Hicks sidesteps racing charges at local hearing

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Holding back horses to affect the outcome of a race is common practice among many jockeys at Detroit Race Course and Hazel Park Race Track, according to exercise rider Debbie Hicks.

Charges, but no names, were detailed by Ms. Hicks, 23, at a closed hearing before the State Racing Commission Monday in Plymouth.

In an earlier radio interview, Ms. Hicks, who works at Hazel Park, asserted that jockeys use battery-powered electric shocks and buzzers to stimulate horses. She also said that she knows of instances when drugs were used to sedate or stimulate horses.

"We said before we were not going to name names," said Ms. Hicks' attorney, Jerald Aaron, "and that's not being done.

"There are specific instances she is aware of. Things she has observed, or learned of, like holding horses, that sort of thing. She's being as specific as possible without giving names. So maybe they (state racing officials) will have a better idea of what to look for."

Deputy Racing Commissioner James Higginbottom presided at the closed-door hearing. Commissioner Fedele Fauri was in Miami Beach for the convention of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners.

Also at the hearing were two racing investigators, Frankie Henderson and Gerald Waterloo; Kenn Christopher, state racing analyst; George Elworth, assistant attorney general; and Ms. Hicks and her attorney.

Photographers were allowed inside the hearing room briefly, but reporters were barred.

"We're going over it point-by-point," Higginbottom told the press. "We have not placed any restrictions on her statements . . .It's safe to say it'll be a continuing thing."

Higginbottom said Ms. Hicks' testimony did not detail "any allegation of fixed races" but rather centered on "procedural things," such as improper "practices of horsemen, racing practices."

Higginbottom said investigators found that Debbie is being cooperative. Everyone seems willing to continue the investigation."

In a prepared statement issued Tuesday, commission officials emphasized that Ms. Hicks was not specific in her allegations.

"Ms. Hicks professed a willingness to continue to cooperate with the Office of the Racing Commissioner in its investigation but would not 'name names' and was not specific as to dates, races and horses," said Christopher.

"Although Ms. Hicks failed to give specific evidence of wrongdoing, as to individuals or particular races, the racing commissioner's office is proceeding to examine its security practices and the security practices of the race tracks."

Higginbottom did not say whether Ms. Hicks would be called to testify again.

Mobile home ordinance sought to protect tenants

A local ordinance protecting the on-site sale of mobile homes by owners is being sought by one Canton trustee.

Proposed by Trustee Robert Myers, president of Michigan Mobile Home Owners Association, the ordinance would allow a tenant who owns a mobile home that has been kept in good condition to sell his trailer to anyone he desires at a price of his own choosing "if the purchaser and the mobile home meet the conditions of the written park rules."

Myers said that Canton's local ordinance would be superceded soon by a state law which gives tenants the same protection. But he said the local ordinance would protect mobile home owners in the interim period.

Myers said the urgency of the local ordinance was prompted by reports from persons in Royal Holiday Mobile Home Park who have been informed by park owner Sheldon Futernick that there may be a minimum sale price established for tenants who sell trailers on their old site.

Futernick told the Observer in January that he was considering making $10,000 or $8,000 the lowest price tenants could sell their mobile homes on the old site. Futernick also sells new and used mobile homes.

Cop negotiations snap over criteria for testing

Months of negotiations about the procedure for hiring 10 full-time Canton patrol officers broke off Tuesday night in a dispute over a series of tests the township wants officers to take.

The tests—on police procedure, physical condition, and agility—were adopted unanimously by the township board, even though the measures were rejected earlier by negotiators for the Canton Police Officers Association (CPOA).

CPOA President John Longridge said that members would not apply for the 10 openings as long as the new testing rule exists and did not rule out the possibility of a lawsuit.

Bert Burgoyne, the township's attorney, urged trustees to adopt the new tests Tuesday despite the objections of the CPOA, saying any extension of negotiations would be detrimental to the township.

"What's next?" Burgoyne asked. "Go to the CPOA and say 'What else do you want?' I think we worked out a fair agreement. We made major concessions. There's an army of people out there who are police officers who could be more qualified. But we're saying, no, we'll just pick from the CPOA rolls. That's a major concession we've made."

CPOA ATTORNEY James Garber said Tuesday night that members had already taken written tests, medical examinations and agility tests at the police academy before they joined the department as part-time officers.

"Any further testing of this type would be redundant and time-consuming," Garber said.

"They have taken 30 tests already from CJI (Criminal Justice Institute), MLEOTC (Michigan Law Enforcement Training Council), and various other places. All of which is available if township officials want to use these scores to rank applicants."

When asked if an agility test or medical exam taken by an officer in 1976 would still be valid, Garber replied that Canton Township presently sees fit to send those officers out to patrol the streets without demanding another medical examination, "so why the change?'

Fourteen officers received state certification as a patrol officer in a November 1976 class at the Criminal Justice Insitute in Detroit. Another nine officers working in Canton right now received police certification diplomas from the CJI March 3 at Madonna College. Many of the 23 certified officers on the Canton force planned to apply for full-time jobs once a hiring criteria was established.

A meeting of the CPOA membership will be called sometime this week to discuss a plan of action, Longridge said.

Former Canton Police Commander Carl Silvers has already notified the township board that he is suing the township for eliminating the position he held as commander of the reserve officers.

Silvers withdrew his application for one of four sergeant jobs early this year. The township is almost ready to select the four highest testing applicants the sergeant jobs. The tests include the three exams disputed by the CPOA.

No officer presently working part-time on the Canton force is in the running for the sergeant jobs because of a five-year supervisory experience requirement. Testing of sergeant applicants is being handled by the Michigan Municipal League (MML).

At one point in negotiations, CPOA attorney Garber indicated that the membership would agree to take a written test administered by the Wayne County Civil Service Commission for sheriff's deputy candidates.

Through Bert Burgoyne, the township's legal counsel, Canton officials agreed to use the Wayne County Civil Service Commission test. But, Burgoyne says, the CPOA membership later told Garber that they would accept no written test.

Concessions agreed to by the CPOA before negotiations broke off include a provision which would require psycho-

County will run super sewer here

Plymouth and Canton townships have abandoned the fight and agreed to join the county-run Huron Valley Wastewater Control System—better known as "super sewer."

Both boards of trustees voted Tuesday night to sign a contract with the Wayne County Board of Public Works which commits them to planning, engineering, and land aquisition costs.

Plymouth Township's share of the initial cost is estimated at $118,000, while Canton is slated to come up with $177,000.

The question of whether to join the massive sewer project has been, and continues to be, a thorny one. Even in signing the pact, both municipalities had a number of reservations and unanswered questions.

Super sewer, under the direction of the county board of public works, is a regional plan for wastewater treatment. County engineers say it will provide an alternative disposal system for 18 communities in western Wayne County that are currently part of the Rouge Valley Intercept System run by the City of Detroit.

HOWEVER, THE suburban communities are not convinced of the county's argument that they are running out of capacity in the Rouge facility. And they are concerned about not having a voice in setting the rates for using the proposed super sewer.

Last spring, Canton Township Supervisor Harold Stein led a political rebellion against county control of the sewer and tried to band the 18 western Wayne communities together to form their own sewer authority.

That move faltered because many of the municipalites feared—without the bonding power of the county—they would not be able to afford the high cost of building and maintaining the sewer.

Also, the board of public works did some political reshuffling to appease the angered communities.

The first concession the county made was to appoint a western Wayne County Commissioner, Royce Smith, to the top administrative post in the Huron Valley system.

Next the board agreed to appoint a review committee comprised of repre-

Bus safety inspections are serious business and Calvin Heard (right) and Buck Mineau treat them as such. While many neighboring school districts came out looking bad in a recent state police check of school buses, none of the buses in the Plymouth-Canton district was written up for safety violations. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Buses OK here, police test shows

Calvin Heard runs a tight ship.

Or more precisely a tight fleet of buses.

Heard is the garage manager for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. It's his responsibility to make sure 100 school buses are ready, willing and able to take children to and from school.

And he is one of the best in the state at his job.

In a recent inspection by the Michigan State Police, none of the buses in Plymouth-Canton's fleet had any defects.

By comparison, of buses belonging to 35 school districts which have been inspected so far, the State Police found nearly 40 per cent to have defects.

Some of the communities had half their fleets written up.

Even more remarkable, for Heard and the others who are charged with bus maintenance, the zero-defect report is nothing new: This is the fifth consecutive year that the district has come through with flying colors.

"THE STATE Police has the authority to walk in here at anytime and inspect buses," commented Heard. "our motto is to stay ready to keep from getting ready."

The three-man police inspection team which is responsible for checking buses in western metropolitan Detroit uses a standard check-list and spends an average of 15 minutes going over each bus.

Everything from burned-out light bulbs to major mechanical problems are noted. If a bus has a severe failing, it is ordered off the road until the problem is taken care of.

Heard attributes the district's good results to a preventive maintenance program and support from the bus drivers and Robert Houghton, director of transportation.

"We put every bus up on the hoist every 1,000 miles," Heard said. "And we inspect it just like the State Police do."

In addition, the drivers are required to fill out pre-trip forms each time they take a bus out of the garage. Heard said this is another way to cut down on service calls.

Heard also employs co-op students to take of the non-mechanical maintenance tasks, such as washing the buses and checking tire pressure.

But even with the success Heard is having, he has a few complaints and some ideas on how the whole process of bus maintenance and inspection could be better.

THE MAJOR DIFFICULTY the district faces as far as keeping buses on

Tax election committee organizes, picks leaders

The Citizens Election Committee (CEC) plans to meet again tonight after holding an organizational meeting to elect its leaders.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education offices at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

Eighteen persons attended the first meeting of the CEC, which has been formed to inform residents of issues related to millage request to be on the April 27 ballot.

Selected co-chairpersons of the CEC were Betty Hamann and Gary Nielsen.

Subcommittees and their chairpersons are registration, Jane Watts; publications, Donna Miceli; speakers bureau, Susan Toundaian; finance, Carl Taylor; and high school activities, Bill Krashovetz.

AT ITS FIRST meeting, members of the CEC discussed what the millage renewal and increase will "buy."

"Passage of 4½ mills for operation on April 27 will maintain our present program by renewing three mills which expire this year and by adding 1½ mills for growth and inflation," says the group.

"With about $2.6 million produced by the 4½ mills plus non-expiring local millage, fund equity and state funding, our budget will be balanced at $30,117,000."

This, the group says, means the schools can:

•Keep an average class size of about 28 students per teacher.

•Continue adequate supplies of textbooks, workbooks, library materials and general teaching supplies.

•Employ enough well-qualified professionals for a complete basic program.

•Have a full day of school at all levels.

•Improve transportation services by eliminating "double tripping" and schedule changes.

•Pay rising utility and insurance costs.

•Meet labor costs of negotiated contracts with teachers, aides, bus drivers, administrators, secretaries and maintenance staff.

•Provide space and high quality education through extended school year (ESY).

The second proposition asks approval of a ½-mill for 10 years for building improvements and maintenance. This levy, reports the CEC, will generate about $287,000 the first year. "As the school district's state equalized valuation rises, we will receive more money from the same ½-mill rate," says the group. "This will enable the school district to plan for replacement of worn-out boilers, leaky roofs, instructional equipment and office machines. Renovations and energy-saving improvements to school buildings will be possible.

"Over the 10-year period this ½-mill levy will provide about $4.3 million that is earmarked and can only be used for buildings and facilities."

EXAMPLES OF the impact of growth and inflation on the school district cited by the CEC included:

•A basic reading program consisting of a textbook and workbook for each student in a classroom of 28 third graders costs $225. With about 1,440 third graders expected in 1978-79 (up about 180 from this year), the cost is $11,500 for just one grade and one subject.

•Six large buses and three minibuses must be purchased for 1978-79 transportation requirements. One bus costs $18,000. A 16 per cent increase in transportation costs will bring the district's state-mandated and safety transportation costs to $1.2 million.

•School supplies must include an inflation factor of 6½ per cent and 800 additional students.

•The 4½ mills can fund the present level of teaching staff by adding 36 new positions for the additional students.

No high school assignment appeals allowed

There will be no appeals allowed in the assignment of high school students for the 1979-80 school year.

That decision was made Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education after trustees spent considerable time debating what the criteria should be for appeals of random selection assignments to either Plymouth Salem or Plymouth Canton high school.

The argument which led trustees to the "no appeal" decision was that both high schools offer equal educational opportunity; therefore, no "sound educational reason" could exist to justify an appeal from a student to attend one school over the other.

The only factor which will be consider, after random assignments are made, is whether a student has an older brother or sister presently enrolled in either high school. A student with an older sibling enrolled in high school may, after the random draw is completed, elect to attend the school his sibling attends.

But because the existence of a sibling is a factual matter not subject to appeal, the board scrapped the proposed appeals panel and appeals process. Instead all random assignments will stick unless a sibling exception is asked for.

THIS YEAR computers were used for the first time to randomly assign students to the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

Under the plan used this year, any eighth grader with a sibling in high school could elect to attend that school. A student taking the sibling option would be assigned on that basis and would have his name feed into the computer for a random draw.

The procedure is reversed for 1979-80 school year. Now all students names will go into the computer, and the random draw will be completed. After all students know which school they will attend, the sibling option may be exercised.

"By this method," explained Stephen Harper, trustee, "we are forcing students to choose between peers and siblings. If his peers are attending one school, and he has that knowledge, the majority of students likely will choose to go with his peers rather than with a brother or sister. Because of this, we are likely to better obtain a balance between the two schools and have a better chance of maintaining randomness in selection."

MONDAY NIGHT the board was asked to approve an appeals process for those parents who were unsatisfied with the random assignments.

The process was to have been used for some 68 parents who have appealed the assignments of their eighth graders to the CEP for the '78-79 school year. The same process was to have been used for all future appeals.

Some trustees, however, felt different criteria should apply for the 68 appeals this year than for future appeals. The argument was that the board felt this year's random plan was not suitable, and that an appeals process hadn't been provided.

Because of these conditions, argued Flossie Tonda and others, appeals should be granted this year where ever neighborhoods were disrupted.

The board voted 4-3 to grant appeals this year if neighborhood relationships are disrupted or if special education reasons existed. Voting "no" were Joe Gray, Richard Arlen and Elaine Kirchgatter.

The board then voted 5-2 that for future years all random assignments would stand except for the sibling option. Voting "no" were Gray and Carol Davis.

MRS. TONDA ARGUED for a different treatment of current appeals versus future appeals.

"The random selection process was changed because we felt it wasn't right. So these appeals are based on a process we didn't feel we could live with. These appeals are coming from children we made a mistake on. Now we have a procedure we can live with, and should treat future appeals differently."

"We will have continuous appeals as long as we stick with random selection," commented Gray.

"There are no educational pressing reasons anyone can come up with to justify changing from one school to another," argued Harper. "If the administration were to admit that, it would be admitting there is different educational opportunities between the two schools. So there should be no educational reason on earth why one student should want to attend one school over another.

"For 1978-79 this board has muddled itself into a mess and we must do something for these 68 persons. From here on, as far as I'm concerned, where you get assigned is where you stay."

Mrs. Davis disagreed. "For some children, even if it's only a perceived problem, there could be emotional problems in being forced to attend a particular school. If those emotional problems are serious enough to interfere with learning, then that's a sound educational reason to grant an appeal."

"But every time you break up peer groups you cause emotional problems," countered Gray. "The solution is not in the appeals but in getting out of random selection."

"For this year alone, it won't cost our district one single penny to grant these appeals on the basis of friendship," commented Mrs. Tonda.

Supt. John M. Hoben commented that neither this year's nor next year's procedures have any built-in protections against disrupting neighborhoods. The difference between the two procedures was how fast a balance between the two schools would be achieved, Hoben said, and whether the burden of balancing would be placed on those students moving into the district after the random draw was completed.

Arlen argued against using one criterion for appeals this year and another in the future. "We were advised by our attorneys to come up with a consistent policy which wouldn't be arbitrary and capricious. It seems to be we are ignoring our attorney's advice." Mrs. Kirchgatter concurred with Arlen.

Stein to schools: Let's grow slow

Residential growth and its by-product—more school-age chidren—will be less of a problem in the future for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

That was the main message carried to the school board Monday night by Canton Supervisor Harold Stein.

"Canton Township remains today basically under the effects of subdivision commitments of the period 1968-74," said Stein. As an example, he pointed out that the number of subdivision lots asked for by developers but not yet sold have declined as follows: 2,020 lots in 1973; 6,786 in 1974; 1,347 in 1975; 804 lots in 1976; and, 967 lots as of Dec. 31, 1977.

"As the subdivisions previously approved or commited for approval in some manner are built out, the township will begin to experience a gradual but apparent drop-off in the amount of land that will be subdivided.

"This will happen because the conditions of the late 1960s and early 1970s, with cheap land, large assembled tracts, unlimited markets, low subdivision construction costs, and utilities in the ground or easily extendable are no longer present.

"Another factor that is reflective of the shift away from the township by subdivision developers," Stein continued, "is the number of vacant lots available for new home construction"—from a high of 4,895 in 1973-74 to 1,740 as of Jan. 1, 1978.

"In light of the number of pending subdivisions and available vacant lot supply, it would appear that unless there is a change in township policy the high residential platting rate has ended.

"It is significant to note that during 1977 only one residential plat was approved by the township board that was not a part of previously approved larger development or approved previously at another review stage."

STEIN ADDED THAT another factor which could curb residential growth is labor cost.

"The trade unions' contracts are up this spring, and the higher costs which will be related to that settlement will certainly have an impact on the costs of building a home in Canton."

Another curb on residential growth, Stein said, is that the township board has approved a minimum lot width of 70 feet.

The supervisor said the township's present policy is to slow residential growth and encourage industrial and commercial development.

"We are trying to obtain a balanced tax base, which, I'm sure, is of interest to the school district because commercial and industrial buildings do not produce school children."

During 1977, Stein reported, Canton issued 12 permits for for new commercial and industrial construction, representing 122,945 square feet of floor area, of which 106,030 was industrial.

"This industrial construction rate is the highest ever experienced by the township, with the exception of 1974 when the 950,000-square-foot Kresge Warehouse was built.

