Coalition slams nursing home care

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Citing "inadequate care and blatant disregard of the physical and emotional well-being of nursing home patients," 18 organizations banded together Monday to form the Coalition for Nursing Home Reform.

Represented at a press conference by members of Citizens for Better Care (CBC), a health consumer group, and the United Auto Workers Retired Workers Council, coalition spokesmen said support of a comprehensive nursing home reform bill is their first priority.

Senate Bill 659, a piece of legislation currently in the state Senate, would strengthen patients' rights and establish penalties for repeated violations of state health law, according to Frieda Gorrecht, CBC spokesman.

At the press conference the names of 38 nursing homes listed on the "intent to deny license" list compiled by the Michigan Department of Public Health were released.

Two local nursing homes—West Trail of Plymouth and Dion of Canton Township—were included on the list of homes in non-compliance at last inspection.

"The day of the idle threat of 'intent-to-deny license' would be over with the enactment of Senate Bill 659," Ms. Gorrecht stated.

NOT SURPRISINGLY, that bill has not received the support of nursing home owners and administrators in the state. Chuck Harmon, executive director of Health Care Association of Michigan, said the bill "has been significantly improved" over earlier versions introduced by State Sen. John Otterbacher (D-Grand Rapids).

However, Harmon, who represents 250 privately-owned nursing homes in Michigan, believes the "bottom line is, is the state prepared to support the financial implications of that bill?"

"It will require certain types of homes to have additional nurses on duty," Harmon said. "How do we find a means of paying these nurses and what about the availability of nurses who'll work in a nursing home?"

Harmon said that the problem, as nursing home owners see it, is that approximately 70 per cent of the patients in Michigan nursing homes are receiving Medicaid assistance. Many nursing home operators find the Medicaid payment inadequate, Harmon said, and any new, costly demands will make things even more difficult.

A BILL OF RIGHTS for patients outlined in the proposed bill does not bother Harmon. But he said he wonders if the state isn't duplicating a similar federal requirement that must be met by homes receiving Medicaid.

In the current substitute bill in the senate, patients would be told their medical condition and be able to refuse treatment. No physical or chemical restraints could be put on a person unless it is ordered by a physician or an emergency occurs.

Nursing home patients would be able to receive their mail unopened each day, receive visitors during regular hours and keep personal belongings that don't infringe on others.

If a patients' rights have been judged to be violated by the Michigan Department of Public Health, the nursing home owner must pay a resident "for costs incurred or $100, whichever is greater, plus a penalty of $1,500 or $15 per patient, whichever is lesser."

Some homes placed on the "intent-to-deny" list have been cited as substandard for seven years, Ms. Gorrecht said. She said the new legislation is needed because the department of health "has been less than vigilant" in enforcing existing laws.

One provision of the new law makes patient abuse and neglect a violation for the first time, according to the coalition.

"Right now there's nothing in the regulation that says you can't abuse a patient," Ms. Gorrecht said. "You have to bring criminal charges against the facility. That's why we need this law—to make the rules and regulations work. If the law is passed we can say these are the rules and regulations and you don't do this or that."

Some violations of the new law, if passed, could put nursing home personnel in trouble with the law. Anyone misrepresenting fact on state forms or operating an establishment without a license is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Persons who retaliate against a complainant, engage in false or misleading advertising, or participate in a Medicaid kickback scheme would also be committing a misdemeanor.

Son calls state much too rigid in Medicaid ouster

By GLENN BUNTING

Angered that his 86-year-old mother is being evicted from Hendry's Convalescent Center in Plymouth, Douglas Slessor is spearheading a drive to "raise hell" with state representatives.

Forty elderly patients on Medicaid are being forced to move out of the nursing home this winter because it can no longer afford to keep them.

Four patients have already been relocated, one has died.

John Hendry, executive director, said the move was necessary because the state Medicaid program pays $8 per person per day less than the cost of operating the nursing home. Hendry receives the maximum $24.55 per person per day through the Medicaid program.

SLESSOR IS UPSET because state Medicaid policy does not allow him to "pay the difference" between Hendry's cost and the Medicaid benefits.

The Northville resident said he plans to contact the relatives of the remaining Medicaid patients tapped for eviction "to organize a campaign to do something."

"I cannot fault Hendry because he refuses to lower his standards," Slesson said. "My argument is why can't I pay the difference. I can't afford to make full payments—that would result in half my salary."

"It'll hurt to pay the difference, but I want to do it. I'm the only one my mother's got."

Slessor said he has contacted state legislators but has come up emptyhanded.

"I'M RUNNING into nothing but red tape. It makes you feel like no matter how much you fight, you can't win. It looks like I won't even get to first base."

Officials in Lansing and the Department of Social Services have told Slessor that "policy" dictates he cannot pay the difference, he said.

"It's really a crime," Hendry said. "When you go to the hospital, you often split the cost with Blue Cross. Why can't the same principle apply here?"

"Some relatives have said they would like to give us the extra money on the side but we won't have any part of that. It really is asinine when people can't pay the difference."

State Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) is a member of a government task force appointed in August to study the Medicaid program. The possibility

Simmers now faces felony rap

Robert Lee Simmers III saw misdemeanor charges against him dropped Tuesday in district court only to be charged with a higher offense, felonious assault.

Simmers, 28, had been charged with a high misdemeanor, "forcible assault on a police officer," but that charge was dismissed Tuesday in a pre-trial hearing before 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis. Simmers' attorney successfully argued that the charge wasn't applicable because the police officer never notified his client that he was being placed under arrest.

But after the high misdemeanor charge was dismissed, Varskin Baydarian, prosecuting attorney, asked that the charge be amended to felonious assault.

After hearing testimony from witnesses, Judge Davis bound Simmers over for examination Feb. 24 in Wayne County Circuit Court and reinstated a $1,000 personal bond.

Canton Police allege that Simmers struck suspended police officer Leonard Bush in the head with a police flashlight that he took from another officer in a scuffle outside Canton attorney Peter Bundarin's home.

Bundarin called police, he said, when he observed Simmers "kicking, punching and spitting" on Maureen Filarecki, a former houseguest at the Bundarin home. The first two officers at the home became involved in a struggle with Simmers, prompting another call to the station for backup officers.

Bush has been suspended from the force for 30 days after Ms. Filarecki lodged a complaint with the police chief. Ms. Filarecki claims Bush directed an obscene comment toward her while he was in the Rusty Nail bar, off duty. Bundarin, Mrs. Filarecki's former "landlord," is defending Bush in his fight for reinstatement to the force with full back pay.

Jawor linked to golf course

John Jawor, manager of Brae-Burn Golf Course in Salem Township, may move his clubs to Fellows Creek Golf Course next spring to manage the course recently purchased by Canton Township.

Jawor was one of four professionals who submitted proposals Monday to run the 18-hole course. He was township board members' clear first choice, and they directed the administration Tuesday to begin negotiating a contract with the 41-year-old Farmington resident.

Under the contract, the township will lease the course to Jawor for a percentage of the profits. Jawor's name will appear on Fellows Creek's Class C liquor license, but a proposed clause in the lease will stipulate that the license will remain with the course when the lease expires.

UNDER A PROPOSAL that Jawor gave to the township board, the golf pro will pay Canton Township $110,000 a year for the lease or 52¢ per cent of the total green fees, whichever is greater.

The township will finance all major improvements and repairs of a permanent nature and pay taxes on the course under Jawor's proposed five-year contract.

But the golf pro will pay all operating expenses, provide the necessary insurance and finance all routine repairs from his share of the revenue.

Jawor's offer surpassed the competition by $10,000.

Daniel Ross, president of the Plymouth Township-owned Hilltop Glen Golf Course, said he would pay Canton $100,000 a year or 50 per cent of the green and cart rental fees.

Don Loomis of Livonia proposed annual rental payments of $60,000 plus 15 to 20 per cent of the green fees and

WIID melting pot brews ethnic stew

By MIKE SCANLON

At only 250 watts, you couldn't call Garden City's radio station the Great Voice of the Great Lakes.

Nonetheless, WIID, 1090 on the AM dial, has a slogan—"Ethnic and Proud." "Great Voice," of course, belongs to WJR.

Programming at WIID is delivered in a variety of languages by 34 different ethnic disc jockeys.

But don't let station manager Ron Gerak of Birmingham hear you call those folks "disc jockeys."

"They're much more than disc jockeys. I don't tell them what to play. Even the biggest jock at WXYZ plays what he's told to play. Our people are their own program directors," said Gerak, who's been station manager two years.

But on the other hand, if he did tell them what to play, Gerak wouldn't know whether they were obeying him. He says he's the station's only employee who doesn't speak at least one language other than English.

Ad manager Mike Borkowski, born in eastern Poland, "speaks five languages, six on a good day," said Gerak.

A FORMER ADVERTISING copywriter, Gerak says he prefers working in radio.

"When radio is good, it's so much better than television because it's true theater of the mind," said Gerak. "Suppose you hear a door opening on radio and a guy saying, 'My God, that's the most beautiful woman in the world.'"

"Well, everyone conjures up their own image of that woman. Now, if you did it on television and used Elizabeth Taylor, people would say, 'Oh, she's old, she's fat, she's bitchy.'"

Gerak also believes WIID is in the right place at the right time for ethnic-oriented broadcasts.

"About one in four residents is foreign born in Detroit, or the child of foreign born parents," said Gerak. "Our Yugoslav population is growing day by day. There's a new Italian immigration going on. Detroit has the largest Arab population in the country."

Gerak says WIID can reach those folks no matter where they live in the metropolitan area, despite the station's meager 250-watt output.

"We cover the city. We cover the east side," said Gerak, while admitting to some reception difficulties in northeast Detroit.

"It isn't the watts that matter on AM. It's where you are on the dial. The further to the left of the dial you are on AM, the better off you are."

48 family members led by grandmother on the lanes

By W.W. EDGAR

If ever you were looking for proof of the old saying that "a family that plays together stays together" you need travel no further than Woodland Lanes, the popular bowling establishment in Livonia.

There, on alternate Saturday evenings, you would find 48 members of the Brown family and 16 of their neighbors, competing in the most unusual league in Michigan.

Heading the group is Mrs. Anna Morrissey, now 75 years young, the mother of seven of the bowlers, and grandmother of nine others.

GRANDMA MORRISSEY was an avid bowler more than a quarter of a century ago when she competed regularly on Detroit's east side and more than held her own in competition.

Then, after retiring from the game, she joined in a bright idea during the family picnics (they have at least three each summer) and other gatherings, that it would be a lot of fun to go bowling again.

She had seen the game gain in prestige during her 75 years and how it advanced from smoky old establishments on the side streets to day's glamorous tenpin palaces.

Once the idea was broached all hands agreed with the result that the league holds a unique place in organized bowling. Not only is the family league sanctioned, it also has a chaplain—Ten Brown—who officiates at all family gatherings.

"We always have been a close knit family," Mrs. Kathy Johnson of Westland remarked and when the thought of having our bowling league came about grandma was one of the most enthusiastic. "We all had bowled, so the game was not new to us. It was just that we didn't bowl together. We come from all sections of the area.

"But our picnics and other gatherings always were well attended and now the same thing is happening with the bowling league."

MRS. JOHNSON chuckled over the phone when asked what average Grandma Morrissey was carrying.

"She is averaging about 71 (five points less than her age) but that doesn't bother her. She enjoys the bowling night as much as any of us. And at that, her average, which is still climbing, is not the lowest in the league. Our averages run from 53 to 181."

Because the various members of the family come from many areas around Detroit and its suburbs some travel considerable distances—just to bowl with Grandma Morrissey, relatives and friends.

According to Mrs. Johnson who serves as secretary of the group, the league spans three generations.

Lisa Cunningham eyes state honor

Larry Sinkovich thinks Lisa Cunningham has a lot on the ball.

And after listening to him explain why, it's hard to disagree with him.

At 16, Lisa is not only the president of her own company, but she helps direct the operation of seven other small companies as well.

Granted, they are Junior Achievement companies. But the job is not a small one.

"Lisa astounds me," said Sinkovich, who is the manager of the Plymouth Junior Achievement Center on Ann Arbor Trail and Lisa's supervisor. "She has the energy and ability to do a hundred things—and do them well."

"You hear about all the young people who steal hubcaps and get in trouble. I just think someone should talk about people like Lisa."

For starters, Sinkovich said, Lisa is in statewide competition for the J.A. Business Woman of the Year. The final judging will take place Saturday at the Fairlane Center in Dearborn. "To get there, however, she first had to compete at the local level and then in the regional contest. It's quite an honor," said Sinkovich, "and the competition is tough."

Next week, Lisa will be one of the J.A. representatives to the National Business Leadership Conference in Detroit. Business people from all over the country attend, and the J.A. representatives act as guides and resource people, said Sinkovich.

In addition to a time-consuming J.A. schedule, the Plymouth Salem junior has a weekly show on the high school station, WSDP.

She also has appeared on local TV to talk about Junior Achievement. And she was the youngest person to complete the Dale Carnegie course. In fact, after she graduated, she was asked to help the instructor teach another class.

But Lisa hasn't let the whole thing go to her head. "Sometimes it's not easy," she laughed. "But I enjoy it all."

Right now, Lisa said, her career interest is split between journalism and business. "I've been taking broadcasting and radio work," she said. "But the more I get involved with Junior Achievement, the more I like business."

"I'm not in any rush to make career decisions. I've got plenty of time for that."

Technical writing is SC instructor's text

Students in the United States, Canada, Australia and Great Britain will soon have an opportunity to use a new textbook on technical writing by a Schoolcraft College instructor.

Just published by Prentice-Hall, Inc., "Technical Communication: A Practical Guide" is Joseph P. Dagher's third college English textbook.

Its main purpose, said Dagher, is to teach students how to speak and write more purposefully about their occupations. He currently is utilizing the text in his technical writing classes, English 116, at Schoolcraft.

"WRITING AN English textbook is something like inventing and introducing a new product in the marketplace," Dagher said. "Before a publisher is willing to invest large sums of money to publish it, he makes sure that the book has something new or different to enable it to surpass the intense competition."

"Technical Communication" stresses the importance of nonverbal elements along with the verbal. It explains and illustrates, for example, how the dynamics of human interaction as well as charts, graphs, drawings, and a variety of patterns of organization are as important as the words spoken or written.

The book also emphasizes that written communication results from the effective translation of thoughts originating in spoken form—thinking is talking to ourselves—into written form. The reader must then learn how to translate it again into an oral form he or she understands.

JOSEPH P. DAGHER

ALONG WITH helping students to use what they learn about technical communication in writing a variety of letters and technical reports, the book instructs them in how to speak, listen, and read that kind of material more effectively.

In addition to three textbooks, Dagher has written two manuals providing instructors throughout the United States with suggested methods and materials for teaching English, including technical communication.

"I'm happy," he says, "that many other instructors and students in institutions as far away as the Midway Islands and Hawaii, and as prestigious as Fordham and Syracuse University, find the same principles I use at Schoolcraft effective."

453-3333

Today, three generations later, the Schrader family is continuing to follow those principles of thoughtful, considerate and personal service that were established so long ago.

Canton homemaker Judy McCormack was off the starting line in good position in a drag race last summer. Mrs. McCormack started racing as a lark but now she takes it seriously, as do her male opponents.

Hot rod mama tears up track

By DARLENE STINSON

During most of the year, Judy McCormack bustles around her Canton colonial doing all the things that mothers and homemakers typically do.

But on weekends and for five or six weeks out of the year, Judy tosses her broom and dustpan aside for a hair-raising ride in her 1972 stock car as a National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) record holder.

Mrs. McCormack has entered her 200-cubic-inch Comet in races from Indianapolis to Florida to California to Ohio. Last year, she won top prize in the Sports Nationals in Bowling Green, Ky., and the U.S. Nationals in Indianapolis. In 1976, she placed second in the Indy Nationals.

AND IT ALL started as a joke.

Mrs. McCormack's husband, Jack, sponsors race car drivers as vice president and general manager of Beck's Wheel City in Dearborn. Mrs. McCormack jokingly told her husband she wanted a piece of the action too.

"He was building everyone else a car," the mother of three recalled, "so I just said, 'How about me.'"

At the time, Mrs. McCormack was no stranger to stock car racing. Ever since she dated her husband in high school, she's been a hotrod enthusiast who's yelled and cheered from the stands.

Before her first child was born nine years ago, she even tried her hand at racing in local "powder puff" derbies.

Three children and a decade later, Mrs. McCormack is a champion in NHRA drag competition who plans to race all over the country this year.

"IT'S HARD TO EXPLAIN what I love about racing," said Mrs. McCormack. "It's just something that gets the old adrenalin going."

But it takes more than adrenalin and a fast car to win a race. Mrs. McCormack says a race car driver must "have the feel" of her (or his) car in all kinds of weather and road conditions.

Shifting gears too quickly can ruin a car's engine, but shifting too slowly can cost the driver the race. An over-anxious take-off from the starting line's "Christmas tree" can disqualify a driver from the race, but a too-slow start usually means that the race will be lost.

In drag racing, even going too fast can disqualify a driver. Because two stock cars with different size engines often take the quarter-mile track together, indexes have been established to give the smaller car a head start.

If a driver takes a track faster than the index allows, he is disqualified from the race on the theory that he was given too great a head start.

According to Mrs. McCormack, weather conditions play an important part in any auto race.

"My car, for example, is faster when it's cool outside," she said.

In the last race she entered, Mrs. McCormack took the quarter-mile track in 15.95 seconds at 82 miles an hour.

AND THE MORE races she wins, the more her family loves it.

"My kids say they have the only mother on the block who's a race car driver," laughed the 34-year-old Mrs. McCormack.

"What I really love about racing is that it's such a family sport. We all really get into it," she said. "The kids fetch water for the car and run and get tools for the mechanics and such."

Mrs. McCormack doesn't think of herself as a woman's libber, and she doesn't think anyone else should either.

"Ten years ago, it was kind of a joke to have a woman race a car," she said. "But things have changed a lot. More and more women are getting into it. I think of it as a sport—a hobby."

