Board OKs tight 1980 budget for police

The Canton Township board has approved a $1.2 million budget for the operation of the police department in 1980.

Police Chief Jerry Cox called the budget a "minimum" one which will basically maintain present law enforcement services next year.

Although the budget allocates funds for the creation of eight new positions in the department, Treasurer Jim Donahue warned Cox that approval of the budget does not authorize the department to fill those positions.

In an effort to hold the line on spending in a tight fiscal year, the township board has issued a policy which requires all department heads to seek board approval before filling positions or making capital expenditures.

The 1980 budget represents a $436,000 increase over the department's 1979 budget of $780,000. The bulk of the increased revenues come from a hike in the police tax rate — from 2 to 3.25 mills ($3.25 per $1,000 assessed property valuation.)

Increased revenues are allocated mainly for salaries on the expenditure side of the budget. Since the 1979 budget was implemented, patrol officers ratified their first union contract as members of the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM).

Although the budget allocates funds for the creation of some new positions, Cox maintains that the budget funds "24 full-time patrol officer positions in a community that should have 80."

THE BUDGET carries over a $134,000 police budget deficit from 1979 as well as a $35,000 deficit from 1980, according to Finance Director Mike Gorman.

The budget allocates $32,000 for a 1980 payment on that deficit. Gorman said township administrators plan to pay off the deficit over a four- or five-year period.

Revenues of $120,000 have been pumped into the police budget from the general fund. In 1979, $270,000 of general fund monies was used to subsidize the police department.

Board members said they recognized the budget's strain on the department. But they asked Cox to do everything possible to avoid increasing the police deficit next year.

"If we can get away with one less light bulb, let's do it," Donahue said.

Cox said he has already taken action to cut down on any unnecessary expenditures.

"We've reached the point where I'm always looking around and turning unnecessary lights off," he said.

Stepdaughter, boyfriend flee from bullets

Canton police are seeking a man who allegedly attempted to shoot his stepdaughter and her boyfriend outside the Village Squire Apartments.

According to Chief Jerry Cox, police have obtained a warrant for the arrest of Lawrence Arnold Leake, 44, of Detroit. Leake was charged with assault with intent to commit murder. He had not been arrested as of Wednesday afternoon.

According to the police report, Edward Goralski, 21, of Livonia and Leake's stepdaughter, a juvenile, were in a car parked outside the apartments early Saturday morning.

Leake approached the driver's side of the car and held a gun up to the window. Police said Goralski ducked and began to drive away, at which time Leake fired at the car and missed.

Leake then followed the car driven by Goralski.

The chase continued to Lotz Road, where Goralski rammed Leake's vehicle. The report said Leake got out of his car and fired once again at the car his stepdaughter was in. He again missed.

Cox said Goralski and the his girlfriend got out of the car and went off on foot.

They went to the Doughnut Scene restaurant at Ford and Lilley roads in Canton, where they called police.

Cox said he did not know what started the quarrel.

No new books

Library's debut delayed until millage arrives

A cash flow problem has pushed back the opening date of Canton Township's new library from January to May.

Head librarian Deborah O'Connor said the original opening-date target of January was based on expectations that library personnel would be receiving millage money approved by voters last spring.

The Canton tax department began collecting the millage money only a few weeks ago, however, as part of the annual December tax collection.

Mrs. O'Connor said the township's library board has been unable to order books, shelves or other furnishings without the money in hand.

"We were naive in thinking we'd have the money right away," Mrs. O'Connor said of the one mill approved for establishment of the library last May. "We just didn't realize all that was involved."

THE THIRD FLOOR of the township's administration building, where the new library will be located, is mostly vacant now.

But Mrs. O'Connor — the library's only staff member at the present time — says she's been kept busy "doing all the little bookkeeping things that are required to start any operation."

Although cash flow problems have prevented the ordering of most books, Mrs. O'Connor says approximately 5,000 books have been donated by other libraries and private organizations. Some have been ordered from the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation on a credit basis.

Mrs. O'Connor expects to open the library next spring with 20,000 books. She said the books will represent every fictional and non-fictional category.

The library hopes to eventually expand the collection to 55,000 books.

According to Mrs. O'Connor, 30 volunteers have been working in the library three or four hours a week to help label books and fill out catalogue cards.

The township board Tuesday night tabled a proposed lease agreement for the library for referral to attorneys. Under the proposed lease the library board would pay 25 percent of all utility and maintenance costs for the four-floor administration building

State law says that municipalities cannot subsidize the library. The township board fears the free rent may be subsidy in kind.

Mrs. O'Connor is asking anyone interested in performing volunteer work for the library to call her at township hall, 397-1000.

Office on Aging structure stays

Head saves job, loses funds

By CAROLINE PRICE

After the dust clears, it appears that Dante DiVitto, director of the Wayne County Office on Aging, will have won one and lost one.

DiVitto emerged victorious in a recent conflict with the Wayne County Board of Commissioners when its members reversed a plan to restructure DiVitto's department.

The restructuring, which was termed "streamlining" by Commissioner William Joyner, would have meant the elimination of DiVitto's job.

ALTHOUGH THAT proposal never came to pass, the board did reduce contributions from the county's general fund from about $88,000 last year to a budget allotment of about $47,000 this year.

That spells defeat to DiVitto, who said he must now cut the administrative staff for his department by 80 percent.

Joyner said, however, that the cut is not as severe as it appears. According to the commissioner, an additional $80,000 of federal funds will be given to the Office on Aging to "cover administrative costs."

Divitto responded that the $80,000 was no sure thing as far as he knew, but said the amount would help him raise staffing to "normal" levels.

Without those funds, Divitto said, he can't guarantee that programs will operate as they do presently.

THE VAST share of money used to operate senior citizen programs offered by the office on aging comes from federal and state grants totaling about $2.5 million, DiVitto said.

Programs include such services as meals for senior citizens, recreation and transportation.

DiVitto said the programs would not be cut, even if he receives no more for administrative costs than the $47,000 promised by the county.

The director said the law allows him to use some of the grant money for administration, but he had always used the money from the county general fund for such costs as his salary and the wages of four other persons.

According to Joyner, the $47,000 is being allotted under the stipulation that a portion be used to pay the salary of a social planner; $7,000 used for expenses of the office on aging board of commissioners expenses; and another $17,000 for special transportation programs for seniors.

The $80,000 that Joyner said would be made available would be used by Divitto to cover his salary and "whatever other administrative positions he can get from it." Joyner said DiVitto's salary was "in the $25,000 to $30,000 range."

Although Wayne County senior citizens can rest assured that services offered them will remain essentially intact, DiVitto is making no promises for other projects now in the works.

One such project is especially near and dear to the communities of Canton, Westland, Garden City, Wayne and Dearborn Heights.

These communities had applied for a $48,000 grant from the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging in order to start their own home chores program for senior citizens. The area agency is in charge of distributing grant money, through the office on aging, for Wayne County senior citizen programs.

The five communities were given $3,000 to purchase equipment for a home chores program.

Plymouth filed a grant application similar to that of Northville, Northville Township and Plymouth Township, but Plymouth was originally turned down on it's application.

Earlier this month, however, Plymouth was given $7,800 by the area agency out of unused grant money.

Canton, Westland, Garden City and the two other communities began to explore other alternatives for a home chore program after they received the $3,000 to share. DiVitto, who was help-

Rape charges made, Oak Park man held

A 25-year-old Oak Park man is in custody in the Canton Township jail after allegedly raping a woman at Brookpark Apartments.

Howard Hess was arraigned Tuesday before District Court Judge Dunbar Davis on a charge of first-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Bond was set at $25,000, with a district court examination for the suspect scheduled for Dec. 27.

According to Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox, the rape victim is a 21-year-old Canton woman who knew Hess slightly.

Cox said the woman let Hess into her apartment about 3 a.m. Monday after he knocked on the door and asked to use the phone.

According to the police report, when the woman refused Hess's attempt at intimacy, he pulled a knife and forced her into the bedroom.

Cox said the woman reported that Hess had tied a nylon stocking around her neck and threatened to kill her if she called for help.

The woman struggled, injuring herself in the process, said Cox. However, she managed to escape from the apartment. She went to a neighbor's apartment, where she called police.

Hess left before police arrived, but was arrested by Oak Park police later that day — after Canton police got a warrant.

According to Canton police, the suspect was free on bond pending trial on another rape charge in Sterling Heights.

'If any group of people on this planet don't need their emotions toyed with, it's the senior citizens.'

Appeal to Schoolcraft trustee

Coach steps over union to argue for pay hike

After losing with his own union, a Schoolcraft College coach has taken his economic case directly to the board of trustees.

"I have been coaching volleyball," said Michael O'Toole, "and there has been no increase in coaching salaries in six years."

He asked trustees to give the coaches' situation their attention, adding he realized it was a matter for contract negotiations between the two-year college and the Faculty Forum, an affiliate of the Michigan Education Association.

O'TOOLE HAS been a faculty member since the college was founded in 1964. Since 1974 he has also been coach of the women's volleyball team and was a member of the union negotiating team.

Other Schoolcraft varsity sports include women's basketball and cross country and men's soccer, basketball, wrestling, cross country, gymnastics, golf and tennis.

In those six years, O'Toole said, coaches' responsibilities have grown, yet they are paid less than high school coaches.

Schoolcraft coaches now have longer schedules, in order to travel to games and recruiting responsibilities that high school coaches needn't bother with.

He said he has personally recruited six to seven persons to Schoolcraft.

"THE BOARD and faculty look at sports as way down on the last of priorities," he said.

"What coaches get or don't get will not be due to collective bargaining," he went on, avoiding mention of the union's name. "The only movement will be from you," O'Toole told trustees.

Under Schoolcraft's current faculty contract, which expires next August, a formula governs coaches' compensation. The length of the season, the number of students who come out for the sport and the number of inter-scholastic contests determine the number of units of credit for the coach.

The credits multiplied by $35.70 determine what the coach is paid.

"That $35.70 hasn't changed in six years," athletic director Marvin Gans confirmed.

"It's the truth," Gans said of O'Toole's line of argument. Gans said a college student coaching junior varsity volleyball at Northville High School earned more than Schoolcraft College's golf coach and has much as the tennis and cross country coaches — about $1,000 for the season.

"Our men's basketball coach was at $1,500 six years ago, and he's at $1,500 now," Gans said.

IN OTHER business Dec. 12, the board of trustees:

• Set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Jan. 9 at the Garden City Instructional Center, 6701 Harrison. A tour will begin at 7:30 p.m. Holding one meeting a year there is an annual tradition.

• Renewed membership in the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments for dues of $220. Schoolcraft and Wayne County Community College are practically the only educational institutions in the seven-county regional planning agency.

• Re-elected trustees Rosina Raymond delegate and Richard Hayward alternate to the SEMCOG General Assembly.

A full house jammed the Plymouth Salem High gym to watch a scrub team of faculty members play against a basketball team comprised of members of the Detroit Tigers.

Tiger cagers thrill fans in benefit

Mickey Stanley, Tiger centerfielder, also is adept at handling the basketball.

The Plymouth Salem gymnasium was jam-packed last Wednesday (Dec. 12) to see the Detroit Tigers take on coaches and friends of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association (PCJBA) in a benefit game.

Representing the Tigers were former University of Michigan standout Rick Leach, Dave Rozema, Dave Steffen, Milt Wilcox, Mark Wagner, Larry Gudith and Jim Schmakel.

Former Tigers also came in to lend a hand. They included former favorites Mickey Stanley, now playing for the Detroit Caesars softball team, and Phil Mankowski, recently traded to the New York Mets.

One of the most impressive performers for the Tigers was Oakland A's catcher Jim Essian, a native Detroiter who played basketball for St. Martin's High. He was on loan from Charlie Finley.

Detroit pledges financing of main to hike pressure

Talk of financing a $4 million remedy to water pressure problems in Canton and Westland has taken a new direction with the announcement that Detroit will arrange for the financing.

Two weeks ago, administrators from Canton and Westland tentatively agreed to finance the cost of building a water main and pumping station in Livonia through the formation of a joint water authority. The authority would sell up to $4 million in revenue bonds to finance the project.

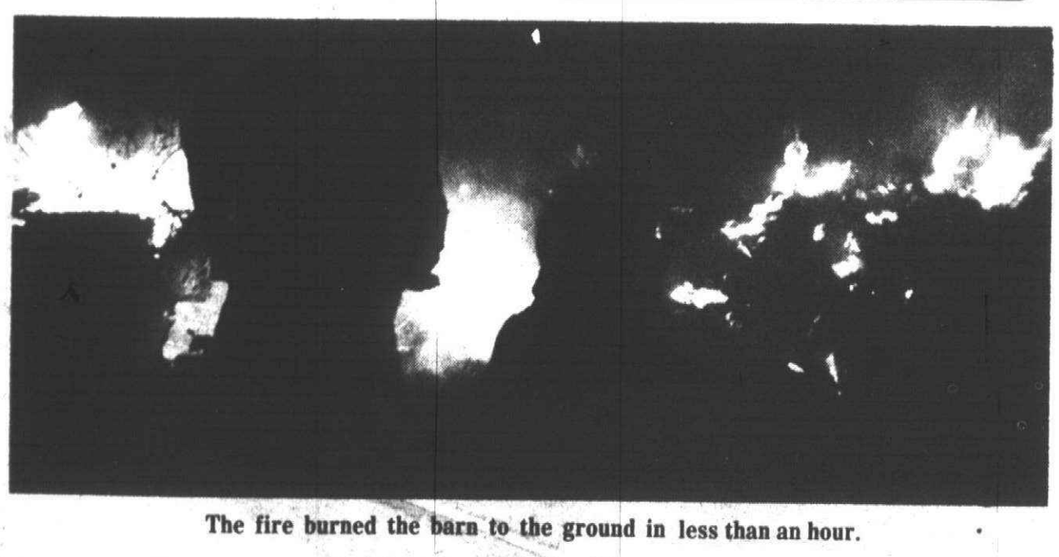
But John Kanters, director of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, recently advised the two communities of water board authorization for the sale of $25 to $35 million in revenue bonds.

Kanters said the sale would include bonds for the Livonia water main project.

ACCORDING TO Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert, one reason for the communities' offer to finance the main's construction "was to motivate Detroit to build this thing."

"But it was really complicated," Culbert said, referring to the suburban proposal to sell the bonds. "The attorneys thought it was getting too complicated."

A major kink in the plan concerned the manner in which Detroit — owner of the proposed main — would reimburse Westland and Canton for their expense. Under one proposal, Detroit would issue water bill credits to the communities.



The fire burned the barn to the ground in less than an hour.

Barn destroyed by blaze

By CAROLINE PRICE

Arson is suspected in a fire that leveled an abandoned barn on Morton Taylor Road north of Michigan Wednesday night.

There were no reported injuries.

According to Lt. Lawrence Longuish of the Canton Township Fire Department, the blaze started about 8:40 p.m.

Longuish said firefighters made no attempt to extinguish the flames because the building was in poor condition and posed no threat to other property in the area.

"We just decided to let it run its course and keep it from spreading," Longuish said.

The lieutenant said the barn had been abandoned for several years. He did not know Wednesday night who owns the property.

The barn, which Longuish estimated as being between 50 and 60 years old, was about a 20-by-80 foot structure.

It was once used as a riding stable. Longuish said he believed the barn had also housed a dairy at one time.

Canton police and Wayne County Sheriff's deputies had been dispatched to the fire along with four trucks from the Canton Fire Department.

Sheriff's Deputy Robert Barackman said he believed there had been another fire on the property, but could not specify when the fire may have taken place.

Barackman said Wednesday night the blaze was "probably arson."

The barn and surrounding property has apparently served as a dumping ground since its abandonment.

"The (Canton) Police Department has been getting after the owner to clean the property up," Longuish said.

Office on Aging gets budget cut

ing organize the program, said it would have been based in Westland.

