Federal civil rights survey results revealed

Minorities tiny part of district's students

By LYNN ORR

Three per cent of the nearly 16,000 students in Plymouth-Canton schools are of racial minorities, an extensive civil rights survey reveals.

The results of the federally-mandated survey conducted last fall shows that 0.6 per cent (92 students) are black; 0.6 per cent (99 students) are Indian-Alaskan; 1.4 per cent (226 students) are Asian or Pacific Island heritage; and 0.4 per cent (72 students) are Hispanic.

The breakdown by sex is nearly even, with 7,944 males and 7,876 females in the district.

Each school's student population was analyzed, a "huge" survey, says Sam Ulsaker, administrative assistant in charge of research and federal projects for the district.

"It's of questionable use to us," he commented. "If we were in the throes of desegration, it would be information that would be useful." As it stands, the mountain of forms is another result of a federal law that consumes paper and time, he reflected.

THE SURVEY does show that nearly all the black students in the district are from Canton Township.

Tanger Elementary School in Plymouth Township, which has a large proportion of students from the Honey Tree Apartment complex in Canton, and Bird Elementary which has one black student, are the only elementary schools outside the Canton boundaries with black students.

The majority of black students at the middle school level attend East, while 32 of the Asian students attend Pioneer.

At the two high schools in Centennial Educational Park, eight black students attend Canton and six black students attend Salem.

The survey is mandated from the Office of Civil Rights in Washington, D.C., Ulsaker says, adding many districts use the results for federal grants applications.

Canton High had already documented the proportion of Indian or Native American students and is in the third-year of a federal grant for Indian education. That grant will bring in $47,805 this year, which is used to fund the cultural center at Central Middle School.

About 27 of the 99 Indian students in the district attend Central, which is why the school was chosen for the program site, Ulsaker said.

HE'D LIKE to be able to fund some bilingual programs for other students in the district not covered by the civil rights survey as well, he says.

Vietnamese, Armenian, Caldean, and Arab students in the district often have problems with the language, but none of the groups total more than 20 students which is required for fund applications.

"Some of them are having difficulty. If we got the money, then we would start looking at ways to get them together for classes."

The results of the survey are on file in the central administration building and at individual school buildings and are available to the general public.

Jaycees begin efforts to put Canton on map

A truck loaded with supplies for a Canton business comes barreling down I-275. The truckdriver keeps an eye out for a exit sign telling where to get off at Canton Township. There is no exit sign. The truckdriver stops at a rest area finally to check the map, but doesn't find a Canton Township anywhere.

"Ah ha," thinks the truckdriver. "The dispatcher must have meant Canton, Ohio."

So the truckdriver goes on to Ohio, only to find that the guess was wrong. Meanwhile, a Canton businessowner is fretting as supplies run low and new stock is nowhere in sight.

Yes, folks, there is a Canton Township, but you'd never know it by looking at a state map or state highway. The reason for the omission is Canton's Township status. Only cities and villages are designated on maps and highways.

The Canton Jaycees are hoping to change all that with a petition drive to put the township on the map.

Signatures collected on the petitions will be presented to the state legislature Jan. 29 at a scheduled discussion on state signs.

The petition drive is only part of the project to get recognition for the township. The Jaycees have also begun a campaign to distribute bumper stickers saying "Canton Can" and will soon conduct a contest to design a flag for the township.

The phrase, "Canton Can" stands for "Canton--Committed Awareness Now." Some 2,500 bumper stickers with the slogan will be distributed through the Canton Chamber of Commerce, township hall and area businesses.

The flag contest, which will be kicked off later in the month, will offer prizes to the winners in five age categories. The prizes will be $25 savings bonds for each winner. A judging committee of local residents will be selected to pick the best flag. The overall winner's design will be made into an official Canton Township flag.

Co-chairmen of the four-part program to strengthen Canton's identity are Noel Culbert (who is also township supervisor) and Drew Rentz.

The total cost of the project has been estimated by the Jaycees at $950.

Juvenile mob ransacks store

A Westland party store was the scene of a weekend fight that sent an employee to a hospital for treatment, Damon M. Plasencia, 19, of 27047 Kennedy, Dearborn Heights, received six stitches for cuts to his head.

Westland police said a group of teenage boys and girls entered Mac's Party Store, 27506 West Warren Road, about 6:12 p.m. last Saturday.

A dispute and fight began over the purchase of a package of cigarettes by one of the girls. Police said several in the group left when store owner Chung K. Sun, 64, 40056 Cambridge, Canton, and Plasencia ordered them from the store.

Plasencia told police that one of the teen males broke a quart bottle of beer over his head and began hitting him in the face with another bottle.

A Westland Fire Department rescue vehicle took Plasencia to Garden City Hospital.

Officers retrieved a black ski hat and part of a pair of glasses.

A police investigation is being handled by youth officer Tim Abramski, who is seeking the names of the teens for information about the case.

The girls are described as about 15 years old. One was wearing an orange jacket. She has very long, blond hair and is about five feet, six inches tall.

One of the males is about 16-17 years old with collar-length black hair, five feet eight inches tall, medium build and a mustache. He was wearing a blue coat with a fur-trimmed hood.

Another is about the same age; height, five feet six inches tall, very thin build.

He has brown collar-length hair, and glasses. He was wearing a green coat, blue tennis shoes and a black hat.

There also were two other boys in the group.

Ecology workshop scheduled

Winter ecology, local history and outdoor math activities are among workshop topics in the second annual Environmental Education Conference at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

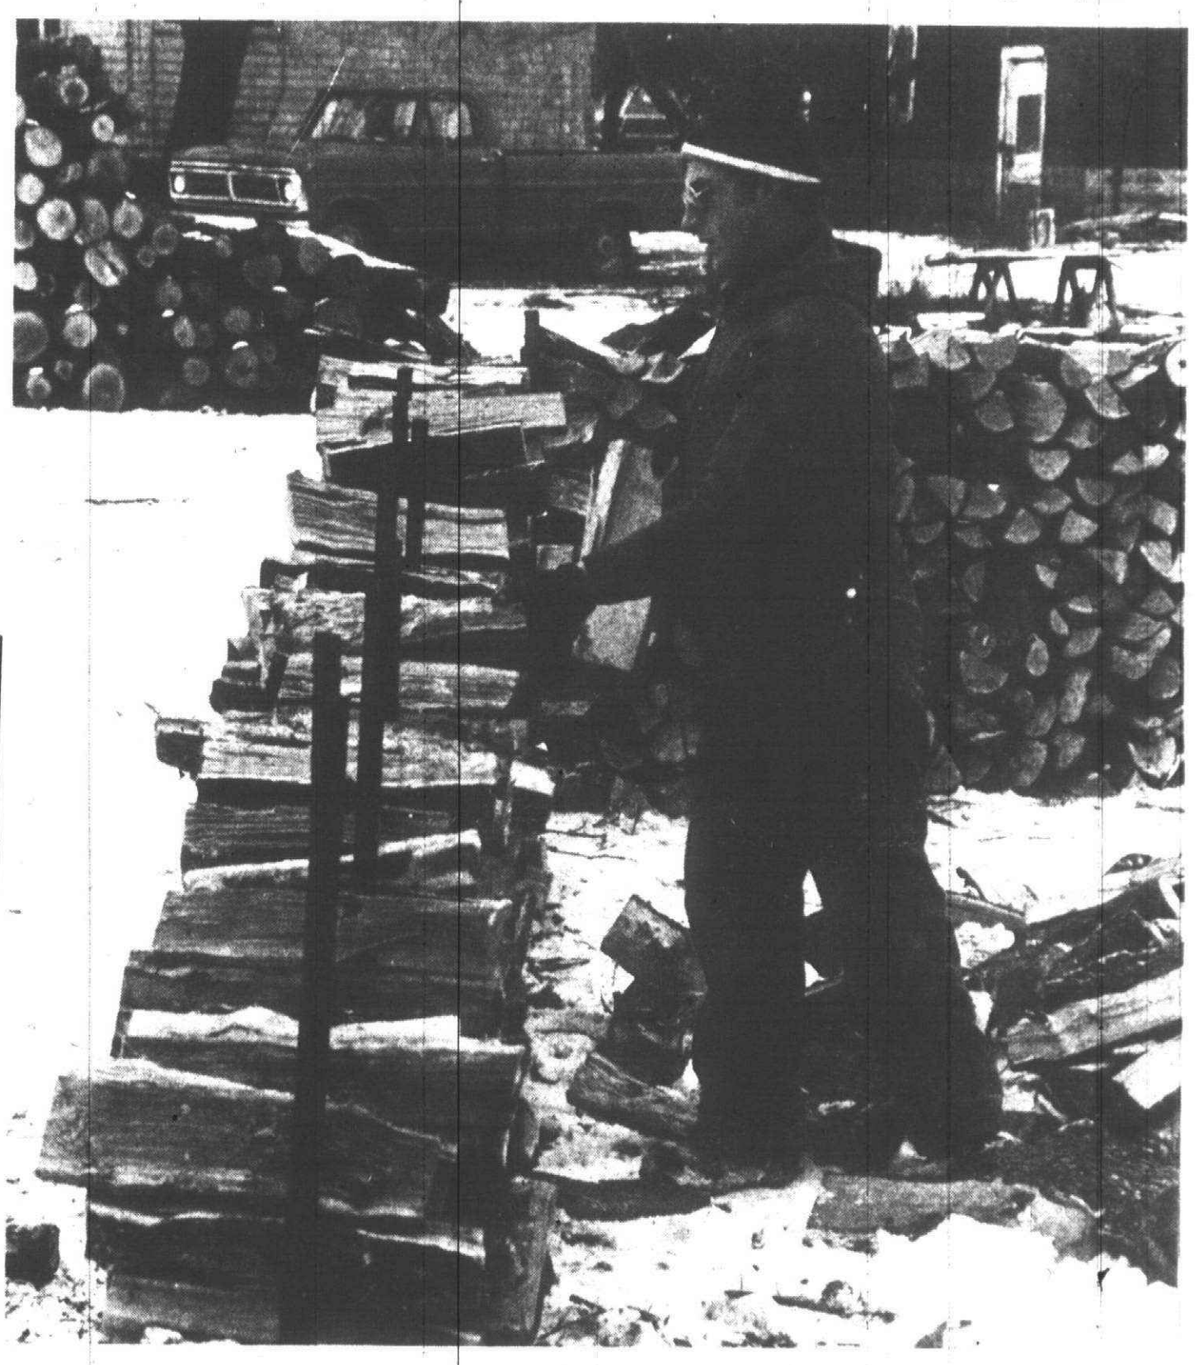

The day-long program will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 27 in UM-D's campus at 4901 Evergreen.

It is designed for elementary and secondary classroom teachers. One hour of graduate credit is available for those who attend this conference and an additonal all-day session Feb. 5.

After the keynote address by Dr. William Stapp, professor of natural resources and education, a series of workshops will cover such topics as: Local history, archeological digs in the classroom, natural arts and crafts, school camping, teacher's wilderness leadership training and the demonstration of an energy-environment simulator.

Registration fee of $10 includes lunch at the Fair Lane Conference Center. Without lunch, the fee is $6.

Registration can be is being handled by conference coordinator Richard H. Moyer at UM-D, 593-5090 or 593-5123.

Final battle over sign law nears after planners OK controversial ordinance

A controversial sign ordinance that removes a ban on free-standing signs will appear before the Canton board for its final test in about a month.

The ordinance, which has been hailed by the business community and bemoaned by many residents, was approved by the Canton planning commission last week after more than a year of study.

The Wayne County Planning Commission is expected to make its recommendation on the proposed law at its Feb. 21 meeting.

The former township board appeared ready to adopt an almost identical ordinance last fall after the law won the approval of the township planning commissions. The document was sent back to the planners, however, after an error was found in the publication of public hearings.

Canton's four new board members expressed their opposition to the law proposed last fall.

Robert Padget, chairman of the Canton planning commission, said the proposed ordinance has remained essentially the same.

Treasurer Jim Donahue, the most vocal critic of the ordinance during the election campaign, says "there's no way in the world" he would vote for the law in its present form.

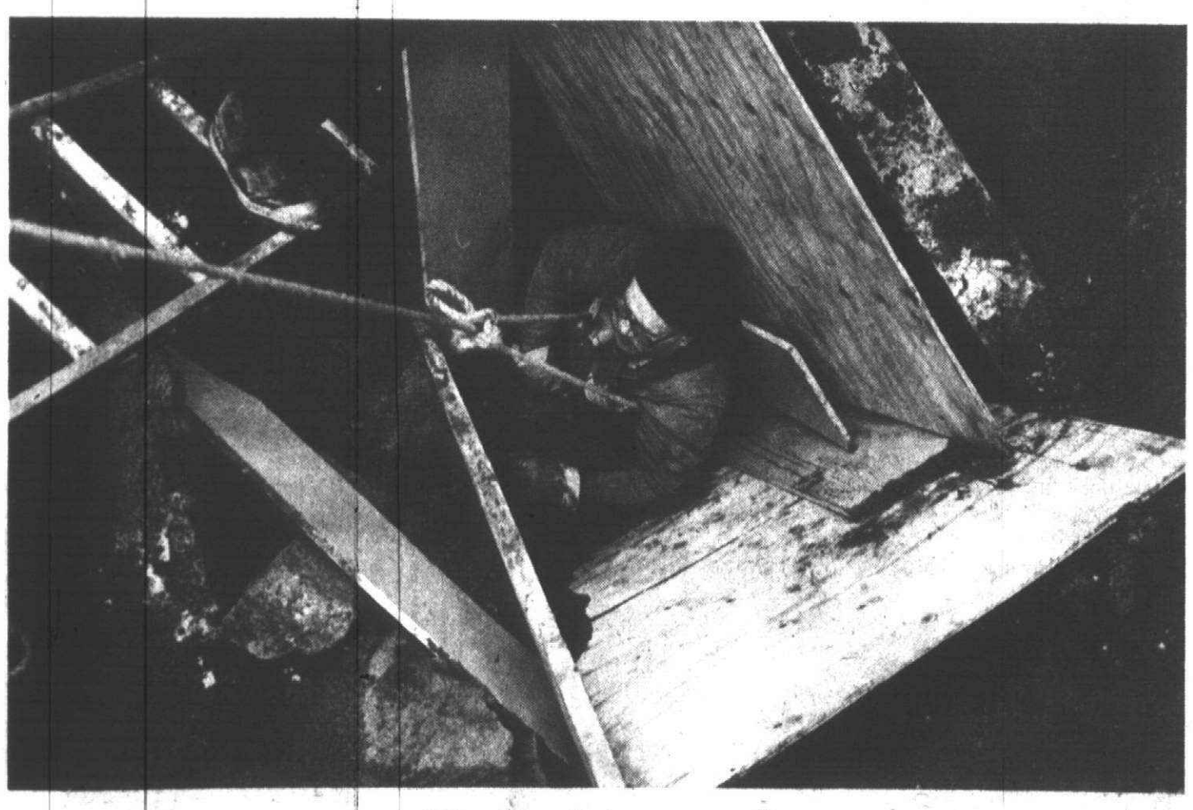

The proposed ordinance allows businesses to erect ground signs near the roadway and permits signs of up to 50 square feet in commercial districts.

Donahue believes the signs permitted by the ordinance are too large.

Padget would not guess on whether the ordinance will be approved by the township board.

"The planning commission has taken heat and beatings on this," Padget said. "We've had it long enough, and it's time we get on to other business.

"The (township) board is the final body. They can do what they want with it."

Nuns quietly don new habits

By ARLENE VANDERLEUN

Can today's nun find happiness and fulfillment in a let-it-all-hang-out era? Just ask four Westland women and you'll get a resounding "yes" to that question.

If you met Gloria Kelly for the first time, you might guess that she's a suburban housewife — bubbly Earth Mother to a brood of children. Helen Williams looks like a breezy, confident career woman — perhaps a nurse or teacher.

Sharon Simond resembles an intellectual college student, while Elizabeth Jane Jarvis looks like everybody's favorite aunt — friendly and smiling.

In fact, they are sisters, united not by flesh and blood but by their calling to the religious life. They are Roman Catholic nuns whose lives strike a delicate balance between religious and secular worlds.

All four work as liturgical aides or counselors by day, and return to separate, comfortable Westland apartments at night.

"We are professional women, but we are willing to give our gifts of God and live according to the lifestyle," said Sr. Sharon, 39, a Dominican nun who coordinates religious education at St. Richard Church in Westland.

The vocation is "a mystery, a desire, a force," according to Sr. Gloria, 51, also a Dominican nun. She holds a similar position at St. Bernardine of Siena parish in Westland.

Holder of master's degrees in education and religious studies, Sr. Gloria has no feelings of denial. "Sexuality is still there," she said. "It's humanness. It's a free choice."

Sr. Elizabeth, a member of the Immaculate Heart of Mary order for 40 years, works with Sr. Sharon at St. Richard.

Also a member of IMH is Sr. Helen, 47, who coordinates religious education and counsels parishoners at St. Kevin of Dearborn Heights.

She feels her calling was to help people, and confesses that after entering the noviate at the age of 17, it took her a decade to "come to grips" with her vocation.

"It's like marriage," she explained. "You say 'yes' on a (wedding) day and deepen the commitment."

