WHAT'S INSIDE CANTON

Stanislaus

Stanilaus, a mouse which sneezes in instead of out, is hatching a secret plan to challenge the top spot held by Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer in yule legacy. A local commercial artist has developed the characater of Stanislaus who comes to Santa's rescue Christmas eve—instead of Rudolph. Page 3A.

Lisa Ritter, five, wants to tell you about the old-fashioned Christmas her family enjoys in their Windsor Park home. You will enjoy this special report on the Ritters by Sharon Staron in the Life Section. Page 1B.

Forgotten?

A few months ago, friends and neighbors responded when Vickie Wooley needed blood donations to help her combat Hodgkins disease. But she has needs other than blood, needs now unmet as former benefactors are no longer on the scene. As a result, a search has started for other persons with family members suffering from the disease to see if they can help each other. Page 6A.

Home building hits a record high

By DARLENE STINSON

Despite growing concern among school and township officials over Canton's rapidly rising population, the township's building boom is not slowing down.

On the contrary, construction of single-family homes this year hit a record high, according to a year end report released by Chief Building Inspector Charlie Thompson.

Almost 180 more homes were constructed during 1976 than last year. Building department officials this year issued 984 permits for construction of single-family homes and four permits for construction of two-unit duplexes.

Unless the economy takes a turn for the worse, Thompson foresees no slowdown in the township's building boom next year.

CANTON'S RAPIDLY rising population is creating a headache for Plymouth school district officials, who must provide an education for the ever-increasing numbers of students.

"We're aware of these (building) figures," said Florence Beier, the schools' administrative assistant for community relations. "We've already met with the township and (planner) Mike Manore to discuss them.

"Frankly, we're in a crisis posture," she said. "We're not going to have room for these kids unless we do something."

Plymouth school officials this year opened three new elementary schools in Canton to accommodate the increasing number of school-age children. But, according to Mrs. Beier, enrollment at two of the schools—Field and Eriksson—is already at capacity levels, while a limited amount of space is still available at Hulsing.

School board members are considering implementing Miller Elementary's year-round school program at other schools in Canton and western Plymouth Township to accommodate the population growth. Under the 45-15 year-round program, the capacity of school buildings is increased by one-third.

"We're looking at all kinds of alternatives," Mrs. Beier said. "But the only thing we can do without a bond issue is 45-15, which has worked well at Miller, or split sessions, which are undesirable."

CANTON'S BUILDING BOOM began in the early 1970s in the northeastern corner of the township. Since then, township planner Mike Manore says, growth has steadily spread in southerly and westerly directions.

As a result, the township's population has increased five-fold, since the 1960 census was taken. In 1960, slightly more than 5,000 persons lived in Canton. That total climbed to 11,000 by 1970. When township officials conducted a mid-decade census last year, those figures had jumped to more than 26,000.

A survey of the building deparment's annual reports over the last 10 years indicates a moderate amount of building activity each year from 1966 to 1970. During each of those years, building department officials issued about 150 permits for construction of single-family homes and apartment buildings.

The boom began in 1971, when 528 permits were issued for single-family homes and 38 were granted for multiples. In 1972, officials granted 754 building permits for single-family dwellings and 87 for multiples; in 1973, 903 for single-family and 109 for multiples; and in 1974, 751 for single family and 38 for multiples.

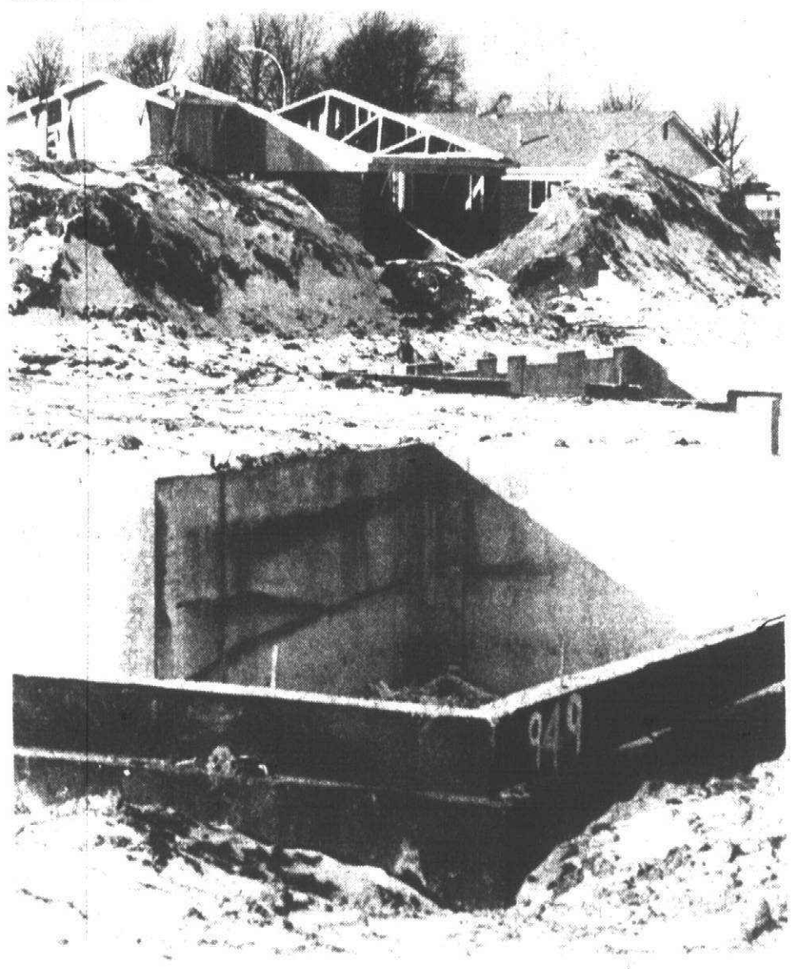

Building permits issued for apartment construction, notes Manore, do not accurately reflect a rise in population, since one permit allows construction of several apartment units.

Although no building permits were issued for apartments in 1975 or 1976, the building department issued 810 permits for single-family homes in 1975 and 984 permits in 1976.

THOMPSON PREDICTS an upswing in apartment building construction during the next two years. Board members, he notes, recently approved site plans for the 176-unit Cherry Hill Apartment complex, proposed for a site on Cherry Hill at I-275.

Furthermore, Thompson says, board members must adopt by November 1977 a new state building code, which no longer requires masonry exterior walls in apartment house construction. The code will decrease the cost of apartment building construction.

"This could cause the multiple to come back again," he said.

Canton's building boom is getting louder every year. Building department officials state that 984 permits were issued this year for single-family homes and four permits were issued for construction of two-unit duplexes. (Staff photo)

Incomplete recount changes no outcome

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Not that it will satisfy anyone, but the Wayne County Office of Elections has released the result of the recount conducted in precincts one through nine—excluding the absentee precinct from the vote check.

All three candidates who requested the recount (supervisor candidates Peter Bundarin and Robert Greenstein and trustee candidate James Poole) pinpointed absentee ballot Precinct 10 as the precinct where they rested their hopes. They believed that because pollworkers entered absentee ballots on the voting machines, there was a good possibility of human error.

In precincts one through nine Greenstein picked up nine more write-in votes— leaving him with a total of 3,360— 448 votes behind the declared winner, Harold Stein who had 3,808 votes. Bundarin's vote remained unchanged at 3,014.

There were two write-in supervisor votes for "Goldstein," two for Carl Parsell, and one for Gregory H. Green.

THE TRUSTEE race was decided by a mere 11 votes, with Eugene Daley nudging out incumbent Poole. In precincts one through nine the vote between Poole and Daley did not change.

Write-in candidate Gerald Cheske gained four votes in the recount of the first nine precincts. Prior to the recount, Cheske had 2,738 votes; the recount showed him with 2,742. Joyce Willis, Cheske's slate-mate vying for the second open trustee spot, picked up 15 votes in the partial recount. The township board of canvassers certified her total at 2,748 and the county recount turned up 2,763.

Because of misplaced stickers Parsell received 10 votes for trustee even though he was running for treasurer on the write-in slate.

Following the announced candidates for trustee and Parsell were Carter organizer Steve Protulis, who got three votes; William Brown, who received three write-in votes for trustee; one vote each for F.T. Jones III, Cynthia Gail, and Gachester, and finally, a sole vote for someone named "Cheesopie."

The reason the county board of canvassers gave for denying the request for a recount in the absentee precinct was that 15 pollworkers at that precinct voted on the same machines in which absentee ballot totals were entered. Ballot bags inside the protectively-sealed vote cannisters were also found unsealed.

Because 15 pollworkers of the 1,323 voters in the absentee precinct voted directly on the machine without using paper ballots, canvassers said there would be no way to fully reconstruct the vote in the precinct in a recount.

"Let's say the election workers came across a ballot during the recount that was all right in every aspect except the vote for Greenstein was spoiled," said Orvylle Tungate, Wayne County deputy clerk.

"Imagine that there was an X opposite every candidate's name but Greenstein's. When we do the recount we do not know if that vote for Greenstein was counted election night. And, working from the original totals, we can't say how those 15 non-paper absentee ballots should be distributed."

SUPERVISOR CANDIDATES Bundarin and Greenstein said they would file a lawsuit against the county board of canvassers if trustee candidate Poole, who lost by only 11 votes, would join them in a joint lawsuit. Last week Poole said that he would study the election laws before making his decision. He still hadn't decided Tuesday night, but indicated that if he did sue it would be done individually, and not jointly.

"It would look less political if I sued by myself," Poole said. "Maybe Greenstein or Bundarin can represent me as lawyers— that way it would help them get their names in the paper to attract more clients. But I don't think all three of us should file suit jointly. If it looks like us vs. them, or the old administration vs. the new administration, I'll jump out of the boat."

One of the candidates who demanded a recount in Precinct 10 said he now has doubts about whether it is possible to demand a recount in a situation where the law is ambigious, or contradicts itself, and the county board of canvassers rules that the precinct is "unrecountable."

Martina and Denzil Hammond, chairman of the four-member county board of canvassers, have both indicated that they feel the state statute is ambigious because it states that only township pollworkers may vote in a precinct other than the one where they're registered, yet demands that the number of voters on the poll list match with the final tally on the vote machines.

In Precinct 10 this was not the case because of the added 15 pollworkers that were on the machine total but not in the poll book.

All three candidates would like to see the county at least recount all of the 1,308 actual paper ballots. Greenstein suggests that the Precinct 10 recount could be unoffical if necessary, to determine the extent of vote error.

Hammond, of the county canvassers, said that with the close race between Poole and Daley those 15 "untraceable ballots" could become the crucial factor. Any unoffical recount of all but 15 ballots is impossible, Hamond said.

In instances where a precinct is "uncountable," Hammond said the original, certified vote totals must stand.

Greenstein is still hopping mad about the decision not to recount Precinct 10.

"I know there were at least seven or nine mistakes in the first 100 absentee ballots they counted," Greenstein said. His former secretary, Pam Phillips, inspected the ballots next to the election workers Dec. 13 and 14 with Bundarin and Poole's inspectors, Karen Bundarin and Cindy Monks.

"Some of the pollworkers in the absentee precinct must have written in the names of our team on the write-in machines at the precinct when they voted. I know we got some votes there. But the election workers never looked to see if any of those 15 pollworkers wrote in any votes. They never even looked. That's wrong and it blows their whole argument about not wanting to disenfranchise the voters."

Before members of the board of canvassers voted not to recount the absentee precinct, Greenstein implored them to refuse to rule on the recountability of the precinct and file action themselves in circuit court demanding that a judge make a declaratory judgment.

When class met retarded, who benefitted the most?

What could have been a routine, do-something-for-the-less-fortunate, type of Christmas activity turned into a special day for the seventh grade students at Central Middle School and the residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

"What a reaction that day made on the kids in the class," said teacher Nola Lutey. "The best part of the whole thing was that the kids interacted with the patients. It went so well we're planning to go back at Easter time."

The students in Mrs. Lutey's English-social studies class put on a skit called "The Night Before Christmas" for the residents of the center and led a sing-along with everyone joining in on the songs. Residents of the center provided the missing lyrics when the grade school students were stuck.

On the "12 Days of Christmas," the students ran through "five golden rings" without a hitch, but couldn't remember what happened on the sixth day.

Virginia, a blind center resident with a beautiful singing voice, piped up, "Six geese a laying," and they were back on the track.

One of the residents at the cottage smiled from ear to ear while he conducted the singing, waving his arms and clapping his hands.

The loudest audience participation number was "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." Residents and students alike joined in on the song, making a rousing, joyful noise. After the carols were sang, one of Mrs. Lutey's students, Randy Aldrich, donned a Santa Claus suit and gave a present to each of the residents.

For some of the residents, this present would be one of the only gifts they'd get this Christmas season. These people are known as the "forgotten" residents. They will stay in the center while other residents go home to spend the season with their families.

"Don't put this in the paper, but Christmas is the hardest day of the year to work at a place like this," said the director of the Plymouth Center for Human Development, John Rivers. "The people who are left here at Christmas when most of their friends have gone home for the weekend know what's going on. And it's sad. That's why I usually don't work Christmas Day. Everybody has their breaking point and that's where mine is."

Rivers is the center's administrator, who says his job classification should list everything from writing federal grant proposals to wiping noses. Visits from students and the general public are encouraged, he said, because it helps the institutionalized retarded see how the normal society is supposed to act. Shopping trips for the residents are also encouraged.

"We have an open door," Rivers said. "We welcome people, because we have nothing to hide and everything to gain from their interest."

Normal social behavior is a goal that the staff tries to teach the retarded in hopes that they will be able to find placement in a home in a community—outside of an institution.

The retarded men and women and boys and girls listened attentively to the Christmas skit which was conducted in pantomine to the narration of two elves, Dan Muraske and Robert White. They were an exuberant, but polite audience.

One line in the poem, "Twas the Night Before Christmas," describes the smoke from Santa's pipe curling around and around. Mrs. Lutey sang this part and the actors danced around and around in circles. The people in the audience loved it.

When the last Christmas carol was sung

Instead of performing a mandatory Christmas deed for the retarded at a safe distance, Randy Aldrich (in Santa suit) ended up touching the lives of the citizens who live at the Plymouth Center for Human Development. Geake, Bida announce

Mayor enters race for senate

JOE BIDA

Plymouth Mayor Joe Bida announced Tuesday that he will be a candidate for the State Senate seat vacated by Carl Pursell.

The governor is expected to set a special election date soon for a primary run-off for candidates seeking the senate seat now vacant because of the election of Pursell (R-Plymouth) to the congressional seat in the 2d District.

BIDA, a Republican and a city commissioner since 1971, says he is running because he is concerned about problems facing the suburbs which need action at the state level.

"My major concerns are the increase in crimes and the continued potential for cross-district busing. I am in favor of reinstituting capitol punishment and feel we must take other strong measures against criminals to protect our citizens.

"In the past, I have been very much against busing for integration and am concerned that this issue may be facing us again.

"With the opening of the I-275, Jeffries and M-14 expressways, Plymouth, Livonia and surrounding communities will be faced with an ever increasing crime problem. Although the expressways are nice because it makes travel easier for motorists, they also make it easier for criminals to enter a town and get out quick.

"Just as Birmingham has been beset with crime problems this year, Plymouth, Northville and Livonia will be facing similar problems soon if deterrent action isn't taken soon. That's one of the reasons I'd like to serve in the Legislature where regional problems such as crime can be better dealt with."

BIDA HAS a long public service career which goes back to the mid-fifties when he served as director of the department of public works in Garden City.

From Garden City, he moved to Plymouth where he became director of the DPW in that city and then spent two years as DPW director for Plymouth Township.

After ending his tenure with the DPW in Plymouth Township, Bida ran for the city commission in 1971 and was the top vote-getter.

In November, 1975, he was selected by the Plymouth City Commission to serve as mayor of the city.

"If I'm unsuccessful in my bid for the State Senate," says Bida, "I'm more than content to continue to serve the residents of Plymouth. But I think I could serve residents of Plymouth in Lansing and hope to have the chance to do so."

Geake will run for senate post

State Rep. R. Robert Geake is an active candidate for the 14th State Senate District and will seek the Republican nomination.

Geake, re-elected to a third two-year term to the House Nov. 2, till seek the senate vacancy expected to be created by the resignation of Carl Pursell, Plymouth Republican who won a narrow victory to the 2d Congressional District post last month.

Pursell's 344-vote margin is being challenged by Ann Arbor Democrat Ed Pierce.

Although Pursell hasn't resigned his senate position yet, Geake is expecting a special primary and general election dates to be set for early next year.

The district includes Livonia, Plymouth, Redford Township and Northville.

Geake, 40 and a Northville resident, is the first to announce his candidacy and stressed his background in the state House.

That background includes being on the House education, public health, mental health and election committees and serving on select committees to study fraud and abuse in the state's Medicaid program and a national advisory committee on mental health and illness of the elderly.

Geake, in his first term, ranked third out of 24 freshman legislators in getting bills approved by both houses. Those bills will allow schools to bus students to spectator events; modernize the administration of the state's mental hospitals, assure emergency medical treatment for children in foster care, increase the availability of public immunization programs; and permit local governments more flexibility in the scheduling of elections.

All those bills were eventually signed into law, Geake said.

He stressed his work on the revised mental health code and his role in the past term in getting through a bill to resolve the medical malpractice insurance crisis.

Geake is a practicing psychologist and former administrator at the Plymouth Center for Human Development. He holds a BS MA and PhD degrees in education and psychology from the University of Michigan.

Geake was elected to the Schoolcraft College board of Trustees in 1969 and later served as chairman. He resigned the college board to become a state representative.

