Stein charged with conflict of interest

By CAROLINE PRICE

Canton Township Supervisor Harold Stein has been charged with conflict of interest by another candidate for the office.

Democratic supervisor candidate Noel Culbert has accused Stein of voting on a board resolution to rezone property to accommodate a new bank branch office. Culbert alleged Stein had a large personal mortgage loan pending at the same bank.

Culbert has sent the information about the loan to Wayne County Prosecuting Atty. William Cahalan, U.S. Atty. James Robinson and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

The letters were mailed to the attorneys Oct. 17, and had not been received by them at press time.

According to information released by Culbert, and confirmed by Stein, the supervisor had asked for a $93,600 mortgage loan on his Canton home, which was granted Jan. 31.

While the loan was pending, the Canton Township Board of Trustees was asked to vote on a rezoning of property at the northwest corner of Cherry Hill and Lilley (from single family to restricted office). The land would be used by Down River Federal Savings and Loan Association to build a Canton branch.

The board, including Stein, voted unanimously Jan. 24 to approve the rezoning. There appeared to be little resident objection to the rezoning.

Board members Brian Schwall, Lynne Goldsmith and Clerk John Flodin said they didn't recall any controversy about the rezoning. Nor did any of them recall Stein mentioning his pending loan with Downriver Federal Savings, although Stein says he thought he had brought it to their attention.

A tape of the Jan. 24 meeting failed to subtantiate Stein's claim that he informed board members. It also showed that there was no controversy about the rezoning.

Culbert's letter also says Detroit Bank and Trust, which held the mortgage on Stein's "Westland Truck and Auto Wash," had instituted foreclosure proceedings against the supervisor while the Down River loan was pending.

Arthur J. Hayes, president of Downriver Federal Savings, said there was nothing unorthodox in the loan to Stein or the request for a rezoning. He said the foreclosure proceedings by Detroit Bank and Trust did not show up in Stein's credit report.

Stein said, when asked to comment about the charges, admitted that foreclosure proceedings had been instituted against Stein's car wash in Westland, but that was a business loan.

The Down River loan is a personal loan taken out by both Stein and his wife, Norma.

Stein maintains that there was no conflict of interest caused by his vote.

"There's no conflict unless you have a monetary interest in the bank. Six other people voted on the rezoning.

"I just don't see this as a problem." Clerk Flodin doesn't think Stein's vote was a conflict of interest either.

All the board members contacted said the fact that the rezoning caused little or no controversy tended to give Stein little reason to conceal a loan application, although they didn't remember his mentioning it.

Goldsmith added, "But if he (Stein) wanted to make sure no one ever suspected him of conflict of interest, he could have abstained."

Past mistakes still linger on from election

By DARLENE STINSON

With the large number of absentee ballot applications for the Nov. 7 election, Canton Clerk John Flodin can't forget three sealed canisters locked in the township vault near his office.

The canisters contain the 10,637 absentee ballots—more than 10 per cent of the total votes cast—that residents filled out for the 1976 general election.

The cans remind Flodin of the mistakes pollworkers and township employees made in processing absentee votes and the lawsuit that followed.

In 1976, 15 pollworkers erroneously registered their own votes on machines without first filling out absentee ballots. Because of the large number of absentee ballots that were crammed into canisters, Flodin did not seal the cans.

The mistakes led to a decision of the Wayne County Board of Canvassers against a recount of the absentee ballot precinct and a lawsuit filed by former Trustee Jim Poole.

Poole, who lost the election to Trustee Eugene Daley by 11 votes, contends that Daley could lose his seat on the board if the lawsuit is settled within the two years remaining of Daley's term.

The lawsuit against the county board of canvasses is still pending in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

FLODIN DOES not want the mistakes of the 1976 election repeated. But without precautions, they conceivably could be.

In this year's campaign, Supervisor Harold Stein and Treasurer Anne Bradley are using a tactic similar to that used by former Supervisor Robert Greenstein in the last election.

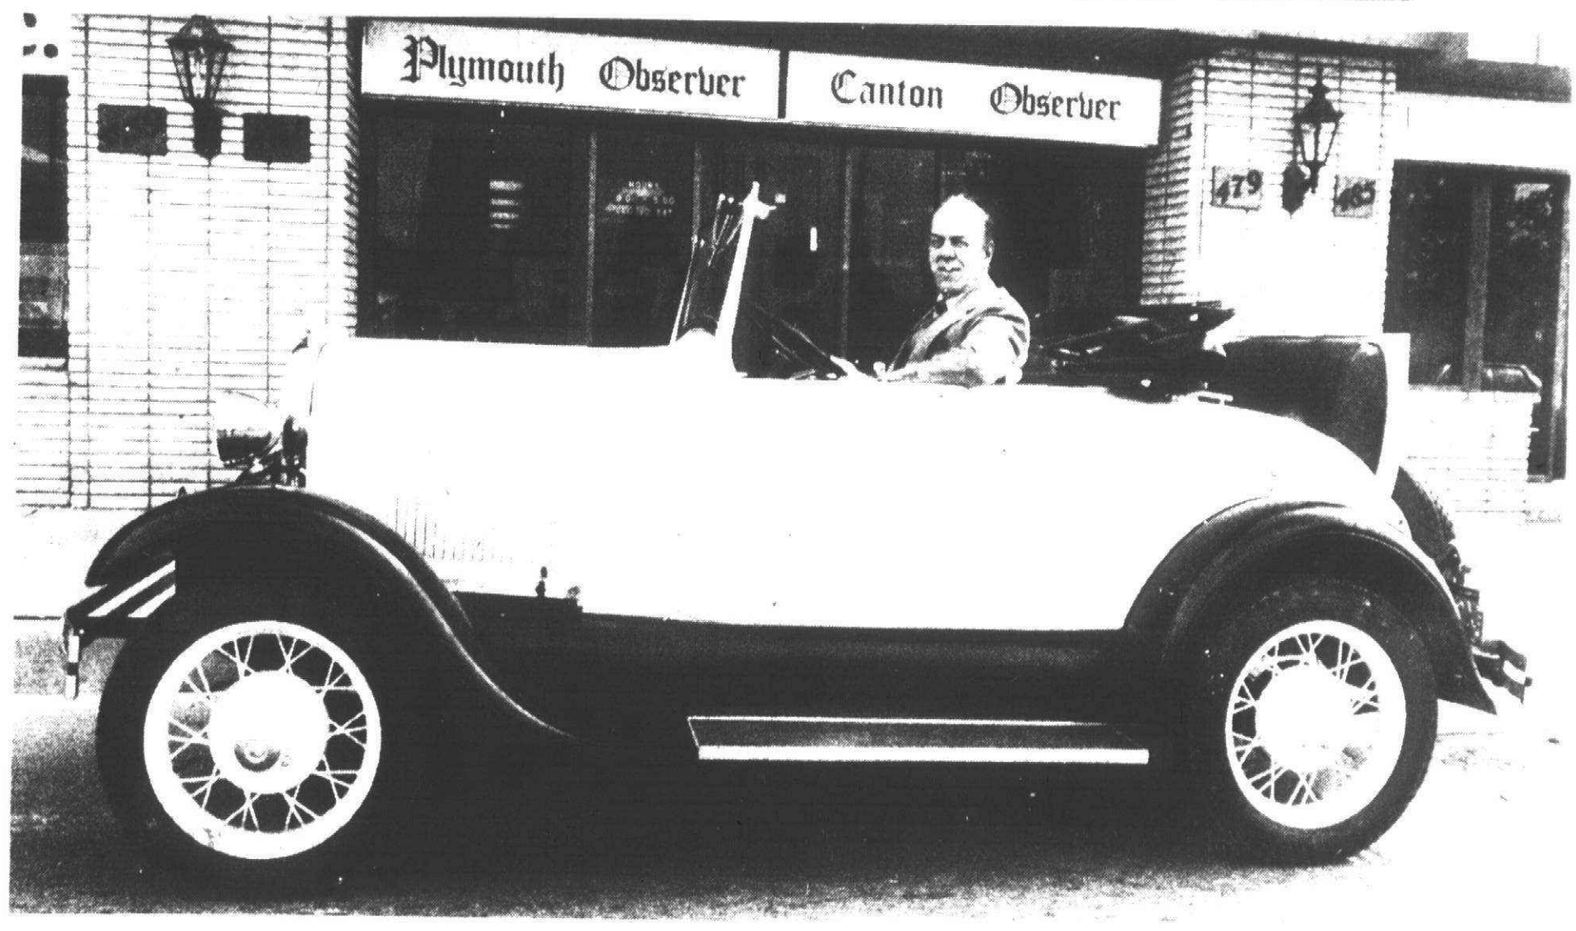

In 1976, Greenstein and his slate lost the Democratic primary and then urged residents to vote absentee in the November election to support their write-in effort. This year, Stein and Mrs. Bradley lost the Democratic primary. They are following Greenstein's footprints in running a write-in campaign and urging residents to vote absentee.

Flodin is taking precautions to make sure the mistakes of two years ago are not repeated.

At this year's class for pollworkers, Flodin said he will stress the legal procedures under which pollworkers must vote. Precinct workers must fill out absentee ballots before placing their votes on machines.

"It won't happen again," Flodin

Model A assembly plant planned

By W.W. EDGAR

If present plans materialize— and there is little reason why they shouldn't— replicas of the famous Model A Fords introduced to the motoring public a half-century ago will be built in the old Evans Products plant in the Plymouth Industrial Center.

They will be assembled by a new company, known as the Model A and Model T Motor Car Reproduction Corporation, owned and managed by Harry J. Shay, a 30-year veteran of automotive design and engineering.

The last remaining move to get the plant into operation is the signing of a lease and Shay, while stating that no final decision on plant location has been made, intimated that the Evans plant that has been idle for some time, is more than likely to be chosen.

"We have been studying the Evans plant for the past five months, and we were drawn to it by the facilities available in the Plymouth area. The decision is soon to be made because we want to start turning out the cars before year's end."

IF THE EVANS PLANT is chosen and the cars starting moving into the field as historical creations to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the famed model and the 75th anniversary of the Ford Motor Company, it will be the second time that Plymouth has boasted an automobile assembly plant.

Back in World War I, the Alter car was built in Old Village and the only one still left is on display in the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Shay hopes to build the first 6,500 cars for the Ford dealers around the country. Letters are being sent to each of them, explaining the operation and he hopes there will be a reproduction of the Model A in every Ford showroom in the land. After that, he plans to have a model in every shopping mall in the country.

Because he is a self-confessed history buff, Shay took his first reproduction to Brighton a week ago and had its picture taken and printed in the Brighton Argus just as the original Model A was printed in the Brighton paper a half-century ago.

"I just wanted to duplicate history," he said, and then revealed the reason for his present plan to reproduce the Model A.

> 'I was walking down Woodward Ave. and spotted the old Ford plant in Highland Park where the first models were made. I was reminded of the two anniversaries, and thought it would be great to relive a bit of automobile history by reproducting them.'
> —Harry Shary

"I was walking down Woodward Avenue and spotted the old Ford plant in Highland Park where the first models were made. I was reminded of the two anniversaries and thought it would be great to relive a bit of automobile history by reproducing them. The Model A and The Model T that preceded it are among the most famous automobiles ever built."

BORN IN DETROIT 53 years ago, Shay has been a close follower of the automobile industry and has worked at one time or another for each of the major companies.

His close attachment, plus his walk down Woodward Avenue, planted the seed for his present activity. He has been working on it for some time, but shielded it from the public with the hope that he could repeat the happening of 1927 when the Brighton Argus "scooped" the world with a picture of the first Model A.

Until a week ago, no one had seen the first of these reproductions, which was made in Livonia and Novi, except for executives from the Ford Motor Company and a few state officials.

The new company, Shay said, will produce about 40 cars a day and provide from 200 to 400 new jobs.

However, there will be no assembly line such as is seen in the plants today. Rather, there will be stations with a certain number of men in each station for the assembly. As an added feature the names of the assemblers will be etched in the frame of the vehicles to help make them real historical attractions.

The reproduced cars will be available through local Ford dealers, according to Shay, and the target price has been set between $4,900 and $5,900.

Asked if the new plant also was going to manufacture the parts, he emphasized that few companies manufacture their own parts these days. There are plenty of parts available, he said, to limit the new plant to assembling the cars that will be a throw back to one of the greatest events in the auto industry—the introduction of the Model A a half-century ago.

He'd rather promote cars than continue selling them

By DARLENE STINSON

It's not that Steve Juhasz doesn't like Cadillacs.

He just got tired of selling them.

So, three months ago, Juhasz did what many 40-year-old men dream about but are too afraid to do.

He quit his job of 12 years at Don Massey Cadillac and took his first step into a new career.

Juhasz is the first to admit his new job is not the most secure in the world, but promoting things like auto shows and dances for disco-crazed teens seems to be the Canton resident's cup of tea.

THIS WEEKEND, Juhasz' five-month-old company, Saturn Promotions, will put on its most ambitious project to date.

The company, which includes Juhasz and Westland resident Bob Wilson, will sponsor a Wheels & Deals Custom Show at the Lightguard Armory on East Eight Mile this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The show will feature customized cars, vans and motorcycles.

That's how it all got started.

"I got tired of hearing her complain about the kids having nothing to do," Juhasz said. "So, I told her to circulate a petition around school asking the kids what they wanted to do."

The dance was such a success that Juhasz decided to put on more at the Lightguard Armory.

They were such a success that he decided to quit his job at Don Massey and make the promotion business his full-time job.

"I had been in the car business for 12 years, and I had reached a point where I was tired of what I was doing," said the father of three. "I didn't want to end up as a 60-year-old car salesman.

"It took a lot of soul searching," Juhasz said of his decision to quit his job.

"But it's like anything else. A man tied up in computer programming wants to be a race car driver. It's always insecurity that stops him."

NOW THAT Juhasz has taken the big step and quit his job, he loves his new line of work despite long hours in his home office.

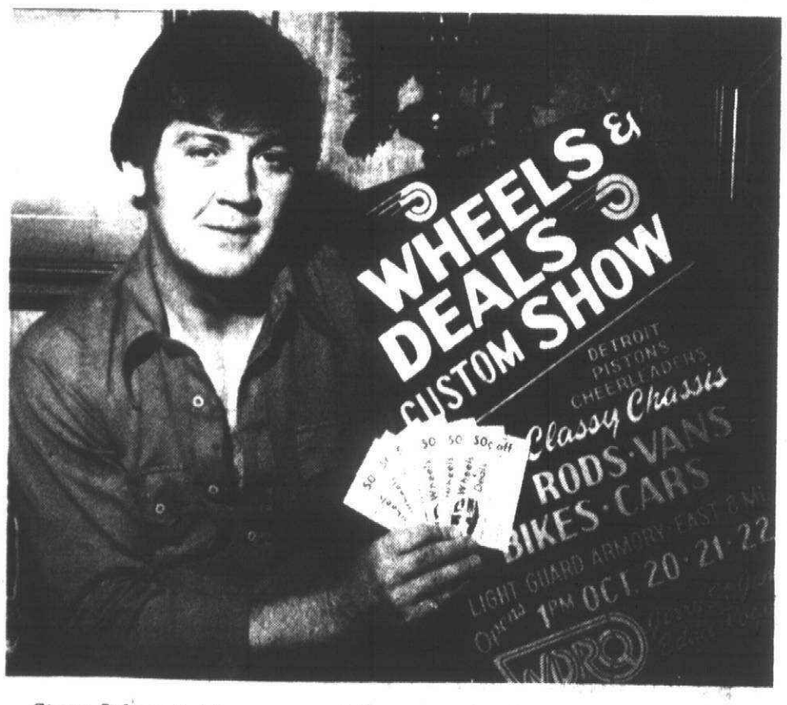

He plans to sponsor a concert in Grand Rapids next month and handle promotional work for local civic organizations this Christmas.

According to Juhasz, his partner plans to quit his job soon and join Saturn Promotions as its second full-time employee. The two hope to open a business office soon.

Although the promotion business is a new line of work for Juhasz, he has had some experience in the field.

Some years ago when he was president of Chrysler dealerships in Monroe and Toledo, he sponsored a new-car showing in Toledo.

"It was such a big success that I commented I ought to do it for a living. It was a joke at the time," Juhasz said.

New manager slated for township course

Hilltop golf course will have a new manager, and Plymouth Township officials will make that decision soon.

Officials opened five bids Tuesday proposing consideration for the lease and management of the golf course owned by the township.

Township Sup. Thomas Notebaert, Clerk Helen Richardson, and Trustee Frank Millington will evaluate the bids before making a recommendation to the full board at next Tuesday's board meeting.

The five bidders include: Richard Dirasian of Livonia; Robert Sparling, Dave Wall, and Don Wilson, Plymouth Township residents who offered a combined bid; Dean Wall of Plymouth; William Newcomb Associates of Ann Arbor, a golf specialists firm; and John Jawor of Farmington.

Both Dirasian and Jawor are members of the Professional Golf Association.

The bids ranged from percentages of the gross sales at the course to a $35,000 annual payment or 50 per cent of the greens fee, whichever is greater.

Dan Ross, former manager of the golf course, did not bid on the five-year contract, although he hopes to retain the liquor license associated with the course.

The township purchased the nine-hole golf course in 1974 for about $390,000. Officials hope to add another nine holes to the course with a proposed purchase of additional acreage.

Plymouth-Canton OBITUARIES

CHARLES D. HUEBLER

Funeral services for Mr. Huebler, 77 of Plymouth Township, were held recently in the First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth with the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee officiating. Burial was at Forest Hill Cemetery, Ann Arbor, and arrangements were made by Schrader Funeral Home, Plymouth. Memorial contributions may be made to the Elks National Foundation or to the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospital.

Mr. Huebler, who died Oct. 15 in Botsford General Hospital, moved to Plymouth in 1936 from Detroit. He was a retired sales representative for Texaco Oil Co., and a member of the First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, Plymouth Rock 47 F&AM, a charter member of Plymouth Elks, Order of Eastern Star, Detroit Scottish Rite, Moslem Shrine of Detroit, and of Plymouth Hi-12. A Masonic service and Elks Lodge of Sorrows service were conducted in Schrader Funeral Home.

Survivors include: sons, Richard of Allen Park, Douglas of Los Angeles, and Donald of Ann Arbor; daughters, Joan of Fayetteville, N.Y., and Dawn of Grand Rapids; brother, Jack of Chicago; sister, Anne of Long Lake, Mich.; and 14 grandchildren.

CLARENCE E. KINCAID

Funeral services for Mr. Kincaid, 82 of Hillsdale County and formerly of Plymouth, were held recently in Schrader Funeral Home with burial at Riverside Cemetery. Officiating was the Rev. Dennis Paulson.

Mr. Kincaid retired as a corrections officer at the Detroit House of Corrections, Northville, after 33 years of employment. He was a Methodist. Survivors include: son, Ed of Reading Township, Mich., six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

SARAH B. DICKS

Funeral services for Mrs. Dicks, 59, of Salem Township, were held recently in Bunch-Johnson Funeral Home, Statesville, N.C., with burial at Bethesda Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Iredell County, N.C. Arrangements were made by Schrader Funeral Home.

Mrs. Dicks, who died Oct. 15 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, was a homemaker and a long-time resident. Survivors include: husband, Henry; son, Donald of Salem Township; daughter, Carol Kale; and granddaughter, Sarah Kale.

According to the Wyne County Sheriff's Department, a car driven by William James Hamlin, 39, of Wayne, hit Gaetan, who was riding his bicycle against traffic and bicycle regulations in the eastbound lane of Ann Arbor Road.

Hamlin was turning east off the ramp from I-275, according to the sheriff's department.

Gaetan was taken to Wayne County General Hospital and treated for minor injuries.

The incident sparked further concern that the Ann Arbor Road intersection is a trouble site, according to Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert.

"We've requested a no right turn sign from the state highway for department," he said.

The highway department said a ban on right turns off the ramp would be more dangerous than the intersection as it is, Notebaert said.

Because there aren't sufficient storage lanes on the exit ramp, traffic would back up on the expressway, he added.

Notebaert said traffic on Ann Arbor Road was an increasing problem, one which the state highway department hopes will be alleviated when M-14 (another route to Ann Arbor) is opened.

For residents who live east of the expressway and enter Ann Arbor Road using Tavistock Road, the intersection is more than a problem.

"I've had two close calls myself," said Linda Pickford, a two-year township resident.

It can take as much as five minutes to enter Ann Arbor Road traffic because autos exiting the freeway turn right on the red light, she said.

First 500 mile race (almost)

On Sept. 9, 1901, the Automobile Club of America sponsored the first long distance race in America. Announced as a 500 mile race from New York City to Buffalo, the winner, D. W. Bishop, in a French Panhard auto, actually covered 464.2 miles. An endurance rather than speed race, it took Bishop five days to cover the ground.

Computer calculates careers

By LYNN ORR

A devilish machine reported that railroad conducting was his true occupation.

A high school senior plans to earn her living as a beauty operator. The same circuitry told her to think again.

Brave new world, you surmise?

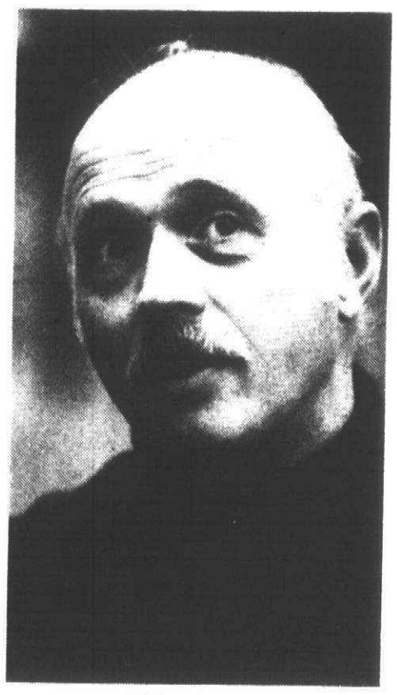

Not quite. Rather, it's a new computer terminal at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth that issued some surprising results when three volunteers tried to match interest and goals with career choices.

"I could have made a fortune in that business," said Plymouth resident Sam Hudson after the terminal screen flashed railroad conductor after he selected various interests via the terminal keyboard.

His selection of a combination of inside and outside work eliminated his chosen field of advertising, the computer told the surprised onlookers.

PLYMOUTH'S police chief Tim Ford came up with 36 occupational choices via the Michigan Occupational Information system. Police work, however, wasn't included on the list.

TIM FORD

In his checkered career, Ford has earned a living as a counselor, reporter, child juvenile parole officer, painter, college teacher and social worker—all of which appeared on the list.

"I've done so many different jobs, but the only one I found rewarding was being a police administrator," he said, contradicting the computer. However, at 52, he didn't rule out trying another occupation in the future.

The library's terminal, available free to residents on a walk-in basis, is provided through the Wayne County Intermediate School District, which also placed two terminals in the career resource rooms at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.

There are 40 similar terminals in the Wayne County Intermediate School District, at an approximate cost of $275 per month per terminal.

The federal government, through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funding, is picking up the tab through next summer, according to Jim Fraser, coordinator of student services for the intermediate school district.

He expects to have as many as 60 terminals located throughout the county in the months ahead and is hoping for an extension of the CETA funding.

However, local school districts would be able to retain the terminals at a lower monthly cost if federal funding is terminated, he speculated.

THE COMPUTER, located in Lansing and programmed by the Michigan Department of Education, is contacted through the keyboard terminals.

The space-age machine arrives at its deductions by posing various questions and choices to the career-seeker, such as working with people rather than data, light versus medium or heavy work, working conditions and educational entry levels.

Temperaments, including an inclination for the creative, directorial, logical, or persuasive and others are the final selections before the elimination process is completed.

But the computer doesn't stop there.

Through more questions and answers, the keyboard operator is able to uncover all kinds of information about any of 350 occupations in the computer banks.

Job descriptions, educational and training requirements, earnings and advancement, employment outlook in both Michigan and the nation, and even a breakdown of minority and sex status within an occupation flash on the screen at the touch of a key.

Instead of poring through catalogue stacks, information about courses, tuition, individual programs, and financial aid at training schools, colleges and universities in Michigan is available on the screen within seconds.

ABOUT 30 persons, mostly students, are using the library terminal, according to Celia Baber, a library aide who assists anyone having trouble getting acquainted with the terminal.

"Your answer puzzles me," is the computer's response when things go awry. A handbook, however, answers most questions and directs the keyboarder.

"Computerization is really where libraries are going," Ms. Baber said.

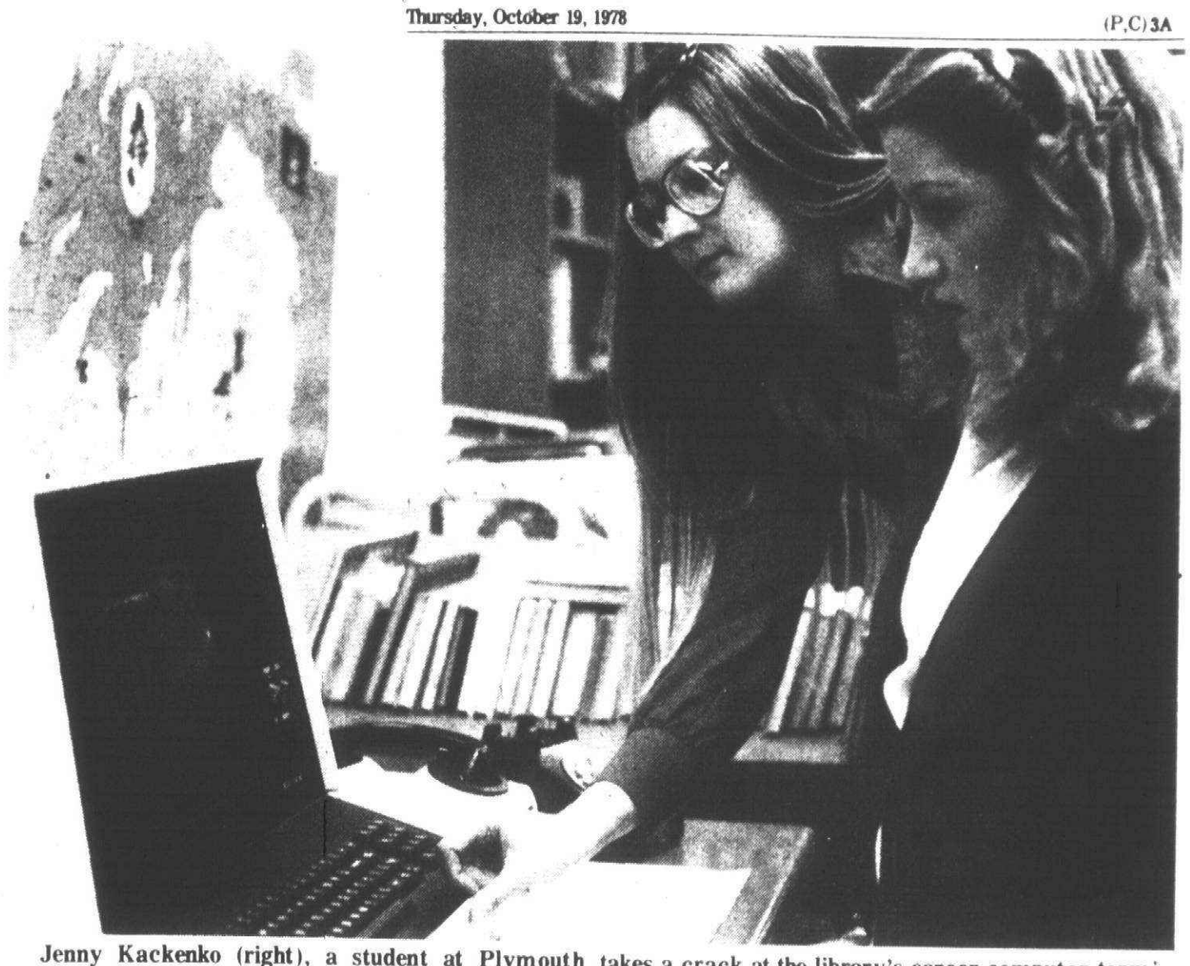

In the future, the library hopes to have a print-out mechanism, so the career or college information seeker can take home a copy of all the information viewed on the screen.

Adults contemplating mid-life career changes or wanting educational information can turn to the terminal for quick answers about the latest trends.

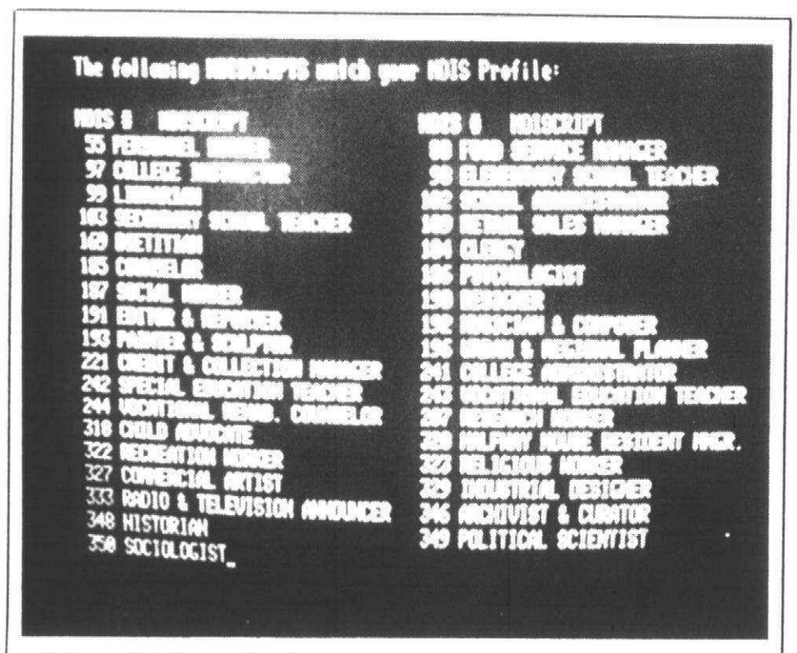

Through the selection process, the physically-handicapped can discover occupations that don't require mobility.

And students curious about the job outlook can get the latest information on career trends before they consider spending years in training.

With three of approximately 40 terminals in Wayne County, the Plymouth-Canton area conceivably has a jump on the career game.

"Well, I'll be. . . " was Sam Hudson's only comment, when the computer flashed "railroad conductor" as the semi-retiree's potential career.

Barbara Paulger (left) is happy to tell Plymouth Canton High senior Debbie Swartzwelter all about the world of cosmotology. As a cosmotology technician at the high school, Ms. Paulger is another guide to information about careers.

said. "I'm doing the best I can to make this election a good one."

POLLWORKERS' votes in 1976 were a crucial factor in the decision of the Wayne County Board of Canvassers to recount votes in all precincts except the absentee. The number of absentee ballots did not match the tally number on machines used to count the ballots.

A recount of the absentee ballots would disenfranchise the 15 pollworkers, the canvassing board said at the time.

But Poole and his attorney—Peter Bundarin, a defeated supervisor candidate in the 1976 election—maintained that a recount of the absentee precinct could change the election results.

At the time, some campaign workers alleged that absentee votes had been improperly tallied on voting machines. They maintained that some votes for the Democratic Greenstein write-in slate had been tallied for the Democratic Stein team instead. The mistakes allegedly occured when "straight Democratic" votes were registered on the machines.

Although Poole, a Republican, never expected to pick up any votes for himself through a recount of the absentee precinct, he maintained that Daley could easily lose 11 votes to the Democratic write-in candidates.

That would have made Poole—not Daley—the winner two years ago.

"It's not at all for purposes of getting on the township board," Poole said of the legal battle. "Only an idiot would want to get in on that circus up there.

"It's a matter of principle. We're in it because we know damned well that their (the canvassers) decision was wrong. If it takes three years and the Supreme Court, so be it."

Daniels Den

By EMORY DANIELS

Maybe I'll begin watching local television news again.

For some time, I've refused to watch local news programs because it only infuriated me, and I caught myself yelling at news people on camera who had no opportunity to yell back.

What I couldn't tolerate was all the giggling, smiling, snearing, sighs and similar mannerisms being used by newscasters who purported to be professional journalists. They seemed more intent on entertaining than informing.

When my wife suggested I quit watching local news if it bothered me so much, I followed her advice—which normally is sound. And once I quit watching TV news, I quit yelling at TV journalists. An amazing coincidence.

UNTIL RECENTLY I've given no thought to lifting my self-imposed boycott.

But I just might now. Monday a professional acquaintance invited me to a luncheon of the Economic Club of Detroit to hear an address by Katherine Graham. (If you've just came out of hibernation, Mrs. Graham is publisher of the Washington Post and head of the Post Publishing Company, which recently traded its TV station in Washington, D.C. for one in Detroit).

I won't mention the station involved in the trade because I haven't watched enough of its local news programs to decide if it warrants any better performance rating than the other local channels.

But I decided to start watching this particular channel to see if there will be any relationships between the pronoucements of Mrs. Graham and the actual delivery of news.

Needless to say, I was quite impressed with what publisher Graham had to say about television standards: "I believe in strong local programming with emphasis on news—not in anchormen dressed in shining blazers.

"There is no question but that journalism is inherently controversial, and this is even more so with television because everything is so compressed. So you can expect us to be controversial at times. But we won't be silly or dull; and I hope we won't be inaccurate.

"Fairness, proportion and perspective are the values at the heart of the news gathering business, and these values require judgement and often evoke criticism—usually after the fact . . . Our work is irretrievable, which requires very high standards."

Beyond complaints on judgement matters, she said, apprehension also is expressed about the media becoming too big, concentrated, obstrusive and arrogrant.

"But we do not need laws to counter these problems. The self-discipline of professional standards by those in the field, and the discipline of the marketplace are checks on any media.

"Experience has shown that we do respond when public criticism is sustained, and such dialogue is far superior to arbitrary curtailment of a free press."

MRS. GRAHAM CONCLUDED her speech with the observation that our society is becoming increasingly dependent on an independent flow of information, and that Watergate's importance was the distortion and release of information.

Those comments were quite reassuring to me personally.

Newsmen with bright blazers, sophomoric grins, sly winks, and facial contortions of disgust are guilty of distorting the flow of information, and damage the profession when they lay claim to being journalists rather than admitting they have become entertainers.

A local TV station with a news team dedicated to revealing information without distortion will be most welcome.

And if it doesn't come about, I'm sure it will be because Katherine Graham stayed away from Detroit for too long. Her personal commitment to sound journalism practices, across the screen as well as in print, is a convincing indication that change may be near.

Merriman caps 25-year career

By W.W. EDGAR

On Oct. 25, Earl Merriman will celebrate his 25th anniversary as an independent insurance broker and no one is more surprised than he is at his success.

In the blazing hot sun in New Mexico where he was in the U.S. Air Force after graduating from Plymouth High School in 1942, he never dreamed the day would come when he would boast an office of his own on Main Street. Not only that but that he would have his own building with a staff of six clerks.

Yet, that's exactly what happened. And to make the silver anniversary one that will long be remembered they are planning an open house at 1176 Main Street.

In those hot days in Texas and New Mexico, Merriman had no thought of engaging in the insurance business. Instead, to get experience in the business world, he started a reproduction service and worked long into the night to meet the demand.

As he recalled those days and nights, he smiled at the thought of a job he never will forget.

