Clean-up crew

Twenty-eight fourth and fifth graders in Elaine Aron's class at Eriksson School collected 512 pounds of debris in less than one-half hour in the woods behind the school. The students are involved in an ecology project, with the woods clean-up as their number one priority. Chief resigns as he storms from meeting

By DARLENE STINSON

Police Chief Walter MacGregor resigned at Tuesday's Canton Township board meeting in a visible state of anger.

The 58-year-old chief had asked the board to authorize the creation of part-time patrol office positions. Although the board eventually approved the positions by a 6-1 vote with Trustee Lynne Goldsmith dissenting, MacGregor walked out of the room before the vote was taken.

He was apparently upset over the board's debate on whether the positions should be created. According to Supervisor Noel Culbert, MacGregor is the only department head in the township who must seek board approval for the hiring of part-timers.

"I really believe I have to do this," said MacGregor who usually maintains a calm air of diplomacy with the board. "Two weeks from today, I leave.

"I have no animosities. But it doesn't seem to matter what I try to do to make this a viable police department. I just believe you'd get along better with someone else."

Board members began to protest MacGregor's actions, but the chief left the room before anyone could make a statement.

"I'm done," MacGregor said as he walked out the door. "Two weeks from today, I'm gone."

MacGREGOR HAS THREATENED to resign twice before during the administration of former Supervisor Harold Stein. Both resignation threats followed reported arguments with Stein.

But MacGregor said Wednesday morning that he will carry out his threats this time.

"They better believe me this time because I mean it," he said. "I look at it as three strikes and you're out."

MacGregor would not say how much the debate over the part-time positions played in his decision to leave. He admitted, however, that board discussion of the positions served as the catalyst for his decision to resign.

"I feel I have to leave for my own health and welfare," he said. "Whoever takes over, I wish him the best of luck."

After MacGregor left Tuesday's meeting, board members authorized the creation of 10 part-time patrol officer positions.

Mrs. Goldsmith — the only board member who voted against establishing the jobs — maintains that the ordinance which created the Canton Police Department in 1976 requires the township supervisor to hire part-time patrol officers with board approval.

But Trustee Robert Greenstein, who spearheaded establishment of the department during his term of supervisor from 1974 to 1976, insisted that the ordinance was only intended for the initial hiring of uncertified police reserves.

Sludge demonstration tries to ease doubts

By CAROLINE PRICE

What exactly does Bi-Product Systems of Michigan intend to do with 600 tons of sludge per day at a proposed Canton Township site?

You can see a small-scale demonstration of what is called sludge composting beginning 10 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of Canton Township Hall.

The demonstration is an attempt by Bi-Product Systems to soothe the concerns of township residents.

The company has begun the process of seeking township approval for a plan to dispose of partially-treated sludge from the Detroit Wastewater Treatment Plant by converting it into an odorless soil additive.

As outlined by the company, trucks would haul tons of the "sludge cake" out to a 140-acre site at Michigan Ave. and Morton Taylor, where it would be mixed with wood chips. The mixture would be piled up under another layer of wood chips.

Heat, created by both natural composting and hot air blown through the stacks, will convert the chip mixture into a material similar to Milorganite.

The Detroit Water and Sewer Department was forced to seek other methods of disposing of some of the sludge it produces after the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) took it to court and won. The sludge now flows into the Detroit River.

Bi-Product Systems hopes to use the site for the duration of its three-year contract with Detroit.

The property, as proposed, would then be developed into an industrial park. A portion of the property is owned by Canton Township.

The projected sludge site is estimated to bring local tax coffers some $119,220 per year while in operation, with a larger tax base expected if an industrial park is developed.

But the plan is not without its problems.

Resident opposition is already beginning to form as the company begins the process of gaining approval.

An unusually large number of people were at the April 23 night planning commission meeting. At a previous commission meeting, members expressed various concerns about the sludge treatment proposal and asked that the company address their questions.

Bi-Product representatives and a host of experts were on hand to attempt to answer some of those questions at the most recent meeting.

The two major concerns were possible odor created by the sludge and the effect of chemical and organic substances contained in the sludge.

A group of Township officials and media representatives were flown to Beltsville, Maryland, last month, where Bi-Products has a sludge composting site already in operation.

The trip was an effort to prove that the process created little odor. Although Township officials may have been convinced, Canton residents still fear property values and quality of life will slide in the area near the proposed site.

Steve Larson, president of the Forest Brook Homeowners' Association, questioned Bi-Products representative Al Hart about the chance of odor and the potential hazards of both the sludge and the final soil additive product.

According to Hart, odor will be practically nil beyond the immediate area of the site.

Bi-Products representatives have always emphasized that the soil additive they want to create can only be used for non-food producing purposes.

The reason stems from the high levels of industrial chemicals remaining in the sludge cake even after it goes through initial treatment.

The sludge is not actually human waste, but rather the remains of bacteria used to digest the waste. But mixed in with the flocculated, assembled bacteria remains are substances such as cadmium, nickel, lead, copper, zinc and chromium — known as heavy metals.

Suit says sign law illegal

Roberts challenges ordinance

By DARLENE STINSON

An attorney for a Canton businessman who was ticketed for violating the township's sign ordinance has made a motion in 35th District Court to declare the law invalid and unconstitutional.

The motion, made by attorney Peter Bundarin, is based on the allegation that the township board failed to follow procedures mandated by a state statute when it adopted on March 11, 1975, the section of the zoning ordinance which regulates signs.

Bundarin is asking Judge James Garber to declare the law invalid because of the alleged procedural errors and to order a refund of all fines paid by Canton business people for violating the ordinance.

Bundarin represents Gary and Lori Roberts, who own Canton Vac & Sew on Ford Road.

The Roberts were ticketed on two occasions earlier this month for attaching a cloth which advertised a vacuum cleaner sale to their van and parking the vehicle in front of their store.

Canton ordinance officers who issued the citations say the cloth is a banner, which violates the township's sign law.

BUNDARIN'S EFFORTS to declare the sign ordinance invalid follow an April 4 threat of the Canton Chamber of Commerce to file litigation over the sign law.

The chamber's lawsuit would seek to overturn a section of the ordinance that prohibits businesses from erecting free-standing ground signs. A proposed ordinance that would allow ground signs up to 50 square feet in area has been repeatedly tabled by the township board.

Roberts, who is running for a seat on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education following his unsuccessful bid for a Canton trustee position last November, says the legal steps he has taken are

Several causes listed for Good Friday flood

Engineer Robert Wade can give no definitive reason for the flooding that filled the basements of 350 to 400 homes with up to two feet of sewer water April 13.

Instead, he is telling residents that a number of conditions including ground that was already saturated with water, defective manholes and possible leaks between the storm water and sanitary sewer systems contributed to the flooding problem.

Wade, of Wade, Trim planning and engineering consultants, spoke to approximately 75 flood victims for almost three hours at Tuesday's township board meeting.

He answered questions, drew charts of Canton's sanitary sewer system and asked flood victims who have not already filed a report with the township to call the supervisor's office at 397-1000.

Wade said the flooding reports will enable his firm to compose a detailed map of where the flooding occurred and investigate the sewer and drainage conditions in those areas.

Homes scattered throughout the eastern half of the township were hit by the Good Friday flood. But according to Supervisor Noel Culbert, reports of floods have been mainly confined to Windsor Park, Carriage Hills, Brookside Village, Mayfair, Sunflower Village and Willow Creek subdivisions.

ACCORDING TO WADE, meters at various points in the sanitary sewer system recorded a flow of 50 cubic feet per second on Good Friday — 10 times the normal amount.

The engineer said storm water is not supposed to enter the sanitary sewer system. But because meters were installed in the system this spring as part of a federally-funded study, engineers know that it did.

Wade said an investigation of the flooding problem has revealed that the casings of numerous sanitary system manholes had separated from the framework, possibly because of frost.

The engineer has theorized that water from the storm sewer system entered the separate sanitary sewer system through defective manholes in locations where manholes for both systems are situated in close proximity.

But Wade added that other conditions probably caused or contributed to the flood in some areas. Those conditions include:

- Ground already saturated with water from the spring thaw and previous rainfall. Numerous streets in the eastern and western half of the township where there are no sewer systems were flooded after the Good Friday rain.
- Possible obstructions in some sanitary sewer lines that may have caused a backup in some areas.
- Man-made bridges and other structures that some residents have constructed in the drainage ditches that run behind their homes.
- Silt that has accumulated in some drainage ditches to decrease the capacity of the drains.
- Possible obstructions in the sani-

Vandals shatter windows

The windows of a dozen automobiles were smashed with bricks last weekend by a person or group of persons still sought by police.

Sgt. Larry Stewart said the cars were parked on residential streets in northeastern Canton during the evening of April 21 and April 22.

According to Stewart, the incidents occurred on Westminister Way, Oakbrook, Gloucester, Bunker Hill, Washington Way, Elmhurst, Woonsocket and Mannington.

Stewart estimates damage to the cars at $3,000. He said someone threw bricks through the windows of the cars and, in some cases, dented hoods by walking on them.

Stewart said police are still investigating the cases. He added that any suspect arrested for the incidents would be charged with malicious destruction of property — a felony that carries a maximum four-year jail sentence.

Lutz and South swap

Two elementary principals in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will trade places next year.

William Lutz, principal of Smith Elementary and Ronald South, principal of Eriksson Elementary, will exchange assignments as of July 1.

Both principals requested the transfer.

ALTHOUGH BOTH have been successful at their present schools, according to Superintendent John M. Hoben, they are looking for new challenges.

The school board had established this kind of transfer as one of the district's goals for 1978-79.

Smith Elementary, in the city of Plymouth, is 29 years old. The enrollment of 500 students attend school on a regular nine-month calendar.

Eriksson, in Canton Township, is among the newest schools in the district. Its enrollment of almost 925 students are on an Extended School Year calendar.

South opened Eriksson as a new school three years ago. Among his major accomplishments are staff development, setting up programs for parents, and implementing grade-level curriculum goals. He also piloted a new report card form.

An elementary principal in Plymouth-Canton Schools for 13 years, South served at both Fiegel and Tanger elementaries. He was an administrative intern at Farrand Elementary and taught there as well as at West Middle School. South has a bachelor's degree from Eastern Michigan University and a master's from the University of Michigan.

SMITH SCHOOL parents can meet their new principal from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 15, at the PFO student art show and ice cream social.

Eriksson School parents will be able to meet Lutz at a special open house at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 23.

Lutz has been principal of Smith for eight years. Under his leadership, textbooks have been updated and grade-level curriculum goals implemented.

Improvements in the building include carpeting, enlarging the media center, and developing a nature study area. Parents have enjoyed the "Bring-A-Parent-to-Lunch" plan, while students also had weekly lunches with their principal.

Lutz has a bachelor's and master's from Michigan State University. He has been a school administrator in Livonia and Coldwater, and has taught in Grosse Pointe, Adrian and Hawaii.

Steamship lives in miniature

By W.W. EDGAR

As a young lad growing up in Marine City Charlie Langell, Canton Township painter and wood carver, spent many an hour in Tashmoo Park on Harsen's Island.

There, on the summer afternoons, he never missed a chance to watch the Steamship Tashmoo dock to deliver mail and passengers to the one-time popular playground in the St. Clair River.

And each day, in his childish dreams, he envisioned the day when he would own a boat like that. It didn't help matters when, as he grew older, he used to ride the boat as far as Port Huron for the mail delivery.

Fate decreed that he never would own The Tashmoo, but Charlie did the next best thing. He carved a replica of the boat that was his childhood dream.

His latest handiwork is a boat two-feet long and five inches wide and it is an exact replica of the original boat that was 306 feet long and 58 feet wide.

SITTING IN THE workshop in his home at Canton Center and Ford Road, Langell confided that he had built many models, the most famous of which is the Mayflower that rests in the lobby of the Mayflower Hotel, but the Tashmoo gave him his greatest chalenege.

"There were no plans available," he said. "The boat was built in 1909 and was a marvel until she burned at Amherstburg in 1936 and the plans were lost somewhere along the line.

"All I had to work with were picture post cards and one or two side view pictures friends sent to me. I had to judge the rest and after working on these collections and figuring for 10 years I was able to get to work."

Langell claims he worked more than 1,400 hours on his pet project. But it was a labor of love.

He'll tell you that few grown men have replicas of their boyhood dreams. "But I have. I had to make it myself — but it is the flagship of all the replicas I have made in my time."

AS THE CANTON hobbyist chatted, he allowed the years to roll back to his boyhood when he accompanied his mother and some of the neighbors to Tashmoc Park for a picnic.

There were no restaurants or dance floors in those days. There were about a half-dozen swings and a small baseball field. And, as he recalls it, the island was filled with tepees brought over by the Indians from Walpole Island. There they sold beads and other Indian handicraft.

While he confided that he fell in love with the Tashmoo at first sight, he really became attached to it when he was able to ride on it as it delivered the mail to the ports at St. Clair, Marysville and Port Huron.

"Gad, how I dreamed of the day when I could own a boat like that. When I started to ride it the Tashmoo had no dining room or ballroom.

"There were just a lot of chairs around the deck, but I watched it grow until it became the most popular of all touring steamers on the Great Lakes."

Langell shook his head and recalled the boat's last days. When the inter-urban trolley line came up from Detroit and took over the mail, the Tashmoo was doomed. It wasn't profitable with passenger traffic alone. It had to have the mail contract. When that was lost the boat finally docked at Amherstburg and there went to its watery grave — the victim of a fire.

It will always be a fond memory to Langell, and now that he has his own replica it will be a source of many dreams of his boyhood up on the St. Clair River and his visits to Tashmoo Park.

Residents gripe about bad roads

By ROBERT CAPUDEAN

A sharply worded opening statement by Franklin Palmer Estates Homeowners Association President Tim Orbacki set the mood for a meeting with the Wayne County Road Commission Tuesday night.

Orbacki called for action "like yesterday" on a stretch of Sheldon Road from the Franklin Palmer subdivision to Cherry Hill Road, which is part of the road labeled Canton's worst in a recent Observer poll.

"It is unsafe, damaging cars, forcing residents to use air conditioning because of dust, is missing guard rails and may soon be the cause of tragedy in this area," Orbacki said. His statement drew applause from the standing-room-only gathering of 125 people.

But the meeting provided more questions than it did answers on how to solve the paving problem

Bill Walker, supervisor of the street assessment department of the road commission, suggested two variations of the special assessment process as the only legal means for the financially weak commission to pave the secondary road from Palmer to Cherry Hill.

Both forms of the assessment process would require majority agreement by the homeowners who have land fronting on Sheldon in the proposed paving area.

"At an estimated cost of $600,000, it would cost each resident on Sheldon approximately $9,000," said Canton Township Supervisor Noel Culbert.

Township Clerk John Flodin said that, in telephone conversations with residents on Sheldon, they had indicated "an unwillingness to participate in special assessment paving."

A third type of special assessment was suggested by the homeowners association attorney, Peter Bundarin.

According to Bundarin, the township, if it agrees, could be assessed 25 percent of the paving cost; the road commission would be assessed a percentage of the cost; and a special assessment district consisting of all who would benefit from the paving would be assessed the remaining costs.

Culbert added that passage of a one mill levy could cover the cost of paving all of Canton Township within the next 10 years. The suggestion drew mixed reaction from the crowd.

Larry Schendel, attorney for the legal division of the road commission, said a partial solution will be had by the end of the year because two subdivisions are slated for construction between Franklin Palmer and Cherryhill Road.

The road commission can require the developers to pave a 25 and one-half-foot-wide stretch of Sheldon that borders its developments.

This would provide paving from Franklin Palmer to Cherry Hill, except for a 300-foot area in front of the Michigan Bell facility.

But the only way to force paving on the Michigan Bell strip would be by special assessment. Assessment paving would be 37-feet-wide and run from Palmer to Cherryhill.

Although the alternatives were many, and at times confusing, concrete steps were started to alleviate some problems.

Culbert guaranteed 25 mile-per-hour speed limit signs and radar enforcement by the end of this week to help reduce the adverse effects of speeding motorists.

A meeting was also set for later this week between the road commission maintenance department and the homeowner association's board of directors.

The purpose of the meeting is to set a full maintenance schedule for Sheldon, get safety hazards corrected and to discuss installation of a drainage system that would help retard deterioration of the road.

It was a start, but definately not a solution, said Orbacki. "I've been on this thing a year and that's been long enough. It's time to get some action."

Chief quits

this board that someone hasn't tried to cut his legs off," Greenstein said of the chief.

"I think he came in here with something he thought he was assured of."

CULBERT SAID Wednesday that he hopes MacGregor reconsiders his decision to resign.

"I hope it was just a passing fancy," the supervisor said. "I hate to lose him. I think he's too good a chief."

If MacGregor does leave the police department on May 8, Culbert said he will appoint a temporary replacement until a permanent police chief can be hired.

MacGregor was hired as the police department's first full-time chief in August, 1977, after retiring as police chief in the City of Wayne.

Schools want cut of investment profit

Plymouth-Canton school administrators are unhappy that others are earning money on school property-tax collections.

Superintendent John M. Hoben has long suspected that the city of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships were investing school property taxes when collected and earning interest before turning the money over to the district.

That suspicion was recently partially confirmed when Hoben read a news story in the Canton Observer which reported Canton Township was investing school tax income and keeping the interest earned.

After reading the article, Hoben asked for an attorney general's opinion on the legality of the practice.

Hoben also plans to ask the state Legislature for remedial legislation.

"Canton is making money off taxes which belong to the school district. And it's not just us. They are doing the same with the taxes collected for the county and intermediate school district. It's just not right.

"Any interest income earned from our money should be passed onto to us. When taxpayers have to pay an interest penalty for late taxes, that amount is passed onto to us by law. Interest earned on our income also should be passed onto us," Hoben added.

BY STATE LAW school districts cannot collect their own taxes.

Instead school taxes are collected by municipalities — townships and cities — and turned over to school districts.

The law requires municipalities to turn over school taxes after collecting the first 25 percent and in 25 percent increments thereafter.

Municipalities are free though, under current law, to invest school tax funds and earn interest until 25 percent is collected.

Hoben told the school board Monday night that the attorney general claims the law is silent on the right of municipalities to invest school property tax funds.

"I have been in touch with the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation (MAISL) and we are trying to get legislation written to require that school tax monies be released on successive Mondays after collections are received," said Hoben.

Denver may aid farm proposal

Country music star John Denver has apparently considered a public relations role to promote Canton Township's proposal to preserve some 5,000 acres of agricultural land.

Trustee Robert Greenstein, who has been appointed farmland preservation director, revealed to the township board Tuesday night that he has already discussed the proposal with Denver.

The singing star, who is a member of the President's World Hunger Commission, has considered the production of national television commercials to promote the preservation of the country's dwindling agricultural land, Greenstein said.

Since Canton has already proposed a plan for the public purchase of farmers' development rights, Greenstein said Denver has considered using Canton to promote the agricultural land drive.

The commercials would push for the allocation of federal funds to help local communities save their agricultural land, Greenstein said.

THE TRUSTEE said he was scheduled to meet with one of Denver's aides April 25 to 27 at Boyne Mountain to discuss final approval of the proposal.

But Greenstein told township board members Tuesday night that he would not attend the meeting because Supervisor Noel Culbert had scheduled a special township board meeting on the proposed sign ordinance for Wednesday, April 25.

Greenstein told the board that "the Denver people probably won't get involved in the program now" since he will have to cancel the appointment he has worked so hard to schedule.

Greenstein said Culbert was the only board member who was aware of his discussions with Denver and the Boyne Mountain appointment. He blasted Culbert for scheduling the sign ordinance meeting for the same day.

Culbert defended himself by saying he had misunderstood Greenstein. He thought the Boyne Mountain meeting was scheduled for another day.

"I feel the people elected me to sit on this board, and that's what I'm going to do," Greenstein said of the Wednesday sign ordinance meeting. "The sign ordinance is too important for a trustee to absent himself. My duty as trustee is first. Farm preservation director comes second."

Greenstein said he kept the Denver proposal a secret at the request of the singing star who asked for no publicity until a firm commitment was made.

When board members were informed of the Denver proposal, they urged Greenstein to attend the Boyne Mountain appointment in place of the sign ordinance meeting.

When Greenstein refused, Trustee Carol Bodenmiller called her fellow board member "a bullhead."

THE BOARD unanimously approved funds for Greenstein to attend the scheduled three-day meeting with Denver's aides over the trustee's objections.

They also approved hotel and transportation costs for Greenstein to attend two other farmland-related appointments.

On May 17, the trustee is scheduled to testify before the U.S. Congress on a bill that would allocate $16 million a year to communities for the preservation of agricultural land.

On May 7, Greenstein is scheduled to meet with members of the Michigan Agricultural Department to discuss Canton's farmland preservation proposal.

Mini sludge site planned and nickle can kill the very plants it is meant to aid if used in too large a dose.

Samples analyzed by several independant laboratories and Michigan State University revealed a typical level of 145 parts per million (ppm) in a sampling of sludge cake, while a sample of the composted sludge separated from the wood chips with a screen yielded about 33 ppm.