"It would appear that the locational advantages of Canton as a result of the opening of I-275 with interchanges serving the Canton-Plymouth Township area are being recognized."

Tom Yack, school board president, wasn't sure the rising price of homes was a dependable brake on growth.

"Somehow people get the money together that's needed to buy a home," Yack said. "We can't project into the future what the federal government or mortgage institutions will be doing. Home loan money could be much more accessible than we could imagine today."

Yack asked Stein when Canton's study on acquiring development rights for the area west of Canton Center Road would be completed. "If residential development ever crosses Canton Center Road, there could be a lot of subdivision growth in the future."

Stein said the study on acquiring development rights west of Canton Center Road will be publicly disclosed at the March 28 township board meeting and the board might decide that night to have the report printed and distributed."

He added that the study, originally thought to cost $40,000, will cost the township between $25-$30,000.

The growth management study, Stein added, will be completed in three or four weeks.

School Trustee Steve Harper noted that Plymouth Township's master land use study will be released about the same time as Canton's two studies.

logical testing of all applicants.

By mutual agreement, the township will hire Psychological Resources, Inc. of Bloomfield Hills to conduct the test. Results of the psychiatric exam would be placed in employees' files but not the answers to specific questions.

The CPOA and the township also agreed that officers should be screened in an oral examination by a panel composed of three out-state police chiefs.

CPOA spokesmen found no fault with an eligibility list giving existing part-time certified officers and non-certified reserve officers first preference for the new jobs. The eligibility list of current officers would remain in effect for five years giving existing officers first priority for jobs.

Buses pass safety test

the road is the road itself, according to Heard.

"The roads in this community are terrible," he said. "And no one is paying much attention to them. Builders come in and build neighborhoods with no roads. But you still have to drive the buses in to get kids."

He thinks, too, that the current method of inspection allows a lot of districts to gear up for their inidvidual inspection without making sure the buses are in good shape all year long.

"Personally, I feel we should have a bureau of inspection that could spot-check buses at anytime. Right now, schedules for inspection are given out and people know when it's their turn."

All of Heard's mechanics are required to pass the National Institute for Auto Service Excellence test (NIASE) a federal exam, as well as the state's mechanics test.

He maintains that many of the districts with a lot of bus defects don't have certified mechanics on the job.

"As of now, mechanics don't have to be certified. The state sponsors bus workshops which mechanics don't have to attend. It should be mandatory."

Super sewer coming through sentatives from the communities. The intent was to give the communities a say in how the system was run and what the costs would be.

Even with the concessions, though, Plymouth and Canton townships were still dragging thier feet on signing the contract.

They were still afraid they would be comitting themselves to huge costs without having a say in what they would be.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP, in particular, was unsure it could legally sign a contract with the board of public works while it was still under contract with Detroit.

But the county cut through the stalling and uncertainties by issuing an ultimatum to the communities who had not yet signed.

Duane Egeland, chief engineer for super sewer, told the municipalities that if they didn't sign by March 22, the county would interpret it as a refusal and redesign the system without them. He said that nine of the 18 communities had signed the intial contract and in fairness to them, the county felt it had to move ahead with the sewer project.

The threat of exclusion moved Plymouth and Canton townships off dead center. Both boards still had fears about cost and lack of representation. But they had more concern about being left out of super sewer and running out of capacity in the Rouge system sometime in the future.

"We had a sewer ban in 1960," Plymouth Township Clerk Helen Richardson told the board before the vote, "and I certainly wouldn't want to see that happen again.

"I think that sooner or later you're going to have to go to super sewer and delay won't help it."

Canton's Stein also argued stongly in favor of authorizing the contract. He told the trustees that all his questions about the project had been answered.

The vote in Plymouth Township was 6-1, with Trustee Lee Fidge voting no. In Canton the split was wider with a final vote of 4-3. Trustees Lynn Goldsmith, Bob Meyers and Brian Schwall were not in favor.

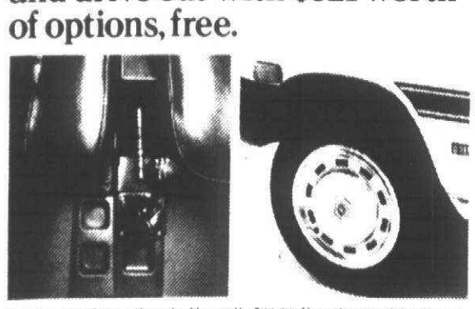
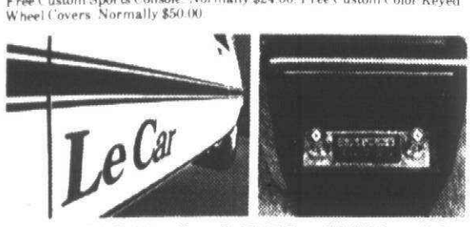
Le Deal of the Month on Le Car of the Year.

Buy Le Car GTL Deluxe now and drive out with $321 worth of options, free.



Free Custom Sports Console. Normally $24.00. Free Custom Color Keyed Wheel Covers. Normally $50.00.



Free Deluxe Side Striping. Normally $45.56. Free AM/FM Stereo Radio with Deluxe Rear Antenna. Normally $201.66.

Compare features. You'll find Le Car is the best deal of any month.

Le Car offers front-wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, four-wheel independent suspension and Michelin steel-belted radials – all standard. (Civic, Rabbit, Fiesta and Chevette don't offer this combination of standard features.) The result is an exciting, highly responsive car that handles and corners with ease.

When it comes to ride and comfort, Le Car leaves other small cars behind.

Le Car's ride is so unbelievably smooth, even on rough roads, that Car & Driver, called it "a new standard for small cars." And Le Car has what may be the most comfortable seats this side of a luxury sedan.

What's more, in proportion to its exterior length (which is the shortest of any small car), Le Car offers more interior space than Civic, Rabbit, Fiesta and Chevette. And, it has a longer wheelbase for added comfort.

To top it all off is the biggest sunroof (optional) on any small car. We call it a fun roof.

Millions of satisfied Le Car owners.

Nearly two million Europeans drive Le Car. (More than Rabbit and Fiesta combined.)

In the U.S., Le Car has more than doubled its sales in just one year.

And, in an independent survey, Le Car owner satisfaction was an amazing 95%.

Le Car prices start at only $3495.† And if you buy a Le Car GTL Deluxe before March 31, 1978, you'll get the options shown above, free. Supplies limited. And no small car offers a better deal than that.

Led by new chairman

Lord & Taylor expansion begins

By FRED DeLANO

Expansion fostered by dynamic merchandising and sales promotion has become a way of life for Lord & Taylor in the 28 months since the New York chain lured Joseph E. Brooks into its fold as board chairman and chief executive officer.

As impressive a retailing first as it was when Lord & Taylor opened its three suburban Detroit stores simultaneously March 6, the 50-year-old Brooks hasn't come close to running out of ideas.

When he joined Lord & Taylor in 1975 at $250,000 a year, the chain had 20 outlets. Now there are 28 and Brooks expects to have more than 40 in operation before the end of 1981.

Adding to the penetration of the southeastern Michigan market will be a Lord & Taylor store in Briarwood Center at Ann Arbor, scheduled to open in the fall of 1979.

Eventually, there may be more outlets in metropolitan Detroit's future.

Adding three more stores to the the present six in the Chicago area, plus openings in the Boston, Houston, Dallas and Palm Beach markets, are in the firm's immediate plans.

To that, the short, refined, imaginative Brooks adds that he wouldn't mind opening a store in London and another in Paris "on the same day."

AS REPORTED within the trade, sales figures for the first seven days' business in the trio of Detroit stores—at Twelve Oaks (Novi), Lakeside (Sterling Heights and Fairlane (Dearborn)—testify that local customers took to the famed 152-year-old Fifth Avenue firm like ducks to water.

Opening day volume reportedly hit $275,000. For the seven-day period, the average was estimated at $200,000 per day, or $1.4 million for the week.

Brooks called it "our most successful opening to date, anywhere" and said it "exceeded expectations."

Brooks has set a gross sales goal for the first year here of $100 per square foot. Each of the three stores has an identical 123,000 square-foot format, 369,000 in all.

That means Brooks wants 12-month action of $36.9 million, an average of $709,615 per week. The first few strides from the starting gate roughly doubled that goal.

Each store was stocked with $3 million in merchandise. At the same time, entry into the Detroit market was backed with a total saturation multi-media advertising campaign. It included Lord & Taylor's first use of television commercials and heavy usage of newspaper space and radio spots.

"EVERYTHING INCLUDED, there's an investment of at least $10 million per store," Brooks told the Observer & Eccentric in a pre-opening interview.

He singled out developer Alfred Taubman and Henry Ford II as having been the two persons in addition to Lord & Taylor's own marketing analysts who were "very instrumental" in convincing him to place stores here.

"Detroit is a mature market, the fourth or fifth largest in the nation. Why ignore this?" he asked rhetorically.

Then Brooks added, "This was the first time in my life I ever made a $30 million decision in only 30 days. In fact, it took only 60 days to complete the entire deal from the time I began considering it until the papers were signed."

After that came months of what Brooks called "planning it like D-Day" as Lord & Taylor personnel from numerous departments worked out every minute detail, right down to the center pieces that graced the tables at the black-tie dinners at store sites on three consecutive evenings.

Characteristically, it seemed, Brooks made it a point to emphasize that all money for construction of Lord & Taylor facilities in the three shopping centers was "locally contracted."

HIS EMPLOYEE CONCERNS, and Brooks now has more than 300 persons on the payroll in each store, brought this expression of philosophy, founded on a lifetime in retailing:

"The goal is to put together the very best people you can and create an environment in which they can do their best and be what they think they can be.

"Most people are better than they think they are.

"Management should not be punitive. It's not how many mistakes that counts, but how many things employees do right that should be applauded. Sometimes management is too stifling.

"Lord & Taylor's success is due to a talented team having been assembled. I'm interested in results in a profitable, tasteful manner, with a style befitting Lord & Taylor.

"Profitability also includes human resources. You must create jobs and security. There is none if a person is not with a profitable company. The worst thing you can do is do yourself in. Then no one has a job.

Brooks an expansionist

"We have to be proud of American business taking a risk, putting more money into circulation. The American business community has been too apologetic about making a profit."

AND HOW DOES Joe Brooks see his role as compared to founders Samuel Lord, who had an aptitude for buying and selling, and George Taylor, who had a clear head for figures, when they had a single store in lower Manhattan and depended on stage coaches and sailing vessels as the only modes of transporting freight?

Mentioning that Lord & Taylor now owns and operates its own national fleet of trucks, Brooks answered:

"My contribution to Lord & Taylor is as someone who has brought together the best of what Lord & Taylor has, and as a catalyst for an accelerated pace in expansion."

Referring directly to the new stores planned during his reign, Brooks said, "This was part of my fanchise in deciding to leave Federated Department Stores after 25 years.

"A community of this size has enough business for everyone.

"We know who we are, we know what we want, we know what our customers want. We have pride. We sell style, fashion and good taste, not price. We're very much a quality store where customers will find clothes they want at a price they want.

"It's those customers who are the jury, and there's no better. They'll let us know within two months whether coming into Detroit was a good decision."

BROOKS' LAST ROLE with Federated was running the Filene's chain in Boston. Earlier he had been top man at such other Federated properties as Burdine's in Florida and Rike's in Dayton.

A native New Yorker, he now finds himself at the helm of the flagship store of Associated Dry Goods Corp. whose subsidiaries also include such prominent retail names as J. W. Robinson of Los Angeles, Joseph Horne of Pittsburgh, L. S. Ayres of Indianapolis, Stix, Baer & Fuller of St. Louis and Goldwaters in Arizona.

In addition to being chairman and chief executive officer of Lord & Taylor, Brooks is on ADG's board of directors. Last September he was elected its senior executive vice-president.

Associated's 16 totally-owned chains, ow which Lord & Taylor is the largest, include 149 stores. By 1980 that figure is scheduled to reach 180.

A Standard & Poor's report on ADG issued Dec. 5 included the comment:

"Earnings have been erratic in recent years despite steadily rising sales, but an acceleration of the expansion program, the tightening of inventory and cost-control programs, and a strengthening of the management ranks should enhance profits in 1978 and the years to follow."

BROOKS EMPHASIZES his belief in community involvement by declaring, "As we become part of the area, it is important that we become visible."

It was such thinking as this that led to Lord & Taylor's tie-in with Children's Hospital, the Oakland County unit of the American Cancer Society and the Detroit Institute of Arts as the financial beneficiaries of the gala black-tie previews.

It also is evident in the appointment of two former J. L. Hudson employees among the four principals here. They are Edward J. Hill, managing director at Twelve Oaks, and Mrs. Joan E. Sankovic, managing director at Lakeside. Both live in Birmingham.

"They know the area," Brooks said succintly.

Another Birminghamite, Bill R. Lee, already a Lord & Taylor divisional vice-president, is managing director of the Fairlane store.

Named regional vice-president, and also possessing a prior Lord & Taylor background, is James J. Caniglia, who has moved with his family to Plymouth. He will supervise development of the Ann Arbor store in addition to his role over the three Detroit units.

What diversions does Brooks have from the multi-million-dollar pressures of business? He mentions jogging, swimming and tennis. He's also an avid reader, but only non-fiction.

Brooks calls himself "a history buff."

Then he adds, "But before business or anything else, my wife and three children come first."

Both high schools, Central Middle do well at district band festivals

Both high school and middle school bands in Plymouth participated in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra District Festivals earlier this month.

At the high school level, Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem's concert bands participated as well as the Centennial Educational Park Symphony Band. Central Middle School participated at the middle school level.

The Symphony Band, under the direction of James R. Griffith, performed at Dearborn Edsel Ford High School in the Class AAA competition. Performing before three judges, the band received three first division ratings for its concert performance. The band also received a first division rating from the sight reading judge. The band got a final top rating, making it eligible for the state festival being held April 29.

Sight reading judges the band on how well it is able to read both a march and a concert number after receiving only seven minutes to look over the two pieces. The band sings the music through during the seven minutes, looking for key changes, tempo markings and fingerings.

Ann Arbor Huron's Symphony Band and its Concert Band were the only two other bands that received staight ones as the Plymouth Symphony Band did at Edsel Ford.

The symphony band performed "The Pathfinders of Panama," "Overture to Colas Bruegnon" and the "Manzoni Requium."

The Canton Concert Band, under the direction of Griffith, also received straight ones for its performance. The band played "March from First Suite for Band," "Folk Song Suite," and "Three Sketches for Winds."

Judges commented that the concert band played very musically and with a lot of enthusiasm. The concert band competed at the Class C level and is also eligible for the state festival.

The band went into the festival under the Class A heading playing the "Free Lance March," "First Suite in E flat" and "Partita."

The Salem Concert Band is directed by Tom Brownlee and received two ones and a two on its concert performance and a two in the sight reading for a final first division rating. The Salem band will also participate in the state festival in April.

In the concert performance the bands are all judged on a number of things including tone, intonation, rhythm, interpretation, general spirit, selection of the music performed and the appearance of the group.

Central Middle School sent two bands to the festival—the intermediate band, which received a first division rating, and the advanced band, which received a second division rating.

Max Ellison recites

Poet Max Ellison made an appearance at Field Elementary recently to recite some of his works and to attempt to instill in the pupils an appreciation for poetry. The fifth grade classes of Stu Raben and Patricia Heneger were so enthused that they purchased a copy of Ellison's works—"The Happenstance"—and donated it to the school library. (Stu Raben photo).

K-C sale begins Friday

The third annual drive to raise funds to help the mentally retarded will be held tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday by the Fr. Victor J. Renaud Knights of Columbus Plymouth Council.

Members of the K-C will be at various shopping centers in the Plymouth-Canton area with yellow aprons asking for donations to help the mentally retarded. As in the past, 80 per cent of the proceeds will remain in the Plymouth-Canton community by being donated to Plymouth Opportunity Center.

Plymouth Mayor Thomas Turner and Canton Supervisor Harold Stein have issued proclamations designating the week of March 12 as Mental Retardation Week.

Northville supt. resigns

Northville Public Schools Supt. Raymond Spear resigned Monday night moments after the school board approved a salary for next year which Spear said was "unsatisfactory."

In a letter to John Hobart, board president, Spear said it was his intent "to terminate my services. . .on or before July 1, 1979" when his present three-year contract expires.

Monday night, following two executive sessions last week, the board amended Spear's contract to provide partial financial compensation if he resigns prior to June 1 of this year.

Spear, who has spent 16 years as a Northville school administrator and the last 11 as superintendent, had no comment Monday night about his future plans.

Monday night's resignation came after the board's announcement that it had given Spear an overall rating of "satisfactory" during his annual evaluation, which was completed last week.

Business lure for county wins plaudit

Creation of a Wayne County economic development corporation (EDC) to promote business growth is a step closer to reality following a public hearing held by a committee of the county board of commissioners.

The board's public works committee unanimously endorsed an ordinance establishing the EDC at a March 2 hearing.

Committee Chairman Edgar L. Harris (D-Taylor), who originally proposed the EDC, predicted it will "enable the cities and townships of Wayne County to compete more successfully for jobs-producing industry."

As required by state law, the formal petition for an EDC was made by citizens—Joseph E. Stermer, executive director of the Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce; Wilson C. Grier, Northville Township supervisor; and H. Fred Campbell, president, Campbell Development Co., Detroit.

An economic development corporation is an independent, non-profit body authorized by the state and designed to stimulate local industrial and commercial development. An EDC has the authority to sell revenue bonds to help finance industrial and commercial growth. It is also eligible for federal grants.

The entire board of commissioners heard the first reading of the ordinance at the March 2 meeting. Two more readings must be heard before the board votes on the ordinance.

Democrats in the township meet tonight

The Plymouth Township Democratic Club's first meeting of 1978 is tonight at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Credit Union.

Party members will meet new county commissioner William Joyner and discuss potential candidates for Plymouth Township offices, according to Orville Tungate, Wayne County deputy clerk, a Plymouth Township resident.

Another item on the agenda will be the open circuit court judge seats.

Another sign of spring

The appearance of the robin may herald the arrival of spring, but another sign that spring is near is when young couples spend some time sitting in Edward Hines Park enjoying the sun. Relaxing on a recent sunny day were Bob and Julie Whiteaker of Plymouth. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey).