The government was digging a well and used a chart of some sort to do some measuring down the deep hole. When the workmen finished Merriman was asked to reproduce the chart which was 12 inches wide and about 1,000 feet long.

Just imagine trying to reproduce something like that," he chuckled. "I did it and now you know some of the things I learned to prepare me for the business world."

AFTER THE WAR he returned to Plymouth and worked as a draftsman on the B-14 planes at Willow Run. But he had the desire to go into business, having worked with his father, Leon Merriman, a well-known dealer.

In May of 1953 he applied for a real estate license and it was granted. In 1960, he merged with the William Booth agency. The merger lasted only one year. He then sold the business to Chuck Finlan and, by a queer twist, went to work for him for six years.

Still ambitious to have a business of his own Merriman started again and this time he called the Aetna Insurance Company and asked for assignment as an agent.

He still smiles when he recalls that he passed the exam. The first policy he wrote was on the home of Lester and Jean Bassett, who now is in Ypsilanti.

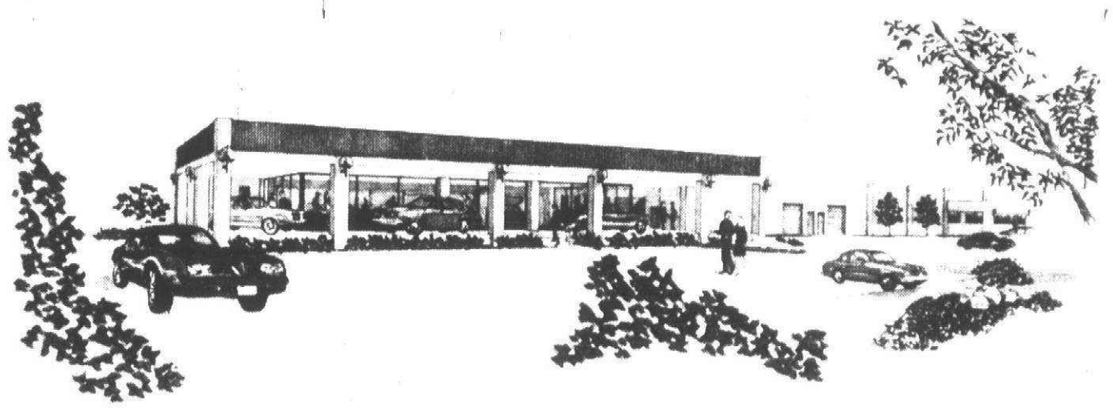

"That was policy No. 1", he says, " and now we have grown to the point where we have 1,400 policy holders.

ALONG WITH his success in the insurance busiess, Merriman also introduced the identifying instrument now used in banks and in private homes to have your name placed on your own articles, personal, or household goods for protection against theft..

It was a big day when he completed the renovations on his own building in 1968 and prouder still that his business has grown to the point where he now represents seven major companies.

When he returned to Plymouth after the war, Merriman was married to Lois Bowden, another graduate of Plymouth High School. They have three children—all boys and Earl proudly tells you that the third was born on the same day he wrote his first insurance policy.

So they'll have good reason to celebrate.

Jeannotte relocating in township

Bob Jeannotte Pontiac is planning to relocate its dealership near Sheldon and Five Mile roads in Plymouth Township.

Jeannotte has outgrown its present dealership space at 874 Ann Arbor Road, west of Main in the City of Plymouth.

During the past year, Jeanotte has rented the former Don Massey Cadillac property at Main and Ann Arbor Road for used car sales and repair service.

Bob Jeannotte this week announced the purchase of 10.4 acres on Sheldon just south of Five Mile and said he hopes to break ground within 30 days on the new facility.

The larger facility will allow better and more complete service to customers, Jeanotte said.

He believes the site is an ideal location because it's near the M-14 expressway now under construction as an extension of the Jeffries Freeway.

Another favorable factor, Jeanotte adds, is that 22.6 acres to the north of his site has been purchased to be developed for a shopping center.

The new dealership facility is being designed by Seymour H. Mondell, architect, and will be built by the Richard Nadell Construction Company of Southfield.

"I'm anxious to start construction at the earliest date possible. The Plymouth area has been good to me and with this new facility we will be able to service the area better."

Jeannottee has operated his Pontiac dealership in Plymouth for the past three years.

The new facility will be about 45,000 square feet, and the site will house the new and used car departments, and the service department. Total investment for land and building is estimated at $1.8 million.

Jeannottee moved the used car forces into the Massey building when Massey vacated it for the new Cadillac dealership in Plymouth Township on Ann Arbor Road near I-275.

Before Massey's departure, Allison Cheyrolet had moved out of its N. Main facility and into the dealership on Plymouth Road, now LaRiche Cheyrolet.

The only remaining new car in the city is Jack Selle Buick on Ann Arbor just west of Lilley.

JUST RECENTLY Jeannotte Pontiac was honored by being named a recipient of Pontiac's 1978 Service Excellence Award and Pontiac's Wooden Indian Award for the month of September for a sales increase of 179 per cent over September, 1976.

These awards resulted in Jeannottee being presented with a master dealer award, making it only one of about 50 dealers in the U.S. to be so honored. There are about 3,200 Pontiac dealerships in the nation.

Business Briefs

KAREN MCDOWELL

Karen McDowell of Canton has been awarded the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants' (MACPA) William A. Paton Award for attaining the highest grades on the May 1978 Uniform CPA examination in Michigan.

The award is given twice a year to that person who earns the highest score on the Michigan CPA examination. It was established in 1961 by the association to honor the highest ranking candidate and to give recognition to professor emeritus Paton on the University of Michigan for his long service and contributions to the accounting profession.

Ms. McDowell, besides winning the Paton Award, also received an Elijah Watt Sells honorable mention award from the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants for her achievement nationally on the same examination.

She earned her BBA degree from the school of business administration, University of Michigan, graduating first in her class, and is employed by the CPA firm of Deloitte, Haskins and Sells in Detroit.

PROMOTES RACQUETBALL

Gil Schmitt has been named director of advertising and promotion of Sports Illustrated Court Clubs, the nation's largest racquetball operation headquartered in Southfield.

The SI racquetball facilities in this area are a division of Standard Realty, headed by Craig Hall, which also operates Honeytree apartments in Canton and Lemontree in Belleville.

Schmitt and Diedrich have conducted the chain's unique Off-the-Wall-U for training of club managers. Schmitt also served as tournament manager for last summer's U.S. Racquetball Association national championships at the SI Court Club at Lemontree. Schmitt joined SI Court Clubs in 1976 as manager of its Ypsilanti club, the first in the chain. He previously managed major racquetball clubs in the Chicago area and before that was a teacher in the Belleville school system. Ms. Diedrich is a graduate of Western Michigan University.

SAVINGS OPENING

Down River Federal Savings is opening its second branch in Canton at 42448 Cherry Hill at Lilley.

It has been operating a branch at 41575 Joy, between Lilley and Haggerty, in Canton.

Grand opening celebrations are being held now through Oct. 27. As part of the opening, there will be 18 daily prizes of Alaron classic mantel or wall clocks given away and a grand prize of a historically authentic, classic design grandfather's clock. Free cider and doughnuts will be served all visitors. Those opening accounts will be eligible for free gifts, including a four-piece canister set, pocket watch, encyclopedia of dictionaries, or a basketball depending upon the amount of the initial deposit.

DR. ROBERT S. BROWN

Dr. Robert S. Brown of Plymouth has been named head of a new surgical division established at Henry Ford Hospital, 2799 W. Grand Boulevard, Detroit.

The new division of trauma and emergency surgery is aimed for a patient in need of an operation within 24 hours of an emergency, with the treatment ranging from resuscitation to stabilization.

Skilled in critical care, the division's staff deals with immediate surgical needs including personal violence or vehicular or industrial accidents requiring surgery and hospitalization.

Caring for one patient may involve a team of people from the paramedic at the accident scene to the hospital emergency staff, laboratory technicians, surgeons, support personnel, blood bank workers, and intensivists in the surgical intensive care unit.

To move patients from its suburban outpatient centers' emergency rooms and from other referring medical centers, HFH has installed a helicopter landing pad at its West Grand Boulevard location in Detroit. The heliport also is used to move severely burned patients from HFH to the Burn Center in Ann Arbor.

Dr. Brown is an intensive care specialist and a former Army surgeon in Vietnam.

Public opinion sought by board

Public opinion on school issues will be expressed at a forum of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday, Oct. 23.

The forum will begin at 7 p.m. in the central administration building, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth. The regular school board meeting will follow the session, designed for hearing from residents.

Anyone with a question, comment, or suggestion about education should attend the school board forum. The purpose is to answer questions from parents and other residents, and to hear their views.

An informal exchange of ideas is planned. Residents may ask their questions directly or write them on cards for board members to answer. Comments will be handled the same way.

Questions and comments will be held to three minutes each in order to provide ample time for all to participate. The forum will be conducted by Thomas Yack, school board president.

The last school board forum was held April 5.

Repairing Small Appliances

It makes you feel good, it will save you money and, once you gain a little experience, you'll find that fixing small appliances around the house can be surprisingly easy.

All you have to do is remember that when trying to pinpoint the cause of a malfunction in an appliance, make the most obvious checks first.

For example, if you think the power cord is broken on your electric blanket here's a good test:

Unplug the cord and examine it for fraying; then examine the plug for loose or distorted prongs. Remove the back cover of control unit and attach jumper wire across power cord leads inside unit. Set volt-ohm meter to RX1 scale and clip its probes to terminals of control cord plug. Bend and pull cord. If cord is okay, meter will read zero ohms; if bad, needle will jump or read high.

And for quick cash for those unexpected repair jobs, sell your usable unused items with

Female doctor for Plymouth

Swiss woman breaks barrier

By W.W. EDGAR

For the first time in its long history, the City of Plymouth can boast of having a woman doctor.

She is a small, dark-haired woman who was born in Switzerland and received her early medical training in the little town of Bosel, about 50 miles from Luzerbe.

During the past week, Mrs. Hanna Sisley has opened an office in the Plymouth Medical Center at 223 N. Sheldon Road near North Territorial.

On the walls of the new office are half a dozen diplomas and other citations which reveal her qualifications to practice medicine and specialize in pediatrics.

Dr. Hanna Sisley settles down in her new office at 223 N. Sheldon near North Territorial Road in Plymouth. (Robert Cameron photo)

FOR THE PAST five years she has served as an assistant in a doctor's office in Farmington and did a lot of work in Oakland County.

With this background she decided to open her own office and begin practice.

"I chose Plymouth because it looks like such a nice little place. And I was especially delighted with the downtown area. It is just the kind of place I always had thought about and now I have realized one of my ambitions."

Dr. Sisley and husband Jack emigrated to the U.S. in 1965 and have been active from the very first day they arrived.

As a young woman, she was attracted to medicine and lost no time entering a medical school in her home environment.

Shortly after their arrival, Mrs. Sisley enrolled at what is now Case-Western Reserve University in Ohio, and graduated in 1971. Following graduation she served an internship in the Cleveland Metropolitan Hospital.

For special training she went to St. Louis to specialize in pediatrics for more than two years.

ARMED WITH THIS knowledge she headed for Michigan and became affiliated with doctors in Oakland County.

For the next five years she served as doctor's assistant there, always with the desire to open an office of her own and engage in family practice along with pediatrics.

Along the way she was married and now is the mother of two children—a boy and a girl.

While sitting in her office fondling the newly installed telephone, Dr. Sisley peered into the future with enthusiasm. She realizes that she is breaking new ground as a women doctor in Plymouth. But she is certain she has found the place she had dreamed of since childhood.

She admitted it will be exciting getting acquainted, but if you see a short lady with coal black hair down to her shoulders and a big smile in the downtown area, there will be no mistaking her. It will be Dr. Sisley, the only woman doctor in the city.

Lawyers make headlines with landmark cases

(Part III, concluding the parallel careers of Paul Voorhies and George Bowles)

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
Sam Hudson

Paul Voorhies and George Bowles made the front pages of Michigan newspapers on many occasions when they held public office.

A case that attracted statewide attention to Voorhies took place, however, while he was in private practice.

In 1920, he was called to represent a well-known resident of Plymouth, Mrs. Phoebe Patterson, a long-time Women's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU) associate of his mother. The first woman Justice of the Peace in the State of Michigan, Judge Patterson held court in the living room of her home on Ann Arbor Trail, near the railroad tracks. She had ruled against a Detroit resident who decided to take the Judge herself to a higher court. He contended that Mrs. Patterson, as a woman, had no right to be a judge.

The hard-shelled lawyer who represented the Detroiter proceeded to anger all of the women in the state by contending that "Woman is, and always has been, a chattel of man, and, as such, cannot possibly be qualified to hold public office."

Voorhies, in rebuttal, cited a 1918 amendment to the Michigan constitution which conferred on women the rights of electors. As an elector, Voorhies argued, Mrs. Patterson was entitled to hold office. The court's decision, considered of landmark significance throughout the state, was in Mrs. Patterson's favor.

BOWLES' ACTIVITIES received considerable attention from the press when he was chosen by his colleagues to be Wayne County's One-man Grand Juror for 1966-67.

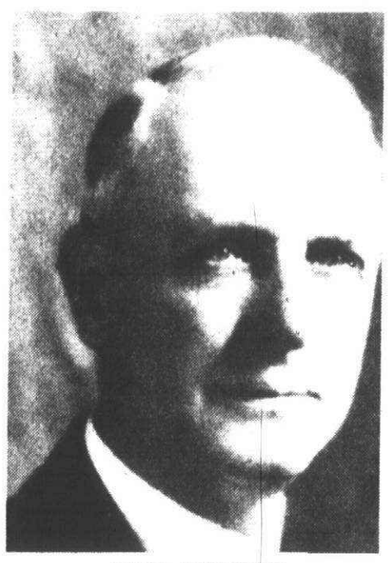

In that job he had to act as investigator, prosecutor and judge. In addition to his frustrated efforts to get alleged mafia figures to talk about bribery charges in Detroit, he investigated charges of corruption in Garden City, Hamtramck, Redford Township and Ecorse.

As a result of his probe, 10 Detroit police officers were indicted on charges of perjury; the mayor, a city councilman and attorney in Garden City were indicted on corruption charges; and the police chief in Hamtramck was forced into retirement.

Both Voorhies and Bowles established reputations as peacemakers. Voorhies was known for his ability to patch up feuds within the Republican party. Bowles, a born mediator, is known for the scholarly and reflective way he attacks labor;— anagement and legal problems. He firmly believes that many civil cases—which now must wait an average of 38 months to be heard—need not be brought to court.

AT STAGES IN their careers, Voorhies and Bowles both moved from this area to be closer to their work, then returned to Plymouth.

For many years, Voorhies lived on Longfellow in Detroit where he was a partner in the firm of Voorhies, Long and Ryan, with offices in the Penobscot Building. A trustee of the Metropolitan Methodist Church, he was a member of the Detroit Rotary Club, Detroit Golf Club, and Detroit Athletic Club. A Mason, he was Commander of the Knights Templar.

PAUL VOORHIES

GEORGE BOWLES

In 1934, he helped found and was the first president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Detroit. (The Plymouth branch is located here about where Voorhies law office stood from 1902 to 1911).

But Voorhies maintained his Plymouth connections and was active here in business affairs. He was a director of the Plymouth United Savings Bank in the 1930s, and he engaged in land development projects here; one with Ed Hough of the Daisy Manufacturing Company, and another with Evered Jolliffe who managed the Markham Air Rifle Company.

He was legal representative for Mrs. Kate Allen, founder of the Penniman-Allen Theatre, and the wealthiest woman in Plymouth in the 1920s. When he died, at age 76 on Jan. 8, 1952, he was buried at Plymouth's Riverside Cemetery.

WHEN BOWLES BECAME circuit court judge, he moved to Grosse Pte. Shores.

In 1976, when he retired from the bench, he re-established his home in Plymouth. He maintains a law office here, specializing in mediation and arbitration. Like Voorhies, Bowles is a member of the Plymouth Rotary Club and of various legal associations.

Mrs. Bowles is a retired special reading teacher from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Their daughter, Gloria Lee, is an instructor in comparative literature at the University of California, Berkeley. One of their sons, Franklin, is an art dealer in San Francisco; and another, Stephen, is assistant professor, computer sciences, Victoria University, Wellington, New Zealand.

Voorhies and Bowles are spoken of highly as individuals and as members of their professions. Voorhies "never spoke ill of anyone," recalls Perry Richwine, local attorney and former mayor of Plymouth. When Richwine was a fledgling lawyer in 1928, and was seeking admission to the circuit court, it was Voorhies who aided him.

"He was an honest man," says Richwine. "He never became wealthy; no honest man ever gets rich in politics."

When Voorhies died, the Detroit News wrote that he was a man "who had no political ambitions but who never side-stepped a public duty." George Bowles, who knew Voorhies only by professional reputation, reverts to Latin in describing Voorhies. He was, says Bowles, "pro bono publico"—a man who was always for the public good.

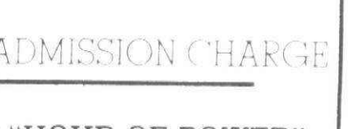

BOWLES HAS ALSO received his share of praise from colleagues and from the press.

When Bowles retired as a judge, James Canham, presiding judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court, told the press that Bowles "is our most articulate, sharpest and hardest-working jurist." A Detroit News editorial termed his retirement "a loss to the court."

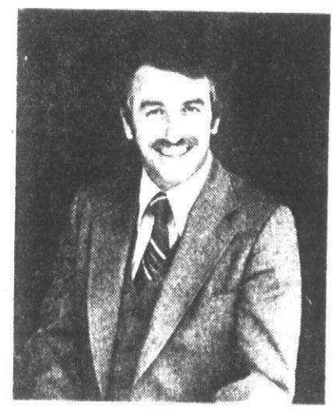

In 1976, when presenting an award to Bowles, Judge Victor Baum of the circuit court paid this tribute to his colleague: "He wrote one of the most effective and socially valuable pieces of legislation to be enacted in this quarter century: The Wage Assignment Act. This statute permits judges to order employers to deduct child support from the wages of irresponsible fathers and to pay the child support to the Friend of the Court (which pays it to the mother). Many states have since adopted like legislation."

In addition to drafting that law, Bowles is responsible for many landmark decisions as a jurist. In 1962, before Michigan law supported him, he awarded child custody to a father in a divorce action because he thought it was in the best interest of the child.

Keene, 59, will leave his post shortly after Thanksgiving—after almost 2½ years at the helm of the satellite center.

The longtime educator and his wife, Lee, will head to North Carolina and a new home. There Keene says they hope to relax, enjoy life and do some volunteer work for the church and community.

Friend and colleague David Heinzman described Keene as "a no-nonsense, straight forward administrator who knows his business and does it well."

Under Keene, the Garden City Center experienced a sharp rise in enrollment. Despite an overall decline in enrollment at Schoolcraft this fall, the Garden City Center continued to grow and once again registerd an increase in students and credit hours.

"We treat out students with the utmost care and concern, he said.

Keene said he's been planning his retirment for about the a year. Although he hopes to relax and enjoy his surroudnings for a while, he'e leaving the door open to work as a consultant.

Reflecting on his career in education, Keene said it has been rewarding.

"I've truly enjoyed my association with students. My greatest pleasure has been to have a hand in developing this area's two community colleges.," Keene said.

A native of Detroit, Keene earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in education from the University of Detroit. He received his doctorate from Wayne State University.

Keene began his teaching career at Redford Union High School, where he taught history and Spanish. Formerly of Redford Township, Keene and his wife presently live in the Northville area.

He served as a teaching supervisor and consultant for Wayne County Intermediate School District which he said helped him become familiar with Garden City.

Keene was a member of the original steering committee to start Schoolcraft College.

He also directed the first campaign for Wayne County Community College and served as head of the citizens' committee apppointed to study the prospective district.

After two years as vice president for instruction at Blackhawk Community College in Moline, Ill., Keene returned to Schoolcraft in 1968 where he served as vice president of instructional affairs until his appointment at Garden City in July 1976.

He is a member of the Garden City Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and President of the Detroit Lions Alumni Association. Keene played halfback for the Lions for a few season before entering the education field.

He also worked in the accounting department at Ford Motor Co. prior to his tenure in college administration.

Keene also is a member of the western division of United Community Services.

Keene, an avid golfer, also is a member of the western disivion odivision of United Community Services. He and his wife, Lee, have two grown children.

Looking back over his many years in education, Keene says he notices a conservative trend developing.

"Education has seen many trends but I now see the pendulum swinging back to the right. As a result we're demanding more of students in higher education," says Keene.

"Society is demanding more and more education. And, as a result more people are returning to school not merely for a vocational purpose —it's (education) becoming an avocation. People also are taking advantage of educational opportunities available to them," adds Keene.

O&E photographer honored

Arthur Emanuel, Observer & Eccentric senior photographer, has been named recipient of the Burt Williams Award, one of the highest commendations given by the National Press Photographers Association.

Emanuel was cited for "having contributed to the evolution of press photography from a trade to a great profession; and for having given to this profession and the men in it four decades of service and devotion."

Emanuel joined the O&E in 1969 and has photographed in both Wayne and Oakland counties.

Prior to that, he worked for Wide World Photos, the Akron Beacon Journal, the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Associated Press in Detroit. During World War II, he served as Gen. Douglas McArthur's staff photographer.

Immediately before joining the O&E, Emanuel was a television cameraman at WXYZ and Channel 50.

"I came to the O&E because I wanted to get away from the cold, impersonal role a photographer has with the people he photographs for a big operation," Emanuel said.

"Now my role has many aspects. I'm personally involved with the people I photograph. I know them, and they know me."

In his long career as a newspaper photographer, Emanuel has collected more than 100 professional awards. He is the immediate past-president of the Michigan Press Photographers Association. He lives with his wife in Plymouth Township.

$2 bills unpopular

Pragmatism and superstition seem to be working against acceptance of the new $2 bill, with more than half of the $527 million dollars worth printed still undistributed. Businesses, asked by the Treasury Department to push the bill, say they have no cash register compartment for the new bill, and that many consumers consider the bill unlucky.

How to lose weight?

Dear Gundella,

Do you have a spell to help me lose weight? All my life I have been fat and miserable. I am 34 years old, and I have never had a boyfriend.

Louise S., Livonia

Dear Louise:

I get many requests for spells to lose weight, and this always amazes me -for anyone who has ever seen me knows that I, too, am a very fat lady.

There is only one way to lose weight: Eat less than you need, so that your body uses up the fat you have stored.

The ritual for any such spell would have to include some form of fasting or, in other words, dieting.

In order to do this, it is necessary (just as it is in any spell-casting) to have real emotion, self-discipline, and desire.

I am told that drinking kappa tea will increase your will power, and that tea made from a mixture of fennel and cleavers will decrease the appetite. I don't know if they really work, for I have not tried them.

IT MAY BE healthier for you to lose weight, and perhaps you will feel better if you do. But from reading your letter, I can predict that being overweight is not your main problem. Even if you lose weight, you are still going to be unhappy.

Your weight alone is not the reason for your being miserable, and it certainly can't be blamed for your lack of boyfriends. There are many men who prefer fat women.

Witch Watch by GUNDELLA

I was a fat baby, a fat child, a fat teenager, and - twice in my life - I was a fat bride. Now I am 48 years old, and I'm still fat, and believe me, my dear, it has never interfered with my love life.

Many overweight women are happily married, and those that aren't need not be lonesome.

Papal election sparks celebration at seminary

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

"Priests, nuns and fishermen love to tell stories," a Roman Catholic priest at a Detroit parish once began a sermon.

The priests and students of nation's only Polish seminary in Orchard Lake got their chance to tell lots of stories Monday. Their friend was elected pope.

The election of Karol Cardinal Wojtyla to the Throne of St. Peter, the 264th Pope of the Roman Catholic Church and the first Polish Pope in the church's history, stunned the Polish enclave in West Bloomfield Township and sparked both wild and prayful celebration.

The Orchard Lake Schools—SS. Cyril & Methodius Seminary, St. Mary's College and St. Mary's Preparatory—are recognized as a leading center of Polish culture and heritage. Pope John Paul II, who visited the campus twice, called SS. Cyril & Methodius "the most beautiful seminary in the world," said Fr. Walter Ziemba.

Then-Cardinal Wojtyla first visited the Orchard Lake schools in 1969. In 1976, he and 19 Polish bishops returned for a two day Polonia Conference.

DURING THE Cardinal's visits many priests and students got the chance to meet and talk to to one of the most influential church leaders in Eastern Europe. Earlier this week, as chapel and school bells pealed and the Polish national anthem blared from the dorms in the background, they recalled their memories of the man who is now the leader of the world's 700 million Catholics.

Fr. Ziemba, who accompanied the Cardinal on his visits across the United States in 1976, had many memories of the 58-year-old former archbishop of Krakow.

"It was September 1976," he told more than 200 persons who gathered in St. Mary's Chapel for a mass of celebration. "He had just finished offering mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City.

" 'I'm finally going home,' " Fr. Ziemba quoted the cardinal.

"It reminded me of a prep freshman at the end of the year."

FR. ZIEMBA recalled another memory of John Paul II. Fr. Ziemba said he was visiting Poland and was staying at Cardinal Wojtyla's residence in Krakow. It was Mother's Day and about 10:30 p.m.

"I told him that I had not yet offered mass and he told me I could use one of the chapels. As I walked out carrying the chalice I was stunned.

"Here at 10:30 at night was the Cardinal ready to hear, co-offer, pray this mass.

"Afterwards I thanked him," Fr. Ziemba "and he turned to me and said 'I didn't do it for you. I did it for your mother.' "

FR. LEONARD CHROBOT, president of St. Mary's College, recalled that he, John Paul II and several students were walking around the campus one day during the 1976 visit.

"One of kids turned to him and called him 'Father.' The boy was reprimanded because he should have called him 'Cardinal.' Cardinal Wojtyla turned to the boy, winked, smiled and whispered 'You can call me 'Father.' "

Msgr. Zdzislaw Peszkowski said the Cardinal insisted the day's schedule be rearranged so there would be time to go canoeing.

"I went with him," Msgr. Peszkowski said. "The water was very rough. The weather was good, but the lake was very unpleasant.

"He was very strong, very fresh, even after four hours," Msgr. Preszkowski said.

Canoeing, however, is not the new pope's only form of recreation. His other hobbies, said Fr. Frank Koper, rector of St. Mary's, are skiing and volleyball.

JOHN PAULII appears to be as strong in spirit and leadership as he is in body.

Seminarian Chester Krysa, who spent the past year as the only American at Wojtyla's Krakow seminary, said he the cardinal was "very, very much loved by his people."

"He stood up for the rights of the church and the people," Krysa said. In his 13 years as cardinal, the new pope crusaded for religious freedom in an officially atheist Communist country. One of his greatest achievements in Poland, said Msgr. Preszkowski, was the building of the new cathedral, Nova Huta, near Krakow.

"He was giving a speech in Krakow," Krysa recalled. "With thousands of people listening, he said, 'You should let us write our own history' (— in defiance of Poland's Communist regime).

"There was immediate applause," Krysa said, "and it kept up for about 10 minutes."

Church bells chime

Nation's Polish conclave rejoices

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

The reaction to the first puff of white smoke over the Sistine Chapel and Pericle Cardinal Felici's announcement, "Habemus papem" (We have a pope) spread across the St. Mary's College in West Bloomfield Township campus like a mid-summer cloudburst.

There was screaming, cheering and hugging as church bells chimed and the Polish National anthem rang out over the predominantly Polish campus. Karol Cardinal Wojtyla, a fellow Pole, had been elected pope.

"There was just overwhelming joy all around this place," said Chester Krysa, a SS. Cyril & Methodius seminarian who knows the new pope.

"When Cardinal Felici came out on the balcony, he announced the name in a way an American wouldn't know if it were an Italian or Pole," said Dan Fredericks, a St. Mary's College senior.

"Then it hit. Wojtyla. I screamed so damn loud my throat hurt for a half hour," Fredericks said.

"It's a good feeling knowing that one of our own people was selected. It's like having someone from your own family become pope," Krysa said.

AMONG THE PRIESTS at the Orchard Lake educational complex, many of whom knew Cardinal Wojtyla, there was suprise and an overwhelming feeling that the College of Cardinals had selected the best person.

"He's good for the church," said Fr. Anthony Kosnik. "He's the pope for this time and age.

"He has all the qualities of Pope John Paul I. And he has the theological background and the experience in a Communist country that (Albino Cardinal) Luciani didn't have," Fr. Kosnik said.

"I WASN'T surprised," said Fr. Stanley Milewski, chancellor of the college and seminary.

"I always thought he was papabili (a possible successor to the pope). I kidded him about it. Yes, he knew he was papabili.

"But because he was Polish," Fr. Milweski said, " the press never gave him a chance.

"You guys can wreck a guy," he joked with reporters.

While it is inevitable that Pope John Paul II will be compared to his successor, who captured the hearts of Catholics across the world with his infectious smile and easy-going manner, Fr. Milewski predicted Cardinal Wojtyla would also become a popular leader.

"He has a quiet smile, not that Italian exuberance," Fr. Milewski said. "It's a beautiful, gentle smile."

OTHERS WERE more surprised than Fr. Milewski.

"I was just shocked," said Fr. Frank Koper, St. Mary's College rector. "I met the man. I dined with him. I just found it hard to beleive I knew the man who is now pope," he said.

FOR OTHERS at St. Mary's, the papal election marked a more hectic than usual day.

Vicki Murphy, the switchboard operator muttered, "I never should have come into work today," as she tried to handle the deluge of calls flooding the switchboard

There were calls from Newsweek magazine trying to run down a rumor that the new pope was married before he became a priest.

"It's as bad," she said, "as the time they had all the botulism poisonings up in Pontiac." At the time she was working the switchboard at Pontiac St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital where many of the poisoning victims were taken for treatment.

Patient-care workers pick AFSCME

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) last week won the right to exclusively represent nearly all patient-care workers in state institutions.

Barring any reversals, said Don Myers of the state civil service commission, AFSCME will represent patient-care workers in such institutions as the Plymouth Center for Human Development, the Northville State Hospital and the Pontiac State Hospital. Nearly 10,000 employes are affected across the state.

A free photography workshop open to the public is being sponsored by Wayne County 4-H Monday, Oct. 23, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The workshop will be held in the basement of the Wayne Post Office, 3716 Newberry in Wayne.

Conducting the workshop will be two volunteer photographers, David Campbell of Plymouth and Bob MacDougall of Wyandotte.

Campbell, a 15-year-old 4-H member, has a nine-year background in photography. His photographs have won first place at the Wayne County Fair and has been involved with 4-H photography projects for four years.

David has assisted in workshops under the direction of Don Wilson at Exploration Days, Michigan State University. He now is working part-time after school as an apprentice to Gary Caskey, staff photographer for the Plymouth and Canton Observers.

MacDougall, who has been involved with photography for 16 years, specializes in nature and scenic photography.

"All you need is a keen interest in photography as a hobby," explains 4-H agent Margaret Leskosky. "We want to help the amateur photographer take better pictures, try new techniques, and have more fun in the process."

The workshop will cover the use of different cameras such as the instamatic, Polaroid, small box type, 35mm rangefinder and 35mm single lens reflex.

Instruction will be given on basic composition of photographs, exposure, lighting, depth of field and some advanced photo techniques. The use of different lenses also will be demonstrated.

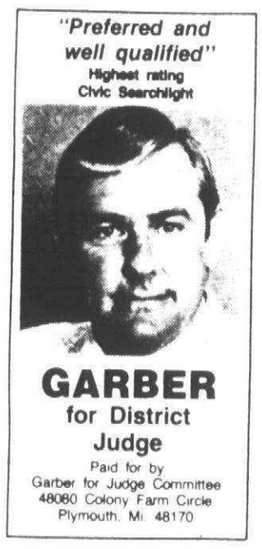

There will be a film presentation on "How Film is Made" donated by Eastman Kodak.

"If anyone is having photography problems, we urge them to bring along their equipment and any problem pictures," says Leskosky.

For more information on the workshop, contact Terry MacDougall at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service at 721-6576.

Anonymous flyer sinks to new low in politicking

Campaigning has hit new lows in Canton. The latest political flyer is being distributed by a party apparently too ashamed of the material to even dignify it with a name.

The flyer is attributed to "Concerened Citizens of Canton, PO Box 404, Canton, 48187." It attacks Supervisor candidate Noel Culbert, treasurer candidate Maria Falkiewicz, trustee candidate Robert Greenstein, and a reporter for another area newspaper.

The flyer's first charge, leveled against Culbert, is that he violated the state Campaign Finance Act by failing to report some campaign contributions on his post-primary finance report.

Culbert has admitted that he didn't list what he spent for advertising in the Canton Eagle, as the flyer charges. He says it's an oversight, although that doesn't excuse him. What the flyer doesn't say is that the advertising bill was only $28.

The second charge is that Culbert failed to truthfully state the amount spent for advertisements in the Canton Observer and the Community Crier.

This statement is patently untrue. An investigation by the Observer showed that Culbert did indeed list the true amount.

The only mistake in this instance was made by trustee candidate Gary Roberts, who admitted his error to the Observer, but seems to see nothing wrong with continuing to spread a lie.

The third charge against Culbert is that he didn't give the names of everyone who contributed more than $20 to his campaign, as required by law.

This is a case of Robert's word against Culbert's. It should not be published as a proven fact, especially since the state election compliance hasn't found any of these charges to be true yet.

Frankly, the flyer has helped this newspaper make a few decisions. We aren't necessarily endorsing or defending any of the people defamed in the flyer because they too have been responsible for some less-than honorable actions.

But we are disgusted and appalled by the authors of this kind of nonsense. If they are so desperate to win an election that they will do or say anything, to make the voters believe they should be elected, they don't belong in office. Period.

The flyer has a drawing of a skunk with the caption "Ohhhh, you little stinkers." It doesn't say who the stinkers are.

To find out who is really a "stinker" in this case, those responsible for this piece of campaign trash need only look in a mirror.

Assessing a party?

As journalists, we frequently have bemoaned the jargon used by educators. We recently discovered, however, that journalism educators have a sense of humor—despite their use of jargon.

The following announcement was made after a dinner sponsored by Women In Communication Incorporated (WICI), a professional organization:

"WICI members who also are members of AEJ (Association of Educational Journalists) are asked to meet at the wall hanging in the rear of this room after the Matrix Table adjourns for the purpose of assessing salient factors and empirically determining a consensus for removing to a more convivial location. All teachers of communication courses are welcome."

No case for raising state drinking age to 21

PROPOSAL TO prohibit alcoholic beverages from being sold to, or possessed for purposes of personal consumption by, a person under the age of 21.
The proposed amendment would:
1. Define an alcoholic beverage.
2. Prohibit sale or giving of an alcoholic beverage to a person under the age of 21.
3. Prohibit the possession for personal consumption of an alcoholic beverage by a person under the age of 21.
Should this amendment be adopted?

Proposal D is politically wrong, legally extremist and so far unjustified. It should be rejected Nov. 7.

The drinking age was lowered to 18 in 1972 as part of an enlightened Age of Majority Act. That law established 18 as a uniform age of majority, handing out duties as well as rights.

It gave the new adults political and drinking rights. It made them responsible for their debts and contracts, saddled them with jury duty, straightened out the tangle of ages for working licenses. It was a political two-way street in the finest American tradition.

