Bi-Products may lose Detroit's sludge contract

Bi-Products Systems of Michigan, the company that hoped to establish a sludge composting site in Canton Township, may end up losing its contract with the city of Detroit.

Members of the Detroit City Council last week said that Bi-Products, which had been hired to find sites on which to deposit hundreds of tons of sludge from the city's water and sewer department, was not living up to its agreement.

The discontented rumblings followed a decision by the Canton Township Planning Commission to recommend denial of Bi-Product's request to use property near Michigan and Morton Taylor roads as a sludge composting site.

Final approval or disapproval of the site rests with the Canton Township Board of Trustees. Most board members, however, have expressed opposition to the scheme.

Bi-Products was contracted by Detroit after the city's water and sewer department was forced by court order to find places other than the Detroit River in which to dispose of the the material that remains after sewage has been treated.

The company planned to truck the sludge into the Canton site, mix it with wood chips, and through a composting process convert it into a soil additive.

The company has been dumping some sludge at landfill sites (including one in Canton) throughout the metropolitan area, but has not been able to obtain local approval to conduct any large-scale disposal of sludge.

Bi-Product's apparent problems, however, appear to be stemming from the Detroit City Council and not from the water and sewer department.

Erman Fisher, deputy director of the water and sewer department, said Thrusday that as far as he is concerned, Bi-Products is doing the contracted job as well as it can.

"The council is the group raising all the questions about Bi-Products," Fisher said.

"As far as I know, the company is doing a good job, although everyone must put up with the roadblocks that come up."

Fisher said the first he heard of the attempted contract revoking was at a City Council meeting last week.

"We were there to get approval for another company to help us with the removal of the tremendous amount of sludge. It is monumental task frying to get rid of the sludge and we feel that we need another company to do the job in the right way.

"All of a sudden, it was brought up by the council that Bi-Products was not doing its job," said Fisher.

He said Detroit could not get rid of Bi-Products because of contractural obligations that were initiated in May 1978 for the next three years.

"We have a contract with them, and what I would like is another contract with someone else to help us out," said Fisher.

School, township trustees face problems jointly

By CAROLINE PRICE

Any of the concerns shared by the Plymouth-Canton school board and the Canton Township Board of Trustees have the township's rapid growth somewhere at the root of them.

Even had nothing else been accomplished at a special joint study session between the two boards last Wednesday, participants did agree that the only way to look at the growth-related problems was as a whole and not as two separate government bodies.

The study session was called in an effort to get the boards to cooperate on concerns that affected them both. Among the subjects discussed were the possibility of Canton collecting taxes semi-annually instead of once a year; better coordination of the use of school facilities by neighborhood, athletic and government organizations; school property available for sale to the township; and implementing required posting of school boundaries in model homes.

An additional concern was brought up by township Trustee Robert Greenstein, who said a new law made it possible for Canton to limit growth if such factors as lack of school capacity warranted it.

Greenstein asked that the school district keep Canton abreast of the expected enrollment versus school capacity each year so the township could take those figures into account when issuing building permits and making zoning changes.

School board members were receptive to the idea, but Superintendent John Hoben said, "probably we've already exceeded our capacity.

"We're overusing all the buildings in Canton now, by about one-third. The only way we can adust capacity is to keep moving students north, to Byrd or Starkweather.

"WE CAN give you our total saturation point, which would be when we would have to make all the schools but the high schools year round."

Greenstein said he hoped the school district could avoid building new schools that would soon go empty when the population of students declined, as happened in Livonia.

But some school board members said that might not be such a bad thing.

School board Trustee Richard Arlen told Greenstein, "Those children only go through schools once. So the buildings were there, so the costs were there — so what? Those children went through the schools and got an education when it was , he said.

School Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter pointed out that some Canton children attend schools in such areas as Plymouth Township, which would also make getting an exact handle on the expected enrollment difficult.

"We would also have to get the figures from the Van Buren and Wayne-Westland districts," Township Clerk John Flodin said.

ANOTHER GROWTH problem involved the vying of many different groups for indoor recreation facilities at Canton schools.

Township Recreation Supervisor Mike Gouin said Canton was desperately in need of gymnasium and pool space for its recreation program.

"Your gyms are pretty much tied up right now. We have very minimal use," he told school board members.

"I feel it would be worthwhile to establish a committee to prioritize the use of school facilities."

Larry Masteller, director of continuing education for the school district, said currently there was no real prioritizing of groups.

"We're pretty much dealing with community groups. The local ones are grandfathered in, in that groups already in the building get first priority

School board sets goals

By JAMES CLARK

While most of the Plymouth-Canton school districts stu dents are enjoying a long-awaited summer vacation, the school board and administration remain hard at work.

In an effort to keep pace with the ever-changing face of public education, the board and administration are evaluating and prioritizing approxmately 20 educational objectives.

These objectives, accepted by the board as the goals for the 1980 school year, fall into seven areas of concern. Included are: administration, instruction, finance, operation, research and development, public relations and community relations/and human resources.

Florence Beier, administrative assistant for community relations, said that the area of instruction with seven objectives, is the most crowded.

"That does not mean that the other areas are not of equal importance, because all of the categories are important to the administration," said Beier. "What we are doing is looking at the total educational scene in Plymouth-Canton." She added that the objectives in the instructional area heavily emphasize reading.

"Once the objectives have been studied and digested, they will go to specific departments and the people responsible for implementing the objectives," informed Beier.

The objective study is just one part of an overall program by the Plymouth-Canton School District to improve the educational environment of the students, according to Beier.

"What we work with is something called the strategic planning system, used by the superintendent (John M. Hoben) and management by results, directed primarily at the administration," said Beier.

She explained how the objective evaluations fit into the plan. "At first the superintendent works with a lot of information to determine what the needs of the district might be, and then the needs are turned into categories. From there, we get the objectives, and the hope is that with all the input a consolidated educational overview will surface."

The present mode of operation has been in effect for about two years, since the superintendent's office was taken over by Hoben, said Beier.

An indication as to how in-depth the objective study goes, the board and ad-

Firm promotes senior high-rise

A development firm is expressing interest in building a low income, high-rise senior citizen apartment complex in Canton, according to Supervisor Noel Culbert.

Culbert said Friday that he was approached several days ago by Bud Cline of the RRCS company about the possibility of building a seniors complex on a site south of the Meijer department store.

"I said 'you guys are crazy,' " Culbert said about the proposed development. Two apartment complexes under construction or planned for sites in Canton, both built by the Amurcon Corp. and financed through a HUD mortgage guarantee providing for subsidized rents, have drawn massive protest from township homeowners.

Culbert said he was told the proposed complex would be between seven and eight floors and house some 300 units.

"We have an anti high-rise ordinance, so RRCS would have to either go before the zoning board of appeals for a variance or change the zoning through the township board," Culbert said.

"They said they would go to the township board since it would take too long to go through the ZBA."

Although Culbert said he has not yet received a letter requesting that the item be put on a board meeting agenda, he expects the company to come before the township board in about three weeks. Cline could not be reached for comment Friday.

" You can't blame them for trying," Culbert said.

Short Takes

You light up my life

After numerous attempts to reinstate smoking privileges at Canton Township Board meetings when there are fewer then 40 persons in the audience, lobbying trustees met with partial success. At last week's special board meeting, Supervisor Noel Culbert, a non-smoker, agreed to provide the one additional vote needed to lift the smoking ban if the change was re-worded to allow smoking when there are less than 20 persons in the audience. Trustee Carol Bodenmiller, a smoker, held out for her idea of having five-minute "smoking breaks" at the end of each hour and voted no on the proposition.

Popular police posts

There is no lack of applications for the three sergeant positions open on the Canton Police Department. Lt. Larry Stewart says he has a list of 53 qualified persons available for the sergeant position and another 94 applications from persons qualified for patrol officer jobs. The qualifications are strict — a combination of five years college and experience for patrol officers, or eight years for sergeants. The pay? A beginning sergeant makes $20,550 on the Canton force; a beginning patrol officer makes $14,127.

Speeders

If you have entertained any thoughts of speeding down Canton roads in the near future, put them aside. The Canton Township Board of Trustees has approved the purchase of three radar gun units. The equipment is the kind cops can either aim out the window to clock automobiles or carry while on foot. The board approved the units after discovering Police Chief Jerry Cox could get them at only $1,050 each (he did a little wheeling and dealing with the salesman) and that the force only has two of the devices at present. Neither of those radar units work.

Meeting of minds

Several subjects on the agenda for the Tuesday, June 26 regular Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting have to do with some of the more controversial issues in the township, but it appears unlikely that any of them will be addressed after all.

According to Supervisor Noel Culbert, a request from the Amurcon Crop. to get site plan approval for low-income housing units at Lilley south of Warren will be tabled pending an attorney opinion. Another item, to reconsider liquor license approval for the Canton House restaurant, is also expected to be tabled. Much remains on the agenda, which you can hear all about if you go to the meeting beginning 7 p.m. at township hall.

Holiday deadline

Because of the July 4 holiday, all deadlines for the Observer will be moved up 24 hours. This applies to both the Monday, July 2, and Thursday, July 5, issues. Please take this into account when dealing with either the advertising or editorial departments of the Observer. Material normally needed by 5 p.m. Monday must be received by 5 p.m. Friday. Sr. citizen specialist named by Pursell

Livonia and Plymouth senior citizens will get special attention from their congressman.

Sylvia Skrel of Livonia, recently reassigned to district-wide responsibilities on the staff of U. S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, has been named as a staff specialist on senior citizen issues.

Pursell's district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Northville in Wayne County, most of Monroe Couty and the eastern half of Washtenaw County.

Ms. Skrel joined Pursell's staff in January 1977 after he was elected to Congress. In May of 1977, she received a para-legal degree from Madonna College. She concentrated on constituent assistance in Pursell's Livonia congressional office until earlier this year when her responsibilities were broadened to encompass projects throughout the district, which includes parts of Wayne, Washtenaw and Monroe counties.

That was followed by Pursell's decision to make senior citizen issues her top priority. Ms. Skrel now works out of all four of Pursell's constituent service offices, but uses the centrally-located Washtenaw County office at 2500 Packard Road, Ann Arbor, as her headquarters.

"Services to senior citizens have always been an important part of our activities," Ms. Skrel said, "but the congressman felt it was not enough to be ready, willing and able to help when help was requested.

"He wanted the district staff to take a more active role in contacting senior citizen groups and individuals, attending meetings, encouraging better communications, seeking out and helping to solve their problems."

Pursell added,

"I believe that since inflation and taxes and other pressures are creating more serious problems for older Americans, we have a responsibility to redouble our efforts to assist them."

Education park security staff ... a hard, thankless job

By GARY CASKEY

They're often harassed, verbally assaulted but nontheless — hang tough.

They're the seven members of the security staff at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. And it's their job to maintain order on a 305-acre closed campus site in the northwest quadrant of Canton Township.

The ratio of security guards to students is about 1-900. Most guards admit it's no easy job.

During the school year, they cover all big events held at the site's two high schools, Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton. That includes football and basketball games, as well as the year's graduation ceremonies. Their surveillance follows students and visitors on athletic fields, parking lots and inside the three major school buildings.

Staffers report that in watching the 4,500 some students, as well as visitors on the grounds, they run across abusive language and a hostile enviroment in the schools' hallways.

Most of their authority is outlined in the schools' student handbook. The guards work closely with the Michigan State Police, Wayne County Sheriff's Department and the Canton Police Department. Newly-appointed Plymouth officer Lt. Carl Berry helps out periodically by stopping in to offer advice even though the school grounds are not within his jurisdiction.

Their connection with both schools' administration is through their respective area coordinators, Patrick Fitzpatrick of Plymouth Salem and Ken Jacobs of Plymouth Canton.

Surprisingly — to the guards at least — school officials say the security system could be a model for other school districts. Some guards say the administration's high regard has only recently been brought to their attention.

Among their daily duties is monitoring the area's parking lot. They have the authority to remove illegally parked cars at owner's expense. However, it's a practice that is used sparingly. For the most part, they rather inform car owners by attaching a notice on the car's windshield. It's a notice that takes some time to remove because of its sticky adhesive. They say the notice saves the parking offender a $25-$30 towing fee.

By next fall, the staff will once again be on the job in full force. Their presence will be visible to all students and visitors, they assure.

Student Lucy Howe and friend discover the sticky penalty of illegally parking on school grounds.

To insure that everyone who enters belongs there, security guard Karl Morrison checks passes as students and visitors enter the school grounds.

School, township puts heads together

the for use of the building the following year.

Masteller said PTO's, scout groups, junior athletic groups, YMCAs and governmental recreation programs all vie for use of the district school's gyms and all-purpose rooms.

School board President Thomas Yack commented, "It's the old story of the settlers getting there first."

HOBEN SAID the main problem was lack of coordination and a resulting duplication of programs. The superintendent said one problem had been caused by the conflict between the Plymouth-Canton-Northville YMCA and the Livonia YMCA, which both want to service Canton.

"Primarily the PCN YMCA uses our facilities now. We're not going to kick them out since they've been using the buildings for a number of years.

"But the two Y's should settle their own hash — it's not a problem the schools or the township should have to get involved with.

Culbert said, "It's sad that we have Y's fighting each other over what should be a united front to service the community."

Yack added, "I'd rather see the space used by a government body where people have a voice, rather than a carpet-bagger organization. The YMCA is a self-perpetuating institution — sometimes it serves the public, sometimes it doesn't."

Yack also said there had been an effort at one time to start a recreation committee formed of representatives from all the groups using the schools, but the project never really materialized.

Although the representatives of district and township recreation programs agreed to hold a meeting to work on some form of coordination, Masteller was dubious about trying to get such groups as the warring Y's together for the same meeting.

ONE PROBLEM that may have been taken a major step closer to being solved, had not to do with growth, but with money, not growth.

Canton collects property taxes for all governmental units, including the schools, on a once-a-year basis.

According to Hoben, that creates a problem because of the different fiscal years of the township and the district. Hoben said the school district gets its share of the taxes six months into its fiscal year and is forced to take out loans in order to maintain cash flow.

The interest the loans rack up amounts to about one-half mill.

Recreation director spot approved

Recreation Supt. Mike Gouin soon will be getting some additional help in planning leisure activities for Canton Township.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees, with Trustee Robert Greenstein dissenting, last week voted to allow Gouin to fill a recreation director position.

According to Gouin, the salary of the new director will be partially offset by savings in the recreation department budget that occurred when some positions were eliminated or consolidated.

Gouin told the board he needed a director to perform such tasks as scheduling events and coordinating activities. He said the additional help provided by a director would enable him to establish the credibility of the recreation program."

Greenstein, however, objected to filling the director position, saying , "I'm not sure who really cares if there is credibility in the recreation department. The financial director or the township planner need to be credible.

"I believe we're heading into hard financial times. We are digging a hole with our own boots everytime we hire new people." he said.

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller agreed that the country may be going into financial problems.

"We must look at each position very carefully," she said.

"But it must be pointed out that the position of recreation director had already been created. This is a vacant position, not a new one," she said.

Mrs. Bodenmiller said she did not believe the cost of the director would be offset by other recreation department savings. "Gouin's department is small. I'd rather say he needs the help than that we are going to save money.

Gouin said his staff now consists of a full time clerk and maintenance person, plus " a lot of part-time seasonal employees."

Youth killed first day on job

Canton police are investigating a June 14 accident to determine if any charges will be filed in the death of a landscape company worker.

Police did not learn until last Friday that Edwin Hartway, 18, of Armada, died June 15 from injuries suffered a day earlier in an accident at the Winds Condominium. The case came to light when insurance agents asked for a police report on the accident.

Hartway was in the first hour of his first day on the job with P.L. McCoy Landscape Co. of Armada, which was working at the Winds.

When a company truck became stuck, Hartway and Donald McCoy, 22, son of the firm's owner, attempted to pull it out with another company vehicle, police said.

Hartway was caught between the two vehicles, taken to Wayne County General Hospital and transferred next day to University Hospital, where he died from apparent heart failure. No autopsy was performed, police said.

Police said their report was minimal because Hartway's injuries seemed minor at first and they were not notified of the worker's death until a week later.

Bi-Products close to losing contract

thus far had little to say about the city council charges.

Judith Stokes of Bi-Products said her company is "in a complete quandry as to how or why the allegations were brought up at the meeting.

"Our legal department is checking out the facts at present and we are in no contract trouble with the city of Detroit at this time. "

Ms. Stokes said Bi-Products is still hoping to start the sludge-composting operation at the Canton site, despite the denial by the planning commission.

"We are still pursuing the Canton site and there is no reason to believe that another site has been proposed," she said.