"I have to be candid though. If I'm going to be remaining here alone (without other staff members) I cannot spend the time on this project I would have before," DiVitto said.

"If our project is made whole again, this is a priority."

Joyner continues to view DiVitto's statements with skepticism.

ANIMOSITY BETWEEN the County Board of Commissioners and DiVitto had reached an all-time high at the end of November. That was when the discussions to streamline the office on aging was first broached.

The plan then, according to Joyner, was to bump DiVitto down to a lower job classification. The office on aging director would then be answering to James Currin, head of the operation of program development and coordination.

At that time, DiVitto sent a memo to the nutrition coordinators for the 53 senior citizen nutrition centers.

The memo said the county was planning to eliminate the office from its upcoming budget and suggested that senior citizens involved in the nutrition program call their respective county commissioners.

Joyner, who said he got 20 calls from irate seniors during a one-hour period following the memo's distribution, called DiVitto's missive "one of the cruelest and most inhumane things I've ever seen."

Joyner added, "The senior citizens were given the impression their programs would be cut, which was never true.

"If any group of people on this planet don't need their emotions toyed with, it's the senior citizens," he declared.

DIVITTO SAID he sent the memo at the direction of his 21-member office on aging commission.

"The commission is made up of volunteers who meet about once a month. I advised them of the possiblity of offices being separated out," DiVitto said.

"They advised me to go to the nutrition sites and tell them what was happening. They reassured me I should do it."

He added, "my response was as a senior citizen advocate. Some people just got the wrong impression."

Although hard feelings were expressed against DiVitto by commissioners at a meeting to finalize their budget, they did agree to leave the office alone.

Whether the senior citizen reaction caused the turn-around, or what action could be taken against DiVitto for his memo, remains unclear.

DiVitto, with job intact but budget reduced, concludes, "My feeling is that the programs will be diminished."

Demand for live trees is up despite higher cost

By W.W. EDGAR

If the sale of live Christmas trees is any measure, it will be an old-fashioned Christmas in the Plymouth community this year.

At all of the intersections where the live trees are being sold, the owners and their help report that the demand for live trees, regardless of raised prices, is greater now than it has been for the past few years.

"I guess people have grown tired of the artificial tree," Richard Smith commented in his Roadside Market on Joy Road just east of Main Street.

"Last year we handled about 1,000 trees," he explained, "and this year we just about doubled our stock. What's more we sold out by December 15. That shows that the people are turning back to the old-fasioned way of celebrating with live trees in their homes."

At Dale Long's corner at Haggerty and Ann Arbor Road, the story was much the same.

Out of an original lot of 2,000 he has only about 180 trees left and is confident that he will sell out before the weekend.

"Last year at this time we were sold out," he said, "and we will sell out again. The only difference is that last year we didn't have a tree left on December 15. This year the folks are taking a bit longer."

While the chief salesman didn't say so, he hinted that people might be waiting for a reduction in prices in case a lot of trees were left by Christmas Eve.

Community Fund exceeds goal

The Plymouth Community Fund has reached its goal of $315,000 in fund raising for 1979.

Announcement was made Monday at the Hillside Inn that the Community Fund this year collected a total of $317,119.24.

That total was revealed during the final report luncheon of the division leaders who each reported their total collections for '79.

John Czubaj, campaign chairman, commented that his job was easy because of all of the hard work and effort of campaign co-chairman Jerry Triplett and the division leaders.

"This is my fourth year of involvement with fund raising for the Plymouth Community Fund, and by far it has been the easiest — easy because of the outstanding effort of all division leaders."

Almost 85 percent of the total collections were donated by the industrial and commuter division, headed by David Chrysler, with the help of major firms such as the Ford Sheldon Plant, Western Electric, and Burroughs Corp.

The contribution from the industrial division totalled $268,700. "This amount is over last year's contribution," said Chrysler, "even though most of the business concerns in this division experienced a downturn averaging about 15 percent. The employees on the lines really kicked in and did the job and we got a lot of help, as usual, from our corporate gifts."

The next largest sum reported came from the business division, led by Daisy Proctor, with total contributions of $21,395.

"The slowdown in business and uncertain future also had a real effect on our merchants downtown," commented Czubaj, "but they really came through in support for the Community Fund, as they do each year. Daisy is to be commended for a great job."

Czubaj also said that a real effort was made by Ed Kleinsmith, chairman, and Brian Kidston, co-chairman, in the education division as a total of six letters appealing for contributions were sent out to school employees.

The total educational contribution, including donations from students, was $10,025.24 which exceeded that division's goal in '79 and previous collections.

Other contributions from divisions were: special gifts, $6,603; professional, $5,390; local government (city and township employees and post office), $2,788; and residential, $2,300.

Roger Haslick, professional division chairman, said that the individual donations from professionals averaged $100.

After all the reports were submitted and recorded, Fund Board Chairman Gene Kornegay presented plaques of appreciation to Czubaj, Triplett and the division chairpersons.

Jim Boyce, last year's campaign chairman, also presented Czubaj with a scrapbook of press clippings on fund-raising activities.

Czubaj will be feted

John Czubaj, general campaign co-chairperson for the Plymouth Community Fund, will be honored at the 1979 United Way of Michigan (UWM) campaign achievement celebration on Dec. 20.

The celebration will begin at noon in the Kellogg Center at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

More than 350 local United Way staff and volunteers, representing 105 local United Ways, will gather to receive tribute for raising more than $84 million in this year's campaigns, and to hear guest speaker Peter Hackes, NBC news correspondent.

The UWM is a federation of 23 state and national health and community service agencies. Each local United Way contributes toward the support of these agencies which provide individual and group services to each community.

Study of fuel oil leak continues at Mayflower office building

Officials from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) were back in the city of Plymouth this week to monitor the existance of a large amount of fuel oil which has seeped into the soil.

The return trip by the DNR was prompted by the return of fuel oil fumes last week in offices in the Mayflower Meeting House complex on Main Street.

Although state officials have stated the fumes do not constitute a public health hazard, they admit the presence of the fumes is a nuisance which may cause headaches, upset stomachs, and eye irritation.

Corrective measures were taken last week by the invovled parties and the fuel oil fumes have not returned since last Thursday.

But the fuel oil still remains underground, in large quantities, and state and local officials still are monitoring the situation to determine what should be done next.

ED TALBOTT, city building inspector, and Plymouth Fire Marshall Tom Leneghan discovered the fuel oil almost a year ago.

When staff members of the Plymouth and Canton Observer newspapers complained of fumes in its office at 461 S. Main, fuel oil was discovered in a sump pump in the basement of the Meeting House — at a spot almost directly beneath the Observer's local news office.

At that time, city inspectors discovered the fuel oil had been leaking, for an unknown period of time, from an underground tank used to heat the garage for mechanics during winter months by the Standard Oil Station at Ann Arbor Trail and Main.

When Amoco learned of its leaking fuel oil tank it dug up the old one and replaced it with a new 550-gallon tank in late spring or early summer.

By then, though, hundreds of gallons of fuel oil had leaked out and formed an underground pool, according to Dan Schultz of the water quality control division of the DNR.

"The problem is that we really don't know how much fuel oil is down there because it leaked out for many months. I am going to ask Amoco to consider drilling an observation well to measure the amount of fuel oil down there."

Schultz added that there is no danger of the fuel oil becoming mixed with drinking water or the storm drain systems because the only place it is surfacing is at the sump pump opening.

"Whenever it rains, or snow melts, water enters the ground and mixes with the fuel oil. The water and fuel oil mixture then rises into the sump pump, causing the fumes. There is, however, no danger with the water system."

Schultz had been involved a few months ago also and plans to continually monitor the situation.

WHEN THE PROBLEM was first discovered, the maintenance division of Amoco agreed to come out every other week to pump out any collection of fuel oil and to pour in an amonia substance to cut the fumes.

Within the past couple weeks, though, the sump pump failed and fuel oil collected in a larger quantity, resulting in the reappearance of strong fumes in the upstairs offices.

Ralph Lorenz, landlord, said the constant pumping of fuel oil resulted in rubber parts of the sump pump wearing out.

When the fume level heightened last week, Lorenz and Amoco worked together to try and come up with a solution. A new sump pump was installed, and an exhaust fan was located directly above the sump pump to draw the fumes outside.

Amoco also provided air purifier machines. Two of the purifiers were located in the Observer office, which seems to have the heaviest concentration of fumes, and a third was placed directly next to the sump pump where it operates 24-hours a day.

"I appreciate the quick action from both our landlord and Amoco," said Emory Daniels, editor of the Plymouth Observer. "We haven't been bothered with the fumes in recent days and I'd like to believe the steps taken represent a final solution.

"But I'm going to keep my fingers crossed because it had seemed like the problem was solved some months ago."

Employees in other offices also have been troubled at times with the fuel oil odor.

Carol Swienckowski, co-owner of the Plymouth Art Gallery, said she had noticed the odor in the past but it became strongest last week. "It was heaviest in the morning and gave me a severe headache. My partner also was troubled by the odor while working in the back room."

Jeri Burley, an office worker for the state racing commission, said the odor was first noticed last week and left her eyes with a burning sensation. Although strong in the morning, she added that it also re-appeared an hour before closing time and was apparent to other people when entering the office for the first time.

Tom Piotrowski, owner of Delta Diamond Setters, says the odor becomes worse when the weather conditions are rainy or the humidity is high.

Calling it a nuisance more than anything else, Piotrowksi commented: "Some of it disturbs me but what the hell can I do about it." He added that it will just take time for the oil to seep out of the ground.

An employee at Plymouth Travel Agency also noticed the odor was there and left some with a "headachey feeling" last week. "We're not panicky about it. It's more like a curiosity."

IRVIN DAVIS, of the occupational safety division of the Michigan Department of Public Health, told the Observer Tuesday that the fumes did not constitute a public health problem.

"Fuel oil is a hydro carbon material of low volatility and toxicity. The odor level amounts to a few parts per million and is not considered to be a health hazard or a violation of any standards.

"The fuel oil would have to be sprayed directly into the room before the concentration would be heavy enough to be a hazard. Fuel oil is widely used in industry for degreasing purposes and has not presented a risk to health.

"Any odor, though, can be very disagreeable, and I can see that it's a nuisance."

Water board takes action on pollution of groundwater

A disclosure of a list of hundreds of documented or suspected groundwater contamination incidents, including one in Plymouth, has drawn a quick reaction from the Areawide Water Quality Board (AWQB).

After the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) released its list of communities with proven or suspected groundwater contaminations, the AWQB called for an emergency meeting for this morning.

The meeting was called to outline a plan of action for southeast Michigan in response to the DNR disclosure.

The meeting will be attended by state legislators from southeast Michigan, county health department officials, and representatives of local governmental units as well as by DNR representatives.

The water quality board was set up to monitor water quality activities in southeast Michigan and is the only regional body where local elected officials can come together to decide how to handle a problem of this magnitude.

James Seeterlin, board chairman and supervisor of Waterford Township, said Monday it was extremely important for the board to meet and come up with an action plan.

"Groundwater contamination is no longer a problem — it is a crisis.

"The DNR has made it clear that the state lacks sufficient resources to even document the extent of the problem, let alone correct it.

"Therefore, local elected officials must meet to set priorities. We need to speak with one common voice to get the federal funds we need to protect the public health."

Seeterlin said he intends to propose a "dramatic new approach" toward solving this serious problem.

Seeterlin told the Observer that the "dramatic action" would include asking Gov. Milliken to conduct a nationwide search for a person who could act as an environmental monitor.

He liked the position to a type of Leon Jaworski, the special prosecutor in the Watergate case, to a T. John Lesinski, a special court administrator for Wayne County courts, or to the special administrator Detroit has hired to help correct its sewage treatment plant.

Seeterlin added that the DNR has enough other business to handle, and added he was outraged that the DNR has ignored the Area Water Quality Board and has not invited help from local elected officials.

Legislation proposed for overseas workers

Reclaiming losses after evacuation

By BILL CASPER

With the crisis in Iran still hanging in the balance, the U.S. Congress has begun to deal with a less critical problem faced by other American personnel who were ordered to evacuate that country before the embassy takeover in Tehran.

Consider this dilemma:

You are in the army stationed in Iran at the time evacuation orders were given some months ago. You are ordered to leave the country immediately.

You can take only what you and family members can carry, leaving all other valuables behind and lost forever.

You figure your dollar loss to be about $35,000. Can you recoup that loss?

The answer is yes, but only up to $15,000, still leaving you with a $20,000 loss.

However, there is legislation currently pending in the U.S. Congress to raise the maximum amount of compensation money for those military and civilian personnel serving this country overseas who receive evacuation orders from the Secretary of State.

The proposed legislation would be retroactive to cover those evacuated from Iran and would include all future overseas evacuations.

There are two bills in the U.S. House of Representatives addressing the issue, the first sponsored by Rep. John J. LaFalce, D-N.Y.

According to Nancy Artz, a staff assistant for LaFalce, the evacuation dilemma first came to the congressman's attention by one of his constituents who was ordered to evacuate Iran earlier this year.

She said LaFalce introduced the initial evacuation compensation bill April 5, but later revised it and introduced the new version Oct. 25.

Ms. Artz said the revised bill proposes to raise the amount of compensation from the current $15,000 to $25,000 for scheduled transfers and to $35,000 for emergency evacuations.

The revised bill also sets a maximum of $35,000 in compensation payment for evacuees, as opposed to the initial proposal which had no limit.

"Each new bill must be presented to different executive agencies for their comments on proposed legislation," said Ms. Artz. "We (in LaFalce's office) were informed through the executive comments that an open-ended compensation amount would not be good for the bill's chances of receiving approval.

"Basically, all our bill does is add a new claim category for evacuees and raises the maximum amount of compensation available in other cases involving any property losses and damages in the moving process of a scheduled transfer," Ms. Artz added.

She said such compensation increases are not unusual because the amount has been increased periodically in the past.

However, LaFalce's bill is now in the House Administrative Law and Governmental Relations Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee where it has met some opposition.

Subcommittee chairman Rep. George E. Danielson, D-Calif., said LaFalce's bill "is not going anywhere."

Danielson said he and Rep. Carlos J. Moorhead, R-Calif., the ranking minority member, are working on a bill which seeks to amend the current law.

Ordinance proposed to restrict truckers from township roads

There's some relief coming to township residents bothered by excessive truck traffic across their residential roads.

Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert has directed township attorneys to draft an ordinance that would restrict trucks from residential streets in Plymouth Township.

Township attorney Nels Carlson is writing that ordinance today.

It would give the township the power to map out areas where trucks should not be allowed to travel. In effect, it would give the township the power to assign truck routes within its boundaries.

Presently, Wayne County, not Plymouth Township, has that authority.

According to Notebaert, however, the county's designation for what roads make good truck routes depends more on the quality of the road rather than the concerns of the residents who live there.

Two "critical roads" that have brought out complaints from homeowners, Notebaert says, are Haggerty Road and Canton Center Road, between Ann Arbor and Joy Roads.

Schools also are located on both roads, which adds to residents' concerns for safety.

INTEREST IN developing a local ordinance was born out of complaints from residents along Haggerty Road.

"We explored the county's rerouting but they were reluctant to do that," Notebaert says. "They don't like to reroute too much."

Presently, Haggerty between Ann Arbor Road to Hines Park Drive, is used frequently by trucks hauling equipment and supplies to such local plants as Burroughs Corp.

Once an ordinance is drafted, Notebaert says, one alternative to trucks driving through this residential area is to reroute the path onto Lilley and Plymouth Roads.

Eventually, signs will be posted that show where trucks are prohibited.