"I've been involved in racing for years, so I don't think anything of it. But my mother—she pulls out her hair everytime I go out. She thought she raised a cute little girl in white pinafores."

Her '72 Comet does well in show and go. At this month's Autorama, Mrs. McCormack won the trophy for the best car in the competition stock category.

Are you registered to vote? Ask clerk

By PATRICK TOUHEY

You registered to vote years ago. But you haven't cast a ballot for quite a while—at least a couple of elections. Something else always comes up.

What happens the next time you show up at the polls? Are you still eligible to vote? Or will an elections clerk search for your name on the official list in vain? Will you be denied the right to vote until you re-register?

Probably not. But it's possible.

In most cases, you could have moved a couple times and not voted for up to 10 years and still not be turned away. Beyond that you'd be on shaky ground.

"Michigan has the most liberal voting laws of any state I know of," said Helen Richardson, Plymouth Township Clerk. "Once a person is registered, it's hard to get unregistered."

Canton clerk John Flodin expressed much the same sentiment. "There's every opportunity in the world available for people who want to take part in the democratic system of voting. It's not easy to get left out."

IN PLYMOUTH, Plymouth Township and Canton, and other municipalities, it is the clerk's duty to keep track of the registered voters and, if necessary, purge the cards of those who don't vote.

But "purge" is a pretty strong word considering what takes place when a voter is taken out of the active file.

Every year, the clerks go through the voter registration files and take out the cards that haven't been used in four years.

The cards are placed in the "inactive" file. Then, depending on where you live, you either get a post card telling you that you're off the active voting roll or you don't.

"We used to send out cards at the four year mark," said Mrs. Richardson, "but we don't do it anymore. It's not required by law."

The City of Plymouth sends out warning cards as cards are put in the inactive file. "If we get a response from the person within 30 days, we put the card back in the active file," said clerk Paul Brunfield.

FLODIN SAID he doesn't send notices out at four years either. After 10 years he does.

"Even when their card is in the inactive group, the person can still vote. All they have to do is show up at the polls. But after 10 years have gone by they are going to lose their registration. Then, if they want to vote, they have to re-register," he explained.

A similar practice is followed in Plymouth Township, said Mrs. Richardson. If an individual comes to the polls and is no longer on the active roll, the precinct workers call the township office to see if the person ever was registered.

"We'll bend over backwards," said Mrs. Richardson. "If they want to vote, we'll have the pre-

Voter registration cards are filed with the municipal clerk. If you haven't moved in the past 10 years, chances are you're still registered. (Staff photo) inct checker get current registration information and then let the person vote."

Last year, Plymouth Township pulled 350 registrations from the active file. Canton purged about 75, and Plymouth pulled 84.

Once a municipality purges its voting rolls, it sends a list to the board of education office, so the school district can keep its records current.

"I take the lists the governments send me and wade through our files," said Bernice Nichols who handles the records for the school district. "Sometimes I find someone who hasn't voted in a regular election has voted in a school election. In that case I keep the card active."

But even if it's been more than 10 years since you voted, it's not very difficult to get your right to vote back. In fact, it's hard to stay unregistered.

Every time you go to the Secretary of State's office to renew your driver's license or make an address change, you can also register to vote.

In addition, groups such as the League of Women Voters sponsor periodic registration drives. The members set up booths at fairs, in shopping centers and often times go door-to-door, making it more convenient for people to register.

"Allowing the Secretary of State people to register voters has been a hassle," said Mrs. Richardson. "There's a lot of duplication and more paperwork for us. I don't think you'll find a clerk in Wayne County who likes the idea."

"But for us, the League of Women Voters has worked out well. I give them some training before they go out to register, and it saves us a lot of time."

If the League misses you, and you don't have to change your license, you're still not out of luck.

Simply go to your township or city hall and register, or re-register. But you have to do it at least 30 days prior to the election in which you want to vote.

None from Dye Bros. sub protest ouster

Canton Township's plan to move residents from the Dye Brothers' Subdivision to make room for an industrial park didn't get a "pro" or a "con" from neighborhood residents at a public hearing Tuesday night.

Conversion of the old subdivision near Michigan and Sheldon is the township's top priority in its application for a three-year federal block grant.

While no one showed from the proposed industrial park area, three residents of Calvary Village North Subdivision opposed relocation of Dye Brothers' families near the Calvary Village area because they said it would lower property values.

Dye Brothers' is one of the few subdivisions in Canton where low and moderate income families live.

If the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) approves funding for the industrial park project, as township officials expect, a large portion of the block grant will be used for the project.

The 16 families in the subdivision, comprised mainly of vacant lots, will be paid a "fair" price for their houses, according to township officials, and relocated at township expense. The land will be rezoned for industrial purposes.

Under HUD's guidelines, all projects eligible for federal block grant funding must mainly benefit low and moderate income groups. Township officials believe the conversion of the subdivision into an industrial park will provide jobs to low and moderate income groups.

OTHER PROJECTS on the township's grant application are:
 • Rehabilitation of the Folker house—on the site of the township's new administration building—into a facility for the YMCA, United Fund or other non-profit group.

• Remodeling the township fire hall on Canton Center at Cherry Hill to make the building fully accessible to the handicapped.

• Site improvements at Griffin Park. If approved, the township would receive the grant in segments. The first segment would be $120,000.

Township board members announced the proposed projects at a public hearing last week.

Station of the nations is ethnic goulash

because frequencies there are less crowded.

WIID has a pending application with the Federal Communications Commission to boost its wattage to 500, but Gerak says, "On AM, doubling your watts doesn't mean doubling your listening range."

And while some radio stations specialize in news, others in music, Gerak says, "the programs here are supposed to be clearing houses for the community. If you listen to the French program you should hear everything that's going on in the French community."

That goal exerts a strong influence on hiring practices at the station, says Gerak.

Experience, he says, "isn't the first thing we look at. It's their involvement in the ethnic community we're interested in."

SERGIO DELGARZA is the station's Spanish-speaking disc jockey. A veteran of 25 years of broadcast experience, DelGarza has previously worked at stations WABX, WMJC, WGPR and WJLB, he said.

"My program has the international Latin American flavor," said DelGarza, a native of Torreon, Mexico.

"So my program has a great deal of music. I'm in direct contact with the music producers, and I have a mix of new and old."

Ad manager Borkowski, meanwhile, is also in charge of promoting some "ethnic events" at the station, among them a Belgian day at Bob-Lo.

"They came down in 25 buses," said Borkowski. "This is the first time that Bob-Lo says they had proof that radio works. If you took a look at the boat that day, the whole thing was filled with gold and red and black, the Belgian national colors."

While taking a visitor on a station tour, Gerak was asked just what 1090, the station's dial position, means.

"Well, those are kilohertz."

What're kilohertz, he was asked.

"You've got me. Radio's still magic to me."

Chief Engineer Don Oswald explained, "That's cycles per second, 1,090,000 cycles per second."

Cycles are waves transmitted through a tower. They bounce around in the sky until they find a home in a radio somewhere, and then deliver the sounds transmitted.

five per cent of the food and beverage revenue.

S&M Management of Southfield offered an alternative approach—to manage the course for $15,500 a year. But under that proposal the day-to-day operation would have been the township's responsibility.

JAWOR said he would personally manage Fellows Creek and oversee the course's instruction and junior golfing programs. He proposes no changes in Fellows Creek's league play.

Jawor, who first became a golf pro in 1956, was general manager of San Marino Golf Club in Farmington Hills from 1966 to 1969. In 1969, he took over management duties at Brae-Burn Golf Course.

of citizens making up differences in costs "has been discussed", according to Reva Miller, Geake's assistant.

HENDRY SAID Slessor's effort will not get far without public support.

"When people realize what the state is paying for elderly people and demand what the hell is the matter, elected officials will pay attention. You can't even pay a babysitter for $24 a day."

"The problem is unless an individual has a loved one at stake in this mess, they won't get involved," Hendry said. Slessor agrees with Hendry.

"I wouldn't be involved in this if it wasn't for my mother. But if she died tomorrow, I'd still be involved. It's wrong to shuffle elderly people here and there to accommodate a program that is suppose to be giving benefits."

Small office but big payroll

By W.W. EDGAR

One of the largest payrolls in the Plymouth-Canton Community is that of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) on Joy Road.

"We don't have what you might call a payroll," branch manager Edward Dowling explained, "but we do distribute about $236,700 each week and I guess that is close to either Burroughs or the Ford plant on Sheldon Road."

At present, more than 4,400 persons are collecting on claims. Because of that number, the Plymouth Township office has been forced to divide the number to 2,200 and have each segment report every two weeks.

Dowling explained that the office is much too inadequate to handle all of the claims and that even with the rental of the VFW Hall on Mill Street, there is not sufficient room.

"The present numbers sound big," Dowling said, "but we are down a bit since the government removed the extension of the compensation period some time ago."

"And we are down considerably since 1975 when the bottom seemed to fall out of everything and we had more than 9,000 claims."

WHEN THE UNEMPLOYMENT compensation law went into effect during the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1937, one had to show proof that he or she had applied for work (any kind) and was turned down.

Later the practice was amended to allow a person to qualify for compensation in his or her regular line of work, if no such employment was available. This helped to boost the number of weekly claimants.

It is not mandatory now that a person accept any kind of a job or lose his workmen's compensation.

"If a man was accustomed to being paid, say $7 per hour," Dowling explained, "we wouldn't cut him off if he refused an offer of a $3-an-hour job from us. We try to be discreet about such cases."

While the Plymouth office has a huge "payroll," it also has a job center. According to Dowling, somewhere between 80 and 100 jobs a month are provided for the unemployed.

"What we pay out barely amounts to a living wage," Dowling pointed out.

As an example, he explained that a man must have averaged about $235 a week when employed to obtain the maximum unemployment compensation of $136 a week, and that is for a married man with a wife and three children.

When it was pointed out that no family that size could save any amount, Dowling emphasized that it was all spendable income and would drift back to the employers who had paid into both the federal and state funds.

"Not all of this money we pay out each week goes to Plymouth residents," Dowling said. "Our office takes care of the unemployed in many sections of western Wayne County. And now that the expressways are open, the number of claimants is increasing each week."

He has no idea of how large the list of claimants will grow, when the summer months come and more people will be using the expressways. He is content now that the current "payroll" is one of the largest in the Plymouth area.

Riegle opens new constituent office

Only two U.S. Senators have opened local offices—"constituency service offices"—in their states. Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.) is one.

Michigan Sen. Donald Riegle is the other.

Riegle, a Democrat, recently opened the last in his string of statewide constituency service offices in Livonia. The new office is located in Suite 620 of the Pavilion East building on Middlebelt Road between Seven and Eight Mile Roads.

The Livonia office, a consolidation of earlier offices in Southfield and Allen Park, is part of a chain of local offices in Grand Rapids, Flint, Marquette, Lansing and downtown Detroit.

The new Livonia office is manned by a three-woman staff. Norma Forrest, the office manager, handles most of the routine requests and Judy Reyes and Marcia Magid take on the cases which require follow-up work.

"WE'LL TAKE ON virtually any problem having to do with the federal bureaucracy," said Jim Sharp, director of the statewide chain.

Sharp said the offices have received complaints and inquiries about everything from the armed services to the closing of post offices to immigration problems.

Sharp said that Riegle's offices around the state handled more than 12,000 inquiries last year. He could not say how many were of the questions were satisfactorily answered, but added, "We solve a hell of a lot more than we don't solve."

He said many problems were simply solved by cutting through the red tape and contacting the appropriate bureaucrat.

A follow-up by the office of a U.S. senator does carry some weight, Sharp said. He told of one bureaucrat who was fired after being uncooperative with staff members in one of Riegle's local offices.

WHILE RIEGLE'S offices handle many requests from "people off the street," Sharp said, the Michigan staff also works as ombudsmen for city officials and local businesses.

"Many times they need a partner to help bring some money back to the state in the form of federal grants. We can be that influence, that lever. We can become a partner at different levels," Sharp said.

He emphasized that the local offices were trying to become more involved in promoting economic development around the state. Riegle, according to Sharp, will be concentrating on bringing more federal money into the state.

In 1976 Michigan ranked 49th in terms of tax dollars returned to individual states. Statistics for 1977 are unavailable.

Traffic deaths below 2,000

For the fourth year in a row, Michigan had an annual traffic death toll below 2,000. State police figures show the unofficial count for 1977 to be 1,904.

The 1977 loss was 51 or about 2½ per cent less than the count in the previous year. Traffic officers point out that the 1977 toll will likely increase by one or two per cent when records for the year are completed.

Contributing to the lower annual toll last year for Michigan was a lower death count in December.

Talk about toys with your children

Eighty per cent of the younger TV viewing audience will ask for toys and games they see advertised, according to Charles Atkin, communication professor at Michigan State University.

He says that there is about a 50 per cent increase in toy and game advertising during the three to four week pre-holiday period.

"The ads are skillfully created, sometimes giving false impressions and hope to children," said Atkin. "Beautiful dolls that talk, bionic toys, and stunt motorcycle or army toys sometimes fall into this category."

Children may want the toys they see advertised, but parents don't have to feel trapped into purchasing every toy their child requests. Atkin suggests that children be included in the decision-making process. For example, children could set their own priorities in their gift list.

"Parents often buy as many as 10 or 12 gifts for their children, and by letting them set priorities, disappointment or controversy probably will not occur," says Atkin.

Irene Hathaway, MSU Extension resource management specialist, recommends comparison shopping. If children have difficulty making a choice, it might be easier to make a judgment if they see the toys. It is at this time parents can talk to their children and discuss if the toy will be as much fun as the commercial makes it seem, and what the toy is likely to do, or not do.

The suitability of a toy for the child, as well as limitations in family finances could also be discussed at this time, says Hathaway.

Haze Wilson, Community Relations Manager, Livonia, offers you this telephone tip:

Teach your children how to use the phone in an emergency!

Anyone can have an emergency at home that calls for fast, intelligent use of the phone... a sudden illness, accident, fire. Hopefully, you already have a list in your phone book or elsewhere near the phone, giving the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and your home address. But, if you have children at home, would they know how to use the phone in an emergency? Make sure they do.

Show them where you keep the emergency numbers and how to call the operator, if necessary. Your babysitter should be told who to call, too. Know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical and police help in your area. Nobody likes to think about emergencies at home. But, it's better to give it a little thought now, than be sorry you didn't later. Why not check out the family on your emergency phone call procedure right now?

Part-time farming? There's a market

The Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service will offer a series of meetings on an increasingly popular pastime—part-time farming.

The meetings, according to Gerald Draheim, of the cooperative extension service, "will be designed primarily for the owners and potential owners of small farms and limited acreages who need help in deciding what is profitable and what is economically feasible."

The meetings will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 7, 14, and 28 at the Wayne County Intermediate School District Building, 33500 Van Born Rd., between Wayne and Merriman Roads.

The first meeting will be an introduction to small and part-time farming. To register call 721-6550. Registration will be limited to 120 persons.

THERE ARE AN estimated 40,000 to 50,000 acres of land in Wayne County available for small and part-time farming. "There's just a lot of potential for expansion in this area," said Jeffery Isles, of the extension service.

"There are a lot of people who hold full-time jobs and come home at night and work one or two hours on their crops."

While some families may farm for extra income, Isles said many are taking it up as a hobby.

"For many people it's just a therapeutic type of thing. They want to get back to nature and all that," he said.

Many are expected to get involved in the "pick your own" type of marketing. Growing the crops but letting customers pick their own fruits and vegetables eliminates harvesting and marketing.

There are only 11 such "pick-your-own" farms in Wayne County, Isles estimated. "There's definitely room for growth in this area," he said.

The series' second meeting will deal specifically with the "pick-your-own" farm.

The extension service will cover the diversity and complexity of growing fruits and vegetables for market in the third meeting. Gordon Davis, a district horticulture and marketing agent, will discuss the nursery business, and Joseph Ames, a Washtenaw County agriculture agent, will discuss cash crops and livestock.

Bill Muller, a district horticulture and market agent, will discuss fruit raising.

JAMES J. NAUMANN

National Bank of Detroit has appointed James J. Naumann of Canton as assistant banking officer of its U.S. Banks Group, U.S. Division.

Naumann, as correspondent banking officer, is responsible for maintaining and expanding relationships with NBD correspondent banks in the south-eastern United States. He has been an NBD employee for eight years.

Naumann is a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in marketing. He is a member of the American Institute of Banking, MSU Alumni Association, and of Ward United Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

JAMES J. NAUMANN

Members of the loan group include Ronald T. Oppat, assistant vice-president, and assistant cashiers and commercial loan officers James M. Miller and Stephen D. Waldrop.

DB&T LOAN GROUP

Detroit Bank & Trust has moved its western Wayne County loan group from its main office to new facilities at a bank branch office at Inkster Road and Schoolcraft in Redford Township. The loan group provides services to branches and customers in communities such as Plymouth Township, Westland, Garden City, Redford Township, Allen Park, Dearborn Heights, Farmington Hills, Northville, Taylor and Inkster.

"The move was made to put commercial loan officers in closer proximity to present and future customers and the expanding communities which they service," says James Waterston, chief loan officer. "In addition to 16 western Wayne County branches, the bank has now moved a complete commercial loan group into the area."

Speed reading — it's changing habits

"If readers can get over sub-vocalizing—that is, saying words in their minds while reading—they can increase their reading rate dramatically."

So says Lorraine Thrush, creator of the rapid reading course being offered through Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education and Community Services.

Persons interested in doubling, or even tripling, their reading rates will have the opportunity to study with Ms. Thrush beginning Feb. 7. Rapid Reading will be offered for 12 weeks every Tuesday from 7-9:40 p.m. at the Garden City Harrison Center. For registration information call 591-6400, ext. 404.

MS. THRUSH, who holds a master's degree in reading from the University of Michigan and has been teaching rapid reading for two years, also says that increasing a person's reading rate is basically just "a matter of changing habit."