Bi-Product's trouble with the Detroit council may be politically motivated, Ms. Stokes said, but she refused to go into detail about her charge.

"I have my own personal feelings on the matter, but I do not feel like discussing them at this time," she said.

Although Bi-Products says it continues to be interested in the Canton site, township Supervisor Noel Culbert said that he has heard nothing from the company about when it tends to approach the township board.

"I hate to see them go without a fight," Culbert said.

According to the supervisor, Canton officials had been tipped off some three months ago that Bi-Products had alternate sites picked out in case the Canton one fell through. Culbert said he believed one potential site is in Monroe Township.

Board sets its goals

ministration has chosen to tise the services of Dave Vernon, a graduate student at the University of Mich igan in the educational management department. Vernon, who has worked with the district's special education department in the past, was present at a study meeting last Monday night to guide in the ranking and "weighting" of the different objectives.

Using a complicated system of arranging the objectives by each board member and administrators, Vernon's basic question was, "How important is each of these objectives in producing the best education for students in this district?"

After each participant had stacked his or her objectives and followed Vernon's instruction, he told them that the results would be ready in about two weeks after the material was fed into a computer to further clarify the priorty of the ob jectives.

"Nothing will be dropeed from the list of objectives, and the system used by Vernon is not to set any definite strict pattern, but to gain clarity on the boards and administrations ideas," said Beier.

Is there life after Oscar's for the average slob?

By CRAIG PIECHURA

The mission: Find out if the average man-on-the-street is admitted into Southfield's so-called exclusive Oscar's discoteque.

The undercover agent: The average man-on-the-street reporter for a major metropolitan twice-weekly newspaper.

Biographical info: Agent hasn't danced since the hully-gully went belly up and thinks Calvin Klein is lead singer with the Chipmunks. Agent is known to wear brown shoes with gum soles.

Report follows:

Having picked up female cohort for rendezvous, I wheel dinged-up brown Horizon into parking lot full of Trans Ams, TR-6s and an occasional Cordoba. Stash paper bag from cheapo hamburger stand under seat as parking lot attendant approaches to park car. As ignition is turned off and agents walk away, engine keeps coughing due to run-on problem. Run-on problem makes parking lot attendant look askance at vehicle.

Entering the chi-chi establishment, we are met by a Phil Coughon, doorman, who stands behind a wooden pulpit with the words "Homilies from the church" carved into it. Coughon is sorry to inform this agent that we will not be admitted because aforementioned agent neglected to wear a suit coat, sport coat or reasonable facsimile.

"No jeans, no corduroys, no leather," Coughon informs us. "Men must wear a jacket and women must have suitable evening wear." Female cohort told her attire is acceptable.

In subsequent conversation the following day with general manager John Rogers, I learn that more formal attire is expected to be worn on weekends. I'm also told that on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays a reservation — which must be made in person ahead of time — is expected.

We take this to mean suit coats, not sport coats and dresses, not fancy pants. Reservations are needed if the establishment is crowded.

A half hour after being denied entrance into establishment, we return with this agent in white sport coat. This time doorman willing to take $3 cover charge from each of us but reluctant to be interviewed about admission policy.

BECAUSE both of us are on duty, we order non-alcoholic, but trendy, glasses of carbonated water substance known as Perrier. Bill for two tumblers of fizzy water comes to $4.50, lime included.

Music not as loud as we were led to expect in briefing. Most of the disco tunes, we discover, have "Boogie" in title. "Get down" is also popular theme.

Disc jockey Gizelle St. John informs that "Boogie with Me" by a group called Poussez is the biggest song at the moment among Oscar's regulars. "And they love 'Hot Stuff' by Donna Summer," she adds. When Ms. St. John goes home, does she listen to disco, much like a mailman goes home and takes a walk?

"I listen to jazz mostly. When I go home it takes me an hour to unwind, believe it or not."

I take note of that comment because many people tell me disco helps them unwind. In fact, without bringing up the topic of tension, most persons I talk to that evening say disco dancing is a tension release for them..

Suki Fredericks, a photographer from Birmingham says the attraction of disco for her is "human contact, the physicality, sensuality and eroticism. Strike eroticism in the article, will you please?"

Mary Taylor of Fenton says disco is "a sign of the tension in our culture.

"It reminds me of the old Shirley Temple movies," Mrs. Taylor explains. "She allowed people to fantasize for a while, to forget about their problems. I'm sure today, with all our financial problems, there is a need for fantasies to get away from realities."

Her husband Marvin almost didn't get into Oscar's that night because he, like this agent, didn't wear a sportcoat in the 90 degree weather.

WITH THE help of his companion and frequent visitor to the disco, Harvey Fink of Southfield, Marvin Taylor was admitted sans sport coat and spared the embarrassment of heading back to Fenton without a dance.

Fink was asked if he approved of the exclusionary admittance policy that almost kept his friend out.

"No, that doesn't bother me," Fink said. "I've been in similiar situations. A great deal of life comes down to who you know and what you know. If I was in that position (being denied entrance) I'd either go around it or go through it; whatever you're capable of."

Fink said he lives close to Oscar's and frequents the place.

"They (the Taylors) asked me how this place was different," Fink said. "There's more glamour, more style in the way a person moves, they're more into their apearance here and I would say Oscar's attracts more of a with-it crowd in the society today.

"The typical disco crowd is not a very cultured crowd."

While celebrities are synonymous with New York's Studio 54, the granddaddy of exclusionary disco clubs, the only luminary to be found at Oscar's Thursday night was Bill Bonds, TV newscaster, sitting at the end of the bar in the singles section after the 11 p.m. newscast.

Bonds declined to be interviewed on the sociological significance of disco music, explaining that he came to Oscar's to meet former Detroit Lion Mel Farr on a business matter. Farr, an auto dealer, couldn't make it so Bonds chatted with three women and a man at the bar.

With that, my sociological fact-finding mission was complete. I slurped the dregs of my fizzy water and headed out into the night to ponder problems like cars that refuse to turn off.

'Whippets' carry jollies as well as calories

The Flip Side
by craig piechura

• Why is whipping cream paraphernalia being sold in an adult book store in Oakland County and in a head shop in Macomb County?

One might guess that the porno freaks are using the whipping cream in a kinky, sexual pursuit and that the druggies are staving off a case of the munchies caused by consumption of a great deal of Columbian marijuana. Wrong on both accounts.

The whipping cream that squirts out of canisters found in soda fountains and fine restaurants is propelled by nitrous oxide, commonly known as laughing gas.

Nitrous oxide is also used as a mild anesthetic by dentists and as a nonflammable welding agent in construction work. But the patrons of the aforementioned businesses are buying little cartridges, known by the brand name "Whippets," to get high.

These N2O gas catridges, which resemble CO2 cartridges used in pellet guns, aren't dropped into a whipping cream cannister by nitrous oxide abusers.

At the bookstore or head shop they also buy a cylindrical metal device that screws apart in the middle. This device looks something like a silencer hit men use.

They drop the cartridge into one end of the open releaser and screw both ends together, causing the nipple of the cartridge to be punctured by a pin at the bottom end of the silencer. This sends 8.5 grams of laughing gas streaming into a balloon attatched to the rear of the releaser.

Inhaling a blast of gas from the balloon causes audio distortion and visual hallucinations of a 10- to 30-second duration.

According to a doctor in residency at the University of Michigan dental school, nitrous oxide is lethal only if consumed in large doses without oxygen. This can cause a person's muscles to stiffen up, eyes to dilate, and kill them by asphyxiation.

Suicides have been performed with nitrous oxide, said the doctor, by inhaling gas directly from a mask connected to a large tank or by breathing the fumes under a blanket or another closed-in area.

According to Taber's Cyclopedic Medical Dictionary, the colorless, nonflammable gas has little or no effect on body temperature or blood pressure, and has no adverse effects on the circulatory, respiratory, liver or kidney systems and mucous membranes.

"Compared with cocaine, horse (heroin) and all the other stuff on the street, I'd say nitrous oxide is relatively innocuous, but I don't want to promote it," said the U-M doctor.

The drug affects the central nervous system, the doctor explained, by reducing the conduction of impulses to the cortex of the brain through peripheral nerves. The gas is rapidly absorbed in nerve tissue and rapidly released again, unlike powerful gasses such as ether.

A salesman at the A.J. Marshall restaurant supply house in Detroit said sale of nitrous oxide has been restricted to businesses only recently and refused to sell the gas to this reporter.

"I can't do it. The young kids are popping the tops of the Whippets to get high," said a salesman last Thursday.

Mike Sendecki, director of marketing for the Walter Kidde & Co. of Belleville, N.J., was surprised to hear the product was being sold in a Macomb County head shop. The Kidde Co. manufactures Whippets, one of two gas cartridges abused in this area. The other company making gas cartridges is I.S.I. of Austria.

"We're aware of the fact that some these cartridges are being misused," Sendecki said. "It has come to our attention some time ago. We've withdrawn our product from the consumer marketplace."

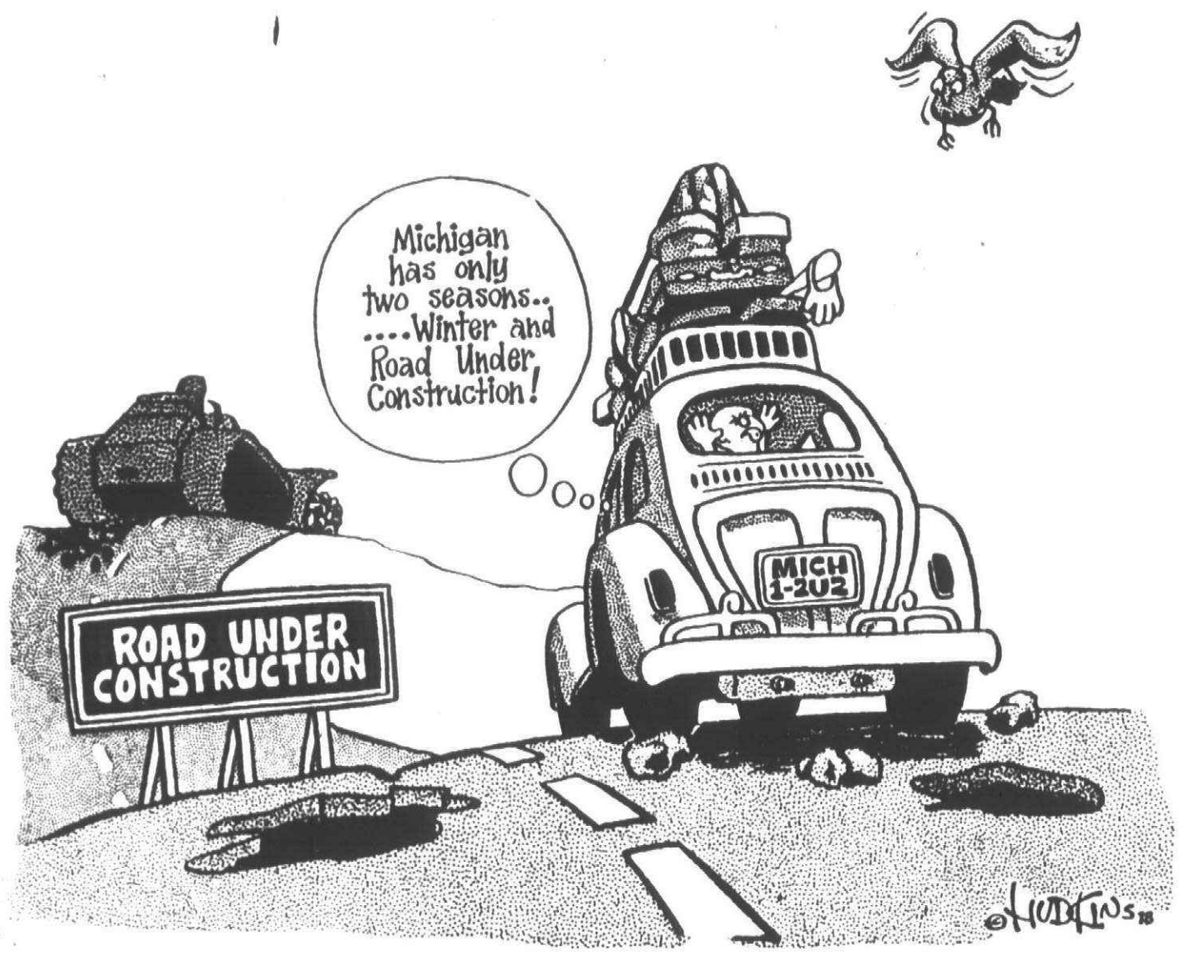
Sendecki said this action has made homeowners with whipping cream canisters upset about the fact that "they can't get the product at Macy's."

He said the company watches for irregularities in orders for gas canisters to detect possible evidence of abuse, but noticed no upsurge in Detroit.

"We can tell what normal usage rates are for an area and if we see an abnormality, we run those individual cases down."

But now that consumers can no longer buy the product in stores, sales of Whippets has decreased sharply, Sendecki said. And the company has no control over "secondary distribution."

For the past few months thousands of whipping cream cartridges have been sold at the head shop and book store. And, funny thing is, not one quart of whipping cream has gone out the door.



Off the Walls
Perfection is sickening

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

According to my mother, my children, my husband, and the experts, somewhere there exists a lady who can actually pass the one-inch pinch test for flab around the middle. This, though, is not the only quality which makes her unique. She also never eats between meals. Can you imagine?

This woman, who prefers to remain anonymous because she is much to well-adjusted crave the false adulation that comes with fame, is the only living human who does not smoke, does not drink, uses no drugs whatsoever (not even prescription) and has only a healthy interest in sex. With nary a crutch nor a perversion, this woman lives the ideal life.

She makes it a point to ingest just the right amount of cholesterol, avoids all foods suspected of containing carcinogens and exercises regularly. Not only does she serve her family meals that are very good for them, but she also manages to set before them a variety of delicious dishes that would win prizes for eye appeal alone. And she stays within her budget.

She has never used a charge card, and prefers that her husband doesn't take her out to dinner, because it's a needless expense. She doesn't lack for recreation though. Her hobby is sewing. Her latest project is a double knit slip cover that she's throwing together for the couch in the family room she's redecorating. The pattern was in last month's issue of "Women's Woman."

Needless to say, she's a very good mother. She has two children, a boy and a girl, spaced exactly two years apart. Both pregnancies went smoothly (she knows that morning sickness is just a state of mind) and both deliveries were paid-free the "natural" way. She was back on her feet the same day.

She gained fifteen pounds with each pregnancy and lost twenty after each delivery.

She very seldom loses her temper with her children, but if she finds she feels irritable she immediately calls a baby sitter and takes a few hours away from the kids. She uses this time to jog or play racquetball.

She attends all PTA meetings. She is a home room mother, car pool mother, loves to go on field trips, and makes the best cookies in town.

I don't know about you, but I'm already so sick of her that I can't go on. Ladies like this make me feel so flawed.

Let's get her!

New challenge for Channel 56

By STEVE BARNABY

The folks at Channel 56 call it a last-ditch appeal.

While the public television staff is talking about money, it really means much more than that.

The appeal is being made because the station is facing a record deficit of more than $100,000 for this fiscal year, according to development director Agnes Scott.

The issue is what metropolitan Detroit viewers want to do with their public television.

Every year the station struggles along, begging for funds in between programs and during the popular auction each year.

Meanwhile, the station crawls along, scrounging in its attempts to air a meaty agenda of programs. But the station is caught in a vicious circle.

TO ATTRACT viewers who will contribute, it must air appealing programs. Lacking a hefty budget, it is forced to present a less than desirable offering.

In short, commercial television has it all over public television in this area because the private media has the bucks and the network connections.

Sure, everybody has favorites on public television, but honestly, who sits down to watch an entire evening of Channel 56 programming?

But persons who really believe in the concept of a public non-commercial television station have to look beyond what is being aired presently. Rather, viewers must concentrate on what public television can and should be.

In other words, the more money Channel 56 has to work with, the better the station will become. Instead of being a viewing stepsister, it will be a pleasant alternative to the endless hours of situation comedies and cop shows offered by commercial television.

CHANNEL 56 will face its biggest test of public faith in the coming months. Channel 20 has announced it is changing over to a paid subscription format.

The trial run will be made in Oakland County where viewers will pay to watch feature movies and sporting events minus commercials. If successful in Oakland County, Channel 20 will expand subscriptions throughout the area.

It is highly questionable whether public television's offerings of British television dramas can win a fund-raising battle against the likes of football and Robert DeNiro.

