Canton grid coaches cite pressure, quit

By BILL COLLINS

Faced with mounting pressure from a school board member and parents, Jim Muneio announced Monday he is resigning as varsity football coach at Plymouth Canton.

Muneio, varsity football coach for three years, and his three assistants announced their resignations Monday night in a meeting in Plymouth Canton High with the players of next fall's team.

The resignation hasn't been submitted in writing yet to the Plymouth Board of Education, but Muneio said it will be forthcoming within the next few days.

As a result, Athletic Director John Sandmann and other school officials were unable to make an official statement.

FOR MUNEIO the decision to quit was a relief from pressures which had been mounting over the past two years from a group of parents of Canton players—led by trustee Joe Gray—and other football fans in the community.

"The pressure that's being applied doesn't affect me as much as it affects the kids who play football," said Muneio. "You cannot be a successful team if you don't have 100 per cent support from you players, and because of this pressure I didn't have full support."

Upon questioning, Muneio admitted that the arguments being voiced against him as coach didn't directly force him to resign, but "the pressure from this group affected the players in an indirect manner which split some of the players in their support of the coaching staff.

"Some of the parents are for us, some are against us. I hope my stepping down will resolve the problems that have been created."

ASSISTANT COACH Gary Grady echoed the sentiments of Muneio. "It's a shame everything had to end the way it did. The kids were caught in the middle.

"In supporting Jim, I'm backing everything he is trying to do as a coach. The pressure group members have been hurting the kids, not the coaches."

The pressure groups have had a few meetings to voice their complaints about the football program at Plymouth Canton. The latest meeting was held Sunday, March 21, in the cafeteria of Plymouth Salem High.

Heading this latest effort to have Muneio removed as coach is school trustee Gray, who chaired the March 21 meeting.

"We held a meeting of parents of players, boosters, and concerned residents who all had something to say about the way coach Muneio runs the football program," explained Gray. "Of the 49 persons who attended, there were more than 30 who did not want Muneio back as coach this fall."

Gray commented that there were several different charges directed at Muneio and some individual situations talked about, but the most prevalent among all charges was the lack of leadership that Muneio supplied. These charges have been disputed by the coach.

"There was no leadership from Muneio," said Gray. "The kids didn't get the values out of a football program they are entitled to." Gray added that there is a tremendous dissatisfaction among parents about the quality of the program.

In the three-year existence of Plymouth Canton football, the Chiefs, under Muneio, have posted season records of 3-6, 2-7, and 3-6.

"Winning and losing isn't the crux of the problem," maintained Gray, "it's how much the players get out of playing football. I feel coach Muneio has turned some kids, who would normally play football, away from the sport."

Amount unspecified

Fire millage goes on ballot

Residents of Canton favoring construction and staffing of a second fire station at Warren and Sheldon can say so at the ballot box May 18, but when they cast their vote, they will be approving an unspecified amount of millage.

Under a relatively obscure piece of legislation approved by the state legislature in 1951, townships may go to the voters to ask for extra millage and then at a later date, following two public hearings, set the amount of the extra levy.

Under the law, if a millage is approved through this method, the township sets up a special assessment district—which in this case would be the entire township for the purpose of fire protection—and when the actual monetary needs are determined, the township board holds two public hearings before deciding the actual amount of millage to be levied.

The final say on the amount, however, is with the board, and the under the law PA 33 of 1951, they can levy up to 10 mills.

The public hearing process is held annually as the board determines the specific need each year, and the amount may increase or decrease depending on what they find and how they vote.

EARLIER, IT HAD been speculated that the board would ask anywhere from ½ to 2 mills on a conventional ballot, but members of the board said they didn't have the sufficient information presently to ask for a specific millage.

Although the board has received a preliminary report from the Citizens Advisory Council (CAC) studying the fire millage, and a report from the Michigan Fire Chiefs' Association, Treasurer Carl Parsell said he felt a determination on the amount of the millage could not be made until a report from the Michigan Office of Insurance Services was completed.

That study started Monday and is not expected to be finished for some time, with a written report anywhere from three to six months away, said Clerk John Flodin.

The preliminary report issued by the CAC indicated that one mill over 10 years would be sufficient to staff and build a second and eventually a third station in the township.

Because the board wanted to put the millage on the May ballot to get the additional tax on the 1976 rolls, it was felt that a decision had to be reached Monday.

The language of the ballot question has to be in the county clerk's hands today.

"I wish we had all the necessary information now," Parsell said, "but the CAC is not ready to make a final report until next week, and while I could make a 'guesstimate' of 1.5 mills, I think more input is needed before we ask for a specific amount."

Parsell said he didn't want to go to the voters without full knowledge of the exact financial needs for a second fire station.

IN 1974, a public safety levy of three mills was rejected twice by the voters, once in August and again in November.

While board members seemed to agree that it was important a fire millage be put on the ballot as early as possible, several board members opposed the setting the amount later as stipulated in PA 33 of 1951.

"The limit is 10 mills, and I think the voters should be aware of that," Trustee Brain Schwall commented.

"I think this should be tabled for further discussion. We came here to vote on a millage and now we have a special assessment presented to us at 8 p.m. and we're

CITYHOOD?

Appeal loss may pave way

By RICHARD GOLD

If a move for cityhood in Canton is around the corner, it will have to be initiated at a grass roots level.

That's the thinking of township Supervisor Robert Greenstein, who last week suggested that any possible reason for remaining a township had evaporated in the wake of a Michigan Court of Appeals decision. The appeals court rejected a bid by Canton and six other townships to force the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol to continue full services to the seven rural and suburban communities.

Greenstein said that if there were no further appeal to the State Supreme Court, or if a further appeal failed, then Cantonites should consider incorporating as a home rule city.

AS A PRAGMATIC decision," the supervisor said, "there's no point in not becoming a city. The only advantage we received (as a township) at no direct extra cost was police services—bearing in mind that we pay 7.07 mills to the county—and now that is being taken from us.

"The road patrol was no freebie because we paid those seven mills, but now is there no benefit derived from being a township."

If an appeal to the Supreme Court fails, Greenstein said he would not start a drive for cityhood.

"That's just my reaction personally as one taxpayer. If there's going to be a move, it will have to come from the people. That's the same stand I took on the fire millage."

Greenstein added that non-pragmatic arguments such as retaining "a small-town atmosphere" existed for remaining a township.

IF THERE IS ONE issue that seems to be a universal problem in the township, it's the roads. There has been a tremendous amount of feedback from almost all the citizens on that one problem.

"In the past, we've rattled our swords, but there's not much we can do with the county controlling the roads.

"Cityhood would give us control of our own roads, and that's the one thing we've really been giving up as a township."

Greenstein said that if Canton were to become a city, a property tax millage limit would be established in the charter, and the people, when voting on a charter, could control the taxing power of the city.

Greenstein added, however, that a drive for cityhood would not be in order until a final ruling on the sheriff's patrol is rendered.

"IT SEEMS TO me that the appeals court didn't attack our main point, the same as the circuit court.

"They got fouled up in the language about road patrol. I don't care what they call it; the point is that the sheriff has a duty to respond to calls, and the court recognized that duty.

"Since they said the sheriff has a duty to respond to calls, I can't see where it would be legal for the county to cut off funds. That would emasculate the patrol."

According to Greenstein, an appeal of the case to the State Supreme Court will be forthcoming. "Elton Gollwitzer of Van Buren ran a poll of the seven supervisors, and of the four he has talked to, all were in favor of going ahead with the appeal," Greenstein said.

The supervisor said any appeal must be filed within 20 days, and unless one of the supervisors balks at a further appeal, attorney Bert Burgoyne will be instructed to go ahead with the second appeal.

Greenstein said that so far, the case has cost the township's $2,000 each. The seven townships involved are Van Buren, Canton, Northville, Sumpter, Huron and Brownstown.

Concept is key word on ballot

With ballot in hand, on May 18 Cantonites will have a say in the future land use planning of the township.

At a special meeting of the township board Monday, an advisory ballot was approved for the presidential primary, less than two months away.

The question however, will not offer township residents a choice between two plans as originally stated, but rather a choice between two concepts.

Residents will be asked to vote for one of the following two choices.

ab"Should Canton Township pursue concepts which would provide for land in the western portion of the township to remain a rural agricultural area resulting in an overall population of approximately 100,000 people.

•"Should Canton Township pursue concepts which would allow the township to ultimately be fully built up, resulting in an overall population of approximately 200,000 people."

The wording of the ballot by planner Mike Manore altered the board's original question which would have asked if residents favored a plan for full urbanization under a 1974 plan or if residents favored the present plan before the planning commission.

That plan calls for "half-urbanization" of the township, with land west of Canton Center remaining essentially agricultural.

THE KEY WORD on the ballot is concept, according to Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

"This allows the people to give the board some conceptual direction when it implements a new master plan with the zoning ordinance.

"Those who didn't like every detail of the current plan, but approved of the concept can now back retaining open space and farmland without approving the details of the new plan.

"In light of my discussions with Bob Miller, chairman of the planning commission, and a number of people in the township, it seemed to be the consensus that concept was the key word here.

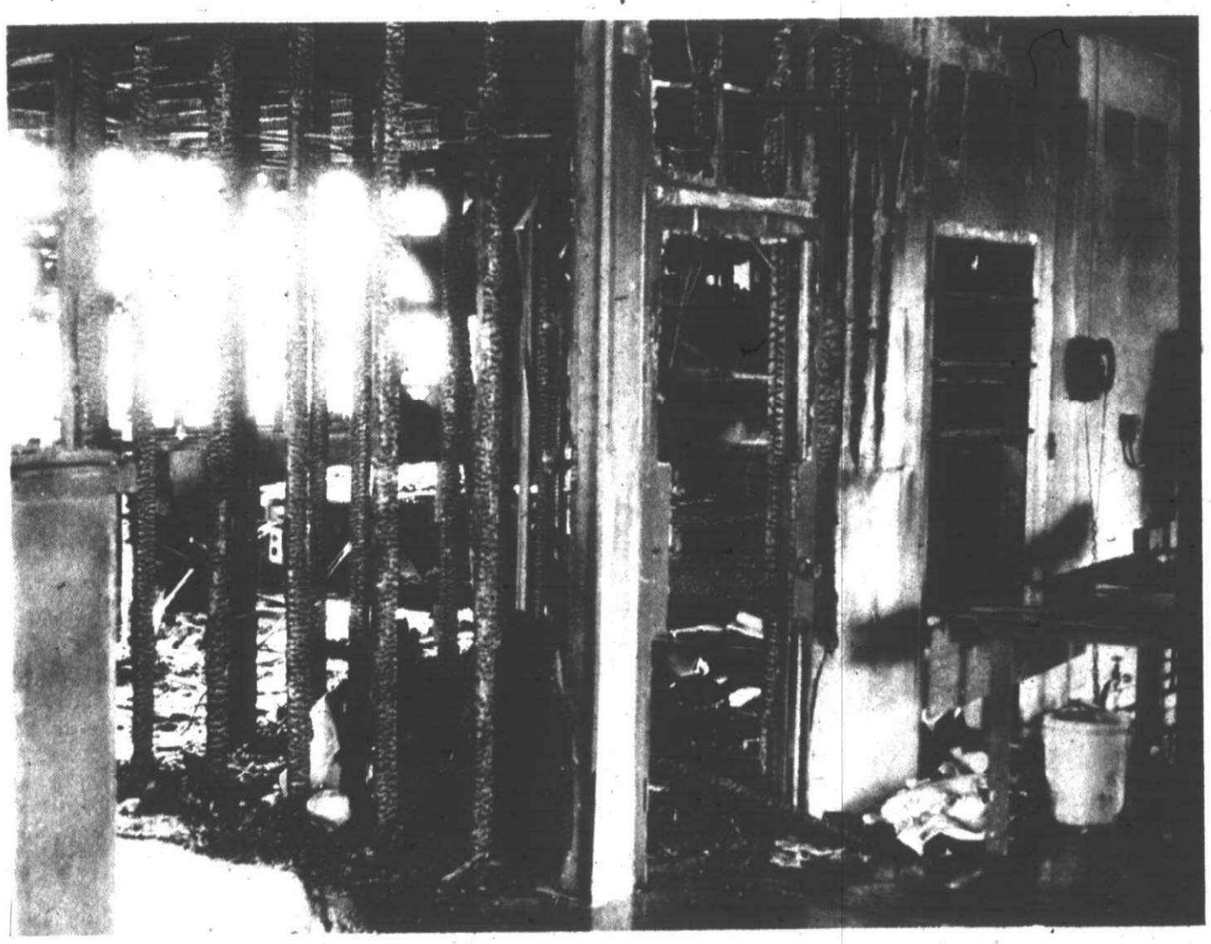

"There are only two concepts available. Either you fully develop the township or you don't. There is no middle ground."

But three trustees, Jim Poole, Brian Schwall and Bob Myers opposed the ballot question.

Schwall said the ballot was pointless because he knew of no one that would approve of urbanization over retention of open space.

Poole lodged another complaint, saying the ballot would apply undue political pres-

Sam's Welding gutted

An early afternoon fire at 4553 South Lilley gutted Sam's Welding Tuesday. Despite a four-hour effort by Canton firemen, the building could not be saved. The fire was started when a spark from a welder's torch ignited some spilled paint on the floor. Several other five-gallon cans of paint caught fire, before firefighters could bring the blaze under control. The business was owned by John Denski and had only been in operation several months. Credit Union elects director

Barbara Burgett was elected to the board of directors at the annual meeting of the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union.

She fills the seat previously occupied by Dr. Clifford McClumpha.

Others serving on the board for the coming year are: Margaret Dunning, president; Russell Koepke, vice president; Richard Wernette, secretary; George Lawton, treasurer; Walter Hagen, John Hoben, Glen Krieg, and Clarence Moore.

"1975 was the strongest year in the history of the credit union. In services, in growth, and in income it surpassed every year in our history," reported Lawton.

On July 1, the credit union moved to full computer which was in full operation by September. In August, its share draft program was approved. It became operative in October. Starting in October, the first direct deposits of federal checks began coming in, and on October 1 the credit union paid its first quarterly dividend.

Closing the year in December, the credit union began its first Individual Retirement Accounts. At the same time, assets were increasing by $1.14 million, and 55 new members were recorded.

Together, the 7,300 members earned $800,000, which was distributed in dividends and services.

Our Schools Today

(The following column is written by Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations of Plymouth Community Schools. Residents with questions they would like explored in this column may contact Mrs. Beier at 453-0200.)

Once upon a time there was a little girl who loved to play with wires. She liked to build things from wires and put them together in different ways. When she started school, she found it very easy and was the brightest in her class, especially in arithmetic.

But when the little girl wanted to help the teacher with the movie projector, she was told, "That's a boy's job."

In junior high school the little girl tried to sign up for shop so she could learn how to build things better. "Girls take cooking and sewing," the principal said.

Her high school had a fine electronics class—for boys only. "Girls don't take advanced mathematics," her counselor told her. "Typing is much more practical, because you can't be an engineer or an electrician. You need a skill that girls can use."

That was once upon a time. Times are changing.

NOW THERE is a law which prohibits the kind of sex discrimination and segregation experienced by the little girl in this tale. It is called Title IX of the Federal Educational Amendments of 1972. It covers educational programs or activities and employment.

Title IX prohibits discrimination in these areas:

1. Providing different services or services in a different manner on the basis of sex.
2. Applying different rules to boys and girls for taking a course.
3. Applying different rules of discipline.
4. Separating classes by sex, except for special cases like sex education, choirs and some physical education classes.
5. Counseling to group students in courses by sex.
6. Exclusion of any student from courses of extra-curricular activities because of marital or parental status.
7. Denying participation in non-contact interscholastic or intramural sports on any basis other than competitive skill.
8. Failing to provide equal opportunities in athletics.

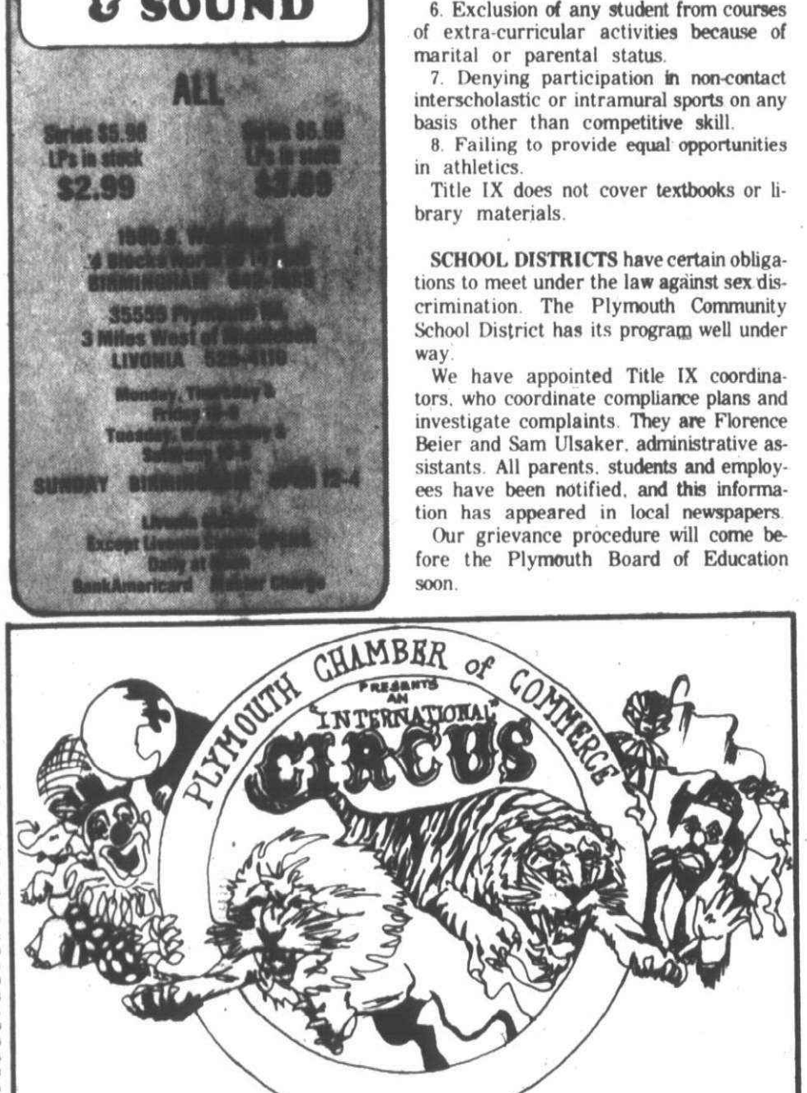

Title IX does not cover textbooks or library materials.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS have certain obligations to meet under the law against sex discrimination. The Plymouth Community School District has its program well under way.

