P-C Schools get mills: Schoolcraft loses

By EMORY DANIELS

An intense but low-profile millage campaign paid off at the polls Monday for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Residents approved by a 674-vote margin a request to levy 1.5 additional mills ($1.50 per $1,000 state equalized value) for operation for six years.

The Plymouth-Canton millage request received a "yes" vote in all but four precincts, passing by a total of 3,302 to 2,628.

But at the same time residents voted down two requests for a half-mill each made by Schoolcraft College.

A half-mill for one year for the culinary arts addition lost in all Plymouth-Canton precincts, with the total vote being 2,461 "yes" and 3,559 "no."

The half-mill for maintenance to be levied for one year only was defeated in all precincts but one — Gallimore in Canton — with the total local vote being 2,461 in favor and 3,149 against.

Throughout the entire college district both millage proposals lost by 3-2 margins. The half-mill for a culinary arts addition was defeated 9,122 to 5,568 and the half-mill for major maintenance and equipment purchases lost 8,442 to 6,313.

Thus Plymouth-Canton voters followed the same pattern of other voters in the college district by defeating both proposals but giving better support to the maintenance request.

Nancie Blatt was easily re-elected to a six-year term with 5,541 votes. But only 242 votes separated three other candidates.

Winner of the second six-year term was Michael W. Burley, a Northville school administrator who lives in Canton Township, with 4,595.

In third place was Livonia attorney Robert Ficano with 4,494. Trailing was incumbent trustee Gerald Cox of Garden City with 4,353.

Richard Hayward was re-elected to the two-year seat, by a mere 10 votes over challenger Thomas Moore of Northville.

Moore was the leader in all Plymouth-Canton school precincts while Burley carried half of the local school district voting precincts.

THE MILLAGE campaign in Plymouth-Canton was aimed at two major groups — those who traditionally support millage requests and those parents upset about problems which could be solved or alleviated with more funds.

The strategy was to generate enough "yes" votes to overcome the built-in "no" votes from senior citizens and city of Plymouth residents who shy away from voting for millage they perceive is necessitated by growth in Canton.

And, as anticipated, the only precincts to vote against the millage were three which are in the city or draw from the city plus the absentee voter precinct.

Voters at the Central Middle precinct voted down the millage 280-249, Isbister voters said "no" by a narrow 119-228 vote, Starkweather voters rejected the millage by a 163-130 vote, and the absentee ballot voters voted down the millage 144-105.

But the millage received a "yes" vote majority in all the other 10 precincts to gather a positive majority of 674 votes to overcome the 119-vote margin from the four "no" precincts.

Among the Canton precincts giving strong support to the 1.5 mills were Gallimore, Miller, Hulsing, Eriksson, Field and Canton High. Plymouth precincts giving strong support to the millage included West Middle and Allen.

When news of the millage passage reached the board, president Tom Yack had these words of praise for Deanna Huff, citizens millage committee chairman and her co-workers:

"I haven't seen so much dedication to a single purpose in this district for a long time and the board certainly appreciates the sterling effort put forth."

Passage of the millage will allow the district to firm up plans for next year from an operational standpoint. The board still has a decision to make, though, on the size of a bond issue and the millage to request to finance added classrooms to meet the demands of rising enrollment.

Only about 17 per cent of the district's total of 38,000 registered voters turned out to the polls Monday.

The vote on the 1.5 mills, precinct by precinct, follows:

- Central, 280 no, 249 yes;
- Gallimore, 237 yes, 170 no;
- Isbister, 229 yes, 228 no;
- Starkweather, 163 no, 130 yes;
- Allen, 271 yes, 248 no;
- West, 439 yes, 253 no;
- Farrand, 269 yes, 261 no;
- Fiegle, 187 yes, 134 no;
- Miller, 217 yes, 138 no;
- Hulsing, 281 yes, 144 no;
- Eriksson, 145 yes, 96 no;
- Field, 77 yes, 46 no;
- Canton, 299 yes, 172 no;
- Bird, 168 yes, 150 no;
- Absentee voters, 144 no, 105 yes.

Yack, Stetz win seats on P-C School Board

Mrs. Stetz easily won her seat in Monday's election with a second-place finish behind incumbent Thomas J. Yack of Canton.

She will occupy the seat on the board held by Joe Gray who decided against seeking re-election.

Yack regained his spot easily by placing first in 13 of the 14 precincts. He tallied a total of 2,481 votes, some 885 more than fellow-winner Stetz.

Stetz ran first in two precincts — Allen and Eriksson — and ran second in six other precincts. She totaled 1,696 votes which placed her well ahead of the nearest challenger.

The third-place finisher, Dean Swartzwelter, missed the mark by 666 votes with his total of 1,030 votes. Swartzwelter placed second at West Middle and Bird Elementary precincts.

The fourth-place finisher, James Sinclair, placed second at the Fiegle polling booths and collected a total of 1,008 votes — some 22 behind Swartzwelter in a close race for third-place honorable mention.

Among the "favorite son" candidates were Douglass Koch of Canton, Jeanette Wines of Canton, and John Kim of Plymouth.

Koch placed second in his home precinct of Miller Elementary and also ran second at Gallimore but failed to pick up enough votes elsewhere in the district to place among the serious challengers. Koch ended up in fifth place with 777 votes.

Mrs. Wines placed second in her home precinct of Hulsing Elementary in Canton and had a respectable showing at three other Canton precincts. But she didn't garner many votes in the city nor Plymouth Township and finished sixth with 750 votes.

Kim, endorsed by the teachers union, placed seventh with 643 votes, doing best in Plymouth precincts and at Plymouth Canton High.

Roberts seemed to be the "favorite son" of the senior citizen bloc, placing second in the absentee voting precinct and drawing well at Central Middle and Canton High. The absentee voters generally include a higher proportion of senior citizens than the general voting population and Central Middle precinct has a high share of senior citizen voters. Roberts ended up in eighth place with 472 votes.

THERE SEEMED to be no relationship between how residents voted for the millage and for trustees.

Complex denial recommended

By DARLENE STINSON

Approximately 100 Pickwick subdivision residents stood up to applaud Monday night after the Canton Planning Commission voted to recommend denial of a low-income apartment complex proposed for a site near their homes.

The recommendation to deny site plans submitted by Amurcon Corp. was based on the allegation that the Pickwick Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement has been broken because an improper sequence of construction had taken place.

A broken PUD agreement would mean that the zoning of the 18-acre parcel south of Warren and east of Lilley would revert to single-family residential — the zoning of the property before the 1971 contract was signed.

The planning commission's recommendation will go before the township board, which has indicated that it would take Amurcon to court or allow a lawsuit to be filed against Canton Township before allowing the low-income complex to be built.

The Southfield-based firm has already won approval from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for a federal mortgage guarantee and rent subsidies for two apartment complexes in Canton.

One is the proposed Pickwick project, and the other is an apartment complex already under construction near Forest Trails subdivision on Joy near Canton Center.

THE NEWS that HUD approved the complexes in 1977 took township officials and residents by surprise last month.

Amurcon had not informed officials of the low-income nature of the Forest Trails complex when site plans for that project were approved by the Canton board last year.

Members of the current township board have assured Pickwick residents that they will do everything possible to stop the complex proposed for a site near their homes. They have tempered their optimism about stopping the Forest Trails complex, however, since those apartments are already under construction.

Township attorney Dave Berry has indicated that the Pickwick PUD may have been violated because single-family homes were constructed before multiples. The PUD agreement specifies that construction should have taken place in the reverse order.

PUDs are agreements between municipalities and original developers and usually include single-family homes, multiple-family homes and some commercial development.

Planning commissioner Carol Bodenmiller — the township board's representative on the planning board — made the original motion to recommend denial of the Pickwick site plans at

Commissioners nix sludge

The Canton Planning Commission has recommended denial of a special zoning request that would allow a firm contracted by the City of Detroit to establish a sludge-composting operation near Michigan and Morton Taylor roads.

The planners' unanimous recommendation to deny the request of Bi-Product Systems of Michigan will go before the township board which holds the final authority on such matters.

The firm has proposed the dumping of 600 tons of treated sludge on the Canton site each day where it would be composted and transformed into fertilizer.

The composting operation would help the Detroit Water and Sewage Department carry out a court order to decrease the amount of waste that is being dumped into the Detroit River. The order stems from a lawsuit filed against Detroit by the Environmental Protection Agency.

BI-PRODUCT SYSTEMS has proposed two alternative plans for the composting operation.

One would limit composting to a 100-acre parcel on the south side of Michigan east of Morton Taylor which the firm plans to buy. The other would provide for the leasing of an adjacent 40 acres owned by Canton Township which is earmarked for eventual industrial development.

If the latter alternative were approved, Bi-Product Systems has pledged to construct sewers and roads on the township land that will eventually be developed as an industrial park.

Company representatives said the composting operation would probably be halted after three-year contract with Detroit expires.

The zoning vote came after township planner Jim Kosteva recommended denial of the composting operation and engineer Robert Wade listed his objections to the proposal.

Lynn LaBell and Hilda Matzo, residents of Sunflower Village Subdivision, submitted petitions against the proposal because of the potentially dangerous chemicals that are contained in the sludge. Mrs. LaBell said the petitions contained signatures of 4,300 residents — 10 per cent of Canton's population.

WADE'S OBJECTIONS to the proposal ranged from the impact the composting operation would place on surrounding homes to the impact it would have on the township's sewer system.

Rain water on the sludge site would drain into a retention basis where it would enter the sanitary sewer system and be carried back to the Detroit Wastewater Treatment plant.

Wade suspects that basement flooding on Good Friday was caused by the entrance of rain water in the sanitary sewer system.

Kosteva said 94 trucks would travel along Michigan Avenue to the composting site each day and many of the vehicles would contain sludge.

"The township would have to expect with 11,680 sludge vehicle trips per year that some material will fall onto roadway services," the planner said in a report to the commission. "This would lead to the need of extensive repairs and inconvenience to Canton residents that no other land use would cause.

Kosteva said the composting operation "would need to be planned around as opposed to being planned for" and added that "the proposed project is not compatible with the natural environment" because of the metals and chemicals contained in the sludge.

"Finally, there is clearly no demonstrated need for the use in the general neighborhood in which it is proposed," he added. "For that matter, no demonstration has been made as to why Canton Township has been chosen to bear this regional burden other than its cost effectiveness and clay soils."

Although Bi-Product official Arthur Cassling attended the meeting, he made no comment on the protests by residents, the engineer or the planner.

The planning commission's decision to recommend denial of the project evoked a round of applause from the approximate 75 residents who stayed at Monday's meeting until midnight to learn the outcome of the vote.

Plymouth-Canton administrative postings

Year-round schedule beefs staffing

Changes in administrative structures were approved Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The board voted to approve the posting of assistant principal jobs at Isbister Elementary and Pioneer Middle and of an administrative intern position for Hulsing Elementary.

All three schools will be on year-round scheduling this coming school year.

The board also voted to name Janice Hawkins as acting principal of Gallimore Elementary during the medical leave of principal George Dodson.

Trustees voted to establish an assistant principal's position at Gallimore, and it is expected Ms. Hawkins will fill that spot.

Steve Harper, board president, had proposed that the board authorize one asistant principal position at each school on year-round scheduling and authorize two assistant principal positions for each middle on the year-round calendar.

That proposal was postponed for discussion at a workshop meeting on June 18.

In other action the board:

• Voted to expell a student from Central Middle and voted to re-instate a student from Plymouth Salem High previously expelled.

• Approved a resolution of commendation to Wayne Dunlap for his educational contributions to the community. Dunlap, who is stepping down as director of the Plymouth Symphony, was a music teacher in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools from 1956-61 and then director of music for the district until 1964 when he moved to Schoolcraft College to head up the music program there.

• Voted a resolution of commendation for the work done by trustee Flossie Tonda in enlisting financial support for Safety Town from the city of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships. Each government has agreed to contribute $10 for each of their residents who enroll in Safety Town this summer.

• Accepted a bid for modifications to add four new classrooms at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools.

• Approved a Spanish I text for use at the high schools.

Local lawmakers find days filled in Lansing

By TERI BANAS

Some 90 miles north there are more than 100 persons gathering, bringing together a corss-section of ideas and interests. They're called legislators and they comprise the State House of Representatives.

While the Lansing capitol, known as the House on the Hill, may appear awesome to first-time observers (school groups or scouting troops), once inside it quickly loses its mystery.

The casual politicking that's the norm in Lansing came to the foreground recently in an afternoon session of the legislature.

The scene is the house floor, with its walnut-covered walls and traditional blue and gold carpet. The lawmakers began drifting in after their lunchhours and private meetings while the outdoor temperatures rose to herald the beginning of summer.

At the start, visiting parties from across the state were introduced with polite applause.

School groups, as well as civic tours, are those most easily spotted touring the capital, wearing cameras and identification tags.

While it appears that state business is conducted on the floor, legislators say otherwise. The bulk of the planning is carried out in small-group discussions, committee and sub-committee meetings.

Only after their work is polished is it presented for floor discussion where factions pick it apart in a demonstration of their leanings and interests. More than one lawmaker described politics as the art of compromise.

On that day, legislative action was restricted to a few first and second readings, as well as recognition directed to Upper Michigan's "Man of the Year" — Rep. Joe Mack.

WHAT BECOMES EVIDENT is that there's more to the everyday work of legislators than meets the eye.

According to Rep. John Bennett, (D-Redford), it takes a legislator at least one term to learn the ropes.

"You get to know who you can depend on and those who give you gobbledygook. After 15 years I think I know the legislature pretty well."

For Republican minority leader Jack Kirskey, (R-Livonia), the house's minority party is constantly reminded of who pulls the reins in Lansing — the Democrats.

"They control even the most minute decisions. It's a reminder that they are in the position to make policy."

An example of this power structure was evident following an informal meeting between several other lawmakers who are contemplating specialized legislation. Kirksey's legislation would be directed at the status of Northville, a community that's presently located in two counties, Wayne and Oakland.

Because of assessment problems stemming from the dual residency, lawmakers are encouraging the city council to adopt a resolution allowing residents to vote for their county preference.

Still in preliminary stages, the issue could spur special legislation. But before Kirksey moved on the issue, he reminded his co-workers that party majority leader William Faust (D-Westland) and House Speaker Bobby Crim (D-Davison) should be consulted.

When a represenattive first arrives at the capitol, he or she "has no respect (among lawmakers). You have to gain it," he said.

"You don't lie and you don't mislead anyone. You don't try to pull anything on them."

According to Smith, those are his rules for working with other legislators.

And in some cases, "you have to give up something just to get it passed," he added in reference to the biases of committee chairpersons.

In one particular case, Smith said, legislation he originally wrote was rewritten and re-introduced by another lawmaker who had more clout in the House.

"IF I HAD citical legislation to go through in education (for example), I'd get someone else to pass it because of my record with assessments."

On this particular day in Lansing, a variety of committee meetings were held throughout state offices ranging from how to regulate mopeds to how to re-introduce worker's compensation this season.

Among the most pervasive topics of discussion running through different meetings was the interpretation of the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan Constitution.

Most assuredly, one will find any legislator say he or she is all for cutting spending. But in this case, the question involves where property taxes will be rollbacked — from their actual rates or their allowed rates.

Constituent problems occupy large share of Brown's time

Thomas H. Brown has been making himself comfortable in Lansing for the past nine years, but he still doesn't call it home.

Asked what part of his job as a state representative from Westland took up the largest part of his time, the fifth-term Democrat said, "I think it's not the legislature.

"It's addressing yourself to the problems of the constituents, to see that they're being dealt with properly by state departments. Of course, it's the most rewarding, too."

Brown's background in Westland-area politics is extensive. He is a former trustee, treasurer and supervisor of Nankin Township and a former mayor of Westland. He represents the 37th district, which includes Westland, Plymouth and Canton Township.

"I've been kicking around government for quite a few years," says Brown.

He is a member of house committees on agriculture, mental health, roads and bridges, and taxation, and is chairman of towns and counties. Included on that list are two of the three committees most prone to dealing with SEMTA — towns and counties and roads and bridges. Urban affairs is the third such committee.

BROWN IS DISAPPOINTED for a variety of reasons about much of SEMTA's relations with his district.

First, he thinks SEMTA is planning to spend too much time and money on the wrong things.

- "I think there has to be more proof of a need for a (Woodward Corridor) subway before we approve it."
- "If southeast Michigan was one transportation service or authority, rather than being split with D-DOT (Detroit Department of Transportation) and SEMTA, you'd get more (legislative) acceptance. I think people resent the division of services."
- "I think what we should do is develop our commuter trains, and then have a real good look at the needs — give the senior citizens and the handicapped and the people who work the consideration they deserve. The majority of people who work in factories move east and west, not north and south."

BROWN HAS GONE to bat for the Nankin Transit Commission (NTC) on several occasions in that group's continuing series of skirmishes with SEMTA to obtain more of the small, van-type buses it uses in a dial-a-ride program serving Garden City, Westland, Wayne, Inkster and Canton Township.

So far, however, Brown's efforts, which include personal meetings with SEMTA bureaucrats in charge of dispensing SEMTA funds to NTC, haven't met with the kind of success the NTC, at least, had hoped for. It still doesn't have all the buses it wants.

"That's the most successful dial-a-ride program in the state," said Brown. "They need more vehicles and their has to be some improvement. The SEMTA program — and I don't agree with it — is 'Yes, NTC has done a good job for the five communities. Some other communities haven't had the initiative, so they need to be helped out.

"I really don't think we said that when we passed the legislation. We have to keep pushing SEMTA to listen to the needs. NTC is very definitely going to have to continue to give good service."

Three of SEMTA's 15 board members are appointed by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners. Brown says, "We had hoped as legislators when we revised the (SEMTA) board that the out-county would have so many members on the board and they would be appointed by the commissioners. (But) sometimes we're in opposition to some of our own representatives on the board. I think they should give a little more thought to representatives working for us.

"That's what they're there for."

Rep. Roy Smith has earned a reputation in Lansing among fellow legislators as a tax reformer and an expert on tax assessments.

Smith terms politics special interest work

Rep. Roy Smith, R-Saline, came to Lansing after he worked in several levels of Michigan government — from a four-term stint as Ypsilanti Township supervisor to a seat on the Washtenaw County Board.

Then in 1966, he was elected to the legislature from Ypsilanti. His district includes the city of Plymouth and part of Plymouth Township.

A man with a soft Southern accent, Smith was born in Tennessee. He also worked as an assessor for a time, an experience he considers valuable.

In Michigan, but most notably Wayne County, he is known for his work in property assessments. Several months back he struck out at low assessments in Dearborn, bringing state-wide focus to inequities in property assessments from residential through commercial and industrial classes.

(In a letter dated Nov. 28, 1978, Smith directed Gov. Milliken to contact the State Taxation Commission about readjusting assessments within that city. "To not act implies that the state condones unfair, inequitable and illegal taxing practices by local units of government," he wrote.)

SMITH SAID, however, that the situation extends far beyond Dearborn and even state-wide.

About what's called "fair taxation," Smith said it's a "matter of opinion. Yet, everyone wants it."

Smith has introduced legislation that would equalize all classes so "one class would not hold up another." He said it's an issue that could require court enforcement if need be.

"I'm not out to raise anyone's taxes," he said. "But somebody is just not doing their job."

Along with most legislators today, Smith is also grappling with the intent and interpretation of the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment.

"Do we roll back from the authorized levy or from the actual levy?" he asked. "But Headlee is clear — it says from the authorized levy. They (original writers) say it wasn't that but something else."

Smith is also a strong proponent of education, a belief that's carried in his own family. He has three children who are college graduates.

"If you have a good home and good church, for the most part the kids should come out good," he said.

Coupling his concerns for property taxes and education, he has found a solution to equalizing both.

"OF COURSE I have a solution to that — you shift school operation from the homeowners and farmers to income tax."

A bill Smith has been working on for 13 years proposes to do just that. However, he admits it's not an area he expects the legislature to act on, although it was co-sponsored by 77 others.

Very simply, the premise is: "If you earn, you pay. If you don't, you don't. You should be able to live in your home without fear of losing it because of property taxes."

Amurcon denial

Monday's meeting on the grounds that the PUD agreement had been broken and the zoning was no longer proper.

BUT BECAUSE one planning commission member — Frank McMurray — was absent from the seven-member board, the motion died on a 3-3 vote with commissioners Robert Padget, Robert Shefferly and Bart Berg dissenting.

Three subsequent motions to deny the site plans, refer legal questions to attorneys and to refer the site plans to the planner, also failed on 3-3 votes. A motion to approve the site plans on the condition that the apartments cannot be used for low-income purposes failed on a 4-2 vote with commissioners Padget, Shefferly, Berg and Dan Richardson dissenting.

After a two-hour discussion on the project, Shefferly made an effort to break the impasse by reiterating Mrs. Bodenmiller's motion to deny the site plans on the grounds that the PUD agreement may have been violated.

The motion passed by a 6-1 vote with only Commissioner Berg dissenting. Berg issued a minority statement, maintaining that the planning commission lacks the authority to deny site plans for any reason that is not specifically associated with planning.

The vote brought the audience to its feet, and the meeting room echoed with the sound of applause.

Kim Wilkins of Amurcon attempted to assure residents before the final vote was taken that his firm plans to retain ownership of the proposed Pickwick complex and control the number of tenants who would be allowed in each apartment unit.

WILKINS MAINTAINED that a HUD requirement stipulates occupancy at two persons for each apartment bedroom. Residents had expressed concern over the number of children who would be living in the proposed complex.

Amurcon's site plans call for construction of 48 two-bedroom garden apartments, 96 two-bedroom townhouses and 24 three-bedroom townhouses. The apartments would range in area from 959 to 1,189 square feet.

Wilkins said rent would be "fair market price" for tenants who do not qualify for subsidies. Tenants who qualify would pay no more for rent than 25 percent of their gross family income, according to township planner Jim Kosteva.

The Amurcon representative said the federal mortgage guarantee his firm has received will allow the company to qualify for a low-interest loan.

"Amurcon has built luxury condominiums, single-family homes and low-income apartments," Wilkins told the crowd. "But at this time, a conventionally financed apartment is not feasible in our calculations."

But Pickwick residents, who expressed the concern that their property values will decline if the complex is built, were in no mood for appeasement.

"A rose by any other name smells the same," said Pickwick resident Mary Ellen Roth. "A HUD home by any other name is still a HUD home."

Yack led in all four precincts where the millage failed and Stetz placed second in three of the four.

One interesting part of the balloting for trustee is that the one candidate (Linda Garrett of Canton) who withdrew as a candidate — but whose name still appeared on the ballot — ran ahead of four other candidates. Garrett placed tenth with 354 votes.

