Commission nixes revised sign ordinance

The commission recommended by a 4-2 margin that the Canton Township Board of Trustees not adopt the document, which the board had revised and returned to the commission.

Instead, the planning commission recommended that the original proposal sent to the board be adopted.

The sign law, as submitted to the township board from the planning commission, allowed 50-square-foot freestanding signs in the commerical districts.

The board, however, reviewed the proposed ordinance line-by-line and eventually slashed the allowed free standing sign from 50 square feet to 18 square feet. The signs could be up to 25 square feet if made from natural materials.

The commission's review of the proposed ordinance is considered a formality by most of its members and not likely to change the board's expected approval of the revised law.

"The revised document is dramatically changed from the original," Planning Commission Chairman Robert Padget said of the ordinance. He said another public hearing may be necessary.

But a motion to recommend a public hearing should the township board accept the ordinance failed to gain a majority.

The ordinance, as revised by the township board, is stricter in allowances for signs in all zone districts.

Senate bill's Headlee changes cause fuming school officials

By EMORY DANIELS

The latest Headlee "implementation" proposal in the Michigan legislature is making a number of people unhappy in addition to Richard Headlee — author of the tax limitation amendment to the state constitution approved by voters last fall.

School trustees and administrators are upset with Senate Bill 460 which they see as a blatant attempt to skirt the Headlee requirement that the state fund mandated programs.

The sole provision in the Headlee amendment which was favored by almost all school and municipal officials required local governmental units to be reimbursed for all programs mandated by state and federal governments.

But now SB460 is before the State Senate and, if approved as written, would nullify much of that provision of the tax limitation amendment.

The Senate bill has some 17 exemptions — specific mandated programs which the state would not have to fund.

Included in the exemptions are any services which must be provided because of an order by a state or federal court.

Another exemption is the mandate that all children must be immunized before being allowed to attend school. This one measure alone will cost Plymouth-Canton Community Schools some $17,000 in paperwork, accorrding to Superintendent John M. Hoben.

A REPORT on the bill was delivered to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night by trustee Flossie Tonda.

Mrs. Tonda gave her report during a report to the board on the most recent meeting of the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation (MAISL).

MAISL is an education lobbying group of some nine school districts, including Plymouth-Canton Schools.

Hoben said he wasn't sure MAISL alone, or added pressure from other school boards opposed to the bill, would be sufficient to persuade the legislature to defeat SB460.

Hoben expressed a hope that Plym-

Amurcon request tabled

The board decided to table the request instead, saying that information supposed to be supplied to township attorneys by Amurcon had not been delivered.

Amurcon attorney Daniel Stella maintained that the site plan for the proposed complex could be passed anyway. "I think there's no question the PUD (planned unit development agreement) is valid," Stella told the board. "The board can approve the site plan tonight."

But Supervisor Noel Culbert interrupted, "I'm not going to listen to any arguments until you submit your stuff to our attorney."

Stella said he had read Amurcon's legal opinion to township attorney Dave Barry over the phone that day.

Board members maintained that a verbal discussion was not sufficiant and said they would not act without receiving a legal opinion from Barry.

Trustee Robert Greenstein moved to table the site plan approval until Barry did receive the written information from Amurcon, a motion that succeeded.

The proposed apartment complex is financed under a HUD mortgage guarantee that provides for rent-subsidized units to low and moderate income families.

Residents of the Pickwick subdivision have voiced extreme oposition to the complex.

A similar complex, also being built by Amurcon, is nearing completion on Joy Road near the Forest Trails subdivision.

KDAC organizer claims eviction is unjustified

By JAMES CLARK

The organizer of Kids Deserve a Chance (KDAC) has been told by the Honeytree apartment management that his lease will not be renewed after July 1.

Cliff Thomas, a trustee for KDAC and his wife Yvonne, have also been given an eviction notice in addition to the lease termination. The notice gives the Thomases until July 31 to vacate their apartment at 8270 Nectar in the Honeytree complex on Joy Road just east of I-275.

According to Thomas and literature dealing with KDAC, the organization was formed to provide opportunities for the children in the Honeytree apartments in the areas of community affairs and career exploration, along with various social and entertainment functions.

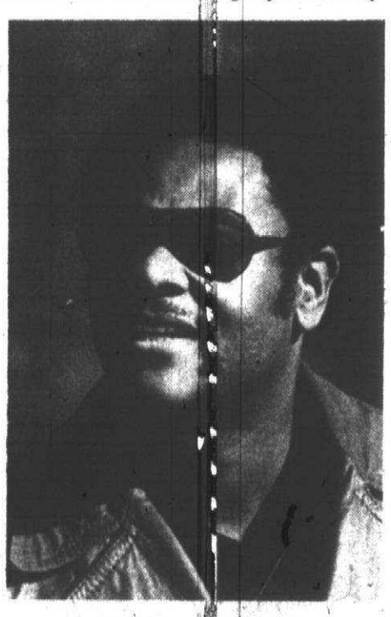
Thomas maintains that he does not know why the management has decided not to renew his lease.

"The only thing I can think of is that they do not like what I am doing here at the apartment with the kids," sad Thomas. "We are a non-profit organization and we have a lot of positive feedback from the tennants of this place."

Chris Erdody, manager of the Honeytree complex, said Monday that the management has decided to request its property back as of July 1. She would not elaborate as to why they wished to do so, referring further inquiries to the Honeytree attorney, Ira Auslander of Southfield. Auslander said when contacted early this week that he was not at liberty to go into any details about the Thomas eviction, saying only that there were serious problems in the case.

"This is an emotional situation, and there are two sides to the story, but at this time it would not be ethical to go into the details. It would not be fair to Mr. Thomas or to the Honeytree apartments," said Auslander. He added that he would like to defend his client's position, but he could not do so.

"We have serious concerns, and this action was not taken lightly. I can say that there is no personality problem involved," said Auslander. "We have just decided not to keep Mr. Thomas on lease, and the eviction notice came after some of our problems continued." Auslander stated that it is the landlords who take a bad rap when something like the Thomas case comes up.



CLIFF THOMAS

"It is legal to do what we are doing, and we feel we are correct in pursuing it this way. When a tenant wants to move out of his apartment, no one asks if that tenant should have to give the landlord a reason, but when a landlord wants to no longer enter into a contract with a tenant, it creates a big problem," said Auslander.

Auslander would not say if the core of the problem stems from the KDAC organization. KDAC is listed with the state of Michigan as a non-profit corporation. Part of the activities of KDAC is raising money for programs and field trips, The children of KDAC sometimes solicit these funds from people living in the Honeytree apartments. The mailing address of KDAC is listed as 8270 Nectar, Thomas' residence.

"The lease states that the apartment is to be used solely for the use of tenancy, a place to live, strictly as a private residence," said Auslander. "We have received some complaints from some of the tenants, but the problem is more complex than just one item."

Thomas reiterated that he can not explain the eviction notice. "I have lived here for five years. We do not play loud music, my kid is not any worse than any other kid, we pay the rent and so I can not see any other reason why they would not want to renew my apartment lease," said Thomas.

Thomas said he feels that his constant fight to make the apartment complex meet the needs of the children living there may be behind the eviction.

"I wrote to the Honeytree management asking if we could use some of the apartment land for a KDAC sponsored car wash, and the next thing I get in the mail was the eviction notice. All we wanted to do is have the car wash under one of the car ports, and I guess it was too much for them,"said Thomas.

Manager Erdody said that the eviction notice did not stem from the car wash incident, and that the permission for the car wash was refused because if the management let KDAC hold such an affair, Honeytree would be beseiged with such requests.

"If you do it for one, you have to do it for all," said Erdody.

Thomas said that the eviction notice comes at a time when he is making headway with the apartment's older kids.

"The KDAC is a club that lets the kids play a big role in determining what direction the club takes, and that involvemnt is important and the kids really like it. A lot of the older kids — the ones who get into the real trouble around here — have begun to get interested in KDAC," said Thomas. "We have our Cedar Point trip coming up in July, and this whole thing makes it harder to keep the enthusiasm."

Canton Township board trustee and attorney Bob Greenstein, who has assisted Thomas on matters in the past on a volunteer basis, said he thought Thomas was getting the raw end of the deal. Greenstein said that Thomas had come to him about six weeks ago about some maintainence problems in his apartment at Honeytree.

Problems dealing with the unit's gas and lighting were discussed and Thomas was quite vocal about getting the troubles solved. "Thomas filed a note against Honeytree for the problems he was having. The management said that if he backed off and calmed down, they would ease up on him, because they have not been happy with him for some time. He agreed to do this and I thought everything was all set. And then I hear he gets an eviction notice," said Greenstein. "I do not like the attitude of Honeytree on this matter."

Greenstein said he thinks that the eviction is a retaliatory action.

Thomas' statements in the newspaper interview were reported to Auslander for comment by the attorney. Auslander insisted that Thomas knows more about the incidents leading up to

Western Wayne makes poor show before SEMCOG

By TIM RICHARD

You couldn't tell it from the western Wayne County attendance, but there were vigorous contests when the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) met last week to elect its own officers and pick two persons for the controversial Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) board.

Although membership in SEMCOG is at a record high of 134 counties, cities, townships, villages and education boards, western Wayne County communities sent barely half their delegates to the annual meeting in the Radisson-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit.

The cities of Garden City, Livonia and Plymouth and Canton Township were represented neither by a delegate nor an alternate in the three-hour session.

Westland, Plymouth Township, Redford Township, Schoolcraft College and Wayne County Community College took part in the voting.

Richard Manning, Wayne County commissioner from Redford and chairman of the county board, won a vice chair seat at SEMCOG.

HOMER CASE, Bloomfield Township supervisor, will join the SEMTA board after an easy election victory.

Although Case is a member of SEMCOG's mainstream establishment, the regional planning agency's annual meeting June 21 was marked by strong participation from previous dissidents. One even won a SEMCOG vice chairmanship.

Case, a former SEMCOG chairman, got approximately 70 of the 90 votes cast to win a three-year term on the transit authority board.

The remaining votes were split between Southfield Mayor Donald Francassi and Royal Oak City Commissioner Alice Schoenholtz.

Francassi, now a SEMCOG delegate, had vetoed his city's joining of SEMCOG several years ago, but council overrode the veto. Mrs. Schoenholtz acknowledged she has "not always been the greatest proponent of regionalism."

All three candidates for an Oakland County seat on the 15-member SEMTA board were unfavorable in some degree to SEMTA's tentative plan to put at least part of a Woodward Ave. light rail line underground.

Case replaces Joseph Bianco Jr. of Bloomfield Hills.

THOMAS FEGAN, director of planning for Washtenaw County, was elected to another SEMTA seat representing the four small counties in the region. He replaces Marilyn Thayer of Ann Arbor who died shortly before her term expired.

Fegan collected about 50 votes, with some 18 being cast for Ypsilanti Councilman Tom Moors and a pair for St. Clair Township Trustee Jean Tabor.

Washtenaw political leaders drafted Fegan in a stop-Moors effort, seeing Fegan as one who would consult them more closely. Fegan said he was "uncommitted" on the subway question, while Moors said he was "skeptical" and called the downtown Detroit people move "a frilly toy."

Robert Bovitz, mayor of downriver Trenton, was elected chairperson of SEMCOG, succeeding Oak Park Mayor David Shepherd. Bovitz had been a vice chairperson and was in line to succeed Shepherd, stepping out after the traditional pair of one-year terms.

IN A MORE significant election, Saline Mayor Donald Shelton won a SEMCOG vice chair. Shelton had been a vocal opponent of SEMCOG's having a strong role in the new Area Water Quality Board.

Oakland delegates, finding the county without either the chairmanship or a vice chairmanship for the first time in SEMCOG's 11 years, plunked unsuccessfully for Ferndale Councilwoman Dorothy Webb.

Besides Manning, other vice chairpersons elected were Mary Ellen Parrot, treasurer of Shelby Township in Macomb County; William E. Smiley, St. Clair County commissioner; and Robert D. Smith, president of the Livingston Intermediate School District.

SHEPHERD SAID the last two years were the most exciting of SEMCOG's decade because of such accomplishments as the adoption of a water quality plan, a regional bikeway plan and small area forecasts.

The water quality plan was one important reason many formerly anti-regional communities joined the seven-county planning agency. "They want an audible voice," said Shepherd.

He noted that 15 of the region's most populous 20 cities are SEMCOG members, including previously dissident Dearborn. The five holdouts are all in Macomb County, still an anti-regional hotbed.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Trustee Lee Fidge attacked the 1979-80 SEMCOG budget for its lack of money for recreation planning, which she called "very important to the quality of life."

SEMCOG Executive Director Michael Glusac replied that no federal funds were available for recreation planning.

Tax notes are sold

National Bank of Detroit submitted the low bid and was given the privilege of loaning $9.6 million to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

NBD's low bid was approved by a unanimous vote of the six-member Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The money will be loaned to the school district at a rate of 5.79 percent for a net interest cost of $416,870.

That compares to a net interest cost for the current fiscal year of $269,610 on a $7.6 million note with a rate of 4.73 per cent.

The school district each year — normally in June — must borrow funds to meet payroll and other operating expenses until taxes are collected the following December. The loans are called tax anticipation notes.

This year, because of the Headlee tax limitation amendment, the initial tax collections in December must be used first to pay off the $9.6 million loan. And so the district in November must take out another loan to meet operating expenses until the $9.6 million note is retired.

This second loan will be based on anticipated state aid, and will be the first time the district has borrowed with state aid as colateral.

Four banks bid on the $9.6 million loan. The second lowest bidder was Manufacturer's Bank with a rate of 5.89 per cent for a net interest cost of $424,080.

Michigan National Bank of Detroit bid 6.05 per cent and First National Bank of Plymouth bid 6.6 per cent.

In past years the amounts borrowed in tax anticipation notes, the interest rate and net interest cost were: 1977, $7.5 million, 3.22 per cent, $181,200; 1976, $6.9 million, 3.84 per cent, $198,720; 1975, $5.6 million, 4.29 per cent, $162,160; 1974, $4.5 million, 6.64 per cent, $187,580; and, 1973, $2.7 million, 4.97 per cent, $82,377.

The school administration was not overly suprised by the low bid of 5.79. Five days earlier, Superintendent John M. Hoben made a prediction the interest would be 5.7 per cent.

Hell no, we won't go—1979 version

By ROBERT CAPUDEAN

An anti-draft rally last Sunday in Plymouth's Kellogg Park attracted about 200 persons, some from as far away as Saginaw, to express their opposition to draft proposals currently before Congress.

The protesters, mostly draft-age students, heard U.S.Rep. Carl Pursell support their position and advise them to "be aware" of what's going on in Congress.

"A recent defense department study came out against the draft and draft registration. I support that," Pursell said.

He told the crowd, "some members of Congress support both the regular draft and draft registration, so they will vote on the draft first and, if that fails, they'll come right back with registration."

Pursell said there are more than three million people in the active and reserve military, one and one-half percent less than pre-Vietnam levels, and that average entrance test scores are higher. He said this was an indication there is a higher education level of current military personnel.

The draft proposals are actually amendments attached to a weapons procurement bill. Another type of draft proposal, the McCloskey Bill, is a version of compulsory national service, according to Howard Simon, director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Detroit.

"The Senate Armed Services Committee, those wonderful folks who gave us Vietnam, have buried the draft proposals in a weapon procurement bill because they don't think any congressman is going to vote against a major authorization bill just because of two little amendments," Simon said.

Simon called for a two-fronted fight, "a fight on the house floor and a fight on the streets to put pressure on the representatives.

Organizers of the protest said they hoped it would help bring awareness of the draft issue. Many of those attending said they felt there was a general apathy among students and the public regarding the draft.

"I think today's youth is complacent, apathetic. This may be characteristic of youth but they must realize the seriousness of this," said 37-year-old Lloyd Clark of Saginaw.

According to Craig Berry, 18, of Plymouth, some people care about the wrong things. "No, I don't think people are real apathetic, they care about their designer clothes and designer shoes, but they don't care about the things that can mean life or death," Barry said.

After the rally the participants marched around Kellogg Park and down Main Street, where they stopped in front of the city hall and called for an end to the draft proposals.

The organizers not only received support from the ACLU, the War Resisters League and the Committee Against Registration and the Draft (CARD) as well as from local parents and teachers, including Plymouth-Salem High School instructor Jerry Courtney.

Courtney called the draft a "prelude to war," and called for support from all concerned people to help keep peace in the world.

Eviction notice termed unfair

the eviction than Thomas indicated in the interview.

"I can assure you that Thomas knows the details as to why we are following this route," said Auslander. "I am in the situation of having a problem discussing the case; of what I can and cannot disclose."

The Honeytree attorney admitted that he did not want to "wash dirty laundry" in the public and that the details would come out if and when the case went to court.

"If by the end of July Thomas is not out of his apartment, then the matter will go to court. This is where he can respond to our charges and we can talk more about it." said Auslander. Thomas said that he has not discussed the eviction with the KDAC kids because they are too young to handle a situation of this kind. He stressed that if he has to leave Honeytree that the KDAC organization would continue.

"When we tell the kids that we are leaving, we want them to know that KDAC is still intact. It is really the kids' club and I just assist them. I have the kids' respect and the KDAC thing is working, but if we have to go, then I guess we have to go," said Thomas.

Tubby tabbies need a trim

"Fat is no more a health barometer than a dog's nose, and a 'pleasingly plump' pet could be suffering from malnutrition," say authorities at the American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA).

Obese or overweight pets have one thing in common with overweight humans — an improper diet. In recent months the association has focused attention on fat cats and pudgy budgies.

"We have received some comments concerning malnutrition in pets, so we conducted a survey. Frankly, we thought we would find that it was the exotic or uncommon pets that are suffering from malnutrition," said Dr. Louis J. Rossoni, a spokesman of the AAHA.

"We were somewhat amazed to find that 90 percent of the veterinarians felt we should focus malnutrition warnings on dogs, 87 percent on cats and 35 percent on birds. Very few mentioned other pets."

Diet also was the most important consideration for more than 80 percent of the veterinarians responding to the question, "What do you feel your clients should know about cats?"

It is sometimes hard for the average pet owner to determine if their pet is overweight or malnourished, and an overweight pet may be suffering from malnutrition.

SOME OF the problems of pet weight control are similar to human problems; it's a complex area, and each case requires individual attention. Here are a few rules supplied by Rossoni:

- Weigh your pet. Get on a scale and note your weight. Then hold the pet and get on the scale again. Subtract the difference to get the weight of your pet.
- Ask your veterinarian if your pet is about average in weight. He can usually spot a weight problem without using a scale.
- Watch out for high calorie treats. Caution your children not to feed pets high sugar content foods which provide excess calories.
- Ask your veterinarian for specific diet advice for your pet.

"Cats are about the only creatures we know which can actually suffer pain from a disease known as steatitis, which is caused by an improper diet of too much red meat tuna," Rossoni explained.

"If birds eat only seed, you will probably develop a fat bird suffering from malnutrition. A good, well-balanced diet and a moderate exercise program is the best answer for birds and animals as well as man.

"Most pets will respond to a prescribed reducing diet with some weight loss in a month or two. If your pet doesn't lose weight within three months, consult your veterinarian."

Cop car damaged in night club fracas

A 17 year-old Inkster youth was arrested Tuesday after the doors of a Canton police car were damaged in the Canton Center Stage parking lot.

Smith remained in the Canton jail, awaiting the payment of a $100 bond. He was expected to be transported to Wayne County jail if the bond remained unpaid. A pre-trial exam is scheduled for July 2.

According to police reports, Smith was told to leave the Center Stage, an entertainment facility on Ford road just east of I-275. Smith then allegedly went to the parking lot and proceeded to kick in the doors of the police car. Police said the damage to the car totaled $368.

The Canton officers were in the Center Stage at the time of the incident and were called to the disturbance by a citizen. When the officers went to the parking lot, they were told that Smith had left the scene with two others in a yellow Dodge pick-up truck.

Police pursued the truck and finally overtook it on I-275 and Coppernick. Smith was reportedly said to have blue paint on his shoes, and the other occupants of the truck said that Smith was the one who damaged the police vehicle, according to police.

All three of the trucks occupants were arrested, but only Smith was retained at the station. The other two were questioned and later released, police said.

Lt. Larry Stewart said that the incident was the first one at the Center Stage in quite some time.

Williams loses cancer battle

He was one of those special people who touched the lives of those he came in contact with.

And when the going got rough, his friends got together to show their respect and admiration in a way that became apparent to all.

Randy Williams, 31, a longtime Plymouth resident, died June 18 after a year-long illness. During that time, a group of his local buddies staged a golf tournament in his honor. It was an event that the entire community had learned about.

According to one of his friends, they raised some $7,000 in the fall of 1978. At that time, they hoped it would financially help him while he battled the cancer that would later take his life.

Williams, a Walled Lake school teacher, had grown up in Plymouth. He later married Joan Strait and they had a daughter, Erin, now 3.

His local friends described him as an energetic, industrial man who "never had a bad word to say about anybody." "He showed more courage in the past year than most of us could show in a lifetime," said Jim Elias.

"I think one of the biggest things is that Randy always had time to listen," said Pam Cook. "He was very outgoing and understanding."

DURING HIS ILLNESS, Beth Gillis, close friend, said he remained vibrant and happy. "He was going to beat this thing as far as he knew."

In the meantime, in the true spirit of friendship, family friends pitched in while Mrs. Williams began working fulltime at Michigan Bell Telephone.

The tournament was born out of an interest to help.

"Being that my husband (John Gillis) and the guys were golfers from the word go, they got people to donate who didn't even want to play," Mrs. Gillis said.