At the beginning of her course, she evaluates the habits that slow down each reader; then she and the reader work on changing them. "By testing at each session, I make sure comprehension goes up with the speed," ads Ms. Thrush.

According to Ms. Thrush, each reader works individually at changing his or her habits. "In a way," she says, "it's a self-growth course because the reader develops new physiological and psychological processes."

Plan to register lobbyists unpopular with business

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

A proposed state law which would require legislative lobbyists who spend more than $1,000 a year in their lobbying activities to register and file complete financial statements continues to catch heat from the state's business sector.

Opponents of the proposed lobby reform bill, at a special meeting of the Michigan Senate Judiciary Committee in Detroit, said the bill is unconstitutional and would bury lobbying firms and their lobbyists under a "blizzard of paperwork."

Opponents echoed the December testimony of George Bushnell, past president of the State Bar Association, saying the reform bill, SB 674, sponsored by Sen. Gary Corbin (D-Clio), would prevent the state's smaller organizations from having any real input into government. They said these smaller groups would be swept under by the time and expense demanded by the extensive filekeeping and reporting described in the bill.

THE BILL would require:
 • Registration of all lobbyists who spend $1,000 or more to lobby a year.
 • Quarterly reporting of all expenditures.
 • An itemized listing of all purchases of food and beverages for public official, if the value is more than $1.

State Sen. Donald Bishop (R-Rochester), who also represents Birmingham, West Bloomfield, and a part of Troy, said there were some "very real" concerns about the bill's legality.

"The (State) Supreme Court might look at it in a different way," Bishop said. "We don't want to do anything to impede a person's ability to petition government."

BUSINESS representatives said the bill would also cut the free flow of information and technical advice to the legislature.

Gordon Tray, a lobbyist for the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, said, "You need more information, more input, more technical assistance, not less."

He said lobbyists now offering that kind of assistance would be unwilling to do so, "if they would be required to register as 'lobbying agents.'"

Tray explained that many times lobbyists or their employers will bring in technical experts to provide information and expertise. Since the expenses of these experts are paid by the lobbyist or lobbying firm and that many times these expenses will exceed the $250 annual limit prescribed by the reform bill, they would be required to register as "lobbying agents."

Tray contended many persons would be unwilling to have their names made public in that light.

BISHOP supported Tray's contention. Because of the record-keeping procedures, lobbyists would be required to show how much, how and on whom the money was spent.

"I'd hesitate to have my name associated with some groups," Bishop said. "My constituency is anti-crime oriented. What would happen if I met with some group which advocated the legal use of drugs. If my name showed up on the records, it would tend to cause some concern among my constituents. Yet, it is my duty to meet with those people," he said.

John Burns, general counsel for the Michigan Manufacturers' Association, raised a familiar objection. "The bill," he said, "assumes that lobbyists are essentially corrupting and that public officials are essentially corruptible."

MORLEY Winograd, chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party, said, "What was possible for Richard Nixon is possible for other elected office holders."

"Before Watergate, the lobby reform bill would have been desirable—now it is essential," he said.

He said the existence of a "shadow government of lobbyists" has been confirmed by the staunch opposition of some members of the business sector.

Winograd said the bill would make lobbying open to public inspection and would help to restore public confidence in government.

Winograd met some unexpected hostility from Sen. Basil Brown (D-Highland Park), chairman of the judiciary committee. "I don't see any connection between this bill and Watergate," Brown said.

He continued, "It is illegal for lobbyists to buy votes. Those that are dishonest will continue to be dishonest. I don't feel this bill will be very effective."

The apparent lack of support by the committee chairman casts some doubt on the fate of the entire lobby reform package.

Elsman's 3d Senate run to seek funds

Birmingham attorney James L. Elsman said his third campaign for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate will seek outside contributions because "unfortunately, money is the key to winning, I found last time."

The 41-year-old contender said, "In the 1976 primary, I got three times more votes per dollar spent than either Riegle, Austin or O'Hara, but too stubbornly chose to refuse any contributions and spent only $15,000 of my own money."

"This year I'm soliciting contributions and will advertise on radio and TV. Our goal is to get at least 100 people to give $1,000 each."

HIS 1976 RUN found him in fourth place, but he got a last-minute boost by filing a lawsuit against Secretary of State Richard Austin, another Senate hopeful. Elsman sought to end the system of political kickbacks from Austin's branch managers.

A court order after the primary spelled an end to the kickbacks by June of 1977.

"I concede this may have hurt me with a few but not with voters," Elsman said several friends advised him to switch to the Republican ticket because of his independence.

"That's a tough question—whether an independent Democrat should stay within the party and fight for controls to keep government from spending beyond income, etc.," he said.

"There are many people in the state who, whether they call themselves Republicans or Democrats, share the same views as I do. I'm an independent also. I'm not ashamed to say that I've had to work hard all my life like the average citizen."

RAISED IN the Kalamazoo suburb of Parchment, Elsman earned his BA at the University of Michigan in 1958, spent a year at Harvard Divinity School and earned his JD (law degree with honors) at U-M in 1962.

He spent a year as a law clerk in the state attorney general's office, two years in Chrysler Corp.'s legal department and since then has been in private practice.

Elsman is fascinated by international affairs. He has drafted a "World Constitution" to replace the existing United Nations Charter, speaks and reads a little in seven languages, has taken part in trade missions and been to every continent. He has never held party or elective office.

Off the Walls

Watching TV impossible, but I listen

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

I have a strong suspicion that most men think a housewife is someone who idles away her days watching "Bill Kennedy Showtime," with her feet propped up on a satin pillow while munching languidly away on bon bons.

To clear up this misconception, I want to state here and now that I haven't watched an entire daytime TV show for three years, four months, and three days (which, coincidentally, happens to be the age of my eldest). I haven't a satin pillow in the house, and I wouldn't know a bon bon if I tripped over one (which isn't an impossibility when you're as clumsy as I am).

GRANTED I DO have the TV on all day. How else am I going to know that there's still a world out there?

Pairing off socks is a little less boring when you can hear the effervescent tones of Bob Barker coming from the family room with the thrilling news that someone has won a "new garbage disposal."

Long ago, I gave up trying to sit down and actually watch an entire show. Little frustrations that my kids have perfected to an art make watching an impossibility.

I did try to watch "Hollywood Squares" once. Just as Paul Lynde started to answer a question, one of my sons let out a shriek as he discovered the ecstasy of dropping pieces of Graham Cracker behind the couch. When I turned back to the screen, even Peter Marshall was laughing so hard that he had to take off his glasses to wipe tears from his eyes. He pounded the podium and finally put his head down on his arms while his whole body shook with laughter. I had obviously missed one of the funniest one-liners in history. I bit the couch and turned off the set.

IT'S TRUE housewives don't have to punch a time clock but that's only because we're never off duty.

Even as I write this the baby is hanging onto my leg saying "Coo-keee." My son and his assorted friends keep coming to me asking "where's Spiderman's ear?" "Why is this (a spatula) in Jason's toybox?" "Can I draw?" "What does this go in?" "Why did somebody put this cup on the floor?" Even a highly paid executive would find it difficult to function under these conditions. And this is what we housewives call our "leisure time."

This may explain why my main goal in life is to take a nap each day. I realize this is setting my standards somewhat low, but I'm not trying to impress—it's survival I'm interested in.

Besides, you'd be surprised at the amount of skill, psychology. Sometimes I feel as if they've made a secret pact with each other—"If I happen to fall asleep, you be sure to stay awake, just to keep her on her toes."

SLEEP IS A precious commodity of which we mothers are greatly deprived.

So every afternoon around 2 the boys take a nap because mama's tired. There are even a few glorious days when I actually achieve my goal...each of my sons sleeping soundly, looking like the precious angels that I secretly know they are.

I shut their doors softly, and am careful not to make a sound lest I disturb their slumber. I collapse on the couch and lie there appreciating the beauty of silence as I quickly go into my version of a coma.

Invariably the phone rings. It's always my husband with the same question: "Is that all you do all day—take a nap?"

Waisting Aweigh

Weight loss resolutions can be kept

By NANCY AUSTIN

"Tomorrow I start my diet!" I'd bet my life that thousands of people in the metropolitan area, and elsewhere, echoed that resounding phrase on Dec. 31, 1976. The tomorrow is the New Year, and hopefully the beginning of the new you.

The New Year's resolution to lose weight is always made with such sincere intentions. You vividly imagine your success. A new, svelter, curvaceous figure should emerge by spring; just in time for short-shorts and bikinis for the female set.

The male ego is boosted by thoughts of the Atlas, he-man shape in those ever so brief swim suits, that keep getting briefer as the years pass.

Suddenly, a sickening, overwhelming feeling grips your body and mind. You must begin now on your diet, so that success may be yours by spring; thus, a New Year's resolution is born.

YOUR MOTIVATION and timing are perfect; a new year, a fresh start, a clean slate.

Your enthusiasm can easily carry you through your first week or even your first month. Chances are that you will lose well. Chances are, too, you will bend everyone's ear (whoever happens to be your captive audience) on how to succeed on a diet. Suddenly you have become the expert.

Now, hold on while I burst your ego-centric bubble. Perhaps after a month elapses you will have lost 10 pounds or even more. But I would bet that, deep in the recesses of your mind, you are starting to get a little bored with dieting and your enthusiasm is beginning to wane.

The pounds aren't melting away as quickly as they did at first. And you begin to rationalize, "Well, I've lost 10 pounds already. Maybe this one little piece of cake won't hurt." Little by little, you chip away at your own enthusiasm. Soon all of your good intentions have gone that path of least resistance. Dieting has become, once again, that elusive frame of mind that will begin tomorrow.

TAKE HEART! You are going down a new path of good intentions. Decide first this isn't going to be "another diet." Strike the word DIET from your vocabulary. You are now going to change your eating habits sensibly. The change will be permanent; for a permanent change will enhance permanent success.

The quest to be a cop

New inspector recalls days on farm

By W.W.EDGAR

When Rodney Cannon, newly appointed inspector in the City of Plymouth police department, was a young man growing up in Indiana he never dreamed the day would come when he would be the number two man in a city law enforcement agency. Sitting at his new desk in city hall he leaned back in his chair and recalled some of the days "down on the farm" where the family didn't have the conveniences of such things as electricity or gas. "We had to get along on such things as kerosene lamps, wood stoves—things that the young people of today don't know anything about."

Cannon became interested. It created his first desire to become a police officer. WHEN THE NEWLY newly elevated inspector came to Michigan one of the first things he did was to apply to the Michigan State Police for an appointment. Much to his dismay, he was rejected. He stood 6-5 and that was one inch over the state police maximum. Undaunted, he worked at a variety of jobs, always with the hope that something would open up in police work. He once worked with an asphalt crew and another time he was a carpenter's helper. But the job he remembers best was his role on the Ford assembly line. "What an experience that was," he said, with a frown, meaning that it was more than a fellow could stand very long. Finally, he saw an ad in the paper. It was from the City of Plymouth in search of policemen. Having lived in Wayne, he knew what type of city Plymouth was and he quickly applied. Meanwhile he had attended the FBI school and was well qualified. OVER THE YEARS he has worked on all sorts of cases and has seen police work from the inside. He was realizing his dream of the young lad in the farm country of Indiana. Cannon calls his greatest experience since he joined the Plymouth force. "The apprehension of the three juveniles who had been wreaking so much havoc around the city and surrounding areas. "We worked on the case for more than a year," he recalled, "and it really was frustrating. These juveniles had stolen two cars, and had done more than $8,000 worth of damage in Plymouth, Northville and Livonia. "We finally caught them and I appeared with them in Juvenile Court where the judge found them guilty. But he placed them on probation and turned them over to their families. I rode home with them—almost as frustrated as before their arrest. "That was the strangest case I have worked on and it will be a long time before I will forget it."

Beware of hucksters in witches' clothing

I can certainly understand why most of the real witches I know prefer to keep a low profile, seldom publicly admitting their involvement with the craft. To admit to being a witch today puts one in the public eye—and the general public has no way of distinguishing between real, traditional witches; satanists, who refer to themselves as witches; harmless but misguided people who have discovered they are clairvoyant, and therefore believe themselves to be born witches; and the out-and-out fraud who takes advantage of innocent people. THERE IS A man in another state who has become well-known as a "witch." He has long been publishing an occult newsletter, teaching mail order classes in "witchcraft," and actively recruiting, and initiating people into his so-called "covens." I was not at all surprised to see that he recently presided over a wedding that some of his followers held here in the Detroit area. Even more recently, they held what they called their observance of the winter solstice, and invited newspaper reporters and others to witness this. I was unconcerned about this at the time. I felt that these were a harmless bunch of people trying to make their dull lives more interesting. However, today I received a call from a lady who asked me for something to protect her. It seems that she signed up for a correspondence course in witchcraft from this man. TO HER SURPRISE, he called her long distance and told her she could join a real coven. He then told her to send him $40 for a diet aid, which she did. Then he told her to send him another $150, or so, to get her sample kit, so that she could sell this product for him. She was also called by a Lady "something or other" from Canton, who claims to be a real witch, but who tried to get her to join the group and sell dietary aids. This young woman told me that she refused, because she didn't want to be a saleswoman. Both of these people became very angry, and she was afraid. DEAR READERS, don't let anyone coerce you into buying anything in order to win their favors as a witch. Also, don't give money to anyone to work spells or break curses for you. The only spells they will work will be to remove the money from your pocket, and put it into theirs. Remember, no one has any more power than you do. Learn to believe in and use your own power. You need not be a witch, or join a coven to do that. Real witches are not missionaries. Instead, they will tell you as I do: Worship God in the way that seems most natural to you personally, and you will always be able to call upon that divine power—both from within and without—to protect you. Blessed be. Note: You may write Gundella at Box 434, Garden City, Mich. 48135. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Relief from heat bills offered aged by state

Senior citizens and persons with low incomes will be able to take advantage of a new state program to reduce this winter's home heating costs. A bill passed by the Michigan Legislature and recently signed into law will offer grants of as much as $200 to help pay for home heating and electricity. The amount of the grant will depend on income, the size of the household and use of heating energy. An estimated 300,000 low income households, a majority of them senior citizens, will be eligible for assistance. THE MAXIMUM grant, $200, will be available to a single person with an income of no more than $2,000 a year. The income limit rises for larger households, so that a family of four, for example, would be eligible with an income of $3,950 or less. As income rises, the amount of aid decreases. A minimum grant could be claimed by a single person with an income of $3,700 or less or a family of four with an income of less than $7,300. There are special provisions for senior citizens, so that a single person or a couple could have an income of as much as $7,000 and still claim a grant of $100. The program includes renters who have heating included in their rent. If they meet the income requirements, they would be eligible for benefits ranging from $60 to $160. THE MONEY will be paid directly to utilities, which will credit the amount to consumers. The benefits will be unavailable to persons receiving Aid to Dependent Children benefits and general direct relief recipients, whose utility needs are handled by social service programs. Applications for grants are being sent to those persons who filed for property tax credits on their state income tax, which is an offshoot of the old senior citizens' homestead property tax relief program. Also, energy suppliers are sending applications to those customers who might be eligible.

Chiropractor's Corner

By William Reinhold D.C.

Good Morning: This is a first in a series of articles we will be presenting to familiarize you with the "Chiropractic Approach" to helping people with health problems.

To begin, we must first recognize that Chiropractic is different than what the average person is accustomed to in regard to "how to solve sickness and pain" problems, which is due to the way most people have been raised. In short, most people in our country have been raised in a medical oriented environment. Or in other words, they have all their lives, by way of all avenues of education in the home, school, college, military, and church had the medical theory drilled into their minds. IT IS NOT OUR INTENT TO CLAIM THAT THE MEDICAL THEORY IS WRONG, BUT TO POINT OUT THAT THE MEDICAL THEORY IS DIFFERENT THAN THE CHIROPRACTIC THEORY, AND THAT THIS DIFFERENCE CREATES THE CONTROVERSY AND CONFUSION.

Also it is not the Chiropractic position to envision that because chiropractic is different, that it will one day replace medicine. For although chiropractic has great potential in helping to solve much of the health problems that face us today, it by no stretch of the imagination sees the necessary services of medicine "in the emergency first aid area" ever being unnecessary.

So it will be our concern, in the following articles, to clear up, as much as possible these conflicting areas.

John Dithmer, general manager of the Plymouth Hilton, overlooks the "Park" area. (Staff photos by Jim Gailbreth, Northville Record).

Business brisk at the Hilton after slow start

By JOHN BECKETT

John Dithmer is a busy man these days. Which means John Dithmer is also a happy man.

A Northville resident, he is general manager of the Plymouth Hilton Inn, located on Northville Road just south of Five Mile Road.

Dithmer took over the reins of the Hilton in August, moving to Northville from Indianapolis, Indiana, where he was general manager of a Rodeway Inn.

ONE OF THE REASONS Dithmer is so happy these days is because business at the Plymouth Hilton is, if not booming, at least brisk. Brisk enough to keep him working 10 to 12 hours a day, six or seven days a week.

Which means that not only is Dithmer happy but so is IDS Mortgage and Development, of Minneapolis, and Motor Hotel Management, of Dallas.

IDS is the owner of the Plymouth Hilton and Motor Hotel Management (MHM) is the management firm which runs the hotel. MHM also is the company which recently was hired to run St. Regis Hotel in downtown Detroit.

Dithmer, an employee of MHM, came to the Plymouth Hilton in August and found business steady, if not brisk. Since then, Dithmer said, business at the hotel has been steadily improving.

All of which is a far cry from the days immediately following the opening of the Hilton, back in November of 1975.

It is no secret that the hotel's start was shaky at best. For months even before its completion, it remained a boarded up facility plagued by so many financial difficulties that there were some who believed it would never be opened.

A big blow to early plans for the hotel was the state's decision not to include an exit entrance off the new M-14 expressway at Northville Road.

Eventually, it and the adjoining successful "Thunderbird Inn" bar and restaurant were purchased by Dean Baker. The Thunderbird had been owned by Art Kobierzynski.

