Greenstein goes to school

Certification coming for police

By CRAIG PIECHURA
Canton Editor

Beginning Oct. 4, as many as 15 Canton Township reserve police officers will be enrolled in a seven-week regular police course at the Criminal Justice Institute of Detroit (CJI)—and if they pass, Canton will employ certified police officers for local patrols.

Supervisor-Police Chief Robert Greenstein made the announcement at the end of Tuesday night's board meeting, explaining that regular (not reserve) police training could provide "the only answer to quiet the unreasonable fears" of the many critics of Canton's controversial full-power, armed, reserve police department.

Greenstein also announced that he will be among those enrolled in the 280-credit-hour CJI course. Classes begin at 6:45 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

For a change, all seven members of the Canton Tonwship Board agreed on a motion to send up to 15 people to CJI for regular police training.

Calling himself a "lame-duck supervisor," Greenstein said he could no longer effectively work on long-range programs such as the master land use plan and the farmer's market. Therefore, he claimed he would be doing Canton citizens "a bigger service" by going to police school during the day.

"I will come back after the school and work from 3:30 till 10 o'clock in the evening on township hall business if necessary," said Greenstein. "Every phone call will be returned. I'm willing to do double duty."

CJI school will not cost Canton a cent, according to Greenstein, because the program is fully funded by the federal government.

Fire Chief Melvin Paulun reminded Greenstein that there was a $350 cost incurred when Canton sent three firemen to a "free school."

While the board motion authorized as many as 15 people to take the police officer training class, Greenstein said "only 11 have guaranteed us that they'll be able to take the class."

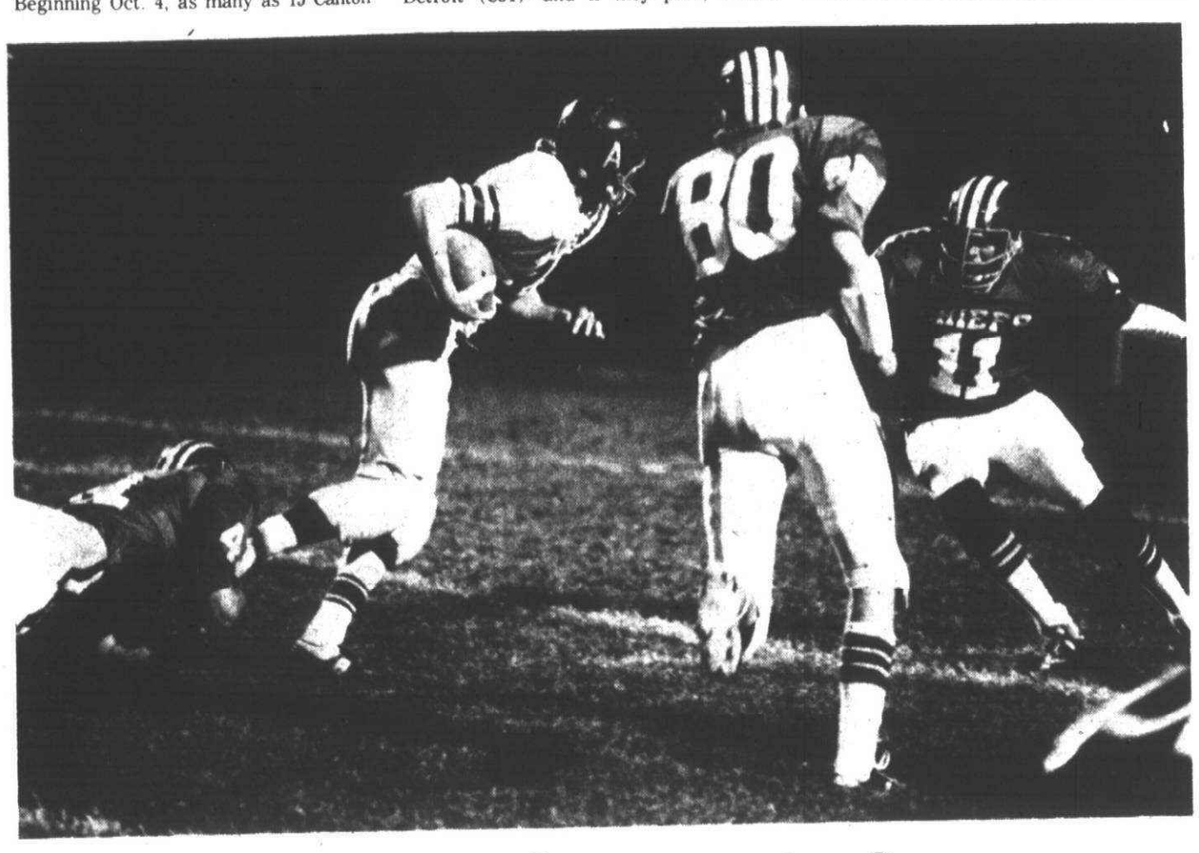

Only current Canton reserves and residents who are presently undergoing reserve police training are eligible to go to CJI for the Oct. 4 class.

When the Canton contingent graduates from CJI, they will be designated as part-time regularly-employed peace officers of Canton Township. Right now only Commander Carl Silvers holds the title "part-time regularly-employed peace officer." Greenstein says a salary adjustment will probably be made by the board at the time of graduation, raising the certified officer's pay up from minimum wage ($2.30 an hour)to possibly $3 an hour.

"I'm sure this action will make the Wayne County Sheriff's Department very happy," said Greenstein. "By making almost 15 men certified police officers, we will be backing Wayne County Sheriff's into the only corner they have left."

Greenstein said it was not his original intention to expand the reserves into a regular police department.

"That was never our intention," he said. "But we we're pushed so unmercifully, that this seems like the only answer to quiet the unreasonable fears of the many critics of Canton's police reserves."

Happy homecoming?

Plymouth Canton grid fans will be expecting another fine defensive performance from the Chiefs this Friday night, when Waterford Mott invades the Centennial Park field for the 8 p.m. homecoming battle. The Chiefs won their first game of the season last Saturday night, defeating Annapolis 18-8. Grabbing a leg of an Annapolis runner is Canton's Scott Gray (41) while Randy Rienas (11) and Mark Miller (80) assist. The Friday homecoming game is the climax of the festive week and the annual crowning of the homecoming queen will take place at halftime of the contest. Appointments make trustees cry 'cronyism'

Amid cries of cronyism from his adversary board members and audience members, Supervisor Robert Greenstein recommended five persons for positions on the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and one person to the planning commission.

Joyce Willis, a member of the Greenstein political slate was nominated and approved to fill the vacant spot on the Canton Township Planning Commission caused by Robert Simmons' departure.

Greenstein appointed himself to a three-year term on the ZBA. He appointed James Donahue, 2022 Cavalier, to a three-year term on the zoning board. Donahue is an active member of Forest Brook Homeowner's Association and one of the coordinators of the Greenstein write-in campaign presently being conducted.

Tom Quinn, 1477 Morrison, was approved for a three-year post on the ZBA. John Burdziak, 7543 Kingsbridge, was appointed to a two-year term. Burdziak is an officer in the Windsor Park Homeowner's Association. Bob Miller, chairman of the planning commission is automatically a member of the ZBA.

All ZBA terms begin at the time of board approval.

All six appointments were approved by a 4-3 vote of the township board. Voting for the appointments were Greenstein, Treasurer Carl Parsell, Clerk John Flodin and Trustee Jerry Cheske. Opposing the appointments were Trustees James Poole, Robert Myers, and E. Brian Schwall.

Schwall was visibly upset by the appointments and showed his displeasure by covering his face with his hands and shaking his head.

"What we've seen here tonight is a perpetuation of the spoils system," Schwall said. "That's the history of all township appointments. If it's a post that pays, it's a political crony who gets the job."

Greenstein overheard Schwall's comments which were made after the meeting and tore into Schwall for "laying back and criticizing."

"I'm tired of taking flack when those guys on the board sit on their ass," Greenstein said.

Greenstein said no other members of the township board had offered suggestions for the open positions. He said while it may be true that some of the appointees are his friends, "they were all picked because they've been very active in civic and township functions here in Canton Township."

Greenstein said he welcomes anyone to check the qualifications of any of his appointees. He also mentioned his past appointment of former supervisor Philip Dingeldey (to the tax board of review) and Dick Palmer as evidence that he also appointed people who were politically opposed to him.

Greenstein said he based his appointment decisions on "the best interests of the township."

"I won't avoid making a decision just because I'll run into a lot of flack," Greenstein said. "I do what I believe is in the best interests of the township. People say they want a politician with guts.

"These are people who have proven themselves—people who are honest and upright," Greenstein said. "The zoning board of appeals doesn't deal in politics. It deals with things like the locations of garages and lot setbacks. It's not fun. But it's important and these people have a big job in making sure that the integrity of the zoning ordinances are upheld."

Which twp. employes are in civil service?

By DARLENE STINSON

Who falls under Canton's civil service ordinance?

Must part-time employees be hired through the civil-service testing procedure? How about department heads?

No one, not even Trustee Robert Myers, a member of the township's Civil Service Commission (CSC), apparently knows.

Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein and Twp. Atty. William Sempliner place the blame for the confusion on the township's civil service ordinance, which, they say is unworkable.

"It started when we tried to discipline an employee and found there was no way, because of the appelate process written into the ordinance," Greenstein explains. "In my opinion, the ordinance is so unworkable, that we don't have one."

To make matters even more confusing, Greensteins says township board members may "arbitrarily" use the civil service ordinance in the hiring of fire department employees or members of the township's police department.

Wayne Circuit Judge Thomas Sullivan recently supported Greenstein's point of view, when he ruled that Canton's police and fire department employees do not have to be hired through civil service procedures. Neither Supervisor-Police Chief Greenstein nor Police Commander Carl Silvers was hired through civil service.

Sullivan based his decision on township voters' adoption of Canton's civil service ordinance in 1972. Voters adopted a local ordinance which did not specifically include hiring of police and fire department employees, the judge said, instead of a state civil service statute which specifically addresses those types of employees.

But, despite Sullivan's decision, a spokesman for the firefighters' union says all members of the Canton Fire Department except volunteers (which the township's civil service ordinance does not mention) were hired through civil service procedures.

"The only thing I personally felt, was that he (Sullivan) didn't know what he was talking about," said Harry Harrison, secretary of Local 2289 of the International Association of Firefighters, of the judge's decision.

"We were and we still are civil service. We all took a civil service exam. The only ones in the fire department who aren't civil service would be the volunteers."

Myers, as a CSC member, says he does not know which township employees fall under civil service and which do not.

"That's a good question," said Myers, when asked for a list of civil service employees' names. "They've done a lot of hiring down there (township offices) the last couple of months, and I honestly don't know how many are civil service and how many aren't."

Myers says the CSC members requested a list of civil service employees from the township's administration in the spring of 1975 but never received the list.

But Greenstein hotly contests Myers' charge. The CSC, the supervisor says, requested a list of township employees, which it received.

"That's nonsense," he said about Meyers' charge concerning the civil service list. "The township administration has no jurisdiction over civil service. How should we know ? That's their job."

Greenstein said employees hired with his knowledge during the last 10 months included three building inspectors hired through civil service. A few employees, he added, were hired with federal CETA funds or as part-time help—jobs not classified as civil service by the CSC.

Under the township's civil service statute, Greenstein explained, the CSC must classify jobs as civil service and hold examinations for different classification of jobs. When a job opening becomes available, the township administration requests a list of applicants' names and test scores, conducts interviews with the three highest-ranking applicants and hires the best-qualified applicant.

"Since 1972, the CSC has never classified a part-time job," Greenstein said. "When they change that policy, we'll hire people from their list."

Greenstein does not place the blame for the civil service confusion on the CSC.

"Under the existing ordinance, it seems they've done their job as well as it can be done," he said. "It's just that the ordinance is bad. I don't think there's any confusion about that. If it weren't an election year, there wouldn't be a ripple."

Greenstein believes the answer to the civil service confusion lies in a new ordinance.

"About six months ago, the civil service commission said they'd spend their time developing a new ordinance. No ordinance I'm aware of makes every employee civil service. No administrative heads fall under civil service or part-time employees," he said.

The CSC is still working on that ordinance.

Feathers fly in fowl festival

By PATRICK TOUHEY

A wise, old, drug store philosopher once said,"There is nothing people love better than pure unadulterated foolishness; if you give them the least little excuse to get involved in some, they'll take you up on it every time."

And judging from the uproar that has started to develop around the chicken flying race sponsored by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, one is pressed to admit that there is more than a grain of truth to his words.

While the rest of the nation concerns itself with trivialities such as the presidential election, the Ford Motor Co. strike, and high unemployment figures, the Plymouth community is gearing its energies toward producing a champion chicken: That's right, a champion chicken.

"DON'T YOU LOVE it," said Joan Gerigk, chairperson of the chamber's retail committee. "I can't believe what is happening. We had no idea that people would get so involved and go to so much trouble. It's crazy, but I love it."

According to Gerigk, the prospect of the Oct. 10 contest has precipitated behavior on the part of grown, rational adults that defies analysis and makes the imagination reel.

But before we actually delve into enumeration and list specifics, a word of caution is in order. Under the best of circumstances it is difficult to distinguish fact from rumor and fantasy from reality; in circumstances such as the one presently under consideration, the task is made even harder because the people involved have the natural instinct of self-preservation and the socially inculcated desire to avoid confinement in certain institutions. An old adage about "a grain of salt" comes to mind.

So, with caution given (and hopefully heeded), we may proceed along our path of inquiry.

AS NEAR AS this reporter can say, it all started out rather harmlessly when the retail committee of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce decided to have a chicken flying race on Sunday Oct. 10 between noon and 6 p.m. on the central block of Main Street (between Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman Avenue). Having so decided, they made a public announcement and sat back to wait for entries.

So far, so good, but it was shortly after the race become general knowledge that stories concerning strange and apparently unrelated events started to be circulated.

The first indication that something was afoot was a mysterious "night deposit" at the First National Bank of Plymouth on Main Street. The bank staff was planning to enter a chicken in the race, and in the spirit of good, clean fun they bought a rubber facsimile and placed it in a wooden cage behind the counter. The intention was to have an employees-only chicken naming contest. However, some local citizens (who wish to remain unnamed) got wind of the bird's location and sometime after the bank closed on Friday and before it opened on Saturday, they substituted a live chicken for the rubber one.

When Bill Graham unlocked the doors on Saturday morning and was greeted by a loud squawk, he couldn't decide if he should be amused or angry.

"I don't know how it got here," he said. "I have my suspicions, but I can't prove anything."

None of the staff stepped foward with an explanation.

ALTHOUGH DATES, places, and participants are not known, rumor has it that the Mayflower Hotel was the victim of a similarily engineered chicken-placing. Sometime this week, the story goes, another group of citizens gained entry, under the cover of darkness, to Ralph Lorenz's office and left a huge papier mache fowl in the

SC ponders hike in tuition fees

Schoolcraft College students who had their tuitions raised this year have told the board of trustees they don't deserve to be hit by another increase in tuition or fees.

But chances are some fees will be raised as the community college wrestles with a projected $395,000 deficit with no hope of more state aid or property taxes.

Meanwhile, trustees were told by their auditors at the Sept. 22 board meeting that the college's cash balance declined by $150,000 from last fiscal year.

PRESIDENT C. Nelson Grote, instructed by the board to list all possible options, came up with eight sets of fees that could be raised. The board will decide which—or which combination—to raise in October.

The options, all aimed at raising $93,000 in revenue for this fiscal year, are:

•Rental of physical education uniforms, about $2,000. Gym or swim uniforms that rented for $6 a semester could be raised to $7.50.

•Commencement fees, $3,000. Currently a graduating student is charged $5, but costs run $12.09. The fee could be raised to $12.50.

•Tuition surcharge, $100,000. It would be possible to place a temporary surcharge on tuitions of $1 per credit hour for college district residents, $2 for other state residents and $3 for non-residents. This could be done in the winter and spring semesters.

•Drop-add fee, no revenue estimate and a cumbersome process. Students adding or dropping classes during late registrations or any other time during the semester could be charged a fee. About 1,000 drops or adds occur each semester.

•Contact hour fee, $15,000. In courses such as science labs and culinary arts, a student may spend more hours in "contact" with an instructor than he would in an English class. There is a possibility of charging an additional $1 per contact hour where contact hours exceed credit hours. For example, a biology student getting three semester hours credit, but getting seven contact hours per week, could be charged a $4 fee.

•Registration fee, $67,000. Students could be charged a $5 registration fee. Mahy four-year colleges do this; Eastern Michigan reportedly charges $20 and Henry Ford Community College has started to do so. This could begin with the winter semester.

•Catalog sales, $20,000 or more. Catalogs of course offerings are usually free. A charge of $1 a copy when purchased on campus, or $1.25 when bought by mail, could be instituted.

•GED test fee, nearly $800. Currently, anyone taking a General Educational Development test to determine if one has the equivalent of a high school education, pays a $5 fee. This could be lifted to $10 for non-residents of the college district.

THE BUDGET, when approved by the board June 30, was pegged at nearly $9.9 million. As of last week, however, revenue projections had shrunk to $9.5 million.

One reason was an enrollment decline, due to an improving economy accompanied by shrinking tuition and fees from $2.6 million to $2.4 million.

Another was the state appropriation, which is based on credit hours, will shrink from $4.1 million to $3.9 million.

Combined, they meant a budget cut of just under $400,000.

More than $300,000 in budget cuts could be made, Grote said, by retiring five plant personnel, retiring two office personnel, not filling two faculty vacancies and not filling one administrative vacancy; by saving on part-time faculty costs due to the reduced enrollment; and through being charged less for a retirement fund.

This leaves $93,000 to be raised through increasing revenue.

A FEE INCREASE is likely to be resisted by the Student Senate, which campaigned vigorously last June for the property tax increase that voters rejected.

The Senate had hoped the millage increase would stave off need for a tuition or fee increase.

Earlier in the meeting, Student Senate President Jeff Stabenau told the board the senate "demands. . . that the final (faculty contract) settlement will not necessitate an increase in student tuition or fees."

Rules are changed for student busing

The Plymouth Community School District will bus its young elementary school children to class if they live more than a mile from school despite the fact that it will cost the district $43,000 in state transportation funds.

The change is a victory for district parents who opposed the origianl 1½ mile limit. They feared that the additional ½ mile along major thoroughfares in winter darkness would increase the danger ofchildren becomeing involved in traffic accidents.

The board also approved an expenditure of nearly $95,000 to implement the amended policy and purchase four 66—passenger buses and three 23—passenger vans from the low bidder, Classrooms, Inc. Both votes were unanimous.

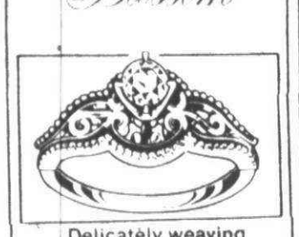

School Supt. John M. Hoben expects about 800 kinderegartners, first and second graders will be effected by the amended requirement. Hoben hopes to implement the amended busing policy for K-2 children as soon as the buses arrive, hopefully, within the next three weeks.

The district, he adds, may have to hire additional drivers because of the amended policy.

According to school officials, the district loses about $54 in state transportation re—embursement for each child bused to school who does not live more than 1½ from school. Board members had changed the district's transportation policy two months ago to conform o with that of the State of Michigan inorder to get the re—embursement.

Williams' piano business hits a crescendo

By GLENN BUNTING

What started as a hobby of rebuilding grand pianos in his Livonia basement, has turned into the construction of an 8,000 square foot building on the corner of Canton Center and Ford roads in Canton Township for Arnholdt Williams' Music Store.

A move that is, according to Williams, far overdue, the new Music Center will hopefully be completed by late December so the present showroom can be converted into an educational structure.

A civilian instructor for the Air Force, Williams said "his whole life changed" when his father-in-law, a professional piano tuner, moved to Michigan in the '20s and later taught Arnie the intricacies of the piano.

After acquiring a deft hand at rebuilding pianos, Williams was employed by Grinnell Brothers for eight years before opening his own business in the basement of his Livonia home.

When his father-in-law passed away in 1955, Williams purchased the Canton property and immediately began to get involved in retail sales. In 1964, Arnie sold his first new piano and has since grown to become recognized as one of the best professional retail outlets.

THAT ISN'T to say Arnie's inventory doesn't meet the needs of the beginner who strolls into the store without any experience. (You need not feel the least bit embarrassed since Williams himself doesn't play the piano.) His current store is so full of various pianos, it reminds one of a jammed parking lot.

The store's most exciting news came when Williams announced thoughts of expanding his fast growing business. With the support of his family, which plays a major role in the store's affairs, Arnie's planning for the new building has been in the making for three years.

The edifice will become a reality at the end of the year, when the Williams family will start designing the interior. Arnie is anxiously looking forward to the completion of the building so he can begin working in the spacious showroom.

Despite all the success and publicity Williams has earned over the years, nothing stands out more than the working relationship with his family in the music industry.