The real challenge rests with the new Channel 56 station manager Jack Caldwell. Hailing from Springfield, Mass., Caldwell built a credible image at WGBY by demonstrating that public television can compete with the private market.

It would behoove those who believe in public television to give Caldwell a chance to show us what he and the Channel 56 staff can do to give us a viable viewing alternative.

Bell tolls for you; it rings message

While visiting a friend in another city last week, I was surprised to hear the tolling of funeral bells in a nearby church. I suddenly realized that it had been years since I have heard that sound.

Growing up in a small town in northern Michigan, I was most familiar with it. Whenever any of the funeral bells tolled in any of the town's three churches, everyone within hearing distance paused for a moment and reflected upon the shortness of a human lifetime.

I'm sure that in the older residents in particular, it induced a contemplative state of mind.

VARIOUS CUSTOMS have been practiced with the sounding of bells.

They tolled summoning the people to pray for the soul of the departed one. In our town, they tolled one knell for each year of the dead one's life. By counting the knells you knew if it was a young or old person who had died.

In Northern England they tolled nine knells for a man, six for a woman and three for a child.

It was generally accepted that, until the bell had been rung, the soul remained earthbound, for it has been written that it "rose to heaven on the sound of the bell."

In Scotland a bell was often placed beneath a head of the corpse to make sure it could "ring into heaven."

BELLS HAVE BEEN used since the time of very early man. They have been used for social, ritual, religious and magical purposes. They have served to drive away evil spirits and summon benevolent ones, to warn men of danger and to call them to dinner.

Joy is often expressed by the ringing of bells such as at weddings or at the end of a war. The high school I attended had an old-fashioned rope-pulled bell. It summoned us to school and was also rung to let the whole town know whenever our team won an out-of-town basketball game.

In the 17th century, bells were rung in time of epidemics to purify the air, since it was believed by physicians of that time that "corrupt air" was the cause of most illness.

June is the perfect month for a wedding. It must be. That's why local newspapers brim with pictures of brides-to-be. They always swell to a crescendo this time of year. So June must be the perfect month. Anyway, my parents were married in June and they are still together after 32 years.

On Saturday, June 23, wedding bells will ring in the Gniewek household. The five Gniewek brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 20 to 30, aren't exactly making a mad dash to the altar.

This is the first one (age 26 and in the middle of the line-up) to cross over to the "other" side.

I have seen friends, relatives and acquaintances — perfectly sane people under other circumstances — crumble before the "big" event. They have problems with the florist, or the reception plans flop, or they forget to invite someone. They complain, or smoke a lot, or eat too much. But most of all, they wish they would have eloped.

By some odd twist, the Gniewek — McKenna wedding seems to have escaped that sort of frenzy. So far, at least.

I think it has to do with the primary players — Donna and Jim. The word "laid-back" was invented with them in mind. They arrived at the old homestead a couple of weeks ago tanned and relaxed. On their eastward jaunt from Phoenix, they detoured to camp a week in Mexico, then visited friends in Iowa. After their wedding in Bedford, they'll visit Jim's home state of Massachusetts, then find a place to live in New York.

DONNA NEVER TALKED about getting married the lofty way young girls were supposed to fantasize. Her head was full of dreams, al lright. Dreams mostly of leaving Michigan for warmer climes. California was the big dream for awhile. She settled for Arizona.

She was the big sister — three years older. Just enough of an age difference to be authoritative about such matters as clothes, school, careers and boys. She was my role model and one of the most independent-minded people I had ever known. If she was determined to do something, nothing or no one could stop her. Though she dated frequently, I never saw her cower to any male, ever. She didn't change when she moved to Phoenix a few years ago.

We kept up a steady stream of correspondence. Sometime last year, her letters began to get a little sappy. I consulted my other sister, Sue. She noticed it, too. I cringed. My independent role model was turning into silly putty. She was in love.

Sue and I knew this was it. We weren't surprised when Donna and Jim announced last Christmas they were getting married.

But did the engaged couple fret about plans? Did the mother of the bride get emotional? Not really. You would think they were planning an afternoon tea-party. ("Dinner for 130 guests? Sure, we'll pick up a little something extra at the grocery store.")

If there was one frazzled moment, it was finding proper attire in Detroit for a bridal party scattered from Arizona to Massachusetts. Ever try to explain what a dress looks like long-distance? Or try to rent tuxedos for ushers who won't be coming into town until two days before the wedding?

But it's all falling into place, somehow. The parents are very happy. It's in their smiles — from the heart. The brothers and sisters are happy, too. It's in their laughter, recalling nostalgic bits and pieces of interwoven childhoods. Most of all, the couple is happy. It's in their eyes. They know they have something very special.

June is a great month for a wedding. I'm looking forward to Saturday.

Macau blends East and West

By GLORIA HOPFNER
Special writer

(Gloria Hopfner of Plymouth recently travelled to Hong Kong and to the Republic of China and relates her experiences and observations in this special series for readers of the Observer)

Just on hour's smooth and quiet jetfoil ride over the South China Sea lies Macau, where, Rudyard Kipling to the contrary, East and West actually did meet over 400 years ago.

The colony was ceded to Portugal in 1551 by the Chinese government in gratitude for their ridding the sea of marauding pirates who had long preyed upon area shipping.

Population is divided at 97 percent Chinese and 2½ percent Portuguese with the other ½ percent including everbody else. Three religions are practiced there, Buddhism, Roman Catholicism and Protestantism.

The government is sent over from Portugal and is changed every four years. There seems to be at least two of every institution. For example, there is a Communist Bank on one street and a Portuguese Bank just across the street. Also there are two hospitals, two libraries, and matched Portuguese and Communist schools.

ARRANGEMENTS HAD been made for me to have a personal guide and a private, air-conditioned, chauffeured car during my visit there.

So as I disembarked, wearing the lapel tag that would identify me and searched for the man I anticipated would do double duty as guide and chauffeur. Soon I was approached by a slim, young Oriental woman who inquired, "Estoril Tours?" When I affirmed, she volunteered, "I'm Gaby, your guide." "I was expecting a man," I answered and she laughed, "So was I!"

Leading the way to the car, she introduced the driver, and we began our rounds, while I felt much as Queen Elizabeth must whenever she boards her coach. Every time we halted to alight from the car, the chauffeur would appear suddenly at my door to whisk it open and offer a hand.

First landmark was St. Paul's Cathederal facade — the original church was destroyed by fire in 1835, and only one wall remains standing. It makes quite a picture against the blue sky. We drove over the cobbled roadway, paved with the original cobblestones from Portugal, which were once used as ballast in the sailing vessels of 17th century explorers. All the avenues are lined with Banyan trees, each of which has many, many trunks.

Next stop was the largest Buddhist Temple in Macau, which honors Kun Yum, Goddess of Mercy. Buddhist temples traditionally have a high doorstep "to keep out evil spirits." Generally there are two large statues of Fu dogs in front, guarding the entrance. Each of these dogs had a movable ball in its mouth. Gamblers can come to turn the ball "three times right, then three times left for good luck and peace."

The Chinese are great gamblers and very superstitious. Visitors to the Temple can test whether the day is an auspicious one for gambling by lifting two wooden blocks made from a dowel cut in half lengthwise and dropping them simultaneously on the altar to see how they land. If both land "open" (with flat side up), it's a good omen; if one is up and one down, odds are 50-50, but if both are down, it's a bad-luck day.

Priests come to the temple each morning to pray, beat the drum and sound the bell. The altar hanging is brilliant red, and flowers, fruit and prepared foods are brought to the temple and set on the altar. I also noticed several empty beer and whisky bottles left standing on the altar.

In another temple dedicated to the Goddess of Purity, there were statues of 18 disciples, one of whom was identified as Marco Polo. Services are held there twice monthly, but the Chinese pray at home the rest of the time, as every home has its own altar.

The temples are small buildings, containing several rooms, each serving a different purpose. The funeral room, for example, offers three classes of funerals with a different price for each, depending on how elaborate. Cremation is against the law in Macau, but if it is desired, the deceased is sent to China for cremation, and the ashes returned to Macau for burial.

To make the dead happy, the Chinese build from paper and bamboo small replicas of the departed's possessions — house, car, television set, or even servants — whatever might have been a favorite. Following the funeral ceremony, these things are given to the departed in a special way, but burning "so that all of his desires will be fulfilled in the next world."

In the garden out behind the temple stands a round wooden table, on which a friendship treaty between the United States and China was signed by Caleb Cushing and Viceroy Yu to open up trade in 1884.

BETWEEN 1908 AND 1911 Dr. Sun Yat Sen lived in Macau. He was the first European-trained doctor in the Orient, and his memory is still held in highest esteem. His second wife is still living in Peking.

In the 2½ square miles of Macau there are 9,000 cars, most of them Japanese imports, and 5,000 taxis to serve a population of about 300,000. No used cars are permitted to be imported, and an auto license costs $200.

The river separating Macau from China is theoretically divided into three parts. It's Chinese territory behind one marker. Another part belongs to Macau, with international water between. My guide, with characteristic fatalism, related, "Some Chinese seek to escape over the river, but gunboats chase and capture when possible. Sometimes they make it; sometimes not."

About noon we arrived at the beautiful Hotel Lisboa. Built in 1970, the lobby boasts the third largest crystal chandelier in the world with a total of 6,000 crystals. I lunched in the elegant dining room, then descended to investigate the gambling casino — one of four such large establishments there.

Gambling is the major industry in Macau and a prime source of taxes. In fact, it is so lucrative that there is a beautiful new 300,000 dollar outdoor fountain, which is lighted every evening, that was donated to Macau by the gambling interests.

The main salon contains more that 30 tables where different games of chance are offered, including Fan Tan and "Big and Small" (Chinese games) and the more familiar Baccarat, Roulette, and Twenty-one.

There is another room devoted wholly to slot machines. A sign posted on the wall of the main room advised, "No one wins all the time. We advise you to play merely for pleasure, and to risk only waht you can spare" — the Management.

The Chinese, avid gamblers that they are, surround tables shoulder to shoulder as they play. Behind them stands a row of observers, just awaiting their chance to play. Everyone, player and observer, alike, watches the fall of the cards most intently, and everyone groans aloud, making quite a chorus when luck goes against the player.

At Twenty-one the dealer must draw with 15, but stand on 17. Dealers are all business, as cards fly from their nimble fingers with scarcely a word being uttered. Minimum bet is $20, while the maximum was posted as $1,000.

Signs admonish gamblers that, "Tipping is voluntary," and "Beware of cigarette ends." Another implores, "Please do not spit." But I watched as a middle-aged Oriental man deliberately spat on the beautiful carpet and then he deliberately ground it in with his shoe.

As we neared the Chinese border, my guide cautioned, "No photographs!" There was nothing of special interest to photograph in any case, and as I had no wish to wind up in jail, my camera remained concealed in its case. Strangely enough, when we made our official trip into China the following day, no such stricture applied.

Bike paths planned

There's good news for bicyclists of all ages who enjoy cycling in western Wayne County.

Bicycle enthusiasts will soon be able to pedal down a 17½ mile bike path running the entire length of Edward N. Hines Drive from Northville to Dearborn.

Presently, cyclists can use a bike path that runs along Hines Drive for seven miles from a point just south of Seven Mile Road in Northville to Newburgh Road in Livonia.

But $150,000 worth of construction will begin late this summer or fall on a 10½ mile extension of that bike path from Newburgh Road to the terminus of Hines Drive at Ford Road in Dearborn.

THIS CONSTRUCTION project by the Wayne County Road Commission is made possible by an amendment to the capital outlay budget that was passed by the Legislature last year.

Representative Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights, and Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, worked on passage of that amendment, which provided $350,000 for construction of the bike path.

"Of that $350,000 sum, $200,000 is to be used to secure a matching $200,000 federal grant, which brings the total cost for the construction project to $550,000. The federal grant money will hepefully be secured sometime this June," said Faust.

The Hines Drive bike path extension is important for a couple of reasons.

First, bicycling is a booming recreational activity, and bike riders need safe areas to do their riding. The scenic and recreational areas along Hines Drive are perfect for cycling, but somewhat unsafe because of the high volume of motor traffic along Hines Drive, said Faust.

Bike paths, which are eight feet wide and constructed of asphalt, provide safe avenues of travel of both bicyclists and the many joggers who also use the paths.

Secondly, because of the growing pinch on gasoline supplies, more and more people will be seeking recreation closer to home. Extension of the Hines Drive bike path will add another recreational activity in the Hines Park area for people of Northville, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City, Dearborn Heights, Dearborn and other adjacent communities.

Tinkering leads to 'best seller'

By TERI BANAS

The book reads: "Without electronics, there might be no radio, television, sound pictures, fluorescent lighting, public address systems" and so forth.

But without George Chute of Plymouth, there would be no "Electronics in Industry," a technical manual that has withstood five separate revisions taking it into classrooms and specialized libraries in the United States and eight foreign countries.

Last month, the manual's fifth edition was published. In addition to Chute's name, there was the name of co-author Robert Chute, 50, youngest son of the Plymouth resident.

Robert Chute of Southfield is an electrical engineer who has worked at Burroughs Corp, General Electric and presently teaches at Lawrence Institute of Technology. They way he puts it, the book's work has become a family affair. An interest and later career in electronics originated by "osmosis, according to the Chutes."

"I always had stuff to tinker around with and it just led me on to more and better things," Robert Chute says.

A 1950 graduate of Plymouth High, he recalls those early formative years when his father would leave the dinner table and bury himself in his writing.

BEGINNING AT 6 p.m. and not emerging until midnight was a daily practice for George. He now admits the work would not have progressed as smoothly if not for the understanding of his wife, Josephine.

"Her biggest contribution was being patient," George says. "I needed that patience to develop time to write."

His first book was published in 1943 — "Electronic Control of Resistance Welding." It resulted from a group effort commissioned by General Electric Co., where he was employed until 1952. Also, in that year he became a professor at the University of Detroit.

About the group effort, George says: "I had so many comments and revisions of my own that McGraw-Hill (publishing company) arranged that I should write about the whole field," he said.

In 1946, the first edition of "Electronics in Industry" appeared with subsequent revisions in 1956, 1965, 1971 and 1979.

The 561-page book has been re-written in Spanish, Italian, French, Hungaran and Japanese.

By the time "Electronics in Industry" was in its fourth edition, Robert's name was listed as co-author. He had graduated from the University of Michigan and become an established engineer in his own right.

About the unusual frequency of revisions, both men say it has been done to keep pace with continual changes in their field.

SINCE THE FIRST was such inventions as micro processors, transistors and integrated circuits have made the scene. More than 50 percent of the original has been re-written. George says he relies on his son for current information.

Both men agree that the best par of writing a technical manual is "being done."

"The main thing is you don't just sit down and write a book," Robert says. "You have to have written other things to pull from."

Robert adds it's not unusual to spend three to four days gathering information, verifying it and re-checking it, only to contribute one full page to the book.

"It does not flow out easily," he says.

Revisions take several years to compile. George calculates that work on number six is just down the road. However, he does not expect to be in on it. Rather, he says, it's time Robert takes over full-time. And then, there's another Chute — Robert's son, Larry.

"I'd like to continue the book — keep on publishing," Robert says. "Particularly, to keep it up to date on a very fast industry."

He estimates the book will be outdated within six years.

"One thousand hours of training and I'll be qualified-to qualify"

I'm a Chemistry/Radiation Protection Technician at the Consumers Power Midland Nuclear Plant. I am one of many technicians whose job it will be to see that our plant water systems remain free from corrosion. We will also monitor employees and the environment for possible radiation exposure when the plant goes into operation. When I complete my formal training here, I'll have spent more than two years learning the Midland plant in general and my job in particular.

My first month here was spent learning safety programs, quality assurance methods and fire protection procedures. Also, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission requirements and how they will affect everything done here at Midland.

The second month was devoted to plant systems and now I'm studying radiation protection for our Health Physics Department. Later my training will focus on chemistry. And all this will be followed by a written exam, a "walk-through" final exam in which I'll be asked specific questions about our equipment as we tour the plant, and finally an oral exam. Only then will I be knowledgeable enough to start qualifying to perform my job. I will do that through a long-term qualification program designed by the Chemistry/Health Physics supervisory staff.

How do I feel about all this training? I think it's necessary. And going through it can only help us become better at what we do.

Training and testing people as rigorously as Consumers Power does before the Midland plant goes into operation is one more way to make sure.

All-area baseball team packs offensive punch

Salem, Canton players gain honors

By BRAD EMONS
and DOUG FUNKE

It was another outstanding season for area high school baseball teams along with their individuals.

Catholic Central won the coveted Class A state championship in Battle Creek to cap off a great season. The Shamrocks finished the season with an impressive 24-5-1 record.