Mike Patrick was one of the organizers. He had known Mr. Williams since their junior high days. They were involved in one another's wedding parties and attended Schoolcraft College together. Mr. Williams later moved on to Central Michigan University.

"He was always positive about it and never once had a negative attitude," Patrick recalls.

Services were held June 21 at St. John Episcopal Church with Rev. Robert Shank Jr. officiating. Burial was at Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth. Arrangements were made by Lambert Funeral Home.

About the turnout at the service, Mrs. Gillis says: "It looked like three-fourths of Plymouth was there."

Administrative help approved

The positions of assistant principals at Gallimore, Isbister and Hulsing elementaries and at Pioneer Middle School were unanimously approved Monday night by the six-member Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

All four schools are on the Extended School Year (ESY) schedule.

Tom Yack, board president, stressed that these are not new administrative positions but involve only a change in title from administrative intern to assistant principal.

"Some will earn slightly more money in salary," Yack added, "but most will earn the same amount."

Superintendent John M. Hoben explained that the added administrative coverage is needed at year-round schools.

A particular need, Hoben added, is to have an administrator in charge of the school during the four or six weeks that the principal is on vacation.

Fund co-chairman

John Czubaj, general chairman of the 1979 Plymouth Community Fund drive, has announced that Gerald H. Triplett will serve as his co-chairman. Triplett is a 20-year resident of Plymouth Township and has been employed by Burroughs Corporation during this period, currently as manager of the reliability test section.

Warrant sought for fatal crash

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department hopes to issue a warrant this week to a 29-year-old Belleville man involved in a fatal automobile accident June 18.

According to Det. Walter Holowka, a negligent homicide or manslaughter warrant will be issued.

Police say the man was the driver of a 1978 Corvette that was traveling at a high rate of speed when it left Five Mile Road and crashed into several trees.

A passenger in the car, Linda Carol (Hatfield) Eschels, 26, of Livonia died in the accident. The driver is listed in "fairly good" condition at St. Mary Hospital.

"I still have to talk with (him), but I hope to get the warrant by the end of this week," said Holowka Monday morning. "From what we can determine, it looks like the car was going about 100 mph at the time of the accident."

Holowka said he thinks there is someone in the community who knows something about the accident.

"There is a good chance that someone saw something that will give us more information about the accident. Maybe someone saw them at a restaurant or at a gas station before the crash, and that information could help a lot."

Michigan State Police reported seeing two Corvettes pulled over on the side of a road in the area of the crash prior to the accident, said Holowka.

The man "was driving a black Corvette and the troopers said that the vehicles they saw included a black Corvette, along with a silver Corvette. We think the people in the silver car could help the investigation a lot," Holowka said.

Police are unsure if the black car seen by the State Police was the same one involved in the accident.

A check with Ms. Eschels' parents indicated that the couple had attended several parties the evening before the early morning crash, said Holowka.

"We understand that they were in good shape after leaving the first party, but what we need to determine is what happened after they left the first gathering to the time of the accident," said Holowka.

Food service firm is hired by schools

The cafeteria lunch and breakfast programs in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will be handled by a professional food service management company, starting in September.

The school board Monday night, by a 6-0 vote, approved a contract with the ARA Food Service Co. which is headquartered in Birmingham.

One of the results will be a five-cent increase in the price of lunch this fall. Another hoped-for result is a vast improvement in the quality of lunches, according to Daniel White, executive director of finance for the district.

Another important factor to the board is that ARA has guaranteed the district a profit of $1,281 for food operations for the 1979-80 school year compared to an annual loss in food operations in recent years.

ARA will take over the entire cafeteria program for the district on a contractual basis.

Included in the $1.4 million cafeteria budget for the coming year is a $17,170 management fee to ARA plus $78,070 in salaries to a food service manager and bookkeeper to be under ARA's employ.

In fact, part of the contract with the district is a guarantee that Paul Siedel of ARA will be the food service director for at least two years.

Siedel has 25 years experience with food service with the U.S. military plus another 11 years with ARA, including time as food service director for Jackson Public Schools.

White stressed that there will not be any layoffs of cafeteria workers now employed by the school district. The school district labor amounts to $426,660.

Tom Yack, board president, told spectators at Monday's meeting that the decision was reached only after months of exhaustive study on whether to hire a management company and which firm to hire.

Trustee Carol Davis said she was convinced this is the best way to go, particularly since there won't be a need now for a central warehouse for cafeteria operations.

The central warehouse for purchases at Central Middle School is being closed down as the school district has joined Livonia Public Schools in a warehousing operation for purchase of supplies.

"We did have the brown bag strike last fall at Plymouth Canton High," noted White. "We hope ARA will sl solve those problems this year by moving students through the lines faster and by providing better quality lunches."

Ed Dennison, regional sales director for ARA, said his firm handles food operations for some 350 hospital in the U.S. and for another 350 colleges and universities including Wayne State and Marygrove in this area.

ARA also handles cafeteria operations for 24 Ford plants, at numerous other industrial sites, handled the Olympic Games in Munich and in Mexico City, and the firm will handle the upcoming Pan American Games.

HOURIGAN A VP FOR NBD

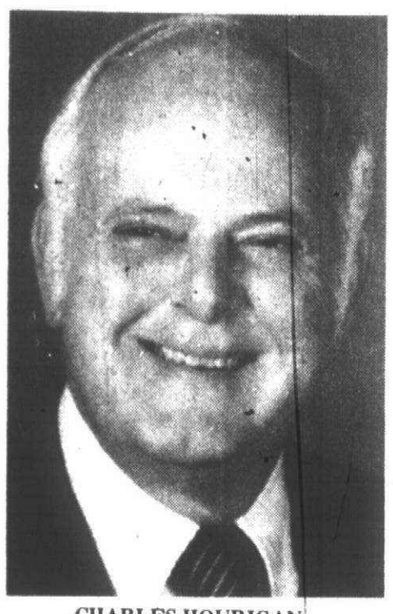
Hourigan oversees the direct consumer loan portfolio activity for the bank. In his 31 years with NBD, he has worked as a loan analyst and a credit manager, was an assistant cashier and an assistant vice president and has served as a second vice president in the bank's instaloan division.

Hourigan has completed the executive management development course and the School of Consumer Banking at the University of Virginia. He is a director of Credit Counseling Centers and of the Detroit Neighborhood Housing Services, and serves as secretary and treasurer for the Consumer Bankers Association in the central western region.

HERSHBERGER TRAVELS

Alan J. Hershberger of Keystone, Canton, was in Boca Raton, Fla., recently for a five-day business and educational conference with officers and leading sales representatives of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

During 1978 Hershberger, associated with the company's Allen Park office, achieved a sales and service record which placed him in the top three per cent of Metropolitan's 20,000 sales representatives in the U.S. and Canada.



CHARLES HOURIGAN

AIROLDI PROMOTED

Richard Airoldi of Plymouth has been promoted to sales administration manager for Burroughs Welcome Co., a pharmaceutical firm headquartered in Research Triangle Park, N.C.

Employed by the company since 1956, Airoldi has served as regional sales manager for the past six years. He is a registered pharmacist, having graduated from the former Hampden College of Pharmacy. He will be relocating from Plymouth to the Research Triangle Park area.

GALLIGAN A CPA

Stephen C. Galligan of Oregon Trail, Plymouth, is among those who recently earned Certified Public Accountant (CPA) certificates by successfully completing examinations administered by the Michigan State Board of Accountancy, Department of Commerce.

PRUTTON NOW A VET

Lee H. Prutton of Plymouth has earned a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

He was among the 86 veterinary students to receive the degree during MSU's morning commencement exercises on campus June 9. Hooding ceremonies for the new veterinary graduates took place that afternoon in the sanctuary of the Peoples Church in East Lansing.

Prutton is the son of Dawn Prutton of Danbridge and a graduate of Plymouth Salem High.

Because human and animal medicine are so closely linked, the college of veterinary medicine shares several basic science departments with the MSU colleges of human and osteopathic medicine. MSU is the only North American university with this shared-department concept.

After completing college-level preveterinary requirements ranging from organic chemistry and physics to dairy production, a student may apply for acceptance to MSU's professional curriculum in veterinary medicine.

During this program, the student must take such sciences as anatomy, parasitology, pharmacology, microbiology, and nutrition. Besides formal classes in the causes, detection, treatment, and prevention of disease, the program includes in-depth clinical experience in large and small animal surgery and medicine.

Ford pushes energy bill

U.S. Rep. William D. Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Garden City, has co-sponsored legislation to luanch the development of a synthetic energy industry using such resources as coal, shale and farm products.

The proposed legislation would authorize the president to purchase up to 500,000 barrels a day of synthetic fuel for national defense needs. The action would guarantee a market and price levels for synthetic fuels.

JPs defend the system

By Sam Hudson

(Part II)

John Fuller, Plymouth's justice of the peace in the Civil War era, married Louisa Kellogg, one of the daughters of John Kellogg, for whom the local park is named.

Kellogg, a native of Massachusetts, arrived in Plymouth from New York State in 1832. He brought money with him and was soon a prominent landowner, hotel proprietor, and businessman in Plymouth.

It was Kellogg who built the brick home at the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail for his daughter and her husband. His own home stood not far away, on Ann Arbor Trail, where the Christian Science Church is now located.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fuller. He was a lawyer and early JP. She was John Kellogg's daughter. Their house was where Mayflower Hotel now stands.

THE FULLERS apparently lived on a farm prior to moving into the big house in the village.

Mrs. Ruth Shattuck Garlett recently told me that in Civil War days the Fuller farm was on Haggerty Road, between Five and Six Mile, not far from the present campus of Schoolcraft College. She says it was on a hill on the right side of Haggerty as you face north.

There is no doubt, however, that the Fuller residence on Ann Arbor Trail was built prior to July 3, 1886. It appears in a photo of the Plymouth band taken on that day.

The imposing brick building, a landmark for many years, was destroyed by fire in 1910. The late Walter Kellogg Sumner, great-grandson of John Kellogg, told me the house had been vacated for some time before the fire. It had been vandalized. The fire was thought to have been set by children.

In 1890, when Fred Carlisle published his book on Wayne County, he referred to Mrs. Fuller as still living. Apparently Judge Fuller was dead by that time.

Although Fuller had legal training, many who became justices of the peace had little knowledge of the law. That was only one of the criticisms that opponents brought to bear against the JP system.

Some said a person brought before a justice did not have his day in court. They also said the methods of collecting fines and reimbursing the justices led to corruption and biased judgement.

Those who favored retention of the justice of the peace courts said lawyers were just trying to extend their domain. The cost of settling disputes between neighbors, they said, would rise rapidly once JPs were abolished.

THE LAST TWO justices of the peace in Plymouth Township were Martin Schomberger, who was JP here for 16 years (1953-68), and James E. McCarthy, who held the office for three years (1966-68).

Both thought the change away from the justice courts to district courts was a mistake.

Schomberger, who was not a lawyer, told a reporter in 1968:

"I think the politicians are making the judicial process too darn complicated.

"People don't understand the nature of our work. They think of justices as money collectors. In the past, certain unscrupulous JPs earned a black eye for everyone by working with collection agencies.

"I have never run a collection agency. I am paid a standard fee for writing complaints and warrants. That fee is not related to the amount of the fine or the outcome of the trial."

Schomberger opened his court after 4 p.m. when his daytime duties as maintenance supervisor at Plymouth High School were completed. He told the reporter that he decided to become a JP in 1953 "because the office was open and no one was running. I had no intention of becoming active in judicial matters. I just liked the idea of being addressed as 'judge'."

McCarthy, an attorney since 1963 when he graduated from Purdue University, lives and practices in Plymouth. He agrees with Schomberger that it was a mistake to abandon the JP courts.

"I testified against the change," he told me recently. "I knew it would add cost to the litigants. It is much more expensive to try a case now than it was then."

McCarthy said some states may have let JPs benefit from fees collected in court cases, but that was not true in Michigan.

"Our pay was the same regardless of the outcome of the case. "The media and the people were really misinformed. We got paid according to the work done. There was an incentive for us to work long hours, to clean up all of the cases in front of us. That is not true today."

ABOLISHMENT the JP system of courts was provided for in the constitution that Michigan adopted in 1963.

The office of the Justice of the Peace was to be replaced in five years by a system of district court judges,

Teachers to plan for new careers

Teachers and administrators in seven western Wayne County school districts will have a chance to prepare themselves for new careers.

The Northwest Staff Development Center will use the career resource facilities at Madonna College during the four day workshop in mid and late August.

In the workshop, educators will examine their interests and abilities and how to apply them in business and industry. They will also learn about resume writing, interviewing techniques and the job market.

Representatives from business will be at the workshop for consultation.

There is no charge to educators from the seven district served by the center. The seven are Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, South Redford, Northville and Cherry Hill.

Interested persons may contact the development center to get more information or to register at 261-7440.

The workshop will be held at Madonna College, Jeffries Freeway and Levan, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 14, 16, 21, and 23.

In recent years, hundreds of teachers and principals have been laid off by suburban school districts in the wake of declining student enrollments and school closings.

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP
HOUSING REHABILITATION PROGRAM
TO THE RESIDENTS OF NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP

Northville Township is participating in a housing rehabilitation grant program with the cooperation of Wayne County. Housing rehabilitation and repair grants are available to eligible homeowners who are interested in making needed repairs and in improving their homes.

Under a federally funded Home Improvement Program approved by the Township Board, direct grants will be given to homeowners for repair, electrical or plumbing installation or other improvements needed now or in the near future to bring the home up to code. Expansion or room additions will be available to large families showing a need for increased space.

Applications are now being taken by the Township's Housing Grant Administrator at the Township offices, 41600 Six Mile Road. Only Northville Township residents who own and live in their homes in one of the designated areas are eligible. This includes residents buying their homes on land contracts or mortgages.

A homeowner may receive up to $4,000 to cover the cost of needed repairs and additional improvements if it is determined that the latter will be needed in the foreseeable future.

The purpose of the program is to provide an opportunity for home improvements to people who cannot otherwise meet minimum housing standards and it is hoped that senior citizens and others on limited, fixed incomes will take advantage of this opportunity.

West denied approval to hire

By TERI BANAS

Plymouth Township Trustees and Treasurer Joe West once again tangled in a procedural scuffle involving hiring practices Tuesday night.

West's request to hire an applicant to a job in his department was denied by board members who said West failed to follow the proper rules in seeking the applicant.

In a four to three split between trustees and the administration, Trustee Maurice Breen made the motion which was supported by Trustees Lee Fidge, Barbara Lynch and Gerald Law supported Trustee Maurice Breen's motion to reject the hiring.

"You've made everyone feel like they've made a matryr out of Joe West which is just a bunch of baloney," Breen accused West. "You've been turned down at every request by the board because you didn't follow procedures."

WEST HAD ASKED to hire an applicant who he claimed had 11 years experience in office work, as well as bookkeeping and typing experience. His request to hire the person, at the first level office worker with one-year experience, was a direct contradiction to previous board direction, Breen said.

West failed to advertise for the position as outlined by board-adopted policies and procedures for township hiring, trustees charged. In addition, West's request asked to pay the proposed employee $600 more a year than specified by the board when members previously approved filling the vacancy.

The full-time vacancy occurred when an employee in treasurer's office quit June 1.

"When I first posed this request, I knew it was going to cause some trouble," West said. "I might say my work is piling up in my office. I could say more, but July 16 I'm going on vacation and that leaves Mrs. Prey (the existing full-time clerk) alone."

Trustees Fidge and Law stressed that the job be advertised.

"The danger in not advertising is that you close the circle of people wanting to apply," Law said.

THE REQUEST to fill the vacancy comes at a time when township offices are undergoing a study of job descriptions and qualifications of township general employees.

Board members earlier had expressed reluctance to fill the job until the findings were released by accounting-consulting firm Post, Smith Lutz & Ziel.

Behind that effort is a desire to upgrade present township general employees when the need for advanced work arises, Breen explained.

"You're missing the point," he said to West. "There have been a half dozen requests to hire a person with bookkeeping background.

"Yet board members prefer someone with general office experience because supposedly our present employees will be trained to do higher jobs. That does not appear to be the intent in hiring this individual."

West said he had some problems with the rules and regulations and preferred hiring someone with experience who could be relied on as "backup" personnel.

Trustees challenged

Plymouth Township Treasurer Joe West's intention to fill a vacancy in his department in a way that's adverse to board direction received initial support from both the township supervisor and a local resident.

Tuesday night, township resident Archie Vallier appeared before the board requesting seek an attorney general's ruling on the board's authority over the hiring and firings of employees in the treasurer's office, as well as the offices of the other two elected officials — the supervisor and clerk's office.

He called for a "separation of powers," adding board members did have the right to approve budgets governing those offices but not their involvement in the administrative functioning of those departments.

Asked if West supported the resident's notion, he said Wednesday: "Yes, to find out who's who and what's what. It seems that there's a question of law there. If we get a ruling it's better than litigation to get an answer."

Supervisor Thomas Notebaert, on the other hand, said he would first seek a suggestion from the township attorney on charter townships "to see what responsibilities each office has." He added this course would produce a faster answer rather than contacting the attorney general's office.

Wayne C-C backs super sewer

The City of Wayne Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the " Super Sewer concept" for western Wayne County.

The organization voted unanimous support for super sewer, according to a letter by chamber president David J. Willett.

"We believe that the 'super sewer' is a logical solution to the prevalent problem of inadequate sewer facilities in western Wayne County," the letter states.

"No doubt that all are not in favor of further out-county growth,' the letter continues, "but it is our conviction that in reality the 'supersewer' will enable us to effectively deal with the business and housing expansion that will come our way in any event."

Officially known as the Huron Valley Wastewater Control System, two sewer plans are in dispute between the County Board of Public Works and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The county plan calls for a $200 million system with a 69-mile-long underground pipe fed by lateral sewers from communities en route. It would extend from southeast Oakland County down through western Wayne County. It would end at Brownstown, where drinking-quality water would be discharged in Lake Erie a mile from shore.

An alternate plan devised by the EPA would serve fewer communities in less area, excluding Oakland County altogether.

EPA agreement is critical to either plan because its approval is necessary to qualify for federal funding up to an estimated 75 percent of total cost. Without federal funding, the county cannot pursue either plan.

School libraries need 'freedom to read'

Found in the thick policy book of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is an administrative procedure for dealing with controversial subject matters in the school libraries.

The policy itself isn't very exciting reading.

But included in the seven pages of procedures is a position on "Freedom to Read" by the National Council of Teachers of English. That position is endorsed by the local school district.

The position statement should be read by all of us because even today many forms of censorship continue to remove books which are an important part of our intellectual and literary heritage from schools and colleges.

ALTHOUGH ORIGINALLY stated in 1953 by the teachers council, the position still is just as relevant today, as we approach Independence Day. Here is the text:

- The freedom to read is essential to democracy.
- Attempts at suppression of this freedom rest on a denial of the fundamental premise of democracy — that the ordinary citizen, by exercising his critical judgment, will accept the good and reject the bad.
- Americans are able to recognize propaganda and to reject obscenity without the aid of censors.
- Suppression of books leads to an even larger curtailment of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy.
- Every silencing of a heresy, every enforcement of an orthodoxy, diminishes the toughness and resilience of our society and leaves it less able to deal with stress.
- Books are among our greatest instruments of freedom.
- Every American community must jealously guard the freedom to publish and to circulate in order to preserve its own freedom to read.
- Those with faith in free men will stand firm on our constitutional guarantees to freedom to read and will exercise the responsibilities that accompany this right.

THE SCHOOL DISTRICT also affirms the following positions expressed in the School Library Bill of Rights established by the American Association of School Librarians:

- To provide materials that will enrich and support the curriculum, taking into consideration the varied interests, abilities and maturity levels of the pupils served.
- To provide materials that will stimulate growth in factual knowledge, literary appreciation, aesthetic values and ethical standards.
- To provide a background of information which will enable pupils to make intelligent judgments in their daily lives.
- To provide materials on opposing sides of controversial issues so that young citizens may develop under guidance the practice of critical reading and thinking.
- To provide materials representative of the many religious, ethnic and cultural groups and their contributions to our American heritage.
- To place principle above personal opinion and reason above prejudice in the selection of materials of the highest quality in order to assure a comprehensive collection appropriate for the users of the library.

Those rights listed above remind us that the placement of materials on the library shelves in the schools is a very serious matter — and the removal of items even more serious.

"I've got bad news and worse news!"

Tim Richard

The two trustee elections of June 11 deserve a spot in state record books for their closeness.

Your favorite Michigan history tome will cite the 1950 gubernatorial race of G. Mennen Williams vs. Harry Kelly as the closest. Williams won by about 8,000 votes, or one per precinct.

At this writing, Schoolcraft trustee Richard Hayward leads Thomas S. Moore by a single vote in an area covering northwestern Wayne County. Hayward's margin is the slimmest fraction of a vote per precinct.

Michael W. Burley is ahead of Robert Ficano by 27 votes in a race for a six-year term. That, too, is a fraction of a vote per precinct.

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell's 1976 victory over Edward Pierce in the 2nd Congressional District was a matter of 240 votes. To compare it to the 1950 gubernatorial race, multiply that margin by 19 because a congressional district is one-19th of the state. On a statewide basis, Pursell's margin would have been about 2,600 votes, less than one-third of Williams'.

Consider Burley's 27-vote margin. The Schoolcraft College District has less than half the population of a congressional district. Burley's margin, on a congressional district basis, would have been about 60 votes, or about one-fourth of Pursell's.

That was a tight election.