STANISLAUS THE FLYING MOUSE

There once was a mouse named Stanislaus
Who could blow himself up just as big as a house.
How did he do it so tiny and thin?
Instead of sneezing out, he sneezed in!
He'd store them blows up there in his nose
Achew, Achew, and up he goes.
And when he gets ready, he lets 'em all out zooms into the air, and flys all about!

Oh, Stanislaus the Flying Mouse
Could blow himself up just as big as a house.
Scrawny little fella, so tiny and thin
Instead of sneezing out, he sneezed in!

Then one starry Christmas night
Santa was going to cancel his flight.
All the reindeer were sick in bed
And no one was left to pull his sled.
Oh, what a terrible thing he said!
For all the little children at home in bed.

When from out in the snow came the strangest sound (sneezing)
Grew louder and louder, was heard all around.
And there by the sleigh, just as big as a house
Stood Stanislaus, the Flying Mouse.

He took hold of the reins, shouted, "All Aboard!"
Then out of his nose those sneezes roared!
With a bump and a lurch, and the toys neatly stored
Into the sky that tiny sleigh soared!

As they passed out of sight that wondrous night
You could hear old Santa say
"Stanislaus Mouse, up, up and away!
Stanislaus Mouse, you've saved Christmas Day!"

Inflated Christmas mouse says: 'Roll over Rudolph'

By PATRICK TOUHEY

Stanislaus the Christmas Mouse. It's not quite Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer, but, still, it does have a certain ring to it.

Stanislaus is the creation of Joe Gornell, a commercial artist who also owns The Village Stripper on Liberty Street in Old Village. And if Joe has his way, the seasonal rodent will take his place with such household words as the Grinch Who Stole Christmas, the Peanuts characters, and Frosty the Snowman.

"People are ready for a new Christmas character," said Joe. "In my opinion, Frosty the Snowman was the last real creation, and that was almost 20 years ago."

However, Joe's plans for Stan include more than making him an emerging Christmas symbol. He is currently in the process of exploring record possibilities (lyrics by Joe), and he is trying to find a publisher for a children's book (words and illustrations by Joe) with the mouse as the central character.

STANISLAUS, HOWEVER, did not start out as a Christmas mouse. Originally, he was a secondary character in a cartoon strip that Gornell thought up and tried to get syndicated five years ago.

"The cartoon strip was really about a cat," Gornell remarked. "I threw in the mouse as an after-thought. I mean you can't have a cartoon cat without a cartoon mouse."

But, unfortunately for Joe and Stanislaus, the people who syndicate cartoons did not feel as enthusiastic about the cat and mouse idea as Gornell did. Nobody bought it.

"Apparently they didn't think it was too funny. I think I came close a couple times. One guy kept the strip for more than a month, but then it fell through."

So, according to Joe, the idea lay dormant for a while. In the meantime he continued working as a free-lance commercial artist and turned his hobby of refinishing furniture into a business enterprise.

Explaining how a commercial artist with cartooning aspirations got into the furniture business Gornell stated, "I guess it was mainly economic. When you do free-lance work, sometimes your income is irregular.

"I had always enjoyed stripping and refinishing furniture just for myself, and it seemed like a good way to make extra money during those times when I wasn't working as an artist."

Joe added that his wife usually handles the business, with him helping out when he can. Beside the Village Stripper in Plymouth, the Gornells own the Down River Stripper in Southgate.

WHILE THE BUSINESSES were being solidified, Stanislaus stayed on the drawing board. Then, one day when Joe was driving from Detroit to Southgate, some lyrics about the mouse popped into his head out of the blue.

"I was just driving along," remembers Gornell, "and all of a sudden I started singing a song about Stanislaus. The words just came to me."

From that time the mouse idea took on new dimensions. Joe changed and refined the first lyrics and started thinking in terms of records and children's books. And he still wants to change Stanislaus a little more.

"He looks kind of goofy now," Joe said. "I'd like to improve the art work before I'm through with him. When you do drawings for a cartoon strip, the art isn't that important. It just has to be good enough to carry the idea. But for books it's a different story."

So far the only kids who have read the book that Joe put together are his own. But he says they liked it a lot.

To date, Gornell has not found a publisher for his book, but who knows? In a Christmas or two from now, you just might find yourself tuning in a special program all about a mouse.

Bicentennial year reviewed- first of 4 parts

The bicentennial year — 1976. Historically speaking, a year that will be difficult to distinguish from any other year of its kind a century from now, aside from the fact that this year marked the 200th anniversary of our nation's independence.

Yet, flipping back the pages of this year's calendar brings to mind a bevy of highlights which make 1976 something to reflect on for the present-day Plymouth-Canton inhabitants.

JAN. 1

The Plymouth Community School District establishes a Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) to provide the board of education with recommendations on community attitudes in specific areas.

The Christmas report for 1975 indicated that most residents chose ham over turkey for Christmas dinner, gave clothing or books for gifts, and drank as much as usual—but cheaper brands of liquor. Sales were up at almost every store in the area.

JAN. 5

Mark A. Hunt, a 26-year-old native of Topeka, Kan., was named director of Plymouth Historical Museum in the Dunning Memorial Building.

JAN. 8

The will of Floyd A. Kerhl is filed for probate in Judge Frank Szymanski's court. The Plymouth banker and philanthropist, who died a couple of months earlier, left an estate of nearly $2 million.

The Plymouth City Commission ratified a new two-year contract with the City of Plymouth Police Department.

Gary Mirto resigns from the board of education for health reasons.

JAN. 12

Crime statistics show that crime increased in 1975 in Plymouth and Canton townships, but remained stable in the City of Plymouth.

A compilation of local historian Sam Hudson's works about the history of the Plymouth community heads for the publishers.

JAN. 15

Nine area residents apply for appointment to the board of education seat left vacant by the resignation of Gary Mirto.

School board faced with the dilemna of budget cuts in school district.

Bicentennial commission reveals plans for the July celebration.

JAN. 19

The Canton Township Board approved, by a 4-2 margin, to make Canton the formal postal name for the township.

Plymouth Salem's basketball team extends its unbeaten string to 11, as senior forward Jim Ellinghausen breaks the 1,000-career point plateau by netting 19 points in the Rocks 57-43 triumph over Allen Park.

JAN. 26

Members of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Symphony Band head south to perform in an orchestra clinic at Troy State University in Alabama.

Prospects for a local inpatient hospital to be built in the area grow dim, but hope remains that there still might be an emergency facility built.

JAN. 29

Flossie Tonda is appointed to the vacant school board post after being nominated by E.J. McClendon, and approved by a 4-2 vote.

Mrs. Ann Lindamood is selected Woman of the Year by the Plymouth Jaycettes.

Lt. Dallas Raby receives the Distinguished Service Award for his work in the Salvation Army.

FEB. 5

The City of Plymouth enters into a contract with the federal government to begin a program of housing rehabilitation assistance to low- and moderate-income families.

FEB. 12

After a cost analysis, the board of education announced it will not close Geer School, prolonging the life of the two-room schoolhouse until the fall of 1976.

FEB. 16

The state approved the annexation of 73 acres of Burroughs Corp. property in Plymouth Township, effective April 10.

FEB. 19

One hundred residents attend a Plymouth City Commission meeting to voice their opinions on the senior high-rise housing project.

City commission votes 5-2 to assist a developer in obtaining state financing, and to notify the state the city will consider granting tax abatement if the senior housing project gets underway.

FEB. 26

Six seniors at Plymouth Salem High, and five upperclassmen at Canton High play their final regular season basketball games in prep uniforms. Salem clinches an unprecedented third straight Suburban Eight crown by demolishing Dearborn 61-41, while Canton concludes its season on a high note by nipping Walled Lake Western, 52-51.

MARCH 4

Plymouth teachers respond hotly to charges that their alleged apathy towards CASTLES in-service training may be because the profession is now in a demoralized condition.

New attendance boundaries are recommended to the board of education by the district's attendance and boundary committee. The policies concern middle and elementary schools.

The long-awaited clash between Salem and Canton on the basketball court takes place, and Salem emerges the victor in a hard-fought tussle in the opening round of the state tournament, 74-55.

MARCH 8

The Rocks bow out of the state tournament prematurely at the hands of Bloomfield Hills Lahser, 76-55. Jim Ellinghausen takes game scoring honors with 24, and is later named as Plymouth first All-State player by all the top metro news organizations. Ellinghausen later signs a national letter of intent to attend Ohio State University.

Attorney submits work draft on civil service

Canton attorney George Ward has submitted preliminary work on a new civil ordinance for Canton employes.

The ordinance, once it is OK'd by township board members and approved by voters at the polls, will replace a 1972 township ordinance which Ward has deemed invalid.

Canton Supervisor Harold Stein says the prelimary work submitted by Ward is only a pile of "rough worksheets."

"It's so rough I couldn't even call it a rough draft," he said. "It wasn't even formally submitted."

Stein declined to submit a copy of Ward's prelimary work to the press, because "this thing's got to be done properly," he said.

"Board members haven't even seen it," he explained. "I don't want a situation created that's going to upset a bunch of township employees and make them afraid for their jobs."

BUT TOWNSHIP Trustee Robert Myers, a member of the defunct Civil Service Commission (CSC), called Ward's preliminary work a "rough draft" ready for introduction at the township board table.

Myers, who personally received the work from Ward and passed the draft along to Stein, said Ward recommended a procedure township officials could follow to deal with the proposed document.

Ward was unavailable for comment.

According to Myers, Ward recommended introducing the draft to the township board, which could refer the matter to the CSC for study. Township board members could then direct the attorney to draw up a final copy of the proposed ordinance before placing the issue on the ballot, Myers said.

Stein declined to divulge specific information contained in Ward's work.

"No one has really looked at it that closely," he explained.

Currently, Canton employes are not protected by civil service. Ward ruled last October that the township's 1972 civil service ordinance is invalid, since proper procedures were not followed in approving the document.

According to Ward, voters did not approve a specific civil ordinance in 1972. They only approved an advisory question as to whether the township should establish a merit system, he says.

In addition, the 1972 ballot question referred to the wrong section of the Michigan Constitution. Section six, not section seven, as the ballot said, empowers municipalities to enact civil service ordinances.

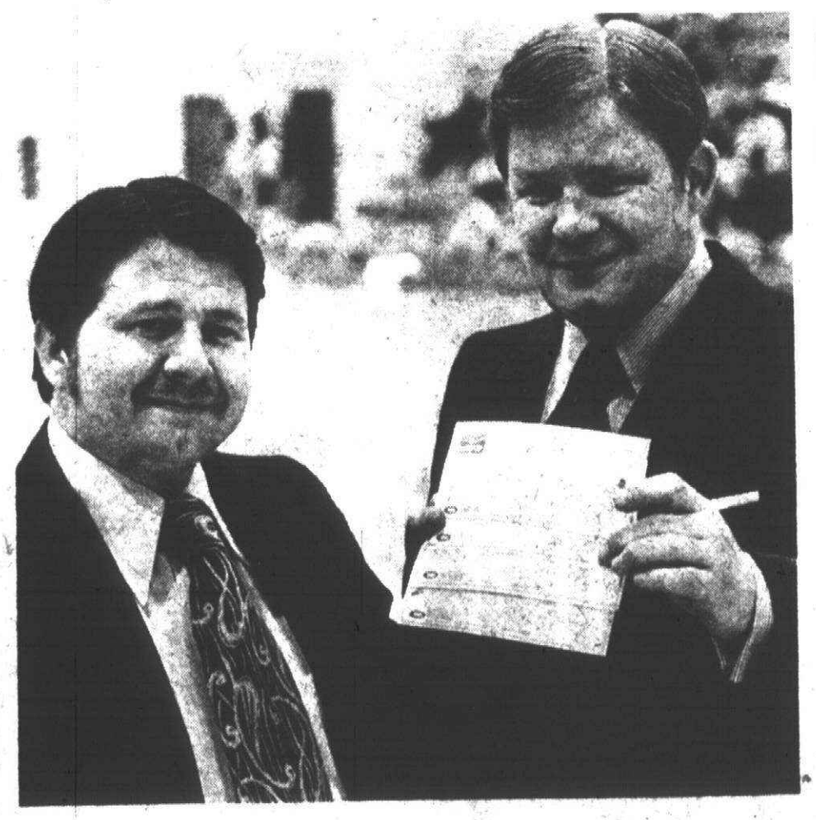

Although township employes are not currently protected by civil service, Stein says they have no reason to fear for their jobs.

"These rumors about people getting fired are just that—pure rumor," he said.

Still gone

The mother of Lori Ann Mahaffey, a 14-year-old Plymouth girl missing since Dec. 5 has a message for her daughter who left home after an argument. "I'd like to tell her to contact her mother to let us now that she's all right and to tell her that we'd like to have her home for Christmas." Lori's mother, Arlantha Mahaffey, of 42834 Joy, Plymouth, said there has been no word or firm leads on the whereabouts or condition of the eighth grade student at East Middle School. One location in Canton Township has been under investigation by Wayne County Sheriff's Det. Susan Murray. "All I can think of is that somebody is influencing her." Friends of the Mahaffey girl say that Lori isn't a street-wise girl prone to long absences. She has red hair and green eyes, and when she left home she was wearing a red ski jacket and tan snow boots. Persons with any information about Ms. Mahaffey are urged to call the Wayne County Sheriffs, Mrs. Mahaffey, or the Plymouth-Canton Observer Newspaper.

Sports boosted

Four $1,000 checks to the Plymouth Canton Junior Athletic Association were handed to Jim Sinclair (right) at Tuesday night's Salem High basketball game. Canton Township Deputy Treasurer Mike Gorman represented the township by presenting the donation. The four checks will be split equally among the four PCJAA teams-basketball, baseball, football and hockey. (Staff photo)

From our readers

Why won't my absentee ballot be recounted?

Editor:

I have never seen such dirty politics on a local level as I have seen in Canton the past few months. After reading the news concerning the recount of absentee ballots, I have been prompted to write this letter. I have sat back and read many articles in the newspapers about Canton's politics and just shook my head in disbelief.

I have watched a community protection agency become a political issue. I believe that our township has been much safer since August. Let's give these reservists a chance, instead of always cutting them down. After all, they are giving up their spare time to make our rapidly-growing community safer for us and our children.

Tonight I found out that my vote and my husband's vote may not be counted due to a minor technicality. We both voted on an absentee ballot due to legitimate circumstances. This election was not just a local election, but a very important national election. If my vote has been discarded, I feel my constitutional right has been abused.

Wake up Cantonites, or you'll find all the issues which you have so strongly supported will also be so nicely discarded.

To me, this whole election sounds like another Watergate coverup. If this is not a cover-up, why is my vote not up for a recount?

MRS. DENNIS COOKE
Canton Township

Editor's note: The absentee ballots were counted election night, so absentee votes were counted. However, the votes in the absentee precinct will not be recounted, according to the county board of canvassers, because of two factors: Number one, the ballot bags inside the protectively-sealed cannisters were not sealed and because 15 absentee precinct pollworkers voted directly on the machine that was used to tally the paper, absentee ballots. Therefore, the canvassers ruled, there would be no possible way of examining those 15 ballots. It would be possible to challenge or check the actual paper ballots.

Retarded watch skits

and the class waved goodbye to the people, the residents put on a Christmas show of their own.

Virginia, a white woman blind since birth, recited a poem about racial equality—that the color of a person's skin isn't important.

A Mongoloid girl got up to do an airy dance in time the Christmas record on a tinny record player.

And the lanky man continued conducting the music coming from the record player, with a smile that showed showing he was enjoying his performance.

Campau is coordinator for YMCA

Jean Campau, a Plymouth Township resident, has been named as the coordinator of the in-home support services program to be offered by the Plymouth, Canton, Northville YMCA, announced Janet Luce, director.

The program, which is funded under Title III of the Older Americans Act of 1965, is designed to provide supplemental aid to senior citizens. Anyone in the Plymouth community who is 60 years or older is eligible.

The services which the YMCA will be sponsoring are: an escort service, which will provide transportation for appointments and errands; labor assistance for lawn care and snow removal and in-home maintenance and repair; letter reading and writing assistance; and a daily telephone well-being service for seniors who live alone.

ALTHOUGH THE program is scheduled to be in operation during the second week of January, Ms. Campau indicated that there was still a need for volunteers. Those wishing to offer their time and effort can do so by calling 453-2968.

Ms. Campau also said that senior citizens who want to sign up for the services should contact her prior to Jan. 1.

Under the guidelines of Title III, the program receives full funding for only the first year. After that, it is up to the community to provide a percentage of the money necessary to keep the services going.

However, if there is indication of community interest and support, the program can receive partial federal funding for up to three years. The amount of the 1976 grant is about $23,000.

Ms. Campau, who will have the responsibility of arranging and administering the services, has been a Plymouth resident off and on since 1961. She is currently a graduate student at the University of Michigan and will complete her masters degree in guidance and counseling in April of 1977.

Cold hearts defrosted

Alcohol help being provided

The Alcohol Awareness Program starts up again in early January with four sessions. The program is open to anyone curious about alcohol, alcoholism and the effect it has on the mind, body and lives of people.

Most of the meetings are discussion sessions and questions will be answered regarding treatment facilities in the area. The program will be held at the 35th District Court on the second floor of Plymouth City Hall, 201 S. Main.

The first session will be held on Jan. 5; the subject will be pharmacology of alcohol. On Jan. 12, the second session will cover the progression of alcohol—the disease concept. Dr. Frank Hollingsworth, Ph.D. will speak at both meetings.

Coping with Hodgkins disease a trying task for Vickie Wooley

Vickie Wooley is home from the hospital, and her doctors say that her condition is under partial control However, despite better health, things are not going as well for Vickie as they might.

If you remember, Vickie, a 1974 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was hospitalized last September with Hodgkins disease. At that time, friends and neighbors launched a campaign to collect blood for her. It was quite successful, too.

