WHAT'S INSIDE

The row

The restaurant row along Ann Arbor Road continues to grow, providing both a variety of eating places for residents and a proliferation of commercial signs to flood the visual field of passing motorists. See the story on page 2A.

Laxatives abused to lose weight

By NANCY AUSTIN
Special Writer

Another frightfully dangerous fad diet is quietly making its way through teenage circles in Plymouth, Canton and other suburban areas.

It is called the "laxative diet."

The diet is riddled with potentially dangerous side-effects which are being ignored by the teens. Reports of students at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park who are using laxatives for weight-loss includes one incident of a girl who was hospitalized.

That teenager now lives in an Ann Arbor hospital—a victim of this madcap idea. She is awaiting results of tests to see if she will have to have a colostomy.

SMALL, CHOCOLATED laxative tablets are being consumed after all meals and snacks.

When the laxative is taken, the digestive process within the colon is significantly speeded up and the nutrients from the foods are not absorbed by the body—causing a weight loss. As many as six tablets are used by some teens in the course of one day.

The side effects, other than weight loss, are not subtle. In fact, side-effects are so disruptive to the body's digestive procedures that other functions are disrupted as well.

In school, students are forced to leave their classes several times a day to use the bathroom. At home, the teen on the diet finds it impossible to get an uninterrupted night's sleep, having to get up several times during the night.

Township terms hiked to 4 years

Beginning in 1980, voters in Canton and Plymouth Township will elect their township supervisors, clerks and treasurers to an additional two years in office.

Under a bill signed by Gov. William Milliken two weeks ago, the two-year terms of township administrators and constables will be extended to four years and the staggered terms of trustees will be eliminated.

Because of a mix-up in the governor's office, the Observer reported last week that the senate bill was still tied up in the Michigan Senate committee on municipalities and elections. But another bill—House Bill 4230—had already been signed into law.

RUTH CONSTERDINE, a legislative assistant in the executive office, said the house and senate bills are identical.

House Bill 4230, sponsored by State Rep. Claude Trim (D—Springfield Township), and Senate Bill 579, sponsored by State Sen. Gary Byker (R—Hudsonville), both extend the terms of township administrators to four years and eliminate the staggered terms of trustees.

Ms. Consterdine said house and senate members often introduce similar legislation to improve the chance of passage. Members of both legislative bodies then concentrate on one of the two bills.

Under the new state law, all seven members of the Canton and Plymouth Township boards will be elected to simultaneous four-year terms beginning with the 1980 election.

The four trustees who sit on both township boards are now elected to four-year terms. But the terms are staggered so two of the four are up for election every two years.

To synchronize the four-year terms of trustees by 1980, terms of the two trustee positions up for grabs in the 1978 election will be reduced to two years. In that way, terms of all four trustees will expire in 1980.

Shy by 11 votes, Poole still hopes for '76 recount

By DARLENE STINSON

When it comes to elections, former Canton Trustee Jim Poole has the memory of an elephant.

The 48-year-old Republican lost his seat in November 1976 to Democratic challenger Eugene Daley by just 11 votes.

But more than a quarter of Daley's four-year term later, Poole is still nagged by the suspicion that he is the man voters really elected.

Poole is determined to find out if his hunch is correct even if the Michigan Court of Appeals rules against his bid for a partial recount. The appellate court is considering his appeal of an unfavorable Wayne County Circuit Court ruling.

Poole says he wants the recount "as a matter of principle," and plans to take his case to the Michigan Supreme Court if necessary. But the retired Air Force major concedes he will gladly return to the township board if a recount shows he was the real winner.

POOLE'S ATTORNEY, Peter Bundarin, anticipates an unsatisfactory decision from the appellate court and has already prepared his brief for the state supreme court.

Bundarin—the defeated Republican candidate for supervisor in the 1976 election—made his argument for a recount of the absentee ballots to a three-judge panel of the appeals court Feb. 14.

Bundarin believes a recount would show that Daley got sufficiently fewer absentee votes to return his seat to Poole.

Almost 10 per cent of the 10,000 residents who voted in the 1976 election cast absentee or write-in paper ballots.

The circuit court decision against Poole was based on a 15-vote discrepancy between the number of paper absentee ballots cast and the number of votes tabulated on machines. The discrepancy was caused by 15 poll workers who cast their own absentee votes directly onto the machine set aside for counting paper absentee ballots.

The Wayne County Board of Canvassers—which did recount the township's nine machine-vote precincts—refused to recount the paper absentee ballots on the premise that such action would disenfranchise the 15 poll workers. Circuit Judge Joseph B. Sullivan agreed.

BUT BUNDARIN says a failure to recount the absentee precinct disenfranchises all residents who cast absentee ballots.

His argument is based on the large number of write-in votes cast for members of former Supervisor Robert Greenstein's slate—Democrats who

Heat's on smoke bomb sellers after a rash of fires in schools

Police, fire and government officials have been working to stop the sale of fireworks in Plymouth and Canton stores.

Within the last year, 13 fires in Plymouth Township were attributed to fireworks.

In addition, schools have received reports of children being injured while playing with fireworks.

School lockers have been damaged by smoke bombs, and two staff members had the inside of their cars burned when smoke bombs were thrown through the windows.

Despite the list of injury and damage, small bags of fireworks continue to be distributed to a number of stores in the Plymouth-Canton community.

BUT OFFICIALS IN the community think they've figured out a way to get them off the shelves.

Instead of going through the police departments and trying to stop the sale of fireworks, the communities are turning the matter over their fire departments.

Each of the communities' fire ordinances prohibit the storage of any combustible or explosive material.

"Our ordinance gives me the power to remove any such items from the store's shelves," said Plymouth Township Fire Chief James Gignac.

"But what I try to do is appeal to the merchant's better interests. I tell them they can take the fireworks off the display stands and send them back to the company for a credit to their account. Or they can watch me walk out the door with them."

The fire department's action result from a difficulty that police encounter when trying to deal with the problem.

"There is a great deal of ambiguity about the state fireworks law," commented Plymouth Police Chief Timothy Ford. "There are questions about what's legal and what isn't."

The ambiguity he was referring to is the result of a court injunction obtained by an Indiana fireworks manufacturer against the Michigan State Police.

IN MAY OF 1976, a district court judge in Grand Rapids issued a ruling which prohibited the Michigan State Police from enforcing the state fireworks law.

In addition, it threw some types of fireworks into a grey area, according to Lt. George McKenzie, of the State Police Fire Marshall Division in Northville.

"Now you've got things like whistlers, smoke-bombs, snap-and-pops and other fireworks with less than two grains of pyrotechnics that aren't covered by the law."

And even if they were, the state police couldn't stop stores from selling

Canton decides against joining Plymouth fund

After months of study, Canton suddenly has withdrawn its application to join the Plymouth Community Fund.

Instead, the township will remain affiliated with the Metropolitan Detroit United Fund but will continue "minimal support" to the Plymouth charity for services which benefit Canton residents, according to Supervisor Harold Stein.

Last fall, Canton considered joining the Plymouth fund because there are no UF-sponsored facilities in the township. However, with Friday's scheduled opening of a UF-sponsored Family Service counseling "outpost," township administrators decided that the metropolitan fund could do more for residents than the local alternative.

Stein said officials from UF's United Community Services Dept. assured him that the Tri-County Dental Health Agency will service Canton students who need dental work but can't afford it. Township students had been refused dental care through the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools financed by the Plymouth fund.

Because United Community Services does not sponsor sports programs, Stein said the township will still contribute to the locally financed Plymouth-Canton Junior Athletic Association.

Some 1,485 Canton residents took advantage of UF-sponsored programs in 1976, according to an association spokesman, and figures for 1977 are expected to be higher.

"Both the United Fund and the Plymouth Community Fund are worthwhile organizations that offer services to Canton residents," Stein said. "The United Fund is many times larger and offers a far greater range of services and almost unlimited number of agencies that Canton residents can take advantage of.

"The Plymouth Fund, as good as it may be, will never be the size, nor be able to offer the services, of the United Community Services."

The growth of restaurant row along Ann Arbor Road also has resulted in a proliferation of signs. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey).

Restaurant row expanding

New York City has its Avenue of the Americas. Chicago has its Avenue of Flags and New Orleans has its famous Bourbon Street where one night club abuts the other for blocks on end.

And now comes Plymouth with a boulevard of restaurants that almost defies description for its variety of eating establishments.

By count there are 21 places where a diner can have his appetite satisfied—whether he wants a full meal with all the trimmings, a gourmet dinner with wine or just a hot dog and a bottle of pop.

THE PECULIAR PART of the boulevard of restaurants is that it wasn't planned that way.

But Ann Arbor Road from I-275 to Sheldon Road just hapened to attract the restaurant owners who wanted to cater to the people of the Plymouth community.

And one of the oddities of the growth is that at least six of these establishments are jammed into the intersection of Ann Arbor Road and Sheldon.

For instance, the Elias Brothers recently opened a Big Boy just off the corner opposite the new Manufacturer's Bank. And on the corner proper is a Little Ceasar's that once was a popular eating establishment known as the Bradford House.

Then going east are such places as the Palace, the Pizza Hut, Colonel Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken and H&H Salt where fish is the main dish.

These are all clustered, but eastward toward Main Street are Grandma's Famous Fried Chicken, Dunkin' Donuts, Daly's, Burger King, McDonald's and an A&W Root Beer stand.

Still moving eastward are the new Friendly restaurant at the corner of Mill Street and Ann Arbor Road, with The Clock, the Elks, Bill KnaDp's, and Denny's on one side of the road, and Plaza Lanes, the bowling establishment with a grill, on the other.

Along with all these dining rooms there are two lounges—Holly's By Golly and B&G.

"The amazing thing," commented Plymouth Township Supervisor Tom Notebaert, "is that they are all busy. You should see them at lunch time. At most places there is a line just waiting to get in."

ONE OF THE interesting things about the development of Ann Arbor Road as a restaurant boulevard is that it was accomplished with such popular and long-established places as the Mayflower Hotel and Hillside Inn less than a mile or two away.

Most of the establishments alon! restaurant boulevard are well known "fast food" places, Friendly's, where Lofy's night club once stood is the only new name.

And, if rumors are correct there will be several more. Among those whose names are being mentioned are "Sambo's" that now has outlets in Westland and Farmington and plans to move further west.

Much of the reason for the success of these places is that individuals and families are eating out more often, finding it cheaper to eat at one of the fast food places, with table service, than it is to prepare a meal at home.

At any rate, one of the twists of the present economy is that Plymouth now can boast a "boulevard of restaurants."

'The Pigman' reading presented tomorrow night

Plymouth Centennial Educational Park will present a Readers Theatre Production of Paul Zindel's novel, "The Pigman," tomorrow night.

The reading will be performed in Plymouth Canton High's Little Theatre at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Admission is $1 per berson. The school is on Canton Center Road just south of Joy.

The reading of "The Pigman" marks the first Readers Theatre Production at the CEP. Readers Theatre, a dramatic approach to literature, is often referred to as the "theater of the imagination."

"The Pigman" is a story of two high school students who befriend a lonely old man—a touching tale of the unreal world the three create out of their zaniness and energy, which abruptly becomes tragically shattered.

Each of the seven readers in "The Pigman" at times assume the role of narrator, telling the story, while at other times they become characters within the story.

The cast includes Tammy Chope, Jerry Holdan, Bill Heiney, Christy Chapman, Robin Holley, Sue Lindsay, and David Higginbotham.

Ms. Pat VanDoren is the director, Matt Watroba the assistant director, Jan Sigmon production coordinator, and Dave Ide is the stage manager.

'Ping-Pong' diplomat recalls trip to China

By GLENN BUNTING

Graham Steenhoven is not a typical retired automotive supervisor.

The 65-year-old Detroit resident, best known for efforts that eventually led to the U.S. establishing diplomatic relations with China, is not spending his retirement days soaking up sunshine in Florida.

Instead, he's making frequent appearances in the metropolitan Detroit area as a guest speaker for various clubs and organizations.

On Thursday Steenhoven spoke before the Plymouth Lions Club at its 30th anniversary dinner.

The former U.S. Table Tennis Association president explained the accident that got him and his 14-member entourage to China in 1971.

The U.S. team was participating in the world championships in Japan. They included the top-ranked Chinese players for the first time since 1966.

On the last day of the tournament, the captain of the Chinese team invited Steenhoven and his players to visit China and compete in exhibition matches.

"I POLLED THE team and everyone wanted to go," Steenhoven said. "We paid our own way to Japan on a group flight and we had to stay another week. "But if we went to China, we'd lose our group rate and no one could afford it. The Chinese told us not to worry and that they would take care of it."

The U.S. delegation of ping pong players stayed in China for one week, playing exhibition matches before packed houses of 18,000 people.

"They played friendly matches," Steenhoven admitted. "They were the No. 1 ranked team in the world and we were 28th. They played to our strengths to make the scores respectable."

On the advice of the U.S. Embassy in China, Steenhoven told members of his team to abide by three rules during their trip:

1. Don't touch the Chinese girls.
2. Don't call the Chinese Chinamen.
3. Don't steal anything.

Outside those three rules, they were on their own, Steenhoven said.

Steenhoven turned down a $4,100 offer by a Philadelphia newspaper for an exclusive story on the historic visit.

"The Chinese said no reporters were to come along and I didn't want to offend their hospitality. But in reality, we had 14 reporters because all of the team members accepted offers," Steenhoven said.

STEENHOVEN MET with Premier Chou En-lai during the visit and never heard from him again. He received an obituary notice edged in black at the time of Chou's death.

It was during the tour that Steenhoven negotiated the surprise tour of the Chinese table tennis team to the U.S. in 1972.

Upon returning from China, Steenhoven held a press conference at Chrysler's headquarters in Highland Park to announce he had invited the Chinese to come to the U.S.

He was immediately summoned to the White House to confer with President Richard Nixon and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Steenhoven was instructed by White House officials not to tell anyone of his trip to Washington. While he was booking a flight to the nation's capitol under his brother-in-law's name, the White House told the press of his trip.

"I really thought it was a secret," Steenhoven said. "The News and Free Press called and said I was going, but I said 'I can't comment on that'. Everyone knew."

Once he arrived at the oval office, Steenhoven met Nixon and his staff.

"We were getting our picture taken and Nixon was making conversation. He asked me how much a ping pong ball cost and I told him a quarter. He said he played a little table tennis."

Steenhoven proudly exhibits a golf ball, an ink pen and a pair of cufflinks with the presidential seal, in addition to a color photo of him and Nixon as momentos of his visit.

STEENHOVEN FINALIZED plans for the Chinese visit here, which he said "went very well." The Chinese spent the most time of their four-city trip in Detroit.

Steenhoven donates all of his speaking fees to the Leader Dog School for the Blind in Avon Township, also supported by the Lions.

"My objective is to replace the dog my dad had. You haven't any idea unless you experience it, what an aid a leader dog is," Steenhoven told the Plymouth Lions audience.

The cost of a leader dog is about $5,000. Steenhoven said the Leader Dog School will rename a dog "Satin" after his dad's companion when he reaches his goal.

Danger diet

ONE SUCH TEENAGER is Susan (not her real name), a pretty, well-liked, 16-year-old girl.

She has been doing well academically and seemingly is happy at home. But Susan was unhappy with her weight. She began taking the laxative tablets after meals, and drastically reduced her food intake to a virtual fast—subsisting on carrots and tea.

Her parents became alarmed when they discovered her dieting method. They tried to get her to stop the laxative diet and fasting but were ignored.

They couldn't even convince her to take vitamin and mineral supplements to replace those being drained from her system. They witnessed a frightening personality change.

Susan was irritable with family members, and criticized their eating habits. She ignored warnings and repeated pleas to stop.

Her peaches and cream complexion became marred, her hair lost its shine, and her sparkling personality showed distress. She was weak, and lacked initiative and energy.

Other than the weakness that she noticed, Susan is oblivious to the potential tragedy that lurked beneath her now-trim figure. She lost 40 pounds in three months. At 5-2, she weighs only 90 pounds. She is pleased with herself. She claims she feels fine.

DR. SHELDON BRENNER, D.O. of Farmington Hills—whose special interest is weight control and nutrition in children and teens—described his feelings this way:

"An all-out campaign should be launched to stop the diet."

Dr. Brenner states that phenolphthalein, the active drug in the laxative, is potentially toxic. "Prolonged use of the drug can result in changes in skin complexion, fever, and dehydration. But even more dangerous is the potential for kidney damage, central nervous system disorders, respiratory failure, and cardiac arrest. Permanent damage to the colon is likely to result."

Poole seeks recount were defeated in the primary but who ran a write-in campaign.

Even before Poole requested an election recount in January, 1977, some pollworkers suggested that some absentee votes cast for the Greenstein slate may have been tallied as Harold Stein slate votes on the machine.

Many of the straight Democratic votes were tallied for the Stein slate on the machine, pollworkers said they suspected, even though some voters placed write-in stickers for the Greenstein slate over the names of the Stein team.

Supervisor Stein, Trustee Daley and Treasurer Anne Bradley were the certified Democratic candidates.

POOLE SAID he will continue to fight for a recount of the absentee ballots even after Daley's four-year term on the township board expires.

"I'm not pursuing this recount thing for fun or for something to do instead of skiing," Poole said. "I'm appealing it strictly because I think the law is wrong and it should be changed."

Daley takes a blase attitude about Poole's fight for the recount.

"What can I do?" he shrugged. "If that's what Poole wants to do, that's what he wants to do."

Ban fireworks

them, because of the injunction. Although the hands of the state police are tied, the injunction does not apply to local police.

However, McKenzie noted that because of the injunction, many local police departments and city attorneys are reluctant to take on retailers in a legal battle.

"The attitude they have is, 'If the state police can't enforce the law, we won't.' "

But KcKenzie acknowledged that local authorites were put a bind. A police officer can't just go into a store, take the fireworks and take them into court because he thinks they're illegal, he said.

"It takes more than that. A local agency has to have the particular fireworks analyzed and then have an expert testify in court.

"It's a long process."

The strategy of approaching the issue of fireworks through the fire departments resulted after communications and meetings among the fire chiefs and township and city attorneys, among others.

"It seems like the best plan we've got," remarked Ford. "I know I haven't wanted to push the issue through the police department because I didn't want to open the city up for lawsuits."

However, the fire chiefs are still hoping they'll get the necessary cooperation from retail merchants.

Park-and-ride debuts

Express bus service begins linking Plymouth to Detroit

By TIM RICHARD

A smile spread across Dan Morrill's usually placid face as he put down the phone. "There were 45 on the last bus. We're at capacity on the second day of operation."

Morrill is assistant general manager of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority. SEMTA on Monday had launched a new "park and ride" express bus service from three points in Plymouth and Livonia to downtown Detroit.

Monday didn't really count. It was the legal holiday observance of George Washington's birthday. Many governmental and financial offices were closed.

TUESDAY was the crucial day. Three buses went downtown in the morning, beginning at Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road plant in Plymouth Township, stopping at the Chatham Shopping Center at Five Mile and Newburgh, and making a final pickup at the Eddie Edgar Ice Arena on Farmington north of Schoolcraft in Livonia.

The 6:30 a.m. bus had 34 passengers, the 6:45 had 27, and the final bus—the one that had Dan Morrill smiling—carried a full load of 45.

SEMTA offcials were joined late Tuesday morning by Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara (also a SEMTA board member) and Plymouth Township Supervisor Tom Notebaert for a quick inspection trip.