THE MATHEMATICIANS among you now will say, "Hold on. In 1976, about 80 percent of the registered voters went to the polls. In the June 11 school election, the turnout was less than 5 percent in Clarenceville, about 8 percent in Livonia and not much better in the other towns."

Irrelevant, say I. The two important things are the size of the population to be governed and the size of the victory margin.

The winner is the candidate who gets a majority of the votes cast. The people who sat on their butts literally don't count when it comes to running government.

So in my book, those two Schoolcraft College races of June 11, 1979 will rank as two of the tightest in state history.

THE WHEELS of bureaucracy grind slowly. On July 2, the new trustee(s) of Schoolcraft are due to take office and elect officers.

But the recount of the two contested races won't begin until July 2, and who knows when it will be over?

What does the board do?

It's business as usual. The June 11 election results showing Nancie Blatt and Richard Hayward re-elected and Mike Burley newly elected will stand until they are overthrown.

If Moore or Ficano wins, he will replace the defeated candidate. If need be, the board will elect its officers over again.

A PERSON with any feeling at all for higher education must be genuinely depressed at the voters' short-sightedness in rejecting the two rock-bottom minimum millage requests.

The preliminary budgets I have seen show about $230,000 for special maintenance and equipment. That is one-fourth of what would have been available had voters passed Proposal 2, a half-mill, which would have yielded $1 million.

President C. Nelson Grote, vice president Kenneth Lindner and the board will trim corners to get the funds — a few bucks from not replacing a secretary here, a few bucks more from the cultural and public affairs program there, maybe a few part-time faculty members.

Ah, well, who needs a cultural and public affairs program when we have "Mork and Mindy" and "Police Woman" on the tube for free?

Former trustee Lee Bennett used to say, "Man does not live by voc-tech alone." But it appears there are a number of persons in these parts who would like to try.

THE CONSENSUS is that Schoolcraft, after suffering five straight defeats in asking for money, will give up for at least a few years. When you can't get one mill for one year, you can't get anything.

The Stroller

Gas is cheap; can send nothing

By W. W. EDGAR

Years ago when The Stroller was cutting his eye teeth in big city journalism as a neophyte at the Detroit Free Press, he was given another rookie as a desk partner.

One evening the managing editor called the young rookie into his office and gave him his first out-of-town assignment. It was to a small town outstate to cover an explosion and fire.

"Get your story in to us just as fast as you can," the old editor advised the youth and then sent him on his way.

Several hours later, the rookie reported with a message that still is a classic in the journalism profession.

"All is confusion. Can send nothing," the message read. The old editor almost tore the hair from his head.

The Stroller was reminded of the rookie's words the other day while on a short vacation jaunt along the St. Clair River, when he, too, became too confused to understand the current uproar over a possible shortage of gasoline.

A few days later he stopped again for gasoline, this time in Marine City, and the price was 99.9 cents per gallon — just a shade away from the $1 per gallon that had been threatened for so long.

This was a bit surprising to think that the gasoline dealers in the small outstate areas were getting more for gasoline than their big city brothers. But the Marine City dealer just smiled.

At this point on the vacation jaunt, as so often happens, the ladies in the party decided on a trip over the Blue Water bridge at Port Huron and a ride into Sarnia to visit the famed Scott China Mall.

No sooner had we crossed the big bridge and started down the main street in Sarnia when we came upon a gas station. And what The Stroller saw caused the confusion.

"Come visit us," the sign read. "We have plenty of gasoline and the price is only 98 cents for the big gallon." (The Canadian gallon is one quart more than that sold in the States.) This dealer caught the eyes of passers-by with a financial chart posted at the gasoline tank.

ON THE SIGN it was explained that because of the extra quart in the big gallon, and the rate of exchange in American money, the gasoline was only 83 cents a gallon. And there was plenty of it.

As we drove through Sarnia, the road took us close by the big refineries that were working three shifts a day turning out gasoline. And everywhere we went across the border, we were reminded that gasoline was plentiful. More than that, there were signs all over the place extending an invitation to come and visit often.

On the return to the States — this time on the ferry across the St. Clair River — the local paper was filled with a story out of West Virginia in which Gov. Rockefeller moaned the fact that the country wasn't making use of the millions of tons of coal buried in the West Virginia mountains.

He pointed out that if there is a real shortage of energy, there is no reason why the coal isn't being mined and the long ranks of the unemployed miners shortened.

Is it any wonder that The Stroller was reminded of the young reporter who was so confused on his first big assignment that he could send nothing?

On one side of the St. Clair River gasoline is sold for 99.9 cents a gallon. Right across the bridge in Canada it is equivalent to 83 cents. And not many miles away the governor of a state is moaning that the coal in his state — a real source of energy — is not being mentioned by the government.

It is confusing. Isn't it?

It's no good if we don't understand

Many Michigan residents perceive — incorrectly — that their property taxes are going up each year. They look at the gross bill that comes Dec. 1, or see the statement from the mortgage company that their payments are rising, and figure they're getting socked.

Then they are fair game for a poorly thought-out panacea like the Headlee amendment.

Actually, Michigan has a state income tax provision which has been dubbed the "circuit breaker." When your homestead property tax gets beyond a certain percentage of your income, the state rebates 60 percent of the excess. You get the rebate as part of your income tax refund.

One problem is that most people don't know they're getting it.

While school superintendents talk "circuit breaker" when trying to sell millage increases, there really is no line labelled "circuit breaker" in your state income tax form. You have to hunt to find the property tax rebate. It's there, but it's hard to find.

A second problem is that it takes time to get your rebate. You get your tax bill Dec. 1 and pay it no later than February. But your state income tax refund takes several more weeks or months to arrive. Meanwhile, you have had to cough up hard cash and you're giving the state an interest-free loan.

Property tax increases for local government would be more palatable if people could see and feel the effects of the rebate. The Michigan Legislature needs to address the cash flow and public relations problems so folks will know they're getting a good deal when they send their tax dollars to the school board or city hall instead of to Lansing.

Can't call queen? Then send her flowers

When was the last time you drove along Northwestern Highway, just above 12 Mile Road?

You may have noticed an impressive three-story building. Adorning its front wall is Mercury, the winged messenger of the ancient Roman gods, clutching a bouquet of flowers.

Alongside Mercury are the initials FTD.

They stand for Florists Transworld Delivery and this is the international headquarters of a giant co-operative association.

FTD HAS A PRETTY fascinating history.

Delighted to tell it is Bill Golden, resident of Plymouth Township and an ex-newspaperman in Big Rapids and Jackson. Bill is now FTD's director of publications.

Golden explains that the group began in 1910 with some casual conversation among 13 florists from around the nation who were meeting at Buffalo, N.Y.

It went something like this:

First florist: You know, every once in a while I get an order for flowers to be delivered in your town.

(At that time, some inventive flower shop owners were shipping bouquets to other cities via parcel post to satisfy their customers. Practical, it was not.)

Second florist: Yes, and I have orders for people in your town.

First florist: How about the next time I get one I mail you a letter with the order. You can bill me later and I'll bill the customer.

That's the way it began, Bill swears.

SOON THOSE FTD pioneers were finding mail too slow. So they took to the handy telegraph wires.

In 1912, the coorperative elected as its secretary a Detroiter, Albert Pochelon, who ran a downton shop on Bates Street. He was promotion-minded and apparently saw the vast potential for the group.

Pochelon established the co-op operation in his backroom.

It has been in southeastern Michigan — first the Motor City and now Southfield — ever since. And how FTD has grown.

More than 18,000 shops around the nation, Canada, Central and South America Mexico and Japan are members. FTD locks into several world-wide groups to give an adjusted total of 45,000 outlets. If you'd like flowers delivered to a friend in Alexandria, Egypt, for example, just call your handy FTD florist and the deed will be done.

Bearded Bill Golden is steeped in the history of a giant association, based in Southfield and operating around the globe.

During FTD's fiscal 1978-79, which closes June 30, association's books will show 17 million "clearings" worth $300 million.

As Bill Golden says, "That's a lot of posies."

IN THE BEGINNING , the "T" in FTD stood for "telegraph." By 1967 that wasn't completely accurate, so it became "T" for "transworld."

This summer, if you'd permit a little invention on my part, it could be "T" for"transmit".

Let me explain.

This summer marks another milestone in the transmission of orders — the introduction of the Mercury Network.

As you read this, some 7,000 FTD shops around the country are being equipped with electronic terminals. Here's how they'll work.

When a member in Biloxi, Miss. gets an order for a Toledo, Ohio resident, he refers to his handy FTD directory. (This is updated eight times a year under Mr. Golden's direction.) From the Toledo roster he would select a florist.

Then the fellow in Mississippi sits down at his terminal. On its keyboard he taps out the order. When he hits the "send" key, the data is zipped off, via telephone line, to a clearinghouse in Chicago.

It's automatically recorded as a transaction (thus saving the Biloxi florist the weekly task of filling out a form with his FTD orders.) In a matter of minutes the Toledo shop has received the request on its terminal.

UNTIL NOW, ARRANGEMENTS were made by telephone. Sometimes the Mississippi accent might be misunderstood by the Ohio counterpart and the order wouldn't be exactly right.

With the Mercury Network, which costs each member $35 monthly, such problems should be a thing of the past, predicts Bill.

Florist goes to 23,000 retail shops.

Spectrum is a 110,000-circulation quarterly aimed at people who buy flowers. Dealers have their names imprinted on copies and pass them out to customers.

ADS AND POSTERS in a variety of languages are continually being created for shops, newspapers and magazines all over the world.

When the craze over plants took hold a couple of years back, FTD came out with 350,000 copies of a slick Professional Green Plant Guide for sale over members' counters.

The guide moved so quickly that three more printings were ordered and the total number has now topped one million.

But all is not pure delight.

He explains. "Florists recognize the right of people to express sympathy in any way they choose. We'd rather see the line begin 'Contributions are being accepted for . . . '."

BILL DELIGHTS in telling one story.

J. P. McCarthy, who makes his home in Bloomfield Hills, was having some fun on his WJR morning show. It was 1977 and Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth was celebrating her Silver Jubilee.

J.P. told his audience he would try to telephone a greeting to the Queen. But he couldn't get through.

Once at the FTD office, Doyle, now with a Hudson, Ohio ad agency, called J. P. and suggested, "How about sending flowers?"

Doyle volunteered to handle details and J. P. readily accepted.

That night, a London florist, a member of FTD's brother British cooperative, Interflora Associates, made the delivery to Buckingham Palace in J. P.'s name.

A few weeks later, McCarthy received a thank you from the queen's lady in waiting.

FTD had struck again.

How Albert Pochelon would have loved that one.

Bicyclist banned from bank drive-in window

Editor:

As I was getting my young son and myself into the car to go to the bank, I realized it was foolish to waste the gas for the short trip into Plymouth. I decided to put my youngster in the child carrier on the rear of my 10-speed and bicycle into town — I could exercise and conserve gasoline at the same time.

I was feeling very good riding through our subdivision, and my three-year-old was also delighted for the change of pace. This feeling of contentment soon ended, however, as I turned on the sidewalks of Ann Arbor Trail.

After avoiding cracks and bumps, ducking low-hanging branches (one hit my son in the face), and dodging glass and litter, I decided we would be safer in the street.

I should have realized most drivers do not appreciate sharing the road with a cyclist and regard one only with contempt. Turning cars don't seem to be aware of bicycles or think that cyclists have any rights on the streets.

When I finally arrived at the bank, I was feeling somewhat discouraged but not defeated until the bank teller pleasantly told me that cyclists could no longer use the drive-up window. I was informed their insurance will not cover accidents involving a cyclist and that I would have to go inside.

I'm sure the teller was surprised when I snapped at him and mumbled something about not caring if their insurance covered me or not and would he please take care of the transaction. I later apologized realizing the bank's policy was not his doing, but I still disagree with the policy.

There are four drive-up lanes — two which are usually closed. If cyclists present that much of a hazard, then perhaps one lane should be for cyclists only — thus solving the hazard problem and also encouraging people to use their bicycles.

If we're ever going to do anything about the energy crisis, then the attitudes and the priorities of our whole community will need to be re-evaluated. There is much that motorists, politicians and local businesses could do enable walkers, joggers, and cyclists to venture out of their immediate neighborhoods and into the local business district, thus combining healthful physical activity with energy conservation.

Searching for friends

Editor:

I am seeking your help in locating several neighbors, friends and classmates of my days many years ago in Plymouth. I am particularly interested in contacting the following individuals:

The former Miss Judith Talbot, the former Miss Sandra Talbot, the former Miss Linda Smith, the former Mrs. Wayne (Delores) Stapleton, the former Miss Sandra Penny, James Pinkerton, Richard Russell, Donald Russell, Pat Nester, Michael Todd, Thomas Rollins, Laverne Olds; all members of the class of '57 from Plymouth High School.

Please forgive me for not listing you all individually, but as I recall, some 250 graduated that year.

I recently retired after a career spanning more than 21 years in the U.S. Army. I lost contact with all of my friends back home many moons ago. I last managed a visit in February, 1974, to attend my mother's funeral.

I would appreciate if you could publish my letter in hope some of my former friends will see it and drop me a few lines. My address is 5301 Trans Mountain, Apt. 2101, El Paso, Texas 79924.

Juchartz reappointed agricultural director

Cooperative Extension Director Donald D. Juchartz of Belleville has been reappointed to the County Planning Commission for a fourth term.

Juchartz was the nominee of Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, for the three-year term ending in 1982. He has served with the extension service since 1956 and is president of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

"Juchartz will again represent agricultural interests on the commission," said Mrs. Beard.

The 11-member commission directs the development and improvement of county-owned lands and facilities. It also reviews planning programs initiated by local municipalities whenever federal funds are involved.

By law, the commission must reflect various segments of the total community, such as labor, industry, recreation, education and agriculture.

JUCHARTZ SAID that the planning commission does not follow the traditional role of "drawing maps" as its ultimate planning goal, but seeks to "improve the quality of life, to save essential assets ion each community that can never again be replaced."

Its three primary mandates are:

- To review all local applications for federal grants, which amount to billions of dollars each year.
- To review all requests for rezoning in unincorporated portions of Wayne County (all townships and villages).
- To insure that zoning and land use plans are in harmony, so that neighboring communities will not plan conflicting developed next door to each other.

"ESSENTIALLY, we try to put everything into a total county context," he explained. "We plan, advise, encourage, arbitrate, oversee and push for those things that will make a better environment for all.

"One thing's for sure. We're not a rubber stamp agency. We look at all sides and we've got broad representation to come up with impartial decisions."

Juchartz has received many awards from local and national organizations and agencies.

American stars blast Nationals

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League held its annual all-star games Saturday at Griffin Park and in the 'A' League, the American all-stars blasted National squad, 20-3.

Mike McKenney of the Indians was the individual star as he hurled the first three innings and hit a three-run homer in the second inning to help his own cause.

Mark Bennett of the Brewers hit a pair of three-run homers in the sixth and seventh inning for the American squad. He also hurled the final three innings.

The Americans belted two more homers in the sixth inning. Tim Michalik of the Athletics smashed a three-run shot while Jim Dillion of the Tigers hit a solo blast.

In the nine-inning game, Michalik hurled the middle three innings and Bennett finished up.

In the middle three innings, the Expos' Tim Osborn struck out eight batters. Doug Nester of the Giants pitched the first three innings and Todd Nickerbocker of the Cubs went the final three.

It was the third year in a row the American League has bested the National stars.

Members of the American League team included Bob Moore and Greg Penfield, Angels; Mark Kinsel, Athletics; Toni Esser and Curt Holda, Blue Jays; Tim O'Leary, Indians; Tim Ludwig and John Cameron, Orioles; John Longridge and Jeff Smith, Rangers; Jeff Evenson and Ed Wurster, Red Sox; Vince Rasmussen and Tom Taetch, Royals; Steve Sobditch, Tigers; Greg Price and Ken Michol, Twins; Tom Penland and Jim Rorabacher, White Sox; Vince Spears and John Gregory, Yankees; Chris Ezzo and Paul Grazel, Mariners; Ken Breen, Brewers.

Gordon Wurster of the Red Sox managed the American stars. He was assisted by Jim Penfield (Angels), Frank McCart (Mariners) and Allen Ludwig (Orioles).

Representing the National stars were Jim Parks and Joel Graves, Astros; Curt White and Tom Kenyon, Braves; Andy Flowers and Dan Zawacki, Cardinals; Andy Bagnasco, Cubs; Steve Swartzinski and Tim Tsiang, Dodgers; Matt Abbott, Expos; Joe Bane, Giants; Bob Roulin and Kevin Kowalski, Mets; Mark Moreno and Al Flores, Padres; Brain Murray and Scott Darling; Jim Schlicker and Craig Morton, Pirates; Pat Walsh and Mark Dixon, Red Legs; Dan Robertson and Keith Kecskes, Pilots; Jim Talbot and Todd Clomb, Senators.

Ed Abbott of the Expos managed the National Leaguers and was assisted by Pete Flores (Padres) and Harry McFarland (Expos).

The Junior League held three other all-star games. In the 'B' League, two games were played. The G-Junior League also staged an all-star shootout.

Roth confident about game despite defeat

By BRAD EMONS

For the third time in his young golf career, Jeff Roth of Plymouth qualified for match play in the 68th Michigan Amateur held last weekend at Belvedere Golf Club.

Despite a first round loss, Roth feels confident about his future and has set his sights on two big amateur tourneys later this summer — Western Amateur and U.S. Amateur.

"I feel good about my game right now," said Roth. "I feel I've gotten better each summer."

Lansing's Fred Beyhemer eliminated Roth, 3 and 2, in match play.

"I was pumped up, maybe too pumped up going in," said Roth, who is running the driving range this summer at the Birmingham Country Club.

"I felt I couldn't lose," he said. "I ran into a good player.

"I lost the match on the third, fourth and fifth holes. It was the type of day where pars would win it. The conditions that day (Saturday) were unbelievable.

"I was wearing a ski cap the whole round because it was so cold."

Qualifying for the match play was a real challenge for Roth.

Last Wednesday, he fired a 79 on the tough Antrim Dells course near Charlevoix. Roth thought he had played a bad round but was only one of 10 golfers to break 80.

MANY OF THE golfers complained about the toughness of Antrim Dells. White out-of-bounds stakes were placed all over the course.

"It's a tight course without the stakes," Roth said. "Only six holes are wide open and the greens are grainy.

"I felt lousy about my round but everybody had the same problems I did. There were a lot of double bogeys."

The next day, Roth made the trip over to Belvedere, a more reasonable course.

The Plymouth resident lit up the fairways firing a 72, the second best score on the day, thus qualifying him for match play.

"At Belvedere you can spray the ball around more. I played really consistent there," Roth said.

In 1974, Roth was a quarterfinalist and in 1975 he lost in the second round to eventual champ Rod Sumpter. Last year he missed the match play cut by one shot.

Five years ago, Roth enrolled at the University of Arizona in Tucson. He plans to graduate from there in December.

Roth played well as a freshman but after that, he was in an out of the lineup his final three years.

"I played in only two or three tourneys this year," he said. "I thought I deserved to play more but I don't want to get into the reasons why. It was a series of little things.

"After my sophomore year I changed my swing and started playing more consistently.

"Right now I'm 50-50 on what I'll do if I graduate in December," said Roth. "I'd like to turn pro and play on the mini-tour but that's iffy."

The Plymouth golfer said he will probably come home after he has completed his education.

This weekend he will play in the Frank Syron Tourney at the Pontiac Country Club. Roth practices every day with the U.S. Amateur and Western Amateur tourneys on the back of his mind.

"I'd like to get into the U.S. Amateur because I've never made the qualifying round," he said.

Sports reinstated

Soccer arrives in fall

By BRAD EMONS

Because the recent millage proposal passed, all seventh and ninth grade athletic programs will be restored, according to Plymouth-Canton School Superintendent John M. Hoben.

By the request of the middle school principals, seventh grade football this fall will be replaced by soccer.

"The principals asked that soccer be started in place of seventh grade football," said Hoben at Monday night's school board meeting. "The principals communicated with the coaches.

"Soccer is a growing sport with a great deal of interest, and involves many more children as participants, at a lower cost.

"There is a lower possibility of injuries," Hoben said.

The superintendent said he hopes that in the future, a district-wide soccer program will become a reality at all levels.

Seventh grade boys soccer will coincide with girls volleyball which was recently reinstated.

"We'll have soccer and volleyball going on at the same time," said Pioneer Middle School Principal Gerald Elston.

School trustee Joe Gray inquired about the switching another sport to the spring "because soccer is just as big for girls."

Elston said that girls sports are going on all year long. He said soccer was just replacing football for boys and that no other boys programs were being started.

TRUSTEE Elaine Kirchgatter asked if girls volleyball could be replaced by soccer.

Elston replied: "We have quite a few girls interested in volleyball."

The Pioneer Middle School principal said one reason for the switch from football to soccer was because the present equipment is worn out and a team cannont be fielded without "massive purchases."

"This is a start," Hoben said. "The city league has more than 1,000 boys and girls in soccer leagues."

"Soccer is an inexpensive sport," Elston said. "All we need are knee pads for the players, a ball and goals."

Several coaching positions have opened up as a result of the passed millage.

Salem and Canton High Schools are looking for ninth grade football coaches.

Two prerequisites for the job include experience both as participant and coach in the sport which they are applying.

Ninth grade boys' basketball positions are also available at Canton and Salem. Applications for the job close July 9.

With the exception of the reserve basketball coaching position at Canton, all ninth grade vacancies were made available because of the passed millage, which resulted in reinstatement of the programs that were cut last year.