We have appointed Title IX coordinators, who coordinate compliance plans and investigate complaints. They are Florence Beier and Sam Ulsaker, administrative assistants. All parents, students and employees have been notified, and this information has appeared in local newspapers.

Our grievance procedure will come before the Plymouth Board of Education soon.

Townships testify against drain legislation

Complaints were plentiful Monday morning at the Canton Township firehall as residents and officials from a handful of out-county communities, including Plymouth and Canton, testified before the state house of representatives drain committee.

The topic was House Bill 1150, which, if enacted, would enable Wayne County to charge municipalities up to $2,000 a mile for servicing and maintaining drains in the county.

Those speaking before the committee, chaired by Rep. John Maynard (D-St. Clair Shores), were against the proposed legislation, charging that the current rate of $800 per mile was too high in view of the county's current performance.

Residents and township officials charged that out-county areas were being "ripped off," and being charged for work that was never done.

Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein charged that an investigation of the drain commissioner's office was needed because the work the township was being billed for was never done. Greenstein added that the prices the county charged were "outrageous."

CHESTER PIERCE, legal counsel for the drain commissioner's office, was the only person present who testified in favor of the legislation, and even he admitted that the county's work record and billing procedures had been at fault in the past.

Pierce conceded that for every dollar assessed the out-county townships and cities, 78 cents went to administrative overhead, while only 22 cents on the dollar went to actual maintenance of the drains.

Of the 42 employees in the drain commissioner's office, Pierce said, only 16 were laborers—the rest were adminstrative personnel.

Pierce also admitted that taxpayers in the out-county areas who had been specially assessed for drain maintenance were in essence, victims of "double taxation" because they had been charged for costs that should have come from the county's general fund.

"Some of the money that comes from the revolving fund is going to the $192,000 fringe benefit pact that was approved. That money should have come from the general fund," Pierce explained.

Pierce, in calling for passage of the bill, commented, "No one is against meaningful clean-out of the drains, if they're positive the work is being done.

"The problem is making sure the work is done and that of payment. All overhead should come from the general fund and the revolving fund should be used only for actual cost of maintenance.

"We propose an amendment whereby the townships would authenticate all work done. There would be no assessments until certification was received from the townships," Pierce said.

"There were mistakes made in the past, let's not repeat them."

But Pierce did little to sway others who spoke at the hearing.

REP. GARY OWEN (D-Ypsilanti) said the amendment wasn't worded "tightly enough" and he called on other members of the Drain Committee to check with local officials before moving on the bill.

"I'm glad to hear at least, that he admits the townships are being ripped off. People are willing to pay for work if they can see that it is, in fact, being performed."

Elton Gollwitzer, supervisor of Van Buren Township, one of five municipalities along with Canton fighting the drain commission in court, told the committee that instead of charging the township for work allegedly done, his residents were being billed directly by the drain commission. He said some of his constituents had received special assessments as high as $1,000.

"We told them to pay the money into an escrow fund," Gollwitzer said.

The Van Buren supervisor added, "If the drain department gets smaller because it doesn't have enough money we won't notice it. We've never seen them yet.

"They're like a big monopolistic contractor and any work they do is done at exorbitant prices. We've taken to doing our own work now.

"You won't find any private contractor with a 78 per cent overhead—and you wouldn't hire him if you did."

Gollwitzer said Van Buren had been charged $39,000 in the past several years for what he termed "$250 worth of work."

Gollwitzer added that some of the work that had actually been done was work on a drain that hadn't been functional in 20 years becuase it was plugged at one end.

Kurt Boller, supervisor of Brownstown Township said his township had been charged $60,000 in the past few years for work that had never been performed—an amount that he claimed exceeded the maximum of $800 per mile.

"If you can't get anything done for $800 what makes you think you can for $2,000," he said.

George Moore, supervisor of Huron Township, said he had received bills for more than $57,000 for an engineering study on a drain the township never wanted.

The first study cost $368,000 and a second study was commissioned for an additional $38,000 in 1974 "to tell us that we didn't need the drain," Moore explained.

Moore added that he requested Drain Commissioner, Charles Youngblood Jr., send him a map of the proposed drain. He received a notice telling him he had to send a check for $57 for the map.

'Centrals' featured at museum

The schools featured during the second week of Spotlight on School Bicentennials in the Plymouth Historical Museum are Central Elementary and Central Middle.

Bicentennial exhibits from these schools will be in the Plymouth Historical Museum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, April 1, through Saturday, April 3, and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

During the spotlight week, students from Central Elementary and Central Middle will have free admission to the museum when accompanied by a paying adult.

STUDENTS AT BOTH schools have been busy celebrating America's 200th birthday with a variety of heritage projects and activities.

Central Middle students have celebrated America's musical heritage by studying American composers and the origins of American music. They will be featuring American music as part of their performance in the Michigan Week Bicentennial-in-the-Park program and when the band marches in the Memorial Day Parade.

School bands, choruses, and orchestra also will perform American folk, patriotic, popular and contemporary music at a June concert. The recent student performance of the musical "Tom Sawyer" was another part of the school's emphasis on Americana in music and drama.

Art classes have painted wall murals of Betsy Ross, Paul Revere, and the Spirit of '76. In class, students have made wooden and metal plaque replicas of bicentennial signs and coins, sewn American flags, and created mobiles depicting eagles, flags, and liberty bells.

Bicentennial calendars were fashioned in printmaking and calegraphy while in another elective class students made baskets using colonial weaving techniques. In ceramics, traditional craft techniques were used to make wind bells, face, and mustache mugs.

Industrial arts projects utilized rough lumber and materials similar to those which would have been available during the colonial era. Students crafted objects that might have been made during our country's early years—candle holders of wood and tin, wooden mallets, a harness maker's vice, etc.

THE COLONIAL craft of quilting was explored in one elective course, and colonial foods held student interest in another, as students studied eating habits, foods, and preparation processes used in 1776.

In an upcoming elective class, students will make their own surveying instruments and perform measurements similar to those of George Washington.

Some sixth grade classes have used the bicentennial year to focus on U.S. laws and their effect on citizens. Others have emphasized the study of history and geography of individual states.

Eighth grade American history students have worked on projects depicting the colonial, revolutionary and western settlement era: have featured a covered wagon, the Alamo made of sugar cubes, stockade forts, apple-head dolls, and life-size costume dresses.

Posters and mock colonial magazines and newspapers have been used to portray history as current events. Students in one class wrote and presented a play based on quotations of revolutionary leaders.

Central Middle bicentennial activity and study will culminate in the Central Bicentennial Festival in May when staff, students and the PTSO will join for a day of heritage craft displays and presentations, colonial-contemporary food and games.

AT CENTRAL ELEMENTARY the entire school building has taken on a bicentennial atmosphere.

All floors and rooms have been given bicentennial or state names, and bicentennial plaques have been made for all classrooms. School assemblies feature skits and other references to the '76 anniversary, and a slide show with a bicentennial theme is now being produced.

Central Elementary pupils also are going out into the community to learn about heritage. Classes have already visited the antique auto shop, and plans are being made for walking tours of historical buildings and houses in Plymouth.

The school is taking the theme for its museum spotlight display, "Old Fashion School," from one of its most exciting bicentennial year activities. Five classes spent a day at Greenfield Village School reliving the school style of pioneer children. Back in their own building, pupils have continued to talk about learning in early America and have had their pictures taken in costumes reminiscent of centuries past.

Classes have tried many bicentennial projects—spinning, weaving, making horn books, candles, paper, and apple dolls. These projects and pictures of the children in costumes will all be shared with the public in the museum spotlight display.

Concerned Parents seek investigation

Concerned Parents of Plymouth has asked the Michigan Department of Education to investigate legal implications of the modular scheduling system at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

The parents group asked for a number of things to be investigated, but Dr. John W. Porter, state superintendent of public instruction, said the state's inquiry will be limited to mandatory attendance provisions of state law.

The General School Laws require students to attend classes 180 days a year for a total of 900 hours of instruction. A couple years ago the state found that a modular scheduling system used by West Branch Schools was illegal because it didn't meet the mandatory attendance minimum standard.

Porter has assigned two members of his staff to investigate modular scheduling policies and practices at the CEP and report their findings back to him.

John M. Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth Community Schools, said West Branch got in trouble with its modular scheduling because it didn't have teachers cover the periods of independent study.

"We ave a closed campus system and do have coverage by teachers of independent study. That's the gut issue the state will check out, and I feel our district won't have any problems demonstrating that our modular system meets requirements of state law."

Concerns expressed in writing to Porter which he said should be resolved at the local level and not by the state include:

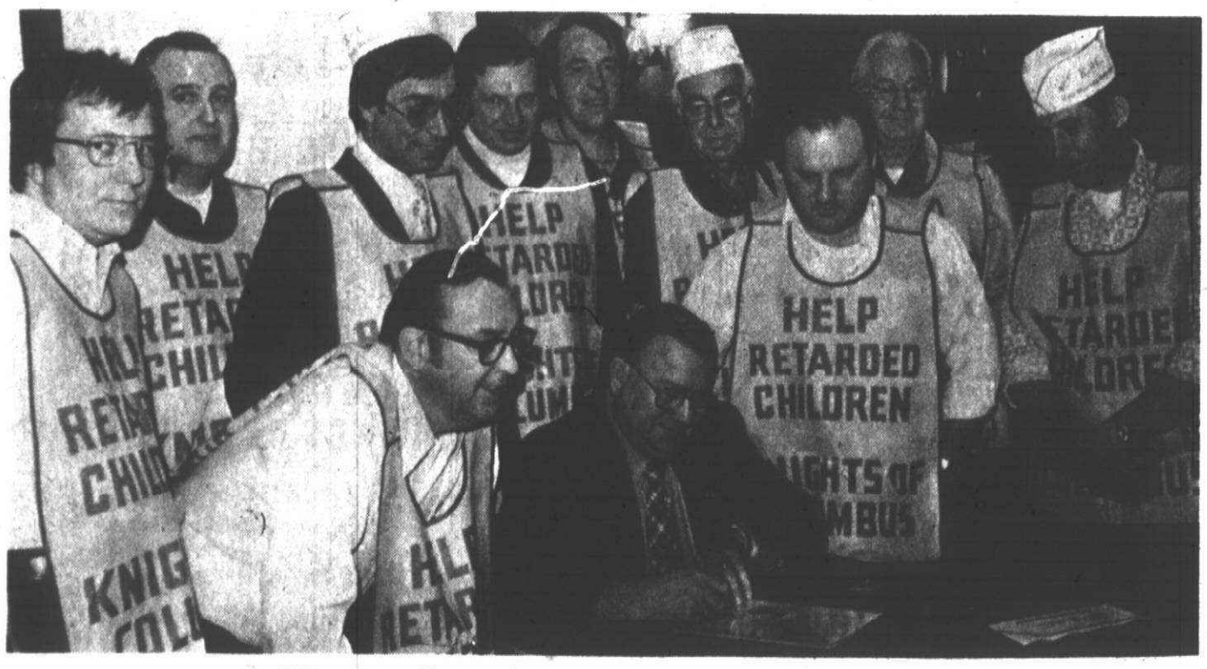

- The Plymouth Schools is conducting an experimental program with school-age children which is contrary to wishes and desires of parents;
- The experiment has resulted in a high drop-out percentage in comparision to other school districts; and,
- The experiment has increased a high cost to the taxpayer.

Department of Education staffers who will investigate whether the CEP scheduling meets mandatory attendance rules are Dr. John Dobbs, assistant superintendent for school and community affairs, and Robert Hornberger, director of department services.

Beware: right turns legal

One second after the clock struck midnight Wednesday night, local motorists were legally able to make a right-turn on a red light after coming to a complete stop.

That ability should mark a major change in the driving habits of motorists in Plymouth-Canton and throughout the state. The confusion during the initial period could have serious results, according to local safety officers.

The new state law was passed to facilitate the movement of traffic. The law provides that motorists, starting April 1, may make a right-hand turn on a red light after coming to a complete stop and checking for traffic and pedestrians. The law also allows a left-hand turn on a red light if the turn is being made onto a one-way street.

AILEEN STROEBEL, co-chairman of the safety committee for Plymouth Community School District, says school officials are concerned about the new law because of the time lag before motorists become adjusted to the change.

"Motorists and parents must remember there will be children crossing streets on foot or on bicycles when the lights change. The driver must look out for pedestrians and bicycles as well as autos.

"The Automobile Club of Michigan office on Ann Arbor Road at Sheldon urges children to make sure they have eye contact with the driver before beginning to cross a street so the child can be assured the motorists knows he is there."

LT. WALTER KOLOMYJEC, head of the traffic bureau for Wayne County Sheriff's, reported Friday that the state hadn't yet sent his department a copy of the new law.

He has attended traffic safety meetings and says he feels there won't be any major problems. "The only trouble I anticipate is the left-hand turn, which won't be a problem with perpendicular turns but will be on a boulevard such as Outer Drive when the motorists is turning into uncoming traffic. The left-hand turn on a one-way street won't be a factor in Plymouth-Canton which has a minimum of one-way streets.

"It will take some getting used to for motorists, but it has worked well in Canada and states in the U.S. which allow right-turns on red lights."

The state highway department has promised to post all intersections in Wayne County where right-turns on red won't be allowed. The signs are supposed to be up as of Wednesday, March 31, Lt. Kolomyjec adds.

The sheriff's department will be conducting traffic surveys after April 1 to determine which additional intersections should be posted for no turns on a red light, he added.

TIM FORD, Plymouth police chief, stresses that one thing motorists must do is to use common sense.

"The new law is very permissive in that the burden of decision to make the turn rests solely on the driver who makes the turn at his own risk.

"The driver who pulls in front of uncoming traffic or a pedestrian will be in trouble because making the right turn on red is a personal choice with the liability entirely on the driver.

"Be sure you have absolute clearance before making that right turn," Ford advises. "This change doesn't take away the responsibility to come to a complete stop, to look in both directions, to make sure there are no obstacles to proceeding.

"And the new law doesn't give the guy behind you the right to toot his horn just because you have the right to turn. To turn right on red is a personal choice—you don't have to make that turn."

Chief Ford added that he doesn't expect any serious problems. "I served as a police officer in Dearborn in the past. That city has allowed right-turns on red since the 1930s and hasn't had much of an accident experience there."

In the City of Plymouth, there initially will be three intersections where right-turns on red will be banned: all four corners of Ann Arbor Trail and Main, and Penninman and Main, and the city's side of Main and Mill.

The city has asked Wayne County Road Commission to post the Plymouth Township side of Main-Mill to ban right turns on red.

supposed to act on it at 8:15. I think this is out of order."

Schwall who along with Trustee Bob Myers cast the only dissenting votes, moved to table the millage question, but his motion died for lack of support.

Flodin, who discovered the special assessment millage, answered Schwall. "There is an urgent need for fire protection and this is merely an alternative for the board to discuss.

"I could recommend this act. I have studied it and have sufficient faith that a responsible board will assess only those monies needed."

Trustee Jim Poole, however, argued that the millage could be intrepreted by the voters as "a license to steal."

But Parsell replied, "We wanted to have figures to put before the voters, but we don't yet. No one had figures in the past and that's part of the reason the millage was rejected before."

Canton football coaches quit

meeting between Plymouth Canton basketball coach Casey Cavell and Muneio with some parents and fans about the charges there were being made against the Canton coaching staff in football and basketball.

"I was at that meeting and, in my opinion, the charges made by parents and fans were answered very satisfactorily by Coach Muneio," Cavell said.

Gray, who has supposedly been in the forefront of those critical of the way the football program is run, admits he has never confronted Muneio face-to-face with his criticisms.

Gray believes the coaches' status should be handled at the principal and superintendent level of the administration.

It appears from statements made that if decisions rest solely in the hands of Plymouth Canton Principal Kent Buikema and Supt. John M. Hoben, Muneio will have strong support.

"I'm not very happy with the situation," stated Buikema. "Enough furor has been created around Muneio that for him to continue would be very difficult—the kids wouldn't work for him. I sat down with the man at the end of this season and made an evaluation, and it was a positive evaluation."

Muneio has said that the superintendent "has assured me that he will back me 100 per cent on my stand." Gray challenges the validity of that assertion.

Hoben, according to a source close to the school board, has been ordered by the board to refuse any resignations from any coach in the school district pending pending further discussions with trustees and the coach involved.

SOME OBSERVERS speculate the coaching staff resignations are a joint effort to make public the circumstances of the past two years and have themselves rehired.

Concept is the key word

sure on the planning commission.

"The planning commission is charged with coming up with the best decision for the entire township. No political pressure should be brought to bear," the trustee argued.

"We should worry about the voters. I would think that members of the planning commission would be insulted by this ballot because we are usurping their power."

Poole said there may be a legal problem with the sequence of events if the planning commission does not approve or reject the current plan before the votes are cast May 18.

"LET THE PLANNING commission come up with a recommendation and then let's put it on the ballot— make sure they recommend first."