Enough people pledged to donate blood to Vickie for the Red Cross to send a bloodmobile to Plymouth. But, according to Ruth DuPree, Vickie's mother, the friends haven't been around lately.

"I can't understand it," she said. "People don't come around anymore. I don't know whether they are afraid they will catch something, or don't want to see her in the condition she's in. She only weighs 87 pounds now."

HOWEVER, MRS. DuPREE said that, except for the isolation, Vickie is doing very well. Her main concern, though, is that isolation.

"Vickie was always fairly active," said Mrs. DuPree, "and I know she misses people. And, after all, you can die from boredom as well as anything else."

In an effort to find people with common concerns, Mrs. DuPree called the American Cancer Foundation to see if there were any goups or clubs for victims of Hodgkins disease. She was told that there weren't any in the Plymouth area.

But there was some good news. The woman Mrs. DuPree talked to said that the Cancer Foundation would be interested in helping to sponsor such a group if enough people were willing.

And that is the task Mrs. DuPree has set for herself: to find out if there are victims of Hodgkins disease interested in forming a group to discuss common problems.

"I know it sounds strange," Mrs. DuPree commented, "but people who have similar problems and concerns can talk to each other and help each other out."

If anyone is interested in starting such a group, Mrs. DuPree can be contacted during the day at 525-0880 and after six at 453-7552.

SC lists registration schedule

Winter registration for the winter semester at Schoolcraft College will be held Jan. 3 and 4 in the auxillary gym.

Winter semester graduates are scheduled to begin registration at 10 a.m. Jan. 3. Between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., students with numbers from 10000 to 45999 register. From 2-4 p.m., student numbers 46000-56999 are scheduled and from 4-7 p.m., 57000 to 61999.

On Jan. 4, student numbers 62000-63999 register from 10 a.m. to noon, and numbers 64000-99999 from noon to 2 p.m. The balance of the time until 7 o'clock that evening is reserved for all others and for new non-resident students.

Resident tuition is $13 per credit hour plus a 50 cent per hour student service fee. Non-resident tuition is $26 plus the service fee.

What are you doing New Year's Eve?

With the Christmas rush just about over, New Year's Eve plans are beginning to take shape in the minds of many.

If Guy Lumbardo and the usual round of parties somehow just does not sound appealing this year, if the 1976 bicentennial bash has run its course, and if, as economic forecasters predict, 1977 is going to be about the same as 1976 with little excitement, then perhaps a good party at one of the local eateries or saloons is in order.

Area bar and restaurant owners, unlike economists, are promising goings-on to brighten the beginning of what looks to be a flat year. Celebrations will range from dinners for two, belly dancing at Mitch Housey's, a little disco dancing at Napoleon's, and some folk repertoire at the Raven.

Following is a list of some doings which may formalize any New Year's Eve indecision.

NAPOLEON'S Restaurant and Gazebo Room is offering, for $10 per person, the first two drinks after 8 p.m., glass of champagne at midnight, hors d'oeuvres at 1 a.m., and dancing. Located on Main in downtown Plymouth. For reservations, call 459-6370.

PLYMOUTH HILTON INN, at Five Mile and Northville Road in Plymouth, has a package for $68 per couple. This includes a lettuce salad, shrimp cocktail, spinach souffle, prime rib, baked Alaska, and all the drinks you can handle. Dancing to the sounds of the Clark Clauson Orchestra. For reservations, call 459-4500.

KEVIN'S, 8051 Middlebelt, Westland, will offer a choice of filet mignon, lobster or prime rib, one drink and entertainment by Lost and Found for $20 for singles or $35 for couples. Reservations by calling 561-5062.

BG's SUPPER CLUB will have dinner and all drinks for $60 per couple. Price includes tax and gratuity. Partying starts at 8 p.m. and continues until 1 a.m. BG's is at 201 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth. For reservations, call 459-0999.

THE SHERWOOD INN has two rooms from which to choose to usher in 1977. The Main Dining Room and Upstairs Dining Room are offering, for $55 per couple and $45 per couple, respectively, dinner, dancing and 8 drinks per couple. Price includes tax and gratuity. For reservations, call 261-5500 or 937-1458. The Sherwood is at Plymouth Road, east of Levan, Livonia.

LA FLORENTINA has a $7.50 per person special which includes dinner, dancing, entertainment, favors, and champagne at midnight. Located at 211 Newburgh, Westland.

ADAM'S TOWNE HOUSE, 30832 Plymouth Road, Livonia, has a $30 per couple celebration planned that includes a choice of one of five meals, soup, salad, potato, dessert, split of champagne, hats and favors and entertainment. Call 451-5060, for reservations.

NABOZNY'S has a $30 per person party in the offing, which includes open bar all night until 4 a.m., choice of prime rib, filet mignon or New York strip steak and entertainment. Reservations are required for this late night party.

SAND BOX LOUNGE will be rocking with the sounds of Tuxedo Junction. For $7, dancing and a steak and egg breakfast is available. Cash bar. Located at Schoolcraft and Inkster roads. For details and reservations, phone 261-0080.

HAVE A GOOD and safe New Year's. And, remember, there will be many people on the road, no doubt all in exactly the same frame of mind. Alcohol plays pretty nasty tricks with the coordination. Drive safely and carefully, and leave the last-one-for-the-road—on the table.

Family Holiday Adventure

Take in dinner and a show and 200 years of American History.

Before the year's out, take your family out to Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum.
The Museum has special evening tour hours till 8:30 p.m., Dec. 26-31.
Holiday hours are otherwise: 9-5 weekdays 9-6 weekends. The Village is open 9-5 daily.

Start your evening with dinner and merry minstrel music at Heritage Hall.

Then watch craftsmen demonstrate their skills as you stroll along the Museum's Street of shops.

This will also be your last chance to see "The Struggle and The Glory," one of the nation's major Bicentennial exhibits.

The Museum Theater will screen old-time and modern cartoons and old newsreels at "Family Film Nights," Dec. 26-31, 7 and 8 p.m.

And don't miss:
Decorated Homes
Many Village homes and shops are ornamented just as they would have been on bygone holidays.
Old-Time Carriage, Sleigh and Train Rides
Yours to enjoy, depending on weather.

Joyous Holiday Music
From both carolers and choirs.
Free Hot Spiced Cider and Cookies
Served 10-4 in the Town Hall on the Village Green.

Tickets available at doors or AAA offices throughout Michigan. Closed New Years Day.

All in the family

Monique Morgan (from left), Deborah Eckols and Suzanne Leslie Stark as Masha, Olga and Irina appear with David Sederholm as their brother Andrey in a scene from "The Three Sisters," by Anton Chekhov. This modern drama classic officially joins the Hilberry Theatre's repertory at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 12, following a preview Jan. 11. Tickets and schedule information are available at the box office, Cass and Hancock, Detroit, or by calling 577-2972.

Globies innovators

Few people are aware of the fact that the Harlem Globetrotters hold several firsts in the world of professional basketball.

The Globies, who will be at Detroit's Olympia on Sunday at 1 p.m., were the first professional team to have a preseason training camp. They are also the first to employ a full-time scout and the first professional cage team to have a farm club.

The first training camp took place prior to the 1940 season. The site was Sheboygan, Wis., at the Eagles Hall. Abe Saperstein, coach and former owner of the Globetrotters, brought his team into camp three weeks prior to the start of the season.

Scouting four decades ago was a lot easier when the Trotters were the only team surveying the market, but now every team boasts a sophisticated scouting system. Former pro coach Phil Brownstein heads the Trotter squad that travels more than 100,000 mimiles searching out the nation's top cagers.

But some players come to the team in a rather unorthodox way. One North Carolina player wrote for a tryout — although the system didn't discover him, he turned out pretty good. His name — Meadowlark Lemon.

Tickets are available at Olympia, Olympia Travel and Monggomery Ward stores. 895-7000 for more information.

2 of 3 get a degree

Two of three veterans who enter college-level training under the GI Bill usually obtain a degree, the Veterans Administration reports.

Rezoning hearing set for Wilcox property

A public hearing will be held Jan. 17 on a recommendation to rezone from multiple to commercial property at the northeast corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Union Street.

The property involves parcels now owned by Jack Wilcox, Raymond Masters and the Plymouth Grange. It is the same property which Forest City-Dillon had an option to buy in order to develop the proposed senior citizen apartment building.

Wilcox, key property owner involved, would now like to develop the property commercially in light of what he sees as a decision by the electorate that multiple-development is undesirable at that corner.

The public hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 17, in the city commission chambers upstairs of city hall.

THE PLANNING COMMISSION on Dec. 8 voted to recommend to the city commission the rezoning to commercial (B-2).

The planning members pointed out that the land had been rezoned to multiple for the specific purpose of accomodating the state and Forest City-Dillon for the proposed senior housing project. The land is surrounded on three sides by commercial uses, they reasoned, and should be returned to that use.

Monday night, City Commissioner Jack Moehle questioned the wisdom of the rezoning stating that last July the planning consultants advised a multiple rezoning because the property had been commercial for years and hadn't been developed.

"In view of the fact there was no apparent interest to develop the land into commercial use over a period of years, the planners recommended it should go residential. Now, why are the planners and planning commission changing their minds?"

Tex Thomas, chairman of the planning commission, said the rezoning had been requested by the state to facilitate the Forest City-Dillon project and that's the only reason multiple (RM-2) was recommended.

"These parcels are a toss-up — they can either be developed and function adequately as multiple or commercial. But the land cannot be used for residential unless a high-rise structure is used. But citizens have indicated an opposition to high-rise residential which leaves commercial as the remaining best use."

Commissioner Scott Dodge commented that the city's responsibility is to find the "highest and best use" for the property. "The Forest City-Dillon proposal was considered by the city to be the highest and best use. So now it's the city's obligation to find the next highest and best use which is why we should go commercial."

MOEHLE OBJECTED that the city didn't appear to be involved in real planning but was suggesting zoning changes to suit developers.

"I would hope we can have a long-range plan and not put up a few temporary buildings there and hope for the best. Personally, I wonder if commercial use facing Kellogg Park is best."

Thoman countered: "The professional and citizen planners did feel they had the best use for the city, and the voters said no. We cannot restrict this land to no use at all. If it's not going to be residential or commercial, and be left in an 'unzoned' condition, than we should notify the city treasurer that maybe it should be in a 'no tax' situation. Right now, it's been taxed commercial for a number of years."

The motion establishing the public hearing was approved 6-1, with Beverly McAninch voting no.

After the discussion, Wilcox told the Observer that Moehle was wrong that the land couldn't be developed commercial. "I have received many different offers and have had lots of opportunities to sell for business use. But none would have dignified the city and I rejected them all. The taxpayers and I should be given the flexibility of commercial zoning to get the greatest possible tax return from the property."

Local paving hearing set

A public hearing will be held Jan. 17 on proposals to pave five local streets in Plymouth during 1977.

The hearing on necessity will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the city commission chambers.

The plans call for the paving of: Hardenberg, from York to Holbrook; Spring, from Starkweather to Amelia; York, from Liberty to Hardenberg; Irvin, from Junction to the C&O railroad tracks; and Pearl, from York to Mill. All but Irvin are in the Old Village area.

The deep-strength asphalt paving, concrete curb and gutters is expected to cost a total of about $169,375.

For land zoned residential, the property owners would pay 60 per cent and the city 40 per cent of the cost if the project is approved.

For homeowners, the expected assessment cost would be $16.24 per front foot and $8.17 per sideline foot and for others $20.43 per front foot and $10.22 per sideline foot.

The Stroller . . . On Christmas

By W. W. EDGAR

Sitting, listening to Perry Como, one of his favorite singers giving voice to the traditional pre- Christmas lyric— "I'll be home for Christmas, but only in my dreams," The Stroller couldn't help murmuring, " You won't be alone, 'cause I'll be back there in my dreams, too."

As the words of the well-known number faded, The Stroller leaned back in his chair and allowed his memory to wander back into the yuletide of several decades ago when he made his first trip back to the Pennsylvania Dutch country to spend Christmas with his mother and what was left of our far-flung family.

This was quite an occasion— at least for our mother. For weeks she had counted the days until "her boy" would be home for the holidays and she wanted to celebrate it to the fullest.

To make the visit all the more important "her boy" was bringing his Michigan-born wife with him to show her the Dutch country and the extraordinary manner in which they celebrated Christmas with the famed "putz" displays in their homes. He wanted to show his new bride the star on Old South Mountain— a star erected by Bethlehem Steel Co. that could be seen for miles.

THE STROLLER also wanted to have her attend an old-fashioned service in the little white church atop the hill and enjoy many of the other expressions of the yuletide that aren't seen in toe Midwest.

But it was the thrill of being back home after many years that caused most of the joyful excitement. The Stroller's mother was anxious to make the visit a memorable one. She did.

Over the years mother was forced to be frugal. She wasted not a penny. She never purchased any type of food, for example, that she could make at home. And in othe ways she was careful. She had to be: funds didn't come easy in her widowhood.

But this year it was to be different. She was planning to splurge She wanted to show "her boy" and his wife the best of times and she was bent on going all out cause she didn't know when she'd have the chance to do it again.

The Stroller and his wife had no idea of the splurge until they arrived at the old home. Then, shortly after being welcomed all around, there was a rap at the rear door. It was the young man with a turkey in his arms.

Mother rushed to the door as soon as she spotted him. Without ever looking at the size of the package, she asked, "Is this the biggest turkey in town?"

THE YOUNG LAD stood quite for a minute, then answered "No". Mother came right back with, "I told you I wanted the biggest in town. If this isn't the biggest, who has it?

When the delivery boy answered, "Mr. Thomas," Mother retorted, That's all right. He is the richest man in town but I wanted it."

That was the start of one of the wildest times The Stroller ever has known at Christmas. The bird weighed 22 pounds. Horror of horrors, mother and The Stroller's sister, didn't have a roaster big enough to hold the bird.

What to do? It was a problem. Then Sis remembered that Hauser's bakery, one of the town's standbys, was roasting turkeys for a few other people. A telephone call settled that problem. Mr. Hauser would roast the turkey and have it ready at any designated time.

In the next few hours the kitchen was a busy place as the women folk prepared the stuffing and got the bird ready for the oven.

That was oy part of the solution, however. On Christmas Day, when The Stroller brought the bird back from the bakery, there was no platter large enough to hold it! There was only one thing to do— place the pan and bird right on table. That did the trick— but there was no gravy.

No one seemed to mind, much less mother. She sat serenely at the table, her face aglow with happiness.

It was an odd sight at that Christmas dinner table as each diner reached for a share of the turkey amid warning from mother that she had baked pie and we should "save some room."

What a feast it was— the turkey on a roasting pan in the center of the table and the pie served in the pan.

But above it all there sat mother, unmindful of the manner in which the dinner was served.

Her boy— and his wife— were home. That was all that counted.

The woman who cooked that special feast has long passed to the Great Beyond. But the memory of the last Christmas dinner with her will always remain green.

So, why don't you make sure that you'll be home with you mother this Christmas. It may be a memory that you never forget.

SC to ask state to add a trustee

Schoolcraft College trustees will ask the Michigan Legislature to increase the board's membership from eight members to nine, all to be elected at large.

Trustees decided—in some cases, grudgingly—against seeking a plan that would allow each of the five K-12 school districts to have a minimum of one seat on the community college board.

The board approved the nine-at-large plan after failing to muster a majority for Vice Chairperson Rosina Raymond's proposal to submit the question to the voters.

BATTLES OVER the makeup of Schoolcraft's board have raged for years.

When the college was created by a special act of the legislature in 1961, each K-12 district had one seat and three trustees were elected at large for a total of eight.

In 1971, the New Democratic Coalition of Livonia brought a suit challenging the constitutionality of that setup. It argued the Schoolcraft plan violated the "one person, one vote" rule of the U.S. Constitution.

The Livonia School District, with approximately 50 per cent of the college district's population, was treated the same as Clarenceville and Northville, with only five per cent of the population.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Roland Olzard ordered all eight trustees to be elected at large, at least until the legislature could draw up a constitutional apportionment plan.

But the legislature never drew up a new plan, primarily because Schoolcraft trustees themselves were unable to agree.

Currently, four trustees are Livonia residents—Chairman Paul Kadish, Vice Chairperson Rosina Raymond, Treasurer. Nancie Blatt and trustee Ronald Cowden; two are Plymouth residents—Arch Vallier and Leroy Bennett and one is a Garden City resident—Dr. Gerald Cox. Clarenceville and Northville have nor representatives on the board.

MRS. RAYMOND preferred giving each local district at least one seat on the college board.

"If we don't, we will lose their support because they won't feel a part of this college.

"When we needed the money from some of these smaller areas, such as Clarenceville, they were there, and they are entitled to a vote," she said.

Mrs. Blatt replied: "If they were elected from a (K-12) district, they might represent only that district and not the rest of the college."

Cowden added: "It is possible under the district plan for the bigger vote-getter to be defeated. That isn't fair."

HAVING A nine-member board will improve board operations, the trustees decided.

For one thing, a ninth vote could be a tie-breaker. There have been times in the past when the board couldn't elect a chairman because of a 4-4 tie.

Having more members will also bring more points of view to the board.

Finally, matters requiring a two-thirds vote will need six votes, whether total board size is eight or nine, since it will be easier to muster a two-thirds vote with nine trustees.

MRS. RAYMOND was unsuccessful in her bid to put the entire question before the voters.

"We ask the people for money; we should ask them how to run the college," she said. "We were not elected to be authoritarian. We should ask the people. This has a lot to do with community rapport. I could make the decision, but I prefer to take it to the people."

Mrs. Blatt countered: "It is our responsibility to decide this matter. I don't think the public really cares how we are elected. Many other things are more important. It's up to us to set policy. Why are we here if not to set policy?"