In The Home

- Do keep tree in water from time you bring it home. Make fresh saw cut across trunk base before setting up. Place tree in water containing holder and fill it daily. Remove dry tree from premises immediately after holidays.
- Use flame resistant icicles and tinsel
- Keep base of tree in water or wet sand
- Keep a wastebasket handy for disposal of gift wrappings
- No candles on or near the tree
- Don't attach too many light strings to one outlet, and be sure insulation is not worn or sockets loose. A blown fuse is the signal of a dangerous overload. Be sure fuses are right size. Never use a penny in fuse socket.
- Don't use lighted candles on the Christmas tree or with other decorations. Place the tree well away from fireplace or other location where it is exposed to sparks or strong heat. Also keep tissue wrappings away from heat.
- Do not hang metal foil icicles over wires or tree lights.
- Set tree away from fireplace, radiator or other heat source that could dry it out.

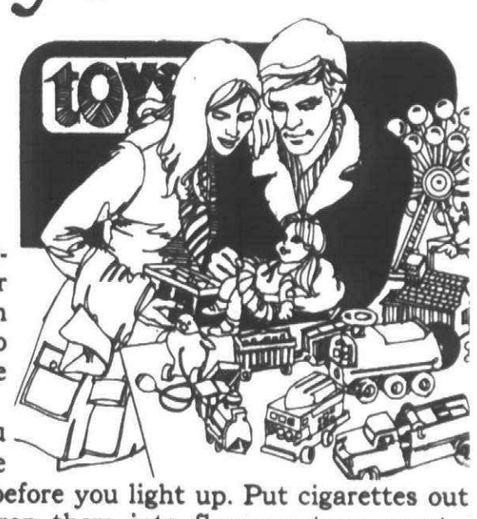
On The High-Way

- Check batteries, tires, brakes, lights, wipers and exhaust system before you start on your trip.
- Carry safety gear in the trunk for emergencies: booster cables, shovel, tow chain or strap, flares, traction mat, sand or rock salt, flashlight and tire chains.
- Start your trip early so you can adapt speed to changing road conditions and visibility.
- WHETHER THE TRIP IS LONG OR SHORT, BUCKLE UP YOUR SAFETY BELTS AND PUT CHILDREN IN APPROVED CHILD RESTRAINTS.
- In residential areas, watch for kids on sleds, carolers crossing the streets and people coming from parties.

Chances are you're going to get stuck at one point or another. Here's how to get loose if you do:

- Turn your wheels back and forth to push snow away from the tires.
- Shift to a high gear if you have a manual transmission.
- With a gentle foot on the gas, try to ease out without spinning the wheels. If you let the wheels spin, you'll only dig in deeper.
- Keep the wheels as straight as possible when you pull out. You probably won't make it out the first try. The best way is to make several tries, turning the wheels slightly and coming out a little more each time.

Personal Safety



Don't wait for someone to monitor your drinking-set your own pace. It's up to you to be sure you can drive safely.

Use ashtrays if you smoke, and be sure there is one at hand before you light up. Put cigarettes out carefully-don't just drop them into flower pots or wastebaskets.

If you have small children, empty all glasses and put all liquor bottles away before going to bed. Children get up early and for a small child, liquor can be a deadly poison.

CHILDREN'S TOYS

Up to 2 years (Hand to Mouth age)	- Avoid all toys that may be swallowed. Toys with small movable parts.
2 to 3 Years ("Let's Pretend" Age)	-Avoid heavy toys, poorly made toys that may come apart and splinter, electrical toys.
4 to 6 Years (Creative Age)	-Avoid shooting or target toys which will endanger eyes, ill balanced mobile toys, tricycles, wagons which may topple easily, poisonous painting sets, pinching or cutting objects.
6 to 8 Years (Beg. of Dexterity Age)	-Avoid non-approved electrical toys, anything too large or complicated for child's strength and ability. Also sharp edged tools, conductible kites, shooting toys.
8 and Older (Specialization of Tastes & Skills)	-Avoid air rifles, chemistry sets, dart games, bows and arrows, dangerous tools and electrical toys unless used under parental supervision.

Load up the sleigh

Things were hopping at West Middle School recently as students combined efforts with the Plymouth Salvation Army to provide Christmas meals to residents. The food drive has become a tradition at the school since it began more than 10 years ago. According to Mike Shay, student adyiser, some 23 homerooms have put together 27 seperate meal boxes and collected $225 for some type of main course. Pictured are (from left) Scott Eddy, 13, Liz Agius, 13, and Shenary Adams, 13. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Petition drive is on to alter sewer plan

City halls and township offices around the area this week began displaying petitions to regionalize the Detroit water and sewerage system, which serves some 100 communities in southeast Michigan.

"The secretary of state formally approved our petition wording Friday," said Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn, spokesman for the drive.

"We want to get 300,000 signatures from 20 counties in six months. We're shooting for the 1980 ballot. We want the people to vote it up or vote it down in 1980," Kuhn said.

Petitions will be displayed in clerks' and treasurers' offices and in some police departments in most of Oakland and much of Wayne counties.

THE GROUP'S formal name is Citizens for Regional Water and Sewer Systems Committee.

The petition drive, if successful, will place on the ballot a proposed state law to change the relationship between a city with a water and sewer system that is also serving non-resident customers. The law would apply only to systems that serve 25 percent or more of the state. Thus, only the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department would be affected.

At present, all seven Detroit water board members are appointed by the mayor of Detroit and removable at his will. Water and sewerage rates are set by the water board and the Detroit city council.

The proposed law would set up a metropolitan council on a one-government, one-vote basis. The council would appoint a nine-member regional water board on the same basis. Under this plan, Detroit would have three of the nine votes.

"WE CONSIDERED whether to use the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments in place of a metropolitan council," Kuhn said, "and decided against it.

"Genesee County was adamant against it (SEMCOG) because they are outside the region and couldn't be a member.

"Macomb County was against it, too, because they aren't and don't want to be a member of SEMCOG."

Detroit has been selling water and sewerage services to outlying communities since the suburban boom following World War II but has retained political control of the system.

WHILE APPORTIONMENT of the Detroit water board has often been discussed in the Michigan Legislature, the issue has generated more heat in the last two years because of a federal suit against the Detroit sewage treatment plant's pollution of Lake Erie.

Corrections in the sewage treatment plant have required increased user rates of several hundred percent. There has been increased debate, both in and out of federal court, over whether the city alone can manage the system.

Theoretically, the legislature could respond to the petitions by enacting a change in the water board's governance. But Kuhn and suburban legislators doubt it will act, pointing to the defeat of less far-reaching proposals. They expect to go through with the initiative petition.

He bills the petition as "1) fighting pollution of the Great Lakes, 2) providing fair representation on the water board and 3) facilitating professional management of the sewage treatment plant at the lowest possible cost."

Rail approved for Woodward to 10 Mile

By TOM LONERGAN

A Woodward light-rail line extending to 10 Mile Road has now become the main cog of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority's regional 1990 plan.

The rapid transit plan, which includes a subway from downtown Detroit to McNichols (Six Mile) Road, was approved 11-4, one vote more than the required two-thirds majority, Tuesday by the SEMTA Board of Directors.

The rail line, as now proposed, would run along surface from McNichols to 10 Mile Road in Royal Oak.

The 15-member board, composed of representatives of the seven southeast Michigan counties and the city of Detroit, also unanimously agreed they were "on the verge" of working out a merger of SEMTA and the Detroit Department of Transportation (D-DOT).

Detroit's agreement to merge D-DOT with SEMTA led to suburban representatives' agreeing to a subway to McNichols and the downtown Detroit People Mover.

APPROVAL OF the rapid rail line beyond Eight Mile Road into Oakland County was hailed by SEMTA Board Chairman Edward McNamara, mayor of Livonia.

The 1990 plan "thus becomes a Detroit-suburban system that changes the complexion of the subway," McNamara said.

"I'm very pleased that the five years of labor have finally paid off."

Suburban political leaders, particularly in Oakland and Macomb counties, have long opposed the subway, saying it favored Detroit at the expense of more service in the outlying metropolitan areas.

THE SEMTA board also agreed that phase 2 of the regional transportation plan would emphasize extension of the Woodward rail to Big Beaver (16 Mile) Road and a new rail line along Gratiot from downtown to Six Mile.

There was little discussion of alternate tranportation plans at the meeting since the bus systems merger and suburban agreement with the subway had been worked out in closed sessions between SEMTA and Detroit officials last Friday and Tuesday morning.

SEMTA board member Henry M. Hogan of Oakland County engineered approval of extending the rail (or modern street car) line to 10 Mile after it became apparent that there were 10 board votes (the minimum required) for the subway.

Some suburban representatives had witheld their support for the subway pending Detroit's agreement to the SEMTA-D-DOT merger. Before last weekend, there was speculation that the merger issue could stall agreement on a transportation plan.

"As long as there were 10 votes for a system," Hogan said, "then Oakland County ought to get its fair share."

HOGAN PHONED Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy during the SEMTA board meeting to make sure he supported the plan with rail extended into south Oakland County.

Earlier this year the county threatened to drop out of SEMTA, complaining Oakland would not get an equitable share of services in the 1990 plan.

Even with the extension, the two other Oakland County representatives on the SEMTA board didn't approve of the plan.

Both R.J. Alexander and Homer Case, Bloomfield Township supervisor, abstained from voting. The plan was opposed by the two Macomb County representatives. Hogan joined the five Detroit, three outer Wayne County and two outer-region representatives in approving the plan.

Alexander said he abstained because written comments submitted at nine metropolitan area public hearings held recently on the plan were not reviewed by the SEMTA board.

His motion to table a decision until those comments were reviewed was supported only by Case.

Case said he voted against the plan, although he was recorded as abstaining.

"The subway plan to Six Mile has nothing to offer my constituents," Case said. He would support rail, Case added, if it ran along the Grand Trunk Western right-of-way between Detroit and Pontiac. SEMTA now operates a commuter rail service along the GTW line.

THE RAIL line route to 10 Mile has not been determined. It could follow Woodward or, as Hogan prefers, the existing Grand Trunk Western tracks.

Hogan's motion said the rail line should follow the route determined by SEMTA's engineers.

McNamara said he supported the rail extension because "the need is there."

The transportation plan doesn't include any rail along corridors leading to Redford, Livonia and Plymouth.

"We're not that concerned (about that)," McNamara said, noting the state is studying inter-city rail service along the C&O rail corridor between Detroit and Lansing.

All of SEMTA's alternative plans would add more large and small buses and add bus routes in the western Wayne and Oakland County areas. Many of the new bus routes will connect the major shopping mall areas.

According to SEMTA General Manager Larry E. Salci, once funded, the plan will allow SEMTA to put 50 new buses per year on the road for six years.

Commuter rail between Detroit and Ann Arbor along the line now used by Amtrak will be expanded in the plan.

SEMTA COMMITTED itself Tuesday to put a tax proposal before Wayne, Oakland and Macomb County voters during or before 1982. Regional transportation is expected to operate at a deficit that could reach $65 million by 1990, no matter which plan was chosen.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young held an impromptu news conference shortly after the SEMTA decision and hailed it as a victory for the region.

"I was most happy to hear of the extension of rapid rail into Oakland County, and we will work together to extend it to Macomb County," Young said.

Regarding the D-DOT merger with SEMTA, Young said, "I'm bound by my word," provided the ensuing negotiations protects service in Detroit and the current D-DOT employees.

QUESTION: I heard on one of your past TV programs that cocker spaniels are subject to ear infections. Well, I heard exactly the same thing about my poodle — he is subject to ear infections because a poodle's ear canal is so deep, and fungus can develop there when the ear gets wet.

Which breed is more subject to ear infections? Or is all of this a story.

REPLY: Most breeds of dogs suffer from ear problems. Some breeds, such as cocker spaniels and poodles, are more predisposed than others. This is because oftheir floppy ears and excessive hair growth in the ear cansls.

Ear canals in dogs are deeper than human's and have a unique "L" shape which does not allow for proper air circulation and drainage.

If moisture gets downin the ear canal, which might be the case when your dog swims a lot, it provides a warm, moist environment for an infection to start. Bacterial infections are the most common cause of ear infections, although ear mites and fungal infections can also be a cause.

Symptoms of an ear infection are: a brown waxy discharge, pawing at one or both ears, a sour odor around the head, or excessive shaking of the head. Excessive shaking of the head sometimes can lead to swollen ears.

Remember that those breeds with excessiv hair growth in the ear canals should have their ears plucked. This is often done by the groomer when your dog is groomed.

An important point to remember is to follow the plucking procudure with ear medication because the ear canal has been irritated. This way, you do now allow an infection to start.

Trimming around the ear canal opening is also important in those floppy, long-haired ears because it allows for better air circulation and keeps the ear canal dry.

A decade in the stock market

As the the 1970s draw to an end, stock prices, as measured by the popular Dow Jones Industrial Average, are little changed from what they were at the beginning of the decade.

A decline, which had begun from the 1000 level in late 1968, crossed 800 as the decade began and terminated in the spring of 1970 at 650.

While that decline was largely a correction of the market's own excesses, created in the speculative atmosphere that prevailed in the latter 1960s, it also reflected the early stages of the trends toward higher interest rates and international monetary instability.

In addition to those factors, the stock market was also affected by some shocking business failures — most notable was the bankruptcy of the Penn Central Railroad. Interest rates turned downward from a peak of 8.5 percent in the spring of 1970, declining to 4.75 percent in early 1972.

The stock market reacted strongly to this and other bullish news. It rose from the 650 low in 1970 to a peak of 1050 in January, 1973.

That level still stands as the all-time high for the Dow Industrial Average.

THE STRONG market was short-lived, however. Rising interest rates again dominated the scene. The prime-lending rate rose quickly to a record 12 percent in mid-1974.

The market responded accordingly, losing almost 50 percent of its price to the 580 level in late 1974.

Again, while rising interest rates were the main cause of the decline, there were two other notable events that added to the seriousness of the fall in stock prices.

The oil embargo in October, 1973 caused the market to lose a quick 200 points, from the 1000 level to 800.

It hovered in that general area until the late summer of 1974, when perhaps the most shocking event of the decade occurred — the resignation of our president.

That event caused moments of panic, and when the reaction had finally ended, the market settled to a level of 580.

THEN, ONCE again, interest rates took a turn for the better. The prime rate dropped from the 12 percent mark to 6.25 percent in early 1977.

The stock market responded by staging a strong rally that saw the market quickly return to the 1000 level by early 1976.

It spent the better part of that year pivoting at, or just below, the seemingly impregnable barrier.

When it became apparent that interest rates were once again on the rise, stock prices began to dip once more. The prime rate steadily increased from the 6.75 percent level in 1977 to its recent peak of 15.75 percent.

The market made its most recent low in February and March of 1978 when it touched the 750 mark. Even though interest rates have risen considerably since then, stock prices have chosen to ignore the rise and the average currently stands at around 850.

So, as the dawn of the 1980s approaches, I wish you season's greetings and a happy new decade.

C&O bridge over Jeffries due for repair

The bridge carrying the C & O railroad over the Jeffries Freeway in Detroit will likely be repaired early in 1980.

Great Lakes Construction Co. of Warren was the lowest of three recent bidders at $440,251 on a project to repair the bridge which crosses I-96 east of the Greenfield Road exit.

According to the Michigan Department of Transportation, some welds in the fabricated steel beams supporting the bridge are believed to contain interior flaws. The repairs involve bolting steel plates over about half of the welded splices in the beams.

The welds were made in 1971 by an electro-slag welding process which has been discontinued by Michigan and other states.

The transportation department said the C&O bridge is the only one requiring repairs at this time. The state and Federal Highway Administration will share the repair costs. The work will take three months to complete.

The bridge and other freeway bridges in the area were part of an independent safety investigation conducted earlier this year by the Detroit News. That investigation found numerous cracks and structural flaws in freeway bridges and supports.

Company bonus for kicking the habit

At the end of this year, some happy employees will pocket a hefty bonus because they quit smoking.

One company giving such bonuses is Riviera Motors in Oregon. At the end of last year, 17 employees at the firm each received $200 extra because they'd become non-smokers. This year another 32 made a pledge to quit.

Those who've successfully adopted a nonsmoking workstyle through the year will qualify for a New Year's bonus.