"As a family, we're fortunate that we can work together and strive to attain similar goals," Arnie said. His son, John, and daughter, Yvonne, along with wife, Janice, are all valuable assets to Williams' store.

"WHEN I FIRST opened the repair shop in my basement, Janice swore she'd never get into the business," Arnie recalled. "But she's grown closer to music and has discovered what fun it can be dealing with people and satisfying their needs. We all enjoy selling merchandise we know people will enjoy."

Yvonne, who was a sales representative in New York before returning to Michigan, and Janice handle customer relations and refinish woodwork, among other things.

Williams' 22-year-old son John is a wizard in electronic instruments. Specializing in moog synthesizers, electric guitars and amplifiers, John runs the electronic equipment department in his dad's store, which he initiated on a part-time basis while in high school.

John handles only professional equipment and has sold pieces to such famous performers as Rick Wakeman, formerly of the rock group Yes, and the Grand Funk Railroad. He and Yvonne both played in the Plymouth High School Marching Band.

Arnie himself is no slouch either. A master mechanic who has professionally tuned more than 15,000 pianos, he is recognized as one of the best rebuilders around. Arnie suffered a heart attack a little more than a year ago, but one would never know it.

WILLIAMS IS in superb shape and is energetic as ever about his work and the expansion.

"Being a mechanic is a great advantage in this business," Arnie said. "Few things are well assembled these days, which is the reason why new instruments are prepped before being placed in the showroom.

"We have a checklist that every piano must pass before it is sold. We feel this is a solid approach to selling and makes the guarantee worth something."

The present showroom will be replaced by an educational facility so the Williams can bring music instruction to the area. Piano lessons for the beginner, both youth and adult, and a course in electronic music and moog synthesizers will be taught when the building is remodeled and ready to go in January.

Additional facilities in the new structure will include a recital hall, a repair center and a recording room. John has taped several albums for area high school choirs, including a pair of recent ones for Livonia Churchill.

Arnie has been forced to battle several nuisances to build the outstanding reputation his store has earned today. His location is not an ideal one—far away from performers in Detroit and its immediate suburbs. There's also the problem a small businessman must overcome financially when trying to expand.

But the Williams have succeeded. As John put it, "In the music industry, more is said about your service by word of mouth than any special price or instrument."

Apparently the word passed around between performers on Williams Music Store has been a pretty darn good one.

It's not enough to know music theory these days —a budding musician has to be an electronics whiz to operate and program a Moog synthesizer. John Williams is considered by many to be one of the few people in the area who have skills in both.(Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Write-in hotline set up

With the election only a month away, the forces pushing a write-in for the Greenstein slate have initiated a special telephone hotline to elicit voter support.

The number listed as "the Greenstein write-in line" is 397- 2424.

When that number was called, the woman who answered did not immediately identify it as the Greenstein hotline.

She would not give her name and refused to say whether the hotline headquarters was in a home or business.

"Who am I. I'm one of the people manning the phones," she said. "Where am I, it's a phone, that's all I can say, hold on I've got another call on the line."

She said she'd have someone named Jim Donoghue call the Observer & Eccentric.

A fellow who would only identify himself as "Jim" called back to explain that all press inquiries were being handled by the write-in campaign spokesman, Tom Carman.

Carman, he explained, was out of town for the next two days.

"I am to say absolutely nothing on all questions regarding the write-in campaign itself; who's running it and how it's being run," said Jim X.

"There are many functions to be performed in this effort, and everything at the top level is to be handled through Carman. He handles media relations.

"I hate to put you off like this, man."

Jim X. did say that he and others became involved in the write-in campaign because "we just weren't happy with the previous election and the way it went."

Current supervisor Robert Greenstein was defeated in the primary bid for Democratic supervisor candidate. Other defeated members of his slate include the present treasurer, Carl Parsell, Trustee Jerry Cheske and Joyce Willis, trustee hopeful. Clerk John Flodin was the only person on the Greenstein slate to win in the primary.

No one on the Greenstein slate has done anything to dissuade people from soliciting support for a write-in.

Greenstein believes that the 35 per cent voter turnout in the primary did not constitute a mandate and alleges that his slate was victimized by alleged dirty tricks. Earlier this month Greenstein stated that he would actively support the write-in effort if 5,000 signatures were collected by campaign workers.

2 bond issues pass in W-W

Cheers greeted election workers Monday night as both bond issues on the ballot in the Wayne-Westland School District were approved by decisive margins in what Supt. Tim Dyer described as a "massive victory."

"I think tonight's massive victory speaks strongly for support of our schools," said Dyer. "This shows the tenacity of a great community that wants to be greater. We have the people of the community to thank."

"We know who really won this election, and that's the kids," commented board Vice President Thomas Barrett.

Voter turnout increased by 1,022 in this campaign compared with a similar election in December 1975.

PROPOSAL I, for repair of existing school buildings, carried all 32 precincts by a 4,871-2,734 (2-1) vote. A similar proposal lost last December by 93 votes.

Proposal II, for a vocational/techinical center and secondary level special education facilities, carried 29 of 32 precincts by a 4,500-2,936 (3-2) vote.

Voters in precincts 24 (Walker) and 25 (Washington) each defeated Proposal II by one vote. In precinct 14 (Washington), voters defeated the proposal by nine votes.

This was the third try by the district for the bond issues.

In a light moment, Barrett commented, "I think we've finally figured out what we have to do to get this passed—send Robert Reichard (board president) out of town." Barret referred to Reichard's absence from the district on business. Reichard called the board offices later that night for the results.

Each time bond issues failed, the school administration revised the proposals, eliminating projects which they said met voter objections. A survey in early August showed the district had a problem communicating with residents, according to Dyer. Officials emphasized communication during this campaign.

Deputy Supt. Dennis O'Neill said two phone surveys taken Sept. 14 and 20 apparently were accurate. The first projected 11.4 per cent of the residents casting no votes, and the second projected 6.4 per cent voting no. An additional 45 per cent each survey were undecided or made no response.

seat behind his desk.

It is at this point that we must leave the relatively concrete ground of the past tense and slip into the soft swamp of speculation about the future.

Our guides, though, are as unimpeachable as can be obtained in troubled times like these; they represent "high level sources" in the community rumor mill. And if what they say has any relation to veracity whatsoever, we can expect the unbelieveable.

For example, it has been hinted that the Ford plant on Sheldon Road is going to enter not one but three chickens, and, they are planning to bring them to town on the day of the race in individual black Lincoln Continentals, accompanied by—are you ready—bodyguards.

"They have really gotten caught up in it," said a spokesperson. "It has become an executive-against-executive thing. I've even heard that they have strategy meetings in the morning."

NOT TO BE outdone, the J.L. Hudson Realty Company is said to have checked out the possibility of bringing its chicken in on horseback, and the Plymouth Credit Union wants to arrange a Brinks Truck as transportation for its contestant.

Hugh Jarvis, it was learned, has commissioned a professional chicken handler in an unknown area of southwest Michigan to train a winning chicken for him in secret.

Speculation also has it that several businesses are planning to use cheerleaders and pon-pom girls to urge their entries on to victory.

BECAUSE OF THE swell of plans and activities, the chamber felt justified in expanding on the original program.

"We thought it would be a good idea to have a parade before the actual race," Gerigk said. "So we are going to have everybody meet in the central parking lot right before the race and then march up Penniman Avenue. Don't you love it?"

Gerigk indicated that the chamber has left no stone unturned in the search for a master of ceremonies.

"I have written and sent a letter to Ed McMahon, Alex Karras, President Ford, Ronald Regan, Jimmy Carter, Dom DeLuise, Mark "The Bird" Fydrich, and Paul Harvey, but so far, I haven't heard anything. We'll just have to wait and see."

AS OF YESTERDAY there were 53 chickens entered in the race, but Gerigk said that there was still time to enter a chicken. The entry fee is $35, payable to the Chamber of Commerce.

However, for those who can't see their way clear to actually racing a chicken but still want to involve themselves in the loss of perspective and hysteria, the Plymouth Sport Shop on Ann Arbor Trail is offering tasteful "Chickenshirts" for sale.

Oh, one more thing: Channel 7 News (WXYZ) is going to send out a camera crew to cover the event live.

Don't you love it?

SC board to go to court on teacher absence rule

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees has been subpoenaed to appear before Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Horace W. Gilmore Friday to determine whether its "proof of illness" provision for teachers should continue.

The board decided to require a proof of illness for absent teachers on Sept. 22, the same day about one-third of the faculty called in sick with the "Grote Grippe," named for the school's president.

The day before, Sept. 21, a majority of teachers used a personal business day to stay away from school, closing the campus down.

The faculty's decision to stop using its sick days was not made because of the board's proof of illness requirement, according to Dick Arlen, president of the Faculty Forum and the teachers' chief negotiator.

"We stopped because of progress made at the negotiating table," Arlen said, "not because of their actions. There's a difference. We're interested in a contract, not in walking out."

UNDER AN EXTENDED deadline, the old contract was due to expire Thursday, but teachers have informed the board they are willing to extend the contract until Oct. 11.

"We don't know what we'll do then," Arlen said, "we'll just have to wait and find out."

But Dave Heinzman, SC public relations director, said the board will have to decide if it will agree to a further extension of the contract or if the teachers will work without a contract.

The contract at the college expired Aug. 23 and negotiations for a new contract have been underway since May.

FOR SOME students at the college, the settlement is just taking too long.

"The faculty waited too long in relation to their concern with the students," said Chris Bueter, student and editor of the school's weekly newspaper, The Campus Globe.

"They've been negotiating for months and they should have come to a decision or should have not started back to school. It's the students who are losing out, it's their money," he said.

An example of the students' frustration over the faculty-board battle was an editorial entitled "Negotiators Unconcerned About Students" that appeared in Tuesday's edition of the Globe.

The editorial stated that the negotiations were similiar to a football game, with "the faculty and the administration as the two teams and the students are the football being kicked around."

ITEMS STILL to be resolved in the new contract are: incorporating part-time faculty into the bargaining agreement; revisions of certain job descriptions; duration of a new contract and economics.

Proposals that may be close to a settlement are: budget priorities; restriction of full-time faculty to one off-campus class; department representatives; life insurance; evaluation of administrators; expansion of faculty grant fund; increased travel allowance; reimbursement for graduate college courses; extension of the contract to apply all conditions for the entire year; providing one office and a secretary in each classroom building open in the evening; allowing faculty to decide the severity of weather conditions if they decide to stay home without loss of pay, sick days or personal business days; and removal of a "board rights clause."

Fall color show

The fall color show by Michigan trees will probably be a little less brilliant this year because rainfall has not been adequate.

"Normally, excellent fall colors come with warm, dry fall weather which has been precede by our normal five to six inch rainfall through the summer. But this year most of Michigan's woodlands have received less than half that amount," says Dr. Melvin R. Koelling, Michigan State University cooperative extension forestry specialist.

Drying tends to turn leaves prematurely brown and causes them to drop before the normal brilliant colors can be seen.

Leaves fall from trees because an abscission (separation) layer which forms across the leaf stem where it meets the branch. The layer, a result of temperature change and water deficit, blocks the passage of nutrients and moisture to the leaf.

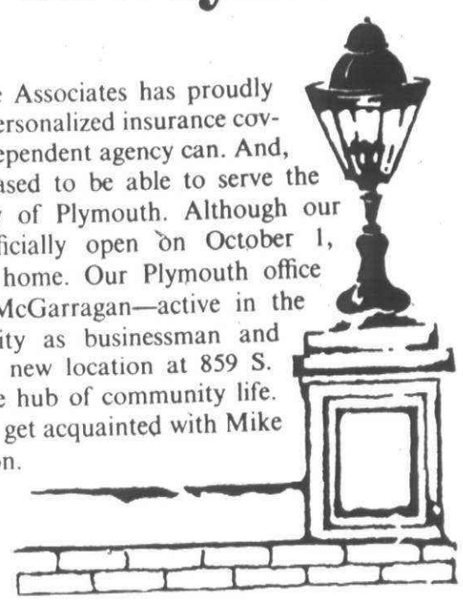

"This is a stress reaction. Under normal conditions, we should not be seeing a color change or much of a leaf drop for another week or two," Koelling says.

Frost is not a color enhancer, but has the same effect of dry weatherIt is the decrease in temperature and fewer daylight hours which reveals latent colors in leaves.

Koelling says that a leaf has several pigments which, during summer, are masked by chlorophyll, a green photosynthetic material necessary for tree growth. These pigments, carotene, xanthophyll and anthocyine produce orange, yellow and red-to-purple color hues, respectively.

"As temperature and the amount of daylight declines during fall, the tree stops making chlorophyll. This process unmasks these pigments, giving us the sometimes fiery shades of yellow, orange, crimson, purple or bright red," Koelling says.

We need your business.

Last year local businessmen in the tri-county area made a big investment: a sizeable contribution to the United Foundation Torch Drive. And their investment is bringing sizeable returns as the citizens of 113 communities in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties benefit from health and medical research programs, youth and recreational services, family counseling, aid to the handicapped and many other Torch Drive-supported services.

To these businessmen, we say, "Thanks . . . we appreciate your business."

And, we say, "Please . . . won't you help again?"

The Torch Drive needs your business to make our community a healthy place for everyone . . . and a better place for you to do business.

In a few days, a special Torch Drive volunteer will be calling on you. Remember, that single volunteer represents nearly 140 different Torch Drive agencies in our community.

Please give a helping hand. Make a big investment through a generous pledge to this year's Torch Drive. We need your business.

Blend a fragrance to suit your mood

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

In this column we have often discussed the value of aromatic aphrodisiacs. Years ago, everyone knew how to prepare sachets and pot pourris that emitted sensuous fragrances to turn minds to thoughts of love.

With the advent of commercial air fresheners, the making of pot pourris is almost a forgotten art. Yet a well-prepared mixture displayed in an attractive or unusual container can add much to the romantic atmosphere of a room.

By experimenting you can blend a frgrance all your own, to be used in sachets. Tuck these inside drawers to scent your clothing, or carry them on your body, instead of wearing oils or perfumes.

Here is my favorite pot pourri recipe, which combines the love-inducing fragrance of the rose with several other ingredients famed for their aphrodisiac effects.

MATERIALS:
2 glass bowls
a wooden spoon
a large apothecary jar with a cork or glass stopper

INGREDIENTS:
1 oz. crushed coriander
¼ oz. cardamon
¼ oz. tonka beans
2 oz. lavendar flowers
2 oz. powdered orris root
4 oz. rose buds
10 drops rose oil

PROCEDURE:

1. In a large glass bowl, mix together the tonka beans, cardamon, coriander, and orris. If you buy the whole tonka beans, crush them by wrapping them in a towel and hitting them several times with a hammer. Use whole cardamon pods, and crush them between your fingers. Use the bits of shell as well as the seeds in the mixture.

2. In the other bowl, combine the lavendar and the rose buds. Crush slightly to release the fragrance.

3. Combine the floral and spice ingredients in one bowl, and stir with a wooden spoon (never allow any metal to come in contact with the ingredients, as it spoils the aroma).

4. Add the rose oil to the dry ingredients, and stir well with the wooden spoon.

5. Now place the mixture in a large apothecary jar, and cork it tightly.

6. Put this in a cool, dark place (the refrigerator will do) for two weeks. Shake the jar well every other day.

7. When the mixture has been properly aged, place it in an attractive container (not metal), and set it in a room. The difference in the colors of the ingredients, and the beauty of the tiny dried rose buds make this a very attractive conversation piece, as well as an aromatic aphrodisiac that rids the room of stale odors, and makes it a nicer place to be.

Or sew the mixture into little silk bags and place them in your closet drawers to scent clothes and linens. These bags can also be worn around your neck, or suspended on a belt loop to scent your body.

Regional Roundup

FEATHERS TO FLY

As hard to believe as it may be, the Plymouth community is working itself into a fever pitch all because of an upcoming chicken race. Strikes and elections have taken a back seat to the uproar which a chamber of commerce committee has started by scheduling a chicken flying event for Oct. 10. Dozens of organizations are planning to enter trained fowls, and, in the words of a chamber spokesman, "I can't believe what is happening. It's crazy, but I love it."

SAVE THE WOODS

Homeowners and Livonia city councilmen met Tuesday to discuss ways to save a 9½-acre woods that a developer wants to use for a new subdivision. The council made no decision but scheduled another committee meeting for Oct. 19 to get more information. The residents want the woods retained for open space and ecology reasons and to save an animal sanctuary.

BOND ISSUES APPROVED

Voters in the Wayne-Westland School District approved two bond issues in Monday's election. Proposal I, for renovation of existing school buildings, was approved by nearly a 2-1 vote. Proposal II, for a voc-tech center and secondary special education facilities, was approved by a 3-2 vote.

GC HOUSING REQUESTS BALLOON

Garden City officials say everybody's noticing the new senior citizen housing project under construction north of city hall on Middle Belt. The city has received more than 800 requests from residents and nonresidents who are interested in renting an apartment. "We're not trying to discourage people from signing up," said one city official, "but we only have 170 apartments." The 10-story high rise is expected to be ready for occupancy in July.

TALK IMPASSE

Along with 16 other Wayne County school districts, South Redford teachers are still without a contract and label negotiations with the school board "completely frustrating." Both the school board negotiator Chester Wachowski and the teacher negotiating team expressed desire for a contract but each side believes the other side is unwilling to compromise and have released details of their proposals to the public.

CERTIFICATION COMING

Up to 15 Canton Township Police Reserve officers will start class Monday at the Criminal Justice Institute in Detroit—a class that would make them regular, certified police officers upon graduation. Canton's reserves made headlines in the major media recently due to the fact that the Wayne County Sheriff's Department said the reserves lacked sufficient training to do full-power police work and refused to cooperate with the force. Canton's lame-duck supervisor Robert Greenstein is also police chief of the reserves. He will be attending the police academy.

O&E wins 3 national awards

Observer & Eccentric Newspapers has been awarded three national awards in Suburban Newspapers of America's (SNA) fifth annual advertising and promotion contest.

The Observer & Eccentric won a first place and two certificates of excellence in competition with other newspapers of its size (more than 60,000 circulation).

Awards for the newspaper group, published by Suburban Communications Corp. of Livonia, were accepted by advertising manager Arthur Langer at the Sept. 23 Suburban Newspaper Advertising Conference in Chicago, Ill.

Newspapers are published in Livonia, Plymouth, Canton Township, Redford Township, Garden City and Westland in Wayne County and Birmingham, Troy, West Bloomfield Township, Rochester, Southfield and Farmington in Oakland County.

THE COMPETITION is designed to recognize the best efforts by suburban newspapers in advertising and promotion and to improve their quality through an exchange of knowledge and example.

Open to SNA's 700 member newspapers, the contest was organized into eight categories.

Observer & Eccentric placed first in the best classified advertising section and received commendation in the best special advertising section and the general excellence of presentation categories.

In making the award presentations, Edward Temmel, chairman of the contest and advertising manager of the Economist Newspapers in Chicago, quoted the judges as saying, "The high quality of all the entries is a reflection of the professionalism and creativity of advertising in suburban newspapers. Competition in each categoey was keen. Advertising managers and publishers of winning newspapers have every reason to be proud of their accomplishment."

On a clear night in autumn you can really see the stars

As the daylight shortens noticeably during October, many prominent stars brighten the autumn night skies, University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh says.

The daylight period, she notes, will drop from somehwat less than 12 hours at the beginning of the month to about 10 hours and 20 minutes at the end.

And, Prof. Losh adds, the night skies will show many prominent stars.

ONE OF them is Capella, or the Goat, which rises in the far northeast around sunset. Capella, in the constellation Auriga, is "the brightest star in the northeastern sky in the early evening in mid-autumn and the nearest bright star to Polaris," Prof. Losh says.

Capella is the third brightest star visible from northern latitutdes, Prof. Losh explains. "If the earth could be placed halfway between this star and the sun, the star would send us more than 100 times as much light as the sun."

However, "in spite of the beauty of Capella, it was not a favorite star with the mariners of old. They called it 'the Rainy Goat Star'," Losh adds.

COMING UP a few minutes after Capella, a little north of east, is the Pleiades, Prof. Losh points out.

"Six of these stars are quite clearly visible to the unaided eye, but exceptional eyesight may reveal a seventh, eighth or perhaps even a 10th. Optical aid and photographs will show many more." The naked-eye stars outline a small dipper.

Although this star group has no exceptionally bright stars, Prof. Losh says, "it is among the best known of all the groups.

"These stars have been worshipped, feasts held in their honor, and people far removed from each other have been guided in their agricultural and commercial pursuits by the rising and setting of this cluster," Prof. Losh says. "The rising with the sun heralded the summer season and when they rose at sunset, men knew that winter was at hand."

The Pleiades are a part of the contellation Taurus, or the Bull.

AMONG THE planets, Jupiters is the bright object rising with the Pleiades. Jupiter will be one degree north of the gibbous moon on Oct. 11.

Venus will shine in the southwestern sky from one to two hours after sunset. Mars is setting at nearly the time of sunset. Saturn rises around 3:30 a.m., a little north of east and earlier as the month progresses.