Return buses leave Renaissance Center at 4:45, 5:10 and 5:35 p.m., making one stop at Michigan and Shelby.

"THIS IS AN express commuter service. It doesn't really cater to shoppers. The people on it are people you'll see every day," said Diane Kryszak, SEMTA's public information manager.

What provided impetus to set up the route was Ford Motor Co.'s decision to shift several thousand jops from Dearborn to RenCen, in which Ford is a partner.

"Ford provided us a Zip code list of the employees who were being transferred," Mrs. Kryszak said. "We saw a heavy concentration that did not have (public bus) service."

Working at RenCen are 2,000 Plaza Hotel employees, 400 employers of the RenCen partnership, 600 Ford employees (due to grow to 2,000) and 3,500 tenant employees.

FARES ARE $1.25 from Sheldon Road, $1.10 from Coatham and 95 cents from Ford Field one way. It's difficult to impossible to park a car for that kind of money, let alone operate it.

And that is the key to the run's second day success.

Said Morrill: "We tried eight different services to Ford in Dearborn. It's difficult to go against that free parking there." But where land is scarce and parking expensive, the bun neems to provide a popular answer.

RenCen is helping promote SEMTA bus service. Every employee there gets a SEMTA packet outlining services. "If they're not served, they're invited to tell us," said Mrs. Kryszak.

A check of cars in the Five-Newburgh parking lot showed even proportions of Ford, General Motors and Chrysler products. Assuming Ford employees are loyal to their company, it follows that many persons besides Ford employees were taking the bus.

McNamara suggested Morrill poll riders soon to see exactly what companies they come from.

The mayor laughed as he told of a phone call from Circuit Judge Patrick Duggan, a Livonia resident. Duggan used the bus, got to his chambers 40 minutes ahead of everyone else, and didn't know what to do with himself, McNamara said.

Then McNamara turned serious as he talked about a more immediate Detroit-suburban problem. Madonna College, at the Jeffries Freeway and Levan, is seeking students from the west side of Detroit. Many don't come from two- and three-car families.

"I'm trying to get D-DOT (Detroit's bus system) to extend their Five Mile line out to Madonnna," McNamara said.

Ask for ID from utility reps

Garden City police advise residents to use caution in dealing with visitors who identify themselves as utility employes, in the wake of four metro-Detroit area rip-offs last weekend by what appears to be a team.

Garden City Det. Lt. Bill Duncan, who said no such incidents have been reported in Garden City in sometime, advised residents to phone the utility company involved.

All four of the weekend incidents, one of which resulted in a reported $10,900 loss for an elderly Detroit couple, occurred when men purporting to be Edison Co. employes offered cash rebates.

A company spokesman said employees never offer cash rebates. He advised residents to ask for identification. All Edison employees carry a 2 by 3 inch identification card.

If you have further doubts, call Edison at 237-8000 anytime and ask for the security department.

Secretarial workshop set

Schoolcraft College will sponsor a workshop March 4 for persons interested in taking the tough examination to qualify as a Certified Professional Secretary.

A two-day CPS examination will be given at Schoolcraft in May. The deadline has passed for registering for that testing, but the March workshop is designed for those who might want to qualify in the future.

Workshop hours are 10-11:30 p.m., and the event will take place in the administration conference room.

Environmental law needs more enforcement punch

Environmental law enforcement programs of the Department of Natural Resources are in need of sweeping revision, a special in-house task force reported.

Last October DNR Director Howard A. Tanner ordered that the task force—made up of four department employees—be assembled. He did so both out of his own concern and in response to recent legislative, news media and public criticism of the way certain pollution cases were handled by the department in past years.

Tanner directed the group to conduct an analysis of all DNR enforcement programs, to pinpoint weaknesses and report back to him with its findings and recommendations.

That report, which focuses on environmental enforcement, was submitted to Tanner recently.

The report recommends:

•All environmental enforcement responsibility be consolidated in a new division to be created expressly for that purpose.

•An enforcement bureau be established to house the department's existing law enforcement division, now within no bureau, as well as the new environmental enforcement division.

•A transition committee be appointed by Tanner to help define the distinction between compliance activities and formal enforcement action.

•A continuing audit of DNR compliance and enforcement functions be initated and maintained.

•The resource recovery program be studied, with an eye on securing extensive amendments to its enabling legislation.

•The department's pollution emergency alert system and functions of the water quality division's oil and hazardous materials control section be studied in depth. The task force identified an enforcement potential in these programs that is not being achieved, but lacked time to probe deeper. Thus, the group recommends that Tanner appoint a special committee to study the programs and advise him on how they might fit into future enforcement efforts.

•Procedures involving permits, licenses and other tools used in the mammoth task of gaining compliance be reviewed, revised as necessary and formalized.

•Additional staff be assigned to the environmental protection bureau, the proposed enforcement division and the attorney general's office.

•Increased emphasis be placed on assuring that the public's right to know is honored.

The task force report identified five general problem areas, including:

•Intermingling of service and regulatory functions. Some employees, the report states, "have found it difficult to switch from a cooperative, service-oriented approach to a formal enforcemnt posture when voluntary compliance has not been achieved."

•Internal conflicts. "The task force heard accounts of conflicts of attitudes and personalities that have been allowed to develop, and in some cases cause unnecessary delay in enforcement actions."

•Inability to document violations and assemble evidence. "The divisions have not received specialized training or provided staff with legal expertise to develop a systematic approach for assembling evidence and documentation for effective legal action."

•Commission structure complicates enforcement. "Although the enforcement responsibility has been transferred (by Gov. Milliken in 1976) from the (Air Pollution Control, Water Resources and Resource Recover) commissions to the DNR director, an advisory function remains to which the staff and public are responsive," the report said. "This complicates the enforcement process and continues to frustrate the staff and the public."

•Lack of planning for overall waste disposal, which in the past has contributed to pollution problems, especially those involving groundwater contamination.

Beyond its short-range recommendations, which the DNR director has authority to implement immediately, the task force submitted several long-range recommendations that could be effected only through action from the governor and legislature.

These would consolidate the functions of the three environmental commissions into a single environmental board under the Natural Resources Commission; restructure the Environmental Protection Bureau along functional lines; and seek what are considereed necessary changes in environmental legislation, including enactment of a state toxic and hazardous materials control law.

Wayne Tody, DNR deputy director, was picked by Tanner to head the task force. To serve with him, Tody selected Gary E. Guenther, Environmental Services Division chief, and Dennis P. Tierney and Elizabeth Valentine of the Office of Program Review and Project Clearance.

"The new environmental enforcement division," Tody said, "would give us a highly specialized group capable of taking timely and effective legal action, a capability we have lacked in the past. Basically, the new division's efforts would be directed at polluters we are unable to deal with through the adminsitrative process."

Staff of the proposed enforcement division probably would consist of DNR employees with experience in environmental enforcement, Tody said.

Science of planning is not the magic of predicting

By JACK BOLOGNA
George Odiorne Associates

One of the most ego deflating aspects of being a corporate planning consultant is discovering how well potential clients planned before you arrived on the scene.

You might assume that the largest market segment for planning consultation is the group of firms who do not utilize formalized planning systems or those who plan by intuition.

In point of fact, most corporate clients have rather elaborate and sophisticated planning systems in place when we show up.

THE CONCERN they most often air deals with what they call the "weakness in commitment to planning" which they feel is evident by the inaccuracy of forecasts and the failure to anticipate changes in the general business environment.

Their invariable request for services involves either "teaching them to plan better" or "give us a better planning system."

The inference is that an outside magician will remove the risk of uncertainty about the future through some occult power.

But planning is not intended to produce a higher level of certainty about the future. At best it can only anticipate areas of potential discontinuity and areas where opportunities for growth may lie.

While industry has made marvelous progress in the quantity and quality of information gathering, manipulation and analysis, its record for anticipating future outcomes is far less admirable.

Computer models, macro and micro-analysis don't seem to predict as well as beavers and squirrels predict the severity of winter by growing more fur or storing more nuts.

SINCE PLANNING isn't predicting or at least predicting with a high degree of success, what is it?

Planning is simply a process whereby relevant information is systematically gathered and analyzed for the purpose of anticipating areas of opportunity and risk, so that alternatives or strategies can be developed to optimize growth and minimize risks.

If some event is in fact predictable, there is no need to include it in a plan. It can't surprise you. And planning is intended to minimize surprises.

The real problem with our friends was not their record of prediction, bad as it was.

They never did ALL their homework. They weren't thorough enough. They trusted to the future those events which seemed too unbearable to dwell on. Because they couldn't control those events, they merely elected to ignore them. They didn't think strategically, i.e. if this happens or fails to happen what do we do? What do we do after that?

THINKING STRATEGICALLY is not easy. None of us enjoy thinking about what calamities might befall us in the future.

Thinking about the future can even produce anxiety for many of us. Rather than suffer the pain of anxiety, we choose to block out the future or develop an optimistic outlook as a defense.

While I don't recommend pessimism as a mind-set or general attitude, I don't believe in blind optimism either. Mature people and mature organizations have a knack or talent for keeping things in balance (hope for the best and plan for the worst.)

Strategic thinking means scanning the environment and determining which of many potential social, economic, political, ecological and technological risks and opportunities will have the greatest impact on our organization—what's best for us and what's the worst that can happen. It's the art (not science) of converting what others see as threats and risks into opportunities for growth and development. It is fundamentally optimistic. "Can do" is its motto.

When John F. Kennedy suggested we could place a man on the moon by 1970, he was thinking strategically. Robert Kennedy said, "Some people dream about the future and say, 'why?' I dream about the future and say 'why not?' He too was thinking strategically.

Faith and calculated hope are the keys to strategic thinking and strategic planning. In a world of despair, enigma and growing complexity, it's difficult to maintain faith and remain hopeful. But it's our only real option.

Dem supports wiretapping but not party leaders

By TIM RICHARD

Although a bill to allow some wiretapping is being pushed vigorously by a Democratic legislator, three of four candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination oppose wiretaps.

The measure has passed the house under the prodding of State Rep. Paul Rosenbaum (D-Battle Creek), who is expected to seek his party's U.S. Senate nomination this year. It would allow some wiretaps in efforts to get at heroin dealers.

Only State Sen. Patrick McCullough (D-Dearborn) among the gubernatorial candidates backed it when they appeared recently before the Farmington and Southfield Democratic clubs.

Zolton Ferency and William Ralls were opposed. State Sen. William Fitzgerald (D-Detroit) was wary of the bill in its original form. Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen arrived late and didn't get to respond.

"NARCOTICS are a cancer eating at our young people," said Fitzgerald. "Tough measures enjoy wide support in the legislature.

"But I'm very nervous—we don't have to tread on the right to privacy. Wiretapping is very dangerous. It's already allowed by federal courts.

"And to give 83 county prosecutors authority . . . I'm afraid enough of Brooks Patterson," he said, referring to the Oakland County prosecutor and Senate hopeful who takes tough stands on crime.

"I CHASTIZE Paul Rosenbaum for even suggesting such legislation," Ferency almost shouted.

The professor of criminal justice at Michigan State University denounced "the myth of the pusher" as a "political code word."

Ferency said organized crime is behind narcotics because "it pays. We should take narcotics out of the criminal justice system and put it in the social-medical system.

"Look to the addict," he added. "We don't teach police what to do with drug addicts except to lock them up."

RALLS SAID, "We can't take a shortcut. The right to privacy is at stake.

"We need to have the toughness to appropriate enough money for prisons. Our prisons are overcrowded."

A spokesman for Sen. McCullough (D-Dearborn) said he was working with Rosenbaum for senate passage.

"He's floor-managing the bill," said McCullough's aide.

Rosenbaum's package of bills, including the wiretap measure, has passed the house twice but remains bottled up in the senate, where judiciary committee Chairman Basil Brown (D-Highland Park) is adamantly opposed to it.

Economist predicts good year for '78

Unemployment rates will decline in most Michigan counties in 1978, according to a Michigan State Universlty economist.

Dr. David I. Verway of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research foresees at least a slight decline in unemployment in all but Berrien, Arenac and Ogemaw counties.

Overall, the state can probably expect an employment gain of 2.9 per cent, which means an unemployment rate of 5.6 per cent, said Verway.

Between 1976 and 1977 Michigan employment grew by 4.5 per cent, he noted, while the nation's rate of gain was 3.4 per cent.

"We had a longer way to go, of course, because the previous recession was much more severe here," Verway said.

The 1976 unemployment rate for Michigan was 9.4 per cent compared to 7.7 per cent for the nation.

Purchasing power is expected to rise by approximately five per cent both in Michigan and the United States. Previously, Verway said, purchasing power of Michigan incomes rose by about nine per cent.

About 40,000 new jobs in construction, retail trade and other non-manufacturing sectors can be expected in the Detroit Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA), which includes Lapeer, Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair and Wayne counties.

"Retailing, particularly, should provide a larger share of the job gain than it did during 1977," Verway said.

Chiropractor's Corner By William Reinholt D.C.

Good Afternoon:

This is the fifth in a series of articles explaining the chiropractic approach in helping people with health problems.

This week we will continue to talk about the "internal" properties that heal our illnesses.

The internal property which I referred to in last week's articles is the "innate intelligence" that God has provided us all with, that runs and operates our bodies and their millions of duties.

This inner wisdom can become interferred with when spinal bones become displaced or misaligned, setting the stage for the beginning of internal problems. The evidence of the existence of these internal problems may not be recognized by the patient for many years later, and then when it is, the only solution that the patient may have is surgery. Even though the logical thing to do would be to remove the interference which originally allowed the problem to begin, and allow the patient's body to heal itself, the time that it would take to accomplish this is not practical. And in this instance we thank God for surgery and/or drugs and medication, but even then, when the doctors have removed the diseased parts, this internal wisdom must still do the healing. Nothing else can. Just like the doctor sets the bone, he doesn't heal it, the inner wisdom which God gave everyone, does the healing. So the chiropractor who adjusts misaligned vertebrae in the spine, doesn't claim to have a cure for the ailments which plague people, but merely recognizes that interference to the "inner wisdom" which does do the healing, cannot if there is interference to it. And when people who experience the benefits that result from having the spinal bones realigned, experience these benefits, not because the chiropractor has any healing powers, but because your body as well as all people's bodies have within them this power to heal themselves.

Musicians to tour Europe

Four Plymouth area youngsters are among a record 252 musicians who will participate in Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp's ninth annual goodwill tour of Europe this summer. They are members of four groups—a 91-piece band, a 53-voice choir, an 83-piece orchestra, and a 25-piece jazz band. They will perform in Luxembourg, France, Belgium, Germany, and The Netherlands. From left are: Christ Bennett, orchestra director Daniel Kovats, band director Leonard Falcone, choir director Charles Canaan, Kim Harms, and Carrie Forgie. Not pictured is Dick Goepp.

ADC cases drop again

Wayne County's Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) caseload declined slightly in December, according to latest figures released by the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The caseload is down to 81,036 families from 81,350 recorded for November 1977 and from 84,568 in December 1976.

Statewide, the AFDC caseload declined slightly in December for the third consecutive month, following a general downward trend which began late in 1976.

The Michigan caseload totalled 194,048 families in December. That compared with 194,637 the previous month and 199,717 in December 1976.

The highest reported caseload within the past year was 201,902 in March 1977. The lowest caseload reported in recent years was 193,364 in August 1975.

The data includes the number of "regular" (single-parent) AFDC families and AFDC-U (unemployed parent) recipients who comprise about seven per cent of the caseload.

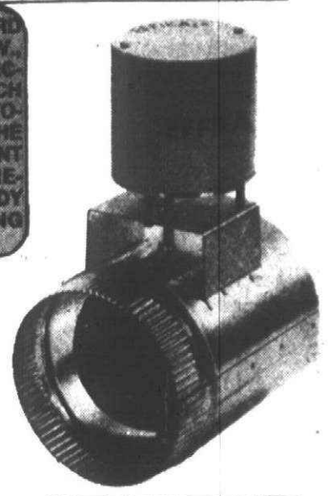

The December decline in the number of AFDC families is attributed to a drop in the caseloads of the nine largest counties—Wayne, Genesee, Oakland, Kent, Macomb, Saginaw, Ingham, Washtenaw and Calhoun.

STOP LOSING HEAT

PLUG UP THE HOLE IN YOUR HOUSE AND SAVE AS MUCH AS 24% OF YOUR GAS BILL WITH AN

EFFIKAL AUTOMATIC DAMPER

THIS IS THE DEVICE THAT YOU'VE HEARD AND READ SO MUCH ABOUT ON T.V., RADIO, AND NEWSPAPERS. IT IS AN ELECTRONIC AND MECHANICAL DEVICE WHICH WHEN INSTALLED IN YOUR FURNACE-TO-CHIMNEY FLU WILL OPEN BEFORE THE BURN CYCLE AND CLOSE THE MOMENT THE BURN CYCLE ENDS THUS PREVENTING "SUPER HEATED" AIR ALREADY IN YOUR FURNACE FROM ESCAPING WHILE YOUR FURNACE IS AT REST.

Actual Proof

In testimony given before the Michigan Public Service Commission, Case number U-5272, March 18, 1977, it was revealed that through actual tests in 200 Michigan homes, the average savings with an automatic damper was 23.64%. More than that, of the 5 different devices and concepts tested, the automatic damper system gave the highest percentage of savings.

The device is an automatic damper that electronically closes the flue whenever the furnace flame is off. Researchers estimate 50 percent of furnace heat escapes up the chimney . . . preliminary results of a limited testing program conducted by the utility during the 1975-76 winter show that householders may be able to save as much as 26 percent of normal gas consumption."

Stay-at-home daddies sought for research

Fathers who have taken over at least 50 per cent of the care of their pre-school children are being sought for a University of Michigan research project.

The study is comparing the social and emotional development of such children, aged 3 to 5, to that of youngsters in more traditional families in which the mother is the primary caretaker.

"We are interested in intact families, not situations in which the man is divorced and has custody of his children," explained U-M social work Prof. Norma L. Radin, who is conducting the study. "Also, since it is a small study, we are limiting the comparisons to white middle class families."

Three groups will be included: families in which the father has assumed most of the child's care; families in which the couples share child care about equally, and a "control group" in which it is still primarily the mother's responsibility.

Participating in the study will take about three hours of the family's time, Ms. Radin said. The researchers will conduct separate one-hour interviews with the father and with the mother in their home. The children will be present during the father's interview, and will be interviewed on a third occasion by themselves.

"We will be looking at several aspects of the child's development," Radin says. "These include sex role identification, task independence, empathy and 'internality'—which means the degree to which the children feel they have control over what happens to them.

"We are interested in how young children in the non-traditional households perceive what fathers do all day, and what mothers do. Are they more influenced by what they see on television and in the neighborhood, or by what goes on in their own homes?"

Ms. Radin is curious to see how the division of child care responsibilities affects other household tasks. Does the father who is home with the child also prepare meals and do the laundry? What kinds of support networks are needed by these families?

Ms. Radin is not making any predictions on the research outcome. But on the basis of her former studies of parent-child relationships, she expects the father who spends large amounts of time with his pre-schooler to have a very positive effect on that child.

"A man who would willingly elect to stay home with his children would tend to be very independent-minded and self-assured, and would thus be a good role model. We would expect him to be nurturing and sensitive—traits which would also be likely passed on to the children.

