Completion date late summer

Work on zoning ordinance begins

By RICHARD GOLD

There may be snow on the ground before Canton's new master land use plan is implemented.

That's the word from the township's planner, Mike Manore, who said action on a zoning ordinance to implement the plan may not come until the tailend of 1976.

"A lot depends on the May 18 vote," he said. "I think it's understood that if people vote against the concept of retaining agricultural land in the west half of the township there won't be any zoning ordinance—it'll be back to the drawing boards.

While considerable work remains to be done on the zoning ordinance, which is comprised of a detailed map and a text explaining the map and various uses of each zoning district, Manore said if the vote is favorable, he may be able to complete the zoning ordinance by late summer.

"We've already done the rough draft on the agricultural-industrial district because when we went to talk to the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation, we had to show them what we had in mind in order to get a tax break for the farmers.

"Wayne County had to see how strict an ordinance we intended to implement if the land was to be taxed at its use-value."

ACCORDING TO MANORE, if he gets the green light from voters in two weeks, the zoning ordinance will follow the master land use plan very closely.

"The intent of the land plan is to be a guideline for the zoning ordinance—the whole rationale for the zoning ordinance is the plan and we intend to follow it very carefully."

Manore said the zoning ordinance would probably run about 150 pages, and the text would be primarily concerned with explaining each district and what permitted uses are allowed.

"More and more has to be covered in the ordinance. We intend to make it very specific. Our present ordinance has a lot of loop holes and we hope to plug most of them."

Once the ordinance is released in final form to the public, probably in late summer after a series of joint meetings between the planning commission and township board, the planning commission will hold a public hearing on the ordinance.

After the public hearing, the planning commission will be charged with making a recommendation to the board.

The board will then either act on the planning commission's recommendation or ask that the planning commission study certain amendments and report back.

"The big difference here," said Manore, "is that the board, not the planning commission, will vote to adopt the ordinance. Only the board can adopt it."

Unless the board takes action on the zoning ordinance, the master land use plan, the guideline for the ordinance, is no more than a guideline, and it cannot be implemented or enforced.

'Enjoy life, it's short'— Cederberg

By DARLENE STINSON

Canton resident Carl Cederberg knows how to beat the rat race.

Once a familiar face on television sets throughout the Detroit metropolitan area, Cederberg has not allowed his 14-year role as anchorman, managing editor and news director of Channel 2 to turn his goals toward fame and fortune— and the pressures that accompany them.

"I don't have an ego problem," said Cederberg, who left his job at Channel 2 two years ago for a co-anchorman position at an NBC affiliate station in the Lansing-Jackson area.

"I don't feel I have to go to New York or Hollywood and make a lot of bucks. I don't care if it's a big station, as long as I enjoy myself."

WHILE MANY Americans accept promotion after promotion only to find they enjoyed their former positions more, Cederberg turned his back on the head position of Channel 2's 65-person news department two years ago to rediscover at Channel 10 what he most enjoys—anchoring a news show.

The 51-year-old Canton resident, who overcame a bout with cancer last year, says life is too short for work he doesn't enjoy.

"I just reached the point where I wasn't interested in staying in a pressure cooker anymore," confided Cederberg, as he relaxed before a stone fireplace in his rustic home on Warren Road.

"I've seen too many people work until retirement and never really enjoy themselves. From now on I'm going to do what I enjoy. When it gets to be a drag, I'll leave. Some people think I'm nuts, but I think it makes a lot of sense.

"The job I have now is rewarding," Cederberg said of his position at Channel 10. "I'm closer to the news and to what I started out to do."

A CANTON resident for 20 years, Cederberg entered the broadcasting business at age 16, when he obtained a staff announcer position at a radio station in Bay City, his home town.

After working for the U.S. Army's news service during World War II, Cederberg obtained an announcer position with WWJ radio before coming to Channel 2.

"But what I really wanted was to be a baseball player," Cederberg recalled with a chuckle. "I got hit on the head, so I decided to become a sports announcer—something I never did do.

"The only sports event I ever did broadcast was an Army-Navy game in Manilla during World War II," he remembered with a smile. "It was the most boring thing. It was pouring, and we couldn't even mention the fact, because that was considered classified information."

But now, after working in the broadcast industry for the past 35 years, newscasting is one of Cederberg's foremost loves. To be a successful newscaster, in his view, a person must appear as a "credible" personality.

"YOU CAN'T DENY the personality aspect of newscasting," Cederberg said, "but that doesn't mean it's show biz. I think the viewer wants to see someone who's credible. Otherwise, you could hire a handsome Hollywood actor.

"There's another aspect too," he added. "A person can be good-looking and have a good voice, but is he likable? That's the little magic that's needed. It's a hard thing to define."

As a television personality, the blond-haired Cederberg is still recognized by his fans in the drugstore and supermarket.

"It's been that way all my life," he confessed. "Even the fact that I've been off the air in this area a couple of years hasn't diminished that at all.

"I call this retirement phase one," Cederberg added, as he looked around his home and tree-studded two acres, where he and his wife, Pat, raised two sons and a daughter. "I've just made up my mind to enjoy life from now on."

Have a problem?

New inspection policy may help

A cracked sidewalk or a scratched cupboard door can irritate even the most placid owner of a spanking new house, if repeated calls to a builder fail to remedy the irritating flaw.

With introduction of a new reinspection policy, Canton officials hope to clear up the complaints of new homeowners and quicken the repair of defects in new homes.

"In the majority of cases, we never get involved in the complaints," said Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein. "Most builders take care of them, but we do have a few bad apples."

TO HELP RESIDENTS win a battle with an uncooperating builder, Canton officials have now promised to intercede on the resident's behalf and reinspect his home.

Residents of Stonegate Subdivison prompted township officials to introduce the new policy, according to Greenstein, when they complained about flaws in their new homes and the builder's failure to correct them.

"The builder allowed the complaints to pile up, and the people got mad as they should have," Greenstein said. "This was the first instance when nothing was done about the complaints."

To help solve the problems of Stonegate residents, Greenstein first proposed a policy under which township officials would reinspect homes and charge the fee to builders.

That raised the concern of other builders in the township, the supervisor said, who thought the proposed policy unfair.

"They thought everyone shouldn't be penalized, just because there's a few bad apples," Greenstein said, "and they agreed to police themselves internally.

"At this point, there's no firm position on the reinspection fees. We want to see if builders continue to ignore the complaints of homeowners."

THE TOWNSHIP'S new policy is spelled out for homeowners in a memo, intended for distribution when residents move into their new homes.

"Because of the inherent instability of material used in construction as well as the human error factor, it is generally recognized that there is no such thing as a perfect new home," the memo states.

"Consequently, minor or surface defects may become apparent during the first year in a new home. It's been our experience that most builders are anxious to cooperate. However, in those instances where such is not the case, our inspectors will intercede on your behalf, when reasonable complaints are filed in writing."

UNDER GUIDELINES of the new policy, residents should notify builders of defects and give them adequate time to correct them before notifying the township building department.

Greenstein explained the rationale behind the township's stance.

"Canton is a growing community," he said. "That means there's going to be friction between residents and builders.

"But we have a different attitude than is normally taken by government. I don't want anything to be approved that's poor workmanship. If I'm faced with a builder who can't do a good job, I don't want him building any more homes in Canton."

CETA dollars continue pouring in Canton officials hope to add additional employees to the township's personnel list in the next few months without depleting township coffers.

The new employees, needed in the township's ordinance enforcement, building and DPW departments, will receive federally-backed paychecks, financed through Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds.

Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein expects the township will receive more than $69,000 in CETA funds this year. The township has already received its Title II allotment of $68,900 and should receive additional Title VI funds by the end of May.

"The objective of CETA is to take people off the unemployment roles and give them a job," Greenstein explained. "Since we need the people, we're certainly going to use federal funds to employ them."

Under CETA guidelines, persons must be unemployed for at least two weeks to receive the federally-funded jobs.

Unemployed Canton residents interested in ordinance enforcement, building inspection or DPW work should apply for the positions through Greenstein's office.

Canton officials are not sure how far the CETA funds will stretch.

Greenstein said the $68,900 of Title II funds will allow the township to keep the nine employes hired with CETA funds last year. Those employees include the township's ordinance officer, four firemen and four office personnel.

Additional Title VI funds will enable the township to hire more personnel. Canton officials do not know the total amount of CETA funds the township will receive.

The township last year received about $50,000 in CETA funds, according to Greenstein. The federal funds are issued according to population, need and the township's administration of CETA funds during the previous year.

Bank site plan is tabled

Canton's meeting hall took on the look of a courtroom in more than decor Tuesday night when Bank of the Commonwealth asked the planning commission to approve a site plan for a permanent building on its site at Warren and Sheldon.

Already under fire from the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) for staying in its temporary structure too long, bank representatives found the planning commission equally uncooperative as the site plan was tabled for one month at the request of commissioner and township treasurer Carl Parsell.

EARLY LAST month, the bank came before the ZBA asking for a six month extension on its occupancy permit in its trailer.

Voting 3-0, ZBA members turned down the request because the bank had made no attempt to move on a more permanent structure at the site.

Bank attorneys took the matter to circuit court and a trial is scheduled for later this month. In the interim they have been allowed to keep their doors open.

On Tuesday, represented by architect Tim Murphy and attorney Robert Brown, the bank asked for site plan approval.

Brown argued that the ZBA action wasn't final and that the planning commission should not be affected by the court action concerning the trailer.

"It's our legal right to appeal the ZBA decision, and it is up to the court to make the final determination. But that should not have any bearing on our permanent structure.

"OUR PLAN is in total compliance with your amended zoning ordinance except that our setback is not in accordance."

Brown argued that the bank didn't have to comply with the present ordinances, as amended in March 1975, because the land was governed by a Planned Unit Development (PUD), a contractual agreement between the township and the land developer.

"There is a substantial legal question as to whether we can be forced to comply with the amended zoning ordinance, but we want to be good citizens and we are willing to comply in every area but the setback."

The amended ordinance calls for an 85-foot setback, while the bank proposes a 57-foot setback which would have been in compliance with the zoning ordinance before it was amended in March 1975.

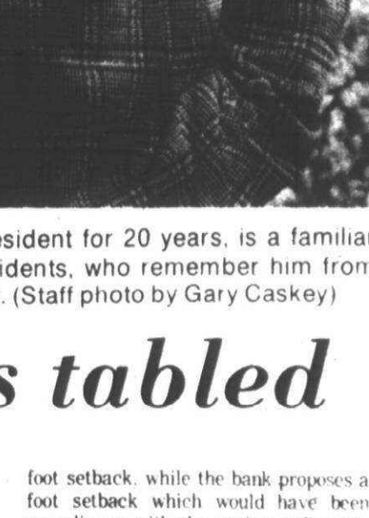

Brown said because the land was governed by a PUD agreement, the setback would not be a variance that would have to be acted on by the ZBA. He said the planning commission could take action on the site plan on Tuesday.

But planner Mike Manore argued that when the bank first received a six-month

Musical scholarships awarded

It was a historic day for Plymouth Centennial Park bands last Saturday when they walked off with three first division ratings of superior performance at the state band festival.

This year's festival was held in the Flint area. The symphony band competed in Class AA in Flint's Southwestern High School. They performed "Pride of the Wolverines March," "American Overture for Band" and "Tulsa-A Symphonic Portrait in Oil."

The concert band, a Class A entry, played in Beecher High School. Their selections were "Skyways March," "First Suite in E-flat" by Holst, and "Variations on a Korean Folk Song."

The Varsity Band traveled to Fenton High School for Class D competition. Their numbers were "Exalted Ruler March," "Fantasy for Band," and "Imperatrix."

The three groups, under the direction of James Griffith, were evaluated on their prepared music in addition to reading music. Twelve professional musicians, four for each group, rated the bands as first division quality in their classifications with the exception of the Varsity Band which received a two.

All entries were rated on a scale of one to five, strong consideration being given to tone quality, intonation, rhythm, technique and interpretation.

Canton and Salem high schools had 251 students involved in the competition.

Deadline set for July 4th float entries

The Plymouth Jaycees are planning the largest Fourth of July Parade in Plymouth's history.

The theme of the parade will be "200 Years of Progress" and to encourage total participation, the club has decided to charge a $15 entry fee only to commercial establishments. Non-profit clubs, organizations and individuals may join the parade for free, but completed application forms are required.

"We want everyone to participate," said co-chairmen Bob Jarmol and Paul Campbell who also handled last year's parade planning.

Forms are available at the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce office on Wing Street, Community Crier on Harvey, First National Bank of Plymouth and the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric, both on Main Street.

Applications must be in by Saturday, June 19. Persons wishing further information may call Jarmol (453-8377) or Campbell (224-5640).

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Crops will be giving its first performance locally in its new uniforms for the first Bicentennial-in-the-Park series. The uniforms were first worn at the cherry festival in Washington, D.C.

Bicentennial-in-park series starts May 20

The Community Bicentennial Commission has announced schedules and events for the Bicentennial-in-the-Park series.

The series will open with a special Michigan Week program on Thursday, May 20, from 7-10 p.m. at Kellogg Park.

During the series, five park programs, scheduled on Thursday nights from May 20 to July 1, will feature bicentennial performances and demonstrations by various civic groups.

All Canton and Plymouth residents are invited to join the Bicentennial-in-the-Park celebrations which will be held at Kellogg Park, or in the Central Middle School gym in case of bad weather.

THE MICHIGAN WEEK program will begin with music by the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

The program also will feature performances by children from the Plymouth Community School District. Choral groups from Farrand and Tanger elementary schools will sing a medley of American songs, Miller Elementary pupils will entertain with instrumental music, and Smith Elementary pupils will perform square dance figures which originated in Michigan.

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high school students will demonstrate Michigan's logging heritage with the log rolling semi-finals between the two schools. The program also will include a two-man saw contest.

Federal, state, and local elected officials have been invited as special guests for the series, and those attending will be introduced to the audience.

THE SECOND program on Thursday, June 3, will stress the theme "Salute to Americana."

The evening will open and close with a presentation of the colors by the VFW Color Guard. Performances slated include skits by Girl Scout troops, music by the Suzuki violin students, drama by the Plymouth Theatre Guild, and a patriotic choral program by the Plymouth Community Chorus.

On June 17, the park series will celebrate America's ethnic heritage with an International Night. Ethnic groups from throughout the Detroit metropolitan area will come to the Kellogg Park stage to perform. There will be music by the Clan McRae Pipe Band and highland dancing by another Scottish group. Greek dancers in full costume will perform their native dances. Songs by Finnish descendants and entertainment by a Polish group also are planned.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) is planning a "Heritage Crafts Demonstration" for Thursday night, June 24. Local craftsmen will demonstrate such colonial arts as spinning, soap making, weaving, quilting, lace making, macrame, and basket weaving. They will share the park program with the Plymouth Community Band which opens its summer concert series that evening.

THE FINAL Bicentennial-in-the-Park program, July 1, is entitled "Nostalgia Night."

The Community Band will host a Danish musical group. During intermission, members of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will lead the audience in a sing-along of old-time American favorites. Song sheets will be passed out so everyone can join in the singing.

The Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League of Women Voters will operate special voter registration booths at each of the park series. Residents of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships may register on these evenings.

The park programs were planned by the Community Bicentennial Commission to focus community attention on the spirit of the nation's bicentennial.

"We hope many residents will join in the bicentennial spirit of these park programs," says Elizabeth Folger, commission chairperson. "It's a chance for all people in the community to come together and share the joy of our American heritage. The evenings are free to everyone. You just have to bring your folding chair and sit down to watch and listen, laugh a little, sing along some if you like, and just enjoy living in America."

Starkweather, Isbister share this week's spotlight

The Bicentennial Spotlight focuses on two elementary schools this week—Isbister and Starkweather.

Both schools will display projects commemorating America's birthday in the Plymouth Historical Museum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, May 6, and Saturday, May 8, and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, May 9.

During the week their projects are exhibited, students from Starkweather and Isbister will have free admission to the museum when accompanied by a paying adult relative.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH has been an important emphasis of Starkweather's bicentennial celebration.

Starkweather pupils and teachers are working with parents, businessmen and other residents to set up an "Old Village Heritage Walk."

They have identified sites of historical interest in the Old Village area and hope to have them marked for a tour route by the end of this month. Folders with historical information about each location will then be prepared and kept at Starkweather for distribution to groups or individuals wishing to follow the Old Village Heritage Walk.

Starkweather began its bicentennial celebration with the presentation of a Bennington and a bicentennial flag to the school by the Parent-Teacher Club. Students, staff, and parents assembled in front of the school for a flag raising ceremony and the singing of patriotic songs.

Students then released helium balloons bearing the message "Happy Birthday America" and a return address. To date, cards have been returned from Shannon, Pa., Chatham, Ont., and Roseville, Mich.

School assembly programs have also highlighted American heritage themes. A fifth grade program entitled "Bicentennial Bonanza" dealt with questions about American history. Third graders presented "The Spirits of the American Revolution," depicting characters of the revolutionary era.

Several display cases in the school feature information and items related to early American history. One showcase depicts the three divisions of the 1976 bicentennial year—heritage, festivals, and horizons. Students have brightened halls and walls throughout the school with paintings of colonial times and historical events.

Starkweather pupils have sampled a number of colonial crafts including braiding rugs, sewing patchwork quilts, making candles and carving apple head dolls. Colonial cooking skills have centered on bread and butter making, with a study of an early American food unit culminating in a full colonial breakfast.

America's 200th anniversary is receiving total school emphasis during this Bicentennial Spotlight week at Starkweather. Pupils and staff are dressing in colonial garb throughout and lunching each day from a bicentennial menu. Each classroom also is promoting special bicentennial projects during this week.

ISBISTER'S big 1976 project is the construction of a school amphitheater.

Fundraising for the amphitheater began in January with monthly cupcake sales, and will end with the sale of Bennington flags this week. The amphitheater should be built and planted with trees in time for dedication at the school's ice cream social on June 2.

Showcase displays in Isbister have featured Indians, presidents, coins, stamps, flags, transportation, famous American women, wars, documents, and the American Revolution.

Media Center programs have included an audio-visual presentation on the life of a child in colonial days, the AAUW bicentennial video tape "Heritage, Happenings, Hopes," a spinning wheel and crafts demonstration, a film-talk on the history of the Stars and Stripes, a film tribute to America's history and heritage entitled "Faith in Ourselves," and a doll collection.

Isbister pupils have cooked foods and made colonial hats and patchwork quilts. One class watched wool being shorn from school farm sheep. They are having this wool spun into yarn and then will dye it with vegetable dyes and weave it as people did in colonial days.

Another class watched a demonstration on soap making, then decorated the newly-formed soap cakes.

A fourth grade class has created a mosiac mural with captions about Colombus, the Indians, and the Pilgrims. The school's Campfire Girl Scout Troop made bicentennial posters for the Media Center.

Pupils have shared a taste of American history throughout 1976 by each month featuring one special bicentennial lunch. In February they enjoyed a "President's Lunch." In March pupils dressed up to eat the "Gold Rush Special." They dined at a "Boston Tea Party" in April and this month will try the "Alamo Special." The bicentennial menus will end June 2 with a "Uniquely USA Special Lunch."

Seymour owes fame to Canton's Dan Yessian

By LOUISE OKRUTSKY

Seymour, the green monster on WXYZ's Hot Fudge Show, owes his musical education to Dan Yessian, of Dan Yessian Associates, Farmington.

The next time someone sings to the monster, "I see more when I talk to Seymour," it will be to Yessian's music on national television. The program went into syndication, April 1.

"It means I can see more when I talk to a person with problems, too," Yessian, a Canton resident, explains. "People learn to solve their own problems by talking to others."

"A good children's show should entertain and teach them something," Yessian, the musical producer of Hot Fudge, says.

"It's a very difficult task. There's a fine line between entertainment and education. You either educate too much or entertain too much. It should be 50-50," he says.

Yessain, 31, has written songs for Sesame Street and the Electric Company. He has also written the background music for a locally produced feature cartoon, "The Golfer."

TED POTEK produced the "Crunch Bird" and "The Rolfer."

Yessian met him by coincidence. "This business is being in the right place at the right time. Talent comes next," he says.

With Potek, he wrote a song for Sesame Street, the "TION Song," which listed words ending in "tion", such as execution and pollution. It won an Action for Children's Television award.

Dressed in a blue leisure suit and a matching shirt, Yessian leans back in his office chair. A corner of the room is decorated with a picture of the Crunch Bird, a sly look smeared on his face, sitting on a tree branch.

"Children's programs are fast-paced in order to fit into a child's short attention span," he explains. "Each segment quickly follows the other and doesn't linger on one subject for too long of a time.

"Elementary and high school teachers linger too long on one piece of information," he says. "They should give out the information in small bits."

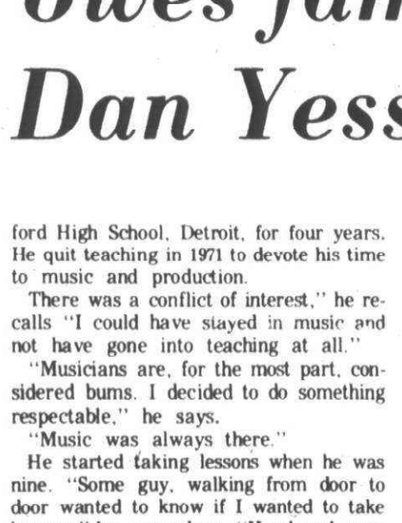

Yessian was a speech teacher at Redford High School, Detroit, for four years. He quit teaching in 1971 to devote his time to music and production.

There was a conflict of interest," he recalls "I could have stayed in music and not have gone into teaching at all."

"Musicians are, for the most part, considered bums. I decided to do something respectable," he says.

"Music was always there."

He started taking lessons when he was nine. "Some guy, walking from door to door wanted to know if I wanted to take lessons," he remembers. "He played some notes on a harmonica for me and asked me later if I could recognize what note he was playing. I couldn't recognize any of them, but I took the lessons."

DAN YESSIAN

He studied clarinet and saxophone until he was 17.

"The keyboard instruments just fell into place when I started composing."

When he was 18, he made his first attempts at songwriting.

"You compose because you like it," he says. "You should write as often as possible."

Of the 10 songs he writes each week, only one or two are considered good material.

"You combine the bad ones with new ideas," he says. "If you listen to music every day, you have to be careful not to copy. To copy, isn't to be bad. You should alter it enough to call it your own without sounding like a liar in front of the public."

"IN COMPOSING, my idol is Bert Bacharach," he says. Most of his songs are ballads in three-fourths or four-fourths time.

"Crowd Pleaser," a song he wrote with sports announcer Ernie Harwell, was given by Harwell to Jose Feliciano. It was recorded, but never released.

When Feliciano played a concert in Detroit, he sang Yessian's song. "It was an ego trip for me," he says, proud of the memory.

Contemporary music isn't junk, he says. "It's maturing, rapidly. Three chord rock, as played by Elvis was a little mediocre in terms of intelligent music."

"I don't want to be a snob about this," he says. "Disco music is more organized. It's more meaningful, musically, melodically. At least, they're using five or six chords."

He hopes no one ever hears a song he wrote and despises, "Tiny One."

"It was terrible. In fact, my barber convinced me he was a singer. I believed him without hearing him."

He installed both the barber and the song in a recording studio.

"It wasn't that the barber sang so badly. The words were mediocre. The melody was kind of stupid. I don't want anyone ever to hear it again," he says.

"IF THEY put it in my casket, I'll be happy. I'll know no one will ever hear it again."

Miller parents irked at ice cream vendor

Kids at Miller School will not lick ice cream and other frozen treats on their way home from school anymore if Canton officials and parents in the Miller School attendance area have their way.

To avoid the type of accident which broke a student's collar bone last month, parents and township officials are asking ice cream vendors to steer clear of the school at dismissal time.

The accident, in which a fourth-grade boy darted in front of an oncoming vehicle after purchasing ice cream, raised the ire of parents and teachers at Miller who brought their concerns to township officials.

That concern prompted township ordinance officer Bruce Phillips to lie in wait of the ice cream man for two hours last week.

"I finally caught him when the kids were coming out of school," Phillips said. "I asked him to be nowhere in sight of the school area between three and four in the afternoon."

Phillips said tte ice cream man, who sold Good Humor products, was not in violation of state law, prohibiting vendors to sell their goods within 500 feet of a school building.

Township officials have asked the Wayne County Sheriff's Department to patrol Miller grounds at dismissal time and enforce that law, according to Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

Lolly Buikema, assistant principle at Miller, called the presence of ice cream trucks near the school "an attractive nuisance."

Parents, she said, were concerned with the safety hazards of purchasing ice cream near the school as well as the temptations of children to save their lunch money for an after-school treat.

Mrs. Buikema said the boy who was injured while purchasing ice cream is now back to school.

"He was very lucky," she said. "The car wasn't going very fast."

Residents learn of social services

Those who attended Growthworks' "Sources Resources" in Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic School gymnasium last Saturday came away with a fund of knowledge and materials about services, programs and people available to area residents.

Donn Shelton and Ann Shaw represented Regional Citizens, a public affairs organization representing the residents of the seven-county area of southeast Michigan. The group represents more than half the population of Michigan, 4.8 million persons.

Regional Citizens is a project of the Metropolitan Fund, Inc., a non-profit research corporation. Basic dues in Regional Citizens are $5 and members include persons from all walks in life who are interested in the future of the region.

Mandy Mair and Marge Yokum informed visitors about the Student Service Center at Plymouth Canton High School, a peer listening center located across the hall from the nurse's office. It serves both Salem and Canton students.

FAMILY SERVICE of Plymouth had a display as well as the Women's Resource Center, Plymouth schools, New Morning School and the Plymouth-Canton-Northville YMCA.

Out Wayne County Runaway Shelter Coalition, Inc. representatives gave information on their goal of assisting run-away youths and seeking to resolve problems and promote reconciliation with their families. They provide emergency shelter care, counseling and referrals to appropriate agencies.

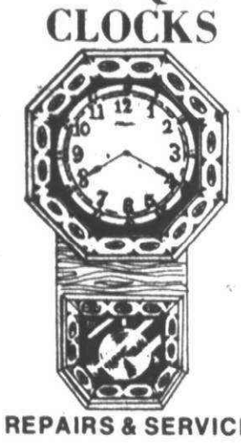

Marilyn Jeffries represented the local food co-op which now consists of about 18 families. Food is purchased every other Saturday morning from Eastern Market in quantities that guarantee savings as well as fresh produce.

Buyers return to the Youth Center on Main Street by 9:30 a.m. and food is ready for pickup by 10.

Pamphlets were available to assist single heads of households in contacting the right referral agency for tax, legal, employment, social, emergency and recreation information.

The "Thinking Students Guide to the Detroit Metro Area" listed science museums, historical museums, industrial tours, animal and nature centers, art galleries and theaters. It even included 36 things to do and places to go prepared by five children whose parents had been divorced.

Dale Yagiela and the Growthworks' staff were responsible for arranging "Sources Resources" festival.

cided to become a sports announcer—something I never did do.

"The only sports event I ever did broadcast was an Army-Navy game in Manilla during World War II," he remembered with a smile. "It was the most boring thing. It was pouring, and we couldn't even mention the fact, because that was considered classified information."

But now, after working in the broadcast industry for the past 35 years, newscasting is one of Cederberg's foremost loves. To be a successful newscaster, in his view, a person must appear as a "credible" personality.

"YOU CAN'T DENY the personality aspect of newscasting," Cederberg said, "but that doesn't mean it's show biz. I think the viewer wants to see someone who's credible. Otherwise, you could hire a handsome Hollywood actor.