Bill Forcade, a staff attorney for Citizens for a Better Environment, based in Chicago, said metals such as cadmium and nickle can be diluted, but they don't disappear.

Citizens for a Better Environment has been active in getting the soil additives produced from sludge in cities such as Chicago and Milwaukee labeled with a warning that they should not be used to grow food.

Forcade said it is possible for the industries that are major disposers of cadmium, such as electroplating firms, to separate the chemical before dumping waste into the sewer system. "But it's very expensive," he said.

So where do the chemicals go if they can't be broken down and yet number less in the screened compost than the sludge cake? "Nobody knows," Hart said.

But Lawrence Halfen, manager of analytical services for Williams and Works of Grand Rapids (which is working with Bi-Products) said the proposed Canton site is a "site contained closed loop."

Sludge will be mixed with wood chips on asphalt pads and liquid run off will be returned to the Detroit plant via a closed system.

He said the company will adhere to Michigan Department of Natural Resource regulations for levels of the suspect chemicals. However, no safe level for cadmium has been established.

Halfen says there are potential hazards in the build-up of such metals in ground water or soil, but believes there isn't a serious problem in relation to the amount in the soil additive.

He points out that these same chemicals are already being released into the Detroit River. "The Bi-Products proposal is better than what's going on now."

"We don't pretend to have the perfect solution. Bi-Products is trying to provide an interim solution until technology gives us something better,"

Schools protest taxation bounty

a one percent collection fee which covers the township's expenses of collecting school taxes.

"That one percent in Canton brings in more than $100,000. They are being handsomely paid for collecting our taxes. We could collect our taxes, if the law allowed, for less than $100,000."

The school board in the past has urged the city and both townships to turn over school tax collections on a more timely basis.

Each year the district must borrow money to meet operating expenses until tax collectons are received. The board hopes to reduce its interest expenses by reducing the amount which must be borrowed if collections were turned in quicker.

Since making that request the municipalities have improved in turning over school tax income. As of April 6, 1979, Canton had turned over 94 percent of 1978 school property tax collections compared to 93 percent by the same time last year.

Plymouth Township had turned over 93 percent compared to 90 percent in April 1978 and the city of Plymouth had turned over 94 percent — the same as last year.

The districts expects $9.5 million from Canton for 1978 school taxes but has received only $9 million to date. Plymouth Township still has about $500,000 to turn over and the city of Plymouth has about $200,000 still due the schools.

Besides increased interest expense, school adminis tration also is unhappy about the delay in turning over collections because the district earns interest income from investing tax collections.

As of March 31, 1979, the district had earned some $13,000 by investing tax collections for periods ranging from 30 to 55 days. The district had invested operating funds totalling $13 million. The schools' total 1978 tax collections are expected to reach $22.3 million.

Based on total school tax collections, Canton could invest up to $2.3 million in school taxes before reaching the 25 percent level when the funds have to be turned over.

The school district also has invested unspent money from previous bond issues — totaling some $16 million - and earned interest of almost $63,000.

Roberts calls sign law invalid

not connected to the chamber's threats.

Bruce Phillips, director of the ordinance department, said a sign law adopted in 1967 and replaced by the current law in 1975 would immediately take effect if Garber rules the present ordinance unconstitutional.

The 1967 ordinance allows banners and free-standing signs up to 300 square feet in area.

A hearing on Bundarin's motion is scheduled for Friday, April 27, in Canton's 35th District courtroom.

In his motion, Bundarin alleges that the township board made changes in the sign ordinance recommended by the planning commission before approving the law in 1975. He maintains that township boards, under a Michigan statute, are required to resubmit all proposed changes in zoning ordinances to the planning commission.

Bundarin said the law is invalid because the amended ordinance was not resubmitted to the planning commission before final approval.

"There were amendments, and, as far as I know, they did not go back to the planning commission," said Phillips, who served as ordinance officer at the time.

BUT THE TWO attorneys on the Canton board — Supervisor Noel Culbert and Trustee Robert Greenstein — expressed doubt that Bundarin's arguments will hold up in court.

Culbert called Bundarin's motion for a refund of fines paid by businesses "pure dribble." Roberts is the only businessman named in the case.

Greenstein maintains that the township board's re-adoption of the sign law last November corrected any procedural errors that may have been made originally.

Officials surmise flood causes

tary sewer lines that run from homes to the street.

• Leaks in basement walls or windows that allowed storm water to enter.

Wade said township DPW workers will repair the defective manholes that he said were a major reason for the flood. He promised that other steps will be taken once his firm's study on the township's sewer system is complete.

"THE OBVIOUS QUESTION is, 'What can we expect if it rains again,'" Wade said.

"But even if it happened tomorrow, it would be different," he said. "I won't tell you that you won't have any flooding. But I can tell you that it won't be as bad."

Some residents charged that the flooding was caused by the township's construction boom and overtaxed sewer system.

But Trustee Robert Greenstein, who lives in western Canton where there are no sewers, attempted to discredit that theory by pointing out that a drainage ditch in front of his house had overflowed to a distance of 85 feet during the Good Friday rain.

"I've never seen that much water in the 15 years I've lived here," he said. "I kind of think there were some natural things (ground conditions, for example) together with the things Mr. Wade found to create this problem."

Deputy Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz, who sat on the board Tuesday night in the absence of Treasurer Jim Donahue, advised flood victims to prepare an itemized list of their losses for a federal income tax deduction. She also advised residents to save newspaper articles about the flood for tax purposes.

County caters senior meals in own kitchen

Savings resulting from the newly opened "scratch-cooking" facility at the "J" Building senior citizen center in Westland are expected to provide hot meals for 25 percent more seniors in the coming months, according to Dante Divitto, director of the Wayne County Office on Aging.

The facility, which opened Thursday, prepares meals for 450 seniors at seven different sites located in Sumpter, Canton, Plymouth, Van Buren, Inkster, Westland and Huron Township.

"Catered meals," DiVitto said, "have been costing the county approximately $1.31 each. We've been able to cut this to 95 cents by doing the preparation ourselves."

Caroline Lewis, director of nutrition, added "another important factor is our ability to provide a wider variety of foods and even some ethnic diets. We plan to gradually expand the service to all of the 48 sites which serve 2,955 seniors each day."

Wayne County's nutrition program is the second largest in Michigan, second only to Detroit's.

Chief chef for the facility is Yonus Howard, a 15-year veteran of some of Detroit's most popular restaurants.

Renovations, which were partially funded by federal money received last year, included bringing the existing equipment up to code, purchasing new equipment and adding more staff.

Baby killed in accident

A tragic accident resulted in the death of a 7-month-old infant in Plymouth last week.

The city's fire department rescue unit was unable to revive Crystal Ann Farmer, daughter of Ronald and Ann Marie Farmer of North Harvey Street. The child apparently caught her head between the rails of a bed at her babysitter's home April 19.

The child was sleeping in a standard bed with hospital-type rails, according to reports. Resuce workers were called to the home when the babysitter discovered the accident.

The infant's funeral was held April 21 in Schrader Funeral Home, with the Rev. Robert Keller officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Other survivors include grandparents Ambrus and Woodsey Farmer of Livonia, and Francis and Margaret Koenig of Peoria Heights, Ill.

Haggerty Rd. will be paved

The Michigan Department of Transportation will take bids in Lansing May 2 on reconstruction of Haggerty Road between Seven and Eight Mile roads on the Livonia-Northville Township border.

80 gain tenure

For some 80 teachers from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools next month will mean more job security.

The school board was told last Monday night that about 80 teachers are on the list of faculty members being recommended for tenure.

The administration was prepared to recommend that tenure be denied to two instructors but that action became unnecessary when the two teachers resigned, explained Norman Kee, assistant superintendent for employee relations.

New teachers hired for their first job are eligible for tenure after two years employment, Kee said. New teachers who have experience in other districts are eligible for tenure after one year on the job in Plymouth-Canton.

Because of rising enrollment, Kee said, the faculty has been expanded in size over the past two or three years. With enrollments declining elsewhere, he added, the job market is such that Plymouth-Canton Schools has been able to hire more experienced teachers at the first step.

Because of this, Kee said, new teachers hired two years ago and experienced teachers hired a year ago are all coming up for tenure in May 1979 — meaning more than usual.

Kee added that the district has thousands of applications from teachers wanting work, which makes it easier to select the best tutors.

With so many well-qualified applicants, Kee said, most of those hired end up earning recommendations for tenure in one or two years.

With the arrival of warm weather, Hines Park is again heavily populated with bikers, joggers and sun-bathers. This scene was found at Haggerty Field. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Bursts of sunshine fill up Hines Park

Among the sun soakers were (from left) Sally Alonzo, 17, and Pam Roberts, 16 — both of Canton.

After fixing the flat, Dave Danes is back on the bike trails along Hines Park — shown here riding near Wilcox Lake.

Linda Roberts, another Hines cyclist, rides through the park with her own source of water.

Witch Watch

by GUNDELLA

Folk medicine buried many of its mistakes

American people are in better health today than at any time in the history of this nation.

In spite of this, there is a trend today to return to the folk medicines and home cures of the past. It will probably come as a surprise to many of you to heart that I, a witch, feel this is a mistake.

The days of witches brewing steaming cauldrons of medication to be doled out to trusting clients should be a thing of the past.

Witches and folksy old ladies with herbal cures performed a real service to their neighbors when there were no doctors and pharmacies available. At that time in history, if you needed an operation, you went to a barber because he was the one with the sharpest razor.

No one knows for sure how many persons died from the cure in those days.

IT BOTHERS ME a great deal to hear young people today put down modern medicine.

What amazes me more is that these young people, who have never seen a diphtheria epidemic, whole families wiped out by small pox, or a person crippled for life by poliomyelitis, are being joined in their rush to the health food stores by older people who should know better.

True, many of us did survive childhood without ever seeing a doctor. Grandmas treated our colds with bear oil, goose grease and eucalyptus leaves. But many others did not survive.

Compare today's rate of infant mortality with that at the turn of the century.

Walk through any old cemetery and count the tombstones of mothers who died in childbirth. When is the lst time you heard of an otherwise healthy young woman dying in labor, even in cases of breech birth and Caesarian sections?

I DO LIKE herbal teas, and I sometimes use them. They do have real value when taken in small doses for the right purpose. But home doctoring? That can be very dangerous.

Juniper berries, good as a diuretic, can seriously irritate the digestive tract. So can yellow dock, aloe, senna leaves and countless others.

Plymouth – Past & Present

Women find their history

By Sam Hudson

(PART I)

I had two problems in writing this series of articles on the history of women in the Plymouth area.

What criteria do you use in determining whether a person deserves mention in the history of the community in which he or she lives?

How can you avoid omitting those who deserve to be included, but whose works are unknown?

As to the first problem, the women or women's organizations to whom I shall refer during the next few weeks, have met one or more of these qualifications:

1. They were trailblazers, pioneers, the first to do something of importance.

2. They held public office, or performed some other worthwhile public service.

3. They were a strong influence on their times, or had a strong influence on the community as it is today.

4. They made the news, controversial or otherwise.

5. Their accomplishments in a particular field were outstanding.

6. They made a significant contribution to the cultural life of the community in terms of education, art, literature, history, music or other field of endeavor.

I have not yet resolved the second problem, except to ask any reader who thinks I have omitted someone of significance to call the ommission to my attention for possible use in some future column.

For purposes of organization I have divided my selection of the outstanding women in the history of Plymouth into these categories: 1. Pioneers; 2. Women in social reform; 3. In education; 4. In women's clubs; 5. Women and the Symphony; 6. In commerce; and 7. Women in politics.

PIONEER WOMEN

Two women stand out among those who lived in the area when Plymouth was in its infancy.

One helped her husband build the first home in the village in the year 1825. She was the first white woman to live in the present limits of the city.

She arrived here when the place was a wilderness, trod only by Indians and an occasional fur trapper. With her was a 15-month-old son, Albert. While she was cooking, or sewing, or helping her spouse plant seeds, she had to keep one eye on Albert, and the other on the wild animals which roamed the area. When the settlers arrived here, wolves, bears and wildcats still considered it home.

Her name was Keziah Starkweather. She is an outstanding example of what a woman had to possess in pioneer days in Michigan — courage, stamina, and faith that she and her family could survive in new and strange surroundings.

The Potawatomi Indians, who trooped through the area periodically, were not hostile, but were certainly not part of the secure milieu she had enjoyed in West Bloomfield, New York.

In 1826, she gave birth to another son, George. He was the first white child born in what is now Plymouth Township.

THE OTHER PIONEER whose name belongs in the history of this area was a young girl named Lettie Teeple.

Lettie died in Seattle in 1911, age 82. She left behind the story of her life. It is of interest here because she was born in Plymouth in 1829, barely four years after the place was settled.

Lettie Teeple's recollections of Plymouth Township when she was a little girl are of value in understanding what life was like for a woman on a farm in the pioneer days.

She was born at Cooper's Corners, a settlement which then stood at the intersection of North Territorial and Beck roads. It did not survive, but Cooper's Corners once rivalled what later became downtown Plymouth.

Fortunately, we have Lettie's description of Cooper's Corners as it was when she was 7 years old:

"It had a number of nice buildings," she wrote, "painted white with green blinds. Besides a store with candy in the window, there was a blacksmith shop and a cooper shop. It was the first cluster of buildings I had ever seen."

Lettie's father had a farm near the corner of Ridge and North Territorial roads. He made potash from wood ashes that he bought from settlers who were clearning the land. (Potash got its name because a pot was used to boil down the ash which was used to make soap).

Teeple would load his potash into a wagon drawn by oxen and sell it in Detroit. Lettie said it took him a week to make the round trip.

Meanwhile, Lettie's mother had to keep things going back on the farm. She hired a boy to help her husk corn and store it in the cribs.

"At the time," Lettie recalled, "she was fatting some hogs. She would yoke up the oxen herself and drive them to the fields. She would haul loads of corn and potatoes back to the barn. I had to stay in the house to look after the little ones."

Schoolcraft spring walk lures wildflower lovers

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

Outdoors

Everyone likes wildflowers, but what do you know about them?

The second annual wildflower walk is coming up from 1-3 p.m. Sunday, May 6. It's sponsored by the Schoolcraft College biology department in cooperation with the Western Wayne County Conservation Club.

The place will be Livonia's Bicentennial Park, whose nature trails feature more than 35 species of wildflowers, which are expected to be at their peak of bloom by the first week of May, according to Schoolcraft biology instructor Roger Sutherland. The park is located on Seven Mile between Farmington and Wayne roads.

Guiding the tours will be persons who have completed a wildflower class at Schoolcraft. Among them are Margaret Converse, Eleanore Jones and Bessie King of Livonia, Jane Walker of Northville and Kay Wittliff of Farmington.

I READ MY own column and joined the recent "canoe-in" at Oakwoods Metropark on the Huron River near Flat Rock. The day was windy, but we had a delightful trip down the river, snapping slides of waterfowl and swapping observations with naturalists and other canoeists.

Next Sunday at 2 p.m., Oakwoods naturalist Bob Wittersheim will lead a "Wildflowers of Spring" family nature walk, identiying early flowers and their poisonous or edible qualities.

Take I-94 south to Will Carleton Road, go east a short hop to Romine Road, north a mile to Willow Road, turn right and there you are.

FISHING is still slow, due to high waters and the extended cold spell.

The DNR's weekly report tells of "spotty" white bass fishing in Lake
Erie, "a few crappies" in Lakeville Lake, "slow to poor" white bass fishing in the St. Clair River, "a few perch" around the Flat Rock dam on the Huron River.

State park user fees are also charged at such popular boat launches as Orchard Lake, Lakeville Lake, Harley Ensign and Selfridge Field. Entry is $1 per car and $2 if you haul a trailer. Boat launches are now open at three metroparks - Kensington, Stony Creek and Metropolitan Beach. Besides a park admission, you will have to get a boat permit at $2 a day or $7 for the season.

DAILY CAMPER fees will range from $2 to $4 on 239 campgrounds in 14 national forests operated by the U.S. Forest Service.

Size of the fee depends on whether campgrounds have drinking water, toilets, refuse disposal and open-fire cooking facilities.

National forests tend to be less populated than state parks in Michigan.
The state highway map doesn't even show national forest campgrounds, though they are certainly a natura' asset of this state.

Ottawa National Forest, Box 468 Ironwood 49938 (western UP).

Hiawatha National Forest, 2727 N. Lincoln Rd., Escanaba 49829 (eastern upper peninsula).

Huron-Manistee National Forests, 421 S. Mitchell, Cadillac 49601 (the Huron NF is in the eastern lower peninsula, the Manistee in the western LP).

Daniel's Den
Not for adults

By Emory Daniels

It's a good things kids are agile.

Otherwise they might all be dead.

For the past few years I've been drafted into a number of activities — bake sales, carnivals, raffle ticket sales — to raise funds for the school playground.

The equipment finally was installed, just in time for the spring playground season.

The other day I drove down to the junior high nearby for my first jogging try of the spring, and on the way back the kids talked me into stopping by to inspect the new playground equipment.

A visual inspection wasn't what they had in mind. Dad was supposed to try the stuff out, first-hand.

ONE FUN THING the PTA discovered is a corkscrew slide.

It's about twice as tall as your normal large slide and, as you can guess, the slide itself is arranged in a corkscrew shape.

The problem is that the slide is designed for children of elementary school age — not for dad. After climbing to the top, I realized my legs were too long to slide around the contours of the corkscrew on the way down.

I was thinking about a retreat down the ladder, but my daughter was right on my heels. She advised me to roll into the shape of a cannonball, as if I were going to dive into a swimming pool.

The other problem was the height of the slide. Because it is very, very tall, sliders end up going very, very fast.

While going down the first couple circles, I was suprised by the speed and unconsciously let go of my knees. My legs straightened out and halfway down I got stuck. But after doubling back again into the cannonball position the descent continued — very, very fast.

When I hit the ground I still was in the cannonball position. Unfortunately I didn't land on my head.

I then tried a jumping board with springs on the four corners, and went through the gyrations of Disco Danny without further injury.

But I made the mistake of asking if they had any "traditional" playground equipment and was led to the monkey bars and challenged to "walk the bars."

Not only did that result in a nice set of blisters, slowing my typing speed by 15 words per minute, but it also stretched my stomach muscles out about two inches.

The next time the kids were taken down to the playground, dad went straight to the swingset and sat the entire time we were there, with my Red Cross first aid kit close at hand.

Aid transfers, says SC candidate

Robert A. Ficano, a candidate for Schoolcraft College trustee, said he would support a research center to assist with employment placement for students at the community college.

Ficano, a Livonia attorney, made the proposal this week at a meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Jurcisin of Livonia.

"I believe that the college is not utilizing its full potential in helping the serious transfer students and associate graduates," he said. Ficano said discussions with graduates and current students shows dissatisfaction at their inability to transfer some credits to four-year institutions.

Ficano said Macomb County Community College has a department to assist students in career choices. "The Macomb Research Center conducts surveys of its students and gets feedback about the success of the school's programs. I'd like to know how Schoolcraft graduates do in the job market and develop programs to enhance their employment opportunities," he said.

"Another useful function of a research center would be to anticipate fields of employment that are opening or closing and communicate that information to students."

He cited police hiring patterns within the college district which showed: Livonia hired none but promoted seven cadets, Northville promoted three cadets, Westland hired four officers, Plymouth hired two officers, Canton Township hired 20 and Garden City hired six.

Tickets are required for museum benefit

The Sunday, May 6, benefit for the Detroit Institute of Arts at the Edsel and Eleanor Ford home will be by ticket only.

Sponsored by the Antiquaries, an auxiliary of the museum's Founders Society, the 4-7 p.m. event to the Ford residence on Gaulkler Point, will feature a program by Dr. Frederick Cummings, museum director, who will discuss the artistic interests of Eleanor Clay Ford, as reflected in the home which was designed in 1927 by Albert Kahn.

Reversations are limited. For information, call 833-7875.

Kathy Copland of Livonia as Laurey, Kerry Piercy of Plymouth as Aunt Eller, and Terry Crouson of Garden City as Curly rehearse a "mad" scene from this weekend's production of "Oklahoma!"

'Oklahoma!' staged at Ladywood High

The musical play "Oklahoma" will be presented this weekend at Ladywood High School in Livonia.

Friday and Saturday performances will be at 7:30 p.m. and a Sunday matinee will begin at 2:30 p.m.

As usual, the girls' Catholic school had to recruit male singers and dancers from area public and private schools to stage the popular musical. The Rodgers and Hammerstein production takes place in the Oklahoma territory at the turn of the century. As Oklahoma prepares for statehood, a variety of characters come onto the scene.

The play is directed by Patricia Canfield. Choral director is Sister Paullette, choreography is by Barbara Masak, and orchestral direction is by Francesco DiBlasi. Teri Michelini is assistant director and Dolly Lewandowski is stage manager.