Dr. Cox remarked: "To take it to the public is to admit that we are too stupid to figure it out ourselves."

Senior's high-rise plan ignored citizen opinion

(The following letter is being reprinted because an important passage was unintentionally omitted when published in the Observer on Dec. 20)
Editor:

After readingthe editorial opinion in the Dec. 9 edition of the Observer one wonders what the paper sees as its role in the senior citizen housing controversy currently raging in this community. The Observer seems unwilling to accept the fact that the citizens of Plymouth overwhelmingly rejected the notion that an 11-story high-rise apartment for senior citizens in downtown Plymouth was necessary or desirable.

The editor, in his article, suggests that the city commission did the best possible job in researching and studying all possible alternatives to meet and solve the housing needs of the senior citizens in the Plymouth community.

In truth, this hardly seems to be the case. Most of the planning for this project seems to have been reserved to a rather tight-knit group working in concert with the developer. No apparent effort was made to seek any citizen input prior to the project becoming a reality, and there is little evidence to indicate any other plan being considered.

It was only when concerned citizens became aware of the magnitude of the plans being formulated that the full scope of this project was laid before the local citizens.

At this point it should have been clear to the elected officials who were supporting the high-rise, as well as to the Observer, that there was substantial opposition to the plan as presented. This is not to say that those in opposition were ignoring the needs of our senior citizens. To the contrary, while they opposed the specific proposal presented, which ultimately was found to be highly unsatisfactory by the city's voters, they recognized and advocated the need to search for viable alternatives. At no time did they claim to have those alternatives all researched, analyzed and ready to be substituted for the plan which was rejected.

What they asked for was that the entire problem be considered both from the needs of the senior citizens and the community as a whole.

So, if the editor of the Observer is confused by all this, I suspect he's the only one. Rather than lament the demise of the original plan and cast criticism at those who, for good reason, obposed it, he should join in the efforts of the interested citizens of the community to get going on a plan which will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Help elderly stay at home

Editor:

Of all the things that has been proposed for the help of senior citizens, such as building housing and the likes, here are a few things which could help those senior citizens who stay in their own homes.

First and most important, take the school tax off from senior citizens. Why should they pay school taxes on their homes?

The Rotary and other clubs looking for a project might want to consider shoveling off snow from sidewalks of senior citizens.

I am sure there are many more things which could be done to help those who want to stay in their own homes to do so, but inflation, and especially school taxes, are the heaviest burdens on senior citizens today.

A 'Sword of Damocles' dangling over teachers

Editor:

I am a first grade teacher at Starkweather School who has had for 21 of my going on 22 years, a very happy, fulfilled, contented service in the Plymouth schools. I've been more than proud of being part of a well-known and widely-respected school system. Teachers and administration have had a "healthy" give-and-take two-way street of interaction to maintain and improve quality education in Plymouth.

This year there is no contract in spite of a long negotiation period which is just about at a standstill. There are even times when the board refuses to meet with the Plymouth Education Association negotiating team because the board's team is "too busy."

Teachers are in a state of limbo. We are allowed to have a "closed shop" union situation on one hand (as do so many other American groups) yet, unlike other first-class citizens, teachers are unique in that we are forbidden by law to use the "big stick" of striking! Sometimes we feel like the board negotiators are like cats playing "heavies" with us as the smaller, rendered-weak-by-law mice!

The "Sword of Damocles" hangs heavy over our heads since teachers do not want to strike, nor can we do so without the double jeopardy of breaking the law or losing the positions we hold so dear to our hearts and pocketbooks.

Our employers—not the board—but you, the people of Plymouth, have voted for extra millage to provide quality education for their youngsters. To insure that type of education there certainly should be provisions for fair and adequate salaries in line with inflation for the teachers who are front line soldiers in the field and war to train the children to cope with life in every way. Yet, the board, servants, too, as we are, disregards the the peoples' mandate.

I respectfully urge that the courts compel both negotiating teams to negotiate around the clock. Enough of this holding Plymouth teachers over a barrel.

How about a revote on housing referendum?

Editor:

In a recent letter to the Observer, Joanne Fechter of CORP apologized to Plymouth's senior citizens for CORP's leadership which killed the housing project on the Wilcox site. She had a very interesting comparision with the purchase of a suit. "Never buy the first one you look at" was her advice.

Let's tell the whole story and put names to the characters.

IT WAS A very cold winter (economic climate) and one of the children (senior citizens) had no suit and was cold.

His parents (the city commission) looked at several different suits and decided on the one they thought was best. They even got the grandparents (federal government) to agree to pay for it so the family budget would not be upset. They agreed that of all the suits available, this one was best.

As it was being wrapped up, one of the other children, one who had a warm, expensive suit for himself (CORP) saw the selection. "I don't like the color," he lamented. "It will clash with mine But after the rejection, the one who had promised the alternative couldn't produce it. "Oh, I only promised to help you look for one," he said.

So they looked and looked—it took a long time. And sure enough, eventually they found a suit that pleased them even though it cost much more. But the child who needed it didn't need it anymore. He had frozen in the cruel winter.

MANY WHO VOTED impulsively for rejection of the Wilcox site project are now having second thoughts in view of the demonstrated urgent needs of our older residents and the recognition that present ordinances do permit other high-rise construction without voter approval.

Is it too late to grasp this opportunity? Could the city commission schedule a revote on the question? Would Forest City and Jack Wilcox be willing to continue development plans? Almost $6 million in federal funding could be spent here in Plymouth for this project. Any locally financed plan would mean higher rents for residents in the project and higher taxes for all others in our city. We think the city should take some sample polls and schedule another election if sentiment has changed as much as it appears to have.

Smith outspent rival by 4-1

Royce E. Smith (D-Belleville) outspent his opponent, Owen G. Arrowsmith, in winning his second term as Wayne County commissioner from district 27.

The Wayne County Clerk's office reports Smith spent $2,327 on his campaign. Arrowsmith, a Republican from Wayne spent $586. Arrowsmith had no campaign contributions and incurred a $577 debt.

Smith raised $1,795 at a fund raising party and has no debt from the campaign.

No state aid to SC 'leisure courses'

Community colleges in Michigan have come under legislative attack for offering "leisure-time" non-academic classes that are funded by scarce state dollars.

Schoolcraft College has a program entitled "Community Services" but the program is self-supporting and uses no state funds.

"As long as the program is self-supporting," said board Vice-Chairperson Rosina Raymond, "I believe it to be justifiable."

The total state subsidy for leisure time classes ran as high as $7 million in 1975, according to state estimates, and was substantially reduced by the legislature earlier this year. Yet, between $2.5 and $3 million is expected to be spent on leisure time course study during the school year. Twenty-six of the 29 community colleges in the state offer leisure time courses.

Lesiure time course titles have included fake fur flowers, reading and interpreting the Wall Street Journal, blintzes and crepes and all about booze.

"Who is to judge what is a class and what isn't?" said Mrs. Raymond. "It is a fine line indeed between a worthy class and one that isn't worthy. Community Colleges must serve a community and it must offer a wide variety of classes."

Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote and Community Services Director Ron Griffith were to meet state officals in Lansing Wednesday where the issue will be discussed.

"This whole matter is not good publicity and it may hurt Schoolcraft," said Mrs. Raymond. "It is wrong for the policies of a few schools to reflect upon the other schools in the state. I feel the Community Services program is providing a fine service."

Small classes may be dropped

In a move to cut costs by eliminating very small classes, the Schoolcraft College board ordered administrative review of every class for which fewer than 12 students enroll.

Previously, only classes smaller than 10 students were subject to such administrative review.

The change does not mean all classes of 11 or fewer will be automatically canceled. If, for example, students needed a course for a program requirement, the administration would presumably continue it.

The board vote was 6-1. Dissenter was trustee Mark McQuesten, who said, "I'm not happy with the situation, and I'm sure the administration isn't either. We have to serve those students who are not full-time students."

"It's an economic thing. It shows the fiscal responsibility of Schoolcraft," replied Nancie Blatt, board treasurer.

The policy takes effect with the winter semester, which begins next month.

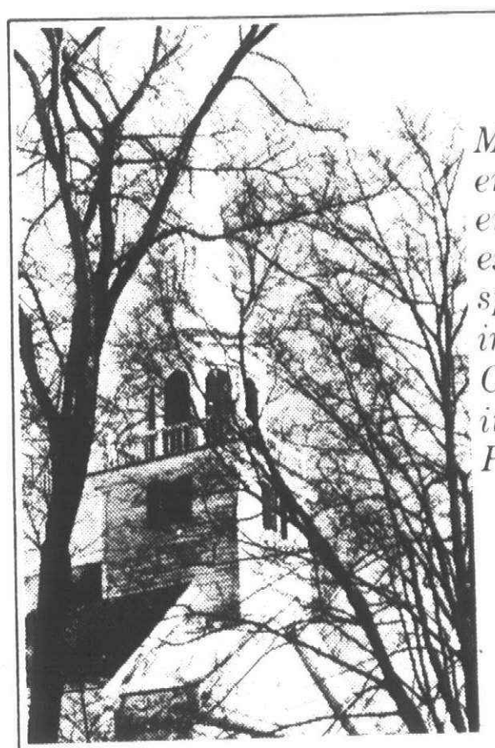

Plymouthite honored

The Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau has elected new directors to serve three-year terms beginning in January. Among the new appointees is Richard Hoerner of Plymouth.

Hoerner, vice-president of American Airlines, was one of seven men selected by the bureau as director. Seven other men were given one-year terms on the bureau's board.

Bum law is the culprit

Everyone is trying to find a culprit in the Wayne County Board of Canvassers decision not to recount the absentee precinct in Canton Township.

The four-member board of canvassers has received a great deal of criticism.

Some fingers have been pointed in the direction of Joe Martina, Wayne County's director of elections, who told Canton Clerk John Flodin before the election that it would be perfectly all right for township pollworkers to vote at the precinct in which they worked.

But Flodin did not tell the women in the absentee ballot precinct to make sure that their votes were also on paper absentee ballots. No attempt was made to separate the 15 votes cast by pollworkers from the 1,308 paper ballots that were entered on the machines.

In checking a paper ballot precinct, the county election workers and the candidate's representatives look over each paper ballot to see if that ballot is marked correctly and to mark down the choices of the voters.

To reduce this whole, complicated legal mess to a simple explanation, assume that there were 12 total votes entered on the machine in the absentee precinct which was used by pollworkers to tally the totals of the paper ballots. Assume that three pollworkers voted directly on that machine without filling out a paper ballot first and there were only nine paper ballots.

Let's say the machine's number counter on election night showed seven votes for Eugene Daley and five votes for Jim Poole. With the missing three paper ballots, there would be no way of telling if Daley's seven vote total included votes that were entered on the machine by mistake.

A pollworker at the absentee precinct could very well have made a mistake while she was taking the votes off a paper ballot and entering them on the voting machine for totals. Using the above example, either Poole or Daley could have wrongly benefitted from this mistake. Since you can't go back after the election and ask the pollworkers how they voted, there is no way to successfully reconstruct the count in the absentee precinct.

From now on, Martina says he will tell Wayne County's township clerks to make sure that the pollworkers in an absentee ballot either vote absentee themselves or vote on a machine that is not used to tabulate paper vote totals. This is Monday morning quarterbacking at its most frustrating.

Flodin thought he was following the letter of the law and figured he was protecting himself after asking Martina if the pollworkers could vote at the same precinct in which they worked.

Since other townships have successfully conducted recounts in absentee ballot precincts, maybe those clerks had enough foresight to see the impossibility of reconstructing the vote in a precinct with mixed paper and machine votes.

It was an honest, if unfortunate, lack of foresight on the part of Martina and Flodin, if anyone's the least bit to blame for the lack of a recount in Precinct 10.

Martina and Denzil Hammond, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Canvassers, both said they had never encountered that particular problem before and, as such, were unprepared for it.

The Michigan Legislature must eliminate the ambiguity in the law on which the canvassers based their decision. The law allows precinct workers to vote in absentee precincts, but if the numbers on the voting machines don't match the number of paper ballots on the tally sheet, then that is one criteria for not allowing a recount. The numbers will never match—unless the law includes a new section stating that these pollworkers must vote by absentee or on a separate machine.

Schoolcraft merits attention

Remember Schoolcraft College? That's the thing that comes after your local K-12 school district on the June ballot. That's the thing many voters ignore. That's the thing people vote against after they have voted in favor of their local district's millage request.

Next April, it will be hard for voters in the Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth districts to relegate Schoolcraft to second place in their community thinking. The college will ask for a property tax increase of about a half-mill in a special election.

It's essentially the same proposal that was defeated last June. Where there was no local millage on the ballot, voters favored the Schoolcraft College request. But where the local K-12 district was asking for more, voters generally approved it but stomped on the Schoolcraft request.

The special election will cost money, to be sure, but consider the alternative: constant defeat; constant taking of second place in the voters' attention; constant belt-tightening.

In a special election, the Schoolcraft millage request will get the voters' undivided attention. The issues and problems can be debated more thoroughly. And maybe people will start to realize what a valuable educational institution, community asset and cultural resource they have.

How to punish drivers who park in the fire lane

Tim Richard

They are worse than the Grinch who stole Christmas, the pre-reformed Scrooge. They belong no higher than the seventh ring of Dante's "Inferno."

They are the drivers who park in the fire lanes of shopping centers. They are numerous and wicked any season of the year, but they are at their most evil and numerous during winter.

The fire lane has two purposes: In normal times, it carries traffic; in an emergency, it affords a fire truck or rescue vehicle a place to stop on a lifesaving mission.

But to the slobs too lazy to park their cars in the lot and walk 50 feet to the store, the fire lane is just a dandy place to park.

THE FIRE LANE parkers are like a religious group in the sense that they come in both sexes and most ages.

Just when you think bald men are the biggest offenders, a housewife or a teenage girl—or both—will park in the fire lane, obstructing traffic, turning what used to be three driving lanes into one.

Oddly, the 16- to 30-year-old males, the drivers with the most speeding tickets and drunk driving arrests, are rarely to be found parked in fire lanes.

A favorite trick of the older male is to drop off the lady of the house at curbside and then sit there with the engine idling. He thinks he is presenting a picture of someone just "standing." But if you clock him, you'll find he's really parking—and burning up precious fossil fuel to indulge his laziness.

SOME TOWNS have ordinances on the topic, but you can't expect enforcement.

Suburban parking lots are private property, and the gendarmes are in no rush to police them. So at the present rate of enforcement, a person who parks in a fire lane can expect to get away with it roughly forever. Police have dope pushers to catch, burglars to track down, youthful speeders to apprehend; they can't be bothered with cleaning the crud out of shopping center fire lanes.

WHAT CAN HONEST laypersons do about these offenders?

One thing that doesn't work is to attract the driver's attention and point to the "no parking—fire lane" sign. If it's a woman, she won't look. If it's a man, he will smile broadly and wave to you.

I read once, probably in Reader's Digest, of a four-door sedan which came to a stop in the crosswalk of a busy New York street. An annoyed pedestrian got into one door, slid across the seat, exited by the other door—and left both doors flapping in the breeze.

Another possibility, if you have good traction on your shoes, is to walk across the hood of the offender's car. Usually, the people who park in fire lanes have fairly nice, shiny vehicles, so this tactic is liable to make them take notice. You could even twist on the balls of your feet so that the grit in your shoes grinds into the car's finish.

Carrying a can of spray paint is a third possibility, but it smacks of vandalism. In the same way that judges jail reporters who expose governmental secrecy and not the officials who practice it, you can expect that you'd be punished for spray-painting a bad guy's car, but the bad guy would never be punished for parking in a fire lane.

Or you could let the air out of the guy's tire. There is no real vandalism involved, and the owner of the car would probably get the message.

JOINING THE RANKS of those who park in fire lanes are the sound of limb who park in the spaces reserved for the handicapped.

I watch because three of my handicapped friends have made me pretty sensitive on this point. I have yet to see a handicapped person emerge from a vehicle in a handicapped parking zone.

And at the risk of offending my girlfriends in NOW, I must report that 90 per cent of the persons I see who park illegally in handicapped zones are female.

Regardless of race, sex or creed, these offenders belong in the eighth ring of Dante's "Inferno."

Christmas should be day to begin season's spirit

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

Recently a clergyman suggested that Christmas be postponed for two weeks. He explained his suggestion by saying that the way Americans celebrate Christmastime, it is really a materialistic holiday rather than a spiritual one.

His thought was that the spiritual holiday should come two weeks later allowing everyone to get the things relating to Santa Claus and cocktail parties out of the way, thereby assuring a less rushed time for the actual celebration of Christ's birth.

Since historians tell us that Dec. 25 is actually not His birthday, but sort of the average date between the Festival of Lights and the Feast of the Epiphany, the change would not be dishonoring the Christ child's birth.

TO A LOT OF PEOPLE his suggestion seems not too bad an idea. The events leading up to Christmas can make one physically very tired. When you are physically tired, it is hard to be happy and jovial. As a matter of fact, most people have the grumpies.

But Christmas should not be judged by how one feels two days before. Christmas should be judged after the tree is trimmed and the fire is glowing and the packages are wrapped, when the carolers can be heard singing, and the calm of the season has descended.

Christmas is a time when the family is together and the children are happy and a large part of the world is thinking about its fellow men in terms of peace and kindness.

The Christmas spirit is not the buying, but the giving.

It is not the parties, but the fellowship.

It is not how well off one is, but what can be done for others.

IF CHRISTMAS WERE postponed for two weeks, we would only be extending the exhausting preparation period, and it is this preparation, not the actual celebration of Christmas, that wears us out and makes us question whether or not we are doing the right thing.

Let's continue to celebrate Christmas on its traditional day, but now that most of the preparations are completed for this year, let's try to make that traditional day a more significant one.