The agreement was violated once this year when the Michigan Legislature raised the drinking age to 19. It would be politically unfair for the rest of us to gang up on the 19 and 20 year olds by taking away the drinking right but leaving them all other responsibilities.

And wouldn't Michigan look ridiculous if we were to allow those folks to serve on city councils, school boards, county commissions and the legislature but didn't allow them a glass of beer?

PROPOSAL D is politically extreme because, when you look at the fine print, it turns out to be a constitutional amendment.

Thus, the proponents are bent on using the extreme measure of a constitutional amendment to strip away a right that was granted by a simple statute. That's breaking a social contract with a vengeance!

Alcohol is the kind of topic that has been, is now and should continue to be a legislative matter. There should be no place in a constitution for a legislative matter.

THE PROPONENTS of raising the drinking age have been singularly unsuccessful in convincing us there has been a gigantic increase in traffic accidents due to the 1972 Age of Majority Act.

Actually, it's impossible to compare current driving-drinking figures with pre-1972 figures because so many changes have been made in how the figures are collected. Examples:

- In the same year the drinking age was reduced to 18, another law lowered the definition of drunk driving from 0.15 per cent blood alcohol to 0.10 per cent. It became much easier to get drunk driving convictions, less risky to make drunk driving arrests.
- A year before the Age of Majority Act was passed, the state police changed the system of reporting on drinking in accident reports. The new form requires only whether a driver "had been drinking" or not—without determining how much alcohol constitutes "drinking" and without determining whether alcohol was really a factor. In short, the reports are next to useless in determining whether drinking was really a factor.
- In 1974, the state police found drinking information was missing on 12 per cent of reports and since then has reduced the missing data to two per cent. Thus, the current figures look much higher than pre-1972 figures because they're more complete.
- Prior to 1972, an under-21 person had reason to lie to a cop when asked if he had been drinking. Many undoubtedly got away with it. Today the 18-21 group no longer has to lie. That's another reason the current figures appear to be higher.
- The postwar "baby boom" has been reaching drinking age in the 1970s. That's another reason the figures are climbing.

We can see Proposal D only as politically, legally and scientifically wrong. Vote NO on Nov. 7.

IT WASN'T IN THE STARS...

M's star was Doc Losh

Fred DeLano

After night has fallen, and if the sky is cloudless, there are few experiences more awe-inspiring than to take a pair of strong binoculars out to the end of a dock at some northern Michigan lake and gaze for long minutes at the stars from horizon to horizon.

It has been my pleasure to do that many times at the summer home of Plymouth friends Bill and Jane Clarke on Long Lake near Interlochen.

Without fail, as I have tried to put meaning to the vastness of the universe, I have recited mentally the definition of a light-year. Always there are kind thoughts of the woman who made sure I never would forget it, Dr. Hazel M. Losh. The words are few:

"The distance light travels in a year at a speed of 186,282 miles per second."

If any readers ever were in one of her astronomy classes at Ann Arbor (and certainly many of you must have been), you know that she captured your attention and admiration with light-year swiftness.

When Doc Losh died two weeks ago at the age of 80, she had the title of professor emeritus of astronomy at the University of Michigan.

She had become a campus tradition, truly a legend in her own time. She was only in her 30s when drumming astronomical facts into my poor brain.

What I interpreted as a look of age probably was only pain from student-inflicted torture.

DOC LOSH HAS BEEN the subject of many conversations across our state since her death. Some memories have centered on her dedication to U-M sports teams. Newspaper editors have recalled fondly the many news releases they have handled quoting the quiet lady of the stars.

Sure enough, Charlotte Kuzma brought Doc's name up as we chatted over tailgate luncheon goodies last Saturday in a parking area before the game against Michigan State.

Charlotte was a member of the Bloomfield Hills school board in '69, '70 and '71.

She was talking about that fund raising effort when the Losh name was mentioned, but I'm not sure yet how the topics were linked.

"Dr. Losh was speaker at a meeting of the Birmingham chapter of the Michigan Alumnae Club in the Terry Barr home less than two years ago," Mrs. Kuzma remarked.

"She remembered every person there who ever had been in one of her classes. When she got up to speak she stood quietly for several moments and then brought down the house when her first two words were, 'Go Blue!' "

Charlotte added that in informal chit-chat, Dr. Losh denied that her marking theory was based on an 'A' grade for athletes, 'B' for boys and 'C' for co-eds.

Hell, I never believed that one any more than I believed another campus adage of my day . . . that four of every five girls are beautiful and the fifth one goes to Michigan.

AT HIGH NOON Saturday, just the words "Go Blue" were sufficient cause to drink a whiskey sour toast to the memory of Dr. Losh.

Then Carol Rosso dug into the car trunk to heap fresh vegetable salad, chicken cordon bleu and other gourmet items on waiting plates, including those of husbands John Rosso and Tom Kuzma—lumber and steel specialists respectively.

To port and starboard, as well as fore and aft, thousands of others were enjoying the outdoor freshness of an autumn Saturday in similar fashion, gathering strength to cheer all those U-M touchdowns that were sure to come as the afternoon progressed.

Less than four hours later I wished John and Tom had whipped up another kettle of whiskey sours. We could have toasted everything from the Rockefeller kerosene trust to irrigation problems in the Nile River valley while avoiding all that nonsense inside the stadium.

Said Charlotte Kuzma later in the weekend, ever the activist: "The one shining note of the day came when we got home and in the mail was a $500 check for the Sorosis project from a 91-year-old woman in Kansas City."

I didn't have the heart to tell her of a quote from Michigan coach Bo Schembechler that the Ann Arbor News used Sunday.

As Bo rehashed State's 25-14 victory, he was asked if he would still be a partner with MSU coach Darryl Rogers during the 1979 spate of celebrity golf tournaments around the state.

And may Doc Losh rest in peace. If she had been there as her boys went down to defeat, she would have been the first to say, "Don't worry, the university will open for education as usual Monday morning."

The Stroller

Speaking of upsets

By W. W. EDGAR

The golden autumn afternoon was fast drawing to a close. The sun was sinking almost as fast as the hearts of the Michigan players as they walked off the artificial turf of Michigan Stadium.

Beaten and humbled, they trudged along, heads down, while up in the stands old grads, the loyal alumni and plain fans shook their heads in disbelief that Michigan State University, winner of only one previous football game this season, could conquer the hitherto unbeaten Wolverines.

Many with choked voices were heard to mumble, "What an upset! Whoever would have thought something like this would happen?"

The Stroller was tempted to remind them that upsets are a part of life.

LONG AGO, a teacher advised him that no one stands at the curb and is enchanted as water runs by, but they are drawn to the brook as it sings. She explained that it is the obstacles in its path that cause the brook to become a thing of beauty.

To The Stroller, Michigan's downfall against State was not the most humiliating defeat it ever suffered. He recalled that back in 1924, the Wolverines—from "Old Man" Yost on down—were shocked when Red Grange scored four touchdowns against them in little more than 11 minutes to mark the dedication of the Illinois stadium.

To his dying day, Yost claimed that was the most embarrassing afternoon the Wolverines ever would suffer.

Among the greatest upsets of all times was the rise of the old Boston Braves, who were in last place in the National League one July 4 only to go on and win the pennant. Then "Rabbit" Maranville and his mates went on to win the World Series four straight over one of Connie Mack's best Philadelphia Athletics teams.

ONE OF SPORTS' greatest upsets came in Yankee Stadium in 1936 when Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis when the entire populace thought Joe was unbeatable. The Stroller was at ringside that evening, and even after he saw Louis being counted out, he just couldn't believe it. But it happened.

IN THE LONG GONE stadium at the University of Detroit, the Titans were hosts to Georgetown University, then one of the football powers of the east, and were given only an even chance of victory.

Down 13-7 at half time, the Titans seemed beaten both mentally and physically as they slowly walked into the dressing room. Here one of the great moments in football lore occurred. Instead of criticizing them, Head Coach Gus Dorais calmly sent the team out for the second half with the calm statement that Six Mile Road would cross Livernois the next morning even if they didn't win.

"Go out and have some fun," were his final words.

They did. They had fun running and passing their way to a 33-13 victory—one of the greatest upsets in the school's history.

SPEAKING OF upsets, one of the most memorable was Harry S. Truman's victory over Tom Dewey in the 1948 presidential race. Newspapers were on the streets proclaiming a Dewey victory when Truman rallied and kept his seat in the oval office.

So the disappointed Michigan fans need not take the upset defeat by Michigan State too much to heart. They'll find upsets are part of life.

Pursell & Ford vote for tax cut

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Congress' final session before the campaign break lasted 36 hours, but few congressmen, even those who voted for the two most significant pieces of legislation passed last weekend, seem satisfied with the results.

The two bills were the $18.7 billion tax cut and the long-awaited energy bill.

On the tax cut, the House vote, 337-38, followed passage by the Senate, 72-3. Observer & Eccentric circulation area congressmen voting for the bill were: Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), James Blanchard (D-Pleasant Ridge), William Broomfield (R-Birmingham) and William Ford (D-Taylor).

Voting against the tax cut bill were Reps. David Bonior (D-Mt. Clemens) and William Brodhead (D-Detroit).

The energy bill passed the House, 231-168, and the Senate, 60-17.

SOME AREA representatives were especially critical of the tax cut bill.

Brodhead called the tax cut, "an excessive tilt toward well-to-do individuals.

"Previous tax cuts were more across the board," Brodhead said, adding that the issue of tax reform was ignored.

"I could have supported the bill," Brodhead said, "if the tax cuts were more proportionate." Taxpayers earning $15,000 or less, he said, account for 64 per cent of all tax returns. Yet, the bill gave them only 24 per cent of all relief, according to Brodhead.

STAFFERS IN Bonior's office pointed to several more statistics, which they said proved the inequity of the bill. They said persons earning between $50,000 and $100,000 accounted for only one per cent of the population, but were receiving 10 per cent of the bill's benefits.

They added that of the $2.1 billion designated to ease taxes for investors, 41 per cent of the tax savings would go to persons earning more than $200,000 annually. Those persons, they said, make up 0.1 per cent of the population.

BLANCHARD, was not as critical of the manner in which the cuts would be distributed.

"The cuts are more meaningful for persons earning between $15,000 and $40,000 and they're not as meaningful for persons earning less than $15,000 a year.

"Face it," he said, "the people above $15,000 pay so much in taxes to begin with.

"And the people making less than $10,000 a year have so many government programs to help them, that it's not really fair to argue that point."

Specifically the tax cut bill will:

- Increase the personal exemption from $750 to $1,000. The general tax credit of $35 would expire this year.
- Raise the standard deduction to $2,300 for single persons and $3,400 for couples.
- Reduce the maximum corporate tax rate from 48 per cent to 46 per cent beginning Jan. 1.
- Allow persons 55 or older to sell their houses and not be taxed on the capital gain, providing that the gain does not exceed $100,000.
- Exclude 60 per cent of profits from sale of non-residential property, stocks and bonds from the regular federal tax (up from the current policy of 50 per cent). The rest would be subject to regular tax rates.
- Revise tax brackets to allow persons to earn about six per cent more before moving into higher tax brackets.

AS FOR THE long-awaited, much-maligned energy bill, it drew few rave reviews from area representatives, even though they voted for it 5-1.

Pursell, a member of the House Science and Technology Committee, had few good things to say about either the committee's energy program or that outlined by President Jimmy Carter in April 1977.

Carter's program, Pursell said, "was not really a substanitial effort to consider our energy situation."

Congress "completely gutted" the president's recommendation, the Plymouth Republican said, "because it was so bad."

Council for elderly appreciates all help

Editor:

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc., which was organized in April of this year, with only six months of operation is well on its way as a functioning body dedicated to the implementation of senior services in the Plymouth area.

The senior adult education classes are doing well under the direction of Plymouth-Canton Community Education directors Larry Masteller and Dave Dursum.

We are sponsoring a senior discount program in the Plymouth area and we will persevere in its establishment and expect to have it operational in the very near future. An ID system is being set up in connection with this to help limit abuse.

Under our auspices and in conjunction with the fire departments, we are distributing the Vial of Life to the elderly and to the handicapped. This is a very worthwhile project, as you know, and could save many lives through its use. The cost of this program in the Plymouth area is being assumed by the council, thanks to an assist from the Plymouth Rotary Foundation.

In cooperation with the city administration, we have applied for funds for a 14-16-passenger bus, equipped with lift for the handicapped. We are extremely hopeful that this will materialize late in 1979.

The senior groups—namely the Senior Citizens Club of Plymouth, Sixty Plus Club, St. Kenneth's Senior Citizens Club, Happy Hour Club, and American Association of Retired Persons—are sending their representatives to our meetings and their input is generating possible new services for the elderly.

WALTER N. FLETCHER,
President,
Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc.

Editor:

The question of cutting property tax (Proposal J—Tisch Tax Cut) will be on the November ballot.

Proposal J will: cut property tax assessments in half; limit assessment increases to 2.5 per cent per year; limit state to a one per cent increase in income tax; allow up to one per cent income tax for public schools on vote of the people; provide full state funding of state ordered programs; maintain local voter control.

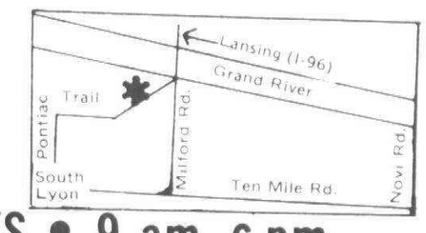

Many people would like information on the effects of the Tisch Amendment on education, local services, senior citizens, etc.

If you would like information, please send a 28-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Bob Tisch, General Delivery, Laingsburg, Mich. 48848.

Bail 'reforms' and trooper bargaining on ballot

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series on the Nov. 7 state ballot proposals by the League of Women Voters of Troy. The league is a national nonpartisan organization which promotes political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.)

PROPOSAL G

The issue: Should state police troopers have collective bargaining rights?

The salaries of state police troopers, like those of all state civil service employees, are set by the Michigan Civil Service Commission, a four-member body appointed by the governor.

Each year, after receiving recommendations for adjustments in troopers' salaries, fringe and retirement benefits from the Michigan State Police Troopers Association, the commission considers those recommendations in light of anticipated revenue estimates provided by the State Department of Management and Budget.

The commission then decides the level of salary increase for all state employees, including state police troopers, for the fiscal year.

State police troopers have noted for several years that their salaries are lower than those paid to law enforcement officials in many cities and counties throughout the state. They point out their job is equally as dangerous as that of municipal police officers.

The Michigan State Police Troopers Association believes that with collective bargaining, the troopers will be in a better position to bargain for more adequate compensation and will have a greater voice in determining working conditions.

The association initiated a petition drive to amend the State Constitution by giving troopers and sergeants collective bargaining rights on compensation, hours, working conditions, retirement, pensions, and all other aspects of employemnt except promotions and performance.

It would also require compulsory arbitration of any disputes not resolved within 30 days after collective bargaining begins.

Those who oppose the amendment fear greater expenses to the taxpayers if troopers receive a raise in salaries and benefits are inevitable, and that bargaining may lead to strikes or work stoppages which would endanger public safety.

The signatures of the petition were certified, so the voters will decide whether state police troopers should be allowed to bargain collectively and to require compulsory arbitration of their disputes over salaries and benefits. They would still be prohibited from striking.

PROPOSITION K

The issue: Should career criminals be denied bail?

The State Constitution currently provides that all persons, except those accused of murder or treason, are entitled to bail.

Anyone charged with a crime other than murder or treason has a constitutional right to be released from jail while the case is pending and waiting to be heard in court so long as bail has been posted.

Bail is required to assure that the defendant will not leave the state prior to the trial.

Many people believe that those charged with committing a violent crime or have demonstrated a history of violent criminal activity, often referred to as "career criminals", should not be released from jail on bail while their case is pending.

They believe the potential of such criminals to commit another crime while free on bail poses a threat to the community.

Others, however, believe that to deny bail is to presume that the defendant is guilty, thus contradicting our judicial system which is based on the premise of a man being innocent until proven guilty.

The ballot proposal, a joint resolution passed by a two-thirds vote of both houses of the legislature, would amend the State Constitution by denying bail to those who have been convicted of two or more violent felonies in the past 15 years.

It would also deny bail to those who are arrested for violent felony while released on bail, probation, or parole as a result of an earlier arrest or conviction for a violent felony, and to those arrested for murder, treason, first degree criminal sexual conduct, armed robbery, or kidnapping for extortion, unless a trial was not underway within ninety days of the bail denial.

Income tax preparation course at SC

An 80-hour training course for persons wanting to work part-time in the field of income tax preparation will begin Oct. 30 at Schoolcraft College.

"Basic Income Tax Preparation" will meet from 2-7 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays on the Schoolcraft campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Enrollment is limited to 30. To register, call the college by Oct. 27 at 591-6400 ext. 404.

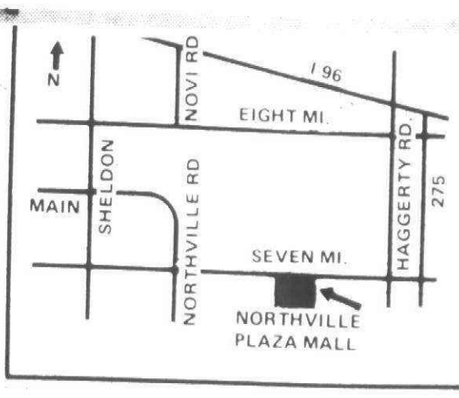

If there is space, registrations will also be taken at the registrar's office on campus at 2 p.m. Oct. 30, the first day of class.

The course will be taught by Marge Acree, using materials and methods developed by H&R Block. Tuition and registration fees are $80.50 for residents of the college district and $133 for non-residents. A $12.50 laboratory fee covers all materials.

The course deals with most of the tax schedules currently being used. It covers federal, state and city income taxes. The course is also useful to those wanting information about their own tax returns.

Although it has been taught at other community colleges, this is the first time it has been offered at Schoolcraft.

About a half-million Americans are "legally blind", although some of these may not be totally blind...they have "partial sight"...perhaps only enough to distinguish light from dark and certainly not enough to read with conventional visual aids.
For these unfortunates, a closed-circuit TV adaptation called "Telesight" has been developed. It can magnify an image by as much as 32 times without losing clarity and sharpness. It includes a TV camera with controls and a monitor where the image can be viewed...perhaps only a word or two at a time, but far better than nothing at all.
No one appreciates the blessing of good vision as much as those who have lost theirs. Why take chances with YOUR vision? Have your eyes examined regularly!

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

by ELLIE GRAHAM

WILLIAM WARFIELD came to town Friday afternoon. Those who attended the opening concert of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra season still are insisting they can't recall a guest performer who received as many standing ovations.

He had the audience right in the palm of his hands.

Jean Braun and Frang Lang, members of the Symphony Society Board of Directors, met him at the airport Friday afternoon ard delivered him to the Mayflower Hotel. It was his home for three days, and he said he loved it.

Jean and Freo Sigmon, Joyce and Jack Kelly, Mary Childs and Fran and Frank Lang took him to dinner at the Round Table Club Friday evening. They agreed: He was a delightful guest.

Warfield teaches voice and oratorio at the University of Illinois. He is "Uncle Bill" to his students and his home is a favorite gathering place. He does the cooking, and the conversations are endless. When he receives a telephone call asking, "Do you know where so-and-so is?," his usual response is, "No, but he'll probably show up here, and I'll tell him you called."

At Saturday's rehearsal, his first with the orchestra, he went over his program just once, singing to the orchestra, rather than the auditorium. And the musicians loved him.

Wayne Brown, assistant manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and Brazael Dennard, president of the National Association of Negro Musicians, were in Sunday's audience. Warfield is on the board of the association.

It was Brown's first visit to Plymouth, and he said he was impressed with the auditorium at Plymouth Salem High School.

"The orchestra is fortunate to have a facility like that," he said. "It was a very moving concert, and I was surprised at the size of the audience.

"It was an excellent turnout."

With the world series game on television and a hockey game following, he said the concert had some stiff competition.

Norman and Emily Ruehr hosted a post-concert reception for the bass baritone and Wayne Dunlap, conductor of the orchestra, in their Plymouth Township home. Among the guests at the informal affair were Plymouth Society board members and their spouses, orchestra members and friends.

Symphony memberships still are available. They are the biggest entertainment bargain around. Five concerts in the star-studded season remain. A membership assures admission to the New York Savonyards' performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafre" in December.

THE PLYMOUTH Lions Club recently approved a $300 donation to the Leader Dog School in Rochester but their major concern is for persons in the community in need of eye or ear care.

The club gave $200 toward the purchase of an electronic timing device for the Plymouth Canton Swim Association.

Dave Cook is president of the club and Fred Eisenlord was nominated as the club's representative to the Fall Festival Board.

THE UNIVERSITY of Michigan flag with its maize block M on a blue field flew at half staff over the weekend on the corner of Farmer and Ann streets.

MARGARET SWARTZ missed last Thursday's party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural Center, but she called to announce the winners—Ruth Sherman and Fran Peters.

Margaret was off on a trip with two busloads of senior citizens from Livonia. There were 86 in the group that traveled to Mackinac Island for "three beautiful days—it was out of this world."

HERALD HAMILL is back at work again. He was in the hospital for about one month while he had a pacemaker installed.

He's following the doctor's instructions to take it easy, but he picks up the mail and goes to his office every morning for a couple of hours. He goes home for a rest and returns in the afternoon.

Before his retirement as engineer for Plymouth Township, he had been engineer for the City of Plymouth. He probably knows more about the topography and geology of this area than any other person. We have used his expertise many times. Whenever we're stuck for background information about a piece of property, someone says, "Herald Hamill will know." And he always comes through.

Opponents of ERA use verbal abuse - not physical

The First Lady of Michigan came to Plymouth last week but not to campaign for Gov. Milliken's re-election.

Instead, Helen Milliken was on the stump for the Equal Rights Amendment, urging not only passage in the three remaining states needed for ratification but urging understanding among residents of those states which have voted to ratify the ERA.

Mrs. Milliken spoke to a full house of Plymouth Rotarians on Oct. 13 on the subject "What Women Would Like Men to Know."

After noting that only a week before the U.S. Senate had voted to extend the deadline for ratification of the ERA beyond the original seven-year limit, Mrs. Milliken stressed:

"The ERA and what it stands for is one of the transcendent issues of this decade and century. Even if the Senate had voted against extension of the ratification period, I don't believe the issue would have gone away, anymore than suffrage did—it simply would have taken longer."

IN TRACING THE history of the feminist movement, Mrs. Milliken noted that earlier leaders in the suffrage movement had been subjected to physical violence.

"But the opponents of today use verbal abuse rather than physical, and the tactics of both sides are now focused on the political process."

At the time the U.S. Constitution was written, she said, wives were considered as chattel of their husbands, with the same legal rights as a goat, cow or a parcel of land. In the 19th century, she continued, the industrial revolution moved production out of the home and into the factory and allowed men to enter an [illegible]ded world of opportunities, while at the same time the role of women narrowed.

An early feminist movement started in 1848 when Elizabeth Cady Stanton took a daring step and asked that the right to vote be extended to women. That movement lasted 70 years, a time during which the 14th Amendment allowed all male citizens to vote and the 15th allowed black men to vote. Still, women were disenfranchised. Susan B. Anthony carried on the fight until 1920, when the 19th Amendment extended the right to vote to include women.

"But the lateness of its coming did not diminish the rightness of its cause. And although women gained the right to vote, they did not gain equality under the law."

In 1923, Mrs. Milliken continued, the first equal rights amendment was drafted and introduced in Congress and was re-introduced in each session of Congress for 40 years until 1972 when Rep. Martha Griffith led the amendment through to passage.

MRS. MILLIKEN said the major thrust of the ERA was that equal rights under the law shall not be denied by the U.S. government or any state on the basis of sex.

The amendment is needed, she argued, because of the existence now of laws which propose different roles for men and women unjustly. As an example, she cited laws in many states which bar women from serving on juries.

"Adoption of the ERA would allow all persons the right to pursue their capacities and potential to succeed free of sex discrimination. . .The amendment merely removes sex as a factor in determining the legal rights of people. It affects the government's relations with people, not private relationships.

"Under the ERA, laws which restrict rights against one sex won't be valid—laws which extend rights must provide those rights to both sexes."

The amendment would, she explained, outlaw all discrimination on account of sex in all public employment, and would prohibit the denial of Social Security payments and other government benefits on the basis of sex. "In short, it would eliminate all sex-based legal presumptions on the ownership of property in a marriage.

"Family maintenance (alimony and child support) laws won't rest on the assumption that all men are independent bread-winners and all women are dependent homemakers. Thus, a man could earn maintenance payments if he were entitled. The ERA would not eliminate any woman or child from receiving support payments, but would limit payments only to those who are in need."

Mrs. Milliken denied that the ERA would require sex integrated bathrooms, or any other public facilities used for private purposes such as dormitories or showers.

"If the draft were re-instated, women would be subject to the draft, with the same exemptions as are provided for men. And they'd be subject to combat duty if they were physically able. But women also could enlist in the armed forces, and get job training, and get all the employment preference benefits veterans now get."

THE ERA WON'T have any effect on the legal status of abortion, she added.

"The U.S. Supreme Court has decided that issue based on current provisions in the constitution, and the ERA will not add or subtract from that legal status."

In speaking to the prophets of doom, Mrs. Milliken noted that Washington, New York and Pennsylvania all have state equal rights amendments in their Annual plant boutique opens Friday

Preserving the sweet scents and colors of summer and early autumn has become an annual mission for members of the Pilgrim Garden Club. The result is a collection of wild and homegrown flowers and weeds suitable for winter arrangements.

These, along with dozens of varieties of house plants, will be offered for sale this Friday evening and Saturday in the mini mall, Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. Hours for the plant boboutique will be 6-9 p.m., Oct. 20, and 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Oct. 21.

There will be golden rod, herb, and pine cone wreaths, accessories, and "Pilgrim Plenty," a cookbook of recipes compiled by club members.

Linda Olson chaired the dried materials committee. The arrangments of dried plants and flowers reflect her professional touch. For those who wish to assemble their own bouquets, there will be an abundance of pampas grass, wheat, cattails, everlasting flowers, yarrow, statice and others—picked at their peak and preserved. These will be sold individually.

ALL THE WREATHS were made under the supervision of Pat Robinson. The adaptable golden rod wreaths can be used for many occasions. With a few additions they can be converted to suit the season—Thanksgiving, Christmas, Halloween and even bridal or baby showers.

Herb wreaths can be used year 'round and the pine cone wreaths are holiday favorites that can be used season after season.

Houseplants were propagated by club members as was the wide variety of African violets.

"This is the main fundraiser we have each year," said club members Antje Wolfe. "It's the only one involving the general public."

PROCEEDS OF the annual plant boutique are used to fund community projects. The club plants flowers in front of Dunning Hough Library each spring. Members also have a plan for beautifying the back entrance of the library.

The club contributes to the American Land Trust. A new project this year will be work with the elderly in nursing homes.

Pilgrim Garden Club is a branch of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan. Members live in the city of Plymouth and Canton and Plymouth townships.

PLANT BOUTIQUE

Pilgrim Garden Club will have its third annual plant boutique Oct. 20 and 21 in the Edison Mall, Main Street at Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. Hours will be 6-9 p.m. Friday, and 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

There will be house plants, accessories, African violets, dried arrangements, herb and golden rod wreaths, pine cone wreaths and dried natural arrangements for those who wish to make their own arrangements. The club's cookbook, "Pilgrim's Plenty," will be on sale.

The club is a branch of Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan.

AAUW MEETING

Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women will meet at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 19 in West Middle School cafetorium, Sheldon Road at Ann Arbor Trail.

Members will invite their husbands to hear the guest speaker, Patricia Widmayer, director of legislation and school law for the Michigan State Department of Education. She will discuss the 11 ballot proposals to be voted on in the November general elections.

These will include the Tisch, Headlee and voucher proposals, transportation, constitutuional convention, mandatory sentencing, investments, 21-year-old drinking limit, state police collective bargaining, denial of bail and railroad redevelopment.

FABULOUS '50s DANCE

Fundraiser for Suburban Children's Cooperative Nursery which meets in Newburg United Methodist Methodist Church will begin at 8 p.m. Oct. 21 in Local 735 Hall, 48055 Michigan Avenue, Canton Township.

Admission will be $10 per couple and music will be by Little Davey and the Diplomats. Prizes for best '50s costume. Setups and snacks will be provided. For information call 459-3046.

RUMMAGE SALE

United Methodist Women will hold its annual fall rummage sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 19 and Friday, Oct. 20, in First United Methodist Church, 45201 North Territorial Road, just west of Sheldon Road.

There will be a bake sale on Thursday. The "Buck-a-Bag" sale will be from 1-4 p.m. Friday only.

Anyone in the community wishing to donate rummage items for the sale is asked to call Penny Shaw, 455-7775, and arrangements for pickup will be made.

HILL CREEK GARDEN CLUB

Members of the Hill Creek branch Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 19 in Bird Elementary School, Sheldon Road at Ann Arbor Trail.

Guest speaker will be Nancy Petrocelli of the Green Thumb. Her talk will be followed by a sale of house plants by members of the club. Ms. Petrocelli will speak at 7:30 and sale of plants will begin at 8. The guest speaker also will answer questions about plants.

The meeting is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

BROWNIE BEE DAY

Brownie Bee Day will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28, in Pioneer Middle School. The event is open to all Brownie Girl Scouts in the Plymouth-Northville-Canton Area Association.

Reservations must be made by Oct. 20 by calling Romaine Kling, 459-1918, or Rose Robinson, 397-0370.

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

Canton residents Jerilynn and Richard DeTata have been very busy for the last two months. Last Saturday their new jewelry store, located in downtown Plymouth in Forest Place mall, was open for business for the first time.

This is a brand new venture for the DeTatas and they're very excited. Everyone knows how great the business district of Plymouth is and Forest Place is no exception. The other shop owners have given the DeTatas a warm welcome.

The name of their shop is Jer-richards, a French name which incorporates the new proprietors' personal touch.

Richard is not a newcomer to the jewelry business. He's been working from a Southfield firm for the last three years. He decided to open in Plymouth and bring his knowledge of high quality merchandise closer to home.

A grand opening is planned for Oct. 27 and 28. When you take a tour of the new mall in Plymouth, make sure you stop by Jer-richards and see the DeTatas.

REMEMBER THE Pilgrim Garden Club's plant boutique is this weekend in the mini mall, Main Street, Plymouth. The hours for the sale will be Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Pinecone wreaths, goldenrod wreaths, dried flower arrangements as well as a variety of house plants will be included in the sale. Materials for making your own arrangements also will be available. Wild babies breath, which we hear is very scarce in our area, will be sold in bunches by the club.

Members of the garden club have compiled a cookbook which features colonial and herb recipes. The name of the cookbook is Pilgrims Plenty and will be offered for the first time at the boutique for $4.

THE CANTON Newcomers have extended the date to make a reservation for the couples masquerade party. Reservations must be made by 8 p.m., Oct. 23.

The costume party will be Oct. 28 at the Red Apple Restaurant in Wayne. The cost is $16 a couple with a $1 refund for a disguise.

Games and craziness are being planned by co-chairpersons Christy Skorka and Linda Lupo. They ask members to please get in the mood and reserve their spot for Halloween fun.

The next general meeting of the Newcomers will be Nov. 1 when a dinner and style show will be held. The Plymouth Hilton will be the place where Claire Kelly will inspire all attendees to get their thoughts turning to fall and winter fashions.

Reservations must be made by Oct. 27. The cost of the dinner and show is $10. The business meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 8.

FORMER CANTON resident Gail McDowell was in town last week visiting friends. The McDowells moved to Conenecticut last April and Gail said it was a real treat for her to see everyone again.

David and Loretta Yeager of Carlisle Court enjoyed having Gail as their guest during her four-day stay. From Canton, Gail traveled to Florida to meet her husband George for a company convention before heading back home to Connecticut.

Gail had loads of stories to tell about her new house and her new city. She misses the nearness of the shops in Canton and had to go up to Sunny Daze while she was here to see if she could find a candle ring she wanted. She's still lost in her new town and can't find nice places to shop. The McDowells hope to return to Canton for a visit at Christmas time.

Makeup is back for teenagers

Back in the 1950s, teenagers applied makeup so generously that mothers thought they looked awful. The teenagers thought they looked beautiful and sophisticated.

Then in the late '60s and early '70s, the no-makeup look became fashionable. Natural was equated with beautiful.

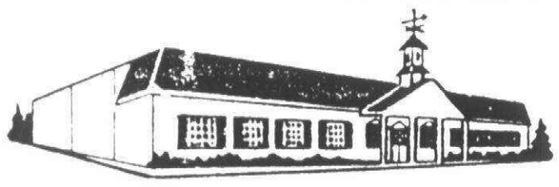

Mothers were saying to their daughters, "Is that how you're going out? Why don't you do something with your hair and put on a little makeup?"

The late '70s has marked a trend back to some makeup for teenagers. But not with the heavy-handedness of the '50s.

Makeup purchases are likely to include lip gloss, brown eye shadow and blusher, according to Mari Nuckles, makeup consultant for Merle Norman Cosmetics. "Teenagers are more concerned about skin care than makeup," she said.

Apple Run Club begins new season with fashion show

Eighty women, members of Apple Run Garden Club and their guests, dined on wild rice with almonds, ham, vegetables, assorted salads and bread, with pound cake and ice cream for dessert. The luncheon, served by Luncheon is Served, preceded a fashion show in Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Westland.

Jeannie Lilley of Lilley's Boutique was commentator for the fall fashions worn by her three models, Sharon, Earlene and Charlotte.

They modeled everything from casual heavy sweater and slack outfits to the latest disco dresses and new slim evening pants. Her top lines, Stella of California and Ursula of Switzerland, reflected flowing lines and careful attention to decorative details. Sizes ranged from three to 18, with some 20s. She also had a display of imported gift items from her shops in Westland and Livonia.

APPLE RUN is a branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. The luncheon-fashion show was its first major fundraiser of the club's third season.

A young club with young members, it is not unusual to have babies and toddlers at daytime functions. Efforts have been dedicated to making their home community, Canton Township, a better place to live. Service projects have been directed toward township improvement.

When Canton opened its second fire department station on Warren Road, the club presented a Norway Emerald Queen maple for the grounds. The tree was planted in September and they were back in the spring, planting shrubs and flowers at the station.

For two years in a row, they have assisted at the produce show during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Members joined other local branches in planning the Fall Council Meeting. Representatives from all over the state gathered in Plymouth for a conclave in the Cultural Center and the Mayflower Meeting House.

Guest speakers at regular meetings have included experts on herbs, interior decorating and gardening. There have been workshops where members learned how to make pine cone wreaths and Christmas decorations.

MONEY-MAKING projects funded a variety of projects.

The tree planted at the fire station was bought with money earned at a bake sale and the sale of stationery. The sale of fruit breads made by members was responsible for a $100 donation to the Canton Goodfellows.

A garage sale netted $256. This helped toward a donation of $100 to the Michigan Humane Society's Kindness Center and a $100 conservation scholarship awarded to Karl Gretzinger. A plant sale was another money-maker.

There have been picnics, Christmas parties and participation in the annual International Tea at Metamora.

