Stein slate sweeps; Greenstein is 2d

By CRAIG PIECHURA

It was past 3 a.m. Wednesday morning before it was apparent that Harold Stein had been elected the new supervisor of Canton Township.

The vote in the supervisor race was not excruciatingly close, but returns and precinct totals were extremely slow in arriving at fire station No. 1, which served as campaign headquarters. The late returns were due to the fact that voters in a some precincts were still voting after 10 p.m. On top of that, counting the write-in votes was a time-consuming process and people in Canton turned out to vote in record numbers.

STEIN RECEIVED 3,808 votes for supervisor, with write-in candidate Robert Greenstein coming in second place with 3,254 votes. Republican supervisor candidate Peter Bundarin picked up 3,014 votes.

Stein, therefore, received about 38 per cent of the vote.

The entire Stein slate was elected to the township board. In addition to Stein, Anne Bradley, Democratic candidate for treasurer was elected from the slate, along with Eugene Daley who won a cliffhanger.

Bradley won easily over second place Republican Bart Berg and incumbent Carl Parsell (a member of the write-in team). Bradley received 3,865 votes compared to Berg's 2,986 and Parsell's 2,851.

After hearing he had been elected supervisor, Stein said his first priority would be to demand a state audit of the township's books. He promised to run an efficient township government that curbs costs.

"I just can't accept the books until I see what the funds have been used for," Stein said. "We've got to cut out the fat, the unnecessary labor and so on. I think we have too much overhead in the township right now. Ours will be a program of economy and efficiency."

When asked what the future will hold for the Canton police reserves and police chief, Stein said: "Board action put the police chief (outgoing Supervisor Robert Greenstein) in; board action put the reserves in. The police reserve issue will have to be reviewed by the entire board."

Stein's running mate, Eugene Daley, a lieutenant in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, was elected to the board by a margin of only 10 votes over third place vote-getter James Poole. Daley got 3,614 votes to Poole's 3,604.

C. Lynne Goldsmith, a Democrat who was not affiliated with any slate or team received the most votes for trustee (4,321) and will serve with Daley as new faces on the board.

IN THE CLERK'S race veteran administrator John Flodin enters his 20th year in the Canton administration by beating Republican Patricia Dombecki by 3,719 votes. Flodin gathered the highest number of votes (6,374) on the local portion of the ballot.

Canton's new township board will include two women with the addition of Goldsmith and Bradley. It will also be entirely Democratic with the loss by Poole.

However, Canton voters did not vote a straight Democratic ticket in the election. Defeated president, Gerald Ford did very well in Canton Tuesday as did Marvin Esch who was soundly defeated by Democrat Donald Riegle in the U.S. Senate race.

A total of 6,421 people in Canton preferred Ford while Jimmy Carter picked up 4,216 votes. Esch won in Canton with 5,327 votes to Riegle's 5,174.

A sage waiting for election results at Canton's fire hall commented that Canton voters split more tickets than an usher at the front of a movie theater. The remark didn't make much sense to the people at the firehall either. But after all it was 3 a.m.

The write-in forces made a strong showing in precincts one, seven, eight and 10 (the absentee precinct).

Absentee ballots were counted at the church on Sheldon and Michigan Ave. There was some protest raised by challengers from the Stein slate and the UAW when a pack of 110 absentee ballots came in to the church at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday night. But the ballots were counted and the

Subcontractors put lien on homes

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Contrary to previous reports, Pyramid Properties of Southfield has not yet filed bankruptcy proceedings, according to Bob Bolton, attorney for the company. However, Pyramid's financial picture is far from rosy.

Numerous buyers of unfinished and completed Pyramid homes have recently received "mechanic's lien" notices. The liens have been slapped on their homes by subcontractors who have not been paid by Pyramid for work performed.

In many of these instances, the people are already living in their homes, and their title has closed, apparently without a protection against such liens.

CONTINUING ATTEMPTS have been made by the Observer & Eccentric newspaper to contact Pyramid's partners, Ron Mack and Don Alexander to inquire about the status of stalemated projects located in Canton Township (Tanglewood); Woodhaven (Heritage Square) and one in Avon Township.

Pyramid's headquarters are at 18877 W. Ten Mile, Southfield, but its telephone was disconnected last week. All field offices are closed, and work stopped about a month ago at the three sites.

Anna Moraccini, an official of M & T Cement Corp. of Sterling Heights, is one of a list of subcontractors who put a mechanic's lien on Pyramid homes. She says acted at the suggestion of Mack who explained to her and her husband Tony that the bank "froze up all his accounts."

Pyramid owes M & T Cement Corp. $23,000, according to Mrs. Moraccini.

"My husband came all the way down to Woodhaven to do the cement jobs for Pyramid," she said. "He was told to complete the jobs and the final payments would be made. After the jobs closed, where's the money?

"I honestly don't know how the people moved into those houses. We signed no waiver of lien on some of those houses in Woodhaven where people are now living. In one week he closed deals on more than a dozen homes in Heritage Square. I asked him (Mack) how the people could move in when we signed no waivers. He said there are ways to get around that and mentioned things such as a land contract where no lien waiver is required for mortgage. But you can't tell me all those houses were on land contracts."

MECHANICS LIENS must be placed a home within 90 days of completion of work. Mrs. Moraccini said Pyramid owes their company for homes completed before summer started.

"We worked on four models in Avon Township, and I owe my supplier for the cement we bought to do the work," Mrs. Moraccini said. "I'm also in debt to another company in Flat Rock because we haven't been paid for the work we did in Woodhaven."

Mrs. Moraccini believes the problems she is experiencing in trying to collect her money will not be solved for some time.

"What makes it worse is that the people who are living in those homes will not be able to sell until this thing is cleared up. He's hurting all the little guys like us, and the people who own these homes who have to suffer."

Pyramid's attorney and spokesman, Bolton, contacted late last week, would only say that Pyramid was not bankrupt at this time.

Bolton said any further comment on questions posed by the homeowners and subcontractors would be a violation of the lawyer-client relationship.

Political camps awaited word of Canton vote

By DARLENE STINSON

"We made it, baby!"

With that, Anne Bradley, Canton's newly-elected treasurer, bounded across Harold Stein's living room to place a congratulation kiss on the new supervisor's cheek.

Cheers, handshakes and embraces filled the spacious room, where campaign workers and supporters of the Stein slate had wearily awaited precinct results from their poll watchers only moments before.

"We did it!" shouted Stein slate supporters, as word of Stein's, Mrs. Bradley's and trustee candidate Gene Daley's victories spread through Stein's house. Early morning coverage of the presidential election on TV went unnoticed, as well-wishers rushed to the newly-elected officials to offer their words of congratulations.

Word of the township's election results were not forthcoming until after 3 a.m., due to the numbers of the absentee and write-in ballots submitted by township residents.

When the results finally did come in, it was Harold Stein who emerged victorious over Republican Peter Bundarin and write-in incumbent Robert Greenstein for the supervisor's seat.

Mrs. Bradley won victory by a substantial margin over Republican Bart Berg and write-in candidate Carl Parsell, while her teammate, Daley, won a narrow victory over Republican Jim Poole for a trustee position.

Democrat Lynne Goldsmith was the top vote-getter in the race for two trustee seats, while Clerk John Flodin, the only member of the Greenstein team who won the Democratic nomination in the August primary, won his bid for reelection.

Stein and his teammates were ecstatic over their sweep of the township posts.

"It's been a long, hard fight," said a tired, but grinning Stein in the midst of cheering well-wishers. "I didn't know what to think, until I heard the actual results. It was a grass roots campaign, and we did a good job."

Mrs. Bradley echoed similar feelings about her slate's successful campaign.

"It took the three of us," said the new treasurer, as she trembled with excitement in Stein's kitchen. "I firmly believe three other people couldn't have done it.

"I was ahead quite a bit all along," she added. "I just wanted to make sure my colleagues were with me."

Daley, who had won victory over incumbent Trustee Jim Poole by only 10 votes, appeared numbed by the victory news. "It's a margin I doubt Jim Poole will challenge," he said.

Poole, who had spent the earlier part of the evening at Bundarin's Republican headquarters in the Fordham Green Apartments community building, shook hands with Democratic supporters in Stein's basement after word of the election results came in.

"So be it," said Poole, drink in hand, when asked about his feelings toward the narrow defeat.

Republican Berg, who lost his bid for the treasurer's seat, also congratulated his Democratic opponents in Stein's home.

"Anne Bradley is a lovely woman," he said. "It makes no difference to me which one of us got in."

Lyyne Goldsmith, top vote-getter for two trustee seats, spent election night in her subdivision home. The township board's top priority, in her eyes, should be an audit of the township's books and attempts to provide more openness in township government.

"I guess I'm pretty ecstatic about the whole thing," Mrs. Goldsmith confessed. "We have a lot of challenges ahead of us. We have to look at a lot of internal things, before we can look at the major things like land use and police, which have to be looked at, too."

Canton's new supervisor Harold Stein was in an apprehensive mood at midnight while he waited by the phone to hear precinct returns and get an assessment of Greenstein's write-in effort. At this point in the evening things were still too uncertain and write-in totals were lagging behind the regular vote totals. Understandably, Stein's mood brightened around 3 a.m. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Vallier suggests Arlen has a conflict of interest

By EMORY DANIELS

The Plymouth Board of Education has been asked to obtain a legal opinion on whether trustee Richard Arlen is involved in a conflict of interest because he is an officer of the union for the faculty at Schoolcraft College.

The request for legal clarification was made by Arch Vallier, a Plymouth Township resident and a trustee on the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees. Arlen, treasurer of the Plymouth Board of Education, is president and chief negotiator for the Faculty Forum at Schoolcraft.

Vallier points out that both the Faculty Forum and Plymouth Education Association (PEA) are local unions affiliated with the Michigan Education Association.

"To me this constitutes a substantive conflict of interest and Arlen should be required to abstain from any discussion regarding contractual matters concerning the PEA and also should not be allowed to vote on any contract with the PEA."

Vallier, in a letter to Board President Joy Gray, asked the school board to obtain an attorney general's opinion on the issue.

GRAY SAID he has asked the administration to obtain a legal opinion from the school district's labor attorney "for Arlen's protection and the board's protection, to see if there is any validity to what Vallier is saying."

Supt. John M. Hoben has asked labor attorney Charles Fine for an opinion and expects an answer within a week.

Arlen commented: "Vallier has a right to ask, but I know what the answer will be—that I am qualified to hold the office of trustee and to vote. I'm personally assured there is no conflict of interest.

"The attorney general has already ruled that being a member of a union is not a conflict of interest situation if the member serves on a school board which his union doesn't negotiate with.

"I am not a member of the PEA and my membership with the Faculty Forum has nothing to do with my actions on the Plymouth Board of Education."

THE SCHOOL board is unanimous on its bargaining position, added Gray, and Arlen has been a part of that unanimity. "There may be varying degree of opinions among individual trustees but on the basic bargaining positions the board is 99 per cent united.

"The only matter in which Arlen voted differently than the remainder of the board was the policy statement against union activities in the classroom. We know now that the policy was badly written and presented. As far as I'm concerned, Arlen has professional knowledge of bargaining and his input is of great value to the board."

Vallier said he was prompted to ask for a legal opinion by Arlen's vote on the policy to ban union activities in the classroom. Vallier made it clear he was seeking the clarification as a local taxpayer, and not as a Schoolcraft trustee.

"As a taxpayer in the Plymouth Community School District it seems to me that there is an apparent conflict of interest existing in regard to one of the members of your board, namely Richard Arlen," Vallier said to Gray.

ARLEN POINTS OUT that there is no negotiating relationship between locals of the MEA as exists with locals of the UAW and similar national unions.

"There is no national, regional or even county contract for teachers. The UAW negotiates a master agreement and then negotiates individual local agreements, but this isn't done with teachers. In education circles, it's a different situation. Otherwise, Schoolcraft Trustee Lee Bennett could be said to have a conflict because he's a member of the MEA.

"Vallier might feel my vote against the policy on union activity in the classroom was a conflict, but it wasn't. My 'no' vote didn't mean I condone use of the classroom for union politics. I don't condone that at Schoolcraft and I certainly don't condone it in Plymouth.

"That night I explained my reason for voting against the policy, and the main reason is that the situation in Plymouth didn't require such a motion. The action was inflamatory and accomplished nothing. The administration already had the right and responsibility to react and put a stop to any such activity in the classroom. There was no need for a motion."

The Faculty Forum recently ended negotiations with the Schoolcraft board. Vallier and Bennett were the two trustees voting against ratification.

Starting at the left side of the page are two of the new trustees who will serve four-year terms on the Canton Township Board of Trustees. First is Gene Daley, a lieutenant in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, who squeaked past incumbent Republican James Poole to give the Stein slate a clean sweep. Next is Lynne Goldsmith, an independent Democrat who topped the list of six trustee candidates. Only Clerk John Flodin received more votes than Mrs. Goldsmith. To her right is Anne Bradley, Canton's new treasurer. Mrs. Bradley presently owns and operates B&K Lawn and Garden Service in Canton with her husband George. She pledges to keep a tight fist on fiscal matters in the Stein administration. Finally there is the familiar face of Clerk John Flodin, who is in his 20th year in Canton government, promising to deliver "people politics."

Stein gets big buss from Bradley

Flodin, who put in nearly a 24-hour day overseeing the election process, was understandably exhausted when the election results finally came in.

"It's always nice to win," he said.

Greenstein and members of his write-in team were unavailable for comment after news of their defeat came in, as were Bundarin and Republican clerk and trustee candidates Pat Dombecki and George Hall.

A jovial atmosphere had pervaded the write-in team's headquarters at Deer Creek apartments earlier in the evening, despite confessions by the candidates regarding the difficulty of pulling off a successful write-in campaign.

Thom Carman and Jim Donahue, co-chairpersons of the Committee to Reelect the Greenstein Team, attributed defeat of their candidates, then an uncertainty, to confusion about how to write-in a candidate's name.

"The voting machine is intimidating enough," said Carman. "Then having to put those little stickers in—my God!"

Greenstein appeared nonchalant about his defeat and promised to leave campaign headquarters at 10 p.m., so he could arise at 5 a.m. to leave for police training school.

"I'll sleep like a baby," the defeated supervisor-police chief said. "My attitude toward this campaign hasn't changed one whit. If the people want me, I'll serve. If they don't, that's fine, too.

"I'm just grateful to the all people who turned out to support us," Greenstein continued. "They did a tremendous job. I didn't know hardly any of them before this thing began."

Greenstein said he would not seek township office or any othey political seat again.

The atmosphere at Bundarin's campaign headquarters was low-key before word of the voter mandate was known. Many of the campaign supporters quietly watched coverage of the presidential election on TV.

"A logical assumption would be that the Democrats split themselves (between Stein and Greenstein)," Bundarin said, "and the Republicans vote solid. That's the logical assumption, but it's too early to tell. This is an unusual election."

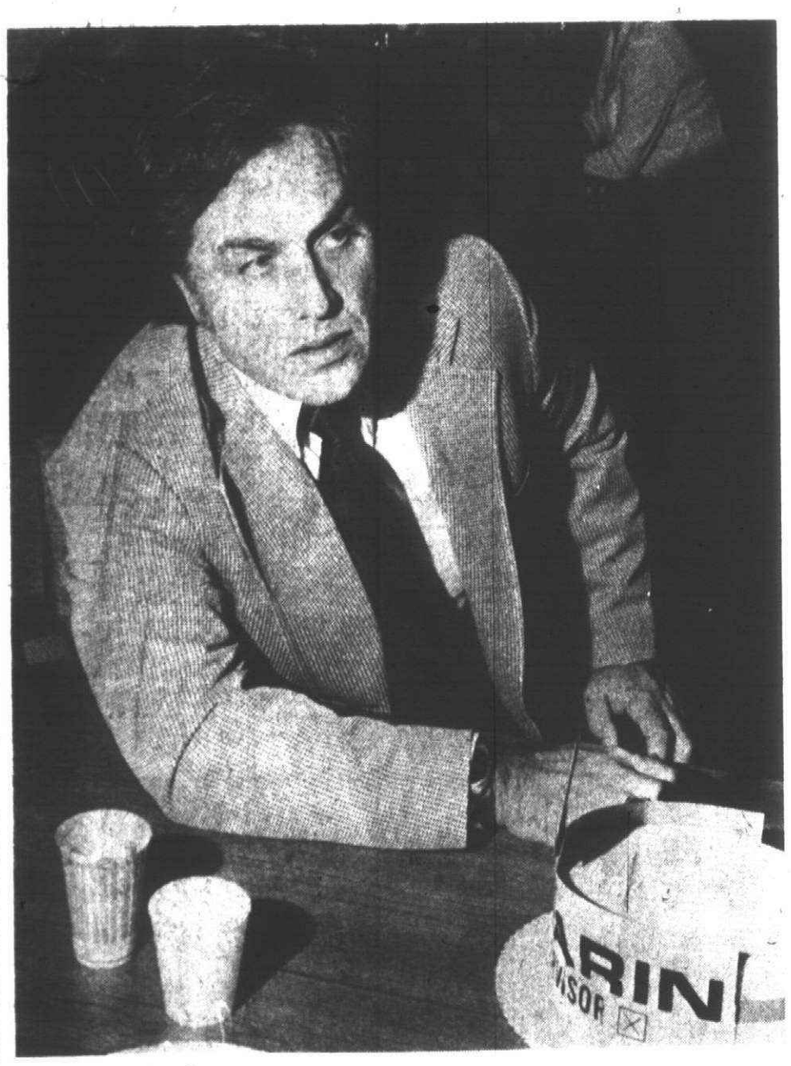

Wednesday morning Bundarin theorized that the subdivision vote was split between him and Greenstein, giving Stein an edge with apartment dwellers and rural voters.

Mrs. Dombecki, who had expressed optimism about her election bid, said she would seek the township clerk's position again.

"If I'm not elected, I'll be very busy in the township," she said. "I plan for running again for clerk—and winning."

Good losers

Robert Greenstein went home to bed before any serious returns started coming in. But he promised he would accept the voters' verdict. To the left of Greenstein is Thom Carman, who organized the massive write-in sticker campaign. Below, Republican candidate Peter Bundarin begins to show some of the strain of the months of hard-fought campaigning. Bundarin indicates he will continue to monitor board meetings to "protect the interests of the homeowners who want to see limits put on our burgeoning growth." Bundarin already says he'll run again next time.(Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Long lines, big ballot slowed results

protest has apparently subsided with the Stein win.

The write-in team encouraged the use of absentee ballots which they felt would help facilitate the write-in effort. In the absentee ballot precinct No. 10, Greenstein did do very well. He received 135 votes for supervisor, compared to 303 for Harold Stein and 199 for Peter Bundarin.

Coming in second, Greenstein collected more votes than the other three members of his write-in group, but most of the people who voted write-in voted for the entire four-person "team." Some voters stuck their write-in stickers on the wrong line, consequently their vote was miscast for another office.

For example, Carl Parsell received 19 votes for clerk in Precinct 2 because people placed his adhesive nametag on the line above the line they were supposed to use. Officially Parsell received 2,736 votes and Willis collected 2,748.

Greenstein even received one write-in vote for U.S. Senate because of a misplaced sticker.

Counting write-in votes was a time-consuming process. Pollworkers had to remove a long roll of paper to count the votes as they walked along the floor with a broomstick counter.

LINES OF PEOPLE waiting to cast their vote sometimes made people wait two hours before they got into the booth. The lines were especially long at Plymouth Canton High School and at Sheldon School on Geddes Road.

Robert and Joan Price of 1698 Rustic Ridge, said they stood in line for more than two hours before voting at Sheldon. Mrs. Price had gone to the fire station earlier in the day and stood in line for an hour and a half before she learned she was in the wrong precinct.

Tuesday morning John Moran of 6351 Beck, tried to vote at Precinct 8 at Canton High. Moran said he waited in line for more than an hour before he had to leave and get ready for his job on the afternoon shift.

"This is the first year I haven't been able to vote in I don't how long," said Moran. "I'll have to pass this one up. The township hasn't kept pace with the increased population. We need more voting machines."

Clerk Flodin said the township has already exceeded the recommended quota of one machine for every 1,600 voters. The cost of buying new machines would not be warranted, Flodin said, just because this ballot is large.

"What we need is to have elections scheduled more often," Flodin said. "Then we wouldn't have the problem of such a massive ballot with 130 something names."

Dropouts decreasing

Drop-out statistics for students of both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools are much lower in the 1975-76 school year than for the preceeding year.

Statistics reported to the Michigan Department of Education indicate Salem had a drop-out rate of about 4½ per cent and Canton of about 3½ per cent.

THE STATE requires each school district to report membership, involuntary losses, and drop-outs annually.

Students identified as drop-outs are those who leave school for employment, absenteeism (10 to 30 days), or marriage. Students committed to the jurisdiction of the Office of Youth Services of the Michigan Department of Social Services also are considered drop-outs.

