

Canton officials hope the new ZIP code and mailing address will help put Canton on the map.

Mail it to Canton, Mich.

48187 or 48188

Better late than never seems to be the sentiment of Canton officials after learning that Canton has become the second township in history of Michigan to receive its own zip code and postal designation.

Effective May 15, township residents should use Canton, Michigan as a return address with a ZIP code of 48187 if they live north of Cherry Hill and 48188 if they live south of Cherry Hill.

After being tangled in federal red tape, the designation and mailing number arrived three months later than expected, much to the relief of township officials.

The new designation will replace a host of names and numbers under which Cantonites have been receiving mail. Those living in the northern portion of the township have been using the Plymouth name, while the rest of the township has been divided between Ypsilanti, Belleville and Wayne post offices.

ALL MAIL directed to Canton residents will be consolidated and sent to the Plymouth office.

The new ZIP codes have several benefits, according to Supervisor Robert Greenstein, who said he began the effort to get the township its own post office two weeks after assuming office in November, 1974.

"We tried at first to get a full post office in Canton, but when the money crunch came we knew we couldn't, so we tried for the next best thing.

"Many residents are not really aware why there was such a critical need for the ZIP code. The majority of residents didn't know that we had four mailings and as a result I think we probably lost a lot of revenue sharing because they assumed they lived in Plymouth, Wayne, Belleville or Ypsilanti, because that's what their postal designation showed."

Greenstein said the need for the ZIP became even greater when when the Secretary of State adopted the new voter registration policy where again people made the same mistake.

"It's also been costly to the township's water department with the numerous returned water bills because of incorrect mailing cities being used," Greenstein said.

"I am sure the majority of Canton residents would agree that a letter could get from here to California faster than within the township limits because of all the confusion with the four mailing addresses."

Greenstein said he expected the new ZIP codes would save a substantial amount of money locally because presently $10-$15 in township mailings are being returned daily.

"For good or bad we have tried to make this a community where things are done differently and I think people should be proud to live in Canton.

"We are not part of the cities that we get our postal names from, and I think this will help give us an identity of our own.

"The broader implications are that this will help us attract industrial taxbase and

After hot debate

Board refuses to pay bills

In a meeting marred by bickering and political haggling, members of the township board voted not to pay the bills early Wednesday morning.

Nearly $8,000 in bills were rejected by board members, as Supervisor Robert Greenstein repeatedly cast the deciding vote against payment, arguing that he would oppose payment unless there was unanimity on the board.

In an attempt to get the bills approved for payment, board members introduced a flurry a motions at the end of the meeting which began on Tuesday, suggesting that part of the bills or all but a few be paid.

Finally board members suggested all the bills be paid without exception, but when Trustees Brian Schwall and Bob Myers voted against payment, Greenstein, voting last, again voted no, and with Treasurer Carl Parsell absent, it tied the vote at 3-3 and the motion failed.

After spending more than a half hour attempting to get something passed, board members gave up and voted to adjourn without approving the bills.

THE BATTLE STARTED when Schwall complained that the township had exceeded its limit on reconditioning the township meeting hall.

He complained that an excessive amount had been paid to build two tables, one for the press, and one for the township employees who now sit in front of board members at meetings.

Almost $600 had been spent on the two tables, and Schwall took issue with an additional $378 appearing in the most recent copy of the bills to be approved.

That money was owed for blinds and wood to two companies, Walls, Windows and Whatnots and Maplewood Lumber.

"While I realize that morally these two companies should not be penalized," Schwall argued, "something has to be done. I realize we have committed ourselves already by purchasing the materials, but the only time the trustees can say anything about what is being spent is when the bills come before us. I don't know how else to do it."

When Schwall voted not to accept all the bills the first time around, the flurry of motions started with Greenstein arguing that the board had set a policy decision not to pay any of the bills unless there was unanimity on all.

"I am not going to sit here and let them duck it and have us approve the bills and then have them backbite us later.

"If there's something wrong, let's get it out in the open and settle it.

"Let's get agreement and get it over with."

AS THE BICKERING between board members increased, Trustee Gerald Cheske exploded, "I've never seen such childish behavior.

"Let's quit screwing around, pay the bills and go home."

Cheske, who along with Trustee Jim Poole and Clerk John Flodin voted to approve the bills on the last motion, evidently didn't persuade other members of the board, and the bills failed to pass.

Deputy Treasurer Mike Gorman, to whom several of the board members apologized after the meeting, said he didn't think letting the bills lapse one time would be overly detrimental to the township.

But he had appealed earlier to the board members saying, "We had a problem in the past and we didn't have the best reputation, because we didn't always pay on time. It was a procedural matter that we cleared up."

Gorman said the township's credit could be affected at a few local stores who depend on prompt payment from their customers.

"In some instances, I think we may find where we used to be able to charge we may now have to be a cash and carry customer."

Collecting tidbits of information from newspapers and magazines has been one of Dorothy West's favorite hobbies for more than 40 years. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey.)

She's a real history buff

"I just love history," said Mrs. Dorothy West, as she leafed through old scrapbooks in her home on Ridge Road. "I don't know why I do. I just do."

Mrs. West, a member of the newly-formed Canton Historical Society, collects what most other people throw away.

Fat scrapbooks, packed with old newspaper clippings and snapshots of Canton's old Cherry Hill community, remind her of her youth near the Ridge and Cherry Hill intersection, while other scrapbooks are packed with information about George Washington's and Abraham Lincoln's lives.

As historian of the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church, Mrs. West owns other scrapbooks, filled with minutes of old church board meetings and bills for coffee and sugar way back in 1919.

Mrs. West pointed to an old picture of the church and reminisced.

"That was before there was electricity," she recalled. "My father helped to get that going."

COLLECTIONS SUCH AS Mrs. West's could become the basis of future Canton Historical Society projects, according to Henrietta Burch, provisional secretary of the organization.

"I think quite a few of the people who have lived here three or four generations have quite a bit of this kind of thing," said Miss Burch. "I think perhaps some of these kinds of things could be placed in a booklet or recorded, so they wouldn't be lost forever. This is my idea of something we could do."

What prompts an individual to save old newspaper stories and tidbits of other information which otherwise would perish on the garbage heap?

According to Mrs. West, collecting is a compulsive pastime.

"I'M A COLLECTOR," said Mrs. West. "I just like to do it. I have a notebook on Lincoln I've been collecting for 40 years. All my kids used it, when they were in school. The problem is I'm running out of notebooks. I have to find more.

"I started collecting things when I was in high school," Mrs. West recalled. "I loved to read, and I loved historical novels. I had eight children, so I didn't devote a whole lot of time to it. It's just something I really enjoy."

And, after all, glimpses of history surround Mrs. West each day. A resident of Canton Township since 1923, Mrs. West was married in the living room of her present home on Ridge when she was 19 and raised eight children there.

Mrs. West, who plans to start a history of her own and her husband's family, pointed to an old photo of a blacksmith's shop in the Cherry Hill community and old pictures of a post office, discontinued in 1908, in the former West General Store.

"THEY DIDN'T deliver mail back then," said Mrs. West, who learned about the post office through her late husband's family. "You had to go and pick it up. The dairy man used to transport the mail back and forth from Ypsilanti."

According to Mrs. West, the old Cherry Hill community has not escaped the ravages of time. The old creamery is no longer there, and West General Store, where residents used to gather, was sold some years back.

But memories still are vivid in the longtime resident's mind—especially with the aid of her notebooks.

1.5-mill fire levy limit set

Following the recommendation of Supervisor Robert Greenstein, township board members voted Tuesday to impose a millage ceiling for this year in the event a special assessment district for a second fire station in Canton is approved by the voters.

A limit of 1.5 mills was selected at Greenstein's request, with the understanding that if less is needed, less would be levied.

The assessment district, which would comprise the entire township will be presented to the voters May 18 on the presidential primary ballot and if approved, the board will hold two public hearings and then decide on specific amount of millage to levy.

Under the act that provides for the district, PA33 of 1951, that same procedure is repeated annually with the board holding a pair of hearings before deciding on the actual amount to be levied.

"THERE IS LITTLE question in my mind that we desperately need this station," Greenstein, "and I don't think this is a bad way to go about it.

"If you pass a specific millage over 10 years it is never reappraised and it ends up being levied year after year.

"This way we have to establish the need each year. Every year the board has to come before the people and they can yell, scream or impeach the board if too much is levied.

"Each year, a red flag is waived in front of the people."

Greenstein said he didn't think the 1.5-mill limit would ever be exceeded because the construction and equipping of the building would take place in the first few years and after that only staffing would have to come from the millage.

"The first three to five years are the high necessity years, after that I think we could expect the need to decrease."

Greenstein cited the Citizen Advisory Council's report in making his recommendation. That report suggested a maximum of 1.5 mills over five years for the second station, or 10 years if land for a third station is to be purchased.

Greenstein said the board could only set the limit for this year because, "I can't make promises for a board I'm not part of and as you all know, there's an election this year. But I can't conceive of ever going above 1.5 mills because the first year is the highest expense."

TRUSTEE BRIAN Schwall said it was "somewhat distressing" that the ballot question didn't mention that PA33 of 1951 set a 10-mill limit annually on the assessment district.

Clerk John Flodin responded, "I share your anxiety about the 10 mills and that's

Young quits TCP

Citing business obligations, Bruce Young, one of the founders of Total Citizens' Power, a nonpartisan, nonprofit township residents group, resigned from that organization.

Young, serving as president of TCP at the time of his resignation, said, "It's time I got back to business."

TCP had been organized, according to Young and Vice President Frank McMurray, to promote better understanding of topical issues in the community and to sponsor forums on important township matters.

Since it started less than a year ago, TCP has hosted two forums, one on open meeting legislation, and another on the new master land use plan.

Members of TCP have have also been embroiled in several arguments with members of the township administration at past meetings.

Young's resignation followed the township board's April 13 meeting by two days.

AT THAT MEETING, a report by ordinance officer Bruce Phillips was presented to the township board by Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

The report, a three-page document, listed in great detail a long series of alleged violations by previous owners of Young's property, and Young, since he assumed ownership in "1964 or 1965."

The property, at 44844 Michigan Avenue, includes Young's used car business, and his residence.

'Super sewer' benefits debated

Continued development of plans for the "super sewer" proposed by the Wayne County Road Commission have received the support of the Plymouth City Commission.

The resolution of support, with qualifications, was passed 5-2 by the city commission Monday night with commissioners Norb Battermann and Beverly McAninch voting "no."

BATTERMANN last week had introduced a resolution in which Plymouth would have stated opposition to the "super sewer," but Monday a substitute motion offered by Commissioner Tom Turner was adopted instead.

Battermann's motion said the city didn't need additional sewer capacity because it was 95 per cent developed and he opposed construction of the north-south interceptor because it could result in residents being taxed.

Turner explained he was offering the substitute after hearing verbal assurances from the road commission that there would be no cost to Plymouth residents unless the city asked in the future to be included in the project.

Turner's resolution supporting continuation of the project states such support is given with the clear understanding Plymouth won't be assessed unless in the future the city elects to use the new system.

Another qualifier to the resolution states Plymouth will reserve its judgement on need for the interceptor until being presented with a specific proposal from the road commission.

MRS. McANINCH translated Turner's resolution to mean: "We are supporting the plan for other people but we don't want it and will support it only because we won't be paying anything."

Turner disagreed, stating the resolution simply stated the city would reserve its judgement until it received a specific proposal.

Mayor Joe Bida commented: "Let's remember that years ago other communities paid a big share of the Rouge Interceptor so that Plymouth could purchase capacity when we needed it. If Plymouth Township and the city ever become one city, we will need the super sewer."

Mrs. McAninch, with Battermann agreeing, said she couldn't vote to support super sewer based on oral assurances from the road commission.

ALAN GOVE, city engineer, said when Plymouth purchased into the Rouge Interceptor in 1961 it was allocated enough capacity to serve a population of 12,000. "An additional 500 people won't hurt our capacity."

Gove added that Plymouth Township presently has only about half the capacity it will need when it reaches full development at about 32,000 persons. Canton and Northville townships also will need additional capacity as their growth continues, he added.

"If the super sewer is not built, there isn't enough additional capacity in the Rouge system to meet the future growth of Plymouth, Canton, and Northville townships and Novi. Without added capacity, Plymouth and Canton townships could not have any additional growth," said Gove.

Bida echoed Gove's claim, pointing out that the county was likely to slap a no-growth moratorium on the townships if sewer capacity weren't available. "Growth in the townships will be beneficial for the entire community."

Battermann commented: "I object that the county is speaking for our needs to the federal government without consulting us. In its report, the county implies that Plymouth needs the super sewer and that's false information being fed to the Michigan Water Resources Commission."

Turner pointed out if the city is successful in annexing the Burroughs parking lot property from Plymouth Township it might need to buy capacity from the proposed super sewer. That parcel could support a population of 2,000 persons, he added, but because it is vacant now there wouldn't be any allocation by the county of the township's sewer capacity to the city to cover that area.

"I'd hate to see the city oppose something that is going to happen anyhow," said Bida. "The county is going to proceed with super sewer plans regardless of any position taken by Plymouth."

In response to a question from the commission, City Manager Fred Yockey said that if Plymouth were in the basin of the proposed interceptor—which it will be—the city can be assessed whether or not it opposes super sewer.

Battermann and Mrs. McAninch asked that the resolution being sent to the state include a minority report from both of them stating their opposition to super sewer because Plymouth didn't need it and it might result in a cost to taxpayers.

If school millage fails, it's back to more cuts

Residents of the Plymouth Community School District can expect a general reduction of existing school programs and extensive layoffs of certified and non-certified school personnel, if voters turn down a request for 4.75 additional operating mills on June 14.

That's the word from the district's administration, which Monday outlined the impact a defeated millage issue would bring to the district as well as the effect of a millage OK at the polls.

School board members, hope to scrutinize the administration's recommendations in the weeks to come and present voters with a specific list of cutbacks, necesscitated by a millage defete, before the June 14 election.

THE 4.75 additional mills ($4.75 per $1,000 state equalized value), if approved by voters, would bring approximately $2.2 million to the school district next year and lift the projected budget to the $20.8 million mark.

The additional millage, levied for a five-year period, would cost the owner of a $40,000 home an additional $95 in school taxes each year.

Approval of the additional 4.75 mills would allow the district to maintain existing school programs and the current length of the school day.

Defeat of the millage issue would fix estimated revenues and expenditures for the 1976-77 school year at about the $18.5 million mark and force reductions in school programs and personnel as well as a shortened school day.

According to the report submitted to board members, defeat of the millage would affect about 100 certified and non-certified personnel currently working for the district and chop about an hour from the school day.

"The severity of the situation would depend to a large extent on the size of employee turnover, the number of students, the outcome of negotiations, the district's state equalized valuation and state aid," the report stated.

CUTBACKS, according to the administration's report, could include:

- About 34 fewer teachers at the elementary level than in the 1975-76 school year. Cutbacks could affect existing programs in humanities, art, music, physical education and reading. Lack of funds could force closing of Geer School.
- About 20 fewer certified positions at the middle school level with assistant principals assigned to the classroom part-time. The variety of elective courses would be reduced.
- About 19 fewer certified positions at the Centennial Educational Park as well as cutbacks of one coordinator and one clerical position.
- Drastic allocation curtailments for teaching supplies.
- The same staffing level in the district's special education department. Administrators have projected the need for 10 additional staff positions.
- The continuation of summer school with no bus service.
- Across-the-board curtailment of spending for adult education.
- Curtailment of "unclassified" instruction. The district would not hire 28 additional teachers, needed to handle the district's projected increase in enrollment.
- A reduction in all areas of spending at the administrative level and a cutback of one clerical position at the board of education offices.
- The layoff of one school nurse.
- Purchase of one new van for transportation, despite a need for four. The employment of two new "greasemen" positions would not be funded.
- About 13 fewer custodial positions, despite the opening of three new elementary schools and the addition to Plymouth Canton High.
- Elimination of community services budgets set aside for the Community Arts Council and the Junior Athletic Association.
- Reduction of athletic programs.
- Reduction of capital outlay funds.
- Reduction of the district's contingency reserve from about $149,000 to $15,000.

SCHOOL BOARD members hope to offer voters a more specific list of possible cutbacks before election day.

"I don't like this kind of nebulous thing," said board President Marda Benson. "We would like to have a more specific list before rather than after the election. I think this will be an item of continuing discussion."

Some board members questioned the number of proposed cutbacks at the elementary level.

"It's my firm belief that education is not proportional," said Treasurer Tom Yack. "I feel students learn most at the elementary level, and I would want less cuts there. An attempt has been made to make things equitable and make proportional cuts."

Board Vice President Marcia Borowski added, "To take out art, music and reading in the elementary schools and keep in athletics, to me, is sheer folly."

According to Supt. John M. Hoben, the additional 4.5 mills are needed to maintain existing programs at the district's schools, despite an anticipated $1.2 million increase in revenues next year without the millage approval. Most of the anticipated increase in revenues is expected from state aid.

But, according to Hoben, increased costs far exceed any anticipted increase in revenues besides that brought from a millage hike.

"It's a number of things," said Hoben, "inflation, increased enrollment, and a negotiation year. We have to allocate $400,000 for the operation of new buildings, and we're committed to incremental salary raises even without new contracts."

APPROVAL OF the 4.5 additional mills, according to the administration's report, would allow the district to budget funds for these and other needs:

- Hire two additional librarians, two library aides, two education aides and one additional secretary for the new elementary schools. An overall 13.8 per cent increase in funds would be allocated to elementary instruction compared to the 1975-76 school year to meet the needs of about 350 additional pupils.
- Budget an overall 12.7 per cent increase in funds for secondary education to meet the needs of approximately 400 new students.
- Hire nine additional teachers for special education classes as well as one psychologist and eight educational aides.
- Hire 28 additional teachers to handle projected increases in enrollment.
- Purchase four additional special education vans and hire additional bus drivers as well as two new greasemen.
- Hire 11 additional employees to clean and maintain the district's three new elementary schools and addition to Plymouth Canton High.

Symphony celebrates anniversary

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's 30th anniversary celebration included the first performance of a folk ballet written for the occasion, recognition of Conductor Wayne Dunlap's 25th season with the orchestra, and a gala reception for more than 850 persons.

Orchestra members Bill Beitner and Louis Stout presented Dunlap with a silver baton, a gift from the musicians. Symphony Society President Jane Moehle presented the society's gift, an engraved pewter desk stand.

"When everyone talks about my 25 years with the orchestra," said Dunlap, "no one mentions the fact that I was only 14 when I started." When the laughter had subsided, he continued, "I feel like my old friend Pierre Monteux who signed a new 10-year contract when he was in his late 80s. I am ready to sign another 25-year contract."

MEMBERS OF the original orchestra were welcomed back, including Daisy Barnes, Edith Duranceau and Bill Beiter who played in the first concert and still are active members of the orchestra.

Dr. Henry Walch, chairman of the first advisory committee for the orchestra attended the concert and reception as well as many who had served on the symphony society board of directors over the years.

"Burning Tree," a Shaker folk ballet commissioned by the society as a special bicentennial project, highlighted the concert. The musical score was written by Robert W. Jones and the libretto by Ralph Kelley. Michelle Wolfe choreographed the dances and played the lead role of Dawn. The work was made possible by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and additional funding from the Plymouth Rotary Foundation and Schoolcraft College.

Rosemary Twomey, program coordinator for the Michigan Council for the Arts, said she was "very impressed" with "Burning Tree" and the orchestra.

SUSAN KEIG, an expert on Shakerism who brought part of her collection of Shaker photographs from Chicago, was very excited about about the ballet.

"It should be repeated," she said. She added that she would like to take it on national tour with her photographs. "It was well done."

"I finally wrote one with something the audience could go out humming," said composer Jones when he was being congratulated after the performance.

Kelley used real life incidents as a background for his story of life in a Shaker community. Dawn, danced by Ms. Wolfe, touches Richard, danced by Steve Raptis, when he is stung by a bee. This worldly action sets off a whole chain of events in which Dawn leaves the Shakers and returns widowed, babe in arms, to be repulsed once more by most of the members of the community. Richard's emotions finally win over his deep Shaker convictions, and the two are married.

Shaker costumes, background, dances and lighting combined with the music to make it a touching and memorable performance.

THE PLYMOUTH Symphony League arranged the reception in the lobby outside the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School. Honored guests, orchestra members and the audience visited the three long tables laden with tea sandwiches, cookies, cheese cake and punch.

Many took home Shaker cookies, wheaten bread and Ohio lemon pies from New Morning School's bake sale.

According to Ralph Atchley, secretary of the Plymouth Symphony Society, the audience will be sampling more of the Shaker ladies' fine recipes. Sixty Shaker Cookbooks were sold after the concert.

Canton gets ZIP

I am given to understand that we will now be on the state highway map.

"Right now, in all the state directories, if someone is interested in locating a business or factory here and they look it up it says see Plymouth. By the time they figure what's what they aren't even interested in the area.

"With our identity, however, we should have a better chance of attracting non-residential taxbase.

THE IMPLICATIONS of the change on the Plymouth post office are not fully known yet, according to Postal Operations Manager Jim Grater, but he said he thinks the change will present few problems at the Plymouth branch.

"I don't have all the details yet, but we already serve 60 per cent of Canton homes. We cover all of the township north of Cherry Hill and at some points below it. Most of the population is north of Cherry Hill, so we have always assumed most of the burden of Canton mailing already.

"Offhand I'm guessing that between five and seven routes coming from the offices in Belleville, Wayne and Ypsilanti will be affected. I'm not sure what will happen to the employees presently working those routes. I don't know whether they will now work out of Plymouth—that has to be decided."

Details of the change will take two to three weeks to work out, according to District Service Manager Joseph Loukotka, but he too agreed the Plymouth office already had the "Lion's share of the work."

"Ypsilanti makes up a very small amount of the mailing right now and I would say that Belleville serves about 500 homes while Wayne serves maybe 1,200."

Loukotka added that while the new numbers won't be effective for several weeks, residents can begin using the new numbers and designation now.

Young quits TCP

After reading the list of violations, Greenstein said he wanted the board's permission not to pursue the matter because of the failure of previous administrations to act on the violations.

He said the township was guilty of "latches" a term that means the township was negligent too long in charging Young and the previous owners with the violations.

Greenstein said an attempt now by the township to pursue the matter would probably not hold up in court.

The issue was tabled at the request of treasurer Carl Parsell, who said he would like to discuss the matter with Young.

Tuesday, the board put the matter back on the agenda without Young's knowledge and approved Greenstein's request—not to take action against Young.

YOUNG SAID he has not seen or talked to Parsell or any other member of the administration between the the meetings, and although tabled two weeks ago, the matter was not on Tuesday's board meeting agenda.

He added, "My decision to quit has not been influenced at all by the accusations made. They are of no consequence in as much as I have been very businesslike in keeping records. As far as I am concerned, 95 per cent of the data could not have any effect on me—it's either not true or not my doing.

"Financially, I haven't been existing and it's time now to get back to my only source of livelihood. I'm very disappointed I had to withdraw because I have always been a fighter and for the under dog.

"But I made an extreme personal sacrifice financially by being involved in TCP and I have to get on my feet.

"Frank (McMurray), I am sure will carry on. He's a good man."