Interestingly, Kobierzynski recently resurfaced with a proposal to create a shopping center, restaurant and apartment complex across Northville Road from the Hilton. A public hearing was held on a related rezoning request last month in Plymouth Township.

IDS acquisition of ownership from Baker represented its return to the business. It had sold the Inn to Baker.

DITHMER IS NOT only the new member of the Hilton's management team.

Also brought in to boost the hotel's operation were Tim Cleary, who Dithmer describes as "perhaps the best chef in our whole organization," and John Marotta, the organization's food and beverage manager.

(Marotta recently married Kate Brown, valedictorian of the Northville High School Class of 1976 and the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Brown, 45730 Fermaugh.)

Business may not have been all that good at the Hilton back in late 1975 and early 1976 but it is good now, according to Dithmer, who says he judges a hotel's performance by the sum total of all its operations.

"I think the only way you really can judge something like this is by looking at the total budget," Dithmer said. "I have a very carefully thought-out budget which I submit to the owners and as long as we're within that budget, I feel secure about the business."

Dithmer's business consists of more than simply renting hotel rooms. There is also the Jolly Miller Restaurant (formerly Thunderbird), the hotel lounge and special packages which the hotel occasionally offers.

During the holidays, Dithmer was happy to report all phases of the business going well.

"We're sold out for New Year's Eve," Dithmer said, "and occupancy has been good other times. I think our food is very good—we occasionally offer real specials, like on Beef Wellington—and we feature entertainment six nights a week."

An agreement has been reached between Maxco, Inc. of Lansing and Medar, Inc. of Plymouth in which Maxco will acquire all outstanding stock of Medar through an exchange of Maxco common stock.

The agreement has been reached by the board of directors of both firms, and is subject to Medar shareholder approval and certain other contingencies, according to Max A. Coon, president of Maxco.

Medar, which manufactures computer systems for the control of automatic resistance welding, will continue under the present management. Charles Drake is president of Medar and Walter Albers serves as vice-president.

If the stock transfer is consummated, Medar would become the 15th operating company owned by Maxco.

MOEHLE APPOINTED

Mrs. Jane Moehle of Plymouth has been appointed a director in the office of continuing education at Eastern Michigan University. She will handle the responsibility for off-campus credit courses and cooperative education in Wayne and Jackson counties.

Mrs. Moehle, 55, is the former coordinator of community college affairs for the Michigan Department of Education. She formerly directed the adult education program for the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit and was a counselor in the College of Nursing at Wayne State.

Her other experience includes serving as an associate dean of women at the University of Illinois, and as a producer and moderator for weekly radio and television programs in Urbana and Indianapolis.

Mrs. Moehle recently was appointed by Gov. Milliken to the state building authority. She holds a PhD. in higher education, administration and social psychology from Wayne State. She also holds two bachelor's degrees—one in sociology and the other in secondary education—from the University of Cincinnati, where she also earned a master's.

Tim Cleary is the head chef at the Plymouth Hilton.

The little things count when pursuing success

By JOHN CZUBAJ
Dale Carnegie, Inc.
Plymouth-Canton Area

An old lighthouse keeper had promised a small boy that he would take him to the top of the tower where he could see the huge lantern that lighted the way for the ships at sea.

Dusk was approaching and they were about to begin their climb up the steep spiral stairway.

The old lighthouseman took a small candle from a cupboard drawer, then lighted it with a match from the pocket of his coat. He took the boy by the hand and together they began the laborious climb.

The boy was intrigued by the little taper. He looked up at the old man and asked, "Sir, what are we going to do with the tiny candle?"

For a moment the old gentleman paused on the stair and looked down into the curious eyes of the lad. "My boy, we are going to make a light in the tower so the ships out on the sea can find their way through the darkness."

The boy was puzzled. "But sir, how can the ships so far out from the tower see such a tiny light?" With a gentle smile and a twinkle in his eye, the old lighthouseman said, "Watch, my lad, and very soon you will see."

WHEN THEY REACHED the top of the tower, the old man stepped up to the giant lantern with the candle still glowing. He gently touched the tiny flame to the large oil wick of the lantern.

The flame began to grow and soon a great brilliant light appeared that could be seen for many miles across the darkness of the waters.

The old gentleman again took the boy's hand and as they walked together down the stairs he explained a great truth. "You must always remember, my lad, that sometimes the things in this world that seem most humble and insignificant are capable of bringing about great accomplishment and all the great and important things that we do in life usually have a small beginning."

SOMETIMES WE FEEL our light in this world is small and unimportant compared to the whole.

But we must be ever aware that all of the great and important ideas since the beginning of time have sprung from a tiny flame of thought.

JOHN CZUBAJ

All the great inventions of Edison: the incandescent lightbulb, the phonograph, the moving picture and many more; Henry Ford's mass production of low priced automobiles all began with a tiny flickering thought.

The giant airliners that circle the globe in just a few hours; the gigantic ships and bridges and buildings—all the wonders that man has done—began with a tiny spark of thought.

EVERYONE HAS THE POWER of thought, the power to create mental images and bring them into reality, but we must capture each important thought the moment it comes to our mind.

Thought can be an elusive thing. It often peers for only a fleeting second into the window of our mind and if we fail to capture it at once it may be gone forever.

Fortunate are the men and women who have learned to capture those small gems of thought while they remain, and fan and nurture them until they grow and spread to become mighty forces for the good of humanity.

Chiropractic often receives too much criticism or credit

By WILLIAM REINHOLT
Doctor of Chiropractic
Canton Township

Can chiropractic help diabetics? Can chiropractic help persons with kidney disorders?

Can chiropractic remedy heart disorders, high blood pressure, or hypoglycemia?

These problems and many others may seem unrelated. In most ways they are. But in one way they are very similar. They are all functional disturbances.

NOT ALL PEOPLE who have these problems are helped by chiropractic. But chiropractic has helped some people.

So how does a person find out if their condition can be helped by a chiropractor?

First, a chiropractor must examine the patient's spine to determine if he has subluxations (out-of-place vertebrae). The presence of subluxations does not mean the patient's problem can be helped. Nor does it mean the chiropractor has uncovered the hidden cause of the patient's unresolved illness.

Once the chiropractor determines that there are subluxations (sometimes there are't), he will recommend ways in which the patient can reduce and, possibly, completely correct the subluxation. If there is no subluxation, there is nothing the chiropractor can do to remedy the illness.

But if a subluxated condition exists, it is during the process of eliminating the subluxations that people who will be helped by chiropractic, are helped. However, there is no way to tell beforehand if the subluxation is contributing to the patient's problem.

FURTHER, WHEN PEOPLE with the above mentioned problems are being treated for subluxations, the chiropractor has no right to take the patient off medication.

If there is any change in medication, it should be done by the medical doctor. Only at his instruction, and not the chiropractors, should medication be altered.

A patient whose conditions is improving should have the corresponding validation of this fact by the doctor who is treating them for the problem. Then, and only then, can and should the medication be altered.

CHIROPRACTIC IS confined to the elimination of subluxations.

It is believed that these subluxations prevent the body from functioning properly.

Subluxations affect the functioning of the body. They pinch nerves in the spine. The nerves carry signals to the brain. Therefore, when the nerves are pinched, the signals are altered.

To say that this is the cause of all man's illness is ridiculous (Christians know different). There are many reasons why people are ill. But to totally discount this as a factor, is to be absolutely blind.

Chiropractic have been the solution for many patients who were otherwise dependent on drugs. Medicine doesn't have all the answers nor does chiropractic, but for one profession to say that another has no value, as the medical profession has said of chiropractic, is monopolistic.

Chiropractic has a definite service to offer people. The service is a benefit which medicine cannot offer. But this service does not make a chiropractic a substitute for medicine, even though quite often people are able to give up medication, which prior to chiropractic they were not.

Chiropractic and medicine are two entirely different services with overlapping benefits, but they are not substitutes for one another. Medical science could definitely help humanity if it endorsed the value of regular spinal care, but the need for chiropractic—a service directed towards strengthening the spine and, thereby, strengthening the body and making it less susceptible to sickness and disease.

SO IF YOU ARE SICK with one of the problems mentioned in the beginning of this column, chiropractic may be the solution.

Chiropractic is a wonderful service in its place, but to try and understand its place through medically-oriented eyes inevitably causes confusion and leads to disbelief.

For some people, the chiropractic service which has helped them to have a stabler spine and overcome an otherwise unsolvable health problem, see it as a "cure" for that illness and cure for others with the same illness. That could not be farther from the truth.

"We claim no cure for disease. What we claim is the ability to realign spinal bones. In so doing, many people experience relief from the misery of their problems that they had been unable to achieve with drugs or medicine. Whatever benefits occur, they are because of the chiropractor's service of relieving pinched nerves.

IN SHORT, we treat misaligned bones which cause nerves to be pinched. Our service is to realign these bones to relieve the pinched nerve.

This service is not a treatment for a condition or a symptom; however it has been so beneficial to so many people for so long that chiropractic has rose to the second largest health profession, second only to medicine—inspite of the medical profession's total rejection of the "value" of chiropractic, and its unrelenting opposition to chiropractic.

So I write to the readers of this newspaper to tell about the simple truth of chiropractic, what it's for, how it works, and what some of the difficulties are which prevent people from seeking help through chiropractic.

What harm can there be to realigning spinal bones and let what will happen, happen. Unpinch nerves and by unpinching nerves and let the benefit speak for itself. That is what a chiropractor does. It's as simple as that.

The rest you've heard. People claiming to have had all types of problems healed by the chiropractor. But now you know what really happened. The chiropractor realigned the spinal bone, releasing the nerve pressure and the body did the rest—without drugs or surgery.

Economic coalition formed to find industrial tax base

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

In an effort to bolster the City of Detroit's sagging tax base and stop the erosion of its business and industrial community, a new economic coalition has been called together to compete with the rest of the state in attracting new industry.

"All of us are aware that for the last several decades, the City of Detroit has been losing businesses, losing jobs, losing population, and losing tax base. Our determination a year ago was to develop an effective approach to reversing those trends," said Lynn Townsend, former chairman of the Board of Chrysler Corp. and co-chairman of the Economic Growth Council of Detroit. He spoke at a meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit.

The Detroit Economic Growth Corp., a non-profit corporation formed at the request of Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, will receive $350,000 from Detroit, and $350,000 from the State of Michigan. It is anticipating $250,000 in contributions from Detroit businesses.

According to Townsend, the corporation will "confine its efforts to the corporate limits of the city of Detroit" — throwing it into direct competition with the suburbs and regional agencies.

"AFTER LOOKING carefully at the statistics on southeastern Michigan, it became quite clear that, although there are pockets of problems regarding the loss of jobs and tax base in other areas of southeastern Michigan, the region as a whole has done quite well over the last 20 years in substantially increasing its jobs and tax base, whereas the city has declined," Townsend said.

"Looking at this issue from another vantage point, if we can effectively reverse the trend of job, business and tax loss that has taken place in the City of Detroit, this may well be the best possible thing that can be done for the region as a whole."

One way the city hopes to attract new business is through the establishment of a "land bank."

"If we hope to attract new businesses, then we have to facilities to handle and house them," said James M. Roche, former chairman of the Board of General Motors and co-chairman of the Economic Growth Council of Detroit.

Townsend agreed: "If we're to attract new plants, we have to have sizeable building sites."

DESPITE THE direct competition between the new corporation and the suburbs, Townsend assured that the growth corporation would "work closely" with regional and state economic-expansion agencies.

"If any business establishment is lost to Detroit, we will leave no stone unturned to insure that effective steps are taken by others to keep those business and those jobs in the State of Michigan," he said.

Townsend and Roche offered other suggestions for aiding the city.

The Economic Growth Council, an advisory body and the predecessor of the Economic Growth Corp., recommended that Detroit taxes be lowered and that state maintain or increase the flow of dollars into the city.

"Federal and state revenues must be continued at least at present levels. This city cannot raise taxes and hope to remain competitive as a place to live and do business. New revenues for this country's older cities must come from the broader tax bases represented by federal and state governments," Roche said.

"WE ALSO determined," he said, "that the Detroit tax has generously, but perhaps beyond its means, provided some services for people who live largely outside the city."

He pointed to a number of Detroit institutions which were used overwhelmingly by non-Detroiters including the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Main Library and the Detroit Zoo.

"Three-fourths of the Institute of Arts' visitors are non-Detroiters and an estimates 75 to 85 per cent of those going to the zoo are from outside the city limits," Roche said.

He concluded, "The state has been cooperative in providing some relief to Detroit's tax problems, but obviously more is needed in the near- and longer-term."

"Reducing the tax burden on Detroit's shoulders and putting where it more properly belongs will be an important step forward."

Woman drowns in nursing home

By CARL STODDARD

Death of a 45-year-old woman in a Southfield nursing home remains under investigation today by Southfield police and a health consumer protection group.

The woman, Titania Kravchell, died shortly after noon Friday, Jan. 20, at Mt. Vernon Nursing Center, 26715 Greenfield. A nursing home employee found Miss Kravchell standing on the floor fully clothed with her face in a partially filled bathtub, a Mt. Vernon official said.

Paramedics from the Southfield Life Support Unit were summoned immediately after the body was discovered, police said. She was reported dead at the scene.

According to Southfield police detective John Haag, exact cause of death has not yet been reported by the Oakland County Medical Examiner's office.

Miss Kravchell was mentally impaired and had been a patient at the facility for several years, a nursing home spokesman said. In addition, the spokesman said, the woman suffered from "variable mood swings."

Citizens for Better Care (CBC), the consumer group that investigates nursing home problems, is also looking into the death at Mt. Vernon.

Last May, an evaluation by the Michigan Department of Public Health found the nursing home to be in "non-compliance" with several regulations. Those items have since been corrected, a Mt. Vernon official said, and no action has been taken to revoke the facility's license.

According to the state report, the building and equipment on the south wing of the second floor of the facility was "not maintained in a clean manner." The report cited "Gross, dried and/or food accumulations on water closet grab bars, door surfaces, door knobs and toilet room walls." Stains and dust accumulations on lunch tables, bedside stands and chairs were also noted.

Brian Clapham, CBC spokesman, said he expects the state health department to conduct an official investigation into the cause of the death at Mt. Vernon. If the department does not initiate the investigation on its own, he said, the CBC will formally request the probe and a full report.

Public funds best answer for elderly

Private business should not be depended on to provide housing for senior citizens—particularly those in need of medical attention.

A recent story in the Observer reported Hendry Nursing Home is phasing out Medicaid patients because, basically, it is no longer economical to house these elderly persons.

Other news reports say the state is requiring nursing homes to finance renovations to meet state construction standards. This means added cost, and the possibility that more and more nursing homes will find it "uneconomical" to accept Medicaid residents.

At the same time, the state is considering whether Wayne County facilities for the aged should be closed down because the operation is "uneconomical." The old folks, the state suggests, can be transferred to private nursing homes.

The City of Plymouth is having difficulty coming up with federal funds for senior citizen housing, and may find itself unable to obtain financing from the state housing authority.

Because of these funding problems, the Blue Ribbon Commission on the Aging suggested an alternate housing source would be to rely on the private sector.

Yet, as municipalities, the county and the state are looking to the private sector to alleviate problems in finding housing for the aged, the private sector is having its own problems—also economic.

Thus the older citizen who cannot afford $200 or more a month for rent is being bounced back and forth, like a Ping Pong ball, from the private to the public sector.

Considering the economic trends in the construction business, and the increasing costs generated by building codes, it seems unreasonable to rely heavily on the private sector to provide housing or medical care to the aged.

And that places the ball back on the public side of the court.

One way or another, this search for a solution will end with spending public funds. That's why the decisions must be made by the local, state or national government.

Commissioners feather 2 beds

Equally disturbing as featherbedding by unions are politicians who play their own game of featherbedding by creating unnecessary jobs for themselves or their friends at the expense of taxpayers.

That's why this newspaper isn't cheering over the Wayne County Board of Commissioners appointment of a couple of its members to salaried executive positions at the top of the county's department of public works.

Public works has been removed from the road commission—a move to be applauded because the road commission already is weighted down with a variety of non-road responsibilities, not the least of which is operation of Metro Airport.

With this change, the board of commissioners placed public works, whose responsibility would include the proposed "super sewer" in western Wayne County, under a special DPW board made up of commissioners. While the make-up of this DPW board has upset some suburban communities, its purpose is not questioned.

IT IS THE NEXT step which is a matter of concern.

The commission now has created two top-level public works directorships, and these high-paying jobs went to two commissioners—one of whom is Royce Smith (D-Belleville), whose district includes Plymouth-Canton area, part of Westland and a portion of Northville Township. These two administrative posts would answer to the public works board—former commissioners answering to commissioners.

County commissioners try to justify Smith's appointment by suggesting it will placate suburban communities who dislike the public works board makeup. For some reason, the simpler and far less expensive alternative escapes them—namely, appointing more out-county commissioners to the public works board.

THE OBSERVER HAS nothing against Smith, who does a fine job representing his district. We just don't think he or any other commissioner should step into an executive's job in the DPW. Nor do we think the job itself is necessary.

Specifically, we dislike the creation of another executive level where none is needed. Commissioners Smith and Chester Wozniak would be inserted into $35,000 and $30,000 chairmanship jobs, respectively, reigning over the present professional manager who, incidentally, will be paid in excess of $40,000 annually for running the DPW.

The DPW has an ample number of qualified, experienced professionals on its staff to direct and operate the department. They can report and be responsible to the already-established DPW board of commissioners.

Smith and Wozniak were elected to the commission posts they sought at $18,000 a year; Nearly doubling their salaries and then naming two (non-elected) commissioners to their old positions could hardly be described as responsiveness to the electorate.

Plain and simple, it's political featherbedding.

Speaking for the record

By BILL SLIGER

The price of service

"Over the years I have become convinced that the very success of democracy hinges on the willingness of qualified people to serve in office."

These were the key words in the statement issued by George Lawton when he announced his resignation from the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education recently.