The way drop-out statistics are compiled can affect the numbers reported, said Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations for Plymouth Community School District. "Last year the high schools at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park appeared to have an alarmingly high drop-out rate compared to other schools.

"When the principals checked with other districts, it was discovered that the CEP was using a different system of counting. Each time any student dropped out here, he or she was counted, even if that individual had returned to school after a previous 'drop-out.' This way, one unstable student could be counted as many as three or four times as a drop-out."

STATISTICS in the Plymouth Community School District are now being compiled in the same manner as other school districts—any individual is reported only once, no matter how many times he or she enters and leaves.

Last year at Salem High, a total of 107 students were drop-outs from a student population of 2,378. This was 4.49 per cent of the student population. The drop-outs were 67 males and 40 females.

Only Proposal A wins

Voters in the Plymouth community followed the trend of the rest of the state in voting on ballot proposals Tuesday, approving Proposition A and turning thumbs down on the rest.

Early election returns made it apparent that Proposition A, which will ban throw-away bottles and cans, was receiving wide popular support.

Proposition B, which would have lowered the age requirement for state office, C, designed to limit state spending, and D, which would have provided a graduated state income tax, all fared badly.

In the City of Plymouth, voters gave their approval to Proposition A by a two-to-one margin. Proposition B went down by a four-to-one vote. 0

Proposition C went down two-to-one; and D was rejected by a margin of about four-to-one.

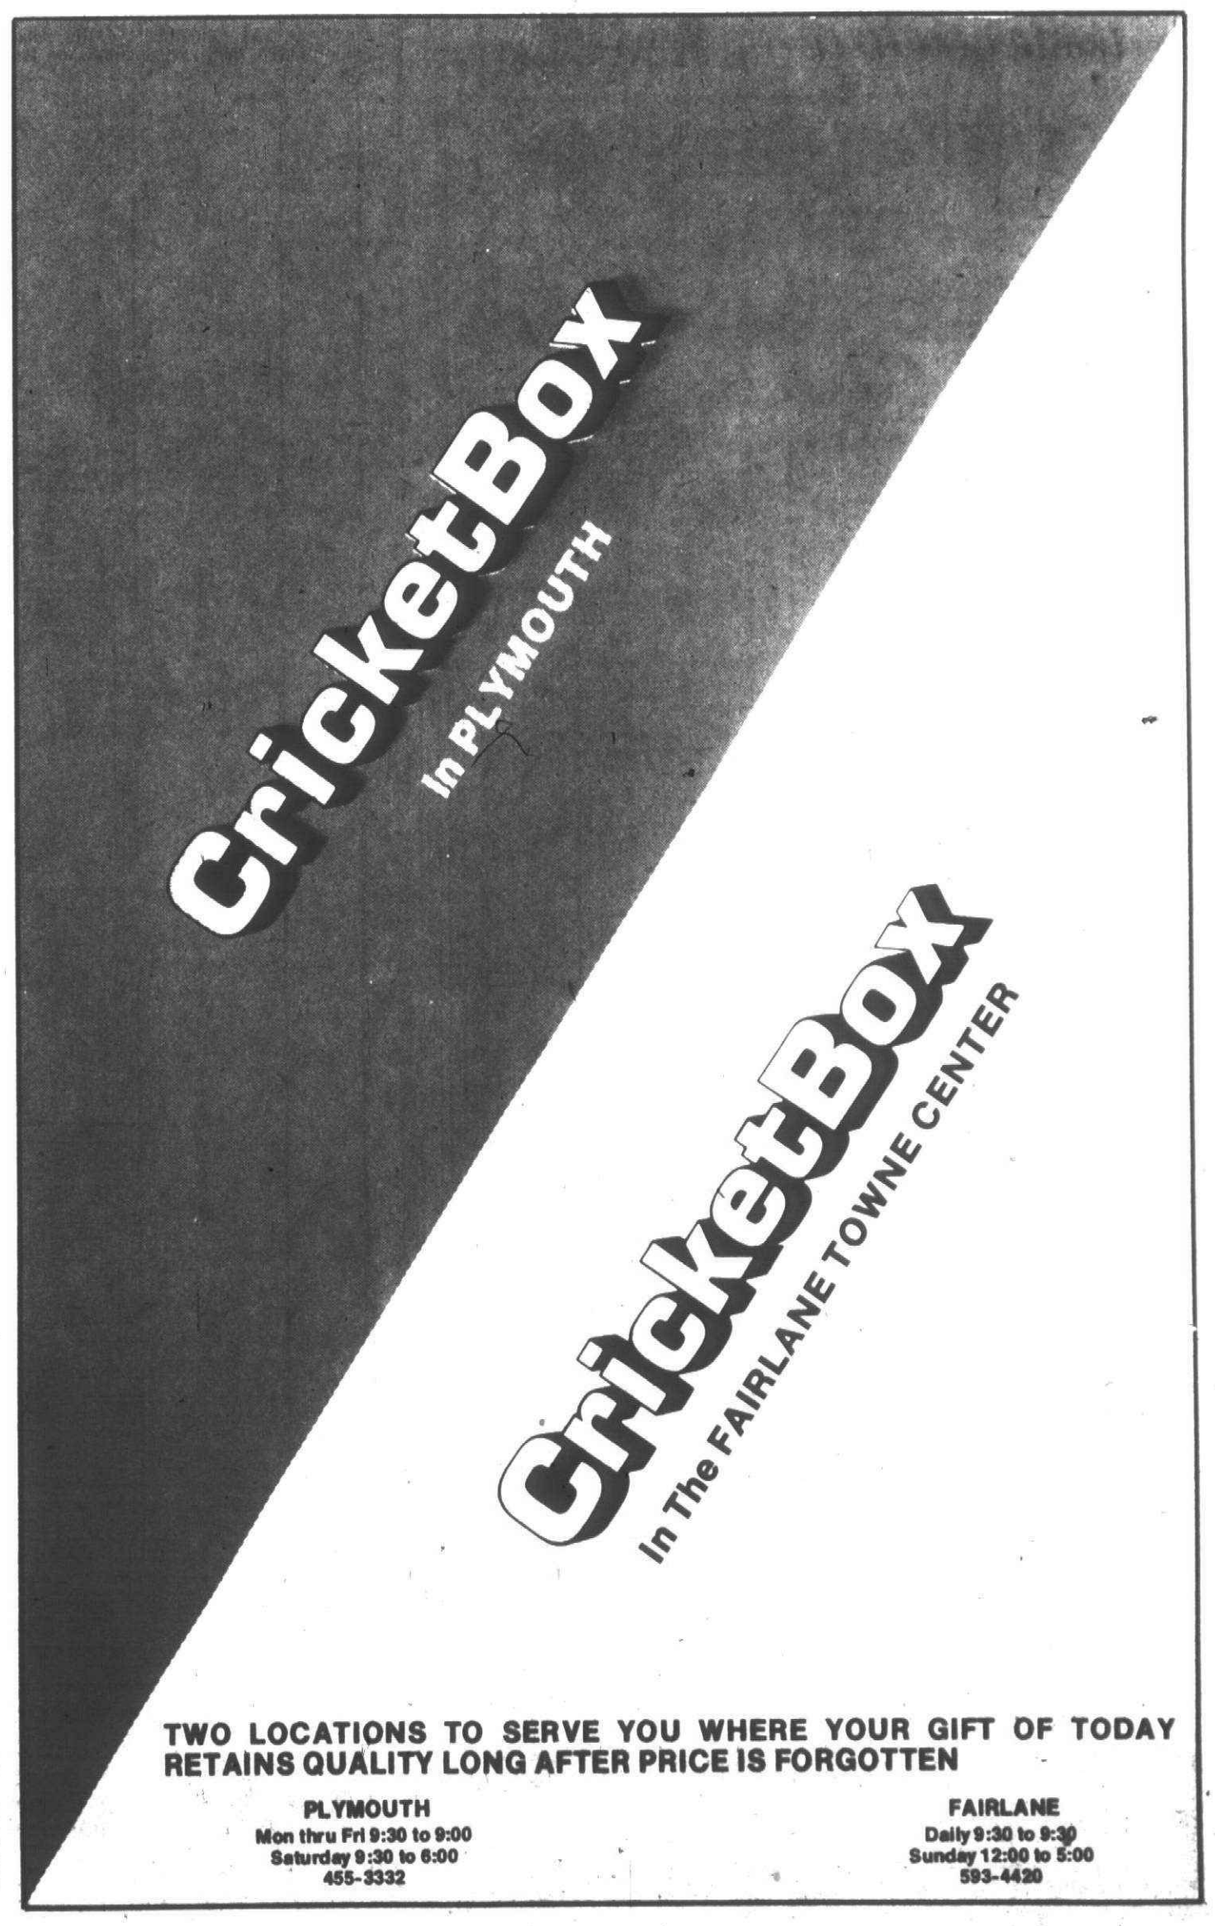

IN PLYMOUTH Township the story was very much the same. Proposition A was passed by a two-to-one margin. B was defeated four-to-one.

Proposition C, however, was rejected by a very narrow margin. And Proposition D went by the boards at four-to-one.

Canton voters approved Proposition A by a 2-1 margin and voted down Proposition C by a 2-1 margin, and B and D by a 4-1 margin.

Not only did local residents follow the statewide pattern on the state proposals, but the city and two townships voted the ballot issues with the same margins. As a whole, Plymouth-Canton voters said yes on A, 2-1; no on B and D, 4-1 and no on C, 2-1. The exception was the Plymouth Township vote on the tax limit (C) which was defeated by 1,800 votes while it went down by 2-1 margins in the city and Canton.

Statewide, the immediate conclusion on the ballot proposals was that the monied interests lost. The greatest amount of money was invested in a no vote for A and voters overwhelmingly said yes. A lot of money also was spent urging passage of Proposal C, but voters nixed the tax limit amendment. The only area where money might have been a factor was the graduated income tax where the voters went along with the monied interests and voted it down.

Roof-raising opens new bank

Roof raising, a 19th Century rural American tradition was given 20th Century, semi-urban form in downtown Plymouth this weekend.

To celebrate the grand opening of the First National Bank of Plymouth in the Mayflower Square on Main Street Sunday, Ralph Lorenz sponsored an everyone-invited, old-fashioned "roof raising" and ox roast.

"We were trying to figure out a way to have a dedication for the building and the square that everybody could take part in," said Kirk Lorenz who was responsible for arranging the dedication.

"We thought of this and thought of that, and finally my dad came up with the idea of a kind of roof raising, and it seemed like a good way to get people together."

Originally, the custom of roof raising parties got started at a time in our country's history when each individual farmer was responsible for building his own house and barn.

The farmer and his family would get the walls up and build the roof separately. It was the last thing to be added to the building.

In celebration of the finished structure—and to get some help with the actual "raising" of the roof—the farmer would invite his neighbors over to work and eat.

And although there were some minor variations, the spirit of the custom was alive and well at the bank opening. Residents who found their way up to the square on Sunday afternoon got a chance to hoist and place a genuine roof.

Granted, the roof that was raised was a small specially made one, constructed to fit over the sign post in the square's parking lot, but a roof it was.

With the aid of a crane and guide ropes, those who wished to hoisted away and "capped" off the dedication.

"The first few times were a little jerky," said Lorenz. "A few kids on one of the ropes pulled too hard, and the whole thing started to sway. But we finally got it up."

AFTER THE roof was securely placed, helpers and non-helpers alike were rewarded for their efforts with a hearty meal.

ERven though the day was damp and chilly, with short periods of rain, an estimated crowd of 3,000 people ate the better part of 1,000 pounds of roast "ox" and drank close to 150 gallons of cider.

"For awhile I was afraid there wouldn't be enough food," Lorenz said. "But as it turned out, we had more than enough.

"I was very pleased with the turnout," he continued. "I know that I enjoy community activities like this, and I think a lot of other people do too."

Hayward earns speaking honor

Dick Hayward won the top speaking award at a recent debate on consumer safety laws hosted by Plymouth Toastmasters Club 1660.

The local club hosted the debate on the following topic: "Resolved: That the federal government should significantly strengthen the guarantee of consumer product safety required of manufacturers."

Debators for the negative were Tom Clancy and Sharon Simon of William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va. Debators for the positive side were Frank Darr and Christee Burridge of University of Akron, Ohio. Judge was John France of the University of Toledo and the teams were coached by Pat Micken, David Jamison and Joan Harringan of Wayne State University.

Hayward won the "Best Speaker" award, the "Table Topics" honor went to Byron Peterson, and the "Best Evaluator" award to Chuck Fugate.

The Plymouth Toastmasters' next meeting is 7 p.m. Nov. 8 in the Hillside Inn.

Nothing wrong with funeral laws say directors

By W. W. EDGAR

If the voices raised in protest by the funeral directors and the ministry throughout the state are heeded in the halls of the state legislature, the proposed bill to limit the activities of the directors is due for a stunning defeat.

This was the opinion of a gathering that packed the commission chambers of Plymouth City Hall Thursday afternoon for the fifth and final public hearing on the bill, known as House Bill No. 6169.

The audience, composed mostly of undertakers and members of the clergy, were almost unanimous in stating that there was nothing wrong with the present laws governing funerals and the disposal of dead bodies—and the present laws should be left alone.

SPEAKING IN FAVOR of the bill was Carrie Peebles of Grosse Pointe, a past president of the Detroit Memorial Society.

In contrast to her view, members of the Funeral Directors Association for several hours decried the proposed legislation.

They referred to the bill as "special interest legislation" for memorial societies, which they claim advocate "body disposal" rather than the traditional type of funeral service.

Sitting in on the Plymouth public hearing were three members of the house state affairs committee, to whom all protests were directed. These three members were State Rep. Josephine Hunsinger, who chaired the meeting, Rep. Joyce Simons and Rep. Roy Smith.

During the course of the hearing, they heard from Charles H. Nelson of Gaylord, president of the Michigan Funeral Directors Association; Edward J. Lynch, president-elect of the Royal Oak chapter and Gerald Woolever of Midland.

Nelson revealed that a recent survey in the upper peninsula showed that more than 95 per cent of the families who had gone through a period of bereavement voiced satisfaction with the services of the funeral directors.

OPPONENTS OF THE bill argued that the proposed law would limit the counseling of the funeral director with the family during the solemn period on the assumption that counseling regarding price and arrangements would be adding pressure on the survivors in a time of mourning.

"I have never refused counseling with a family at a time like that," said Edwin "Bud" Schrader, the Plymouth funeral director. "I think it is our business and duty to be helpful at such times. And we never have shielded our prices from anyone."

During the course of the discussions, one of the out-state funeral directors called attention to a case where a girl had died under unusual circumstances and the family wanted to bury the body without any sort of service.

The director counseled the family that burying the body without services would be an act they might regret the rest of their lives. They heeded the advice and later on thanked the director.

SUCH CONSULTATIONS would be in violation of the proposed law.

One of the members of the clergy, whose protest of the proposed law was read from a letter, was the Rev. Henry J. Walch, retired minister of the First United Presbyterian Church in Plymouth.

He wrote: "In my 40 years as a clergyman, I have dealt with hundreds of families in a grief situation created by the death of a loved one as well as with the funeral directors involved.

"I am able to state with emphasis that in almost 100 per cent of the cases, funeral directors did not take advantage of the families they served. On the contrary, the funeral directors were extremely helpful.

"I know of no instances where pressure was used on a family to select a service costing more than they, themselves, wished to spend.

"I have found that funeral directors tend to relieve the family's sense of helplessness caused by not knowing what to do when death occurs. The funeral director is able to give direction and order to the occassion and, in so doing, helps to start the family on the road to acceptance and adjustment."

At the conclusion of the meeting in which more than 30 persons were heard, Mrs. Hunsinger said that during the five public hearings only three persons spoke in favor of the proposed bill.

Further, she intimated that the bill has little chance of passing when the house takes action.

Bill allows for frilless funerals

Michigan House Bill No. 6169, "an act to revise and codify the laws relating to the profession of embalming and funeral directing," is currently under consideration by the committee on State Affairs.

Introduced by State Rep. Lynn Jondahl (D-East Lansing), the bill is designed to provide more control and regulation of the state's funeral industry.

Some of the changes called for under the bill are:

• A state board of examiners, consisting of five members, will be created. Two of the members will be from the general public and have no legal or business connection with any funeral home.

• Funeral directors will be prohibited from bringing "undue pressure" on people making burial arrangements to undertake elaborate or expensive services. Directors would be required to have on hand inexpensive caskets or containers for cremation.

• Directors would be prohibited from citing their own standards or standards of the funeral industry when advising people on purchasing merchandise or services.

• Funeral directors would be required to inform people about the legal requirements regarding embalming. They would be prohibited from requiring embalming where it is not legally necessary. In addition directors would be required to state separately embalming costs and charges for other services.

A series of hearings have been held on the bill in local districts. However, according to a spokesperson for Jondahl, it will not be reported out of committee before the expiration date in December.

Many Republicans fared well here

Republican candidates swept Plymouth and Plymouth Township Tuesday and did better than expected in Canton.

The closest race was between Ed Pierce and Carl Pursell in the 2d Congressional District. Neither candidate had conceded by 10 a.m. Wednesday as the absentee vote outcome was expected to be the clincher. Pursell won 2-1, as expected, in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Livonia and Northville.

In the 15th District, though, it was no contest as Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) walked away with a victory over Republican James Walasky. In Canton, Ford collected 6,340 votes to Walasky's 2,745.

State winners were Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ann Arbor) and Rep. Thomas Brown. For county commission Royce Smith (D-Belleville) defeated Republican Owen Arrowsmith of Wayne.

IN THE SENATORIAL race, Plymouth-Canton voters went for Marvin Esch over Don Riegel.

Canton residents, expected to go Democratic, gave the edge instead to Republican Esch 5,327 to 5,174. The City of Plymouth vote was 2,591 for Esch, 1,561 for Riegel, while Plymouth Township recorded 4,646 for Esch and 2,935 for Riegel.

Riegel, however, ran ahead of Jimmy Carter in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and Canton.

In the 2d District, the local "yes" majority for Pursell was 2,556-1,440 in City of Plymouth and 5,800-2,811 in Plymouth Township.

For President, Ford won in the city 2,617-1,446, in Plymouth Township 5,947-2,687 and in Canton 6,421-4,216.

BROWN WON re-election in the 37th House District by compiling a 5-3 margin in Canton and 3-1 in his hometown of Westland.

District-wide, Brown defeated Brian Kidston of Plymouth Township, by a 2-1 margin, 16,008 to 8,015. Brown won Canton 5,251-3,540 and Westland 9,788-3,307. Kidston carried Plymouth Township 1,168-969.

In the 52d District, Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ann Arbor) won re-election even though Sally Roach did an impressive job for a Democrat running in Plymouth. Mrs. Roach outpaced Carter and Riegel and the city and fared better than Carter in Plymouth Township. Smith won in the city, 2,194-1,569, and in Plymouth Township 3,855-1,825.

THE TOP VOTE-GETTER amongst Democrats in Plymouth and Plymouth Township was Wayne County Commissioner Royce Smith who also outpaced all Democratic major candidates in Canton except Riegel.

Smith carried Canton 5-3 and Westland better than 2-1. Although Republican Arrowsmith won in Plymouth and Plymouth Township, Smith ran up a larger vote total than any other Democratic candidate.

The commissioner won in Canton 5,157-3,786 and Westland by 1,509-680. Arrowsmith took the city 2,318-1,884 and Plymouth Township 4,393-3,149.

THERE WAS A large voter turnout in Plymouth-Canton as the city had a hot issue on the senior citizen housing referendum and Canton had a closely-contested contest for supervisor.

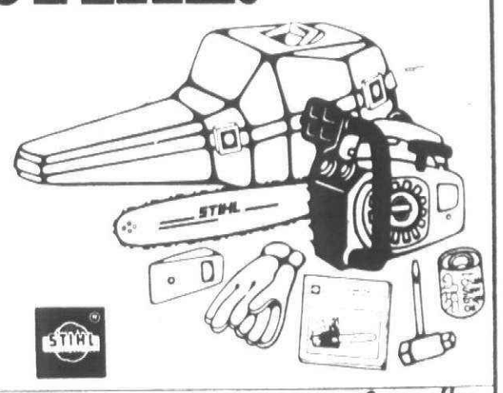

In the city, the housing referendum failed 2-1. In Canton, Harold Stein won the supervisor's race with incumbent Robert Greenstein placing second on a write-in effort. Republican Peter Bundarin placed third.

Some 76 per cent of registered voters in Plymouth Township went to the polls Tuesday, with most of the interest being in the races for President, Senate and Congress. The City of Plymouth had a voter turnout of 74 per cent and Canton 73 per cent.