The cast includes Lori Szczepanowski and Kathy Copland as Laurie; Al and Terry Crouson as Curly; Jeannette Dery and Kerry Piercy as Aunt Eller; Anne Grobosky and Jackie Vendittelli as Ado Annie; Rob Grenne as Jud; Bob Dorfman as Will; Roland Aragona Jr. and Tim Gasco as Ali; Shelly Apczynski and Peggy Roberts as Gertie; and Ron Reid and Jerry L'Heureux as Carnes.

6 enter S'craft board race

Six candidates will be seeking three seats on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees June 11.

As of Tuesday's filing deadline, four persons were seeking two six-year terms and two were seeking a two-year term in the nonpartisan race. Certification of the candidates is subject to a check of their petition signatures.

The board this year will be reduced from eight members to seven under a new state law making all community college boards uniform in size.

Board Chairman Paul Y. Kadish of Livonia previously said he would not seek reelection.

SEEKING the two six-year terms are: incumbents Nancie Blatt of Livonia and Dr. Gerald Cox of Garden City, attorney Robert Ficano of Livonia and Michael Burley of 45168 Patrick Dr., Canton Township.

Burley was a surprise entry. He picked up his petitions Tuesday and returned them the same day.

Ficano is a law partner of Jerry Raymond, husband of SC trustee Rosina Raymond, all three Democratic Party regulars. Many party persons have been angry with Mrs. Blatt for failing to support another party person for a board appointment last year.

AS EXPECTED, incumbent Richard Hayward of Livonia and Thomas Moore of Northville filed for the two-year seat.

Hayward got the appointment last year after trustee Ron Cowden resigned to move to Manistee. Moore had also sought the appointment and said at the time he planned to run.

Hayward is executive vice-president of a structural steel firm. Moore is an engineering supervisor in transmission design at Ford Motor Co.

Not entering the race was G.J. (Jack) Bologna, a management consultant from Plymouth Township. Bologna ran for the board in 1977 and sought the appointment but has reportedly decided to restrict his activities because of a family illness.

Mrs. Blatt seeking new term at SC

NANCIE BLATT
Seeks new term

Nancie Blatt has announced her candidacy for another six-year term on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in the June 11 election.

Mrs. Blatt, 40, of Livonia, is treasurer of the board and president-elect of the Michigan Community Colleges Association.

She was appointed to the board in January of 1973 and elected to a full term the following June. She chairs the board's policy committee.

Four persons are seeking two six-year seats. The election is held in conjunction with K-12 schoolboard elections in Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth-Canton.

"ONE PRIORITY in the coming term is to get the community to recognize that the Schoolcraft College campus is getting older and must have increased funding to replae old equipment and maintain the buildings," she said.

"This is crucial to preserve Schoolcraft's reputation for quality education."

She said her leadership on the community college board and in the state association have given her the experience to continue to lead the college progressively.

Mrs. Blatt is administrative assistant to the president of Stewart Oxygen Service. She holds a bachelors and masters degree from the University of Michigan and was formerly a substitute teacher.

AMONG HER activities have been serving as a delegate to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, an officer in the Livonia Business and Professional Women Club, as a member of Livonia citizens committees on school financing and vocational-technical education and a chairperson of a millage campaign.

She is also an officer of the 2d District Women's Political Caucus and was Democratic nominee for state representative in 1977.

Nuclear reactor corrections seen

Officials of Consumers Power Co., which has sunk $930 million into a nuclear power plant at Midland, are awaiting results of an investigation into the Three Mile Island plant breakdown before deciding what modifications to make in their own plant.

"Fortunately, since the plant is under construction, we have the time to study the results of the Three Mile Island investigatioin to determine what modificationis, if any, are neessary to further preclude the possibility of an accident of the Three Mile Island type," CP President John D. Selby told company shareholders last week in a regional meeting in Royal Oak.

The Midland plant "is of a design and manufacture similar to the Three Mile Island units," Selby said, referring to the Pennsylvania plant where a partial meltdown endangered the nearby area.

"AS TO PUBLIC confidence in nuclear power, it would be foolish to deny that it has been undermined by the Three Mile Island accident," Selby said. "From those who are unalterably opposed to nuclear power, we can expect intensified opposition."

Selby spoke almost on the eve of a planned anti-nuclear demonstration scheduled last Saturday in Midland.

"The majority of the public, however, has time and again — in opinion polls and at the ballot box — expressed its support for the nuclear option," he said. "And I believe that if we continue to do our job — by learning from the Three Mile Island experience and by applying that new knowledge to our plant design and operating plans — then the public will continue to support nuclear generation."

Selby said a nuclear plant can generate electricity 25 percent cheaper per kilowatt-hour than coal or oil fueled plants. Another company official said the 25 percent figure was "conservative" — that nuclear power was even more efficient than that.

"WITH PROJECTED future shortages and higher costs of oil and natural gas, now is not the time to abandon the nuclear option," Selby told the stockholders.

"The Three Mile Island accident was a very serious and unfortunate excursion of which no one in the industry is proud. However, it did not cause a single death or serious radiation exposure to the public and shows again that the system of redundant safety devices works and does protect the public from harm."

Selby, who was considered a nuclear expert when Consumers Power hired him away from General Electric, called "very remote" the likelihood of a similar accident at CP's other two nuclear plants.

America is decking out the out-of-doors with unpainted wood that's beautiful to look at, yet doesn't need looking after.
It's called timbers, ageing. And it's done with Outdoor Wood — real wood deep treated with Wolman's preservatives to keep them sound, sturdy and work-free for decades.
What nature does for Redwood, the Wolman process does for Outdoor Wood. Only cheaper. And you don't have to spend hours out on ladders, either.
Build yourself a beautiful backyard deck with Outdoor Wood. Install a unpainted fence. Then sit back and watch a friend or neighbor walk this way.
That's timber-ageing. And that's easy.
It's great for pole barns, workshops, storage buildings and garages.

editorial opinion

Many notable achievements in just a decade

This year, the Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi League of Women Voters is observing its 10th year as a local organization.

Given the normal accomplishments of young organizations, the League of Women Voters has recorded a long list of notable achievements during its first decade of community service.

The league probably is best known for its work in voter information. And it is in this area where the league's greatest achievements can be found.

BEFORE EACH local election, the LWV will send a questionnaire to all candidates seeking biographical information and views on issues.

This information is then shared with residents as useful background information before decisions are made at the polls. Next month, in cooperation with the Observer, the league will offer a candidates' guide on the 14 hopefuls running for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education in the June election.

The league also holds candidate forums before each local election, and this service will also be repeated for the June school balloting.

Beyond voter information, the league also conducts registration drives in an effort to make sure all residents are signed up and eligible to cast ballots before election day rolls around.

Beyond this kind of election service, league members compile and distribute a booklet entitled "They Represent You" which lists the names, addresses and phone numbers of national, state, county and local officials.

On election night, LWV members pitch in to gather early vote results at key precincts to phone in to the television networks to allow them to give an early call to races of interest.

Last year, league members from Canton put together a book on local government designed especially for use in the Plymouth-Canton elementary grades as a civics primer.

THROUGHOUT THE year, members gather to study issues of local, county, state and national importance and take votes to reach a league consensus position on these matters.

Studies have been conducted on such topics as solid waste, land use, housing for the elderly, transportation, energy, welfare, children services and the courts.

League members also became involved in the Rouge Water Basin Council and local members prepared a slide presentation on the Rouge River and its effect on local communities.

And members became active in the movement to obtain passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in unratified states by sponsoring local fund-raisers to follow up its moral support with financial contributions to that cause.

League members have also donated time and talents to serve in a variety of elected and appointed governmental positions.

The honor roll of past and present league members serving in various governmental capacities in Plymouth-Canton include Flossie Tonda, Lynne Goldsmith, Bev McAninch, Kathy Prince, Neva Carter, Mary Ellen McKercher, Esther Hulsing, Kari Miller, Sally Posthill, Nancy White and Jane Stacey.

The Observer congratulates the League of Women Voters for its many accomplishments during the past 10 years and looks forward to the league's upcoming decade of service to the community.

Search warrant fever

It's your legal battle, too

Tim Richard

A man tells police he was a victim of homosexual rape. Because he is distraught, the police take him to a psychiatric clinic, where a resident psychiatrist interviews him.

Later police make an arrest. The man had given the local prosecutor a description of his rapist, but the prosecutor decides he'd like to know if the victim gave the psychiatrist the same description.

Instead of asking the psychiatric clinic for the records, however, the prosecutor goes to a magistrate and gets a search warrant covering not only the clinic but the psychiatrist's car and home.

And police search all the files.

Now suppose you had visited the same clinic. How would you feel knowing that police had had a look at your file in the clinic. Pretty sore? Persecuted?

Well, such an event actually occurred in Palo Alto, Calif. Indeed, it happened twice. The other time, it happened to the newspaper office of the Stanford Daily.

In the Daily case, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld issuance of the search warrant, even though no one on the paper's staff was actually a suspect in a certain crime.

THE MORAL of the story is that it isn't just newspapers and reporters who have been endangered by the Supreme Court's unwise upholding of "third party" search warrants.

It isn't just the "one party press" that Truman railed against and the "nattering nabobs of negativism" that Agnew fulminated about who are sore at the court for letting heavy-handed cops search our files.

You should be sore, too.

"This threat applies not only to the press," said state Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor. "It applies to the average citizen who has stumbled across something. It applies to information which lawyers and doctors keep about their clients. It even applies to information given to a priest by a confessor."

Bullard's politics are not my politics, but on this issue he's right. In the news gathering business, we come across story after story of persons who feel they've been pushed around by the authorities. They are people who are surprised it happened to them.

And so a newsperson, whatever his other politics, soon becomes a "liberal" on civil liberties issues. You learn that if they can do it to a bunch of writers on a college paper in California, they can do it to you, too.

BULLARD IS pushing his House Bill 4251 to prohibit police from searching innocent third parties (including my newspaper files and your counselor's files) for "evidence" of a crime committed by someone else.

Bullard's staff surveyed 19 county prosecutors in Michigan on their use of third party search warrants and got some mind-boggling answers. Twelve prosecutors had never used them, and five others had used them only three times or fewer.

Only two prosecutors had used them more frequently. Bullard's conclusion was that the third-party search warrant, in practice, was a rarely used tool.

Then he asked them what problems they envisioned if third party search warrants were eliminated in Michigan. Fourteen answered "major difficulties."

The results don't jibe, of course. On one hand, the overwhelming majority of prosecutors say they haven't used third party search warrants; on the other hand, they fear major difficulties if they had to do without such warrants.

COLUMNIST Tom Wicker in the New York Times reported last year that only 12 warrants for press searches have been issued in any jurisdiction, and then he commented:

"There are two ways to look at that record. Only 12 searches in 203 years of the Republic sounds not too bad; but what about no searches for 195 years and 12 in the last eight, and three within the last year?"

His point is that this business of police searches of innocent persons' files is becoming more popular. While we in the newspaper business squawk most, it must be understand that it can happen to you, too.

Well, you might ask, isn't it worth the price if such searches help to catch criminals?

At the beginning of this column, I referred to two such searches — a psychiatric clinic (and personal property) and the Stanford Daily.

In both cases, the cops failed to find what they were after.

Want an early peek at bond ballot issue?

Would you like a free peek at what might be on the ballot taxwise in June?

Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will receive a report Monday night from the citizens bond advisory committee. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. upstairs in the school board offices at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

The meeting is open to the public, so try and get there. You won't have any trouble finding a seat — and the discussion shouldn't last more than an hour.

Bond issues are usually complicated but your attendance Monday night will help you decide the merits of the request — even before it's reduced to ballot language.

Student enrollment continues to climb. Empty classroom space now is at a premium. Without new construction of some type, the future is grim. The citizens' group has been looking at use of portable buildings, construction of classroom wings, and greater use of year-round scheduling.

The final recommendations are important to the future of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Spending an hour at the meeting could be very constructive.

Support Artrain

Fund raising for the Michigan Artrain's visit to lake country is hurting.

The Greater West Bloomfield Arts Council and the Lakes Area Council for the Arts need cash.

If they don't manage to come up with about $3,000 more donations, the museum on wheels might not make its scheduled stop at Orchard Lake St. Mary's campus May 19-27.

That would be a disgrace. It also would be the first time a community backed out of its commitment to bring the revolving collection of art in for exhibition.

Hassles with fund raising and coordination between the two art councils has created this problem.

Local service and civic groups are being asked to donate funds to save Artrain. Residents also should pitch in and help support this fantastic exhibit for our community.

How YMCA has helped

Editor:

Early this month a copy of a local paper was delivered to me along with my hot lunch from Tonquish Creek Manor.

Being a partially blind senior citizen and unable to read well, my neighbor read me the article about the alleged abuse of funds by the senior citizen program of the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA.

Now I would like to tell you just what the YMCA program has done for me. In addition to my visual problem, I have severe arthritis in my hands, feet and hips. I have had surgery on my feet and am still unable to get around very well. I also need a hip replacement. I only mention these to show you how much help I need to manage my own life.

When the YMCA senior citizen program began, my rheumatology specialist from Wayne County General Hospital recommended that I call the 'Y' for assistance. In the beginning, a driver from the 'Y' picked up and delivered a hot lunch to me five days a week from Tonquish Creek Manor.

Then the 'Y' began to provide transportation and errand running for me. They would take me grocery shopping or, if I was unable, do the shopping for me. They picked up my medications from the drug store, took me to the bank to cash my checks, to the post office for stamps and on election day they even took me to the polls.

The 'Y' even got involved by interceding on my behalf to the Lions Club which provided me with an illuminated magnifying glass to help me read. At that time I was living in an apartment in an old house which had frequent and prolonged furnace trouble in the dead of winter. The 'Y' knew about this and provided me with an electric heater to use until heat was restored.

I feel this saved my life as the furnace was out for many days and the temperatures were sub-zero. Jean Campeau from the 'Y' felt I should not have to continue living under such adverse conditions and proceded to get me on a list for subsidized housing which I never knew existed. I was awarded a subsidy and now, thanks to the 'Y', I live in a new, heated apartment.

When it was time for me to move, I had no funds and no one to help me with the move. The YMCA again helped me by providing their van and two lovely people to help me make the move at no cost. My friendly 'Y' helpers even hung my curtains, lined my shelves, put my clothes away, and arranged my furniture. What would I do without them?

Perhaps the people who are criticizing this program should look more closely at all the good they do.

This letter was dictated by me but written by a neighbor.

This shop had grass supply

Editor:

After reading Daniels' Den on the subject of Easter grass, I just had to write and let you know "how near yet how far away" you were and are.

Your Saturday "hunting trip" took you to Savon Drugs and Ace Hardware stores at the corner of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Roads. Right next door to Savon Drugs is a small but well-known specialty shop called Colonial Card & Camera of which I am proud to say I am the manager and buyer.

Each year (including this past weekend) my shop has an abundance of nice green Easter grass in individual packages overflowing from plastic pails and boxes right inside the door. Also, there was a bright yellow sign covering a large portion of the front window reading "Colonial has Grass!"

My regular customers (plus many others who found their way into the store) now know that they can depend on their being "grass" there for them each year as needed. The Easter grass packages are there not because of any fancy percentage increase in ordering, but because we try to be of service to our customers and fill their needs at each holiday.

One of retailing's main goals is to sell merchandise ordered so that bills can be paid. No retailer, large or small, is in business to store inventory away after each holiday. But we often do it just the same, as we still believe in service and meeting the needs of our individual customers.

At this point, may I suggest that you should try a small specialty shop like ours the next time you are in need of something. Most small businesses try to stay competitively priced and to fill the needs of our customers whenever possible. If, indeed, we happen to sometimes be a little higher in prices, the fact that we offer service during and after a sale, answers to numerous questions and problems, a warm smile, and know many customers' names each time they return, has to be worth something.

I know it is to be when I shop and seems to be becoming so for others. I think you could find it the same! Maybe it will take an issue over Easter grass to make you realize how far from satisfying shopping you have strayed by repeatedly patronizing the large volume stores.

KATHLEEN AYERS
Manager
Colonial Card & Camera Shop

(Next year your shop will certainly be my first stop. I do regularly shop the specialty stores for the reasons you mention. But when you are in a hurry with limited time, you don't start off intending to go from shop to shop on a search. Thank you for your help. — Editor)

Not called 'Spike'

Editor:

I recently acquired a copy of your paper and was very hurt and disheartened when I read the article entitled "Landmark shoe store going out of business" (which certainly contains many misconstrued statements).

Blake Fisher, my grandfather, was a very honest and dignified businessman of your community. The article, I felt, was extremely degrading to his memory. He was never to any family members' knowledge called "Spike." He was the sole owner of that store and after the business was established for several years and James Houk had worked for him for some time, he allowed him to become partners in the business. Mr. Fisher sold his share to Mr. Houk when he retired.

Also the other Fisher Shoe stores were co-owned by other men. Mr. Fisher had some interest in the Detroit store also.

I would also expect a reputable paper such as your's to correct such an article.

Article helped sell

Editor:

Kitchen Cabaret was a most successful fundraiser for the Plymouth Symphony, and we are most grateful to the Observer for the excellent coverage -- both before and after -- that we received. I am certain the article and photo on March 12 really helped us to sell out so quickly.

Study of birds

Editor:

My name is Melanie Strongin. My school is Allen School. I am in third grade.

We have been looking at a tree beside the school classroom. Once we saw robins. Then we saw cedar wax wings. They are very pretty. We saw a whole bunch of them. They must like that tree and its berries, because they ate most of them. Another class came to see the birds.They were studying them. I wonder if they like bird seed?

Can SEMTA rival Washington's Metro?

Metrorail stations feature attractive and functional barrel vaulting which helps deaden sounds. Compared to subways in New York and Chicago, Washington's system is cathederal quiet. Floors, stairs, benches and walls are spotless. Its cars sparkle, thanks to constant upkeep. (Photo courtesy Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority.)

Anyone know where we can borrow a Magic Carpet which comfortably seats 4.8 million people?

That would be just the right size for a quick trip by the residents of metropolitan Detroit to Washington, D. C.

The object of this junket would be to take a ride on Metrorail, the capitol's new, high-speed combined surface/underground rail system.

In this way residents of the Motor City and its suburbs could learn first-hand how magnificent mass transit can be.

NOW THAT OUR Southeastern Michigan Transit Authority (SEMTA) is getting into the subway business in a mini way, with a line out Woodward Avenue, it might be good for residents to learn about a modern transportation system.

Washington is certainly a great place to start.

My wife and I recently had an opportunity to sample that city's Metrorail. We had flown into National Airport, where the Metro's Blue Line sweeps into view and at that point is elevated.

We were heading for Union Station and learned we could ride a Blue train downtown, hop off at Metro Center Station and board a Red Line train to Union Station.

It took a few minutes to figure out how to purchase a farecard, which at first seems to be a devilish way to go, but like everything else it's a method that a person can eventually accept.

The train ran above ground a couple of miles, then dipped below the surface. It seemed to be racing along about 50 miles an hour.

WHAT REALLY IMPRESSED us was the extreme beauty of the stations and the cars, plus the train's quiet, speed and ease of operation.

There was something else — the complete lack of graffiti, the bane of ancient systems like New York's.

We had obtained a map of the system, and when we exited the Blue Line and strolled onto the spacious Metro Station platform, I paused to study the map.

Hardly had I unfolded it when a fellow in civilian clothes was asking, "Sir, I'm from the Metro Transit security police. Is there anything I can do to help you?"

When I said we were transferring to the Red Line and heading for Union Station, he quickly gave directions, even suggesting we go to the first car in the train so as to be closer to the Union Station escalator we would be using.

AS WE SETTLED down in the Red Line car, a man stepped inside and the doors closed. He casually glanced fore and aft as the train took off in its smooth start.

"Hey," I whispered to Marilyn, "There's another one, a Metro cop. They must be on every train."

As it turned out, the guess was quite correct. The Metro system is security personified. That best explains things like no graffiti or trouble in stations and on trains.

It's a concept that certainly pays dividends in passenger safety and comfort.

We agreed Washington has a tremendous mass transit system and wouldn't it be wonderful if SEMTA can end up with something like this?

ONCE BACK HOME I dispatched a request to the Metro folks in Washington, asking for data on their system.

All sorts of fascinating stuff arrived.

Metro is a combined bus/rail hookup. Right now there are 30.76 miles of rails serving 34 stations. This will continue to grow until 1985, when it hits 101 miles with 86 stations.

Estimated cost: $5.6 billion.

Of course, SEMTA is talking about eight miles of rail in its present plan, 2.5 miles underground and the rest surface and overhead to the State Fairgrounds at Eight Mile Road.

Like Washington's Metro system, SEMTA's buses will feed into the rail. Can there be more rail lines for the metro Detroit area? Who knows? But we can hope.

METRO TRANSIT AUTHORITY officials report that during 1978 about 139.9 million passengers rode buses or trains to reach jobs, stores or recreational facilities.

When rail lines were extended in 1978 to Silver Springs and New Carrollton, 200 Metrobus routes were adjusted to save costs and eliminate duplicate services.

But most fascinating was the addition of 4,000 parking spaces near the rail terminals to serve customers. From its opening day, New Carrollton's 1,700-place lot was filled before 8:30 a.m.