Area Belgians to congregate

Caller and Taw

Bob and Mary Brennan will direct square dance classes sponsored by the Canton-Northville-Plymouth YMCA. The series, for persons of all ages, will be from 7-9:30 p.m., three Sundays each month in the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union, 500 S. Harvey, Plymouth. Brennan explained that the word "taw" was coined to rhyme with Arkansas. Those wishing more information about the dance classes can call the Y office on Main Street. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Spooky tales, movies coming to library

"Those with a faint heart had best beware," warns Mary Killian, children's librarian at Dunning-Hough Library on Main Street, Plymouth.

The library's annual Halloween party for children in grades kindergarten through six is planned for 4 p.m. Oct. 13.

The program is entitled "Scare Yourself Silly" and will feature folktales and movies. It will last approximately 45 minutes.

Ms. Killian will be the storyteller. She has chosen "A Box on the Ear" and "The Conjure Wives" as typically scary tales.

Movies will be the traditional "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "Trick or Treat."

Due to limited space, free tickets now are available and must be picked up at the library in advance.

Pierce urges federal help to curb crime

Dr. Ed Pierce, Democratic nominee for the 2d Congressional District seat, is urging the federal government to act "immediately and drastically" to help cities like Detroit to fight violent crime.

Pierce, an Ann Arbor physician, said current city budgets in many cases can't afford the level of police protection needed in light of teen gang violence and other rising crime.

He called for fast federal financial help to allow cities to rehire laid-off policemen or train and hire new ones.

"Our cities have been slowly dying for years, but the creeping fear that the wave of gang violence is causing will destroy them even faster if something isn't quickly done," Pierce said.

HE SAID President Gerald Ford's administration "has often talked of law and order but it has repeatedly blocked attempts to provide money for police that are needed.

"i say it is time to listen to the people who are afraid to walk their own streets."

The candidate said the crime problem is a complicated one, with high unemployment among youth an important factor.

"We must attack the terrible economic and employment situation that helps spur the frustrations which lie behind much crime," Pierce said. "We also need reformation of the juvenile justice system and improvements in general in law enforcement to make conviction and punishment of lawbreakers much more of a sure thing than it is now."

Pierce said the "immediately important thing" is that the federal government accept a responsibility to help cities fight street violence and the "paralyzing fear it is causing."

Pierce, 46, operates the Summit Medical Center in Ann Arbor which serves low-income persons.

He made appeal for federal help on the crime problem before the Bedford Township Democratic Club in Monroe County.

Pursell flies on AF One with bigwigs

State Sen. Carl Pursell, Republican nominee for the 2d Congressional district seat, had some scheduling problems last week, but he couldn't have been happier about it.

Pursell, running for a seat in the Nov. 2 election, was in Washington last Tuesday and Wednesday for meetings and briefings on national issues when he planned to return home by commercial jetliner.

But when he was invited to join President Gerald Ford on Air Force One for the president's campaign opener at Ann Arbor, Pursell didn't hesitate to join Ford and his staff.

Pursell said the flight with Ford gave him a chance for more talks with other Air Force One passengers, U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Michigan) and U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch, who represents the 2d District and is the Republican nominee for a U.S. Senate seat Nov. 2.

Pursell said his Washington meetings covered national defense, foreign policy, environment and crime control.

He added that he met with U.S. Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) to talk about Pursell's Michigan Resource Recovery Law, an environmental concept the candidate plans to sponsor in congress, if elected.

Pursell added that he met with FBI officials on the candidate's plan to redirect federal law enforcement funds into "front line" crime prevention.

Pursell is a former Michigan Crime Commission member.

Flu immunization program ready to roll

Local area residents may have to roll up their sleeves sooner than they think.

Phase one of the swine flu immunization campaign is slated for Oct. 20 and 23 for senior citizens and the chronically ill.

According to Charles Tuscon, regional coordinator for the swine flu immunization program, hospitals and nursing homes should have the vaccine available by the middle of October.

Not all hospitals will be participating in the program organized by the Wayne County Health Department, he added.

"We are concentrating our distribution to non-sectarian institutions in each community, especially areas where senior citizens have easy access," said Tuscon.

Hospital and Red Cross volunteers will be giving the vaccinations in these specific locations:

Livonia: Livonia Mall, Senior Citizens Center, 15218 Farmington Road and Schoolcraft Community College.

Westland: Wayne County General Hospital, Building K, and the community auditorium in Westland Center.

Redford: Horace Mann Senior Citizens Center, 12121 Hemingway.

Plymouth: Tonquish Creek Manor, 1160 Sheridan.

Canton: Geneva United Presbyterian Church, 5835 Sheldon.

Garden City residents will have to receive their vaccinations at the John Canfield Community Center 1801 N. Beech Daly in Dearborn Heights or visit one of the nearby immunization sites.

All immunization centers will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 20 and 23.

Phase two of the program—mass immunization campaign for those 18 to 60—will begin Nov. 8.

Tuscon said vaccination sites will be in local high schools.

"The specifics of phase two have not been completed yet," said Tuscon. "We first must immunize those who can easily contract the flu—like senior citizens and chronically ill—before we hit the general population."

Board OKs new wages

Plymouth School Board members ratified a two-year contract Monday with the Plymouth Cafeteria Employee Association and approved new wage scales for the district's substitute teachers, substitute secretaries, cooperative students, crossing guards and security personnel.

According to Norman Kee, administrative assistant for personnel, the cafeteria contract and non-union wage scales give employees a five to six per cent increase in salaries. Security personnel were given long-term disability insurance as a new fringe benefit.

Under the contract with cafeteria employees, already ratified by union members, workers will receive hourly wages of $3 to $5.51, depending on their rank, during the second year of the contract.

Under the wage agreements approved for other employees, security personnel this year will receive from $3.55 to $4.05 an hour; crossing guards will receive from $2.90 to $3.50 an hour; substitute secretaries, $3 an hour; cooperative students, from $2 to $2.30 an hour; and substitute teachers, $28 to $31 a day.

Board members approved the wage agreements by a 5-1 vote with Trustee Marcia Borowski dissenting and Trustee George Lawton absent.

Program tells how to avoid fiscal reaper

Bertha Green, director of Plymouth school libraries, announced recently that Mrs. Marian West, a Plymouth Salem librarian, is scheduled to chair a program session entitled "What To Do Before And When The Budget Cutter Comes" at the annual Michigan Association for Media in Education (MAME) conference being held Oct. 3-5 in Grand Rapids.

Ms. Green said that the conference convenes hundreds of Michigan educators and school library/media personnel concerned with school library services; and that the invitation to participate in the conference came to Mrs. West in recognition of her professional leadership skills as well as her involvement in studies and workshops dealing with the program subject.

Deadline for registration is Oct. 4

Unregistered voters who wish to cast their vote in the Nov. 2 election must register by Oct. 4 to be eligible.

If you recently moved to the area, you must re-register in the new community you reside in. If you have doubts about whether or not you're registered to vote, call your local clerk's office.

Plymouth's clerk is Ken Way; Plymouth Township's clerk is Helen Richardson and John Flodin is clerk for Canton Township.

Voters may also register at the Secretary of State offices.

Is walking a picket line a mini vacation?

There's nothing nicer than a sunny day in September, especially if you happen to be a UAW member taking your turn on the picket line at a local Ford plant.

UAW strikers were enjoying the fine weather at the Livonia and Plymouth plants last week as they crowded at the plant gates. Spirits were high, and picket duty seemed to be more of a vacation than a task.

"It's like a little vacation," said George Mascarello of Westland, "but Monday would be a nice day to go back to work." Mascarello is a millwright at the Livonia Ford Transmission Plant and a member of UAW Local 182.

MASCARELLO SAID he thinks the UAW was right to strike, "but they don't keep the workers informed enough about negotiations."

"I would like to see some hard bargaining this week by the international union. I don't think they worked very hard last week," he added.

The Ford employee said the strike has been no financial burden to him yet. "But, if this goes on another four weeks, I'll be in bad shape."

ACCORDING TO Bill Grenham, UAW Local 182 recording secretary, the transmission plant has about 4,500 workers out on strike.

"We are only picketing during daylight hours now. We have been allowing engineers in who are working on a new intregal overdrive transmission for 1980 models," he said.

Grenham added that there are negotiations in progress for local issues, such as health and safety, as well as on an international level, but we're waiting to see what happens nationally first."

WORKERS AT the Sheldon Road plant in Plymouth have been spending four hours every two weeks on the picket line. Both Richard Burton of Northville and Nina Rider of Plymouth appeared optimistic that the strike will end soon.

"I think the strike is necessary," Ms. Rider said.

"Sometimes I wish I wasn't home quite so much," Burton added.

According to Frank Iannello, plant chairman for UAW Local 845, the two workers are joined by 1,080 other employees on strike at the Sheldon plant.

"We have about 140 local issues," Iannello said. "We are concerned about in-plant improvement, health and safety, but seem to be at an impasse now."

ONE OF THE major issues in UAW negotiations on a national level revolves around a reduction in total work time for employees.

Dave Holladay, a picket at the Ford Parts Division plant in Livonia, had some doubts about this provision. "I don't see how they (the management) can afford to do it," he said. "Anyway, the more time you have off, the more money you'll end up spending."

The Westland resident, a Ford employee for 12 years, serves four hours a week on the picket line. "Mostly we sit around and drink a lot of coffee," he said.

ANDY ROMANCZUK, recording secretary for UAW 600, Holladay's local, was also present at the gates. "We have between 700-800 employees on strike here. We have been letting about six union members who are skilled tradesmen through the gates, as well as the cafeteria employees," he said.

One problem none of the picketers has had to face yet was stopping unauthorized persons entering the plant without union approval.

Richard Burton said he would go after anyone who broke through the lines, but Dave Holladay said he wouldn't. "I'll sit out here and picket," Holladay said, "but I really just want to get back to work."

The Stroller

Nothing beats Band Day

When a fellow is privileged to travel almost halfway round the globe, mostly on pleasure jaunts, he is certain to cast his eyes on scenery that will be almost breathtaking.

Such was the case when he stood at Poli Pas in Honolulu one sunny morning in Honolulu and took in the entire landscape that left him with the thought that there just couldn't be anything more beautiful in the world.

It was the same when he came traveling through the Black Forest in the Alps on the way to Switzerland. There are few places on the globe that are more fascinating, and the first sight of the Swiss homes, with flowers from the basement to the attic, is something that a fellow just can't forget.

But with all the scenery, there are what might be called "sights!! and they are just as breathtaking as the scenery along the way.

For instande, there was The Stroller's first glimpse of Mt. Rushmore where the presidents' faces are carved in stone. He had seen pictures of the monument and couldn't wait for the moment when his eyes would stare at the real thing.

Enroute west The Stroller had just left the Bad Lands and was headed for Mt. Rushmore. He still was a few hundred yards away in a wooded area trying to park the car when he glanced through the trees and saw the stone faces for the first time. What a sight!

The Stroller finally got to the viewing stand and sat there for hours. And it just seems he can't leave the place each time he gets there.

THERE HAVE been planty of other sights—the banana boats unloading at New Orleans in the early morning . . . the fishing schooners along the New England coast dumping their catches on the docks just about sunrise . . . and the sight of Big Ben, the famed clock along the Thames River in London, England.

But when it comes to breathtaking sights, a fellow doesn't have to go far from home. He need travel no further than the Michigan Stadium any Saturday afternoon in the Fall and he'll see a sight that is almost unequalled anywhere.

There is something about the stadium, when filled to capacity as it is most of time, that is breathtaking, especially when the Michigan Marching Band forms the famed "M" and steps off in milt ary style from one goal post to the other. This is a sight that sticks in the memory of anyone who sees it.

But the real sight comes when the band, in its block "M" moves to the center of the field and plays the famed Alma Mater—"The Yellow and Blue." One can't help being caught in the spirit of the day when he sees the old grads, their heads bowed, trying to sing the words while here and there a tear is streaming down their faces.

And on Band Day when 13,000 high school musicians take the field and fill the air with their musical extravaganzas. This is a sight unmatched anywhere.

SATURDAY AFTERNOONS in the fall always have been entrancing to The Stroller. FIrst, as a young sports writer in the East, he loved the spirit of the collegians at Lehigh, Lafayette and Muhlenberg colleges (his regular beat) as they prepared for their annunal meetings.

Sitting in old Taylot Field at Lehigh, he enjoyed many a Saturday afternoon and the annual meeting with Lafayette (known as the Blue Devils from down the river) was a spectacle that aroused the entire valley.

While these meetings were thrilling, it was the 50-mile ride down to Princeton University that offered thr real sight. Usually, the autumn leaves were just turning, and the sight was one to behold when we reached the Princeton campus, hidden in the trees. It was at Princeton that The Stroller first met Knute Rockne, the famed Notre Dame coach and the legendary "Four Horsemen."

But the Saturday afternoon he never will forget was one he spent in the press box at Michigan State. It was his first appearance at State and it happened to be on the same day that the Lehigh-Lafayette game was on back home. And that's where his mind was.

He was sitting there thinking of the goings on at Lehigh when the Michigan State Band stepped out , playing what was then State's Alma Mater.

It was the same tune used at Lehigh, and when the strains came floating up to the press box the emotion of the moment brought tears to his eyes.

"Is there anything wrong," the late Sam Greene of the Detroit News asked. "Can I help you with anything?"

No, the Stroller replied, you can't bring relief, for what is wrong with me. I'm just a bit homesick when I hear that band playing the same tune the Lehigh University must be playign at this very moment back home.

Yes, there's a great difference between scenery and sights and the Saturday afternoons in the autumn provide many that live with a fellow forever.

Land use planning act is supported by LWV

An issue of major concern to members of the League of Women Voters throughout the state is land use planning.

Local LWV chapters in Oakland county have added their support to the State Land Use Planning Act, a bill under discussion in the house appropriations committee and yet to be considered by the full Michigan legislature.

According to Diane Happel, the Southfield league's land use chairwoman, the bill would preserve essential land areas while maintaining local governmental control over land use planning.

"Local governments will draft master plans that determine what land in the area will be used for. This master plan is turned over to the county, which then makes a county plan that is turned into the state," Ms. Happel says.

The chairwoman adds that in addition to ensuring participation of local units of government in land use planning, the bill gives citizens access to the planning process through public hearings and membership on advisory commissions and boards.

AREA LEAGUES have been using several methods to help support the bill. Annette Marion, president of the Troy league, says, "Because the bill is still in committee, the only big influence we have is over committee members. We write to the committee members, and we also talk to local officals about the bill."

Area leagues have also tried to get Oakland County to pass a resolution supporting the bill.

"We feel that the present bill, although not totally what we wanted, is a good enough compromise. It was long past due," says Paula Tobacman, president of the Farmington-West Bloomfield LWV.

Ms. Tobacman adds, "Our land resources are rapidly disappearing. This is a modern age. We should plan for the future."

According to Ms. Happel, the bill is receiving some opposition. "Sen. Joseph Mack (D-Ironwood)and Rep. D.J. Jacobetti (D-Negaunee) of the state appropriations committee feel that the bill will hurt northern Michigan," Ms. Happel says.

SHE ADDS that the bill has its drawbacks, as it gives the state no control over private developers and land that is already zoned can't be changed by the state unless the community wishes to rezone it. "Still, I think it's something the state needs," she says.

Ms. Happel points out that since the bill was introduced several years ago, it has been the cause of 28 public hearings. "I guess it set a few records," she says.

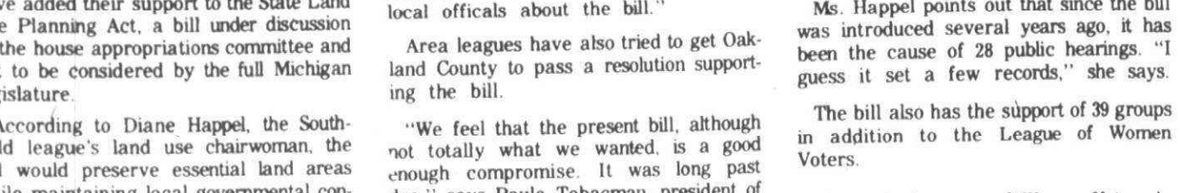

The bill also has the support of 39 groups in addition to the League of Women Voters.

The eight Leagues of Women Voters in Oakland County backing the land use include Birmingham-Bloomfield, Rochester area, Southfield-Lathrup Village, Troy, West Bloomfield- Farmington area, West Oakland, Royal Oak and Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi.

The state league plans to publish a land use booklet that local leagues can use to instruct citizens. "We studied this bill for two years before we took a position on it," Ms. Happel says.

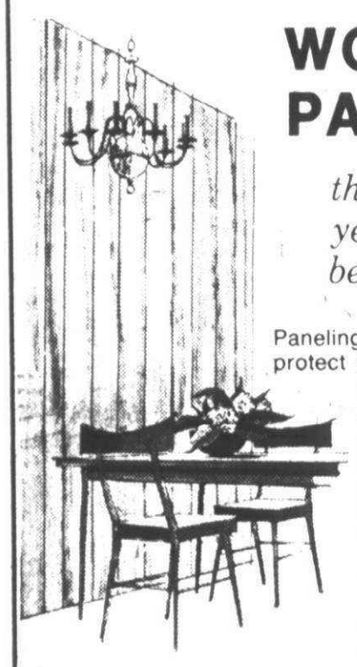

She adds, "But I just don't feel this should be a political issue. Land use issues are neither Democratic nor Republican. These issues affect all of us."

'C' augurs more woes than glee

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Only belatedly, a proposal which will appear on the ballot Nov. 2 has provoked blazing opposition, particularly here in the suburbs.

The proposal, termed "Proposition C," would, in effect, put a ceiling on state spending in Michigan, thereby putting a stop to any increases in state taxes. The proposal would add seven amendments to Michigan's Constitution which would prohibit the legislature and the governor from spending more than 8.3 per cent of the personal income of Michigan residents.

The proposal attracted little attention at the time it first went on the ballot, mostly because the idea of setting a fixed limit on state spending seemed like a good one and because no one thought through carefully the full range of effects its passage would produce.

Recently, however, a whole slew of local government officials and school board people have come to understand exactly what passage of Proposition C would do to them.

BRIEFLY, their argument is this: Passage of a state spending ceiling is fine, but all it would do is to shift the burden of funding programs, such as schools, away from state—generated revenues and onto locally—generated revenues. This might be all right, they add, for state legislators who are anxious to duck the blame for imposing new taxes to support state services, but it would play hell with local government officials who would then have to bring local tax increases to the voters in order to make up the difference.

Opposition to Proposition C is particularly intense in these comparatively well-to-do suburbs, where a greater proportion of all government expenses is supported by local taxes than in relatively tax—poor big cities such as Detroit.

An intensive lobbying effort is now under way, to bring to the attention of the voters the point that even if Proposition C is passed, the ordinary taxpayer will not find his total tax bill going down; he will merely pay more local taxes to make up for the shortfall in state—generated tax revenue.

WITHOUT taking a position on the specific merits or demerits of Propositon C (which this newspaper will do shortly before election day), it might be well to understand the powerful logic behind Proposition C.

There is a fundamental flaw in the thinking of government units of all kinds about their budgeting process.

An ordinary family has a certain, relatively fixed number of dollars coming in each week. Unless a family wishes to go into debt, its income sets a limit on the amount of money that can be spent each week. If the family finds that the things it wants to do or buy cost more than its income, it has to make the tough choice to do without.

Government at all levels, however, does not operate firmly under that budget constraint that affects families. Most people in government, nearly subconsciously, feel that the programs which they create and administer are vitally important to the public welfare and, therefore, that if there is a temporary gap between the cost of all the programs and the revenue available, the right solution is to raise taxes rather than to cut programs.

In short, while families feel they must cut expenses to meet their income, governments feel they can increase income (by raising taxes) to meet the expense level they wish to incur.

The idea behind Proposition C (and it's a good one, in my view) is to force government to realize that they simply cannot continue to operate in this way. If a ceiling is put on government expenditures, then instead of endlessly raising taxes, even government will have to think in an aggressive and practical way about cutting expenses. This is uncomfortable, as any family which keeps a budget knows, but it can be done, as long as tough—minded choices are made about which expenditures are really needed.

It's exactly this tough-minded attitude regarding choices between various government programs which constitutes the main logical argument behind Proposition C.

The proposal, as written on the ballot, may or may not accomplish this . But it certainly is a worthwhile objective.

editorial opinion

We can't afford PEA strike

Let it be said here and now that the last thing in the world the Plymouth community needs is a strike by its public school teachers. We honestly don't think there will be one, yet there is a sufficiently strong undercurrent of grumbling to keep the possibility alive.

As long as there is communication between the bargaining teams representing the school board on one side and the Plymouth Education Association (PEA) on the other, the chance of an intelligent settlement of differences prevails.

Norman Kee, chief negotiator for the administration, said after two bargaining meetings early this week that he remains optimistic, and even confident, that a new pact will be reached. It is also encouraging to know that the bargainers are working on a multi-year contract.