They provide a challenge and they should include a word or two of advice as well.

A WILLINGNESS BY PEOPLE to become involved in government at the grass roots level is essential if our communities, schools, states and nation are to satisfy the ever-changing needs of society, and if the concepts and spirit of a free enterprise system in a democracy are to be preserved.

The ability to make decisions on behalf of people does not materialize at the upper-most echelons of government and seep down. It is developed through experience on township boards, city commissions and boards of education at the local level.

Community service on appointive and elective bodies is too often overlooked by able citizens. And the complexities of such service are too often underestimated by the uninformed and inexperienced.

IT HAS LONG BEEN my opinion that better decisions would be made in our state and national legislatures if more of these legislators had received their training in the "farm clubs" of their respective hometowns.

Service in public office at all levels of government today requires a degree of homework that surprises most neophytes.

Above all, they must be patient because government responds to change, however badly needed, at a snail's pace. They must be tolerant, because normally the public and press are not. They must accept the fact that their actions are always open for public criticism. And they must be willing to devote their time and talent for minimal compensation.

Small wonder, perhaps, so few choose to serve their communities.

Yet in a free society it can be no other way. And as Lawton said, after many years of public service, the very success of our democracy "hinges on the willingness of qualified people to serve in office."

Our neighbor shops around for allies

The southeastern Michigan suburbs are politically weak and divided.

This was extremely apparent last month when the State House of Representatives passed a $16 million "urban grant program." The legislature had earlier passed a revenue sharing package with plenty of help for Detroit, so the extra dividend—of which Detroit got 75 per cent—was a pure money grab.

The bill received two more than the required 56 simply because Detroit lawmakers made deals with outstate lawmakers. Suburban representatives voted in vain against it; they were caught between a rock and a hard place.

There are probably dozens of other examples floating around the law books and legislative hoppers.

MICHIGAN'S CONGRESSIONAL delegation has long made a practice of having breakfast together in Washington at least once a month.

Ideologically, our congressmen span the spectrum from liberal urban Democrats like John Conyers to conservative Republicans like Elford Cederberg of Midland. But when an issue affecting the whole state—such as the health of the auto industry—comes along, they manage to stand together.

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) is involved in organizing a suburban coalition, too, on Capitol Hill.

Suburban legislators ought not to think selfishly of gouging the state treasury. But they would be doing their constituents a service if they could gang up with enough strength to prevent the outlying regions of this metropolis from being caught again in the Detroit-outstate vise.

THESE THOUGHTS took form in my head as I contemplated the prospect of a series of meetings between the two biggest guys in our region—Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy.

Young wants to protect the Detroit Zoo. Murphy wants to see construction of I-696, which is slated to go past the zoo. One of their agenda items is working out a safe solution. That's good.

The M-275 project in western Oakland County is dead. While the environmentalists claim credit, some of us suspect that the mayor's fine hand was involved because M-275 would have constituted a freeway bypass of Detroit. Whatever happened, western Oakland folks have a real road problem. Perhaps Murphy can work out something with Young to neutralize any Detroit opposition to a state trunkline out there.

Young wants a subway. Murphy wants a truly regional public transportation system. Less than $1 billion in federal money is available. It won't build both a lengthy subway and a regional transit system. Perhaps they can negotiate a compromise.

Tim Richard

THAT'S ALL well and good for Oakland County.

It's well and good for western Wayne County to the extent that Dan Murphy represents western Wayne's interests.

But Murphy wasn't elected from western Wayne County, and protecting our interests isn't his top priority. So western Wayne may find itself in its habitual place—out in the cold.

The Stroller

A happy homecoming

Homecomings always have held a strange fascination for The Stroller.

As a young chap back in the hills of Pennsylvania, he always was keenly interested in welcoming the young men back from World War I. He well remembers rushing across the bridge to the railroad station to greet one of the town heroes who was returning minus his left arm. He lost it in the service of his country.

And he never can forget the greeting from his mother on his first trip back home after strolling along the journalistic trail on The Detroit Free Press.

HE HAD BEEN gone from home for eight months, and he knew she would be glad to see him. As the neighbor's automobile approached the old home, The Stroller pictured his mother standing in the doorway, wrapping her arms around him to welcome him home. But the greeting was far different.

Instead of her rushing up to him and embracing him, she took one look and said, for all to hear, "Good gad, he's got a top coat. He always wanted one." That was her way of realizing her only boy was making good—far from home.

And Homecoming Day at the various universities of the land where he travelled to cover the football games in fall always left The Stroller with a lump in his throat. He'd see hundreds of old grads in the stands, thrilled to be back on campus.

When the band played "The Yellow and Blue" in Michigan Stadium, he'd see tears running down the cheeks of tycoons of industry and high civic officials. They were at an emotional peak, reliving their days on campus and others rolling back the years to live again as a member of the Maize and Blue football squads.

There was something about these sights that stamped them as much different from other Saturday afternoons in the stadium. It was Homecoming Day and a day of rekindling memories.

WHILE THESE sights always held a strange fascination, there was a homecoming the other day that dwarfed all the others from an emotional standpoint, and it was a day The Stroller never will forget.

Detroit's population is 1.3 million and shrinking. Oakland's is one million and increasing. Suburban Wayne is 1.2 million and holding; if you eliminate Hamtramck, Highland Park and the Pointes, it's growing.

There's no one person who can represent western Wayne County in cutting political deals the way Murphy can represent a million persons in Oakland. Some kind of group involvement will be needed.

Western Wayne lawmakers need to consider forming their own caucus, party lines be damned. Then they will need to shop for allies, starting probably with Oakland's legislators.

After that, they can deal with Detroit as equals.

Early in the week, Leona, The Stroller's helpmate who had been confined to the hospital where she had her arthritic knee replaced in one of the miracles of modern surgery, was told that if she progressed well over the next four days, she could return home. It was the word for which she had been waiting.

"You bet I'll improve over the next four days," she told the doctors. So, with the same courage with which she faced the replacing of her knee, she took to therapy and started walking better than she had in the early stages.

Then, at the end of four days, the call came. "The doctors will be here in about 15 minutes to give me one last examination and then sign my release."

YOU CAN IMAGINE the feeling as The Stroller and his neighbors raced to the hospital and helped her to prepare for a departure. When we arrived, the drawn look seemed to disappear from her face. There was a smile as she passed through the exit to be put aboard the station wagon.

She had won her battle—a battle in which she was close at times to being a casualty. And now she was heading home after seven weeks on the medical fighting front.

"31515 Grove Drive (the home address) will never look better," she said with the low voice of one who had been confined for so long a time.

Finally we turned into the drive. As the station wagon came to a stop as close to the door as possible, she said, "Home!" She didn't have to say any more. The Stroller had a huge lump in his throat as did the others who came to greet her.

Ironically, even the flock of pheasants that had congregated close to the back door all fall came walking through the snow. So did cardinals and the winter doves and the snowbirds. And not to be outdone, the squirrels were on hand, too.

Leona was home. And what a great welcoming group!

It was homecoming day at The Stroller's residence, and there never will be a happier one.

Leona is back home, and all seems right with the world again.

Festival enjoyed a productive year

Editor: At the end of my term as president of the Fall Festival Board, I would like to take this opportunity, on behalf of the board of directors and our most capable manager, Carl Glass, to thank you and your staff for the publicity and excellent coverage you gave to the Fall Festival in 1977.

At this time, all the entrants have reported in and our best from the different organizations which will be put back into the community by their individual clubs. We had fewer entrants this year but it was our best festival, not only from a financial point of view with gross sales in excess of $131,000, but also from the large numbers of people who attended each day's activities.

We would like to give special thanks to those individuals who sent Fall Festival advance donations, which was of the utmost assistance in helping us out "of the red" from last year. In addition to that, a special thanks to our own board members who contrived purchasing services, entertainment, etc.

At this writing, I am happy to announce that the Fall Festival has not only paid their 1976 debts, but also have their 1977 obligations paid and it would appear that we have a balance on hand which would allow us to operate throughout the next few months and get organized for 1978.

Again, our sincerest thanks to the Observer Newspapers for its cooperation and to the many who made the Fall Festival the success that it was.

Grateful for help

Editor: We would like to express our grateful gratitude and appreciation to the Paul Sambrone family, friends and neighbors for helping our nephew's family in their time of need.

There are no words to express how thankful we are to have such wonderful people who, during the holiday season, gave their belongings to strangers. When our nephew's home burned down with everything in it, all they had was what was on their backs. But by the grace of God they were spared.

Christmas, which seemed to be a happy one for the little boy, had turned into confusion with all his gifts destroyed in the fire. But the Sambrone family and friends came through and brought a smile. Shortly after he received his new gifts, the baby was placed in the hospital with a staph infection. But now he is back home and well. So how can we say thank you for all that was done. God bless you now and always.

Army says thank you

Editor: We at the Salvation Army would like to express our sincere appreciation to the Plymouth community for its warm and generous support during the past year. We are privileged to give service to individuals and families at Christmas and during the year because so many friends are willing to stand with us.

We are convinced that this community has and will benefit because they have shared with others and because they have shared willingly and cheerfully.

We pray that God will bless those who live in this community as we continue to serve the Christ who was born on that first Christmas.

Specialist pooh-poos jogging opponents

Dr. Kenneth Cooper, creator of the "aerobics" exercise program that is followed by millions of Americans, says that joggers at his Aerobics Activity Center track here have logged over one million miles "without a single fatality."

In an article published in the January issue of the Reader's Digest, Cooper asserts, "Despite scattered claims and headlines about the dangers of jogging and other aerobic activities, the evidence in favor of an aerobics program is overwhelming."

Since 1971, he says, more than 5,000 people have exercised at the Dallas track without serious mishap. He concedes, though, that "It is true that unaccustomed, unsupervised, strenuous exercise, especially by cardiac patients and sedentary people, may be dangerous."

But he insists that if safe and sensible guidelines are followed, there is no danger to the individual. He calls for persons taking up exercise to obtain a complete physical examination before they begin, not to run within two hours after a heavy meal, to warm up gradually before starting out and to cool-down after completing exercise.

"As yet, we don't have enough evidence to claim that diet and exercise can actually rebuild and open up clogged arteries—only evidence that the process can be slowed down," Dr. Cooper writes. "But there is overwhelming evidence that aerobic exercise will not only work to prevent or delay the onset of heart disease, but also help you survive a heart attack."

He says further that "Our evidence indicates that cardiovascular fitness has a direct relation to mental health and a sense of well-being. A person whose circulation has improved, giving his brain more oxygen and glucose, is less depressed, less hypochondriac, will feel more alert, and is more ready to handle stresses and challenges."

Dr. Cooper cites the story of a 58-year-old patient who exercised regularly and was in good physical shape. While on safari in Africa he experienced chest discomfort. Thinking it was indigestion, he took it easy for a day, then resumed the safari, walking great distances each day. When he got home, a checkup revealed that he was recovering from a massive heart attack.

Spending drop expected to dim economic prospects

Offsetting consumer attitudes and expectations appear to buoy the near-term spending outlook, but dim prospects beyond mid-1978, the University of Michigan Survey Research Center (SRC) reports in the latest survey of consumer attitudes.

Results of November-December 1977 interviews with 1,280 people in a national sample signal a continued erosion of favorable expectations for improved economic conditions.

"Reports of unfavorable business developments, especially in employment opportunities and greatly lessened confidence in government economic policy, have led to increase pessimism," said Richard Curtin, director of the survey of consumer attitudes, and survey founder George Katona.

"Amid this growing uncertainty, evaluations of current finances remain favorable, and although buying attitudes moderated in late 1977, they remain more favorable than a year earlier. The continued divergence among attitudes and expectations serves to buoy the near-term spending outlook, but dims prospects beyond mid-1978. Continued improvement in real incomes will act to bolster consumer demand in the near-term, but restoring confidence in government economic policy is essential to prevent further erosion and to renew an optimistic outlook among consumers."

The SRC index of consumer sentiment recorded in the latest survey stands at 83.1, representing a decline of 4.5 points from the August-September survey and three points below the year-ago reading. (February 1966 equals 100).

The decline in sentiment was widespread across income subgroups. Consumer confidence among families with incomes of $15,000 and over was down 4.2 points to 81.1, although showing no net change from a year earlier. The loss in confidence was somewhat greater among families with incomes under $15,000, whose index figure of 77.7 shows a loss of 6.2 points from three months earlier and a net year-end decline of 6.8 points.

The decline was attributed to less favorable expectations for improvement in personal finances and general business conditions over the next 12 months, and to sharp losses in confidence in the government's economic policy to combat inflation and unemployment.

The report notes that "the increased confidence in government economic policy which was evident in early 1977 as President Carter entered office has now been entirely reversed."

In spite of these pessimistic expectations, evaluations of current personal finances remain favorable, the economists explain. Attitudes toward buying conditions have moderated recently, but are still more favorable than they were a year ago. The maintenance of buying attitudes at their relatively high levels continues to be based on buy-in-advance psychology.

In overview, the report notes that "the decline in the Index of Consumer Sentiment from mid-1972 to the winter of 1974-75 was the longest and sharpest on record. The recovery of consumer attitudes since early 1975 has likewise been substantial, but has proceeded at an uneven pace. By the spring of 1977, the Index had gained more than 30 points and stood at 89.1, but since then it has declined to 83.1.

"Since the Index of Consumer Sentiment reached its all-time peak in 1965, each decline has not only been longer and steeper than the last, but the declines have started from progressively lower levels, and the recovery periods have lengthened. An analysis of the underlying cycles in the time-series movements of the Index of Consumer Sentiment has indicated the recent importance of approximate four-year cycles, highlighted by the occurrence of cyclical troughs in attitudes in the last quarters of 1966, 1970, and 1974. Recent movements are consistent with the continuation of this same pattern, indicating an emerging downturn in future trends."

CEP random selection disrupts neighborhoods

Editor:

I am writing in response to the article of Jan. 16 in the Canton Observer concerning random selection for the high schools. I think the procedure should be changed so that children in the neighborhood could attend the same high school. Therefore, their loyalties would be in the same direction. By doing this, not only families, but the "only child" families would be with their friends.

It just isn't right to break up the neighborhoods so that one family or even an only child is sent to a different school. I think it is important for a child entering high school to be with his neighborhood friends so that there is companionship outside of school as well as in school.

I'm sure there is no easy answer, but I think the matter should be re-evaluated. Since there were only 40 appeals this year, maybe the answer would be to grant those appeals and work on a plan that would be more acceptable to the students and their families for the next year.

As a taxpayer and a concerned parent, I thank you for letting me give my opinion.

1977 Income Taxes

Open a Security Bank 7<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>% Individual Retirement Account by February 14, 1978, and take a tax deduction on 1977 income.

A recent government ruling has extended the period for opening a tax-sheltered IRA Account and earning a tax break on last year's income taxes. Now you have until February 14, 1978 to open an Individual Retirement Custodial Account (or add to your existing IRA Account) at Security Bank and use the deposit as a deduction on your 1977 tax return.

A Security Bank Individual Retirement Custodial Account is as easy to open as a regular savings account. It offers a 7<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>% annual rate with a three-year maturity and is automatically renewable. With quarterly compounding, the effective annual yield is 7.977%. Annual statements are provided.

Qualifications You qualify for this tax-sheltered retirement account if you are not currently a participant in any employer-sponsored retirement plan. What's more, an additional IRA Account can be opened for your spouse as long as he or she is not employed and receives no compensation.

Tax Savings Contributions up to $1,500 (or 15% of compensation, whichever is less) are deductible from adjusted gross income each year. A spouse's additional IRA Account increases the maximum to $1,750. All contributions and the interest earned on your IRA Account accumulate tax-free until withdrawn at retirement.

Open-End Feature Deposits must be in the amount of $25 or more. However, you can make as many deposits to the account as you wish in order to accumulate your annual contribution. Each deposit earns from the day of deposit. All deposits made during a calendar year have the same maturity date—three years from December 31 of the year in which the deposits are made.

Start Now For more information, or to open your account, call 283-5000 or visit any Security Bank and Trust branch office.

Withdrawal from an IRA Account without penalty may be made at age 59½ or in the case of death or permanent disability. Otherwise Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate. There is also a substantial I.R.S. penalty for early withdrawal. This account is subject to IRA rules and regulations.

HIGH IN THE mountains of Costa Rica is a plastic pocket-size calendar bearing the words, "Wiltse's Community Pharmacy, 330 S. Main Street, Plymouth, Mich." The walls of the restaurant, which claims to be the highest in Latin America, are plastered with business cards from all over the world.

Dorothy Finney and Nell Fillmore didn't have a personal card along, so they added the calendar to the collection.

The Plymouth women were in Costa Rica for the wedding of Mrs. Fillmore's son, Rick Fillmore, a member of the Peace Corps, and Elba Vargas, a school teacher, were married in Valencia early in January.

The wedding was in an old church about three blocks from the bride's family home. Members of her family, neighbors, and Rick's Peace Corps friends attended the ceremony and the reception which followed.

Each of the guests received a memento. The bride and bridegroom passed among the crowd carrying a large basket draped with white cloth. In the basket were small pottery baskets. Each was decorated with two small birds with rings in their beaks. A red ribbon on each basket was imprinted with the couple's names and the date of the wedding.

Rick graduated from Plymouth High School and Michigan State University. He has been in Costa Rica with the Peace Corps for 1 1/2 years.

DOROTHY AND NELL left Plymouth Dec. 23. They flew to Miami and then to San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, where Rick met them.

There was Christmas to look forward to and more than a week of sight seeing before the wedding. Rick had planned their agenda and drove them around in a VW bus.

Mrs. Finney's impressions of the country and its people were varied.

"It is all mountains. The streets are paved in the capital but when you get out in the country it is all up and down on rocky roads. It took us eight hours to get to the Pacific, about 60 miles away.

"The flowers are beautiful—huge calla lilies and poinsettia trees. The people are handsome—the girls have the most beautiful complexions.