Young added that he wished more people would get involved in civic matters and become more knowledgeable and he said he hoped to become active again once he got his business straightened out.

Canton Township Republicans set May 3 meeting

The Republican Independent Club of Canton Township has scheduled a meeting at 7:30 p.m., May 3, in Room 128 of Plymouth Canton High School, Canton Center Road at Joy.

Club secretary Pat Dombecki said this is the third open meeting of the club and agenda may be picked up at Peter Bundarin's office, Canton Center at Ford roads.

why we should pledge right now not to exceed 1.5 mills.

"Next year the SEV will be approximately $210 million, and one mill would raise $210,000. Our taxbase is increasing rapidly and so each year one mill raises more money. That's another reason why 1.5 mills is ample."

Flodin added that the entire township was run on five mills and Greenstein said, "This 10 mill stuff is nonsense.

"There's no way we could even spend that amount of money. Just because it's written into the act doesn't mean we're going to use the maximum. It's not the conception or the intent of the board."

Trustee Bob Myers said he thought 1.5 mills was too high an amount and he suggested using federal community development bloc grant funds to build the station.

"I think this will be defeated and ultimately it will fall back on us to build the station out of the general fund," he said.

Myers comments ignited Greenstein, who said, "I don't think the people of this township are so damn dumb as to vote this down. This will benefit the people on both the north and south side of Cherry Hill equally and I can't see the people denying this.

"If this is not approved we will be in deep trouble. The general budget cannot withstand a second fire station and I don't want to see another tragedy. The people of this township need protection and we're elected to see that they get it."

Myers replied that it would be hard to pass the millage when the township had spent $36,000 on a recreation hall it didn't own.

Greenstein responded, "You can stick that $36,000 recreation hall in your ear. If you keep giving people reason to believe we can afford to build the station out of the general fund we may very well lose this millage election and then you will be responsible.

"THIS IS NO game to play. This is a matter of life and death."

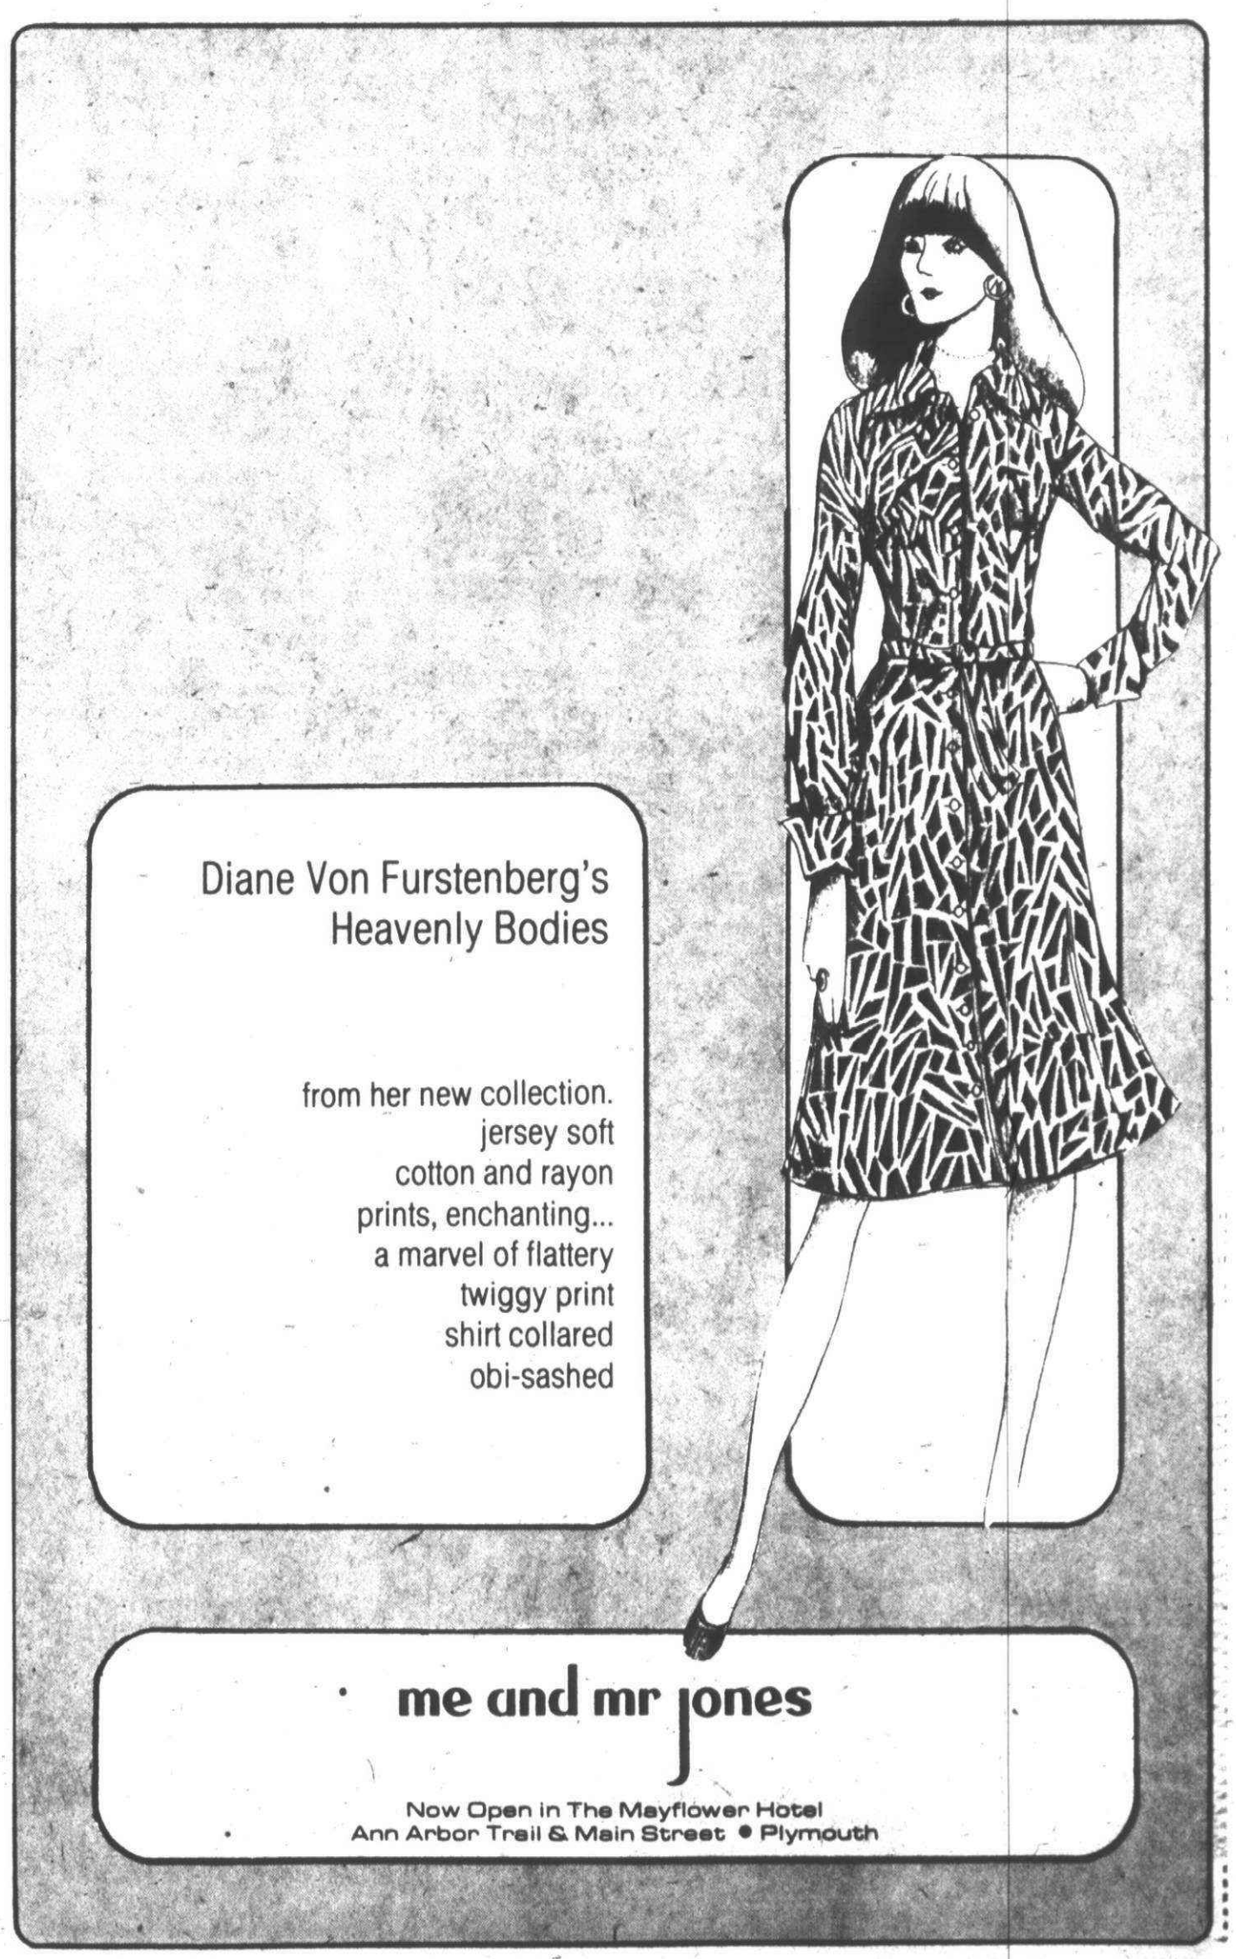

After Myers replied that Greenstein was using scare tactics, Trustee Gerald Cheske said it was the board's responsibility to sell the millage.

"I think it is irresponsible to say the public will turn it down. How do you know?

"We have a job to do. We need the millage and we need another fire station."

Greenstein added that he thought it would pass judging from the residents he had talked to. "I'm available right now to talk to any groups that want to know about the fire station. Anyone that wants to hear one of us talk on it should call and we'll arrange it.

"We want to sell this thing to the public."

Historical society is forming

Members of the Canton Historical Society are scouring through barnyards and subdivisions in search of residents with an inkling about the past.

The infant organization, founded last fall to unearth tidbits of Canton's nearly-forgotten history, is seeking members who will lend directional and financial support.

The organization so far has 12 dues-paying members, according to provisional secretary Henrietta Burch, while a few dozen more Canton residents have displayed interest in the group.

According to Miss Burch, society members have not yet set concrete objectives for the group.

"So far, we've all agreed to creep before we run," Miss Burch said. "It's quite an expensive and time-consuming undertaking to take on any project. What we do has to be up to the membership."

The brainchild of Canton residents Fredrica Rossi and Mary Hauk, the society will attempt to fill the gaps in Canton's known history, whatever specific goals are set.

Mrs. Rossi discovered the lack of information concerning the township's past while working on an historical pamphlet for the League of Women Voters.

"When I started doing the research, I found there wasn't much written about Canton at all," Mrs. Rossi recalled. "It was really a problem. I had to talk to a lot of older residents to find things out."

Discussions with Mrs. Hauk about Canton's past laid the groundwork for the future organization.

"I've always been interested in history," Mrs. Rossi explained, "and I thought it would be great to work out a history of the township. I was the one interested in writing a history, but Mrs. Hauk thought it would be a good idea to start an organization to help compile it."

The two telephoned neighbors and friends who where interested in history, Mrs. Rossi recalled, and a first meeting attended by about 40 Canton residents, was held. The director of the Michigan Historical Society offered clues on establishing a new group.

Since that first meeting, the historical society has met two more times to approve bylaws and appoint temporary officers. Regular officers will be elected at the group's October meeting.

The society's primary objective now is the enrollment of new members.

According to Miss Burch, membership is open to anyone interested in history whether they reside in Canton Township or not. Annual membership dues range from $5 to $50, depending on the membership status, while dues for life-time members are set at $100 in one payment.

Persons interested in joining the Canton Historical Society should contact Miss Burch at 43655 Joy or other members of the group's organization committee. Members of that committee include chairperson Ruth Simmons, Ruth Wiles, Bob Simmons, Mrs. Hauk and Mrs. Rossi.

The group's next regular meeting is July 14 in the Canton Recreation Hall. Meetings are scheduled quarterly on the second Wednesday of January, April, July and October.

May is designated 'cleanup' month

Large groups of Canton residents will haul out brooms and shovels and plastic garbage bags next month, if officials' efforts to launch a township-wide spring cleaning meets with success.

In efforts to repeat the success of last year's spring cleanup, Canton officials have declared May clean-up month to turn the township into a spic-and-span municipality.

"We have lots and lots of things for people to do," said township office worker Pam Phillips. "There's projects all over the township. As we grow, the problem of debris is getting worse. People complain about mosquitos and things, yet people are causing the problems with their own debris."

Canton officials hope residents join township clean-up groups to help cleanup areas around shopping centers and vacant lots. The township will provide plastic garbage bags and the services of DPW trucks.

So far, only the Lions Club has promised its services for the spring cleaning projects. Other residents or service clubs who wish to help should call Mrs. Phillips at township hall.

To help residents clean their own homes and backyards, Canton officials will allow residents to dump one truck load of debris at the township dump, on Lilley south of Michigan, for free during the latter segment of clean-up month.

The dump, normally open on Mondays and Wednesdays, will remain open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. during the free dumping period, scheduled from May 15 to May 29.

Persons who wish to take advantage of the free-dumping period must obtain a permit at township hall. The dump will take most junk, excluding automobiles.

Persons who work during the dump's expanded hours may deposit trash in two garbage bins which township workers will install on the recreation field parking lot on Canton Center north of Cherry Hill. The bins will remain on the site during the entire month of May.

The Salvation Army, Mrs. Phillips added, will move old furniture and used appliances too good for the garbage dump from the first floor of homes or garages.

Fieldbrook group elects committee

The Fieldbrook Community Health Association has elected its executive committee.

Upon formation, the board reaffirmed its purpose which is to bring comprehensive mental health services to all the communities of this catchment area, including the cities of Livonia, Northville and Plymouth and the townships of Canton, Northville, Plymouth and Redford.

Board chairperson Jim Spilos said, "We want responsible mental health care to be available to all the peoples of our communities as it's needed. Working with our neighboring communities we are anxious to facilitate the state plans outlined for similar catchment areas throughout Michign."

Those elected to the executive committee were Spilos, chairperson; Solomon Goldfarb, vice-chairman; Sally Schanstra, recording secretary; Margaret Chavey, corresponding secretary; Michael McIntyre, treasurer.

Board members are: James Anthony, Livonia; S. R. Cho, MD, Northville State Hospital; Mary Connely, Wayne County Dept. Public Health; Margaret Cressman, Garden City; Ruth Daniels, Livonia; Jack Frauenheim, Farmington; Joan Goff, Wayne County Dept. Public Health; Vivian Hampton, Madonna College; Sandra Huppenbauer, Plymouth; James Ingils, City of Livonia; Colleen Mahon, Redford; Gary Miner, Livonia; Mary Naboychik, Livonia; Barbara Pedersen, Plymouth; Steve Rice, Livonia; Peter Rogissart, Plymouth; Mildred Rowlson, Redford Twp., Larry Schweiger, Livonia; Ed Schweir, Livonia.

Serving on the finance committee will be: Kathryn Socha and Robert Townsend, both of Livonia; Marion Widget, Redford Township; Gay Winter, Madonna College; and Ted Taylor, Plymouth.

Mark VanRiper in 'JA contest

Mark VanRiper, 17, a senior at John Glenn High School in Westland is one of 45 Junior Achievement company officers who will compete in the annual JA of southeastern Michigan Officer of the Year contest.

The Canton Township resident will vie for one of nine offices Friday in the Michigan Inn, Southfield. Offices are president, vice president of sales, purchasing manager, vice president of maufacturing, safety director, corporate secretary, personnel director and bank executive.

One winner will be chosen from each category and then go on to national competition in Bloomington, Ind. in August.

VanRiper is a member of Vertz JA Company sponsored by Michigan truck Division, Ford Motor Co., Wayne Center.

Snapper mowers have vacuum action that cleans your lawn as you mow. Another reason Snapper is fast. The center-mounted grass catcher holds 2½ bushels so you empty less often. And the rear-wheel drive on all self-propelled mowers gives greater traction. As the grass catcher fills, rear-wheel traction gets even better. Snapper's automatic free-wheeling feature makes for safer control. Pick up a Snapper. Fast.

I-96 reserved bus lane is worth a good wager

By TIM RICHARD

If you're a betting person, you can wager that the I-96 Jeffries Freeway will have a reserved lane for buses and other high occupancy vehicles.

If it happens, it will be the first in the state, although designated lanes are used in California and the District of Columbia.

"In most cities, a reserved lane is established later, after the freeway is opened," said Gary Krause, planning director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"But here we have an opportunity to establish the concept of a reserved lane as the freeway comes on line."

THE LONG-AWAITED Jeffries is expected to be completed largely by the end of the 1976 construction season, several years after it was due.

It follows the route of Grand River from downtown Detroit to Schoolcraft Road, then Schoolcraft through northwest Detroit, Redford Township and Livonia, and Haggerty Road north to the present I-96 in Farmington Hills.

Under the regional council's transportation plan, which is to be implemented by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA), the Jeffries corridor would be the last in the metropolitan area to get a rapid transit (rail) line.

Meanwhile, Krause's staff and the council's general assembly propose express bus service for western Wayne County. That's what stimulated the thinking about a reserved lane.

"IT'S NOT JUST for buses," said Krause, "but for high occupancy vehicles. A car pool could be defined as a vehicle carrying three or more persons.

"We did some study work on the idea during 1973-74, in the first phase of the Jeffries from downtown. The result was that it looked as if it was reasonable, and that it could be appropriate once the Jeffries was opened past Southfield Road."

A California reserved lane is painted with diamonds. The thinking in southeast Michigan is to designate a "green lane," said Krause.

A designated lane might carry fewer vehicles than the average lane of a freeway. But the key point, said Krause, is that it would carry more people.

THE STATE HIGHWAY Commission and the SEMTA board must ultimately decide the question, but Krause said "it's safe to say there will be a reserved lane."

It's more complicated, however, than just painting some markers on the pavement.

"We'll have to take a look at the potential market. We'll look at the current bus routes and the feasibility of feeding some of those routes into this. And we'll look at the interfaces with other forms of transportation," said Krause.

One practical problem will be parking space along the Jeffries for commuters going downtown, he said. No longer do transportation planners think in terms of door-to-door public transit. Rather, they think in terms of "mixed modes"—a car and an express bus, a local bus and an express bus, bus and rail, and so on.

And so there are likely to be park-and-ride lots—or, as the fellas say, "kiss and ride" lots.

VIOLATORS are a problem. Some drivers with fewer than three or four passengers will try to use the reserved lane if they think they can get away with it.

"California is zapping violators almost instantly," said Krause. "It takes enforcement that's something between the National Guard and the U.S. Marines to implement."

Some California drivers have been known to set up mannequins to make it appear they are really car pools.

There's some psychology to this reserved lane business. A driver alone in his car in a traffic jam looks at the reserved lane and sees buses and car pools skimming along. So he sees the light, environmentally speaking, and takes the bus himself or starts a car pool.

MICHIGAN ONCE had a plan for such use of public transportation on a freeway, Krause recalled.

"On the Ford Freeway in the vicinity of Woodward, you can see the vestiges of a bus turnout, a landing and a stairs leading to the surface road. But it was never used," he said.

The reason is that the Ford was overused. It was built to handle 80,000 to 100,000 vehicles a day and instead it's carrying 180,000.

"You know, there's a lot of exciting things in this concept of management of transportation," said Krause. "You realize that inflation is killing us on construction costs. If we can carry more people on what we've got . . ."

A Washington reserved lane carries bumper-to-bumper buses, he said, and more persons than the rest of the freeway.

Grand River has had a reversible lane—one that's eastbound in the morning rush hour and westbound in the evening. Washington has an entire road that's reversible.

A possibility with toll roads is to charge lower rates for car pools than for vehicles carrying only a single passenger, he said. Thus, persons who conserve fuel by carrying several riders are rewarded with a lower fee.

But that idea is speculation. The immediate project is a reserved bus lane on Jeffries. Krause said persons and city councils who like the idea can urge the highway department and SEMTA to expedite the work.

Renaissance on Penniman Avenue

By ELINOR GRAHAM

First visible signs to passersby of the drastic renovation that has been in progress on Penniman Avenue are the new wrought iron gates with three mail boxes and a lacy wrought iron fence atop the building east of the post office.

"I love Penniman Avenue," said Garey Beglinger who started her project early in January, "and even if I go broke, I will have had the satisfaction doing my part in improving the street."

Mrs. Beglinger's new look begins at the entrance. The old single door has been replaced by the gates.

"Later on, we'll have small trees on either side. I'll use some tile from there to replace this broken tile right in front," she said.

The single door used to lead to the entrance to Pettingill's grocery store. "I used to shop there when I first came to Plymouth as a bride. They used to deliver groceries and help me figure out the ration stamps," she laughed.

THE DOUBLE entry doors now are revealed, framed by panels of etched glass.

The doors open into a spacious hallway which leads to what will be a laundry room and basement entrance. On the left, a wide staircase with graceful banister leads to the second floor which has been the scene of radical architectural surgery.

Walls have been moved, new entranceways cut and beautiful old hardwood floors rubbed down to create three apartments, each with a private roof garden.

Two of the apartments will have Franklin stoves. Each will have a modern bathroom and kitchen, butcher block counter tops and dishwasher. Beamed ceilings, plate rails, pantry and ample closet space are planned. The garden apartment has wide stairs, the steps extended beyond the wrought iron railing to hold potted plants. Sliding window doors open onto a roof garden.

"I want to keep this one natural," she said. "There will be a tree in the corner, shredded bark and tree rounds, and a bamboo privacy fence across the back. Each will have a private roof garden. The others will have plantings around the perimeter with Astro-Turf in the lawn areas."

THE VIEWS from the windows and roof gardens are entrancing. Mrs. Beglinger had to use existing windows, and where there wasn't a view, she is creating one—with mirrors.

"This corner sink looks right onto a wall. I'm going to put an outdoor mirror on the wall, another one at a slight angle inside, and you have Main Street, library, city hall and the museum."

Fire and safety regulations have been responsible for some slight changes in planning. The skylight will lose its natural effect by the necessity of day-round artificial lighting. Although sticking closely to building codes, Mrs. Beglinger's ability to combine old and new has charming results.

Old pantry doors are used to great effect on a bathroom linen closet. Floors which do not warrant refinishing will be carpeted. A lattice-work arch at the top of the stairs was constructed from lath the old walls.

THE WHOLE project has been Garey Beglinger's brain-child but she has been there every day—stripping layers of paint from doors, papering, painting and stipling ceilings.

"We have to hang new slab doors for the apartment entrances," she said. "Each will be painted a different color—green, brown, and yellow— with a large wooden numeral, one, two or three."

An open house celebration is planned for May 16. There still is much to be done but Garey and her crew are odds-on favorites to beat the deadline.

Architect clarifies building plans

A statement of clarification on construction plans for the three new elementary schools of the Plymouth Community School District has been issued by Peter Tarapata.

Tarapata is the principal member of the architectural firm of Tarapata MacMahon Paulsen Associates, Inc. (TMP) which has designed Eriksson, Hulsing, Field elementaries in Canton.