WHILE THEIR commitment calls for vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, it isn't all piety and prayers. There are also dinners at the Red Lobster and occasional movies.

Friends and neighbors, they form a mini-religious community that began when Sr. Helen moved into the apartment complex at Cherry Hill and Henry Ruff in Westland.

Later, through word-of-mouth, the other three nuns moved in as well. Each of the nuns has her own apartment.

"This is happening all over the country," said Sr. Gloria.

"There are no longer enough sisters to fill large convents," she added. "Some will rent a house and others rent apartments."

Sr. Sharon feels "lucky" to be a sister now. "It's exciting, it stretches the mind."

She enjoys attending workshops and seminars which focus on the role of today's nuns. And she talks of changes in the Catholic Church which began after Vatican II, the church's ecumenical council in the early 1960s. It was a time of challenge to the Church's authority, and priests and nuns were leaving in droves.

As a result of Vatican II, nuns were given the option to modify their clothing from the traditional long habits and veils to shorter versions and, eventually, to the same type of clothing that other women wear.

Vatican II also gave nuns the option of keeping the names they were given when they became nuns or going back to their birth names. (All four of the Westland nuns opted to return to using their birth names.)

"The changes came fast, and shook up a lot of people," said the brown-eyed, petite Sr. Sharon whose twin sister is married. "I get really uptight when people talk about clothes. The commitment is the same."

For Sr. Elizabeth, the change in work clothes had its drawbacks.

"I loved my old habit," she commented. "It was blue, and it was beautiful." But beautiful or not, she feels people respond more warmly to the pantsuits and skirts in which she now outfits herself.

"A habit could be a coverup," she added. "It sets you apart."

Sr. Helen agrees.

"I can remember the day I took off my habit," she recalled. "I hadn't shown my legs or hair for a long time.

"The idea was to make us accessible to people," added Sr. Helen. "It wasn't done flippantly."

BESIDES CHANGES in outward trappings, there were opportunities for nuns to leave the communal, monastic life of the convent, as the ranks of the sisterhood dwindled. And they began to take more responsibility for their lives.

For instance, nuns now apply for positions which they wish to hold — in teaching, nursing, pastoral ministry (visiting and counseling parishoners) and religious studies. Previously, they were arbitrarily assigned to a church or school.

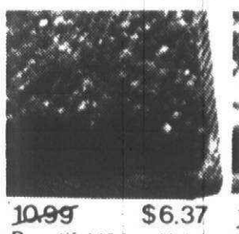

The new rules allow them to remain near family and friends. Helen hails from Flint and the others are native Detroiters.

Assignment selection is done in "dialogue," which Sr. Sharon describes as a "discussion in the spirit of listening and caring together."

Work-Education Council grows into bigger offices

An old house is getting painted and primped in preparation for its new tenant, the Work Education Council of Southeastern Michigan.

The house, of rambling stucco, overlooks Main Street in Plymouth. It's larger than the council's former home in Livonia, which Executive Director John Graves says will allow the organization to expand its staff.

The work Education Council, which has been in existence several years, serves communities primarily in the western Wayne county area. It is a consortium of education, business, labor, industry and government representatives.

Its purpose is to bring the interests of those in, or about to enter the work force with those who will eventually serve as their employers.

It is supported by the National Manpower Institute and the U.S. Department of Labor. The council operates on a budget of $45,000 per year.

Graves said the search for a new office involved examining a number of communities served by the council before Plymouth was finally chosen. "Plymouth has always been an outstanding community, always willing to cooperate."

"That's not to say other communites haven't been cooperative as well," he said.

The building is being leased from Marda Benson and Charles Avis, who would not reveal what the rent will be.

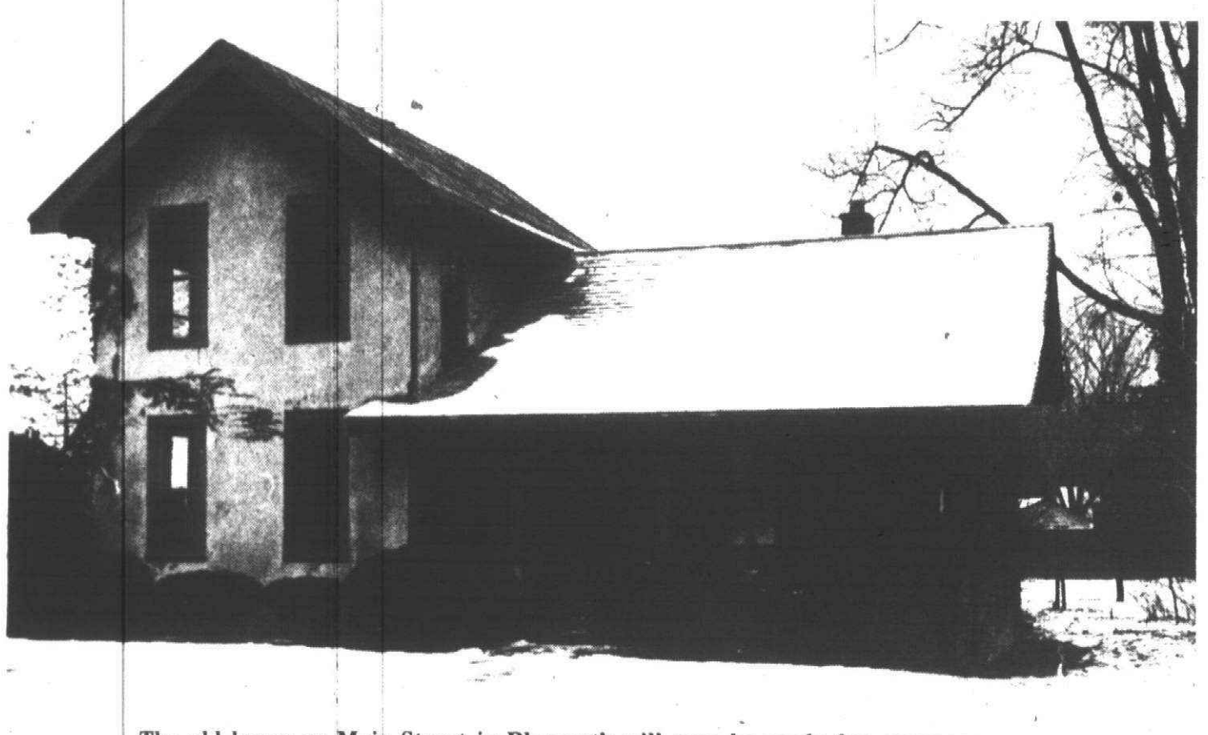

The move-in date is set at March 1. Graves said the council has three employees now and hopes to add two more people to the staff once the move is made.

Keith Heiss of Ann Arbor works at widening a doorway.

The old house on Main Street in Plymouth will soon be ready for occupancy.

And now a word...

You can't trust any of those people in commercials.

This probably comes as no momentous news to anyone. It's one of those truisms everybody says because it's true.

I would think the great minds that get together to decide how best to sell us something we don't want would realize how easy it is to destroy the effect of a commercial.

Remember when Farrah Fawcett was making commercials for Wella Balsam? She claimed the stuff made her hair everything she could desire. Then, the fame (and possibly the shampoo) went to her head and she got involved with her own line of hair products.

Now she pitches Farrah Fawcett Shampoo and Conditioner, which we are expected to believe is the only thing she would ever use on her tresses. I expect she's telling tbe truth, since she probably gets cases of the products for free.

Of course the Wella Co. didn't sit around letting the moss grow when it lost Farrah. Cheryl Ladd, newest Angel and Farrah surrogate, now tells the world how great Wella is for her hair. She'll probably keep doing so until someone names a shampoo for her.

There's another set of commercials that don't go well together. It's hard to forget the Ambiance commercial featuring a woman doing a modified strip tease to prepare herself for hubby's homecoming.

When she finally gets herself all gussied up, some man (presumably her husband) opens the front door and gives her a goofy look. I believe the look is supposed to convey passion.

Another commercial, this time for Woolite, has a woman prior to going on a date donning her drifty, delicate dress that just got washed in Woolite.

The same man who came home to the Ambiance woman comes to the door of the Woolite woman—and flashes the same goofy look.

Now what is this man doing at another woman's house, especially after his wife spent all that time getting ready for him to come home? One can only assume that this man is playing around. Is that the kind of image commercials wish to present?

I know the viewer is expected to disassociate one commercial from another, but the whole idea behind commercials is to get you to remember them. Sometimes we remember all too well.

Another disappointing commercial is the one in which Dick Cavett pushes cereal. I've always thought of Dick Cavett as rather a neat kind of person, above the crass commercialism in the world.

I feel let down when I see him peddling Suger Frosted Flakes. Cavett should be selling something with a bit more panache, such as Rolls Royces or cashmere sweaters.

The absolute worst kind of commercials are the ones promoting cannibalism or suicide.

McDonald's commercials are the best at this. First they show all these cute, lovable hamburgers which talk, dance and sing. What are they singing about? They want us all to run out to McDonald's and eat those self-same lovable hamburgers. They even go to McDonald's to get hamburgers for themselves. That's disgusting.

In the same vein are commercials featuring Charlie the Tuna, who always wants Starkist to put him out of his misery.

Supposedly, all commercials are carefully screened before audiences before they ever make their way to our television sets, newspapers and magazines.

It seems hard to believe that the Suzy Chapsticks and Tidy Bowl men of the commercial world managed to slip by that kind of scrutiny.

Want to go to Scandinavia?

American students, aged 16 to 18, are being sought by the American Scandanavian Student Exchange to attend high school in Sweden, Norway, Denmark or Finland. Or they may join a family for a five-week summer stay in 1979.

The organization is also looking for families to host 500 Scandanavian high school students for the 1979-80 school year. The students, age 16 and 17, will arrive in the U.S. in late August, attend the local high school and return home by late June, 1980.

The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in Scandanavia. They will have their own pocket money and medical insurance.

Those interested in either program may contact George Bergman, 783 Easley Drive, Westland, 722-1353.

The ASSE is the official Swedish high school exchange program in the U.S. operating under the auspices of the Swedish Board of Education.

In Plymouth Township

Home renovation bucks available

By W.W. EDGAR

Tom Notebaert, Plymouth Township supervisor, is puzzled. And he has good reason to be.

" The township has about $22,000 in our home rehabili tation program," he said , "and no one has come to ask for any of it. Maybe it is just because the money is to be put out on loan. But you would think there are some homeowners who would qualify to take part in the program."

The money, according to Supervisor Notebaert, is to be used for such things as new furnaces, insulation, new roofs, new siding, gutters and down spouts, new kitchens and many other repairs.

While the program originated last year with a federal grant of $24,000 there wasn't a single call. And this year there has been only one and that was for a new furnace.

"That's why we have $22,000 left. We bought the new furnace and the rest of the expenditures were for clerical work. But I am sure puzzled when we don't get a single call asking for help."

Under the program, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, a limit is placed on the amount of income needed to qualify for a loan. While HUD periodically updates the income limits, the present figure is based on 80 per cent of a maximum family income of $19,875. This means that a family of one can qualify for a loan of $11,150 and this increases with the size of the family.For example, a family of eight can borrow $19,900.

In the low income family groups these figures change and the loans are limited to 50 per cent of the $19,875 income.

Under this plan a family of one could qualify with an income of $6,950. This increases to $13,150 for a family of eight or more.

Supervisor Notebaert, while puzzled at the lack of applicants, believes that many persons have forgotten about the program.

"You would think there are plenty of homes in the township that could use some of the home improvements that are available. But we don't hear a word."

For those who do call, they find that they do not qualify under the terms of the program.

For those who do qualify, a $1,000 loan would cost only $16.55 per month for a period of 60 months.

'Meet Pursell' format established with local service organizations

When U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) speaks before the Rotary Club of Plymouth Friday in the Mayflower Meeting House he will inaugurate a program designed to become a regular inter-club activity.

Under the chairmanship of Harold Guenther, Friday's luncheon meeting has been opened to all clubs and organizations in the area and thus far 13 have responded.

"This is a wonderful way for the people in the area to learn what is going on in government," commented Guenther on the new plan.

"With government the way it is today, we need every opportunity to keep abreast of things. That's why I think all clubs and other organizations in the area should have representatives at Friday's meeting."

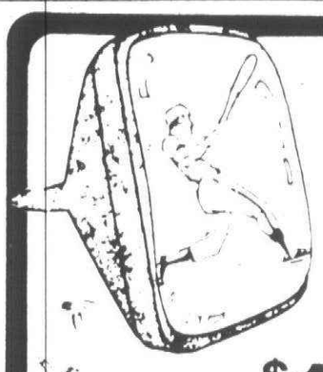

Guenther is hopeful that the other service clubs will join in the effort, such as Kiwanis, Optimists, Lions, Jaycees, AAUW and BPW.

Pursell is expected to be appointed to the House Appropriations Committee--one of the most important in Congress--and is now in a position to have access to information which can be passed on at the inter-club meetings.

During the past year Pursell has been one of the leaders in studying the laser beam--one of the sources of energy--and has spoken before a group of scientists, including Nobel prize winners, in Miami Beach.

He should have a worthwhile message Friday and all clubs are urged to send their officers or delegates to the meeting which begins at 12;05 p.m. Price of the lunch is $5, although persons can arrive at about 12:45 p.m. for only the program.

This will be Pursell's first public address since he was sworn-in for his second term last Monday.

Trustees debate Schoolcraft millage renewal

By TIM RICHARD

Richard Hayward, the only Schoolcraft College trustee with no political background, raised the delicate question the other seven trustees missed:

How is the community college going to recruit more than 8,500 "yes" votes for a property tax proposal on the March 26 ballot?

Hayward, appointed to the board last August, raised the question at the tail end of the board's Jan. 11 meeting, almost two hours after trustees decided to ask voters to authorize up to one mill for five years.

"There are 8,500 'no' votes, automatic," said the structural steel company executive. "We need to get 8,501 or 8,502 — or 8,505 in case of a recount."

Traditionally the voters in the five K-12 districts in the college district have cast at least 8,500 votes against trustee requests like this one.

"A COMMITTEE will be set up very quickly," said Board Chairman Paul Kadish. "It would be good if every member of the board were on the committee."

Vice-chairman Harry Greenleaf suggested plans be outlined not in a large committee but by only two or three persons, then approved by a committee.

Other trustees pointed out they had only a couple of months to work.

Other than that, there was no discussion of how the board plans to spend the money and what it must do to convince the public to vote it.

ONE MILL is $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. On a house with a market value of $50,000, assessed for taxes at half that amount, one mill will cost $25 a year.

District-wide, one mill will raise about $2 million the first year and a total of $12 million over five years, considering growth of the tax base.

The board has yet to spell out precisely where the money will go, but top priority is to raise $400,000 more locally for the Culinary Arts addition to the Waterman Campus Center. That is a $1.5 million project, when state aid and the current bank balance are added.

A second priority will be a new library and remodeling of the current Bradner Library into offices and classroom space. The current library is considered to be about half the size Schoolcraft should have, accrediting agencies say.

Other previously discussed priorities are major maintenance and a new road to the west side of the campus from Six Mile.

The ballot proposal specifies only capital expenditure, site improvement and maintenance.

BOARD MEMBERS revealed they had declined to take advantage of a "one-day law" which would have allowed them to float a bond issue by resolution and without voter approval.

The so-called Headlee Amendment, approved by voters Nov. 7 and taking effect Dec. 22, prohibits general obligation bond issues without voter approval.

So the Michigan Legislature passed, and Gov. Milliken signed on Dec. 20, a bill allowing charter authorities to start the bond issue process by a simple resolution on Dec. 21.

City OKs contract

A two-year contract has been ratified calling for money improvements of 8.09 per cent the first year and 6.69 per cent for the second year.

The contract was ratified Jan. 9 by Local 1811 of the National Association of Firefighters and was approved Monday night by the Plymouth City Commission.

The wage provisions of the contract are retroactive to July 1, 1978, and the contract will expire in July 1980.

UNDER THE NEW agreement wages in the first year for a firefighter will be $13,622 at the entry point and $19,360 at the top during the fifth year of employment.

During the second year of the contract, the wage scale will be from $14,576 to a top of $20,715.

For lieutenants, the pay will be $20,993 for the first year and $22,463 for the second.

John Zech, administrative assistant, explained that during the first year wages would increase by 4.04 per cent and fringe benefits by 4.05 per cent.

For the second year of the contract, optical care insurance premiums will be paid for by the city. The agreement also provides that beginning with the second year medical/dental/optical premiums will be paid for by the city for retired firefighters.

During the second year, the maximum on longevity pay will be raised from $600 to $800. Firefighters will be paid $35 for each year of seniority beyond four years. In the second year the meal allowance will be raised from $425 to $465 annually.

The agreement is complete except for two items — sick leave and short and long-term disability — which have gone to arbitration.

Born with cold

NANCY WALLS SMITH

I feel like I was born with a cold.

I've forgotten what it's like to be clear of head and to actually breathe without that old familiar bronchial rasp.

Aaaa-choo! Excuse me.

There must have been a time when this family had nary an ache, a sneeze, nor a sniffle between us, but I certainly can't remember it. As nearly as my stuffed little head can recall, the kids came down with a humdinger of a cold sometime in the middle of September. Since then we've all been playing a game of viral ping-pong. The object of the game seems simply to keep passing that dumb old germ around. Not very exciting, I can assure you. I can't tell you the number of boxes of Kleenex we've gone through. Cough drops, vaporizers, nasal sprays, Vicks, aspirin, and cough syrup have become a way of life around here. It's been a real fun winter.

