State auditors may investigate Canton's water fund expenses

Township Finance Director Mike Gorman claims allegations that Canton officials acted improperly when they used the water fund to finance land purchases and administrators' salaries are all wet.

In the wake of a possible investigation into Canton's use of the water fund by the Michigan Treasury Department, Gorman insists that the township has dipped into the water fund for only legal purposes.

Trustee candidate Robert Greenstein has alleged that the current administration has used the water fund improperly to hide a bleak financial condition brought on by excessive spending.

Greenstein maintains that the township should have used the general fund—not the water fund—for the expenditures.

ARTHUR ROCHON, deputy director of the audit division of the Michigan Treasury Department, says he will begin an investigation into Canton's water fund once he receives a citizen's complaint submitted to another state office.

Greenstein said he did not file a complaint.

The state investigation will focus on the wording of Canton's water ordinance, Rochon said. Legally, the township can use water funds for only those purposes stipulated in the ordinance.

Gorman is confident the township can pass the state test.

The water ordinance stipulates that surplus water funds can be used to improve water and sewage systems or "for any other legal purpose."

According to Gorman, the water fund currently consists of $2.5 million in cash. Debts for water and sewage lines amount to about $5 million.

Gorman insists that all water fund expenditures have been related to the operation of the DPW or water department.

The township has used the water fund to:

- Make a final payment in the amount of $89,180 on the purchase of the Folker property near Canton Center and Proctor where the township's new administration building is located. Water department employees will be housed in the new administration building.

- Finance 50 per cent of a $203,000 land purchase. A portion of the 65-acre parcel near Sheldon and Michigan is the proposed site of a new DPW building. Land contract payments for the site are made quarterly.

- Finance 25 per cent of supervisor, clerk, treasurer and finance director salaries. Gorman claims that the four administrators spend 25 per cent of their time overseeing water-related business.

"The water fund is only paying its fair share," Gorman maintained. "Not only is it legally correct, but it's morally correct as well."

GREENSTEIN disagrees.

"For one thing, the township administration does not spend 25 per cent of its time administering the water fund. I know. I was there," said the former supervisor.

"They can't justify using water funds for the Folker property just because a few clerks will be doing water department business in the new building."

Greenstein maintains that Supervisor Harold Stein's administration has been forced to dip into the water fund because of expenditures for the golf course, industrial land and other sites.

"All Stein is trying to do is cover up deficiencies in the general fund," Greenstein charged. "We're going to be in big trouble when we have to pay off bonds."

Gorman believes Greenstein is using the water fund as a political issue.

The finance director said he spoke to former Treasurer Carl Parsell—a member of the Greenstein administration—about using the water fund for a portion of administrators' salaries.

"He thought it was a good idea," Gorman said.

Greenstein said he knew of no discussion between Gorman and Parsell for use of the water fund for purposes marginally related to the water department.

"The question is did Carl (Parsell) do what Gorman suggested? He didn't," Greenstein said.

Man found guilty in police assault

A man involved in a fight with his girlfriend that became a brawl with police was found guilty of felonious assault on a police officer and faces sentencing Sept. 7 in Circuit Court.

The crime carries a 1-4 year maximum penalty.

The fight between the defendant, Robert Lee Simmers, 28, of Melvindale and his ex-girlfriend, Maureen Filarecki, 21, of Livonia, took place at the home of Canton attorney, and one-time supervisor candidate, Peter Bundarin, on Dec. 29.

Ms. Filarecki was a house guest at Bundarin's home on Bart in Canton's Holiday Park subdivision at the time of the incident.

Canton Ptl. Kathy Petres and Sam Natoli, reserve officer, responded to the family trouble call phoned in by Bundarin. Bundarin said he decided to call police when he saw Simmers "kicking, punching and spitting" on Ms. Filarecki.

SIMMERS WAS IN his van, trying to drive away, when the first police car pulled up.

Canton police stated in January that Simmers hit the policeman in the stomach and tried to wrestle a gun out of the reserve officer's holster when he was approached. Police said he was in "an incoherent state."

Simmers maintains that he was defending himself against four police officers.

Ptl. Petres was reportedly pinned briefly, between the patrol car door and the van door in the scuffle to get Simmers out of the van.

Officers Leonard Bush and George Sharp arrived while the fracas was in progress outside. Ms. Filarecki said earlier that Ptl. Bush had asked her out socially before the incident between him and Simmers.

According to Canton Police, Bush was struck on the head with a flashlight by the defendant. The officer received six stitches in his head.

For weeks after the incident Ms. Filarecki was angry at the Canton Police, not Simmers. She told the Observer in January that police started the fight that "could have been avoided" by letting the angry Simmers drive away.

Simmers is angry that that fact did not come out in the trial.

Bundarin represented Ptl. Bush against his former house guest in a hearing before the Canton Police Commission in Bush's unsuccessful appeal of his 30-day department suspension.

Ms. Filarecki was successful in getting Bush suspended from the force for a month after telling the police chief that he called her an obscene name in the Rusty Nail Lounge, a bar where she had previously worked.

"When the case came to trial and she found out I married another girl, all of a sudden she had a lapse of

Busing clarification sought

Students could 'opt out' again

By EMORY DANIELS

The option of asking not to be enrolled in a year-round school may yet be revised.

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is asking the attorney general for a clarifying opinion on whether parents can volunteer to provide their own transportation to enroll their children in a nine-month school not within their attendance area.

If the clarifying opinion should substantiate the legality of the practice followed in the district last year, the school board could vote to offer the option again.

The opinion, however, isn't expected before Aug. 25 which will make it almost impossible for the school board to offer the option before the new school year begins. For schools on Extended School Year (ESY) schedules, the first day of school will be Aug. 28.

LAST YEAR, Plymouth-Canton Board of Education adopted a policy that parents could request transfer from an ESY school in their neighborhood to a nine-month school if they provided their own transportation.

That practice was challenged by Norman Maxwell who asked the State Department of Education to seek a legal opinion.

The attorney general's opinion handed down was interpreted to mean that busing must be provided to all

Honeytree's owner makes millions

By SUZIE MARKS

An unpretentious Craig Hall sat in a sparsely decorated office discussing how he had made $1 million by age 22, $6 million by 26 and $15 million by the time he had reached 28.

Behind a scratched wooden desk in his Southfield office, the Bloomfield Hills resident, 28, said making millions hasn't changed his lifestyle. He reached his eight digit salary by wheeling and dealing real estate and has written a book telling how to do it. (The Real Estate Turnaround: Craig Hall's Investment Formula That Makes Millions.)

Hall invested $4,000 in an Ann Arbor rooming house in 1968. He sold it two years later for $29,000 profit. And he did it with no family money backing him, using only funds saved from working odd jobs. As a college student, he saw the potential for the rooming house.

"I found people are willing to pay a good price for quality. On the Ann Arbor building, I improved the eye appeal and operational aspects."

The secret of success, Hall said, is the ability to analyze and meet the needs of tenants, lenders and investors—and profit by meeting those needs.

Hall calls this process turnaround. A lender will give a turnaround expert far greater modification of terms on a property loan than an average owner who is not helping solve the lender's problems. He added that by meeting the investor's needs in structuring deals properly, you can profit by having investors put up the risk capital.

HALL MADE deal after deal, adding millions of dollars together. Along the way he helped turnaround such properties as the sprawling Honeytree apartments in Canton Township and Lemontree in Belleville. But after a few years of success, he began looking for new challenges.

"I felt I had accomplished a lot and was in a let down period," the former psychology major said. "I wanted something like a McDonald's type chain, but different than food."

Recognizing the emergence of racquetball as a major sport, Hall entered the field in 1975 by founding Standard Court Players Corp. In 1977, Time Inc. purchased 18 per cent of the company and the name changed to Sports Illustrated Court Clubs Inc.

"APPROACHING TIME was a full-fledged effort to build a chain," he said.

Hall said his friends considered him the least likely candidate for any sort of athletic-related business—because he has no interest in sports.

However, his ideas keep flourishing. Hall combined efforts of an enormous apartment complex turning out a winner. He designed a disco costing over $1 million inside a racquetball court in his apartment complex.

"That project has been very gratifying. I designed the whole building myself on an airplane napkin," he said. "I couldn't get a mortgage for it, so I used my own money to build it."

Hall could talk for hours about his business investments. He works from early morning until after 11 p.m. every day. He does manage to stop at home for dinner and visit his wife of two months and their daughter.

The millionaire doesn't have any hobbies, is not a frequent traveler and said he's not an extravagant spender.

"Sure I have some luxuries, but I'm not eccentric."

Hall adds he doesn't want anyone to think it was an easy climb to the top for him.

"My first three years of business were very rocky," he recalled. "I learned by trial and error and benefited by not knowing enough about some areas to be scared. I used the unconventional approach."

"I OWNED A student property of 128 units at Michigan State University. I did a lot of wrong things and was in a devastating financial picture," he said. "I was 20 years old and had to consider bankruptcy. I was on tranquilizers and survived it. I worked out my problems and learned immensely."

On the lecture circuit, Hall visits industries and accepts voluntary appointments which help young people.

Hall predicts another depression to hit this country. He said land is a bad investment and is liquidating his vacant property.

"The financial freedom in the capitalist system is in great danger. We're becoming more and more socialistic and many don't realize that personal freedoms are tied to economic freedom," Hall said. "If inflation runs rampant and taxes keep going up, we lose our economic freedom and our personal freedoms are taken away."

"Land deals scare me. I think a depression will

Newspapers top TV on politics

Newspapers' superiority over television in informing the public about political candidates has been confirmed, according to researchers at The University of Michigan.

Results of the study, titled "Newspapers, Television and Political Reasoning," are based on a nationwide, random sample of more than 1,800 adults interviewed following the 1974 election.

People were questioned in detail about their reasons for favoring or opposing candidates in races for the United States Senate. Both voters and non-voters described contenders' prior records in public office, issue stands, reputation as a good representative of party interests, image of honesty, and other personal characteristics.

In the 67 different news markets surveyed in 25 states, the number of reasons people gave correlated highly with use of newspapers, but correlated negatively with use of television.

The study's conclusions disagree with opinion poll results in which people claim to use television more than newspapers for news. The Michigan survey differs from earlier studies in that it distinguishes informed citizens from those without any knowledge of political affairs, and compares their use of media. Under this more stringent test, the importance of newspapers for disseminating information becomes apparent.

Authors of the research are Peter Clarke and Eric Fredin. Clarke is professor and chairman of the U-M department of journalism, where Fredin is completing his doctoral work in mass communication research.

One malpractice suit begets another

Are attorneys accountable for their actions on behalf of their clients?

At issue is a 1976 countersuit by Bloomfield Hills urologist Dr. Seymour Friedman, who was sued for medical malpractice in the 1971 death of Wayne County resident Leona Serafin.

The suit was thrown out of Wayne County Circuit Court because attorneys Peter Dozor of Troy and Robert H. Golden of Southfield could not produce enough evidence supporting the malpractice claim to put the matter to a jury.

Dr. Friedman, in turn, sued Dozor and Golden. Dr. Friedman's suit alleged malicious prosecution, negligence and abuse of process.

The latter two charges were dismissed by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

THE KEY ISSUE is malicious prosecution, which Black's Law Dictionary defines as "action begun in malice without probable cause to believe the charge can be sustained."

In layman's terms, said a University of Detroit law professor, "It means someone wrongfully dragged into the courts can drag into the courts the persons who wrongfully dragged them into the courts in the first place."

Dr. Friedman and his attorney, Charles F. Glass, maintain that Dozor and Golden ignored medical opinions that malpractice was not the cause of Mrs. Serafin's death and went ahead with filing the suit.

Golden said persons consulted for medical advice did not rule out malpractice. He, however, refused to name persons he and Dozor consulted.

He said Dr. Friedman performed a kidney stone operation on Mrs. Serafin when she was in no condition to undergo "major" surgery. He said the operation was elective and could have been put off. Mrs. Serafin died during the operation.

"Any attorney in the United States would have taken that case and would have gone to trial with it," Golden said. "If the same one came through my doors now, I'd take it all over again," Golden added.

DR. FRIEDMAN'S countersuit, according to some lawyers and doctors in the metropolitan area, is an example of the latest attempt by the medical community to discourage medical malpractice suits.

Monitoring Dr. Friedman's legal actions against Dozor and Golden is the Physicians Crisis Committee (PCC), a group of about 1,000 Michigan doctors who drew public attention during the "medical malpractice crisis" of 1974, when countless malpractice suits were filed and malpractice insurance skyrocketed.

"It should be noted that we're not trying to prevent legitimate malpractice cases against doctors," said Dr. W. Peter McCabe, PCC co-chairman. "We are attempting to establish the fact that lawyers should be held accountable for actions they take against a physician, or anyone else, for that matter."

"The focal point of our concern is the sham or frivolous lawsuit—the case that's filed without foundation or merit. We believe that a lawyer has the responsibility to properly investigate and assess the medical and legal facts and issues before filing a case," Dr. McCabe said.

'Home Sweet Home' in a geodesic dome?

By PATRICK TOUHEY

Howard Meyer is contracting out work on his dome home. The basic floor plan comes from Cathedralite Domes, a California-based company.

The large white dome rises up from the rural Plymouth Township landscape like a well-designed mushroom. At the very top, three triangular panels of black glass glint in the sunlight.

But nestled snugly into the hillside is the tip-off—the familiar wooden form of a house under construction.

However, your three-bedroom brick ranch it's not.

"It's the first one that I know of in the area," said Howard Meyer, sweeping his arm toward the top of the house. "In fact, it's the only one."

And there's not much of a question about it. There aren't that many geodesic domes in this neck of the woods.

The structure of the first two levels is not all that unusual: A basement and main floor built out of wood and cement. Beyond that, the similarity with the housing mainstream ends.

Placed over the framework like a giant umbrella is the dome itself, 60 interlocking triangles fitted together in a pattern that looks like it came straight out of a geometry textbook.

Not all that surprising, either. The originator of the geodesic dome was none other than Buckminster Fuller, engineer, mathematician, designer and philosopher.

Meyer, an engineer himself, said he knew absolutely nothing about Fuller or his theories on the dome when he first became interested in it. But he says he has since "read a few of Fuller's books."

WHILE MEYER admits that maybe Fuller had something with his more abstract ideas on the benefits of living in a dome, he is definitely sold on its practicality.

First off, Meyer will tell you that the dome construction uses one-third less wood than a regular house of comparable size. Then he will point out that because of the circular roof, interior air currents flow more freely, reducing the heating cost by one-third.

And that doesn't say anything about inside design. To begin with, there is only one square room in the whole house, a small bathroom in the basement. The other rooms are a combination of circular lines and open space.

The net result, according to Meyer, is more useable space for the size of the rooms.

"I've got 1,800 square feet on the ground floor and first floor and 700 square feet on the second level," Meyer said. "I know it looks smaller than that, but it's really huge inside."

Make no mistake, Meyer is on the stump for the dome design. Besides owning a dome, he is also the distributor for the California-based firm that markets the domes.

But, he says, his interest in becoming a distributor came well after he decided to build one. "It was just coincidence," Meyer explains. "I was planning on a move to California, so I went out to look at property and houses. I saw the dome, liked it and decided to buy or build one."

"As it turned out, the move out west never came about, but I was still interested in building a dome. I bought this property in Plymouth and started work."

MEYER WILL admit that the geodesic dome is somewhat avant garde for midwestern tastes, but claims the design is the rage on the west coast. And he hopes the design will catch on here.