Greenstein agreed, but added that the vote was for the board, and should "in no way influence the planning commission."

Poole asked Miller if the advisory ballot would affect his decision, and the head of the planning commission responded, that if no decision was reached prior to the ballot it would influence the planning commission.

Miller said, "It's unfortunate the planning commission couldn't have made more headway in reviewing the context of the public hearing, but now if we vote first and the advisory ballot is against our decision we're in trouble. And if we wait until after the ballot, people will accuse us of delaying the issue.

"I do believe, however, that the planning commission should do what it thinks is in the best interest of the township as a whole and not look at individuals or who owns what."

He added, "It's up to the board to see who's hurt and how to make the plan right with people injured by the plan.

"But some of my friends on the planning commission don't agree with this."

GREENSTEIN SAID that Miller was right and that the planning commission should go ahead and vote on the plan as soon as possible, thinking of the entire township.

Relive 'good old days'

Free-spirited persons with a bit of romanticism in their souls, and who wonder what life was really like in "the good old days," have a chance to find out April 7. The occasion: spring celebration at Dinosaur Hill in Rochester. Milk a cow, spread some mulch or split a few logs. For information about field trips that day, call Rochester's Woodward Elementary School, 651-7030. For information about field trips after that day, call Ginger Ketelson, 651-1368.

Patrol appeal lost

The Michigan Court of Appeals has upheld a Wayne Circuit Court ruling that Wayne County is not obligated to provide Sheriff's road patrol service to townships.

The seven townships which had challenged the circuit ruling are now deciding whether to carry the issue to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Coaches resign

Political pressure from a group of parents unhappy with the football program at Plymouth Canton High has prompted the head football coach to resign. The announced resignation followed by one week a meeting of athletic boosters chaired by a member of the Plymouth Board of Education. The school has had the same football coach during its four-year existence.

Commission Telegraphs a surprise

Franklin and Bingham Farms homeowners were surprised Tuesday when the Oakland County Road Commission instructed its managing director, John Grubba, to work with the state to widen Telegraph to eight lanes.

The homeowners thought they had been successful in limiting the expansion to six lanes, but county residents from other areas, including Southfield, pressured the commission to reconsider eight lanes.

Bargain hunters' glory

Some persons call the Garden City Salvation Army store on Middle Belt the "Saks Fifth Avenue of second-hand shops." Six days a week, eager bargain hunters from throughout western Wayne County flock to the store looking for good buys. Few go away disappointed. In the words of one shopper "It's a show piece. No junk here."

City counter-lobby looms

Southfield Mayor Donald Fracassi contends a high-pressure ad hoc group, working for a federal revenue sharing formula based on poverty income levels, out-lobbied municipal officials at the recent National League of Cities' Conference in Washington, D.C.

Fracassi thinks that, as a result, federal revenue sharing funds could be jeopardized for all local communities.

Millage vote

Livonia School District voters will go to the polls Monday, April 5, to vote on two property tax proposals. The school board is hoping voters will approve a 17.3-mill renewal and a 3.5-mill increase to maintain existing programs and services.

OU no Harvard

Oakland University, once touted by its founders at another Harvard, is considering a move which would take it a big step away from Ivy League schools.

In a move which created controversy and protest, the university announced it would phase out its classics department by 1977 because of a lack of student interest.

Local jail jammed

Jails are a nice place to visit, but nobody wants to live there. With the Wayne County jail overcrowded, the Redford Township jail is also overcrowded. The residents would reportedly rather be in the county slammer.

Sunday open house

The Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center, which includes students from West Bloomfield, Walled Lake, Farmington and Clarenceville school districts, will hold an open house 1-4 p.m. Sunday at 1000 Beck, Wixom.

Administered by Walled Lake Schools, the center is designed to provide students with marketable skills whether they go to work after high school or on to college.

Teachers protest class cut

The president of the Redford Union Education Association objects to the RU School Board's plans to reduce the number of classes to save money.

Eco-gift

An environmentally minded Oakland Township couple recently donated ½-acre in Goodison to the township for use as a wilderness area. Grateful township officials plan to spruce up the area by planting flowering trees.

Schools boost bills

School superintendents from Garden City, Livonia and Redford Union have thrown their support behind State Sen. Gilbert Bursley (R-Ann Arbor) and State Rep. Bill Keith (D-Garden City). The pair are sponsoring legislation which would allow school districts with declining student enrollment to use the average enrollment of the past five years for receiving state aid.

Bursley will introduce his proposal next week in the Senate, with Keith submitting an identical bill in the House.

Sister-city sessions

The city councils of Farmington and Farmington Hills got together recently to discuss the possiblity of a special services director for bi-city commissions. The move would cut bureautcratic costs, the councils contend. Presently, the sister cities have combined recreation, library and social service commissions.

Canton advisory ballot

Canton residents will have a say in the future land-use planning of the township May 18 when they go to the polls. An advisory question will be put before the voters on whether they approve of full or half urbanization of the township.

Fiery chase

It took three police departments—Livonia, Westland and Redford—to catch a speeding 15-year-old Livonia youth. The driver and his four passengers escaped serious injuries when police officers fired at the fleeing car, setting it afire. The final score: one wrecked 1976 Cougar and four damaged (one totaled) police cars.

Cutler sketched the Ford Museum

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

(Part II)

During his tenure with Henry Ford at Greenfield Village, Edward J. Cutler of Plymouth supervised the dismantling, moving and reconstruction of nearly 100 buildings.

He made drawings of every step in the dismantling; all parts were numbered to make sure they got back in the right place. Even the plaster in an old building was saved, ground, mixed again and reapplied to the walls of the restored structure.

ONE OF CUTLER'S last jobs involved dismantling a country doctor's office which had remained shut for 70 years after its owner died. Located in Tekonsha, south of Marshall, Mich., the building also contained Dr. Howard's "laboratory." In it the doctor mixed the herbal remedies he learned from his Indian friends—including extract of skunk cabbage and wahoo juice.

"Although Mr. Cutler died in 1961 before the Tekonsha reconstruction was complete," reported the Detroit News on Oct. 6, 1963, "it is a tribute to his precise blueprints and notes that the building stands in its new home on the sleepy village green exactly as it did back in Tekonsha."

The two buildings from Plymouth that were moved to Greenfield Village were once owned by local merchants. "The Plymouth House," built in 1845, stood on North Mill Street, three houses south of the old First Baptist Church. It was owned by Christian Fischer, who made shoes in his home. From 1869 to 1871, it was a saloon. In 1929, Ed Cutler convinced Henry Ford that this survivor from the Greek architectural revival period should be in the village. Once there it became Cutler's office because it was the only building in the village with a good heating system.

The other building, "Plymouth Carding Mill," operated by John Gunsolly, was located near the Middle Rouge River just east of the Plymouth Road overpass, built in the 1850s, it once drew wool growers from a large part of southeastern Michigan. Ford, himself, had been to the mill several times with his father to have loads of wool carded. It had been abandoned many years before Ford acquired it in 1929. Both of the Plymouth buildings are now near the "Edison Illuminating Company" in the village.

AFTER CONSTRUCTION of the 200-acre village was started, Ford realized that he would also need a museum building.

He decided to pattern it after Independence Hall in Philadelphia and sent Cutler there to sketch and photograph the structure. From the sketches he made, Cutler did the general layout and drawings of the facade of what became the Henry Ford Museum.

Then Ford called in Albert Kahn, the internationally-known architect to complete the job. Among his well-known creations was the Fisher Building in Detroit. While the museum was in progress, Kahn tried to hire Cutler, but he decided to stay with Ford.

Cutler told an interviewer that Ford was a dynamic man who was always in a hurry. "You never told Mr. Ford you couldn't do something," said Cutler. "He would come into our office some morning with a brand new idea and say, 'Get me something on paper about that. I'll be back at two.' Maybe the thing couldn't be done, but we would have to show him it couldn't be done and not just say so. He couldn't stand being told something was impossible."

Edward J. Cutler, who had no title in the company except "old Henry's architect," was among those present with Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Orville Wright, Will Rogers and Harvey Firestone, on Oct. 21, 1929, when Pres. Herbert Hoover dedicated Greenfield Village, the Henry Ford Museum, and the schools Ford established in Dearborn to carry out his "learning-by-doing" ideas in education.

CUTLER'S RETIREMENT in 1947 shortly after Henry Ford died was to last only eight years.

In 1955 he was called back to help with the history of Greenfield Village, but the "short stay" became permanent and he was named consulting architect. In February 1960, a year before he died, Cutler told a reporter: "My main trouble now is I have too many projects going. I'm almost busier now than I was when Mr. Ford was around."

Cutler was an active member of the local Presbyterian Church. He had a hand in the design of the church building erected in 1937 to replace the one destroyed by fire. His avocation was painting and he left renditions of several of the community's old buildings, some of which are no longer in existence.

Cutler, who died in 1961 at age 78, was buried in Riverside Cemetery. He was survived by: wife Winifred Hyde (a descendant of William Bradford, the Governor of Plymouth Colony); two daughters, Mrs. Frank W. Moreno and Mrs. James Hamilton; and three sons, E. Malcomb, Alfred W. and J. Rusling.

One of Cutler's sons, J. Rusling Cutler, has practiced law here since 1933. He was municipal judge from 1941 to 1949; assistant city attorney, 1951-52; and a member of the Plymouth City Commission, 1955-57, and again in 1959-61. He and Mrs. Cutler (Elizabeth Strong, daughter of the late Sidney Strong, Plymouth's second city manager) live in a 107-year-old house on Main Street.

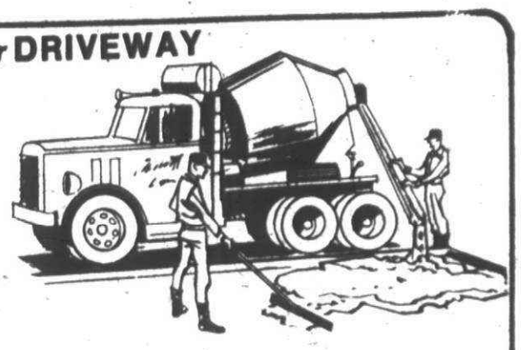

Anderson is news director

Bruce Anderson of Plymouth has been appointed news director of WWJ radio.

Concurrent with Anderson's appointment, the news departments of WWJ radio and WWJ-TV, Channel 4, will become separate operations. The radio station recently became an affiliate of the CBS Radio Network while Channel 4 maintains its affiliation with NBC Television Network.

Anderson has been with WWJ in 1971 when he joined the two stations as a television street reporter and radio newscaster and he was named radio news supervisor in 1973.

April fool is fun around the world

Witch Watch
by GUNDELLA

The first of April, some do say,
Is set apart for All Fool's Day;
But why the people call it so,
Nor I, nor they themselves do know.
But on this day are people sent
On purpose of pure merriment.

—Poor Robin's Almanack, 1760

The vernal equinox, which occurs around March 21, has been observed by all kinds of people since the beginning of time.

Until the event of the Gregorian calendar, adopted in the sixteenth century, March 21 was also the beginning of the new year. In those days, the new year was celebrated for an entire week, and on the last, or eighth, day of celebrating, it was customary to visit the homes of one's friends and neighbors to exchange greetings and gifts.

IN 1582, when Pope Gregory introduced the new calendar, March 21 was no longer the beginning of the new year, and April 1st was no longer the important day it had been in the combined celebration of the New Year and the vernal equinox.

In those days news traveled very slowly and, for many years, people continued to celebrate April 1 by exchanging greetings and gifts. These people, who clung to the old calendar, either out of ignorance or stubbornness, became known as April fools. The first day of April gradually developed into a day of fooling and being fooled. It is believed that the custom originated in France and spread to England and beyond.

In India March 31 is called "Holi," and it is customary for Hindus of every class to play jokes on each other by sending people on fruitless errands. One would naturally suppose that "Holi" and April Fool's Day are of the same origin.

IN CERTAIN parts of England, the time for playing April Fool's jokes is limited to the morning hours. If anyone should forget this rule and play a joke after noon, the fooler becomes the fool. Hence, in Hampshire they say, "April Fool's time is past and you're the biggest fool at last."

In France a person fooled on April 1st is called an April fish, "un poisson d'avril," perhaps because he "bites" on a joke and is caught.

In Scotland the April fool is called an April-gowk. (A gowk is a cuckoo). One old Scottish folk rhyme goes this way:

On the first day of Aprile,
Hunt the gowk another mile.

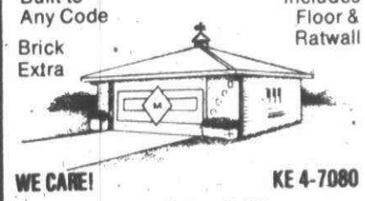

When a Scot sends a victim on a foolish errand to find some sweet vinegar, a stick with one end or a left-handed monkey wrench, they say he is "hunting the gowk."

In England, one who falls victim to such pranks is called an April Noodie, a gawby, a gabby, or an April Fool.

TODAY, ZOO KEEPERS across the country will receive countless calls for Mr. Fox and Ms. Wolfe; switchboard operators who say the "line is busy" will be asked by the prankster to connect him with the "lioness"; and hundreds of schoolteachers will receive notes which, when opened, read "April Fool" printed in a childish hand.

Oh, by the way, dear reader, did you know that your shoe lace was untied? "April Fool."

SPRING IS... work, fun and fattening

Mike Dohany (left) and Steve Kellar, both of Plymouth, prefer to strum in the park than fiddle on the roof.

Staff photos by Maurie Walker
and Gary Caskey

The thaw of spring means a bustling work schedule for farmers to get the ground broken to meet a rigid schedule for planting.

Claude Simkiss is discing his land in Plymouth Township.

The ducks and other animals also greet the arrival of spring by strolling outside at the Rotary Farm on Joy Road just west of Plymouth Salem High.

Walking the rim of the pool in Kellogg Park is a popular pasttime for local youngsters, for spring, summer and fall. Testing their balance are the grandsons of Mrs. Margaret Phelps, Bobby (left) and Jeff.

With warm weather upon us, youngsters can begin riding bicycles to school again. At the bike rack in front of Smith Elementary are: (from left) Kevin McCaan, Mike Groff, and Delane Cantrell.

Township OKs CETA worker for state police

By ALFREDA KOWALCZYK

The Plymouth Township Board has approved the hiring of an additional CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) employe for the Michigan State Police Post on Mill Street and made two other decisions affecting the 1976-77 year.

After tabling the CETA issue at two previous meetings, the trustees granted the request of Post Commander Lt. William E. Tomczyk for an additional employe. The post already has one CETA employee "borrowed" to state police from the township with its federal job funds under the program.

Board members were mainly concerned with how the additonal employe, who would be used as a dispatcher and for general clerical work, could benefit the township.

After talking with Tomczyk, Supervisor J. D. McLaren told the board: "Tomczyk couldn't give any figures as to the number of manhours or additional cars on patrol, but said it would be a marked improvement." McLaren added that the employe now working at the post as a CETA worker is on a full eight-hour shift with no time off.

THE BOARD ALSO adopted a resolution establishing township meeting dates for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Board meetings will be held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month with the exception of June, July, August, and December, when one meeting will be held on the third Tuesday of the month. All meetings will begin at 8 p.m. in township hall at Lilly and Ann Arbor roads.

The board also approved the names submitted by McLaren for township accountant, attorney, engineer and planning consultant for fiscal '76-77.

The appointments are: Post, Smythe, Lutz & Ziel, accountant; Donald C. Morgan of Kerr, Wattles and Russell, attorney; Norman L. Dietrich and Associates, engineer and planning consultant. Dietrich's firm, planning consultant in the past, assumes the additional duties as township engineer—a task handled last year by the firm of Brender and Hamill.

Student Senate asks to bargain

By JANAN GHANNAM

New collective bargaining developments are sweeping the country and Jeff Stabenau, Schoolcraft Student Senate president, is bringing one of those developments closer to home.

Schoolcraft students should be recognized as a legitimate third party to collective bargaining at the school, Stabenau told the board at its March 24 meeting. He added that a board-appointed ad hoc committee to respond to student concerns would be unacceptable to the senate.

Stabenau relayed students' appeals saying that "It's a frustrating feeling being the largest group on campus, and the only one not able to hold union cards."

"Without students, there would be no teachers and without teachers, there would be no college. A student's prerogative in decision making must be voiced—through formal recognition of student bargaining units."

According to Stabenau, few colleges across the country have involved students in the bargaining process, but universities in Oregon and Montana have proved the plan successful.

AMONG THE issues Schoolcraft students feel are legitimate in contract negotiations are:

- Criteria and methods used in evaluating the quality of teaching.
- Student participation in hiring faculty.
- Student participation in academic planning and curriculum review processes.
- Class size.
- Diversity and frequency of course offerings.
- Grading policies.
- Academic calendar.
- Office hours and availability of faculty members for student consultation.
- Policies concerning student-faculty grievances.

"It seems appropriate that the student senate should designate three representatives to meet and confer with the college bargaining unit and the Faculty Forum before collective bargaining," said Stabenau.

BOARD MEMBERS agree that the "third party pressure on a two-party process" should be considered, and establishing an ad hoc committee would be a gain at this point.

Board President Paul Kadish said trustees will listen and respond to students' recommendations through an ad hoc committee.

"This is a decision that neither the faculty or trustees can make for each other," said Kadish. "I agree a great deal of master contract results are imposed on students, and that an ad hoc committee will be a gain—not a slight."

Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote, who recently attended a conference in Ann Arbor on "Third-Party Pressures on a Two Party Process," agreed with Stabenau's request for ground rules.

"Neither party has said what their opinions are," said Grote. "They should be asked to get this off the ground."

TRUSTEE NANCIE Blatt suggested the ad hoc committee be established representing all students—not just residents.

Saying that "some of our best students come from outside the district," Trustee Mark McQuesten favored Stabenau's proposal. "I don't want to see the administration representing the students," said McQuesten.