The other finishers were: Stephen Foley of Cantowith 176 votes; Allen Smith of Plymouth, 13th with 122 votes; and Leroy Nelson, Sr. of Plymouth, with 92 votes.

In the Schoolcraft trustee race, Michael Burley of Canton — the only local candidate — earned a seat with a second-place finish. In Plymouth-Canton, Burley ran first in half of the precincts and second in three.

For the two-year term on the Schoolcraft board, Thomas Moore of nearby Northville placed first in all Plymouth-Canton precincts but ended up losing district-wide by 10 votes to incumbent Richard Hayward of Livonia.

Incumbent Nancie Blatt of Livonia easily won the other six-year position on the Schoolcraft board.

More candidates want trustee seat

Two more candidates have asked to be considered for the Canton Township Board of Trustees seat left vacant by the resignation of Trustee Lynn Goldsmith.

According to Supervisor Noel Culbert, the two persons who have made the most recent bid for the board are Robert Schaetzl and Richard Wolfe.

They are joined by five other individuals who have indicated a formal interest in the appointment.

Schaetzl and Wolfe have both been involved in the Canton political scene. Schaetzl ran for a trustee postition during the last primary, but lost.

Wolfe was appointed to fill a trustee position when Bob Griffin died in 1974. He filled out the term, but lost the election when he ran against Carl Parsell for the Canton treasurer in 1975.

Schaetzl could not be reached for comment about his request for the trustee appointment. According to questionnaires filled out when he ran during the primary, Schaetzl is active in the Michigan Civil Air Patrol and Mettetal Aviation Association.

He is a member of the Economic Development Corporation and the commercial and industiral committee of Canton.

According to a 1978 League of Women Voters questionnaire, Schaetzl said he would encourage and support a land use plan "that would be in concert with an effective growth control policy.

He has been a resident of Canton since 1976.

Wolfe said he decided to express an interest in the trustee seat when he found out that Mrs. Goldsmith (he backed her during her campaign) was resigning. "I feared the independents wouldn't have a voice when she left," he said.

Wolfe is chairman of the Canton, Van Buren and Sumpter Water and Sewer Disposal Authority, a group that issues revenue bonds in order to build sewers without assesment of the general public.

He is also director-treasurer of the economic development corporation and past chairman of the compensation commission. Wolfe is assistant fiscal advisor for Wayne County.

Wolfe said his main concerns are the passage of a master land use plan and agricultural land retention.

The other citizens who have asked to be appointed to the trustee position are Larry Bowerman, chairman of the township merit commission; Mary Dingeldey, executive secretary of the Canton Chamber of Commerce; Tom Stillings, president of the Pickwick Homeowners Association; Dianne Neihengen, president of the Erikkson School PTO; and Douglas Ritter, recently appointed to the Canton Library Board.

The township board has 45 days to appoint someone to take Mrs. Goldsmith's place, after which a special election must be held.

Mrs. Goldsmith's term officially expires in 1980. She resigned from the board when her husband, Jeffrey Goldsmith accepted a job as pastor of St. Stephen Presbyterian Church in Chatsworth, California. He was formerly pastor of Geneva United Presbyterian Church in Canton.

Festival planned

Since Canton Township was once known as the sweet corn capital of the world, the Chamber of Commerce has decided that nothing could be more appropriate than to dub its annual festival the "Canton Chicken — Sweet Corn Festival.

The festival, which is scheduled in conjunction with the township recreation department's softball playoffs, will be held Aug. 12 at Griffin Park.

In addition to events at the festival, several activities have been planned to kick off the day.

According to chamber representatives, a costume contest — in which participants will dress as some portion of a corn plant — has been planned. Judges will be culled from mayors and supervisors in surrounding communities.The male and female winners will become "sweet corn king and queen."

Prior to Aug. 12, Canton merchants will be displaying a jar of corn representing one that will be kept under lock and key at one of the local banks. People will be able to guess how many kernels of corn the official jar contains. There will be several prizes distributed among the winners. The contest will begin July 13, with a cut-off date set for Aug. 5.

There will also be an official poster marking the sweet corn festival. It will be selected from a group submitted by area nursery schools.

The festival will also feature a pinochle tournament and the Canton Senior's Kitchen Band.

Earthmover moved away

Canton Police plan to charge two adults and a juvenile with receiving and concealing stolen property after arresting the three for allegedly driving away a large earth mover.

A police officer picked up David Pope and Michael Powelson, both 17, of Westland, and an unidentified 16-year-old female about 3 a.m. last Sunday morning after noticing an earth mover trundling down Van Born Road.

According to police, the three stopped the earth mover and began to run when the officer gave chase.

Party gets broken up

It took Canton, Westland and State police plus Wayne County sheriff's deputies to break up a party Saturday night party that swelled to some 500 guests.

According to Canton police, no one was injured although incidents during the party at Ford Road and Lotz led to three arrests.

"It was just a party that got out of hand," said Lt. Larry Stewart.

"We went to break it up about 1:30 a.m. There were cars parked almost to I-275."

According to Stewart, the other police departments were called in because of the large number of people at the party in a plumbing company across from the Center Stage complex.

He said a Westland police car had been damaged and a Canton police officer was hit in the chest with a bottle.

Cantonite pulls upset

S'craft eyes layoffs after millage defeat

By TIM RICHARD

One Schoolcraft College trustee and two millage requests were defeated by voters Monday in an election that featured two cliffhangers that may not be decided until today's official canvass.

Preliminary results showed trustee Nancie Blatt re-elected to a six-year term with a 1,000 vote margin over her nearest rival. Michael W. Burley, a Northville school administrator who lives in Canton Township, won the second six-year term by a scant 101 votes over Livonia attorney Robert Ficano.

Trailing another 141 votes behind Ficano was Dr. Gerald Cox, a Detroit teacher who lives in Garden City, and who ends six years on the board.

Elected to a two-year term was incumbent (by appointment) Richard Hayward, a Livonia industrialist. His margin of victory over Thomas S. Moore of Northville was 10 votes out of more than 8,000 cast.

Because the Northville School District voted on paper ballots, which are subject to tabulating errors more than voting machines, a recount appeared inevitable.

LAYOFFS of some of the 160 full-time and 160 part-time instructors also appeared likely in the wake of voter defeat of Proposition 2, which asked for one-half mill for one year for major maintenance and equipment purchases.

With no special millage to finance $1 million in needs, the board of trustees may either ignore the maintenance and equipment needs, make the expenditures out of the operating budget and lay off some staff, or combine some spending cuts and layoffs.

Budget sessions are scheduled for every Wednesday this month, with a public hearing at 7 p.m. June 27.

The maintenance-equipment proposal got 42 percent approval, losing in Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton school districts and winning only in Northville.

ALSO DEFEATED was a half-mill for one year to complete financing of a Culinary Arts addition to the Waterman Campus Center. It received 42 percent approval districtwide, winning only in Northville.

Schoolcraft President C. Nelson Grote declined to reveal what he would recommend following the defeat. The state has appropriated some $813,000 and the college has $500,000 from an earlier bond issue toward the $2.3 million project.

Grote said the solution would not be as simple as paring off the $1 million the new millage would have brought in. Reason: The state funds are matching money for a specific plan. With Schoolcraft unable to put up its matching share, the college would have to renegotiate funding with the state as well as redesign the project.

Other alternatives are to ask voters to approve a $1 million bond issue and to return the state funds and forget about the project.

THE RACE between Burley and Ficano for the second long-term seat had partisan overtones, like many past Schoolcraft races.

Burley, though he has no history of partisan activity, was escorted around the district by three Republican legislators — State Sen. Robert Geake (a former Schoolcraft board chairman) of Northville, Rep. Jack Kirksey of Livonia (a fellow educator) and Rep. Robert Law of Livonia.

Ficano is an active member of the Democratic organization in Livonia and drew much support from party ranks. Ficano outpolled Burley in Livonia and Northville while Burley outran Ficano in Clarenceville, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton.

Cox apparently failed to mount a major campaign offensive compared to the younger newcomers, though he led in his home of Garden City.

The new board, which takes office early in July, will have five members from Livonia (Mrs. Blatt, Hayward, Harry Greenleaf, Rosina Raymond and Leonard Wozniak), two from Plymouth-Canton (Burley and Mark McQuesten), and none from Northville, Clarenceville and Garden City.

With Chairman Paul Kadish retiring and the board being reduced from eight members to seven, it will also have a lineup of four persons with Republican leanings and three with Democratic. Likely choice for chairman: Greenleaf.

MOORE'S STRONG showing surprised both him and Hayward, who was making his third try in the last three elections for the board.

Moore, a Ford Motor Co. engineer who last week earned a master's degree in business from Michigan State University, was making his first bid for elective office. He had applied for the appointment which went to Hayward 10 months ago. He said he spent only $220 on the race, relying on help from friends.

Hayward, if the canvass shows him to be the winner, will finish two years in the term to which former Livonian Ron Cowden was elected. Cowden left to become principal of Manistee (Mich.) High School.

Few issues were raised in the campaign. Ficano questioned the board's wisdom in placing the culinary arts millage on the ballot but later swung around to support it.

THE MILLAGE defeats were the fifth since 1971 for Schoolcraft. Significantly, they were considered rock-bottom requests by the board since they were for only a one-year period and involved only one new project.

The historical pattern is that, when a K-12 district has a money request on the ballot, voters will give stronger support to it than to a community college millage. In Monday's elections, Garden City and Plymouth had money issues on the ballot, but Clarenceville, Livonia and Northville did not.

Another significant factor was that the Plymouth-Canton district fielded 5,600 Schoolcraft votes, or 88 percent of Livonia's 6,300. In a March special election, Plymouth-Canton fielded only 24 percent as many votes as Livonia.

In square miles, Plymouth-Canton is potentially the largest of the five districts. Livonia has dominated board elections since court ordered "one person, one vote" reapportionment in 1971.

Hendry named to conference

John Hendry of Plymouth has been appointed a delegate to the White House Conference on Small Business to be held in January 1980 in Washington, D.C.

Hendry is president of Hendry Convalescent Center in Plymouth which he has led for the past 18 years. Before that he operated a tool and die business for 30 years.

The appointment was announced this week by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

In preparation for the White House Conference, Hendry attended the preliminary regional conference today at the Detroit Plaza Hotel.

"John Hendry has been a leading small businessman for most of his life and a strong community leader," Pursell observed. "I have the highest respect for him as an innovative businessman and a capable spokesman for our area and its many small businesses."

The thrust of the conference is to evaluate the position of small business in the U.S. and recommend changes in government policy to improve the climate for small business in the future.

Delegates to the national conference will be chosen at regional conferences in all 50 states. In addition, each member of Congress and each governor has been asked to nominate one delegate. Hendry is Pursell's nomination.

At the national conference next January, delegates will consider options and recommend reforms in federal laws and regul ations as well as private sector practices and submit their recommendations to President Carter.

Carrier also good shot

Army Reserve Spec. 5 Joseph P. Petrovich of Livonia and a Plymouth mail carrier in civilian life, has earned a place on the Fifth U.S. Army's 1979 rifle team.

The part-time soldier is an intelligence analyst with the 301st Military Police Prisoner of War Camp (U.S. Army Reserve) which is headquartered on Schoolcraft Road in Livonia.

He earned his berth on the team by firing high scores at the U.S. Army Forces Command Central Region Rifle, Pistol and Machinegun championship matches this spring at Ft. Riley, Kan.

As a Fifth Army team member, he competed in late May in the U.S. Army championship matches at Ft. Benning, Ga.

He graduated from Livonia Bentley High School in 1968, and then studied for a 1½ years at Schoolcraft College. He is a member of Branch 2184, National Association of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO.

In 1970 Petrovich joined the Navy and served four years as a ship's diver and navigation specialist on diesel attack submarines out of New London, Conn. He later served a year in the Navy Reserve before joining the 301st in Livonia in 1977.

He says he really got interested in competitive shooting when he participated in the 300th MP Command rifle matches in 1977. Previously, he had fired with a junior shooting team sponsored by Livonia Sportman's Club while he was in school.

Sewer bid awarded

Ministrelli Construction Co. spokesmen's pleas to have their bid withdrawn fell on deaf ears Friday as the Wayne County Board of Public Works awarded a $1.2 million sewer contract to the Novi firm.

Ministrelli had submitted the low bid on the estimated $2.8 million construction of nearly six miles of sewers in Plymouth Township. But the firm had asked to have its bid withdrawn, saying a computational error was responsible for the bid.

That allegation was not proved by engineers who went over Ministrelli's worksheets, and the DPW board debated for less than an hour Friday morning before awarding Ministrelli the contract.

The construction firm has 10 days to produce a performance bond for the contract, after which time its $85,000 bid bond would be forfeited. The firm did not say whether they would honor the bid, forfeit the bond, or take legal action.

If the company proceeds with the job, it will be up to Plymouth Township officials to determine how to allocate funds derived from selling $2.8 million worth of bonds.

According to Supervisor Tom Notebaert, the township may elect to pay off the bonds earlier, or may go to the Municipal Finance Commission to ask that the money be used for additional sewer extensions.

Women on the march

By Sam Hudson

Women marching in support of Prohibition in 1916 demonstrate on S. Main across from the site now occupied by The Observer news offices at 461 S. Main.

Since my article about the Women's Christian Temperance Union appeared a few weeks ago, a reader has made available to me a photograph taken in Plymouth in August, 1916.

It shows a large group of local women who marched on "Gala Day" to demonstrate their support of a proposal to amend the state constitution to prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages in Michigan. It also shows what South Main Street, near the southwest corner of Ann Arbor Trail, looked like 63 years ago.

At the far left in the photo is Mrs. Phoebe Patterson, a leader of the Plymouth chapter of the WCTU for several decades. In 1919, when she became the first woman justice of the peace in the state of Michigan, Mrs. Patterson was not the judge to be brought before if you like to tipple.

She was especially severe with inebriated hoboes often picked up at "tramp hollow," just north of the railroad tracks between Sheldon road and the railroad roundhouse. Her practice of meting out 30-day sentences to drunkards earned her the nickname of "Thirty-day Phoebe."

Ruth Huston (Whipple) was 20 at the time this photo was taken. I have been unable to spot her in the picture, but my guess is that if she was in town at the time, she was among the marchers.

One of the banners which the women carried declared, "We Want Michigan Dry." Another reads, "First Laid Off is the Man Who Drinks." The one with the U.S. flag says, "Rally For our Country's Defense — Against the Liquor Traffic."

The white shoulder banners which the women wore urged onlookers to "Vote yes. Make it State-Wide, November 7." It was on Nov. 7, 1916, that Michigan voters approved a state prohibition amendment by a substantial majority. Detroit and other large cities voted against the bill, but there were enough "dry" votes, especially in rural areas, to pass the legislation.

MICHIGAN BECAME dry on May 1, 1918, more than a year before the nation adopted prohibition. Prior to 1916, 45 of Michigan's 83 counties had voted themselves dry under the local option law of 1889.

Professor F. Clever Bald, in his book Michigan in Four Centuries comments on the situation that motivated the "dries:"

"The war certainly helped speed the process of adopting prohibition in Michigan, in other states, and in the nation as well; but it was the culmination of a long campaign and the result largely of the lawless acts of saloonkeepers, brewers, and distillers. During the years immediately preceding prohibition, newspapers were filled with stories about the control of local government by the liquor interests and their immunity to the ordinary processes of the law."

One long-time resident of Plymouth recalls that prior to prohibition, "Farmers would come into town to get loaded. Their horses would take them home. During prohibition, people took to home brew, kummel, and cherry or dandelion wine."

The photograph of the ladies marching was taken on S. Main Street in front of what is now the Paul Wiedman municipal parking lot, adjacent to the Mayflower Hotel. The photographer apparently stood on Maple Street which then came through to Main.

AUTOMOBILES HAD come to Plymouth by that time, but Main Street at that section was still a dirt road. It was the first street to be paved in Plymouth (in 1908), but then only from Ann Arbor Trail to Mill Street.

The hotel, which was not opened until November, 1927, now stands on the spot where the trees are at the right of the picture. Prior to 1910, the home of Judge and Mrs. John Fuller had stood on the site, but it burned that year. The lot stood vacant for many years. Czar Penney, whose livery stable was adjacent to it, used the field as a cow pasture.

Penney's livery stable is the dark building at the right. His house is next to it. Penney started in business here in 1892. An illustrated 40-page pamphlet about businesses in Plymouth, published in 1898, had this to say about Mr. Penney:

"This young gentleman has been in business here for the past six years and is located on South Main Street. His stable is a large building of 30-by-60 feet and well fitted up with everything necessary to comprise a first-class livery stable. He has a number of nice rigs and good horses. This gentleman has always enjoyed a very good business and is considered to be one of Plymouth's most popular young businessmen. He also makes a specialty of teaming and has a first-class team for this purpose. Ring up No. 9, new state telephone."

An Oriental odyssey: Voyage to Hong Kong

By GLORIA HOPFNER
Special writer

(Gloria Hopfner of Plymouth recently travelled to Hong Kong and to the Republic of China and relates her experiences and observations in this special series for readers of the Observer)

Hong Kong is half a world away — roughly 18 hours by jet — and a destination which most travelers never expect to reach.

I, however, was a visitor there last summer and will attempt to share the experience here in four condensed installments.

The first thing I learned is the necessity of checking in with the international airline at least two hours before scheduled departure because not all passengers from every country adhere to traditional American standards of operation.

This dictum was made clear when I reached San Francisco International Airport just one hour before my plane was due to take off. I had skipped breakfast, planning to check-in first, and then have a quick sandwich before boarding, but it was not to be.

I was about eighth in line when a Philippine family of six adults reached the counter with one enormous suitcase — the largest I ever saw. In addition they carried several large grocery bags filled with more belongings. The clerk, looking askance at that assortment, decreed after checking his printed regulations, that there would be a baggage surcharge assessed, and they would have to pay at once.

A lengthy and heated argument ensued when the family members took vigorous exception to paying a penalty. With so many voices raised against him, the clerk finally relented, conceding that there would be no surcharge, provided that they could manage to crowd all the contents of the paper bags into that voluminous suitcase.

While the impasse ground on, and all us standees fumed impatiently, eying our watches in exasperation, the family opened their outsize suitcase right there on the floor before the counter, thereby blocking our access, and proceeded to cram the bags of clothing inside by the fistful. It took four of their number sitting on the lid, heaving and shoving, while grandmother issued orders, to press the groaning hinge into position, so that the top could be forced closed at last.

The entire episode absorbed a good 45 minutes and quite consumed my projected lunch time, so that when I finally reached the counter for a seat assignment, there was scarcely time to race to my plane.

UNDERGOING INSPECTION by security personnel at Narita International Airport in Tokyo, Japan provided a strange introduction to the Orient for me.

Because of all the terrorist activity there since the new airport was opened, secuity is exceptionally tight and never perfunctory. Stepping through the sensor arch, I was met by a pleasant, white-gloved female guard, who asked what sounded like, "May I feel your belly"

I nodded assent, assuming that it was mandatory, and was then given a courteous and careful pat-down.

Next, I faced another guard, a male this time, who eyed my hand luggage and inquired as to whether I was carrying any knives or scissors. I confessed to a pair of cuticle scissors, and aware that X-ray had probably already revealed another suspicious-looking implement, I dug out and handed over for inspection a pair of tweezers that look and operate like scissors. These were so intriguing to him that he showed them all around to his co-workers.

Then I remembered my embroidery scissors and produced them from the bottom of my vanity case, explaining in answer to his question, that I expected to be away for several weeks, and my hair would certainly require trimming. Satisfied with this, he waved me on, and I was transported through the terminal toward my gate on a horizontal people-mover, much like a flattened escalator.

I had lucked out on the long flight from San Francisco when I'd had four seats all to myself. Pushing the armrests out of the way allowed me to stretch out and snooze most of the trip, a strategy employed in the hope of avoiding jet-lag which was happily successful. It's a lengthy trip, and one would hate to arrive already zonked.

HONG KONG is the city of lights.

The overriding impression one has in approaching Kai Tak Airport at night is that every single light in Hong Kong (and there must be millions of them) is burning. It's truly a thrilling sight. Evidently no power shortage there.

Hong Kong is built up and down, mostly up — the mountainsides with an enormous number of modern highrise apartments and office buildings. Hong Kong, a British Crown Colony on the edge of the Chinese mainland, is a modern, westernized city with a population of approximately 4½ million.

This great population jammed into a small area causes a constant din which makes the city probably the noisiest on earth. It's a roaring sound comprised of traffic sounds and people, augmented by a persistently clamorous insect population. The background noise does not constitute a continual assault on the ears, however, because the heat and humidity make air-conditioning a necessity everwhere, so that cars and houses remain closed with the air-conditioning running.

I was unaware of the hubbub until after dinner when we sat out on the apartment balcony to view the hills of Kowloon across the bay augmented by the myriad lights, which constitute what has to be the most spectacular view in the world. Even at 3 a.m. all those lights were still ablaze, making a truly breathtaking sight.

I found the roar of Hong Kong to be not at all offensive, but merely intriguing.

All that heat and humidity give rise to a curious phenomenon. Whenever I would alight from an air-conditioned car, my eyeglasses would instantly fog up with a heavy condensation, so that vision was impossible. It's the same thing that we experience here at home in reverse — coming into a warm house in wintertime, but in summer.

Anyone planning to do construction anywhere on the island must have a permit to dig, and the government tells him where to dump what he digs. As a result many attractive highrise buildings have been added where once there was only water. The landscape is studded with an unbelievable number of these buildings, despite the dearth of flat land upon which to build.

The city is surprisingly clean for one with such a large population. There are many diligent streetsweepers on the payroll, along with a very enthusiastic anti-litter campaign, which makes littering a serious offense. Judges levy stiff penalties against all offenders, and the names and sentences imposed are published in the newspapers.

It's still possible to ride in a rickshaw in Hong Kong, although the government is trying to phase out the operation as the relic of another age, and no new licenses are being issued.

.....I found it distasteful to see men being used as beasts of burden, but they are highly aggressive in soliciting passengers and a great curiosity to the tourists, who invariably wish to photograph them or be photographed sitting in the seat, with the rickshawman in position between the poles. The men are quite willing to oblige, provided that the tourist agrees to hire a ride. Otherwise the men are quick to hide their faces when tight-fisted tourists try to sneak a "freebie."

Streets and buildings are named in honor of British royalty. There are many double-decker buses from London, and traffic moves to the left. Incidentally, I wouldn't drive in Hong Kong for all the tea in China — rush hour is absolutely terrifying.

An apartment is called a "flat," an elevator is a "lift," a vacation is a "holiday," a line-up of persons is a "queue," a truck is a "lorry" and on a car the hood is a "fender." A fender is a "wing," trunk is a "boot," to drive is to "motor," and an overpass is a "flyover."