A rare trade: diamond setting

By W.W. EDGAR

When it comes to unusual occupations it would be difficult to beat those enjoyed by Thomas Piotrowski and Kenneth Wilkinson, who have just opened shop in downtown Plymouth.

They are diamond setters, which is not to be confused with diamond cutters or diamond polishers.

"Each of these activities is a trade by itself," Piotrowski explained "and there are so few of us diamond setters because you must know someone to learn the business. Sure, there are schools that teach you the basics. But unless you have a friendly setter who will teach you, there is no other way to learn."

Piotrowski, who is 5-feet-9 and weighs 215 pounds, looks like anything but a fellow who would work with items smaller than tear drops. And Wilkinson is not much smaller.

In fact, if one were to guess their occupation, you would not be amiss is picturing them as men who worked in the shops where might and muscle play a big role in success.

"You have to have strength in this business of diamond setting," Piotrowki said, "as it takes very strong forearms to lift and control the beads over the top of diamonds when making a new setting."

With that, he took a pair of tweezers and lifted a full cut stone of only one-half a point and placed in a ring setting. It demanded strong hands and steady forearms.

AS HE SAT at his desk in Mayflower Square, Piotrowski recalled a career that would have done justice to the success stories written years ago by Horatio Alger.

Piotrowski started as messenger boy for Morrie Rothstern, a jeweler in the David Stott Building in downtown Detroit.

In the meantime, he became acquainted with Wilkinson, whose father was in the diamond setting business.

"I had just gotten married and needed more money, but Ken told me I'd have to quit my job with Rothstern before his father would take me on. So I quit. Later Ken and I formed a partnership and here we are with a great opportunity in the kind of a town we like."

Because of the nature of the occupation, one shop cannot keep one man busy all week. On an average day a diamond setter can do about 50 settings—depending on the size of the stone. So, the partnership now does the diamond setting for a number of firms in the western suburbs.

The two men have been partners for four years and left Dearborn to come to Plymouth. They were down in the Towers and found that it was not the right type of location.

"We always like the Plymouth area," Piotrowski said, "and when this location opened up we were glad to lease it."

ONE OF THE INTERESTING things about diamond setting Piotrowski tells you is that you never do the same job twice. All diamonds are different sizes. So are rings and pins. Getting them together makes it interesting.

One of the finest jobs Piotrowski experienced came on a recent afternoon when a woman entered the shop with an old wedding band. She wanted a new ring for her diamond. Instead, she was told it could be cleaned, polished and put in a new setting. It was done in 45 minuted and she left satisfied.

The biggest job he ever tackled was one given him in Dearborn when a customer came in with a 12-point Marquis cut diamond. This is a special cut, but the job was done.

Because of the small number of diamond setters, most of the work comes from referrals—a satisfied customer telling someone else.

Mom Bell wants rate restructuring

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has proposed restructuring its long-distance rates.

According to Michigan Bell officials, the plan, which would make directly-dialed long distance calls between any two points in Michigan cheaper than calls made out of state, would save customers $16 million annually.

"Right now its cheaper to call Toledo than it is to call Flint. We wanted to change that," said Robert Hunter, customer relations manager.

The proposed rate structure would reduce weekend and late night rates for long distance calls within Michigan.

The new "off peak" rates would feature a 50 per cent discount on long-distance calls made to any point in the state all day Saturday, Sunday before 5 p.m. and every night from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. The present discount is 30 per cent and would continue to apply from 5 to 11 p.m. weekdays.

The telephone company is also proposing offsetting increases on other long-distance services to make up for the revenues lost through the cheaper intrastate weekend and night rates.

As part of the package of changes, Michigan Bell is asking for a three-cent increase for the first minute on most daytime long-distance calls made weekdays within the state. There would also be increases in charges for long-distance calls requiring the assistance of an operator; person-to-person, collect and credit card calls, for example.

Michigan Bell is also proposing a new charge of 30 cents for long-distance calls from payphones to points 20 or more miles away.

The new rate package must be approved by the Michigan Public Public Service Commission (MPSC) before it could go into effect.

The new rates, according to company officials, would encourage customers to shift their long-distance calls to weekends and nights. "These are periods when the telephone network has plenty of spare capacity for more telephone traffic," said Lloyd Haynes, Michigan Bell vice president.

Even though Michigan Bell is trying to attract more customers for its long-distance facilities at times when the telephone network is not being fully utilized, company officials denied that company would realize any additional revenues from the rate shift.

Consumers Power seeks rate hike

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Suburban natural gas users will be hit by another rate increase if the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) approves any part of Consumers Power Company's latest request.

Consumers Power, which supplies much of suburban Detroit's natural gas, this week asked for a two-pronged rate increase totaling $76 million, or 10.5 per cent.

The increase, if approved, would boost the average residential customer's monthly bill $3.80.

IF THE ENTIRE increase is approved, the average customer would be paying $480 annually, a 9.3 per cent increase. The increase would cost the average customer more than $40 more per year.

A customer using a full range of gas appliances, however, would use more gas than Consumers Power's average customer.

The MPSC has never granted an entire Consumers Power rate request. The latest request comes in two steps. First, there would be a $37 million interim rate hike which would take effect in the fall before gas use increases dramatically in the winter months.A $39 million increase would follow in 1979.

Customers of the other Detroit-area natural gas distributor, Michigan Consolidated Gas, pay an average of $390 annually.

ConsumersPower officials said the company need the increase to meet higher costs and to increase profit margins.

From 1976 to 1977 Consumers Power's operating revenue from its gas distribution operations increased from $700 million to nearly $725 million. Over the same period of time, however, earnings dropped from nearly $60 million to $49 million.

THE INCREASE, said James B. Falahee, senior vice president, was "not very much when you break it down."

"But no matter how you cut it, (it's) still an increase, still another fact of life which we don't expect to be popular," he said.

Consumers Power was granted an $11 million increase in January. That increase, however, dated back to a request filed with the MPSC in November 1974. The package of increases, including interim rate increases in June 1975 and March 1977, totaled $45 million.

WHY THEN, the new rate request?

Falahee said the latest increases were based upon Comsumers Power's cost of doing business in 1975 and were inadequate to meet 1978's need.

"What it adds up to is this: We are being asked to provide natural gas service to our customers today, in 1978, at a price based on the cost of that service in 1975."

The January increase, Falahee said, " was several millions too late, several years too late. " The latest rate request is "designed to redress the large imbalance which now exists in our rates versus the cost of doing business," he said.

Falahee described the utility ratemaking game a "vicious circle."

"Because our rates for gas service do noq provide for recovery of the cost of that service," he said, "our earnings and profitablity suffer. As profitability declines, investment in our business becomes less attractive and financing becomes more expensive. As financing grows more and more expensive, our cost of doing business grows at an even faster pace."

Falahee continued, "It does us no good to look back longingly at that pre-1972 period when gas was underpriced and overabundant. . . The cost of gas service is finally behaving like everything else in our inflation-plagued society — it's going up."

According to Falalee and other natural gas industry officials, the productions costs of new natural gas has been spiraling because all of the easy-to-reach natural gas has already been pumped and produced.

Lunch hike approved

School lunch prices will go up, effective Monday, by five cents for students and 10 cents for adults.

The price increase was approved 7-0 Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The price increase was approved to avoid a major operating deficit in this year's cafeteria fund.

Supt. John M. Hoben noted that the general fund could absorb the loss but that would delete the funds which could be spent for education. It also would run the risk of a total budget imbalance, he added.

Dan White, director of finance, told trustees he anticipated a drop-off in cafeteria use of about 100 students beginning with Monday's price increase. That drop-off in use will continue for about 20 days, added White, and than return to normal.

Effective March 20 lunch prices will be 60 cents for elementary pupils, 65 cents for middle school students, 75 cents for high schoolers, and $1.10 for adults.

Without the price increase, the cafeteria fund was expected to have an operating deficit of $17,686 by June 30, 1978.

Administrators contract OK'd

A three-year contract with administrators was approved Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The contract with the Plymouth Congress of Administrators (PCA) provides for an eight per cent salary increase for each of the first two years. The contract provides for a reopening of negotiations during the third year on economics.

The PCA is an independent union representing building principals, assistant principals, area coordinators, and similiar "middle management" administrative positions.

Dr. Kutinsky
A man who drove a horse and wagon didn't have to see perfectly, as long as the horse could see well enough to keep from running into things. The automobile has changed all that. Any driver of today's high-powered, high-speed automobiles had better see very well or he's headed for big trouble.
When we travel at legal speeds of over 80 feet per second, good depth perception is important. So is an adequate field of vision...the ability to see "out of the corner of the eye." Good night vision and the ability of the eye to recover normal vision after being blinded by glaring headlights may prevent tragedy on the highway.
Do you see well enough to drive your car? An eye examination, providing the facts about your vision, could save your life!

Churches used burial grounds

By CHARLES ZAZULA

What is appropriately called Church Street in the City of Plymouth, was once the sacred burial grounds of the Pottawatami tribe.

Along this route white settlers built their churches—First United Presbyterian, First Methodist-Episcopal (now Central Baptist-Temple), Our Lady of Good Counsel (Catholic), St. Peter Evangelical (Lutheran) and First Church of Christ Scientist—within a short distance of each other.

In 1915 a group of Catholic pioneers petitioned Bishop J.S. Foley of Detroit for church services. With the sanction of the Most Rev. Bishop, Father J. Dowdle celebrated the first Holy Mass on Palm Sunday 1915, at the Grange Hall located on Union. Thereafter, the sacrifice of the mass was celebrated once a month for five years. By 1920, with pledges totalling $4,200, about thirty determined families petitioned Bishop Michael J. Gallagher to purchase church property at Union and Dodge.

On Nov. 27, 1920 (the first Sunday of Advent), the Rev. Frank C. Lefevre celebrated the first parish mass as its pastor. Bishop Gallagher selected the name Our Lady of Good Counsel as a Christmas gift. In 1921, a house at 276 Union was purchased as a rectory.

dotting the exquisite mansion, is considered one of the finest examples of early American architecture in Michigan.

A wrought-iron fence once surrounded the homestead with its carriage house and bandstand at the intersection of Church and Penniman bounded by Arthur and William. Today it decorates the entrance to the White House rectory.

PALM SUNDAY, 1949, marked another milestone when Holy Mass was first celebrated in the newly built Spanish-styled church at William and Arthur. In September of that year, the first full-time school season opened through the sixth grade with three sisters and two lay teachers. An adjoining house on Church was purchased and remodeled as a convent for the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Reverend Francis C. Byrne became pastor in 1953 and more expansions and renovations became effective. Fr. William T. Child was called to serve as the first assistant pastor.

Another peak of expansion began in 1964 with the construction of the beautiful white cut-brick church building facing Penniman. More land and building expansion continued through 1966 when Fr. Herman Kucyk replaced Fr. Renaud. On July 9, 1966, this colo-

He also is a pioneer member and writer for the parish weekly "The Chancellor" of St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church which organized a year ago and held its first meeting at the Blessed John Neumann rectory in Canton.)

Seven years later, while a remodeling project was in progress, the mass was celebrated at the Schrader Funeral Chapel.

THE NEW GOTHIC-STYLED building seating 450 people and including a well-equipped kitchen, auditorium and checkroom, was blessed and dedicated on July 1, 1928 by the Most Rev. Michael Gallagher. The young girl's choir sang at the 8 a.m. mass while the all-male choir enhanced the High Mass and benediction.

Just as the great depression was to end and Franklin Roosevelt became president, havoc struck the parish when fire inflamed the building two days before Christmas Day. Again the Schrader Funeral Chapel came to the rescue until a basement church was constructed on the same site in 1934 which was used until 1949.

In 1938, Fr. Victor Renaud took the place of Fr. Lefevre and was replaced by Fr. William P. Mooney in 1942. Plymouth's Knights of Columbus named their council in honor of Fr. Victor Renaud.

In 1942, the parish procured the historic Will Allen house as a rectory. The construction date is unknown, but its builder (Ebenezer Penniman) died in 1890. Penniman came to Plymouth in 1840 and shortly thereafter bought a large tract of land from John Kellogg on Sutton which he subdivided and upon which he built a fine mansion. Sutton became Penniman and the mansion became Catholic property.

The colonial two-level White House, having five high pillars across the front porch, French doors, a sun room and numerous square glass windows nial Plymouth edifice with its cross, chimes and fountain was dedicated by Archbishop John Deardon.

AFTER VATICAN II made mandatory a spirit of renewal, the parish participated in synodal deliberations which resulted in the promulgation of Synod 69. A parish council was established in 1969 when eight members were elected along with two delegates to the Western Vicariate.

In 1970, the parish celebrated its golden anniversary under the theme of "Nova et Antiqua." Four Sisters of St. Joseph have served faithfully as principals of Our Lady of Good Counsel school, namely Mothers Suzanne, Victorine, Christine and Sister Joyce Marie. James Dyer became the first male principal in 1969.

Noted among the remnants of historical organizations are the Rosary-Altar Society, Legion of Mary, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Knights of Columbus, Christian Family Movement, altar boys, organists, choirs and, of course, the ushers.

The first Catholic Church in the Plymouth area is now pastored by the Rev. Fr. Kenneth MacKinnon with Fr. Robert Keller as associate pastor. In June, Father Byrne, who served 20 years as pastor, will commemorate his 48th anniversary in the priesthood. He now is the pastor emeritus and spiritual counselor.

Six new parishes have been formed from what was once Our Lady of Good Counsel domain. These are St. Michael and St. Edith, Livonia; St. Kenneth and Divine Savior, Plymouth; St. John Neumann and St. Thomas a Becket of Canton.

Off the Walls

Blowing fuse is mind-blowing

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

A terrible catastrophe struck our home today: we blew a fuse and my husband wasn't home to fix it.

Being the enlightened, liberated woman the media keeps telling me I am, I decided to meet this disaster head on, and deal with it with the intelligence and fortitude that would make Gloria Steinem proud of me.

NANCY WALLS SMITH

First of all, I had to find the fuse box. I knew it was in the basement, and I knew it was on a wall. This knowledge eliminated many wasted hours of searching and narrowed down the problem once I found this strange box.

I stationed my 3-year-old at the top of the basement stairs with instructions to "tell me when the refrigerator light comes back on." I took the baby downstairs with me because I couldn't leave him upstairs with the basement door open. (Life is complicated when your every move has to take into consideration the whereabouts and happiness of two pre-schoolers.)

I found the fuse box, opened the door and discovered a dozen blue, orange and clear fuses screwed into it. It seems to me that a thoughtful person would have put little labels next to each fuse indicating which fuse was responsible for which particular set of lights. I'll have to take the matter up with my husband.

Fortunately, for me, there were many brand-new (I hoped) fuses on a shelf near the fuse box. My most logical plan of action was to tackle each fuse one at a time, unscrew it, put in a new one and yell up to my 3-year-old to find out about any changes my efforts might have brought about.

I proceeded to do just that. You may or may not know, but there are different kinds of fuses. Some have letters on them such as "S-15" or "S-20". I haven't the foggiest notion what these little letters and numbers mean (if they mean anything), but I decided that I'd better put an S-20 fuse in any little holes that I took an S-20 out of, just so I could be assured that the house wouldn't blow up because some fool put a T-20 in a ST-15 hole.

I changed my first fuse, ran to the bottom of the stairs and yelled back "No!" He was in the family room. I calmly pointed out to him that he could get a better reading if he were to open the refrigerator door and look. He agreed, opened the door, and yelled "No!"

After I changed my second fuse, I ran to the bottom of the stairs and again yelled up. This time the "No!" came from the direction of the bathroom. After much loud persuasion on my part, he finally consented to have a look-see in the refrigerator. I was told, "No, the light isn't on."

Well, we went through this same procedure for each of the 12 fuses, and, according to the reports I was getting from my man upstairs, it was all to no avail. I gave up, deciding I just wasn't cut out to be this liberated.

As you may have guessed, when I got upstairs I discovered that I had fixed our mini-blackout. I have the strangest feeling that it was probably fuse No. 1 that did it.

EDC sounds too good

The headline on last Monday's lead story in the Canton Observer was a rhetorical question: "Is EDC too easy?"

An Economic Development Corporation (EDC), formed recently by the Canton Township board of trustees, is attempting to entice business and industry to settle in the township by offering them tax-free revenue bonds.

The question implied by the headline that keeps popping up is "What's the catch?" The plan sounds too good to be true.

The EDC becomes a temporary business lessor until the tax-free revenue bonds it has issued are paid off. Financing for the businessman is obtained from the EDC though tax-exempt revenue bonds issued by the EDC through the township.

Revenue generated by the business venture is supposed to pay off the bonds. The business is liable for any losses and must pay off its bond debt at regular intervals.

Instead of the usual municipal bonding system, where municipalities pledge their full faith and credit, these bonds are to be paid from money made by the business ventures financed. The bondholder has a first mortgage on the project.

By law, the municipality cannot be held liable for any debts of the EDC. But with township interests tied up so closely with business interests, we wonder if this might be challenged further down the road.

The liability feature sounds almost too good to be true for municipalities.

AN EDC CAN condemn land, levy special taxes, sell tax-exempt revenue bonds and mortgage efforts in its quest to bring a broader tax base to a bedroom community such as Canton.

The developer gets bonding for an addition or new construction at rates that are far below conventional bank mortgage rates. He may also get additional ad valorem tax breaks if the township board allows that to happen.

The EDC is in the enviable, but precarious, position of actively participating in the profit-making affairs of business—something municipalities are forbidden to do—while trying to make sure business pays its fair share to the community.

The possibility of abuse is slim, but should not be ignored. For example, EDC board members could be aware that a major industry was planning to locate in Canton and buy up surrounding land at a song to build a bar for factory workers.

NINE PERSONS comprise the Economic Development Corp. in Canton. Two of them, EDC Chairman Harold Stein and Eugene Daley, are also elected officials in Canton.

The seven remaining members of the Canton EDC are Andrew Smith, Richard Wolfe, Robert Schaetzl, Robert Padget, Richard Palmer, Michael Koon and George Lawton. Every EDC-approved project also must include two residents who live near the site.