Other teams with great seasons included Plymouth Salem (19-6), winner of both the district and Suburban Eight League titles; Garden City West (19-5), district champion and regional runners-up; Livonia Franklin (19-7), Northwest Suburban League champs and Cosens Memorial winners; Plymouth Canton (19-6), Midland Tourney champs; Livonia Churchill, Western Six League champions with a 10-0 mark; Livonia Stevenson, co-champs in the Inter-Lakes League; Redford St. Agatha, Second Divison Catholic League champs.

This was also the year of the professional baseball draftee.

Franklin slugger Chris Baker was the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 pick. Teammate Jim Wilson, a catcher, went to the San Francisco Giants in the 20th round. Catholic Central pitcher Craig Herberholz, was drafted by the Kansas City Royals on the 17th round.

Following are the first and second all-Observer teams as selected by area coaches in a meeting just a few weeks ago.

SAM MERRILL
Plymouth Salem

SCOTT DAWSON
Plymouth Canton

FIRST TEAM

Brian James, Plymouth Canton, pitcher. The senior righthander is bound for Michigan State next fall on a full ride baseball scholarship after posting a 9-1 record this spring for the Chiefs.

He was 25-2 during his career and was recently named by the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association as a first-team all-state pick.

The 5-11, 178-pound James had an earned run average of 1.05.

"Brian has a bright future ahead of him. He's the most consistent player I've ever had," said his coach, Fred Crissey.

Tom Miner, Garden City West, pitcher. The Tiger senior lefty posted a 9-2 pitching mark while leading his team to the regional finals. In 68 innings, he had an earned run average of 1.29 and had a high of 18 strike outs in one game.

The 5-10, 170-pounder batted .438 at first base and drove home 21 runs.

He was a Tri-River League first-team pick and is a member of the National Honor Society.

Jim Wilson, Livonia Franklin, catcher. Known for his outstanding defensive ability, the 6-1, 185-pound backstop batted .310 while driving home 13 runs.

He has been on the Northwest Suburban League first-team for two years.

Wilson went on the 20th round to the San Francisco Giants but has not signed. The all-Observer repeater has college offers from Jacksonville (Ala.) State and Arkansas. He was the Patriots' co-captain under first-year coach Gerry Cullin.

"The most fundemental catcher I've ever seen," said one coach at the all-area meeting.

Scott Dawson, Plymouth Canton, first baseman. The senior standout batted .375 with 24 RBI's, including four homers. The 6-3, 175-pounder posted a 7-2 record on tbe Canton mound staff with a 1.20 ERA.

He was an all-Western Six League pick and is going to the University of Michigan on a full-ride baseball scholarship.

"Scott is an outstanding competitor with a bright future also," said Crissey.

Chris Sabo, Catholic Central, infielder. Going into the regional, Sabo batted .425 with 34 hits which included 10 doubles and eight triples.

An all-Catholic League pick, Sabo is probably the Shamrocks' best hitter in 15 years. He was a major force in CC's state title drive.

The junior third baseman will be back next year.

Ron Schueneman, Livonia Churchill, infielder. Only a junior, Schueneman was noted for his power hitting as he led the Chargers to the Western Six League title.

Possessing an outstanding arm for his third base position, Schuneman was an all-league pick.

Gary DeYonker, Livonia Franklin, infielder. The senior shortstop was the lead-off man for the Patriots and batted .341. He ripped 29 hits in 85-at-bats and was the glue which held together the Franklin infield.

He was a first-team all-league pick (Northwest Suburban) and scored 31

Jr. Baseball League frets about lights

By BRAD EMONS

Because of broken lights, the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League must alter its scheduling of games on two diamonds at McClumpha Park.

"We have one well-lighted diamond but the other two fields are unsafe for night baseball," said Junior League President Jim Schols.

"There are about 12 lights out and I'm concerned with safety," he said.

Schols is upset with the lack of action taken by the Plymouth Township Board.

"Before the season even started, I was told the lights would be working by May 21, the first week of our season," Schols said,

"Something should have happened earlier. There has been some stalling on the part of somebody."

Parents have made numerous complaints about the situation to the Observer. Many have complained of minor injuries to their little leaguers allegedly because of the poorly lighted fields.

"The township furnishes the electricity which is fantastic," said Schols. "We need to play on those fields. We've had tremendous expansion and waiting this long for repairs is robbing our kids."

Schols said his organization maintains the fields. The Junior League was granted use of them last February.

TOWNSHIP BOARD Supervisor Thomas Notebaert said the township has been awaiting bids on the job of repairing the broken lights.

"Vandalism is the reason for the problem," said Notebaert. " We have to install new lights, replace the fractured lenses and rent a cherry-picker type truck to install brand new ones.

"This is a considerably larger job than people think. We've had two quotations. One for $8,399.75 and another for $4,544. It's a substantial undertaking and will take three to four weeks to complete."

The issue is on Tuesday's Township Board agenda and Notebaert hopes action will be taken immediately.

"I'm hoping the board will act to correct the problem," said the supervisor.

"Until the job is completed, I would hope the little league would change their schedule," he said.

"I'm not an electrician but I can't see why it should take three to four weeks," Schols said. "That's unacceptable. We have to do something and we'll probably play on Sunday, which is against our regulations."

Each evening, seven games are played beginning at 5:30 p.m. on the three fields at McClumpha. The broken lights have eliminated two of the games each night.

"I know the township has to get good bids and I know lights are expensive. I'm just knocking the timing of whole situation.

Mantle Elks rip Dearborn Hts.

The Canton Elks remained in first place in their division of the Mickey Mantle Baseball League after splitting a pair of games last week.

The Elks are 4-2 in the Southwest League and lead the Red Division.

Detroit Mic Mac edged Canton, 4-3, as Keith Stone went four for four in a losing cause. Bill Hannis added two hits and hurler Dan Funkhouser took the loss.

On Tuesday, Canton came back to defeat Dearborn Heights Crestwood, 9-6, behind the timely hitting of Frank McMurray.

The Canton catcher slapped two doubles, singled and walked. He scored two runs.

Second baseman Steve Gray had two hits, two RBI's and scored two runs. He knocked in two runs with a double in the sixth inning and stole home to score a run.

Hannis contributed to the cause with two more hits.

David Carter went six innings for the Elks to pick up the victory. The tall righthander struck out 10 and walked seven.

Funkhouser relieved Carter with no outs and two runners aboard in the seventh inning. He didn't allow any runs in his one inning stint.

Trailing 3-0. Canton tallied two runs in the second inning and three more third to take a 5-3 lead. Crestwood cut the margin to one run, 5-4, in the fourth, and tied the game up in the sixth with a single run.

The Elks came up with four runs in the sixth to take a 9-5 advantage. Crestwood collected its last run in the seventh off Carter.

The Elks will host the Detroit Eagles at home, 6:30 p.m. at the Canton High School field.

On Thursday, the Elks are tentatively scheduled to play a doubleheader against Northville at Salem's field, starting at 4:30 p.m.

Canton clubs win

The Canton Soccer Club had three teams who received honors by winning their respective divisions during the spring season of the Great Lakes Soccer League.

The first place teams were Orange Crush, 12-year-old girls, coached by Pete Cundari; Hornets, 14-year-old boys, coached by Ken Johnson; Canton Madrid, 19-year-old boys, coached by Dave Monk.

All three teams were awarded with divisional trophies. The Hornets and Madrid also won the traveling trophies in the finals played at Schoolcraft College.

AP recognizes Dawson

The Associated Press has named Plymouth Canton first baseman-pitcher Scott Dawson to the all-state baseball squad.

A senior, Dawson was selected to the first team as a first baseman.

The 6-3, 175-pounder batted .375 this year while hitting four homers. As a pitcher, Dawson posted a 7-2 won-lost mark. He led Canton to a 19-6 record and the Midland Tourney championship.

Dawson will attend the University of Michigan on a baseball scholarship this fall.

runs for the power-laden Patriots.

He was involved in 19 double plays. The 5-9, 150-pound DeYonker was a starting guard for the Patriots this past basketball season.

Chris Baker, Livonia Franklin, outfielder. The 6-4, 195-pound senior had his season summed up when selected by the Tigers in the first round.

He recently signed with the Detroit club and will report to Bristol (Va.) for Rookie League duty.

The power-hitting Baker hit two homers and drove home 24 runs while batting .377. He struck out just three times all year.

Baker was a first-team all-state choice and is no slouch in the classroom, possessing a 3.3 grade point average.

"Chris is an exceptional team player and leader," said Cullin.

Baker was a first-team choice as a center on the all-Observer cage squad.

Herb McManaway, Livonia Franklin, outfielder. This 5-11, 175-pound junior was the Patriots' other first-team all-state pick.

He led the team in hitting (.494), RBI's (45), triples (10) and hits (43).

His hit total led all batters in the state.

McManaway played both the outfield and first base. The all-Northwest Suburban League pick "had the respect of our whole team," said Cullin.

Craig Beyrand, Livonia Stevenson, outfielder. A three-year varsity player, Beyrand batted .361 while rapping out 22 hits.

He was Stevenson's MVP this season as a senior and collected a hit in 16 of his last 18 games.

Beyrand also saw duty as a catcher and pitcher and led the squad in innings played, runs scored (15), doubles (5) and RBI's (tied-15).

"Craig has excellent speed and has good range," said Stevenson coach Larry Ruzsas.

Brian Justus, Livonia Bentley, designated hitter. A senior, Justus was the Bulldogs' cleanup hitter and batted .391.

He was an all-Suburban Eight League choice. He won five games for Bentley while pitching as he earned his second letter. He had 18 hits and 10 RBI's this season.

SECOND TEAM

Jeff Sergison, Livonia Franklin, pitcher. The versatile senior posted a 4-1 mark as pitcher and batted .315 as a first baseman.

He was a first-team all-Northwest Suburban League pick this year.

Sergison, a 5-11, 164-pound lefty, had 17 hits and only six strike outs this season.

In 38 innings pitched, he struck out 41.

Greg Brake, Bishop Borgess, pitcher. The junior lefty compiled a 6-3 won-lost mark with a 1.12 ERA. In 63 innings he struck out 81 batters and was a first-team selection in the Catholic League's Central Divison.

Dave Wilcox, Plymouth Salem, catcher. Known to his teammates as "Bubba," he was picked on the all-state team, making the second unit.

He batted .448 with seven homers and 25 RBIs and was a two-year starter. Wilcox was a first-team all-Region choice.

Wilcox was noted for his defensive ability. Opposing base runners failed many times in their attempts to steal.

"Bubba literally carried Salem most of the season," said one coach.

Bubba is now a member of the U.S. Marine Corps involved in boot camp training at Parris Island, S.C.

"Bubba was a hard worker and did everything we asked," said Salem coach Brian Gilles.

Jim Anderson, Plymouth Salem, first baseman. The power slugging junior batted .338 with 22 hits and 17 walks.

Anderson had 20 RBIs and played outstanding as a first sacker defensively. He also plays basketball and football.

Denny Knittel, St. Agatha, infielder. The 5-11, 175-pound senior used his quick bat to hit to all fields. He batted .359 and posted a 7-3 record while pitching for the Aggies, who won the Catholic League's Second Division crown.

The righthander had an earned run average of 0.98.

Gary Rago, Garden City West, infielder. The 5-10, 160-pound senior was a steady influence for the Tigers as a second baseman.

He collected 29 hits and scored 28 runs while batting .397.

For the second year in a row, Rago was selected to the first team in the Tri-River League and was a letter winner in both basketball and football.

Rago batted second in the line up for coach Bob Dropp.

Tom Smith, Livonia Stevenson, infielder. The senior Smith batted .460 this season as both a shortstop and catcher.

He ripped 23 hits and hit three homers in 18 games.

For the second year in a row, Smith was a first team choice in the Inter-Lakes League.

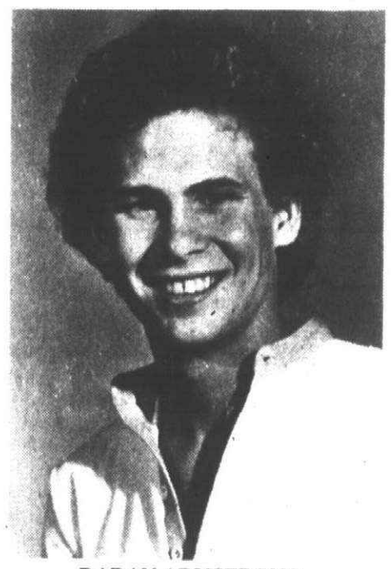
"Tom is a very relaxed and confident ballplayer," said Ruzsas. "He seldom strikes out and can hit any pitch.

Smith will be attending Wayne State on a football-baseball scholarship.

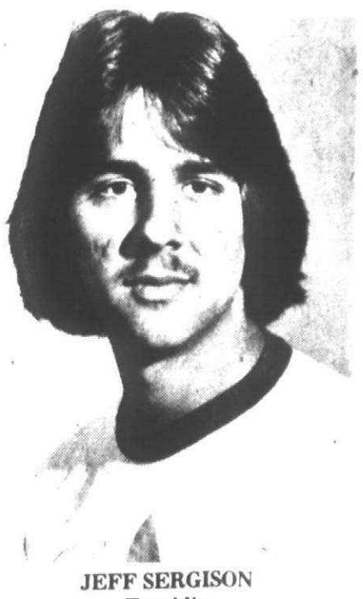
Sam Merrill, Plymouth Salem, outfielder. This senior lefthander hit .424 with 18 RBIs and 11 stolen bases for the Rocks.

A clutch hitter, Merrill improved defensively as the season went along as Salem's leftfielder.

"His improvement over last season is incredible," said Gilles. "He came through for us a lot."



DARAN ARMSTRONG
John Glenn



JEFF SERGISON
Franklin

Daran Armstrong, Westland John Glenn, outfielder. Noted for his outstanding basketball ability, the senior Armstrong batted near the .400 mark in his first year of varsity baseball.

The swift-moving Armstrong led Glenn to a second-place finish in the Northwest Suburban League besides a runner-up spot in the district.

"Armstrong has a lot of natural ability," said one coach.

Alvin Jones, St. Agatha, outfielder. The 6-1, 190-pound junior batted .400 to spark the Aggies to the Second Division title in the Catholic League.

"Al has excellent speed, good power and a very strong arm," said coach Pat Ruvulo. "Al has good range in the outfield."

BOB DROPP

West coach hailed

Best area coaches saluted

By BRAD EMONS

Five area coaches have been singled out by the Observer sports staff for their efforts this past spring.

Named Coach of the Year in their respective sports are Tom Bills, Livonia Stevenson, boys track; John Sove, Livonia Stevenson girls softball; Bob Dropp, Garden City West, baseball; Paul Holmberg, Livonia Stevenson; and Jim Gibbons, Redford Union, girls track.

BILLS was instrumental in Stevenson's fine boys track season.

In his rookie season, Bills led the Spartans to the Inter-Lakes and Observerland Relay titles. The enthusiastic Bills was noted for getting the most out of his lineup as he jockeyed his athletes, tailored to their best events.

Stevenson finished the year with an 11-0 dual meet mark. Bills will have another powerhouse next year as only three seniors graduate.

SOVE did the unexpected as he led Stevenson to a second place finish in the Inter-Lakes softball chase behind Waterford Township.

Picked to be a last place team, Sove guided the Spartans to a surprising 7-3 league mark. Sove went into the season with just four players returning, two whom were seniors.

With a handful of returnees, the Spartans will be a team to contend with next season.

DROPP directed Garden City West to one its best baseball seasons ever, sporting a 19-5 overall mark and a second place finish in the Tri-River League.

Dropp's team reached the regional final before losing a heartbreaking 2-1 decision to Adrian.

His team was the best slugging club in West history. The Tigers ripped opposing pitchers for a .343 team average.

Dropp has been a coach at West for 14 years. This season, two of his players were named to the all-Observer team.

HOLMBERG made an easy transition in coaching the Stevenson girls track squad.

A year ago, Holmberg led the Stevenson boys to the Inter-Lakes League title. In charge of the girls for the first time this year, Holmberg led the Spartans to a 4-1 dual mark and league championship.

Stevenson has never lost an Inter-Lakes title in girls track, thanks to Holmberg's effort this year.

He also ably coached the Stevenson boys' cross country team and compiled the best girls' times this spring for the Observer.

GIBBONS is no stranger to area sports. He promptly made the most out of his first year coaching the Redford Union girls' track team.

The Panthers posted a 5-0 dual meet mark and copped the Northwest Suburban League crown.