READERS' FORUM

Comparing teachers, UAW is faulty

Editor:

Taxpayers and parents are becoming aware of a certain insensitive greediness on the part of school teachers. A Plymouth teacher recently stated that the UAW's settlement would cost 30 per cent over three years, and that the PEA settlement would cost only 24 per cent. If we are to compare these jobs fairly, we must note, however, that PEA members work only 75 per cent of the year while the UAW members work the full 12 months. Therefore, it looks as if that 24 per cent figures to be about 1½ per cent higher than the UAW settlement.

Also, consider that my child's fourth grade teacher, for example, five years ago accepted a job which paid $8,075 for a nine-month work year. Last year, with incremental increases and though contract "negotiations" (including two illegal but allowed strikes), her salary was something around $14,200. Any math teacher can tell you that this amounts to a 76 per cent increase in salary over those five years! How many of us can claim as much?

Her job has stayed the same—no more difficult, no more difficult, no additional responsibilities—only the children are different. My older child had this same teacher in the fourth grade, and I'm afraid I cannot notice a 76 per cent increase in quality of education. Has the job description changed? Is it that much harder to teach my younger child, or is my older child actually a victim of discrimination that his fourth grade teacher had no experience? Perhaps, in the interest of fairness to all students (and isn't it students we are in the business for—or to furnish high-paying jobs for employees?), we should hire new teachers every year.

Need to negotiate

Editor:

Why must the teachers be the only ones to take the responsibility of their recent work slowdown? I am concerned that more people don't open their eyes and look at their "duly-elected" board of education. They show little leadership in trying to negotiate a new contract—only what ultimatums can be placed upon the teachers.

The teachers wouldn't have to slow down if the board shaped up. Come on, negotiate!

Meetings to be slated on parking study

The Plymouth City Commission held its first study meeting Monday night on parking recommendations and decided to meet Nov. 15 with merchants surrounding the Central Lot.

The meeting will be to get reactions from merchants on suggestions rearding city parking policy and suggested improvements to the central lot. The study session Nov. 15 will be during a committee-of-the-whole session following the regularly scheduled commission meeting. Further meetings will be scheduled to meet with affected merchants on proposed changes for Weidman Lot, Fralick Street, and in Old Village.

Monday night a committee-of-the-whole meeting was held so city commissioners and planning commission members could react to a review presented by Commissioner Thomas Turner, chairman of the parking committee.

TURNER SUGGESTED that individual meetings be held with merchants in each parking quadrant of the city before the city attempts to formulate a policy on parking and before deciding on individual proposals.

Turner stressed that there is an immediate need to deal with the parking shortage during evening hours at the Weidman Lot.

The Central Lot should be improved but doesn't need to be expanded significantly in the near future, Turner reported, while additional spaces should be added in Old Village soon to allow for economic expansion. Fralick Street parking construction should await a further recommendation from the city's planning consultants, he added.

JIM HOUK reminded the commission that all municipal lots in Plymouth were originally built by businessmen with private money and later turned over to the city.

"A lot of the parking spaces were built back in the 1940s and '50s before the city wanted to get involved with parking," he said, adding that he has paid an assessment on every single parking lot the city has.

Turner noted that the city parking system is presently operating at a deficit of almost $9,000. This is expected to reach $30,000 in 1980-85 and then $15,000 in 1985-90. Of the $9,000, he added, some $4,500 is for debt retirement.

Margaret Wilson, owner of the Penn Theatre, expressed concern about charging meter rates for parking during the evening hours for parking spaces near the theater and hotel.

Houk objected to the city's accounting system of including debt retirement as an expense item intrepreted as generating a deficit. "When the city buys a parking lot, the city owns the lot and has an asset. The interest you must pay out on the debt, you don't get back, but the city will always have the land, and the land has value. By retiring the debt, the city is adding to its value," he said.

Turner commented that the parking lots will never be used for anything else but parking and so the city will never realize any value from lots except their utility value for parking.

Mayor Joe Bida commented that parking lots are a capital improvement for the city, but it was also true that parking lots aren't on the tax rolls, so the land represents a loss of potential tax revenue.

Jim McKeon also argued that parking revenues should not be used to pay off the debt on the parking lot acquisitions because the city always will have the land once the debt is paid. "Different merchants have made contributions to buy the Weidman Lot, but they will never own a piece of the lot. I think the commission needs to consider what's economically right, and you should decide that parking revenues will pay only for parking facilities, maintenance and operation. The land should be paid for out of the general fund because the citizens at-large will own that land."

Tony Licata complimented the parking committee for its work, noting "I feel this committee has a good grasp on the subject."

Prophets are eyeing growth

The School Population Projections Committee has been meeting weekly to gather information relating to growth in the Plymouth Community School District.

Projections which will be made will be based on information from townships, surveys and builders, said Smith Horton, committee chairman.

The information will be used in a computer based projections model which can be continually updated to project growth of school population in the coming years.

Meetings have been held with Plymouth Township and Canton Township planners, trustees, and building inspectors. Included in these briefing sessions were Web Kincaid, Plymouth Township superintendent of the water department who discussed the impact of the "super sewer," and Harold Fisher, local real estate broker.

Some 500 to 600 homes were surveyed by 50 volunteers last week. Surveyors asked residents, who had moved into their homes within the last two years, about numbers and ages of children.

This data will be compiled and correlated in the coming weeks to aid the school board in planning future buildings and attendance boundaries.

Club help needed on map

The help of local serivce clubs is needed for the final stages of putting together the community map, a project of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Organizers need help in giving the time and place of local service group meetings. Clubs and service groups should call the chamber at 453-1540 to offer information about their group. Groups which don't call the chamber before Nov. 11 won't be listed on the map.

The map will be sold through the chamber office at 50 cents per copy and will include: chamber members, churches, emergency numbers, city and township administration phone numbers, historical sites, recreational facilities, public building, with time of operation, local service clubs and more.

The completed map will be sold folded or rolled. A new feature of the map is that it is two-sided with one side being a pictorial black ink drawing of the Plymouth community.

Copyright law change is unknown

By GLENN BUNTING

Since the invention of the copying machine, a teacher or librarian was able to run off as many copies of a publication as desired. Copyright laws permitted such an action until Oct. 20 when President Ford signed a bill revising the protective legislation for the first time since 1909.

The new provisions limit copies that can be reproduced and forbid the copying of material to avoid paying a subscription price. Most libraries, however, have yet to receive a copy of the new provisions and are presently operating under the outdated copyright laws.

"I'm not aware of any copyright changes," said Beth Simescu, chief librarian of the Dunning-Hough Library. "We haven't heard a thing about it.

"Actually, we rarely use the copying machine for such purposes anyway. Its greatest use is by readers who wish to copy reference material that they can't take home. We don't know what they're copying and the library doesn't make a habit of policing what is reproduced," she said.

SIMESCU SAID the library rarely copies publications, but that she can remember copying works on occasion. During the past holiday season, the library ran off copies off a one-page informational sheet concerning the construction of Christmas wreaths.

The librarian also said she doubts the new provisions will influence library operation or "we would have heard something by now from the Wayne County Federated Library System," of which the Plymouth Library is a member.

Doug Whitaker of the Federated Library System, which is affiliated with some 60 libraries in Wayne and Oakland counties, is aware of the provisions, but doesn't know what they entail.

"Most of our information comes from the Library Journal and we do get the Congressional Record, but neither have printed the new provisions," Whitaker said.

"WE'RE NOT concerned—practically every library in the country makes copies of certain publications. I think it's a question of how many copies can be made."

Whitaker added that there is usually a lag between the time bills are passed and sent out to the public, unless it's a really hot issue.

Although no one is sure exactly how the copyright law reads, it's likely to cause some procedural changes for both libraries and educational facilities.

Other changes include extending the length of copyright to 50 years after the death of an author. In the past, one could copyright a piece for no more than 56 years, resulting in elderly authors sometimes losing a source of income from works completed when they were young.

Also effective in 1982, the provisions will no longer exclude copyright laws to works printed outside the U.S.

Radio station seeks advisors

An advisory group has been formed to seek wider community involvement in Plymouth's public radio station, WSDP.

Jeffrey Cardinal, station coordinator of the student-operated radio station at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park, is organizing the effort to serve more listeners.

Discussing expansion of the WSDP radio program, located in Plymouth Salem High, have been Melvin Blunk, Joanne Hulce, Robert Cameron, Donna Moceli, and Florence Beier.

Classes in radio and radio staff are offered to students at both Salem and Canton high schools. Radio and journalism teacher John Seidelman supervises the students and works with Cardinal to broadcast weekdays from noon to 8 p.m.

More than half of the 64 students who now help operate WSDP work on a non-credit basis in their unscheduled time.

Disability pay requires wait

Social security disability payments generally cannot start immediatlely after people apply for them because of a law requiring a five month waiting period.

That's the word from Charles Anderson, manager of the Social Security office at 15435 Middle Belt, Livonia.

Social security pays monthly disability benefits to eligible workers and their families if the worker is severely disabled and not expected to be able to do any work for a year or more. Payment generally arrives early in the month after five full months of disability.

"During the waiting period," Anderson explained, "examiners get medical records from doctors, hospitals, and other institutions that treated the disability. The disabled pay for getting those records if there is any charge.

"To be eligible for disability benefits," Anderson said, "most workers need at least five years of work under social security in the 10 years before they became disabled. For workers disabled before age 31, the requirement scales down to as little as one and a half years, depending on age," Anderson added.

People disabled since childhood can get social security disability payments without waiting when a parent starts getting social security retirement or disability benefits—or dies after working long enough under social security.

Severely disabled people who haven't worked long or recently enough under social security to get disability benefits may be eligible for supplemental security income (SSI) payments. The SSI program, administered by social security, makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are disabled or blind or 65 or over.

"There is no waiting period under the SSI program," Anderson explained. "Payments start when eligibility is determined. In some cases, SSI disability payments may be made to people while they're waiting for an eligibility decision for social security payments."

More information about social security disability and SSI programs may be obtained by calling or writing any social security office.

The Stroller:

Election recollections

By W. W. EDGAR

Now that the votes have been counted, the candidates have scraped the mud from their faces and we supposedly know which way the country is headed for the next few years The Stroller can't help but share a moment of sympathy for the losers.

Sure, the winners are being hailed and looked upon as conquering heroes. But what about those who fought the battle— and lost.

There's a good reason that The Stroller's feelings turn toward the losers on the morning after for there was a time when he sat with them at a time when the setback was unexpected.

The solemn moment came two decades ago when he aspired to the mayor's office in the young City of Livonia. He had served on the charter commission, and was vice president of the first city council when ambition gripped him and he tried for the top spot.

For weeks and weeks he traveled the confines of the city preaching his gospel and what plans he had for the young city. And on almost every hand, he was met with the prediction that he would be an easy winner.

Then came election day. The residents went to the polls in large numbers and everywhere The Stroller was greeted with big smiles and predictions of triumph.

As late as waning hours of the day when the sun was starting to sink, The Stroller was being hailed at every polling place. One of the moments he recalls very vividly came when one of the top union officials cornered him at one of the polling places.

"You had better go home and get some rest," he said, "for there will be a celebration tonight. You should be ready for it. We folks at the union won't bother you for a day or two until you are rested. But we do want to meet with you and discuss several matters."

Coming from the union forces this buoyed The Stroller's hopes even more. With each passing minute the mayor's chair seemed to be coming closer.

Then came the blow. When the polls closed and the results started coming in from the various precincts there were few favorable numbers. As a matter of fact The Stroller took a good licking. He finished last in a field of four— a finish that seemed almost unbelieveable. But it happened.

Yet with all of it, one of the visions he still carries with him was the sight of the defeated mayor in his headquarters when the results showed the citizens had denied him a second term.

Seated in his headquarters he had only two companions— his wife and a member of his staff, sharing a pot of coffee and a few doughnuts. It was a sad sight and a contrast from the night he had broken the hold of the "old guard" and taken over the executive chair.

In contrast at The Stroller's headquarters there was singing and dancing for it marked his departure from the political scene forever.

And each year when the election votes are counted and the final clod of mud has been thrown The Stroller is reminded of a story told by one his teachers during his school years back home.

This teacher, Prof. Joe Kane, was a jovial fellow who had lost his arm in an accident and liked nothing better than to throw that empty sleeve around.

As often happens, he and his wife came to one of those moments when tempers got the best of them.

"She threw one of our best plates at me," he said, "and barely missed. So I threw one back at her— and missed. Our marksmanship was so bad that we broke the entire entire set of dishes. When the last one missed its mark and crashed against the wall we just stood and looked at each other. Then we broke into a smile and went out to buy another set of dishes."

Fortunately, that's what is happening in our country today. They are picking up the pieces to start over and heal the wounds. No other country can match us for battling and forgetting— on the day after election.

She will give a refresher on why the League of Women Voters has supported ERA and will give an update on its current status.

A public good

A court for the suburbs

If you've ever looked at a circuit court docket, you know that the overwhelming majority of appearances are brief, procedural matters—the taking of a plea, the filing of a routine motion, and the setting of a bond.

A full trial is time-consuming, but as a percentage of court appearances, trials are a minor factor.

There's really no need to make suburban respondents, their lawyers and the police travel many miles through traffic to downtown Detroit, parking at high cost some distance from the City County Building in order to handle brief, procedural matters.

SO IT WAS GOOD news that the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has launched a noble experiment with a suburban courthouse.

For the next one or two months, Building A on the grounds of Wayne County General Hospital in Westland will be the experiment's site.

There, suburbanites will save themselves time and money as they take care of felony pretrial court appearances.

In law enforcement terms alone, the public will get better service because a policeman won't have to be tied up most of the day for the trip downtown. A policeman who has to take a prisoner to court will save several hours and some mileage by going to the Westland courtroom and then can get back to his patrol in his community.

Suburban members of the county commission had been working on this for a long time. Commissioners Richard Manning (D-Redford) and Mary Dumas (R-Livonia) have been plugging for it the longest, although other commissioners also deserve thanks.

THE SUBURBAN courtroom was not a sudden act of wisdom on the part of Wayne County, to be sure.

The biggest chunk of money is coming from Uncle Sam—$95,000. The state and the county are chipping in $5,000 apiece. If it had been left to the county alone, the noble experiment might never have been tried.

The idea is for the state and county to take over full funding once the federal grant runs out. That's not as bad as it seems, because by that time all the hardware will be in place—desks, chairs, and the bench. The judges and their clerks are already on the payroll, so the suburban courtroom will have no extra costs that way.

Commissioner Dumas has a vision of another circuit court site toward Livonia or Northville (her district) and even of complete court services at one of these sites.

That may be an overly ambitious goal because it will involve jury facilities and could present travel problems for some jurors. But it is a goal to keep in mind.

WAYNE COUNTY, when you think about it, has one of the most inconveniently located county seats in Michigan. Downtown Detroit is actually off in one corner of the county.

Other populous counties have more centrally located seats. Ann Arbor is a bit east of the center of Washtenaw County, Jackson is in the center of Jackson County, Marshall at the midpoint of Calhoun County, Kalamazoo is west of the center of Kalamazoo County, Grand Rapids a little southwest of the center of Kent County, Flint at the center of Genesee County and so on.

Thus, suburban Wayne County suburbanites, who have to travel to the central county offices, must journey much longer distances through worse traffic than dwellers in practically any part of the state.

THERE IS, on the other hand, a certain reluctance on the part of professional Detroiters to see any facility slip away to the suburbs.

They see it as a loss of prestige for Detroit, a loss of people in downtown Detroit, a loss of restaurant business, and many other dire consequences. To a minor extent, they are right.

But which is more important: To make Detroit prestigious or to make things convenient for folks who use the circuit court?

Instead, Wayne County should be thinking in terms of spreading more services throughout the suburbs. A friend of the court office and a civil defense office are already located on the hospital grounds in Westland. There seems little logic in forcing folks to travel to 2 Woodward Avenue to get a marriage license or to the Cadillac Tower to see a marriage counselor; why couldn't those services have a suburban office?

Calhoun County has shown it can be done. Battle Creek, largest city in the county, has been given branch offices for several county services.

The noble experiment in Wayne County should be continued.

Some folks are in a rush to get out and go nowhere

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

There are five minutes to go in the ball game. The score is 27-6, and people start to stand up to leave. Ball games have been decided in the last two minutes, and people have paid for a full 60 minutes of football, but there is a gradual migration toward the exits.

The people involved will not get home any quicker than the people who stayed the final few minutes because the expressway will be clogged and one of those who stayed is always the guy who blocks the parking lot.

A plane touches down on the runway, and immediately five or six passengers stand up, take their coats from the rack overhead, and start a rush to the front of the plane even before it has taxied to the gate. These same people can be seen waiting at the baggage counter, getting their bags at the same time everyone else does.

THE FINAL CURTAIN goes down at the Fisher Theater, and some playgoers stand up and start to move toward the exits, even as the actors and actresses take their bows on stage. The encores sometimes add something to the show when the star ad libs to the audience.

Rude though it is, these people migrate to the exit, but they don't get home any quicker because they are going to be in the traffic snarl in the parking lot.

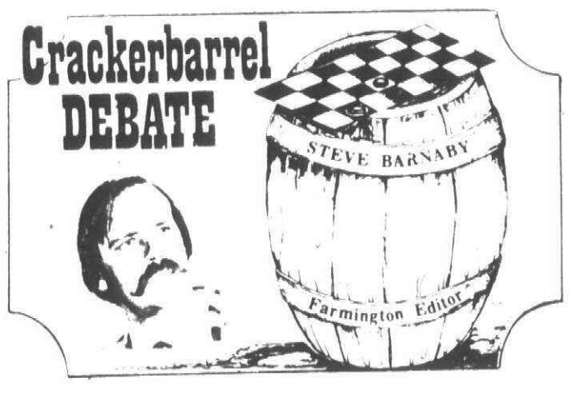

The words "The End" appear on the screen, and before the lights can be turned on, and while the credits are being shown, moviegoers head toward the exits, disturbing those who would like to see who was in the motion picture. These people will be caught in the parking lot and won't get home any earlier.

It is Sunday morning, and before the church service is over, people are straggling out the front door, heading toward the parking lot. They were willing to spend some time with the Lord, but they were so busy they had to cut the experience short.

I HAVE OFTEN wondered where all these people are rushing to and what is so important that they feel they may infringe upon the enjoyment of those who have paid for the full show and do not leave early.

Since seldom do they get anywhere quicker, why do they have to leave so early?

Old political experts look at the Senate race

Tom Jefferson sat on a cloud dusting off his wig, pondering the day's events back on planet Earth when a much newer heavenly tenant, Ike, walked by.

"Say, General, what do you think of this young guy Riegle and all his problems with his girlfriend?" asked the founding father.

"Sure makes for a lot of bad press when you're trying to get elected for office. George Marshall warned me about such things back during World War II," replied the general.

"Sure is a difficult thing to keep a secret with all these new-fangled tape recorders. Sure am glad they didn't have such things when I was on Earth," said Jefferson.

Ben Franklin, always one to get in on a discussion, sat down next to Tom on the next cloud.

"THAT'S THE PROBLEM with these young guys. They keep it a secret. Everybody knew about me. But then, I was old and everybody got a big kick out of it," said the American sage.

"I fully agree. But the question is, does it affect the way you run your public affairs?" chimed in a young Bostonian, with a full shock of hair.

The participants turned and looked at Jack Kennedy and pondered the question.

Almost simultaneously, the entire group chimed in, "not a bit."

Someone said, "Let's go ask Franklin Roosevelt. He has some experience in such matters."

The group hustled over to where FDR was sitting and petting his dog, Fala. After having the question put to him, the New Dealer took the cigarette holder from his mouth and gave a big smile.

"Well, boys, it's certainly isn't the wisest thing to do. But everyone makes a mistake and deserves the right to figure out his personal life for himself," he said.

"Forgive and forget, that's what I always say," said Ben.

ABOUT THAT TIME, a short, red-haired gentleman came storming through the clouds.

"You hear what he said Jefferson," yelled Alexander Hamilton in his usual irate manner.

"That's the problem, Jefferson. You always tried to make hay out of my personal life. What good did it do you? We were both damn good leaders of our country and you certainly weren't a saint," he howled.

The clouds rumbled as Jefferson stared at Hamilton.

Secret 'strategy' meetings shut out only the public

Tim Richard

Conventional wisdom said it had to be done that way, and conventional wisdom may have been wrong.

Conventional wisdom, in this case, held that local governing boards needed to hold collective bargaining strategy sessions in secret.

Thus, when the Michigan Legislature passed the new "open meetings" law that takes effect next April, collective bargaining was one topic that that was exempt from the sunshine of public scrutiny.

AT SCHOOLCRAFT College this year, the board of trustees interrupted many of its business meetings to hold secret sessions on collective bargaining strategy.

The effect was to shut out only the public. The union found out anyway what the board was willing to offer.

Trustee Leroy Bennett revealed last week that in actual negotiating sessions, the Faculty Forum (instructors union) negotiators knew when they sat down at the table how much leeway the board's negotiating team had.

