Canton exceeds sewer capacity by 3%

A recent report from the Wayne County Board of Public Works says Canton is using more sewer capacity than its purchase agreement with the county allows.

Engineer Robert Wade has advised township officials to "do something" about the problem or face a possibile state or county-imposed ban on additional tap-ins to the sewer system.

His recommendations include a reduction in the number of sewer tap-ins allowed by Canton Township and the renewal of negotiations for surrounding communities' excess sewer capacity.

Supervisor Noel Culbert said township attorneys are researching the legality of denying site plans and subdivision plats on the basis of the sewer problem.

THE TOWNSHIP'S dwindling sewer capacity has been a topic of discussion for years.

However, the Sept. 14 report from the board of public works is the first official notification that Canton has actually exceeded its purchased sewer capacity by 3 percent.

Wade said the report coincides with the findings of his firm — Wade, Trim & Associates.

"Our findings are so close to the county's that I've got to believe they saw our figures," he said.

Wade said the DNR holds the power to ban additional tap-ins to the sewer system for health, safety and welfare reasons. The Wayne County Board of Public Works can veto extensions of the sewer system for subdivisions or other large developments.

Wade expressed doubt, however, that such a moratorium would be imposed on Canton in the near future.

He said several communities have exceeded their purchased sewer capacity by a greater percentage than Canton.

According to the county report, the City of Plymouth has exceeded its purchased capacity by 66 percent, Plymouth Township by 43 percent, Northville Township by 92 percent and the City of Northville by 49 percent.

A total of 10 communities in the Rouge Valley Wastewater Control System have exceeded their purchased sewer capacity. Six municipalities are using less than their purchased allotment.

"It's a warning," Wade said of the county report. "But they're not ready to use the big stick yet."

Wade says steps should be taken now to ease the sewer problem until a proposed regional system known as "super sewer" is built.

Completion of "super sewer," which is still in the planning stage, is not expected for at least five years.

Wade has cautioned township officials that a state or county-imposed moratorium on sewer tap-ins could lead to "chaotic growth." He predicts that developers would build only in areas where septic systems could be used.

The engineer has recommended a township policy that would limit the number of site plans and subdivision plats that could be approved.

Canton officials are not sure if Wade's recommendations would stand up in court, however.

According to Culbert, Township Attorney Dave Berry indicated last winter that Canton lacked the authority to deny development on the basis of sewer capacity.

The supervisor said Berry is continuing his research on the matter and is expected to deliver a written opinion within the next few weeks.

WADE HAS ALSO recommended that township officials renew their negotiations for the purchase of sewer capacity from a community which is using less than its allotment.

Culbert said Canton officials have discussed the matter with Westland in the past, but nothing ever came of the negotiations.

Wade said additional sewer capacity must be purchased from another community in the Rouge Valley Wastewater System, since all capacity has been sold to municipalities by the Wayne County Board of Public Works.

Wade said Westland is using only 41 percent of its purchased sewer capacity. Other communities which are using less than their allotment include Van Buren Township at 25 percent of capacity, Livonia at 79 percent and Garden City at 77 percent.

According to Wade, Canton agreed to

Paperboy wounded by arrow

A 12-year-old newspaper carrier was taken to Garden City Osteopathic Hospital Friday afternoon after a 13-year-old boy armed with a bow and arrow shot the child in the head, Canton police said.

Police said the victim was released from the hospital after receiving seven stitches in his forehead.

Police said the incident occurred about 4:25 p.m. Friday following an argument between the two boys, who were acquaintances. The 13-year-old told police that the incident was an accident.

The victim's parents are not pressing charges, according to police.

Police would not release the names of either boy.

Putting on the dog

Canton Rotary Club member Orren Hall comforts Dalmations Ryder and Connie, who claim they have a great dog act going, but aren't allowed to participate in the Rotary's stage show. The show, scheduled for 8 p.m. Oct. 5 and 6 at the Salem High School auditorium, will have plenty of other talent. Acts such as a barbershop quartet, banjo players, singers, dancers, guitarists and comedians will be featured in the talent show. Tickets at $3 each are available from any Rotary member, most Canton bank branches or by calling 455-3590. The dogs, by the way, are owned by Carolyn Tkacz. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Site plans still roll in despite tap-in question

Developers are still tapping on the door of the Canton Planning Department despite the knowledge that water service may not be available when their proposed projects are built.

Although new site plan applications are being accepted, township planner Jim Kosteva says his department is informing all developers of the uncertain water situation.

So far, no developers have turned away or dropped their applications.

Earlier this month, the Michigan Health Department indicated that it would not approve any water line extensions or tap-ins for large water users in either Canton Township or Westland. The decision was prompted by the low water pressure problems that both communities have experienced.

Canton engineer Robert Wade believes the state will not lift the restrictions entirely until the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department constructs the proposed Stark Road main in Livonia.

Township Supervisor Noel Culbert says Canton and Westland will file a joint lawsuit against Detroit if the city does not accept the offer of the two municipalities to finance the $2 million cost of building the main by the end of next week.

THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT'S moratorium against new water line extensions does not apply to developers who had submitted site plan applications by mid-September.

Proposed Canton developments that are exempt from the ban include six residential subdivisions, 30 commercial buildings and one apartment complex.

But Kosteva says that developers of at least three proposed projects that are not included on the exempt list have submitted site plan applications since the moratorium was announced.

These include the developer of a proposed shopping center at the southwest corner of Ford and Sheldon, the developer of a Ram's Horn restaurant on Ford near I-275, and the developer of a proposed industrial facility on Koppernick near I-275.

Kosteva expects several other developers will submit site plan applications within the next few weeks.

All of them have been informed of the state moratorium.

"We can allow them through the site plan review process. But we have to be up front with them," Kosteva said.

According to Wade, water tap-ins for some new developments may be allowed by the state. The criteria for approval or disapproval will involve water use predictions for the new development.

No water line line extensions for new subdivisions or other large developments will be allowed, however.

WADE COMPARES the warning given to developers on water availability to another warning concerning sewer line tap-ins.

For the last several years, developers have been told that sewer tap-ins may not be allowed once their proposed projects are built because of Canton's dwindling purchased sewer capacity.

Earlier this month, the Wayne County Board of Public Works announced that Canton had exceeded its purchased sewer capacity by 3 percent. The county and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources are empowered to impose moratoriums on sewer line extensions and tap-ins.

"But the language of the water warning is much stronger than the sewer warning," Wade said. "We tell them that sewer service may not be available. For water service, we tell them that it probably won't be."

Wade believes the Michigan Health Department will lighten its water restrictions in about a year once a proposed water transmission line is constructed on Morton Taylor between Joy and Palmer. The line is expected to cost Canton Township $1½ million.

But Wade does not believe that the moratorium will be lifted entirely until Detroit constructs the Stark Road main in Livonia.

Township officials maintain that Detroit has not built the main because of a pending lawsuit filed by suburban communities over unilateral sewer rate increases.

ESY split sessions promoted

Parents slam teachers' letter

A letter promoting split day school sessions as a means to make up days lost due to the teacher strike has been distributed to parents by teachers in Plymouth-Canton ESY (extended school year) schools.

The letter, signed by "The ESY Teachers of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools," maintains that a proposal made by the school board in which nine days will be added at the end of three tracks would be more disruptive than the teachers' proposal.

(Track D is unaffected because those students were not scheduled to be in class during the strike and won't have to make up the days.)

The school calendar is a negotiable item. An agreement has been reached that traditional schools (on nine month schedules) will make up the nine days missed during the strike on Oct. 19, Oct. 22, Nov. 8, Nov. 9, Jan. 2, March 14, May 23, June 12, June 13 and June 16.

A method of making up the days at ESY schools (nine weeks in school, three weeks out) is one of the items scheduled for discussion at a factfinder meeting planned for this Friday.

Some parents were disturbed by the letter and attended Monday night's school board meeting to voice objections to what they termed "propaganda."

"I do not think the two proposals are the only ones available," said Plymouth resident Louise Townley.

She added, "I feel the proposal for split sessions is the least favorable."

In the letter sent to parents, the two alternatives were listed as Proposal A and Proposal B.

Proposal A, advocated by the teachers, would continue the school calendar now in effect until June 6. Students would then take a three-day break and all tracks would attend school in split sessions for the next eight weeks.

Proposal B, recommended by the school board (but not necessarily its only alternative) would involve adding nine more days to the end of the three tracks, then busing students in track C to a traditional school which would be finished with regular classes.

School Supt. John Hoben said split sessions would not be looked upon favorably by state officials as long as there would be time to make up the sessions.

Another parent in the audience called the letter a "prejudiced piece of garbage" and said she had heard rumors that the teachers were planning to stay out of school Sept. 28 if the split session plan is not adopted.

Sept. 28 is the day on which the state counts attendance at schools and compute state funds for the district based on the number of children in school.

School board president Thomas Yack said he had not heard the rumor and added that the board did not even know about the letter until Monday, unless members had received it earlier because they are parents in an EYS area.

Board Treasurer Stephen Harper questioned how teachers obtained a master list of parents' names and addresses in order to send the letters. "I thought the master list of addresses was not to be given out."

Hoben said the list was not given out.

Parents also told the board they hoped to find out what the decision concerning the make-up days would be as soon as possible. In addition to discussion of ESY make-up days, factfinder George Gullen, of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission, will meet with both administration and Plymouth-Canton Education Association negotiators to decide how recommended salary increases are to be interpreted.

Michigan Education Association representative Trav Griffin Monday asked the board to direct administration negotiators to attend the scheduled Friday meeting, saying, "We don't know as of tonight if we have a meeting." Yack told Griffin the board couldn't act on information from the MEA claiming Gullen was in some doubt that he would be directed to attend the meeting.

Yack said the board has no wish to prolong ratification agreement on the yet-to-be settled teacher's contract and that negotiators intended to show up.

The two major issues to be settled before the contract is printed for ratification are the ESY makeup days and exact interpretation of Gullen's money settlement.

Neihengen wins commission seat

She will fill the unexpired term of former planning commissioner Dan Richardson, who resigned earlier this month for personal reasons. Richardson's term expires Dec. 31, 1981.

"I'm objective, I can make decisions, and I'm a good listener," said Ms. Neihengen, 32, after her appointment was confirmed by the township board.

"I see the planning commission as one of the most important parts of township government. They're a screening agency. They see first what builders and developers want to bring in."

Ms. Neihengen, a four-year resident of Canton Township, is a former member of the Fellows Creek Subdivision Civic Association, past president of the Eriksson School PTO and a former board member of the Plymouth Children's Nursery. She is a Hulsing School representative to the Plymouth-Canton Schools' PTO Council.

Ms. Neihengen was among the candidates considered last summer for a vacant seat on the township board. Trustee Stephen Larson was named to fill the position left vacant by former Trustee Lynne Goldsmith, who resigned.

The planning commission reviews site plats, subdivision plats and other zoning matters and submits its recommendations to the township board.

Plymouth area exceeds sewer capacity

Plymouth and Plymouth Township are using more sewer capacity than agreed to with the county, according to a report from the Wayne County Public Works Department.

The township is above its capacity by 43 percent and the city has exceeded its limit by 66 percent.

In the township, at least, township engineer Michael Bailey said he's not worried — yet.

"I kind of take that letter from the county as putting us on notice that we're among communities in the system that are at or exceeding their capacity," he said.

Both city engineer Ken West and DPW director Ken Vogras were unavailable for comment this week as they were at a convention in Oregon.

In a Sept. 14 letter from the county's public works department, Plymouth and Plymouth Township were named among 10 municipalities that were at or above their sewer purchase capacity in the Rouge Valley Wastewater Control System.

The remaining six municipalities in the system are under capacity. The entire system is at about 84 percent of its capacity.

Bailey said the county, as yet, has not directed the township to do anything about its excessive use of the system.

He added, however, that the township could be banned from future sewer tie-ups or could be required to purchase more capacity within the system.

IN A LETTER sent by the county's chief engineer James Hamilton, he wrote both are possibilities for communities that exceed their purchased sewer capacity but only after a "final determination."

Before any of this takes place, Bailey said the county's figures will have to be substantiated.

Man found dead near RR tracks

A 64-year-old Plymouth man, who fell dead near the C&O Railroad tracks Monday, died of a heart attack.

Hurley Mitchem, 64, of Plymouth, collapsed Monday while enroute to work. The Wayne County Medical Examiner's office has determined that a heart attack was the cause of death.

Mitchem, a striking welder repairman at Bathey Manufacturing in Plymouth, was dead by the time he dropped to the ground, says Sgt. Ralph White of Plymouth Police.

Mitchem was alone when he fell at about 11:30 a.m. and was discovered about five minutes later by fellow employee Roy Drake of New Hudson.

According to police, Mitchem was not scheduled for strike duty that afternoon but he usually would walk over to the company office on Mill Street at midday to visit co-workers. He had been employed with Bathey since November 1964.

Trustees tee off on course funds

The revenue represents 50 percent of the green fees and cart rentals which were raised at the township-owned course on Lotz Road so far this year. A contract with golf course manager Daniel Ross guarantees the township at least $100,000 a year.

According to finance director Mike Gorman, $76,000 of this year's revenues must be used for a 1979 bond payment. A 20-year, $1 million bond issue was approved by the former Canton Township board in early 1978 for the controversial purchase of the 18-hole course.

A committee comprised of Ross, Township Clerk John Flodin, recreation superintendent Mike Gouin and Ron Hellier recommended a $10,000 allocation for capital improvements to other township parks.

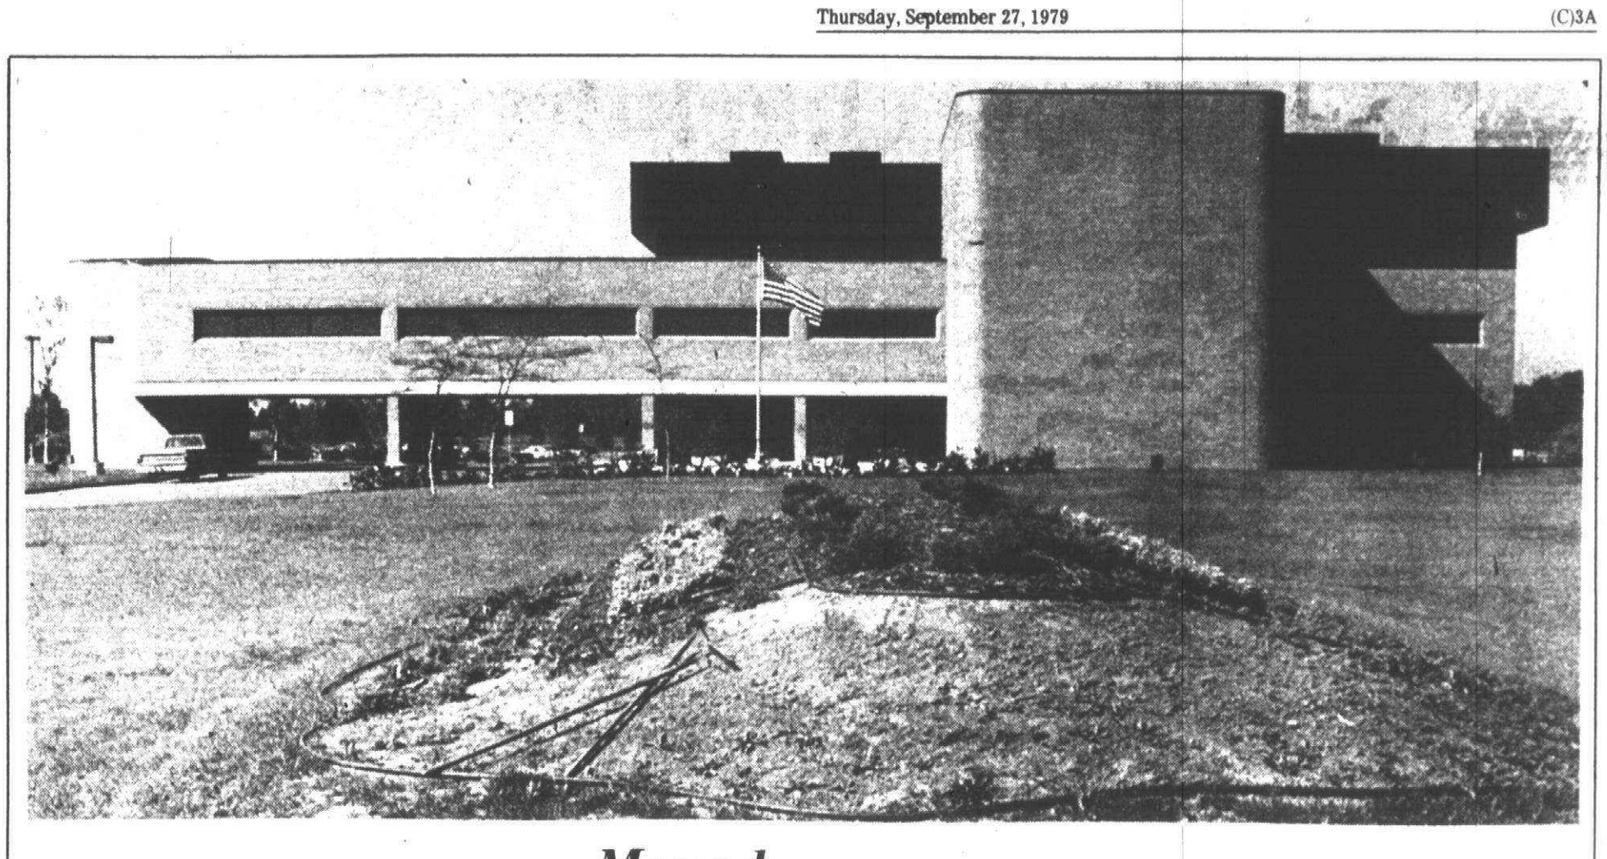

According to Trustee Eugene Daley, the public had been informed in 1978 that excess revenues from the golf course would be used to improve park facilities.

"Not everyone golfs," said Flodin. "I guess what we'd like to say to people is that the golf course is producing revenue that's going into parks for other people's enjoyment."

But other township board members lobbied for putting the money in the bank as a savings for future bond payments.

In the end, the board voted 4-3 to allocate a maximum $27,400 of this year's revenues for capital improvements at the course as recommended by the golf committee. The remainder of this year's revenues will be deposited in the bank.

Mound massacre

The decorative mound bearing the name of Canton in front of township hall was discovered in disarray last Sunday. Vandals had trampled over the mound and threw the letters to the wind. By Monday, the mound was groomed back into shape. There are no leads as to who the culprits were. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

TV newscaster plugs into local radio waves

By SUSAN ROSIEK

Can a successful television reporter who enjoys the instant recognition from Detroit's viewing public find happiness tucked away inside a radio broadcast booth?

Jack McCarthy, Channel 7 reporter, thinks so. McCarthy is the latest media personality to join the airwaves at Garden City's WCAR (formerly WIID) radio station. Bob Allison of "Ask Your Neighbor" radio fame was the first. And it was Allison who steered McCarthy to WCAR.

At 42, McCarthy, who lives with his wife, Carol, and sons, Bret and Sean, in Bloomfield Township, says it was time for a move. Although he remains at Channel 7, McCarthy admits his future there is uncertain. He is currently working without a contract. "I think I'm the only one there without one," he adds.

McCarthy's radio program is on weekdays from 11 a.m. to noon on WCAR. It's a call-in interview show but so far McCarthy hasn't had as many calls as he expected from the listening public. He hopes that will change as people hear about the show and his lineup of guests.

McCarthy says his years as a television reporter have given him access to a lot of guests. This week he interviewed Emily Gail, owner of Emily's Across the Street, a downtown Detroit emporium; newspaper columnist Nickie McWhirter; and an expert on Oriental cooking.

Coming shows will feature Sissy Baker, daughter of Sen. Howard Baker, Pete Waldmeir, Sandy North of the hearing impaired program at Redford Union School District, and Kitty Wagner, a facial and makeup expert.

ALTHOUGH things have started out slowly, McCarthy believes radio can be his future. And, for the tall, lean, mellow-voiced McCarthy, it's a chance to return to his career beginnings.

Born in Louisiana, McCarthy grew up in Peoria, Ill. He started working at a radio station there when he was in high school. He spent three years in the Army in Germany as a radio announcer and later graduated from Bradley University, where he majored in speech and minored in journalism and dramatic arts.

Fellow newscaster John Kelly helped McCarthy get his start in Detroit television. McCarthy started out at WJBK-TV Channel 2 and was among the first to join the exodus to Channel 7. A reporter there, McCarthy also is known for his "Friday Feast," a review of area restaurants and a job he landed because cooking is his hobby.

Having enjoyed an exciting and lucrative career at Channel 7, McCarthy says it was about time he took a second look at where he was going.

"I set an anchor position as my goal but I didn't make it. Being a reporter/anchorperson represents one of the real achievements of this industry. In a town of about 3-4 million people there are about 12 people out there doing it," says McCarthy.

"And I was disappointed. I have a lot of experience and I believe a lot of contributions yet to make," he adds.

Asked why he doesn't seek an anchor position elsewhere, McCarthy replies: 'You get yourself trapped by economics."

Detroit is among the top 10 television markets in the country. That means big bucks for those who make it.

"I could've probably gotten an anchor position in someplace like Nashville for about $10,000 a year but . . ."

ALTHOUGH HE still works at Channel 7, McCarthy hopes to eventually resign, do some freelance work for that station and pursue his new career.

"I don't think I have much of a future there and when you're at a dead end it's time to change. And, besides, I want more control of my own destiny. I want to determine what I want to do as a professional."

In the meantime, McCarthy hopes to stay at Channel 7. One reason is money.

"Last week I went home and told my wife I made $10. But it cost me $250 to be on the radio last week," he says.

Unlike other stations, McCarthy buys his air time at WCAR and then sells his own commercials. He doesn't have enough sponsors yet to cover the cost of an hour air time but he believes that will change. "And if I'm successful I'll buy another hour," he adds.

"It's a little . . . well, it's a lot scary. Selling commercials . . . I've never sold anything in my life except newspapers," he says.

McCARTHY'S EXCITED about his show and most of all encouraged by his radio time slot.

"I'm not facing a whole lot of competition. The soaps haven't started, Phil Donahue is over, Sonja Friedman isn't on yet and Bob Allison precedes me. Radio's a challenge and it's lots of fun," he adds.

McCarthy describes his show as merely an extension of his television role, "only here I can get them (guests) on for an hour if I like and really do a job of informing people."

"If people think I'm failing, they can call-in and ask the questions. I really believe in featuring the person I interview and not myself. I only serve as a vehicle for the story," he says.

Another challenge McCarthy faces is keeping up the pace of his dual career. McCarthy estimates he works about 12 hours a day, six, sometimes seven, days a week. He also teaches a radio and television newswriting class at Oakland University.

A VETERAN of electronic journalism, McCarthy defends the business that has been his bread and butter.

"Television news is lucrative. It's a commercial business. Programming decisions are made by people based on what they think the public will watch. It all depends on the public — it starts and stops in their hands. Television reflects the public's likes and attitude. If people don't like it, all they have to do is quit watching and things would change."

Jaycees give up ghost on Folker House fix-up

A proposal of the Canton Jaycees to save an old farmhouse from demolition is as faded as the ghosts which will haunt the house next month as part of the organization's annual Halloween fundraiser.

The Jaycees had hoped to use their own muscles and a $37,000 federal community development grant to bring the township-owned house on Proctor west of Canton Center up to present day building codes.

The $37,000 federal grant had been set aside for conversion of the Folker House into a social service center. But the township board changed its mind and tagged the 50-year-old home for demolition last June after Canton building officials indicated repairs could run as high as $100,000.

Earlier this month, Jaycee president Gary Jagoda broached an idea he thought could save the old farmhouse.

He proposed using the Jaycees as voluntary labor and the $37,000 federal grant for building supplies.

But in a report to the board Tuesday night, Jagoda said a cost estimate made by the Jaycees indicated the project would exceed $37,000 even with free labor.

He said the cost of renovating the building's structure, roof, floor and heating, plumbing and electrical systems would cost about $37,000 at today's prices.

"Given that these costs were arrived at in today's dollars, it would not allow for the necessary inflation factors as would be required with voluntary labor," Jagoda said. "It is felt that the project would taken an estimated two years with 'weekend workers.' "

Township grant coordinator Terry Carroll has asked the Canton board to rechannel the $37,000 federal grant into a project that will convert Dye Brothers subdivision near Michigan and Sheldon into an industrial park.

CETA layoffs affect seniors

Senior citizen programs for Wayne County may be cut 60 percent at the end of this month.

According to the County Office on Aging, the program cutback is due to the pending layoff of CETA employees Sept. 30. The workers affected are near the end of an 18-month limitation for any individual in the federally funded program.

The county has requested a waiver of this condition from the U.S. Dept. of Labor which provides funding. If the waiver is not approved, the county's programs for the aged could be diminished as follows:

- Loss of 11 full-time employees in the Tele-care program that handles almost 2,500 clients would be eliminated. Tele-care offers a pre-arranged call each day to check on a person's well-being.
- Eliminate 24 pending bus trips for 1,200 seniors. This program has scheduled and subsidized 199 trips for 5,906 seniors this year.
- Layoff of the editor of the Advocate newspapers that publishes 20,000 copies monthly. This year about 125,000 seniors have received the paper about the needs and problems of seniors.
- Loss of two full-time handymen in the minor home repair program that has serviced 633 elderly residents this year. More than 125 senior homeowners are waiting for help under the program.
- Dismissal of four employees in the out-county nutrition program for seniors that has provided 525,000 meals and delivered more than 45,000 at home in 1979.

The seniors' programs employ 1,076 CETA workers. The waiver would allow the county to keep about 370.

W-W schools checking up on required immunizations

By BETTY MASSON

Wayne-Westland nurses and secretaries will be poring over the records of high school students this winter. They will be looking for good immunization records, not for good grades.

An outbreak of measles in the state last winter made Michigan public health officials aware they would have to do something about older students who are susceptible to measles and other communicable diseases because they have not been immunized. That "something" will take the form of exclusions from school — a new policy at the high school level.

In recent years, county health officials have stepped up enforcement of state laws mandating innoculation against childhood diseases of measles, rubella (commonly known as German measles), diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis (whooping cough). Oral polio vaccines also are required.

This school year, about 20 Wayne-Westland preschool and kindergarten pupils were excluded because they didn't have shots, said Dan Slee, immunization coordinator for the school district. This is out of a preschool and kindergarten enrollment of about 2,100.

A second exclusion is coming up in October, when parents will be notified if school records show ther children haven't completed the innoculation series or if they haven't followed through on the next shot in the series. This must be done by Nov. 14.

Also next year Slee's department will be checking and evaluating the records of all school children.

Exclusions are being extended to older children because measles and rubella are known causes of birth defects, said Slee. And so it is particularly important that high school girls be immunized, he added.

Not only could their children suffer if they become pregnant and had measles, but they also present a risk to a teacher who is pregnant.

"In February or March, there could be some exclusions of high school students who have not been immunized," said Slee.

IMMUNIZATION OF students is a state-wide project, and will be enforced throughout the state through exclusions, according to health officials. This is being done under state and local ordinances in every school district.

"Lack of proper immunizations increases up through the grades," says Dr. Jane Polkowski, director of the communicable disease division of the Wayne County Health Department. "We find more high school students, for example, are less protected than the younger children. We are pleading with the parents and high school students to see that they have their shots."

To make it very easy, the health department offers free immunization clinics in various locations, including Westland and Livonia.

Parents who have lost their children's records or have any doubts about what shots they might need are urged to come in and discuss immunizations with the public health nurses at these clinics, said county immunization program coordinator Pat McLogan.

For measles and rubella, only one shot is needed; for the other, four are required to complete the series. And again, with measles and rubella vaccinations, parents are advised to check with public health nurses. Some shots, given soon after these vaccines were developed, have proven ineffective, said McLogan.

Older students who are new to the state may receive an extension to give them time to produce proof of vaccinations, said Slee. Failing this, they will be excluded.

Beginning in January, all Michigan students will also be required to have immunization against mumps, an illness which can be particularly dangerous for teenage boys and men.

McLogan said that the public health department is emphasizing the importance of health records, and the necessity of parents keeping them up to date.

"These should be considered as important as a driver's license or a marriage license," he said, "and they will be important right through college."

Free immunization clinics are offered at the Wayne County Health Department clinic on Merriman Road, north of Michigan, every day except Saturday. Times are from 8:30-11:30 a.m., and from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

The clinic also is open from 4-7:30 p.m. Wednesdays. No appointment is necessary.

The Livonia center is located in St. Paul Presbyterian Church, 27475 Five Mile, at Arcola, from 1 to 4 p.m. Appointments must be made by calling 729-2211, ext. 390.

purchase a sewer capacity of 12 cubic feet per second from the county in 1963. Some years later, the township was able to increase its capacity to 13½ cubic feet per second through an agreement with another community.

"You purchased what you reasonably predicted you'd need in the next 20 years and also what you could afford," he said.

Wade said the first sewer trunk was built in Canton Township in 1963. Holiday Park was the first residential subdivision that connected to the sewer line.

Chimmy the Chick's updated tote board

After visiting local training sites, Chimmy the Chick has released his early odds on the outcome for the Oct. 7 chicken race. Heavy bettors, though, are cautioned that such activity may be illegal and are asked to take further notice that the odds listed below are based on the first 37 entries. The number of racers could reach 80-100 before registration closes.

The 2-1 favorites include some experienced returning veterans such as Western Electric's "Western Flyer," First Federal Savings & Loan of Detroit's "Loan Eagle," Ford-Sheldon's "Barnyard Bomber" and Chevrolet-Livonia's "Chev-ro-layer X"(if it isn't recalled) plus newcomer "Personal Foul," the entry of the Plymouth Officials Association.

Listed as 4-1 favorites are: "Fire Bird," Plymouth Symphony League; "Lucky Strike," Canton Bowling & Trophy Sales, Inc.; "Main St. Mama," Ray Stella Contracting; "The Bruser," Plymouth Community Civitans; "Shanty Banty," Real Estate One; "Chicken Charlie," A&W of Plymouth; "King Charles III," Northville's Charleys.

Among those listed at 5-1 are: "Clark Cluck," Plymouth Hilton Inn; "Earl E. Times," B.F. Spirts, Ltd; and "Famous Flyer II," Famous Men's Wear.

Listed at 10-1 only because they are unproven rookies are: "Chicken Kaycciatore," Kay's of Plymouth; "Lookie-Loo," Real Estate Network; "Cheddar Chick II," Cheese & Wine Barn; "Ruby Star," O&D Bush Jewelers; "PWP Peeper," Parents Without Partners; "Old Village Clucker," Old Village Association; and "Observer Newshen," Plymouth Observer.

Listed at 10-1 despite their non-rookie status were: "Foxey Flier," Fox Photo; "Shake It or Bake Express," The Willow Tree; "?PU," The Put Up-On Shoppe; "Michigan's Belle," Michigan Bell Telephone Co.; and "Disco Chick," Reflections Boutique.

Trustee advises final talks

Police pact gets tentative approval

Plymouth Township could get an around-the-clock neighborhood police force by this winter, if approval is reached among all negotiating political bodies, said Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert.

Notebaert said he expects a final contract with the Wayne County Sheriff's Dept. by Dec. 1 or Jan. — "the latest."

Notebaert's prediction follows last week's settlement of a "preliminary proposal" with the sheriff's department. The township has been negotiating with that department since last summer.

The package includes nine officers and two patrol cars at a cost of $248,044 annually with some $27,000 expected in overtime salaries.

Although the pact calls for nine officers, the sheriff's department will fund four of those officers' salaries.

The preliminary agreement, which was reached by township and sheriff representatives, is subject to approval by Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas, the county board of commissioners and the county's board of auditors.

At Tuesday night's township board meeting, Notebaert and Township Attorney Donald Morgan were authorized to continue contract talks toward finalization.

The motion to finalize a contract was made by Trustee Maurice Breen, who also cautioned Morgan on a few contract items that needed clarification in the final write-up.

ONE CONCERN was a township control of overtime which Breen said "we don't have a handle on."

The preliminary contract states that that sheriff deputies average about $3,000 in overtime payments annually due to court and morgue duty. The township would be liable for this cost in addition to the $248,044 fee.

Breen also directed Morgan to firm up the contract's termination clause to protect the township against extreme rate changes.

The contrtact, however, does provide for a sixth-month termination clause of costs increase by at least 25 percent within a year.

The preliminary contract calls for a one-person staff in each car on every shift despite earlier considerations for a two-man car on the night shift.

"We think the one-man car will do the job because of the work they're going to do," Notebaert said. "Our work is more confined to surveillance, appearance and traffic control."

Notebaert added the cost of police services could have increased by $60,000 if two officers weere required at that time.

Morgan,however, said the two-officer patrol car is not a dead issue — at least in terms of annual lobbying efforts at the legislature.

"That could come anytime. There's an additional cost whether we like it or not."

The contract, however, does provide for a six-month termination clause if costs increase by at elast 25 percent within a year.

BREEN ALSO said the authority of the township supervisor should be clarified to insure local control of officers' assignements.

"The broad concept of the contract is fine," he told the board. "But there are things that need to be clarified, tightened."

JA is looking for staff of advisers

Since August the staff of Junior Achievement of Southeastern Michigan has been recruiting advisors from business and industry.

These advisors, plus student veteran Achievers and JA staff members, have been travelling to some 170 high schools throughout the region since school opened to tell the JA story.

BUT THAT EFFORT hasn't proved sufficient in the past, according to James Boyce of Western Electric who heads up JA in this area.

"Even though the students are excited at the time we talk to them about Junior Achievement and learning about business," said Boyce, "only a few show up at the local JA Center on Oct. 15.

"Either they forget, lose interest, get scared or something else between the time we talk to them and Oct. 15."

But for those who do show up Oct. 15, based on past experience, they should be in for a meaningful year with JA.

Students make up the board of directors, working force and sales staff of their individual companies. They elect officers and then sell stock for $1 a share.

After selecting a product to make, the companies then will set up production lines and plan for distribution. After selling their company's product, the students pay themselves wages, salaries and commissions, keep company books, pay taxes, and pay dividends to their stockholders — if their company is profitable.

JA companies operate one evening a week from 7-9 p.m. Each center has meeting rooms and a workshop equipped with light power tools and machinery needed to manufacture a wide variety of products.

Among the sponsors in this area are Western Electric, Burroughs Corporation, Ford-Sheldon, Detroit Bank & Trust, Detroit Edison, First Federal Savings & Loan, Michigan Bell, and Security Bank & Trust and National Bank of Detroit.

Custodians get pact with schools

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district has reached agreement with negotiators for the Michigan Association of Support Personnel.

The three-year contract includes an 8 percent wage hike each year and an increase in life insurance from $10,000 to $20,000. Dental benefits have also been improved.

Under the contract, union employees will get an increase from 50 percent coverage to 60 percent coverage in the second year; with benefits going to 80 percent in the third year.

Two health insurance riders have also been added to Blue Cross medical benefits.

Plymouth — Past & Present

Dealer made the right choice

By Sam Hudson

(Part II)

In 1922, when Chevrolet's sales manager offered Ernie Allison a choice of the Port Huron, River Rouge or Plymouth franchises, he recommended that Allison take Plymouth.

"Some day," he said, "all of the farmland between Detroit and Plymouth will be filled with residences and factories. If you take one of the older communities, you will have to hunt out customers. If you take a growing area, like Plymouth, the people who move to that section will seek you out when they are looking for a car."

Allison, who then was living in Highland Park, came here, liked the place, and took the manager's advice. He took over the dealership from William J. Beyer whose Bonafide Garage on Main Street then held the franchise.

ALLISON WAS THEN 37 years old. After obtaining his first job in Detroit he had returned to Canada and married a Blenheim girl, Laura Huffman. They had two children, Frank and Ruth.

He also had a business partner, Raymond Bacheldor, a fellow Canadian and father of Bob Bacheldor, who lives on Penniman Avenue. Allison and Bacheldor had met at the Chatham Business School.

Like Allison, Bacheldor was proud of his penmanship. "He was even a better penman than I was," says Allison.

When Ernie got a job in the payroll department at Ford, he got Bacheldor a job in the same department. When the opportunity to obtain a Chevrolet dealership came, they teamed up once more.

"Ray was the salesman of the firm," says Allison, "And I had experience in handling money."

In 1922, when Allison and Bacheldor began business, Plymouth was still a village. Main Street still had the original brick pavement which was laid by one man in the summer of 1908. The Detroit United Railway trolley line ran up Main Street, past their showroom, on its way to Northville.

The showroom was at 331 South Main, where Granata Furniture now is located. Later, they moved the business to a new building at 345 Main, across Amelia Street.

AMONG THE OBSTACLES they had to overcome during the first few years were strong competition from other car dealers, a fire that partially destroyed their building on Easter Sunday 1924, and a strike in 1937 at the Chevrolet plant in Flint.

When Allison and Bacheldor arrived here in 1922, Plymouth was "Ford Country." Henry Ford had opened his first village industry in Northville in 1920. The Phoenix Lake, Wilcox Pond and Newburg Lake plants, all in the Plymouth area, had opened a few years later. Local people employed in those plants were not encouraged by other than Ford cars.

When Allison arrived in town, Paul Wiedman with his Fords, Carl Shear with Buicks, Clyde Smith with the Hudson, and a man named Chambers, with the Nash, were firmly entrenched. Others came later.

The Jan. 2 and Oct. 23, 1925 issues of the Plymouth Mail show that eight dealers were advertising automobiles in the city that year. Seven of the brands then being offered— Hudson, Essex, Nash, Oakland, Maxwell, Studebaker, and Overland— have long been off the market.

In 1925, Cowan Motor Sales, at the corner of Ann Arbor and Mill Streets, sold the Hudson coach at $1,165 and the Essex coach at $765. Chambers advertised the Nash Advanced Six sedan at $1,485. Oakland Motor Sales, 828 Penniman Avenue, had the Oakland Six roadster at $975, and the sedan at $1,195. Both were products of General Motors.

Huston and West, at the Sheldon Garage, offered the Oldsmobile Six coach at $950. W.B. Baxter, at 149 Union, advertised the New Maxwell, with no price indicated.

In addition to his new Buicks, Shear was selling used Dodges, Studebakers and Overlands. And Allison and Bacheldor were offering "the world's finest low-priced coach," the Chevrolet, at $695 f.o.b. Flint. Chevy's touring car or roadster models were only $525.

IN ADDITION TO strong competition, the new Chevrolet dealers had to surmount a fire which burned the top half of their building in 1924.

The fire was caused by sparks from a steam locomotive shunting cars on the nearby railroad tracks. The sparks ignited straw in McLaren's lumber yard. The blaze spread quickly to the Chevrolet agency.

"The Plymouth firemen seemed to concentrate their efforts on saving the McLaren and Mather lumber yards," recalls Allison. "It was the firemen called in from Northville who really put out the fire at my place."