McDowell out 3-6 weeks

Oasis places 4th in tournament

Crippled by injuries, the Oasis Golf Center women's fast-pitch softball team still managed a fourth place finish in the tough Midland Invitational Tourney.

Oasis was finally eliminated by Complete Insulation of Saginaw, 9-2, playing without two key players — Jan Boyd and Sue McDowell.

In the Complete Insulation loss, McDowell was carried from the field and taken to a Midland hospital reportedly with torn ankle ligaments. She is expected to be lost to the team from three to six weeks.

Oasis lost the game in the first and second innings, allowing seven of nine runs.

Boyd, a pitcher, never made it to the final game of the double elimination tourney.

Against Daly Restaurant in game three, Boyd was struck in the stomach by a line drive off the bat of Sue Sanford during a four-run Daly first inning uprising.

Boyd was also carried from the field and taken to Midland Hospital

Oasis rallied to overcome the four-run deficit outlasting Daly, 6-5, as Denise Cifaldi allowed just three hits the rest of the way.

PLAYING ERRORLESS ball, Oasis started the tourney and its season by blitzing the Jet Sets of Sanford, 9-0.

Oasis received strong defensive play from McDowell, an outfielder, Vicky Cavallaro, an infielder from Plymouth Canton and Vickie Forest.

Cavallaro collected three hits while Garden City's Sherry Kiselica had two.

In its second game, Oasis lost a heartbreaking 2-1 decision to Girl Friday of Saginaw. Cifaldi suffered the defeat for Oasis. Despite the loss, she allowed only one earned run and six hits.

Oasis opens its regular season Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at Ford Field in Livonia.

New players on the roster include Diane Connoughton, Forest, Jody Humphries, Kiselica, Joanne Pachive and Sue Barbolos.

The team is coached by Bob Boyd.

Oakland University senior netter Ken Bloom and Plymouth Salem graduate Becky Crespo teamed up to win the Lipton Mixed Doubles Tennis Tourney held at Plymouth Canton High School last Saturday.

Bloom and Crespo defeated Burt Graham and Beth Redmond in the finals of the 16-team tourney, 6-3, 6-1.

In the semifinals, Bloom and Crespo downed Al Burton and Beata Gehringer in straight sets while Graham and Redmond toppled Kevin Clarke and Dana Kenyon, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2.

Bloom is also a Salem grad (1975) and played No. 2 singles at Oakland where he went undefeated in regular season play. He qualified for the NCAA Division II nationals last month.

Crespo was Salem's No. 1 player last fall and was a starting shortstop in softball this spring for coach Livi Way.

Crespo and Bloom advance to regional competition at Square Lake Racquet Club in Bloomfield Hills, July 28-29, where 16 teams will compete.

The Plymouth netters succeed Ron Pinak and Alicia Garbites as local winners. Some 16 teams entered this year's local event.

"We had five more teams this year than we did last year," said tourney director Kerry Hlady. "It was very cold Saturday and windy."

The 32 regional winners from across the country, their spouses and their hometown tournament director will be sent with all expenses paid to the National Finals at Woodlands Inn and Country Club in Woodlands, Texas, Sept. 13-16.

McCloskey joins Plymouth church

Catharine McCloskey, in her final year at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, has begun her tenure as summer assistant at the First United Presbyterian Church in Plymouth.

Miss McCloskey, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles McCloskey of Livonia, will work at the church school, the daily vacation Bible school and will lead worship services. She will also call on persons in hospitals and convalescent homes and visit prospective church members.

Brad Emons writes....

Rupert Golf Classic still going strong

You had to get up pretty earlier in the morning to make the fifth annual Hank Rupert Golf Classic held last Saturday at Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton Township.

Despite near freezing temperatures, some 42 hackers braved the elements for the 8 a.m. tee-off time.

The event started five years ago and was organized by friends and athletes of Salem High School to honor Rupert, a plant engineer and longtime fan of Rock sports.

"We had a good turnout this year," said Rupert. "It was really cold when everybody started playing."

Rupert said he didn't expect the tournament to last more than a couple years.

"The guys wanted to keep it going and that was fine with me," said the affable Rupert.

Many of the golfers had trouble off the first tee. Fellows Creek turned out to be a tough obstacle for a lot of the Salem grads, and coaches Ron Krueger and Gary Balconi.

I was somewhat statisfied with my first-time ever performance in the Rupert Classic. Since it was my initial time out this season, I won't divulge my score although it was a triple-figure count for 18 holes.

Jeff Rodgers, a 1974 graduate, turned in the best round of the day. He carded an outstanding 76 to win first prize. Other low scorers included Doug Tripp, 79; Tim Dillon, 83; and Chuck Thomas, 84.

THOMAS ALSO won first prize for the closest shot to the pin on the par-three fourth hole.

Throughout the round, Tripp's score was questioned by former Plymouth sports editor Doc O'Connor who managed (I don't know how) to break 110.

Sharing high score honors were Bob Dasher, a 1978 grad, and Rick Gladstone, a 1976 grad. Their combined total resembled an NBA shootout.

Dasher, now a football player at Alabama, would have won the award for the most unusual dresser.

He was clad in a bathrobe and appeared ready for Rocky III.

Despite some dangerous moments out on the course, the day was filled with fun. As far as I know, a sixth Rupert Classic is already in the works. From what was indicated by the particpants, Fellows Creek will again host the classic next year and with it, another class of graduates will be eligible.

Hank Rupert wouldn't have it any other way.

Net tourney sign-up set

The Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a doubles tennis tourney, June 30-July 1, at Griffin Park Tennis Courts.

The tournament is in conjunction with National Tennis Week.

Men's, women's and mixed doubles competition will be offered. Each team must provide a new can of balls.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners in the single-elimination tourney. A best two-out-of-three sets format will be used with a nine-point tiebreaker if needed.

The registration deadline for the tourney is Friday, June 29. Participants can register at the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 South Canton Center Road, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Begg, Brock hold slim leads in Canton golf

After three weeks of play, Bud Brock still maintains a slight lead in the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Fellows Creek Golf League.

He is pursued by Jim Wilk who picked up 19 points last week. Brock, who sits atop the league with 54 points, picked up 18 points.

Wilk carded the best round with a nine-hole total of 42. Ken Roman finished the night with a 43.

Wilk is two points behind Brock in the chase for first. George Nampa (49), Roman (48), Stan Socha (44) and Ed Pritchard (44) follow closely behind.

BILL BEGG maintained his perfect point total as he remained in first place in the Canton Township Senior Citizens Golf League after five weeks of play.

Begg has 25 points, three ahead of Gary Aleman who has 22.

Carding a 42 last week, Begg picked up five points. Aleman kept pace as he also collected five.

John Morgan, a newcomer to the league, turned in a 43 for the second best round of the day.

Louis Seromik, who shot a 49, held on to third place. He has 21 points. Judy Bond is in fourth place with 17.

IN THE FOX HILLS Men's Golf League, Bruce Watt and Bill Lindley swept five points from Gary Rehberg and Dan Riggs to hold their 4½ point lead.

Watt and Lindley lead the league with 29 points. Mike Ryan and Bob White remained in second place with 24½.

Ryan shot the best round of the week as he turned in a 41. Tony Valenti and White both carded 42's while Jerry Yuchas had a 43.

Caesars trip RU

By SCOTT ADLER

The Plymouth Canton Little Caesars rebounded from a tough loss to Southfield to whip Redford Union twice in a doubleheader Saturday, 7-0 and 7-3.

Brian James pitched in the opener for Little Caesars giving up three hits while striking out 13. James record now stands at 3-1 and the Caesars record is 5-2.

Dave Weise led the hitting attack for Canton with two hits including a home run. John Matthews and Rusty Mandle drove in a run each with singles.

In game two, Al Lipinski made his first summer league appearance on the mound with a fine nine strike-out performance.

" The pitchers had a great day, " said a happy Canton coach John Gravlin. "The defense was good and so was the pitching when you get both of those you're going to win ball games. We'll score our runs one way or another. "

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

It is official now — the Detroit area can claim three national bowling champions.

The release of the official records show that Bob Basacchi, who bowled with the Goebel team in the all-star leagues, now is the American Bowling Congress all-events champion with an official count of 2097. He rolled 681 in the team event, 709 in the doubles and 707 in the singles.

Meanwhile, the Women's International Bowling Congress released the official standings of its recent tournament and two Detroit area women — Gerry Beattie and Mary Ann Duptula — are the new doubles champions.

It's been a long time since Detroit has claimed three champions in these prestigious tournaments.

IF THERE is any truth to the old saying that youth must be served, the young bowlers in the area are showing the ability that will make them heard from by next season.

One of the best examples came last Sunday in the doubles at North Hills in Rochester when Cheryl Daniels, 19, who will bowl with Marge Kropacek's team in the all-star league, rolled a perfect game.

After counts of 215, 220 and 206 she started on a string of strikes that gave here the honor that has come to few women in the Detroit area. Only one of her 12 strikes was on the Brooklyn side.

ANOTHER YOUNG BOWLER to be reckoned with is Aleta Rzupecki, bowling her second year as an all-star. She teamed with Leona Obuchowski to win the doubles event in the famed Cincinnati doubles in Ohio last weekend.

"IT WAS LIKE a miracle on Michigan Avenue" was all that Terry Smith of Redford could say when he won his first Michigan Majors title in Ohio last weekend.

To gain the honor he averaged 208 and won 10 of his 12 matches.

BARB BOHNWAGNER will have good cause to remember her bowling performance last week in the Ladies Foursomes at Woodland Lanes.

The reason- she toppled the Big Four or the so-called impossible split — the 4-6-7-10.

Another unusual performance was that of DeLores Hareath. She had the misfortune to register 11 splits in her three games.

Livonia Adray dumps Westland

LIVONIA ADRAY swept a pair of games from Westland last weekend, 7-1 and 5-1, in an Adray League baseball doubleheader.

In the first contest, Dave Frey pitched five innings and gained the victory. He struck out eight and walked two. Joe Emery provided relief help the final two innings. Stan Price was the losing pitcher. He struck out four and walked two.

Adray slammed 11 hits during the contest and Westland had three.

Adray broke into the scoring column with one run in the first inning. The victors added six in the third inning with six singles and a two-run triple. Jim Wilson cracked the extra-base hit. Westland scored its lone run during its first turn at bat.

Wilson had two hits and two RBIs, Tom Deacon two hits and Otis Manning two hits to pace Adray's offense. Mike Scivorski went 2-3 at the plate for Westland.

Scott Riley was the winning pitcher in the second game. He held Westland to three hits in five innings of work.

Riley struck out six batters and walked two. Ken Webster completed the game for the Livonia squad and struck out three. Greg Hanson went the distance in defeat for Westland.

Adray scored single runs in the first, third, fourth, sixth and seventh innings, while Westland again scored in the first frame.

Malcom McLean had two hits and one RBI for Adray, while Deacon and Wilson each added two hits.

"We put it together well in both games. Our pitching is coming around. It's the key to our play right now," said Adray coach Ron Hellier.

Wendy's splits twin bill with Redford

REDFORD ADRAY and Wendy's split an Adray League baseball doubleheader last weekend. Wendy's won the first game, 7-4, but Adray bounced back to win the second, 8-6.

Tom Zwolan pitched a complete game for the victory in the opener. He walked two and struck out 10 while holding Adray to four hits. Corey Drew was the losing pitcher. He struck out three and walked three while also going the distance.

Wendy's scored four runs in the third inning, two in the fifth and one in the sixth, while Adray scored one in the second and three in the sixth.

Dave Croskey and Mike Martin each had two hits for Wendy's. Croskey also had two RBIs.

"It was a pretty good game. The boys played well, but the field (Capitol Park) wasn't in top shape," said Wendy's coach Pat Ruvolo.

Adray came back in the second game and scored eight runs on six hits, while holding Wendy's to six runs and four hits.

Kirk Hunter was Adray's winning pitcher. He went the distance, struck out eight and walked seven. Steve Nowak was the losing pitcher. He received relief help from Brian Justus in the fifth inning.

Redford scored two runs in the fourth inning, four in the fifth and two in the sixth. Wendy's scored four runs in the first inning and two in the seventh.

Craig Lee collected two hits for Adray, while teammates Bob Waite and Hunter had two RBIs each.

"I really don't think either team played well in either game. We had some solid hitting in the second game," said Adray coach John Colley.

GRIFFIN also defeated the Redford team last weekend, 4-1. Griffin had 11 hits, while holding Adray to three.

Steve Topalian was the winning pitcher. He struck out nine and walked two. Bob Lessnau took the loss for Adray. He struck out three and walked two.

Griffin scored one run in the first inning on an RBI-single by Jim Ross. Chris Glegg accounted for the next Griffin run in the fourth inning, also with a single.

Griffin added two runs in the fifth inning. Ken Scarpace doubled, Craig Walker tripled and Jeff Maher hit a sacrifice fly.

Adray scored when Waite doubled down the leftfield line and came home on an error.

Dennis Rusiewski, Scarpace, Walker and Clegg all had two hits for Griffin.

Elks divide DH in Mack circuit

Farmington won the first game, 6-4, scoring all its runs in the fourth inning. The Elks gained revenge in the second game, winning easily, 14-5.

Farmington tallied all its runs on four hits with the aid of two errors and a walk off Elks' starter David Runge.

The Elks tallied two runs in the first, two more in the second and five in the fifth.

Mike Woodard started the fifth with a single. Mike Cimino followed by reaching base on an error. Shortstop Chris Hannan then loaded the bases by drawing a walk.

Matt Etienne doubled to score two more runs and Plymouth led after five innings, 9-1.

Etienne pitched the first five innings for Plymouth to gain credit for the victory. He struck out four. Farmington tallied four runs in the sixth, cutting the lead to 4.

In the of the sixth, Plymouth tallied two runs and scored its final three runs in the top of the seventh.

Holloway picked up a save for Plymouth. He didn't allow a run in two innings of relief.

Plymouth totaled 13 hits. Etienne helped his own cause with two. He hit a solo homer in the first inning.

The Elks host Thurston in a doubleheader Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

Miscues drop Plymouth to .500

DiPonio errors costly in 2 losses

"We just haven't been able to put the hits together," said DiPonio coach Ben Wilcox.

On Tuesday, DiPonio lost to South Lyon, 6-3, as the visitors put away the game with two runs in the top of the seventh inning.

South Lyon grabbed a 4-0 lead with two runs each in the first and third innings.

In the bottom of the third, Mitch Wilcox started a DiPonio rally with a single. Kevin Merrill walked and Brian Lewandowsk loaded the bases after being hit by a pitch.

Greg Etienne then came through with two RBI's on a double.

In the fifth inning, DiPonio cut the margin to 4-3 on a solo homer by Etienne which hit the scoreboard on a line shot in left field. It was the first homer of the season for DiPonio.

Merrill had a perfect day at the plate going three for three in a losing cause. Wilcox had two hits and Etienne had three RBI's.

DiPonio starting pitcher John Penders took the loss. He was relieved by Etienne in the third inning.

ON SATURDAY, South Farmington roughed up DiPonio, 10-3, benefiting from nine Plymouth errors.

South Farmington led 8-0 after three innings taking advantage of the DiPonio miscues.

Plymouth got a run back in the fifth when Lewandowski led off with a walk. He later scored on Merrill's single.

In the seventh, DiPonio tallied two runs when Penders started off with a walk. Wilcox singled him to second and John Hetkowski loaded the bases with another single.

Penders and Wilcox raced home on Etienne's single.

"We gave up only seven hits but made nine errors which is unbelievable," said Wilcox. "We just were not crisp."

Etienne started for DiPonio and gave up five hits. Penders finished up in relief.

With the two losses, DiPonio slipped to 3-3 in the Blue Division of the Mantle League.

Crowe club beats Flyers

CROWE scored two runs in the fourth inning to defeat the Flyers, 2-0, last weekend in a Livonia Connie Mack League baseball game.

Gary Nick singled, Tim Bowden walked and Bret Hoffman walked to load the bases. Kevin Percin came up to the plate and while batting, Dave Wilkins, the Flyers' catcher, made a pick-off attempt at first base. The wild throw ended up in right field, and both Nick and Bowden scored.

Percin was the winning pitcher. He struck out 10 without giving up a walk. Ken Bennett was the losing pitcher. He struck out eight and walked three.

Nick hit three singles to pace Crowe, while teammate Joe Salvato added two singles.

Greg Gorski was the winning. He relieved Ralph Scharf in the second inning and completed the game. Gorski struck out two and walked two.

Jon McCarthy took the defeat. He pitched the first four innings and gave up eight walks, while Herb McManaway gave up two walks after relieving McCarthy.

"It was a cold day and very hard to pitch," said Optimist coach Jim Brown.

Berry Red tough

BERRY RED slipped by Vincenti, 2-1, last weekend in a Connie Mack League baseball game that went into extra innings.

Vincenti scored first in the game on a bases-loaded walk to Matt McAullife in the fourth inning. Berry came back with one run in the bottom of the seventh when Don Hauck singled, Bob Hamill sacrificed and Mickey Shimskey singled.

The winning run came in the eighth inning when Tom Finn tripled and Mark Gribeck doubled.

Dean Massab was the winning pitcher. He went the distance, struck out six and walked six. Dwayne Cole pitched the entire game for Vincenti and took the defeat.

Finn cracked two of Berry's seven hits, while McAullife had two of Vincenti's five hits.

"It was a real pitchers duel most of the way. We didn't do much of anything until the last two innings," said Berry coach Larry Ruzsas.

Doug Funke writes:

Hearns credits good coaching to amateur success

Thomas Hearns, a gangling, soft-spoken 20-year-old, has captured the fancy of the Detroit-area boxing crowd.

The welterweight, if he defeats Bruce Curry tonight in Olympia Stadium, will have won as many professional bouts without a defeat as he has lived years.

From Hearns' first pro outing November 25, 1977, when he recorded a second-round TKO over Cincinnati's Jerome Hill through May 20 of this year, when Hearns stopped Harold Weston from New York, on a seven-round TKO, the Detroiter has been progressing toward a shot at the world championship.

Hearns started boxing when he accompanied a friend to the King Solomon Boxing Club 10 years ago. Hearns compiled a 147-6 record while progressing through the competitive amateur ranks.

The 6-1 native of Memphis, Tenn., was Midwest Regional Junior Olympic champion in 1974, Michigan Golden Gloves and AAU champion in 1975, a national AAU finalist in 1976 and a national Golden Gloves and AAU titlist in 1977.

PARALLELING Hearns' successful pugilistic career has been the development of amateur boxing clubs in the western suburbs.

Naturally, whenever the object of a sport is to batter an opponent into submission, parents and prospective participants should be concerned about safety.

OK, Thomas Hearns. Let's say you had a son who was interested in joining a boxing club. Since you've been active in the ring half your life and you're now making money there, what factors would be important in your evaluation?

"A good coach, someone who really knows boxing," said Hearns in a barely audible voice.

"Someone who really knows how to work with kids," he continued. "You have to have patience. Not everyone is a fast learner."

Hearns said that he didn't know what qualities marked the good coach from a bad coach when he started at King Solomon, but he took to the sport like a bee to honey.

"I was doing really good at it. As I went down the line, I felt it might be my living," he said.

There are differences between boxing as an amateur and as a professional other than the fact that the former involves performing for show and the latter for dough.

The biggest change, according to Hearns, is that the professional needs more stamina to take and give punches over a four-to-15 round bout as opposed to going all-out for three rounds like the amateur.

"In boxing, you're in there for one thing — to take care of business and go on to other things," said Hearns.

"THERE IS FUN in (professional) boxing, but it's a very dangerous sport," he continued. "Every so often, you look at it as fun, but not all the time. You have to be serious in the ring all the time."

However, showmanship is also involved in boxing to a great degree. Some champions — Muhammed Ali, for example — had charisma which drew people to a sport whose foundation, pure and simple, is brutality.

"You are entertaining," said Hearns. "The crowd comes to see a great fight and you have to give them what they come for."

Hearns usually does just that, from the moment he steps into the ring and begins staring at an opponent with his penetrating brown eyes. Seven of Hearns' 19 victories have come on knockouts within the first three rounds.

IN SPITE OF having a great amount of natural talent, Hearns subscribes to the philosophy that hard work can sometimes be the great equalizer.

He said that he hasn't really been doing things that much differently now than he did in his amateur days.

"I try to work a little harder, put in more hours and more effort," said Hearns. "Boxing is a sport I really enjoy doing."

He also realizes that for every Thomas Hearns who has made a dent in the boxing world, there are hundreds of Joe Palookas who have been dented by the system.

Green gains 2nd state amateur title

By C.J. RISAK

Pete Green would never say that golf is his whole life. But it is certain he would never want to do without it.

Green, a Franklin resident who plays out of Orchard Lake Country Club, was the winner of the 68th Michigan Amateur golf tournament last Sunday at Belvedere Country Club in Charlevoix.

It wasn't the first big title he's won. Green captured the Michigan Medal Play four times and won his first Michigan Amateur in 1969. He has played three times in the U.S. Open and 12 times in the U.S. Amateur. At 38, he is one of the state's premier amateur golfers.

He may have been a good professional golfer, but he decided years ago not to do it.

"I considered it some, but decided not to do it," Green reflected. "I'm not too sorry. Everyone makes a big deal out of turning pro, but I think it's really blown out of proportion.

"There's some very good golf played outside the pros — (including) all over this state."

Green's views on golf are rather simple — to him, it's a game, one that he loves to play.

"I really enjoy playing golf, and I love playing competitive golf. It's a big part of my life."

But it's more than just the pro tour to Green. To him, the backbone of the sport is the average duffer, the businessman who gets out and plays a round or two every week.