Telling Stabenau to run for the board if he wants a say in its actions, Trustee Leroy Bennett questioned the legality of granting a third party's voice in contract negotiations, saying that "sometimes people that do the most talking don't do much thinking."

ALVIN TOFFLER

Industrial society is outdated — Toffler

By CAROLINE PRICE

If you are terrified of what tomorrow may bring, you may be suffering from what Alvin Toffler calls future shock.

Toffler, whose book, "Future Shock," attempts to alert society to the impending crises ahead, spoke recently to a full house at Schoolcraft College. His lecture, sponsored by the City of Livonia and Schoolcraft College bicentennial committees, was an update to the problems and solutions he mentioned in his book.

"We are passing through a revolutionary period," Toffler said. "Changes in our values, our families and our deepest assumptions about life itself are all contributing to what I call the super-industrial revolution."

ACCORDING TO Toffler, many factors are contributing to this super-industrial revolution. One is that two hidden subsidies of industrialized society, cheap fossil fuel and raw materials, are no longer readily available. These materials have been provided by the non-industrialized third world countries in the past, but, as Toffler says, "The rest of the world won't continue to provide us with all the goodies we're used to."

Another reason is that industrial society is past its prime. "The U.S. reached a period of industrial maturity in the late 1950s and early 1960s," Toffler says. "That decade saw the first time service employees and white collar workers outnumbered the blue collar workers, the advent of the jet, the birth control pill, television, and it was the last decade of a normal presidency."

Toffler cites examples of recent presidents, who have been shot, abandoned by their political parties or forced to resign as evidence of a breakdown in political structure. "It is a symptom of a general breakdown of parliamentary democracy," he says.

TOFFLER SAYS there are two central features of the super-industrial revolution. "We are facing not just a change of direction but a change of pace," he says.

"The rate at which information is exchanged produces political situations where events move so rapidly we can scarcely remember yesterday's crises long enough to learn from them.

"This acceleration forces us to forget yesterday and face new bizarre problems." Toffler mentions the unprecedented number of "first-time events" that are happening today, such as the bankruptcy of New York City and the existence of an unelected president and vice-president. "Society is asked to make decisions about things it knows nothing about."

ANOTHER FEATURE of the super-industrial revolution is the growing diversity of society. During the United States' chronic labor shortage, much of the available labor was going west, which resulted in a flood of immigrants of different ethnic backgrounds. As standardization is one of the prerequisites in industrial societies, these immigrants had to become less diversified.

Toffler says the real melting pot was mass public education. "Schools had two different curriculums," Toffler says. "One visible and one secret.

"The secret curriculum taught punctuality, obedience and willingness to perform a life of repetitious work," Toffler says. "It machined generations of lively, diverse little human beings into uniform workers."

Then this uniformity was challenged by the rise of ethnic groups. "They discovered differences and learned to tolerate and even celebrate these differences. This process is inherently anti-industrial." Toffler mentions the recent rise of French Canadians who object violently to giving up their culture and even consider seceding from Canada.

"We are becoming a multi-culture, which is healthy in times of change, but it also creates a wider diversity of demands on politics," Toffler says.

"No wonder the system is blowing fuses."

TOFFLER SAYS there are two alternatives in adjusting to these changes. Some people advocate going back to where we were. But Toffler feels we must begin redesigning political structures. He calls his solution anticipatory democracy. "We had better start anticipating the future rather than letting it happen to us."

According to Toffler, "No political party in America is addressing itself to the future. They are relics of the past." But the problem does not lie just with the parties.

"All institutions must ask long-range questions. They should encourage ordinary citizens to feed in their ideas. Americans are starved for positive images of the future and are paralyzed into dangerous political passivity which could erupt overnight into violence."

TOFFLER ALSO feels we should ask ourselves some pretty heavy questions. What will the family structure look like? What kind of work force will we have? How can we alter the distribution of population in the U.S.? How do we prevent discrimination? And, most important of all, how do we do all these things while maintaining peace and altering our relationship with the rest of the world?

He also feels we have to get used to planning. "Up until now, government planning was dominated by experts, and was short-range, economics-oriented, centralized and elitist. It won't work in a diverse society. We should use our imagination to invent new systems of planning.

"But the real problem for us is not democracy or planning or restoring an industrial society," Toffler says.

"Our problem is how to advance to a new stage."

ARE YOU RESOURCEFUL?

"No mattes how difficult the problem, we already have the resources to solve it."

In this free Christian Science lecture, given by Roy J. Linnig, C.S.B. of Chicago, Illinois, you will hear him discuss our most valuable resource...a recognition of God's power.

Rules are needed to shorten board meetings

It's spring. Gone are the hard, cold days of winter. The grass is turning green, and buds are beginning to sprout. Days are growing longer.

Unfortunately, so are meetings of the Canton Township board.

Spring fever in even-numbered years hits particularly hard on township board members and seems to arouse deep within them a growing need to express every thought and explain every vote.

Everything from the seemingly insignificant to the more obviously substantive must, apparently, be entered into that magical ledger—the record—these days, and November is still eight months—that's at least (count them) 16 meetings away.

Meetings start on Tuesdays. They end on Wednesdays with only the slumbering, the the press, the diehards and the foolish still in attendance to evidence the placing of these momentous words on the ever-mounting stack of tape cassettes.

While it is obvious that there is a goodly amount of politicking going on because this is an election year, there is a second reason behind the marathon sessions.

CANTON'S BOARD has no discernible procedures or rules to guide its members, and we must agree with Trustee Brian Schwall that a codified set of guidelines for meetings is in order.

We'd all like to know what the name of the ballgame is.

Schwall suggested certain procedures be followed by the board and that otherwise the board be guided by Robert's Rules of Order.

But members of the administration claim this is a sly attempt by Schwall to handcuff the board and prevent it from taking action when action is needed.

All that handcuffs the board from taking action these days is the verbosity of its members.

The board would be far better off codifying a set of rules and then telling everyone what they are.

They need not be Schwall's rules or anyone else's. They can be liberal enough so that if immediate action is needed on a serious problem, they can be suspended or bent to meet the need.

Rules should not be a blockade slowing down the working of government. They should be guidelines to organize and expedite the job of government.

ONE WOULD LIKE to think that these seven men are reasonable enough to agree to a set of rules and abide by them so that the public, the press, and anyone else who is unfortunate enough to be present at the circus these days may follow the fancy footwork and broken-field running of the board members.

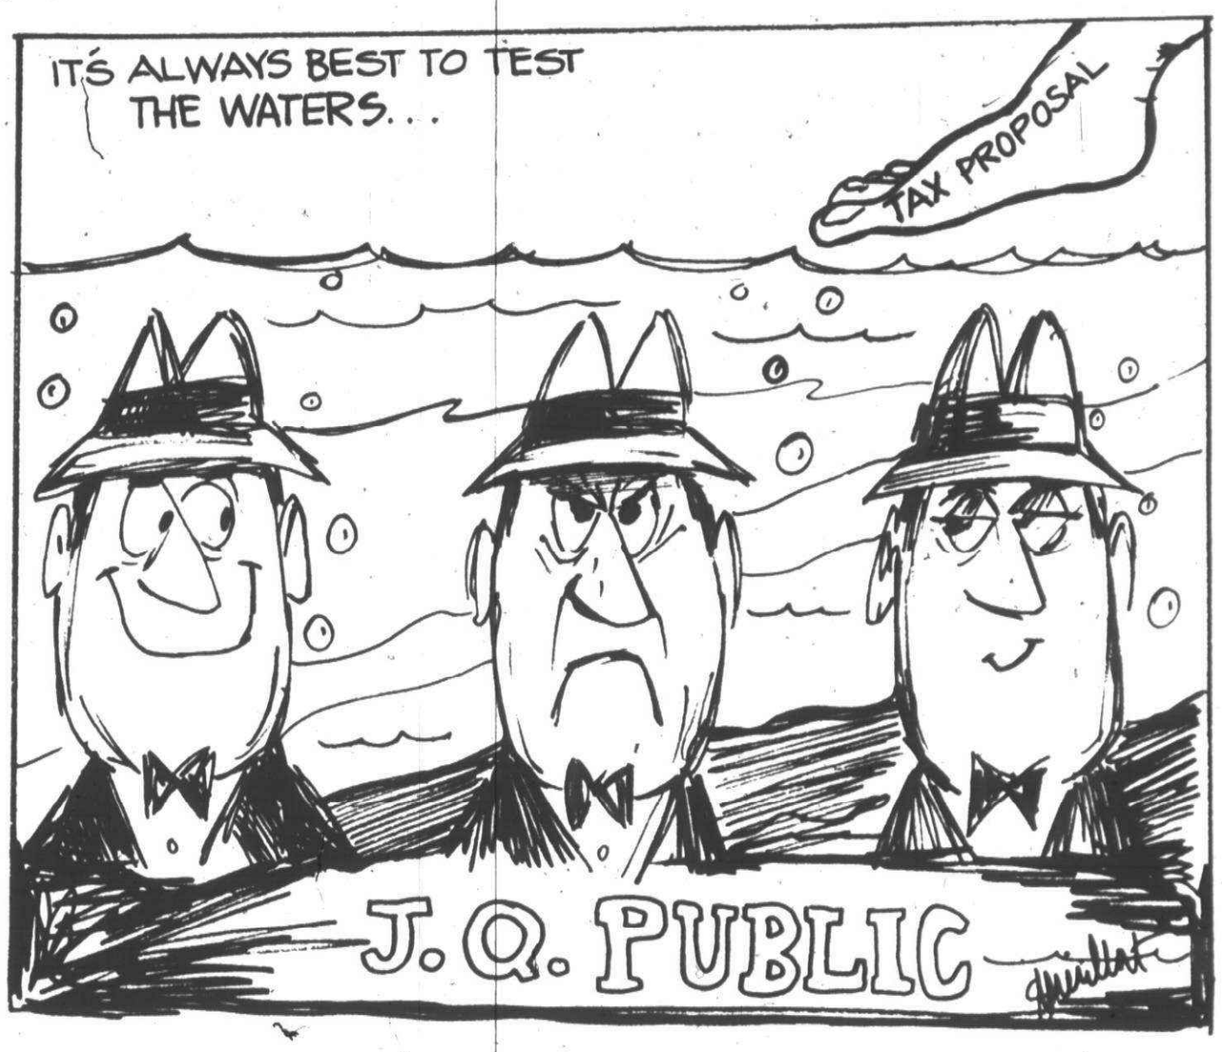

Of Schwall's proposed procedures, there is one we unequivocally endorse:

All new business should be brought up at the start of the meeting and placed on the agenda, so that the public and the press won't be forced to sit through hours of often meaningless talk in fear that something will be sprung at the tail end.

In all honesty, it shouldn't take a board an hour and a half to approve the minutes of the two previous meetings.

Who knows? With a little self-control and a touch of perserverance, we all might get home in time to watch Johnny Carson, whose monologues are at least enjoyable.

RICHARD GOLD

As MEA gets silly

Local school bargainers make sense

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

News stories on the same subject have a way of popping at the same, as often as not pointing to two contradictory conclusions. Last week was no exception.

The subject was education for our kids.

In the first story, after a seven month delay, the Livonia Education Association last Tuesday ratified a two year contract with the school board. Final agreement prevented a strike set for this Friday, and almost certainly saved a 17.3-mill school tax renewal scheduled for next Monday. Agreement came after an all-night bargaining session at which wage increases and class size compromises were worked out and a hassle over a board demand to change insurance carriers was referred to binding arbitration.

In the second story, the Michigan Education Association, the union which represents 84 per cent of the state's public school teachers, called last Tuesday for passage of a bill which would empower the state to increase or decrease personal income taxes in mid year to guarantee funding of local school districts.

The MEA spokesman who made the proposal at a press conference said the funding guarantee would apply only to the education portion of the state budget; he took "no position" on whether a similar guarantee should cover other state services.

THE MIND reels at the differing points of view expressed by the protagonists in these two stories.

In the Livonia settlement, both the Livonia Education Association and the school board recognized that the consequences of a teacher strike (loss of the millage renewal followed by wholesale layoffs and half day school for the kids) would be much worse for both sides than getting their way in the negotiations. So a sensible compromise was reached.

Both George Garver and the leadership of the LEA stressed privately that their main concern was to spare the community the terribly divisive atmosphere that an earlier strike in Garden City has produced.

Their joint efforts to reach settlement deserve praise for leadership and emulation in other school contract negotiations that will be taking place in other suburban districts this fall.

THE MEA proposal, however, is an entirely different kettle of fish.

In effect, the MEA is urging that decisions on the level of school taxes be taken out of the hands of local taxpayers and placed in the legislature. The MEA says that it is trying by its proposal to avoid the very real chaos that is created in local school systems when the state slashes its contributions to local districts in the middle of the year.

This is no doubt true, but the MEA is also trying to guarantee that no teachers will ever be laid off when times are tough and school districts have to cut costs. This is just plain selfish, and the legislators I have talked to about it say it doesn't have a snowball's chance in hell of passage.

WHAT IS interesting about the divergent attitudes of responsibility and selfishness which lie behind these two news stories is the difference between local involvement and state control.

The real reason the Livonia teachers and school board got together is that they both are embedded in the local community. As a result, they both have a lively appreciation of the kind of citizen reaction that a selfish strike would bring. It was their knowledge of local citizen attitudes which brought them together at the end.

The MEA, on the other hand, by its very nature must represent an interest group, the teachers. As its office is located in Lansing and as the group that can do more to advance the interests of its members than any other is the state legislature, the MEA is interested in attitudes of legislators. It is essentially unconcerned with the attitudes of the individual citizens. Hence it can hold a (poorly attended) press conference to announce a plan that may be perfectly reasonable to legislators but sounds to the individual homeowner like thinly disguised, arrogant selfishness.

THE PROBLEM that is traditionally raised about contract negotiations between public employees (teachers, policemen, bus drivers, etc.) and governmental authorities (school boards, cities, etc.) is that the individual members of the public are only very indirectly represented at the bargaining table.

In the Livonia case, even though the public was only indirectly present during bargaining, knowledge of attitudes of local people was the key factor leading to settlement. In the rarefied atmosphere of Lansing, on the other hand, where individual citizen attitudes do not count for much, the MEA had no hesitation about going ahead with a fairly silly proposal.

What all this means to me is that even though we may not have a good solution to the problems of bargaining with public employees, it is clear that such bargaining is most successful on the local level.

Don't understand inflation? Well, it's an election year

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

A youngster went up to a wise old man and asked him to explain a few things about economics.

The old man, obviously pleased at being sought out, asked what the child didn't understand.

Well, the young chap didn't understand inflation.

The sage smiled and explained that this occurs when there is more money available than products, so that under the law of supply and demand, prices on the products rise.

And the boy then asked what causes inflation.

THE OLD MAN said that efficiency in business could cause it, because if business produces a product for less but charges the same price for it, the business would have more money available. However, this situation never lasts too long, because soon workers demand higher pay.

Loose credit can produce inflation because it puts more money into buyers' hands.

But the biggest causes of inflation are higher wages and government spending.

Higher wages because workers can buy more, and if the number of products doesn't keep up, it will mean more demand with no increase in supply, and therefore higher prices.

THE BIGGEST CAUSE, though, is deficit spending by governments. That is, spending more money than can be collected through taxes and other assessments. To get more money, the governments must borrow or sell bonds.

Their federal promissory note, so to speak, can then be used by banks as a base to increase the number of loans outstanding, so that government, by borrowing, is increasing the money supply without increasing productivity.

The little boy looked up at the wise old man with a frown on his face. "If what you say is true, why is it wrong for automobile companies to increase their prices, but it is not wrong for the auto workers to receive a large wage increase?"

THE OLD MAN just smiled.

"And if deficit spending by the federal government is the biggest cause of inflation, why doesn't Congress cut the budget and solve part of the problem without great pronouncements coming from politicians every time business sneezes?"

The old man answered very slowly, "Son, you asked me about economics, not politics. The answer to your question is that this is an election year."

Townships' free ride ends; county loses patrol burden

Tim Richard

There are some happy exceptions to the 1970s addiction to government by lawsuit. One occurred last week when the State Court of Appeals upheld Wayne County Circuit Judge Thomas Foley's ruling in the sheriff's department road patrol case.

Judge Foley denied the request of seven rural and suburban townships for a writ of mandamus that would have forced the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to continue funding the road patrol.

It seems that when anyone doesn't like a decision of a legislative body, the tendency is to start a lawsuit and get the courts to do by a grandiose order what someone failed to persuade the legislative body to do with facts and logic.

WHILE THE SEVEN townships are unhappy, the other 37 cities, townships and villages with 94 per cent of the population and 95 per cent of the property valuation should rejoice.

No longer will the entire county have to pay for what in effect is a local police service for seven townships—Brownstown, Canton, Huron, Northville, Plymouth, Sumpter and Van Buren.

Bucking the trend of the lawsuit mentality, Judge Foley wisely ruled that the county board's decision not to fund the road patrol was its legislative business, and he wasn't about to tell them how to do their job.

Folks already paying for their local police departments, and dislike the crass injustice of paying for a sheriff's road patrol in seven townships, must applaud that approach.

THE REACTION of the townships was one of shock, amazement, anger and general frustration.

They don't see themselves as getting anything from county government for the seven mills of property taxes they pay. That's nothing new. Most city dwellers don't see it either because county government is oriented toward legal services—courts, registering deeds, recording births and deaths and marriages. Metro Airport they don't think of as a county service. The roads? Well, everyone's county roads are in bad shape.

So the townships are sore—possibly too sore to listen to reason.

REASON SUGGESTS they drop their lawsuit—not appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Their case was poor from the beginning. Judge Foley's decision was emphatic. The appeals court's decision was not only unanimous, but it followed Foley's decision closely. Any good lawyer will tell you that when an appeals court follows the local court's decision so closely, it means the local court did a first rate, bang-up crackerjack job. The odds of winning supreme court reversal are slim.