This week hubby is well, while the kids and I are dragging around in a perpetual mist. I feel like my head has been vacuum-sealed. By the time we're ready to romp, hubby will no doubt be lying on the couch moaning that he's going to die. (He doesn't take colds lightly.)

I must confess though that I am finally getting better about seeing my kids through their illnesses. It's taken me four years, but I've realized at last that sniffles do not need a specialist and a sore throat doesn't require surgery. It's difficult for an alarmist like myself to keep from rushing to the doctor every time one of my children sneezes. With doctors' fees being what they are, those sneezes can get downright expensive. Besides, it got to be embarrassing. I would rush my child in, only to hear the doctor announce, "He has a cold, Mrs. Smith." To which I would reply, "I know he has a cold; I want you to cure it!" I tend to get a little unreasonable when I'm worried about my kids.

What's even worse is when I rush them to the doctor only to hear, "Your son is completely healthy, Mrs. Smith."

"Then why are his tonsils so big?"

"Because at four years of age their tonsils are larger than at any other age. It's a completely natural phenomenon."

"Oh." You know that feeling when you would love for the floor to open up so you would have a convenient place to hide. I've had it often.

I've also gotten a little more lax about exposure to germs than I was a few years ago. When the boys were infants I would practically wither on the spot if a person was so bold as to have the audacity to enter our home with a head cold. If I could have managed it, I would have forced all of my friends to undergo a thorough physical before they were allowed in the same room with my healthy infant. Today I've finally realized that the dead of winter is no time for nasal snobbery. If you limit your associations to those who have no use for Dristan, you just ain't gonna see many people.

I've heard that once your children start school, you can be prepared for the onslaught of colds, mumps, measles, etc. Oh, whoopee. Now that the eldest is in nursery school, I guess the family is doomed to at least 12 years of adolescent ailments. I think maybe I'll discourage him from going to college, just to give us a break on the doctor's bills.

Oh, sneeze, sniffle and groan. Maybe I wasn't born with a cold, but if this one gets any worse, I feel like I just may die with one.

Aaaa-choo! Bless me.

Joyner tells rotation plans

R. William Joyner, county commissioner representing Plymouth and Canton, has announced plans to spend one day each month in a different county department performing the duties of a cross section of employees.

Joyner began the rotation last Saturday by working with the Wayne County Road Commission while road crews were at their busiest clearing roads during the storm.

Next month, Joyner (D-Plymouth) plans to spend a day--possibly on the night shift--with the sheriff department road patrol.

His tentative schedule in the future includes: March, Office on Aging; April, treasurer's office; May, clerk; June, road commission road grading; July, health department; August, Wayne County Hospital; September, Corporation Counsel; October, Sheriff Department, county jail; November, drain commissioner; December, Wayne County Commissioner in another district.

"It is my hope to get a better feel for the operation of the county from the point of view of the employees. We are a big operation and for a commissioner to know everything about the county is very difficult.

"But I am going to try to involye mysel?f inthe?in the total operation--to gain an insight which will hopefully allow me to better represent the people in my district.

"If a resident calls me up with a complaint or a question I hope to be able to answer with a little bit of knowledge about a particular department or program. I think it would be neat to answer the question with a 'hey I know the answer because I was there and was shown how it happens.

"I also expect to be keeping my eyes open for ways the county can be saving money. By being on the job I will certainly get a feel for how our money is being spent," Joyner concluded.

Schoolcraft trustees ponder representation

The Schoolcraft College Board, with its lopsided 75 per cent Livonian majority, is worried about how to get proper "input" from the smaller K-12 districts — Plymouth-Canton, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville.

"I agreed with the late Sen. Everett Dirksen," said Board Vice-chairman Harry Greenleaf, "that you need some geographic representation in state houses and on a board like ours."

Greenleaf, of Livonia, last week urged trustees to consider a plan used by Delta College in the Bay City area. There, candidates run at-large but certain seats are allocated to candidates from certain geographic areas.

The board agreed to explore the matter at a future meeting.

Only Trustee Len Wozniak of Livonia was unenthusiastic. "I see no reason to discuss this. I have never heard where one community suffered for lack of representation on this board."

"It's not an issue of representation," replied Greenleaf. "It's a matter of input."

COLLEGE ATTORNEY Wolfgang Hoppe said in a written opinion that a plan like Delta's would be constitutional.

"The (U.S.) Supreme Court has explicitly upheld residency requirements," he said, citing 1964 and 1966 opinions. "In both cases, the representatives were elected at large but were required to reside in a particular district.

"The Supreme Court held that such a plan does not violate the one-man, one-vote principle.

"These decisions were premised on the fact that the representatives represented the entire area rather than the particular district in which they reside. Therefore, such a plan might be struck down if it could be shown that the trustees in fact only represented a K-12 district rather than representing the entire Schoolcraft College district."

WHEN FOUNDED in the early 1960s, Schoolcraft elected one trustee from each member K-12 district and three at-large.

Occasions arose where Livonia, with about 50 per cent of the population, had only one of the eight seats while Plymouth, with about 20 per cent, had four seats.

In 1971 the New Democratic Coalition of Livonia, citing a 1969 high court decision in Missouri, successfully challenged the Schoolcraft apportionment in Wayne Circuit Court. Judge Roland Olzark ordered elections held at large.

Because of that reapportionment, and because a number of strong candidates happened to reside in Livonia, the board now contains six Livonians, one Plymouth-Canton resident who is a transplanted Livonian, one from Garden City and no one from Clarenceville or Northville.

IF THERE IS to be reorganization of the Schoolcraft board, it will take an act of the Michigan Legislature.

"It's possible, but impractical, to have it through the legislature by June," said President C. Nelson Grote.

Schoolcraft District voters will elect two trustees June 11. The terms of Chairman Paul Kadish of Livonia, Treasurer Nancie Blatt of Livonia and Trustee Gerald Cox of Garden City will expire.

Under a new state law reducing the number of trustees from eight to seven, only two seats will be filled. Dr. Cox has announced for re-election already, Mrs. Blatt is likely to run again, and Kadish is undecided.

In addition, the one-year vacancy to which Trustee Richard Hayward of Livonia was appointed will be open. Hayward is likely to run for it, although there is nothing to stop him from seeking a full six-year term.

Police to receive new talk system

The Plymouth Police Department will soon be receiving a new communication system, replacing one which has been in use for 20 years.

The approval of the purchase was made Monday night by the Plymouth City Commission, which also approved a bid for clean-up of the DPW yard and approved a mayoral appointment.

THE MOTOROLA Co. received the order for the new communication system with a bid of $13,902.

The entire cost of the equipment is being paid for by Community Development Block Grant funds--federal money allocated by Wayne County to local municipalities.

The fire department also uses Motorola equipment for its communication system.

The city also accepted the low bid of $6,437 from LaFave Trucking Inc. of Canton to clean the DPW yard. The city had budgeted $12,000 for the work. The difference will go into the general fund.

In other action, the commission approved Mayor Thomas Turner's recommendation to reappoint Clifford Tait to a three-year term on the Tax Board of Review.

The city commission also agreed to waive the penalty on current county and school taxes from the period of Feb. 15-18, 1979.

Crime drops in Plymouth

Reports filed for the last month of 1978 showed a number of types of crime in Plymouth dropped dramatically from the previous year.

Police Chief Timothy C. Ford reported to the Plymouth City Commission that robbery was down 48 per cent (five cases instead of eight) from 1977 to 1978.

In other categories, burglary is down 18 per cent (112 cases to 92); larceny down by seven per cent (341 to 319); fraud, down 30 per cent (82 to 57); drug offenses, down 39 per cent (21 to 15); and traffic accidents, down 15 per cent (509 to 433).

The number of traffic tickets issued rose from 4,974 written in 1977 to 6,718 in 1978. The department made a total of 989 arrests compared to 613 in 1977.

One of the most dramatic changes in Ford's report was the recovery of lost and stolen goods in 1978 valued at an estimated $152,291 compared to a recovery value of 1977 of $49,066.

Mayor Thomas Turner commented that the reductions are especially significant given the expectation of many officials and residents that crime would increase with the opening of new freeways.

Area C-Cs will join

A number of local Chambers of Commerce have joined to form the West Suburban Area Council of Chambers.

The purpose of the council is to promote chamber unity in the west suburban area.

Chambers which have become a part of the new council include Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington, Westland, Redford, Garden City, Wayne, Northville, Romulus, Belleville and Novi.

The council's intent is to coordinate efforts on specific legislative issues which have the support of at least 75 per cent of the member chambers.

The council also will be a tool to foster communications among member chambers and to promote the interchange of ideas and goals among the chambers.

Frank Hand, Livonia Chamber president, was elected council president at a recent organizational meeting.

Is opposed to new spa

Editor:

How by any stretch of the imagination can a Male Health Spa be allowed as "Light Industry"?

That is one of four businesses which have gone into a complex at the end of Irvin Street, and allowed by the Zoning Board of Appeals on Dec. 18. The business was already operating!

At that same board of appeals meeting a businesswoman who was putting in a drapery and wallpaper shop on N. Mill Street was asking to put up a wood and shrubbery fence behind her business and the home behind her instead of the concrete wall which is required by law in a business district. But this complex of "light industry" doesn't have to erect anything but a chain link fence between it and the homes surrounding it. Furthermore they don't even have to erect that until spring.

This industrial complex does not have enough parking for the cars which frequent the 20 exercise stations in the health spa, much less any future business, but that doesn't seem to matter to the city. The males who frequent the spa can park on the street, or in the alley, all hours of the day and even after midnight.

There are many questions running through my mind about all this but the most puzzling is why a supposedly new business would want to start in the remotest possible northwest corner of the city instead of in the business district?

How have they attracted so much business so quickly, with no advertising, and not even a sign on the front of the building?

If that is the first business in the complex what will the other three be?

With that kind of neighbors, the only possible way to recoup the money I've invested in my home would be to rent or sell to a massage parlor or brothel and have the rest of the Eight Mile types in the same neighborhood.

Already there are two young males from the subdivision, about age nine, who are encouraged to hang around the business.

AAUW backs tax renewal

Editor:

The board of directors of the Plymouth Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) urges residents in Plymouth and Canton to pass the millage renewal proposition today (Thursday).

We feel that the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools "tradition of excellence" contributes to the quality of life and the economic status of our district. The future of our children depends on the continuation of the best education our community can provide.

Because the 6.5 mills, which expired in 1978, represents about one-seventh of the present income for operating schools, its renewal is vital to any kind of quality education for the children of our district.

Resident defends ban on teenage drinking

Editor:

It would greatly please and surprise me if you would print my following thoughts concerning your recent editorial opinion of Dec. 28:

In response to Mr. Daniels' editorial opinion of Thursday, Dec. 28, 1978, regarding the passage of Proposition D raising the legal drinking age, I have to applaud Judge Ralph Guy's decision to uphold Proposition D in the face of unbelievable pressure from liquor interests and bar owners' associations.

Judge Guy respected the mandate of the people, and it seems the majority of the voters are tired of our youngsters (many of whom are below the age of 18) dying on the highways.

Really, Mr. Daniels, you can't blame the older voters whom you say "ganged up on the younger ones" to take away their so-called "drinking rights" through ripping apart the Age of Majority Act piecemeal. All intelligent persons know the "Age of Majority Act" passed in 1972 was an appeasement granted to the 18-21 year olds during the Vietnam fiasco. Well, that, thank God, has long been over, and in reality, Mr. Editor, you have the 18-21 year olds themselves to blame for the passage of Proposition D; they have been irresponsible in providing liquor for the younger high school children. You can also indict the get-rich-quick bar owners and liquor store owners who sold alcohol to children under 18.

Yes, you are correct in assuming many older voters want to protect our children. It's time we all started acting as "social parents" (the media, most of all)!

I could go on and on providing good reasons for the passage of Proposition D, but I think most intelligent, clear thinking adults already know what they are.

Three cheers for Judge Ralph Guy!

PAT RHINEHART,
Plymouth

Animal trapping is protested

Editor:

In an attempt to understand the cruelty of trapping, I ask you to put yourself in the position of a trapped animal.

Imagine walking through the forest enjoying nature, smelling the fresh evergreen air, listening to the sounds of birds and squirrels—then, suddenly, stepping into a powerful steel jaw trap.

Imagine the agonizing pain and torment as you try to pry open the trap but are unable to do so. Imagine tearing your flesh and muscles as you try to escape. Imagine your leg becoming numb and your voice becoming hoarse and then silent as you cry out for help hour upon hour, day upon day. Imagine your frenzied terror as you realize no one is coming to help you. Imagine animals gathering around you watching in sympathy. Imagine a mountain lion or a wild dog lunging at you with his sharp fangs as you feebly attempt to defend yourself. Imagine becoming weak from loss of blood, becoming thirsty, starving, and shivering with cold. Finally, imagine a human being walking up to you and bashing your head in with a club or stepping on your chest and crushing it.

More than 11 million animals are trapped for their fur in the U.S. every year in this manner. Isn't it time we stopped killing our wildlife for economic gain and fashion?

'Good deal' township bought invites suspicions

The wreaths and roping that adorned Canton Township hall last month have raised a sticky question.

The decorations were undoubtedly purchased at the lowest possible price. But they were purchased from a wholesale florist distributor owned by the family of Treasurer Jim Donahue.

Was the purchase unethical because it profited a firm where Donahue is employed and which he will soon partly own? Or should the township board ignore possible conflict of interest in order to get the most for their money?

THE QUESTION is not an easy one to answer.

Donahue claims that his firm--Moore Greens Co.- is the only Michigan wholesale distributor of Christmas wreaths and roping that can survive indoors.

That means the township would have spent more to purchase the decorations from a retail shop. And the shop would have purchased the decorations from Moore Greens Co. anyway.

The $290 wholesale purchase will not drain Canton coffers nor noticeably fatten the profit margin of Donahue's firm.

But buying any consumer item from a firm where a township board member is employed raises eyebrows.

A township board members who owns a car dealership could make a bundle by promising a low price on a new fleet of police cars. A realtor who sits on the Canton board could earn fat commissions by pointing out good land deals.

The Michigan Legislature recognized the temptation of elected officials to profit from their simultaneous public and private jobs when it passed a state law prohibting public employees from lobbying for a contract which benefits their employer.

Donahue did not ask the township to purchase the Christmas decorations from his firm. But his brother-in-law, Thom Carman, did.

Carman, who does not work for Moore Greens, undoubtedly asked for the purchase at the public meeting in December to give a festive air to township hall--not to line his relative's pocket. Carman noted that Donahue could buy the decorations at a good price.

BUT THE PURCHASE does not improve Donahue's image.

The township board should not have acted so hastily in directing Donahue to make the purchase. Nor was the purchase necessarily the "best deal."

The township board was so excited with the prospect of buying something at wholesale price that they did not consider alternatives for the sprucing-up of township hall.

About $175 of the Moore Green's bill went for the purchase of short-lived greenery. About $115 was used for the purchase of an artificial Christmas tree and lights.

Paying $175 for decorations that can only be used one year is a frivolous move for a township board supposedly concerned with spending.

At a recent board meeting, Trustee Eugene Daley voted against payment of the Moore Green bill because he charged conflict of interest.

Unfortunately, Daley's objections came too late.

Midwest pays, Sun Belt collects in Super Bowl

This is Super Bowl week. Sunday probably the largest TV audience of the year will gather before their sets in the warmth of their living rooms.

Another 75,000 souls will gather in Miami to witness the game in person.

Super Bowl is big business. Try getting a hotel room, a rented car or a dinner reservation in Miami this week.

The normal celebration starts Wednesday night and ends Sunday with the game, but few people leave the area until Monday.

Two years ago, the five days of activity brought more than $120 million to the Los Angeles economy.

DETROIT HAS a good chance to host this extravaganza in 1981 and why shouldn't it?

Football is a midwestern sport. It started here. More people in the midwest support the National Football League each week during the regular season than any other area in the country.

The Sun Belt, Florida, California, Texas and Louisiana don't come close -- yet this is where the NFL has been holding these games for the last 12 years and will this year and next.

These Sun Belt facilities claim to offer beautiful weather for the game, but in four of the last five games, the weather has been either wet or freezing.

Last year the game was held in New Orleans. Fortunately the game was played indoors at the Superdome because outside it was 27 degrees, the same temperature, ironically, that Detroit had that day. But it was a damp 27 degrees in New Orleans.

The football owners know Detroit is a good sports town. The check they take away from a game here amounts to one of the tops in the league, yet the Detroit football club hasn't fielded a great football team in many seasons. The check they take away in many cases is more than they would make in their own home stadiums.