"GOLF IS THE club player," Green said. "It's all kinds of people of all ages, participating in it and having fun doing it. Anyone can play it. The (Michigan) Amateur is open to anyone with a legitimate four handicap or better."

Despite his impressive amateur record, Green is not a heavy golfer. He does not practice every day, hitting dozens of buckets of golf balls on the driving range or spending endless hours on the courses throughout the area to sharpen his skills.

"I've played a lot of golf over the years," he explained. "I really don't need to practice a lot."

But he didn't come in exactly cold and win the Amateur. "I had five rounds of golf (in the days just before the start of the tournament) under my belt. I hit balls once in awhile in the morning before work, and I play in as many tournaments as I can."

State amateur golf in recent years has been dominated by college players. But the weather played a big part in this year's Michigan Amateur, with cold, windy and wet conditions marring the second round of qualifying and stretching into the first two days of match play.

Experience proved to be the most important ingredient in the tournament, and that's something Green does possess. The weather cleared by the time the final two rounds got under way, but Green remained in control.

HE BEAT ROY Schultheiss of Port Huron in the morning's semifinal round, 5-4, then came back to claim the championship with a 2-1 match win over Steve Braun of Flint in the afternoon.

"I felt I was playing well, hitting my driver very well and keeping the ball in play," Green said. "I'd say that was the strongest part of my game, my driving."

Still, it was his experience in handling adverse weather conditions that helped him through the earlier rounds.

"The wind made it real tough," he recalled. "With the high winds, the older players showed better experience.

"I've played in all sorts of conditions, so it was an advantage for me. I was proud I was able to win it."

His victory ended the string of wins in state amateur play by younger golfers — for the time being. Green recognizes that there are some very fine young players in Michigan today.

"The amateur tournaments have been dominated by young people. The kids like to play and are good. But there still is a large group in their 40's who are very capable."

Some of the younger players in the area that Green feels have talent are John Campbell of Bloomfield, John Perles of Birmingham and Steve Audas, also of Birmingham. But he feels that local players may be suffering from the same thing pro Jack Nicklaus spoke about last year.

"Like Nicklaus said, there are too many lady golfers in this area, and the kids don't have the chance to get on the course. I think outstate kids have a better shot. Their courses aren't as crowded."

You'll earn extra interest on your interest! Continuous compounding of interest isn't allowed on money market certificates. But it is allowed on regular passbook savings. And since interest on your certificate can be paid monthly, we will automatically deposit that interest in your passbook savings account. When your Michigan Money Market Certificate matures, you can take all the interest from your regular passbook account, plus your principal, and reinvest in a new certificate at the prevailing rate.

8.903% Annual interest rate. 9.232% Effective annual yield.

 The effective annual yield is subject to change at renewal and assumes that the interest rate remains unchanged and that both the interest and principal are reinvested.

Federal regulation prohibits the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of interest is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate. New federal regulation also prohibits the compounding of interest on these certificates.

2. Michigan Money Market Certificates pay you the highest bank interest.

No other bank pays more on Michigan Money Market Certificates than the Michigan National Banks. A minimum deposit of $10,000 is required and the rate at which the certificate is purchased is fixed until maturity.

Final preparations being made for PGA tourney

By BOB GROSS

The Professional Golfer's Association (PGA) Championship is much more than a group of players getting together for a few rounds of golf. It is an event that will have a dramatic effect on the Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

The PGA will be held Aug. 1-Aug. 5 at Oakland Hills Country Club in Bloomfield Township. Practice rounds begin on Monday, July 30.

Oakland Hills is in the Telegraph-Maple Road area, and it is there that the PGA's impact will be the greatest on local residents and businesses. An estimated 100,000 persons will come to Oakland Hills during the week as spectactors — and most will be driving cars.

Cpt. Ted Spring of the Bloomfield Township police department said the greatest amount of traffic congestion will occur at the intersection of Gilbert Lake and Maple (the site of Oakland Hills). Spring said officers will be on duty at the intersection from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The officers will direct spectators to Oakland Hills' North Course where there will be parking. Spring said there will be officers at the North Course to assist in the parking.

There will be no parking allowed on the side streets adjacent to Oakland Hills, said Spring. The Oakland County Road Commission will post tow-away zones in those streets.

Spring said that in addition to handling traffic control, the Bloomfield police also will handle crowd control responsibilities. He said that plainclothes officers will work in the crowd and watch for pickpockets and sneak thieves.

"We'll handle it basically the same way we handled it last time (1972)," said Spring. "We had no problem then and we don't expect one this time."

Ted Woehrle, the course superintendent at Oakland Hills, said that there will be room on the North Course to park 14,000 cars a day.

PARKING IS included in the price of the tickets, if the tickets are bought in advance. Tickets are $10 for the practice rounds and $15 for the championship rounds. Tickets are available at either Hudson's or Sears or can be ordered through the PGA office at Oakland Hills.

The ticket price also includes a program.

Spectators at Oakland Hills will find bleachers seating a total of 3,500 persons at the 10th, 12th, 16th, 17th and 18th greens. There will be 15 refreshment stands and 80 comfort stations sprinkled over the course. A first aid station will be located on the 18th fairway.

Practice rounds start at 8 a.m., and championship rounds start at 7:30 a.m. Mary Ann Petres, of the PGA office, said that if spectators "want to see everything, they should get here by 8 a.m."

While the refreshment stands will be staffed by a private company, most other work will be handled by volunteers. More than 700 volunteers are expected to work during tournament week, doing everything from acting as marshalls, manning phones in the press tent, to acting as messengers, according to Petres.

Businesses in the area are confident that the PGA will bring more customers. Rick Phi'lips, assistant manager of the Damman Hardware store located in the Bloomfield Plaza at Telegraph and Maple, said "I think it (the tournament) will increase the sale of smaller things."

"They'll (spectators) be in the area . . . and things will pop in their minds, and they'll come over and get them.

Beth Cooley, the store manager of the Metro News Center, also in the Bloomfield Plaza, said "I think it (the tournament) will help our community tremendously, and I'm very glad it'll be here.

"It will be great for business."

Cooley said the store was not stocking any items specifically for the PGA but that it many golf magazines and books already were stocked. "We've been selling a lot of them — the tounament coming to town does draw a lot of interest."

LORENZ PETERSON, manager of the Machus Red Fox in the same shopping center, worked for the restaurant in 1972 during the last PGA championship held at Oakland Hills. Based on his past experience, Peterson expects "wall-to-wall people."

Most of the other restaurants in the area can expect to do well during PGA week, according to Sue Miller of the PGA office, because there will be no dinner service at Oakland Hills.

I've got it!

Community pays tribute to retiring conductor

Wayne Dunlap summed up his 28 years as conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra as "the most enjoyable and satisfying time of my life."

More than 150 persons — old friends, neighbors and members of the orchestra — gathered Sunday evening in the Mayflower Meeting House to honor Lenora and Wayne Dunlap who are moving to Texas later this summer. And there were stacks of letters from those who were unable to attend the dinner reception.

Nat Sibbold, a former Plymouth resident, came from Battle Creek to be master of ceremonies.

Sam Hudson, representing the Plymouth Rotary Club, reminisced about Dunlap's years (1956-1971) as a member of the club. He recalled the summer concerts at the Pino farm when the maestro had persuaded his fellow Rotarians to become involved in the project and the amount of sheer manual labor that resulted.

He told about the year the Rotary chicken barbecue became the Plymouth Fall Festival. Dunlap was appointed chairman of the cultural side of the festival and for years was responsible for entertainment, arts and crafts, during the early September fest.

Hudson presented a certificate of appreciation from the club to the guest of honor.

MARY CHILDS, mayor pro tem, read a proclamation from the City of Plymouth, signed by Plymouth Mayor Thomas Turner. It named June 24, 1979, a day to honor Wayne Dunlap.

State Rep. Robert Law delivered a special commendation from Gov. William Milliken. Elaine Kirchgatter presented a resolution of appreciation from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and another from the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Paul Miller, tympanist with the orchestra for 28 years, was a student of Dunlap's at the University of Michigan before he joined the orchestra.

His talk was laced with anecdotes that led fellow orchestra member Bill Beitner to say after the party, "I wish we had recorded Paul's whole speech."

Miller went back to his student days when he was playing in the U-M Symphony Orchestra. "I didn't have a tux and I didn't know how I ever would get a tux." However, he bought a portable typewriter "which Wayne wanted to trade for his standard model. It was a good deal for me and I was prepared to make an even trade."

But it didn't work out that way. "Wayne said, 'And I have an extra tuxedo I'll throw in with the typewriter.' " Paul Miller had his first tux.

HE RECALLED the time the orchestra was doing "La Traviata" with the Michigan Opera Association. At the Saturday rehearsal, everything was perfect.

Sunday morning, the day of the concert, the lead baritone could not speak above a whisper. A replacement was found after several frantic telephone calls. The opera was being presented in English and the substitute, who had sung the part in Europe and America, could sing it in both English and Italian.

He took his place in the orchestra pit beside the conductor. The regular tenor, in full costume, mouthed the words from the stage.

"It was beautiful," said Miller, "the best mouthing on record until the tenor came to the most dramatic part. In his excitement, he lapsed into Italian, as the on-stage tenor mouthed the words in English."

There were other occasions which, in retrospect, were funny. They were not particularly humorous at the time.

There were soloists who could not sing in the key in which the music was written. "Wayne was always very gentle. He would just ask us to transpose from D to C."

Miller recalled the concert that the conductor left his glasses in the dressing room. When he went to retrieve them, discovered the door to the pit was locked and he could not get back in. "And once he forgot his tux and had to borrow Bill Beitner's.".

"BUT THIS orchestra is very special," he said. "It has been a springboard and a catalyst for so many young musicians.

"And I've enjoyed every mile of the 80,000 I've driven to rehearsal." Miller commutes from Flint to Plymouth for rehearsals and concerts.

In conclusion he said, "As Wayne would have said after his year in Vienna, 'auf Wiedersehen.' This is not goodbye."

Parting gifts from the Plymouth Symphony Society were presented by Fran Lang, past president of the society. There was a pitch fork painted in the orchestra's colors, blue and white; a farmer-type straw hat with a baton in the band; and for Wayne and Lenora Dunlap, a pewter tea service with the orchestra logo and the years 1951-1979 engraved on the tray.

Dunlap said, "There is no other com-

WAYNE AND LENORA Dunlap could not believe the turnout for their Sunday evening retirement party.

"I expected about 50 people at the most," said Wayne. There were 155 persons at the dinner reception in the Meeting House.

Jim Sponseller, former editor of the Plymouth Mail, came from Rochester for the party. Jimmy Tamburini, who has played first trumpet for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 25 years, was there. He is an old friend of Wayne's and Bill Beitner's. He always came out to play at least one concert each season with the Plymouth Symphony — usually the pops.

Louise Hauenstein, wife of the late Nelson Hauenstein who was a longtime member of the Plymouth Symphony, came from Ann Arbor. Glennis Stout, first flute, was there.

Harold Von Bergen, violinist and charter member of the orchestra; Joyce Lee, violinist; Peggy Bunge, violinist; her husband, Earl Bunge, percussionist; William Hulsker of Detroit, bassoonist; Max Stroup of Detroit, clarinetist; and John Perpich of Plymouth, first bass were there.

Other members of the orchestra were Jean Braun, first viola; Dr. John Moehler, first clarinet; Mary Ann Marks of Brighton, cello; Linda Ignagi, violin; Bob Randall of Livonia, horn section; and Mary Beth Derderdian, viola, who played the piano for the singalong at the party.

Emcee Nat Sibbold and his head table guest, Frances Swan of Grand Rapids, said they plan to be married next month — another happy note for a very special evening.

MARTHA DAVIS loves the thank-you notes she receives from young students. These arrive a week or so after she has visited their classrooms with her talk and display of rocks.

Martha believes that the children appreciate displays that they can touch, so she usually invites them to hold the unusual rocks and minerals in their hands. Among her collection is a clear piece of rock salt.

With all the beautiful geodes, crystals and semi-precious gems, you never know what will appeal to the individual students. The following letter bears this out:

Dear Mrs. Davis:

Thank you for bringing in your rocks. We liked all of them. We especially liked to lick the salt.

AND THERE'S A note from Judy Kammeraad:

"Thank you for the interesting article on our family-centered birth.

"Unfortunately, we failed to mention the fact that the aid of the people at the Plymouth Childbirth and Family Resource Center made this possible for us. The library and LaMaze training available were essential in our preparation of our five-year-old daughter for the birth.

"Also, our LaMaze teacher, Michelle Kirkman, went with us to the hospital to help with Jenny's needs. Without her unselfish assistance, we would not have been able to include Jenny in Katie's birth.

"We would be very grateful if some recognition of the Center and Michelle could be made. I'm sure this information might be helpful to other couples."

For those who didn't read the story, Peter and Judy Kammeraad and their daughter, Jenny, shared the experience, when their daughter, Kathryn was born May 29 in Women's Hospital, Ann Arbor.

PLYMOUTH LIONS Club is generous in its donations to the community, to preventive eye care and to the blind.

They agreed to give $264 for eye examinations and glasses; $600 to the Michigan Eye Bank; $600 to Welcome Home; $300 to the Penrickton Nursery; $300 to the Leader Dog School for the Blind; and $100 for a sign for Miller Woods. They also donated a Braille watch.

CIRCLE THE DATE July 21 on your calendar. That's the day for Old Village's Dearie Do You Remember When? festival.

It will be the eighth annual Dearie Day and the merchants, headed by Ronnie Sebuck, are planning dozens of special features, sidewalk sales, entertainment, rides and games topped off by a dance in the evening.

Area youngsters soon will be able to check out hand puppets at the Dunning Hough Library on Main Street, Plymouth.

The City of Plymouth presented a puppet tree to the library earlier this week. The tree bears a plaque engraved with the words: Presented by the City of Plymouth in memory of Beth Simescu, Oct. 26, 1978.

Beth Simescu served as librarian in Plymouth from October 1970 to July 1978. She died of cancer last October. During her years at the library, she instituted and enlarged many of the children's programs. The puppet tree, presented in her honor, will introduce another service for children.

So far, there is just one puppet — a furry rabbit with a carrot — on the tree. Librarian Pat Thomas says they will have to wait until they have 20-25 puppets before they will be checked out for circulation.

"WE HAVE ABOUT 75 items in the toy collection," said Miss Thomas, "and sometimes they are all out. So we'll have to have at least 20 to start."

Donations of new hand puppets or contributions to buy puppets will be welcomed at the library. They will be added to the Beth Simescu memorial collection.

"I have a couple of lists to order from," said the librarian. They range in price from $7 to $20. Persons wishing to add to the collection can stop in at the library, or send a check to Dunning Hough Library, 223 S. Main, Plymouth.

The puppets will be circulated for short loan periods of one week. The educational toys also are checked out for periods of one week.

The puppet tree was made by Dick Harden of Dick's Pine Crafts of Starkweather Street in Old Village. It was fashioned of pine and stained. The tree will hold 14 puppets on its branches but Pat Thomas anticipates they will be very popular.

She's hoping to have at least 50 in the collection.

Barry Simescu was on hand for the presentation of the puppet tree Tuesday at Dunning Hough Library. The tree was a memorial tribute to his wife, Beth Simescu, who died last October.

Young nighthawk 'makes himself right at home'

By ELINOR GRAHAM

Nancy Dietrich, of 702 N. Harvey Street, has been devoting a good deal of attention to Chester this past week. As a result, Sam has been in a vile mood. Sam is her 8-year-old parrot. Chester is a baby nighthawk, a waif, an orphan.

Scott Cunningham, Ms. Dietrich's next door neighbor, found the baby nighthawk in front of Bill's Market on Starkweather. He was flopping around and sort of unsteady on his feet — obviously lost. If anyone could save the nestling without a nest, it was Nancy Dietrich, who has "brought up a lot of birds."

They named him Chester and he took up residence at 702 Harvey. By day, his home is the newpaper-protected coffee table in the living room. By night, he has a snug cage in the corner of the kitchen.

AT FIRST, he had to be coaxed and "sweet-talked" into eating. But he soon got over that and has become very aggressive in his demands.

Every two or three hours he lets his hostess know he is on the verge of starvation.

Ms. Dietrich prepared a mixture of raw ground beef, yolk of hard-boiled egg, and water. She mixed in some canary gravel for grit so he can grind up and digest the food.

When she has prepared a batch of Chester's food, she forms it into tiny pellets and puts it in the freezer. Small amounts are thawed and kept refrigerated for his feeding schedule.

A meal consists of several of the pellets. Nancy sticks each one on the tip of a toothpick and drops it into Chester's large mouth.

Jude Cunningham, Scott's wife, provides the flying bugs which have been trapped in a bug-catching device. All are washed down with water, enriched by bird vitamins and fed through an eye-dropper.

Once his appetite is appeased, his eyelids begin to droop and he is ready for a nap. They are amazed at the way he flattens himself out and spreads out one wing when he sleeps.

"THEY ARE not perching birds," Ms. Dietrich explained. "They live in rocks or rooftops. When he sleeps that way, you realize that he would be almost invisible on a rock. With his coloring, he would look like part of the rock."

The nighthawk closely resembles the whippoorwill. Both fly at dusk and their coloring is similar. The nighthawk has a forked tail while the whippoorwill's is rounded. The broad munity like this, in my experience." He named members and past presidents of the orchestra board who had given so much of their time. He said the Symphony League was the "most admirable, the most productive orchestra women's association in the state."

During his 28 years with the orchestra, he estimates there were 200 concerts and 900 rehearsals. Probably 200 musicians have played in the orchestra during that time "and I remember them all by their first names."

"As Paul said, the orchestra has had its moments of terror and its glorious moments. I hope you invite me back."

The pewter tea service presented by Fran Lang on behalf of the Plymouth Symphony Society was admired by Wayne, Lenora and Betsy Dunlap. (Staff photos)

HEAD TABLE guests were Paul Miller, Edith Duranceau and Daisy Barnes who have played in the orchestra since it was founded, Nat Sibbold, Wayne and Lenora Dunlap, their daughter, Betsy, and their son, Bruce, Wayne's sister, Bev Murray, Fran and Charles Lang, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Beitner.

Harriett Randall, Joanne Hulce, Jane Moehle and Mary Elizabeth Moehle were in one group. The Sam Hudsons, the George Hudsons, the Donald Urquharts, the Bob Sparlings, Lewis Stout, Emily Mutter Austin, the Fred Beitners, the Brian Zeleks, the Perry Richwines, the Dunbar Davises, the Kenneth Merrills, Norma Cassady and a host of other friends attended the dinner.

The Dunlaps have not set a definite moving date. They have to sell their home in Grand Rapids.

The party was a community project spearheaded by George Hudson, Fred and Bill Beitner, and the Symphony Society.

The banquet hall was filled with laughter as Paul Miller reminisced about his more than 28-year association with Wayne Dunlap.

Road blitz for July 4

Michigan State Police traffic patrols, again taking part in "Operation CARE," will concentrate on high risk road areas during heavy travel hours over the July 4 holiday period.

Trooper patrols will concentrate on speed law enforcement and hazardous violation surveillance which includes drinking drivers, improper passing and lane usage, and following too closely, said Col. Gerald L. Hough, department director.

"CARE" stands for "combined accident reduction effort," a traffic safety program in which Michigan and other states take part during holiday periods.

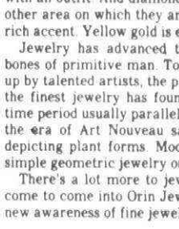
GEM WISE

THE MAGIC OF JEWELRY (Part II)



ORIN J. MAZZONI, Jr.
Certified Gemologist

Jewelry found its place among primitive man's most meaningful symbols. He felt it could ward off spirits and cure illness. This idea was carried through the ages, expanding to include the use of jewelry as a symbol of prestige and recognition.

While jewelry as talisman or gems as medication are ideas now entertained mainly as curiosities, the idea of jewelry as a status symbol has survived to the present. Two other strong aspects of jewelry today are its use as an item of adornment and its appreciation as a work of art.

Fine jewelry accents both one's wardrobe and one's physical features. Pearls have been known to enhance any complexion. Colored stones add excitement when coordinated with an outfit. And diamonds light up the face and draw attention to any other area on which they are worn. The precious metals add a subtle yet rich accent. Yellow gold is especially noted for its warm glow.

Jewelry has advanced tremendously from the string of shells and bones of primitive man. Today it is an art form. The designs are drawn up by talented artists, the pieces executed by master craftsmen. Some of the finest jewelry has found its way into museums. Jewelry from any time period usually parallels the trend in the pictorial arts. For example, the era of Art Nouveau saw the creation of flowing jewelry designs depicting plant forms. Modern art has inspired some of the clean and simple geometric jewelry on the market today.

There's a lot more to jewelry than many people realize. You're welcome to come into Orin Jewelers and visit me. I'd love to bring you to a new awareness of fine jewelry and to catch you in its magical spell.

Flex Bradley teaches sign language to (from left) Alan Machanak, Ginger Bloomfield and Michael Brooman. It is part of a Bible School program at Memorial Church of Christ to make hearing children aware of the problems faced by the deaf.

Diana Tederington (left) of Redford Township makes sure that Sheryl Kogut learns about how Jesus helps people in a class for deaf children at Kenwood Church of Christ. She feels strongly that deaf Bible school students should not miss out on what the hearing students are learning. (Staff photos by Bob Woodring).

Bible schools focus on deaf

By SHERRY KAHAN

Mark McGilvrey, pastor of Memorial Church of Christ in Livonia, was "astounded" when he read that there are 13.4 million people in the U.S. with a hearing impairment.