The board for the 1978-79 season is Sharon Palise, president; Margo Whiting, first vice president; Joyce Ankafski, second vice president; Cheryl Wachlarz, corresponding secretary; Bobbie Plopan, recording secretary; Sandi Reid, treasurer; and Vi Stevens, advisor.

Duvendeck-Swanson

Katherine Alice Swanson of Plymouth and Michael Lester Duvendeck of Prudenville were married recently in St. Andrew Episcopal Church, Ann Arbor. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swanson of Plymouth. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Duvendeck. The Rev. Alexander Miller officiated at the ceremony.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mary Ann Pincumbe, and another sister, Barbara Jean Swanson, was maid of honor. The bridegroom's brothers, John and Patrick Duvendeck, were best men.

The bride graduated from Plymouth High School in 1972. Both she and her husband are graduates of the University of Michigan. Both are employed at Children's Psychiatric Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Following their honeymoon in Hawaii, they will live in Ann Arbor.

constitutions and "none of the dire consequences cited by opponents have come to pass."

In addressing claims the ERA would be injurious to family relationships, Mrs. Milliken quoted Dr. Joyce Brothers as saying that men have much to gain by making women free to develop to their own potential—that women can lift an economic burden off the shoulders of men.

She noted there are now eight million working women who are heads of households, and that 45 per cent of the working women earn only 60 cents for every $1 men do for the same work.

She concluded by suggestion that the failure of the ERA to be ratified to date is due, in large part, to a lack of understanding by the public—fueled by a large number of misrepresentations by opponents.

She suggested the tide is turning because the latest Gallop Poll shows Americans now approve of the ERA by a margin of almost 2-1.

"The ERA won't dissolve or dissipate—it is an historic force."

John Paul II is no stranger to Felicians

By MARGARET MILLER

There's a quiet joy behind the beautiful doors of the Felician Mother House in Livonia as Pope John Paul II assumes the leadership of the Roman Catholic Church.

Mother Mary Clarentine, superior of the nuns there, is a member of an order who has known the new pope well. She lived in the Felician Generalate in Rome for several years. The new pontiff, then Archbishop Karol Wojtyla, prelate of Krakow, came to visit often.

The order also includes those like Sister Mary Felicity who have met the new pope during one of his visits to the United States. Other Felicians share the warmth of kinship with John Paul II through common Polish heritage.

"We knew him as a friend in Rome, because that's what he was," said Mother Clarentine. "He would come often to our house in Rome. We would kiss his ring, invite him to share a meal with us."

EVEN BEFORE Mother Clarentine heard the new pope had chosen the name of his immediate papal predecessor, she likened him to John Paul I.

"He really fits the pattern of Pope John Paul I," she said. "He is friendly and most caring. He will be a strong man in his new role.

"We know he is considerate, and I know he will be holy, because I know his deep devotion to the church and the Blessed Virgin."

Mother Clarentine first met the new pontiff when she was in Rome from 1965 to 1970. She met him again later after he had been elevated to cardinal.

Was she surprised at the choice?

"I thought I would just fall over," Mother Clarentine said. "But we are exceptionally thrilled that he is so honored.

"Even if I never shake his hand as he is pope, I will remember the many meetings when he was archbishop and cardinal. I will be proud that I know him."

ONE OF THE first things that Mother Mary Clarentine did after learning about the cardinals' choice was get on the telephone with her old friend, Sister Mary Laudine, now directing a Felician camp at Holland.

Sister Laudine is a former provincial superior in Livonia, heading the Mother House from 1959 to 1965. She too spent several years in the Felician Generalate in Rome, and was there when Karol Wojylta was elevated to cardinal.

"His good friend, a doctor, asked the sisters in our house if we could help outfit him in his cardinal vestments," she recalled.

"We took his measurements and got him everything from shoes to biretta. As far as I know, he was still wearing those vestments when he wad elected to be pope."

The Felician sisters in Rome also provided a mountain-climbing outfit for the physical fitness-minded cardinal, Sister Laudine remembered.

"His friend, the doctor, told us 'He cares for his health; he goes to the mountains, but he does not wear the right clothes or climbing,' " she related. "So we outfitted him for that, too."

This Felician also described the new pope as "a brilliant man, one who knows at least seven languages, and that means to converse."

MOTHER CLARENTINE and Sister Laudine both confessed to fleeting thoughts about the cardinal from Krakow becoming pope.

"Before John Paul I was named, I did think of his being elected," said the mother provincial. "But not this time."

For Sister Laudine, there was the memory of a years-ago conversation in Rome.

"I said to him jokingly that if he were Italian, perhaps one day he would be the Holy Father," she recalled with a smile.

Things are different now, the Felicians and the whole world know.

Plymouth church opens bazaar season tomorrow

Still, it's the season for some specialized Christmas shopping as organizational bazaars begin cropping up with keep-or-give wares ranging from ethnic delicacies to hand-crocheted afghans.

It's also the season for the area's unsung artisans and top-notch cooks to come into their own.

They who would not sell their creations under other circumstances are glad to work for hours, bask in admiration and turn the profits over to church or organization.

Women also reap a harvest of sociability as bazaar time rolls around.

THAT'S TRUE for the women of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church, at 39851 Five Mile in Plymouth Township and drawing members from all over the area.

They are putting on the third bazaar in the history of their church from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 20 and 21. The great array of salables, edible and otherwise, is being assembled to help the congregation erect a larger building on the wooded site where they now worship.

"It's the fun of all of us getting together and cooking and making things that makes the bazaar so much fun," said Theodora Bagares, a Livonia member who specializes in spinach pie for the bazaar luncheon.

LUNCH ALSO is a major feature of the Greek Orthodox church's festivities.

Greek cruisine, including Mrs. Bagares' spinach pie, the pastichio that Tasia Keros of West Bloomfield loves to whip up, Greek custard roll from the oven of Helen Mouhos of Livonia, the familiar baklava and many other dishes will be served both days beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Eight booths will offer an assortment of arts and crafts, plants, Christmas ornaments, candles, knitting and crocheting and pastries.

Some gilded angels that went like hotcakes last year will be available in increased numbers, about a dozen and a half.

"We have 30 people who attend regular meetings as we put the bazaar together," said Mrs. Keros. "But there are 80 to 100 who contribute in various ways.

Bazaar wares also will be available in this area the weekend of Oct. 20 and 21 at the Rosedale Gardens Clubhouse, 9611 Hubbard, Livonia. The sale and art and craft display will be sponsored by the Rosedale Gardens branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

The International Bazaar of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, planned for 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3. It will feature a Gallery Shop of antiques, fine linens and other valuable gifts as well as handcrafted items from Thailand offered by the Rev. Norman Roardamel, missionary.

Brittle bones caused by calcium lack

Older men and women average more than 30 per cent below the recommended amounts of calcium they should consume daily.

Drinking more milk or eating its equivalent in other dairy products will help relieve calcium deficiencies.

Monitor's reports—a gold mine of information

By SHERRY KAHAN

They are called the reports of the monitoring committee, and they take the reader into the heart of the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Prepared by five monitors appointed by U.S. District Judge Charles Joiner, the six reports published to date are a goldmine of information on the center now trying to upgrade its care after a newspaper expose of widespread abuse of residents.

Were you wondering if the ratios of staff to residents ordered by Judge Joiner are being observed? They're not, although hiring is continuing. Of the 154 groups of residents which make up the center's population, the September monitors's report found 107 failed to have as many staff as Joiner ordered.

Are the attendants beginning to involve residents in activities? They are and they aren't.

Staff members and residents of Binet hall were sitting on an outdoor patio full of climbing and play equipment, two big-wheel bikes, a wagon and a ball, observed the monitors.

"Staff energy appeared directed toward keeping residents seated on the benches of the picnic tables. Every time a resident got up and moved around, a staff person yelled, 'No,' or 'Come here,' or 'Sit,'" said the report. "There was no observed attempt to interact with residents or to encourage or teach residents to use available play equipment."

A YOUNG WOMAN in Binet was seen lying asleep on a bed. Monitors counted 16 flies on her body. "The staff agreed the flies were always bad, but made no attempt to brush them off the resident," they commented.

Montitors at Sullivan tried to find out if attendants knew the residents for whom they were responsible. "None of the three could account for all the residents and appeared angry at the persistence of the monitors in trying to account for everyone," stated the report.

"One staff person finally got the resident list out and could then account for everyone."

While most of the six monthly reports deal with shortcomings in cleanliness, overheating, staff interaction with residents and the inadequacy of nursing service on weekends, occasionally there was a bright spot in the September report.

In one unit in Kennedy Hall, residents ate family style. "Food was in serving bowls on the table, residents had real plates, utensils and napkins, and they were helping themselves to food or learning how to do it.

"The entire meal appeared to be very appropriately handled by staff and a good learning experience for residents. Monitors learned that these two groups regularly eat family style and that two other groups do it only sporadically."

An assistant program director later told monitors that more residents were supposed to eat family style regularly and expressed surprise about the limited program.

In Sullivan Hall monitors observed an attendant with her group of four blind young women. She was teaching them to set a table.

"The residents were very excited and satisfied when they were praised, as the attendant staff person directed them on their turns in placing plates, napkins and silverware in the proper places."

While the stated purpose of the monitoring committee is to keep Judge Joiner informed about the inner workings of the center, it has the secondary use of keeping the administration up to date. The administration building is separated from the residential halls by distances of a quarter-mile to a half-mile, and this separation have have an in means less contact for adminstration employees with staff and residents.

FOR EXAMPLE, Members of the administration can read the opinion of outsiders i.e. the monitors about cleanliness in the institution, a high priority of the monitors. Deficiencies were reported in August. But since that day "a massive effort has been observed by monitors on the part of building housekeeping staff to not only clean up but to decorate some of the buildings.'

The September report mentions "there has been an observable improvement in the physical environment of the buildings." Recreation, the?e felt, had also improved although they felt that at the pool residents should be involved in some planned activities.

An informal meeting between two monitors and a group of about 15 parents and guardians produced some good news and bad news. Parents felt they had free access to the living areas of the center at any reasonable time.

However, one woman claimed she had not been allowed to visit her child on one of the Kennedy Hall wards for some months. No explanation, she said, was offered.

The parent-guardian groups had positive comments about the new availability of medical doctors on Wednesday afternoons, and most felt they had access to acting director Eranell McIntosh-Wilson. Their negative comments centered on the flow of information to them, the fact they couldn't get questions answered on weekends.

They were also troubled about the disappearance of clothing, shoes or equipment they had purchased for their children.

They were upset by the fact they couldn't learn much about how their child is doing, or how they could help in the developmental process, especially when the child was visiting home.

THE NEED FOR physical management training for the staff plus training methods to reduce resident frustration and anger was underlined by instances of resident violence enumerated in the report. A woman was noticed randomly striking at those in her area, later knocking down another resident and injuring her so she had to be hospitalized.

The anger of another resident was diffused before it led to injury.

A resident noted banging her head "with great force" on the floor later caused a situation that called for and received maximum cooperation by attendants. The resident struck another resident whereupon the ward supervisor took her to shower, thereby calming her.

A recently hired staff person tried to console the woman who had been hit, but the woman became upset and pulled a full portion of hair from the staff person's head.

"The staff person commendably kept her wits about her andn calmed the situation.," commented the report. "The self-abusive resident has a long history of the activity but staff did not know of a behavior program for her to help correct the self-abuse."

MONITORS ARE DIRECTED by Judge Joiner to work up to 20 hours a week. They are paid by the Michigan Department of Mental Health by an order of the U.S. District Court.

JUNE LARK

Lark launches 2 classes

The Holiday Sparkle class which will involved teaching proper make-up application, wardrobe updating, spot exercises, scarf tricks, nail-wrapping and a personal hair analysis, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 30 in the liberal arts building on campus. It will continue for four weeks and cost $20.

Mini-modeling will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25 in the same location. Fee is $25.

Both classes will attend a hair show on Monday, Nov. 6. Several individuals will be selected for a free cut and styling.

It takes a Good Judge to Know One. . .

"...the position calls for the highest integrity, good general intelligence, patience with fairness, and an interest in and acceptance of all kinds of people. Phil Ogilvie has all these characteristics and most significantly, he knows the people and the area in a way that very few lawyers know them." —George E. Bowles, retired Wayne County Circuit Judge.

CHURCH BULLETIN

NEWBURG UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia, will break ground following its 11 a.m. service Sunday, Oct. 22, for a building project that includes adding a 9,000 square foot fellowship hall and kitchen and redesigning of exisiting buildings to add educational and sanctuary space.

The project, estimated at $450,000, is the third building endeavor for the church since 1961. Gary Fry, chairman of the building committee, will use the same shovel employed in the early ground-breakings to launch the the latest project symbolically.

THE SALVATION ARMY, 290 Fairground, Plymouth, will complete a week of evangelical services with Brigadier Edward Derantany of Florida when the visiting speaker presents "A Look at the Land Where Jesus Walked" at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20.

The evangelist's parents were born in Damascus and he speaks the Arabic language and has made three trips to the Holy Land.

His talk will be illustrated with slides.

PEOPLE'S CHURCH OF CANTON will present Fred Frank, featured soloist on religious television programs including the "700 Club," in a concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, in Plymouth-Canton High School, 8415 Canton Center Road.

There is no admission charge, but those interested are advised to arrive early since seating in the school auditorium will be limited.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE, 41550 E. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, will present a musical group known as Bridge at 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22.

The group, consisting of 15 young adults, features both vocal and instrumental gospel music. It records on the Impact Label with the Benson Company of Nashville.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia, will present a gospel song night featuring Debbie Parrott of Louisville at 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22.

The musical service also will be highlighted by renditions by the Stamps Baxter Quartet and the church's youth and chancel choirs. Dr. Jerry Smith will direct the choir singing.

The congregation will be given a chance to join in traditional gospel choruses. The public is invited.

UNIVERSALIST-UNITARIAN CHURCH OF FARMINGTON, 25301 Halstead, will present a program titled "Election '78: the Year of the Tax Rebellion," at 10 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 22.

The program will include dissenting views on the Tisch, Headlee and Voucher amendments, with discussion and coffee following the presentation.

GAYLIN WINTER

Hosanna Tabor has new teacher

Gaylin Winter, a graduate of Concordia College in Ann Arbor and Concordia Teacher's College in Nebraska, is the new second grade teacher for Hosanna Tabor Lutheran School in Redford Township.

Mrs. Winter, whose husband, Tim, teaches fourth grade at the same school, will work with girls' sports and assist with the congregation's youth program in addition to her responsibilities as second grade teacher.

Public relations men will lead seminar

Four men prominent in public relations will discuss the potential of successful public relations with more than 50 area residents and students at a Saturday seminar session at Madonna College in Livonia.

Covering the broad spectrum of PR and its role in a successful business venture will be: Michael Blombach of Troy, public affairs director of the Metro Region of Consumers Power Co.; Wayne Klein of Bloomfield Hills, owner and president of Wayne Klein Communications; Mike Nieman of Farmington Hills, information office for Oakland County; and Ted Sedalko, assistant director of advertising and creative services for Channel 2 (WJBK).

The four professionals bring to the discussions a varied PR background, having come to their current positions by different routes.

Blombach, a graduate of Indiana University, comes from a background of sales, marketing, and advertising for an electric utility company in Indiana prior to joining Consumers Power.

Wayne Klein Communications of Bloomfield Hills is strongly involved in political campaigns, as well as small manufactureres, foods and other consumer-oriented products. Klein, a graduate of the University of Detroit, worked for United Press International, the Detroit News, and as a war correspondent during the Korean War.

Nieman was a Grand Rapids Press reporter covering state and local government and western Michigan correspondent for the New York Times prior to becoming Oakland County Information Officer. A graduate of the University of Detroit, Nieman has also served as press representative for Detroit Edison.

Sedalko had six years' experience with WXYZ prior to joining Channel 2 in 1976 as program coordinator. He received his degree in mass communications from Wayne State University.

The seminar, covering all aspects of public relations management, will include a Friday evening session, from 6-10 p.m., as well as a full day on Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., including the panel discussion with the four experts, and a question and answer period.

Interfaith dialogue views origins

DR. SAMUEL SANDMEL

Dr. Samuel Sandmel, professor of Bible and Hellenistic literature at Oxford University, will be guest speaker for an interfaith dialogue at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 24, in North Congregational Church, 26275 Northwestern, Southfield.

"Judaism and Christian Beginnings" is the title of the program to be sponsored jointly by the Detroit chapter of the American Jewish Committee, the Detroit Archdiocese division of ecumenical and interreligious affairs, and North Church.

Three Detroit-area clergymen will serve as respondents for the ideas to be set forth by the specialist in New Testament and Judaism.

They are the Rev. Alex Brunett, pastor of St. Aidan Catholic Church of Livonia and director of the Archdiocese Office of Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs; the Rev. Robert H. Whitaker, director of the school of theology for the Episcopal diocese of Michigan; and the Rev. Paul H. Young Jr, pastor of the host church.

The public is invited; there is no charge. Religious education personnel and teachers especially are encouraged to attend the event.

Dr. Sandmel will present ideas on Judaism and Christian beginnings beginnings, based on his book on that subject published by Oxford University Press this year.

He holds that the genesis and development of Christian community life and thought took place in Jewish environment, but that subsequent alienation between synagogue and church led to attitudes and actions that were anti-Semetic.

The purpose of the dialogue, according to its sponsors, is to explore the dissension that developed and to understand the origins of Christianity and its Jewish roots.

Fr. Brunett and Marge Alpern, Bloomfield Hills resident and a member of the AJC national commission on Interreligious Affairs, are serving as co-chairmen for the event.

Shearing concert benefits Sacred Heart

A luncheon with George Shearing at 11:30 a.m., Monday, Nov. 6, in the Raleigh House in Southfield, will benefit the Academy of the Sacred Heart in Bloomfield Hills.

Mrs. A. John Helganz is general chairman of the 22nd annual event, which includes a social hour, luncheon at 12:30 and entertainment by the famed pianist. The event is open to the public.

The Academy of the Sacred Heart is an independent college preparatory day school for girls from pre-kindergarten through 12th grade. It also enrolls boys in pre-kindergarten through grade one. Located at 1250 Kensington, Bloomfield Hills, it has an enrollment of 442.

Operated by the Religious of the Sacred Heart, the Academy educates students of all faiths and socio-economic backgrounds from the metropolitan Detroit area.

Financial aid, based on academic acceptance and need is available upon request. The annual fall celebrity luncheon enables Sacred Heart to continue this assistance. Tickets, priced at $15, are available by calling the academy, 646-8900.

Shearing, born congenitally blind into a family of nine children in London, has become known internationally.

His only formal musical education was four years of study at the Lindon Lodge School for the Blind. Through performing with an all blind band in the 1930, he developed a friendship with the noted jazz critic, Leonard Feather, and landed a recording contract with Decca.

In 1947 he moved to America where he commanded national attention and penned his famous "Lullaby of Birdland," in 1952.

Since late 1974, he has played more than 300 concerts in 300 cities across the country, a large number of them with symphony orchestras.

Hix, a folk-rock musician, will perform two concerts at Clarenceville High School's Schmidt Auditorium and will record a live album during the concerts.

A resident of Livonia for most of his life, Hix has played the guitar and sung professionally for four years.

Describing his work as "Neil-Diamond-type music," the Franklin High School graduate says he has been singing all his life and has played the guitar since he was 7.

"I played a lot of benefits," he explained. "I appeared at Spree each year, at the art fairs and at the different schools.

"As a matter of fact, that's the way I got my first job. I was hired by the Dino's across the street from school. Then things started clicking.

"But, I do try to get back to Franklin each year for a benefit performance," he added. "And donate the proceeds to the school's music department."

AFTER LEAVING Dino's, Hix began playing clubs on the east and west sides of Detroit including the Leather Bottle Inn, Mountain Jack's and Win Schuler's.

"But, this concert will be the biggest thing I have done yet," he said. "We will cut a live album from it and hope to distribute it in the Detroit area."

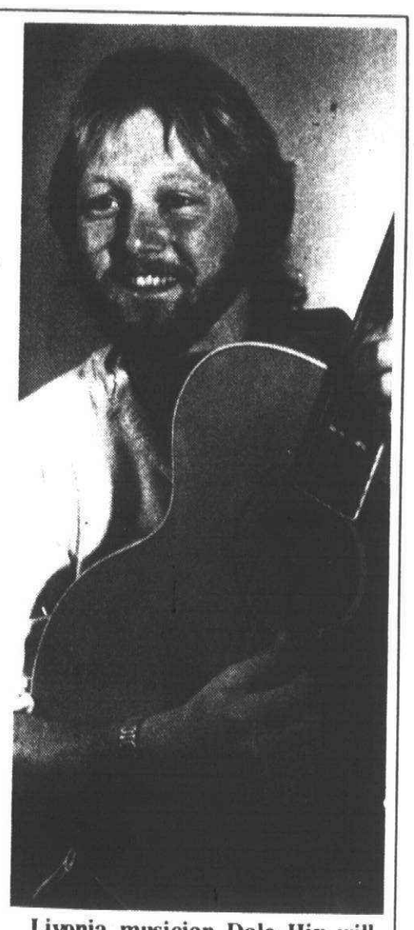

He hopes to see nearly 1,000 persons at each concert Sunday. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Clarenceville High is on Middlebelt just south of Eight Mile.

With a 10-piece orchestra backing him, Hix said he will sing several original songs including "Just Once More" and "Lonely Roads."

"I'll also do some of the Neil Diamond songs like 'Sweet Caroline' and 'I Believe in Music.' "

Some tickets are still available for the 4 and 7 p.m. shows on Sunday. They may be purchased at the door or by calling the Hix home at 427-8647.

Following the concert, he will start a month-long appearance at Win Schuler's in West Bloomfield.

Livonia musician Dale Hix will play the guitar and sing at two concerts at Clarenceville High School on Sunday.

Civic orchestra starts season

The newly formed Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra will give its first performance on Monday Oct. 23 at 8 p.m. in Ford Auditorium.

Concertgoers will receive a bonus in the form of two conductors. Detroit Symphony Orchestra Assistant Conductor Kenneth Jean, the civic orchestra's primary conductor, will share the program with Martin Fischer-Dieskau, the symphony's new conducting fellow for 1978-79. In subsequent concerts, the civic orchestra will feature three conductors for each performance with the addition of civic orchestra administrator Raymond Turner, who is also principal trombone of the Detroit Symphony.

The program for Monday evening will include Berlioz's "Roman Carnival Overture," Haydn's Symphony No. 77, and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6 ("Pathetique").

The concert will launch the civic orchestra's Monday evening series. A total of 12 performances, including five orchestral concerts, six chamber music concerts and a concerto competition between the Detroit Symphony and the civic orchestra, make up the full series. General admission tickets for the initial concert are available at the Ford Auditorium box office at $3.

Tickets for future performances at Ford Auditorium will be sold on a reserved seat basis, at $5, with general admission tickets, at $3, sold on concert nights at the box office.

The Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra, sponsored by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra with the support of major funding from the J.L. Hudson Co., is a training orchestra, based in part on the Youth Orchestra established in 1970.

Geared for young pre-professional musicians, the newly formed orchestra was established to provide these musicians with rigorous and realistic professional training. Membership is dependent upon ability, with no age restrictions. Candidates must win their position by audition and those of post-college age must be actively pursuing a career in symphonic performance.

Kostelanetz with DSO

Conductor Andre Kostelanetz will appear with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on Sunday at Ford Auditorium in a 3:30 p.m. Kresge Family Concert.

The program will include the overture to Rossini's opera "The Italian Girl in Algiers." Puccini's "Crisantemi," selections from Prokofiev's orchestration of "Romeo and Juliet," selections from De Falla's "El Amor Brujo," the Detroit premiere of Villa-Lobo's Song of the Black Swan, and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Capriccio Espangnole."

Historical museum marks 50th

The Detroit Historical Museum is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. It is marking the occasion with an exhibit, "The Detroit Historical Museum, 1928—1978."

The anniversary year will include a series of events and programs starting with a 1920s party on Saturday, Nov. 11, at the Radisson-Cadillac Hotel.

The exhibit traces the development of the institution from its early years through the time spent on the campus of Wayne State University to the present structure built in 1951 in the heart of the Cultural Center.

Photographs, documents and artifacts corresponding to each decade form the heart of the show. Of particular interest is a display of three artifacts which were first exhibited in the museum 50 years ago—a fireplace from the home of Antoine Beaubein, a table once used by Washington Irving and a small organ used in Clay School nearly 100 years ago.

Other artifacts on display include items from a collection of lighting apparatus donated to the museum in the 1930s by its first director, Arthur S. Hampton, and a silver tea service (acquired by the museum in the 1940s) made in Russia in the 1880s for Detroiter George VanNess Lothrup, who was the American Ambassador to the Court of the Czars.

The exhibit also has a Tiffany glass desk set from the 1890s which was given to the museum in the 1950s and a locomotive from the Alfred Glancy family and wooden tools acquired in the 1960s.

Club 28, the Prohibition era speakeasy, will be created by the museum's staff in the Radisson-Cadillac Hotel downtown.

The evening will feature music by the McKinney Cotton Pickers, 1920s dance demonstrations, a light supper, and beverages served in coffee cups. The cost of the evening, including valet parking, is $25 per person. Reservations must be made by Oct. 31. More information is available from the Detroit Historical Society, 833-7934.

"The Detroit Historical Museum, 1928—1978" will be on display at the museum until next April. Located in the Cultural Center at Woodward and W. Kirby, the museum is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday; 1-9 p.m. on and 1-5 p.m. on Sunday. For more information, call 833-1805.

Bern String Quartet to give classes

The Wayne State University department of music in cooperation with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will present the Bern String Quartet in a series of master classes Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 6, 7 and 8 and Monday Nov. 13, in the WSU Music Building.

The classes are being offered as part of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Schubert and Vienna Festival being held Nov. 2-15. Observing the 150th anniversary of the death of Franz Peter Schubert, the festival ranks as one of the world's most outstanding music tributes to the composer.

Members of the internationally-recognized quartet from Bern, Switzerland, will provide a critical analysis of student performances of several works, including compositions by Schubert, Mozart, Brahms, Hindemith and Webern.

Admission to the master classes is free, but advanced registration is required. Deadline for registering is Monday, Oct. 30. Further information may be obtained from the WSU department of music, Phone: 577-1795.

Party celebrates bookstore

A disco dance and dinner will be held Sunday to celebrate the third birthday for Hershelf, Detroit's only feminist bookstore.

The celebration will be held at the Casbah Lounge, 14701 Plymouth in Detroit. A Mexican dinner will be served 7-9 p.m. A cash bar will be available. The disco will continue until midnight.

Tickets are available at the bookstore, 2 Highland in Highland Park, which is open 2-7 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and noon to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Quintet to play

The Pastiche Woodwind Quintet, the resident quintet of the Detroit Community Music School, will present a concert at 1 p.m. Monday, Oct. 23, at Mercy College of Detroit, 8200 W. Outer Drive at Southfield.

The quintet performs many concerts in Detroit and surrounding area and will be on tour in Europe in November. The concert is free and open to all.

Booth house open Sunday

The English manor home of Cranbrook founders George and Ellen Scripps Booth will be open to the public 1-3 p.m. Sunday.

Surrounded by spacious grounds and the institutions of the Cranbrook Educational Community, the house is filled with antiques, tapestries and works of art.

Theater guild scores a hit

By BETTY MASSON
Special Writer

Scientists have been conducting tests to prove that laughter really is good for what ails you. If that's true, then people were a lot healthier when they left the little theater on Beech-Daly just south of Five Mile, Friday night.

The laughs came fast, furiously and heartily, at the Livonia-Redford Theater Guild's opening night performance of "An Almost Perfect Person," a two-act comedy by Judith Ross.

Mix sex and politics, throw in a dash of women's lib and a pinch of religion, and you're bound to have some laughter. Add some intelligent comedy writing (witty, but not obscene or offensive) and you have something that's worth going out for.

It is certainly funnier than most of the lines television has to offer. If you like "Soap," you will like the LRTG production.

MARY ELLEN Tindall of Plymouth is perfectly believable as Irene Porter, a New York widow who has just been defeated in her race for a seat in Congress.

Doug Kerr of Plymouth portrays Dan Connally, her professional campaign manager and comforter in defeat. He's also responsible for her being $75,000 in debt.

Review

Vestus John Spindler III seemed most at home in the comedy part. He played Jerry Leeds, whose wife, a women's lib "convert," was so busy studying sociology she did not have time for him. Irene conforted him when he complained that nobody "senses the sex life of a CPA."

Irene had always been liberated. Her father, a judge, taught her that when someone says "No," you should rephrase the question.

IRENE'S POLITICS are appealing. She worries about a government that "spends more on welfare than it does on teaching children to read."

But don't expect the play to solve any problems— of sex or politics. It doesn't, but then it doesn't create any either.

"An Almost Perfect Person" will be presented every Firday and Saturday evening throughout October at the playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., and there will be a matinee on Sunday, Oct. 22, at 2 p.m. For reservations, call 422-4766.

In addition to this presentation, the LRTG is in rehearsals for the musical "I Do, I Do," which will open right after Thanksgiving, on Nov. 24. The group's winter production will be "Equus."

Colorful concert in Plymouth

By BETTY MASSON
Special Writer

While nature painted a glorious symphony of color outside, the Plymouth Symphony initiated its 33rd season with a symphony of sound inside on Sunday afternoon.

Like nature, the program presented a stunning display of contrasts, the golden sophistication of Poulenc set against the somber wintery black and white of Moussorgsky.

It was a remarkably satisfying way to begin the season. We left with the notes of "Old Man River," sung by William Warfield ringing in our ears. Yes, Warfield did present this old favorite as an encore, amid cheering and a standing ovation from the crowd of more than 900 persons.

WE ARE ALL familiar with Warfield's singing talents ("Old Man River" still brings a tear to the eye and a shiver to the spine), but his rendition of the three scenes from "Boris Godounov," the Monologue, Hallucination Scene and Death Scene, gave us an opportunity to see his equally fine dramatic talent.

His hands and eyes are as expressive as his voice. And "Boris" was an excellent vehicle, since Moussorgsky himself was most interested in exploring feelings and emotions.

Beneath the contrasts, there was a unity of programming which was most interesting. Moussorgsky based many of his works ("A Night on Bald Mountain," for instance, on Russian folk songs and stories, although "Boris" itself was high drama and high tragedy.

Then, in the second half of the program came the American folk songs and stories. "Old American Folk Songs," by Copland, and "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "I Got Plenty o' Nuttin," by Gershwin.

And in their day, all three composers were much criticized.

FOR CONTRAST came the polished and urbane Sinfonietta, written by the French composer Poulenc in 1947. While his music wasn't criticized as were the works of the other three, he was innovative trying to combine the traditional and the modern, the popular and the classical.

But it might have been better to have started the concert with more vivacity. The suite from "Water Music" by Handel was smooth and pretty, but it did not suit the autumnal mood. Frankly with the chill in the air, the thought of cruising down the Thames seemed a cold proposition. Or as a friend remarked, "You shouldn't start a concert with music that puts you to sleep."

Somehow it seemed like an afternoon to begin a concert with sounds that eddied like leaves in a gust of autumn wind.

The next program will be presented at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 19, once again in Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium. It will feature Ross Harbaugh, cellist.

Free music

• Redford symphony Sunday

Music from a variety of composers will open the new season for the Redford Civic Symphony at 3 p.m. Sunday in the auditorium of Redford Union High School, 17711 Kinloch.

Soprano Suzanne Wernette will sing with the orchestra in selections from Strauss' "Die Fledermaus," Puccini's "La Boheme" and "The King of Thule," and "The Jewell Song" from Gounod's "Faust."

Mrs. Wernette is currently singing with the Kenneth Jewell Chorale and is a professional member of the Kirk in the Hills Choir. She has performed as soloist with the London Pro Musica Choir and, more recently, with the Columbus, Ohio, Symphony.

The orchestra will also perform Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, the hymn and triumphal march from Verdi's opera "Aida" and sections of Strauss' comic opera "The Gypsy Baron."

• Chamber music Monday night

Trios by Beethoven and Dvorak will highlight a performance by the Detroit Philomusica Trio Monday, Oct. 23, at 8 p.m. at Fair Lane Conference Center, located on The University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Thomas Kuras, pianist, is director of Detroit Philomusica Chorus and Orchestra. He is director and organist at St. Joseph's Church in Detroit and has performed nationally as an organist.

Violinist Camille Ameriguan is new to the trio this year. She is a graduate of U-M school of music.

At Redford Theatre

Musicals return to screen

The presentation of the film, "My Fair Lady," on Oct. 20, 21, and a matinee on Oct. 22, will mark the beginning of a series of movie musicals to be presented at The Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser at Grand River, in Detroit.

The series will be presented by the Motor City Theatre Organ Society, Inc., which owns the theater.

The films and dates of the series are as follows: "My Fair Lady," on Oct. 20, 21, 22 (matinee); "Camelot," Nov. 3, 4, 5 (matinee); "South Pacific," Nov. 17, 18; "Oklahoma," Dec. 1, 2; "Scrooge," Dec. 15, 16; "Cabaret," Dec. 29, 30; "Finian's Rainbow," Jan. 12, 13; and "Music Man," Jan 26, 27. All regular performances begin at 8 p.m.; the two matinees begin at 1 p.m.

Before each performance, an organ overture will be played by an area organist on the Redford Theatre's vintage-1928 Barton Theatre Pipe Organ. Organ overtures begin a half hour before the performance.

A ticket order form may be obtained by writing to the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser, Detroit 48219.

MOST OF THE FILMS in the series will be presented in 70mm and 6-channel stereo.

Few theaters are able to show these prints, however, as they lack the necessary equipment.

The Redford Theatre recently finished the installation of 70 mm projectors and 6-channel stereo sound equipment which was rescued by members of the Motor City Theatre Organ Society when Detroit's last Cinerama movie house, The Summit, fell to the wrecker's ball earlier this year.

The Motor City Theatre Organ Society, Inc., is a nonprofit, tax-exempt club, a group of more than 400-area residents who are dedicated to the preservation of the theater pipe organ and the fostering of its music.

Marlene Nehlsen, as herself and as Scorpiona. "I'm all set," she says.

Steps to the stars

Will new dance catapult her to the big time?

By DENNIS ROSENBLUM

The planets have all taken their places. The people are learning the steps. The book, the movie, the costumes and the record are in the works.

All systems are go.

It's T minus about a month and counting for Scorpiona, a dance teacher from Southfield who is convinced that the latest thing since disco fever, jiggly TV shows and sliced bread will be The Pump, a dance with a whole lifestyle underfoot.

THE OFFICIAL unveiling of her new gyration is scheduled for the middle of November and, so far at least, she is confident of a successful blast off into the big time.

"Big things don't happen overnight," she says. "There's an old saying that if the stars aren't right one year, you just keep on trying."

And the time has come.

"I have the support of four planets and an ascendant," she explains. "And the good luck planet is going through my house of publishing."

So, with the support of the heavenly bodies, she is setting out to take us all back to the good old days in Egypt.

She says we're ripe for a resurgence of interest in ancient Egypt. The book will explain it all, including the secrets of Cleopatra and Egyptian beliefs in nude sleeping for ridding the body of poisons, among other delights.

With modern Egypt in the forefront of the news with the peace talks these days, and with presidential assistants reportedly making cracks about the pyramids, well, maybe there's something to it.

The rock group Grateful Dead last month gave three outdoor concerts in Egypt, including one at the base of the Great Pyramid using the tomb of Cheops for an echo chamber.