"There's another aspect too," he added. "A person can be good-looking and have a good voice, but is he likable? That's the little magic that's needed. It's a hard thing to define."

As a television personality, the blond-haired Cederberg is still recognized by his fans in the drugstore and supermarket.

"It's been that way all my life," he confessed.

extension to stay in the trailer more than a year ago, it agreed to meet all terms of the amended zoning ordinance.

THEN, SUPERVISOR Robert Greenstein, sitting in the audience, rose and spoke to the commission.

"I don't usually speak at the planning commission meetings but I think you should be aware that the bank promised to meet the full terms of our zoning ordinance when we granted them that six-month extension.

"By their own admission, they say that. They took advantage of that extension and built the module. I suggest you make sure the ZBA has a chance to look at this if questions about the plan are raised at the planning commission."

Greenstein added, "I'd hate to see the planning commission go on record as saying no variance was needed here."

Commissioner Bart Berg interjected. "This doesn't belong here, it belongs in court," referring to Greenstein's comments.

But Greenstein's words didn't fall on deaf ears and Parsell moved to table the site plan.

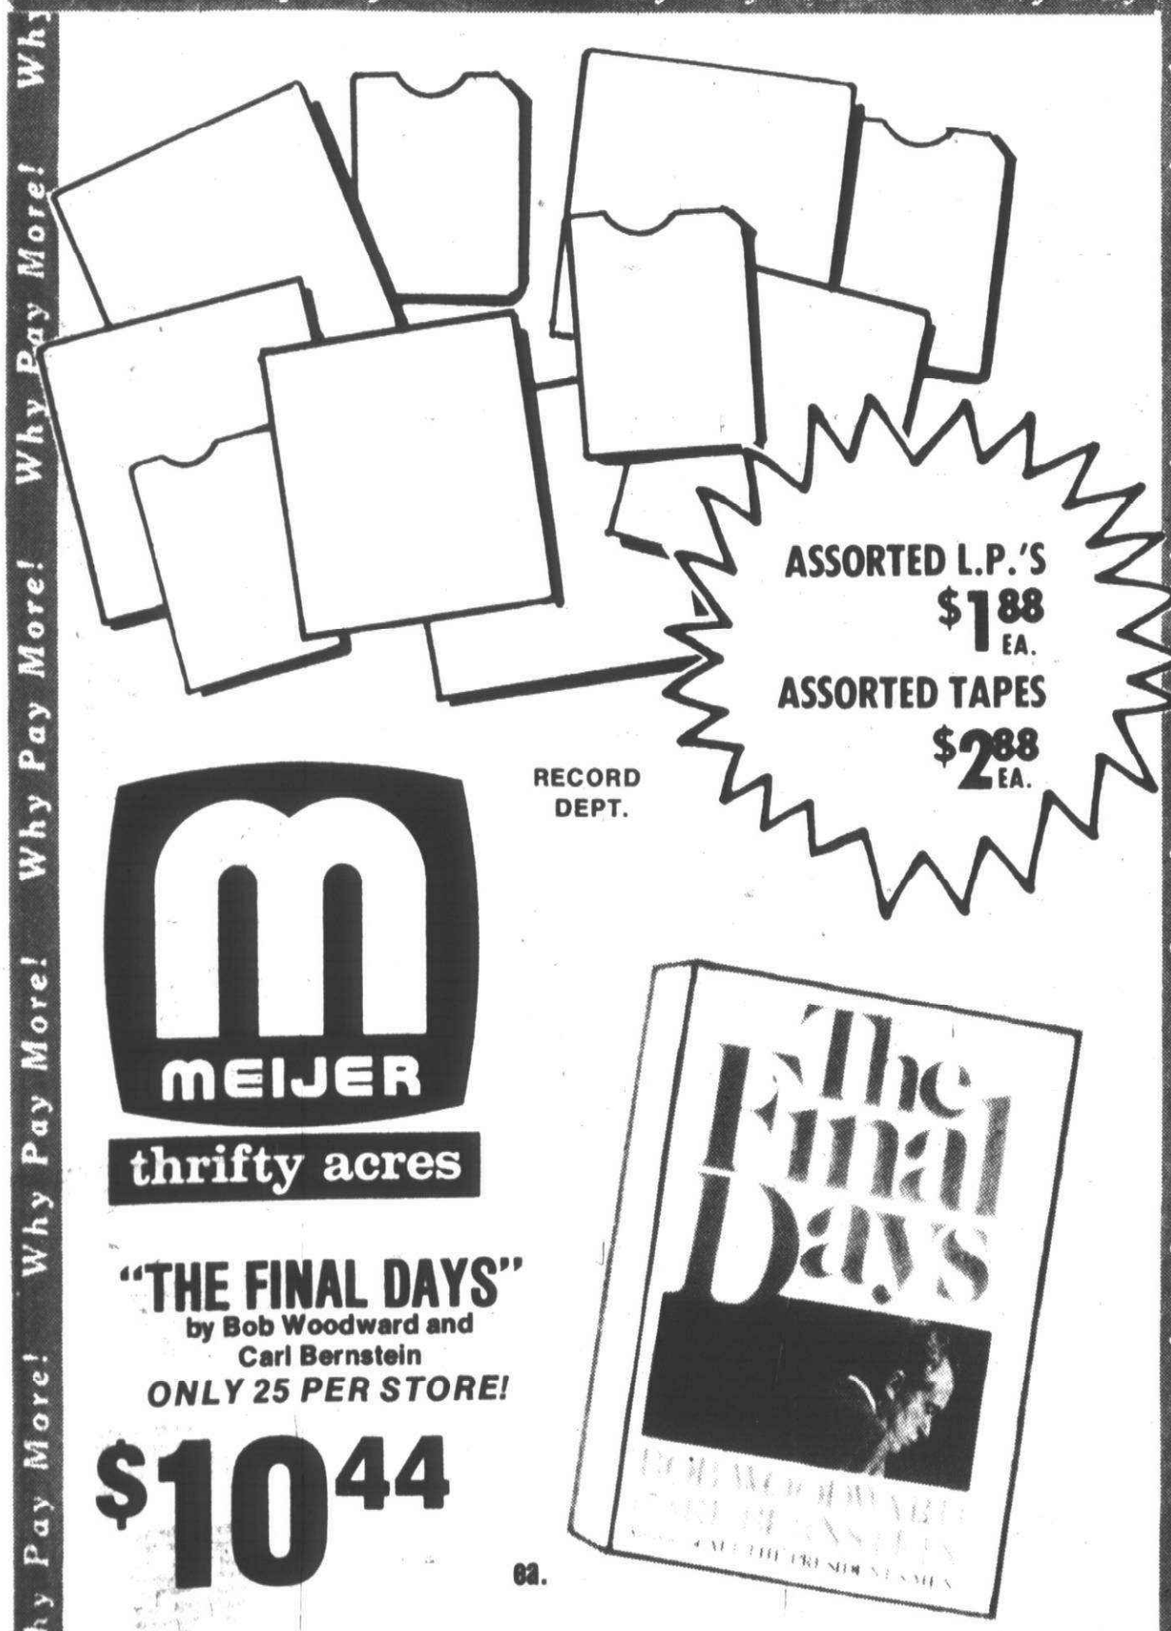

Flossie Tonda seconded the motion and it was passed 6-1 with Berg dissenting.

The Stroller

Recollections of mother's best one-liners

By W. W. EDGAR

Each year when Mother's Day approaches, The Stroller's thoughts traditionally turn to the memories of a little frame house on a side street in Catasauqua, Penn., in the heart of the Dutch country.

It was there his mother, widowed at 31, struggled through the war years and depressions to raise her family of one boy and four girls. And she did it with pride that earned the respect of the townspeople for "Mazie" and her children.

Fortunately, she lived to see all of them arrive at a nice station in life before she passed on to the great beyond. But she left behind a splendid record of determination that first came to light when a kindly relative, shortly after the death of the head of the house, offered to take one of the girls to raise and put through school.

"Not on your life," Mother answered. "We are all in this together. We are going to reach the shore safely or we are going to sink. But whatever we do, we'll do together."

IT WAS shortly after this that she gathered all the children around the dining room table and talked to us. And her words still ring in The Stroller's ears.

"You've got to make up your minds that you can't have what other children have. But there will be fun and enjoyment in life if you just make the most of what you have."

Those few words bound us together and mother was like a hen with her chicks. We always traveled together.

Well, The Stroller remembers one night in the corner grocery store when mother heard a woman make a remark about the kids from the alley. Thinking she meant us, mother turned and said loud enough for all to hear:

"I'll have you know that you can raise just as nice roses in the alley as you can in the street."

When economic conditions forced us to close the little lunch counter we had as our only means of support, mother turned to manual tasks of taking in washing and doing house cleaning for the more fortunate in town, and made the most of her Pennsylvania Dutch training by baking pies and selling them throughout out little town.

Never exposed for any length of time to "book learning," she became a master of teaching us with "one-liners."

For instance there was the morning when it was evident that The Stroller had to leave school and he was downhearted about it. She urged him to learn a trade with these words: "Remember, what you have in your head no one can steal from you."

LATER ON, when The Stroller was nearing his majority and becoming interested in the opposite sex, she called him aside one evening and said: "Make your morning as long as you can. Your afternoon will be long enough."

There was no long discourse on the birds and the bees. She had driven home her point with a few well-chosen words.

That's the kind of mother she was.

Came the night The Stroller left home to test his journalistic wings in the middle west. As he was walking out the door she embraced him and whispered, "I don't know how high you are going to climb or how far you might fall. But if you ever want your watch fixed don't take it to a blacksmith."

What she meant was that if I ever needed help I should go to people I knew could help me.

Some years ago, when Mother's Day approached, we children got together and had a stained glass window placed in the little white church on the hill as a tribute to her. We had it placed in the midst of the town's leaders for whom she had worked and had a light placed over it so it would shine day and night.

It was our way of saying thanks.

Remember Mother

Stempien endorsed by political leaders

Marvin Stempien, Democratic candidate for the 2nd District seat in Congress, has won the political endorsements of numerous public officials and labor leaders.

He is seekingthe party's nomination in the August 3 primary election for the seat to be vacated by U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch, (R-Ann Arbor). Esch is running for the GOP nomination for a U. S. Senate seat in the same primary.

Stempien said he has received endorsements from Mayor Edward McNamara of Livonia, State Senators William Faust of Westland and James DeSana of Wyandotte, and State Representatives John Markes of Livonia, Thomas Brown of Westland and Edward Mahalak of Monroe.

Other officials backing the Livonia attorney, who was a four-term state representative, are City Councilmen Jerry Raymond and Peter Ventura of Livonia; Connie Barnes, chief of the Plymouth District Court; Ron Nisun, Livonia zoning board of appeals; Perry Hewitt, treasurer of the 2d District Democratic Party; Earl Dey, vice chairman of the district committee, and others from Washtenaw and Monroe Counties.

School officials backing Stempien are Mark Scarr, Connie Hierta and Charles Akey of the Livonia Board of Education, and Trustees Rosina Raymond, Mark McQuesten and Nancie Blatt of the Schoolcraft Community College Board of Education.

Endorsements also came from the president of the National Association of Letter Carriers; Local 1659 of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes; United Auto Workers, Local 262 and others.

McNamara wrote the candidate that Stempien has a solid record of legislative achievement and "has all of the necessary qualifications to be an outstanding member of Congress and will represent the interests of Livonia and the entire 2d District."

Take a ride in a Model T

Henry Ford, on May 25, 1927, announced that he was discontinuing the manufacture of his famous Model T Fords. Ford replaced the popular "Tin Lizzie" with his new Model A car. You can take a ride in an original Model T Ford any weekend at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

What's holding up freeway progress?

BY SHERRY KAHAN

There it sits at Telegraph and Schoolcraft, I-96, the future Jeffries freeway, looking fresh, smooth and gorgeous.

Pawing at the ground in their eagerness to take off down the white path are residents of Redford Township, Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington, Southfield and points east, west and north.

What's holding things up?

Follow the freeway east from Telegraph to the point where it bends and gaze in the direction where it disappears. That's where the problem is, and it's a complex one.

It involves relocating of a series of railroad tracks and building a wide bridge to accomodate the tracks, and erecting a new building and tearing down another.

It also involves building connecting ramps for a complex sky-high structure that hangs over the Southfield Freeway between Plymouth and Schoolcraft.

"At the present time we are completing the interchange for the Jeffries and Southfield freeways," reported Frank Simmons, administrative assistant of the metropolitan district of the state department of highways and transportation.

"To do this we are tearing out the entrance ramps to the Southfield Freeway just north of Plymouth. In a couple of weeks we will close the exit ramps from the Southfield to Plymouth and Schoolcraft roads."

Simmons noted that hopefully by late summer all the work around the massive overhead interchange will be completed.

"Then we can open the Jeffries from its terminus near Schaefer to the Southfield Freeway," he said.

He explained that while the freeway might look complete near Telegraph, work is still underway west of the Southfield connection.

"After the Jeffries bends south it has to cross under the marshalling yards of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway," said Simmons.

In this area there are many tracks and railroad sidings used to assemble freight trains.

"We had to relocate the C & O offices," he continued. "But first we had to build them a new building and have them occupy it before we could demolish their old building.

"Then we had to put up temporary track to maintain train traffic while we constructed an exceptionally wide bridge for their railroad yard.

"The freeway will be depressed to run under all these tracks."

Building retaining walls along the highway in this area, constructing the railroad bridge and tearing down the old building and erecting a new one was complex work, Simmons said.

"The job has been under way for a number of years," he said. "It is stage work. We have to complete stage one before we can move on to stage two."

Simmons expects that by late fall 1977 the completed Jeffries will run from the Ambassador Bridge to a 650-acre interchange touching Novi, Farmington and Farmington Hills.

Total cost, he estimates, will be between $250-$300 million.

Consumers Power Company's EQUAL MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN
HAS HELPED ME WITH MY FAMILY BUDGET.
It can help you, too!
Balancing the budget is not easy, but it certainly helps when I know that my utility bill will be the same amount each month—and budget for it. You can enjoy this convenience, too, if you enroll in Consumers Power's "Equal Monthly Payment Plan." Under this Plan, the total cost of the energy you use is averaged over a period of a year. Then this cost is divided into twelve equal payments. You pay that amount each month. May is the final month of the "Equal Payment Year," and at that time your account is adjusted for any overpayment or underpayment. There's no extra charge for this extra service.
You can sign up at any time, but your monthly payments will be lowest if you start the Plan in June.
A quick phone call to our Customer Service department can answer your questions about the "Equal Monthly Payment Plan." Brochures also are available at all Company offices.

Dems' speaker

Sarah Goddard Power, University of Michigan regent, will headline as guest speaker at a 7 p.m., May 11 dinner of the Livonia Democratic Women's Caucus at the China Star Palace, 270 S. Wayne Road, Westland. Ms. Power, the wife of Observer & Eccentric co-publisher Philip Power, will share her observations made on a recent trip to the People's Republic of China. Tickets for dinner are $7 and can be obtained through Kathy Douglas, 9818 Shadyside, Livonia or by calling 261-5376.

Incinerator authority under fire

Civil action charging the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority with violations of Wayne County air pollution control regulations has been filed in Wayne County Circuit Court by the air pollution control division of the Wayne County Health Department.

The sanitation authority, which operates the incinerator located on Inkster Road in Dearborn Heights, was named in the suit under the Michigan Environmental Protection Act of 1970 for violations of county air pollution emission standards ranging from two times to 4½ times above allowable limits.

The authority, which began its operations in 1964, was organized by Garden City, Westland, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and Wayne to dispose of municipal refuse and garbage. Several neighboring communities have contracted with the authority for their municipal waste disposal. No city governments were named in the suit however.

"THE AUTHORITY has failed to solve its problems, which have remained uncorrected for several years," said Morton Sterling, director of the air pollution control division. "We have reached an impasse with the authority on the development of a timely and firm abatement program."

Sterling said the suit re-emphasizes the division's long-standing policy against a double standard, that is, government facilities operating in an uncontrolled manner while commercial and industrial facilities are required to comply with the regulation.

Up to 900 tons of particulate emissions are being spewed into the atmosphere annually from the incinerator's current operations, Sterling said.

He added that a series of stack tests conducted between 1973 and 1975 revealed violations of emission standards with each test.

THE INCINERATOR'S present control systems are inadequate to bring it into compliance with county emission standards, he claimed.

The suit calls for the authority to use land fill or other acceptable means of refuse disposal while undertaking a program of design and construction of approved air pollution control systems.

Also included is a request for a permanent injunction to prohibit the authority from further violations of county air pollution control regulations.

3 endorse Jimmy Carter

Three western Wayne County legislators have joined the Democratic express endorsing Jimmy Carter for president.

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland), whose 13th District includes Westland, Garden City and Canton Township, added his name to nine others from the senate Democratic Caucus to back Carter.

Rep. John Bennett (D-Redford) and Rep. John Markes (D-Westland) brought the total of state representatives endorsing Carter to 23.

Bennett's district encompasses Redford; Markes', Westland and southwestern Livonia.

Staff photos by Gary Caskey

Daniels Den

Our heritage is red, white, black

Announcement of program details came in this week for the Bicentennial-in-the-Park series sponsored by the Community Bicentennial Commission.

The commission did a great job in drawing in a number of elements of the greater Plymouth-Canton community and for working in a variety of events including some very unusual and interesting activities.

Like Ed McMahon would say to Johnny Carson, it would appear like everything you could possibly schedule in the park series is there—but there is room for more, the rebuttal goes, with Johnny producing a staff-produced list of what was overlooked.

And although the commission did do a real fine job scheduling groups for the series, there have been a couple of very important groups left out. This isn't meant as criticism but is offered below just in case there are any cancellations or open spots on the schedule.

THE OMMISSIONS occur on the schedule for the International Night program on June 17 which is designed to celebrate America's ethnic heritage.

Those taking the stage June 17 will include Scottish pipe players and Highland dancers, Finnish singers, Greek dancers, and entertainment by a Polish group.

While I admit all these groups contributed to the development of our national cultural and heritage, ethnic groups with far greater contributions are the American Indian, blacks and the Irish. And maybe we should add the English since the Indian was the first American settler before the interlopers sailed across the sea.

There may not be any Indian entertainment groups around who could be scheduled for the stage, but there is a natural opportunity on heritage crafts demonstration day on June 24. Another possibility is to get in contact with Hank Chruscial of the Western Wayne County Conservation Club in Plymouth Township. Twice a year Cruscial and his agents conduct drives for canned goods, clothing, and toys for Indians on the western side of the state. The Indian Affairs Committee of the club can use a shot in the arm, and ethnic night in the park might do so.

THE BLACK PRESENCE in America dates back to the colonial days and in Michigan goes back to the days when the French controlled this area. In fact, Detroit's first "police force" was a black militia headed by a black lieutenant to protect the settlement from the fear of crime by Indians.

The journey of blacks from the western coast of Africa to the New World transformed our culture and had a marked influence on our agriculture, industry, music, literature, and military expeditions in the Revolutionary War and Civil War.

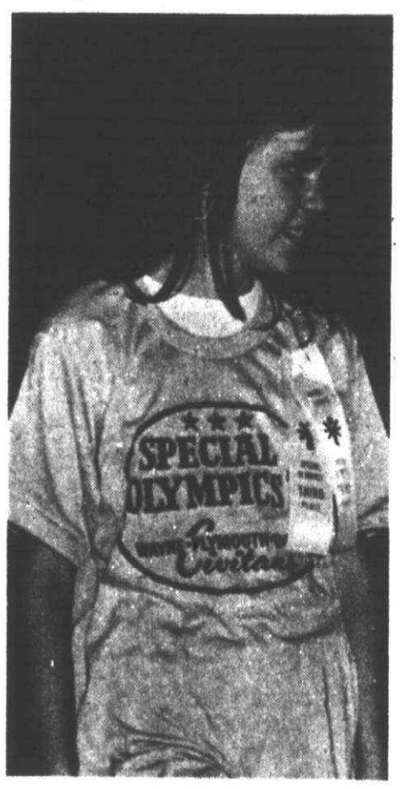

With the stress on entertainment for the Bicentennial-in-the-Park series it's a natural to schedule singing of Negro spirituals, the reading of Negro folktales, a jazz group, or some soul singers.

The Irish, of course, played a major role in supplying skilled workers and laborers to help guide our country through the industrial revolution. The history of labor would certainly have a number of blank pages without the Irish.

The English, of course, will be playing a major role in the community's Fourth of July observance and so it probably isn't a serious omission to leave them out of the ethnic night programming. And although there is much, if there is room for more, the celebration of our ethnic heritage June 17 would be enriched by some recognition of the major contributions of blacks, the Irish, and the American Indian. Although the colors of our flag are red, white, and blue, the colors of our ethnic heritage are red, white, and black.

Hundreds of kids to participate

Pageantry of Olympics to grace CEP Friday

Several touches of pageantry such as a parade of the athletes into the stadium and lighting of an Olympic torch will add drama to Friday's concluding competition in the fourth annual Wayne County Special Olympics for the mentally impaired.

Center of activity will be the track and football stadium of Plymouth's Centennial Educational Park at Joy and Canton Center, with swimming events to be conducted in the pool of the adjoining Plymouth Salem High School.

Hundreds of young boys and girls from all over Wayne County, who went through preliminary competition last Saturday, will be in formation behind Salem at 8:30 a.m. Friday to parade into the 4,000-seat stadium, make a turn of the running track and then take places in their units in the infield.

Lighting of the torch and release of balloons will signal the start of track and field events following mass recitation of the Special Olympics oath: "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

Following a lunchtime break, competition will continue until approximately 3:30 p.m. when closing ceremonies are scheduled.

Scope of the undertaking, which is being sponsored jointly by the Civitan Clubs of Plymouth, Livonia and Wayne with help on manpower from a myriad of other sources, is demonstrated by one official's comment that nearly 500 entrants are expected in the 50-yard dash alone.

From these Wayne County finals, 250 medal winners will progress to the state Special Olympics for the mentally impaired to be held June 3-6 at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant.

As they were for presentation of awards when gymnastics and some of the other phases were conducted Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Young, parents of Olympic gold medal speedskating champion Sheila Young of Detroit, have promised to be back to help honor Friday's contestants. There is a chance their daughter Sheila will make it, too, depending on airplane connections.

Vern Ruhle of Livonia, a member of the Detroit Tigers pitching staff, is scheduled for a morning appearance, and before the day is over numerous radio and television personalities, as well as representatives of the Lions, Pistons and Red Wings, have said they will attend to help out—adding their weight to the theme that those who may be less able are in no sense less worthy.

Samsens sold the Mail to another father-son team

PLYMOUTH—
PRESENT
Sam Hudson

(Part III)

Elton Eaton, who bought the Plymouth Mail from the Samsens in 1930, was born in Iowa in 1881. He was a printer's devil on the Galesburg Argus, a reporter on the St. Louis Chronicle, editor of the Appleton, Wis. Crescent, and city editor of the Kalamazoo Gazette. At one time, he was part-owner of the Fullerton, Calif. Daily News.

A staunch Republican, Elton Eaton was executive secretary to Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck, the dominant figure in the Republican party in Michigan from 1920 to 1926. When Groesbeck was defeated in his attempt for a fourth term, Eaton bought and began to publish the Northville Record which dated back to 1869 when it was started by Samuel J. Little.

A gregarious individual, at a time when fraternal orders enjoyed a high degree of popularity in the United States, Eaton was a Mason, an Elk, a Moose, an Eagle, an Odd Fellow and a Rotarian. "Eaton was a good mixer," recalls Ernie Henry, "not like the Samsens, who were no handshakers." As a member of the Northville Rotary Club, Elton Eaton was among those who helped to glorify the Northville Spring.

WHEN HE BOUGHT the Plymouth Mail, Eaton made his son, Sterling, a partner. Sterling actually operated the Mail for three years before his father joined him on the paper.

The elder Eaton wrote a column for the Mail which bore the somewhat truculent title, "What I Think and Have a Right to Say." He served in the Michigan House of Representatives from the Seventh District of Wayne County during the 1945 and 1947 sessions. He had retired from the Mail and was at his summer home near Oscoda, Mich., when he died in August, 1952, at age 71. He is buried in Riverside Cemetery.

Sterling Eaton, who published the Plymouth Mail for another 13 years after his father died, was born in 1906 in Three Rivers, Mich. A big man, who became corpulent in his later years, young Eaton played football for Lansing Central High School when his father worked for Governor Groesbeck. As a senior he was selected all-state tackle. After high school, Sterling spent three years at George Washington University studying journalism.

EATON BEGAN his newspaper career as a pressman and then advertising salesman for the Northville Record.

When he published the Plymouth Mail, his weekly column was called "Chips From the Rock." To the end of his career with the Mail, Sterling Eaton continued to publish extensive columns of social notes (who entertained whom; how many were at the bridge party; whose relatives were visiting them) typical of small-town newspapers of an earlier era.

Eaton was president of the Plymouth Board of Education and served six years as a board member. He was a founder and director of the Michigan Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. A member of the Plymouth Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, he actively supported the drive for a colonial atmosphere in Plymouth. In 1947, he chaired the Plymouth Rotary Committee that raised $20,000 to build and light the Plymouth High (now Central Middle) School athletic field.

Following in his father's footsteps, Sterling Eaton served in the Michigan State Legislature in 1957-58, representing the 21st District of Wayne County. While in the Legislature, he sponsored the bill that brought the Plymouth State Home to the area.

During the Eaton regime, the Mail was published in a building which still exists on Main Street, opposite Schrader's Funeral Home. It is adjacent to the First Federal Savings and Loan parking lot and is now occupied by the Plymouth Youth Center.

WHILE PUBLISHING the Mail, Sterling Eaton founded a weekly in Livonia which he called The Livonian.

In 1956, he sold the Plymouth Mail and The Livonian to Paul Chandler, who had been the public relations director at the Detroit Race Track. Chandler was financed by William McKay, an official at the race track and a resident of Grosse Pointe.

Chandler, who published and edited the Plymouth Mail from 1956 through 1961, was a native of Sault Ste. Marie where he was born in 1919. A 1941 graduate of the University of Michigan, where he studied political science, Chandler had been an officer in the U.S. Navy, serving on an Admiral's staff in the Pacific. Prior to publishing the Mail, Chandler had been a sportswriter for the Detroit News and, later, Public Relations Director at the race track.

In addition to the Plymouth Mail and the Livonian, which they had acquired from Eaton, Chandler and McKay also published the Redford Observer. A few years after they acquired the Mail, the Daisy Air Rifle Company moved from Plymouth to Rogers, Ark., leaving a big void in the firm's job-printing business. In November, 1961, the Mail reverted to Sterling Eaton. In 1962, Chandler and McKay, who still published the Livonian and the Redford Observer, established the Plymouth Observer, in competition with the Mail.

Dick Aginian joins SCC; Chuck Paukstis promoted

AGINIAN

PAUKSTIS

Appointment of Richard Aginian as treasurer of Suburban Communications Corp. of Livonia, and the promotion of Charles Paukstis from treasurer to financial vice-president have been announced by Philip H. Power, chairman of the board, and Henry M. Hogan, SCC president.

SCC properties include a chain of the 12 twice-weekly Observer & Eccentric Newspapers in Detroit's northern and western suburbs; the Averill Press, a commercial printing operation in Birmingham; the Queen City Suburban Press weeklies and commercial printing plant in suburban Cincinnati, Ohio; the Towne Courier weeklies at East Lansing; the Instructional Fair, an educational book publishing house in Grand Rapids.