Before he started construction, his dome was on display at the Builder's Show in Detroit. Out of that exposure he has received two orders.

He is counting on the exposure of his own home to bring in some sales. It is not unusual, he said, for people to pull their cars off to the side of the road and wander around the house.

"It's really pretty exciting. I've had nothing but favorable comments from people. But maybe the ones with negative comments don't bother stopping."

Even though Meyer's house is built on a rolling 10 acres of land, he doesn't believe that the dome is only for the wealthy. In California, he said, it is not uncommon to see the dome in typical subdivisions where "it blends in quite nicely."

The cost of the dome is another matter. Meyer estimates that his will cost somewhere between $65,000 and $80,000 when it is completed—but that figure does not include the price of the land.

But, he quickly points out, one person he knows of built a smaller dome for "no more than $25,000."

Meyer expects to be completely settled in his new dome home by October. Until then, he and his wife are living in an apartment in Canton Township.

"The quick construction time is an added benefit," he said. "After we had the foundation and first floor finished, it only took us six hours to put up the dome."

However, he has had prior experience. Way in the back of his property is a very small dome he built a while ago. Not big enough to live in, you understand—but it's the perfect size for a horse stable.

Looking a little bit like an observatory, Meyers' geodesic dome house has a panoramic view. The only eyesore in sight, he says, is a mobile home park and he plans to replant some big trees to block that out.

Even though Meyer is a Ford Motor Co. engineer, he has the Chrysler pentagram logo on his roof. The reason is strictly mathematical.

Heroic deeds in the dog days

If these are the dog days of August, then I'm a Great Dane.

If you are off work, on vacation, you may not read this column. This week anyone who is on vacation is no friend of mine. That includes acquaintances who call me up at work to tell me that they're working on their suntan and tinkle ice cubes in their iced tea glass close to the mouth-piece to rub it in.

Meanwhile, I drag myself into work, barely able to lift my fingers to the keyboard because I'm day-dreaming of cold beers and hot sand dunes.

It's not that I don't like my job. It's just that when the humidity hits 100 per cent and the temperature is 95 degrees in the shade, the last thing you care to look into is the affairs of the local zoning board of appeals.

So how come I'm wallowing in the August dog days while five other human beings pick this time to attempt to set new records of physical and psychological endurance?

AS I WRITE this column, we've still got Stella Taylor, a woman who almost became a nun, swimming from the island of Bimini to Fort Lauderdale with woman-eating sharks snapping at her heels.

With God at her side and the wind at her back she may make it.

About an hour ago I heard on the radio that Diana Nyad had to abort her swim from Cuba to Key West. It seems that sharks, hallucinations and overexposure were too much for the marathon swimmer. That's not to mention the Cuban exiles who reportedly tried to hitchhike a ride to Miami on her back.

ABOVE THE ATLANTIC we find three men from Albuquerque, New Mexico trying to fly to Brest, France inside a precarious helium-filled balloon. As I write, they're heading in a more northerly direction than they'd like to, but steering from a helium balloon is more difficult than doing it in a Plymouth Horizon.

If they succeed, Ben Abruzzo, Maxie Anderson and Larry Newman will become the first persons to cross the ocean in a balloon. Last month a manned balloon almost made it all the way across but the craft floundered almost within sight of France.

There have been 17 other balloon attempts in 100 years, the most notable locally being Karl Thomas of Troy who broke his ribs in 1976 trying to make it across the gigantic Atlantic. He was plucked out of the ocean by a Russian freighter.

Of the two attempts at immortality, I'd choose ballooning. After hearing of the ordeal Miss Nyad went through in her Cuba-to-Florida swimming attempt, the prospect of marathon swimming doesn't appeal to me.

Her trainer, who also served as shark spotter on the marathon swim, described in graphic detail how Portuguese man-of-war bites covered the swimmer's back, neck, shoulders and legs.

He described over the news how she was fed a miserable meal of graham crackers and yogurt mixed with protein powder, and dextrose topped with a liberal spray of salt water. No wonder she vomited hourly.

THAT MEAL ALONE, notwithstanding the hours of swimming in choppy water, was enough to make her throw tantrums and hallucinate.

No. None of that marathon swimming for me. Uh-uh. If I plan to be a world adventurer I'll take the high road and they'll take the low road and I'll get there before ye.

I never heard of any balloonist smearing himself or herself with axle grease or Vaseline like the marathon swimmers do to stay warm. Icky, sticky, slippery Vaseline. No thanks. Now, granted, you could fall into the ocean when the balloon deflates and be eaten by sharks. But for most of the trip you'd be dry and your point of view would be a little farther than just the next wave.

Neither mode of transportation will set any speed records. The swimmers have been clocked at 5.1 knots per hour, roughly equivalent to five miles an hour on land. But who swims on land?

The balloon was cruising at 15,000 feet at a speed of 21 miles per hour. Most bicycles go that fast.

Speed aside, it's got to be a heady experience for the three New Mexico men who left their arid locale for a flight above the ocean and fleeting fame.

That stab at immortality may be punctured by the likelihood that they'll be branded as the kooks from Albuquerque who risked life and limb for a little publicity and had to be pulled out of the ocean by a boat.

They'll either be heroes or bums by the time this column appears, but my best wishes are riding with them now.

And if that doesn't bring them down, nothing will. I want to see them cross the ocean in that fragile craft.

One of the reasons I heap praise on these modern-day Magellans is that I'm hoping someone will take me up for a ride. This is not something I just dreamed up. As a kid I planned to inflate my backyard pool with the gas that fueled my mother's mangle.

If she hadn't nipped that plan in the bud, I might have been transported to Calais or Cleveland in a wading pool. Or I might have exploded over the state fairgrounds in a ball of flame like the Hindenburg.

If anyone out there owns a balloon or has connections with the Goodyear authorities, contact me immediately. I've always wanted to file a story from a blimp at sea. If anything is apt to lift me out of this summer's-almost-over funk, a blimp sure can.

Covette hits cycle

An 18-year-old driver of a silver Corvete was ticketed for failing to signal for a left turn Monday when he ran into a motorcyclist and his passenger who were attempting to pass.

The driver of the motorcycle, Mark A. Bistrenko, 18, and Brian Armbruster, 16, the passenger, were examined and released at St. Mary Hospital. The driver of the car, Brian B. Elliot, 18, of Plymouth, was issued a ticket by Deputy Peter Bukis of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

The accident occurred at 10:45 a.m. Monday on Joy Road in front of Plymouth Salem High School. Elliot is a student at the school.

memory. My only witnesses were her, Bundarin and the Canton police officers. And Bundarin is no more than an honorary officer himself.

The quarrel with Ms. Filarecki started, said Simmers, when he told her he wanted to break off their relationship.

"She has a very overriding personality," Simmers said. "You're going to do what she says or else."

Simmers admits hitting Bush with the police-issue flashlight, but says it was only after he was struck by the four officers on the scene. Simmers said the confrontation would have been avoided if Ms. Filarecki hadn't hid the keys to his van.

This enraged him, he said, causing him to take "her by the hair and wash her face in the snow."

Bundarin testified that police showed "restraint."

Simmers is free on $3,000 cash bond. He will be sentenced next month in the courtroom of Wayne Circuit Judge Irwin Burdick.

Meat cuts and selection tapered to smaller families

The once-typical American household of dad, mom and all the kids is now only a shadow of its former self. In 1975, 50 percent of all households were made up of just one or two persons. It is predicted that by 1990, the percent of one and two-person households will rise to 56.

Smaller households have very special problems and needs, especially when it comes to food. But those shopping for the mini-household these days should find few problems when purchasing meat. Meat cuts at the self-service counter are packaged in a variety of sizes, one just right to fit the needs of any family. Many cuts such as T-bone and top loin steaks, pork and lamb chops and cubed steaks are serving-sized, making selection simple. If the right sized package is not in the meat case, the retailer will often make up just what is needed upon request.

With the help of a freezer, smaller households needn't pass up the price advantages that often accompany meat purchased in larger quantities.

Greenstein calls write-in talk bunk

Trustee candidate Robert Greenstein says rumors that he is planning a write-in campaign for township supervisor are "a crock of BS."

"If I had wanted to be supervisor, I would have run," said Greenstein, the top vote-getter in last Tuesday's Democratic race for two trustee nominations.

"There will be no write-in campaign on my behalf for anything this November. I am just very happy and very proud to be nominated for trustee."

Greenstein, Canton's supervisor from 1974 to 1976, staged an unsuccessful write-in campaign to retain the township's top administrative position in 1976.

In last Tuesday's Democratic primary, Greenstein won almost as many votes in the five-way trustee race as supervisor nominee Noel Culbert pulled in the two-way supervisor race.

Greenstein says he does not know which of this year's supervisor candidates—Democrat Culbert or Republican John Longridge—he will support.

Money isn't enough for Hall. He wants to be active in whatever ways he can in the business world. He has formed a charitable foundation where the bulk of his estate will filter. His personality hasn't altered since he placed in the upper tax bracket, Hall claims.

HUDSON'S

House cools CETA salaries, reallocates funds

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Aug. 3 through Aug. 9.

HOUSE

CETA REFORM—Adopted, 230 for and 175 against, an amendment lowering the top salary paid under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). CETA is the main federal program for putting poor people to work, primarily in state and local public-sector jobs funded by the U.S. Treasury. The five-year-old program has become controversial because of reports it is riddled in many cities by such abuses as nepotism, patronage and fraud.

This amendment was attached to HR 12452, a bill to extend CETA for two years and safeguard it against abuse. The bill was later passed and sent to the Senate. This amendment limits to $10,000 annually the top CETA salary that can be paid in "low-wage" areas of the country, and to $12,000 the top pay for "high-wage" areas. Also, it limits the average nationwide CETA wage to $7,000.

Rep. David Obey (D-Wisc.), sponsor of the amendment, said: "I do think a $15,000-a-year job for CETA is politically indefensible. I do not think our constituents understand why we ought to be paying people that large a salary for a CETA job."

Rep. Augustus Hawkins (D-Calif.), an opponent, said that if CETA is "to be something more than training individuals for menial, low-paying jobs... the Obey amendment certainly will not accomplish it."

Members voting "yea" favored lower pay for CETA job-holders.

Rep. William Broomfield (R-Birm.), voted "yea."

Reps. David Bonior (D-Mt. Pleasant), William Ford (D-Taylor), William Brodhead (D-Detroit), James Blanchard (D-Pl. Ridge), and Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), voted "nay."

CETA—Adopted, 221 for and 181 against, an amendment to cut $1 billion from the public-service-jobs section of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and divert about half of that sum to youth unemployment and private-sector CETA programs. The amendment was attached to the CETA reform bill (see vote above).

Roll Call Report

It marks a shift in emphasis in CETA by increasing funding for training poor youths for private-sector jobs and decreasing money for putting poor adults in public sector jobs. Although it leaves several hundred thousand jobs for adults untouched, it favors the child at the expense of the father.

Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.), a supporter, said the "real scandal" of CETA is not how the money has been spent "but how it has not been spent. We are not just wasting taxpayers' dollars—we are wasting a precious national resource. I am speaking about the young people of our nation."

Rep. Parren Mitchell (D-Md.), an opponent, said the amendment would destabilize poor families. "I would implore my colleagues to look at what that does to family life when the father comes to the son and says, 'Let me borrow two bucks from you so I can go out and look for work.'"

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Broomfield and Pursell voted "yea." Bonior, Ford, Brodhead and Blanchard voted "nay."

DEFENSE CUTS—Rejected, 102 for and 252 against, an amendment to cut the Department of Defense appropriations bill by two per cent across-the-board. It sought to trim about $2.18 billion from the $119.4 billion bill for defense spending in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. The bill (HR 13635) was later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), the sponsor, said that after having served as a Navy pilot "there is no one sitting in this room today on the floor of the House who can convince me that there is not at least two per cent waste and inefficiency in the military." Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex.), an opponent, said the defense budget had already been cut by $3 billion in the appropriations committee and that "we should not tamper further with the defense program."

Members voting "yea" favored the cut in defense spending.

Ford, Brodhead, Blanchard and Pursell voted "yea."

Broomfield voted "nay." Bonior did not vote.

SENATE
NEW OFFICES—Voted, 45 for and 29 against, to table and thus kill an amendment to permanently stop construction of the third Senate office building. When completed in the 1980s, the Phillip A. Hart Building will be the most expensive federal building ever built. Although a removable cap of $135 million has been placed on it, critics say it will eventually cost more than $200 million. The tabled amendment was proposed to HR 13467, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Richard Schweiker (R-Pa.), a supporter of tabling and an advocate of the building, said senators need more space because "we put up with crowded conditions... that no other executive agency of the federal government puts up with. We also put up with crowded conditions that many businesses would not put up with."

Sen. John Chafee (R-R.I.), an opponent of tabling, asked: "When everybody is looking to the federal government to do its part in curbing inflation, how can we justify going ahead with what will end up being the most costly federal building ever built in the history of this government?"

Sens. Robert Griffin (R) and Donald Riegle (D), voted "yea."

Is astrology for real?

In the past, I have rarely discussed astrology in this column. I have never really been sure whether or not I believe in it.

Could the day, place and time one was born really have more than just an environmental effect on a person?

Well, let me share a recent experience with you.

Last weekend, while I was in Chicago, I happened, quite unexpectedly, to attend a concert presented by the Grant Park Symphony Orchestra.

After the concert I stood talking to one of the musicians, when another member of the audience, a man named Richard Jarrett, came up and joined in the conversation.

The musician told us that he was studying astrology, and asked us our birth dates. Imagine our surprise when it turned out that Mr. Jarrett and I were born not only on the same day of the month, but also in the same year, and not very many miles apart.

"Aha!" thought I. If there really is anything to astrology, our lives should coincide in some way. So, I began questioning him.

I learned that he was first-born in his family, as was I. Our educational background was very similar. He taught school for awhile. So did I.

We both had spent some time as state social workers—he in Illinois, I in Michigan.

He is also a writer, and has several books to his credit, as well as a newspaper column.

We share a studious interest in food. I write cookbooks, and he studies nutrition and plans menus.

We both claim folk-dancing as a hobby. Both of us love music, and both studied piano, though neither of us plays well today.

We were married in the same year, and separated from our mates at exactly the same time.

We are both extremely fond of water, and swimming is his favorite sport. It is the only sport I really enjoy.

We have read the same books, known the same authors, and both of us are uncommonly fond of Shakespeare.

I have broken both feet at different times in my life, as well as having several injuries to my toes. Mr. Jarrett was limping when I met him, and since the age of 10, when he was accidentally shot in the foot, he has had a history of foot injuries, and is now recovering from a broken ankle.

Perhaps astrology did have something to do with it. Who knows? Was it the stars that caused us both to be in Chicago listening to classical music last Saturday night? And did they lead us to talk to the same musician after the concert? Or, was it all coincidence? You be the judge.

Bids taken on Hines' improvements

Bids were taken yesterday in Lansing on an estimated $3 million in improvements to Edward Hines Drive.

The projects, in Plymouth, Livonia, Northville and Northville Township, include 10 miles of shoulder reconstruction, five miles of widening and resurfacing and one mile of sewer construction.

The word "widening," Department of State Highways and Transportation officials admit, can be misleading. Hines Drive will remain a two-lane road. The lanes, though, will be wider.