The townships could continue to throw good money after bad—that is, to spend money on legal appeals in order to vent their raging spleens.

Or the townships could get busy and figure out how to pay for police services. It may mean finding some tax money to hire the sheriff's road patrol on a contract. Northville and Plymouth townships could consider ending this madness of fragmented government and consolidating with the cities that bear the same names. Canton knows it's going to have to incorporate as a city eventually and having its own police department.

That, as I said, would be the reasonable approach. And the Age of Aquarius likes to file and appeal lawsuits, unlike the Age of Reason.

Detroit aide protests Bennett's legislation

By TIM RICHARD

Instead of "assaulting" Detroit by trying to take over control of its water department, suburbanites should appreciate the "generosity and good will" of the city for selling pure, clean water at low rates.

That was the message of Charles Scales Jr., director of Detroit's water and sewer department, as he testified against three bills by State Rep. John Bennett (D-Redford) to curb Detroit's power over the water it sells to 95 suburban communities.

The hearing was conducted Monday by the house city government committee. Only Scales and two suburban mayors testified during the two-hour hearing.

"NO OWNER would willing contract away his ownership," said Scales, opposing Bennett's House Bill 5465, aimed at cutting Mayor Coleman Young's total power over the water board.

"The City of Detroit owns this (water) system and alone is responsible for its debt," Scales said, adding that Detroiters "would have thought twice before selling water to the suburbs" if they had had any idea there would be a suburban attempt to take control.

At present, the water board consists of seven appointees of the mayor; three are suburbanites. Bennett's bill would continue to let Young appoint four Detroit members but would provide for four suburban members appointed by suburban officials and a ninth member picked by the other eight.

CLAWSON MAYOR Charles E. Palmer said the present system allows suburban members to be removed "at the whim of one individual," a reference to Young's 1975 removal of Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara from the water board.

Palmer said suburbanites should be allowed to pick their water board members through the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Allen Park Mayor Frank J. Lada charged Detroit had shown a lack of good faith in its dealings and supported the proposed weakening of Young's grip on the water board.

But Rep. Dennis Hertel (D-Detroit), the lone Detroiter on the nine-member house committee, hammered away at Scales' theme that Detroit alone pledged its full faith and credit behind water department bonds.

WOULD THE SUBURBS want to take over underwriting water department bonds? Hertel asked Lada.

"I'd be a fool if I said yes," replied the Allen Park mayor, one of the leading critics of water department operations.

Scales, supported by Hertel, said that while suburbanites had constantly demanded audit and other information about how Detroit set its water rates, the suburbs had failed to provide Detroit information about the retail prices they charged their own residents.

In reply, Lada said "I'd welcome" letting the proposed new nine-member water board set rates that suburban cities and townships could charge their customers.

SCALES HAD these replies to Bennett's other bills affecting the water department:

•HB 5463's requirment of an independent audit: Detroit by charter has an auditor; it uses state accepted accounting procedures; the state auditor general (who would appoint the external auditor under Bennett's bill) has power over state agencies only; and the city undergoes an external audit every five years as it is.

•HB 5463's requirement of public hearings: The water board recently instituted the practice of holding a public hearing over proposed rate increases, and the bill is unnecessary. The time requirements imposed in the bill are so great that the water board would be robbed of flexibility in adjusting to changing economic conditions, such as rising fuel prices.

•HB 5464's requirement that water be sold at cost. Detroit gets an eight per cent "return on investment" that is plowed back into capital improvements, and suburban customers are, in effect, already getting water at cost.

On one point, Scales got an argument from a committee member. Rep. Jeffrey Padden (D-Wyandotte) said the constitution and laws give the state auditor general authority to conduct or order an audit of any subdivision of the state—a definition that traditionally has included cities.

THE HEARING was attended by Chairman Michael Griffin (D-Jackson), Reps. Hertel, Padden, Ruth McNamee (R-Birmingham), Thomas Holcomb (D-Lansing) and DeForrest Strang (R-Sturgis).

Missing were Reps. John Markes (D-Livonia), W.V. Brotherton (R-Farmington) and Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti) as well as Rep. Bennett, who is not a member of the committee. Bennett said he would attend the April 5 Livonia hearing.

Suburban water hearings set

The city government committee of the state house of representatives will hold two suburban hearings on bills of Rep. John Bennett to curb the powers of the Detroit water and sewer department:

Monday, April 5, at 10 a.m. in the senior citizens building, Farmington Road at Five Mile, Livonia.

Monday, April 12, at 10 a.m. in the Oakland County Board of Commissioners auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. (No hearing will be held in Troy, as announced earlier.)

Rep. Michael Griffin (D-Jackson) is chairman.

Persons wishing to testify should fill out a card available from a committee clerk the morning of the hearing. Legislative committees conducting public hearings commonly give public officials first opportunity to speak but otherwise follow a "first come, first heard" policy.

Charles Scales Jr., director of the Detroit department, testified at the March 29 hearing and told the Observer & Eccentric he would not attend the suburban hearings, even to rebut opposing points of view.

BANKAMERICARD

Dolores Wild is shown in the larger picture as she was photographed by Observer & Eccentric photographer Bob Woodring after she had shed 79 pounds. The small photo shows Mrs. Wild as she looked before joining TOPS.

79-pound loser is TOPS queen

Seventy-nine pounds less than her former self, Dolores Wild of Plymouth has fulfilled the goal she set for herself—"Strive to Arrive in '75."

She gives the credit to the area chapter of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly). The chapter has just crowned her its 1975 Queen, which means she lost the most weight of any member in that calendar year.

Several other major losers were honored at the candlelight ceremony in the Plymouth Grange.

They include Linda Davis, who lost 51¹₁ pounds, Eleanor Pearson, 30³/₄; Fran Ardanawski and Kay Potter, 27 each; Betty Kaufman and Pat Tibble, 25¹/₂ each, Carol Holmes, 19, and Betty Marsh, 18³/₄.

The chapter also honored Nola Smith as the TOPS member who had most actively participated in chapter activities and contributed the most to its ongoing program.

A similar award went to Beverly Johnstone from the sister organization KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly).

All the honorees are Plymouth residents except Mrs. Holmes, who lives in Westland.

Barbara Goudeseune and Judy Herndon were installed as co-leaders by Nancy Austin, outgoing leader. Working with them for the coming year will be Mrs. Holmes as secretary, Melinda Thornton of Livonia as treasurer and Marilyn Marr of Plymouth as weight recorder.

QUEEN DOLORES WILD credited the TOPS program with helping her accomplish a weight loss she had been trying to acheive for many years.

She said after moving to Plymouth three years ago she got onto the TOPS waiting list, feeling she needed to reduce for both appearance and health reasons.

"One look at my reflection was more than enough reason," she explained, "and I have a hiatal hernia that had been painful due mainly to my overweight condition.

"As with most dieters, I had tried all kinds of diets. Several years ago, I tried one of the other diet clubs. It didn't work for me, because I can't eat fish and my hernia couldn't tolerate the large amount of food required."

Mrs. Wild said that for her the TOPS club system of reducing by calorie-counting and by encouragement from fellow-members was the key to success.

"It is best to think of your daily calorie quota as you would your financial budget," she stated. "Subtract, as you eat, from your daily calorie quota as you would your financial budget.

"When you have used all the calories, STOP! No charging."

THE OTHER big reason for her success, Mrs. Wild believes, is regular attendance at meetings and the encouragement of other members.

"Throughout my membership in TOPS, I have received many letters, cards and phone calls of encouragement," she said. "I also have received gifts. I have sent an average of six letters a week myself."

And when she was nearly to her goal and the going was more difficult, she said, "the last pound was lost for the 80 girls in the Plymouth chapter—I knew I couldn't let them down."

THIS LOSER has a lot of reasons to be happy besides feeling better and looking better and winning the plaudits of her friends in TOPS.

There is the pride of her husband, Alvin, and daughters Janet and Laurie, the physician's report that her blood pressure is down to a much safer level and the fun of "picking out clothes from the other end of the rack." Her dress size, formerly 22¹/₂, now is 19.

"And this year my husband and I have taken up canoeing and cross-country skiing," she added. "I never had the breath for it before."

Mrs. Wilding will represent the local chapter in the TOPS state convention at Muskegon later this month. "I don't expect to win the state queen title," she said, "because it's almost always someone who has lost more than 100 pounds."

But she does expect to find some encouragement for keeping her weight down and learning to help others more. That, she figures, is what TOPS and KOPS are all about.

Survival to be taught

A six-week course on backpacking, camping, and wilderness survival will be offered in the Plymouth area from April 12 through May 17.

The class is a cooperative effort between the Plymouth Pathfinders Club and the school of outdoor leadership, adventure, and recreation of the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service.

Classes will be from 7-10 p.m. on consecutive Mondays from April 12 through May 17 with weekend field trips May 21-23. The course costs $25 per family. Persons interested should register by April 9 by calling Dottie Macintre at 453-9054; she also has information about location.

The course will include information on hiking techniques, equipment selection, backpacking techniques, foods and nutrition, first aid, survival techniques, trip planning, lightweight camping skills, and use of topographic maps and compass.

Recreation should be shared more

Editor:

In providing wholesome leisure-time opportunities and participation for community recreation, and in securing the greatest benefits derived from the public tax dollars, it is recognized by professional recreation authorities in the field that neighborhood playgrounds are basic and a fundamental facility in conducting a successful community recreational program. It is also desirable that the playgrounds be a functional part of all elementary schools and not considered as "unessential or incidental," for they are an important function for child use and community.

First, Supt. Hoben of the Plymouth school district should have thought of this when he became superintendent of the 54 square miles, for each of the communities involved at the present is either in the growing-pains development; have out-lived itself with no expansion; has nothing to offer adequately in the proper sharing of facilities for recreational purposes.

It's a known factor that the City of Plymouth has a cultural center building with an indoor ice skating rink; small activities rooms for meetings along with a small multi-purpose room which could not fit all the surrounding areas at one time.

EVERY TOM-Dick-Harry cannot use the ice arena for skating purposes at the same time as persons cannot use the school facilities during the day, and it is a known factor that school boards are hard-core and skeptical of groups using their facilities. A good example is the adult education program which has "stipulations" in the grants from the state or federal governments.

Canton, with its belly dance classes; dog training classes; its guitar lessons, surely cannot be classified as wholesome community participation involving the inter-governmental areas, for Canton is in dire need of proper facilities and space (acreage) to carry on a broad spectrum of recreational activities.

There is not an established community park in the 54 square miles of the school district where the residents have no joy of a picnic area, use of swimming pool; use of athletic fields for active participation in softball, tennis, volleyball, baseball; shuffle board; nature trails; and many other facets that comprise the overall participation of whole-recreation leisure time activities—called—RECREATION.

THE TWO HIGH schools along with two elementary schools in Canton do not have proper playground facilities to speak of for the community to participate in or the youngsters attending for that matter.

The proper sharing of facilities should be each of the school areas, involving parents of children in that school with the recreation department of that district assisting in establishing proper playground facilities in exchange for using the schools indoor-outdoor facilities for evening adult participation and swimming pools for summer use in teaching of water-safety and general swimming use.

The proper sharing of facilities would have to be a broad and strong joint venture on the part of the communities involved along with the school board and recreation department.

Since the City of Plymouth has no room for expansion, and since the school district has 54 square miles of school control—Plymouth Township and part of Canton Township—the only feasible and tangible use of the schools' facilities is have the recreation department of the areas install proper playground facilities and equipment.

The maintenance of the athletic fields would be borne by the recreation department. Damage to the school buildings while in use for any recreational activities would be handled by the recreation department.

CUSTODIAL care would be taken care of by the recreation department for that particular activity indulged in by the person in charge of that activity if seasonal. If a yearly sustained program of 3 or 4 days per week is carried on, a recreation custodian would be employed on an hourly basis leaving the school custodians free to finish their tasks without interference.

In the construction of new schools, the recreation department would be consulted as to the facilities being installed for community recreation use and child use.

Proper facilities and space—acreage—is the heart, soul and backbone of a successful, well-rounded community recreation program.

Recreation is a basic and human need as well as a significant factor in the health and welfare of any given community. Establishing a broad spectrum of wholesome activities for the community to enjoy in their leisure participation is called "recreation."

But do we know the malady?

Editor:

Emory Daniels', Henry Hogan's and Phil Power's editorials appearing March 18 presented interesting contrasts.

Emory the Evangelist recognizes the symptom "mistrust," and Henry analytically determined the cause, "secrecy," of the malady now affecting the general public to the point of seriously disrupting all legitimate political and institutional activities.

The instinct for self-preservation compels many to accept Phil's observation, that the remedy is not to destroy the (CIA) system entirely; however, I doubt it is either necessary or advisable in most instances "to talk to foreigners to get a clear sense of perspective about ourselves."

Only Emory mentioned a remedy (though it seemed more of a palliative to placate a symptom), but, curiously, no one identified the disease.

It is called "don't give a damn-itis," and frequently euphemistically referred to amongst the elite as "economic and political" consideration-itis.

It is my point that our citizenry, which is so sorely afflicted with this disease, is continually subjected to abuse by our leaders for having it, when we all know they have the same problem and probably infected us in the first place.

It strikes me as a bit naive to believe, as Emory, that mistrust and lack of communication between our leaders can be remedied by more meetings at the Mayflower Roundtable or with the Square Table people of Cloverdale. Indeed, it is likely to make matters worse. It would seem, as Henry implies, that an informed public will most likely elect those persons best able to communicate amongst themselves and the voters.

Do you wonder whether those of the ranks of the elite are prepared to disregard economic and political considerations prior to embarking on a crusade for good? Take the Plymouth community, for example. Do we really want the general public to be involved in the recent governmental decisions to spend substantial sums of money for plans for downtown parking structures, which in turn will require the expenditure of huge additional sums of money?

Though lack of information prevents my determination as to the advisability of the scheme, must it not be suspect by those concerned with the public's interest, since no one can reasonably expect to benefit from it over the next 10 years or so, except downtown real estate and business interests? Why was there no mention in the local press of the fact that recently there have been various private-public meetings at the hotel and elsewhere for the purpose of proceeding with such parking plans, contrary to the spirit and intent of MCLA 15.251.

In any event, what questions are we expected to ask of the politicians which we have asked and answered ourselves?

Land plan needs total revision

Dear Editor:

The recent statements attributed to Mr. Greenstein that the proposed master plan, if approved, may only be implemented for 5-10 years tends to further widen his credibility gap on this subject. It is time for him and the planning commission to withdraw the presently proposed master plan rather than to continue the charade that is being played with the citizens of Canton Township and the other parties who have an interest in Canton's development.

It is obvious that this plan has not produced any broad support; that parts of it are patently illegal and unfair, and that it does not meet the short range needs of the community for more control over growth in our eastern sections and that it does not offer a viable long range plan for the development of our western half.

Once this plan is withdrawn, it should be incumbant upon the commission to set out to develop a new proposal that will bring together as many of the goals and aspirations of the people as is possible.

These can be learned by the commission through a series of open public meetings. Such meetings should be limited by a published agenda to one or two specific geographic areas of the township and the issue and problem facing those areas.

The planning commission has a responsibility to write a master plan that will satisfy the needs of the whole community without sacrificing the rights of those residents who have lived here the longest.

Y offers free swim lessons for 250 kids

By MARGARET MILLER

If things go according to schedule at the Livonia Family Y, there should be 250 new swimmers among children in this area by the end of Easter vacation.

That's 250 fewer potential water tragedies that might occur this summer because a child doesn't know how to swim.

Preventing even one of those tragedies will make the projected Family Y program worthwhile, figures coordinator Shirley Ritter.

Mrs. Ritter said the Y, located on Stark north of Schoolcraft, will offer free swimming lessons for four days during Easter vacation, April 19-22, to the first 250 children in this area who sign up. Registration begins Thursday.

"We've decided to make all pooltime available those days," said Mrs. Ritter, assistant physicial director at the local Y, "to teach as many children as possible the basics of swimming so that they can take care of themselves in the water."

SHIRLEY RITTER

The free lessons are only for non-swimmers, she went on. They will be given in eight sessions, for four days, so each youngster gets four lessons.

Children from six months to five years may participate with a parent, with his mother or father getting in the water with him. Older children will be taught in classes.

THE LEARN-TO-SWIM program, Mrs. Ritter said, is part of a national YMCA ongoing drive.

"Basically, the idea is that everyone should learn respect for the water," she said. "It's interesting how many children seem to think they'll swim naturally, and then there are others afraid to try.

"We want children to be able to handle themselves in the water and to learn some basic water safety procedures, and we want to do the training now, before we get any closer to the time when home pools will be open."

The Monday-through-Thursday lessons will be about 45 minutes each for the school-aged youngsters, Mrs. Ritter said.

For the pre-schoolers, the lessons will be half an hour in length.

"In those sessions," she went on, "we'll actually be instructing the parents, showing them how to teach their children to swim."

There also will be some basic survival instruction for the parents so they will know what to do in case of a water accident and how to give mouth-to-mouth recusitation, Mrs. Ritter said.

"In dealing with your own child, you often don't think as clearly as you might," she explained, "and some basic, easily-remembered rules can help."

THIS INSTRUCTOR said the water safety part of the program would be emphasized because "it's kind of a bag of mine."

"I'm especially aware of this need," she said, "because in the neighborhood where I live there was an avoidable tragedy a few years ago.

"A child drowned in a neighborhood pool while his mother was sitting on a porch visiting with a friend. We have a great many home pools in this area, besides the swim club pools and the school ones, and they all are a danger to children who do not know water safety rules. They are supposed to be fenced, but children can get over a fence in short order."

ONE OF THE rules she emphasises, Mrs. Ritter said, is that "children should not have the liberty to just jump into a pool or run into a lake."