Although many companies provide quit-smoking programs and even offer employees a reward for quitting, the program at Riviera was special. The entire company, nonsmokers and smokers, supported the efforts of those trying to quit smoking.

THE COMPANY itself paid the expenses of a quit-smoking clinic and set up a collection of books on smoking, jogging, diet, and health; the company hired instructors to teach calisthenics three noontimes a week, while yoga and belly dancing were featured the other two days. Weather permitting, outdoor sports, such as softball, were also played.

Meals of Christmases past

Memories may fuel appetite

Nancy Austin

Holiday partying is just about in full swing now.

Evenings and weekends on the calendar have something penciled in just about every square. Exciting? Yes, but also disconcerting.

You know it also means food, restaurants, drinks (alcoholic or otherwise), dinner with friends and family. Your willpower is strained to the seams, just about ready to burst at any moment. You agonize over how you will politely, but firmly, stay on your diet. Those who are the closest to you, family, friends, may be the very people to distrupt your continuity. It's not going to be easy, friends. So buck up, smile, and with a stiff upper lip face the issues.

HISTORICALLY, celebrations have centered around food, and this will never change. Ethnic groups, particularly, celebrate festivities with multi-course meals, dance, song, and tradition. The gaity at these occasions is unsurpassed with Christmas as the best display of these traditions.

It is the people from ethnic groups — Italian, Polish, Ukrainian, German, Mexican — who seem to be most sensitive to the feeling that happiness and joy are equated with food, both its quality and its quantity.

Mama spends hours, even days, in the kitchen, preparing sumptuous delicacies. It is Mama who is hurt if you don't eat until you are uncomfortable.

And it is you who can't stand to hurt Mama's feelings, so you eat on and on and on, only to regret it at the beginning of the new year.

Childhood memories are rekindled by the sweet aromas of yeast dough rising on the counter and decorated with gaily colored sprinkles. Then there are the fruit cakes, turkeys with stuffing, pierogis, kielbasa, and tortes, canolis, pies and cakes.

IF YOU ARE ONE who delights in such memories, you see your visions of Christmas pictures of Mama and Papa,, brothers and sisters sitting around the Christmas tree amid brightly colored Christmas wrappings.

And you begin to feel guilty if you "betray" those memories and don't indulge in recapturing what has always been a happy tradition.

But you must remember the vision also includes a plump Mama, so such indulgence can mean ultimately a plump you.

IT WILL TAKE some mental gymnastics on your part to depart from tradition. You can do it with some practice.

First, you will do a lot of talking to yourself. Converstions will revolve around how you don't want to gain weight over the holiday season — and mean it. Second, work hard on overcoming the guilt you will feel if you don't eat all of Mama's delicacies. Guilt is non-productive. It will not help you maintain your equilibrium. In fact, it could trigger an eating binge, compounding your problem.

Don't say, "No thank you, I'm on a diet." That will bring a barrage of remarks such as, "Again?", "One piece won't hurt." "C'mon these are the holidays. Start your diet after the new year." or "You can go off your diet for today." or finally, "Well, take some home with you."

Instead, say: "Mama, you are the best cook in the world. I love to smell all these things because they bring back a lot of fond memories. But I'm going to pass this time."

And do it!

Grote passes S'craft test

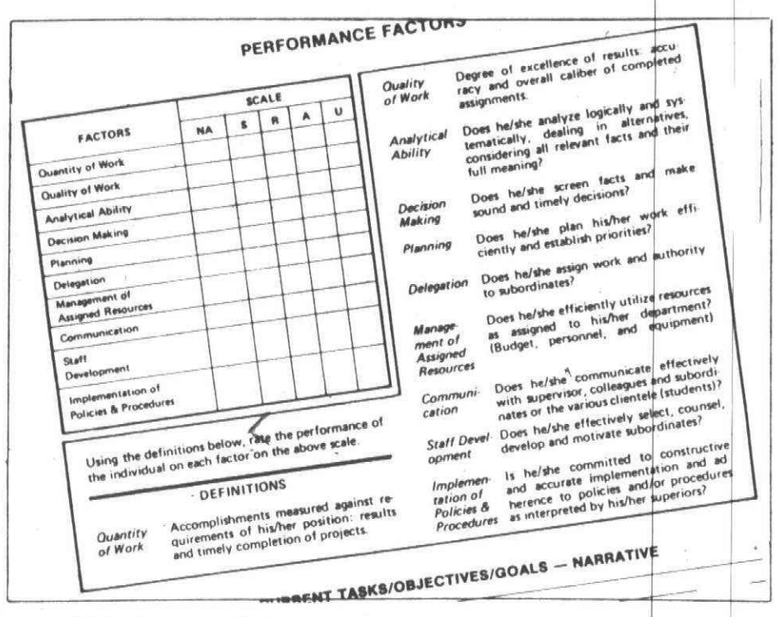
President C. Nelson Grote last week got his report card from the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

Unlike students' cards, which are marked with letters A through E, with an I for incomplete, Grote's card contained such notations as NA, S, R, A and U.

"I don't like some things about it," said board Chairman Harry Greenleaf. "I think S (for superior) and R (for remarkable) are too close together."

The A stands for acceptable and the U for unacceptable. Greenleaf thinks those two categories are too far apart — like C and E on the students' report cards.

The grades are used because they were negotiated with the administrators' union, Greenleaf said. In evaluating the president next year, he added, the board may come up with some better ways of keeping score.



PERFORMANCE FACTORS

FACTORS	SCALE NA	S	R	A	U
Quantity of Work
Quality of Work
Analytical Ability
Decision Making
Planning
Delegation
Management of Assigned Resources
Communication
Staff Development
Implementation of Policies & Procedures

Using the definitions below, rate the performance of the individual on each factor on the above scale.

DEFINITIONS

Quantity of Work — Accomplishments measured against requirements of his/her position: results and timely completion of projects.

Quality of Work — Degree of excellence of results: accuracy and overall caliber of completed assignments.

Analytical Ability — Does he/she analyze logically and systematically, dealing in alternatives, considering all relevant facts and their full meaning?

Decision Making — Does he/she screen facts and make sound and timely decisions?

Planning — Does he/she plan his/her work efficiently and establish priorities?

Delegation — Does he/she assign work and authority to subordinates?

Management of Assigned Resources — Does he/she efficiently utilize resources as assigned to his/her department? (Budget, personnel, and equipment)

Communication — Does he/she communicate effectively with supervisor, colleagues and subordinates or the various clientele (students)?

Staff Development — Does he/she effectively select, counsel, develop and motivate subordinates?

Implementation of Policies & Procedures — Is he/she committed to constructive and accurate implementation and adherence to policies and/or procedures as interpreted by his/her superiors?

CURRENT TASKS/OBJECTIVES/GOALS — NARRATIVE

This is part of the report card filled out for Schoolcraft College administrators. Another section weighs personal characteristics. The letters in the scale stand for Not Applicable, Superior, Remarkable, Acceptable and Unacceptable.

GROTE'S MARKS are a confidential matter, though Greenleaf said the president was well-rated. At Grote's request, the board handled his annual evaluation behind closed doors in a 90-minute session last week, a procedure allowed under the state's Open Meetings Act.

But it's a matter of public record that he "passed." His compensation was improved by 7 percent — from a total of $49,500 to a total of $53,000. Broken down, his compensation goes from last year's $48,000 base salary with a $1,500 tax-free annuity to a new level of $50,500 and a $2,500 annuity.

The raise is retroactive to the beginning of the fiscal year, last July 1. Greenleaf called the raise comparable to what persons in the administrators bargaining unit got.

GREENLEAF, an administrator in the field of engineering personnel at Ford Motor Co., called the college evaluation form similar to ones used in industry.

Higher water rates due Jan. 1

By TOM LONERGAN

An interim order putting the city of Detroit's new sewer and water rates into effect as scheduled Jan. 1 could be signed this week by U.S. District Judge John Feikens.

However, the order won't prevent suburban communities and several industry groups from pursuing their protests against the new rates.

For western Wayne and south Oakland County homeowners, the new rates will hike water bills some 38 percent next year.

But for industrial users, the increases will be steeper. Besides rate hikes ranging from 158 percent to more than 400 percent, industries face one and maybe two sewer-use surcharges next year.

SINCE DEC. 7, attorneys representing Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties and various businesses have been meeting with oficials of the city of Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (DWSD) about rates and other issues.

According to Robert Fredericks, Oakland County deputy drain commissioner, "there's a variety of viewpoints" regarding what progress has been made at the meetings.

"I think some interim order will be entered (by Feikens) regardless of what comes of negotiations," Fredericks said last Friday.

Feikens may give the go-ahead to the rate hikes at a 9 a.m. Tuesday hearing in the federal courthouse in downtown Detroit. He may also have a three-man "masters panel" hear those issues the attorneys fail to resolve.

FREDERICKS SAID those issues could include:

- Whether the DWSD budget for the next 18 months has been "overstated," as alleged by both suburban and industrial challengers. The new rates are expected to provide $184 million for the sewer and water system through June 30, 1981.
- How great the flow of stormwater and sewage is into the Detroit sewage treatment plant. Metered suburbs, such as those in Oakland and western Wayne counties, say Detroit's projection of unmetered flow into the plant from the city and nearby suburbs like Dearborn is underestimated. The metered suburbs say this results in higher bills.
- Whether Detroit gets free stormwater treatment for drainage from more than 22,000 acres of city of Detroit right-of-way.
- Whether surcharges, applied when industrial and commercial sewage exceeds certain strengths, will be based on levels determined by DWSD. The industries want the levels set higher than what DWSD has determined.

THE LATTER industry challenge, if upheld, could result in higher rates for residential customers of the Detroit system. The treatment plant serves more than three million people in 76 metropolitan area communities.

Raising the pollutant levels would mean less revenue from industry, Fredericks said. "That revenue would be recovered at-large from all customers."

He said suburban representatives haven't agreed with industry on the surcharge levels "because it means we'll pay more."

Schoolcraft eyes Dickinson Junior High

By TIM RICHARD

Schoolcraft College, repeatedly shot down by voters on construction proposals, is eyeing a Livonia junior high school a mile away for some of its cramped programs.

The Livonia Chamber of Commerce and city library are also entering the discussion. The building is the 11-year-old Dickinson Junior High at 18000 Newburgh, just across the I-275 freeway from the campus at 18600 Haggerty.

President C. Nelson Grote last week told trustees he wants to make a recommendation by Jan. 23.

The key question, both for Grote and trustee Len Wozniak: "What's it going to cost?"

A STAFF committee headed by Fred Stefanski, dean of evening operations, has been at work since mid-September. So far, it is thinking in terms of the college's using only part of the Dickinson building.

Among the alternatives:

- A small business institute operated by SC's community services department, assisted by the chamber of commerce. The chamber is not, however, interested in acquiring or renting the building.
- A joint venture with the Livonia library. College trustee Rosina Raymond, a member of the city library board, said, however, that the city's main interest is a main library rather than a third small branch.
- Health careers occupancy. The medical laboratory technology program would like more laboratory space because it now shares a lab. The nursing department needs lecture rooms and has major scheduling problems and would like to expand enrollment.

Moving out the nursing department would also allow the business department to expand its data processing instruction in the Applied Sciences Building on campus.

- Continuing education and community services could move its entire administrative operation into the Dickinson building. Sewing, food preparation, small engine repair, welding, photo laboratory and art graphics are among the courses which could be offered there.

In addition, several operations located in old houses on Haggerty Road could be moved to the main campus if other programs were moved to Dickinson. Among the operations in houses are child care, placement and accounting.

Past chemical dumps offer lesson for future

editorial opinion

Canton, in a strange sort of way, owes a debt of gratitude to the people responsible for disposing of, or trying to dispose of, potentially toxic substances in the township.

First there was an attempt by a firm under contract to the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department to start a sludge composting operation on a Canton site.

The proposal to convert waste into an odorless soil additive sounded good at first. It still has merit.

Sludge from the metropolitan area, however, contains high levels of industrial wastes. The effects of chemicals in this waste on the food chain can be unpleasant — so unpleasant that the soil additive could not be used on food grown for human consumption. There just aren't any solid, health-safety guarantees attached to the plan.

While township officials and concerned individuals investigated the sludge proposal, they learned an important lesson. They decided to know exactly what they would be getting into by allowing a sludge composting site.

They found, through research, that many questions are still unanswered about the sludge. They demanded some answers before proceeding further.

When it was discovered that some of this controversial sludge was already being dumped at a Canton landfill, the various interested parties were well-informed enough to realize that sludge dumping is something to be concerned about.

WHEN BARRELS of earth laced with PCB (poly-chlorinated biphenyl) were discovered buried at the same landfill, concerned individuals made it their business to explore the potential hazards of the chemical (a suspected carcinogen) and to get the barrels tested.

The barrels were allowed to remain, but only after officials could be certain that potential hazards were minimal.

A third incident, which occured more recently, involved a Canton resident's discovery that there were barrels of unknown chemicals sitting on a township site. The chemicals are being tested by the state Department of Natural Resources.

In all the cases, serious threats to the health and well-being of Canton residents appear unlikely. These incidents, however, have served to make officials aware of the hazards of toxic waste.

Only last month, Trustee Steven Larson expressed concern that Canton, with its remaining rural area, would be viewed at a garbage can for toxic waste.

He's right. As awareness of toxic waste grows, it becomes more difficult and more expensive to dispose of wastes.

One solution is to dump the stuff at will, when no one is looking, and pretend you had nothing to do with it.

Another solution is to do a song-and-dance before local government officials, telling them the waste is perfectly safe and betting no one is smart enough to check out the facts.

Communities in this state and throughout the nation are already grappling with discoveries that dangerous and toxic material has been buried in or around them.

Maybe the chemicals were put there when officials did not know their hazards. Maybe they were not even informed the chemicals were there.

In any case, there are too many stories of tragedy and overwhelming costs connected with the dumpings.

Perhaps other substances have been dumped in Canton that we still know nothing about.

THANKS TO RELATIVELY minor incidents, Canton has been put on the alert. If the lesson has been learned well enough, the township will continue to work with the DNR on the problems it already has. Officials will attempt to guard against unauthorized dumping. Hopefully, they will view with a microscope all future requests involving waste disposal.

Yes, toxic waste has to go somewhere. We should, however, know what we're getting — as well as what we've already got.

Disturbing view from the campus

After 15 months as president of Wayne State University, Thomas N. Bonner is in a position to bring us a fresh look at higher education in Michigan.

It's a disturbing view.

Bonner testified last month before a joint committee of the Michigan legislature on higher education issues. He made these points:

• Michigan's dollar support of higher education is slipping. In 1967 we ranked 19th among the states in support of colleges based on statewide personal income. Today we are 35th.

• The prediction that enrollments will decline could be a self-fulfilling prophecy. We hear enrollments will decline, so we give colleges less state support. The colleges are forced to raise tuition. This discourages enrollment — and freezes social mobility — and the prediction comes true.

• There is "no existing mechanism in this state for evaluating the higher education system as a whole, for finding solutions to statewide problems, or for higher education planning from the statewide public interest perspective."

COLLEGES MUST compete with other state aid programs "with broad emotional and constituent backing which makes them high political yield programs," Bonner said.

Unfortunately, he never got around to saying what those competing programs are. A look at state budgets over the years, however, shows that education in general has slipped from half the state budget to about one-third.

In the meantime, welfare and social services have exploded during the last decade. Perhaps Bonner was too nervous to say it, but welfare — not war spending — is the biggest single enemy of higher education.

The WSU president pointed to Sec. 30 of the Headlee tax limitation amendment as potentially sharply reducing state support of colleges. I had to look up that one. Sec. 30 guarantees local government the "proportion of total state spending paid to all units of local government" which they had in fiscal 1978-79.

In short, state aid to local government is frozen as a percentage of the state budget. What should be legislative minutia becomes carved in granite. It's rotten constitutional law, and higher education suffers.