The specific Hines Drive improvements are:

- Widening, resurfacing, paving and reconstructing the concrete shoulder from north of Five Mile Road to Sheldon Road in Northville and Northville Township. It will cost approximately $800,000 and is expected to be completed next June.

- Reconstructing the shoulders along 10.3 miles between Ann Arbor Road and Ford Road in Livonia, Westland and Dearborn Heights. It also will cost about $800,000 and is expected to be completed next June.

- Widening one mile of the roadway from Ann Arbor Road to north of Five Mile Road in Plymouth and Northville townships. The project includes grading and installing drainage structures, sewers and concrete paving, curbs and gutters. It will cost approximately $600,000 and will also be completed next June.

BIDS WILL also be taken on a number of other Wayne County road improvement projects including:

- Widening, resurfacing and paving one mile of Van Born Road between Inkster Road and Middlebelt in Westland and Romulus. It will cost about $300,000 and is expected to be completed in November.

- Reconstructing about one mile of Six Mile to a six-lane, divided roadway. Six Mile will be widened from I-96 to west of Levan. It is expected to cost about $1.4 million and will be completed next August.

- Landscaping about 3.7 miles of I-96 between Beech Daly and Evergreen. It is expected to cost $150,000 and will be completed in November.

MESC is offering retroactive benefits for some workers

Some unemployed workers in the state may be eligible for retroactive unemployment benefits dating back to the first of the year, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

A special temporary unemployment benefits program—the Transition Period Benefits Program—has started in Michigan because of a new law.

The new jobless benefits program is aimed at those who worked at jobs in 1977 that were not covered by the state's unemployment insurance laws and, consequently, left the workers ineligible for jobless benefits in early 1978 if they lost their jobs.

Benefits will be paid retroactively to workers unemployed after Jan. 1, 1978, but to be eligible they must have held the following types of jobs in 1977: agricultural or domestic jobs; jobs with local government's which had their own unemployment compensation system; or jobs with non-profit/nonpublic elementary and secondary schools.

Those who worked in any of these categories prior to Jan. 1 should report to a MESC office before Oct. 18. The office will decide if they are eligible for retroactive benefits for any weeks of unemployment beginning with the first of the year.

MESC offices started taking claims under the Transition Period Benefits Program Aug. 7.

The MESC says claimants should bring any proof of earnings, such as pay stubs, wage statements or tax returns.

The program is intended to cover workers caught between the ending of the federal special unemployment assistance (SUA) program and law changes in the state unemployment program which took effect Jan. 1.

The SUA program gave unemployment benefit coverage to workers normally not eligible under state programs such as farm and domestic workers, local government employees, and school and community college districts workers. The SUA program began in 1974 but stopped taking new claims in January.

State law was amended allowing the state unemployment insurance program to cover many of these workers as of last January.

According to the MESC, a few jobless workers were caught short. They had not worked long enough—at least 14 weeks—to qualify for SUA in 1977 or they had not worked for at least 14 weeks in 1978 to qualify under the state program.

With the Transition Period Benefit Program, a worker's earnings and length of employment in 1977 and 1978 will be combined to see if he qualifies for the retroactive benefits.

Through the arena

The departure from modular scheduling resulted this year in a new method of registering for classes, dubbed "arena scheduling," at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park. Some 800 seniors were registered Monday, with the average time per student being about 45 minutes.

School officials report the new procedure worked smoothly and added there was little confusion over the introduction this year of a book deposit charge. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Voters back M-275 revival but state is pessimistic

Western Oakland County voters want a major north-south road.

That much is clear in the wake of last week's advisory referendum in Orchard Lake, Commerce Township, Highland Township, Novi, Milford Township, Walled Lake, Springfield Township and White Lake Township.

Voters—73 per cent of them—approved the idea of building an I-96-to-M59 connector "along the approximate route of M-275."

An unofficial tally had the total vote at 7,062 to 2,573.

Though the vote carries no legal weight, backers of the cancelled freeway hope it will place some election-year pressure on Gov. William Milliken to resurrect the project.

The victory was never in doubt as ballot proposals passed overwhelmingly in each community. The result in one community was a turnaround. Commerce Township voters in 1976 had specifically turned down the freeway plan.

While the balloting may put some pressure on the governor, Peter B. Fletcher, chairman of the State Highway Commission, said it did not mean M-275 would be revived.

He said money for the highway had been transferred to other projects, and highway planners would have to overcome a number of environmental problems to get the 70 per cent federal funding.

There were a number of alternative plans offered after the original M-275 plan was scrapped, but the field has been narrowed to two.

Both plans would substitute a boulevard for the freeway, but one would follow much of the original route for M-275 and the other would be built along existing roads to the east.

THE TWO PLANS are:

•The McConnell Compromise, the offering of Oakland County Commissioner Robert McConnell (R-Farmington Hills), will follow the original M-275 route. The road will be developed as a six-lane boulevard with an 84-foot landscaped median, shoulders, a continuous bicycle path and wide, landscaped berms along both sides.

•Alternative "C," which was proposed by the "Citizens in Opposition to M-275" originally extended from Eight Mile Road to M-59, generally following Haggerty Road, Union Lake Road and Williams Lake Road. It was changed by the citizens group and the section between Eight Mile and 12 Mile Roads was eliminated.

Alternative "C" would be developed as a four-lane boulevard from 12 Mile Road to 14 Mile Road along Haggerty Road. A six-lane boulevard will connect to Northwestern Highway in the vicinity of Orchard Lake Road, follow 14 Mile Road to Haggerty Road and then swing northerly along Haggerty Road. The boulevard will continue to Richardson Road where the road section would be cut to seven lanes "to minimize damage to the environment and to minimize right-of-way requirements through an intensive commercial development in the area."

The seven-lane section will extend nearly three miles to Cooley Lake Road where the road will once again be widened to provide a six-lane boulevard extending to M-59.

IN THE TIME leading up to the vote and immediately following the primary, the chorus of voices calling for action on a major north-south road in western Oakland County has become louder.

Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy recently led a group of local officials to Lansing to meet with Milliken.

Murphy said western Oakland, with a population approaching 200,000 is larger than most cities in the nation, does not have a north-south road wider than two lanes.

Included in the entourage were representatives of most of the communities that participated in the advisory referendum and McConnell—but no one from the county road commission.

The Oakland County Road Commission also chimed in in the wake of the election.

"The State Highway Commission until now has been saying people did not want M-275," said John L. Grubba, the road commission's managing director.

"That strawman was burned in the polling booths in eight communities of western Oakland County where the needs exist for a safe, sound highway that will do the job.

"It is clear what the voters think and want," he said.

EMERY DANIELS

My personal hero for the week is a young man by the name of Al McCosh in Canton.

Most of you have never heard of Al McCosh or had occasion to meet him. In fact I had never heard of Al McCosh until Monday night when the phone rang just as I was about to take a bite of tuna fish salad.

The Den gives a tip of the hat to Al. He is another piece of evidence supporting my personal belief that most persons are decent human beings who'll make an extra effort to help someone else in distress.

But I had better set the stage before telling you what little I know about Al McCosh.

LAST SUNDAY NIGHT the family went to a nearby drive-in to take in a couple of movies.

We had taken our own supply of pop, chips, peanuts and candy to avoid any trips to the concession stand. I had settled down to watch the first movie, "Hooper," planning to spend the rest of the evening in the car. The only problem was our windshield is tinted along the top, so I had to scooch down to get a good view of the screen. Apparently, while scooching, my wallet slipped upwards in my rear pocket.

After about 15 minutes of Burt Reynolds, my son fell asleep. An hour later, my wife suggested it might be a good idea to take Lyle to the restroom. (It wasn't mother's intuition, but I refuse to go into the details of how we knew it was time for such a trip).

I waited until the end of the movie, and then crawled out of the car, leaned over to pick up Lyle, and carried him toward the restroom. At this time, apparently, my wallet fell out of its slippery position in my rear pocket.

I remained for the second movie, "Gumball Rally," although everyone else had fallen asleep before it was half over. I left completely unaware that my wallet no longer was in my pocket.

MONDAY MORNING, I was getting ready to leave for work and couldn't locate my wallet.

After looking at the usual places the wallet could be, and discovering it wasn't, the truth began to dawn that it was lost.

My wife immediately called the companies which have issued me credit cards to request a stop on our accounts. I then began calling places I had been Sunday to inquire whether they had found a wallet laying around.

I soon narrowed the search down to the drive-in and convinced myself that had to be where it was lost. So I took a drive over to see if I could find anyone around.

What an eerie feeling—all alone, mid-afternoon, in the middle of an empty drive-in. It already had been cleaned and a truck full of garbage bags sat parked behind the concession stand. I walked the rows, anyway, but to no avail. I located the manager on the grounds but no wallet had been turned in.

About this time I began to give up hope of any recovery and the full impact of my predicament hit me. The credit cards now became the least of my worries. I now fully appreciated that we live in a society of cards. I had been carrying a card for everything, and now would have to make dozens of phone calls to get new cards issued.

Obviously, I would need a new driver's license and vehicle registration. I also would need a new Social Security card and Selective Service card. (I've done my two years but an officer once told me to keep that card the rest of my life). I also would have to obtain voter registration cards for school and municipal elections, another credit union membership card, and check identification cards for supermarkets.

There also were medical, hospitalization and prescription cards that had to be replaced, and a membership card for road service. An assortment of press cards would also have to be replaced.

In addition to this bevy of cards were other items like pictures of the children, a lens prescription for my eyeglasses, and an assortment of phone numbers written on the backs of check cashing cards.

AFTER PONDERING the extent of my loss, my stomach wasn't in very good shape when I sat down for supper Monday night.

I knew it would be a terrible hassle dealing with the Social Security Administration, Selective Service, and Veteran's Administration. The next few weeks would be most unpleasant.

That's when the phone rang and I first heard the voice and name of Al McCosh. Al had found my wallet beside the sidewalk a short distance from the drive-in. He called as soon as he got home from work, verified my identification, and then volunteered to drive to my home to deliver it.

We met instead at a nearby 7-11 store. I was so relieved and overwhelmed at getting my wallet back, that I didn't talk to Al that much—except to thank him profusely. So I know little about Al McCosh except that he's a decent man who follows the Golden Rule.

There are many more people around like Al, so he's not that special. Because the majority of people, I believe, are decent human beings, Al doesn't really deserve having a newspaper column devoted to his good Samaritan act. And I wouldn't have done so, except it was my wallet he found and returned. Thanks Al! I'll keep my eye out for yours—just in case.

School chief plans to begin legal pursuit to retain board seat

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

Vincent Petitpren says he will pursue through legal means what he believes is his constitutional right to be both a school board member and Taylor School District superintendent.

A Wayne County Circuit Court judge recently ruled that the two positions were incompatible and that the Wayne-Westland School Board could declare Petitpren's seat vacant and appoint a replacement.

"(The judge) took nothing into consideration. He took (State Atty. Gen. Frank) Kelley's opinion. But until an incompatibility is a fact, it just isn't so," said Petitpren.

Thus Petitpren takes issue with both the ruling that the two roles are in conflict and with the way he was removed from office.

In his opinion issued in late May, Kelley said the potential for conflict was enough to declare the dual roles incompatible. Potential conflicts, according to Kelley and the court, include the right to contract with each other and competition for funding and lobbying.

If his two school-related positions were incompatible, then Petitpren believes other people with potential conflicts should also be removed from office.

At one point recently, Petitpren said he would name everyone in state, county and local government who were in roles which had potential conflicts.

Besides the incompatibility issue, Petitpren believes he was wrongfully removed from office.

In declaring his seat vacant, the school board followed the advice of its attorneys who said that common law must be followed. When two positions are in conflict, according to common law, accepting the second automatically vacates the first.

Earlier Petitpren had said that he would resign at the end of his term in 1980. He said that resignation would come before the school election that year, allowing voters to replace him, not the school board.

"My position on the school board is a secondary issue now. What's important is the constitutional rights of myself and others and the disenfranchisement of the electorate," he explained.

"We haven't worked 25 years for good government and now to be sidestepped, although it will be financially expensive. We want to get the law changed."

To challenge the circuit court ruling, Petitpren said that he and a battery of lawyers will try to bypass the appellate court and appeal directly to the Michigan State Supreme Court.

"This is a precedent-setting case. We've had support from a lot of lawyers, including some who are now legislators," he added.

Petitpren plans to absorb all legal expenses himself, believing that legal fees will "not be that exorbitant" because of interest shown in his case.

Asked about reports that there is dissension among Taylor School Board members over the way he is reorganizing the administration in that district, Petitpren said there was "no problem at all. Every dismissal has been approved by the board beforehand. The board president will have to explain his comments to the other members."

While Petitpren pursues his legal battles, the Wayne-Westland school board has until Aug. 18 to name his replacement. If no successor is named by that date, state statute allows the county intermediate district to name a successor.

The board is believed to be setting up a committee to review a list of prospective board members.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS
The International Pain Control Institute is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.
Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis.
This is a public service program for participating volunteers. The doctors are contributing their time, service, and facilities for the program.
Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.

Out of the kitchen

The Canton Seniors Kitchen Band grabbed their pots and pans and carted them to Flint last Friday for some good old-fashioned tunes. Directed by Dolores Edwards, the group entertained festival-goers at Flint's Elderfest 1978. Groups from all over the state participated in the Kitchen Bandorama.

Bus schedules simplified except for elementary

Changes in school bus scheduling this fall will make life simpler for most students and their parents in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Elementary school families, however, will have to keep a close eye on the calendar, because one day each week school will start 45 minutes later.

The shortened elementary school day once each week is one of the cost reductions resulting from the defeat of the request for additional operating millage last June.

EVERY STUDENT who rides the bus will receive a schedule card in the mail before Aug. 28—the first day of school for Extended School Year (ESY) schools.

On the postcard will be the bus location and time for the entire year.

Improvements over last year's transportation program include standardizing routes, having the same bus driving morning and afternoon wherever possible, and eliminating transportation changes when ESY tracks change.

Double tripping (one bus making two deliveries to a school) has been eliminated for elementary and middle schools. The amount of double tripping at the high schools has been cut from 17 to about 10 double trips.

Cost for the transportation department has been kept to a minimum by staggering school opening and closing times, explains Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations. The computer scheduling process used here can work out the most efficient times and routes by varying school hours, she adds.

SCHOOL STARTS one hour later than normal on Aug. 28, the first day of school for students at Field, Eriksson, Miller, Isbister, Gallimore elementaries and at Pioneer Middle School.

A district-wide teachers' meeting will be held that morning.

Regular school starting times range from 7:15 a.m. at the high schools to 9:05 a.m. in some elementary schools. Closing times go from 2:05 p.m. at the high schools to 3:35 p.m.

The defeat of the 1.5 additional mills in the June election has resulted in a cutback of one special instruction period per week in elementary schools. Unified arts will not be taught this year. With the voted renewal of three mills, elementary art, music and physical education remain unchanged.

The class cut means one day a week elementary students start 45 minutes later. Elementary schools will open 45 minutes later on Tuesdays or Wednesdays. Which days are assigned to each elementary school will be announced as soon as details are worked out.

The regular starting times for elementaries, four days a week, will be: 8:50 a.m. for Allen, Gallimore, Starkweather, Miller and Eriksson; 8:35 for Bird, &25 for Geer; 8:30 for Smith and Field; and 9:05 for Farrand, Tanger, Fiegel, Isbister and Hulsing.