MS. NEHLSEN, meanwhile, has no worries about the shifting sands of fate or any other such matters.

She's been inviting dancers to a series of Monday night practice sessions for the past few weeks. The book at least has a real outline, an artist has prepared sketches of a proposed line of clothes, and she says a film of the dancers will be made next month to show to the bigwigs in New York.

Ms. Nehlsen just celebrated her 32nd birthday but says she "still feels in touch with the younger folks."

Her winding road to the edge of the big time started a few years ago when she quit a dull secretarial job at Ford and became a belly dancer ("I decided to get more of a challenge," she says). She eventually opened a downriver dance studio and worked in a dieting plan with dancing for people to lose weight.

AND THEN she discovered ancient Egypt.

She says there are many similarities between the cultures of old Egypt and modern America—the influx of drugs, a family life that keeps women at home while men deal with other women on the side, and an interest in magic and the supernatural.

The hieroglyphics are on the wall, she figures, for us to take it up with a passion.

"This trend was predicted by a medium astrologically," she says. "I'm all set."

The open dance sessions, which started at a club in Westland, are now being held 8 p.m. Mondays at Mickey's Back Door on Michigan Avenue, a mile west of Telegraph, in Dearborn. Everyone is invited.

The Pump—the dance, that is—has been described as a combination of belly dancing, disco and slinky Egyptian body movements.

"I WANT THE average John Doe. We want to show that anybody who likes to dance can do it," Ms. Nehlsen said.

Average Jane Does are also welcome. In fact, the dance steps are different for men and women. "The man maintains rigid arm movements. The women get slinky," she explains.

But one must ask, amid her furious scurrying about, doesn't she ever get frustrated and think it's all useless? Doesn't she ever, if just for a moment, think life would be easier if she'd remained a secretary at Ford?

"Are you kidding?" she says.

Determination. Is it enough to succeed?

Will this planned blastoff to stardom work, or will the project sink into obscurity? Will she go down in history with John Travolta, or with Tiny Tim?

"I can see spirits; I have that vision," she says.

Quintet in Plymouth

The Renaissance Wind Quintet, which performs music from Bach to ragtime, will open the new Cafe Concert Series on Sunday afternoon at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, Five Mile and Northville Road. The series, scheduled for each Sunday at noon and 1:30 p.m., includes music, an original art exhibit and a light French meal. This week's art is a collection of works by printmaker Mathias Muleme. Reserved tickets at $5.50 include the meal; a limited number of unreserved tickets for the music and a glass of wine, Perrier water or coffee are available at the door for $3.75. For reservations or more information, call 420-2940.

Ars Musica to perform Bach

Johann Sebastian Bach's Orchestral Suite No. 1 will be the featured work in the Sunday, Oct. 22 concert to be performed by the Ars Musica baroque orchestra at 3 p.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts Recital Hall.

The concert will be the first in a series of three performances-Oct. 22, Jan. 14, April 1-which include all four orchestral suites of Bach played on 18th century instruments.

Tickets at $12 for the three-concert series are available at the Art Institute ticket office-832-2730. Single tickets remaining are $6.

Now in its ninth year, Ars Musica is a 12-piece orchestra which performs on 18th century instruments-three-key oboe, four— key bassoon, one-key flute, recorder, harpsichord, baroque violin, baroque viola, baroque cello and violone.

The performances by Ars Musica will mark the first time in the United States that the complete Bach Orchestral Suites will have been performed on baroque instruments.

Also included on the programs will be music of Handel, Telemann, Vivaldi, Purcell and Biber.

Cantata academy opens season

The Cantata Academy of Metropolitan Detroit will be presenting its first concert of the new season on Sunday Oct. 22 at Orchestra Hall.

The cantata academy is a 40 voice chorus of selected singers from the Metropolitan Detroit area. All are trained musicians, many are soloists as well. The group was organized in 1961 for the purpose of exploring the vast supply of choral chamber music written in this century—at that time largely unheard in the Detroit area.

Under Frederick Bellinger, music director and conductor since 1971, the choir has been increased to its present size, enabling it to perform larger choral works as w well. Its repertoire ranges from oratorio to musicals, from medieval church liturgy to negro spirituals.

A few weeks ago the choir returned from its fourth concert tour of West Germany, singing for three weeks in cities from Frankfurt north to the border of Denmark.

On Oct. 22, the group will perform music of Alessandro Scarlatti, Szamotul Waclaw, Charles Stanford, Antonio Vivaldi and Geroge Frederic Handel.

Accompaning the cantata academy will be the Laudenslager Chamber Orchestra.

Tickets are $5 general admission and $3.50 students and senior citizens. They may be purchased at the Hudson's ticket office, Orchestra Hall box office or by calling 528-1331.

Second City troup slated

The comedy group Second City will appear at the Black Sheep Repertory Theatre Thursday, Oct. 19, through Sunday.

This troupe of performers has launched the careers of many popular comedians. Alan Arkin, Fred Willard, Burns and Shriver and most of the "Saturday Night Live" cast have appeared in Second City.

Shows are at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 8:15 and 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 4 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are available by calling 428-9280 or 428-9287.

The Black Sheep Repertory Theatre is located at 138 E. Main in Manchester, off of M-52 in Washtenaw County.

Working Women: Where they are...

The news isn't that women work. Women have always worked. The news is that women have taken the initiative, have stepped forward and firmly grasped a position in the marketplace. Contained herein are some of these women's stories—their struggles, frustrations, hopes and dreams—But most importantly, their triumphs.

...Where they're going

Realtor reveals success formula

Belief in work ethic aids career

By BETTY MASSON

When Nada Ilich talks to someone interested in a career in real estate, her first questions are:

"Do you like hard work and long hours?"

"Do you like people?"

Hard work and caring about people have made Mrs. Ilich Century 21's top real estate salesperson in Michigan, and, she believes, No. 3 in the United States.

Last year, her sales amounted to $5.8 million. "My goal for 1978 is much higher," she said.

The office opened in December 1976 with a sales force of one. It now has 16, and was the company's top producer in the state for 1977.

"I want everybody here to be a million-dollar producer," said Mrs. Ilich. "And they will be."

Mrs. Ilich was introduced early to hard work and long hours. When she was 12, she started helping out in her father's bakery and delicatessen in the small mining town of Noranda, Quebec. The store was open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week.

Today, Mrs. Ilich is not disturbed if anxious home buyers telephone her in the middle of the night about potential investments.

'When you commit yourself to what your're going to do, you either do it well or you don't do it at all.'

-Real estate saleswoman Nada Ilich

"When people are making the largest investment of their lives, it's natural for them not to sleep," she said. "They should be excited. They should worry a little bit."

She studied at business college for two years, came to Detroit to visit relatives and met and married Sammy Ilich. The two operated stores in Detroit, including a bakery and a paint and home products store.

Customers told Mrs. Ilich she would do well in real estate, and 13 years ago she began work with Hartford in Redford Township. She did well from the beginning, and real estate became a full-time job after Sammy's death seven years ago.

Today, Mrs. Ilich regularly brings home awards for salesmanship. Her method is simple. She does it by working 8 to 12 hours a day, seven days a week. Although she is interested in hiking, swimming and tennis and used to go dancing, work is her chief interest and concern.

"When you commit yourself to what you're going to do, you either do it well or you don't do it at all," she said.

Except for short visits to her relatives in Canada, she is reluctant to take vacations other than traveling to attend real estate conferences and conventions. For each of these, she hopes to come home with at least 20 ideas she can put to work.

"My clients have hired me to work for them. Most of my clients would like me to present the offers. I should be present, I always am, at closings," Mrs. Ilich said.

Last year, she attended 159 closings. She also goes over the papers with her clients, if possible, the day before, so they know exactly what the financial picture will be.

Along with her dedication to work, Mrs. Ilich is scrupulous about starting her week with attendance at church early each Sunday morning.

"When I miss, I'm not comfortable at all," she said.

She hates to "miss" anything.

"I love to be on time, I'm always punctual," she said. "When I say I'll be there, you can be sure I will be there—unless I'm dead."

Mrs. Ilich recognizes the importance of organizing her time. When asked how she accomplishes so much, she replied, "I often wonder myself. I write things down and I have a good memory. But you have to be organized within yourself, more so than on paper."

If organization seems to come easily to here, it may be because she believes it is important to set priorities, to recognize the most important things to be done— and to do them.

"Don't put off problems until tomorrow," she said. "Do them now and get them out of the way."

Why is she working so hard?

"Because I enjoy my work so very much, and because I enjoy people so very much."

Nada Ilich is constantly on the go. Hard work and caring about people have made her Century 21's top real estate salesperson in Michigan. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Business sings profitable tune

By MARIE McGEE

Harmony is a Max Davey trademark—publicly and privately.

Much of it is obvious when the 35-voice Max Davey Singers perform in two major concerts each year plus innumerable hymn shows in churches throughout the metropolitan Detroit area.

Less obvious, but still a big factor in the harmonious arrangement is the work carried on behind-the-scenes by Davey's wife, Margaret.

A gutsy approach to show business and her business acumen have contributed as much to the success of the popular singing group as her husband's talent as a conductor/arranger.

It's a blend of talents that has endured 20 years of ups and downs in the precarious world of show business and prompted a minister-friend to observe: Max has the talent and Margaret has the vision.

It all began when the Farmington Hills couple gathered a group of about 16 singers and began singing at various churches. She helped out then by playing the piano.

But as the group got more popular came the decision to put on a major show.

"It was easier to let everyone come to us, instead of us going to them," she said.

By this time, her meager piano talents were no longer adequate to serve the group's needs, so she stepped aside.

But rather than bow out of the picture completely, she moved into the business end of the organization

FRIEDA JOSSENS

Nurse rewarded by labor duties

By SHERRY KAHAN

The Occupation health field is expanding and so are the jobs, says nurse Frieda Jossens.

Speaking at a recent career conference at Madonna College in Livonia, she urged the young women in the audience to consider becoming an occupational health nurse.

"If a girl is looking for an interesting job, this is it," she stated. "It is sophisticated and diversified work. It is fascinating to be in industry. You have freedom to make your own nursing diagnosis and to be responsible for what goes on."

For the most, part nurses who work in factories such as the Fruehauf Corp., which employs Mrs. Jossens, deal with cuts and bruises. In the case of a broken leg or arm they do basic first aid and send the injured person to the hospital.

They also take pre-employment X-rays, EKGs and do eye, ear and pulmonary function tests.

"We also go out into the plant and check masks used by the workers involved with volatile gas," she added. "We make sure the proper apparel is availablein areas where chemicals are used.

"We admonish people to wear safety glasses and ear plugs. We have a hearing conservation program. We have to know about job requirements so that employes can be matched with jobs they are physically capable of handling.

"We do alcoholism and drug counseling and make referrals," she continued, adding that an occupational health nurse must know much more than medical subjects.

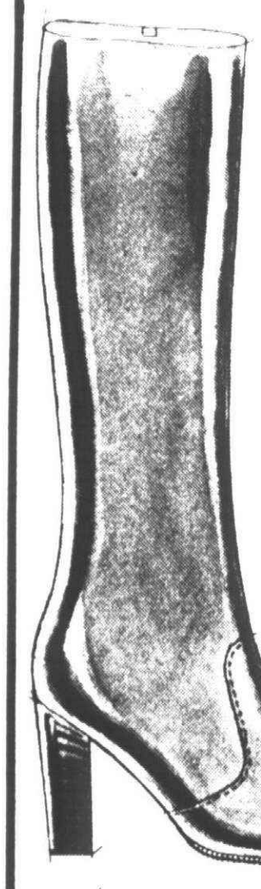

"We have to know civil law, workers' compensation law and industrial law," she noted. "We must know something about business and management. We do a great deal of paper work, ordering of supplies and budgeting."

As federal legislation such as the Occupational Safety and Health Act is implemented in the nation's industry, the opportunities for jobs continues to grow. At present there are about 1,500 certified occupational nurses in the U.S. and Canada, and as Mrs. Jossens puts it, "We do everything."

A prerequiste for becoming an occupational health nurse is a registered nurse's license. Candidates with a nursing degree are preferred. Mrs. Jossens suggested two to three years of experience in hospital medical, surgical and emergency departments as well.

She also advised that a first job in industry be with a firm that employs several nurses. "There is an awful lot to learn, and learning by yourselves is not the best way," she observed.

To become certified as an occuaptional health nurse, 60 extra hours of education are needed before the nurse takes the certification board examinations.

Affirmative action paves 'pioneers' trail

By ARLENE VANDERLEUN

They don't travel in covered wagons or cook over a fireplace. But they are pioneers just the same—blazing a trail for the women who follow in their footsteps.

They are women—few in number now, but growing—who have jobs previously reserved for men. In recent years, the women's liberation movement and affirmative action have nudged women into job territories once inhabited by men only. . .corporate boardrooms, city council chambers. . .hard-hat construction sites and the skilled trades.

Although they come from widely different backgrounds and fields, these "pioneers" have some commonly held personality traits and characteristics:

- They don't consider themselves exceptional, but simply want to do a good job.
- They usually feel they must work twice as hard as their male colleagues to be considered equals.
- Men sometimes feel uncomfortable with the women's status (and salary).
- They like their jobs and are eager for advancement.

IN BLUE COLLAR trades, much of the impetus for recruiting women comes from labor department quotas or "goals" for hiring women and minorities by companies involved in federal or federally funded projects. These companies must actively recruit women and minorities in order to qualify for federal dollars.

For instance, a recent article in the Building Tradesman, a construction union newspaper, reported that federal guidelines for apprentice programs require a 17.8 per cent female enrollment in their next round of classes. That figure represents half of the 35.6 per cent female work force in the six counties adjacent to Detroit.

A spokeswoman for the Greater Detroit Building Trades Council said the industry will have a hard time meeting those goals through normal growth and attrition. Moreover, while many women inquire about apprenticeship in one of 17 programs offered, few actually bother to sign up.

While there may be few women in the building trades, females are beginning to line up for apprenticeship classes offered by the auto industry.

Now in the second year of her four-year program, Mrs. Dotson says she loves her work.

CLAD IN baggy coveralls, safety glasses and sensible shoes, Mrs. Dotson manages to maintain her femininity with a soft voice and perfectly manicured fingernails, protected by work gloves.

Her millwright duties take her to all areas of the plant, where she repairs furnaces, adjusts conveyor belts and generally keeps the machinery humming.

It's heavy, hard work.

"Some people have said this is no job for a woman," said Mrs. Dotson. But she has heavy equipment to do most of the lifting, and tools provide strength and leverage.

Why would a woman want to be a millwright?

It was money—and the financial security it brings—that prompted Mrs. Dotson a year ago to check into the possibility of applying for an apprentice job. She was working as a plant sweeper earning $6.80 an hour.

The prospect of increasing that hourly wage to $9 after a four-year training program was tempting to a woman whose husband was totally disabled by heart attacks a few years ago.

Mrs. Dotson studied algebra and geometry in preparation for the math that would be included on a General Motors apprentice test.

She later took the test and completed an oral interview. Based on the results, she was accepted for the apprentice program. "I was elated but apprehensive," said Mrs. Dotson.

Of several skilled trades choices (truck repair, electrician, pipefitter, plumber, tinsmith, welding and others), Mrs. Dotson selected the millwright trade.

"The test is very competitive," said Ron Vranesh, a personnel supervisor at the Chevrolet plant in Livonia. Points also are given for education and related skills.

Mrs. Dotson is one of 14 apprentice millwrights and the only female in the millwright program. Currently there are seven female apprentices.

Her work week includes on-the-job training with work under the supervision of a journeyman electrician, as well as millwright theory and related job skills.

"I love my job and I love going to school," said Mrs. Dotson.

Company-paid tuition is just one of her benefits. She also is entitled to a liberal insurance and sick pay plan, as well as a tool allowance.

"Most of all, she has her coveted security. "If anything happened (at Chevrolet) I could go anywhere and get a job," said Mrs. Dotson.

She feels there isn't anything unusual about a woman reading blueprints and repairing equipment.

"Reading and using a tape measure and blueprint isn't much different from measuring and cutting a piece of cloth by a pattern," said Mrs. Dotson.

"If a woman wants to get on an apprentice program, she should be willing to do what men are doing," she continued. "I want to do a better job because I'm a woman."

Mrs. Dotson prefers working with men. "Men are easier to work with than women," she said. "They are willing to explain things. They accept me."

Labor brass challenged as women seek power

GINA SPENCER

By KAREN ANNE KOPEIKIN

Although women have, for many years, served in large numbers in Detroit-area auto plants, most agree they have been pigeonholed in low-paying, dead-end jobs.

In the last 10 years, because of increased union representation for women by women, they have begun a push into the higher-paying positions.

In the United Auto Workers, women have started to assume more powerful positions in bargaining committees and in locals. They have fought for women's rights in both high-ranking elected positions and at the grass roots level.

Gina Spencer, formerly of Livonia, now holds the vice-chairmanship of Local 174 in Redford Township. But she began her fight to get women better-paying jobs more than 12 years ago.

Local 174 works out of Livonia's Fisher Body plant, which cuts and sews interior upholstery for many General Motors cars.

The plant employs about 4,800 workers—more than two-thirds women.

"Although at least two-thirds of the people that work at Fisher Body are women," Mrs. Spencer said, "until 10 years ago, we had virtually no women to represent us in the union.

"So I became involved because of the great need for representation for women," she added.

"Men had always represented us and they usually moved up to supervisory positions. The union was just a step on a longer ladder for them.

"I had no desire to move up. I just wanted to help the women working around me who weren't getting the same oppportunities the men were," continued Mrs. Spencer, who began working at Fisher Body as an assembler 23 years ago.

Women must represent women because they know each other's special needs and problems, she added.

"So, I became involved because of the great need for representation, for women," she added.

"Men had always represented us and they usually moved up to supervisory positions," she said. "The union was just a step on a longer ladder for them.

"I had no desire to move up. I just wanted to help the women working around me who weren't getting the same opportunities the men were," continued Mrs. Spencer who began working at Fisher Body as an assembler 23 years ago.

She cited Women must represent women because then we know each other's special needs and problems, she added.

Two of the biggest problems women have always had, are a lack of strength the lack of as much strength as men, and being stuck in low-paying jobs.

"Women don't have the same strength men have," she conceded, "but, the company used that as an excuse to keep us in low-paying jobs. Then, it would turn around and make us do the same work as men without the same pay."

The Taylor resident remembered an incident that happened to her about 15 years ago.

She tried to apply for an opening as a sewing machine operator repair person, one of the higher-paying, more prestigious jobs at Fisher Body.

"They wouldn't even accept my application," she said. "They told me a woman couldn't lift a 90-pound machine head by herselt.

"They didn't say anthing at all about the fact that the men use hoists to lift those machine heads," she continued. "That was the excuse that kept me in a low-paying assembler's job."

Maybe, she said, that's what when she started looking to the union for a "fair shake."

She joined the district committee first as an alternate and later became a full-time member. A district committee is responsible for about 200-300 people in the plant. It listens to and trys to correct any problems its members may have.

For several years she slowly moved rose in union ranks until last June, when she was elected vice-chairman of the local.

Her duties require attending daily district meetings and bargaining committee meetings once a week which include representatives from both union and management.

She listens to the problems of the 300 persons she represents in the woman-dominated plant. She then must decide if a problem should be put in writing, at which point it becomes a grievance.

The grievance is then handed over to the shop committee and the local's recording secretary, who, hopefully, solve the problem.

In many ways, she feels women have begun to get "their fair share," and recalls cites fair share" at Fisher Body and cited one example.

"A job in the cutting room is one of the better jobs," she said. "Until about six years ago, there were no women in there. Now we have succeeded in getting about 20 working as cutters.

"Twenty out of 225 is not a great number but it's a heck of a lot better than before," she added. "And we're going to keep on working.

They run the show

Business women chalk up success

By SUSAN ROSIEK

Rounding up the cash to launch a business that society considers "traditionally female" can be frustrating and often impossible.

That's the word from a group of area business women who bucked the odds and withstood the financial struggle.

Westland residents Suzanne Discher and Barbara Egeler, co-owners of the Hair Hut in Garden City, were refused a loan by banks and a variety of other commercial lenders. Up against a brick wall, they finally approached friends.

"Banks didn't consider us professional enough and we couldn't even turn to our industry for help," said Ms. Discher.

"The banks said our clientele wasn't collateral for a loan and that there was too much depreciation on our equipment to qualify," added Ms. Egeler.

"We have some very generous friends who finally came through for us. We were lucky," added Ms. Discher.

The Hair Hut's present location at Ford and Brandt is its third. The women, who have been in partnership for the past 5 ½ years, started out with a four-chair salon in the Norwayne section of Westland. Business was good and they eventually expanded to a six-chair operation at Ford and Venoy. Once again they approached friends for cash.

Business got even better and the pair grew into their present quarters—a 14-chair, 22-employee "full service salon." Once again banks said "no" to a loan.

The two admit that the business is doing "exceptionlally well" but they're quick to point out the reasons—"our own hard work, education and scientific knowledge about the profession."

"We're not just hair benders. We care about our clients and take time to educate them about our services," explained Ms. Discher.

Now that the women are enjoying relative financial success, Ms. obtaining credit is still a for one partner.

"That same day I paid for a color television but was turned down for a credit card," explained Ms. Egler, who added "I plan to fight until I get that card."

The tough times have passed for another local business woman. But after a 31-year tenure as owner of Garden City Florist, Virginia Liogghio knows what its like to operate on a "shoestring."

Before they married, Mrs. Liogghio and her husband pooled their resources to purchase the florist shop. She was itching to go into business for herself.

"I had worked for a florist for two years and my boss was going to tie me down with a contract. It was the right time to get out and into my shop," explained Mrs. Liogghio.

Soon after the couple purchased the business, Mrs. Liogghio bought out her partner. They later were married.

"It was a very lean first few years," said Mrs. Liogghio. "It was right after the war, people didn't have that much money and weren't buying a lot of flowers."

In the business's first years, Mrs. Liogghio worked at another job and her husband ran the shop in order to help make ends meet.

What she didn't expect was the cold shoulder she received from most of the other male business owners in town.

"With a few exceptions, they treated me like a dog. They offered businessmen lunches and when I attended they acted like I wasn't even there," said Mrs. Liogghio.

"It took me a long time to wear them down," said Mrs. Liogghio, who is now a member of the Garden City Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

A Wesltand business woman relates a similar experience.

Leota Begin, owner of A 2 Z Rental in Westland, has been in business for the last 30 years. She started out in partnership with her husband. For the past five years she's been the "boss."

She knows her business,but it's often hard to convince male customers of her expertise.

"The problem is men don't have the same respect for a woman's opinion as they do for another man's. And they don't like being corrected when they are proven wrong," said Mrs. Begin.

Mrs. Begin describes herself as a "one-woman business."

"I rent and repair most of my own equipment, do the ordering and all the payroll. And, I still have time to play," said Mrs. Begin, who is president of the Tri-City Bowling Association.

She advocates an independent attitude for women and has passed on her beliefs to her three daughters, one of whom works at the rental business.

"I got that attitude from my mother. She had eight children and when my father died she still have five more to raise. She had to be self-supporting.

Mrs. Begin credits her father for a lot of her know-how and spunk.

"I grew up as a tomboy. My father taught me to repair motors when I was 9. I drove a tractor at age 7."

They're branching into new fields

That occupational exclusiveness may be changing, however. She senses that other females in the plant are watching to see how well she copes with her job.

In a sense, she is paving the way for other women who may follow in her footsteps.

"I think they were tickled for me when I joined the apprentice program."

FOR JANE LONG of Garden City, apprenticeship is a thing of the past. Ms. Long, 28, received her journeyman electrician's card after five years of preparation that included 7,328 hours of on-the-job training and 576 hours of classroom study.

Ms. Long is one of 41 electricians at Fisher Body in Livonia and the only woman among them.

Actually, she never intended to become an electrician. She began working at Fisher Body in 1972, after graduating from Eastern Kentucky University with a bachelor's degree in physical education.

"I was going to work just long enough to get money for a master's degree," said Ms. Long. When the opportunity to apply for the apprentice program came along, she thought she'd give it a try.

"I didn't know if I'd like it," she explained.

She liked it. "It's amazing how complex electrical work is," said Ms. Long with a laugh. "I don't think I'll ever learn everything."

Her "vibes" tell her that the men accept her more wholeheartedly than the women—who make up 60 per cent of the 4,100-employee Fisher Body workforce. Most sew upholstery and trim.

"The women act like I'm not there sometimes," said Ms. Long. "They automatically assume that a man knows more (about repairing an machine) than I do."

That's beginning to change, as people are starting to accept her.

But Ms. Long isn't resting on her laurels. She has plans.

"I'm trying to set realistic goals," said Ms. Long. Those goals include possibly pursuing a degree in safety engineering.

"With my electrical knowledge and background in health, I think safety engineering is is a good possibility."

She has advice for women who are following in her pathway.

"Never stop pursuing education, even if you don't know what you want to do," advises Ms. Long. "It's getting competitive. There are hundreds of applicants (for apprentice programs)."

WOMEN ALSO are inching up the ladder in the world of white-collar jobs.

(Staff photos by Bob Woodring)

'Federal guidelines for apprentice program require a 17.8 per cent female enrollment in their next found of classes. That figure represents half of the 35.6 per cent female work force in the six counties adjacent to Detroit. –Building Tradesman, construction newspaper

Pam Evans, 24, is controller of the 12-store Sentry Drug Stores, Inc. chain headquartered in Romulus. As controller, she supervises the bookkeeping operations, inventory control and, ultimately, the financial stability of the corporation.

Ms. Evans, now of Westland and formerly of Troy, has moved rapidly in her world of numbers, profits and losses. For the past five years she has worked full-time and carried a heavy classload at Walsh Institute of Business. Prior to joining Sentry last year, she was a bookkeeper and financial assistant.

"Working opened my eyes. I was exposed to high earnings," said Ms. Evans. "I know that I'm capable of earning money but material things aren't everything."

Her upward mobility often was tinged with pain and uncertainty.

Married at 19 to a mechanic, she found herself trying to downplay her education and ambitions for getting ahead.

"I avoided advances and promotions," said Ms. Evans. "He was supportive, but felt he was holding me back."

The two were divorced two years ago. Today she believes a marriage is "more stable to have a man earn more than the woman."

These days, she is busy overseeing the company's conversion to more sophisticated computerized inventory control and bookkeeping operations.

She also has been studying for an examination later this fall to become a certified public accountant. Later, she may go back to school and study architecture.

"I want to design my own house," said Ms. Evans.

She added that she believes women can be feminine and succeed in a business world.

"I can't see any reason to be masculine and aggressive," said Ms. Evans. "Women put in more effort, but are watched more by men."

DALE FARLAND, 24, is director of the Westland Planning Department, the first woman to hold the position in that city.

Mrs. Farland, a Northville resident, was appointed to her post a few months ago after working her way up from a planner within the department.

Ms. Farland grew up in Cleveland, the daughter of a civil engineer and city planner.

In high school, she said, she turned to her background and decided on a career similar to her father's. She studied economics and engineering at University of Michigan, and is now working on her master's degree.

She spends a lot of time working with residents and developers, as well as attending numerous public hearings and city council meetings.

"There isn't always immediate gratification in this work," said Mrs. Farland. "Input may never come to fruition."

She credits her advancement to training and a willingness to work with people to get jobs done.

"A person should be the most that he or she can be," said Mrs. Farland.

If women are entering blue collar and white collar positions, they also are beginning to wear the Roman collar of the ministry.

The Rev. Meredith Hunt of Redford Township was ordained an Episcopal priest in June 1977 after attending Swarthmore College and Episcopal Divinity School at Cambridge, Mass.

Rev. Hunt, 30, keeps busy teaching adult education prayer classes at area churches and is an alcoholism counselor.

"Working in that area (alcoholism) is part of my calling," said the Rev. Hunt.

Previously she was assigned to Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Detroit. Her husband, the Rev. David Lillvis, a native of Southfield, is rector of St. Elizabeth Church in Redford.

While she has had to work hard to gain acceptance in a "calling" previously open only to men, she says she has encountered little hostility.

"There are probably more women (priests) in this diocese (eastern Lower Peninsula) than in other areas of the country," said Rev. Hunt. "The feeling is very open."

Women who feel a strong urge to go into the ministry should be prepared to work hard and then to relax and let people accept them.

"You can't push people if they're not willing to change," she added.

Women can play a vital role in the ministry, she believes.

"Women are much more open to their feelings and responding to their own intuition (than men)," said Rev. Hunt. "Women are less inclined to set up barriers" than men, who have been conditioned to do so, she believes.

Area women are bullish on business

For the others. . ."men didn't accept us or reject us at first," said Ms. Discher. "Our business neighbors were kind. Now however, they recognize us as professional business women."

For the salon partners, their plunge into business represents a career change. Ms. Egeler had been a sales clerk and a hostess.

"My whole family is in this business and I always wanted a shop of my own. I also worked for someone else and saw the shortcomings in others businesses. I wanted a chance to change it. My whole aim was to eventually work for myself," said Ms. Egler, who now employs her daughter.

'The problem is men don't have the same respect for a woman's opinion as they do for another man's. And they don't like being corrected when they are wrong,' –Business owner Leota Begin

For Ms. Discher, owning a business meant having more time to spend with her family. She previously worked as a sales manager and spent a lot of time traveling.

"I was looking for a change because I was seldom home. At the time I had a rather young family. I wanted more time for them but I still wanted a career," said Ms. Discher.

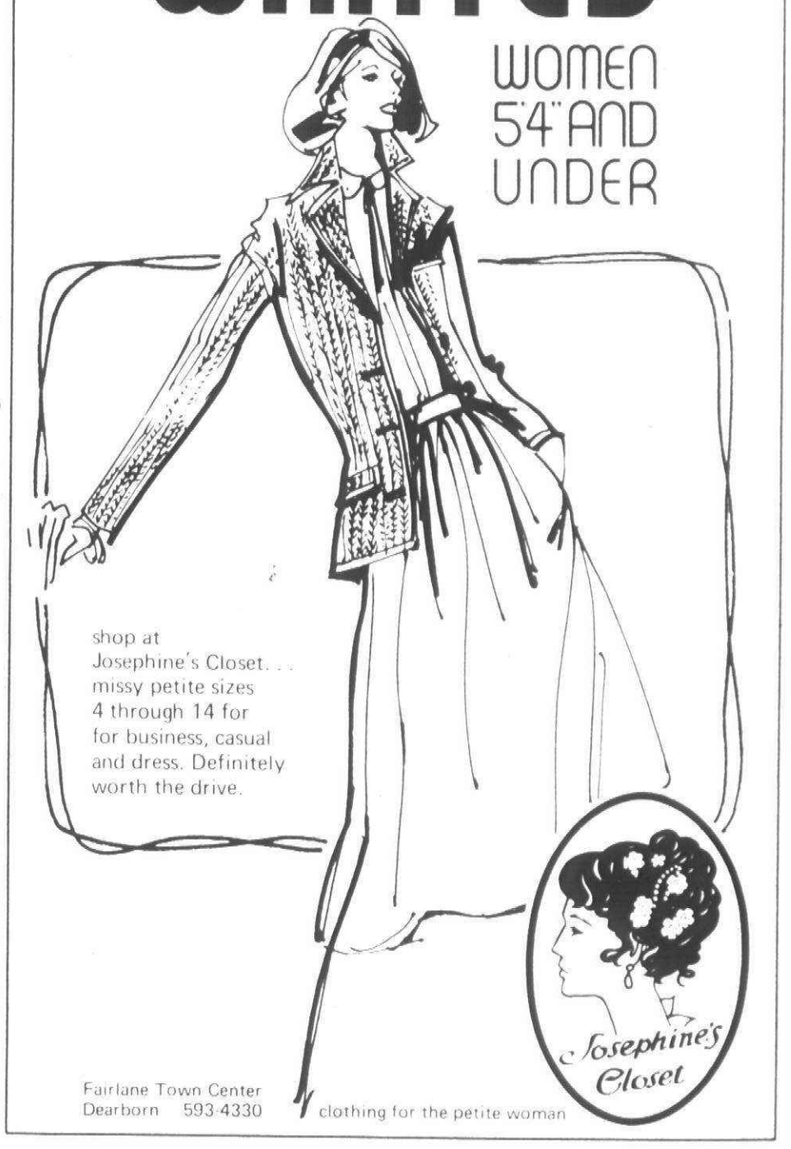

With nearly 50 years of business experience behind them, what advice do these local owners offer to others starting out?

"Don't go into business thinking you're going to make a million overnight.

"Don't go in without knowledge and experience.

Area vet clinic features wife-husband team

By SUSAN ROGERS

"I'd absolutely choose the same career again," said Mary Beth Leininger, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. "I can't imagine doing anything else."

"I wanted to be a nun until the age of about six, when I decided to be a vet," said Dr. Leininger, who owns and operates the Plymouth Veterinary Hospital along with her veterinarian husband, Steve.

She said there were always animals at home when she was growing up, and that she "dragged in strays whenever I could find them. It was just a natural progression for me to become a vet," she said.

Dr. Leininger met her husband when they were both vet students at Purdue University. Out of the class of 55, seven were women. Although a member of a minority, Dr. Leininger said she never felt openly discriminated against.

"There were those on the vet school boards that were afraid the women would go through school, then get married, have kids and never practice," she said. "No one ever discouraged us to our faces, but we all knew the situation, and worked all the harder to achieve the grades."

She indicated that in the late 1960s people were accepted into vet school solely on the basis of their grades.

"It was tough for us, but it was tough for everyone," she said. "Now students are accepted for a wide range of qualifications, and I believe this is the better way to do it."

Classes were tough, said Dr. Leininger. "We had active classes from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. everyday. The class was close-knit because we spent so much time together. There wasn't much time for any one to hassle anyone else."

'No one ever discouraged us to our faces, but we all knew the situation, and worked all the harder to achieve the grades,'
–Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, veterinarian

She said that the women were never treated differently, although men liked to tease.

"A certain group always teased us because their idea of a woman was barefoot and pregnant all the time," she said. "We were all taken seriously by everyone and some of the profs went out of their way to be considerate."

Things have changed since Dr. Leininger was in vet school. "Now it's about 50-50 as to the number of men and women in the Michigan State vet school," she said. "Because of anti-discrimination laws, more and more women are getting accepted."

Of her many jobs as a vet in a small, private practice, Dr. Leininger enjoys surgery most.

"I guess surgery's my bag," she said. "Because we're small here, Steve does the front work and I do most of the lab work and small-one-person surgery. Steve is the ears and rears man," she added laughing.

The two who work so closely together don't find that much togetherness a problem.

"We've worked the other way, and this is better for us," she said. "We spend a lot of time on each case, and we believe the animals gets the best attention this way.

"The animal gets the benefit of two thought-processes and the interaction of our ideas and thinking. Sure, we fight a little, but we have found we work best together."

Dr. Leininger indicated one of the most important qualities a vet should have is the ability to like people and be able to deal with them under various circumstances. "Dealing with people under stress is sometimes very draining," she said. "You almost have to treat the owner as well as the patient."

She said money is something she always brings up to the owner almost immediately.

"Vet costs gave almost tripled the last ten years, and the money must come out of the person's pocket, since there is no insurance. Not everyone feels the same about their pet—some just can't pay the high costs."