Gibbons credits a lot of his first year success to assistant coach Mike Krafchak. Gibbons is Redford Union's volleyball coach and is an assistant football coach at Catholic Central.

Caesars' streak ends

By SCOTT ADLER

Plymouth Canton Little Caesars had problems pushing any runs across the plate Thursday against Southfield, losing 5-2, snapping a three game winning streak.

Prior to the Southfield loss, Little Caesars had scored 35 runs in three games but missed their opportunities to score plenty more in Thursday's Connie Mack League battle. Caesars failed to produce the run scoring hits in what coach John Gravlin called "a story of missed opportunities."

"Everything seemed to go right for Southfield," said a bewildered Gravlin. "Their coach did a great job, they bunted well but we could have fielded them but we just didn't."

Canton left 10 runners on base and runners in scoring position six of seven innings.

Pat McNamara suffered the loss for Little Caesars, giving up 10 hits, five of which were slow rollers just out the reach of the Canton infield. He struck out three and walked two. McNamara's record now stands at 1-1.

"We were just a little inconsistent," said Gravlin. "We were getting timely hits the last couple of games but today we didn't. We had our chances, but the hits just didn't come through."

Last Tuesday, Little Caesars came through with a 6-0 victory on the road against Redford Union, who is winless so far.

RIGHTHANDER Brian James went the distance for his second victory in three decisions. James gave up two hits while striking out eight in the victory.

Rusty Mandle, Pat McNamara and Dave Weise each collected two hits for Little Caesars.

The Canton Chiefs Parent's Summer Baseball Club plans to hold a raffle to benefit the Chiefs' baseball program. Tickets are $1 and are available at any Little Caesars' home games. Tickets can be purchased from any player, coach or parent.

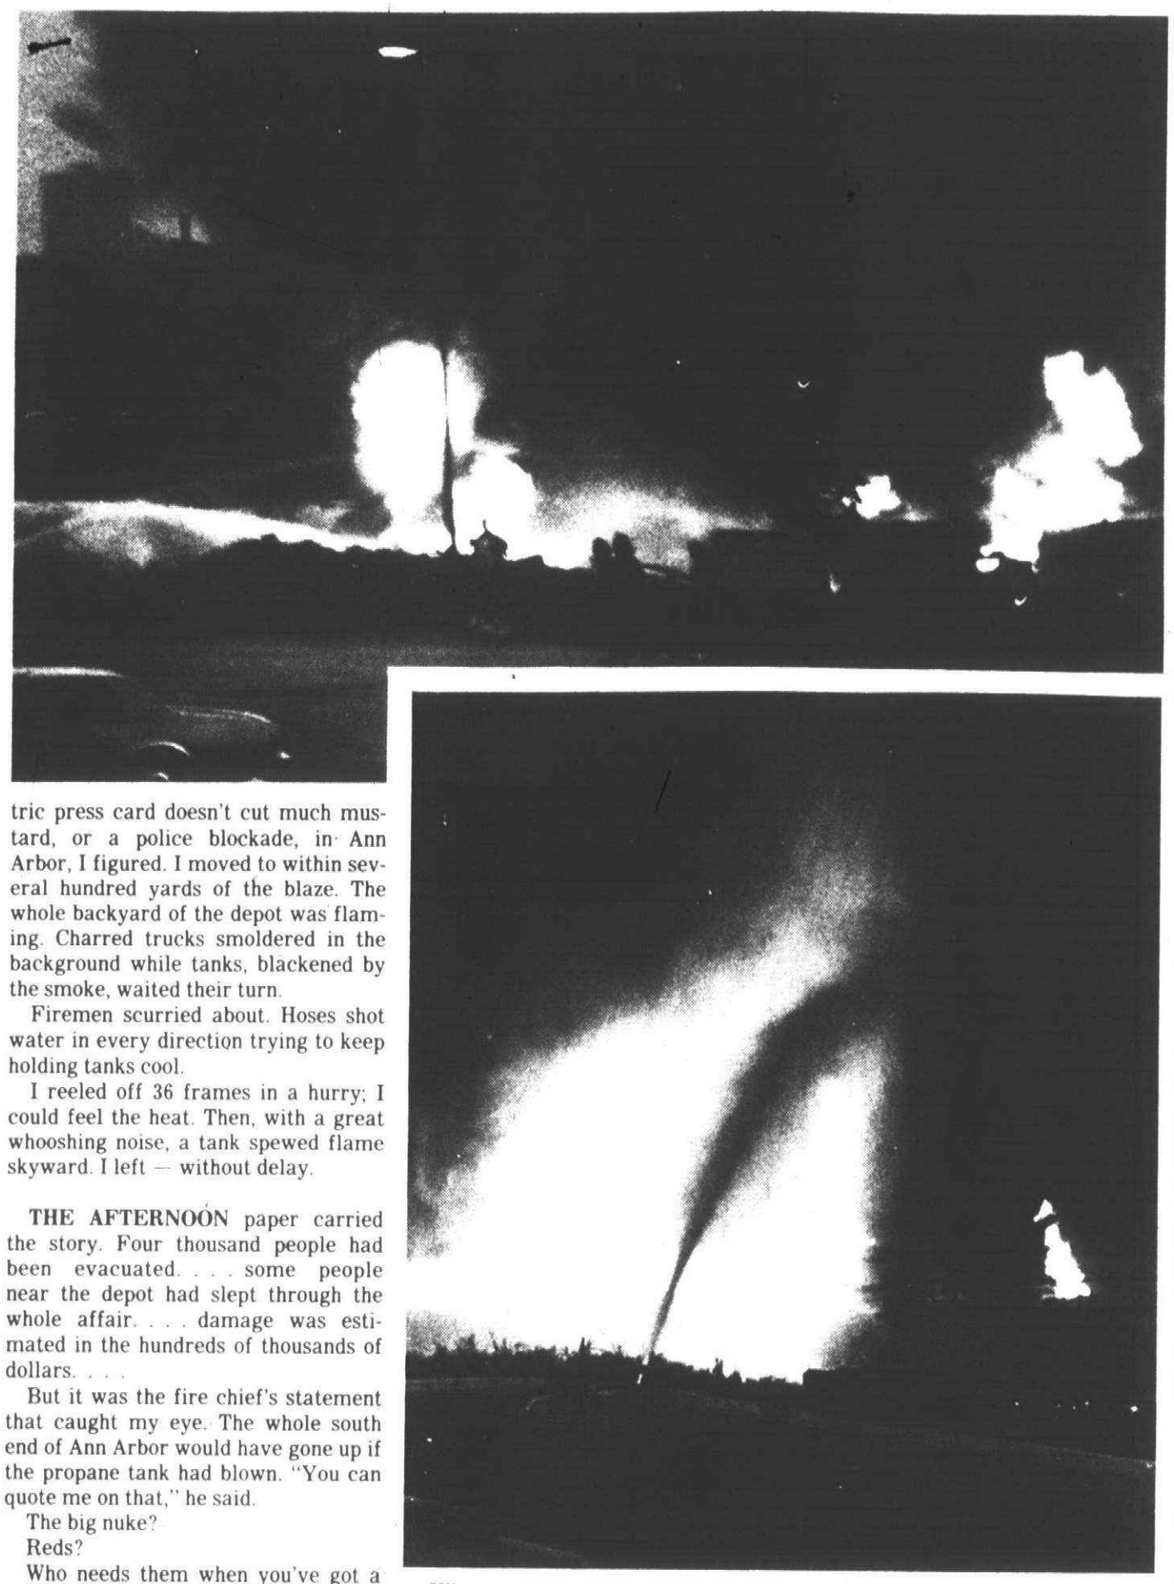
Apocalypse now — in Ann Arbor

By RICHARD GOLD



It shook the house. It was loud, louder than thunder, louder than a graduation night cherry bomb.

Two more exploding noises followed. It definitely wasn't celebrating seniors, and if it was thunder, the sky was falling.

The dogs jumped on the bed, panting heavily and whining.

I rolled over and looked at the clock.

It was 4:30 a.m.

More explosions followed. The dogs began to shake.

I turned on the lights, rubbed my eyes, and headed for the picture window in the living room.

The sky was glowing pink — pulsating red and white. Heat lightning?

NO, IT WAS too strange.

Sirens wailed in the night and the dogs began to howl.

Could it be? Had the Soviets nuked Detroit — and right in the middle of the SALT talks.

Dirty Reds. Well, at least the price was right. I had front row tickets to the apocalypse, and from my own living room. Maybe skylab had made an early return to earth.

I called the police. Something on State Street was on fire.

It was Ann Arbor, not Detroit, under siege.

I grabbed the camera, a pair of pants and the binoculars and headed for the car.

By the time I hit town, Packard Road was snarled with traffic — reminiscent of a football Saturday.

People on bikes, foot and in cars were headed for the blaze.

Gallup Silkworth, the local fuel depot, was aflame.

PROPANE, OIL, fuel — tons of the stuff just waiting to blow.

Police had blockaded the area in every direction and were hording hosts of rubberneckers away from the inferno. There was still a propane tank in the middle of the flame.

I headed for the Eisenhower Parkway. There's a bridge there that overlooks town. By the time I got there, it was jammed with parked cars. But the blaze was visible — more than a mile away. Flames surged above the tree tops surrounding the depot and smoke — dark, black smoke — covered the city skyline. I drove down Eisenhower and parked the car.

Like a good reporter, I slipped behind police lines. An Observer & Eccentric press card doesn't cut much mustard, or a police blockade, in Ann Arbor, I figured. I moved to within several hundred yards of the blaze. The whole backyard of the depot was flaming. Charred trucks smoldered in the background while tanks, blackened by the smoke, waited their turn.

Firemen scurried about. Hoses shot water in every direction trying to keep holding tanks cool.

I reeled off 36 frames in a hurry; I could feel the heat. Then, with a great whooshing noise, a tank spewed flame skyward. I left — without delay.

THE AFTERNOON paper carried the story. Four thousand people had been evacuated. . . . some people near the depot had slept through the whole affair. . . . damage was estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. . . .

But it was the fire chief's statement that caught my eye. The whole south end of Ann Arbor would have gone up if the propane tank had blown. "You can quote me on that," he said.

The big nuke?

Reds?

Who needs them when you've got a fuel depot in the middle of town.

(The writer is an O&E copy editor who lives in Ann Arbor.)

Whooshing noises and spewing flame kept firefighters on their toes. Inset: Hoses were placed to keep unburned tanks cool, a move that prevented a propane tank from exploding.

Nuclear power: Is it worth the risk?

What is nuclear power? What are its benefits, its weaknesses, its risks?

These topical and controversial issues are covered by James J. Duderstadt, University of Michigan professor of nuclear engineering, in a five-part film series, "Nuclear Power and You."

The half-hour programs were produced by Alfred H. Slote and directed by Marshall Franke at the U-M Media Resources Center's television production unit.

The films, a layman's introduction to nuclear power, are available in color on ¾-inch video cassette and two-inch quad tape formats for purchase or rent to interested groups and television stations.

In the first program, "The Fear and the Fact," Dunderstadt examines the controversy surrounding nuclear power from the viewpoint nuclear demonstrators and the nation's energy needs.

Duderstadt considers such alternative energy sources as solar power, wind, ocean currents, and geo-thermal power. "None," he says, "can presently provide electric power on a large scale."

In the second program, "The Reactor," Duderstadt illustrates how a nuclear reactor works — from the nuclear fission process begun by the splitting of a uranium atom, to the simple chain reaction, through the end product of electricity.

In the third program called "Risks," Duderstadt discusses what goes into the safety features of a reactor.

SYNOPSIS OF MINUTES
Board of Education
Livonia Public Schools
Regular Meeting
June 4, 1979

*The following is a summary, in synopsis form, of the Board of Education's regular meeting of June 4, 1979; the full text of the minutes is on file in the office of the Superintendent, 15125 Farmington Road, and in the principal's office of each school, and is available to the public on request.

President Strom convened the meeting at 8 p.m., in the Board Room, 15125 Farmington Road, Livonia. Present: Charles Akey, James Merner, Marvin Pridgeon, Mark Scarr, Carol Strom, Ronald Withers, Constance Hierta (8:05 p.m.) Absent: None. Mrs. Hierta represented the Board at the annual Wayne County Intermediate School District Board election and arrived at 8:05 p.m.

Communications were received as follows: request for nominations for MASB Board of Directors; letter from Schoolcraft requesting support of their millage proposals; letter of appreciation from Geraldine Joyner, Dollars for Scholars; letter of appreciation for the vision screening program from Elizabeth Rumpz; invitation to Perrinville recognition luncheon; announcement of NSBA large district forum meeting; copy of a letter from Ethel Cardasis. Mrs. Hierta reported she had cast the Board's vote at the WCISD election; unanimously elected were Geraldine Joyner and Richard Muse.

Audience Communication: Carolyn Rembacz addressed the Board relative to her concern about the proposed Bryant area boundary changes. After discussion, Mrs. Rembacz was asked to submit any questions or proposed new plans to the Board in writing.

Recognition: President Strom presented to Lois McDonald, Stevenson swimming coach, a resolution in recognition of her accomplishments and for being the recipient of the 1978-79 Matt Mann Award.

Minutes and synopses of the regular meetings of May 14 and May 21 were approved as written.

MHSAA Membership: Resolution by Withers and Scarr to authorize membership in the Michigan High School Athletic Association for the 1979-80 school year. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None.

Computer Upgrade: Resolution by Pridgeon and Merner to authorize the administration to upgrade the present B3700 Burroughs computer system to a Burroughs B3800 computer system at a total additional cost of $595.96 per month. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None.

Bryant Library: Resolution by Withers and Hierta to sell the Bryant Junior High School library collection of 9,196 volumes and 8,171 titles to the Goodrich Area Schools for a total purchase price of $21,000. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None.

Budget Status Report: Mr. Bedell presented a document entitled, "Latest Update on Two-Year Budget Position." He stressed the fluidic nature of the financial information and said that in March the district anticipated a shortfall of $540,306 at the end of the 1979-80 school year, but the budget picture has changed considerably since then, due to increases in anticipated revenues and improved expenditure status. The possible net equity for June, 1980, appears to be $42,170. The Finance Committee and administration will continue to examine the revenue/expenditure situation.

Transportation Report: The Board was presented with a transportation position paper, which included a recommendation to expand the transportation system at the elementary level to provide bus service to all elementary students living between one mile and one and one-half miles from their schools. The low number of students involved, plus the state reimbursement percentage, makes it feasible. The additional local cost would be $9,560. Resolution by Withers and Pridgeon to authorize the administration to implement bus service for all elementary students (approximately 178 students) living between one and one and one-half miles from the schools they attend. During discussion of this matter, it was noted that the SBAC Transportation Committee had not had an opportunity to review the report. Table: Resolution by Withers and Pridgeon that the motion be tabled until June 18 so that the SBAC Transportation Committee may review and react to the report. Ayes: Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: Akey.

Retirement Resolution: Resolution by Hierta, unanimously approved by the Board, to adopt a resolution of appreciation for the sevices rendered by Rena Young.

Principal Assignments: The assignments of elementary principals for the 1979-80 school year were acknowledged.

Student Administration Day was June 4, and Gregg Perakes, one of the participants, was introduced to the Board.

Superintendent's Report: Dr. Garver stated that it is planned to dismiss one day early all of the six schools that are closing in order to provide the staff with time to implement some of the numerous tasks that are necessary. The Board did not express any objection to this procedure.

Committee Reports: 1) Mrs. Hierta said the Curriculum Committee had discussed Project CHALLENGE and received an update on Project ACTION. Copies of the minutes will be sent to the Board. 2) Mr. Akey said the minutes of the last Building and Site committee meeting will provide the basis for the closed session on property matters.

Board Hearing: 1) Mr. Pridgeon asked that whenever the administration testifies at a legislative hearing, all the school district's legislators receive advance notice. 2) Mrs. Strom wondered if Carl Pursell's legislation on the gifted had any bearing on funds being available for projects such as CHALLENGE. 3) Mrs. Strom asked if school media centers are being closed at the end of the week. It was replied that some will be closed for the purpose of taking inventory and a full report will be provided to the Board. Mrs. Strom suggested using volunteer workers. 4) Due to the June 11 election, a Board meeting will not be held on that date. 5) Mrs. Strom said an endorsement letter concerning Schoolcraft's election had been prepared if Board members wish to sign it.

Closed Session: Resolution by Withers and Hierta to recess to closed session on property matters. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None. The meeting was recessed at 10:15 p.m. and reconvened at 11:20 p.m.

Section 5: Resolution by Withers and Akey to declare the 25-acre site in Section 5 to be surplus land and no longer necessary for school purposes and to authorize the advertisement for the sale of said vacant property. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None.