I was totally mystified when a helpful stranger, in offering directions to a particular building said, "It's straight ahead, and when you get to the flyover you'll be able to see it."

Residents hear of Hines Park policing efforts

Law enforcement in Hines Park drew about 40 residents to a townhall-type meeting in Lake Pointe subdivision in Plymouth Township recently. .....The meeting was hosted by State Reps. Roy Smith (R-Saline), whose district includes the city of Plymouth and part of Plymouth Township, Rep. Robert Law (R-Livonia), Gerald Law, Plymouth Township trustee, and Flossie Tonda of the Plymouth-Canton School Board.

The town hall meeting, held in Farrand Elementary, was the first in a series to be sponsored by Law and Smith along with Rep. Tom Brown (D-Westland) who represents Canton and part of Plymouth Township.

ROBERT LAW told those gathered that law enforcement officials are cracking down on crime in Hines Park.

"Judges are getting tough on persons violating the park's rules," said Law, the prime sponsor of several bills designed to curb crime and drug abuse in Hines Park.

"There are no more slaps on the wrist. The judges now have the tools to deal with park violators and most observers agree that there's only one way to stop crime and destruction in the park and that's by getting tough."

Law added that five additional police cars now are patrolling the 17-mile park, which stretches between western Wayne County and eastern Washtenaw County, to help check illegal activities in the park.

Smith and Law have been instrumental in the increase of state funding for the county sheriffs to utilize more manpower in major county parks around the state.

Law also revealed at the meeting that a Wayne County Sheriff's "mini-station" will be opened this week at Newburgh Road and Hines Drive.

Sheriff William Lucas will open the facility and state funding for capital improvements will be pursued by area legislators.

OTHER MAJOR issues discussed at last Thursday night's meeting included the financing of schools — particularly those with increasing enrollments — implementation of the tax limitation amendment approved by voters in November, and property tax relief.

"I believe the meeting was successful and it reaffirmed my belief that people are very concerned about their taxes," said Smith, an ardent supporter of changes in the present tax structure.

"I'm convinced that people want a change in their taxes and I'm determined to help bring about a change in that structure."

Smith is the sponsor of four bills and three house joint resolutions currently being studied in the legislature to restructure the state's current tax program.

Smith also is author of a bill to implement the "rollback" provision of the Headlee tax limitation amendment. Smith's "rollback" measure would require local units of government to reduce their maximum authorized millage if the state equalized value (SEV) in their jurisdiction is greater than the average U.S. Consumer Price Index.

There has been talk recently about Plymouth Township's status changing from a general law township to a charter township and Law's brother, Gerald, was questioned about the ramifications of the proposed change.

The trustee noted that charter township boards are given the power to levy up to five mills without a vote and township electors can vote for an additional five mills. Law explained that general law townships — Plymouth Township's current status — are limited to one mill in both instances.

"With the passage of the Headlee Amendment I strongly feel that a township could not raise taxes from a one mill limit imposed on general townships without a vote of the people," said trustee Law.

He added that he plans to conduct a "needs" study of all township residents.

"Before the township spends a lot of time and money, it should professionally study what the people want, and I feel this study will serve those needs most efficiently."

MRS. TONDA responded to questions concerning the financing of schools with increasing enrollments, a problem now being faced by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools — the state's fastest-growing district.

She explained that increased financial pressure has forced the school board to find innovative methods of saving money while maintaining a high level of education in the district.

"Rep. Smith and I were pleased with the turnout we had Thursday night and we plan to extend the concept of the town hall meeting to different areas of western Wayne County and eastern Washtenaw County throughout the year," said Law.

He added that the response was "outstanding" and pointed out that the legislators have been invited back to Farrand later in the year.

Law, Smith, Brown and Rep. Jack Kirksey (R-Northville) sponsor a weekly feature in the Observer entitled "Your Ideas" in which a question of the week is featured and a local phone number provided for residents to call and talk directly with the state legislators.

editorial opinion

Many want trustee seat — and that's a good sign

Canton Township Board trustees are going to have a variety of candidates to choose from when they decide who should fill the seat left vacant by Trustee Lynn Goldsmith's resignation.

The people who have officially indicated they would like to be appointed trustee for the remainder of Mrs. Goldsmith's term include Mary Dingeldey, Larry Bowerman, Doug Ritter, Tom Stillings, Robert Padget, Dianne Nelhengen, Robert Schaetzl and Richard Wolfe.

Other candidates may surface before an appointment is made. Those who have already offered their services display diverse political philosophies, pet issues, educational background and motivation.

Most of them have been active in the community. Padget is head of the township planning commission; Ritter was active in the Canton library campaign and was appointed to the first library board; Mrs. Dingeldey is executive secretary of the Canton Chamber of Commerce and works closely with the business community; Bowerman is head of the township merit commission; Stillings is leading the Pickwick Homeowners Association on a drive against a low-income housing site near the subdivision; Mrs. Neihengen is president of the Erikkson School PTO; and both Wolfe and Schaetzl served on the Canton Economic Development Corporation.

Choosing from among these candidates, or from other yet-to-be-named prospects, is going to be a tough job — and that's good.

It is encouraging to see so many people show an interest in local political office, just as it was encouraging to see more than a dozen people put their time where their mouth is by running for the Plymouth-Canton School Board.

Although some of the candidates for Mrs. Goldsmith's elected office have been in the political arena before, others are newcomers to the field.

Perhaps some felt that the ugliness of mudslinging and smearing that goes with every Canton election is too much to go through. An appointment is one way around that kind of misery.

Perhaps other candidates, especially those who have a stake in one of the major issues facing the township, feel a board appointment is the best way to make sure their pet issue is resolved to their satisfaction. Two of the major issues — low-income housing, and business people's rights — have served as the main springboards flinging some of the candidates into the public eye.

It's impossible to predict how some of these "one-issue" candidates would handle the myriad other items that will come before the board during the course of a year once their own special concern is resolved.

It's impossible to know how well these candidates will interact with the rest of the board, especially since many of them do not seem to share the same ideas about many of the big issues.

That makes for a healthy variety of opinions, but it can also create such dissension on the board that little can be decided.

These are all considerations the board must take into account when the members choose a replacement for Mrs. Goldsmith. If they act wisely, the new trustee will be neither a rubber-stamper nor a malcontent, but rather a conscientious, effective addition to our government.

Airlines make flight exciting

After a lengthy strike, United Airlines decided it had to do something clever to get airline passengers back in the habit of using its flights. Its competitors had been moving in during the strike.

United came up with this gimmick: Anyone who flew on one of its flights up to Sunday, June 17, would get a half-off coupon on any United flight from July to Dec. 15.

The program was not half off on the next flight to the same destination but half off on any United flight in the continental United States.

United's closest competitor, American Airlines, felt it couldn't stand by and lose a substantial amount of business in early June, so it matched the offer.

IT DIDN'T TAKE the public long to realize that one could take a very short, cheap flight now and save a lot of money on a longer flight this summer or fall.

It is said that travel agents on the West Coast were buying up all the flights between San Francisco and Los Angeles and not even taking the flights just to get the coupons.

The coupons are transferable so the travel people could use them for their best clients.

The airlines got smarter and started giving out the coupons on board the actual flights, but it still didn't stop the craze.

Last week a group of senior citizens from Michigan hired a bus and went to Tri-City Airport in Saginaw. They all boarded a United flight to Flint and had the bus pick them up there, all getting coupons for one of United's shortest flights.

I CAN JUST IMAGINE the poor reservations people at United and American when the short flights are filled up and they try to transfer the passenger to a flight on another airline.

The passenger probably says something like, "North Central gives only beer nuts, not coupons, so I'll stay home."

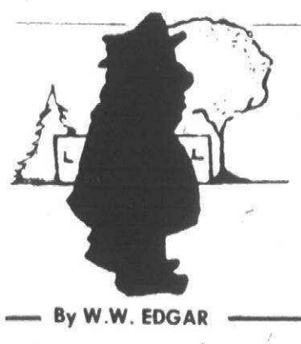
The couponing has caused some problems for business flyers. It is crowding planes and raises the question: If the company pays the fare, does the company get the coupon? Most companies say yes.

Couponing has done the job of filling up seats on airlines.

MY WIFE AND I are headed east this weekend for a college reunion. We thought we might drive and spend some time in New England.

After figuring it out, we found it would be cheaper to fly and rent a car than to drive the entire distance, considering the value of the four coupons we would pick up.

The airlines involved in couponing will pay the price this summer and fall when their planes are filled up with half-farers, but it certainly helped United get back in business and has brought an excitement to air travel.



The Stroller

Lessons from Dad

By W.W. EDGAR

Some of the best lessons a fellow learns as he travels along life's highway were not taught in the classrooms of public schools. The Stroller becomes more and more convinced of this each year as Father's Day rolls around, for it was his dad who instilled in him the lessons that have helped him in the business world and even in his everyday life.

Dad was not a great scholar so far as book learning is concerned. He was a sickly, fragile man who had to use his native intelligence to get along. And he had a most peculiar way of passing some of his knowledge on to others.

With him there were no such things as study periods when he would take you aside and explain things or set up problems on paper. He would make you learn the hard way.

TOO SICKLY to work in a factory, he set up a small lunch room and it was there that he taught The Stroller some of the best lessons he ever has learned.

There was the evening when The Stroller was taught his first lesson in business. He was left alone— or so he thought— to take care of the lunchroom while his father went home for dinner.

In walked a customer who asked for a package of cigarettes. He wanted the small package of Piedmonts that sold for a nickel. Once he had the cigarettes, he attempted to put them in his pocket only to learn that he already had a package.

"Will you take the cigarettes back and give me a piece of pie instead?" he asked.

His wish was granted. But when he finished eating the pie, he started for the door. Quickly The Stroller called to him that he hadn't paid for the pie.

"I gave you the cigarettes for the pie," he shot back.

"But you haven't paid for the cigarettes." To which the customer retorted, "Why should I? You have them back on the shelf."

What a quandry. The young Stroller didn't know what to do until at that precise moment his father walked in the door with a broad grin. The entire scheme had been worked out just to see what the Stroller would do in a case such as that.

ANOTHER TIME they set up another scheme. A chap walked in for a bowl of soup. After taking a few spoonfuls he asked, "Could I have some more crackers? I have too much broth."

He was obliged and a few moments later he asked for more broth because he had used too many crackers. He was obliged again and repeated the trick three times before The Stroller's father walked in with a smile and asked, "What are you doing? Giving all that soup and crackers away for the price of the first one?" Then the so-called 'customers' admitted it was all a joke.

In those days — before radio and television — we used to get the major league baseball scores over the phone and then post them on the bulletin board inside as a lure to get customers who walked downtown for an evening to get results — and then eat a piece of pie.

One evening, after getting the scores, The Stroller placed the bulletin board out on the sidewalk. Quick as a flash, his father raced out, grabbed the sign, and said, "We pay good money to get these scores. We shouldn't give away. Put them inside so they'll order a piece of pie or a glass of milk. At least they'll buy something."

This was a lesson he never forgot.

THE BIG LESSON, though, came the year The Stroller's father allowed him to go to the County Fair alone. Of course, he had a friend to watch that he didn't get lost or into trouble.

After a fine day, The Stroller arrived home, tired but happy.

As he emotionally told of the great time he had all day, The Stroller's Father asked, "What did you bring home for your sisters?"

What a shock. He hadn't thought of them. Then his father very seriously said, "I didn't think we were raising a boy as selfish as you."

From that day on The Stroller never made a trip that he didn't bring something home for his sisters — and later his wife.

Hardly had the State Senate voted a bill to implement the Headlee tax limitation amendment than Dick Headlee himself issued a statement deploring part of the action.

The statement came out on blue paper from McMaster and Associates, the political public relations firm which Headlee's Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation had emplyed in 1978 to sell voters their brand of wisdom.

It means, for one thing, that the proponents are monitoring legislative performance in implementing their political baby. For another, it means that either Headlee himself, or Taxpayers United, or both are to be construed as a going concern, to be heard from in a future election.

Very interesting — though not surprising, since Headlee's name had been bouncing around Republican political circles for a long time. As president of an insurance company in Farmington Hills and a trustee of Oakland University, Headlee has twice as much going for him as George Romney, once president of American Motors, had when he entered the political arena.

WHAT HEADLEE was complaining about was how the senate had implemented the constitutional amendment that bears his name.

The senate bill had to do with rolling back local property taxes when the tax base (assessments) rises faster than the general rate of inflation.

The problem was which tax rate do you roll back — the rate authorized in home rule city's charter, which may be as high as 20 mills, or the actual rate levied last year, which may be somewhat less?

The senate said we'll roll back from the authorized (higher) rate. Headlee said no, we should roll back from the most recently levied rate.

There's no question in my mind Headlee was right — legally. Politically and morally, it's another matter. If city home rule is to mean anything, the state has no business gumming up city charters by rolling back from the most recently levied rate.

Voters in Mancelona or Pokagon Township have no business telling city commissions in Plymouth or Birmingham to roll back their local tax rates with a state constitutional amendment.

ANOTHER PORTION of the Headlee legacy is being enacted in Lansing, where the Department of Natural Resources is recommending new hunting and fishing license fees. Such fees are non-tax revenues. State government, local government and colleges are relying on them more and more now that "tax limitation" is with us.

Trappers, not a particularly large or popular group, would find their license fee hiked 260 percent. The small game hunter would pay about 37 percent more.

The resident angler's fee would rise 30 percent; the non-resident, 50 percent.

What's happening is that hunters and fishermen, though numerous, are a minority. They are going to get stuck and they know it. So DNR is sticking it to the least powerful groups.

The same kind of thing just happened with college tuitions. Statewide, tuitions and fees are going up 15-20 percent. Though numerous, college students are a minority of the population.

It's precisely what we predicted would happen if voters were conned into adopting the Headlee amendment. Government can't take on the majority with a tax increase, but it can put the screws to one minority after another with fees increases.

FOOTNOTE: "Parking Fees to Soar To Pay for New Arena," said the headline in Monday's Free Press, and the story added: "Parking rates at city lots, garages and meters will increase by 40 percent to 400 percent over the next six years."

She earns spurs as prototype for type

If ever there is a search for the prototype of a perfect human slob, I have a candidate.

She lives in the suburbs, is in her 70s and carries about 60 pounds of surplus flab. She has a raucous voice and talks constantly.

This person helped to ruin what started to be a perfectly grand United Flight 249 to Denver on a recent Sunday morning.

It departed Detroit Metro under truly friendly skies. Friendly, that is, until her fellow passenger became aware of her voice as it carried through much of the 747's cabin .

FIRST SHE COMPLAINED about her seat.

"Why did you deliberately put me in this small seat?" she demanded of the stewardess.

"I've gotten along fine, up until this flight," she grumbled, wedging her ample behind into the middle seat, oozing slightly to the right and left.

I could sense an uneasiness starting to settle in among passengers seated in rows near her. Once the plane was airborne, the feeling spread. Row after row of passengers was becoming conscious of this unpleasant person.

WE ALL CLEARLY HEARD how a detour on Southfield Expressway had delayed her and her husband. We learned that United did not have a wheelchair at curbside awaiting her "and we called to tell them I was coming."

She was going to visit her daughter in Denver. (Her husband had bid her goodbye at Metro, and I'll bet he was one happy fella.) She couldn't wait to get off this rotten plane. It was the worst ride she had ever had.

Lunch was served. Of course, she didn't like it. But apparently that didn't keep her from eating it all.

The woman had a cane. From her front-row seat in tourist she kept using it to flip back the curtain that separated the rear cabin from first class.

THERE WERE NO PASSENGERS up front, and she eyed the empty seats.

Suddenly she yelled that the meal had made her ill and to "get this damn tray off of me."

As the stewardess rushed to her aid, the woman pushed herself to a standing position and motioned that she needed first aid.

She sort of fell and shoved her way into the first-class cabin.

I began to feel a little pang of sorrow for her. But that was short-lived. The stewardess was escorting her back to her seat. Obviously the flight attendant knew something that we didn't. The woman was not only loud. She was a con artist.

"Why can't I sit there?" she was demanding. "There isn't anyone in those seats and I'm not feeling well."

She was back among us and she didn't like it one bit.

TURNING TO AN ELDERLY MAN in the window seat of her row, she mouthed, "The problem is that people are afraid to complain. Well, I'm not afraid to complain."

A while later she visited the lavatory.

"There isn't a mirror in the rest room," she told the stewardess.

By then, even this cool professional had enough. She answered evenly, "Yes there is."

Old gabby bellowed for the world to hear, "Well, then, you go find it."

BUT THE WORST was to come.

As the 747 began its descent for Denver, a voice came over the intercom telling passengers to "put your seat in the upright position, fasten your seat belts, and place all carry-on luggage under the seat in front of you."

There was no seat in front of Mrs. Raucous. A bag was at her feet. When the stewardess started to stow it in an a space between cabins, the woman yelled. The flight attendant ignored the protest.

Next she grabbed the cane, and the old bat started to hand wrestle the stewardess for it, pulling herself up at the same time.

"You'll have to sit down and fasten your belt, ma'am."

"Give me my cane, I can't manage without it."

"We can't land unless everyone is seated. It's FAA regulations. The captain will have to come back."

"I don't care if he does come back. I'm not afraid of him."

WITH THAT, ANOTHER ATTENDANT joined the first and together they forced the fat lady into her seat. They attempted to buckle the belt around her ample waist.

She grabbed the belt and growled, "I can manage myself."

As the plane taxied to the gate, the stewardess handed the cane to the lady, who asked, "How much is that going to cost me?"

"Nothing," came the measured reply.

"That's just grand. And I want you to know I'll never fly United again."

"That's just fine with us, ma'am."

The rest of us wanted to cheer. But we were too busy scrambling out of the plane and away from the fat lady.

As I walked into the terminal, I couldn't help but feel sorry for at least two people in Denver — a certain daughter and her unfortunate husband.

How to care for partial denture

Dr. Joseph DeFrancesco

It is held in the mouth by attachment that grip the natural teeth adjacent to the space left by the missing teeth. These attachments are called clasps.

A partial denture should not be worn at night unless the dentists advises you to do so for a special reason.

YOU NEED TO CLEAN partial dentures after each meal and give special attention to cleaning the inside of the clasps. Food trapped under these clasps can be harmful to the natural teeth.

A partial denture should not be left out of the mouth for any extended period. Teeth remaining in the jaw can shift their position within a few days, ruining the fit and necessitating remaking of the denture.

The reason is that the structures in the mouth are living and are subject to change.

It is important to have a dentist conduct a periodic examination of the mouth and the dentures to make sure trouble is not developing.

CERTAIN ADJUSTMENTS may have to be made. Many times the bone under a complete denture resorbs.

When this happens, the denture may loosen, but its fit may be improved by "relining" or "rebasing." This process consists of adding denture material on the surface that contacts the gums, thereby filling in for the lost bone and readapting the dentures' fit.

The denture itself is used as the tray for taking an impression of the jaw ridge. The areas of change in the ridge contour are recorded in the plastic impression material that adheres to the jaw side of the denture when it is removed from the mouth.

The amount and location of the additional denture material needed to refit the denture are determined in this way.

Relining is done only to improve the fit. It does not help if changes have occurred in the biting or chewing relationships of the dentures.

The writer is a retired suburban dentist. Questions of general interest may be sent to Dr. DeFrancesco in care of this newspaper.

ARTHRITIC PAIN RELIEVED

Arthritis Drug No 'cure'

The news media has heralded the drug sulindac, a 'cure' for arthritis. The drug manufacturer, Merck Sharp and Dohne, has issued a new statement clarifying the original announcement. It seems that studies have shown that sulindac is "at least as good as aspirin" in relieving pain with fewer bad side effects. Of course the public has seldom been told of the dangerous side effects of aspirin.

Americans spend $1.2 billion a year on arthritis drugs and much of this would be unnecessary if better living habits and alternative health care methods were implemented.

After suffering through years of disabling arthritis pain, we were fortunate to have chiropractic care recommended by a friend. She had found relief after only a few adjustments. We wondered if we too might get relief and decided it would be worth trying. Dr. Grassam was very patient and thorough with us. After three adjustments, we both felt much better. I can be on my feet longer and sleep on my sides for the first time in 3 years. The adjustments also helped lessen the discomfort of my husband's Hiatil Hernia and eased both of our sinus problems considerably.
Chiropractic is a new way of life for us - why not try it yourself?

OSTEOARTHRITIS (DEGENERATIVE DISEASE)

Arthritic Conditions

More than half of all adults over age 35 in the U.S. suffer from some form of arthritis, according to the Department of Health Education and Welfare. Disability from arthritic conditions cost the national economy more than $2 billion yearly in lost wages and taxes.

Arthritis is one of the oldest of man's diseases. The most frequent symptom associated with it is restriction of movement often accompanied by pain and swelling. In the spine, arthritis may cause pressure on delicate nerves producing symptoms which mimic diseases of the internal organs. For example, a stomach ulcer may be suspected when actually the pain is a result of an arthritic condition causing pressure on nerves extending from the sixth dorsal vertebra leading to the stomach.

"Miracle Drugs" used in the treatment of arthritis have dangerous side effects. The most serious side effects of arthritic drugs commonly used today include: acute gastric and duodenal ulcer with perforation of the large bowel, vomiting, diarrhea, aplastic anemia, ieukemia, bone marrow depression, metabolic acidosis, fatal and non-fatal hepatitis anaphylactic shock, high blood pressure, inflammation of the lining of the heart, fever, kidney failure, optic neuritis and bleeding from the retina of the eye.

Early recognition and regular chiropractic care are the most effective weapons against arthritis. If you suspect that you or someone you love may be suffering with an arthritic condition, bring them to the office immediately. A throrough chiropractic examination and regular adjustments will provide the safest and most effective solution to this painful and potentially crippling malady.

Off the Walls

On flowerbeds

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

Well, I finally got around to dragging myself out front to take a look at that huge flower bed of ours.

This plot of greenery has been a thorn in my side ever since we moved here more than two years ago. Legend has it that the previous owners contracted a professional landscaper, but two years with me and the professional touches have mysteriously disappeared.

This spring all that remained was a mass of weeds, a few lonely pansies and some very unhappy bushes.

DID YOU EVER feel overwhelmed by a flower bed? It's really quite depressing.

Perhaps if I knew something about gardening, this confrontation with masses of green things wouldn't have such a devastating effect on me. If only I could tell which ones are the weeds! Usually I pull out the stuff that is long and thin, leave anything that may have a bloom on it (unless it's a dandelion) and pray that the neighbors can live with it.

But this year it seemed that my hit-and-miss methods were beginning to take their toll or the overall symmetry of our front yard. It was a mess.

I went to my husband with tears in my eyes, pleading in my voice, and said, "Tell me what to do!"