Those who supported passage of the recent millage issue, which had to be put before the voters twice before it could command a favorable majority, would be absolutely sickened if our teaching staff decided now to "hit the bricks," as the saying goes.

Let's also remember that next June the school board again must put a millage question on the ballot. This will be for renewal of a six-mill operating levy that first was approved in 1971. No one actually has said so, but it's obvious that the system can't continue to function at its present fine level unless those six mills are continued as part of your tax bite.

We assume that just as the PEA fought for passage of the recent issue so will the union go to bat for approval of the remewal matter next summer. However, if for some mistaken line of thinking the teachers go the strike route this fall,we all can kiss that one good-bye. You could bet that community reaction would be so negative that it would be a total waste of time even to ask for continuation of a single tax dollar per $1,000 in equalized valuation, let alone six.

Twice in the last seven years Plymouth teachers have challenged the community's patience by walking out—or, as they phrase it, "withholding services." The scars still linger, particularly from that first strike back in 1969 which lasted for three weeks and tore the community asunder.

Some of the headlines from our own newspaper during the weeks of 1969 negotiations and then the actual strike period will help you relate that event to what a repeat performance in 1976 could mean:

"State Will Enter Teacher Dispute" (Aug. 24); "Teacher Contract Talks Reach Impasse Over PEA Salary Bid" (Aug. 31); " 'No Contract, We Won't Work' Position Blocks School Opening" (Sept. 3); "Teachers Hold Line On Strike" (Sept. 7); "Parent Protests Increase Tension In School Strike" (Sept. 14); "PEA Accepts Compromise As School Board Holds Firm" (Sept. 17); "Board Takes Court Action Against Striking Teachers" (Sept. 21); "Bitter Strike Shifts To Two Circuit Courts" (Sept. 24) and then finally on Sept. 28 "Schools To Open Monday; 3-Week Teachers Strike Ends In Contract."

The pitiful thing was that it never had to happen. As usual, both sides were partly right and partly wrong. The same thing is true now, and there's no reason why there can't be a compromise.

Support your right to return

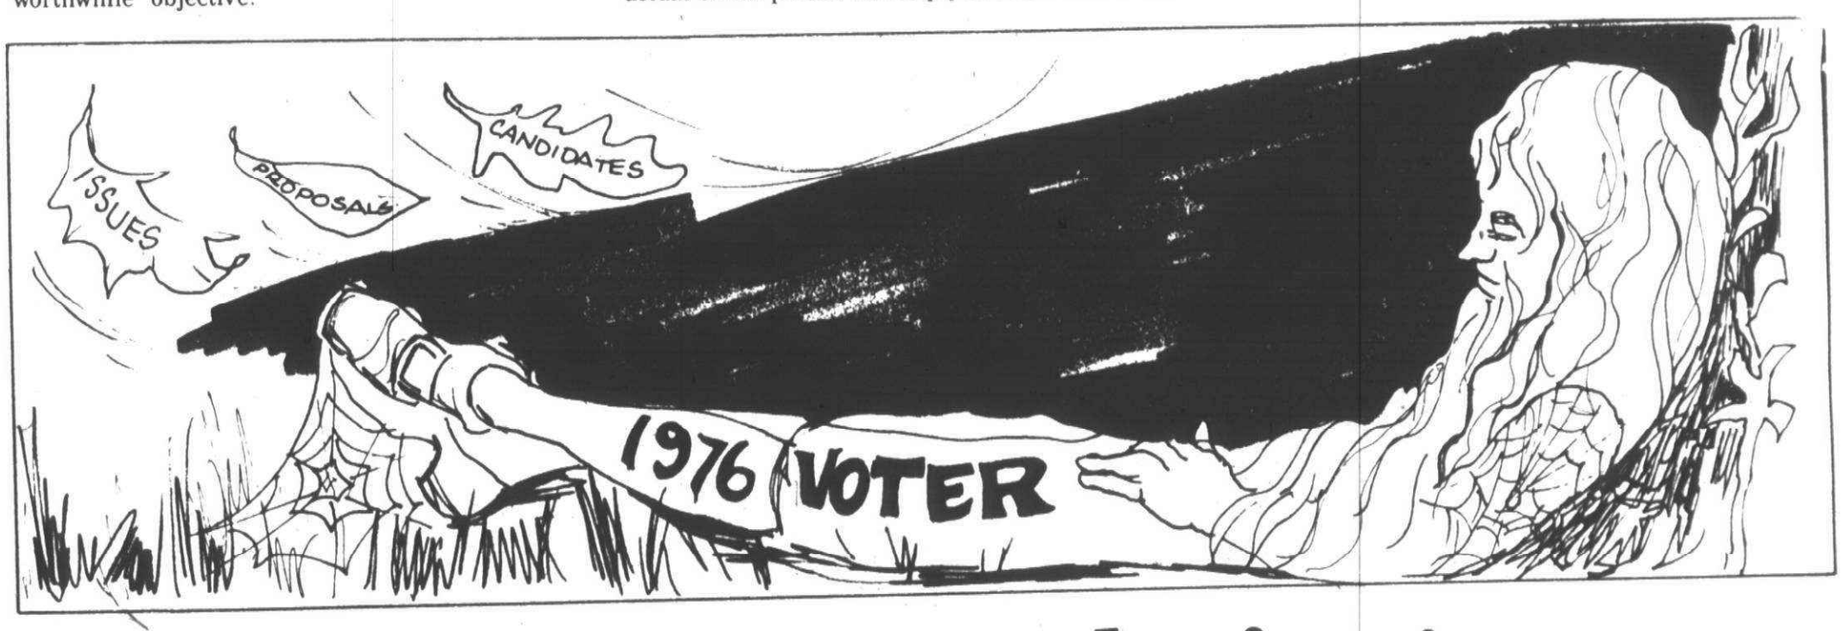

Who's forcing whom?

The Litter Lobby—those firms which sell throwaway beverage bottles and cans—is fighting hard and expensively against the Nov. 2 ballot proposal to ban the throwaways.

The Litter Lobby's propaganda emphasizes the notion that Michigan shoppers will somehow lose freedom if they can't buy throwaway pop and beer containers. That's rubbish!

The truth is that shoppers who want to reduce trash and litter are the ones who have no freedom of choice. Most stores today contain few, if any, deposit bottles of pop and beer. Most consumers are forced to buy throwaways.

Check for yourself the next time you're in the supermarket. If the selection of deposit bottles is nowhere near as large as the selection of throwaways—and it won't be—you'll know the Litter Lobby is handing you a line.

Candidates and issues don't stir voters

Tim Richard

You listen to a politician speak in these suburbs, and the questions from the audience are lackluster.

An occasional local issue gets the homeowners stirred up, but the overall truth is that hardly anyone's excited about very much this election year.

Newsmen covering the Democratic national convention griped that it was dull—as if the delegates were there to entertain the boob tube watchers and not to conduct official business.

Letters to the editor are running light and are lacking the vitriol of previous years.

IT'S THE MOST unexcited public this newsman has seen in six presidential elections. If this were the glorious '50s, we'd call it apathy.

Myself, I never heard of a law that says people have to get excited about an election, and there is no principle of journalism that says I must stimulate them artificially. If folks want to be act bored—well, it's a free country.

Maybe a reaction is setting in. In the late '60s and early '70s we had all that campus ferment, and perhaps the pulp there has decomposed and neutralized.

The "kids"—remember when they were called "kids"?—are out trying to grub jobs now and are a littler humbler as they use their sociology degrees to pump gasoline.

The busing volcano of 1971-72 has been capped by the U.S. Supreme Court's 5-4 decision. The total breakdown in society some of us feared if cross-district busing were ordered didn't occur.

In the newspaper business, we found out how much folks had been quietly hating us in 1972-73 when Vice President Sprio Agnew began slicing up the "effete, impudent, intellectual snobs." But before the First Amendment could be repealed, Agnew bit the dust, and our professional brethren at the Washington Post brought Nixon to his knees. The greatest outpouring of popular venom against newspapers that I've ever seen quickly was reduced to less than a trickle.

ONE CAN ONLY guess at why the public is so quiet.

The Vietnam war is over, and we don't have LBJ and Nixon to kick around.

The spectre of the flaming-eyed radical McGovern has been shrouded.

The recession, a severe one, took the starch out of many folks' sails. People who used to cuss the capitalist system, teachers who used to snarl at the stick-in-the-mud school boards, young folks who for years had shouted "gimme" suddenly found they were damned lucky to have jobs.

The recession taught us all something about government—namely, that it isn't as powerful as we thought it was, especially in dealing with a worldwide oil shortage and a catastrophic international inflation.

These oscillations in the public's degree of excitability are governed by unfathomable natural laws. There's little Our Leaders and we in the news business can do to stir folks up or calm them down.

As far as I can guess, folks are taking their time about making up their minds. Or if their minds are made up, they're keeping quiet about it and giving the pollsters a lot of jive.

It's a free country.

Unemployment a presidential issue

Will women's work never be found?

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

Will the women's liberation movement topple the Ford administration?

Polls tell us that the number one issue in the presidential campaign is unemployment. At the present time 7 ½ million people, or 7.9 per cent of the labor force in the country, are unemployed.

Unemployment does not only mean that a person has lost his job, but can also mean that he/she is merely looking for work. In other words, people who have never worked before but have decided to look for a job are included in the unemployment figures.

As of the end of August there were 4 million more people with jobs than at the low of the recent recession.

TODAY, THERE ARE more people employed than ever before in the history of the United States.

Why, then, are 7.9 per cent of the labor force unemployed?

In the last 10 years the growth in the working-age population (from 16 years and up) has been 19 per cent. It has grown from 131 million people to 156 million.

At the same time, the labor force has gone up 26 per cent, from 76 million to 95 million.

The interesting thing about the statistics is that the male labor force has increased only 16.8 per cent, while the female labor force has increased 42.3 per cent.

IF THE FEMALE LABOR force had increased at the same level as the population increased, as the male labor force did, there would be 6 million fewer people in the labor market and the unemployment rate would be well below 3 per cent, which certainly is an acceptable figure.

This happened because of the change in women's attitudes toward home, work and the world.

The Wall Street Journal says there was a combination of three strong forces that brought the women into the working market. One, they found out that they could handle most of today's jobs; two, they are increasingly free from home work to take jobs, because of labor-saving appliances, federally funded day-care centers, and smaller families. Three, the extra cash in the pocketbook has come in mighty handy as inflation has eroded the buying power of their husbands' paychecks.

THIS INCREASE in the women labor force will probably not end. There are still 40 million working-age females in the country who have not yet joined the paycheck hunting parade. As they join, our unemployment statistics will get worse, even though the nation's employment will grow as will the number of breadwinners employed.

The women's liberation movement has started something that can and will plague presidential candidates and economic forecasters in the presidential year and years to come.

Rhodes sees write-in as a grim harbinger

Editor:

When will politics in Canton mature? For the last two years, the citizens of Canton have been subjected to a local government that has been torn by political dissension. The uniqueness of this situation has been the fact that the dissident goups do not fall within political parties but cross traditional party lines. The result has been that the political situation in Canton has made front page news in major metropolitan newspapers, causing Canton to be a joke amongst our neighboring communities.

Now, because one of these political factions cannot accept the mandate of a primary election, Canton's political future will not be settled in November's general election. Canton will continue to suffer well after the November election unless the citizens of Canton become aware of what is going to happen.

Mr. Greenstein and his supporters feel that the primary election in August did not reflect the will of the people, and therefore they are saying they must break with the traditional electoral system and launch a write-in sticker campaign. They rationalize their actions because of a letter that was handed out the night before the primary election that attacked Mr. Greenstein, because of the supposedly low voter turn out, and because of a political party crossover vote that they say was against them.

The facts are much different however than these rationalizations. First, no voter changes his mind the night before an election because of a piece of obvious political literature attacking their candidate. Not one person has yet to come forward and state that they changed their vote because of this literature, let alone the 350 who Mr. Greenstein states were swayed by the letter.

Second, Canton's percentage of voter turnout in the primary was one of the highest in the area. Historically, primary election turnouts are low, but yet the fortunes of politicans have been made and broken in this manner.

Third, when one counts the number of votes cast for the Republican candidate for supervisor and the winner of the Democratic contest, then clearly a majority of the people voting in the August primary did not want Robert Greenstein.

Fourth, probably as many Republicans crossed over to vote for Mr. Greenstein as crossed over to vote against him. The Republican candidates did not make an effort to present their programs, as they were unopposed, that would appeal to the Republicans who voted in support of Robert Greenstein.

The result of this analysis is that clearly Mr. Greenstein does not have the support of a majority of the voters in Canton. Yet, he and his supporters are bent on pushing a sticker campaign that will make chaos out of the election in November. Even without Mr. Greenstein's sticker campaign, because of the length of the ballot, the line in November will be long. The time required for using the stickers will probably double the waiting time to vote.

How many people will become frustrated and discouraged and not vote at all when they see the lines? Moreover, think of the effort to count the vote after the election on election night, and if the election is close, is a recount possible or will the stickers have come loose by then? Further, how many machines will jam and break down because of this?

The real horror is the knowledge that probably no candidate for supervisor will receive a majority vote. If Mr. Greenstein loses, will his supporters step aside or will they contend that because there were three candidates he lost? Will they, as I believe, soon launch a recall so they can minimize the ballot the next time to two candidates to give him a better chance the third time around?

Or, if Mr. Greenstein wins without a majority, will his zealous opposition sit back and wait till 1978 to remove him? Obviously not! One can only conclude, then, that if Mr. Greenstein and his supporters persist in pushing their sticker campaign, Canton will have another election for supervisor early in 1977.

Carman says police critics are led astray

Editor:

Look who's wearing two hats! To the authors and led-astray supporters of all those adamant letters to the editors, crying "Keep politics out of the police department," and "You can't be in an administrative government position and be the Chief of Police, too"—I ask—

1. How is keeping politics and police separate when you are supporting Lt. Eugene Daley, a top officer and official of the Wayne County Sheriff as the Stein Slate candidate for trustee?

2. How is keeping politics and police separate when your Stein slate received $500 cold cash for campaign funds?

3. How is keeping politics and police separate when the Wayne County Sheriff's Union printed and sent out to every registered voter in Canton (numbering over 11,000) TWO separate political mailings?

4. How is keeping politics and police separate when you had a few Wayne County Sheriff officers handing out Stein's political information?

5. Tell me that if Daley gets in office, he will tell his boss (the Wayne County Sheriff)—"Thanks for the money and literature and support, but, sorry, we just aren't going to pay $300,000 per Sheriff's car to patrol Canton."

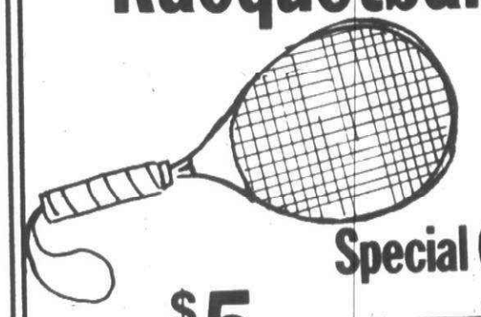

6. Why didn't you cry foul when Supervisor Dingeldey was appointed to the identical position as Chief of Police? You felt it was legal for Dingeldey, but not for Greenstein. How's this?

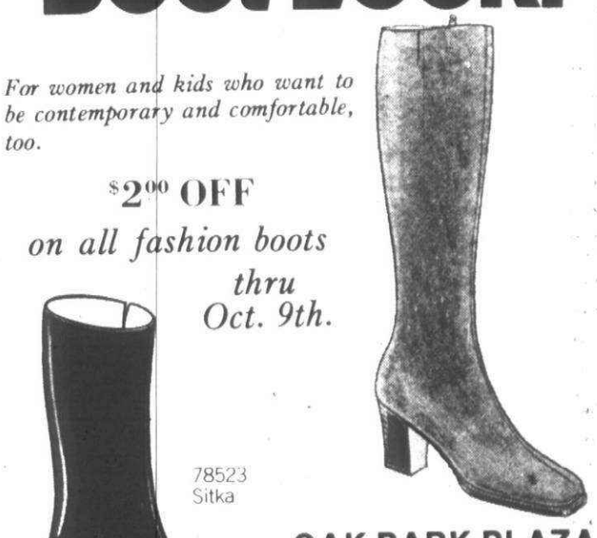

(NOTE: The majority of those voicing complaints were in the township at the time of Dingeldey's appoontment. Funny thing, Dingeldey was the Stein Slate's second highest financial supporter.)

Please remember: the President of the United States is commander of all the armed forces, and the Governor is commander of the National Guard and State Police.

WAKE UP, CANTON—YOU are being led astray by the Stein force!

Grimmer speaks out on PEA issues

William Grimmer, past president of the Plymouth Education Association and longtime vocal music teacher in the Plymouth Community Schools, questions whether the school board is "inviting a strike" by the PEA.

After 21 years as a tax-paying homeowner in the city, and 21 years as a teacher in East Middle School, he says he is speaking as an individual—not as a PEA representative. These are his own thoughts, expressed in an exclusive communication to the Observer Newspapers:

"It would seem that our school board, through its negotiators, is almost inviting a strike of your teachers to gain a fair and equitable contract. The PEA has made informal moves at the table to avoid this eventuality. These moves have been met by the board and its team with more manipulation of the same old figures, rearranged.

"There is reason for this on their part. They hope by giving half-truths and misleading reports to the press, they can convince the community that they are holding the line on salary.

"The real truth is they think the teachers are divided on the issue of gaining a fair settlement on not only this year's contract but for the next three years.

"THEY MADE THIS same mistake in 1969 and again in 1974.

"As you can recall, in those years we had to strike to gain a fair settlement. Your teachers do not now, nor did they then, want to take this action. We have proved this by going back to work this fall without a contract.

"This alone should prove the fact we want uninterrupted education for your children.

"What we are asking could have been settled before the millage election as it was based on the financial ability of the district at that time. The board and its negotiation team will try to convince this community that they are the protectors of the funds you have voted for education. And the teachers want it all.

"In spite of the press releases of the board's team, all your teachers want is to continue in the effort to provide first class education for your children in return for a living wage.

"WE, TOO, HAVE children to raise and living costs that must be met, as do your.

"In an effort to acquaint the people of the school district with the PEA's side of the story, we would ask you to call 722-8190

"Starting Monday, Oct. 4, these telephones will be manned to answer any questions you might have in regard to the situation in which we now find ourselves."

3 Days Only!
Let's keep it a secret.

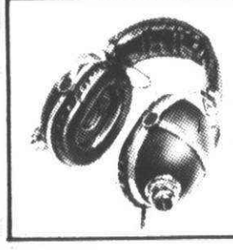

Our competition still believes that when we advertise your favorite Hi-Fi components at dirt cheap prices — we don't deliver. They think our low prices are just a "come on" so that when you get into our store we'll try to sell you a dishwasher. If you haven't visited our sound shops before, you are in for a pleasant surprise. We have the name brands, extremely low prices, audio sales personnel that know a lot about audio and very little about dishwashers — and probably the largest inventory of audio equipment in Michigan and Ohio. Additionally, we have our own service department to service what we sell.
That's good for you to know. But please — don't wise up our competition.

LIFE

Thursday, September 30, 1976 (P,C)1B

Everything's coming up roses for Ticey since she has become mascot and protector of The Statice Shop. The 6-week-old orphan takes a proprietary interest in the activities since she was officially adopted.

Williamsburg arrangement is in colonial five-fingered posy holder.

New shop adds Williamsburg touch to Penniman Avenue

Newest evidence of the Penniman Avenue renaissance is the Statice Shop which opened early in September.

Prim brown and white checked privacy curtains are a background for displays in the small shop windows.

Inside, it smells as good as it looks.

Hundreds of dried flowers, field plants and aromatic herbs give the clean scent of late summer sunshine.

Betty Porter, owner of the shop, and her helper wear Williamsburg era gowns made of the brown and white checked material. They wear ruffled caps on their heads. They are enthusiastic about the renovation of the store which formerly housed a barber shop.

The original tin ceiling has been painted a soft biege. Walls, cupboards, counter and showcases are the same color.

"NORB BATTERMANN built the cupboards from a sketch," said Mrs. Porter. "They are exactly what we wanted.

"We are staying with the Williamsburg and Shaker themes," she said, pointing out the large assortment of containers for the dried flower arrangements, or keepsake bouquets, as they are called.

There are the five-fingered posy holders, containers of china bricks, pewter, brass, tin, wood, and baskets in dozens of sizes and shapes. Customers also bring in their own containers to be filled according to their own color scheme and shape.

Other bouquets await the spur-of-the moment shopper—everything from inexpensive arrangements in small brass cricket boxes, to formal centerpieces in elegant footed pewter bowls.

DRIED FLOWERS hang from Shaker pegs on the walls and fill containers on the hearth and mantel.

"Husband Bill and son Bill cleaned up the hearth," said Mrs. Porter. "And Norm built the mantel. I wanted gas logs in the hearth but the water lines go through there." They still are pondering a way to circumvent the plumbing and install the logs.