Bryant Site: Resolution by Akey and Withers to accept the offer of St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church to purchase 1.83 acres of vacant property located in the northwest corner of the Bryant site for $21,960. Be it further resolved that the sale be contingent on an expressed right of the Livonia Public Schools to utilize the property when not in use by the church. Ayes: Akey, Hierta, Merner, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None. It was noted that arrangements could be made to relocate the soccer field.

REPORTS ARE filtering in on the summer activities of local thespians, those talented drama majors who spend their vacations in summer stock or performing in year-round playhouses.

Charles Burr has been hired by the Boars Head Theatre in Grand Ledge to perform in three shows. He will be in Harvey which opened June 20 and runs until July 1.

This will be followed by Man of LaMancha, July 4 through July 22. Third show is*George M!*, July 25 through Aug. 12.

Boars Head is open Wednesday through Sunday. Persons wanting reservations or more information can call the box office, mornings, 517-484-7805 or evenings, 517-627-7805. Some of our residents traveled all the way to Texas to see Charlie last summer when he was playing the Granbury Opera House.

The Boars Head Theatre moves out of Lansing for the summer to a big red barn in a park just west of Grand Ledge.

Charles is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and graduated this year from Eastern Michigan University. His parents are Ruth and Sanford Burr of Plymouth.

LISA GRIMM, a Plymouth Canton High graduate, class of '77, is performing at Greenfield Village this summer.

Lisa has the role of Toni in the Greenfield Village Players production of A Trip to Chinatown by Charles Hoyt.

The musical opened Friday evening in the Henry Ford Museum Theater and will run weekends through July 28.

Lisa also has been cast in the Greenfield Village Town Hall for the summer. She will be performing vaudeville-type shows, songs and dances from the 1890s to the 1930s, an Al Jolson review and a George M. Cohan review. There will be 10 shows daily in the Town Hall in the Village from noon to 5 p.m. now through Sept. 1.

Lisa is a theater major at Wayne State University. Her parents are Toni and Hal Grimm of Plymouth.

THE ROBERT A. Smiths who live on Gloucester in Plymouth were in Lewisburg, Pa. a couple of weekends ago for Bob's 10th class reunion at Bucknell University.

As president of the class of '69, it was Bob's very pleasant duty to present $50,000 to the university. It was the largest class gift ever to Bucknell and represented donations from 327 class members who completed a program of 10-year pledges made during their senior year.

The class voted to designate the the gift to the Annual Fund, but to restrict its use to scholarships.

Both Barbara and Bob are from the east — Concord, Mass. and Princeton, N.J. They came to the area eight years ago. He works for Ford Motor Company Steel Division.

They have two children, Christopher, 4, and Katherine, 2.

THE BELL RINGER Choir concert at 8 p.m. Friday, June 29 in First United Presbyterian Chrurch of Plymouth is a pleasant surprise for the community.

It all came about because former members of the parish, Bev and Dick Brooks. Their daughter, Susan, is a member of the choir.

The Westminster Bell Ringers will be en route to Toronto where they have been invited to perform at the Kiwanis International Convention in Maple Leaf Gardens.

There are five bell choirs at the Village Church of Northbrook, Ill. The Westminster choir is the concert group, the most accomplished of the lot. Since September 1978, they have played 18 concerts. There are 15 teenagers, 12 girls and three boys, in the choir.

They will arrive in town Friday afternoon in time to have dinner with their host families before the concert. The Schulmerich bells used by the choir have a five-octave range.

The concert in the sanctuary of the church on Church Street at Main is open to the public. There will be a freewill offering.

TWENTY STUDENTS from Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools are winging their way to Malaga, Spain. They flew from Metro Airport to Toronto Sunday and planned to leave today for Spain.

All are students of Tony Lonigro of Canton Township , a Spanish teacher. During their two weeks in Spain they will take side trips to Africa and Grenada.

SUE SMITH, Bev Halloran, Marge Mogelnicki, Sam Nichols, Sharlene Totten, Kathy Palardy and Helen Wesner assisted the Canton Township Jaycees in their recent Walk for Mankind.

The women are members of the Canton Newcomers Club. Their assignment was taking care of Checkpoint 11. Because their post was just one mile from the finish line, they had the pleasure of cheering the walkers down the last dusty mile of their journey.

One-man beautification team has plants blooming

By ELINOR GRAHAM

There's a new beautification program under way at Tonquish Creek Manor on Sheridan Avenue. Spearheaded by Bill Davis, a resident of the senior citizen building, the project has the blessing of director Sharon Thomas, the manor's staff and all its residents.

New plantings of flowers make splashes of color in places never before under cultivation. A tour of the grounds with the "resident gardener" revealed his enthusiasm and immediate and long-term plans.

Because of a drainage problem, the whole area between the driveway and the building has been torn up. A cement mixer and other paraphernalia still stand in front of the manor. A graph drawing of plans for plantings shows how it will look if Davis can procure the low shrubs and bushes to complete his project.

"I'd like to get some white stones for the base of the trees," he said. "White stone really sets it off. Those wood chips just last about three years and they don't set off a tree or shrub."

He added, "Thank goodness it flooded before I had everything planted out here. It would have been ruined."

ROSES AND petunias are blooming along the low red brick wall west of the circle drive.

"The rose bushes were here but this is the first time there's been a flower bed along here. I dug it up and put in the petunias and hollyhocks," said Davis. He also put in some perennials, evening primroses, and some marigolds. He even planted some alyssum around the base of a utility pole guide wire.

"Can't get the lawnmower in there and these will spread," he explained.

Davis has potted roses stored in a shady spot awaiting the completion of drainage work. They will be planted in the front beds. Nearby is a vegetable and flower garden.

Tomato plants are flourishing and so are the potatoes.

"I put in nine hills and I got nine hills." One of the manor residents had contributed two budded redskin potatoes. He had cut them up and planted them--nine hills of potatoes from two sprouted potatoes.

The beets and ornamental cabbages are well up and the asters, radishes, other flowers and vegetables are marked in neat rows.

"THE PEOPLE here love to see the gardens," Davis said. "They like to see things coming up in the spring. They want to weed the gardens, but some of them can't get down that low. I'd like to get one of those pyramid-type planters that are self-watering. You plant in each layer and they would be

Canton hosts its first beauty pageant

By LORAINE McCLISH

Tall and blond Mary Morton took the roses of victory and the title of Miss Michigan Venus from Southfield resident Dee Dee Russell, who wore both the state and national crowns for the past year.

Director Cindy Guenther staged a pageant equal to a Las Vegas production in Canton's Center Stage with its orange, purple and pink accouterments, revolving lights and a disco theme for the 90 contenders.

Runners-up in the competition aimed to open the doors for those aspiring careers in show business were Dana James, from Rodney; Jayne Lynn LaButte from Lakeland; Leslie Anne Deagle from Troy; and Keri Bazzell from Dearborn.

Finalists in the competition from Livonia were Sharon Nygard, Susan Topolewski, and Jill Getto, all from Livonia.

Other finalists were Kimberly Flora from Plymouth and Lori Ann Lahnala from Garden City.

Eddie Rogers, who plays Pure Disco on WDRQ and is the station's operating director, acted as master of ceremonies, along with Ms. Guenther.

The 12 judges who rated the contestants on appearance, personality, poise, figure and interview responses were selected because of their theatrical, sports, or modeling backgrounds.

THE NEW MISS Michigan Venus, a resident of Taylor, took home the keys to a new car, a John Robert Powers Modeling School scholarship, a diamond necklace, and an appointment to have a $500 gown designed for her use when she appears at the national pageant to compete for the Miss Venus USA title.

She will have beauty treatments, a weekend vacation, and theater ticket passes for the year.

She will also be working closely with Ms. Guenther through the summer in preparation for the national pageant; then through the year with individuals associated in the fields of fashion, arts, stage, theatre and modeling.

Miss Russell, the outgoing queen, is now signed up with Wilhelmenia, one of the top model agencies in New York, after spending a lot of her time this year traveling for Ford Motor Company introducing new cars and narrating at auto shows.

The Michigan Venus pageant is fast becoming one of the most prestegious in the state, notably because of Ms. Guenther's concern for all of the contestants, and her drive to help them reach their goals.

She is a former pageant winner, which launched her own career as a model, then hostess for WXYZ's Michigame.

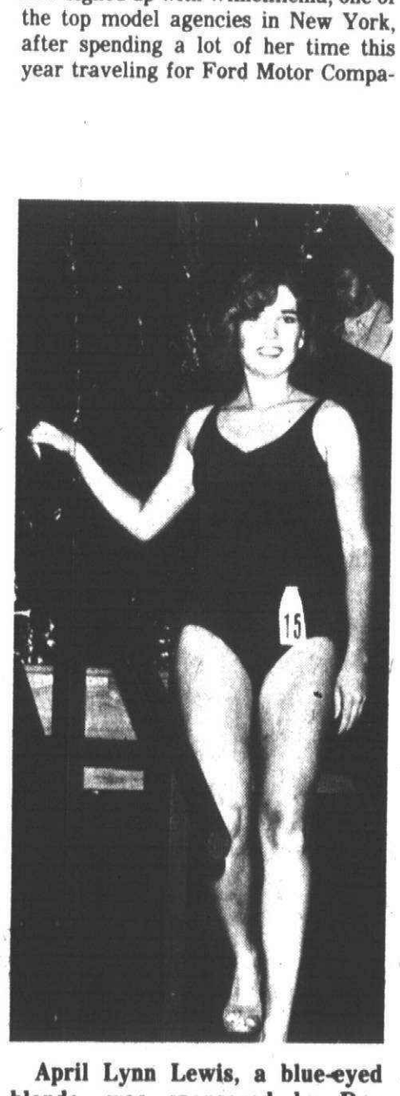
The Venus pageant is the world's first international beauty contest, started in 1961. Ms. Guenther assumed directorship of the state pageant after she was chosen queen in 1975.

Among other national winners of the pageant are Linda Carter, television's 'Wonder Woman' and Marji Wallace, who does numerous TV commercials.

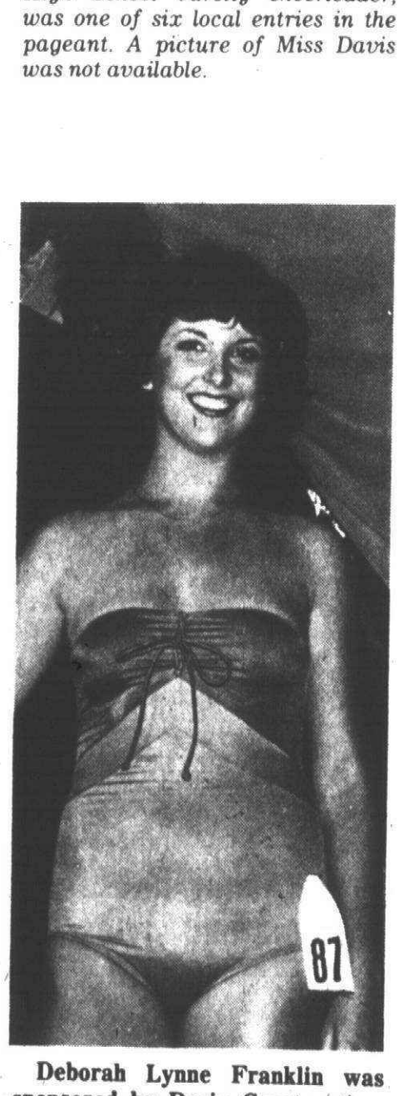
Holly Davis, a Plymouth Salem High School varsity cheerleader, was one of six local entries in the pageant. A picture of Miss Davis was not available.

Mary Morton of Taylor is the new Miss Michigan Venus. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

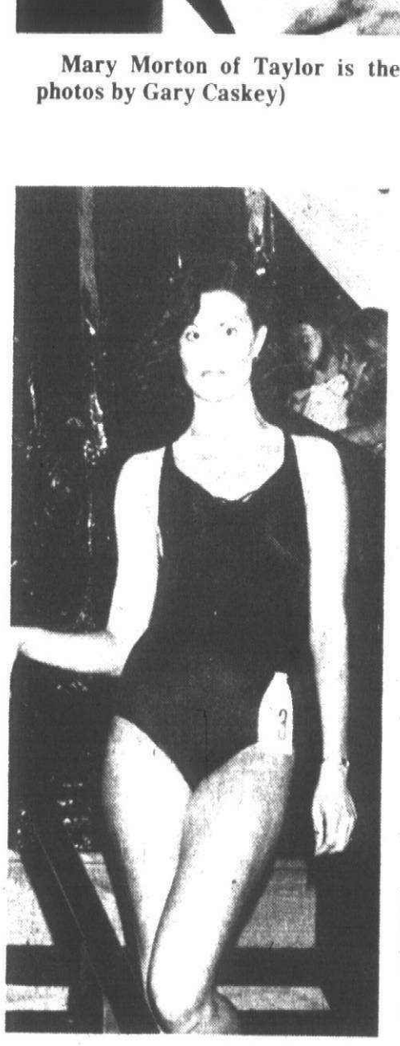
Karen Rais, 17, a cheerleader at Plymouth Salem High School was one of the youngest in the contest. The blue-eyed blonde was sponsored by ATC Air Conditioning.



April Lynn Lewis, a blue-eyed blonde, was sponsored by Don Massey Cadillac. She is a ballet student and a Plymouth Salem High School cheerleader.

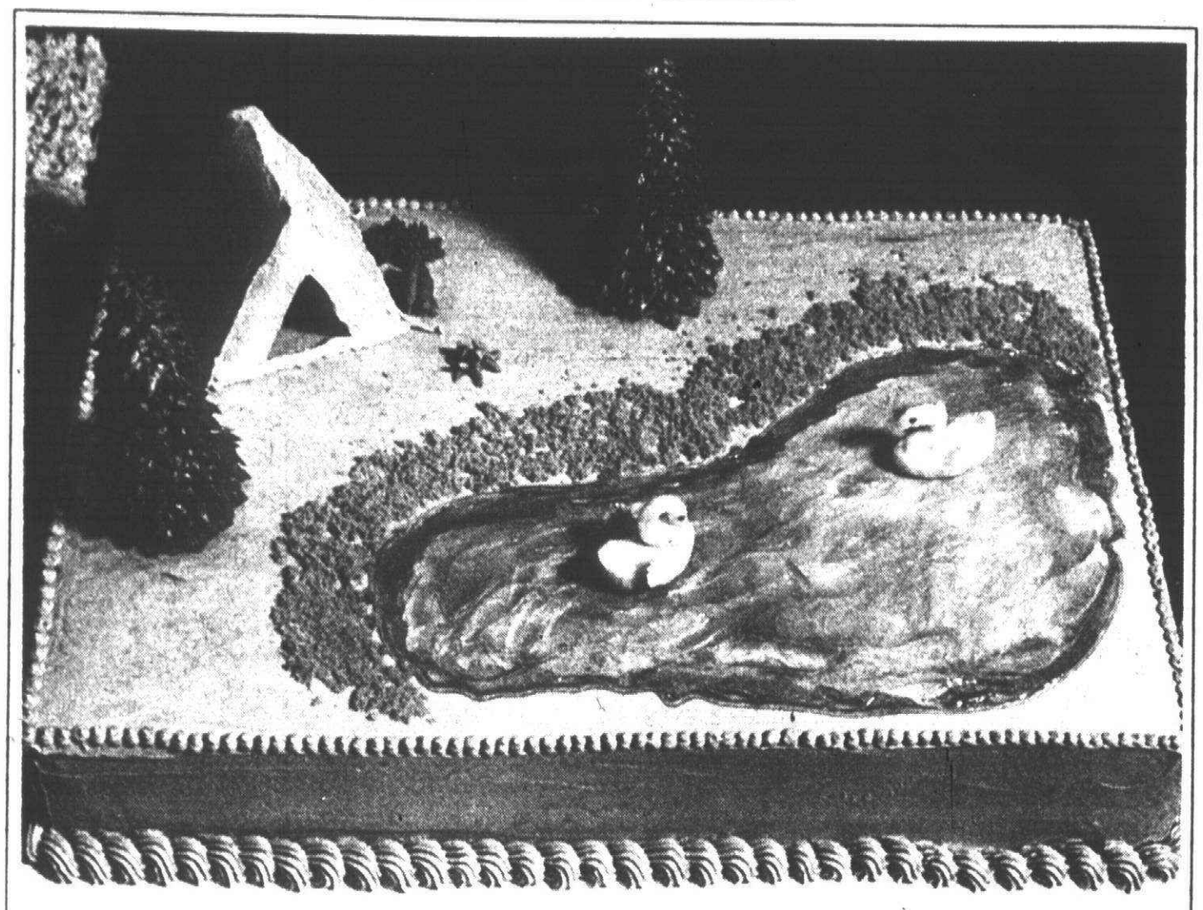


Deborah Lynne Franklin was sponsored by Derin Construction, Inc. She has blue eyes and brown hair.