He answered, "Just dig out what doesn't belong, put in something that does, and water it." I cried for 15 minutes.

Obviously he didn't have full grasp of the seriousness of the situation. How can one dig out what doesn't belong when one doesn't know a petunia from a peony?

Finding no help to be had at home, I called my good friend, Piera, and between sobs managed to get my story out. "I hate my flower bed!"

"Nancy, how can anyone hate a flower bed?"

"Have you seen my flower bed lately?"

"Yes."

"Well, then you must know why I hate it!"

"I see what you mean," she said.

BEING THE BEST kind of true-blue friend, Piera quickly rushed over with rake, hoe, and garden gloves clutched firmly in hand.

She kept saying as she patted my wrist to revive me, "Don't think of it as a chore; think of it as a challenge." It wasn't until she said, "I think we should rip the whole thing out and plant grass," that I actually felt my self beginning to perk up.

Grass! What a lovely idea! If we put in grass I could leave the care (mowing) to my husband and never have to scrounge amid the flora doing my feeble impersonation of weeding ever again. Hallelujah.

So Piera and I worked for several days ripping out the old to make way for the new. I can't say I enjoyed the experience. Just missing "The Young and The Restless" for four days in a row was more deprivation than I felt I deserved. But we finally cleared the land and went to the sod farm for our new implants.

I did have a bit of difficulty figuring the area to be sodded. I had resorted to using an old formula from high school algebra that went $A = \frac{1}{2}bh$. It sounded right.

I came up with 16 square yards. Tried again with the same formula and came up with 12 square yards. Then 14 square yards. Decided to compromise and bought 13.

It wasn't enough. Used my formula again and asked hubby to go get two more square yards — only to find we were still one square yard short. I was beginning to lose confidence in my formula.

Hubby put grass seed on the bare spot.

Add a few bags of wood chips around the bushes, plant a lovely pink flowering azalea, a few fucshia thrown in for good measure, and, presto, we are the proud owners of a care-free flower bed.

Now if I could only figure out a similar technique to revamp my house. Wood chips on the floor, maybe?

I must be punchy from all that sun.

Lucas earns honors

Girls' track squad lightning fast

By DOUG FUNKE
and BRAD EMONS

With another girls' track season recently completed, it's interesting to look back on the campaign and see how the times have dropped on running events, distances increased in throwing and jumping events and heights increased in jumping events.

Area coaches did just that recently when they met to select the all-Observer teams.

Livonia Stevenson this spring won the Inter-Lakes League championship and Redford Union claimed the Northwest Suburban League title.

Livonia Churchill placed second in the Western Six League, Livonia Franklin was runner-up in the Northwest Suburban and Garden City West finished second in the Tri-River League.

Even those teams that did not perform particularly well in dual meets or conference gatherings still usually had a couple of people who ranked among the best in the area.

Following are the first and second all-Observer teams as chosen by area coaches. Girls were limited to one individual event each for all-area honors.

FIRST TEAM

Nadia Awad, Livonia Franklin, shot put. The senior was never defeated in either the shot put or the discus in dual competition during her entire prep career.

Awad, who placed fifth in the Class A state meet in the shot this spring, had a best put of 42 feet 10 inches. Her best effort of the season in discus was 119-1.

She was Northwest Suburban League champion this year in both shot put and discus.

"Nadia was excellent, a good, natural leader," said Franklin coach Barry Sherman. "The girls respected her well."

Katy Donovan, Livonia Stevenson, discus. Like Awad, a repeater from last year's all-area team, Donovan had a best throw this year of 121-7. That was 2½ feet better than her closest rival in the Observer weekly listing.

Donovan, a junior, was injured during the last couple weeks of the season, but prior to that, consistently threw farther than 100 feet.

Joan Silvi, Livonia Churchill, long jump. Silvi, a versatile track and field competitor, had a personal best of 17-1¾ in the long jump this year.

The junior was Western Six League champion in the long jump and ran a leg on the Chargers' conference championship 880-yard relay team.

Silvi also competed in the 440-yard relay and ran the 100- and 220-yard dashes.

Lois Fegert, Redford Union, high jump. Only a sophomore, Fegert this year set an RU school and track record with a leap of 5-5.

She placed first in the Northwest Suburban League Meet and first in every dual meet except one. She finished second in her regional and third at the Spartan Relays.

Fegert was fifth in the 110-yard hurdles at the conference meet and also competed in the 220-yard hurdles and as a member of the Panthers' 440 relay crew during the season.

Gail Kornegger, Livonia Stevenson, 110-yard hurdles. Kornegger, a junior, was Stevenson's top point-scorer this year.

Consistently in the low 16 seconds or better time-wise, her best effort of the season was 15.8, which she recorded on three different occasions.

Kornegger tied for first place in the high jump at the Inter-Lakes League Meet and set a new school record while finishing second in the 220-yard hurdles, 31.2.

She was second at the regional in the 110 hurdles and qualified for the state meet in both hurdle events and the long jump.

Erin Lucas, Plymouth Salem, 220-yard hurdles. A four-year letterwinner, Lucas has competed in four events every meet during the last two seasons.

Her best efforts this spring were 31.4 in the 220 hurdles, 15.8 in the 110 hurdles, 5-2 in high jump, 15-4 in long jump and a 1:05.0 split in the mile relay.

Lucas was Salem's Most Valuable Player this year and last.

"Erin is very versatile and an extremely hard worker," said Salem coach Scott Kurtz. "She always does everything we ask at 100 percent."

Janice Collins, Ladywood, 100-yard dash. This is the fourth consecutive year that Collins, a senior, has been chosen for the all-area team.

With a best time this spring of 11.1, she finished second in the Class B state meet, first in her regional and second in the Catholic League Meet in the 100-yard dash.

Collins this season also finished third in the state in the 220-yard dash and won the long jump in the Catholic League Meet.

James, Wilcox tabbed on all-state bat squad

Brian James of Plymouth Canton and Livonia Franklin outfielders Chris Baker and Herb McManaway were recently selected as first team all-staters by the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association.

James recorded a 9-1 mark his senior year at Canton, leading the Chiefs to an impressive 19-6 slate. His earned run average of 1.05 was one of the lowest in the state. In three years for Canton, the 5-11, 178-pound James compiled a 25-2 record.

The Canton righthander gained all-district and all-region II honors also this season.

Baker, a standout basketall player who was drafted on the first round last Wednesday by the Detroit Tigers, was tabbed as the state's top designated hitter.

The 6-4, 195-pound Baker batted .378 during the season and drove in 28 runs. The Franklin standout was the 23rd pick overall in the free agent major league draft and has yet to sign.

He has numerous college baseball and basketball offers. During Franklin's cage season, Baker averaged 20 points and 16 rebounds per game.

Nobody could really argue with McManaway's selection as a first team outfielder.

The Franklin junior batted .494 and drove in 45 runs. He accumulated the most hits this season by any player in the state (43). He helped Franklin to a Northwest Suburban League title and a 19-6 record.

McManaway hit two homers and 10 triples during the 1979 season.

Wilcox was a second team pick based on his outstanding season both behind the plate and at bat.

The Salem senior batted .448 and hit eight homers pacing Salem's outstanding 19-6 season, which included a district and Suburban Eight League title.

Canton pitcher-first baseman Scott Dawson, a 6-3, 175-pound senior head for the University of Michigan this fall, gained all-district and Region II honors for his fine play this season.

Betty Delano writes:

Waters' work is done

Four years ago Bob Waters, an industrial arts instructor at Plymouth Salem and eight-year coach for the boys' golf team, played an instrumental part in forming the first Salem girls' golf team.

That first year the team consisted of 12 players, the lowest averaging a score of 55 for a nine-hole round, and played 10 matches during the entire season. The scores of that first-year team were no where near the quality of this year's team.

During his second year, the Central Five League was formed and included Salem, Plymouth Canton, Willow Run, Saline and Brighton. Waters coached his girls squad to a league title that year.

The third year, Saline placed first in the Central Five and Salem dropped to third behind second place Canton. Waters did, however, send his team to regional competition where the squad placed third to become eligible for the state finals where they finished in the top 10.

This year Pinckney was added to the league, making it the Central Six, and Waters coached the team to another third-place finish with a 6-4 record. Overall the squad produced a record of 9-4 and again qualified for the state tournament.

At the regionals, the team tailored a four-player 18-hole score of 426 for second place behind a powerful Plymouth Canton.

Under Waters watchful eye, the squad returned to the state finals this year with only two players that ever experienced the pressure of a state tourney.

Playing senior Beth Maggio and junior Meg McGee in the number one and two spots, along with sophomore Nancy Stevens and freshman Carol Ross, the foursome was able to handle tournament pressure, leading the Rocks to a 12th-place finish this year.

Ross' 95 paced the squad, McGee added a 96, Maggio a 97 and Stevens a 99 to set both new nine- and 18-hole scoring records for the school. The team total of 387 also took sixth place of all Class A teams.

Last week the squad held its annual awards banquet, and for Waters it was his last. He resigned his position of four years to allow himself more time with his wife, Karol, and with his 350-piece camera collection.

Awards were given to Maggio for most valuable player for this season and to Stevens for most improved player of the year. Stevens was also voted captain for next season.

Salem offers basketball clinic

The camp will be offered to three different age groups on Monday-Friday, for the duration of four weeks.

Each session will last 1½ hours daily.

Boys in the seventh through ninth grade will meet regularly, 8:30-10 a.m. The girls session, seventh to 12th grade, will meet 10:15-11:45 a.m. Boys and girls in the fourth, fifth or sixth grades will meet, 12:15-1:45 p.m.

The fee required for the four-week clinic is $20 and can be paid at the Continuing Education Office at Canton High School.

The camp will be directed by Salem varsity boys coach Fred Thomann along with Bob Bloom, head varsity girls coach at Salem.

The camp will stress the fundamentals of shooting, ball-handling, passing and rebounding. Emphasis will also be placed on individual offense and defense along with team play.

ill's leadoff runner in both the 440- and the 880-yard relays. The 880 crew finished first at the conference meet.

Jean Burt, Westland John Glenn, 440-yard dash. A repeater from last year's all-area team (440-yard relay), Burt this spring was Northwest Suburban League champion in the 440- and the 220-yard dashes.

She also ran a leg on the Rockets' conference-winning mile relay team.

Her best time this season in the 440 was 59.0. Burt, a senior, was the only girl in the area to break the one-minute mark.

Wendy Jenkins, Livonia Stevenson, 880-yard run. Even though only a sophomore, Jenkins competed in four events for the Spartans every meet — 880, mile, long jump and mile relay.

She was Inter-Lakes League champion in the 880 and her best effort of the year in that event was 2:26.8. Jenkins bettered even that time while running that distance in relays for the Spartans.

Cheryl McKettrick, Redford Bishop Borgess, mile run. Far and away the best miler in the area this spring, McKettrick's best time was 5:15.7.

The senior also turned in the area's best time in the open 880 and anchored the third fastest mile relay team in Observerland.

McKettrick, a four-year letterwinner and an all-area pick the last three seasons, compiled a 3.9 scholastic average and will attend Michigan State University in the fall.

Wendy Tipton, Livonia Stevenson, two mile run. A senior, Tipton earned Inter-Lakes League championships this year in both the two mile and the mile.

Her best two-mile time was 11:43.5.

Diane Hutchinson, Lori Olenzek Dale Campbell and Lori Snyder, Livonia Stevenson, 440-yard relay. This crew's best effort of the season was 52.0.

The quartet placed second in the Inter-Lakes League Meet and sixth in its regional.

Tina Cieszkowski, Joan Silvi, Barbara Sinclair and Sue Brown, Livonia Churchill, 880-yard relay. Western Six League champions, these four girls had a best time of the season of 1:49.1.

Brown ran in all three relays for the Chargers as well as the 100- and 220-yard dashes.

Sue Casebere, Wendy Jenkins, Sally Rozman and Jo-Ann Barnas, Livonia Stevenson; ALSO, Nancie Praizner, Sue Stocker, Julie Sullivan and Janice Collins, Ladywood, mile relay.

Both teams turned in a time of 4:12.6 during the season.

Thomas Elward
Plant Technical Superintendent

Defense in depth: that's what I call the concept behind nuclear power design. You build in backup systems so that even the worst failures in the primary systems won't be catastrophic. You construct your plant so that safety is an integral part, a physical component of the equipment.

And you follow the same kind of idea when you assemble and organize your nuclear power plant personnel, when you put together the people-system with final authority for running the plant. At least you do if you're Consumers Power.

So in the Operations Department at the Midland Nuclear Plant we're set up to run on a 6-shift principle, with the 6th shift always in training. That means every operator spends every 6th week being retrained. It's like a built-in backup system and it tells me how dedicated to safety we are when it comes to nuclear power equipment and nuclear power personnel.

And believe me, if I weren't convinced that Consumers Power's commitment to safety was strong and effective, I wouldn't be working here.

"HARD WORKING FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS BRINGING ENERGY TO YOU."

Fund-raising kegler in class by himself

By W.W. EDGAR

BILL DeCESARE

His name isn't listed among the top average bowlers in the area. He never has won a title for knocking down the pins nor has he never has been a member of a team that did. But Bill DeCesare has made a name for himself as one of the leading figures in the bowling fraternity.

During the past two years he has risen to the rank of king of bowling charities events and over that time he has raised — or helped to raise — more than $125,000.

No other individual in the long history of bowling in Michigan ever has come close to equaling that amount in so short a time and, as he puts it, he is just starting.

As he reluctantly piled up the money totals of the events he has sponsored or help to promote, De Cesare confided that he really doesn't know how he ever got started in the charity end of the bowling game. But once he got started he has been a dynamo and the money has come rolling in to help the unfortunate.

HIS GREATEST achievement thus far is the campaign to provide leader dogs for the blind and over the two-year period his efforts have brought the gratifying result of supplying 12 blind persons with dogs to guide them in their darkened world.

These dogs are valued at $4,000 each at the Leader Dog School in Rochester and the end is not in sight.

While De Caesera didn't say so, his start in the charity bowling activity came when he was named to handle the Goebel team in the Detroit All-Star Leagues.

Eager to get away to a good start, he inquired from the Bowling Proprietors Association what course to take to make a name for the team.

At this point Cass Sicilia, executive secretary of the proprietors, suggested the leader dog program. That was all De Caesera needed. He made the deal with the Rochester school and during the past two years it has been one of the brightest chapters in charity work among the pin spillers.

The program got under way with week-end exhibitions in which the Goebel team appeared. Then he enlisted the help of businessmen in the community. The event snowballed and is still going.

The success De Caesera attained in this program brought him to the attention of other groups with the result that he has had a hand in raising untold sums for various groups.

Why does he get so involved in campaigns to help others?

"I am just one of those lucky fellows," he said, " in that I have a normal life, am married and have a healthy daughter, so I ask myself, 'Why shouldn't I help to bring happiness to others?'"

He has done that and is still going.

He has become a champion without knocking down a pin and recently received the meritorious service award from the Bowling Proprietors Association.

Stevens selected as Canton's MVP

The Plymouth Canton varsity softball team put the finishing touches on its season last night with its annual awards banquet.

The Chiefs had earned an overall record of 9-8 and a Western Six League record of 7-3 that resulted in a second place finish.

First baseman Cindy Stevens was voted by her fellow teammates as the squad's most valuable player and Cheryl Pijanowski and MariAnn Pink were awarded with most improved player recognition. Pijanowski played right field this year and Pink made her contribution to the team from the pitchers' mound.

"I'm real pleased with the way we played all season," said coach Max Sommerville. "I think that if we had played ball against Farmington Harrison instead of just giving them the game, a first place finish in the league would have been entirley possible."

The Chiefs only lose one senior from this year's club and will bring players up from the junior varsity squad.

JUNIOR VARSITY awards were given to Rhonda Stoner for most valuable player, Shelly Potter for best all around and to Kelly Arvin for most improved player.

Major League Scout Bureau offers tryouts

The Major League Scouting Bureau will conduct two area tryout baseball camps, June 18 in Battle Creek and June 19 in Ypsilanti.

The camps are open to players 16-23 years of age. The Major League Scouting Bureau represents 17 Major League baseball teams.

The Battle Creek camp will be held at Bailey Park, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Ypsilanti camp will be held at Eastern Michigan University, also at the same time.

Players must bring their own shoes, gloves and uniforms. American Legion players must have written permission from their coach or Post Commander allowing them to participate.

Supervisor for the one-day camps will be Dick Colpaert, head scout for the Major League Scouting Bureau in the Michigan area.

Scouts from other Major League teams will be in attendance besides members of the Major League Scouting Bureau.

ANOTHER CAMP conducted by the Major League Scouting Bureau will be held Friday, June 22, starting at 9:30 a.m. at the University of Toledo.

This two-day tryout camp is open to players 16-23 years of age.

The purpose of the camp is to provide both players and scouts with a rookie-league-type atmosphere in which participants can perform and be evaluated for a period up to nine consecutive days.

This new tryout concept is one of four being conducted simultaneously by the Major League Scouting Bureau nationwide.

During the two-day camp, all players will be evaluated by professional scouts. Players with the necessary skills will be invited to remain and participate further in games competing with drafted and under control players.

Limited housing will be available on campus at a nominal fee. However, players must pay for all their own expenses.

Brad Emons writes....

Wilcox starts new life

The summer Connie Mack baseball season started and ended on the same day for Dave "Bubba" Wilcox.

A standout catcher for Plymouth Salem during the school year, Wilcox took his last swings and throws Tuesday playing for the Plymouth Elks. The team consists mainly of players off the Salem varsity.

The Elks defeated Little Caesars (Canton's team), 4-0, and Wilcox went out in style. The burly catcher drove home a run and slapped a double in the game.

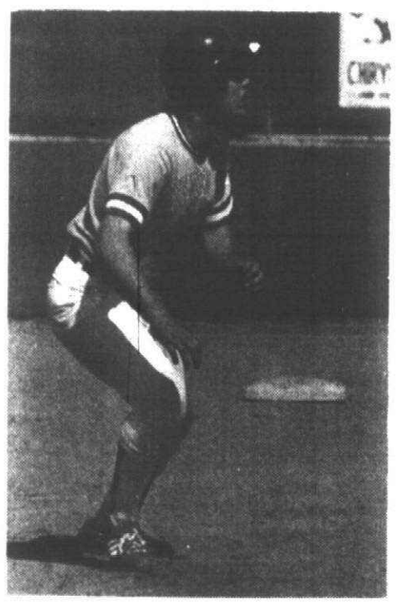
This Sunday, Wilcox starts a new career, just two days after his graduation. He joined the Marines, and begins a four-year commitment with boot camp training at Parris Island, S.C.

His teammates, coaches and friends hate to see him go after leading Salem to an outstanding 19-6 record which claimed a district and Suburban Eight League title.

Wilcox was a terror throughout his senior year. He batted near .450 and hit eight homers, collecting 21 RBIs. He was equally strong as a defensive catcher. During one stretch this season, Wilcox gunned down six straight base stealers.

Recently he was selected to the second team All-State squad by the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association.

With a seemingly bright baseball future, Wilcox has chosen a different road.



DAVE WILCOX

"I MADE THE decision over a year ago," Bubba said. "I want to get into Recon-training which prepares you for the Green Berets.

"It's something different. I didn't want to go to school right away.

"It's a challenge to be a Marine."

Salem coach Brian Gilles, who also manages the Elks, said things won't be the same with Bubba away.

"He (Bubba) was a real pleasure to work with," said Gilles. "He did anything you'd ask. We'll miss him. I wish he was staying around.

"Bubba was a real hard worker — a pleasure to work with."

Several colleges expressed interest in Wilcox, but when the word Marines was mentioned, they all backed away.

Wilcox had the option of delaying his induction into the service until the end of the summer, giving him a chance to complete his summer baseball.

"Maybe I should have waited," he said. "I'm going to miss everybody. Boot camp worries me. I want to get it over with.

"I'm going to play for fun from now on," Wilcox said. "There is a possibility I could play baseball in the Marines. They have a college level team."

Bubba's father, Ben, a coach for Salem's team in the summer Mickey Mantle League, also regrets his son's departure.

"I wish the guy would stay around," said the elder Wilcox.

Wilcox said the high point of the season was beating rival Canton in the district finals. The most frustrating game was Saturday's regional loss to Adrian.

Looking into the future, Wilcox said he'll probably have more schooling in his plans.

"I'd like to go to college after the Marines," he said.

Wilcox has his mind set for a military career — at least for four years but as a friend and former coach of Bubba said: "He'll make a fine Marine."

Mixed doubles tournament slated

Plymouth Canton High School will host the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles qualifying tournament Saturday and Sunday, June 23-24.

The winning team in the tourney will advance to compete in the regional tournament in July in Bloomfield Hills.

Thirty-two regional winners, their spouses and hometown tourney directors will be sent on an all-expenses-paid trip to the National Finals at Woodlands and Country Club in Woodlands, Tex., Sept. 13-16.

The National Finals will be held in conjunction with the $150,000 ATP Men's Professional Doubles Tournament.

Players on all levels may compete in the qualifying tourney, which is part of the National Tennis Week program.

Designed to encourage participation in the sport, National Tennis Week originated six years ago. The program is supported by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and is supported by the USPTA, USTA, National Tennis Association and the Tennis Foundation of North America.

Those interested in entering can contact Hlady at 981-2246. An entry fee of $6 is required per team.

Owens 2-hits Little Caesars

Pitcher Barry Owens allowed just two hits to lift the Plymouth Elks to a 4-0 Connie Mack League baseball victory over Little Caesars Tuesday evening.

It was the season opener for both teams. The Elks are coached by Brian Gilles, and John Gravlin directs Little Caesars.

Paul Woodard started things off for the Elks slapping a single. He took second base on Paul Dillon's sacrifice bunt. Jim Anderson then singled Woodard to third and Bubba Wilcox drove him home with an infield hit.

Anderson and Wilcox advanced on Sam Merrill's fielders choice. Anderson came home on Matt Etienne's single.

In the fourth inning, the Elks collected their third run when Mike Woodard dashed home on Chris Hannan's perfect suicide squeeze bunt. Woodard, the third baseman, started the inning by singling.

He just didn't fit in

Moss' departure was expected

By W.W. EDGAR

It came as no surprise to the old time followers of major league baseball when the Tigers relieved Les Moss as their manager Tuesday afternoon.

Neither was it too surprising when they hired Sparky Anderson to take over the reins and attempt to get the club out of fifth place.

The tell-tale sign came last week when the Tigers' President and General Manager Jim Campbell made the trip to the Pacific Coast to watch the team in action. It is almost a tradition that any time Campbell decides to pick up the team on the road that a change in managers is in the works.