He found this statistic in an article written by the man who is teaching at the church's vacation Bible school this summer. He is Cecil Bennett, director of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institution of Christian Education in Cincinnati.

The article added that more suffer persons from this silent epidemic than from cancer, blindness, TB, venereal disease, multiple sclerosis and kidney disease.

Bennett's mission at Memorial church is to acquaint the Bible school children with a way in which deaf people communicate. He gives them elementary lessons in sign language.

NORTH OF MEMORIAL is another Church of Christ church which is involved with a program concerning the deaf. This year Kenwood Church of Christ invited hearing impaired youngsters to its vacation Bible school.

With the help of Diana Tederington of Redford Township, the children, the majority at the first grade level, are learning through the oral method of teaching the deaf. This includes lip reading and oral communication. These youngsters receive separate instruction; but for some, activities are mainstreamed with the hearing students at the school.

"We became aware that as far as we can determine, no other church in Livonia offers Bible school for the hearing impaired using this particular kind of training," said David Baynes, Kenwood's pastor.

Does the fact that both Church of Christ institutions are working with the deaf this summer indicate a new commitment in this regard on the part of the church?

"IT IS A coincidence that we both have programs," said McGilvrey. However, both Memorial and Kenwood are considering a greater commitment to help the deaf.

"We think we might start a deaf ministry," continued McGilvrey. "We would get several members of the congregation to study sign language so they could communicate with the deaf who came for services and make them feel at home.

"We could reserve a section for them where an interpreter could sign to them the contents of the sermon. The biggest part of such a ministry would be training people."

He pointed out that Flex Bradley, a deaf Church of Christ member who has a master's degree from New York State University in programs for the deaf, is doing a study to determine the number of deaf people in this area.

The results of this poll will help the church determine whether to go further with the deaf ministry idea.

The ambition of David Baynes is to offer a Sunday Bible school class to the hearing impaired every Sunday. He indicated he had heard from several couples with young children about this year's summer program for children who are hard of hearing.

"Their children are too young to attend," he said. "But they were so happy we have the program. They want to have their children included when they're older."

Church marks 100 years

Harvey W. Wood, chairman of the Christian Science board of directors, spoke to an overflow audience of church members.

Wood said it would take "the prayer of spiritual understanding to help mankind find deliverance from the cruelty, debasement and limitations of materialistic thinking."

Members were told of the growing interest in the church in Africa and Latin America. They were also informed that the church was well-supported by its members and was free of all debts.

The Church of Christ, Scientist was founded in 1879 in Boston by religious leader, Mary Baker Eddy.

Reading club is for singles only

By DICK FOSTER

If you're into the singles scene and you like to read, then the Singles Booklovers Club may be for you.

The club, based in Philadelphia, was founded in 1970 by Bob Leach, a widower who saw a need for an outlet for cultured, unmarried people. He started it to help them get acquainted through their mutual interests in reading.

The club's founder now has an assistant, his wife Ruth, who concentrates on most of the paperwork.

Leach and his wife put out a monthly newsletter. The newsletter doesn't promote any certain style or type of raeding. It only provides correspondence between singles who read a lot.

The monthly publication lists each new member, marriages that are the result of correspondence and personal profiles on members, listing their occupations, hobbies or favorite movies.

Using code numbers instead of names, the newsletter also lists each person's age, height, city and state.

THE CLUB'S GOAL, according to a member who has asked not to be named, is to provide a large pool of compatible people to meet.

"The club is a nice way to meet people and it's a great alternative to the bar scene," she said. "Most of the people I've met through the club are over 30 and are tired of the bars where everything seems so put on."

The club member said she joined the club for fun after a member told her about it.

"It's really quite popular. I discovered there were 10-12 members in the metropolitan Detroit area," she said.

According to the member, there are other members in 45 states, some provinces in Canada and a few foreign countries including Germany.

The newsletter that sent to each member includes a list of the male members for the women and a list of the female members for the men.

"If you see someone who has similar reading interests or is just appealing because of his description, you can send in for a detailed one-page information sheet on him," she said.

IN THE SHORT time the club has been in existence, starting with just 30 members, there have been 50 marriages.

"I've had people fly in to see me after we've corresponded but nothing came of any of the meetings. Most of them were nice and interesting to talk to but they just weren't my type," she added.

For the $19 annual dues fee, a member receives the newsletter and a two-line synopsis about him or herself in a newsletter.

Interested singles can write to Box AE, Swarthmore, Pa. 19081 for more information about the club.

MIGRAINE HEADACHES ELIMINATED!

IAN A. GRASSAM, D.C.

...Headache sufferers ask this question...

IT'S UP TO YOU!
CALL 422-7800
TO MAKE YOUR APPOINTMENT

MIGRAINE HEADACHES ARE GONE

I used to have problems with my nerves, migraine headaches, neck and back pains, and it was getting to where I couldn't even handle my job or housework.

Friends of mine, neighbors, went to see Dr. Grassam for colds. And I could see for myself that chiropractic worked for her and her family.

I started going to Dr. Grassam and feel great. He even helped me with a plant injury I received back in 1977. He put me back on my feet in no time.

I was no longer in pain. Even my appetite returned, and I went from 106 pounds to 124 pounds, my normal weight.

I feel better after each treatment, but realize I am not only getting rid of the pain for the day, but getting rid of the problem.

I can't say enough about chiropractic to my friends, or anybody that complains of symptoms. Especially when they say the only way their doctor can help is to keep them drugged up.

I would just like to thank the doctors at the Grassam Chiropractic Center once more for making life better for me.

Sincerely,
Shirley A. Masta

"His flight feathers have grown about half an inch in just one week,"Nancy said. "At first there were four and now there are six." According to a book on birds, Chester will be 8½ to 10 inches long when he is full grown. Even now, his wingspread is about 18 inches.

The birds winter in South America and their call is a nasal "peent" or "pee-ik," (according to the book).

Chester has been encouraged to fly and spends some of his time outdoors in a chicken wire enclosure.

SHARON AND Teresa French feed and watch him while he is outdoors.

"They just love him and have been so helpful when I have to run errands and can't get back on time to feed him," said Ms. Dietrich.

He has been in one continual snit since Chester moved in and makes no attempt to hide his feelings.

He sings several songs, and his favorite is singing Happy Birthday to himself. He carries on one-sided telephone conversations with appropriate pauses, chuckles, and chatter.

Once she took him to an antique show. Ms. Dietrich is a dealer who does all her selling at shows. She hung Sam's cage in her booth.

One elderly lady flounced out of the booth, calling Sam "a dirty old bird." This was after the parrot had asked, "Do you wanna go to bed?"

So Sam and Chester are carefully separated. Soon Chester will be able to fend for himself and he will be set free. Sam's disposition is expected to improve immediatly.

Nancy Dietrich is hoping the nighthawk will not become as dependent as a baby robin she raised. The robin returned each day and sat on the handle of a shovel, chirping until they went out and dug worms for him.

NANCY AUSTIN

Next time you go to your favorite magazine stand, be sure to buy a copy of "Big Beautfiful Woman" magazine. You're in for a surprise.

The cover boasts a very pretty, if but slightly plump model, showing off the latest in fashions for the heavy woman.

Subtitles include "when fat was 'in' and thin was a sin!" "what department stores are doing to woo the BBW (Big Beautiful Woman), and "the ABCs of feeling OK."

There's a movement afoot, and this publication is but one more example of an outspoken but bulding minority making themselves heard.

There's a gorgeous blonde sensuous lady named Stella Reichman. She is the forerunner of the movement whose theory in life revolves around plump can still be sexy.

The birth of The National Assoication to Aid Fat Americans gives rise to the theory that the heavy person has rights — a sort of political mouthpiece.

"BIG BEAUTFIUL WOMAN" was born out of frustrations of a shopping trip. Preparing to go on a vacation and giving her somewhat depleted wardrobe a boost, Carol shopped, and shopped, and shopped. Her husband was along on the would-be pleasure trip and watched the frustrations flare up from a simmer to a boil.

With that, the following day her husband talked to several people who would be interested in working full time on the publication of a new magazine. He is the publisher, she the editor.

The first issue sold 65 percent of its copies in two weeks, a magazine selling record. The second issue is now on the stands with a circulation of 200,000 and national distribution.

"The demand has been beyond our wildest dreams," said Carole. "But there is a need for women to be able to have a publication that speaks to their problems."

THE MOST DIFFICULT part of the second issue was, she says, choosing the letters to the editor. Most of them were from people pouring out their feelings about the difficulty of self-worth. "Some of the letters made you want to cry," she said. "Women need this magazine."

The former professional singer has always had a weight problem. While she was a size 12 during her performing years, it was such a struggle to stay at that size she wondered if it was all worth it. Carole tried every diet there was.

"Once," she said, "I was even a size 9 while I was a member of Weight Watchers." But she became depressed over the struggle and decided it wasn't worth it.

Today the 43-year-old Carole is 200 pounds, a size 22½, and stands 5 feet 7 inches. "I feel like a million. I always do,"she bubbled enthusiastically.

"There's more to life than being a size nine. We have bought into a mentality that if you aren't thin there is something wrong." "But," she continued, "There are 25 million women size 15 and larger, and these people have needs. In this magazine we are trying to fill those needs.

"I don't know if you have a weight problem (If she only knew the struggle), but in 100 years we are both going to look the same." Therein lies her philosophy. Deal with today, and hope for tomorrow. Do the best you can with what you have.

DEALING WITH the "now" in life is evident throughout the magazine. The most unique feature is that not only are high fashion items modeled, but the models are heavy themselves.

To quote in part from the editor's note in her statement of policy: "We are 25 percent of the population — we represent a goodly portion of humanity. It's time we start respecting ourselves and demand respect from the smaller world around us. "And this is only some of what this magazine is about."

Sheriffs train for GOP convention

Wayne County Sheriff's national award-winning Executive Protection Training program will conduct its eighth annual exercise July 12-15 at the former Child Development Center in Northville Township in preparation for the 1980 Republican National Convention, according to the school's director, Sgt. Raymond Megge.

The privately-funded training school for police officers, commonly referred to as POP (Protect Our Principal), was one of eight Wayne County projects to receive national recognition by NACo, the National Association of Counties. The awards will be presented to Wayne County Board Chairman Richard E. Manning at NACo's annual conference in Kansas City July 15-17.

Megge emphasized that the training school is not new. "We've trained more than 800 police and executive protection personnel in the fine art of keeping visiting dignitaries safe from assassins, bombs, snipers, and helicopter attacks," he said. "This is the school's eighth year of operation, and our instructors include agents from the FBI, ATF (Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Treasury Dept.), Secret Service, InterArms, Macomb Criminal Justice Institute, and the Detroit Police Department.

"Furthermore, we do not rely on federal, state or county funds. All of our money is contributed by industry which also provides us with equipment. In return we help train their executive protection agents. It makes a nice combination."

Focus on Canton, China

Train and bus trips to craft shop, ancestral temple

By GLORIA HOPFNER
Special writer

(Gloria Hopfner of Plymouth recently traveled to Hong Kong and to the Republic of China and relates her experiences and observations in this special series for readers of The Observer.)

Boarding the train at Hong Kong, we were off to Canton, China.

Traditionally when the train reaches the border at Lo Wu everyone must detrain and walk across the bridge to go through visa inspection, health card check, customs, currency declaration and then surrender a signed immigration slip. "Long live the great unity of the people of the world!" proclaimed a large and prominent red-and-white banner outside the station. And "Mobilize and strive to fulfill the genuine task for the new period!" read another.

Chinese officials were courteous and efficient. After we complete all of the checks to their satisfaction, we were ushered into the dining room for lunch.

Seated at round tables for 10 we were served a family-style Chinese meal, which included sweet and sour pork "for the tourists," with whom it is always a very popular choice. Our tour group included members from Venezuela, England, Germany, South Africa, Canada, California, Washington, New York, Michigan, and Illinois.

AS WE EXITED the dining hall, another sign warned that "Passengers are advised that there is no toilet on the train from Lo Wu to Canton. There are some, however, in the station."

Reboarding, we found the train transformed. All seats had been covered with freshly laundered covers and headrests topped with lace doilies. A female attendant or hostess had been added in a uniform of navy slacks and short-sleeved white blouse. Her long black braids fell almost to her hips. She could neither speak nor understand English, but did inquire of each of us, "Tea?", which she then provided in hand-painted covered China cups containing boiled water and loose tea leaves without cream or sugar. This could be rested on a small shelf just below the window.

Moving out, we soon found ourselves traversing low, mostly flat farmland, virtually all of it under cultivation. Water buffaloes still are used as work animals because the farms are not yet mechanized. We later were told that one of China's goals is to have all farms mechanized by 1985.

There was an occasional settlement with low buildings, many rice fields and a few low hills on the horizon. Oscillating fans on the ceiling of the car provided the only cooling on an extremely warm day. Sounds of stringed instruments was played over the P.A. system without any melody that I could discern.

We arrived at Canton and transferred to buses, which took us first to Kwangchow Museum. Because every town and city long has had both a Cantonese and a Mandarin name, the government is making a strong effort to encourage everyone to use only the Mandarin names. Therefore, we found that our destination, Canton, is called Kwangchow or Guangzhou (phonetic spelling is optional in English).

Our visit at the museum was a casual one without guide or commentary, so we wandered at will among the many displays. There were handsome, sculptured busts, many with the face left unglazed to allow for finer features. All of the information cards attached to the displays were printed in Chinese without a translation.

Around 5 p.m. we arrived at our hotel — the Tung Fong, or Tung Fang or Dong Fang (take your pick). Our room with attached bath was clean and comfortable with twin beds, each with a ceiling-hung coronet of mosquito netting, an oscillating fan and all of the other amenities we had come to expect, except a television set. Small loss, though. Chinese TV offers no daytime programming and is available for only about three evening hours on a single channel.

After dinner the first evening we were taken to a theater to be entertained by Chinese folksingers and dancers. There another great banner: "Long live the victory of Chairman Mao's revolutionary line of literature and art!" Also, "Hold high the great banner of Chairman Mao and advance from victory to victory." And under a photograph of Chairman Mao high on the wall in the lobby, "The Great Leader Chairman Mao will live in our hearts forever!"

Advancing from the wings with military precision between numbers, an attractive Chinese woman acted as mistress of ceremonies to explain in Chinese what was coming next. Performances featured highly skilled execution, brilliant costumes, great enthusiasm, bright lighting and attractive sets. Themes behind the skits took on political overtones, which would have been lost on the tourists without benefit of a translation volunteered to us by a friendly Chinese spectator in an adjoining seat.

At bedtime, I spread my mosquito net as a test. I lay down and watched the net billow each time the fan swept from side to side. I closed my eyes and discovered that no cooling breeze was coming through. With the night quite warm, I abandoned use of the net and, after a cooling shower, managed to sleep very well.

NEXT MORNING we had a choice of a Chinese or European breakfast.

The latter featured ham omelet, toast, roll, butter, marmalade and tea or coffee. I had selected European, but requested orange juice, which had not been offered. Our waitress disappeared for awhile, then returned to place before me a chilled bottle of orange pop. She was trying to oblige, but oranges must be imported and are very expensive and not available.

The morning's tour took us to Faushan Craft Co., which produceds paintings, the finest paper cutting, cuttlebone carvings, and plastic or fiberglass sculpting.

Much of the work requires enormous patience, but even the very young artisans, who appeared to be in their early teens, were equal to the challenge.

The Chinese were very hospitable. At every new place we went, we were always cordially welcomed. A cup of tea was always offered to us. One Chinese student told us that once while visiting outside China, he had mailed to his uncle back in China, a large box of teabags. Upon receiving them, the uncle had painstakingly cut open and emptied out each teabag into a cannister. When the nephew returned, his uncle said, "Yes," (he had received the tea) "but tell me, why do they put it in all those little bags?"

THE NEXT PLACE we visited was an ancestral temple. The temperature was 90 F and with the absence of central air-conditioning everywhere, we could appreciate the wisdom of carrying a hand fan. Men and women alike use them, even while walking on the street on hot days.

We were shown a 500-year-old bronze casting of a water god, that supposedly controlled the water. "But," said our guide, "he couldn't actually control the water at all, and the people were duped. Under New China the people have harnessed the river and controlled mountains!" Then he went on to explain that the gods were retired in 1962 and the building was now a museum. Chinese ancestral worship has also been officially discouraged.

He kept referring to "Before Liberation" or "Since Liberation," so I finally made the tactical error of inquiring, "Liberation from what?" He could offer only an embarrassed silence. It seems that Liberation occurred in 1949 with the success of the revolution lead by Chairman Mao, who taught "self-reliance and hard struggle."

Music is essential to churches, magic

— Congreve

From the beat of a primitive African tribal drum to the resounding chords of Handel's "Messiah," music is an intricate part of the religious ritual of all mankind.

It offers a link with the spiritual world and brings man closer to his God. It would be hard to find a religion that does not employ music of one kind or another to enhance its rituals.

MUSIC IS an important part in the working of "magic." It would be difficult, indeed, to cast a spell without chanting an incantation.

Beethoven said that music is the mediator between the spiritual and sensual lives. It is certainly true that all of man's emotions are best expressed through the use of this medium.

Shakespeare said: "The man that hath not music in himself and is not moved with concord of sweet sounds is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils; let no man trust him."

Gaiety and grief, love, fear, excitement and passion are all conveyed in musical strains. It has been said that a musician is truly the greatest of all magicians, for there is none over whom he cannot cast a spell.

I PAY TRIBUTE to a very special group of magicians — the public school band directors.

Each September they meet with a new group of children who may know nothing whatsoever about music. By late October, these children are playing recognizable tunes. By the time of the Christmas program, they are playing as a group — a real band!

If parents are thrilled by this, just wait another four months, when it is time for the spring concert. By then, the school band will make you tap your toes to their beat.

School band directors are paragons of virtue. They display more patience than Job himself. They are usually the first ones at school in the morning, the last to leave at night.

They think nothing of embarking with a bunch of teenagers on a bus trip to a neighboring school district for a band festival, or half-way across the country to take part in a parade.

AND WHEN THE bond issue doesn't pass, or the millage is defeated, they are the first to lose their jobs.

When a school district cuts back on its music department, it makes a big mistake, for music is not an "extra-curricular frill." It is the stuff that life is made of. It is the sound of man.

Bids submitted on Haggerty, Beck

The Michigan Department of Transportation in Lansing last week received bids on concrete paving of Haggerty between Five and Six Mile Road and a mile portion of Beck from North Territorial to Five Mile. Both road portions are now gravel.

Ajax Paving Industries of Madison Heights was the low bidder on both projects. It bid $1,024,985 on the Haggerty paving and $1,532,552 on the Beck work.

Both projects are scheduled for completion in July 1980.

We're giving away tickets

We're still taking entries in our little contest to give away a set of tickets for 18 children (12 or under) and two adults to the Dobritch International Circus in Westland on Aug. 31.

If you know of a group of kids who would like to see a two-hour show under the big top, write us a letter — 50 words maximum — explaining why they deserve some fun. Deadline for entries is July 31.

The showing of the circus is sponsored by the Wayne County Deputy Sheriff's Association. Judging for the entries will be done by a group of Observer editors.

Detroit whoops it up on the waterfront

Motown goes bang

If Yankee Doodle were going to town this Fourth of July, he'd be going to Detroit.

He'd get there Friday and stay at least until Wednesday, July 4 — the running dates of this year's Detroit-Windsor International Freedom Festival.

And rather than call it "macaroni," Yank would probably agree with freedom festival committee chairman Robert G. Wall and call this, the 21st annual festival, the best one ever.

THE FESTIVAL has grown into the largest and most successful continuous event of its kind in North America, according to Wall. This year's schedule is jammed with athletic events, parades, exhibits, demonstrations, shows, regattas, tournaments, races, picnics, concerts, religious services, and, of course, the fireworks.

In addition, 26 nationalities — Arabic, Irish, German, Scandinavian, Armenian and Greek included, to name a few — will participate in the International Ethnic Festival at Hart Plaza, at the foot of Woodward. Featured will be foods, as well as a wide assortment of crafts and gifts representative of each ethnic group. Hours are noon to 11 p.m. Friday through Wednesday.

The festivities begin tomorrow — officially at 5:30 p.m. with hand-shaking mayors Weeks of Windsor and Young of Detroit — but actually at 11:30 a.m. with the Manufacturers Bank-Spirit of Detroit Regatta up and down the Detroit River and out on to Lake St. Clair.

Competing in two classifications will be some 50 offshore racing boats that will reach speeds of 80 mph over two courses — one 90 miles long, the other nearly 200 miles long. There will be unlimited vantage points on both sides of the Detroit River until around 1 p.m., when the boats head out to Lake St. Clair.

Later in the day, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the Bob-Lo boat fireworks cruise sets sail. Approximately 1,200 people will board the ship in quest of that perfect vantage point for the fireworks later in the evening.

The Joe Vitale dance band will also be aboard, doing what it does best for those inclined to kick up their heels a bit. Tickets for the cruise are $6.95 and may be purchased by calling the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, 964-4000.

Military aircraft and an aerobatic stunt plane will buzz over the Detroit River starting at 7 p.m.

Then, starting about 9:55 p.m., the seven-ton Hudson's-Stroh's fireworks display will light up the sky for one hour, providing a magnificent sight and sound show guaranteed to amaze adults and scare young children and dogs.

Over 600,000 people are expected; bring suntan lotion if you plan to arrive early and be prepared for choppy waters if you're on one of the hundreds of boats that will fill the river. In case of inclement weather, the aerial show will be postponed for 24 hours.