There are pungent herb wreaths bedecked with everlasting flowers and a copper kettle of John Hoffman's copper fern leaves.

"These are beautiful in arrangements," said Mrs. Porter. "They blend perfectly with the natural materials."

She added that there were so many talents in the area—Battermann's Shaker pieces, Hoffman's metal sculpture, and others—which she wants to incorporate into the shop's floral arrangement. And in doing so, she will give the artists a new outlet for their creations.

"These wooden candle boxes are perfect containers, especially for Christmas greens."

TUSSIE MUSSIES have been "good sellers."

The little Victorian nosegays actually date back to the 1600s. With their lacy ruffles, flowers and pungent herbs, the ladies of the era sniffed their tussie mussies instaed of smelling salts.

At a time when personal hygiene was sketchy, and foul odors permeated the streets and roadways, the tussie mussies were a defense against the smells of the times. "And the ladies sometimes tucked them in the bosoms of their dresses for the perfume."

THE BACK ROOM is the workshop.

Pat Norris and Mrs. Porter were busy making centerpieces for the Plymouth Symphony League luncheon and fashion show—between customers.

Keepsake wedding bouquets—the petals of each rosebud preserved in their natural state—were ready for an autumn bride and her attendants.

It is in the workshop that classes are held. They are scheduled for daytime, evening, and Saturdays. Persons interested in the classes register in the shop.

Christmas workshops soon will begin.

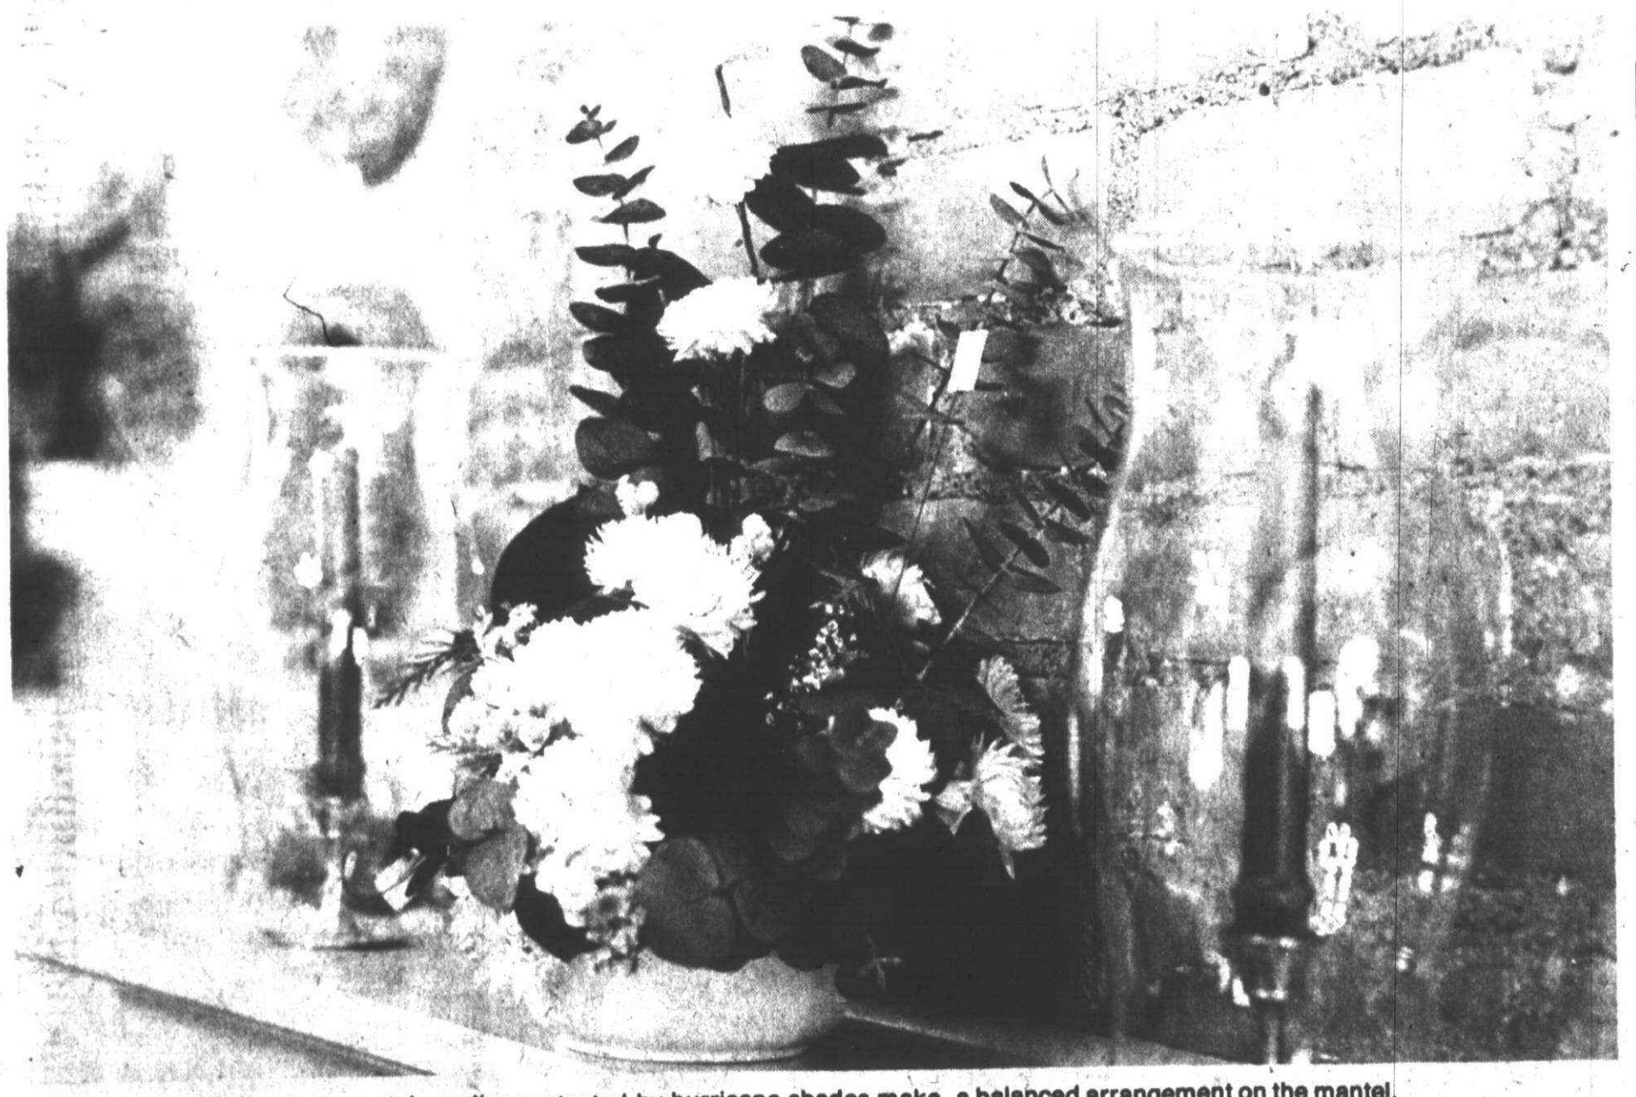

"We can hardly wait," said the proprietress. "It's my favorite season. We'll be working with greens, fruit and flowers."

For those who remember the empty buildings and somber storefronts on the stretch from Main Street to the post office, the revovation of Penniman Avenue is something of a miracle. The Statice Shop now adds its charm to the uptown area.

Pat Norris prepares a floral arrangement in the workshop.

Floral piece and candles protected by hurricane shades make a balanced arrangement on the mantel.

Knitted bedjacket ideal for senior

A bedjacket, knit in a single, straight piece, is an ideal gift for seniors, invalids, or those who like to read or watch television in bed. It is cosy without being bulky.

Eight ounces of wool are required and No. 4 and No. 11 knitting needles.

The instructions follow:

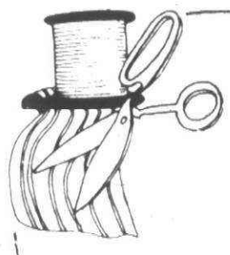

On No. 4 needles, cast on 40 stitches and work in knit two, purl two ribbing for four inches. On the next row, increase one stitch in every stitch (by knitting into the front of the stitch and then into the back of the stitch before slipping it off the lefthand needle). With 80 stitches on the needle, knit one row.

Change to No. 11 needles and knit in garter stitch (every row plain) for 50 inches. Be careful not to stretch when measuring—the width should be 20 inches.

Change back to No. 4 needles and knit for one row. On the following row, knit two together across the row, so that once again there are 40 stitches.

Work for four inches in the knit two, purl two ribbing. Cast off loosely in the ribbing. Sew cuff seams and about five inches above cuff to form sleeves.

A lacy pattern may be substituted for the garter stitch. But, the width should be 20 inches.

Youths to bring Christian message to Olympics

By MARGARET MILLER

Three young Livonians who aren't even athletes already are turning their attention toward the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

"There's a lot of praying being done now," said Jeri Reum, a Bentley High School graduate who plans to attend the Discipleship Training School of Youth With a Mission, interdenominational youth missionary movement.

Jeri, along with Scott and Sara Allen of Livonia, joined some 1,600 members of the movement who stayed in the village of Dunham, near Montreal, during the summer Olympics.

From their camp there, the YWAMers from all over the world went to the Olympics village area to use various means to pass along their Christian message.

"The Olympics offered a place where many people were gathered, a place to reach out to the world in miniature," said Scott, explaining the reason for the gathering.

"We ministered in various ways, through marches, dramatic presentations and just talking to athletes and others there."

THE TRIO said their group was so large that only half could go into Montreal each day, and only a few got inside Olympic Village.

For communicating with the athletes, they worked out an ingenious system.

"As the athletes came out," Scott said, "we would have someone stationed near the gate to read the nationality on the back of their jerseys.

"Then that person would use a finger code to signal the nationality, and another of our people across the field would be ready with Christian literature in the appropriate language."

Sara reported that the young people worked in teams in their evangelism.

"I was paired with a girl who spoke several languages," she went on, "so a lot of times she'd be talking to someone and I had no idea what they were saying. But I was praying all the time."

THE GROUP EXPERIENCE in Dunham was a major part of the trip, the three agreed.

"It was a time of a lot of controversy over racial and national questions," Scott said, "and yet the people from Youth with a Mission were from all over the world and sharing in community living."

He added that, while most in the group paid a fee of $225 for the trip, some could not afford that sum so others took up collections to help them.

"It was hard for some of the people in the city to understand how we could just give money away when others needed it," he added.

SCOTT FIRST became involved with Youth with a Mission more than a year ago when representatives visited Southfield Christian School where he was a senior.

He learned more about the organization, went to its Discipleship Training School in the Los Angeles area, and last spring joined a number of its members in bicycling from California to New Jersey for a pre-Olympics project.

He has found YWAM most helpful in his life and plans to go for further training, possibly in an international school in Switzerland, and then make a tour in Lebanon and the Middle East.

Presently he is taking general courses at Schoolcraft College.

His sister, Sara, followed his activities with YWAM last year as she completed her work at Southfield Christian School, and decided to make the Olympics visit.

She now is beginning pre-law study at Wayne State University and doesn't have immediate plans for further YWAM participation, "but you never know."

Jeri plans to go to New Jersey to the YWAM school there. A member of Ward United Presbyterian Church youth, she learned of the organization through Scott and Sara and joined the bicycling group in North Carolina after graduating from Bentley.

"I'm a person who never has pushed for my faith," she said, "but the experience at the Olympics showed me that God has use in his work for people like me, too.

"At school, I'll learn further how to communicate to others my faith in the Lord."

Mikveh now in use in Beth Achim

Congregation Beth Achim of Southfield has recently opened a mikveh, a pool of clear water used for ritual immersion and for spiritual purification.

It is the first such bath or pool, common among orthodox congregations, in a conservative synagogue in the area, and was hailed by the Conservative Rabbinate of Metropolitan Detroit as an important contribution to the religious life of the community.

First projected by Rabbi Milton Arm, of Congregation Beth Achim, the mikveh was constructed in strict adherence to the requirements of Jewish law.

Rabbi Charles H. Rosenzveig, president of the Rabbinic Conference of Michigan, was consulted in the architectural plans for the mikveh and supervised the entire building operation in order to make certain that all halakhic (Jewish, legal) prescriptions were followed.

In ancient times when Maimonides concluded his codification of the law pertaining to the mikveh, he emphasized that "uncleanness is not mud or filth which water can remove, but is a matter of scripturaldecree and dependent on the intention of the heart.

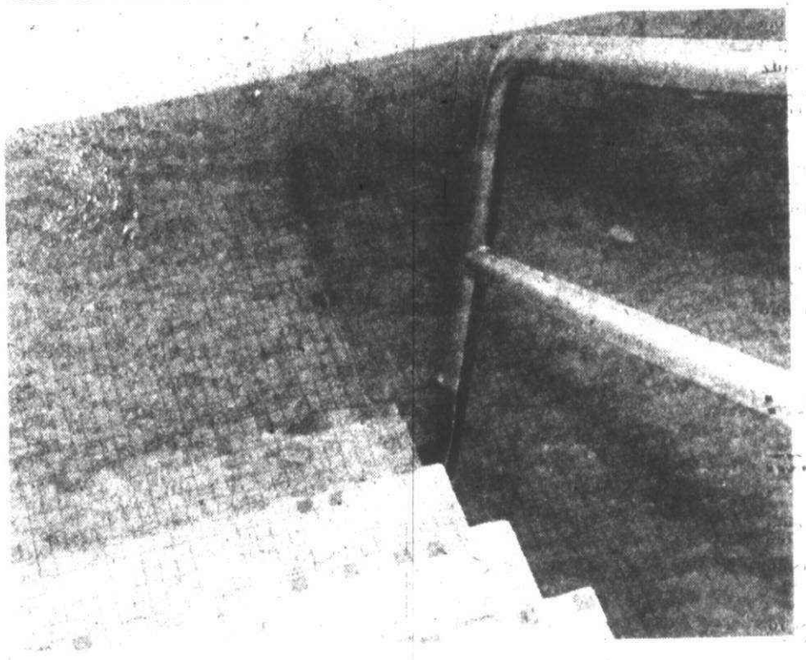

According to biblical law, any collection of water is suitable for a mikveh as long as it contains enough for a person to immerse himself.

Rabbinic law, however, specified that only water which has not been carried in a vessel or receptacle may be used. Furthermore, a mikveh had to have at the outset a volume of water equal to 40 sieh, a measurement calculated to be at its highest amount the equivalent of 1000 liters.

The Beth Achim mikveh was carefully constructed in order to ensure complete compliance with the religious codes which govern the building and maintainence of these ritual baths.

The initial funds for the mikveh were donated by Mrs. Hannah Karbal and her late husband, Morris Karbal, a Jewish philanthropist who made many gifts to religous and educational institutions.

The mikveh at Beth Achim has carpeted floors and walls, a vanity and hairdryer, and is open for inspection and use to the general Jewish community.

Mother and daughters attend art classes at Eastern Michigan University. The artistic trio are (from left) Darci, Kathy and Julie Nyhus. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

The girls attend EMU

By. W. W. EDGAR

Not many mothers have the privilege and pleasure of going back to college and joining their daughters in class. That's why Mrs. Ronald Nyhus smilingly confides that she is one of the happiest mothers in the land.

Sitting in the living room of her home at 15100 Bradner in Lakepointe, under a painting she had done, she admitted that she had been attracted to painting since her kindergarten days but was but was enjoying it more now that her two daughters, Julie, 19, and Darci 18, are in art school with her at Eastern Michigan University.

"We have a great deal of enjoyment working together, and although we are not in the same class, we have much in common.

"Just look around," she continued, "and you can see paintings all over the place—and I guess we have hundreds in some state of development."

MRS. NYHUS, aglow with a motherly smile, explained that their home was one of real happiness because of the activities enjoyed with their children.

"Ronald, who now is the manager of Art Wright Inc., played football at Plymouth High School and our two boys, Michael and Charles, now are members of the varsity at Plymouth Canton High School and they have a great time together."

Asked how she got interested in painting, Mrs. Nyhus was quick to reveal that her fascination with painting began while she still was in kindergarten. She never lost it.

"I guess it is only natural that the girls would follow me, and you can't imagine what enjoyment that brings to a mother."

After graduating from Plymouth High School and startingto raise a family, Mrs. Nyhus, who always had a desire to become a student art teacher, enrolled at Schoolcraft College. Then, after two years, left to enroll at Eastern Michigan.

"And I'll become a student teacher next January," she said with a note of great satisfaction.

DARCI FOLLOWED her mother to Schoolcraft where she spent two years and now is in her third year at Eastern where she is interested in all kinds of painting. And she spends her summers working in the picture framing shops in the area.

Julie is in her second year at Eastern where she is specializing in commercial art, and, according to her mother, she is "quite good."

"That's why this is a happy household," she concluded. "Not every mother has a chance to go to college with her daughters while their father is having a great time with the boys and their football activity."

With that, she was off to school to join her daughters—a happy mother if ever there was one.

Share harvest festivities at Greenfield Village

A century ago, the end of the harvest season was an occasion for celebration. At Greenfield Village in Dearborn, the excitement that marked those early American festivities is recaptured at the fifth annual Autumn Harvest Weekend Saturday and Sunday.

Against a backdrop of autumn's bright colors, all of the village is preparing to turn out for the festive two-day event. Old-time crafts, country music and an antique tractor pull are just part of the fun.

Throughout the weekend, the Village Green will be the site of continuous entertainment. On Saturday and Sunday, costumed square dancers whirl to country tunes and Roy McGinnis and the Sunnysiders perform their special brand of bluegrass music.

Each day, the Activities Field becomes the staging area for an antique tractor pull as more than 50 tractors — none newer than 1940 — gather to test their mechanical muscle. Tractors of equal size will vie against one another in a series of weight pulling contests; the tractors pulling the most poundage the longest distance win. The contest begins each day at noon. However, throughout the weekend, visitors may see the antique tractors on display.

IN ANOTHER CORNER of the village, horseshoeing is demonstrated each day. On Saturday, representatives of the Michigan Horseshoers' Association will show visitors how horseshoes are made, while Sunday's program will include a horseshoeing competition.

Some 36 contestants, divided into two groups depending on their skill, will be given an hour to make two horseshoes. At the end of the time period, their work will be judged according to quality and general appearance.

There'll be things to see and do throughout the village all day each day of Autumn Harvest Weekend. In and around the historic homes and shops, some two dozen craftsmen practice the skills once essential to comfortable rural life. They'll churn butter, press cider, dye wool, dip candles and much more.

In the Village Crafts area, skilled artisans will re-create an old fashioned rug hooking bee. The Early Engine Club will be on hand, too, to demonstrate threshing and other farm chores on chugging antique machines.

Music abounds throughout the weekend. Near the village entrance, the Plymouth Community Band and the Pigtown Flingers set the tone, while a barbershop quartet — the Warren G. Harding Memorial Four — entertains from the Suwanee Park gazebo.

ALONG THE residential streets, the Greenfield Village Players present some of the theatrical diversions which entertained Americans' great-grandparents. There's Mark Twain spinning yarns of Mississippi River life, Benjamin Franklin talking of King George and colonial grievances and an old-fashioned Punch and Judy show.

In the background, the shrill toots of two century-old steam locomotives can be heard as they carry visitors along the village perimeter. The steamboat "Suwanee," Model T's and horse-drawn carriages and wagons offer still more nostalgic trips into the past.

Autumn Harvest Weekend is presented at no additional charge beyond the regular Greenfield Village admission of $3 for adults and $1.25 for children 6 through 12. Children under six are admitted free.

Pontiac area residents may wish to take advantage of a special express charter bus service from Pontiac Mall to Greenfield Village for Autumn Harvest Weekend on Saturday. The bus will depart from the mall at 10 a.m.

Saturday has been designated Senior Citizen Day. Seniors may attend Autumn Harvest Weekend in the village or visit adjacent Henry Ford Museum for the reduced admission fee of $1.50.

Tchikabowmskaya

Namethatunova, and 'Black Rhinestone' to shine

Folks, the ballet will never be the same. For Olga Tchikaboumskaya, Eugenia Repelskii and Vera Namethatunova, the cast of "Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo," are coming to Detroit's Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts.

The single performance will be at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10. Tickets are $7.50, $6.50, and $5.50 and may be obtained at the Music Hall Box Office or by phoning 963-7680.

"Trock" also will feature Tamara Karpova, "the black rhinestone of Russian Ballet and the acknowledged prima ballerina assoluta of the Trockadero." Ms. Karpova, according to the ballet's program, "has mysteriously become a legend in her own time."

"Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo" is not an average run of the mill ballet touring company. "Trock" is made up entirely of "ballerinos," or more simply, men in tutus.

This troupe of professional male dancers, who perform both male and female roles, was assembled less than two years ago in Manhattan Soho lofts and neighborhood shoebox theatres. Since then, they have starred at the prestigeous Brooklyn Academy of Music, and have been reviewed by Time Magazine, Dance Magazine, Variety, the New York Times, and Newsweek.