Fortunately the bottom half of the building escaped serious damage and they were able to open for business the next day.

Bacheldor sold his share of the business to Allison in the late 1920s. He became associated with A.M. Abbott, the Toledo builder who constructed the Riverside Cemetery Mausoleum in 1927. He also was one of the first American Automobile Association representatives in this area. During World War II, he ran the local Rationing Board. Bacheldor died in 1958 at the age of 71.

Lotsa watts

The University of Michigan's radio station (WUOM) has the most powerful signal (230,000 watts) of any public-educational FM station in the nation, and third most powerful signal of any FM station.

Skill Bank still wants volunteers

The Seniors Skill Bank still has a need for retired plumbers, electricians, carpenters, painters and other expert handymen 55 years and older to volunteer.

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc., is organizing a Skill Bank in an effort to use retired skilled workers to perform for pay work needed done by senior citizens. But the council needs the volunteers to register before the Skill Bank can be established.

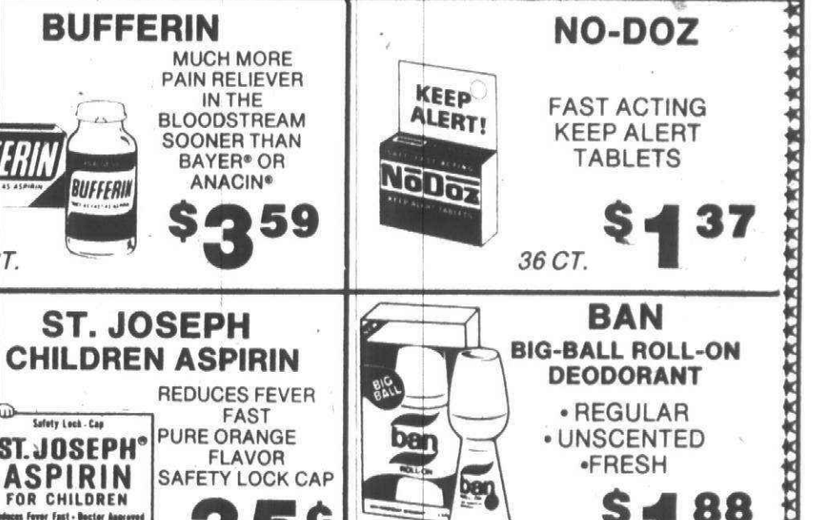

Those interested in part-time work will be put in touch with retired householders who need prompt service. The retired handyman or tradesman will negotiate directly with the recipient to establish the fee, which must be reasonable. There's plenty of work waiting to be done.

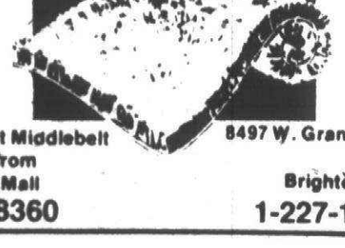

Volunteers also are wanted to help at the telephone center operated by the council. To volunteer, write the Plymouth Community Council on Aging, P.O. Box 613, Plymouth 48170 or phone from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday or phone 455-4907 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday, or phone 453-2816 or 453-4844.

Milliken undecided on M-275 route

By TIM RICHARD

On the eve of a Michigan Transportation Commission public hearing, neither Gov. William G. Milliken nor his new Community Development Cabinet has taken a position on whether the controversial M-275 freeway should be built across western Oakland County.

"No, I have not been in contact with the transportation commission. It's their responsibility," Milliken said last week as he hurried into a Republican fund-raising affair in Livonia. "You'll have to talk to the lieutenant governor on that."

Indoors, Milliken told the assemblage that the 1980 Republican platform should show "sensitivity toward the urban problems of America. . . We've allowed our cities to deteriorate while expanding into agricultural areas."

THE LIEUTENANT governor, James Brickley, chairs the state's Community Development Cabinet, announced with great fanfare last April. Its chief goal: to coordinate state policies to avoid "urban sprawl."

At the time, Brickley said M-275 might be discussed. M-275 would run from the I-96/I-696/I-275 intersection in Novi to I-75 at Clarkston.

Last week Craig Ruff, Brickely's executive assistant, said the Community Development Cabinet (CDC) has spent 45 minutes to an hour discussing M-275 but has yet to take a position on either the freeway or any of the handful of alternative proposals.

"They heard a presentation by John Woodford (director of the Michigan Department of Transportation, which favors a freeway) on the pluses and minuses of the alternative proposals. They also received from the transportation department an analysis of the cost implications.

"It has been discussed in general terms as the type of issue the cabinet should become involved in because it impacts on such urban issues as housing development.

"THE CABINET has not made any recommendation. Its guidance has not been sought by either the Michigan Department of Transportation or the Transportation Commission."

Ruff added the Community Development Cabinet has "an irregular schedule. It meets about monthly. Last week it met twice. There will be another meeting in about two weeks."

The CDC consists of the directors of the state departments of Social Services, Labor, Commerce, Treasury, Management and Budget, and Natural Resources along with the head of the state Housing Development Authority and the governor's Detroit-based executive assistant for urban affairs.

M-DOT Director Woodford and his staff are strongly in favor of a freeway.

Even after the old State Highway Commission voted in January of 1977 to cancel the project, Woodford and staff continued to insist a freeway would be better than any of the alternatives -- a parkway and upgrading of various local roads.

WOODFORD'S and his staff's insistence once led Peter B. Fletcher Jr., then chairman of the Highway Commission, to chastise them publicly, complaining: "What do I have to do to get the attention of the bureaucracy?"

Oakland County observers generally felt Fletcher reflected Milliken's views because Fletcher was Republican National Committeeman and a confidante of the governor.

Fletcher quit his highway commission post the day after the 1978 election in which voters abolished it and replaced it with a six-member Michigan Transportation Commission. All members of both commissions are gubernatorial appointees. The 1978 election also made Woodford a direct appointee of Milliken.

President recalls college's changes

Schoolcraft College has undergone a number of changes during the past decade or so — changes which have made it a greater part of the community.

Change at Schoolcraft was the theme of a report given recently to the Rotary Club of Plymouth by Dr. C. Nelson Grote, president of the college.

Grote has seen a lot of change since he started out in the educational field some 30 years ago. The holder of a doctorate from University of Illinois, Grote was dean of applied sciences at Moorehead State University before coming to Schoolcraft as president in May 1971.

GROTE'S ARRIVAL was a decade after Schoolcraft was created as a community college in 1961, although the college did not open its doors for students until 1964.

One of the major changes, Grote said, has been in size as student enrollment has climbed steadily to the 10,000 mark this fall.

The college district, which has a population of some 285,000 people, includes the school districts of Plymouth-Canton, Livonia, Garden City, Clarenceville, Northville and Novi.

Dr. Grote reported that Schoolcraft is the fifth largest institution of higher learning in Wayne County and ranks about seventh in the state in size among the 29 community colleges in Michigan. (Michigan has some 200,000 students enrolled in community colleges.)

When Schoolcraft first opened in 1964, and during its early years, the student body was composed primarily of current or recent high school graduates, Grote said. But now the student body at Schoolcraft has an average age of 30.

The student body in those early days consisted of 36 percent female and today's enrollment is 51 percent female.

In the early years most students carried a full-time load, Grote said, but now the vast majority are carrying a half-time or less schedule of credit hours. Most students today also take four years to complete a two-year program and more than half the classes offered are scheduled after 5 p.m.

While most of the students used to attend Schoolcraft for one or two years and then transfer to a college or university, some 75 percent of Schoolcraft students now are on a career program geared towards obtaining work or towards improving job skills.

DR. C. NELSON GROTE

Some "reverse transferring" now is occuring, Grote added, with students coming from other universities to Schoolcraft.

The president summarized that today's student body is older, attends part-time and usually in the evening, and is career-oriented.

GROTE NOTED that the college has an operating budget of some $12 million annually.

The college can levy a small amount of millage (2.10 mills this year) because its tax base totals some $2 billion.

Tuition is $17 per credit hour for residents and the average class size is 22, Grote said, with the larger classes having less than 35.

Grote said the challenge today for Schoolcraft is to retain its mission of serving students and the community and to avoid what he fears is a tendancy of becoming an employee center.

Other classes and activities in the fall program include: Calligraphy, resume writing and preparing for the job interview, beginning basic ballroom dancing for couples, disco, golf lessons, basic drawing for adults, mini-macrame for grades 2-5, Saturday tumbling, group piano for age seven and older, football skills, baton, and tennis.

The leagues will be Mondays at 9:30 p.m. or Fridays at 5 p.m. and will run for 31 weeks. The registration fee will be $6 for YMCA members and $8 for non-members with costs being about $4 per night for bowling fees and prize money. Call the YMCA to sign up as soon as possible.

Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs and Plymouth Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert agree to unify efforts to back the 1979 Plymouth Community Fund campaign to benefit young and old in the community — such as the YMCA, Creditors and Plymouth Senior Citizens which serve both city and township. (Staff photos)

From its pre-schoolers' "Kreatives" class to its Crediteer program for the elderly, the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA services Plymouth residents of all ages.

The phrase, Young Men's Christian Association, no longer describes the wide range of family-oriented activities now operating from the Y's second story office at 292 S. Main Street.

"Our classes continue to be our mainstay," says program director Janet E. Luce. "Besides the customary exercise and sports skills classes, there are personal enrichment classes, such as plant care, guitar and practical courses like home finances"

Improved human relationships also is the goal of the Y Indian Maidens program for mothers and daughters and Indian Guides for fathers and sons. Gra-Y continues to draw hundreds of third, fourth and fifth graders to its after school activities, while Hi-Y gives teenagers an opportunity to earn their way to Youth in legislature events.

Area seniors are involved in the Y's Crediteers, a social organization co-sponsored by the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union. The group meets weekly for fellowship, craft and service activities, lectures, parties and other events.

The Y also helps senior citizens in transportation to medical and dental appointments, shopping, et cetera.

Isabelle Maurer, president of the independent senior Citizens Club, points out that although members pay nominally for some popular trips sponsored by these groups, they are only possible by the Community Fund. The Senior Citizens Club meets year around, providing over 150 members with social and educational activities and remembrances to the ill and shut-ins.

ACTIVITIES AND services for older people are provided by many other Community Fund agencies, such as the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Michigan Cancer Foundation and the Visiting Nurse Association.

Older people, in return, are among the most active volunteers in such activities as the Salvation Army's League of Mercy, the Red Cross blood drives and the sewing groups which prepare free medical dressings for area cancer patients.

The Plymouth Community Council on Aging, Inc., is a new agency receiving some funding from the Community Fund. This non-profit corporation is active in coordinating all local efforts for older citizens.

This past year the council accomplished three major goals: Merchant Senior Discount program, the Vial of Life campaign and coordination of information and referral calls.

All of these agencies benefit from the single annual fund-raising drive now being conducted by the Plymouth Community Fund. Donations may be sent now to the PCF, Box 356, Plymouth, or made through payroll deduction. Persons who work outside the area are reminded to designate their contribution to the Plymouth Community Fund.

Bathtubs to Buicks

David Dunbar Buick, founder of the Buick Motor Car Co, was born Sept. 17, 1854, 125 years ago.

Buick was instrumental in developing a technique for applying enamel to cast iron and made a fortune in the bathroom fixtures business.

In 1902, he began work on a valve-in-head engine and the following year he founded the Buick motor car company.

4 cable TV firms enter bids

Cable television appears to be edging into the homes of Plymouth Township but which supplier will be selected to do so is still up for grabs.

Until this week, only Omnicon of Michigan, a relatively new operation with two franchises in Michigan, had eyed Plymouth Township recently for a start.

It now appears Omnicon has some competition for an awarded franchise by the township board.

At Tuesday night's township board meeting, Township Treasurer Joe West announced that four cable firms, with varying degrees of experience, have interest in securing a Plymouth Township franchise.

A committee was formed to evaluate the proposals and is expected to report back with a recommendation within a month.

In addition to Omnicon are: Metrovision Inc., a subsidiary of Newhouse Broadcasting Corp.; MacLean-Hunter Cable TV Ltd., a Canadian-based outfit with 25 years experience; and United Cable TV, a company with 26 years experience.

Among the four firms, United Metrovision have no franchises in the area. Maclean has obtained seven and Omnicon has at least three.

All firms propose to provide the same number of channels although services differ slightly, West said.

DAVID SINGER, a Metrovision representative, was on hand Tuesday to present the company's offerings to the board.

Singer said the company was formed six months ago and most of its stock is owned by the Newhouse Corp. Although the firm is new, he said its four principal officers have experience in cable TV.

The fees include a $15 installation charge. Other charges: $6.95 monthly for a 24-channel basic service; $6.95 monthly for a special first-run movie channel (this includes 16 to 20 R-rated movies; and a $3.50 monthly fee for first run movies.

Singer also said the company intends to seek franchises in other Detroit communities. Another presentation was made in Canton Township that night.

The company has a franchise in Louisiana and in six communities in Illinois.

Maclean-Hunter Cable TV, based in Ontario, has received franchises in seven other Detroit-area communities.

Gypsy Doyle joins Witt!

Witt Services, Inc., Southeast Michigan's "temporary help people," has acquired Gypsy Doyle, Inc., an old-line temporary help service in Dearborn. The acquisition brings to an even dozen the Witt offices now serving the metro area and adds greater depth to the skilled office and industrial help available through Witt.

Walton is honored for volunteerism

Edward S. Walton & Associates of Plymouth has been named contractor of the year by New Horizons of Oakland County, Inc.

The presentation was made at the New Horizons annual meeting in Roma's of Bloomfield. Walton & Associates is a Plymouth-based manufacturer's representative specializing in light industrial assembly and packaging.

Since mid-1976 the company has supplied steady and diversified sub-contracts to all three branches of New Horizons, an organization which provides mentally and physically impaired persons with vocational training and helps them find employment.

The award was accepted by Edward S. Walton, the owner, from Thomas Shaver, chairman of New Horizon's manufacturing committee.

Headquartered at 117 Turk Street, Pontiac, New Horizons also operates a branch in Madison Heights and at 24126 Research Drive in Farmington Hills.

HISHON APPOINTED

Colette Hishon of Canton has been appointed as an account clerk in the University Book Store at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti. The appointment was confirmed recently by the board of regents.

PACKAGER OPENS

The Retail Merchants Packaging Service (RMPS) has recently opened for business at 41210 Joy Road, Plymouth.

The RMPS firm is a professional packaging company which is offering a new retail service. The retail service division will take merchandise which previously had to be marked down due to shopworn packaging, in particular torn plastic film, and return the items to the retailer in a shelf-worthy condition.

By calling the firm, a service technician will visit a store and perform the packaging service on location at a much lower cost than the loss which the merchant would have received from the markdown.

The firm also will handle special orders for packaging, including packing of bulk purchases or other unpacked goods.

Mixed marriage

By NANCY WALLS SMITH

There are two kinds of people in this world — those who play pinochle, and those who don't.

My dear husband considers card playing to be one of the most fun things known to man. I, on the other hand, abhor cards. I flinch at the mention of pinochle. I flee when someone says euchre. It's a mixed marriage.

I must explain that my fear of, and distaste for, cards is not totally irrational. At least it makes perfect sense to me.

It all started many years ago, when we were newly married and one of my naive goals in life was to please. I think it was the same year that I sat through about 20 football games, followed an entire season of hockey, and even tried to develop an interest in baseball.

I had it all figured out that one of the secrets to a successful marriage was to share my man's interests. I tried. Heaven knows, I tried.

It seemed inevitable that I would also have to master the art of card playing if I was to reach my goal of becoming the perfect marriage partner. (I was big on "unrealistic goals.") I was ready, and willing. I just seemed to be a little weak on the "able" part.

One day my husband came home from work and announced, "We're going over to my brother's house on Saturday night to play pinochle, so I'm going to teach you how the game goes."

LITTLE DID I know that innocent statement would become a point of consternation at our house for years to come.

I knew how to play gin rummy and could fake my way through a few hands of poker, so I figured pinochle wouldn't be a threat to my intellect. I was wrong.

I was able to follow when he explained that the ten card was higher than the king, and could even get a vague grasp on the definition of "meld." It was the bidding that hung me up.

As he explained it, "You bid in code to your partner. Bidding starts at 21. If you jump 2 points, you're telling your partner you have 20 points. If you jump 3, you're saying you have 30. If you have a good playing hand, just jump one point."

I think it was then that I began to giggle somewhat hysterically. I didn't have the slightest idea of what he was talking about.

Unfortunately, to a serious card player like my husband, there is no humor in bidding. He began to glare at me, as he repeated these foreign rules that I knew I would never grasp.

It was becoming apparent that this one was going to be tougher than football, hockey and baseball combined. When you're a spectator you can fake it if you are bewildered. You just cheer when everyone else does. But it's just not possible to maintain anonymity in a card game.

IT GOT WORSE when we went to his brother's to play cards. I was in a nervous sweat. I probably said about three words all evening as I sat with my brow furrowed, concentrating on the cards I held in my hand and straining to remember what the heck I was supposed to do.

On the way home there was a definite tone of sarcasm in his voice as he inquired, "Why didn't you talk to anyone?"

"I couldn't," I explained. "I was trying to think."

"Well, it was supposed to be a social evening. You acted like you were in pain!"

"I was," I shouted. "Do you want me to be sociable or do you want me to play cards? You can't have both!"

The next week we were back at his brother's house for another ordeal of bidding, melding, and trumping. They all played so fast. I never did figure out why all of a sudden everyone would throw their cards in the middle of the table while I sat there still studying mine (all trump had been played).

Call it a flaw in my character. I just wasn't meant to play. Some go to it. Some don't. Nancy don't.

Readers' forum

Editor:

I am a Plymouth-Canton school district resident, taxpayer and teacher who is really beginning to feel like a bad person.

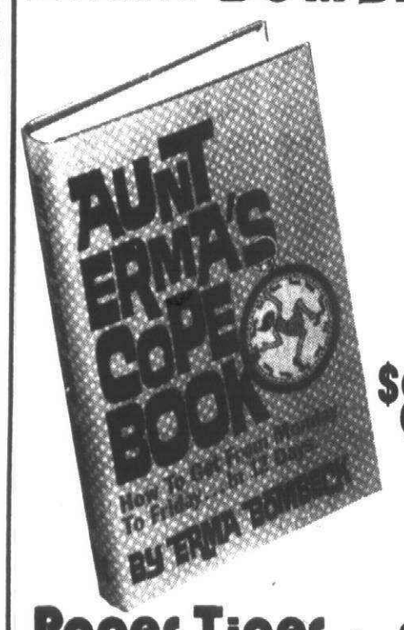

A recent Observer editorial said I am going on strike again in 1983, the Crier's recent cartoon said I can't spell, speak correctly and drive a Mercedes, and a person named M. Denton has pledged to stop my inflationary raises!

Enough! I Give Up! I only see one solution. When the next contract negotiations begin, perhaps the board can negotiate with the community merchants for a discount to be given to all teachers who shop within the borders of the school district. Then the teachers couldn't plead that they have to keep up with inflation because they pay the same prices as everybody else.

Granted, that would mean that we would have to do our shopping in Plymouth-Canton, but I am willing. After all, I bought my home, car and food here and am reasonably satisfied with their quality, if not their price.

By the way, M. Denton, if your dinner guest really sat and bragged about their vacations, you should be more careful about choosing your friends. I hate to suffer because they are boors.

editorial opinion

Kids and mini-bikes need better regulation

Not long ago, a staff member driving south on Sheldon Road ended up traveling behind a boy on a motor bike. The boy drove the bike along Sheldon through Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township before finally turning east on Arlington in Canton.

During the course of his journey, the boy drove off the road to jump mud puddles three times, crossed the median three times in the face of oncoming traffic and drove his bike while glancing backwards for long stretches of time to watch the driver of the car following him. The driver of the car was apparently an acquaintance of the boy.

By the time the bike and the car reached Hartsough, 20 cars had backed up behind the pair. Traffic was not allowed to pass.

The boy was observed driving recklessly back and forth across the lane. Where Sheldon became four lanes, the boy stayed in the middle of two lanes, effectively preventing traffic from passing him.

The motor bike driver was breaking a number of laws governing the use of such vehicles in Michigan. He was endangering the safety of himself and of other drivers.

He was also displaying youthful disregard for traffic safety rules, which will probably carry over when the boy obtains an automobile driver's license.

OFTEN, THESE small, motor-driven vehicles are presented to children by well-meaning parents with the proviso that the mini-bike not be taken out on the road.

Unfortunately, the back yard of a typical suburban lot soon proves impractical as neighbors complain about the noise and parents complain about destruction of the sod.

Next thing you know, the kid hits the highway.

Michigan law requires the licensing of any motorized vehicle which travels public highways. The law regulates equipment and use of the vehicles. Even motorized vehicles which are driven off-road on public property must be registered.

Gilbert Apps, safety coordinator with the Michigan Office of Driver and Vehicle Administration, says, "Obviously, it doesn't surprise anyone to realize that many vehicles are ridden which are not in compliance with equipment, registration or licensing provisions."

He continues, "I believe, though I do not have data to support it, that one of the major problems we face in dealing with motorcyles and mopeds is that most people seem to believe that mopeds (being low-powered) or mini-bikes (being small) are toys rather than motor vehicles and do not seem to realize that when attempting to compete in traffic, the results of any accident, no matter how slight, have a very high probability of being tragic for the rider of the two-wheeled vehicle."

APPS HAS THREE suggestions to help alleviate the problem of improper small motor vehicle use.

- Someone must compile case studies of individuals without using their names and carefully protecting their identities who are injured as the result of improper operation of motorcycles or other two-wheeled vehicles and follow the costs of such an acident to determine what happens and who pays for the accident.
- Someone needs to take the lead in publicizing the results of these kind of studies in order to convince parents of young children who are often injured in such accidents that a low powered moped or mini-bike is not a plaything.
- Public pressure needs to be placed on enforcement agencies and prosecutors' offices to more effectively enforce the laws concerning motorcycle and moped operation and through careful prosecution raise the price of non-compliance to the point where individuals will take current licensing laws more seriously.

Perhaps the best way to eliminate the potential danger of mini-bike and moped misuse is for parents to think before they allow their children to own such vehicles.

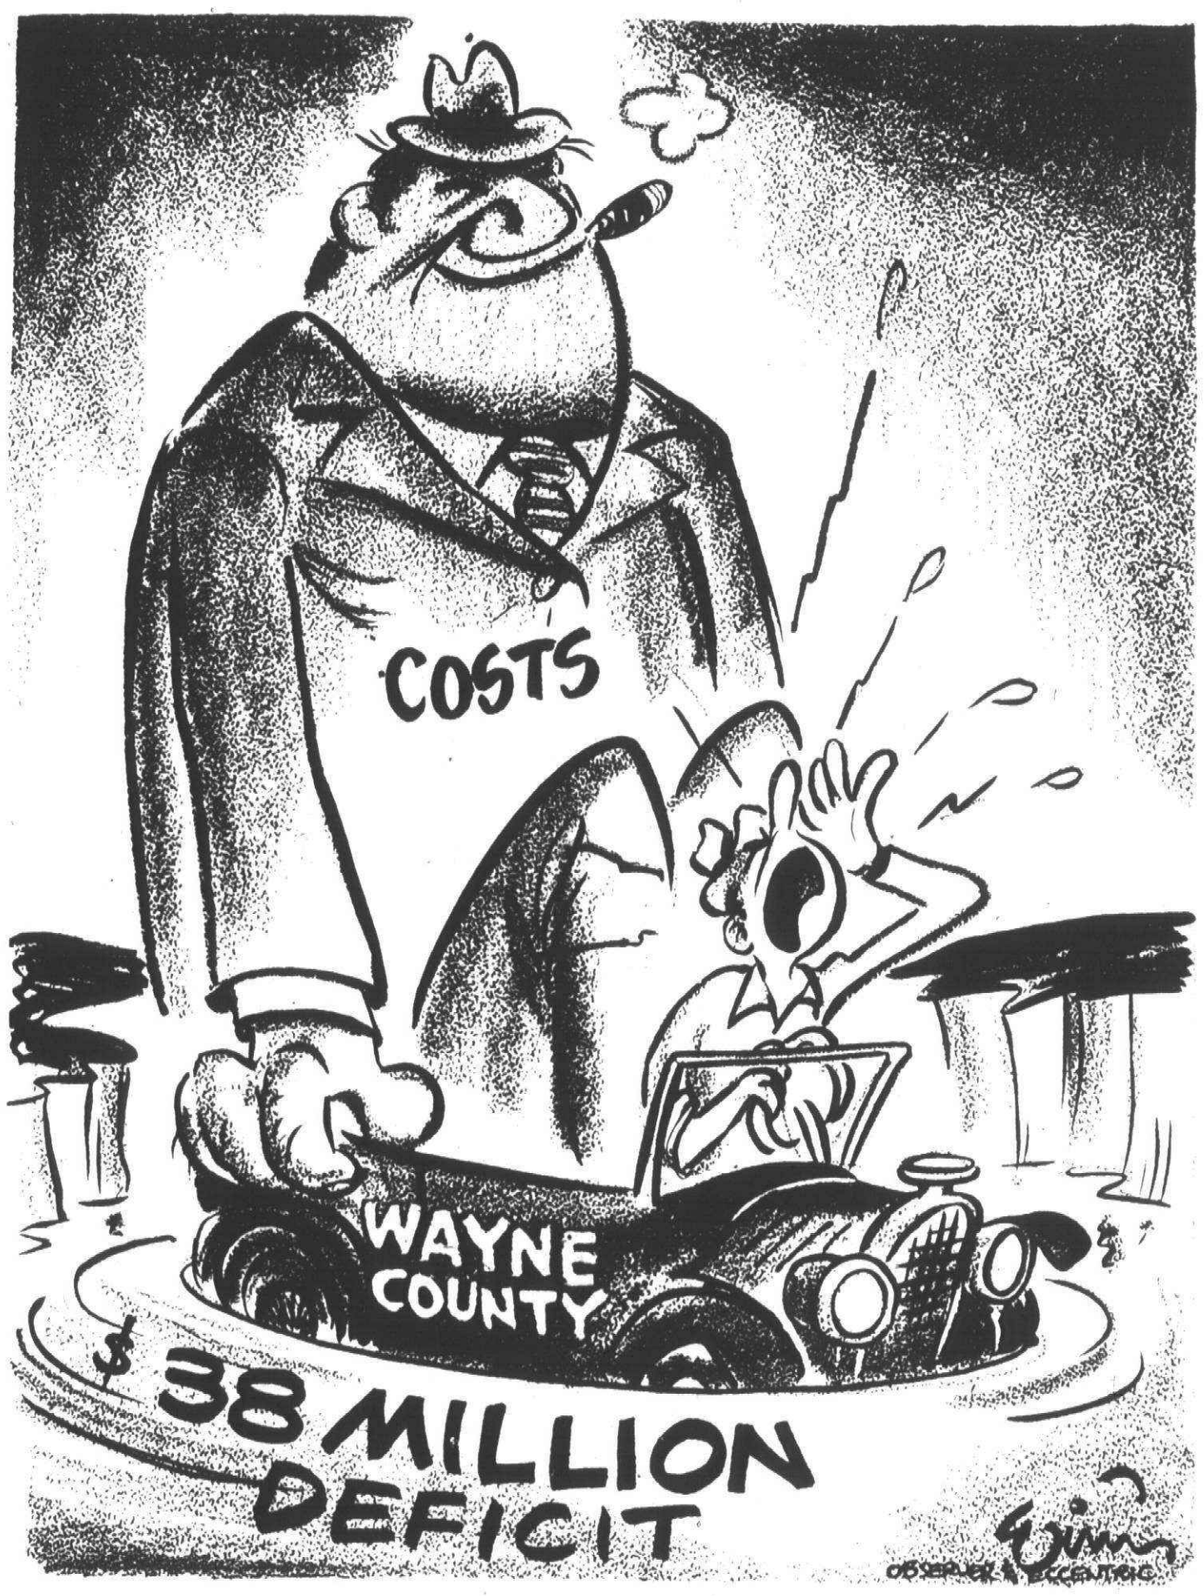

They must ask themselves if they have enough property, or have approved access to enough property to make use of the vehicle practical.

They must be able to control use of the vehicle and insure that all laws are followed concerning use.

They must present an example for their children by not being guilty of the same abuses of the law when driving motorcycles, snowmobiles and the like.

If drivers of mini-bikes and similar vehicles follow the rules and exercise caution, police departments will thank them, their families will thank them and the driver who might unavoidably hit a child on a motor bike will thank them most of all.

"Help!"

The Indians' invasions

"The Indians just moved into Traverse Bay," said our charter boat captain, almost matter-of-factly, as we nosed out of the Betsie River onto Lake Michigan.

"They're taking the lake trout. The DNR has pictures. They're depleting the fishery," he went on.

Although he's in his early 30s, our captain is a veteran of coho and salmon fishing — nine years. He remembers the old days when there were only two other charter boats besides his in Frankfort. Now there are 21.

He has to make most of his income in the six warmest months of the year. I didn't poke into his finances, but I would guess he's still making payments on his year-old, $30,000 boat. He has kids in the local schools. Economically, he fears the worst.

As we chatted I gazed up at the high hill overlooking Frankfort harbor. Legend has it that Pere Jacques Marquette died there during his explorations and attempts to convert the Indians.

It was ironic. Marquette's work started in Canada, but the Iroquois Indians had annihilated the Hurons, among whom the French priests had worked so successfully, and Marquette had followed the battered remnants of his flock into upper Michigan.

WE HADN'T THOROUGHLY read Sunday's paper or we would have known that an appeals court had ordered a 30-day halt to gill netting by Indians in Grand Traverse Bay.

The appeals court gives Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley a month to argue that the state should have power to regulate fishing by Indians as well as by whites. It has been hardly a decade since sport and commercial fishing were wiped out by the ravages of the lamprey eel.

With fishing license money, the state had eliminated the lampreys, re-introduced lake trout and introduced coho and chinook salmon.

MEANWHILE, LAST WEEK, U.S. District Judge Noel Fox issued his "permanent" order saying the state lacks authority to protect the lake trout and salmon because of two 19th century treaties.

Ironically, the autocratic Judge Fox couldn't have been more wrong in some of his reasoning: "Before Christ, this was Indian territory. . . ."

That is a common misconception among ignorant persons who romanticize the Indian. Michigan was occupied by several groups of people before those who have come to be called "Indians."

What, for example, ever became of the sophisticated race which mined copper on Isle Royale? They apparently had coast-to-coast trade contacts. Who pushed them out or defeated them?

We will never find out because, conveniently, the Indians had no written language to record whatever atrocities they may have committed against their predecessors, the way the white man records his own anti-social activities.

AT TIMES DURING the Christian era, Michigan was depopulated.

So was Kentucky, which was known in Dan'l Boone's day as "the dark and bloody ground." Kentucky got that nickname not because of conflicts with whites but because of wars between Indians.

Sacajawea, the famous guide of the Lewis and Clark expedition, was reunited with the remnants of her tribe in a remote part of the Rockies. Her people had been defeated and relegated to what today we would call "marginal" lands after wars — with other Indians.

The notion that local Indians are the "original Americans" is arrant nonsense. They kicked each other off lands and were kicked off in turn. Perhaps, when Jerry Brown is president and Tom Hayden and Jane Fonda are running the Defense Department, the same thing will happen to us. It's life.

TOM WASHINGTON, head of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, had the best idea for dealing with the Great Lakes fishing situation.

Abrogate the treaties, he said, and buy out the Indians' fishing rights for $10 million. The Indians will have money, and we'll all be able to fish in accordance with state laws.

Pay off the Indians? A Gen. Custer would prefer a more activist solution. But I think the spirit of gentle Pere Marquette, looking down from the hill over Frankfort harbor, would smile in approval.

Time to face facts

Editor:

I just read your editorial (Sept. 20) regarding "industry" and its direct relationship to local taxes in Canton.

Just wanted you to know that I, as a taxpayer in this community, appreciated your views and your attempt to inform the public.

Sooner or later, we must face facts someone has to pick up the tab for the services demanded by the citizenry. We should take advantage of the industrially zoned parcels in Canton and welcome, rather than discourage a healthy tax base for Canton folks.

Old camp has new totems

The woods surrounding Lake Arbutus were silent that day. Only the sound of a motor boat could be heard purring in the distance.

Summer was drawing to a close. The boys who populated Camp Haza Witka had gone home. I was there — returning 20 years to the month after having spent three summers at the camp.

I was reluctant.

"It probably had all changed," I told myself.

Although only about 10 miles south of Traverse City, Lake Arbutus is tucked away on obscure county roads marked only occasionally by signs.

I relied on 20-year-old memories to find my way.

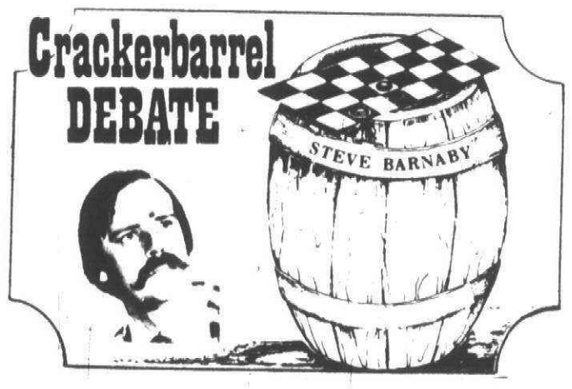

A TURN IN the road (a lucky guess) sparked my senses. Tall pines and endless acres of ferns lay in my view.

To my right loomed the horse stables — then the rough-hewn fence surrounding the riding area. A shiver went down my spine. It was as it had been.

Walking up to the mess hall, I knocked on the door and was greeted by a woman.

"Hi, my name is Steve Barnaby and I'm a member of the Royal Order of the Alla Pushee, class of 1957."

She smiled a knowing grin.

Alla Pushee — the secret rite administered to all campers on a trip down the Boardman River. To this day, the secret remains in my heart.

ON THE MESS HALL wall was the picture of old Joe Gembis, the camp's founder. Big Joe died a while back, but the camp's tradition is carried on by his two sons, Chuck and Doug. Doug teaches in the Farmington School District.

Also hanging on the wall were the canoe paddles signed by Alla Pushee initiates. On the 1957 paddle was scribbled my adolescent signature — so different from the man's signature.

But on that summer day, the intervening years were put out of mind. The Vietnam War, the missed opportunities and rash judgments of adulthood were all forgotten. Forgotten for 30 minutes, anyway.

In my mind, I heard the youthful screams of glee.

But one thing had changed. The totem pole on which we all had worked was gone, replaced by the efforts of newer campers.

Time does work its ravages, both on totem poles and people, I thought.

It was time to leave. It was time to let new kids build totem poles — and dreams to remember.

Before me stood the camp's panorama. Like the stables, it remained untouched by time.

When love turns out to be highlight

It was 79-194491.

Toss aside the 79, the year, and there were six digits which read the same from either direction.

That sort of set the tone of the situation before Judge Gage. It could be regarded from either end and make sense each way.

THIS WAS A SHOW-CAUSE hearing Friday concerned with the transfer of seven students from Pontiac into the Bloomfield Hills School District.

Coming in late summer, the transfers were prompted by a string of unsuccessful votes on property taxes in the Pontiac School District which signaled the end of extra curricular activites, including football, in its high schools.

Spotlighted in the court action were a half dozen black athletes, all presently students at Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

As it turned out, after some enlightening testimony Friday, Judge Gage decided that more time was needed to study all the ramifications.

HER PRELIMINARY RULING allows the transfer students to continue attending classes at Lahser and participating in sports.

Focusing attention on these young people had another effect. It triggered an intensive examination by officials of the Bloomfield Hills district into its tranfer polices and practices. The study showed that, in recent years, some 55 students have been welcomed into the district as transfers.

But that's a situation of major proportions, and this column will not be dealing with that "big picture."

For example, there is the Segula family, residents of Bloomfield Hills.

Son John is a student at Lahser. He asked his folks if a black friend of his from Pontiac and that friend's brother could reside with the Segulas so the two youths could attend Lahsher.

John's folks, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Segula, immediately agreed. Later they met with the Pontiac youths and their parents. All agreed to the plan.

Necessary paperwork was done with the school district, and the Segulas assumed temporary guardianship of Joey and Martin Levier.

AT THE SAME TIME, other Bloomfield Hills families were doing the identical thing for other Pontiac youths.
Remember, they weren't doing it to exploit the young people in any way. They weren't hoodwinking Bloomfield Hills school administrators. Nor were they trying to recruit gridiron talent for the Lahser team.

These Bloomfield Hills School District families were acting out of the highest motivations — to offer help to fellow human beings.

And that's my point.
We often hear from psuedo-liberals who look with a jaundiced eye at the well-to-do, comfortable suburban resident. They freely pass out labels of "bigot", "self-centered", "refusing to deal with the real world."

These same self-ordained experts love to paint all offspring of suburbanites as irresponsbile and selfish.

SUCH NEGATIVE COMMENTS pale when bathed in the light of actual acts of kindness as performed by the Segulas and the other families in the Bloomfield Hills School District.

John Segula and Joey Levier told Barbara Underwood, our reporter on the story, that the situation at Lahser was "just terrific, fine, no problems."

Then John added, "We are getting along well. A lot of people have made new friends."
And that's what love is all about.

JA: Business' baptism of fire and cash

We've heard kids who participated in a parks cleanup swear they would never, ever litter again.
The same principle might hold true for young teenagers who had a taste of business. Once having been through the mill of organizing a company, raising capital, working, managing and selling, they are less likely ever to take business for granted or to look on corporations as some colossal dairy herd that can be milked for benefits forever.

In western Wayne County, eighth and ninth graders will have a chance to get that taste of business beginning Oct. 15. That's when Junior Achievement of Southeastern Michigan centers will be opened so that groups of 15 to 20 youngsters can organize their own companies.

IT'S MORE THAN a game.
JA members make up the boards of directors. They elect a president, corporate secretary, VP for manufacturing, treasurer, purchasing manager, VP of sales, safety director and VP for personnel.

The companies sell stock at $1 a share. They select products, set up production lines, plan distribution.

They advertise, promote and sell their companies' products. They keep books and, if possible, pay dividends.
In one of the more realistic exercises, they pay taxes. That's as realistic as one can get.
Their own financial rewards are modest but real. And there are chances for JA scholarships.

THIS YEAR, JA launches its 60th season.
In Oakland County, JA centers are located at:
- 585 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.
- 32235 W. Chicago (Whitman Center), Livonia.
- 26905 Grand River, Redford.
- 3139 S. Wayne, Wayne.

Adults can help.
If your son or daughter — or both — show some interest in JA business, encourage them to attend the first session.
If you have a chance to be an adviser, or if your firm has a chance to be a sponsor, do it.

They may be working for and ultimately running your company some day. If they learn young, they won't take business, jobs or sales for granted.

The Bottom Line

What's an IRA?

By DANIEL HERRIMAN

To encourage taxpayers to save money for retirement as a supplement to Social Security, Congress has passed considerable legislation in recent years allowing tax deductions for certain retirement investments.