How did the faculty union break the shield of secrecy? With modern electronic equipment, it would be fairly easy to "bug" the board's meeting room, which is open to the public during general business sessions.

More likely, however, either a person on the college staff or a member of the board of trustees leaked the information.

THE POINT is that interested parties can penetrate the veil, if it's worth the money.

That point was made to a legislative committee as it was writing the "open meetings" bill. The folks from Common Cause maintained it was silly to allow real estate transactions to be discussed in secret because real estate agents always found out anyway what was going on. Only the public gets shut out of a secret meeting.

The same is true of collective bargaining, it now appears.

TWO OTHER EXAMPLES will help make the point.

At Schoolcraft, the trustees got their nearly-finished copies of the bargained agreement Oct. 25.

Yet a state association of college English teachers wrote a letter to trustees protesting one provision in the contract, and the letter was dated Oct. 22. Thus, a special interest group had apparently seen at least part of the final contract before the board of trustees did.

A few years ago, Clarenceville School District and the MEA affiliate reached an agreement in negotiations, but they wouldn't let the public know the terms until after the board and the union membership had ratified it. Yet even before ratification, a Clarenceville administrator delivered a copy to a Farmington administrator. Thus, an out-of-district administrator got favored treatment over the Clarenceville public.

That kind of thing goes on elsewhere all the time.

SOME FOLKS suggest the entire collective bargaining process be opened to the public. I have doubts.

For one thing, the discussions would be terribly technical and boring. More importantly, negotiators would tend to play to the cheering galleries rather than to negotiate with each other.

Arch Vallier, who plays the role of the ol' curmudgeon on the Schoolcraft board, has privately been telling other trustees they need to open up, "quit hiding," and let the public know the broad outlines of what the college is demanding and offering in negotiations.

Arch is right. Not only is the board's policy of secret meetings a disservice to the public, but it simply isn't working. The Faculty Forum openly curries student and public favor, and the board—our elected officials—sits there with its doors closed.

Suddenly, twilight comes earlier

Daylight saving time is over, and it's dusk or even dark now when many of us are driving home from work. Early nightfall conceals the energetic movements of youngsters walking along roadways, darting across unlighted streets, fielding an overthrown football or playing in piles of leaves.

It may seem trite to remind motorists to use common sense and extra caution—unless you've ever sucked in your breath and hit the brakes when a young figure appeared suddenly in your headlights.

If your child's jacket is dark, buy some reflector tape and wrap it around the sleeves.

Make sure all the bicycles have lights and reflectors.

Caution the kids not to hide in piles of leaves along the curbs.

Be patient yourself.

And now that it's rainier, this is the season to make your annual change of windshield wipers and reduce distorted vision and glare.

Teachers need support

Editor:

We should like to respond to two letters in the Monday, Oct. 25, 1976 Canton Observer. These are the two letters concerning the current Plymouth Community School District contract negotiations. Both were offered by parents who were unwilling to acknowledge their authorship.

Over the last several years, both of us have served as co-presidents of parent-teacher organizations; both at the elementary and middle-school levels. Neither of us were particularly impressed by the turnout that these meetings could attract. This was true either of a meeting that was centered around an educational speaker or a meeting that was intended to raise funds for enrichment items for the school (although the latter were somewhat better attended than the former).

On numerous occasions, especially at the elementary level, the majority of the parents participating were the parent-teacher organization board members, with only a handful of other parents.

BOTH LETTERS seemed to imply that the "extras" that teachers desire for their classrooms are of an optional nature; but in all the fund raisers we were involved in, these items were not really "extras." They were items such as audio-visual equipment, playground equipment, or middle-school musical instruments.

All were acutely needed by the school but were expensive and apparently were considered of such low priority by either the central administration or the school board that they did not make it into each school's capital equipment budget. Certainly their acquisition by the school is not of primary benefit to the teachers, but the students.

If the 38 parents who managed to get together and write a letter "vowing that we shall no longer champion teacher causes to promote the funds for extras," had put the same energy into supporting their parent-teacher organizations, their children would be farther ahead and would not have more parentally-induced lack of support for their teachers.

'I Remember Mama'

PCEP all-school play opens Nov. 11

Rehearsals for "I Remember Mama" are in high gear at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park. The all-school play will open Nov. 11 for a three-day run in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

When "I Remember Mama" opened for the first time Sept. 28, 1944 in New Haven, Conn., the original cast included one well-known name. Marlon Brando had the part of Nels.

The play went on to the Music Box Theater in New York for a long run and later became a television series.

The play was adapted from the book "Mama's Bank Account" by Kathryn Forbes. John Van Druten authored the play; it was a Rogers and Hammerstein production.

The setting of the play is San Francisco in the 1910s. The heart-warming drama shows how mama brings up her children in their modest home. She sees them through childhood, manages to educate them and sees one daughter begin a career as a writer.

Mama is played by Patty Piper. Her children, Katrin, Nels, Christine and Dagmar are played by Lisa Grimm, Todd Barkerm Dawn Marston, and Robbin Holley.

John Stout has the role of Papa. Mike Corliss plays Uncle Chris.

Mama's sisters Trina, Sigrid and Jenny, will be portrayed by Karen Rosner, Jaime Weiser Sandra Gottwald. Dave Shepherd will be Mr. Hyde.

Others in the cast are Mike Marston, Diane Pulkownik, Scott LaRiche, Jeff Parrott, Janet Davies, Mike Prchlik, Cheryl Collins, Jackie Melnik, Terry Schemenauer, Mike Wooley, Karen Brown and Michael Rafferty.

The production is directed by Gloria Logan, drama director at PCEP. Assisting Mrs. Logan are Jan Sigmon and Sinda Nichols.

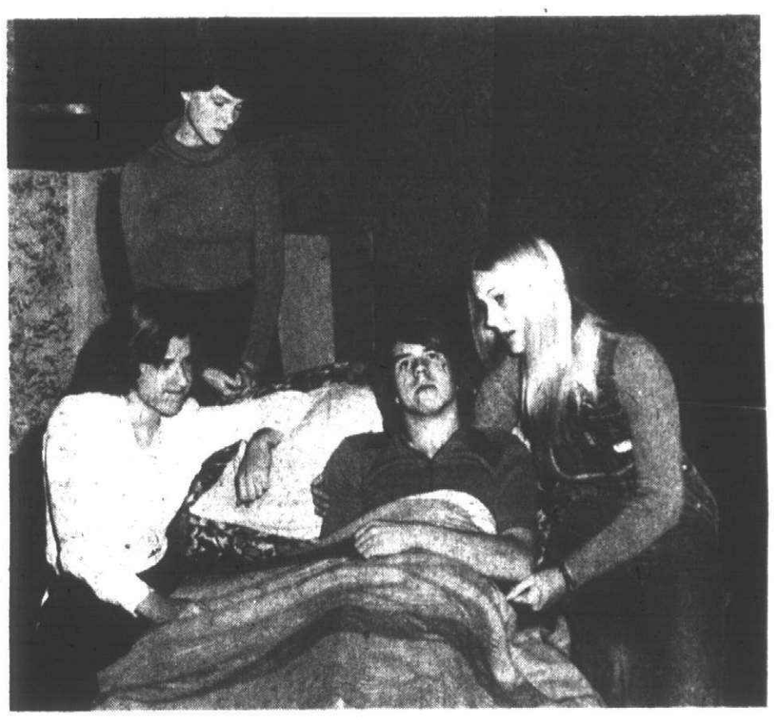

Tickets at $1.50 are available at the door or from any cast or crew member.

The family, at home, are (from left) Robin Holley as Dagmar, Todd Barker in Marlon Brando's old role of Nels, John Stout as Papa, Patty Piper as Mama, and Lisa Grimm as Katrin. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

When grandpa raises the roof

In this bicentennial year, not many children get in on a roof-raising. So when Mabel and Ralph Lorenz had a roof-raising party to celebrate the grand opening of First National Bank of Plymouth and the Mayflower Square, the grandchildren were there to see it. After the ox roast, cider and apples, they congregated in the offices of George Bowles and John Vos to warm up. They are (from left) Heather, Brandy and Eric Lorenz, Todd, Wendy and Randy Osan, and Ricky Lorenz. Only one missing was Chad Lorenz who is not yet a year old. (Staff photo by Elinor Graham)

Canton chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Halloween week was a time for lots of parties. Thursday evening the Cub Scouts of Pack 766 and their families arrived at Gallimore Elementary School for a celebration. There was a pumpkin carving contest and a costume parade.

Two-year-old Stacy Tchorzynski, who came dressed as Mickey Mouse, won a McDonald's certificate along with six year old Robert Crysler who was Superman.

Mike Garica and Steven Agdorney won prizes for their pumpkins and Scott Steiner, who was a big hit dressed as a girl, also won for his costume.

Of course we can't leave out the talents of Barb Dani who had on the most terrific Bozo disguise. No one knew her until she spoke.

Just a few of the many clever costumes and the children behind the masks were, Jim Munda as Dracula, and brother Andrew was a man from SWAT. David Dart was Paul Revere, and John Skaggs was a toy soldier. Scott Callahan was a fat man, Mike Lucus a clown, Steve Dani was a colonial man and brother Greg was a puppy. Karen Sandel was an old lady, and brother Gary was an Indian. Mike Malpass was a sailor, Dave Whitman, the Fonz, and Jeff Clark was Spiderman.

HALLOWEEN IS not only for kids. The Royal Holiday Senior Citizens held their pary Saturday at the Recreation Hall. They had a potluck dinner starting and danced to a band until midnight.

Jay Whitehead was dressed as a lady and Kay Whitehead was a go go girl. Brenda Pollack was Frankenstein and Marie Martell was a flapper.

Everyone in costume received a prize. Other winners were: Wilmarth Morris, Margaret Morris, Anne Dobson, Harry Martell, Mary Woods, Corine Gunnesch, Hattie Davis, and Shelly Brintnell.

Geza and Julia Tihanyi of Lancaster Court also held a party Saturday evening. It was a neighborhood party and a good time was had by all.

MR. RONALD SOUTH, principal of Eriksson Elementary was delighted to receive a donation for the school from the cub scouts of Pack 781, Den 1, headed by Nancy Bane. The money was left over from last years treasury. It will be used to help purchase flags and stands for the schools lobby.

SATURDAY EVENING, Joe Staron celebrated his ninth birthday by taking some friends to Farrell's in Ann Arbor for ice cream and having a slumber party afterwards. His brother Jeff helped him celebrate along with Tony and Vincent Esser, Jeff Speaks, David Sandel, Eric Pahl and Mark Lopez.

WHAT A SURPRISE. After eight years Bruce and Chris Lapinski of Washington Way had a son, Aaron Martin. He was born at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 27.

His great-grandmother Helen Lapinski returned from a vacation in Europe on Tuesday, just in time to greet the new arrival.

MONDAY MORNINGS at the Super Bowl is where you'll find the Canton Parks and Recreation Senior Citizens Bowling League.

Last Monday Alex Michalak was high scorer with a 201. Great bowling.

Jan and John Fuller of Hillsboro are entertaining out of town company this week. John's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Fuller arrived Friday afternoon from Ottumwa, Iowa. They are enjoying their visit with their grandchildren Scott and Steve.

THE CANTON Senior Citizens visited Frankenmuth Oct. 28. They enjoyed shopping at Bronners for Christmas decorations. They also visited an egg farm which had 10,000.

Adam Barbu of Michigan Ave. provided the entertainment for the group on their return trip with his jokes and stories.

'New You' SC workshop to be delayed a week

The 'New You for the Holidays' workshop scheduled by Schoolcraft College through its women's services program will begin Thursday, Nov. 11, instead of the week earlier as origionally scheduled.

Professional model June Lark, conducting the four session workshop, said delays in mail information had led to a decision to postpone the course. The new dates are Nov. 11 and 18 and Dec. 2 and 9, skipping the Thanksgiving week.

Participants will learn makeup application, clothes coordination and wardrobe updating and accessorizing. Ms. Lark also will include discussion of methods for acquiring poise and self-esteem.

A guest at one of the sessions will be Richard Emile of Emile's Salon in Southfield, who will give a free haircut and comment on the styling while talking to participants about methods for haircoloring and care.

The course sessions all begin at 7:30 p.m. and the cost for the series is $20.

Those interested should send checks, made out to Schoolcraft College, to the cashier's office by Nov. 10. Additional information is available from the women's services department at Schoolcraft, 591-6400, ext. 369.

The council held its regular monthly meeting recently at Plymouth Salem High and took a tour of the school's facilities. Supt. John M. Hoben and Salem Principal Bill Brown answered questions about the school district and the high school program.

The group meets on the fourth Thursday of each month with the superintendent to go over the latest developments in the school district. Representatives bring matters from their schools for discussion with the group and the administrators.

WITH JESUS YOU NEED NO ADDITIVES

MEMORIAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH
35475 Five Mile Rd.
Livonia 464-6722

It's that time of year again . . . time to check the radiator and add a couple of gallons of anti-freeze. We know it seems like we just did it a few months ago. We did! But it's time to do it again. Joy! The infernal machine is insatiable!

How about your religious life? Is is adequate? Does it require additives now and then to pep things up? You know, some religions require drugs, sex, hypnotic trances and other neat things like that just to keep the interest high. Thank God Christianity doesn't have that problem. As a matter of fact, it's because of God that Christianity doesn't have that problem. He deemed that His Son was enough. And so He has been for 2,000 years. Some have added creeds, doctrines and entire philopohies to the Word of God. God, through Paul has stated that they are in trouble. "As we said before, so say I now again. If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that you have received, let him be accursed." (Galatians 1:9) So much for modern religions! But what about it? Is Jesus enough? He is at Overlake. We invite you to find out why.

Shatner's versatility proves enterprising

By LYNN ORR

Strolling onstage without benefit of a transporter, William Shatner, alias Capt. James T. Kirk of the Starship Enterprise to thousands of trekkies, was greeted by a barrage of applause.

And the 1,700 avid fans at Schoolcraft College seemed as delighted with his readings from Shakespeare, Brecht, and H. G. Wells, as with his personal insights into the Star Trek phenomenon and upcoming movie.

"We have a group of people collected here because of a series cancelled more than seven years ago," said Shatner. "You're as nutty as we are."

Shatner punctuated his brief presentation of man's fascination with the galaxies with interpretive readings from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Tempest," Brecht's "Galileo," H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" and a crowd-pleasing reading from "Cyrano de Bergerac."

"Let me get inside your heads for a minute and take you with me," Shatner began, instructing the audience to close its eyes and relax. "Let your mind float upward . . . further into the blackness of the universe and listen to the sound of stars speaking to you in myriad tongues."

SCHOOLCRAFT STUDENT Cindy Prystask wanted to see Shatner because she "thinks he's a good actor, and I wanted to see him in person."

"He looks pretty good on television. It wasn't just about Star Trek but about himself and his acting."

Northville student Kelly Wilson enjoyed the show as well. "I thought it was really good because when he was talking about the different theories, he said it was just like the journey he had taken on the Enterprise." Wilson loves Star Trek.

Canton resident, David Sayles, at 34, has been watching the show since it originally appeared in 1967.

"I've been trying to figure out why he likes Star Trek for 10 years," said his wife, Carol, wryly. But Sayles believes it's still the best show on the air.

"It's more realistic that a lot of other shows, and a lot of it could very well be the future."

AN EDITED VERSION of one Star Trek episode, "Shore Leave," presented before Shatner's appearance prompted questions from his rapt audience.

Livonia Bentley senior Lisa Sweeney asked if Shatner was surprised at Star Trek's success.

"It gets into the chemical properties of a hit," Shatner explained. "An experienced producer can calculate the names that draw the audience, what appeals to an audience, and can set up the tensions and anxieties within the development of a plot. But chemistry of some kind makes a hit."

Dressed in black, with darker, curlier hair and a leaner physique, Shatner has shed the Kirk image, but the same resonant voice echoed through the gymnasium, and the same humor expressed by Kirk seems a part of Shatner's character.

Calling an episode about Spock's love life "What makes salmon run?," Shatner amused the audience with anecdotes about the series.

Referring to the first U.S. space shuttle, named the Enterprise, Shatner explained, "The joke is on all of us trekkies, the cool ones, not the frothing-at-the mouth trekkies. The shuttle they named the Enterprise is the one they're going to practice on, not the one that will go into space."

"Yes, there's going to be a Star Trek movie," brought a round of applause. Production is to begin in February with a $7 million budget and most of the original cast. Explaining that Leonard Nimoy hasn't signed yet to play the vulcan Mr. Spock, Shatner added that "Leonard's beef is the same as mine— since 1970, the studio had no right to merchandise anything with Leonard's face on it."

William Shatner answers reporter's questions at a press conference before his recent appearance at Schoolcraft College.

"HE BELIEVES they've done something illegal, and he deserves some loot for it," Shatner maintained.

Scheduled release for the picture is Christmas 1977, and Shatner said there's a possibility of an open-ended production allowing for additional movies or a new series, depending on the success of the film.

Fans were concerned with Shatner's personal life (he's married with three children), and one fan asked for a kiss. He replied that he didn't want to alienate the fans who would be left out if he started signing autographs or granting kisses.

None seemed lost to the Shatner-Kirk cause. One fan remarked, "People may have come to see Captain Kirk, but I think they were delighted to discover the versitility of William Shatner."

Barber shop singers wanted

The Wayne Chapter of The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America, Inc., (The Barber Shop Quartet Society) is holding auditions for new singing members for its Wonderland Chorus.

The auditions will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Westland Shopping Center, at Wayne and Warren roads, Westland.

Men who like to sing, even just a little, are invited to attend the progam. The Chorus and several Barber Shop quartets will sing in concert in the mall.

There will be an informal presentation about Barber Shop singing in the auditorium after the concert. Refreshments will be served. Men who are not able to attend this meeting can attend Chorus weekly rehearsals at 8 p.m. on Tuesdays at the Plymouth Salem High School, at Joy Road, just west of Canton-Center Road, room 1616.

The SPEBSQSA is the largest singing society in the world. It has more than 38,000 members in some 700 chapters in 15 districts in the U.S. and Canada.

The Society also has a National Service Project: The Institute of Logopedics, in Wichita, Kansas, which is dedicated to the cure and rehabilitation of children with speech defects, many of whom are Cerebral Palsy victims.

Reedman now with Timepiece

Gerry Niewood, former saxophonist of the Chuck Mangione Quartet, will appear with Timepiece at 9 p.m. Nov. 19 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Just Jazz is sponsoring the concert in UM-D's Recreation Organization Center. Advance tickets are on sale in room 214 of the ROC. Tickets also are available at the door.

Niewood became a member of the Chuck Mangione Quartet while he was a student at the Eastman School of Music. He performed with the group at concerts, club dates and jazz festivals in the United States, Canada and Europe for more than eight years.

"I picked Gerry for the quartet because of his flexibility," says Mangione. "He doesn't just double on an instrument. When he picks up the flute, he owns it. When he plays the soprano, that's his instrument."

NIEWOOD HAS won the "talent deserving wider recognition" award for soprano sax in Downbeat Magazine's critics' poll for the last two years. He came in second on soprano in the latest readers' poll.

Niewood's second solo album is due for a late fall release. His first album, "Slow, Hot Wind," was recently released by A & M Records.

For his Nov. 19 appearance Niewood will be accompanied by vibist David Samuels. Samuels has performed in concert and recorded with Gerry Mulligan. Drummer Ron Davis was an original member of the Chuck Mangione Quartet. Bassist Jeff Berlin completes the quartet.

"My preoccupation right now is making myself a more perfect medium for music to pass through. That's all I believe I'm here for," says Niewood in Downbeat. "Music is there. It's out in nature. It's one of the absolutes, and I'm just a vehicle. I want to be a more perfect vehicle."

UM-D is at 4901 Evergreen Rd., south of Ford Road. For more information, call 271-2300.

COMING TO OLYMPIA STADIUM
NOVEMBER 20 and 21

Not Affiliated with The Spanish Riding School or The Austrian Government.

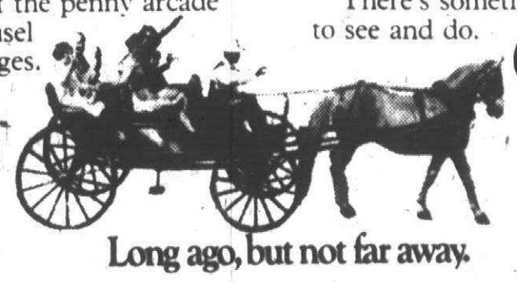

Our Indian Summers are filled with good times from the good old days.

Now's the time to stroll to stately homes and cozy shops at Greenfield Village, where America's past is thick as autumn leaves.

It's quiet, unrushed, now. And although summer's over, our antique train still puffs its way to Suwanee Park, where the magic of the penny arcade and old-time carousel awaits kids of all ages. On weekends, our sternwheeler gracefully chugs around Suwanee Lagoon.