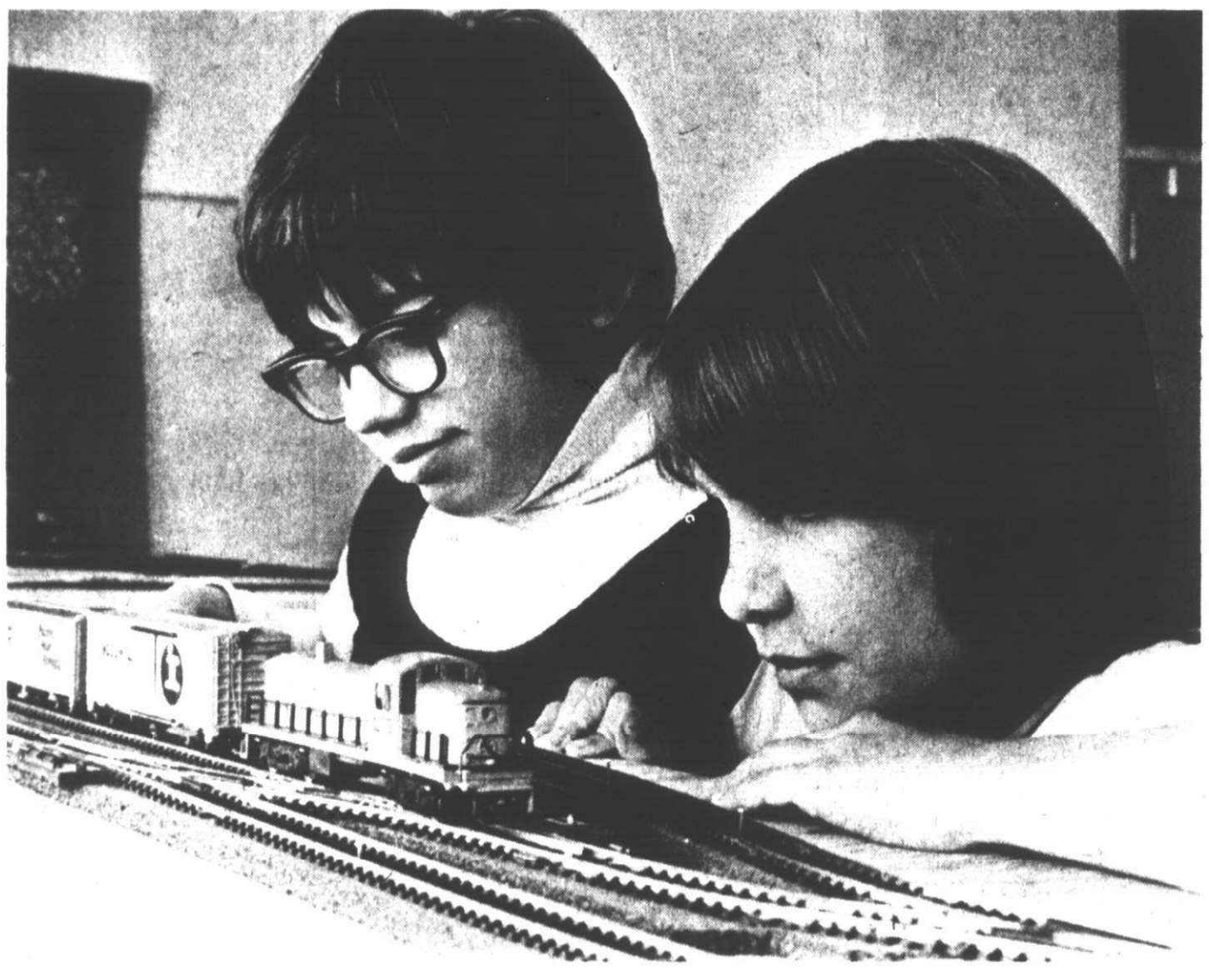

Tarapata corrects the suggestion made earlier that the three buildings were designed as open plan schools.

"Actually, all three buildings are designed to have highly flexible interiors which can accommodate a variety of teaching styles," he says. "This is the trend in current school planning.

"The spaces within can be compartmented in the traditional fashion or they can be opened up to any degree desired. How the school will be actually used will be the choice of the people using it.

"There is another benefit resulting from the flexible planning. By being flexible and not fixed in the interior, the buildings will be kept from becoming obsolete. The schools aren't locked into one method of teaching, but are easily adjusted to meet evolving teaching techniques. They will thus always remain up to date."

Tarapata stressed he wanted to assure residents that the buildings' design "will not inhibit their freedom of choice as to how they want to educate their children."

Gallimore, Farrand in museum's spotlight

Two elementary schools—Farrand and Gallimore—share the Spotlight on School Bicentennials this week in the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Heritage displays made by students will be shown in the Plymouth Historical Museum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, April 29, and Saturday, May 1, and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, May 2.

While their school projects are on display, children from Farrand and Gallimore will have free admission to the museum when accompanied by a paying adult relative.

FARRAND'S ON-GOING bicentennial project is the restoration of South Salem Stone School.

The old school house, built in 1857, is located in the middle of Farrand's attendance area, and is a familar sight to many Farrand students. Plans are to restore the school to its original condition and to provide a setting where all district school children can learn about their past by spending the day in an "old-fashioned" school. The old-fashioned school setup will be similar to the one in Greenfield Village.

Students, staff and parents at Farrand have already begun clean-up and repair work at the old school. They also have established the Stone School Fund with hopes of raising the money needed for full restoration and continuing community use of the old school building and grounds.

In their own school building, Farrand pupils have been celebrating America's 200th anniversary in a variety of ways. In February they held a bicentennial birthday week. During the week staff and students wore colonial costumes.

Classes tried projects and activities that could have been carried on in schools in earler times, and studied people and events from the colonial past. Climaxing the birthday week celebration was an all-school sing-a-long featuring patriotic American music. Following the sing-a-long, students enjoyed Happy Birthday USA cake furnished by the school's room mothers.

Farrand pupils have tried their hand at a number of colonial crafts—making soap, churning butter, baking bread and Johnny Cake, quilting and patchwork sewing, and dipping candles. Others made hornbooks, early American paper ring flags, and model log cabins and forts.

All grades are working together to capture the spirit of the bicentennial in a 34-inch square hooked rug featuring the bicentennial symbol. The finished rug will be hung in the school to commemorate the 1976 year. Also capturing the spirit of this special year are bicentennial class pictures taken of all Farrand teachers and students in their colonial costumes.

GALLIMORE STUDENTS have made the bicentennial part of their daily school activities.

The school "radio station" features a "Bicentennial Blurb" along with the daily school news on the PA system. Students are learning many interesting U.S. history facts while doing research for these broadcast blurbs.

The school media center distributes red, white and blue bookmarks picturing a lively revolutionary soldier under the caption "Be a free spirit at Gallimore's Media Center." All Gallimore pupils dress in the flag colors on the first Wednesday of each month.

Bicentennial projects include a plush hooked rug with a bicentennial motif and a three-by-two foot Liberty Bell made from bottle caps. Some pupils have made patchwork quilts.

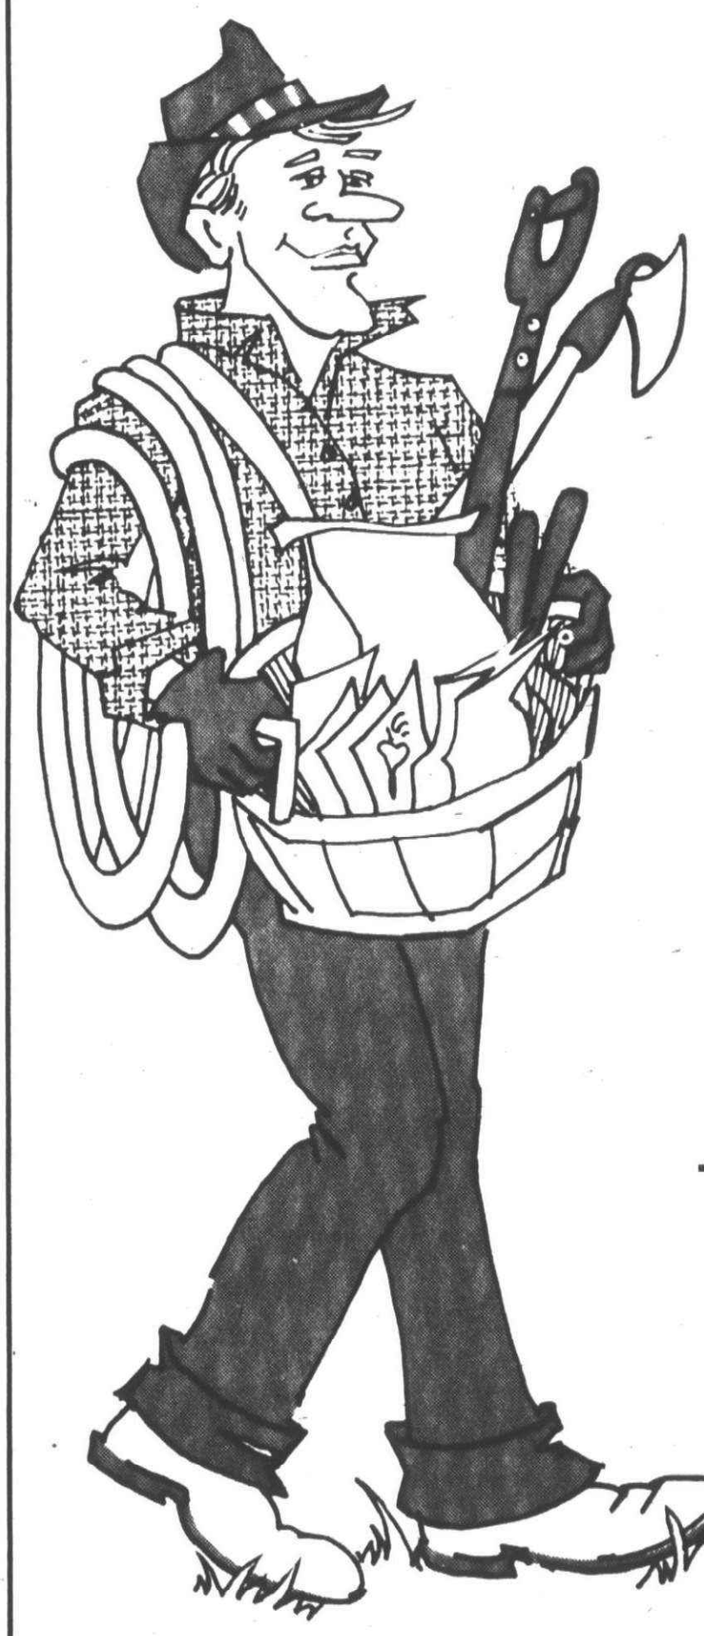

Others are building an HO railroad system in their classroom to commemorate the first U.S. railroad. One fifth grade class visited the Detroit Institute of Arts to view a stage presentation of "The Ride of Paul Revere."

A major school-wide project for 1976 has been the adoption of a Detroit Zoo giraffe named Tillie. All classes have worked hard selling popcorn, flower seeds, tickets for a giraffe cake, and even a cookbook to raise $500 to support the giraffe.

Gallimore's big bicentennial celebration will be an "All Colonial Day" event in May. During the day students will follow early American school procedures. The morning activities will open with psalm singing in the gym.

All classes will be cross-graded for the day, and pupils will sample the kinds of lessons pioneer children were taught. Even the games played will be the same as those enjoyed by colonial children.

Gallimore's constant reminder of the U.S. bicentennial is the Bennington Bicentennial flag which has been flying over the school all year.

The Stroller

On Dutch treats

By W. W. EDGAR

When the phone rang the feminine voice on the other end asked, very excitedly, "Are you the man who writes about the Pennsylvania Dutch Country?"

When The Stroller pleaded guilty, the feminine voice said, "Good, now you can help me."

What kind of help was wanted?

"We are planning a trip to the East for the bicentennial celebration," she answered. "We are going to Philadelphia where the real history started and we're driving.

"We've got all sorts of pamphlets telling us about the historical sites—Independence Hall, Betsy Ross' home, Christ Church and Valley Forge. But we're interested in trying the famed Dutch cooking and none of the pamphlets has the restaurants listed. That's where you could help, please."

THE STROLLER had to smile. This was the first time that he ever had been asked to guide people to food on such journey and yet it was a plausible question.

He lost no time in telling his excited caller that when they arrived in Philadelphia they were near the site of Bookbinders, one of the most famous of all seafood houses which they shouldn't miss.

"Long before you get to Philadelphia," The Stroller cautioned, "you can get your first taste of real Pennsylvania Dutch cooking. Just leave the turnpike at Harrisburg and take Route 22 to Cartellsville. There you'll find a famous restaurant that deals in family-style serving and you can eat all you want.

"Then forget Philadelphia for a bit and continue on the revamped expressway until you arrive at Schoenersville, close by the ABE airport. At the Inn you'll find Pennsylvania Dutch cooking at its best."

The Stroller then advised her what to look for and what not to miss.

At this section of the country, he told her, you'll see road houses advertising chicken and waffles. It may seem like a queer combination. But once you try it you'll never miss it again.

The Dutch have a long established policy of serving rich, yellow chicken gravy with every meal. So, when you order chicken and waffles you get a big golden waffle first, then a pitcher of chicken gravy. The waitress won't tell you, but the gravy is to be poured over the waffle instead of syrup. And if ever there was a good Dutch dish, this is it.

WHEN YOU ARE in this section of the country it is only a few miles to Walp's Restaurant in Bethlehem—one of the main centers for the fabled "shoo-fly" pie. If you've never eaten shoo-fly pie, it is like a molasses cake that has fallen.

It is baked in a regular pie crust with a sort of heavy syrupy base. Then they pour in the cake batter and top it with a heavy sprinkling of lumpy flour and baked. This is a dish for a king.

Headed again toward Philadelphia you go through places like Kutztown, Reading and Lancaster—the very heart of the Dutch country. And you shouldn't leave without trying some of the best dishes—dishes you don't find once you cross the state line into Ohio or Maryland.

First, in the morning, you should have a breakfast of scrapple and pancakes. For your heavy meal at noon or in the evening, you should have sauerkraut and "speck" (fatty pork). This is standard and no restaurant worth its name is without it.

The big surprise, however, should be reserved for a Sunday dinner of ham and eggs at one of the old style road houses beyond the city limits.

When The Stroller took the little woman east for the first time and suggested ham and eggs for Sunday dinner she frowned. But when she saw what she was getting it was another story.

At one of these dinners you start with the traditional golden waffle and chicken gravy. Then come the eggs such as you never have seen. They are done "sunny side up" but in a small pan. This method produces real thick egg whites, maybe as thick as two inches. The yoke are just yellow dots on the top.

This is common fare. There is no need to search out any restaurant.

So The Stroller left his caller in a happy mood as she visioned meals of chcken and waffles, chicken gravy at every meal, scrapple for breakfast and egg whites two inches thick.

That's Pennsylvania Dutch cooking and if you are going East for the bicentennial you shouldn't miss these tasty treats.

The Stroller's mouth is "watering" just writing about them.

Candles reflect many meanings

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

Every religion known to man has used candles in one way or another.

A Byzantine Catholic priest told me that candles represent Christ to him, since Christ, like the candle, gave His life to provide light for the world.

One of the great symbols of Judiasm is the menorah, a seven-branched candlestick. The menorah is first mentioned in the book of Exodus (chapters 25 and 37) where God instructs Moses to have it made.

Candles have also been used in Hinduism, Buddhism, Zoroastrianism, Confuciansim and Islam, as well as by many less known religious sects and cults.

TO EARLY man, fire resembled and represented the sun.

It makes no difference what your religion may be, candle-burning brings consolation and solace.

In witchcraft we use candles in many ways. One of the ways is to burn them for special intentions, or as a focus for our powers in spell-casting.

Symbolic candles made in special shapes such as men, women, houses and so on are sometimes used, and often, candles of special colors are chosen. Some of the popular symbolic colors are:

•Green—for wealth, money, financing success or good crops.
•Gold—for attraction or drawing power.
•Red—for love, health and vigor.
•Blue—for things of a spiritual nature.

ANY CANDLE used in this way should be properly "dressed" for best results. Dressing, in this case, means anointing with oil. To dress a candle, there are very specific rules to be followed. The top of the candle is thought of as the north pole, and the bottom as the south pole.

With your fingers, apply an appropriate oil (rose for love, pine for money and so on) in short strokes from the center of the candle to the top (north pole). Never rub it backwards, just from the center to the top. Then follow the same procedure from the center to the bottom (south pole) of the candle. I repeat, never use a back-and-forth stroke. Always rub from the center up and from the center down.

Through this dressing you magnetize the candle and impress your wishes on it.

It is then ready for your occult use.

Olivet College plans workshop

The Center for Economic Education at Olivet College is ready for its fifth summer workshop in economic education Aug. 2-20 on the Olivet campus.

The program, aimed at elementary and secondary school teachers and administrators, is designed to help them gain information and techniques for better economic education programs.

Teachers who have participated in previous programs return to the classroom with a great deal of enthusiasm in teaching economic concepts, according to Myrtle Beinhauer, center director.

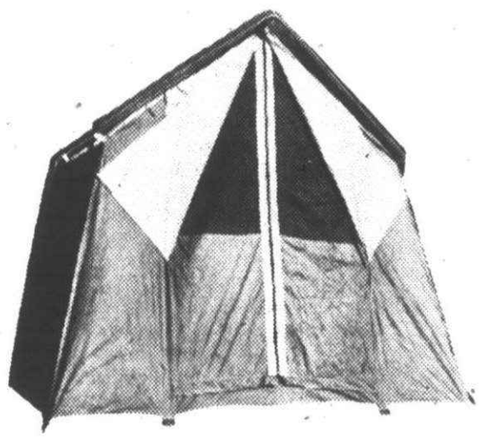

"It is vital for our young people to understand the economy if the free enterprise system is to grow and possibly even to survive," said Ms. Beinhauer.

Teachers may earn three semester hours of graduate credit upon completion of the workshop. Some scholarships are available which cover tuition, room, board and all required instructional costs.

For more information contact Ms. Beinhauer, director, Economic Education Center, Olivet College, Olivet 49076.

North end had its own newspaper

"Next week will see our village in gay attire," wrote J.H. Steers, in the first issue of the "Plymouth Mail," on Sept. 16, 1887. Steers was referring to the coming convention of the 24th Michigan Infantry Regiment of Civil War fame.

"The old veterans in their suits of blue, marching through our streets, escorted by brass bands with their enlivening music and followed by hundreds, or more likely thousands, of citizens from both city and country. Flags will be flying and many of the business places and residences tastefully decorated with the red, white and blue."

Page one of the first issue of the "Mail" also informed the female reader that she could buy a good skirt at A.A. Tafft's for 30 cents; that Smith, the peach man northwest of town, had about 140 bushels of peaches this season; and that the young ladies of the Baptist Church were to give a peaches and cream social at the parsonage that night.

Dominating the page was a large advertisement by George Starkweather, who operated a general store on Liberty Street. Starkweather's ad promised "Fidelity to honest, old-time principles, justice to our patrons and friends."

PLYMOUTH— PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

J.H. STEERS announced his retirement on Feb. 2, 1894, stating that he had sold the "Mail" to a man from Alpena, Myles F. Gray. For the next few years, Gray was the sole publisher and editor of the "Mail," but he did have a partner, Herbert J. Baker.

Baker was the nephew of Henry Baker, later president of the Daisy Air Rifle Company, and of Chauncey Baker, postmaster of Plymouth from 1893 to 1897. Herbert Baker was the clerk of the Village of Plymouth in 1898 when George Starkweather was president.

On Oct. 16, 1896, Gray sold his interest in the "Mail" to E. William Balch, editor of the "Brighton Argus." It was announced in the "Mail" that Gray was moving to Cass City to establish a new newspaper, but that Baker, "who has been connected with the paper for the past three years," would continue with Balch as one of the proprietors.

The names of Baker and Balch appeared on the masthead of the "Mail" as joint owners until the fall of 1897 when Balch apparently assumed sole proprietorship. Then, on Feb. 11, 1898, Baker and Gray were back at the helm, announcing in an editorial that "we have again assumed management of the "Mail."

They went on to advise "cranks with pet hobbies to please nurse them at home. We want news." At that time, the "Mail" still sold for $1 a year. A "resolution of condolence" inserted in the paper sold for 50 cents and a card of thanks for 25 cents.

THE CHAIN OF events which led Balch to resell the "Mail" to Baker and Gray were recounted in the "Plymouth Observer" in 1968 by George Mack Adams, who began his newspaper career here as a printer's devil for a rival of the "Mail," the "North End Independent." (Adams later became owner and editor of the "Wyandotte Daily Record."

"The proprietor of the "Mail" wanted to sell, and Gray and Baker wanted to buy," recalled Adams. "The only thing that stood in the way was money—and the price. The owner wanted $3,800 and Baker and Gray concluded that price was $1,000 too high.

"They decided to start a second paper in Plymouth. They worked out a plan whereby Baker would keep his job in an out-in-the-state paper and save what he could toward the down price to be paid for the "Mail." Gray would run the new paper, the "North End Independent" alone, except for a local news reporter, which proved to be myself.

The "Independent" got out its first issue in the late summer of 1897. (Gray established his office over the Jolliffe General Store in the north end of the village). The idea back of the "North End Independent" was that if the new paper caught on it would make the owner of the "Mail" reconsider his price of $3,800.

"And though the "Independent" wasn't much of a paper, it got quite a lot of local advertising and subscriptions, and did just what Baker and Gray had anticipated. After a few months of operation—I think it was a little over six months—the owner of the "Mail" capitulated and Baker and Gray became owners and publishers of the "Mail."

THEIR TENURE was of short duration.

On June 24, 1899, Baker and Gray sold the "Plymouth Mail" once again; this time to F.W. Samsen, of Saginaw. In his opening editorial, Samsen announced that his son, Lawrence B., would be doing "the outside work." Later, the son moved up the ladder, publishing and editing the paper from 1915 through 1930, while his father ran the job shop end of the business.

When the Samsen's ran the "Mail" it was located on Penniman Avenue, just west of the alley across from the post office. They ran a low-key operation, preferring to eschew local arguments. An example was their decision not to get the paper involved in the 1926 civic dispute which culminated in the establishment of Starkweather School. "They wouldn't put anything controversial in the paper," Sidney Strong and Karl Starkweather told me.

On Nov. 1, 1930, the elder Samsen, who had owned the "Plymouth Mail" for 31 years, sold it to Elton R. Eaton and his son, Sterling. Between them, the Eatons were to operate the paper for the next 34 years.

(Part III will continue the story of newspapers in Plymouth).

Recreation maps in library

Just in time for summer vacation, highway and recreational information maps for all counties in Michigan are now available for use in the Dunning-Hough Library.

These maps provide all of the information necessary for the bicyclist, camper, and lvoer of outdoor sports.

Among the features are clearly defined state highways and county roads, campground locations, state and federal lands open to general recreational use, park and picnic area locations, and public access sites to Michigan's many lakes and rivers.

The library has a full set of maps, including both the lower and upper peninsulas, for use in the building.