"Once they reach school age, the children might be temporarily self-conscious about having a mother who is at work during the day and a father who stays home," she remarked. "But in the long run, I would expect them to develop into very well-rounded, independent adults with a strong sense of the wide variety of life-styles open to them."

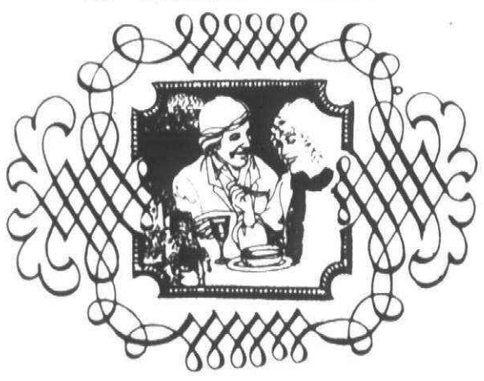

Families interested in participating in the study should contact Ms. Radin at (313) 764-6128.

Land slated for horse play

Ten acres of county land in the City of Wayne have been set aside for the future development of a horse and pony educational center and riding facility. The center will be used in the county's 4-H horse and pony educational program.

The land is located on Van Born Road at Venoy, next to a planned model farm and educational complex that the county is developing with a $4.7 million federal grant.

Public transit a 'disaster' for the handicapped

There are plenty of problems with public transportation in southeastern Michigan.

And they are compounded if you're blind or physically handicapped, do not have a regular driver, and live outside the City of Detroit.

One person called Wayne and Oakland counties a "disaster area" for the blind and handicapped.

"It's true," said Shan Toppiwalla, federal aid coordinator for Oakland County. "Moving from one place to another is very, very difficult for the handicapped throughout the region."

In Oakland County, the first attempt to provide countywide dial-a-ride service has been stalled for several reasons. The earliest estimates predict that the system known as Oakland County Advanced Reservation Transit System (OCART) will begin service in July.

"In Oakland County you're radically spread out," said Jean Brinley, who is blind and works for the Anderson Counseling Service in Farmington Hills. "We do have (municipal) dial-a-ride services, but nothing is connected to anything else."

THE PROBLEMS are many and varied:

- There is no countywide dial-a-ride service available in either Wayne or Oakland counties.
- Municipal dial-a-ride services will not cross city boundaries, much less county boundaries.
- Attempts to improve public transportation for the handicapped have been tied up in the Michigan Legislature.
- Taxi service outside the City of Detroit is rare. When it is available, costs for some are prohibitive.
- Persons willing to become regular drivers for the handicapped are few. According to some handicapped persons, their "regular" drivers are undependable in bad weather.
- Conventional buses run infrequently in the suburbs on weekends, and runs are curtailed in the suburbs between the morning and evening rush hours.

"IT'S NOT LIKE all we're doing is running around to coffee klatches," Mrs. Brinley said. "We need the transportation for work, for the doctor, for shopping.

"We're all reliant on other people and family. There's nothing we can do independently," she said.

Betsy Schrauder, a counselor at Wayne State University, said the deficiency in transit services also affects college students.

"Some students live on campus because of the transportation problem," she said. "Others are lucky enough to get into car pools."

"It limits students in their total activity," she said.

"I know one person who wanted to commute to Wayne State from Wyandotte. The only way he could work around the transit problem was to give up his apartment and living arrangements and move onto campus," she said.

DAVID BANKS, a public health educator for the Detroit-based Society for the Blind, said, "If we moved outside Detroit, half of our clientele couldn't get to us.

"Once we get outside Detroit, the blind just have a devil of a time finding their way on public transportation," he said. "It's hard for them to get from Detroit to the suburbs and vice-versa."

Ben Pumo, associate director for the Society of the Blind, criticized existing services even more.

"As far as the blind are concerned, suburban public transportation is non-existent. Once you get beyond the Detroit city line, the frequency of buses is cut by a third," said Pumo, a Westland resident.

"A person can get to and from work, but there are no runs at midday or on the weekends," he said.

The Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) operates buses in the suburbs. In spite of the many problems in the state's most populous counties, SEMTA boasts that it is one of the nation's pioneers in public transportation for the handicapped.

According to Marvin Meltzer, a SEMTA spokesman, the transit authority led the way in setting up countywide dial-a-ride service in Macomb, Monroe and Livingston counties.

"We've really been way out in front on this thing," he said.

Efforts to get the countywide service in Wayne and Oakland counties, however, have been roadblocked by a state-ordered moratorium on new bus purchases.

The legislature, Meltzer said, has been haggling over standards concerning services for the handicapped. Some legislators argue that all buses should be equipped with special wheelchair lifts. Others say only a portion need to carry the equipment.

Meltzer said as soon as that impasse is resolved, SEMTA would move forward with plans to put 52 dial-a-ride vehicles on the streets of Wayne County and at least 36 dial-a-ride vans into operation in Oakland County.

THE OCART plan has divided Oakland County into two service areas.

The primary service area covers the county's most densely populated area in the south and east. The 324-square-mile area extends northward from Eight Mile to Dalton Road, just north of Rochester and Pontiac, and stretches westward from Dequindre to Haggerty Road.

That area contains 84 per cent of the county's total population, 87 per cent of the county's elderly population, 84 per cent of its handicapped persons and 90 per cent of the households without an automobile.

The remaining 583 square miles are not densely populated. "The need to serve this area is very real, as is the need to comply with federal legislation in all areas of our county," said a county spokesman.

Initially, 14 dial-a-ride buses will serve this area.

Miniature houses said to appease the ghosts

This 'n' that:

I am told that in some parts of Japan homeowners frequently erect "ghost houses." These are miniature models of their own homes in which they place food to entice the ghosts that might otherwise haunt their real houses.

On Feb. 20, I saw a sight which made my heart leap with joy. As I was driving home from Applegate, Mich., I saw five separate formations of Canadian geese flying north. How is that for a real sign of spring?

When reading tea leaves, wax drippings, coffee grounds, or the like, a key can represent many things. It might be symbolic of a new house or car, the solving of a mystery with secrets revealed, or finding the solution to a difficult problem. This is where the reader must rely on sensitivity and intuitiveness, rather than formula.

Someday, I am going to do a whole column using nothing but the last paragraphs of all the other columns I have written. My readers seldom get to see these because they are usually cut to fit the piece into the space available.

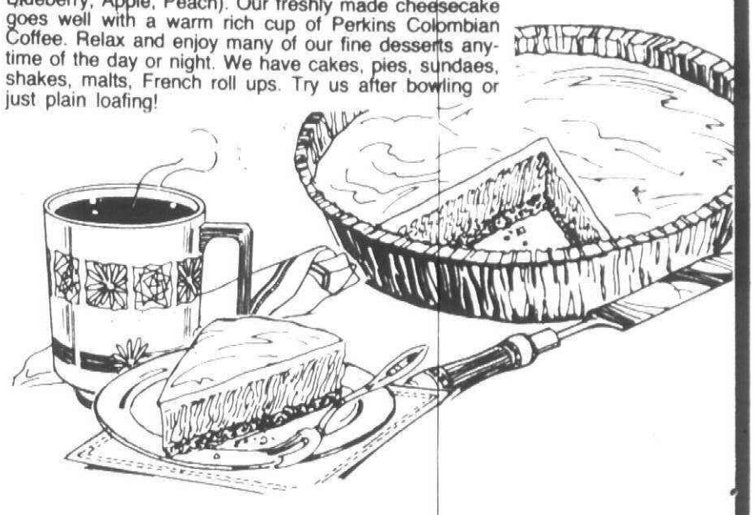

March 18 is often said to be the best day of the year to begin a love spell. So now is the time to start getting ready.

Old superstition: If you leave the house and find you have forgotten something and must return for it, you should not leave the second time until you first sit down and count backwards from 10 to one. Then walk widershins (backwards) around the chair to reverse your luck.

Note: This spring, Gundella will conduct several weekend workshops on such topics as reincarnation, astral travel, ritual, and basic psychic sciences. For more information, you may write Gundella at Box 434, Garden City, Mi. 48135. Or you may call her at 427-1072.

Idea homes now on view in suburbs

The 1978 Idea Home Parade, representing trends in metropolitan housing, may be a prelude to what is expected to be an active spring building season.

Irving H. Yackness, executive vice president of the sponsoring Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, said, "Unless shortages or money conditions hurt production, we expect 1978 to be as strong as 1977. With a substantial federal income tax cut in prospect, demands for homes is certain to be high."

This year's parade, limited to 20 homes, will cover a range of designs and prices and will be scattered through the suburbs.

The idea homes in the Observer and Eccentric circulation areas include:

- Grosse Pines at 39 Chalmers Dr. in Rochester.
- Mayfair Village at 44223 Cranberry Dr. in Canton Township.
- Streamwood Estates at 1969 Pondview Ct. in Rochester.
- Tantallon at 34540 Bunker Hill Dr. in Farmington Hills.
- Parkwood Estates at 42462 Saltz Rd. in Canton Township.
- Avon Hills Village at 1724 Danbury Lane in Rochester.
- Long Lake Estates at 3962 Winterset in West Bloomfield.
- Trailwood at 9657 Tennyson Dr. in Plymouth Township.
- Cross Keys at 2975 Roundtree in Troy.

The Idea Home showing is the annual kick off to the Builder's Home, Furniture and Flower Show. The homes will remain on view until the show begins March 18 at Cobo Hall in Detroit. The show will run from March 18-26.

At Red Door in Canton

Another Elvis imitator on the circuit

By CHRIS BEARDSLEY

He's certainly not "all shook up" about his adoring fans or his skyrocketing career.

In fact, he takes his "kingly" duties quite seriously.

Gary "Elvis" Hodge, imitator of "The King," says Elvis Presley has been such an influence on him that he jokes that "when I was born, I started singing "Blue Suede Shoes."

"I don't compare myself to Elvis, but I feel proud to know people enjoy seeing what I do."

Gary, 24, of Garden City, is a full-time employee at Ford Motor Co. and performs Sunday nights at Entertainment World in Ypsilanti, the Red Door in Canton and Das Hofbrauhaus, his father's restaurant, in Westland.

Gary will appear in "Memories of the King" at 7 p.m. Monday, March 6, at Das Hofbrauhaus, 1609 N. Wayne Road. His bandleader's two young sons, also dressed as Elvis, will be singing with him.

Gary and his band will be returning to the Red Door on March 19.

He began his career by winning a $100 gift certificate at a gong show at the Red Door about five years ago.

Gary was hired to play at the Red Door by Paul Webb, who is now leader of his back-up band.

Other members of the band are Jack Muletti, who has played guitar behind such country-western stars as Dolly Parton and Barbara Mandrill; Jerry Nagle, steel guitarist; and drummer Danny Webb.

Gary is a self-taught musician and got his first guitar when he was 14.

He was also president of his ninth grade choir.

In 1972, Gary would not pay $10 for a ticket to Elvis' concert at Olympia Stadium so his mother paid for it.

"What I don't buy, people buy me," Gary said.

The Elvis souvenirs, trinkets and pictures Gary receives from his fans are countless. He saves everything.

"People take pictures (at my concerts) and give them to me," he added.

Some fans brought him a three-foot long cake commemorating Elvis to the Red Door one night. People gave Gary poems they wanted him to read during his performance.

Gary thanks his followers for their support by giving them gifts. During his shows, he throws scarves with his name emblazened with glitter into the audience.

Because the band's equipment has been wrecked in the past by over-enthusiastic fans, Gary has a bodyguard.

Gary says the most requested songs are Elvis' later ones, especially "The Hurt."

"I enjoy doing every song, and I don't have a favorite. I like to do the songs that I move in, though," he said.

When asked about the longevity of his act, Gary "Elvis" Gary said, "I will keep doing this as long as Elvis lives on.

"If people could only feel what I feel on stage . . . a thrill."

Roll Call Report

Consumer office bill defeated

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 2 through Feb. 8.

HOUSE

CONSUMER AGENCY— Defeated, 189 for and 227 against, a bill to create an Office of Consumer Representation to represent the consumer interest in policy-making by other federal agencies. Although the bill (HR 6805) has not been voted upon by the Senate, rejection in the House eliminated any chance of it becoming law.

Establishment of the agency, the first of its kind, was favored by Ralph Nader, President Carter and consumer and "public interest" groups, and opposed by the Republican leadership and business organizations such as the National Association of Manufacturers and U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Rep. Robert Drinan (D-Mass.), a supporter, said: "Simple justice requires that such a consumer advocate be created. . .businesses are thoroughly represented before federal agencies while all too often consumers lack the organization and resources to press their own interests effectively."

Rep. Bill Alexander (D-Ark.), an opponent, said "the public interest is already sufficiently protected through federal agency and state consumer offices and. . .the establishment of this new layer of bureaucracy is unnecessary."

Members voting "nay" were opposed to establishment of a federal agency for consumers.

Reps. David Bonior (D-Mt. Clemens), William Ford (D-Taylor), William Brodhead (D-Detroit), James Blanchard (D-Pl. Ridge) and Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) voted "yea."

Rep. William Broomfield (R-Birm.) voted "nay."

CONSUMER AGENCY—Rejected, 138 for and 274 against, an amendment to include the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) among the federal agencies that could be targets of the proposed consumer protection agency. The amendment sought to eliminate the two labor-oriented agencies' exemption from the bill to create an Office of Consumer Representation (see vote above).

Rep. Dan Quayle (R-Ind.), the sponsor, said the NLRB and FMCS should not be exempted because "in all fairness, any labor dispute or labor agreement could in fact affect the consumers that this bill is so inherently interested in."

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (D-N.Y.), an opponent, said neither labor nor management favored the amendment because "those who are concerned with public policy have recognized that it is extraordinarily injurious for any outside forces to tamper with or to interfere with the labor-management relations."

Members voting "yea" were opposed to the exemption granted the NLRB and the federalmediation service.

Broomfield voted "yea."

Bonior, Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard and Pursell voted "nay."

JUDGESHIPS—Passed, 319 for and 80 against, a bill creating 145 new federal judgeships, 110 in U.S. district courts and 35 in appellate courts. The bill (HR 7843) was sent to conference with the Senate. It sets up non-binding procedures for the merit selection of district court judges, in an effort to make judicial ability more important than political connections in the selection of judges. However, the procedures are unlikely to be put into use, because senators are unwilling to give up their prerogative to pick federal judges.

Rep. Peter Rodino (D-N.J.), a supporter, said more judges are needed because the district court caseload increased from 92,000 to 177,000 between 1950-77 and the appellate court caseload from 3,226 in 1953 to 19,000 in 1977.

Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Tex.), an opponent, said "the docket is not as imposing as the statistics they cite may indicate. In too many instances, judges simply need to be more efficient."

Members voting "yea" favored the bill.

Bonior, Brodhead, Blanchard and Pursell voted "yea."

Broomfield voted "nay."

Ford did not vote.

SENATE

NUCLEAR POLICY—Adopted, 47 for and 44 against, an amendment to make it easier to bring spent nuclear fuel from a foreign reactor into the U.S. for storage. Such a policy seeks to diminish the chance of the spent fuel being diverted from peaceful uses to nuclear weapons. The amendment was generally opposed by the nuclear power industry. It was attached to a bill (S 8638) to control the exporting of peaceful nuclear technology, in order to curb the proliferation of nuclear weapons. The bill was later passed and sent to conference with the House.

This amendment required vetoes by both houses of Congress to block an agreement for bringing spent nuclear fuel into the United States. It replaced language requiring only a one-house veto.

Sen. John Glenn (D-Ohio), the sponsor, said the amendment was a necessary part of the Senate's "attempt to curb a growing specter of potential nuclear holocaust around the world."

Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.), an opponent, said additional nuclear waste should not be brought into the U.S. at a time when the "country itself has no—and I repeat no—plan for the disposition of waste in this country at all—no plan whatsoever."

Senators voting "yea" favored the Glenn amendment.

Sen. Donald Riegle (D) voted "yea."

Sen. Robert Griffin (R) voted "nay."

NUCLEAR POLICY—Tabled, 56 for and 36 against, an amendment to ease the procedures by which the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) licenses the export of nuclear fuel for use in foreign reactors. It was proposed to (S 8638), the bill to curb the proliferation of nuclear materials, later passed and sent to conference with the House (see vote above).

The amendment was addressed at language making it difficult for irresponsible governments to obtain nuclear fuel from U.S. suppliers. It sought to allow a foreign purchaser of demonstrated responsibility an essentially lifetime license, rather than having to seek a new license for each order placed.

Ye olde days' murder rate — 'twas worse

Violence in Detroit today falls short of that found in medieval England, according to research done by James Given, a history professor at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Working with 13th century English court records, Given collected evidence which indicates the homicide rate in medieval England may have been as high as 26 persons per 100,000. This would compare with 20.2 murders per 100,000 in Detroit in 1974.

"Violence in medieval England was one of the few ways in which a poor and uninfluential peasant could resolve conflicts or disputes," said Given.

editorial opinion

4-year term aids indolent

One way to stay in public office a long time is do a good job and campaign hard. Another way is to persuade the Michigan legislature to extend your term.

That's exactly what happened this month when township officials and the Michigan Township Association (MTA) got the lawmakers in Lansing to pass House Bill 4230 extending the terms of supervisors, clerks and treasurers from two to four years.

It's abundantly clear from the number of recalls we've seen in Canton Township and other suburbs the past two years that people want local government to be responsive. If it isn't, they want action—not 3½ years from now, but promptly.

Consider the case histories. Canton had a recall election less than a year after officials were voted in. Redford Township went through a recall the year over a senior citizen services issue.

FROM WHAT we're seen, recalls are overused. They were intended to make it easier to remove corrupt public officials, not honest ones the voters happen to disagree with.

Now we can only look forward, with dread, to more recalls, because unpopular township officeholders will be cemented in office for four years instead of two.

Another discomforting feature of the new law makes the error of putting too many township officers on the ballot at one time—all seven.

Entire entire township board could be replaced, with no seasoned veterans to provide continuity or direction to newcomers. And, in townships such as Canton, most elected officials are experiencing their first fling at administering a government. While this may pose no problem in a city run by a city manager and an experienced working staff, in a township it could spell trouble. (Especially if 22-year veteran Clerk John Flodin is defeated or retires.)

IN THE CASE of part-time officials—such as trustees—resignations because of the demands of their full-time jobs are common. Certainly the danger of having a board with several appointes trustees will be greater with four-year terms.

We've already seen too many political appointments in the Plymouth-Canton community. Former Wayne County Commissioner Royce Smith got kicked upstairs, making way for William Joyner's appointment as his releacement. On the school board, George Lawton and Marcia Borowski resigned recently. As a result, two of the seven memebers of the present board are appointees.

Township government prides itself on being close to the people, on being "grass roots" government—or so we would be led to believe by listening to the Michigan Township Association rhetoric. Grass roots politicians shouldn't be afraid of being mowed down every two years if they aren't doing the job voters elected them to do.

Plymouth Center abuses: Sorting it out

"We see through a glass, darkly," said St. Paul. The first Christian's warning needs to be heeded as we—the press corps, the politicians, the parents groups and all—go off to investigate the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

So far, few things are clear among the horror stories about abuse of the retarded in this nearby state facility. We'll try to sort them out.

THE PLYMOUTH Center for Human Development is one of 18 facilities run by the Michigan Department of Mental Health. In the current news stories, the Caro Center has been spoken of highly. On the other hand, the Lapeer County Press is coming up with stories of abuse at the Oakdale Center. So Plymouth isn't the only sore spot.