"As our company has grown in size and complexity, the need for financial staff work has increased greatly," explained Power and Hogan. "This need is of two types: 1) internal development and monitoring over our financial information system; 2) external financial staffing of special projects, such as profit improvement programs and advanced business planning."

CONTROLLERS OF all SCC divisions will report to Aginian, whose responsibilities will include control and monitoring of all financial reports and information systems. New duties for Paukstis will include staffing and financial consequences of special projects, advanced business planning, and profit improvement programs.

Aginian formerly was assistant to the president of Falvey Motors of Troy, the state's largest import automobile dealer. Previously, he was senior audit manager of the Arthur Andersen & Co. accounting firm where he was audit manager of all SCC divisions on behalf of the Andersen company.

A certified public accountant, he is a member of the Michigan Association of CPAs, American Institute of CPAs and the Economic Club of Detroit. He holds degrees from Wayne State University and Rutgers University.

PAUKSTIS HAS been with SCC since its creation. His background includes service as chief financial officer of the WZZM stations in Grand Rapids, as staff accountant with Schellenberg, Kregel & Kettle, and as a member of the audit staff of Ernst & Ernst, both in Grand Rapids.

He, too, is a member of the Michigan Association of CPAs as well as a member of the Institute of Newspaper Controllers and Financial Officers. He has degrees from both Albion College and the University of Michigan.

"We believe that with Dick as 'Mr. Inside' and Chuck as 'Mr. Outside' our financial and business management capabilities will be vastly improved as we continue to develop our company," said Power and Hogan.

In an accompanying announcement, they revealed that Pat Gannon, controller of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the Livonia manufacturing facility, will take on added responsibilities as a member of the newspaper management committee. Craig Phipps has been added to the operating committee as representative of the Livonia business office.

High school journalism competition is set by SC

Schoolcraft College is sponsoring its second annual high school journalism contest this spring, open to public and parochial schools within the college district and adjoining areas.

Organized by the college's office of student affairs, the contest will honor the best in newspaper writing through recognition of school newspapers and of individual writers.

Last year's winners in the five categories of competition were Southfield-Lathrup's "Dimensions" for best paper; Craig Newman of North Farmington for news-writing; Brian Lynch of Stevenson for opinions; Joe Centers of Stevenson for sports and Kim Overton of Churchill for features.

In addition to these categories, this year's competition will include three new areas. They are: sports column, analysis-interpretive or investigative reporting, and photography. Cash awards and honorable mentions will be given in each category.

Participants are encouraged to mail entries to: High School Journalism Contest, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, Mich. 48151. Entries should be postmarked no later than May 14; however, they may be delivered in person to the student activities office in the Waterman Campus Center until 8 p.m. on May 18.

Citizen groups support drive to ban throwaways

Response to a petition drive banning throwaway beverage containers has been "overwhelming," according to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

Thomas L. Washington MUCC executive director, said more than 32,000 petitions have already been sent to individuals.

"This does not include the 50,000 petitions distributed to organizations that requested them," he said. "Nor does it include the thousands of petitions that will be circulated in three statewide publications."

MUCC is seeking 300,000 petition signatures by June 1 to place the question of banning non-returnable beer and soft-drink containers on the November ballot.

If approved, beverage containers would be required to carry a deposit of at least 10 cents, unless certified by the state as reusable by more than one manufacturer in which case only a five-cent deposit would be required.

Organizations that publicly endorsed the MUCC petition include the Michigan League of Women Voters, Mackinac Chapter of the Sierra Club, Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, Michigan Parks and Recreation Association, Detroit Audubon Society, Michigan Student Environmental Confederation and West Michigan Environmental Action Council.

Michigan's largest general farm organization—Michigan Farm Bureau—is strongly supporting the petition drive, said its president Elton R. Smith.

"For years farmers have had serious problems with glass beverage containers thrown along country roads and adjoining fields and woodlots," said Smith.

Petitions may be obtained by writing MUCC, Box 2235, Lansing, 48911.

O'Hara has floor know-how

By TIM RICHARD

"You've got to have the votes before you get to the floor," Jim O'Hara keeps saying.

A nine-term member of the U.S. House of Representatives, O'Hara boils down his approach to liberal legislation by deciding whether he can negotiate for "half a loaf now and come back for the other half later, or whether we should keep the heat on now."

O'Hara (D-Utica) talked about the way he and other Democratic liberals have pushed labor, education and social legislation over the years in a recent talk to 18th District Democrats and in an interview.

"I STARTED OUT with the Democratic Party a long time ago," said O'Hara—one of the first members of his party to penetrate the Republican stronghold in the suburbs.

"Warren was where we worked the hardest because we had all those new residents out here. I worked the precincts in Shelby Township, and I'll bet you the shoes I wore out cost more than the money I collected in the Dollars for Democrats drive."

He talked of the ways of Congress: "The world's a pretty resistant place. You can't walk into an institution as complicated as the house of representatives, make a speech and expect the world to change. By the time someone makes a speech, the fight's over."

AFTER 18 YEARS in the house, O'Hara is seeking a change. Either he'll be nominated and elected to the senate in 1976, where he figures he can make progress by yards instead of inches, or he'll be back in Macomb County practicing law.

The remark about not changing the world with a speech seems aimed at Rep. Donald Riegle (D-Flint), another senate contender with an oratorical flair.

"We finally stopped the oil and gas lobby in their tracks," O'Hara said as he talked about the industry's efforts to get de-regulation. "We gave 'em de-regulation, all right, but we came up with a substitute. We've heard all this hogwash about the downtrodden, 'mom and pop' gas producer.

"We took all the little guys out of it (regulation)—anyone producing a billion cubic feet or less. We'll continue to regulate 25 companies, but they produce 70 per cent of the gas."

O'HARA SPENDS MUCH of his time thinking about the relationship between the City of Detroit and its suburbs.

Of efforts to aid big cities, he said: "I don't think we're dumping in dollars to cover deficits. I've been for counter-cyclical revenue sharing. It's a temporary device to help areas that have had great impacts from the recession.

"The plight of the cities is a long-term situation. I don't have any answers to that. I'm very distrustful of answers that have any compulsion—you know, keeping the cars out of the city.

"You have to figure out what's causing declines of cities. Crime is a major problem."

O'Hara was critical of the way a television special attacked the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for continuing to provide mortgage money in the city.

"I'VE TRIED to analyze what brings people to the suburbs," he went on.

"One thing they like is that a suburb is a manageable size.

"It's interesting the way the suburbs have developed. Poles have lived on the east side, moving up to Sterling Heights and Shelby Township. Italians have moved to St. Clair Shores and East Detroit; Hungarians to Lincoln Park, Allen Park and Melvindale.

"It's true that we have not cities and suburbs, but a series of small units held together by something . . . ."

O'Hara sticks to basic issues of the bread-and-butter sort. He is a sponsor of the Kennedy-Corman national health insurance plan.

"But I'm not hung up on it. A reason I favor the Social Security Administration handling it is the miserable job Blue Cross has done in holding down costs. Those lab tests! They'll run you to death.

"WE OUGHT TO start moving in the direction of national health insurance. I have my vision, but I'm ready to get started with something else.

"What I'm trying to say is, yes, I've been a co-sponsor, but we haven't got the votes. I'm willing to accept some changes and watering down—as long as taking part of the loaf is worthwhile and as long as we can come back for the rest later."

Not many years ago, O'Hara was one of the leaders of the most liberal group in Congress. Today he rates a 74 on the Americans for Democratic Action scale, and the new freshmen are running up scores in the 90s. O'Hara seems to be getting a little bit conservative—and he talks that way.

"The bureaucracy! The damndest i-dotting and t-crossing; petty. In the New Deal days, the courts were the problem. Now everything is administrative regulations.

"When government doesn't want to enforce a law, it damn well doesn't," he said, citing what he calls a failure of the government to apply the Occupational Health and Safety Act to farm workers harmed by powerful pesticides.

Despite the campaign for higher office, O'Hara boasts a good attendance record in the house. It's his style to be there and count the votes.

SC trustee sees trouble in future for continuing education program

Schoolcraft College Trustee Nancie Blatt has taken sharp exception to recent criticism in Lansing over the funding of continuing education in the state.

"I'm very concerned that proposed legislation, if passed, will seriously limit our community colleges from offering the kinds of courses local residents have asked for," Mrs. Blatt said.

"At Schoolcraft, this encompasses our very successful community services program, which this year is serving over 2,500 residents alone." She added, "We have provided these special classes for thousands since establishing our full-time program in 1971." At issue is whether classes like "Human Potential Seminar," "Small Business Management," "French for American Travelers," karate, and nursing refresher courses can be offered through local determination or must have state approval to qualify for supplemental state funding.

"We feel this determination should rest with our local citizens through the authority vested in our boards of trustees."

Mrs. Blatt is Trustee director to the Michigan Community College Association which met recently at Glen Oaks Community College to discuss the situation.

Mrs. Blatt, along with other MCCA delegates, feels that community service constitutes one of the truly unique missions of a comprehensive community college.

"If this is compromised through state control, it would signal the end of comprehensive programming as it has developed at Schoolcraft and across the state.

"The question is whether we can continue to grow in response to expressed community needs for non-traditional programs and services," Mrs. Blatt said, "or revert back to offering only career and transfer programs, which have limited appeal among the adult population."

Specifically, she has reference to the thousands of Michigan taxpayers including senior adults, homemakers, unemployed adults, minorities, and others in danger of being denied continuing education services.

For many, these special programs may provide the only direct return for their educational tax dollar. If state funding is withdrawn or curtailed, their opportunities could be seriously diminished, college officials contend.

Mrs. Blatt said the average community college student is 29 years old. Many of these older students do not seek a specific degree, she pointed out. Rather, they combine education with other life experiences.

As a trustee, Mrs. Blatt is keenly aware of current economic difficulties being faced by Michigan community colleges. "But, we cannot condone a return to past educational priorities in the name of economy," she said.

Mrs. Blatt believes that any financing restrictions on community college courses imposed by the state threaten the opportunity for access to lifelong learning for many citizens. The state would be saying, in effect, that educational services for some citizens would not be supported, or would be funded at a lower level. "Yet the need would still be there," Mrs. Blatt added.

In order to coordinate educational services and avoid duplication of courses, Mrs. Blatt said it is essential that community colleges work cooperatively with local and intermediate public school districts.

"We must also cooperate with other public colleges and universities, and with other community agencies in providing continuing education services.

"Further," Mrs. Blatt said, "this sharing of planning and service responsibility is undertaken with due regard for the proper auditing of financial arrangements."

Mrs. Blatt said the MCCA and the Michigan Community College Community Services Association have launched efforts to head off proposed state regulation of continuing education.

Private citizens can help by contacting their state legislators, urging continued state funding for these special programs and local determination of course offerings, she said.

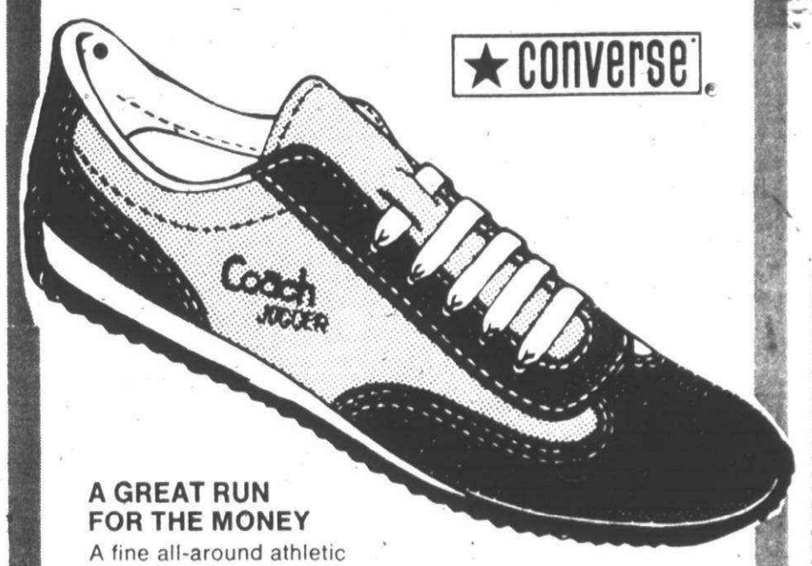

Auto insurance cancellation is hearing topic

A public hearing on a bill which would stop auto insurance companies from cancelling drivers' policies merely because they have been involved in accidents is set for 10 a.m. Monday on the 13th floor of the City-County Building in Detroit.

Sponsored by State Rep. Monte R. Geralds (D-Madison Heights), the bill is intended to protect the good driver who has had a bad run of luck.

"Ol' Blue Eyes is Here"

JUST IN TIME FOR MOTHER'S DAY

AN UNAUTHORIZED BIOGRAPHY JUST RELEASED

SINATRA

BY EARL WILSON

The whole performance--it's all here in this unauthorized biography: how Sinatra did it his way. Earl Wilson knows Sinatra, his ups and downs, better than any other writer. He has followed Sinatra's career closely from the days of the skinny kid called "The Voice" to the superstar's smart comeback in the mid-1970's. Sinatra's life and career have held constant mystery and fascination for millions of Americans. And now Wilson tells the private and public stories of this many-faceted champion crowd-pleaser; his start with Tommy Dorsey, his rise to king crooner of the bobby-soxers and to the top of the hit parade; affairs with Lana Turner and others equally glamorous; his political involvement with the Democrats; and personal involvement with Lauren Bacall; more politics with the Kennedys, the Reagans, the Nixons, the Agnews; his reputed ties with the mob and the Vegas crowd; and the "unknown" Sinatra.

5 area men to review single business tax reform

Five area men are members of a state task force headed by Lt. Gov. James Damman which will review what changes, if any, should be made in the five-month-old single business tax that replaced all or portions of seven other business taxes in Michigan.

Joining the 37-member task force appointed by Gov. William Milliken are: Louis Kasischke of Birmingham, chairman of the Michigan Bar Association's state tax committee; Ned Stirton of Plymouth, executive director of Detroit Tooling Association; William C. Roney Jr. of Birmingham, general partner in William C. Roney Co.; Henry A. Montague of Birmingham, president of Michigan Association of Restaurants; and Charles Shipley of Farmington Hills, Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan.

The task force was named because many businesses have complained that they pay higher taxes under the new system.

"ALL TYPES and all sizes of business and business groups are represented on this task force," Milliken said. "The emphasis is on representatives of the 'small business' sector because that's where the concern has been centered . . . .

"One goal of the single business tax is to provide a simpler tax that is as fair and as equitable as possible," the governor said. "The taxes (which were) replaced contained inequities and contributed to Michigan's economic and fiscal problems.

"With only four months of experience, we don't know yet what the real impact of the single business tax will be.

"That's what this task force will find out and report to me," Milliken said.

THE GROUP will:

- Study effects of the single business tax as it relates to particular types of businesses in Michigan.
- Monitor its impact on the level of economic and business activity.
- Recommend to the governor any specific changes that might appear to be needed in the tax.

The panel will begin work as soon as possible and is expected to complete its work in a year. It will have access to state data and will study who pays more and who pays less under the new tax and whether such changes in tax liabilities are proper, as well as listening to the concerns and questions of large and small business firms.

The panel will submit periodic reports to the governor.

Both houses of the legislature will name members to the task force, and a number of state officials will work with the group.

Jail tax proposal gets top-level support

Using the slogan "Protect Your Pocketbook," a Wayne County citizens group has called for a "yes" vote on Proposition A at the May 18 election as the most economical method to finance the new jail.

The committee urges residents throughout the county to vote for the ½ mill tax proposal rather than relying on the more costly method of bonding.

Joining in a May 3 news conference held in the offices of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce were Dwight Havens, chamber president; Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas; Ronald Sexton, president of the Detroit Police Officers Association, and Jack O'Reilly, chief of the Dearborn Police Department, all campaign co-chairpersons.

"The question the taxpayers must decide is how best to pay for the new jail," said Havens.

"If the voters approve Proposition A, county taxpayers will pay a total of $35 million over a five year period. For the average householder, this will amount to about $6 per year.

"If the voters say "no" to Proposition A, a bond issue at today's interest rates will mean a total expenditure of upwards of $90 million," Havens said. "It makes good business sense to choose the financing method that saves money."

Other co-chairpersons of the "Committee to Protect Your Pocketbook" who have offered to help with the campaign are:

Coleman A. Young, mayor of Detroit; Philip G. Tannian, chief of Detroit Police; Richard Marshall, mayor of Taylor; Doug Fraser, UAW vice president; Stanley Krajewski, editor of Polish Daily News; Tom Turner, president Wayne County Council AFL-CIO; Diane Edgecomb, director of Central Business District Association; Ernest Fackler, chairman of Wayne County Republican Party; Joseph Bida, mayor of Plymouth; Robert Turner, chief of police, Livonia; Lawrence S. Charfoos, attorney; Martha Jean Steinberg "The Queen;" Olga Madar, UAW and Vic Venegas, Wayne County Road Commission plus Orville Hubbard, mayor of Dearborn.

Resource task awes Ray Baker

By TIM RICHARD

"We've been in an educational program for our first five or six months. Resource recovery is a very big subject."

Raymond L. Baker looked a little awed by the stupendous task facing the Michigan Resource Recovery Commission (RRC) of which he is chairman.

Its mission is "to encourage development of solid waste recycling systems and to provide for a statewide solid waste management and resource recovery program."

Baker, 69, retired from the Michigan House of Representatives in 1974 after serving seven terms from the 64th District, which includes his former home of Farmington and western Southfield.

BAKER HAS LONG been a conservation and outdoors buff.

In 1940 the prospering pharmacist bought a summer place at Lucerne, on a branch of a stream which flows into the Au Sable River. It's now his permanent residence except when he and his wife take a winter jaunt to Florida.

In the capital, Baker was chairman of the house conservation committee when the Republicans were in power. Environmentalists gave him high marks for his voting record, and in 1968, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) selected him "outstanding conservation legislator of the year."

When State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) won passage of his bill to create the nation's first rrsource recovery commission, Gov. William Milliken promptly named Baker one of its three "citizen" members, and the RRC itself elected Baker chairman.

Another area member is an industry representative—John Layman of Livonia, president of Lyon Development Co. of Westland and vice president of Browning Ferris Industries, Detroit.

SOLID WASTE is the formal name for what most folks call trash. Resource recovery is the broad term for reclaiming and reusing the metals, paper, fuel and other substances in that trash.

Baker drives 165 miles from Lucerne the third Wednesday of each month to preside over RRC meetings in the modern Delta Township Hall on M-43 at I-96, west of Lansing.

And as he said, the RRC has spent its first half-year of life just learning what's going on and talking to a few counties about the the solid waste plans that all Michigan communities are required to make and implement.

Their goal, simply, is to reduce the amount of land needed for dumps, or landfills.

"NOW WE'VE GOT to hire consultants, which takes a legislative appropriation, for an affirmative plan," said Baker.

He refers a lot of specific questions to the RRC's full-time director, Fred Kellow, whose title is chief of the resource recovery division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

RAY BAKER

Will the RRC be an operating authority?

"It cannot be an operating agency," Kellow answered. "But the commission will be able to review solid waste plans. And it will have input into the review of state solid waste plans."

The RRC will deal with big money when it comes time for making grants to local governments and private enterprises, first for research and later for construction.

THERE IS A power which Kellow admits "we have not played up." That is the power to issue a formal order to a community or area which is doing nothing about implementing a solid waste plan.

The water resources commission (WRC), another body organized under the DNR, has such powers. The WRC has issued such orders to communities to build or upgrade sewage treatment plants. And it's the WRC which will decide whether the so-called "super sewer" project will be built in western Oakland and Wayne and eastern Washtenaw counties.

So the RRC's impact could be just as important in its field.

BAKER SAID the RRC spent one session touring the Huron Valley Steel plant at Belleville. The firm reclaims metals from the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority (which serves Garden City and Westland) and other communities.

Kellow thinks the RRC should see the Ames, Iowa resource recovery plant, whose 200 tons per day capacity is about the size many Michigan communities could use.

One bit of "education" wasn't too pleasant for the RRC. It learned recently from bonding counsel G. Stratton Brown that it might have trouble marketing bonds because the present law fails to place clearly the full faith and credit of the state behind its bonds.

They will require amendments to the law. Baker will be able to use his legislative expertise to help get them passed.

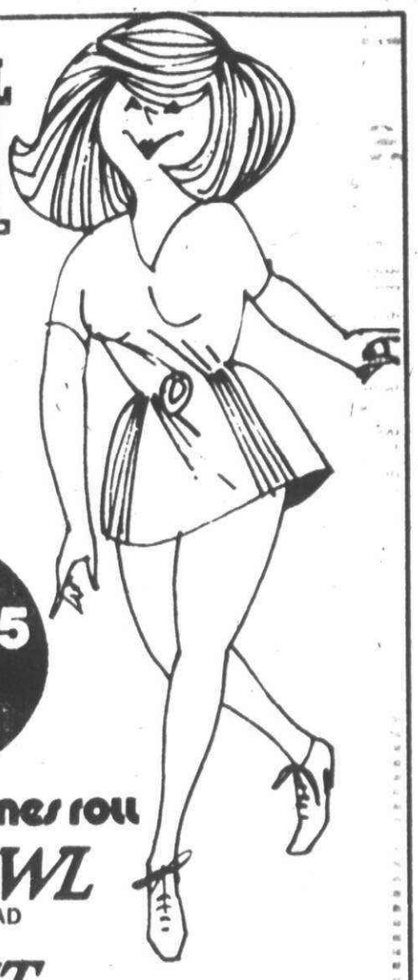

BAKER, IN FACT, is the only person with state political experience on the RRC.

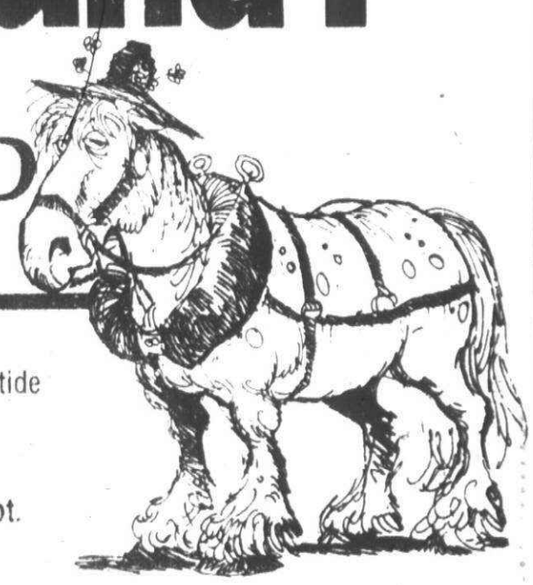

He drew on it recently when he cast the deciding vote against a resolution endorsing a bill whose effect would be to ban nonreturnable beverage bottles and cans.

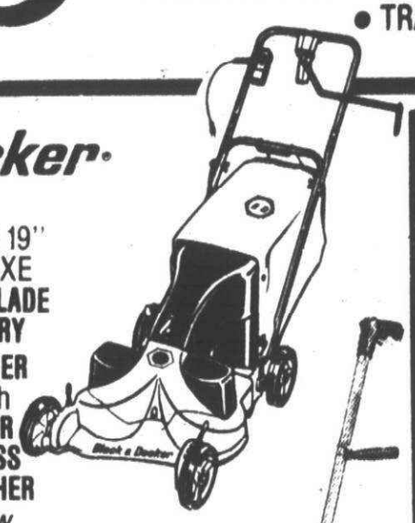

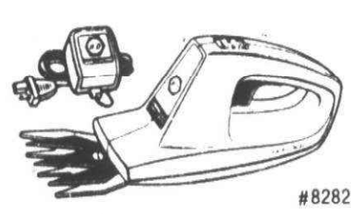

His reasoning: Legislators get irritated and take offense when appointive bodies endorse bills; irritate the legislators and you reduce your chances of getting the appropriations you'll need later.

"Resource recovery is a very huge subject," said Baker. "It costs millions for even a plant that two or three small counties can use."

Fire district worthy of yes vote May 18

The Canton Township board of trustees has announced its intent not to levy more than 1.5 mills if the special assessment district for additional fire protection is approved by voters May 18.

That ceiling, established a week ago, leaves to the voters of Canton to decide whether a second station is needed in the township.

We encourage voters to say yes to Proposition No. 1 on the May 18 ballot.

Without question, Canton needs a second station, especially with the population boom continuing even in the face of recession.

REGRETTABLY, this is not a specific millage, and the board after two public hearings will decide the amount to levy.

But trustees have voted unanimously and in essence promised not to levy more than 1.5 mills this year; and if less is needed, the board says it will levy less.

Officials have willingly made themselves accountable. Should they attempt to exceed the 1.5 mill amount, they will have the people's wrath, justified, to deal with in November.

While we would have preferred a specific millage, we feel the need for a second station outweighs the inconveniences of the special assessment district.

Township officials have received two reports on what a second station can do, and the reports are promising.

A second station, on Warren just west of Haggerty, would reduce response time by as much as six minutes on some runs to the most populated area in the township—possibly the difference between life and death.

Cost of the station is expected to run about $200,000, and if the assessment district is passed May 18, construction can begin immediately.

A NEGATIVE vote might well delay the station another year, even if voters approve a millage in August. By that time, another 1,000 families will populate Canton, most of them north of Cherry Hill Road and east of Canton Center.

As the tax base increases—and it is increasing rapidly—each mill will raise more, and we see no reason not to expect the levy for the second station to decrease after the station is built and equipped, possibly in two or three years.

It is conceivable that less than one mill will be needed to pay for staffing the station in a few years.

The cost of 1.5 mills to the owner of a $40,000 home in Canton is about $30 annually. That may well be offset by reduced costs for fire insurance.

The township is presently being surveyed by the Michigan Office of Insurance Services, and there is reason to hope its report will show that a second station would greatly reduce the township's current high insurance rating.

While the new station will benefit most directly those living the northeast quadrant of Canton, it will provide backup to the present station at Canton Center and Cherry Hill, and it will allow the present station to concentrate its life saving efforts more directly on the rest of the township.

The Canton Observer & Eccentric

Protect the less hardened

The language of judges is commonly stilted and ornate, but in this case the words of three Wayne County circuit judges speak eloquently to the need for a new jail facility:

". . . the classification system, breaks down when the inmate population reaches 720 or more. This can happen, for example, when aggressive inmates exceed the number of cells allotted for violent homosexual inmates and the cells designated for youthful first offenders have more capacity than occupants. To mix these classes in one ward, sharing the same exercise area on the rock, is to invite homosexual rape . . .

"Moreover, there can be illegal occupancy even when the population is less than 720. This occurs when more than one inmate is housed in a one-man cell; when the number of inmates assigned to a particular ward exceeds its lawful capacity; when inmates are not provided bunks for sleeping; when they are placed in cells with inoperable toilets; when they are placed in cells with inoperable locks . . .

"The evidence was undisputed that at times when the total inmate population did not exceed so-called design capacity of 799, there were inmates in certain wards sleeping on rock floors and on the floors of individual cells with a second inmate sleeping in the bunk of the same cell."

Quite simply, Wayne County needs another jail facility—more cells, better quality. It is our constitutional obligation to do the job and do it right.

On the May 18 ballot will be Proposal A, calling for a half-mill property tax increase to raise $35 million over the next five years to construct and equip the proper facilities, and in part operate them. For our own protection as well as the protection of some of the less hardened men and women who land in jail, the millage warrants a yes vote.

Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Politics shouldn't spoil the good name of Canton

Those who regularly attend Canton Township Board meetings have undoubtedly watched with amusement, amazement or disgust the bickering among members of the board of trustees.

Late in the evening, or more often early in the morning, board members get tired and crabby and usually have a go at one another.