Susan Moore was sponsored by Mario's Hair Salon and Maternity Vogue. She has chestnut brown hair and brown eyes and is 5-7.

Kimberly Scott Flora was a finalist. The student at Schoolcraft College has brown hair and hazel eyes. She was sponsored by J. Malcolm Flora, Inc.



Cake decorators

Cathi Renberg of Canton Township earned a first place ribbon for her original design which incorporated marzipan swans, firewood, tent and trees. The swans floated on sparkling blue water and brown sugar sand delineated the shoreline.

Winners at the first cake decorating contest sponsored by Create a Cake on Warren Road in Canton Township included: (from left) Pam Watson holding Sharon Watson, 4, of Westland, Karen Hodge of Garden City, Cathi Renberg of Canton, Irene Levangie, 13 of Westland, with Eric Rogers, 7, of Canton front and center.

Virginia Towley, owner of the shop had categories for age groups from 3-5, to adults. Ribbons and prizes were awarded. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

New look at Tonquish Creek Manor

What Bill Davis described as a "scrabbly good for nothing place is now abloom with flowers. (Staff photo)

able to weed those without bending over."

He pointed out the round petunia beds planted by the Colonial Kiwanis Club, whose members also help weed and clean up the property in the spring. The birdfeeder is supplied with seed by the club.

The patio with its picnic tables is a favorite spot for potluck luncheons during the warm months.

"This corner was a scrabbly good-for-nothing place," said Davis. "I asked Daisy if she would like some flowers there, and she said she sure would." Daisy Proctor is tenant service coordinator at the manor.

The "scrabbly place" is now filled with annuals which will flower until the frost comes.

WANDERING along the walk beside Tonquish Creek at the back of the property, he discussed the retaining walls erected last year by a group of teenagers from Growth Works.

"They all worked together, boys and girls, building those walls to keep the creek from washing away the banks. That's the best money the government ever spent. It kept them busy and they learned something." The teens were members of the Youth Community Concervation Interest Program funded by a government grant.

Bill Davis has transplanted shrubs that had to be moved from the front of the building. He has dug a 10-inch strip around the back wing of the building and planted morning glories at the base of a fire plug.

Another bed, full of annuals waiting to be transplanted to the front beds, contains a mixture of plants. These are potted plants that residents of the manor have received as gifts over the year. When they quit flowering, the resident gardener rescues them from the trash can.

Chrysanthemums, Easter lilies, poinsettias and other plants have been set out for the summer and are responding to their new environment.

He would like to have more perennials "but our flower fund is down to about $13. My daughter's husband is a Good, from Good's Nursery. If it hadn't been for them giving me bargain rates on these plants, we wouldn't have much."

BILL AND BLANCHE Davis were among the original tenants to move into Tonquish Creek Manor. From the windows of their apartment, they can see the grounds rolling down toward the creek.

"Look at it now," said Davis. "And it's just as beautiful in the winter time. We have all kinds of birds, lots of squirrels and muskrats, and we've even seen a beaver."

For years, the now avid gardener had a health problem that limited his physical activity. A new medication brought about an improvement that he describes as almost a miracle.

"I never felt better and I've never been happier. I've lost 12 pounds, and when we have company we stay up until 2 a.m. I work out here when I feel like it and go indoors when I feel like it."

"He's out there working at 7 a.m." said Sharon Thomas. "He has accomplished so much and we're all delighted."

The Davises have been married 54 years. As he looked back on depression years, with two small children, the good times and the bad, he said they had always been happy. "We worked and we always had good food on the table thanks to my wife who handled our finances."

He started out working in a glass factory in West Virginia when he was 12 years old. "I made 8½ cents an hour."

His joy of gardening was summed up when he said: "I picked one of those roses for our luncheon get-together today. When it was all over, I sent it to one of our ladies who was sick and could not attend. She was so pleased.

"Well if someone offered me a job in a plant for $15 an hour — and we could use the money — I'd say no. I'd rather be able to send a rose to that sick lady."

What's so GOOD about your Observer Newspaper is quite often what your Observer Newspaper ISN'T

The Observer is good because it isn't out of date a few hours after you get it on Monday and Thursday afternoons. It's good for an entire week or weekend of information, enjoyment and current community events.

Of course your Observer isn 't a source of late-breaking world news, but it IS the greatest source of news for what's happening around town. It allows you to keep up with new zoning ordinances, what's happening at city hall, clubs in action and what's going on at school—news that's important to you and your neighbors.

The dailies don't give you this kind of news. It isn't their goal in life.

But it IS ours.

We get you where you live!

Role reversal at grad party

Roles are reversed at the annual graduates' luncheon in the Steak House of the Mayflower. Waitresses, hostesses, busboys and dishwashers are honored guests. Uniformed waitresses serve their chilled fruit cups, salads and ask, "How would like your steak?" "Steak fries or baked potato?"

The guests are graduating high school seniors. Ralph Lorenz of the Mayflower likes to call them Mayflower graduates. And when the meal has been topped off with a dessert of strawberry shortcake, he has a few words of congratulations for the graduates.

He emphasizes the importance of their achievement. Not only have they graduated from school, they have gained valuable work experience.

"You have had a job and you have kept it. I've had college graduates work for me that don't have the knowledge you have gained, here because they have never had the actual work experience," Lorenz told them.

He said he likes to keep track of his graduates. "If we can help you in any way, if you need a job recommendation, let us know."

He said some of his grads had remained in the hotel or food service business. There is Tom Powers who worked in the Roundtable Club when it first opened 20 years ago. He now is dean of Penn State University's hotel school.

Others are Robert Griener who once was in charge of food at the Houston Astrodome and now is a vice president of Marriott Corporation; Staton Addison who manages a large Miami Beach hotel; Charlie Wise who was in charge of food at the Kresge Center; a secretary of the Restaurant Association; and a professor at Yale University.

Lorenz told them they would not be classified among the young people of today who "Have their wishbones where their backbones ought to be." He then presented each of them with a beribbonned package, wrapped and tied by Ethel Burns of the Meeting House.

Each package contained a camera, film and flashbulbs.

GRADUATES who attended the luncheon were:

Valerie Simons, a Plymouth Salem graduate who will attend Kalamazoo College in the fall. She worked as a brunch waitress.

Teri Michelini, who worked at the hotel for a year and three months at the hotel, graduated from Ladywood High School. She plans to major in science at Michigan State University.

Denise Roose worked for two years as a waitress and brunch hostess. She graduated from Plymouth Canton and will attend Schoolcraft College.

Chris Staniforth has worked at the hotel for three years. He graduated from Plymouth salem and will go to Eastern Michigan University.

Pat Torossian worked at the hotel for a year and three months. He graduated from Plymouth Canton and will attend Western Michigan University.

Dave Perrot, a Plymouth Canton graduate, has been busing for two years. He has chosen the University of Tennessee.

Maureen Kenny, Plymouth Canton graduate, will attend Grand Valley State College. She has been a dining room hostess for a year.

Egypt— Cradle of civilization lures travelers to its tranquil borders

Story and photos:
By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Bedouins still buy and sell camels and cattle at the weekly camel market, a 20-minute taxi ride down a dusty road from downtown Luxor.

Egypt: — Everywhere I go, the scene is repeated. It happened first in Cairo and now it is repeated in a small desert village, where a young boy in a striped robe stops to talk.

"American? he asks.

"Yes.

"Welcome!"

Sometimes two other words are added to the dialogue. "American? Jimmy Carter! Welcome!" Anwar Sadat is the hero of Egypt and Carter is not far behind. The people have been at war for 30 years and they are eager for peace.

In a village full of weavers, there is a radio in every shop tuned to the voices of Sadat and Begin. When we ask Egyptians about the allies that have abandoned them they shrug and say: "They will come around in time. We must have peace."

One of their goals for peace, according ot officials of the Ministry of Tourism, is to increase the number of tourists from one to two million by 1983.

To do this, they are promoting private and public development of hotels and other tourist facilities in existing tourist sites as well as in new resort areas along the Mediterranean and the Red Sea.

The Nile, squeezed between two huge deserts, has been the essence of Egypt — the cradle of civilization for 6,000 years — its survival dependent upon flood times and fate.

Now, for the first time, Egyptians are trying to control their own fate. They have dammed the Nile and are trying to reclaim the desert.

Half-remembered geography lessons become as real as a scene from "Lawrence of Arabia" as we approach Cairo by air. Below is endless desert broken by the single black line of a road.

THIS IS THE land of the pharoahs and the alphabet, a single strip of green valley, 12 miles wide at the most, running 640 miles to the Sudanese border. The lush delta from Cairo to the Mediterranean is the Lower Nile. This stem of green is the Upper Nile. The other 750 miles of Egypt from east to west is sand.

Down that narrow strip of green, unseen from the air, is every antiquity you have ever seen pictured from Egypt: the pyramids near Cairo; the City of Karnak and the Valley of the Kings 450 miles upriver at Luxor; the Temple of Philae 145 miles beyond that, near the Aswan Dam; and the collosal seated figures of Abu Simbel, rescued from the dam waters another 200 miles south towards the Sudan.

The desert blows to the very edge of the expressway into Cairo, and forms permanent brown hills behind the mosques and temples of the city. At the Nile, it is a contemporary high rise city of hotels and office buildings, with Rameses II staring in stone across the square as we near the bridge.

The highlight of Cairo for most travelers is at the pyramids in the nearby cities of Giza, Memphis and Saqqara. You may not expect to see the famous pyramid of Cheops surrounded by a city, with a tent nightclub on one side and lots of eager camel drivers selling rides on the other.

A new antiquity, expected to open this year, is the Cheops funeral barge, which was excavated near the pyramids and now occupies an almost finished museum on the same landscape.

The briefest visit to Cairo should include the Khan el Khalili bazaar, which looks 1,000 years old, and the casinos and nightclubs of the downtown hotels, which are as modern as ear-spliting music.

THE ANCIENT CITY of Thebes, 450 miles upriver, now called Luxor, was the place from which the kings of Egypt ruled the Upper and Lower Kingdom 2,000 years before Christ. If you must choose one city as a looking glass at ancient Egypt, this is it.

Here, within an easy carriage ride of downtown hotels and shops, is an endless feast of hieroglyphics and stone. The ruins of the city of Karnak is approached by an avenue of stone sphinxes that once ran from the city to this incredible complex of temples.

A sound and light show will tell you all you need to know about the history here, as well as at the Temple of Luxor which sits in ruined splendor in the middle of town.

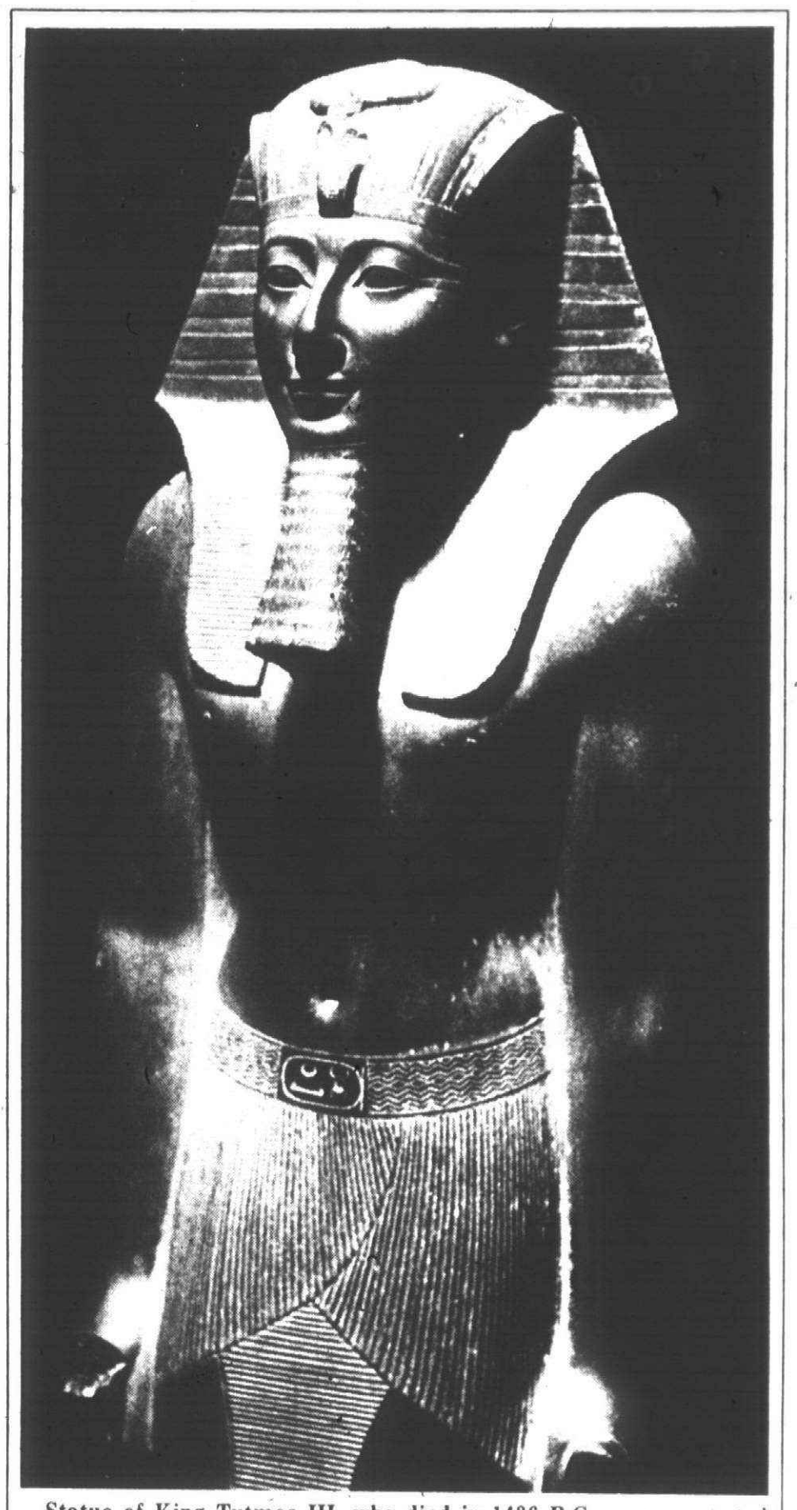
The exquisite Luxor Museum is nearby. It often is missed by touists, as is the smell and chaos of the camel market, 20 minutes taxi ride away. The camel market, approached by old city streets and country scenes, is where Bedouins still buy and sell the camels, cattle and burros that support daily life in the country.

On the east side of the Nile here is the city of the living. On the west side is the city of the dead, best known for the Valley of the Kings.

The most important piece of information for tourists is that temples and burial sculpture were never built on arable land.

Whenever you visit a stone antiquity you will walk on land that feels and looks like either a gravel pit or a sandstone desert mountain. Wear comfortable shoes. Dress cool. Wear a hat. You can be sure it won't rain.

IN THE MIDDLE of a grassy field on the west bank, the huge stone figures of the Colossi of Memmon are all that are left of an ancient temple. Beyond, where the road leads up to a rubbled stone mountain, you walk out of desolation into long narrow tombs in the Valley of the Queens. The vivid underground paintings on the tomb walls are a startling contrast to the sandstone desert outside.



Statue of King Tutmos III, who died in 1436 B.C., was excavated from the ruins of Karnak outside Luxor and stands now in the Luxor Museum. It is 90.5 cm high and made of green graywacke stone.

On all the slopes of these desert mountains the ancient Egyptians buried their royal dead in splendor. The tombs have been robbed of their valuables, but the carved and painted figures remain on the walls and ceilings.

The newest in the tombsite open in the Valley of the Kings is the wonderfully intact sarcophagus of King Tut, in a tiny painted room. You cannot take cameras inside.

AT ASWAN, within sight of the first Aswan Dam, locally known as the British Dam, is the newly rebuilt Temple of Philae.

The temple, recently moved to higher ground, will be opened to the public for the first time this fall. You should also see the new high dam with its adjacent Russian Monument, although you cannot take pictures from the top of the dam because it is a military zone.

Next week: Egypt builds new tourist resorts by the Red Sea.

TRAVEL LOG of Iris Jones

Salaam. Shalom. Peace.

I was in Egypt when Anwar Sadat and Menachim Begin began to put the Mideast peace treaty into effect by transferring the western half of the Sinai back to Egypt.