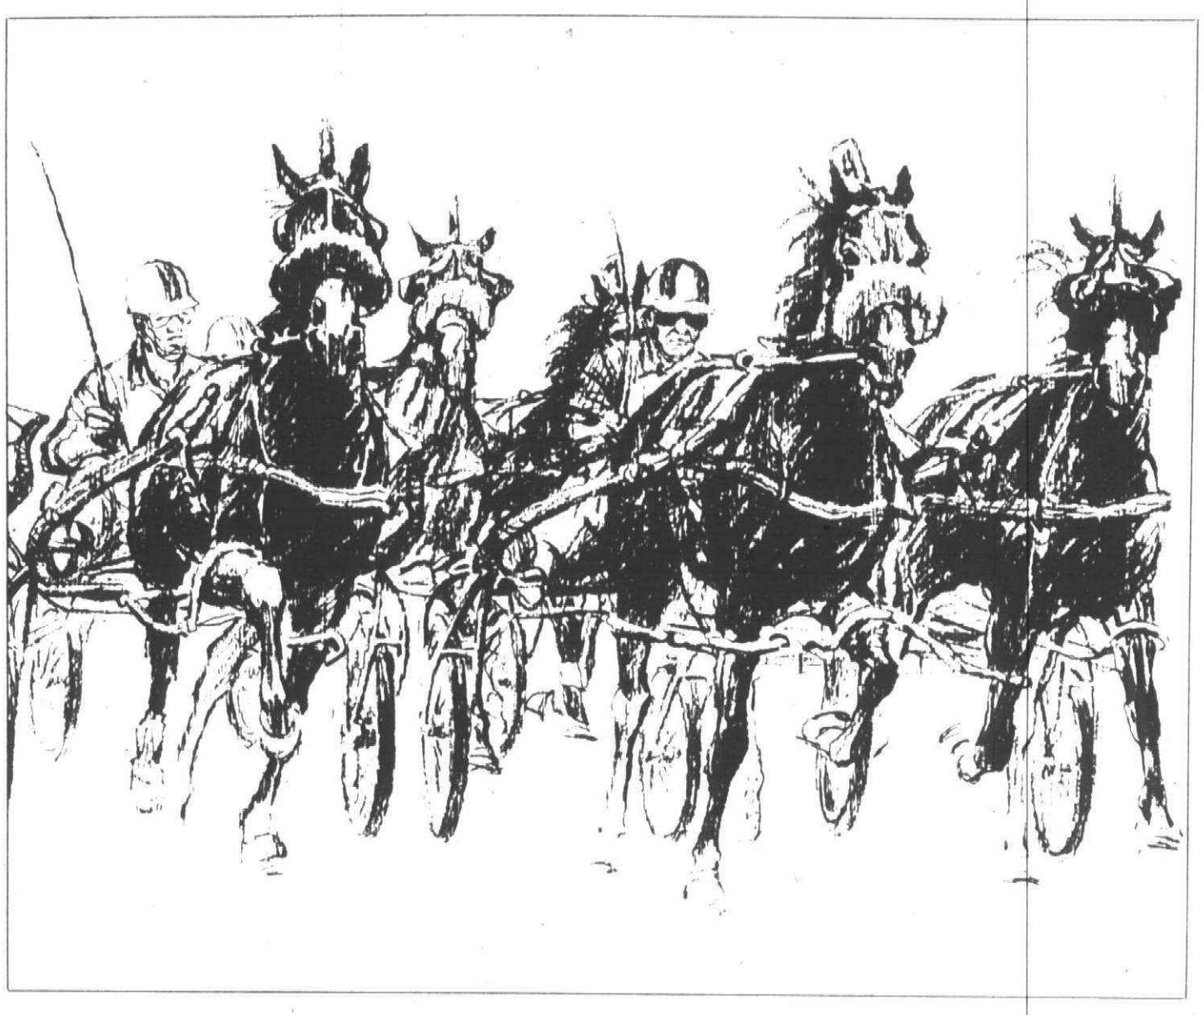

IF THE SUPER Bowl came to Detroit, we could expect a $60 to $80 million boost to our economy during the middle of January when Detroit is at one of its slowest points of the year.

Detroit deserves it — not only because of fan support and its being the only midwest location with an enclosed stadium, but also because the NFL has been supported over the last decade with TV advertising revenue from Detroit-based companies, particularly the automobile companies.

The decision for 1981 will be made in mid-March in Hawaii at the NFL owners meeting.

When you watch the game Sunday, think about what you can do to bring it to the Pontiac Silverdome in 1981.

County exec reform? It may take petitions

You would think everyone would want Wayne County government to operate efficiently.

You would think people would want a strong voice in dealing with Lansing and Washington, the source of many county dollars and programs.

You would think there should be one overall administrator in charge — just like any business, any labor union, any city, any township, any school district, any club.

But in Wayne County, one of the least progressive in the state, things don't work that way. Two movements to allow voters to adopt a county executive (or manager) plan have failed. A third such movement is under way, and it's getting a storm of criticism.

SAD TO SAY, racism is part of it.

One loud voice against adoption of a county executive plan is Commissioner Arthur Carter of Detroit. Carter said in a public hearing last week that a county executive would be "a political boss, a dictator" — ignoring the fact that his own city has a strong mayor and the state has a single chief executive.

"The racial hostility, which unfortunately exists, could find itself lodged in the county executive . . . We would see the county executive ignore the poor, blacks and other ethnic minorities," Carter says.

"He would, however, concentrate on providing services for those with political clout. That means the suburbs."

There are some disturbing assumptions in what Carter says. One assumption is that blacks and ethnic minorities would be shunted aside, ignored. The other is that it's wrong for suburbanites to partake of county services when they are in a majority.

CARTER IS CLEARLY wrong in opposing a county executive, in our view.

We don't see how anyone — black or white — is well served by a county budget that is a dozen million dollars or more out of balance. A strong executive has a chance of riding herd on expenditures.

We don't see how anyone — inner city dweller or suburbanite — is served when the county is continually creamed in negotiations with employee unions.

We don't see how anyone — Catholic, Protestant, Jew, Moslem or atheist — is served by a county government too weak to find help for its court-imposed costs of government.

We don't see how anyone — Brahmin or hyphenated American — is served by an invisible little budget-making clique called the board of auditors.

WE WERE IMPRESSED by the comments of Ed Czuprynski, maverick Bay County auditor who testified at the Wayne County hearing.

Czyprynski said the "power brokers" of politics will never agree to putting county executive plan on the ballot. If the people want it, the people will have to demand it — "a groundswell from the public at large," in his words.

This looks like a job for the League of Women Voters and the Jaycees, two groups that were more responsible than anyone for getting constitutional reform in Michigan in the 1960s.

Progressive Democrats who aren't members of any special interest caucuses ought to be in the act. Progressive Republicans of the Milliken-Pursell turn of mind ought to be joining, if not leading.

A county executive can only improve Wayne County government. The same old politics can only continue to make it worse.

Library goal gets closer

It's encouraging to see the fund slated for a Canton Township library building grow steadily larger. Each of the groups which helped raise money deserves a truckload of praise.

The Roman Forum Restaurant, with the help of Rotary, managed to come up with a nice, fat $2,000 check to further the goal of a Canton library. The money came from a day-long fundraising dinner.

Canton's Palace restaurant also contributed $75, and another $25 was donated by an individual.

Everyone involved in the effort deserves the community's thanks. That includes all those people who patronized these various fundraising efforts.

We believe a library for Canton residents is a goal well worth pursuing. Although voters chose not to support a millage specifically devoted to a library, we hope they will continue to dig into their pockets and contribute what they can.

For those who have already donated time and money, thanks again.

Pari-mutuel under the lights opens 36th time

It wasn't billed in advance as a testimonial to the man.

But when 1,996 men and women paid their way through the turnstiles of his racing plant Saturday evening, it could have been interpreted as that kind of a tribute.

Maybe you have forgotten Saturday's weather. It was rotten. It was bitterly cold. Freezing rain fell between snow storms.

It took a pretty good reason to make one leave home and battle slick highways.

There were 1,996 of you who said the weather didn't matter and that you'd rather be at John J. Carlo's glass-enclosed guest house. It's called Northville Downs.

While there, you legally wagered $296,319 on 10 harness races, each of them contested among pacers at a distance of one mile.

If you were smart enough to realize that Doctor Tom could go the route in 2:07 1/5 under those conditions, you had to have fun getting $35.80 back on a $2 win ticket.

THE FIRST TIME the late Don Wattrick of radio sportscasting fame and one of Carlo's original partners, Sam Wiedrick, talked me into going to Northville Downs in 1945, you could barely get 1,996 humans into the joint.

That was the second season of operation. This is the 36th.

In those days, the old-fashioned harness racing aspect of a county fair was dominant. Not only was pari-mutuel betting on the buggies brand new in Michigan, so was horse racing under the lights.

The great experiment had begun in the fall of '44 with a 20-night meeting under the banner of the Northville Driving Club, whose directors had been talked into trying night pari-mutuel programs by a group of businessmen from Buffalo, N.Y.

Carlo, an attorney, was one of the Buffalo contingent and was chosen to be executive manager. He still is, as well as being senior partner.

The turnout was mediocre—at best—during those first 20 autumn nights of '44, and the handle averaged only $20,000.

But the backers had proved their point to horsemen that pacers and trotters could race just as well at night as in the daylight. When dates for spring and fall meetings were announced for 1945, applications for stalls came from all over.

Thus was born the country's first successful pari-mutuel harness racing track west of the State of New York.

AT THE HELM all these years, Carlo turned 81 last Aug. 6. It has been his perseverance and dedication that have been behind the Northville Downs success story.

He has seen crowds of more than 9,000 swarm into the track at Seven Mile and Sheldon, and has seen a season's pari-mutuel handle as high as $400,000 a night.

Along the way came new barns, an expanded and modernized grandstand and construction of a winterized paddock.

The year 1970 probably was the turning point. Northville started that season with a completely glass-enclosed grandstand and a new clubhouse that was heated and air-conditioned.

That's why there were 1,996 who knew Saturday that their only worry was in battling the elements while on the highways. Once at the Downs, they could count on John Carlo's foresight to keep them cozy.

Just Between Us

Resolutions– will I follow through?

By William C. Nichols Ed.D.

The beginning of a new year always is a time of stocktaking.

We look backward and forward. We face the past with mixed feelings. Regret mingles with remembrances of pleasure.

Typically, we look forward with some expectation and hope. The promise of a new slate appeals to us.

New Year's resolutions are a combination of things. We may vow that we will not repeat mistakes of the past. We may vow that we will not repeat mistakes of the past. We also pledge that we shall do certain things in the future. "I won't do that, I will do this" is the dual character of many New Year's resolutions.

The things that we promise ourselves not to do cover a wide range of actions. I will not procrastinate. I will not be late. I will not overindulge in (1) food, (2) alcohol, (3) smoking, (4) all of the above. And so on it goes.

NEW YEAR'S is a time of new beginnings. The things that we plan to do also are numerous and varied.

I will get enough exercise. I will try to learn how to relax. I will not work so hard.

Or, I will work harder on the important things this year. I will keep my resolutions this time (or at least the major ones). I will make a new start on . .

This is a time of altruism as well as self-concern. Through the holidays, we give as well as get. Our New Year's resolutions may follow the same pattern.

We may vow to do at least one thing for somebody else, for spouse, children, parents , friends. On the other side, we promise to do some things for ourselves.

New Year's reminds us that the time to do what we wish to do is growing shorter. Another year has passed. Time grows shorter to record accomplishments and to enjoy life. The remainder of this column has to do with enjoying life.

IS THIS the year in which you will enjoy a new quality of life?

There are two major ways in which most of us could enjoy a new quality of life this year. One is through giving ourselves opportunity to exercise our capacities for creativity and growth.

For example, is this the year that you will do something about getting into the creative, expressive things that you have long wished to do? Learning to play the piano? The guitar? Writing poetry for your own enjoyment? Painting artwork--abstract, primitive, or, merely uniquely your own? Learning to do woodworking or woodcarving?

Obviously, there are many ways in which we can be expressive and creative. These are merely illustrative.

Is this the year that you will take the plunge and open up a new area of growth for yourself?

MOST OF US also could enjoy a new quality of life this year through taking the time to see and appreciate what is around us. One man relates:

"I'll never forget watching my 2 1¼-year-old-son wander across our backyard one spring day. He was in no hurry. He stopped to watch a squirrel, then chased a butterfly. Then he went over to a pine tree and carefully examined the bark.

"All the time his face carried expressions of interest and enjoyment. At that time, life was really good for him, and he was enjoying it to the hilt."

Unfortunately, as we get older, squirrels, butterflies, trees, and even people become commonplace. Other things impress themselves on us.

Our minds become occupied with "larger" matters. We fail to "see" and to enjoy much that is around us. Small wonder that gimmicks impress us in classes and encounter groups.

Handed an orange and told to become acquainted with it, students often marvel at what they observe and learn. Nothing new is there. Things are qualitatively the same. We simply have not been observing and taking time to enjoy.

SEEING AND appreciating what is around us involves human relationships as well as things.

Is this a year in which you will take time to "see" and enjoy relationships with meaningful other person, starting with those closest to you? As a football coach has put it, "the future is now."

Whatever we intend to do about enjoying life will take effort. Most of us know that there are two parts to taking action: deciding what to do and then following through.

Others can support and encourage us, but the decisions and actions are up to us. Will I follow through? That's often the nagging question in the background.

New Year's resolutions alone are not sufficient to keep us going for a year. We need concrete reminders of what we intned to do. The image of his young son's enjoyment of life serves the father as a reminder:

"I call up that image periodically, to get myself reoriented. It helps me to remember how important it is to enjoy life as you go along."

Is this the year for you?

Ask the Educator

'Mainstreaming' puts stress on teacher

JOSEPH HADDAD

QUESTION: The new state and federal laws which govern the education of the handicapped have made my work much more difficult as a fifth grade teacher.

This year I have 28 students, four of whom are actually learning disabled students who area "mainstreamed" in my room most of the day. I think this is more than any regular teacher should be asked to handle.

Why shouldn't they stay in the special education room where the teacher has the correct materials and enough time to help them properly?

G. D.

ANSWER: We now know that early practices of segregating the handicaped were distructive to the students' self-image, set them off from their peers and made later re-entry to regular education very difficult.

Today, we seek to keep mildly handicapped students in the least restrictive environment to minimize the harmful effects of separation from normal relationships.

Your complaint is becoming more common with the increase in special education programs which has resulted from state and federal legislation in the last five years.

Let's view your situation from another perspecive. Since the passage of new laws we have seen great increases in the numbers of special education resources. Where, then, have all these handicapped students come from?

The answer is that they have been here all along. They were in your room 100 per cent of the time. They were not diagnosed and identified as handicapped and as recently as two or three years ago you labored with these difficult teaching problems with no help from anyone.

Today these same students spend an hour or so in a special education resource room where they get close attention and the remainder of the day with their normal peers in your fifth grade room

SO YOU SEE, the increase in special students you are asked to serve is in large measure illusory. Oncethey are labled handicapped we feel put upon if they are in our room.

Let's not be narrow in our view on this issue. These young people need what you can give them in a normal room with normal age mates.

Nevertheless, your resource room teacher should be paying close attention to you and your mainstreamed learning disabled students.

If individualizing these students is difficult in your room, then she should be available to help you.You shouldn't need to feel so overwhelmed.

Special assignments, audio-visual,supplementary materials and similar helpful teaching tools should be made available to you by special education staff. They can and should be right there when you and your maintreamed students need their support.

(The writer is director of special education in a suburban school district.)

Volunteer skiers sought to teach handicapped

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

Joyce Thomas thinks local skiers are so enthusiastic about their sport that they will want to teach others.

Ms. Thomas is with the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., in Pontiac. She's looking for volunteers to teach the physically handicapped.

"Experience in physical therapy or therapeutic recreation is preferable, but not necessary," she told me. "You must be an intermediate-plus skier. Please call me at 338-9626."

Volunteers will go through a clinic on how to teach the handicapped. If accepted, they will be asked to put in one evening a week or so—depending on the need.

Instruction will be at Pine Knob resort, 7777 Clarkston Clarkston Road, Clarkston.

"JAN STOKOSA, a young man from the Lansing area, will teach the volunteers," Ms. Thomas went on.

He's director of the Institute for the Advancement of Prosthetics. Jan has been teaching skiing to new amputees and the physically handicapped for some time. He is the only one we have heard of who is truly qualified to handle the handicapped, both mentally and physically.

"The problem is that the program is catching on, and Jan is only one person, and there are not enough hours in the day to comply with all the demands on his time." Hence the need for volunteers.

"Matt Locricchio of Pine Knob has ordered six sets of outriggers for our students and teachers and is donating the lift tickets to our handicapped skiiers," Ms. Thomas said.

PINE KNOB will also be the site of a competition for the handicapped called Super Ski Weekend Jan. 27-28.

The rest of us can help by making a pledge when a handicapped skier asks. The participant who turns in the most pledges has a chance to win a ski trip to Colorado.

Th proceeds will go to the tri-county Easter Seal Society.

There are other prizes, mainly equipment, for winners of the various divisional competitions.

KENSINGTON Metropark has indoor and an outdoor events for you this weekend.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

by ELLIE GRAHAM

NANCY SHEEHAN discovered her appearance on national television had some far-reaching effects. After she and her husband were on 60-Minutes Jan. 7, she received a note from a former classmate at Plymouth High School.

It came from Alaska. Mary Ann (Wagner) Kaemer wrote that she was relaxing at home and turned on the television. You can imagine her surprise when she saw Nancy Caldwell, an old friend from Plymouth High.

Nancy also received a telephone call from a friend in Florida after the show.

ANYONE LISTENING to the Tom Dean Show on WXYZ last Friday morning would have been amazed if they could have seen the young chef who was answering questions about cooking.