One in four Metro riders had previously used autos to get to work, a survey by the Washington Post showed.

WASHINGTON'S ECONOMY has been given a happy jolt, thanks to the transit system. Stores near Metro entrances now report Christmas-like crowds almost all year, the authority said.

Office-retail developments at Farragut North and Rosslyn total $35 million. A $200 million Metro Center downtown renewal project, and a $6 million renovation of the downtown Woodward & Lothrop store are under way.

The city's Board of Trade has presented its first "Golden Link" award to the transit group.

It reads: "Metro has made the most significant contribution to the community, especially its economic health and well being, and helped link the area more closely together."

Does all this seem like things we'd like to hear said about SEMTA?

IN A WASHINTON POST story on the economic impact of Metro, a fellow named Leonard Abel, who is building apartments along the Blue Line in Pentagon City and the Red Line near Nicholson Lane, Md., is quoted:

"People who think they have to be a two-car family will find they only need one. They can walk to Metro and let the wife keep the car at home."

Abel goes on to explain that with gasoline prices going up and Metro getting more convenient, people will change habits. "Downtown Washington will be so economically viable, it won't even be funny," he said.

The Post talked to Raymond Kass, of a large real estate mangement firm, who said downtown office space is now hard to find, despite continued construction.

Retail rentals, said Kass, have jumped from $13 per square feet to $25 and $30 for space near Metro stops.

FOR TOO MANY YEARS, I'm afraid, the subway concept in Detroit has been written off. Costs were always given as a factor. And the soil — it wasn't right. Besides, there were plenty of inexpensive cars available and gas was 24 cents a gallon. Who needs rails, especially if they're underground?"

Well, times change, and apparently our understanding of the soil wasn't what it should have been.

Larry E. Salci, general manager of SEMTA, has said that the land beneath Detroit and the inner suburbs is clay, formed when this area was covered by a lake.

Contractors installing a subway would drill through it, not excavate and blast out bedrock, as had to be done in New York, for example.

Costs are still going to be astronomical. But to turn our backs on this sort of mass transit approach might be even more expensive.

FROM ALL THE CLIPS and magazine articles sent from Washington, one quote really seemed to hit the target dead center.

Appearing in the Luther Place Newsletter, it said "The miracle of the decade in Washington is Metro. It is a living example of good judgment, stewardship of resources, community cooperation and sensitivity to creation. It is a step away from pollution, individualism on highways and senseless enslavement to the car."

That really says it all.

For Consumers Power

Inflation cuts into earnings

By TIM RICHARD

In a year of double-digit inflation, shareholders of Consumers Power Co. got a single-digit earnings report.

Earnings per common share for 1978 were $3.21 compared to $3.18 in the prior year — an increase of three cents, or a shade under one percent.

John D. Selby, president of the gas and electric utility that serves most of Michigan's lower peninsula, gave a regional shareholders meeting in Royal Oak a list of reasons for what happened.

The bottom-line culprit: inflation. It's shooting up the cost of supplies, the cost of purchased gas and the cost of luring the $678 million in capital the company will invest this year, the chief executive officer said.

GAS REVENUES rose more than 11 percent to $806 million (most tri-county suburbs buy gas from Consumers Power), and electricity revenues rose some 16 percent to $1.06 billion, the annual report showed.

Selby added:

"But operating costs for 1978 went up, too. The prolonged coal strike certainly didn't help any. We had to increase our use of higher cost oil-fired generation, and our purchased power requirement went up 4.5 percent, not to mention an increase of 11.3 percent in the unit cost per kilowatt hour purchased.

"Coupled with the coal strike was a scheduled outage of our Palisades (South Haven) nuclear plant during the first quarter of 1978. Taken together, these factors caused a 30 percent increase — from 1.41 cents to 1.83 cents — in the average cost per kwh generated and purchased during 1978," he said.

He cited maintenance costs and increased wage and benefit costs as other factors.

Earnings after interest charges and preferred dividends were $140 million on 43.7 million average shares in 1978 compared to $120 million on 37.9 million the prior year.

INFLATION HAS made it more expensive to sell bonds and float loans, said Selby. It occured at at a time when Consumers Power needed to raise $600 million in 1978 and $684 million this year.

Biggest projects: A coal-fired unit at Grand Haven that is 40 percent complte and the Midland nuclear plant which is 58 percent complete.

Selby took over last April as Consumers' chief executive, replacing A.H. Aymond. Aymond, who continues as board chairman, is scheduled to retire in October.

The president's report prompted these stockholder questions and Selby's answers:

Q. Why not buy coal fields, as the oil companies are doing, so CP can have its own fuel supply?

A. "Basically, it's the hundreds of millions of investment it would take. We have places to put all the (investment) cash we can raise. We can make reasonable long-term contracts at prices comparable to what we could do it for."

Q. The company is issuing common stock, preferred stock and bonds. Is that why the price of the stock is down — because of dilution?

A. No. Lately, the total stock market has done badly. "The whole utility industry has suffered in the last three weeks (because of Three Mile Island), but that effect will disappear. Dilution might be part of it." But the company is attempting to improve its capital structure so that common stock is 35 percent of equity; it's currently 33.5 percent. And rating agencies have just raised the ratings on CP's bonds.

Q. What is the operating life of a nuclear power plant? Is it governed by radioactivity?

A. "The operating life has been estimated at 35 years, based not on experience but on coal plants. Radiation levels are not the problem. It's purely based on when materials begin to fatigue based on stress." Once a nuclear plant is shut down, it takes 100 years for it to decay down to "the point where you wouldn't worry about people roaming around."

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

THE MOOD of the Rev. Jeffrey Goldsmith's congregation out at Geneva United Presbyterian on Sheldon Road is one of sadness but with a certain resignation.

"We're all sorry but not surprised," said parishioner Jean Braun. "We knew we couldn't keep him forever."

His last official sermon at the church will be Sunday, April 29. He will begin his new duties May 16 at St. Stephen Presbyterian Church in the Chatsworth section of Los Angeles.

Mary Kay Frey is chairing the open house which will be from 5-8 p.m. Sunday in the church. "The whole church fellowship group is working on it," said Mary Kay. "It's going to be low key. Members of the congregation are providing finger food desserts and there will be punch and coffee. It's an opportunity for his friends to say good-bye."

And they have promised it will not be a maudlin affair. "He would never forgive us if we sat around and sang 'Auld Lang Syne.'"

by ELLIE GRAHAM

GENEVA is Canton Township's first and only Presbyterian church. Jeff Goldsmith, his wife, Lynne, and children Scott and Jennifer came to Canton in 1972. He assumed duties in September and the first service was in December.

The congregation met in Pioneer Middle School. It wasn't until Sunday, Oct. 26, 1975, that ground was broken for the new church. And what a groundbreaking it was.

Following morning services, the whole congregation trooped out to site on Sheldon. Just about everyone, from 2-year-olds on up, had a shovel. Canton clay had turned to Canton mud and it was one of the stickiest ground-breakings on record. But the church families all were involved. The ceremony was typical of the contemporary atmosphere at Geneva.

"It is a warm, caring church," said one of the members. "We have strong lay leadership so I think we'll survive." She added that he "devoted two sermons to his departure and explained why the time is right for him to go."

THE GOLDSMITHS have taken an active role in community affairs. Lynne will have to resign from her four-year term as a Canton Township trustee because of the move.

Jeff served on the Plymouth Symphony Society board of directors. His organizational skills were put to good use during his several terms as treasurer.

He was a soccer coach. One of the results of this interest was a gain in church members. Several of the families of the boys he coached joined Geneva.

The church opened its doors as a meeting place for many organizations and was in use seven days a week.

The Canton and Plymouth community will miss Jeff and Lynne Goldsmith. But we do wish them all the best as they return to their native state.

THE 15 MEMBERS of the AAUW chorus are polishing up their act.

The Plymouth-Canton branch of the American Association of University Women chorus has been invited to sing at the AAUW state convention in the Renaissance Center. They will open the Saturday session with a performance at 9 a.m.

Faith Schweiss directs the choir and Sharon Belobraidich is pianist. They have decided to wear red, white and blue when they sing six patriotic numbers.

KATHY COLEMAN'S ceramics studio on Oakbrook in Canton earned a first place ribbon at last week's Flint Ceramics Association show.

Roberta Baxter's scraffito Indian pot was a first place winner. Because Roberta worked out of Kathy's studio, the studio received a ribbon, too.

Roberta's parents are Robert and Betty Manthey of Plymouth Township. Both are artists.

The winning pot is 12 inches in height. It was hand-carved in squares and with Indian designs. Each square received three coats of underglaze before the final glaze. It was decorated with Heishi beads and the result was a rich brown and turquoise pot that copped first place in its category.

FORMER CANTON resident Neva Carter assumed presidency of the West Bloomfield-Farmington chapter of the League of Women Voters this spring, a post that is not new to her.

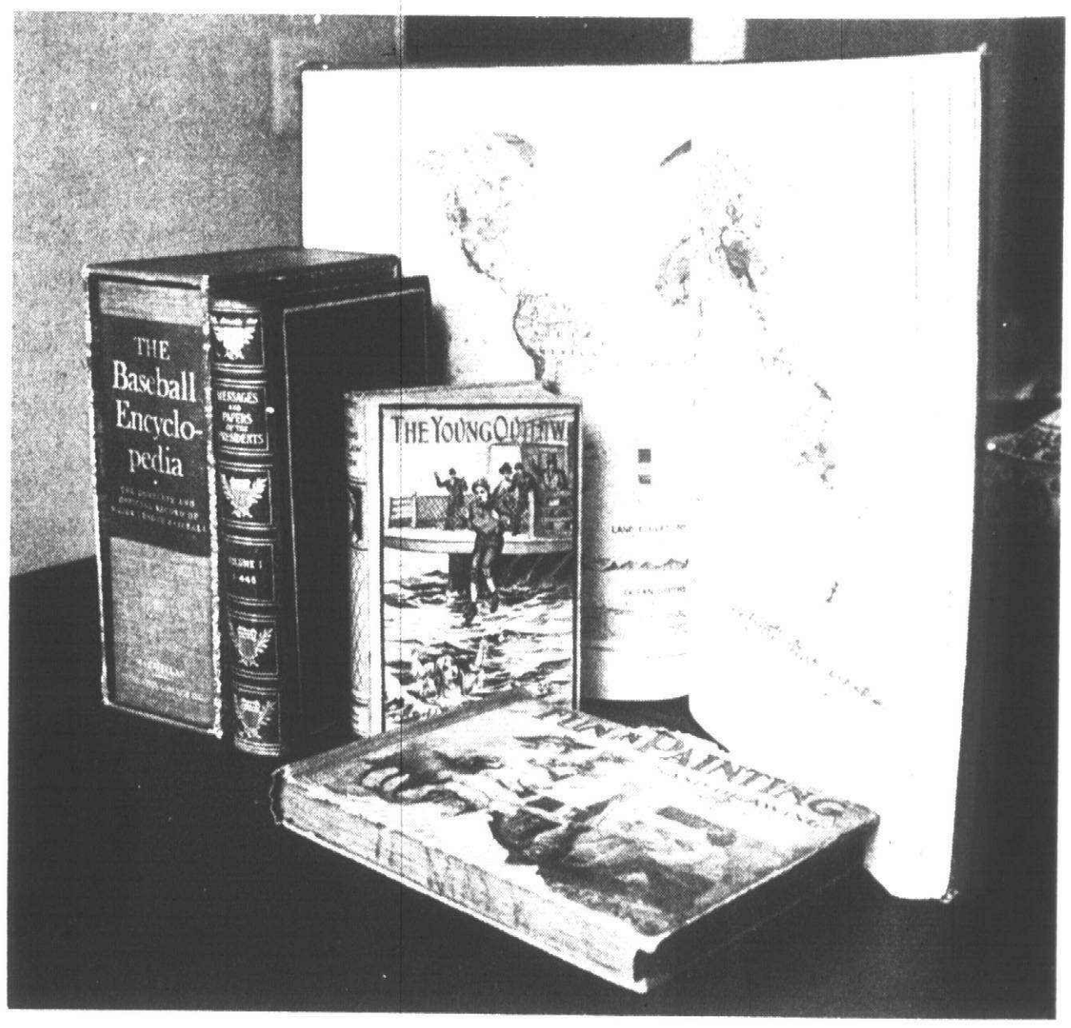

The Farmington Hills woman served in the same position for the Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi chapter from 1976-78.

Of her six years membership in the league, she said, "It's the best way I know of to keep learning; keep moving on. The goals (of all the chapters) are the same, but there are always new issues to study, new areas of concern."

"No matter how much you move from place to place, you'll find the league membership filled with those just a cut above average; the woman who enjoys getting involved.

Camille Zornow, who is chairing the used book sale, surveys the hundreds of cartons of books in storage for the sale which begins May 3 in the Westland Shopping Mall.

The Old and Rare section at the used book sale will have a baseball encyclopedia, a Collier's World Atlas and Gazette, "Messages and Papers of the Presidents," a Horatio Alger Jr. book, and a 1905 edition of "Fun in Painting and Drawing."

AAUW plans 25th used book sale

Thousands of used books will go on sale May 3-5 in Westland Shopping Mall when the Plymouth branch of American Association of University Women has its 25th annual used book sale. Hours for the sale will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Members of the AAUW have spent many hours over the past year collecting, sorting, marking and boxing the books. More than 50 categories are represented — classics, children's books, cookbooks, history, technology, sports and many more.

Of particular interest this year is a set, "Messages and Papers of the Presidents," published in 1897. It includes the bills sponsored by the U.S. presidents, their messages and writings.

There is an "Encyclopedia of Aberrant Behaviour — Crimes and Punishment." This 20-volume set is in mint condition.

THERE IS AN unusual number of nearly new books, and a nice selection of cookbooks, many of them international.

Interesting selections in the Old and Rare department include a pocket-sized New Testament with a metal cover, first editions of "Heidi" and the "Bobbsey Twins in Washington," three volumes of Horatio Alger, a beautiful leather covered volume of "Typhoon" by Joseph Conrad, and "The Baseball Encyclopedia — Complete and Official Record of Major League Baseball History" from the late 19th century to 1969.

There also are a number of handsome old and interesting books that would be lovely "coffee table" books.

Camille Zornow is chairing the sale assisted by Audrey Crain.

THE FIRST SALE 25 years ago was in the old Kroger store on Forest Avenue (where Napoleons is now).

Carolyn Gulick chaired the sale and Clara Scharmen stored the books in her home until the sale. They opened up shop in the morning with two card tables and a small bookcase of books.

Mary Fritz and Irene Truesdell, both teachers, hurried over to serve their shift as soon as school was out. Before the sale, the members had decided novels would be the big sellers. They had been warned against collecting cookbooks on the premise that there would be no call for them.

"Mary and I noted that quite a few people asked for cookbooks," recalls Irene Truesdell. "We cleared $75 on that first sale and were delighted."

AS THE STOCK of books increased, the sale was moved to the A&P store on the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Harvey Street. When they outgrew their allotted space at the A&P, they moved to the basement of what is now the Plymouth Community Credit Union on the corner of Maple and Harvey.

It wasn't until Lynn Culotta joined the AAUW that a major change resulted. She suggested that the books be sorted into categories — novels, art, music, education, sports, hobbies, etc.

From then on the books have been sorted and the list of categories has grown.

"Some persons will buy a whole box of paperbacks for friends who are sick," said Miss Truesdell. "They pass them out all year and replace them at next year's sale."

She has been involved in the sorting and pricing of the Old an Rare section. She finds it interesting that during the sale many persons are searching for vintage school books that their grandfathers or great-uncles studied in their school days.

The AAUW used books sale has grown in 25 years from a $75 "windfall" to big business that requires year round involvement of many AAUW members.

Cathy St. Clair (left), who is chairing the Old and Rare section of the sale, sorts and prices with Donna Keough, a member of her committee.

Naturalists provide guided tours Sunday

The second spring walk through Miller Woods will be from 1-4 p.m. Sunday, April 29. Naturalists will be on hand to identify the flowers, trees and shrubs in the 10-acre climax beech and maple forest on Powell Road near Ridge Road in Plymouth Township.

Penny Wright, chairperson of the Miller Woods Committee, says the trout lilies should be in bloom. "And the wild ginger and pawpaw may be blooming," she adds.

She also predicts a good showing of Dutchman's breeches, hepaticas, spring beauties and blood root that were flowering for the first walk last Saturday. She is doubtful, however, about the violets, jack-in-the-pulpits and trilliums. But the weather may have been warm enough lately to bring them on.

Among the guides will be John Campbell, who headed the Youth Conservation Corps project in Miller Woods last summer, Tom Friedlander, a University of Michigan naturalist, and Mrs. Wright. Herb Conaught, a member of the Miller Woods Committee, also will conduct walking tours.

The walks are free, and cars may be parked parallel to the road. The woods are owned by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Family Services

'Common sense' for family troubles

Canton Chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

If you've driven down Sheldon Road recently you may have noticed a sign at 5835 Sheldon that reads Family Services of Wayne County.

The Canton office is provided by Geneva Presbyterian Church and is located just north of Ford Road in the yellow building in front of the church. Here is a brief outline about what Family Services is and what it provides Canton residents.

Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County provides individual, marriage, family and group counseling services under the direction of professional staff members. Because family breakdown respects no economic, social, racial or religious background, such professional counseling should be available to any family.

It is a non-profit agency supported by the United Foundation through the United Community Services and by an occasional contribution designated for a specific purpose. Other income is from those families able to meet at least part of the cost of the service to them.

It is directly concerned with the family as a unit as well as its individual members. They believe that families must have freedom to make their own decisions, even though somebody else's "common sense" may not always support such decisions.

THE PROFESSIONAL staff provides guidance to families troubled in marital relationships, in the care and training of children, in handling mental illness and in planning with the older person striving to retain his or her independence.

Most of the professional staff members have masters of social work degrees. As an agency it qualifies as a field work training center for graduate students attending the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

The center also serves the strong, usually self-sufficient family that may be facing temporary disruption.

Counseling is done privately in planned, confidential interviews or in small group discussions. They work to give people guidance toward a better understanding of themselves, to reduce indecision and confusion so that they may do something constructive about their problems.

THE PEOPLE they see range from young people about to be married, who are troubled by questions and doubts, to the aging individual, whether he or she be alone and isolated, or distraught family member who is a problem to himself and others.

The staff also sees couples who are unhappy in their marriage, people with adjustments to make after separation, divorce or death in the family, parents worried about their children, teenagers worried about their parents their families and their communities, individuals who are not "making it" because of personal problems, or families suffering from confusion in their relationships and goals.

Fees for service are based on ability to pay. For more information or for an appointment, you can call the Canton office at 459-5140 or 459-5151.

THE CANTON Newcomers next general meeting will be May 2 at Pioneer Middle School, Ann Arbor Road, west of Sheldon. Hospitality starts at 7 p.m. with the general meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m.

At the May meeting, they will be voting on several constitutional changes and will hold elections for new officers for the 1979-80 year.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Char, a physic, who has been seen on local television programs like "Kelly and Company" and "Good Morning Detroit." She is planning to talk to members about her powers and then mingle in the audience and make some revelations. Members are welcome to bring guests. There will be a $1 per person charge to meet the fee of the speaker.

THE CANTON schools are in need of volunteers to work one or two hours each month in presenting fine art reproductions in the elementary classrooms. No previous art experience is necessary.

If you are interested in finding out more about what a Picture Lady does, contact Martha Ahern at 453-4334 or Plymouth Community Arts Council office, 455-5260.

Smiths mark golden wedding anniversary

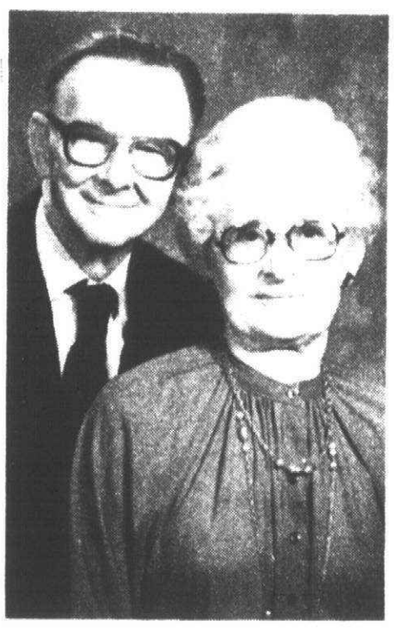

Former Plymouth residents Viola and Ward Smith celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, April 8. The open house in Mayville United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall was arranged by their children.

"It was truly a memorable occasion for us," said Mrs. Smith, who added her appreciation to the relatives, friends and neighbors who sent cards, gifts and congratulations.

Ward N. Smith and Viola L. Kincade were married April 6, 1929, in Bowling Green, Ohio. Their attendants were Ellen Smith and Frank Hokenson. They have two daughters, Doris Rutenbar of Saginaw and Betty Dennis of Mayville, son, Lynn Smith of Mayville, seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Smith retired in 1968 after 26 years with Vinco Corp. Mrs. Smith retired from the Caro Medical Care Facility in 1977.