"They raise bananas along the coast and coffee in the foothills. Coffee was 65 cents a pound in the stores.

"The houses were decorated with Christmas lights and many had reindeer on the front lawns. I only saw two Santa Clauses. One in Elba's living room, and a picture of one in a store.

"I WAS SURPRISED at the primitive plumbing. The hot water for baths was all gone by 6 a.m. in the hotel. And one must never put paper in the toilet—either in the hotels or private homes.

"One of the largest industries is raising palm trees for oil. The trees have bunches of what look like wooden grapes. The oil extracted from these is used for the manufacture of margarine. Owners of the plantations provide homes, schools, and even cemeteries for the workers and their families.

"Everyone was so clean and well-dressed. We saw only three beggars all the time we were there. Not swarms of them like Mexico.

"It was warm in the daytime and cool enough for a wool blanket at night."

THERE ARE LARGE herds of cattle, said Mrs. Finney. One of Rick's friends spends all his time taking blood samples from the cattle and delivering them to a laboratory for testing. He has been in Costa Rica for 13 years. He went there as a member of the Peace Corps and stayed on after completing his hitch.

Rick visits the schools as an athletic instructor, traveling over mountain roads on a motorcycle.

"Soccer seems to be their favorite sport," Mrs. Finney said. "Each church had an athletic field beside it."

But they weren't much interested in football. They could not find out who won the Rose Bowl. Even Central America's Tico Times, the English newspaper, had no mention of the Rose Bowl. The visitors were told that there is interest in the World Series.

Hotel rates were very reasonable and the food was good. "They served a lot of eggs and brown rice. We had a

Marji says:

'Roll up your sleeves, pant cuffs'

By SHERRY KAHAN

Fashion writer Marji Kunz once tumbled down the stairs at Christian Dior's in Paris. But that was nothing compared to being chased by 14 naked Frenchmen at St. Tropez. She didn't mention how she found time to count.

Speaking to a Livonia Town Hall audience last week, Mrs. Kunz said she seeks interesting places around the world for inspiration on fashions. Standing with a photographer at the St. Tropez beach, "14 men wearing angry expressions and not much else ran up to attack me and the cameraman," evidently on the suspicion that their privacy was being violated.

"They released us when I began to cry," she said. "I was told later that French men never like to see women cry."

She added that among that particular group of males, having a suntan mark was tantamount to being nouveau riche.

FOR HER SPEECH, the third in this year's Livonia Town Hall series, Ms. Kunz wore a white wool jersey dress, with matching white cuffed cap and a matching scarf which she could have carelessly tossed about her neck, had she so wished.

Instead it lingered over one shoulder, ready for the first cold breeze.

THE RED LIPSTICK and red nail-polish she chose sent an unspoken message to the women in the audience that bright colors are back in makeup.

Her coyote fur poncho over which rested a coyote fur muffler, with tails, announced she doesn't hang out much with environmentalists, who frown on the decorative use of animal skins.

Ms. Kunz, who takes her job as fashion reporter for the Defroit News very seriously, nonetheless can't help breaking up now and again at the incredible and often hilarious ideas conceived by fashion designers.

The audience joined her.

MARILYN STONER of Westland thought the idea of cashmere long winter underwaer was pretty bizarre. Mary Jacobsen of Garden City chuckled at the idea of turning the top of her one piece bathing suit into the upperhalf of a long summer dress.

"My bathing suit is wool," she said. She didn't think the new $35 silk pantyhose would be high on her list of priorities.

Those who find security in knowing what is au courant were doubtless pleased to hear from Ms. Kunz that in furs, "heads and paws are out and tails are in."

ANOTHER NEW WRINKLE is wrinkles.

"Clothes that are wrinkled are status symbols," said Ms. Kunz. "The trend is away from the obvious synthetic look and they are thinking about clothes made from natural fibers. But you don't have to worry about wrinkles in your clothes after you stand up."

On top of this comforting news came a thunderbolt.

"It's the season to roll up all your sleeves," she said.

"Push up your blazer sleeves almost to the elbow. It sounds weird, but it is the only way to wear a blazer this spring. It may seem funny, but that's probably what you first thought about miniskirts, boots and pant suits.

"All designers are rolling up pant legs to mid calf. We may get used to it."

However, she regarded as the disaster of all time the attempt to bring back rolled down ankle socks.

Khaki colored clothing is out there hovering in the wings, thanks to the ingenuity of Yves. St. Laurent, who according to Mrs. Kunz is introducing the army surplus look. However, other designers are pushing a kind of Bo Peep look and even sent models out in public, dressed in this fashion and carrying crooks.

"Imagine going shopping in Great Scott with a crook," said Ms. Kunz.

BUT NOT ALL THAT is fashionable is clothing. A few items regarded as very big among the people who count, according to fashion designers, include:

- Fancy toilet seat covers. Some include a picture of Elsie the cow, and a collection of cards bearing the unforgettable slogan, royal flush.
- Great Danes and St. Bernard dogs made of ceramics. "They are life-size," said Mrs. Kunz.
- Antique Rolls Royces have much more appeal among the rich currently than the dull old new models. Especially sought after are the old vases that held flowers.
- Anything Gucci. "That is a Florentine family with an identity problem."

Everyone joins mood at a fasching party

"The costumes seem to get better every year," said Chuck Ploughman, president of the German American Club of Plymouth.

There was no doubt about it, the club's fourth annual fasching party Saturday night was a smashing success.

The auditorium of the Plymouth Cultural Center throbbed to the music of the Melodias and the dancing feet of a sell-out crowd. And when the orchestra struck up a German melody, voices were raised in song.

Not all the guests wore costumes for the traditional pre-Lenten party, but those who did added to the enjoyment of the whole crowd.

German beer, wines, sausages, rolls, sauerkraut and warm potato salad were dispensed by club members.

THE COSTUME parade began shortly after midnight.

First-prize winners were a top-hatted animal trainer and a well-trained member of the cat family. One crack of his whip and the ferocious cat jumped, with great agility, over a chair.

Unmasked, the couple turned out to be Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Bevins. Bevins teaches the Saturday German classes sponsored by the club.

Second place winners were Franz and Marcella Leib of Ann Arbor, in colorful oriental costumes.

Judges Maria Mulzer, Gus Oesterle and Reimute Feller had a difficult task.

There was the hairy-faced werewolf, Gordon Wiseman, with his wife, Jutta, in a dainty serving maid uniform. Steve Davio and Barb Tatzka, a pair of medicos, wore operating room greens.

The Indian princess was Doris Engelhardt. Maria Wihler, her head wreathed in flowers, was Mother Nature. Christina Coles, with a bright cherry of a nose, was a clown.

Persons of all ages—many of German ancestry and many with no German background—joined the fun. Lynn Schneider, well over six feet tall, danced with his small niece Erica Schneider.

Lindwood Miller of Northville tended bar with Terry Cowger of Belleville. Their wives, Anita Cowger and Erika Miller served their stints in the kitchen. All were in costume.

Plymouth merchants contributed prizes for the event and Bill Ruehr of Heide's Greenhouse and Flower Shop on Mill Street provided the greenery that decorated the stage and auditorium.

Books can help kids enjoy move

"Books for Kids About Moving: A Survival Guide for Parents," is the title of a free booklet from the Bekins Co. which lists 30 titles for preschoolers and children from the kindergarten level through sixth grade. The new bibliography—the first to deal solely with the subject of moving—was published to help make the process of uprooting a positive, confidence-building experience that is free of the trauma most adults feel during a move.

The philosophy behind the booklet is that reading stories about moving prior to a move help build what child psychologists call "a comfort zone." It is felt that fiction provides new patterns to try and examples for children to follow in reorganizing the real material of their lives.

Bekins published the booklet soon after its survey of children who had made long-distance moves. The survey indicated that preschoolers need special preparation for moving that includes making moving a "participatory adventure" while elementary school children need "evidence of continuing friendship patterns."

The booklet may be obtained by writing to the Public Relations Dept., The Bekins Co., 1335 S. Figueroa St., Los Angeles, Ca. 90015.

Shape up for June

Wardrobe updating, spot exercises, tricks with scarves and other accessories will be among the ways model June Lark will help you get ready for spring.

Her course will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Feb. 6, 13, 20 and 27 in room 200 of the liberal arts building at Schoolcraft College.

Ms. Lark, a Livonia resident, will also teach a class on modeling from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the same location on Feb. 8, 15, 22 and March 1.

Featured in the shape-up class will be a hair show by Richard Joseph of Emile's Salon, who will give those present a personal analysis regarding their hair texture, styling and coloring problems.

Ms. Lark will also demonstrate how to apply make-up professionally, and how to pack for a minimum amount of luggage on trips.

The course costs $20 for four weeks. All participants are asked to bring makeup, mirror and several scarves to the first session.

In the modeling class, participants will learn how to enter and leave a room gracefully, sit properly and what to wear for interviews. Cost is also $20 for four weeks.

Ms. Lark recently returned from New York City where she modeled for Claïrol. For information call Marge Lynch at 591-6400, ext. 430.

Mrs. M.C. Greenfield of Bloomfield Hills is chairwoman of the event. Her committee includes Mrs. Thomas Schoenith, Mrs. Arthur Pfannenschmidt, Mrs. Harry Fetters, Mrs. David Pollack, Mrs. Antonino Scalia, Mrs. Donald Longyear and Mrs. Don Stein.

Jack and Anne Hommes sit with last year's woman of the year, Marilyn Stathakis (right). (Staff photos)

The Plymouth Jaycees and Jaycettes joined forces for last week's Distinguished Services Award dinner in the Mayflower Meeting House.

Last year's winners of the young man and young woman of the year awards were among the honored guests. Marilyn Stathakis and her husband John shared a table one of this year's nominees, Anne Hommes and her husband, Jack. Bill Graham, man of the year for 1977, was seated with another nominee, Mark Wollenwebber and his wife.

Maureen Karby introduced the Jaycette's nominees. Tonie Jarmol, Kathy Salla, Jane Beauchamp and Jaycette president Barbara Lane had worked on the DSA committee. Michael Lane, who chaired the committee for the Jaycees, introduced that club's nominees.

Following a steak dinner and Lt. Gov. James J. Damman's speech, the winners were announced. Barbara Lane presented a plaque to Sylvia Stetz. Jaycee president James Picard presented Dale Yagiela.

Anecdotes spice Marji's talk

They keep putting their initials on everything.

In Monte Carlo they are pushing blue jewels with blue jeans. Ms. Kunz thinks blue to Monte Carloites means sapphires, but blue paste might do for the average person.

Sterling silver coke glasses and Keweenaw holders. "It's toss away chic for the people who have everything."

MORE PRACTICAL suggestions were introduced by the former Wayne

State University student, who lives with husband Armand Kunz in Birmingham. They included loose billowing dresses and loose blouses or tunics that end below the knee.

UPDATE YOUR MINISKIRTS, she suggested, and turn them into tunics.

"Now they tell me," responded Jean Bleasdale of Livonia, who had already given hers away. Several others agreed that people who buy from the Salvation Army and Goodwill are stealing a march on them in recycled miniskirts.

World War II kimonos worn loose over trousers (the word slacks is as far out as Mars) are selling like hot cakes. Gray handbags go with about everything as do stocking-colored shoes.

The fashion expert observed that it is hard today to be an original lady of fashion.

Recently Princess Grace of Monaco entered a ball wearing a cotton candy pink dress and cape.

Three minutes later another lady came skulking along wearing the same pink gown and wrap. Close on her heels was a third, in the same dress but black. The woman told Mrs. Kunz, "This always happens after shopping at Dior; we always know everyone will have on our dress."

Ms. Kunz admires originality, and thinks the best way to be original is to whip up your clothes on a sewing machine. She believes clothes should be a simple declarative sentence about an individual. She spoke several times of having what you wear make a statement about you.

"Know who you are and add the embellishments of the season," she urged. "My role is really to be a snoop and find out everything you need to know. Then you sift it out. Everyone should be an individual rather than a sheep."

SHE BELIEVES WHAT she does is social anthropology.

"It's a study of what people wear and why they wear it, and how it affects their lives," she said. "In Saudi Arabia I wrote on how Arab men make their long flowing robes different by the use of color. I wrote on kilts as a political statement in Scotland."

She was very pleased with an article she had written on the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, whom she called one of the 10 most important men in the world.

But for the most part she sticks with the fashion crowd and tries to make their creations meaningful to her readers. She savors some of their remarks and delights in passing on the advice Estee Lauder, the cosmetic queen, gave to a friend.

"Wear something simple and all of your diamonds."

MARJI KUNZ

Musial is artist-of-the-month

The work of Walter Musial, a member of the Three Cities Art Club, is featured in a one-man show in the Plymouth Community Credit Union, 500 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

The Livonia resident is a self-taught artist. He spent more than 28 years with Ford Motor Design Center as an experimental parts fabricating specialist and master craftsman.

He has sculptured and engraved items in solid gold and other precious metals. He also has built precision model structures of buildings, classic and futuristic autos and aircraft for company presentations. One of his major contributions was helping build a model of Detroit's Renaissance Center.

MUSIAL'S WAS first exposed to painting by his mother-in-law Anna Sebo.

In December 1970, he sat and watched her finish a large oil painting. When he offered a few suggestions, she handed him a paint brush and insisted he help. They worked together, one at each end of the painting.

A month later, while recovering from surgery, he bought a beginner's oil painting kit and instruction books. He began exploring his new-found talent. He studies and paints daily with encouragement and suggestions from his wife, Julie.

Since 1970, his output has been prodigious.

He has painted and sold hundreds of paintings of Michigan landscapes, seascapes, old homes, barns, railroad stations, junk yards, marinas, city scenes and bridges.

"MOODS OF MICHIGAN," a collection of 86 pen and ink drawings was published last year.

Paintings of churches in Bloomfield Hills, Redridge and Bates are in the show. His original of Kirk in the Hills is three feet long. Reprints, in limited edition, are available.

Also included in the show at the Credit Union are paintings of old homes, cider mills and street scenes from all over Michigan; fisheries from Leland, Gay and Whitefish Point; railroad stations from South Lyon, Muskegon, Perry, Chelsea, Champion, Grant, Newago, Vicksburg and Sturgis.

Originals from "Moods of Michigan" and oils will be on display until the end of February.

Walter Musial's one-man show of paintings and pen and ink drawings will be in the Plymouth Community Credit Union on Harvey Street until the end of February. His pen and ink drawing of Kirk in the Hills is included in the show. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey) mixture of rice and little brown beans for breakfast. We took along pills for the water but we didn't use any of them. We felt very well all the time we were there.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

"WE CLIMBED a mile up the side of a volcano to see the widest crater in the world. The water in the bottom bubbles and steams."

Dorothy said there was a government election coming up and they were very interested in the campaign posters. "Even high in the mountains, you'd see little flags with pictures of the candidates stuck high in the trees.

You'd wonder who put them there and who would see them.

"And I never saw people drink so much Coke, Pepsi and Sprite—big 16-ounce bottles. The big trucks would go rumbling up the mountain roads—loaded with empties."

When they visited the "highest restaurant in Central America," they looked down on the blue water of a lagoon far below.

"We wrote our names on the guard rail by the crater," said Dorothy. "Nell recalled the old rhyme, 'Only fools with funny faces write their names in public places,' but we wrote them anyway."

Dialing down?

I practice what I preach.

The people at Consumers Power have been telling you about how to save money by dialing down. Well, don't get the idea that we don't take our own good advice. We do. I know that for sure because I'm a maintenance man in one of Consumers Power's buildings. And part of my job every day is making sure the Consumers Power thermostats are dialed down. I keep them down during the day, and turn them back even more before we leave for home, and over weekends and holidays.

Dialing down saves us energy and money, and when we save, you save. But the way to save the most money is to dial down in your own home. I do - for the same reason that you should. I pay the same price for my energy as you do.

Country musical on for next week

The story is told with a country flavor and a city sophistication. The music is foot-stompin' and the homespun characters are (almost) right out of history.

The show is "The Robber Bridegroom," Broadway's country musical hit which received rave reviews in New York and won a Tony Award for its star, Barry Bostwick.

"The Robber Bridegroom" arrives at Detroit's Music Hall Center with a whoop and a holler for three performances, Feb. 2-4, at 8:30 p.m. and a matinee Feb. 4 at 2.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is a Robin Hood-type story of a rascal highwayman, his country cohorts and a fair damsel, set against the backwoods frontier of Mississippi circa 1800. Mistaken identities, good-natured humor and innocent romance make this geared for the entire family.

THE SHOW IS based upon the novella by southern writer Eudora Welty, with book and lyrics by Alfred Uhry. The show's 13 production numbers feature the original music of Robert Waldman and choreography of Dennis Grimaldi.

Tickets can be purchased by calling the Music Hall box office 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and noon-6 p.m. Saturday. The box office window is open noon-6 p.m. Monday-Saturday. Master Charge, BankAmericard and J.L. Hudson charge cards are accepted.

The Music Hall is located at 350 Madison Avenue.

Trip Plymale recreates his performance as Goat in "The Robber Bridegroom" at the Music Hall for four performances in February.

'Cinderella' has openings

Open auditions will be held at the Henry Ford Museum Theatre in Dearborn for a production of "Cinderella." The auditions will be held Feb. 6 at 5 p.m. and Feb. 7 at 7 p.m.

Those auditioning must have evenings available for rehearsals starting Feb. 13. All positions are salaried.

Matinees will be performed March 18, 25, 27-31, April 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29. There will be morning and afternoon shows March 20-23.

For further information, contact Joseph French, Henry Ford Museum, 271-1620.

Bruncheon at Summit

The Summit—the tri-level, counter-revolving restaurant-lounge complex atop the Detroit Plaza Hotel—has started a Sunday Bruncheon.

Guests dine with an unrivaled view and a host of hearty entrees every Sunday on the Summit's dining level 10:30 a.m.-3 p.m.

The Bruncheon menu is extensive, featuring fruit or juice, a choice of 14 entrees (including a specially priced children's menu), a dessert and beverage.