Any individual with earnings who is not already eligible for contributions under a pension plan can now set up an Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

This allows taxpayers to deduct an investment of 15 percent of their earnings annually, with a maximum of $1,500.

Self-employed persons have an additional option of establishing a Keogh plan under which they can set aside retirement funds for themselves and their employees.

The allowable deduction under a Keogh plan generally is 15 percent of net self-employment income, up to $7,500.

THROUGH ADVERTISING, many people now are aware of the existence of these plans.

But people may not have considered how valuable a tax deductible investment can be, as opposed to some other type of investment.

Let's examine a sample case of an individual who is eligible for an IRA.

Suppose a person is deciding between investing $1,500 annually in certificates of deposit (CDs) yielding eight percent IRA funds through a savings account at a bank which will yield 5.75 percent.

Before considering the tax consequences, investing in the CDs seems much more attractive. After ten years, the first $1,500 investment at eight percent will be worth $3,238, while at 5.75 percent it will be worth $2,624.

But our investor is a taxpayer.

So let's assume his upper tax rate is 30 percent. That means 30 percent of each year's interest on the CDs must be paid to Uncle Sam. So our taxpayer will be able to keep only 5.6 percent interest on his investment each year. Therefore, the first year's investment of $1,500 will be worth only $2,586 after ten years, after federal taxes.

Now let's see what happens if the investment is made in a tax-deductible IRA.

The tax deduction of $1,500 that first year will save $450 in tax dollars. This $450 will be invested in non-deductible CDs at a near annual earning of 5.6 percent after taxes.

So the first $1,500 investment in IRA will be worth $3,400 ($2,624 plus $776 — the $450 tax savings and its earnings) after 10 years.

Daniel's Den

Favorite fall things forestalled

I love autumn afternoons.

The best weather Michigan offers during the year is on a sunny September or October day, when temperatures are in the 60s.

One of my favorite October weekend activities is to load the family in the car — all but the dog — and take a drive out to the apple orchards in Novi or the cider mill in Northville or Franklin.

Of course, there's nothing better on a balmy fall Saturday than to spend an afternoon in the stadium in Ann Arbor, eating peanuts and watching the Wolverines kick extra points.

When the Wolverines are playing elsewhere, it's also nice to rake leaves, mow the lawn, clean up the garden, or plant tulip bulbs.

When fall arrives, it suddenly becomes nice to spend time outdoors — on foot or in an auto. The sun's not hot, but warm, so there's no perspiration (a dollar-word for sweat). A cool breeze is one of my favorite elements of the weather. That breeze is much better than spring gusts, because inhaling a deep breath doesn't bring with it the smell of earthworms.

THE BIGGEST problem with fall, and it is certainly true this year, is that the most beautiful days of the season seem to be in the middle of the week.

The days I love the most have fallen on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. And most Saturdays and Sundays have been cold and overcast with rain drizzles.

I've just returned from a trip outside and it took every ounce of fortitude and self-discipline I possess to come back to the office. An absolutely beautiful day, and here I am behind a desk, clunking away at a typewriter, making words.

One redeeming factor is that Michigan isn't playing today and the apples aren't ripe yet in Novi. There are no leaves to rake yet, but the tulip bulbs are dry enough to plant and the Indian corn might be ready for picking.

I will escape outside in soon to make a Cloverdale run, which amounts to a quick jog across Main Street, a stroll through the parking lot, and an all too short dash across the alley (and repeated, in reverse, on the way back). But I won't see any pumpkins or squash, acorns, dead corn stalks, Irish setters or pheasants.

In fact, about all I can do is feel the pleasant breeze, because if I start looking around me for the signs of autumn, I'll collide with a parking meter or trip over the curb.

So I'm content to spend the day inside, doing what must be done, with the hope that this weekend's weather will be a carbon of today's, or yesterday's.

That kind of contentment reminds me of a favorite biblical verse often quoted by one of my favorite aunts. My aunt had six children and ran a very busy household on a rather meager income. Things often were very hectic, and when those times arrived, Aunt Jane was apt to quote St. Paul: "I have learned whatsoever state I'm in, therein to be content."

That's not only poetic but very wise, and is pretty good advice for this particular day.

Chiefs dealt 2nd straight loss

By BRAD EMONS

Livonia Stevenson handed Plymouth Canton its second straight loss at home Tuesday night, 45-42, in a non-league girls' basketball game.

The victory upped Stevenson's overall mark to 2-2. Canton slipped to 2-3.

Stevenson pulled the game out in the final quarter, outscoring the Chiefs, 11-6, as junior forward Karen Kelley scored five key points.

It was an extremely physical game. It resembled at times the style played in the NBA. In the second quarter, Canton reserve forward Debbie Gibb went down with a severely sprained ankle.

Stevenson's Wendy Jenkins also left the game with a slight head concussion suffered in a collision in the final quarter.

"I expected it to be physical," said first-year Stevenson coach Jim George. "It was definitely a scrap.

"We're really excited. Canton just doesn't lose at home."

George said he inherited a program that was in a state of "disaster." Stevenson won just six games last season.

"Canton pressed us the whole game and I thought we handled it okay. We ran a couple of pick plays and got the easy basket, but we didn't get the ball inside like we should have."

STEVENSON, a member of the Inter-Lakes League, jumped out to a quick 9-3 lead in the first quarter on a basket by center Ingrid Hogh.

Jill Pedersen, Canton's senior guard, kept her team in the game by scoring six of her 11 points in the first quarter as the Chiefs trailed, 16-11.

Canton's full-court pressure seemed to rattle Stevenson in the second quarter. The Chiefs trailed only 26-24 at halftime thanks to the aggressive play of forward Diane Durocher and guard Vicky Cavallaro.

Stevenson, using just six players, appeared to be worn out at the end of the second period as Canton coach Mike McCauley shuffled his players in and out.

The third quarter was extremely close as Canton began to take control, 36-34, as Durocher hit two jumpers.

Canton had problems with its delayed four-corner offense, committing costly mistakes, especially at the end of the third period.

At 5:14 of the final period, Hogh hit a shot to put Stevenson up for good, 41-40. Two free throws by Kelley, at 4:19, gave the Spartans their biggest lead, 43-40.

Almost 5:37 elapsed before Canton could get on the board. Two free throws by Pedersen with five seconds left brought the Chiefs to within one, 43-42.

Redford Union rally catches Salem girls

It was Salem's first loss in five starts. Redford Union, a member of the Northwest Suburban League, raised its mark to 4-1.

With 1:41 left in the game, Lori Pastula hit two key free throws to put the Panthers ahead for good, 49-48.

"It came down to the fourth quarter," said coach Bob Blohm of Salem. "Give Redford Union credit, they came in with a good game plan and played hard. They controlled the tempo."

Redford Union, constantly alternating between a zone and man-to-man defense, gave Salem problems throughout the game.

"RU rebounded well and we had a hard time recognizing their defense," Blohm said. "I'm not disappointed. We missed some inside shots and gave them an opportunity to win. We made turnovers in key spots.

Senior center Nancy Lawson of Redford Union did the most damage against Salem. She connected for 20 points to lead all scorers. Most of her shots came from inside the 12-15-foot range.

Senior guard Nan Horwood paced Salem with 14 points. Eileen Moore, who fouled out, and Patty Weidman, both added 11 points each. Senior forward Cheryl Sobkow, who also picked up five personals, collected eight points.

REDFORD UNION connected on 10 of 27 foul shots while Salem hit just four of 15.

The Panthers enjoyed a 14-12 first quarter lead. The team were tied at halftime, 22-22, and at the end of three quarters, 37-37.

Prepared Lakers win Best Ball

The Lakers captured the eighth annual 25-team Plymouth Best Ball School title by edging Ypsilanti and Redford Union in a sudden death playoff. All three schools finished the regulation 18 holes with an identical totals of 146.

On the first extra hole, the West Bloomfield duo of freshman Matt Jackson and Mark Erikson combined for a birdie, while the other teams parred, giving coach Art Link and his West Bloomfield golfers the title.

"It was a good indication that we have some talent," said Link. "We try to practice at least once on every course we're going to play."

The West Bloomfield squad played last week in preparation for Monday's tourney at Brae Burn.

West Bloomfield's Jim Arnold and John Trivison, both seniors, combined to win the individual (two players per team) first place trophy with a 69. Jackson and Erikson shot a 77.

Dearborn's Brett Bowser and John Shelton placed second, combining for a 70. The other Dearborn team settled for a 78.

"It was a beautiful day," said Redford Union coach Ken Vollick. "The scores were higher than last year."

YPSILANTI captured the team title last season with a 138. Redford Union finished second with a 141.

Pat Brazzil and Jim Walters shot a 72 for Redford Union while John Senkowski and Mike Gvovdich fired a 74 to earn a shot in the playoff.

Livonia Stevenson placed third overall with a 147 total. The team of Zeppa and Redheffer led the Livonians with a 71.

Six teams tied for fourth place with a 148 total — Plymouth Canton, Ann Arbor Huron, Dearborn, Farmington and Trenton.

Canton's Dave Visser and Scott Adler combined for a 73 while teammates Kirk Rasmussen and John Matthews carded a 75.

Canton, just 2-6 in dual meets so far, finally turned in the performance coach Casey Cavell was looking for.

"Our first four players have been erratic," said Cavell, "but they played a super game today. Both of my teams did an excellent job. I'm really happy because we were only off low score by two shots."

"In a way, I'm disappointed that we didn't win," said Salem coach Bob Waters, whose team is 7-0 in duals. "We went for the gusto and took a lot of chances. In best ball its a different strategy.

"I WAS happy that we went for the birdie instead of the par. We went for it."

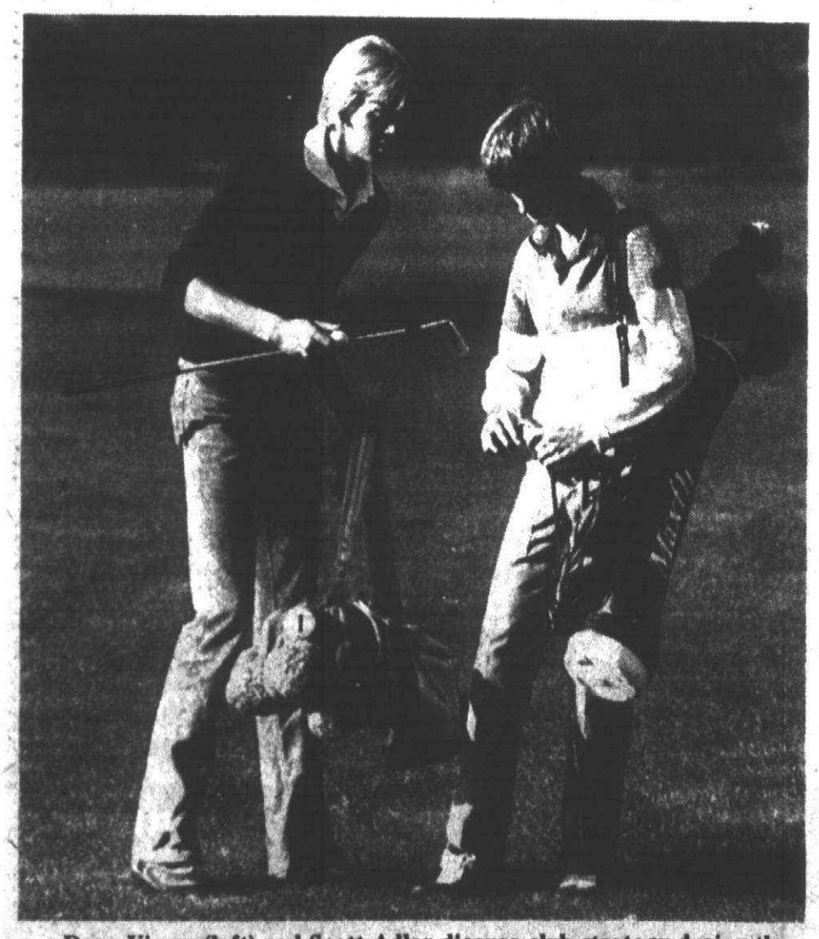

Salem's Jeff Trim and Butch Recto fired a 74 while senior co-captains Rob Jarvis and Blake Lundberg came in with a 75.

Waters said the higher scores in this year's tournament can be attributed to hard and fast greens at Brae Burn.

"It was a little windy and its been dry for a while," said Waters. "The greens were much faster."

The team of Westveer and Keller paced Churchill with a 74. Wheeker and Bowen turned in a 75 for the Chargers.

Top tank times to be listed

Area swim coaches are urged to call in their best times on Fridays and Mondays, between 7:30 a.m. and 2 p.m., at 453-3100 (ext. 290). Late calls will not be accepted.

Rock netters victorious

Plymouth Salem notched its third straight Suburban Eight League tennis victory without a loss, downing Livonia Bentley Monday, 6-1.

The Rocks, 5-1 overall, lost only at No. 2 doubles. Bentley's Jan Hichorn and Gretchen Payne whipped Salem's Sandra Hathaway and Kathy Weber, 6-4, 6-3.

At No. 1 singles, senior Kathy Horton of Salem raised her individual mark to 5-1 with an easy 6-4, 6-0 win over Janet Ray. Teammate Carol Hathaway beat Audrey Devon of Bentley at No. 2 singles, 6-3, 6-4.

Salem's Betsy Moon and Renee Braun scored victories at No. 3 and No. 4 singles respectively. Moon took Shelly Mauch, 6-3, 6-4, and Braun defeated Pam Collins, 6-1, 6-3.

Salem's No. 1 doubles team, Vickie Sterling and Carol Gillespie, outlasted Ann Saboda and Sue Scrutton, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

At No. 3 doubles, Beth Baker and Lynn Hathaway downed Bentley's Sandra Smykowski and Laura Cook, 6-0, 6-2.

"Our lineup is set now," said Salem coach Judy Braun, who shuffled her players quite a bit in early season matches.

Salem will host Ypsilanti, Thursday at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the Rocks will compete in the eight-team Ann Arbor Pioneer Tennis Invitational.

"That should be an excellent day of tennis," said Braun. " A lot of good teams will be there."

Hewlett stars in reserve tilt

Former Plymouth Salem all-state quarterback Rich Hewlett was impressive Monday (Sept. 17) in the University of Michigan's junior varsity football loss to Michigan State.

No statistics, however, were compiled on the game according to U-M's Sports Information Department.

"Rich is an excellent quarterback who displayed many of his talents in yesterday's game," said Bob Thornbladh, Michigan's junior varsity coach and former Plymouth High School standout.

"Due to a hamstring pull early in pre-season practice, he has not fully learned our offense," Thornbladh said.

"However, the intangible qualities are there for him to be a great quarterback in the future."

Hewlett, a 6-foot-1, 195-pound freshman, is enrolled in the Literature, Science and Arts School and plans on majoring in business.

Lion freshmen hold on for win

The Plymouth Lions' freshmen team took a 12-0 haltime and then held on for a 12-6 victory over the Romulus Flyers in a Junior Football League game played Sunday.

The Lion's varsity squad came up short, losing to the host team, 13-12. In the junior varsity game, Romulus tripped Plymouth, 13-0.

On a broken field run, Kevin Cooper tallied the Lions' second TD when he ran 35 yards.

"Both the offensive and defensive units did an excellent job," said Lions' coach Richard Saah. "Romulus was an good club and we were fortunate to win.

Canton downs Thurston, 84-81

Salem swimmers raise record

Plymouth Salem swim coach Chuck Olson did some experimenting and came up with the winning formula as the Rocks splashed by Redford Union Tuesday night, 104-68.

The Rocks, 3-1 overall, won nine of 11 events in chalking up their third straight win.

"I switched a lot of people," said Olson. "I wanted to see what some of our people could do in other events."

Sophomore Kelly Brandt and Terri Eudy each won two events for the Rocks.

Brandt won the 200-yard freestyle (2:21.5) and 500-yard freestyle (6:27.2). Teammate Sue Evans was third in the event (6:29.5). Senior Sharon Ross, who has won three straight times in the 500-yard event, took a turn in the 100-yard breaststroke and placed third (1:10.7).

Eudy captured the 50-yard freestyle (:26.74) and 100-yard butterfly (1:11.3). Corinne Cabadas was third in the 50-yard freestyle (:28.98) and Salem teammate Linda Wochna was third in the butterfly (1:17.0).

Wochna was victorious in the 100-yard backstroke (1:09.0) and Cabadas took the 100-yard breaststroke (1:21.7). Salem's Karen Kohler was third in the latter event (1:22.1).

Renee Lakatos, Cabadas, Ross and Eudy won the 200-yard medley relay with a clocking of 2:05.7.

Ross placed first in the 200-yard individual medley and Evans gained third spot.

In diving, Salem took all three places. Natalie McClumpha won it with a 177.85 point total. Patty Larson was second (149) and Kathy Radgens was third (145.5).

"Brandt did extremely well," said Olson, "and Lazarus did a real nice job."

Lazarus anchored the second place 400-yard freestyle relay team which posted a time of 4:29.4. Other members of that team were Devora Camen, Ellen Wall and Brandt.

Ruth Ettinger, Martha Newland, Kathy Bomback and Sallie Weimer gained third place with a time of 4:58.3.

"We won a lot of close races tonight," said the veteran Salem coach. "A meet like this gives us flexibility. I'm trying to build confidence for the tougher meets coming up."

Olson's squad will not swim a meet again until Thursday, Oct. 4 against Livonia Churchill.

"We're going to practice and do a lot of training," said Olson. "We've been off the weights for two weeks. Now we're going to start using them again.

Canton-Thurston

Canton is 1-2 overall under first-year coach Mark Griffith.

Kim Massey and Tarja Tuominen each captured two events.

Massey won the 200-yard individual medley and 500-yard freestyle. Tuominen, an exchange student from Finland, won both the 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard butterfly.

Missy McMurray also placed first in the 50-yard freestyle.

Gaining second place finishes for the Chiefs included Brownwyn Fitzgerald, 100-yard breaststroke; Kris Burns, 100-yard backstroke; McMurray, 100-yard freestyle; Janet Powell, 200-yard freestyle and 200-yard individual medley.

Third place Canton swimmers included Debbie Dickinson, 50-yard freestyle; Chris Wennerberg, diving; Julie Stratton, 100-yard butterfly; Mary Reardon, 100-yard freestyle; Powell, 500-yard freestyle; Karen Mullen, 100-yard breaststroke.

"The swimmers are bringing their times down," said Griffith. "Some of them are learning to race."

Administrative help falling behind

PCJBL future clouded by lack of manpower

By BRAD EMONS

A lack of administrative help has clouded the future of the 1980 Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League (PCJBL) season.

According to Sandra Netz, secretary of the PCJBL, the demand created by more boys' and girls' registrants has far outweighed the supply of league volunteers needed to run an effective program.

"The prime purpose of the PCJBL is to promote citizenship, sportsmanship, fellowship and physical development among the youth of the Plymouth-Canton community, by sponsoring and promoting organized baseball events for boys and girls, ages 7 through 16," said Netz, citing the league by-laws.

Some 2,500 youngsters competed in PCJBL this past summer compared to 1,600 in 1978.

Two years ago, the PCJBL's Board of Directors sent a letter out to all participants' parents pleading for additional administrative help. That letter also threatened the termination of the league unless volunteers came forth.

They eventually did and the league survived.

At a meeting Sept. 12, 18 persons were in attendance to nominate officers for 1980. Among the positions for which nominations were taken included president, two vice presidents, three league directors, and an equipment chief.

"WE NEED five or six equipment people for the leagues," said Netz.

The PCJBL secretary said other positions not yet filled included maintenance, registration, practice fields, fund-raising, trophy procurement, three league directorships, umpire chief and player-agent (dispersing of youngsters on waiting lists).

"We need people to run our concessions and we should have about 25 on the board of directors," Netz said.

"Some people may feel that by paying to register their child, that they're supporting the league," added Netz. "In truth, they are, but if there are not people to operate and maintain the league, the money is of no use.

"The people in this league are not paidd, they volunteer their time.

"At our last meeting, of the ones who attended, most were board members," she said. "It's impossible to expect 18 people to handle all of the jobs.

"We have parents come and protest the games, but have never offered help. We don't mind complaints as long as more people are involved. It's often aggravating."

Netz said its "almost impossible to run a complete baseball program without adult volunteers."

The PCJBL will hold its next meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in room 128 at Canton High School.

The remaining positions will be filled at that time.

Canton searching for 1st grid win

Plymouth Canton, hoping to break a four-game football losing streak, will try to snap out of its drought Friday at Northville in a Western Six League encounter.

Meanwhile, Plymouth Salem, winner of its last two games, will play its fourth-straight game on the road traveling all the way to Utica Eisenhower Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Canton head coach Dave Schuele may make further personnel changes for Northville. Senior halfback Steve Gray, who played the entire fourth quarter at quarterback in the Chiefs' 25-7 loss to Walled Lake Western last Friday, may get the call against Northville (1-2).

Northville, too, will be looking for its first Western Six victory. The Mustangs opened the season with an impressive 21-6 victory over Redford Thurston, making it a happy debut for first-year coach Dennis Colligan, who succeeded Chuck Shonta.

Two weeks ago, Northville lost to Westland John Glenn in overtime, 21-20.

Senior offensive back Joe Hamp has been the key for Northville thus far. He rushed for 130 yards against Thurston and 85 against John Glenn. He was stymied however last Saturday in a 13-0 loss to Farmington Harrison.

He will direct Northville's veer offense.

ON DEFENSE, Northville standouts include senior middle linebacker Bob Boshevon (5-foot-10, 175 pounds) and defensive end Rob Marzonie (6-2, 180).

Plymouth Salem will travel to the eastern suburbs to meet Utica Eisenhower (2-1), a member of the Oakland Athletic League's North Division.

Eisenhower was impressive in its first two victories, beating Rochester Adams, 7-0, and St. Clair Shores Lakeview (Salem's sixth opponent), 3-0.

"They have a good defense and like to throw the ball a lot," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer.

Leading the way for Eisenhower will be quarterback Mike Dailey and end-linebacker Mike Showinsky.

Troy racked up 214 total yards against Eisenhower, 170 coming on the ground. The Utica totaled 170 yards last week, 113 of which came by passing.

Salem was impressive in its 27-6 victory over Dearborn last Friday, making just one turnover and one penalty.

Moshimer went to his bench more than ever against the Pioneers as halfback Brian Lewandowski, fullback Dave Skone and linebacker Steve Szilagyi, all juniors, saw considerable action.

Canton golfers defeated by 7

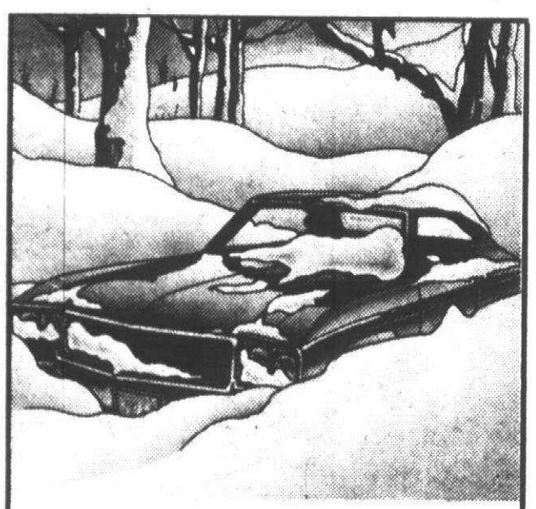

Farmington Harrison handed Plymouth Canton its fourth Western Six League golf loss of the season, Monday at San Marino, 211-218.

The loss dropped Canton to 2-6 overall and 1-4 in the league.

Dave Visser of Canton and Ted Kallarien of Harrison tied for medalist honors. Both shot 39s.

Scott Adler was next for Canton with a 42. Other Canton scores included John Matthews (44), Scott Hand (46) and Doug Moffatt (47).

Canton will starts its second round of play in the Western Six League Thursday against Livonia Churchill at Hilltop Golf Course in Plymouth Township.

Draining and replacing anti-freeze this fall is no guarantee that your car's engine won't overheat and leave you out in the cold.

Because in any kind of weather, radiators and cooling systems should be kept free from rust and harmful build-ups. In fact, most automobile manufacturers recommend that your car's radiator and cooling system be flushed before draining to refill with anti-freeze.

That's where WYNN'S® X-TEND® Power-Flush corrective maintenance program can help. Because it helps scour and clean your car's radiator and cooling system, and gives added protection to help stop leaks, corrosion and overheating—real enemies of engine life.

So ask for WYNN'S X-TEND Power-Flush when you take your car for service.

It'll help keep your engine from overheating, while it puts expensive repairs on ice.

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

High scoring reached an early season peak on the area's bowling lanes during the past week. When the final pin fell Anita Cantaline's Jac-Ro team and Bob Jawor's Pro Sports combination were virtually assured of high places in the national rankings.

In the Bowlerette's League at Luxury Lanes Monday night, Anita and her mates rolled a 3078 series with a middle game of 1110 which is certain to cause national attention.

Meanwhile in the Litte Caesar's Classic at Westland, Jawor and company turned in 3361 series that included games of 1127, 1134 and 1100. This is high for the state thus far.

To aid Anita with her Jac-Ro team, Elvira Toepfer contributed a 625, Cheryl Mertz added a 654, Pat Rizzo a 578 and Bonnie McKay a 549.

Jawor paced his own team with a 757 to lead the Little Caesar's League. He had games of 247, 258 and 246. Mike Lee was right behind him with a 733 that included a 258 middle game. Jay Dishong came through with games of 243 and 263 in 706.

The women also did well in the Classic when Gerri Beattie had a 259 in 615, Julie Zimmerman a 582 and Leandra Michalak a 564.

TWO OTHER BOWLERS broke the 700 barrier in the terrific assault on the pins.

At Farmington Lanes, Jim Schaefer, bowling in the Junior House League rolled a 702 that included games of 264 and 246. And in the Super Bowl Classic, Tom Snead broke the 700 barrier with a 724.

He got away to a grand start with games of 255 and 267, but fell to 207 in his final. His nearest rival was Tom Wojwowski with a 643.

ALONG WITH THE high scores another honor came to the Farmington Lanes bowlers when Jim Hamlin, son of Fred Hamlin, the owner, was awarded a bowling scholarship at Saginaw Valley College.

This is a new program among the colleges, and young Hamlin is one of the first to be so honored. /1 IN OTHER good performances at Farmington, Berry Van Dike showed the way in the Saturday Junior Hi league with a 246 in 662. In the High School Circuit, Dave Hamilton was high with 246 in 668 and Linda Hamlin showed the way in the girls league with 190 in 529. In the Mixed Classic, Rudy Pearson was high with with a 247 in 668.?l

BETTY MOELLER took top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic by winning the third game with 211-43 — 254 and the series with a 495-129 — 626. In the other games, Delores Dowhan shared first with 165-44 — 209 and Dot Fulton matched it with 187-22 209. Joan Lewis then won the second with 199-30 — 229.

DICK HALE and Brad Coyle put on a great show in the Pin Busters league at Plaza Lanes before Dick emerged the winner with counts of 212, 219 and 229 for 659. Coyle slumped to a 176 after games of 230 and 242.

DICK QUITON learned what it is like to draw a frown from Lady Luck. After piling up 10 strikes in a row in the St. Edith League at Woodland Lanes, He left up the No. 10 twice and had to settle for a 268 game.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Ron Beyer paced the TGIF loop a loop at Garden Lanes with a 598 to beat Bob Williams by 19 pins. At Merri Bowl, Peggy Jackson showed the way in the doubles with 598, which was 15 pins better than Mary Mohacsi in second place. Sue Sternett landed third with 576. In the Ladies League at Super Bowl, Linda Uherek was high with 560, three pins more than Trish Connell. In the Senior Citizens League, Clarence Sierakowski was high with 244 and Tom Snead who earlier had the 724 posted a 656 in the regular men's league, but finished second to Larry Sartus who closed with a 233 for 658.

Holding onto a three-point lead, Stevenson ran off 1:12 of the clock before turning the ball over to Canton with 1:17 to go.

"WE DIDN'T execute the four-corners and had only one shot at the hoop," said McCauley. We're going to work twice as hard on the boards.

"We're just not there defensively yet although we improved since last time. We've got to go out and work hard in practice and play more as a team."

McCauley said his team's performance in the ball-handling department was "pathetic."

"We shot free throws all right but that wasn't enough. I thought we should have won."

Kelley led Stevenson with 16 points. Guard Beth Mueller, who had 11 in the first half, chipped in with 14.

Pedersen and Durocher led Canton with 11 and 10 respectively.

Canton travels to Walled Lake Western in a Western Six League on Thursday.

Rock harriers drop dual to Churchill

Livonia Churchill handed Plymouth Salem a 24-33 boys' cross country loss Tuesday afternoon in a non-league dual meet.

Teammate Paul Hess, running for the first time in two weeks, placed third with a time of 17:30.

Salem travels to Dearborn Edsel Ford Thursday at 4 p.m.

Draining and replacing anti-freeze this fall is no guarantee that your car's engine won't overheat and leave you out in the cold.

Because in any kind of weather, radiators and cooling systems should be kept free from rust and harmful build-ups. In fact, most automobile manufacturers recommend that your car's radiator and cooling system be flushed before draining to refill with anti-freeze.

That's where WYNN'S® X-TEND® Power-Flush corrective maintenance program can help. Because it helps scour and clean your car's radiator and cooling system, and gives added protection to help stop leaks, corrosion and overheating—real enemies of engine life.

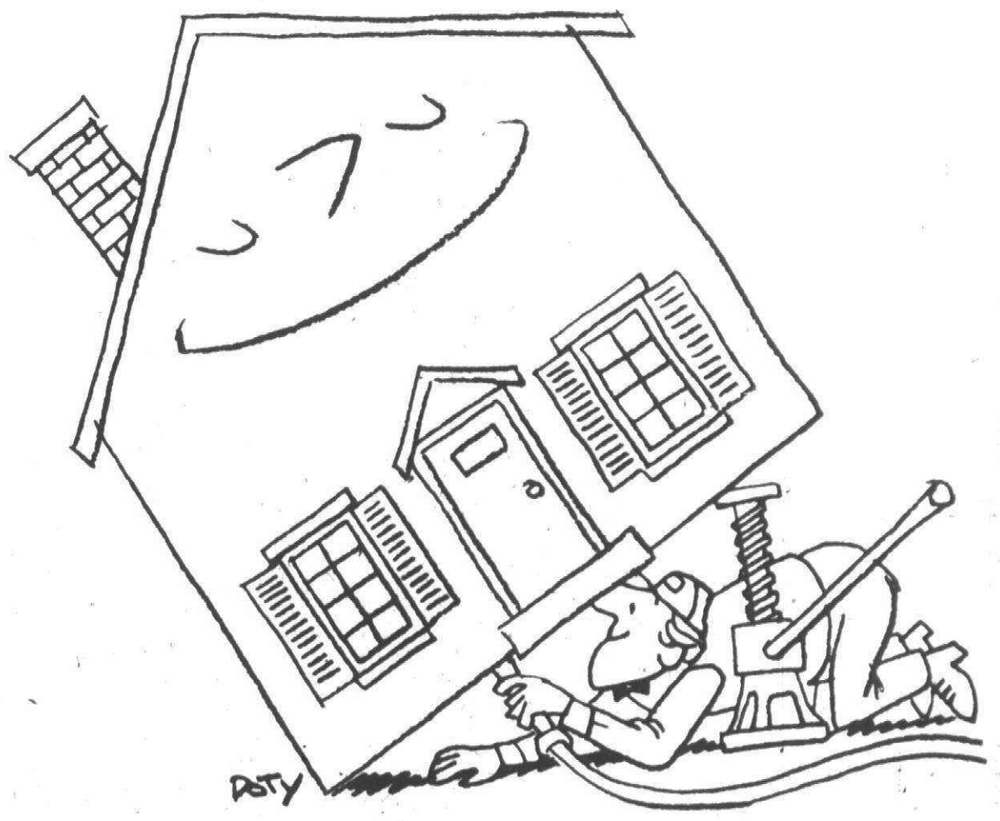

So ask for WYNN'S X-TEND Power-Flush when you take your car for service.

It'll help keep your engine from overheating, while it puts expensive repairs on ice.

Key tests may seal fate of U-M squad

By W.W. EDGAR

For the first time in many years, the fate of the Michigan football team may be sealed before the season reaches the halfway mark.

After three games in which they played rather mediocre football, the Wolverines are now at what the legendary "Hurry-Up" Yost used to call the crossroads.

With an offense that even Coach Bo Schembechler rates far below par for Michigan, the team travels to the west coast to meet California on Saturday and then invades the Michigan State University stadium the following week.

And it is in these two games that it will be pretty well known whether the Wolverines will be headed toward another Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl or be rated as just another team playing out its schedule.

While Michigan has won two of its first three games, losing only to Notre Dame, the offense has been a disappointment thus far.

This was proven again last Saturday — although there were moments when it looked like the offense had it all together. One of those came when they took the opening kickoff and marched more than 60 yards down the field to score. At that point it seemed that Schembechler had put his offense together. But over the rest of the way it was faulty.

Following the game Bo admitted that the blocking of the offensive line was poor and that the team should have scored more than the four touchdowns. As usual, the defense was strong against Kansas, allowing only one first down in the first half.

Along with the faulty blocking, there still is a problem at quarterback. Against Kansas Schembechler used both B.J. Dickey and John Wangler and he later admitted that he may have to go with alternating the pair over the rest of the season.

This means that Rich Hewlett, the former Plymouth Salem star, may see little action, despite the fact that the coaches rated him highly for his work with the junior varsity.

East, West lose cage games

Thurston girls wrap up victory

Dearborn Heights Annapolis capitalized on a host of Garden City West turnovers to record a 66-42 girls' basketball victory Tuesday over the Tigers in a non-league clash.

Darcy Waldron was the high scorer for West with 16 points. Teammate Kathy Neslund added 12.

"Annapolis out-ballhandeled us entirely," said Pat Burke, coach of the Tigers. "They must have had 50 steals.

"We're learning by our mistakes. But I don't know if we're learning enough to make it a winning league season."

West, which has lost three in a row after a season-opening victory, will start on its Tri-River league campaign next week.

ALL NINE Redford Thurston players scored during the Eagles' 80-8 thrashing of Dearborn Heights Riverside in a non-conference get-together.

Thurston's first team played the first and third quarters, while the second team showed its stuff during the second and fourth periods.

Jean Rowley and Theresa Moran each scored 16 points for the Eagles, Barb Beebe added 12, Pam Duryea 11 and Beth Socall and Donna Deperro, eight apiece.

"This is only the second year they've had basketball over there and they didn't have very much," said Thurston coach George Heger.

The easy victory improved the Eagles' season record to 4-1.

Thurston will travel to Redford Union for its Northwest Suburban League opener at 6 p.m. tonight.

GARDEN CITY EAST'S overall record was evened at 2-2 when the Panthers dropped a 47-37 non-league verdict to Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

East, which trailed 11-8 after the first quarter, 24-15 at the half and 34-27 after three periods, pulled within two points midway through the final quarter.

However, Sherri Kiselica fouled out at that point and the Panthers were unable to keep pace.

Cathy Narramore scored 18 points for East, Kiselica 12.

"The big problem was that we didn't get a balanced scoring attack, and we were out-rebounded," said Leona Dost, coach of the Panthers. "We just didn't get scoring from the other people, which has to come."

Despite the defeat, Dost said she was impressed with the way her team dealt with Crestwood's pressing defense. Dost also said she was pleased with the work of Narramore.

East will open its Northwest Suburban League season tonight at North Farmington. Tip-off time is 7:30 p.m.

Fumbles hurt Salem

JV Chiefs gain shutout

By STEVE GRAY

Two second-half touchdown runs by halfbacks Steve Hamblin and Steve Johnson broke a scoreless tie and defense did the rest as the Plymouth Canton junior varsity football team shut out Garden City East, 14-0, Thursday at Centennial Educational Park.

"Our defense really rose to the occasion," said Canton coach Dean Naude. "Every time we needed a big play defensively, we got it.

Two interceptions, one by linebacker Dan Smith and the other by defensive back Jamie Chilcoff, helped the Chief cause as the defense stymied countless Panther drives.

Canton will travel to Walled Lake Western Thursday (today) at 4 p.m.

Salem-Dearborn

Dearborn scored two on kickoff returns totaling 121 yards and took advantage of three Plymouth Salem fumbles in gaining a 19-14 victory Thursday at Centennial Educational Park.

Quarterback Jeff Hubert accounted for both Rock touchdowns. He hit split end John Cohen on a 10-yard scoring pass and found the end zone himself on a 45-yard dash.

Salem, now 0-1-1, outgained Dearborn in total yardage, 280-140, but lost three fumbles inside the Pioneer 20-yard line.

Salem has an open date this week but will return to action at home, Oct. 4, against St. Clair Shores Lakeview.

Softball tilt

The Plymouth Jaycees will be sponsoring a softball tourney, Oct. 6-7 at Massey Field for Class B and C teams.

All proceeds will go toward the sodding of Massey Field in Plymouth.

The entry fee is $80 per team. Only 16 teams will be admitted into the tournament. All teams must provide one Dudley softball for each game.

Sponsor trophies will be awarded to the first and second place teams. Individual trophies will also be given to the champions and runners-up.

Preparation time is lengthy

Race only caps off Michigan Mile

BY DAVE SCHWARTZ

Months of planning went into an event which took less than two minutes to complete.

That's the story every year for the Michigan Mile, won Saturday by favored Sensitive Prince at the Detroit Race Course. The win could be a sad one, as Prince was limping after the race.

As the four-year-old Sensitive Prince crossed the wire in 1:52.3, it culminated the efforts of hundreds of hours of work.

Preparations for the 31st Michigan Mile started months before the running.

First of all, the money must be set up for the purse.

This year, it was $115,500.

A big stakes race like the Mile generally never will pay for itself. Not enough is bet, and not enough people attend on Michigan Mile Day, to make it profitable for DRC.

The way that DRC handles that problem is by taking the purse money from the profits made during the regular racing schedule. Sears figures that exposing the fans to a top racing card for one day will be worth more exposure and money for DRC in the long run.

THAT'S WHY Sears added three other features to the 10-race card, such as the $20,000 Damascus Stake, the $15,000 Sting sprint race and the $25,000 Replay Handicap.

However, Sears feels that "it's in the very near future" that the Michigan Mile will be able to offer those $300,000 purses which will attract racing's elite horses.

Letters are sent all over the country and Canada screening possible entries. About 100 top horses are considered.

From those 100 horses, the list is trimmed down to a field of about 35. This is known as being nominated. Of course, one important consideration is which trainers will accept an offer to race in the Mile.

It is not realistic to expect horses such as Affirmed, the Kentucky Derby winner, to compete.

However, the field always has impressive candidates. Sears felt that this year's was the best ever. Sensitive Prince and runner-up Prince Majestic both chased Affirmed and Alydar in last year's Derby.