The school day at the middle schools are: 7:50 to 2:40 for East; 7:40 to 2:30 for West; 7:50 to 2:40 for Pioneer and Central. The high school day will be from 7:15 to 2:05.

Principals will be advising parents to have their children wear light-colored outer garments and reflectorized striping sewn on coats so they will be more visible to buses and other traffic during the early morning hours when it is dark outside.

Stonehenge enters the Age of the Collector

By SAM HUDSON

After a hearty British breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausages, toast and coffee, the genial hosts of our Bed and Breakfast in Salisbury, England, volunteered to drive us to see the legendary Stonehenge.

As we motored the seven miles north across the rolling Salisbury Plain, with the highest church spire in England at our rear, my mind went back to the first time I saw Stonehenge.

It was during the 1940s, when I was stationed with the U.S. Infantry in Britain. I had been driving south, in an army Jeep, headed for Salisbury, when my eye caught something familiar across the fields. It reminded me of a picture I saw many years before in my grammar school history book.

The WAY it is TODAY

By Sam Hudson

I HAD ALMOST passed the place by. There were no anticipatory signs along the road; no hot dog and pop stands; no tourist approaching the most important antiquity in the British Isles.

Had I not, by chance, glanced across the terrain to my left and seen the huge, circular group of standing stones, I certainly would have missed it.

As I walked from the Jeep to the stones, I thought how wonderful to be able to examine at such close range one of the wonders of the world, unimpeded by fences and "no trespassing" signs.

How pleasant to enjoy the place with not a soul around, except me, and without the distractions of the myriad of commercial concessions which usually proliferate near such celebrated attractions.

I had read that it was not always thus. Prior to 1915, the area immediately adjacent to the site had been marred by bungalows, tea shops and an airport. In that year, the Stonehenge Preservation Committee was successful in its effort to have the land for about a mile radius around the stones purchased and vested in the national trust.

THAT FIRST VISIT of mine was in 1944. On my second visit in June, 1977, I discovered that there have been some changes made—and not for the better.

This time as we approached the venerable stone pile, the first thing we encountered was a huge cluster of tents sprawled over a farmer's field about a mile away from the famous archeological site.

"Hippies," our British host snorted. "There's about a thousand of them. They arrived with the summer solstice, when they hold ceremonies here. The police have had their hands full with them. Drugs you know."

Next, we came to something else that had not been there on my first time around—a new police station, now a permanent fixture at the site. It stands near a huge concrete parking lot, usually filled to capacity with cars as it was that day.

Not far away, is a heavily patronized refreshment stand next to another which sells camera film, color slides, souvenir postcards, and other tourist essentials. There is also a cement structure housing the ubiquitous "W.C.s."

As we walked across the busy highway toward the massive stones set in circles, one within another, I was dismayed to see that the entire thing has been encircled with barbed wire.

"Why on earth did they do that?" I asked my host.

"Necessity," he told me. "Vandals were chipping pieces of the stones away and carting them off as souvenirs."

Then my eye caught the signs: "No Writing," read one; and "Do Not Sit or Climb," read another. Nearby, a more ominous one announced that the area is patrolled by guard dogs at night.

"Let's go find a pub," I said to my host as we climbed back into the car.

Stonehenge, one of the wonders of the ancient world, has survived the rigors of Britain's wind, sleet, rain, and snow since the Bronze Age. Whether it can survive the Age of the Collector is anybody's guess.

Three Plymouth Township residents recently spent two weeks training in Bermuda as weekend warriors for VP 93—the state's largest naval reserve unit. Besides annual overseas duty, reservists serve a minimum of one weekend per month at Selfridge Air

Teachers learn selling skills

What do you teach people who are going into marketing and distribution for a career?

This was one of many topics discussed by more than 200 teachers and administrators from across the United States who attended the National Distributive Education Summer Conference at the University of South Florida in Tampa last month.

Byron Richardson of Plymouth Salem High School was a participant at the week-long conference and returned home with information on recent developments and innovations affecting the distributive education program.

Distributive education programs are often cooperative in nature and students receive on-the-job training.

'Trend-spotting': a job always in demand

There are about five million people looking for work in the United States and not having any luck finding it.

That's enough to worry anybody but an economist. Economists worry about the inflow of gross metric tons of iodide so much that they don't have time to worry about five million people out of work. All that changes, of course, on the day economists start getting pink slips.

Even today, however, there is at least one job begging for qualified applicants. The job is trend-spotting.

Hard times or no, trend-spotters always eat filet mignon three times a day. Because not all trend-spotters actually like filet mignon three times a day, it's a drawback; but it's also a union rule and they have to go along.

Trend-spotters make a living because all of us want to peek into the future, and none of us can. There have always been some people, though, who can convince the rest of us that not only is there really an inside track on tomorrow, but they know where it's going.

Check the scales before singing tax ceiling chorus

As I was saying: We almost have tax limitation in Michigan already. Ask the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, the folks who bring you Stony Creek and Kensington metroparks and all the rest.

Several elections ago, HCMA went after a property tax increase, a modest quarter of a mill. The voters said no. So be it.

The first result was that HCMA began charging $1 a car for admission or $5 a season.

The second result was that it began making deals to get capital for future development and expansion. One of those deals incurred the wrath of no less a headline-seeker than Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

WHAT HAPPENED is this:

HCMA leased 120 acres of Kensington Metropark to a private company, the Kensington Children's Farm and Village Corp., in 1975. The firm's general manager is Peter Cristiano Jr. of Southfield.

Part of the deal is that HCMA gets 10 per cent of the annual revenue or a minimum of $25,000 annually. At the end of 25 years, the children's farm, village and rides become HCMA property.

There is ample precedent for this kind of deal in the parks and recreation business. Private enterprises operate in many of our state parks and in such national parks as Grand Canyon.

Dave Laidlaw and the astute business minds on HCMA say the business-government deal is a low-cost, low-risk way to raise capital.

ALL IS FAR from sweetness and light, however.

First, neighbors objected to the toot-toot of an old-time train.

Next, Michigan United Conservation Clubs charged HCMA is trying to commercialize the metropark.

And, last week, Frank Kelley went to Oakland Circuit Court, challenging the five-county authority's legal power to go on with such developments. In some colorful press release language, Kelley attacked "carnival-type, mechanical rides" as "totally inappropriate" and "glaringly out of place" in a park.

HCMA's friends say Kelley's purple prose is unjustified; that there may be racial motives underlying neighbors' objections; that the rides will be enclosed; and so on.

MY PURPOSE is not to take sides between the Development vs. the Back to Nature crowd.

Rather, it is to point out how government responds when faced with tax limitation.

The Stroller

Swindle sheets and hot tips

By W. W. EDGAR

Ever since President Jimmy Carter voiced his feelings on the three-martini luncheons, which find their way to what old-time journalists referred to as swindle sheets expense accounts, how to cope with them has been a popular topic of discussion at these noon day appetite appeasers.

And every time they are mentioned, The Stroller has fond recollections of two of the most unusual experiences with managing editors who had their own ideas of what was allowable in the way of tips, mileage, travel and hotel expenses.

The first was almost unbelievable in that the editor claimed The Stroller was too frugal in the way of tipping. And the second was getting the managing editor to help us beat the hard-and-fast rule he had laid down with the appendage that there would be no exceptions.

The first happened years ago when The Stroller made his first out-of-state trip for the Detroit Free Press. He was assigned to travel with the University of Detroit football team to West Point for its game with the Army.

Before he left the office, Phil Reid, the kindly old editor, called him into his office and told him what was expected of him.

"Remember," he said, "when you are travelling you are the show window of the paper. So I would like to have you dress nice with a clean suit, creased trousers, a clean shaven face. I also want you to eat in the hotel dining rooms and tip liberally. This may not help you, but it will establish the paper, and the next fellow from here may get a break."

All went well. The Stroller did what he was told. Then at half time of the game on Saturday, he received a wire from the office telling him to catch the first train back to Detroit after the game and cover the pro football game in Navin Field on Sunday.

The Stroller was a bit disappointed. He had hoped to be with the Detroit team on a trip to New York on Saturday evening. But, once the game was ended, he set about planning his return to Detroit.

He learned there was a train going west at 7 p.m. and it would stop at Harmon, across the Hudson River. Next, he got permission to have two cadets drive him down to Highland Falls. From there he would take a ferry across the river. Then came the first bad break. As we were going down the hill from the Point, the ferry started across the river.

What to do? He called the commandant of the academy and got permission for the cadets to drive him down to a cross bridge then over to Harmon—provided he would pay the toll on the bridge and buy the cadets their dinner.

It was agreed. But when he got to Harmon in plenty of time to catch the train, he reached in his wallet and the smallest bill he had was $20. So, remembering what old Mr. Reid had told him, he gladly gave the cadets the $20.

When he turned in his swindle sheet, Mr. Reid noted that The Stroller had charged taxi fare and special automobile hire.

"You certainly learn fast," he said. "Tell me about this $20 special automobile hire."

The Stroller did that. When at last he finished, Reid said, "And you gave them only $20. How frugal. Change that and make it $50."

Things were a bit different when the late Malcolm Bingay took charge at the Free Press. It was during the Fifty years ago, those people would have bought big tents and gone into business for themselves, reading bumps on your head. Today they mostly work for other people.

And, they're much in demand.

Take SEMTA. It could use a new trend-spotter. Its old trend-spotter now resides in Michigan City, Indiana, where he predicts when traffic signals will turn red.

That's because trend-spotters are responsible for a SEMTA plan calling for 2,000 suburban buses. That's a nice, even number, but it's wrong. It's wrong because SEMTA trend-spotters a few years ago decided that roughly twice as many folks would live in the SEMTA area today than there really are.

The 2,000-bus plan has been scrapped. The bus boys are shooting for half as many now. Anyway,

Tim Richard

It looks for non-tax revenue.

It looks at park entrance fees; it looks at concessions; it looks at tuitions and lab fees and registration fees and enrollment fees; it looks at building permit fees.

People who file lawsuits get money. The courts mandate money for new jails and prisons. The courts mandate hundreds of millions for new wastewater treatment systems. The courts mandate millions for mental health facilities.

The courts don't mandate money for preserving our woods and waters in a natural state. So what we have is HCMA raising capital by cutting a deal with a privately owned firm to develop a village and model farm in the vintage of the early 1800s, when there really was a little town of Kensington with a wildcat bank.

Make up your own mind whether tax limitation is wise. But if you think it is smart, then consider whether you will like 1) paying fees for more and more government services and 2) seeing government make children's zoo and village deals in order to raise development money.

There are more ramifications to this tax limitation business than meet the eye.

Slip-slidin' away, earthquake-style

Assume it is 1954. You're a lovely woman with a magnetic personality, reasonably mature for your age of about three decades, and you still glow from your recent marriage to a newspaper sports columnist.

At work this day, as an executive secretary in a California office of the Ford Motor Co., you miss a stroke on the typewriter and wonder why your boss and the wall behind him are sliding toward the windows facing the Pacific Ocean.

Why, indeed, is your own chair suddenly going you can see the job market SEMTA offers trend-spotters. Tell your friends.

Another trend-spotter employer is the Detroit Metro Water Board. It built a big water treatment facility up in Port Huron. It cost millions. A lot of workers who were building it got killed in a tunnel explosion.

The water treatment facility now turns out to be unnecessary.

It was built because trend-spotters predicted that if Detroit ever gets hit with a big nuke missile, Lake St. Clair will evaporate. Then nobody will be able to wash their cars in the Motor City, because Lake St. Clair is where the water comes from.

The trend-spotters also figured that a lot of people who have since moved to Dallas or Atlanta would stick around drinking Detroit Metro Water Board water.

Elections really bring out the trend-spotters. They weave election day predictions out of the "temper of the electorate." Generally, trend-spotters find the electorate has lost its temper.

Voters are always angry, the trend-spotters say. Tiger fans are always angry, too, but trend-spotters listen to them scream and they leave them alone.

The trend-spotters had a field day in the Aug. 8 primary. All of the candidates the trend-spotters picked to win actually did win. In fact, the only trend the trend-spotters seem to have misjudged in the primary was their belief that the voters had lost their tempers on property taxes.

Renewal of a county property millage passed handily. That means the county auditor will probably keep his present trend-spotter.

On the other hand, the county will probably waste the money it got in the millage.

The trouble with trend-spotters is they're so far ahead of the rest of us that it takes years before it becomes obvious just how wrong they were.

THAT'S THE WAY THE COOKIE SEEMS TO BE CRUMBLING

down hill to join others of the FoMoCo complex in a tilt position at the side of the building, as sirens begin to scream their warnings from World War II air raid towers?

Old-timers in your muddle simply say, "It's just another earthquake."

The scene is Long Beach, Calif., which had been struck by a true killer of an earthquake that had claimed more than 60 lives back in '33.

OR, YOU'RE THE husband, exhausted from a day's cocktail tour with news sources of the L.A. Rams, USC, UCLA, Santa Anita et al, and, after a delightful seaside dinner with your bride, there is total peace with the world... until the earth starts to shake, rattle and roll.

But the movement is only lateral; not up and down like an Indian dice cup.

Dishes fall from shelves in the kitchen. The house moves fore and aft, then to port and starboard. What the hell is happening?

The scene is Long Beach, Calif.

IT HAS BEEN HOT this week in Michigan, and humid. During an 18-hole round of golf Tuesday at Radrick Farms, the magnificent wooded area that Fred Matthaie donated to the University of Michigan, I didn't think I could get even one more par. It was that torrid! And I didn't.

Then I thought of another blistering afternoon. The temperature was in the 90s at the Virginia Country Club... you guessed where, Long Beach.

Milt Arthur, who owned most of the motion picture houses in this town of 250,000 which features Terminal Island and an amusement park which Navy guys call the Pike, was just lining up a putt on the 18th for what could have been the best score of his life. His three partners stood as statues.

He took the clubhead back ever so slowly, the blade squared truly to the yawning, inviting cup. Then he began its advance.

So help me, at that very moment the rocks of the San Andreas Fault also began to advance and that damn ball never yet has gone into the cup.

Out there, you blame this on nature, buy your round of drinks at the clubhouse bar and come back to play the next day, only mildly concerned over the damage caused by just one more earthquake.

through bifocals

ALL OF THESE THINGS, and many more recollections of oddball earthquake experiences from my years on the coast, came to mind this week after reading of the jolt that shook the gorgeous community of Santa Barbara.

Here, we complained of the heat and humidity. But at least we weren't thrown out of bed during a deep sleep by a quirk in the surface of the earth.

As hot as it has been, at our house we've proceeded with unpacking after moving from one abode to another. The bright side was in finding some unnoticed mail which tells us we soon will fall into unheard of riches.

One envelope shouted, "$50,000 Super Prize Jackpot." Another offered the alternative of cash or a week in Hawaii for two. Then there was one which said, "Double Giveaways—$75,000."

For laughs we sent in the "Big Top $50,000 Giant Jackpot" entry for the cash that can be used as gratuities for the hired hands.

There also was discovery of an autographed picture which many a football fan would treasure.

Tom Harmon's tribute and autograph were in the right upper corner. At the left, in a row of three, is Bullet Bill Dudley, who also added a few words.

The man in the middle of this shot taken years ago in the catacombs of the Los Angeles Coliseum after a game between the Detroit Lions and L.A. Rams was the only guy who ever served as press agent for both of these All-American halfbacks. To this day, I haven't found that third fellow to sign his own name.

In the past, I have rarely discussed astrology in this column. I have never really been sure whether or not I believe in it.