These men should be commended for taking an active role in trying to reduce residential taxes, but they must also be willing to be examined closely by the press and public for any possible conflict of interest.

The Canton EDC has already accepted applications for tax-free revenue bond assistance from Grosse Pointe Quality Foods and West Side Auto Parts of Canton. The food firm plans to finance its new warehouse with about $4 million worth of tax-free revenue bonds. The means and ability of a corporation to finance those bonds must be secure, or the intent of the entire program is lost.

People who sit on the EDC board must not lose sight of whom they are working for. Even though they will be trying to attract business, they must remember they are not stockholders in the business. They have a big share in Canton's future.

They are to be a liaison between business and government, not a composite monster incorporating both interests.

If the EDC proves to be a good deal for both parties, all the better. But a desperate attempt to entice business with too many tax breaks would be a detriment to everyone involved.

Tornado time

If spring is less than a week away, so is tornado time.

Oakland County has taken steps in the last two years to set up a siren system. Old-timers, however, can often sense when violent weather is coming: Warm, moist, unstable air flowing up from the Gulf of Mexico meeting a dry push of air from the west and a cool front from the north.

If you hear a siren, learn of a tornado approaching or see one, stay away from the west and south walls of your house; that is the direction a tornado will almost certainly be coming from. Take shelter on the lowest floor in a small room such as a closet or bathroom in the center of the house, and wrap yourself in a blanket or mattress.

In your car, you can avoid a tornado by moving at right angles to it. If you're trapped, get out of the car and drop to the ground in a ditch or under a bridge, making yourself as small a target as possible.

Alert citizens: First line of defense

If anything is clear at the Plymouth Center for Human Development (PCHD), it's that the 850 retarded patients are being, and must continue to be, best protected by plain citizens, not officialdom, not even the press.

We have said it before. The message comes out even more clearly in Federal Judge Charles W. Joiner's and Gov. William Milliken's directive aimed at ending abuse of PCHD residents.

The judge and the governor assigned parents and interested citizens a large role in protecting the retarded from further abuses. The Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens, composed of both parents and friends of the residents, has earned praise for bringing the sad tales to light. But its efforts cannot end with the exposing of deplorable conditions. The citizens group has a large role in correcting the situation:

THE SITUATION is far from corrected. Dr. Donald Smith, director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, has been fired by the governor. Dr. Don K. Worden, regional director, is out of the picture, at least temporarily. Dr. William Womack, director of PCHD, has been reassigned to a less sensitive post within the department.

But while the heads of the bosses rolled—and rightly so, for they failed to clean up the operation—the staff members who abused patients and the supervisors who failed in their duties have yet to be corrected. Changes have started at the top, but they must reach down to the most junior attendant.

Judge Joiner directed a four-member monitoring committee to check all facets of PCHD's operation, at any time of day or night, and report back to him periodically, stipulating: "The committee will be made up of persons from outside the Michigan Department of Mental Health."

His order went on: "Patients and/or guardians of residents of the PCHD will be allowed access to the actual living areas of each ward or living unit at all reasonable times."

GOV. MILLIKEN set up a task force of three to investigate the complaints of abuses, adding:

"The Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens will be invited to observe and monitor all aspects of the task force. The legislature and the public will have full access to the group's deliberations. . .

"The recipient rights process must be strengthened. A Select Citizens Panel was appointed in November to examine the department's policies and procedures with regard to abuse and to recommend needed changes.

"Within 60 days, and in conjunction with the Special Panel, the department will submit a plan to assure adequate safeguards for protecting patients' rights. This plan will include specific recommendations on the structure and lines of authority within the recipient rights system, including an appropriate level of independence for rights advisors.

"The department will continue to assure that parents groups are involved in the total recipient rights process, including appropriate involvement in investigations and allegations of abuse.

"The department will further increase parental and community involvement at our institutions. Citizen advisory groups should be strengthened at each facility. We should assure open visitation at every facility."

Judge Joiner and Gov. Milliken leave no doubt that an alert citizenry, however shopworn that phrase may sound, is still the first and best line of defense for the retarded.

Frequent checks by parents and friends to the Plymouth Center for Human Development are the best safeguard for residents such as Robert (right). (Staff photos)

Drinking, driving: A radical proposal

Tim Richard

Two items, in particular, caught my interest in last Thursday's newspapers.

The daily paper had a story that the Michigan House of Representatives had approved two bills to raise the legal drinking age to 19.

My hometown O&E paper had a story that a man was killed in a one-car accident on I-275 about a mile from my house. Our unpublished information from the police was that he had just come from a Redford Township bar. The accident occurred at 2 a.m. The deceased was 27.

TWO MONTHS AGO, WWJ-TV did a week-long series on teen drinking in which I was one of the news sources. My segment ran on a Friday.

The next day I read in one of the dailies that three persons were killed on a rural Saginaw County road at around 2 or 3 a.m. Their ages ranged from 23 to 27.

One frosty New Year's morning, I was working the city desk of an outstate daily paper when a reporter gave me a story from sheriff's department about a fatal accident. A woman of about 24 had her life snuffed out in a one-car crash on a lonely country road about 3 a.m. She was on her way home from a bar.

I told this to a colleague who was laying out the front page. "What's her name?" he asked. I told him. "That name's familiar. Check the files."

His hunch was right. About six months earlier, the woman's husband had wrapped his car around a tree within a mile of where his widow was killed. He had been coming from the same bar. The accident occurred about 2:15 a.m. He was about 25.

RAISING THE legal minimum on drinking is pretty fashionable these days.

But a legal minimum of 19, 20, 21 or 22 wouldn't have saved the six persons I just mentioned. I have a strong hunch our lawmakers are barking up the wrong tree in their effort to keep people from killing themselves in cars when they have a snootful.

You haven't heard the last of this drinking age issue. There are those who want to raise it back to 21, where it was prior to 1972. They have a petition drive going, or so they say. If they are successful, we will be voting on a law to change the drinking age to 21, probably in the November election.

So keep yourself informed by reading every news story you can about fatal auto accidents. Then ask yourself two questions: First, would raising the drinking age to 21 have saved these lives? Second, at what time of day or night did the crash occur? And if the bars closed at 11 p.m. or midnight, might that driver have made it home safely?

Great Britain closes its bars much earlier than we do—10 a.m. to midnight. It lowered its age of majority to 18 a few years before Michigan did. I have heard of no talk in Britain about raising the drinking age. Maybe they have the solution we're looking for—closing the bars earlier.

I'VE READ material from the Highway Safety Research Institute of the University of Michigan. That study says, "A consistent proportion of all late-night, single-vehicle crashes with a male driver are alcohol-related."

But it goes on to say the study covers accidents between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. There's the rub. We don't know what proportion occurred between 9 p.m. and 12:30 a.m. and what proportion occurred between 12:30 a.m. and 6 a.m.

I've already heard the counter-argument to closing the bars earlier: "People will just start drinking two hours earlier."

I seriously doubt it. Tavern patronage is usually related to another activity—after work, after bowling, after a movie. People wouldn't necessarily start drinking two hours earlier.

And even if they would start drinking earlier, they would be two hours less fatigued and would have dinner in their tummies to slow down the work of the alcohol.

As I said, don't jump to conclusions. Read all the fatal accident stories you can and note what hour of the day they occurred. Then make up your own mind, and please don't be too quick to point the finger at the 18-21 year olds.

The Stroller

A St. Patrick's Day dream

By W.W. EDGAR

Last night as he lay sleeping, The Stroller had a rare dream.

He dreamed Father Time had turned back the pages and that he was down in the city again and it was the morning of St. Patrick's Day. If you never were in the vicinity of Most Holy Trinity Church at Sixth and Porter streets in Detroit, you can't realize what a great feeling it was to be back there reliving the great days of almost a half-century ago.

Celebrating St. Patrick's Day was nothing new to The Stroller. He had celebrated many back in his home town — but that was in the Dutch country, and these celebrations never took on the vastness of those he came to know when he picked up the journalistic trail on the staff of the Detroit Free Press.

Sure, back home, the Irish looked forward to the big day. They had a parade, but it lacked numbers, and the only real celebration was the wearing of a green carnation or a green tie.

THE STROLLER well remembers his paternal grandfather, who had come from County Derry in Ireland. He looked forward to the day because it was the one work day in the year that he wouldn't report for duty.

On all other work days, he toiled on what was called the "iron wharf." There he stacked pig iron all day. At the close of the shift, he would light up his clay pipe (you don't see them any more) and with his cone-shaped felt hat he would head homeward, always stopping for a whiskey and a beer.

But on St. Patrick's Day, he'd dress in what he called his Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes, place a large green carnation in his lapel and stroll downtown.

When The Stroller got to Detroit, he soon found that St. Patrick's Day in the vicinity of Most Holy Trinity Church was virtually a religious holiday.

It so happened that his office was only "a spit and a holler," as the Irish would say, from the famed old church in Corktown, then the Irish capital of the metropolitan area.

ON HIS FIRST ST. Patrick's Day here, The Stroller was spotted by Tommy Long close to lunchtime. Tommy was a former fighter, best remembered for being knocked out in a preliminary to the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo in 1919 — a knockout he always claimed was caused by exhaustion from the intense heat.

Now he was the smiling owner of a watering spot on Fort Street, the saloon that became the gathering place of the Irish when mass ended. On this day when he spotted The Stroller, Tommy grabbed him by the arm and said, "Come on, you Dutchman — you go to mass." There was no getting away from it.

Along the way, Tommy gathered up everyone he knew — Irish, Dutch, Jews, Spaniards, Welshmen, Germans, Italians — and paraded them to the famed old church. Such a conglomeration of "Irish" you never did see. And he was having the time of his life.

IT WAS A PARADE back to Tommy's saloon, and no St. Patrick's Day ever was celebrated with so much gusto.

There were the usual touches such as green beer, clay pipes, shamrocks adorning the tables and walls. But the real high note of the celebration came when Tommy's brother raised his hand to quiet the group.

Then in a rich Irish tenor voice, he sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" to get the group into a singing mood. What a voice he had! In his days back home, The Stroller had heard John McCormack, the famed Irish tenor. But he was no better than Tommy Long's brother when it came to putting real feeling into a song.

BUT WITH ALL the fun, there was a serious note, too.

It came when Tommy's brother called for quiet and then rendered with all the emotion at his command the famous Irish song "Mother Machree."

As the last strains of "Mother Machree" rent the air in Tommy Long's saloon during his dream the other night, The Stroller woke up.

Being Irish for the day was a real treat, and it has lived in memory all these years.

Rough sledding for S'craft race

Editor:

The February snow was evidently too much for our home carrier of the Observer and therefore it wasn't until March 2 that I got a copy of the Feb. 2 paper.

For many years Schoolcraft College has been served well by Observer reeorters and photographers reporting college events. Tim Richard continues that excellence and I think he did a fine job writing a news report of a recent board of trustees meeting and sorting out the issues in writing an editorial on the question of seven, eight or nine trustees for the college. Trustee Raymond (from Livonia), President GQROTE AND I appeared before the Michigan House of Representatives asking that the number of trustees at Schoolcraft be increased to nine (the position of six of the present eight trustees).

Sen. Faust's representative at that meeting told me the Senator had no objection. Months later, Rep. Bob Law met with me and he did indeed do a yeoman job trying to get the conference committee of the house and senate to make it nine. I was told (off the record) to stay out of Lansing. I did and the result is, as able reporter and editor Tim Richard states, going to be tough sledding when I decide to enter the June, 1979 race against trustees Blatt and Kadish (both Livonians).

Let met record also my disappointment that trustees Cowden and Wozniak (also Livonians) did not support the nine-person board.

Power is as power does, I guess, and it looks like the senate education committee as presently constituted doesn't give a damn about the wishes of a publicly elected community college board.

On a different subject, I, personally, remain disappointed the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees did not stay with our Feb. 27 date for a one-mill property tax request. We, the board, have a public responsiblity to account for funds spent and when necessary ask the voters for continued financial support to meet our obligations to students and employees of the college.

I find myself asking: Where are the friends of Schoolcraft College?

GERALD L. COX,
Garden City,
trustee,
Schoolcraft College, 1973-79.

Editor's Note: Gov. William Milliken recently signed the bill putting the membership of the college board at seven members. The new law put the board into conformity with the 1971 court decision which determined the present makeup of the board violated the equal protection laws of the state and federal constitutions. The bill corrects the violation of the one-person/one-vote rule by having board members for the college elected at large.

Hogan humiliating

Editor:

I'm thoroughly ashamed that your newspaper would print such a thoughtless, humilating column as the one written by Hank Hogan about Renee Richards.

I won't begin to enumerate every gross inequity Mr. Hogan chose to heap upon Ms. Richards, but I can't ignore his hypothesis that allowing Ms. Richards to play on the women's tour would launch an epidemic of sex change operations for the sake of the lucrative profit offered by such.

Whether this remark was made as a flippant comment meant to tickle the funny bone is immaterial. There is no room for caustic remarks of this nature in a respected newspaper.

But whether Mr. Hogan's intent was a sorry attempt at humor is beside the point. The point is, Mr. Hogan, you made a circus out of a very serious matter. One does not simply choose to have a sex change. If you'd done any research, instead of relying solely on your ignorance-bred-by-prejudice, you'd understand the long, detailed, and anguished, yes, anguished, preparation that precèdes such an operation.

By making fun of transexuals and advocating denial of their basic rights to be what they wish and to do what they want, you're displaying your own sickness.

Mr. Hogan, please quit trying to be the Ringmaster and tell us how we should feel and react to the idea of transexuality. Your closeted views don't need public expression and, what's more, they narily deserve center ring.

People should be allowed to quit jobs for a reason

Editor:

Open Letter to State Sen. Robert Geake:

I just received your news bulletin wherein you are quoted as saying, "By removing these employees who voluntarily quit their jobs, we would be making more jobs availabe to deserving individuals who are now unemployed. . ." You state this as your defense for passage of a bill prohibiting voluntary quitters from collecting unemployment. Unfortunately, this statement is made from only the employers' point of view. . .the group that holds the entire welfare and existence of every employed individual and their families in their hands.

What you are totally ignoring is the fact of employee abuse. Unfortunately, there are many employers who will do anything, and subject their employees to anything just for their own personal gain.

By passage of such a bill, you would be opening a "Pandora's box" of rampant, illicit employee abuse. Employees would be forced to do things they felt morally or legally wrong because the threat of impending firing would be held over their heads. Many could be threatened with blackball from the entire job market in those ar3as of specialized trades. Women are just now making a place for themselves in the working world on the basis of their qualifications. Your bill would be a disastrous reversion to the days of "put up or you will be put out."

As it is now, an employee who is faced with physical, moral or any other abuse can walk away from such a situation with the security that his or her family will not starve while they are temporarily out of work.

Yes, our unemployment system needs revamping. I know this from past personal experience. One suggestion is that temporary and part time work be continually posted and available to unemployed persons, and without the fear of their losing their only real subsistence.

I have been looking for a housekeeper to come in once a week. I know of at least a dozen other women in the same position. We have called the Employment Security Commission and they refuse. . .refuse to post this as it is not full time work—"it's too bothersome, it's too much paperwork," etc. Is it anymore paperwork than all the unemployment filings it could eliminate? A person could make full time work out of a few such part time positions.

There is work out there. . .and lots of it. There is a dire need for handymen, yardkeepers, housekeepers, babysitters, senior citizen sitters, etc.

I wish I had a penny for every person in the unemployment lines who so often stated, "Why should I go out and do that kind of work when I can just come in and collect unemployment?"

Then again, there are a lot of unemployed people who would give their eyeteeth for this kind of work, but have no way of access to it.

Yes, unemployment needs a real cleaning up. . .but subjecting people to employers' abuse is not the way. . .and a bill to prohibit people who voluntarily quit their jobs would do just that.

Get act together

Editor:

I am indignant that you at the Observer have seen fit to print stories about a private nursing home on the front page of your paper for the past few weeks while in the March 9th issue you bury on Page 14 an almost identical story about a county operated nursing home which is "threatening" to "evict" 178 patients because of inadequate financial reimbursement.

I think it is time you at the Observer got your act together and started providing this community with fair, honest journalism.

Bill to raise drinking age to 19 passes house

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Eighteen year olds won't be crying in their beer anymore.

Not after two bills raising the drinking age to 19 in Michigan become law.

The bills raising the age of drinking and purchase recently passed the Michigan House by votes of 73-28 and 71-28.

Oakland County representatives were overwhelmingly in favor of the move, voting 5-1 to deprive 18-year-olds of the right to drink.

Reps. Wilbur (Sandy) Brotherton (R-Farmington), James Defebaugh (R-Birmingham), Richard Fessler (R-Union Lake), Ruth McNamee (R-Birmingham) and Sal Rocca (D-Sterling Heights), whose district includes a portion of Troy, voted for the change.

Rep. Joseph Forbes (D-Oak Park), Democratic floor leader, opposed the bills.

"IF YOU'RE going to make young people adults we should make them whole adults and not just part adults," said Forbes, whose district includes part of Southfield.

The bills were an answer to what was seen as an increasing problem of alcohol abuse among teenagers. School officials had been complaining that 18-year-old high school seniors were buying liquor and distributing it among younger students leading to disciplinary problems in the schools.

"If you go down the police records to see who's being brought in drunk, you'll see that the alcohol problem doesn't stop at age 25," Forbes said. "It goes right on up to the older people.

"The whole bill just leaves a bad taste in my mouth."

Forbes said raising the drinking age will not eliminate the problems."Remember the young people aren't drunk as a result of our law. The problem will still be there. The same adults who are doing the screaming now still load up their houses with liquor.

"I wonder, of all those who voted 'aye,' how many of them really felt deep down in their hearts that they were right?

"It's just another crisis for the young people," he said.

BROTHERTON, who voted for the bills, also questioned its effects.

He said raising the drinking age by one year probably would not eliminate many problems.

The selling point of the package, he said, was the chance to eliminate some of the problems in the schools.

"It would eliminate the easy access," Brotherton said. "It was easy for an 18-year-old senior to go down to the Quik Pik store and pick up a six-pack and bring it back to school and share it with his friends. Maybe now that will change," he said.