The library also is pleased to announce that it now has a book drop available for the convenience of its patrons. The book drop is near the rear doors of the building and will be open during the hours the library is closed.

Two new historical collections are now in the front display cases of the library. One is a collection of 19th century book bindings. Examples of the different bindings are shown, along with accompanying notes on their differences.

The other display is a collection of baseball memorabilia. Included in this exhibit are autographed postcards, team pictures, old baseball cards, schedules, and programs.

Have a look at Lindy's plane

Charles A. Lindburgh climbed into his monoplane "The Spirit of St. Louis" in New York on May 20, 1927 and took off for Paris in an attempt to win a $25,000 prize offered for the first solo nonstop flight across the Atlantic.

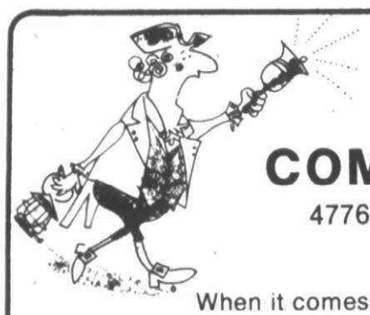

Lindbergh's plane was stocked with 451 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil, but no lights, heat, radio, automatic pilot or de-icing equipment.

Thirty-three and a half hours later, "Lucky Lindy" landed in Paris and was greeted by a cheering crowd of 100,000.

An exact replica of Lindbergh's plane—the one used by actor Jimmy Stewart in the movie "The Spirit of St. Louis"—is on display at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

Shelter says be kind to pet

Nobody is more aware that May 2-8 is Be Kind to Animals Week than Ray Sowards, director of the Michigan Humane Society's Westland shelter.

More than 2,500 animals a month are handled by three Humane Society animal shelters in the metropolitan area. Many of the animals that Sowards sees coming into the Westland shelter are there simply because nobody wanted the responsibility for them anymore.

"When someone brings in a dog they've had for six years or so just because they don't want it anymore, I wonder how they can be so callous," Soward says.

"It's like giving up a child."

SOWARDS BLAMES part of the animal abandonment on owners' excessive expectations of their pets. "It's what I call the 'Walt Disney syndrome'."

"People seem to think if they talk to the dog long enough it will begin to talk back."

Another problem is that kittens turn into cats. When that cute, fuzzy little ball of fur turns into a rakish tomcat, the owner may drop it off at the shelter.

According to Sowards, the shelter also gets litters of kittens and puppies from people who want their children to witness the "miracle of birth." "I think the schools should show movies on the miracle of birth," Sowards says.

SOMETIMES THE shelter has to handle complaints about cruelty to animals. "We get about five calls a day," Sowards says.

"Some of the calls are just from neighbors who are mad at each other. We have to weed these cases out."

According to Sowards, the shelter sends out pet courtesy letters to people who have had complaints made against them. If the problem isn't solved through this measure, the case is turned over to the central shelter in Detroit.

Cruelty cases are hard to prosecute," he says.

"Very stiff guidelines are set up, evidence must be very strong and vets are reluctant to testify."

THERE IS a brighter side to the shelter's work. Many animals are placed in new homes. The Westland shelter, which serves as a dog pound for five area communities, also returns many strays to their owners.

One of the placement programs at the center is called "Adopt an All-American Mutt." Certificates that resemble mock pedegrees are given to new owners.

The shelter will also sponsor a float in honor of Be Kind to Animals Week in the May 2 bicentennial parade down Woodward Ave.

THE OBJECT of these programs is to get more people into the shelter to adopt pets. According to Sowards, Dogs cost $25 to adopt and cats, $16. A $10 rebate is given to the owner if the pet is spayed or neutered within six months.

The price includes the animal's first set of shots. The shelter will exchange pets within 10 days after adoption if a problem arises.

"That's as good a guarantee as any pet shop in town," Sowards says.

'200'-mile marathon to roll May 14-16

The 16th annual Pepsi-Wolverine 200-mile bicycling marathon will get under way at 9:30 a.m., May 15.

Between 7,000 and 10,000 riders are expected on the Belle Isle course which will be closed to auto traffic.

Preceding the marathon, the national tourist championships—a bicycle skill and knowledge test—will start at 4 p.m., May 14.

Both events are open to riders at least 12 years old.

THE MARATHON is not a race; it is a recreational, family-oriented inexpensive weekend of cycling and camping.

Riders cycle at their own pace, stopping at any time for rest or refreshments.

Patches are awarded for distances completed within time limits: 25 miles in three hours; 50 miles in four hours; 100 miles in 10 hours; or 200 miles in 24 hours. Additional awards are presented in a wide range of other categories including best riding groups and the most unusual bike.

Prizes will be awarded on the bais of the tourist evaluation competiton (TEC) test.

RIDERS CAN enter by having forms signed by a bike dealer (and a parent if the rider is under 18 years of age), by having their bikes safety-checked and by sending their entry forms to the Wolverine Sports Club, c/o Mike Walden, 12500 Wade, Detroit 48213.

Entry forms are coded and filed and on the day of the event, entrants pick up bib numbers which are stamped each time they pass gates marking the start and finish of laps.

Fees are $3 for the marathon and $2 for the national tourist championships. Family fees are also available.

TENTS, CAMPERS, trailers, station wagon or just sleeping bags will be accommodated for camping on the island for this event. The casino will be open for 24-hour food service.

A registered nurse, ski patrol and volunteers will provide first aid. Mechanics from Raleigh Midwest will be on hand to assist bikers whose bikes break down.

Depression glass sale set

Twenty-nine dealers representing 10 states, and more than 100 tables of glassware will be part of the second all-depression-era glass show and sale May 1 and 2 at Oakland University, Rochester.

Items include complete dinner sets, kitchen ware, dresser sets, clocks, lamps, decanter and bar sets, fishbowls, vases, ash trays and many other reminders of the Great Depression of the 30s.

The show will be opened from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. A donation of $1 per person will be asked and it is good for both days.

Judge notes REO facts

By TIM RICHARD

A federal judge has found that, with a few noteworthy exceptions, "It has been the clear, overt policy of Real Estate One not to differentiate in the treatment of salespeople, prospective sellers and prospective buyers by reason of race."

U.S. District Judge James Churchill this week revealed his findings of fact in the three-year-old case against one of Michigan's largest brokers in existing housing sales.

But his all-important order won't be issued until sometime after final arguments June 25 in the federal government's civil suit against REO on charges of bias in employment and housing sales.

REO was formed in 1970 by the owners of Elsea Realty & Investment Co.; Gordon Williamson Co.; Mather, Stevens and Martin; and Deremo and Son. It has five offices in Detroit, 22 in the suburbs, 400 salespersons and 150 salaried staff members.

CHURCHILL GAVE REO good marks for its company policies and especially high marks for its educational efforts on the "absolute necessity of compliance" with fair housing laws.

But the Detroit area's newest federal judge, who listened to 120 witnesses in a three-month non-jury trial last summer, found a number of instances where company policy either was not enforced or was not complied with. These concerned placement of black salespersons, steering of customers on a racial basis, and newspaper advertising.

He said the Farmington-based firm cooperated completely with a government investigation that began late in 1971, but that the government itself was "less candid" in disclosing what it intended to prove.

UNTIL THE SUIT was filed in 1972, he said, "it was the policy of the company to have all, or almost all, black salespersons assigned only to certain specified offices." He placed blame for this on Staunton Elsea, a company officer in charge of assignments.

At the time of the suit—"but not necessarily because of it—it became the policy of the company to allow black salespersons to be assigned to any office."

The judge found that Staunton Elsea, in charge of office No. 6 in Detroit during 1971-72, continued "several racial practices," including keeping black salespersons out of white areas and black buyers away from white areas. "On occasions, he would forcibly remove selected listings from black salespeople's listing books."

Churchill found some evidence of use of special phone numbers for blacks in that office, but added:

"These practices have all been discontinued at office No. 6, and there is no showing that they were ever adopted in any other office, nor is there any likelihood of their reoccurrence."

ACTUAL SALES practices failed to conform to company policy in several cases, Judge Churchill found. Items:

• In Belleville in June, 1971, a black man named Benjamin White put a deposit on a vacant lot listed by REO and owned by Dr. William Reksham. Neighbors "panicked." REO vice president Carlos W. Deremo met with Dr. Reksham, the neighbors and an REO salesman one evening, attempted unsuccessfully to persuade Reksham the sale had to go through, then "washed his hands of the transaction and went home."

After midnight, the salesman completed the transaction between Reksham and a neighbor named Hink. "White's deposit was returned to him by mail. The neighborhood remained white."

Churchill said the incident "demonstrates how far top management of REO did go in June, 1971 to avoid offending a predominantly white neighborhood."

• REO's general sales manager, William Y. Mathers, put up his home for sale in northwest Detroit's Rosedale Park in April, 1972 but didn't use the multi-listing.

Churchill accepted the explanation that the purpose was "to avoid the embarrassment of having the REO general sales manager's house sold by another real estate firm."

But while clearing Mathers, the judge found "an intentional concerted effort by (salesperson Mary) Carr and others to avoid the risk of having the house shown or sold to a black family."

• In 1974, white salesman Fred Horton was told by his trainer, Bill Smith, "not to show a black prospect a home near Warren between Evergreen and Southfield because it was a Polish neighborhood."

• Joseph Savine, a white salesman in the Warren office in 1970-71, testified a "white salesperson retreated through the rear office door to avoid showing a black prospect a home in predominantly white Warren."

• "In 1972, Kaatje Upstil, an experienced, white, real estate saleswoman, told Steven L. Danton, a white salesman assigned to the Lathrup Village office, that he should not sell a certain home in lathrup Village to a black prospect, impliedly for racial reasons."

• In 1974, a white Oakland County resident named Ann Wettlaufer, acting as a "tester," was told by salesman Robert Webb in Lathrup Village that "she wouldn't want to live in the City of Detroit because it was almost all black, and he further discouraged her from becoming interested in homes in the south part of Southfield because of racial changes occurring in that area."

Churchill added that when REO learned of the incident during the suit, "it terminated its relationship with Webb."

• "In 1971 Paul Smith, a white salesman, virtually refused to show Marjorie Jones, a white prospect, a home between Greenfield and Southfield because it was a racially changing neighborhood."

THE MICHIGAN CHRONICLE, a weekly paper with a black audience, was used by REO to advertise "homes in the so-called 'changing areas' of northwest Detroit."

But Churchill found, "The policy is not pursued for the purpose of causing the racial composition of an area to change" but because it was the best way for the company to use its ad dollars."

"OFFICERS OF REO have taken leading roles" within the industry and its organizations in educating salespeople on the need to comply with fair housing laws," the judge found.

Daniel R. Williamson, vice president and secretary, worked with the Michigan Association of Realtors and Michigan Civil Rights Commission on such programs.

Williamson wrote a skit called "No, No, That Can't Be Done" in cooperation with the civil rights group, and the company used a slide program called "Winds of Change" to train its sales force on fair housing laws.

Concluding, Churchill said:

"REO is probably the only real estate firm in the state of Michigan operating on a large scale in areas which are predominantly white as well as in areas which are predominantly black with a biracial sales force."

Realtor push limit to state tax

A proposed amendment to the Michigan Constitution that would limit state taxes to 8.3 per cent of personal income has drawn the wholehearted approval of the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors and the Michigan Association of Realtors.

Romayne E. Hicks and Richard O'Neill of the Michigan Association of Realtors announced at an April 27 press conference that the two groups have launched a statewide campaign to collect 300,000 signatures on a petition that would place the amendment on the November ballot.

The amendment was originally sponsored by Taxpayers United, a citizens' organization. Personal income is the total income received by persons in Michigan from all sources.

"State spending increased 118 per cent between 1968 and 1974 while personal income in Michigan rose only 56 per cent in the same period," Hicks said at the conference.

"Total state spending in 1960 was $1.16 billion for the year but has since multiplied six-fold. If this trend continues, the state will be spending over $30 billion annually by 1980—far outstripping even the most optimistic expectations for rises in personal income," Hicks said.

ACCORDING TO HICKS, the amendment would contain the following provisions:

• The percentage of personal income would be limited to either collective personal income for the last fiscal year or the average of five previous calendar years (whichever is greater).

• If revenue exceeds the limit of 8.3 per cent, a pro rata tax rebate is required.

• The limit can only be exceeded during the year if emergency conditions exist and specific procedures are followed.

• Before mandating new programs or increases in level of services of a political unit in the state, the legislature must provide state funds to cover the cost of the program.

• Local units of government are prohibited from increasing tax rates beyond already authorized levels or from levying any new taxes without voter approval.

• The proportion of state revenues paid to all political units in the state taken as a group cannot be reduced from present levels.

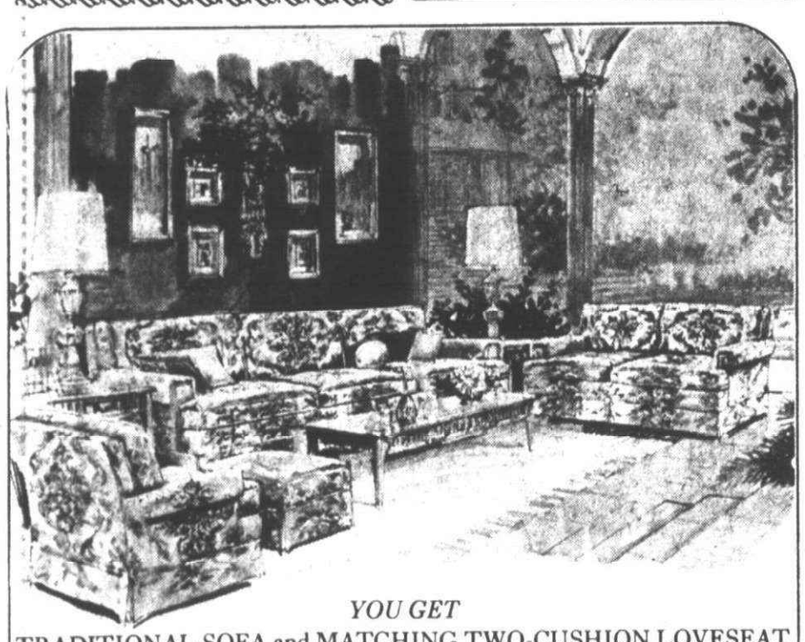

• The limitation does not apply to principal and interest on bonds.

O'Neill, who called the petition drive "a legal tax revolt," said he didn't expect any difficulty in reaching the goal of 300,000 signatures. He added that petitions have been sent to Realtors' offices throughout the state.

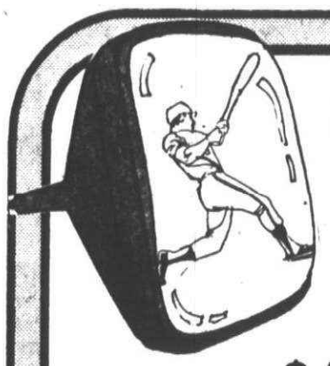

HICKS ALSO pointed out that an overall 43 per cent of personal income goes to supporting government.

"It used to take the state seven hours 33 minutes to spend $1 million in 1960. Today, it takes the state an hour and 22 minutes to spend the same amount," Hicks said.

"In 1988, a million dollars will only last 17 minutes if the present rate of spending continues. If our state is to prosper, these trends must be reversed," he added.

Know the land plan before you cast vote

On May 5, residents of Canton will have the opportunity to listen to a sales pitch on the recently approved master land use plan.

It is a controversial document, and much has been said both for and against it.

Some who oppose it claim the plan will divide the township with Canton Center Road becoming a north-south Mason-Dixon line.

Two things are clear: The plan will have a substantial impact on all members of the community including subdivision dwellers, farmers and businessmen; and the implications of the plan far reaching.

Residents will have to live a long time with the choices that are being made now.

BECAUSE OF the complexity of the plan and the many questions that remain, Supervisor Robert Greenstein will host an informational hearing to give some answers to the people. He is a strong advocate of the plan and one of the architects of the agricultural-industrial district, the facet of the plan that makes it unusual.

He will be assisted by at least two experts, Michigan State University planning professor Robert Hotaling and Don Juchartz, county agricultural extension agent and chairman of the Wayne County Planning Commission.

Much of the hearing, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the UAW Hall, 48055 Michigan, will be devoted to explaining possible methods of implementing the plan—and that is the crux of the issue.

THAT IS THE point at which benefits and costs enter the picture.

What will the plan cost? Who will benefit? Who will be hurt? Will those hurt be reimbursed, and if so, how? What will happen to the overall development of the township and what will happen to the tax base?

These are but a few of the serious questions that deserve answers—answers the public will understand and be able to judge.

While older residents of the community, farmers and those living west of Canton Center, have been amply evident at public hearings and meetings on the plan, subdivision homeowners have been noticeable only by their absence.

Greenstein has issued an invitation to those people in particular to attend this question-and-answer session because the plan affects them as much as anyone else.

WE URGE ALL residents to attend this hearing, because all voters in the township should have a say in the matter. The plan is merely a guideline, and until the board adopts a zoning ordinance, it is both impotent and unenforceable.

On May 18, there will be an advisory question on the ballot. Although voters will be asked to choose between concepts rather than detailed plans that will lead Canton to either half urbanization or full development, Greenstein for one has promised that the vote will be a mandate.

If people voted yes to a concept that will allow for retention of agricultural land, Greenstein said he will pursue this plan. If they do not, he said he will abandon it.

Go to the hearing, listen to the answers and vote your mind. A lot may be riding on it.

RICHARD GOLD

Let's do it right

In 1972, Wayne County voters—especially we in the suburbs—made a mistake when we voted down a tax plan to build new jail and juvenile facilities.

We are now paying for it. Folks in Westland face the prospect of having a county hospital building in their back yards renovated—at great cost—for temporary use as a jail.

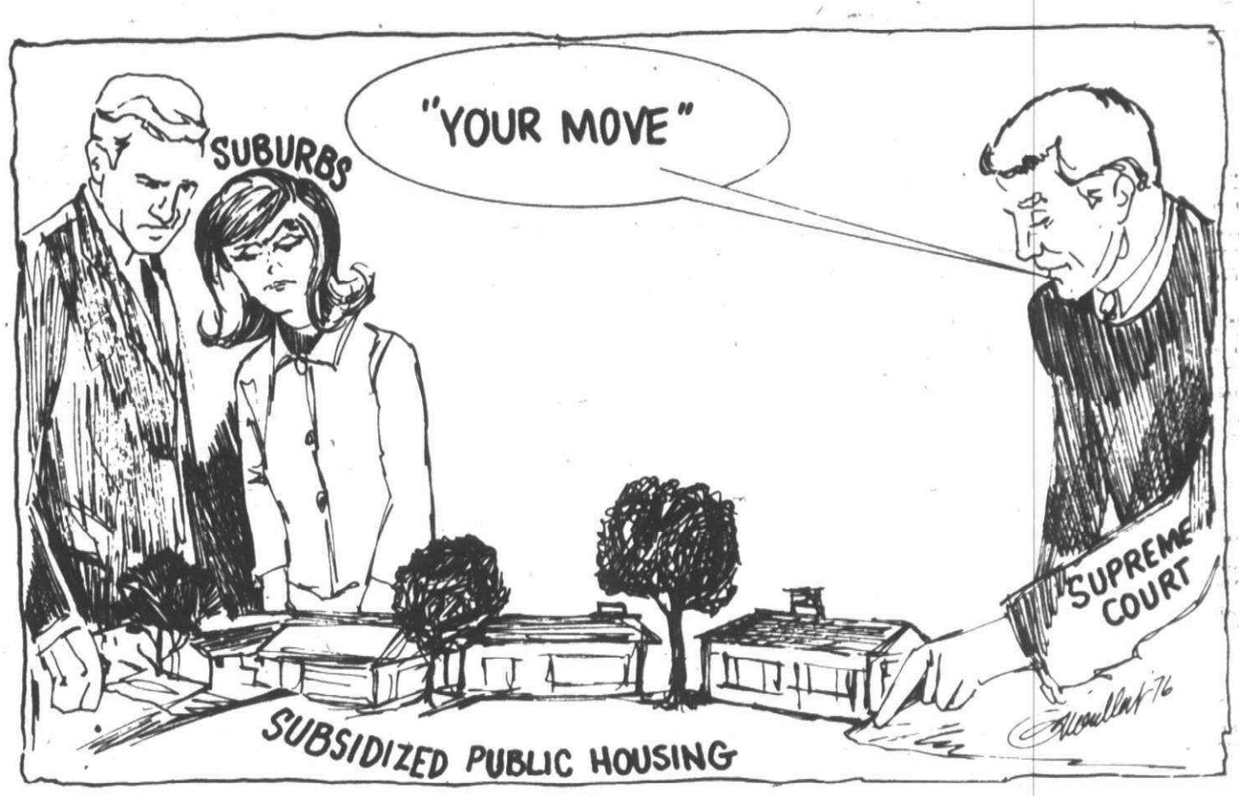

All of us face additional danger because the existing jail is so overcrowded that the courts had to force its population to be reduced.

What it means is that bail is being lowered on some prisoners who are now free until trial. Persons who should be confined are being let out early or not sentenced at all, and as a result, persons who in any normal county would be in jail are now prowling the streets.

Voting down a modest property tax increase in 1972 turned out to be false economy. Fortunately, we will have another chance to rectify the situation May 18 when a half-mill tax proposal will be on the Wayne County ballot for a new jail facility.

For our own protection, we should vote yes.

Housing issue opens up

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Other than to observe that a shudder has gone down the spine of every suburb in the country, it's too early to say just what the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision on segregated housing really means.

Last week, the court unanimously held that the judiciary may order federally-subsidized public housing projects placed in suburbs which have been proven to have engaged in discrimination in housing.

The direct application of the ruling to the suburbs in this area, however, appears slight in the short run because:

- The court's decision was limited to the particular situation in Chicago, where the case arose and where there is a city housing authority whose power extends to the suburbs.
- The court gave the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development no new legal powers to force public housing on suburbs unwilling to have it.
- Under present law, the only way the federal government can force public housing projects into a given suburb is to use the leverage of existing or planned federal grants to the city. Many suburbs in this area simply do not have such federal programs, nor do they intend to apply for them.

NEVERTHELESS, THE NEW ruling is certain to produce a vast flurry of legal activity.

One set of suits will test the applicability to housing of the court's 1974 school busing ruling that local government boundaries between the core city and the suburbs were a barrier beyond which the courts could not go in ordering a metropolitan busing plan, unless the suburbs involved had been found guilty of segregation.

Another set of cases will test the legality of the argument, advanced by the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, that the suburbs ought to be "deprived of the power to exclude subsidized housing and to manipulate zoning and other controls to screen out families on the basis of income and, implicitly, race."

LOCAL REACTION to the court's ruling has so far been restrained.

Endre Mayer, president of the Birmingham Homeowners Council, observed that "it will probably have a slow effect on Birmingham. We have no sites that I know of suitable for public housing or zoned for it."

Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara said that the city would fight any attempt by the federal government to put low-income housing into the community in violation of zoning ordinances. He added that the city already has a well-balanced housing inventory, including many low-priced homes. "We are not 36 square miles of snobs," he added.

Troy City Attorney James D'Amico said, "If the local suburbs don't want them (public housing projects), they simply won't apply for federal funds, and that will be the end of it."