"They should learn to wait for direction, from parent or leader," she said. "They also should learn that if the parent or leader is not immediately at hand, they should sit down and wait."

There also will be some instruction in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation for the children, Mrs. Ritter said, and some work with use of life jackets—how to put them on and how they feel in the water.

THE VACATION WEEK instruction is the first major one scheduled by the Family Y for several years, said Mrs. Ritter, who has taught water classes there since it was built seven years ago.

She began by directing swim lessons for pre-schoolers and now is in charge of the institution's aquatic program.

On a national level, she is in charge of training of YMCA swim instructors in the metropolitan area and is a member of an ad hoc committee on pre-school swimming.

Mothers of Twins host state meet

Topics ranging from twin research to alcoholism, handwriting analysis and Abraham Lincoln will be on the agenda when the 12th annual convention of State Mothers of Twins Club is held in the Plymouth Hilton Inn April 30, May 1 and 2.

Dr. John J. Austin will speak on twin research at the Saturday luncheon and "Twins Together or Apart in School" will be one of the convention workshops. Child abuse, a subject presented by Parents Anonymous, will be a feature of Sunday's luncheon.

Dr. Welden Petz will open the convention Saturday with a talk on "Our Pilgrimage with Abraham Lincoln."

WORKSHOP features include "Fashionable Dearborn" by Tara Gnau of the Dearborn Historical Museum who will present slides of fashions from the first Indian residents to the present.

Stretch and Sew will be presented by Sue Mayville, a certified Stretch and Sew teacher and a member of the Mothers of Twins Club. Common Cause, a group formed to promote political reform, will send a representative to explain its activities.

Handwriting analysis will be introduced by club members Jan Nicholson, Marlene Treglowne, Liz Mills and Gail Liedel. The Al-Anon organization will offer "Alcoholism and How It Affects the Family."

The Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will discuss the detection of learning disabilities.

In Hair Re-Do, Chuck and Marlene of The Hair Studio will give tips on hair care.

In addition a professional group of belly dancers will entertain convention arrivals on Friday evening, and Gurldella, the Garden City witch and Observer & Eccentric columnist, will speak at Saturday's banquet.

THERE ALSO will be a boutique with an assortment of articles for sale by member clubs. Husbands are welcome and will have a special program of golf, bowling and softball.

Hostessing the event is the Western Wayne County Mothers of Twins Club whose convention chairpersons are Mrs. Carol Theiss of Westland and Liz Mills of Livonia.

Assisting them are Mrs. Pat Augustine of Inkster, treasurer; Mrs. Carol Ouellette of Dearborn, decorations; Mrs. Celia Walczak of Livonia, publicity; Mrs. Sandy Jedlowski of Dearborn Heights, convention books, and Mrs. Marlene Treglowne of Dearborn Heights, advertising.

Mrs. Sue Mayville of Livonia is in charge of door prizes, Mrs. Joyce Carmichael of Northville, hospitality; Mrs. Jan Nicholson of Livonia, sunshine kits; Mrs. Hattie Maguire of Westland, sunshine bags; and Mrs. Kathy Simpson of Detroit, name tags.

Also helping are Mrs. Bernie Mistor of Dearborn, boutique; Mrs. Judy Oldenburg of Westland, meal tickets; Mrs. Lynn Lyon of Plymouth, entertainment; and Mrs. Ellen Seppala of Detroit and Mrs. Evelyn Griwicki of Garden City, workshops and speakers.

Photographer is Mrs. JoAnn Porter of Westland, secretary is Mrs. Harriet Bartnick of Farmington and in charge of registration is Mrs. Donna Hamilton of Detroit.

The convention is open to all mothers of a multiple birth—twins, triplets or quadruplets. Registration fee for mothers who are members of the state club is $4. For others interested in attending, the fee is $6, covering all workshops and kits. Luncheon and banquet meals are extra.

For further information regarding the convention or the club, contact Mrs. Liz Mills, 35970 Perth, Livonia.

They add color, too

Accessories: spring's basic ingredient

By CHRISTINE WALDEN

Something about swinging into spring puts a dent in the budget and a question in the mind.

By the time warm weather finally arrives, the onslaught of the latest, greatest fashion looks have turned spring shopping sprees into decision-making dilemmas—you not only have to determine what look suits you but how you're going to achieve it.

According to Linda Hack and Barbara McIntosh, commentators at Somerset Mall's Glamorous Encounter series, accessories are once again spring's necessary ingredient, updating last season's wardrobe while extending the use of basic items you may buy.

They also add touches of color in an otherwise muted season.

Since most spring shades are subtle or pastel, accessories are the hinge on which color schemes swing. Scarves, jewelry, shoes and purses create a wide range of color configurations and create totally new looks from an old item.

Of course, before you begin playing with colors, you have to decide what to enhance.

This spring there's something for everyone, harem pants are as chic as a well-tailored pantsuit; tunic dresses are as good looking as a pencil-shaped skirts. It all depends on how you want to look and Ms. Hack advised "Pick a look that is right for you and adapted other looks so they fit your lifestyle."

Added Ms. McIntosh, "Just remember that whatever you do, it doesn't matter if it's right or wrong because no one else knows either."

Basics in hand, consider the alternatives you can achieve by tying on a belt or slipping into sandals.

Too, accessories themselves can be used in more than one manner.

For example, a scarf needn't stay only on the head. Treat it as jewelry by twisting it tightly and wrapping in around the neck. Use the same scarf as a bandeau under a jumpsuit or with jacket and pants.

"Just pick up lots of accesssories to brighten the season," suggested Ms. McIntosh.

However, pick them up with a theme in mind. A hodge-podge of scarves and shoes is only going to complicate your life. Instead, build an accesory wardrobe pairing shoes and purses, scarves and T-shirts...not to the point of boring (white shoes are not musts with white dresses), but to achieve totally pulled-together looks.

Ms. Hack and Ms. McIntosh also suggested using accessories to achieve one of the many ethnic moods that influence spring. Bright colored beads reflect south-of-the-border influences; heavy rope belts are easy ways to convey Indian moods.

Once you've sorted out what you want to wear, consider the following:

•SCARVES—They never go out of style, but this spring they are cotton, and therefore make them more affordable and easier to work with. Buy a bunch or make your own, tying square ones around hips as fanny wrappers, or wrapping long ones around necks, waist, head or anywhere else.

•HATS—Make that hat—you only need one—straw with a medium sized brimmed. It goes anywhere and dresses up or down. Try it over a scarf-wrapped head for a casual look,.

•SHOES—Espadrilles are once again the best footwear for spring taking on a new look in laced up and open toed versions. It is the natural look of the shoe that makes the statement.

There is more to footwear though, including flats, and the mocassin toed pump, usually in a natural color or with combinations of rope and leather. A bit of hardward on the toe won't hurt.

•T-SHIRTS—They may be your best investment because they go anywhere with everything. Dress them up or down with jewelry, pair them with skirts or trousers; slip them under jackets and jumpsuits. They're easy to wear and add lots of color.

•JEWELRY—It's simple and natural. Wooden bracelets or one big metal band at the wrist looks terrific. Necklaces vary from a large pendant on single chain to braided silk chokers stacked in an open neckline (drapery cords work here). Combine jewelry pieces to create different looks.

•PURSES—The shape and material depends on the function. Big pouchy bags are great with workaday jumpsuits or pant ensembles. Slimmer envelope clutches are musts for the sleek look of blazers and vests. Pick either up in natural shades.

•RIBBONS—Yes, they do have a place in spring '76. Instead of investing money in harem pants that may go out of style in a year, take a pieces of pretty ribbon and catch up the bottom of wide-legged pants. Tie the bow in front and you're up-to-date for a quarter.

Whatever you do in the way of accessories, make sure the proportions work. And always check yourself out in the mirror before others check you out in public.

Childbirth group schedules classes

Lamaze childbirth classes will be held in various area locations during April, May and June under the sponsorship of the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association.

The series of seven classes are taught by nurses. Instruction is in neuromuscular control and effective breathing techniques which help the mother to be awake, aware and participating in the birth of her child.

Husbands are urged to attend all classes. Couples should register as early in pregnancy as possible to receive important information regarding nutrition and physical fitness.

Classes meeting on Monday will be held at three locations: Wickes Furniture Store, 29633 Seven Mile, Livonia, from April 2 to May 24; Living Lord Lutheran Church, 4700 Ten Mile, Novi, from April 26 to June 14; and Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, 6245 Inkster, Garden City, April 26 to June 14.

A Tuesday class will be held April 6 to May 18 in Newburg United Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia. A Thursday class will be given April 15 to May 27 in Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 39020 Five Mile, Livonia and from April 29 to June 10 in First Presbyterian Church, 701 Church, Plymouth.

A Saturday class will be April 10 to May 22 at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

For registration and further information contact Mrs. Elizabeth Bingham, 6605 Wildwood, Westland, or write Box 311, Plymouth 48170.

AAUW plans art auction

The Livonia branch of the American Association of University Women will hold its annual art auction at 7 p.m. Friday, April 2, in Madonna College, Levan and Schoolcraft.

The sale of original signed lithographs, etchings, oil paintings and sculpture from Grossman's Gallery Art Center will help boost the AAUW educational foundations program.

The program provides fellowships and grants for women seeking higher education.

Artists, whose work will be featured in the sale, include Norman Rockwell, Leroy Nieman, Edna Hibel, Sandra Liberman, Barbara Mercier, Salvador Dali and Peter Max. Prices will begin at $10.

Tickets for the champagne preview and exhibit are $2 and may be purchased at the door.

Volunteers aid Channel 56

Area men and women volunteers are fanning through the area asking businessmen to contributes all kinds of merchandise that can be auctioned off at the Chennel 56 auction April 2-10.

Co-chairmen for northwest Wayne County are Guyla Doumanian of Livonia and Elizabeth Toyeas of Westland.

Livonia volunteers for this project are William Eubank, Dick Doumanian, Mary Jane Hensien, Jean Bleasdale, Pat Smith and Mariana Transou.

Others are Gail Swartzlander, Christine Simigian, Mary Brotz, Nancy Freeman, Kathy Van Buren, Mary L'Esperance and Pat Popkey.

Plymouth volunteers are Sindy Monks and Sue Craven, and Sue Brunette is a Garden City volunteer. Representing Westland are Diana Brooks, Delphine Marshall and Nancy McDonald.

YWCA offers classes to men and women

Classes in yoga, weight control, self defense, Ukranian egg decorating and herb, flower, vegetable and plant gardening are on the agenda at the Wednesday Holiday program sponsored by the Western Wayne County YWCA. The classes will run from April 7 to June 2 in Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard at W. Chicago, Livonia.

Offered to both men and women, the classes will also feature ethnic and speciality cooking, flower arranging, terrarium and plant dish construction and grooming.

Participants may take two or more interest groups. Every other week they can enjoy lunch and an afternoon workshop on such topics as transactional analysis and "What People Do to Find Happiness" by Leslie Zalewski.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation will be presented by representatives of the Michigan Heart Association, and Swedish massage will be taught by Ann Jordan, licensed myomassologist. There will also be a trip to the Detroit Institute of Art.

The program runs each Wednesday from 9:15 a.m. to noon. On workshop days, it will run until 2:30 p.m. Cost is $22, with nursery care provided for $14.

To register, contact the Y at 26279 Michigan, Inkster or Rosedal Gardens Prebyterian Church.

Ukrainian egg decorating set

Ukrainian egg decorating will be taught from 9:30-11:30 a.m. on April 8 and 15 in the YWCA of Western Wayne County, 26279 Michigan, between Beech Daly and John Daly, Inkster.

To register call the Y.

How much water?

Watering requirements for a vegetable garden, says the American Association of Nurserymen, are the equivalent of one inch of rainfall each week. In case there is no rain, the garden should receive a good soaking once a week.

Red Cross books updated

Concerned over the mounting toll in deaths and injuries from accidents, Red Cross Safety Programs wants to teach at least one member of every family first aid.

Additional steps taken by Red Cross to reduce the number of accidental deaths and injuries include the updating of first aid and water safety instruction and the adoption of the cardiopulmonary resusciation technique for basic life support.

Two new Red Cross first aid textbooks, containing the updated instruction, cover a wide range of information not dealt with in previous Red Cross texts. Both books deal with water accidents, drowning, water and ice rescue; and problems created by drugs and their abuse.

The advanced first aid textbook contains new chapters on emergency childbirth, exposure to radiation and extrication of accident victims from automobile wrecks, cave-ins and other unusual situations. Also soon to be available through Red Cross will be the cardiopulmonary resusciation course or basic life support course.

Persons can enroll in free first aid courses by contacting the Red Cross, Box 351, Detroit.

Parents may join Candlelighters

Parent of children with cancer are invited to attend a public meeting at the Michigan Cancer Foundation on Wednesday, April 7, from 7-8 p.m. to further discuss establishing a local chapter of Candlelighters.

The national Candlelighters organization was formed five years ago to provide parents with an opportunity to share common problems in coping with cancer in a child. All metropolitan Detroit area parents who have a child with cancer, or who have lost a child to cancer, are welcome to participate.

The meeting will be held in the foundations headquarters in the Meyer L. Prentis Cancer Center, 110 E. Warren, Detroit (one block south of the Detroit Institute of Arts). Free parking is available in the MCF lot at the corner of Hancock and John R.

For further information, contact Vivian Dames of the MCF patient care service at 833-0710, ext. 301.

Madonna plans workshop

A small business workshop, jointly sponsored by Madonna College, the Small Business Administration, and the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), will be held at Madonna College of Livonia on Saturday, April 10.

The day-long workshop, designed to aid new businessmen or those contemplating starting a business, will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration of $10 includes lunch and materials.

Subject matter to be discussed by the members of SCORE, many of whom were top executives of leading corporations, are personal characteristics a small businessman should have, how to obtain loans, help available from the SBA, budgeting and operations, recordkeeping, taxes and insurance.

Registration must be completed by April 3 by contacting the business administration department of Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, by mail or phone.

Church Nursery to enroll students

Applications for the 1976-77 school year are now being accepted for Christian Community Pre-school, 41355 Six Mile, west of Haggerty, Northville.

Classes are Monday through Friday for three- and four-year-olds. Enrollment will be limited to 20 per class. Interested parents may contact the Christian Community Church for information.

Honored on 65th

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Smith of Northville had their 65th wedding anniversary reception in the Livonia Christian Church on March 22 because they have special ties to that congregation.

Members of Central Woodward Christian Church in Detroit, they were active in helping establish the Livonia church and Mr. Smith served as an elder in its early days. Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wood, are active members of the Livonia church.

The Smiths have two other daughters and a son as well as 12 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren. More than 80 guests attended the reception.

Religious expression Davis topic

Judge Dunbar Davis of the 35th District Court will talk to teachers about religious expression in school in a special seminar betinning at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 6, in Frost Junior High School, Livonia.

The judge's topic will be "Legal Freedoms and Limitations of Religious Expression in Public Schools."

Donald (Hoppy) Hanson, ROTC instructor at Livonia Bentley High School and one of the committee of teachers sponsoring the seminar, said the speaker will define legal limitations of religious expression in the classroom.

"He also will answer questions as to whether the banning of all religious expression is a violation of individual freedom," Hanson said.

Others on the sponsoring committee are Wayne Paul, Marge Kniivila, Tom Good and Frank Morris.

The session will begin with coffee and announcements, and Judge Davis will speak at 4 p.m. The discussion should end by 5 p.m.

All interested in the subject matter are invited to attend, Hanson said. Frost Junior High is located on Stark north of Schoolcraft.

Witnesses meet

Members of Jehovah's Witnesses in this area will join in a two-day assembly, April 3-4, in the Assembly Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 10709 Grand River, Detroit.

Kenneth Huckaby, overseer of the Michigan circuit No. 5, will address the congregation Sunday on the subject "Are you a doer of what God requires of you?"

Getting settled made simple.

ENZO PAPARELLI

Paparelli heads area ADF drive

Enzo Paparelli, executive vice-president of Roma Halls, Inc., will head the Detroit Archdiocese drive to raise funds for charity in the North West Wayne Vicariate.

He was appointed by the Rev. John E. Smith, vicar, to be vicariate lay-chairman for the Archdiocesan Development Fund—1976.

Appropriately, the drive will be launched in Roma Hall of Livonia, with a kickoff dinner scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 8.

Attending will be ADF leaders from 18 Catholic parishes and eight Catholic institutions in the vicariate, which covers Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Northville.

The ADF, an annual drive under the direction of Cardinal John Dearden, seeks to raise funds for works of Christian charity which are too wide in scope to be supported by single parishes.

This year, the aim is to increase the amount of contributions by 25 per cent and the number of participants by one third.

The increase is needed, according to ADF leaders, to offset inflationary increases in the needs of those in want.

Paparelli is executive vice-president of Roma Catering, Inc., as well as Roma Halls, Inc. His mother, Lucoa Paparelli, is of Enz-Mar Corp., which includes Roma Halls in Ann Arbor, Garden City and Livonia.

Church Bulletin

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia, will conclude three days of open house sessions in its weekday school from 4:15 to 6 p.m. Thursday.

Parents and others interested will be invited to visit the fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes to see the activities.

FOURTH CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, 24400 West Seven Mile, Detroit, will present Roy J. Linnig as lecturer at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Linnig, former division manager of a national food supply company and a Christian Science lecturer since 1953, will speak on the topic "Are you Resourceful?"

ROY J. LINNIG

ST. ANDREW EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 16360 Hubbard, Livonia, will consecrate and dedicate its parish hall as the William J. and Dorothy M. Newton Centre in honor of two of the church's life-long members, Mr. and Mrs. William Newton of Arcola Street, Livonia.

The dedication will take place following the 11 a.m. service Sunday, which also will be the occasion of confirmation of 40 persons by Bishop Archie H. Crowley, retired suffragan bishop of Michigan.