THE DATE the new drinking age will take effect has not been set. The Michigan House had intended the bills to take effect Dec. 3, 1978. However, a procedural error may delay it until April 1, 1979. The House is attempting to correct that error.

The bills contain a "grandfather clause" which would allow those who turned 18 before the law takes effect to continue to drink even though they have not reached the new drinking age.

A love spell for either sex

Dear Gundella,

Recently you said in your column that March 18 was a good day on which to begin a love spell. Do you know a good one I can use?

Tish, Livonia

Dear Tish,

Since I cannot tell from your name whether you are male or female, I am giving you a spell which may be used by either sex.

ROSE OF LOVE SPELL

For this spell, you will need a bottle of dove's blood ink. (This may be purchased at the Goodwill Candle Co., 300 E. Milwaukee in Detroit, or at any good occult store.) You will also need one white rosebud, as nearly perfect as you can find.

Pour the ink into a bud vase. To this, add three drops of blood from the ring finger of your own left hand.

Cut the stem of the rose on a slant, and stand it in this liquid. In a few hours, the rose will change from white to red. Remove it from the vase and wash the stem well with cool rain water (or melted snow).

Then present this flower as a gift to the one you desire.

Dear Gundella,

I am a happily married woman. My problem is my mother. When my father died, he left her well-off financially. She has now married a much younger man who has quit his job to be free to travel with her.

They spend all of their time together, and are presently vacationing in Florida. They have been married for over a year, and mother is still deliriously happy.

How can I make her see that this man only married her for her money? We have all told her that he is using her for a meal ticket, but she will not listen.

Worried daughter,
Farmington, Mich.

Dear Worried,

If the young man is true to your mother, and spends his time making her happy, then I fail to see the problem.

Your mother knows what this relationship is costing her in dollars and cents, and obviously feels it is worth it.

My advice to you is the same advice I give parents who wish to interfere in their children's marriages. Mind your own business, and let them enjoy life in their own way.

Next month, Gundella will be conducting a weekend workshop in reincarnation and astral travel. For more information, you may call her at 427-1072.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

by ELLIE GRAHAM

Dear Julie and Tex:

It won't be the same around here without you. I know you've heard that one before.

But, if San Francisco is what you want, so be it. We wish you well. This, in spite of a general feeling of personal loss.

It seems more than 13 years ago that you started Wayside, the glass and china shop in the old building on Ann Arbor Road. It soon became a regular port of call.

The attraction wasn't entirely Julie's penchant for stocking those sometimes rickety shelves and tables with exactly the right merchandise. Julie, herself—always herself—turned a shopping trip into a friendly visit.

There was enthusiasm, and there was time for talk. There was time to hear about your discovery of old glass factories hidden away in the Ohio hill country. Places where they still used the original molds.

There was time for discussion and coming up with just the right baby, wedding or shower gift.

WHEN THE OLD D&C Store of the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail was converted to a mini mall, Wayside moved to town.

Much fancier quarters now, staff was added, but the take-your-time mood remained. Browsing was condoned, encouraged and expected.

It was small town, it was charming, and we loved it.

AND IF A decision couldn't be reached, you helped solve the problem.

Who else would suggest a small lampshade in a little box for a daughter-in-law's birthday present?

The enclosed note read: "When you return this shade to Wayside you can choose any one you wish to replace the glass shade the kids broke. Happy birthday."

"Do you want to give her a price limit?" you asked.

"No. Let her have the one she wants."

"Okay, I'll send you a bill after she picks it up."

The result: A delighted and some what unbelieving daughter-in-law (who was born and reared in a large city).

When the bill arrived a few weeks later, it included a brief explanation—"Andrea picked the . . . "

What a pleasant way to do business!

YOU ARE a great team. You served as a catalyst to the whole downtown area, encouraging fledgling businesses and taking an active role in Chamber of Commerce and city affairs.

You added a spark and excitement that generated and was part of a new faith.

Making your home in the renovated loft over the old store on Penniman may have been a temporary compromise with your yen for San Francisco. Your second shop, "Sideways," has a definite city-on-the-bay atmosphere.

No one but the Thomans would write "San Francisco, June 1978" on their blackboard as a top priority item and proceed to make it happen.

Tex and Julie, we'll miss you and your flair for living. Perhaps you'll inspire some of the rest of us to "get off our duffs" and do a little living of our own.

Take care
Ellie

VIRGINIA GRAHAM received the red carpet treatment when she arrived in Plymouth late Tuesday afternoon. She came to the Mayflower Hotel a day early for her speaking engagement with the Livonia Town Hall series.

Creon Smith and Kirk Lorenz couldn't resist the temptation to plan a cocktail party in her honor. Mrs. Graham is a teetolaler but she enjoyed every minute of it.

The red carpet was rolled out and when she alighted from the hotel's English cab, a contingent from the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps piped her into the Mayflower.

Creon presented her with a bouquet of flowers and the party was on.

Her first impulse was to change into something more glamorous and "more uncomfortable," (her words).

"But you're not dressed up and you've been waiting, so I'll stay the way I am," she decided. Someone whisked away her dark full-lenghth mink and she still was the most dressed up person at the reception.

AFTER EXCLAIMING about the lobby of the 50-year-old hotel, "Isn't this the dearest place? I love it," it was like old home week. Virginia settled down to chat about everything and everybody.

"I started out in the newspaper business when I was just 15. I covered the St. Valentine's Day massacre for Chicago Tribune. My school was just a block away from the massacre. I said at the time they must have rented those police uniforms from a costume rental place." It wasn't until she married Harry, years later, that she discovered she was right. Harry's father had rented out the costumes.

South of the border holiday for scouts

Excitement was in the air Monday evening as members of Girl Scout Troop 501 met for the last time before their departure for Mexico. Striking poses in front of the blanket which will be their gift to Our Cabana were (from left) Sue Sparling, Leader Martha Bentley, Sandy Burger, Cindy Paul, Nancy Bentley, Katie Brink, LeAnna Wheeler and Linda Scruggs. (Staff photo)

Take-off time was planned for 3:35 p.m. today from Metropolitan Airport. Ten girl scouts and three leaders from Senior Troop 501 are on their way to Mexico. With a stopover in Dallas, their ETA in Mexico City was 8:15 p.m. where they will spent the night in Hotel Metropole.

Tomorrow, they will tour the capital city and leave by bus Saturday for Our Cabana, an international center in Cuernavaca for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides of the World Association.

Their itinerary calls for a week at the cabana, before they return to Mexico City.There will be time for shopping tours, a bullfight, side trips to opal mines, pyramids, shrines, cathedrals and museums before they come home April 3.

THE MEXICAN trip was no spur-of-the-moment venture for Troop 501. Months of planning and find-raising went into the project.

There were car washes, and sales of girl scout cookies, calendars and area association patches. These enterprising young women set up cookie sales booths at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, the Penniman Avenue Shops, Forest Place Mall, Plymouth Bowl and Family Discount.

During their stay at Our Cabana, they they will conduct craft classes for about 100 boys, ages 3-7, at a nearby school.

They planned to make butterflies, pinwheels, sewing cards (from paper plates and meat trays), soap with decals, and decorated butter tubs.

Three large suitcases were filled with crafts materials. They also took along their gift to the cabana—a large blanket embroidered with their troop number and names—and toys for distribution at the cabana Christmas party.

Uniforms were required dress for public appearances but casual clothes were permissable while at the cabana.

LEADERS OF the troop are Martha Bentley, Shirley Brink and Ruth Dostie.

Scouts are Nancy Bentley, Katie Brink, Sandy Burger, Myra Dostie, Julie Englehart, Cindy Paul, Karen Schnoes, Linda Scruggs, Sue Sparling and LeAnna Wheeler.

There was gloom at Monday night's meeting in First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. Two troop members who had planned to go were too ill to make the trip. Beth Martinek and Lisa Raycraft had to stay home.

AAUW is good training ground

Celebrating a 58th birthday sometimes causes men and women to take stock of their lives and assess their usefulness.

The same is being done this week by the League of Women Voters. On its 58th birthday it is reminding itself that it is a good training ground for those who want to become active in the political or civic life of their communities.

Both the Livonia and the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi leagues have a number of members who are putting their experience to good use in various public service posts.

Phyllis Cowden contributes her thoughts to the Livonia water board and Esther Friedrichs is on the city planning commission.

Nancie Blatt of the Livonia organization is a member of the board of trustees of Schoolcraft College, while Geraldine Joyner serves as president of the board of the WAYNE County Intermediate School District.

Other Livonian activists are Jeam Norman and Maureen Delaney, who are on the school board advisory committee. Robert Young is a member of the parents advisory committee for special education, and Marilyn Grove has been working on the declining enrollment committee and the citizens' millage committee.

Margeret Thomas is chairperson of the legislative committee of the Michigan Library Association, and Lorraine Kornigger and Julie Paddison have committed themselves to the community education advisory council.

Beverly McAninch of the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi League is a member of the Plymouth city commission and has served as mayor of Plymoutdh. She has also been a member of the board of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority and currently represents her city on the Council of Regional Development of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Lynne Goldsmith is a Canton Township trustee and represents the township as a delegate to the Rouge River Watershed Council. Catherine Prince has joined the Canton zoning board of appeals, and Flossie Tonda won a spot on the Plymouth-Canton school board.

Romaine Roethel is mayor of Novi. Carolann Ayers works on the Northville Library Commission, Lesa Buckland is on the Northville planning commission and Sandy Watts serves the same city as a member of the zoning board of appeals. Karen Wilkinson is on the city's school board.

Among the displays will be entries from Camp Fire 1977 National Art Competition, and an exhibit focusing on endangered species.

The 1,000-plus Camp Fire birthday celebrants will be coming from all corners of the Detroit Area Counci which services Wayne, Macomb , Oakland and Livingston counties.

Sun Day contest for young artists

Sun Day isn't just another day of the week. It's on May 3 and will mark a national celebration of the solar age.

Sponsored by environmental groups around the nation, the day is designed to focus attention on the sun and its obvious potential for providing energy. As the energy crunch tightens, scientists are looking more to the sun as a clean, efficient source of energy.

But even the scientists need a hand in developing ways to better use solar energy—and some of the best ideas come from the young.

That's why the Observer and Eccentric newspapers are co-sponsoring a children's drawing contest along with two local environmental groups, Concern Inc. Detroit and the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council (EMEAC). We're looking for ideas on how the sun can warm—or cool—our lives.

"I think children may have interesting ideas on solar energy as being the safe, clean energy of the future," said Sarah McGagh of EMEAC.

"If it's not the answer to all our energy needs, then it is indeed the answer to some of them," said Grace Gluskin, executive director of Concern.

Besides providing warmth, the sun also indirectly provides wind power and oxygen from plants. It also has the advantages of being free, clean and safe, available to every country on earth and that its technology is understood.

Young artists in grades four through eight are invited to make a drawing, collage or painting which depicts ways in which the sun provides energy for us today or could in the future. Entries should be mailed or sent to the nearest Observer or Eccentric newspaper office by April 21.

Twelve finalists will be selected from each newspaper circulation area. They will compete for the top three prizes of a 10-speed bike, donated by Kmart; a skateboard, donated by Don Thomas Sporthaus; and a backpack donated by Benchmark.

The contest rules are simple. Artwork should be done on a nine-inch by 12-inch sheet of paper or a nine-inch by 18-inch sheet. On the reverse side, include the following information: name, address, phone number, age, school, grade and teacher's name.

Drawings will be judged by a panel of scientists and artists for content and artistic technique. The nine runners-up will receive honorable mention prizes.

Drop off entries to one of the following offices:

- Plymouth Observer, 461 S. Main, Plymouth 48170;
- Livonia, Garden City, Westland and Redford Observer office, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150;
- Southfield-Farmington office, 22170 W. Nine Mile, Southfield 48037;
- Birmingham, West Bloomfield and Troy office, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012;

The View

Her latest book, "If I Made It, So Can You," has been published and soon will be available. The title is a direct quote from a conversation she had with Totie Fields who called her from the hospital.

"She's dying, bit by bit, you know—cancer and diabetes."

LIVONIA WAS well represented at the party—Mayor Ed McNamara, Judge James McCann and Councilman Bob Bennett and his wife, Jan. Jean Morrison of the Town Hall board was there.

Linda Witherspoon of Detroit Food and Beverage attended. Lorraine Ford, John and Pat Cross were among the throng of guests and newspaper types.

The conversation inevitably got around to football and the Detroit Lions in the vicinity of Jerri and Earl Brown of Westland. Earl coached ends on offense and backs on defense in the great days of Buddy Parker, Bobby Lane and Doak Walker.

It was a good party.

Canton Chatter

Tomorrow is a big day. Let me say just one thing about St. Patrick's Day: Hurrah!

I remember when I was a kid, there were rumors always floating around about who was supposed to wear green on St. Patrick's Day. Some were under the impression that only those who were of Irish descent were allowed to wear the color.

Others said only if you were Irish and also Roman Catholic could you celebrate this day since St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland in the Catholic Church.

Now if you were not Catholic, but were of Irish descent the color to wear was orange in opposition to the wearin' of the green.

I never knew what color to wear when I was young and I still don't know. I never can find anything green anyway.

My dad always said not to worry about it since I had the map of Ireland written all over my face, so I never did. (If you've never seen the map of Ireland, drop by.) Happy St. Patricks Day. Go Green!

Members of Newcomers can make their reservation by calling Helen Wesner. Hospitality begins at 7 p.m. with the meeting at 7:30. Dinner will be served at 8 p.m. Ben Franklin will speak at 9. The price por the show is $8.

Wife of slain missionary talks of miracles

By MARGARET MILLER

Lena Eschtruth, a woman whose missionary husband was executed in Zaire, still brings from that African country word of how "God is doing miraculous things" amid the turmoil.

Mrs. Eschtruth, airlifted out of Africa a year ago after her husband, Glen, was captured by Communist rebels and put to death, came to Livonia to speak for the Lenten breakfast at Faith Lutheran Church.

"Where there are prayerful people, God is able to work miracles," she told the women. "How this is we don't know.

"But we do know that the people driven from the area where we worked are back, the hospital is operating and the church today is stronger than ever before."

Mrs. Eschtruth, now making her home with her daughter in St. Clair Shores, came to the breakfast with longtime friend Lois Brown, mother of Livonia Councilman Jerry Brown. She was introduced by Shirley Miller of Faith Lutheran as "the most fitting speaker we could have at this season."

"We think especially at Lent of how God gave his son to die for us," said Mrs. Miller, "and Lena knows what it's like to give up a loved one for Christ. She's been there."

"WHEN THEY TOOK Glen away, I thought my life had come to a screaming halt," the articulate, soft-spoken former missionary said.

"The next five weeks were the hardest of my life, because I always had hope: I didn't know until just before I left that he had been executed right after he was taken.

"What was most difficult was seeing what the soldiers did to the people, constantly searching and confiscating everything electric or with wheels, so we could not leave or send a message."

She said a few days after her husband's arrest "I did not think I could take much more and I was praying for strength."

"Just then," she added, "there came into my mind the words of the psalm, 'Be still and know that I am God,' and the words of Jesus 'Lo, I am with you always.'"

THE SPEAKER talked about some of the history of mission work in the Belgian Congo, now Zaire, and said the foundations were established by "God working through the people there."

She then told of the time about a year ago when she and her husband worked their last days at Samuteb Hospital, an institution he established there after being assigned during the 1960s by the United Methodist Church as a medical missionary to Africa.

Throughout her talk she emphasized the power of prayer as she saw it in the happenings at the mission.

One such event described by Mrs. Eschtruth involved the illness of Doris Davis, a missionary, at the Christmas season in 1976.

"She fell ill with a bleeding ulcer," recounted the speaker, "and Glen did not think she could survive an operation. She did, though, and she also survived three periods of hemorrhaging."

AT THAT POINT, Mrs. Eschtruth said, her husband decided it was necessary to get the ill woman out of Zaire and to Brussels.

"But we had surrendered our passports, so there was no way he could take her there," she went on. "He needed a miracle."

He got one, she said, when he drove into the city of Kapanga and happened to see, on Christmas Eve when government offices were closed, "the only man who could get back his papers for him."

The end of the story, said Mrs. Eschtruth, was that the missionary recovered, but she called it "no coincidence."

"People at the mission and hospital had been praying continuously for 90 hours when Glen managed to get her out of the country," she said. "Groups were praying in our home churches in this country. And in Brussels Glen met a young nurse who had been trained in our hospital and she organized a praying community in that city.

"Prayers were being said on three continents for one person. Today she is as healthy as any of us."

DESCRIPTIONS of how the mission survived after the Communist arrival and how the work there was resumed later, all were put forth by Mrs. Eschtruth as examples of "how God was taking care of us and testing us."

"After the rebels arrived they also confiscated our food," she said, "so we pooled what we had left. I had planted a garden that year for the first time—I don't know why. We ate lettuce from that garden for weeks.

"They stripped our fruit trees at the bearing season, but one little mango tree they missed just went on bearing long after it should have stopped. They took most of my chickens, but we saved two old hens and they supplied eggs for our pilot's wife, who was pregnant.

"One little lady watched the guards near our doors, and, when they went off duty for a few minutes, she rushed in with a basketful of food, then dashed out before they could catch her.

"Every day was a miracle."

Church to receive charter members

The Faith Community Church in Canton Township will begin to receive charter members on Palm Sunday, March 19, at the family worship service at 10:30 p.m.

The church meets in Pioneer School, 46081 Ann Arbor Road.

This is the first step toward official recognition as a congregation of the Moravian Church, the congregation's sponsoring denomination. When 60 persons have signed the charter, the congregation will be formally organized and constituted as a Moravian congregation.

The Moravian denomination is a mainline, Protestant church which emphasizes living out the Christian faith in a community of mutual love. It affirms the faith common to Protestant churches, but does not stress rigid theology.

Worship services are conducted in a relaxed style and include a special children's lesson at each one. A Sunday school for 3-year-olds through sixth graders meets at 9:15 a.m.

The congregation hopes to erect a building later this year on Warren Road, just west of Canton Center Road.

REV. HARVEY HENEVELD

Pastor sees growth potential

The pastor of the soon-to-be-formed People's Church hopes the congregation will grow as rapidly as Canton, the township in which it will be located.