Even those with the wildest imaginations would not have dreamed up a picture of a chef—wearing ear muffs—and out of breath from a race across the central parking lot in Plymouth.

Dean had called Larry Janes of the Gourmet Gallery on Ann Arbor Trail a couple of weeks ago. He asked if Larry would be a guest on his show. There had been many requests for a cooking show. He could do the show from his shop after a four-way hookup had been attached to his telephone.

Larry agreed. Surrounded by reference and cook books, in a relaxed, familiar atmosphere, he belived he could field any questions the listening audience could send his way.

As it turned out, it wasn't all that relaxed.

Larry attended a meeting of the Plymouth Community Arts Council where he is serving on a follies committee. He was supposed to call Dean at 10:30 a.m. so he had been watching the time pretty closely. All of a sudden, he realized it was 10:15. He dashed off and as he neared the back door of his shop, his next door neighbors in Famous Men' Wear were out telling him to hurry. He was to call WXYZ right away.

He dialed the number, jacket and ear muffs still on.

"Good morning. This is Tom Dean. You're on the air, " was the response.

There he was. Out of breath and cook books out of reach. As he removed his ear muffs, Dean brightly informed Larry that he already had a caller for him.

As it turned out, it wasn't all that bad. There were questions about why pie crust shrinks and why the lower crust of a custard pie is mushy.

The time stretched out from the expected 15 minutes to almost an hour as callers asked for a recipe for a fish batter and how to make a good omelet.

He was asked who he thought was an excellent chef in the Detroit area. He responded "my mother." His mother, who was listening to the program at her home downriver, and became understandably sentimental.

His mother and dad decided they should drive up to Plymouth to see their son.

The hectic day did not end with the arrival of the proud parents. They parked on Ann Arbor Trail and a big truck side-swiped their car.

"You've heard of deja vu. Well through the whole thing, I had the feeling I had been through it all before. It was very strange," Larry said.

CELE HAYHURST and Carl Peters had high scores at the Jan. 11 party bridge games in the Plymouth Cultural center.

GARY TEMPLE, a sixth grade science teacher at Pioneer Middle School and assistant varsity ffotball coach at Plymouth Salem High School has other talents.

He was guest soloist at Bethlehem United Methodist Church in Flint last Sunday evening. He was born in Flint and attended Flint Junior College before enrolling at Eastern Michigan University where he was a featured soloist. He sings with Flint's Marv Crawford Singers. As a member of the Max Davey Singers, he has performed with Jerome Hines, Steve Allen, Sheri Lewis and John Shook.

BECAUSE CARL Marsee of Penniman Avenue is "a special person," members of his family planned a surprise party for his 62nd birthday.

Among the conspirators were his daughter, Judy Langer; his son and daughter-in-law, David and Janet Marsee of Plymouth Township; his sister-in-law, Edith King; and his Joan Morrison and her husband, Gene.

"Dad's always done for other people," said Judy, who lives in Canton township. "He visits residents of nursing homes, not just on holidays, but year round."

Judy's husband and brother persuaded Carl to go out with them the afternoon of the party. The guests assembled at 6:30 p.m. and by the time the three men returned, the food, decorations and guests were ready. More than 45 friends and relatives attended the celebration.

Club sets goals for donations

The Canton Newcomers Club has proved that someone does care.

A charitable research committee was formed to discover the needs of the community and the area. The members, Kathy Freece, Sharon Wiltsie, Carol Koesel, Cindy Betley, Carole Dugan, Marge Mogelnicki and Nancy Nichols, club president, presented their findings to the membership.

These were voted on at a recent meeting of the newcomers and three charities were selected:

• Ann Arbor Burn Center, the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, is nationally known for its work in aiding severely burned persons. Expensive equipment is needed. The newcomers decided to donate $400 to defray cost of purchase on a priority item of the burn center's choice.

• Plymouth Crisis Center, Plymouth, which services Plymouth and Canton Township, survives on donations only. The facility provides a haven for runaway teenagers. Attention is given on an individual basis for drug abuse, child mistreatment, alcohol addiction, battered spouses, etc. A donation will be given to the center.

• Ronald McDonald House is being built across the street from Children's Hospital in Detroit and is scheduled for completion in August. This house will be used to sleep as many as 20 families of children in the hospital. The house is funded in part by McDonald Restaurants. Their needs are many and the club plans to give $500 in June.

THE CLUB'S philanthropies did not stop with three major donations.

Five neighborhood families were provided with food baskets and 14 warm sweaters--for ages 6 months to teenagers-- were included.

Three senior citizen couples also were given gifts of food for Thanksgiving.

Members of the club made 350 Christmas ornaments which were distributed before Christmas to the Senior Citizens Club at its meeting in the Parks and Recreation Hall for tree-trimming. Ornaments also were delivered to three nearby nursing homes.

More than 50 gifts were donated to the Wiltsie Home for the Aged. These were handcrafted items to brighten the residents holiday season.

Members of the Newcomers Club have taken the name of a person at the Dion Nursing Home and promised to drop a card or note once a month, pay personal visits and remember their patient with gifts on special occasions.

The first major contribution, $400 to the Burn Center, was delivered last week to Kathleen Dunlop, head nurse at the center.

'Way off Broadway' is PCAC revue

The dates have been set for the Plymouth Community Arts Council's second follies production. Curtaintime will be 8:30 p.m. March 23 and 24 in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. And when it's all over, a host of new stars will be born, all of them residents of the Plymouth-Canton community.

Dottie Magee, past president of the PCAC, is chairing the event with Nancy Sharp, present president co-chairing. They have been working for months, lining up a host of committee chairpersons.

This year's show will be "Way Off Broadway." Meet the director night is scheduled for March 6 in Pioneer Middle School. At that time, persons interested in being part of the cast of the extravaganza will have an opportunity to meet the director, a professional from Jerome H. Cargill producing Organization of 890 Broadway, New york, N.Y.

THE PCAC'S first follies, two years ago was the revue "Jest Foolin'." LOcal talent was revealed that no one knew existed. The show played to full houses for two nights but the glow of its success continued for two years.

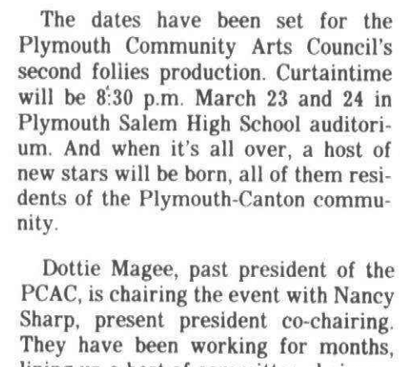

The professional director arrives complete with beautiful costumes and sets. He sets up a concentrated rehearsal schedule. In less than three weeks the show is ready for opening night. And if the first revue is any indictation, the whole town turns out to see friends, family and neighbors perform.

From now until March 23, the committee chairmen will devote hours of their time preparing for the production, "Way Off Broadway."

CO-CHAIRING committees are: nancy Hayes and Margaret Moon, public relations; Judy Morgan and Dee Schulte, program; Wilma Newton, finance; and Barbara LeClair and Jo Hulce, talent.

Also, Carol Stirton and Mary Uhl, makeup; Elaine Kirchgatter and Robert Barbour, patrons; Clara Camp and Jean Harsha, tickets; Larry Janes and Sally Bila, extra revenue; Ruth McMahon and Joan Englehart, costumes; Martha Ahern and Dick Hayes, scenery; Carol Decker, props; Phyllis and Joe Kordick, Wanda and Jim Miller, ushers.

Elise Murphy and Joan Weymeyer are in charge of the afterglow following the final performance and Bit Folger is official photographer for the show.

Barbara LeClair noted a list of priorities for her committee.

Joan Engler, (from left) Phyllis Kordick and Clara Camp will be concentrating on the show "Way off Broadway" for the next two months.

GS swim registration Saturday a.m.

Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Senior Girl Scouts can register Saturday morning for the Red Cross swim classes at Central Middle School pool.

The senior scouts in Troop 501 are volunteering their time for the series of lessons which will begin Saturday and run until March 31. Because rental costs have increased, a minimum of 100 girls must sign up to make the project break even.

Registration has been extended because 40 more scouts are needed for the series. The certified Red Cross courses and registration are scheduled according to swim skills.

Beginner is from 9:15-10 a.m.; advanced beginner and intermediate from 10-10:45 a.m.; and swimmer and junior lifesaving from 10:45-11:30 a.m.

Scouts should be accompanied by a parent or guardian for registration. Fee of $15 should be paid at that time.

Instruction is open to all girl scouts in the Plymouth Northville, Canton Association area. Six senior scouts who have their senior lifesaving badges will teach the classes as well as a certified water safety instructor.

Committee heads met last week in the arts council offices to coordinate plans for the second community follies sponsored by the PCAC. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Mainstreaming requires cooperation

By MARGARET MILLER

Mainstreaming is the name given a new kind of care for those who for some reason-physical handicap, retardation, mental illness-find themselves outside the community stream of life.

Normalization and de-institutionalization are a couple more names used by the professionals who work with these individuals.

Whatever you call it, this kind of care and treatment involves taking these people out of the institution-a place that represents both security and a certain dehumanizing-and finding for them a situation where their lives can be more like those you find in the "normal" stream of life.

Placing the handicapped in the community rather than the institution has an assortment of advantages. It means a life of dignity instead of degradatin for those involved, a chance to celebrate birthdays and go to the shopping center instead of being confined by walls.

For the professionals, it means a sense of accomplishment and a feeling of implementing progress instead of nursemaiding. For the taxpayer, it's unquestionably a less expensive way to go.

Butfor the people out in the community, those whose homes are located near the ones being planned for the handicapped, it's a concept that still causes a lot of misunderstanding.

And that is the reason for a new emphasis by staff members at the Northville Residential Training Center, a facility adjacent to the Northville State Hospital and currently housing about 150 mentally retarded persons.

Jim Glick director of the placement unit at Northville Residential Training Center is heading a campaign to gain support for community homes for handicapped. (Staff photos by Art Emanuel)

JIM GLICK, director of the placement unit at the residential training center, is leading a new effort there to not only find more community homes for center residents but to help those in the main stream understand why such moves are so important.

One means to bring the idea of community homes front and center will be an appearence by two members of Glick's staff, Denise Horvath and Harvey Saver, on the television show "People," at 10:30 a.m. Sunday Jan. 21, over Channel 2, WJBK-TV.

Another is a letter going out this wweek to mayors, superintendents, city council members, township boards and leaders of civic organizations in more than a dozen western Wayne County communities.

"We are working to get a constitutency of support for the community placement that we know is the right way to operate for the center residents," he said.

"That means making our program known and supported by mayors, civic officials, club leaders and the residents of the neighborhoods where our nomes for retarded would be placed."

This kind of program is really not new, Glick said. For a decade or more, the idea of placing the handicapped in community settings has been known to be a better way than institutionalization.

"What we're doing is not new," he explained, 'but the way we go about it is different now. We are aiming to provide homes of better quality, with design up to high standards and offering barrier-free features.

"To get this, we become more visable; we go before commissions and we get building permits. We take on a much higher profile."

ALL THAT REQUIRES increased community support, Glick pointed out.

His staff's recent experience in seeking to establish a home for six retarded men in Westland proved that point.

Objections voiced there led to a decision to hold off any such construction pending guidlines on construction and location, expected by the end of January.

"We learned quite a bit from the Westland experience," Glick said. "We found out that city and local officials do not like state agencies to act without their involvement. They want to be in on the planning of such facilities.

"Even though we worked with two state representatives and had neighborhood support and the backing of the church near the selected site, that was not enough by the time we got to city hall.

"The important thing is not what we know we are planning, but how it appears to the community that will be involved."

THUS THE NEW campaign to carry the word of mainstreaming-or normalization orde-institutionalization-to the communities at all levels.

: "Although we have met in the past with civic groups and churches," we have been advised to expand our community education and also to develop our constituiency of support," he stated.

This will mean some going door-to-door in areas where community homes might be built and frequent appearances before groups whose members could provide the support that could come with betteer understanding.

Glick, Ms. Horvath and Saver all will be ready to carry the message to communities.

Ms. Horvath sent out the letter to officials of Canton, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Redford Township, Wayne and Westland.

She asked them to watch the upcoming television show, in which "we will introduce ourselves, our programs and our servicces to the public," and to give her and the rest of the staff the opportunity to come in with more information.

IN THE TELEVISION program there will be explanations of the functions of Saver, who works with site selection for community homes, and Ms. Horvath, who recruits foster home parents and also works with community groups that want to know more about the programs.

They also will talk about the reasons for the lneed for community homes and how the idea of mainstreaming has evolved.

"When this facility for 150 residents was licensed several yeaars ago, that number seemed quite small and ideal for 'an institution," Glick pointed out."Then we started working on homes for a dozen or so handicapped persons, and now we're talking about residences for about six-something as close as we can get to the family situation."

Colleen O'Hara in state pageant

Colleen O'Hara, 19, daughter of Russell and Beverly Hoisington of Evergreen Street, Plymouth, will compete in the 1979 Miss Michigan U.S.A. pageant this weekend in Mt. Clemens.

Miss O'Hara is being sponsored by Don Massey Cadillac.

A graduate of Melbourne High School in Florida, she works at Hillside Inn, Plymouth, and is enrolled at Auston's Modeling School and agency in Dearborn. During her high school years she was a majorette for three years and while in California was a member of the State Ski Patrol. She also enjoys flying and hopes to earn her pilot's license.

She has modeled in fashion shows and enjoys skiing and an occasional road rally with her Porsche 911.

BECAUSE TWO members of her family are on Weight Watchers diets, Miss O'Hara has had no difficulty in losing eight pounds for the pageant. She is 5-9 and weighs 122 pounds.

She and about 100 other candidates for the Miss Michigan-U.S.A. pageant will check into the Georgian Inn, Mt. Clemens by 5 p.m. Friday. On Saturday, the contestants will go to Hillcrest Country Club where they will rehearse for the opening part of the televised portion of the pageant. The preliminary pageant will be at 8 p.m., Sunday. The final part will be at 9 p.m. Monday when it will be televised over NBC.

Contestants will appear in a casual outfit, a bathing suit and evening gown. The finalists will be narrowed down to a group of 15 and later five. These will be the winner and four runners-up.

The local entry says her purpose in entering the contest is to further her modeling career. Judges for the pageant include repersentatives of the top New York agencies.

"The pageant will be a good addition to my resume when I'm modeling," said Miss O'Hara. She added that she hoped "Dolly of Beautiful People will come over to Mt. Clemens and do my hair for the pageant." She had spent a whole day earlier in the week trying on evening gowns at Geneva's Bridal Shop. "I think yellow or lavender will be best for me and for television."

This is not her first pageant. She was a winner in the Miss Teenage show last year.

Training for peer counseling coming

The Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College will offer peer counseling training beginning Monday. Feb. 19.

Designed for those with a genuine interest in helping women discover their potential, the seven-week session will meet from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Participants will learn and develop empathy listening skills and problem solving techniques. Upon successful completion of the intensive training sessions, they are requested to serve as volunteer peer counselors three hours each week for a minimum of four months.

No previous training is necessary. Volunteers are asked, however, to phone the Women's Resource Center by Jan. 26 at 591-400, Ext. 431, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays to arrange an appointment for a group interview.

Comedy Store visits campus

The Comedy Store, the country's premier all-comedy nightclub, will bring a 90-minute show featuring three of its best comedians to the Recreation Organization Center of the University of Michigan-Dearborn at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 26.

Tickets can be purchased at the information desk of the ROC from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Mondays-Fridays and will be available at the door before the show.

Established on Los Angeles' Sunset Strip in 1972, under the direction of Mitzi Shore, the Comedy Store has built a national reputation for discovering stars of the future. Its alumni number Richard Pryor, Jimmie Walker, Gabe Kaplan and Steve Landesberg.

Others, such as Mort Sahl, Dick Gregory and Shelley Berman, play there to rejuvenate and hone their talent. The Store provides one of the few places where new comedy talent can be incubated or old talent can be polished before a paying audience and other comedians.

The success of the original Comedy Store inspired the opening of two more workshops in Los Angeles and one in LaJolla. One Comedy Store regular observed, "Mitzi is becoming the McDonald's of comedy. Any day now I expect her to put up a sign: Over 3 million Jokes Told."

At the UM-D show, any aspiring comedian from the campus could have the chance to win a showcase at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles. The performance is sponsored for both students and the community by UM-D's Office of Student Life. For more information, call 593-5390.

Area woman to head health tour of People's Republic

Factories, communes, medical facilities and schools will be on the itinerary when a health care class from the University of Michigan-Dearborn visits the People's Republic of China this summer.

Led by Asst. Professor of Sociology Dr. Marilyn Rosenthal of Livonia, the students will visit four cities including Peking. "Our Chinese hosts are committed to showing us as much as possible," said Dr. Rosenthal. "Students should be prepared for a very intensive and comprehensive trip. "

This is the third year she has taken classes abroad to compare health care systems. Previously her students have visited England and Sweden.

"We will use the study of the health care system of China to develop insight into some of the problems and concerns of all health care systems including our own," said Dr. Rosenthal.