Let's not let Christmas end when the packages are unwrapped. Let's make it a day of resolve that the peace and tranquility that is felt on that morn is something we will encourage the whole year round. Let's use Christmas to become a people of good will, and let that spirit prevail the whole year long. If everybody did this, what the angels said on that first Christmas morn would come true, "Peace on Earth."

The sisters make a case

Madonna serves with quality, independence

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Dressed in their plain dark brown habits, the two Sisters perched excitedly on the edge of the couch in my office. They were a little nervous, since they were doing something they had never done before—raising money.

But their enthusiasm carried them through the difficult questions and the skepticism onto the high ground of the very real achievements of the institution.

Madonna College was founded in 1937 with a total student body of 10. Originally tucked away on the grounds of its sponsor, the Felician Sisters in Livonia, today it has grown into a four-year coeducational attractive campus, complete with modern laboratories and classrooms, and a dedicated corps of Sisters who make the place hum with activity, scholarship and good humor.

The college's reputation is founded on its commitment to provide help for marginal and minority students and to give entry or re-entry into the process of higher education to older students. The student body is mostly women, but a remarkable 46 per cent are adults from 25 to 40 years old and another 17 per cent are 41 or older. Seventeen per cent of the students are members of minority groups—American Indians, blacks, Orientals, and Spanish Americans.

MADONNA'S program is equally unusual. Part of it is the usual solid basic curriculum that makes up the heart of any four-year college. But its nursing program (in association with nearby St. Mary's Hospital) and its curriculum in criminal justice are outstanding. Recently, the college added special programs, perhaps unique in Michigan, for the deaf (complete with instruction in sign language for teachers who lecture to deaf students) and in gerontology. Specializing in the problems and opportunities of the elderly, the gerontology program is an outstanding example of the ability of a small, private college to provide services in a new and flexible way to meet the needs of the elderly in our society. The college has trained nearly 500 as volunteer probation officers and volunteers to assist the aging.

IN THE 40 YEARS since its foundation, Madonna College has remained a private school. Unlike nearby Schoolcraft College, it receives no property tax millage from local citizens. And unlike Oakland University, it receives no direct appropriations from the state legislature.

Except for specific government grants for new programs, the college receives no governmental appropriations at all.

So where does the money come from? Two-thirds of the $3 million annual budget comes from tuition and fees. But nearly $700,000 comes from gifts, mostly from the Felician Sisters themselves.

More to the point, the college has run itself so effectively that its budget is in balance.

BUT MADONNA, like all proivate colleges in the country, is caught in a vice grip of economics.

It wants to remain private and free of the entangling web of dependancy on government handouts. At the same time, costs continue to rise.

Madonna wants to continue to keep providing financial support to the 70 per cent of its students who now receive it. Which means that to continue to raise tuition fees is in conflict with its commitment to serve middle- and lower-income students.

The choice facing the college was clear: Either hoke up some programs and go to the government for a set of handouts, or launch a private fund-raising program. The answer was clear: "Madonna College carries on the tradition of free enterprise in American education—the freedom to experiment, to challenge and innovate, and to initiate a diversity of approaches to educational methods."

THE SISTERS who run Madonna College have just launched a continuing effort to involve ordinary people in the private sector in the continued progress of their institution.

They are visiting people throughout the suburbs who have a child or relative or friend who has received a fine education from Madonna. They are going to suburban businesses and friends who have seen their communities become better places through Madonna's work in training probation officers and sheriff's deputies. They are talking with people who have seen the horizons of the deaf or elderly immeasurably expanded through the work of the college.

They may be inexperienced in the field, but the Sisters are doing a good job at their fund raising. They do not do it with a fancy brochures and high-pressure pitches. They do it in a low key, with a vast amount of dedication and concern, and they have a real record of achievement in meeting needs and providing community service to talk about.

This isn't a pitch for giving money to Madonna College, but if a friendly Sister or a supporter of Madonna comes to see you about raising money, please don't tell them "no" without giving them a chance to make their case. It's a good one.

Choreography students have painted their faces to resemble the masks worn by the chorus in Greek drama.

Humanities in school

"Raindrops keep falling on my head." That corresponds to Noah. "King of the Road." That's Ulysses' These are examples of the light-hearted but thought-provoking test choices that students in the Centennial Educational Park humanities class must answer.

They also delve into the philosophy, history, art, architecture, drama, music and sociology of great civilizations through the centuries. More than 100 juniors and seniors from Plymouth Canton and Salem High schools have selected the two-semester humanities class, new this year.

English teachers Ruth Tonner, Debra Hatcher, and Cynthia Burnstein developed the class to give students a broad survey of many areas of culture. They recruit guest lecturers and exhibits from school staff, acquaintances, and outside "experts."

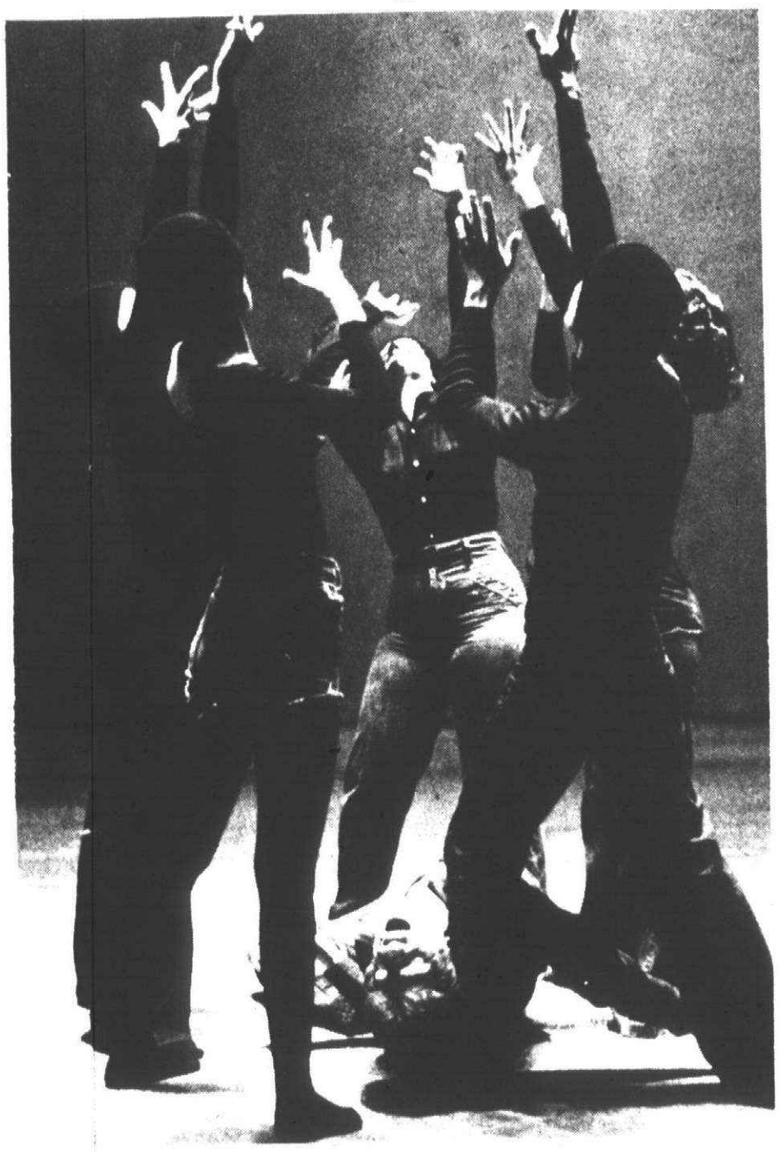

Not only have the students heard talks and seen slides and movies, but their learning experiences have included dramatic presentations and musical performances.

The presentation by drama director Gloria Logan on Greek drama included a demonstration by students in the independent study class in choreography. They enacted a Greek ode by Euripides.

In the two semesters of large and small group presentations, discussions, reading assignments, projects, and research papers, the students' scope in humanities class will span from prehistoric man to the future.

Topics studied include Greek mythology and philosophy, Roman literature, Arab civilization, Byzantine architecture, medieval music and modern art.

Students are introduced to the Renaissance, art and music theory, and comparisons of different eras.

High school students in the independent choreography class call on Dionysius for aid during their presentation of a Greek ode to the humanities class. (Photos by CEP Yearbook Staff)

Chrismon tree

Families in the First Baptist Church of Plymouth contributed the Chrismons, religious symbols in white and gold, for the tree being appreciated by Mark McKenney and Beverly Hays. The two young people led a service of dedication, pointing out that all the symbols featured in the Chrismons, including a cross, a star, a rose, a circle, and a manger, represent some aspect in the character or life of the infant Jesus. Mrs. David Karper directed the project, and the service included music by the sanctuary choir led by Mrs. Richard Kay.

An old-fashioned Christmas

Once nature adorned the holiday scene

Sandy Ritter hangs her candles in place. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Step into the early 18th century and a very traditional Christmas at the home of Gary and Sandy Ritter of Reygate Drive in Canton.

A little bit of country living abounds in the Ritter's modern ranch housé. "We're trying to blend the old with the new" says Sandy. "Just like the early colonial women, this is my favoirte time of year."

THE WHOLE HOUSE is decorated for the holidays with fresh greens, herbs, dried fruit, and candles.

In the early days people used what was available to spruce up their homes for Christmas. The average family took most of the things from their garden and turned them into decorations. Sandy and Gary, along with their five year old daughter Lisa, continue this tradition every year.

Boxwood green wreaths hang from every window with a large one greeting visitors at the front door. More boxwood lays across the windowsill in the livingroom with a candle in the center. Because a real candle could not be lit an electric one is used with a white bulb to give the right affect.

The Douglas Fir stands in the familyroom almost reaching the ceiling. The only modern thing on the Christmas tree is the colored lights. The little candle holders with white candles are lit and immediately put out to give the appearance of use.

Hanging from the branches are wooden ornaments, antique cookie cutters, dried fruit, and nuts. Popcorn and cranberries are strung every year by Sandy and Lisa for a very festive look.

Pearched on top is a paper mache angel made in Mexico that the Ritters purchased for their first tree and has great sentimental value.

"When I go shopping and I see something that makes me smile, I buy it" says Sandy. Everything on the tree has been picked with loving care. All the furnishings and the many antiques throughout her home have been choosen the same way.

"Now that Lisa has started school she's been making things for the tree," Sandy explains. "We'll add all her art work so the tree will continue to be different every year."

Fresh Austrian Pine is spread across the mantle. A pineapple, the sign of early American hospitality, stands in the middle flanked by a variety of red candles. There are two hand carved stars, pine cones, dried lemons, osage oranges, and osage flowers with cranberry centers. Also a string of crandberries for color and a tiny Christmas mouse gives the finishing touch to this arrangement.

The famous Williamsburg pineapple-apple tree made by Sandy every year is in the dining area. This year she also made one using lemons instead of apples which sits by the front door giving off a fresh scent throughout the house.

AS A CENTERPIECE on the antique kitchen table sits a bowl of pomadores. They are made by sticking whole cloves into oranges. They are then dreid out and last indefinetly. The Ritters make about a dozen every year and Sandy hopes to soon have enough to fill a large basket. They have a very pleasing aroma.

What is a Christmas without homemade candles? Sandy oand dips and makes some in molds. She makes them from natural bees wax and for the holiday the bayberry candles are tradition. "The bayberry candles are getting a little expensive to make" says Sandy. It takes thirteen pounds of berries to make one pound of wax. She has to send to Massachuttes for the berries.

Sandy has her own herbal garden in the backyard. She explained that there are three different purposes for herbs. One of course is for cooking. Some are used for medicines and others are used for their scent and color. She takes some of her herbs and dies her hand hooked rugs with them. At Christmas time, however, she makes a herbal wreath.

The wreath is made of Silver King Armentesia as the background, with lavender and yarrow for color, the bee balm flower gives it the finishing touch. The wreath hangs in the kitchen and is used for beauty and scent. Sandy thinks the wreath must be made fresh every year. When the holiday season is over she crunches it up and it goes back into her garden as mulch.

There is a sprig of green everywhere one looks throughout the house. Behind every sconce and picture, Sandy has tied bows on all her candles, and there are many, to give a real festive look everywhere ones eyes may glance.

THE RITTER'S HOME is done in the period that Sandy refers to as folk art. When she says early American she is talking about very early 18th century. The decor is done in all originals or reproductions of early coloinal settlers. Not your wealthy class of people of the time, but rather the average farmer.

There furniture is not refinished but has the original paint and stain. Everything has a history and a identity all its own.

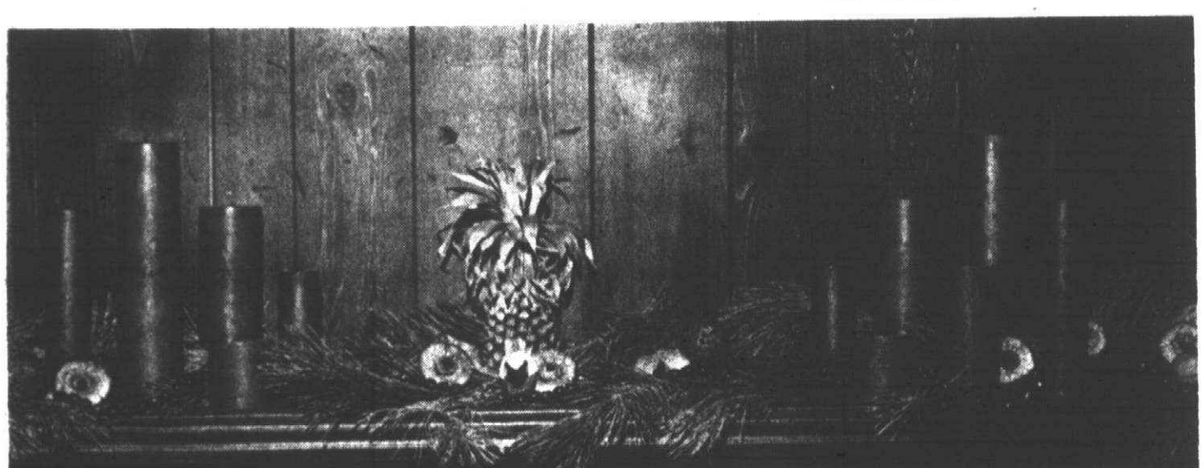

Sandy is from rural Manchester and considers herself a real country girl at heart. She has taken classes at Greenfield Village to learn how to do all the things she does. She dries all her own fruit. She explained the process and it takes quite a long time to do. The pineapple takes the longest to dry out, six months. There is fruit drying in the dining room, hanging from hooks in a special corner.

From her kitchen window hangs all the herbs that have been harvested from the garden that are in the drying out process. From the kitchen ceiling hangs all her special antique baskets.

Everything the Ritters own is put to use. Her antique cookie cutters, her nut grinder, tea pot, pewter dishes, and even her cherished baskets. "I love antiques" says Sandy, "but they must be servicable or I won't buy them."

Everything they have during the holidays goes back to nature one way or another. The Christmas tree branches are used as mulch for the garden and the trunk is used as fire wood. All the fruits from the various arrangements are cut up and fed to the birds and squirrels along with the popcorn and cranberries.

When the Ritters are expecting company at this time of year the pathway to their front door is lit by candles sitting in paper bags filled with sand, which is another Williamsburg custom. What a warm welcome into this charming and original home.

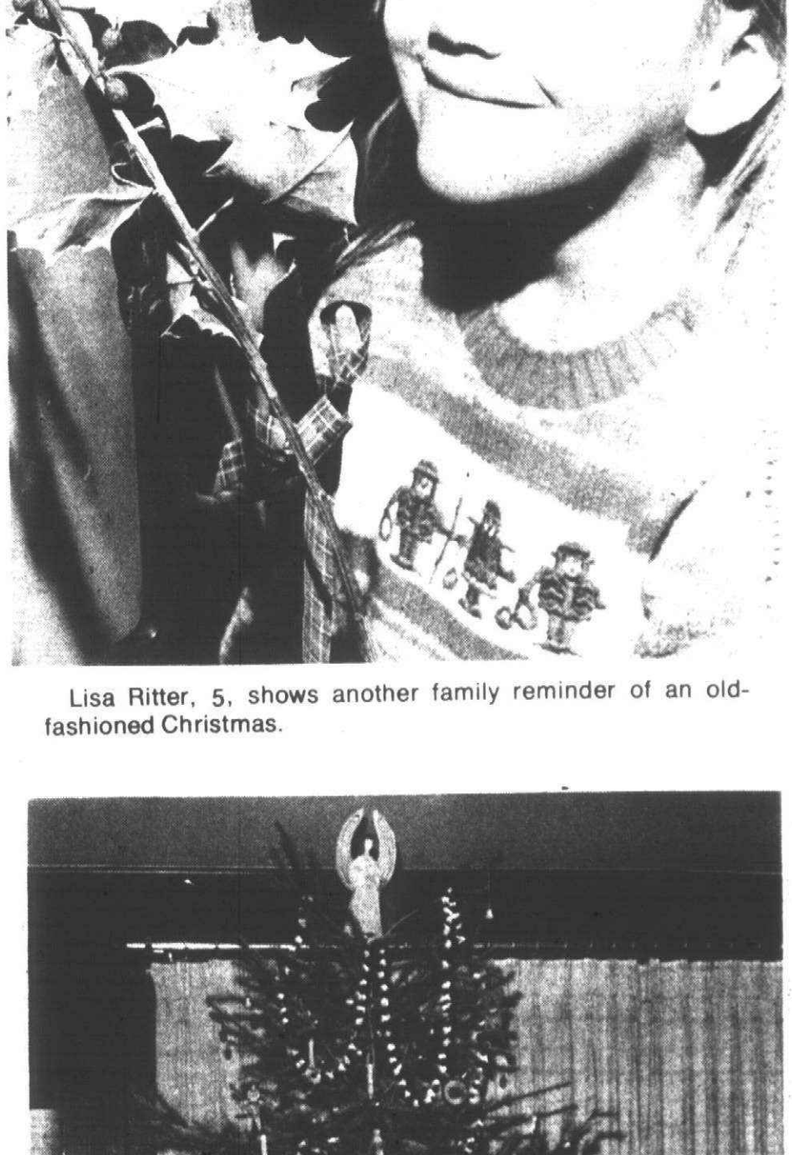

The mantle is adorned with pine boughs, dried pineapple and holiday candles.