The Rev. Harvey Heneveld has been assigned by the Reformed Church in America to establish a reformed church in Canton as part of its $5 million expansion plan for the country.

"There is tremendous growth potential here," said Heneveld about Canton. "We hope to become a regional church, one that will have a program, staff and services to minister to a large geographical area."

The immediate plan calls for organizing a congregation which will begin meeting this spring. Arrangements have been made to lease the cafeteria of the Plymouth-Canton High School.

Use of a large facility fits the plans of the pastor for People's Church. He wants to make sure there will be adequate room for services which, on occasion, will include Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and Dr. Robert Schuller, pastors of two of the largest Reformed Churches in America.

Selecting a site for a new church is also high on Heneveld's list of priorities.

The 32-year-old pastor is married. He and his wife, Elaine, have three children—David, 7, Becky, 3, and Beth, 20 months. He served more than four years at the Mason County Reformed Church near Ludington. He also interned with Dr. Schuller at Garden Grove Community Church in Garden Grove, Calif.

He attended Hope College and graduated in 1973 from Western Theological Seminary. His home is at 153 Corinne, Canton, and he can be reached at 981-0499

Single Point hears Kuhnle

The Single Point, a Christian adult singles group, will present the executive director of the Voice of Christian Youth at 7:30 p.m. March 17 in Ward United Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington, Livonia.

Al Kuhnle will talk on "Then There Was God," in a speech that will discuss how to apply successfully Christian principles to life problems and career goals.

The organization for which he works conducts programs for teenagers and tries to help juvenile deliquents and other troubled young people.

The Single Point is interdenominational and meets at 7:30 p.m. the first and third Friday of the month in Ward church, which sponsors the group.

Ex-psychic is speaker

Mary Titeca, a psychic reader and medium for many years before accepting Christianity, will be speaker for the Women's Aglow Fellowship breakfast meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday, March 18, in the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

Youtheatre looks at Kennedys

Celebrating St. Patrick's Day, Detroit Youtheatre will present "The Road to Camelot," a live musical play, on Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

"Camelot" is the story of the Kennedy family who trace their roots from Ireland to the Oval Office of the White House. Performed by New York's Performing Arts Repertory Theatre, "Camelot" will have completed 19 performances throughout the state as part of the art institute's "Show on the Road" program, before its Youtheatre engagements.

The presentation is especially designed for families with youngsters seven years old and up. Children under five will not be admitted.

As a special St. Patrick's Day bonus, anyone wearing green may purchase tickets at a 25 per cent discount.

For tickets and information, call the Detroit Institute of Arts ticket office at 832-2730.

Morality play will be staged

The Quality Players, a non-profit theatrical group at Wayne State University, will give performances of the morality play "Two Can Play at This Game" March 24 and 31.

Both performances will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Community Arts Auditorium, Cass at Kirby in Detroit.

The drama, written by James Jones, deals with a young, ambitious couple whose career plans are interrupted by a miscarriage of justice.

Tickets can be purchased at Hudson's Downtown and Northland stores. For more information, call 491-2183.

Cordoba's stages 'The Odd Couple'

A new Nancy Gurwin production ofNeil Simon's Broadway comedy hit "The Odd Couple" will open March 30 at Cordoba's Dinner Playhouse, 29703 W. Seven Mile, west of Middlebelt, Livonia.

"The Odd Couple" will be performed every Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening; dinner 7 p.m., show 8:30. Sunday dinner is at 6 p.m., show 7:30. Reservations can be made by calling 477-2686.

Cinderella liberated at museum

The Henry Ford Museum presentation of the children's classic "Cindrella" adds a playful twist to this timeless tale by giving the heroine inner beauty instead of good looks.

Performances are at 2 p.m. March 18, 25, 27-31, April 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29.

In this version, Cinderella is the ugly duckling in a household of cruel but beautiful stepsisters. The handsome prince lives in a palace inhabited by glamorous women, but he yearns for inner beauty.

The play, adapted for the theater by Joseph French, manager, Theater Arts Department, Henry Ford Museum, still contains the classic episode with the glass slipper and many of the characters of the original story, including the fairy godmother and the stepmother.

Special attractions make the presentation particularly appealing to youngsters. Stage effects make brooms and other household goods seem to come magically to life and befriend Cinderella.

Regular museum hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. For further information, call 271-1620.

Show opening at Mr. Mac's

The Broadway hit "A Thousand Clowns" will open March 31 at Mr. Mac's Stable in the Parklane Towers in Dearborn.

The show is about a bachelor uncle who has been left to rear his 15-year-old nephew.

This is no way to raise a boy, so a social service team comes to investigate him. He has to go to work or lose his nephew. On the other hand, he may marry the girl social worker.

Reservations for this Theatre of the Arts Cocktail Playhouse presentation may be made by calling 649-0903.

Musical tragedy

John Hardy as the Reverend Kumalo (left) and William Boswell as Arthur Jarvis agonize over the unfortunate death of one son and the eventual hanging of the other son in the musical tragedy "Lost in the Stars." The Detroit Repertory Theatre production opens tonight and runs through May 7. Reservations are advised; for tickets call 868-1347.

Refined. Colorful. Tasteful. Informal.
And about as somber as the World Series.

Holly's By Golly. Family dining reconsidered. We've got modestly priced American food...lavishly seasoned with spectacular diversions.

Giant-screen TV. Silent as well as sound movies. Computer games. Popcorn from an old-fashioned popcorn machine. A Mug Club. Lively entertainment on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nites. Ice cream cocktails.

A family tree. Warm, friendly service. And all the natural sounds of families congregating.

By Golly, it's everything. And then some.

A2 Film Fest runs to Sunday

The Ann Arbor Film Festival, perhaps Michigan's most widely recognized contribution to the arts, is running in its 16th year through Sunday in the old Architecture and Design Auditorium on the Main Campus of the University of Michigan.

The 16mm films submitted to Festival Director George Manupelli by independent producers and artists from throughout North American and overseas will comprise more than 140 hours in total running time, out of which festival officals will select 25—30 hours to be shown to the public and festival judges.

Public screenings will be at 7, 9 and 11 daily in both the old Architecture and Design Auditorium and Auditorium A in the U—M's Angell Hall.

Some of the more noted artists who have entered films in the 1978 festival are; James Benning, top prize winner last year at Ann Arbor and Athens, Ohio, and widely acclaimed throughout the country for his film "11x14"; Claude LeLouch, director of the French film "A Man and a Woman"; and Academy Award—winning animator, Will Vinton.

In past years, the festival has attracted performances from such artists as Andy Warhol, who appeared with the velvet underground in the early stages of his career, and New York costume artist Pat Olesko—scheduled to appear again at this year's festival.

Films presented at previous festivals have won the coveted Academy Award Oscar following their opening at the Ann Arbor Film Festival. Most recent winner was Frank Mouris' "Frank Film" which received an Oscar for best animation in 1975.

AWARDS FOR prize—winning films run as high as the $750 Tom Berman Award for the "most promising film maker in the festival."

In addition; Mike Getz of Underground Cinema—12 attends the festival to select films for leading theaters he operates throughout the U.S.

Concert stars Don McLean

Singer-Songwriter Don McLean("And I Love You So," "American Pie," "Dreidel," "Vincent") will appearin concert Sunday at the Black Sheep Repertory Theatre in Manchester.

Quebec is a joy, even when it's cold

Jack Rabbit is the nickname of a familiar Quebec aspect of "Joie de Vivre." The "Joy of Life" in Quebec is an amalgamation of mountain slopes and cafes, cathedrals and Carnaval.

Jack Rabbit is a legendary 103-year-old who lives between Montreal and Quebec and still skis cross-country. His name is on a brand of ski wax. The story of Jack Rabbit was told to me by Mark Hardey, who just might one day be a candidate to take over the legend.

Hardey works with the Canadian Government Department of Tourism and is 57 years old. He has been skiing in earnest for only the last seven years after a long abstinence, but has returned to the sport with a vengeance. He competes in 46-mile races. As a boy, he would ski cross-country to the mountain slopes, change the bindings and use the same skis to ski downhill for a few hours before switching again and skiing home.

Mont Ste. Anne is 25 miles east of Quebec, 2,050 feet of icy runs including several that are more than three miles long. It is the site for many ski contests, yet some of the runs are gentle enough for the amateur. A gondola lift to the summit seems endless, with a heart-stopping view of rural Quebec and the frozen St. Lawrence Seaway.

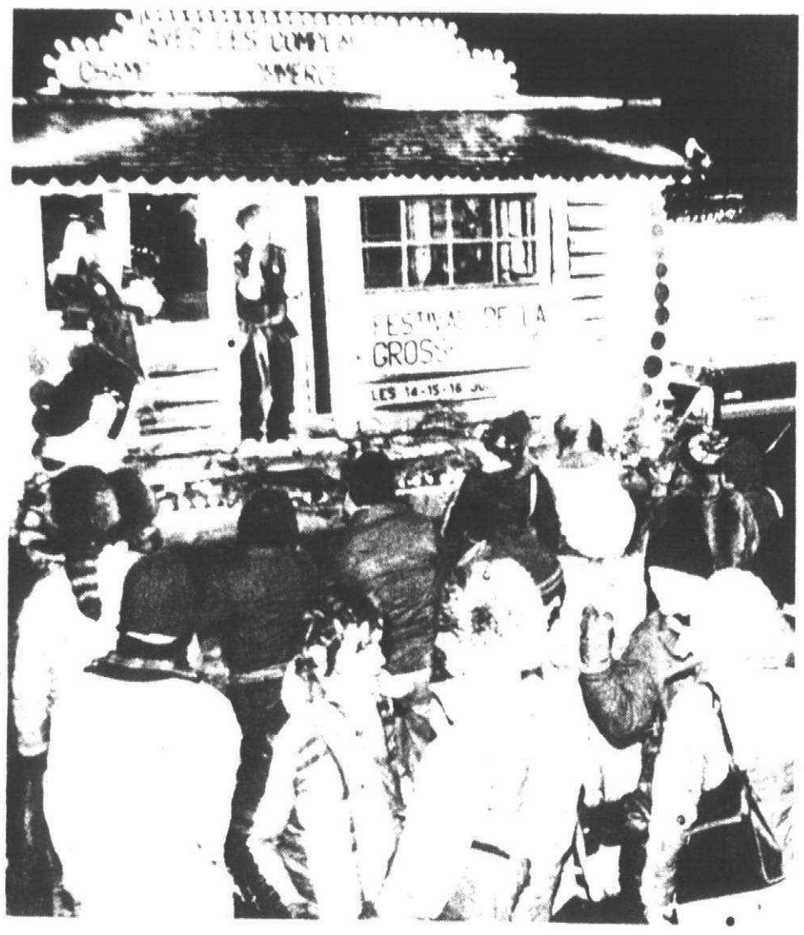
THE MOUNTAIN is being developed for active recreation and includes nearly 70 miles of cross country trails, summer camping, a new ski jump and hiking trails.

Part of the Joie de Vivre is not merely coping with snow and cold, as most do in Michigan, waiting for spring, but reveling in the winter. The snow seems to bother no one in Quebec, except perhaps the tourists from Florida with sunburn instead of windburn.

Le Carnaval is an annual event in the city where the love of snow and refusal to hibernate dominate.

As a guest of the Canadian Department of Tourism, I accompanied a media group to study first hand effects of the mid-winter madness known as Le Carnaval.

Quebec is a mix of the old and the new. Le Carnaval is only a quarter century old, yet already tradition-bound. Carnaval Square surrounds an ice castle built every year from ice and metal struts. Ice sculptors try their hand at dragons and sleighs, with entries from Iran, Japan and this year's winner, Canada's Inuit Indians.



Colorful float goes by during Carnaval, which attracts upwards of a half-million visitors to Quebec each winter.

Travel

Dancing is a Carnaval mainstay, at midnight and beyond, in weather that hovered accommodatingly between 10 and 20 degrees fahrenheit. The music was English Canadian and United States disco, but many of the dancers, and much of the population of Quebec, is French-speaking.

THERE IS A drink produced in Quebec particularly popular around Carnaval time. It is an alcohol-fortified red wine known as Caribou. It is named for the traditional but non-alcoholic Caribou blood drunk by trappers, hunters and travelers. Carnaval revelers carry the drink in hollow plastic canes and horns. To see somebody lugging a cold six-pack means that there are tourists in the crowd.

A parade of floats, marchers and masqueraders is held on the main thoroughfare, many of the floats carved from ice and aglow with electric lights. Some of the marchers wear only shirts and jackets, without coats. Typical Carnaval garb includes a toque, or hat, and long, flowing sash wrapped around the waist. Hats and sashes, but not necessarily gloves, earmuffs or even coats.

In the daytime, there are more furs on two legs than you will see in any city in the States. Full-length coats are worn by as many men as women, and ski suits abound.

On the frozen river during the daytime, there are races: a four-wheel drive race, a snowshoe race, and the Carnaval tradition of canoe races with soaked participants fighting their way around and over the ice flows.

THE HOTEL de la Concorde, where we stayed, is as modern a hotel as you'd find in Washington D.C. or Detroit. It has the revolving restaurant at the 59th floor that is almost a hotel mainstay these days. If you dial room service, they will answer in English. The breakfast-fare is familiar, the rooftop serving primarily steak and lobster. There is even a discotheque in the basement and the closest you get to true Quebecois is a view of the old city for a portion of that 360 degree spin while eating.

But Quebec, even at Carnaval, is not all modern revelry. Jacques Cartier wrote in 1535, "from the middle of November until the 15th day of April, we have been continually closed in by ice, which is of a thickness of more than 10 feet. . .and on the inside walls, there is a layer of ice which is four fingers thick."

Naval architect Francois Cordeau reconstructed Cartier's ship, La Grande Hermine, with research done by the Ecole Polytechnique de Montreal. Seeing the ship and its stark confines, lends a taste of true Quebecois. Anyone taller than than 5-5 has trouble moving in the passageways.

The crew slept on piles of straw next to the livestock. Captain's quarters were a private, dark little closet.

The inner city of Quebec is a government-owned historic district. Any new business must follow rigid guidelines before operating. Some of the buildings date back more than 300 years. And they aren't roped-off museums. They are wine cellars, shops and restaurants.

QUEBEC IS not a tourist town, despite the half-million revelers it allegedly attracts during Carnaval, as many visitors as the year-round population of the city itself.

It is not a Disneyland putting on airs to please tourists. There is history, and heritage, and new concerns facing Quebec. Most of its people speak French, and resent a government largely to the west that is English-speaking. People seem convinced the separatist Quebecois movement is a reality, not a feint to meet demands.

Staunchly proud, rich in heritage, Quebec can be a retreat for the winter blues as much as a jaunt to Florida. Its people are undaunted by winter. And its discos and brevity can easily be avoided by a stroll to a brunch cafe, a gaze at the frosen St. Lawrence, a trip to the wine cellar for a glass of Caribou.

Folk singer Chuck Mitchell, who is from Rochester, will open a two-week stay Wednesday at the Raven Gallery in Southfield. Show times are Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday at 9:30 p.m.; Friday and Saturday at 9:30 and 11:30 p.m.

Stan Midgley repeats Hawaii film on Sunday

Stan Midgley will give a special repeat performance of his color movie, "Hawaii in 1977," at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Vanda orchids flown in from Hawaii will be given to women attending the movie.

In the movie, Midgley covers the five major islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui, Kauai and Molokai. He bicycles through downtown Honolulu, visits Waikiki Beach, Pearl Harbor, the Polynesian Center and Sea Life Park.

On the "out" islands he shows resorts on the Kona Coast, the Parker Ranch horse show, the rugged gorges of Waimea Canyon, Hilo and the sizzling eruption of a volcano in Hawaii's Volcanoes National Park.

4 Rock matmen honored

RANDY VIPPERMAN
Plymouth Salem

By DENNIS O'CONNOR and DOUG FUNKE

The sport of wrestling has made great advancements in recent years at the high school level. Many of the fortunes which wrestling has experienced have effected many of the 14 teams in the Observer-area.

Three Observer teams, for example, were ranked among the top 15 squads in the state this season.

Westland John Glenn finished the dual meet season with a 13-1-1 overall record and recorded first-place finishes in both the Northwest Suburban League and Ann Arbor Huron District.

Redford Thurston sported a young team which lost only to Glenn in the regular dual meet season. Thurston placed second in the Northwest Suburban League, finishing with a 12-1 record.

Plymouth Salem won its first-ever Suburban Eight League title as the Rocks won the conference meet to earn a co-championship with Belleville. Salem finished with a 15-2 dual meet record and placed second to Glenn in the district.

In the past, the Observer has named an honor roll wrestling team which included all the state qualifiers. This year, however, the area coaches met to decide who should represent the All-Observer team in each weight class.

Here are the results of that meeting:

FIRST TEAM

Paul Demers, 98 pounds, Westland John Glenn. The little junior finished with a 34-7 record and was named the Rockets' Most Valuable Wrestler this season. He finished first at the John Glenn, Flint Beecher, and Plymouth Salem Invitationals. The honor student was first at the district, second at the regionals and scored at the state meet. He also won the Northwest Suburban League crown.

Randy Vipperman, 105 pounds, Plymouth Salem. The Rock junior compiled a 30-6 overall record this season. He won both the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton Invitationals and was the best wrestler at his weight class at the Suburban Eight League meet. Vipperman also placed second in the Thurston Invitational and third at the Allen Park event.

Steve Ernst, 112 pounds, Plymouth Salem. Ernst did not win a tournament this season but was one of the most consistent grapplers for the Rocks. The senior matman Ended the season with a 33-13 record. He placed second in the Suburban Eight League meet and at the Monroe Invitational. Ernst also finished third at the Thurston, Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Salem, and Schoolcraft Invitationals. He was third at the districts.

Buddy Ault, 119 pounds, Redford Thurston. The junior grappler qualified for the state meet with a second-place finish at the districts and third-place finish at the regionals. He was first at the Thurston, Plymouth Canton, Schoolcraft and Catholic Central

Moshimer will return

Plymouth Salem head football coach Tom Moshimer will be back on the Rock's gridiron this fall.