The approximate cost of the course is $2,800 which includes tuition and all tour costs. This could be altered by the fluctuating value of the dollar. Enrollment deadline is April 1, with the tour to take place from July 20 to Aug. 20. An on-campus seminar from July 2 through 13 will start the course. It will include available material on the Chinese health system, as well as an introduction to Chinese society.

"One of the most powerful ways to understand our own culture and health care system is to see it in cross-cultural perspective.

One of the strengths of the course, she indicated, will be the interaction of students who look at a health care system in a variety of ways. They will all be examining what they see from the perspective of their anticipated professions.

The approximate cost of the course is $2,800 which includes tuition and all tour costs. This could be altered by the fluctuating value of the dollar, however.

Enrollment deadline is April 1, with the tour to take place from July 20 to Aug. 20. An on-campus seminar from July 2 through July 13 will start the class. It will give the students the opportunity to study material on the Chinese health system, and be introduced to Chinese culture.

A non-refundable deposit of $150 is required upon acceptance in the course. The class offers six hours of undergraduate credit or five hours of graduate credit. It is designed for students preparing for careers in medicine, medical sociology, health care planning and administration, medical social work, nursing and allied health professions.

It is also for those enrolled in medical schools, colleges of nursing, schools of social work and other health profession programs.

For further information contact Dr. Rosenthal at 593-5195 or 593-5520.

PEO Sisterhood to honor founders

Virginia Kjolhede, a member of the PEO Sisterhood who was named Michigan Dietician of the Year in 1978, will be speaker for the sisterhood's annual Founder's Day luncheon at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Dearborn Inn.

"Nutrition, Food for Thought" is the topc of her talk.

Mrs.Q.F. Havlik of Livonia will be toastmaster for the festivities. Mrs. A.J. Alford of Plymouth is chairman of the PEO Detroit Cooperative, a group of 25 units sponsoring the event.

The program will begin with a reception, with luncheon served at 12:15 p. m.

The sisterhood, which keeps secret the meaning of the initials in its name, is a philanthropic and educational organization interested in bringing to women increased opportunities for higher education.

Founded on the campus of Iowa Wesleyan College Jan. 21, 1896, the organization later voted to retain its English letters and off-campus character, becoming a community rather than a college group.

It now has grown to nearly 5,000 chapters in the United States and Canada and nearly 200,000 members. PEO groups also can be found on college campuses, in retirement and resort areas, on military bases and in eight foreign countries.

The educational and charitable activities include operation of Cottey Junior College for Women, the PEO educational fund, the International Peace Scholarship program and the Program for Continuing Education.

You could save by eating out

Eating out is more or less expensive than eating at home, depending on how you look at it.

If you compare only raw food costs to menu prices, the home prepared meal is less expensive, a Purdue University researcher told participants at a recent conference on Food Service Research held at Michigan State University.

But if you consider the homemaker's labor, at $1 per hour and the cost of energy required to prepare the meal, the restaurant meal is often less expensive, said Dr. Lee Kruel, assistant professor in the Department of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management.

Many at-home costs are impossible to quantify, he pointed out. Nevertheless, he compared the cost of two fast food type meals—fried chicken and roast beef sandwich—and the cost of fixing the same meals at home.

Home prepared costs for the fried chicken were broken down in terms of low-priced (baked chicken using a coating mix) and high priced (using a deep fryer.)

Totaling the cost of potatoes, gravy, margarine, milk (for potatoes and coating), rolls, cabbage slaw dressing, frying oil and dishwashing soap, the low-priced home prepared chicken dinner came to $3.72 for a family of four. The high-priced fried chicken came to $6.02. This compared to $6.70 including tax for the fast food chicken.

However, when Kruel added labor and energy costs to the totals, the low-priced home prepared meal came to $4.76 and the high-priced meal was $7.25, eight per cent more than the restaurant meal.

Kruel also compared similar costs for the same dinner for three, two and one adult. For the single adult, the raw food cost was 31 per cent less for the low-priced meal and two per cent less for the high-priced dinner. But when energy and labor costs were added in, the home prepared meals were 12 per cent and 42 per cent higher than the restaurant meal.

All indicators are pointing to a continued trend in dining out, Kruel said, noting that food service industry sales are expected to grow at a rate of three-four per cent annually, at least through 1985.

He added that there is a "tug-of-war" over the consumer dollar going on between restaurants and supermarkets. A number of ad campaigns are directed at luring patrons away from restaurants, Kruel said, recalling an ad which states: "The ins eat in and the outs eat out."

The home kitchen equipment industry is also encouraging people to eat at home, Kruel said. One equipment manufacturer offers a product which, the company says, enables the homemaker to prepare a meal that is "just like a restaurant-cooked meal."

A jazzed-up calendar for '79

Detroit's Jazz Research Institute has announced publication of its Detroit Jazz Artists 1979 Calendar, which features art photos of major Detroit-based jazz performers and composers.

Featured artists include international trumpet stars Marcus Belgrave, guitarist (and United Artists recording star) Earl Klugh, jazz organ king Lyman Woodard, big band leader Jimmy Wilkins and vocal star Kim Weston.

The calendar also lists birthdays of the pictured artists and is dedicated to Motor City jazz piano master Terry Pollard, who is also pictured in the calendar.

Others in the pictorial calendar are guitarist omposer Ron English, saxophonists Sam Sanders, Wendell Harrison, LaMonte Hamilton, and Teddy Harris, original McKinney Cottonpicker vocalist Dave Wilborn, and pianist omposer Harold McKinney.

Photographs for the Detroit Jazz Artists 1979 Calendar were provided by Leni Sinclair and Barbara Weinberg.

THE DETROIT JAZZ Artists 1979 Calendar is a joint effort of the Jazz Research Institute, Inc.; (JRI) Strata Associates, Inc.; Sun Press; and Cobb's Corner, known as the "Home of the Detroit Jazz Artists" for its nightly schedule of featured Detroit jazz performing groups.

All proceeds from sale of the calendar, priced at $5, will go to offset production costs and to help support various documentation and broadcasting projects of the nonprofit Jazz Research Institute.

The Detroit Jazz Artists 1979 Calendar is on sale at Cobb's Corner (4201 Cass at Willis), Paperbacks Unlimited, Vaughn's Books, LaGreen's Records, Peaches Records, Temple Candle & Incense, Music Strings & Things, The Biermeister in Grand Rapids, and both Boogie Records outlets in Kalamazoo.

Copies of the Detroit Jazz Artists 1979 Calendar also are available for $5 directly from the Jazz Research Institute, 15 E. Kirby, Detroit 48202. Checks should be made payable to Jazz Research Institute, Inc.

The JRI was founded in 1973 to research and document the past and future development of the classical African-American music popularly known as jazz. The JRI is a recent recipient of a grant from the Michigan Council of the Arts to document the Allied Artists Association's "Detroit Jazz Composers at the Paradise 1979" concert series, to be held at Orchestra Hall/The Paradise Theatre March-June 1979.

Detroit Brass at SC

"Echospace," an avant garde work for brass and tape, will be the highlight of a Detroit Brass Society performance at Schoolcraft College.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 22 in the Waterman Campus Center at the north end of the campus at 18600 Haggerty in Livonia. Admission is free.

"Echospace" utilizes taped sequences played through speakers in four corners, as well as the five musicians.

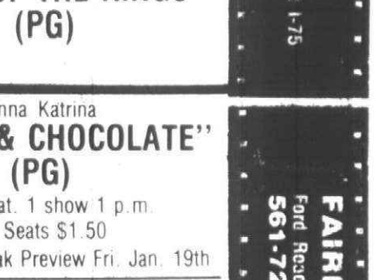

Formed in 1974, the Detroit Brass Society has performed at the Detroit Institute of Arts "Brunch with Bach" series and at Schoolcraft's Summer Music Festival, as well as many liturgical, youth and concert programs.

Schoolcraft instructor Robert W. Jones will be narrator for this concert.

Exhibit earns praise

Two potters successfully explore clay's complexities

Story: MARILYN FINKEL
Photos: DICK KELLEY

Make room on your list of potters whose work you respect for two new names, Robert Forman and Randy Miseph. They are exhibiting their clay pieces at the Yaw Gallery until Jan. 31.

This clay list has been relatively static recently, but these two artists, with this marvelously mature exhibit, can again bring that list alive. The making of strong art is a wonder ous thing, but certainly not a magical or spontaneous one.

Consistently successful art is a tough goal, its ingredients are talent, fortitude, education, integrity and lots of thinking.

Both Miseph and Forman graduated from the Cranbrook Academy of Art with an MFA in clay. They went through an educational sys tem that just didn't tell them how to mix clay or how to throw a pot, but to think about clay, what it is, what it's been in the past and how their particular clay fits into that whole scheme.

CLAY BECOMES THE VEHICLE for exploration of thought, history and communication. It's a natural role for clay to play with its beginnings in prehistoric days as a vessel for eating or storage, to become the non-functional, sculptural art object of today.

The pairing of Miseph and Forman is astute, both artists are concerned with complexities. They both approach these complexities, not as just a clay problem but as an abstract problem to be resolved through clay. Each finds his own way, through this puzzlement, to assess its difficulty. The alternative solutions reinforce the universal con cept of choice and decision.

Miseph plunges right in. He takes chances, he gambles, he goes for broke. Form, surface, color, all push to the limits. Ea ch element is part of the whole idea of the clay as experience. A nd experience, to Miseph, is the expressiveness developing out of the relationship of all of these parts.

FORMS ARE LARGE, TEETERING, unstable, they push out, they plunge, they go to limits and beyond. From a vessel shape they grow and expand to create a dynamic, horizontal line or lip, then reverse direction, gather together. Each movement dic tates the next as indentation, swelling, swirl pushes forward and then retreats. His latest forms are more open, flaring. By outer edges coinciding with outer limits, more options are raised and explored.

Color is part of this complex exploration of limits and the constant reevaluation of limits. He uses unlikely colors to gether, orange and pink, blues and yellow, blatent and obvious. By incorporating the color within the control of the form, the colors work--a daring, sometimes outrageous decision. Even if it misses, it misses with style and courage. This is not easy, relaxing art. It's tough, gutsy and what it mostly has is staying power which really is what counts.

As Miseph explores complexity through complexity, Forman app ears to deal with complexity through simplicity. Appears is a key word because it really is a matter of degree. His vessels look, at first glance, disarmingly simple, but then begin to haunt us as they move and curve and sway.

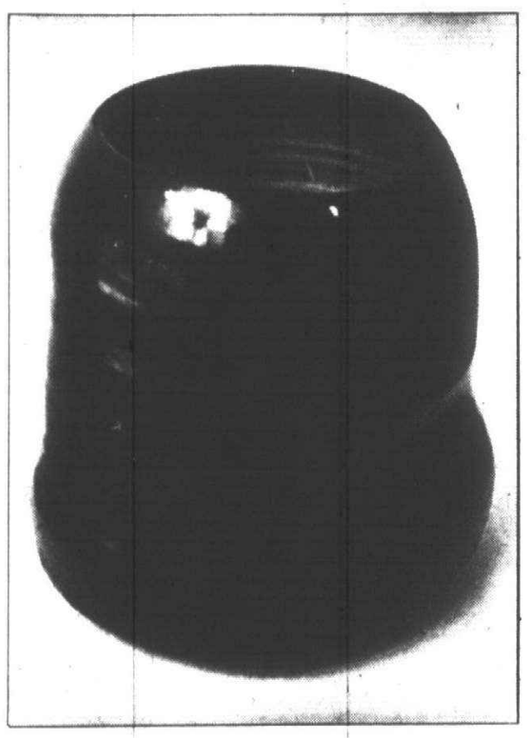

THE EXTERIORS OF THESE PROUD POTS are highly burnished, the interiors are ringed, setting up a continual interchange between the two.

Forman's six pieces in the gallery each have their own perso nality. Subtly, but unmistakably, one white piece seems to have grown out of a Brancusi which had grown out of a marvelously abst ract Cycladic sculpture of 3,200 year ago. A bronze form has a Greek contraposto stance as it undulates in space. Another shows its pre-Columbian roots.

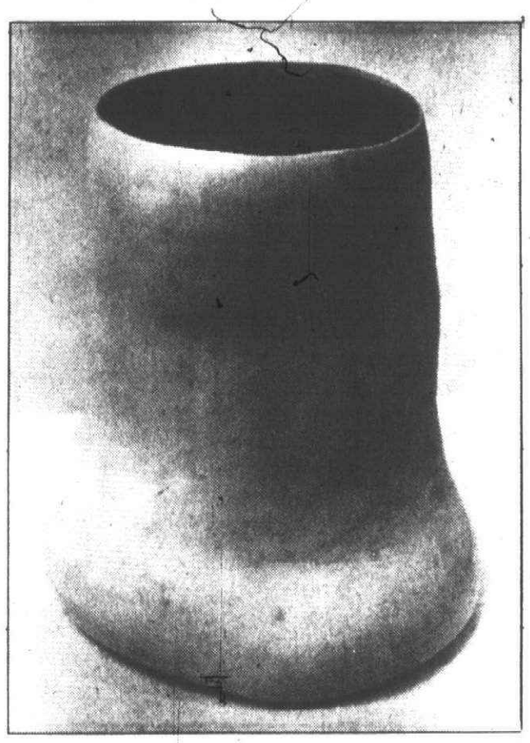

Clay began by being mixed, formed, finished, and used by hand s. This constant history of human involvement is continued, for these pots are for touching and for feeling. As the light hits the burnished areas, seeking out the hidden recesses, the subtle diff erences surface and personalize.

Forman makes you come to him, you must find the answers, maybe not his answers, but that's fine too.

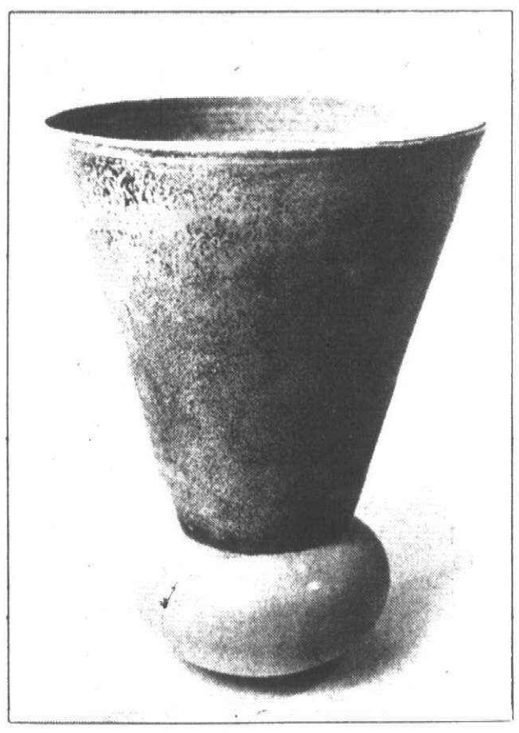

A warm welcome to these fine clay artists.

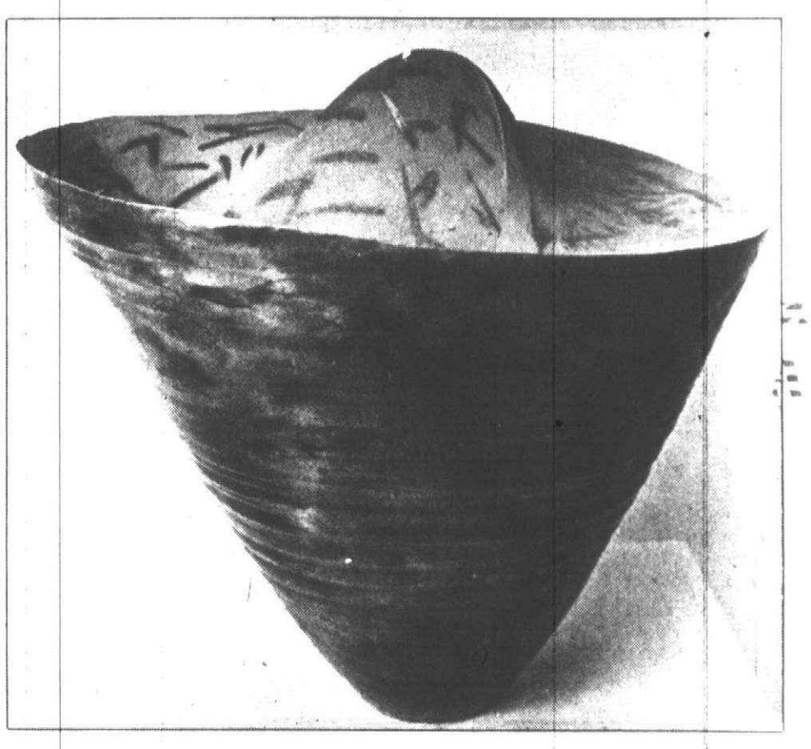

The gleaming finish on Forman's pots are the result of burnishing rather than glazing.

Forman's shapes are deceptively simple. This one, too, has a burnished finish.

Delicate shades of blue and pink characterize this pot done by Randy Miseph.

Strong shades of blue and silver on the inner surface and a bold shape mark this as a Miseph creation.

Chinese restaurant gets Tokyo touch

The biggest Japanese steakhouse in metropolitan Detroit will open next week at a Chinese restaurant in Farmington Hills.

Yes, tabletop cooking will come to the area when Wing Hong, owner of two suburban restaurants, expands his Farmington Hills restaurant to include a complete Japanese steakhouse.