The next step is where the money starts to flow. It costs $100 to accept a nominatation. That's just the beginning. The 12 starters had to put up an additional $1,000 to go to the post.

BUT WAIT, there's much more. Add expenses of travel, workers and other intangibles and it costs as much as $6,000 for a horse like Darby Creek Road to come all the way from California. And that's a very conservative estimate. Sears then must decide handicaps. Some horses are allowed to carry less weight than others. Sears decides this by evaluating the horses' past performances. Sensitive Prince was assigned the heaviest weight at 123 pounds.

Post positions are drawn a couple of days before the race at a media brunch.

Action begins early on Saturday. The weeks and months of preparation are coming to a head. At 2 p.m., the first race is set to begin and 12,108 fans pour into the track, ready to bet more than $250,000 dollars during the day.

JUST OVER 4½ hours later, the mile began. Actually, the race has been 1⅛ miles since 1964. The necessity of lengthening the race came about when a horrible jam-up marred the 1958 mile. The distance was eventually changed to it's present length.

Twelve horses paraded to the post. The list included A Letter to Harry, last year's Mile winner; Hold Your Tricks; a Chicago entry; and Poverty Boy, a Detroit favorite.

Sensitive Prince was the listed favorite at 8-5. The odds on him dropped to a very heavy favorite 3-4 before post time. Prince Majestic was listed at 4-1, Darby Creek Road, 5-1.

It was a cool, sharp day. The track was dry and fast, with shadows lengthening due to the setting sun. The gates opened and the race was on to the screaming of the fans.

THE RACE was almost anti-climatic. Sensitive Prince broke away right from the start to an early lead on the inside rail. He looked strong and almost effortless as the horses bunched up around the first turn. "It's too tight out there. Someone's going to get hurt," yelled an excited racing buff.

At the eight pole, Prince Majestic came up to challange. He appeared to have a chance to overtake the leader.

But Sensitive Prince had too much horse in him. Jockey Jacinto Vasquez held off the challange easily, to win leading wire-to-wire. The win payed $3.20, $2.80 and $2.40.

In winning, Sensitive Prince overcame a big jinx of favorites who have been upset. In 1966, Tom Rolfe, the 1965 national three-year-old champ ridden by Willie Shoemaker, was beaten by Stanislaus, a 21-1 longshot. The next year, he was beaten by unknown Estrano II, a win that paid a mile record of $250.60 for a $2 win ticket.

The most stunning upset came in 1968 when super horse Damascus, who had garnered almost every honor in '67, was upset by Nodouble.

PRINCE MAJESTIC, who placed second, paid $4.40 and $3.60. Sorry Lookin' finished third, a longshot that paid $7.00 to show. A Letter to Harry finished fourth, failing to be the first horse to win two consecutive Miles.

Jockey Vasquez and owners Dennis Milne, Joseph Taub and Hilliary Boone accepted the traditional winner's trophy and roses.

"He's a speed horse — you can't reign him," said Vasquez, who rode two winners during the day. "He handled well, but not as well as I would have liked. It was a very consistent track. Prince has bad luck with horses like Affirmed, but he's still one of the top horses in the country."

After the race was over, and the fans had long left, Sensitive Prince was seen limping heavily. He had never pulled up sore after a race before. With trainer H. Allen Jerkens away at a funeral, the fate of Sensitive Prince was up in the air. It was announced that he would be tried in another race, but it could have been a very tragic victory.

It was a sad ending to the festive day. Meanwhile, Sears will start the whole ball of wax over again next year for the 1980 Michigan Mile.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

by ELLIE GRAHAM

"WHAT'S GOING on up there?" is a frequent question in this office. "Up there" is the Mayflower Meeting House.

Friday visitors to the office will ask, "What's going on upstairs?" We reply, "It's just the Plymouth Rotary Club."

We're used to them and can follow their luncheon meetings by the sounds. Scraping of chairs, singing, more scraping of chairs: They are eating. More singing and tapping of feet: That's Bob Sparling at the piano to accompany the sing-along. Quiet: They're listening to the speaker of the day.

Probably the noisiest bunch was the meeting of the Tupperware salespersons last week. They stamped their feet, sang and hollered all day long.

But on Oct. 22 we will have a first. There will be $2 million worth of furs right over our heads. The occasion will be a fashion show and champagne luncheon with furs from Dittrich's and other fashions from Me and Mr Jones. Admission will be $7.

Jim is auditorium manager and electronics teacher at the Centennial Educational Park. He has been with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for nine years.

For the past four years, Jim has been involved with the Big Brother/Sister program. He now has his second "little brother."

He gave the reason for his involvement Monday night as a speaker representing Big Brothers to the Plymouth Community Fund at its annual kick-off dinner in the Mayflower Meeting House.

"The most significant contribution I'll make in my lifetime is what I give to my children," Jim told the audience of 100 persons. "In dealing with students, I have come to realize that many of their serious problems are related to single-parent families.

"I thought about what it would be like in life without a dad and what I would miss — the giving and the sharing, and the son taking. That's what led me to Big Brothers.

"I don't try to replace my little brother's father. I try to give him part of my father. By sharing my dad with him, he has a model to emulate. I'm doing the best I can do and that is to love him.

"If a child grows up without love, and is sad and lonely, then everyone loses."

EDWIGE HEYVEART, who was an exchange student at Plymouth High School for the 1970-71 term, spent four days in Plymouth. She stayed with Florence Griggs with whom she lived during her year as a PHS senior.

Edwige still lives in Antwerp, Belgium. She works for a plastics company which has its world headquarters in Beaverton, Mich. While she was in the United States she went to Niagara Falls, Chicago and Texas. Florence has made two trips to Antwerp and visited with the Heyvearts.

WILMARTH AND MARGARET Morris of Warren Road in Canton Township celebrated their golden anniversary earlier this week. In fact there were three celebrations.

They went out for dinner Sunday with their family then came back to the Morrises for a visit. They have two sons, John G. of West Bloomfield and Thomas A. of Portage; and six grandchildren.

"All of them could not attend," said Mrs. Morris. "One of them, our grandson, David Morris, is in the Philippines with the Peace Corps. His two years are up and he'll be traveling all through the Orient before he comes home the week before Christmas."

The couple was married Sept. 24, 1929 in Barre, Vt., where both were born and raised. Mr. Morris retired 11 years ago. He was a printer for the Detroit News.

"He started learning the trade when he was 17," said Margaret. "We did have three generations of printers. My husband's father was a printer and our son started out but went into another business."

The Morrises are members of the Canton Seniors Citizens Club and also the Livonia Seniors. As members of Newburg Methodist Church they are eligible for membership in the Livonia Club which surprised the couple with a party on Monday. They also had an open house on Monday for friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Morris' sister, Rose Spargo, came from Dunedin, Fla. for the 50th anniversary. She had been maid of honor at their wedding. Mr. Morris' sister came from Mt. Pelier, Vt. for the party.

Canton teacher is researching Civil War unit

By BETTY MASSON

Bill Dixon, a Detroit school teacher, has lived in Canton Township for only one year, but he is well on his way to going down in history as an expert on Plymouth's Civil War soldiers.

Like Topsy, Dixon's interest in western Wayne county's role in the Civil War "just grew." The initial seed was an interest in shooting which led him to join the 24th Michigan Volunteer Infantry six years ago. This club models itself after Company C of the 24th Michigan Regiment, a regiment which became part of the famed Iron Brigade.

Members of the club are chiefly interested in shooting in "skirmishes" throughout the country. One of the most notable is held every June at Greenfield Village.

Names out of the past, such as Capt. Calvin Crosby, Lt. W. F. Safford, Clark Eddy, Roswell Root, the Rev. William C. Way, Lucius Shattuck, Abel G. Peck and Asa Joy, have increasingly captured Dixon's interest.

This fall, he has been visiting local cemeteries to try to track down what became of them.

Thanks to Dixon, the grave of Capt. Crosby, the company commander, is being cleaned up.

It had been badly neglected. "The gravestone was three-quarters buried," said Dixon, "so I called the department of public works and the guy there promised they would clean it up right away."

ANOTHER FORTUITOUS MEETING occurred at the cemetery. A California resident, who was there looking over the family plot, told Dixon that his name was Thompson and that he had grown up in Plymouth. He remembered some of the Civil War veterans, he told Dixon.

He also said that Riverside Cemetery is on land (on Plymouth Road east of Plymouth) which was owned by the Shattuck family, but Lucius was not buried there. Shattuck fell at Gettysburg and his body was never recovered from the carnage there.

Dixon also visited the Plymouth Historical Museum for the first time recently.

"I'm in ecstasy here," he said. When last seen, he was happily engrossed in a book containing copies of letters sent home by Plymouth soldiers.

The museum also has several pictures and documents of interest, one of which was given to the museum by a Plymouth Mail reporter, Jean Campeau, in 1961. It had turned up in the Mail offices.

Seeing this, a framed "Military Register," Dixon said, "Would I ever love to have this in my living room."

There is also a picture of survivors of the 24th Michigan taken at the dedication of a monument in their honor at Gettysburg on June 12, 1889. Dixon already has a copy of this among his extensive collection of Civil War mementos.

DIXON DOES HAVE a book on the history of the 24th. The work is entitled "A History of the 24th Michigan Regiment," written by O. B. Curtis, the regimental historian. It was published in 1891. Neither the museum nor the Plymouth Library has a copy.

Dixon acquired the book after an extensive search by a Troy book dealer, who finally located two copies in Georgia. The second copy went to a friend of Dixon's.

Dixon also has a copy of "The 24th Michigan" written by Donald L. Smith and published in 1962 as a centennial commemoration.

The 24th Michigan was formed in 1862 as a result of anti-war riots in Detroit, according to Dixon. So embarrassed were the people of Wayne County by the riots they decided to form a 24th regiment, even though the federal government had only asked for 23. It was also decided to make it a Wayne County Regiment.

Men throughout the county were enrolled in July and August, and joined the Army of the Potomac. They were assigned to the Iron Brigade,which had earned its name and the right to wear black Hardee hats in the battle of Antietam. Observers noted that these men from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan were "like iron."

But members of the 24th Michigan were "the new kids," and had to earn their right to wear the black hats. This they did in December of 1862 at Fredericksburg. In April and May, they fought at Chancellorsville.

IT WAS AT GETTYSBURG that the regiment really earned its spurs. Total losses were 397 killed, wounded and taken prisoner, the highest of any regiment in that battle.

Abel Peck, a Nankin farmer, carried the company's colors into battle and was shot down. Seven more died carrying the colors.

The Rev. C. William Way of Plymouth, the history book notes, was the only regimental chaplain who stayed with his regiment throughout the war. He also acted as a war correspondent for the Detroit Tribune.

In February 1865, after the battles of Cold Harbor and Spottsylvania and the siege of Petersburg, the 24th was sent to Camp Butler in Springfield, Ill., to rest and recuperate.

On April 9, 1865, Lee surrendered, and on April 14 Lincoln was assassinated. Members of the 24th were in the honor guard for his burial.

Chances are that Dixon will not quit until he finds out where all the members of C Company who survived the war are buried. Already he has visited the Ridge Road Cemetery, as well as Riverside. Museum records show that Civil War Veterans are also buried in Cherry Hill Cemetery, Downer, Kenyon, Chubb and Sheldon.

Graves of all Civil War Veterans are marked with a star, but Dixon will have to check the names against his list of members of C Company.

THIS SEARCH IS just another facet that has taken Dixon hours of research and of travel. A physical education and social studies teacher at Harding School, he has already spent a lot of time in the Burton Historical Museum in Detroit working on a thesis for a master's degree.

The subject he has chosen is "The Recreational Life and Sport of the Civil War soldier."

Dixon has also visited almost all the Civil War battlefronts. He regularly participates in skirmishes with his 1859 Springfield rifle, for which he molds his own bullets.

His wife made his uniform and his boots are reproductions of those worn by soldiers of that era. They come from Massachusetts.

Besides shooting regularly at Greenfield Village, he has participated in the National Skirmish, held twice a year in Winchester, Va., 15 times.

The 24 Michigan club has 20-30 members from the Detroit area, and holds its own skirmish once every three years. About 30 other clubs in the midwest do the same thing, including one staged by the First Texas Infantry for the North South Skirmish Association in August. This was held on the Western Wayne County Conservation Association grounds in Plymouth. Members of the First Texas Infantry also live in the Detroit suburbs.

Each club patterns itself after a different Civil War unit, and each tends to concentrate either on shooting or on marching.

For anyone interested in tracing his roots and wanting to know more about his ancestor's participation in the Civil War, Dixon is a good place to start.

Backgammon booms

Members of Plymouth's American Backgammon Club, Inc., were concerned about a small group showing up for their first major tournament of the fall season. As it turned out, more than 150 players turned out Sunday afternoon for play at the Plymouth Hilton. They came from Windsor and Flint as well as the metropolitan Detroit communities.

Refunders convert 'garbage' into hard cash

Canton Chatter

By SAM NICHOLS 397-0429

Madeline Green was the guest of honor at a bridge luncheon Monday, Sept. 10. Hostess Bea Schibley served a delightful luncheon which was enjoyed by group members Judi Thomas, Mary Ellen Roth, Edie Wilmoth and Marge Mogelnicki. Bea's mother-in-law, Mrs. Lorene Schibley, visiting from West Virginia, joined the group for the day.

During rounds of bridge, group members said their good-byes to Madeline, who was now moved to near Riverside, Calif. Madeline, a collector of fans and items featuring fans, was presented a lace-trimmed throw pillow accented with a fan in greens and golds. The pillow had been hand quilted by Judi Thomas, and will now be, as Madeline said, "a fond remembrance of Canton and friends."

Madeline will be missed by her many friends in Canton. She was active in Canton Newcomers Club, played in several bridge groups, and was a member of a bowling league. She also will be remembered as a very good neighbor, and is wished only the best in sunny California.

MEMBERS of this bridge group have been together for two years, and at least thought they knew each other quite well. Recently, however, Mary Ellen Roth has begun to wonder about some of the members' peculiarities.

At a recent meeting, Judi Thomas asked the ladies to save their garbage for her. At the Sept. 10 bridge, Judi came armed with her "list of garbage needed." Marge Mogelnicki and I protested. We didn't have our September "trash lists" ready yet, and, after all, why should Judi get all the good garbage!

Mary Ellen, with visions of used coffee grounds, potato peels, and green things growing in the refrigerator dancing through her mind, asked if she could please see the list. Looking it over, she breathed a quiet sigh of relief to find out that Judi was not saving her visions of garbage.

"But what on earth do you do with Duncan Hines cake mix net weights, the words 'pull open' from White Cloud, and Nestea innerseals from three ounce jars?" asked Mary Ellen.

"We refund," was the unanimous answer of Judi, Marge, and myself. Many companies will offer money back to consumers for just trying their products. With rising prices, more and more people are taking advantage of these offers.

MARY LOU Stretke has recently formed a coupon and refunding interest group in the Canton Newcomers Club. The group has about 20 members including Pat Block, Judi Thomas, Pat Ozust, Polly LaScala, Marge Mogelnicki, Connie Tiano, Penny Luddecke, Rose Jean, Karen Wilson and Kathy Freece.

They get together once a month to discuss refund offers and store policies, and trade refund certificates and qualifiers. Qualifiers are the items from the product, such as a box top, which the manufacturer wants the consumer to mail as proof of purchase of the product.

Members of the group are now making anywehre from $5 to $40 each month by refunding.

Plus, they have the added savings from using cents off coupons at the stores, which is especially great when stores offer double coupon days.

The group feels area stores are very nice to coupon users, but wishes stores made the refund certificates more readily available. Any Canton Newcomer interested in joining the group may do so by contacting Mary Lou at 981-1635.

JUDI THOMAS, Laura O'Neil, Judy Lalley, and I attended the Michigan Refunder's Convention at the Troy Holiday Inn. This has become an annual event planned by Cherie Charter, editor of "The Coupon Clipper."

We are all fairly new at refunding, and wanted to learn more about how to make the most money. More than 300 persons attended the convention, so there are many refunders in the area.

It was a very informative day, not without its amusing episodes. One lady brought about six of the large garbage bags full of labels, box tops and bottoms, and soap and candy wrappers. She dumped all the bags' contents in one corner of the room and announced the goodies were on sale for three cents each.

Judi, Laura, Judy, and I were nearly trampled as we joined the stampede for that corner. I regretted not having my camera to record the moment for posterity.

Imagine, if you can, about 100 women digging through a mountain of labels, wrappers, and box parts.

FOR THOSE interested in refunding, the ladies now refunding recommend subscribing to one or more refund newspapers. They help get you started, then keep you informed and up to date.

"The Coupon Clipper" will send a sample copy for $1., if you write P.O. Box 305, Beulah, Col. 81023.

"The Money Maker Bulletin" will send a sample for 75 cents by writing P.O. Box 13564, St. Louis, Mo. One can sbscribe to "The Money Maker Bulletin" for $2.50 for three issues, $4.50 for six issues, or $7.50 for 12 issues. These are just two of many refund bulletins. Subscription rates are similar for most.

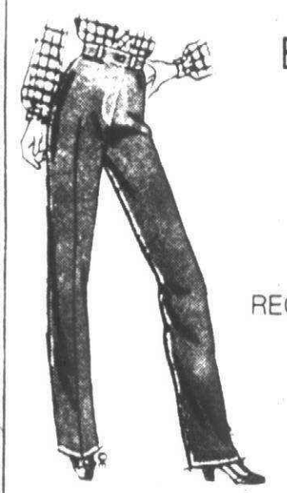

By subscribing to several of these papers, Judi Thomas and Marge Mogelnicki are able to save qualifiers in advance for offers that may not expire until December or even next June.

It's an enjoyable, interesting, and money-making hobby. Although garbage may not be Mary Ellen Roth's bag, (forgive me, I couldn't help myself!) at least she knows some of her bridge club members aren't quite as strange as she once thought.

And now that I've finished this article, I'm going to clean the corner of our garage that contains "my trash." My husband has been threatening that unless this area is spiffed up a bit, he's going to declare my trash "garbage," and haul it out to the curb.

Apple Festival Saturday

Old Village will celebrate its second annual Apple Festival from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. when the picturesque area of Plymouth turns its brick streets over to artists and craftsmen, apples, cider, apple pies and general festivity.

There will be country music by the "Moonshiners" from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The group will be between Gail Opel's Sweets and Treats Shop and Marda Benson's Clothes Tree Plus.

At 2 p.m., the crowds will congregate in Cannon Park for the dedication of the Victorian gazebo and the planting of another apple tree. City and state officials will be on hand for the ceremony.

Most of the arts and crafts will be in the fountain area. The Plymouth Canton High School Class of '82 will be selling polished apples and cider at three locations in the village.

Gourmet cook Larry Janes will demonstrate some of the wonderful dishes that can be made from apples — deep dish apple pie, apple frappe, apple turnovers and apple crescents. These will be auctioned off to the crowd.

While the shopkeepers, members of the Old Village Association, don blue jeans and straw hats for the harvest festival, waiters in tuxedos and the proper white linen napkins on their arms, will dispense champagne to the visitors.

At 2:30 p.m., a new group of musicians will begin its stint. Banjo West with eight banjos and two guitars will perform in the gazebo.

Bill Ruhr, Ronnie Seburt of the Accent Bin and Bonnie Eddlemon of the Wicker Shop are chairing the festivities with the assistance of Pat Hann, Lorraine Waun and all the merchants.

There will be colorful balloons and apple strudel baked at the Old Village delicatessen, and all the interesting shops and boutiques will be open.

BUYING A HOME IS THE MOST IMPORTANT PURCHASE IN YOUR LIFETIME.

So make the decision a good one.

Buying a home is probably the best hedge against inflation. Historically, homes have increased in value at a rate far greater than any other product.

If you've gambled in the stock market, you've found that's what it is. A gamble. If you've invested in gold, silver or diamonds, you've found that you have to spend a great deal of time watching the fluctuation . . . and you have to act fast.

Home purchase gives you immediate benefits. You can live in it for as many years as you choose. You can deduct your interest and real estate taxes in the very first year.

Should the time come to sell, it is very likely that you will make a profit as homes have increased in value at a much greater pace than inflation.

So when you buy, be sure of the location. Be sure of your builder. And be very sure that you have a saleable home inside and out. You can be sure at Meadowview.

Ellen Moulton, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kelly Moulton, Mary McAuliffe and Margaret Pitt of Boston, and Donna Micali of Long Island, N.Y.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother, Christopher Boyce. Ushers were Michael, Brian, Dennis and Kevin Moulton, brothers of the bride.

Following a wedding reception at Florham Park Country Club, Florham, N.J., the couple honeymooned in San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands. They will live in Needham, Mass.

DAR delegates attend Kalamazoo conference

The Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution sent a delegation to the DAR of Michigan's 79th State Conference. The annual meeting at the Kalamazoo Center Hilton Inn was Sept. 26 and 27.

Members attending the conference were Mrs. D.H. Baumhart, regent, Livonia, and delegates Gladys Deyo, Mrs. Robert Willoughby, Mrs. Bruce Richard and alternate, Mrs. Donald Urquhart, all of Plymouth.

Presentations of ribbons to 50-year members were scheduled for the Sept. 26 morning session.

Speakers included Mrs. Eldon A. Behr, Great Lakes Region senior vice president, and Mrs. Raymond Fleck, historian general for the national DAR organization. Phyllis Schafly, national defense chairperson, spoke at the national defense luncheon.

There are 54 DAR chapters in Michigan and the Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter draws its membership from Plymouth, Northville, Canton and Livonia. Information about requirements for joining the organization may be obtained from Mrs. Frederick Campbell, membership chairwoman, 464-1154.

Eggenberger-Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Lilley Road, Canton Township announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah L. Eggenberger to Michael E. Hicks, of Ann Arbor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hicks. The bride-elect is a 1978 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. Her fiance graduated from Ann Arbor Huron High School in 1975 and has served three years as a United States Marine. They plan to be married in June 1980.

Jaycettes sponsor Walk for Mankind

The Plymouth Jaycettes will sponsor a 1.8 mile "Walk for Mankind" Sunday, Oct. 14. Proceeds from the pledges will benefit Project Concern, a non-sectarian, charitable health care organization serving rural America and the world.

Project Concern was established to provide a full range of primary or preventive care, nutrition and paramedic training, and public health care education to needy people. More than 1.5 million indigent persons are treated yearly at 40 Project Concern facilities in 80 countries.

The Jaycettes will make presentations on the Walk for Mankind to students in the middle schools. Persons of all ages can participate. Pledge cards soon will be available from local merchants. For more information call 453-0677 or 453-8377.

Walkers will meet in Kellogg Park at 10 a.m. Oct. 14 and proceed on a planned 1.8 mile walk through downtown Plymouth. The mini-walk was planned this summer after club members received a first-hand report from Paula Joyner on the work of Project Concern and the living conditions of the people it helps.

Arts teachers can register

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is soliciting additions to the registry it maintains at the council office for teachers of the arts in the Plymouth-Canton area.

Music teachers, dance instructors, and artists who give private instruction are invited to call the council office if they would like to be included in the list.

The arts council makes no attempt to evaluate the services offered. Its purpose is to fill the need for a referral service for newcomers as well as longtime residents.

The tour will take place between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 29.

Tickets may be obtained, at $3.50 each, at Mill Race Village (which will be open Saturday also for tours), and First Presbyterian Church, and the Marquis Theater, 133 E. Main. The latter, redecorated with white paint and red plush, will also be open for viewing.

The tour is sponsored annually by the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church and Northville Historical Society.

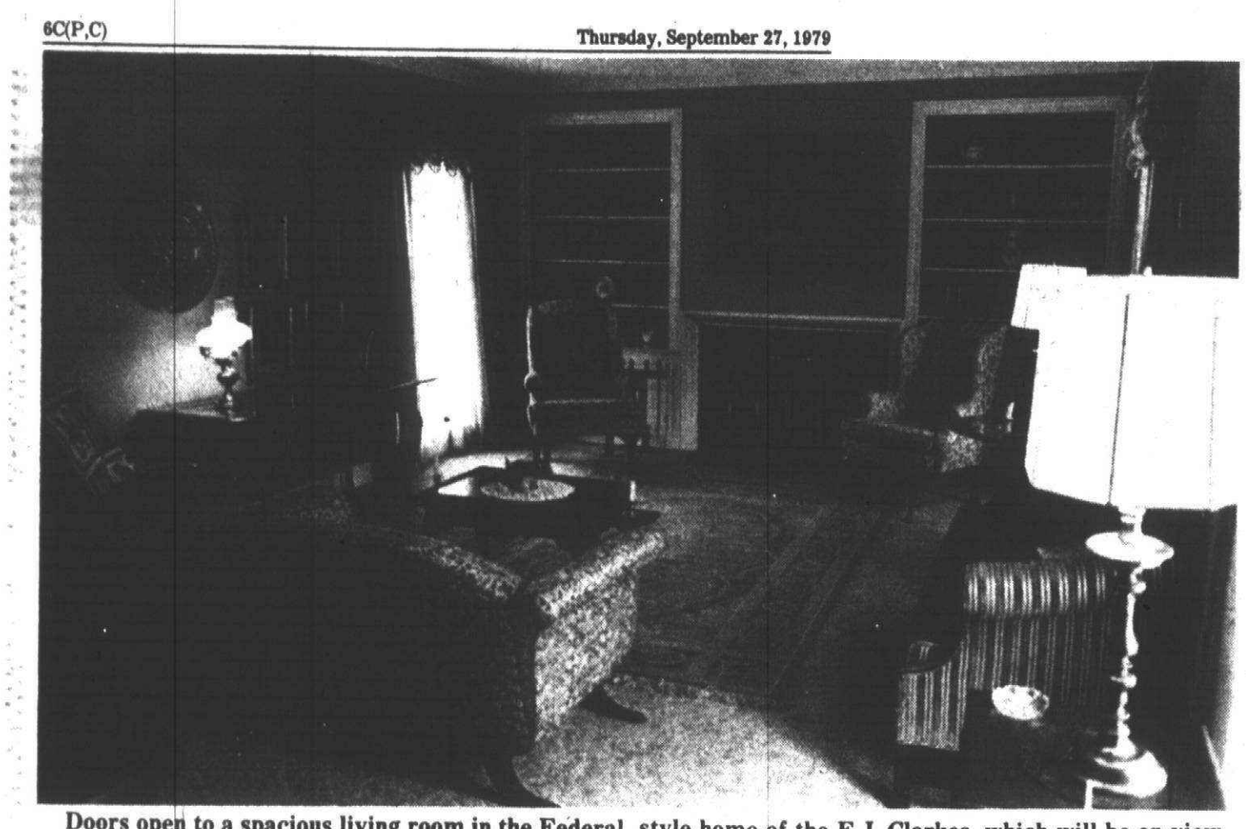

On the tour will be the Federal style home of E.J. and Ellen Clarke, 548 W. Main; the Victorian house of Timothy and Susan Cutting, 635 N. Center; and the Colonial home of Shereyl and James Bress, 44736 Galway.

Also on display will be the Greek Revival home of Marion and Donald Sober, 48760 N. Territorial, Plymouth; and the Colonial home of Terence and Lynda Heaton, 16115 Portis.

For the event, Yerkes House, in Mill Race Village, will contain a special exhibit of depression glass placed there by the Michigan Depression Glass Society.

Continuing the practice of other years, luncheon will be served at both First United Methodist Church on Eight Mile at Taft, and at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, High and Elm, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Price at each is $3.

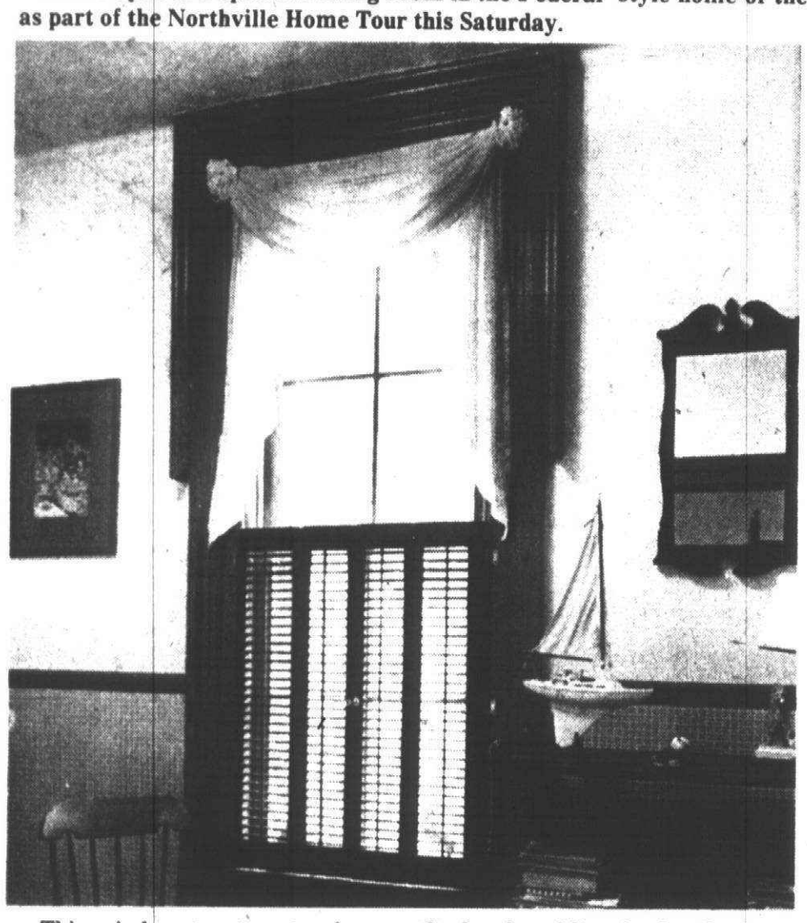

Those who wish to go backstage when touring the Marquis Theater are asked to visit early in the day as the cast will later be rehearsing for the production of "Brigadoon" Saturday evening.

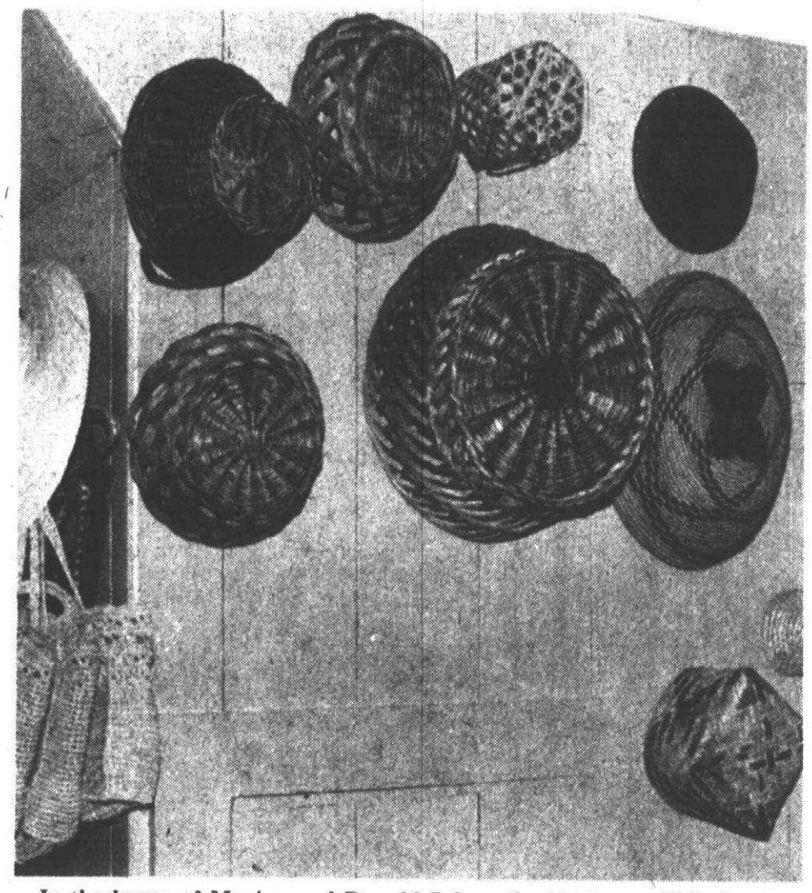

Doors open to a spacious living room in the Federal style home of the E.J. Clarkes, which will be on view as part of the Northville Home Tour this Saturday.

Area backgammon players compete

Backgammon players from southeastern Michigan and the Windsor, Ontario area converged on Plymouth Township and the Plymouth Hilton Sunday for the American Backgammon Club, Inc. tournament.

A member of the Flint Backgammon Club was the big winner. Edde Soto was first in the open division. Bob Hope of Livonia was second, and Gary Gangnath of Flint was third. There were 32 players in the open.

Paula Buhl of Ypsilanti topped 37 other players in the amateur division. Vickie Franklin of Ann Arbor was second and Tracy Harbison of Plymouth was third.

Robb Gordon of Southfield won the amateur championship. Diane Lanni of Ypsilanti came in second, and Bernard Levy of Ann Arbor was third.

JOHN TOWNSEND was tops in the consolation tournament. Jim Flora of Plymouth was second, and Basil Farrah of Flint was third.

More than 150 persons came to the tournament. Some came too late to play but stayed to watch. Food and drinks were available thorughout the afternoon and evening. The local ABC picked up 15 new members.

The club is planning a round robin tournament at the Plymouth Hilton for Sunday, Sept. 30. Play will begin at 6:30 p.m.

In a round robin tourney, losers are not eliminated. Five teams play at each long table. When a match is completed, players on one side of the table move down one, and the person at the end moves to the top of the table. They hope to have at least six tables in play.

Planners of Sunday's tournament were delighted over the enthusiasm of the players and also the number who attended. President Michael Kloian, an avid backgammon player, was so busy directing the tournament he did not have an opportunity to play. Neither did charter member Scotty Flora who helped organize and publicize the meet.

The club is planning a children's tournament (10-14) late in October. The exact date has not been confirmed and will be announced later.

Duplicate bridge offered

The Livonia Parks and Recreation Duplicate Bridge Club meets every Thursday at 7:45 p.m. in Jackson Center, Lyndon, east of Hubbard. Masterpoints are awarded and refreshments served. All interested bridge players are welcome.

Gospel of Mark gets close look

"The Gospel of St. Mark is the simplest and most direct of all the gospels," said the Rev. Joseph Dustin, who is soon to give a series of talks on St. Mark in St. Damian Catholic Church, 29891 Joy, Westland.

"I like it because it exemplifies the fact that you can't separate healing and preaching. It tells how the Lord Jesus came to heal and reconcile man with his brothers."

In the classes that will begin at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7, Fr. Joseph hopes that the words of the holy spirit will bring participants to another dimension through which God speaks, "Not just the rational."

"God speaks in many ways," pointed out Fr. Joseph Dustin who is from the Redemptorist Order at Holy Redeemer Church. "He speaks through stories, dreams, relationships, intuitions and feelings.

"God wants us to use our total being, both the rational and not rational. Much of the healing of Jesus can't be rationally explained. He cast out demons, he healed a paralytic and there is no medical explanation. That doesn't mean we should abandon medical science."

All families at St. Damian services on Sunday, Sept. 30 will be given a copy of the Gospel of St. Mark with a suggestion to use it as a daily reading guide and study help. The weekly discussions which will begin the following Sunday will end Nov. 25 with a parish mass on the night of the Feast of Christ the King. This will end the liturgical year.

Fr. Dustin, who also is known as the banjo-playing priest because of his musical work at church events, explained what he is hoping to do through the use of St. Mark.

"I am attempting to help open us to the leading of the Lord Jesus as a personal savior, brother and intimate friend in our lives," he said.

"One of the things I like in St. Mark is that all of a sudden I see the power of Jesus to attract people.

"As He makes His way along the the Sea of Galilee, he observes Simon, a fisherman and his brothers."

"Come after me and I'll make you fishers of men" said Jesus.

They abandoned their nets, noted Fr. Dustin. "He summoned them and they went on the spot, he added. "People were spellbound by his teaching. He spoke with authority. That's what hit me, the power of Jesus.

The Rev. Joseph Dustin looks over a copy of the Gospel of St. Mark, which will be the basis of a course he will teach at St. Damian Catholic Church in Westland. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring).

4-H members win recognition at fair

Farm skills are alive and well in the western suburbs of Wayne County. Young residents of Canton, Plymouth, Westland, Livonia and Garden City were given recognition for farming and for other skills at the recent 4-H fair in Belleville.

John Swanson took two first places in work with bees and his demonstration of that work. June Kirchgatter, also of Canton, was a winner in junior foods and junior clothing.

Lutheran churches join for institute

Eight Lutheran churches, all members of the Lutheran Council Congregation of Livonia, will join in presenting Institute for Ministry six Wednesday evenings beginning Oct. 3.

The sessions, described as comprising an adult program for Christian growth, will be offered 7:30-10 p.m.in Ascension Lutheran Church, 35301 Five Mile, across from Idlewyld golf course.

Other churches participatfng are All Saints, Christ the King, Faith, Holy Cross, Holy Trinity, Timothy and Sword of the Spirit.

Each evening will consist of two classes and a break for coffee and fellowship. The School for Ministry, directed by the Rev. Oscar Ice, is joining in sponsoring the series.

Participants will be able to choose two of five courses to be offered.

During the hour from 7:30-8:30 p.m., there will be offered "How We Got Our Bible," led by the Rev. Eugene Nissen of All Saints church; "Rolls: from Resentment to Responsiblity," taught by the Rev. Nelson Meyer, family life enrichment director for Lutheran Social Services, and "The Prophets Speak for Today," with the Rev. Walter Dickinson of Sword of the Spirit.

Rev. Meyer also will lead a session on "Parent Talk" in the later time slot, 9-10 p.m., and the Rev. Roger Schleef of Faith Lutheran will lead "Studies in the Gospel of John," illustrating his discussion with slides from his recent trip to the Holy Land.

Registrations will be accepted before the first session Oct. 3. A $5 charge covers the entire institute.

Fr. Peyton schedules area visit Sept. 28-30

The Rev. Patrick Peyton, celebrated throughout the world for his rosary and family prayer crusades, will make a three-day visit to the Detroit area, Friday through Sunday, Sept. 28-30.

The visit will mark the 37th year of his international rosary crusade and the 10th to this area. He came first to see a Grosse Pointe youth theater production of the Miracle of Fatima and has returned year after year to encourage a youth crusade for family prayer which now extends to thousands of adults in the greater Detroit area.

Two special events will fete the Rev. Peyton this time. He will be honored at a 10th anniversary dinner at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. Proceeds from the $15-per-plate dinner will benefit the Rev. Peyton's work. Reservations chairwoman is Anne Gnaster, 527-4968.

His Sunday schedule includes a 3 p.m. living rosary and 4 p.m. family mass at St. Paul Catholic Church, 157 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. Msgr. Francis Canfield will celebrate the mass and the Rev. Peyton will be the speaker. More than 50 Knights of Columbus will form a guard-of-honor for the statue of Our Lady of the Family Rosary. A reception later in the church's parish house will give those attending the opportunity to meet the priest.