The bombclouds bursting in air are launched from four barges in the river, located opposite the Veterans Memorial Building, Cobo Hall and Ford Auditorium.

"Each year, we carefully space the novelty shells so there's no lull in the show," says Art Wright, director of special events for Hudson's. "We don't want to have too long a gap without a racket, or the show will lose its momentum.

The fireworks display on the Detroit River is the centerpiece for the annual Freedom Festival in Detroit and Windsor. Over half a million people will line the water and peer from office building windows to watch the skyline erupt into color. Other events scheduled are the hydroplane races on Sunday, and Olympiad '79 — a meeting of theater groups from around the world who will be performing in town (see story on page 2D).

ON SATURDAY, it's back to the river and off to Belle Isle.

The Detroit Boat Club's International Rowing Regatta gets stroking at 8 a.m. Eight events will be run along the one-mile river course. Spectators can take in the action from the Belle Isle Bridge or the island's shoreline.

At 9 a.m. on the island a 10-mile run gets underway. At the same time municipal employees from Windsor and Detroit begin day-long competition in baseball and tennis events. You can't join in the fun unless you've already registered, but watchers are always welcome.

The kids' favorite Aesop fables will come to life on Saturday. The Melikin Puppet Theater will present such all-time favorites as "Androcles and the Lion" at the Hart Plaza pyramid. Free performances are set for 3, 3:45 and 4:30 p.m. this day, and for noon, 12:45, 1:30 and 2:15 p.m. Sunday.

For the old at heart — the very old at heart — the Ancient Fife and Drum Corps Music Muster will perform at Greenfield Village — also this day and the next. Admission to the village is $3.75 for adults and $1.75 for children.

SUNDAY, the mighty unlimited hydroplanes hold their annual race on the Detroit River, starting at noon. Interspersed with five heats of the unlimited race will be five heats of the Grand Prix Race, with hydroplanes about three-quarters the size of the "unlimiteds."

The three-mile unlimited course starts at the Roostertail night club and heads downriver to a turn near the Belle Isle bridge. Grand Prix boats run a smaller course with the west turn near the Whittier Hotel. Viewing is available all along the riverfront.

The unlimited hydroplanes are powered by World War II fighter plane engines with up to 3,000 horsepower. Their average lap speeds are 132 mph, with top speeds near 200 mph.

Also, as part of the annual meeting of the Antique and Classic Boat Society, there will be a parade of antique racing boats on display on the river between laps of the races. The antiques were built from 1921 to 1938 and include boats such as Miss America IX, the first boat to exceed 100 mph.

By bus ...

Don't feel like driving?

The Detroit Department of Transportation will run a shuttle bus service to the riverfront and back for the fireworks display on Friday.

Buses will leave from the Wonderland Center in Livonia (between gates 4 and 5) and from Northland Center in Southfield (lots C and D) starting at 5:30 p.m. Fare is 75 cents each way.

Passengers can disembark downtown along Jefferson between Randolph and Washington Boulevard. Return buses start operating along Jefferson immediately after the fireworks display. For more information, call DOT at 224-6400.

Elsewhere on Sunday will be the C.W. Dickerson Bugle, Fife and Drum Corps performing military music at noon in the Hart Plaza amphitheater, and a square and round dance, 2-5 p.m. in the ballroom of the Veterans Memorial Building. The dance is free and open to advanced dancers and beginners.

OTHER EVENTS in the Freedom Festival include:

- The annual Cinema Canada screenings of films produced by the National Film Board of Canada, free in Ford Auditorium. A documentary on Canada's endangered timber wolves will be shown at 3 and 6 p.m. Friday. Another eight short films will be shown at 2 and 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 3.
- A variety of free events in the Cultural Center area near Wayne State University on Tuesday. Alistair Cook's film series "America" starts at 9:45 a.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts. "Life Goes to the Movies," another series of films, starts at 11:30 a.m. in the Main Library. Other programs are at the Children's Museum, the Detroit Historical Museum, Center for Creative Studies and the Detroit Science Center.
- A two-hour concert of 18th and 19th century military music starts at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday on the parade grounds at Fort Wayne, Jefferson at the foot of Livernois. The fort gates will open at 6 p.m. for this free concert.
- Concerts throughout the festival by the 4,000-pound Pepsi Carillon -- billed as the world's largest and most valuable musical instrument -- at the Hart Plaza pylon.

Elsewhere . . .

The Willow Metropark near New Boston starts a new program of dancing with its fireworks program this weekend.

A new outdoor dance center is the location for square dancing 7:45-9:45 p.m. Fridays, starting tomorrow and running through July 27.

This weekend, The Phil Gram Orchestra will provide music for dancing 7:30-11 p.m. Saturday, and a fireworks display will be presented Sunday night starting around 9:45 p.m.

Willow is located off I-275. Exit at Bell Road and turn east on Willow Road to the park entrance.

The Huron-Clinton Metroparks are expecting the July 4 holiday to be on of their biggest if the weather is good. Groups of 50 or more are asked to notify the appropriate park office in advance so officials can suggest the best location.

Events are free, except for vehicle entry — $7 for an annual permit or $2 daily.

● KILLER TOMATOES?

Have you got the eggplant that ate Chicago? Or maybe an el primo peck of pickled peppers that once tasted Pittsburgh? Entry forms for the 1979 Michigan State Fair are available for entering exhibits in any of the fair's categories. Premium books detailing fees and requirements are available for community arts; fine arts; horse show; youth division (8-18); livestock; and everything else, which includes poultry, rabbits, pigeons, plants and wine.

To get any of them, write State Fairgrounds, Detroit 48203, or call 368-1000. Deadline for entries is Aug. 1, except for horses which have to be entered by July 25.

The Michigan State Fair, scheduled this year for Aug. 24 to Sept. 3, is the nation's oldest.

● DANCE THE NIGHT AWAY?

The Harbinger Dance Company is auditioning for male dancers and for male and female apprentices for the 1979-80 season. The group offers 36 weeks of salaried employment, free classes and a variety of performances. Auditions will be held at Harbinger's studios, 75 Victor in Highland Park, on July 15. Persons interested can call 883-1998 to register.

● 3 STRIKES YOU'RE OUT

An obscure song by the Blackholes making the rounds in Milwaukee these days, about a pitcher for the old Milwaukee Braves (now the Atlanta Braves), includes in its lyrics the philosophy that:

Three strikes you're out.
You argue with the umpire,
He throws you out.

Last we heard, the song was going nowhere on the charts. But keep it in mind if you head down to Tiger Stadium this week as Sparky Anderson keeps trying to put the fear of the minor leagues into the troops.

The Tigers are playing in town every day through next Thursday, 8 p.m. each night except 2:15 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Sunday (both against Cleveland). Most of the bleachers are closed off but nobody has messed with the hot dogs yet.

And if they lose again? Well, that's life.

● TICKETS, PLEASE

The Dearborn Summer Repertory Theater is soliciting tickets for its performances, which start next week and run through Aug. 19 in the Henry Ford Centennial Library on Michigan Avenue. Now in its eighth season, the group this year is perfoming "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," "Thurber Carnival" and "Underneath My One Most Favorite Tree." Performances are at 8:30 p.m. weekends. For ticket info, call 584-1200, ext. 263.

● AT THE YMCA

We're just surprised they waited so long. The Northwest Detroit YMCA, Seven Mile Road at Lahser, is sponsoring disco dances for kids 5:30-8:30 p.m. this Saturday. Parents will be admitted free if accompanied by a kid under 14 who pays $1. Dancing will be in the gym and gym shoes or socks are required.

● BOOGIE BOOSTER

The New Miami bar near Wayne State University in Detroit is hosting a benefit at 5 p.m. Sunday for Free Radio Now, a group trying to get stations to play more music by local musicians. Performing will be Cadillac Kidz, the Cubes, Flirt, Retro and the Ivories. Minimum donation is $2.50. The bar is at 3930 Cass Ave.

If you've got information about entertainment — around the corner or down the freeway — let us know about it. The address is Section 4, The Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Allow at least a week's notice for scheduled events.

Dance musical at the Attic

Other Things and Company's production for all ages, called "Yellow Bus 'N Stuff," is continuing at the Attic Theater at 1 p.m. this Sunday.

Other Things is a touring dance theater for children, which has performed in many area schools in the past two years.

"Yellow Bus 'N Stuff" is the story of a day in the life of a child, told through music, mime and movement. This performance is part of the Performing Arts Festival sponsored by the Attic. Tickets are available at the door.

Other Things will conduct summer performing arts camps in July. Members of the company will work with children in music, mime, dance and drama.

Downtown stages come alive for festival

Teatro Taller de Colombia, a performing group from Bogota, Colombia, will appear at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington before coming to Detroit to participate in Olympiad.

A major international theater festival, drawing performing groups from at least a dozen countries, is part of the 1979 International Freedom Festival activities.

Olympiad '79 will present virtually continuous performances noon-1 a.m. at the Hart Plaza amphitheaters and/or the Attic Theater, 525 E. Lafayette, in downtown Detroit.

Theater companies from Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Greece, Ireland, Japan, Portugal, Roumania, Scotland and possibly Poland will share the stage from this Saturday to July 8, with local companies. Also representing the United States will be the Howard University Theater Experience and the old Town Players from Vincennes, Ind.

The Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford was to have been a participant in Olympiad after winning a local stage competition, but some of the performers are off in summer stock work. It was be impossible to get the group back together, according to Pat Secor of the guild.

Hart Plaza performances, scheduled between noon-8 p.m., are free to the public, as are the open rehearsals which begin daily at 10 a.m. Admission is $2 to performances at the Attic Theater, which will be presented 6 p.m. to 1 a.m.

HOSTED BY the Detroit Metro Theater Council of the Detroit Recreation Department, the festival is being held in conjunction with the Canadian National Multicultural Festival, which will bring performing groups from five provinces to the area.

Olympiad '79 will focus on folk theater in honor of the International Year of the Child and stress folk material as an important aspect of child development. Barbara Winther, folklorist and specialist in the area of cross-cultural communication for children, will make the keynote presentation at 6 p.m., July 2, at the Attic Theater.

Olympiad '79 participants also will attend afternoon workshops at the Attic Theater on American Indian Music and Dance, Asian Theater Movement, Spolin Theater Games (improvisational technique) and Theater Techniques as practiced and presented by the international groups.

Aesop's tales will be told by the Melikin Puppet Theater of Chicago. Performances are free in Hart Plaza at 3:45 and 4:30 p.m. Saturday; and at noon, 12:45, 1:30 and 2:15 p.m. Sunday.

Rivera's working drawings — a find in the basement

By CORINNE ABATT

Since she began assembling archives for the Detroit Institute of Arts, Marilyn Ghausi of Bloomfield Hills has made some interestng finds.

But, none before — and probably none after — will rival her discovery of Diego Rivera's working drawings for his "Detroit Industry" frescoes. They are on the four walls of the inner fountain court in the museum's main building.

Mrs. Ghausi came to the museum in March of last year to organize the historical records. Intended to be a short term project, it was funded with a grant from the National Historical Publications and Records Committee (NHPRC).

It was an ideal job for her because in addition to seven years experience as an archivist, she had specialized in art history and American history at New York University's Institute of Fine Arts.

As of last October, the archives project was made a permanent museum department with a staff of two, Mrs. Ghausi and Claudia Hommel.

THE STEPS LEADING to the discovery of the drawings, called cartoons, a word that comes from the Italian "cartone"' meaning pasteboard, in retrospect, seem logical.

The idea to organize an archives came from the museum's Archives of American Art. The grant application was written from there.

Fortunately, Mrs. Ghausi had a background in both art and organizing archives. In her work at the museum she had established that the cartoons did exist from correspondence between Clyde Burroughs, then director of the museum, and Rivera. Burroughs asked if the museum could keep the preliminary drawings and Rivera responded affirmatively, making them a gift.

Up until last April the search to find the cartoons had been fruitless. But, on April 28, Mrs. Ghausi went into an enormous storage room looking for some architectural drawings.

"I crossed over to the opposite corner and I saw rolls eight and nine feet high wrapped in plain paper — there were no markings. I unrolled a shorter one on a table. As I did, it passed through my mind that this must be the Rivera cartoons. I opened the first one in a dark room and it was a thrilling moment," she said.

If she hadn't known what she was looking for, the cartoons might still be there, for the first marks she saw were sparse charcoal lines, not images.

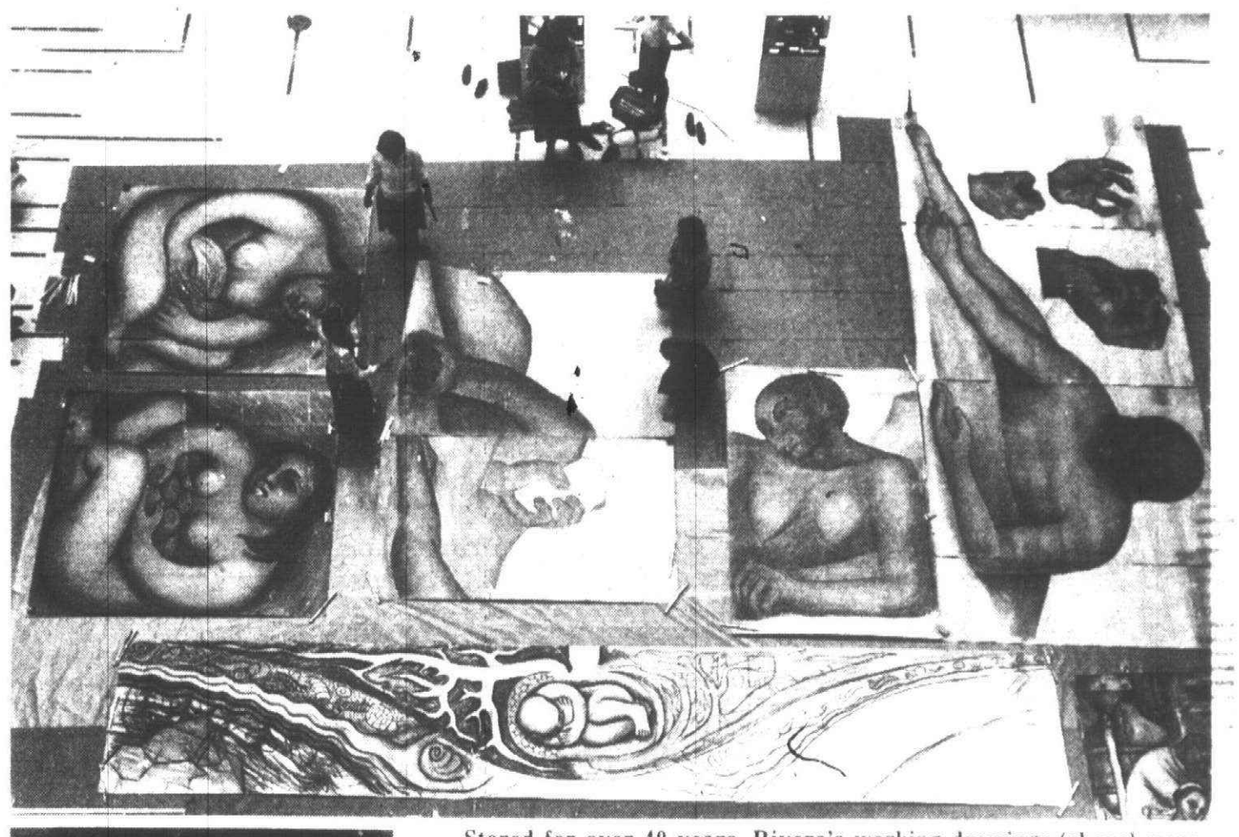
WHEN SHE RETURNED to tell the staff and they gathered to watch as the cartoons were unrolled on the floor of the North Court, Mrs. Ghausi said, "The pastel was so fresh, it was incredible. This was the first time they had been unwrapped in 46 years."

SHE ATTRIBUTES their generally excellent condition to the somewhat dark, air-conditioned, cool room and being well wrapped for storage.

The cartoons contain the drawings for nine of the total 27 panels. Some are charcoal, several are black, red and brown chalk. Rivera used his colors for the drawings of the two nude fertility figures — and with these he achieved a warm lush sepia.

Traditionally, fresco artists attached their working drawings to the walls and used them for tracing. Rivera, Mrs. Ghausi said, placed another sheet over these, traced on that and then transferred the lines to the walls.

"These cartoons are working drawings, not the same as the frescoes. There were some changes," she said.



Stored for over 40 years, Rivera's working drawings (above) were found to be in excellent condition when they were unrolled on the floor of the museum's garden court. They will be put on public exhibition in the early 1980s after undergoing restoration and preservation. Marilyn Ghausi (left) knew immediately what she had found in the museum's storage room.

"There was an exhibit of them in 1933 and then they disappeared."

The museum staff feels these are the only ones Rivera did. Satisfied with them he went ahead without making more. Apparently he decided he had the proper scale and approach and could work from his smaller sketches well enough.

ARTISTS CUSTOMARILY do the entire fresco on paper in the colors it will appear on the wall. Rivera, however, a master of his art, made a color chart for the chemist to follow for mixing pigments and left the rest to his own judgment. In frescoes the paint is applied while the specially prepared plaster is still wet. The artist must work quickly and surely before the paint dries and becomes part of the wall.

The cartoons were on public display for two days last week. The estimate is that it will take the conservation staff about a year, working full-time, to clean and mount them properly. Spacewise, they also present problems — the largest is nine feet high and 26 feet wide.

The next public showing of the cartoons will be during the 50th anniversary year of the Rivera frescoes in 1983.

While it might have been difficult for Mrs. Ghausi to come back to reality after her discovery of the drawings, she has succeeded.

She said that the boxing and labeling of 500 cubic feet of records in the north loft is completed and records from many of the various departments have been included.

"I have found some very beautiful architectural drawings of beaux arts architect Paul Cret," she said. "He designed the building and these are beautiful renderings and blueprints of the original building."

Controversy swirled around Rivera's work

By CORINNE ABATT

Looking at the Diego Rivera murals 43 years after they were completed, it's difficult to comprehend the controversy they once generated.

A motion was presented to the 1933 city council that the paintings be washed away. One of the daily papers suggested "Whitewashing" the walls as the answer.

His mural in Rockefeller Center was smashed to powder in 1934. It almost happened in Detroit. But, Rivera was a man of the working people. His sympathies had never wavered and it was the workers of Detroit who found their artist in Rivera.

THEY STREAMED into the museum to see his frescoes of "Detroit Industry." And they saw themselves as a part of the mechanical age, of the assembly lines, smelting furnaces and moulton steel.

Edsel Ford, who had donated $25,000 to pay for the work, defended the artist. And although Ford's statement was a gentle one, "I admire Rivera's work," it carried enough clout to quiet the dissenters and save the works.

Before the outcome was certain Rivera wrote, "If my Detroit murals are destroyed, I shall be profoundly distressed as I put into them a year of my life and the best of my talent, but tomorrow I shall be busy making others for I am not merely an artist, but a man performing his biological function of producing paintings . . .

Not only were the murals saved, but because of the foresight of several people, they are extraordinarily well documented — to the point where Rivera's presence is still in the garden court where he worked.

The latest, and major, addition to the documentation is the discovery of Rivera's full scale drawings or cartoons, for the project.

They were unrolled in the almost an acre floor of the north court last week, and placed on public exhibition briefly. Because the storage conditions had been favorable and because Rivera was an artist of gigantic proportions, these drawings are breathtaking.

PEOPLE WHO prefer drawings and sketches to finished oils because of the intimacy of the medium, would adore these.

The two sepia-toned drawings of the nude female figures, best seen from three floors up, are so total in their rounded composition and have such depth with so seemingly little effort that the viewer feels as though he is standing in the midst of the art process — which, indeed, he is.

Rivera kept a progress journal of the work on the Detroit murals and much of this is in the film, "The Age of Steel" made by Shelby Newhouse for the Ford Motor Co.'s 75th anniversary celebration last year. The film, which has been shown regularly at the museum, tells the story of the murals and includes interviews with several men who worked with Rivera on the project.

Fortunately, too, Edsel Ford had the making of the murals filmed in black and white. The film adds to the completeness of the documentation and parts of it were used in the Newhouse film.

So, not only are the murals well preserved at the Detroit Institute of Arts, but so are the materials directly related to them.

RIVERA WAS well aware of the diverse opinions his art could generate. He wrote down his belief that the artist must be "concerned with all problems of social struggle . . . " and he wad delighted with the Detroit commission and the opportunities it provided to visit the automobile plants and related industries, to sketch the workers in action and to tell their story.

In Rivera's hands, faces of workers, American and Mexican, take on nobility. Often, in his murals of Mexican history and life, those who exploited the downtrodden have animal characteristics. He didn't feel the need to do that here, but his unpardonable offense in New York City was to include a portrait of Lenin.

Even Nelson Rockefeller, who was instrumental in persuading Rivera to accept the Radio City commission, felt compelled to question a portrait of Lenin in a public building. Although Rivera had embraced communism in the early years it was more the ideology than the practice, he later became as critical of the Russian leaders as he was of any others he felt guilty of wrongdoing.

From the Wine Press

by Richard Watson

How to judge the jug wines

The typical wine shopper, needing volume more than finesse as he often does, approaches the jug wine selections, if he is wise with some trepidation.

Facing him are an almost too generous number of choices, ranging from names rather well known to some rather esoteric labels.

Making a good choice is important. While they are not costly, per se, the sheer quantity involved makes a bad choice hard to live with. After all, there is little so large as a bad bottle of wine or so small as a good one.

First, the nomenclature. If the name is generic (referencing a region rather than a grape) as most will be, it doesn't matter whether it is called Burgundy, Red, Chablis, Rhine, White, Chianti, Rose or whatever.