The lone exception came when Ralph Houk decided it was "time to go fishin'" at the end of last season.

It was thought when Les Moss was brought up from the farm club in Evansville he was the man who could lead the young players into a contending role. After all he had most of them under his wing in the minors.

But it just didn't work. The team, instead of improving, seemed settled in a battle for fifth place, and the shuffling and the re-shuffling of the young talent upset the entire squad.

Over and above that, he didn't win the fancy of the fans. He seemed just a bit out of place in the majors, according to the old timers.

On the other hand, Anderson, who takes charge of the club on Thursday, comes here with a sparkling record. He was manager of the Cincinnati Reds for nine years. In that time, he won nine divisional titles, five pennants and two world championships.

Anderson developed what in the game came to be known as the Big Red Machine and it became so monotonous that he and the Reds parted company at the close of last season.

In contrast to Moss, who was working under a one-year contract and who will be paid for the balance of the season, Sparky was given a five-year pact, the same as that given Ralph Houk when he left the Yankees to join the Tigers. No salary figures were mentioned in Sparky's signing.

During his short stay with the Tigers, Moss caused a lot of unrest. It started when he announced during spring training that Lance Parrish would be his first string catcher, instead of Milt May who had been the regular backstop for two years.

Then came the shuttle service to Evansville when he sent young players like Kip Young, Steve Baker, Sheldon Burnside there, along with Tim Corcoran, the young outfielder who had been in right field for the better part of two seasons. Some of the others shuttled back and forth — one of them twice in a week.

No reason was given for Moss dismissal other than the showing of the team thus far. And it was ironical that Campbell's action came at the close of the most successful road trip of the season, where the team won eight and lost five.

You deposit $10,000 in a 182-day Michigan Money Market Certificate.

Now, no other bank or savings and loan pays more on Michigan Money Market Certificates than the Michigan National Banks. A minimum deposit of $10,000 is required and the rate at which the certificate is purchased is fixed until maturity.

We transfer the monthly interest into a regular passbook savings account.

While the continuous compounding of interest is not allowed on Michigan Money Market Certificates, it is allowed on regular passbook savings. And since the interest you earn on a Michigan Money Market Certificate can be paid monthly, we can automatically deposit the interest you've earned each month into a regular passbook savings account.

3. The result: Bonus interest on your interest.

Your interest continues to earn bonus interest in your regular passbook savings account at the rate of 5.0% annually - continuously compounded to provide an effective annual yield of 5.20%.

Then, when your Michigan Money Market Certificate matures, you can take all of the interest you've earned plus your principal, reinvest in a new certificate at the prevailing rate, and start earning more money for your money all over again.

For more details on this important service, call or visit any office of the Michigan National Banks today.

THIS WEEK'S RATE: Effective June 14 thru June 20, 1979

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

When the history of the 1978-79 bowling season is written, a chapter will have to be devoted to Cora Feibig, captain of the Luxury Lanes team in the women's all-star leagues.

She has just concluded one of the greatest seasons of her long career and her accomplishments may not be repeated for some time to come.

During the past week she has been named bowling queen by the Detroit Woman's Bowling Association and then to add to her laurels her 203 average earned her the right to captain the women's No. 1 all-city team.

Aside from all that, she is the current singles leader in the women's state tournament and her 663 count should stand up for the rest of the tournament to make her the state singles champion.

In announcing Cora's apppointment as the "queen," the association also announced her court will include Kathy Haislip and Gerry Ritter, who were deadlocked at 23 points in the rating. Both of them trailed Cora by nine points.

In the selections for the NO. 1 all-city team Cora was given Gerry Ritter, Leona Obuchowski, Kathy Haislip and Penny Behn as team mates.

On the second team Aleta Rzcpecki, the rising young star, was paid the honor of captaining the group. With her in the line-up are Jan Pavella, Nancy Mischuk, Ruby Williamson and Carol Martin.

WHILE FEIBIG is almost certain to take the state singles crown three other area bowlers seem to have strangleholds on two other state titles.

Jan Pavella and Gerry Ritter have been at the top of the list in the doubles for more than a month and their 1,211 count should ward off any late challengers.

Meanwhile, Geraldine Beattie is leading the parade in the all events with a count of 1,843.

All of the city champions will be honored at a dinner being sponsored jointly by the men's and women's associations at the Polish Century Club June 21.

FOR THE FIRST time the area is going to have a regular bowling school for the juniors during the summer months.

In other years, there have been instructors at the various houses, giving lessons on an hourly basis. But these were not considered schools.

Now at the Super Bowl in Canton Township a regulation school is being set up to run from July 16 to August 27 with Mary Mohacsi and Billy Golembiewski as the instructors.

Classes are scheduled each day of the week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the afternoon. The tuition fee is $60 which covers the cost of the lessons, the students' "T" shirts and luncheon each day.

TOM NOVOTNY won a close battle with Joe Magei in the classic trio league at Westland Bowl and it wasn't decided until the final frame or two.

Tom rolled games of 225, 230 and 238 for 693, while Magei posted counts of 221,227 and 237 for 685. John Ottman landed third with a 667 on games of 233, 233 and 201, and John Anderson took the fourth position with a 664 that included games of 208, 209 and 247.

BECKY DUNLAP, who carries only a 148 average, shot her way into the pacemaking role in the Ladies Foursomes at Woodland Lanes. She linked games of 203, 172 and 178 for a 553.

Joan Brennan, with a 136 average, posted games of 164, 197 and 175 for a 536 and second place. Third position went to Sue Scheuker, a 126 average bowler, with a 516 and fourth position went to Tracy Hayles, a 125 bowler, with a 516.

DiPonio opens season with 2 victories

The Plymouth Salem DiPonio team in the Mickey Mantle Baseball League opened its season with two victories.

On Sunday, playing in windy conditions, DiPonio bested the Windsor Mic Mac squad in Canada, 4-1, behind the five-hit pitching of Greg Etienne.

Relying on his knuckleball, Etienne struck out six and went the full seven innings.

DiPonio grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning, when John Hetkowski led off with a double. Joe Garcia followed with a walk and Etienne then helped his own cause with an RBI single.

Windsor tied it, 1-1, in the fourth inning with the aid of a passed ball and two singles.

DiPonio exploded for three runs in the sixth inning to put the game away.

DiPonio tied it up in the first when Joe Humphries led off with a single. He was forced at second by Hetkowski who scored on Etienne's RBI single.

Other players listed on DiPonio's summer roster include Rob Heidt, Ken McDonald, John McDowel and Kevin Urban.

RESERVATIONS for Wayne Dunlap's retirement banquet should be in by June 16. Tickets at $12.50 per person can be purchased at Beitner Jewelry, 904 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. The party for the conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra for the past 28 years will be Sunday, June 24 in the Mayflower Meeting House The social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 6.

Lenore and Wayne are moving from Grand Rapids to Texas this summer. During their years in Plymouth where the Dunlaps raised their family, they made many friends in the community.

Wayne was director of music for the Plymouth Community Schools and director of music at Schoolcraft College. He was a member of the Plymouth Rotary and was entertainment chairman on the Sunday of the club's chicken barbecue during the fall festival.

JIM AND JEAN Jabara were in Toronto last week to see their son Marty perform in the Imperial Room of the Royal York Hotel.

Marty was pianist and conductor of the regular Royal York orchestra for Los Angeles singer Maxine Weldon. He also was percussionist on vibraphone and drums for Ron Townson, former member of the Fifth Dimension who now is doing a solo act.

The Jabaras said Ms. Welden is a younger version of Pearl Bailey. Marty auditioned for the job in LA and got it. He will be playing the piano at Disneyland until the end of June when he will join the Colorado Chamber Orchestra in Boulder. Marty is 23.

PLYMOUTH MAYOR Tom Turner and his wife, June, were in Texas a couple of weekends ago. They went to the baseball game at the Astrodome on a Sunday afternoon along with about 50,000 other people.

Now Tom had seen his name in lights at the Eastland shopping center on mayor's exchange day during Michigan Week. But this was a little overwhelming.

Bill Odom, a former Plymouth resident, was responsible. When the Odoms lived here, Bill worked for Ford Motor Co. After Ford bought the Astrodome, he was moved to Houston to become president of the Astrodome Corporation.

TED LINDSAY, general manager of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team, and his wife, Lynda, were in town last weekend.

They were antiquing in the Old Village section when they found just what they had been looking for in Grace Kalik's shop on Starkweather. They bought an old dining room set at Kalik's Antiques and Curios.

BAND CONCERTS in the park begin June 24. There will be a series of six concerts by the Plymouth Community Band in Kellogg Park.

For the uninitiated, the Thursday evening outdoor concerts begin about 7:30. It's best to take along a blanket or lawn chairs because there aren't enough park benches to go around.

There is no admission fee.

THE PLYMOUTH-CANTON Educational Park (PCEP) marching band cook book is off the press and will be available at the band concerts in the park. Many of the musicians who played in the high school band are members of the community band.

The cook book has been two years in the making and includes many of the recipes that made the CEP bands' banquets a gourmet's delight. Cost of the book is $4.50 and proceeds will go to the CEP band boosters club. Their goal is to realize enough money to buy new competition-type uniforms and instruments. Just 500 books have been printed and the recipes are exceptional. The design for the blue cover is the work of Marilyn Berrick.

There are sections on appetizers, main dishes, salads, vegetables, desserts, ethnic dishes and others. The recipes were contributed by some of Plymouth and Canton's finest cooks.

A TWO-HOUR workshop on genealogy will provide easy steps to follow in tracing your ancestry.

Helen Gilbert is directing the class which will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 25 in First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, Church Street at Main.

To register, call the YMCA, 453-2904.

Gala banquet ends Newcomers' season

Nancy (Sam) Nichols, president of the Canton Newcomers Club for 1978-79, presented long-stemmed roses to members of her board of directors with a "Thank you for a job well done."

The Newcomers had gathered at Mitch Housey's restaurant in Livonia for their final dinner meeting of the season. Retiring board members were introduced then presented corsages of green carnations to their replacements for 1979-80.

Nancy Nichols turned over the gavel to Linda Lupo, the new president. The membership's gift to the outgoing president was two pieces of cut crystal.

New board members and committee heads are Pat Wise, membership; Connie Tiano, interest groups; Karen Welling, couples; Nancy Burns, reservations; Penny Luddecke, newsletter and roster book; Shirley Gruetzmacher, publicity; Debbie Druce, hospitality; and Anna Roberts, welcoming.

Divorcees help each other understand

By MARGARET MILLER

"I'm not ready to think of dating again — it's too quick. I would like to have a friend to talk to. But it's not a good time to get into a dating situation."

Mary was speaking from her place in the circle of men and women learning how to live with a new kind of life — that of a divorcee. She and others in the group were finishing a four-session discussion on the topic of "Understanding Divorce," and group leader Jack Bradford had just asked how everyone felt about starting to date again.

"I guess I'm saying that too," put in Suzanne when Mary had finished her comments.

"I did try a date, but I think what I want is a friend — not all that hugging and kissing and having someone put his arm around me when I wish he wouldn't."

John and Tom had some masculine reactions. John, divorced three years ago, said he found problems when trying to date women more recently put through the process. "It makes a difference where you are in the pulling apart process," he said.

"No way can you make a rational choice when you're going through it," said Tom, who was.

THE MATTER of dating after divorce was just one of many put forth by Bradford, marriage counselor who led the series for the Family Counseling Service of Wayne County Circuit Court.

The service, operating for the last few years from an office in Livonia, puts on about a dozen such series each year in the western suburban area. Twice a year the four-week evening discussions take place at Newburg United Methodist Church, 34500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia.

"We try to meet the needs of people all along the way from being married to going throug divorce to being single," Bradford said. "Invitations are sent to everyone who files for divorce in Wayne County"

Each of the discussion series involves a group of about 20, Bradford said.

"We try to take them through the divorce process and let them know what to expect," he explained. "They need to know that their ambivalent love-hate feelings are to be expected, and that feelings of attachment are bound to persist even when there is erosion of love."

Bradford said he helps the group members discuss their anger at "why is this happening to me?" and then their confusion over identity.

"This need to dissociate the real person from the role that has been played and the expectations of others is present for everyone who goes through divorce," Bradford added, "But women often find it harder. Their identity often has diminished and they have to think through where they want to go.

"OBSESSIVE REVIEW" is another aspect of dissolving marriage that comes in for discussion during the sessions Bradford leads.

"It's going to happen — people just can't help going over and over the things that led up to divorce," he said. "So we try to do a little plot-setting, sorting through the actions and interactions."

In the sessions, he went on, "we talk a lot about children."

"We've long ago given up the idea that we hold a marriage together for the sake of the children, but we do try to alleviate fears and guilt," Bradford said. "We've found that most children show some of the same anxieties and fears, so we take a look at these and try to figure out ways to help."

He said he also gets into legal aspects of divorce, especially those involving children, and discusses the role of the Friend of the Court.

BRADFORD'S AIM is to impress the idea that understanding divorce is no simple process.

"We're talking about something that takes two to four years, and there is no shortcut," he said.

"When we tear two people apart, the jagged edges have to heal before we start heading into another relationship." So the discussions he leads must arrive at divorcees' steps toward beginning again — the ways of developing new interests and building new networks.

The possibilities of singles groups are discussed, and Bradford puts forth his idea that interest groups may be the better way to go.

That's when, in the discussion group recently completed, the discussion of dating came up.

Bradford then took the thinking a step beyond casual relationships.

"Do we always become attached to the same kind of person?" he asked.

"I've been married to an alcoholic." commented Mary, "and I know from what I learned in the Al-Anon groups for relatives that it's entirely possible for me to be tempted to choose the same kind of person again.

"I guess that is why I have avoided forming close relationships too soon."

"In my case," said John, "The people I have dated are very different — almost opposites — when compared to the one I married. I guess I've consciously steered away, because you tend to marry the same kind of person."

IT'S IMPORTANT to understand these possibilities, Bradford told the group. "People ask themselves if second marriages can work, will they be heading into the same kind of position and make the same mistakes.

"If we don't raise our level of awareness, we probably will."

"We're changing all the time and growing," the counselor added, "so it certainly is possible for our relationships to be more satisfactory. I meet many people in counseling who tell me: 'Well, that's just the way I am.'

"I try to get across the idea that it's the way they choose to be. It's not easy to change; it takes some work. But I have seen it happen."

Bradford said many of the groups he has led have evolved, for some of their members, into ongoing "coping groups," some continuing to meet as long as a year.

"I've seen great growth in these group," he said. Fourteen members of the unit that just finished its sessions have indicated an interest in continuing meetings, he added, and he is trying at this point to arrange schedules to set up some sessions.

Bradford came to his present work 11 years ago after seven years as minister of education to two churches. Besides the adjustment to divorces series, he works with marriage encounter and marriage enrichment programs.

Married 28 years and father of three children, Bradford said he's sure his professional knowledge has been of "some" help in his personal life.

"But studies have shown it doesn't necessarily carry over," he said. "Only if you work at it."

Persons interested in learning more about the Circuit Court family counseling services may call the Livonia branch at 522-0300.

Wanted: Women who worked during WWII

The call is out for women who worked in defense industries during World War II. An hour-long documentary film will be made for network television and for screening before union, churches, women's groups, community organizations, schools and colleges.

"The Life and Times of Rosie" (the riveter) will recapture the wartime years and the experiences of the women who went to work in the defense plants. Any woman who would like to participate in the project is asked to call William Bryce, 883-2339, after 6 p.m.

Producer Connie Field says, "Common myth has it that women took defense jobs for patriotic reasons only. We are finding, in fact, that most women who worked before the war, needed to work during the war and transferred to defense jobs because of high pay."

She also would like to talk to women who took part in the struggle, after the war, to retain their jobs as the troops came home.

The documentary is funded by foundation grants and private individuals. It is expected to be completed within a year. The film maker is searching for women who will tell their stories of World War II work experiences.

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council names new president

By LINDA FARHAT

Thousands of girls each year join the ranks of the Girl Scouts. Most quit before high school and never return. Pat Levos of Livonia did return and has been with the Girl Scouts for the past nine years.

Now she will be around for at least three more years because she is the newly elected president of the Huron Vally Girl Scout Council.

She returned to scouting when her oldest and only daughter, Tammy, now a senior cadette, wanted to join Brownies.

After being a leader for a year, Mrs. Levos became a troop service director (TSD) for five years.

"TSDs recruit, train, replace girl scout leaders," Mrs. Levos said, "give moral support and information to leaders who need it."

FOR THREE YEARS she worked as an area association chairman. Her responsibilities included representing leaders when decisions were made by the board.

For the next three years she served as third vice president on the board and then was elected president in April.

"I really was surprised," she laughed, "when the nominating committee called me."

Mrs. Levos is active in two other associations. She is in volved in the Roosevelt Elementry School Parent-Teacher Association, where two of her four children attend school, and she is membership chairman for the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

GIRL SCOUTS have changed a lot in the last few years, she said.

"Adressing problems women and girls face today is very necessary," she stressed.

One talk, which is parent-scout oriented, deals with rape and sexual abuse. Trained personnel come and discuss topics with them. Another topic is conserving energy.

"Girls aren't going to be satisfied with being mommies, nurses, waitresses, and secretaries anymore," Mrs. Levos added.

The duty of the president is a basic responsibility to provide leadership for the organization. Mrs. Levos said she plans to keep regular business hours one day a week and keep an open door policy for any volunteers who need help.

MRS. LEVOS was elected during the International Year of the Child. The project is very important to the scouts. On June 9, to celebrate the event, Huron Valley Girl Scouts will hold "Game Day" in Rynerson Stadium, at Eastern Michignan University. Prizes, games and food are some of many attractions. More than 2,000 girls will participate and meet sister scouts.

The Girl Scouts are headed by more than 3,000 volunteers without whom the organization wouldn't exisit.

"I've grown in so many ways because of scouting," she concluded." Volunteering is how America got started, people helping each other and sharing with each other."

Program offers prescriptions for seniors

Persons 60 years of age and older can take advantage of low-cost prescriptions if their incomes are within qualifying limits.

Average price of prescriptions is about 50 cents for senior citizens whose individual monthly income does not exceed $325 and whose bank balance is not more than $3,900. The maximum income for an eligible couple is $425 and bank balance is $5,100.

To take advantage of the program, persons should call 326-9228 for an appointment at J Building, Michigan Avenue at Merriman. Prescriptions must be presented separately, no two written on the same sheet. Prescriptions are not filled in J Building but are mailed to the building. When the senior picks up a prescription the cost is simply the amount paid for mailing — usually about 50 cents.

Sharon Thomas of Tonquish Creek Manor said she was happy to announce the availability of the program to area seniors. "Some of the seniors prescription bills run to almost $500 a year and more," she said. "If they can get an $18 prescription filled for 50 cents, it will mean so much to many of them."

Persons wishing more information about the program can call Jean Campeau at the YMCA, 453-2904.

Students win toaster oven

The seventh grade skills for living class at West Middle School in Plymouth has won a Proctor-Silex "Meal Maker" toaster oven, the runner-up prize in Co-ed Magazine's national "Fast-to-Fix Meals" contest.

The group project was designed to bring new interest to food classes.

Under the supervision of skills for living teacher Betty Szilagyi, the class planned three days of "fast-to-fix meals" for a family of four. The students described the family members, chose the menus and recipes, shopped for the food and pre pared it. Many classes chose original ways of preparing an entry and all entries were judged on clarity, originality, ease and time of planning of menus, appetite appeal and nutri tional value.

Despite the complexity of the contest and the amount of time involved to prepare an entry, the contest drew hundreds of high school and middle school student entries from all over the country.

Co-ed magazine conceived the contest (an annual event) and was joined in the sponsorship by Borden, Inc., Castle & Cooke Foods, General Foods, General Mills, Inc., Golden Grain Macaroni Co., George A. Hormel & Co., Kraft, Inc., Lea & Perrins, Inc., Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., and Reynolds Metals Co.

Food trends and diet studies updated

New products, food trends, studies, and happenings in the world of diet have filled the pages of magazines, newspapers, and journals. Blurbs, thoughts, results, tidbits, and items follow.

LIQUID PROTEIN update: The sudden deaths of those who were on the diet may have been due to a copper deficiency. The normal daily requirement of the element is about two milligrams. Those on liquid protein were getting about one-tenth that amount. Experiments on laboratory animals found a correlation between heart failure and copper insufficiency.

The saccharin ban was delayed again until June 30, 1981 by legislative action. Meanwhile, aspartame, a compound 200 times sweeter than sugar, is waiting for Food-and Drug Administration (FDA) approval. The request was made by Searle laboratories, whose researchers discovered the chemical. Safety of the product has yet to satisfy the feds and they say they won't be rushed just because of the saccharin situation.

The American public always is being surveyed, particularly as to eating habits. A recent poll by ABC and Harris found that eating is the number one leisure-time activity of the country surpassing TV, radio, reading, do-it-yourself projects, and even sex.

Another poll, a Nielsen survey, found half the people they surveyed had been on a diet within the past year, but only half of them did it because of medical advice.

You are about average if you think you are eight pounds overweight.

But even with the slight decline, each man, woman and child still consumed an average of 14.9 pounds of candy. That works out to about 34,748 calories per year per person using milk chocolate as a guide. Now if you must cut 3,500 calories out of your diet to lose one pound, . . .

According to food industry sources you'll be seeing a sharp increase in packaged, prepared foods featuring a wider variety of spice flavorings. A growing interest in ethnic eating and more interesting flavors for dieters are sited as the reason. Also the "lite" foods category is increasing at twice the rate of non-diet foods.

Under Pentagon orders, the U.S. Navy will be enforcing a new weight control program. If sailors don't lose required weight, the rule could result in disciplinary action or even discharge. So far 546 men and women have been discharged because of obesity.

NEW PRODUCTS: A spray which numbs the taste buds to help control temptation is awaiting FDA approval. Named FAST, the lipstick-sized tube is admitted to be a crutch by its inventor.

A diet computer which you program yourself, the $39.95 item provides for age, weight, sex, height, and daily activity. Manufacturers claim it eliminates the guess work, calorie-wise and activity-wise. For further information write TMI, International, 10816 Washington Blvd., Culver City, Calif 90230.

CLASSES in "Behavior Modification — Weight Control" will be held for five weeks on Thursdays mornings 9:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m. beginning today. Dr. June Sears, home economist and nutrifionist will be conducting the sessions. For further information call 721-6566 or 563-2950.

New booklet to send for: Weight Watchers 14-page booklet called "Snacking on a Weight Control Program." It's free and can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Weight Watchers, Box 125 LV, Southfield, MI.

"Lazy Money"

The most overlooked income source in business

"Lazy Money" is our name for temporarily idle business funds that just sit around in company checking accounts waiting to be used. The wait may be short, or as long as several months. But every day of waiting robs your business of income it could earn easily in our Business Savings and Telephone Transfer program.