The colorful mentor, who resigned last August just three weeks before leading the Rocks to a perfect 9-0 record and a spot in the post-season tournament, will return for his 12th season at Plymouth.

"Tom Moshimer will coach for Plymouth Salem next year," said Salem principal Bill Brown. "Tom indicated to me that he wanted to coach and we're happy to have him back.

"He is an exceptional coach."

Although no formal written agreement has been made, Brown indicated that he and Moshimer had met several times at the conclusion of the football season. Brown said he reconsidered Moshimer's resignation "without hesitation."

"It has been mutually agreed that Tom will come back as head coach," the Salem principal said.

Moshimer reaffirmed that it was "mutually agreed" he would coach next season, but wouldn't elaborate any further.

It was spectulated by this reporter that one of the main reasons Moshimer initally resigned was because of a conflict with school administration. The Salem coach wanted to get the last hour of his school schedule free for coaching and teaching conveniences.

Brown stressed that Moshimer will get no special consideration on next year's schedule. Brown said because the Centennial Park was dropping modular scheduling and going back to a traditional format, no formal scheduling has been made for any teacher at the Park.

Brown said Moshimer's schedule would be processed like all the other teachers.

Brown never looked for another coach after Moshimer's resignation in August or after the football season.

"You don't let someone walk out the door who has been so succensful," Brown said.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

It should be pointed out that because no formal written agreement has been signed, Moshimer still has an option not to return until May 1. By that time, school schedules for next fall will begin to take shape.

What does "mutually agreed" mean? Your guess is as good as mine.

Petersen, Finley star

By ANDY MELIN

Sophomore Paul Petersen, setting one of three Plymouth Canton school records, and Craig Finley, Plymouth Salem's sophomore, each led their respective schools last weekend at the boys' Class A state swimming and diving championships.

Ann Arbor Pioneer was crowned state champion at the meet, held at Michigan State University in East Lansing. Birmingham Groves finished second, and Ann Arbor Huron took third.

The Chiefs scored 11 points in the meet to place 28th. The Rocks mustered only three points and finished 38th.

Fifty-seven teams attended the competition, and 46 squads scored points.

Petersen set a Canton school record in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of :54.5, good enough for 11th place. He also took sixth place in his best event, the 100-yard breaststroke. His breaststroke time was 1:02.7—one second behind his personal best this season.

Finley finished 10th in the 500-yard freestyle with a personal best time of 4:52.4.

Rock double qualifier and tri-captain Tom Rubadue placed 15th in both the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard freestyle. His times were :22.6 and :49.6, respectively.

The Chief 200-yard medley relay team of Petersen, and tri-captains Bob Cline, Dave Tanner and Steve Wood set a school record and took 14th place with a clocking of 1:43.4.

Canton's 400-yard freestyle relay foursome of Cline, Wood, Tanner and Mike Gaab also set a school record, finishing 15th in 3:23.0.

Salem's 200-yard medley relay team of Finley, Bob Simone, and tri-captains Rob Kuebler and Mike Etienne placed 20th in 1:44.8.

The Rock 400-yard freestyle relay foursome of Finley, Rubadue, Kuebler and Etienne also finished 20th in 3:24.0.

Canton finished its best season in history with a 11-1 overall record and 7-1 Western Six League mark. The Chiefs took second place in the Western-6 league meet behind Northville.

Salem ended its campaign with a 5-6-1 overall mark a8d 2-4-1 record in Suburban Eight League competition. The Rocks battled illness during the late stages of the season but still placed fourth in he Sub-8 league meet.

Playoffs, awards mark end of jr. cage season

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

The end of another Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball League season was highlighted with many exciting championship games in the league's annual post-season playoff tourney held Saturday afternoon at Pioneer and Central Middle Schools.

At Pioneer, the B League girls, grades 4-5-6, started the action with the Angels defeating the Blues 48-29. The Angels dominated the league this season, finishing as the league and tournament champions.

The B League boys, grades 4-5, played a championship game which was a spectator's delight when the Hawks rallied from a 13-point defecit to nip the Sonics 77-75. The offensive showing included great individual play on both sides.

The Hawks and Sonics peaked during the playoffs as neither club won a division title. The Bullets were American Division champions, while the Mustangs and Pistons shared the National Division crown.

The Stars of the AA League girls, grades 7-8-9, lived up to their league champion status by upending the Angels, 35-28, in the tournament championship contest.

In the final game at Pioneer, two 6-7 grade teams were in the championship game of the A League boys competition as the Royals whipped the Warriors 31-6. The Rocks were the regular season American Division champions of the league. The Celtics won the National Division title.

At Central, the two new leagues, AAA boys and girls, grades 11-12, put on great shows in their championship games.

Diane Goodrich sank a 25-foot jump shot with just one second remaining to give the underdog Blue Jays a 31-30 victory over the league champion Jets in the AAA girls' playoff contest.

The Jays, which finished in second place during the regular season, were behind by a 30-29 count with four seconds left before pulling out the victory.

Goodrich finished with 12 points and Nola Luty sank eight for the winners. Game scoring honors went to the Jets' Becky Crespo who scored 23 of her team's 30 points. Collette Cabadas accounted for the other seven.

The Suns won the rubber game over their arch-rival, the Jazz, scoring a 74-61 victory in the AAA League boys tourney championship.

The Suns and Jazz split regular-season decisions and finished as co-champions of the league.

The Suns were in control all the way in the deciding contest, maintaining a 10-15 point margin throughout the second half. The winners were paced by the sharp shooting of Jim VanBoven who took game honors with 24 points. Bill Kral followed with 19 points and Al Baskins added 10.

The balanced scoring attack of the Jazz was headed by Kris Kappler's 12 points and Stu Roth's 11.

The Suns will represent the Plymouth-Canton community in state tournament action this week in Flint. The Jazz travel to Dearborn for an inter-city tournament.

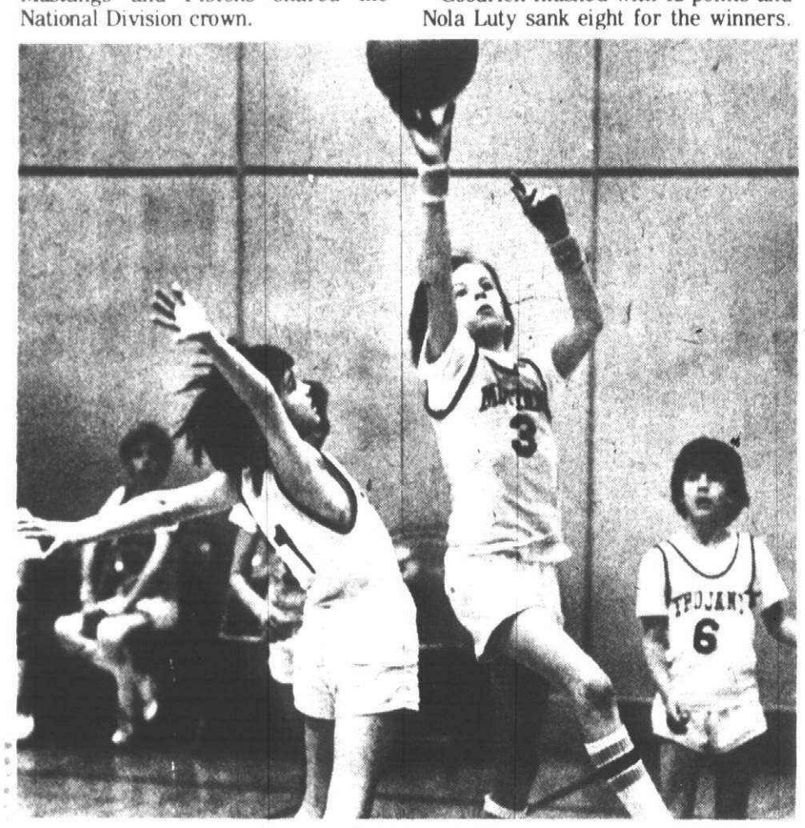
The final tournament game of the day saw the Wolverines defend their league champion status with a playoff victory over the Hoosiers, 80-59, in AA League boys action. The Wolverines topped the 8-9-10 grade league during the regular season.

The C League boys and girls, grade 3, did not have a post-season tournament. The Chargers won the "Sportsmannhip Award" in the boys league, while Lakers were honored in the girls league.

All A and B Division teams participated in the post-season playoff tournament regardless of their regular season records. League champion trophies, tournament champion trophies, and tournament runners-up trophies were awarded to the appropriate teams after each championship contest.

Referee-of-the-Year plaques were also awarded to the following high school student officials: Denise Zonca and Craig Flower (C League), Phoebe Merrifield, Rich Hewlett and Dave Meador (B League), Tom Ellinghausen and Mike Christie (A League), Cathy Dillon and Andy Melin (AA League), and Debbie Pitera (AAA League girls).

Jr. basketball league president Jack Carpenter also gave special merit awards for long-time service to referee coordinator Charlie Catlatt, gymnasium coordinator Sue Triplett, and coach and public relations director Ron Mack. Carpenter also mentioned the extra contribution of Andy Melin who coached in one league and officiated in another.



Action was fierce with the 'B' League boys, grades four-five, who were one of the seven leagues competing in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball League post-season playoff tournament last week. In this game, Mustang Craig Morton (3) shoots while Trojan defenders Bob Hopper (1) and Andy Rama (6) look on. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Spikers fold in regionals

By BETTY DeLANO

Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton participated in the eight-team volleyball regional competition last Saturday at Dearborn High School.

Both teams made it to the quarterfinals with victories over Livonia Stevenson and Farmington Harrison last Thursday night.

Canton played Livonia Bentley, the Suburban Eight league champion, in the quarterfinal action and were defeated after a two-game battle with identical scores of 15-12.

Having a 9-3 lead over the Bulldogs in the first game, the Chiefs' defense was not strong enough to hold Bentley back as the Bulldogs earned a tie score at 9-9 and then broke loose to take the game at 15-12.

The Chiefs again blew a six-point lead in the second game, allowing the Bulldogs to catch-up to a 6-6 tie. Canton kept the game close for the next few points but the Bulldogs overpowered the Chiefs for another 15-12 victory to move into the semifinals against Livonia Churchill.

Churchill got into the semifinals by defeating Salem after two games with scores of 15-3 and 15-8. The Chargers then took Bentley, 15-4, 15-6.

"The loss was a big disappointment for us," said Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein. "Bentley wasn't playing that well but neither were we. The teamwork wasn't there Saturday as it usually is and everyone was playing as an individual instead of a part of a team."

Salem had a hard time against Churchill, earning only three points in the first game and eight in the second. Serve reception on the Rocks' part was lacking in both games as Churchill found it easy to take an eight-point lead before allowing Salem its first point in either game.

"We couldn't get the ball up off of Churchills' serves," said Salem coach Cathy Himes. "When we did get the ball, our serves went right into the net. With a serving percentage as low as it was on Saturday, that's no way to play a team like Churchill."

Churchill took the Dearborn Regional with a victory over the host Pioneers in the finals with scores of 15-9 and 15-13. Churchill will play Friday in the state quarterfinal at 5 p.m. against Warren Cousino at Grand Rapids Junior College in the Gerald Ford Building.

In the Trenton Regional, Westland John Glenn won and will play Lansing Everett at 7 p.m. on Friday. John Glenn was the winner of the Northwest Suburban League.

Livonia Clarenceville took the Birmingham Regional and will play the winner of the Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher Regional on Friday starting at 5 p.m. Clarenceville was the winner of the Metro-West Conference.

Winners of Friday nights' quarterfinals will play on Saturday. The finals will also be held in the Ford building.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

The Stroh team, which has been rated the best combination in the Detroit area through the years, established what is believed to be a record during the past two weeks at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park.

Bowling in the Tuesday night division of the Bonanza All-Star Classic, Harry Campbell and his mates rolled back-to-back series of 3691 and 3589.

The 3691 is the highest sanctioned series rolled in the nation this year, according to the ABC officials, and came on games of 1224, 1299 and 1168.

Following that splurge, the team came right back with games of 1162, 1240 and 1187.

While the 3691 tops the nation, it also is the highest three-game series ever bowled in the Detroit area and beat Stroh's former mark of 3671, rolled back in 1971.

WHILE THE Stroh team was blasting the pins at a record rate, a 19-year-old auto mechanic named Steve Pimental, in Santa Rosa, Calif., turned in a whopping 868 series which was the stiffest challenge to Allie Brandt's record of 886 in many a day.

He left up the No. 7 in the first frame of the first game, spared and struck out for 290. Pimental kept striking and posted a 300 in the second game. Up to then he had 23 strikes in a row.

In his third game, Steve was a little high on his first shot, left up the 4-7, and missed. That gave him eight pins in the first frame and he struck the rest of the way.

While he missed Brandt's all-time mark, Steve scored 34 out of a possible 36 strikes and that's something of which to be proud.

IF COMING EVENTS cast their shadows before them, the standings in the women's city tournament at Strike and Spare lanes will be due for a great shuffling over the coming weekend.

That's when the teams from the Bowlerettes and the Ladies Major take to the approaches, and anything can happen.

Just two weeks ago they wrecked the standings in the women's state event at Kalamazoo when Gerry Ritter fired the first 300 in the history of the event and the Fire Bird team rolled a 3174 actual count.

One thing is certain—the pins sure will be flying.

HIGH SCORES sometimes come at unexpected places. For instance, last week Richard Coppens, bowling in the St. Valentine League at Mayflower Lanes, linked games of 267, 233 and 206 for 708.

And Dennis Durocher got his name on the honor roll with a 290 in the Thursday men's league.

Four more members were admitted to the Mayflower Split Conversion Club when Dorothy Corey and Star Kondoes each toppled the 4-7-10; Carol Paliszewski swept aside the 4-7-9-10 and Betty Agnew knocked down the 6-7-10.

Then, to add to the unusual performances, Harold Hanna turned in a 186 triplicate.

Prep cagers have biggest tourney

This weekend marks the end of another high school basketball season with the state championship games in Class A, B, C and D scheduled at Crisler Arena in Ann Arbor on Saturday.

The boys' high school basketball tournament is the biggest money-producing event for the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA). More than 700 basketball teams in the state participate in the event every season, making it the biggest participation tourney in the state.

The MHSAA's net proceeds from the tourney last season totaled $647,627, which is over 60 per cent of the total budget of the organization.

For the past four years, Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton basketball teams have competed in this tournament at the Southfield High School District. There are 123 district sites around the state this season, so why do the Rocks and Chiefs compete in Southfield year after year?

And why do the two Plymouth squads always compete in the same district in basketball and baseball? Why can't the teams compete in different districts so the community has a chance to bring home two district trophies instead of just one?

Unfortunately, The Plymouth Athletic Department doesn't have any say in where the teams are placed.

According to Plymouth Athletic Director John Sandmann, the placement of teams in the districts is done through committee work in East Lansing, where the MHSAA offices are located.

The Basketball Tournament Committee is a group of 14 people made up of principals, athletic directors and coaches. The elected officials represent a cross-section of areas around the state.

The sites for districts and regionals, and the referees for each tourney game, are predetermined through other committees—based on school applications and referee ratings.

The basketball tourney committee places the teams in the districts and sets up the brackets for regional, quarterfinal, semifinal and championship play. Sandmann said all state tournaments are set up this way, but the basketball committee works longer than any other group because of the size of the event.

The only time Salem and Canton teams were split in district play was during last fall's girls' basketball season. In that case, Canton was one of the few wild card teams from the suburban area that went to a Detroit district, The wild card team is chosen through luck of the draw. Salem played in Dearborn last fall.

The host team of the district cannot draw a first-round bye so it must play more games enroute to a district title because of the home court advantage.

District and regional hosts split the gate receipts nearly 50-50 with the MHSAA after the official scorer, refercees and timers are paid. All tourney tickets are $1.50—even in the championship round.

If one of the Plymouth-Canton area cage teams reach the semifinals or finals in the tourney, there are 1,700 tickets distributed to each competing school.

If the average high school basketball fan just wants to watch the championship action, however, it is extremely difficult to get tickets.

The MHSAA sells 12 tickets to each Class A school interested in getting tickets. The 24 tickets which Sandmann receives are sold to coaches and staff in the school system.

Over 6,000 tickets are distributed to the 700 schools for general use. Add to that total the number of tickets each competing team recieves, and one can see why the semifinals and finals are consistently sold out every year at the 9,800-seat Jenison Field House in East Lansing and the 13,000-seat Crisler Arena.

The MHSAA can be very strict with the rules of the tourney. For example, no pep bands are allowed at any games because of possible advantages. All radio stations also must apply to the MHSAA for broadcast rights for each contest aired.

Belleville tankers edge Plymouth jr. swimmers

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Swim Club lost a close meet to Belleville last week, 364-345.

The Plymouth Canton swimmers won three of the eight freestyle relays and four of the eight medley relays against their Belleville opponents.

Plymouth-Canton also took three individual events in the freestyle meet. Joe McCann headed a one, two, three, four sweep of the 50-yard freestyle event in the eight-and-under division. McCann's time was :40.8.

Cindy Elliott won the girls eight-and-other 50-yard freestlye race in :38.3. John Thompson was the other Plymouth-Canton winner. He won the 200-yard freestyle race in the 11-12-year old division with a 2:29.6 clocking.

Plymouth-Canton will host the season-ending league meet this Saturday (March 18) at Plymouth Salem High School.

The six-team event finds the eight-and-under and 11-12-year olds competing from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The 9-10-year olds and the 13-14-year olds will compete from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Spectators are welcome to both sessions.

Register for jr. baseball

The final day of registration for the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League will be Saturday, March 18 at the Plymouth Canton High School cafeteria, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A late registration fee of $5 will be charged to anyone registering after this date.

This year, "T-Ball" will be played in the early evening so that students enrolled in the year-round school programs may participate.

Managers and umpires are still needed and can sign-up at registration.

All players who register must bring proof of age.

Little matmen compete

The future wrestlers of the Centennial Park gather together on Saturday, March 18 to compete in the second-annual Plymouth-Canton Middle School Wrestling Tournament.

Seventh and eighth grade grapplers from the area's four middle schools, East, West, Central and Pioneer, will meet at Plymouth Canton High School for the tourney. The young grapplers will be weighed-in at 9 a.m. with competition scheduled immediately afterwards.