Both the dinner and family mass are open to persons of all faiths. All are invited to meet the man whose slogan, "the family that prays together, stays together," is known across the world.

Baha'i program is on children

"Love That Child" is the theme of a program to be sponsored by the Baha'i Community of Detroit at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 30, in the student center building at Wayne State University.

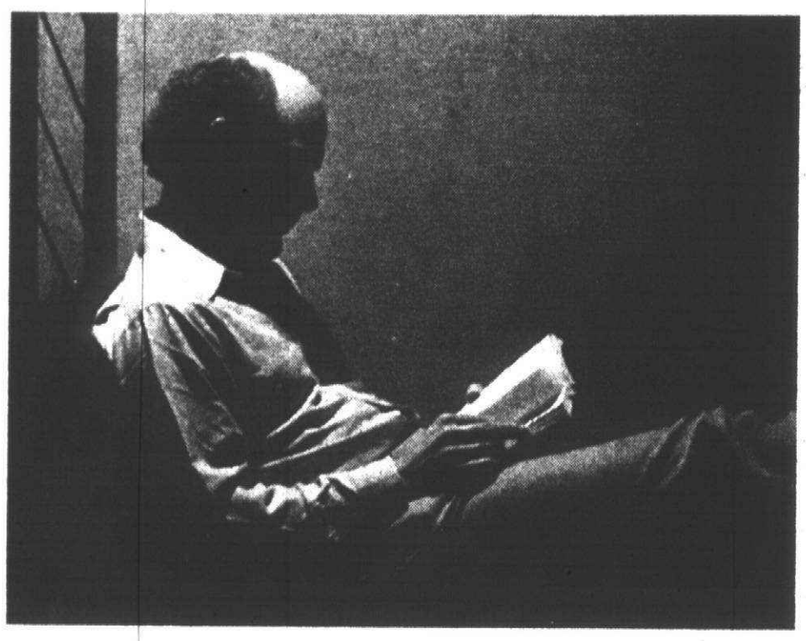

The potential of the child will be the topic of speaker Patrick Chadwick of Alpena, who has a master's degree in psychology and and bachelor's degree in guidance and counseling. He is therapist for the Alpena chapter of Parents Anonymous, a group working to stop child abuse.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

Everyone loves backgammon

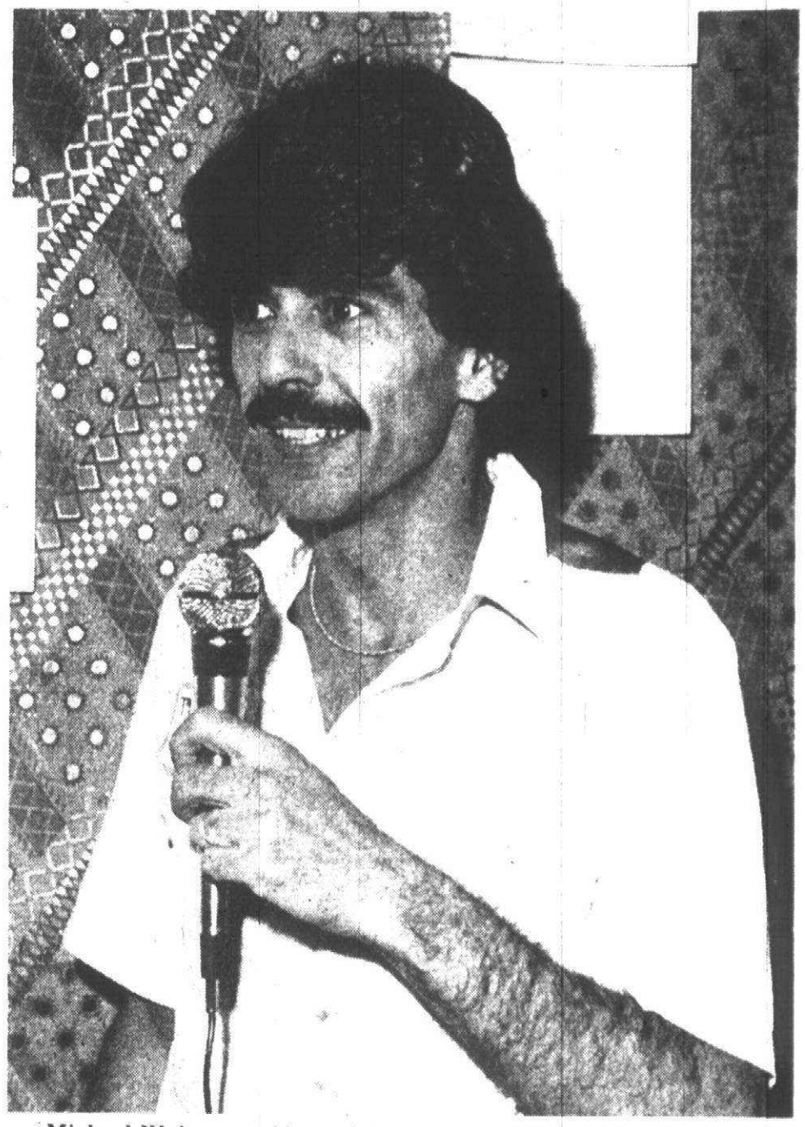

As the tourney ran into the night, Robert Buhl relaxed in a corner with a thick novel as his wife, Paula, continued to win match after match to become winner of the amateur division.

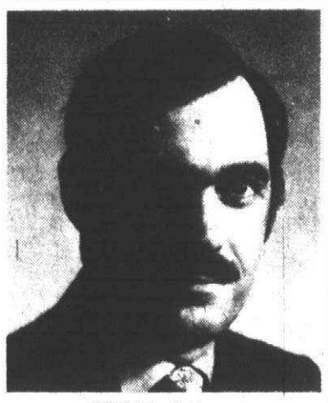

Former Detroit Tiger Jim Northrup and his daughter, Katie, both avid backgammon players, came from Birmingham for the tournament. The club is planning a children's tournament for 10-14-year-olds on a Saturday late in October. Special luncheon menu will be planned for the participants. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

The ability to express his thanks is a victory

By BETTY MASSON

Space age technology and Christian charity are working together on behalf of Richard Morrow, a resident of the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Morrow is imprisoned in a body that will not respond to his commands, not even to the extent of allowing him to speak intelligibly. He has cerebral palsy.

Because of developments in just the few years, Morrow can communicate. It's a slow process.

"Watching Richard is very definitely a study in patience," said the Rev. Darryl Bell, pastor of Faith Community Church, Plymouth.

Morrow was presented with an IBM typewriter, fitted with a special plate at services of the church recently. The plate enables him, through the use of a rod affixed to a helmet, to type out messages.

AS HE RECEIVED the typewriter, Morrow promised church members a speedy typed thank-you letter.

He was able to make this promise through use of a wheel-chair lap tray in which are words and symbols. He points laboriously at these with a finger or elbow to get his message across.

Morrow learned to communicate in this way in just the past year in classes in Moraine School in Northville.

Classes take place in a Communication Enhancement Resource Center (CERC), under the direction of Clinton S. Bennett.

It was here also that Morrow learned to operate the type writer.

But in August, he turned 26 and became too old for the program at Moraine, under state laws.

Members of the congregation made contributions at special offerings to purchase the typewriter.

THANKS TO ANOTHER gift from people who care, Morrow will be able to express his thanks vocally in about six months.

In April, the Redford Suburban League presented Morrow — through the Northville Board of Education offices — with a $3,500 check,to be used for another "giant step" forward.

It's a lap tray which can talk. It is being built to fit Morrow's personal needs in the laboratories of the Moraine center.

This method of communication is so new and each unit must be so personalized that it really has no name.

A prototype was built in the artificial language laboratory of the computer science department of the Michigan State University, with which the Northville center works closely. Called SAL (Semantically Accessible Language) board, it was designed for classroom use.

Morrow will be the first to get one for his own personal use.

When he was in class, Morrow even helped design the computer program for his new lap tray, which is truly a space age develop ment.

The tray uses microcomputers and a voice synthesizer. Phonics will create words.

Morrow will operate the machine by using a "joystick" control to point at the sounds he wants vocalized.

"The Sal Board," according to its creators at MSU, "represents a new generation of communication devices."

With it, Morrow may even be able to telephone Mr. Bell and members of the Redford Suburban League to say thank you.

Today Morrow can communicate well enough to make his wants known. And his horizons have broadened.

"I want to be free," he said. "I want to leave here."

"More than anything else, I want to have a ride in an airplane."

Art Rental Gallery acquires 3 new works

Three new works acquired by the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Art Rental gallery are on display in the gallery on the second floor of the Dunning-Hough Library, Main Street, Plymouth. The exhibit continues until Oct. 15 when the works will become available for rental.

New acquisitions are a batik by Charlotte Raymond, an airy butterfly pattern which was purchased by the Arts Council at the recent artist and craftsman show; a Van Gogh print, "Road of Poplars," and a Bavarian street scene by Spitzweg.

Four other recent purchases are in the process of being framed and soon will be added to the collection.

More than 80 original works and 30 reproductions are available for rental for a $2 monthly fee. "Art on Consignment," another program, gives patrons the opportunity to rent original works by Michigan artists for $5 a month with the option to buy. Up to four months in rental fees can be applied toward the purchase price.

The rental gallery is open every Wednesday during regular library hours. The gallery opened more than four years ago with a $1,150 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and matching funds from the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Mrs. Dumas on national panel

Wayne County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas, R-Livonia, was named vice chairwoman of the National Association of Counties subcommittee on juvenile justice and public safety by NACo President Francis B. Francois, according to the group's headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Commissioner Dumas gained attention in the juvenile field as the result of her co-chairmanship of Wayne County's "Day at Jackson" program in which juveniles in trouble with the law are given a tour of Jackson State Prison to witness actual prison life.

NACo's 12 steering committees form the policy-making arm of county government and meet periodically during the year to examine issues critical to local government. Their recommendations are presented to county officials from across the country at NACo's official policy document.

Saxtons produce written language for Pima Indians

Churches across the nation will mark Bible Translation Sunday, Sept. 30. Since 1934, when the first Wycliffe linguists were trained, specialists have started translations of the New Testament in more than 700 languages and dialects in 38 countries.

Plymouth has had a part in producing a written language and a New Testament translation in an Arizona Indian language through the work of Dr. and Mrs. Dean F. Saxton Jr. Dean Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean F. Saxton of Plymouth, and his wife, Lucille, went to Arizona in 1953 in a car given them by the churches of Plymouth. In addition, some of their support in the following years has come from Plymouth.

The Saxtons have worked with the Papago and Pima Indians in Arizona, writing their language, translating scripture and hymns, as well as a dictionary and a book of ancient Papago and Pima stories.

Their work and that of others like them will be the subject for recognition and prayer support on Sunday.

Special emphasis will be placed on the Amuesha language of Peru, South America, translated by Martha Duff (now Mrs. Robert Tripp), Mary Ruth Wise and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fast.

The Amuesha New Testament is the 100th to be printed, dedicated and distributed as a result of translations by members of Wycliffe and its sister organization, the Summer Institute of Linguistics.

Though it has taken 45 years to complete the first 100 New Testaments, computerization and other technologies are expected to help these specialists complete the second 100 within the next two years.

Wycliffe linguistic surveys show that most of the more than 5,000 languages spoken in the world have never been reduced to writing. Bible portions have been translated into only one fourth of them. That leaves more than 200 million people with no scripture available in their more than 3,000 languages.

The U.S. Congress recognized the significance of this task. A joint Senate-House resolution authorized President Lyndon Johnson to designate Sept. 30, 1967, as the first Bible Translation Day.

The Saxtons now live in Tucson, Ariz.

Behavior modification can trim pounds

If you are a dieter, chances are you know about the term "behavioral modification." But you may not know exactly what it is or how it works, even though you may have tried some of the techniques involved.

There has been a great deal of interest in the behavior modification approach for treating weight problems.

Gloria Leon, Ph.D., associate professor of psychology and psychiatry at the University of Minnesota who has been stsudying the weight reduction method, states that it implies a permanent change in habits, rather than a temporary change such as diet which is short-lived.

THE THEORY behind behavior modification treatment is that the overlearned habit of excessive eating cn be modified or changed.

Leon states that management and reward/penalty behavior modification programs are more effective than any other existing method, except surgical intervention.

She explains that learning to manage one's environment so that the impuse to eat is not triggered by surroundings, such as watching television or being with friends, is a basic procedure in behavior modification.

The method of modification treats the symptom rather than the cause, but to be effective, one must monitor oneself to know what must be changed.

For example, a person must keep a daily record of all instances in which food is eaten, as well as the type and amount of food and the environment and emotional circumstances at the time the eating takes place.

Record keeping not only gives a patient a good idea of what is going on in his mind at eating time, but may in itself help considerably in reducing food consumption.

A REWARD FOR following a specific type of behavior change may be an integral part of the program. For example, a sum of money promised for a certain amount of weight lost may be effective, providing the money is not spent on food.

Engaging the cooperation of a person's spouse and/or family is a relatively new concept in the treatment of the obese. Spouses may be trained in the systematic use of encouragement and social approval for changes made by their partner. Long term followup is currently under way to determine the effectiveness of this program.

Self-control strategies also are fairly new to the program, states Leon. Restraining one's behavior in the face of temptation involves making a statement to oneself that he/she will not yield to the temptation, then makes a positive move to remove himself from the environment.

For example, if eating cookies is the problem, then you would tell yourself that eating only one cookie will lead to eating more than one cookie, and, in fact, you may not be able to stop eating cookies. You then leave the kitchen, maybe even the house in an effort to obliterate the image of cookies in the cookie jar. Perhaps even removing the cookie jar from sight may be even more effective.

OTHER TECHNIQUES implemented during a behavior modification effort may include these suggestions: lock up and make inaccessible excess foods, particularly high calorie snacks; eat each meal, if possible, in the same place and at the same time each day; place food portions directly on the plate before sitting down to eat instead of serving family style; slow your chewing and chew throughly before taking another bite; shop from a grocery list to avoid impulsive buying.

Changes in lifestyle may also be necessary. For example, increase physical activity levels, spend less time in front of the television, substitute low calorie foods for high calorie meals.

One conclusion that has been reached by all researchers is that a desire to lose weight does not necessarily mean a commitment to changing one's eating patterns. The two issues are separate.

Often when a person has tried everything in the books and still does not lose weight, a true mind-searching event will reveal that this person does not want to lose weight, thus he sabotages his own efforts.

Detroit-area antique buffs of American memorabilia are in for a treat Sunday when Silver's Collectors Carnival comes to town.

The show runs 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Bonniebrook Golf Course Ballroom, on Telegraph, just south of Eight Mile.

Show promoter Mike Silver says this type of show is new to the Detroit area, but not unique in other large cities. He has billed it as a menagerie of America's memories.

He said the memorabilia will help people recall when Howdy Doody ruled the world and Mickey Mouse was everybody's pal; when heroes were voices from the radio and only the Shadow knew for sure; when Coca Cola was only a nickel and school was a six-mile walk; when Bob and Bing were on the road and Garbo stole our hearts.

"The specialty of this show is antique advertising with ads dating back to the early 1870s to 1935," said Silver. "Items advertising Stroh's Lager Beer, Coca Cola, Victor phonographs and Tiger chewing tobacco will be available.

"Other special features include Pegasus wax comic character sculptures, an authentic country store and antique toys and political campaign items. Items from an existing country store, called the Old General Store in New Baltimore, may be the most unique. Antique toys and comics are among the big items and will be well represented."

Other items are individual trade signs dating from the 1870s to the 1920s.

"Picture, as an example of one such item, a wooden frame of a pocket watch standing four feet high and three feet wide. It is an original sign which once stood in front of a watch smith's shop," Silver said.

"Still another featured item are radio premiums or tin rings containing the names of old radio shows," he said. "Some of them are priced at $100 to $200. Other prices will range from $1 for a comic character button to $5,000 for an antique advertising sign.

"The show offers the public as well as the serious collector a unique and special opportunity to view and purchase a touch of America's past.

"I decided to promote this kind of an antique show after receiving many requests from area dealers to put one on in the Detroit area. This show is relatively small compared to others around the country, but I have plans for larger shows in the future if this one goes over well."

Silver said he has tentatively planned a second antique show for January, also at Bonniebrook, with 100 dealers already scheduled.

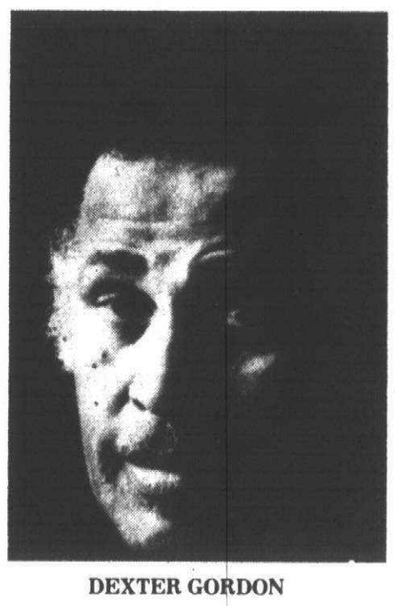

THIS SHOW will differ from others in that no glass, China or other such items will be on display.

"This antique show will deal specifically with items of American memorabilia and there will be no unrelated antiques on display," said the 26-year-old Silver, who has been collecting such items since he was 13."

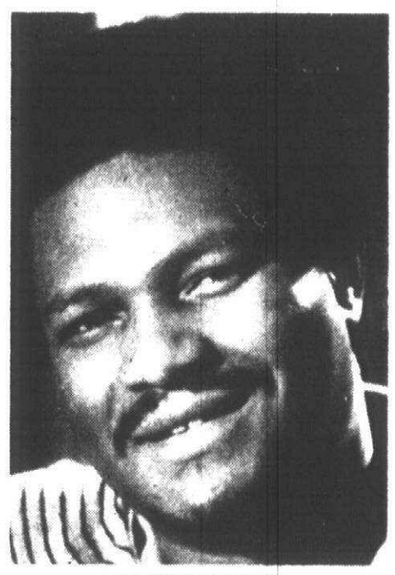

A snack bar and free parking will be available at the show.

Jazz fest opens Friday

The second Ann Arbor Jazz Festival, dedicated to the memory of Charles Mingus, starts Friday for a weekend run in Hill Auditorium on the University of Michigan campus.

The festival is organized by Eclipse Jazz, a student-run collective which has presented performances by many well-known jazz artists and gives workshops for local musicians.

Tickets, at $7.50 to $5.50 for evening performances and $4 general admission to the Sunday afternoon show, are available at the Michigan Union box office in Ann Arbor (phone 763-2071) and at Hudson's.

THE SCHEDULE is:

- 7:30 p.m. Friday: Performances by Dexter Gordon, father of the bebop tenor saxophone; and Sun Ra and his Arkestra, an array of creative jazz, colorful costumes, film and dance.
- 3 p.m. Saturday in the Residential College auditorium (701 E. University): A free workshop on the music of Mingus, given by drummer Dannie Richmond and trombonist Jimmy Knepper, followed by a showing of "Mingus," an hour-long documentary film.
- 8 p.m. Saturday: Performances by the Charles Mingus Dynasty Band, a group of former sidemen from various Charles Mingus ensembles who have joined to celebrate the legacy and genius of his music; and Larry Coryell, an innovative guitarist who will perform solo on both acoustic and electric guitars. Coryell replaces saxophonist Gato Barbieri, who cancelled his appearance.
- 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday in the Residential College auditorium: Performances by Joseph Jarman and Don Moye, members of the Art Ensemble of Chicago who engage in duet performances.
- 8 p.m. Sunday: Performances by McCoy Tyner, a jazz pianist who recently appeared with the Milestone Jazz Stars; and Oscar Peterson, a pianist who works in the style of the swing era.

CHARLES MINGUS, a bass player, bandleader and composer, died in January at the age of 56. His compositions have been considered revolutionary in jazz over the last quarter-century.

For more information, call Eclipse Jazz at 763-1107.

Film tastes follow society's cue, says prof

Comedy movies and occult-horror films, such as "Dracula" and "The Amityville Horror," are in vogue today.

Film tastes are more than just a passing fancy. They offer a measure of the tenor of the times and provide insight into our nation's collective experiences and fears, says a University of Michigan authority.

"Motion pictures have a way of running in cycles side by side with historical events," said Frank E. Beaver, U-M professor of communication.

Today, for example, the popularity of comedy film rivals the period around the 1930s, when the Marx brothers, domestic comedies, satires of manners and self-ridicule began to emerge, he said.

"SOCIAL CRITICS tell us that the comic films of the decade — and other types of escapist entertainment, such as Busby Berkeley's dance spectaculars — saw a nation through a bleak period. It was a time of economic depression and increasing inter national tension, for which movies became an antidote of escape," said Beaver.

"One can't help but wonder if the predominance and popularity of screen comedies aren't once again linked to the uncertainties of our present economic situation and to a general anxiety about the future."

Another historical trend in the film world is the popularity of occult-horror movies most noticeable after major military con flicts, said Beaver, who also serves as film reviewer for U-M radio station WUOM-FM in Ann Arbor.

"The first cycle of these movies showed up in Germany right after World War I. In 1922, F.W. Murnau made the first screen version of 'Dracula' — titled 'Nosferatu' — and shortly thereafter Germany produced a varied collection of monster films. In our own country, monster pictures appeared about the same time with John Barrymore's 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' (1920)."

Now, in the post-Vietnam era, the occult-horror film is back in full force, said Beaver.

"'The Exorcist' forcefully reintroduced the genre just as the war was winding down, and since then there have been dozens of similar films about demonic forces at work in the world."

It is arguable, said Beaver, that horror movies, like comedies, provide relief from tensions.

"The channeling off of anxiety by watching someone alse's horror on the screen is often offered as part of the reason for the popularity of the genre. In these movies, good always triumphs over evil — 'usually through religious intervention — and in this respect horror-occult films also offer hope through forces greater than human kind."

FOLLOWING wartime, there have also been outcroppings of films depicting mental aberrations — such as insanity, nervous disorders, shell shock victims — and ones in which authority figures are brought into question, said Beaver.

"The mental aberration films in the United States in the late 1940s can be viewed as a hangover from the atrocities of the second world war.

"Most recently, 'One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest' has earned the distinction of becoming the most popular serious film since the end of the Vietnam War. This picture was set in a mental institution, and like 'The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari' (made in Germany in 1919) elicited sympathy for the patients while questioning the ways and means of the authorities.

"The lobotomy performed on Jack Nicholson represented an act of authoritarian control that once again raised the question of who is really mad.

"Although Ken Kesey wrote his novel 'One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest' some years earlier, the film version attracted its huge audience in the United States at a time when the quality of our own authorities was being seriously questioned following Watergate and the long period of involvement in Vietnam."

Some psychologists believe that these types of films satisfy curiosity about atrocites, which develop during periods of real-life conflict, Beaver said.

Ducks looking good for hunting season; fishing reports poor

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

Look for 10 percent better duck hunting in the waterfowl season starting Oct. 4 in the lower peninsula.

Brood rearing habitat in the Canadian prairies was improved from 1978, and breeding populations were 10 percent greater, according to Gerald Martz, waterfowl specialist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

There are two major changes in the rules this year:

• Shooting hours start 30 minutes before sunrise instead of at sunrise. This brings Michigan into accord with most other states and should help hunters.

• The point system is liberalized, with 35-point ducks becoming 25 pointers and 15 pointers going to 10. A hunter's daily limit is reached when the point value of the last bird taken during the day, when added to the birds taken earlier in the day, reaches or exceeds 100 points. The daily bag must not exceed 10 birds.

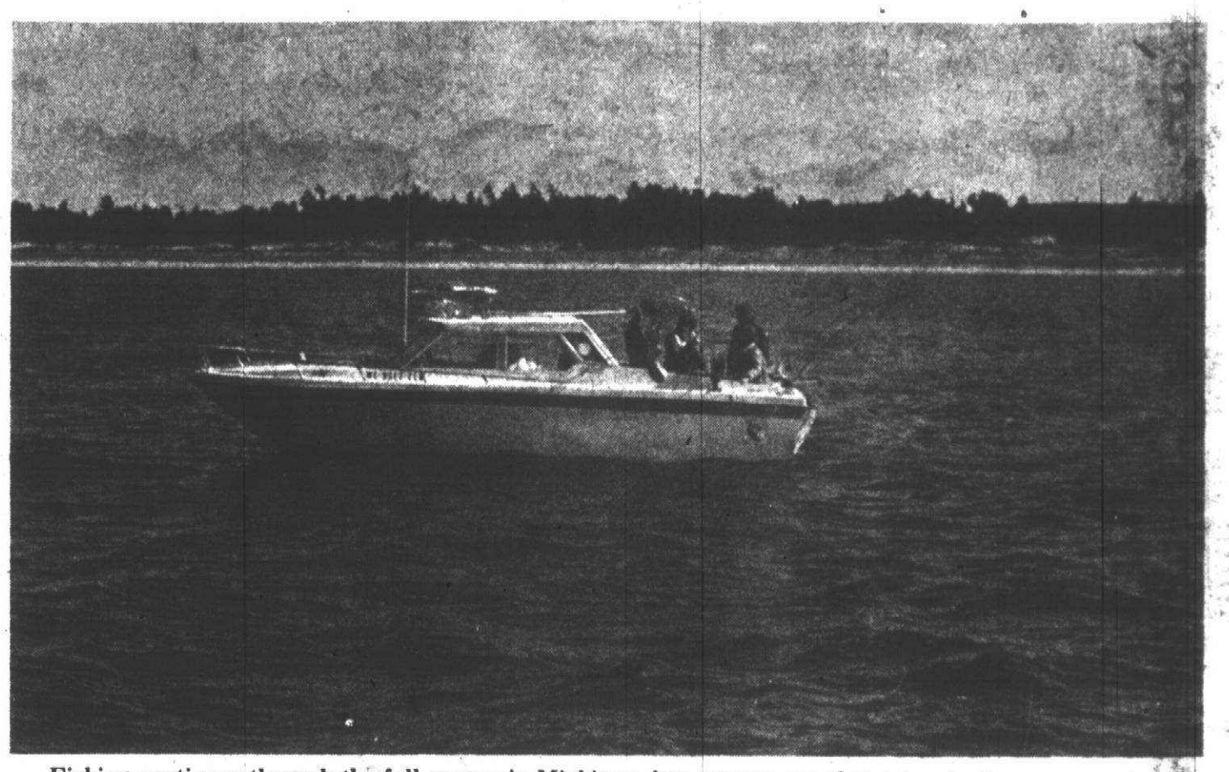

Meanwhile, the squirrel season opened Sept. 15. As usual, foliage was heavy, the pressure light and success poor.

NEED A FILM for your club's program DNR offers 50 titles on hunting, fishing, parks, water and other resources.

A free folder is available by writing to: Film Folder, Department of Natural Resources, Box 30028 Lansing 48909.

Fishing continues through the fall season in Michigan, but reports are that takes in the area are down from what was anticipated.

FALL FISHING reports aren't as good as they usually are, though no one has tried to explain why. September should have been a big month as waters cool and speedboaters clear out, but it hasn't been that way.

Bass fishing is rated good on Oakland County's Lake Orion and Trout Lake using surface lures. Lake Louise is producing only fair catches of 'gills and "a few" perch, the DNR report says. In my experience, that means darned few.

All Lake St. Clair fishing is rated "slow." Only an "average" run of coho salmon is expected in the Detroit River at Belle Isle.

One bright note: Tom Barnes, 11, of Canton Township, caught a 17-inch perch in late August on Cavanaugh Lake, between Plymouth and Ann Arbor. It was four inches shy of the state record, caught in 1947 in Marquette County, but a giant perch nevertheless.

FILE THIS ONE for future reference.

DNR says the best bluegill lakes in Michigan are:

In Oakland County — Tipsico, Big, Cass, Fenton, Holly Millpond, Kent Orchard, Pontiac, Squaw, Union, White (for lunkers) and Lakeville (also for lunkers).

In Washtenaw — Whitmore, Four Mile, Crooked, South Portage, Little Portage, Sugarloaf, North, Base, Huron River, Silver and West, with none in the lunker category.

THE HURON-Clinton Metroparks are offering many programs for nature lovers. You still must purchase either a $7 season vehicle permit or pay $2 a car each visit, but most programs are free. If advance registration is required, call the park office number listed here:

"Archaeology Workshop" 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29 — nature center of Oakwoods Metropark (782-1255, Flat Rock). Limited to persons older than age 12. Methods and principles of archaeology.

"Sensitivity Walk" 11 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 7 — Oakwoods. Naturalist Fred Wooley will lead visitors to appreciate the sounds, scents and textures of an autumn morning. Call to register.

Antique car auction at Cobo Hall

Hundreds of cars, worth from $3,000 to $150,000, go on the auction block Saturday and Sunday at the Detroit Collector Car Auction in Cobo Hall. Billed as the latest glamor investment, the cars — including all sorts — are bought and sold for their increasing value. For instance, a 1957 Thunderbird which went for $1,800 in 1969 is today worth more than $20,000. But show promoters say most "collector cars" are in the more affordable $3,000-to-$7,000 range, such as a 1969 Camaro convertible in perfect condition now worth $4,500. Some others which might be seen include a 1957 Ford with a retractable hardtop (left) and an Overland (right). The auction is open 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. both days, with bidding from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children under 13. Bidders must register. And persons who want to sell a car can show up with it noon to 7 p.m. Friday or during auction hours.

Tole painters host regional convention

The organization's objective is to promote "tole" and decorative painting in Michigan.

An exhibit of tole, decorative and canvas paintings will be open to the public. Free demonstrations will be held throughout the show.

A trade show will feature art supplies, books, frames, wood and tinware to decorate, and a variety of ideas to inspire the decorative artist. Admission is $1.50.

For members, classes will be taught by 35 leading teachers from Michigan, Canada and across the United States. Members are also invited to a banquet Saturday evening. The Western Michigan Decorative Artists will be decorating for the banquet.

Tole painting today is dedicated to preserving and renewing interest in the various styles of folk art that came originally from Europe.

Pennsylvania Dutch and early American decorative and tole painters were influenced by the styles of the English, French, Norwegian Rosemalers and country painters.

Tole painting actually means "painting on tin" in French. During the era of the French Revolution, much of the splendor and opulence of France was disappearing.

Silver pieces were sold for survival money. In place of silver, tin was substituted.

In an effort to retain some of the graciousness of the past, craftsmen painted designs on the utilitarian tin pieces.

Many of theses tole pieces made their way to America where tole was called "poor man's silver." The hand-painted tinware became very popular.

About 200 years ago, Edward J. Pattison, an Irish immigrant, started a business as a tinsmith in Berlin, Conn. He soon discovered the painted tinware was the hit of the day. He hired local ladies to paint his wares and had the country peddlers selling them throughout the east.

The ladies were paid $2 a week for their labors. Varnish cost $12 a quart and a brush could cost $2 — a week's salary.

Religion played a big part in their decorating. The tulip, the peacock, the pineapple seen on barns and the hex signs all had a mixed Christian and pagan derivative. People painted family history on their dowery chests, birth announcements, cabinets and armoires.

The Norwegians arrived later and settled in Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa. When they became established, they began to decorate in the motifs reminiscent of their homeland, reflecting the different styles of the provinces from which they came.

Religion also was prominent in their baroque and rococo styles. Some symbols date back to early Mesopotamia. Vikings brought back articles from as far away as Africa, the Orient and Europe.

Folk Art lasted from 1700 to 1850, but it died with industrialization. Although today's decorative artist maintains a respect for the old traditional way, new and creative approaches are being developed.

For more information about the convention or for membership applications, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Great Lakes Decorative Art Convention, Box 36035, Grosse Pointe 48236.

Everybody has been rediscovering wood

It has been said that if wood didn't exist and somebody were to invent it today, this new product would be hailed as one of the greatest inventions of all time.

What's happening? Wood is happening.

After milleniums of use, wood has been rediscovered. Engineers and technicians, builders and designers in aerospace, industry, heavy construction and home building are taking an enthusiastic new look at this natural material.

They're beginning to have a healthy respect for the renewability of the wood supply. Cultivated judiciously — and the trend is in that direction — oak will always be with us for flooring, Douglas fir for timbers and basement foundations and spruce for nose cones.

Thin sheaves of spruce veneer cover the nose cone of the Polaris missile. As the missile descends through our atmosphere, there is a point where the outer layers of spruce char, but the inner sheaves remain cool, precisely as the Lockheed engineers planned.

ARCHED LAMINATED wood timbers soar over the University of Utah's Sports Center in Salt Lake City. The big timbers provide an unbroken 350 feet of space below and support 180 tones of roof, elevators, broadcasting booths and catwalks. From basketball floor to the center of the domed roof there's 120 feet.

Wood flooring, impregnated with polyesters and hardened with gamma rays, remains undamaged and attractive long after brick or slate would have worn down.

Wood has been rediscovered. For one thing, heavy exposed wood beams, in, say, a school are more fire-safe than equivalently sized steel beams. Since wood burns and solid steel doesn't, this seems odd. But in a fire in a public building, structural support is often more important than combustibility.

Few people would touch the metal handle of a pot of boiling water, but we don't hesitate to grasp the wood handle of a hot pot.

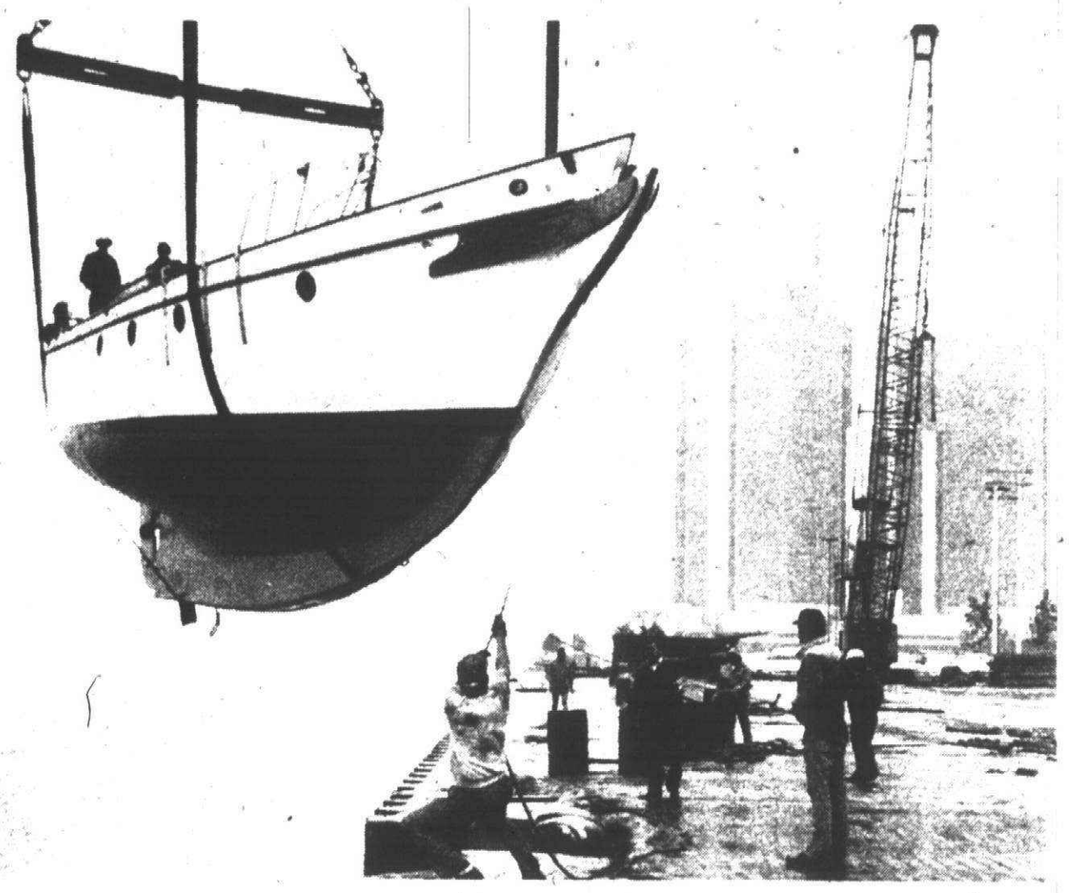

Insulation values tell the story. The same amount of insulation is provided by one inch of wood, six inches of brick, 15 inches of concrete, slightly under 400 inches of steel and over 1,700 inches of aluminum. The secret? Wood cells.

Imitation is said to be the sincerest form of flattery. If that's true, wood is consistently flattered today. Steel siding is formed to look like wood clapboards. Aluminum roofing is pressed into the shape of wood shingles. Wood-grain photography is laid out beneath plastic tabletops.

WOOD IS indeed a handsome material. It alone offers infinitely variable grain, subtle colors and shading and textures from washboard-rough to silky-smooth. Mixed with other textures and materials, wood is at home in any decor. One generally gets an impulse to pick up and feel a well-turned wood figure or tabletop.

Lately there has been some feeling that wood furniture is on the way out. Far from it. It is on its way in, or, never left.

African hardwood, pecky pecan and walnut remain in command.

Sailboats on display

A 51-foot sailing ketch is unloaded at the port of Detroit after being shipped from Taiwan for exhibition in the Great Lakes Sailboat Show, being held this weekend at Metropolitan Beach in Mt. Clemens. More than 300 sailboats — about half of them in the water — will be on display today through Sunday. Visitors can climb aboard the ships and sailing experts are available to answer questions. There will be a flea market with nautical items for sale, and one exhibitor will build a boat from a kit during show hours. Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for kids under 12. Hours are noon to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday. The beach is at the foot of Metro Parkway off I-94.

New Haas lectures start Oct. 3

Following a first season sell-out earlier this year, music authority Karl Haas will offer two series of weeknight talks, entitled "The Magic of Beethoven" and "The Viennese Classics" at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Each of the lecture/demonstrations will take place on the first Wednesday of the month, at 8 p.m., in the museum's Lecture Hall. Advance reservations at $12 for each of the three-part series and individual tickets at $5 each may be obtained by calling the Art Institute ticket office, 832-2730.

"The Magic of Beethoven," a three-lecture program, will include "The young Beethoven" (Oct. 3), "The Beethoven Revolution (Nov. 7), and "The Private Beethoven" (Dec. 5).

In the spring, Haas' "The Viennese Classics" will focus on "Haydn, Patriarch of Classical Forms" (Mar. 5), "Mozart, Life and Work of a Genius" (April 2), and "Schubert, The Viennese Tradition."

Host of WJR radio's "Adventures in Good Music," which is now heard in eighty U.S. cities and overseas, Haas was appointed director of fine arts by the station in 1959. In addition to numerous awards for excellence bestowed upon him by European governments, Haas has received seven honorary doctorates in music, fine arts and the humanities.