They have lived at 2751 Blackville Rd., Mayville, Mich. since 1848.

Plymouth Landing opens with benefit

Plymouth turned out Friday evening for the gala opening of The Landing, the new restaurant in the old Markham Air Rifle building on Main Street, east of the C&O railroad tracks.

Restaurateur Sam Panzica arranged the opening as a benefit for the Plymouth Historical Museum. Just 100 tickets at $50 a couple were available for the dinner party. These were sold out well in advance. Panzica gave a check for $5,000 to Margaret Dunning, donor of the building which houses the museum.

Clarence Moore, former president of the Plymouth Historical Society, presented a plaque to Panzica as a gesture of appreciation from the society.

A SHUTTLE BUS operated between the landing and the museum, giving guests an opportunity to tour both buildings. Rita Maley chaired the museum's arrangements for the visits.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Terry West, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sober, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heidt, Mr. and Mrs. Win Schrader, Mr. and Mrs. James McKeon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Childs, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richard, Chuck Avis, Dr. and Mrs. Cliff McClumpha, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Palmer, Garey Beglinger, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anderson.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Soren Pedersen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tiptin, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sutherland, Marion Kehrl, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rafferty, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bake, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Lent, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bila, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Blunk, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Bobcean, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Kidston, Mr. and Mrs. George Hudson and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Zimmerman.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Millington, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowles. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Earl West, Dr. and Mrs. A.E. Van Ornum, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Zack, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tritten, Mr. and Mrs. James Case, mr. and Mrs. M.T. Case, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Shapero and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hertz.

Hugh Jarvis, Betty Stremich, the McCulleys, the Warren Todds and the William Traceys and many others made the benefit a rousing success.

For the Harold Guenthers, owners of the building, Jim Jabara and Austin Lynch who worked months on the renovation of the old building, it was a time to view with pride.

Woody Lynch, with awe in his voice, said, "You know this is my first job where people can see the results. I know my section of the Jeffries freeway will never flood, but no one will ever see what went into that. This is visible and I love it."

Win Schrader (from left), treasurer of the Plymouth Historical Society, Clarence Moore, Sam Panzica and Margaret Dunning were delighted with the success of the benefit.

Juanita and Doc Fenkell were among the guests.

Phyllis and Jerry Loiselle were among the celebrants. (Staff photos by Elinor Graham)

Frank and Mary Lou Palmer attended the benefit.

In Northville

Simon comedy at Marquis

Bill Premin is director and producer for this weekend's production of the Neil Simon comedy "Barefoot in the Park."

Performances will be given at 8 p.m. Friday-Sunday, at the Marquis Theater in Northville.

Senior citizen and student matinees will be presented at 2:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Andrew Henderson is technical director and co-producer.

PREMIN, purchasing director of the Troy School District and a Birmingham resident, fulfilled a dream in 1977 by forming a new, permanent repertory theater company, Performing Artists Unlimited, with players selected from metropolitan Detroit.

"Fiddler on the Roof" and "Camelot" were the successful, initial productions directed by Premin in 1977 and 1978. Five of the nine performances of "Camelot," which opened the newly renovated Marquis Theater, were sold out.

Premin has an extensive theater background as an actor and director. For several years, he was news director and talk-show host for WDTM radio in Detroit.

His acting credits include the role of Willy Loman in "Death of a Salesman," Cauchon in "The Lark," Alan in "Come Blow Your Horn," the Wazir in "Kismet," and Tevye in the Center Theater's production of "Fiddler on the Roof," as well as the Dearborn Civic Theater and Performing Artists Unlimited productions.

HIS EXPERIENCE as a director includes productions of the previously mentioned theater groups including "Barefoot in the Park." "Death of a Salesman," "The King and I," "The Rothschild's," "Most Happy Fella," "How to Succeed in Business," and "Enter Laughing."

Premin's wife, Judith, is a University of Michigan graduate in music, with considerable experience as a soloist in oratorio, opera and musical theater.

Opera bar hop scheduled for May 17

Downtown Detroit skies will fill with color at noon Tuesday, May 1, as Michigan Opera Theater (MOT) releases 3,000 red balloons from Harmonie Park.

The balloons, with special tags, will announce MOT's second annual Pub Crawl, set for Thursday, May 17. Anyone finding a tagged balloon can turn it in to Michigan Opera Theater at 350 Madison and receive a free Pub Crawl button worth $3, entitling bearer to ride MOT's "Suds Express" to and from the participating pubs.

Pub Crawl is sponsored by MOT's guild and participating downtown pubs. Each pub donates a percentage of its income for the evening to Michigan Opera Theater.

Entertainment provided by the pubs ranges from belly dancers to folk singers. MOT chorus members will lead sing-alongs on the buses.

"JUST $3 buys a Pub Crawl button to ride the Suds Express, supports the Michigan Opera Theater and provides a fun sampling of Detroit's nightlife," says Roberta Starkweather, guild president and Pub Crawl chairwoman.

"You don't have to love opera to have fun on the Pub Crawl. We hope everyone will come."

Participating taverns include Bull Market, Cafe Harmonie, Clementine's Kitchen, Cobb's Corner, Franklin Street East, Gnome, Grecian Gardens, La Cave, New Miami, Old Shillelagh, Pipers Alley, Porter Street Station, Rembrandt's Roadster, Rhinoceros, Song Shop, Union Street II and Reunion Saloon, Woodbridge and Music Hall.

Pub Crawlers can hop aboard the Suds Express at Music Hall or drive directly to their favorite pub and catch one of the buses along the route. Chartered buses run 6 p.m. to midnight.

Pub Crawl buttons and T-shirts may be purchased in advance by calling Michigan Opera Theater at 963-3717 or the night of the Pub Crawl at any of the participating pubs.

Horrors on Friday, Welles on Sunday

"The Wicker Man," a 1975 British release hailed by critics as the "Citizen Kane" of horror films, will be shown by Detroit Film Theater on Friday, April 27, at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

Tickets at $2 are available at the museum ticket office, 832-2730.

Written by Anthony Shaffer who wrote "Sleuth" and Alfred Hitchcock's "Frenzy," the film stars British television's Edward Woodward, Christopher Lee, Diane Cilento and Britt Ekland.

Filmed in Scotland, the movie follows the search for a missing child on an off-coast island steeped in pagan beliefs and satanic customs.

Actor Christopher Lee commented: "This is not a horror film, it's a horrifying film. It's the best part I've ever had. Unquestionably."

Variety described "The Wicker Man" as "possessed of a weird and paganistic story . . . one of the most unusual films to come out of Britain in years."

At the International Festival of Fantasy and Science Fiction in Paris, the film was awarded the Grand Prize for originality of its conception and treatment of a classic theme.

On Sunday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. only, Orson Welles' 1955 "Mr. Arkadin" will continue the 14-week retrospective of this director's work.

For a complete listing of Detroit Film Theater's weekend movies, call the Detroit Institute of Arts ticket office at 832-2730.

'Eccentricities' hits at WSU's Bonstelle

By JEFF SCHORR

Kim Cook and Richard Buzinski, as the principal characters in the Bonstelle production.

Tennessee Williams, the playwright of the south, has one of his favorite works and one of his favorite characters on display in a well-done production at Wayne State Univesity's Bonstelle Theater.

"The Eccentricities of a Nightingale," the critically acclaimed rewrite by Williams of his early play "Summmer and Smoke," is an examination of people in a small, southern town and the influence culture plays on character development — typically Williams.

Alma Winemiller, the principal figure, played by Kim Cook, is a highly affected, overwrought sensitive young woman who sings in the church choir, and coaches youngsters in singing. She would project the image of the classic, fluttery poor-little-ole-me southen belle but is instead out of touch with reality. She is perceived as tiresome, helpless and eccentric. Hence the title.

Although exaggerated, the character is one we are familiar with and Cook brings out the proper audience response — a feeling of discomfort turns to pity as we begin to understand her.

HER PORTRAYAL of the minister's daughter, whose mother has gone off the deep end and retreated into her own little world, is excellent.

Richard Buzinski, realistically portrays the next-door neighbor, John Buchanan, a young doctor about to embark on a successful career, who is the focal point of most of Alma's fantasy world. Desite his mother, an ambitious, society-aware matron whom he respects and tolerates (Sandra Prappas) he tries to be sympathetic and a friend, though never showing serious concern for Alma.

The play is set in pre-World War I Mississippi, therefore explaining John's tolerance for his mother that any good, all-American lad would have shown. His mother has John's life all mapped out for him. When she perceives Alma's interest in her son, she cautions him about Alma's "strangeness" and friends who are not "in."

Elizabeth Halle gives a creditable performance as Alma's mother — an embarrassment when company calls. Neil Martin, the respected reverend who once addressed a University of Mississippi graduating class, is pitied for his wife's problem. He ambles around portraying a man carrying the cross — a well-done role, excellently made up. It is hard to tell his age.

"Eccentricities" continues tomorrow and Saturday night, closing a two-week run Sunday afternoon.

Mac has theater

"By Strouse," in dinner theater Friday and Saturday nights at Mr. Mac's Stable, 1 Parklane Towers in Dearborn, has been extended through June. The revue includes songs from such shows as "Annie" and "Bye, Bye Birdie." Dinner is served at 7 p.m. and the curtain rises at 9. For reservations, call 271-2010.

Singin' in db's

singer and impressionist Fred Travalena will be at db's Club in the Hyatt Regency Dearborn on Monday, April 30 through May 5. His impersonations number over 100, but his pride and joy is his Frank Sinatra imitation. Performances are at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday ($8), 9 and 11:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday ($10). There is a two-drink minimum. For reservations, call 593-1234, ext. 2311.

JAMES AND BETTY CRAWFORD

Church honors retiring minister

Twenty-one years of service to an active congregation win for the Rev. James Crawford of Redford Township not one but two celebrations of appreciation.

The retiring pastor of Village United Presbyterian Church will be honored at a men's breakfast at 9:15 a.m. Saturday, April 28, in Calvin Hall of the church, located at 25350 Six Mile.

The Rev. James Banks, pastor of Redford Presbyterian Church of Detroit, will be guest speaker, and several visitors including Redford Township Supervisor James Kelly plan to be present.

Earlier the Village Presbyterian congregation honored their longtime minister and his wife, Betty, with a "Love Feast" in Westminister Church of Detroit.

Former members and friends from surrounding states included the Crawfords' son, David, who traveled from Philadelphia and Mrs. Crawford's sister, Jane Krueger, from Pittsburgh.

Following a potluck dinner was a program reviewing Rev. Crawford's years of service. Participating were Mel Beckner as master of ceremonies and Village Presbyterian members Marc Madden, Ken Harris, Jim Kipps, Eleanor Beckner, John McKinnon, Malcolm White and Delores Dodenhoff.

There were talks by several visiting clergymen, the Rev. Paul Sutton, the Rev. Ralph Halley and the Rev. Ken Lister, assistant pastor at the local church from 1960 to 1965.

Music by the choir directed by Roger Phillips and soloists Christine Beemer and Beckner consisted of several of the retiring minister's favorite selections.

A check for the minister and a gift for his wife also were presented.

Rev. Crawford was born in India of missionary parents. He attended Pittsburgh Xenia Seminary and graduated from the United Presbyterian Seminary, where he earned a bachelor of divinity degree.

It was while he was in seminary that he met his wife, and they were married several years later after she had completed high school and college.

Before being called by Village Church, he served congregations in Pennsylvania and Iowa.

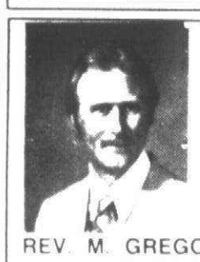

He sees a minister's role as one of trying "to lead through teaching and example and to influence many to come to the saving knowledge of Christ."

"Sometimes churches get too big, too impersonal," he adds. "We fail to keep in touch, and we feel strange and alone. No one seems to care and we lose a sense of concern for each other."

While in Redford, Rev. Crawford has been active in the Redford Council of Churches, which sponsors Good Friday services each year and has organized other ecumenical activites.

Church Women United aid children with concert

The Wayne-Westland unit of Church Women United will sponsor a concert, designed to feature and benefit children, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, April 29, in the First Congregational Church of Wayne, 2 Town Square.

The event is part of the organization's statewide goal to raise $15,000 to be given through Intercontinental Mission for the help of children and mothers in particular need in various parts of the world.

Money collected in a free will offering will be used for the Church Women United Hunting Child fund as part of an International Year of the Child project.

Among the young people to be featured in the concert will be members of the Festival Bell Choir of Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church of Livonia. The group is directed by Shirley Harden.

Also on the program will be Gordon Reinhart, Andrea Cooney, Linda Heidman and Kathy Kagganich, members of an award-winning string quartet from Wayne Memorial High School.

"This concert," said Georgiana Swinford of Church Women United, "is our local unit's special effort to help in this International Year of the Child to give our whole community a chance to be part of this great goal for the children of the world."

One of the topics to be discussed at the workshop is the Christian and the occult led by the Rev. Warren Arndt of Faith Lutheran Church of Troy. Other subjects are growing as Christian husbands, discovering your gifts in the body of Christ and healing life's hurts.

There is no registration fee, but a free will offering will be taken.

Pack 1539 Cub Scouts report active season

Cub Scout Pack 1539 of Plymouth-Canton, which meets in Fiegel Elementary School on Joy Road, has had a busy season.

Since school started in the fall, the pack has had a variety of activities.

Dean Reuschle, publicity chairman for the pack, told about the visit to Sugarbush Farm in November. Following a hayride, "A great time was had by the cubs and their families as they were able to see a cow being milked, enjoy the hayride, and then sit down to a delicious spaghetti dinner."

In December, the traditional pack Christmas party was complete with food, gifts and a visit from Santa Claus. The Pinewood Derby was the highlight of January activities. More than 40 boys entered cars made with the help of their fathers.

February brought the 69th birthday of the founding of Boy Scouts. The pack celebrated with its annual Blue and Gold banquet in Schoolcraft College.

PARC upset by Womack reinstatement

The possibility that William Womack, former director of the Plymouth Home for Human Development, may reinstated as a director of a facility for the mentally retarded is "extremely" dismaying to members of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens.

Womack, who was fired by the Michigan Department of Mental Health after an expose of abuse and neglect of the center for mentally retarded , was recently ordered reinstated. Peter Jason, a hearings judge for the Civil Service Commission, also ruled that Womack was entitled to full back pay of his $40,000 a yearly salary.

In a letter to Dr. Vernon Stehman, acting director of the DHM, Ms. Jimmie Nelson, PARC president, wrote of the organization's objections to Womack.

"Investigations have proved that the use of alcohol, drugs and physical abuse were rampant under his administration," said the letter dated April 17. "Why was Mr. Womack not aware of this — the parents were!

"When the parents of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens met with Governor Milliken on Nov. 3, 1978 at his Detroit office, he promised support for all parents in their efforts to see that the appalling situation at Plymouth would not occur again.

"What assurance do we have now that this will not happen?

"We, the parents of the PARC want to go on record as opposing the reinstatement of Mr. Womack to any administrative position in a mentally retarded facility."

The decision by the hearings judge did not include an order that he be returned to the Plymouth center. There is little indication that he would be given back his old assignment. DMH confirmed its faith in the present acting director of the Plymouth facility.

It changed Eranell McIntosh Wilson's title to director.

"No matter how much you move from place to place, you'll find the league membership filled with those just a cut above average; the woman who enjoys getting involved; the woman who enjoys research and study and then taking a stand."

Mrs. Carter went on to relate stories of those who were attracted to league work but were insecure about their own abilities.

"Those situations always turned out to be great confidence builders," she said.

Jack Bologna Writes

Happiness undefinable

Happiness, along with salvation, seems to be the universal goal of all people.

Yet it cannot be measured, weighed, seen or even defined with any degree of precision.

Most of us speak about it every day. We seem to know when we are feeling happy and can sense when others are feeling happy, too.

But our individual definitions vary widely.

HOWARD MUMFORD JONES, who spent many years attempting to define happiness, finally concluded that ". . . it belongs in that category of words, the meaning of which everybody knows but the definition of which nobody can give."

Being in the emotional realm of man's makeup, happiness is a feeling kind of thing, rather than purely rational.

Some see happiness as light-hearted and elusive (life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness), while others see it more seriously as a terminal end, i.e. "Happiness is no laughing matter."

Only in the broadest sense can we even attempt to define happiness. We may know, for example, that when we are happy we feel good — good about ourselves and the whole world, good about the things, people and events which bring us joy, fun, excitement and pleasure — and we may even feel peace of mind and contentment when we are happy.

Interestingly, our own constitution speaks of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," (emphasis supplied). What did Jefferson have in mind?

Did he see happiness as an ultimate end to be pursued but never experienced? Was the joy in the pursuit of happiness rather than in the end result?

How did he reconcile his statement with the predominant philosophical view of his day that happiness, like salvation, was a terminal state?

OUR STUDIES into the notion of happiness indicate most people groping for a definition of the feeling of happiness find a way of expressing that definition by using a quantitative formula of opposites or complementaries. The following are examples:

EXPLORING HAPPINESS

Happiness is: Achievements/Exepectations	( )
Personal Achievements/Achievements of Peers	( )
Satisfied Needs/Desire for More	( )
Capacity for Happiness/Happy Events in Life	( )
Job Satisfaction/Job Frustration	( )
Financial Security/Economic Needs	( )
Love-Acceptance/R ejections	( )
Feelings of Self-Worth/Self-Deprecation	( )
Values Realized/Search for Values	( )
Knowledge-Wisdom/U ncertainty-Doubt	( )
Pleasure-Rewards/Pain-Punishment	( )
Stress-Tension/Comfort-Ease	( )

NOW THAT YOU have read all the proposed definitions, go back through the list and allocate 100 points between each numerator and denominator set, i.e. 50/50 or 70/30 or 10/90, etc.

That should tell you how you perceive happiness in your own life.

If you want, you can go back through the list again and rank order your top five definitions. That may provide additional insight.

What did you learn about yourself in doing the above exercise? What actions do you plan to take to squeeze a little more happiness into your life?

Meixner, Sample lead Rocks

Junior Ann Meixner won three individual events and freshman Ruth Sample won the mile and two-mile runs, powering Plymouth Salem to its first dual track meet win of the season over Livonia Franklin, 63-60, Tuesday afternoon.

The meet came down to the final race — the mile relay.

With sophomore Rochelle Balpes anchoring, Salem won the relay and the meet with a clocking of 4:37.9.

Other members of the relay included Linda Lybarger, Ruth Langcabel, and Diane Perpich.

Meixner captured the 220-yard low hurdles (:32.5), 220-yard dash (:29.5) and long jump (15-2). Salem captured the first three places in both the long jump and 220 hurdles.

Besides the three first place finishes, Meixner took second in the 110-yard hurdles.

Sample ran her best times ever in winning the mile (5:47.0) and two-mile (12:50.0).

Senior Erin Lucas won the 110 hurdles with a time of :16.8.

Lucas and Perpich tied for second place in the high jump, both leaping 4-8.

Lybarger was victorious in the 440-yard dash with a clocking of :67.8.

Other high Salem finishes included Sharon Radionoff, shot put and discus, third; Laurie Grissom, mile and two-mile, third; Morris, long jump, second; Rene Slavin, 220 hurdles, third.

Carol Hay was third in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

"We started shaky but came on strong," said Salem coach Scott Kurtz.

"I was surprised," he said, "at some of the performances."

"Meixner and Sample had their personal bests," Kurtz said.

Salem is 1-0 now in dual meets. The Rocks travel to Walled Lake Western Saturday for the Stafford Relays. Some 25 teams will compete.

Chiefs capture 2nd doubleheader

Plymouth Canton kept its perfect baseball record intact with a pair of victories at home Saturday.

The Chiefs won the opener 12-3 over Sterling Heights, as pitcher Al Lipinski notched the win. They are now 4-0.

Canton took the second game against Royal Oak Kimball 13-7, with pitcher-first baseman Scott Dawson leading the way with four of his team's 14 hits.

In the first game against Sterling Heights,the Chiefs trailed 2-0 after three innings.

In the fourth inning, catcher Rusty Mandle homered for two runs and pitcher Guy Kananen singled home another run.

In the fifth inning, Canton exploded for eight runs.

With one out, Steve Gray started the run series with a single. Don Dreher then sacrificed him to second. Two walks followed and with two outs and a 3-2 count, leftfielder Dave Weise doubled home three runs.

Lipinski and Kananen then singled and scored. That was followed with an RBI single by Gray and another two runs batted in by Dreher.

Canton scored one more run in the sixth inning as Kannen came in for the final three innings on the mound to pick up the save. He allowed one run.

The Chiefs' bats continued to boom in the second game against Kimball.

Canton trailed briefly, 1-0, in the first inning.

KIMBALL PITCHING received rough treatment in the bottom half of the first as Gray led off with a single and Dreher walked.

Dawson, who relieved, then homered to right center, giving the Chiefs a 3-1 advantage.

Canton didn't let up in the second as they struck for six more runs.