Tournament Director Dan Riggs, physical education instructor at East and varsity assistant wrestling coach at Plymouth Canton High School, will hand out team trophies and individual medals and ribbons to the winners of each weight class.

Admission is free as the public is welcome to come and watch the action.

Eli picked All-State

Plymouth Salem cager Tom Ellinghausen has been selected to the Detroit Free Press fifth-team All-State squad. The 6-4½ cager paced the Rocks to a fifth-straight Suburban Eight League title and the Southfield District crown this year. He was Salem's leading scorer and rebounder this season as the Rocks compiled a 20-3 overall record.

Plymouth Salem's Rich Hewlett and Plymouth Canton's Butch King, two junior guards, both received honorable mention recognition from the All-State committee. King led the Chiefs in scoring this season, while Hewlett was the Rocks' floor leader and second-leading scorer.

Home Showcase

The Country House in the Willow Farm subdivision features bay windows, a country kitchen, formal dining area and a large family room.

WILLOW FARM

Willow Farm is a single family, luxury home project located in West Bloomfield featuring two new designs starting at $77,450.

The builder, Edwards and Howell Construction Co., has 20 years experience in the luxury home market.

The Country House features four bedrooms, 2½ baths, a traditional formal dining room with optional bay window and a large country kitchen. The family room measures 13⅓ by 21⅔ feet. The master bedroom is an 18 by 21⅓ feet with dressing suite and his and her closets.

The Country Manor is a four bedroom, 2½ bath home featuring a large country kitchen with island counter, a gathering room with dining area and adjoining 12 by 14 foot private study. The 16 by 21⅔ foot master bedroom features a walk-in closet and dressing room with a natural wood or optional gas burning fireplace.

Willow Farms is the former Lakewood Farm in West Bloomfield. It's located on Willow Road one mile west of Hiller Road near Union Lake.

Sales manager Rita Stockwell says many prospective home buyers coming to Willow Farm are from the Farmington area because of recent higher tax assessments.

Another attraction of the project is a 33-acre bird sanctuary and deer park adjoining the project. Recreational areas and bike paths are a part of the development.

WHISPERWOOD

Whisperwood, overlooking Phoenix Lake in Northville Township, reported more than $5½ millon in sales since the first of the year, according to Dallas Nagy of Impact Marketing.

Ted James, sales manager for Impact, says that of the orginal 110 home sites in the project less than 40 remain unsold.

Several standard features offered include wood insulated windows, kitchen range and dishwasher, wood burning fireplace and paneled family room.

The lowest priced home is the Brookhaven—a four bedroom, 2½ bath model which includes a family room. Also offered with this home is an optional 10 by 13 foot den which is not shown in the model. Prices start at $82,900.

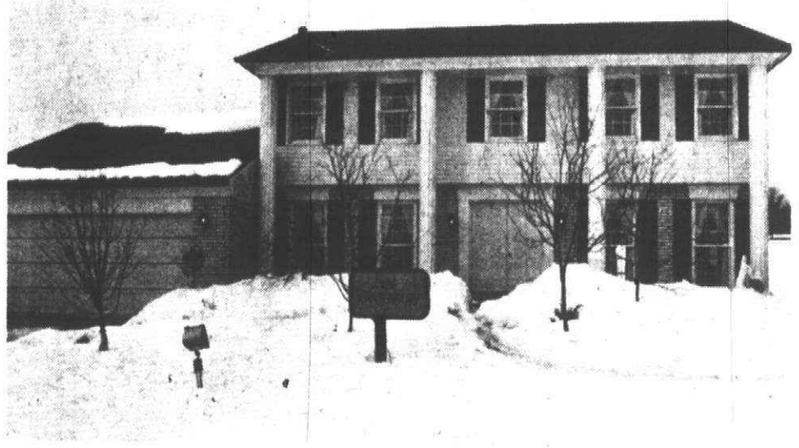
The Canterbury has a high ceiling with a skylight and carpeted conversation pit in front of the fireplace. An open staircase leads to the family room. The model begins at $86,400.

The Nottingham will feature four bedrooms, 2½ baths, family room and den when the model is finished.

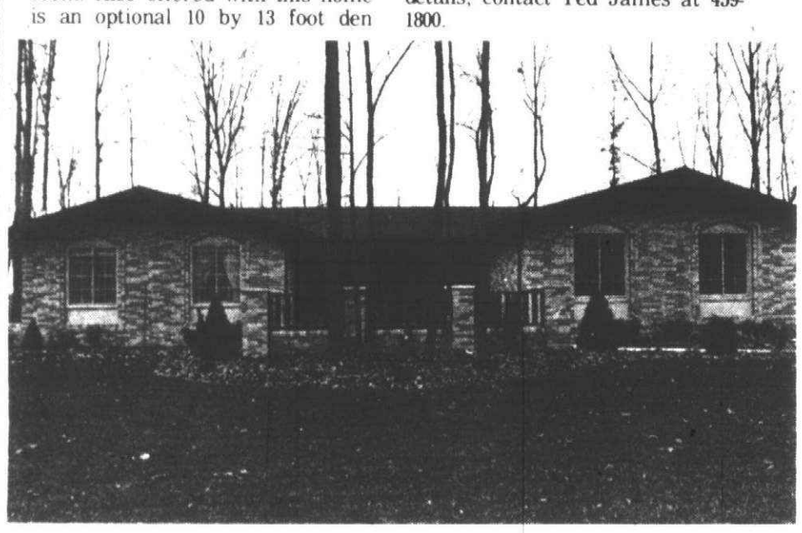
The builders will custom build floor plans supplied by buyers.

Builders of the project include Landau Homes, Mariuz Builders, Inc. and Bing Construction Co.

The project is located on Five Mile west of Bradner Road in Northville Township. For more details, contact Ted James at 459-1800.



Cost of the Canterbury, located in Northville Township, begins at $86,400.



Homes in the Wildwood project begin at $67,400 and are available in six new designs.

WILDWOOD FOREST WEST

The Curtis Building Co., Bobrich Building Co. andFairmont Homes Co. have opened Wildwood Forest West, a new section of Wildwood Forest subdivision in Livonia.

The project consists of 107 homesites with a standard lot size of 80 by 120 feet with several larger lots available.

Six new models are offered: Two ranches, two colonials, one quad-level and one tri-level. Buyers may choose from one of the models offered in the orginal Wildwood Forest.

Homes are available with three or four bedrooms, 1½ or 2½ baths, full basements and two-car attached garages.

Starting price of the models begins at $67,400 for the new homes as well as the orginal designs. Floor plans are available for viewing and more than 20 homes have already been sold.

The project is located on Myrna Road west of Newberg between Five and Six Mile roads. Arthur Savoie is handling the sales and Sylvia McKenzie is the project manager.

For additional information, call 427-1919 between 1-8 p.m. daily and Sunday, and 1-6 p.m. on Saturday. The sales offices are closed on Wednesday.

GEORGETOWN

Impact Marketing has opened phase two of Georgetown Subdivision in Rochester with 90 lots adjoining a 1 acre nature preserve.

Standard lot sizes are approximately 85 by 180 feet ranging in price from $85,000 to $100,000. Many of the treed and larger lots are available at premium prices from $1,000 to $6,500 more.

The subdivision is located on Tienken Road between Livernois and Adams roads in gently rolling terrain with Sargent Creek meandering through the development.

The streets are paved and the subdivision has city water and sewers. MeadowBrook Mall is less than a mile away.

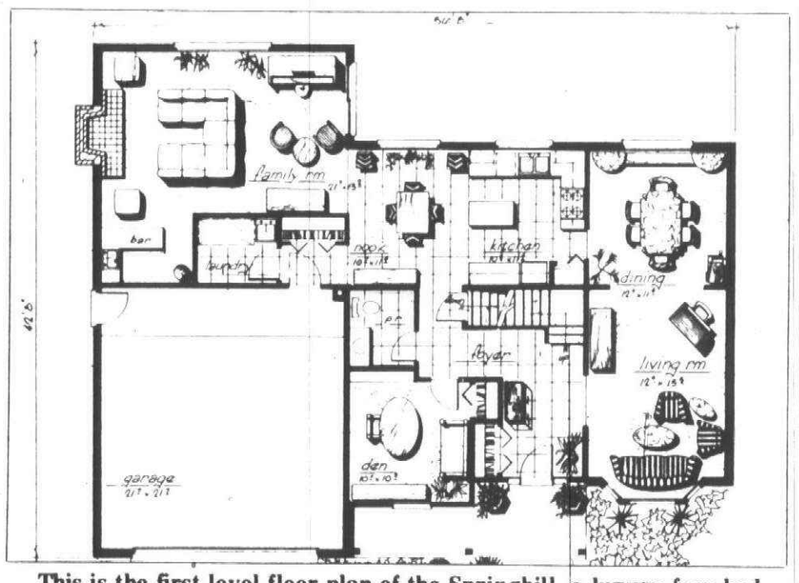
The four major builders associated with the project are Capaldi Building Co., House and Homes, Inc., Maruiz Building, Inc. and Stylmaster Building, Inc.

Four new model colonials, which were not offered in phase one of the subdivision, are available in phase two with considerable variation in floor plans and exteriors.

Buyers can also submit their own custom plans.

One of the latest models is the Springhill, a four-bedroom, 2½ bath home with full basement, two car attached garage with roll up door standard. The home is 2,800 square feet and offers a first floor laundry and a den with beamed ceiling. Also included are wood insulated windows and natural woodwork.

Models are open daily 1-8 p.m., Saturday noon to 5 p.m. and Sunday noon to 7 p.m. For further information, call sales director Michael Furnari.



This is the first level floor plan of the Springhill, a luxury four-bedroom, 2½ bath home with full basement, located in Rochester.

Housing costs soar upward

Buyers of new houses can expect to find "price adjustment" clasuses in their purchase contracts.

The culprit is a 15 per cent inflation in the cost of building materials during 1977. Further hikes are expected in 1978.

Materials make up about one-third the cost of a house. Thus, a typical price adjustment clause will say the price may be raised (or lowered) as much as five per cent between the time you sign the contract and closing date.

The clauses were recommended recently (reported March 2 in the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper) by the board of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

BASM General Consul Irving Yackness said the industrial group has about 1,000 members who put up 85 to 90 per cent of the new houses in the region.

"How can we trust builders to pass on only the actual increases in materials costs, and not use the clause as an excuse to tack five per cent onto the price?" Yackness was asked.

"There's a cap of five per cent in the clauses we're suggesting," said Yackness, noting one sample which said "in no event shall the price be increased for any reason whatsoever by more than five per cent."

A second buyer protection, Yackness said, is that the U.S. Labor Department each month publishes an industrial production commodities index. It would be the guide.

The clause would also allow for price drops to be reflected, he said.

But the builders left no doubt they don't expect prices to drop.

Lumber prices rose 16.5 per cent from January 1977 to January 1978. Plywood rose 13.1 per cent. Millwork rose 13.9 per cent.

In the month of January, lumber rose 3.2 per cent, plywood 2.7 per cent, concrete 3.6 per cent and gypsum (for drywall) 2.3 per cent.

Local labor costs are also rising, but the builders association said these can be estimated, so it is not recommending acceleration clauses to cover labor costs.

A complicating factor for the builders is the length of time it takes to build a house.

"It used to take 90 days. Some builders could finish a house in 60 days," Yackness said.

"Now it takes seven to nine months. There are various reasons for that," he said, noting long inspection processes, weather and the availability of mechanics.

Today marks the first edition of the Observer & Eccentric's real estate section.

To keep pace with the rapid growth of the northwest suburbs served by the 12 O&E editions, we'll try to provide home hunters with information concerning new housing projects springing up around the area, helpful tidbits on money saving ideas and interesting items on what's happening in the real estate business.

The scope of this section will cover not only the new home market, but also apartment living, townhouses, condominiums, the resale market and residential offerings.

To keep abreast of what's going on around southeastern Michigan, we need your help, too. If you have a suggestion or question, give us a call. If a you are a builder, sales manager or other person connected with real estate and want us to relay information to our readers, feel free to contact us.

Direct your calls to Ron Garbinski at our Birmingham office. His number is 644-1100, ext. 257. The office address is 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.

Police, contractors launch crime program

Every year, each Michigan contractor loses approximately $14,000 to crime.

To help eliminate this problem, 33 Michigan construction industry associations and several law enforcement agencies are joining forces to combat theft and vandalism to expensive construction equipment.

Detroit Police Chief William Hart, Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas, Michigan State Police 2nd District Commander Walter Anderson and a FBI Michigan Office representative ill join construction contractors for a news conference March 21 at 10 a.m. at the Detroit Press Club.

During this meeting, the representatives will release plans for a campaign to fight escalating theft and vandalism.

The campaign is the result of comprehensive planning by a state-wide task force comprised of representatives from the various groups.

The campaign's primary weapon will be "Operation Identification." The project encourages construction contractors to identify, inventory, photograph and place a value on their tools, equipment, machines, vehicles and building materials.

Each contractor stamps or marks each item or piece of property with a coded number covered by a protective decal.

Hidden numbers also are added, but concealed for later use during owner identification and recovery.

To assist Michigan construction contractors in the promotion and use of crime fighting efforts, a special 28-page booklet will be provided to those belonging to the sponsoring construction association and law enforcement agencies.

HOW provides construction defect protection

When you're out shopping for a new home, keep an eye open for HOW—it's an important name on the real estate market.

HOW stands for Homeowners Warranty Corp., a national concern that provides buyers with a 10-year warranty protection on new built homes.

The HOW plan combines a warranty, warranty insurance and insurance against major structural defects.

Here's how it works:

• During the first year, the builder agrees to protect against faulty workmanship, defective materials and major construction defects.

• During the first and second years, the builder is responsible for covering major construction defects and for defects in the plumbing, heating, electrical and cooling systems of the house.

• During the third through 10th years, the home is protected against major construction defects through insurance coverage arranged by HOW. That coverage also protects you—the buyer—during the first two years if for the builder can't or won't meet his responsibility.

HOW's warranty agreement defines a major construction defect as 'actual damage to the load-bearing portion of the home (including damages caused by soil movement) which imminently are likely to produce a vital effect on the use of the home for residential purposes."

The insurance plan which insures against the defects during the third through 10th years is underwritten by the American Bankers Insurance Company of Florida.

The HOW program provides a systematic process for handling disputes. Since the builder is responsible for defects during the first two years, your would contact the builder directly if a claims arises during that time.

You're required to put your complaint in writing so if the builder disputes the claim or denies responsibility, you can then present the claim to the local HOW council.

HOW will provide an arbitrator who will try to help iron out the claim. If this procedure fails, you still have further recourse. You can request arbitration through the American Arbitration Association or a similarly approved organization.

All builders enrolled in the HOW program have agreed to be bounded by the arbitrator's decision.

Two important areas of the program are: If the builder of your home has a business failure, you are still protected. If you sell you new home, the warranty is still in effect for your purchaser which is a marketable selling plus for you.

HOW WAS conceived by the national Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and was started in 1974.

Today, it is offered in 32 states, but an additional 12 states have approved HOW's insurance coverage.

Minnesota mandated that all new home builders offer HOW or an equivalent. Canton Township has also passed an ordinance requiring HOW.

Earlier this year, Pulte Homes of Michigan Corp. announced it would also provide HOW coverage. Pulte is one of the nation's largest builders of single-family homes.

HOW has passed the quarter million mark in the number of new homes enrolled in the buyers protection plan. Builders register with the program through 103 local and state HOW councils. More than 7,000 builders are registered nationally and HOW is registering an average of 14,000 homes monthly.

Add-a-pane helps cope with energy woes

With skyrocketing energy bills facing most homeowners, it's good to know there are products on the market to help keep fuel bills from soaring any higher.

The Thermal-Add-A-Pane is one of those products. It was developed in 1967, but it took an energy crunch before its potential cost savings were recognized.

It's a method of insulating buildings by adding a second or third pane of glass to the existing windows without removing fixed seals or moulding.

The materials used are completely flexible, making it possible to insulate glass on site without removing existing glass. It can follow any unusually shaped window. There are no hinged frames or sliding panels.

The new pane of glass is measured and fitted to match the orginal glass which remains in position. The orginal pane and the new glass are thoroughly cleaned and the perimeter primed to receive the sealant.

A neoprene seal containing a tiny copper resistance wire is pressed around the edge of the existing glass. Spacers which contain a moisture absorber are installed about the sealant.

Then, the new piece of glass, which has been primed and cleaned, is fitted against the seal over the existing opening.

BY DOING THIS, a cavity of dead air space is formed. By plugging the resistance wire into a special power supply that softens the rubber, an airtight seal is formed by vulcanization.

After 10 minutes of curing, the sealant becomes a rubbery form, impervious to moisture, sunlight and temperature changes.

The installation is usually accomplished from the inside with a minimum of inconvenience. There are still only two surfaces to wash instead of the possible four or six with other insulating methods.

The system allows for the addition of tinted, reflective or special glass for different purposes.

Gallagher Glass, 17315 Sherwood in Detroit, is the lone local distributor for Energy Sealants, Inc., a California-based company which distributes the Thermal-Add-A-Pane.

For more information about this method of insulating, call Jack Grosebeck, sales manager for Gallagher, at 365-4220.

The new pane of glass is measured and fitted to match the orginal glass which remains in position. The Thermal-Add-A-Pane creates a space of dead air which provides an economicial method of insulating any building.

—AND MORE!
As far as we know—Knoll & Associates offers the best commission schedule anywhere.
WHY?!
We want producers! The more loyalty, consideration and money we give our sales staff, the more loyalty and performance we will get in return. It works both ways. We know that unfortunately most employers tend to lose sight of that fact. We are only as good as our sales staff.
HELPING US GROW—DEFINITELY WILL HELP YOU GROW!
OUR SUCCESS IS YOUR BUSINESS!
• Our West Bloomfield office can handle only 10 top notch salespeople at this time. • Our Birmingham office will be able to handle 15 salespeople. • Our new construction office in Bloomfield Hills will be able to handle 4 well informed construction salespeople. Call Amos Knoll for a confidential interview. It costs nothing to talk with me, but not talking may cost you an excellent opportunity.