Lisa Ritter, 5, shows another family reminder of an old-fashioned Christmas.

Dried herbs hang above the kitchen sink.

What's an old-fashioned Christmas tree without popcorn strings.

How others celebrate

Family traditions of the season

Gail McKnight of Westland manages to make special cookies at Christmas—no matter what other projects have to go by the board because of the press of time.

Linnea Saffell of Garden City gets out a houseful of special decorations, including a red, white and green Christmas flag.

Vickie Shemwell of Westland and her son and daughter combine their efforts for very special family Christmas cards.

Betty Shaw of Redford Township can't forget her responsibilities for beautifying her home area even at Christmas time. She makes sure that the tree in front of the township hall has its gay apparel, including some foil-wrapped packages tied to its branches.

Livonia Councilman Jerry Raymond personally sees to it that Santa Claus roosts on his rooftop each Christmas—and keeps the neighborhood guessing as to how the man of the hour gets there.

There probably is no time in the year when tradition means more to everyone, or when tradition becomes more personalized. For many families, there's only one way to do things at Christmas.

COOKIE-BAKING in the home of Dick and Gail McKnight was a little delayed this year, because it wasn't until this week that Gail completed finals at Wayne State University.

But the family managed a batch or two early in the month, and that was better than last year when the real cookie session waited until Christmas Day.

"We hadn't found time earlier," Gail said, "and then it turned out we couldn't go visiting relatives as we had planned to do Christmas afternoon. We really enjoyed making the cookies instead."

Her recipe, she said, is for a simple butter cookie, "but it's in my mother's handwriting, so it's important to us."

One other thing Gail always does at Christmas time is knit a Christmas stocking for any new baby in her or Dick's clans.

"Nothing will prevent me from doing those two things," she said.

The McKnights go for the simple home decoration, especially the things the children make.

"Now that our son is 7, we have quite a collection of Teddy ornaments, and we like to use them," she said.

FOR LINNEA SAFFELL, the unusual Christmas flag that she puts out on a standard is just one of lot of seasonal decorations she enjoys displaying.

"I'm a Christmassy person," she said, "and I tend to start after one Christmas preparing for the next. We have a lot of decorations—Scandanavian things sent from the old country when I was little, and a lot of things my daughters and I have made."

One of those things is a Santa doll—"our jolly old elf"—and another is the flag, sewed about 10 years ago when the Saffells moved to their present home in Garden City.

"We had the standard for the American flag and I thought one for Christmas would be a good idea. It's a holly design so it can be easy to recognize."

Mrs. Saffell has let up on another project that was Christmas tradition for several years—a cookie exchange. "People seemed to be just too busy and some were working," she said, "so I stopped having the gathering, and then I started hearing about how much it was missed."

VICKIE SHEMWELL, son Chris and daughter Cindy also were ready to give up their family project—Christmas cards. They had made them for 10 years and were going to stop, but by popular demand of their friends, they turned out one for for Christmas 1976.

Chris drew the design, as he's been doing since he was in kindergarten, and Cindy wrote the message, a custom begun when she started school.

Their mother was the message composer until then.

Now that Chris is a student at Churchill High School and Cindy attends eighth grade at Lowell Junior High, the Shemwells thought 10 years of cards might be enough.

"But several people mentioned they were looking forward to our cards, so we decided to do one more," Mrs. Shemwell said.

Miss Auto finalist

Sherrie Tipton, 23, a dental technician and Plymouth resident, was one of 25 finalists among hundreds of entrants eyeing the Miss Detroit Auto Show title. Miss Tipton attended Wayne Community College and appeared before a judging committee at the Hotel Pontchartrain. The Detroit Auto Show will be in Cobo Hall Jan. 15-23. The winner of the beauty pageant was Darla Burnett, 24, of St. Clair Shores, a legal secretary. First runner-up was Gigi Ettinger, a 20-year-old Schoolcraft College student who hopes to specialize in psychiatric nursing upon graduation in April.

Soroptimists offer 3 grants

Three cash grants, one for $2,500 and two for $1,000, be awarded to deserving women through the Soroptimist International during 1977.

The Soroptimist club of Livonia is now accepting applications for all three.

The $2,500 award is being added this year by the McCall Pattern Co. and its women's interests director, television star Marlo Thomas, to the $1,000 grants that have been part of the Soroptimistprogram for several years and in the past have been won by residents of Livonia and Plymouth.

Top consideration, said Jessie Sanderson, Livonia Soroptimist president, will go to mature women, those who either head a household or have a family dependant upon them.

The awards are meant primarily to help such women complete or continue educations or train for entry or re-entry into the working world, Ms. Sanderson added.

The Soroptimist Internation of the Americas is the world's largest classified service organization for professional and executive businesswomen. It is composed of nearly 1,000 clubs and has a membership of more than 30,000.

IN THE ORGANIZATION'S Midwestern District, which includes this area, a training awards foundation established two awards of $1,000 each several years ago.

The new grant from McCalls grew out of the "Memo from Marlo" letter that Ms. Thomas published in the company's pattern catalogue after she became director of women's interests.

She said letters from hundreds of readers of the memo led her to ask the company to establishd the McCall Life-Pattern Fund, providing the $2,500 grant.

Ms. Thomas and McCall's selected the Soroptimist International to administer the grant that would permit the winner to pursue an education by providing tuition, books, car maintenance and other needs.

Explaining the decision to establish the grant, Ms. Thomas said the letters she received indicated "there is a great need in our country among mature women—women whose chances for an education and professional growth seem to be over."

"These are the women," she added, "whose future is smashed shut under an external pressure of time payments and doctor bills and hand-me-downs and coping, just coping with what you've got and never having the extra cash to spring for what you might have.

Women wishing to apply for either of the grants should get in touch with Ms. Sanderson, 425-7690, after 6 p.m., or with Ruth E. Storch, Box 2346, Livonia, 54151.

Canton chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Only two more days until Christmas. Everyone's been busy doing last minute shopping, decorating, triming the tree, baking, and wrapping all those special surprises.

This is the time of year when we fit into our already overcrowded schedules all those extra things that puts the spirit into this holiday.

THE CANTON NEWCOMERS board had its Christmas party last Friday evening. Chip and Donna Glover hosted the affair.

Mike and Ginny Koon, Merle and Ann Ward, Max and Sue Miller, John and Sharon Spencer and Pete and Mary Hamilton were on hand for the fun and games as well as Tom and Karen Cifrodella, Art and Sue Lawrence, Tom and Chris Pilz, Tom and Christy Skorka, Bob and Carol Shaw, Glen and Becki Ponte and Ed and Sue O'Donnell.

THE GIRLS from Miss Millies School of Dance, Northville, held a dance recital for the membership of the Plymouth Grange Hall Thursday.

Sherry DeTata, Maureen Maisel and Sue Bergman are the students from Canton who performed. Their lessons are given at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The Grange gave the dancers and their parents a special surprise in return for the grand entertainment.

Santa made a visit with presents for all the children and the adults received popcorn balls and apples. Everyone sang carols to close a very enjoyable evening.

THE CANTON Camp Fire Girls have been in the Christmas spirit all month.

The girls from Pam Cortese group arranged their own party. They planned the games and the refreshments. All Pam had to do was sit back and enjoy.

Eileen Bankowski's girls made Christmas tray favors for the seniors at the Hanlon Home in Canton. We're sure they'll put a few smiles on many faces.

Other Camp Fire groups went to the home to entertain with carols. The girls are in Cheryl Brining, March Hirschaur, Linda Cygan, Rita Heath and Dyanne Van-Hoose groups.

THE GIRL SCOUTS from Gallimore Troop 482 went to the Hanlon Home last weekend. They presented each lady with a jade plant and a packet of various toiletries donated by J.C. Penny, Westland. They also handed out decorated Christmascookies that were donated by Terrys Bakery, Plymouth.

After playing Santa the girls enjoyed an hour long hayride at the Wilkin Farm on Beck Road.

They then headed for their leaders home, Ester MacAllister, where they presented Doug Wilkin, their troop sponsor, a certificate of appreciation for his four years with the scouts. The girls spent the night at the MacAllister home getting prepared for their campout in January.

ALL TGHE GRADE school children had their class parties yesterday, where there was much merriment and joy. An extra special treat for the fourth and fifth graders from Chuck Portelli's class at Hulsing was a skating party in the morning up at the Cultural Center.

This class gave a little cheer in the neighborhood Monday evening when they blended their voices together and caroled from house to house.

Portelli and his wife Rose were on hand to keep everyone on course and Judy Closser, the music teacher, was there to keep everyone in key.

Carolers included, Nancy Kraft, David and Karen Sandel, Linda and Tina Neuberg, Nancy and Claudia Loos, Debbie Sherman, Rhonda Zeleznik, David Buck, Donna Harb, David Wotan, Sue Carlson, Kate Fanelli, Tom Taetcsh, Donald Gampp, John Longridge, Scott Tasker, Patty and Larry Janiga, Cheryl Kostrewas, and Matt O'Donnell.

Cold and happy the singers returned to school for hot chocolate and cookies bringing the evening to a warm and merry end.

Some other carolers that were out Tuesday evening were, Jeniene and Angela Lucas, Sara and Chris Bird, Lisa Ritter, Cathy, Steven, Greg and Jim Lawrenz.

After the children sang all their tunes they ended up at the Ritter home along with their parents for hot chocolate and cookies.

Walter and Madonna Bird, Tom and Pat Lawrenz, and Joe and Margaret Lucas applaud their talented youngsters.

M Barb Dani are having a big celebration Christmas Eve at their home on Provencial Ave.

More than 40 people from both Mike and Barb's family will be arriving from Idaho, Indianapolis, and all over Michigan, to enjoy the holiday season by being together.

Tom and Karen Cifrodella are expecting Tom's parents from New Jersey. Linda and Mike Becker will be entertaining relatives from New Jersey over the holidays also.

Pat and Tom Mitchell already had their family get together last weekend at their home.

We hear that Greg and Mary Anne Allen of Canford Ave. were having a ball with their new snowmobile until all the white stuff melted. Hope it all comes back pretty soon for all you snowmobilers and skiiers and for all of you who are dreaming of a white Christmas.

May there be joy in your heart, a smile on your face and a special surprise in your stocking on Christmas morning.

Traditions

tion for Barbara Emory of Garden City and her daughter, Linette.

They make a lot of different kinds of stuffed toys, "Mrs. Emory said, "but it's been less in recent years because the children in the family and the ones Linette babysits for are growing up.

But a number of Holly Hobby dolls were fashioned by Mrs. Emory, and Linette turned out several shaggy dogs and a horse, as well as dressing a Goodfellow doll.

Betty Shaw and her husband, Jim, keep up their home decorating and other traditions even though their son now is living in California and their daughter is married.

But Betty said she found a little extra spare time this year, so this Redford Township beautification chairman wrapped some boxes to make the evergreen at the township hall more Christmassy.

Christmas Eve rites to fill area churches

Candlelight and choirs will be in the forefront as area churches greet the nativity with Christmas Eve services.

Here is a list of some of the worship and celebration plans:

ST. MATTHEW LUTHERAN CHURCH, 5885 Venoy, north of Ford in Westland, plans a family service at 7 p.m., with the program geared to children, but with youngsters worshiping with their families.

A few speakers and members of the St. Matthew dayschool choir and primary choir will come forward for their parts in the service, and the music also will feature a family choir, trumpets to accompany congregational singing, and a youth group number with guitar accompaniment.

Four tableau scenes of events surrounding the birth of Jesus will be spotlighted, and the service will close with the reading of the Christmas story from the book of Luke.

A candlelight communion service at 11 p.m. also is planned by St. Matthew, and there will be worship at 10 a.m. Christmas Day.

ST. MICHAEL CATHOLIC CHURCH, Plymouth at Hubbard, Livonia, will combine the closing of the bicentennial year with the Christmas Eve 11:30 p.m. mass when with the singing of carols from 12 countries.

The adult choir will sing, and several children of the parish will wear native dress from the various lands represented.

THE LIVONIA MISSION of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, will hold a Christmas Eve communion celebration at midnight in the Harry J. Will Funeral Home, Six Mile Road east of Newburgh.

GRAND RIVER BAPTIST CHURCH, 34500 Six Mile, Livonia, is using "Christmas Light for a Dark World" as the theme of its family Christmas Eve services at 7:30 p.m. The choir will perform carols. A nursery is available.

TRINITY CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN, W. Chicago at Inkster, Livonia, will have a candlelight service led by the Rev. Ivan Smith, interim pastor, at 7 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

ST. ANDREW EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 16360 Hubbard, Livonia, will have a family eucharist at 7:30 and 11:30 p.m.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY CHURCH (ASSEMBLIES OF GOD), 41355 Six Mile, Northville, will presents its annual Sunday school Christmas Eve program at 7:30 p.m. It will feature recitations, a youth play and treats for all.

NEWBURG UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, between Wayne and Newburg, Livonia, will feature a medley of carols and readings in its three programs to start at 6:30, 8:30 and 11:30 p.m.

Special music will be supplied by choirs plus a harp, violin and organs. The meditation topic is "Bless the Beasts and Children."

Communion will be served during the last service.

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF PLYMOUTH, 701 W. Church, will mark Christmas Eve with three services.

A cantata by all the youth choirs and a nativity pageant will be presented at 5 p.m. The candlelight communion at 8 p.m. will have special music by the senior high choir and harpist, Nadia Marks.

The festival candlelight communion at 11 p.m. will end with the singing of the traditional "Silent Night" and the candlelighting ceremony.

The Chancel Choir and brass ensemble will provide holiday music. Christmas Eve meditation at both 8 and 11 p.m. titled "Merry Christmas, Sir!" will be delivered by the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF PLYMOUTH, on N. Territorial west of Sheldon, will feature five different choirs in its 7:30 p.m. service. Scheduled to perform are the carol choir which includes children from kindergarten through second grade and the Wesleyan choir for those three to six.

Also participating will be the junior and senior high choirs and the interpretive dance choir. The meditation will be provided by the Rev. Samuel F. Stout, minister.

The chancel choir and the interpretive dance choir also will perform at the 10 p.m. service. Meditation will be by the Rev. Dwayne Lee Kelsey, minister of education.

At both services, one of the hundreds of votive candles lighting the sanctuary will be given to each worshipper.

CHURCH OF THE SAVIOR, 38100 Five Mile, Livonia, will hold its candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m.

OUR LADY OF GOOD COUNSEL, 1160 Penniman, Plymouth, will have a mass at 8 p.m. featuring the children's choir, and at midnight featuring the adult choir. A carol service will begin at 11:30 p.m.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Six Mile and Farmington, Livonia, will have two Christmas Eve candlelight services. One will be at 5:30 p.m., the other at 7:30 p.m. For a half hour before each service, Onita Sanders, harpist and vocalist will perform.

Dr. Bartlett Hess will speak at both services on "Good Tidings of Great Joy."

ROSEDALE GARDENS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Hubbard and W. Chicago, Livonia, will have two Christmas Eve communion services, one at 7 p.m., another at 11 p.m.

UNITED ASSEMBLY OF GOD, 42021 E. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, will have a candlelight communion service at 7 p.m. with soloist Robin Tomko, guest performer on TV's "Turning Point."

ST. DAVID EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 27500 Marquette, Garden City, will have holy communion and a family service at 7:30 p.m. and holy communion and carols at 11 p.m.

ST. PAUL UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 27475 Five Mile at Inkster, Livonia, will have a family service at 7 p.m. and a candlelight service at 11 p.m.

AUGSBURG LUTHERAN CHURCH, 24801 W. Chicago, Redford Township, will have a communion service and blessing of children at 7 p.m. and an 11 p.m. candlelight service.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH OF GARDEN CITY, 6443 Merriman has planned a candlelight service for 7:30 p.m.

GOOD SHEPHERD LUTHERAN, 26212 Six Mile, Redford Township, will hold services at 8 p.m. and 11 p.m.

UNITY OF LIVONIA, 28660 Five Mile, near Middle Belt, Livonia, plans a program called "In the Glow of Christmas," featuring the Unity Choir at 7:30 p.m.

Choir director is Wendy Wheaton. Judy Gray is soloist. There is room for adults only and care for children over five will be provided.

ALL SAINTS LUTHERAN CHURCH, 8850 Newburgh at Joy, Livonia, has scheduled its service for 7:30 p.m.

HOLY SPIRIT EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 34645 Cowan, Westland, plans a choral eucharist and sermon at 7:30 p.m. and 11:15 p.m.

ALDERSGATE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 10000 Beech Daly, Redford Township, will have a service of candles and carols at 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Nursery will be provided for all services.

PEACE EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH, 9415 Merriman, Livonia, has set 7 p.m. on Dec. 24 for a Christian day school service.

REDFORD BAPTIST CHURCH, 25295 Grand River, Redford Township, invites the whole family to its 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve service.

GOOD HOPE LUTHERAN CHURCH, 28680 Cherry Hill, Garden City, will hold candlelight services at 7, 9 and 11 p.m.

ST. MATTHEW UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 30900 Six Mile, Livonia, has scheduled its family worship service at 6:30 p.m. and its communion service at 11 p.m.