Mandle, Weise and Lipinski started the second with consecutive singles. Frank McMurray then singled, scoring two runs and Mike Pathe followed with 2 RBI's on a double. Dawson then doubled home two more runs.

Kimball narrowed the margin to 10-7 with six runs in the sixth.

Those runs came on two infield errors, two hits, a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Canton put the game away in the sixth when Weise doubled home Mandle and Dawson who had both singled.

Brian James worked four innings and allowed two hits, a run on four strike outs in picking up his second victory.

Dawson went the final three innings. He helped his own cause with five RBI's.

"We kind of leaned back on that 10-run lead," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "We were not as intense."

"But I have to be pleased with the way we hit the ball," he said.

"We played as well as we have this season," he added.

In the doubleheader, Dawson, Weise and Gray each collected four hits.

Saturday, Birmingham Brother Rice visits Canton at 12:30 p.m. for a doubleheader.

Kimball takes opener

Salem bats rap Sterling Heights

Plymouth Salem came out on the long and short end of a baseball doubleheader Saturday.

The Rocks were roughed up in the opener by Royal Oak Kimball, 13-6, but came back to capture the nightcap against Sterling Heights, 13-3.

In the opener, Kimball grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning and then exploded for seven runs in the second inning to take a commanding, 9-0, advantage.

Salem bounced back with five runs in the third inning.

Second baseman Paul Dillon started the inning with a walk. Paul Woodard followed with a single and Matt Etienne knocked in Dillon with a single.

Catcher Bubba Wilcox drove Woodard home with another single. He came home on Jim Anderson's double, who then scored on a wild pitch.

Sam Merrill tallied Salem's fifth run with an RBI sacrifice fly, sending home Anderson.

Both Kimball and Salem collected runs in the fourth inning.

Mike Cimino of Salem started off with a walk. After two fly outs, Woodard singled and then Etienne followed with an RBI single.

The Rocks' Barry Owens started and lasted one inning. John Holdsworth relieved and pitched ¼ of an inning. Jeff Primo, a junior, finished up with five innings of work.

Kimball's Dave Carazza was credited with the win.

Salem scored six runs had seven hits and made two errors.

Kimball had 13 runs on 13 hits and committed three errors.

"We played like we did against Franklin," said Salem coach Brian Gilles, referring to the season-opening 9-1 loss.

"We've been behind in four of our first five games," he said.

SALEM — STERLING HEIGHTS

Salem raised its record to 3-2 overall with a lopsided, 13-3 victory over visiting Sterling Heights.

Starter Etienne went six innings and allowed three runs on five hits. He struck out six and walked five. Senior reliefer David Runge finished up the final inning, allowing no runs. "Our pitching was much better," said Gilles. "We'd like to cut down the number of walks because it can get you in a hole."

Sterling Heights led briefly, 3-1, after two innings.

The Rocks struck for eight runs in the fourth inning, breaking the game wide open.

In the second inning, Dillon led off with a walk. He was forced by Owens. Designated hitter Chuck Janovsky then walked and Woodard drove Owens home with an RBI single.

In the fourth, Dillon and Janovsky singled. The latter scored on a balk. Merrill then delivered a two-run homer over the rightfield fence, putting Salem ahead, 4-3.

Anderson singled and then scored Salem's fifth run on two Sterling Heights wild pitches.

Wilcox kept up the assault with a 375-0 homer which reached the creek behind the left field fence. The solo blast was his second of the season.

Etienne walked after Wilcox' homer and Mike Woodard followed with a single. Dillon walked and Etienne scored on a wild pitch.

Dillon and Woodard then scored on Owens' single.

In the fifth, Salem added four more runs. Etienne had two RBIs in the inning as did Owens.

Owens tosses 2-hitter

Using pinpoint control, Plymouth Salem righthander Barry Owens limited Allen Park to just two hits in a 7-0 Suburban Eight League baseball victory Tuesday afternoon at Salem.

Salem is now 4-2 overall and 1-0 in the Suburban Eight.

Owens lifted a personal record to 2-0 in going the distance. The senior standout walked just one hitter and struck out eight. He allowed a fourth inning single and sixth inning double in posting the shutout.

"Owens did an outstanding job," said Salem coach Brian Gilles. "He threw less than 80 pitches."

Salem struck for one run in the first inning when Bubba Wilcox singled home lead-off man Paul Woodard. The latter reached base on a double.

The Rocks tallied another run in the second inning when third baseman Mike Cimino drove home Paul Dillon with a single.

Salem took a 2-0 lead into the fifth inning. Allen Park then began to throw the ball all over the infield, resulting in three more Salem runs.

After a strike out in the the fifth, Woodard, Sam Merrill and Jim Anderson singled consecutively. All three scored with the help of some Allen Park miscues.

The Rocks added two insurance runs in the sixth with the aid of another single by Woodard, two hit batsmen and a walk.

"WE WERE A different ball club today," said Gilles.

"We ran the bases well," he said.

In practice, prior to the Allen Park game, Gilles drilled his team on defensive fundamentals.

"We were missing defensive signs and not hitting the cut-off man," Gilles said.

"We worked on that in practice. Today we hit the cut-off man real nice," he added.

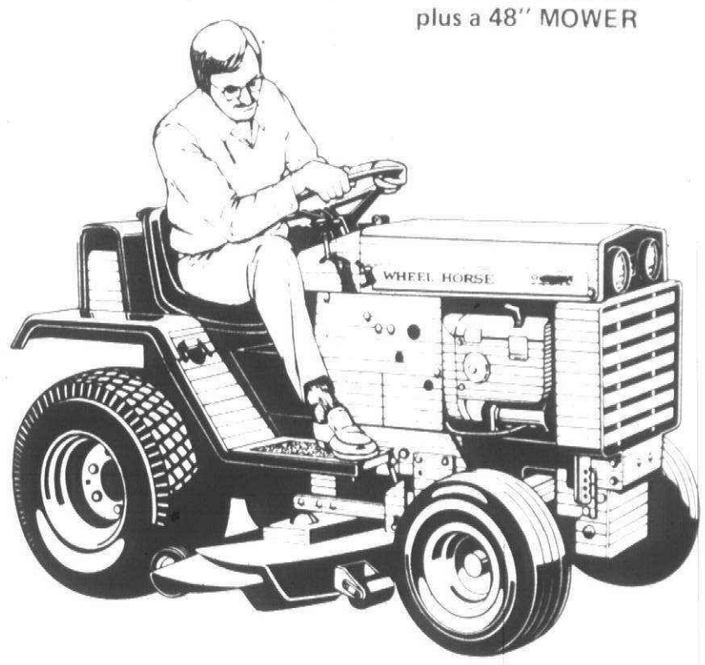

"We're starting to swing the bat and when we get good pitching, our defense comes alive."

Salem plays its third doubleheader of the season Thursday when it hosts Northville and Ypsilanti.

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

Throughout her career in bowling, Ann Setlock, day manager at Garden Lanes, has enjoyed many thrills. But none of them equalled the one she had last Friday night while leading her Miss Lapeer team to the championship in the Garden Ladies Classic.

Needing four points to tie the Heffner Jewelers team for the title, it looked like an impossible task. But Ann and her mates not only took four points to gain the tie, but rolled a 3130 series, which is one of the highest rolled in the area this season.

They put together games of 995, 1060 and 1075 and then went on to beat their rivals in the roll-offs. The girls who did the trick in the big series included Dot Lisowski with 645, Ann Setlock with 634, June Buck with 614, Linda Ludiwick with 604 and Lois Hamel with 562.

BILL WILLIAMS, owner of Hazel Park Bowl and a resident of Farmington, will be honored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America at its annual convention this year in Honolulu.

He will be awarded the President's Trophy for his work in the development of the new finishes now being used on the lanes.

Williams spent most of the past year attending clinics and guiding other proprietors in solving the problem that has been one of the real headaches of the game for the past several years.

BILLY GOLEMBIEWSKI will be doubly honored next week while he is in Florida attending the ABC tournament.

Along with Tony Lindeman, another Detroiter, he will be inducted into the ABC Hall of Fame on Thursday night in Tampa.

The next day he will be honored again — this time at Fort Lauderdale when the Polish Roman Catholic Union will have him as a special guest at the opening of its tournament.

THEY HAD another 700 series this week at Westland Bowl, but it wasn't rolled by John Hurley. For the first time in weeks, he missed the magic figure, but Jim Slormer, bowling in the Little Caesar's Classic came through with a 703. He did it on games of 224, 267 and 212.

While he set the pace Bob Goike Jr. landed in the runner-up spot with 680 that included a 243 opener. Third place went to Bob Pniewski with 669 and the women were lead by Cindy Barucki with 631.

THE MEN did some good scoring at Garden Lanes, and the leader for the week was Mark Hefner, who bolled in the St. John Boscoe League.

He posted a 689, which was only three pins better than John Birekamp posted to show the way in the St. Linus loop. Only seven pins further back came Dave Moran, who set the pace in the Moose league with an opening 270 in 679.

MADELINE DONEHUE took top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic when she won the final game with 203-32 — 235 and the series with 510-96 — 606.

In the other games, Georgiana Kerwin won the first with 177-38 — 225 and Louise Merriman rolled 190-23 — 213 to tie Joan Lewis, who posted 185-28 — 213 for the second game.

JOAN NISSEN won a close battle with Anne Troke to win top place in the Merri-Bowl doubles. She recorded games of 213, 213 and 210 for a 636, while her rival had counts of 215, 199 and 210 for 624. Chris Fischer had a 254 middle game to land third with 618.

Don Miller posted a 659 to pace the Ladies and Gents Loop.

DRC harness racer tries harder

Wolverine Harness Raceway is only two weeks into 1979 meeting and, for the third year in succession, Bea Farber heads the list of leading percentage drivers over the mile track.

However, as the saying goes, when you're number two you try harder, and that's exactly what Ron Henderson, the second-leading percentage driver, intends to do.

Henderson, a Windsor, Ont. resident, is a newcomer to the Livonia strip, having campaigned mainly at Windsor Raceway and Ohio's Raceway Park in Toledo before making a decision to test the competition at Wolverine.

Now that he's arrived, the 24-year-old reinsman is rapidly making his mark. In his first 19 starts, Henderson had posted four wins, three seconds and four thirds for a .368 driving percentage.

Drivers receive nine points for placing first in a race, five points for finishing second and three points for third. Driving percentage is figured by multiplying the number of starts by nine, then dividing total points by that number.

Henderson currently is training and racing five horses. The star of his stable is Bonheur, a seven-year-old gelding he claimed in January at Windsor for $9,000.

Since then, Bonheur has steadily improved and now paces in claimers for a price tag of $19,000.

Buckeye Duke, however, is Henderson's sentimental favorite. He acquired Duke for $6,000 in 1977, the same year he was named claiming pacer of the year at Windsor Raceway.

Buckeye Duke had a setback last year when he fractured a sesamoid (ankle) bone, but one would never know it from his performance so far this year. In 11 starts, the six-year-old pacer has four wins, one second and three thirds with earnings of $11,402.

Henderson will tell you he was introduced to harness racing by his brother-in-law, Greg Wright.

Wright now competes at the Meadowlands in New Jersey, but in 1974, won the leading driver percentage crown at Wolverine.

Weekend event

Special Olympics set

The theme will be "every child is a winner" at the 1979 Wayne County Special Olympics to be held in Westland John Glenn High School this Saturday and May 4.

The Special Olympics is organized for those 8-26 years old who are mentally handicapped.

Gymnastics and bowling will be the featured events this Saturday, with more than 700 expected to take part.

Bowling will take place at Westland Bowl, located on Wayne Road north of Ford. Gymnastics will be held in the Glenn Gym, which is located on Marquette off Wayne Road between Cherry Hill and Ford.

Track, field and swimming are scheduled May 4 at Glenn, with 1,800 athletes expected.

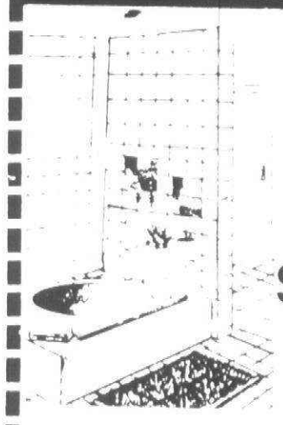

Opening ceremonies will be held 8:30 a.m. both dates at the Glenn track, with actual competition beginning at approximately 9 a.m.

All athletes will receive a ribbon for competing. The better athletes will have the chance to go on to the state Special Olympics at Central Michigan University later this summer.

Competition on both days will be similar to regular meets. There will be running events, field events, short and long swim races and many other events.

The Special Olympics is sponsored by Civitan Clubs of Wayne County.

Brad Emons writes:

All-star format needs lift

By BRAD EMONS

Spreading international goodwill through sports was the intention Friday night when a group of athletes from Yugoslavia came to Schoolcraft College to do battle with all-star cagers from Michigan.

Both squads were very diplomatic in the opening ceremonies. The junior squad from Yugoslavia entered the gym to the music of their national anthem, as the American crowd greeted them with a warm applause.

The Michigan team then marched in with 6-10 Tim Andree of Birmingham Brother Rice as the flag holder for the USA.

The teams exchanged gifts and then started play.

The Michigan team proved less than hospitable. They came ready, physched up and prepared to defend their country's honor in a sport in which, supposedly, Americans have no peers.

Al Maguire, color commentator for NBC college basketball this season, repeatedly stated through the year that the Russians would be the favorite to win the gold medal in basketball at the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

He also said watch out for the Yugoslavs.

"They have a good international track record," Maguire said.

I am wondering if these high school cagers heard those remarks while watching the college games this past winter.

IF THEY DID indeed listen to McGuire's prognostication, they may have become fired up.

It appeared so Friday night as the Michigan team went through, around and over their Yugoslav opponents, the champs from Croatia.

Basketball in Europe is tough and getting better. A team the Russians sent over were awesome. The United States has always been rated as having the best basketball talent, with the Russians and Yugoslavs close behind.

What I'm trying to figure out is where these junior Yugoslavs came from. Frankly, they were a disappointment.

The Yugoslavs were outclassed, being rough and lacking in the fundamentals.

You can't take anything away from the Michigan squad. It's one of the best-ever assembled, with players like Andree and Derek Perry of River Rouge.

The Yugoslav players looked confused most of the night as their four coaches bantered on the sidelines.

Djordano Bakovic, a 6-4 guard, was the only bright spot for his team. Against the Ohio All-Stars he netted 27 points Wednesday night.

In the Yugoslavs' 117-82 loss at Schoolcraft, Bakovic bagged 29.

IN THE NEXT GAME, Sunday at Oakland University, Bakovic scored 39 but his teammates took another severe beating, even worse than before, 140-85.

After the Friday night walloping, Michigan coach Don Adams said he might have to alter his game plan, discarding an effective full-court press, to make the "game more competitive."

He, too, was surprised with the play of the Yugoslavs.

"They weren't as physical," said Adams. "We expected it to be a lot rougher."

Although the Yugoslavs were not up to par, the game was for a worthy cause.

The game was staged by the Michigan Basketball Association (MBA), with all proceeds go to the Michigan team's trip to the AAU national tournament in July.

POSTSEASON BASKETBALL all-star games in Michigan have received lukewarm response over the years. The more interesting Roundball Classics at Cobo Hall and Olympia have drawn average crowds.

Other states stage all-star classics of their own with much more success. That's because each state sends its best to compete against one another like the Indiana-Kentucky two-game series which draws capacity crowds in Louisville's Freedom Hall and Indianapolis' Market Square Arena.

The teams are selected after the season is over and prepare a month in advance for the two-game showdown.

Maybe the MBA people should promote a game with an all-star team from Ohio.

Plymouth Salem cindermen blast Livonia Bentley

Rich Hanschu, shown here hurdling in a practice meet last week at Livonia Churchill, won three individual events in Tuesday's meet against Livonia Bentley. The Salem standout won the long jump, 220-yard dash and 120-yard high hurdles. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem evened its dual meet record to 1-1 with an 86-46 Suburban Eight League track victory over Livonia Bentley Tuesday night.

Senior Rich Hanschu led the way with three individual wins. He was victorious in the long jump with a leap of 20-8¼. Hanschu also captured the 120-yard high hurdles (:15.7) and a 220-yard dash (:23.4).

Senior pole vaulter Dennis Ogden turned in the meet's outstanding performance. He recorded his personal best by clearing 14-6.

At the Mansfield Relays (Ohio) last week, Ogden cleared 14-0 to take fifth place overall against some of the top competitors in the Midwest.

"He's getter better and better," said Salem coach Gary Balconi about Ogden.

The Salem coach was pleased by the performance rendered by his distance runners.

The Rocks placed first, second and third in the mile run. Jeff Haertel won it with a time of 4:42.8. Junior Paul Hess took the two mile run with a clocking of 10:31.4.

Salem also finished one-two in the 880-yard run as Kevin Waara won it with a time of 2:05.4.

"Our distance people came through," said Balconi. "Overall I was very pleased."

"WE TOOK 10 of 16 events which is pretty good," he said.

Senior Craig Stack placed first in the 100-yard dash for the Rocks with a :10.8 clocking.

Stack was also a member of the winning 440-yard relay along with Greg Lipka, Greg Stevens and Hanschu. That group posted a time of :45.7.

Salem won the mile relay. Lee Langcable, Jack Wellman, Dave Truesdel and Ogden teamed up for a first-place time of 3:36.4.

In the field events, junior Rob Neu won the high jump with a leap of 5-10.

Overall, besides the 10 first-place finishes, Salem grabbed nine second place spots also.

The Rocks travel to Belleville for their second Suburban Eight League dual meet Thursday at 4 p.m.

Canton JV softball squad notches win

The Plymouth Canton junior varsity softball team recorded its first win of the season against Allen Park, 9-4, Monday.

The junior Chiefs took an early 4-1 lead after three innings.

Allen Park struck for two runs in the fourth inning on three walks and a single.

After the first three Canton batters were retired in the fifth inning, the Chiefs put things back together again in the sixth to score their remaining six runs.

In the third inning, freshman Pearly Cunningham replaced starter Debbie Dickenson and held the Jaguars scoreless for the next five innings.

"We got most of our runs in the sixth inning off of steals," said Canton coach Cathy Himes. "We had a lot of ground ball hits in the sixth. Before that there were a lot of fly balls."

Himes said she was especially pleased with the way her team hustled in running down potential base stealers.

Canton hosts Riverview Monday at 4 p.m. The Chiefs also have a game Wednesday at Walled Lake Western at 4 p.m.

Rock, Chief golfers grab openers

By BETTY DeLANO

The Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem girls' golf squads opened their respective seasons Tuesday on a winning note.

Canton started the year by setting two school records in a 193-216 victory over Pinckney in a Central Six League match.

Salem won on Brighton's home course by six strokes, 220-226.

Canton senior captain Cathy Andersen took medalist honors and eclipsed an old school mark for nine holes. She fired a five-over par 40 at the Lakeland Country Club, downing her previous record by three shots.

Andersen's best score last season was a school record 43 against Plymouth Salem.

Canton also set a team low nine-hole mark. Contributing to the team record were Peggy Visser (49), Janice McGlone (50) and Kim Massey (54).

"Everyone on the team played real well," said Andersen.

Canton coach Ann Buie missed the record-setting match because she was in Colorado, tending to her new grandchild.

Massey showed the most improvement for the Chiefs. She averaged in the mid-60s for nine holes last season. Massey's score of 54 was a personal best.

"It was a good way to start the season," Andersen said.

Pinckney came up with individual rounds of 44, a pair of 55's and a 62.

PLYMOUTH SALEM didn't have an easy time with Brighton as the Rock golfers trailed by five strokes with two players in the clubhouse.

Senior Beth Maggio led the Rocks attack with a round of 50 at the tough Faulkwood Shores Golf Course. Sophomore Nancy Stevens was the second low player for Salem. She fired a nine-hole round of 58.

After junior co-captain Meg McGee finished with a score of 58 to match Stevens, freshman Carol Ross clinched the match for the Rocks with a round of 54 in her first varsity tourney.

Brighton's Kathy Regan won medalist honors with a score of 48. Other Brighton scores included a 55, 61 and 62.

"The team played tremendous for the first time out this year," said Salem coach Bob Waters.

Waters said he was pleased with the play of Ross and Stevens, both making their first varsity attempts.

Canton and Salem tangle Thursday at Hilltop Golf Course in Plymouth Township.

Canton also plays Friday at Hilltop against Dearborn Fordson while Salem travels to Washtenaw Country Club Monday to play Fordson.

Gilles nets Jr. Louisville invite Unseeded Christine Gilles of Plymouth captured the girls' 12 and younger singles crown last weekend at the Louisville, Ky., Junior Tennis Invitational.

Christine also teamed up with Chris Nagel of West Bloomfield to win the girls' 12 and younger doubles title, downing Wendy Gilles, her sister, and Madeline Willard of Grosse Pointe, 6-2, 6-1.

Christine took the singles crown when she defeated Nagel, her doubles partner, 7-6, 6-2.

In the first round, Gilles defeated Deborah Denro of Bowling Green, Ky., 6-3, 6-1. She then upset number three seed Michelle Torres of Wrotfield, Ill., 6-0, 6-3.