The most difficult part of Dr. Leininger's job, she said, is dealing with an animal who is very sick and the reason can't be pinpointed. "This is very frustrating," she said.

Dealing with death is also a challenge, according to Dr. Leininger.

"It's another case of dealing closely with people," she said. "Animals don't know anything about death, so they can't fear it like humans do. All they know is that they feel terrible."

"I think it's a great thing that I am able to offer a painless death to an animal," said the vet. "I'm glad I'm not a human doctor." She explained she and her husband don't make the decision to put an animal to sleep—they give the owner all the information they have, and let them decide.

Dr Leininger feels a person should possess certain qualities before thinking about vet school. "You should definitely be a good student," she said. "Have a deep curiosity about how things work, and be a well-rounded person. A narrow person misses so much in life."

She feels a person should try to get experience as early as possible to make sure they are making the right decisions. "Being a vet also means cleaning cages and some things that aren't so pleasant. Just loving animals isn't enough."

She explained her goals. "I don't want to treat all the animals in the world," she said. "and I don't want to live in a palace. I just want to know I have done the best job I possibly could."

Success breeds new attitudes

By PATRICIA LaCROIX

It isn't something they do just to fill up quiet afternoons. It isn't an escape from boredom, and it isn't that they are trying to find themselves.

It is their business and they alone are responsible for the making or the breaking of it.

And they are making it.

Most of them, as a matter of fact, are making it quite well, thank you. Take for example Margaret Wilson of Plymouth. She was first employed by the Penn Theater in Plymouth as a concession stand employee in 1945. This was to be a temporary job, but now, 34 years later, she is still working there—as the owner.

"There haven't been any extraordinary problems," she says. "Of course, the theater business itself has seen a lot of ups and downs."

Miss Wilson recalls when TV made its appearance, it was a nice luxury for many families. It was also death for thousands of movie theaters across country.

"But we survived that."

Her biggest problem now, she says, is finding the kinds of films that she would like to show in her establishment.

She says she is glad to see more family entertainment films being produced, adding that filmmakers "got bogged down with scoial commentaries" for too long.

"I would like to see some more musicals, though," she says.

Miss Wilson says she was one of the first women in theater management in the 1950s, but that she didn't often run into hostile men, angry that she was penetrating their business.

"If there were any problems, I just saw them as a personality conflict," she says.

LOUISE TABOR, owner of the Countryside Motel in Canton Township, says she looked through the want ads in the newspaper and found the place for sale. She was then a practical nurse, but didn't like it, she says, and was anxious to get involved in something else.

When she bought the motel, it had eight units. Now, there are 23 units.

"I get a lot of comments from men," she says. "Most of them are amazed at first to find that I have the place to myself. They just can't imagine that only women run this place.

"After it sinks in, they usually just say 'Lady, you got it made,'" she says.

With four girls in the family, Ms. Tabor says she was never raised in a male chauvinist atmosphere.

"My father always taught us that we were as good as anyone else."

It hasn't come as easily for Elinor Lowell, who owns the Barn Door antique shop on Cherry Hill Road in Canton. She first entered the business in 1965 in Northville, and moved to Canton in 1976.

"It's a rough way to make a living. I don't know anyone who works longers hours and makes less than I do." Because she lives next door to the shop, she says she often ends up eating, living and breathing antiques.

"It gets a little tiresome after a while. I haven't had a vacation in three years—there is too much work to do."

Among the things that Ms. Lowell does is research all of the pieces which come into her shop. The shop itself is historic. It was a stage coach stop between Novi and Ypsilanti in the late 1800s, then it was a general store.

Ms. Lowell says it was vacant when she opened it as antique store.

NANCY PETROCILLI is a more recent entrant in the local business world, opening her first store four years ago.

Before settling down into the plant business, though, Ms. Petrocilli says she tinkered with thoughts of opening a variety of stores, including a children's shop, a women's sporting goods store and a jewelry shop.

"I really had to push myself, though," she says. "It's always easier to do nothing."

During the four years she has owned the plant store, she has changed the location three times. It has grown with each new location. The first store was only 440 square feet. The second was 550, and the present location is 1,510—and two stories tall.

"I wasn't ready for this big a place in the beginning," she says. "I had to be more business knowledgeable and financially able."

Women fight to change business 'all-male' image

By TERESA BANAS

What does it take to be a woman in a management position?

According to several specialty shop owners, it takes a lot of self-confidence.

It also takes overlooking past prejudices and imposed stereotypes of women in high places.

Several suburban business owners say society has become more accepting of a woman's ability to operate a business.

But getting this far has meant putting aside past difficulties with clients and business associates.

One woman recalled a time when a man would walk into her shop and ask for assistance from "someone who knows something."

Another said salesmen often underestimate a woman's intelligence and try to pass off over-priced equipment.

Still another woman recalled when women just didn't question the boss. This was about 25 years ago, she said. This was a time when secretaries blindly obeyed their bosses, emptied ash trays and bought presents for the boss' wives.

SOME OF THESE women have developed businesses from hobbies, another took over her husband's business, and others decided to tkae an independent stand after working for others.

Eleanor Jennell's catering service grew out of an enjoyment in cooking and organizing large get-togethers. At one time, she and her husband belonged to a square dancing dinner club. Mrs. Jennell often took on the responsiblity of feeding as many as 150 people at an annual dinner.

She now owns the Backdoor Restaurant in Redford Township. From that base, she runs her catering service, employing as many as 20 part-time workers.

Mrs. Jennell projects a determined "I can do it" philosophy.

She said suppliers and equipment renters have shedded biases of business women in the past 10 years.

"The trend is changing," she said. "They've come to recognize that we are on the same step of the ladder.

"Women are more able to express themselves, to say 'I can combine home and a career.' It can be done."

Stressing that times are changing for business women, Mrs. Jennell recalls a time when a woman's comment was often ignored if outnumbered by men in a business situation.

"NOW THE SITUATION is easing," she said.

Frances Moore, a manufacturing business representative, who recently relinquished her ownership of Moore Furnace Co. in Livonia, started in the business by working with her husband. She eventually bought out her husband's partner's share of the company.

She says there were many problems associated with being a woman in the furnace field. Customers considered her merely the "woman in the office." Acceptance came slowly. People were unaccustomed to dealing with a woman in this area and were often shocked when they met her.

She says her best ammunition against prejudice was learning the business from the inside out.

She came into it at an opportune time. About 20 years ago, the heating and air conditioning field became highly specialized. In a sense, Mrs. Moore says, she grew up with it.

"It was a changing world and I came in on the change," she says. "I learned the business as it developed."

She developed her mechanical interest as a medical technologist and later as a lab technician. "I went from doctoring people to doctoring furnaces," she explained.

MRS. MOORE says there are more opportunities for women in the heating and air conditioning field today. Circuit board repairs is just one example of the types of work available. She also sees a time when women will become even more involved in other home repairs, such as televisions.

"If you're going into that kind of business, it must be because you truly like it—not just to say 'I'm a woman and this is a man's field,' it's childish and stupid."

Sally Esser owns two beauty schools in Livonia. At one time, she trained supermarket cashiers and then stopped working for 10 years to raise her son. Afterwards, she went to beauty school because she enjoyed working with hair and enjoyed people.

"When I was growing up, most girls became airline stewardesses, beauticians or nurses," she says.

After working in the field, she developed an interest in teaching and became an instructor. Combining the interests, she eventually opened her own beauty school.

Though she found no prejudice among male beauty school operators, salesmen sometimes became belligerent when pushing products.

"They feel they know more than you do about the product they're selling," she adds.

HER BUSINESS pursuits also include selling real estate, an interest she picked up through her patrons and students.

Referring to her rise in the hair business, she says: "In this line of work there are opportunities. If they come along, you take them."

Mae LeBaron, owner of Metro Business Centers Inc. in Livonia, has caught on to a new concept in service businesses. Her business is setting up other businesses. She supplies secretarial and office services.

An establishing company can contact her for such services as mass mailing, handling payroll and tax forms, answering telephones and furnishing an office.

She owns a building that houses her secretarial staff and contains several other offices she sublets to sales representatives of national companies.

She also supplies her business address for people who work from their home and need a mailing address.

Mrs. LeBaron agrees it's a changing time for women as managers. While raising four children, she worked as a secretary from time to time. She says attitudes have changed. Male bosses no longer expect secretaries to perform such tasks as emptying ashtrays.

However, there are a few who will "honey and dear you," she says. "They don't understand you don't like it."

Mrs. LeBaron got married when she graduated from high school. It wasn't until her children were maturing that she enrolled in college. She was interested in a teaching degree but switched to economics when she realized there were too many teachers in 1972.

She says that when she first got married a woman had three choices—to teach, to become a nurse or get married and stay home.

"I do think that women who don't use all their potential are really missing the boat," she says.

Women lead business communities

By KATHLEEN MORAN

Ruth Yount and Eileen Turner have never met.

But their philosophies of a chamber of commerce's involvement in its community are much the same.

Both women are executive directors of a chamber of commerce—Mrs. Yount in Redford Township and Mrs. Turner in Troy. Both are pioneers in their field. While more businesswomen are becoming involved in the chambers, few have made it to the top leadership spot in the community.

As full-time directors, Mrs. Yount and Mrs. Turner have responsibilities ranging from tracking legislation to answering inquiries from companies interested in moving to Redford or Troy.

Both go about the job of promoting their communities as if it were an integral part of their job descriptions.

"I'm sold on Redford Township and I'm sold on the chamber of commerce," said Mrs. Yount, who has spent nine years as executive director and nine years prior to that as an assistant.

"I like the involvement," she continued. "A chamber is involved in every facet of a community. It has a strong impact on the community without getting involved in politics. We can approach anything with objectivity and work solely for the betterment of the community."

MRS. TURNER has worked for the Troy chamber for eight years and lived in Troy for 19 years. "I've watched it grow from the cornfields to a very dynamic community. It wasn't even on the map at one time.

"It has developed so nicely. I really have a lot of pride in it."

Although many think of the chamber only as a stopping point for tourists, it takes on a much more vital role in the busy metropolitan area.

Both Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Yount enjoy keeping tabs on legislation pending in Lansing or Washington which could affect businesses at home.

Formerly active in the Oakland County Republican Party, Mrs. Turner worked for George and Lenore Romney at various times before joining the chamber.

"I guess that's why I enjoy the chamber so much," she said, noting that her work with the chamber allows her to keep closely in touch with the political scene.

"Politics plays a very important role in everyone's life, whether they realize it or not."

MRS. YOUNT notes that the chamber can have a considerable impact on pending legislation, through the local organizations as well as the state and U.S. groups.

When plans were being made to widen Five Mile in Redford, Mrs. Yount worked with the road commission and business community to keep the inconveniences to small businesses at a minimum.

In Troy, the chamber has played a role in having Rochester Road widened. Although the construction hasn't begun yet, small business owners are already anticipating a business boom once the traffic problems are resolved.

Although memberships in both the Redford and Troy chambers have grown under the leadership of Mrs. Yount and Mrs. Turner, neither will take credit for that.

"When businesses see what we do for the business and residential communities, they want to join," said Mrs. Yount, who has seen her group grow from 100 to 375 in nine years. "It's a natural thing."

The Troy chamber has grown from 78 to nearly 500 members in the last eight years but, Mrs. Turner modestly says, "It has grown significantly as the city has grown."

Mrs. Turner is now spearheading plans for a conference on Oct. 14 to encourage women to get involved in business. When she's not working on the conference, she's also organizing the annual community awards program, slated for Oct. 26, at which nearly 40 volunteers and Troy's distinguished citzen award winner will be honored.

Mrs. Yount recently finished work on her community's annual ox roast and is gearing up for participation in a national business study.

"I like the involvement," says Ruth Yount of her position as executive director of the Redford Township Chamber of Commerce. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Neither would trade her job.

"I really love people," said Mrs. Yount. "That's what I'm most grateful for—all the wonderful people I meet."

Notes Mrs. Turner, "I guess what I like about it is the variety. And I get enormous satisfaction from helping other people."

The sexual gauntlet is losing more runners

By CAROLINE PRICE

When working women get together to tell war stories, the conversation often rolls around to a subject that almost all of them have experienced to some degree.

It's called sexual harassment on the job. It can be as mild as a few lewd comments from a co-worker or as serious as the case of the boss who threatens a female employee with the loss of her job if she doesn't dispense sexual favors.

Although the problem has existed ever since men and women have worked together, sexual harassment was once just something that females had to live with. It was not considered a widespread problem.

But recent research has shown that sexual harassment of female employees happens far more often than anyone realized. A study by the Working Women United Institute revealed that 70 per cent of all women sampled had experienced sexual harassment on the job at least once.

'Sexual harassment is the silent sister of rape. There are aspects of sexual harassment that are still socially acceptable.'

–Judith Doren Birmingham attorney

Of those women, 56 per cent had experienced physical harassment and 91 per cent had been subjected to various forms of verbal harassment.

It happens to women of all ages and in all kinds of jobs, although the study said clerical workers and waitresses were most likely to become victims of harassment.

Judith Doren, a Birmingham attorney, said women are beginning to take legal action against the perpetrators of sexual harrassment.

"SEXUAL harassment is the silent sister of rape," she said. "There are aspects of sexual harassment that are still socially acceptable."

Ms. Doren has handled several lawsuits involving sexual harassment. Some were sucessful, some were not. "My practice doesn't let me see the whole picture of sexual harassment," she said.

She said women who silently endure harassment are far more prevalent than those who finally stand up and refuse to take any more.

"Most women don't walk into an office or educational institution with a chip on their shoulder.

"When they encounter sexual harassment, the reactions are similar to those of a victim of rape. There is guilt and a tendency to dress extremely conservatively. They feel intimidated and experience anger, frustration and headaches," she added.

Ms. Doren offers a few guidelines:

- There has to be damage for harassment to be actionable. Business efforts must be frustrated. The victim has to be passed over for promotion or be threatened with the loss of her job.
- The victim ought to look for proof of harassment, such as an eyewitness.
- Find out if other workers have experienced the same problems. This can strengthen a case.

Remember that harassment is, however, still very much a matter of word against word.

Organizations to contact if sexual harassment is experienced include the National Organization of Women, The American Civil Liberties Union or the Equal Employment Opportunity Council.

Dorthy Smith of the Equal Employment Opportunity district council has seen a number of sexual harassment cases pass by her desk.

"More and more cases are being filed and more cases are being won," she said. "Courts had a funny bend about these cases, but they are becoming more sensitive in their decisions."

According to Ms. Smith, several recent court decisions have made "giant steps forward in the attitude towards sexual harassment on the job."

However, especially in jury cases, it is often the victim, and not the accused, who goes on trial.

"A woman's morals and lifestyle are still inclined to be judged to some extent," Ms. Smith said.

She said one way to eliminate the problem of sexual harassment is for women workers to group together.

"It helps to have a lot of positive reinforcement," Ms. Smith said.

The Birmingham resident said women should "certainly file charges" if they are harassed and the matter can't be resolved in any other way.

"As it comes out of the closet, women are more willing to say 'I'm a working woman and I'm here to work'. Only when women say they won't take it anymore will the problem cease."

Ms. Smith feels the growing awareness of the ability to fight back against sexual harassement is "getting to the essence of sexual discrimination.

"A female should be respected for the job she performs. When sexual harassment is overcome in the employment market, it will eradicate much of sexual discrimination."

'Only when women say they won't take it anymore will the problem cease.'

–Dorothy Smith EEO district councilmember

Perhaps those women who still believe they can advance further on the job by promoting sexual encounters with the boss might feel this is an case of much ado about nothing.

But, Ms. Doren warns, sleeping your way up the corporate ladder is seldom good for more than one rung.

Manager mixes family, job

By LYNN ORR

At 32, Sherry Nelson is the youngest female store manager in the Bonwit Teller chain.

A 10-year career in the fashion retail world brought the 1964 Farmington High graduate to the executive office in Oakbrook, Ill., an affluent Chicago suburb.

But the decision to leave her former post as assistant store manager at the Somerset Bonwit in Troy happened overnight.

"I jumped at it," Ms. Nelson said. Her former boss, David Ernst, was promoted to New York as the director of stores after a year in the Beverly Hills Bonwit in California. On a routine visit to Somerset, he asked Ms. Nelson if she was ready to make the move to store manager.

"I wanted to go to Oakbrook, and told him to let me know know if there was an opening," she said. The following week she was interviewed, and the upper management team said: "If you can work this out with your husband, you be there tomorrow with a suitcase."

The next day she was on a company jet winging her way to Chicago, leaving her husband to sell their Birmingham home and assume full care of their infant son, Scott.

"THE CAREER move came for Sherry, but she would have gone along if it had come for me," said Gerald Nelson, a former Detroit News reporter. "We've always worked that way."

"It worked well with Jerry's career," Ms. Nelson said. He had been with the News for seven years and thought it was a good opportunity for a change.

"He already received two job offers here last week," she said with a trace of pride.

"I could not go home and face the kitchen," she said. "My idea of cooking is jello and chicken pies. Jerry watches my diet. If it wasn't for him, I'd be a junk food junkie."

They also share responsibility for Scott, who recently celebrated his first birthday. Whenever she thinks her job is too much, spending an entire day with Scott convinces her that she belongs in the business world.

"The housework suffers," she said.

The dust may settle, but the career doesn't. What started out as a fluke transformed into a steady career climb.

MS. NELSON, then Sherry Hermann, received a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in 1968. She studied advertising, art, and English literature, and during the advertising program, visited the J. L. Hudson Co. and met with on-campus recruiters before graduation.

She accepted an executive training program position and began a three-year stint as an assistant buyer. A promotion to buyer of ladies coats and suits found her traveling at least one week out of four.

In 1973, after her marriage, she spotted an ad for a position at Bonwit Teller's and was hired as a department manager for juniors. After 2 ½ years, she was promoted to assistant store manager under David Ernst.

"He knew what he was getting," she said of her promotion.

"I'm extremely conscientious—I work six days a week and work until the job's done." Like many other young women in middle management, she didn't follow the traditional male career style of building foundations for future moves.

"I've honestly enjoyed every job. I never considered them as stepping stones," she said. Having a successful mentor who believed in Ms. Nelson's abilities bears some resemblance to the male team which moves up the company ladder.

Making the transition from working with figures and merchandise to supervising people was easy, she said.

"I work with people a lot of the time. It's our store, not my store," she said. A 16 per cent increase in spring sales inspired personnel.

"Change always stimulates everyone, but I think they appreciate the backing as well," Ms. Nelson said. "When I stand behind them, we get better support from the merchandising organization. That's basically my my style. Let's get something accomplished."

Auto reps challenge is multi-skill need

By SHERRY KAHAN

Michigan Ford dealers may have been a little surprised when Cynthia Stasek turned up at their dealerships as a company representative ready to act as their business link to the home office.

It was an uncommon job for women several years ago at the time she began calling on Lincoln-Mercury dealers around the state.

"But I got a good reception," Ms. Stasek told a group of young women at a recent Madonna College career institute. "I didn't hear of anyone having bad feelings about my being a woman. I was accepted as one of the guys."

Visiting dealers is far from a social occasion. There is always work to be done.

"When you're in field sales, you do public relations work and answer complaints raised by customers," said Ms. Stasek. "You have to know about advertising and motivation, how to read a financial statement and have an innate sense of how to sell.

"You must be aware of what is going on in the business world, and in the dealer's town, so you can help him with any part that might affect him."

The job calls for a lot of traveling, she warned her listeners. Her territory covers Michigan and part of Ohio, so two or three of her nights are spent on the road.

"It is possible to have a social life on the road," she observed. "There is always someone around you've seen before. In fact, there is a whole network of people you meet when traveling. It can be fun, but it's expensive."

She added that she found it possible to keep up home social relations on weekends.

When Ms. Stasek was hired for training by the sales department, she was assigned to the Wixom office. After a about two years she started calling on dealers.

She told her audience that having a bachelor's degree is sufficient for getting hired. However, those who make hiring decisions are beginning to smile more on those with a master's degree in business administration.

She advised women to learn about the business world, study accounting and be able to read a financial statement.

The salary is "extremely good," in her opinion. Entering with an MBA would mean a salary of $16,000-$20,000, depending on the school attended.

"A field representative is regarded as a stepping stone in the company," she said. She added that at times it is a pressure jobs, but not every day.

Ms. Stasek offered encouragement with the statement that Ford Motor Co. is dedicated to moving women up through the organization.

"Women need a sense of humor, and to be more adaptable in an ares dominated by men," she concluded. "The system is so cumbersome, it can't be too flexible. So we have to be flexible, have a sense of humor and not allow things to bother us."

She blends business talents with song

because "that's where Max needed me the most."

Her biggest job was notifying the various groups who supported them of upcoming concerts and handling tickets, arranging for a concert hall—and in later years, arranging for a big name guest star.

"I had to make up a production budget and I even devised my own bookkeeping system," she recalled.

Money always has been a factor with the Daveys. Since they admittedly operate on a "shoestring" much depends on her abilitiy to "recruit" the audience, many of whom have remained faithful to the Daveys since that first concert in Kresge Hall in Detroit.

In those days, her work as a business manager and promoter of Concert Series, Inc., the nonprofit corporation they eventually formed, was in addition to a full-time job in the office of an accountant. In the last few years, however, she gave up that job to devote all her time to Concert Series.

It's been an interesting life, full of joys and frustrations, she said.

There have been the joys of meeting and getting to know on a personal basis such stardom greats as pianist Roger Williams, puppeteer-ventriloquist Shari Lewis, television commentator Frank Blair and Emmy-award winner Ed Asner.

But none of it would have happened without a bold approach that called for personal contact with the star, completely by passing the star's agent.

"I'd find out where they lived and I'd call them at home. I had to do it that way. It costs too much money to go through an agent," she said.

What she found out in many cases was that the star was willing to do the show for the "peanut" fee the Daveys offered for a variety of reasons.

"Some of them can't resist performing before a live audience," she said.

"Some want to help because they realize what it is like to be a struggling group and they just want to help you out. Sometimes it comes in a lull in a performer's career when he or she is looking for something to do and money isn't all that important," she added.

But never has her dedication to helping her husband been tested more than at the present time when serious financial difficulties threaten the future of Concert Series, Inc.

To pay off debts incurred by rising production costs, Mrs. Davey has had to return to work full-time again to help pay the bills, and allow her husband the flexibility of working with his music rather than having to hold a full-time job himself. (He owns a small tool design business and can pick and choose his jobs, depending on how busy he wants to be, she explained.)

But her return to the world of work has an ironic twist to it.

"All the time I was working with Concert Series, when I felt I wasn't doing all that much, I was developing skills and didn't realize it. Making up budgets was one area. Dealing with people at all levels—from stars to stagehands—was another."

It has all paid off with her recent appointment as one of few women directors in the management industry in the state of Michigan for Forest City-Dillion Management Co. She will have responsibilities involving five buildings that have been underwritten by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for persons on fixed incomes and managed by the Ohio-based Forest-Dillion firm.

It's something to crow about.

Michigan National Banks salute and encourage women in banking.

Equal opportunity is a firm and long-standing policy of the 18 affiliated banks of Michigan National Corporation. In line with this commitment, the number of women performing vital services as supervisors, managers, and bank officers is greater than ever before. And it's our belief that the Boards of Directors of the affiliated banks of Michigan National Corporation include more women as contributing members than any other financial institution in the United States.

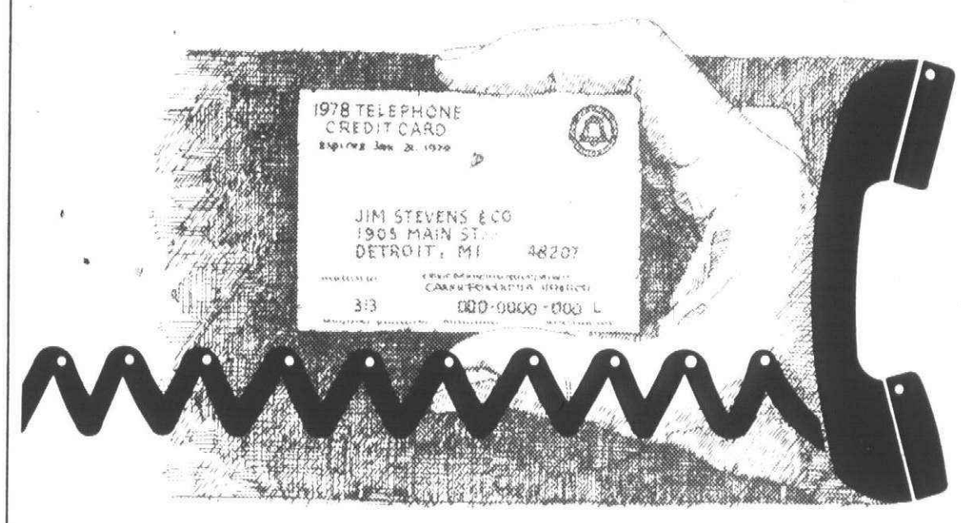

Several good reasons to visit an office of the Michigan National Banks.
More than 100 neighborhood offices are open all day Saturdays to provide full banking services to our customers six days a week. Some of these services include:

Six savings accounts that earn you more money for your money. Our regular passbook savings account, for example, pays you five percent annual interest (5.2% annual yield) and you can deposit or withdraw funds at any time without interest penalty.

Women up pay scale but men still are at top

By RICHARD GOLD

And that trend, which began in earnest after World War II, is expected to continue, according to the U.S. Labor Department.

It is primarily the result of changing attitudes among married women and mothers with small children, more of whom than ever are employed or seeking jobs.

Today, 41 per cent of the U.S. labor force is comprised of women—their numbers have doubled since 1950 and almost tripled since 1940.

Working women now number more than 35 million. They are maintaining longer working lives, accepting more and varied jobs and earning more. But their position relative to men has improved little.

THE EARNINGS gap between men and women has closed from the point in 1947 when women's median income was barely 50 per cent of men's. Today, U.S. Department of Labor statistics indicate women's median income has increased to 60.2 per cent of men's. (The median is the halfway point; 50 per cent of the women in the data earned more than the median and 50 per cent earned less.)

Nationally, the median income for women last year was $7,371. For men, it was $12,770. In the Detroit area, the gap was wider, almost $6,000.

The main reason for the gap is that women have worked in lower-paying jobs, particularly clerical and serice jobs, according to labor department analysts.

But in every category listed by the department of labor in its "U.S. Working Women, A Databook," published in 1977, women had lower median incomes than men.

Part of the reason women earn less than men when the figures are divided into job categories is that women typically have lower paying jobs in each bracket, labor economist Howard Hayghe said.

For example, in the professional and technical category, many of the women are teachers. Most administrators are men.

Discrimination—women receiving less pay for equal work—also is important.

"We can't really quantify the discrimination components in the data," he said.

Judith Bardwick, a professor of psychology and an assistant dean of the school of literature, science and the arts at the University of Michigan said discrimination is based on age-old attitudes.

"Women have not been regarded as important employees traditionally. They have thought of as marginal employees.

"Even in occupations that were female-dominated, it was the men who advanced more quickly into administration.

WHILE SINGLE women's participation in the labor force has increased, the most startling change has been the number of married women, and those with young children, who now work or seek jobs.

Only 20 per cent of married women worked in 1947, while 47.5 per cent do now.

Where 13 per cent of women with children below the age of six worked in 1947, 41 per cent do now.

In fact, married women's participation in the labor force has increased so much that federal statisticans predict that nine of 10 women today will work outside the home during their lifetime.

Part of the dramatic rise was caused by women who were forced into the labor market to help the war effort during World War II stayed on the job after the war.

Inflation, along with the end of the baby boom, is a big factor. He also notes the change from a goods-oriented to a service-oriented society.

"That happened in the late '50s, and women have an easier time getting jobs when the economy shifts from goods to service," Hayghe said.

Hayghe said that some of the change—"although how much we don't know"—could be attributed to changing values and social attitudes.

Bardwick emphasizes changing attitudes in women and society at large when she explains the increasing number of women working today.

"The traditional stereotype of women has been the role of the wife and mother. Those are nurturant roles in which the woman gives support and develops her self esteem as she enables other family members to succeed.

"Today, women and society are much more preoccupied with direct gratification. Now women look at certain realizations—the length of this life and they have two children instead of five.

"They make commitments that will be directly more satisfying, and that often includes work."

ALONG WITH the increase in working wives, whose numbers have more than doubled since 1950 from eight to more than 16 million, has come a concommitant decrease in the birthrate.

In 1957, the birthrate peaked at 25.3 per thousand. In 1965, it was down to 19.4 per thousand. In 1976, it dropped to 14.7 per thousand.

Today, said Hayghe, it is even lower.

Although more and more women may be working, many are squeezed into the same old jobs.

- Women make up 97 per cent of domestic servants.
- Women comprise 90 per cent of bank tellers.
- Women make up 99 per cent of all secretaries.

At the same time, women are frozen out of many other jobs.

They comprise:

- less than five per cent of craft workers
- less than one per cent of carpenters, truck drivers, bricklayers, mechanics, firefighters and plumbers.

THEN THERE IS unemployment. In 1950, 32 per cent of the unemployed were women. In 1976, the percentage had reached 46.

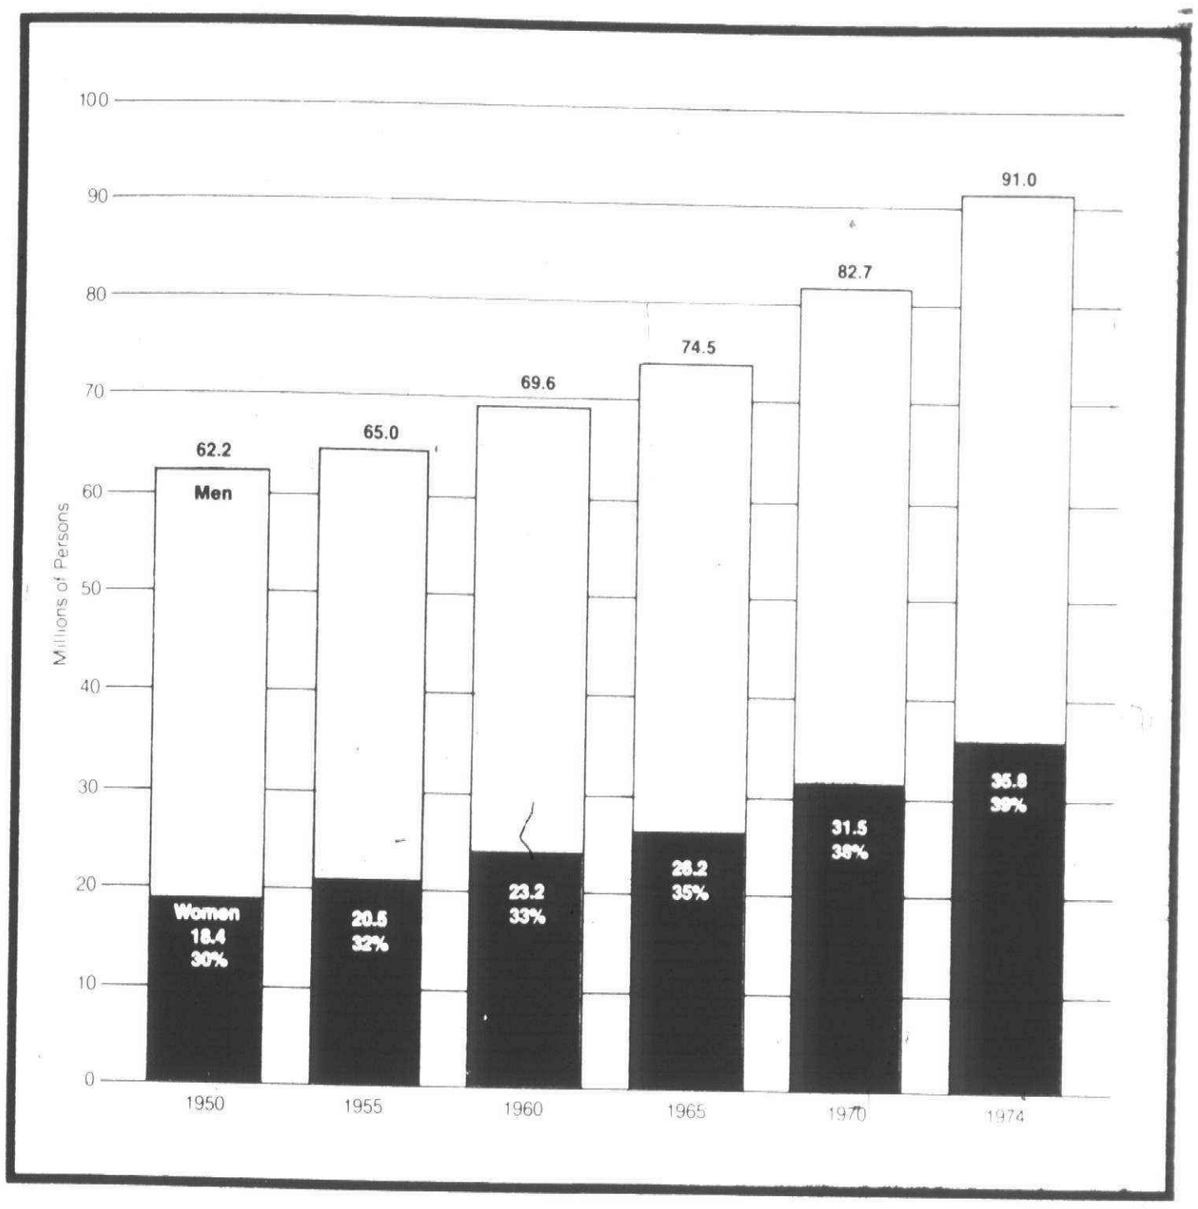

In the same period of time, the number of unemployed women went from slightly more than 1 million to 3.3 million. In every year since 1950, the rate of unemployed women has exceeded that of men.

And in the prime working-age categories, women have maintained a substantially higher unemployment rate than men.

Nonetheless, most analysts contend the number of women in the work force will continue to grow.

"It is the single most outstanding phenomenen of our century. It's long-term implications are unchartable.

The number of women in the labor force nearly doubled between 1950 and 1974—women now account for two-fifths of all workers, Graph information is provided through the U.S. Department of Labor.

She finds job He finds fault

The writer, John Mette, is commonly known as John Reddy, general manager of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. His wife, Joan, returned to work last year as a secretary after a 19-year career as a homemaker. Joan works at Walnut Lake School in the Birmingham School District.

By JOHN METTE

I never really wanted to believe I might be a chauvinist. So you know the truth really hurts.

I'm not sure when I first became aware. Perhaps it was with Gloria Steinem and the burn-the-bra movement. Perhaps through magazine articles, newspaper accounts, friends who we knew.

Then one day we both sat down and discussed what we both knew had been a reality for some time.

Joan would have to get a job.

With the discussions that followed, I first sensed that a lot would change in my life. And it would change because Joan was going to work. Not because she might stay home.

To put it bluntly, I was about to lose my lackey. And I didn't like it. What was worse, I began to feel guilty as hell about being something quite less than a mate who had a deep and mutual respect for his spouse—at least in glowing storybook form. My image of myself began to shatter.

Share the work? Make the bed? Run errands? Vacuum? Help with the big things? Sure. But get involved with the routine chores, things that had to be done every day? Isn't that asking. . . ?