"We're so built up it will have little impact on us," commented Garden City Manager Dana Miller.

WESTLAND IS ONE of the few suburbs in this area that is using federal funds and is in the process of applying for second-year funding of a community development grant. Mayor Tom Taylor is backing a plan calling for use of $235,000 to rehabilitate older houses.

"I don't see the ruling as a case of the government coming in and building a federal project," Taylor said. "Those days are gone. I think what we have to do is improve that housing which we already have.

"The reason why the old housing policy (where low income housing units were clumped together) died is that people weren't capable of keeping up their properties," Taylor added.

His administration hopes to qualify for a new program of federal housing subsidies in which about $10,000 of the cost of each unit would be subsidized. The theory is that people who buy such homes could afford to maintain them, since payments would be only 25 per cent of their incomes.

SO FAR, A FEW suburban attitudes toward the court's ruling have become clear.

First, the idea of big federal low-income housing projects being plunked down in the suburbs is absolute anathema.

Second, everybody who breathed a big sigh of relief when the court ruled in the school busing case is anxious again.

Third, even the people who advocated cross-district school busing have agreed it does little to improve integration and probably leads to disrupted education for everybody.

Fourth, scatter-site, federally subsidized housing may be an idea whose time has come. It would not conflict with suburban zoning codes, and it might just be a non-disruptive route toward integration.

In any event, the Supreme Court has opened up once again the whole issue of the relationship of the suburbs to the center city. It will be a long time before that one is resolved.

SBT zaps small business

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

Michigan has passed a single business tax. In what is heralded to be the elimination of seven oppressive taxes on business, the state will assess only one tax on business enterprises.

Gone are the corporate franchise taxes and corporate income taxes.

Gone are the financial institutions income tax and the domestic insurance company privilege tax; gone are the savings and loan association privilege tax and the business portion of the intangibles tax, and gone are the local property taxes on inventories.

Supposedly, the purpose of the single business tax (SBT) was not to raise more revenue for the state but to reform the old tax structure and make Michigan more attractive to capital-intensive industries, thus creating more jobs.

THE PROBLEM is that Michigan's SBT is like a camel, which is said to be a horse designed by a committee.

First of all, under the old Michigan tax structure, only the state corporate income tax at 7.8 per cent and the local property tax on inventory were substantial costs of doing business in this state, and the corporate income tax was assessed only against firms making a profit.

The SBT, instead of being a tax on profit, is one on activity.

It is a value-added tax, which is popular in Europe, where businesses are taxed on what they add to raw materials in order to make a saleable product.

PRIMARILY, IT IS a tax on the total compensation of workers, consisting of wages and salaries, social security taxes, unemployment compensation taxes, worker's compensation premiums, health and life insurance and pension and profit-sharing plans.

In addition to the compensation paid workers, the profits of a company, its depreciation and interest paid make up the rest of the tax base.

When you put all these items together, the state will assess a 2.35 per cent tax.

What does it really mean?

Well, number one, as soon as you hire a new employee, your state tax will go up 2.35 per cent of that person's wages and fringes. A business which hires new people is raising its own taxes, so the tax is a deterrent to creating new jobs in the state. If an employer has the choice of hiring an additional employee or not, he certainly will not hire the additional worker and pay additional taxes.

SECONDLY, DEPRECIATION, which is the amortization over a period of years of the cost of machinery, is added back into the tax base.

This means that every time a company adds a machine, which would normally require additional employees, the state tax goes up. Under the federal income tax, depreciation is a deduction—not an increase in the tax base.

While there are some short-run benefits in the tax to encourage businesses to buy more machinery, the long-run implication is: Why buy more machines and create more jobs in order to pay more tax?

BEFORE MICHIGAN had a corporate income tax, it had a tax called the business activities tax, which was a gross income tax; that is, a tax based primarily on sales revenue.

The tax reformers threw out the business activities tax because it discouraged additional employment and additional investment in new plants and equipment.

Michigan has now reversed itself and gone back to the type of tax that was rejected some 10 years ago as being unhealthy to our economy.

There are some businesses which will be helped by the SBT. The lobbyists for special interests have had several businesses excluded or certain parts of their businesses exempted from the tax.

The automobile companies will benefit from the SBT because over the years they have had high profits and have paid high state income taxes, but they will profit by the labor-intensive and the capital acquisition write-off portions of the tax.

Other businesses given special treatment include transportation, real estate, insurance, security guard firms and food retailers.

THE COMPANIES that will make up for this tax reduction to the larger companies will be the small, individual businessmen who were marginally profitable and, therefore, paid little tax to the state. However, as a group, these are the businesses which employ the largest number of persons in the state.

How any legislator could believe that setting a tax base on wages and depreciation could help this state make its economy more viable must have his or her head in the sand.

It is not hard to understand that, in the coming years, we will see the tax put a lot of small businesses out of business.

A bad neighbor loses one

Tim Richard

Detroit has lost another battle in its bossy neighbor policy with the suburbs, this time over its membership in the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

State Rep. Morris Hood (D-Detroit), who has been harassing HCMA with legislative bills, asked for a legal opinion from Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley about whether Detroit could pull out of the five-county parks agency of which it has been a tax-paying member for, lo, these 35 years.

No way, said Kelley. Not without dissolving the HCMA, which seems out of the question.

Morris Hood (not to be confused with Rep. Raymond Hood or Detroit Councilman Nicholas Hood) has a gripe against HCMA: Its 10 superb metroparks are all located some miles outside the City of Detroit, allegedly out of the reach of persons with neither a car nor access to a car.

THOSE WHO WON'T learn the lessons of history are doomed to repeat them, and it seems that Hood and Mayor Coleman Young refuse to learn.

One lesson is that Detroit could have built its magnificent zoo inside its own city limits. A slender but fascinating volume entitled "The First Fifty Years," published by the Detroit Zoological Society, reveals that several in-Detroit sites were under consideration but were disposed of or passed by. Instead, the society and the city located the zoo in Oakland County, at 10 Mile and Woodward.

The official history recounts that on opening day suburban police had to help handle traffic (p. 19); Huntington Woods residents objected to the nuisance of an unfenced parking lot (p. 23); residents north of the park objected to a trackless trolley plan there (p. 23); and nearby residents had two lawsuits going against Detroit for awhile (p. 29).

The lessons are clear: 1) Even in the 1920s, Detroit lacked big enough parcels of undeveloped land for a major park; 2) When Detroit wanted to do something outside its own city limits, it went ahead and did it, and tough luck, suburbs.

THE SCENE SHIFTS to western Wayne County.

Plymouth Township residents have the pleasure of playing host to the Detroit House of Correction—that is, a prison. DeHoCo lies along a railroad track, and such a location historically is good industrial land. But Plymouth Township is out of luck, because it can't tax Dehoco the way it can Ford Motor Co. or Burroughs.

Northville Township residents for years had the pleasure of having a tuberculosis sanitorium owned by the City of Detroit, as a neighbor.

In addition, the western suburbs have such public facilities, built with a certain amount of Detroit influence, as a state hospital, a training home and a facility for the retarded on what would otherwise be their taxable property.

Did Detroit consider the problems its residents would have visiting the TB facility or DeHoCo when it decided to locate them in the suburbs? Not on your life. The suburbs at that time were a popular dumping ground for such institutions.

FOR YEARS, Detroit's policy was to tell HCMA to build its metroparks in the country and keep away from Detroit's bailiwick.

Now our neighbor is introducing bills to "reorganize" the HCMA board and force it to develop a metropark in Detroit, and is even seeking to withdraw from the HCMA.

To its credit, the suburban-dominated HCMA has made two sincere offers to develop and operate facilities in Detroit, one of them Belle Isle. The Young administration said nay. What it really wants is that HCMA money so the mayor can spend it on his staff as he sees fit—not on metroparks.

And so it seems that the metroparks, the zoo, DeHoCo and everything else requiring much land will continue to be out here in the boondocks.

'You'll have to excuse me'

Readers' forum

Editor:

I shall [illegible] be excused. I don't even know [illegible] anymore. Do I get Plymouth [illegible]nton, Michigan. Which O&E server-eccentric do I address my question to. Am I going to be a farmer or a city folk? Where do I get my answers???

I attended a meeting of the planning commission Tuesday evening hoping to get some answers to my questions. But alas and etc. I listened to much talk, but didn't get to ask questions. However, I did manage to corner one of the commissioners. I asked him—if this agricultural zoning goes through, am I a farmer or what?

He smiled, said do you really want to know and walked off.

Maybe I will feel better if I put it all down on paper.

I have listened to my farmer friends and their laments, and they really do have some bonafide ones. I have heard my subdivision friends declare they would be so happy if we preserved our farmlands so their children could be in touch with nature, that they might see real farm animals—great, but what about me??

I live west of Canton Center Road. I don't have enough land to be a farmer, much less a small farm. I have five sheep and one goat on my acre of land, housed on my mother's two acres of land—left over from our 4-H days.

I won't qualify for lower taxes, but then if I am in the farm zone I won't get sewers, city water or paved roads. I can't put another house on my land, but I will have one advantage, I probably will get to pay the same taxes as my subdivision friends.

You say well she has land, so let her pay taxes. But I have a well, what if it goes dry! I have to get my septic tank cleaned each spring. Sometimes the tile field goes bad and that costs a heap to fix.

I hope you don't get me wrong. I love the wide open spaces, I would rather smell farm animals than gasoline, but can I afford to smell fresh air?

My farm friends will get a tax break, my subdivision friends will have all the modern conveniences, but what about the fellow with less than five acres? Will someone out there please find out what is going to happen to us.?

For 28 years I have paid taxes here (even helped pay for sewers I will never see), so don't I merit some sort of answer?

Costs are rising for schools also

Editor:

Has Tim Richard taken leave of his senses? I write in reference to his April 22 editorial on the folly of schools asking for more money to maintain present levels of service.

Do you pay double what you paid two years ago for a gallon of gasoline? Do you now pay three cents more to send a letter the same distance (and I'll bet it takes longer)? Did you pay 30 per cent to 40 per cent more this winter to heat your house (and probably a degree or two lower then last year)? Your own health insurance—perhaps you noticed that the premiums rose substantially.

If you have tried to buy a child's book, a notebook, some drawing paper or pencils, a textbook or even paper clips, you may have noticed about a 30 per cent rise in prices. Perhaps you have a subscription to a newspaper (we like to keep our students and staff informed). It, too, costs more this year (although I don't see anything more in your paper).

I know you believe strongly in open government and an informed public (as do I)—but even that costs more (have you checked your own newspaper's rates for advertising, publishing bids, notices, etc.)? Those rates haven't stood still either.

These are just some of the costs that schools are faced with. They continue to rise even though the level of service remains the same.

The Plymouth schools are offering less services this year than last, and many in the school system are sacrificing out of their own pockets to try to provide a decent education for the kids (e.g., teachers buying supplies from their own pockets, parents and kids putting on cupcake sales, band concerts, parents driving on field trips instead of using school buses, legitimate expenses being paid for by the individual instead of the schools, conferences paid for by the individual—or worse yet, not attended at all).

In practically any endeavor it costs more to maintain the same level of services. Perhaps the pattern you ought to notice in the millage requests is that schools are not immune to inflation.

Well water use is costly

Editor:

When the Detroit Water and Sewer Department was talking of raising its price to the suburbs, the suburban departments banded together, using sewer and water money to fight the raise. The Plymouth Township department raised my sewer usage 66 per cent without notice.

When I called to complain, I was told I am paying three times as much as water users because I have no water meter. Some people who use water (seven questioned) pay less for water and sewer usage than I pay for sewer usage.

West Kincade of the Plymouth Township Water and Sewer Department, said the township pays $28 a year for each un-metered user. So the township charged me $40 a year. This means I am paying the township as much each year as metered users pay for their entire sewer usage bill.

Is this the township's idea of justice or are well users being punished because they prefer well water?

To whom can man speak about future?

Editor:

When James Madison was president, any American could call at the White House and expect to be received in a cordial manner. But today, the idea of a president trying to welcome every complainant or well-wisher is horrendous to contemplate.

Similarly, a generation ago, it was not infrequent for college professors to entertain classes at home, but today's student is likely to wait in line for long periods of time just to obtain his or her grade from a graduate assistant.

Both of these illustrations reflect the impact of simple increases in sheer numbers. This gap between the individual and the members of the formal organizations with which he is associated does not necessarily damage the organizations themselves, but more importantly, it does mean that the individual has seriously far less influence on decisions concerning his welfare.

It should now be clear that with a large and ever-increasing population "the individual" is not only more and more constrained to follow the dictates of the "group" but he also has less and less of a say in determining those dictates.

Our behavior is already controlled in many ways: traffic speed laws, stop signs, and stop lights, requirements for a license to marry, to drive a car, to hunt, to fish and so on. . . .

Such seemingly incidental control measures could become seriously intensified and widespread if "the individuals" continues to be blindfolded, earmuffed, and gagged by the "group."

The time has come for a dramatic reassessment of the directions of change, a reassessment made, not by the politicians, sociologists or the elitist revolutionaries, not by the technicians or planning commissions, but by the people themselves.

We need, quite literally, to "go to the people" with a question that is almost never asked of them: "What kind of a world do you want 10, 20 or 30 years from now?"

Unfortunately, nowhere in politics is there an institution through which an ordinary man can express his ideas about what the future ought to look, feel or taste like.

He is never asked to think about this, and on the rare occasions when he is, there is no organized way for him to feed his ideas into the same arena of politics. Cut off from the future, he becomes a political eunich. . . .

We are, for these reasons, rushing toward a fateful breakdown of the entire system of political representation. If legislators are to survive at all, they will need new links with their constituencies, new ties with tomorrow.

For the sake of survival:

"Open those political doors to our golden tomorrow!"

Daniels Den

By EMORY DANIELS

The other day while reading the morning paper over a cup of coffee my attention was drawn to a column about the trouble the MSU newspaper was having getting police news from the campus security force.

The writer went on to tell of problems journalists were having with the newspapers' board of control which is an overseeing committee which picks staff members and reviews general policies of the college newspaper.

It's an age-old problem because college journalists want to be aggressive purveyors of the news and put out a newspaper which is both objective and informative. College administrators, on the other hand, almost without fail want a newspaper to be informative and to present a good image of the university. As soon as image is given the highest priority, objectivity is no longer possible.

WHILE THINKING about this traditional confrontration between the learner and the learned, my thoughts went back to a huge German shepherd stretched across the feet of a state senator and plush carpeting on a college president's office floor.

It was more than a decade ago that I served a stint as editor of the Central Michigan Life in Mount Pleasant. Before being appointed, I had to appear before the student publication board to whom I gave the usual assurances that I would print the news objectively with fairness towards all, but had no intention of editing a house organ for the university. Fair warning they were given.

Not long after assuming the editorship, an announcement came from Lansing that a select committee of the senate was going to conduct an investigation into the alleged lack of academic freedom at CMU. In this case, select meant one because the committee was chaired by the then State Sen. Edward Robinson.

Robinson was a Democrat from Dearborn who has served as an administrative aide to Mayor Orville Hubbard. When Hubbard decided he'd rather have a state senator than a pencil pusher, Robinson was elected to the senate.

He was a good-looking guy who also presented a positive image. Robinson had his eyes on the governorship in those days and apparently decided the investigation of CMU would be beneficial.

THE DAILIES picked up on the story and announced the select committee was coming to Mount Pleasant for a series of legislative hearings on the subject.

While searching for a new angle, I decided it would be good to try for an interview with Robinson before the hearings began. The senate wasn't in session because of Easter break which also provided me an opportunity to return to the Detroit area.

Robinson agreed to an interview and I travelled to his home in Dearborn. After inviting me in, he sat down in a soft chair and this big German shepherd walked in and lay down across his feet—with his eyes affixed on mine throughout the entire interview.

Robinson sat there smiling, puffing on his pipe, while the dog lay motionless with a menancing glare.

After Easter break, I rushed back to CMU with an exclusive interview with Robinson detailing all the allegations that had come across his desk which had prompted his decision to call an investigation.

WHEN THE ARTICLE was published on the front page of CMU Life, I immediately received a call from the secretary of the college president stating my presence was desired.

Immediately I began to wonder whether the scoop was worth my college career. As I entered, the president was was behind his mahogony desk, puffing on a pipe, sitting motionless with a menancing glare. There was quite a similarity with Robinson's dog except the dog didn't have a double chin.

I received a lecture about the political ambitions of the senator, the meddlesome attitudes of those looney professors in the humanities, and the need for the university to project a positive image for future students and alumni.

He was angry and his face kept getting redder. The pipe was now laying in the ash tray, sending up billows of black smoke, and the double chin was bloating in and out like a bullfrog as the tempo of his remarks begin to reach the pace of Dixie—only he wasn't whistling.

I was only thinking about how to keep from getting expelled when he blurted out: "What made you think that story had any relevance for a college newspaper?" Suddenly, the ultimate defense popped into my head and I knew my career at Central was safe as I answered: "Well sir, I think the senator's views are quite relevant because he chairs the committee which allocates state money for colleges and universities."

The red face turned white and he swallowed both chins. "You got a point," he answered as he picked up his pipe and relit it. The rest of the discussion turned to a plea for moderation and the need to print both sides of the issue—a request I was most glad to comply with.

That was the only time I was ever called unto the carpet by a college president. But it was a frightening enough experience to have made a lasting impression. So I can symphathize with the problems the MSU staff is having with campus police and the publication board. A free press is an independent press and college newspapers are dependent on universities for their very existence. But hope is eternal as long as there is money flowing from Lansing.

Yearbook staff plans garage sale

The yearbook staff of Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools will hold a large garage sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, May 2, in the lower commons area of Salem.

The sale is being held to raise funds to publish the supplement, which is hoped to be the biggest and best in the school's history. Thus far 60 pages are designated for the supplement.

For any items sold, the yearbook staff will keep 30 per cent of the sales price with 70 per cent being returned to the person bringing items to be sold.

Items to be sold will be received from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, May 1, at Plymouth Salem on Joy just west of Canton Center Road. Deliver items to the front of Salem or to the rear loading dock area.

They're learning at Madonna to be the ears of the deaf

Marie Payne of Westland gives the sign for interpreter to her teacher, Kenneth Rust. (Staff photo by Sherry Kahan)

Story and photos by Sherry Kahan

Marie Payne of Westland, a student of interpreting for the deaf at Madonna College, first took up this language at the request of the pastor of her church, Cathedral Faith in Inkster.

"He wanted to start a deaf ministry," she said. "Our church has 37 deaf members. We also have a deaf choir which interprets in sign language what the hearing choir is singing.

"Our minister asked me to study communication with the deaf at Garden City Community Baptist Church where they also have a deaf ministry."

Mrs. Payne noted that she started in 1973 "and I'm still learning."

She is continuing her education in interpreting at Madonna College where she is working toward a BA degree. Her aim is to become a professional interpreter for the deaf, possibly in the field of vocational rehabilitation.

"You really see the need for this field," she said, "especially for the black deaf who rarely can find an interpreter."

She thinks that the whole field of interpreting for the deaf has opened up in recent years.

"There seems to be a new awareness of the deaf and their handicaps. We are beginning to learn what they need, such as a TV news program. I am so glad about this. It is important they have advocates."

AT THE MADONNA class in interpreting for the deaf, the whole room is full of advocates. Several, like Bob Pellegrino and Carol Dumaj, are there because they are hearing impaired or deaf and want to help others who are hard of hearing.

Others hear but are present because both their parents are deaf. From babyhood they grew up with sign language and now they want to help other deaf people as certified interpreters.

Still others, like Miss Payne, are there because of general interest in the problems of this segment of society.

Kenneth Rust, who on June 1 will become director of Madonna's programs for the deaf, is teaching. The son of deaf parents, he recently was elected president of the Michigan Regristry of Interpreters of the Deaf.

"I went into this because the deaf do not receive equal access to area resources like Social Security, welfare, lawyers, doctors and so forth," he stated.

"I felt some kind of effort is necessary to see that lack of ability to communicate does not deprive them of the services they need."

HE IS HEARTENED by Madonna's interest in the deaf. "The situation for them is improving," he maintained. "There is more opportunity in the '70s than 10 or 20 years ago for a deaf person to be involved in post secondary school education. Using interpreters is one way he can receive an education."

Madonna has recognized the wish of the deaf to educate themselves and has scheduled for its fall program such classes as "Great Moments in World Art" and report-writing for deaf students.

Rust noted that this summer the college will offr the American sign language course as well as one on the psycho-social aspects of deafness. In the fall, the three communication courses—all teaching sign language—will resume.

A summer workshop for artistic interpeting for the deaf will be presented at Madonna by the Detroit Sign Co. July 9, 10 and 11. A show, open to the public, also will be given July 11 with music, dancing and pantomime by deaf performers.

AT MADONNA the name of the game in their programs for the deaf is total communication. This is an issue which has divided educators of the deaf over the years. Some believe that deaf students should learn only oral communication while others favor use of hands, fingers, body language—anything that will help get the message across.

The program in the Garden City School District, called Oral Plus, favors the total communication approach, while the one for deaf students held in Redford Township has won awards for concentrating solely on the oral approach.

In teaching his class on interpreting for the deaf, Rust is a total communicator. His hands fly here and there, his fingers flick, his head moves, his brow wrinkles, his whole body becomes involved while his lips move and he speaks.

This total approach is the reason for the presence in class of Bill Kachman of Warren, who someday would like to earn a master's degree in guidance and counseling for the hearing impaired.

"I believe in this method because the deaf learn so much from sign language," he said. "Most new studies show that total communication does not impair lip reading."

WITH HIS HANDS he explained how such concepts as past and future can be expressed in sign language.

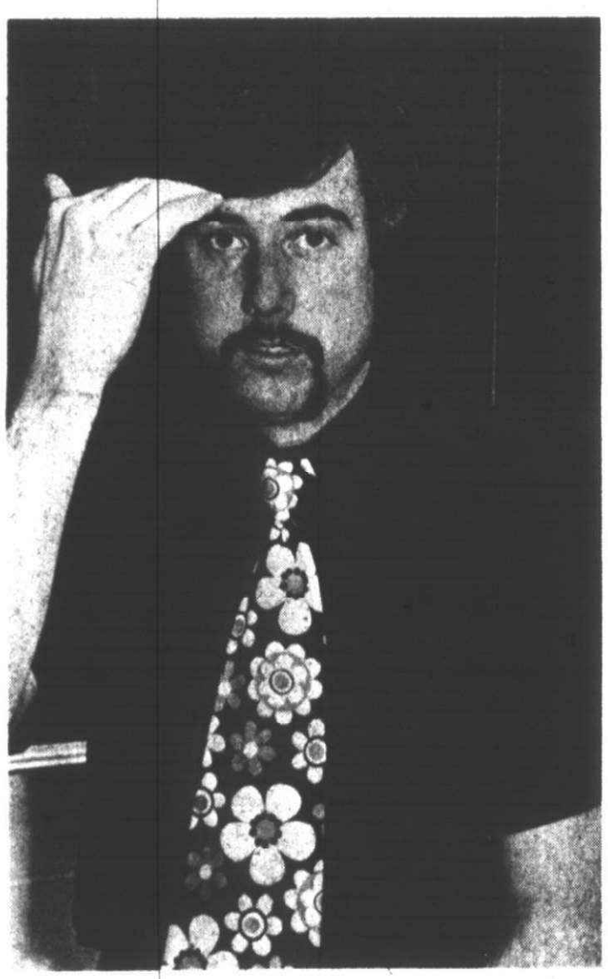

"You wave your hand back over your shoulder when you start speaking in the past," he said. "To show the present you hold your hands cupped in front of you. For the future the hands point forward."