Debate degenerates into verbal brawling, and insults are liberally tossed about by trustees and officers alike.

The usual effect of these personal attacks is comic relief, and those few who remain in the audience can smile about the pettiness of the board members.

By early Wednesday morning, the audience is also tired, and the fray brings some needed relief from grave matters such as dust palliatives, super sewers and the like.

Sometimes, though, the insults are too heavy-handed and the effect is obnoxious rather than amusing.

BUT ON APRIL 27, the end result was neither amusing nor obnoxious. It was ridiculous.

The township bills, $8,000 worth, were rejected because a few board members didn't like one or two items.

Rather than delete those items, all the bills were turned down and the meeting was adjourned.

Much of the fault lies with Supervisor Robert Greenstein.

Greenstein said it was policy that unless all members of the board agreed on all the bills, none would be paid.

Using that suspect rationale, he voted repeatedly against payment of the bills when a yes vote could have gotten the bills approved.

To use two of Greenstein's favorite terms, that is "nonsense" and it is "baloney."

Evidently, Greenstein was trying to emphasize that several board members, including Trustees Brian Schwall, Jim Poole, and Bob Myers often are given to nitpicking about the way tax dollars are spent in Canton.

On occasion, they are guilty of that.

BUT THAT IS not a good enough reason to reject all the bills.

To let politics—and that is what this is—interfere with the day-to-day efficient operation of the township is a poor decision.

Shenanigans such as not paying the bills spoils the good name of Canton, and may hurt the township's credit at local businesses, some of whom depend on prompt payment to keep going.

Payment of the bills has never been a consensus item, and to set such a precedent now is both arbitrary and absurd.

All that is required to approve the bills for payment is four votes—not unanimity.

Politics shouldn't affect those votes and force all township creditors to suffer because a handful of board members don't like one or two items on the list of bills.

A time of change

Schoolcraft awarded honorary degrees to two men who had to drop out of school during the Great Depression of the '30s—Leonard Woodcock of the UAW and former trustee Erv Brown.

Ironically, today Schoolcraft's enrollment is swollen a little because of the bad economic conditions. Folks today don't quit school during a time of unemployment; they go back to school.

It marks a change in our society—a change for the better.

Vehicle tax to aid transit

Detroit is the only major metropolitan area in the United States without an adequate rapid transit system.

For years this has been blamed on the attitude of the automobile industry. Because they make cars and buses, it is alleged that they have lobbied for more highways rather than railways.

The lack of a metropolitan rapid transit system has probably hurt Detroit more than other major metropolitan areas because it has widened the gap between the core city and the suburbs. It seriously limits the amount of intermingling the people in our metropolitan area can do.

RECENTLY, THERE DID seem to be some activity toward correcting the problem. Unfortunately, voters turned down a state-wide bond issue that would have started the ball rolling, primarily because the outstate people didn't think they would get their fair shares of the transportation mileage.

Gov. Milliken has proposed a state-wide property value tax on cars and trucks to finance an entire state-wide system, including rapid transit in Detroit, expressways and a railroad and bus system for outstate.

This would raise the price of license plates, based on the value of a car or truck, instead of basing the tax on weight, as is presently done.

THIS IS A FAIR tax proposal because it would be assessed against the users.

The legislature doesn't seem to be behind the governor's plan and has proposed a property transfer tax on the sale of property in the Detroit metropolitan area.

At present, there is a tax of $1.10 per $1,000 of value—which is usually paid by the seller—for the transfer of any real estate. Thus, when a $35,000 home is sold, a tax of $38.50 is assessed.

The legislature's plan is to increase this transfer tax by about 500 per cent and make the purchaser pay the tax rather than the seller. This would, over a five-year period, meet the revenue needs of the SEMTA, the regional transportation agency.

THE PROBLEM with this type of tax is that it is not assessed against the people who would most benefit from a rapid transit system.

To begin with, the sale of a house has nothing to do with how people get around. The higher the value of the home, the higher the tax that would be assessed. Yet the larger the home, the less likely the people in the home would be using public transportation.

And because the action is in the suburbs, this would tend to make the suburbs bear a higher portion of the cost of a system that would benefit the core city the most.

By placing the burden on the purchaser of the home, it would raise the price of properties in the core city and therefore lower the market attractiveness of those homes.

FOR ANY TYPE of financing for transportation, the people who will benefit most from the system should be asked to contribute. People who use their cars and trucks and public transportation should carry the burden of expansion of the program.

There is only so much federal money in Washington for rapid transit programs, and every day other metropolitan areas in the country are making attempts to get their pieces of the pie.

The longer Michigan and metropolitan Detroit dance around and fail to face up to the problem, the fewer dollars will be left in Washington to help solve it.

Observation Point

Carter senses a brand new idealogy

The Michigan presidential primary will take place May 18. It is as sure as things get in politics that Jimmy Carter will win the Michigan Democratic race and then go on to seize the nomination at the national convention in New York in August.

For a man whose prior elective experience in big time politics is limited to service as a state senator and then governor of Georgia, Carter's sudden national success is phenomenal.

How did it happen? Why the great appeal?

Superficial explanations abound: Carter has that big smile and clearly is an excellent campaigner. His organization started early, shaped up fast, and produced some first-class advertising. Carter has never been tangled in the Washington merry-go-round and hence has been able to capitalize on the anti-big government sentiment abroad in the country just now. His stands on issues contain something for just about everybody, to which Carter adds a deep religious belief and a strong ethical commitment.

ALL THESE, however, are technical factors, the kinds of things the political pros and national media groupies like to spin out in endless webs late at night in smoke-filled rooms.

They all miss the real point, which is that politicians become hot national properties not because they have a snappy staff or good ads but rather because somehow, amidst the endless, numbing drudgery of the campaign, they come to symbolize, in a deep, non-rational way, an attitude to which the people of this land can relate.

John Kennedy symbolized youth and style; George McGovern expressed fuzzy-headed liberalism; Dwight Eisenhower suggested the kind father. The things they symbolized burned them into our hearts and thereby determined their political success or failure.

TO EXPLORE just what Gov. Carter symbolizes to our people at this point in our history, it is necessary to examine the underlying forces that have been expressing themselves in American politics for the past 10 years.

The major movement has been the gradual breakup of the liberal-conservative axis around which politics has revolved ever since the Depression.

The coalition which Franklin Roosevelt forged in 1932 included many divergent groups—blacks and other minorities, intellectuals, big city machines and their bosses, the labor movement, some farmers—linked by an ideology which advocated government action to solve the problems of people.

Facing the liberal Democrats were the conservative Republicans—the business community, the upper-middle class, much of rural America—joined in suspicion of government activity and belief in private enterprise.

FOR 30 YEARS, the drama of American politics was played out against the backdrop of these contending grounds. But times and issues changed, and, beginning in the middle 1960s, the forces defining these groups began to fall apart.

In 1965 the intellectuals revolted against Lyndon Johnson and the Vietnam war. The labor movement gradually became ambivalent toward black aspirations which threatened to overturn cherished seniority rights.

Some liberal Republicans quit the party (Rep. Don Riegle, now running for the senate in Michigan, was one), while others (Ronald Reagan, for example) railed against any diminution of free enterprise purity.

IT SEEMS CLEAR to me that political clumpings in this country are evolving away from the traditional liberal-conservative split toward something else. Exactly what else is not clear, but the fact of the breakdown of the traditional left-right arguments of the old politics is quite clear.

Our people know this, in a deep, instinctive way. And knowing it, they resent politicians' trying to cram the traditional ways of looking at politics down their throats.

In that fact lies the key to understanding just why Jimmy Carter symbolizes so much to the American people and why he has such a remarkable political success from so narrow a base.

Quite simply, he is the first major figure in our recent political history who is neither a liberal nor a conservative.

But Carter is not subject to such classification. He is for racial integration, but suspicious of busing. He thinks government is too big, but he wants our society to take care of those unable to help themselves. He is a southerner, but he lauds the Civil Rights Act. He has been a farmer, but he is sympathetic to the plight of the core cities.

Carter's opponents have charged him with being fuzzy on the issues, with saying something to please everyone. What they're really saying is that Carter cannot be classified in the old ways. Their criticism merely serves to point up his greatest strength.

I suspect Carter himself does not know exactly how to categorize his stance on the issues affecting our country, but I believe he senses deeply that the old politics are fading, and that new shapes and sounds are coming out of the political night.

State commission cans throwaway bottle ban

By TIM RICHARD

By a 5-4 vote, the Michigan Resource Recovery Commission opposed a bill favored by Gov. William Milliken to ban nonreturnable beverage bottles.

The resolution was strongly opposed in an April 21 public hearing in Lansing by represetantives of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, the Michigan Council for Convenience Packaging, American Can Co. and the U.S. Brewers Association.

There were no supporting speakers—not even from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), which has Milliken's signature on a petition asking for a law banning nonreturnables.

RAY BAKER, former state representative from Farmington and now chairman of the resource recovery commission, opposed the resolution, offered by member Thomas J. Blessing Jr. of the Ann Arbor Ecology Center.

"If I were still a member of the legislature," said Baker, "I'd probably vote for it. But members of the legislature get irritated when an appointed board tries to tell them what to do. The legislators feel they—not the board—are representing the people."

The resource recovery commission will need major legislative appropriations in the years ahead, said Baker. Ecology issues are anathema to development-minded legislators from the Upper Peninsula such as State Sen. Joe Mack and State Reps. Dominic Jacobetti and Russell Hellman—all of whom are members of appropriations committees.

ALSO OPPOSING the ban on nonreturnables were members William Cilluffo, executive assistant to Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young; James Anderton IV, president of Summit Steel Processing Corp. of Lansing; Stuart Padnos, an executive of a Holland iron and metal company; and Delhi Township Supervisor Michael Walkington of Ingham County.

Absent was John W. Layman of Livonia, president of Lyon Development Co. of Westland and vice-president of Browning Ferris Industries of Detroit.

Favoring the ban were Blessing; Pamela Frucci, citizen member from Grosse Ile; Ernest Kemp, a Chippewa County commissioner and head of the earth science department of Lake Superior State College, Sault Ste. Marie; and Henry Webster, chief of the forestry division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

MUCH OF THE ARGUMENT ranged over whether a state agency concerned with recovering resources should be getting involved with a bill that would require a deposit on beverage bottles.

Blessing said it should because eliminating waste at the source is as important as picking it up and recycling it.

Mrs. Frucci said strict enforcement of litter laws is no answer because they can't be enforced against juveniles, who are responsible for much litter.

Kemp said that now that snow is melting in the U.P., "the litter is monumental. It's almost entirely cans and nonreturnable bottles."

Webster called the bottle ban bill "one small step, but long journeys start with a small step."

CILLUFFO, HOWEVER, said he wasn't concerned with litter on rural streets; he was concerned with Detroit's plan to build a resource recovery plant. Without waste products, he said, "this plant may never be built."

Padnos, executive vice-president of Louis Padnos Iron and Metal Co., said that while 60 per cent of roadside litter may be beverage containers, requiring a deposit on beverage bottles will do nothing about the other 40 per cent—"pickle jars, bean cans and plastic-coated milk cartons."

Walkington, the townships' representative, scoffed: "The legislature is not going to look at this a second time."

Anderton, angry that the matter was discussed, called it "an extraneous matter."

Comments by commissioners that the bill would not guarantee less litter were branded later as "unadulterated nonsense" by Thomas L. Washington, executive director of Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

"If there is one thing that this bill is guaranteed to do by requiring deposits on bottles and cans, it is to cut down on litter," Washington said in a telegram to Baker. "Given the revolting volume of bottles and cans littering our state today, any member of your commission could augment his income handsomely by collecting the containers at the 10 cents apiece deposit charge."

INDUSTRY REPRESENTATIVES argued vehemently against it.

William A. Wickham of the state chamber of commerce said the commission should meet "the real solid waste problem. Well down on your list of duties . . . was to examine source reduction."

George Graff, manager of environmental programs for the chamber, said that if a mandatory 10-cent deposit were required by Michigan law, 2,000 of the 5,800 workers in bottling plants would lose their jobs, and payrolls would be cut by 40 per cent, or $20 million.

To environmentalist arguments that 9,000 jobs would be created in handling and sorting returned bottles, Graff said those jobs would be at the minimum wage or up to $2.50 an hour while the bottling industry jobs are unionized and pay $7.25 to $11.50 an hour to skilled wage earners.

ROBERT HEALY, president of the Michigan Council for Convenience Packaging, said it wasn't really true that soft drink prices fell in Oregon when deposit bottles were required there. Actually, he said, Shasta—which sells cans only—abandoned the market and other firms engaged in temporary cut-rate pricing to pick up Shasta's share of the market.

One supporter of the resolution argued reusable containers would help Michigan breweries regain the share of the market they had been losing, but this was denied by David Erlandson, of the U.S. Brewers Association.

Speakers on jail tax available

Following a decision by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to build new jail facilties in downtown Detroit, a speakers bureau has been formed to persuade voters to approve a special tax levy of one-half mill (50 cents per $1,000 of State equalized valuation) which will appear as "Proposition A" on next month's presidential primary ballot.

Participants in the speakers bureau are available to explain advantages and disadvantages of the millage or an alternate plan of borrowing through long-term bonds.

Included in the speakers bureau are representatives from labor, government, business and commerce, and ethnic communities. Upon request, speakers will appear before any group interested in learning details about the jail situation and its financial aspects.

A chief participant in the speakers bureau is Sheriff William Lucas, who is speaking before various groups and on radio and television stations.

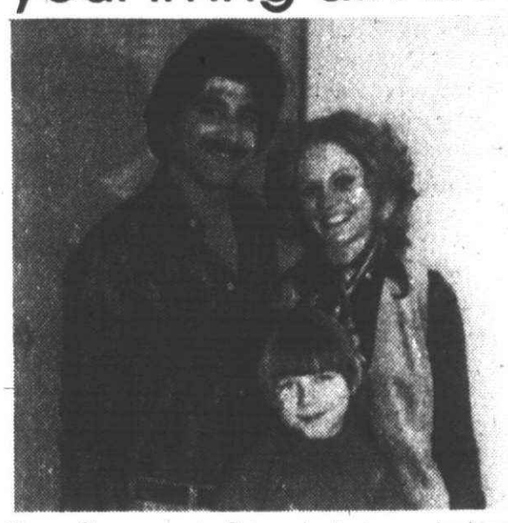

Others committed to speaking appearances are all members of the board of commissioners and County Clerk James R. Killeen.

Will Hardy, speakers bureau coordinator, says that speaker services have already been offered to 40 civic oriented organizations, as well as to all the mayors and township supervisors in the county.

To arrange for speaker services, interested individuals should contact Hardy or Carole Green by telephoning 224-0906.

Dr. Harold L. Wright Jr. Hawthorn Center director, stands outside its new south wing, being dedicated this weekend. (Staff photos by Art Emanuel)

A kitchen for home economics training is one of the features of Hawthorn Center's new wing, being dedicated this weekend. Velma Counts (right), home ec teacher, is showing it to Dr. Francis Pasley of Plymouth, clinical director, and Jean Simonetti, director of nurses.

It's a celebration weekend for Hawthorn, MAEDC

By MARGARET MILLER

Two institutions that have earned nationwide respect—Hawthorn Center and the Michigan Association of Emotionally Disturbed Children—are heading into a big weekend of homecoming and program study.

The center, probably alone in the nation in the intensive care it can focus to help emotionally-disturbed children, is inviting present and former staff members to Thursday and Friday meetings to celebrate its 20th anniversary and the opening of the new 80-bed south wing.

Then, on Saturday, Hawthorn plays host to the annual meeting of the MAEDC and invites the public to tours of the new wing that opened in September and has greatly increased its facilities.

"We moved into the new wing last Sept. 1," said Dr. Harold L. Wright Jr., center director for the past six years, "and our anniversary date isn't until July 1, so this program was aimed to be somewhere in between.

"We want it to be an occasion of homecoming for those who have studied here or been on the staff and now are working all over the country.

"We also expect to be able to exchange a lot of information in our study sessions, and we hope to take beginning steps for forming a Hawthorn Center Association.

"Finally, we want to cement our relationship with the MAEDC and give it whatever help we can in helping it become a national organization."

HAWTHORN CENTER, in Northville across Haggerty Road from Schoolcraft College, has shared with the association a score of years of helping youngsters with mental and emotional illness.

Both came into being about 20 years ago during the administration of Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams. Dr. Wright said it was Soapy Williams' support and the tremendous efforts of Dr. Ralph Rabinovitch and his wife, Dr. Sara Dubo, that "to a large extent has made Hawthorn what it is."

The former governor will be among the guests on hand this weekend, as will Dr. Dubo, now in private practice in Farmington. Dr. Rabinovitch, head of the institution from its beginning until 1970, still is a staff member, director of clinical research.

The MAEDC, Dr. Wright added, "has had an enormous effect in the state legislation that has brought this institution to its present status."

"When you're a state employee, as we all are at Hawthorn, you can't go to the legislature asking for more funds," he said. "That's what a parent advocate organization can do, and this one has done an enormous amount."

THE DIRECTOR praised highly the efforts of his predecessor Dr. Rabinovitch, and former associate director Dr. Dubo.

"They started 20 years ago with a very small staff," he said, "but they are very talented clinicians and remarkable teachers and they attracted other fine people here.

"The story told about Dr. Rabinovitch, and I'm sure it's true, is that he would interrupt a conversation with the governor or the president to talk to a child who needed him.

"He still has a number of patients here whom he is treating. So do I, for that matter, and so do other department heads. I think that's how it should be. I would not have the administrator's job if I couldn't continue to be a doctor. I didn't go to medical school to wind up shuffling papers."

DR. WRIGHT SAID Hawthorn now has beds for 162 of the most disturbed children and facilities for about 100 more in its 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. day care program. Close to 1,000 are in treatment on an out-patient basis, he added.

Over the nearly 20 years, he figures, the hospital has treated 2,500 in its rooms, 1,000 in its day center and 18,500 in its clinics, "and that's an awful lot of disturbed children."

"We're beginning to see some offspring of our first patients," he went on. "I suppose this is partly because people who have had emotional difficulties are more in tune with the need for treatment, and also it may be that their problems in turn cause problems for their offspring."

The age range for patients when Hawthorn opened was seven to 17, Dr. Wright said. Now the lower limit is down to four years.

"That's a good sign," he said, "it means we're picking up abnormalities earlier, and the chances for successful treatment are greater."

THE NEW WING, the director said, is part of a program begun eight years ago when disturbed and ill children, who had been housed in one of the old buildings at Northville State Hospital, were moved to Hawthorn and "it was agreed that appropriate quarters would be built."

The 80-bed wing, he added, also includes a wide range of additional facilities like special playrooms and a home economics room.

Hawthorn's program, in addition to intensive treatment for young patients, includes intern training for doctors, social workers and psychologists and some research work.

"Because the staff members stay here a long time, we've been able to do a lot with follow-up studies on the patients that have been here," Wright said.

"We can find out whether our methods are working, and what different things we might do.

"And of course that's what it's all about—that's what tells us whether all the state money spent has been worth it."

THE MEETINGS in the Hawthorn program Thursday and Friday will include study sessions on anorexia in teen-aged girls, school refusal, reading disability, elective mutism, day school nurser, bronchial asthma, teacher training, genetic aspects of mental illnes, new treatment approaches with children and parent advocacy.

Dinner speakers will be, on Thursday, Dr. Leon Eisenberg, on the topic "Is Prevention in Psychiatry Myth or Reality?" and on Friday Dr. Fritz Redl on "Perspectives in Residential Treatment."

Dr. Eisenburg is chairman of the psychiatry department at Harvard University medical school and Dr. Redl is distinguished professor emeritus at Wayne State University.

The MAEDC program Saturday will begin with reports on association projects dealing with mandatory special education, community placement, court action affecting voluntary hospital care, plans for a national organization and election of officers.

The luncheon program will be the formal dedication of the new wing, and there will be greetings from Dr. Wright and Dr. Rabinovitch; former governor Williams, now associate justice pf the Michigan Supreme Court; Dr. Donald C. Smith, director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health; and John G. Brian Jr, MAEDC president.

Area residents tout Girl Scout camping

Six area residents are working in a special volunteer corps of Girl Scout camp promoters to inform Scouts and their parents that applications are now being accepted for the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit summer camping program.

Promoting the camps are Marie Foley, Kim Huysken and Lydia Briggs of Livonia and Laura Hahn of Garden City. Also available to speak at meetings and show an informative film strip on the camps are Tina Auspitz and Sue Jarvis of Westland.

This summer GSMD will offer individual resident camping at Camp Metamora, located about 55 miles north of Detroit near Lapeer, and Camp Innisfree, 65 miles northwest of Detroit near Howell.

Troop camping can be arranged at Camp Holly in Oakland County near Holly. A special horseback-riding camping program will be offered at the John F. Ivory Farm in Union Lake.

For further information on the camps contact GSMD camping services, 28 W. Adams, room 612, Detroit.

Polish dancers

Ready to perform a variety of ethnic dances at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 6, are these young members of Polonaise Society Lodge 3160 Polish National Alliance. The event will take place in Crestwood High School auditorium, Beech Daly north of Ford Road, Dearborn Heights. From left at the top are Ronnie Caruso of Redford Township, Coleen Haliburda and Peggy Hutira of Livonia and Gary Galanty of Dearborn Heights. From left at the bottom are Michael Rekuta, Westland; Angie Gorak, Garden City; John James, Redford Township; and Judy Kendra, Dearborn Heights.

Brians join festivities

When they head for Northville Saturday to take part in the state meeting of the Michigan Association for Emotionally-Disturbed Children and special festivities at the Hawthorn Center, John and Jeanne Brian of Birmingham will be taking a familiar trip.

For years now they've been going regularly to the center that has played a great part in the education of their son, and in the process they have become major movers in the organization that makes a big difference to Hawthorn.

Their efforts for the MAEDC—John has been president of the Hawthorn chapter and now heads the state organization and Jeanne is a leader of fund-raising ventures—have been much appreciated by the organization.

Recently the couple a special award plaque by fellow members in thansk for all they have done through the years.

"We were speechless," Mrs. Brian said. "So many others have done so much—I think this award should be an annual thing."

JOHN BRIAN will preside over the state meeting of the MACLD, scheduled Saturday following two days of meetings for staff and former staff of the institution that probably is the largest in the nation for intensive treatment of children mentally or emotionally ill.

During the Saturday session, John Brian will report to the group on current MACLD action to battle in court a suit instituted by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity.

The suit, he said, would give any child the right to refuse hospitalization for mental health treatment.

"Ninty per cent of mental health treatment cases involve voluntary hospitalization," Brian said, "so this affects a great number of people.

"Our organization is taking action because we feel court approval of the OEO position would disentegrate family life and remove the parent from his role of authority in the family. A child does not decide whether he will be treated for physical illness, so he should not decide in the matter of emotional illness."

JEANNE BRIAN, while attending the Saturday meeting, will have her eye on the calendar a week ahead when the Hawthorn chapter stages a rummage and bake sale at St. Matthew United Methodist Church of Livonia, 30900 W. Six Mile.

Last year the figure was close to $5,000 as a special effort was made to provide extra equipment for the new Hawthorn Center wing being dedicated in the weekend activities.

Through assorted sales and distribution of Christmas cards, the association in Michigan raises about $2,000 a year.

"We have felt fortunate to have the center in our area and to work with a group of supportive parents," said Mrs. Brian.

"Whatever we do is well worth the effort."

Bloodmobile due in area

A Red Cross bloodmobile will be visiting Northville, Plymouth and Garden City during May.

The First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main, Northville, will be the location of it's visit from 2-8 p.m. Friday, May 7.

On Tuesday, May 11, it will be parked at the First United Presbyterian Church, 701 Church, Plymouth. Hours will be from 3-9 p.m.

Blood donors can visit the bloodmobile from 1:30-7:30 p.m. Friday, May 21 at St. Raphael School, 31500 Beachwood, Garden City.

Blood doners can also report to the Livonia Donor Center, 32316 Five Mile, Livonia, until May 10 when it will move to 15457 Middle Belt.

Visiting hours on at the Livonia center Monday, Wednesday and Thursday are from 2-8 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday. Saturday hours are fron 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Red Cross provides hospitals with a total supply of blood, and more than ever, volunteer blood donor support is needed.

Metrics magic workshop set

The magic of metrics will be taught in a two-weekend workshop at Madonna College, Livonia. It will be of interest to teachers and others making the transition from the English system of measurement.

Classes will meet Friday evenings, May 7 and 21, from 7 to 10 and Saturday mornings, May 8 and 22 from 8 until noon. Tuition is $35, plus fees, for the workshop which offers one semester hour of credit.

Classes will deal with linear and liquid measure as well as mass and temperatures. Since the United States is the only major country in the world not yet on the metric system, this knowledge should be most helpful to people traveling abroad, even to Canada.

Registration for Math 125, The Metric System, should be completed immediately at Madonna College, Schoolcraft at Levan, Livonia

Cooke school to celebrate

An open house from 7-10 p.m. Tuesday, May 11 will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Cooke Elementary School, Detroit.

A bicentennial program will be presented by students. The institution is located at 18800 Puritan in the Rosedale Park area and former teachers and students are invited to visit.

By MARGARET MILLER

We passed a new family milestone last weekend as our first college student reached the diploma stage. More accurately, she reached the stand-up-at-commencement stage—with the number of graduates running into the thousands they don't hand out even dummy diplomas.

In a day when many university graduates skip the ceremony, we were glad she wanted to put on a cap and gown, and her dad and I were delighted to be a cheering section.

We enjoyed the ceremony, serious but not stuffy, and didn't even find it over long. We appreciated the obvious jubilation of many graduates, the family photographers swarming all over, the quips tossed by the dignitaries and even the Frisbee tossed by a couple of graduates.

AND AFTERWARDS, of course, we asked our graduate if she was glad to be through with formal education.

Yes and no was her not surprising answer. She couldn't help being relieved to pass the stage of required classes and exams and term papers.

She couldn't help being sorry to see a deeply satisfying era end. The four years were too short for some of the classes she'd like to have taken, some of the professors she'd like to have known, some of the activities she'd like to have experienced.

She was glad she was staying on campus for a while as she began sending resumes to newspapers around the country in search of an entry into the world of full-time employment.

SO, AS I DID four years ago in this spot, I'll add a mother's congratulations to our first graduate. I'm sure she'll always, as I have, remember the college years with fond memory, and I hope she'll find the satisfactions I've known in the next stage.

It's a big step, and I can only hope we and the university have been able to give worthy preparation.

Class Reunions

ST. JOSEPH

Alumni of St. Joseph Commercial High School will hold their 85th annual reunion Friday, May 7, beginning with a mass at 6 p.m. in St. Joseph Catholic Church, Gratiot and Orleans in Detroit, and continuing with a dinner-dance in the German-American Cultural Center, 5251 E. Outer Drive.

The school was closed in 1964; however, alumni reunions, begun in 1892, have continued. Tickets this year cost $12.50 for alumni and $10 for guests, and reservations should be made with Ross Fazio, 1127 Penobscot Building, Detroit.

HAMTRAMCK

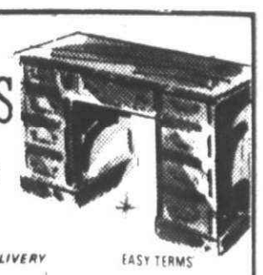

The January and June 1926 graduating classes of Hamtramck High School are seeking members to attend their 50th anniversary reunion on Saturday, May 15, in the Polish-American Century Club, 3201 Holbrook.

The reunion committee can be contacted at 12003 Mitchell, Hamtramck.