Then I discovered I began to fit another classic pattern. "Come on. We'll go out for dinner." Why? To buy her off, of course and let her know I understood and cared.

The fact is, I didn't. And that took traumatic doing to eventually overcome—if, indeed, that has yet happened.

I discovered Joan was frightened. While she had been in the business world as a secretary, that was 20 years ago. The home is a powerfully protective womb.

That this is so became evident sometime after she had started taking refresher courses. I kept asking, somewhat unsympathetically, "When are you going out to get a job?"

Always, it was "I'm not ready. My shorthand isn't up. I'm still uneasy about my typing."

Then I began to relate her feelings to my own first job-seeking efforts. It is scary.

And I also began to recall how pleasant and reassuring it was to come home and have someone trying to be understanding and caring. It was agonizing to realize I wasn't providing the same kind of understanding and interest.

But I had to start forcing myself to commit to a whole new way of life.

Yet that caused other problems. For years I had been operating with certain unspoken tradeoffs. I would do the heavy tasks, the repairs. I would stay out of the kitchen and the laundry room because her way of doing things seemed disorganized to me and always led to arguments when I would want to do it my way or try to change it.

One aspect of Joan's job re-entry training involved assertiveness training, which frankly, annoyed the hell out of me. But it did help her to not feel guilty when she started sharing her concerns and, more boldly, started telling me how unfair certain situations were and that they would have to be changed.

After brooding a bit, I thought I'd take a page out of the assertiveness training handbook and start describing some of my concerns. It helped.

Then, alas, the job interviews. I found myself trying to be helpful, but in need of being sensitive to the fact that this was Joan's job and Joan's career. All I could be is a sounding board. Not the boss.

Finally, the job. Joan's metamorphosis goes on. So does mine. So does the children's.

I think what has happened is that I've traded in a lackey for a partner. I hope so. Being a chauvinist head of a household is pretty disappointing when you take time to think about it.

As one final test, I've written this under a by-line with Joan's maiden name. That, my dear fellows, has produced a very interesting feeling.

You work hard for your money. Make it work hard for you.

Banking breaking barriers in battle between the sexes

Audrey Powell's appointment as vice-president of personnel at Michigan National Bank West-Metro in Livonia came eight years after she started there as secretary. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

By SHIRLEE IDEN

According to Rose C. Goldberg, assistant vice-president of Metropolitan Savings Bank's Tel-Twelve Mall branch and Audrey Powell, vice-president of personnel at Michigan National Bank-West Metro of Livonia, women are being accepted readily in the banking field and are moving ahead to responsible management positions.

Mrs. Goldberg, a Southfield resident, began her banking career when the last of her children went off to kindergarten. She decided she needed to go to work to keep busy.

That was more than 22 years ago and looking back, she remembers starting out by working from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. but "soon growing to be very busy."

To insure that she would advance in her career, Mrs. Goldberg took courses at District 6 Savings and Loan Institute where she studied banking mortgages and supervisory aspects of banking.

She went to work for Metropolitan Savings in 1965 and when they opened their Tel-Twelve Mall Branch, she was named branch manager and assistant vice-president. As branch manager, she supervises six employees.

A native Detroiter, she attended Central High School graduating in 1944. She and her husband have three grown children and two grandchildren.

BECAUSE all work and no play might make Mrs. Goldberg a dull banking veep, she has kept busy in the community with the Southfield Chamber of Commerce, and has been appointed to governmental commissions and been financial advisor to the League of Women Voters.

In a lighter vein, she relaxes by bowling, knitting and crocheting.

"I live and work in Southfield," she said. "It's nice getting into things that have to be done. If you're not active, then you can't complain."

Audrey Powell's appointment to vice-president of personnel at her bank came eight years after she started there as a secretary.

Mrs. Powell said she grew up on the east side of Detroit and worked for Detroit Edison for more than five years when she completed high school studies.

"Then I retired to have a family and became a secretary at the Warren Consolidated Schools," she said.

Her husband, Joseph, works at Detroit Edison and she said he loves to point out to people that many years ago, he hired her as a secretary.

ROSE C. GOLDBERG

Despite the teasing, her husband and children Jim and Susan are both proud of their mother, the bank vice-president. Her climb to that position came after the family left Warren to live in Livonia and she joined the bank's personnel department.

'With all the activity in the women's movement the past few years, it's (women in bank management) is not so unusual. We have a lot of turnover with managers and it's mostly men who are being replaced by women these days.'
–Rose C. Goldberg

"BANKING is a fantastic opportunity for women," she said, "and it's one that wasn't there a few years ago. Years ago, women were secretaries and that was that. Now they are coming into their own."

Both Mrs. Goldberg and Mrs. Powell agreed that more and more women are taking positions as tellers and moving up from there.

"With all the activity in the women's movement the past few years, it's not so unusual," Mrs. Goldberg said. "We have a lot of turnover with managers and it's mostly men who are being replaced by women these days."

About our section

Working women take a bow.

October 16-21 marks National Business Women's week, a time to recognize the female segment of the workforce. This section serves as a tribute to the millions of women who leave their homes each day to take their place in the working world.

Besides those writers and photographers contributing to the section, others who have lent their talents include Gary Friedman, cover photographs and design; Kathleen Moran and Steven Barnaby, layout; advertising coordinators, Margaret Shieb and Shari Johnson; production department; keyliner, Martha Taucher; copy editors and editorial coordinator, Susan Rosiek; art consultant, Glenna Merillat.

Career counselor offers occupational pointers

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Career Placement Counselor

Women are developing a special sense of determination.

They are willing to learn. They want to be in management positions. Women strongly feel they are qualified for these positions. They are constantly striving for experiences that will allow them to become even more qualified. Many are taking the initative to surge ahead. Their self-confidence and self-acceptance are definitely paving the way.

By their actions and results, women are proving to their peers that they have earned the right to be in management. They are successful women who are continually proving that they have earned the right to be called successful.

Even though the over-all work prospects look brighter and everybody is out there hustling for a career or career advancement, the stonewall of acceptance has not completely crumbled.

In fact, unfortunately, women are beginning to "rush the wall" too rapidly. The "female image" still enters into their performance evaluation by their peers. This stigma enters into the selection performance of the woman ready to enter the work force.

This "female image" stigma hinders those women considering a position change or a career change. .

Women have been their own worse enemies in the past, and, regretfully, this still holds true. Rightfully, women have waited long enough to enjoy equal pay for equal work, equal recognition for outstanding accomplishments, and equal consideration for advancement when qualified.

Being right, however, doesn't make it so.

Women, now more than ever, have to continually prove themselves. In today's competitive world they have to be more aware of their attitudes, goals, abilities, their own definition of what constitutes success. Women must analyze their fundamental values, they must establish clearly in their minds what is their zenith of fulfillment.

These fundamental evaluations, coupled with drive, skills, abilities, dedication and luck, will spell success, accomplishment and bring with it all the benefit of super achievers.

Never in our lifetime have we been so close to achieving our rightful and equal place in society. Never before in our lifetime have we had so great a control of our own destinies.

As of July, 42.1 million women were gainfully employed. Never before have women been able to achieve so much recognition, acceptance and advancement.

Now, more than ever, women should be more thoughtfully aware of their own goals, pursuits, and how it might affect their sister achievers.

It greatly concerns me, as a personnel consultant, that it takes only a few women to create a poor impression that reflects upon all women.

For example: Many of the executive secretaries in today's work force are suddenly becoming discontented with their position and are expressing this discontentment in unprofessional ways. True, they have a point. Many are long overdue, and have been bypassed in promotions and financial gain. Equally as many executive secretaries, however, are happy with their lot, and an untold number of young women who aspired to become an executive secretary are beginning to express this disillusionment.

My belief, and the best advice I can briefly offer today's women entering or advancing in the work force is:

1. Be the most competent you can be in your chosen field.

2. Acquire a second area of expertise as a back-up if necessary.

3. Be realistic. Begin your climb up the ladder at the bottom if necessary.

4. Do your very best; keep your eyes open for opportunity and your frustrations quiet.

5. Pursue the proper channels for advancement, as creatively, competently, and consideratively as you know how.

If you never plan to miss an opportunity to advance, never forget that you are creating an opportunity for someone to move into your position. Women helping women is what it's all about. We should be our own best friends, not our own worst enemies.

Working moms mixing work with careers

By MARGARET MILLER

Can a woman who seeks a career in business also successfully fill the role of a wife and mother?

The answer, from several in this area who have tried it, is a resounding "yes, indeed!"

Ask them if it's worth the extra effort to fill both jobs, and the answer is still emphatically yes. But they also agree the double mantle shouldn't be taken on without purpose, realistic knowledge of the territory and planning forevermore.

"I've worked by choice for a majority of my married life," said Jeannie Young of Farmington, who has two jobs in addition to being wife to Jerry and mother to Jeff and Nancy.

Mrs. Young teaches English at Harrison High School in Farmington Hills and then goes to the Plymouth Cultural Center to be a professional skating teacher for the Plymouth Figure Skating Club.

"I guess I'm a person who can't sit still," she added. "I felt and looked older when I wasn't working."

PATTE KROHN, for the past year a real estate saleswoman with Metro-West ERA in Garden City, points out that her working has meant dividends for her family.

Her children have been taught independence, she said, and the family is able to have more time together when both she and her husband get away from work and they all head for their yacht at the St. Clair Club.

"I think they're proud of mom," Mrs. Krohn said of Krist, 12, twins Kary and Kevin, 9, and Kelee, 7. "Sometimes they come to the office with me so they can see my desk and get an idea of the kinds of things I do there."

Charlotte Whitney of Ann Arbor returned to her job as a program coordinator for the University of Michigan Division of Management Education three months after her son was born.

"I didn't feel any of the guilt I expected," she said. She explained the baby was born last March and she stayed home until her husband, a member of the U-M Dearborn faculty, could take a two-month break. After that she started taking the baby to a licensed day care home where he could be with other children.

"It's probably easier in the academic world," she said. "I have an interesting career, and I want to continue it. I see no reason why I should feel more guilty than my husband does when he leaves to go to work." She added that her son is thriving in his present situation—"I've seen some interaction with the other children there already."

JOAN DUGGAN of Livonia, wife of a judge and mother of five sons, perhaps epitomizes in her current life style the need for juggling roles and being flexible.

"A couple of evenings ago," explained the director of community resouces for her home city, "I left the office early and dashed home and hurried through dinner because my son had a soccer game.

"It rained, and my slacks got wet, and they were still wet when I left the game five minutes early to get to a meeting on a special program for senior citizens.

"But I had managed to get in all the necessary things for that day. That's what was important."

Mrs. Duggan said she finds in her work "great satisfaction because of the opportunity it gives me to help other women prepare themselves for jobs through volunteer work.

"I would not work just for the sake of working," she said, "because I've learned that once you commit yourself to a job, there's no more sitting and daydreaming. You have to plan very carefully for everything, even fun."

She also noted that "every day somebody—husband, kids or job—gets the short end."

"But things seem to even out," she philosophized.

THE FOUR women in differing working situations agreed on a couple of major points. One is that there has to be job flexibility for a working mother; the other is that there has to be support on the home front.

"I'm always accessible," said Mrs. Whitney, who is either at her desk in the center for continuing education or reachable by co-workers. "I have a beeper system, so the family can get in touch with me during the day if there's a problem," stated Mrs. Krohn.

Mrs. Young pointed out that now her daughter also participates in skating "so she's with me" and in earlier days she could always be reached at the schools where she taught.

Mrs. Duggan found her first job after family most frustrating for just that reason. A registered nurse, she had gone to Madonna College to earn her degree in nursing and then accepted a job as clinical instructor at the college.

"It was a situation in which if I was not there the students couldn't go on the floor, and as soon as I started working the boys started getting sick—really sick," she said. "I had to give up."

In the matter of home arrangements, Mrs. Whitney said her husband has shared from the beginning in the care of the baby and Mrs. Krohn said her husband and family have always been supportive.

"Jerry and I pretty much split things down the middle, since we both work and we both coach," said Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Duggan said she too gets help from a busy husband and has the sons trained to function "so I don't have to go home and scrape cereal off the table before I start supper."

"But I do think many women who take jobs have false expectations," she said. "Families can help, and many do, but the working woman should figure that the primary responsibility for running the home is still hers."

Personnel job brings personal joys

By SHERRY KAHAN

"There is a great deal of satisfaction in personnel work because of what you can do for people."

Sandra Hemak of employe relations and personnel at Federal Mogul Corp. was explaining the bright side of her job to a group of young women recently at a Madonna College career institute. She mentioned that a woman had recently come to her office to thank her.

"If you can give people confidence, make a difference in their lives, see them change for the better and get promoted, it is personally satisfying," Mrs. Hemak said.

The dark side of her job, she indicated, was the necessity of telling employes they were laid off.

"Another disadvantage is having to take work home," she added.

Many people visualize the personnel department as the place where they nervously filled out job applications. But hiring and firing is only one of the tasks of the section.

Its employes also are involved with benefit programs such as pensions and insurance. "Having good benefits is becoming increasingly important to employes," Mrs. Hemak said.

The new flex time, whereby individuals can opt for more flexible working hours, is usually handled by personnel. Wages and salaries are analyzed there so that department is a good place for those who enjoy statistical work.

Labor relations is another aspect of personnel. "It's tough to get into," noted Mrs. Hemak. "They don't put trainees in this kind of work. You have to be more seasoned."

The newest aspect of personnel is called human resources and development. It's designed to identify skills of employes so they can be developed for promotion. This kind of work has attracted educators who in their school work have developed organizing and planning abilities.

"Personnel work involves communication, both written and verbal," she said. "You have to relate to people so they will enjoy talking to you. A great deal of our work is guidance and counseling, sometimes it's 70 per cent of the job.

"We have to work through the difficulties people have on the job, help an employe deal with his supervisor, or the supervisor with a worker."

Students in the audience were advised to take business courses if they wished to land a job in personnel. Degrees in psychology and industrial management also help.

"Make use of every resource," Mrs. Hemak said. "Study liberal arts, but get to know accounting, finance and introduction to marketing. Summer jobs can be critical. You may be able to make more money in certain jobs, but I would recommend taking less money and picking a job that will acquaint you with the business department. Or to get a wider view of industry, get a summer job in an auto factory. "Then when you prepare a resume for your first job, you will have something to bargain with, a track record."

Salem golfers rebound to take Sub-8 crown

By BETTY DELANO

A final score of 78 by junior Eric Heidt led the Plymouth Salem golf team to a 323 total score and a Suburban Eight League championship Monday at Brae Burn golf course.

Heidt's 78 (36-42), earned him the honor of second medalist in the tournament behind John Shelton from Dearborn High School. Shelton had a 77 for his 18-hole round.

The Rocks' finished with a three-stroke margin over Livonia Bentley and a five-stroke margin over Trenton.

Bentley (326) and Trenton (328) tied for second place, Dearborn (334) took fourth place, Dearborn Edsel Ford (355) ended up fifth and Allen Park (388) sixth.

Following Heidt's 78, Salem junior Blake Lundberg carded a 79 (38-41) to aid in the Salem triumph. Bob Jarvis came in with a final 82 for the day's round broken up with a pair of 41's on the par 70 course. Captain Craig Stevens added an 84 to the Rock final score after taking a 40 on the front nine and a 44 on the back nine.

"Although we failed to qualify for the state finals, I still feel that we are still one of the top five teams in the state," said Salem coach Bob Waters. "That fact is supported by the league meet results. We beat both Bentley and Northville during the season and went on to beat Bentley agian in the league meet. Both of these teams are headed to the state finals and Plymouth is staying home."

Salem beat Bentley, 158-160 and Northville, 157-169 during the regular season and beat Bentley the second time around during the league meet with an average of 80 per player in the freezing rain.

Not making any excuses for the fact that the Plymouth team failed to qualify for the state meet, Waters went on to say that he felt an 18-hole tournament may not be the proper criteria for judging a team for the entire season. Waters also commented on the strength of the Suburban Eight League which has both Trenton and Bentley headed for the state finals and Salem the number one ranked team in the state prior to the regionals.

The first all-league team included Shelton, Heidt, Lundberg and Nick Mans from Trenton and Mark Goad from Bentley. The second team consists of Chuck Rudman from Bentley, Mike Dabrova and Jim Janks from Trenton, Rick Johnson from Dearborn and Bob Jarvis from Salem. League teams are determined on how each player performs in the league meet.

Salem finished fourth in the league last year with a final league meet score of 325. Redford Union, which participated in the Northwest Suburban League this year, tied with Trenton as co-champions last year. Bentley placed third last year.

The Salem squad ended its season with an 11-2 record with the only losses to non-conference foes Ypsilanti and Redford Thurston.

Cold-shooting Chiefs slip by GC East

Rock cagers whip Pats

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Despite an absolutely horrid shooting night, the Plymouth Canton girls basketball team won its ninth game in 10 starts with a 37-33 non-league victory over Garden City East Tuesday night at the Panthers' gym.

Coach Mike McCauley's squad is still unbeaten in Western Six League competition and will face Walled Lake Western at home tonight. Coach Jan Moore's East squad has now suffered three straight losses in two weeks.

The Chiefs won by four-points against the respectable Panther squad but the margin would have been greater if they had made many of the easy lay-ups and short five-footers which continually caromed off the backboard.

"This was just like the Walled Lake Central game," McCauley said, in reference to the Chiefs' only loss. You saw the first half. It was pathetic. We had 23 turnovers. We were tight from the start.

"If Garden City had made its foul shots we would have lost. Garden City hustled. They always seem to play well against us."

When the Chiefs weren't getting the easy shot, they had trouble penetrating the Panthers' 2-3 or 1-3-1 zone defenses, losing the ball on many turnovers.

The Panthers, however, were also very careless with the ball, as Canton's aggreesive man-to-man defense also forced many mistakes. The Garden City squad scored as many field goals as the Chiefs, 14, but coverted on only five of 22 free throws.

Canton surged ahead by a narrow 13-9 margin after the first quarter but scored only three points in the second quarter, as the Panthers took a 17-16 lead into the locker room at halftime. The score actually should have been 19-16 in favor of the Panthers but a missed basket in the official scoreboard prevented the extra two points.

Canton finally turned things around in the third quarter, scoring eight straight points midway in the third period to take a 26-20 lead it never relinquished.

The Chiefs opened up as much as an 11-point margin midway in the final period thanks to their four-corner delay offense. East never gave up, however, making the game close with a late scoring rush at the end.

Kelly Heaton led all Canton scorers with nine points. Jill Pedersen added eight. East's Sherry Kiselica took scoring honors with 13 points.

PLYMOUTH SALEM-FRANKLIN

Bob Blohm's Plymouth Salem girls embarrassed Livonia Franklin in non-league girls basketball action Tuesday night with an easy 67-24 win over the hapless Patriots.

The Rocks raced to their 10th victory against no defeats by outscoring Franklin, 22-5, after the first eight minutes of action. Salem extended that margin to 41-16 at halftime.

The Rocks' tough defense and strong transition game continued in the second half. Salem scored 16 points in the third quarter, while Franklin failed to score, making the romp 57-16 after three periods of action.

All but one of the 11-member Salem squad saw action in the game. Diane Goodrich, a starting forward, did not play because of a knee injury.

All 10 Salem players scored in the contest. Senior guard Peggy Somers led the way with 15 points. Junior center Patty Weidman registered 12, and Doris Hoelscher added 10.

Skaters place 1st

Some of the finalists from the Plymouth Club and the Observer-area include Garden City's Chritie Warner (second place) and Plymouth's Sherri Bajer (third place) in the Tiny Tots Division.

Plymouth's Cathy Stassinos and Noel Schimeck placed first and second in the Free Style I (6-11-year olds), while Cindy Sadlocha was fourth in the 12-14-year old bracket.

Redford's Jame White and Michele Durkin were first and second in the Free Style II competition (9-14-years old), and Kathy Rajt was fourth in the Free Style III action.

Sandra Bajer of POlymouth was second in the Free Style IV competition for 6-8-year olds, while Jerod Swallow was second (9-11-year olds) and Nancy Young fifth (12-14-year olds) and Pam Mazurek first (15-and-over) in other competition.

Free Style V winners in the 9-11-year old division included Garden City's Kimberly Warner (first), Plymouth's Colleen Armstrong (second), Plymouth's Erica Schneider (third), Westland's Denise Backiel (fourth) and Plymouth's Karen Feller (fifth). Gail Obert of Westland was third in the 12-14-year old bracket.

Nancy Malhoit of Plymouth was second in the Free Style VI action for 12-14 year olds.

The interpretive event for 11-and-under skaters was won by Garden City's Martha Frenzel.

Plymouth skaters finished in second through fifth places as Deveny Deck, Susan Moffatt, Sandra Bajer and Colleen Armstrong finished in order behind Frenzel.

Canton tankers triumph; Salem falls to N'ville

Anne Massey's Plymouth Canton girl swimmers rolled past Walled Lake Central, 99-68, in non-league action Tuesday night at the Canton pool. It marked the first meet Canton used the new automatic timers purchased by all the Plymouth-Canton community swim teams.

The Chiefs took eight of the 11 events, as all the girls preformed well. Canton placed second in the opening event, the 200-yard medley relay, but it was downhill after that.

Mary Reardon placed first in the 50-yard freestyle, while Missy McMurray, substituting for senior Cindy Shelanskey who had the flu, was tops in the 100-yard backstroke.

Jamie Zuverink once again won the diving competition with 164 points. The Chiefs finished the meet with a victory in the 400-yard freestyle relay thanks to McMurray, Ann Brener, Karen Muller and Massey.

NORTHVILLE-PLYMOUTH SALEM

Plymouth Salem lost only its second dual meet of the season and the first after six straight victories when coach Chuck Olson's squad fell to Western Six League power Northville, 58-25, in non-league action Tuesday night at Northville.

"We didn't swim badly," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "They've (Northville) just got four swimmers that are really good. In a four-lane pool, they are tough to beat. These swimmers are probably among the top five in the state."

Sophomore Sarah Stanwood was the only swimmer who won an event for Salem. She took the 100-yard freestyle in 1:03.2. Stanwood also placed second in thr 200-yard freestyle at 2:01.8, only one-tenth of a second short of winning.

Linkers fall in regional

The result of the regional golf tournament for this area, including both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton, was not what many people expected prior to the competition Friday at the University of Michigan golf course in Ann Arbor.

Although both Plymouth teams finished in the top 10 of the 19 competing teams, neither placed in the top three to become eligible for the state finals on Oct. 21.

Canton's Dave Visser led the attack for both Plymouth schools with an 80 on the day's round. Visser was joined by teammates John Mattew Matthews at 89, Kirk Rassmussen at 91 and Scott Adler at 94 to account for the Chiefs bid on the regional title.

The Canton squad is coached by John Crosson.

A string of 84s was contributed to the Salem final tally. Senior captain Craig Stevens added his 84 with a 44 on the front nine and a 40 on the back. Ed Thomas took a 42 on each side and Blake Lundberg had a 41 on the front and a 43 on the back.

Junior Bob Jarvis came on the 18th green with a total 87 to complete the Rocks' 339 total. Jarvis had a 41 on the front nine and a 46 on the back nine.

Salem coach Bob Waters has coached the Salem golf team to a state tournament five out of the last seven years. Last year, the Rocks placed third in the regionals with a 324 total and took 10th place at the state meet.

They won their sixth consecutive league championship—although Waterford Mott ended up in a tie with the Mustangs. Northville had a 402, five-man score on Hartland Glen golf course Monday.

Northville was led by Todd Mack who shot 77 in the cold rain (the course was so wet that the back nine was unplayable. The golfers played the front nine twice). Bob Stephens added a 79 for the Mustangs.

Mott placed second in the league meet but defeated Northville in dual-match play to earn the league championship tie. The Corsairs had a spotless 10-0 record in the Western Six conference.

In third place was surprising a Farmington Harrison team that compiled a 6-4 conference record, only to shoot a strong 405, to actually tie Mott in the league meet.

But Harrison's Bob Weir's 77 was under protest because his score was correct hole for hole was totalled incorrectly.

If it hadn't been signed by the Mott players and posted by Waterford Mott's coach, it could have been changed.

Mott actually scored lower than Harrison, and the coaches took this into consideration and named Mott second in the league and awarded them a tie in the overall standings with Northville.

Had Harrsison's score been correct, Northville would have won the outright title because of the Harrison-Mott league meet tie.

Walled Lake Western was led by medalist Randy Dixon's 74. Scott Kish added an 83 to help his team's third place finish at 424.

Plymouth Canton and Livonia Churchill tied for fourth place. Dave Visser led Canton with a 77 and Scott Adler added an 86. The Chargers were led by Jim Mazuchowski's 77 and Mark Bowen 87. Visser missed all-league recognition by one-tenth of a stroke.

WSDP airs basketball

With both football teams on the road, WSDP-FM will feature only one athletic event on the air this week.

John Matthews (play-by-play) and George Hamblin (color commentary) will be on hand to broadcast the Plymouth Canton-Walled Lake Western girls basketball game live tonight starting at 8:10 p.m.

The Western Six League contest will be on the Plymouth-Canton student-operated station located on 88.1 on the FM dial.

Ward shines for Broncos

Doug Ward, Western Michigan University's senior defensive halfback from Plymouth Salem High School, was a key man for the Broncos in a 14-0 Mid-American Conference victory at Kent State University two weeks ago.

Ward, a 1975 graduate, was in on five tackles including three for losses totaling 12 yards. He also intercepted a Kent State pass with just 16 seconds left in the game to help preserve the triumph.

The 5-10, 180-pounder has been a starter for the Broncos all season long.

Salem netters 3d at regional

Plymouth Salem's girls' tennis team will not enjoy the excitement of state meet action this season, after it finished in third place at regional competition last weekend. The Rocks, under coach Jan Lawson, participated in the state meet last year.

To qualify for the state competition, one has to finish in first or second in its respective region. Once again, Ann Arbor Pioneer proved to be the class of the annual event, winning its own regional with 25 points. Ann Arbor Huron placed second with 21 points and Salem was third at 15. Last year, Salem placed second ahead of Huron.

There was a big gap between the first three teams and the rest of the 13-team field, as Ypsilanti, Westland John Glenn and Jackson Parkside tied for fourth place with seven point each. Plymouth Canton placed 10th with three points.

Although the third place finish was disappointing for the Rocks, Lawson felt the tough draw and the power of the two Ann Arbor schools were the main factors against the Suburban Eight League champs.

"I think they had too many guns for us," the Salem coach said of the Ann Arbor teams. "Everytime we got to the semifinals, they had someone there to beat us."

Huron and Pioneer dominated all the doubles events and placed most of their girls in the finals of the singles competition. Salem was the only school to place any girls in the championship round, besides the two state qualifers.

"It was a tough region," Lawson said. "I think we performed well, but not good enough for state.

"But scoring 15 points with an eight-point gap between you and the next teams shows we had something to offer."

SALEM'S TWO finalists, Kathy Horton and Betsy Moon, both lost their first matches of the season. Horton, a junior playing second singles, lost in the finals to Huron's Sue Kim, 6-1, 6-3. Moon, a sophomore playing third singles, lost in the finals to Huron's Becky LaBaron, 6-1, 6-4.

The Rocks two other singles players, first-singles Becky Crespo and fourth-singles Renee Braun, lost in the semifinals. Crespo, a third-seed, fell to the eventual winner Maggie Godfrey of Pioneer, 6-4, 6-2. Braun also lost to an eventual winner from Pioneer, Vivian Lee, in straight sets.

Sandra Hathaway and Lynne Hathaway took one point for Salem in first doubles before losing in the second round. The Hathaway sisters beat Plymouth Canton's Claudia Williams and Pam Schipani, 6-1, 6-1. It was the only Centennial Park confrontation of the regionals.

Salem's second doubles of Kathy Weber and Laurie Smith scored two points for the Rocks. The unseeded pair advanced to the semifinals before falling to an Huron.

Third doubles Vickie Sterling and Kathy Somers also lost in the semifinals to Huron after getting two points for Salem. Sterling played her matches after being involved in a car accident in the parking lot at Pioneer High School. She sustained no injury in the accident.

Canton's three points included one victory from fourth singles Lori Smith, and two more points from second doubles Bridget McNamara and Kim Young. McNamara and Young advanced to the semifinals before losing to the eventual winners from Pioneer. It marked the farthest any Canton player has advanced in the school's short six-year history.

The Plymouth Salem girls tennis team had another great season this past fall, winning the Sub-8 championship and placing third in regional competition. Members of this squad include (front row from left) Lynne Hathaway, captain Becky Crespo, Kathy Horton, Betsy Moon, Renee Braun, and Sandra Hathaway. Middle row from left includes Beth Maggio, Karen Maggio, Julie Koziski, Kathy Weber, coach Jan Lawson, Laurie Smith, Kathy Somers, and Vickie Sterling. Back row from left includes Beth Baker Lisa Miyazaki, Sue Johnson, Charlotte Cotter and Jane Ploughman. (Staff photo)

Parent disagrees with Doc's journalistic obligations

Sports Mail Bag

Sports Editor:

Unfortunately, I did not have a chance to read the original article written by Doug Funke that appeared in your column. Your own opinions on the subject of printing sports news in your paper whether good or bad, is obvious. You favor printing every piece of gossip or happening concerning high school students who happen to participate in sports because you think you "owe" this information to your readers.

Who do you think your readers are? I'll tell you they are not blood thirsty gossip mongers interested in the human failings of high school kids. They are friends and relatives of the boys and girls who play. They are their teachers and coaches and other people interested in the youth of this community. They read your column not to hear bad news about a kid who broke training rules or got into some other kind of trouble but because you write about the achievements of kids they know and because they have a basic interest in sports.

Your newspaper does not print names of juvenile offenders who get in trouble with the law. The school board does not make public names of those suspended from school. Counselors do not discuss school or personal problems kids have with newspaper editors. Teachers do not discuss their students failings with the media.

It is the obligation of those who work with high school athletes to protect them from publicity that may do great harm to the youngster involved. If such information is made public, it may be impossible for a coach to work with the athlete and perhaps straighten the problem out. Many times a youngster's coach is the only adult that really has a chance to turn that kid around. An article in a newspaper could destroy the one relationship that could be the most important part of his life.

1. The rights of the kids you write about are more important than your reader's right to know.

2. 99 out of 100 coaches, athletic directors, principals, counselors and teachers disagree with your stand.

3. The kids you write about are almost all under 18 years of age.

4. Your readers are parents of those kids you write about. If we want to find out gossip, we can ask people who know the facts. We don't feel entitled to know everything.

5. Student athletes are in sports because they love playing the game, not because they get their name in your paper. They'd play whether you were around or not.

6. High school kids are not paid professionals or college athletes on scholarship whose personal lives should be subject to public scrutiny.

In the words of one of our high school coaches, some of your columns are strictly "Bush League." Lets hope, Doc, as you climb the journalistic ladder of success, you make it to the "Majors."

JOY GRAY,
Plymouth Township

Doc respected but wrong this time

Sports Editor:

Okay Doc, you asked us.

I thoroughly respect your rights as a journalist, and I have the greatest admiration for the honesty, courage, expertise and positive good nature you model for our young athletes.

However, I cannot agree with you concerning your belief that it is imperative to print names and incidents when disciplinary action is taken against a local athlete. If you feel it is your obligation to report the incident, then I feel it would be prudent to report the misbehavior without naming those involved.

I believe few will remember the name of the fourth place athlete who, by earning points for his team, will help to win the meet. But I venture more will remember the name of the athlete who, by making one mistake, is penalized for the season and jeopardizes his team's capabilities.

The athlete in question has suffered a great humiliation already because of the discipline given him by the school athletic department. By naming this person in your column, you compound his problem.

Remember the old adage about how long it takes to build a temple and how quickly it can be destroyed. The potential of youth is our priceless gift. I ask you to use your reporter's pen with discretion.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Dramatic finishes that went right down to the final ball marked league competition on all fronts during the past week.

It all began in the senior house league at Woodland Lanes where Tom Kusch closed with a 251 for a 664 series that gave him a one-pin edge on Carl Clementi, who also finished strong. He had a 244 for his 663.

Even the women got into the drama when Norma Johnson, bowling in the traveling league, rolled a 568 and a mere nine-pin lead over Jan Palmer.

ONLY ONE 700 series was reported and that was the work of Bob Goike Jr. in the Westland Bowl Classic. He put together games of 214, 257 and 244 for 715. Jay Dishong was right behind him with a 698, that included a middle game of 248.

There also was a battle royal in the Monday men's loop where Jim Hurley posted games of 268 and 246 in a 696 and yet only won from Jim Blake by 16 pins.

JIM GUY learned what it is like to have the door of good fortune slammed in his face while bowling in the Elks league at Woodland Lanes. He started with 10 in a row. Then, as so often happens, the pressure got to him. His 11th ball was a real "Brooklyn" and he had to settle for a 288 in 650.

In the Saturday Kings and Queens, Joyce Johnson was high with a 228. In the Friday Kings and Queens, it was Jim Sei who landed in first place with a closing game of 235 in 639. Daniel Anderson had a 247 in 665 to top the Happy Bowlers mixed league.

ANOTHER CLOSE FINISH decided the winner in the St. John Bosco League at Garden Lanes. Tom Moersch posted a 641 to beat out Peter Lorieco by four pins.

HARRY GLASON was right on the mark at Merri-Bowl with counts of 259 and 239 in 644. But the spotlight was turned on Mike Hoobler, a 15-year-old, who posted a 235 in the Father and Son League.

In the St. Michael Ladies loop, Carol Londo and Gale Bower deadlocked at 207 for high game. In the junior league, Brian Neighbor was high with a 218.

GEORGINA KIRWIN waited until the final game to win her way to the title in the weekly battle in the Livonia Ladies Classic. She won the game with a 179-39-218 and the series with 518-117-635.

In the other games, Dorothy Goryca took the first with a 226-12-217.

AT FARMINGTON LANES, Bill Stephenson, only a short time out of the prep ranks, paced the junior house league with a 641, while Dave Hamilton took top honors in the high school loop with a 226 in 559.

Frayer is AD

Fetz recently resigned as athletic director so that he could devote his full time to teaching physical education classes at Stevenson.

Frayer, a coach and teacher at Livonia Churchill, made the jump from that school to Stevenson for various reasons.

"It was a big move up for me. I know I'm going to miss coaching but I like the challenge of the A.D. job. It really is a full-time job and I don't think I will be doing any coaching at Stevenson, not right now anyway," Frayer said.

Frayer coached the Chargers' baseball team and taught English while at Churchill. At Stevenson, he will again teach English.

NOT ON WRIF!
Obviously, what matters most is the music.
Let's face it – the reason you came to FM in the first place (remember when?) was to avoid all the games, jingles, hype, contests and interruptions that plagued you on your old radio station. You came to FM for the Beatles, for instance: for rock and roll. Back then FM was the only place you could hear it – and the only place you could hear it without the hassle. FM was an experiment for a new breed of music, a new breed of listener, and history proved you right.
But the times, even on FM, have changed. Today in Detroit, there are FM stations that even run contests. (Whether they call them that or not.) Contests that make you listen to win, listen to call in, listen to register to win – everything that can come between you and the music – but shouldn't.
At WRIF, we still play rock and roll. Period. We play up to six cuts in a music set, and we stop for commercials fewer times per hour on the average than any other rock station in Detroit. That means more uninterrupted Detroit rock than anywhere else in town. And we never, ever do contests.
WE TAKE YOUR MUSIC SERIOUSLY. We're particular about our rock. Record companies put out literally thousands of albums per year. You'll hear nothing but the best rock and roll on WRIF. And only the rock Detroit loves best. Because that's what we are. Detroit's Best Rock ... And no static at all.