At Plymouth, not every resident is being beaten up. Not every attendant is being accused. The trouble spots are two halls housing one-third of the 850 residents. There are some 35 known abuse cases. We don't know how many of the staff are involved. We have a sordid situation, but we need not condemn and demoralize all 800-plus staff members.

Some say the Plymouth Center is understaffed. Maybe. It's hardly an explanation for abuse.

AN ATTENDANT'S job is hardly an enviable one. It's difficult enough for the ordinary mother to rouse, dress, feed and prepare a batch of kids for school. Dealing with the retarded can be depressing.

We know something about the psychological profile of the child abuser. We know something about the psychological profile of the wife abuser. We know little about the psyche of those who abuse the retarded.

It takes a saintly person to deal with the retarded. Applicants for attendants' jobs take civil service tests. We suspect those tests fail to help select the kinds of persons who can deal with the retarded.

One need only be 18 years of age and pass a civil service exam to get an attendant's job. Some persons close to the situation recommend higher standards—a high school diploma, an associate's college degree, even a bachelor's degree. They may have something. They may not. Saintliness may be more important than book-learning when it comes to picking attendants.

THERE ARE either inadequate procedures or good procedures that aren't followed when cases of resident abuse occur.

There is an abuse committee at such state institutions. There is supposed to be a law which says there should be a public member on that committee so that the staff isn't in the untenable position of investigating itself, unaided. The Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens feels it has made state officials pay attention to that law.

Lots of people will be taking credit for exposing whatever abuses there are at the Plymouth center. Prime credit belongs to the Plymouth Association for the Retarded, which worked for two years to attract official attention.

The association is composed of both parents and just plain interested citizens. No one paid them to be muckrakers. They are a pillar example of citizen involvement in public affairs. It's the kind of group that makes democracy in America tick.

The Stroller

Henry Hall's monument in Michigan

By W.W. EDGAR

Travelling across Nine Mile Road en route to the Michigan Inn to attend a meeting of the Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame Committee, The Stroller came across a sight that unleashed a flood of memories.

There, just east of Middlebelt Road, silhouetted against the sky, was an old-time ski slide complete with platform that has weathered the wintry winds and icy blasts for years.

Just the sight of it caused The Stroller to stop and let the memories come tumbling through the years.

Hundreds of persons drive by it every day. But few of them realize the ancient wooden structure is a symbol of the glory days of ski jumping competition and a daily reminder of the legendary Henry Hall, who ruled the sport and helped make the upper peninsula the American capital of ski jumping.

A MEMBER of the famous family of ski jumpers, Henry was the first man to leap more than 200 feet. He did it at Steamboat Springs in Colorado in 1917 when his winning leap measured 106 feet. Later he leaped 229 feet in British Columbia in 1921 and still was winning championships when he was 41 years old.

The memory of these feats and the sight of Henry coming down the slides carried The Stroller back to the days when he was a rookie on the sports staff of the Detroit Free Press—more than a half-century ago.

He had arrived in Detroit early in February and wondered just what sort of sport activity was going on along the Great Lakes at that season of the year.

He didn't have to wait long to find out that the activity was far different from anything he had known back in the foothills and mountains of Pennsylvania.

ABOUT THAT TIME, the Hall boys, at Henry's urging, left the upper peninsula. They brought with them their favorite sport by building slides at Brighton and Rochester.

Few sports writers in those days knew anything about ski jumping, so it wasn't a surprise when The Stroller was assigned to cover the jumps at Rochester one Sunday afternoon.

This old ski jump on Nine Mile in Farmington reminded The Stroller of the glory days of Henry Hall a half-century ago. (Staff photo by Harry Mauthe)

It wasn't a surprise because The Stroller also had been assigned to cover the speed skating championships on Belle Isle the previous week, possibly because he was fat enough to withstand the blasts that blew down the lakes.

"Go out to Rochester on Sunday," the sports editor said, "and look up a man named Henry Hall. He'll tell you anything you need to know because he not only built the slide but is running the event."

So out to Rochester went the rookie, not knowing what to expect. He never had seen a skiing event, and the nearest he ever came was to go "belly bumper" down the old Pine Street hill at home.

WHAT AN AFTERNOON it turned out to be! So awed was he that the cold didn't seem to bother him. He stood amazed as one jumper after another came down the slide, and took off into the air like a bird and landed upright at the bottom of the hill.

The Stroller had made a promise to himself when he started his sport writing career. He would try to engage in any sport he covered.

As years went on, he played golf with Walter Hagen, rode in the Miss America X when Gar Wood set the world speedboat record and rode around the Indianapolis race track with three-time winner Wilbur Shaw at 130 miles an hour.

But that cold Sunday afternoon in Rochester, The Stroller, after watching the ski jumpers, decided he'd wait for some other sport and leave the ski jumping to others.

The real pleasure of the afternoon came when he was invited to sit down in the warmth of a cabin and chat with Henry Hall. Talking like a father to the young writer, Hall explained the technique of ski jumping and gave The Stroller all the information he needed.

"I didn't think you knew so much about ski jumping," said the sports editor after he glanced at the rookie's story.

"I didn't know anything about it until I met Henry Hall this afternoon," The Stroller answered, and he was on his way to making good on a metropolitan daily.

YEARS LATER—in 1974—he had the pleasure of seeing Henry Hall inducted into the Michigan Amateur Sports Hall of Fame.

And all these memories came tumbling through the years when he looked at that old, weather-beaten slide on Nine Mile Road.

It is a monument to a real champion.

Mask of macabre

Few things are more hideous than Dennis Wise's pursuit of self-depreciation in deciding to undergo expensive, painful plastic surgery to look like his idol, the late Elvis Presley.

Wise, one of a million Elvis imitators, decided to go the whole route—to become the closest thing to Elvis in the flesh. He's already had the surgery and and will unravel his bandages on national TV later this month.

The thought triggered a memory of an old episode of Rod Serling's spooky "Twilight Zone."

With a little rewriting it could be a scenario for Wise.

The camera would follow Wise as he is wheeled down a long hospital corridor. The muted strains of "Love Me Tender," done in a Mantovani style, would be the soundtrack. The disturbing sounds of Wise's labored breathing through holes in the bandages would substitute for dialogue.

Inside the operating room, the camera point-of-view (that's movie talk) would be a shot from behind the gauze. As doctors slowly unraveled the wraps, we would see more light coming into the picture.

Finally, the moment of truth. To Wise's horror, everybody in the operating room, and for that matter the rest of the world, would look just like Elvis Presley and Dennis Wise would still look like Dennis Wise.

The camera pans away, and the sepulchral voice of Rod Serling would take over:

"Dennis Wise, the man who wanted to be king, has found a new place to dwell. Down a dark and lonely street to Heartbreak Hotel."

Justice works in mysterious ways

By RICHARD GOLD

Ah, the vagaries of pet ownership.

Yesterday it launched me headfirst and unprepared into the world of criminal justice.

I own, or actually, am owned, by a four-legged blond mutt who shall herein be referred to as Woodrow, his given name; or the Woods, as his closer chums call him.

We live in Ann Arbor, but yesterday I got a summons to appear in 14th District Court in Ypsilanti. The charge—dog at large.

But first, a little background.

A few days before the great blizzard, the hirsute Woods disappeared.

People are given to social climbing; children to tree climbing—the Woods to fence climbing, and so in the manner of Steve McQueen he made his great escape.

I can only assume the lad was overcome by irrepressible primal urges. I say this not from first-hand knowledge, but from circumstantial evidence.

Overnight, the population of dogs roaming the neighborhood tripled, and in the days before the Woods disappearance, he was given to a great deal of whining, heavy panting and incessant mumbling.

I can hardly fault the beast. In all honesty I can only think of some of my human colleagues who will travel great distances pushed by what I assume to be the same implacable drives.

Lord knows, I have discussed this with the beast. At length I have explained that if I have to pay for his release, it means more dry chow and less of the moist, meaty, canned good stuff.

I had always thought the path of reasoning in dogs followed the digestive tract. Not so, it follows another physiological system.

Sometimes, I would even lecture the Woods harshly when my presumed reasoning failed.

The Woods is not given to subtlety. The sulking beast was quick to show his displeasure with my tone of voice, marking the furniture in the inimicable one-leg raised manner of dogs.

MORE TO THE point—the vicissitudes of daily life, and justice in America.

I put an ad in the local paper, frequented the humane society daily and scoured the neighborhood in vain for the Woods.

The lad, I feared, had perished in the blizzard. I started to give up hope.

My visits to the humane society became less frequent, response to the ad spotty.

Three weeks after his disappearing act, on one of my visits to the humane society, I finally found the blond bomber, looking sheepish and morose.

Somewhat the worse for wear, both he and I, I paid the humane society $25 for his accrued room and board, and release.

He had been arrested in Ypsilanti, records showed, some 10 miles away.

I thought the tale ended there.

Yesterday, a week after Woodrow's return, I received the summons. Apparently we had been fingered by the humane society. So much for my sustaining membership fee, the additional $25 I had donated in one of my earlier visits.

Rather than appearing in court and pleading guilty to his honor, I decided to see if I could merely mail the court a check for the beast's indiscretions.

Disposition of guilt by association should be so easy.

The woman at the other end of the phone informed me there was no standard fine for the ordinance violation. The decision would be left in the capable hands of the judge.

Often, the fine is $25, she said, but other variables enter into the decision.

Fear surging through my blood, I asked what sort of variables.

The response was, "Oh, such stuff as recent traffic tickets in Ypsilanti and things like that."

THE CORRELATION escaped me, but justice works in mysterious ways.

If the judge believes me when I tell him I haven't jaywalked, mugged any old ladies, double parked or drunk to excess in his fair town lately, I may escape without too much of a fine.

But this has been no frivolous matter. Affairs of the pocketbook rarely are.

As for the bottom line, the cost of the Woods venal capers, I suspect it will be in excess of $60.

And as I explained to Woodrow, that means no horsemeat and by-products for him, and no steak for me.

Bus safety matters need more attention

Editor:

About two weeks ago, the children who were picked up by school buses on Robinwood and Schoolcraft and Huntington and Schoolcraft were informed by their bus drivers that the stops were being changed to Farrand School. After a few days of having to get up 15 minutes earlier in order for them to walk to the school to catch their buses, I decided to try to find out the reasons for the change.

After many phone calls, I was informed that the changes were made for safety reasons. When I questioned what the safety reasons were, the answers were not forthcoming. Shortly after, I received a call from a member of the safety committee. The explanation given was that three letters had been received which stated these two corners were unsafe because of construction along Schoolcraft and the new access street on the south side of Schoolcraft.

Since I disagreed with this explanation, I was told my only recourse was to submit a letter expressing my feelings. I have submitted a letter in which I request answers to the following questions:

•In light of the fact that the transportation department could see no unsafe situation at the corners in question, why was this change made when only three letters of complaint were received?

•Why was no written notice of the change given? I feel this is far more important than newsletter computer printouts, etc. which are mailed out at regular intervals.

•Why is it like pulling teeth to get any information when you call the school offices? I think the taxpayers who support the system should be able to call and expect honest answers, not a runaround.

I suggested that the safety committee could devote some time to other bus safety matters such as children having to stand. Possibly they could check with the people in the area of a contemplated change to seek their input before making a final decision.

Since I was informed there was very little chance my letter would result in any changes, I do not really anticipate anything being done to rectify the situation, but I do expect answers to my questions and concerns from a paid administrator of the vchool system.

State's forest called vast fuel warehous

Substituting wood for coal, oil and natural gas in electrical generating plants is not the answer to all of Michigan's energy problems—but wood could become a significant energy source, according to forestry expert Lee M. James.

Michigan is particularly vulnerable to energy shortages because it depends on outside sources of energy, points out James, who is chairman of the Michigan State University forestry department. The state is poor in fossil fuels and produces only about four per cent of the energy it uses. We are relatively rich in forestland, however, and James feels these forests could make a significant contribution to meeting the state's energy needs.

"Michigan's forests are growing far more rapidly than they are being harvested," he observes. "This excess of annual timber growth, plus trees thinned from forest plantations, standing dead trees and the debris left over from logging operations, amounts to millions of tons of potential fuelwood."

Trees could also be gorwn on forest plantations specifically for use as fuel, he suggests.

Other nonforest sources of wood for fuel might include industrial wood waste, urban residential demolitions and shade and roadside tree removals. About a third of the unused resdue of sawmills is sawdust that could go directly into burners, James says.

Pound for pound, wood yields fewer BTUs than coal or oil, but it has the advantage of being widely available and renewable. In some parts of Michigan today, wood is already cost-competitive with fossil fuels, and as fossil fuels prices rise, wood may become even more economical.

Using wood for fuel does not have to mean the end of commercial timber production, forest recreation and woodland wildlife, James points out. Removing tree tops, branches and cull portions of central stems usually left in the woods after logging has removed the marketable timber, thinning young trees in even-age stands and removing standing dead trees would actually improve the forest habitat.

"Standing rough, rotten, cull, small and salvageable dead trees are probably the most abundant resource for wood fuel," James says. "The presence of these trees in Michigan forests greatly reduces the potential stocking of commercially desirable trees. Likewise, thinning out young trees in a forest plantation provides the trees that are left room to grow and reduces competition for water and nutrients. Periodic thinnings until a plantation stand reaches maturity could yield tons of fuelwood without reducing the ultimate yield in marketable timber."

It's not relistic to expect wood to substitute entirely for other fuels now being burned to generate electricity. It would take 66 million tons of wood and bark a year—about nine per cent of all the potential wood fuel standing in Michigan forests today—to produce the 69 billion kilowatts generated in Michigan in 1976. To substitute wood for all the other fuels used to produce this energy could devastate our woodlands in a few years.

Thanks 'Y' for service

Editor:

Who says spring isn't coming and life can be beautiful.

We would like to thank the 'Y' for the services provided to us folks who like to feel we are young in heart and spirit but our creaking bones tell us otherwise.

Had a very high stair-well that needed cleaning badly but because of health reasons neither my husband nor I could tackle it. Thanks to the YMCA it is now clean and bright. The man they sent to do the work was one of the nicest, most efficient people we've ever come in contact with.

We can never say enough for the services the 'Y' provides the senior citizens of Plymouth from snow removal to painting. These services help many of us stay in our homes and really make you feel people care. There is such a lack of caring about others in this mixed-up world of ours today.

The folks at the Plymouth 'Y' are a hard-working dedicated group and once again we would like to thank them. May they continue the good work. I'm sure many senior citizens echo my thank you.

Appreciate assistance

Editor:

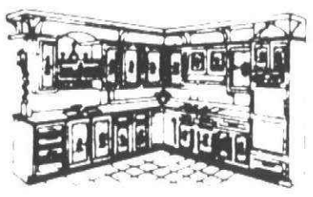

The Canton, Northville, Plymouth YMCA can't begin to thank you enough for the good and thorough coverage you have given us.

Our many activities from 'Y' classes to senior citizen services would not be known without your help.

You have had a large part in our program success and we hope the readers of this newspaper will take a minute to realize how valuable their newspaper is. We, for one, appreciate you.

Daniels Den

By EMORY DANIELS

Shopping is a science.

It is a science requiring competency in mathematics.

Shopping is also an art.

It is an art requiring knowledge of how the creative minds of advertising men work.

THE ART AND SCIENCE components of the shopping experience became evident recently when I pinch-hit for my wife to buy groceries.

I was sent to two stores with a single list because one store had better buys on canned goods and the other had better meat, vegetables, and cheaper eggs.

There were no serious problems at the first store, except that I had forgotten which store had the best price on eggs. I also had forgotten to take along a pen to cross items off my list once purchased.

A lot of time was wasted re-reading the list, deciphering what was left to purchase and trying to remember which items to buy at which store.

The only problem at the first stop was trying to figure out the best buy on the instant chocholote mix. I was warned against buying the mix with the instant marshmallows, but wasn't advised that it came in packaged individual servings as well as in the can.

There happened to be a "sale" on the individual servings, which I observed three aisles later after picking up the mix in the can (without marshmallows). I was in the process of computing the price per ounce when I noticed the sum of the individual servings totalled exactly twice the ounces as the can, or vice versa. With that neat observation in hand, it quickly became apparent that the mix in the can was the most economical buy.

THE REAL FUN started when I arrived at the second supermarket, the one with the superior produce and meat.

One of my pursuits was to find a good buy on a cola, either variety. I had been warned that the one store requires a coupon and limits the amount which can be purchased, while the other store requires neither. But that advise slipped my memory; I was too bogged down trying to remember what price constituted a "good buy."

Walking into the store, I immediately noticed one cola was on sale for $1.09 for eight 16-ounce returnable bottles providing the shopper made a purchase of at least $5. The words "with coupon" were written alongside the price.

So I walked back to the entrance area and got a coupon sheet. The particular coupon read "one coupon per family," which to me meant exactly that. I took it literally that the store didn't want to waste paper by having customers pick up two coupon sheets in order to buy two eight-packs.

I knew my meat and vegetable purchases would total more than $10 so it seemed reasonable to assume I was eligible for two eight-packs—one for each $5-worth of goods purchased. And by using only one coupon, I was helping our country preserve paper and thereby save energy.

What I found out, however, at the check-out register is that the advertising types translate "one coupon per family" to mean one eight-pack per family. Furthermore, the $5 minimum was not exponential. So I ended up paying $1.99 for the second eight-pack, plus the $1.60 in deposit for a total of $2.34 per eight-pack when I was told the normal price was around $2.

Before reaching the check-out line I also had discovered that the place to buy eggs was at the other store, because these eggs were 30 cents a dozen more. (They must have been laid on a holiday).

The money I lost on the cola and egg purchases, cancelled out the pennies saved on canned goods and instant chocolate. By month's end, though, I will come out ahead because I'll collect $1.60 by returning the bottles—if the kids don't smash them before then.

I DON'T OBJECT to shopping at two stores to get economical canned goods and quality meat and produce.

If one supermarket wants to handle quality meat and produce, but jack up prices on canned goods, that's their business.

I really don't object to coupons either, or to limits on sales. But it does seem an injustice to be so sneaky about it. Why throw in the $5 minimum purchase nonsense? Why the "one coupon per family" ambiguity? Why not just say one eight-pack per shopper and put that on the coupon?

Some shoppers may run in and buy only cola, but I suspect the majority will pick up a gallon of milk or something else. Some customers also might "double-up,"—send the wife through the line with one eight-pack with the husband close behind with a second. But that's a lot of trouble which most shoppers would want to avoid.

When it was all over, I didn't really feel cheated—just mentally drained trying to sort out the gimmicks and buy everything on the list at the best price. That task is mentally demanding because to do so is both a science and an art.

Small fry will share some county contracts

An ordinance guaranteeing small and minority businesses in Wayne County up to 25 per cent of country contracts has been unanimously approved by the county board of commissioners.

The plan, adopted last week, reserves 15 per cent of the county's business for small businesses and 10 per cent for minority owned firms, the first of its kind in the nation.

The ordinance defines a small business as one not dominant in its field, including manufacturing, construction, service and professional concerns. Dollar amounts in the interpretation range from a maximum of $15 million in gross receipts for manufacturing ventures to $3 million for some construction businesses.

The term "minority" in the ordinance means persons who are Black, Hispanic, American Indian, Asian, Pacific Islander or Alaskan Narive as defined by federal or state authorities.

The plan is modeled after guidelines in federal public works legislation which requires 10 per cent of public works money to be set aside for minority consideration.