The cast also has been the subject of a Vogue layout by photographer Richard Avedon.

"Trock's" audiences have included such well-known ballet figures as Mikhail Baryshnikov, Jerome Robbins and Natalia Makarova.

Professional regard for "Trock" comes from the fact that the ballet is not a drag show nor burlesque. Troup members are professionally trained dancers, whose humor comes from what they do, rather than how they do it.

"What we are doing is not female impersonation," said Primo Ballerino Antony Bassae (the black rhinestone, herself), "it's a ballerina imitation." The New York Post has also called it "talented clowning, produced and directed by people who know all too well the medium they are spoofing and who do it with effective restraint."

In its Detroit debut, the Trockadero will perform selections from "Swan Lake," "Spring Waters," the "Dying Swan" pas de deux and a pas de quatre, plus an unannounced new selection.

The Trockadero impressed the New Yorker's Arlene Croce, said to be the sternest dance critic of all. In reviewing Karpova/Bassae's performance in Don Quixote, Croce wrote: "Karpova, I believe gave a better performance than the Bolshoi's Nina Sorokina. There was more wit, more elegance and even more femininity in Karpova's balances and kneeling backbends than in all of Sorokin's tricks."

Yes, ballet will never be the same again.

Jazz-rock at UM-D

Jazz guitarist Ron English, considered by some as an "institution in Michigan music circles," will give a jazz-rock concert with his band at the University of Michigan-Dearborn at 9 p.m. Friday. Tickets are $2.50 at the door of the Recreation and Organizations Center. The concert is open to the public.

Formerly a member of the Lyman Woodward Organization, English will be backed up by a 10-piece band that features Phil Ranelin and George Davidson of Tribe. With two guitars, a three-piece sax section, a three-piece horn section and a drummer, the group plays original compositions and the music of Wayne Shorter. Recently, they appeared at Alvin's Back Room and Showcase Theatre.

The UM-D concert kicks off the campus' Just Jazz series, a year-long program featuring local and national artists. UM-D is located at 4901 Evergreen, just south of Ford Road. For more information, call 271-2300, ext. 586.

'House of Blue Leaves' to open college theater

"The Theatre" has scheduled its sixth season of plays to be performed on the Marygrove College campus, located at 8425 West McNichols, near Wyoming, in Detroit. The 1976-1977 season offers a complete variety of theatrical entertainment.

The season opens Oct. 1 with John Guare's "House of Blue Leaves," a zany, sometimes sad comedy set around the Pope's visit to New York. Winner of the 1971 Critics Circle and Obie Awards, this play will be directed by David Regal. (Dates: Oct. 1-3, 8-10, 15-17).

"U.S.A.," by Paul Shyre and John Dos Passos, examines American sentiment during the first third of the 20th century. This new musical adaptation of Dos Passos' dramatic revue will be directed by Joyce Ramsay (guest director), with musical direction by Norah Duncan IV. (Dates: Nov. 5-7, 12-14, 19-21).

"A Cry of Players," by William Gibson, takes a serious look at the younger years of William Shakespeare and his struggle for recognition as an actor and playwright. This winter offering will be directed by Arthur Beer. (Dates: Dec. 10-12, 16-19).

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' classic American drama, "A Streetcar Named Desire," will feature David Regal as Stanley Kowalski; guest director to be announced. (Dates: Jan. 28-30; Feb. 4-6; 11-13).

"The Taming of the Shrew," the Shakespearean comedy that focuses on the battle of the sexes, will be directed by Arthur Beer, who utilizes both a contemporary setting and a bright new musical score. (Dates: March 4-6, 11-13; 18-20).

"The Theatre" will close the season with Mart Crowley's "The Boys in the Band." Set at an all-male birthday party, this modern adult drama will be directed by David Rega. (Dates: April 15-17; 22-24; 29-30, May 1).

Season ticket reservations are being accepted by mail. Curtain times are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m.; Sunday evenings at 7:30 p.m. For further information, call the Performing Arts Box Office at 341-1838.

GLIMPSES

NEW RELEASES

HARRY AND WALTER GO TO NEW YORK (PG). James Caan and Elliott Gould are ne'er-do-well vaudevillians who bomb in New York. So what else is new?

LOGAN'S RUN (PG). Michael York, Jenny Agutter and Peter Ustinov compete with the special effects department in a 23rd century world where 29 years is all you get. Makes "55 and out" look pretty good.

MURDER BY DEATH (PG). Wonderful spoof by Neil Simon who convenes the world's five greatest detectives to solve a murder. Among them Peter Sellers, Alec Guinness and David Niven match wits and steal scenes. Lots of puns.

THE OMEN (R). Presents some unique contributions to movie horror in the grisly deaths which abound in this supernatural thriller. Gregory Peck and Lee Remick star.

THE RETURN OF A MAN CALLED HORSE (PG). An English lord helps the Indians regain their land from French traders. Action, gore and beautiful photography.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

SEVEN BEAUTIES (R). Giancarlo Giannini stars in Lina Wertmuller's tribute to man's instinct for survival. Set in Italy between the 1930s and the end of World War II, it's an outstanding film of Shakespearean breadth.

Sink Wayne in double dual meet

Rock, Chief tankers triumph

A double sweep by both the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton girls swim teams was logged Tuesday night, as both squads hosted Wayne Memorial at the Salem High School pool.

The Rocks beat Wayne 50-33 to even their mark at 1-1 for the year, while the Chiefs made it two straight without a loss, defeating Wayne 56-26. The Canton girls won all but one event, cruising to a victory that included four new school records.

The 200 medley relay combination of Cindy Shelanskey, Sue Knight, Annette Piethe and Peggy McEmeel swam a school record 2:08.3 clocking. The 400 free realy of McEmeel, Tina DeWalt, Lori Hogan and Jane Anderson won with a 4:26.5 timing.

Hogan placed first in the 200 free style race for the second time this season, and Shelanskey followed with a school record 2:33.0 in the 200 individual medley.

Anderson won both the 50 and 100 yard races, breaking her old school record in the 100 with a 1:02.2. McEmeel came in second in the 100 race.

Piethe was a winner in the 100 butterfly competition while Hogan placed first in the 500 free race.

Shelanskey broke another record in the 100 back with a 1:08.0 clocking. Jackie Bennett placed third in that race. Freshman Sue Knight against won the 100 breast stroke with an excellent time.

The only event the Chiefs lost was the diving competition where Wendy Gray took third for the Chiefs best finish.

The Rocks likewise, had little trouble against Wayne as coach Chuck Olson did a lot of experimenting in the meet and still came out a winner. Olson, knowing he had a stronger team, switched his personel around, swimming them in different events to see what they could do.

The result not only was a resounding victory for the Rocks, but one in which first and Second place finishes belonged to Salem in nine of the 11 events.

The only one-two victory that the Rocks didn't get credit for on the scoreboard was the 500 free, where Ilona Schmidt and Laura Perpich swam 6:12.5 and 6:38.0 times but were disqualified on a fluke technicality when Olson placed the girls in the wrong lanes at the beginning of the race.

The Rocks won the 200 medley relay with Jill McCann, Collette Kabados, Ilona Schmidt and Kathy Sample combining for a 2:08.6 clocking. The 400 free relays took second and third when Kim Coates, Linda Frazel, Diane and Laura Perpich combined for second and Colleen Bowman, Lynn Kohler, Jane Bowe and Julie Prchlik placed third.

Sue Stanwood and Sharon Ross were victors in the 200 free while McCann and Sue Evans topped the 200 individual medley race. Marion Stanwood broke a school record in the 50 free and was followed by Schmidt.

Amy McClumphia and Lisa Lukens finished second and third in the diving while Marion Stanwood and Suzanne Schmidt dominated the 100 fly competition.

Sue Stanwood topped the 100 free and Madeline Lakato finished second. McCann tied her record in the 100 back at 1:08.9 while Ross placed second. Collette Kabados was a pleasant surprise, winning the 100 breast and Evens followed in second.

Rock cagers win again; Chiefs fall to Spartans

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Salem's girls basketball team won its fifth straight game without a loss Tuesday night, beating the Livonia Churchill Chargers in a non-league game, 71-40, at the Salem High court.

The Rocks go after number six when they resume Suburban Eight League action this afternoon against Allen Park, beginning at 4 p.m.

The Rocks victory over Churchill came rather easily as a 20-14 first quarter lead extended throughout the game.

Salem led 27-20 at the half and 44-31 after three quarters, before putting the game away for good in the final period, scoring 27 points to the opponents' nine.

Everyone played for the Rocks, as Kathy Dillon led the scoring with 17 points. Dillon was followed by Patrice Cunningham who popped in 15. Every Rock player scored in the game except co-captain Peg Moore who ran into early foul trouble.

Reserve Debbie Pitera led the rebounding chores with 11, while Donna Goodrich and Erin Moore added seven and six respectively.

Dillon also had a fine defensive effort, adding six steals and four held balls to her game-high point total.

The Rocks took a massive 84 shots from the floor converting 32 for 38 per cent. Churchill took only 55 shots and made 16 for a low 29 per cent. Churchill's scoring was led by Ellen Lindstrom's 14 points.

At the Livonia Stevenson gym that same night, it was a different story as a sloppily played game saw the Spartans up end the Plymouth Canton cagers for their second loss of the season.

The non-league setback dropped the Chiefs record to 3-2.

A frustrated coach Mike McCauley, who called the first loss to Waterford Mott last Thursday, "the worst game played by one of his team's in years," didn't have to much good to say about this contest either.

Against Waterford, the Chiefs scored but two points in the first quarter, shooting one for 16 in that period enroute to a 25 per cent shooting performance for that night.

Against Stevenson, much of the same occurred as Canton combined many turnovers with countless lay up misses and an inability to penetrate the sticky Spartan zone defense, to lose 44-38.

The game was made close only in the final four minutes of play when Canton began to play some heads up basketball that cut a 12-point margin.

With the score 33-24 in favor of Stevenson after three quarters of play, McCauley lifted his first team as all the Chiefs began to see action. Then with 4:40 remaining in the game, the first teamers came back into the contest and cut a 39-27 lead to 42-38 with only 46 secends remaining. A final hoop by the Spartans secured the victory with only 24 seconds left on the clock.

Sophomore Laura Butler came off the bench in the second quarter and scored nine points to lead Canton in scoring.

The Chiefs had troubles at the foul line, converting only five of 18 shots, seven of which were in the penalty situation.

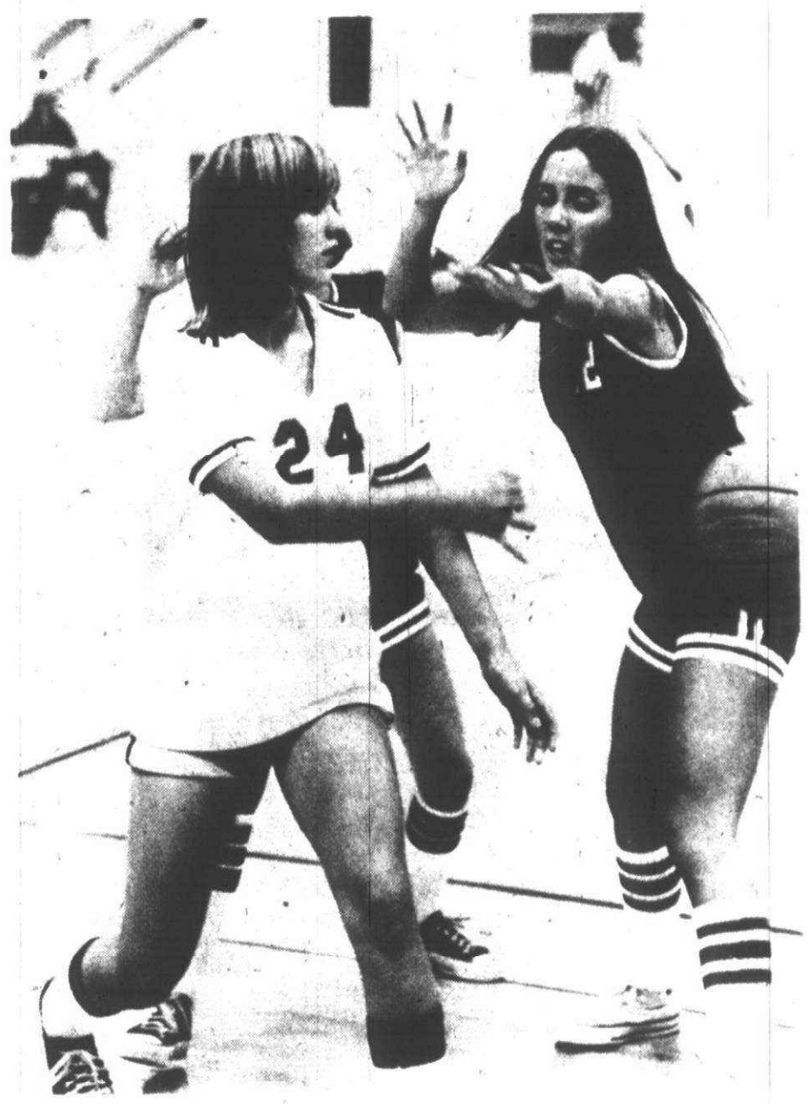

Stevenson jumped into an early 6-0 lead before Canton held the Spartans scoreless the remaining three minutes of the initial period and surged ahead 7-6.

The Spartans regained the led early in the second quarter and were never threatened until the late Chief comeback in the final period.

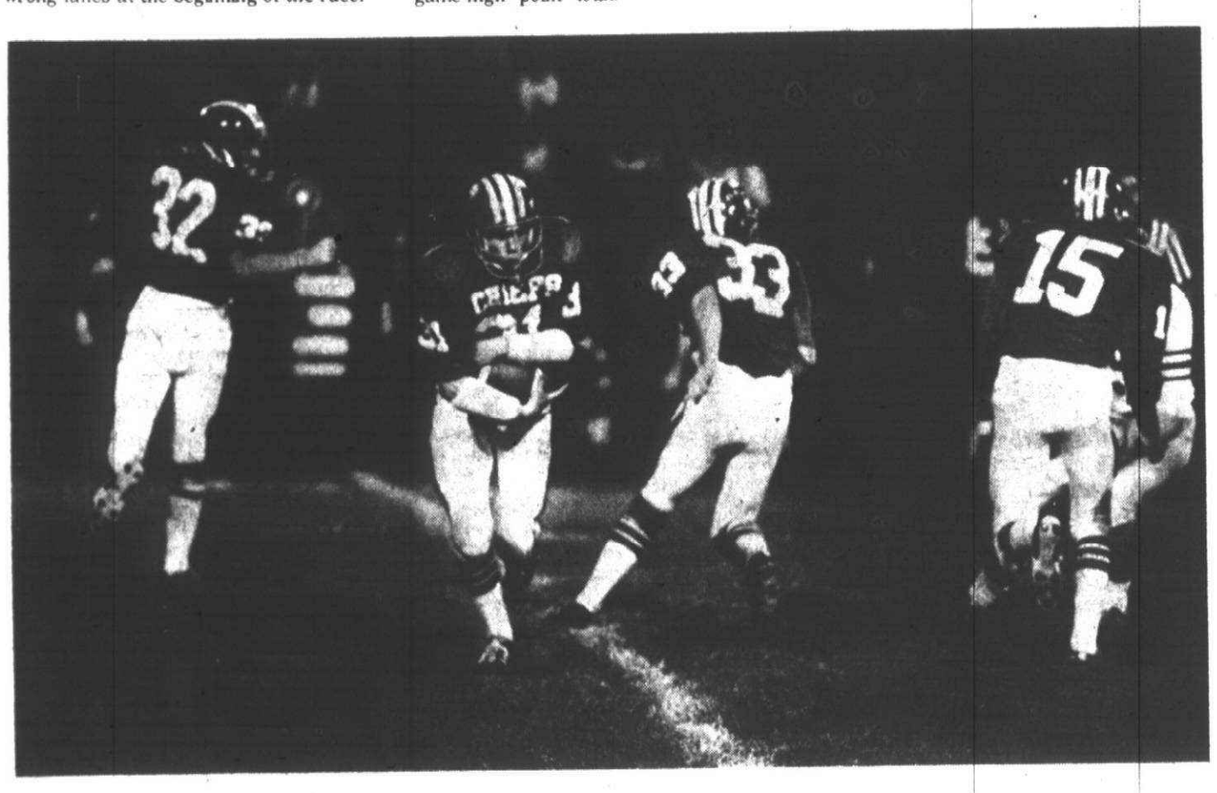

The Chief junior varsity won its fourth game of the year against only one loss, defeating Stevenson JV prior to the varsity contest, 48-36.

The Chiefs were down by seven points at half time, and by four at the end of three quarters before coming back for victory.

Vickie Cavallaro and Diane Durocher led the Chief JV scoring.

Meadows reverses for yardage

The Plymouth Canton defense drew much praise for its play in Saturday night's 18-8 victory over Dearbon Heights Annapolis, but this reverse play was a prime offensive weapon on many occasions, as wing back Jim Meadows gained substantial yardage. Also in this picture are running backs Mark Hutton (32) and Jerry Simons (33) along with quarterback Mark Perkins (15). (Staff photo by Gary Caskey).

Canton homecoming opens Western Six League race

Homecoming week is always a festive occasion but the climax of all activities over the past week centers around the football game.

For the Plymouth Canton Chiefs, this Friday night's contest against Waterford Mott is more than just a homecoming game. It's the beginning of another Western Six League season and a chance for the Chiefs to expand on their one game winning streak which started last Satuday night against Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

The Chiefs contest will begin at 8 p.m. at Centennial Park.

Coach Dave Schuele was especially proud of his Chiefs' defense against Annapolis. It set up two of the scores in the 18-8 victory.

"The defense played with more enthusiam against Annapolis, and this is so important because they don't have a ball to play with," he said.

Schuele was also pleased with the offense but he admitted it still broke down in some places.

"We're coming along a little bit and had more improvement from the Bentley game," Schuele said. "The front got off the line and blocked better. I think they are getting to know the offense better."

This week's opponent is a big, strong Waterford Mott team which is 1-1 for the season. They lost last week to a decent Pontiac Northern squad in overtime, 8-7. It will take a superior effort by the Chiefs to upset the Mott which is a good contendor for the Western Six League title.

At Plymouth Salem, the Rocks are licking their wounds from last week's surprising loss to the hands of the Belleville Tigers.

The Rocks hit the road for the first time this season, traveling to Redford Union Friday night for an 8 p.m. game.

The Panthers have been the creampuffs of the Suburban Eight League over the past years, not having won a game since the 1974 season.

The Panthers are 0-2 this season but gave respectable Edsel Ford a battle last Friday afternoon, losing 19-12.

Netters win

Plymouth Salem girls tennis team won its second Suburban Eight League match Tuesday afternoon, defeating Allen Park 6-1 at the opponents' court. The Rocks record stands at 5-2 for the season.

Becky Crespo, Courtney Warrick, and Kathy Horton won singles matches while Nancy Grotz was the only loser.

The doubles combinations of Tamie Crespo and Lynne Stone, Cindy Cindrich and Kathy Sudendorf, and Laurene Kirchoff and Diane Miller were all victorious.

Jr. cagers begin registration

Registration for the 1976-1977 Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association begins Saturday, Oct. 2 at West Middle School.

Hours for registration are 9 a.m.-2 p.m. at West, located at the corner of Sheldon Road and Ann Arbor Trail. Registration will also take place the following two Saturdays, Oct. 9 and 16.

Boys and girls accompanied by one parent should bring the $7.50 registration fee.

There has been the addition of third and 10th grade teams for girls.

Boys age levels of third through 10th grades remain the same.

More than 700 boys and girls, 200 adult coaches and 30 members of the board of directors made up the junior basketball league last season.

The registration fee, which has remained the same for the last five years, covers the league operating costs.

Tryouts will be held on Oct. 23 as a means of distributing playing abilities on each team.

Regular practice sessions will be one-and-a half to three hours per week. Preferred practice nights can be indicated at registration. Games are played each Saturday, staring Oct. 25 through March 5.

The general philosophy of the league supports sportsmanship and knowledge of the game. Each boy and girl will play a minimum of eight minutes (one quarter) of each game and not more that three quarters of each contest.

Complete details of the program will be provided in the information handbook at registration.

All people participating in other basketball elagues who will later wish to join the Plymouth-Canton league must register and participate in tryouts. The league encourages children participation but reminds people that "any boys or girls participating with any concurrent organization basketball program outside the Plymouth-Canton league are not eligible."

This year's board president is Bob Rienas, who has coached and worked on the board of directors for eight years. Coaches for teams are still needed. Any adult interested can call Rienas at 455-0274.

Jr. baseball picks board

Election for new board officers and members for the 1977 season of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League will take place Thursday, Oct. 14 at the regular board meeting at 7:30 p.m. at Plymouth Canton High, Room 128.