Well, let me share a recent experience with you.

Last weekend, while I was in Chicago, I happened, quite unexpectedly, to attend a concert presented by the Grant Park Symphony Orchestra.

After the concert I stood talking to one of the musicians, when another member of the audience, a man named Richard Jarrett, came up and joined in the conversation.

The musician told us that he was studying astrology, and asked us our birth dates. Imagine our surprise when it turned out that Mr. Jarrett and I were born not only on the same day of the month, but also in the same year, and not very many miles apart.

"Aha!" thought I. If there really is anything to astrology, our lives should coincide in some way. So, I began questioning him.

I learned that he was first-born in his family, as was I. Our educational background was very similar. He taught school for awhile. So did I.

We both had spent some time as state social workers—he in Illinois, I in Michigan.

He is also a writer, and has several books to his credit, as well as a newspaper column.

We share a studios interest in food. I write cookbooks, and he studies nutrition and plans menus.

We both claim folk-dancing as a hobby. Both of us love music, and both studied piano, though neither of us plays well today.

We were married in the same year, and separated from our mates at exactly the same time.

We experienced other major happenings, career changes, emotional crisis, and other things at the exact same time in life.

We have read the same books, known the same authors.

Perhaps astrology did have something to do with it. Who knows?

You be the judge.

Talk gets cheaper — by phone

Michigan Bell today proposed major new discounts for zone calls made weekends, evenings and late night which would save telephone customers in the Detroit, Grand Rapids and Pontiac areas $7.7 million a year.

The discounts—the first ever proposed for zone calls—were submitted to the Michigan Public Service Commission in Lansing.

The telephone company is proposing offsetting increases in the per-minute charges for zone calls to help make up for the drop in revenues which would result from the discounts. This would have the effect of moderately increasing charges for zone calls made during the day, according to Michael D. Rob, Michigan Bell general staff supervisor.

With the proposed "off-peak" discounts in effect, customers in the three communities would save 50 per cent on zone calls made any time Saturdays, Sundays before 5 p.m. and every night from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. the next day. In addition, there would be a 30 per cent discount for zone calls made from 5 to 11 p.m. weekdays and on Sunday.

Detroit, Grand Rapids and Pontiac are the only areas in the state which have zone calling.

The company has asked for a one-cent increase for the first minute and a half-cent increase for each additional minute of a near zone call. The rate for the first minute of a far zone call would be increased 2.5 cents and each additional minute would be increased two cents.

With the new 50 per cent discount and the proposed increases in effect, the charge for a five-minute near zone call made during off-peak times would be reduced from 26 cents to 13 cents, Robb said. The cost of a comparable five-minute far zone call would drop from 52 cents to 26 cents.

Today, a five-minute near zone call costs 23 cents and a five-minute far zone call costs 41 cents.

Robb said the proposed 50 and 30 per cent zone call discounts and the off-peak times during which they would be offered "are exactly the same" as those Michigan Bell earlier asked the commission to approve for long distance calls within the state.

Women's caucus pushes for female on Dem ticket

By SHIRLEE IDEN

A balanced ticket for Michigan Democrats this fall means a lieutenant governor candidate who is a woman and pro-abortion.

That's the unanimous assessment of members of the women's caucus of the party. And they're making dramatic progress in lining up support before the state Democratic convention convenes Aug. 26-27 in Lansing.

Joining the call for a woman near the top of the ticket, former Gov. G. Mennen Williams and nine Democratic candidates for state education posts are adding to the heat on candidate Sen. William B. Fitzgerald.

Williams said Monday that Fitzgerald should have no trouble finding a qualified woman because "there are literally dozens of women throughout Michigan who measure up to the job... and to the possibility that the position could lead to the governorship."

Williams' remarks were made before the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe, where he prevailed on Fitzgerald to "listen to the mood of the times and nominate a woman for lieutenant governor."

Fitzgerald gained his party's nomination in the Aug. 8 primary when he polled 40 per cent of the Democratic votes to beat three other aspirants. The pressures on him began almost immediately.

JUST TWO DAYS after the election, the Democratic women's caucus met in Howell and—despite the absence of the candidate—sent him a clear message that a balanced ticket demands a female running mate who can overcome Fitzgerald's own anti-abortion stand.

The former senate majority leader is on record as a strong advocate for the Equal Rights Amendment and other women's issues but opposed on religious grounds to abortion. His opponent, Gov. William Milliken, has recently come out publicly in support of the Supreme Court ruling that abortion should be a matter of conscience.

A November victory for their party is clearly the top goal of the Democratic women, who contend the way to win is with a balanced ticket.

"If we get a woman who is not Catholic and not anti-abortion, we will have a balanced ticket," said Nancy Waters of Muskegon.

Another speaker at the Howell meeting, Lillian Stoner of Grand Rapids, said the ticket "would not be balanced without a woman."

Annetta Miller, vice-president of the state board of education, told the caucus to be certain that the female candidate nominated would be a good candidate for governor.

"She should be someone who will bring another point of view and help Fitz. We owe it to our party to have someone who will pull those votes. I think this will decide the election," Mrs. Miller said.

MRS. MILLER was one of nine Democratic candidates for education posts who sent a telegram to Fitzgerald late Monday asking that he name a woman as his running mate.

"We urge you to select as your lieutenant governor a woman who is a known feminist and who supports a pro-choice position on the abortion issue," the wire read in part.

The nine signers were among 11 aspirants for positions on the Democratic slate to be chosen in the Lansing convention.

Two candidates, though supportive of a woman for lieutenant governor, declined to sign the telegram because of the demand that the candidate favor abortion. They are Paul Brown, a University of Michigan regent, and Helen Casey, a state board of education aspirant and member of the Catholic Conference.

The signers, in addition to Mrs. Miller are Max Pincus and Leon Atchison, members of the Wayne State University board of governors; James Waters of the Michigan State University board of trustees; and candidates Gladys Beckwith and Glen Betts for the state board of education, Ellen Louhi and Carole Lick for the MSU board of trustees and Marilyn Harris for the U-M board of regents.

Mrs. Stoner, a co-chairwoman of the women's caucus, said the remarks of state Supreme Court Justice G. Mennen Williams and the telegram should indicate to Fitzgerald that "the support is coming from party regulars as well as the women's caucus."

SHE NOTED that Democrats have always tried to seek balance in their ticket by looking at race, age, marital state, ethnicity and geography and ignored sex. "Our position is you can't balance a ticket unless you use sex as a criteria."

Although the women have given Fitzgerald a challenge, they have not gone so far as to name a candidate. Instead, a list of eight women were presented near the end of the Renaissance Center meeting reiterating their choices named at the Howell meeting.

The list of possible candidates, which they said were not exclusive, included Martha Griffiths, a former congresswoman who lives in Farmington Hills; Jean McKee, who ran against Gerald Ford for Congress in the 5th district in 1972; State Rep. Barbara Rose Collins of Detroit; Pat Miklow, a Marquette lawyer; Sarah Power, a U-M regent and wife of defeated U. S. Senate candidate Philip Power; Olivia Maynard of Flint, a vice-chairwoman of the state Democratic Party; and Marjorie Lansing of Ann Arbor, a former 2d district candidate for Congress.

Fitzgerald said he would add the eight, some already on his own list, to others for whittling down to six or seven.

This would be followed by a comprehensive process of screening for the candidates, including a complete financial disclosure and an interview of several hours with both the individual candidates and others he did not name.

FITZGERALD SAID following the Saturday meeting that he had not come there to make promises or to change his own views on abortion and would only say the candidate should be "someone with judgment, ability, competence and sensitivity on all human issues."

"No person in this state should be excluded from public service because of sex or because of this meeting," he added.

The trophy's as tall as the girl

JAN AND JERRY Elston have been "viewing with pride" this summer as they watched the performances of two young Plymouth actors.

First, they saw Linda Dwyer in "I Hear America Singing" at Opryland in Nashville, Tenn. After waiting in line 45 minutes to see a 1 p.m. matinee performance, the Elstons had third row seats for the sell-out house.

"Linda was magnificent," said Jan. The show is a series of songs, dramas, and dances depicting the history of music in the United States. As one of the leads, Linda does everything—she sings, dances and takes part in the skits.

In one of the contemporary skits, she plays the part of Edith Bunker in the regular opening of the "All in the Family" television show. Linda is Edith, seated at the piano, playing and singing "Those Were the Days" with Archie.

And her rendition brings down the house.

She was happy to see the Elstons after the show. Linda is a senior at Eastern Michigan University where she is majoring in drama. She graduated from Plymouth Salem High School and is the daughter of Marilyn Dwyer.

DENNIS COCKRUM, another product of the Plymouth schools and EMU's drama department, is helping pack the True Grist dinner-theater at Homer, Mich.

He had the lead role of Noah in "Two by Two" when the Elstons were there. And according to them, he was great.

He now has the lead in "Gaslight." The theater and restaurant is in an old grist mill. Cocktails are served at 6 p.m. followed by hors d'oeuvres, dinner, the play and then an afterglow.

LAST THURSDAY'S winners at the party bridge game at the Plymouth Community Center were Ruth Sherman and Jane Drewniak.

HILLCREEK GARDEN Club is organizing a family picnic Sunday for residents of New Beacon Hill and Walnut Creek. Time will be from 2-5 p.m.

Each family is asked to provide their own main meal and a dish to pass. The picnic will be in Plymouth Township Park.

THIS SUNDAY, Aug. 20, will be the last chance to see the oriental collection at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The museum will be closed Sept. 26-28 for a change of exhibits. It will reopen Aug. 31 with a special exhibit of silver and pewter.

For those who have not seen the oriental displays, hours are 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

PLYMOUTH HIGH School class of 1968 had its 20th class reunion Saturday night at the Plymouth Hilton. They had a turnout of 186 classmates and spouses.

Judy Jimmerson chaired the party with the help of about 20 persons who put it all together. The grads flocked back to their home town for the class reunion. They came from Texas, California, Washington, Kansas, Florida, Virginia, New York, Kentucky and Ohio.

Dennis Campbell was master of ceremonies as he has been for each of the reunions. His wife, Marcie, did the typing for the souvenir booklet.

Classmates Karl Williams and his wife, Kay (Sempliner) Williams were secretary and treasurer of the event. They received a ducat for dinner for two at a restaurant of their choice for their efforts. Dick Bennett assisted as co-host. Ann (Cooper) Horvath, Jenny Talmadge, Nancy (Kelly) Flentz and Judy Hinote worked on the booklet which updated the whereabouts and news of classmates.

Stan Good, Jackie (Buyers) LaGrow and Jean (Hardiman) Libbing were on the locating committee. Margie (Reddemon) Taylor Sylvester and Lou Ann (Sousa) Smith helped with decorations. Mary Louise Harper and Edie McKenna made the nametags.

"Do You Remember When?" was the theme of the party. It started out with a name tag exchange. Everyone received a tag and had to pin it on the owner. Cocktails preceded the buffet dinner and there was dancing and a program.

Jerry Lee was cited as the classmate with the most children. He has eight. Doris (Moran) Rorabacher was presented a box of Girl Scout cookies. She has been chairman of the Plymouth-Canton area Girl Scout cookie sale innumerable times.

They plan to have another party in five years. "It was a beautiful party," said Judy. "But we had a super committee working on it."

Jayne Barr, 7, was the youngest driver on the track last weekend at the National Derby Rally championships in Columbus, Ohio. But she brought home a trophy almost as tall as herself.

Competing with 13 and 15-year-olds in the senior class car division, Jayne came in second. A California car was first. Michigan maintained its reputation as a leader in automotive design by having five of the eight top cars. There were 100 entries from throughout the United States.

Jack Barr built his daughter's racer from scratch. The senior division cars are never made from kits. Jayne's sleek, bullet-shaped vehicle has a fiber glass body on a wood slat frame. It was sanded and painted candy apple red with a white stripe on the sides. Her name was lettered in gold. The Budweiser stickers were her own addition.

Thursday, August 17, 1978

Weight of the car and rider was limited to 255 pounds for the championships. The weight varies for different competitions so movable lead blocks are placed in the car to bring the total up to par. Jayne weighs 54 pounds so she carries more lead than most of her competitors. She also had 25 good luck pennies taped here and there in the interior.

Canton Observer Suburban Life

JACK BARR has been involved in derby racing for 25 years. He started driving when he was 11. Although he and his cousins tried many times, none came home a winner.

Daughter Jayne's record has fulfilled an old ambition. She qualified several times for the championship runs—a first in Detroit, fourth in Flint, and third in Dayton. She has to wait until she is 11 to race in the nationals in Akron, Ohio.

By then, she will be a veteran driver. Lying flat on her back, there is a 1/4-inch slit which gives her a complete view of the track. Drivers have to stay within the lines of their own lane or they are disqualified. Wearing a helmet and completely encased in her racer, Jayne is protected during the race as she handles the steering mechanism.

Barr, a supervisor at the Fisher Body plant in Livonia, had a hand in designing two other racers that qualified for the championships.

"THE MAJORITY of the good cars are coming out of Michigan," said Joyce Barr, Jayne's mother. She bemoaned the fact that there are no good tracks in this area.

"There's a beautiful track in Flint. The Detroit track on Mound Road is in terrible shape. The last time we were there, someone had pushed an old car down the ramp and set fire to it at the bottom. The asphalt was bubbled from the heat and it was unsafe."

Mrs. Barr said she believes the Detroit Parks and Recreation Department is responsible for track upkeep. Since General Motors withdrew sponsorship of Soap Box Derby racing, no other group has come up with funding. The National Derby Rally was formed by a group of interested families to keep the sport alive.

"It's a sport that involves the whole family," added Mrs. Barr. "And once they're in, they stay in until the kids are too old."

They would like to have a track on the west side of Wayne County. "We don't know who to contact to stimulate interest and gain support."

Racing has taken the Barrs to Augusta, Ga. and Chattanooga, Tenn., as well as Ohio tracks. The tracks have return routes to haul the cars back to the starting line and some have garages to house the cars. It is a source of embarrassment to racing families from the greater Detroit area—the automotive center of the nation—that there is no decent track.

The Barrs' interest in derby racing will continue for quite some time. They have a 19-month-old son who hasn't even been fitted for a helmet—yet.

Local woman wins national title

By SHERRY KAHAN

"Winning the pageant was hard work," stated Margaret Chmielewski of Canton Township, who is the newly crowned Ms. Wheelchair America. "But I felt good about it, really good."

This was no beauty contest. The 28 women from 28 states were judged on the basis of poise, personality and what they have achieved despite their handicap.

And because the winner of the contest becomes the spokesperson for the handicapped of the nation, she must also know a thing or two about such topics as legislation and transportation involving the handicapped.

"I was one of 10 finalists," said the Canton housewife and mother of two. "They asked us questions. They were looking for spontaneity, and for someone who would represent well the handicapped movement. They pushed us to take a stand so they could see how well we would handle ourselves under fire."

"We have to be knowledgeable about areas of legislation and know the means by which we can solve our problems. We have to know what is going on."

Evidently Mrs. Chmielewski knew enough about federal laws 504 and 506 which outlaw discrimination against the handicapped in employment, housing and education, and mandate special services and ramps for them at educational facilities.

The crown was placed on her head Saturday night in Columbus, Ohio where the pageant is held each year. She also received for her use for the coming year a Braun Co. van equipped with a lift and hand controls.