Employed at Wright Kay Jewelers in Northland shopping center, Kachman occasionally has a chance to be an interpreter when a deaf customer comes in the store.

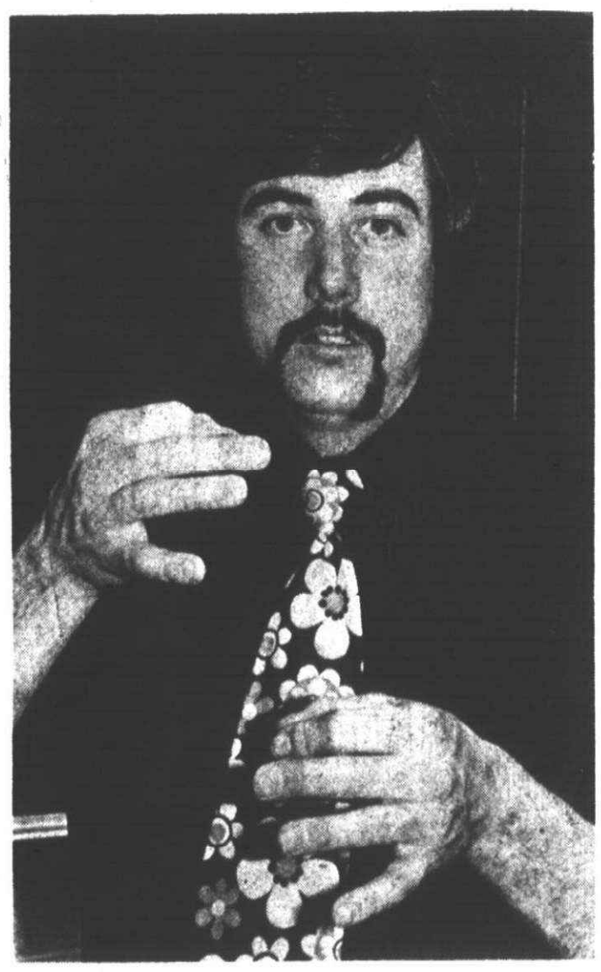

Karla Brehm is the daughter of deaf parents who works at Northville State Hospital. She uses her skills with patients there and wants to make a career of interpreting for the deaf.

Madonna offers an associate degree (two years) or a bachelor's degree in communication for the deaf. It may be taken by teachers, nurses and parents of the deaf as well as those who wish to become professional interpreters.

In a further commitment to those with little or no hearing, Madonna has been holding a brunch on the third Sunday of the month with proceeds to be used for tuition stipends for deaf students who now number 12. These events ended this month but will be resumed in the fall.

Kenneth Rust (left) demonstrates the logic in many of the signs used in interpreting for the deaf. The hand on the brow means knowledge.

At right he demonstrates the word for justice. His fingers seem to hold the scales by which justice is weighed.

Tibetan adventures opens '76-77 series in October

Lowell Thomas leads off Livonia Town Hall

A renowned radio performer and world traveler, a writer and TV personality, a psychologist and an internationally known photographer will headline the Livonia Town Hall lecture series during the 1976-77 season.

Lowell Thomas will open the series Oct. 20 in the Mai Kai theater, Livonia, by relating tales of his adventurous life in such places as Tibet and New Guinea.

Barbara Howar, one of the most talked-about personalities in Washington during the Johnson administration, has been booked for Nov. 17.

She will be followed on Jan. 19 by Sonya Friedman, a witty psychologist and author of the book, "I've Had It, You've Had It."

Concluding the 13th Town Hall season on March 16 will be Philipe Halsman, whose photographs of international personalities have turned up on more than 100 covers of Life magazine.

Proceeds from the lectures are used for the international scholarship program of the American Field Service.

LOWELL THOMAS, who for more than 44 years conducted a daily radio news program, first gained fame as the discoverer and biographer of Lawrence of Arabia.

While his voice became familiar to millions through his radio work, he also became known as a world traveler, crossing the Himalayas to visit the Forbidden City of Lhasa and serving as President Eisenhower's special ambassador to the coronation of the king of Nepal.

His TV series, "High Adventure," took him to India, the Arctic, Africa, Tibet, New Guinea, the South American jungle and the Australian desert.

His latest trip was a 36,000-mile flight from America to Siberia.

"Laughing All the Way," is the name of the first book written by Barbara Howar, called by the New York Times "the best thing to happen to Washington since Jackie Kennedy."

Her book offered a sharp criticism of society in general and herself in particular, and pointed out there is "no city like Washington for laughable situations."

Her new book, "Making Ends Meet," is coming out this spring.

SONYA FRIEDMAN, the third Town Hall speaker, is a practicing psychologist in Troy and a consulting psychologist for the Rochester Community Schools.

She is also resident psychologist for ABC-TV appearing on AM-America, AM-New York, AM-Detroit and the Mike Douglas Show. In 1975 she won a commendation from the American Psychological Foundation for her part in the television series, "For A Better Life."

Philippe Halsman spends a great deal of time while photographing people trying to make them forget his camera by talking with them.

"Most people stiffen with self-consciousness when they pose for a photograph," he said. "Lighting and fine camera equipment are useless if the photographer cannot make them drop that mask, at least for a moment, so he can capture on his film their real, undistorted personality and character."

In 1958 he was chosen by Popular Photograph as one of the world's 10 great photographers, and his work is represented in permanent collections in the New York Museum of Modern Art and the Smithsonian Institution.

A SERIES ticket for the lectures may be purchased for $12. Those wishing to purchase tickets as sponsors at $20 or patrons at $35 for two tickets will be honored in the Town Hall program.

To purchase a ticket send a check made payable to Livonia Town Hall Inc. to Mrs. Jack Kirksey, 32710 Barkley, Livonia 48154.

Tickets also are available to season ticket holders to the celebrity luncheons which take place after the 10:30 a.m. lecture in the Mayflower Meeting House, Plymouth.

Because of limited seating, reservations will be made on a first-come, first serve basis at $5 per person. No reservations or cancellations will be accepted after the Friday preceding the lecture.

Send reservation with separate check to Livonia Town Hall, Box 2143, Livonia 48154.

Those wishing to be assured of luncheon seating for the entire season may purchase a season luncheon ticket for $20, and include it with their order for season tickets for the Town Hall lecture series.

For further information about Town Hall contact Mrs. John Blair, 32567 Greenland, Livonia.

20,000 books for browsing

Over 20,000 books, records, and magazines will be available for purchase by the serious book collector and avid reader alike at the 22nd annual used book sale to be sponsored May 6-8 by the Plymouth Branch of the American Association of University Women and the Westland Jaycee Auxiliary.

The sale will be held in the Westland shopping center east court from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. May 6 and 7 and from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. May 8.

The book sale is noted for its bargains, with the vast majority of books selling in the 20 cent to 75 cent range.

All materials have been sorted into over 40 categories to make them easier to find. A large number of books on the bicentennial will be available as well as best sellers, children's books, current paperbacks, sets of encyclopedias and other reference books, and the ever-popular books on gardening and cooking.

A SPECIAL category titled "Old and Rare" traditionally features some of the sale's most interesting offerings. This year is no exception with a set of eight Oz books by Frank Baum circa 1908, beautifully bound leather volumes, a set of Shakespeare's works, signed and first editions, and a selection of hymnals and piano music.

Old and rare books of special note include a set of "Messages and Papers of Presidents;" "Under Both Flags, an Illustrated Story of the Civil War," 1896; "Our Country, a Household History," 1877; and pre-1900 books on Washington, Lincoln, and McKinley.

Among the beautifully illustrated books that will be on hand are "Essays of Michael De Montaigne" illustrated by Salvadore Dali, "Japanese Masters of the Colour Print" with 93 illustrations, "Mexico" by Stuart Chase with illustrations by Diego River, a very old copy of "Little Red Riding Hood" with wood block illustrations, and several titles with illustrations by Rockwell Kent.

IN CHARGE of the sale this year are Cheryl Holmberg, chairman, and Elizabeth Gribble, co-chairman, representing the Plymouth Branch of AAUW and Wendy Clayton and Nancy Froreich, co-chairmen for the Westland Jaycee Auxiliary.

Other chairmen are: Phyllis Johnson, set up; Barb Weix, scheduling; Irene Truesdell, marking and old and rare; Jan Carney, marking; Elaine Kirchgatter, old and rare; Jan Dersey, old and rare; Laurna Badendieck, scheduling; Judy Shepherd, scheduling; Irene Whitmore, box collection; Janet Repp, publicity; and Mary Cooper, Marge Croll, and Pam VanderWeele, book pick up.

Proceeds from the sale benefit a variety of community organizations and aid students in higher education. The Westland Jaycettes contribute to the Westgate Tower Senior Citizen Residence, to the City of Westland Senior Citizen Center and the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA.

All AAUW monies are used for fellowships and two local scholarships at the University of Michigan and Schoolcraft Community College.

And an apple a day won't work either

If you're looking for a lifestyle which will guarantee perfect health, you probably can forget it, notes a Michigan State University professor of natural science.

Dr. Andrew McClary, who teaches a University College course, "Ways of Health," invites students to examine the meaning of health from the point of view of the biological sciences.

Two biological concepts have dominated man's idea of health, McClary said. One sees illness as coming from a specific cause—an organic upset which results from either the invasion by an infectious agent or a breakdown of some body function.

Examples of this kind are scarlet fever, which is thought to be a virus disease, and rickets a metabolic disease due to lack of vitamin B.

The other concept sees disease in environmental terms. From this viewpoint, scarlet fever is a crowd disease, "turned on" when people live in close association, and rickets arises when urban Western man lives in cities and is shut off from sunlight.

Unfortunately, McClary said, the sophisticated science and technology which has brought these kinds of disease under control have also helped to build an environment with new health problems, particularly the stress-related cardiovascular diseases, and the pollution-related cancers.

Attitudes change about what "good health" is. Corpulence (fat) was once thought to be desirable and exposure to sun undesirable, but now the reverse is true, McClary said. Similarly, as science extends its understanding of life, people can expect further changes in perceptions of health.

"Already," he said, "man equates good health with a life span far longer than was considered normal only a few decades ago. As we bring organic diseases under control, the term 'health' is increasingly related to a full and happy life."

Hi,ho! Come to the fair

Six hundred Girl Scout troops of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council will have a chance to learn something about their background Saturday, May 1 when they attend a Heritage Fair at the Farm Council Ground at 5095 Saline Rd., Ann Arbor.

Sponsored by the Ann Arbor Area Association of the council, the fair will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Entrance fee is 25 cents.

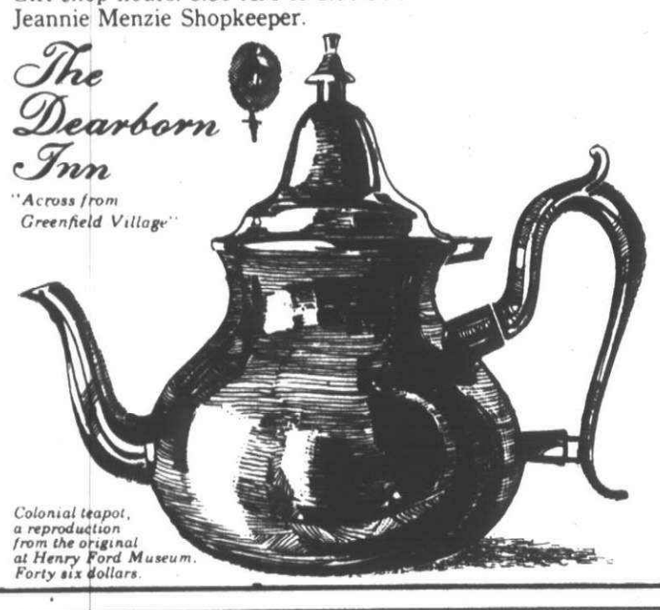

Scouts and their families can attend a colonial schoolroom complete with horn books and spelling bees, play colonial games such as sack races and potato races and do colonial crafts such as candlemaking, weaving and making dried-apple and corn-husk dolls.

They can also take lessons in colonial dances.

They can view such aspects of colonial life as frontier medicine, frontier foods, colonial groceries and colonial dolls.

One special exhibit will show Girl Scouts shearing sheep, spinning wool and weaving cloth. A special show at 3:30 p.m. will feature songs by a chorus of 200 Brownies, colonial dances and a performance of the Girl Scout band.

Beta Sigma Phi's unit celebrates

The grandson of the founder of Beta Sigma Phi will be the speaker when five local chapters of the social, cultural and service organization for women hold their founder's day dinner Friday, April 30, in the new Fairlane Manor on Hubbard in Dearborn.

John J. Ross Jr. grew up in the tradition of the organization that was founded by Walter W. Ross and since has become an international corporation with headquarters in Kansas City.

JOHN J. ROSS JR.

After graduating from Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., John Ross joined the international staff of Beta Sigma Phi, serving in its shipping and printing departments and now working as director of special services. His wife Lynn is an active member of Beta Sigma Phi.

Coming to this area for founder's day festivities, he will address more than 60 women attending the banquet.

The group will include members of two Livonia chapters, Lambda Kappa and Alpha Tau, Xi Epsilon Delta chapter of Westland, Xi Delta Eta chapter of Plymouth, and Xi Delta Psi of Redford Township, as well as their guests from a Dearborn chapter.

Jane Trugeon, Stevenson High School pianist who appeared on a Michigan bicentennial show over national television, will be featured as special entertainer for the occasion.

Beta Sigma Phi members taking part in the program will be Jean Davies of the Alpha Tau chapter giving the invocation, and Elizabeth Yanok, president of Lambda Kappa, serving as mistress of ceremonies.

Norma Shay of the Xi Epsilon Delta chapter is chairman of the coordinating committee.

Beta Sigma Phi, an organization that is non-political, non- sectarian and not affiliated with any school, now has some 250,000 members in more than 12,000 chapters in 24 countries.

Members engage in philanthropic and service projects in their home communities, and internationally the organization has created three special funds.

These are the international loan fund, through which members help each other; the international endowment fund, which has sent more than $1 million to such causes as cancer research, cystic fibrosis, homes for under-privileged children; and the exemplar fund, which helps support Literacy Village in India.

By MARGARET MILLER

Michigan's wait-a-minute-if-you-don't-like-it weather has outdone itself this spring.

Even having experienced quite a few of these unpredictable seasons, I still can't remember a year when the chocolate bunnies melted on Easter and then a junior blizzard followed a week later.

Or when it was too hot to wear a pastel spring suit on Easter Sunday and too cold for the same suit the next week.

BUT ALTHOUGH it was a short summer, there's one thing that has made the weather of the last 10 days somewhat enjoyable.

Most years, when Michigan finally lets us have spring, it's suddenly warm enough for summer and it stays that way, so the season of the tulips and daffodils and cherry blossoms is all too short.

This year, although I'm sure the spring blossoms and greenery are not very appreciative of the chilly days, they are staying at their best for a longer time instead of fading quickly in the too-soon heat.

OUR STAY-AT-HOME college daughter has come up with an explanation for the snow that hit the last Sunday of April.

It seems that her school's big open house regularly brings on a snowstorm, so it was inevitable.

In the last few year's they been snowed out in months more likely to be wintry. This year, she said, they thought they would avoid the problem by scheduling the open house late in the spring. They really should have known better.

One fellow worker, though, tells me he's quite happy about our tenacious winter.

"I like the weather," he said. "I'm heading for Georgia tomorrow."

Workshops view 'New Horizons'

Schoolcraft College has scheduled a four-part workshop entitled "New Horizons" at two locations during May.

Designed as an informal workshop on self-awareness, the program is intended for the woman who is seeking new options in her life, but is unsure about where to start. Participants will explore their relationship to the world and consider new horizons in small groups.

The workshop will be offered at two locations. Beginning May 4 Schoolcraft counselor Shirley Emerson will conduct one group in Room 210 of the Liberal Arts Building on the main campus from 9-11 a.m. through May 25.

A second section will begin on May 6 with Amanda Gudme, an adult education coordinator with the Detroit Public Schools. This group is scheduled at the College's Center in Garden City from 1 to 3 p.m. through May 27.

Registration is $5 and further information may be obtained by calling the women's resource center on main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Garden City center at 29205 Florence.

Horse show

The Downriver Lawyers Wives of Michigan will sponsor a horse show beginning at 9 a.m. Sunday, May 2 at the Wayne County 4-H Fair Association Fairgrounds on Quirk Road, off I-94 in Belleville.

Chief Justice Thomas Giles Kavanagh of the Michigan Supreme Court, will serve as grand marshall. Over 200 horses are expected from throughout Michigan and Ohio. Western and English classes will be featured in all categories and trophies and ribbons will be awarded in each event.

Net proceeds from the show will be distributed by the group for charitable purposes.

New Morning sets open meeting

Another in a series of open meetings on the projected middle school grades program for New Morning School will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, in Epiphany Lutheran Church, 41390 Five Mile, Plymouth.

Interested parents are invited to come and learn more about the alternative school that has been operating in the church for three years.

Anti-cult group sets area meeting

The Citizens Freedom Foundation, formed to represent parents whose children have joined certain religious cults, will hold its first meeting in this area at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 2, in the Holy Cross Evangelical Lutheran Church, 30650 Six Mile, Livonia.

The foundation, organized in Michigan just seven months ago following the leadership of a California group, has previously met in Utica and the east side of Detroit.

Leaders of the Livonia meeting said CFF had had inquiries about such cults as Children of God, the Unification Church led by Rev. Sun Moon, The Way, Forever Family, Hare Krishna and Scientology.

The announcement added that there would be discussion concerning the use of a classroom at Franklin High School by a group called The Way.

"CFF feels that once young people are involved with a cult, many are unable to leave because they are controlled, so controlled that some drop out of college, close their familes out, leave theie jobs and religions and give away everything they own," the announcement said.

"Cult members go to extremes to protect each other from their own families. The greatest concern CFF stress is the damaging effect on the mind.

"A cult can take an intelligent, loving, solid-thinking 20 year-old and within a week change his life around 180 degrees, completely dedicating him to his leader."

Urging clergymen in this area to publicize the meeting and attend it themselves, the CFF stated:

"Although some find it hard to believe that a young person, brought up understanding the Bible, can actually become involved in a cult, it happens every day.

"This is mainly because people are uninformed of their activities. They slip into society, barely noticed until a loved one is lost, and by then it's too late.

"Parents often think a youngster is with a Bible-study group, and they find out later the group is a cult."

Party benefits Interfaith Center

A millionaire party from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Saturday, in the gymnasium of St. Agatha Catholic Church of Redford Township will raise funds for the Northwest Interfaith Center for Racial Justice.

The church is located at 19700 Beech Daly. Tickets, costing $5 per person and including auction, games, prizes and snacks, are available at the center, 22128 Grand River, Detroit.

The Sharette family performing at St. Paul

Church Bulletin

ST. PAUL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Five Mile west of Inkster, Livonia, will complete its spring concert series by presenting the Sharette Family of Farmington Hills in a concert of vocal and instrumental contemporary music at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 2.

The family group, known as "Share", consists of Roland and Beverly Sharette, both of whom have professional singing backgrounds, and three teen-agers, Rick, Denise and Dave.

They present vocal numbers accompanied by guitar, bass, percussion, flue, trumpet and trombone in a wide range of music.

Tickets for the performance are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for students.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Six Mile and Farmington Road, Livonia, will present its youth drama group, the Ward Players, in a reading titled "The Great Awaking" during services at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The reading deals with the church at the time of the American Revolution. A message from The Rev. L. Edward Davis also will be part of the service.

Ward junior high young people will play host all weekend to 30 young people from Knox United Presbyterian Church of Grand Ripids.

The visitors will stay in homes of Ward families, and the combined froups will have a trip to Greenfield Village, a Saturday evening social and class and church services on Sunday.

Dan Schar and Terry Prisk are directing the exchange program, which also will take local junior highs to Grand Rapids for a visit.

LIVONIA CHRISTIAN CHURCH, 36075 Seven Mile, Livonia, will host the Christian Women's Fellowship of Eastern District Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) for a salad buffet at 7 p.m. Monday.

The bell choir of Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church will provide the evening program, and NancyRickard, local CWF president, will welcome the guests.

MT. HOPE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, 30330 Schoolcraft, Livonia, will stage a flea market and rummage sale 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

ST. MAURICE CATHOLIC CHURCH, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia, plans a rummage sale 7-9 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF GARDEN CITY, 6443 Merriman, will hold a rummage sale 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

The United Methodist Women will conduct the sale and the church's youth club will sell refreshments and baked goods.

Madonna to host 2nd prayer breakfast in May

The spiritual tradition of our forefathers who turned to God in gratitude and guidance, will be continued in the bicentennial year at the second annual Livonia Prayer Breakfast, Wednesday, May 19.

Scheduled for 7:30 a.m. in the residence hall dining room at Madonna College, the event is being planned by an ecumenical group of business, religious, and educational leaders in the community. Mayor Edward H. McNamara is serving as honorary chairman.

"The prayer breakfast is intended to demonstrate the dependence of our community and ourselves on God and our faith in the future under His guidance," said Mayor McNamara. He emphasized that all the citizens of Livonia are invited to attend.

The prayer breakfast idea developed out of weekly groups in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives which have been meeting since 1941. In 1953, President Dwight Eisenhower was invited to attend the senate group for a time of fellowship and prayer. Out of that invitation, the National Prayer Breakfast has become an annual affair and similar events are now held in all the states.

More than 250 persons attended the first Livonia Prayer Breakfast last May 13. The committee would like to see more than 400 persons in attendance this year.

Tickets will be available at $4.50 per person in many churches as well as the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, the LOVE Office, and at Madonna College.

Serving on the committee planning the event, in addition to Mayor McNamara, are: Sr. Mary Danatha, president of Madonna College, chairman; Mrs. Joan Duggan, director of LOVE; Rabbi Martin Gordon, Livonia Jewish Congregation; C. Nelson Grote, president, Schoolcraft College; and the Rev. Bartlett L. Hess, pastor of Ward United Presbyterian Church. Others are Mrs. Geraldine Joyner, trustee, Livonia public schools; Rudolph R. Kleinert, Livonia public safety director; Raymond Lech, executive director, Livonia Chamber of Commerce; Judge James Mies and James McCann, 16th District Court; Ed Milligan, Livonia public safety director; Mrs. Joan Patterson, Church Women United and John Reddy, executive editor, the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers.

The committee also includes Ronald Reinke, Livonia parks and recreation department; Ernest Rumsby; The Rev. Surprise for pastor

The congregation of St. Matthew Lutheran Church of Westland surprised Pastor Ralph Fischer and his wife, Erna, with a 25th wedding anniversary gift following a recent soup lunch at the church. The Fischers, who came to St. Matthew in 1972, may put the 500 $1 bills into a second honeymoon jaunt to Hawaii when they go to California in the fall for the 25th anniversary of St. Paul Lutheran Church of Mountain View, a parish they founded. Other donations from St. Matthew groups made their total gift $803. The Fischers, who also served several years in Trinity Lutheran Church, Reese, Mich., have a daughter and two sons.