Contracts held aside for small and minority firms will be subsequently let to larger firms if small or minority firms cannot meet bid requirements.

Real estate scare letter denounced

A Detroit civil rights group has blasted the use of a controversial real estate solicitation letter as "illegal. . .and dangerous for any minority family who may happen to be. . .the object of the letter's concern."

The Fair Housing Center is calling on real estate companies and agents to reject using such a letter and is urging individual homeowners to not patronize those who do.

The letter, first publicly exposed in a recent Detroit News article said: "Just a note to let you know that we have new neighbors moving in. A new family has recently purchased a home, causing much real estate activity in our area. If I may assit you in any way, please give me a call."

According to the Detroit News article, the letter was distributed in the Westland-Wayne area by Mark T. Yurich, a Century 21 real estate agent.

A spokesman for the Fair Housing Center board of directors said:

"Only the most insensitive real estate broker or sales representative would fail to understand the implicit racial scare tactics in such a letter. Over 200 years of housing discrimination in this country has well conditioned white Americans, when they get such a letter, to look down the block to se if a black family has moved in."

KATHY HARRINGTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harrington of Blunk Street, Plymouth, was a member of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra during her high school years. The young violinist was the recipient of a Symphony Society scholarship.

Kathy now attends Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo where she is a member of Honors String Quartet and performs with the university and Kalamazoo Symphony orchestras.

On Sunday, Feb. 19, she was one of three music students who gave individual performances in a recital in WMU's Oakland Recital Hall. She was accompanied by pianist Barbara Schmidt, a WMU sophomore from Jackson, when she played Saint-Saens' "Fantaisie." She is a student of Gerald Fischbach, associate professor of music at Western.

SEVEN PLYMOUTH students were initiated to Phi Theta Kappa, a national honorary society which recognizes outstanding academic achievement. The semi-formal candlelight ceremony was Feb. 22 in the Waterman Center on the campus of Schoolcraft College.

Ross Anderson, Eileen Biggs, Ann Hewett, Susan Keith, Margaret Moon, Gary Moszynski and Margaret Stewart became members of the society.

In addition to recognizing new members, the chapter presented an honorary membership to another Plymouth resident, Dr. Ralph W. Atchley, chemistry instructor at the college.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara. Refreshments were prepared and served by the Schoolcraft culinary arts department.

RUTH AND GORDON Sherman were high scorers at last Thursday's party bridge game in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

BETTY AND DON Burkhart of Plymouth were feted by family and friends on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversry.

The party was planned by their four children. Son Lee, home on leave from the U.S. Army, daughters Joyce Abraham of Canton Township, and Denise and Susan co-hosted the celebration.

Betty Jean Heintz of Northville and Donald M. Burkhart were married on St. Valentine's Day 1953 in Angola, Ind. They have two granddaughters, Felisha, 3, and Tiffany, 1½ months.

GEORGE BERNARD Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" opened last weekend in Quirk Auditorium at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti. Curtain time is 8 p.m. for the three performances, Feb. 17-19, this weekend.

Charles Burr, a junior from Plymouth, has the role of Theodotus, Ptolemy's tutor who supports the attempts of Pothinus to oust Cleopatra from power. Burr is majoring in dramatic arts at Eastern. He is the son of Sanford and Ruth Burr, 40552 Ann Arbor Road.

Director P. George Bird designed and constructed five sets, put together 130 costumes and directed an army of Roman soldiers for Shaw's play. He has created lavish Egyptian palaces, a sandy desert and a monstrous sphinx.

General admission is $3 and reservations can be made by calling the box office, 487-1221.

EASTERN'S forensic's team hit the tournament trail again after nearly two months off.

Plymouth juniors Sue DeWalt and Linda Dwyer took part in the dramatic duo competition in the Glass City Tournament in Toledo.

Lisa Lambert, a freshman from Plymouth, paired with a freshman from Milford in the dramatic duo event at Georgetown College, Ky. They were awarded second place honors.

STEVE HAWKINS of Parkview Drive, Plymouth, will participate in a salute to the big band era tomorrow night at Western Michigan University.

The program will be presented by Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity on behalf of MWU's Department of Music.

Guest artist will be Ernie Wilkins, who has arranged, conducted and recorded with almost every big-name performer in the business—Harry James, Tommy Dorsey, Quincy Jones, Buddy Rich, Sarah Vaughan, Big Joe Turner and Cannonball Adderly.

Steve is a 1976 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. He played French horn in the Plymouth Centennial Park symphony band and tuba in the marching band. He switched to trumpet at Western because of his interest in jazz.

'Living' class wins kudos

The "Living with Children" class at Plymouth Educational Park has received special plaudits from a young Plymouth Township mother.

Mrs. LeRoy Nelson's firsthand contact with the class was in the person of her neighbor, 16-year-old Rhonda Hazlitt, who was able to help out Mrs. Nelson in a pinch.

Mrs. Nelson expressed her gratitude in a letter to the Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education.

She explained the situation: "I arrived home from the hospital with our newborn son on the day of the big blizzard. My family and my husband's family were unable to help as we had previously planned."

To add to their problems, her husband became ill. Although their son Mark, 7, was willing, he could not cope with a new baby and the responsibilities of the household.

"I CALLED my neighbor and she came to our rescue along wito her daughter, Rhonda Hazlett."

Rhonda is a student at Plymouth Canton High School and a member of the "Living with Children" class.

"Seeing the confidence with which she cared for our 4-day-old son really helped me relax. A few days later, my husband was feeling much better and so was I. I'm sure Rhonda enjoyed caring for 'the real thing,' but my gratitude to her and what she was able to learn far surpasses her enjoyment, I'm sure."

She said she felt the school board should be aware of the "goodness that has developed from this particular class and to express our thanks for its availability."

Roy Jr. is thriving and the Nelsons have settled into their new routine. "I can't express my relief for Rhonda and the training which helped us at a very bad time," said Mrs. Nelson.

'Enough is enough'

Enough is enough, decided members of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens two years ago.

"We knew something had to be done," stated Alice Saules of Detroit, president of the organization which includes interested citizens and parents of adults and children who are residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Mrs. Saules was referring to the many reports of physical violence against center residents that began coming to members of the association in 1976.

"We would hear things," said Barbara Moore of Redford Township, whose daughter, Karen, lives there. "But people were afraid to talk out there. They fear retaliation. People have been stealing things from the state, even from the kids. Some people, not everyone. But the good people felt threatened about reporting.

"They thought they might go out of there with a knife in their back," she said.

To take on this kind of fight required courage, determination and patience on the part of association members.

And while members of the group are pleased by front-page exposure in the Detroit Free Press, and follow-ups in other newspapers and on television, they know the fight is far from won.

FOR THEM, THE ANNOUNCEMENT of an investigation by Gov. William Milliken also was heartening news. But having a public searchlight flooding the center is only one of the ways they measure their success.

As important as all the attention is, they believe they have made a breakthrough on how cases of abuse are handled by state officials. They have forced state officials to pay attention to an already existing law that requires a representative of the public to be a member of the abuse committe of a state institution.

Sandy McGuire, a teacher of public health nursing at the University of Michigan, is a member of the Plymouth association because she cares. She has no child living at the center.

In a rundown on past actions of the group, she said, "It all started when we tried to follow up a case of alleged abuse at the center.

"Three boys at Binet Hall had been injured seriously," she said. "We decided to meet with Dr. William Womack, the former superintendent.

"We knew the center had an abuse committee, and we decided the situation warranted having an outsider on the committee, preferably a member of our group."

Mrs. Saules explained, "As it was set up, they were investigating these reports of abuse, which meant they were investigating themselves."

"THE ANSWER from Wolmack was "no." Womack was voluntarily assigned to another position yesterday.

Regarding this only as a temporary setback, group members turned to the State Child Protection Act. There they found that state child care agencies must have an independent group investigate cases of child abuse.

An interpretation of the law by Jon Garrett of the Michigan Association of Retarded Citizens in Lansing indicated that abuse cases should be reported to the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"This was not being done by the Plymouth center," said Mrs. McGuir.

Group members then found a local attorney, Larry Gilbert of Legal Aid and Defenders of Detroit, to represent them. The association took the Michigan Department of Social Services to court because it believed it had the obligation under state law to investigate abuse and to take corrective action if abuse if proved.

Earlier, there was a request for investigation of the center under the child protection act. According to Mrs. McGuire, the department investigated and substantiated the charges but never took any action.

The association won the first round last December when the Michigan Court of Appeals told the department it must have rules about discipline and staffing in places like the Plymouth center.

The follow-up will come after the court reviews the testimony about abuses at Plymouth and decides whether the department of social services has complied with the state child protection law.

"Hopefully the court will say the department has to follow up these cases and take punitive action against people found guilty of abuse in an institutional setting," said Mrs. McGuire.

STILL TO BE THRASHED out is whether the Plymouth association will be able to place one of its members on the fact-finding committee that looks into abuse.

Members are dealing with the Department of Recipient Rights on this point. Since November, the department's advisor has been Julie Ellison.

The parent group thinks that having this department be a watchdog for residents of the center involves a conflict of interest.

The recipient rights department and the Plymouth center are under the jurisdiction of the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

Parents' complaints about abuse go to the recipient rights unit, which then investigates them and reports the facts to the superintendent who then makes a decision.

But one improvement made by the action of the Plymouth association is the lesser amount of confusion between the department of social services and the department of mental health.

Mrs. Ellison reported that there is now an agreement between the two groups about the procedure by which allegations can be investigated.

After the cases are checked, both groups must make their findings known to the superintendent. However, the plan has not been implemented yet. Currently, the timetable involved may conflict with the strict timetable set up by civil service for dealing with allegations about an employee and the resolution.

So the confusion may continue.

THE MEMBERS OF the Plymouth

Accusations about center jolt state

The low-slung buildings that have become a familiar sight to those driving past the intersection of Sheldon and Five Mile in Northville Township are now the focus of statewide attention.

Everyone, from Gov. William Milliken to potential volunteers at the Plymouth Center for Human Development, has been shocked at published reports about abuse of center residents.

At this point the center's administration faces:

•An investigation by the governor into alleged abuse by center attendants.

•A new superintendent. William Womack, who had been in charge of the center, was voluntarily re-assigned yesterday. He will join the central office staff of the Michigan Department of Mental Health in Lansing.

•A call for a grand jury probe by Wayne County Commissioners Thomas Presnell (D-Westland) and Edgar Harris (D-Taylor). The commission was expected to consider the action today.

•A suit naming officials of the state Department of Mental Health charging failure to provide a safe human environment at the center.

A HEARING has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday, March 3, in federal court in Detroit on the suit brought by the Michigan Association for Retarded Citizens and the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens and 12 residents of the center. The suit names Donald Smith, mental health department director; Donald Worden, regional director of the department, and William Womack, former director of the Plymouth Center.

Presnell suggested, in calling for grand jury action, that it might be the most effective means of getting information on reported abuse.

"The grand jury power to subpoena witnesses and to require their testimony under oath is the most effective way of dealing with the situation," he added.

IN A STATEMENT Worden issued Sunday, as the first news reports on the center were released, he said the home was taking steps to investigate.

"Every allegation of patient abuse at this institution has been subjected to careful examination by the department's office of recipient rights in fulfilling its responsibilities in such matters.

"Any suggestion of coverup is simply not true."

A special panel, chaired by mental retardation psychologist Jane Kessler, was appointed to "make an in-depth analysis of Plymouth Center operations, with special attention to programming of residents, staff training and employe relationships," Worden said.

"The panel is proceeding with its task and I expect it to be helpful to me in determining any major changes to be made at the Plymouth Center."

Attendants:

'A dirty job'

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

"It's a dirty job," said a spokesman for the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Psychologists and Plymouth center spokesmen agree that being an attendant to severely-retarded children is frustrating and could lead to cases of abuse.

"The day shift gets there at 6 a.m. and they're taking care of residents who can't take care of themselves," said Peter Schweitzer, a spokesman for the Plymouth center.

"They're changing diapers all day—sometimes for adult-aged people. That's not what I would consider a very pleasant job."

In Molloy Hall, one of the halls mentioned in a Detroit Free Press series, he said he knew at least one attendant was the brunt of repeated racial slurs from residents. "I don't know if anyone could go in and face it for eight hours a day," Schweitzer said.

WHILE SOME Plymouth center officials and Michigan Department of Mental Health officials try to downplay the abuse charges, others have said many factors may have contributed to the problem, including:

•The frustrating nature of the job.

•Civil service "requirements" which allow anyone able to pass the civil service examination to be hired as an attendant.

•Inadequate administrative intervention in the early stages.

•A system which condoned, and may have even supported, abuse as "the way things were done."

"BEING AN attendant is damn tough," said Dr. Alan Glaros, professor of psychology at Wayne State University. "It's terribly depressing, very frustrating.

"They may be very, very profoundly retarded. They may be so retarded that they'll choke on food unless they're watched very carefully. It's very hard to function in a situation like that."

Glaros said there is a higher chance of abusive behavior in custodial institutions than in treatment institutions.

"Making sure everybody gets to eat, gets washed, gets dressed and gets to sleep—that's what a custodial institution is all about," he said.

The attendants in Malloy and Binet halls, some of whom alledgedly did the beating, are responsible for these "custodial" functions.

"In 2½ hours, these attendants have to have eight residents awake, washed, dressed, fed and on school buses," Schweitzer said. "And that's on a good day, when everybody is in.

"There's no mother in the U.S. who has to do that. I'd describe it as an impossible task."

Glaros said the frustration could provoke some attendants to beat the children.

TO MINIMIZE the frustration, Glaros suggested that experienced personnel be hired as attendants.

"What you need are people with the training and experience with these types of kids. You might need PhD-level people. You might need a real training program, not a two-week,

Volunteers approve state investigation

By SHERRY KAHAN

On their 50th wedding anniversary Philip and Faye Sills of Farmington took about 50 residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development to dinner at a popular local restaurant.

The Sillses didn't worry about the adults and teenagers misbehaving because, they explained, "we don't have any problems with them."

Mrs. Sills added: "Sometimes someone will get a little obnoxious and try to get away with something. But all I have to do is say, "Listen here, young man, do that again and you won't go out with us.

"The thing is they all know we love them. If disciplined, they need to be disciplined the right way."

Mrs. Sills talked about her 16 years of volunteer service at the Plymouth center in Northville in the wake of disclosures that attendants abused and neglected adults and children there. Mrs. Sills has a heart full of advice on how to treat and get along with the mentally impaired persons who make their home there. She contrasted her approach with those of some Plymouth center staff members.

LESS CALM were other suburban residents who were interviewed about the institution maintained by the Michigan Department of Health.

A man whose daughter lives in the Plymouth center worries constantly about her safety. A foster grandparent believes the center only tolerates the older volunteers who work with center residents.

"If you give them (residents) kindness, you can get a lot out of them," Mrs. Sills declared. The whole trouble is that some of the help don't give them enough love and attention. In some buildings, they (staff) sit around and play cards all the time."

"A child can hit his head on a wall and break it open, and an employee will say he fell. They cover things up, very much so. They won't tell on each other."

Neither Mrs. Sills nor her husband has spent any time in Binet Hall, the building where many of the alleged abuses occured.

"Those children are bad there, I've heard—very difficult," she commented. "They will do almost anything. What do you do with someone so strong you can't do anything with them?"

Nevertheless she reiterated her main principle.

"If they had love and attention there wouldn't be so many of these beatings," she said. "It really hurts me. We have never taken anyone out from Binet, but we have taken them often from Molloy, a residence also mentioned in the reports. They have all been wonderful.

"I only had trouble once when someone threatened that he was going to break my glasses. If had gotten hold of me, he might have killed me. But today that same child goes out with us every time we take patients out. I try to give him extra attention. He would do anything for me."

MRS. SILLS IS AWARE that some volunteers have been asked not to return. Was it because they criticized care of the residents?

"I don't know," she replied. "But they would never do that to us. We do so much for them. If they ever told us to stop going, we would go in on Sunday when the adminstration is not there."

The Sills visit the controversial center every Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. They always plan a little fun for Sunday in the form of food they bring in, or by taking about 30 residents out for hamburgers.

Mrs. Sills made some complaints to former center superintendent Dr. William Womack and had the problems solved, she said. In one case a sidewalk was repaired after she told him it was too bumpy for wheelchairs.

Womack yesterday voluntarily was

Clubs in Action

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Channel 56's annual auction is getting organized. Area chairwoman this year is Patti Stoner of Westland. Captain of the "Go-getters" for the Plymouth-Canton area is Loretta Yeager of Canton.

The Go-getters who will be collecting donations from local merchants and residents are Cynthia Betley, Laurie Pocock, Marlana Krolicki and Shirley Henning.

The auction will be April 7-15. Anyone wishing to contribute to the auction is asked to call Loretta at 453-3647.

Your time, as well as your donations would be greatly appreciated. If you'd like to work the week of the auction you may also call Loretta.

There is lots of work to do behind the scenes. It takes more than just a few people answering phones to make the auction a success.

If you enjoy programs on Channel 56, here's your chance to help them keep their high standard of TV viewing.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mary Jo and Dennis Nott of Carlisle Court on the birth of their son, Timothy Peter.

The new blue bundle arrived at St. Joseph's Hospital Feb. 8, five weeks early. His arrival was a real surprise to everyone. No one was more starled then his dad, who was attending a meeting at the time of his birth. Mary Jo finally spoke to Dennis the morning after the grand event to inform him of his ...w son.

Timothy weighed in at 5 pounds, 6 ounces and was able to come home from the hospital at the scheduled time.

Four-year-old brother Dan and 2-year-old sister Sarah were happy to welcome the new addition to their family.

Grandparents from Milwaukee, Wisc. are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dwyer and Mr. and Mrs. William Nott.

A READER suggested I mention registering children for kindergarten.

Notices on registration usually are sent home with students. Those people who do not have a child yet in school are missing the information.

Most schools now are registering children who will begin kindergarten in September. You will be informed later when your school has its kindergarten round-up.

You can call the school your child will attend to get more information.

THE PLYMOUTH-Canton Hockey Association has a fundraiser to help with the cost of ice time. First and second prizes are motorbikes. Third prize is $50 in merchandise at Plymouth Trophy.

Probe welcomed by volunteers

re-assigned to the department's central office in Lansing.

She thinks more people should go out there and establish contact with one of the many residents who are regarded as nonexistent by their families.

"Let them (volunteers) in Binet and I'm sure things would be better. With volunteers around, I'm sure beating would be less likely to take place.

"KIDS NEED TO HAVE people come around. But some people don't care. They think they are animals. I know a lot of people who say they should be dead. But that's not God's will. It someone was willing to offer them a little companionship it would be wonderful for them."

FORMER LIVONIAN Mary Jane Rakocy, now of Novi, enters the Plymouth Home for Human Development every weekend to bring her 34-year-old daughter Judy home.

"I have found neglect, total neglect," she reported. "She is filthy dirty each time I bring her home, and what she really likes is to be clean. Her clothing never fits. I dress her nice, but I never see the same clothes on her. The attendants say they get lost.

"I don't think she's been tortured, but she has been abused. Right now her leg is in a cast because of multiple fractures in her ankle. She had surgery twice for it. Last weekend she had two black eyes and a badly bruised nose. They said she fell because of the cast. I took their word for it.

"A couple of years ago she was in Molloy and was attacked, and had to have eye surgery. She has had bruises so many times. She has come home covered with claw marks.

"Midnight shift is bad. Everything that happens happens then.'