Margaret Chmielewski wore a winner's smile when she was named Ms. Wheelchair Michigan.

Already she intends to attend the Wheelchair Games in Champaigne, Ill., and meetings of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped in Washington. She also has tentative plans to speak to groups in Iowa and California.

Even before she left Columbus, she had several opportunities to put to the test the poise, personality and knowledge which won her the title. She appeared on three TV talk shows in Columbus before her return to Canton on Tuesday. She also spoke briefly on news segments.

The lighter side of the trip was the teasing she received because of her residence in a state that also happens to be the home of the University of Michigan. The band in Columbus played the U-M fight song for her despite the local bias toward Ohio State University.

She joked with them about the red dress she wore when she was crowned.

MRS. CHMIELEWSKI who had to take up a life on wheels after an automobile accident 15 years ago, feels the fact she has not been in a wheelchair all her life will be of help to her in her new role as spokesperson for the handicapped.

"I can remember back when I was very unaware about the handicapped," she pointed out. "So I know how people think about the problem and how unaware many of them are."

"They should understand that anyone is a potential member of our group. An accident can make anyone handicapped tomorrow."

"People tend to think it is something that is contagious. I work a job, have kids and a normal household, but some thought my kids would be born handicapped."

"I feel I can do a job changing some of these myths."

The highly motivated Ms. Wheelchair America plans to work for a unification of groups with special interests such as hers.

"To get political clout you need a special group to clarify basic needs and then come up with basic legislation," she explained. "We must band together to protect the civil rights of the handicapped."

Possessor of two degrees from Wayne State University, Mrs. Chmielewski is an instructor in psychology and a counselor in the career resource center at Madonna College. She will soon head a new office there offering special services to the handicapped.

A MEMBER OF THE MADONNA

task force for the handicapped, she believes every large institution should have such a committee.

"I think it should include the president of the institution and several staff people," she said. "It should also include some handicapped persons who can describe barriers to the handicapped, and maintenance people who are so important to the handicapped in matters such as snow removal."

She also would add an architect to the committee so that consideration is given on questions such as bathroom fixtures and showers.

Ms. Wheelchair America of 1978 was

Ms. Wheelchair Michigan in 1976, but was not the national winner that year. This year there was no contest in Michigan, and on her own initiative and with the encouragement of others, Mrs. Chmielewski entered the pageant to represent Michigan on an at-large basis.

"I had a lot of support from my husband, Jim," she said, adding that her youngsters, Mark, 4, and Elizabeth Ann, 16 months, are too young to understand much about the pageant.

"All the girls who enter these pageants have to have very supportive families behind them," she said.

'We must band together to protect the civil rights of the handicapped.'

—Margaret Chmielewski

Willow Tree is family business

With the opening of The Willow Tree, there is once more a family business on the corner of Main Street and Penniman Avenue.

David Shugal and his mother, Hermina, have had clothing stores in the downtown community of Wyandotte for more than 30 years. They now have several Willow Trees and the Plymouth shop is number seven. The Shugals say they love the main street community and its small-town flavor. "It seems like home," said Mrs. Shugal, who does much of the buying for the shops.

They have three stores in Wyandotte—a men's wear, women's wear and a Levi's store. Willow Tree shops are in Birmingham, the village in Grosse Pointe, and in Lincoln Park. The Branch stores, which handle only Levi's, are in East Lansing and other communities.

THEY DO have a wide stock of jeans in their sports department in the Plymouth Store.

"We have a full line of women's clothes, everything but shoes, makeup and hosiery," said Mrs. Shugal. They have jewelry, coats and lingerie and cater to all ages. Their free alterations policy has been popular in all their stores.

They are in one of the older business blocks in town. The corner store was the home of Connor Hardware for many years. It was Cassidy's dress shop for many more years until Norma Cassidy retired and Harvi's, another women's shop, rented the space. When Harvi's departed, owner Jim Houk said he was waiting for a tenant whose business would complement the downtown area. He turned down several offers, including a pin-ball arcade.

The Willow Tree, with its attractively dressed windows, seems to be the answer. Jim Jabara is presently owner of the building.

Fashions freaky; program solid

"That was a pretty good show for 50 cents," was the comment from one of the laughing viewers as a most unusual display of fashions ended.

The fashions were frankly described as "freaky." The models were members of the staff at the senior center operated by the Wayne County Office on Aging in J Building at the Wayne County General Hospital complex.

And the viewers were some senior citizens at the center for a variety of reasons on a Wednesday afternoon—a bit of bingo, a meeting, a hot lunch, or participation in the center's day care program.

And, of course, for the fashion show, an added attraction that day to the happenings in the center.

Noreen Meckler, nutrition program manager, had suggested the show as a means of persuading those who came for lunch to stay for some sociability and perhaps learn of the other services to be found at the center.

THE STYLES lived up to their billing, and the elderly people who were gathered there enjoyed every minute of the fun.

Mrs. Meckler donned an "Apple Annie" outfit and passed out apples after going through her selling act.

Marie Latuvnik, nurse coordinator for the senior center, was a hit with a "spring outfit." Metal and plastic springs were pinned all over her dress and hat and bounced as she cavorted on the improvised runway.

Other "models" had equally outlandish outfits. There was Laura Turner, an occupational therapist, who sported a "pin stripe" suit (the stripes were pinned on) and a T-shirt and bell bottoms outfit (tea bags on the shirt and small bells pinned in the appropriate spot).

Martha Smith, who lives in Canton and is a day care supervisor at the center, wore a judicial outfit. When she turned around, the audience was delighted to read the words "Here come da judge."

Linda Blohm, social worker from Westland, displayed some strange "evening wear" that included a boot and a dress shoe and a fancy hat. Another Westland resident, Penny Willenberg, was decked out as a scrub lady and cut wide swathes with her mop as she pranced the runway. Ms. Willenberg is an aide in the day care center.

Shirley Harris was in a baby doll outfit, with bibs and pacifiers pinned onto her shirt and pants, and Annette Heensley wore a "sun dress" with pictures of Old Sol pinned all over it. Both work as aides in the center and both are from Inkster.

WHEN THE SHOW was over and the senior citizens were enjoying music and dancing with an improvised band, director Latuvnik changed out of her springy outfit and talked about the activities of the center.

"Our aim," she said, "is to help people stay mentally and physically active and to work with them in whatever condition we find them."

There are tremendous differences among the people who come to the center on a regular basis, she pointed out.

Some are regulars in the nutrition program. A federally-financed program administered through Wayne County, it involves a hot meal served daily to groups of varying size and averaging 45 per day.

J Building serves a "scratch" lunch, Ms. Latuvnik said, which means it's cooked at the senior citizen kitchens in Inkster Towers and brought to this center and four others for serving.

"It's good food and people here seem to enjoy it," she said. On the day of the freaky fashions, the menu was a beef and macaroni main dish, pineapple and cottage cheese salad and an apple turnover. The people who come to lunch are asked to pay a 50-cent donation, but, said Ms. Latuvnik, "no one is turned away."

BESIDES THE hot lunch program customers, there are oldsters at the center whose families bring them for the day care.

"More and more families are finding this free service valuable for their elderly relatives who need to get out," the director said.

Participants get services of the social workers on the staff, or occupational therapy or some are worked into a program known as reality orientation. "That's just what the name implies," said Ms. Latuvnik. "It's a matter of helping them realize they are here today, the sun is shining, there's something to do besides sit and stare."

Families are noticing changes, she went on. They report with amazement that Mother got up that morning and mentioned that it was a lovely day.

Other services centered in the J Building include information and referral, free prescription drugs for those who qualify, minor home repairs, legal aid, telephone re-assurance, health screening, a medical equipment loan closet, a garden program and arts and arts and entertainment.

ONE MORE INDUCEMENT for seniors to visit J Building is the program known as Jolly J's activities. These include bowling, bingo, social dancing, crafts, sewing, movies, a library and transportation for groups.

The crafts are offered through the Wayne-Westland school district adult education, and during the fashion show program Barbara Blanton was given a minute to put in a plug for her program and give people a chance to sign up for classes.

These include arts, music and coping skills, said Ms. Latuvnik, and arrangements are being made to offer a lapidary class.

"Seniors in all states of health can find something here at J Building," said the director.

The models in the fashion show were just about back to their normal appearance.

"They got their outfits from our clothing bank," explained nutrition director Meckler, "and they will have them washed or cleaned before returning them there. We're having a rummage sale next month."

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

The Canton Senior Kitchen Band has been having a busy summer. The group recently performed at the Elder Fest in Flint.

The festival was a week-long celebration put on by the Flint Parks and Recreation Dept. Only five bands from other communities were asked to join the fun. Our Canton group felt very honored to be selected to play.

The 34-member band enjoyed hearing the other kitchen bands give their half-hour entertainment. The seniors enjoyed the day in Flint, which was like a small bandarama.

Other performances for the Canton seniors this summer included the Jaycees Fair and the Canton Chamber of Commerce barbecue. They entertained in Plymouth when the Chessie steam train arrived. The band also plays at area nursing and convalescent homes. This is a very busy group.

In June, the Canton seniors group put on a show at Plymouth Salem High School. Canton Capers was a play about Las Vegas. They had such a good time acting out the fun of Vegas they decided one of their upcoming trips should be to that city.

The play sparked off the idea and so the trip has been planned for November. Sounds like a fun vacation.

SEEMS LIKE a lot of families from Canterbury Woods II subdivision spent last weekend at King's Island, Ohio. One group from the neighborhood planned the weekend together. Everyone brought their children, ranging from ages 7 months to 6 years.

The babies went right along on a lot of the rides with their parents. They also took their naps in their buggies as the group made their way through the large amusement park.

Families on the trip were Linda and Mike Becker with 7-month-old Kevin, Mike and Ginny Koon with 10-month-old Jeff, Bill and Diane Soules and daughter, Leah, and Kathy and Bob Spencer with daughters Heather, 6, and Amber, 1. Meeting the group in Ohio were Dean and Melanie Bell with Stacy and Dana. The Bells are old neighbors who now live in Dearborn.

The friends began the day at 10 a.m. and closed the park at 10 p.m. They stayed for the air show and the spectacular fireworks display. The lines were too long at the 'Scream'n' Demon, but that seems to be the only ride or attraction they missed. It was a fun weekend for one and all.

Other neighbors from Canterbury Woods at King's Island were Leo and Mary Knasiak, who spent their weekend with friends from Dearborn.

Louie and Angie Mofers and their five sons also enjoyed the weekend at the amusement park. It was really a neighborhood holiday. Canton was certainly well represented in Ohio.

CONGRATULATIONS to Cantonites Debbie Chan, Ann Canada and Sue MacGlaclin upon graduation from Eastern Michigan last Saturday.

The women earned their BS degrees in nursing science.

GREG AND MARY Ann Allen recently returned from a week's vacation in Florida. The couple went with Greg's parents, Phil and Ann Allen of Westland, and friends from England.

Some of the highlights of the trip included Ft. Lauderdale, Treasure Island and of course Disney World in Orlando.

She finds satisfying career as deaconess

On any Sunday when communion is served in Christ the King Lutheran Church of Livonia, you may see a young woman assisting with the sacrament.

Or you might notice her with a group of young people at the church located at 9000 Farmington Road. Often she plays the guitar for singing, and she teaches third to sixth graders during Thursday evening Sunday school this summer.

Denise Hegemann is the young woman, and she's now a full-fledged deaconess for the Livonia church. She was installed in that position last month, following a consecration ceremony during June in her home church, Grace Lutheran of Havertown, Pa.

Christ the King has had student interns before this, but Denise is the first to be hired in that position on a full time basis. She started as an intern deaconess, serving the congregation in that capacity last year.

Members were so pleased with the addition she made to church life there that they asked her to stay on.

A DEACONESS, this one said, is a servant of Christianity. In past years, the Lutheran church has placed nearly all deaconesses in hospitals. Today, many function within a church, a church-related agency or a social agency. Their duties are varied.

Denise was encouraged to go into deaconess work by her pastor in Havertown.

"Church has always been important to me and I enjoy working with people," she said. "By becoming a deaconess, I realized I would have the opportunity to be of service to others and to God.

"I believe in the potential for change, and being a deaconess gives me the chance to bring about change."

She prepared for her career at Valparaiso University in Indiana, studying theology and psychology.

Following her four years there, she took advantage of the internship program of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod, heading for the Livonia church for a year of internship.

Consecration, the ceremony of ordination for a pastor, was held June 11 in Grace Church, and then Denise returned to Christ the King to be installed as its first regular deaconess.

WHILE AN INTERN at the Livonia church, she took part in a number of activities. Sponsor of the junior and senior Luther leagues, groups for young people, she also started an organization for young adults and a Lutheran Church Women circle for young women in the congregation.

Also involved in education, she taught Sunday School, catechism and adult Bible study classes as well as serving as a member of the educational ministry resource team for District 10, Lutheran Church of America.

When she was not busy teaching and organizing clubs, Denise visited shut-ins, prospective members and inactive members.

Her aim now that she is a full member of the Christ the King staff is coordination of a complete education program for the congregation.

This summer, she is taking charge of worship services and will do the training of acolytes.

"Christ the King is a friendly church which is opening up to change," the deaconess said. "Their educational program needs work, and that's where I intend to focus my energies."

CHURCH BULLETIN

ST. MATTHEW LUTHERAN CHURCH, 5885 Venoy, Westland, will install John Theodore Hinck as second-grade teacher on the staff of its day school with a special service at 11 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 20.

The Rev. Ralph Fischer, pastor, and the Rev. Charles Buckhahn, assistant pastor, will conduct the installation service, and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Alan Braun, pastor of St. Michael Lutheran Church of Westland and brother-in-law of the new school staff member.

Hinck, a graduate of Concordia Teachers' College at Seward, Neb., has served for the last four years as teacher and assistant organist at Pilgrim Lutheran Church in Baltimore. In his new position, which also includes teaching a weekday religion class for students who attend public school, he replaces Karen Nemmetz. Miss Nemmetz is leaving the school staff this fall to marry Tim Fischer, son of the senior pastor.

GRACE MORAVIAN CHURCH, 31133 Hivley, Westland, will host its annual vacation Bible school Monday through Friday, Aug. 21-25, using the theme, "Hosanna—God's People Praise Him."

Classes 9 a.m. to noon each day will offer Bible stories, crafts, singing and recreation for children from kindergarten age through seventh grade.

A closing program at 7:30 p.m. Friday will include a children's love-feast featuring special music. Joyce Potvin is VBS director this year and her assistant is Marlene Beasley.

JOHN T. HINCK
St. Matthew teacher

The Bible school program is open to all in the area, and parents of children needing transportation may call the church, 421-9097.

CHRIST THE KING LUTHERAN CHURCH, 9300 Farmington Road, Livonia, will hold vacation Bible school for two weeks, 9:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday, Aug. 21-25, and Monday through Thursday, Aug. 28-31.

The theme is "Hosanna, Praise the Lord," and registration information is available by calling the church, 421-0749, or Nancy Walsh, 472-5298.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Six Mile and Farmington roads, Livonia, will present the film "Pilgrim's Progress," based on the John Bunyan classic, at 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20.

The 72-minute color film narrated by George Beverly Shea follows the pilgrim through a series of adventures described in the book.

WESTLAND ASSEMBLY OF GOD, 1075 Venoy, is seeking the retrievers of 150 helium-filled balloons released on its grounds last Sunday. Finders should return the attached cards, and the one with the address farthest from the church will receive a gift.