ALPHA BAPTIST CHURCH, 28051 W. Chicago, Livonia, will hold services at 7 p.m. Nursery care will be provided.

Citation for coordinator

The Rev. Ron Johnson (right) coordinator of the chaplaincy program at St. Mary Hospital of Livonia since its inception about three years ago, was honored recently by the hospital and the Livonia Ministerial Association for his work in that area. Mr. Johnson, pastor of Augsburg Lutheran Church in Redford Township, received his certificate from Anne Gustfa, head nurse at St. Mary, and the Rev. William Hass, president of the ministerial group. He is continuing in the coordinating work, and ministers in the area interested in participating in the program may call him at Augsburg or Mr. Hass at Livonia Christian Church. Plymouth center benefits

Halloween helps Christmas and youngsters help seniors

By MARIE McGEE

A group of Livonia senior citizens and St. Genevieve Catholic Elementary School students have teamed up again to make Christmas just a little bit sweeter for children at the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The net result is nearly 600 Christmas stockings stuffed with goodies.

The seniors' role in the annual project, now its sixth year, is to make the stockings that are filled with sweets donated by St. Genevieve students as the result of their Halloween trick-or-treat excursions.

THE FINISHING touch of a candy cane and other Christmasy-type candy is provided by St. Genevieve Altar Society, sponsors of the project.

But Christmas stockings aren't the only remembrances from the church committee. Actually, the group meets all year to provide items requested by the Plymouth facility's administrators.

For instance, since September, the group has donated 100 lap robes, numerous pairs of footies, mittens and scarves as well as several hundred colorful knit caps.

THE CAPS were knitted by a committee member and her mother, who is 82 and suffers with cataracts, but still manages to turn out at least 30 caps a month for the Plymouth youngsters.

Another project this year was to provide 50 burlap wall hangings for Lexington House, a facility in the community of Wayne for the mentally and physically handicapped.

This year the committee got a helping hand in its Christmas efforts from Girl Scouts and Brownies in the Roosevelt-Adams-Madison schools area. Troops provided tray favors, tree ornaments and also helped make wall hangings.

The committee meets the first and third Thursday of each month in the Livonia Senior Citizens Center at Five Mile and Farmington roads and "we welcome all residents whether they are senior citizens or just women who want to help brighten the lives of these less fortunate children," said Mrs. Bernard Smith, St. Genevieve Altar Society president.

"We feel we are serving two purposes by sponsoring this project," she said. "We're helping senior citizens to be productive while aiding in a very worthwhile project.

FOR THEIR efforts, the committee recently received a commendation from the Plymouth center staff and also received a community service award from the League of Catholic Women.

But the group is hardly one to rest on its laurels. With the Christmas stockings safely delivered and ready for distribution Saturday, the group has already begun making plans for its Easter project that will begin as soon as the yule holidays are over. Last year the group provided over 1,000 Easter baskets -- and they're determined to meet that quota again.

Christmas Eve

ST. JOHN EPISCOPAL, 555 S. Wayne, Westland, will have family eucharist services at 7:30 p.m. and festival eucharist at 11 p.m.

KIRK OF OUR SAVIOUR PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 36660 Cherry Hill, Westland, has set its Christmas Eve candlelight service at 8 p.m., its watch service at 11:30 p.m.

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH, 25630 Grand River, Redford Township, will hold a family service at 4 p.m. and a candlelight service at 11 p.m.

LUTHERAN CHURCH OF THE RISEN CHRIST, 46250 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, plans a candlelight service at 7:30 p.m.

GARDEN CITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 1841 Middle Belt, one block south of Ford, will hold identical services at 8 and 10 p.m. Everyone will participate in candlelighting.

Adult and youth choirs will sing anthems together and there will be carol singing by the congregation. The Christmas story will be told in scripture readings and songs.

ST. JOHN EPISCOPAL CHURCH, 547 S. Sheldon, Plymouth, will have a busy Christmas Eve with four programs. The Christmas pageant will be held at 6:40 p.m. with the festival family eucharist at 7 p.m. Nursery care will be provided. The Christmas cantata will be at 10:40 p.m. and the solemn high eucharist at 11 p.m.

Family worship set in Plymouth

First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, 45201 North Territorial, plans a family-centered celebration for the day after Christmas, Sunday, Dec. 26.

A continental breakfast will be served from 10-10:45 a.m., and this will be followed by singing of Christmas carols. From 11:05 to 11:50 a.m., children, youth and adults will share together in a service of worship. Nursery care will be provided for the youngest members of the families.

There will be no reservations needed for the breakfast, and costs will be covered by voluntary contributions.

For 3d straight tourney win

Rocks squeak by Thurston

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Salem basketball team has a history of not playing its sharpest for Christmas basketball tournaments, and this year was no exception.

But despite two sub-par performances, the Rocks won their third consecutive Christmas tourney trophy with a narrow 39-37 victory over an upset-minded Thurston squad Tuesday night in the Livonia Churchill gym.

The Salem victory raised Salem's record to a perfect 7-0 mark at the break while Thurston stands at 3-4.

The Rocks got past the Churchill hosts 60-55 in the opening round game the night before, while the Cinderella Thurston squad bumped off favored Livonia Stevenson.

"I don't know why we're winning, but somewhere along the line, something's getting done. We had nine guys on the board (scoring) tonight," said Salem coach Fred Thoman.

"We're playing better defense and that's what won it for us. I'm totally pleased with the way the players have worked so hard to get where they are."

THURSTON HAD SALEM playing its kind of basketball throughout the game, but, in the end, Salem prevailed. With the score tied 37-37, and one minute remaining on the clock, the Rocks worked for the shot they wanted and got it with 29 seconds left. Salem moved the ball around the perimeter and finally hit with Tom Ellinghausen underneath for what proved to be the winning layup.

"These kids are pretty smart under pressure," Thomann said about his team. "They read the situations well all night.

"Thurston did a good job of slowing us down."

The Eagles played this tournament without its top guard, Mike Nagle, who suffered a broken foot against Franklin last week. As a result, Thurston was forced to slow things down with a patient kind of offense and a sticky 2-3 zone defense.

This strategy worked in upsetting Stevenson and almost prevailed against the Rocks.

"I honestly thought we could beat them," Thurston coach Bill Croteau said. "When we forced Salem to switch to a zone, I thought we had them.

"We had a couple of costly turnovers and some crucial mistakes but I can't fault anyone. Salem is a fine ball club with a winning tradition and we've lived in the shadow (of the area).

"I can't say enough about our players. I'm so proud of them. I think they are starting to believe in themselves."

THURSTON'S DREAM for an upset nearly came true as the squad continued to fight back from a second half deficit.

The Eagles grabbed a slight 8-6 lead after the first eight minutes and set the tone for the physical, defensive battle.

The Rocks scored six straight points to move ahead 14-10 early in the second period, but the Eagles roared back with seven of their own for a 17-14 lead. Salem spurted back at the end of the second period to grab a 21-18 lead at halftime.

The Rocks increased that margin to seven, 31-25 midway in the third quarter but Thurston quickly cut it back to three before the start of the fourth quarter.

The Eagles finally tied the score at 37-37 with 1:19 left on the clock, but that last-minute Rock bucket pulled out the victory.

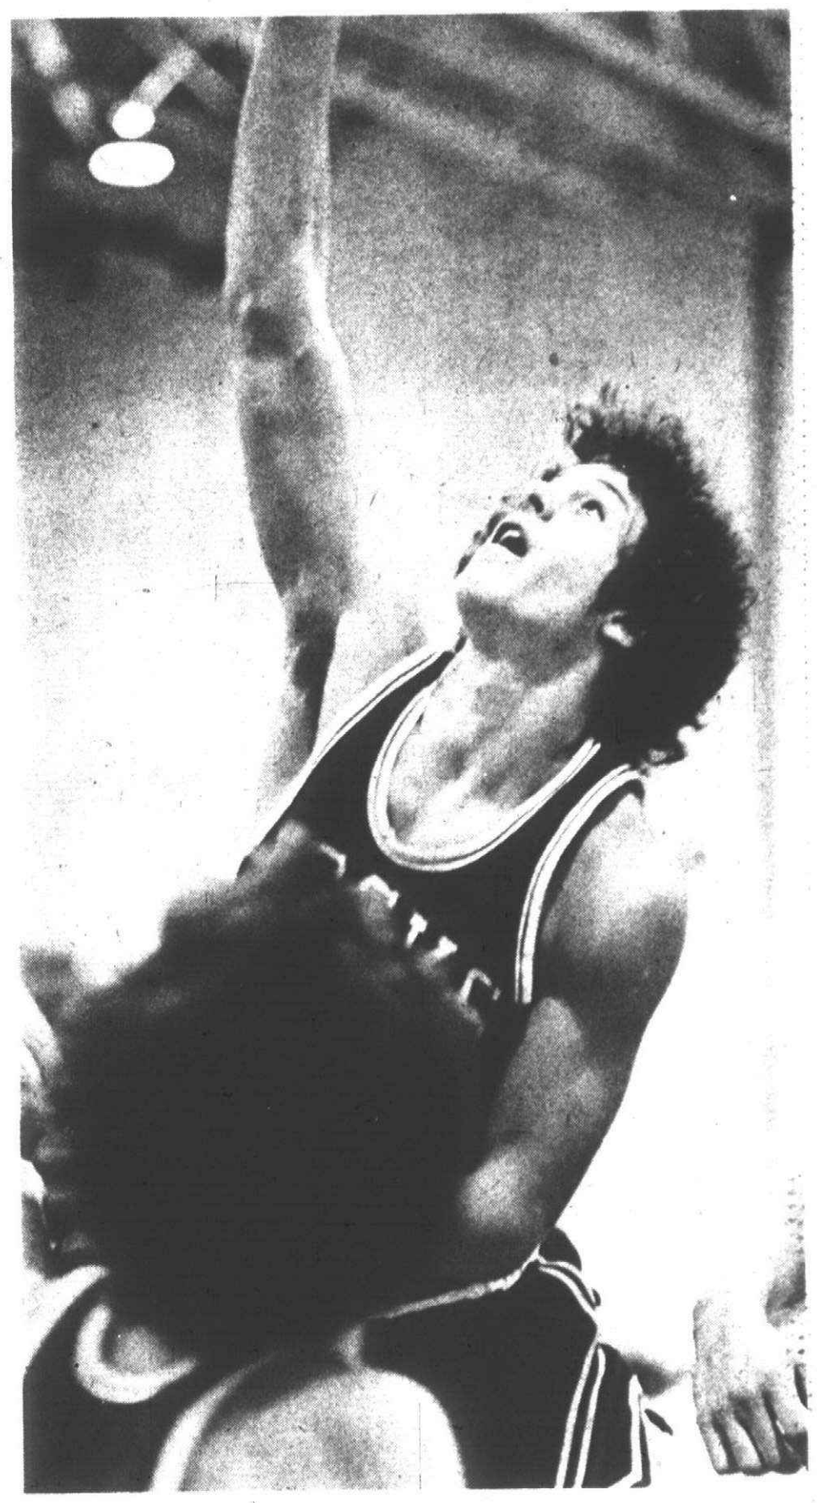

Rich Hewlett led Salem in scoring with 10 points. Two other Rocks scored six each. Scoring honors went to Thurston's guard Brian Mulvihill with 13. Teammate Dave Beebe added 12. Only four Eagles' players scored in the game.

Salem's depth dumps Churchill

PLYMOUTH SALEM—CHURCHILL

Plymouth Salem used all but one of its cagers in the first half, and eventually wore down the Livonia Churchill Chargers in the second half, to an the opening round game of the Holiday Basketball Tournament; 60-55, Monday night.

The Rocks of Salem went on to win the championship game against Thurston 39-37 while the Chargers fell to Livonia Stevenson in the consolation game 66-53.

Churchill played the Rocks tough for the first half going into the locker room with a 30-28 advantage at intermission.

But Salem came out in the third quarter and scored the first six points of the second half and were never behind after that. The Rocks outscored Churchill 18-9 in the third quarter and held a comfortable 11-point lead, with two minutes left in the game, before a late Churchill surge.

The Rocks' Tom Ellinghausen led all scorers with 20 points. John Broderick came off the bench to score 10 and sophomore guard Rich Hewlett added nine.

Churchill was led by captain Tom Bay's 16 points and forward Paul Eberly's 15. Eberly was a big factor with his inside game in those first two quarters but ran into foul trouble in the second half.

"I really felt we gave them all they wanted," said Churchill coach Pat Montagano. "I'm never happy with a loss but I thought we played pretty good. We're getting better.

"We can't go as deep on the bench as Salem can. And in a tight game, I'll take Salem everytime. They won the game with poise."

Salem coach Fred Thomann said he used his bench early because he wanted fresh players in the game.

"I wanted to put constant pressure on their guards and I knew we had to play tomorrow whether we won or lost."

THURSTON—STEVENSON

The Thurston Eagles slowed things down against Livonia Stevenson and the result was a 57-52 upset victory in the first round game of the Holiday Basetball Tournament at Livonia Churchill Monday night.

The Eagles went on to lose in the championship game 39-37 in a similar slowdown game against Plymouth Salem. The Spartans regained their running style against Livonia Churchill and breezed in the consolation game, 66-53, Tuesday night.

Thurston's scoring attack, in the opening round, was balanced with four different Beebe led all scorers with 19 for the Eagles. Jerry Bradford followed with 11 and Ton Suchnek and Dave Maiorana added 10 each.

Stevenson was led by senior captain Steve Gabrian who muscled in 14 points. Dave Gilland added 12 and Jim Spala and Brent Erickson pumped in eight each.

Thurston normally plays a man-to-man defense but switched to a 2-3 zone against the quicker Stevenson team. The Eagles also employed a patience offensive set, working for the open shot.

"We got them out of their game plan," Thurston coach Bill Croteau said. "I felt with the type of team Stevenson was, we would have trouble playing them man-to-man.

"Our kids did a super job hustling. The key to the win was that we worked together as a team and got a super effort from everyone. It was a tough game all the way."

Steveson coach George Van Wagoner credited Thurston for the job it did offensively.

"They slowed it down and worked for their shot," the Spartan mentor said. "We don't feel we moved the ball well (offensively) and we needed more poise and discipline (defensively).

"We feel we are a better ball club (than Thurston) but the score didn't indicate that."

Rock tankers glide to 2d at Ypsi; Chiefs 4th

Lack of depth on the Plymouth Salem swim team cost the Rocks a repeat victory in the Ypsilanti Invitational held last Saturday.

But Salem's overall talent was still present as the Rocks brought home a trophy for their second-place finish.

Adrian won the meet with 338 points while Salem finished with 280. The Rocks were easy winners of the competition last year. Host Ypsilanti placed third at 262 and Plymouth Canton was fourth at 158.

Hazel Park and Jackson brought up the rear with 81 and 80 points, respectively.

The Rocks grabbed third place after Saturday's competition but later were awarded the runners-up trophy for second place when a miscalculation in the point totals was discovered.

Rock coach Byron Williams felt his squad had a chance to beat Adrian in a dual meet, but Adrian's overall depth proved to be the deciding factor in the invitational victory.

"They scored the first 12 places and we couln't place kids down there," Williams said. "The Rocks just don't have the swimmers in the numbers that Adrian has.

"It would be an interesting dual meet (against Adrian)," said Williams. "They aren't comparable to Northville. I think we could beat them in a dual meet."

SALEM'S SENIOR STAR Ron Finley was up to his tricks again, setting two pool and meet records with winning times in the 100-yard backstroke and 100-yard butterfly. Finley swam a :55.3 time in the back and a :56.1 clocking in the fly. The back time is tops in the state.

The Rocks' 200-yard medley relay also set a meet record with a 1:47.9 time. Finley, Jeff Stella, Rob Kuebler and Mike Etienne combined for this record.

CANTON'S KEVIN Harris led the Chiefs' charges with a meet record time of 1:54.6 in the 200-yard freestyle race. Salem's Craig Finley blaced third in this event with a 1:58.4.

Etienne and Tom Rubadue from Salem placed third and fourth, respectively, in the 50 free, with times of 23.9 and 24.2.

Harris joined Etienne and Rubadue in the 100 free results. Harris swam a second-place time of :51.2 while Rubadue was third and Etienne fourth.

Salem's Craig Finley broke a Rock freshman record in the 500-yard free with a first-place 5:17.1 time. It beat the old record by nine seconds which his brother Ron held four years ago. Senior Tim Ying was fourth with a 5:22.0.

Canton's Bob Cline was fourth in the 100 back at 1:05.4.

The highest Plymouth representative in the 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke was Salem freshman Stella with fourth- and fifth-place finishes.

Canton grapplers place 2d, take trophy

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team won its first trophy ever for invitational competition as the Chiefs finished second in the Clarenceville Invitational last Saturday afternnon.

The host team from Clarenceville easily outdistanced the other seven squads with 193½ points. Canton's second-place total was 145½ and South Lyon was third at 113.

Clarenceville is the only team which has beaten the Chiefs in dual meet action this season.

Canton placed nine grapplers in the finals and consolations and came out of that competition with seven medals.

"I was pleased with our performance," said coach Dan Chrenko. "I don't think Clarenceville knew we would come this close to them. Last year, they ran away with the invitational by 80 points.

"We really weren't a threat to them. They had nine kids in the championship round. But we did worry them a little bit. They were concerned."

Canton won three of the 13 weight classes, placed four wrestlers in third place and two more in fourth.

Craig Lee was the 112-pound champion with a 10-6 decision over highly-respected Eric Black of Clarenceville. Lee won his other matches on a pin and close decision.

Scott Collins was the 145-pound winner for Canton dethroning last year's champ Zane Klupacs of South Lyon. Collins pinned one opponent and won another match by a 17-4 decision to reach the championships.

