cold to a homemaker's.

Just how extensive a trousseau will be is now determined largely by finances and needs. And unless the bride has accumulated enough personal wealth to purchase a complete trousseau—or has parents who can bankroll her—she may prefer to join accounts with her fiancé or depend on the generosity of shower and wedding guests.

Basic to a personal trousseau are the bride's underwear and clothing. Whether the new wardrobe will extend to just the honeymoon, the first few months of marriage or a whole year, the bride's selection should be the best clothing she has had and can afford.

Whether lavish or not, her purchases should be of high quality, but not just so she'll feel better, but because better things last longer and do not go out of style as quickly. In addition, it's unlikely a newlywed's budget will stretch to cover high-quality personal items.

Other keys to developing a wardrobe are complementary colors, simplicity of design and attractive accessories—all things guaranteed to make a bride feel lovely, happy and comfortable.

Starting closest to her skin, the

"For every woman in the household," it said, "a man needs to spend one evening away from home in order to maintain his sanity."

And so I find that the only fishing partner I can rely on is a fellow with a wife and five daughters. Unless he's away from home working, I can count on him to want to get away from home for a little constructive angling.

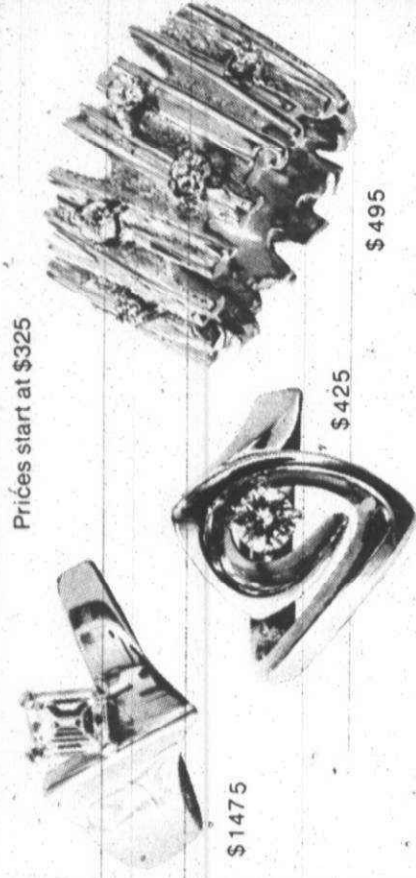

We've developed our own one-for-one fishing method: For every fish we catch, we consume one beer. But I digress . . .

A lady who wishes to remain totally anonymous, even by city of residence, because she could have all sorts of trouble, got no advice from anyone on anything, but she did overhear some advice her father gave a brother.

"My brother's fiancée's grandmother had been married five times and had outlived four of her husbands. So my father advised my brother, 'Never eat dinner at your wife's grandmother's place.'"