"I AM CONVINCED," Bonner goes on, "that tuition at our state's major universities, and especially Wayne, is simply too high. The rise in Wayne's tuition has outpaced inflation."

A significant comparison — tuition and the consumer price index. The Headlee tax limitation amendment ties taxes to the consumer price index, but tuition isn't a tax, so it's not controlled.

Consumer prices, led by housing and oil, are rising at about 13 percent currently. A couple of weeks ago, the Oakland University board raised student fees by 50 percent.

As vice chairman of the Oakland University governing board, Headlee might be interested in that kind of inflation.

But the last time Headlee, president of an insurance company, visited our newspapers' offices, he arrived in a chauffer-driven limousine.

BONNER'S POINT about a lack of overall planning and coordination of higher education is highly disturbing.

In the state constitution adopted in 1963, we set up a new State Board of Education which was supposed to have that kind of responsibility. Now Bonner, in his roundabout, indirect, cautious way, is telling us the system isn't working.

I'm not surprised. The boards of the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Michigan State University are still separately elected by the voters. The Big Three consider themselves autonomous. At one time or another, the Big Three have declared themselves not bound by open meetings laws, labor laws and budget inspection.

My alma mater, Michigan, has been the most arrogant of the bunch.

Bonner offered no solid proposal for this lack of planning and excess of competition.

We in suburbia are the state's biggest consumers of higher education. The man at Wayne State is telling us our colleges are in trouble. We should be listening.

Christmas cheer to the forgotten

This being the time of year for the spreading of good will toward men, The Stroller would like to extend the greetings of the season to all newspaper columnists and to all members of the craft anywhere in the world.

He also would like to extend best wishes to those who, for various reasons, are not members of our noble fraternity.

He would like to wish a merry Christmas to soldiers and sailors everywhere, to the Army, Navy, Marines, Air Corps, Merchant Marines and to the Red Cross nurses, Salvation Army workers and to every man and woman in uniform who can't get home for the holidays. And to those who can.

The Stroller also would like to wish a merry Christmas to the United Nations delegates who are discussing the Iranian crisis and to all others who are striving for world peace.

Here is a special greeting to those who can't remember names and to most of those whose names they can't remember. To the little woodchucks, the sparrows and cardinals that flit around in the snow. To the manufacturers of Frisbees, writers of crossword puzzles and the inventors of gin rummy and all those who like to play poker. And a big wish for those who like spinach.

HERE IS A greeting to the cutters of tombstones and all other chiselers. And to professional mourners and those who always are available to serve as pall bearers.

Here's a merry Christmas to the folks who provide the singing commercials on our television sets, the man who invented the fly swatter and the children of retired ball players.

The season's greeting to the judges of pigeon races and sign painters and a very merry Christmas to all men whose initials are W.W.E. and to all canary breeders.

He also would like to extend greetings to the man who initiated V-neck sweaters and women's open-toed shoes. And to all athletes who never signed a testimonial for an article they never used and to those persons who never accept $2 bills or pick up pins. To those who sharpen figure skates and to all timekeepers at boxing, hockey, football speedboat races and all other sports that require timers.

THERE'S A special greeting for those unfortunate souls who could not get tickets for the Michigan-Ohio State football game last November and for the directors of traffic at the Silverdome.

Here's best wishes to people who eat an apple a day and those who fish for sharks in Florida. To all folks who didn't receive Christmas cards a year ago and to those who didn't send any.

To all innkeepers who have room for the traveler during the Yuletide season.

And the best of everything not only for the Christmas holidays but all year long to the readers of The Stroller's column throughout the year.

Merry Christmas to one and all!

Canada: gas tax barometer

Folks prone to betting would be safe in wagering that by this time next year, you and I will be clutching gasoline rationing coupons in our frustrated little hands.

Last week it could have gone either way — gas rationing coupons or a 50 cents a gallon tax to discourage fuel consumption. Either one or (God forbid) both would do much toward futhering the economic hardship on Michigan. But given a choice, clear thinkers should hope for a 50 cent tax.

We Americans love our mobility. Throughout the decade, we've learned to cut here and shave there in order to save the extra pennies to pour down our gas tanks.

For Michigan's economy, such a lifestyle is essential. Tourism and the auto industry are our horns of plenty. Merchants, large and small, also have come to depend on restless shoppers who wander from one far-away mall to another.

And let's not forget the housing industry, which thrives on building more expensive houses further out for commuter types.

WE'LL SPEND the extra bucks to keep it up. Rationing will actually restrict our travel, substantially. And ration coupon books are just what we will get.

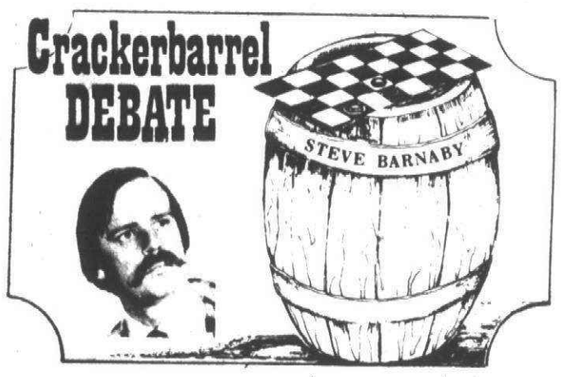
We owe thanks to our neighbors across the Ambassador Bridge. It revolves around this fellow Joe Clark, Canada's recently deposed prime minister.

You see, Joe and his finance minister, John Crosbie, decided it would be nifty if the government levied an 18 cents a gallon tax on gasoline (four cents a litre, metric fans).

The all-too-familiar refrains of "energy independence" and "citizen sacrfice" were being bandied about the halls of Parliament by Clark's Progressive-Conservative Party faithful.

The Liberal Party, which was thrown out of power just seven months ago, banded together with a smaller third party and succeeded in a vote of no confidence last week. In Parliamentary lingo, that means Clark and friends were bounced out. An election will be held Feb. 18.

YOU CAN BET that Jimmy Carter and his reelection crew will be keeping close tabs on whether the average Canadian will buy the argument that they should pay an additional 18 cents a gallon for energy independence — an absurdly impossible goal, as we have discovered.



Middle North Americans, whether they be Candadian Americans or United States Americans, run a similar political temperature when it comes to the good life.

Middle-class Canadians have ample expendable income to buy big, gas-consuming cars, to live in overheatead houses and to spend pocket change on cigarettes and liquor.

Clark also wanted to whip up an additional tax on the latter two commodities. His opponents enjoy pointing out that between now and February while the taxes are suspended, Canadians will save $300 million in gasoline excise taxes and $20 million on the cigarette and liquor tax.

PUBLIC OPINION has an overwhelming effect on the decision-making processes of our politicians. From the smallest city hall to the cloakrooms of Congress, we have witnessed sudden changes of sentiment after a legislator has been consulted (or verbally assaulted) by the folks back home.

Jimmy Carter understands the election process — much better than he understands the job of being president. He realizes his present popularity upswing in the midst of the Iranian crisis will wane.

He once again will be forced to face domestic economic discontent. There is little reason to believe that a gas tax increase will be any more popular here than in Canada.

Closer to home, we will have local congressman seeking out the pulse of the electorate in their quest to stay out of the unemployment line.

Canada's February vote will be a significant barometer.

The wonder of a child... of a child... of a child...

Ah! The wonder of a first child. Who needs cloning when two can produce such a perfect human being doing what comes naturally?

My spouse and I knew we possessed an unbeatable combination of chromosones and genes with the premiere of our daughter.

How fast the stars in our eyes dimmed their glow as our eyelids began to droop. Our perfect human was born with infant insomnia. Not only did she scream for room service in the middle of the night, she expected company.

We became keen on scientific observations discovering "what goes in must come out" and had the overflowing diaper pail to prove our theory.

But God in His infinite wisdom knows better than to send a first baby with too many problems. No one would ever re-order.

Instead, first babies are brilliant. They astound the world with their progress, giving cutesy smiles and gurgles. So with cries of "encore" ringing in our ears, our second child was born.

OUR SON WAS not only as fantastic as our daughter, but at two years of age he proved Darwin's Theory of Evolution. He accomplished this by swinging from any available object and always preferring to stand on anything above shoulder level.

Along with his dietary need for bananas, we easily understood man had descended from the ape.

When Fantastic Son was eight months old, I began going through a phase more commonly known as "the ignorance of youth." I honestly believed anyone raising two children was asking for trouble.

How many perfect boy-girl families have you seen constantly bickering? They have only each other to blame. A third would confuse the issue and offer an alternative sparring partner.

It should be mentioned here, in the interest of research, the possibility of the onset of senility in the early 20s is unknown. However, without cerebral deterioration, the above conclusions would be impossible. Thus, our third wonder entered the world.

GOD CERTAINLY has a sense of humor. He designed babyhood to pass quickly into the toddler stage with the ultimate result being a 5-year-old human, completely toilet-trained, civilized, and without anything to remind you of the former baby.

I succumbed to this form of amnesia and when our youngest was 7 years old, I longed for the clatter of little feet. Besides, I needed someone to blame for the smudges on the wall.

Our fourth child was born in 1971 in University Hospital, Ann Arbor. She was the last protestor to leave a college campus since the revolutions of the '60s.

My husband and I subscribed to the latest innovations — Lamaze natural childbirth and La Leche League which advocates breast-feeding until the baby is naturally weaned, hoping he ceases to nurse sometime before the age he decides to leave home.

Raising a non-bottle babe doesn't mean you oppose the bottle. In fact, I maintained the only fifth I desired was a fifth of rum, vodka or bourbon — anything with 100 proof on the label, especially since I hadn't weaned the fourth by her third birthday. Guess what I got?

I'M TOO OLD to remember exactly what happened after the fifth baby, and both my husband and I thought we were too old for it to happen again. How wrong we were.

Homecoming day with our sixth baby was a memorable event. My oldest daughter wanted to know if I felt up to driving her to ballet class. Her brother wanted to know, "What's for dinner?"

Meanwhile, baby No. 6 had become a card-carrying life member of La Leche League and demanded to nurse with the newborn. As I settled on the couch to begin what should go on record as the longest marathon for breast-feeding two at one time, my eldest daughter gave me a strange compliment.

"You look like a centerfold for National Geographic," she commented.

My husband and I hope there's safety in numbers. Regardless, we're never alone except in full view of the neighbors when we sit in the family car with the doors locked in order to catch up on what's happening in each other's life.

We figure by the next time we sleep alone together, I should have gone through the change of life twice over. Anyway, our 2-year-old toddles into our bedroom in the middle of the night to nurse.

WE'RE LOOKING for a lawyer with the following qualifications:

1) A charter member of Zero Population Growth.
2) Lover of W.C. Fields, sharing his view of children.
3) Bottle-fed in infancy.

If we have to take our case all the way to the Supreme Court, we're going to sue La Leche League. My husband and I can't wait. Our day in court will be the first day we've spent together in at least four years.

fitness

Barry Franklin

You can be fitter without boring exercise

Question: I would like to improve my physical fitness yet find most formal activity programs (e.g., jogging, calisthenics) to be boring and monotonous. Furthermore, my work schedule permits little time for such endeavors.

Is there any magic formula or alternative avenue to increased fitness?

T.S. Livonia

Believe it or not, at least one group of scientists is currently working on the development of a pill which, if taken over a number of weeks, appears to improve physical fitness the same way regular exercise does!

However, the drug is still in the early stages of development and is a denial of the fact that improved fitness can be easily obtained.

The answer to your question lies not in any such pill or "magic formula," but simply through subtle changes in your daily living patterns. Modification of your previously sedentary habits through appropriate alterations in attitude and behavior is important.

GREATER ACTIVITY in everyday living, although perhaps not as effective as a formal exercise program, may result in improved physical fitness and a reduction in body fat stores.

For example, use the staircase as a source of exercise. It's available to every apartment dweller and office worker.

One recent study of an at-work stair-climbing program demonstrated this activity to be a feasible means of increasing physical fitness. The three-month experiment revealed that extensive daily use of the staircase among sedentary men (previously regular elevator users) resulted in a 10 percent improvement in their cardiorespiratory fitness.

It was also reported by the company that stair usage seemed to save work time compared to using the elevator.

SEVERAL GENERAL and specific suggestions for increasing physical activity in daily living are offered:

1. Avoid escalators and elevators. Take the steps whenever possible.
2. Park your car at the farthest end of the shopping center lot and walk to the store. (How often have you driven around the parking lot for several minutes in search of a parking place closer to the store entrance?)
3. Eliminate unnecessary extension phones in the home. Extra walking to a centrally located phone for each call will amount to a considerable caloric expenditure at the end of a year.
4. Walk to and from work each day. If this is not possible, park your car a mile or so from work and walk.
5. Use a manual lawnmower instead of a power one.
6. Walk the dog more often.
7. When you play golf, walk the course instead of riding in the motorized cart.
8. Use a bike instead of the car for short trips around the neighborhood.
9. Include a five-minute walk each evening for each television program watched during the day. For some people this may require walking many miles at the end of each day!

These and other energy expending changes in your daily living patterns will make a significant contribution in reaching your long-term goal of improved physcial fitness.

Question: Are there dangers associated with a drastic reduction of carbohydrates, with unrestricted fat and protein intake?

There are a number of specific drawbacks and objections to the low carbohydrate diet.

First, some carbohydrate is required for fats to be completely broken down for energy. An insufficient amount of carbohydrate in the diet leads to a buildup of ketones — an intermediary product of fat metabolism. When the ability of the kidneys to excrete the ketone bodies is exceeded, they accumulate in the blood, interfering with various body functions.

Second, the body has a specialized need for carbohydrates as a source of energy for the brain and other specialized functions. With a reduced carbohydrate intake, a good energy source is lost. The result may be excessive body fatigue.

Another questionable feature of the low carbohydrate diet is that it places no restriction on the saturated fat intake. These fats may be subsequently converted to blood cholesterol, which may increase in individuals susceptibility to coronary heart disease.

Finally, low carbohydrate diets are often noted for their lack of variety, taste and palatability. They may also be deficient in certain nutrients (vitamins and minerals).

FCC polices radio misuse

Editor:

Subject: Answer to your "From the readers" column dated December 13, signed, "Granny."

Dear Granny:

I appreciate your reference to the fine job our local REACT Team is doing in our area, however, a REACT Team has no authority to "police" malicious radio operators. The Federal Communications Commission is the agency responsible for the correct use of Citizens Band Radio.

When the Team monitors the emergency channel 9 on C.B. radio, we have trouble with illegal operators also.

When anyone wants to report TV interference or other illegal use of a C.B. radio, here is what you do: the local F.C.C. office in Detroit is open from 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each week day. The phone number to call is 226-6078 and ask for Gale Young.

The information she will ask you for is the F.C.C. call letters of the radio operator or the street in front and in back of your location, the time of day and the date that the interference took place.

Gale will send you a booklet explaining TV interference and how to stop it, if you ask her for it.

"Granny," if there is anything the Plymouth Area REACT Team can do to help you, please call on us. We are dedicated to serving our community and that includes you.

Patterson praised

Editor:

Regarding commentary, "Brooks Patterson goes for blood" and he is now petitioning for capital punishment. Just whose blood are you after?

Have you ever had the blood and life flow from a young child at the hands of a vicious killer and rapists?

Have you ever had an elderly person lie helplessly dying from a brutal beating for their meager possessions?

Has a loved one of yours ever been gunned down, just because they were there and the sub-human happened to have a gun in its hands?

To suggest that only blacks or Chicanos would be punished by capital punishment is to say only blacks or Chicanos committ capital punishment crimes. Ludicrous. I say if Mr. Barnaby is using the media to spew his own personal philosophy is one thing, but to suggest he is a reporter relating pertinent facts is something else.

Wayne County should be so lucky to have a Brooks Patterson here.

Where do I stand in line to sign Patterson's petitions?

Secretary stereotypes

Editor:

Joanne Stein's Dec. 13 letter headed "Secretaries are financially exploited" evoked strong reaction.