What distresses Mrs. Rakocy especially is that her daughter can't remember what happened, and because she is deaf can communicate little.

"We at a terrific disadvantage," she said.

In her many visits to the Plymouth facility, she said, she has never seen an attendant doing any work.

"They sit in their office polishing their nails, watching TV," she observed. "They should have someone in the day room watching what is going on. I've 8ever seen an attendant in the day room."

MRS ROKOCY OFTEN complains, but "I try to be diplomatic so they don't take it out on her."

On one occasion, she said, the attendants wanted to deny her daughter food as a means of punishment, but she refused to give her permission.

Judy has brain damage and occasionally has seizures. Because of her communication problems she get frustrated and angry.

An attendant told Mrs. Rokocy that if Judy is mad and goes toward her "I just push her and over she goes."

Mrs. Rokocy concluded: "Am I ever pleased about this probe."

AN AREA WOMAN who works at the center under the federally-funded Foster Grandparents program also is pleased to see the published reports.

"They don't have much use for grandmothers there," said the woman who asked not to be identified. "They think we're spying on them, but we're not. They're very careful that we don't see or hear anything."

Foster Grandparents are retired persons with minimal incomes who earn $1.60 an hour for 20 hours' work at institutions like the Plymouth Center.

The woman interviewed has worked at the center eight years and been closely associated with one young girl during most of that time.

"At first I sensed a few things going on, but not like in the last three years," she said.

'It's a dirty job'

'here's-how-we-do-it-here' orientation.

"We're just going to have to cop out some dough," Glaros said.

PRESENTLY, attendants are required only to be 18 years of age and pass a civil service exam. There are no educational requirements.

However, Joseph McCall, a spokesman for the state Department of Mental Health, said this is not the root of the problem.

"Professional training has very little to do with being cruel," he said.

"To base it upon education is not a very fair way to go. To say that people with less education are more prone to beating or abusing children—there's just nothing to back that up.

"What we have to do is weed those bad ones and get them out of contact with the residents."

The Free Press, however, reported that Dr. William Womack, the center's superintendent, said his hands were tied by civil service regulations "which were more employe-oriented than resident-oriented."

Glaros supported that contention: "They need the flexibility to get rid of people who are really bad with kids."

"I bet they're right; they can't get rid of the abusers. A verbal complaint by a child isn't enough. A bruise isn't enough," Glaros said.

'Enough is enough'

association have definite ideas about what changes they want as a result of the current disclosures about the center. Here are some suggestions made by members.

•The residents should be protected from abuse.

•Something should be done about the Civil Service System under which an attendant is hired, and then, according to association member Barbara Moore, "locked in where no one can touch him, it seems."

"When there are infractions of the rules, someone is suspended a few days and then goes back," she added.

•A system is needed by which abuse is reported, investigated and action taken. If an employee is found guilty, the person should be dismissed or removed from direct care of patients.

•The state must be more selective in hiring the staff, and have different hiring practices. According to Mrs. McGuire attendants are now hired on the basis of test scores on civil service examinations. They need not be high school graduates.

She feels the test doesn't reveal whether the individual is the kind who can look after the mentally retarded.

"It takes someone with patience, warmth, understanding and who is willing to relate to patients," she said. "The majority of attendants are hard-working, good people. But a number of them aren't, and it reflects on the rest."

•Attendants' assignments should be rotated so they don't get a chance to build up resentment against particular residents.

•Attendants should have psychological examinations before being hired.

•More staff should be hired.

•The administration needs a change.

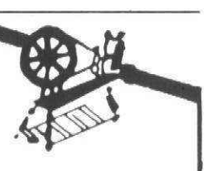

ACCORDING TO Mary Brimhall, vice-president of the Plymouth Association of Retired Citizens, "I haven't read anything in the press that I hadn't already heard about."

She added: "What we want is safety for the residents out there"

"We are well aware of the many dedicated employees at the center," said Mrs. Moore. "This investigation does not apply to them. They should try to weed out the people with problems who can't work with kids properly.

"It is very hard for the residents. A great majority of parents don't see their kids. Only a handful come to visit. So we parents are advocates for all of these children. Someone has got to protect them."

Plymouth Center visitors denounce abuse

By SHERRY KAHAN

On their 50th wedding anniversary Philip and Faye Sills of Farmington took about 50 residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development to dinner at a popular local restaurant.

The Sillses didn't worry about the adults and teenagers misbehaving because, they explained, "we don't have any problems with them."

Mrs. Sills added: "Sometimes someone will get a little obnoxious and try to get away with something. But all I have to do is say, "Listen here, young man, do that again and you won't go out with us.

"The thing is they all know we love them. If disciplined, they need to be disciplined the right way."

Mrs. Sills talked about her 16 years of volunteer service at the Plymouth center in Northville in the wake of disclosures that attendants abused and neglected adults and children there. Mrs. Sills has a heart full of advice on how to treat and get along with the mentally impaired persons who make their home there. She contrasted her approach with those of some Plymouth center staff members.

LESS CALM were other suburban residents who were interviewed about the institution maintained by the Michigan Department of Health.

A man whose daughter lives in the Plymouth center worries constantly about her safety. A foster grandparent believes the center only tolerates the older volunteers who work with center residents.

"If you give them (residents) kindness, you can get a lot out of them," Mrs. Sills declared. The whole trouble is that some of the help don't give them enough love and attention. In some buildings, they (staff) sit around and play cards all the time."

"A child can hit his head on a wall and break it open, and an employee will say he fell. They cover things up, very much so. They won't tell on each other."

Neither Mrs. Sills nor her husband has spent any time in Binet Hall, the building where many of the alleged abuses occured.

"Those children are bad there, I've heard—very difficult," she commented. "They will do almost anything. What do you do with someone so strong you can't do anything with them?"

Nevertheless she reiterated her main principle.

"If they had love and attention there wouldn't be so many of these beatings," she said. "It really hurts me. We have never taken anyone out from Binet, but we have taken them often from Molloy, a residence also mentioned in the reports. They have all been wonderful.

"I only had trouble once when someone threatened that he was going to break my glasses. If had gotten hold of me, he might have killed me. But today that same child goes out with us every time we take patients out. I try to give him extra attention. He would do anything for me."

MRS. SILLS IS AWARE that some volunteers have been asked not to return. Was it because they criticized care of the residents?

"I don't know," she replied. "But they would never do that to us. We do so much for them. If they ever told us to stop going, we would go in on Sunday when the adminstration is not there."

The Sills visit the controversial center every Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. They always plan a little fun for Sunday in the form of food they bring in, or by taking about 30 residents out for hamburgers.

Mrs. Sills made some complaints to former center superintendent Dr. William Womack and had the problems solved, she said. In one case a sidewalk was repaired after she told him it was too bumpy for wheelchairs.

Womack yesterday voluntarily was re-assigned to the department's central office in Lansing.

as nonexistent by their families.

"Let them (volunteers) in Binet and I'm sure things would be better. With volunteers around, I'm sure beating would be less likely to take place.

"KIDS NEED TO HAVE people come around. But some people don't care. They think they are animals. I know a lot of people who say they should be dead. But that's not God's will. It someone was willing to offer them a little companionship it would be wonderful for them."

FORMER LIVONIAN Mary Jane Rakocy, now of Novi, enters the Plymouth Home for Human Development every weekend to bring her 34-year-old daughter Judy home.

"I have found neglect, total neglect," she reported. "She is filthy dirty each time I bring her home, and what she really likes is to be clean. Her clothing never fits. I dress her nice, but I never see the same clothes on her. The attendants say they get lost.

"I don't think she's been tortured, but she has been abused. Right now her leg is in a cast because of multiple fractures in her ankle. She had surgery twice for it. Last weekend she had two black eyes and a badly bruised nose. They said she fell because of the cast. I took their word for it.

"A couple of years ago she was in Molloy and was attacked, and had to have eye surgery. She has had bruises so many times. She has come home covered with claw marks.

"Midnight shift is bad. Everything that happens happens then.'

What distresses Mrs. Rakocy especially is that her daughter can't remember what happened, and because she is deaf can communicate little.

"We at a terrific disadvantage," she said.

In her many visits to the Plymouth facility, she said, she has never seen an attendant doing any work.

"They sit in their office polishing their nails, watching TV," she observed. "They should have someone in the day room watching what is going on. I've never seen an attendant in the day room."

MRS ROKOCY OFTEN complains, but "I try to be diplomatic so they don't take it out on her."

On one occasion, she said, the attendants wanted to deny her daughter food as a means of punishment, but she refused to give her permission.

Judy has brain damage and occasionally has seizures. Because of her communication problems she get frustrated and angry.

An attendant told Mrs. Rokocy that if Judy is mad and goes toward her "I just push her and over she goes."

Mrs. Rokocy concluded: "Am I ever pleased about this probe."

AN AREA WOMAN who works at the center under the federally-funded Foster Grandparents program also is pleased to see the published reports.

"They don't have much use for grandmothers there," said the woman who asked not to be identified. "They think we're spying on them, but we're not. They're very careful that we don't see or hear anything."

Foster Grandparents are retired persons with minimal incomes who earn $1.60 an hour for 20 hours' work at institutions like the Plymouth Center.

The woman interviewed has worked at the center eight years and been closely associated with one young girl during most of that time.

"At first I sensed a few things going on, but not like in the last three years," she said. "I know in the last two years my little girl had two front teeth knocked out and her lip cut.

"The attendants said they didn't see anything. The regular answer is that the child fell out of bed. Or they say the residents abuse each other, but I know most of them are loners. They don't fight anybody."

Philip and Fay Sills were photographed last summer with one of their friends among the residents of the Plymouth Center for Human Development. They are cutting the the cake for their 50th anniversary.

CHURCH BULLETIN

RIVERSIDE PARK CHURCH OF GOD, 11771 Newburgh, Livonia, will host a choral music workshop conducted by the Rev. Dean Schield Friday and Saturday.

All area church musicians are invited to participate in the discussions with the choral director from Los Angeles. He will highlight the workshop by sharing new compositions in choral music and suggest creative ways to enhance the worship experience and improve performances of directors, singers and musicians.

Sessions are planned for 7:30-9:30 p.m. Friday and 9-11 a.m. and 1-3:30 p.m. Saturday with lunch in between. A $5 fee covers registration and lunch.

LIVONIA BAPTIST CHURCH, 32940 Schoolcraft, will present John W. Merritt, on furlough from mission service in Heidleberg, Germany, at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Merritt serves as executive secretary of the European Baptist Convention, a federation of 40 English-language Baptist churches in Europe. He and his wife also have served in Milan, Italy.

JOHN MERRITT
Mission visitor

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Farmington Road and Six Mile, Livonia, will close its missionary conference Sunday with talks by the Rev. Philip E. Armstrong at its 7 p.m. vesper hour.

The Rev. Armstrong is general director of Far Eastern Gospel Crusade, now headquartered in Farmington.

He was instrumental in organization of the crusade in 1945 after experiencing a vision during military service in the Philippines. The organization's purpose is to preach the gospel to the people of the Far East, especially in Japan and the Philippines. The reverend helps in this work by making annual visits to the oriental countries served by 260 FEGC missionaries.

CLARENCEVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, Middlebelt south of Eight Mile, Livonia, will present Dr. Dennis Kinlaw, president of Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky., in a weekend series of lenten services Friday through Sunday.

DEAN SCHIELD
Choral workshop director

Dr. Kinlaw will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and during worship hours at 9 and 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Holder of degrees from Asbury College, Asbury Theological Seminary and Brandeis University, he also has studied at Princeton Theological Seminary and the New College of the University of Edinburgh in Scotland.

He has served as a visiting professor at Seoul Theological College in Korea and was a faculty member, teaching Old Testament languages and literature, before becoming Asbury president 10 years ago.

PHILIP ARMSTRONG
Gospel crusade speaker

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF PLYMOUTH, North Territorial west of Sheldon, will present the Choralaires of Grand Rapids School of the Bible and Music in a special concert at its 11 a.m. service Sunday.

The 33-member group is directed by David Traeger and sings hymns, gospel songs and spirituals in its concert programs.

ROSEDALE GARDENS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 9601 Hubbard, Livonia, will present its players group in the musical comedy "Little Mary Sunshine" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12. They may be reserved by calling the church, 422-0494.

COVENANT COMMUNITY CHURCH, 25800 Student, Redford Township, will celebrate its 40th anniversary this weekend with a banquet, family night and special church services.

An anniversary banquet will be held 7 p.m., Friday, at the Botsford Inn, Farmington Hills. The banquet will include talks by present and past associate pastors of the church and musical numbers by church members and guests.

Saturday evening will feature a "Family Night" at the Livonia Family Y. From 8 p.m. to midnight, church members will be able to play raquetball, tennis and volleyball. The pool and game rooms will also be open. "A picture journey through the past history of Covenant Community Church" will also be shown at the Y.

Special events are scheduled in each of Sunday's services. The Rev. John L. Drummond, pastor emeritus, will speak during the 11 a.m. service and special music is planned. A "picture parade" will run 5-6 p.m. in the sanctuary and the 6 p.m. service will feature testimonials about the Covenant church.

Other special events are scheduled for the rest of the anniversary year.

World Prayer Day scheduled

Church Women United of Livonia and Wayne-Westland will join in observances of the organization's annual World Day of Prayer on March 3.

The Livonia service will be held at 12:30 p.m. in Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 30650 Six Mile, and the Wayne-Westland group will gather for worship at 1 p.m. in St. Richard Catholic Church, 35637 Cherry Hill, Westland.

Community Spirit in Modern Living is the theme that these groups, along with other Church Women United gatherings around the year, will use for the special prayer day services this year.

In the Westland church, the program will be in the charge of the women from First United Methodist Church of Wayne. Dorothy Jacobs will be the speaker.

Refreshments will be served following both services, and both host churches will offer child care facilities.

Yoga at Unity

Eve Cizek will conduct an 11-session series titled Hatha Yoga for Beauty and Health at Unity of Livonia Church, 28660 Five Mile, on Wednesdays and Thursdays beginning March 1 and 2.

The times are noon Wednesdays and 6:45 p.m. Thursdays. Those participating will pay $2 per lesson or $15 for the entire series.

Guild's Albee drama thrives

PIETRO DiGIRGIO and LOUISE MARTIN

Review

By BARBARA MICHALS
Special writer

Who's afraid of Edward Albee? Not the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford, which has tackled the absurdist dramatist's little-known "Seascape" and turned it into an evening of highly effective theater.

Albee, perhaps best known for his provocative "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" always offers an intellectual challenge to both actors and audience.

"Seascape," his most recent work, had only a short run on Broadway a few years ago, possibly because the play needs the greater intimacy of a small theater. Given the guild's small, comfortable playhouse and its wealth of talent, "Seascape" thrives.

AS IN "VIRGINIA Woolf," Albee here focuses on crises in the lives of two couples. But in "Seascape," improbable as it may sound, one couple is a pair of human-size talking lizards. Sarah and Leslie, the lizards, are fully-developed, viable characters, evry bit as interesting as Nancy and Charlie, their human counterparts.

The drama takes place on an isolated rock-strewn seashore amidst towering sand dunes, the whole suggesting the sterility of modern life. Act I opens with the human couple sunning themselves on the rocks like lizards while Albee dissects the good and not-so-good years of their marriage.

Nancy is restless and wants to do something exciting with her life before it is over; Charlie would be content to live the rest of his life in semi-retirement.

"We've earned a rest," he insists repeatedly.

"No, we shouldn't give up before we have to," Nancy retorts.

When the lizards appear, Charlie is terrified, but Nancy finds them beautiful and is eager to talk with them.

Act II provides some whimsical comedy as the two species approach each other, first apprehensively, then exploringly. Eventually each couple becomes defensive of its respective lifestyles.

Nancy and Charlie teach the lizards about handshakes, eggless breeding, mammary glands and neatly-labeled emotions. Though the lizards have never heard of "love" and cannot fathom keeping one's offspring around for 18 or 20 years, they are in some ways more monogamous, sensitive, and caring than the humans.

ULTIMATELY "SEASCAPE" is optimistic about the future of the human race. There'll be some changes made, but mankind will endure in some form or other.

Just as complex life forms previously evolved from simpler aquatic creatures, Sarah and Leslie have been driven from their comfortable underwater home by the evolutionary force.

The difference is that this time around the new forms of life are willing to learn from the mistakes of their predecessors.

All four actors deliver strong performances in the guild production. Louise Martin and Pietro DiGiorgio are thoroughly convincing as Nancy and Charlie, while Cathie Schroeder and Ron Samuel are equally believable as Sarah and Leslie.

Ms. Martin looks and sounds sweet and gentle, adding an interesting dimension to her nagging of Charlie. DiGiorgio, the bored husband in the first act, effectively runs through a broad spectrum of emotions in the second act.

The costumes and makeup for the lizards are exceptionally well done and greatly enhance the actors' credibility.

Ms. Schroeder does an outstanding job with body English, her darting eyes and quick head movements capturing both Sarah's sense of wonderment and her basic reptilian responses.

Samuel's portrayal emphasizes Leslie's masculinity as he bellows in anger at Charlie or humorously prides himself on the length of his tail.

Director Mary Ann Brownlee Vosgerchian keeps the play moving at a crisp pace so that even the verbose first act never sags.

Additional performances of "Seascape" are scheduled for Feb. 24-26 and March 3-4. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday.

At Ford Museum

Historical concert swings Sunday...

The Swing music that excited a generation of young people during the '30s and '40s will be revived at Henry Ford Museum Theater during the Sunday offering of the Historical Concert Series.

Jim Dapogny and the Easy Street Swing Quintet will re-create the style and sound of Benny Goodman's famous and successful small groups as well as other Swing musicians of the era. The performance will be at 3:30 p.m.

There is no charge beyond museum admission of $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Examples of Swing, a popular form fo jazz, will be performed during the first set. During the second set, the groups will trace the evolution of Goodman's group,gradually increasing the number of musicians and instruments with each successive tune. A high point is the addition of the vibraphone, which was a relatively new instrument resembling the xylophone. Other instruments will be the clarinet, piano, bass and drums.

...and 'Where's Charley?' plays on

Henry Ford Museum's musical comedy, "Where's Charley?" shatters the quaint campus morality of the 1890s with the shenanigans of an Oxford undergraduate who disguises himself as his chaperone and goes on a double date.

The play, adapted from the classic farce "Charley's Aunt" by Brandon Thomas, continues at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday with other performances schedules for March 3, 4 and 11 at Henry Ford Museum Theater in Dearborn. Guests may attend the performance only, or make reservations for a special dinner-theater program.

The play recreates the happy college life of the 1890s. Charley and Jack, two Oxford students, set up an evening with two young ladies with Carley's aunt acting as chaperone. When his aunt fails to show up, Charley is forced to impersonate her and leads a tuneful, laugh-filled romp around the university campus.

A Broadway hit during the late 1940s, the show features songs including "Once in Love with Amy" and "My Darling, My Darling."

Individual tickets are available. The dinner-theater combination includes a candlelight dinner, a stroll through museum galleries, reserved theater seats and all taxes and gratuities. Cocktails are optional.

Advance reservations are required for the dinner-theater program. Further information can be obtained by calling 271-1620, ext. 417.

Stage groups call auditions

Auditions will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday for "My Three Angels," a comedy by Sam and Bella Spewack.

The play will be presented in April and May by the Plymouth Theatre Guild in conjunction with the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford and Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre.