New season on 56

The new season of programs on Channel 56 starts this week. Included in the new broadcasts are "Musical Comedy Tonight," which explores the history of American musical theater. The show premieres at 8 p.m. Monday with a cast of stars brought together to sing and dance through numbers from Broadway shows. Rock Hudson and Ethel Merman (left) sing a duet of "You're The Top" from the 1934 hit "Anything Goes." Also on Monday night, political humorist Mark Russell (right) starts a series of specials at 9:30 p.m. Russell performs regularly in Washington and writes a syndicated newspaper humor column.

Lakes museum director to talk

Robert E. Lee, director of the Dossin Great Lakes Museum and curator of marine history for the city of Detroit, will speak at Northwest Unitarian Universalist Church at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 2.

His lecture will open the 1979-80 Northwest Church Evening League program season. "The Lakes, too, are Romantic" is the title of his talk.

A self-termed "nickel immigrant" from England, Lee came to Detroit by way of a five-cent ferry ride across the Detroit River from Windsor about 60 years ago.

He was named the honorary mayor of the Detroit River by his peers in recognition of his years in marine affairs and his extensive knowledge of Michigan waters.

The evening league program follows a 6:45 p.m. dinner for members and friends. Dinner reservations at $2 each are being taken by Eleanor Bailey at 531-0638 and Ann Williams at 533-0978.

The public may attend the lecture at no charge. Northwest Church is on the south service drive of the Lodge Freeway at 23925 Northwestern Highway in Southfield.

Esser downtown

Phil Marcus Esser is starring in "The Singing Waiter" in dinner theater Friday and Saturday nights at Rembrandt's Roadster in downtown Detroit. He sings and does comedy from his previous productions. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. for the dinner crowd and also at midnight. Dinner is ordered from the regular menu instead of from a limited list. Reservations are taken at 963-1055. The restaurant is at 401 E. Larned, a block north of the Renaissance Center.

Northville home tour announced

Saturday, Sept. 29, is the date for Northville's annual home tour, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

As co-sponsors, the Northville Historical Society and Women's Association of the Firt Presbyterian Church of Northville are again providing homes with a variety of periods, collections and decorating ideas. A Saturday date was selected for the convenience of working men and women.

The Greek Revival basilica style home of the Donald Sobers, dating to 1840, will provide a special opportunity to view the studio of Mrs. Sober, containing a collection of portrait paintings and both of their cane furniture work. This home has been restored by the Sobers after being moved from Plymouth where it was slated to be destroyed.

Of historic interest also is the newly restored Victorian home of the Timothy Cuttings. Stained glass windows and antique tools provide interest as well as hard stenciled walls, created by Mrs. Cutting.

Tickets may be purchased at the Mill Race Village or the Presbyterian Church during the tour. Children under 6 are not permitted on the tour.

Luncheons will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Methodist Church on Eight Mile and at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 201 Elm St.

EMU art exhibit opens Monday

The faculty in the art department of Eastern Michigan University will present their annual exhibit of artworks in the Sill Gallery on campus Oct. 1 through Nov. 2. The gallery is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

An opening reception for the show will be held 3-5 p.m. Monday in Sill Hall. It is open to the public free.

Author Kosinski fights apathy

By WILLIAM F. HORWATH

Review

C.S. Lewis never tired of reminding us that he was a living fossil, a dinosaur among a ruling class of mammals.

More precisely, he considered himself a Medieval Christian caught out of time in a new secularism. As such, he begged to be treated with care — living relics are wonderful, most valuable items. His constituency suffered him with awe, never pretending to really understand him — not being of his kind — but always treating him with care — the care we give to yesterday.

Thursday evening at a reception given him for his latest novel, "Passion Play," at Bookpeople, West Bloomfield, Jerzy Kosinski was clearly among his constituency.

One of the fiercest defenders of freedom in the contemporary literary world, he spoke of his novels as a "democratic process," a place where the novelist and reader combine to create a typography and imagery peculiar to themselves. In so doing, neither is superior, both writer and reader sharing equally in the artisitic process.

Yet, there is a bizarre imbalance in all of this. For like Lewis, Kosinski comes to us out of the Middle Ages.

HIS NOVELS READ like a triptych of Bosch. It is no accident that Kosinski rates Bosch as his favorite painter. From "The Painted Bird" through "Passion Play" his heroes — all picaroes — wander through a landscape peopled with Medieval demons, peasant superstitions and Infernal horrors. His world imagines no Beatrice.

He remains solidly within the tradition of "Lazarillo de Tormes," an anonymous 16th century Spanish novel whose hero, fatherless and uniquely amoral, strives only "to exist" in a world otherwise without purpose.

Early in "The Painted Bird," Kosinski's hero realizes an awful truth, "My parents were nowhere." He conceives the idea to be, in fact, "monstrous." The conviction that our parents are nowhere may well be the single most dominant metaphor in Kosinski's mind.

PARENTS BUILD HOMES. If we have none, we are forced to fashion our own. Fathers teach morality and courage. Having none, we are condemned to forge a brave world of our own. Inheriting no family name, we are charged to invent one that suits who we are. Being both fathers and sons to ourselves we are every bit as monstrous as Shakespeare's description of lovers as "beasts with two backs."

It would follow that most Americans could in no conceivable fashion enter into a creative coalition with Kosinski. His shaping experiences were Eastern European, Medieval in basis, Fascistic and Stalinist in fact. Kent State and Vietnam were tragic, not monstrous. We must ultimatley view him as we did Lewis — a relic of a more horrible age. Something from yesterday. The most valued of men.

Kosinski's story is well known and worth remembering. Born in Poland in 1933, he wandered about the Eastern landscape of World War II alone — an experience which left him literally speechless for 6½ years. It was during this period that his instinct for fantasy, for private conversations, for writing was born.

Following the war he was reunited with his family and placed in a school for the handicapped. His speech was restored through a skiing accident, and in less than a year, he had worked his way through high school.

Life took him to Moscow where, for defying the Party line, he was suspended from both Warsaw and Moscow universities.

In what Kosinski has called the greatest act of creativity, he managed to escape the Soviet Union by inventing fictional sponsors from the Academy of Sciences. He corresponded regularly with Soviet agencies — in their own names — until he successfully secured a passport and grant — to study on a fictitious American Foundation grant.

During this period, he carried on his person an egg of cyanide as an alternative to prison, a certainty had he been discovered.

In 1957, at the age of 24, he arrived in New York. Unable to speak a word of English, he spent evenings in strained conversations with New York City telephone operators. Two years later he had earned a Ph.D. from Columbia University, supporting himself in the duration with the meanest of labor.

His first book, an analysis of the totalitarian state, "The Future is Ours, Comrade," published under a pen-name — Joseph Novak — served as his dissertation.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER, he married the late Mary Weir, widow of a steel tycoon, and his career as a serious novelist followed.

"The Painted Bird," the account of a young boy's wandering through Europe during World War II, was the recipient of the French best foreign book award. "Steps," the winner of the National Book Award came next, followed by "The Devil Tree," "Cockpit" and "Blind Date."

"Being There," the story of a man, Chauncy Gardiner, an orphan adopted by a wealthy eccentric, who, until the age of 20, has never seen the world beyond his garden and a television set, has been made the subject of a screenplay, starring Peter Sellers and Shirley MacLaine. It is scheduled for release early next year.

The film's release, coming during an election year, is more than timely. Gardiner, qualified for nothing, possesses the ultimate qualificaton for the presidential office. In the film, he becomes a media superstar, and, of course, a presidential candidate.

"He has no background!" cry his supporters. 'And so he's not and cannot be objectionable to anyone! He's perso able, well-spoken, and he comes acros well on TV!"

Whatever Happened to the Human Race?

TWO-DAY SEMINAR OF MAJOR SCOPE WITH FILM PREMIERE
Detroit, Michigan
September 28, 29

APPEARING IN PERSON:

Francis A. Schaeffer
Theologian, philosopher and author. One of the world's most respected thinkers. His careful analysis of Western man's development and future direction is the result of 45 years of intensive study.

C. Everett Koop, M.D.
Recognized as one of the world's most prominent surgeons. Surgeon-in-chief at Philadelphia's Children's Hospital. He has spent a lifetime studying the attitudes and trends of man's view of man from a medical perspective.

Exposing our rapid yet subtle loss of human rights — and offering an alternative

The destruction of human life, young and old, is being sanctioned on an ever-increasing scale by the medical profession, by the courts, by parents and by a silent society. Dr. Schaeffer comprehensively examines the choices and reaffirms the value of human life.

Two Meaningful, content-filled days FEATURING—

Put this sign on your lawn.

Between one mowing and the next, your house could change owners. And you know that's fast!

How can we be so sure?

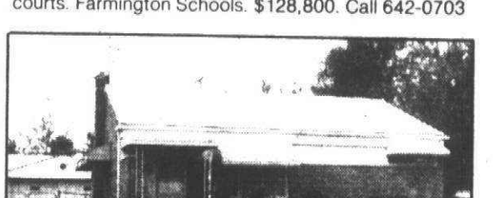

Because we're a member of the Homes For Living Network.

When our sign goes up a lot of things happen. With our exclusive Homes For Living magazine, a picture and description of your home can be available to home buyers in our area. And, through our 2,000 affiliated offices, we'll reach potential out-of-town buyers.

After all, they account for one-third of all home sales.

When you consider that our 25,000 Homes For Living sales associates have more than 10-billion dollars in home sales each year, you know we don't let any crabgrass grow under our feet.

Looking ahead

The corner of a room pictured on the front cover signals a way of life that is becoming more familiar all the time. Space is modest, but the furnishings are elegant and scaled to fit comfortably into the area. Everything pictured was loaned by the stores in the Design Center in Troy. The center, one of the Midwest's best resources for members of the interior design profession, isn't open to the public. But designers frequently take clients there for a look at the newest things in the home furnishings' market. The classic-line, overstuffed Donghia "Tucker" sofa is covered in high glaze chintz. The straight, pull-up chair, also from Donghia, is upholstered, even the legs, in fabric-backed raffia. The wall linen from Payne Fabrics is a handblocked print imported from England called "Tidewater." Kilim pillows from Ghiordes Knot add an ageless, international touch, as does the lotus antique chest from Thailand which doubles as a coffee table. The chest, antiqued metal horseman and bottle glass wine glasses from Spain are from Norman Lacoff. The brass lamp was loaned by E.D. Navarra. (Color cover photo by Dick Kelley)

Welcome.... A new look A new lifestyle A new decade

By CORINNE ABATT

The energy crisis, inflation, the new morality and increased mass communications have dramatically changed our world, and our thinking, in recent years.

The throw-away generation is going the way of Pre-World War II isolationism. The demise of the throw-away era was sealed with the new ban on throwaways. But long before that, homemakers were looking for more quality and less future trash. They began to price-shop, to read labels, to question the contents whether it was pop, peanut butter, wallpaper, upholstery fabric or cookware.

The search for identity moved beyond the encounter and awareness sessions to hobby interests and adult education classes and these began to reflect themselves in home furnishings.

The home became an extension of the individual who lived there. And because of this, the growing need to own different, one-of-a-kind things surfaced like a great wave to counteract the anonymity of mass production.

THE INTEREST in the old, the signed, the one-of-a-kind, original art, the different — things with stories and things with history behind them — generated the art and antique fair boom. Whether it was demand and supply or supply and demand is a moot question. The important point is that the crowds flocked in to satisfy their need for meaningful things in their homes — things they could talk about, explain, enjoy and in doing so, relish a special satisfaction which comes at the end of the hunt.

Those discriminating buyers of the '60s and early '70s turned their talents to further exploration in home furnishings.

World travelers wanted more than the street corner statuary and stamped-out imitations. And they were prepared with background information to find it.

Leonard Fisher, Cranbrook Academy of Art graduate in the Sarrinen era who has achieved world status as a designer, said recently, "I really feel that by the '80s there will be a renaissance — and this is very exciting. . . .we have all evolved to where our taste level is very high. . . In the '70s we seemed to be involved in a classicism and restructuring. In the '80s, we will want "things" more. The home is becoming the economic strength of the family."

He spoke of the things now receiving emphasis — heritage, taste, travel, jogging and fine food.

"It's a whole kind of thing," he said, "and people's sense of style is really reflected in the home."

So just as we are learning to appreciate and value our energy and energy sources, we are learning to value our possessions and choose them carefully for aesthetic qualities as well as monetary value.

IN A SENSE, Americans are growing up. We're also getting more beautiful with age — we're no longer concerned about looking like everyone else around us or having our homes look like those on both sides of the street — we want to be individuals and we're not afraid of our own identity.

These are some of the things that are surfacing in home decorating as well as every other aspect of our lives.

To give you the flavor of things to come in this section, writer Pat Bordman of Farmington Hills visited a prototype solar home in Northville. Jean Herdman of Livonia found a condominium in Southfield designed for a busy career man who likes to entertain sometimes and enojoy the quiet of a pleasant retreat at other times.

I visited a Wallace Frost home and found two owners who cherish it like the Hope Diamond. They found their perfect home after a long search.

There are a whole lot of action verbs that are appropriate to the '80s and the way we approach our lifestyles — planning, selecting, remodeling savings, studying, and experimenting.

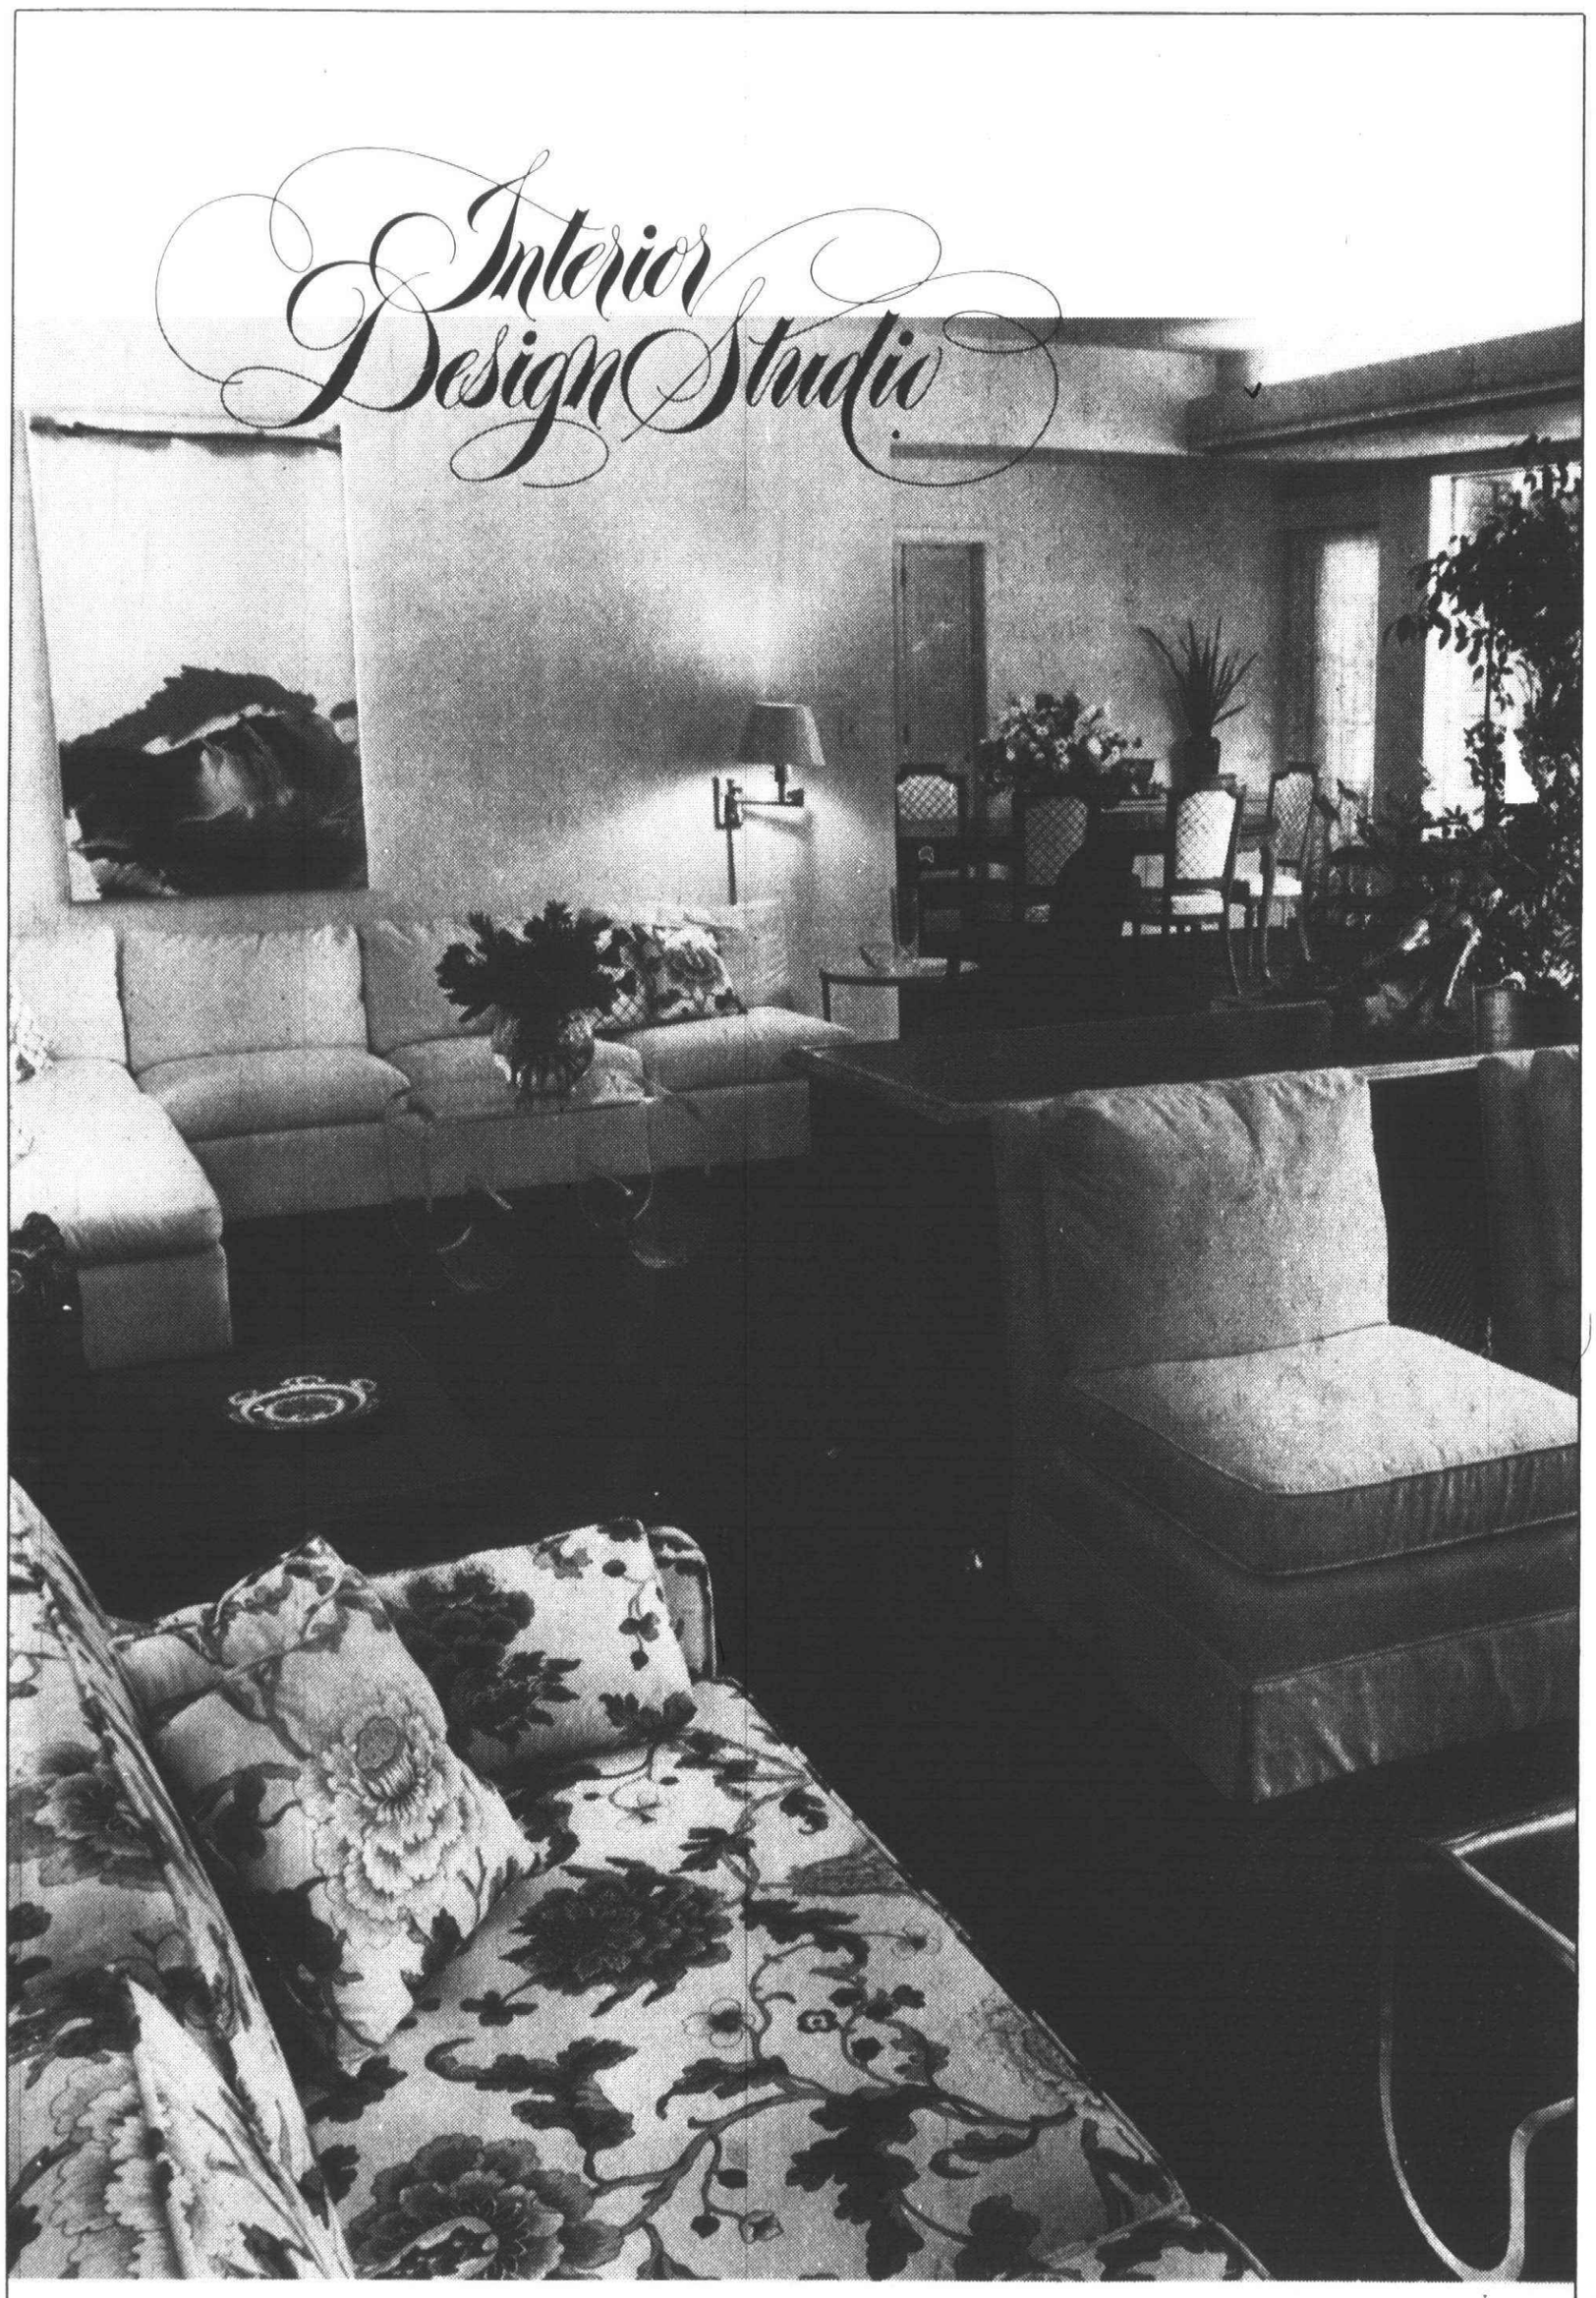

Homes may be smaller, condos and apartments may replace some of the big old energy-hog mansions — but horizons are expanding.

Welcome to the '80s.

"I really feel that by the '80s there will be a renaissance — and this is very exciting. . .We have all evolved to where our taste level is very high. . .The home is becoming the economic strength of the family."

— Leonard Fisher, international designer

Long search ends happily

A heavy growth of ivy had completely covered the beautiful exterior detailing of this home designed by Wallace Frost.

One look at the living room, and Leslie and Bruce Brooks were ready to mortgage their future. After 50 years, there still were no cracks in the plaster and the floors were in perfect condition.

Architect's name sold the house

Story: CORINNE ABATT

Would you buy a house purely because it was designed by a particular architect? Many people would probably say no — price, location, size, style and condition would all have priority.

But those who search for and find Wallace Frost houses are a different breed. There's a magic about the architect who designed houses in the metropolitan area in the late '20s and early '30s that has a lure that equals great paintings, diamonds or Oriental treasures.

Finding a Frost home isn't easy; most sell before they ever go on the market. Leslie Brooks of Birmingham was aware of that when she and her husband, Bruce, used to talk about Frost in reverent tones. In her search, Mrs. Brooks took the most direct route. She identified the Frost homes in the Birmingham area in which she wanted to live and further refined her list to the ones she figured she and her husband could afford. Then she contacted the owners directly although none of the homes were for sale.

"I would stop by and leave my name on the back of a recipe card," she said. "My friends used to tease me saying I was getting a reputation as that crazy lady who was always putting messages on the back of a card that said 'from the kitchen of.' "

But she never had any luck contacting the people who lived at 244 Wimbleton although this happened to be a Frost home she and her husband particularly admired from the outside.

SHE DID LEAVE a card with another Frost home owner, John Richardson, and when he heard that 244 Wimbleton might be sold, he called the Brookses. She said Richardson understood her quest, he had gone through a similar hunt himself. When he was transferred to this area from California, he told his family the only solace for leaving the Pacific Coast sunshine would be to live in a Wallace Frost home.

Leslie and Bruce Brooks made an appointment to see the home on Wimbleton, stepped into the foyer, took one quick look at the living room and bought the house. They moved in last December.

No second thoughts — and no regrets.

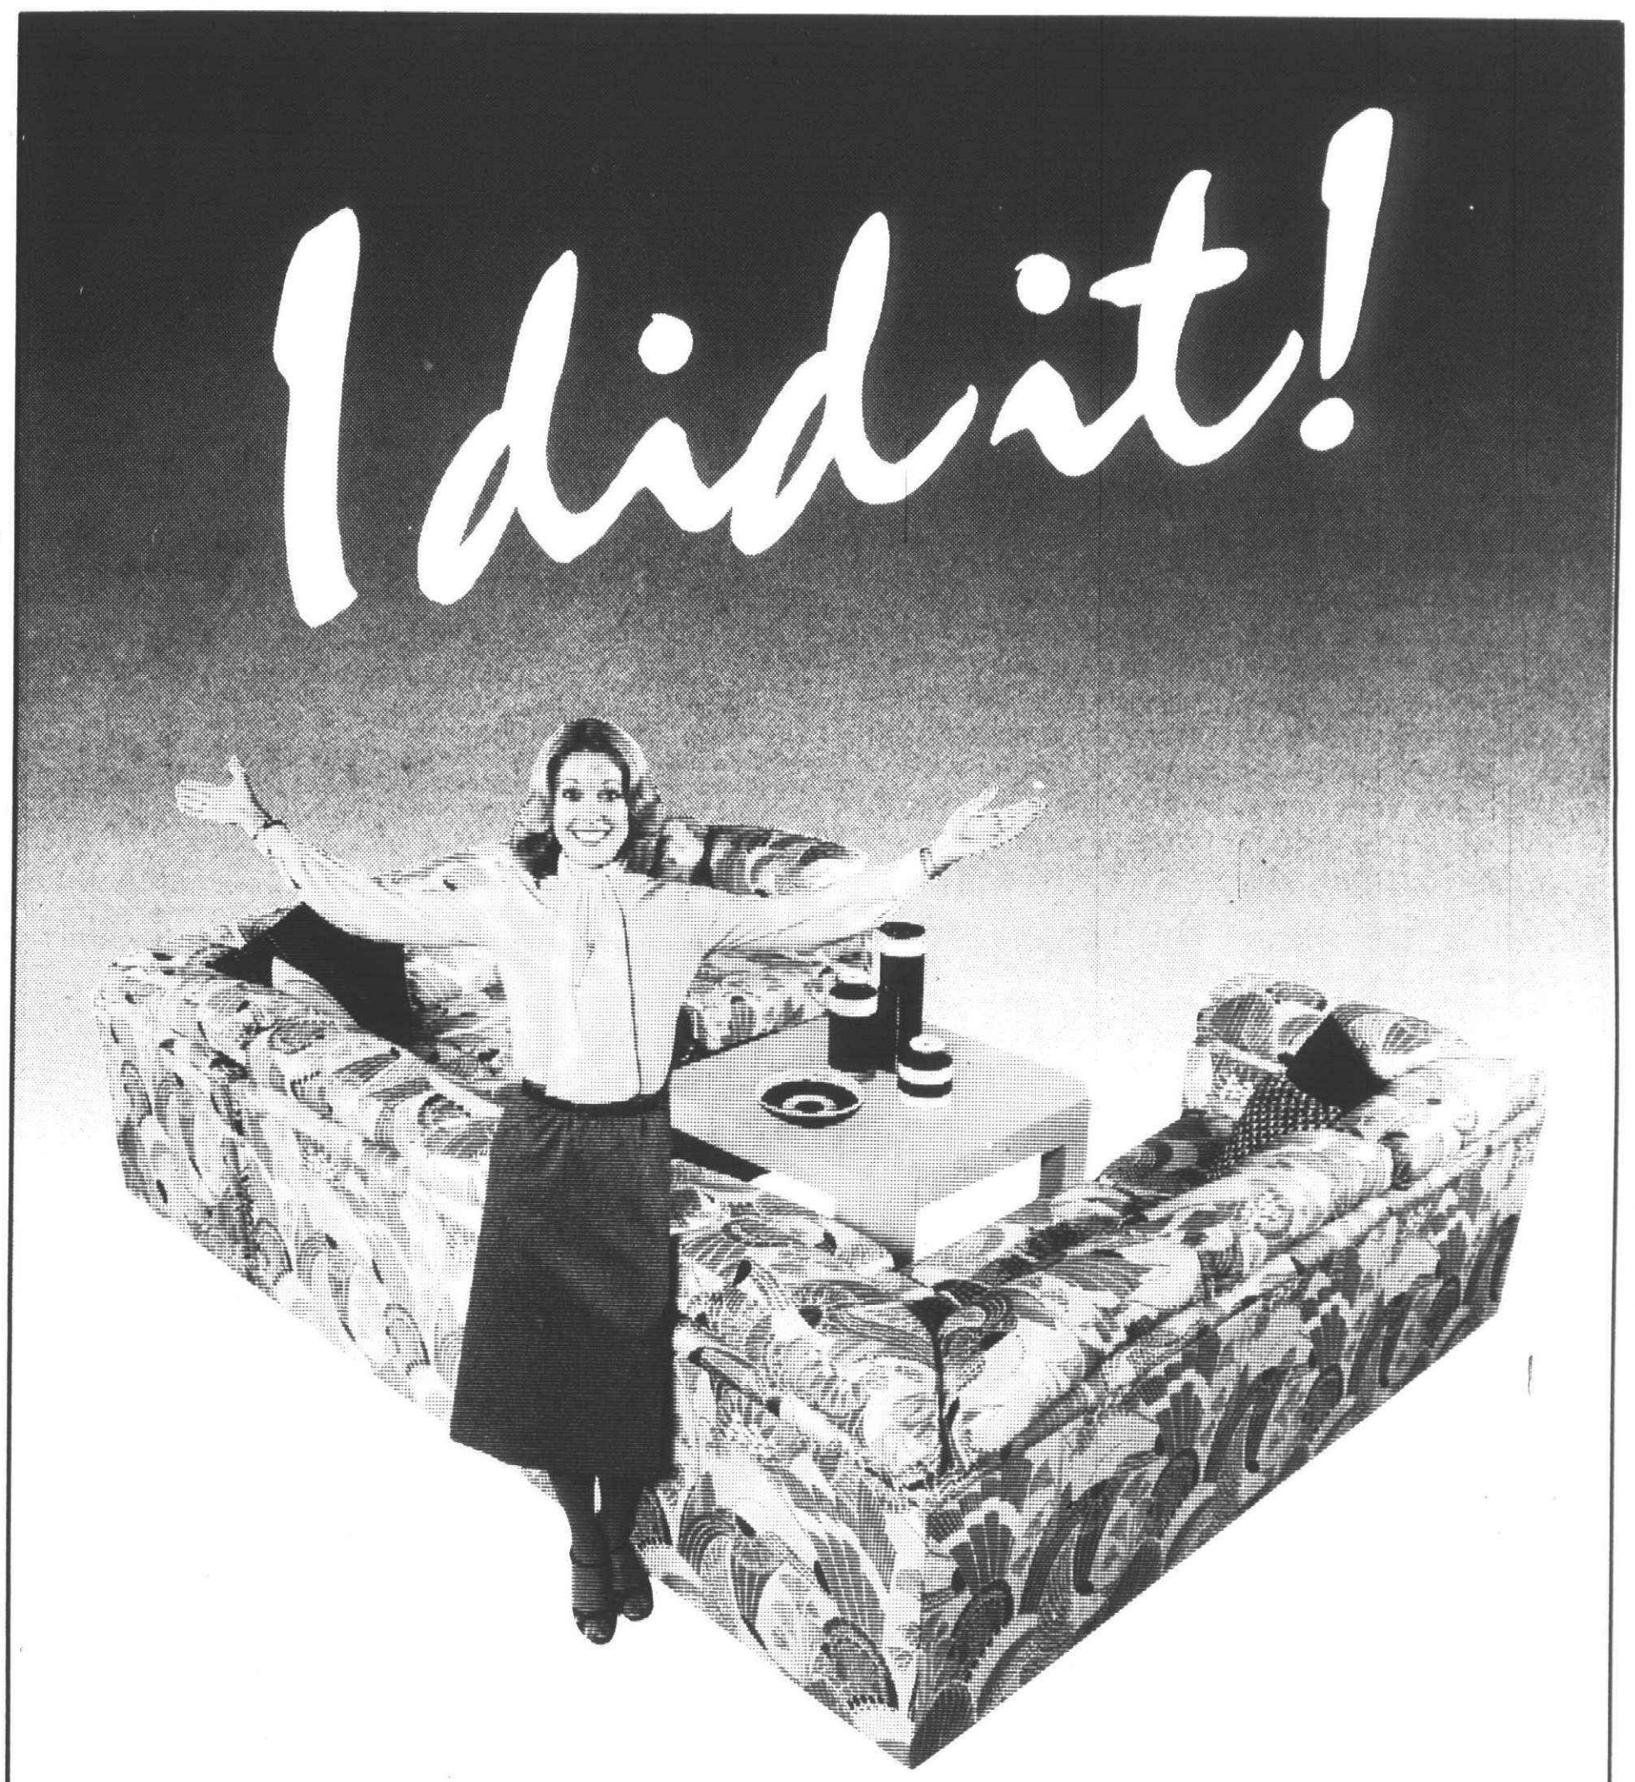

"I saw that bay window in the living room and I knew my grand piano belonged there," Mrs. Brooks said. "Every morning when we get up we find something else to enjoy — it's like living in a dream."

All of the elements that characterize Frost homes of that period when he was taking his inspiration from European architecture — particularly French Norman — are present in the

Victorian bedroom furniture was completely refinished by Bruce Brooks. It was bought with the room in mind. Mrs. Brooks made the drapes and covered the wall beneath the windows in the same fabric. It's shades of mauve, brown and ivory.

One pleasing touch is that all of the brass hardware was imported from England — and in true Gilbert and Sullivan style, the couple have polished up the handle of the big front door — and many other doors as well.

When they took up the living room carpeting, they found an extra wide perfectly matched pine-board floor. The dining room floor is oak. Natural brick is used in the entryway. To add to the French Norman look, the architect used natural wood beams in the foyer. An arched doorway with a paneled cherry wood door leads down several steps from the foyer to the kitchen. A circular stairway leads from the foyer to the upstairs, and this one has a vaulted ceiling, another detail characteristic of Frost.

Mrs. Brooks said the rough plaster walls in the downstairs area are still in excellent condition after 52 years with only a few tiny cracks. Bay windows were another typical Frost detail and this home has one in the living room and another in the dining room along with other windows set deep enough for window seats.

WHILE THE basic structure was in excellent shape and had remained unaltered through the years, the minute the Brooks moved into the home, their efforts went into bringing the home back to as close to its original shape as possible. All carpeting was removed to expose the natural wood floors. All drapes were taken down from the paned glass windows and all paint removed from the solid wood doors.

One of the most tiring jobs and one that elicited pro and con comments was to take 50 years growth of ivy from the brick exterior. But this wasn't the desirable house ivy; this type was a natural hiding place for mice and other small undesirable wildlife.

As the heavy vines came down, the structural details of the outside were uncovered to show the natural stone and brick patterns.

"We bought most of them as junk and my husband refinished them," Mrs. Brooks said.