Chuck Walker continued to impress people in the heavyweight class with a first-place finish in this last event.

Senior captain Bill Heedum saw his record soar to 18-4 with a third-place finish at 105.

Dave March wrestled for the time this season at the 132-pound varsity level and walked away with third place. March lost his opening match to the third seed but won his remaining three contests.

Kyle Heaton improved his record to 18-5 with a third place 155-pound finish. Heaton held a reversed 5-18 record for the entire season last year.

Scott Caudwell nailed down the other third-place finish which included two pins along the way.

Steady performers Mark Bartlett and Jeff Rey each placed fourth.

Open '77 with Franklin

Salem gridders greet Pats

There is a new wrinkle to next season's Plymouth Salem football schedule, and it begins with the opening game of the season.

Athletic Director John Sandmann has gotten together with representatives from Livonia Franklin High School and scheduled a gird game between the Rocks and the Patriots to open the 1977 season.

The schedule change means the Rocks drop Bloomfield Hills Andover from their schedule. Salem beat Andover five of the six years these teams kicked off the season. Andover won its respective league championships the last three seasons.

The Rocks will retain Farmington Harrison for its season finale as the other non-league opponent.

Franklin loses 1976 state grid champions Midland Dow from its schedule.

THE SALEM—FRANKLIN matchup should be a rivalry which fans will enjoy. The close proximity of the two schools should make for large crowds. Franklin is located on Joy and Merriman roads.

The caliber of football that Franklin offers will also offer a rough test for the Rocks. The Patriots won the 1975 state football championship and finished 9-0 in the 1974 season when Salem claimed the state crown. Franklin finished with a 6-3 record this past fall, third best in Obsererland behind undefeated John Glenn and Stevenson.

Spartans speed past Chargers

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

The Livonia Stevenson cagers raced to a 13-0 lead in the first four minutes and went on to defeat Livonia Churchill by that same 13-point advantage, 66-53, in the consolation game of the Holiday Basketball Tournament Tuesday night.

The victory lifts Steveson's record to 5-2 overall while the Chargers fell to 3-4.

Stevenson lost its opening round game to Thurston Monday night and Churchill fell to Plymouth Salem, the eventual winners of the tourney.

The Spartans saw their offense stymied by a Thurston squad that used slowdown tactics to pull an upset. But that quick Stevenson scoring machine was at its prime against the Chargers in the first eight minutes of action.

Stevenson led 18-5 after that first period of play and were never headed after that. The quick hands and agility of Spartan guards Dave Gilland and Ron Colone proved the difference in this game as countless steals and fast-break opportunities resulted in a comfortable Stevenson lead throughout most of the game.

"This is what we are capable of doing," said Stevnson coach George Van Wagoner.

The Spartans game plan wasn't hurt a bit when starting center Brent Erickson left the game in the opening minutes becauce of an ankle injury. On this night, it wasn't the inside play that Stevenson relied on, but its overall quickness.

"I knew their guards would be quicker. That's the way it was all night," said Churchill coach Pat Montagano. "We were totally unprepared. We didn't look by them. We just weren't ready.

"We didn't have any poise and it showed. They just had more foot speed than us.

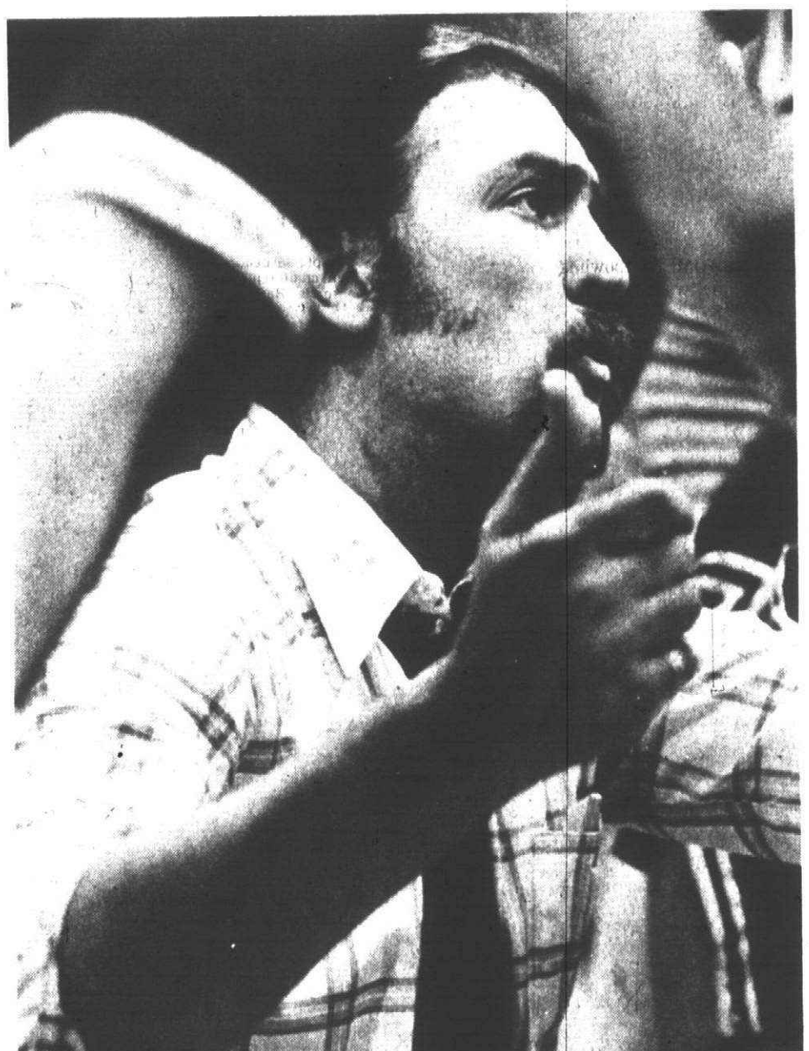

Van Wagoner added, "It was a good overall performance for us and I hope we can keep it up."

Colone and Gilland led all scorers with 16 and 14, respectively. Jim Dolmetsch added 10. Churchill's Paul Eberly pumped in 14 to lead his team. Sophomore guard Ron Nutter added 11 and Ralph Jarnot came off the bench to score 10.

Salem plaques are available

All Plymouth Salem athletes who graduated in 1976 can pick up their individual plaques at the athletic office in Salem High School.

The awards, which were part of the presentation at last spring's senior athletic banquet, arrived at the high school last week.

Thomann directs the action

Salem cage coach Fred Thomann led his team to its third consecutive Holiday Tournament victory Tuesday night with a close win over Thurston. It was the Rocks' fifth tourney trophy in the six-year history of the classic. (Staff photo).

Canton cagers lack needed confidence

Subject: Plymouth Canton basketball.

Question: Why does this team always lose the close ones?

The Chief cagers finished the 1976 year with yet another heartbreaking loss to the Churchill Chargers last Friday. It was a game Canton should have won.

In fact, it was the fifth game this season that Canton should have won.

The Chiefs hold a 1-5 record at the Christmas break but they very easily could be 6-0 at this time.

The Chiefs have lost all five games by by no greater than a four-point margin. Two of the losses were in overtime.

The Churchill loss was the most discouraging because Canton held a five-point lead with two minutes left in the game but still managed to blow it at the end.

I'M SURE MANY FANS have their own theories as to why this team has that knack for choking under pressure situations.

I look at Canton cage performances like a mystery book with a predicatble ending. The first 30 minutes of each game proves to be suspenceful and very exciting. But in those finale two minutes of action the outcome is always the same–a loss.

The only suspence that the Chiefs offer in those final two minutes is the question of how they will lose the game.

I THOUGHT CANTON would get over this problem of losing in clutch situations after that dramatic one-point victory over Belleville–the only Chief victory so far this season.

Canton opened the year with an overtime loss to Dearborn on the road, and proceeded to blow a 14-point second quarter lead over Farmington which resulted in a four-point setback.

But the Chiefs came back with that victory over Belleville and actually showed signs of being good, clutch players.

Then Canton played one of its worst games against Walled Lake Western, but came back strong in the final period, only to lose by three points. But at one point in that contest, the Chiefs could have sunk the tying basket with 1:30 left but failed to do so.

The two-point overtime setback to Southfield Lathrup was a spirited performance but once again the Chiefs let a field goal advantage squirt away with one minute left.

Finally came the disaster last Friday which gave Canton a 0-2 Western Six League mark at the break.

MY ANSWER TO Canton's problems in the close games is a very simple one. There is a lack of confidence in the players when a tight situation occurs. The reason for this lack of confidence is because of the inexperience the players have on the varsity level.

Most of the time, two sophomores, two juniors and one senior play on the court, which accounts for the lack of varsity experience. And in close games, this factor works against the Chiefs.

THIS YEAR'S CANTON squad is a very talented group. It has good depth and the ingredients to be a winner. The players know they have the talent. Coach Casey Cavell knows he has the talent. The only thing this team lacks is confidence in the final two minutes of play.

No team has blown Canton off the court. Every squad the Chiefs have faced so far didn't demonstrate any overpowering threat- that Canton couldn't handle.

This Christmas break is going to be very important for the Chiefs. They have to forget about these first six game that ended the year, and concentrate on the final 14 games ahead of them.

The Chiefs will win its share of games this year if and only if they can begin to hold their heads high and have the confidence to go on the court and outplay a team for ALL 32 minutes of a game.

THE FIRST TEST Canton faces after the break is against Livonia Franklin on the first Tuesday of the new year.

This is a very important contest for it will determine what kind of character this team has and what it will show people for the rest of the season.

We will see what kind of attitude and how much confidence this team really has after the Franklin game.

Last season the Chiefs came off the break and were demolished by the Patriots. That set the tone for a season that went downhill the rest of the way.

This season the same thing might happen if Canton falls to Franklin. I hope this season isn't a replay of last year. This team is too good to finish with a sub-.500 record.

Remember, they should be 6-0 right now.

A movement is now underway, and gaining strength each day, to have one of the ladies major leagues return to a west side establishment for the 1976-77 season.

According to those bowlers behind the move, there are a goodly number of west side women now bowling in the leagues that now hold forth at Motor Lanes on Eight Mile or Luxury Lanes on Nine Mile. They want to reduce their weekly jaunts to the east side.

While there was no hint of which of the leagues — the Bowlerettes or the Ladies Major — it was learned that one of the west side establishments now being considered is Hawthorne Valley at Merriman and Warren roads.

The Bowlerettes have been at Motor Lanes for several years, while the Ladies Major moved from Pine Tree Bowl to Luxury Lanes this season.

THE WOMEN'S bowling world was saddened this week with the death of Marge Steele, who competed in the all-star leagues several decades ago. She was a member of both the E&B and the Pepsi Cola teams when they won the state title.

THE FIRST of the year's top honors went this week to Mike Samardzija, a member of the Stroh team, who was named "Bowler of the Year" by the Michigan Majors Bowling Association.

This honor is decided on a point basis by showings in tournament participation, averages and earnings from the prize funds.

On this basis, Mike finished with 139 points, which was 25 points better than Ted Bakatselos, who does a lot of bowling at Westland.

SPECTATORS who watched Earl Anthony win the Grand Prix at Thunderbird several weeks ago will be glad to learn that the west coast southpaw finished ninth and in the money in the Hawaii Open, the closing event of the pro bowlers year. This netted him $1,050 and boosted his all-time record earnings for the year to $110,833.

ALTHOUGH SHE DIDN'T win any of the three games, Betty Moeller walked off with top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic when she posted a 503-123 — 626.

In individual games, Kay Harmon won the opener with 162-48 — 210, Marion Heath took the second with 195-32 — 227 and Joan Lewis captured the third with 210-39 — 249.

THE LONG WAIT for a 600 series in the ladies league at Country Lanes ended this week when Ruth Rogowicz, a 146-average bowler, put together games of 235, 156 and 222 for 613. The league has been in existance five years and this is the first time the double-century figure has been reached.

Denny Pearce earned a share of the spotlight at Country Lanes when he linked counts of 230, 206 and 225 for 661 in the Keglers Circuit.

YOUNGER bowlers are showing some of their elders how it is done at Farmington Lanes.

In the mixed classic this week, Brian Gerovac rolled a 221 in 645 and Bill Stephenson contributed a 235 in 622. And these lads are 18 years of age.

Jan Vanderwill, who is accustomed to the winners' circle in the Friday Classic, had an unusual experience. She won the series with a 672 that included a 253 game, but she didn't win a single game jackpot as Myrna Hille beat her out with 257 in 660.

In other good performances, Joe Pigeon paced the men's junior house league with 247 in 687. Sue Hoeft paced the prep girls with a 194 in 527; Tom Waling fired a 158 in 400 in the peanut division, and Louis Galorneau topped the boys prep segment with a 192 in 511.

Another Christmas trophy for the Rocks

It's becoming a habit with the Plymouth Salem cagers who won yet another Christmas tournament trophy for its efforts earlier this week. The Rocks beat Churchill in an opening round game and came back to edge Thurston in the championship contest.

North Farmington edges rival

Picture this scene: Two seconds are showing on the clock. The Farmington basketball team is down by one point and own the ball. The pass comes in, a Farmington player picks it up and lets go with a 20-foot jump shot. The crowd gasps as the ball hits the rim but doesn't fall in.

It was that close Tuesday night, in the final of the Redford Union Christmas Tournament when North Farmington slipped by Farmington, 70-69.

The first quarter of play saw the Falcons go out in front with a slim lead. But the Raiders steamed full speed ahead and held Farmington in their reach.

The second quarter was a complete turnabout as the Raiders lashed away, with strong outside shooting and quick passing. At the end of the half, the score was 40-30, North Farmington.

Still hot from outside, the Raiders hit the second half with a bang and came out like gangbusters. However, the Falcons wouldn't let up and were soon closing in on the North Farmington club.

Out-hussled and out-gunned, the lackluster Raider offense didn't give up, and with the help of its defense, held on.

Early in the battle's fourth quarter, both teams locked horns and continued to give it all physically. Until the middle of the quarter, the North Farmington team held on to a slim lead, at most, five points.

But, midway in the quarter, something happened—the magic slowly died in the Raider fire and went over to the Falcons. The turnabout gave Farmington a chance to take the lead which it did with four minutes left in the game.

North Farmington charged back and recaptured the lead and held it.

With 15 seconds left, the Falcons were down by two. With seven seconds remaining on the clock, they were down by one.

But in the end, North Farmington won, as Farmington couldn't score its last shot. The final score was 70-69, North Farmington.

"We almost gave it away in the last minutes, but the boys held in there and took the win," said North Farmington coach Ken Dean, who also felt that his center, Mark Biehl, did a fine job.

Leading offense was Mark Thompson with 20 points and Biehl with 12 points.

High scorers for Farmington were Bob Finnell with 20 points and Rick Milhizer with 16.

In the consolation game between Redford Union and Farmington Harrison, the Panthers went out in front early and held the lead off and on throughout the game to take the win, 70-65.

In the first half, RU came on like thunder and jumped out to an 11-point lead before the Hawks could score.

But the second quarter was a total turnabout as Harrison went out on top. RU would not let up and quickly came back. At the end of the half, the score was tied, 32-32.

The third quarter saw the Panthers come out hot again as the Hawk defense stumbled. This time, the RU lead held.

In th final quarter, Harrison closed the gap, slowly, and it looked as if the momentum would turn once again. With less than two minutes left, the awks were down by two points.

On a free-throw, Harrison closed to within one point with 41 seconds left. But RU got hot and scored a rash of points to hold on and win.

"We were more of a team out there. The defense was much better," said RU coach Carl Andrews.

High scorers for the Panthers were Mike Petsch with 27 points and Perry Kingsbury with 11 points.

For Harrison, high scorers were Larry Pump with 18 points and Bryant Gilbert with 17 points.

Former Thurston gridder performs

By JEFF KUEHN

"Football is a very enjoyable game when it is put into the right perspective," explained Bob Graustein, the 6-0, 210-pound senior quarterback at the University of Pennsylvania.

Graustein, a graduate of Redford Thurston, participated in the first North-South Shrine game held at the Pontiac Silverdome last week.

"I'm playing football because I want to and not because I have to," said Graustein. "School work comes first and football second at Pennsylvania and that's the way I like it."

"I had offers to play with schools like the University of Wyoming, Iowa State University and Michigan State University, but I turned them down because I wanted to get a good education," added the accounting-finance major.

Injuries and and mononucleosis kept Graustein sidelined until his junior year. He caught fire and sparked Penn's offense this year, breaking Penn's record for the most pass completions in one season and tying the school record for the most completions, which he did three times.

"The best game I had this year was against Princeton," said Graustein. "I tied the record for most completions in a game, passed for 275 yards and then I threw a touchdown pass that won the game with only 17 seconds left to play."

"I don't really have any thoughts about playing professional football," continued Graustein. "Pro football isn't a game anymore; it's a business and if you can't play in the big leagues you better get out."

Pennsylvania seemed to have its share of problems this year in the Ivy League. Graustein said that Penn finally had to go to the shotgun offense, because it had a poor running game. Penn finished the season with a 3-6 record and wound up in seventh place.

Graustein and the North all-stars came up on the short end of a 24-0 score against the South in the Shrine game.

"We gave it away early with all those turnovers," commented Graustein. "In a game like this though, the score doesn't even matter, you are just out there to have some fun.

"I feel this has been a great week for me," said Graustein. "I formed relationships with some of the other players that will last for some time.

"The only thinf I don't like about going to Pennsylvania is the cost," remarked Graustein. He said expenses have almost doubled since he started going to Penn.

"I enjoyed playing college football and I'm glad I had the opportunity to play," concluded Graustein. "I know now that I have made the right choice and I'm glad that I didn't put all my marbles down on pro football."