Ascension marks 15 years

Ascension Lutheran Church, 35301 Five Mile, Livonia, will mark the anniversary of its first worship service at 10 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 20.

Following worship, there will be a congregational picnic on the church grounds.

Leading the anniversary worship will be the Rev. Arnold H. Jahr, who came to this area to organize Ascension Church in 1963. He has led it to its present position as one of the 20 largest American Lutheran Church congregations in this area.

Under his leadership, the Ascension congregation has compiled the enviable record of having all bills paid every month for 15 years and handling its budget on voluntary contributions, without pledges or membership canvas campaigns.

The anniversary service also will be an occasion for the congregation to honor Pastor Jahr, who has announced he will retire Nov. 1 after nearly 40 years in the ministry.

He came to Livonia from Iowa, where he was a parish minister for 24 years.

During that time, he also held other responsibilities, including the presidency of Wartburg Film Service, Inc., located on the Wartburg College campus, and the position of secretary treasurer of the intersynodal committee on visualizing Luther's catechism.

He also has been consultant to Church-Craft Pictures, Inc., of St. Louis, audio-visual aids advisor to the American Lutheran Church director of parish education, and instructor in the use of audio-visual equipment at Wartburg Theological Seminary in Iowa.

He is author of three study guides, "Christian Faith and Life," "What the Bible Says," and "The Visualized Catechism," as well as "Adjacent Wilderness," an early history of the Dubuque-Belleveue area in Iowa.

When Pastor and Mrs. Jahr return to Iowa following his retirement, he plans to serve part-time as visitation pastor on the staff of Trinity Lutheran Church of Waterloo.

Conductor Marriner in wings for Meadow Brook's expansion

By DONNA OLENDORF

Although Neville Marriner's job as artistic director of the Meadow Brook Music Festival doesn't officially begin until next summer, the British conductor is already contemplating changes.

For one thing, he wants to get away from the term "music festival." "This is not just a festival of classical music," he asserted in his clipped British accent. "It's intended to be a more liberal festival of the arts."

"For another, he wants to expand the program to include more kinds of music, more ballet, drama—perhaps even films.

"What we don't want," he said, "is a rerun of the subscription concerts in Detroit. We'll come up with a program of our own, using the particular works and artists we want to enjoy."

"We might have chamber music in smaller groups with players from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in individual roles. I have a sneaking suspicion we might include drama. I'd also like to have cinema. There are many films, for instance, about music or theatre or ballet that would never make Detroit on a general release. They are for a very limited audience. Many of them are tucked away in archives and would never be shown on television. I would like to have access to some of these."

In addition to these offerings, which have limited appeal, Marriner would like to include "a modest film festival"—which would have a broader appeal.

"THE FESTIVAL SHOULD OFFER something to everybody—I think that's the beauty of it. The marvelous thing about going to a city like Salzburg that has a festival going for it is to see how the whole town gets involved," said Marriner, who hopes to kindle a similar enthusiasm here.

One of the ways he will encourage community involvement is by the example he sets.

"I think the artistic director's job is to identify himself with his own festival," said Marriner, who will conduct several of the concerts next year.

"I will certainly do the opening concerts with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and perhaps there will be another orchestra at the end of the festival which I will also conduct."

On the other hand, Marriner said, "It is also important that people have as much variety as possible."

He hopes to feature a variety of top-notch artists, including the New York Philharmonic if luck holds.

"It's a matter of economics with a festival like this," he maintained. "You have to ask yourself, 'Who can we afford?'"

The fact is, that in spite of the festival's burgeoning popularity (subscription sales have increased fourfold since 1974), Meadow Brook isn't making a profit.

"THE ECONOMICS OF MUSIC these days are incredibly precarious. Meadow Brook might show a profit sometime if we lowered our standards, but not if we maintain the quality of the programs we have now."

"If you want to have a break even point economically, then you put on popular things which are cheap, like a solo pop artist."

He compared the cost of one such artist to the cost of a symphony plus a soloist and conductor, adding, "You see why art festivals operate in the red."

Neville Marriner gained conducting experience when he and 15 fellow musicians formed an ensemble, "The Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields." It later became highly acclaimed and he conducted from his first chair violin position.

Does this ruffle the new artistic director? Not at all.

"A successful festival is considered to be one that continues," he said, pointing out that Meadow Brook is the third oldest in the country.

"It's been going on for 16 years now." Although Meadow Brook is Marri-

In addition he works with the Stuttgart Radio orchestra in Germany, holds an appointment in Paris, and guest conducts for two-and-a-half months to boot.

"Generally speaking, I expect to work about 54 weeks a year," said the energetic Englishman who admits that he loves his job.

"Let's face it—the whole business of being a musician is very pleasant. It's a very fulfilling occupation, I think."

Marriner, now considered the most recorded conductor in history, came to his profession almost by accident. He started out as a violin player on the symphony orchestra circuit. When he organized his own chamber group in London, he would direct from the concertmaster's chair.

"After a while we started recording rather more complicated repertoires which I couldn't direct sitting down. So I began to stand up," he recalled.

One day he was spotted by Pierre Monteux, principal conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, who admonished him to "stand up and conduct properly."

Under this maestro's tutelage, he learned to do just that, and, once he started conducting in earnest, he was hooked.

"It's what every musician wants," he said, "as a conductor you have the ultimate responsibility for the total performance."

Carilloneurs continue

Internationally known organist and carillonneur Robert Lodine will ring out the 4 p.m. carillon program at Christ Church Cranbrook Sunday, Aug. 20.

At 5 p.m. Elaine Shimel, organist at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Rochester, New York, will play an organ recital inside the church.

Both programs are free. Dr. Lodine is professor of organ at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, carillonneur of St. Chrysostom's Church, Chicago, and the University of Chicago. He has been a board member, vice president and president of the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America and earned a doctor of music from the Northwestern School of Music.

A study in contrasts

Palladio's influence on Detroit architecture is reflected in the contrast of the Old County Building juxtaposed with Renaissance Center. Andrea Palladio, Italian Renaissance era architect was considered the most influential in history because of his elegant, classic designs. An exhibition of his work is currently on display at Renaissance Center.

Help wanted: chorus seeks new conductor. Please call

The Plymouth Community Chorus is searching for a conductor for the upcoming season. Prospective conductors will be auditioned by the whole chorus.

The chorus rehearses Tuesday evenings in the West Middle School music room in Plymouth. Members of the chorus are from the Plymouth and Canton area, Detroit, and as far away as Brighton. They do have an accompanist.

There are two formal concerts each year as well as performances at nursing homes, for senior citizen groups, the Plymouth Fall Festival, Michigan State Fair, and Our Lady of Providence School. Benefit performances usually are scheduled for the regular rehearsal times.

The chorus was founded five years ago by William Grimmer. He was conductor for the first four years. The chorus is sponsored by City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department.

Persons interested in auditioning can call Kathy Conroy, 459-4019, for an appointment.

Barney's birthday

Jeff Boettcher gave a birthday pat to Barney who celebrated his first birthday Aug. 8. Four of his dog friends attended the party. Decked out in birthday hats and balloons, they ate birthday cake and ice cream. Daisy, a cockapoo, ate too much ice cream too fast and suffered an upset stomach. Each received a little party basket favor to take home. Barney's owners are Ann and Ron Boettcher of Tavistock in Plymouth Township. Ron disclaims all responsibility for the party. (Staff photo by Elinor Graham)

Vial of Life in every refrigerator

Vial of Life will become a household term throughout Wayne County on Oct. 7, according to an ambitious plan mapped by the county's Vial of Life task force.

The task force, consisting of citizens and representatives of municipalities and county government, has set that date for door-to-door distribution of Vial of Life kits to some 800,000 households.

The Vial of Life program involves keeping medical information forms for each family member in a marked vial (small plastic pill bottle) in the refrigerator. Vial of Life stickers are placed on the refrigerator door and the household's front door to alert personnel responding to a medical emergency.

The Wayne County Vial of Life task force was established by the county board of commissioners recently after county Health Director Perry Stearns, and the Detroit-Wayne County Emergency Medical Services Council strongly endorsed the program and urged participation by every household.

Cost of the county-wide program, based on a total of one million vials and related printed materials, was estimated at $90,000 by county Purchasing Director Patrick J. Gibbons, with each "kit" costing about nine cents.

The task force is aiming the program at concentrations of senior citizens, such as apartment buildings, and persons with breathing problems, as recommended by the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan, plus persons prone to unconsciousness.

Onas Rowe, Garden City fire chief, and Kenneth Warfield, City of Wayne fire chief, were appointed to prepare materials regarding other "personal safety" programs which can be distributed with the Vial of Life materials.

Meijer women prevail

Huffman's wins Canton event

Underdog Huffman's Roofing surged past Rusty Nail, 12-5, to win the Canton Township post-season men's slow-pitch softball tournament last week. In women's action, league runners-up Meijer Thrifty Acres upset regular-season champion Little Caesar, 16-8, to win the single-elimination playoff.

The post-season event, co-sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department and the Canton Chamber of Commerce, began with first-round action on Sunday, April 6. Action continued throughout the week leading to the surprising finish.

Men's Division 'A' champions from McMurray Insurance, six-time league victors in Canton, won its opening round tournament game over Division 'C' squad Rustic Cleaners, 8-4. McMurray lost in the second round, however, falling to Division 'B' regular-season champion Rusty Nail, 24-18, in a wild contest.

Rusty Nail continued to breeze through the competition until it fell to Huffman's in the championship game. Huffman's finished the regular season with a mediocre 4-5 record and a fifth place spot in the second-half standings.

Huffman's peaked at the right time, however, winning four games before the championship contest. Huffman's defeated Don Massey, 8-2, Ovidon, 22-19, Chapman, 15-14, and Jack Demmer Ford, 9-1, enroute to the finale.

Meijer finished in a tie for second place in the women's league with a 4-2 record. Caesar topped the seven-team league with a perfect 6-0 second-half mark.

It was all Meijer in the playoffs, however, as the upstart squad trounced Maria's Bakery, 28-4, and Rusty Nail, 10-3, before defeating Caesar.

Here are the results of all the playoff games:

Indians top Astros

All-star teams from the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League's 'A' competition (11-12-year old boys) performed admirably in an eight-team single-elimination tournament in Southgate last weekend.

Four Plymouth-Canton squads battled four Southgate teams in the event, and Plymouth-Canton finished as the dominant squad, winning both the championship and runners-up positions.

The Plymouth-Canton Indians, behind the six-hit pitching of Jim Apel, downed its fellow team, the Plymouth-Canton Astros, 10-3, to win the championship game.

The four Plymouth-Canton squads included all-stars from each of the four divisions, under the name of the respective division champions.

In first-round action on Friday night, the Astros and the Indians advanced to Saturday's semifinal round, while the Plymouth-Canton Yankees and the Plymouth-Canton Red Legs lost to Southgate foes.

The Astros pounded six home runs in their opening victory over Southgate, 18-13, in a wild offensive battle. The Indians defeated Southgate, 16-11, thanks to the pitching of Todd Riedel and two home runs by Mark Landini. The Indians stopped a late Southgate rally in the sixth and final inning, ending the game with a triple play.

The Yankees lost their opening-round game to Southgate, 7-5, despite the pitching of Jim Roberts, who registered 11 strikeouts. Mike Cindrich smacked a grand slam home run as well, but to no avail. The Red Legs also lost a heartbreaker, 4-3, in a defensive battle. Joe Kowalski hit a home run for the losers.

In the semifinals, the Indians used three different pitchers to squeak out a 7-6 decision. The Astros continued to show their power, blasting five more home runs in an easy 11-1 victory, setting up the championship game.

All four Plymouth-Canton A League teams will travel to Novi this weekend for an eight-team double-elimination tournament.

Baseball is biggest PCJAA sport

(This is the first of a four-part informational series discussing the Plymouth-Canton Junior Athletic Association (PCJAA). This first article focuses on the structure of the organization. Other articles will include information on the group's history and philosophies, its finances, and, finally, a look at the future of the PCJAA.)

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Athletic Association (PCJAA) is a non-profit organization whose main objective is to solicit funds and help from civic-minded groups in order to financially assist and promote junior athletics in the community. All members are volunteers.

One way of looking at the PCJAA is to think of it as the financial "hub" of the four junior athletic groups it helps support—the baseball, basketball, hockey and football organizations.

Although these four groups raise money through separate activities and registration fees, the PCJAA is still the biggest source of income for all four sports.

"We are trying to become the sole fundraiser for all four sports," said two-year PCJAA president Jim Sinclair.

"We want to eliminate four different groups from soliciting and we've stopped that to some extent. We want to minimize the hassle on people."

Sinclair, who does most of the fundraising himself, feels if only one organization comes to the civic groups and merchants, rather than all four, it will be easier to obtain money and thus for the four sports to receive money.

The PCJAA acts as the money distributor to the four sports, allocating funds where the "need" is considered the greatest.

THE DECISION-MAKING body is the PCJAA nine-member executive board. This board includes president Sinclair and two representatives from each of the four sports.

The two members from each sport are assigned representatives who are also members of their respective board of directors. The individual sports have a board which include as many as 18 to 20 people, while other boards have as few as five members, usually because of disinterested parents.

The PCJAA also has a four-member "advisory board" consisting of volunteer professional businessmen and workers in the community. Since the PCJAA consists of volunteer parent workers, this "advisory board" assist the organization with legal counsel and other business-oriented matters.

The executive board meets once a month at the Colony Office Plaza in Plymouth and the meetings are open to the public. The individual junior sports board also meet once a month with an open-public format.

THE PCJAA involves more than 3,100 young athletes in the Plymouth-Canton community. There are also over 250 more basketball referees and baseball umpires from the two high schools who are paid to help these two programs run smoothly.

According to the 1976-1977 figures, the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League is the biggest of the four groups supported by the PCJAA. Under baseball president Jerry Stevens, there are more than 2,000 people actively involved in the baseball program. This includes 102 teams, 1,449 boys, 338 girls, 288 coaches and 198 umpires.

Plymouth Township and Canton Township each have approximately 750 youngsters in the baseball program, while the City of Plymouth has 273 children involved.

The Plymouth-Canton Basketball Association, one of the longest and most stable of the organizations, involved over 1,000 people in its program last year. This year's president, Cindy Merrifield, the first-ever junior sports woman president.

In 1976-77, the basketball program included 74 teams, 550 boys, 232 girls, 181 coaches, and 54 referees. Most of the basketball players come from Plymouth Township (344), while Canton Township offers 258 and the City of Plymouth 180.

Leon Graham is this year's junior football president. With the elimination of seventh grade athletics at the middle school level, the junior football program will more than likely expand from last year's figure of approximately 150 boys and 30 girl cheerleaders. Most of the football players in this area come from Canton Township.

One of the smallest, but indeed most expensive groups is the Plymouth-Canton Junior Hockey Association, which involved 308 boys, 14 girls and 40 coaches two years ago. The 20-team organization drew 117 players from Plymouth Township, 109 from Canton Township and 96 from the City of Plymouth last year. This year's president is Al Campbell.

Over 80 tennis enthusiasts turned out for the Garden City Tennis Tournament last weekend and by the end of the competition 11 winners had been named in various categories.

Pat Lindsay, of Westland, won the boys' 14-and-under singles by defeating Jeff Mueller, Garden City, in the finals 6-0 and 6-0.

Chris Gilles, of Plymouth, defeated her sister Wendy in the finals of the girls' 14-and-under singles. The score was 6-0 and 6-1.