There are still open spots for people interested in participating on the board. Anyone who would like to run for election can contact Dan Goodrich at 455-7065 or Jerry Stevens at 453-0950.

All adult residents are eligible to vote.

Panthers beat Brighton but Lions lose in rain

The taste of victory is always sweet and the Plymouth Panthers of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Football League experienced that feeling last Sunday, winning two out of three games from the Brighton Broncos.

The freshman and varsity squads raised both its records to 1-2 for the season with shutout victories of 13-0 and 14-0 respectively. The junior varsity lost its game 6-0, dropping its mark to 0-3 for the year.

"All three teams played at a level with 10 times more experience," said unit director Mason Ludlow. "The defenses played great and the offensive lines opened holes big enough to drive a truck through.

"It was great to taste victory, and they deserved it."

The Panthers travel to Ann Arbor this Sunday to play the Packers with starting time for the freshman game 1 p.m.

The Plymouth Lions were caught in three defensive struggles with the Ann Arbor Rams at Central Middle School last Sunday, as the Lion freshmen came out with the only Plymouth victory.

"Neither of the teams had anything to be ashamed of," said Lions unit director Leonard Graham. "They played great ball under the rainy conditions."

The Lion freshmen raised its record to 2-1 for the season with a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over the Rams. The Ann Arbor squad scored first to gain a 7-0 lead before the Lions came back and converted the two-point extra point for the victory.

The junior varsity lost a defensive heartbreaker, 2-0 on a safety in the third quarter. The two-pointer came after the Lions JV held the Rams with an outstanding goal line stance. The Lions offense took the ball over on the one-yard line, but a back was tackled by the Rams in the endzone to score the only points of the game. The JV record for the season is 1-2.

The varsity lost its third straight game of the year with a 24-6 setback to the Rams.

All of the Lions girl cheerleaders stayed the entire day in the rain to cheer their teams.

The Lions are at home this Sunday, hosting the Brighton Broncos at Central Middle School, starting at 1 p.m.

Spiker Sellman joins UM team

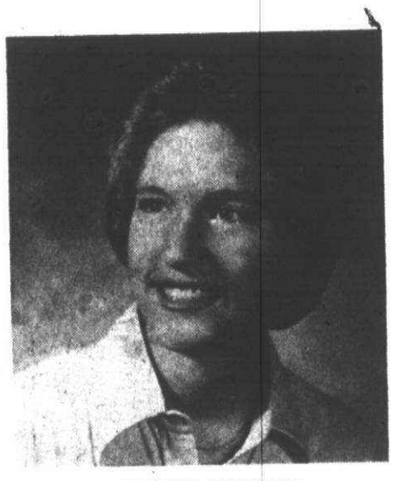

Jeanne Sellman, 1976 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was named a varsity player on the University of Michigan girls volleyball team last week.

The freshman was chosen from among 35 girls.

At Salem, Sellman served as the Rocks captain last season, and led her squad to a second place finish in the Suburban Eight League. She was a member of the Rock varsity for three season, and played junior varsity ball in her freshman year at Salem.

Sellman is one of only three freshmen girls to participate on the varsity level this season for Michigan. In spite of a sprained ankle, suffered on the second day of tryouts, Sellman still made the cut.

Her roommate Suzanne Hartnett will serve as student manager for the U-M volleyball team this season.

Touch football results

The third week of the Plymouth men's touch football season was greeted by rain and a soggy field.

But not even these elements could stop a strong Realty World team from crunching the Mean Machine, 34-9.

Realty World struck early as a deflected pass by Bernie Jackson at the line of scrimmage, ended up in the hands of Tom Battistone who returned the ball 40 yards for a touchdown.

On the Mean Machine's next series of downs, Dennis Galloway intercepted a pass and went 37 yards for the score, giving Realty a 14-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Realty World had the ball on its own three-yard line when a bad pass from center resulted in a safety and the Mean Machine's first points of the game. Realty kicked off following the safety and Mean Machine marched down the field.

The highlight of that drive was a 31-yard pass play between quarterback Dan DeVito and flanker Lew Smith. DeVito took the ball over from the one-yard line to cut Realty World's lead to 14-9 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Realty scored when quarterback Gary Knapp connected on an 80-yard bomb to Dennis Finfrock. Minutes later, Rick Martinez stopped a sustained Mean Machine drive by intercepting a pass at his own 15. Knapp then connected on the very next play with Ron Martinez for an 85-yard touchdown.

The scoring was rounded out when Knapp again hit Finfrock with a 63-yard gain to the opponent's five. Knapp then hit Ron Martinez with a pass for the final score of the day.

TWO OFFENSIVE-MINDED TEAMS, the Stoners and Team 3, were hampered by the constant downpour in the second game. Through three quarters, the contest was scoreless as neither team could move the ball.

Finally, with only 5:09 remaining the game, Mark Johnson booted a 21-yard field goal for the Stoners, giving them a 3-0 victory.

Vettese Builders played well in the mud of the third game, as it soundly beat Wagenschutz, 38-6. Vettese got a first quarter touchdown when Rick Neu intercepted a pass and returned it 27 yards. Neu stymied a second quarter Wagenschutz drive by intercepting another pass at the Vettese 15. But two plays later, Wagenschutz's Bill Lenaghan intercepted a Gary Baker pass and returned it 22 yards for the score.

Vettese maintained a 7-6 lead as the Wagenschutz extra point was missed.

Vettese came right back with a sustained drive, capped off by a Baker to Dunson pass from four yards out. As the first half was nearing a close, quarterback Baker hooked up with Clark Fullerton for an 81-yard touchdown.

With only 30 seconds left in the half, a deflected pass at the Wagenschutz 10-yard line was intercepted by Fullerton, and Baker capitalized on the situation by running the ball across the goal line for another score as the half ended, giving Vettese a 26-6 lead.

In the third quarter, Dan Moore intercepted a Wagenschutz pass and returned it 41 yards for a score. Late in the final period, Baker finished the onslaught with a 70-yard punt return for a touchdown.

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

The first loss of the season for Plymouth Salem gridders last Friday night not only came as a surprise to me, but also to a lot of fans who watched these same Rocks demolish highly-rated Bloomfield Hills Andover the week before, 30-6.

There were many factors in the loss to the Belleville Tigers, which Salem suffered 12-6. One main reason was the fact that the Rocks underrated this squad which has shown much improvement over last season.

And, I must admit, this reporter also underestimated the ability of Belleville.

The final score was 12-6, but the game really wasn't that close, as the Tigers man handled the Rocks all night. One must wonder how the Belleville squad was picked to finish in the second division of the Suburban Eight League after this performance.

Or, what other people may wonder is: Are the Rocks as good as they were made out to be at the beginning of the season?

Head coach Tom Moshimer said the reason for his teams' loss to Belleville was they weren't mentally prepared for the game.

Bit Moshimer didn't take anything away from the Tiger squad, complementing the quick play of runnning backs, Kelvin Patterson and Kevin Barnes.

Moshimer said that since his squad wasn't mentally prepared, their physical performance was effected.

From what I saw, the Rocks interior line, which, according to Moshimer at the beginning of the season, "could" be the best he's ever coached, was thoroughly outplayed by Belleville and has a lot to prove.

The Rocks will easily handle Redford Union this Friday, but then comes Trenton the following week, and that's when the Rocks' offensive line will have to improve on its performance.

This week's games:

It's homecoming at the Centennial Park field for Plymouth Canton High School this Friday night, as the Chiefs open their Western Six League season against Waterford Mott. Game time is 8 p.m.

The Chiefs have the city's longest football win streak at this moment—one game. While Canton's defense was impressive in victory against Annapolis, last Saturday night, the offense lagged consistency.

Waterford Mott is a big, strong physical squad which should be fighting Farmington Harrison for the conference crown. It's going to be a sad homecoming for Chief fans. Mott by 14.

The Rocks should have little problem in rebounding from last week's loss to Belleville, as they face lowly-rated Redford Union at the Panthers' field. Game time is 8 p.m.

Redford Union didn't win a game last season and is 0-2 so far this year. Salem by 15.

Michigan sinks Navy

By W. W. EDGAR

Back in the early days of the century "hurry-up" Yost and his "point-a-minue-football team were considered the scourge of the gridiron world.

This combination, with such stars as Willie Heston in the backfield and Germany Schultz in the center of the line, ran up points so rapidly that one opponent quit before the official time expired.

"There never will be another team like this one," football fans in all sections of the nation declared. Yost and his "boys" became a legend, not only at Michigan, but across the country.

Now, fans are wondering if there isn't another team coming along to match Yost's combination.

In the first three games this season the Wolverines have run up 161 points—and that after a poor first half against Navy last Saturday before sinking the them, 70-14.

The present Maize and Blue combiantion is blessed with everything a good team needs. It has speed and deception on offense and a defense that lifts the 100,000 spectators out of their seats these golden autumn afternoons.

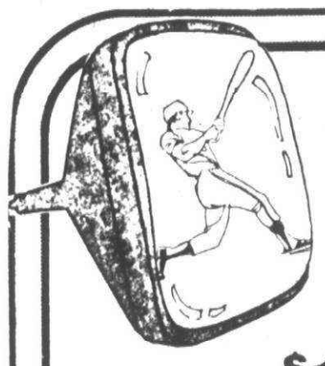

Added to all these assets, the squad has depth, as well was proven when the second, third and even fourth stringers, outplayed the midshipmen.

Remember, the Wolverines piled up their score without the services of Harlan Huckleby, the flashy back, after the first quarter. And his successors performed surprisngly well.

Another surprise was the showing of Stacy Johnson, the sophomore quarterback from Camden, N.J. He took over from Rick Leach and did a remarkable job.

This week against Wake Forest, with 13,000 high school bandsmen looking on, there is expected to be another walkaway.

Redford Relays coming

Seven area swimming teams, led by defending champion Livonia Stevenson, will be among the 12 thrashing it out Saturday afternoon and night at the third annual Redford Union Girls' Swimming Relays.

Preliminaries for the 10 events bebin in the RU pool at 1 p.m., with the finals slated to start at 7 p.m.

Tickets, at $1 for students and $1.50 for adults, will be available at the door and will be good for both sessions, said RU swim coach Ralph Deetz.

The Saturday meet is the first major girls' swimming relay in the area this fall.

Stevenson, a big winner last year over runner-up Trenton, returns with another strong team and again merits the favorite's role.

Area teams that will attempt to derail the Spartans are Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Clarenceville, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Churchill and host RU.

Other challengers are Northville, Trenton, Wayne, Dearborn and Edsel Ford.

Salem runners

Plymouth Salem was turned back in its third bid for a dual meet victory Tuesday afternoon, as Livonia Churchill did the honors by posting a 25-30 win, despite a new school record for the Cass Benton course established by Salem's Scott Kleam.

Kleam wound his way over the three-mile course in 15:52 to take individual honors in the meet, with Churchill's Vic Wietacha taking the runnerup spot for the Chargers in 15:55. "Scott's time has really been coming down since the beginning of the season," said Salem coach Steve Rea.

Senior harrier Walt White took third place even though he was suffering from the flu. Other Salem scoring in the varsity meet were sophomore Jeff Econom, an eighth-place finish in 17:53, and senior Jeff Mangan arriving in sixth place with a 17:28 time.

Freshman Bob Stiffler lowered his personal best by six seconds with an 18:18 time, and another pair of freshman running on the varsity were Paul Hess (18:24), and Craig Finley (18:45).

"Considering the overall health of the team, I'd say we did a respectable job," Rea said.

Salem runs in a tri-meet today against Dearborn and Belleville at Cass Benton, while Churchill travels to Farmington Harrison for a meet with the Hawks.

Canton runners

Plymouth Canton won't be expecting many victories this year but they can look forward to improving times, and Tuesday in its meet against Clarenceville, the Chiefs lowered individual standards while taking a 22-38 loss at the hands of the Trojans.

"The times are improving with almost everyone, but not to the extent where we're going to start beating people," commented Canton Coach Mike Spitz.

Bill Murphy led the Chief charge with a second-place finish in 17:05, a personal best. Canton's number two runner, Rick Fleischer, was hampered with an ankle sprain which prevented him from participating in the meet.

Mark Zydeck took the fifth spot in 18:23, freshman Brian Olk copped seventh place with an 18:43 showing. An 18:56 clocking earned Dennis Hennells tenth place, and Dave Spitz rounded out the varsity scoring with a 19:35 time for 11th.

"If Fleischer had run a mediocre time it would've been a lot closer, but we can still look for plenty of improvement as the season progresses," added Spitz.

Canton hosts Waterford Mott today at 4 p.m., in a meet to be run on the Cass Benton course.

Ladywood wins

LADYWOOD—REDFORD ST. MARY

Utilizing a zone defense to hold Redford St. Mary scoreless in the first quarter, Ladywood Tuesday night roared to its sixth consecutive basketball win of the season, 57-24.

Everyone on the Ladywood roster saw action. Clare Swabon tossed in 12 points, Diane White, 11, and Carol Crissey, nine.

Redford St. Mary was unable to find the offensive range all evening long.

Canton golf vs. Clarenceville

Plymouth Canton boys' golf team beat Northville Monday, 213-220, bringing its season record to 4-3.

Canton's senior captain, Steve Morman, was match medalist scoring an even 40 at Brae Burn, which is both Canton and Northville's home course.

Canton's Doug Bricker and Scott McGlone shot the back nine in 42. Northville's Kurt Mack and Steve Redilla also shot 42s.

Canton freshman Dave Visser added a 44 to the Chiefs victory and Chip Chamberlin also shot a 44 for Northville. Mustangs Don Dales and Brian Denhof each finished with 46.

Canton will meet Waterford Mott this afternoon (Thursday) at Brae Burn. The teams will tee off at 3 p.m.

Canton tennis

Plymouth Canton girls tennis team lost a non-league match to Thurston Tuesday afternoon, dropping its record to 1-6 for the season.

The Chiefs lost the home match, 6-1, with first singles Mary Riffe winning the only contest of the day. Riffe won her match with a split set, tie-breaker triumph.

The Chiefs resume Western Six League action today, against Northville at Centennial Park courts beginning at 4 p.m.

Salem golf

Beating top golf teams and raising its season record to an all-time high occurred Monday when the Plymouth Salem boys' golf team beat Trenton, 166-170.

Plymouth's Ted Kuhns gained medalist honors with a 39 at the Grosse Ile Country Club, while Rock captain Mike Mullen came in with a 41.

Trenton's Mike Barno scored a 41 and teammate Bill McKay added a 42. Nick Mans putted in for a 43 and Jeff Tacoff tallied a 44.

Other Rock scorers were sophomore Craig Stevens with a 42 and Mike Wickham with a 44.

"I'm quite pleased with today's scores from such a tough course. This was the first time we had beaten Trenton in years," said Salem coach Bob Waters.

With a record of 8-1 the Rocks meet North Farmington at 3 p.m. today (Thursday) on the opponents' course.

DOG TRAINING
You say your dog drags you down the street and you got your knees all skinned up; he jumped on your mother-in-law and got her dress dirty; he chased your neighbor over the fence and tore the seat of his britches out; he won't come when you call him off the mailman; and he bit the Judge in the Show Ring? Is that your trouble, Bunky? Well pick up that phone, call Dog World, see how 5 in a class instead of 25 can give your dog the Citizen-of-the-Year Award. 464-3615

BUILDER INTRODUCES NEW CONDO LOOK!

New hillside homes at Lexington Condos in Northville.

Five unusual Condominium homes are now available for five very special families at Lexington Condos in Northville.

Nosan Building Corporation, builders of Lexington, haven't really changed the floor plans. When you've got a winner, you don't fool with it! But because of a unique hillside setting, the outside appearance of the homes has been changed a bit. The garages have been tucked back under the homes, creating an enormous 21'x23' two car garage with a private entry into the basement of the home-ideal for the home hobbyist. The front porch has been expanded to 12'x12' (almost a patio) and the foyer entry has been enlarged and lightened. Also, provision has been made for a full bath in the basement, making this area easily adaptable as a teenager's getaway "apartment."

The total effect is Sophisticated California Contemporary-reminiscent of San Francisco's Lombard Street only done in earth tones.

Because settings like this one are uncommon, this is a limited edition offering.

The new two and three bedroom hillside homes range in price from $49,000 to $55,000. A three bedroom Carleton at 1800 plus square feet is being finished out as a temporary model and will be ready for viewing this weekend. Other homes are available for 30-45 day occupancy.

Lexington Condo Homes is located on 8 Mile Road one mile west of Sheldon Road (Center Street) in the City of Northville. Sales Office and Models are open after 1:00 p.m. everyday except Thursday. For further information, please call 522-4920.

And thrifty, too. There is no charge for their services. Add to that, other services. Such as our Bride's Registry... as you might expect, the nation's largest. finish of the fabric and the antiqued pewter walls. The Queen Anne chairs which surround the table are upholstered in a richly colored flame stitch tapestry fabric. On the walls are a few of Mitchell's collection of rare bird prints.

Another example of Mitchell's use of textures is in the high-ceilinged studio off the master bedroom and just up a few steps from the billiards room.

In it are two slick persimmon-colored leather-tufted wingback chairs. There is also a wool plaid upholstered sofa to compliment the bare wood floors and the panelling throughout the room.

The studio contains another of the four fireplaces in the house.

With all the variations of designs used so far, it will be interesting to see how the living room comes out—but we may have a long wait, if Mitchell is really like the proverbial shoemaker.

Mitchells' bedroom is an elegant study in blues and whites with a decided feminine touch.

Narrow-slatted blinds accent windows

Three arched double glass doors with spider web transoms form the west wall of the living-dining room area. Like all the windows and doors in the home, there are no curtains to interupt the visual flow.

Instead, Ms. Stehle installed narrow-slatted blinds on all the windows, but the doors and their side glass are bare.

"The woodwork is so distinctive that it would have been a shame to cover it up. The blinds were the perfect solution," she said.

The master bedroom, which is off the front entrance hall, is done in sombre greys. The walls are covered in grey suede-like material and the ceiling is papered in dark grey Mylar.

A stainless steel custom designed bedframe acts as a picture frame of sorts for an antique quilt. The quilt offers a colorful contrast to the rest of the room. The man's library, like the bedroom, is a respite from the expanses of the rest of the house.

Throughout the house, the walls are decorated with graphic and sculptural art. Precious bibelots line the glass, chrome and brass etageres on either side of the living room fireplace.

Altogether it is a stunning house which provides the space and sense of relaxation a busy man needs at the end of the day and on weekends. The only thing which isn't very Victorian about his home is the pantry.

Like Mother Hubbard's, the cupboard is bare.

"I eat out an awful lot," he quipped. "Gosh," he said as he inspected the barren refrigerator, "I'm even low on Breakfast Squares."

Hunting horns form the dining room chandelier hung in a room filled with American antiques.

An extension of the garden is created with wall and ceiling paper. White flooring reflects all the light which enters the room.

Tankards suspended from the ceiling beams add a note of American hospitality to the family living room.

A porcelain pussycat lounges in her wingback chair.

American traditions alive and enchanting

The Spirit of '76 still reigns in some households.

"I grew up in a traditional house, but it was all beige. I wanted my traditional home to be different," explained Bernard Reilly's Bloomfield Hills client.

So Reilly, of Reilly and Sands of Grosse Pointe, designed a new traditional house. Using a color scheme of blueberry and terra cotta in the family room, Reilly departed from the red, white and blue, some might have chosen.

"We ripped out the panelling that was here and added the beams. The room has a very intimate feeling this way," he said.

To solidify the traditional note, 72 pewter mugs hang from the beams, pub style. More pewter accessories and antiques complete the look of the room with several purposes. All the wood that appears in the room on furniture and moldings, Reilly said, was finished in a high gloss to contrast with the matte finish of the dark blue felt wallcovering.

Beyond this rugged, yet comfortable room, is a breath of spring in the "garden room." The room was formerly an open porch, but the owners converted it into a usable room by adding glass walls. Everywhere there isn't glass, including on the ceiling, there is a bold floral pattern wallcovering which furthers the garden feeling.

Wrought iron furniture gives the room another summery note. A white tile floor reflects all the light that comes in too.

Quite contrary to the informal moods in those two rooms is the one which predominates in the foyer, living room and dining room.

While the look is light and airy it is decidedly more feminine and formal. Light blue is the most evident color, with touches of light green and whites added for interest. Throughout the house, traditional American furniture is used. A handsome highboy greets callers in the foyer and a corner chair is one of the focal points of the living room.

Queen Anne chairs and an antique drop-leaf table are the most notably American touches in the dining room. The dining room also sports a floral wall covering and contrasting wainscoting and ceiling moldings.

A note of contemporania in the living room is the glass and chrome coffee table which sits on an elegant Aubusson-style carpet. A china closet at one end of the living room holds choice antiques and next to it, in the same alcove, is a dainty writing desk.

Resting on a wingback chair, a ceramic kitty takes a catnap.

A tent environment was created in the dining room for intimate meals with lots of close conversation.

The study is a profusion of warm colors and bright patterns.

The studio has a two-story north window and is the place where weaving is one of the activities.