Mrs. Newton was one of the founders of the St. Andrew Altar Guild and is an honorary member, and her husband served as warden of the parish in its beginning days. He now is guildmaster of the church's lay readers and ushers.

DOROTHY AND WILLIAM NEWTON

BETHANY BAPTIST CHURCH, 34541 Five Mile, Livonia, will welcome the Rev. Clarke Burkhalter of Israel's Remnant in Detroit to its pulpit for the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

He will present a Passover service and speak on the significance of the various features of the ancient Jewish tradition. The Passover service will be followed by a Christian communion service.

CHRIST THE KING LUTHERAN CHURCH, 9300 Farmington Road, Livonia, will present Mrs. Phyllis Tyson in a slide-illustrated talk titled "The Footsteps of Paul" at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Tyson, a pastor's wife from Ypsilanti, will describe a journey through Damascus, Antioch, Cyprus, Philippi, Athens, Crete and Rome, stressing the teachings of Paul, the apostle.

OUR LADY OF GOOD COUNSEL CATHOLIC CHURCH, 1160 Penniman, Plymouth, will host a concert of renaissance and baroque instrumental concert, to be presented by the Ann Arbor Recorder Society at 4 p.m. Sunday.

The society was formed in 1952 and has provided a means for amateur musicians to get together and play the kind of music made popular by the New York Pro Musica group.

Sunday's program will consist of selections of 16th and 17th century dance music, as well as 18th century sonatas for recorder and harpsichord, a Mozart transcription and contemporary recorder ensemble music.

No admission will be charged for the program.

REDFORD UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, Grand River near Lahser, Detroit, will present its chancel choir in the Schubert Mass in G in a Lenten vesper concert at 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Guest organist Elain Schimmel and music students from the University of Michigan also will participate in the concert.

CHERYL AND NORMAN SANDERS

Livonia Baptist presents crusade

Larry Martin, new director of missions for the Greater Detroit Baptist Association, and Norman and Cheryl Sanders of the Billy Graham association will be featured leaders of the April 4-11 spring evangelistic crusade of the Livonia Baptist Church.

The church, located at 32940 Schoolcraft, will have services at 7:30 p.m. all week and at 11 a.m. on the two Sundays.

The Rev. Elvin L. Clark, pastor, said the public is invited to join in all the evangelistic services, which will include congregational and choir singing as well as experiences shared by the leaders.

Evangelist Martin has been a pastor in Louisville and is a candidate of a doctorate at the Louisville Baptist Seminary.

The song evangelists are able to participate because they are in the Detroit area to help plan the Billy Graham crusade in the Pontiac Stadium in the fall.

Norman Sanders was associated with the Kansas City Youth for Christ before joining the Graham organization, and Cheryl Sanders is a recording artist with the Jones Sisters Trio, a gospel-singing group.

Oakway Symphony plans all-Gershwin evening

In celebration of the nation's bicentennial, the Oakway Symphony Orchestra will present a concert devoted to the music of American composer George Gershwin, at 8 p.m. April 10 at the Redford Theatre in Detroit.

Tickets to the concert are priced for adults and for students and senior citizens.

The orchestra, under the direction of Francesco Di Blasi, will be joined by Dance Detroit, the resident dance company of the University of Detroit and Marygrove College. The group, directed by balletmaster Iacob Lascu, will dance while the orchestra performs the Concerto in F for piano and orchestra.

Pianist Ruth Burczyk will be heard in this piece and in the "Rhapsody in Blue." Julia Broxholm, soprano, will sing selections from "Porgy and Bess," while Ernest A. Jones conducts.

MS. BURCZYK made her professional debut at 16 with the Wisconsin Symphony Orchestra. Guest on radio and television, she has appeared in recital and concert with major symphony orchestras including the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, throughout the midwest and southern portions of the United States and Canada.

Miss Burczyk has been appointed to the faculty of Interlochen National Music Camp, serves on the staff of adjudicators of the National Guild of Piano Teachers and is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon, international professional music sorority.

ERNEST A. JONES has appeared as guest conductor with the Oakway Symphony on numerous occasions.

Last November Jones was conductor of the famed Wiener Kammerorchester (Vienna) at the Palais Schwarzenberg. This chamber orchestra has appeared all over the world, particularly in Europe, the United States, Mexico and Japan.

Jones will be heard on the Karl Haas program on radio station WJR at 2 p.m. April 21.

Jones has conducted the University of Michigan Bands in the stadium at Ann Arbor, over national networks, the University Symphony Band in Carnegie Hall and in the Royal College of Music, London.

He is chairman of the board of D'Arcy-MacManus & Masius, Inc., a major worldwide advertising-marketing organization.

Musical director

Farmington teacher Landon Swanson is musical director for "Fiddler on the Roof." The Wood Creek Elementary School teacher is directing the Park Players production being staged in the North Rosedale Park Community House April 1 through April 4, April 9 and 10. Ticket information is available by calling 533-0450.

Comedians to appear

Schoolcraft College will present the comedy team of Edmonds and Curley at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Waterman Campus Center.

The event is sponsored by the student activities program board. The comedy team has been seen many times on the Carson, Douglas and Griffin shows and its own Public Broadcasting System (PBS) specials.

In concerts, Edmonds and Curley have performed as the opening act for such stars as Three Dog Nite, B. B. King, Dionne Warwicke, John Denver, Mike Murphy, Pure Prairie League, Tower of Power, Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Roberta Flack, Tanya Tucker and many others.

Edmonds and Curley's night club appearances include Mr. Kelly's, The Cellar Door, The Copacabana, The Holiday House, The Bitter End, Atlanta's Great S. E. Music Hall, and both the New York and Los Angeles Improvisation Clubs.

Edmonds and Curley has become the number one comedy team in college appearances the last four years. More than 700 college performances in 35 states and Canada have been tallied.

Tickets priced for Schoolcraft students and for the general public are available at the student activities office in the Waterman Campus Center.

Further information may be obtained by calling student activities at 591-6400. The college is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Energetic young group does ceremonial show

By CRAIG REYNOLDS

The New Majority's "Truth of Truths" is a two-hour collection of the Bible's biggest stories placed in musical settings of no particular variety.

The coherence of the production is owed in large measure to the pervasive familiarity of the Biblical tales touched upon and to the rigid direction of Jeanette Senkowski on stage and Carol Hornung in the orchestra pit.

Lost is any sense of the vast, rich history of Judaism with its great strengths of tradition, family and kingdom, and the New Testament's sense of overwhelming humanity and reconciliation.

"Truth of Truths" is ceremony without content, order without reason.

THE EXAMINATION or representation of just one book from the Bible is a sizable undertaking; to attempt an operatic treatment of the whole work is foolhardy.

The New Majority has undertaken this in the wake of its success with "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "Godspell." Indeed, "Truth of Truth's" second act, covering the New Testament, is obviously indebted to composers Andrew Lloyd Webber and Michael Tebelak.

At best it can be said that the production has employed the talents and energies of a good-looking, good-singing bunch of young adults. They and the musicians in the pit plainly enjoy doing the show, and that makes the whole project worthwhile.

As a recreational activity, "Truth of Truths" is a notable achievement; as what it purports to be—". . .a contemporary Biblical rock opera. . ."—the show doesn't make it.

OPERA DEMANDS plot, characters, conflicts, crises and climax. Not surprisingly, the only discernible character in "Truth of Truths" is the gaunt, red-robed figure of Jesus Christ, and the plot, presumably 5,000 years of Judeo-Christian history, is nonexistent.

The opening sequence typifies the production's theatrical shortcomings.

A slide show of fields and streams, trees and flowers introduces the creation, followed by Adam and Eve and the fall.

Two dancers in silhouette evoke a sensual image of man and woman in Eden, but the key factor of free choice, the character of evil, the actually making some decision, all are absolutely lacking. The chorus sings some words which bring to mind stories learned in Sunday school, but the resulting impact is recollection, not theatrical representation.

THERE IS nothing new or fresh or especially inspiring.

The images for the closing sequences of "Truth of Truths" are a bit more pungent with the crucifixion and resurrection, though the final number seems a moribund dedication to Apocalypse and Jehovah's Witnesses.

The music all sounds pretty much the same, with drama being punched out on the drums or bass guitar rather than being established in the dynamics or tempi.

The words are all pretty much the same, with some familiar catch phrase being repeated until the repetitious music runs out.

Any sense of character in "Truth of Truths" must devolve to the immediately likable New Majority Chorus. They truly put forth on stage. There are some 60-odd members, and the prime requisite of the drama, individuals caught up in conflicting needs and desires, is set awash by an abundance of voices.

"TRUTH OF Truths" won't do anything new for believers or nonbelievers in the audience. Believers will find it comfortingly familiar; others will remain unconvinced by the same old tune.

The production proves at once the great power and great flaw of most institutions: The strength of ancient traditions and the inevitable decay of hidebound authority.

Show dates were Friday through Sunday at Clarenceville auditorium in Livonia. "Truth of Truths" had its premiere performances March 12 and 13, presented by the New Majority at West Bloomfield High School.

Additional performances are slated for May 8 and 9 at Mercy High School.

Livonia violinist soloist at concert

Three young artists including one from Livonia will perform as soloists with the Southfield Junior Symphony at its Spring Concert on Sunday, at 3 p.m. at Southfield-Lathrup High School.

Alyze Dreiling, 15-year-old violinist, is a student of Mischa Mischakoff, internationally known violinist. Miss Dreiling began her musical studies at the age of 11 and has since won more than $2,000 in scholarships in competitions in Maine, Michigan and Nebraska. She has won awards from the Music Study Club of Metropolitan Detroit, Livonia Youth Society and the Livonia Civic Chorus.

She also received a scholarship to the Kneisel Hall Music School in Maine where she was coached under Mischakoff, Walter Trampler and Arthur Balsam.

As a soloist, Miss Dreiling has appeared with the Oakway Symphony, of which she is assistant concertmistress, and with the Livonia Junior Symphony and the Livonia Youth Symphony. She was concertmistress of the three orchestras that make up the Livonia Youth Society and is present concertmistress of the Detroit Symphony Youth Orchestra.

She has given four recitals in addition to her solo performances. Her first was sponsored by the fine arts department of Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church. She is first violin of the Detroit Symphony Youth Quartet. Miss Dreiling is a junior at Franklin High School in Livonia. She will be performing "Symphony Espagnole" by Lalo.

Second soloist performing with the orchestra is Suzanne Leon, a 14-year-old freshman from Grosse Pointe South High School. Miss Leon is concertmistress of her high school orchestra and since 1973 has been concertmistress of the Grosse Pointe Junior Symphony.

Third soloist is Susan Synnestvedt of Royal Oak. Miss Synnestvedt is a 12-year-old 7th grader at Clara Barton Junior High School in Royal Oak.

For the last two years, Miss Synnestvedt has been the youngest member of the Oak Park Symphony Orchestra. This year she will perform as a soloist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Youth of which she is a member.

Artists club plans exhibit

The Livonia Artists Club will hold its 15th annual juried exhibition and sale from 1-7 p.m. in the Carl Sandburg Library, 30100 Seven Mile, west of Middle Belt.

Works by artist-members will be on display. There also will be a display of hand-made pewter by John Groot and pottery by Regina Spriggs.

The paintings will be judged by Russell Keeter, an instructor at the Center of Creative Study (formerly Arts and Crafts). Keeter teaches drawing and oil painting.

2 new shows in rehearsal

John Schmittroth, producer of "Jacques Brel..." and "Personals" at the Dinner Theatre of Detroit, looks like the cat that swallowed the canary—or vice-versa.

He has two new shows in rehearsal and plans to expand the Dinner Theatre's current four-evening week.

About the new shows, Schmittroth says only that there will be an announcement soon and that rehearsals are held behind locked doors.

Although no date has been set, expansion will go from the four-evening a week schedule to six evenings with a matinee for high school students. The expanded schedule would include one evening during which assorted cheeses and beverages served during intermission would replace the full-service dinner.

Meanwhile, "Personals" is winding up its record 16-month run. Last performance will be May 2.

Until then, "Personals" plays Thursday through Sunday evenings at the Dinner Theatre on the Mercy College of Detroit campus, W. Outer Drive and Southfield.

Reservations are required; call 531-6131.

Stop the ERA says Donnelly

Editor:

Regarding the headline on your article on former Congresswoman Martha Griffiths: "Women Should be Written Into Constitution," this ringing declaration implies that woman are second-class citizens or non-persons without any rights under the constitution at all.

Women's lib has a vested interest in trying to convince women that they are hopelessly "oppressed," and idealogy that plays upon the natural feelings of unhappiness or inadequacy that all of us feel at one time or another.

However, the fact is that women were determined to be persons legally one hundred years ago, and have been legal "persons" ever since.

The case of Minor v. Happersett decided March 29, 1875, ruled: "There is no doubt that women may be citizens. They are persons . . . " Women today need the ERA to make them "persons" about as much as they need a constitutional amendment to give them the right to vote.

As a matter of fact, in a 1970 essay, Martha Griffiths wrote: "By the time the attitudes of the legislators have changed sufficiently to pass (ERA), it may be unnecessary, but it would be a great morale booster if it were passed now."

Th constitution is no place to look for psychological therapy!

Ms. Griffiths and other ERA supporters may attempt to reassure their relatively uninformed audiences that ERA will not harm the legal rights of women in any way, and that reasonable exceptions to the ERA will be allowed.

However, as Fordham Law School Professor Charles M. Whelan wrote: "It is unfortunate that words were not incorporated into the ERA that would make these exceptions explicit."

But it was Martha Griffiths herself who led the fight against several protective clauses to the text of the ERA, which would have reserved women's exemptions from the military draft and other rights, benefits, and exemptions for women.

As a resident of Ms. Griffith's former congressional district, I studied copies of many of her speeches attacking these reasonable clauses, which would have preserved women's most important rights under the law.

Learning of my congresswoman's presumptious activities in Congress convinced me more than any other fact that ERA must be defeated.

There are many points made by Ms. Griffiths that, I could counter with facts, but the one that is most laughable is the idea that women opposed to the ERA are aligned with either the John Birch Society or the Communist Party, and are "making a lot of money opposing equal rights."

This is one of the most ridiculous statements Ms. Griffiths has ever made.

It is surpassed only by the assertation she made in Seattle, Wash. that the female legislators leading the fight against the ERA in the various state legislatures are "crooked politicians" being "bribed" by "unnamed and unseen forces" that are "paying off in the coin of the realm." (Seattle Times, June 16, 1975.)

I cannot understand why Ms. Griffiths feels she must question the integrity and motivations of female legislators who have out- debated and out-smarted her and her allies in so many states, while she continues to promote herself for the vice- presidential nomination, ifnot appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court.

When it comes to questionable tactics on behalf of the ERA, Ms. Griffith takes a back seat to no one. Intelligent women draw their own conclusions.

Polish study called biased

Editor:

If Merrill Palmer Institute, or anyone, believes Mr. Wrobel's findings, apparently this is what they want to believe. My strong suspicion is that Mr. Wrobel, in order to get his degree, did everything he could to please those who conferred it upon him.

The Observer & Eccentric mentions that several hundred people were interviewed (believe it, if you wish). Elsewhere, I read he developed close relationship with many (how many?) of his neighbors. I suspect that his false findings are rather a product of his own experiences, feelings and imagination.

The institute made an excellent investment in Mr. Wrobel if their intention was to discredit. However, if they were looking for truth, in my opinion, they wasted their money.

I am the man in the Polish community and a factory worker. I do not consider it degrading. In fact I believe my work is more respectable than legions of other jobs or professions.

The truth about the self-image of the great majority in the Polish community, as I know it (very well), coincides closely with the findings of the study made by Chaim I. Skowronek, a distinguished anthropologist. The paper on the study was presented by Mr. Skowronek himself, before the Kutz and Kleinsky Institute for Propagation of Common Decency in America.

Here are the highlights of the study. Americans of Polish ancestry are quick to admit that their origin is from a beautiful land, a country with a rich, clean history, for many centuries powerful and dominant in Central Europe, equalled by few.

They are proud of their heritage, their values. Some of these they consider superior and are reluctant to change them even under extreme pressures from the environment. Their family life is based on Christian principles, characterized by mutual respect and understanding. Although environmental pressures made some undesirable inroads, in general more Polish families stay together. Strong ties exist among children, parents and grandparents.

Living up to good principles and values may explain why there is relatively little crime within Polish communities. Families earn their livelihood in an honest and respectable ways. The neighborhoods are neat, well-kept, safe, and desirable.

Polish contribution to the growth of America dates back to Jamestown, when Poles, among other settlers, first landed on the then Indian soil. American workers and professionals of Polish descent are dependable, honest, hard working and sought after.

They are prominent in the first lines of defense when safety of U.S. is at stake. Americans of Polish descent are among the most valuable and patriotic citizens. Their children are among the brightest and most well behaved in schools.

Polish Americans know their heritage and are mighty proud of it. They respect the heritage of other peoples and wonder why anybody would want to belittle theirs.

One of the basic principles in psychology is that a person tends to downgrade someone else if he feels inferior to him. Simply it is like a little person wishes that everyone is his size; or a fat person likes to believe that everybody else is fat.

The Polish community believes that there is a concerted effort by a certain group directed against them. Some of the most base characters that have access to the news media are engaged. They find willing imitators among low class white people.

The paper concludes that no person or group is perfect and this is no reason to be ashamed. It is better to improve oneself to measure up to a higher level, than try to downgrade others to one's own level.

Leaders of the best

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps has been chosen to represent the state on April 10 at the Cherry Blossom Festival, sponsored by the Washington, D.C. Jaycees. This will be the corps' first appearance in its new colonial unifroms befitting the celebration of the nation's bicentennial.

Road patrol to continue 8 months

Dec. 1 is the target date in Wayne County's thinking for seven townships to begin picking up the cost of the sheriff's road patrol.

No curtailment of the 28-man road patrol is likely in the meantime, because the county board of commissioners has funded service for the entire fiscal year, which ends Nov. 30.