In the boys' 16-and-under singles round, Scott Crespo, of Plymouth, defeated Bob Boish, of Westland, 6-2 and 7-5.

Renee Braun was the girls' 16-and-under singles winner. Braun, of Plymouth, knocked off Sandy Henckley, Garden City, 6-0 and 7-5.

Greg Rojowski, Detroit, captured the boys' 18-and-under singles division by defeating Bob Braun, of Plymouth, 6-4 and 7-5.

Becky Crespo won the girls' 18-and-under singles class when Diana Gilroy, of Westland, defaulted. Crespo is from Plymouth.

The twosome of Scott Crespo and Larry Kummer, Plymouth, knocked off Bob Wynn and Scott Taylor, Garden City, to win the boys' 18-and-under doubles round.

Jill Barrick, of Westland, edged Joanne Colovas, Dearborn, in the finals of the women's singles competition. The final score was 0-6, 6-2 and 6-4.

Dave Farmer was the men's singles champion as he defeated Scott Worthy 6-4 and 7-5. Farmer is from Garden City, while Worthy is from Dearborn.

Two Garden City residents fought it out for the over-40 men's singles title. In the end, John Chapman defeated Ron Huddleston 3-6, 6-3 and 7-5.

Farmer paired up with Carlo DeCubas in the men's doubles category and defeated Jerry Abott and Don Viefinski, Dearborn Heights, 6-1 and 6-1.

Crippled Oasis gets 3d at Vassar

Despite missing players because of vacations and untimely injuries, Oasis Golf Center managed a third-place finish in the six-team Vasser Women's Fast-pitch Softball Tournament last weekend.

Oasis, runners-up in the Livonia Fast-pitch League, competed with only seven of its regular players plus two pick-up players to barely reach the nine-player minimum. Oasis finished the tournament with a 3-2 round-robin record, losing to the top two teams in the tourney.

Plymouth's Sue McDowell was the leading hitter for Oasis, finishing with 10 hits in 20 at-bats for an impressive .500 batting average for the five games. She also knocked in six runs.

Lynette DiMarco added nine runs batted in, while Tina Lilla registered six RBIs for the tourney.

JoAnn Pachiva, a 1978 graduate of Westland, proved to be a valuable pick-up player for Oasis, both offensively and defensively. Pachiva played solid defense at three different positions, and came through with timely base hits to aid all three Oasis victories.

"I was really happy with our finish," Oasis coach Lina DeWitt said, in reference to the Class C and Class D event. "I had some players out of position because of the shortage of people."

Plymouth's Jan Boyd hurled all five games for Oasis, working almost every inning during the weekend event.

Boyd pitched Oasis to a 13-3 mercy rule decision over Midland Jet Set in the opening game. She registered a three-hitter. DeWitt paced the offensive attack with three hits and two RBIs. DiMarco added three hits and three RBIs.

Oasis lost its second game to the eventual runners-up Bay City Post 18, 5-4. McDowell and Boyd each smacked two hits, but Oasis lost the game in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Oasis fell to the eventual winners in its third game, losing to the host team from Vasser, Hilltop Lounge, 8-6. Vasser, located 20 miles east of Saginaw, saw Oasis give them a tough battle, but to no avail. McDowell, Pachiva and DeWitt each had two hits, as Oasis out hit the opponents.

The Plymouth-Livonia squad bounced back with two victories over Saginaw All-Sport Bar, 11-1 (mercy rule), and Cass City Deering Packing, 17-10.

Boyd hurled a two-hitter in the mercy rule against Saginaw, as Vickie Cavallaro paced the offense with three hits. Pam Schipani, McDowell, Pachiva and Julie Stafford all had two hits each. Against Cass City, Oasis rebounded from an early four-run first inning deficit to win. Lilla went three-for-three, while Boyd, McDowell and DiMarco all had two hits each. All nine players on the Oasis team registered at least one RBI.

Darling Nancy brightens golf tour

By DOUG FUNKE

Nancy Lopez, the 21-year-old darling of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour this season, seems like someone who would be just as comfortable playing with a group of duffers as she would be competing in a major tournament.

Lopez appeared at the Dearborn Country Club Monday to help promote the $150,000 Lady Stroh's Open. The tourney will be contested at the club, on Military between Cherry Hill and Ford roads, Aug. 17-20.

Lopez, still managing to be gracious after weeks of publicity surrounding her torrid winning streak this summer, knows all the right things to say.

During a time when it's popular to be cynical and always on the lookout for number one, Lopez appears to be a refreshing change.

There still seem to be places for family, fellow professionals and others in Lopez' life.

She appears to be sincere and in command of her situation, which is all the more striking for a rookie in such a highly competitive, individual sport as golf.

"I never really thought about turning pro until my first year in college. I wanted to go to college and have a good time," she said. "Dad had supported me a long time and I thought it was time to go out and earn my own money."

NANCY LOPEZ

"My father never forced me out there," Lopez continued. "Mentally and physically, I felt ready to go on the tour."

"I've enjoyed the travelling. I've been able to take my father with me. It's kind of nice to do something for dad I couldn't do before."

"My parents are really great about everything. They didn't force me to do anything and they really seem to understand," she said.

Lopez added that since her mother died, a sister has become almost like a mother to her.

LOPEZ SAID there doesn't seem to be too many jealousies on the tour with her winning so much. She said she recognizes and respects the abilities of her peers.

"I haven't felt any resentment at all from the girls," said Lopez. "I don't feel that I am golf. Everyone who has played golf has done a lot for the LPGA."

"You can see everyone wanting to win. When I played amateur golf, you didn't see it as much."

After naming many players who have done well recently on the tour, especially Jane Blalock, Jan Stephenson and Hollis Stacy, Lopez added with a laugh, "I hope I didn't miss anybody."

Lopez also acknowledged Rochester's Leader Dog School for the Blind, which stands to receive at least $10,000 from the proceeds of the tournament.

"I think it's very important what we're doing to help a charity like this," she said.

LOPEZ RECOGNIZES that she has experienced a super year to date by winning nearly $136,000—best on the women's tour. However, like a true champion, she also recognizes her limitations.

"I want to slow down because I don't want to wear myself out," she said. "I have to pace myself because I want to play well for a long time, not just this year. It's tough to psych up."

"I'm not getting tired," she said of the hectic schedule. "I wish I could stay in one place longer so I could get better organized."

A VARIETY of tournament ticket plans are available. Tickets are being sold at most public and private golf courses in the metro area.

More than 5,000 ducats reportedly have been sold for the week-long tourney.

Daily tickets are priced at $3 Aug. 15 for the professionals' practice round; $5 daily Aug. 16-18 for the pro-am and the first two rounds of the tournament; $8 for the third round and $9 for the final round.

Clubhouse privileges may be purchased at a cost of $2.50 per day and parking will be $3 per day.

Hilltop Roundup

By Betty DeLano

As any normal golfer, there have been many times when I have seen a brand new golf ball splash into a pond or lake.

Most vivid in my mind is the time father and I teed it up on the 14th hole at the Interlochen Golf Course between Traverse City and Interlochen. After watching the elderly couple in front of us place their balls neatly into the middle of the fairway, I thought I'd have no trouble at all getting over the pond in front of us. I was wrong as usual.

It only took dear ol' dad two balls to get over and he ended up taking both the hole and the match. You can imagine how I came out.

When I mention the fact that we "Sunday duffers" often find ourselves in less than pleasing situations, it is to remind us that even the pros get their share of the popular "water ball."

In the practice round Tuesday for the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) Stroh's Open at the Dearborn Country Club, Hollis Stacy (winner of the 1978 LPGA U.S. Open) sent her caddy into the drink to retrieve two new Titleists fresh out of the box. Good thing for Stacy it was only a practice round.

BACK ON the home course, Rita Heath shot a 48 last week for low scoring honors of the day in the A Flight of the Windsor Park League. Sue Moran followed at 51.

Pat Thibert led B Flight players with a 57 and Dyane VanHoose was next in line at 61. Mary Murray came in at 62 in the C Flight followed closely by Kit Scarbrough at 64. D Flight leaders were Crystal Boyd at 72 and Cheryl Wachlarz at 75.

Still holding first place in A Flight of the Plymouth Women's Golf League is Karen Tod with 67 points. Cheryl Yarevich holds the B Flight lead for the second week with 68 points and Marlene Tipi has 78 1/2 points to remain in first place in C Flight. Madonna Nadeau leads D Flight with 65 points.

There are still three days of the Lady's Stroh's Open left and tickets are available either at the gate or at the Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton.

Awards earned by cheerleaders

Plymouth Salem's varsity, junior varsity and freshmen cheerleaders cheerleaders recently returned from a successful showing at their respective summer camps.

The varsity girls attended a camp in Hartland during the last week in July. The competitive camp featured 16 squads, most consisting of 10 or 12 members.

Salem's eight-member squad won eight ribbons, and finished fifth overall on the final night of competition.

The Rocks' junior varsity attended the Conference Spirit Camp at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti during the week of July 23. The JV earned three first-place ribbons and finished second in the overall competition. They also received the 'spirit stick' three of the four days of competition.

The freshmen squad was in Hartland the first week in August, earning second and third-place ribbons during the week and first and third-place awards on the final night.

The varsity cheerleading squad includes seniors Karen Haut (captain), Shelley McKelvey (co-captain), Sue Parker and Mary Brown, and juniors Holly Davis, Kim Harms, April Lewis and Karen Rais.

The junior varsity girls include Darlyn Simms (captain), Renee Slavin (co-captain), Caryn Belobraidich, Chris Bono, Heidi Fritsch, Jackie Johnson, Laura Lundy and Lori Shannon.

The freshmen squad includes Diane Argonis (captain), Lisa Lynch (co-captain), Terri DeRaud, Dawn Drummond, Wendi Eggenberger, Marie Martinez, Lynn Staniforth and Tiffanie Trullard.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Even though we are in the midst of what people call dog days, the bowling lanes in the area were filled over the past weekend when the proprietors sponsored "Good Old Days" and charged the prices in vogue 25 years ago.

From east to west and north to south, especially the larger houses reported capacity crowds throughout Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday.

At Eastland Lanes, for example, the 60 lanes were occupied in mid-afternoon Sunday with a waiting line. At Westland on the west-side, the lanes weren't exactly crowded, but the bowlers averaged 200 lines an hour.

From the early reports, the promotion was one of the best in years even though some of the smaller houses did not participate, due to the work of re-finishing the lanes for the start of the league season.

TO THE MANY FRIENDS OF Fred Wolf, co-proprietors of Eastland Bowl who suffered a stroke several weeks ago, he is showing some signs of improvement. The stroke has left him paralyzed on his right side and there is some impediment in his speech. But he is reported out of intensive care in Bon Secour Hospital.

AREA BOWLERS got their first look at the bowling lanes of the future this week when the layout manufactured by General Electric was shown at Eastland Bowl.

Instead of being laid one board at a time, these lanes are laid in sheets, with three or four sheets to a lane. At first glance they look like the old ones. They are marked as if to indicate single boards. But the substance is synthetic and will require less maintenance than the old style.

Whether they will be high scoring boards remain to be seen, but the early onlookers seemed pleased with the introduction.

JOHN WODARSKI continued his hot streak during the past week when he paced the Trio league at Westland Bowl with games of 243 and 214 in a 653 series.

At that, he had to yield high game honors to John Anderson who had a 266 in 641.

A new name popped up on the ladies side when Barb Hausch rolled a 206 to set the pace with a 563. Jean Essa was right behind with a 540.

In a make-up match among the men Jerry Lindley rolled a 652 and Bob Rose had a 645.

ANSWERING THE MAIL Several readers have asked about the status of the old Detroit Recreation Building on Lafayette across the street from the post office.

The building, torn down some years ago to be replaced by a parking lot, housed 88 lanes. There were four floors of the seven-story building devoted to bowling. There were 22 lanes on each of the four floors and at one time was rated the largest bowling center in America. It was there that the late Jim Shillady pioneered women's bowling on a big scale in Detroit by reserving one entire floor for female bowlers.

Why not take tennis lessons?

By DEAN SNYDER
Member USPTA

(Dean Snyder is tennis director and head pro at the Grand Slam Tennis Club of the Livonia Family Y. His column will appear biweekly.)

What's a good way to meet people, get some exercise and learn the difference between a western forehand and an all-purpose continental grip?

The answer is easy. Approximately 150 teaching professionals in the metropolitan area would say, "Take lessons from me."

Some students follow the school of thought that it is best to familiarize themselves with the game before deciding on lessons.

The most prevailing logic among the pros is that that route is a good way to learn some bad habits. In most cases, it's going to take more lessons to change a bad habit than it is to learn the right way in the first place.

Let's assume you've decided that it's time to take tennis lessons. Two questions immediately arise: From whom? Group or private instruction?

Possibly one of the best means for selecting a pro would be through the recommendation of a friend. With unsatisfactory instruction, you are not just wasting your time and money, but learning the wrong methods.

A good idea, in addition to a recommendation, is to look for a pro who is certified by the United States Professional Tennis Association. This insures a pro's sincerity about his work.

Whether you choose to become part of a group lesson or take individual instruction from a pro probably depends on your motivation.

Group lessons are a more economical way to learn the game and a good way to meet future playing partners.

Eventually, the more serious and affluent player will want to go for individual instruction. Also, private lessons are about the only way for the advanced player to correct bad habits.

Whether group or private, students should make sure they don't pick up a racquet just on lesson days.

Many pros advocate two to four hours on the court, practicing a new stroke or method for every hour in class. The only way to learn is to groove the stroke through repetition.

Most important for the professional as well as the player is to keep it simple.

The mind can only handle so many details at one time. It is better to concentrate on one or two things during a lesson and to develop them well. Many pros are guilty at times of overteach.

There is no hard and fast rule as to how many lessons to take to become a competent player. That will depend on one's condition, agility and motivation.

I would say it is best to take lessons until you feel comfortable with your game.

Tennis isn't an expensive game to learn. Lessons are offered through local recreation departments and schools during the summer months for as low as $1 per group hour.

Our area is blessed with four indoor and one indoor-outdoor commercial tennis houses that offer professional instruction year-around.

The price of group lessons at a private club are somewhat more due to the court costs and the more professional instruction. All private clubs offer instruction to non-members as well as their own membership.

LOCAL TENNIS NEWS Livonia Tennis Club tournament results—Dave Ward of Livonia won the Men's A single event and John LaDrigue, also a Livonia resident, won the Men's B single event.

Horace— It's time you learned the facts of life!

Oh, we're sure you learned about the birds and bees long ago, but Horace, have you heard about "736"? That's a Want Ad classification in your home-town newspaper. It works this way Horace:

Remember when you almost went crazy trying to find a solid oak hat stand? How you embarrassed your wife in the antique store because they didn't have one and tried to interest you in a chamber pot instead and you told that sweet little old lady what she could do with it? Remember?

Well, if you had used the "Wanted to Buy" classification that we have just for this kind of situation, one of our thousands of readers would have called you and your troubles would have been over.

Now, that little bird on top of your head (what's he doing there, anyway?) just told us that you're in the market for a 1938 Chevrolet hood ornament. So here are the facts of life, Horace: "Wanted to Buy" ads get results—that's a fact. 736—that's a figure. Use them and get results—that's a suggestion.

Looking for something unusual or run-of-the-mill? Try a "Wanted to Buy" ad.