WHY THINK TWICE ABOUT CANNONBALLS WHEN WE HAVE THE ULTIMATE WEAPON?

Cannonballs?
Who's selling cannonballs?
There's been a lot of talk in those Detroit newspapers lately about how best to help poor old George Washington unload those cannonballs on the unsuspecting public.

It's a cute approach, especially in our Bicentennial year. But we're not sure that it's all that good an idea to get cute with the father of our country.

And we're positive that most folks don't really want to sell cannonballs these days. They want to get rid of that old sofa or the extra table or a garage full of goodies. For that, we've got the ultimate weapon: The Observer & Eccentric classified ads. Our local want ads go to more people in your immediate neighborhood than either of the regional Detroit papers. And our classified ads get better and faster results than anybody's.

So, if you want to sell cannonballs, do try the Detroit papers. But if you want to turn a lot of ordinary stuff you have sitting around the house into quick cash, call us.

St. Andrew plans 13th antique show

Twenty-one antique dealers, a lot of handcrafted patchwork and a super Maurice salad will carry on tradition at St. Andrew Episcipal Church, 16130 Hubbard, Livonia, on Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8.

The occasion will be the Episcopal Churchwomen's 13th Annual Antique Sale, an event that each year raises funds to give to organizations that benefit children.

A special feature for the bicentennial year will be a presentation by Peggy Harding of Farmington at 1:30 p.m. both days of the show. She will play the role of the country's second first lady in "Come and Have Tea with Abigail Adams."

For the monologue, Mrs. Harding wears authentic colonial dress and tells of life in the early days of the United States.

The St. Andrew show each year offers, in addition to the wares of dealers, a booth of patchwork craft items made by members of the church group and a tearoom that features a special salad.

Jean Dow of Livonia is chairman of the event.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. May 7 and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. May 8. Donation is $1.

Deano Day chairs May 8 Bike-a-thon

Deano Day of WDEE radio is chairman of the American Diabetes Association's 1976 Bike-a-thon, set this year for Saturday, May 8.

Sponsor sheets which contain rules and routes are available now in all Jack in the Box restaurants, ready for the 15,000 bikers who are expected to peddle throughout the state.

The bike-a-thon is the biggest fund raiser of the Michigan affiliate of the national association. Money raised will go toward diabetes research, help and education for diabetics, and Camp Midicha, which gives diabetic youth a camping experience and helps them learn to care for themselves.

Bikers have their choice of seven different mapped routes within the metropolitan area, with check points along the way.

Three 10-speed bikes will be awarded to the top money collector in three age categories, when all donations are in. Free hamburgers, fries and soft drinks will be given to each rider who completes one entire lap from Jack in the Box.

The association in Michigan is located at 6131 West Outer Drive, Detroit.

Kehrls mark anniversary

A reception in First Baptist of Plymouth honored the 50th wedding anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs. Arnold H. Kehrl of Plymouth.

Rev. Kehrl has served for about nine years on the zoning board of appeals of the city of Plymouth.

He and Mrs. Kehrl were married in the First Baptist Church of Downers Grove., Ill., where Rev. Kehrl was pastor for five years.

Accepting a call to the Beulah Baptist Church of Detroit in 1928, he served there 16 years. He has also pastored in Dearborn, Grand Rapids and Sault Ste. Marie.

Mrs. Kehrl has been an employee of Minerva-Dunning's for 18 years.

Joining them to enjoy the occasion were their three children, Mrs. Marie Bonamici of Northville, John Arnold Kehrl of Big Indian, N.Y., and Robert Floyd Kehrl of Toledo. Also present was Mrs. Marion Johnston Kehrl of Northville, a sister-in-law.

The Kehrls have eight grandchildren, four of whom were present.

Church Bulletin

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Farmington and Six Mile, Livonia, will welcome Rev. John R. Corts, director of the southeast Michigan Billy Graham Crusade, as speaker for its men's prayer breakfast at 8:30p.m. Saturday, May 8.

Mr. Corts has served as a pastor in Florida and as executive director of Tampa Youth for Christ. He is living in Farmington while making arrangements for the October crusade. All area men are invited to attend.

Ward Church also plans a 7:30 p.m. organ concert Thursday, May 6, and an appearance by Bruce Hanks, a descendent of Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln, for its service at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 9.

The organ concert will feature a touring group from Belmont College in Nashville, and the talk by Hanks will be for a Mother's Day service sponsored by the Women's Missionary Association. His topic will be "Abraham Lincoln's Mother."

REV. JOHN CORTS

BETHANY BAPTIST CHURCH, 34541 Five Mile, Livonia, will welcome the Rev. Hubert Karl, deputation secretary of the Rural Bible Mission, and a musical group called the King's Messengers to its Mother's Day services at 11 a.m. Sunday, May 9.

GRAND RIVER BAPTIST CHURCH, 34500 Six Mile, Livonia, will present the 100-voice Bentley High School concert choir in a sacred concert at 7 p.m. Mother's Day, May 9.

The program by the award-winning group is free, and a nursery will be provided.

LIVONIA CHRISTIAN CHURCH (Disciples of Christ), 36075 Seven Mile, will honor mothers in its congregation with a breakfast and a special youth service Sunday.

The mother-daughter breakfast, continuing a tradition, will be prepared and served before church under the direction of Larry Wood.

In the 11 a.m. service following breakfast, youth speakers Steve Zimmerman and Susan Grisdale will speak on Mother's Day themes, and there will also be participation by Betsy Zimmerman, Larry Joe Grimes, Tony Groce, Ann Groce, Philip Keathley, David Pennell, Robin Richard, John Rickard, John Grisdale, Jill Harper, Kelley Harper and Paul Grisdale.

Special music will be provided by the Saints and Singers Choir, directed by Mrs. Sara Humphery.

ST. ANDREW EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 16360 Hubbard, Livonia, will present Christian Sunshine, a youth musical group from St. James Episcopal Church in Birmingham in a performance at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 12.

The group will offer "It's the Spirit," a musical celebration from the biblical book of Acts. A free will offering will be taken.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY SPIRIT, 34645 Cowan, Westland, will hold a paper drive from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 8.

Contributions of newspapers or old IBM cards may be dropped at the church anytime during those hours, or pickups may be arranged by calling the church.

Proceeds will go to Crossroads, a drop-in center in Detroit, and to the League for the Handicapped-Goodwill.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF GARDEN CITY, 6443 Merriman, will be the scene of a junior high fellowship car wash from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 8.

HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH, 39020 Five Mile, between Newburgh and Haggerty, will be the scene of a rummage and bake sale Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Six departments and a snack bar will be featured, and there will be a $1-a-bag sale from 2-3 p.m. Saturday.

Can religion be discussed in public school classrooms?

By MARGARET MILLER

Religious expression never has been entirely ruled out of public schools by the U.S. Supreme Court, in the opinion of Judge Dunbar Davis of the 35th District Court in Plymouth.

It's "exhortation," prescribed prayer and the fostering of one religion or denomination over another that are implicitly forbidden, the judge told a gathering of interested teachers in the Livonia district.

Judge Davis, well known as a Baptist churchman, was asked by the group that has begun meetings in recent months to address the question of "legal freedoms and limitations of religious expression in public schools."

"We wanted to hear from him on the subject," said Donald (Hoppy) Hanson, active Presbyterian layman and Naval ROTC instructor, "because, as Christians and teachers, we have found ourselves wondering exactly what we can do to help young people in our classrooms.

"I, for example, get asked how a Christian can have a career in the military, and as an educator I feel I can't just shuffle a question like that aside."

JUDGE DAVIS, in considering freedoms and limitations, pointed out that the matter of prayer in public schools has received relatively little attention from the supreme court, "so when you try to apply its decisions, things are sometimes a little nebulous."

But he did trace the history of the question as it has come before the high court and applied the findings to a number of situations brought up by the teachers.

"No authority—state, school board or teacher—can inaugurate a system of any type of prayer in school," the judge stated.

"But if students want to pray, more power to them; there's no law against it.

"What you can't do is say "We'll have the following prayer,' or insist on a certain type of prayer."

THE JUDGE SAID it's legal "to discuss religion in the classrooms, as long as it's along academic lines rather than the lines of exhortation."

"You can teach the Bible as a study," he went on, "and you can include books on religion in a school library, but you cannot pressure students so they feel they have to conform, or emphasize one religion over another."

He said he though a quiet time in the classroom would be "appropriate."

"I suppose," he commented, "somebody might argue that that would be a favoring of the Quaker religion, since that sect prefers silence to preaching, but I do not believe that could stand up in court."

Asked whether a teacher could use school property for after-school meetings of students interested in religious discussion, the judge pointed to the fact that there still are areas of uncertainty and a lack of clear-cut precedents in the matter of prayer in school.

"For what it's worth, I would say yes to that one," he stated.

THE HISTORY of the Supreme Court consideration of prayer in school was cited by the judge.

It began, he said, with the First Amendment to the Constitution, which states that "Congress shall make no law to interfere with freedom of religion."

"That's the federal government," the judge went on. "It did not state how that affects the state of Michigan, or the city of Livonia, or a teacher in Livonia."

Later, he added, came the 14th amendment, and the supereme court ruled it provided that the First Amendment applies to states and municipalities.

"In 1961," said Judge Davis, "came the first of the school prayer cases, testing a law under which the Board of Regents of the State of New York had passed a law that teachers should assemble their classes and recite a certain prayer at the beginning of each school day.

"The supreme court said you could not do that because 'it is no part of the business of government to compel use of an official prayer for all to recite.'"

Then, Judge Davis said, the states of New Jersey and Maryland passed laws requiring reading the Bible in school. "The court said, no, you can't do that either," he continued, "because in our society the place of religion is . . . in the citadel of heart and mind."

THE JUDGE was asked about teaching of ethics in the public classroom.

"There's a certain overlapping between generally accepted morals and religion," he relplied.

"The Supreme Court says, 'Sure, teach morals, but don't get into the religion thing.'"

Trip scheduled to Europe and Israel

The United Jewish Appeal will sponsor a six-week-long summer mission to Europe and Israel for university students.

The mission, which leaves this country June 29, will include historic tours and meetings with Jewish Agency, Joint Distribution Committee and Israeli government personnel. A series of seminars will be held at the Hebrew University to enable students to view their experiences in historical perspective.

Also included in the summer plan is a survey of Jewish roots in Europe, an attempt to learn the meaning of the Holocaust, and an analysis of the remaining European Jewish communities.

Participating students will be selected by personal interview on the basis of leadership involvement in their local community and college campus. All candidates must have completed their first year of college. Cost for the six-week tour from New York is $1,890.

Students interested in the mission may obtain more information by calling Michael Berke, Jewish Welfare Federation, the major Jewish communal agency which is coordinating and planning humanitarian services for Jews in the Detroit area, at 965-3939.

New deacon

James Hensel, 34156 Algonquin, Westland, is one of 10 laymen recently ordained a permanent deacon in the Catholic Detroit Archdiocese. The ceremony in Blessed Sacrament Cathedral authorized the new deacons to perform certain church duties, including preaching, administering baptism, dispensing the Eucharist and assisting at marriages and funerals. Hensel, married and the father of three, will be assigned to St. Theodore Catholic Church of Westland.

Frances Bauer takes over as Huron Valley GS head

Frances Bauer of Plymouth, active in Girl Scout work for 18 years, is the new president of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

Elected to the top office at a recent session of the council, she will head activities of scouts in the area including Plymouth, Canton and part of Westland for the next three years.

One of her first official duties will be presiding over a special meeting of the council, 101 adults and 20 Girl Scouts, that has been called for 9:30 a.m., May 12 in the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, 45210 N. Territorial.

In the meeting, the council will act on several proposed changes in by-laws and personnel policies of the organization. The session was requested by 11 delegates from the Eastern Washtenaw Area Association.

MRS. BAUER SERVED as third vice-president of the Huron Valley Council for the past seven years, and before that she was chairwoman of the Plymouth-Northville Area Association of Girl Scout Adults. She also has been a Girl Scout leader for seven years.

In other community activities, she has been president of the Woman's Club of Plymouth and chairwoman of the Plymouth Family Service Commission.

In taking office, she commented: "Caring about others and the world, developing satisfying skills and learning to accept responsibility for one's actions are basic to the Girl Scout program. I want our council to make it possible for every Girl Scout to experience these things."

ESTHER HULSING of Plymouth , a member of the board of directors for Girl Scouts of the USA and chairman of a seven-state region, installed the new officers.

Besides Mrs. Bauer, they include Mrs. Jean Bosch and Mrs. Doris Rorabacher of Plymouth as three-year board members and Mrs. Marge Taylor of Plymouth , a two-year board member.

Doreen Rorabacher of Plymouth was named a Girl Scout member of the advisory board.

Area scouts and leaders also were honored at the meeting.

Mrs. Bosche was given a certificate of appreciation for her effective orientation programs for new volunteers, and a program award went to Mrs. Ann Nickoloff of Plymouth for her work in developing city-wide events for Cadette Girl Scouts.

Cadette Troop 430 of Westland won the teamwork award for creating a three-dimensional display for the national convention that was held in Washington last October.

FRANCES BAUER

Lee-Campbell

Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Lee of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter Mary Margaret to Timothy Michael Campbell, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Campbell of Waterford and son of Mrs. Michael Figa of West Bloomfield.

The bride-elect graduate from Plymouth Salem High School in 1973 and teaches roller skating at the Pontiac Rolladium. Her fiance, a 1973 graduate of Pontiac Northern High School, is employed as an electrician by Auburn Electric in Auburn Heights.

A September wedding is planned.

MRS. PHILIP LANCE CRUCE

Philip Cruce wed in Texas

Philip Lance Cruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. H.A. Cruce of Elmhurst Street, Plymouth, claimed Susan Jo Goodspeed as his bride in a ceremony in the Rylie Church of Christ in Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.F. Goodspeed Jr. of Dallas.

Her father performed the wedding ceremony.

Kathy Brown of LeGrand, Calif., was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Lisa Goodspeed, Vivian Black and Jerilyn Knipp.

Assisting the bridegroom, who makes his home in Abilene, Texas, were Allen Masters of Abilene as best man, Terry and Damon Cruce and R.B. Fouts.

The reception for 250 guests was held in the church hall. The couple plan a honeymoon trip to the tulip festival in Holland, Mich., and will make their home in Abilene.

Museum finally hangs exhibit

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Members of the Michigan Water Color Society (MWCS) are proud that, for the first time in many, many years, their annual exhibition is being presented in the prestigious Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA).

Barbara Keidan of Birmingham, who preceded Igor Beginin of Plymouth as MWCS show chairman, said, at the recent opening, "I think it's very exciting. I'm thrilled to be here. I think the water color society deserves it, but for years the museum has turned up its nose and said, 'It's on paper. Go to the print department.'"

Ms. Keidan said she believes the MWCS show has not been hung in the art institute for some 20 years. In the intervening years, the show has moved about to various galleries including the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association.

Dr. John H. Neff, who came to the DIA about a year and a half ago as curator of modern art, is responsible for bringing the MWCS show to the museum's marbled halls, according to Ms. Keiden.

NEFF WAS one of two jurors for the show, which includes more than 60 works culled from nearly 400 entries.

"It was the 30th annual exhibition and that's special," Neff said, when asked about the museum's reasons for hosting the show. "We're trying to show a range of work."

Along with Neff, the show was juried by Dr. Charles M. Millard, chief curator of the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington, D.C.

Neff said, "When we juried I was struck by the range to which people put water color." He cited the mutual influence of print making and oil painting on water colors as influences of other media. "There has been a lot of cross fertilization, a lot of work you wouldn't recognize as water color," he continued.

Because the gallery is small for the number of works shown, Neff explained, "It was difficult to hang. It's the hardest installation I've had, We had to double hang to get everything in. You have to think of what hangs above and below and on both sides."

Neff also thinks that because the exhibit was to be hung in the art institute, a greater diversity of good works was submitted.

"I HOPED we might bring a few water colorists out of the woodwork," he said. "I thought it would be a good opportunity for people to submit who did not ordinarily."

He noted there is a misconception among some artists that the medium of water color is more for Sunday painters, with subject matter limited to flowers and barns (Neff said these certainly are valid subjects for good water colors).

Igor Beginin, WSCS show chairman for the last two years, is enthusiastic about the exhibition. "I think it gives a picture of water color in all its facets plus a wide range," he said.

He said water color privides "a lot more experimentation than any other medium. Water color is quick results. The mind responds to this. It's kind of a continuity without a break."

He added, "That is what I would say as a teacher." Beginin, assistant professor of art at Eastern Michigan University, has a one-man exhibit of water colors running through May 3 in the Creative Arts Gallery at Central Michigan University.

BEGININ SAID that his wife was unable to attend the MWCS opening because she was running a temperature of 102 degrees. "I did not know this afternoon if I could come," he said.

To mark MWCS's 30th anniversary, a founder's dinner is slated for May 16 in Dearborn's Hyatt Regency. "Because it's the 30th anniversary, we plan to celebrate it," Beginin said.

At the opening, Beginin presented awards to winners of show prizes and honorable mentions.

Electra Stamelos of Livonia was given a MWCS award for "Flower Series No. 39."

Bugs Bunny heads show

For the first time since his birth in 1938, Bugs Bunny, the star of thousands of cartoons seen around the world, comes to life in his own stage production, "The Bugs Bunny Follies" opening May 14 at Detroit's Olympia Stadium.

Bugs headlines a live costumed cast of the most famous Warner Brothers cartoon characters. He co-stars with Porky Pig, Daffy Duck, Elmer Fudd, Yosemite Sam, Road Runner, Wile E. Coyote, Speedy Gonsales, Merlin the Magic Mouse and Tweety and Sylvester, along with Tweety's owner and protector, Granny. One of the highlights of the show is a special guest appearance by crime fighters Batman and Robin.

The show offers a mixture of singing, dancing, comedy and audience participation. Through the use of rear screen projection, large cartoon-type color visuals set the changing scenes.

Mel Blanc, the man who created the voices of the Warner Bros. characters and performed them in over 3,000 cartoons, has again utilized his talent to record the sound track for Bugs Bunny Follies.

Tickets for the Detroit appearance are priced for reserved seating and general admission. Seats for children (14 and under) are one price at all performances. Showtimes: 4 and 7:30 p.m. May 14, 1:30 and 5 p.m. May 15 and 16. Ticket outlets include Olympia, Grinnell's and Olympia Travel (Birmingham).

Anna Russell to do opera parody show

Anna Russell, the "madcap musical institution" of three continents for her spoofs of serious opera, will make a special appearance at Music Hall Center on May 21, to kick off "Met Week" in Detroit.

"This will be Miss Russell's first appearance in Detroit in 16 years," said Music Hall's artistic director Dr. David DiChiera, "and her timing has never been better." The following week, the Metropolitan Opera comes to town.

Miss Russell, called "the crown princess of musical parody" by Variety, an entertainment periodical, is a multi-faceted comedienne who tells stories at the piano, plays bagpipes, French horn, sings, writes and composes and arranges her own music for performances on stage and recordings.

ORIGINALLY A serious classical singer, Miss Russell decided many years ago to wage a one-woman war against all "proper" musical worlds—opera, lieder, folk song, bel canto, in order to put them into "an improper perspective."

Miss Russell, who has just completed a lengthy engagement in the starring role of the Australian cast of "A Little Night Music," will be presented at Music Hall for one performance only, May 21 at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are available at Music Hall, Hudson's, Grinnell's or by telephone charge: 963-7680.

Show extends closing date

"Personals," the Dinner Theatre of Detroit musical, has extended its run through Sunday.

John Schmittroth, show producer, said, "Many individuals and groups would like us to continue through July because of the Bicentennial nature of the revue."

The "Personals" run is extended one week, from its previously announced closing date of May 2.

"Personals" plays Thursday through Sunday evenings at the Dinner Theatre on the Mercy College of Detroit campus.

'Madcap' Anna Russell spoofs opera.

Brunch with Bach on Mother's Day

On Sunday, May 9, the Detroit Institute of Arts offers a variety of events—special exhibitions, an illustrated talk and two Brunch with Bach performances—designed to make a Mother's Day visit an occasion for the entire family.

"Brunch with Bach," the Kresge Court Cafe chamber series, will feature cellist Jerome Jelinek and pianist Joseph Gurt performing music of American composers. Advance reservations are available at the Art Institute ticket office. Three menu options will be introduced May 9 for the continuing Sunday series: Full brunch and concert, continental brunch and concert, and coffee and concert. Seatings are 10 a.m. and 11:15 a.m.

All 101 galleries will be open. The museum's permanent collection will be open as well as special exhibitions:

•"Heritage and Horizon," the museum's major bicentennial show, fills two levels of the south wing with a survey of 70 master paintings by American artists from 1776 to the present, plus two complementary displays:

An intimate glimpse of the artists' lives in letters, diaries, sketches and photographs from the Archives of American Art and an array of American fashions for men, women and children from 1776 to the 1900s in a special loan from the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. (Admission charge. Through June 13.)

•The Michigan Water Color Society 30th Annual Show features 62 juried works by state artists. The variety of subjects and techniques shows how versatile a medium watercolor is. (Free. Through May 23.)

•"Hogarth to Hockney" reviews three centuries of English graphic art in 75 prints, waterclors and drawings from the permament collection. It begins with Hogarth's satirical series, "The Rake's Progress," and ends with David Hockney's contemporary treatment of the same subject.

Artists include Rowlandson, Samuel Palmer, Graham Sutherland, Henry Moore and Michael Rothenstein and a special section of photographs by British artists beginning with camera pioneer Julia Margaret Cameron. (Free. Through August.)

The effect of history on clothing and vice versa will be discussed by Stella Blum in an illustrated talk at 2 p.m. May 9. Mrs. Blum is curator of the Metropolitan Museum's Costume Institute and installed the "American Fashion: Colonial to Modern" segment of the "Heritage and Horizon" exhibition. In the Lecture Hall—admission at door.

Award drama to open

The world premiere production of the Wayne State University Bicentennial Award-winning play, "The Body Parts of Margaret Fuller" by Esther Broner, has been scheduled for June 10, 11, 12 at 8:30 p.m. at the Hilberry Theatre, Cass and Hancock.

The production is part of the dual prize for the winning playwright in the competition, sponsored by the WSU Bicentennial Commission and Theatre as part of Detroit's Bicentennial observances. The other part of the prize is a $3,000 cash award, which will be officially presented to Mrs. Broner by WSU President George E. Gullen, Jr., at the opening performance.

Esther Broner, writer-in-residence and associate professor of English at Wayne State University, is the author of the novel "Her Mothers," published in 1975 by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Her previous publications include two books, "Summer is a Foreign Land" and "Journal/Nocturnal." She has contributed stories and articles to such publications as "Commentary," "Midstream," "O. Henry Prize Winning Stories" and "North American Review." Her work has appeared in the anthologies "New Campus Writing" and "Moving to Antarctica."

In her prize-winning play, Esther Broner, like the leading character in "Her Mothers," has written a work based on the life of a 19th century woman but dealing with our own times. One of the Bicentennial contest judges, Robert Brustein, American critic and dean of the Yale School of Drama, described Mrs. Broner as "that rare thing, a genuine dramatic poet."

The WSU contest was for plays dealing with issues in American history which affect individuals and the nation at the beginning of the third century.

The other award-winners were Douglas Paul Isiminger of Dearborn, Julie Jensen of Wayne State University, Dennis Kennedy of Grand Valley State Colleges in Allendale, Bruce E. Millan of the Detroit Repertory Theatre and Robert M. Wall of Dearborn, who each won honorable mention awards of $100.

Reserved seat tickets will be available at the WSU Theatre box office in the Hilberry lobby, Cass and Hancock. Mail orders may be sent now to: Wayne State University Theatre Box Office, Detroit 48202.

Shawn starring in farce

Stage, film and television star Dick Shawn will play the lead role in Music Hall's production of "El Capitan," for two weeks only, through May 16 at the center.

According to Music Hall artistic director, Dr. David DiChiera, the signing of Shawn ends a 10-month search for a versatile actor, comedian and singer to perform the demanding dual role created by John Philip Sousa for his 1896 Comic Opera.

"With Mr. Shawn on board, I think we're ready to give Detroit a show unlike any they're likely to see for a while," DiChiera said.

"El Capitan" is a musical farce on the order of Gilbert & Sullivan. A bungling, cowardly viceroy of a South American "banana republic," Don Medigua, senses unrest among his people, disguises himself as the mythical national hero, "El Capitan, to infiltrate the enemy camp to dissuade them or "hedge his bets" in case they win.

Instead, "El Capitan's" mere presence inspires their failing movement and Don Medigua, alias "El Capitan," finds himself in the ridiculous predicament of leading an uprising against his own regime.

"El Capitan" will be presented nightly for two weeks (except Monday and Thursday, May 10 and 13), at Music Hall, with matinees Wednesday and Friday, the first week; Saturday and Sunday, the last week.

Evening performances are at 8:30, except Sundays (6:30 p.m.), and matinees, are at 2 p.m. Tickets are available at Hudson's, Grinnell's, Box Office or Instant Charge by phone, 963-7680. For group discounts, call 963-7622.

'Miss Reardon' in rehearsal

Ellen Dietrich (left), Jan Salisbury and Ceci Orman team up to play the Reardon sisters, Ceil, Catherine and Anna, in Farmington Players' upcoming production of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little." The play runs this weekend and next, in the Players' Barn on Twelve Mile Road, between Orchard Lake and Farmington Roads. Tickets are on sale now in the players' box office, 851-5508.

Bentley is victim

Rock bats erupt in 9-0 victory

By BILL COLLINS

It what promised to be a showdown between the undefeated contenders for the Suburban Eight championship, but it turned out to be a lopsided runaway; as Plymouth Salem rolled up eight runs in the first four innings to dump Livonia Bentley, 9-2.

The win put Salem at 6-0 in the Sub-8 giving the Rocks undisputed possession of first place, while Bentley dropped to 5-1 by virtue of the loss at its home field Tuesday afternoon.

"This was a big game for us and we just weren't uptight on the field. The majority of the players on this ballclub have played on the varsity level in other sports, and in view of that fact they played a relaxed game," said Salem Coach Brian Gilles.

The Rocks tagged Bulldog pitching for 11 hits in raising their team batting average to an astronomical .336. Every one of Salem's starting 'nine' held at least a .300 hitting mark or above at the conclusion of Tuesday's game.

SALEM ASSEMBLED a steady lead in the early innings which took the pressure off of its starting pitcher, Brian Wolcott.

Wolcott threw the first four innings and was touched for only one single, while striking out five and walking none.

Wolcott now is undefeated for the season with an 8-0 record, with all six of Salem's league wins going to his credit. He carries one of the lowest earned run averages in the area with an 0.67 mark.

"That was another bonus for us in the game when we put together that big lead. That put the pressure on their hitters. They had to come after us and hit the ball to score runs in a hurry, and that made Brian's job a little easier." Gilles said. "I only had to pitch him four innings."

Relieving Wolcott in the fifth inning, for the second game in a row was lefthander John DenHouter.

DenHouter preserved the shutout in the final three frames by giving up a pair of hits and striking out six.

IT WAS DENHOUTER'S bat that started the Rocks rolling in the first inning, when he clobbered a 2-out, 1-1 count Don Nalepka fastball. He sent the pitch over the rightfield fence some 320-feet away for a home run putting Salem up 1-0.

Salem mixed two singles, two walks, an error and a sacrifice fly for three runs in the second inning.

A walk to Mitch Symons, a single by Bob Smith, an RBI single by Bruce Gerish, and a Pat McKendrie ground ball, that was booted by the shortstop, made the score 3-0. Wolcott gave himself an added cushion by scoring Gerish on a sacrifice fly.