Education Week here for Mormons

A special educational program will bring 10 leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints to the Dearborn and Bloomfield Hills Mormon chapels on Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1.

Education Week activities will be held 1-10 p.m. both days in the Bloomfield Hills Stake Center, 425 N. Woodward, and the Dearborn Ward Chapel, 20201 Rotunda Drive.

The same lecturers and workshop leaders will appear in both locations at different hours. The group also is conducting Education Week programs in Naperville, Ill., Wilmette, Ill., and East Lansing.

Visiting instructors are J. Lloyd Eldredge, Alma Heaton, Judith J. Hunsaker, O. Glade Hunsaker, E. Dale LeBaron, Robert D. Monson, Marvin J. Payne, Kay H. Smith, Richard A. Vehar and Paul B. Warner.

The Education Week program has a bicentennial theme this year and all lectures and classes are open to the public.

The wide range of topics is on the college level and includes matters from religion and theology to family relationsips, homemaking and camping.

Members of the Mormon church are expected to come from all over Michigan to attend the classes.

The Dearborn Stake covers a large area, with wards and branches in Bowling Green and Toledo, Ohio., Adrian, Gibralter, Allen Park, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor as well as Livonia and Plymouth.

Units of the Bloomfield Hills Stake are in Detroit, Southfield, Roseville, Fenton, Flint, New Baltimore, Pontiac, Royal Oak, Sarnia, Windsor and Troy.

Education Week arrangements were handled in the Dearborn Stake by Charles W. Briggs and Robert B. Young of Livonia and LeRoy S. Walker of Garden City.

Famous Visitor

Four nuns on the staff of St. Mary Hospital in Livonia carried a precious load Monday when the famed International Pilgrim Statue of Our Lady of Fatima was brought to the hospital lobby for a brief visit. The statue, to which cures and miracles have been attributed, also was for a time in the Felician Sisters' Motherhouse in Livonia as part of its month-long visit to the Detroit area. Pictured with the Fatima statue are, from left, Sister Mary Frederick, Sister Mary Angelica, Sister Mary Eucharita and Sister Mary Renetta. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Campaign is for stewardship

Good Shepherd Reformed Church of Westland will climax a seven-week Stewardship of Life campaign Thursday, May 6, showing for the first time at a congregational dinner architectural plans for a multiple-unit structure to serve the church's growing needs.

The church, which received a gift of several acres of land adjoining its property at 6500 N. Wayne, has for seven weeks been informing families of needs and opportunities facing the congregation.

The Rev. Kelvin Kornemeyer, pastor, said the campaign was designed to involve the entire church in a deeper commitment to the total program of the church."

He added that gift of the land, valued at $257,000, "has immeasurably inspired the vision and the faith of members of the congregation."

The dinner in an area restaurant will give Good Shepherd members a chance to see drawings for the proposed new unit, the pastor said, and each will be given a copy of the pictoral progress report for the church.

The stewardship campaign to carry out the program to build the unit has been led by Jeffrey Langham, who has organized a staff of four chairmen. They are Mrs. Clarence Fagan, arrangements; Richard DeFouw, publicity, Mrs. Leonard Tyree, prayer, and William Pearson Jr., stewardship.

Langham said his committee hopes to involve the entire church constituency in service and financial support of the church.

Fire chief is plotting for a return contest

These are restless days for George Schoennman, chief of the Plymouth Fire Department.

Each day, as the sun shines through his window, he fondles a series of pictures showing his prowess as a fisherman and longs for the day when he can battle the finny tribe in Lake Superior again.

"I've been fishing all my life," he'll tell you, "and it is only natural that I get a kick out of trying to land the 'big ones'."

THERE ARE fewf more ardent disciples of Isaac Walton than the fire chief, who has now reached the point in his fishing career that he makes his own fishing tackle and rods. And he seems to know just when and where to go for the tasty members of the finny tribe.

While he looks at the pictures and dreams of the day, come this summer when he is on his vacation, he proudly tells of the days before the state set a limit on a catch, that he hauled in as many as 15 big ones with most of them weighing between 10 and 15 pounds.

When asked how long he had been fishing, the chief usually smiles and answers "all my life."

And that just about tells the truth.

"I was only a young kid when my father took me with him when he went fishing on Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River," he confided, "and I have been interested ever since."

The chief likes to tell of the early days on the St. Clair River when he'd sit by the hour and wait for a 'bite.' And he can recall he fished the spot where the famed Fisherman's Wharf Motel now owned by Chuck Muir stands.

"I knew the original owner— Stu Cunningham— when he started his business in a little shack on the bank of the river. And I was a good friend until he retired from the business that was one of the best along the river."

The chief fished the St. Clair River regularly until a few years ago when state officials detected mercury in the water that was proving injurious to the wall-eyes.

"When that happened," he says, "we moved to a cottage in LaAnse in the upper peninsula and I started going after the big lake trout and the other species that give you a battle."

He is so ardent a fisherman that he wouldn't think of spending a vacation any place other than the shores of Lake Superior.

WHILE FISHING has been his relaxation over the years, George always has been a fire buff— and never missed a fire if he could help it.

Now, as chief of the city department, he is considered one of the leaders in his profession in the state.

But when it comes to fishing— well there is no more enthusiastic angler.

HAIR CARE FACTS

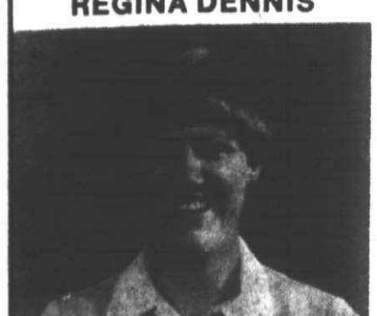

MURIEL RISBERG

JOHN DENNIS

REGINA DENNIS

JEANIE CHAISSON

SUSAN STALLINGS

SANDI BODENMILLER

FACT: In a recent newspaper article (not this paper), it was said any shampoo would clean hair; even a bar of soap. That no shampoo corrected damaged hair. They talk about the ph of 7 being neutral, and about how advertisers mislead the public.

FACT: The way that article was written was very poor and as misleading as some advertisers are.

FACT: Every head of hair is not the same. Every shampoo is not the same.

FACT: Shampoos for oily hair are made stronger to cut oil. Hair is not oily. The scalp is what is oily. This shampoo should be applied to the scalp area only, worked in, then rinsed out. If used as a regular shampoo, it would dry the hair out by removing natural moisture, still leaving an oily scalp. The second application of shampoo should be normal for normal hair, or if hair is dried out, a shampoo for dry hair. Many times hair is thought to be oily because of the previous use of after shampoo conditioners which contained parafin waxes or oils to help remove tangles and make the hair shine. Most of these products make the hair feel dirty after a very short time.

FACT: Shampoos for dandruff are made to soften and loosen dead skin on the scalp so that easy removal of it can be done. Some contain bacteria-fighters. This shampoo is also drying. Flaking dandruff in most cases is dead skin being lifted by oil on the scalp. Powdery dandruff is caused by dry scalp, possibly natural, if the rest of the body is dry, or because strong shampoo is used regularly. Brushing hair is the best way to get rid of loose skin. Hair washed with a bar soap cannot be properly rinsed, therefore, it would take away natural moisture. Leave it on your skin and it will do the same.

FACT: Ph means parts hydrogen. Seven is neutral, true, but only on a ph chart or meter. Everything has a ph balance. Ph balance does not mean a thing unless the balance is what is needed. This paper you're reading and the ink on it is ph balanced. If your blood is not ph balanced you would be ill, most likely dead. Your skin and hair are balanced at a normal ph range from 4.5 to 5.5. Use something lower that 4.5 and you will shrink it. Higher than 5.5 and it will swell. Both higher and lower ph products are used in the beauty profession. Permanent wave solutions, tints, straighteners, bleaches, semi-permanent rinses and others are higher than 5.5, and therefore the hair should be returned to 4.5 to 5.5 with another product of lower ph or the same as the ph of hair to return it to the normal size, which is it's strongest form.

TOM READ

FACT: If a shampoo is properly picked for your type of hair, your hair will look and be healthier.

FACT: More than one type of shampoo is usually needed.

FACT: We pick and use proper shampoos for your hair at no extra cost with the exception of a dandruff-correcting shampoo.

FACT: Condition means state of being. Conditioner means putting into a condition. Put mud on your skin or hair and you have conditioned it. The proper thing would be to re-condition. Return it as close as possible to its natural state. Hair needs moisture to be pliable. If there is no natural moisture, it will break. Not enough natural moisture plus outside moisture will cause hair sets to fall out. Protein is what hair is mostly made up of. Loss of it leaves hair without body. Protein can, if properly refined, be put into hair to repair it, but it is true like repairing a broken finger nail it is not as perfect as virgin hair but will definitely work to repair the damage. Many products claim to contain protein but most do nothing because of the lack of refinement or incomplete type of protein. You don't have to put very much of a meat or bone by-product in a product to say it contains protein for the hair according to government standards.

FACT: In permanent waving, it's the size of the rod that determines the size of the curl; nothing else. Timing is only used to get 100% curl which is very important.

FACT: Permanent waving is a skilled art necessary to get the results wanted without damage. To get this skilled art, extra advanced training is necessary more than just beauty school training.

FACT: We don't have specials on permanent waves. Our minimum price is $20.00. Average is $25 to $30, plus hair cut, if needed.

FACT: The average hair stylist gets 50% commission. If she or he gives you a perm and spends 1½ to 2 hours doing it and charges less than $20, for instance $12.50 which is the most advertised price, they have made $3.12 an hour before taxes and maybe less if supplies are deducted. I'll bet you they don't have their hearts in it. You're rushed through and have less body in your hair through damage than when you walked in. You've wasted time and money.

FACT: Permanent waving does not add body to your hair. Permanent waving adds curl support. Support is what holds your set in. Without curl support your straight hair will return to its natural position faster.

FACT: Overly natural curly hair can benefit by a soft permanent wave. You will then have controlled curl or waves. Not so with chemically straightened hair.

FACT: Tint needs to be neutralized just as permanent waves do. The neutralizer is not the same type.

FACT: Most 5-week rinses are dyes. Some lift natural color. Some contain permanent wave lotion which will straighten hair. Read and follow instructions carefully on all products.

FACT: High price of products to not always mean they are better. It may mean more advertising money was spent on it, or the manufacturer or middle-man is making more profit.

FACT: Where to lighten hair on the head, such as in multiple-toning, frosting, streaking, etc., depends on facial shape. Improperly placed color can take away from the beauty of the face and even distort it. Improper choice of color can do the same thing.

FACT: During pregnancy, hair which normally falls out remains until after birth. Sometimes as long as eight months. It then falls out causing large losses. It will return to normal. New hair can not be replaced until the old does fall out.

FACT: All hair cuts can be made to look better. If you have had a bad one, don't suffer with it. Get it repaired now. If you look good, you feel good.

FACT: Shaving or cutting will not make hair grow coarser, faster or make hair thicker. Ask any young boy who tried to grow hair on his face or chest, or a man with little or no hair on his head.

FACT: Cutting curls off of a young child has no effect on growth. If it's natural curly it will remain so. Children's hair has curl in most cases because of lack of abuse.

FACT: The proper hair cut is the most important service you can get for your hair.

FACT: The shape of your face will also determine the best type of hair cut for you.

FACT: Our shop boasts of having the winner of both the North American and Mid-American hair shaping competitions. We have 3 staff members who travel throughout Michigan teaching other licensed hair stylists, also 3 who teach licensed stylists in Wayne County only; 3 who taught in beauty schools, a toupee expert and a make-up consultant who will help you without trying to sell you anything.

FACT: We are segregationists. We have separate areas for women and men. But prices are the same.

FACT: Hair sets are available for men who would like to try curls or waves before making them permanent with a permanent wave.

FACT: Men's permanent wave prices are the same as women's. We do believe in fair pricing.

FACT: Our average prices are as follows:

Shampoo & set	6.00 & 7.00
Hair cuts only	6.50 & 7.50
Shampoo, air dry, with hair cut (no iron)	3.00 additional
Tint with neutralizer	8.00

We try to charge minimum where possible. By doing so, we keep busy, make money, and every one is happy.

DAVE EVERSON

CHRIS SALTESZ

Scholarships given

Dave Everson of Bentley High School and Chris Soltesz of Franklin High School have each been awarded two-week scholarships to Interlochen Music Camp by the Livonia Civic Chorus.

Dave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Everson of Loveland in Livonia, won the instrumental scholarship playing the French horn. He is a member of the Bentley Concert Band and also plays with the Livonia Youth Symphony.

Chris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Soltesz of Frederick Drive in Livonia, is a senior at Franklin High School. He is a tenor and won the vocal scholarship. Last year he sang in "Music Man" at Franklin and this year had a part in "Carousel." He started his vocal training at Whitmore Junior High School and has progressed to sing with the Michigan Honors Choir.

The Livonia Civic Chorus is sponsored by the Livonia Parks and Recreation Dept. The 60-member chorus has singers from Livonia, Westland, Farmington, Dearborn, Detroit and Ann Arbor. The group sings at various church, community and civic functions during the year. Its biggest undertaking is the Spring Concert which will be held this year April 30 and May 1 in the Clarenceville Auditorium in Livonia. Profits from this show are used to finance these scholarships.

The group, in its 11th year, awards one vocal and one instrumental scholarships each year to two deserving Livonia School District students. The awards are in conjunction with the Interlochen All-State Convention and the University of Michigan.

Auditions set for musical

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will hold open auditions for the musical comedy "1776" at 2 p.m., Sunday and at 7:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday in Pierson Center, 32625 Seven Mile Road (just east of Farmington Road), Livonia.

The show will be directed by Audrey Bush of Franklin; Andrew Henderson of Plymouth is the musical director and Mitzi Carol of Dearborn is the choreographer. The production is sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission and performances will be July 9 and 10 at the Churchill High School Auditorium.

"1776" is a recreation of the momentous days from May 8 to July 4 in Philadelphia when the second Continental Congress argued about, voted on and signed the Declaration of Independence. Roles are available for 25 men and two women. For further information, call 626-6159 or 421-1972.

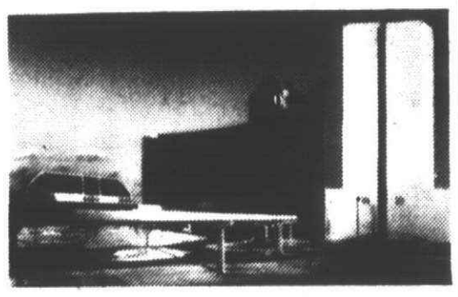

Group Trees will perform

The Trees, a nationally known musical group from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, will present a program at 8 p.m. Thursday (April 29) in the Church of Our Saviour (United Presbyterian), 6655 Middle Belt, West Bloomfield.

Using more than 50 instruments, both ancient and modern, the eight-member group portrays the theme "Alienation to Enlightenment." The presentation is based upon Biblical material, including the Psalms, Isaiah, and Revelation.

"Bus Stop" lets audience escape into a bit of nostalgia

By JANAN GHANNAM

"Bus Stop," playing on weekends through May 7 at the Livonia-Redford Theater Guild, has strong pretentious characters, nostalgic scenery and a comical plot with serious intent.

The three-act William Inge play depicts love relationships on three—maybe even four levels.

The "bus stop," a greasy spoon diner in a small midwestern town, is superficially a haven for those caught in a storm on their way to Montana. Symbolically it is a refuge where after hours of group therapy romance refugees come to their senses.

Elma Duckworth, portrayed by Julie Rotary of Livonia, is a typical bobby-soxed, pony-tailed tenny-bopper of the 50s. Ms. Rotary played her role with the subtle wide-eyed aweness of a lovelorn 16 year old.

Dr. Gerald Lyman, portrayed by Fred Bush, was Elma's first admirer. The Shakespeare authoritarian was later revealed as an insecure alcoholic who gets his kicks provoking young naive girls.

Bush, co-producer of the play, carried his role from beginning to end with a pint of liquor not so conspicuously hidden in his inside coat pocket.

His soliloquies throughout the play indicated his loneliness and sorrow of his pseudo-love life, yet true self-realization is not apparent until the end.

The guild's vice president and social director, Verna Paul, who played Grace the diner owner, typified the lonely, middle-aged, separated women "who's just gotta have a man."

Her relationship with Carl the bus driver, played by guild newcomer Tom McDonnell, previously consisted of 20-minute talks between stops. But that night was not as nonchalant as Grace intended it to be.

Her scheme of developing a sudden headache while Carl was taking a long walk in the storm may have fooled some—but not Sherrif Will Masters.

Portrayed by Jim Finucan, another guild newcomer, his over-confident, "nothing-gets-by-me" role encompasses all the characters. Only one character ever defied the fearless promoter of law and order.

Defending his masculinity in more ways than one, Cowboy Bo Decker, a riled-up bronco buster took on anyone who "caint agree with him."

Played by Tatt Burke, a junior at St. Agatha High School, Bo depicted the stereotype "gonna-get my woman" role so commonly seen in late night western movies.

He demanded Cherie, the chanteuse from the Ozarks, marry him in Montana and live happily ever after with his prize broncos.

Cherie claimed she does not love Bo.

Played by Julienne Milazzo an accomplished guild actress, Cherie added color and vibrance throughout the play.

From her first entrance into the diner as a frustrated dumb blonde, to her "Old Black Magic" number and last statement: "I ain't never had that honor before," referring to being Bo's first lover, Cherie played the southern belle character with genuine cotinuity.

Bo and Cherie finally got it together—with the help of Virgil, Bo's side-kick. Played by J.Craig Collicott, Virgil was the most humane of all characters.

His advice to Bo, given crudely, yet honestly, reflected the mistakes he made in his own life.

Virgil regretted he never married,and warned Bo not to make the same mistake.

His feelings are best described at the end when he told Bo to go to Montana without him.

The storm let up and all the diner patrons were gone leaving Virgil with no place to go.

With a wad of tobacco in his mouth and a guitar slung over his shoulder, Virgil simply repliesd, "I guess that's what happens to some people left out in the cold."

The slow-picking guitar music and the wall menu—considered comical these days—lent authenticity to the set.

With doughnuts on sale two for a nickel, and a hamburger for a quarter, "Bus Stop" allowed the audience as well as the characters to escape into a fantasy world—but only for a short while.

That "Old Black Magic" put the characters' lives back in a realistic perspective of themselves. As Dr. Lyman said: "There is no room in this world for someone who doesn't know what love really is."

Junior orchestra features area soloists

Robert Randall will conduct the Junior Orchestra of The Livonia Youth Symphony Society in a concert Sunday, at 3 p.m. in Churchill High School, 8900 Newburgh Road, Livonia.

The program will include solos by six area junior high school musicians who are members of this intermediate symphony orchestra.

Tickets for this concert will be $1.50 for adults and $.50 for all students with senior citizens admitted free.

Eli signs with OSU

By BILL COLLINS

After earning almost every honor that can be awarded a high school athlete, Plymouth Salem's Jim Ellinghausen, one of the most sought-after prep athletes in the country, signed his tender to enroll at Ohio State University this fall to play under new head coach Eldon Miller.

"I'll have an opportunity to contribute to the program at Ohio State earlier in my career than I would at other schools I was considering," said the 6'8" senior.

Ellinghausen commented that he received over 1,000 letters while he was in high school and was the recipient of approximately 100 bonafide scholarship offers from major universities.

"My decision came down to a choice between the University of Michigan and Ohio State," he said.

"But at OSU I feel I can be a major part of their rebuilding program along with Eldon Miller. Of all the coaches who recruited me, he (Miller) believed in me more than any other," said Ellinghausen, during his three-year varsity career at Plymouth Salem, set new standards in almost every category of the record book.

THE MAN Ellinghausen feels he chiefly responsible for his rapid development as a player is Salem head coach Fred Thomann.

"He's been instrumental in my career as a coach, an instructor, and a counselor. He's prepared me to play college ball very well," Ellinghausen stated.

Thomann was an All-State star at Taylor Center High School before going on to play basketball at Michigan State.

In his four years at Plymouth Salem, Thomann has directed his teams to a 78-14 record including three consecutive Suburban Eight championships, three Christmas tourney trophies, a pair of district championships in addition to the regional and quarterfinal titles.

"Jim is a fine, big player. He's excellent as a perimeter shooter, and passes extremely well. He has good court sense and handles a pass well because of his fine hands," appraised Thomann.

"He has the opportunity to be a college player and he'll find out where he fits in to the OSU program next fall. I feel the aspects of his game he'll have to improve on is stamina and strength, plus defensing the smaller forwards," Thomann commented.

During his three years, Ellinghausen notched career records in points scored (1,313), rebounds (750), and blocked shots (227).

He also possesses season all marks in points (636), rebounds (302), and blocked shots (107).

His 43 points against Redford Union and 21 rebounds against Livonia Bentley are game records for Plymouth Salem.

Ellinghausen's 28.9 scoring average was the highest of any player in the state, as he was named to every All-State coaches poll. He earned All-Suburban-8 honors for three years in a row and All-Observerland team for three years.

DON ELLINGHAUSEN admitted that his family was affected by the unrelenting visits made by coaches during the past year but that everyone learned something from each coach.

"It created a bit of havoc at times, but most men were very accommodating about talking to Jim. No matter who was visiting us we all absorbed bits of knowledge about the many aspects of college athletics, especially the things to look out for," he said.

"I can't say we were harassed because the recruiters were professionals. They have to be because it's their livelihood.

"These coaches practice selling their program as a business and as a parent I act as a critic, and get a feel for what that coaches attitude towards his players is and give my assessment of the coach to Jim."

"WHEN THE decision came down to a few schools, the choice was his to make. My role as a judge of character no longer was a factor after he had seen the schools he was interested in.

"I feel it was Jim's maturity and knowledge of basketball that gave him the basis for his choice," he said.

The Salem senior's career is now over and he can look forward to renewed successes on the college level. But Ellinghausen recounted three highlights he'll always remember from his prep playing days:

"Playing in the semi-finals at Jenison Fieldhouse, scoring 18 points in the first quarter in the game we won over Pontiac Central, and the only time we beat Belleville at their own gym during this past season were the highlights," he said.

Canton batsmen impressive in Cincinnati

After winning 22 ball games a season ago, Plymouth Canton has come to expect mighty things from its baseball program.

On their recent voyage to the Cincinnati area, the Chiefs met their expectations by winning three of four contests with some bona fide clubs that had played upwards of 25 games by the time Canton invaded their terrirory.

Game one went right to the wire before Canton dropped a 6-5 decision to a local club which claimed its 18th victory against seven losses by beating the Chiefs.