The entrees combine elements of breakfast and lunch, and accommodate varying degrees of appetite.

Among entree selections are: A cheese fondue omelette, Ham and Eggs Hawaiian, garnished with maple-glazed banana and pineapples.

Many traditional breakfast items are also offered, including: Eggs Benedict, scrambled eggs and lox.

Reservations are suggested and can be made by calling 568-8600.

Lovely weather for sleigh ride

Open daily throughout the winter, Greenfield Village has announced a special program for weekends starting Jan. 28 and concluding March 12.

Featured is a ride in a sleigh—or a carriage if there is not enough snow—and a Punch and Judy puppet show in Town Hall at no charge beyond the regular admission.

Daily throughout the winter, trained guides take visitors in small groups on a tour of 12 of the village's most interesting properties, allowing a greater amount of time for questions and in-depth interpretation than possible during the summer.

Visitors can also enjoy the general store and the crafts area, where artisans fashion future heirlooms with the skill practiced by past generations.

The Punch and Judy show is given hourly starting at 11 a.m. Saturdays and noon on Sundays.

Heritage Hall is open daily for meals or snacks and narrated horse-drawn rides are available daily for $2.25 in addition to general admissions. Village tickets are sold daily from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

At the mall

A host of clowns will be among 16 Shrine units from the Moslem Temple entertaining at the Livonia Mall Saturday. The performance starting at 1:30 p.m. will include the Keystone Kops, along with colorfully-garbed bands and marching units.

Oh boy, oh boy!

The circus is back!

The 70th Annual Shrine Circus will present 38 performances in Detroit's State Fair Coliseum Feb. 3-19.

Sponsored by Detroit's Moslem Temple of the North American Shrine, the circus will feature 25 major acts in its two and a half hour performances including several specially devised for introduction in Detroit.

One of the most unusual will be an animal tamer with five white tigers, which are so rare that only 11 are known to exist throughout the world. Other acts will include aerialists, wire-walkers, motorcyclists, elephants of every size, trained dogs of every description, a host of performing chimps, bareback and trick riders and many specialty acts capped by a dramatic "outer space" closing.

Advance tickets go on sale Monday at the State Fairgrounds main ticket office and at Hudson's, Sears, Wards and Bank of the Commonwealth offices.

PERFORMANCES WILL BE offered at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. daily with special early-bird performances set for 10:30 a.m. on each of the three Saturdays. Admission charges are priced for the Monday-Friday matinee performances and Monday-Thursday evening performances and for the Friday evening and other weekend performances.

Proceeds from the annual circus go to support Moslem Temple activities.

which are primarily directed toward the care of crippled and burned children.

"Each year the 1,000 or more local Shriners who work on the circus strive to make it bigger and better than ever before," said Shrine Circus general chairman Thomas G. Draper. "Although it may not be widely known, this is not a set circus that performs throughout the country, but one specially put together for our Detroit audiences."

"Thus, we are able to book top acts from anywhere in the world so the circus is new and different every year with appeal to all age groups. No matter how many times you may have been to the circus in the past, we know we can offer something you have never seen before."

Among the many acts to be featured this year are:

- Hawthorne's Performing Elephants whose performance includes one elephant standing on the backs of two others.

- Pablo Rodriguez Troupe, aerial artists from Europe, who perform stunts in the air that even the world's top gymnasts can perform only on the ground.

- Arturo Segura, bounding rope artist from Spain, who works without a balancing pole. He is unique in performing a double somersault in the air.

FOR THE WEEKEND

Buffo clowning it up Friday

Comedian, musician and dramatic artist Buffo will return to the Detroit area to perform as part of the University of Michigan-Dearborn Winter Concert Series on Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. in the campus' Recreation and Organizations Center.

Actually, Buffo is a character created with the synthesized talents of Howard Buten—a native Detroit who literally ran away to the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Clown College in Florida.

Since his graduation as a clown, he has toured with the European Circus Bartok; written and co-starred on WXYZ's Super Circus television tour; composed dozens of songs; published more than 30 articles on a variety of subjects; written three novels; taught theater at Wayne State; and combined his talents as a singer, musician, comedian, tragedian, actor, artist and mime into one character: Buffo.

AS BUFFO he not only has generated a large following in the Detroit area but also has toured numerous campuses, coffeehouses, and clubs across the U.S. and Japan. His performance of Stephen Sondheim's song "Send in the Clowns" earned him the honor of being one of the only guests to receive a standing ovation on the "Merv Griffin Show."

His growing popularity recently prompted him to move his home base from this area—where he frequently played at the Raven coffeehouse—to California.

Tickets for the Jan. 27 concert can be purchased at Peaches Records in Dearborn, Dearborn Music, and Hole in the Wall on Cass.

For more information, call Lynn Crawford at 271-2300, ext. 586.

Master gardeners make house calls

By SHERRY KAHAN

Unlike most doctors, master gardeners make house calls.

Trained by the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service, the gardeners are volunteers for the extension service. As representatives of the service, they visit gasping houseplants or disgruntled lawns, giving suggestions to the public in their best flower bedside manner.

They also contribute their time and knowledge at events such as the Spring Flower Festival at Eastern Market, where gardening questions abound. They also are resource persons at some garden plots maintained by the public, such as Greenmead in Livonia.

Master gardener Arthur Wulff, 87, of Redford Township has not only attended the festival, but has also visited a dying mountain ash to prescribe a new feeding procedure.

Robert Karro of Livonia was on hand at Greenmead to answer the queries of any neophyte planters. He has also handled several calls involving tree problems.

Another master gardener, Dency McCartney of Westland, has been called to view a lawn with fusarium blight. She advised its owner on watering and fertilizing.

"Having taken the master gardener's course, we are qualified to help with standard problems," she said. "If we're in doubt, we might, for example, take a sample or a specimen down to the county office for analysis. Individuals can do that too."

THE MASTER GARDENER course, said the participants, not only increased their ability to help area cultivators, but also added to their knowledge about their own gardens.

A similar class will begin Feb. 9 in the Intermediate School Building, 3350 Van Born, Wayne. Sponsored by the extension service in cooperation with the Wayne County Community College, the course will be held from 1-4 p.m. for 10 weeks. For information call the extension office at 721-6550. To become certified as a master gardener, participants must volunteer 20 hours to public service. The class can be taken for two credits. Its cost is $28-$32, depending on the residency of the student.

Senior citizens are admitted free. ONE OF THE SENIORS in a recent class who came up with high grades was Arthur Wulff, who is writing a handbook for the Michigan Dahlia Association on the exhibition value of the 4,510 dahlia varieties.

He also teaches a class for the American Dahlia Society to prepare dahlia growers to be expert judges.

In the summer he spends much of his time in his garden, growing dahlias and other flowers and vegetables. In the winter he works in his small greenhouse to keep his thumb green.

"The course sounded to me like a chance to give service and spread knowledge of flowers," he said. "A person can say more with flowers than with words."

"Gardening has been coming back in popularity. I figure a year from now food costs will be double, so it will help a lot to grow your own vegetables."

He said research is being done on plants, and excellent varieties of new plants are being produced.

"If you know what you're doing, you can get much better results than you could five years ago," he said. But he cautioned against believing everything plant advertisers claim.

He sticks with catalogs from what he regards as reliable companies, Burpee, Park, Harris, Stokes and Farmer.

For gardening he wants a well-drained spot with full sun. He likes warm ground. "Warmth is necessary in the soil if things are to grow well," he said.

Wulff began his horticultural career as a young weeder in the town of Allcottville, N.Y. As a longtime grower, he has many helpful hints gardeners cherish. For example, he always stores potatoes with apples.

"Ethylene gas given off from the apples prevents potato sprouting," he said.

ANOTHER PRODUCT of a rural setting, Dency McCartney enjoys the muddle syndrome. "I like to get my hands dirty," she laughed. "Gardening is a form of relaxation and it's creative. I enjoy seeing things grow, and anything that gets you out of a sedentary position in the house is all to the good. While gardening, you're exercising all the time with all that bending, stooping and hoeing."

She took the class because "it sounded like fun and I thought I could learn a lot for my own use."

W She was not disappointed. "It was fun," she recalled. "I met a lot of people interested in gardening, many of whom had a terrific amount of knowledge. The speakers were good. They were knowledgeable, easy to understand and answered questions."

She spent her volunteer time going through a book on poisonous plants for the benefit of a school for retarded children. The school didn't want poisonous plants around.

"One girl and her husband worked at a hospital in a program on rehabilitation through gardening," she said. "Another woman who took the course helps people in her neighborhood with their plant growing problems."

MARY VIOLA OF GARDEN CITY is already preparing for spring. She has turned her special growing lights onto her flower seed so they will germinate.

"I learned a lot about lawn care, plant diseases and how to treat them, how to prune fruit trees and trim grape vines," she said. "They also had instruction on landscaping a home and on houseplants."

This spring she will use black plastic in her garden. Extension experts said plastic will reduce soil moisture loss through evaporation, prevents weeds from raising their unwelcome heads, warms the soil and hastens maturity of the crops.

LIVONIAN ROBERT KARR said he believes there is a world of difference in the taste of homegrown vegetables and those bought at a store.

"Many fruits and vegetables are picked for market when they are half green," he said. "I can wait until they are ripe."

Karr is very cautious about pesticides, and limits their use.

"Last summer I watched a woman putting pesticide on tomato plants," he recalled. "She was dumping it on. I told my daughter I wouldn't want to eat anything out of that garden."

A road inspector for the Department of Public Works in Livonia before his retirement, gardening is one of the comforts of his leisure time. He enjoys his task as an extension master gardener and the opportunity to help other gardeners learn about their plants.

"I love the soil," he said. "I love the smell when I first turn it over and all during the growing season."

He strongly recommends that retirees take up the trowel and the shovel.

"It's my main hobby," he said. "It occupies a good bit of my time in good weather. It's a good outdoor activity, fine exercise. An older person's back wears out before he gets his work done. So he must be careful to do his work in small doses, and not to go in over his head."

"You don't want to get to the point that it's not any fun."

Other master gardeners from Livonia are Betty Foor, Richard Nott, Doris Reed, Elaine Sanders, Roger Redinger, Lois Williams and Jack and Joann Wimmer.

Ralph Robinson and Ingrid Cretal of Westland also received their master gardener certificates, as did Vicki Wagonjack and Ralph Austin of Garden City.

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Saturday was a happy day for James and LaDonna Gentry of Manton Avenue as they welcomed home the new additions to their family.

The arrival of a baby is always exciting. Twin daughters for the Gentrys meant double excitement.

Paula Doreen and Lori Sue were born Dec. 10 in St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. Weighing in at 3 pounds 8 ounces and 3 pounds 10 ounces the girls were transferred to Mount Carmel where they resided until last weekend.

Six-year-old Brian and 1-year-old Michele were on hand to greet their new twin sisters. LaDonna expects double work and lots of diapers for awhile but said, "We couldn't be happier."

Congratulations to all of you.

MANY FAMILIES from the Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association spent last weekend in Galt, Ontario. The open and travel A teams from Plymouth were invited to Canada to compete against the Galt players.

The Plymouth boys were overnight guests of the Canadian boys Saturday evening. It was fun for all the players.

Early in March the teams from Galt will come to Plymouth for a return match. The Canadian boys will then spend a night with our families.

CANTON CUB SCOUTS have been busy for the past few weeks building their pinewood derby cars for the races this week.

Tuesday evening the cubs from Hulsing's pack were full of excitement as the night of the big competition arrived.

Wednesday evening it was the Miller cubs' turn to see how their cars ran against their fellow scouts.

This evening Gallimore cubs will be at the finish line to see who will win from their pack.

We'll have the results from the races next week. We haven't yet heard from the scouts at Eriksson and Field but will be more than happy to congratulate their winners.

Taking a block of wood and cutting, sanding and shaping it into a race car is quite an experience for both the boys and their dads. Every boy who had the opportunity of racing his creation is a real winner, not just the ones who finished first.

CANTON TOWNSHIP Parks and Recreation Department and Super Bowl are co-sponsoring their first 45-15 bowling tournament.

The divisions are 8-years and under, 9-11 years old and 12-14 years old. Bowling begins at 12:30 p.m.

Track B began Jan. 17, Track C will begin Feb. 7, Track D will begin Feb. 28 and Track A will start March 14. First place division winners will bowl in a championship playoff on March 19 at 1:30 p.m.

You may call the recreation department, 397-2777, to register or for more information.

Canton parks and recreation also is starting a new activities program called 45-15 fun club. The activities will be every Wednesday and include a bus trip to Chicago and a trip to the Shrine Circus. Other activities will be ice skating at the Plymouth Cultural Center, bowling at Super Bowl and a movie at the Penn Theater.

The schedules are ready for tracks C and D so call the recreation department to make reservations or for more information.

REMEMBER, AFTER school recreation of organized games and sports are once a week in various elementary schools in Canton. This children's program is free and sponsored by the recreation department.

Mondays at 3:30 at Miller Elementary, Tuesdays at 4 p.m. at Field Elementary, Thursdays at 3:30 at Hulsing and Fridays at 3:30 p.m. at Eriksson.

Both losses to Chiefs

Canton stifles Bentley again

Webster's dictionary defines the word jinx to be "a person or thing supposed to cause bad luck."

It may sound simple, but Livonia Bentley, one of the state Class A powerhouse basketball teams, truly knows the meaning of the word.

The Bulldogs have only lost two games this season—both at the hands of Plymouth Canton. The Chiefs did it to Bentley a month ago, 61-60, and turned the trick again Tuesday night, 59-48.

"We are jinxed with Canton. They beat us the first time and they did it again," said Bentley coach Jim Komula. "Of course, they played well—we didn't and that was the story."

The Bulldogs came out in the first quarter fired up, bent on revenge and ready to take on the non-league rival.

By the end of the period, Bentley was on top, 13-6, and things looked good for the Bulldogs.

However, good luck doesn't always last as long as is hoped, as Bentley found out in the second quarter when the Chiefs scored 18 points to the Bulldogs' six. At the half Canton led, 24-19.

"I think we were pushing ourselves too hard. The kids were over-anxious. They tried too hard," Komula said.

From then on, Bentley was forced to play catch-up basketball and that proved to be tough. The Bulldogs scored 16 points in the third quarter, while Canton counted 19.

"We had to play catch-up ball and every time we'd close the gap they would pick up a few more points," said Komula.

"We were trying to create a defense that would bother their big men and it seemed to help," said Canton coach Casey Cavell. "I think, in general, that was the story."

In the final period, the Chiefs scored 16 points, while Bentley collected 13.

Butch King was the pacesetter for the Chiefs, as he scored 25 points, while Brett Eckles added 10.

Dave Stone tossed in 17 points to lead the Bulldogs' offense, while Eric Thorderson added 16 and Chris Bollin nine.

"It was probably our best ball game we ever played this year except for that first quarter," Cavell said.

Canton also knocked off the Bentley JV, 60-54.

Canton reaches semi-finals in SC tourney; Salem fails

By KEN VOYLES

Observer-area girls volleyball teams dominated play last weekend in the fourth annual Schoolcraft College Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

In the end, Livonia Bentley had been crowned champion and three other area squads—Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Canton—had reached the semifinals.

The Bulldogs battled Livonia Franklin in the championship match and won in two games 15-9 and 15-12.

To get to the finals, Bentley defeated Plymouth Canton in consecutive games, 15-8 and 15-12, while Franklin knocked off Stevenson to win its place in the finals.

The Patriots battled the Spartans through three tough games and finally won 5-15, 15-9, and 15-12.

According to Mike O'Toole, tournament director, the Bulldogs were led by Debbie Mays in the spiking department and Beth Burgess in the setting area. For the Patriots, Bea Greach-Cumbo and Dawn Muller were the sparkplugs, O'Toole said.

Besides Mays and Burgess, Bentley coach Dana Hardwidge praised the consistent work of Denise Breslin and Denise Plachta. "They were both outstanding in floor play," said the Bulldog coach.

"We had played Franklin earlier in the year and lost and the girls really wanted to play them. All of the girls played super to win the tournament," Hardwidge said.

Bentley was 5-3 in its pool competition and was one of the last teams to get into the playoffs.

"I think it was a really well-run tournament. It was a super day for me," said Hardwidge.

"I think by that time (the final match), the kids were tired and it became a test of endurance. It really was a great game," said assistant Franklin coach Diane Corbett.

Because the day-long tournament was running late, there was no consolation game. Instead, Canton and Stevenson were both awarded third-place honors.

Bentley received a traveling trophy, which will be displayed at the school until next year.

Other area teams also showed well in the tourney. Livonia Churchill went into the playoff rounds with a 7-1 pool record. However, Bentley knocked-off the Chargers in the first round.

Garden City East was 3-5 in its pool, which wasn't good enough to advance into the playoffs. Only the first-place team in each of the seven pools and five of the seven second-place teams moved into the playoffs.

The Panthers, however, had the honor of being one of the few teams in the tournament to defeat Bentley.

The Farmington schools—Harrison, North Farmington and Farmington High—didn't fare well, as none made it out of the pool competition.

Plymouth Salem was third in its pool, while Redford Union was second in its pool with a 5-3 record. Redford Thurston also had a 5-3 mark but didn't make the playoff rounds.

Clarenceville was first in its pool and made it all of the way to the quarterfinals where Stevenson knocked the Trojans out of the running.

Wayne was first in its pool but fell in the first round of the playoffs.

"The area teams dominated the tournament. They dominated so much that they were knocking each other out of the competition," said O'Toole.

"I think the real story this year is the tremendous improvement of play on the part of the teams so that it wasn't just a few teams that dominated. All of the squads were strong and that made the competition tough," continued O'Toole.

"It was well organized. I was really impressed at the different levels, the schools were playing at. It was an amazing tournament," said RU coach Jim Gibbons, who is in his first year of coaching volleyball.

"It was just an excellent tournament," said Corbett.

Canton matmen win 6th, pin Stevenson, 39-30

Plymouth Canton's wrestling team recorded its third victory in a row and increased its overall season dual record to 6-4 Tuesday with a 39-30 non-conference triumph over Livonia Stevenson.