Our program dovetails comfortably with your normal business banking arrangements while providing insured safety and a higher return than would be possible through your bank alone.

Let our Business Savings and Telephone Transfer program put your "Lazy Money" to work as a profitable source of income. Remember, if you're not using it . . . you're losing it!

9 counties join Wayne in lawsuit

Wayne County has gained the support of nine other counties joining in defense against a lawsuit on what County Commissioner Samuel A. Turner called "essentially a separation of powers issue."

The board is the defendant in a claim for attorney fees from an earlier suit filed by the county clerk and register of deeds to prevent the board from eliminating jobs in those departments.

Jobs there proposed for elimination were part of a plan by the board to save about $1.3 million while trying to reduce a projected $13 to $14 million deficit this fiscal year ending Nov. 30. The board had also proposed job eliminations in offices of the treasurer, drain commissioner and county prosecutor.

Visiting Judge Allan C. Miller, Tawas City, ruled in December that the job reductions should not apply to the register of deeds, but upheld the commissioners in the other four departments. Judge Miller is also hearing the second suit, for attorney fees, although he has not yet scheduled the next hearing.

"IT IS PATENTLY ridiculous," said Commissioner Turner, D-Detroit, chairman of the board's ways and means committee. "We are between the proverbial rock and hard place, pressured from every side by independent actions of the courts and by the State Municipal Finance Commission as well as the governor." He added:

"Everybody tells us to save money, but when we try to accomplish this with one of the few means available left to us, the courts get involved and could possibly force us to waste money.

"This is a Catch-22 situation. Whether the clients have to pay, or whether the board has to pay, it is still county money any way you view it. The courts have boxed us in and created a paradox because they are intruding in an area they don't belong.

Turner said it is a violation of the separation of powers doctrine when the judicial branch of government tries to control legislative budgeting and planning processes through court order.

THE OTHER COUNTIES supporting Wayne County by intervening in the suit, said Turner, are Genesee, Ingham, Muskegon, Bay, Saginaw, Calhoun, Monroe, Kent and Washtenaw.

Possibly Macomb County will also intervene, and others are likely, said Turner. He said that the Michigan Association of Counties has instructed its corporation counsel to review the feasibility of involvement on behalf of all the 83 counties in Michigan.

"Their basis for entry in this case is recognition that the decision from this will affect all county operations throughout the state.

"They want to get involved because they believe the procedure of Wayne County is legal and proper, and they want to resist court intervention in the legislative function.

"Even the counties that are economically healthy must still watch their budgets closely, and none of them is exempt from pressures of the court."

Turner noted that Wayne County this fiscal year is restricted from major budget changes by the State Municipal Finance Commission, and that Detroit Recorder's Court recently indicated need for a supplemental appropriation.

"They have been warned, however, to keep their expenses within the amount already allocated or risk payless pay days," said Turner.

Jobs are available for low income youth

More than 3,500 youth from low income families will have jobs this summer under provisions of the federal Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP), according to Richard E. Manning, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The eight-week temporary work program has been made possible through a $2.6 million grant received by the Wayne County Office of Manpower, Manning said. "Beginning June 25, youth between the ages of 14 and 21 who reside in Wayne County (except Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia) and qualify under federal economic guidelines will be able to participate in work experience activities which pay $2.90 per hour."

Summer youth employment is one of several programs for both in-school and out-of-school youth made possible by the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funded by the U.S. Department of Labor. In Wayne County the program is administered by the Wayne County Office of Manpower with local coordination provided by the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The Wayne County program is part of the more than $706 million being divided by the Department of Labor among 460 state and local governments throughout the U.S. The funds are estimated to provide up to 1 million summer youth jobs nationwide.

Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia are excluded from the Wayne County program because they sponsor their own CETA programs and receive separate funds directly from the Department of Labor.

Jobs available under the program range from clerical aide to medical-technician aide. The jobs and worksites are organized and run by coordinators in each of the local school districts.

This year the program will include an expanded classroom training activity linked with Wayne County, Schoolcraft and Highland Park Community Colleges. Up to one-fourth of the participants will receive academic credit for satisfactorily completing the classroom courses.

In addition to the classroom training available to some of the participants, most of the youth will have the opportunity to take part in individual or group counseling sessions.

Those eligible for the program must be economically disadvantaged, 14 through 21 years of age, or involved in another CETA program which required these criteria at the time of enrollment.

Interested youth should contact the Project SCORE (Student Career Opportunities through Relevant Experience) coordinators in their local school district.

Local program coordinators are: Garden City, Daniel Wettlaufer, 427-8414; Plymouth-Canton, Byron Richarson, 453-3100; Redford Union and South Redford, Roger Handy, 535-2000; Wayne-Westland John Glenn, Ted Davis, 595-2312; Wayne Memorial Robert Shaw, 595-2278.

The modern-jazz dance recital will be performed during Fears' OU summer residency where he is teaching beginning Dunham. Fears studied with Katherine Dunham who originated the technique that incorporates modern jazz and African rhythms.

General admission is $2. Tickets are available at the door or by calling 377-4460.

Room for Design

When buying, take time

By GLORIA COHEN

This is the season when a lot of newlyweds are furnishing their first home.

It should be one of the happiest and most exciting experiences of your life. Until furnishing your first house, some of the problems involved have probably not concerned you. As you grew up you took for granted the comforts of your environment. Now that you have a home of your own, furnishings take on a new significance.

Shopping for furniture isn't like shopping for clothing. If you buy the wrong dress or suit it can be hidden in the closet, but you can't hide a sofa very well. And how do you cover up 50 yards of the wrong carpet?

THINGS PURCHASED NOW may be a part of your environment for years to come. They should please and serve your needs as well as the needs of other members of your household who will live with them. Judicious planning will prevent embarrassment later.

Probably the most common mistake is buying too much too fast. Often the result is a room full of cheap furniture that will soon need to be replaced.

Remember, decorating is a continuing process. Homes with character develop slowly. Select one thing at a time and enjoy it before buying the next item. To become a discriminating customer takes time and effort, but it will pay big dividends.

Your first furniture purchase should be made only after much careful study and planning. A married couple should reach some agreement as to taste, general style, preferences and price. When you begin to shop, you will have a direction as to where you are headed and what to look for.

Seldom do you know specifically what style you have in mind. But style isn't important. That will come to you as you window shop and see what's available.

WHAT IS IMPORTANT is a plan or theme such as room arrangement, colors, and the kind of pieces you will utilize — sofas, chairs, tables, wall units. What kind of wood, where you will place pieces and how many of each you will need are the priorities.

Avoid buying a room full of advertised economy furniture. At best it will be mediocre quality and likely will be dated in a few years if it doesn't wear out before that. Start with one good piece and build around it.

When shopping for upholstered furniture, usually the first purchase, the first thing that catches your eye is the fabric.

Remember that the sofa or chair is available in a multitude of colors, textures and patterns. So don't be influenced by the fabric but rather to the style and comfort when you give it the "sit" test. Check the depth and height.

If your sofa or chair has loose cushions, they can be turned frequently for longer wear. Is the cushioning soft and resilient?

Will it retain its shape? Is the furniture easily movable?

Buy dining room chairs with slip seats that are easily removed to be covered when necessary. They take less fabric, wear longer, and recovering is a simple matter.

If your sofa has square seat cushions, instead of T-shaped ones, the middle and end ones may be exchanged to increased durability.

WHN YOU SELECT A COTTON FABRIC for your upholstered piece, have it quilted when possible for longer wear. Some cotton velvets wear better than others. Inquire.

Beware of trendy styles that come and go quickly.

Weekly carillon concerts begin

The first carillon concert of the Christ Church Cranbook summer concert series will feature World Carillon Federation president Jacques Lannoy in an all-French musical program at 4 p.m. Sunday, June 24. There is no charge.

At 5 p.m. Anthony Furnival, of St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo, N.Y., will present a free organ recital in the Christ Church.

Programs for both events will be at the front door of the church and across Lone Pine in the Cranbrook Gardens booth.

Lannoy will begin the concert with two rousing marches: J. B. Lully's "French March" and J. J. Mouret's "Air for Trumpets and Fifes," followed by dance suites, folksongs, ballet music and harpsichord pieces.

Lannoy, founder-president of the French Guild of Carillonneurs, is also professor at the French Carillon School and carillonneur in the French cities of Dourai and Tourcoing.

He is the last active member of a long family line of carillonneurs well known since 1809 in the French St. Amand area.

Lannoy won first prize for interpretation and improvisation on the carillon at the Brussels World Fair and is current laureate of harmony and counterpoint classes in Paris.

Furnival's program will be sacred music from 18th and 19th century composers.

Included will be "Sonata No. 1" and "Prelude and Fugue in E Flat" by J. S. Bach; "Sonata No. 3" by Paul Hindemith; "Sonata No. 4" by Joseph Rheinberger; "Paean" by Herbert Howell; and Jean Langlais' "Three Characteristic Pieces."

Jacques Lannoy's Christ Church Cranbrook premier performance on the carillon will preface the 1979 summer music series featuring guest artists from all over America, Belgium and The Netherlands.

Included will be Paula Van der Wiele, city carillonneur, Mons, Belgium, and Leen 't Hart, director of Netherlands Carillon School, Amersfoort, The Netherlands.

Also performing will be Frederick Marriott, Kirk in the Hills; Jon Gouwens, Ann Arbor; Helen Fan, University of Michigan; William DeTurk, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, Hudson Ladd, University of Michigan; Roland Richter, Kirk in the Hills; and Janet Dundore, St. Thomas Church, Whitemarsh, Pa., and St. Vincent's Seminary, Philadelphia.

Christ Church Cranbrook carillonneur Beverly Buchanan will play a patriotic concert at 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 4 in addition to regular Sunday concerts July 29 and Sept. 2.

Christ Church Cranbrook, Cranbrook and Lone Pine, an Episcopal Church, is affiliated with Cranbrook Educational Community which includes Cranbrook Institute of Science, Cranbrook Academy of Art and Museum and Cranbrook Schools.

Register now for art classes

A diversified schedule of art courses is being offered during the summer session at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. Adult classes meet mornings, afternoons and evenings, while youth classes meet during the morning or afternoon.

The summer term covers the period, July 9 through Aug. 23, with some classes being held in July, others in August.

Pre-registration for current art students and art association members continues this week. Regular registration starts on Monday, June 18.

In addition to the usual curriculum of art history, calligraphy, drawing, oil and acrylics, watercolor, pastel portraiture, jewelry, weaving, stained glass, pottery, printmaking and silkscreen, several new classes have been added.

"Super Realism" will be taught by Mel Rosas, assistant professor of art, Wayne State University. In this class, the student will learn to see more precisely, then translate that ability into detailed realistic drawing.

Birmingham artists, Jo and Don Snyder are teaching this summer.

As a result of the new printmaking facilities at the art association, an opportunity to study Silkscreen with M.s. Snyder is available.

Snyder will teach "Wood and Metal Sculpture." Using materials such as wood and metal, Snyder's students will learn to create abstract sculptures where the concerns are relationships of three dimensional forms in space. In addition to the regular classes, special workshops in watecolor, design, a sketch trip to the Detroit Zoo, and wood block cutting and printing are scheduled.

Class are open to everyone. Class brochures, with descriptions, hours and fees, are available. For further information, call 644-0866.

The Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, a citizen sponsored art center, is at 1516 S. Cranbrook, between Fourteen Mile and Lincoln. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Muzzle loaders prepare event

Greenfield Village will host the 25th annual Muzzle Loaders Festival June 16 and 17.

More than 800 members of revived Civil War units and muzzle loader clubs plan to set their sights on clay pigeons and a host of old-time amusements.

Rebels and Yanks will recreate the excitement of an old-time turkey shoot and the pageantry of military garb and drills. The Muzzle Loaders Festival during its silver anniversary will offer new features as well. These will include a cavalry unit, the 6th Ohio Cavalry, and a campsite and teepee (open to visitors) similar to those used by the 17th and 18th century "voyageurs," the trappers and traders who opened up the uncharted West.

The festival will be the culmination of weeks of preparation for the 3,500 sharpshooters and family members who have painstakingly reproduced period costumes, molded bullets and performed sundry other little-known tasks — such as rubbing a concoction of beef lard and beeswax on their bullets for lubrication.

There will be no additional charge for the Muzzle Loaders Festival beyond the regular Village admission of $3.75 for adults and $1.75 for children ages 6 through 12. Children under 6 are admitted free.

Keith finds it hard to say 'no' to constituents

Staff photos by Gary Caskey

By MIKE SCANLON

State Rep. William Keith has a simple philosophy.

"What I am here for? I'm here to make laws. I'm a lawmaker. And when you get right down to it, to stop laws."

Keith is a four-term Democrat. That doesn't give him enough years in the legislature to qualify as a "lifer," but it's sufficient to have allowed him to gather some of the trappings of power, seniority-style.

He is chairman of the senior citizens and retirement committee, vice chairman of the education committee and chairman of the special committee on the public employee relations act.

He is also special administrator to the speaker.

"That takes more time than all the committees put together," said Keith of an appointment which makes him and state Rep. Raymond Hood, D-Detroit, jointly in charge of 800 House employees.

"You can recognize that this is not General Motors or Manufacturers National Bank. This is a political entity and the people who work here are not civil service. It is a product of the political days — 'if you work on my campaign, I'll get you a job.'

"That went on for years."

KEITH SAID it doesn't, nowadays.

"About the only things left as far as patronage jobs are pages and janitors," said Keith. Pages are 20-hour a week employees who earn $4 an hour.

Keith said one of the administrators biggest problems is how to deal with the remnants of the past — small incidents, like a former state senator who holds a state job paying thousands more than the non-former state senator he sits alongside.

Keith has also been around the house long enough to know how it runs. That's something he doesn't think always holds true for newspaper reporters.

"It's frustrating to me to pick up the paper and read the legislature hasn't done anything this year — it's very difficult to measure progress by a bill. It's a poor benchmark — it takes a lot more than voting on a bill."

Keith's feelings seem to spring from the idea that there are bills, and then there are bills.

As an example, Keith is presently sponsoring a bill intended to make it tougher to recall elected officials.

"THIS IS especially noticeable when you have a school district with declining enrollment. This hasn't been that much of a problem in Garden City, but you'll have a school board that knows it has to close a school, so it looks at schools A, B and C. They try to gather all the information and make a rational choice.

"If they close school B, the parents from that school start up a recall petition, and all the school board members were doing were their jobs. They did nothing wrong. When the election comes along, all the people from school B vote, but nobody votes from school A or C."

The actual change proposed by Keith is simple — the insertion of the words "misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance" into existing law. It is a bill that couldn't have taken Keith more than 10 minutes to write even if his pen ran out of ink midway.

On the other hand, Keith said he spent "thousands of hours" preparing a piece of legislation approved last year governing the use of Electronic Fund Transfer systems, or plastic money carried to the nth degree.

Keith was asked about criticism that the legislature sometimes makes unwise use of its time when it considers measures, like a recent proposal to require cat owners to purchase license tags for their pets.

"Every bill that we have, some 5,000-6,000 bills, is important to somebody. Who else is going to do it if we don't do it? Certainly, we wouldn't keep the lights on or heat up the building (for such bills), but as long as we're here anyway, we might as well consider them."

Keith's other views on the functionings of the legislature may seem unusual to some. He even has something good to say about lobbyists

His goal, he said, is "to have an impact on behalf of my constituents, even before the law is written, (to be able to say) 'Hey, I can't have that.' And the discussion could be out in the hall or even across the street in the coffee shop."

KEITH SAID he has made 33 round-trips between Lansing and Garden City since the first of the year. He isn't happy about that, especially since the price of gasoline started acting like a rising balloon.

"The demand on your time is sometimes unreal. Then you get to the point, do you say 'no' to a boy who's been elevated to Eagle Scout, do you say 'no' to a mother whose boy has passed on?

Keith was referring to the reasons for his two most recent trips to Garden City — speaking at the induction of an Eagle Scout, and delivering the eulogy at the funeral of Timothy O'Rourke, an 18-year-old boy who died recently of cancer.

"That was one of the most difficult things I've ever done," he said. "It took me seven hours to write that speech, and three minutes to deliver it."

FOR THE FUTURE , Keith says he has decided to seek re-election, and he wonders who his opponent will be. But he has other concerns.

"Now what's going to happen is we will probably go through 'til August and then we'll probably have one of those marathon sessions, 21, 23 hours, 1,000 roll call votes.

When we get through that everybody scatters and then you have the public hearings."

A former banker and an opponent of a constitutional amendment approved by voters last fall to allow credit unions to accept deposits from public governmental units, Keith said he was surprised when he learned that the Michigan Credit Union League had decided to give him an award.

By MIKE SCANLON

Three years of travel in the slow-moving horse latitudes of legislation have taught Robert Law to take his comfort where he may.

Framed on the wall of his Capitol office are copies of the first two Law-sponsored bills to pass through house subcommittees, house committees, the house floor, senate subcommittees, senate committees, the senate floor and finally wind up with the governor's signature and a place in Michigan's law books. For good measure, the governor's pen is also framed.

"Before I was elected I saw these transcripts in the Circuit Court, Recorder's Court," said Law, a Livonia attorney, who represents Livonia and Westland. "They cost a couple of million dollars a year, and they were automatically prepared. But a lot of the cases ended up being plea bargained, and the transcripts weren't needed.

"It wasn't anything earth-shattering, but a couple million dollars is a couple million dollars. Anyway, those were the first (with Law as prime sponsor), and I wasn't sure if there would be anymore.

"So I figured I'd better have them framed."

LAW HAS sponsored a lot of bills since — three times the legislative average last year, he says. Given his newly acquired seat on the powerful appropriations committee, it seems likely he'll sponsor a lot more bills.

But he still faces many of the problems that nearly always confront new legislators.

"Probably the major frustration is to try to deal, really, with the power structure that exists. And it's a combination of people who have seniority and special interest (groups). It all blends together and it makes it difficult to impact in a major way," said Law.

Most representatives have one secretary as staff.

"One secretary limits you in competing with bureaucracies that have much greater resources than we have. That's probably the hardest thing to deal with — you really have a competitive disadvantage."

Law is a Republican in a Democratic-dominated legislature. So his success with legislation, he says, "has been, I think, probably the most pleasing thing that might surprise somebody coming up — that you gain bipartisan support."

MEMBERSHIP ON the appropriations committee, political wisdom has it, leaves time for nothing else, so it is the only committee appointment for those assigned to it. Law belongs to appropriations subcommittees on retirement, transportation, general government and higher education. The transportation subcommittee has been taking a lot of time lately.

"There was a major problem on funding the subway," said Law.

At issue are huge state contributions to public transportation in southeast Michigan. When matched with federal aid and other funding sources, the total budget for that transit plan may reach $1.8 billion.

The problem was that last year the legislature decided that action on building a proposed Woodward Corridor subway as part of that plan should only take place if the legislature voted on it.

Law wants to amend the transportation budget so the subway-earmarked money could only be spent on a feasibility study.

Law says he is willing to wait for the results of the subway study before making a final decision on the issue, but he talks like a man with his mind just about made up.

HE TENDS TO oppose the subway, he says, because he doesn't think there is a guarantee it will provide development along its route, nor that the temporary jobs it will provide are enough to justify it, and perhaps most importantly:

"I can see between the subway and people mover at least $1 billion and . . . if you start spending $1 billion for a subway and a people mover, there wouldn't be enough to go around to the (other suburban) areas.

"I think the program SEMTA has developed is as much a social plan as a transportation plan. I have nothing against reviving downtown Detroit, I just don't think this is the method," said Law.

MUCH THE SAME suburbs vs. Detroit issue surfaces in Law's tentative opposition to construction in the Plymouth-Northville community of one of five proposed regional state prisons. They carry a collective price tag of $400 million.

"That program, when it's fully developed, will have a potential for 550 prisoners who will obviously come from the city of Detroit. The reason I say this is fully one-third of all the prisoners in the state come from Detroit," said Law.

But, says Law, "they haven't come to one agreement down there for building a prison in Detroit in four years of negotiations. Six thousand prisoners come from Detroit and they can't let in one prison in Detroit, it makes you sit up and take notice.

"I think we need more prison space and I think it should be more equitably distributed."

ON HINES PARK Law says "I've gotten more calls this year than in the last two years combined.

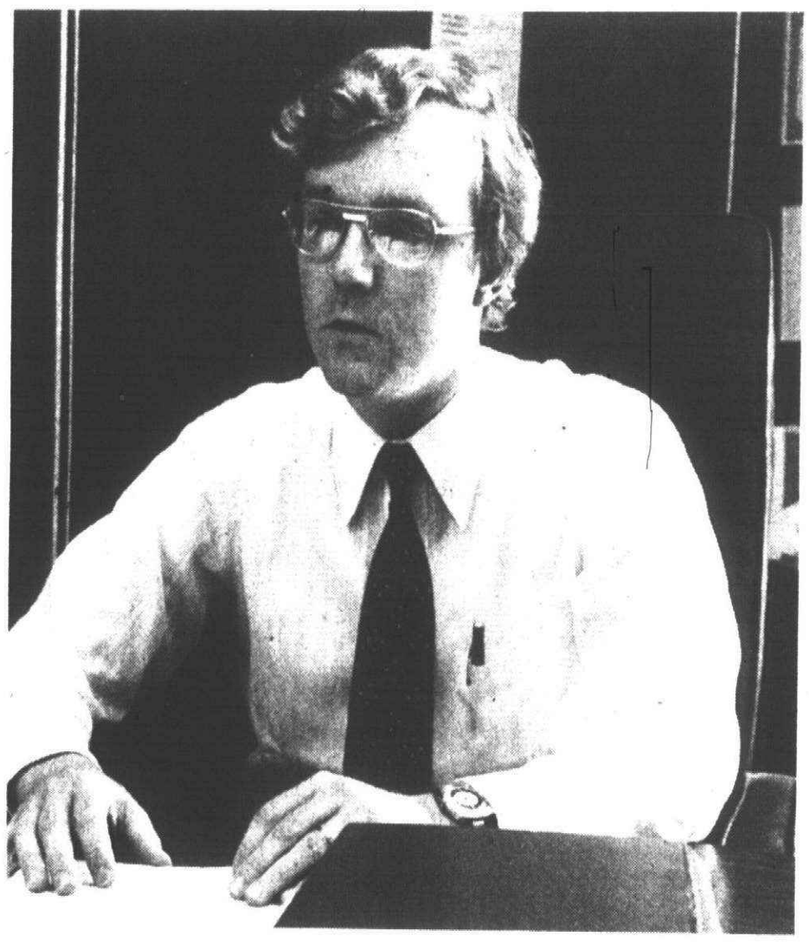
"You've got two things aggravating it. One, you've got the drinking age — and I can't prove that, but I believe it. And two, you've got the energy problem. People are worried about gas, they don't go away. Their kids don't go away, and so they have to go somewhere close by, and that means Hines.