In her semifinal match, Gilles beat Lynn Nabors of Cincinnati, Ohio, 6-4, 6-3.

Yugoslav cagers battered again

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Michigan's All-Star prep basketball team added insult to injury Sunday afternoon, trouncing the touring Yogoslavian Junior National Team by 55 points at Oakland University.

The 140-85 onslaught finished a surprisingly easy two-game sweep of the Yugoslavians. Michigan won the first game at Schoolcraft Community College Friday night by 35 points 117-82.

The Yugoslavians, actually a state championship team from Croatia and not a junior national team as earlier publicized, were no match to the quicker and stronger Michigan preps. In fact, after Friday's Michigan shellacking of the foreigners before a crowd of 1,500 fans, only 300 people showed up at Oakland to watch a repeat of the demolishing.

"I was expecting a little tougher game," said Birmingham Brother Rice All-American center Tim Andree after the series. Andree, the Most Valuable Player in Friday's contest, added 16 points in Sunday's contest.

"We played real well," he said. "We've played against each other, and we know each other well," Andree said of his teammates.

"They (Yugoslavia) were not as physical in the first game, and someone quoted in the paper said they were not physical. But they were physical in this game."

"I wish it was a liitle more competitive," said Plymouth Salem all-stater Rich Hewlett. "We practiced pretty hard all week. I'm just glad to have a chance to meet and play with these guys."

Hewlett scored three points in Friday's game and didn't score in Sunday's contest. He did, however, play excellent defense on the Yugoslavian's only strong player, Djordano Bakovic, on Sunday.

Bakovic, the game's top scorer on both teams, netted 39 points, but Hewlett allowed only eight of these points when he was in the contest. The Plymouth star added four assists, four rebounds and five steals to his day's work. Bakovic was named the Yugoslavian's most outstanding player in the game.

The Michigan stars showed some outstanding play of their own, thanks to the inside play of River Rouge's Derek Perry. Perry scored eight of his squad's first 14 points and went on to score 28 points to earn Most Valuable Player honors.

Starting guard Melvin McLaughlin from Grand Rapids Creston and reserve guard Erich Santifer from Ann Arbor Huron scored 22 and 26 points, respectively, to share Michigan's most outstanding player award.

Michigan broke an early 16-16 tie with 15:11 left in the first half by outscoring Yugoslavia 21-4 in the next six minutes to take control of the contest.

Michigan rolled to a comfortable 67-40 halftime lead, and it was smooth sailing from there, as former Detroit Piston players Don Adams and Willie Norwood, coaches of the Michigan team, sat back and enjoyed the second half without a worry in the world.

Other Michigan All-Stars to hit for double dfigures included Royal Oak Shrine's Herb Bostic (12 points) and Detroit Mackenzie's Steve Caldwell (18).

The two-game series, the second annual international attraction sponsored by the Michigan Basketball Association, helped raise money for Michigan's travel costs to the AAU national basketball championships in Jacksonville, Florida this summer.

Last season, Michigan's prep team lost both games of its two-game series to a Russian national team but finished the summer as the runners-up in the national tournament.

Wayne County '5' rips Oakland County

The Wayne County All-Star basketball team made it a clean sweep over its rivals from Oakland County on Sunday afternoon.

The Wayne stars, playing before a crowd of less than 100, whipped Oakland, 116-98, in the preliminary game of the Michigan-Yugoslavian basketball series at Oakland University in Rochester. Wayne defeated Oakland, 102-93, in the first of the two-game series at Schoolcraft College on Friday night.

Wayne was ahead the entire game, using its quickness and overall rebounding strength to upend Oakland. Wayne broke a 21-21 tie with 7:45 remaining in the first half and took a 50-38 lead into the lockerroom at halftime.

The Wayne lead increased to 20 points, 90-70, with 6:34 left in the game as Oakland was clearly outclassed the entire game. Wayne's biggest margin of the game was 25 points, 111-86, with 1:33 remaining.

Donald Bell, playing for Wayne and representing Detroit Henry Ford, was the game's most valuable player and leading scorer with 28 points. Lamar Jackson from Detroit Southwestern was named Wayne's most outstanding player with his 11 points and strong rebounding play.

Oakland's Phil Bouknight from Harper Woods Lutheran East scored 25 points and was named his squad's most outstanding player.

Four area cagers completed in this game — all for Oakland County. Southfield-Lathrup's Jack Dakesian started and scored nine points. Southfield High's Eric Griffin canned six points; Rochester's Jim Jagels and Livonia Bentley's Eric Thorderson added eight points each.

Or even triple their earnings. Life of Virginia has that kind of opportunity for two ambitious people.
We offer you most of the advantages of being self-employed without the disadvantaged. You need no capital investment. You will enjoy independence, and you will have the chance to earn as much as your initiative and talent merit.
What you must offer us is an aptitude for the business (which we will help you determine) and the drive to succeed.
Let's talk!

Some areas drop

Analyst predicts new housing boom

Housing starts in 1979 in the seven-county southeast Michigan area are expected to be down some 8 percent compared to 1978. But the decline will occur only in scattered communities.

In fact, 20 of the active-building communites along eight growth corridors around Detroit actually will have increased building activity. Only 15 will have less.

That's the prediction of Bruce W. Robinson, nationally known analyst specializing in housing trends. He said BASM members should not "psych" themselves into excessive caution "because the buyers are out there" and ready and able to be sold.

Robinson cited a national study which showed five Michigan communities out of the top 25 in the nation in general affluence. These were Saginaw, Flint, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Lansing in that order.

Robinson's company, Robinson Reports, of Southfield, surveys and analyzes buyer desire and areas supplied with lots for building, along with economic factors, to arrive at projections which have been surprisingly accurate in the past.

The principal growth corridors, he said, are along I-94 to St. Clair; M-53 Detroit to Utica; I-75 Detroit to Flint; M-59; I-696 Detroit to Lansing; M-14; I-94 Detroit to Ann Arbor and I-75 Detroit to Toledo.

Of a projected home-start total of 21,200, 5,125 are expected to occur in the Detroit-Lansing corridor.

He included in this corridor Southfield, Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield, Bloomfield Township, Novi, Wixom, Milford and Brighton. Southfield, with 1,000 starts vs. 939 in 1978; Farmington Hills with 1,750 compared to 1,400; and Novi, with 750 vs. 576, will show rises while the rest will have slight declines.

Second hottest building corridor, Robinson said, will be the Detroit-Ann Arbor sector, with 4,000 of the total. More than 1,750 of these will be located in Canton, up from 1,600 in 1978.

The Ann Arbor area will build 1,000 units, up from 721 last year. Romulus, Van Buren, Ypsilanti, erior and Pittsfield all will show increases to put all seven communities listed on the plus side.

Robinson predicts the Detroit-Utica area to be third in activity with Warren expected to build 1,000 units for a large gain over the 476 in 1978; Sterling Heights, 1,500 compared to 1,612 in 1978; Shelby, 500 vs. 332 last year; and Washington, 250 new units or more than double 1978's 113. Total for area will be 3,250, Robinson added.

The fourth most active strip will be Detroit-St. Clair. Chesterfield, with 400 for 1979 vs. 379 in 1978 is expected to be the only community listed to show a gain.

The others are Roseville, (1979 vs. 1978 totals) 450 vs. 474; Fraser, 300, down from 362; Clinton, still strong at 1,250 but down from last year's 1,481; Harrison, 250 vs. 315; Macomb, 500 vs. 53. Total for the corridor will be 3,150.

Fifth in building strength will be the Detroit-Flint corridor where 2,450 units are expected to be built. Included active communites are Troy, (1978 vs. 1979 totals) 750 vs. 1,013; Avon, 1,250 vs. 1,370; Independence, 250 vs. 244 and Orion, 200 vs. 182.

Only the last two will show gains.

Sixth showing will be made along M-59, with 1,325 units projected in five communities. Only three reflect gains over 1978: White Lake, 200 vs. 195 last year; Highland, 200 vs. 172; Waterford, 500 vs. 652; Commerce, even at 225 and 225; and Hartland, 200, up from 139.

Seventh in activity will be along M-14, where Livonia will build 300 vs. 402; Plymouth 500 vs. 289; Northville 250 vs. 163 and Salem, 100 vs. 39.

Thus only Livonia will show a lag as these com-

Frankel features upside-down house

The Herman Frankel Organization's latest innovation in luxury homes is the Hillside, a two-story model located in Bloomfield-On-The-Lake's last single-home community, The Park, Middlebelt south of Lone Pine Road.

The Hillside is a 3,906-square-foot contemporary elevation but also is available in more traditional designs which feature sloping Alpine roofs.

"We wanted to take advantage of the breathtaking view of a rugged woodland slope thick with grass, wildflowers and towering trees and, at the same time, create a living style that is organized to meet the living requirements of each and every member of the family," says Herman Frankel, president of the West Bloomfield based building-land development firm.

"So we began by raising the major living areas to the upper level and placed the children's bedrooms and activities area on the main level. Hence, the upside-down house."

Frankel says "children tend to spread themselves throughout an entire house simply because family room, bedrooms and recreation areas are located on seperate levels of the house. By organizing these areas on one level, the Hillside eliminates the need for tracking through the entire house. It offers adults a quiet place to converse while the children entertain themselves."

The main level, or children's zone, encompasses three bedrooms, two baths, hobby room and study-TV room. Accessible to the kitchen via a rear service stair, or the formal living quarters via the foyer staircase, the children's zone also provides the family the option of using one of the bedrooms as a guest room.

All the major rooms (living, dining, kitchen, library, powder and family rooms) are on the upper level — not because of the steepness of the slope, but to take advantage of the site.

In the two-story main level entrance gallery, there is 750 square feet of openness that leads into a combined family and living room area.

This gathering room, spanning 24 feet, features an entertainment bar also accessible from the kitchen, and a double-faced free standing fireplace rising to the studio ceiling.

The kitchen includes a dining nook that opens onto a wood deck, adjoining utility room and separate butler's pantry.

The kitchen features a service stair that connects with the children's zone and provides access to the two-car garage.

The formal dining room — accessible from both the gathering room and commands a view of the creek that rambles throughout the development.

The Hillside is located at 3058 Bloomfield Park Drive. Models are open daily from noon to 6 p.m. Prices start at $209,900.

Sales are handled by the Frankel Organization. For more details, call 642-6222.

The breakfast nook of the Hillside model offers residents an outstanding view of the wooded lots.

12 homesites left in Wabeek's Lakeridge

At left is an outline of the lots in the Lakeridge of Wabeek subdivision in West Bloomfield centered around Cameo and Fox lakes.

There are 12 homesites remaining in the Ivanhoe Building Co.'s Lakeridge of Wabeek subdivision in West Bloomfield.

In total, there are 38 wooded, lakefront and golf course sites with private streets and entrance ways.

Each home built by Ivanhoe ranges from $200-400,000. No two homes are alike.

The development, located near Middleblet and Regent roads, south of Long Lake Road, feature homes on lots larger than one-half acre. Some are on one acre with 300-400 foot deep lots on Fox Lake.

All the homes are situated on top of a ridge overlooking the heavily wooded terrain around the two lakes in the subdivision.

Gary Shapiro, Ivanhoe partner along with Max Elbaz, says Ivanhoe strives to accomodate the lifestyles they see prevalent in the homes they have already sold, allowing the buyer to add his own personal touches.

Currently under construction is a two-story $257,000 contemporary home of four bedrooms, 2½ baths, three-car garages, formal dining foom and library with wet bar.

Entering the front door, one views a large open foyer that leads to the two-story entertainment area. A private loft attached to the master bedroom suite overlooks these rooms from above.

The master suite has curved walls, two walk-in closets and a make-up area, a skylight, and a raised ceramic tile tub.

The other bedrooms are located on the other end of the house. An attached stairway forks off one way to the master suite and in the other direction to the children's rooms.

Large wood decks allow the family to enjoy the features of their wooded lot.

Potential home buyers can view these homes currently under construction at Lakeridge or the builders will create the special homes of your dreams.

For an appointment, call 355-2700. Ivanhoe builders can be reached at 478-7541 on weekends.

Since the company does not maintain a stock of models, appointments are necessary to discuss construction plans and offerings.

Lake Woodlands include carefully considered site planning of a specific house and floor plan on a specific lot.

Here's some paying options

Understanding the ways to pay for a house may become difficult, but buyers are finding a new range of options opening up to them.

Late last year, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board authorized federally chartered savings and loan institutions it oversees to offer innovative forms of mortgages.

Included were graduated payment mortgages (GPM), reverse annuity mortgages (RAM) and, in California, variable rate mortgages (VRM). All represent substantial change from the fixed-rate, fixed-payment, fixed-term loan. That type of loan has been the major instrument for supplying house purchase credit for the last 40 years.

While not yet offered on a broad scale, the new alternative mortgage instruments are expected to grow in use as experience with them demonstrates their value.

"If they find favor in Michigan, the graduated payment mortgage will be of particular interet to young families and first-time buyers," said John Cole, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"The reverse annuity will be a boon to older families on fixed incomes who have watched the value of their property grow along with tax assessments, but who have found it difficult to realize the profits."

The graduated payment mortgage operates on the assumption the borrower's income will increase. Monthly payments start out lower than would be the case for the present widely used conventional mortgage and increase gradually over a five-to-ten year period.

ALTHOUGH BORROWERS generally can qualify for these loans with less income than required for conventional mortgages, they build up little equity during the first stages of repayment. When monthly payments level off, they usually are higher than required for conventional loans.

The reverse annuity mortgage would enable owners with substantial equity in their house to generate supplemental income, while retaining ownership.

In this case, the homeowner would be granted a loan with his or her equity in the house serving as security. Rather than being given out in a lump sum, the loan would be paid to the homeowner in monthly payments over a period of years.

At the end of the term, the homeowner could sell the house to pay off the loan, or possibly execute another RAM loan using the growth in equity for security.

"These two types of mortgage instruments are still very much in the trial stage," said Cole.

The variable rate mortgage has been offered in some sections of the country, particularly California, by state-chartered thrift institutions and by state and national banks for a number of years.

The VRMs appear to be attracting a growing number of advocates who cite experience in California, where closing of such mortgages brought the total to an estimated $15 billion.

Under this type of mortgage, the interest rate is allowed to rise or fall, as the cost of money to the lender changes.

Proponents of this type of house mortgage instrument say that, when a house buyer borrows money at a time of high interest rates, it is inequitable to have to live with that rate for the full term when the rate may drop substantially.

At the same time, they note that VRMs offer lenders some protection against unseen rises in his cost of money over the life of a long-term loan.

What's a condo?

Cape Cod . . . cooperative . . . townhouse . . . single-family house . . . condominium . . . apartment . . . bi-level . . .

With such an array of housing types and ownership forms available, first-time house buyers can become confused.

Today, there is a housing alternative for almost every life style. Whether married or single, childless or raising an army, handy or helpless, there is an ownership form and housing type to fit almost anyone's needs.

Confusion about these alternatives often arises over whether the term refers to ownership or design. The term condominium is a good example; many people think it refers to a type of structure.

Not so. Condominium refers to a form of ownership. When a person buys a condominium, he or she has fee title to the unit lived in, plus a share in ownership of common areas available to all occupants in the development. Campgrounds, mobile home developments and office buildings — all can be condominiums.

West Coast concepts accent homes

The almost finished Brentwood in the Farmington Square puts together a California look with geometric lines and natural wood.

Jay Kaufman Builders offer a variety of homes with conveniences for both families with and without children.

In the Farmington Square Subdivision, Nine Mile and Halsted, Farmington Hills, the commons area offers a safe place for children to "travel" on their own.

The developer believes the 21 acres of open space are suited to all sorts of outdoor activities, from ball games to family picnics conveniently close to home.

One style, the Brentwood, a California-style home, the master suite is situated on the first floor. Upstairs a 30-feet-long balcony overlooks another West Coast concept, the "Great Room."

A New England touch is added to the subdivision with the "Huntington," modeled in the design of an 18th century home, including a sitting room and outside balcony off the master suite.

Farmington Square models are scheduled for the end of the month but prospective home buyers can get an early look.

With construction bogged down in the spring mud, Kaufman offers homebuyers a chance to beat the early summer rush by opening the Huntington before it's actually completed.

The juxtaposition of finish work with stacks of insulating material may seem a bit strange at first glance but it allows buyers to get an accurate picture of what the Huntington will look like in a month or so.

To emphasize the concept, Kaufman has tacked up signs explaining "what goes where." Of course, the usual floor plans and architect's renderings also are available to help out.

Sales in Farmington Square will be handled by Impact Marketing Services. For more information, call 478-2340 or 354-4114.

Healthy building industry vital to economy

Maintaining a stable, healthy home building industry is vital to the nation, says James Raisin, president of the Builders' Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Using as an example the costs of building 2,000 residential units, Raisin explained how these costs are pumped back into the economy as construction workers' consumer dollars, federal and social security taxes, new homeowners purchases and the creation of new jobs in the construction materials industry.

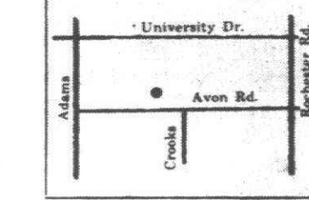

From an initial cost on the 2,000 units of $40 million, economists estimate a total "ripple" effect throughout the economy of more than $120 million.

Raisin added that those 2,000 units are only about one-tenth of the total housing starts in the greater Detroit area last year alone.

Woodlands begins to take shape

Abbey Home's traditional Tudor two-story Woodridge features stained and leaded glass windows, a sunken, studio-ceilinged family room with wet bar and a lighted courtyard entry.

Less than a year ago, Abbey Homes began development of a scenic, wooded 80-acre parcel adjacent to Orchard Lake south of Pontiac Trail in the City of Orchard Lake.

Since then, this luxury development — Orchard Lake Woodlands — has been booming with activity.

David Johnson, Abbey's head of land development, says "on site improvements (city sewer and water and streets) were completed last year with efficiency and expediency.

"This allowed us to begin construction of model homes and enabled us to offer a wide diversification of custom homes to our clients. Our firm, Maple Associates — Realtors, is proud to be representing some of southeastern Michigan's most innovative custom home builders in the Woodlands."

Orchard Lake Woodlands, now offers luxury homes built by Robertson Brothers, Sundance Building Co., Award Biuilders, Inwoods Home Corp., James D. Compo, Inc. and Abbey Homes.

The various models average around 3,700-square-feet with prices ranging from $200,000 to $275,000.

The Woodridge II is the on-site sales information center for the project. In this model, color renderings of the other available models are on display.

Styles range from Abbey's traditional Tudor two-story featuring stained and leaded glass windows in the second floor hall loft to a dramatic comtemporary built by Inwoods with the second level entirely devoted to a master suite with fireplaced sitting room and outdoor balconies.

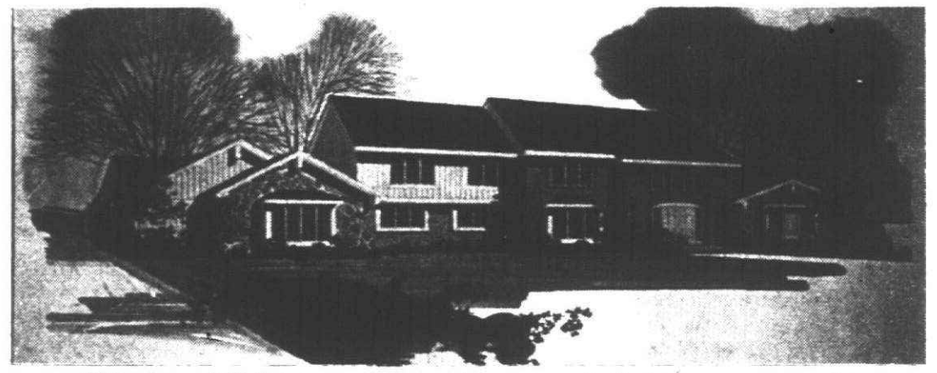

THERE IS EVEN a model by Award Builders with space in its ample two-car garage designated as "sports car storage" for the sports car buff who prefers to keep his or her sports car safely stored during the winter months.

The brisk pace of sales was evidence when Maple Associates sold the first model by Robertson Brothers in the project as the bricks were being delivered to the site.

Robertson Bros. now have a French influenced two-story under construction. Details include a large family room with a massive fireplace framed by three pairs of French doors.

National Realtors chief blasts housing policies

"Pervasive anti-housing philosophy in this nation" may prevent a whole generation of Americans from owning their own homes, warns the president of the National Association of Realtors.

Donald I. Hovde, president of the 680,000-member realtors group, charged "no growth, slow growth ordinances" and governmental "regulation extremists" have "eliminated the basic house in this country."

"Over the next 10 years, we will have 16 million more Americans reaching the prime home buying age of 25 to 44. We are not going to be able to house them in a home of their own," he predicts.

Hovde said market opinion research shows that in the next five years the issue of home ownership will be one of the most critical problems facing Americans.

"More than 20 million new housing units must be built in the 1980s to satisfy the nation's housing demands."