Friendly craftsmen are still at work down at the Crafts Center. Should the weather turn, Henry Ford Museum is just next door, where you'll enjoy endless galleries of memorabilia—plus the special Bicentennial exhibition, "The Struggle and The Glory."

There's something for the whole family to see and do.

Documentary film on women's role

"Union Maids," a new documentary film on the role women played in the labor struggles of the 1930s, will make its Detroit premier Friday in Wayne State University's Community Arts Auditorium.

The film stars three Chigago women, who, like millions of other jobless Americans, migrated to the city during the Depression to find work. But, through a combination of necessity and determination, they, like thousands of their contemporaries, found themselves rank-and-file leaders in one of the most dramatic mass movements in U.S. history.

The movie concerns the days of sit-down strikes, soup-kitchens and street battles, as seen through the eyes of Sylvia Woods, who worked in a laundry; Katherine Hyndeman, a pharmaceutical factory worker, and Stella Nowicki, who worked in the stockyards. Their personal and often harrowing organizing experiences epitomize the profound contributions of women whom labor troubadour Joe Hill called "Union Maids."

As the women, now in their 60s, tell their stories, a stream of rare newsreel footage, stills, snapshots and songs by folksinger Peter Seeger, brings their words to life.

Thesse personal histories also reveal the often-ignored sacrifices, frustrations and conflicts women faced when they decided to enter the male-dominated job and union organizing sectors—the strained marriages, the added burden of housework and the insensitivity and patronizing attitude of many male union leaders—all of which helped to make these three women "militant feminists" more than 40 years ago.

"Union Maids" was directed by Julia Reichert, Jim Klein and Miles Mogulescu. Chiefs slop past Farmington

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

To call the girls' basketball battle between Plymouth Canton and non-league opponent Farmington a sloppy game probably would be gross understatement.

The Chiefs beat Farmington High 51-30 to raise their record to 11-4 on the season. But the way Canton performed, it looked as if the squad was tangled in a duel of eighth-grade teams.

Poor execution of plays, poor shooting, and weak competition allowed the Chiefs to win without playing their best.

Canton will have to play a tighter game tonight if it hopes to avenge an earlier loss to league-leading Walled Lake Western. Thge Chiefs will be conceding the home court advantage to the Warriors.

"We played the tempo of the game," said coach Mike McCauley after his his squad's Farmington win. "We are going to have to be fired up against Western."

McCauley started his bench personel in this game and rotated players in and out of the contest.

After an even first quarter that ended at 6-6, the Chiefs forged ahead 21-14 at the half.

The lead was extended to 34-22 after three quarters.

Canton's Sue Rekuc played her best game of the season in leading the Chiefs with a 19-point performance. Kathy Peck added 12.

Farmington's Kathy Van Deusen led her team, with 19 points.

PLYMOUTH SALEM girls met one of the better teams in the area in a non-league tilt on Tuesday, but the result was the same—a 54-43 victory over Garden City East at the East gym.

It was the 14th consecutive win for the undefeated Rocks, a veritable powerhouse in western Wayne County.

After an even 14-14 first quarter, the Rocks steadily pulled away to a 28-22 halftime lead and a 39-34 advantage after three quarters.

The Rocks scored the first 11 points in the fourth quarter, salting away the victory.

East came within 15 points late in the game, after Salem's bench took over.

The Rocks ripped apart an 1-2-2 zone early in the game,forcing Garden City into a 2-1-2 defense later in the first period.

Salem played its typical man-to-man full-court pressure defense throughout most of the game. The Rocks relied heavilyon a passing offense to break the East zone play.

"Things are really coming around," said coach Debbie Hatcher. "I was very pleased. We played a real hard game."

Kathy Dillon and Diane Goodrich led the balanced Rock scoring attack with 12 points apiece. Erin Moore played a steady game with 11 points and led the team in rebounding with nine.

Goodrich and Peg Moore added seven rebounds apiece.

The Rocks next test in Suburban Eight League action is on the road tonight against Dearborn.

The Salem junior varsity won its 12th game in 14 starts with a preliminary 48-27 victory over East. Peg Somers was the leading scorer with 14 points.

Kleam qualifies for state

East harriers win regionals

Garden City East, placing second behind Westland John Glenn at the Northwest Suburban League conference cross country meet last week, was forced to share the league championship with the Rockets.

The Panthers, however, recovered from that disappointment a few days later by placing first in the 23-team Class A Regional last weekend at Cass Benton Park.

East, Farmington, which placed second, and Livonia Stevenson, which finished third, all advance to the state finals Saturday in Grand Rapids.

"We pointed for the big one (regional)," said East coach Ron Clifton, "and we really did an outstanding job as a team. It was tremendous to win."

All five of the East runners turned in their best performances ever at Cass Benton. Jim Dydo placed 12th, Jeff Perrine, 14th, Kevin Kitze, 22d, Paul York, 29th, and Tim Phillips, 31st.

The Regional championship was the first for East; Clifton said that he cannot remember when the Panthers last earned their way to the state finals.

"If we could get in the top 10, it would be a tremendous accomplishment," Clifton said of the finals.

Livonia Stevenson, champion of the Inter-Lakes League, will also represent the area this weekend in Grand Rapids.

Bill Wilkin, the Spartans' premier runner, led almost all the way Saturday only to be nipped by Livonia Churchill's Vic Wietecha at the wire by a half second for individual honors.

In addition to Wilkin's second-place finish, Lyle Kellman placed 26th for the Spartans, Bill Rowley, 30th, Dean Taylor, 33d, and Jaime Galindo, 46th.

"It's nice to be back in the state finals," said Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg, noting that the Spartans, after advancing to the finals four years in a row between 1970-73, missed the past two seasons.

"I think we have an excellent chance of being in the top 10 at the finals," Holmberg projected. "I think we might have been in the strongest regional in the state when it comes to balance."

Several individuals from teams other than the top three also ran well at the regional and advance to the finals in search of personal accomplishment.

These include Wietecha and Tobin Jones from Livonia Churchill, Tim Theisen from Redford Bishop Borgess and Scott Kleam from Plymouth Salem.

Gridders hit the road

Both the Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem football squads hit the road this Friday night with games beginning at 8 p.m.

The Chiefs travel to Garden City East for a non-league game, after finishing Western Six League action with an 0-5 last place record.

Canton goes into this contest with that five-game losing streak and a 1-6 record overall.

Last season, the Chiefs surprised the whole area with an upset victory over a highly-rated Garden City squad.

This year, East isn't regarded as any kind of threat with its 2-5 overall mark, but the chances for another Canton upset are even further from a reality.

Canton mentor Dave Schuele scouted East last Friday, watching its upset bid over Franklin fail in the final minutes of the game.

East dominated that game for three-and-a-half quarters mounting a 13-0, but lost to the Patroits 14-13 in the closing seconds.

"They managed to throw the game away at the right time," Schuele said. "East played for 44 minutes of the game, and Franklin played for the last four.

"They are so big...they are horrendous," Schuele said of East. They are one of the best 2-5 teams I've seen."

The Chiefs are not only going to have to contend with the size of the East line, but also the likes of another bruising fullback.

While Canton will have trouble stopping East's offense, Schuele must also be concerned about the Chiefs' sputtering offense—demonstrated last week against Churchill.

Countless breakdowns against the Churchill nine-man defensive line, limited the Chiefs to only five yards rushing.

"We knew what they were going to do defensively," Schuele said. "We worked on it all week.

"We thought we could hurt them with the quick openers and quick passes, but we just miscued and didn't block well.

"It was kind of disappointing."

Schuele was impressed with the play of two new defensive backs, freshman Fred Holloway and Darry Ramseur.

PLYMOUTH SALEM ends its Suburban Eight League season this Fridayby when it travels to Jaguar country in Allen Park.

The big question in this contest is how the Rocks will react after coming off that emotional loss against Dearborn last week.

The last time the Rocks came up with an emotional performance, against Trenton, they fell flat on their faces the next week against Edsel Ford.

Allen Park isn't one of your powerhouses, winning only one game in the conference this year, that against last place Redford Union.

It's obvious that the Rocks can't give the emotional effort demonstrated against Dearborn and Trenton, but they better be careful not to let up against the Jaguars or there might be some surprises.

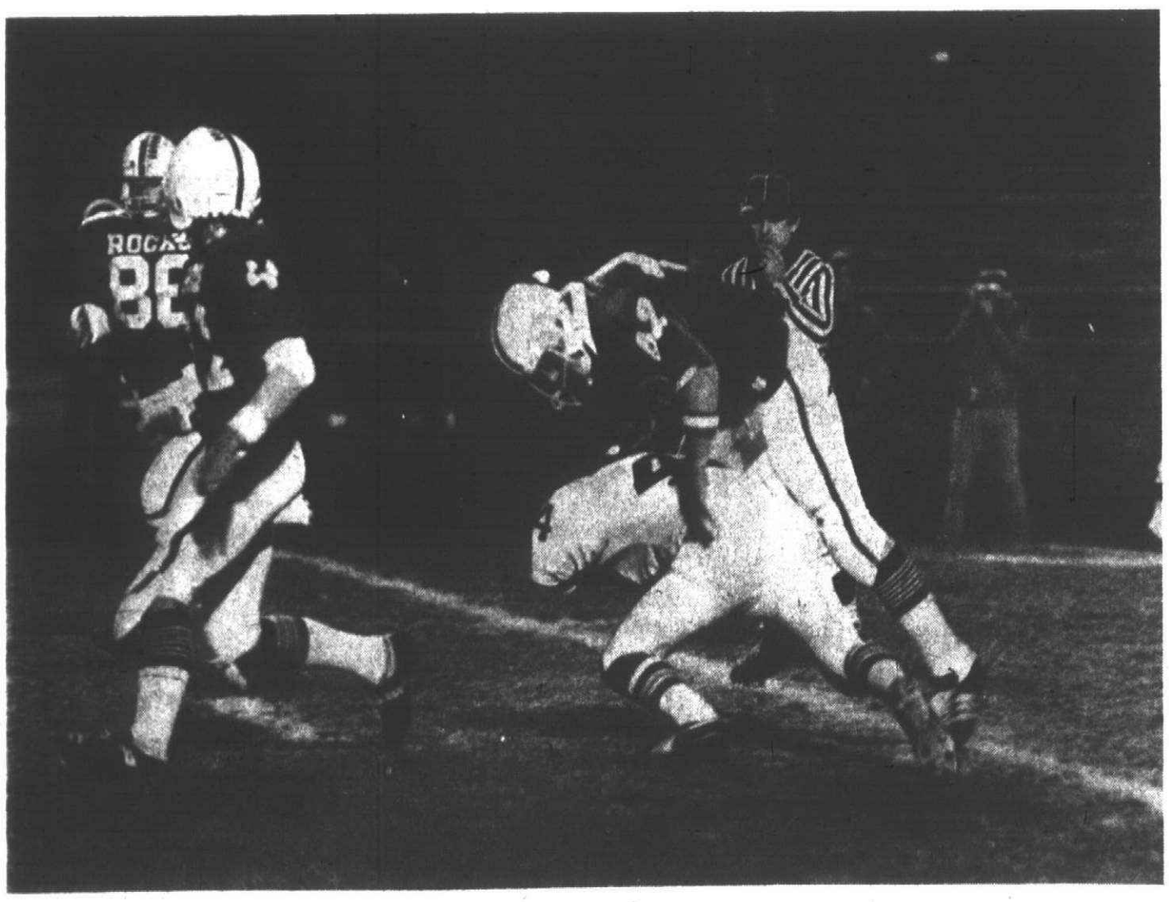

Salem has a chance to finish 4-3 in the conference with a victory over Allen Park. This record will clinch at least a tie for the fourth place position.

Coach Tom Moshimer has said all year that execution is the key to winning football games, and he proved it last week against Dearborn.

Moshimer doesn't plan anything different against Allen Park and hopes his squad "can get the steam rolling" on offense.

Moshimer was impressed not only with the way his squad played last Friday, but also the way they came back to score the final touchdown of the game, after being 12 points down.

The Rocks demonstrated the ability to pass on that final touchdown drive, which could be an added element in Moshimer's offense that Rocks fans might see in the final two ballgames.

Rowe runs over Pioneer

Running over Dearborn defenders was a regular accomplishment for Rock fullback Doug Rowe in Friday night's Salem loss to the Pioneers, 33-28. (Staff photo).

Plymouth Salem tankers dunk Northville Mustangs, 48-35

Ah! The sweetness of a Plymouth school beating Northville— and especially in swimming.

That was the accomplishment of the Plymouth Salem girls swim team Tuesday night. The Rock ladies took it to the Mustangs 48-35, and added insult to injury by whipping Northville on its own turf—or water, as this crew.

It was the ninth non-league victory for the Rocks, upping their season mark to 9-1.

A noticeably pleased coach Chuck Olson praised the efforts of his Salem swimmers.g "It was enjoyable to beat Northville. They always have good talent and they are one of the best teams in the area," he said.

The Rocks broke three schools record, but the one school record that pushed the Rocks past Northville was the victory of Marion Stanwood over the Mustangs Cyle Roggenbuck in the 100 free.

Roggenbuck is considered to be one of the top sprinters in the state, but Salem's Standwood put away with a 55.7 second clocking. Roggenbuck swam 55.8.

200 medley and 400 free relays were both won by the Rocks. Jill McCann, Ilona Schmidt, Colette Cabados and Madeline Lakata combined for the 200 medley win with a 2:08.3 clocking. Martha Scherear, Pat Stocker, Sue Evans and Sue Sparling took third.

Sue Stanwood, Sharon Ross, Madeline Lakata and Marion Stanwood combined in the 400 free for a 4:13.3. Diane Perpich, Kathy Sample,Sparling and Kim Coates placed third.

Other Salem records came from Sue Stanwood in the 200 individual medley at 2:25.5. Ilona Schmidt came in second.

Jill McCann broke the 100 back mark by one-tenth of a second with a 1:08.8 clocking.

Marion Stanwood won the 200 free and Sharon Ross came in second. Jill McCann was second in the 50 free and the McClumphia sisters, Amy and Nadalie were second and third in diving. Lisa Lukens was injured in the competition.

The Schmidt sisters, Ilona and Suzanne were second and third in the 100 fly, while Cabados and Laura Perpich were first and third in the 100 breast.

Sue Stanwood and Ross placed first and second in the 500 free.

Salem is favored in this weekend's John Glenn Relays and will resume dual meet action next Thursday at Redford Union in Suburban Eight League.

Plymouth Canton was idle Tuesday night but resumes action tonight at home against Farmington Harrison beginning at 7 p.m.

In The Pocket.

By W.W. EDGAR

Something strange is happening along the bowling front these days and bowlers and proprietors alike are puzzled.

It is all because scores have taken a sudden drop—and there is no definite reason.

The latest case is at Westland Bowl, once a real high-scoring house, which has hit the bottom in the recording of tumbling pins. The bottom came this week when the top score in the senior house league was a "resounding" 602.

"This is one of the lowest scorws we ever have had in our top league," the Westland managers claimed, "and we just can't explain it."

Earlier in the season, the same reaction came at Wonderland Lanes, another high-scoring establishment. The bowlers, who had been accustomed to high scores, just couldn't get going and it was a month before a 700 series was recorded. Last year, breaking the 700 barrier was almost a weekly occurance.

MUCH THE SAME fate is befalling the all-star leagues. Last year the All-Stars were having a picnic at Orchard Lanes and the Bonanza Classic was one of the highest scoring leagues in the country. This year the trend has reversed. One of the puzzles is the fact that the same bowlers who are having a hard time there are doing well at Thunderbowl.

Many bowlers claim it is the lane dressing that is being used. Others claim the new ABC rule which demands spreading the lane finish from gutter to gutter has brought about the change.

But, so far, no one has put the finger on the real reason for the decline.

DOREEN LEVACK turned in the split of the week at Country Lanes. Bowling in the Greenfield Mixed League at Country Lanes she knocked over the 6-7-10 split to get her name on the honor roll.

ONE OF THE features of the week at Farmington Lanes was the showing of a 12-year-old, Berry Van Dyke. Teaming with his parent in the parent-youth league he registered a 232 game in a 512 series.

Among the other good showings was that of Myrna Hille in the Thursday Classic, where she set the pace with a 636, while Dottie Romecki had a high game of 240 in a 583 count.

In the mixed classic, it was Carl Kropp who led the parade with a 236 game in a 628 for high game and series.

IT DOESN'T happen very often, but they had a tie game in the ladies classic at Livonia Lanes. It came about when Georgina Kerwin registered a 153-46—199 and Betty Marquard matched it with a 167-32—199.

Lois Merriman followed this pair by taking the second game with a 204-22—226, but they all gave way to Dee Briggs for top honors. Dee fashioned a closing game of 217-33 for 250 and a 504-99 for a 603 to win the series.

RICK FISHAW used games of 229 and 205 on his way to a 612 series to top the list at Plaza Bowl, while Jan Shereda paced the coffee and donuts league at Westland with a 233 in 613.

In the B and C divisions, Marion Sexton topped the former with a 210 in 555 and Muns had a 212 in the C group.

THE CLASSIC scores at Garden Lanes were below their usual standard. Bill Montgomerty topped the field with a 632 to lead Roger Thorpe by 19 pins while Leo Benclenicz was third with 613 and Al Massacar landed fourth with 602.

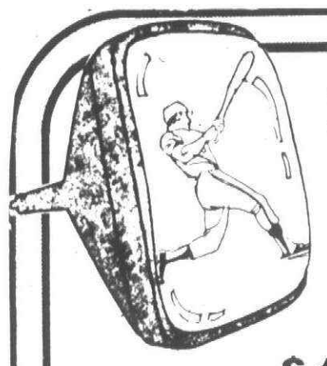

In the Vinco League, Syl Massetti was high with 620. Others who bettered double century figures included Cass Pachota 614, Conrad Podulka 613, Jerry Snapp 611, Walter Wolfe 604 and Ben Cien 603.

Mady Laskey was high in the ladies classic with a 650, but one of the best showings was that of Cathy Luptowski in the St. Raphael League. Carrying a 128 average, she posted a 511.

Touch football playoffs

Semifinal action in the Plymouth men's touch football league season-ending playoffs occurred last weekend.

Ex Post Facto tangled with the Stoners in the first game. Facto won 21-7.

Facto scored midway in the first quarter when Kurt Yockey hit Keith Yeager for a touchdown from seven yards out. In the second quarter, Doug Thompson hauled in a 21-yard Yockey aerial for another score and a 14-0 lead.

On the last play of the first half, Stoners' Larry Gates threw a long pass up for grabs, and teammate Mark Johnson caught the ball and took it into the end zone for a 57-yard score.

A sustained drive by Facto in the third quarter resulted in the final score of the game. Yockey capped the drive with a quarterback keeper from eight yards out.

In the second matchup, regular season and City of Plymouth champions, Realty World, beat Vettese Builders, 13-0.

After a scoreless first quarter, Realty World struck when Gary Knapp combined with DEnnis Finfrock for a 56-yard touchdown.

Through three quarters, Realty held that 7-0 lead.

Finally in the fourth period, Knapp found Blevins in the corner of the end zone for a 22-yard score.

Rock frosh, Pioneer win

The Pierce romp included four touchdown and two extra point runs by Craig Stack. He totaled 193 yards on the ground in that game.

Other scoring in that game included touchdowns by Doug Welton, Greg Lipka and Phil Anderson. Jeff Spencer scored an extra point.

Salem swimmers favored in relays

Five area teams—including defending co-champions Plymouth Salem and Westland John Glenn—will be among the 12 girls' swimming squads competing this weekend at the Western Wayne Relays.

The two-day meet begins at 6 p.m. tomorrow with preliminaries in the 500-yard freestyle and the diving relays. All other preliminaries will be conducted 10 a.m. Saturday, with finals in all events slated for 4 p.m. Saturday.

The relays will be contested at Glenn, which is located on Marquette west of Middle Belt.

In addition to the co-champs, other area teams expected to compete are Plymouth Canton, Livonia Churchill and Livonia Franklin.

Rounding out the field are Belleville, Wayne, Taylor Center, Taylor Truman, Taylor Kennedy and Willow Run.

Glenn coach Jean Garbus indicated that the favorites appear to be Plymouth Salem and Canton, with Truman, Churchill and the Rockets as outside threats.

Medals will be given to the first six finishers in each event and ribbons will be presented to those placing seventh through 12th.

Championship and runner-up trophies will be presented to the top two teams.

Tickets for the finals, at $1 for adults and 75 cents for students, will be available at the door. There is no charge for the preliminaries.

Chief netters finish last

The rough season for the young Plymouth Canton girls tennis team finally came to an end last week with the Western Six League competition held at Plymouth.

The Chiefs, winners of only one dual meet all season, were shutout in the conference competition, finishing last with no points. Farmington Harrison won the league crown.