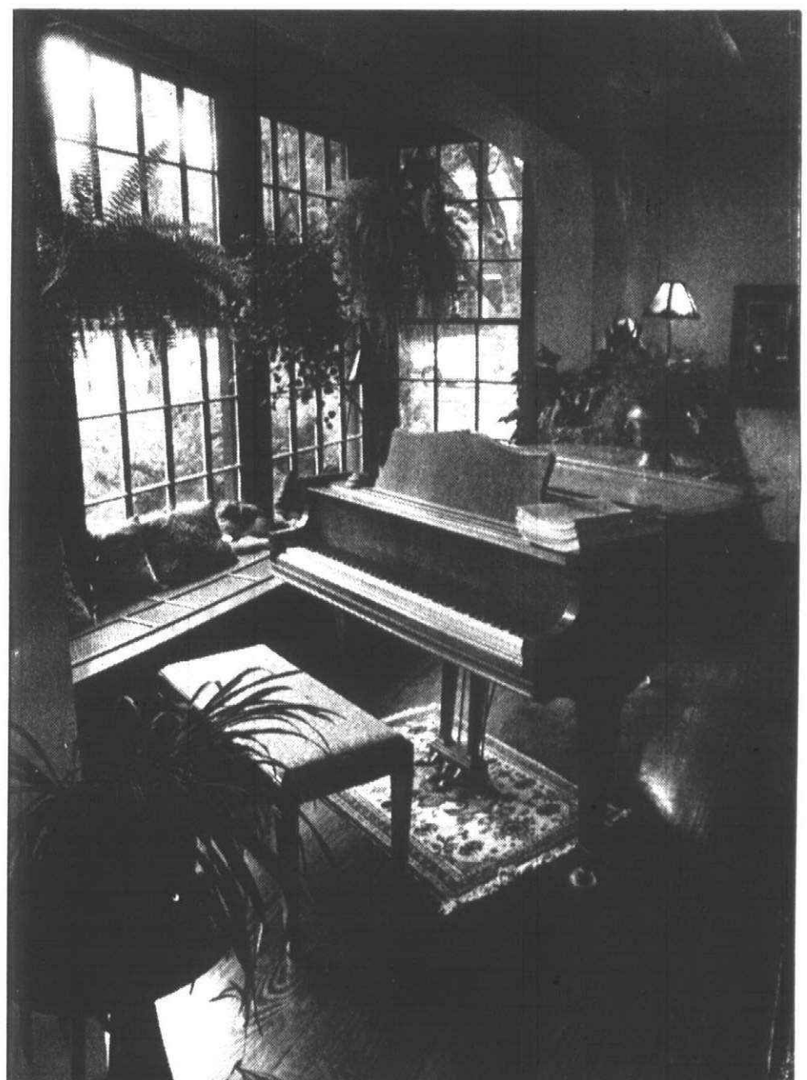

They were sure, however, that they wanted a master bedroom that was middle or late 19th century, all the way. The Victorian bedroom set was acquired at an estate sale. It had been stored in a barn and was badly water damaged before Bruce Brooks took over and turned it into a beautiful set with a gleaming finish.

Mrs. Brooks covered the master bedroom walls with a mauve and brown print material, something she swears she'll never use for wallcovering again (too difficult to hang), and made curtains and pillows to match. When they bought the bed, they guessed the headboard would fit in the master bedroom with little room to spare. In actual fact, the ceilings are hip and there is but one place where the bed fits, but that's where they hoped it would go anyway.

Using the sun to heat the pool

By PAT BORDMAN

For this family the future has arrived. They relate to the sun, not through rose-colored glasses, but through the plastic panels on their roof.

When the Fields family recently moved into a newly constructed home in Rolling Oaks, they added an in-ground swimming pool. A solar energy heating system was installed as a supplement to the regular pool heater.

"We had a pool in our other house, and we had a gas heater, not a solar heater. Really just with the cost of gas, we decided that we would look into it," said Wendy Fields.

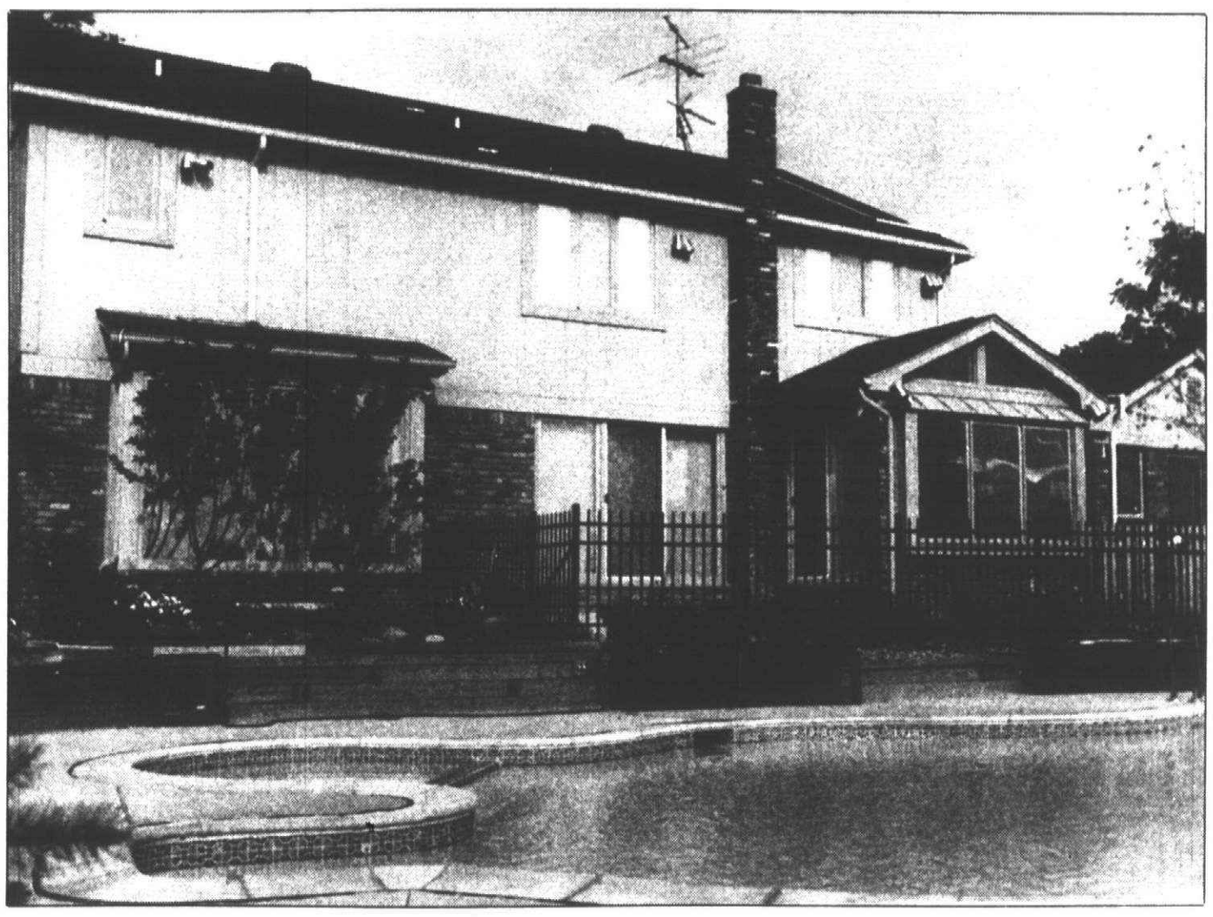

But, other considerations began to surface as they explored the still new idea of solar pool heating.

"It wasn't only a matter of the cost, as much as, in this day and age we felt kind of guilty using all the gas to heat a swimming pool," she continued.

Her husband has an even more sobering viewpoint. He suspects that the use of gas to heat pools in this area will be limited.

"Actually, I don't think gas will be available at all in the near future for swimming pools," he said.

In fact, already in California the use of gas for heating pools has been restricted. In this area we have seen the curtailment of natural gas for use in outdoor light fixtures.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM isn't complicated. Solar collectors are positioned on the rear south facing roof. These collectors contain pipes filled with water pumped there from the pool. The water is heated by the intense light from the sun, pumped back down to a filtration tank and then on to the regular pool heater.

If the water temperature is above a predetermined level, it is sent on to the pool. If the temperature is inadequate, the gas heater turns on automatically and boosts the heat already present from the sun's energy.

"The pool has stayed at about 88-90 degrees all summer. The only time I turn on the gas heater is at night," said the homeowner.

"Pool heating is the biggest market for solar energy right now. The pool already needs a pump and the temperature required is only 80 degrees. So this is a good application for solar systems. There are also many good manufacturers," Murray said.

But the same bugaboos that prevent widespread use of solar home heating systems, also prevent total reliance on the sun for pool heating.

Bob Stinchombe, of Miami Blue Water Pools, said, "The problem with the system is that of effectiveness in this area. We just don't have enough sunshine to rely solely on the solar system."

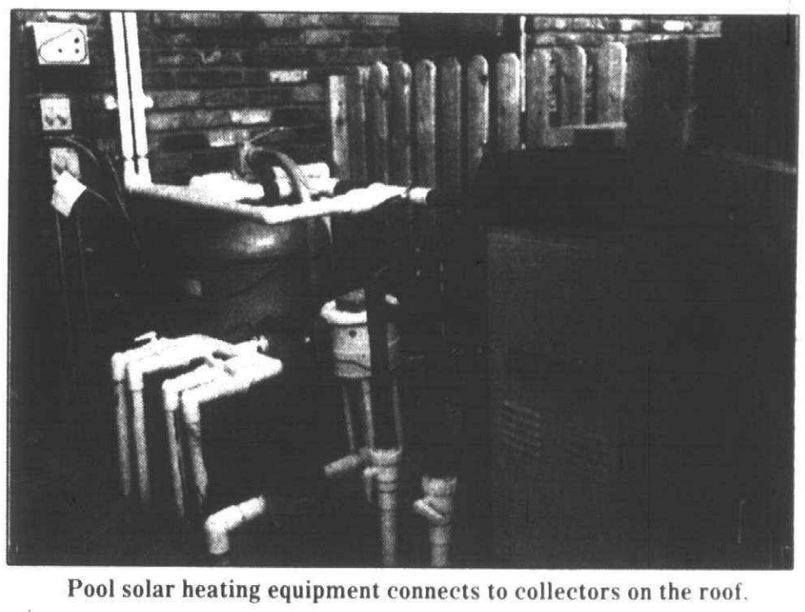

THE OTHER PROBLEM is money.

"The cost is also preventing it. I don't think they're being pushed here. Not until there is a bigger break from the government," said Stinchombe. "We've had a lot of inquiries, but the price is up so high, people back off." He estimated the cost of including a solar heat system into the pool heating equipment at about $3,200.

But this is offset by the savings realized by not using the conventional system.

"I save about $150 a month by having this system," the Farmington Hills owner said.

Saving energy—a new business

By CORINNE ABATT

Shel Pastor of Southfield is a young man with a business eye on the future. Raised in a family of electrical contractors and a master electrician himself, for the past year he's been taking a long hard look at the products on the market designed to conserve energy.

Eight months ago, after testing a lot of them, he found enough he deemed worthwhile and launched a business — Nu-Way Systems, Inc. based in Berkley.

Pastor now handles four products which include a very inexpensive gasket and plastic cap for electrical outlets called Energy Savers, Sandy Super Weather Stripping, a sump pump that operates regardless of power failure and the Dupont Energy Monitor.

It can tell at any given time how much energy is being used and translate that from kilowatts into dollars-and-cents language. The amount of energy being used is continually displayed on a lighted digital dial. The amount for a particular period of time from several minutes to a month can be compared with previous months usage.

THE MONITOR can be programmed to give warning flashes if the amount being used exceeds the budgeted amount the user has set. The user can also quickly see a dollars and cents estimate of what his energy bill is during the month. A special control output feature causes the heating and air-conditioning system to cycle when desired through switching circuits that allow maximum cycle, minimum cycle, continuous or only over-budget.

Calling the Energy Monitor "a little computor which runs on a 365-day calendar," Pastor said it is recommended for homes with electrical bills running in excess of $100 a month as well as business and industry.

This is because the savings for a person paying $100 or more a month in electircal bills will mean "a three years or less pay back period," Pastor said.

FOR INSTANCE, Pastor said a homeowner or business person will find from the Energy Monitor that air conditioning set at 72 degrees will cost a lot more than at 78 degrees. The monitor will show the dollars-and-cents savings — making a slightly warmer room logical to those who say a slightly lower temperature wouldn't make any difference.

Pointing out that the monitor can be a handy psychological tool for creating energy awareness, Pastor said the monitor is presently being used in the Detroit Edison Jubilee home in Northville.

Variations on the simple monitor are now in use in all the buildings on the Eastern Michigan University campus and some are going to be installed in Central Michigan University buildings.

The variation in these cases as is that these monitors will feed back to a master computor so that at any time university staffers can find out what the energy consumption is in any of the monitored buildings.

Pastor pointed out that other gadgets which monitor energy peaks are not particularly helpful to Michigan residents, because this one of the few states that doesn't bill homeowners on peak demand — purely on kilowatt hours used.

THE GASKETS to fit behind switch plates and the plastic covers for the outlets when not in use are an insignificant item only until the analysis by Texas Power and Light comes into focus. The company estimated that 20 percent of all air infiltration comes through electrical outlets.

He said that while there are other gaskgets on the market, few have the additional insulated cover for the outlets.

His weather stripping products, he claims, have a much longer life than many others — often, he said, weather stripping, made by other companies should be replaced every year to be really effective. Sandy weatherstripping products have an estimated 10-year life.

AS MOST sump pump users know, a sump pump is only as good as the electricity which powers it. And in the last few years, heavy rains which require the pump to stay on almost constantly to keep ahead of the water, have been accompanied by strorms and resultant power failures. Unless there's a generator handy in the basement to keep the pump going, flooding occurs.

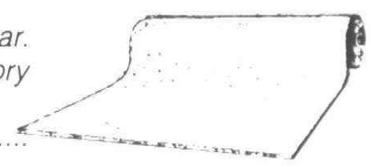

The AquaNot sump pump, which Pastor sells, is powered by a reserve battery (not included in the price) and will provide 18 hours of back up pumping — usually long enough for the homeowner's power to be restored or at least for other arrangements to be made. In dire circumstances, once the 18 hours has been used, the pump could be hooked up with a car battery. The pump costs about $350.

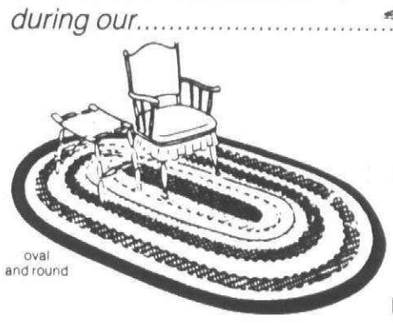

Pastor is presently working on both a wholesale and retail basis with his line of energy-oriented products. He is looking for dealers to handle them as well as homeowners and businesses interested in seeing his presentation.

To contact him about any of these, call Nu-Way Systems Inc, 541-1807.

Oriental with a contemporary flair and masculine colors such as black, putty and burnt orange give this Southfield condo a feeling of both elegance and serenity.

Mrs. Brooks sat on the enclosed porch, looked through the doorway to the living room and dining room and said, "The thing that is so remarkable to me about Frost is that he could design a house 52 years ago that is so viable for a family now. With very few structural changes — he saw it all 50 years ago."

THE NATURAL woods of the antiques which Bruce Brooks refinished, the splashes of color in the Oriental style rugs which highlight the natural wood floors, the live plants and the touches of another era in the brass accessories, Tiffany-style lamps and handwoven pillows all make this home one that is full of natural light and natural materials, sparked by touches of vibrant color.

Two daughters, Becky and Lisa, have what amounts to a separate suite of bedrooms on the second floor connected by a bathroom, and there is ample room for guests.

THE BOTTOM LINE IS QUALITY

Colors and decor answer owner's requests

By JEAN HERDMAN

A place in which to relax after a busy day. A quiet place to entertain a few friends — a place to listen to music.

This is what Dale Larson asked for when he commissioned Bill Ray of Ray Interiors, Farmington, to design the interior of his condominium in Southfield.

Larson's requests were answered — and more. The color scheme of black, putty and burnt orange is both masculine and soothing. The ambiance is highly individualized sophistication. But just as important, the designer's attention to details such as furniture scale and design, plus expert use of pattern, has given this condominium a feeling of spaciousness which belies the modest size of the rooms.

All furnishings in the 14½-by-16½ foot living room are light in scale. Style is Oriental, with a contemporary flair. A cotton print covers the sofa in a muted pattern of black, putty and burnt orange, and the colors are repeated throughout the room.

A HAND-GLAZED finish gives an unusual effect to the wing chair, which was originally eggshell in color. After upholstering was completed, a brown glaze was applied and then wiped off. Deep brown tones remain in the tufting crevices and highlight the design. Such details are what give this room its look of distinction.

The focal point of the living room is the fireplace where a magnificent brass fan used in place of a screen draws the eye. Bricks were painted black to give the fireplace importance against the pale putty walls.

A tall narrow window beside the fireplace could have been a problem. Any other treatment except the painted shutters which Ray used to "blot it out," would have detracted from the fireplace setting. Now the soft, diffused light that escapes from the closed louvers adds to the feeling of relaxation.

Because he wanted an ottoman in the same width and style as the open-armed parson's chair, Ray ordered matching fabric from Heritage, manufacturers of the chair. A special frame was made and then upholstered by Ray Interiors with the narrow black striped golden beige velvet. Used as a single unit, the chair and ottoman provide a comfortable spot for reading or relaxing. Separated, the ottoman serves as an extra chair.

"I particularly wanted this style for the ottoman," said Ray. "The parson's design is effective in creating a feeling of space. The open style of the legs, like the glass-topped cocktail table, lets the eye look through and beyond."

Another impressive feature of this room is the chinoiserie cabinet which doubles as an entertainment center. Its rich chocolate-brown finish and intricate gold pattern determine the room's Oriental flavor, which is repeated in antique Chinese porcelains and the tortoiseshell-covered bamboo legs of the cocktail table. The cabinet makes entertaining here a simple affair. Glassware, liquor, mixes — all are ready for instant entertaining.

THREE PECAN-FINISHED storage units from Drexel's Precedent Collection house the music system equipment in one compact corner, allowing plenty of open space to surround the remaining pieces, two sandy beige easy chairs and a pecan television console.

The carpeting of this 11-by-13 foot room is the same deep burnt orange "splush" used in the living room. Wallpaper in a slightly lighter shade is reminescent of tree branches and covers one wall.

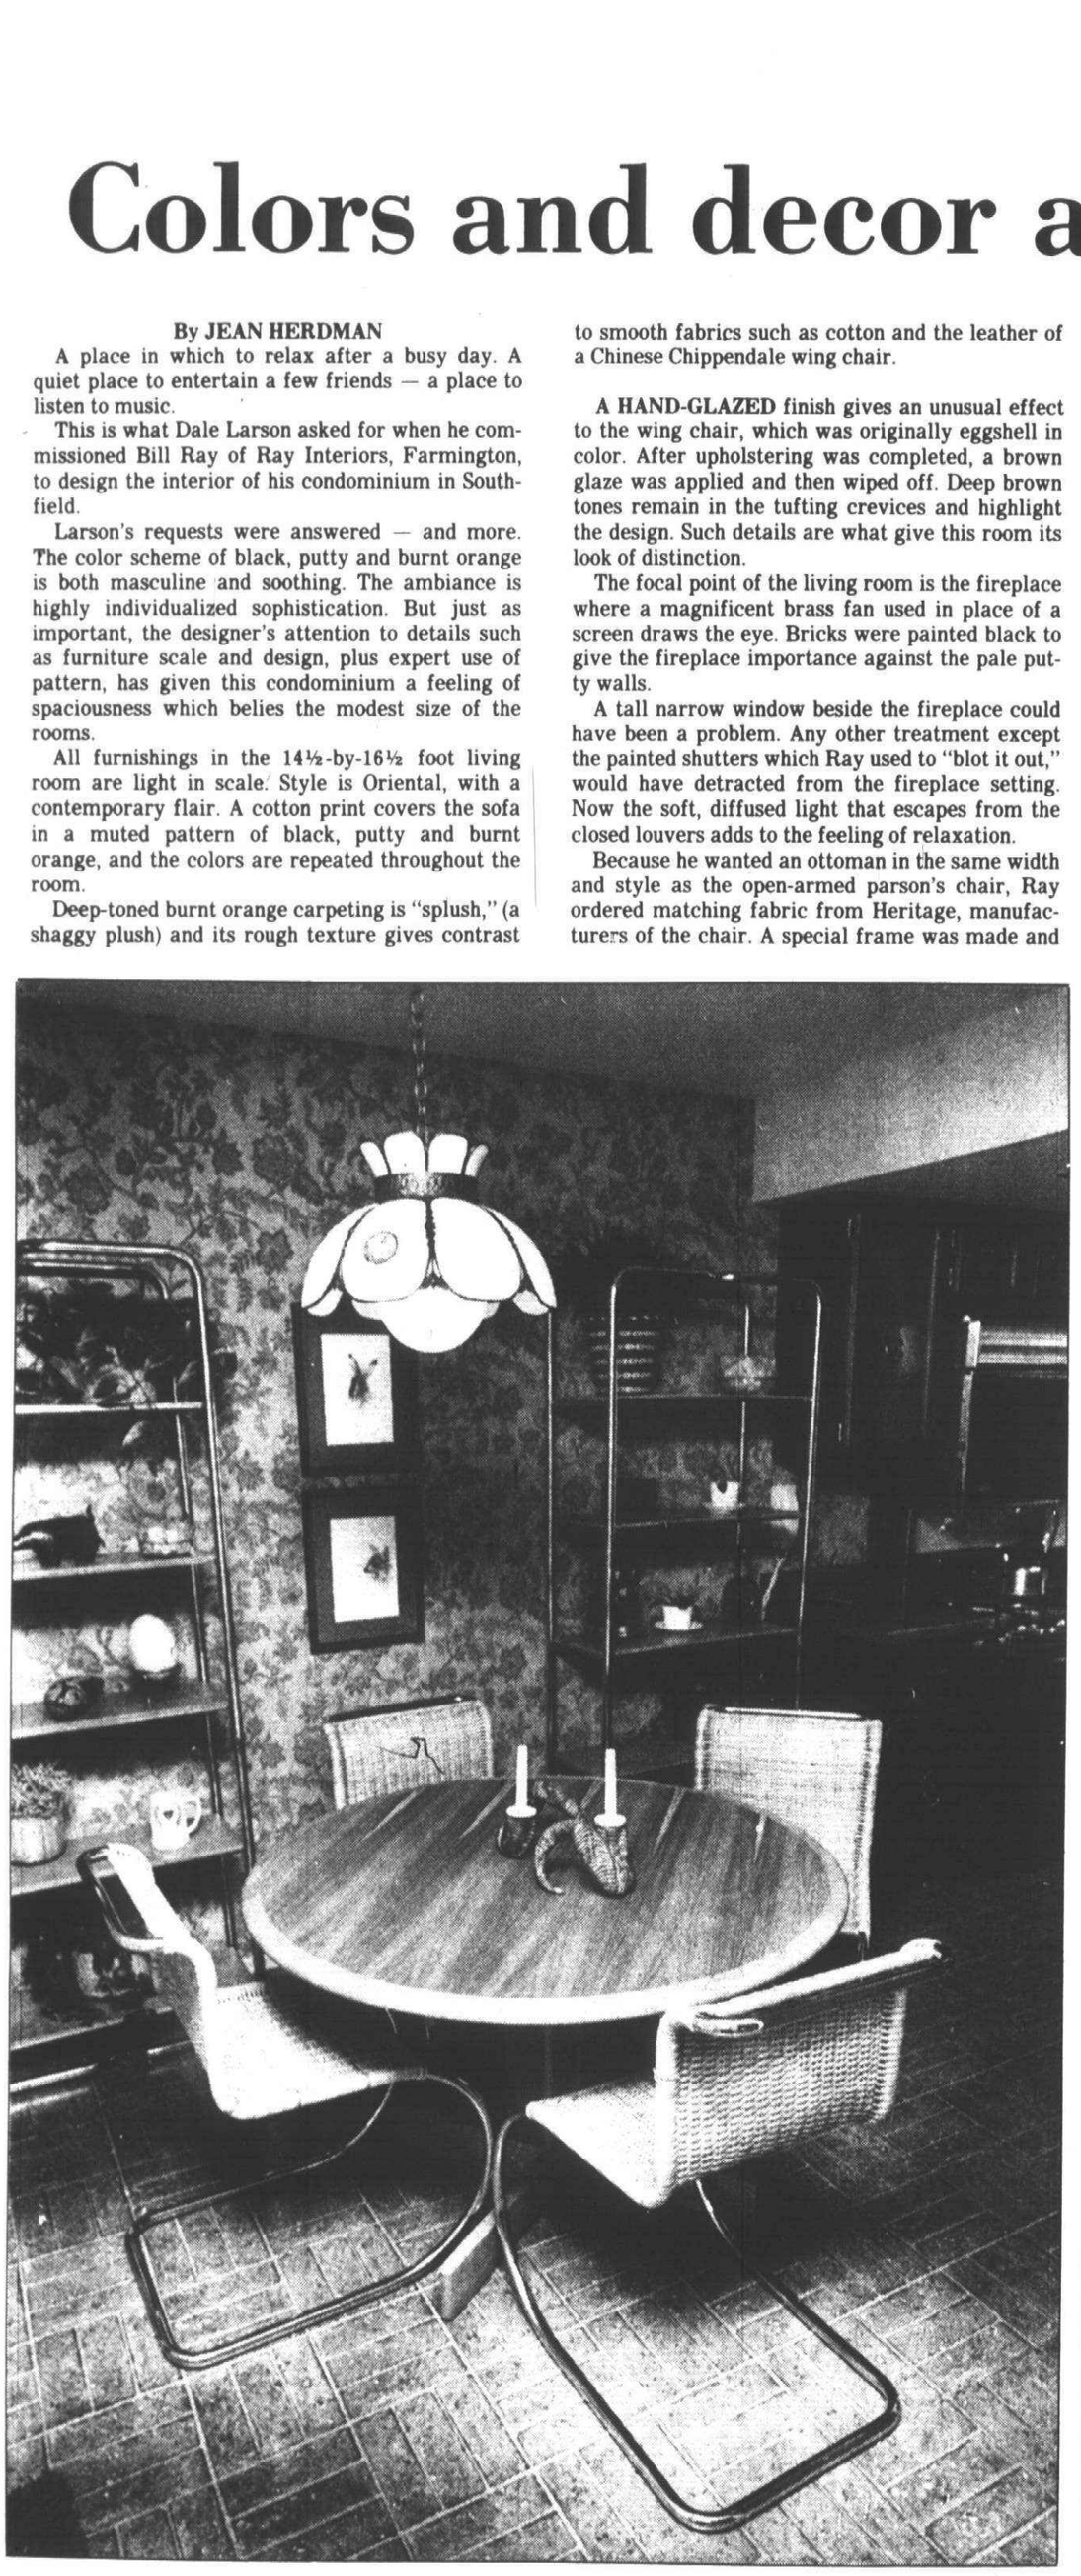

Accessories in this room have wisely been kept to a minimum and emphasize its theme. A brass lyre-shaped music stand is both decorative and functional (the owner plays the quitar) — an African musical instrument is shown to advantage against the putty color of the wall. It is a totally uncluttered room — a place that invites you to enjoy music without distraction.

The careful and knowledgeable attention given to details of this home give it a strong feeling of individuality. It can be a welcome retreat after a busy day or it can be ready for entertaining at a moment's notice.

Demand is key to sale of homes

The average sale price for an existing home in the Detroit metropolitan area has more than doubled in the last 10 years, according to reliable statistics.

However not every home has increased in value, say members of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

They maintain inflation has been a major cause of rising home prices, but that there are other contributing factors.

"Many homeowners assume that because they paid $25,000 for a home a decade ago, it now automatically is worth $50,000," say the WWOCBR members. "In some cases, it might sell for considerably more, but it could easily be less."

"Demand is still the major determining factor," said a WWOCBR Realtor. "Sometimes a particular area will become a 'hot' spot or a large number of buyers are looking for a certain style of home. Such competition among buyers tends to push prices up faster than those for other homes."

The best individual control for assuring the highest possible resale value for a home is prompt and proper upkeep from the time you first move in, according to the realtors.

NEW RUGS FOR OLD!

Aladdin had the right idea. And we adapted it years ago. Any Persian or Chinese rug purchased from our extensive collection will be taken in trade toward the purchase of a new rug at any future date and the full purchase price will be allowed. Of course the rug must not be mutilated or damaged.

Imagine buying an automobile and after driving it for five years trading it in on a new model with full purchase price being allowed.

Our semi-annual Oriental rug sale is now in progress through September 29th, and every rug is marked down 20% or more from its regular price.

The selection is as remarkable as the savings. Two million dollars worth of the finest carpets from the Near and Far East.

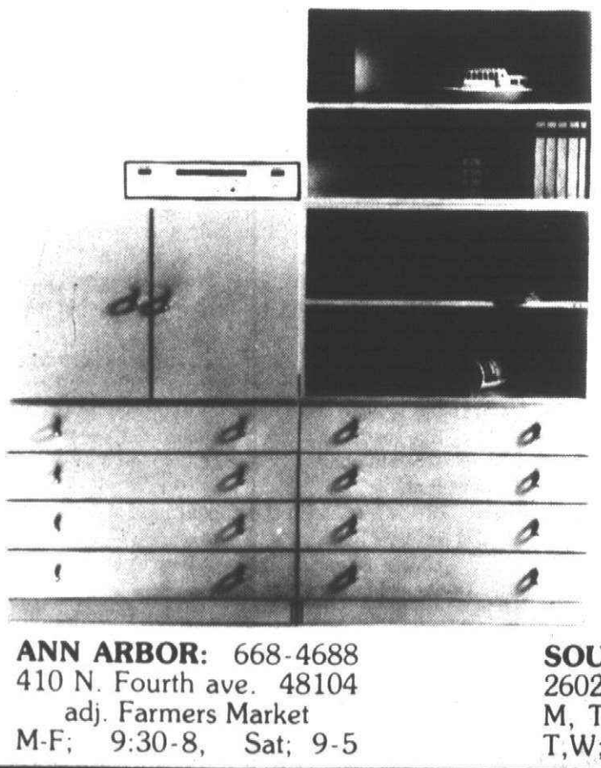

Note:
Each rug is registered in your name for future proof of value. Who knows? You might sell your rug to a collector for twice what you paid for it.
Or we might.

SPA BROKER™

Room for entertaining and family activities has fabrics ready to handle the traffic — young or old. What looks liked sueded leather on the matching love seats is actually Naugahyde vinyl fabric. In this instance the fabric is navy blue used with white walls, natural pine dining chairs and table and camel carpet. The suede look fabric is "Ranchero."

Fabric goes masquerading

Antique satin damasks, wool tartans, slubby Haitian cottons have several things in common. As upholstery fabrics, they make knockout design statements of their own.

Damask rich and elegant speaks of an urban sophisticate. The tartan — masculine and countrified — is redolent with suggestion of pipe tobacco and hunting dogs.

None of these fabrics, however, is particularly durable or even practical in the sense of being easy to clean.

That's why a new collection of vinyl fabrics that duplicates the look and touch of these and other delicate textiles is creating a stir in professional interior design circles.

The 10 patterns and 29 color combinations in the collection fool the eye and also the hand. Naugahyde has been made not only to look like damask, but to feel like damask, as well as tartan, Haitian cotton, cotton chintz, menswear knits, tapestry cloth, flamestitch, and cotton batik.

Appearances aside, the reality of the "Designers Collection" is expanded vinyl, laminated to a knitted fabric base. A clear barrier or wear-coat seals and protects each design and contributes additionally to the performance and life of the pattern.

THIS TOUGH construction has the durability and easy care qualities of the strongest commercial-grade Naugahyde, yet the softness, finish, tactile quality, and aesthetics are those of other handsome, but far more perishable textiles.

"You don't see vinyl in these fabrics," Doherty said, "and you don't feel it, either. We haven't just made Naugahyde to look like another kind of fabric, but we have created a soft contest, working from the backing right through to the fabric's face."

The technology involved in the production of the collection includes high-fidelity embossing, fine register printing, a method of color reproduction that is new to the manufacture of vinyl fabric, and a finishing process that captures the traditional tactile characteristics associated with each textile design from which the patterns are drawn.

At Uniroyal, a research-oriented company that produced the first expanded vinyl, the first breathable vinyl fabric, and the first slip finish, the impressive technology of the "Designers Collection" is getting as much attention as the fabrics themselves.

This is a collection of well executed classics rather than startling statements. Patterns are styled and colored to make a comfortable fit with virtually any mood of furnishings and any color scheme.

Upholstery shops and fabric marts are receiving "Designers Collection" sample stock during September. And as an aid to remodelers, every color combination in each of the 10 patterns has been color matched to a solid color leather-look Naugahyde pattern, "Spirit of '76."

If a wing chair, for instance, were to be covered in "Knollwood," a contemporary California floral with the look of cotton chintz, the back and sides could be done in a correlated color from "Spirit of '76."

Many design effects are possible, including contrasting and self welts, sofas done in patterns with tub chairs in solid coordinates, seats in solids with back cushions in patterns, and more.

"Knollwood" comes in champagne, a light and darker green, and shale, a colorway that is predominently rust and blue gray.

"Damask Stripe" a carefully wrought interpretation of a cloth woven in 18th-century France, has the look of antique satin complete with the pearl-like luster that accents its amber coloring. It is offered in champagne, gold, avocado, Wedgwood, and rust.

"Tahoe," with the appearance of a contemporary tie-dye batik, has the texture of cloth from long-staple Egyptian cotton. Teal, forest, and rust are the colorways.

Check your colors with your clock

Human beings seem to be equipped with at least two very different kinds of internal clocks.

There are morning people. These are the types who bounce out of bed at dawn and jog five miles before breakfast. They tend to be healthy and wholesome and turn their lights off at 10 p.m.

Then, there are night people.

Interior design reflects both moods, Doherty noted.

There are morning colors. These are the sun colors of yellow, mimosa, white, grass green, tangerine, and strawberry.

Morning rooms have side expanses of glass and are filled with plants. Woven reed baskets, fresh-cut flowers, and such signs of nature are everywhere.

BUT THE NIGHT person feels most comfortable in a setting that reflects a slower starting but perhaps longer lasting nature. Space can be closed in, but still very comfortable, even snug.

Colors are dramatically different. Where the morning person revels in clear, crisp hues, the night person favors smokey browns and earthtones, blues with lots of gray content, soft sea greens and celadons, gunmetal gray, and steely black and chrome. The look is frankly sophisticated.

Sunlight floods the kitchen and breakfast room designed by Charlotte and Ving Smith of New Rochelle, N.Y. Plenty of glass and a southern exposure let an indoor garden flourish most of the year. Double thicknesses of glass encasing a layer of insulating air help prevent heat loss.

Easy-care furnishings and finishes are in bright colors. The table is copper. A woven white rug covers a golden cork floor. The plump sofa and ottoman are upholstered in Naugahyde "Decor" pattern in parchment white.

The manufacturers claim Naugahyde resists tears and scuffing because of its tough, laminated construction, is virtually fade-free, and it may be wiped clean with a damp cloth or even scrubbed with soap and water, if necessary.

When not in use, the dining table can be rolled to one side to become a sideboard or serving bar. The octagonal stacking tables in the right foreground can be set out for cocktails or snacks. In this manner, this end of the kitchen becomes more than a dining area. The Smiths created an attractive morning room that is useful around the clock.

Roche Bobois.

The way it's designed to be endlessly re-designed. And rearranged. For individual needs. Desires. (Whims?)

But when you feel the supple leather, or plush velvet upholstery of Roche Bobois, you might tend to ignore the innerspring units of hand-tied steel coil springs. The separate layers of foam in progressive compressions, wrapped with polyester fibers.

A costly source of energy

By PAT BORDMAN

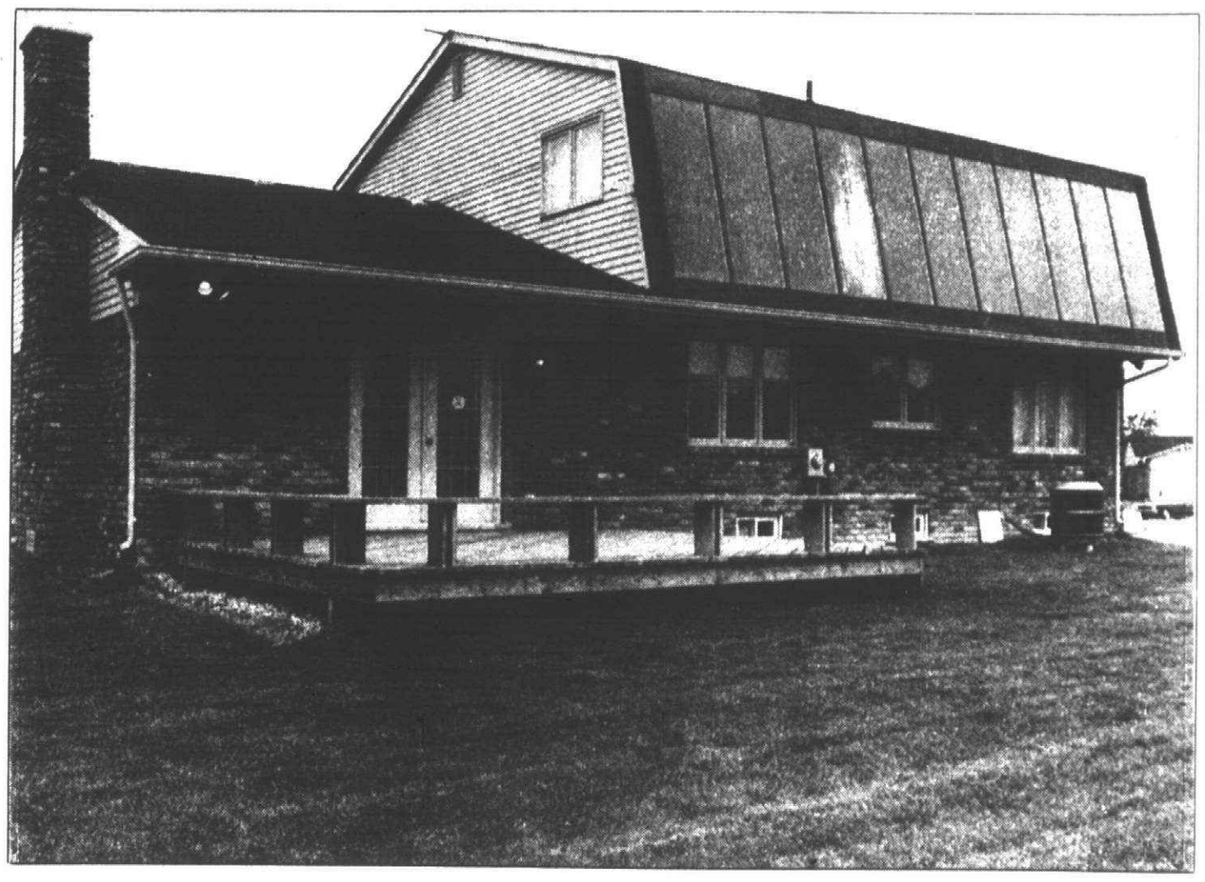

Is there a star in your future?

It could be that the immense, gaseous mass known as our sun holds the key to comfortable living. Touted now as a possible savior of our energy needs, solar power may be energy's shining star.

But if you think solar power is a thing of the future in the Detroit area, you're only partly right. There is currently a house outfitted for solar use in Northville. Detroit Edison, together with Fred Greenspan Development Contractors, and the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, built a prototype solar home to see how solar energy might be used in a home in our geographical area.

In surprising contrast to the futuristic image that solar power evokes, one finds a traditionally designed two-story Dutch Colonial blending into the community so well, that without identifying signs, the visitor wouldn't guess it's true purpose. In fact, the only outside feature that belies this home's energy source is the rear roofline solar collectors.

"We wanted to test a home that was typical, something that would be a part of the community, and then have a real family live there to further test our findings," said Jared Goetz of Detroit Edison.