But John Barr (D-Dearborn Heights), who today was scheduled to be elected chairman of the board of commissioners, said the county is ready to negotiate with the townships for service after that date.

THE COUNTY won a major decision last week when the state court of appeals upheld a circuit court ruling which says the county can't be forced to provide road patrol service free to rural and suburban townships.

The decision affects the townships of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Brownstown, Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren.

The road patrol price tag this year was $565,000, said Barr.

The townships went to court in 1974 after the county board declared it intended to phase out free patrol service to the townships. It requested the sheriff to negotiate with the townships for financial participation.

THE BOARD twice funded the patrols for less than a full year, later extending the funding for the full year.

The townships had argued not only that the sheriff was obligated to provide the road patrol but that they couldn't afford to do it.

At this point, the townships appear to have several options. The least complicated would be to pay the sheriff to patrol their areas. But they could also form one or more multi-township police departments of their own. And some could even form their own police departments, either as townships or by incorporating as home rule cities.

An outside possibility—at least on paper—is that Plymouth and Northville townships could consolidate with the cities of Plymouth and Northville, respectively, and expand those cities' police services.

Quick compost

For short-order compost, the American Association of Nurserymen recommends the following recipe. Crumble a bushel of leaves into a clear polyethylene plastic bag, add two gallons of water and five or six pounds of high-content nitrogen commercial fertilizer (20-10-5 works well). Mix in a shovel of top soil.

Place the bag in a sunny spot and turn it over every other day. In three or four weeks you should yave a good quality compost. It can be stored until ready for use.

SCC plans open house

Schoolcraft College will hold an open house for its Independent Human Studies Program April 6.

The program is housed at the college's Northville Cooke Center and will be open to the public from 7-10 p.m. on Tuesday, April 6.

Independent Human Studies (IHS) is an alternative learning method for general studies courses at the college. It is an approach which encourages interdisciplinary understanding, promotes independent and group stimulation in the learning process, and offers freedom for students to determine the direction their studies will take.

Persons interested in the program or the open house may obtain further information by calling instructors Sue Kaplan or Gordon Wilson at 348-2704.

Parking is available on the south side of the center which is located at 405 W. Main Street, Northville.

Schoolcraft to sponsor voter drive

A voter registration drive sponsored by the Schoolcraft Student Senate and Frontlash, a non-partisan voter registration group, will be held at Schoolcraft's Waterman Campus Center and the Garden City Campus center on April 12-14.

Persons interested in becoming registered voters are invited to visit either location. The Waterman Center will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and a booth will be open at Garden City from 5:30-8 p.m.

The students are hoping to surpass the 542 registrants they recruited during a previous drive in 1972.

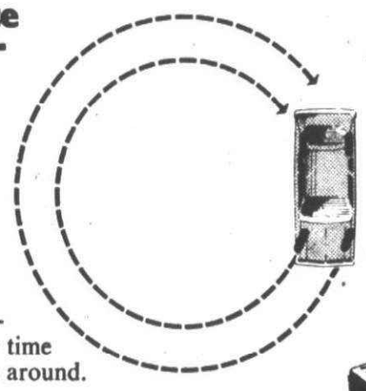

Further information may be obtained by calling the Student Senate office at 591-6549.

Here's proof!

Chatham meat priced lowest.

We don't want you to simply take our word about Chatham's low meat prices. That's why we're letting you know the results of a meat price survey run by a nationally recognized research company. It proved that meat prices were lowest at Chatham.

How the survey was run.
The research team spent four weeks in all of Detroit's major supermarket chains. They compared prices on dozens of the meat items you buy most: things like hamburger, sirloin, pork chops, lamb chops, chicken, bacon, ham and lunch meats.

Quality meat. Low prices.
Not everything was less at Chatham, but when the bills were added up, Chatham was lower priced than any other supermarket. And since we sell more meat per store than any other supermarket chain in town, it's always fresh and flavorful.

Your total food bill should be less at Chatham.
There's one more thing you should remember. The low prices of our meat are the same kind of low prices you'll find on everything we sell at Chatham.

No wonder Chatham sells more meat per store than any other supermarket chain in town.

Chiefs prepare to chase No. 1 state ranking

Bill Parsons, returning ace picture, will bolster this year's veteran mound corps. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

By BILL COLLINS

Coming off a 23-4 record last spring, the Plymouth Canton Chiefs enter the 1976 campaign with a corps of nine returning lettermen and prospects for another successful Chief season looking encouraging despite the cautiously optimistic stand taken by coach Fred Crissey.

"Our number one concern is to play defense, we anticipate our strengths at pitcher and catcher and with our hitting we're going to score a lot of runs, but we're going to have to catch the ball to win," said Crissey.

It's hard to find a battery on the prep level with the talent that Canton boasts between righthand ace Bill Parson and power hitting receiver Tom Close.

Parson went 13-2 on the mound last year posting an 0.59 earned run average earning all-league honors.

"Bill's best asset is his control, he throws the ball where he wants to," said Crissey.

Close was a member of the All-Area Observer & Eccentric club as a catcher, belting eight home runs and hitting .330.

This is Close's third year as the varsity backstop and his experience gives him good leadership capabilities on the field, where Canton will need it most if they hope to play well defensively.

"Tom has the potential to be as good as anybody, my concern is what he does with his talent," commented Crissey.

CANTON HAS good depth in its pitching with juniors Mark Perkins, John Young, and Steve Mormon in the wings. Perkins and Young combined for seven wins last season and, along with Mormon, will see more innings on the hill in the coming months. Young is also the backup catcher behind Close, and is the designated hitter.

The outfield will probably be filled with seniors Steve Hanis, Steve Dugan, Mike Sochaki, and on occasion Parson.

"Both Dugan and Hanis helped us out last year. Dugan is the sparkplug of the team, while Hanis is the type of player that will get on base a lot," said Crissey.

Sochaki is one of five players up from last year's JV crew that went 13-2 for the year and went undefeated in capturing the Western Six title.

Other JV recruits includeinfielders Kevin Randazzo, Gary Sieber, Scott Collins, and Mark Zydek.

As for the infield, Canton has experience at each corner of the diamond, but the Chiefs' biggest worry is at shortstop and second base.

Senior Dave Pink has been moved over to third base from first base in favor of Steve Mormon. "Steve is a lefthander who throws and moves well at first base, he also hits from the left side which gives us an added dimension," said Crissey.

Five players are competing for two starting positions at second base and shortstop.

Sophmore Scott Collins and junior Rob Mandle are candidates at shortstop, while John O' Connell, Gary Sieber, and Kevin Randazzo are vying for the open slot at second base.

The post at shortstop was lost to graduation with All-Stater Brian Stemberger stepping down, and alumni Keith Randazzo graduating from his second base position.

"I'll have a better knowledge of who to play when we get back from Cincinnati," said Crissey.

AT THE PLATE Canton is balanced with three .300 hitters back in the lineup from last year, and a handful of bona fide sluggers.

Tom Close (.330), John Young (320), Dave Pink (.305), and Bill Parson (.290) lend plenty of hits to Canton's offense.

Pink, Close, Mormon, and Young supply the muscle to clear the basepaths while Hanis, Dugan, Sochaki, and Parson will be counted on to reach base with something besides power.

Canton was rated as the state's number one club by a major metropolitan daily in the final poll voting and carried a very competitive schedule, the same can be said this seaosn.

Canton is making an excursion to Cincinnati over the Easter break to face the Ohio Class 'A' state champions in addition to playing the Cincinnati City Champs.

The Chiefs have also slated a doubleheader with Catholic League champion Brother Rice and four other games are highlighted as the Chiefs take on four defending league champs.

"You don't get any better unless you play the best teams. It's something you've got to do," said Crissey.

Canton will be defending its Western Six league title for the first time in 1976.

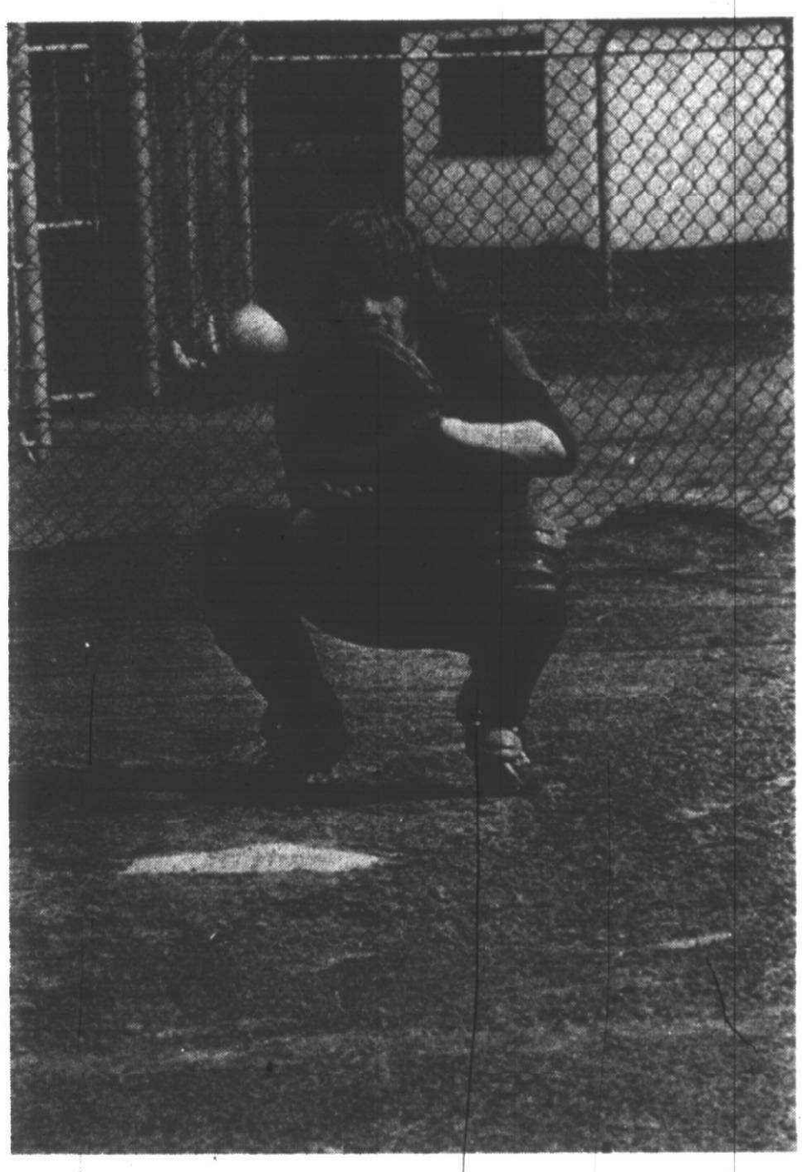

"The Western Six is a baseball league," said Crissey.

Besides Canton's success last year, Livonia Churchill won the Class 'A' crown in 1974, in 1973 Waterford Mott was a semi-finalist, and in 1972 Northville was a semi-finalist in Class 'B'.

Crissey said Canton will be a prime contender for the division title once again with its biggest challenge coming from Farmington Harrison.

In two years as manager of Plymouth Canton, Fred Crissey has compiled a 33-14 record, he views this spring for Canton this way, "I anticipate that attitude is 80 per cent of the game. It's up to the players get the right attitude and use it to their advantage."

Ernest Smith earns spot in hall of fame

By W.W. EDGAR

For more than 50 years Ernest Smith, who resides at 39500 Warren in Canton Township, has given most of his time to the promotion of amateur sports as a competitor and an administrator. Now he is about to experience what he terms "one of the greatest thrills of my career."

Smith will be inducted into the Michigan Amateur Sports Hall of Fame, along with 11 others, in official ceremonies at the Warren Chateau on Thursday, May 6.

" I've had a lot of honors in my time," Ernest said while reading the letter informing him of his selection, "but none of them will compare with this, and I am proud to be named."

NOW 74 YEARS old, Ernest still keeps a close eye on all amateur sports competition and even has gone to some of the Olympic games. But the days he remembers best are are those when he was the all-around champion at the Downtown Detroit YMCA.

He started carrying the "Y" colors in athletic meets in 1924 and won the all-around title two years later.

Although he specialized in sprint races, he doesn't recall his best times.

"When you are in all-around competition," he explained, "the times you make in the individual events are not too important."

And while he dominated track and field events, he also was the gymnastics champion at the Y. At one time, he held both titles.

AS HE CONTEMPLATED admission to the Hall of Fame, he also recalled how proud he was to win the A.D. Kay Memorial in 1928.

"This was a special event to honor Mr. Kay, who had been quite an athlete. Winning the memorial was one of the highlights of my competitive career," Ernest commented.

Born in Parick, Scotland in 1901, Ernest came to America in 1922, immediately headed for Detroit and engaged in the YMCA athletic programs.

At the close of his competitive career, he devoted much of his time to officiating and handling the adminstrative end of the amateur programs. He has worked closely with the University of Michigan, Michigan State, Wayne State, Eastern Michigan and the Big Ten.

DURING HIS TENURE at the Downtown YMCA, he recalls, Detroit was the handball capital of America, and the Y boasted many of the country's best players.

Among the Y standard bearers was Joe Griffin, who won the national title on his home court and later the national AAU crown.

"We had a lot of great playersa in those days," Ernest commented. "Aside from Griffin, we had fellows like Al Spiegel and Lefty Dworman, who won the national doubles title; Al Schaufelberger, Chet York, George Mc Carthy, a police officer, and Bill Kamman, one of the best front court players in the game."

He also recalled that in later years the Zerbo boys did a great deal to keep Detroit in front in handball circles.

These are all fond memories to him now, and he is looking forward to his induction into the Hall of Fame as "the greatest thrill of my career."

Ernest Smith and his wife reflect on Smith's past career in sports as Smith prepares for entry into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Soccer interest booms in Plymouth-Canton

It hasn't reached the point that a moat is needed to protect officials from angry spectators, but soccer interest is on the rise. With 200 youngsters involved in league play last year, almost double that number will participate this season.

"It is the most popular sport in the world," said Stan Britton who will teach a soccer skills class for the Canton-Northville-Plymouth YWCA. His six-week classes will meet Tuesdays at Farrand and Wednesdays at Bird from 6-7 p.m. for ages seven years and up—boys and girls.

"One of the reasons the kids prefer soccer is the continuous action," said Britton, "and all the equipment necessary is a pair of tennis shoes."

"BRITTON PLAYED" soccer at Schoolcraft College for two years and at Western Michi!an University for two years.

"We would run between five and seven miles during a game, but the kids play 15-minute quarters—an hour game."

In the skills class, youngsters will learn positions and how to kick and pass the ball with their heads and feet.

The only player allowed to touch the ball with his hands is the goalie. He may take four steps before throwing or kicking the ball.

"Soccer develops timing, reflexes, and, most important, coordination of body and mind," said Britton. He added that it is one of the few team games in which players can improve their skills by practicing alone.

"I would recommend a plastic rather than a leather ball for home practice. You can buy one for about $7." Besides running to develop leg muscles, Britton suggested the youngsters practice bouncing the ball on their heads or thighs.

EACH TEAM has 11 players—three fullbacks on defense, three halfbacks or middle fieldmen, four on the forward line and a goalie. There are no times out.

North American soccer teams import many European players and the youngsters don't identify with an outstanding soccer hero, as they do in baseball or football.

"Soccer is really big in Dallas and St. Louis. Livonia Stevenson and Bloomfield Lahser have high school teams. I played with several fellows from Lahser," Britton said, adding that he hopes, by developing young players, it will become a high school league sport in the Plymouth schools.

Fee for the soccer skills course is $8 for members and $12 for non-members. Registrations are accepted at the Y office, 271 S. Main, Plymouth, or by calling 453-2904.

Gary Farwell (from left), Mike Laffery and Jim Britton have signed up for the soccer skills classes taught by Stan Britton. Sponsored by the Canton-Northville-Plymouth YMCA, classes are 6-7 p.m. on Tuesdays at Farrand Elementary School playground, and Wednesdays at Bird playground.

Wayne Jones Says...

Don't wait to do your landscaping because you don't know how. We will draw a plan for your home, and give you our expert advice on what to plant and how to plant it. We draw free plans to scale for our customers. Just bring in your house and lot dimensions and a picture, if possible. Your title survey usually has all this information on it. We can do the planting for you, for an additional labor charge.

People who buy and people who sell get together in the Observer&Eccentric Newspapers

Buyers and sellers are "strange" people. Strange to each other, that is. People with lots of different needs and wants, people who need to get together. They need to get together in the quickest, least expensive and most effective way possible—the Observer & Eccentric Want Ads.

Say you need a buyer for a bunch of baby basset hounds, or a really good home for a litter of antiques...How do you meet those unknown admirers with an eye for your special goods? How do you keep track of sellers with garage sales, and owners of autos and pets to trade? It's easy—when you know where buyers and sellers get together best—the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

It's easy to get double buying and selling results, too. Double-Action Ads bring people together from all over Wayne and Oakland Counties. These suburban communities include: Birmingham, Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Rochester, Avon Twp., Southfield and Troy in Oakland County; Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Canton Twp., Redford Twp., and Westland in Wayne County. Smart buyers and sellers place a Double Action Family Want Ad (non business) of 15 words or less in two consecutive issues, with no changes in copy and no cancellations—and they pay only $6. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

When you have something to sell...when you have something to buy...you've got a lot in common in the Observer & Eccentric Classified Want Ads.

Money comes in the strangest shapes

Your house is full of extra money, you probably just don't recognize it. It's in the form of appliances, furniture, and equipment that you no longer need, and are sitting by, useless. Now you can convert your extra items into cash, quickly and easily, with a twin-action classified ad.

Twin-action gives you double exposure plus a low, unbeatable price. You can place a 15 word ad in two consecutive issues for only $6.00. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular price. Twin-action is the easiest way to find the extra money that is hidden in your home.