Chief grapplers earned points in seven of the 13 weight classifications. Stevenson still had a chance to win the meet if its heavyweight, Kent Bassett, had managed a superior decision over Canton's Chuck Walker.

Walker pinned Bassett with only 22 seconds remaining in their duel to insure victory for Canton.

Tom Harreld, 100 pounds, and Dan March, 107, staked the Chiefs to a 12-0 lead without even having to take the mats. Both won by voids.

Stevenson's Rick Cabrara and Steve Justice earned those points back, however, in the next two weight classes by pinning Steve Penar and Tim Racer, respectively.

Craig Lee, 128 pounds, then decisioned Mark Hilpert, 4-2, but Jeff Rey, 134, was decisioned by Eric Temby, 4-3.

The two teams followed by trading pins in the next two weight classes. Stevenson's Pat Cosgrove victimized Jay Lee at 140 pounds and Dave March returned the favor against Dave Hebert at 147.

Canton grapplers won three of the final five weight classes—all with pins.

Kyle Heaton pinned Wayne Hoppe at 157 pounds, George Hamblin pinned Scott Lowes at 180 and Walker capped the meet with his pin of Bassett.

"It was a great match all the way around," said Dan Chrenko, coach of the Chiefs. "Kyle Heaton and Dave March did a good job in the middle (weights) and George Hamblin did a good job."

"Chuck Walker wrestled what I thought was his best match of the year," Chrenko added.

The Chiefs step back into conference action tonight at Farmington.

Canton's JV also shared in the glory Tuesday by defeating its Stevenson counterpart, 35-18.

How would you like to be averaging 194 in your favorite league and still be in 78th place on the average sheets?

That's what has happened to Cora Fiebig, top average woman on the Bonanza team which, this season, is getting its baptism in bowling in the men's all-star league.

While Cora is averaging 194, she is tied at that figure with Mary Mohacsi, and Gerry Ritter and Kathy Haislip are deadlocked at 193. Penny Behn, captain of the team, is in 80th place with 190 and Leona Pinkos is one notch further back with 189.

At that, the girls are enjoying the experience of bowling with the all-star men and claim mit will help them in the top women's events at the close of the season.

THE BOWLING PROPRIETORS sponsors of the Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame, have called a meeting of the committee on Feb. 7 at the Michigan Inn to select this year's honorees. The hall was inaugurated in 1957 and was one of the first in the country to be sponsored by a city association.

THE ODDDEST series of the week was the one turned in by Phyllis Clotham at Woodland Lanes.

Bowling in the senior house league, she started with games of 211 and 235, that included a string of seven strikes. Then with visions of a high 600 series, she slumped to 114 in the final game and had to settle for a 560.

In the men's division, Jack Gagnon had a 188 between games of 236 and 247 for a 671.

THE VANDERWILLS were at it again in the Mixed Classic at Farmington Lanes. Gary paced the men's section with a 246 in 673, while Jan had a 232 in 596 to show the way to the women.

Among other high scores, Frank Urban had a 248 in 632.

ANOTHER RECORD was established in the Bowling Proprietors Traveling League this week at Country Lanes when Dennis Grote splattered the pins for games of 244, 233 and 198 for a 675 series. His closest rival was Ed Young with a 644.

DOUBLE-CENTURY figures were the order of the day at Garden Lanes and showing the way was James Mitchell of the Moose League with a 647. Then came Gilbert Clippert of St. Norbert's league with a 644, Jeff Stover, of the J&J mixed league with 642 and Bob Bernat of St. Norbert's with a 620.

BILLY G., who makes sporadic appearances in the metropolitan area, paid a visit to Westland Bowl last week and missed pacing the Little Caesar Classic by two pins. He fired a 647 with a 235 game. The leader was Lou Ivancek with a closing 234 for 649. Allen Manning also had a 234 in 635.

Herri Beattie led the women's division with a 585 and was followed by Mary Mohacsi with 571.

THE SENIOR CITIZENS had a great time at Merri-Bowl as Bill Kryska came up with a 247 in 609.

Others with double-century figures were Dale Strong and Link Valler, each of whom posted an even 200.

LOIS MERRIMAN didn't win a game, but took the weekly series in the Livonia Lanes Ladies Classic with 546-72-618.

In the three individual games, Shirley Schwartz won the opener with 142-58-200, Betty Markwardt and Mary Bierkamp tied for the second—Betty had 180-33-213 and Mary, 167-

46-213—while Marion Heath captured the third with 194-31-225.

AT PLAZA LANES, Sharron Fletcher set the pace for the ladies with games of 190, 208 and 198 for 576. In the ladies classic at Plymouth Bowl, Linda Snapp was top scorer with games of 241, 166 and 165 for 562.

Joyce Hamilton had high game with a 243. In the Chevy Industrial league, Gee Straight had high game of 245 and in the Scottsdale mixed league Bob Gray rolled a 244 for high game.

MIKE BARNES, with a 59 average, went 137 over, at Woodland Lanes with games of 106, 90 and 107. Tim Kachinski went 120 over with games of 155, 108 and 154 and Karen Dilworth had counts of 137, 107 and 154 to go 98 pins over her average.

The best showing was that of Kris Sarapalis who went 165 over average with games of 146, 130 and 162. Meanwhile, Cathy Dilworth joined the group by going 96 pins over with counts of 105, 137 and 133.

Pep band would generate cage fever

I have reservations about writing this column.

You see, once again I want to talk about the horrible support the local music program gives the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton basketball teams. It seems I discuss this unfortunate lack of school spirit every basketball season, and yet nothing ever gets done to change the situation.

This column probably won't do anything to correct the injustice this year, but I feel obligated to say I am thoroughly disenchanted with the snobbish attitude the music program repeatedly demonstrates to the athletic teams.

I attended the Plymouth Salem-Belleville basketball game two weeks ago, and although the outcome wasn't a happy one for Rocks' fans, I must admit I enjoyed the atmosphere "Tiger Territory" generated because of the support of their pep band.

The band was present prior to the start of the varsity contest. It played pre-game music, supplied enjoyable halftime entertainment, and played rhythmic songs during time outs.

This band played music well into the fourth quarter of action and didn't leave at halftime.

I don't think I'm asking a lot from the snobbish music program to supply five or six people to play pep music at all Salem and Canton home basketball games.

The pep band doesn't have to be extravagant—just a few interested students, who could add a lot of life to the dull atmosphere of both gymnasiums.

I'm tired of hearing that same old record playing music when live instrumentation before and during a game would sound so much better. I'm sure the basketball players and fans are tired of hearing that record, as well.

There has got to be some excitement generated at these games so more fans will come watch Plymouth's two fine cage teams. And I definitely think a pep band would add to this excitement.

I don't know who's to blame because there isn't a band at the home games. It really doesn't matter to me which circumstances or persons prevented pep bands from participating in recent years.

It has reached the point where all I want to see is a pep band for the two Plymouth squads.

It's been long overdue.

I hope anyone who reads this column can do something to change the situation.

But I think I'm expecting too much.

Junior hockey teams bring home 12 wins

Plymouth-Canton Junior Hockey Association players brought home an impressive 12-3-1 record after their weekend visit with members of the Galt, Ontario, Canada Minor Hockey Association.

Eight "A" Travel League and Open League ice teams went to Galt for a two-game series last Saturday and Sunday.

The Plymouth Mites won both games 1-0 and 7-0. The Squirt "A" team won its two games with identical scores of 3-1. The Squirt Open squad also was victorious in its two games with identical scores of 6-0.

The Pee Wee "A" team lost its Saturday game to its Galt counterparts, 2-1, but rebounded with a 3-1 victory on Sunday. The Pee Wee Open crew won both its games, 8-1 and 4-3.

The Bantam "A" team lost its first game, 7-3, and tied Galt, 4-4, on Sunday. The Bantam Open team fell to Galt on Saturday, 5-3, but won the second contest, 8-5.

Plymouth's Midget "A" squad was triumphant both times, 2-1 and 6-1.

The weekend trip found the Plymouth-Canton area boys staying at the homes of their Galt opponents.

"The Galt boys made sure that our boys had a good time," said Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association representative Sharon Stevens. "Each Plymouth-Canton boy was presented with a hockey puck and an iron-on patch after the series. It was really a nice weekend."

The Plymouth-Canton boys will host the Galt pucksters in a return visit on the weekend of March 11. The Galt boys will stay at the homes of their Plymouth-Canton counterparts.

Western '6' mat teams to gather at Canton High

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team, coached by Dan Chrenko, will host the annual Western Six League meet this Saturday, Jan. 28 at the Canton athletic facility. It will mark the first time the Chiefs have hosted this wrestling event.

The Western-6 meet determines the league standings and first-place winner of the conference. The dual meets between the six schools during the regular season are not considered in the final league standings.

Farmington Harrison, the defending champions, are once again favored to win the title. Walled Lake Western should be the Hawks' toughest competition.

The Chiefs, currently 2-2 in the league schedule, are in fourth place in the conference. Canton has never finished out of the cellar in its previous league meets, however. Last year's 145-pound league champion Scott Collins, the lone Chief to win such an award, is expected to return and defend his title after missing last month with mononucleosis.

The initial rounds of the league meet will begin at 11:30 a.m. The consolation finals, which will determine the third and fourth-place finishers, will begin at 6:30 p.m. The championships will start immediately after the consolations at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Admission for the league meet is $1 for both students and adults.

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team will be one of the favorites in the Suburban Eight League meet which will also be held on Saturday, Jan. 28 at Livonia Bentley.

The state-ranked Rocks will battle the Belleville Tigers for the conference crown.

Top-ranked Salem matmen finish 2d in Monroe Inv.

Plymouth Salem's Wally Brown helped his squad grab a second-place finish at the Monroe Wrestling Invitational with his 155-pound victory last Saturday afternoon.

Brown, the Rocks' only champion of the day, pinned Monroe's Mike Johnson at 4:05 for the triumph. He defeated the second, third and fourth place finishers and was named the tourney's Most Outstanding Wrestler.

The state-ranked Rocks, which are expected to improve on their 10th-place standing this week, finished as runners-up to the host from Monroe.

Salem's Suburban Eight League rival Belleville placed third while Saline finished fourth in the eight-team event.

The Rocks' second-place finish was notable, since five of their regulars were out with injuries or influenza. Salem defaulted two weights, wrestling only 11 men, 10 of whom finished in one of the top four places.

Bob Dasher, Rene Leist, Randy Viperman, John Powers and Joe Piccola all sat out the Monroe event.

The Rocks set a team record for the number of pins last season with an even 100 falls. The mark has been shattered in 1977-78, however, as Salem has already recorded 153 pins this year, as of Saturday.

Chiefs stay unbeaten ... Rocks take 4th win

A two-game victory over the Allen Park Jaguars last Monday night gave the Plymouth Salem varsity girls' volleyball team another win in the Suburban Eight league conference.

The Rocks now stand at 2-0 in the league and 4-1 for the season. The loss came when Salem bowed to Livonia Churchill during the first match of the season.

Taking the Jaguars in the first game by an eight-point margin, the Rocks found themselves with a first game win at 15-7. The eight-point spread was then increased to 10 in the second game as the Rocks took the match, 15-10.

"The competition wasn't that tough; the games were more like a practice than a match. It did give everyone on the bench a chance to play but didn't do much for our defensive work because most of Allen Parks' hits were slow and light. We didn't have to work as hard as we did against a team like Edsel Ford," said Salem coach Cathy Himes.

The Salem varsity wasn't the only team to win Monday night. The junior varsity took its first match of the season against Allen Park's junior varsity squad after two games at 15-10 and 15-4.

Serving seven points against the Jaguars JV for the Rocks was freshman Ann Meixner. Meixner gave the Rocks the first seven points of the game with the ball not even making it back over the net. She also added eight points in the second game with help coming from Carolyn Cohen, with her spikes.

Salem faces Livonia Bentley in league play Monday night at Bentley. The match will start at 7 p.m. for the junior varsity and 8 p.m. for the varsity.

The still undefeated Plymouth Canton girls' varsity volleyball team added another victory to the list last Monday night against Northville.

Northville was last year's second place holder in the Western Six League, ahead of third-place Canton.

In a best two-out-of-three match, the Northville Chargers took the first game, 15-10, but the Chiefs came back to take the second and third games with consecutive scores of 15-7.

The win put Canton in first place all by itself since Northville had beaten Livonia Churchill, last year's league champion, earlier in the season.

"We had a problem in the first game but got straightened out in the second because we got used to Northville playing mostly a defensive game and moving the ball so slowly," said Canton mentor Cyndi Burnstein.

During action in the second game, the Chiefs found themselves out in front by 10 points to Northville's goose egg, thanks to the serving of Kathy Sochacki. Sochacki's opening 10 serves led the Chiefs to their 15-7 victory.

Senior captain Sue Reukic did her share behind the serving line in the third game. The Chiefs found Northville out in front 5-1 but a fast eight points put Canton on top 9-5 and then in for the second win and the match at another 15-7 final score.

The junior varsity fell to Northville's junior varsity, losing the first and third games at 15-10 and 15-12. Canton won the second game at 15-5 but failed in pulling out the third. The junior varsity season record is now 3-3.

Canton will host Livonia Churchill Monday night at the Canton gymnasium. The junior varsity will start at 7 p.m. and the varsity will battle for first place in the league at 8 p.m.

- (e) Any side or rear yard for a principal use or a special use permitted in this district other than one-family, two-family and multiple-family dwellings, shall not be less than the height of the structure at the side or rear lot line.
- (f) For each story in excess of two (2) stories, a side yard of 2 1/2 feet for each additional story shall be provided, in addition to the minimum ten foot requirement. The distance between buildings on the same lot shall be regulated by the building distance formula specified in paragraph (d) of this section.
- (g) In a block on one side of a street thirty (30%) per cent or more occupied, the depth of the front yard shall not be less than, and need not be more than, the average depth of front yards or existing buildings.
- (h) No side yards are required along the interior side lot lines, except as otherwise specified in the Building Code. On the exterior side yard which borders on a Residential District, there shall be provided a setback of not less than ten (10) feet on the side or residential street. If walls of structures facing interior lot lines contain windows or other openings, side yards of not less than ten (10) feet shall be provided. Street right-of-way is defined as the average street right-of-way width within the block. On corner properties, the wider of the two abutting street rights of way shall apply but shall not be applicable to abutting alleys. The greater height as permitted in this footnote shall apply to that portion of the B-3 General Business District Zoning which is located within the Central Business District Area as defined and encompassed by Wing Street, Harvey Street, Church Street, Union Street and Deer Street. Residential uses shall be permitted within the Central Business District Area, as defined above, provided such living units are located on the second floor or above. In certain limited instances nonresidential uses, such as restaurants, may be located above residences but only after the specific approval of the Planning Commission.
- (o) Building heights permitted under Footnote "n" shall be further limited as follows: Where property abuts residential or office districts, "Any side or rear-yard abutting a residential or office district shall be required on a ratio of 1:1 to the height of the structure. In the event that an alley is between this district and the abutting residential or office district, one-half of the width of the alley right of way may be considered in determining compliance with this requirement."

Section 3. This ordinance shall become operative and effective on the 7th day of February A.D. 1978.

St. Paul entering 107th year

Roy Houser as president and J.L. Fendt as vice-president will lead St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church and school into its 107th year in this area.

The church, now located at 17810 Farmington Road, marked its 106th anniversary with an annual meeting last month and special services during which 1978 officers were installed.

Established to serve an area primarily rural, St. Paul called its first full-time minister 35 years ago. At that time the church was located at Five Mile and Farmington Road, in a building now the center for senior citizen activities in Livonia.

The church at that time has 100 members and an annual budget of $7,000, and the congregation's president was the grandfather of Walter Ash. Ash was installed as a delegate to the Wisconsin Synod this year.

Membership now totals 900 and the annual budget borders $200,000.

In addition to the church program and a Christian day school with 100 children and five teachers, the congregation also gives support to Huron Valley Lutheran High School, currently operating in Wayne while preparing to build in Washtenaw County.

Other officers installed with Houser and Fendt include recording secretary Robert Schuessler, treasurer Harold Groh, assistant treasurer Charles Mills and financial secretary Bert Logan.

Edward Henzi, Michael Houser, Rick Wissman, Don Lieber, Don Haines and Gus Choss were installed as deacons, James Powers, Leonard Fletke, George Barnum and Richard Lytle as trustees and Paul Mousseau, Bernhard Ewald, Erwin Hartge, Richard Simpson, Wayne Davis and Herbert Draper as elders.

The Rev. Kenneth Zielke stands outside the Lutheran Church of the Risen Christ, celebrating the 10th anniversary of its founding.

Church of Risen Christ marks 10th anniversary

The Lutheran Church of the Risen Christ will celebrate its 10th anniversary Sunday, Jan. 29, with a special service and a dinner. The Plymouth congregation has grown in its first decade from 127 members to 669.

The anniversary service will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the sanctuary at 46250 Ann Arbor Road. The afternoon dinner will take place in Napoleon's Restaurant.

The Rev. George Bornemann, president of the English District, Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, will be keynote speaker for the morning service, which the public may attend.

ote speaker for the morning service, which the public may attend.

Serving as Liturgist will be the Rev. Eugene Nissen of Ann Arbor, one of the congregation's former pastors.

Another previous pastor, the Rev. David Romberg, will be the focus of a "This Is Your Life" skit.

Currently serving the congregation is the Rev. Kenneth E. Zielke, who said the theme of the anniversary celebration is "let us rejoice and be glad."

"When Christian celebrate such special events, the focal point is always our gracious God and his fulfilling goodness," the pastor said.

"A very special blessing for which we are especially thankful is the deep dedication to Jesus Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit being experienced by the members of the congregation, knitting them together in a very warm and personal bond of love, devotion and service."

He said the church's membership growth had been particularly great during the last three years. Risen Christ Church is one mile west of Sheldon.