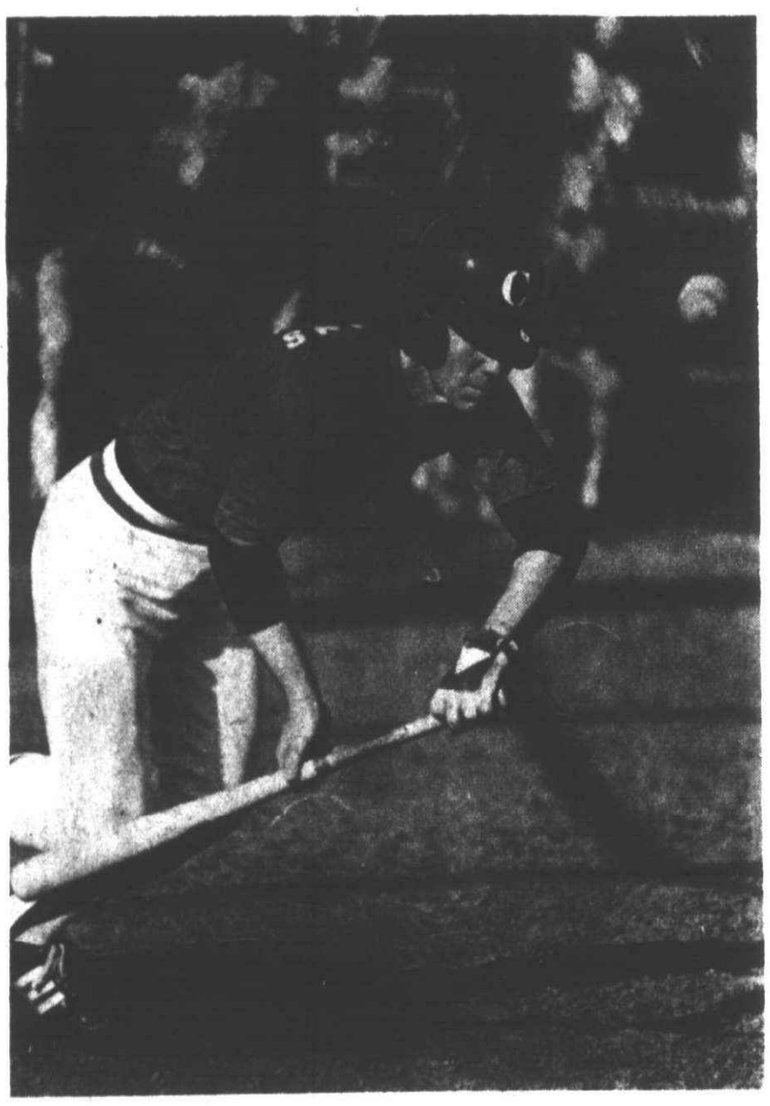

Canton took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Ken Britton and Bill Parson scored after reaching base on errors and came home on singles by Scott Collins and Kevin Randazzo.

Collins and Randazzo performed with plenty of poise at shortstop and second base and can look forward to plenty of playing time in the future, provided their play remains consistent.

Canton's adversaries made it 3-2 in their half of the inning by stringing a pair of doubles along with a base hit for three runs.

The Chiefs scored four runs in the fourth inning when they put together six singles. Steve Dugan, Scott Collins, Steve Hanis, Dave Pink and Bill Parson hitched base hits to produce the Chiefs' final runs of the game.

The lead was narrowed to 6-5 in the fifth inning, and tied at six-all with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning when a scratch single and a fly ball in the sun, which bounded behind the leftfielder, sent the contest into extra innings.

Sophomore Scott Collins, the youngest member of the Canton club, lays down a bunt.

Bill Parson, an All-Western Six pitcher as a junior and a sophomore, allowed six runs on seven hits, although three runs were unearned. Parson will be counted on heavily when the Chiefs must win a big ball game.

Steve Morman pitched the final three innings and suffered the defeat, although he pitched well, when he yielded a walk and two singles in the eleventh inning to even the Chief record at 2-2.

The following day saw a darkness-shortened game won by the Chiefs 1-0 in four innings.

John Young went the distance and allowed a double and a single in winning his second game of the season.

Canton scored its only run in the fourth inning on a walk for Young, a ground out which moved him to second, a passed ball and a throwing error to the catcher.

Canton flexed its hitting muscles on Saturday afternoon by walloping New Richmond 14-4, and 4-0 in five innings.

In the first encounter, Canton rapped 13 hits off New Richmond pitching while Mark Perkins coasted through six innings before having his shutout bid foiled in the final frame.

In the onslaught of the first game, Tom Close drove home five runs on a single and a pair of tape-measure home runs, while Steve Hanis walloped a home run with the bases loaded for a total of five RBIs on the day.

Perkins went two for three on the day and cracked a two-run homer of his own in the second inning.

He yielded two hits in the first six innings he worked and ran into problems in trying to preserve a shutout. The junior right-hander struck out eight and didn't walk a batter.

Canton put its seasonal mark after the trip at 5-2 by winning the second half of the double header, 4-0, as Morman and Dave Ost combined for a five-inning perfect game.

Morman went the first four innings and didn't allow a ball hit outside the infield. He needed only two strikeouts to square his record for the year at 1-1, and now carries the lowest earned run average on the staff, with an impressive 0.58 mark.

Canton took a 1-0 edge in the second inning when Bill Parson walked, stole second base, and rode home on a John O'Connell single.

Canton added the insurance runs in the fourth inning on a bases-loaded walk to Morman, a passed ball on a strikeout, and a single by Dugan.

Ost pitched the final inning and fanned two batters to cap a successful Chief trip to Southern Ohio.

Tom Close, after a sluggish start, came back to Plymouth as the team's leading hitter with a .391 average , seven RBIs and nine hits.

Close was watched by several professional scouts during the trip and is a legitimate college prospect. He will be needed for leadership behind the plate and to supply the big stick if Canton hopes to capture a second consecutive Western Six championship.

Bill Parson can be expected to shake off some minor problems he has faced in the early going, and, with Perkins, Morman, and Young, the Chiefs could possess tremendous depth on the mound for the remainder of this season.

The outfield shows signs of improvement as Steve Dugan, hitting .313, and Steve Hanis, with five RBIs, are coming around at the plate, while Mike Sochaki and Gary Birdsall supplement the effort with fielding support.

With Ken Britton at third base, Rob Mandle or Scott Collins at shortstop, and Kevin Randazzo at second base, Canton has a young corps of infielders who have performed admirably and will get better with more experience.

Proven .300 hitters currently in batting slumps are Dave Pink and Parson, who can give the Chiefs a boost once the ball starts dropping for them.

If John Young's injury isn't as serious as was thought, Canton looks strong in practically all areas,its weaknesses shrinking as younger players receive more experience.

Observer relays ready to go

By DOUG FUNKE

Strategy will play a big role in deciding the outcome of the sixth annual Observerland Relays this Saturday at Hilbert Junior High School in Redford Township.

With 16 teams competing in one of the metropolitan area's largest cinder gatherings and with each trackster limited to three running events, the manner in which coaches utilize their thinclads will be critical to their chances for a team championship.

Basically, a coach has two choices. He may stack all his talent in a couple of races, finish high, then hope the rest of his runners will scrape up enough points for the title.

The other option is to spread his best runners throughout all the events, score points in a majority of the races and hope that a consistent run of points will lead to a championships.

Either strategy is a risk. In any event, the Observerland Relays has assumed its place among the outstanding track and field meets of Southeastern Michigan.

"I think a lot of good things come out of this competition," said Redford Union track coach John MacKenzie, who Saturday is serving as meet director. "The kids really get up for it.

"The Observerland Relays capture the most attention as far as local interest is concerned, track coaches from outside the area have inquired about entering, but I have to tell them there's no room."

MacKenzie and Livonia Churchill coach Fred Price, whose team has been compiling the best track efforts in Wayne County, say the times and distances of area thinclads have become quite respectable.

The RU coach said he figures that Churchill merits the favorite's role this year due to its tremendous team balance. Redford Bishop Borgess will likely put up the biggest challenge, the meet director surmised.

With 12 events on the card and 16 teams participating, most squadswill show their claws in at least one aspect of the relays.

MacKenzie rates Churchill, Farmington, North Farmington and Redford Bishop Borgess to be among the strongest in the distance relays.

He also said that Livonia Franklin appears to have the most talent in the sprints, while the two-mile relay stacks up to be a dog fight between Churchill, Garden City West and Redford Thurston.

The field events are wide open," MacKenzie said. Churchill gets the pre-meet nod in the discus relay, mainly on the strong right arm of Dave Kielty.

MacKenzie said that Livonia Stevenson and RU are the favorites in the shot put relay, Farmington and Bishop Borgess in the long jump relay, Churchill, Borgess and RU in the high jump relay and Garden City West, Churchill and RU in the pole vault relay.

Four meet records were shattered last year, and according to MacKenzie, the events in which to look for new standards Saturday are the four mile, the two mile and the long jump relays.

Since the relays were initiated in 1971, RU and Churchill have won twice and Farmington and Stevenson once. RU is the defending champion.

The closet meet was contested in 1973, when Churchill and Stevenson tied with 27 points and Bishop Borgess totalled 26.

The Relays will be held at Hilbert Junior High, 26440 Puritan, Redford Township. The school is located approximately midway between Five and Six Mile Roads and Inkster and Beech Daly Roads.

Teams which will compete are Livonia Bentley, Stevenson, Franklin, Churchill, Garden City East, Garden City West, Farmington, North Farmington, Farmington Harrison and Northville.

Others are Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Southfield-Lathrup, Thurston, Bishop Borgess and host RU.

The field events will begin at 2 p.m. with the pole vault. The running portion of the relays will start at 7 p.m. Tickets, at 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults, good for all events, will be available at the gate.

With favorable weather, a crowd upwards of 2,000 is expected.

Franklin bounces Canton netmen

Playing without the services of two regulars, Plymouth Salen's tennis squad lost to Edsel Ford Tuesday, 4-3. The loss dropped Salem's dual meet record to a disappointing 1-4.

"Our kids did an excellent job. Even without Curt Schultz, who normally plays second singles, and Greg Andrews of our first doubles team, we still played real well. I was quite pleased," commented coach Jim Stevens.

Extending his first singles mark to 3-2, Salem's Ken Bloom prevailed over Steve LaFountain, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. Billy Cook, at second singles for Salem, also reigned in three sets, 7-6, 1-6, 6-4.

Rounding out the singles competition for Salem, Steve Nickoloff and Kurt Olson were not as successful. Nickoloff lost a close match to Ray Passeno, 5-7, 5-7 and Olson was easily handled by Bob Jablonski, 1-6, 2-6.

Jeff Bearup and Chris Saxton, assuming the reins of first doubles in Andrews' absence, lost in two sets to Dave Rich and Mark Jankowski, 3-6, 1-6.

In a key three-set match at second doubles, Salem's Ed Thomas and Bob Braun tumbled 6-1, 1-6, 2-6.

The final winner for Salem and evidence of the constantly improving depth of the netters occurred in the third doubles position, where Craig Stevens and Curt Lewis triumphed easily, 6-1, 6-3.

Salem's next match is today at Dearborn and anticipating the return of Schultz and Andres, combined with the team's steady improvement, a Salem victory, could be the result.

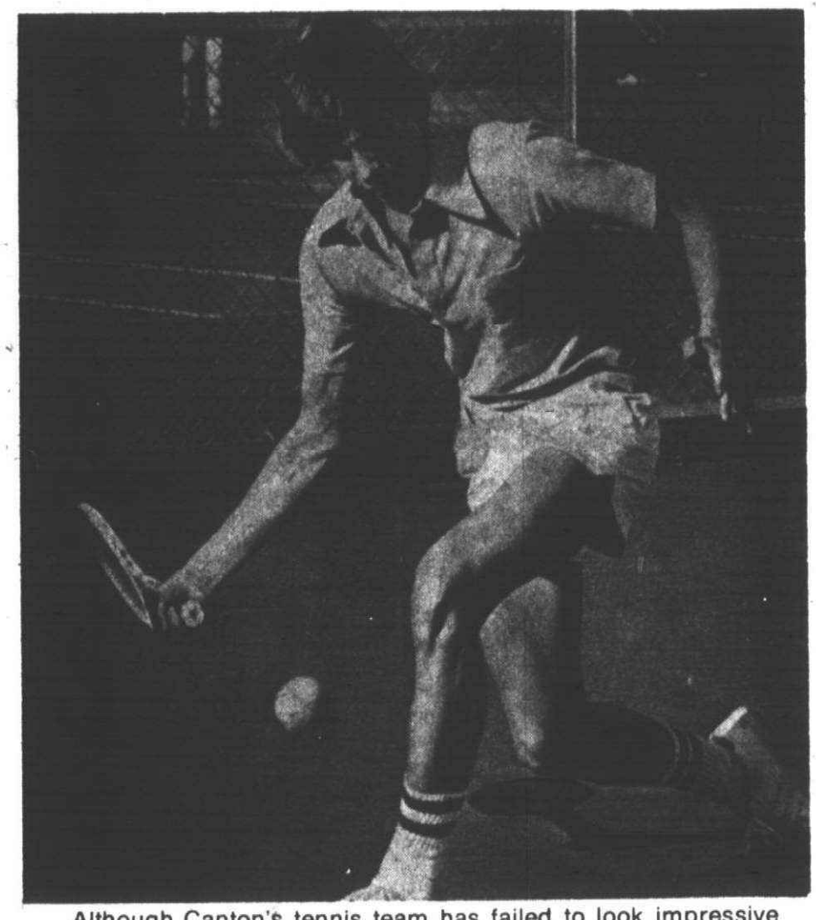

Finishing on the losing end of another cliffhanger, Plymouth Canton's tennis team succumbed to Livonia Franklin Tuesday, 4-3, its third consecutive defeat of the young season.

Continuing to conform to the loftiest preseason expectations at first singles for Canton, Steve Prueter remained undefeated by routing Steve Kiras, 6-2, 6-2.

After losing the opening set and falling behind in the second, Steve Pasley, at second singles, demonstrated remarkable poise, won a second set tiebreaker and cruised to a satisfying 4-6, 7-6, 6-3 win.

"After his two close losses this season, it was pleasant to watch Steve hang in there and comeback to win," observed coach Jim Hayes.

John Herron, playing third singles, continued Canton's winning ways by disposing of Dave Sprow, 6-4, 6-1.

Although Canton's tennis team has failed to look impressive overall, single's ace Steve Puerter remains undefeated. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Suddenly, however, the roof caved in and Franklin swept the four remaining matches, permitting Canton to capture only nine games.

At fourth singles for Canton, Stuart Sobcyznski succumbed to dave Iverson, 2-6, 0-6.

Salem's premier doubles team of Paul Ardnowksi and Tim Wise fell, 3-6, 1-6, to drop their season slate to 1-2.

The second duo of Matt Campbelland Doug Hetu, suffering from the jitters of inexperience, but displaying consistent improvement, was routed, 1-6, 0-6.

Don Faulkerson and Dan Schmidt were dismantled at third doubles for Canton by Bob Deyo and Dean Morier, 2-6, 0-6.

With the conference schedule now on tap, and possessing the unblemished leadership of Prueter, hopefully Canton will improve its luck, with victories replacing losses.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

MORE THAN four million bowlers hold membership in the American Bowling Congress and compete in league play at least once each week.

What is the mean average of the group?

This seemed like a question without an answer, but the ABC has come up with the figures and they are most surprising.

In a recent survey, it was found that the mean average across the country was 157.4 per game. This was up three and one half points from 15 years ago when the last survey was taken.

It was interesting to note, too, that the biggest improvement in averages came in the 170-179 group. And there are four times as many with averages of 200 or better than there were 15 years ago.

THE NEW 12-team mixed league that is being sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association during the summer months will open a 12-week schedule May 26, at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park. The league will be at Merri-Bowl Lanes in Livonia on July 28.

THE PARKS AND RECREATION Department League in Livonia, now rated the largest in the country, is crowning its champions this week with a string of banquets.

Organized almost two decades ago to give the school children an activity after school each day, the league now uses all the laned in Livonia and has a membership of close to 2,000.

RICHARD FRIEBE had a big night in the Garden Lanes Classic when he showed the way with a 686 series. But, he had to yield single game honors to a trio of other sharpshooters.

Topping this trio was Robert Vaughn with a 289, while Frank Miskinis followed with a 278 and Bill Cope was third with a a 264 in a 673 series.

SEVERAL NEW NAMES popped up in the senior house league at Westland Bowl.

Leading the parade was Chet Karan with a closing 254 in 656 that gave him a 16-pin edge over Bob Rose, who had a 254 middle game in a 640 series. Third place went to Bob Johnson, who closed with a 244 in 637.

There was some good shooting in the Monday men's League at Plaza Lanes, where the Colonial Lounge team had a 1062 game in a 2835 series.

Dennis Seeman topped the individuals with an opening 278 in a 663 series. Gerry Curry opened with a 240 and landed second with 628, and Rick Fishaw finished with a 607 after starting with a 236.

Rocks drop Edsel Ford 3-0 for seventh win

Plymouth Salem, receiving some hot pitching from Brian Wolcott and hot hitting from the rest of its lineup on a blustery, cold Tuesday afternoon, defeated Dearborn Edsel Ford 3-0 for its fourth consecutive Suburban Eight League baseball victory.

The Rocks was the only area team to see action the first two days of this week due to the miserable weather conditions. Crews were at work on Salem's diamond early Tuesday morning in an effort to whip the field into playable condition.

Once the game began, the Salem diamondmen, with a 10-hit assault, made all the work crew's efforts worthwhile.

The Rocks tallied single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Mitch Symonds started things off in the fourth frame with a walk, and scored all the way from first base on a double by Bob Smith.

In the fifth, Benny Wilcox singled, moved to second on an error, advanced to third on a single by Dave Pierce and negotiated the final feet of the basepaths on a sacrifice fly.

The final run of the game was scored by the Rocks in the sixth inning when Charlie Johnson led off with a triple and scored on a single by Howard Inch.

Wolcott went the distance on the mound for Salem to wrap up his fourth conference win. In fact, the righthander has been credited with all of the Rocks' league victories.

The senior relinquished only three hits—all singles—and walked one while striking out nine.

"Wolcott pitched one of his best games of the year," said Salem coach Brian Gilles.

"When we get good defense and super pitching, we play good ball," the coach added.

Wolcott helped preserve his shutout by picking an Edsel Ford runner off second base after the Thunderbird had singled and stolen second.

As things turned out, the next T-Bird batter singled and would have knocked in a run if his teammate had not been picked off.

Salem, now sporting an overall 7-2 record, plays tomorrow (Friday) with another Sub Eight test at Dearborn. Game time is 4 p.m.

Boys' best area track times

Area coaches are encouraged to contact Livonia Churchill coach Fred Price, who is compiling the top boys' track and field performances of the season. He may be reached at 261-7300 during the day and at 425-1848 in the evening.

Cincy trip successful

By BILL COLLINS

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs baseball sojourn to Cincinnati are during Easter break last week can be rated a success, as the Chiefs won three of four ballgames; came away with a better knowledge of themselves as players; and in the eyes of coach Fred Crissey, participated in a meanignful experience over the five-day excursion.

"The trip gives us a chance for a week to concentrate on baseball, where evrything we do while we're down there revolves around when we're practicing and when we have games," said Crissey. "When we take a team and trasport them 300 miles out of their natural environment, they have to make an adjustment.

"This team handled that aspect of the trip very well, and that gave me a chance to look at each player as an individual, not merely a high school student I see at practice three hours every day," Crissey stated.

CRISSEY COMMENTED that the club practiced and played an average of five hours a day on the diamond, which was twice the normal amount of time a team will spend during school. "When we're down in southern Ohio all by ourselves, we're away from all the distractions a player is confronted with while living at home. Basically we're making a concerted effort towards improving through interaction," he said.

The prime reason that very few schools do not conduct baseball trips to warmer climates is becasuse of the tremendous amount of work that must be exerted to plan a trip such as Canton's.

Crissey cited several persons in particular for their role in making the trip a reality. Supt. of Plymouth Schools John Hoben gave the team the green light to make plans and handled the insurance portion of the trip.

"I'd like to thank Kent Buikema for his cooperation and encouragement along with Athletic Director John Sandmann for setting up the inter-state contracts and thank the parents of all the players who encouraged and allowed me the authority to run a trip like this," he said.

Transportation was provided by Bill Parson, Jack Carpenter, and John Marafield, while the unyielding responsibility of chaperoning such a venture was taken up by John Close, Harold Pink, and Jim Collins.

"The chaperones were magnificent, I never had to woory about a thing, when things had to be done they assumed the responsibilities of transporting the team all around the area with a willingness, and I'm sure they enjoyed the trip just as much as everyone else," said Crissey.

Although the basic theme of the journey was baseball, their were several other activities which the members of the team had a chance to partake in during the evenings they weren't playing.

The tour arrived in Monroe, Ohio, where they stayed for the duration of the stay, at 4 p.m.

That night, the team attended a Cincinnati Reds baseball game at Riverfront Stadium in the City of Seven Hills, with the Reds losing to the San Diego Padres in a thriller, 7-5.

Thursday evening the team was dropped off in downtown Cincinnati and left to visit all the attractions the city has to offer. Players took advantage of museums, parks, local nightspots, and the movies.

The following afternoon a basketball tournament was organized with team treasurer, Harold Pink, being appointed as commissioner. John Close appointed himself as referee of the tournament, to the chagrin of the players competing.

The tourney was won by the trio of Tom Close, Dave Ost, and John O'Connell as they defeated Rob Mandle, Scott Collins, and batboy Chris Crissey in the finals, 11-6.

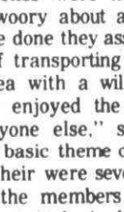

Friday evening after the team's first win on the trip, the club spent its leisure time in Reading, Ohio where the club had stayed last year.

Friday evening saw a few members of the group head into twon for a rumored dance, which turned out to be a canteen for junior high school students.

The responsibility of getting proper rest was put in the hands of the players. "I don't believe in running a totalitarian state on the trip. The players know when they have to play and what time they have to get up. They accepted the responsibility and it showed in the way we played," said Crissey.

"To respresent your high school and your state is one thing, but to do it with class is noteworthy, and this team conducted itself with nothing but class," summarized Crissey.

Attention Short Men

Now you can buy clothing in a store specializing exclusively in your sizes. Yes, ready made suits and sport coats in 35 to 44 short and 38 to 44 portly short; leisure suits in sizes 36 to 44; short rise slacks; outerwear and rainwear in 36 to 44 short; dress shirts with 31" sleeve length.

All these short cut sizes are in stock at the two locations of Napoleon's Closet. You can select from leading brand names—Johnny Carson, Calvin, Phoenix, Jaymar, Gleneagles, Nicola Mancini, Haspel, Stanley Blacker, Cricketeer, Greif, Asher, Enro, and other brand names, too—proportioned just for the short man.

Shoes as small as size 5½ by Nunn Bush are at our Fairlane Town Center store.

Some of our short size customers travel hundreds of miles to Napoleon's Closet for their clothing needs. If you have difficulty finding short sizes, visit Napoleon's Closet and discover our great selection.

P.S. Wherever you find Napoleon's Closet there will be THE BARN with the same fashion items but in regular and long sizes.

What a Wonderful Way to LOSE FAT

The "MODEL-ETTS" way helps curb your appetite.

Helps You Lose That Extra Weight! ★ No calorie counting ★ No exercises!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods. HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS.

These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS."

"Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.

Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-glandular overweight men and women.

The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:

1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.

"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvent—not a drug.

So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.

You can get a trial size supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee.

Come to any General Nutrition store to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you may have the loss of weight you yearn for.

Sounds too good to be true, BUT IT IS TRUE!

HOW MODEL-ETTS CURBS YOUR APPETITE

In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, his calculations showed that 1 Model-etts Wafer has the hunger-satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 6 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.