Designer lets his rooms, home evolve

Like most interior designer's homes, John H. Mitchell's suffers from the "shoemaker's children" syndrome.

"And it'll never be finished," boasts Mitchell, whose studio is in Birmingham.

"It's always in a state of flux. Over a period of years the rooms will just evolve.

Mitchell insists the living room "hasn't been touched," because it wasn't one of the rooms he and his wife tackled immediately when they moved in a year ago. But even in its "untouched" state the walls have been covered in plum-colored suede and the room is the gallery for examples of contemporary art.

"What we have done we did all at once. We didn't work a room at a time. One reason the house appealed to us so much was that it is built on a people scale. With all the different levels, none has to relate to the other to be appreciated," he said.

One thing which conforms, however, is Mitchell's use of textures.

"We use texture the way most people use color," he said.

One striking example of this is in a small study off the kitchen. The walls are covered in an orange horizontal split bamboo material.

"The wallcovering gives one a very warm, closed-in feeling. We use this room a lot in the winter. We designed it with an intimate character for two people to use.

Except for the master bedroom and the kitchen, most of the rooms in the house have a decided winter look about them. Mitchell explained that both he and his wife are avid gardeners and work outdoors most of the warm months so they only "live" in the house in the winter.

The bedroom is a fantasy of blue and white which Mitchell designed that way because his wife "wanted a very feminine bedroom; not sexy, but feminine. This is like a morning room you'd see in Switzerland," Mitchell said.

His wife got her wish in a room with an antique fireplace and a Portugese hand-painted and carved headboard for the bed. Two blue velvet wing-back chairs rest on either side of the fireplace and skirted tables grace each side of the bed.

Balloon-draped curtains of eyelet lace adorn the windows. The walls are covered in a blue grasscloth material which adds another texture to the room.

Mrs. Mitchell inherited a well-appointed kitchen from the home's former owners, but she and her husband added a shiny, large Iris pattern wallpaper to give brilliance to the North-lighted room.

It is a room which Mrs. Mitchell uses to her advantage, if her husband's compliments about her culinary expertise are to be believed.

"She is a superior cook," he said.

What she prepares is served to guests in a dramatic dining room, which could conceivably overshadow any souffle.

"I have always been infatuated with tents, so I did the dining room to look like an elegant one," Mitchell explained.

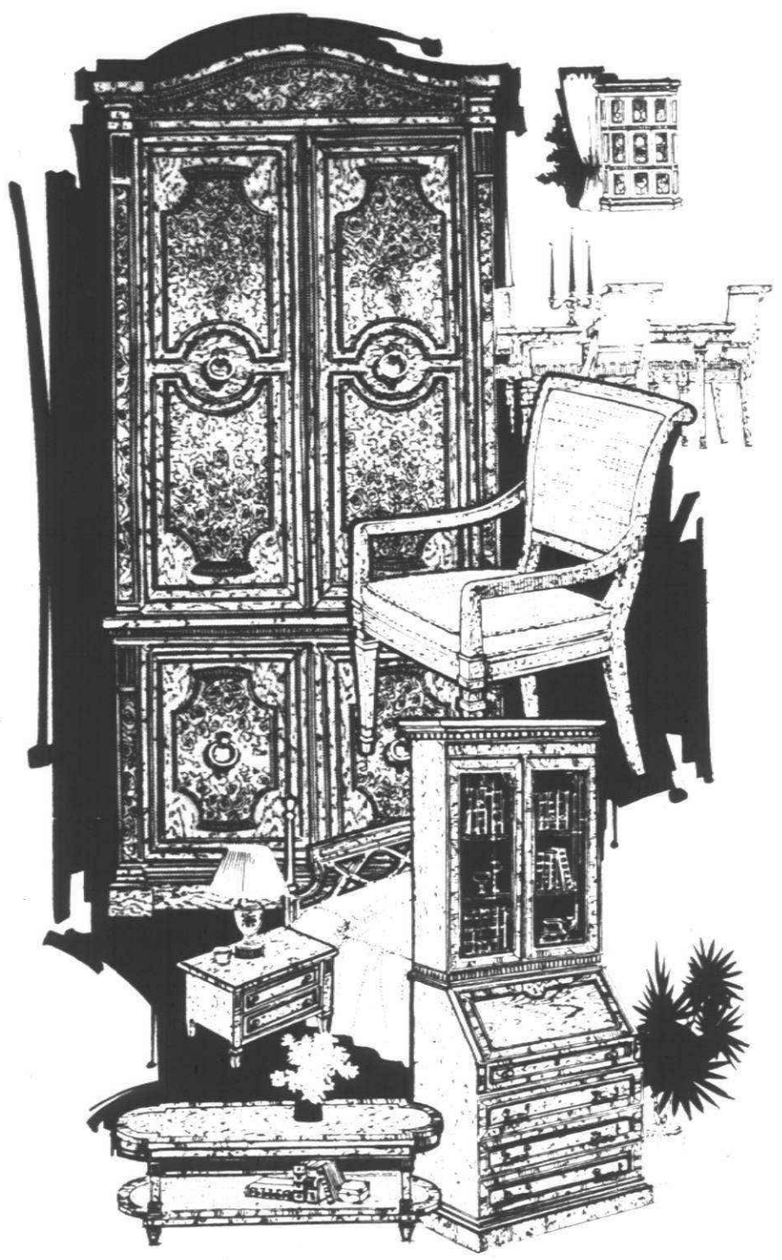

The tent is draped from a center circle of smoked mirror. The chandelier is suspended from the center of the mirror. The walls are painted the same putty color as the cotton duck in the tenting.

A glass and chrome dining table contrasts with the matte

'Treehouse' fills bill for pre-retirees

WANTED: The perfect retirement home for two people too young to retire, who entertain frequently.

FOUND: A house with only seven rooms to clean, no lawn to mow and no leaves to rake.

What was once a figment of a Birmingham couple's imagination is now a reality. Designed by architect Paul Gaiser and built by William Chickering, this "tree" house fits the description the couple had in mind.

The couple has grown children who live in when they're not at college or in their own homes, so they needed room for both family and formal ocassions. The house accomodates such activities.

A fireplace wall reaching 32 feet at the top of its roofline angle separates two huge rooms used for entertaining in both modes. On one side is a formal living room with an elegant arched window and walnut panelling above the traditional fireplace mantel.

Combining the furnishings from two generations for this room was the task appointed to interior designer Irene Hanslow of Pierson's Interiors.

Velvet and silk-covered chairs in tones of apricot and light green are placed to form distinct conversation areas in the living room.

"Everything is very understated with no pattern, so I added some at the window," Ms. Hanslow said. A patterned drape outlines the arched form of the huge window.

On the other side of the fireplace wall is the "Room we really live in," the owner said. It is an informal, same-size version of the living room. One of its focal points is a 10-foot wood sculpture hung over the fireplace. It was made by the builder for his clients.

Because Ms. Hanslow had the advantage of working with the architect and builder from the beginning of the house planning, she was able to include tone flame stitch fabric. More pattern appears in pillow accents and a batik wallcovering used on parts of the kitchen walls above and below the cupboards.

The rest of the walls in the rooms have been covered with a light beige antiqued paint finish to lighten them and add more reflective surfaces.

The natural look of the walls and floor are continued in the basket and plant accessories, as well as the rattan-wrapped and glass coffee table.

An Avanti wall system covers one wall and eliminates the clutter of television, stereo and bar equipment to help expand the room. An open glass and chrome etagere on another wall is a bright repositiory for the family's travel mementoes.

A new breakfast counter divides the kitchen from the family room. It has a brick colored laminated surface. The four chairs which surround it are low and cannot be seen above the counter line, helping maintain a clear view from kitchen through family room. Hardware on all the kitchen cupboards and drawers is Lucite to add more lightness.

Recessed, variable intensity lighting illuminates both rooms. The windows are treated as simply as possible with woven wood Roman shades on the large family room window as well as on the kitchen window.

"It isn't a miracle that the room turned out the way it did, but it was a surprise to the clients that anything could be done to make it look better and be more usable. They thought it was an impossible job and to tell the truth, I even thought so the first time I saw it," Ms. Golden admitted.

'Miracle worker' changes room's mood

A softer feeling was created in the combination room, with light colors and floating patterns.

Making a silk purse out of a sow's ear was the challenge met by interior designer Linda Golden for one of her Birmingham clients.

"You wouldn't have believed what this room looked like when I first saw it. It was turquoise with varnished panelling and a dark floor with lots of draperies at the window. It was like a tomb," she said.

The room shouldn't have resembled a tomb as it was far too large a space to be wasted. This family room-kitchen combination should have been a livable area for a young family. Instead it was too dark to be inviting and so it was rarely used.

As Ms. Golden designed it, the room is now lightened up and used the most of any room in the house. It was made to appear as expansive as it is with an overall no-pattern, beige, flat-weave carpet and a basically two-color scheme of brick and beige.

Pattern is developed in the two sofas which form a conversation area in the family room. They are upholstered in a beige-

Gentlemanly home reflects its owner

Grey suede wallcovering sets a quiet mood in a man's bedroom, complete with a handsome antique quilt and Eames chair.

In Queen Victoria's day, a proper gentleman knew what sort of abode he wanted and appointed it accordingly. But long gone are those bachelors out of the pages of John Galsworthy's novels.

In their places are fellows who, for the most part, probably wouldn't know an etching if they saw one and they're happy with a few of mother's hand-me-downs and a decent bed for their apartment.

Unusual is the man who knows what he wants in a home and gets it.

One Birmingham bachelor fits the description of the discerning Victorian gentleman. Even sans etchings, he is still way ahead of the field of his contemporaries where his home is concerned.

For years he'd been visiting Greenfield Village.

"Apparently one of the historic houses there made quite an impression on him. So when it came time to build his own house, he picked that design for it," said the man's interior de-

'Tree house' fills bill

luxuries like recessed and variable lighting systems, a plethora of electric outlets in the family room floor to eliminate extension cord hangups and time enough to order furniture and wall coverings so the house would be ready by move-in day.

"The furniture in the family room is what we call a combination of American traditional and comfortable contemporary," Ms. Hanslow said.

Adjacent to the family room is the open kitchen with its floating work island for the chef of the hour. The kitchen also serves an elegant and surprisingly small formal dining room.

"This is one of the most intimate areas in the house. We specifically wanted it to be cozy as a contrast to the rest of the house. I really had to do some talking to get the owners to agree to a dark background wallpaper, but now I think they like it," Ms. Hanslow said.

That paper is a dark brown with white floral designs throughout. The dining room has several American Empire style furniture pieces in it, combined with other traditional American styles. It is typically mixed like the rest of the house.

Part of the mix are Oriental pieces, mementoes of travel to the Far East.

To complete the picture, a cedar deck runs along the rear of the house overlooking a steep hill covered with a forest of diverse trees that drop leaves that never have to be raked!

signer Jane Stehle.

The exterior of the house is an exact copy of the "Michigan Victorian style" house in Greenfield Village. It was built for the man by William Malloy. The interior is another story.

The original floor plan was changed completely to accomodate the man's lifestyle. Instead of having the original small, cramped rooms, he decided to delete most of the walls to create one large space for entertaining.

"I like the open feeling you get this way," he said. The first floor space is divided visually by furniture into a large living room and adjoining dining area.

Campaign chest cabinets help create a masculine kitchen and Hitchcock chairs continue the mood.

More campaign chests were used in the study adjacent to the room pictured on 'HOME's' cover.

A combination of antiques and contemporary furniture melds the historic and the "now" feeling in the house. Special moldings were milled for the house. Fluted moldings surround the windows and rosettes finish the corners of the windows.

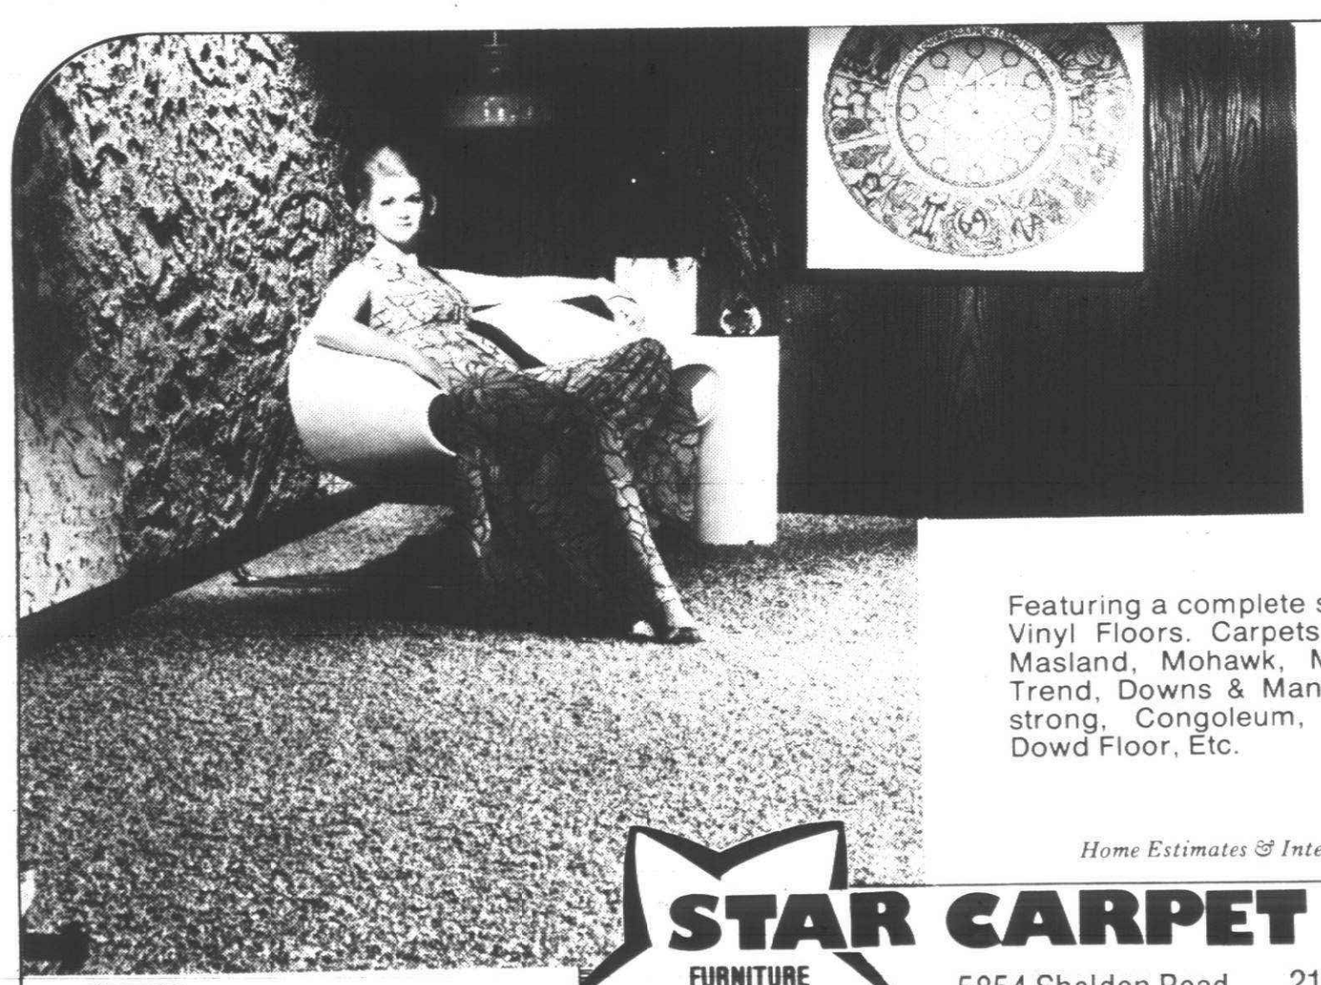

All of this woodwork is finished in a dark stain to contrast with the white walls and the lighter stained hardwood floors and wood furniture.

"One of the nicest things about the house are the contrasts. You walk from room to room and you never know what to expect," Ms. Stehle said. She said her client was an ideal one.

"He is enthusastic and interested in everything. He has good taste and he knows what he likes, but he's also open to suggestions," she said.

"That is the optimum way to work. The recessed lighting, for instance was in the original plans. That saves money and effort," she said.

Rooms meet needs

repeated in the opening to the kitchen and stucco wall texturizing adds another Spanish touch.

Track lighting was installed to give variation and mood where needed. The overall effect of the room is comfort and functionality.

While the formal living room is comfortable, it doesn't invite the casual visitor to relax nor does it invite the youngster with the chocolate popsicle.

Tile flooring in the back hall of the new room welcomes such eating, however, and a color scheme of rust and beige connotes informality, too.

In David Goldburg's client's home, the task was somewhat different.

"They wanted a very useful room that would serve as their real living room until they completed converting the rest of the house from its typical colonial ranch style into something more contemporary," Goldberg said.

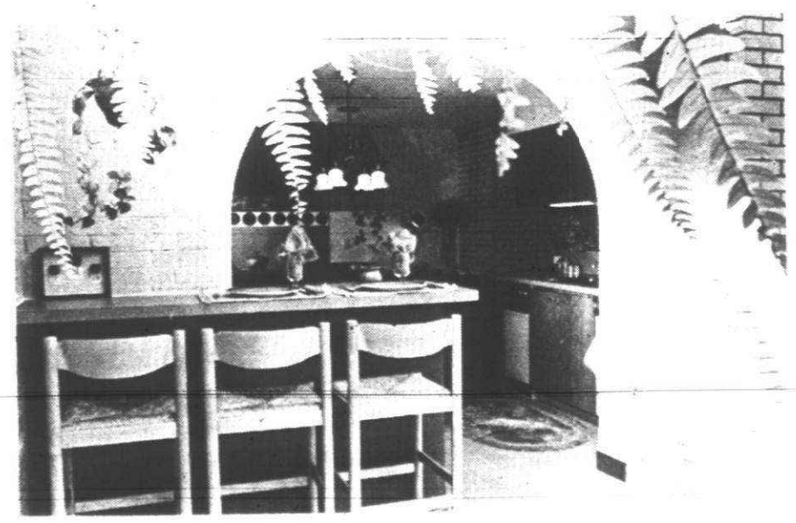

A former sunroom-porch was extended with floor-to-ceiling tinted glass walls, and three skylights were added for more light. A monochromatic scheme was chosen to help pull the three rooms (kitchen, porch and family room) together.

Strong patterns in the rug and upholstery fabric in the skylit room contrasts with the room adjacent with its bright orange hand-woven rug and sombre-color upholstered sofas. Touches of contemporary and classical art and accessories in each room make them interesting.

A fireplace is the central focal point for the area. It has a natural-wood chevron panelling around it. The same tiles which appear on an alcove wall in the kitchen are repeated for congruity on the skylight room dining and game table.

Red marble used as the hearth is used again as the countertop for the center island in the kitchen where two adults can grab a fast meal.

Goldburg, like Ms. Fuller, added recessed lighting in the whole area for mood setting and delineation of room boundries. The room is successful enough that the family may never need that "more formal living room."

One of the added arches forms the entryway into the kitchen with the eating bar in what once was the back stoop.

Multi-function rooms meet family needs

More and more young families are taking the "family room idea" and expanding its functions with the help of designers and architects.

What results is versatile space which is combination kitchen, informal dining room and relaxation center for all the members of the family.

Barbara Fuller of Duncan-Fuller Interiors and Ingles and Assoc. both of Birmingham, recently completed rooms which fit the needs of their young clients in Bloomfield Hills.

Duncan-Fuller's client needed more family space so the walls were extended and skylights were added.

An ice cream parlor, good-enough-to-eat color scheme livens the living room in the home of Barbara Fuller's clients. Pistachio, peach and lemonade are the colors of her client's "lady-like" living room.

"But come to think of it, men rarely sit in this room, unless there are other people already sitting in it. They retreat to the back of the house where it's more comfortable," the owner said.

The "back of the house" is the versatile area in one open room containing the kitchen, informal dining room and loads of room for romping and entertaining.

Ms. Fuller converted what was once a porch into a large room by extending it beyond the sliding glass doors and adding skylights. What amounted to a back stoop was also incorporated into the new plan and a dining bar was added in that area.

Then, at the suggestion of her client, arched labrequins were added to the window wall to hide the mechanics of the narrow-slatted blinds and to soften the look of the room. The arch is

Thomasville

With Portfolio, Thomasville introduces a new refinement in the Mediterranean style. Here, case piece facades break forward and tell of the design's continental heritage. Rounded end posts and block overlays on drawers are imposing. The flowing lines of the magnificently shaped tops and base rail treatment create a sense of motion and refer to pleasing Baroque details. Score lines accenting door panels and decorative spindle treatments offer elegant casual decorating possibilities which originated on the Continent. Hardware has been custom designed to reflect the romantic Mediterranean influences. Pecky pecan veneers and pecan solids are finished in a new Thomasville fruitwood tone with unusual clarity and brilliance. A new sophisticated paint finish after the fashion of custom imports has been developed and is available on selected pieces.