I clipped her letter and left it for my boss to read. Later, he mentioned that he had indeed read it.

I asked whether he had been surprised by any of the examples Ms. Stein cited. He replied, "no, not at all."

Unfortunately, "secretary" is a stereotype label affixed to the image of an attractive, shapely female who has no initiative of her own and acts solely upon the explicit directions of her boss.

No wonder the salary range for this classification is so minimal.

Funny thing, though. Place a man in a position whose responsibilities match that of a real-life secretary (except for the fact that most men are not skilled in taking dictation, so that should be considered a plus for the women), and he is labeled, not "secretary," but "administrative assistant."

Just for the heck of it, compare typical wage salaries for "secretary" and "administrative assistant."

I rest my case.

Death penalty is supported

Editor:

Although I personally have not always agreed with some of Patterson's excursions into the public forum, I must gag at the watery "60ish" liberal pap espoused by some writers and especially under the guise of crackerbarrel philosophy is the ultimate joke.

American crackerbarrel has meant a sounding board of the nation, so I say check your statistics on "capital punishment" and I think you will find the American people are ready for an alternative to our present system. It is ironic to me, a society that will send innocent young men to die in a war, yet are disturbed over the killing of a miserable guilty wretch.

I would pull the switch.

With another girls' swimming season recently completed, it's interesting to look back on the campaign and see how much improvement has been made.

Area coaches got together recently to update final times and select the All-Observer swim squad.

Stevenson, one of the top teams in the area, placed six swimmers on the team.

Bentley, co-champs of the Suburban Eight League with Dearborn, placed three swimmers on the team.

The Northwest Suburban League is represented by Westland John Glenn, Garden City East Redford Union and Thurston.

Canton has two representatives on the team and rival Salem placed three.

Following are the first team choices and at-large picks — swimmers that show versatility which deserve recognition. Girls were limited to one individual event each for All-Area honors.

FIRST TEAM

Terri Eudy, Plymouth Salem, 100-yard freestyle. Only a sophomore, Eudy was a state qualifier in the 100-yard freestyle. Her best time in that event was :57.1.

The Salem standout placed second in both the 100 and 200-yard freestyle events.

She posted the second best time in the area in the 50-yard freestyle (:26.1). Eudy won the most improved swimmer award at the Salem banquet.

"She's a good all-around swimmer with great potential," said Salem coach Chuck Olson.

Tarja Tuominen, Plymouth Canton, 500-yard freestyle. A junior foreign exchange student from Finland, Tuominen was a pleasant surprise for first-year coach Mark Griffith.

She was Western Six League champ in the 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard butterfly. Tuominen holds school marks in the 100, 200 and 500-yard freestyle events to go along with her time in the butterfly (1:03.0).

She qualified for the state Class A meet with her time in the 500-yard freestyle (5:27.7). The Helsinki native was Canton's most valuable swimmer.

"Tarja anchored all our relay events and is a very versatile swimmer," said Griffith. "She's also a good student.

Sally Rozman, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard backstroke. Rozman gained the highest finish of any area swimmer in the Class A state finals when she placed fifth in the 100-yard backstroke.

Her best time in that event was 1:01.83. She was also a member of the 200-yard medley relay team which finished 10th at the University of Michigan. Rozman was also a standout in the 100-yard freestyle, 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard freestyle.

The junior has been elected captain of Stevenson's 1980 team. Showing superior team leadership and spirt according to coach Lois McDonald, "Sally has a lot of natural ability and works very hard."

With her time in the 100-yard backstroke, Rozman will be given national All-American consideration.

Polly Adzema, Livonia Stevenson, 100-yard breast stroke. The Spartan 10th grader placed 12th in the state meet and posted a best time of 1:11.0. She was on top of the Observer rankings all season long.

Adzema, a "strong team member," according to McDonald, also posted good times in the 100-yard freestyle and 200-yard individual medley.

"Polly is veryserious about swimming," said McDonald. "She takes corrections well."

Cheryl Balnaves, Livonia Stevenson, 200-yard freestyle. Balnaves, a senior, qualified for the state meet in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events along with the 400-yard freestyle relay.

She had the best time in the Observer rankings in the 200-yard freestyle (2:02.1), almost two seconds better than the second ranked swimmer.

"Cheryl was the captain of our team and held us together," said McDonald. "She has superb leadership ability."

The Stevenson senior was a three-year letter winner and was team MVP this year.

Jackie Cogo, Livonia Stevenson, 200-yard individual medley. She placed eight in the state in the 200-yard individual medley and had a best time of 2:15.8.

The Spartan sophomore was a member of the 200-yard medley relay team which placed th in Class A. She also qualified for the finals in the 100-yard butterfly.

"Jackie is a gifted swimmer who excels in all strokes and distances," McDonald said . "Jackie is a very hard worker."

Julia Westhaus, Livonia Bentley, 100-yard butterfly. One of the most versatile swimmers in the area, Westhaus was ranked in seven events.

She posted a best time in the 100-yard butterfly (1:00.61) for area swimmers and placed 10th in Class A.

She also qualified for the state meet in the backstroke with a clocking of (1:05.6) besides swimming a leg of the 200-yard medley relay for the Bulldogs.

SALLY ROZMAN
Livonia Stevenson

A two-year letter winner, the junior Westhaus was Suburban Eight League champ in the 100-yard backstroke and 100-yard butterfly.

She had the best time in the area in the 50-yard freestyle (:26.1).

Karen Rosinski, Garden City East, 50-yard freestyle. After swimming on the boys' team at East as a 10th grader, Rosinski led the Panther girls for the next two years.

She was top-point getter for East her senior year and was undefeated in dual meets in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events.

The Northwest Suburban League champ posted a best time of :26.5 in the 50-yard freestyle. She set a meet and pool record at the Western Wayne Invitational in the 100-yard freestyle.

Rotarians post swim invitational

A wide open battle for first place looms for Saturday's first annual Plymouth Rotary Swimming Invitational at Salem High School.

Five boys' teams will vie for the crown. The well-balanced field includes Salem, Plymouth Canton, Northville, Livonia Stevenson and Westland John Glenn.

The diving and swimming finals will be held at 1:30 p.m. The diving preliminaries will start at 10 a.m.

Admission for the event is $1 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Plymouth Salem, coached by Chuck Olson, now in his third season, impressed area swim fans two weeks ago by finishing third in the Redford Union Relays behind first place Trenton and runnersup West Bloomfield.

Olson's top returnees include Kirk Albert (100-yard butterfly) and Jeff Stella (100-yard breaststroke). They are co-captains.

The Rocks have solid depth this season with swimmers like Gary Workman, Steve McKenna, Russ Shaffer and Bruce Harwood.

Canton, coached by Bill Hahn, has outstanding individual talent led by state champion Paul Petersen.

The Chiefs placed fifth at RU and have other solid performers in Bob Simrak, a sophomore freestyler, and teammate Ron Hurley, another sophomore who excels in the 200-yard individual medley.

NORTHVILLE aims to seriously contend for the title under first-year coach Pete Talbot, a former standout swimmer there.

Diver Paul Cooper, champion of the Western Six League last year, returns as do senior co-captains Dave McDonald and Tony Nader, a versatile performer who likes to swim the 100-yard breaststroke.

Add a a fine crop of sophomores and Northville may make a serious run for the first-place trophy.

Livonia Stevenson, led by backstroker Larry Hein, will also be a serious threat.

The Inter-Lakes League champs have a good nucleus under veteran coach Lois McDonald.

John Glenn, a member of the Northwest Suburban League, features an outstanding freestyler in Greg Dawkins, a sophomore who has worked his way up from the AAU ranks.

He set a pool record at the RU tilt in the crescendo relays with a time of 1:47.0 in the 200-yard freestyle.

Championship scoring will be used for the event, sponsored by the Plymouth Rotarians. Points will be awarded to the first 12 places. Team trophies will be given for first and second place. Medals will be awarded for individual finishers, one through six.

"WE HOPE TO continue this event," said meet director Bill Faunce. "We couldn't have gotten off the ground without the support of the Rotary Club.

"We hope to expand to a girls' meet next fall."

Tigers take 11 events

Belleville drowns Canton

Belleville, helped by several transfers from Allen Park, swamped Plymouth Canton in a boys' swim meet Tuesday night, 122-50.

The Tigers took first places in all 11 events. The loss dropped Canton to 1-1 overall in dual meets.

Paul Petersen, battling a bout with the flu, had to settle for second place in the 200-yard individual medley. He missed last week's meet against Redford Union and has not fully recovered.

"It had a definite affect on Paul," said Canton first-year coach Bill Hahn, about the defending two-time state champ.

Canton's other individual second place was gained by Ron Hurley in the 100-yard butterfly.

The team of Jeff Siepple, Petersen, Hurley and Mike Sherwood took second place in the 200-yard medley relay.

Sherwood took a third place in the 50-yard freestyle. Bob Simrak also gained third in the 500-yard freestyle.

Freshman Greg Schnurstein continue to impress Hahn as he took third in the 0-yard breaststroke.

Other thirds were garnered by Siepple (100-yard backstroke) and Mark Bennett (diving).

Dave Smith, Simrak, Vince Tobin and Sherwood took second in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

"Almost all our kids hit their best times," said Hahn. "I was pleased with that.

"Petersen's sickness would have not affected the outcome."

Mat event

Plymouth Canton will host its third annual Christmas Wrestling Invitational starting at 11:30 a.m Friday, Dec. 28.

Eight teams will compete in the tournament, including defending champ Plymouth Salem. The finals are slated for 6:30 p.m.

The tournament, sponsored by the Plymouth Civitan Club, will also feature other teams such as Thurston, Dearborn, Bishop Borgess, West Bloomfield, Warren Lincoln and Birmingham Seaholm.

Salem swim team splashes Ypsi, 124-48

Plymouth Salem's boys swim team won its dual-meet opener by drowning Ypsilanti Tuesday night on the road, 124-48.

Russ Shaffer of Salem won two individual events — 200-yard (1:59.6) and 100-yard freestyle (:53.7).

Tim Harwood, Jeff Stella, Kirk Albert and Dave Hopper combined to win the 200-yard medley relay with a time of 1:49.0.

Hopper also added an individual first in the 50-yard freestyle (:24.2) as did teammate Albert in the 10-yard butterfly (:56.0).

Stella matched Shaffer's output by winning the 200-yard individual medley (2:18.0) and 100-yard breaststroke.

Other Salem firsts were posted by Tim Harwood, 500-yard freestyle, 5:32.3; Bruce Harwood, 100-yard backstroke; Joe Rudlic, diving 180.3.

In the 400-yard freestyle relay, the team of Shaffer, Albert, Doug Kleinsmith and Jim Kindree placed first.

"I had a good look at the younger kids," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "I feel pretty good about this meet."

Second place finishers for the Rocks included Tim Harwood, 200-yard freestyle, 2:02.0; Joe Hulack, diving, 158.1; Hopper, 100-yard freestyle, :54.6; Kleinsmith, 500-yard freestyle, 5:37.4; Kleinsmith, 50-yard freestyle; Gary Workman, 200-yard individual medley, 2:28.2; Steve McKenna, 100-yard breaststroke.

IN THE 200-YARD medley relay the team of Paul Neschich, McKenna, Kleinsmith and Tim Jones gained third.

The 400-yard Salem freestyle relay squad of Kleinsmith, Mark Roehrig, John Thompson and Jones took second.

Two Salem swimmers took third place — Workman in the 100-yard breaststroke and Kindree in the 500-yard freestyle (5:39.9)

"I felt the meet was very successful," said the Salem coach. "I felt pretty good."

Take care of Saline, Huron

Rock grapplers rough up foes

By BRAD EMONS

Southern Cal once called its football defense the "Wild Bunch."

And Plymouth Salem has a wrestling team that should be called the "Rough Bunch."

It was certainly no picnic for the Rocks' opponents Tuesday night. Salem took care of Ann Arbor Huron in the opener, 58-6, and then whipped Class B power Saline, 45-18.

"I was worried about the Saline meet going in," said Salem coach Ron Krueger, "But our kids really came through."

Salem took a 6-0 lead over Saline after Jeff Vojcek (98 pounds) and Jim Schultz (105) won easily.

At 112 Jeff Dunson had total command of his match against Jon Voightman, but lost it and seven points when he slammed his opponent to the mat.

Dunson was forced to forfeit the match while Voightman exited for the hospital on a stretcher with an injured shoulder and neck.

"I thought we had lost the meet at that point," said Krueger. "We lost seven points and we were wrestling a good team."

Jeff Brown (119), Mark Ross (126) and Bruce Bachman (132) all eased Krueger by winning impressively.

Brown pinned Bill Weinhardt in 3:45 while Ross defeated Kevin McCollough in a struggle, 6-2.

Bachman was impressive as he pinned Mike Wingate in 3:47.

"Our lower weight classes did the job as usual," said Krueger.

THE ROCKS also coasted in the upper weight divisions.

Jerry Valchine of Salem (138) downed Steve Hatfield, 5-2, and Bob Price (145) decisioned Lynn Kinsey, 16-8.

Scott Piper (155) won by a default after his Saline opponent had to leave with a sore head.

The Rocks lost the next two weight divisions, 167 and 185, on decisions but Jeff Powers came back strong for the Rocks as he pinned Carlos Lauchu in just 43 seconds.

Powers, a senior, also wasted little time against Ann Arbor Huron's Dan Greer. The Salem grappler pinned his foe in 45 seconds.

Schultz, Dunson, Ross and Scott Piper all captured their matches on pins in less than one minute.

Bachman, Brown and Greg Gattoni (heavyweight) all won their matches by void.

Valchine decisioned Alan Visel of Huron, 12-3, while Marty Piper (185) defeated Andy Voucolo, 13-10.

"It was a tough meet," said Krueger about Saline. "A lot of guys got banged around."

Salem will compete in the eight-team Wayne Invitational Saturday.

Salem matmen win John Glenn Invite handily

Plymouth Salem flexed its wrestling muscles by winning the Westland John Glenn Invitational Saturday.

The Rocks totaled 213 points to win the title. John Glenn, the host, placed second with 176 followed by Mt. Clemens, 150.

Plymouth Canton placed 12th with 51.

All 13 Salem wrestlers scored in the meet.

The Rocks had two individual champs — Jim Schultz at 105 pounds and Mark Ross at 126.

Schultz raised his record to 11-1 overall by pinning Phil Kanding of Mt. Clemens. The Rock senior had four pins and was named the outstanding wrestler of the tournament.

Ross also raised his personal mark to 11-1 by beating Kelly Carmichael of New Boston in the final, 15-6.

Scott Piper of Salem (155) took second place. He was defeated by No. 1 seed Kenny Hodges of John Glenn, 8-4, in the final. Piper was the second seed.

Jeff Brown (119) was also second for Salem. He was beaten by Brian Kialinski of Riverview in the final, 5-4.

Other Salem wrestlers who finished high included freshman Jeff Vojcek, 98 pounds, 4th; Jeff Dunson, 112, fifth; Bruce Bachman, 132, fourth; Jerry Valchine, 138, third; Steve Szilagyi, 167, Stan Snider, 198, fourth.

SALEM COACH Ron Krueger said Marty Piper's (185) second place finish "was a pleasant surprise."

"Marty did a nice job," said Krueger. "He was the No. 3 seed and moved up one spot."

The Salem coach said he was pleased with "some of the kids and I was very happy with the outcome."

Canton struggled in the meet. The Chiefs had two fourth place finishers in Tom Harreld (112) and Dave Bennett (138).

In the consolation final, Bennett lost to Valchine of Salem, 21-9. Harreld was pinned in 1:40 by New Boston Huron's Jeff Melton, a two-time state champ in Class B.

"I was disappointed in the finish," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko. "It was a good, tough tourney. I hoped we could have finished higher.

"I wasn't sure, but I thought we could take sixth."

The next best placers for Canton were sixth spots garnered by freshman Todd Bartlett (98), Paul Mooney (185) and Steve Hamblin (145).