Although a few of Salem's best hitters did not have a successful afternoon at the plate, the rocks had plenty of sticks to produce in their place.

Designated hitter Bruce Gerish went 3 for 4 on the day with two runs batted in, while leftfielder Bob Smith also went 3 for 4 contributing a pair of RBIs.

Salem upped the margin to 6-0 in the third inning on an RBI single by Smith, who scored on a sacrifice fly by McKendrie. Smith knocked in two more in the fourth with a single to put the count at 8-0.

At the end of four innings Bentley made a pitching change as they sent Kevin Schultz to the hill to replace Nalepka.

Nalepka was 4-0 at that point in the season, and had tossed three shutouts, but he was unable to get his curveball over the plate which hurt his effectiveness on the mound.

SALEM ADDED the final run of the game in the seventh inning on singles by Gerish, Dave Pierce, and DenHouter to give the Rocks their ninth victory in 11 games thus far this year.

"I thought we would hit the ball, but I had no idea we would hit with the kind of power and consistency we have done," Gilles commented.

Salem, now ranked third in the state in the coaches poll, will be at Ypsilanti High School today (Thursday) beginning at 4 p.m., with its next league contest slated for tomorrow afternoon (Friday) at the Centennial Park at 4 p.m.

'Water Waves' show starts tonight

By BILL COLLINS

"Give Our Regards to Broadway" is this year's theme for the 22nd Annual Plymouth Water Waves Show, which premieres tonight at 8 p.m., and will also be presented Friday and Saturday, at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Salem Natatorium.

For the 19-member synchronized swimming ensemble, the show is the culmination of seven months of fatiguing work.

Senior club President Kathy Malin, a four-year veteran of Water Waves, put the situation in a nutshell. "After working on our routines for over a half-year, the show seems to make it all worthwhile," she said.

Senior vice president, and only other four-year swimmer, is Kathy Lewelling who explains how the aqua presentations are split among the club.

"The routines are a blend of synchronized swimming and personal improvisation. They are all created and improvised by members of the club. After the routines have been worked out, they are divided among the club to perform, except for the duets and solo acts, which have to be earned by trying out."

The Water Waves are sponsored by Mrs. Barb white and Mrs. Mary Uhl, who serve in an advisory capacity on the show in addition in addition to leading the girls in their fund raising efforts.

"Our group is totally self-supported, we receive no funds from anyone. This year we sold candy to raise cash for the show," said Mrs. White.

THE THREE-NIGHT performance is the largest revenue supplier for the group's year round activities which include several social outings during the course of the season.

The Water Waves present a $100 scholarship to a senior member each year, in addition to the 'Drip' Award, for best new member, Best Number in a Show Award, and the Most Valuable Water Waver (MVWW) Award.

"Mrs. Uhl and I volunteered our services to the club, and it's really been a worthwhile commitment," said Mrs. White.

The club practiced twice a week from September to March, and seven times a week from March until the show.

The Masters of Ceremonies are seniors Walter Scherer and Dan Goepp, who present the performance as tour guides through the years of Broadway musicals between each act.

The prestigious role of soloist for this years show is Kathy Malin who will perform "South Pacific." "It's from the original show with Glenn Ford and Mitzi Gaynor," Mrs. White added. "Who can forget it?"

Duets will be staged by Becky McKeon and Jane Anderson in "No No Nannette," and the duo of Sue Heedum and Kathy McElmeel will present their impression of "The Odd Couple."

Trios, with three members to each act, will be put on by Jane Anderson, Barb Rutter, and Lewelling in "Annie Get Your Gun," while Sinda Nichols, Barb Rutter, and Kay Spring enact "Oliver."

There are a pair of quartet acts featuring Dori Pressede, Peggy McElmeel, Sue Sparling, and Kay Spring in "Pajama Game," plus "Funny Girl" with Beth Martinek, McElmeel, Michelle Kilgour, and Nancy Bissell.

"BYE BYE BIRDIE" displays nine rookie members performing that routine with Dan "Conrad Birdie" Goepp on vocals.

The newcomers are Nancy Bissell, Mary Campbell, Michelle Kilgour, Patti Little, Beth Martinek, Peggy McElmeel, Dori Pressede, Sue Sparling, and Kay Spring.

The Centennial Educational Park Water Waves Club will present their 22d annual synchronized swimming act beginning tonight at 8 p.m. The theme for the show is "Give Our Regards to Broadway." There will also be performances on Friday and Saturday night at 8 p.m. Seated is club President Kathy Malin, with Myra Dostie and Becky McKeon on the left, and Kathy McElmeel and Sue Heedum to the right. There will be a special bicentennial finale with every member performing, without failing to mention the comedy diving act led by Rick Gladstone.

Besides Water Wave members helping their own cause, there are 17 other people donating time to assist with the show's sound, lighting, and props.

After the months of practice, the group had several members run into difficulty which almost prohibited them from performing in the show. Two cases of the flu, a case of pneumonia, and a car accident, however, won't keep the cast from presenting the show Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Salem pool.

Tickets are unusually inexpensive, $1 pre-sale, and $1.25 at the door.

Canton sticks silenced

Plymouth Canton's hitting slump finally caught up with them Saturday afternoon as the Chiefs were able to scratch out only two hits while Livonia Franklin erupted for four runs in the fourth inning giving the Patriots a 4-2 victory.

"We just aren't hitting thr ball," summarized Canton Coach Fred Crissey. "Our pitching has been holding us up so far, but we've got to score some runs to win more ball games," he said.

The Patriots came up swinging in the second inning as they totaled four runs on five hits off Canton starter Steve Morman.

All-League third basemen Tim Hollandsworth led off the rally with a triple to right field, he was followed with another triple by Steve Tresik to score the game's first run.

Darrell Gunter hit into a fielder's choice scoring the second run of the frame, plus a pair of singles by Dan Pederson and Bob Longeway made the score 3-0.

Bob Yanick's ground ball broke through the infield and into center to score Pederson sending Franklin to its fifth win of the season against two losses.

CANTON MANAGED one run in both the sixth and seventh innings, but the Chiefs left the bases loaded in the sixth and two runners in scoring position were stranded in the seventh.

Canton left a total of 12 men on base.

Calvin Beer started for Franklin and coasted through the first five innings until he lost control in the sixth.

Beer issued four consecutive walks as Scott Collins, Tom Close, John Young, and Bill Parson ambled around the bases to notch their first run.

At that point, Franklin Coach Ron Hellier lifted Beer and replaced him with reliever Ted Wilkens who retired the next two hitters to end the Canton rally.

Kevin Randazzo and Ken Britton drew walks in the seventh and Scott Collins singled home a run, but Wilkens put down the next two batters and the contest was complete.

The line score in the game had Franklin with four runs, on eight hits, and two errors. Canton had two runs, on two hits, and five errors.

Canton's record now stands at 7-3 overall and 2-0 in the Western-Six Conference. Cold weather postponed Monday's game with Livonia Churchill.

Canton racqueteers can't break string

Falling to 0-3 in the Western Six conference and 0-6 for the season, Plymouth Canton's tennis squad dropped matches to Northville and Livonia by identical scores of 6-1½.

At first singles, undefeated and seemingly invincible Steve Prueter gathered the only points for Canton, twice winning methodically in two sets.

Livonia Churchill, with nine of its first 10 players returning from last year, destroyed Canton.

Steve Pasley "played his best match of the year against Churchill," according to coach Jim Hayes, but still lost to Fred Bayoff, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2.

John Herron, playing well in a match featuring long rallies, fell to his Churchill opponent, 6-1, 6-2, as did Stuart Sobczynski to Phil Islit, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

Rock netmen win 2

Improving as the season ages, Plymouth Salem's tennis squad shut out Novi and Livonia Bentley by 7-0 scores on Monday and Tuesday.

Salem now possesses a 3-5 slate.

After annihilating Novi in the minimal 14 sets, Salem rebounded with equal force to upend Bentley.

Ken Bloom refined his season record to 6-2 against Bentley, outlasting Mitch Fimigian, 6-1, 7-5. Ever-improving Curt Schultz, second to Bloom in singles at Salem, won all but four games in his pair of matches and trounced Hugh Leanell of Bentley, 6-1, 6-3.

Bill Cook and Bob Braun were both forced to three sets against Bentley at third and fourth singles, Cook came back to down Dave Peterson 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 and Braun won 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

At first doubles, Chris Saxton and Jeff Bearup stunned their Bentley opponents in two sets, 6-3, 6-4.

Greg Andrews and Ed Thomas won after falling one set behind in second doubles at Bentley, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5. The third doubles combination of Craig Stevens and Curt Lewis were also three set winners, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Tigers tripped by CH

In a showdown Tri-River League track meet last week between defending conference champion Inkster Cherry Hill and Garden City West, the visiting Spartans placed first in 12 of the 16 events to upend West, 80-52.

The competition was highlighted by several races which were decided by less than a half second. These included the 100- and the 220-yard dashes, the low and the high hurdles, the 440-yard dash and the 880-yard relay.

Unfortunately for the Tigers, of that grouping they were able to finish first only in the 880-yard relay.

The pole vault, however, was one event completely dominated by West. Brian Batherson, Adrian Giaccaglia and Keith Shelly placed one-two-three, with Batherson soaring 13 feet for the victory.

Tigers' coach Bill Pinnell indicated that he was impressed that two of his long jumpers, Don Frank and Geza Kogler, leaped more than 20 feet in that event.

The Coughenour brothers accounted for 21 points in individual events for the Spartans and Bill Johnson finished first in both the 440-yard dash and the 880-yard run.

"It was a good meet," summarized Pinnell. "The score isn't indicative of the contest. Everything was so close."

Borgess takes triangular meet

Borgess rolled up 64 points, Churchill, 51, and Ladywood, 39.

The Spartans won all three relays and finished first in the middle distance races—the 440- and the 880-yard runs. The Chargers put their best foot forward in the field events, while Ladywood sparkled in the sprints.

Ladywood's Janice Collins turned in times of 12 and 27 seconds in running to victory in the 100- and 220-yard dashes, respectively.

Churchill's Kyle Gray bested the field in the shot put and the discus and Borgess' Ann Cwik took the long jump and the 440-yard run.

RESULTS

Long Jump—1) Cwik (B) 2) English (B) 3) Mondoux (C) 4) Pizarek (C) 16 feet 10¼ inches.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

"It was the greatest thrill of my life and I don't think I ever will come down from Cloud Nine."

That was the reaction of Elvira Toepfer, the former Detroit bowling queen, who was recently inducted into the Women's International Bowling Congress Hall of Fame in Denver, Colo.

Rated one of Detroit's best women bowlers of all time, Elvira still spoke excitedly as she told of her feeling standing before the gathering of 3,200 delegates to the WIBC convention to receive the high honor.

She is the fourth Detroit area bowler to be so honored by the WIBC.

Preceding her were the late Louise Sockdale, Stella Hartrick and Connie Powers, each of whom bowled on championship teams in the Detroit All-Star Leagues.

While speaking of her latest honor, Elvira recalled that she got her first instructions from Cy Goralcyk at the old Centennial Lanes at Eight Mile Road and Gratiot. Cy recommended her to the sponsors of the Gears by Enterprise team, captained by Mrs. Agnes Ekstrom, now the president of the Detroit Women's Association.

She bowled with Agnes until the DWBA president retired and she now is a member of the Jac-Ro team that recently won the title in the Bowlerettes League.

Elvira recalled that she began her league career in September 1941 and since that day hasn't missed competing in the national tournament.

She just closed one of her best years when she came from far down the average list to finish in second place with a 185.

THERE WAS A COMPLETE sweep of the leaders in the men's city tournament over the past weekend.

The attack on the pacemakers was lead by Dale Seavoy and his K & S team that rolled an actual 3,301 to take over first place in the team event. Mike Samardja showed the way with a 788 on games of 279, 252 and 257.

In the doubles, Lou Agries teamed with Jerry Staezel to take over top place with 1,237. Lou contributed a 630 and Jerry added a 607.

Larry Schroeder used a 277 middle game to post a 667 and take the actual singles lead with a 667. This was one pin better than Jim Cooper, who took the lead in the handicap division with a 666.

THE STRONG FRIENDLY RIVALRY between Wonderland Lanes and Westland Bowl was strengthened a bit when the Wonderland team captured the title in the Westland Bowl senior house league.

The members of the championship team that averaged in the high 190s (the official figures have not been released) included Harry Fill, Maurie Quinlan, Fred McLain, Dick Beattie, Ron Sharples and Bob O'Brien.

Dan Emmett topped the averages for the year with a 204.

THE SENIOR CITIZENS in the Plymouth area seem to improve with the coming of warm weather.

This was proven during the week when Frank Schulte rolled a 246 and John Eising added a 228 game at Plymouth Bowl. And at Plaza Lanes, Gil Blondin was the big man with a 589 on games of 224, 199 and 166.

THE BAKERS and the Staggs had reason to celebrate at Westland Bowl. Jean and Bob Baker teamed with Linda and Charlie Staggs and Kathy Chorbagian to win the title in the Thursday Mixed League Others who rolled well were Lois Pichalski who posted a 560 for high series and Mary Kelly who took high game with a 213.

TOM MCKAY, secretary of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association and a director in the ABC, pointed out during the week that the new rule regading the hardness of the ball's shell will not go into effect until Aug. 1. Up to then, bowlers needn't be afraid that their favorite ball will be rejected in ABC competition.

Trojans fall to Oak Park

After nine innings of nip and tuck baseball, Oak Park successfully dumped Clarenceville in a close game Monday, squeezing out six runs to the Trojans' four.

Oak Park, first at bat in the second inning, blasted in two runs to grab the lead early in the game.

The Trojans' Tim Jeffrey led off in the second inning by slamming a homerun over the leftfield fence.

Oak Park came back in the third and fifth innings with a run in each to strengthen their lead by three runs leaving the score at 4-1.

The Trojans recovered in the sixth and seventh innings, forcing the game into overtime.

Tim Jeffrey started the attack in the sixth inning with a single, Nail Sheena walked and Jordan Hecker walked. With the bases loaded, Larry Laird blasted a single driving in two runs.

With two outs in the seventh inning, the Trojans whipped into form, taking full advantage of Oak Parks' pitching problems.

Jeffrey started the rally with a walk, Jim Hill singled, Sheena walked, and Jordan Hecker walked, scoring Jeffrey to tie the game.

Oak Park regrouped in the ninth inning with a walk, double, walk, a steal at third, and the winning run coming home on an error.

Trojans' pitcher Jim Hill alowed 10 hits, seven walks, and struck out 11.

Chief girls pound Churchill

Canton girls' softball racked up their second Western Six League victory Tuesday with a powerful display of offence, dumping Livonia Churchill 14-11.

Churchill threatened early blasting five hits to score nine runs in the first inning. The Chiefs defense fell apart allowing four errors.

In the bottom of the first inning the Chiefs struck early for six runs.

Kathy Peck, Jan Haarer, and Cindy Kreig all walked and Kim Zoladz tripled to score the trio. Laura Butler singled, knocking in Zoladz. Judy Frieman singled scoring Butler. Lucy Howe singled to score Kim Clarke who had been declared safe earlier on an error at first.

In the second inning, Cindy Kreig singled, stole second and came home when Zoladz blasted a homer.

The Chiefs grabbed the lead in the fourth inning scoring five more runs.

Churchill's errors in the fourth inning allowed two Chief players to get on base. Laura Butler hit a single scoring Zoladz. Frieman blasted a double driving in two more runs. Howe singled, stole second, and was credited with Frieman's run. Jan Haarer finished the assault with a double, scoring Howe.

The final run of the game was a homer by Zoladz in the fifth, her second of the day.

Lucy Howe was the winning pitcher, recording her second victory of the season. Going the route, Howe allowed 11 hits and walked one.

Chiefs' coach Joan Ryan seemed satisfied with the team after the game.

"I think it will be a better season," Ryan commented. "We lost our first three games but now we're starting to improve at the bat."

"The girls whole attitude is changing," Ryan continued. "They have more drive now."

Ryan expressed the need to strengthen the defense. The team practices every night after school and Ryan hopes to cut down on errors.

Spells for riches come with warning

Most of the letters I receive are from people requesting love spells. But those who want an easy way to obtain wealth run a close second. Some even ask for a way to turn things to gold. They remember the story of King Midas, but they refuse to recall the misery that Midas suffered because of this power.

I'm listing several old money spells here for those who wish to try them. But I caution each of you to read W. W. Jacob's story of "The Monkey's Paw" and consider it well before you proceed.

I.

Cut a circle of virgin parchment the exact size of a silver dollar. Prick the middle finger of your left hand with a new steel needle, and with a quill dipped in your blood from that finger, print the following letters on the parchment:

ESAUE
S S
A $ A
ESAUE

Place a silver ring in the center of this paper, and fold the edges over it. Bury this in the ground before sunrise on a Thursday.

II.

For luck in gambling, dress a green candle with pine oil. On a piece of virgin parchment, write the name or number of what you are betting on. Light the candle and burn the paper in the flame. Carry the candle stub with you when you go to bet.

III.

First, mix together some crushed mint leaves, powdered pine incense and graveyard dust (patchouli leaves). Sprinkle this mixture on the floor or ground where you are sure it will be undisturbed for at least three days, then, in the dust, take your fingers and draw a dollar sign like the one pictured below.

Take seven long, tapered, thin, green candles and place them on the marked places of the sign. Work this spell for at least three consecutive nights, making sure you say the incantation at least nine times each time you work the spell. Then, light the candles and recite the following incantation as you dance around the sign:

Man must work,
And man must toil;
Bend his back,
And till the soil.

None of this for me shall be;
Money will just come to me.

IV.

Here is a list of different talismans that may be carried for money:

- A salep root, soaked in rose oil and carried in one's purse.
- A green lodestone carried in the pocket.
- Seven gold rings hung on a gold chain around your neck.
- Three laurel leaves should be carried with you when you gamble.

Schools get $8.8 million

A number of Wayne County School districts, among them Garden City Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Wayne-Westland, will soon be receiving a portion of the 1976 special education funds disbursed by the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The funds being distributed, which total $8.8 million, represent 55 per cent of a county tax and additional income expected to produce $15.6 million for special education programs this school year.

The funds are comprised of a one-mill tax approved by the voters in 1974, state aid, delinquent taxes from last year, interest, and the remainder of last year's special education funds.

The money will be distributed as follows: Garden City Public School District, $245,216; Livonia Public School District, $734,758; Plymouth Community School District, $107,958; Redford Union Public School District, $163,739; South Redford Public School District, $106,581; and Wayne-Westland Community School District, $297,159.

Wife pleads, 'Let my husband go'

By SHIRLEE IDEN

Marriages may be made in heaven, but Jeanette Mager says her marriage to her husband Mikhail has been made a cruel mockery by Soviet authorities

Mrs. Mager was in the Detroit area recently to tell the story of her husband from whom she has been separated for most of their three-year marriage.

The Magers were married in November 1972 in Vinnitsa, Russia in a Jewish marriage ceremony with a ring and two witnesses.

"We didn't have a rabbi because although Vinnitsa has a population of 20,000 Jews, there is no rabbi," Mrs. Mager said.

SHORTLY AFTER the marriage, Mrs. Mager left Russia for Israel with her family. She believed that her husband would follow soon after, but nearly 3½ later, Mager remains in Vinnitsa, restricted from leaving by the immigration authorities.

"Jews in Vinnitsa are afraid," she said, "because there were two trials in their town. One of them resulted in a seven-year prison term and the other, eight years."

"Local authorities need these kinds of things as an example."

Mrs. Mager said that both her and Mikhail's families first applied for visas to leave the USSR in July 1972.

"My family got permission and his was refused," she said. "The Russians said they don't want to supply Israel with young soldiers."

"After two months his parents and younger brother got permission but he was refused because of his army service. They said he had to wait a maximum of six months but it was a lie because we've been waiting over three years in Israel and he's still there."

JEANETTE MAGER

She explained that the Soviets allow a maximum of five years after service in the armed forces when a man can be detained on the grounds that he may have been exposed to military secrets. But this time has elapsed for Mikhail.

MAGER, an electrical engineer, lost his job when he applied for the exit visa, and now supports himself by operating an elevator three days a week.

Mrs. Mager is on an odessey that will take her from Holland to Omaha, Denver, Des Moines, Atlanta, San Francisco, Washington and Boston, as well as Detroit.

Everywhere she goes she speaks about her husband and his plight.

"I have to get this publicity for him," she said. "It is important for his safety that his name be known in the west."

She said that Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield was one of the first groups to take an interest in her husband's case.

Mrs. Ida Joyrich said the sisterhood has sent money orders and packages to Mager and that she phones him regularly although, like his wife, she has been unable to get through to him on the phone for more than two months.

She said it no longer pays to send money orders since the Soviets' new law whereby imposses a 65 per cent tax and that a package they sent in January has not yet been received by Mager.

Mrs. Mager expects to meet with U.S. Reps. William Broomfield and William Brodhead and U.S. Sen. Philip Hart when she visits Washington. Broomfield has already made a speech on the floor of the house on behalf of her husband.

The intense young wife said she is quite concerned about Mikhail.

"For two months I haven't been able to get through to him on the phone," she said. "He may be arrested but we've had no information in all these weeks. He is without a constant job, a flat, relatives or friends."

"I have a husband and I don't have a husband. For his parents, it's the same."

PUBLICITY and pressure from the west have helped his friends and hers before, she said.

"This is not a question of Jews, but a questions of human rights. Reunification of families was a most important part of the Helsinki Agreement."

Mrs. Joyrich agreed that human rights are everybody's concern.

"We feel we have every right to have our government intervene in these cases," she said. "We know the mail is not being delivered and telephone calls don't go through and those involve international agreements."

MRS. MAGER learned English in school in Odessa, Russia, but never used it before to speak. Now she has spoken in many parts of this country and will go to London, England too.

Last Saturday, she was introduced to the congregation at Shaarey Zedek and adressed those gathered for the sabbath service. On Sunday, she marched in Oak Park with the Detroit Committee for Soviet Jewry in a walkathon to raise funds for their cause.

Mrs. Mager has been away from her home in Natanya, Israel for two months and she misses it, but she says she'll never completely enjoy her new life there until she is reunited with her husband.

REGIONAL ROUNDUP

CHANGE OF HEART

Westland City Council rescinded an earlier promise of placing the issue of partisan city elections on the Aug. 3 ballot after several weeks of pressure from the Westland Jaycees. In 1969, the Jaycees mounted a petition drive to have the city charter amended to provide non-partisan elections. Council now says the Wayne-Westland Democratic Club, which asked for the ballot issue, must provide close to 2,000 petition signatures to have the item on the ballot.

MONEY CRISIS

The continuing financial crisis in the Livonia School District reached another step when the school board agreed to give voters another chance to act on a 3½ mill tax increase at the June 14 board election. But the board gambled that the crisis won't last more than two years since it publicly pledged not to ask for another millage hike before the 1977-78 school year.

HOUSING COMPROMISE

Developers of the Armenian Home for the Aged complex on Middle Belt north of Five Mile and objecting homeowners have reached a compromise on the continuing suburban issue of high-rise buildings. The proposed building is four stories and will be moved closer to Middle Belt to keep it further away from single-family homes in the neighborhood.

GC NEGOTIATIONS STALLED

Contract negotiations between Garden City and members of the American Federation of State Federal and Municipal Employees (AFSME) seem to be standing still. After two years, city workers are without a contract. The hangup—wages, fringe benefits and contract language. Garden City Police officers will take their contract dispute to arbitration May 17. Items to be discussed include wages and residency. Officers are presently required to live in the city.

GC GETS RECREATION GRANT

arden City has received a federal matching fund grant to build tennis courts, picnic pavilions and a play area in the Moeller Street area. Total project money is $57,000, with the city's share being $28,000. Construction on the recreation facilities is expected to begin this summer.

RECALL

The Redford recall election, to be held in conjunction with the presidential preference primary May 18, will take place unless the Michigan Supreme Court intervenes. The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office said it is investigating tactics used by the persons who sought petitions for the recall movement, but the prosecutor's evidence cannot be used until after the election. Five township board members are up for recall.

BIG WEEK

Redford Township's bicentennial committee has completed plans for its festival week, culminating in a Maifest July 3-5.

FIRST OFFERING! An extraordinary example of a PLYMOUTH home beautifully developed to the fullest. The yard is extensively landscaped and provides excellent privacy. The interior is very tastefully done. 3 bedrooms, 1½ baths, family room with fireplace, finished basement, and 2 car attached garage. A BRICK COLONIAL THAT, UPON A VISIT, WILL BE AN EASY CHOICE. $47,900. 453-8200.

THIS STATELY PILLARED COLONIAL is perfectly located off N. Territorial and offers all the necessary rooms for gracious living. Circular Drive and extensive landscaping—especially around its inviting patio. A generous foyer with a curved stairway. 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, formal dining room, a study, family room with fireplace, 1st floor laundry, finished basement, and a garage that has impressive storage dimensions. CENTRAL AIR plus a wealth of extras results in a truly fine family home. $97,500. 453-8200.

NEW ON THE MARKET! The Attractive Exterior of this home features a covered front porch and distinctive, yet subtle, color combinations. 3 bedrooms, 1½ baths, formal dining room, a fine kitchen and eating space arrangement, family room with fireplace, full basement, and 2½ car attached garage. The home itself is very well decorated and is impressive in its entirety. $50,900. 453-8200.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH. This original owner brick COLONIAL enjoys a premium lot in a most popular neighborhood. Each family member will have their own favorite room. 5 upper bedrooms, 2½ baths, formal dining room, 22 ft. family room with fireplace, 1st floor laundry, 19 ft. Garden Room, carpeted basement, and attached 2½ car garage. UNDERGROUND SPRINKLERS are among its extras. AN IDEAL FAMILY HOME IN EXCELLENT CONDITION. $65,900. 453-8200.

FIRST OFFERING! This older home is an excellent example of the charm, character, and pride of ownership often seen in the pleasant residential neighborhoods within the City of Plymouth. LARGE BUT EASILY MANAGEABLE because of its abundant improvements. 4 bedrooms, formal dining room, 2 baths, fireplace, a study, family room, finished basement, and 3 car garage. ENJOYED and LOVED as a family home but easily convertible to a 2 unit income. $48,900. 453-8200.

We Know How to Sell Your Home FAST!

...and we GUARANTEE our service in writing!

"Action Warranty" is provided FREE.

Now, for the first time a nationwide real estate organization provides its customers with an Action Warranty that guarantees in writing the service it has designed to sell homes FAST. CENTURY 21 brokers know from experience, gained while selling thousands upon thousands of homes each year across this nation, that when a home owner decides to sell his home, he wants to sell it FAST and at the right price. CENTURY 21 brokers know how to get that action ... FAST!

"Action Warranty" guarantees what we will do for you.

It's a bold step, putting it in writing. But we felt that customers deserved it. And we felt that we could live up to it. After all, there is no reason why anyone, when dealing with an independently owned CENTURY 21 office, should have to experience any anxieties about being forgotten, neglected, or overlooked once they have signed up to sell their home. So we put it in writing. Don't settle for less. Call the CENTURY 21 office near you for your free copy of our Action Warranty.

NORTH HILLS

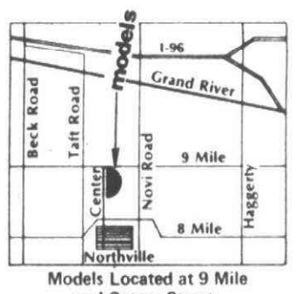

A Luxurious Community of fine homes in the Northville/Novi Area

Take your pick of these new 3 and 4 bedroom colonial and ranch models designed and built in the true tradition of Greenspan quality construction that has been the trademark of excellence for nearly half a century.