Varsity letter winners for this year's Canton squad included singles players Mary Riffe, Glenda Carney, Teresa Washburn and Stacy Williams.

Mindy Starkey, Kathy Kidston, Claudia Williams and Chris Staylionu were the doubles varsity letter winners.

Junior varsity netters included Sue Kidston, Pam Drayton, Debbie Oakley, Janet Roberts, Char Oberstadt and Maria Schambry.

The Most Valuable Player on this year's squad was senior Teresa Washburn. Most Improved Player was freshman Kathy Kidston, while the spirit award went to Glenda Carney.

Jr. grid finale at Brighton

The fourth-annual Vince Lombardi Junior Football Championship Games will be held at Brighton's Sloan Field next Sunday.

These top-notch contest will match the two division winners for the championship of its level.

The Ann Arbor Packers and the Allen Park Bulldogs clash in the freshman contest beginning at 1 p.m. The Ann Arbor Wolverines and the Allen Park Bulldogs meet in the junior varsity game starting at 2:15 p.m. The finale features the Ann Arbor Wolverines varsity against the Ann Arbor Rams at 4:15 p.m.

A cheerleading competition will also be held during the games, featuring cheerleaders from all the league teams.

Proceeds from these championship games will be donated to the Special Olympics.

Last season, Plymouth's Centennial Educational Park field was the host of the championship battles.

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Will someone PLEASE solve the problem of the Plymouth Salem High School gymnasium floor once and for all?

There have been many instances in the past two years when I've felt like talking about the everlasting problem of this Tartan surface bubbling up.

Ever since Salem High opened its doors five or six years ago, the problem of the bumps forming on this surface have existed.

But I've always hestitated to comment about this problem in hopes that something would be done about it. I was wrong.

What happened two weeks ago was the last straw. A member of the Plymouth Salem junior varsity girls basketball team tripped and fell on one of these bubbles during practice. The result was torn ligaments in her ankles.. nd she was forced to wear crutches.

The bumps on the floor are apparently caused by moisture seeping from the underground, penetrating through the surface and causing the floor to bubble.

At first I was upset with the bubbling because of the outward appearance it gave to the school.

Visiting basketball teams would come to play games, and would also have to dodge these spots because the ball won't dribble properly when it hit a bubble.

It gave Plymouth the appearance of cheapness, rather than innovativeness in providing a new and different surface for opponents to play on.

But now let's make outward appearance a secondary reason for fixing the surface.

Let's look seriously at the injury it caused two weeks ago and the potential injuries it holds for all students who participate in gym classes.

Bubbling gym floor is a student hazard

The floor was repaired a couple of years ago after the first crop of bubbles came up. Sometime later the bubbles reappeared, and several minor repairs were made.

The floor hasn't been repaired for the last two years, and the bubbles continue to grow and are a hazzard to everyone.

The company which installed the floor refuses to come back and repair the surface again, and a lawsuit is developing over this matter.

After numerous letters by athletic director John Sandmann and Salem principal Bill Brown, requesting that something be done to fix the floor, the school maintainence department will finally be trained to fix the spots during Thansgiving break.

My question is—why wasn't all of this taken care of last summer when the kids were on vacation? Or better yet, why wasn't this taken care of two summers ago?

It also grinds me that the floor is finally being fixed in the early part of the boys basketball season when the girls have played on it all season long and gym classes have been held on it for the past two months.

And what is the guarantee after it's fixed that it won't bubble up again—like the two previous times?

I like the Tartan surface. It's a unique part of the school's basketball and gymnasium programs.

But if this surface isn't going to lie properly and if its too expensive to lay down another Tartan surface, then its time to go back to old-fashioned wood.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES:

I have no idea how to pick the point spread of the Salem-Allen Park game. The Rocks are three of four touchdowns better than the Jaguars but an expected letdown is bound to occur after the emotional loss to Dearborn last Friday. Salem by 12.

Garden City East will easily revenge last season's embarassment Plymouth Canton handed them one year ago. No upset this time. Garden City East by 16.

"We get five or six calls daily inquiring about information in our leasing ad."

We're firm believers in the Yellow Pages. They work hard for us 24 hours a day, 365 days per year, and you can't beat that for advertising efficiency."
—Duane E. MacLeod, Fred Drendall Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., Oakland Ave., Pontiac.

Other Yellow Pages Advertisers are getting these results:

"Well over 50% of our inquiries are the result of our Yellow Pages advertising.
We have advertised with a sizeable display ad in the East and North Woodward area Yellow Pages directories for so many years because we believe the Yellow Pages is the best source of advertising there is. It's the first place people look."—Terry W. Griffin, Timberland Hall, Dequindre Rd., Madison Heights.

"Our family has been in the Yellow Pages continuously for more than 50 years.
We've expanded our jewelry firm to three locations from the original one we had when my dad started the business so many years ago. Since then the Yellow Pages has brought us a lot of customers and has paid for our advertising many times over."
—Stuart A. Green, M. L. Green and Son, N. Gratiot, Mt. Clemens.

"We keep tabs on the phone inquiries we receive. Over 35% come directly from our Yellow Pages advertising.
Since we began, we have increased the size of our Yellow Pages display ad from a quarter-column to a quarter page. Because time and experience have proven to us the value of Yellow Pages advertising, we wouldn't be without it."—Mrs. Shirley Gray, The Rivergate Terrace, Pennsylvania Rd., Riverview.

ences themselves. However, if they can't agree, the buyer can pay a $25 refundable deposit and request conciliation. The Local HOW council, which administers the program, appoints a neutral person to look into the problem and attempt to clarify the issues so that the parties themselves can reach a mutually-acceptable agreement. If HOW's conciliation process does not end in a mutually-satisfactory way, either the builder or the buyer can request arbitration through the American Arbitration Association.

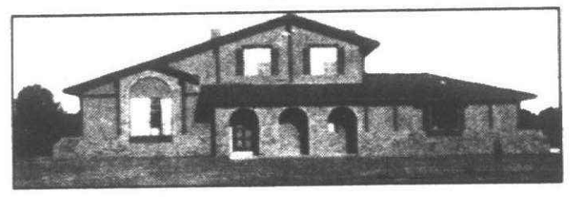

The HOW progam has been in operation for a little more than one year. Already 39,000 houses are enrolled in the program and 57 local and state HOW councils have been licensed by the national corporation to administer the plan. Since these councils cover whole states in a number of instances, the program is actually available in a fair percentage of the country.

During this first year, the program has expanded to include high-rise condominiums. Essentially, coverage on condos is the same as single-family homes. The only difference is in the major structural insurance which runs from the third through the tenth years after a home is enrolled. In the case of condominiums, the 10-year timing for the major structural coverage on the elements in a condominium building begins at the time when the first unit within a building is sold.

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Carla Hills has said of the program, "Your plan (HOW) teaches an important lesson regarding the capacity of private industry to respond in a creative way to consumers' needs without government intervention. That is the genius of the free enterprise system."

Savings and loan institutions have supported HOW in Florida, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Oregon by offering preferential interest rates for HOW home buyer loans or HOW builder construction loans.

BUILDER INTRODUCES NEW CONDO LOOK!

New hillside homes at Lexington Condos in Northville.

Four unusual Condominium homes are available for four very special families at Lexington Condos in Northville.

Nosan Building Corporation, builders of Lexington, haven't really changed the floor plans. When you've got a winner, you don't fool with it! But because of a unique hillside setting, the outside appearance of the homes has been changed a bit. The garages have been tucked back under the homes, creating an enormous 21'x23' two car garage with a private entry into the basement of the home—ideal for the home hobbyist. The front porch has been expanded to 12'x12' (almost a patio) and the foyer entry has been enlarged and lightened. Also, provision has been made for a full bath in the basement, making this area easily adaptable as a teenager's getaway "apartment."

The total effect is Sophisticated California Contemporary—reminiscent of San Francisco's Lombard Street only done in earth tones. Because settings like this one are uncommon, this is a limited edition offering.

The new two and three bedroom hillside homes range in price from $49,000 to $55,000. A three bedroom Carleton at 1,800 plus square feet is finished out as a temporary model and ready for viewing this weekend. Other homes are available for 30-45 day occupancy.

Lexington Condo Homes is located on 8 Mile Road one mile west of Sheldon Road (Center Street) in the City of Northville. Sales Office and Models are open after 1:00 p.m. everyday except Thursday. For further information, please call 349-6350.

stacles such as furniture, drapes or pictures in front of heating units or registers block path of hot air and reduce efficiency of heating system.

HUMIDITY LEVEL—A properly humidified home is as comfortable at 68 degrees as a dry one at 72 degrees because our bodies retain heat in high humidity. Dry air, on the other hand, absorbs moisture from skin at a rapid rate and produces a chilling effect which can only be offset by increasing air temperature. Thus a humidifier is a wise investment because you can reduce the house temperature and save energy. A pan of water strategically located near a heating outlet will moisturize the air if a humidifier is not available. House plants also give off moisture.

FIREPLACES—Fireplaces as a heating source are very deceptive. A large flow of air is generated through the hearth and up the chimney by a burning fire. Much of this air already has been heated by the furnace, which means that although the fireplace is heating the immediate air, it is also cooling the rest of the house by expelling warm air up the chimney. This energy loss can be reduced by lowering the thermostat and closing doors to the rest of the house while the fireplace is in use.

FIREPLACE DAMPER—Close the fireplace damper when not in use. If the damper is left open, a good deal of hot air escapes up the chimney and your heating system is forced to work overtime.

HOT WATER HEATER—The hot water heater is the second largest user of energy in the home. It should be sized to meet needs. Maintaining too much hot water wastes energy. Insulating hot water pipes from the source to the point of use will decrease energy loss. Set your hot water thermostat no higher than 140 degrees. When away from home for extended periods, the water heater should be turned down or off. If the gas pilot light is turned off, it should be done according to the manufacturer's instructions.

WINDOW SHADES—Closed drapes, blinds and shades over large glass areas can reduce heat loss through windows during winter. On sunny winter days, however, drapes, blinds and shades should be opened to let the sun warm the house. Draperies should be insulated or lined.

WEATHERSTRIPPING—Cracks can form around a window and door frames and where wood meets metal or masonry. Air leakage creates cold drafts. A standard exterior door which has a ¼ inch crack around it loses heat through a total area of 30 dquare inches. This is equivalent to having a 5½-inch by 5½-inch hole in your wall. Keep weather stripping and caulking around windows and doors in good repair to reduce air leakage.

STORM WINDOWS—Heat loss through doors and windows can be cut by more that 50 per cent through installation of storm doors and windows.

Buy or rent

real estate taxes and mortgage interest payments, which amount to about 90 per cent of the monthly mortgage payment for the first five years, from state and federal taxes. This results in a substantial savings for homeowners.

Renters, on the other hand, help pay the costs of taxes and mortgage interest in their monthly rental payments but it is the landlord that gets the tax deductions.

Finally, the options in the rental market are dwindling. And rents will be going up. The shortage of modestly priced rental units is expected to affect many metropolitan areas later this year because of the multi-family housing construction slump of the past two years. In addition, many modestly priced units will be filled by low and moderate income families receiving assistance under the government's new Section 8 leased housing program. That means there will be even fewer rental units available for middle income persons.

Condo boom is music to house hunters

Despite the housing slump of the past two years in which the condominium market was particularly hard hit, condominiums are expected to take over a greater proportion of the housing market in the years ahead in rapidly expanding metropolitan areas.

A recent study by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) showed that more than 85 per cent of the nation's 1.69 million condominium units were built since 1970. In 1973 and 1974 alone, condominiums accounted for 25 per cent of the new for-sale housing starts in the U.S.

The condo boom, the HUD report said, can be attributed to many factors. One of the main attractions is a lower price that has brought the possibility of home ownership within reach of a wider segment of the population. In 1974, 40 per cent of the condominium units were priced between $20,000 and $30,000. Only 28 per cent of the single family homes fell into that category.

HUD Secretary Carla Hills, in testimony before a Senate hearing on condominiums, also pointed out a number of other advantages.

"In addition to the economic advantages of home ownership, including tax benefits and the opportunity for equity appreciation, a greater number of condominiums provide amenities such as swimming pools, tennis courts, and other recreational facil-

VA loans liberalized

A new law liberalizes the home loan benefits available to veterans through the Veterans Administration.

Before the law was passed, veterans serving between July 25, 1947 and June 27, 1950 were ineligible for a VA home loan guarantee. Now, the program has been extended to include all veterans who have served at least 180 days on active service since 1944.

The maximum mortgage for VA direct loans has gone from $21,000 to $33,000. Direct loans are available primarily in small communities and rural areas where private mortgage money is unavailable.

Another benefit of the new law is an increase in VA guarantees for mobile homes, going from 30 to 50 per cent of the loan principal. In addition, references to the sex of various parties to a VA loan transaction have been eliminated.

WHAT EXACTLY does the VA do for the home buying veteran?

The VA guarantees part of the loan. The maximum amount the VA now will guarantee is $17,500.

Veterans who previously have used their guarantee entitlement may have an additional

Age gap eliminated

The National Association of Realtors has hailed the experimental graduated mortgage payment plan announced recently by Carla A. Hills, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). A HUD spokesman said that under current law the agency will be able to insure about 3,000 graduated payment mortgages over the next 12 months.

The support was voiced by Philip C. Smaby, association president, who said, "The plan announced by HUD is a positive step toward benefiting young families and first-time home buyers who cannot now afford housing because of high mortgage payments."

He added that the nation's 500,000 realtors stand ready to help familiarize the public with the advantages of the new plan, especially in areas where HUD offices are not located.

On Nov.1, HUD will begin processing applications under its new mortgage plan which would permit lower initial mortgage payments on FHA insured mortgages.

Young couples who presently would have trouble meeting monthly mortgage payments under present level payment schedules will have five payment plans to choose from, each providing lower payments mate your monthly payment for a particular home? Again, a rule of thumb: Your monthly payment for principal and interest will be about $8 for every $1,000 borrowed. For example, the monthly payment for a nine per cent, 30-year, $48,000 loan would be about 48 x $8, or $384. (Actual amount is $386.22). Add this to an estimate of monthly taxes.

How much house to buy?

● How can you estimate what the taxes will be on a new home? Property taxes are equal to the millage rate times assessed valuation. Rates vary from area to area, but average about $55 to $60 per $1,000 assesed valuattion for Detroit area suburbs. Assessed valuation, while theoretically 50 per cent of the value of the property, generally averages about 45 per cent of the sale price of a new home.

Thus, a new $60,000 house in Troy will have an assessed value of about $27,000; since Troy's tax rate is about $58 per $1,000 valuation, the taxes will be about $58 x 27, or $1,566 per year. This breaks down to a monthly figure of $130.50. If you know where you plan to buy, call the assessor's office and ask them for their estimate.

● Should you stretch to buy the biggest home you can afford? Or, should you stay conservative? You should probably stay conservative if your future income is fixed, unknown, or subject to large fluctuations, such as persons existing on straight commissions. But, if you have a reasonable expectation that your real income will remain steady or increase in the future, you are probably better off stretching right up to your limit.

The monthly payment that looks so large to you now, will not increase nearly as fast as inflation, and money used as a down payment on a thoughtfully purchased home in a good location, will show a far better net return on investment than in a time savings account.

Remember, you don't make many house purchases in a lifetime; if you buy less of a home than you are qualified to buy now, you may be sorry later.

Age gap eliminated

in earlier years. Payments would increase gradually yearly for five or 10 years, depending on what variation of the plan is selected, then level off for the remainder of the life of the loan.

Assuming a 30-year, $35,000 loan at 8.5 per cent interest, the monthly payment for the first year would be $223. This would be under a variation of the plan calling for a three per cent annual increase in payments for 10 years. The first-year monthly payment would be $46 less than the payment made on a loan requiring the same monthly payment for the duration of the loan.

The monthly payment would increase three per cent to $230 the second and three per cent each succeeding year through the 10th year. In the 11th year, the monthly payment would level off at $300.

Estate taxes can be cut

Death and taxes, said Benjamin Franklin, are the only things in this world that are certain. There is no escape from either, but in the death of one marriage partner, there may be a way for the surviving home-owning spouse to save on taxes on the value of that home.

There is, of course, another consideration when one marriage partner dies: The home should pass speedily to the surviving partner without administrative red tape or cost.

Let's look at three types of home ownership to determine in general the advantages and disadvantages of each:

SOLE OWNERSHIP of the home by one marriage partner should the marriage partner who does not own the home die first, obviously, there would be no administrative red tape or tax problem involving the home.

However, red tape, administrative costs, and taxes prove a problem when the home's owner dies first. Establishing ownership would take time, preventing the surviving partner from selling, renting or mortgaging the home.

JOINT TENANCY Under this form of ownership, administrative red tape and the accompanying delay in establishing ownership virtually would be eliminated. The surviving partner receives title automatically upon the death of the spouse.

However, there are disadvantages. In joint tenancy, the amount of equity built up in the home is added to the gross estate of the first to die, statistically usually the husband whose estate might already be large.

The federal estate tax then is applied to that gross estate. The same tax also is applied to the estate upon death of the other marriage partner.

TENANCY IN COMMON As tenants in common, the advantage of minimum red tape in establishing ownership still applies. There also could be a considerable tax saving over joint tenancy, especially if the couple has owned the home for many years and has built up a great deal of equity. For example, let's say the husband, who often is the sole contributor in the purchase of the home, makes a gift of one-half the ownership to his wife. No gift tax would apply if no previous gifts were made and equity in the home did not exceed $132,000.

This procedure would remove half of the home's equity from the husband's gross estate. Assuming he dies first, the value of his estate would be reduced by the amount of equity now owned by his wife. The tax on his estate would be less, possibly several thousand dollars less.

When the wife dies, the estate pays on her gross estate, including the full amount of the equity. The only added cost in tenancy in common would be charges in each estate attributable to inclusion of the home in the probate estate, an amount usually much less that the estate tax that would be imposed under joint tenancy.

Our Potomac Towne residents speak for themselves. Here are just a few quotes from the people who have experienced living in this community. With residents like this, we don't have to brag. We'll let them do it for us.

"I don't mean this snobbishly, but the appearance of Potomac Towne is really upper class. And so are the residents. We all have a lot in common, so community activities are events we look forward to. The Club House and the amenities are like a country club."
Potomac Towne Resident

"After visiting eight to ten communities, we found Potomac Towne gave us our true dollar's worth. Our comparison shopping proved Potomac Towne condominiums were better built, better located, and better value. We found it was the only community that catered to family living . . . not just the older or just single people . . . but a place for a family. You put your dollars down and get a lot out."
Potomac Towne Resident

"The appearance of Potomac Towne really appeals to us. There are lots of green areas, ponds and streams . . . and don't forget our duck families. All of the grounds are very well maintained, and I don't have to worry about it."
Potomac Towne Resident

"We came from a large apartment. We almost doubled our livable area when we moved to Potomac Towne . . . but we didn't double our monthly outlay. In fact, if we considered the tax benefits, our monthly expenditure is about the same . . . with twice the room."
Potomac Towne Resident

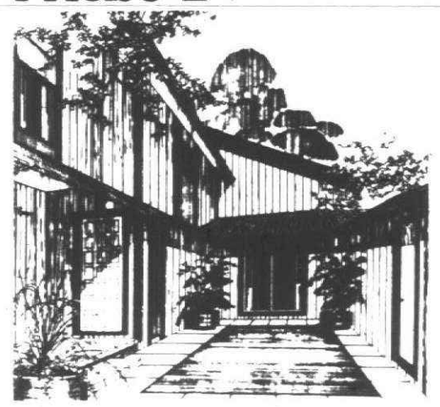

"Potomac Towne is a whole new adventure for us. We moved from a large home, and were skeptical that we could find a condominium large enough. But we now have larger living areas than we had in our home, in the areas that count. I have no worries about a gardener, sprinkling the lawn or snow shoveling."
Potomac Towne Resident

"We feel a sense of security with our condominium . . . more than we did with a private home. We can take our vacations without worrying, and with neighbors on either side . . . we feel safe."
Potomac Towne Resident

"Acoustics and sound conditioning are excellent. We have privacy and quiet living."
Potomac Towne Resident

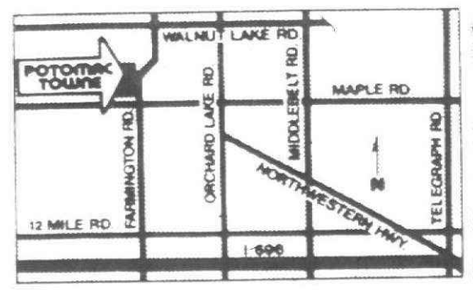

"I was sitting outside one day, shortly after moving to Potomac Towne and smelled something peculiar. It was fresh air! There's no pollution here. Hate to leave in the morning and can't wait to get home at night. It's real country suburban living. Nice, nice neighbors."