Every person I talked to in Egypt was cheering them on. This was true among Egyptian men in business suits and among the working men in desert robes that we met along the Upper Nile.

A small incident that occurred in Aswan illustrates the feeling well enough.

Aswan is an ancient crossroads of the Middle East. It is at first cataract on the Nile, and a natural gateway to Africa. The British built the Aswan Dam here in 1902, but it is now only a reservoir. The newer High Dam, 4½ miles south, recently changed the course of Egyptian history when it formed Lake Nasser by flooding the Nile south to Sudan.

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS the Nile flooded this 600-mile valley to the Mediterranean every year, leaving behind the silt that made Egypt a green strip of civilization in the middle of a desert. In a decade, they have changed all that by building a dam that controls the floodwater.

Egypt paid a price for it. The dam flooded ancient Nubia, forcing these black-skinned Egyptians to resettle in Aswan. Priceless antiquities were lost under the water, although a few major sites such as Abu Simbel and the Temple of Philae were moved to higher ground.

The precious silt that once settled on valley land now tends to settle to the bottom of Lake Nasser, behind the dam. Obviously the dam was a mixed blessing, but the Egyptians took that chance because they were looking ahead to a better world.

WHICH BRINGS ME back to the peace treaty.

I was at the High Dam. We had viewed the river from the top and from the Russian Monument, but we couldn't take pictures because the dam is in a military zone.

We moved several hundred feet downstream, where a man in a headdress and a galabia (a long cotton robe) squatted on a low wall facing a picture of former President Nasser and the pyloned top of the dam. Below, on the Nile, a great rush of water flowed out of the dam and continued downriver towards Cairo.

It was a hot day and I was ready for a drink. I approached the single concession stand with an Egyptian pound note, worth about $1.25, clutched in my left hand.

"Salaam," I said, giving the traditional Arab greeting. The man behind the counter smiled and queried "Shalom?"

"Shalom?" I said surprised.

"It is Israel," he said.

"Yes, I know, but don't you say 'Salaam' in Egypt?"

He smiled and shrugged. "Salaam. Shalom. Peace."

I heard this sentiment expressed in many ways throughout Egypt. For the traveler, the peace treaty will become very real when air traffic begins between Cairo and Jerusalem, as everyone in Egypt predicts it soon will do.

Egypt: A paradox amidst the pyramids

Mysterious, exotic — the allure of Isis, the pyramid puzzles, the gold of Tut — the images overlaid on a backdrop splayed with rubble scars of the '67 war, hundreds of minarets tilting the blue sky, and the teeming bazaars crammed into the streets of Cairo and Alexandria.

Egypt, with all its majesty cloaked in antiquity, draws today's tourists in much the same way Elizabethan audiences were drawn to the Globe Theater when Shakespeare recreated the salad days of Africa's notorious civilization.

The paradox of Egypt continues to surprise the visitor.

Camels and donkeys vie for space between the modern cars. Beaches invite bathers to the beautiful sands, while dry sticks used for fuel are stored on the roofs of dwellings built of mud bricks with low walls on the outskirts of the cities.

Women in black veils and shawls scurrying to the market mingle with Western-garbed natives and tourists eager to find an exquisite piece of jewelry from one of the artisans working at the bazaars in the narrow lanes. From the splendor of the pyramids to the ever-intoxicating Nile, ancient and modern Egypt pose together under the sun.

The Movies

LOUISE SNIDER

Rocky (Sylvester Stallone) gets in shape to fight the champ again, with assistance from his aging manager Micky (Burgess Meredith) and trainer (Stuart K. Robinson).

Little excitement in 'Rocky' sequel except for finish

Predictably, Sylvester Stallone returns as the over-the-hill boxer Rocky Balboa who has a second shot at the championship in 'Rocky II" (PG).

With him are all the principals who gave him tremendous support in the first film. These include Talia Shire, now as his wife Andrea; Burt Young as his brother-in-law; Burgess Meredith as his manager and trainer; and Carl Weathers as Apollo Creed, his formidable opponent.

"Rocky II" picks up at the conclusion of the first 15-round battle between the heavyweight champ (Weathers) and the Italian Stallion (Stallone) and proceeds for an hour and one-half that is rough, if not rocky.

The charisma of the Stallone personality and Rocky character, the novely of speech and action and the imaginative episodes which vitalized the original (such as Rocky running beside Andrea at the ice-skating rink) are dulled or absent in the sequel.

The major portion of this film is an object lesson (not without merit, just without sparkle) on how tough it is to get a good job without a high school diploma. Rocky, as befits this simple-minded character, freely spends his winnings from the championship fight. A new home, car, clothes and jewelry quickly bust his bank account. Big Rocky is out of cash just when there is a little Rocky on the way.

The opportunity of big bucks from television commercials fades when Rocky blows his lines because he can barely read. What's a fella to do?

Rocky's reduced to pushing a broom, emptying spit buckets at the gym and praying a lot. He may be down on his luck, but he still has his sweet nature, his religion and his family.

Incidentally, the little slugger, a preeemie, was born with well-developed facial features and a head of hair that would stop a lawn mower.

The sweat-stained soap opera sudses on: Rocky down to the lower depths; Rocky agonizing over his sick wife, Rocky with impaired vision, yet ready to risk his sight in a rematch; Rocky overcome with religious zeal; and finally, the old Rocky we recognize — training once again for the big fight.

The last 40 minutes of "Rocky II" are the audience's reward for patience. Apollo and Rocky slug it out in the ring in a stirring, exciting spectacle of raw force and courage. As before, it's a sequence with the power to grab an audience and evoke cheers and applause.

But high school dropouts note, it's less painful to learn to read, and a lot safer.

The Stonehenge mystery becomes art

Story: CORINNE ABATT
Photos: STEPEHN CANTRELL

When Sylvia Murphy's one-woman show opened at DeVorzon Gallery in Los Angeles last week, there were as many scientists as artists and art buyers interested in her work.

Ms. Murphy, of Birmingham, draws on ancient history, geometry and archeology for "Stone Circles: Conceptual and Romantic Images."

The artist who was born in England and lived there until she was 8, said, "I re-interpret relationships of stones, lines and their properties within the universe through art."

WITHOUT TRYING TO EXPLAIN why, she said she has always been interested in the Pyramids of Egypt, the Mayan temples of Central America, Greek temples and Stonehenge, that mysterious assemblage of giant stones on the Salisbury Plain in England.

Particularly, in this new show, the stone circles and megalith structures found in England, are the center of her focus. Working in a variety of media and combinations of media, she has reproduced the stone circles to scale, done freehand renderings of them as well as semi-abstract impressions and interpretations.

She picked up a small watercolor of a circle of stones done on paper she made herself, "When I did these, holding it in my hand made me feel like I was holding an ancient map."

MAPS EXCITE HER. "I was a biology major at one time, then I wanted to be a topographer. Sometimes when I want to read in bed, I read maps."

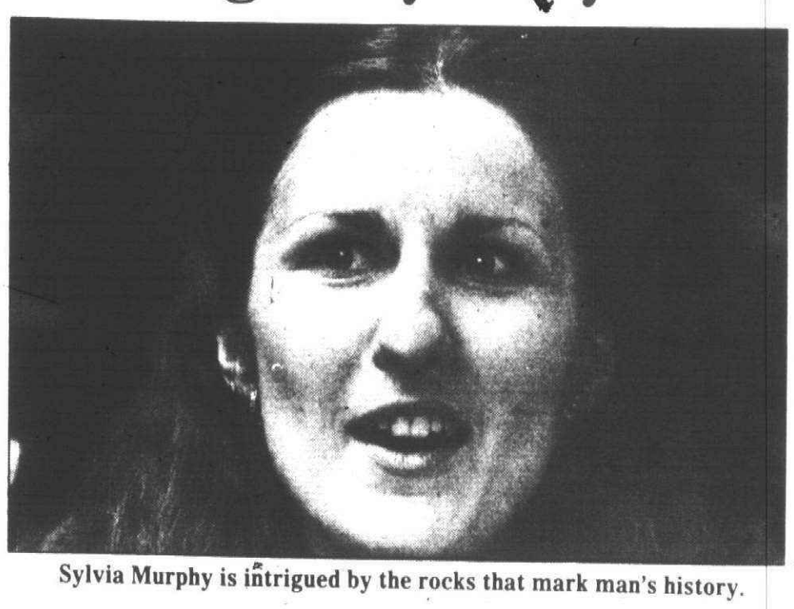
She studied art at Wayne State University and in the early '70s received scholarships to study in Italy. All of her interests in the sciences and arts have come together in preparation for this new show.

"I have finally focused on everything that has meaning for me," she said.

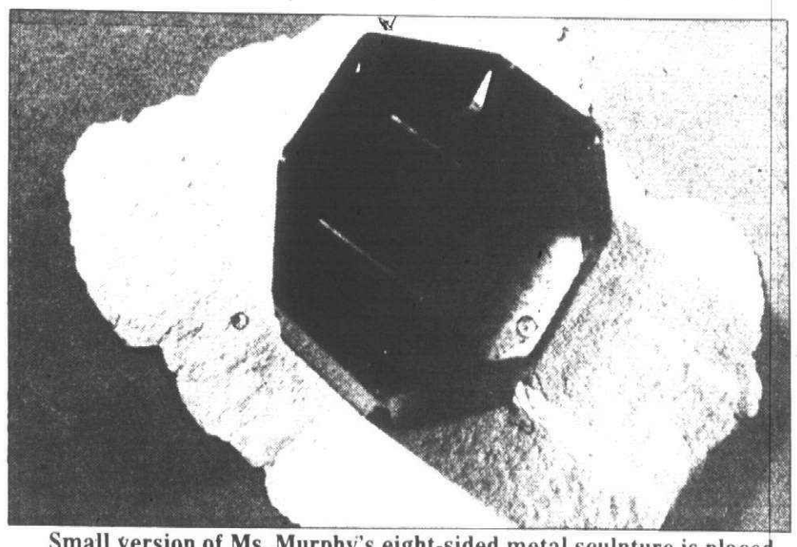
Along with her paintings, drawings and graphics, she will have sculptures in the show and these, too, have a special relationship to the rocks. In fact, it may be that one of her metal sculptures will be the high impact piece of the show — the key to what her intuition tells her.

For about 10 years now, Ms. Murphy has been repeating a variation of a trapezoid in the work, a quadrilateral having two parallel sides. In her earlier works it looked like the base part of a triangle with the cone section left off. In the sculpture, the trapezoid has become elongated.

This shape eventually was the basis for an eight-sided steel sculpture.



Sylvia Murphy is intrigued by the rocks that mark man's history.



Small version of Ms. Murphy's eight-sided metal sculpture is placed over her drawing of pre-history rock arrangements. As light from two sources is used, the light beams themselves appear to become markers coinciding with the placement of the rocks.

Each of the eight panels, connected into a solid circle at the top, is open at the sides. She has done this same form in several sizes When it is placed over one of her stone circle drawings of the same scale, interesting things happen.

Ms. Murphy said of her sculpture, "It is a light piece that marks the path of the sun in its daily, seasonal and annual movement. I would like to see a large piece commissioned so a human could stand in the center, dwarfed by the sculpture, and feel what happens at the focal point of all the light rays, perhaps even energy rays."

When the eight-sided piece is placed over a scale drawing of the rock circles and two light sources are used, representing the sun and the moon, the threads of light which narrow openings allow in the center cross, bisect and at certain points become one.

Ms. Murphy said there has always been a question among those who have studied Stonehenge and the other rock circles as to the purpose of shallow pits on the outer fringes of the circle. Could these be the boundary markers for where the light beams ended when the sun and moon were in certain positions?

"IT IS THE interplay of these that is exciting," she said. "When the moon acts as a secondary natural light source, the light of the sun and moon can intersect and the result is the heart of modern geometry."

In her scale drawings, Ms. Murphy has found that the stone circles, particularly one near Shropshire, line up to seemingly become a calculator for the universe.

Explaining that the original purpose of the stone arrangements still eludes researchers, she said some may have been for social purposes, others religious, others as calculators — or a possible combination of all three.

She added simply, "The stones mark things."

But that statement, in itself, is a clue to her fascination with them.

What did they mark? Who arranged them? What ritual went with the stone arrangement?

"The possibilities are incredible," she said, "I have a strange feeling that something is going to come from this work."

The artist has dedicated this show about stones to her maternal grandmother who was born in Shrewsbury, England. "She is from the same town as Charles Darwin in Shropshire, Wales," Ms. Murphy said. "Somehow, I feel that my interests in pre-history and, to a certain degree, evolution into the future, has something to do with my heritage."

The transmission of energy, aside from traditionally recognized means, is another area of interest. She sometimes uses a grid pattern in her paintings with the circles of stones superimposed on the grid to give a feeling of an energy field.

"When I was in Verona (Italy), I saw structures that were so old, I think they absorbed energy from so many people and now were giving it back."

In the same way, when she finds herself in some of the massive contemporary concrete structures, she said she has the impression of being completely drained, as if the structure was sapping all her energy.

But, whether her energies are being drained or replenished, Ms. Murphy can say without any qualifications, "I think I'm in love at large with the world."

Although she has had some of her work at Lee Hoffman Gallery, this Los Angeles show is the first major art effort in quite a while.

Because she can easily move in several directions, Ms. Murphy often does. She was formerly editor and publisher of Michigan Art Journal, member of the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association program committee, co-founder of the Detroit Workshop of Fine Prints and initiator of the Michigan Artists Regoistry now housed at the Archives of American Art.

Her work has been exhibited at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, San Jose Museum in California, the Saginaw Art Museum, the Detroit Institute of Art, the Scarab Club and the Women's Art Center Gallery.

She has two daughters, Isadora, 4, and Meredith, 2.

Vaughan on TV Tuesday

Sarah Vaughan, who can charm an audience with any kind of music, stars on a special "In Concert with Sarah Vaughan" airing for the first time in Detroit on Tuesday, June 26, at 9 p.m. on Channel 56.

Recorded at the Palace Theater in Des Moines, Iowa, the performance demonstrates Ms. Vaughan's versatility. She embraces the music of composers from Gershwin to Garner to Lennon and McCartney.

During the program, she reaches back to the Johnny Burke-Erroll Garner classic "Misty" and also renders the contemporary "Send in the Clowns".

ATTENTION
"TOGETHER PERSONS"
(And anyone who's falling apart)

Have you ever noticed how times flies when you're having fun? Or how it drags when you're dragging?

Sometimes there aren't enough hours in the day to accomplish all that you may set out to do. Like placing an Observer & Eccentric Classified Ad.

By the time the busy, sunny, summer days are at a close and you realize that, "Oh my gosh, I was supposed to advertise the stuff in the garage...or the hockey equipment....or the stereo gear...or whatever," we're closed. And you're fuming.

Well fume no more. Beginning Thrusday, July 5, you will be able to place an Observer & Eccentric Want ad until 7:30 p.m. every Monday and Thursday evening.

This means that when you settle down on the patio after dinner with a long, tall glass of something very cold and open your hometown newspaper and arrive at the classified section and that little bell goes off in your head about the ad you were supposed to place — you can still place it — even if it's 7:00 or 7:15 or even 7:25.

Of course, if you're thinking, "This doesn't mean me — I'm always on top of everything. My socks are always sorted, I take my car in for a check-up right on time. Same with my teeth. I'm really a very together person."

Well, we have news for all of our together persons: You can place your Observer & Eccentric Classified ad ANYTIME you want to. MONDAY through FRIDAY.

We're here five days a week (and beginning July 5 a couple of nights) Just give us a call and we'll get your ad placed for the very next edition of your hometown newspaper.

The Datsun 310 is now available with the new functional and decorative stripe and moulding package. The new package costs $10 more for the 310 (above) than for the 310 Sedan (below).

More on stripes

Datsun blends moulding with traditional striping

The hot-selling Datsun 310 in now available with a new moulding and accent stripe package that is both functional and decorative.

The 310, Datsun's entry in the front-wheel-drive, sales race, is available at O'Hara Datsun in Livonia.

The side moulding is color-coordinated with all 310 exterior colors and is designed to protect the car from parking lot door dings and dents as well as enhance the car's looks. The package, which sells for around $100, also includes front-wheel-drive insignias on the front fenders.

The accent stripe goes arond the front fender, the top edge of the door and the top of the rear fender. It is tapered to the shape of the body and the stripe for the coupe includes additional material to go with the Targa band.

In addition, the mounding and striping is available for Datsuns sold without them. The moulding and stripe kit package is being added to the dealer's parts inventiory so current Datsun 310 owners can have it installed on their cars.