"The legislature has done three or four or five major things already. We're going to try to come up with the capital outlay money to build a substation down there because the county just can't afford it."

The key to controlling Hines Park, Law says, is to "reduce traffic through ways of (Wayne County) Road Commission expertise, and if not, shut off traffic. If we can't find a way to reduce that traffic or control it . . . then possibly we'll have to close that park to vehicular traffic on the weekends."

LAW ALSO believes that local government in Wayne County has neglected to take full advantage of state legislation designed to reduce Hines Park problems. He says state money that could have been earmarked for Hines by Wayne County wasn't applied for in time to receive it for peak summer periods.

"That's something you'll have to take up with the (Wayne County) Board (of Commissioners)," said Law.



State Rep. Robert Law, R-Livonia, in his second term in the state House of Representatives, has enough seniority to gain him a seat on the House appropriations committee, but not enough to give him one of the choice offices. He has to settle for what you see here. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Rep. Jack Kirksey (R-Livonia) believes in making gains through the art of compromise.

Currently he's attempting to make strides in the area of workmen's compensation through legislation that will make Michigan an appealing place to set up business, as well as be employed.

In addition to several other committee seats, Kirksey holds the vice chairmanship of the House Labor Committee, where such legislation is of prime concern. He is also on the governor's task force to recommend legislation in this area. Kirksey represents Northville and part of Livonia.

The issue of reforming the state's present policies on workmen's compensation was a hot topic last season. However no action was taken and the topic is back for another try.

According to Kirksey, committee members will be submitting points for discussion in workmen's compensation within a week. His own list is comprised of 24 separate items.

"Over the years, judicial decisions have thrown it out of kilter," he said. "The Supreme Court, for example, has ruled that a claim does not in itself invalid the claim."

He added that even though fraudulent claims makeup a small percentage of the system's abuses, "they're enough to cost the fund a disproportionate amount."

KIRKSEY SAID that part of the problem rests in the state's insurance commission, which is responsible for approving premium limits set by insurance associations.

"Hopefully, we will convince insurance companies to realistically set their premiums."

Another area that needs attention, according to Kirskey, is a four-year backlog of claims to the system. High costs are incurred when rewards are based retroactively .

This summer he and other committee members will be traveling the state, talking to employers and employees, about solutions to the problems.

At this time, Michigan is among those states with lowest compensation benefits to employees, while also among those with the highest cost factors for employers.

Involved in any solution will be a tender balance satisfying both business and workers' needs, Kirksey points out.

"It's going to be a tradeoff. Both sides must be willing to accept something over what they have now. "The only missing link is that we are still subject to the judicial system of the Supreme Court."

IN ANOTHER PET area, Kirskey said bureaucrats are moving as if there "was no Headlee Amendment."

He referred to the Secretary of State's request calling for 73 new employees. The request was made to help the department during in its change for issuing annual license plates. The new system calls for issuing license plates on drivers' birthdates rather than just on the traditional March 31 deadline.

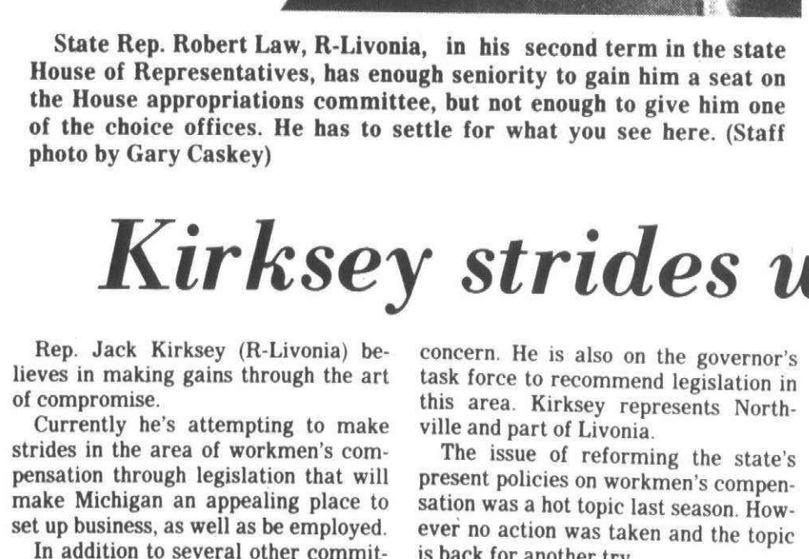
Kirksey is therefore working on a bill that would put a ceiling on new state hiring of employees.

"I don't think it will pass, but I'd like to see it where people voted on it."

A former schoolteacher, the Livonia representative said he prefers to regularly commute to Lansing. (Michigan legislators are granted $4,200 annual for living expenses at the capitol. However many suburban lawmakers from the Detroit area prefer to drive the distance daily.)

"I like to see people (constituents) regularly, even if it's in the supermarket someone will always bring something up."

According to Kirksey, a new car he purchased last spring has already registered 50,000 miles.



Rep. Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia, Northville, learns the art of compromise in Lansing.

Lately the Redford Democrat's suburban allegiance has been directed to the re-organization of the Detroit water system.

Bennett is calling for suburban representation on that system's governing board "to get the input of the suburbs in water bills."

According to Bennett, the suburban representation is crucial because "suburbs provide 90 percent of the funding."

The proposed legislation, introduced last Feburary, passed the house twice but was hung up in senate committee. He then reintroduced the proposed bill, which provides that membership of boards of water commissions must have representatives from the total service area when it serves more than 40 percent of the population of the state. The board is responsible for setting rates and charges for water and sewer service.

Under the act, the nine-member board would be comprised of five representatives of Detroit (appointed by the city's mayor) and four others from an assembly election comprised of all other serviced communities.

LIKE OTHER LEGISLATORS, Bennett shares in ironing out legislation after it's approved by house and senate. On one particular morning recently, Bennett was doing just that in the Roads and Bridges Committee of the house, a committee he chairs.

Prior to the public afternoon session of the house, this committee met to work out the implications of the recently passed mass transit package for the state. While the bills addressed fee increases for most state vehicles, one was omitted. So, on that day, committee members were working on the language of incorporating the costs of licensing for mopeds.

"We're just cleaning up after the package was passed," he said.

Another issue under discussion by that committee was the state ban on double-bottomed tankers. Legislators have worked on making loans available to independent truckers who now face a block to their livelihood. According to Bennett, these "one-man rigs" are hardest hit by the legislation.

He does not rule out the possiblity that the state could be hit with lawsuits if financial help isn't made available. At issue whether to provide these loans (beginning 1980) through the state's land transfer fund, which he said, "is the only one with any surplus."

DISCUSSING the power structure at the capitol, Bennett related that legislators often vie for membership on the House Appropriations Committee, one of the most active.

With more than 80 committees, subcommittees and special commitees activated, it's the job of the party chairperson to select their membership, and the house speaker determines the chairmanships.

"And, in a way, with 110 members it has to be like that.

"I wouldn't mind being on taxation (committee)," he added. "But they probably wouldn't put me on it because I'm too conservative. I don't go along with all these liberal spending ideas."

Dr. Richard J. Bayles shows the Chai award he received for 20 years of service to the Livonia Jewish Congregation. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

Dr. Bayles given 1979 Chai award

Dr. Richard J. Bayles, Redford Township osteopathic physician and second president of the Livonia Jewish Congregation (LJC), is holder of the "Chai" award that the congregation bestows as one of its highest honors.

The award was presented at a recent congregational dinner. Chai is the Hebrew word for "to live" and has become the name of the award LJC gives to the person considered to have contributed most to the synagogue life.

In Dr. Bayles' case it is an honor bestowed for 20 years of service to the congregation. He was the second person named to head the congregation when it was organized in this area, and he continues to serve on its board of directors.

Service for Dr. Bayles also extends outside the LJC congregation. He is a member of the National Rehabilitation Association, active with the Boys Club, the Rotary Club and the Optimist Club and for 10 years has been a director of the Redford Information Center on Drugs.

He also is a member of B'nai B'rith, a probation officer in Plymouth and a member of the CETA planning council in his home city of Livonia.

Always ready to work with youth, he currently serves as athletic examiner for two high school teams.

A native of Detroit, Dr. Bayles graduated in 1952 from Eureka College in Illinois, where he affiliated with Kappa Sigma Kappa fraternity and the science fraternity.

Earlier he had served in the Korean War as a laboratory technician. He is a member of the Disabled American Veterans.

After teaching biology at the University of Detroit, he enrolled at Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine in Missouri, graduating in 1958.

He interned at Ziegler Osteopathic Hospital in Detroit, opening his Redford Township office in 1959.

Dr. Bayles was chief of staff at Martin Place Hospital, Detroit, from 1973 until that institution's closing in 1977. Certified in family practice, he is a member of the American Osteopathic Association, the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, and the Wayne County Osteopathic Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Bayles have two children and one grandchild. Their son, Kenneth, is completing an osteopathic residency at Grand Pairie, Texas, where he is making his home with his wife, Shirley, and their 18-month-old son, Benjamin. Daughter Sharon Bayles works for a home health care agency.

The family also is affiliated with Adat Shalom Synagogue in Farmington Hills.

Market Watch

By JOHN E. VERNIER

Gasoline shortage sends shock waves throughout ecomomy

While the public is blaming the oil companies and the oil companies are blaming the politicians, the politicians are blaming the Arab oil producing nations for creating the renewed energy problem that is spreading across the country with deeper seriousness each day.

The impact of the gasoline shortage has already sent deep shock waves throughout the economy. And from what we are told, this is only the beginning. Experts are warning us that the situation is likely to get worse before it gets better — if ever.

Among other things, the demand for small cars has soared while the sale of larger cars has slowed to a trickle.

The average motorist, who rarely filled his gas tank beyond the half-full mark, is now fearful of allowing his tank to drop below that same level.

WALL STREET analysts are working overtime in search of ideas that will benefit and protect investors from this sudden turn of events.

The oil stocks would seem quite obviously to stand the best chance of benefitting the most from the country's dilemma. Therefore, they are under the closest scrutiny by a protective Washington and will be held accountable for every move.

There have been many accusations made recently regarding the huge profits chalked up by the oil companies and how they have deliberately created the conditions that have led to the oil crunch.

It is not my purpose to act as a defender for the oil industry. They have a very strong lobby in the nation's capital that is more then capable of handling that for them.

But in fairness, the folowing facts are worth noting:

THE STOCK market reached an important low in late 1974. Measuring from that point to the present, the market, as represented by the Dow Jones Industrial Averages, has improved by 32 points. While the combined earnings of the 30 components has remained about the same, the dividend payout has increased by some 26 percent.

By way of specific comparisons, following are the figures on several companies in various key industries. The name of the company will be followed by the percentage change in earnings, the change in dividend, and the change in price from year-end 1974 through the present. All figures are plusses unless indicated.

Sears (72, 37, minus 20), J.C. Penny (30, 45, minus 16) K-Mart (67, 189, 22).

General Motors (183, 150, 90), Ford (553, 68, 59), Texaco (2, 0, 23), Exxon (10, 32, 62), Str'd Calif. (42, 27, 118), Mobil (33, 26, 108), Str'd Indiana (37, 40, 56), Gulf (12, 12, 44).

American Broadcasting (640, 87, 311), CBS (66, 62, 45). Bristol Myers (38, 50, 36, Colgate (24, 42, minus 33), Procter and Gamble (minus 52, 42, 0).

WHILE THE OIL stocks have all performed well, they have not outpaced the rest of the market by any great measure. Other areas have done better.

It is quite evident that we are faced with a very serious problem — one for which there are no short-term answers.

The oil industry is vital toward the solution of the problem. In the interim, many adjustments in lifestyle will have to be made by all of us in adapting to the scarcity of fuel.

Hopefully, in the long-run, alternate sources of power will be found and our dependence upon foreign sources of oil will end.

What a great day that will be!

Water board chairman named

Waterford Township Supervisor James E. Seeterlin is the first chairperson of the areawide water quality board, the watchdog agency for water pollution control programs in southeast Michigan.

The 27-member board also elected Richard A. Rudnicki, Livingston County drain commissioner, and Peggy Johnson, executive secretary of the Clinton River watershed council, to serve as vice chairpersons.

The board is composed of elected officials and business, education, conservation and technical representatives from Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe, Livingston and St. Clair counties. It was created to monitor the implementation of a comprehensive water quality management plan developed by the Southeat Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

Along with other tasks, the board is responsible for monitoring the construction schedules of wastewater treatment facilities and the implementation of programs to control non-point (from lands and streets) sources of water pollution.

It will review and comment on: water quality-related federal grant applications, state permits for sewage systems, permits for discharge to ground and surface waters, and major land use development plans.

It will oversee the performance of some 200 agencies in the region that are involved in water quality activities and, when necessary, report violations or noncompliance to appropriate enforcement agencies.

It also will act as an ombudsman for citizens' water quality complaints.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of governmental units in Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne counties. Its principal function is long-range planning for transportation, housing, land use, recreation and open space, water quality, criminal justice and the environment.

Recruiting success

According to the patrol, business concerns offered window space for posters, and school officials welcomed CAP's recruiters during lunch hours.

Twenty of the recruits and some parents have already visited the unit's meeting, which is held every Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Plymouth Salem High School.

The Civil Air Patrol said that more recruits are expected to visit the unit over the next few weeks.

At their first meeting, the recruits were addressed by Captain William House, the squadron commander; 1st Lt. Sam Thomas, the emergency services officer for the Michigan wing; Glenn Liston, the squadron aerospace education officer; and Cadet 2nd Lt. Jane Sullivan, the cadet commander.

Among the topics discussed were the four-phase cadet program of leadership, aerospace education, aerobics and activities, emergency services and membership application procedures and requirements.

Prepare thy self

Search for value

By JOHN CZUBAJ

(The author, John Czubaj, is a human relations instructor from this area who regularly holds classes in the Plymouth Hilton.)

It was said that when the great library of Alexandria was destroyed by fire everything was lost except one small book.

The book seemed to have little value so it was sold to a very poor man for only a few coppers.

As the new owner of the book thumbed through the smoke-stained pages, he found a strip of vellum which had been used as a marker and on it he found the message of the touchstone.

It explained that the touchstone was a small black pebble which always was warm to the touch and that anyone who owned it would have the power to turn ordinary metals into pure gold.

The message revealed that the touchstone had been lost somewhere on the shores of the Black Sea.

After days of travel he arrived and set up a tent near the shore.

He then began the tedious search for the warm touchstone. He picked up a pebble and felt that it was cold and would throw it back into the sea so he wouldn't have to bother with it again.

He picked up another and it, too, was cold so he threw it into the sea. And then another and another and another, but all felt cold so he threw them into the sea.

Months went by as he continued to search for the warm stone which he dreamed would make him a man of great wealth and position.

And then one day, after searching for more than a year, he picked up a little black pebble and it was warm. But, before he realized it, he threw it into the sea.

AND SO IT IS with opportunity.

Many people search for months or years, or even a lifetime, for that one big chance and fail to recognize it if it does appear.

Or even worse, they fail to see many smaller opportunities which pass them by day after day.

The saying "Opportunity knocks only once" is far from fact. The truth is that opportunity is all around us each day, but somehow we so often fail to recognize it.

Success seldom is achieved because of one big opportunity which happens along one day. Instead it is a result of our recognizing and taking advantage of a succession of small opportunities as we go through life.

When the builder erects a great brick structure, he uses many small bricks. He places them one of top of the other — they finally form the enormous wall.

CETA job service center re-locates

There is a new central enrollment services center for Wayne County residents seeking employment under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Known as the Wayne County Office of Manpower's Central Intake Unit, the center is located in J Building on the grounds of Wayne County General Hospital at Michigan and Merriman roads in Eloise.

"The new center will permit WCOM staff members to assess each individual applicant for participation in any of the more than 65 programs run under the seven distinct title classifications of CETA funding," said Richard E. Manning, D-Redford, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

"Those who qualify for CETA may be placed in job training situations that range from governmental work to audio-visual technician duties," he said.

ARTHUR LEWIS, director of WCOM, said qualifications for participation vary by program category, but certain criteria are relevant to all CETA applicants. Lewis said that all applicants must be: • Residents of Wayne County (excluding Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia) for at least 30 days.

• Unemployed for a substantial period of time (usually 10 to 20 weeks prior to application).

• Economically disadvantaged — having an annual family income that ranges from a maximum of $340 for a family of one to $10,100 for a family of six.

"Individuals who meet these criteria and are interested in a CETA job should contact the Central Intake Unit at 326-6130 as soon as possible for additional information," Manning said. "A substantial number of job training openings are currently available," he added.

WCOM DEPUTY Director Edward R. Koch said: "The new Central Intake Unit permits us to more fully serve the needs of CETA applicants in a location closer to their homes. The center affords us the opportunity to offer them the full range of CETA training programs and supportive services.

"We now have a better chance to place participants in the training situation most beneficial to each individual."

The CETA legislation was origianlly passed by Congress in 1973 to provide training and eventual placement opportunities to individuals who could be classfied as "hard-core unemployed" and/or economically disadvantaged. Congress passed the act in response to the high unemployment rate prevalent at the time.

It has continued as a training program disigned to ease the unemployment rate and provide its participants with salable job skills through special instructional programs and on-the-job training.

Locally, the Wayne County Office of Manpower, as prime sponsor, administers the program on behalf of the board of commissioners in all county communities except Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia. These communities are excluded because all have populations over 100,000 and, thus, are also prime sponsors.

Chessie engine retired by fire

The Chessie Steam Special that has been an attraction in Plymouth for the past several years will not be making the trip this summer.

The famed train was taken off the schedule when its locomotive was damaged by a fire in the round house in Kentucky where it was stored for the winter.

The Steam Special belongs to Ross Roland of New York City and was leased each summer to make the trips along the C&O lines.

Plymouth Township eyes master water plan

A master water plan which will guide future development in Plymouth Township is slated for adoption June 26.

The plan is based on a $25,000 report of the township's water system, including existing problems and future needs, by the Pitometer Associates, a Chicago firm specializing in water distribution surveys for the past 75 years.

William Gros, vice president of the firm, was on hand last week to capsule the report as well as answer questions of board members concerning the extensive survey.

Dividing the township into three districts, the report predicts that the second district, the western end, will absorb the vast majority of the growth over the next 15 years, forecasting a township population of 50,000 in 1993.

The present system, with some improvements, should be satisfactory until 1983-85, while another connection with the Detroit system will be needed by the mid- '80's.

Fun in the summer . . . It's music in the air

There you are. It's a nice warm summer evening and you're all set to wash the car.

But phooey on that. You toss a blanket into the dirty set of wheels and tool off to the nearest park instead.

It's a summer concert. You wear whatever you want, lay back and watch the stars — on stage or in the sky. It's what you were waiting for all winter.

THE PANORAMA of outdoor music basically comes in three forms.

There are the freebies in the park, usually run by the local department of parks and recreation. There are the Meadow Brooks and Pine Knobs, where you have to shell out the bucks to get a patch of grass or where you have to shell out the bigger bucks to get a seat.

And there are the hotel gigs, usually held around the pool, which might take on the air of a singles bar. You pay the bucks, try to look spiffy, and get a dose of the old peer pressure if you don't have a drink in your hand.

To each his own, we say.

Obviously, when you shell out the dough you expect to get some fancier entertainment than you'll generally get for free. But, on the other hand, the freebies are more relaxed, you can decide to go on the spur of the moment and . . . well, they're free.

The freebies include groups like the Detroit Concert Band, which bills itself as "America's flagship professional concert band" and plays classics, pops, show tunes and marches. They play for free at Hart Plaza and the State Fairgrounds, and you can pay to see them complete with fireworks on July 1 at Meadow Brook, where the Detroit Symphony Orchestra is in residence for the summer.

The suburban series, such as those in Birmingham and Livonia, include a variety of groups, ranging from high school bands to barbershop groups to converted marching bands. In Plymouth, the Plymouth Community Band plays each Thursday.

Up at Pine Knob, the pop and rock groups attract crowds that back up traffic for miles, with some people drinking beer out of pop bottles.

BUT ENOUGH of the details. It's summer. It's the time to be outdoors.

We've accumulated whatever information we could find for you. Remember to call ahead for reservations or tickets at the joints where you have to pay.

And don't worry about the bugs. Or that dirty car.

● AND THE REST

The not-so-singles, meanwhile, are left to their own devices. Sunday is Father's Day, of course, and the Black Sheep Repertory Theater in Manchester, southwest of Ann Arbor, is admitting fathers free on Sunday with one paid admission.

The show is "Berlin to Broadway," with music of Kurt Weill. The musical covers 20 years of war and peace from Van Hindenburg to Truman. Sunday shows are at 4 p.m. and the play also runs Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8:15 p.m. For reservations, call 428-9280.

● LIGHTS IN THE ATTIC

The Attic Theater Auxiliary is holding a fund-raising auction this Sunday in the parking lot next to the theater, at 525 E. Lafayette around the block from Detroit's Greektown. Funds will be used to buy a fancy lighting and dimming system for the theater.

Bidding starts at 4 p.m., with viewing available an hour ahead of time. There will be an assortment of merchandise, art and antiques. Admission is free.

● DIRECTORS SOUGHT

The Garden City Civic Theater is looking for directors for three shows next season. Scheduled are "The Good Doctor" by Neil Simon in November, "Company" by Stephen Sondheim in March, and "Mouse Trap" by Agatha Christie in May.

Resumes are being accepted through June 18 at Box 67, Garden City 48135. Salaries will be determined by experience and ability, they say.

● NO CATS, PLEASE

Livonia Mall is exhibiting arts and crafts from Mexico starting Tuesday and running through June 24. Also, some Mexican dancers will be performing. The exhibit is free inside the mall at Seven Mile and Middlebelt.

We're giving away tickets

We have a slight problem. Maybe you can help.

We find ourselves with tickets for 18 children (12 or under) and two adults to the Dobritch International Circus in Westland at on Aug. 31. The showing is sponsored by the Wayne County Deputy Sheriff's Association.

Since we're all to old to qualify, we're going to put them up for grabs.

If you have a group of kids who would love a two-hour show under the big top, write us a letter — 50 words is the limit — explaining why they deserve to go. Deadline for entries is July 31.

Judging will be done by a crack panel of impartial editors. Send entries to Circus, Section 4, The Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

On Newburgh Lake

Fishing derby this Saturday

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

There will be an impressive batch of prizes waiting for the youngster who catches the biggest fish and for dozens of others in Saturday's Tom Sawyer-Becky Thatcher fishing derby on Newburgh Lake.