Auditions will be at the Livonia-Redford Theatre, 15138 Beech Daly, a block south of Five Mile. For more information, call Vi Roberts at 455-2133.

Multi-talented

James Darren—dramatic actor, singer and nightclub performer in both music and comedy—will appear again in Db's Club at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn starting Monday. Showtimes are at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 and 11:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday through March 4. First a singer, Darren then became a Hollywood star appearing in three "Giget" films and "The Gene Kruppa Story." Next he packed his bags for the nightclub circuit, playing the Sahara and Sands Hotel in Las Vegas among others.

Adventure series goes Swiss

The majestic Swiss Alps and tours of Lucerne and Geneva are among the highlights of the World Adventure Series color movie "Mark Twain's Switzerland" at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The movie follows the same route through Switzerland as American author Mark Twain did in 1878. There's a complete tour of Lucerne including its Chapel Bridge and famous "Lion of Lucerne" monument dedicated to the Swiss guards. Mark Twain's villa is still on the shore of Lake Lucerne.

The movie is narrated in person by California film producer Dick Reddy. For ticket information and a free illustrated brochure describing all coming travel shows, phone the World Adventure Series at 832-7676 any day 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

California life

Don Murray as the husband and Elizabeth Allen as the wife appear in a scene from Neil Simon's Broadway comedy hit "California Suite," now at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. They portray a couple who have arrived from England to California where she is a nominee for the Academy Awards. "California Suite" centers around different sets of characters who occupy a suite at the Beverly Hills Hotel. The comedy runs through March 25.

McCoy Tyner in concert Sunday

Jazz piano great McCoy Tyner continues the "Composers Concepts 1978" jazz concert series at Detroit's historic Orchestra Hall/The Paradise Theatre in a special concert appearance Sunday, with shows at 4 and 8 p.m.

Tyner, one of the most highly acclaimed of modern musicians since his trailblazing stay with the John Coltrane Quartet (1960-65), will present his current working sextet featuring George Adams and Joe Ford (reeds), McCoy Tyner (piano), Charles Fambrough (bass), Eric Gravatt (drums) and a percussionist.

The McCoy Tyner Sextet will be joined by Detroit artist/composers Lyman Woodard and Ron English, whose compositions will be featured with orchestral backing from the specially assembled Paradise Theatre Orchestra, a big band comprised of top resident jazz artists and composers including:

Ron English (guitar), Lyman Woodard (Hammond organ, piano, keyboards), Marcus Belgrave, Ron Jackson (trumpets), Ed Gooch (trombone), Norma Bell, Larry Nozero, Kenny Garrett, Marvin "Doc" Holladay (saxophones, reeds), Keith Vreeland (piano), Don Mayberry (bass), Jerome Spearman, Lorenzo Brown and Nenge (percussion).

INCLUDED IN THE concert program will be three works by Woodard—"Deja Vu," "Cheeba" and a new work composed for the Composers Concepts series, yet untitled—and four compositions by English including "Demi," "Yet & Still," "Bees" and "The Lullaby."

Both Woodard and English feature their original compositions in club and concert dates around Detroit on a regular basis, but Sunday will be the first orchestral presentation of their music.

English also serves as president of the Allied Artists Association, a Detroit arts development and presentation organization which has produced the Composers Concepts 1978 series with the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Belgrave and Holladay are also members of the board of directors of the Allied Artists Association, Inc., along with English, Dan Aldridge, Malvin McCray, Ernie Rodgers and Louis Parenti.

McCoy Tyner, a Milestone Records recording artist and winner of countless critics' and readers' poll awards for almost 20 years, is currently represented on record by "Inner Voice," presently one of the top-selling albums in Billboard's jazz record charts.

Other major works by Tyner include the Milestone LPs "Supertrios," "Focal Point," "Fly with the Wind," "Trident," "Sama Layuca," "Echoes of a Friend," and "Atlantis."

'Ragtime Years' in Ann Arbor

Max Morath, today's "King of Ragtime," will re-enact on the University of Michigan Lydia Mendelsshon stage his one-man show "Ragtime Years" on Sunday.

There will be a matinee performance at 2 and an evening performance at 8 p.m., as part of the Professional Theatre Program's Littly Lydia Series, in Ann Arbor.

A native of Colorado, Max Morath was a radio and television actor, writer, announcer and general entertainer before he devoted his career to ragtime. While he was playing the period music for old-fashioned melodramas on radio, he became fascinated by it and began researching every facet that he could find on the subject.

In 1960, Morath took a suggestion from a producer for National Education Television to turn his knowledge of the time into a series; he called it, "The Ragtime Era." This show dealt with the development of music of the period, and critics across the country gave wholehearted approval when the series was aired.

Tickets are available at the PTP Ticket Office in the Michigan League, Monday through Friday: 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2-5 p.m. Tickets are also available through all Hudson's Ticket Outlets. For additiona information, call (313) 764-0450.

UM-D plays again

"The Importance of Being Earnest," Oscar Wilde's comedy set in Victorian England, will be staged again this weekend at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The play will be presented in the Recreation and Organizations Center on the campus, located on Evergreen south of Ford Road. Performances are at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday with a 2 p.m. matinee set for Sunday.

Tickets are $2.50 in advance and $3 at the door. Group rates are available. For more information, call 271-2300, ext. 402.

Dinner theater: Here's two reviews

'Jacques Brel' at Vittorio's

Emotional singing and creme de menthe

By CLARENCE E. PERSINGER

Vittorio's dinner theatre in Livonia is serving a fine double bill of entertainment and food.

The banquet table is filled with a sumptuous variety of pallet-pleasers; bean salads, fried chicken, lasagne, Jellos and fresh fruits, are just a sampling of the available foods.

The efficient busboys and waitresses make sure a coffee cup is never empty. There's even creme de menthe parfait served after the stage performance.

The show itself is one of the best you'll ever see at dinner theatre. Phil Marcus Esser, Mary Ann Paquette, Barbara Bredius and Charlie Latimer are again captivating audiences with "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris." This simple musical revue of 24 of the Belgian composer-poet's songs is a powerful evening of entertainment.

Brel can say more in a verse of a song than most playwrights can say in pages of dialogue. The variety of topic's his songs cover is equally as amazing. From Spanish bullfights to death, each conveys a wealth of humanity. Brel can tell a complete dramatic story in a few minutes of words and music. Laughter, pain, sorrow and a carefree way of life are brought forth with biting clarity.

I can well appreciate the raves this show received at Mercy College in 1973. Each person works with precision to bring out the drama in each song. From the powerful mini-history lesson of "Marathon" to the emotionally-moving "If We Only Have Love," these four performers provide a gamut of emotions. They sing in duets, trios and solos. Each is as much an actor or actress as singer and each song is memorable.

The multi-level stage is filled with boisterous song. The foursome has some costume changes and they even bring out the hats and canes for one number. Simplicity is used most effectively. A raised eyebrow or mournful sad-eyed look of desperation transmits feelings with biting impact.

Aiding in this enjoyable evening of music are Susan Woodman at the paino, percussionist Peter Woodman and Andy Drelles playing flute, sax, oboe and clarinet. Except for a couple times when they drowned out the solo singer, performers and musicians were in perfect harmony.

Esser not only performs but has directed this production. He uses his limited stage well. Performers start by singing as they make their way through the patrons seated at the tables.

ESSER ALSO takes his turn at solo spots. Once he warms up vocally and loses a warble in his voice, he is very good. His "Port of Amsterdam" is spit out with vehement passion. With "Old Folks," he takes on a tender compassionate attitude.

Mary Ann Paquette is a tiny bundle of raw energy. Her "Carousel" spot comes alive with passion. She exhibits a tender lyrical quality in "I Loved" and her comedic flair is equally as enjoyable. Her large eyes dance with glee or cloud over with sadness or fright.

Barbara Bredius has the most powerful voice of the four. She can stand back and belt out a song in the Ethel Merman give-it-your-all power. "Marieke" is done with explosive furor. "No Love Not You Alone" has a sad quality to it.

Finally, there is Charlie Latimer, the swing man of the group. He works most on the trios and duets. He can be straight man or funny man for someone else's comic song. Each is done with verve.

A fine buffet and first-rate entertainment put Vittorio's at the top of the dinner theatre list. "Jacques Brel" continues on Thursday through Sunday evenings.

'Two Gentlemen' at Botsford

Pleasant but forgettable production

By BARBARA MICHALS

In the '60s it would have been called a "happening."

Today it's dubbed a "musical Shakespearean experience," a free-wheeling soft rock adaptation of "Two Gentlemen of Verona," being staged as dinner theater at the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills.

The show is a wild melange of pleasant tunes and zany antics barely clinging to the thinnest of plotlines. Though most of the cast puts a lot of energy into the show, the results are very uneven. A few individuals shine at isolated moments; a few lines bring hearty laughter. The rest is light and agreeable but hardly memorable.

"Two Gentlemen," one of Shakespeare's lesser plays, adapted well to the musical stage in the New York production that came to Detroit a few years back. A lot of the sparkle of that version has been lost in transforming the show into the dinner theater format.

Curiously, the brief printed program at Botsford lists no writing credits, no musical credits, and no producer or director. It suggests no one wants to take responsibility for the show.

"Two Gentlemen" is about two long-time friends, Proteus and Valentine, who take leave of each other to pursue different goals. Proteus cares only to win the love of Julia, while his friend seeks to win fame and glory in Milan. No sooner has Proteus won Julia's love than he is ordered to Milan on business for his father.,

IN MILAN both Proteus and Valentine find themselves in love with Sylvia, who in turn loves another young man but has been betrothed to still another by her overbearing father. Sylvia is as fickle as Proteus, finding it convenient to love whomever is nearest at hand.

Mark Vondrak and Denny Murphy are competent as Proteus and Valentine respectively. Murphy's singing voice is the stronger of the two. He draws laughs singing, "I wouldn't know a spiritual relationship if I tripped over it," and leading a leather-jacketed rock trio singing "Love's Revenge."

Kathy Kay is a spirited Julia but would do better to forget the Italian accent she slips in and out of. Yvonne Sloan is a fetching Sylvia but her voice sometimes lacks sufficient animation.

As Sylvia's betrothed, Marc Shreeman excells with comic antics and a falsetto voice. Even when performing as part of the chorus, Shreeman clearly stands out, mugging and using body English to maximum advantage.

Dave McDonald is effective as the Duke, Sylvia's domineering father who delights in drafting her would-be suitors into the army.

His solo "Bring All the Boys Back" is an amusing parody of election promises.

Sporting an incongruous cowboy hat, Del Howison parodies country western songs with "I Bent Down to Kiss You and Your Pearls Got in My Mouth." He also draws laughs in a drunk scene with Rich DeManicor.

During the course of the show the audience is assaulted with soap bubbles, Frisbees and paper hearts. For the finale, the cast dances with members of the audience to a disco-type number. The actors also go from table to table to chat with the audience both before and after the performance. While this is a pleasant idea, it is too drawn out before the show starts.

The buffet-style dinner preceding the performance is ample but very unexciting. The menu features relishes, fruit cup, salad, rolls, beef strogonoff, chicken, green beans, and miniature fruit tarts. An open bar is available.

Canton whips WLW, 77-66

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Plymouth Canton finally got its chance to play Walled Lake Western Tuesday night and it couldn't have come any sooner.

The Chiefs clinched sole possession of second place and still kept its slim hopes alive for a Western Six League title with an easy 77-66 triumph over the hapless Warriors Tuesday night.

The victory snapped a three-game Canton losing streak, raising the Chiefs' overall record to 10-8. Canton's two games with Western were both snowed-out earlier this season and are being played this week.

The Chiefs meet the Warriors again this Friday at the Canton gymnasium for the final game of the regular season. If Canton wins the finale and league-leading Waterford Mott is upset by Farmington Harrison, the Chiefs will share the crown with the Corsairs.

Mott played Harrison last night (Wednesday) in a make-up game. If Mott won this game, it would take the outright title.

The Chiefs played a rather loose, easy-going style of basketball in whipping the Warriors by the 11-point margin.

The Chiefs were in control from the start of the contest, dominating the offensive boards and running numerous fast breaks for easy lay ups. Canton spurted to a 14-6 first quarter lead and extended the margin to 34-22 at halftime.

The Warriors pulled within four points early in the second quarter but never got closer as the game wore on.

The Chiefs continued to dominate play in the third quarter, opening a 54-40 lead after three periods. Canton led by as many as 18 points late in the third period and early in the fourth period but the Warriors stayed within 10-12 points most of the way.

Warrior sharp-shooter Jim Seefeld single-handedly kept Western within

Rocks remain alive in race

Plymouth Salem defeated Dearborn 66-49 Tuesday night—but news of the Rocks 17th cage victory seemed all but secondary.

For in the Redford Union gymnasium the same evening, the grand hopes of the Livonia Bentley Bulldogs buckled under the effects of the flu bug as RU upset the Livonia squad 75-59.

Bentley wrapped up at least a share of the Suburban Eight League title last Friday with a victory at Belleville. If the Bulldogs had beaten Redford Union, they would have dethroned Salem as the outright conference champion.

But it just wasn't to be.

And now, Salem has a chance to continue its reign in the league if it beats Belleville at home this Friday on the final night of the regular season. The Rocks have won four straight Sub-8 titles and win number 18 would make it an unprecedented five straight seasons Salem has finished on top. Bentley finished its league schedule with an 11-2 record while Salem stands at 10-2.

"This is what we've been hoping for ever since we had that one down week and lost two games," said an elated Salem coach Fred Thomann. "All we wanted was an opportunity to play for the tie and now we've got it."

Salem, 17-2 overall, battled Dearborn in a rescheduled non-league contest since the Sub-8 was restricted to a 13-game schedule because of postponements.

Salem held a 26-21 lead at halftime and 40-31 margin after three quarters before putting the game out of reach with a strong 26-point fourth quarter.

Salem received balanced scoring, led by reserve Mike Christie, who came off the bench and scored 15 points. Tom Ellinghausen added 13, John Broderick 10 and Rich Hewlett eight.

CEP cagers meet once again

Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton basketball teams will once again face each other in the semi-finals of the Southfield District Feb. 28.

Just as last year, the Rocks and the Chiefs both drew opening round byes and will face each other in the same bracket.

The draw took place Monday morning at Southfield High School.

In the other bracket, the host team from Southfield plays Northville in an opening round contest on Feb. 27. The winner of that game battles Detroit Chadsey in the other semi-final contest on March 1.

The winners of both semi-final match-ups compete for the district championship on March 3.

All the games will be played at Southfield High School, at the corner of 10 Mile and Lasher Roads. Game time for all the district contests is 7 p.m.

Admission is $1.50; tickets can be otained at the door or at the respective high schools on the day of the games.

The winner of the Southfield District advances to regional competition in the state tournament at Livonia Franklin.

Chief spikers crunch Mott

It was the largest crowd to watch the Plymouth Canton girls volleyball team perform.

It was Parent's Night for the Chiefs and the atmosphere of the Canton gymnasium sensed another hometown victory.

A pep band even showed up to add musical entertainment to the excited crowd.

The Chiefs didn't let anyone down either, taking a ridiculously easy 15-3, 15-7 Western Six League triumph over Waterford Mott Monday night.

The victory kept the Chiefs tied for first place in the conference with Livonia Churchill. Both squads sport identical 7-1 records. Canton's overall mark this season is 11-2.

Sparked by the sensational spiking of Kelly Heaton, the Chiefs roared to a comfrontable 13-1 lead in the first game enroute to the easy victory. Judy Frieman served the first three points while senior Kathy Sochacki converted on the next 10.

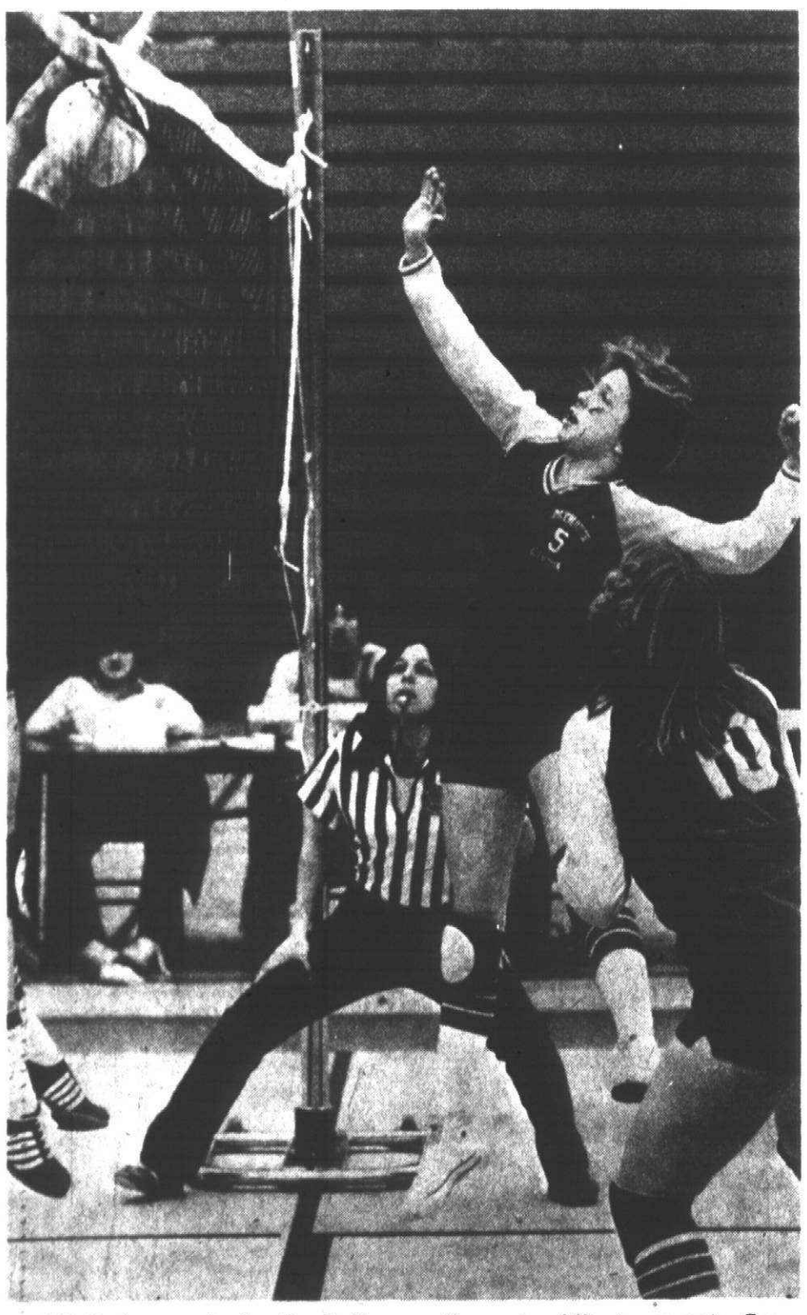

Five spikes by Heaton, two from Laurie Beck and one from Sue Rekuc aided the rout.

In the second game, Jill Pederson broke open a close 5-4 contest with eight straight service points to put the Chiefs ahead to stay. Tina Decker and Rekuc closed out the scoring with successful serves. Heaton, once again, was a dominate force with her spiking.

Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein was pleased with her team's solid performance against the weaker Mott squad. She wished her team would have played more aggressively at the net, however.

"We have to work on more aggressive net play," Burnstein said. "We missed a lot of opportunity to put a point away on the first or second hits.