The Chiefs are idle until Dec. 28 when they host an eight-team tourney. Salem is the defending champ. Preliminary actionstarts at 11:30 a.m. The finals are scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Other teams competing include Thurston, Dearborn, Bishop Borgess, West Bloomfield, Warren Lincoln and Birmingham Seaholm.

Cage matchups create interest

The Plymouth Salem Holiday Basketball Classic promises to be highly competitive.

All the action begins at 7 p.m. Thursday when Livonia Stevenson (2-1) meets Plymouth Canton (2-0). Salem (3-0), the host, will face Livonia Churchill (1-2) in an 8:30 p.m. showdown

On Friday, Stevenson and Churchill will play at 7 p.m. while Canton and Salem renew their rivalry at 8:30 p.m.

Canton appears to have the biggest task. The Chiefs must stop the versatile 6-5 Dave Hall of Stevenson, who is presently averaging points per game.

"They'll play him (Hall) inside and outside," said Canton coach Craig Bell. "We have a lot of respect for their supporting cast."

Other threats for the Spartans include 6-3 forward Evan Lyle and 6-2 guard Tom Finn.

"I can't say this is the key part of our schedule," said Bell. "It's not going to be an indicator of our season. It's just a privilege to play Salem and Stevenson."

Bell said his team must cut down on turnovers in order to beat the Rocks.

"We're going to have to give it extra effort the second night," Bell said. "The mental attitude has to be there. We've been conditioning hard in practice. I think its good to play games back to back. It's something you might face in the state tourney."

SALEM WILL open up with Churchill, a team he calls "a good defensive team which traditionally shoots well from outside.

"They (Churchill) are competitive. Every game they've played has gone right down to the wire. You can't underestimate a club like that.

"Traditionally they've played hard. I expect them to throw a lot of defenses at us — zones, full-court traps with a lot of switching."

Thomann will probably go with his usual starting lineup against Churchill — Rob Neu and Mike Sharp at the guards, Scott Bublin and Jim Anderson at the forwards and 6-6 Howard Monk at center.

A well-balanced Canton team will most likely have Scott Adler and Dave Malek as starters at the guard spot. Dave Visser and Brad Westin will be at the forwards with Sean Houle at center.

"They (Canton) are a nice team which plays well together," said Thomann. "They have excellent team quickness, size and balance.

"It's going to be a nice challenge to face them on the second night."

Natalie McClumpha, Plymouth Salem, diving. A state qualifier in diving for the last two years, McClumpha had a fine senior season with a top total of 223.8 in a dual meet.

She qualified for the Detroit News Invitational and finished 13th competing against the top divers in the state.

Sharon Forrester, Thurston, diving. One of the top divers in the Northwest Suburban League all season long, Forrester's best total this season was 2.4.

Sally Rozman, Polly Adzema, Jackie Cogo and Stephanie McAree, Livonia Stevenson, 200-yard medley relay. This team was tops all year and posted a best time of 1:56.04, coming in the state meet where Stevenson finished 10th.

Rozman, Adzema and Cogo were all selected to first team berths. McAree was a "much improved swimmer" for the Spartans, according to McDonald, was a "good team member."

Karen Walters, McAree, Rozman and Balnaves, Livonia Stevenson, 400-yard freestyle relay. This team also finished well at the state meet and posted a time of 3:52.95 to lead the area by almost four seconds.

Walters is a th grader who joined the three All-Area individual choices to form a powerful relay.

AT-LARGE PICKS

Janet Borgerding, Westland John Glenn, diving. The Glenn standout was third-ranked in the area with a best total of 203.5 in a dual meet.

She won the Northwest Suburban League meet which impressed rival coaches.

Sharon Ross, Plymouth Salem. A senior co-captain, Ross finished second in the 200-yard individual medley and 500-yard freestyle in the Suburban Eight League meet.

She was Salem's MVP this year and was ranked in two events.

An excellent student (3.8 GPA), Ross qualified for the Detroit News Invitational in the 500-yard freestyle. He best time in that event was 5:36.5.

Kim Massey, Plymouth Canton. Coach Mark Griffith described Massey as a "very versatile swimmer" in her junior season.

Massey was ranked in the 100-yard backstroke (1:09.66) and won that event in the Western Six League meet.

The hardest worker on the team, Massey was also ranked in the 200-yard freestyle and individual medley events.

An honor student (3.5 GPA), Massey "has an excellent attitude and was a team leader," according to Griffith.

Ann McIntyre, Livonia Bentley. Listed in five events, McIntyre was league champ in the Suburban Eight as a sophomore in the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events.

She was a state qualifier in the 200-yard freestyle and swam a leg in the state meet for the Bulldogs in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Her best clocking in the 200-yard freestyle was 2:03.9

Laura Waligora, Redford Union. The Panther sophomore holds school records in the 200-yard individual medley (2:26.7), 100-yard backstroke (1:06.5) and 500-yard freestyle (5:50.9).

She was second in the Northwest Suburban League in the 200-IM and backstroke.

"She's very, very coachable," said RU coach Bob Crosby, "and has an outstanding attitude."

Diane Powell, Livonia Bentley. The Bulldog junior was ranked in the Observer listings in four events: 200-IM, 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and 100-yard breast stroke.

She was a member of the medley relay team which qualified for the Class A state meet.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

by ELLIE GRAHAM

AFTER SPENDING two weeks in your own little world with a flu bug, it takes a while to emerge and realize that you have missed a lot of interesting goings-on in the community.

Sunday's production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" with the Plymouth Symphony was one of the best — so they tell me.

The cast arrived in town Thursday where they had time to relax and do some Christmas shopping. Fran Lang had them all out to her home for dinner on Friday evening.

It was in 1959 that the Menotti opera was first presented by the original NBC cast with the Plymouth Symphony directed by Wayne Duniap. They returned in 1976 with two of the original cast, David Aiken and Rosemary Kuhlmann, who say they love coming to Plymouth and feel at home here. That's why they decided to arrive a couple of days early and spend the time here between performances. Ms. Kuhlmann sang the role of the mother when the opera was performed for the first time on NBC television, Dec. 24, 1951. She has continued in the role and her voice seems to get better and better each year.

She has seen many Amahls outgrow the part over the years. Gian-Carlo Vellutino, this season's Amahl, is a blue-eyed blond. He had his hair dyed black for tour.

THE COMPANY left right after the concert for Cincinnati where they had a 9 a.m. Monday rehearsal. Members of the Symphony League packed up a batch of ham sandwiches and cookies for them to eat along the way.

Although the snowstorm and winds arrived just before concert time Sunday afternoon, there was a good turnout. The Professionals in the cast were sincere in their praise of the chorus directed by Ollie Wagner. The community sponsoring the opera always is responsible for providing the chorus and someone for the role of the page. Kurt Buker, a Schoolcraft College student was the page.

Members of the chorus were: Mary Bozell, Ralph Bozell, Trudy Bradley, Karen Chapin, Larry Holcomb, Cheryl Kaye, Janet McKelvey, Carol Nagy, Ronald Pratt, Kathryn Pratt, Veralou Scott, Bill Somers, Robert Sparling, Gary Temple, Jean Upton, William Upton, William Wagner and Eleanor Warren.

The dancers also were local talent. They were April Lewis and Randy Lamb.

AND THERE'S word from Wayne and Lenora Dunlap who moved to Texas last fall. Wayne was conductor of the Plymouth Symphony for 28 years before his retirement at the end of the 1978-79 season.

They are settling into their new home and would like to hear from their Plymouth friends. Their address is: 205 Montague Street, Nocona, Texas 76255.

VICKI SAND was a solo dancer as a member of Ballet Fantasque of Carmel (California) when the company presented Hans Christian Andersen's "The Snow Queen" Dec. 7 and 8 at the Sunset Theater in Carmel.

Vicki started ballet with Enid Stamnitz when she had her studio under Saxton's on Ann Arbor Trail.

Her mother is Billie Riley, who lives on Ridgewood in Plymouth Township.

BRUCE GERISH, a 1977 graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School and a junior at Alma College, is a disc jockey for Alma's radio station, WABM.

The station is completely student run and is transmitted by carrier current to the dormitories on campus. Bruce's duties include playing music, reading advertising and making sure the news and weather are announced at the beginning of each hour.

During his high school years, he broadcast football games over the PCEP radio station WDSP. He was off the air during the basketball season when he was a member of the Rocks basketball team.

Bruce is the son of Arthur and Jan Gerish of Portsmouth Crossing, Plymouth. He is majoring in English and business administration at Alma.

MARIAN OWENS, secretary at Starkweather Elementary School, has proved that you don't have to hide your houseplants during the Christmas season. In her office, a lush philodenron in a macrame hanger is decorated with red silk Christmas tree balls. Another plant has small red balls hanging from the leaves.

The students at Starkweather are gung-ho on their collection of Campbell soup labels. They need 17,000 for new slide projector for their school. They have passed the 8,000 mark.

THE GLOW of candles in the front windows of every area home on Christmas Eve is being encouraged as a means of building a reputation as a community of lights.

Alice Chrenko is selling beeswax candles through First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. They will burn for 12 hours and are just $2.75 for seven candles. For information, call 453-9196.

They preserve the old traditions of Christmas

By BETTY MASSON

Playing cards. Going to carnivals.

These are some of the ways Plymouth and Canton residents used to celebrate Christmas, when they were young and growing up in other countries. Most of their customs have been left behind as they adopted American ways of celebrating.

Turkey has replaced roast beef, pig or a large hen; Santa Claus leaves the presents instead of St. Basil or the Three Wise Men.

We talked to several residents to find out about Christmases now and then.

In Latin countries, Christmas takes lot of stamina. So report Toni Hansen, who grew up in Puerto Rico, and Julieta and Rudy DeChavez, who came here from the Philippines.

And even though St. Nicholas was Greek, it was St. Basil who brought Greek children presents on New Year's Day, said Antigone and Lakis (Lucky) Pschogios.

Lynn Lyon of Plymouth Township remembers going to the circus or carnival on Christmas days in Scotland.

IN PUERTO RICO, Christmas trees and Santa Claus are fairly recent inventions, much to the delight of Puerto Rican children. Today, some of them have two gift-giving holidays, Dec. 25 and Jan. 6, the day when the Three Wise Men, or three Kings, reportedly gave their gifts to the baby Jesus.

When Mrs. Hansen was young, she used to put a box of grass under her bed for the camels on Jan. 5. In the morning, presents would be there as a reward. And children would say that they heard the ringing of the camels' bells during the night.

Christmas celebrations go on for a month, she said, beginning with a special mass on the morning of Dec. 12. Mrs. Hansen recalls her student days when they went to mass every morning then congregated at someone's house for a big breakfast.

After the Christmas Eve midnight mass, they would have a feast of pastelles (a meat and vegetable pie), pigeon peas, roast pork and rice pudding with almonds and raisins.

During the Christmas season, the Puerto Ricans also like to visit their friends and these visits are often made late at night. Called "asoltos," they are almost literally an assault, with dozens of people showing up unexpectedly, announcing their arrival with music and song. They expect to be fed and entertained. The wise Puerto Rican housewife is prepared with food, rum for rum and Cke, and eggnog made with cocoanut milk.

Children go about the streets and on visits: singing Christmas carols, and playing guitars, maracas and marimbas.

CHRISTAMS DAY is also for the children in the Philippines. One of their Christmas obligations was to visit their godparents for a blesssing. Adults also did this, said Julieta Dechavez.

Mr. and Mrs. Dechavez and their four children still try to carry on some of their old traditions. For instance, they will have roasted pig instead of turkey for Christmas dinner. They will attend midnight mass at St. John Neumann Church, but they won't be entertaining a lot of friends at an all-night "pocho buena dinner" afterwards as they did in their native land.

They were able to do it once in this country, when they lived in Detroit, and a Philippine priest paid a visit to their parish.

"Even the children stayed up all night," recalled Mrs. Dechavez.

In the Philippines, which is largely Catholic, heads of families and older children go to nine masses on nine consectutive days before Christmas. These masses are at midnight or later. The whole family goes on Christmas Eve. Rice cakes often are for sale outside the church after mass.

On Christmas Day, the whole community would often get together for a dance, said Dechavez.

Filipinos celebrate New Year's with lots of noise, as we do here, they said. Firecrackers and bamboo cannons are used to add to the excitement.

Mrs. Dechavez remembers making stars out of cellophane and bamboo sticks for months before Christmas, to be used as decorations. They did have Christams trees, but not of pine, and they created their own snow by boiling soap then whipping the suds to a foam.

IN GREECE, there is a legend that St. Nicholas was a great card player. He always won all the money and gave it to the poor people.

This is why Greeks, men, women and children, play cards a lot during Christmas week, said Antigone Psychogios.

December 25 was chiefly a religious and family holiday with Christmas Eve services. Presents were brought by St. Basil on his name day, Jan. 1.

"People in Greece are pretty practical," said Mrs. Psychogios, " and we would usually get new clothes as presents. But we appreciated them."

Children would go to visit friends and family on New Year's Day and the day before, and usually would receive gifts of money.

The Greeks believe the family's luck for the coming year can be assured if a lucky person is the first to cross the threshold.

Mrs. Psychogios said that she was considered lucky; her sister wasn't. So she made out pretty well on New Year's Day. Neighbors would ask her to visit them early in the morning and give her a reward.

This is one of the traditions that is still carried out by the Psychogios family. Mrs. Psychogios usually makes sure that her "luckiest" child, the youngest of three, is the first to cross their threshold on New Year's Day.

Beef or ham was usually on the Christmas menu in Greece. "This is a symbol of the animals that were near the Baby Jesus in the manger," Mrs. Psychogios explained. Honey cookies were always on the menu and she still serves those.

Another interesting tradition is to try to visit everyone you know named Chris on Christmas Day, she said.

They also serve a special cake with coins in it on New Year's Eve. The one who gets the lucky coin (it used to be gold) is assured of good luck throughout the year. This is another tradition which Mrs. Psychogios maintains. The cake has to be cut in as many equal portions as there are people in the house, plus one for the house.

"THE SCOTTISH are not a very religious people," said Lynn Lyon in recalling her past Christmases. She said her father went to work every Christmas Day until World War II ended.

Usually Christmas was a fairly quiet celebration. Lynn Lyon recalls going to Christmas Eve services in the Scottish Episcopal Church.

"Santa was well able to come down the chimney. Our houses had no central heating," she added. On Christmas Day, they went to the circus in Kelvin Hall near the University of Glasgow and afterwards, they would ride the "tiddlies," carnival rides set up outside. (They are called tiddlies, she explained, because of the "tiddly, tiddley tum" noise they make.)

For Christmas dinner, they had chicken, Brussels sprouts and roasted potatoes. And always trifle and mince pies.

Today, Mrs. Lyon, husband, Kenneth who is an American of Scottish descent and their three children are establishing their own traditions, but she does miss the Christmas crackers those things which you pull apart with a pop to reveal a paper hat, a small toy and a humorous fortune.

In this country, the Lyon Christmas dinner will be a standing rib roast with Yorkshire pudding. And there will be trifle for dessert.

Mrs. Lyon recalls that Christmas trees were not popular in Scotland until after the war, but her mother would go to the greengrocer for holly and mistletoe to decorate the house. Paper decorations, accordion-pleated festoons also were hung throughout the house. Mrs. Lyon said she later learned that they were made of old telephone directories which had been dyed different colors.

New Year's Day was the time for families to celebrate in Scotland. Everyone would clean house and bake up fancy cakes, black buns and shortbread to welcome in the New Year with family and friends.

"I don't think one should live in the past," said Mrs. Lyon, "but it is fun to reminisce."

Ferdinand Dechavey, 11, hangs the Merry Christmas greeting as his sister, Arlene, 9, holds the Happy New Year star.

Club has active role in Canton

Canton Chatter

By SAM NICHOLS 397-0429

The Canton Newcomers Club has been very active during the past month. The annual millionaire party set the festive mood for the holidays for the nearly 180 people who attended.