Anglers from 6-16, will be showing up at 7 a.m. to get started. They should register first (if they haven't pre-registered by mail) with the Western Wayne County Conservation Association at Newburgh Point along Hines Drive, west of Newburgh Road in Livonia.

Everyone who registers will receive either a gold Eagle Claw hook or a kite from the conservation club.

A HIGHLIGHT of the day will be the Tom Sawyer and Becky Thatcher look-alike contest, based on characters in the Mark Twain novel.

Top winners will each receive a rod and reel from Northwest Gun Shop in Redford, a set of Eppinger lures, an acrylic cutting board made by Boys Club of Redford, a set of picnic dishes, a large styrofoam plane, a Frisbee and a Duncan yo-yo.

HERE ARE prizes which weren't announced earlier.

Grand prize for the largest fish of the day will be a five-drawer Old Pal tackle box full of lures from Livonia Tackle Supply. Typically, the grand prize goes for a largemouth bass, though the winner could be of any species.

All youngsters who catch their legal limits of 25 panfish will be eligible for a drawing. Prizes will include a sleeping bag, unicycle, set of lures and pogo stick.

Largest northern pike will bring a backpack from the conservation club and a snake bite kit from Campers Paradise of Livonia. The same prizes will go to the angler with the largest golden carp (goldfish.)

IS NEWBURGH Lake worth while?

This writer and a friend dropped in a canoe there early Sunday and were surprised to find a dozen other adult parties on the western end of the lake alone.

A number of boats and canoes were on the water. There is no launch, so we had to carry our craft a short distance to the water. There were no motorcraft.

Fish weren't biting well in the 80-plus heat, but the water was full of them. I took several scrappy bluegills on wet flies. All were females and full of eggs.

It seemed late for fish to be spawning, but you have to remember we had a pretty severe winter. And it means adult panfish will still be in the shallows close to shore when the young anglers go after them this Saturday.

Fishing for bass with spinners was a little tricky because of the weeds, but that won't matter to the derby contestants because they will be still-fishing with natural bait.

KENSINGTON Metropark near Milford has several programs lined up for the weekend and week ahead.

A fossil hunt will be held at the nature center at 1 p.m. Sunay, June 17. Register in advance by calling the nature center at 685-1561. The nature center is on the west side of the lake.

Two nature cruises aboard the excursion boat "Island Queen" are coming up. One is at 9 a.m. Sunday, the other at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Auction to aid Meadow Brook Hall

In commemoration of Meadow Brook Hall's 50th anniversary, C. B. Charles' Galleries of Pontiac will present a benefit auction to help preserve and maintain Meadow Brook estate buildings and grounds.

The public is invited to attend on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 15, 16, 17, at the Meadow Brook riding ring. No admission will be charged.

Among the objects to be auctioned, will be a rare, certified 11.08 carat natural black diamond up for bidding Saturday, June 16, at 3 p.m. This unusual gem will be on view during exhibition and auction hours.,

The auction will also feature antiques, collectables and decorative accessories for home or office and pieces from several major estates and collections.

A self-portrait by Katharine Hepburn will be of special interest to collectors and movie buffs.

Other items to go on the block will be period and exemplary furniture, oriental screens, original oil paintings (referenced artists), bronze and marble statuary, large ivory collection, netsukes and snuff bottles, fine porcelains (Meissen, Sevres and KPM), oriental rugs of varying sizes, jade and hardstones such as lapis, malachite and rose quartz, chess sets, clocks, Satsuma, Kutani and Chinese porcelains, art glass, crystal, pewter, sterling silver and a large jewelry collection including pieces from the Joan Crawford estate not previously released for sale.

Friday's auction begns at 7:30 p.m., Saturday's at noon and Sunday's at 1 p.m.

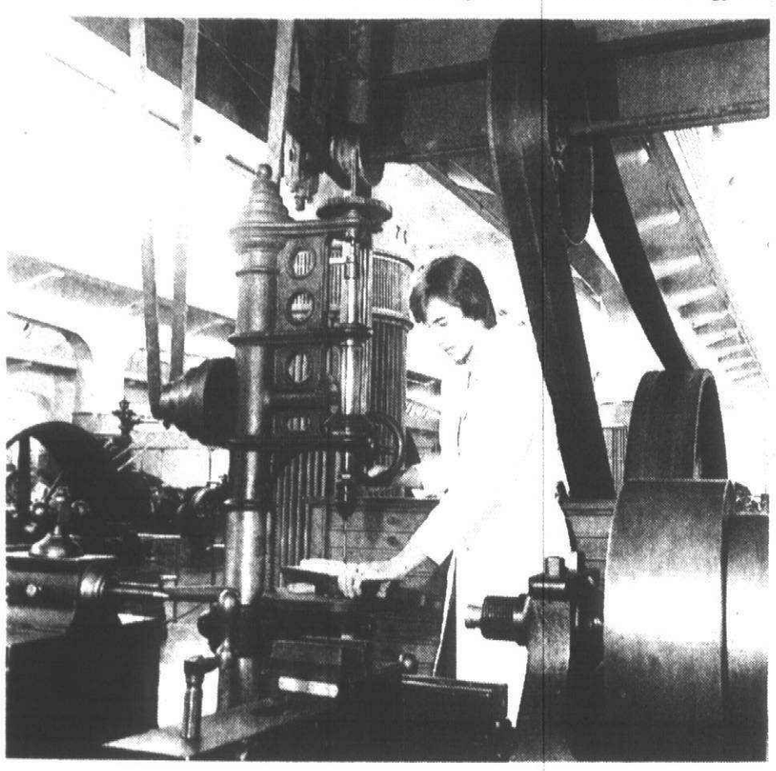
The great shuffle is finally done at Henry Ford Museum

As any housewife knows, 50 years of collecting things can lead to quite a bewildering array. The problem of how to arrange things in an orderly, understandable way is compounded 1,000 times when it's a museum rather than one person doing the collecting.

The Henry Ford Museum with its quarter-million artifacts faced a problem that would boggle the mind of most individuals — how to make that vast eight-acre Hall of Technology and the decorative arts galleries more meaningful. The hall and galleries together cover 14 acres or the space of a dozen football fields.



In the newly designed Hall of Technology of Henry Ford Museum, Mitch Scheidel demonstrates the transfer of power via giant wheels and leather belts from an 1884 Putnam steam engine to an 1860 drill press.

Just this month, to answer the problem, the museum opened its new Interpretative Center, a 32,000 square foot museum-in-micrososm. In the 45-minute tour through the Interpretative Center, the visitor can sample the entire collection and in the process make some decisions about what areas he would like to explore in greater depth.

The center, part of a $2.4-million program to reorganize, simplify, color code and interpret the vast collection has an easy-to-follow atmosphere about it. The items selected as representational of the 300 year development of American history are attractively displayed.

THE SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIAL, blown up photographs of the site, the handbills, front pages of newspapers and when possible, the people involved, all help recreate the original atmosphere. This combination of actual items — the chair Lincoln was sitting in when shot, Tom Thumb's billiard table, the early power machinery, plows, household items, all tell the story of how Americans lived, worked, amused themselves and coped with happy and tragic events.

From the Interpretative Center there are entrances to the major areas in the Hall of Technology — the agriculture section, home arts, transportation and lighting and communications. The introduction to each of these too has been updated and rearranged, so before plunging into the midst of things, the viewer will have a clear idea of the layout, what is included and why.

William Clay Ford, museum board chairman, ordered this reorganization three years ago. Herb Rosenthal & Associates of Los Angeles was hired to create the Interpretative Center. Since the reorganization was started, the changes have been going on while the 1.7 million people who visit the musuem and Greenfield Village streamed in and out.

Seven new shows have been added to the Street of Shops which displays collections of items in store-front settings.

At the dedication of the Interpretative Center this month, Frank Caddy, president of the village and museum, said, "It's a project that has taken two-and-a-half years to complete and involved the work of literally hundreds of people. We've provided a carpeted setting for most of our jewels; we've borrowed display techniques from modern industry; and, most importantly, we've provided an extensive labeling system that will give our visitors a much more comprehensive look at that marvel of American enterprize."

HENRY FORD BEGAN COLLECTING items for the village and museum with the idea of preserving objects that were part of the lives of those who built America. His approach to history was practical.

His concern was that future generations wouldn't understand what made the country the world leader in technology unless the objects that led to the development were preserved for them to see.

About 3,000 muzzle loading buffs and their families will swoop down on the village for tests of marksmanship, parades and military inspections. They will make camp on the village grounds in their Civil War costumes, recreating the crafts and martial discipline of the era.

The affair runs 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday.

The Rocky collection — a mixed bag

Sculptor Margaret Valpey: "It isn't only counterfeiting. I think Mr. Rockefeller was taking an ego trip when he did this."

Antique dealer H. George Bickelmann: "It's fine as long as they're properly identified and can't be mistaken."

By JULIE BROWN

Nelson Rockefeller's collection of art reproductions at Gorman's Gallery in Southfield opened last week,, and reactions to it have been mixed.

"I don't object to this being done in principle, as long as It's done well," said Birmingham antique dealer George Bickelmann. "It's fine as long as they're properly identified and can't be mistaken."

Bickelmann said with such a collection, "People who can't afford good originals can have reproductions. If a museum can make a reproduction from its own collection, why can't Rockefeller? Why shouldn't he?"

Al Mondello, owner of Mondello Interiors of Birmingham, said he believed the cost of the collection was too high.

"IF IT'S A REPRODUCTION, it shouldn't be all that expensive," he said. "I think it's an awful lot of money for a reproduction. Other collections could have been brought to the public that have a lot more intrinsic value."

"We've enjoyed it very much," said Gorman's Gallery owner Bernie Moray. "It has evoked a tremendous amount of interest.

It's controversial, and we're aware of that."

"We find we're selling things almost daily," Moray said. He mentioned an 18th century Japanese cat figure, which sells for $125, and a modern sculpture, "Torso 1932" by French-born American artist Gaston Lachaise, as two of the most popular items.

The sculpture, which is cast in bronze and gold-plated, sells for $1,250.

Moray said that according to William J. Ronan, an expert on the collection, the sculpture was Rockefeller's favorite piece and was kept in his bedroom. It was removed following Happy Rockefeller's surgery for breast cancer.

"I think he had a genuine feeling to share," Moray said.

"His accumulation of things was widely scattered and very varied. He sent people all over the world to find the people who could reproduce small items."

"As inflation continues, these will obviously be worth more," he said. "They're priced so you can enjoy it in the home, while it appreciates in your eyes."

Michael Miller, an art teacher at Birmingham Groves High school, said, "I was concerned about the quality of the objects. Some of the things might have been selected for instant sell, such as the female nudes with oversized breasts."

"I'm sure some people will use them as a conversation piece," he said.

ANNA KENEDI, OWNER of Anna Kenedi Design Associates, Birmingham, said the collection is "making art a little more accessible to the public."

"It's a very urban idea," she said. "It brings the city into the suburbs, and we need that. In Europe, in the old days, you lived the art in the streets."

"Art," she said, "is like music, you don't have to always understand it to enjoy it."

Margaret Valpey, Birmingham sculptor, did not approve of the collection.

"I WROTE TO MR. ROCKEFELLER expressing my disapproval with this," she said. "It isn't only counterfeiting. I think Mr. Rockefeller was taking an ego trip when he did this."

"The price of them is comparable to the price of a good original," she said. "It's a sad state of affairs that someone of such stature in the art world would do this."

"The Rockefeller collection is not protecting people who bought a limited edition," she said. "This is photographically reproduced, which is not real art. This is why this stuff is even worse for people who get prints, because they're not real prints."

The collection is at Gorman's Gallery, 29145 Telegraph in Southfield, and will be there through August.

From the Wine Press

RICHARD WATSON

Sampling the best of Italy

Her many sub-regions produce more than 200 varieties of wine grapes. Most of them are red, though a fair amount of soft, rather pale white wine is produced as well — Soave, Frascati, Orvieto and Verdicchio.

A very high percentge of the standard red wines of Italy sold in the United States is of four types. All tend to be relatively light, fruity, affordable and not particularly distinquished. They are designed to be drunk very young and chilled. Any of them is fine for accompanying pasta dishes, and any can make a firey pizza go down more readily. They are sold as Lambrusco, Valpolicella, Bardolino and the simple Chianti.

These wines offend no one (except perhaps Lambrusco which is extremely sweet) and are intended as quaffing stuff. There is no depth, complexity or sophistication to any of them and they can be used interchangeably with a Beaujolais or a California Burgundy or Rose. They also serve the same function as beer with rich foods.

Beyond these, however, there are several wines of astonishing quality, almost always priced well below a French or California quality counterpart. At the heart of these premium wines are two grapes, one a truly noble red and the other a fine one.

THE NEBBIOLO IS IN MANY WAYS as great as the Cabernet Sauvignon, except in Italy where it does not do well, and the Pinot Noir. It produces the Borolo, the Barbaresco, the Gattinora and the Spanna wines.

All four are worthy of exploration. They require age (10-20 years) before attaining full maturity. By trying three or four of each type you can quickly explore the beautiful possibilities in each.

All of these are grown only in the Piedmont area of Italy and reflect the bold yet gentle nature found in the hills in which they are grown. Borolo and Barbaresco tend to be the more elegant of the group, the last two being chewey and very mouth-filling.

The other red grape of esteem is the Sangiovese. it is used to give the strength found in the Chianti Classico, a well known but often overlooked wine. It represents a radically different concept in wine making from the simple Chianti.

It smells of many elements, a most complex wine rounded velvety smooth at its best. The word Riseva appended to a Classico is a further assurance of pre-bottling age (three years). The mid-1960 Chiantis are just now beginning to attain their maturity.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST ITALIAN of them all is one exclusively made from the Sangiovese grape. This is the Brunello. This wine can be big like a Burgundy though it is more challenging and lacks the latter's smoothness. Hard to find and not inexpensive, this is a wine to lay away for at least 20 years. You'll have to hunt for this one but, when found, it should already be several years old.

One-acts this weekend

The Wayne-Westland Civic Theater is presenting its cabaret theater at 8 p.m. this Friday and Saturday at St. John Episcopal Church, 555 S. Wayne Road. Three one-act plays are being presented.

"Trifles" by Susan Glaspell is based on a newspaper account of a woman's trial for the murder of her husband. In the play, the county attorney (played by Bill Hoffman) and the sheriff (Fred Button) return to the scene of the murder. They are accompanied by Mr. Hale (Marv Nochman), Mrs. Hale (Maggie Applegate) and Mrs. Peters (Annette Parent). Each finds pieces of evidence that could lead to the motive for the murder. Jeannie Thomas is directing the play.

"The Stronger," written by August Strindberg, is a drama involving two actresses meeting at a ladies' cafe. Cast includes Linda Miller, Doreen Marhofer and Becky Moorehead. Director is Rosemary Moorehead.

"Adaptation," by Elaine May, is a comedy presented in the form of a game show. The games master (played by Tobin Hissong) explains that the contestant (Danny Thompson) must land on the "security square" of the gameboard to win. Only catch is that there is no "security square." Other cast members are Karen Anderson and Dennis Holcomb. Director is Gail Susan Mack with the assistance of Kevin Barry.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

Will-O-Way Theater seeks new home

By JULIE BROWN

Another chapter of history is about to end for the Will-O-Way Apprentice Theater in Bloomfield Township.

"We are looking for a new place," said Celia Merrill Turner, director of the theater. "We have sold the land and paid off the debt, and are now looking at places in southern Oakland County."

The theater, which has been operated by Mrs. Turner and her husband, manager Ken Turner, since its beginning in 1949, has had financial difficulties in recent years. Will-O-Way received funding from the Cultural Council of Pontiac in 1978. A benefit performance of "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide" was staged at Detroit's Fisher Theater in June 1978, with proceeds going to the Save the Will-O-Way Fund.

"I INTEND TO develop it," Schmier said. "I will be filing with the Oakland County Circuit Court. The theater won't be torn down until they're ready to relocate."

"We have time," Mrs. Turner said, "anywhere from nine months to three years."

The theater is currently staging Meredith Willson's "The Music Man." The show opened Friday, June 1, and will run through Saturday, June 23.

"We have been running without grant help," Mrs. Turner said. "We wanted to show that theater can live by itself."

A number of Will-O-Way students have gone on to become prominent in theater, including Woodie King Jr., Canadian tragic actress Martha Henry and comedian Michael Binder. "George C. Scott was here on and off as a director for many years," Mrs. Turner said.

Celia Merrill Turner is director of Will-O-Way.

"WE HAVE BEEN marvelously successful with our graduates joining the profession," she said. "A great many people are in the business now and doing very well."

The theater intends to hold a five-week summer term, which will begin July 16. Will-O-Way has been licensed as a trade school of the theater since 1949.

Students of all ages take classes at Will-O-Way. "A theater has to have classes for children, teens and adults," Mrs. Turner said. "We try always to use the right age actor for the part. We have a great advantage, because we have all ages."

In addition to "The Music Man," the theater will stage "Fiddler on the Roof" this summer. Try-outs will be held on Sunday, June 17, and the show will open Friday, July 13.

"We hope to run it through most of the summer," Mrs. Turner said. "This may be our last year in this position."

THE THEATER has also staged "Oklahoma," "Bye-Bye Birdie" and "The King and I" this year.

"We are a theater school, and we want to extend and become a music school," Mrs. Turner said. "Theater and music go together."

Channel 56

They're still looking for money

Channel 56, faced with an impending fiscal year deficit, has launched a "Last Ditch Appeal" for the month of June to offset projected losses for the year.

It will run one-minute notices during the day in order to reach as many viewers as possible and appeal for donations. Also, the channel is contacting present contributors to the station and asking for an additional donation.

The "Last Ditch Appeal" is being made because Channel 56 faces a record deficit of more than $100,000 for the 1978-79 fiscal year, according to Development Director Agnes Scott. Despite the success of various pledge nights and the auction, in which the station raised more money than ever before, the costs of purchasing and presenting programs has outpaced the returns from these efforts.

If the shortage of funds continues, then Channel 56 will be forced to use money allocated for the 1979-80 year. This maans that there will have to be cutbacks in station services and program purchases for the coming year.

Anyone with questions concerning the "Last Ditch Appeal" is invited to contact the station. Donations can be made anytime day or night by phoning pledges to 1-800-648-5321.

. . . and popular series is back

"I, Claudius," the series that depicts the murderous intrigue and unparalleled lust that characterized the rulers of ancient Rome, has returned to Channel 56 on Sundays at 9 p.m.

This 13-part British production of of "I, Claudius" won six awards on the BBC and will be seen on PBS as part of the "Masterpiece Theater" series.

"I, Claudius" is based on the best-selling novels by Robert Graves and is set in ancient Rome. It tells the story of the Claudians, the family whose business was ruling the world. The single-minded pursuit of power that was inherent within the family eventually led to their downfall as well as that of Rome's.

The series stars Derek Jacobi as the stuttering, limping Claudius who surprised everyone by becoming emperor. Also featured area Sian Phillips as the evil Livia, Brian Blessed as Augustus, John Hurt as Caligula and Margaret Tyzack as Antonia.

Shuttle explained in U-M space series

The University of Michigan Astronomical Film Festival will present a free public program, "The Space Shuttle: Latest Prospects and Problems," at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Auditorium 3 of the Modern Languages Building.

Jim Loudon, festival director and staff astronomer for U-M's Exhibit Museum, will discuss the shuttle's landmark events — "from the atmospheric flight tests of the orbiter 'Enterprise' to the rollout and flight to Cape Canaveral of the 'Columbia,' which will be the first shuttle orbiter actually to enter space."

He will show films about the astronauts who will fly the shuttle, including the United States' first women to fly in space.

Because of the shuttle's developmental problems, its first scheduled flight has been delayed from last March to this November or even later, Loudon said.

"The shuttle will cut the cost of getting into space to a tenth its present value," he added. It will be capable of such things as "orbiting non-astronaut passengers and retrieving unmanned satellites that have malfunctioned in orbit."

The Astronomical Film Festival is sponsored by U-M's Exhibit Museum and department of aerospace engineering.

Theater reopens July 5 at WSU

Alan Ayckbourn's comedy "Absurd Person Singular" will open the Summer Theater Festival at Wayne State University's Hilberry Theater at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 5.

Performances continue at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 6-7, and Wednesday-Saturday, July 11-14.

Ayckbourn, who has been called the British Neil Simon, has had great success on Broadway, where his current offering is "Bedroom Farce." Ayckbourn constructs his plot like a Chinese puzzle, fitting together each intricate piece in the lives of three different couples to form a unified whole.

THE CHARACTERS IN "Absurd Person Singular" come close to destroying each other, not because of malice, but because of their own ineptness. While the characters have trouble dealing with themselves and others, they have worse luck with physical objects. Even replacing a light bulb becomes a funny, though almost catastrophic, ordeal.

Running through this hilarity is the story of the rise and fall of these couples from vastly different backgrounds, who meet for Christmas Eve parties over a three-year period. The working class couple rises to wealth, the aristocrats begin to descend economically and the third couple struggles to stay in the middle.

The cast consists of Dianne Winslow, Kristin Reeves-Beauchamp, Buckner Gibbs, Richard Gustin, Barbara Acker and Mark Robbins, directed by Robert Emmett McGill, with scenery by Russell Smith, lighting by Marc C. Riske, and costumes by Jackie Durbin.

Tickets and information for the entire Summer Theater Festival of six productions are available at the box office in the Hilberry Theater, Cass and Hancock, Detroit 48202. The telephone number is 577-2972.

VERY DESIRABLE BRIGHTON AREA

Less that three miles from City of Brighton, ten minutes from access to U.S. 23 and I-96 freeways.

Oak-stained rough-sawn cedar paneling and 2 lovely winding staircases, plus 2 uniquely designed imposing fireplaces express a feeling of grace and warmth.

Two-story high cedar-beamed cathedral ceilinged living room has 36 ft. long cedar balcony overlooking large outdoor pool, lanai and cedar stockade.

At the end of a quarter mile treed private lane, all on the property, this indescribably beautiful home could never be duplicated anywhere, nor could its surroundings. Its cedar shake roof with the four perfectly scaled dormers, is in itself a masterpiece.

If you are looking for a one-of-its-kind hideaway estate in the $300,000 range, please phone me at 313-1-229-8600 during business hours, Monday through Saturday or 1-227-7333, evenings or Sunday.

My dear wife, the inspiration for this custom fashioned 1970 home, died tragically last November. I have finally decided to dispose of the home, complete with all furnishings, appliances, utensils, tableware, linens, etc., all hand selected and of finest quality, so the new family can ease right into ready made luxury.

There is much more of interest to tell about this secluded, one of a kind estate that would add to its value, enjoyment and charm.