The name means nothing (except color designation) and there is no way to know the kind of grapes that went into the bottle. Perhaps that is best. But you do know that what you are buying is a blend of assorted variation (and perhaps vintages,), but the blend is one that appeals to the producer. And, short of tasting experience, that is the only guide you have, except price.

In general it would, accordingly, be advisable to stick with a good, dependable producer rather than a totally unfamiliar name. But there are so many familiar names that produce jug wines — CK Mondavi (Krug), Almaden, Sebastiani, Masson, Gallo, Los Hermanos (Beringer), Mondavi, Pedroncelli, Souvein Parducci, Inglenook — the list goes on.

Recently a comparative tasting of California jug wines was held by a class dedicated to studying California Reds. The results are reported as a guide to you in your quest for a dependable jug wine:

Sebastiani Mtn. Burgundy, Rank 1, Mean Score 3.65, voted first 4, voted last 0; Parducci '74 Burgundy, Rank 2, Mean Score 3.74, voted first 5, voted last 1; Inglenook Navalle Burgundy, Rank 3, Mean Score 4.26; voted first 1, voted last 0; Colony Burgundy, Rank 4, Mean Score 4.71, voted first 1, voted last 2; Zanetti Burgundy, Rank 5, Mean Score 5.29, voted first 0, voted last 2; Pedroncelli Sonoma Red, Rank 6, Mean Score 5.82, voted first 1, voted last 1; Zanetti Burgundy, Rank 7, Mean Score 6.18, voted first 4, voted last 2; Mondavi Red table, Rank 8, Mean Score 6.47, voted first 0, voted last 2; Gallo Hearty Burgundy, Rank 9, Mean Score 6.88, voted first 1, voted last 4; Masson Baroque Burgundy, Rank 10, Mean Score 8.00, voted first 0, voted last 3.

The Friedman Ranks analysis, of Variance was applied to these scores to test the level of significance of these differences.

The analysis produced a chi-square value of 34.145, which is significant beyond the .001 level of confidence. No paired comparisons were run but at this level it is apparent that the preferred group, say the top three, easily exceed consistently the bottom three.

A note on the Zanetti, it was poured into two sets of glasses. They all came from the same jug. Interesting.

The results suggest some stereotypes need reviewing. The famed Gallo Hearty Burgundy did very badly, and "predictable" Masson had a bit of a disaster. And the prestigious Mondavi Red Table Wine, generally well respected in the trade, didn't do well, exceeded by both samples of the $4 a gallon Zanetti. Most of the other wines cost $4 — $4.79 a magnum locally. The relative strength of the Colony (at less than $3.50 a magnum) was also a surprise. That Sebastiani and Parducci did well should surprise no one.

Jug wines are one of California's unique contributions to the world of wines, offering as they frequently do, excellent value for cost. Perhaps this tasting report can serve as a guide to your expanding experience in every day wine drinking. The results suggest strongly that the difference between the better and poorer are worth seeking out.

Symphony plans tour of Europe

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra leaves Sunday, Oct. 28, for a 34-day tour of major European cities and music capitals.

Twenty-four concerts will be given in eight countries, all under the direction of Antal Dorati, the orchestra's music director. This tour is the symphony's first overseas trip and represents a major step toward the goal of achieving international recognition and status.

The first concert of the tour will be presented in Barcelona's Paulau de la Music on Tuesday evening, Oct. 30. A second will be given the following evening. Then the orchestra will go to Madrid for its final date in Spain.

The concert schedule includes: Berlin, Hannover, Stuttgart, Ludwigshafen am Rhein, Frankfurt, Bonn, Munich, Braunschweig and Dusseldorf, West Germany; Brussels, Belgium; London, England; Stockholm and Uppsala, Sweden; Bergen, Oslo and Sandefjord, Norway; Paris, France; and Zurich, Lausanne, Basel and Geneva, Switzerland.

For Dorati, the visits to London and Stockholm will make special homecomings because he holds the post of conductor laureate of the Royal Philharmonic in London and was, for many years, music director of the Stockholm Philharmonic.

Appearing as guest artist with the orchestra in London, Paris and Berlin will be Yejudi Menuhin, violinist. Menuhin was born in New York City of Russian parents. He made his concert debut at the age of 7. He recently won a German peace prize for using music "to bring closer people, races, cultures and civilizations." He will receive this award Oct. 14 in Frankfurt.

Complete tour programs, as well as details of corporate concert sponsorships and available Detroit Symphony Orchestra board and sponsor tour packages, will be announced soon.

Carillonneur salutes holiday

Christ Church carillonneur Beverly Buchanan will play an all-patriotic program at 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 4.

The second annual free recital will pay tribute to America and its musical heritage. Programs will be at the front door of the church or across Lone Pine in the Cranbrook Gardens booth.

Included in selections honoring Independence Day will be "My Country 'tis of Thee," "God Bless America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Carillon bells will also ring out with the rousing "Washington Marches, I, II, and III," "Dixie," "You're a Grand Old Flag" and "Yankee Doodle."

Also on the holiday program will be "God Bless America," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "America the Beautiful."

An afternoon highlight will be a duet arrangement of John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," played by Ms. Buchanan and her son, Brian, a Michigan State University student.

State Bar forms section on arts

Fostered by a growing interest in the fine arts by both lawyers and the public, commissioners of the State Bar of Michigan have authorized creation of a section on the arts. Arthur James Rubiner has been elected its first chairman.

Rubiner said that the principal function of this section is to form a technical expertise bank which will be available to the art community, including visual and performing arts, individual artists, as well as organized art councils and similar organizations.

He said the section on the arts will assist in areas such as the corporate formation of arts councils, their legal status, lease arrangements, and exhibitions.

It will also aid individual artist in gallery contracts, grant applications, security arrangements (similar to a mortgage) for work in the hands of dealers; copyright and reproduction rights, zoning, advertising, and practically everything else that may affect legal relationships of artists.

Rubiner said that the section also hopes to develop expertise among lawyers who counsel artists and art groups.

For more information on the services of the section on the arts, contact Philip Spelman, State Bar of Michigan, 306 Townsend, Lansing, 48933, or call (517) 372-9030 or (313) 356-6302.

Sunday brunch concerts go domestic

Each Sunday through July, the Detroit Institute of Arts' Brunch With Bach chamber concerts will present a month-long salute to American Art forms.

Two concerts will be offered each Sunday, at new times — 10 and 11:30 a.m. — in the museum's enclosed Kresge Court. Seating will begin 20 minutes before performance.

The July schedule will include:

• July 1 - Detroit folk singer, Phil Marcus Esser will perform "Songs About America."

• July 8 - Dave Wilborn, one of the original McKenney's Cotton Pickers, leads a 5-piece combo in hot Dixieland music.

• July 15 - The Original Bluegrass Opera presents the story in words and music about a country family that moves to Detroit.

• July 22 - James Dapogny, solo jazz pianist, performs the spectrum from ragtime to Jelly Roll Morton to late swing style.

• July 29 - Soprano Suzanne LaCroix and pianist Martin Burwell present "The Girl on The Flying Trapeze," a program of popular American song.

Tickets at $5.50, $4 and $2 may be purchased through the museum ticket office. Advance reservations are required. It is suggested that children less than 5 years old are too young to attend.

Institute marks 1st moon landing

Cranbrook Institute of Science will celebrate the 10th anniversary of man's first landing on the moon, July 20, 1969, with two workshops open to all interested persons.

"Apollo 11 Revisited," 7-9 p.m. on July 10, 12 and 17, will use the institute's planetarium and observatory for discussion of myths and facts, early space explorations and Apollo findings. Lunar samples on loan from NASA may be viewed.

Fee is $18 for one workshop, $30 for both. Registration is required. For more information, call 645-3230.

Silent film star in Channel 56 series

Harold Lloyd, the comic genius from the silent film days of Hollywood, returns to Channel 56 in a series that features many of his greatest works including early one-reelers never before seen on television. The first 2½-hour installment will be seen Saturday at 9 p.m.

The rest of the series, comprised of 30-minute programs, will alternate every other Saturday at 7:30 p.m. with "Sneak Previews."

The last hour on the program will be the 1924 comedy "Girl Shy." In this movie, bashful Lloyd hopes to make his fortune by writing a how-to book on lovemaking when he learns that the rich girl he is secretly in love with is about to marry a scheming bigamist.

Other movies by this comedy legend to be featured in coming weeks will include "Safety Last," "The Cat's Paw," "Speedy," "For Heaven's Sake" and "The Kid Brother."

Bus rides available to parks

SEMTA and the Detroit Department of Transportation are providing bus service to five area Metroparks, Belle Isle and the Detroit Zoo. The special summer bus service will be available through Oct. 31.

The buses will be in operation weekdays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.; and 6-9 p.m.; weekends between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Roundtrip fare for bus service to any of the Metroparks, Belle Isle or the Detroit Zoo is $1.10 per person, prepaid, and $1.25, in cash, per person if paid the day of the trip.

Five area Matroparks — Metropolitan Beach, Kensington Park, Lower Huron Park, Stoney Creek Park and Willow Park — offer a range of activities including biking, hiking, sports, swimming, picnic areas and nature trails. Group admission rates to the Detroit Zoo are available Monday through Friday at $14 per bus.

The special summer bus service is designed to be used by groups. For service, a group representative is asked to call a central dispatch number to make a trip request. The dispatcher needs to know the preferred destination, the number of people making the trip, the preferred pick up and delivery time and the preferred date.

A minimum of 25 individuals is required for a trip to be scheduled. Groups or individuals should expect to share a bus with other groups going to the same destination.

Groups requesting the service are asked to call in advance, 48 hours in advance for weekday outings.

If the trip begins in Detroit, call the Detroit Department of Transportation at 224-1550. If the trip begins in the suburbs, call SEMTA at 362-1160 or 362-1161.

Jazz at DIA on radio

Broadcasts of the Detroit Institute of Arts' "Jazz at the Institute" concerts will be heard on four Michigan public radio stations this summer.

Beginning July 6 and running through Sept. 29, a 13-week series of taped concerts will be aired.

Performances from the museum's 1978 and 1979 concert series will be used for the two-hour programs.

The shows will be hosted by Gary Laehn, a jazz producer for WKAR-FM, East Lansing.

Production and distribution of the "Jazz at the Institute" programs is made possible by funding from the state of Michigan for museum statewide services.

WDET-FM Detroit - 101.9, Satuardays at 3 p.m

WUOM-FM Ann Arbor - 91.7, Saturdays at 11:30 p.m.

The second season of opera highlights has begun on Saturdays on WIID-AM (1090).

The program, 1-2 p.m., is an informal look into some of the most famous operas. Hosts are Dino Valle and Catherine Grimshaw, both professional opera singers, who try to explain the background of each work and point out its unique aspects.

June 30: "The Abduction from the Seraglio" by Mozart. July 7: "Don Carlos" by Verdi. July 14: "Norma" by Bellini. July 21: "Die Fliegende Hollander" by Wagner. July 28: "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini.

Aug. 4: "Thais" by Massenet. Aug. 11: "The Student Prince" by Romberg. Aug. 18: "Lucia di Lammermoor" by Donizetti. Aug. 25: "Salome" by Strauss.

Sept. 1: "La Boheme" by Puccini. Sept. 8: "The Magic Flute" by Mozart. Sept. 15: "The Bartered Bride" by Semtana. Sept. 22: "La Juive" by Halevy. Sept. 29: "La Sonnambula" by Bellini.

YW Tennis open to public

The YWCA tennis house will be opened this summer for community use at Northwest Branch YWCA, 25940 Grand River, Redford Township.

Summer fees for court time are $5 per hour per court. There is a 50-cent admission charge for non-YWCA members. The tennis house will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Permanent court time is available, and tennis lessons will be conducted for all age groups.

DON'T PAINT YOUR FENCE.

Paint covers wood's natural beauty. Whereas, Olympic Stain enhances wood's natural texture and beauty. And, it gives wood the protection it deserves! So if you have beautiful new wood to finish, do it with Olympic Stain!

INVEST YOUR WORK, TIME AND MONEY IN A HABITANT FENCE THAT WILL LAST & LAST & LAST

Many fences sold locally are made from spruce and other woods which have a very limited lifetime outdoors — even when painted or stained. Habitant fences are manufactured from northern white cedar — a wood which has a natural resistance to rot and decay, much like pressure treated wood. It will last 5 to 6 times as long as spruce or other untreated white woods. It costs a little more but ITS WORTH IT!!!

By CORRINE ABATT

With an approach that's a cross between evangelistic and businesslike, Susan Babb promotes and sells art.

The 33-year-old Troy resident, determined to develop an appreciation for contemporary (mostly young) Michigan artists, squares off against galleries which intimidate browsers and bluntly spells out the need to educate potential art buyers.

"I'm an educator," she said. "I've gone into being an art agent to communicate to the public that we have quality art in Michigan, and it is available.

"I've gone into many galleries and if you don't look like you have money to spend, they don't ask if you're interested."

While she was matter-of-factly denouncing some galleries, she singled out Gertrude Kasle, who formerly had a contemporary gallery in the Fisher Building, for praise.

"She would tell you about the artists, answer questions and let you look through her books."

TRAINED AS A TEACHER for the emotionally impaired, at one time she taught classes at the Cranbrook Museum of Academy of Art Museum. That's how she became acquainted with some of the artists whose work she now handles.

In all she represents 15 sculptors, painters and weavers. Most have graduate degrees and beyond. Valerie Dearing, fibers, is on the faculty at Central Michigan University. Elissa Olenych, painter, teaches at Albion and received her masters in fine arts at Cranbrook. Photographer Nick Lauer teaches photography at Roeper School. Sculptor Jeff Spaulding, who teaches at Albion, has his masters from the University of Pennsylvania.

Spaulding, Ms. Dearing and Ms. Olenych are also on the faculty of the Blisswood summer art program sponsored by Albion College at Good Hart north of Petoskey.

Some of the others Ms. Babb represents are Ken Fadeley, Cranbrook-trained sculptor; Jim Rutkowski, Birmingham Indian and antique collector and contemporary artist; and Suzanne Carol Kanyha, painter, who recently completed her degree at Marygrove.

Ms. Babb knows her artists well enough to talk about their work from a personal point of view.

"There are a lot of artists I turn down because I can't relate to their pieces," she said. "And I have to have a good relationship with an artist if I'm going to be the business manager."

"I'm interested in very contemporary art — I don't want to look at barns or Sunday painters," she said. "These people I represent are educated, they can paint barn scenes, but they have moved beyond that."

So far, Ms. Babb has been selling through designers, architects and builders, being careful to differentiate 'designer art" from "quality Michigan art." She shows the slides she carries in a notebook, talks about the artists, finds out what the person might be interested in seeing and works from there.

"Builders," she said, "want to hear about money, benefits and tax-write-offs. Other people will frequently ask if they can get a deal. I ask 'can you get a deal from a dentist?' "

SHE WON'T CUT PRICES for anyone, nor will she barter. Ms. Babb said the art she has is modestly and fairly priced and her commission, 20 percent, is far less than most galleries.

In her sales-education talk, she has answered many questions that indicate to her that most people have a narrow view of artists. She frequently has to explain that these are working people who have studied for many years to be able to produce that art. They aren't dilettantes, hippies or people who failed at other jobs.

She said she runs into the attitude that if they haven't shown in New York, they can't be very good.

Her answer to that is, "These people live and work here in Michigan."

While she is happy with what she's doing now, Ms. Babb added, "Who's to say that in three or four years, I might not have my own gallery?"

The Raven

More folk, and some magic, in July at the coffeehouse

The folk and blues of David MacKenzie, with magic and comedy by Mark Kornhauser will be presented Thursday-Sunday, July 5-8, at the Raven Gallery in Southfield.

Showtimes will be Thursday and Sunday at 9:30 p.m.; Friday and Saturday at 9:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. The Raven is located at 29101 Greenfield. For reservations call 557-2622.

David MacKenzie writes about the perils of uptown hotels and the boredom of turnpike driving. His strength is in his laid-back humor and the power of his lyrics.

His songs have been recorded by the likes of Kittie Moffat and David Soul but no one interprets a MacKenzie song like David himself. He calls Chicago home and the rest of the country is his backyard.

AND SOMETIMES, when he's sitting there on stage, you get the feeling that he is in a backyard, perhaps in the shade of an oak, performing for his friends.

Raised in St. Louis, MacKenzie hung out with his older cousins who listened to Fats Domino, Little Richard and Chuck Berry, who have had obvious effects on his style.

He began singing professionally at age 13. Since then, he has written and played country, blues, rock and roll, jazz and ragtime, plus folk.

David was "seriously discovered," as he puts it, by Frank Zappa's manager one night in a Chicago club. He's been on the road ever since sharing the stage with the Amazing Rhythm Aces, Jimmy Buffet, Crystal Gayle, B. B. King, Meatloaf, Taj Mahal, Randy Newman, Muddy Waters and countless others.

"Being a musician is an acquired skill, like being able to lay bricks," he says.

MARK KORNHAUSER is part of the new wave of up-and-coming magicians around the country. He began practicing magic as a child in Detroit and performed his first show at age 14.

But magic became secondary while he studied for his B.A. in psychology at the University of Michigan. Shortly after graduation he became a teacher of the Transcendental Meditation program and was a traveling lecturer for five years.

"The real secrets of magic are psychological. A magician simply sees a little bit into how the mind works and uses that understanding to provide entertainment. This psychological aspect is what makes magic so uniquely charming. People are finding out that watching a magic show can be one of the most pleasant and uplifting experiences that one can have."

In 1977 Kornhauser won the Chicago International Brotherhood of Magicians' annual platform contest, and he was selected by the city of Chicago's "Arts Alive" program to be a performing artist.

HE HAS PRODUCED and performed a full-length magical-musical-comedy for children and has performed large illusion shows at Treasure Island amusement park in Miami, and B-Ginnings, Clayton House, Aragon Ballroom and Harry Hope's in Chicago.

At the Bridge-Vu Theatre in Valparaiso, Ind., Mark was the opening act for Tommy James and the Shondells and also for Tammy Wynette. Included in his credits is having produced and emceed the Doug Henning magic show in Chicago. Kornhauser is currently appearing at Detroit's Bob-Lo Island Amusement Park.

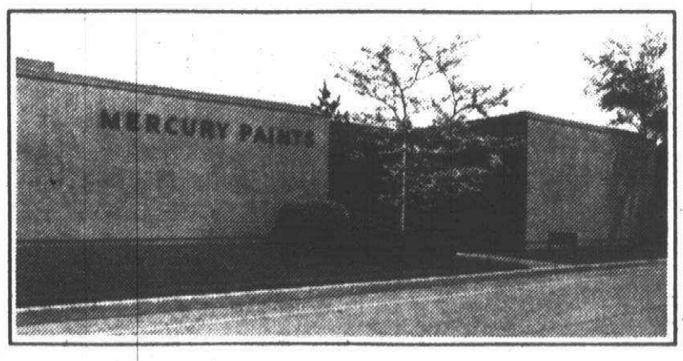
We got started back in 1919

GRAND OPENING

60 years later there's more of us to love.

We knew it when our first store opened back in 1919; this was the start of something big. Because no matter how much a product may change over the years, people's needs remain pretty much the same.

So when you visit a Mercury Paint Company factory store today (or our beautiful new 56,000 sq. ft. modern plant), you'll see complete lines of first quality architectural paints and related supplies; a staff of experts to help handle your individual needs.



And underneath it all you'll see the knowledge and experience that only comes with 60 years of serving a community.

Now if this sounds like the kind of company you like—or maybe even love—doing business with, we have more good news: there are now five Mercury Paint Company factory-branches serving metropolitan Detroit, plus a large dealer in Flint. Which is our way of taking a good thing. . .and making it better.

VERY DESIRABLE BRIGHTON AREA

Less that three miles from City of Brighton, ten minutes from access to U.S. 23 and I-96 freeways.

Oak-stained rough-sawn cedar paneling and 2 lovely winding staircases, plus 2 uniquely designed imposing fireplaces express a feeling of grace and warmth.

Two-story high cedar-beamed cathedral ceilinged living room has 36 ft. long cedar balcony overlooking large outdoor pool, lanai and cedar stockade.

At the end of a quarter mile treed private lane, all on the property, this indescribably beautiful home could never be duplicated anywhere, nor could its surroundings. Its cedar shake roof with the four perfectly scaled dormers, is in itself a masterpiece.

If you are looking for a one-of-its-kind hideaway estate in the $300,000 range, please phone me at 313-1-229-8600 during business hours, Monday through Saturday or 1-227-7333, evenings or Sunday.

My dear wife, the inspiration for this custom fashioned 1970 home, died tragically last November. I have finally decided to dispose of the home, complete with all furnishings, appliances, utensils, tableware, linens, etc., all hand selected and of finest quality, so the new family can ease right into ready made luxury.

There is much more of interest to tell about this secluded, one of a kind estate that would add to its value, enjoyment and charm.

612 In Memoriam

In memory of Ben H. Starkey who passed away July 9, 1978

He came to the end of a journey,
He came to a closed green door,
Where a new path led, from a narrow bed
To the land he was longing for.

He who had grown so weary
Was suddenly lifted up
To the high blue hills, where Heaven spills
From a kind Gods silver cup.

He came to the end of a journey
And we could not bid him stay
Tho we shed sad tears, that for endless years
He would never pass away.

Our lives were filled with beauty
And beauty will never end
For the one whose gift, to the world's uplift
Was my brother, companion and friend.

Loretta Bringold
Sister, and Nephews