See all our furnished models now . . . Your next move will be to NORTH HILLS. Priced from $58,000.00.

Models Located at 9 Mile and Center Street

The early pioneer life around Northville and Novi is still a charming part of life. And you're also conveniently located – you're almost a neighbor of Ann Arbor, Birmingham and Detroit via I-96, I-696 and other freeways. And the new I-275 freeway is already under construction. Residents of NORTH HILLS can look ahead and be certain that this is a most desirable area; a secure, young and growing area to live. And the longer you live in this area, the more reasons you'll find not to leave it.

All homes in North Hills include underground wiring for all utilities, Detroit water, City sanitary and storm sewer system and are on curved paved streets. The very highly rated Northville Community Schools are available for your children.

Some models available in 30 to 60 days.

WHODUNIT?

The sofa, the chair, the stove and the dresses . . . all sold in a single day. Who could have gotten away with it? It's really not such a mystery. Every clue points to the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds: the quick response, the number of calls, and most important, the results-SALES.

Consider the opportunity . . . the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are read twice each week by more than 155,500 families in Wayne and Oakland Counties --families next door to you and in neighboring communities.

Consider the motive . . . the Observer & Eccentric Want Ad Department has a strong desire to satisfy your needs, whether you're selling a couch or looking for a job.

Consider the weapon . . . the Observer & Eccentric Family Want Ads have a double edge because they're placed in two consecutive issues (Monday/Thursday or Thursday/Monday) and are seen each time by more than 155,500 witnesses. And these Family Want Ads (no changes in copy, no cancellations) cost only $6 --that's a savings to you of $2 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

It's a modus operandi that is well known and makes the solution to this case elementary.

CAREFREE Aluminum Pool

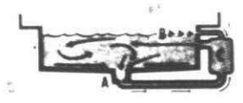

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO SEE A KAYAK POOL...BEFORE YOU BUY ANOTHER POOL!!

WHY BUY ½ A POOL?

THE MAJORITY OF ABOVE GROUND POOLS HAVE NO BOTTOM DRAIN! Poor water circulation creates maintenance problems! KAYAK solves this with its

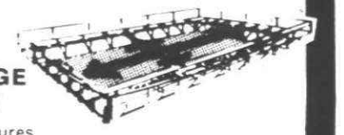

MAIN CENTER BOTTOM DRAIN

Main Center Bottom Drain (A) pumps away bottom dirt and Surface Skimmer (B) removes floating leaves and debris, to filter (C) which cleans all the water and returns it to the pool sparkling clean!

SUSPENSION BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

This Kayak special features assures you of quality construction and positively eliminates bulging with our adjustable camber bar, all around structural aluminum top and heavy duty aluminum bottom.

KAYAK ELIMINATES SIDE BULGING

hormone. Next wrap the cut with moist sphagnum moss. The ball of moss should be about six inches long and four inches wide. Use twine to hold the moss in place and cover the ball with plastic. Seal the edges and seam with tape.

After several weeks, roots should be visible. When the roots have filled the sphagnum moss, cut the layer from the stock plant just below the ball of moss and remove the plastic. Pot the layer immediately.

The remaining portion of the stock plant can be used for cane cuttings to propagate more plants.

Air layering is also a method of shortening plants that become leggy, such as dumbcane.

Runners

Runners are the creeping stems of plants with clusters of leaves at the joints or nodes. Some of the common house plants with runners are spider plant, Boston fern, apostle plant, mother-of-thousands, and picka-back plant.

Roots form when the leaf clusters or stems come in contact with warm moist soil. After the roots have formed a new plant is made by separating the stem and leaf clusters from the original plant.

To propagate your home plants from runners, begin with a three inch flower pot filled with either sand, sphagnum moss, peat moss, vermiculite or soil. Place the leaf cluster on top of the soil and hold it in place with a hairpin. Keep the soil moist and in three to five weeks roots should form. The new plant is ready to be cut free from the runner.

Division

Division is one of the easiest and quickest ways to produce new plants. Plants that produce stems at the base of the plant — such as snake plant, Boston fern, cast-iron plant, African violet, English ivy, philodendron, and Periwinkle or vinca —can be divided.

The best time to divide plants is during the dormant or rest period. Remove the plant from the container and separate the stock plant into smaller pieces, each piece having some roots. Pot them in a mixture of one part sand, two parts peat moss, and two parts loamy soil.

Who said, "Don't fence me in?"

Twenty-five years ago, when we moved to the area where we now live, some of our friends called it the "sticks." Well, things have changed. The elbow room we wanted then no longer exists. Our area today is a heavily built-up suburban community.

It's nice to have many new neighbors, but one thing I miss is my privacy. Like so many millions of others, I had to create my own privacy for the patio and outdoor living area. And since I no longer had Nature's woods as a backdrop, I had to create a background for my garden beds.

An interesting concept in fencing is this "window fence" which permits owners to lounge around the barbecue while keeping an eye on poolside youngsters. Open picture frames can also be used for hanging for boxed plant display.

Privacy can be created in two ways. You can use plants as screening hedges, or you can construct a fence.

There are many people who would never consider building a fence. They say that live, green plants are the only answer. No doubt almost everyone would agree, but there are times when a plant screen for privacy would not be possible. For instance, in many suburban areas the amount of property in the yard is limited and the objective is to make the best use possible of every square inch--yes, inches count when you have a total garden area of only 20 by 30 feet. So the use of plants for a screening hedge several feet thick would take up too much space. Also, plants take time to grow, and if privacy is wanted this summer you may have to resort to a solid structure.

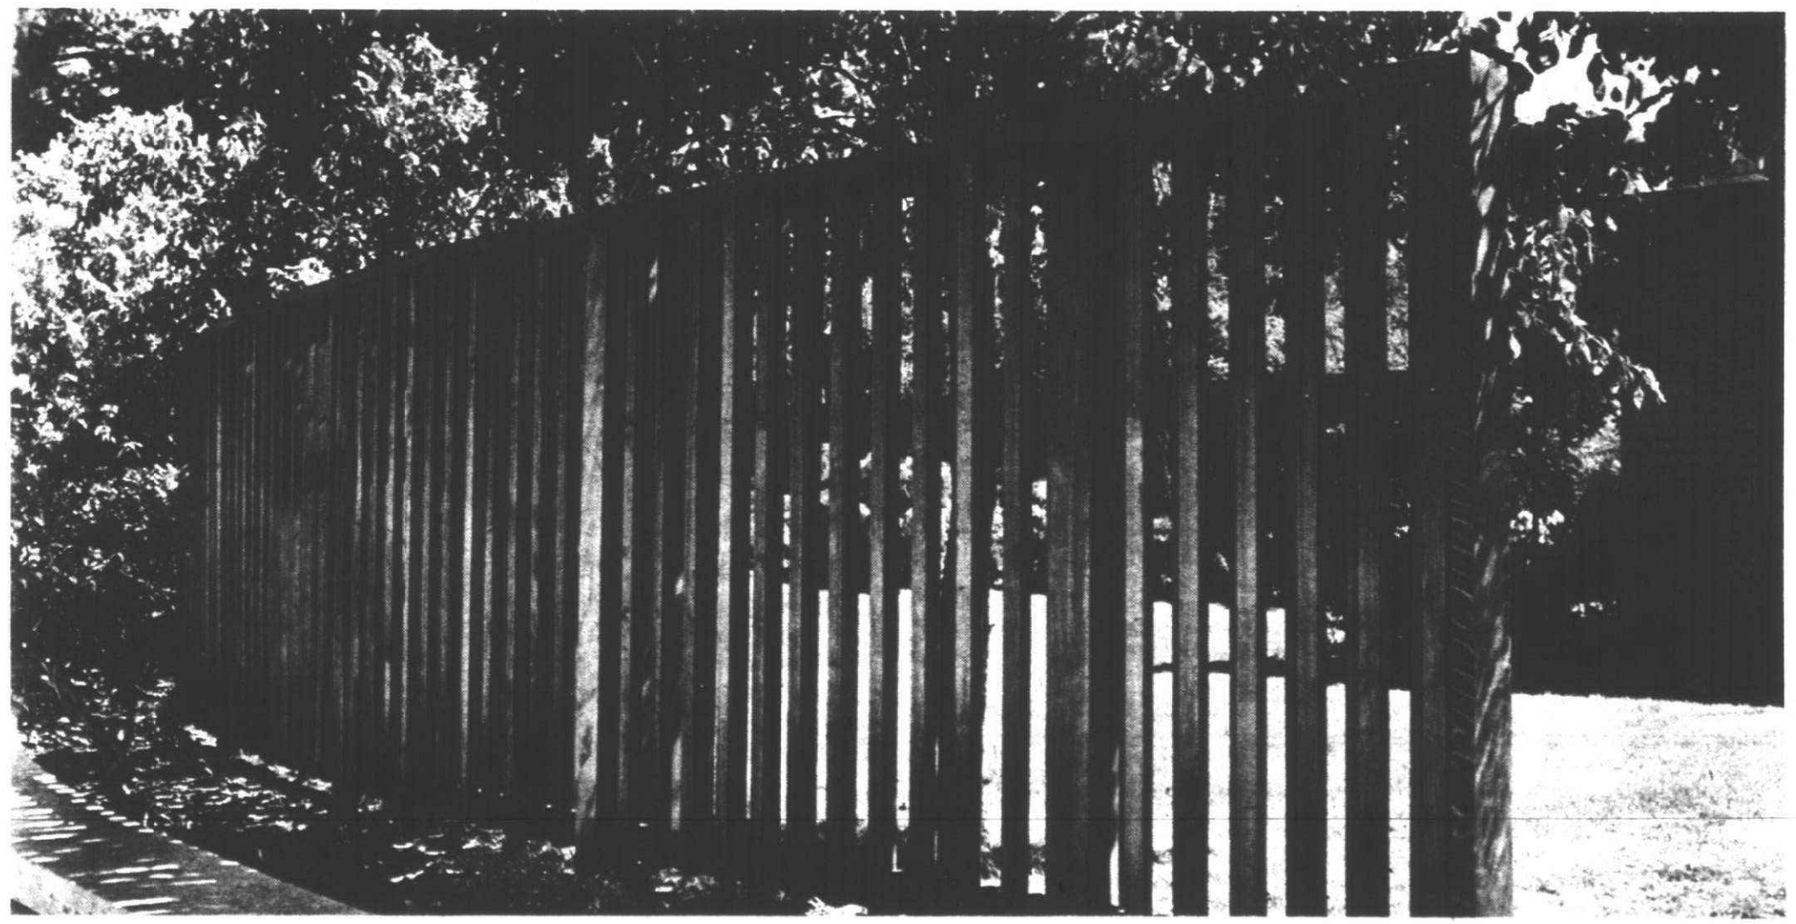

But let's look first at plants for screening. I was fortunate in that one of my neighbors wanted privacy just as much as we did. But we were willing to wait for it. We planted a joint hedge of Japanese barberry which is now above eye level and provides both yeards with privacy. Incidentally, when considering privacy, think in terms of eye level. A six-footer walking down the street won't be able to look over a hedge that is the same height. In fact, sometimes even a five-foot hedge will provide privacy when you are sitting behind it. It isn't necessary to have hedges towering 20 feet all for privacy or screening.

Bearing in mind that you don't need a monstrous plant, you can use just about any hedge plant that will eventually grow 6 to 8 feet tall. If the privacy is demanded both summer and winter you should consider an evergreen. This may be necessary also if the screen is used to block an unsightly view. If the only need is summer privacy, one of the shrubs that drop their leaves in winter--called deciduous--will suffice. Many of these have the added bonus of giving you flowers, colorful fruit and fall foliage.

On the subject of fences, the natural wood kinds are likely to blend in with the garden picture better than the metal kinds. Wooden fences can be of the stockade or basket-weave design; both are solid. Be sure the wood is resistant to rot so that it will last for years.

If the fence has to serve as a retainer--keeping children and pets either in or out--you may have to resort to one of the steel wire kinds. These can beharsh looking, but it is possible to soften their appearance with a few plants. I have been training English ivy on a wire fence we have to keep the dog from wandering. This is only the third year and already it is giving us a solid, hedge-like appearance. In time it could be full enough so that I will have to trim it regularly just like a hedge--an ivy hedge, no less.

Ivy takes time to grow, but there are other vines that grow fast enough to give a solid appearance in one year. The silver lace vine is one example.

A slightly curving redwood screen admits cooling breezes while partially obscuring the yard from the outside. A dense hedge, while more attractive to some, could screen breezes as well as unwanted glances. This screen can also lend cohesion to a garden.

Surrounded by Wandering Jews, begonias, angel roses, crossandras and varieties of kalanchoe plants, Harriet Larson of 33024 Grennada in Livonia waters her jade plant. Caring for the plants requires at least an hour a day, and 15 hours of "sunshine" which are provided by special flourescent lamps.

Indoor garden prospers with lights and TLC

By JANNAN GHANNAM

Some people talk to their plants; others keep a blaring radio in their garden. A few even add two aspirin to periodic watering.

But Livonia residents John and Harriet Larson just give their house and garden plants a little tender loving care and watch them grow.

But it isn't as easy as it sounds. That TLC requires more than a green thumb, John Larson explains.

"You must treat each plant individually, keeping track of what it requires and when," he says.

Starting all their plants from seed or cuttings, the Larsons use a special soil mixture for potting.

"I start with three parts of good garden loam, two parts of peat moss and one part sharp sand," said Larson.

He explained sharp sand opens up the soil, allowing water to absorb into the roots.

Before potting plants, Larson suggests baking the soil.

"Baking the soil mixture at 250 degrees for two hours sterilizes and rids it of any fungus or impurities," he said.

The Larsons' technique does not end there, though. The next step is keep-about propagation

rings. Place the cuttings slightly below the surface of the rooting medium, making sure the eye is facing up. The eye will eventually form a new stem, and the remaining stock plant will also sprout a new stem.

Whole leaf cuttings are leaves, with or without stalks. Insert the leaf base into the cutting medium just far enough to hold the leaf in place. If the leaf has a stalk, it should not be more than 1½ inches long.

Leaf section cuttings are used to propagate begonia and snake plants. The leaves are cut into pieces two to three inches long and inserted into the rooting medium right side up.

English ivy, pothos, grape ivy, geranium, philodendron, peperomia, hydrangea, and the like are propagated by leaf-bud cuttings. A leaf-bud cutting is a single leaf with a stem 1-2½ inches long.

The materials needed for rooting cuttings are the rooting medium, a container, rooting hormone, a sharp knife or scissors, a plastic bag and the cuttings. The containers should be at least three inches deep but not more than six. The rooting medium can be either sand, sphagnum moss, peat moss, vermiculite, perlite or soil. It should be moist, well-drained and sterile. Rooting hormones are optional.

A container without drainage holes is best. Fill it to the top with the moist rooting medium. Insert the cuttings just far enough to hold them in place. Cover with an air-tight plastic bag. Temperatures should range between 60 and 70 degrees (F.), and bright light is needed. Roots will usually form within 10-21 days. When the roots are one-half to one inch long the new plant is ready to be potted in soil consisting of one part loam, one part peat moss and one part sand.

Layering

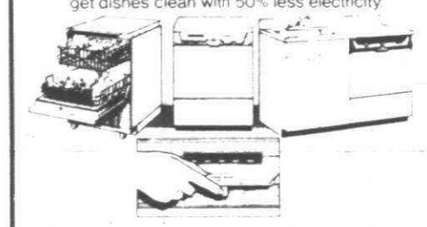

Air layering is a method of propagation used by the Chinese centuries ago. Roots are formed along the stems while the stems are still attached to the stock plant. Some of the house plants that can be air layered are dumbcane, croton, Chinese evergreen, philodendron, rubber plant, fiddle-leaf fig, oleander and camellia.

The first step is to assemble all the materials. Air layering should be done quickly to prevent the cut from drying out. You will need a sharp knife, a double handful of sphagnum moss, a six by eight inch sheet of polyethylene film, rooting compound, twine, and wrapping tape.

Remove any leaves three to four inches above and below where you want to make the cut. Then, with a sharp knife, make an upward or downward cut one to 1½ inches long and one-quarter to one-half through the stem. To prevent the wound from healing over quickly, insert a wooden match or toothpick in the cut. Dust the cut with a small amount of rooting

Seeds

Seed is the most inexpensive way to produce a large number of plants. It does, however, take slightly longer to produce mature plants. Some of the plants that can be grown from seed are African violets, gloxinias, begonias, coleus, fuchsias, cacti, sultan snapweeds and cyclamens.

Seed can be sown in sand, sphagnum moss, peat moss, vermiculite, perlite or soil. The seed medium should be well drained and sterilized to kill weed seeds, insects, and disease-causing organisms.

The container should be three inches deep or less and have drainage holes. Place a little sphagnum moss over the drainage holes. Apply ¼-inch of vermiculite on top of the soil. Moisten the soil by placing it in a pan of water until the vermiculite is moist.

Place the seeds uniformly on the vermiculite. Do not cover very small seeds, such as those of the African violet. Cover larger seeds with a sprinkling of dry vermiculite, just enough so they cannot be seen. Now place the entire container in a polyethylene bag.

Place the container just out of the sun's rays and keep at a temperature of 65-75 degrees (F.). Remove the bag as soon as the seed leaves are well developed. After removing the bag, keep the soil moist by watering from below. Fertilizer is not necessary. The seedlings may be transplanted once the true leaves (the second set to appear) have fully developed. When transplanting, use the same soil mixture as for germination.

Cuttings

Cuttings are leaves, stems, or roots cut from the stock plant. There are two types of stem cuttings, tip and cane; and three types of leaf cuttings, whole leaf, leaf sections and leaf-bud. Propagation by cuttings produces a great many plants from one plant.

Tip cuttings are suitable for propagating coleus, schefflera, geranium, fuchsia, Christmas cactus, poinsettia, philodendron, and other similar types. Tip cuttings are cut just below a leaf and should be three to five inches long. The more leaves left on the tip, the better. Remove any lower leaves before inserting the tip in the rooting medium.

Cane cuttings are used for propagating dumbcane, Chinese evergreen, dracaena, and similar plants with cane-like stems. Cut the cane three inches above the soil line and then cut it into pieces two to three inches long.

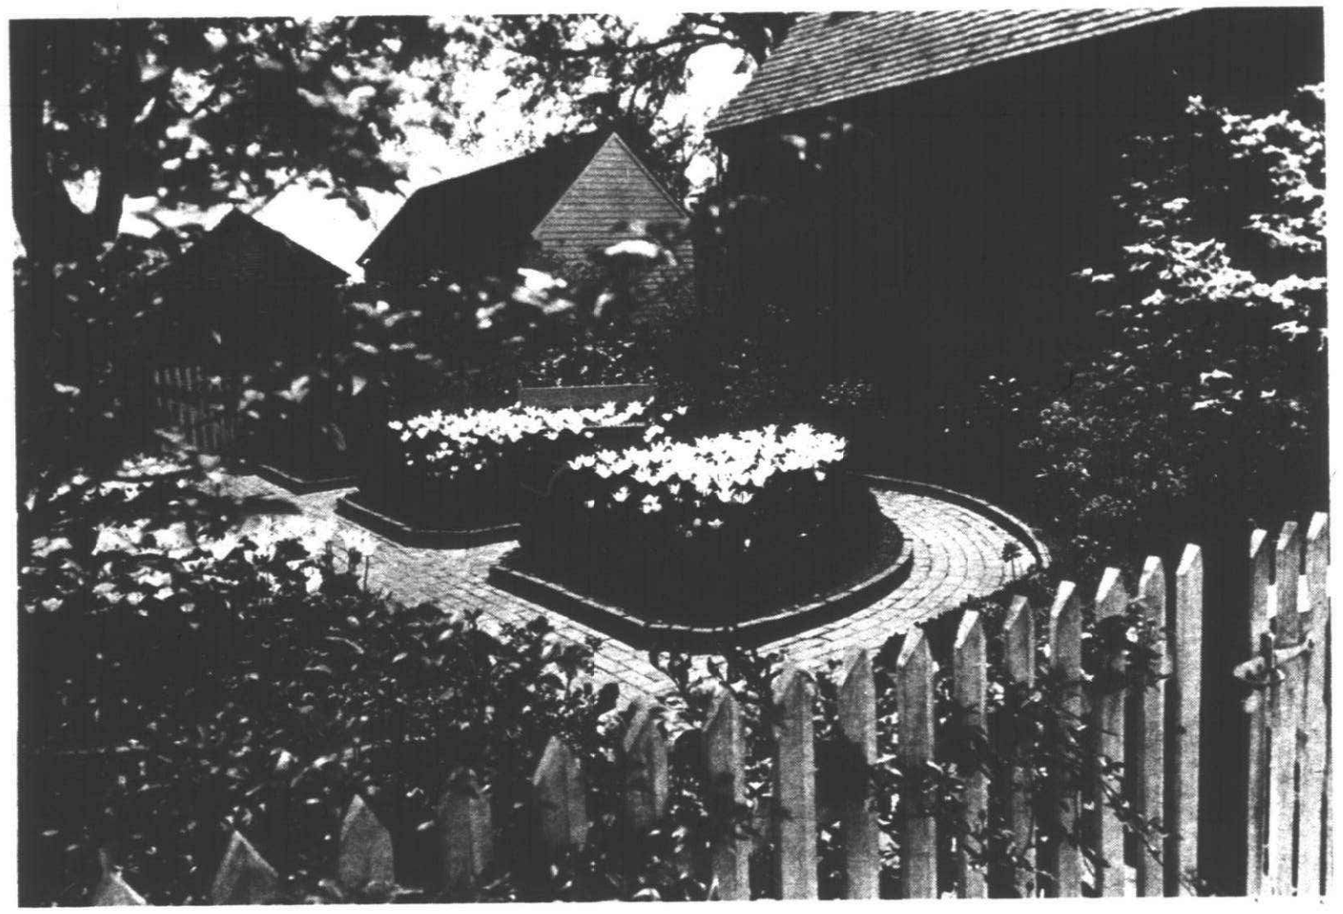

The circular rings, or leaf scars, contain dormant buds or eyes. Each piece should have two of these circular

U.S. gardening heritage has many roots

The garden of the 18th century Powell-Waller house in Williamsburg is tightly designed in geometric forms. Boxwood and holly are used extensively, and color is added by tulip beds, flowering dogwood and the Cherokee roses which cover the fence in the foreground.

A melting pot for petunias

By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME

If you've ever driven through a tunnel and, coming out into the daylight, been wowed by a scenic marvel, you'll appreciate your entrance to the gardens of colonial Williamsburg, Va., where the bicentennial atmosphere of colonial times combine with stunning gardens for an entrancing effect on tourists in search of their heritage.

While the gardens in Williamsburg are beyond the financial capacities of most Observer & Eccentric area gardeners, smaller versions of these beautifully landscaped spots might be just the thing for a backyard gardener with historical leanings.

To Virginia from the Old World came flowers that Europeans had grown for centuries, as well as newer plants from the Orient, brought by ships of the English and Dutch trading companies. Some came along the trade routes from China to St. Petersburg, and then to France before coming to the colonies.

Then, too, explorers like Mark Catesby, the English naturalist, spent years roving the area around colonial Williamsburg, seeking new plants from

Tips for tilling with your tots

By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME

Children will enjoy gardening if . . . .

- You (teacher or parent) like gardening.
- You remember they have a short attention span. Complete the task in many steps.

You ask the child's advice on things like: "Shall we plant carrots or lettuce first?"

- Once in a while you say: "Isn't it fun to do this garden together?" Set the tempo.
- You plan on a treat together when you are through. Be partners.
- You praise children's efforts in front of family and peers.
- You remember the benefit is in the doing. As an adult, expect the child to be active in the project.

Following are some tips for successful gardening you can share with your child.

Explain that plants are alive, "Like you and I." They are "born," grow, can be happy, hungry, need water, become ill and well again, have fruit or flowers, and eventually die. Like all of us, they need someone to provide them with tender loving care—TLC.

Frequently use a magnifying glass. Talk about the wonder of a seed and how it will grow. Make the experience exciting to you, an adult.

Talk about some of the seeds we eat: peas, coffee, beans, corn, etc.

Select a sunny spot for your garden to insure success.

If the soil is hard clay, spread some old leaves and sand over the surface, like icing. Now spade the mix all in together.

If the soil is too sandy, mix old leaves and peat moss over the top. Dig the mix in together.

Read the directions carefully on your seed packet. Your seedsmen want you to be successful.

Keep the weeds out of your garden.

Listen! your house could be speaking

If houses could speak, what stories they could tell! Actually, houses do speak, But not all homeowners understand the language.

For example, a leaky faucet, a troublesome furnace and a settling house all have their distinctive sounds. A house with rattling windows is definitely trying to tell you something.

Just as a squeaking floor suggests movement in the floor boards, windows that rattle in the wind, or when a heavy truck rolls by, are probably loose-fitting.

Loose-fitting windows can be costly as well as noisy. Lack of weathertightness is a principal cuase of heat loss, and excessive heat loss means higher fuel costs.

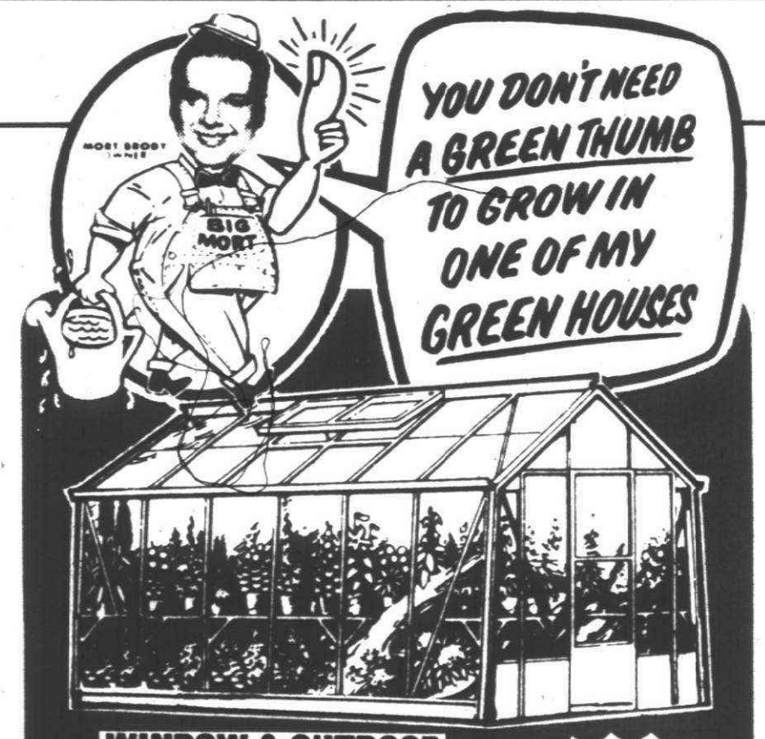

These higher fuel costs result when the rate of air infiltration is high through cracks around the perimeter of the window or where sashes meet. A draft from a closed window is another sign of loose-fitting windows.

One way to reduce loss of heat through air infiltration is by installing tight fitting storm sash and applying new weatherstripping to the windows. But if the windows are in bad condition, or if the house is being remodeled or modernized, new windows may be the answer.

A note of caution, however. Beware of misleading claims for so-called "replacement windows." Any quality window may be used a a replacement window; in fact, the best replacement window is the best window you can buy.