ENTERING, the visitor is surprised by the traditional charm exhibited in this 2,300-square-foot home and pleased at the comfort. Solar water and space heating has made little noticeable difference other than the necessary equipment in the basement.

There are no loud noises, musty smells or dry air. This is truly a liveable dwelling with four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, living room, dining room, kitchen with eating space, first-floor utility room, and family room with fireplace and double French doors leading to an outdoor wooden deck.

Featuring the best in conservation features, the house boasts insulated basement walls, foil-backed drywall at exterior walls and ceilings to act as a moisture barrier and three foot overhang on the south facing windows to let in the winter sunshine but deflect the hot summer sun. Lighting was chosen for energy efficiency and usefulness, with many fluorescent fixtures selected for longevity and reduced operating costs. The fireplace fresh air intake with damper control and sealed glass doors at the fireplace opening, prevents the use of already warmed household air.

In addition, the builder has added many deluxe features for convenient living such as a Nu-Tone food center, instant-hot water dispenser at the kitchen sink, trash compactor, stove with microwave oven, intercom, electronic air cleaner, and sprinkling system.

HOW DOES this stellar example of future comfort work?

Solar collector panels are on the south facing roofline for maximum exposure to sunlight. They look somewhat like large, dark windows and are fronted by low-iron tempered glass, which allows more sunlight to enter to the underlying water-filled copper pipes.

On sunny days, the collectors soak up heat, which is then transferred to the water circulating through the pipes in the collectors. This solar-heated water is pumped to a large (500 gallon) insulated storage tank in the basement where it is kept until needed.

After the sun-heated water enters the storage tank, it can either be stored until needed later in the day, used to warm the interior of the house, or used to heat water for bathing, cooking, and laundry.

To warm the house, the solar-heated water is pumped to a solar-heat exchanger where the heat is transferred to air. The heated air is then circulated through the house by a fan and ductwork.

Water heating works on much the same principle. City water enters a solar water pre-heater which is warmed by solar-heated water pumped from the storage tank. (The two waters do not intermingle, so there's no chance of contamination.) This pre-heated water is pumped to an electric water tank for use in the home. If the water isn't hot enough, the electric water tank can boost the temperature with electric elements.

IN THE NORTH, the whole system is intended as a supplement to existing methods of home comfort.

"We don't yet have any method of storing the sun's energy for long periods. The sun is only out a certain portion of the day and so, although the sun is a renewable resource, it is not a controllable one. We will always need a backup system," cautioned George Murray, Edison's solar energy expert.

"Particularly in this part of the country, where we may not see the sun for many days in winter, the energy is there, it's just very diffuse. The problems in generating energy are very complex. It's more complicated than just throwing a light switch at 2 a.m."

The problems with solar energy are today's as well as tomorrow's. The largest may be cost.

"We're trying to figure out cheap ways to make it feasible for the consumer. We're doing a lot of troubleshooting before we recommend a system to our customers," said Murray.

Goetz reported the solar conservation materials added $10,000 in additional expenditures to the cost of this home. That compares with a typical heat job of $2,300 for a home of this size.

"We're going through a learning process. We're not sure how long these parts will last, and we have questions about the reliability and performance of them," said Murray.

Yet, he is optimistic.

"We think there will be a real savings in the use of solar energy over con-

Brass, six-sided noodle carts now being brought to this country by a business-minded traveler from Bloomfield Hills serve many purposes in contemporary decor. (Staff photo by Dick Kelley)

Noodle and fish ball soup vender in the old days carried his culinary equipment on a long pole and set up shop on the street corner. Mechanization has taken over in recent years.

Noodle cart rolls into a new life

A visit in Manila with a friend started Jan Stinson of Bloomfield Hills in a new business. It was the brass noodle cart from Bangkok that did it.

Mrs. Stinson spotted the noodle cart in her friend's home and knew immediately it was one of those things she had to have. It was particularly appealing because it was six sided — the more common ones have but four sides.

She found the name of the contact in Bangkok and wrote to him.

"His reply was so nice," said Mrs. Stinson, "that I didn't have the heart to ask him to ship just one, so I ordered four and when they arrived beautifully packed, three of them were sold immediately."

She managed to keep the fourth herself, but quickly ordered 25 more plus some other smaller items such as a Thai iron which has an opening for hot coals to heat the iron.

Soon her 25 noodle carts were gone and she re-ordered again and requests for more kept coming.

Mrs. Stinson, who has a background in merchandising and a hobby of interior decorating, was in the importing business almost before she had time to reconnoiter.

She was almost as impressed by the way they were packed as the workmanship of the cart itself. They come through surface shipping with nary a blemish or a dent.

They rest on a six-sided wooden stand on coasters and Mrs. Stinson sees them fulfilling many uses from pure conversation piece to attractive side tables to hold a plant, a chilled bottle of champagne or an arrangement of flowers. The shelves could nicely showcase a collection of small Oriental items.

In actual use in Thailand, the noodle cart is one half of the noodle vender's equipment, used to serve fish ball and noodle soup on the city streets.

The other half is a large cooking pot and lid which rests on top of a round, charcoal fired habachi. Pot and habachi have a metal strap, similar to the handle of the noodle stand. The two units, noodle cart and pot-habachi are carried on opposite ends of a bamboo pole balanced on the shoulders of the vendor.

The noodle stand's side containers hold different sauces, sugar and spices for flavoring the soup and corriander leaf to sprinkle on top. Chop sticks are stored in the round cup-shaped container. The fish ball and noodle soup is served hot at curbside. The fish balls are stored on the small fixed shelf just inside the doors and the dry noodles are kept on the larger removeable shelf.

Those who wish to contact Mrs. Stinson about the noodle carts or other Thai brass items may call 647-6662.

Learn to conserve

If it were up to today's young people, there'd be less energy wasted and plenty of gas at the pumps.

Coordinators of the Michigan 4-H Youth Energy Project have found that high school youths are more easily convinced to save energy than their parents.

"The kids aren't too hard to convince," said Lowell Rothert, program leader for the Michigan 4-H Youth Program. "It's the parents who are harder to change, though as gas prices have gone up, interest in conservation also has gone up."

Michigan was one of 10 states which received funding from the federal Department of Energy for conservation education programs which began Jan. 1, 1978. Michigan's project, focusing on about 30,000 high school students in five regions across the state, was the only one which involved youth education.

"The energy project's main objective was to change the energy conservation attitudes of high school students and their families," Rothert said. "Questionnaires completed by students in the program showed a much stronger conservation ethic than those filled out by nonparticipating students."

The 4-H project emphasized conservation mainly in the areas of home heating and cooling and use of the family car, each of which represents major energy use by families.

"We found hands-on, practical programs to be most effective," Rothert said. "In our program, we had the students read the gas or electric meters in their homes at the beginning of a week and again a week later. Then we asked them to try to conserve for a week, along with their families, and read the meter again. This really made a lot of people aware of the importance of conservation."

A unique component of the energy project was the Computer Transportation Program. About 900 families of the high school students last year figured their average car mileage, how many miles they were getting to a gallon of gasoline, and how much they were paying for gas. The figures were plugged into the computer, which pointed out ways to cut down on gas consumption.

"A year ago, implementing the recommendations would have saved about $300 a year, but since gasoline prices have gone up so quickly, that would be at least $450 a year now," Rothert said.

The program recommended driving to work only half the time and taking mass transit systems or carpooling the rest of the time, using the car to shop for groceries only once a week, cutting down travel mileage by 10 percent and reducing local driving by 20 percent.

The energy project also included workshops for 4-H leaders and high school teachers. According to Rothert, the high school program was very effective.

"Integrating energy education materials into the regular curriculum provided teachers with an opportunity to discuss relevant, real, public concerns," he said. "It was an enlightening experience for all involved."

The Michigan 4-H Youth Energy Project was implemented with the help of the Michigan State University Science and Mathematics Teaching Center. The program was made possible by a special grant from the Energy Administration, Michigan Department of Commerce.

Sun heats this home

The federal government's faith in the solar concept is backed by encouraging early users with a tax incentive. On the first $2,000 spent there is a 30 percent tax credit, followed by a 20 percent tax credit on the next $6,000 spent. There is no saving thereafter. On this system, the total savings would be $1,800 reducing the actual cost to $8,200, still a hefty sum.

But Goetz had words of caution.

"There are several hidden problems, such as landscaping. Neither your trees, nor your neighbors can block the sun's light. You have to plan carefully for the full height of the trees. Also, the angle of the house has to be favorable so that the solar collectors receive the most sunlight. Finally, Michigan winters are the biggest obstacle to solar heating."

MICHIGAN PROVIDES a discouraging one-two punch to solar heating with it's combination of sunless days and cold temperatures. Not only is there no long-term way to store the energy released by the sun, there is no way to even collect it on many winter days, Murray said.

"When temperatures are below 20 or the winds are very cold, there is no way to collect energy.

"Also, there are the winter months when we only see the sun for two or three days. At these times the system relies on the conventional backup energy sources."

Still, there is a bright side. At present, it is both practical and feasible to use solar energy for a home water heating system.

"People don't realize that the water heater carries a big load. Twenty percent of the energy of the house goes to heat water. High water users would benefit most from a solar water heating system. We feel this is a good application of solar power," said Murray.

You may see both systems in operation at the experimental house Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays through Oct. 14 from 1-7 p.m. It is located in Northville Colony Estates just south of Six Mile, about one mile west of the Six Mile exit of I-275.

Fireplaces add warmth, charm

There's no question that burning fires have captured man's imagination — not to mention cooked his food and warmed his dwellings — for thousands of years.

Latter-day woodburners, too, look to the family fireplace or wood stove as a source of fascination and comfort. But with the enormous selection of styles and installations offered by the factory-built fireplace and stove industry today, woodburning appliances offer home decorating potential that our ancestors never dreamed possible.

Fireplaces have moved beyond the living room and into the kitchen, the bedroom, the summer cottage, the ski lodge — there are even models that can be installed in a mobile home. And they have evolved from a primitive pile of stones and later massive brick constructions to modern pre-built metal units that come ready-to-install.

"Zero-clearance" is the key phrase in understanding the advantages of a "built-in" factory-built fireplace. It means the fireplace unit may be installed on or against existing walls and floors. The outside of the heavy metal insulated fire chamber and chimney remain safely cool while the fire burns, and there's no need to knock out walls, do any other major remodeling or build a special foundation.

Add a fireplace to a wall or corner, face it with brick, stone or any other attractive non-combustible material to match the decor, and you've made that space the focal point of the room.

Arrange groupings of chairs and sofas around the fireside and the hearth becomes the center of attention. Some fireplace models can be installed between two rooms as a divider.

Freestanding fireplaces also offer countless ways to add warmth and good looks to virtually any room of the house. Many fireplace shoppers go the freestanding route because of the contemporary look and brightly colored finishes many models feature. Your own taste will determine whether the popular conical style, a box-shaped model, or a freestanding fireplace designed for corner installation has the most appeal. Or consider a round freestanding unit that hangs from the ceiling — a full-circle view of the flames creates a dramatic effect.

WOODBURNING STOVES are bought primarily for heating, but there's no need to sacrifice beauty for function. "Traditional" never goes out of style, as seen by the popularity of old-fashioned Franklin stoves, modeled after a home heating device invented by Ben himself.

In addition to the still-favored Franklins, stove manufacturers offer many other styles — box stoves (some of which are beautifully embellished), pot-bellied types reminiscent of old railroad stations, parlor stoves and others. Many wood stoves can be used for cooking as well as heating — just the right authentic touch for a country kitchen.

Although stoves heat best with the doors closed, some models can be operated with open doors for a fireplace look. And manufacturers have introduced several models with specially tempered glass doors to display the beauty of the flames.

How to decide what type of woodburning appliance to buy? The decorative effect you want to achieve is certainly a major consideration, but so are the size of the room you want to heat, where you intend to put the appliance and your heating needs.

Discuss all of these factors with an experienced, reputable fireplace or stove dealer to make the best buying decision.

Home values change

A consumer price index of 204.7 means it now costs consumers $204.70 to purchase items that would have cost $186.90 a year ago.

Though many a homeowner carries theft insurance as protection against his car being stolen, he may overlook the way inflation depletes the dollar value of his homeowner insurance.

The typical homeowner, according to a survey for Professional Builder magazine, has owned his home for nearly six years, bought it for less than $40,000 and expects to sell it for nearly $62,000.

But the typical homeowner may fail to make the connection that the $40,000 home he purchased just six years ago will now cost more than $60,000 to replace.

Some property insurance policies, however, are available with what is known as "inflation guard," or "established rate of inflation" coverage.

Insurance companies say this helps to regulate the cost of replacing a home by increasing coverage to keep up with the rate of inflation.

Another kind of "insurance" that many homeowners find invaluable involves the fire safety of their roofs. Asphalt roofing is among the building materials classified for fire resistance by Underwriters Laboratories, a non-profit testing organization. Building products that meet tough standards earn a UL label.

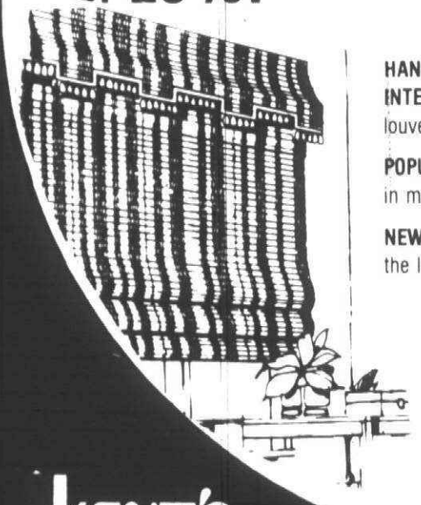

Asphalt shingles that bear a UL fire resistance label will not ignite easily, will not spread flame readily, or emit burning brands that could touch off other fires.

Photos: DICK KELLEY

At one time, it was a small farm style house. In the ensuing years, it was enlarged and most recently given a complete beauty treatment which added charm and interest — probably never dreamed of by its first owners.

That's because its beautification came at the hands of one of the area's most respected artists. He is not only a person of good taste but equally skilled in carrying out his ideas.

TO SOLVE the privacy problem and still keep the feeling of light and air, the owner had a series of floor-to-ceiling panels made with a subtly patterned off-white fabric encased in a milky plastic. It may look like the rice paper screens of Japan, but it's durable, easy to clean and still semi-opalescent.

On top of that, the panels protect the colors of the Oriental rug from direct sunlight and keep the room bathed in a pleasant diffused light.

As for floors, woodwork and doors — it was back to natural. In the case of the woodwork and doors, this meant stripping several layers of paint to reach the natural wood. The polished wood floors add dramatically to the 18th century feeling that characterizes the home. The Oriental touches — rugs porcelains, and art objects — are perfectly at home in this atmosphere. Our forefathers had a deep appreciation for the imports from the far East and used as much of what came in with the clipper ships as was available and affordable.

The Oriental rug in shades of ivory and apricot is highly prized by its owners, who combined it with a blue upholstered period sofa and an inland coffee table from the Far East.

IN THE DINING room one of the most time-consuming projects was a gold stenciled border along all four walls just under the ceiling. It is a lacey, traditional 17th-18th century stencil pattern which alternates between complimentary designs.

The owner worked on and off doing the stenciling over a three-month period. Stenciling is also used in an upstairs bedroom belonging to a daughter. The artist added more of himself in this room by decorating the furniture in shades of green, yellow and neutrals which are repeated in the bedspread, curtains and flowered rug. It's a room full of sunshine and symbols of happy family relationships.

Some of the fine antique pieces were passed down from relatives, others were acquired through friends or estate sales. In all, they go together to make a gem of a home that is elegant, but still very much a place for children, teenagers and adults to enjoy.

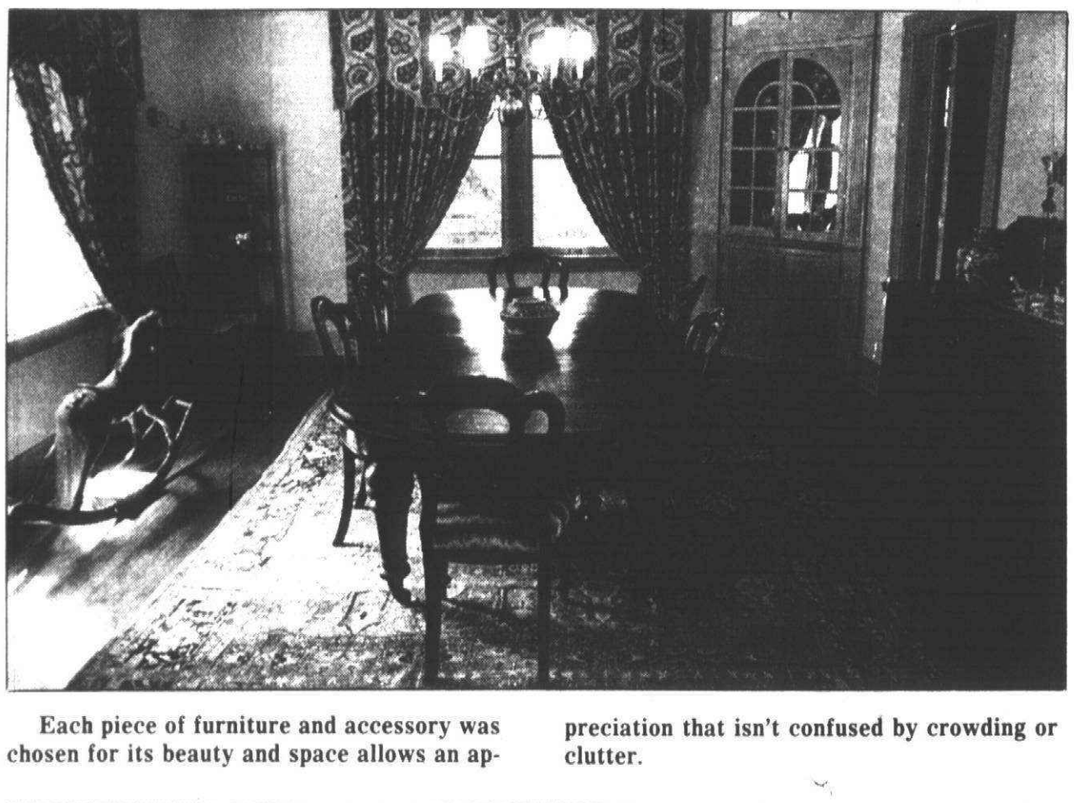

Special shelves were installed to house a collection of Early American toys in a son's bedroom. In the family room overlooking the patio, there are shelves for books as well as collectibles.

A former mud-room (remember those?) was converted to eating space just off the kitchen with a natural brick floor that continues into the kitchen.

Michaels painted the scenes on the antique wardrobe especially for his daughter's bedroom and continued his brush work on several other pieces not pictured. He also did the border on the wall just below the ceiling. Shades to cheer any young lady are greens, yellows and off-whites.

Each piece of furniture and accessory was chosen for its beauty and space allows an appreciation that isn't confused by crowding or clutter.

Tabling for the future

2Whimsical designs to delight both owner and guests lead the way as futuristic conversation pieces. Plus they're as functional for entertaining as they are fun. There's a shade of trompe d'oeil in the one that appears to have a cloth draped on it. It's actually galvanized metal in a silver gray. The drum table, industrial plaster, is heavy enough to offer a solid base for a phone, a plant or a decanter of wine. Both are by John Dickerson and Associates, available at Donghia Inc., Design Center, Troy. Decorating and interior design professionals only.

A real rope? Not really.

By JEAN HERDMAN

How do you fit a wild boar, a mountain goat, a Canada snowgoose and a duck or two into your decorating scheme? If your husband is an avid hunter who likes to have his trophies displayed, finding a place for them can be a problem.

Don't stash the trophies in a closet and hope they'll be forgotten. With know-how and planning, they can be used to give an ordinary room a strong spark of individuality and are guaranteed conversation pieces.

J. L. Hudson designer, Helen Kelly, was asked to solve the problem for a young couple when their house was being built in Plymouth Township. As a result, plans were made for a combined trophy room-study to display the collection.

Nature provides a perfect color scheme for the unusual room, which is masculine in mood but not heavily so.

A monochromatic blend of brown dominates the room. The deep walnut stain of the shutters is repeated in the built-in shelf storage area that covers an entire wall. The boar's head, which might have been overwhelming because of its size, is centered between the rows of open shelving.

By concentrating these smaller-scaled pieces into one area, the designer balanced the size of the boar trophy and also kept the room uncluttered. The wall has a look of unity and becomes the focal point of the room.

Complementing the deep tones of the shutters and shelves is a gun cabinet of light cherry wood. Its amber color is accented and repeated in the woods of the guns it contains. The smooth texture of the cherry provides contrast for the grasscloth-covered walls and ginger-brown carpeting. Brilliant blues and greens of ducks poised for flight are shown off against the sand-colored grasscloth.

The black leather inlays of the pedestal desk provide a perfect setting for the pristine snowgoose which stands atop it. The desk is cherry also, but in a deep-toned distressed Mediterranean finish.

"This combination of woods is far more interesting than if only one type were used," said Ms. Kelly. "By tying the whole room together with one color family, it becomes unified but not dull."

Choose exterior color carefully

While few persons would want the bold, swirling brush strokes of Van Gogh on the exterior of their homes, they welcome the introduction of subtle colors, tones and dimension which presents an interesting "picture" to their neighbors.

One exterior surface of the home that has benefitted from improved design in recent years is the roof.

Among the more popular are laminated asphalt shingles in eye-appealing earthtone shades of brown and beige that can be used on practically any roof but are especially attractive on roofs with high visability from the street.

These shingles can be used to set a home apart from other roofs in the neighborhood, yet help relate a home to its natural surroundings. At the same time, these shingles produce a rugged looking roof with deep, attractive shadow lines.

Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association (ARMA) offers these other suggestions regarding color. Even with color charts, coordination can be difficult. On the large exterior expanse of a house, it may be hard to imagine how several colors will look.

So, limit color choices to three — one for the roof, another for the siding and the third for the trim. Since the roof is likely to be around for a good many years, choose its color carefully.

Contrast this to a kitchen in a midnight mood was designed by Judith Ross and Nina Saunders of Brookline, Mass. Stainless steel, chrome, clear acrylic, ebony enamel, and gleaming crystal were their materials.

There are no windows. The suspended glass chandelier, a tole lamp, and fluorescent fixtures recessed beneath the wall-hung cabinets provide plenty of light, regardless of the time of day.

The stylized leaf and vine forms on the gray and white wallpaper and the dried flower arrangement on the stainless steel island offer only a suggestion of the world outside.

The designers wanted a highly textured leather-look fabric with an exaggerated grain and found it in "Rayne," a Naugahyde pattern that adds a punchy accent even when used in small portions, as it was here.

An upholstery shop made up the cushions, wrapping them around foam tied in woven polyester and finishing them with a single knife-edge welt. The flat, sturdy cushions are designed to look good through heavy use as are the other easy-care furnishings used here.

The writing table to the left of the range holds a telephone and offers a convenient place to work. The flat moldings are black set against a strip of silver that outlines the ceiling. Tableware carries out the cool, sophisticated look of pewter and silver.

Graphics can give open effect

A personal space program that relies on fool-the-eye decorating techniques can provide new, open vistas to cramped in-town living quarters.

"Interior design can make a suggestion of what may lie beyond a wall with screens, backlighting, or hanging plants," Marley said. "What the eye is conditioned to believe is true, the mind will accept as fact."

As an example of this, Marley points to a simple remodeling project that turned a tiny, dark space in a 60-year-old divided townhouse into a bright, airy, and very contemporary dining room.

THE ROOM HAD ONE small window that opened onto an air shaft, yet there is no sign of this architectural defect in the remodeled version. Instead, the room seems flooded with sunlight.

The cracked and peeling plaster walls were screened with sheets of translucent frosted vinyl set on the bias and positioned in moldings at floor and ceiling.

Behind the panels, warm fluorescent lights were installed. Tubes were recessed behind the floor molding so that their light would be diffused as it washed up the walls. Stainless steel angles sold in lengths at building supply stores hold the vinyl panels in position.

Arrangements of boughs cut from a buttonwood tree were placed behind the panels and raised along the walls. A more compact arrangement stands in a chrome and enamel cylinder in the corner of the room. This bit of nature brought inside creates a play of reality and shadow that suggests abstract sculpture.

The table is of glass and steel in a finely drawn, open design. The floor, styled by Marley for GAF, takes its design inspiration from the perfect geometry of snowflakes.

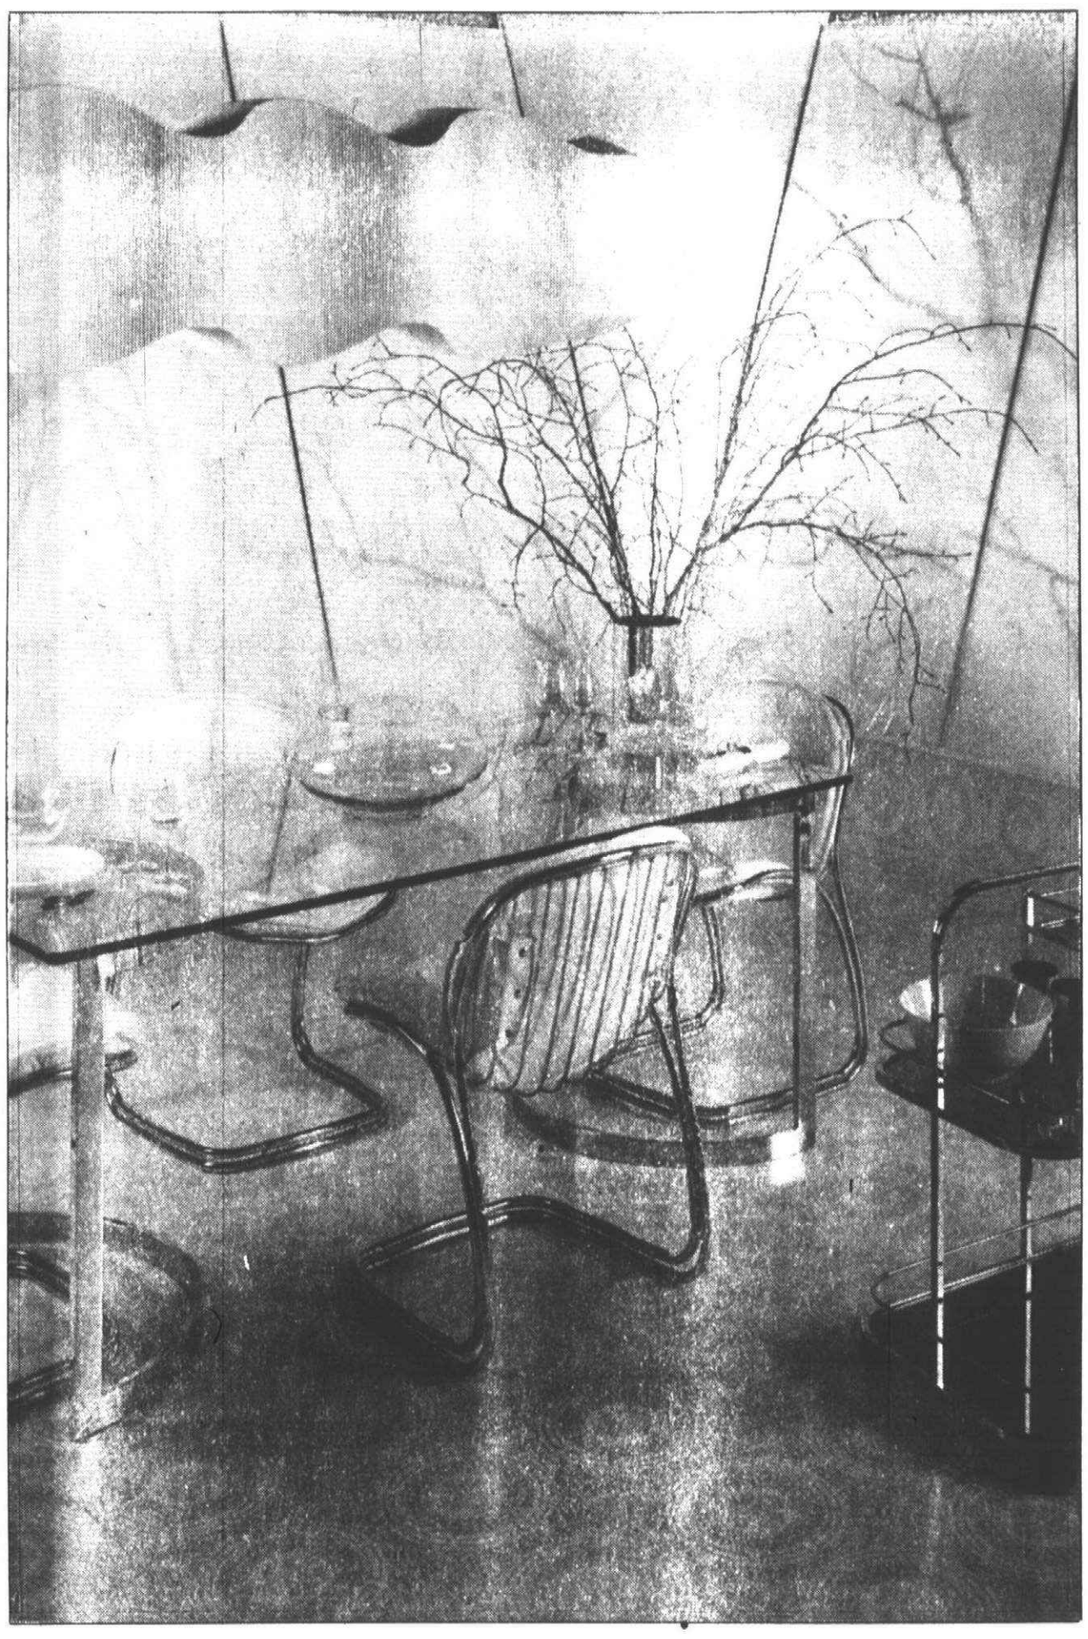

THE ORIGINAL WOOD FLOOR had seen better days. The choice was between carpet and resilient flooring. Gafstar's "Lace Circles" pattern won out, not only because of its easy care properties, but because of the cost savings — nearly $100 — of do-it-yourself installation.

Marley's company furnishes a booklet with step-by-step instructions for installing tile. It isn't hard. The "Lace Circles" pattern, for instance, comes with a self-stick back.

THESE VINYL TILES have a no wax, high gloss urethane finish that resists stains and protects against fading. Texture contributes a soil-hiding effect, too. The tile's subtly dimpled surface helps hide dirt and scuffs.

If the suggestion of sunlight and the outdoors tends to open up this room, so do the colors used here. Along with many stylists, Marley believes that lighter colors help expand space visually.

Walls and light fixture are bright white. The floor is white with pattern etched in pale brown. The upholstery fabric on the dining chairs is parchment. The smoked glass of the serving cart is the darkest tone in the room.

Readers wanting to obtain a free copy of GAF's money-saving booklet on do-it-yourself installation of floor tile should write to Sylvia Lowe, GAF Corp., 140 W. 51 St., New York, N. Y. 10020.

Now the space many of us can devote to these activities is being limited by rising costs. "It poses a real dilemma for many of us," said Dave Farrar, national home furnishings coordinator for Montgomery Ward.

"How do we accommodate an increasing number of activities in a smaller amount of space?"

One way is to make living spaces serve more than one function, Farrar suggested. "Changing lifestyles and increased prices for homes and apartments are forcing us to put our living spaces to better use," he said.

For example, instead of having a bedroon, bathroom and exercise room in three separate areas of the home, why not combine all three into a spacious bed and bath area?

Now the area can serve a multitude of functions. It's an attractive and romantic bedroom, a luxurious bath area, an exercise room to work out the frustrations of the day, and a fashionable and comfortable lounging area.

"No longer would it be used just as a sleeping area," Farrar noted.

"For example," he said, "the use of indoor-outdoor carpeting on the floor and walls gives the room a spacious appearance, is easy to care for, and works very well as a sound-proofing and insulating material."

About the vertical blinds he said, "They are decorative, serve as great light controls, and give a person everything from an open window look to total privacy."

The raised bath area separates it from the remainder of the room and offers a touch of privacy plus, Farrar said, suggesting that bathing is to be a relaxing activity not to be rushed.

With the bed and bath facilities to one side, the room has plenty of area remaining to place a bike, slant board or other exercise equipment for an early morning or late evening workout. "The carpeted floors and walls, the ample amount of room for exercise equipment and the use of a whirlpool in the tub turns the bed and bath area into an ideal exercise area," Farrar said.

Circa 1910 —

Cane-seated chair bottoms that have sagged may be made as tight as ever by washing them with hot water and leaving them to dry in the open air.

Circa 1910

Try curdled milk for cleaning your silverware. Let the silver stand for several hours in the milk, and you will be surprised at the result.

Circa 1910

A good way to clean leather furniture is to add a little vinegar to some warm water and wash the leather, using a clean soft cloth. Wipe with a dry cloth. To restore the polish, mix two teaspoonsfuls of turpentine with the whites of two eggs; beat a little and apply with a soft flannel cloth. Dry with another cloth and rub well.

So why keep on waxing floors?

Master to mix to become your own person

Room for Design

By Gloria Cohen

The 1980 story may well be labeled "The Art of Mastering the Mix." There's a fresh current flowing through today's decorating scene, a seemingly effortless blending of period, style, color, texture, pattern, materials.

There is a whole new way to accomplish the mix. First you must break free of all you've been taught about the rules and strike out confidently with a new independence. The mood personifies a new excitment — a relaxed and charming expression of personal taste, one devoid of restrictions imposed by a carefully charted "scheme."

To the eye it should seem unplanned, but keep in mind that it doesn't just happen. Sharpen your instinctive sense of scale and color. Whatever the era, become aware of the mixable timelessness of good design.

THE NEW ROAD to decoration is taking in a world crammed with choices. The hand that rocks the rulebook rules the room. Simply state, quite openly, "This is what pleases me, the owner."

The name of the style is YOU. An undaunted individual expression is an emotional break with past intellectual formulae of what goes with what.

THE MIX — this current tenor of interior design, this unexpected teaming-up of periods, patterns, forms and colors — is a put-down of the stereotype. It isn't, incidentally, a purely American phenomenon, but an international vogue.

We hail it as an inevitable and wholesome mirror of our time when the beep of computers and the molds of machinery are stirring human creatures to assert themselves as persons.

With supersonic speed, earth people are saying, "Won't you step into my parlor?" to the solar system.

Such an enormity of beauty and function is available that only mountain-top hermits among us can possibly ignore the riches. The best of all cultures and periods is here to be judged, savored, selected from — and it is a mind-blowing bazaar of limitless choices.

Your tastes may range throughout history. One fine day you may realize that you can appreciate with equal ardor an African fetish, a Plexiglas lamp, a Ming chair, an Indian mirror cloth, and you will in time say, "I like these things, I shall put them together and live with them, they are me."

That is the WHY of the mix. The HOW is something else again. The mix flaunts the established rules of what goes with what — rules formulated in other times and of other attitudes. Anything goes. The catch? There is a discipline to the mix which keeps it from becoming mishmash.

The mix has no formula, it is a matter of varied choices with a simple harmony, unlike an attic piled high with a hodgepodge of memorabilia.

The new look depends for its effectiveness upon a disciplined selectivity. Most rooms are downright sparse in their furnishings, the country French and acrylic bedroom, the safari den, the sitting room that becomes a guest-room, but every element is made to count. It is a hard-nosed matter of being as willing to discard as to accumulate.

The teaming-up of surprises — a Louis XV chair lacquered yellow and covered in a modern pattern, a Venetian cabinet on vinyl brick floor, an ormolu mirror above a chrome and glass table — are far from happenstance. They bespeak an aware eye that recognizes design affinities in forms, patterns and materials.

When a huge vase suddenly shows up on a tiny six-inch high table, an anomaly by any "rulebook" — it's done by someone so sensitive to the normal scale of things that he recognizes, and deliberately uses, the shock value of exaggeration. And shock — bringing the eye up short — is surely one element of the mix.

NEOPHYTES needn't despair. Talent doesn't come through the soles of the feet, but by observation and experiment and training the eye, not to copy but to be aware.

A personal style, a mine-alone consistency of taste that breaks through all norms, is a distinguishing fingerprint.

Solar heated 'lab' home being tested

Living in a laboratory sounds cold and uncomfortable. But not if the "lab" is a 2½ story, three-bedroom house comfortably warmed by the sun.

Such a "live-in laboratory" has been built on the campus of the Rochester Institute of Technology, RIT.

It is a solar energy research project jointly sponsored by RIT, the Rochester Gas and Electric Corp., and the Rochester Home Builders Association. It is also home to a faculty family of four.

Original plans for the house were developed by Dr. Paul Wojciechowski of RIT's mechanical engineering department. He researched historical weather data for the area, and determined that if a house were built to take maximum advantage of available sunshine, half of its heat and hot water needs could be met by solar energy.

"In the first week of October '78, despite seasonally cold weather, all of the house's space heating requirements were met by solar heat collected through its large, southern-exposure windows," said Ms. Rankin.

In designing the house, architect John Fayko used readily-available, energy-efficient building materials and techniques. Type, size and location of windows figured significantly in the plan.

The windows serve as passive solar collectors, which flood the house with light and trap the heat of the winter sun. A wide expanse of windows fills the south wall. Lesser glass areas face east, west and north. All windows are Andersen Perma-Shield casements with triple glazing.

The windows are also efficient insulators. Perma-Shield units have a rigid vinyl sheath over preservative-treated wood-core sash and frames, factory-applied vinyl weatherstripping that is twice as tight as industry standards and double-pane insulating glass.

Triple glazing is achieved by a separate storm panel over the double panes. A 39-inch roof overhang and plenty of window ventilation keep the house cool in summer.

The house has 38 solar collectors on the sharply-pitched roof to catch as much winter sun as possible. There are two solar systems — one for space heating, the other for hot water. Electric heat provides a back-up system.

To facilitate heat flow through the nine-room house, interior wall space was minimized and rooms laid out around a central atrium-stairwell. It makes a distinctive architectural feature. The house has optimum insulation, magnetically-sealed doors, an energy-efficient fireplace, and tight construction.

There was no stinting on visual appeal. Exterior colors are a pleasing blend of earthtones — Perma-Shield windows in Terratone color, dark earth-colored doors, and warm wood siding; all in all, a house that works with rather than against nature.

Update 1979 —

Circa 1910 —

To clean grained woodwork take a half pail of hot water, add half a pound of soap chips, and boil until dissolved. Take from fire, add one pint kerosene, then boil for five minutes longer. Add one quarter of this to a half pailful of warm water. Wash woodwork thoroughly, wipe and dry, and lastly, use a flannel to polish with.

Update 1979 —

Factors which should influence your selections of color are exposure of light into a room. Light from the north or east into a room get cool light, while those on the south and west get direct sunlight for more hours of the day.