Gridders hit road after heartbreaking defeats

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem football teams both hit the road Friday as respective league action continues after two heartbreaking setbacks last weekend.

The Rocks, 5-1 on the season, come off a five-point loss to unbeaten Trenton and must face Dearborn Edsel Ford in an afternoon battle at the Thunderbirds' field starting at 3:30 p.m. Later that night, the Chiefs, 3-3 overall, travle to Walled Lake for a battle with the Western Warriors starting at 8 p.m. Canton's record dropped to the .500 mark after Saturday's hard-fought defeat to Farmington Harrison, 14-8.

WITH TRENTON clearly in command as the only undefeated team in the Suburban Eight League, one could categorize the Salem-Edsel Ford battle as one for second place honors. Both teams have only one loss in the league—both to Trenton.

Trenton's Trojans, however, must face one more stern test this week in once-beaten Dearborn, which comes off a 35-0 victory over Redford Union—a team which Salem, Trenton and Edsel Ford all had trouble beating.

If Dearborn were to upset the favored Trojans, it would scramble the race and possibily cause a three-way tie for the crown.

"I don't think Dearborn is as good as Trenton but they have a chance," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer. If Trenton beats the Pioneers, the league title is all but assured since it faces sixth-place Allen Park on the final week. Dearborn battles Edsel Ford and Salem plays Bentley on that final week of league action.

Edsel Ford is not only bigger and stronger than Salem on the interior line, it isn't afraid to pass from its veer-option offense. The Thunderbirds are much slower than Salem or Trenton, however.

"We're not going to be down," Moshimer predicted. "The kids will come back strong as ever.

"This is a big ball game for us," he said. "It's a battle for second place but it could be for a share for first place if Trenton stubs its toe.

"I don't think anyone should beat Trenton but I'm hoping like hell that Dearborn does to get a share of the thing—which is better than nothing. If Dearborn doesn't do it, nobody will."

Moshimer feels his team will be ready for Edsel Ford, which has lost its only game by an 18-0 count to Trenton.

"Poor teams will quit after adversity, but Plymouth Salem won't," he said. "They (the team) took the loss (to Trenton) like men, which is what they are. Deep down, it hurts to lose."

PLYMOUTH CANTON faces a Western squad which comes off a 7-6 victory over lowly Waterford Mott. The 2-4 Warriors have one league victory, as do the Chiefs.

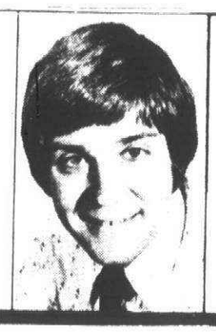

"Western's one of the most improved teams in the league," said Canton coach Dave Schuele, who also has to consider his squad in the same category.

"They've got some fair-sized kids, a couple that play well. I think they are bigger than us.

"We're going to have to play good ball," said the Canton mentor. "They are improved, they can play, and it's their homecoming. As long as we keep everyone in one piece we'll be okay. But they whipped us last year."

Canton has never beaten Harrison in the school's history.

Doc's Corner

Salem-Trenton contest ranked among the best

This week's games

Trenton's 21-16 decision over Plymouth Salem was, perhaps, one of the classic Suburban Eight League battle of all time. The Trojans, indeed, overpowered the Rocks up front and dominated the action for the entire 48 minutes. But Salem had the secret weapon of that big play on offense to counterbalance the Trenton muscle.

The difference in the game was no doubt the two costly fumbles in the first quarter. They led to Trenton's early 14-0 lead. After that, Salem outscored the current Sub-8 leaders.

Following the game, I expected Salem coach Tom Moshimer to be less than pleased with his team's performance. After all, he isn't used to losing that often and he hates to see fumbles.

But Moshimer was surprisingly calm. I've never heard him compliment a team as much as he did this one—especially after a tough setback. The Salem coach knew his team got beat on the interior line, but he also realized his squad did everything capable of stopping the mighty Trojans. The Rocks almost pulled off the upset. They came within five points of an undefeated season after they were projected to win no more than five games all season long.

I thought Salem might be down for this Friday afternoon's battle at Dearborn Edsel Ford at 3:30 p.m. But it won't be the case. I can see Salem coming back and defeating the tough Thunderbirds even after that disappointing loss to Trenton.

Salem will come back and beat Edsel Ford in the same manner it came back against Trenton after that early 14-0 deficit.

I said it last week. Salem didn't have the talent to be compared with a Trenton and I still believe it. But I've never seen a team with more guts and desire to succeed than this version of Moshimer's Rocks.

It's probably safe to say that Edsel Ford, Redford Union and even Dearborn have just as much or even more talent than the Rocks. But Salem has already defeated two of these teams and will beat Edsel Ford as well.

Because along with talent, it takes guts and the sheer desire to win if a team is going to be considered one of the best around.

Salem has this kind of desire and guts to finish 8-1. Salem by 7.

PLYMOUTH CANTON may be 3-3 at this stage of the season but that is definitely an improvement over the past three seasons. The Chiefs battled an average Harrison squad to the end Saturday night, falling short by six points.

The Chiefs have not fallen below the .500 mark all season long, which is an accomplishment in itself, considering Canton used to be the laughing stock of the western suburbs.

Now it's time for the Chiefs to enjoy a two-game winning streak and finish above .500 for the first time in the school's history. The first Canton victim should be Walled Lake Western Friday night on the road starting at 8 p.m.

The Warriors have won two games this season and one in the Western Six League. Canton has also won once in the league, as the two teams battle for fourth place in the final standings.

'M' left with broken dreams

By W.W. EDGAR

Seldom in the long history of football has a team raised more havoc on the collegiate scene than Michigan State did last Saturday when it upset Michigan, 24-15, before one of the largest gatherings ever to sit in on one of these gridiron extravaganzas.

They scrambled the Big Ten race.

They delivered a major advancement for the followers of football who have wanted to break up the Big Two (Michigan and Ohio State who have dominated the title race for a half dozen years).

They let the whole world know that Michigan is vulnerable to a passing attack that bodes ill for the Wolverines in their upcoming battles.

For years there has been a clamoring for a break-up of the Big Two, claiming that it would eventually ruin the game in the Western Conference.

How could it be done? No one came up with a plan. But Michigan State delivered the first real blow with its victory.

Both Michigan and Ohio State now have lost—and each of them faces tough competition over the rest of the way. Michigan meets Wisconsin on Saturday and the follows with games against two good passing teams—Purdue and Ohio State. Meanwhile Michigan State has what is considered an easy schedule the rest of the way with Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, Northwestern and Iowa.

While the Spartans are the team to watch for a title bid, Purdue seems to have the best chance to land on top.

With the downfall of Michigan, Purdue, still unbeaten, must face the Wolverines and then has what is considered easy sailing the rest of the way.

While Ohio State and Michigan can't be counted out of the race, it could be that much of the luster will be taken off their game. It has been for the title and the Rose Bowl in other years.

DRC action coming

The assignment of spring dates again to the Wolverine Raceway for its 1979 harness meeting at the Dtroit Race Course in Livonia has brought smiles to track officals.

The trotters will open at Wolverine April 9 and run for 84 nights through July 14, when the thoroughbreds will take over for 90 days.

"These are the days we sought," said Wolverine-DRC general manager Frank Bruno. "It's the best time of the year for harness racing in Michigan."

Bruno said that construction is under way to winterize the grandstand area at the track.

"We'll have the area glass-enclosed, which will make it more comfortable for our fans," Bruno said.

The trotters enjoyed a banner 1978 at Wolverine, and all the indictions point to an even bigger year in 1979.

State Racing Commissioner Fedele Fauri annouced the dates for Wolverine along with those for Detroit's two other harness tracks, Northville Downs and Hazel Park.

Action at Northville will begin Monday and continue through April 7. Then after the Wolverine meeting, the trotters will run at Hazel Park from July 16 through Oct. 20 before returning to Northville for the balance of the year.

Soccer missing

Due to problems with the telephone lines at the Livonia Family Y, the Western Suburban Soccer Standings were delayed in computation and failed to reach the Observer before deadlines.

The standings will appear next Thursday.

PRO FORECAST

Sunday and Monday, October 22 and 23

ATLANTA..... 21 SAN FRANCISCO .20

First '78 meeting between NFC Westerns (always wondered - Atlanta, West?) ... last fall, in two games, each team scored total of ten points against the other ... each won one.

CHICAGO..... 20 TAMPA BAY 17

NFC Central contest ... Bears' hopes for division title not bright after consecutive losses to Vikings, Raiders, and Packers ... met Broncos last Monday nite ... Bucs at home.

BUFFALO..... 17 CINCINNATI.....13

Battered Bengals bitterly buried in basement in AFC Central Division ... Bills still in shock after bombing by Jets 45-14 two weeks ago ... Buffalo home after 2 weeks on road.

CLEVELAND.....24 KANSAS CITY 10

DENVER..... 23 BALTIMORE 13

Raider-Bronco title race in AFC West rightened quickly after Denver losses to Vikes and Chargers ... even with injuries, Colts keeping AFC East leaders in sight ... nine to play.

GREEN BAY.....23 MINNESOTA 20

NEW ENGLAND.....24 MIAMI 23

Biggie in AFC East involving both of last year's runners-up to champion Colts ... they're this year's leaders ... each won one in head-ons in 1977 ... would prefer to call it even!

LOS ANGELES..... 27 NEW ORLEANS ...13

In spite of record, Saints capable of making any game tough, even for Rams ... three weeks ago, LA won only by six, 26-20, in NFC West meet ... Rams returning from clash in Minn.

OAKLAND.....26 SEATTLE 17

DALLAS.....27 PHILADELPHIA....17

Cowboys host Eagles in another NFC East contest ... Dallas won both ends of '77 doubleheader on way to division title ... Eagles hot and cold, always a threat ... Cowboys.

NEW YORK JETS.....20 ST. LOUIS 10

If Jets hot, they could blow Cards all way out to sea ... otherwise, St. Louis might win one ... they hosted Dallas last week ... "underdog" schedule faces Cards rest of season.

SAN DIEGO.....21 DETROIT 10

Lions turned Redskins white two weeks ago, losing in final seconds 21-19 ... Chargers zipped powerful Broncos same Sunday 23-0 ... Detroit whipped SD last season, 23-19.

WASHINGTON..... 30 NEW YORK GIANTS 20

Giants won only five games in '77, but two were over Redskins, 20-17 and 17-6 ... Washington, led by QB Joe Theisman, off to strong start this fall ... at home, NY down by 10.

(Monday) PITTSBURGH..30 HOUSTON.....23

Believe it or not, this game marks halfway point of '78 season ... Steelers hosting good AFC Central match-up ... last year, each beat the other by identical 27-10 score ... Pitt.

Ruffest forecasting season in memory .. last year in Oct., .786 .. this year, 54-30-.643.

CC upset; Agatha back on track

Where was that famed offense? That was the big question last weekend when Detroit Catholic Central faced Detroit Notre Dame in a Catholic League football contest and lost, 7-0, in overtime.

"Our defense was very strong during the game, but we just didn't execute on offense. It came down to the fact that we did the job on defense but didn't do the job on offense," said CC coach Thomas Mach after his squad lost to Notre Dame for the fifth straight year.

"We just didn't block well. It came right down to the basics of football. We didn't block, we didn't execute and we didn't play a very good football game," Mach continued.

For four quarters, the two teams faced each other with strong defenses and held one another outside of the goal line.

CC, extremely weak offensively, picked up just 76 total yards on offense. The Shamrocks actually tallied 114 yards but lost 38 in seven quarterback sacks.

Randy Larsen had 71 yards for CC in 24 running attempts, while quarterback Mike Lewis picked up 18 yards in four carries only to lose 38 in sacks. Lewis also completed two of five passes for 19 yards.

"The game was all defense. It was a hard-fought defensive battle. Neither team could move the ball on the ground or through the air," Mach said.

As for the Notre Dame jinx, Mach said that he doesn't believe in jinxs and that it was "a matter of us not doing the job and Notre Dame doing the job on us."

ST.AGATHA—MT.CARMEL

"We've been playing well the last few weeks, it's just that we're not winning. But this week we put everything together," said Redford St. Agatha football coach John Goddard after his team defeated Wyandotte Mt. Carmel last weekend, 14-8.

"Our defense has given up only six points in the last three games. It was our offense, with turnovers, that really hurt us before," continued the Aggies coach. The victory over Mt. Carmel was Agatha's first of the 1978 season.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Aggies mounted a 66-yard drive midway in the second period of play. Quarterback Mark Szerlag led the drive and finally scored the touchdown on a three-yard quarterback sneak.

Agatha then went for a two-point conversion but was stopped.

In the third quarter, Mt. Carmel scored when it blocked an Agatha punt. The following two-point conversion put Mt. Carmel ahead, 8-6.

The Aggies put together a 42-yard drive with less than five minutes left in the game, in an attempt to take the lead. Szerlag finally turned the trick with another quarterback sneak, this time from one yard out.

Curtis King dove into the endzone on an off-tackle dive for the two-point conversion following the touchdown. That made the score 14-8.

King was the Aggies' leading rusher for the day. He blasted for 144 yards in 22 carries. Agatha totalled 187 yards on the ground and 26 through the air. Szerlag tossed four passes and completed two.

"We are getting better with every game. We're a young team and it takes time to develop," Goddard said. "Our offense was super throughout the entire game. We finally got to the point where we put the ball in the endzone. Before, we'd always be stopped inside the 10 yard line.

"The whole team played very good football and I was proud of that," said the coach.

Sarah Stanwood flies for Salem

Call swim coach

Area high school swimming coaches are encouraged to contact Ben Rosinski, who will be charting weekly best girls' pool efforts. He may be reached 9-10:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 425-2629.

Schools in Livonia, Plymouth, Canton, Westland, Garden City and Redford are eligible for the listing.

Schoolcraft netters win 3

Schoolcraft College secured three victories last weekend in volleyball competition to raise its overall season record in dual matches to 6-1.

The Ocelots ripped Michigan State University JV, 15-3 and 15-5, outplayed Lake Michigan Community College, 15-13 and 15-11, then knocked off Flint Mott CC, 15-13 and 15-0.

Schoolcraft trailed Mott, 9-1, in the first game before rallying for victory. Peggy Moore ignited the Ocelots' comeback by serving nine consecutive points after Mott had pulled out to its big lead.

C'ville cracks Willow Run

With its best all-around offensive effort of the season, Clarenceville cracked Willow Run, 48-26, last weekend in a non-league football meeting.

The Trojans' balanced attack featured 258 yards on the ground and 227 through the air. Willow Run also moved the ball with regularity and netted 315 yards, all but 15 rushing.

All the points were scored during the first three quarters.

Clarenceville received the opening kickoff and drove nearly 70 yards for the initial score of the game. Jeff Nabozny capped the march by bolting into the endzone from six yards out on an off-tackle play.

Beyer observed that the area in which the original running play was designed to go was well defended, so he calmly and successfully adjusted at the line.

The first was a toss of 36 yards and the second carried 41 yards. Beyer rolled left before releasing the ball during each play and Borst made excellent catches while well covered on both.

"Beyer probably had his best game of the year-a fantastic game," said Clarenceville coach Ralph Weddle. "He was really throwing the ball."

The senior completed 16 of 22 passes for 227 yards and three touchdowns. He was not intercepted. Beyer also ran for 51 yards and one TD.

LICENSED REAL ESTATE BROKER

Can sell your home for a

*Brokerage Fee

or approximately 1% of the selling price*

When we say: "Why PAY more" it's because we believe approximately one-percent is all you should pay when you sell your home.
Other firms charge 6% or 7% depending on the real estate firm you're doing business with. On a $50,000 home a 7% broker will realize a $3,500 commission. That $3,500 commission is coming out of someone's pocket, either the buyer's or seller's depending on the individual transaction. American Home Services can save you $2,850.00 of your hard earned money for the same transaction.
Call us,

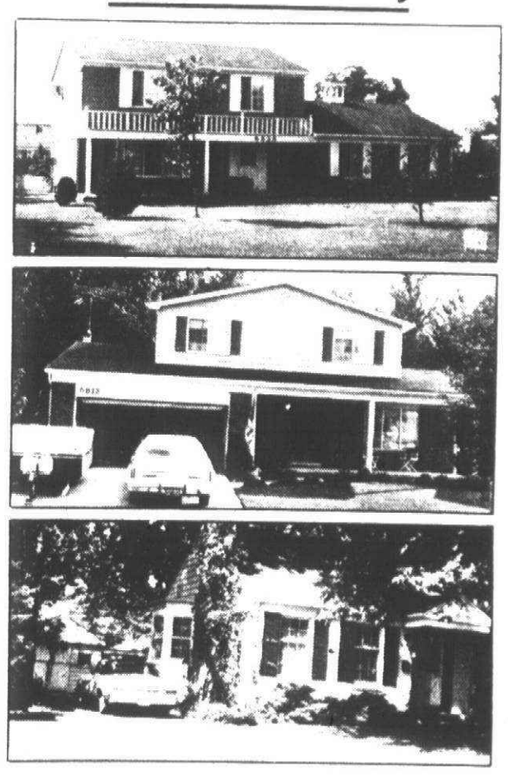

At American Home Services we're not just another paper processing company. When we list your home, we go right to work. We first erect a sign on your property and begin an advertising plan. We then contact prospective purchasers, at which point we qualify the buyers and negotiate the price up to the finalization of the purchase agreement. We then arrange for financing, prepare a closing statement and attend the closing with the seller, buyer and their attorneys.
When it comes to selling your home, we work hard and we don't fool around.

Plymouth 453-8200

THIS CUSTOM BUILT HOME HAS EVERYTHING: an extremely attractive New England exterior, over an Acre of beautiful trees, and an imaginative floor plan of large rooms. There are 4 bedrooms (a main floor master bedroom), 2 full baths, 2 half baths, a formal dining room, a 20x20 gathering room with a fireplace and built-in bookcases, a lovely wood deck overlooking a fresh water stream, 1st floor laundry, a walk-out recreation room with a second fireplace, and an attached 2½ car garage. THERE ARE MANY CONVINCING EXPRESSIONS OF QUALITY WITHIN THIS HOME AND YOU'LL FIND ITS LOCATION TO BE A SPLENDID SOLUTION FOR RELAXATION, SOLITUDE, AND FAMILY ENJOYMENT. $129,000. 453-8200.

NEVER BEFORE OFFERED! THE TRADITIONAL "GOOD LOOKS" OF DUTCH COLONIAL design are accepted by all: this example has 3 bedrooms (a very large master bedroom suite), 1½ baths, formal dining room, a lovely kitchen, family room with wood-burning fireplace, finished basement, and attached 2 car garage with opener. Faultlessly decorated and including Central Air. Adjoining a 4.5 Acre park, few homes can compare to this fine offering. $73,900. 453-8200.

LIVABILITY FOR THE EXPANDING FAMILY could hardly be any better expressed than in this impeccable and sizable Farmhouse on 3 ACRES. Close to schools and the Colony Swim Club, it features 6 bedrooms, 3 full baths, formal dining room, a study, recreation room with fireplace, kitchen with breakfast area, basement, and six car garage. Impressively maintained, you'll further discover a substantial barn of great proportions that is in excellent repair and ideal for the hobbyist or the self-employed individual. LARGE TREES AND QUIET SURROUNDINGS ARE A PART OF THIS FASCINATING HOME. $149,500. 453-8200.

NEW ON THE MARKET! PLYMOUTH. CONTEMPORARY TWO-STORY LIVING IS DRAMATICALLY PRESENTED in this exceptionally built and highly individualized home. The wide, overhanging roof, the attractive stone and masonry fireplace walls, the ceiling angles, and the exciting room sizes set the stage for discovering an outstanding interior. There are 4 bedrooms, 2 full baths, 2 half baths, formal dining room, a marble foyer, a 39x25 family room, 2 exceptional fireplaces, 1st floor laundry, walk-out basement, and oversized 2½ car attached garage. AN ENDLESS LIST OF FINE FEATURES CONTRIBUTE HEAVILY TO A HOME THAT ENJOYS A FINE SETTING IN A FAVORED NEIGHBORHOOD. $189,500. 453-8200.

New Home Living

Offered By Local Area Builders

Come to our Open House and find out.

In 32 years, Capp has made quality custom-built housing affordable for over 50,000 families.

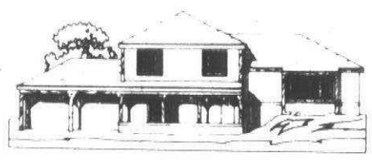

We don't build pre-fab or modular houses. We erect the home of your choice, stick by stick, on your lot and the foundation you provide, using only top-quality materials.

By the time our carpenters leave, your house is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish.

We provide all the necessary materials you need to finish it yourself. Following our concise, step-by step instructions, you can complete your dream home at an undreamed of price.

By finishing it themselves, many Capp customers save thousands of dollars compared to what they'd pay a general contractor to build the same home on the same lot.

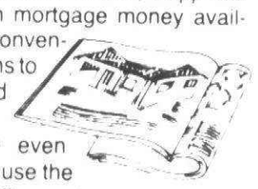

You don't have to be a craftsman, either. Just crafty. You can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead.

One that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

Capp Homes are such a good value they qualify for FHA, VA, Farm Home and conventional mortgages. If you can't get financing from another lender, Capp has millions in mortgage money available at conventional terms to "qualified buyers." You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.

Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed, and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

Decade-long and annual grudge matches between neighboring schools promise the turnout of an enthusiastic crowd that noisily urges its favorite team on.

On the field, young men of all sizes and shapes, who were just a few hours earlier studying algebra or taking an English literature exam, have donned the school colors of red, white and blue, or purple and gold and have only one goal in mind—to win the game.

A previously anonymous student can become the school's overnight hero if he catches that badly-needed touchdown pass in the game's final minutes or throws the opposing team's quarterback for a loss on a crucial play.

And, while the losing crowd and team leave the field, many will be overheard vowing, "We'll get them next year."

Action On Taxes

". . . We Need a Major Tax Cut to Stop Taxation by Inflation . . ."

TAX CUTS TO STIMULATE SECURE NEW JOBS AND ECONOMIC DIVERSIFICATION MEAN WE CAN FUND ESSENTIAL SERVICES AT LOWER TAX RATES

Congressman Pursell voted for both tax cuts and spending restrictions. He co-sponsored the most sweeping tax reduction plan in Congress, designed to leave more of your pay in your pocket and keep inflation from pushing you into ever-higher tax brackets.

Carl wrote a bill to reduce the federal bureaucracy by 10%; not by putting people out of work, but by phasing out some jobs which become vacant each year. It would save hundreds of millions of our tax dollars. He also introduced legislation drafted by Michigan women to help end tax discrimination against women.

Before entering Congress, Carl Pursell was a leading budget watchdog in the State Senate, and sponsored a program to cut Michigan property taxes 50%.

Pro-abortion leader Baird challenges church's stand

By PATRICIA LaCROIX

Bill Baird is fighting a war, but even he admits that he may be losing.

"War" is the word he uses to describe the tensions between the pro- and anti-abortion factions.

"The forces are in motion, and they are powerful ones," Baird said last week, speaking of the people who oppose the right to have an abortion. "We have almost reached the point of no return."

Baird was in Southfield under the sponsorship of the Northland Family Planning Clinic in Southfield. He is nationally known for his challenges to restrictive birth control and abortion laws.

He has been involved in many U.S. Supreme Court cases, spoken his views before large gatherings at colleges and universities, and has been jailed eight times in five states.

He has been called names by the anti-abortion forces, names like "peddler of death" and "the sexual Pied Piper." He also has been called the devil.

Baird became involved in this volatile issue 15 years ago—long before, he said, it was really an issue. He was visiting a hospital at the time as a medical director for a pharmaceutical firm. Then a woman who had tried to abort herself died in his presence. From this time on, he said, he has worked incessantly, trying to have "barbaric" laws overturned.

This has taken him into the courtroom many times.

In 1972, he appeared before the Supreme Court in a case which legalized birth control for single people. The brief from this case was cited six times in a 1973 decision, which made some abortions legal in the United States.

More recently, he successfully challenged a Massachusetts law that required the signatures of both parents before an abortion could be performed on a minor. This case is now in the Supreme Court.

"Most of the teens that come into my clinic can't even tell their parents that they have had intercourse, let alone that they are pregnant.

"I just can't see a girl going to her mother and then to her father asking for their signature on the dotted line," he said.

"I know of nothing more basic than your right as a woman to control your own body."

The argument that a woman, having received an abortion, has also controlled the body of another person is not logical, Baird said.

"If I held up an acorn, anybody in their right mind would think you were really off the wall if you said that I was holding up a mighty oak tree.

"An embryo is just that, an embryo. That is what I tell everyone who asks that question," he said.

Not everyone agrees, however, and the Catholic Church has often been cited as the leader of anti-abortion drives. Baird produced tax records from last year that he claimed showed that the Catholic Church in the Detroit area, under the direction of John Cardinal Dearden, has contributed $7,500 to anti-abortion forces. Nationally, the Church had contributed more $250,000 to combat the pro-abortionists, he said.

"I really object to some guy standing up there in a little white collar and a black gown and saying 'This is God speaking: Our morality must be your morality'," he said.

The Catholic Church is leading a drive to get states to call for a constitutional convention on the abortion issue, he said. The convention would draft an amendment prohibiting abortions. Thirteen states have agreed so far, 26 are needed for the convention to be called.

THIS?

or THIS?

1. The computer printout showing the final results of the refraction.
2. The black device is a moveable headrest that insures the exact positioning of the phantom lenses. Her eyes look odd because the hologram is turned up to maximum intensity to demonstrate the phantom lenses.
3. The computer display permits the doctor to watch and control the rate and direction of the change in focus of the holograms.

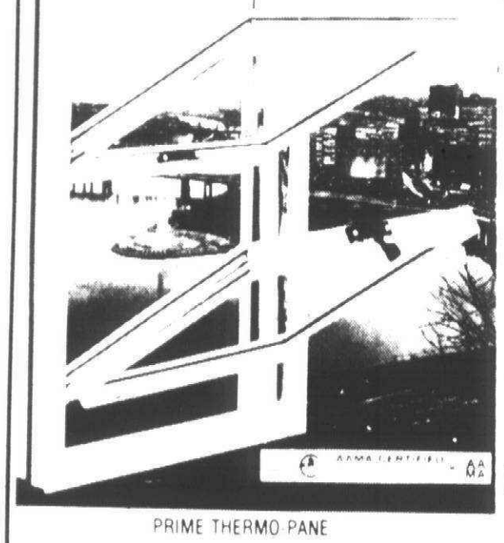

In the late 1800's the phoroptor (top left) was invented, greatly improving the speed and accuracy of the vision exam. Since then very few improvements or even changes have been made.
Now, after nearly 100 years, a radical change has been introduced into the field—the Humphrey Vision Analyzer 210. Instead of placing a 30 pound lens bank in front of the face, 20th century technology can focus a pair of phantom lenses just in front of the eyes, very much like a hologram. In addition, the prescription of the "hologram" can be continuously changed similar to a zoom camera, instead of the alternate click—click of the old style phoroptor. Also, this steady change is constantly analyzed by a modern microcomputer throughout the refraction.
These are just a few of the many improvements incorporated in one instrument to help the doctor improve your vision. Optics and Optometry have come a long way since the phoroptor was invented. The Humphrey Vision Analyzer—20th century technology making a difference you can see.

Police expert says

Americans foster organized crime

By KATIE KERWIN

The underworld.

We say it "as though it were underground, 200 feet down a mineshaft where we couldn't smell its stench; as if we had never touched it or been touched by it," says Ralph Salerno.

Salerno, a police specialist on organized crime, was the first speaker for this year's Troy Town Hall lectures.

He told the audience, "I'm going to talk about organized crime as you have lived with it."

"It's you, not them," Salerno thundered, hammering home his theme that all citizens are responsible for the level of organized crime in this country.

Americans like to bury their heads in the sand when it comes to unpleasant topics, Salerno charged. The term "underworld," the second most frequently-given synonym for organized crime, is an indication of the distance at which we would like to keep it.

But the word most often associated with organized crime, he said, is "Mafia."

"Americans love that word. It makes us feel good because it is a foreign word, an alien word."

But the criminal exploitation of gambling, narcotics and labor racketeering didn't come over on the boat from Sicily, Salerno pointed out. None of those are even problems on that island.

It thrives in the metropolitan Detroit area by plundering the poor in the ghettos, exploiting the gambling tendancies of the middle class and siphoning money of the rich through the auto industry.

"Organized crime is typically and representatively American. It's the American dream of how we measure success in money."

SALERNO WAS A member of the New York City Police Department, specializing in organized crime. He rose to the rank of supervisor of detectives on the force. Salerno was a witness at the U.S. Senate hearings of the McLellan Crime Committee and a consultant to the President's Crime Committee.

He has advised the federal justice department and several state attorneys general. Salerno is currently assisting the committee investigating the Kennedy and King assasinations.

"Organized crime is inextricably interwoven with the history of our country," he asserted. "It has never designed a product," yet it rakes in billions of dollars each year. "It has initiated nothing. It is entirely reactive to us."

He said financial rewarding of those who violate the law to provide us with illegal goods and services is responsible for the power organized crime has developed.

"Prohibition made millionaires out of gangsters."

He said the mob didn't instigate national prohibition, it merely reacted to it. "We make violators of the Constitution very rich men."

AMERICANS HAVE a tendency, he said, to resist government regulation and to reward those who will supply them with hard-to-get illegal goods and services. Catering to these interests has often been handled by the most recently-arrived immigrant group, according to Salerno. For a small percentage first- and second-generation German, Irish, Italian and Jewish immigrants, organized crime offered a tempting alternative to a life of hard-working poverty.

"But we're not just talking about past history, we're talking about today." Blacks, Hispanics and Orientals are the minorities most frequently lured into organized crime currently. Blacks, although far from new to this country, are the latest group to move into the urban centers of the northeast.

"There is a growing black Mafia in America," Salerno said. But the label of "organized crime" often is not attached to their activities, because they are black and "there wasn't an Italian in sight."

ORGANIZED CRIME surrounds us, Salerno said.

"Organized crime can be reduced to a tolerable level in any decade in which we want to do it." The key is not headhunting, Salerno stressed. The arrest or death of mob leaders in the past has not stopped the organizations. Taking away the illegal activities that supply their income would be the most staggering blow, he stated.

Salerno advocated legalization of the numbers game and government sale of heroin. Legalizing the number would be "better for the entire community and better for the black community," he said.

The high price of black market heroin drives many addicts to crime, hurting both users and the community, Salerno maintained.

UM-D financial aid shows large increase

Students at the University of Michigan-Dearborn received approximately $1.2 million in financial aid during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The $1.2 million figure represents a 63 per cent increase over the 1973-74 fiscal year. During this same four-year period, U of M-Dearborn's FTE (full-time equivalent) enrollment increased by 49 per cent.

The data was from a questionnaire completed by all colleges and universities in Michigan, and included all forms of financial aid from public and private sources.

Fellowship is health key

By JACKIE KLEIN

They are nervous patients gathered around a table, forming a panel. They introduce themselves by first names only.

Among them are former mental patients practicing self-help and getting after-care to prevent relapses. These men and women are attending a Recovery Inc. meeting in Southfield Parks and Recreation Building on Friday night.

The system used in the non-profit organization was developed by the late Dr. Abraham A. Low, a psychiatrist. Recovery Inc. is managed by former patients who have been trained to help themselves and offer encouragement and strength to others.

"Recovery is a fellowship among the many who have known the discomfort of emotional and mental illness," explains Isadore, who leads the Southfield group. "Through association with one another, members discover their suffering isn't unique.

"Week by week, as they undergo training, members find that life consists mainly of trivialities, not the dire emergencies they interpret them to be."

Members of the Friday night group greet each other warmly in an atmosphere of understanding and acceptance born of sharing similar experiences. Those who feel stigmatized are encouraged to rid themselves of the belief that emotional and mental illness is a disgrace.

THEY BEGIN the meeting by reading aloud from Low's book, "Mental Health Through Will Training." The group occasionally listens to one of the late psychiatrist's taped lectures.

Next, in the panel portion of the session, Isadore asks for examples of how members handle such situations as a temperamental misunderstanding with a husband, wife, child, boss, neighbor or stranger. Patients relate how they have dealt with nervous fears, obsessions or compulsions.

Observers or newcomers are asked not to participate until they have read at least a portion of Low's book. Participation is voluntary.

Members give examples according to a formula developed by Low. First they give the facts, then they describe how they reacted, how they applied Recovery techniques and how they would have handled the same situation before training.

Using Recovery language, other members of the group point out techniques applied by those who gave examples.

"Several weeks ago my husband went with his friend to a bar to watch a football game on television," says Marian, who's been in the program about a year.

"He said he'd be back about 4 p.m. When 5 o'clock came and Bill wasn't home yet, I became temperamental and worked myself up.

"I THOUGHT he didn't care how I feel and he thinks more about that damn football game than he does about me. Before long, I had palpitations, tightness in my stomach and pressure in my head. I thought of calling up the bar and telling Bill I wouldn't stand for the way he treats me.

"Suddenly it came to me this was sabotage. I said to myself 'you think he's wrong and you're right.' But in Recovery we learn there is no right or wrong in domestic life. There is only irritation and discomfort, not judgments. Pretty soon I calmed down. When Bill came home at 6, I was irritated but I didn't make an issue of it.

"Before I had my Recovery training, I would have told him exactly how I felt and how wrong he was. I wouldn't have spoken to him for days. But then I would have developed all kinds of symptoms, I would have felt palpitations, shortness of breath, fear of being alone, poor sleep and fatigue all day. I would have suffered for weeks."

Members are also asked to describe symptoms of temper. "My voice shook, my hands trembled and I felt the blood rushing to my head." They learn to "spot" (gain insight into) symptoms and discomfort they produced. The philosophy is that members of Recovery are average, not exceptional.

RECOVERY members are usually persons who have made the rounds of physicians. Many have been hospitalized for mental illness. They worry about symptoms and they fear relapse, Isadore said.

"Underlying manifestations like dizziness, sweats, numbness, tremors and depression are fears of mental and physical collapse and permanent handicap," he said.

"Recovery members learn to handle frustrations and irritations of everyday life and to command their muscles to do the things they fear to do.

"They learn not to run away from fearful situations but to bear the nervous discomfort caused by fears. It's hard at first. But with continued practice and encouragement, they succeed."

Around the table, Recovery members support Marian and endorse her for her efforts. The situation, they comment, was distressing but not dangerous.

"Marian gained self-respect by taking a crack at her self-importance," said John, a member of the group. "She realized she's not exceptional and her fears are average. She commanded her muscles and exercised her will."

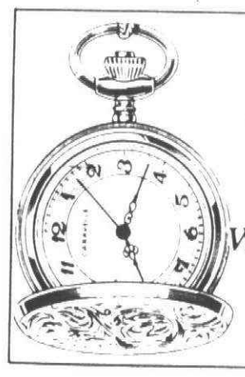

For Marian, like other nervous patients, mental health is a long-range goal, Isadore explains. They realize they can't control their outer environment, but they can change their thoughts.