The most desirable replacement window is not custom-built but is factory-engineered under strict quality controls. Weatherstripping is applied and double-pane insulating glass is installed at the factory. After the old window has been removed from the wall, the size of the opening is changed to receive the new window (instead of having the window made to fit the size of the opening, thereby compromising the window's design integrity.)

Only after he lives with his "replacement windows" for a while will a homeowner be able to tell if his windows are a bargain. If he has made a good choice, the new windows will improve beauty and fuel economy in the house and add to the comfort and convenience of the owner's lifestyle. The whisper-soft, fingertip operation of the sash also will confirm a good choice.

Plant says

Hey, Margaret! check my pot

The longer days and higher temperatures that mark the approach of spring push all plants into more active growth. And this includes house plants that have been wintering on your window sill as well as outdoor plants. This is a good time to give your house plants a checkup and repot those that need it.

If you haven't repotted your house plants in more than a year or so it would be wise to check and see if they need a larger pot. Some plants can remain in the same pot for several years, others will outgrow their pot in a year.

The best way to tell if a plant needs repotting is to check the roots. How? By looking at them. Place your hand, palm down, on the top of the pot so the plant's stem comes through the second and third fingers. Turn the pot upside down—the weight of the plant and soil will be in your palm. Now tap the pot to loosen it from the soil. It should lift off easily. If you see a mass of roots in tangles, consider repotting. If you see soil and just a few roots, let the plant stay in the same pot.

When repotting, use a pot that is just one size larger than the original. Pot sizes are based on diameter at the top—3-inch, 4-inch, 5-inch, etc. If the original pot measures 3 inches, put the plant in a 4-inch pot.

Any good packaged potting soil can be used. Or, you can mix your own soil using equal parts good garden soil, peat moss and vermiculite or sand. Place a piece of broken clay pot or large gravel over the drainage hole in the bottom. This keeps the soil from clogging it up.

Place a little soil over the crock or gravel. Loosen some of the tangled roots and place the plant in the new pot so the soil level is about a half inch below the rim (you may need to adjust the soil in the bottom to get the correct placement). Finish the potting by adding soil around the sides, making sure it is firmed against the roots. Finally, and the most important, water the plant thoroughly. To do this, fill that half inch space you left between soil and rim with water and let it soak down through the roots.

It might also be wise to rid your house plants of any insects that may have been harboring in the soil or on the stems during winter, waiting for the nice weather to become more acing the plants alive and healthy.

Caring for over 60 plants in the basement, the Larsons employ a white flourescent Gro-Lux light. This is a patented light providing the correct amount of simulated sunshine needed to grow plants. Regular lighting, incandescent or flourescent, does not have a wide enough spectrum for healthy plant growth.

"Keeping the plants alive and healthy requires about 15 hours of sunshine a day," said Larson. "It is best to keep a timer on the Gro-Lux, especially if you are away from home."

Keeping the humidity in the home at 50 percent or better is also a must during the winter, but not during the summer, he said.

The Larsons spend about an hour a day caring for his plants,which range in variety from the exotic five-foot Fairchild Avacado tree and the Hawaiian Ti plant to Bryophyllum Pennatum—more commonly known as the "leaf of life."

Walking into the Larsons' basement, you are struck by a mixture of fragrances and herbal smells which penetrate the air, creating curiosity among sniffers.

Mrs. Larson explains it's a conglomeration of sage, rosemary, thyme, oregano, woodriff, crossandras, coleus, begonias and several varities of impatiens.

"We used to plant all our own food,

This six-foot Fairchild avocado tree in the Larson home hasn't yet produced any fruit, but with the meticulous care given it by the gardening couple, it is healthy and still growing.

Spot used as home base challenges all lawn buffs

Unless those bare spots on your lawn are at least one foot square or larger, attempting to thicken up the grass sod by overseeding may be a waste of time and lawn seed, say turfgrass specialists at Michigan State University.

Competition from the established sod does not give the young seedlings a chance to get started, explain the specialists. They recommend a good fertilization and weed-control program.

They also suggest filling in the small spots with plugs of sod removed from other areas of the lawn.

However, for the larger spots, Robert Shearman, MSU extension turfgrass specialist, recommends the following steps:

1) Go over the bare spots with a garden rake to loosen the soil. Soil moisture is right for seeding when the soil rakes loosely (does not form small clods).

2) Select a good seed (certified if possible). Use a Kentucky bluegrass variety for sunny areas and a red fescue variety in shaded spots.

3) Sow the seed by hand, sprinkling it evenly over the entire area. A small handful of seed will cover a bare spot six feet in diameter.

4) After seeding, rake gently so that the seeds will have good contact with the soil. This is important for even seed germination and grass growth.

5) Soil moisture shouldn't be a problem in the spring. However, if the top inch of soil does dry out, give the seeded area a light watering with a lawn sprinkler or sprinkling can.

tive. One of the aerosol sprays like Raid House and Garden will do an excellent job. On a mild day—with temperatures in the 60s—take all your house plants out on the patio and spray them. A light misting is all that's required to do the job. Spray from about 36 inches away and avoid wetting the plants with the insecticide. Be sure to bring the plans in at night.

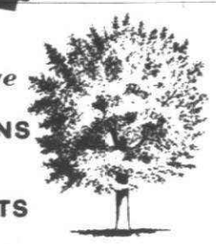

This is also a good time to fertilize all your house plants. Use a soluble plant food—the feeding is done at the same time as watering. All house plants could use some nutrients in early spring—remember the key to fertilizing is to apply it just before the plant's most active growth.

it beats a green thumb

but because of lack of time, we just grow a salad garden in the backyard, and my herb gardens to spice up salads are in the basement," she said.

John Larson does not go for fad products to shine up his plants.

"Just plain old soap and water will do the trick," he said. "Using oils, mayonnaise and polishes will clog up the pores and eventually cause a plant to die."

Big fans of "oddity plants," the Larsons' miniature jungle includes a banana tree from Florida—not likely to live; air plants, which as the name states, live on air; miniature chickens and hens, from the succulant family; and the leaf of life, which will grow 12 to 24 plants from one single leaf.

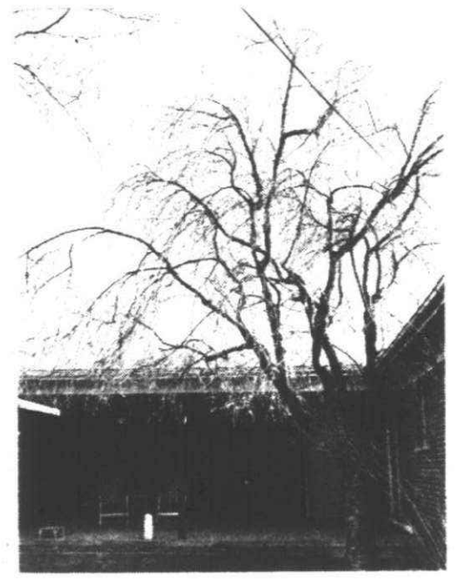

Ready with his hoe and shovel, John has begun to plant a vegetable garden, but suggests gardeners wait until Memorial Day to plant the tender plants.

"The weather is fine for carrots, radishes, lettuce, and spinach," he said, "but not for squash, cantelope, melons or tomatoes.

"The main thing to remember concerning all plants is not to overwater," said Larson. "And if plants develop bugs, it's best to throw them out."

Recalling how the plant hobby started, Mrs. Larson said it began as almost a joke when she bought her husband a 19-cent African Violet.

"That was about four years ago," she said, "and with all the time and patience John spends on the plants, it certainly isn't a joke any longer."

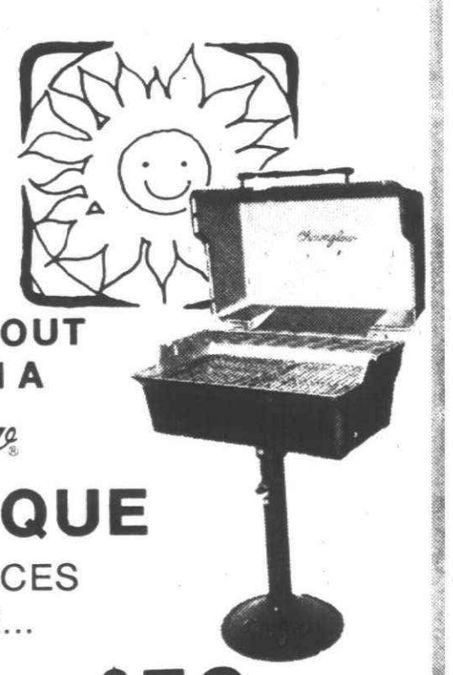

The weeping cherry tree in the Larsons' back yard is the only one of four originals left in the subdivision. Pink blossoms come out in late spring and drop off during the summer.

Canton Observer & Eccentric editor Rich Gold waters his in-house avocado tree which got its start seed on the opening day of the Plymouth-Canton office. Plant lovers can start their own tree by suspending a washed and de-pulped avocado seed, broad end down, with toothpicks over a glass of water. Half the seed should be in the water. When it roots, plant it.

Don't wait to do your landscaping because you don't know how. We will draw a plan for your home, and give you our expert advice on what to plant and how to plant it. We draw free plans to scale for our customers. Just bring in your house and lot dimensions and a picture, if possible. Your title survey usually has all this information on it. We can do the planting for you, for an additional labor charge.

between buildings where the sun cannot reach. If the sun reaches the plot no more than six hours a day, crops like tomatoes, eggplants, peppers and lima beans probably will not do very well. The leafy crops like lettuce, mustard, collards, spinach, chard, and kale will tolerate some shade better than the fuit and seed bearing crops.

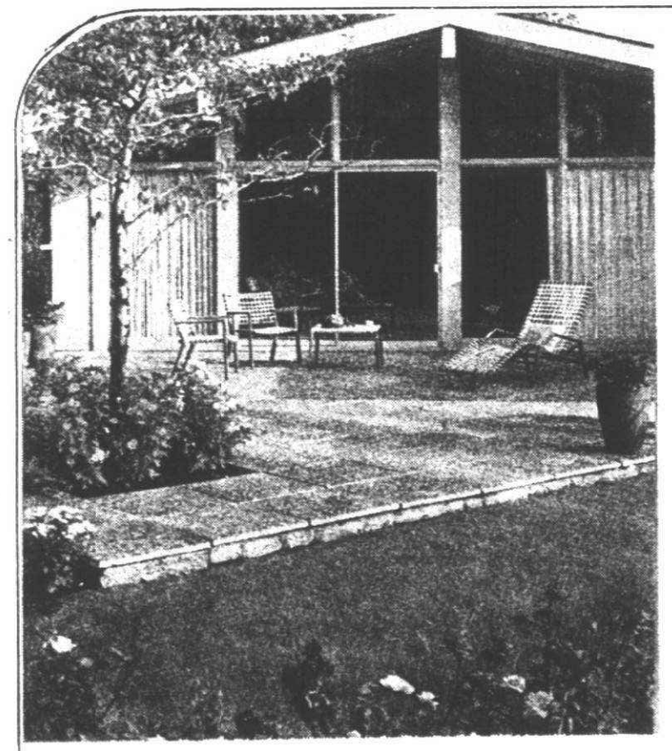

The plot must be well drained. If possible, an area should be chosen which the gardener has had a chance to see at frequent intervals through a season so that he can know where it is inclined to be very wet for a long time after a rain and whether water stands on it or washes over it from above or from a nearby stream.

An area subject to such excess water should not be used for gardening. The presence of a green scum on the soil surface indicates excessive wetness and danger from poor drainage. One should be especially wary of wet soils located in a pocket from which there is no adequate outlet and which might become a veritable pond during rainy periods. Street and other construction work about cities often results in water problems that are difficult, although they may involve only small areas.

The convenience of the garden location is more important than might be supposed. The garden should be as close to one's home as a suitable place can be found—preferably on one's own lot or an adjacent lot. A garden needs some attention almost daily; even when it is too wet to plant or cultivate, the gardener should see it every day or two so as to follow all developments and know in advance what work needs to be done.

Gardening at a distance is not only inconvenient, but generally less satisfactory than nearby since it is more difficult to do things at the right time. Timeliness is a surprisingly large element in success.

Weather-matic rain stat turns it off automatically!

No need to worry when you're away from home. Weather-matic's exclusive rain stat automatically turns off your system when it rains, then signals the controller to resume normal operation when your lawn needs water. You do not have to reset your controller. Your rain stat will pay for itself many times over in money saved on watering, when rain has made it unnecessary for your sprinkler system to operate. No automatic lawn sprinkler system is truly complete without a Weather-matic RAIN STAT. See or call your local Weather-matic dealer today!

In town Mary, Mary

One's own backyard is obviously the most convenient location for a garden, but unless the area is really suitable, the garden should be located elsewhere, as near as satisfactory conditions can be found. Vacant lots and community garden plots are extensively used.

A farm gardener usually has the opportunity to select the best land on his place for his garden, but the city gardener rarely has such a chance; he must do what he can with the soil of his own small lot or some nearby plot.

In many neighborhoods city or town lots are definitely unsuited to gardening. Steep slopes, bad drainage, too many trees, too much rock, too little topsoil, or too much shade from buildings are all serious drawbacks, any one of which might make a plot of land useless for vegetable growing.

If such conditions as these prevail, the gardener will usually do better to locate a satisfactory plot at some reasonable distance from home. However, the town gardener has some advantages that many farm gardeners do not enjoy. He usually has a water supply close enough to the garden that a hose or a few lengths or temporary piping will give protection against drought. He also is usually near convenient sources of materials and supplies and rarely is troubled by the depredations of roaming livestock and wild animals.

Generally the town gardener has less desirable soil and exposure for his garden than the farmer; nevertheless, millions of town gardeners have obtained excellent results even under considerable difficulties.

A plot of land suitable for a town garden must be in the open where it can get direct sunlight at least six hours a day, with no obstructing trees or buildings. Vegegables cannot be grown successfully on wooded lots or shock of transplanting, will be too much of a change.

The soil should be moist but never muddy. Too much water will suffocate the roots and leave them susceptible to damping-off disease and root rot. If the soil crumbles easily in your hand it is ready.

Plant your seedlings one-half to one inch deeper than they were in the flats. If you grew your seedlings in individual peat pots, the entire pot can be planted. Make sure the top of the peat pot is covered with soil. Otherwise, the pot will dry out and the roots will not be able to grow out of the peat pot. Apply a high-phosphorus starter fertilizer in the root zone to stimulate root growth and establishment. Water lightly immediately after transplanting.

If you are planting before the danger of frost is over, use a cold frame or cover your plants with hot caps, clear plastic or a mulch. Remove the mulch during the day if temperatures are above freezing.

Instant lawn requires more than watering

A lawn is essential for a good appearance of the grounds. When you have a good lawn it shows off the rest of the garden at its very best.

Every turf or lawn expert will say that the best time to start a new lawn, especially from seed, is in the fall. But here we are in the spring and you need a lawn--immediately. There is one simple solution. Put down sod. When given proper care, sod can be put down at anytime, spring or fall.

Sod, as we all know, consists of the actual grass plants in a sheet or roll, like carpet. The green is seen immediately. But if you look at sod closely you will see that it has only a fraction of the roots that a normal grass plant will have. Most of the roots were left in the field where the sod was removed. This is an important thing to remember.

There is also a feeling that sod can be put down on any soil--even that which looks and feels like concrete--and it will grow and flourish. Not so. If you are going to pay the high price one does for sod, give it some good soil to grow in. Prepare the soil just as you would if you were going to plant seed. Add plenty of peat moss and mix this into the upper few inches. Rent a tiller for a day and you will save a lot of digging.

Add some fertilizer. Use one of those made especially for lawns, one with a high nitrogen content.

As for the sod: order it in advance. Ask for deliver--from the sod farm directly, if possible--on a day when you can lay it down immediately, which means you should have your soil prepared. Don't let your sod stand around for any length of time; it will start to decompose just like compost if given the opportunity.

When putting down the sod, make sure tha w

When putting down the sod, make sure that what roots are left make good contact with the soil. Any gap between soil and sod could result in the sod's drying out.

Roll the sod with a lawn roller after it has been laid. This is done to further insure contact between roots and soil. Of course, you should have raked the area pretty thoroughly so that it is nice and smooth. Sod goes on much easier over smooth soil.

Now comes the important part: Be sure to water the sod immediately, and keep it moist for most of the summer. Water it every day if necessary. The reason: Those roots that were removed must be replaced, and the only way they will grow well is by their having ample water. You also need more water than normal be-

Soft seedlings harden for outdoor exposure

Seedlings started indoors have been grown under ideal conditions, protected from the wind and fluctuating weather outdoors. Before transplanting them outdoors they must be "hardened" so they will survive in the hot sun, strong winds, cold temperatures or heavy rains.

Begin to harden your plants about 10 days prior to transplanting. Set them outdoors for a few hours a day and increase the amount of exposure each day. Water less frequently. A cold frame may also be used for hardening.

About one week before transplanting, cut through the soil with a sharp knife to separate the roots of seedlings grown in flats. This will allow you to life the plants out easily. Leave the ball of soil around the roots for protection when transplanting.

Transplant your seedlings on a cloudy, cool day, or in the evening. Strong sun and heat, along with the of coarse sand for good drainage. The soil on top of this should be a good garden soil with plenty of humus. Many gardeners prefer planting in a flat or other containers and placing the flat in the cold frame.

A cold frame can very easily be converted to a hotbed by using 8-12 inches of fresh horse manure in the pit covered with three inches of sand. Flats can be placed in the hotbed directly on the sand. The horse manure generates the necessary heat for early growth.

As mentioned previously, plants grown in the house can be placed in the cold frame several weeks prior to planting to harden them.

Whether plants are moved into either a cold or hot frame or started there, they must be given protection against too much heat on sunny days or too little heat on cold nights. Propping open the sash during the day will allow excess heat to escape. Protecting plants against cold nights is accomplished by closing the sash late in the afternoon.

You can be a good gardener without a cold frame or hotbed, but you will get more pleasure from your hobby if you take the time to build one.

Cold frames add to gardening ease

A simple cold frame on the south side of the house or garage can be used to start early seedlings or used to harden plants that have been started in the house prior to planting in your garden.

One should use a convenient size, such as 3 x 6 foot, since these are the dimensions of common window sashes that make excellent covers.

Use any kind of wood treated with a preservative, although brick, concrete block or other masonry materials can be used.

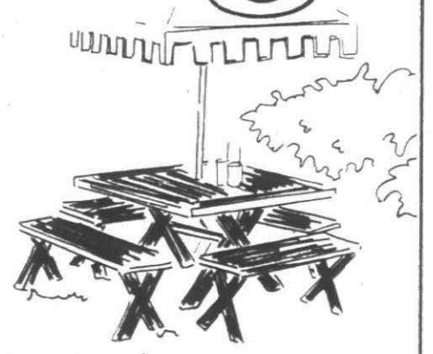

The front of the frame should be about 9 inches above the ground; the back side about 15 inches. Wood frames need to extend more than an inch below ground level. To guard against heaving, they should be nailed to two-by-fours that are driven down a foot or so.

If storm sashes are not available, cover a light wooden frame with polyethylene film.

If one desires to plant seeds directly in cold frame, a pit 10-12 inches deep should be dug in two or three inches

Indoor start boosts plants

By BILL MEACHAM

In a few weeks I will be making my morning and nightly visits to the basement. That's where I have my fluorescent light "garden" and a window that gets good sunlight where I start my seedlings for the outdoor garden.

Some of my gardening friends—and nameless members of my family—think this is too much work. Why bother, they claim you can buy all the started plants you need in the spring.

But when summer comes they can see the difference. It is surprising how a few odd or unusual plants can catch the eye, especially some of the new hybrid annuals and vegetables which you can't buy as started plants in the local nursery.

I think my efforts are well worth while, and starting seeds early isn't that difficult. In fact, this can be one of the most fascinating parts of gardening. And it can be profitable since flower and vegetable plants in my neighborhood cost as much as a dollar a dozen.

There are a lot of seed-starting kits in stores, but you can start seeds in containers you may already have around the house. I have used discarded plastic cottage cheese containers—after holes have been poked in the bottom for drainage. You don't need fancy soil, either. Packaged potting soil mixed half and half with peatmoss is excellent. Then all you need is a window with good light.

Most important when starting seeds indoors is the timing. Some seeds take a long time to germinate; others take a long time to grow large enough to be planted outside. These slow plants should be started two months ahead of outdoor planting time. These would include "annual" geraniums, petunias, begonias and asters, and, among the vegetables, tomatoes and peppers.

"Quickies" like marigolds and zinnias need only a few weeks before the seedlings are large enough to plant out. Start these three to four weeks before planting-out time. Start them too early and they will become stringy and weak beacuse of poor light.

If you use some leftover potting soil you found around the garage, spray the surface with Raid House and Garden Bug Killer before seeding to deter any soil insects that may be around.

Sprinkle seeds on soil surfact. Push large seeds like tomato and pepper into the soil. Water with a fine spray or light sprinkle and cover pot with a pane of glass or sheet of plastic. Leave cover on until seeds sprout and then remove. Give seedlings ample light when they are up and don't let the soil dry out.

With a little TLC you will have good plants to set outside when the weather becomes warm.

America to introduce to Europe.

But, back to your own property: you can have a border, next to the grass, of low-growing boxwood or, if this is to be a one-year project, a row of parsley. Behind that primary border, you could plant red, white and blue ribbons of petunias.

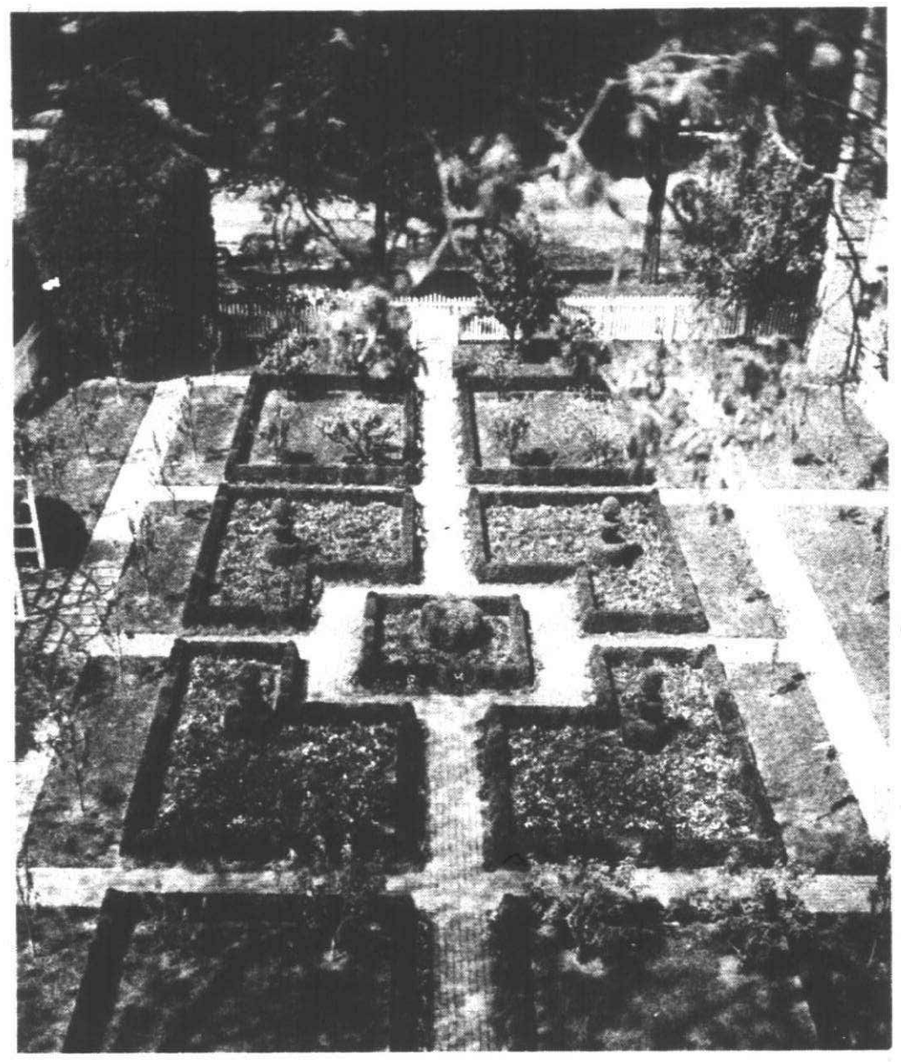

As the earlier settlers were very independent, you might like to imitate their attitudes and finish your space with plantings of herbs such as basil, chives, dill (these are tall, so plant in the back of the garden), marjoram, sage, rosemary and thyme (plant this low-growing herb near the front). All of these are to be found in the gardens of colonial Williamsburg.

It would also be appropriate for all homeowners to plant a special tree in a family ceremony to celebrate the bicentennial year. A flowering dogwood or a saucer magnolia are possibilities that could also have been seen blossoming in our early colonial communities. And the tree ceremonies have a way of becoming very important in the memories of children.

So, whether or not colonial Williamsburg is on your travel agenda for 1976, you, too, can reflect the thrill of the settling of the land.

The colonists felt an intense appreciation and loyalty for the land. We can echo their sentiments right on our own property with a colonial garden, the planting of a bicentennial tree, a grace and beauty that is often commented upon by overseas travelers.

We are America.

The Bryan Garden, a pleasure garden, features dwarf and tree box and includes a special topiary accent in the form of a "setting hen" in the center bed.

A bicentennial doghouse?

Liven up your repainting job this spring—to the tune of the red, white and blue. Give your dog a Bicentennial home!

Prepare the surface thoroughly before you begin painting. Make sure it is clean and dry. First, scrape and sand all loose and flaking paint. Sand spots over and around nail heads also, to rid them of rust. Then, remove the dust with a cloth or dry brush.

Apply a rust-inhibitor primer to seal the nail heads. The last step is to prime the spots where scraping and sanding have exposed the bare wood.

With a quality paint and paint brush, paint the two sides of your doghouse white. Start at the top and paint down. After the sides dry completely, stencil in 1776 on one side and 1976 on the other side.

It's hard to decide among types of siding

An exterior home remodeling project often means new siding. Several types are available, each with its advantages and drawbacks.

Wood siding is the traditional choice. It is a good insulator, but it is subject to rot, cracking and termite damage, and must be painted regularly. It lasts a long time and is not easy to damage.

"Before you install wood siding, put an undercoat of paint on both sides of each piece," experts advise. "This helps to prevent moisture vapor in the house from getting into the siding and causing the outside paint to peel."

Pre-primed and even pre-finished hardwood siding is available, he notes.

Hardboard siding looks and acts much like wood siding, but it does not crack as wood sometimes does. It can be purchased with a prime coat on both sides and a pre-finished vinyl coat on one side. This finish is nearly permanent and should not fade with time. Pre-finishing may make changing the color difficult, however.

Aluminum siding is popular because its baked-on vinyl or acrylic finish makes it practically maintenance-free. Some manufacturers guarantee their product will not fade for at least 35 years. Aluminum siding also does not rot, rust, peel, blister, corrode or burn.

"A drawback of aluminum siding is that it readily conducts heat," specialists say. "It also tends to be very noisy in a hard rain or hail, and it dents rather easily."

A polystyrene or fiber-board backing on aluminum siding reduces the cause the reduced number of roots have to work harder to get it.

Not all sod is 100 per cent free of weed. There may be a few popping up here and there. The most practical way to eliminate them is with one of the spot weed killers.

Your new sod will also need fertilizing during the growing season. Put on an application during the warm weather--making sure to water itund still another in the fall.

Once the sod becomes established it will grow as fast as other grasses. For the first year, at least, set the mower so that it will cut at a height of 1½ inches, no shorter.