Used condos sell as well as houses

A two-story conservatory is a feature of this condominium in the Rochester area. This is an optional feature of the Jamestown model in the Georgetown Commons development. Sites offered by Crawford, Etter and Bruce are near a 10-acre wooded site. Prices start at $66,900.

One of the biggest questions confronting Michigan home builders is finally resolving itself. What happens when you decide to resell your condominium home?

Until just recently there was no way to answer that question. The condominium segment of the housing industry in Michigan was, and is still, relatively new. Apart from the conversions (former apartment dwellings which were the first to meet the legal requirements and were sold as condominiums in the mid to late 1960s), new construction condominiums for sale didn't really come into their own until the very late 60s and the early1970s. These original owner communities are just now reaching a sufficient state of maturity that normal attrition is beginning to take place.

According to Kate Seymour, manager of the condominium division of the Farmington-based Thompson-Brown Realty Co., condominiums are showing clear and indisputable evidence of re-selling on a par with comparable single-family-detached residences in the same area- both in terms of appreciation in value and in length of time on the market. That, said Ms. Seymour, is a very encouraging sign and a positive relief to a good number of people: to those who have devoted their time, energy and money to the development, construction and sales of condominiums; to those who have exprerssed a concerned interest in purchasing a condo; and, most importantly, to those pioneers who defied the doomsayers, bought a condo two or three or more years ago, and now find that they may have to resell and resettle elsewhere.

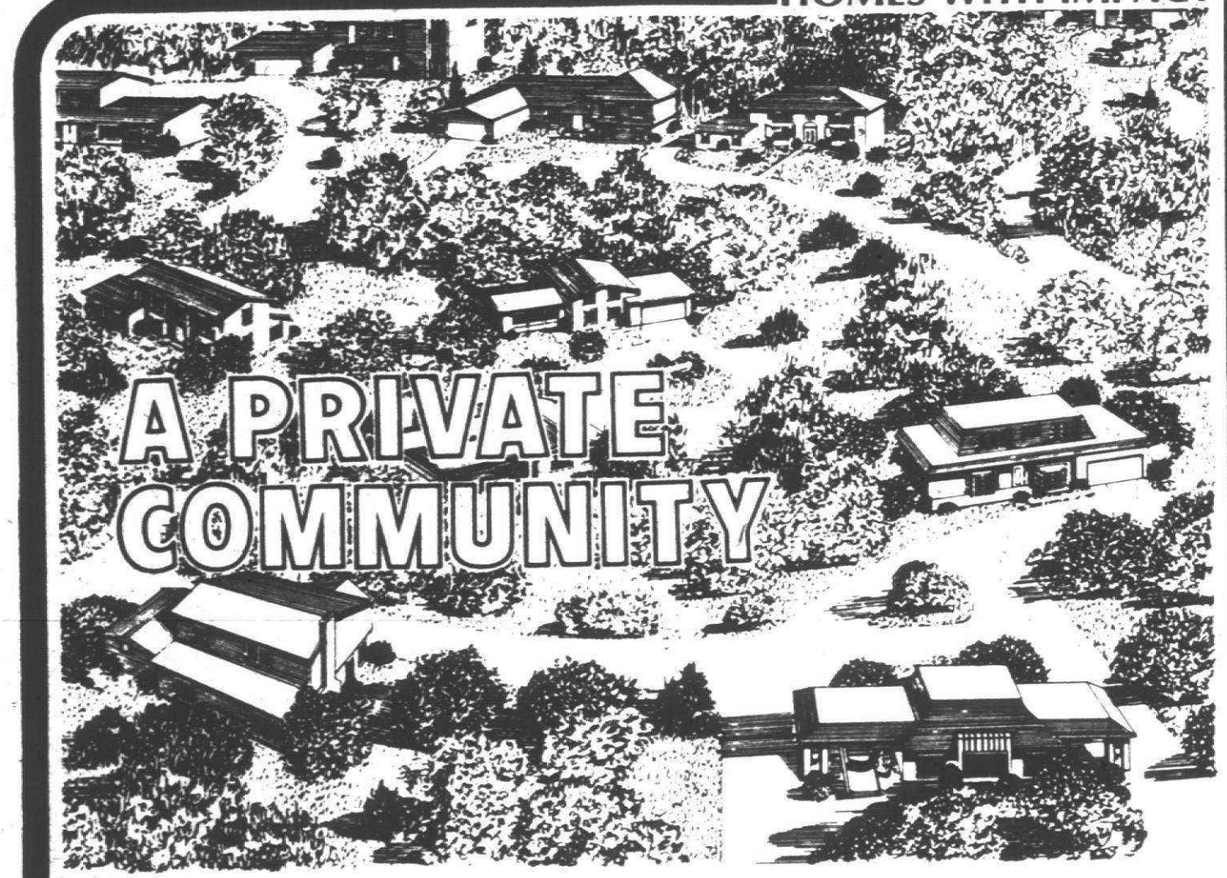

"All indications are that condomonium reslaes, in general, are good and getting better. Realtor acceptance is growing, and public confidence in this old-new form of home ownership is showing," she said.

The lady should know whereof she speaks. In addition to having been invloved either directly or indirectly in the sale of more than 150 new and used condominiums during the past three years with Thompson-Brown, she also serves on the board of directors of two condominium homeowners associations, is a member of the public relations arm of the condominium committee of the Builders Association, a member of the education committee of the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors and is in close communication with several builder-developers, condominium sales agents and residential real estate salepeople who are getting more and more involved in selling condos.

While Ms. Seymour clearly stated that she only speaks with "authority" regarding the condominium communities under herdirect supervision, she recited the story of one real estatebroker in West Bloomfield who keeps a waiting list of prospective buyers fro two extremely popular communities in that area, the story of another who went into business for

Women protected by new credit law

With an increasing number of women purchasing their own homes, women should be aware of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975.

The act not only bans much of the traditional discrimination against women seeking credit but forces lending institutions to consider a couple's joint income when aplying for a loan.

Some of the provisions included in the act are:

Lenders cannot deny a mortgage to a single woman simply because she is unmarried, nor can they discount a wife's income when a couple applies for a mortgage.

- The creditor may ask if you are married, single or separated; the creditor may not ask if you are divorced or widowed.
- Alimony and child suport may qualify as income for credit but if you depend on these forms of income as the basis for your creditworthiness, you can be expected to prove the reliability of the income. Reliability is measured by length of time money has been received, if it is received under a court order and the regularity of receipt.
- Part-time income must be considered on the merits of duration, permanence and stability.
- If your prior credit was based solely on the earnings of a former spouse, a creditor can require re-application to establish present creditworthiness.
- Creditors may not ask about birth control practices, but they may ask about continued probability to repay.
- A woman cannot be penalized because of a husband or ex-husband's poor credit rating unless she has co-signed his debts.
- By June 1, 1977 all accounts for which both husband and wife are liable but which are currently listed in the husband's name, must be given separate listings under both names.

If you are refused credit, you are entitled to know the reason for the denial. If the denial was based on a poor credit rating, ask for the name of the agency who supplied the report. The credit reporting agency must then open your file free of charge.

TRW Credit Data is the credit reporting agency most widely used in the Detroit area.

If you feel you have a complaint to register about credit discrimination, contact the appropriate governmental regulating agency.

Builder favors buyer participation

Doing it yourself can save up to $4,000 or $5,000 on a home like this offered by Karp Homes.

If you like the idea of putting a bit of "sweat equity" into your new home, Sam Karp would like you for a customer.

Karp is saving his customers up to $4,000 or $5,000 on constuction costs of a $70,000 home-when they do their own painting, finish carpentry, laying floor coverings and hanging doors.

A former Israeli paratrooper, Karp has been building homes, with his customers' help, for the past several years. Most of his work is with 50 miles of Detroit, but he's recently added a new division which will build anywhere in the state.

His outstate homes offer the do-it yourselfer an even bigger break—Karp builds the shell and you build the rest.

The company has a construction superintendent, Karp says, who visits the houses where the owners are doing the finish work themselves. "He gives them advice, shows them what they are doing wrong, and generally tries to keep them out of trouble," Karp said. The firm also supplies interim financing, since most mortgage companies are reluctant to lend money on an unfinished house. When the house is completed, a regular mortgage is obtained.

Karp's custom homes start from about $25,000 for buyers with their own lots. He also has a development, Lakewood Estates, on Middle Straits Lake, near Commerce.

One model is built, a four-bedroom colonial with 2½ baths, a barbecue grill in the kitchen, a family room with a fireplace and a main-floor laundry room. A 22-by-22 garage with a door is standard. The house is priced at about $60,000, plus about $20,000 for the lot.

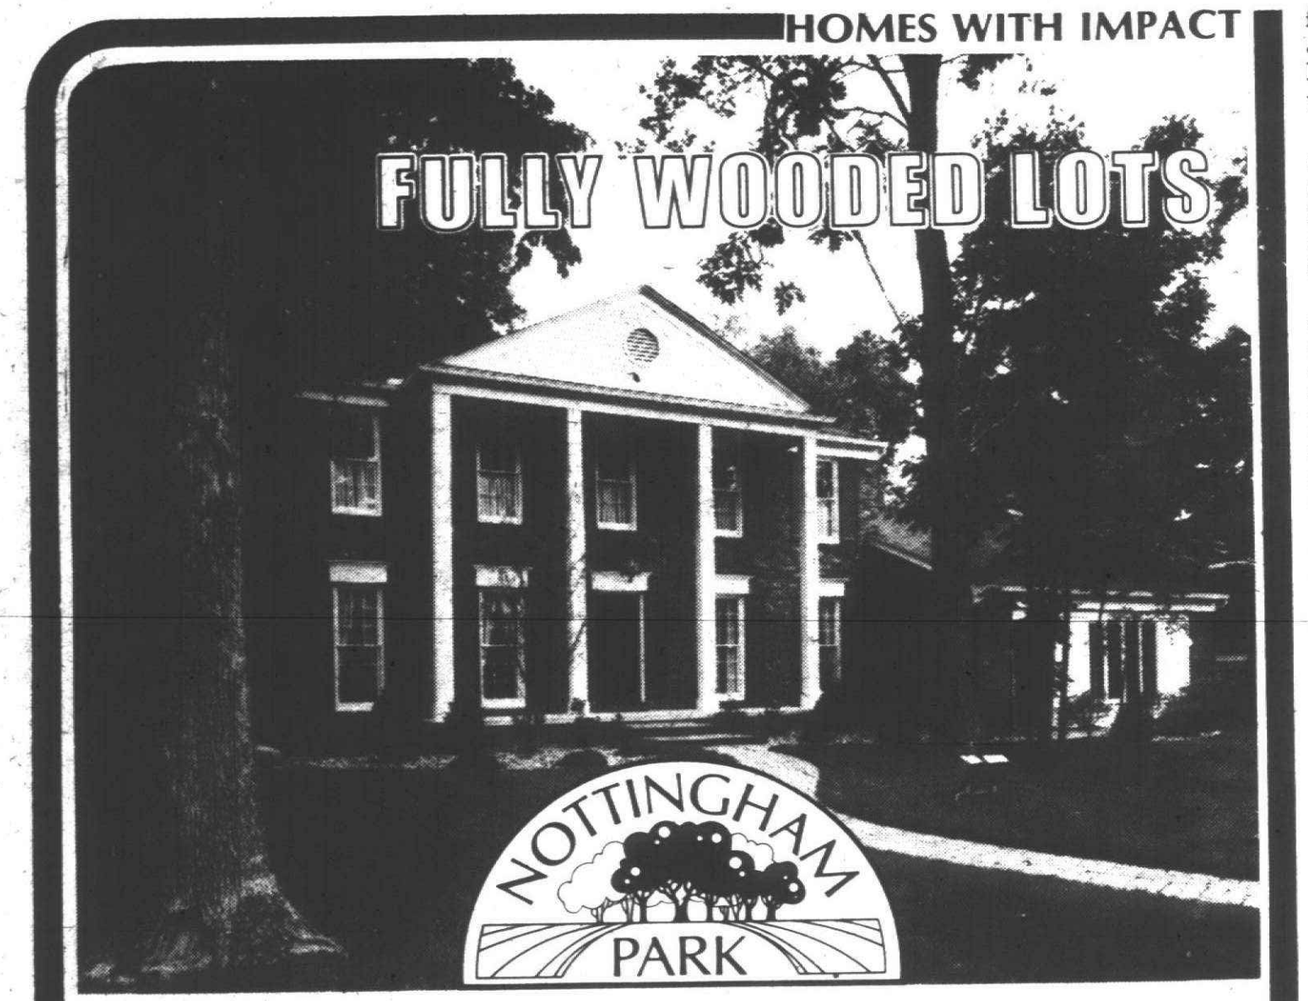

Prospective buyers have a choice of 54 house plans, some designed by Herman York of New York. Karp will build with any of these plans, or start with the basic designs and customize.

The company built 40 homes last year and expects to complete 75 this year.

The Lakewood Estates development is built near the 35-year-old West Acres Subdivision. The old subdivision was built with funds from ther late Sen. James Couzens and the federal government to demonstrate that low-cost housing could be attractive when built on large lots where the land was inexpensive.

All the homes built at that time were all two-story designs with concrete block first floors and frame construction on the second floors.

Detectors sniff fires

Underwriters Laboratories (UL), an independent, non-profit organization testing for public safety, believes that the installation of fire detectors in your home is a good investment. The following suggestions may help you in selecting and maintaining the proper fire detection equipment for your home.

There are two types of fire detectors that are available for use in the home: heat detectors and smoke detectors.

Heat detectors sense the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere, the rate at which the temperature is rising, or both. In short, they are designed to detect flaming fires.

Smoke detectors are, as their name indicates, designed to sense the presence of smoke particles in the atmosphere. A smoke detector is particularly effective in detecting smouldering fires in their early stages. In these situations, smoke often develops before there is any appreciable increase in temperature. Smoke is a major cause of death by suffocation. For these reasons smoke detectors are considered particularly effective for home use.

A basic smoke detector (indicated by cross) should be located between the sleeping area and the rest of the house (top). In homes with more than one sleeping area, a smoke detector should be provided to protect each (bottom). A detector should also be located at the head of the basement stairs.

When an abnormal quantity of smoke is sensed, a UL listed smoke detector will emit an audible alarm. This is an important feature, when considering that a significant percentage of residential dwelling fire victims are asleep when fires originate.

THOMPSON BROWN

Here's HOW to protect new house

Through its HOW program, the housing industry is responding to increased public demand for consumer protection in the housing market.

HOW stands for Home Owners Warranty Program. It was created as a subsidiary of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), Washington, D.C.. NAHB developed HOW in 1973, basing it on a successful home warranty plan operating in Great Britain.

The HOW program provides 10-year protection on new homes through a builder warranty and national insurance coverage. Specifically, HOW builders warrant against major structural defects and against defects in workmanship and materials during the first year of coverage. During the second year, the warranty continues on major structural defects and on the piping, wiring and duct work systems.

The American Bankers Insurance Company of Florida backs the warranty with insurance coverage during these two years, if for any reason, the builder cannot meet his obligations. The insurance company provides the third through tenth year of coverage against major structural defects. The HOW home owner receives a consumer information booklet which completely explains the coverage in detailed but non-technical language. Another important aspect of HOW is that during the 10-year period the coverage is transferable to all new owners of the house.

HOW builders are carefully screened for technical competence, financial soundness and a history of good customer relations before being admitted into the program. Not only is a buyer of a HOW home assured of 10-year protection, but he knows that he is dealing with a builder who has met these important criteria.

A unique aspect of the program is its complaint-handling procedure. HOW has adopted conciliation and arbitration techniques to settle buyer builder disputes. This is a key benefit for the buyer as it affords a fair and speedy resolution of disagreements over what is or is not covered under HOW.

The system first calls for the builder and buyer to try resolving differ-

Buying best in bear market

Buy or rent? That's a front-burner question confronting many families today.

It's a decision that deserves some thoughtful consideration. After all, buying a home is probably the biggest investment a family will ever make.

Buying a new home, it has been said, is a wise decision any time. But professionals in the housing and real estate field will tell you that the best time to buy is during a bear market—when the demand is low and the supply of units is high, as it is today. That's when consumers can negotiate the best price.

All too often, potential consumers make mortgage interest rates the determining factor in their decision to buy a new home. Many delay a purchase of a new home in anticipation of a drop in interest rates. This is a costly mistake, Sylvia Porter, noted business columnist, said in a recent article. "Even if rates do decline modestly (and don't count on it) the decline almost surely will be offset by increases in the price of houses you wan to buy," she said.

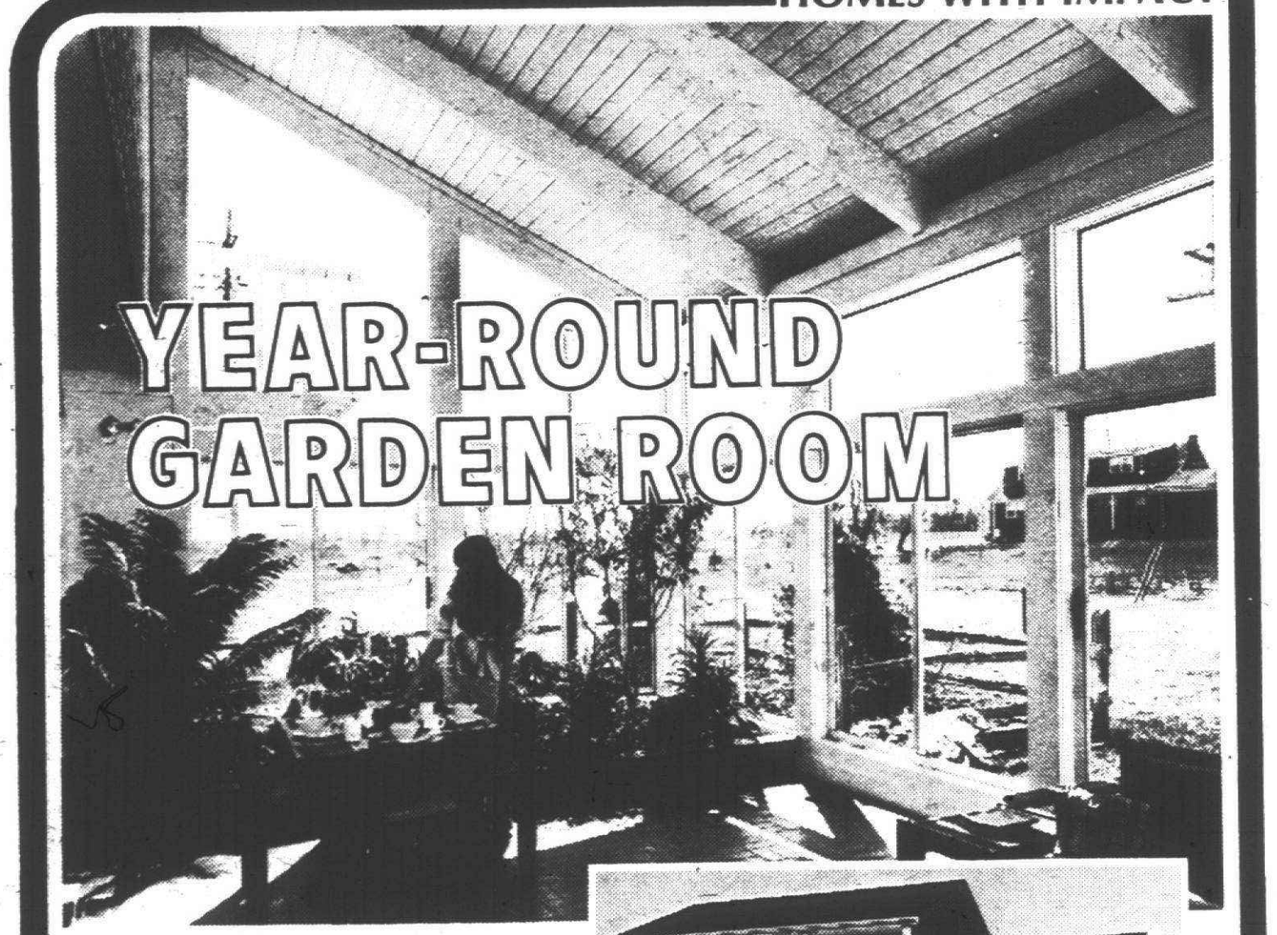

Nationally, the current mortgage market situation for homebuyers has improved compared to the previous three years. There's plenty of mortgage money available at savings and loan associations and other lending institutions. Mortgage interest rates have droped from their peak levels of 1974-75, but are not expected to decline substantially from current levels.

Buying a new home has also been described as an inflation-proof savings plan. Besides being a hedge against inflation, homeownership offers a consumer perhaps his only chance to acquire a large sum of capital over a period of years. "Suburban community houses have risen about 10 per cent in value each year during the past 10 years," which, Ms. Porter said, "beats the ace of inflation—and this is only one advantage of course."