Wing Hong has featured a few Japanese dishes on his menu, but now he's going all out, importing nine Japanese chefs from Tokyo to do the cooking at 16 teppan tables.

Wing Hong, who came to the United States from China in 1951, knows a lot about Tokyo. He served with the U.S. Army there.

"Chinese, Japanese and Korean cooking are similar," he said. "The main difference is in the garnishing."

The first Wing Hong Restaurant opened 15 years ago at Ten Mile and Southfield roads in Southfield. In 1974 Wing built a big (14,000 square feet), lavish Wing Hong Restaurant on Fourteen Mile Road in Farmington Hills.

He was there for a year when four other Chinese restaurants opened within about a mile.

"They all thought, 'If Wing Hong is going, it must be good,'" he declared. "All the rest popped up like mushrooms," he said with a laugh. The Chinese part of the Farmington Hills restaurant is elaborately decorated and adorned with red and green accents ("Happy colors," he said).

THE WING HONG Tokyo Japanese Steakhouse, adjoining the Chinese dining areas, will be spectacular, but totally different. "It's more rustic," Hong explained on a tour of the steakhouse.

Douglas fir is used throughout, and you can stroll across a bridge to look down at a serene Japanese garden on the lower level. A waterfall will flow into a tranquil lake.

Beef, shrimp and chicken will be mainstays of the tabletop cooking, with each table seating up to 10 persons. The chef's dazzling culinary performance is part of the dining pleasure.

Wing hopes to have his steakhouse ready for an opening Wednesday, Jan. 17, ahead of the Chinese New Year. To celebrate the Chinese New Year on Sunday, Jan. 29, there will be a Lion Dance at the restaurant on Monday, Jan. 30.

This year is the Year of the Sheep, which should mean a year of peace.

Wing Hong and his wife Nina, who works at the Southfield restaurant, have five sons. Wing is the son of Yick Hong, who also has five sons.

Yick, or "Papa" as he is known, is 88 years old and lives with Wing Hong and his family. Papa comes in to work every morning at the Southfield restaurant, takes a break in the afternoon and returns for the dinner trade.

Papa works an 11- or 12-hour day. But he proclaims his longevity is due to the fact that he keeps moving. Small, slim, he walks with care but has a bouyant personality.

"I took care of my sons. Now they take care of me," he said. "I educated them." He is busy at the restaurant doing everything. "They said, 'Papa, I need you here. Papa, come peel some shrimp.'"

He even waits on tables. When customers ask what to call him he says, "Call me Papa."

Back in 1939, Yick Hong had his own restaurant, the Mandarin Gardens on Cass Avenue in Detroit. Later, he moved to Pontiac and for eight years operated the China City until he sold it.

Getting Around

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Chapin in A²

Following a two-year absence from any Ann Arbor stage, Harry Chapin will return with his music and prose to Hill Auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8.

HIS LATEST releases are: "The Road to Kingdom Come," "Dance Band on the Titanic," and a new album, "Living Room Suite."

Tickets for the concert are on sale at the Michigan Union Box Office from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays-Fridays.

For ticket information, call the Michigan Union Box Office at 763-2071.

Bright sounds, bright moments

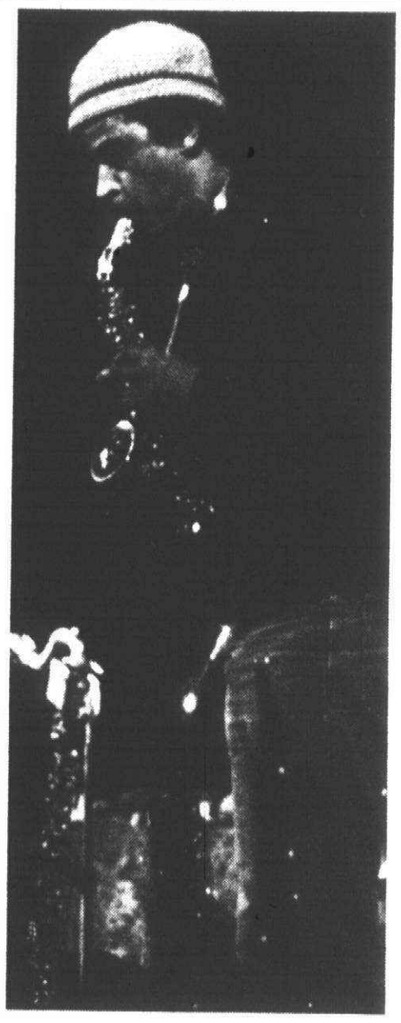

The Ann Arbor concert scene will be greatly added to Friday with the appearance of Roscoe Mitchell at 3 and 10:30 p.m. in the Residential College Auditorium in East Quad, 701 E. University, Ann Arbor.

Coinciding with the concerts will be a free workshop for jazz players with Mitchell at 2 p.m., same day, same place.

It is said Mitchell's background is rooted in the music of Miles Davis, Charlie Parker and Billie Holiday. Later, Ornett Coleman was influential, leading to Mitchell's interest in avant garde music form. He has actively been involved in the Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians, proponents of group improvisation, education, and the music business.

Mitchell plays the soprano, alto, tenor and bass saxophones, flute, piccolo, oboe, clarinet, drums, bells, gongs, whistles, "and whatever eles he can get his hands on."

Tickets for the concerts are $2.50, at the door.

Korean congregation grows

By MARGARET MILLER

One of the newest congregations meeting in this area speaks and sings its praises in the ancient tongue of Korea

But language will be no barrier as the Korean United Methodist Church takes the move Sunday, Jan. 21, to become part of the denominational family with a charge conference following its service in Aldersgate UMC of Redford Township.

The Korean flock, led by the Rev. Yo Han Choi, who came here from Seoul, has been meeting since August in the chapel of Aldersgate, 10000 Beech Daly.

Before that Rev. Choi and his congregation worshipped in a Presbyterian Church of Dearborn.

"We heard from our district superintendent that the congregation needed a place to hold services and we had a chapel to offer," said the Rev. Tom Keef, associate pastor of Aldersgate.

"They really are a good group—very active."

Rev. Keef and the Aldersgate lay leader will be present Sunday, along with United Methodist Detroit Conference Bishop Edsel Ammon and District Superintendent Al Bamsay, when the charge conference is held.

"The purpose is to take a look at where this congregation is right now and where it is going as a church," said Rev. Keef. "We will attend because we want to be able to help in any way we can."

THE KOREAN Congregation that gathers at 11 a.m. each Sunday includes many worshipers who, like Rev. Choi, have come to this country from their native land fairly recently to study or work.

"Most are new Christians," the minister said. "My country is not now Christian."

Services are conducted in Korean. Rev. Choi reads from a huge printed-in-Korean Bible on the altar. And the people sing from hymnals that look on the outside like those used by other United Methodist churches but are filled inside with hymns printed vertically in the oriental language.

In the congregations are hard-working, hard-studying people, many of them representing marriages between a Korean and an American.

"My church members in this country one year, two years," said Rev. Choi.

"They go to school or working in places like hospitals. For some members, the husband is American, or the wife is.

"We have members from many professions, medicine, oceanography, engineering. The study and the work is very important to them."

THE MOVE to this country came a few years ago for this pastor, who received his theological training from the Han Kuk College and Seminary in Seoul.

Several members of his family already had immigrated when he arrived.

He and his wife, Bok Jai Choi, have been making their home in Riverview.

They have three daughters, Eun Kyung, Eun Sun and Eun Ai Chan, all studying or working in New York, and Eun Sun, who is in California.

Twin sons, Hun Choi and Hoon Choi, will be ready for college in the fall and have scholarships to the University of Michigan and Kalamazoo College.

In locating in the Detroit area, they have joined a community with a large representation from their homeland.

There are six Korean churches in the metropolitan area, Rev. Choi said, including one Catholic, one Seventh-Day Adventist, two Presbyterian and two United Methodist. The other UMC congregation, in Hazel Park, had its charge conference last week.

WHEN SERVICES began at Aldersgate last summer, there were about 40 worshippers, Rev. Choi remembers. Now there are more than 60 attending regularly on Sundays. Thirty children of the members now are going to Sunday School classes.

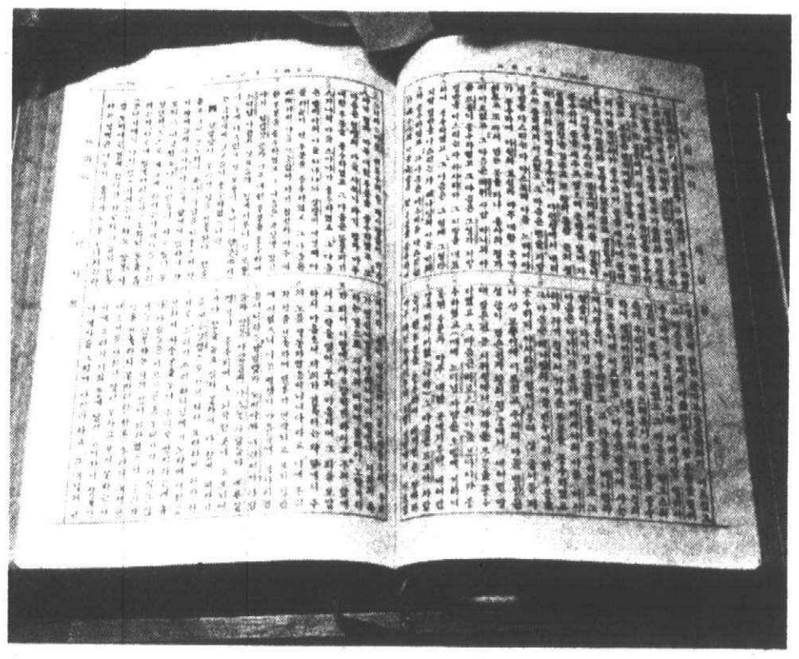

The Korean congregation also has Friday night Bible study, held in the homes of various members, and meetings of a women's group and youth organizations.

There is increasing sharing with the Redford congregation. The Koreans contributed artifacts from their homeland for the Aldersgate Christmas fair and the two congregations have joined in special services and potlucks.

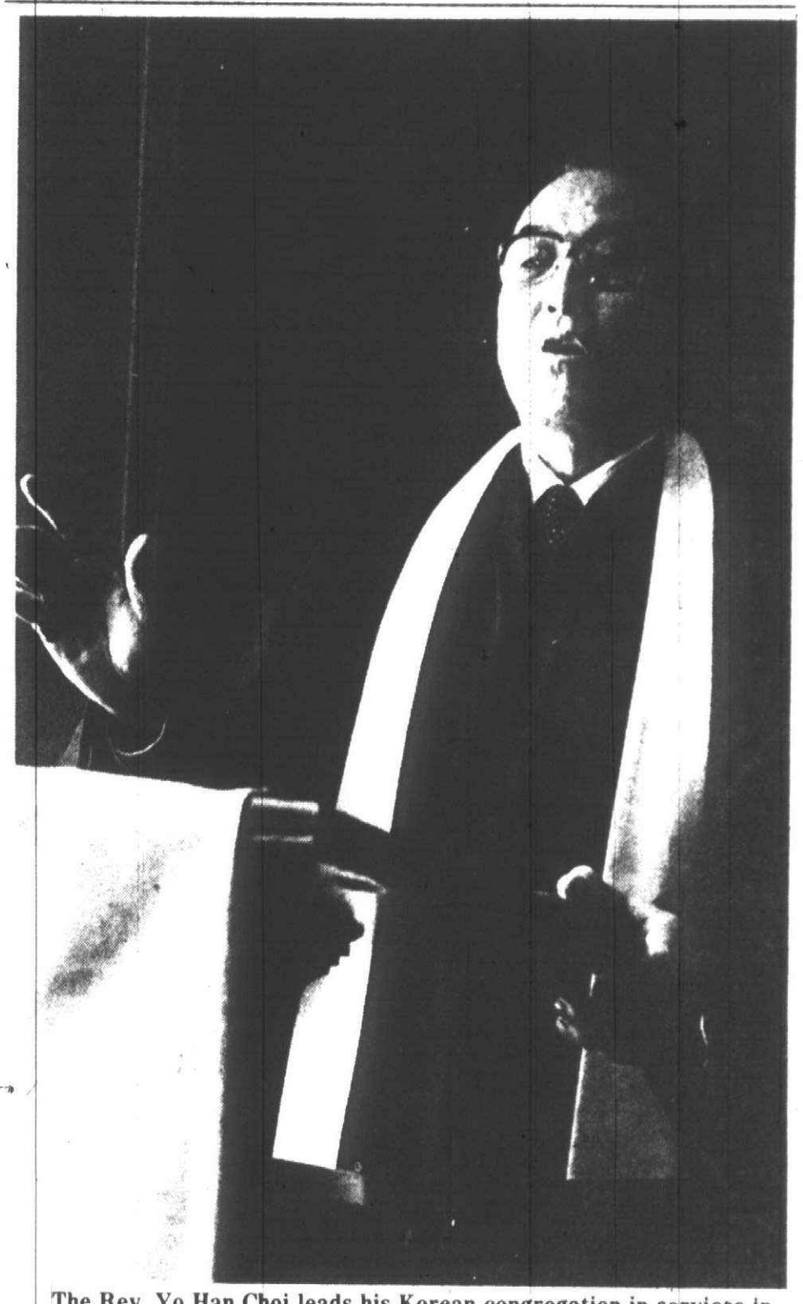

Rev. Choi now operates from an office in Aldersgate.

Increasing attendance at services is making the chapel crowded occasionally, but the Koreans feel they have found a good home in the Redford church.

"Maybe we will soon need two services," the pastor said.

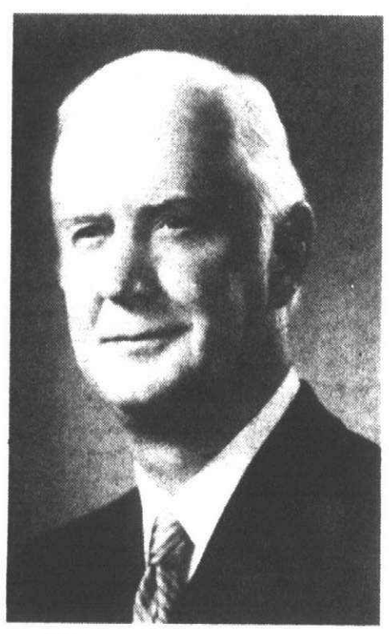

Rev. Choi reads from a huge Bible on the alter.

Church of Savior installs pastor

CHURCH OF THE SAVIOR, 38100 Five Mile, Livonia, has a new pastor. He is the Rev. Gerald Dykstra, who before coming to this area served at the Hope Reformed Church of Grand Haven for 5 1¼ years. He is an ordained minister of the Reformed Church in America. He graduated from Western Theological Seminary in 1973, and earned a bachelor degree at Northwestern College in Iowa.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST, 33111 Ford, Garden City, will welcome guest speaker William Milford Correll of Cleveland at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 19. He will talk on "Spiritual Power and its Application."

A graduate of Oberlin College, Correll has long been active in the healing ministry of Christian Science. He has traveled extensively in the U.S. and abroad as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

WARD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Farmington and Six Mile in Livonia, will host the award-winning Bentley High School Concert Choir at 7 p.m. Sunday. "The Heavens are Telling" from Haydn's "Creation" and "Hallelujah" from "The Mount of Olives" by Beethoven will be performed by the 100-member choir.

The choir will also do several spirituals and anthems. It sings under the direction of Dr. Jerry Smith, and has been chosen as one of the top 10 high school choirs in the state.

GRAND RIVER BAPTIST CHURCH OF LIVONIA, 34500 Six Mile Livonia, will present a concert at the 7 p.m. services Sunday. Evelyn Smiley of Wixom and Gerald Goslin will play organ and piano music. Dr. Wilbert Gough, pastor, will speak on the theme "Ambassadors for Christ."

At the 10:45 a.m. services he will talk on "Why I am a Christian." The Chancel Choir directed by Ray Shuster will sing. The Rev. William Bellaire, assistant pastor for youth, will assist.

A teacher training session will be held in the church Jan. 22, and a camera club dinner, open to all, is scheduled for Feb.2.

By W.W. EDGAR

Billy Golembiewski will have some familiar company when he walks down the runway to be inducted in to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame next March in Tampa, Fla.

Two of his former comrades in the Detroit all-star leagues-- Lee Jouglard and Tony Lindemann-- have been chosen by the ABC veter ans committee to be honored for their past performances.while mem bers of the Stroh team.

Jouglard, who died a year ago in California, set what was then a record in the 1951 ABC tournament at St. Paul when he rolled a 775 in the singles and went on to post a 2000 in the all-events.

At the same time Lindemann rolled a 2005 to win the all events and help the team take the team all-events with a 9506 which still is the fourth highest in the history of the tournament.

DICK BEATTIE , another member of the all-star leagues, set a record for the Bonanza Majors Association when he won his eighth tournament in the monthly event at Strike & Spare Lanes in Birmingham. This is the largest number of victories by any one bowler in the 12-year history of the association.

To gain his latest victory Beattie averaged 226 and won nine of his 12 matches.

THE PINS were flying in the Bowlerettes loop at Luxury Lanes last Monday night.

When the firing stopped Terry Grant of the Firebird team had set a new high series mark for the season with a 745 series. To get the big count she linked games of 254,278 and 213. And the irony of it all was the fact that she missed in the final frame of her last game.