Citing the group's recently released "Annual Real Estate Market Outlook for 1979," Hovde noted that projected new single-family housing starts will dip 13 percent for the year and groundbreaking on multi-family housing will decline 14 percent.

Hovde pointed to Chicago as an example of where "government regulations" and "legislation limiting housing " have had an "effect."

The realtor chief said single-family housing permits declined 11 percent in the city and nine percent in the suburbs of Chicago last year. Quoting a Bell Federal Savings January study, Hovde noted that permits for new single-family and multi-family housing units in metropolitan Chicago slid eight percent from 1977 to 1978.

HOVDE BLAMED "excessive government regulation" for adding 20 percent to the cost of a new home. But he said it is a "demonstrable fact that providing adequate housing and protecting the environment are not mutually exclusive goals.

"We must achieve a mentality, a philosophy among our citizens and governments that sensible, manageable growth can be ached if we work to balance our communities' housing and economic needs against their ecological and environmental needs."

Instead, we have become victims of "regulation extremists," Hovde stated.

"The irony of all these well-intentioned codes and regulations promulgated in the name of safety and comfort is that fewer families can afford to buy homes built in compliance with these codes.

"We are no longer free to choose where we want to live," Hovde asserted. "Our governments, our nation's towns and villages are killing the American dream through over-regulation and no-growth legislation. The American dream is becoming unaffordable for the people for whom this dream burns brightest," Hovde concluded.

Complaint unit handles gripes

Here's how to cure new home blues

By RON GARBINSKI
Real Estate Editor

Where do you turn when that dream house of your's isn't everything you thought it would be?

Suppose the basement leaks, the roof isn't up to par or the porch is caving in. Or possibly the backyard isn't graded the best for drainage and the plaster on the walls is falling off.

When one considers all the new homes going up today, there are bound to be some problems or oversights.

So what can a new homeowner do if a builder doesn't respond to your call for help as quickly as you think he should?

One route to follow is to contact the complaint office of the Residential Builders Division Lansing. The Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation set up that division to handle new housing complaints.

If a complaint is filed with the unit, the division usually sends out an inspector to examine your problem. His report and your complaints are passed on to the builder if considered a reasonable gripe.

The builder, in turn, has 15 days to answer the complaint.

USUALLY THE builder will take care of the complaint right here," says Carol Campbell, administrative assistant for the complaint unit in Lansing.

"That's because the builder usually doesn't want to suffer the consequences of either having his license revoked or restricted," she adds.

But if the problem still persists, the complaint then goes to mediation where the builder and owner meet with a unit referee.

The builder has four chances to remedy the problem, Ms. Campbell continues. "If the owner still isn't satisfied , then formal licensing action can be started where the builder could lose his license."

"It's a very long process, but builders usually take care of the problem before then since he doesn't want to jeopardize his license. Sometimes formal action take upwards to a year or more. The department has some formal complaints dating back to 1973," Ms. Campbell explains.

Backlog of pending cases isn't the only concern of the unit. The caseload of new complaints is building every day. As of last September, for example, the division had recorded more than 2,050 complaints from new homeowners against builders. That's quite a workload, considering the division only handled 1,600 during 1977.

When out looking for a new home, one of the best ways to safeguard against potential construction complaints is to shop around for a recognized builder.

Ms. Campbell suggests that buyers check with the local building department to see what reputation the builder has in a community before making any commitment.

A new home buyer also should check with the Better Business Bureau and anyone else who has had experience with the builder.

The Complaint Unit is another good source for finding out about a builder.

To file a complaint or contact the unit, call 1-517-374-9625 or write Complaint Analysis Unit, 808 Southland Ave., Lansing 48909.

Many homeowners fail to update insurance policy

With the continued rise in local house values, many owners may be failing to protect their increased equity with adequate house insurance.

In working with owners placing their houses on the resale market, members of the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR) report that some have never increased insurance coverage since they took out their mortgage.

Many of these houses have more than doubled in value since that time and may have undergone numerous improvements to further increase their worth.

If a fire or storm should demolish the house, the insurance money available after paying off the mortgage balance would fall far short of replacement costs in such cases, say the realtors. With current inflation, they suggest an annual review of house insurance coverage.

They also note that there are ways to help cut the higher costs that may be involved. For example, taking a higher deductible lowers premium expenditure.

Some insurance companies also lower premiums when risk-reducing devices are installed. Shopping around among companies should divulge the one that offers the best coverage at the most reasonable price.

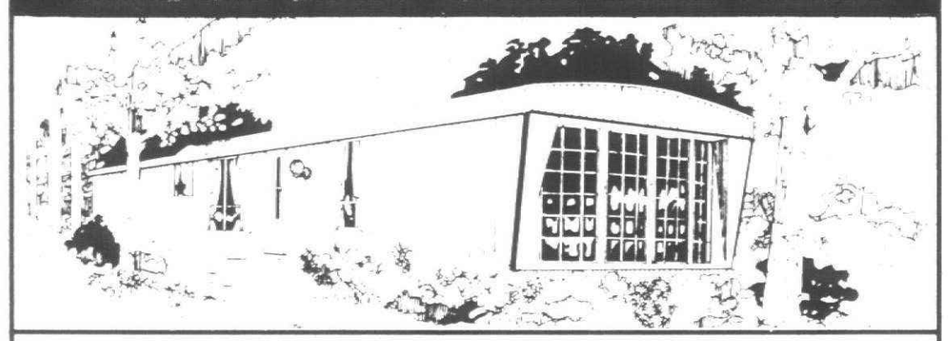

The WWOCBR members say that, despite use of better fire-retardant materials, in new houses and more use of safety devices, fire remains a constant hazard. Statistics show that 54 percent of all building fires in the United States are in one- and two-family dwellings. The winter months are the most likely for houses to burn.

PROVIDING ADDITIONAL incentive for house insurance reviews are FBI statistics showing an increase in both day and nighttime house burglaries in recent years.

As an aid to proving the value of fire or burglary losses, the realtors also offer a number of suggestions. They advise keeping a complete listing of household furnishings detailing time of purchase and cost backed by receipts or cancelled checks for the most costly item. Photographs of specific items or complete rooms also are useful in assessing losses.

Professional appraisal reports for valuable collections, antiques, jewelry and similar materials also can help speed processing of a claim. Such proofs of value should be kept, along with other important papers including insurance policies, in risk-free areas such as bank safety deposit boxes.

4 million owners

Condo sales continue to soar

Although condominiums may not house half the U.S. population by 1997 as predicted in one government forecast, dwelling in this type of unit continues to gain popularity.

The rate of condominium construction and conversion from apartments was a significant factor in "condo" resales, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

Housing officials say that price gains in condos are now almost on a par with those for condo ownership, both nationally and locally.

A study of data from the 1976 Annual Housing Survey, conducted by the Census Bureau for the Department of Housing and Urbn Development, presents a profile of the condo owner of two years ago.

With a median age of 54 and an annual income of $18,300, the typical condo owner lived with one other adult in a unit valued at $36,100. Chances were about one in three that the unit was classed as a single-family home, usually an attached townhouse. Another three out of 10 lived in condo structures with 20 or more units.

A further view of condo owners is provided by a comparison with statistics for all owner-occupied dwellings.

Here the median age was 50, annual income $14,000 and the value of the property owner at $32,300. Median occupancy was by 2.8 persons with 44.3 percent of the units housing one or more children compared to only 14.9 percent for condos.

The WWOCBR notes that median values of both condos and other dwelling units have risen sharply over the past two years and that median annual incomes also have increased.

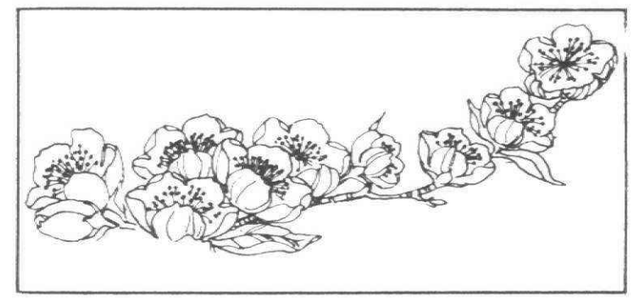

Recent estimates indicate that more than four million Americans now reside in condos.

Some of the benefits include generally lower cost than for comparable single-family detached homes. With all owners sharing in the cost of the land, some condo projects offer buyers a choicer location than they could afford on their own.

Many of the condo projects include a range of amenities from swimming pools to golf courses and greater opportunity for group activities. While enjoying the same tax benefits as single-family homeowner, condo owners avoid the need to maintain the common areas and grounds outside their particular units.

However, an added monthly fee for such service is one of the drawbacks along with a certain reduction in privacy that comes in sharing at least one common wall. Some people might resent the increased density common to such units as well as being forced to abide by rules and regulations decided by the majority of owners in the condo project.

Included might be a ban against pets; a limit on the number of guests permitted, or restrictions on the use of common facilities such as swimming pools.

Growth corridors prosper

The Detroit-Toledo corridor will stand eighth with 750 units in 1979 compared to 572 last year as all of the four listed communities gain as follows: Taylor, 200 vs. 150; Brownstown, 250 vs. 222; Riverview 200 vs. 115, and Southgate, 100 vs. 85.

Corporate transfers and new establishments which bring new job opportunites will account for Warren's revival, Robinson said.

And the projected high activity in the Detroit-Ann Arbor corridor is expected to be fueled partly by 11,000 new jobs in new corporate activities there.

Metropolitan home costs lower than most other cities

House buyers moving into the Detroit area are continuing to find housing costs below those in most other areas of the nation.

Supporting the statement is a recent study by the United States League of Savings Associations based on 8,500 conventional mortgage loans made in 1977 at 200 cooperative member associations.

The study report compared housing cost, including mortgage payments, taxes, utilities and insurance in 27 cities. These ranged in size from New York, the nation's largest city, to Marysville, Kan., with a countywide population of 13,000.

The national median for monthly housing costs — with half paying more and half less -- was $400. Of this, $273 went for mortgage payments, $54 for taxes, $60 for utilities, and $13 for insurance.

The median monthly cost for the Detroit area was $389. The biggest difference was in mortgage payments which, at $235, was $38 below the national median. Another $2 saving was shown in the $11 insurance costs, but the gains were partially offset by higher medians for taxes, $73, and utilities, $70.

Thus, Detroit's ranking in the 27 areas, was fourth lowest in mortgage payments; 21st in taxes; 16th with six other cities for utility costs; eighth for insurance, and 12th in total costs.

However, in areas with populations of more than one million, only three cities -- St. Louis, Pittsburg and Columbus, Ohio, had lower median monthly costs.

In terms of mortgage payments in the larger cities, only St. Louis ranked lower at $226.

SMALLER CITIES with total costs lower than the Detroit area included Burlington, Ve.; Macon, Ga.; Marysville, Kan.; Morristown, Tenn.; Peoria, Ill.; Portland, Me.; Portland, Ore., and Richmond, Va.

The study showed the highest total costs in San Francisco, $614; followed by Washington, D. C., $578, and Los Angeles, $567.

One conclusion of the study was that more than one third of the house buyers, 38 percent, exceeded the old rule of thumb that only 25 percent of household income should go for housing expenses.

"People increasingly see housing as the best inflation hedge and the best investment for the middle class," said Dennis Jacobs, one of the economists who prepared the study.

"To do it, though, they are making sacrifices that buyers never made before and stretching far beyond traditional limits."

The median purchase price of houses nationally when the survey was taken was $44,000. The median price for a house in the Detroit was $35,750.

1978: Record sales year

A record 3,905,000 existing single-family homes were sold nationally during 1978, up 9.3 percent from the previous high set in 1977, the National Associaton of Realtors report.

"The 1978 total of 3,905,000 existing home sales shattered the old record of 3,572,000 set just a year earlier," said Donald I. Hovde, association president.

"The unprecedented demand for single-family homes touched all sections of the nation, with records being set in each region of the U.S."

Sales in the South led the way, with 1,638,000 homes changing hands in 1978. In the North Central region, 1,058,000 single-family homes were sold; the West, 646,000 resale homes; and the Northeast, 566,000.

Nationally, the median price for existing single-family homes rose $200 in December to $50,900. This figure represents a 15.2 percent rise from December 1977 to December 1978.

In the South, the median price was up 16.7 percent to $46,800; the North Central region, 16.5 percent to $44,400; West, 12.3 percent to $67,500; and the Northeast, 11.5 percent to $50,600.

Sales in December were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4,160,000 units, down from November's 4,350,000 rate but 3.2 percent ahead of the same month a year ago when the adjusted rate was 4,030,000, Hovde noted.

"This marks the third consecutive month that annualized sales of existing homes topped 4 million, so it appears that people still would rather purchase now than run the risk that mortgage money will not be available in the months ahead," he added.

Ramblewood: The 4th village

Farmington Hills' new Ramblewood subdivision offers a series of four new home villages — three of which are completely occupied with the fourth under construction.

For the new homebuyer, that means an opportunity to build a new home in an established neighborhood.

Ramblewood's four villages are seperated from each other by heavily wooded areas and hills.

In all, 100 acres have been left in a natural state including a pond suitable for skating, fishing and swimming.

There's also 24-hour gatekeepers who deliver packages and announce guests.

In Village IV, a distinctive collection of designer showcase models are now complete, including traditional and contemporary designs.

Ramblewood is located in Farmington Hills and Fourteen Mile west of Drake Road.

Sales at Ramblewood are being handled by Impact Marketing Services. For more information call 661-2410.

Shores maintains lake living

Lake property is rapidly disappearing in Oakland County, but the Shores at Baypointe still offers home buyers the joys of lake country living.

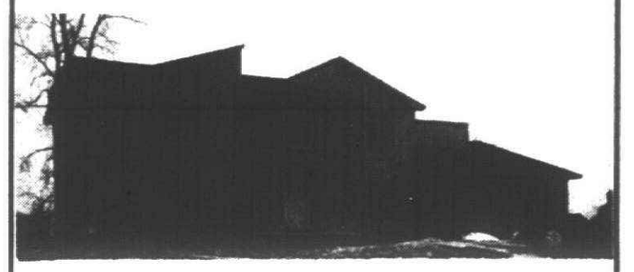

Situated along the wooded south shore of Lower Straits Lake in Commerce Township, Shores at Baypointe offers 83 sites plus a distinctive collection of models from builders Manny Nosan and Bob Halperin.

The Baypoint models include traditional, contemporary and quad-level designs, all scheduled for completion later this month.

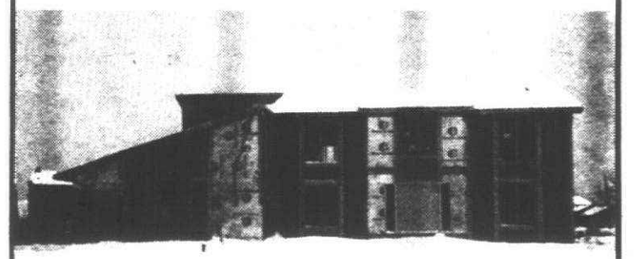

A private arboretum, boat landing and beach also will be part of the development.

Sales in Shores at Baypointe will be handled by Impact Marketing Services. Advanced reservations on building sites are now being accepted. For more information call 360-1100 or 354-4114.

4 million owners

Condo sales continue to soar

Although condominiums may not house half the U.S. population by 1997 as predicted in one government forecast, dwelling in this type of unit continues to gain popularity.

The rate of condominium construction and conversion from apartments was a significant factor in "condo" resales, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

Housing officials say that price gains in condos are now almost on a par with those for condo ownership, both nationally and locally.

A study of data from the 1976 Annual Housing Survey, conducted by the Census Bureau for the Department of Housing and Urbn Development, presents a profile of the condo owner of two years ago.

With a median age of 54 and an annual income of $18,300, the typical condo owner lived with one other adult in a unit valued at $36,100. Chances were about one in three that the unit was classed as a single-family home, usually an attached townhouse. Another three out of 10 lived in condo structures with 20 or more units.

A further view of condo owners is provided by a comparison with statistics for all owner-occupied dwellings.

Here the median age was 50, annual income $14,000 and the value of the property owner at $32,300. Median occupancy was by 2.8 persons with 44.3 percent of the units housing one or more children compared to only 14.9 percent for condos.

The WWOCBR notes that median values of both condos and other dwelling units have risen sharply over the past two years and that median annual incomes also have increased.

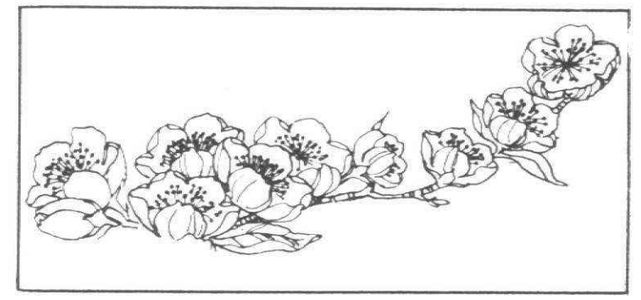

Recent estimates indicate that more than four million Americans now reside in condos.

Some of the benefits include generally lower cost than for comparable single-family detached homes. With all owners sharing in the cost of the land, some condo projects offer buyers a choicer location than they could afford on their own.

Many of the condo projects include a range of amenities from swimming pools to golf courses and greater opportunity for group activities. While enjoying the same tax benefits as single-family homeowner, condo owners avoid the need to maintain the common areas and grounds outside their particular units.

However, an added monthly fee for such service is one of the drawbacks along with a certain reduction in privacy that comes in sharing at least one common wall. Some people might resent the increased density common to such units as well as being forced to abide by rules and regulations decided by the majority of owners in the condo project.

Included might be a ban against pets; a limit on the number of guests permitted, or restrictions on the use of common facilities such as swimming pools.

munities gain a total of 1,150 units.

The Detroit-Toledo corridor will stand eighth with 750 units in 1979 compared to 572 last year as all of the four listed communities gain as follows: Taylor, 200 vs. 150; Brownstown, 250 vs. 222; Riverview 200 vs. 115, and Southgate, 100 vs. 85.

Corporate transfers and new establishments which bring new job opportunites will account for Warren's revival, Robinson said.

And the projected high activity in the Detroit-Ann Arbor corridor is expected to be fueled partly by 11,000 new jobs in new corporate activities there.

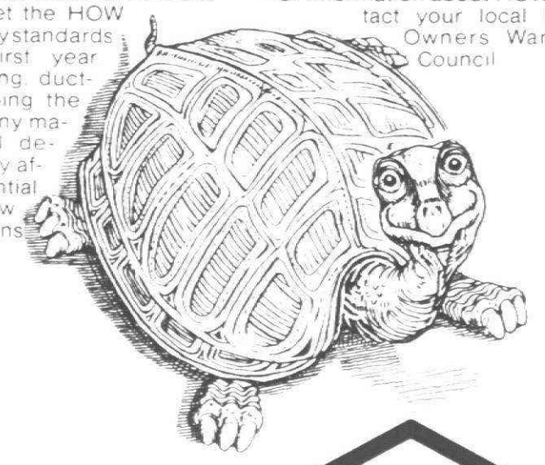

You're secure in a HOW home

Security in a new HOW home begins with the knowledge that you are protected by America's first 10-year, nationally insured home owners protection plan.

HOW—Home Owners Warranty—assures you protection against workmanship and materials defects that don't meet the HOW National quality standards during the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork and piping the second. And any major structural defects that vitally affect the residential use of your new home (exclusions are reasonable) for 10 full years.

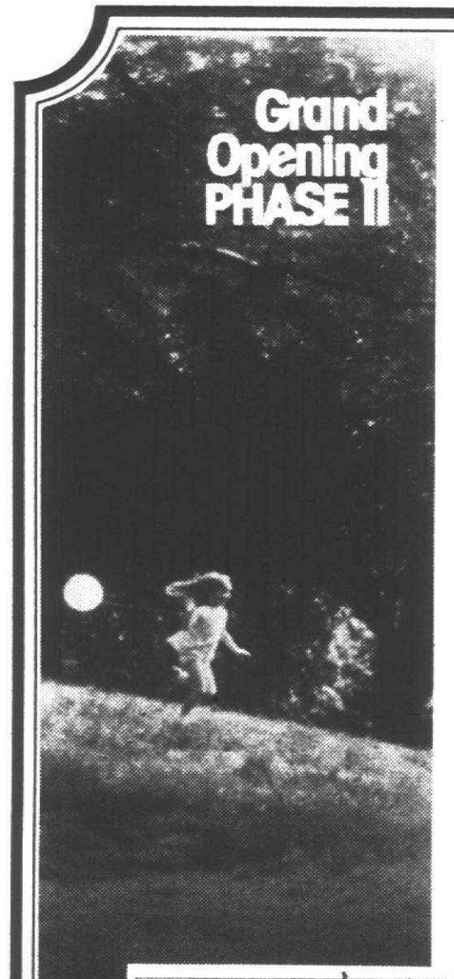

Only participating HOW home builders can offer you a HOW home. You can recognize them by the HOW emblem displayed in their ads and model homes. Look for it, and feel secure.