Tax shelters are another advantage. Homeowners can deduct local

Condo boom is music to house hunters

ities which individual purchasers otherwise would be unable to afford," she said. "In addition, the condominium unit owner has fewer maintenance responsibilities than the owner of a conventional residence."

In short, a condominium buyer owns his individual apartment or townhouse but shares an undivided interest with other unit owners in common areas such as open space, elevators, hallways, parking and recreational facilities. In addition to his regular mortgage payment, the owner pays a monthly fee for current maintenance and eventual replacement of the common elements and recreational facilities. Each unit owner is a voting member of a condominium association. This non-profit organization is responsible for management of the development. Many associations hire a management firm to handle the day-to-day affairs.

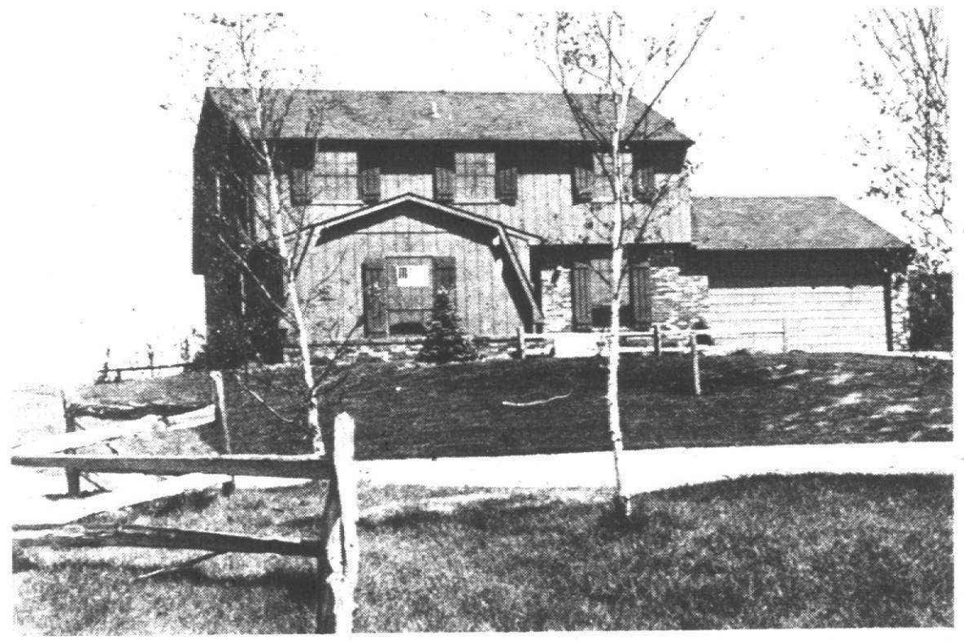

The HUD study showed that, outside of retirement and recreational areas, condominiums appeal primarily to two groups the "young marrieds," childless couples of 25-34, and "empty nesters," couples of 45-64 whose children are no longer living at home. The most recent census data and demographic trands show that these two population groups and small households in general will have a growing numerical significance in the next decade.

Another advantage of condominiums Secretary Hills said, is that they conserve land, reduce energy consumption and limit environmental damage because they are usually located at prime locations in or at the fringe of urban areas, closer to jobs, public facilities, shopping and other urban services.

Several factors will serve to promote future condominium development, the HUD report concluded. These include the scarcity of suitable land in major urban areas for traditional single-family housing; continuing affluence which will enable more people to purchase housing including condominiums; broader acceptance of the so-called condominium life style; increasing discretionary income that will stimulate the growth of second-home condos; and a second wave of state and local condominium statutes which eliminate potential abuses and increase buyer confidence.

In a HUD poll of 602 unit-owners in six different areas, 95 per cent of those queried replied that they were "satisfied" or "very satisfied" with their condominium units.

Although the condominium is still a relatively new phenomenon to hit the American housing scene, the HUD report concluded that "it is evident that condominiums have already taken over a dominant share of new for-sale housing in some areas

Beamed cathedral ceilings and a sunken living room are just two features of the Dunhill model offered by Winchester Development in Rochester Glen. The family room includes a fireplace and a wet bar. Prices start at $57,500 for houses in the development.

Smoke detectors

your smoke detectors could affect the overall sensitivity of the warning system. For effective protection, smoke detectors should at least be installed in each separate sleeping area and at the head of each basement stairway. This basic protection can then be supplemented by installing detectors in all other major areas of the home, including the living room, dining room, bedrooms, kitchen, hallways, attic, furnace room, utility rooms, basements, and attached garages for maximum protection.

It is crucial to maintain the detector unit in proper working order. You should heed the manufacturer's instructions concerning how and when to clean the unit. As an added safeguard, UL recommends that the detectors should be tested weekly.

Location top factor in condo resales herself and survived because she learned how to handle condominium resales and the growing tales of concern by developers of ongoing communities that resales within their own developments are fast becoing their best and strongest competition. She has also seen the charts of resale "statistics" from several Detroit area communities and draws her conclusions regarding the growing strength of the market from the experiences of her colleagues as well as her own.

Kate points out that the first "preliminary returns" on the resale statistics at Lexington Condo Homes in Northville, in mid-1975, were a bit baffling. They ranged from a 15 per cent appreciation in value in two-and-a-quarter years on one home (the first to resell), to a 10 per cent appreciation over two-and-a-half years on another to a one per cent loss on another.

Today, after 14 resales, a defenite pattern has begun to emerge. The condominium homes in good or better condition, regardless of size, like any other home in the Northville area, are averaging a five to seven per cent appreciation in value per year. The figures are based on resale prices minus the original purchase price, including structural improvements such as finished basements. Once the original owners get past the first two years of ownership, the chances of realizing even greater appreciation on their homes are significantly improved. Time on the market (real estate terminology for the length of time a home is advertised for sale) has varied anywhere from one to three days in some instances to eight months in two situations.

VA services are varied

entitlement available to them. If, for example, a World War II veteran has exhausted his original $4,000 entitlement for an $8,000 guaranteed loan, he now is entitled to an additional guarantee of $13,500.

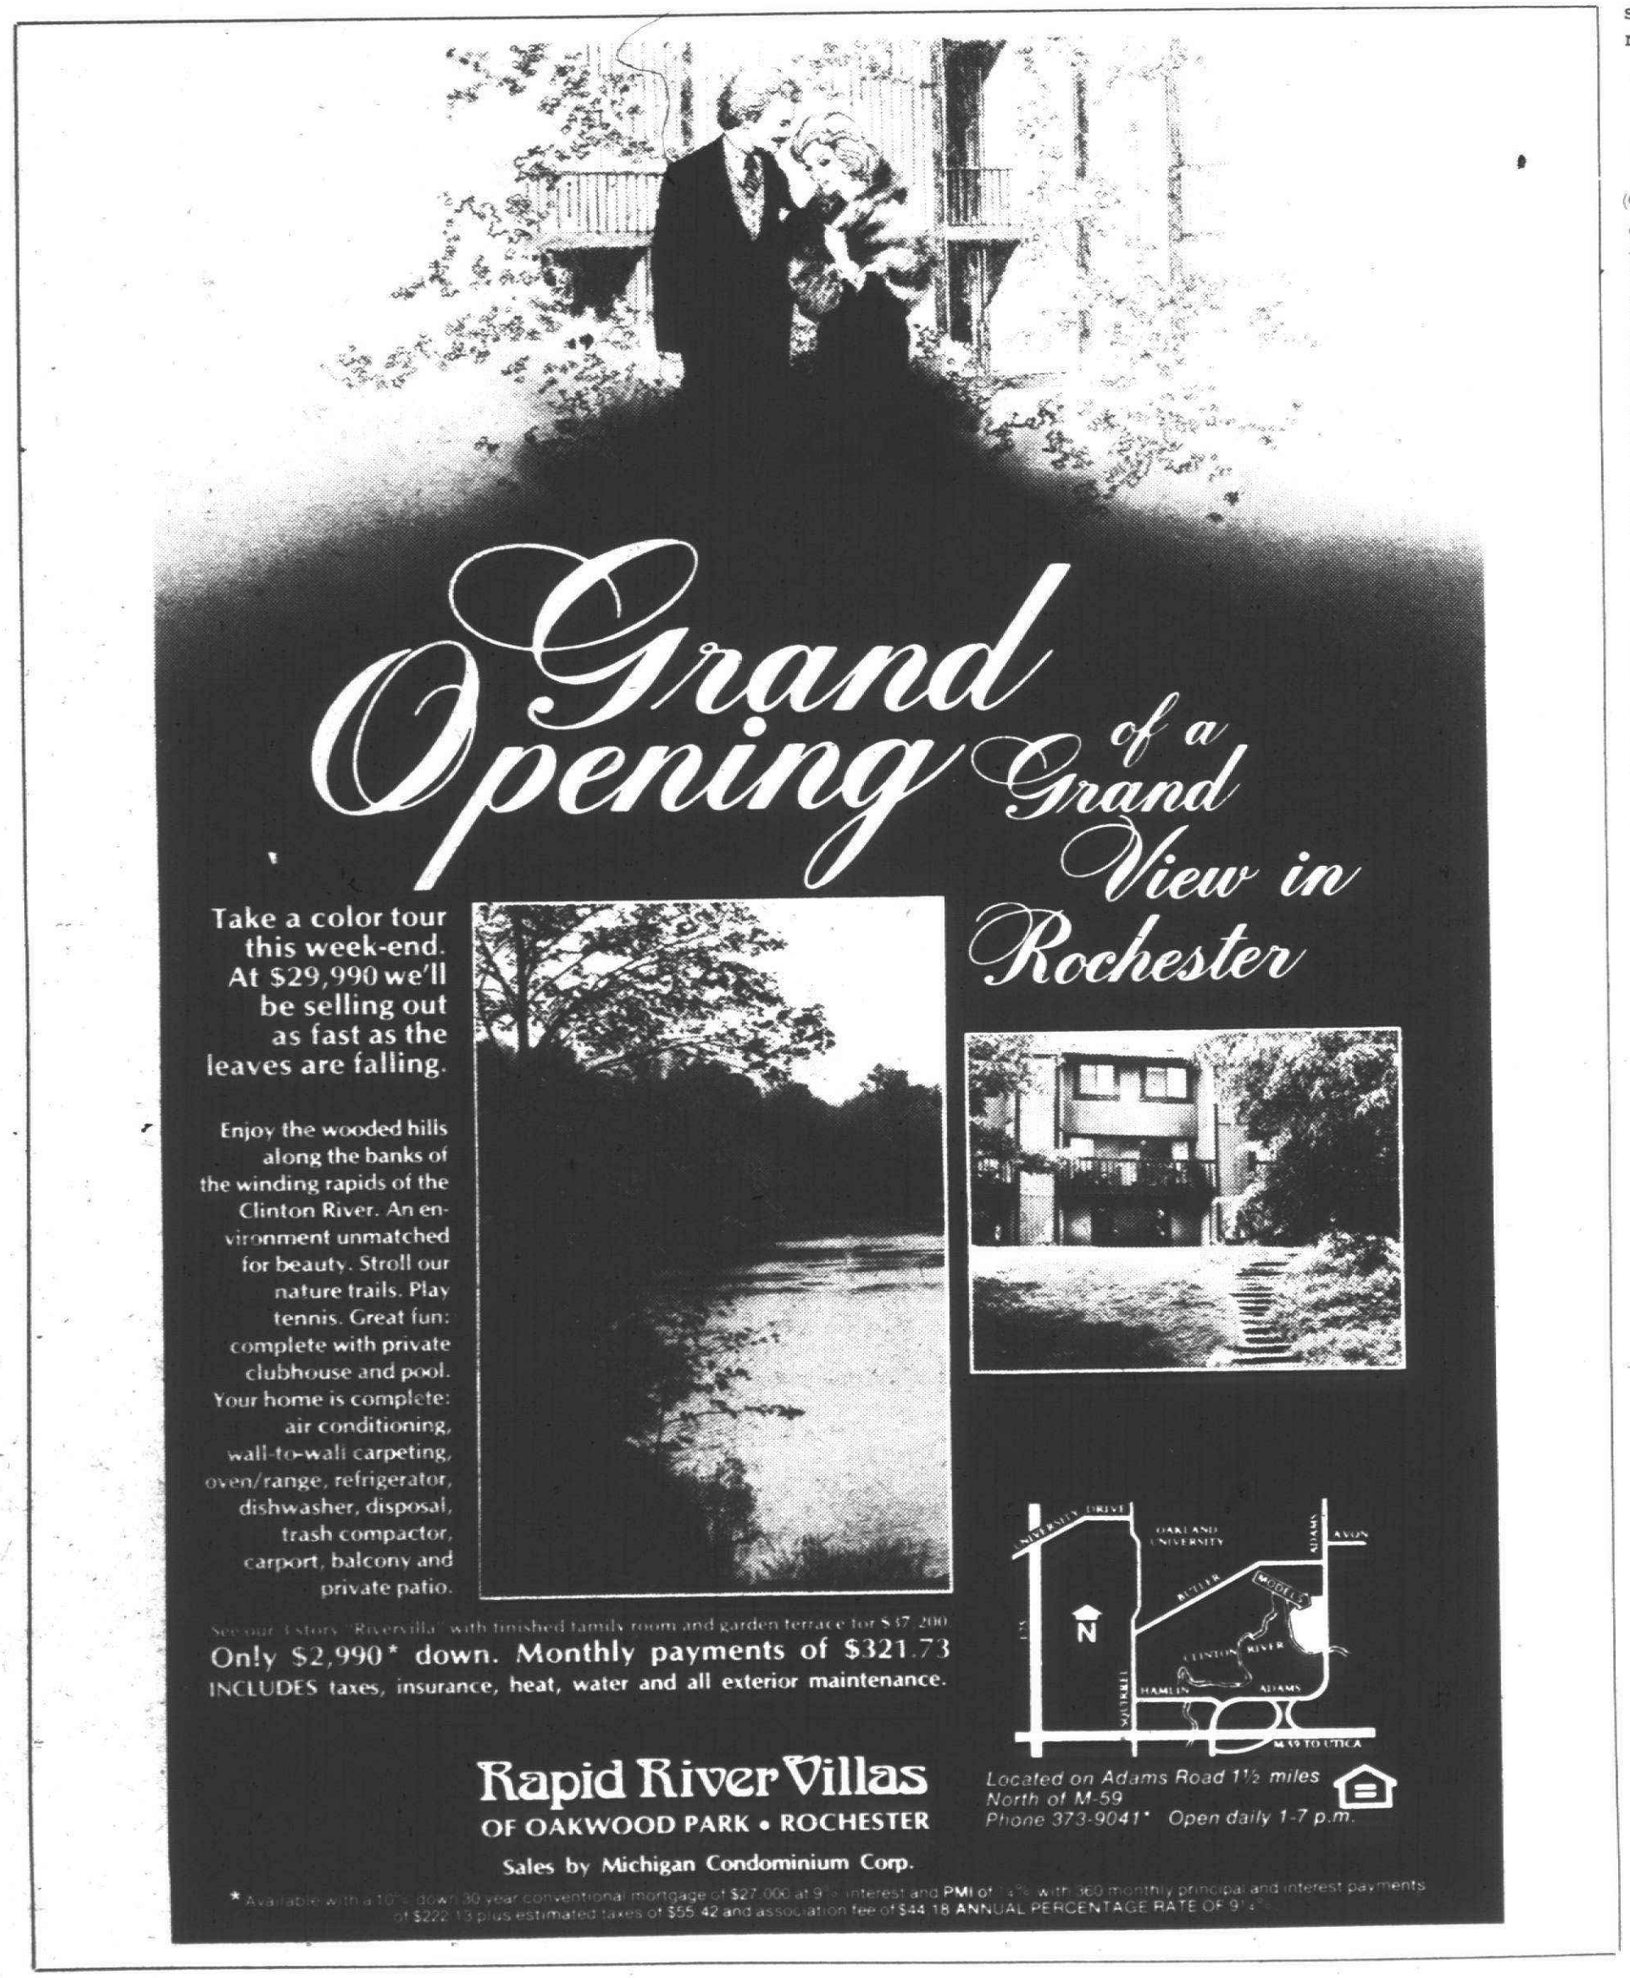

A VA or GI guaranteed loan offers these features:

- A moderate interest rate.
- No down payment, unless required by the lender or the cost of the home is more than the reasonable value of the home as appraised by the VA.
- A long repayment period.
- Assurance that the home buyer can pay off all or part of the loan in advance without penalty.

THE VA will also appraise and inspect the house a veteran wants to buy. The appraisal will determine its reasonable value in the prevailing housing market. The inspection checks that the new house meets accepted construction standards and conforms to plans and specifications on which the VA's appraisal is based. In addition, the VA will try to assist in getting a builder to correct defects.

Some things the VA cannot do are:

- Act as an architect or supervise housing construction.
- Guarantee that a house does not have defects.
- Cannot provide legal services if problems result during the construction or purchase of a home.
- Compel a builder to fix defects.
- Guarantee satisfaction with the home.
- Guarantee that the home owner is making a good investment.

How much house to buy?

If you are considering buying a new home, you need to know the answers to several questions before you can make a well-informed decision on what price home you should buy.

Here are some questions you should ask yourself before you go shopping:

- How large a mortgage loan are you qualified to borrow? As a rough rule, you can borrow two to 2½ times your family's gross annual income. The income of both husband and wife can be counted in this computation if their income is steady.

A more accurate approach is to calculate the size of the monthly payment you are qualified to make. Lenders will allow you to use 25 per cent of you family's gross monthly income for your housing payment, (including principal, interest, taxes and insurance), as long as the payment and other long-term debts (eight months and longer) aren't more than one-third of the gross monthly income. Lenders often bend the 25 per cent figure to about 28 per cent or so, depending on the circumstances, especially if the down payment is 20 per cent or more. For example, a couple with an income of $24,000 a year, or $2,000 per month, can qualify for monthly payment of $500 to $560, as long as their total monthly long-term payments, including the house payment, do not exceed $666.

- How can you esti-

Homeowners can save with these energy tips

The energy crisis has thrown the United States as well as other industrialized nations into a race against time as they attempt to develop new sources of energy before the world runs out of gas.

The scope of the energy crisis and its implications for homeowners were outlined by Dr. Robert C. Seamans, Jr., administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, at the National Association of Home Builders' 1976 convention.

The fundamental issue, Seamans said, is that we must learn to conserve our prime sources of energy, primarily oil and natural gas, or "this entire planet will be out of energy before we have been able to devlop alternative energy technologies."

Seamans said that the housing industry and the nation's homeowners have major role to play in the development of this energy conservation ethic because 32 per cent of the total U.S. energy consumption goes for heating, cooling, lighting and running appliances in homes and building.

In order to assist homeowners conserve energy, the Observer & Eccentric has prepared the following list of energy saving tips for the heating season.

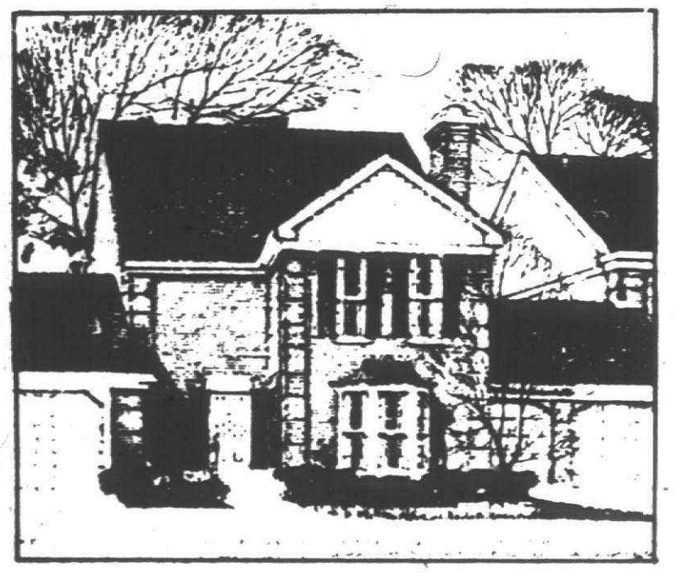

HEATING SYSTEM—About 60 per cent of the energy consumed in homes is used for heating and cooling systems. Clean heat exchanger surface in the furnace regularly. Dust and products of combustion accumulate on surfaces and interfere with good heat transfer. Air adjustment should be checked periodically by a service professional. Without sufficient air, fuel will not burn completely. An expert should also clean and adjust the entire heating system once a year. Air filters should be cleaned or replaced on a regular basis.

THERMOSTAT SETTING—Set the thermostat back at night. Each one degree reduction saves about one per cent in fuel. But do not lower the temperature so much that your system must work overly long to reheat your home in the morning. While away from home for an extended period, you should set your thermostat at 55 degrees. But don't turn off heat completely because the pipes might freeze. During the daytime close dampers in bedrooms and other rooms you don't use. Clean thermostats once a year to remove dust.