The new high mark enabled her Firebird team to roll a 3058 series on games of 1078, 1018 and 962.

LADY LUCK frowned on two bowlers at Westland Bowl during the week and kept them from the ranks of those who have posted perfect games.

The first came in the Monday league where Wally Wadysz left up the 6-10 on his final ball and had to settle for a 648 series. This was only good enough for third place as Borry Schmidttling took the pacemaking role with a 677 and John Tabacchi had a 277 in 657 for the runner-up spot.

Dick Lang was the victim of the other frown when he, too, left up two pins in the final frame and settled for 298 in the Little Caesar Classic. This count helped to post a 694 and a one pin margin over Bob Schonce while Dave Sill took third with 686. Julie Zimmerman was high among the women with a 635.

Team honors went to Bob Goike's Pro Sport squad with a 3323 gained on games of 1102, 1160 and 1061.

Cub Pack holds derby

Cub Scout Pack 1540 will hold its annual Pinewood Derby at 7 p.m. Jan. 25 at Isbister Elementary School.

The Pinewood Derby cars are built from a small block of wood, numbers, and a set of wheels given to the boys about a month in advance. The boys are assisted by their fathers.

The cars cannot weigh more than five ounces or they will be ineligible to compete.

A trophy will be awarded for the first place car and medals will be awarded for second and third places.

Observerland best swim times

Area high school swimming coaches are encouraged to contact Livonia Bentley coach Keith Wright, who is compiling the best performances of the season. He may be reached at 422-3070.

Salem nudges Bentley in OT, 69-67

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

It was the kind of game Crazy George hated to miss.

The Detroit Pistons' comical, slick, ball-handling sideshow act visited the Livonia Bentley gym to entertain the capacity crowd of over 2,000 fans in a long halftime exhibition Tuesday night.

But the true entertainment and exciting exhibition actually came 1½ hours later when Plymouth Salem's Barry Owens turned in the key and sank a soft nine-foot jumper with just four seconds left in overtime to give the Rocks a dramatic 69-67 victory over the Bulldogs.

It was everything any basketball fan could ask for in a prep game, as the traditional Salem — Bentley knock 'em down, drag 'em out court battles didn't lose any spice after this outcome.

The victory gives the state-ranked Rocks a perfect 10-0 overall record at the midpoint of the regular season. Salem is the only undefated team in Observerland. The Rocks also take over sole first place in the Suburban Eight League race with a 5-0 mark.

Bentley dropped to 4-1 in the league race, one knotch behind Salem. The Bulldogs still hold an impressive 8-2 overall record.

"We had to battle for everthing we got," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, as he breezed a sigh of relief after the important road victory. "Our kids knew we were in for a fight. We knew it would swing their (Bentley) way and then swing back our way (all night long).

"We told the kids if we get down close with teams we can win it. And Barry (Owens) got the big bucket.

"It was a great high school basketball game. We're the surprise team. No one believed me or the team but they believe us now."

Owens led the Rocks' scoring, playing the best game of his high school career. The 6-2 forward scored 21 points to take game honors. He registered 11 of those in the third quarter when Salem battled back from a 34-26 halftime defecit.

Rich Hewlett scored 16 points and had the assist on Owens' game-winning hoop. Teammate Kevin Kelliher added 15.

Bentley coach Jim Komula had hoped for revenge after Salem beat his squad in this same gym last February to gain a share of the Sub-8 title last season. Although it wasn't to be, the Bulldog mentor still felt his squad deserved credit.

"I think we're better than them (Salem)," Komula said, despite the loss. "I can't take anything away from them (Salem). They played hard.

"But I don't think they are any better than we are. If they are rated fifth (in the state by the Detroit News and ninth by the Detriot Free Press), then we should be rated fifth too.

"What hurt was their hand checking," the Bentley coach said in disgust.

Kurt Thorderson led the Bentley squad with 18 points, playing tough inside and outside all night long. Older brother Eric added 17 as did Chris Bollin. Guard Steve Booth chipped in with 10.

Salem led 50-46 going into the final quarter but foul trouble resulted in Bentley owning a 64-59 lead with only 1:55 left in regulation time. Jim Anderson's two free throws with 35 seconds left in the fourth quarter tied the score at 65-65, sending the game into the extra stanza.

Salem's Rich Hewlett (left) drives past Bentley defenders Eric Thorderson (20), Greg Slusser (40) and Steve Booth (32) for an easy layup during Suburban Eight League basketball action Tuesday night. The Rocks won this important contest, 69-67, in overtime. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

The rivalry was priceless

Anyone could have predicted it.

But it certainly was a game no one would have wanted to bet on.

It came as no surprise that the game went into overtime. And if it wasn't for Barry Owens' pressure-filled nine-foot jumper, Plymouth Salem and Livonia Bentley would have gone into double overtime.

Both teams might have played all night.

As it reads on the scoreboard, Plymouth Salem now can be assured of sitting in the driver's seat in the Suburban Eight League race with its 69-67 victory at the Bulldogs' gymnasium.

The Rocks are guaranteed that seat at least until the second showdown between these two fine clubs next month in Plymouth.

Tuesday's game featured a classic scene which always makes all true basketball fans drool.

Right from the start, the Bulldog band continually played the Bentley fight song (The University of Notre Dame borrowed the melody for their own fight song). And the Plymouth fans were adding a little noise of their own with the constant chant of "Freddy, Freddy" in reference to Salem's 6-8 head coach Fred Thomann.

The bleachers rumbled with anticipation of a great finish to a great rivalry.

And no one in the bleachers, on either side, was disappointed.

The vision of the Bentley gymnasium, with its overflowing crowd of more than 2,000 fans, was something which brought out the true meaning of a basketball rivalry at the high school level.

Everyone complains about this gym, but I actually like it — now that brighter lights have been installed. The bleachers are at court level where all the fans can get the personal flavor of the emotions from each team.

This is the same type of set up at Central Middle School in town where all the old Plymouth High School basketball teams used to compete.

This closeness is something every fan misses when he or she visits the Salem gymnasium at the Centennial Park and is seated far away from all the action.

If you were one of the fortunate ones at Bentley Tuesday, you saw the anxiety on the face of Salem's Rich Hewlett or Bentley's Eric Thorderson as they battled each other all night long.

You saw the jubilation on the face of Salem junior Jim Anderson after he sank two free throws with 35 seconds left in regulation time — helping send the game into another three minute period. You also saw the face of disappointment when Bentley senior Chris Bollin missed the front end of a one-and-one with nine seconds left and the score still tied at 65-65.

And you saw the smiling face of Owens as he calmly sank the winner.

It was all there. A rivalry no one should have missed.

Thank heavens the second one is only five weeks away — Friday, Feb. 23 at the Salem gym.

It may be too early for some Suburban Eight League coaches to admit it. But in my book, Salem all but assured itself of at least a tie for the conference race after this victory over Bentley. It seems no one else in the league can compare with these two squads — although Belleville is known to give the Rocks trouble year-in and year-out.

Nonetheless, it looks like Salem will set the pace until Feb. 23 in the same fashion Bentley held the lead last year until the second Salem — Bentley confrontation.

And after Tuesday night, the second prediction will be even tougher than the first.

Canton gymnasts defeat Northville in opener

Plymouth Canton's girls gymnastics team won its first meet of the season by defeating Northville, 77.05-62.40, Monday night.

Coach Barb Winn's Chiefs were in complete control of the activities all through the meet.

"We didn't do too badly," said Winn. "It was an easy meet so we got a lot of girls in different events to give them a chance to perform. I was really happy with the younger kids in their second year. They made some mistakes but improved their scores."

Wendy Gray and Katy Heaton tied for first place in the vaulting competition with identical scores of 7.4. Gray also was first in the uneven parallel beam, and first in the floor exercise. Heaton was second on the bar, third on the beam and second in the floor exercise.

Leedah Schrader placed first on the balance beam, followed closely by Leslie Bublin. Both gymnasts are seniors. Robin Radoye placed third in the floor exercise.

Some young gymnasts who showed improvement included Kelly Harvey, Beth Berbert and Maureen Morahan (floor exercise), Heather Hawkins and Robbie George (beam), Ann Gregory (bars) and Kathy Kiefer and Anita Hulack (vaulting).

The Chiefs' first home meet of the season is next Wednesday against Belleville.

Mt. Clemens takes Salem grap event

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Mt. Clemens cut weight at the right time last week, edging Ypsilanti to win the fourth-annual Plymouth Salem Wrestling Invitational last weekend.

Mt. Clemens finished fourth in the Schoolcraft Invitational one week earlier but came prepared to win in all in the prestigious 16-team Plymouth event, thought by many coaches to be a tougher tournament than the one at Schoolcraft.

The victors totaled 165½ points to take the honors ahead of Ypsilanti's 159½. The outcome wasn't decided until the final match, however, when Farmington's Scott Hazan decisioned Chuck Gannon of Ypsilanti, allowing Mt. Clemens to gain the triumph.

Westland John Glenn, coached by Bob Lusk, was the top Observer-area finisher, placing third with 154 points. Glenn, winners of all three previous Plymouth Salem tourneys, wrestled without two of its top wrestlers but still managed to make a run for the crown.

Trenton, one of the top teams in the Suburban Eight league and third-ranked in the state, tied for fourth place with Farmington, victors of the Schoolcraft tournament.

Redford Thurston, considered by many as a sleeper in the Plymouth event, didn't bring its complete team to the competition and finished far below its projected score.

Host Plymouth Salem, coached by Ron Krueger, placed sixth despite coming out of the first two rounds in strong fashion. The Rocks were hurt by the losses of Joe Piccola and Mark Ross in the middle of the competition.

Piccola, a senior co-captain at 167 pounds, was lost for the rest of the season after suffering an appendicitis attack. Ross, a 126-pounder, suffered a severe ankle injury but was expected back this week.

Canton idle

Plymouth Canton's basketball team took the night off Tuesday but will resume action Friday night in an important Western Six League game against Livonia Churchill.

The Chiefs, 3-0 in the Western 6 and 7-2 overall, host Churchill with varsity action at 8:15 p.m. Canton currently holds first place in conference standings.

Despite inconsistency

Canton spikers down Harrison

By BETTY DeLANO

What started to be a smear for the Plymouth Canton varsity volleyball team over Farmington Harrison ended in a close Chief victory Monday, 15-3, 15-12.

An early 5-1 lead on Canton's part set the pace in the first game, as senior captain Kelly Heaton stopped the Hawks from advancing any farther than the three points allowed. Heaton's strong spikes left the Hawks bewildered as the Chiefs finished out the game with ease.

Opening the second game in much the same manner, the Chiefs jumped to a 7-1 lead and were in control. But Canton's defense took a turn for the worse.

A quick four points for Harrison soon became 10, and the Chiefs began to lose the confidence they had during the first game.

Using up both time-outs allowed per game, Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein left the rest of the game up to her players, trailing 7-12.

The Chiefs' comeback started with the consistent serving of junior Tina Decker and Heaton's aggressiveness in front of the spiking line.

After junior Jill Federson added a quick two points to the Canton score (9-12), Decker stepped up to the serving line and added three more points to tie the score. Harrison's coach Peggy Moore, a Plymouth Salem graduate, called for her squad's first time-out hoping to stop Decker's string of serves.

But Decker served out the remainder of the game in fine fashion, and the Chiefs won their first game of the season after losing their opener to Livonia Churchill last week.

Canton's Burnstein said Harrison played a very aggressive game but Decker's serves and Heaton's powerful spikes made the Chief victory possible.

"Our serves were the best they've been so far. Although we weren't playing consistently, we came through with our bumps when we had to so our setters could set up the ball."

Canton's junior varsity was defeated by the Harrison JV after a three-game duel, 15-9, 6-15, 9-15.

The Chiefs' next match is against Ypsilanti Wednesday night at Ypsilanti. The Canton squad also plays next Thursday night against Walled Lake Western at Walled Lake. Both games start with the junior varsity competition at 7 p.m.

Salem loses confidence

Capitalizing on 85 per cent of their serves in the first game, the Plymouth Salem volleyball team went on to an easy victory over Belleville, 15-5.

But the lack of playing together as a team made the final outcome a loss for the Rocks as they fell to the Tigers the next two games, 12-15, 9-15.

"The lack of concentration in the plays and in themselves as players was the reason we lost," said Salem coach Cathy Himes. "The team couldn't admit to losing the second game after winning the first so easily and then couldn't get back into the match for the third."

Senior Patty Radzik and freshman Carol Ross were complimented by Himes for having good games. Both were consistent on serving and with their hits both in the back row and on the spiking line, according to the Salem coach.

The junior varsity had an easier time with its match against the Belleville JV squad, winning 15-3, 13-15, 15-9.

Salem's next match is against Allen Park Monday on the Rocks' home court, starting with the junior varsity match at 7 p.m. The varsity will follow at 7:45 p.m.

Underdog Crestwood prevails; Salem, Canton fall

An unheralded Dearborn Heights Crestwood, the team with the worst pool record to qualify for the quarterfinals, came from behind to edge Livonia Churchill in the championship match last weekend at the Schoolcraft Volleyball Invitational.

The Chargers of Crestwood knocked off the Chargers of Churchill, 6-15, 15-10 and 16-14.

Churchill twice had a chance to claim the title by serving match point during the third and deciding game, but it was not to be.

"We just couldn't put it away," said Churchill coach Mike Hughes. "They (Crestwood) keep the ball in play and make very few mistakes."

The format of the tourney called for each team to play two games each against all of the opponents assigned to its pool.

The squad with the best record in each of the six pools automatically advanced to the quarterfinals.

Two wild-card teams, those non-pool winners with the best overall records, also gained berths in the quarterfinals.

Churchill, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson, Clarenceville and Wayne qualified for the playoffs as pool winners.

Ferndale and Crestwood advanced as wild-card qualifiers and were seeded seventh and eighth, respectively.

In the quarterfinals, Crestwood eliminated top-seeded Wayne, 15-9 and 15-7; second-seeded Bentley disposed of Ferndale, 15-12 and 15-9; third-seeded Churchill eliminated Franklin, 15-8 and 15-3; and fourth-seeded Clarenceville dispatched Stevenson, 15-5 and 15-1.

Crestwood needed three games to oust Clarenceville in the semifinals, 15-3, 11-15 and 15-6 and Churchill topped Bentley, 15-12 and 15-5.

"Crestwood barely qualified. No one expected them to go far, but they just kept winning," said Mike O'Toole, the tournament director and coach of Garden City East.

"Volleyball is a crazy game. The team that peaks at the right time will take it," O'Toole added.

Ironically, Kathy Higgins, Crestwood's coach, played for Clarenceville coach Tom Teeters while she attended high school and played for both Teeters and O'Toole one season at Schoolcraft College.

Although he was disappointed that his Chargers did not best the 29-team field, Hughes said he was gererally pleased with the performance of his crew.

"I was really pleased that we made progress. It was good experience. The one thing I was very pleased about is that the juniors who are not used to that kind of competition played very said Hughes.

Hughes suggested that his players became overconfident after defeating Crestwood so decisively in the first game and experienced a letdown. The momentum changed and Churchill was unable to dominate again.

Twelve girls were selected for the all-tournament team. They included Lisa Bonza and Lisa Schwab, from Crestwood; Linda Mix and Stacy O'Toole, from Churchill; and Kris Klamik and Lisa Redford, from Clarenceville.

Also honored were Denise Breslin, from Bentley; Debbie Ostrum, from Stevenson; Daun Muller, from Franklin; Mary VerCande, from East; Sharon Fontaine, from Wayne; and Jackie Carter, from Ferndale.

Other Observer & Eccentric area schools which participated were Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Farmington, North Farmington, Southfield-Lathrup and Southfield.

Also competing were Redford Union, Redford Thurston, Redford Bishop Borgess, Ladywood and West Bloomfield.

Temple wins again

Redford Temple Christian used various defenses to defeat Toledo Emmanuel Tuesday, 60-54, in a Great Lakes Christian Conference basketball game.

"We kept switching between our man-to-man defense and our zone defense and that kept them off balance most of the night," said Temple coach Paul Clough. "It was a pretty close game but we led through the entire contest."

The Patriots took a 15-13 lead by the end of the first quarter and went into the lockerroom at the intermission ahead, 30-24.

Temple Christian then scored 16 points in the third quarter and 14 points in the fourth stanza to hold on for the victory.

Rob White paced the Patriots offensive attack with 26 points and seven rebounds. Bob Young and Craig Johnson each added 10 points for Christian, while Jeff Huber grabbed 11 rebounds and five points.

"Our use of different defenses was the key in the contest. They stayed close with us because of the large amount of turnovers we made," Clough said.

SAAB VS. SNOW.

Front-wheel drive makes it no contest.

Saab conquers snow. And ice. Thanks to its front wheel drive. And big 15" tires that provide more traction. Rack and pinion steering, and 4-wheel power assisted disc brakes, finish off what's left of the problem of driving in snow.

All these have been standard performance features with Saab for years. So for years, where it snows a lot, a lot of people drive Saab. Example: Vail and Aspen. In these Rocky Mountain ski resorts, the police drive Saab.

Choose Saab. It's the car for all seasons with a specialty — Winter.

SAAB IS THE COMMAND PERFORMANCE CAR.