"But it's hard to work on net play against a team whico doesn't play a good net game."

Canton swimmers sink Hawks

By ANDY MELIN

Plymouth Canton boys' swim team took on Western Six League foe Farmington Harrison at Pontiac Central Tuesday night, and came out a 95-76 winner.

The victory raised the Chiefs' record to 10-1 overall and 6-1 in Western-6 play.

"We really didn't swim well," said Canton coach Bill Faunce. "We had quite a few kids out sick."

Senior tri-captain Steve Wood was the only double-winner for the Chiefs. He took top honors in both the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly in times of :23.8 and :57.8, respectively.

The Canton 200-yard medley relay team of Jeff Seipple, Paul Petersen, Paul Ardnowski and Doug-Hetu placed second in 1:54.2. The foursome of Ted Hennig, Rick Flynn, Mike Gaab and Pat Gilligan finished third.

Bob Cline, junior tri-captain, took second place in both the 200-yard freestyle and the 500-yard freestyle events. He swam the 200-free in 1:55.3 and the 500-free in 5:24.7.

Petersen was victorious in the 200-yard individual medley in 2:07.0. He also finished second in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:00.3.

Steve Gray placed third in the diving competition compiling 146.1 points. John Gray followed in fourth place.

Junior tri-captain Dave Tanner won the 100-yard freestyle in :.3.2. Gaab and Gilligan placed second and fourth, respectively.

John Hawkins finished second in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:15.2. Flynn and Jeff Warchock followed in third and fourth, respectively.

Keith Greenleaf took third place in the 200-yard individual medley.

Hetu placed second in the 50-yard freestyle.

Seipple finished third in the 100-yard backstroke behind Petersen.

The 400-yard freestyle relay foursome of Hetu, Cline, Wood and Dave Smith took first in 3:37.9. The team of Gilligan, Greenleaf, Troy Haarala and Rod Toor placed second.

The Chiefs will complete regular season action tonight at Livonia Churchill beginning at 7 p.m.

Dasher, Ross place in state

Two of 20 participating area matmen grappled to second-place finishes, another to third and Westland John Glenn, a perennial power, had its best team showing ever last weekend during the state wrestling finals.

Bill Meyer, 145 pounds from Glenn, and Mitch Becker, 155 pounds from Livonia Franklin, each compiled 4-1 records while finishing second in their weight classes in the Class A finals at Kalamazoo.

Bob Dasher a Plymouth Salem heavyweight and an all-state football selection last fall, placed third in his division.

All five of Glenn's state qualifiers earned points to help the Rockets to their highest team finish at the finals—ninth place with 50½ points.

Detroit Catholic Central nipped Temperance Bedford by one point for the Class A championship.

Glenn, Salem and Redford Thurston all qualified five grapplers for the finals.

Jeff Doyle, a 165-pounder from Glenn, earned fifth-place points in his weight class by carving a 4-2 record. Tim O'Neill, 105 pounds, finished with a 2-3 slate and Mickey Bauer, 138, and Paul Demers, 98, each won one of three matches.

"I was really surprised, overall, we did as well as we did," said Glenn coach Bob Lusk. "You always hope but never expect. The competition is so keen. Some wrestle much better, some give a little worse."

Spitz quits

Mike Spitz has resigned as the Plymouth-Canton boys track and cross country coach to accept a teaching position at Redford Bishop Borgess High School. Spitz was in the program for the past two years.

Spitz's assistant coach, Dan Geopp, has also resigned and is teaching at Dearborn Divine Child High School.

Plymouth-Canton community Athletic Director John Sandmann is currently looking for Spitz's replacement for this spring season. Anyone interested in applying for the job may contact Sandmann at 453-3100.

Franklin coach Dan Kinczkowski raved about Becker's effort in the 155-pound final. Nemir Nadhir from Detroit Catholic Central, who decisioned Becker 9-7 for the title, did not lose a single match all season long.

"He (Nadhir)had to run, scramble, stall and do everything he could do against Mitch," said Kinczkowski. "He (Becker) just pulled something up from within himself. You could see he was going to do well."

Franklin's other qualifier, Mike Broome, triumphed in one of three matches in the heavyweight division.

Salem's 15th-place finish in the Class A finals was also its best placing ever. Coach Ron Krueger was pleased about his charges' showing generally and that of Dasher in particular.

"He wrestled like he's never wrestled before. He beat some real good people," said Krueger.

reasonable striking range in the last two quarters scoring 24 second-half points enroute to a game-high 32-point total. But Seefeld got little support from his teammate as Canton breezed to victory.

All but one of the Chiefs reached the scoring column. Brent Eckles led the Chiefs with 15 points. Senior captain Randy Rienas followed with 13 and Russ Mandle added 11. Butch King, who was still battling illness throughout the game, played sparingly in recording 10 points—far below the sharp-shooter's 20-point plus scoring average this season.

Mandle dominated the boards, recording 20 rebounds. It marked the second staraight game the junior forward has grabbed 20 caroms in a game.

Canton coach Casey Cavell was pleased with his team's performance following last Friday's discouraging two-point loss to Mott.

"We played a little better offense and much better defense," Cavell said. "Seefeld hurt us but he hurt us late when it didn't matter. He only scored seven points in the first half.

"We moved a lot better tonight on our fast break. We got balanced scoring and it was a good all-around performance."

Chief JV bombs Mott

The Plymouth Canton junior varsity basketball team remained in first place in the Western Six League standings with an overwhelming 77-48 victory over Waterford Mott Friday night. The Chiefs are still one game ahead of Northville in the laegue race.

The Chiefs, 14-3, opened up a 38-24 halftime lead after battling Mott to a 16-16 first-quarter tie. Canton continued pounding away at the Corsairs to lead 64-38 after three quarters.

Scott Adler played his best game of the season leading the Chiefs in scoring with 23 points. Dave Visser followed with 14 points.

The Canton freshman basketball team was also successful last week, setting a school record for team scoring in a single game with a 94-41 victory over Pierce.

All the Chiefs scored in the contest.

"It was a good offensive performance," quipped Canton coach Dave VanWagoner as his understatement. The ninth graders are 8-5 for the season.

Rock JV trip T-Birds

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

Jim Anderson and Rob Neu combined for 55 points to lead the Plymouth Salem junior varsity basketball team to a 72-57 victory over Dearborn Edsel Ford last Friday night.

Edsel Ford took a 34-31 halftime lead before the Rocks bounced back for a one-point advantage at the end of three quarters.

Salem exploded with 27 points in the fourth quarter to clinch the victory. Howard Monk, Bob Jarvis and Brian Kelliher figured in the final -quarter surge.

Anderson's 23 points and Neu's 22 point-total added to each player's 13-point average.

Monk and Jarvis each scored 11 while Jarvis added six.

Salem will defeat Canton cagers by 6

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

Talk about instant replays.

It might be a new season with another state basketball tournament in our midst, but as far as the followers of the Southfield District are concerned, the pairing are an exact carbon copy of last year—with the excpetion of different days and times.

The basketball game which everyone in the Plymouth-Canton community has been spectulating about since mid-season will again become a reality next Tuesday night.

Plymouth Salem will face Plymouth Canton in the district semifinals—once again. Last year these same two squads also drew opening round byes and met in the semifinals with the Rocks squeezing out a three-point victory.

In the other bracket, Southfield battles Northville in an opening round game on Monday with the winner playing Detroit Chadsey in the other semifinal on Wednesday.

The winners of the two semifinal games will battle for the district championship on Friday.

IN TERMS of similarities from a year ago, the two Plymouth squads are not the only teams facing the same situation.

Southfield, the district champion last season over Salem, once again finds itself with a "free ticket" to the district finals. Last season, the Blue Jays were forced to battle the strains of overconfidence against two Milford teams before meeting Salem for the championship.

Once again, as luck of the draw would have it, the Blue Jays are in the easiest bracket and should whip a mediocre Northville squad and a below-average Detroit Chadsey team (which has won only one game this year) enroute to facing one of the two Plymouth crews for the championship.

BUT WHICH Plymouth team will face Southfield in the finale?

Well, last season the good Doctor was fortunate (or lucky) to pick Salem over Canton by the three-point spread.

This year's contest should produce equally close results as one team's season abruptly ends and the other continues against the powerful 15-2 Blue Jays.

Last season, I felt the Salem-Canton contest was like a David and Goliath confrontation which saw the established Rocks battle the upstart young Chiefs.

This year, I don't feel this same kind of atmosphere will exist. While beating Salem would definitely be a boost to the pride of the Canton program, I think the Chiefs have earned the respect from their Centennial Park counterparts as an established team in the area. After all, Canton did beat Bentley, the Suburban Eight League champion, twice during the regular season.

You can't talk about records in this game (Canton 9-8 and Salem 16-2 before last Tuesday night) because the emotional element created by the close proximity of the two schools should rate the game even.

The only bit of "looking ahead" could occur on the Salem squad where the Rocks have talked about avenging last year's Southfield loss.

LOOKING AT this cross-creek rival from a physical standpoint, there are many keys to winning the game.

First, can Salem's defense stop the potent outside shooting attack of junior guard Butch King? He is by far the most exciting shooter to come out of this area since Jim Ellinghausen. If he gets hot it might be over for the Rocks.

Or, can the Chiefs handle the obvious size and strength advantage the Rocks have on the front line? Salem's overall rebounding ability could spell the end of the Chiefs' hopes.

Canton must rely on a good shooting game from King and company or they will lose.

Salem must get solid all-around performances from Tom Ellinghausen and Rich Hewlett to survive.

What will be the difference in the game?

Consistency.

And that's where I have to give Salem the edge.

WHILE BOTH teams are physically and emotionally capable of winning, the Rocks have been playing with much more consistency over the past month.

Midway through the season, I was leaning toward favoring the Chiefs. They were on top of the Western Six League standings and had won seven of nine games during one streak.

But now the Chiefs have booted away the league title to Waterford Mott, having lost their last three games (excluding last Tuesday). Canton shows too much inconsistency to rate them as a favorite.

Salem, on the other hand, is steadily peaking—and just at the right time.

Except for a tough week against Belleville and Bentley last month—a week which produced two losses and a chance at the outright Suburban Eight League title—the Rocks have played winning basketball.

And in the past three weeks, they are playing with the intensity of a champion.

The game should be close all the way but Salem will start to pull away in the final two minutes to win by a six-point margin.

I think Salem will advance to the district championshiagainst Southfield—but here's where all the similarity ends from last year.

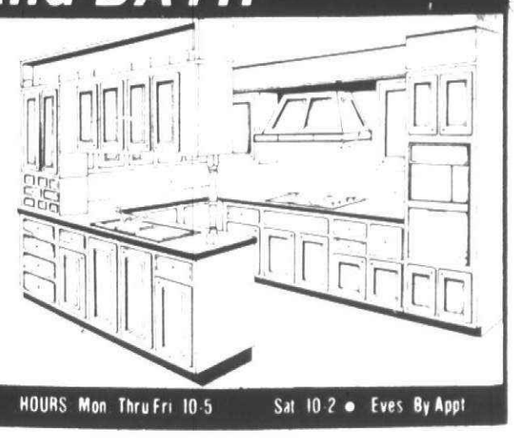

If the Rocks can overcome Canton, they will be ready for revenge against Southfield.

Salem coach Fred Thomann hasn't won a district after losing to Southfield last season.

This year, Thomann will get rid of that bad taste—once and for all.

Pee Wee champs

The Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association Pee Wee A Travel Team, sponsored by K-T Enterprises, Inc., completed regular season play as the Red Conference champions in the Adray Community Hockey League with a sparkling record of 16-6-2. Members of this squad include (top row, from left) Dan Carlson, Mike Ventola and Rod Wells. Middle Row from left: manager Chuck Norton, head coach Bill Ventola, Erich Hartnett, Rodney Williams, Joey Carlson, Robbie Simsick and assistant coach Larry Wells. Bottom row from left: Chuck Norton, Steve Erps, Tom Skrobecki, John Longridge, John Figurski, Dan St. German and Chuck Papenfus.

In The Pocket.

By W.W. EDGAR

The Bowling Proprietors of Michigan, with more than 300 establishments in the state, have embarked on a six-point program to help solve the energy crisis.

In a memos sent to each member, Cass Sicilia, executive secretary of the group, has asked that the following steps be taken:

Eliminate outdoor lighting.

Cut down on concourse lighting.

Where possible, cut down on lighting over the lanes and pit areas.

Dial down on heating, especially when leagues are in progress.

Urge bowlers to form car pools.

Turn lights off in rooms which are not in use, such as play rooms, storage areas and waiting rooms.

Sicilia also urged the members to cooperate fully with any requests made by the governor or the president.

The Proprietors are the first statewide group to take such action.

IT DIDN'T TAKE the Detroit bowlers long to make their presence felt in the ABC tournament that opened last Friday in St. Louis.

Bowling on the second shift of the event, Leonard Pustelnik and John Mrzyglod teamed for a 1,228 to take the lead in the regular doubles. Pustelnik rolled a 626 series and Mrzyglod added a 602.

JIM WRUBLEWSKI and Bob Wilcox, of Westland, led the western suburban delegation in the state tournament in Ann Arbor over the weekend when they posted a 1,269 to take third place in the doubles.

BOB ANDERSON went on a scoring spree in the men's senior house league at Woodland Lanes. He put together games of 225, 246 and 235 for a 706; one of the few barrier-breaking counts of the season in the house. Mike Smart was the only one close to him. He strung counts of 220, 213 and 241 for 674.

One of the real features of the week at Woodland was provided by Gordie Staff, a 75-year-old, bowling in the senior citizens league. He opened with a 200, followed with 151 and closed with 199 for a 550.

Another unusual performances was that of Marlene Hanert, a 142 average bowler in the Early Birds League. She missed in each of her first three frames, then struck out with nine in a row for 232.

ALL SCORING records for the Michigan Majors Bowling Association were shattered last Sunday at Sunnybrook Lanes when Rocky Graziani averaged 231 and won nine of his 12 matches to beat Fred McClain by 120 pins.

Aside from the high scoring finals, it required a count of 1,332 for six games to qualify for the match play portion of the tournament.

BOB JAWOR moved into the winner's circle again in the Little Caesar's classic at Westland Bowl. He got there by linking games of 215, 217 and 238 for 670. In the parade behind him came Al Rizzo with 652, and Lee Fisk with games of 236 and 256 for high single honors.

On the women's side, Margy Brothers was out in front with 570 and was followed by Marilyn Luick with 562, Mary Mohacsi with 561 and Judy Zych with 550.

Gymnastics show coming

Girls gymnastics fans from all over the Observerland area are encouraged to attend a gymnastics show sponsored by the Plymouth Canton High School gymnastics team and Livonia YWCA gymnasts Saturday at Canton High School.

The show will include individual performances and a talk by Chief coach Barb Winn about the area's newest high school team sport.

The show starts at 6:30 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Canton High School is on Canter Center Road, south of Joy Road.

Canton soccer registration

Registration has been set for the new Canton Soccer Club, an affiliate of the newly-formed Great Lakes Soccer League.

All Plymouth-Canton area children, boys and girls ages 5-19, may register Saturday in the Plymouth Canton High School cafeteria between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Fee for the spring competition is $12 for the first one family member, $20 for two, and $25 for three or more.

Competition will be for children 8-19 with a separate instructional league set for 5-7-year-olds.

The new league will include teams from the Livonia Youth Soccer Club, Ann Arbor, Garden City, and Redford.

Any persons interested in volunteer coaching should call Dave Monk at 455-4225.

Jr. matmen meet

The second-annual Plymouth-Canton Middle School Wrestling Tournament will be held March 18 at the new Plymouth Canton High School athletic facility.

Wrestlers from West, East, Central and Pioneer Middle Schools will compete. Team trophies and individual medals and ribbons will be awarded to the top squad and top three matmen in each weight class.

Each school will select two wrestlers from physical education classes for each of the 15 weight classes ranging from 66 pounds to heavyweight (over 167 pounds).

Seventh graders will only compete against fellow seventh graders, while the eighth graders battle for separate team awards.

Weigh-in for the young grapplers will be between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. and competition will start immediately afterward.

There is no admission charge.

The tournament will be directed by Dan Riggs, East Middle School physical education instructor and assistant varsity wrestling coach at Plymouth Canton High School.

We have also reduced the rates on new car loans with extended terms. Details on these loans are available at all our offices, or ask your dealer.

Sale ends Mar. 31

Cindy Kolke...marketing manager...head of a department of nine salesmen...college graduate (the hard way, through 9 years of night school)... a very decisive young lady who knows how to watch for the right opportunity and take advantage of it.

So when Cindy decided to buy a new car, she started by shopping carefully. Not just for the car...but also for the money to buy it. That was the beginning of another smart move . . . for Cindy and us. Because, just about the time Cindy was starting her shopping, we were starting our New Car Money Sale.

We're Cindy's bank. Manufacturers Bank. And (like the other banks of Manufacturers National Corporation listed below) we just made a substantial reduction in the interest rates on our auto loans. For example, with the required 20% down payment the interest on a 36 month loan has been reduced from 11.96% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE to 9.76% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE. For Cindy, this meant a savings of over $100. An opportunity that was too good to pass up.

So she borrowed her new car money from us. And that's the whole idea. We figure if we make life better for young people like Cindy now...they'll make life better for us later on. Maybe our New Car Money Sale can do the same thing for you. Check the chart on the left to see how much you can save. Then ask us, or your dealer for the money to buy your new car. But hurry. Sale ends March 31st.

MANUFACTURERS CAN HELP YOU MAKE IT.

Horace—
It's time you learned the facts of life!

Oh, we're sure you learned about the birds and bees long ago, but Horace, have you heard about "736"? That's a Want Ad classification in your home-town newspaper. It works this way Horace:

Remember when you almost went crazy trying to find a solid oak hat stand? How you embarassed your wife in the antique store because they didn't have one and tried to interest you in a chamber pot instead and you told that sweet little old lady what she could do with it? Remember?

Well, if you had used the "Wanted to Buy" classification that we have just for this kind of situation, one of our thousands of readers would have called you and your troubles would have been over.

Now, that little bird on top of your head (what's he doing there, anyway?) just told us that you're in the market for a 1938 Chevrolet hood ornament. So here are the facts of life, Horace; "Wanted to Buy" ads get results—that's a fact. 736—that's a figure. Use them and get results—that's a suggestion.

Looking for something unusual or run-of-the-mill?
Try a "Wanted to Buy" ad.

Making Your

Observer & Eccentric

Classified Ad Work Is As Easy As...

1 Include The Price...

Advertising price in an ad promises greater response. Research shows that 48% of the people will not respond to an ad unless the price is advertised. That's almost half of your prospective buyers eliminated. If your price is negotiable say so in your ad.

2 Don't Use Abbreviations...

Another way to kill results or turn off prospective buyers is to use abbreviations. WSW, PS, CBS, PB, AC, AT, WW may be clear to you but maybe not to your buyers, and most will not take the time to figure them out. One survey showed that 42% of readers didn't know what WSW tire meant.

3 Give Enough Information...

People today want all the information they can get before they buy. People want to know all the benefits of what they purchase. Not listing all you can in your ad will cause it to run longer with fewer results. Use brand names for extra pulling power.

4 Stay Near Your Phone...

If you're home all the time, including just a phone number in your ad is enough. If you work or can't be home, specify what hours you can be reached. Some people will never call back if they can't reach you the first time. The easiest way is to be there when your ad is running.