The Plymouth Cultural Center was the site for the Newcomer's "casino" this year. Winners and losers alike shared in the fantasy world of wagering thousands of dollars on the roll of the dice, or the turn of a card. Lady Luck smiled upon Helen and Mike Wesner, and Kathy and Charlie Freece, who were among the big winners of the night.

Following the gambling, an auction was held so the winners could part with their millions. Jack Lupo, husband of club president Linda, served as head auctioneer for the evening. He was ably assisted by Tom Skorka.

Approximately 45 area merchants donated such items as gift certificates, books, bracelets, Christmas decorations, dinners, and facials. The auction for these items sent winners home happy, and losers wishing they had just one or two million dollars more.

JANET ROSE was the lucky winner of the Ohio Star Quilt at the Newcomer craft auction, which was just a week after the millionaire party.

Clemens Bykowski, father of club member Linda Anderson, donated his time to serve as auctioneer for this event. Bykowski also donated two pictures which were won by Sue McLachlin and Pat Bloch.

The evening was a huge success. Those in attendance went home with lovely handmade items, either for themselves, or as Christams gifts.

The Newcomers Club raised over $700 from the auction, all of which will be used for charitable donations in the area during the year.

WE WOULD all like to be able to make beautiful holiday decorations, gifts and fancy dishes for the holidays. Several talented club members shared their skills by teaching craft classes in November and December.

Jan Montjar gave a demonstration on how to make a gingerbread house. Following construction of the house, class members made miniature houses out of graham crackers to get the feel of working with the special frosting. Marge Mogelnicki has since suggested that making the miniature houses is an excellent project for children.

Pat Doller and Nancy Burns taught many club members how to make ribbon wreaths. These will make lovely decorations for years to come.

Char Towne helped some of the club members with their holiday baking. With Char's assistance, they made baklava, a Greek pastry layered with nuts, honey, and lemon. Ummm . . . throw away the calorie counters!

MOLLY PEMBERTON was hostess for the microwave luncheon group in December. Many delicious holiday recipes were exchanged. To complete interest group activity for the month, Kathy Freece helped interested members make guest soaps.

While the main purpose of the newcomer club is to make new friends and enjoy activities together, the club also believes in helping the community. To help make Thanksgiving a bit happier for five families and three senior citizen couples, the club anonymously donated food, sweaters and mittens.

Women's fashions by Clair Kelley and men's fashions by John Smith of Plymouth provided a delightful evening of entertainment for the Newcomer's Dec. 5 meeting. The fashion show was at the Plymouth Hilton, following a buffet dinner. Shoes from the Shoe Attic gave a complete look to the fashions.

President, Linda Lupo, said that this is the first year men's fashions have been included in the show, and it proved to be extremely popular. As a special treat, Glen Ponte, husband of member Bekki, and Linda's husband, Jack Lupo, modeled for John Smith. It isn't known what manner of bribery Bekki and Linda used, but guys, it was unanimous among the women: You were nothing short of terrific!

If you are new to the area and would like to meet new people and get involved in fun activities, come out to a Canton Newcomer meeting. The January meeting will be Wednesday, Jan. 2 in Pioneer Middle School. Hospitality will begin at 7 p.m. Speakers for the evening will be Marilyn Thams of the Infant Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP), and Rick Olenchak and Marilyn Finch who will speak about the Talented and Gifted Program (AG) in the Plymouth Canton Schools. For more information about the Newcomer Club call president Linda Lupo at 455-6322.

Gingerbread village

Lorraine Gollnick's gingerbread village has become a family and neighborhood tradition. The bakery, sweetshop, church, inn and a house are set up on the dining room table. To add to the action there are 26 gingerbread residents of the village. Some are skating and another group is singing Christmas carols.

Mrs. Gollnick started to work on the village just after Thanksgiving with the help of her husband, Roy, who made all the patterns out of cardboard. The creation consumed hours of work and about 40 pounds of flour, 15 pounds of confectioners sugar, nine cups of brown sugar, nine cups of molasses, nine cups of butter, nine eggs and spices. Her son, Mike, a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School usually consumes the village but this year it will be turned over to neighborhood children. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Residents share their old recipes

Take an extra second for New Year's

Make that New Year's kiss one second longer before heading into 1980.

The "leap second," an extra second of time, will be added to our clocks this year before 1980 begins.

The nation's timekeeper, the National Bureau of Standards in Colorado, maintains atomic clocks that keep track of intervals of time which are predetermined by international agreement, according to Richard G. Teske, University of Michigan astronomy professor.

Atomic clocks, "which 'tick' with almost unbelievable accuracy," ultimately tell us how long a day is, Teske says.

"But the time of day — the actual setting of the hands of the clocks that we look at — depends upon astronomical determination of the earth's rotation.

"Because the earth's rotation speed is slowing down, the two systems of timkeeping — atomic clocks and astronomical observations — get out of step with one another so that the hands of our timepieces must be adjusted by inserting a second once in a while.

"This year the adjustment will be accomplished by making the last minute of 1979 be 61 seconds long."

Line a deep dish with leftover cake — jelly roll slices or pound cake. Coat with leftover jam, jelly, fruit, plus juice or half a jar of strawberry or raspberry jam and/or frozen strawberries.

Sprinkle everything in bowl with sherry. Don't skimp. This is the step that makes the trifle.

Pour a rich custard or instant vanilla pudding over cake and fruit. Cover with whipped cream. Garnish as you wish. Let it sit in the refrigerator for at least eight hours before serving.

Candlelight service dates back to 1747

Residents of the Plymouth-Canton area have been invited to share in the historic Christmas eve candlelight celebration of the Moravian Church. Perhaps the oldest service of its kind in the world, the Moravianas have been observing it since 1747, when the use of candles was introduced as an object lesson for children.

The Rev. Darryl Bell, pastor of Faith Community Church, said the congregation is especially interested in sharing this holiday event with those in the community who may not otherwise have a church. The Christmas Eve service will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 24 in Pioneer Middle School, 46081 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.

At the service, every worshiper receives a lighted beeswax candle while the congregation sings favorite Christmas carols and hears the heartwarming story of the first Christmas.

Pure beeswax candles are used, signifying the purity of Christ. Four young girls sing a raditional hymn, "Morning Star," antiphonally with the congregation as a lighted, 26-point star hangs above them. The ceremony was written up in detail in the National Geographic (December 1970).

The congregation is planning a church building which will be built on Warren Road near Canton Center.

The Christmas Eve service will conclude before 7:30 p.m., early enough for children to participate. Nursery care will be provided for small children.

Seasonal adventure at center

An exciting seasonal adventure awaits the whole family in Detroit's University Cultural Center.

Among the many offerings is the film "Genesis," presented at the Detroit Science Center, 5020 John R at Warren. "Genesis" is projected on a huge domed screen allowing the viewer to experience the creation of oceans and continents surrounded by sight and sound. Showings are on the half-hour.

Before or after the film, visitors are invited to look inside the Apollo Command Space Module, browse through a new seashell exhibit and participate in dozens of hands-on scientific displays.

Admission is $2.50; $1 for children five and under.

The center is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Friday; 10 a.m.to 5 p.m. Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. It is also open from 7-9:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday. For information call 833-1892.

Just a short walk from the Science Center, at Woodward and Kirby, the Detroit Historical Museum presents "Toys of Yesteryear," an exhibit of more than 300 historic toys from the extensive collection of Lawrence Wilkinson.

Dating from the 1870s to the 1940s, the show includes a wide variety of games, music boxes, cars, trucks, trains and mechanical banks.

The musesum is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, and Thursday through Saturday; from 1-9 p.m. Wednesday; and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Another nearby attraction, the Children's Museum, 67 E. Kirby, conducts many special parent/child workshops, planetarium demonstrations of the winter sky and children's vacation "specials."

Exhibit hours are 1-4 p.m. Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Reservations for workshops and planetarium visits may be made by calling 494-1210.

Other nearby attractions include the Detroit Institute of Arts, the International Institute and Your Heritage House. All offer special exhibits.

Most institutions will be closed Dec. 24, 25 and 31 and Jan. 1.

The University Cultural Center is close to exits marked "Cultural Center" on the Lodge, Ford and Chrysler freeways.

Free brochures are available in the information racks in many buildings or by writing to University Cultural Center Association, 245 E. Kirby, Detroit 48202. Enclose a self-addressed envelope.

AAUW chooses spring production cast

Members of the Plymouth Branch of the American Association of University Women may be spending their Christmas holidays learning lines.

The group is busy with plans for its spring production of the children's play, "Jack and the Beanstalk." It will be staged Feb. 22, 23 and 24 in Plymouth Salem High School. There will be a benefit performance on Feb. 21.

Donna Rennolds and Sharon Flower are in charge of the production. Right now they need a place to store costumes. They also need someone to play the back half of a cow. There are no lines to learn, and this actor will not have to attend rehearsals until the last two weeks.

Jan McClure has been chosen to play the role of Jack, and Elizabeth O'Mara will play Jack's mother.

The giant will be portrayed by Sharon Belobraidich.

Other cast members are Esther Nelson, as Milky White; Cathy Fife, as the old man and the father; Amy Raffle, as a fairy; Sheridan Brown, as the giant's wife; Bev Brooks, as Henrietta Hen; Linda Anderson, as Elsanora Harp; Edna Fleming, as Thomas; Holly Hanert, as the fruit vendor and market lady; Sylvia Rosian, as the wood seller and the butcher; Jan Carson, as the flower girl and constable; and Judy Smith, as the baker.

Christmas magic

The youngsters who attend the Montessori Center of Our Lady, at Schoolcraft near Madonna College in Livonia, were given a holiday taste of computer technology when Sr. Marilyn Therese, head of Madonna's mathematics department, brought a computer terminal for a life demonstration. It was magic, Christmas greetings showing up on the screen in the shape of a Christmas tree. The children also took turns typing their names on the screen and received personalized greetings.

Area churches preparing for Christmas Eve worship

Music, candlelight communion, readings and sermons with a Christmas theme will be featured in area churches the night before Christmas.

Participants at services at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 26212 Six Mile, Redford Township, will be reminded of the first Christmas in a service of Bible readings and carols. Special music by the choir will include a duet, "Sleep, Holy Jesus," by Rick Aardal and Susan Tossava.

Indentical services will be held at 7 and 11 p.m. Monday, Dec. 24.

Christmas Eve at First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth will begin with a 5 p.m. family service at which the Cherub, Carollers and Shalom choirs will sing. Children will present their gifts at a creche.

William Stortors will give the offertory prayer, and the Rev. Phillip Magee will conduct a brief service.

Candlelight communion with a meditation will take place at 8 p.m.

Rev. Magee will speak on "What are you giving God for Christmas?" Jay Cunningham will offer the offertory prayer and the Agape Singers will perform "Gentle Mary Laid Her Child." Janet Holt, cellist, will play a selection.

At the 11 p.m. festival communion service, preludes will be presented by a brass quartet and organ. At offertory time, Eleanor Burton will sing "Virgin's Cradle Song" with Janet Holt on the cello. Music by the Chancel Choir will include "Fanfare for Christmas Day" and "O Holy Night."

Sandra Lankenau will give the offertory prayer.

AN EARLY American Christmas Eve candlelight worship service will be celebrated at 7 p.m. Dec. 24 in Grace Moravian Church, 31133 Hiveley, Westland.

The candlelight service was brought to America by early members of the Moravian sect, who held their first such worship in this country Dec. 24, 1747, at Bethlehem, Pa.

In the worship at Grace church, dieners (church leaders) in early American costumes will serve each congregational member with a red crepe-trimmed beeswax candle.

Guest soloist Dawn Bergmann will sing the traditional hymn "Morning Star," which has become part of the Moravian candlelight service. The public is invited.

Two masses on Christmas Eve will be held in St. Michael Catholic Church on Hubbard and Plymouth in Livonia. The 45-member children's choir will sing carols appealing to young people at 4:45 p.m. The Mass will follow at 5 p.m.

"O Bambino" and "Do you hear what I hear?" will be among the carols sung by the 42-member adult choir at 11:30 p.m. It will be followed by the traditional midnight service.

Masses on Christmas day will be at 7:30, 9, and 10:30 a.m. and at noon.

THE "HALLELUJAH Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah" will be performed by the Chancel Choir directed by Jerry Smith, at all three Christmas Eve services of Ward United Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

Singing by the congregation of traditional carols will be part of the services.

Onita Sanders, harpist and vocalist, will give a pre-service concert at 4:30, 6:30 and 10:30 p.m. She has sung with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and performs as a harpist throughout the Detroit area.

Her selections will include "Behold that star," "Drummer boy" and "Ave Maria."

Dr. Bartlett Hess will deliver a sermon titled "Hallelujah!" at the 5 and 7 p.m. services. The Rev. L. Edward Davis will speak at the 11 p.m. service.

Nursery care will be provided at the 5 and 7 p.m. services.

"THE PERFECT Carol," a Christmas play, will be presented at 7 p.m. Dec. 24 in Alpha Baptist Church, 28051 W. Chicago, Livonia. It is a dramatized story done in tableaux of "Silent Night."

The cast includes Josef Mohr, Wes Duncan, Elsa Mohr, Pam Sheppard, Franz Gruber, Tim Hiem, Marta Weimar and Nancy Agar. Joseph is played by Harmon Agar, Mary by Lynn Duncan and the angel by Brad Sheppard.

The shepherds are Bill Winn and Glen Berry. Wisemen are David Birchfield, Charles Ferrell and Dean Langley. The Village Choir members are Lora Younge, Alice Taylor, Vi Sloan, Jean Langley, Joan Russell, Marty Radionoff, John Ashford, Richard Nicholas and Jack Gibbs.

Nursery care will be provided.

A Christmas Eve family service at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 39020 Five Mile, Livonia, will feature dramatic readings, hymns and choir anthems. It will begin at 7 p.m. and be followed at 11 p.m. by a candlelight communion service.

The worship will include instrumental and choral music, the speaking and chanting of the communion liturgy and a special "Silent Night" candlelighting ceremony.

Robert Seltz, pastor, will preach.

John Mohnkern will be guest violinist for the Christmas Eve service of candlelight and carols planned at 7:30 p.m. by Grand River Baptist Cburch, 34500 W. Six Mile, Livonia.

Nursery care will be provided.

More information on Christmas Eve events in area churches can be found in the special Christmas directory published on pages 8 and 9.

Taking life one moment at a time

As I walked outside, the early winter snow fell lightly on my face. Though large in size, the snowflakes appeared to be weightless until one alighted on my eyelashes. But "in a wink of an eye" it disappeared leaving barely a trace of moisture.

I stuck out my tongue with an inner glee to catch some of the pure snow, remembering those childhood admonitions of "Don't eat yellow snow!"

Then I realized it was not the snow, but the moment that I wanted to savor.

THERE HAVE BEEN a few moments in my life when I wished that time would stop and I could find a way to "bottle" an awareness in order to recapture it later on. These instances are usually simple flashes rather than momentous occasions.

My earliest memory of this happening was when I was a young girl lying on the lawn outside the house where I grew up. I recall fluffy clouds ever so slightly waltzing across a bright blue sky. I closed my eyes and could feel the grass tickling my arms and legs.

I don't know what made me feel so content or susceptible to the beauty of that particular day, but I vividly recollect promising myself I would remember that moment forever.

The premier of winter's snow offers a fantasy that many people are able to share. It occurs before this white precipitation is associated with harsh cold air or hazardous, slippery road conditions.

This is a magical time when every one of us can be in awe that each snowflake has a unique design. We try to grasp the significance of such short-lived beauty and then begin to ponder about our own place in life.

I DROVE OFF into the floating snow knowing that I could hold on to the sensations of the day because, through writing, I had found a way to "bottle" memories. Due to the weather, the cars in front of me were travelling slowly.

Ahead there was an old woman, hunched over her cane, tediously walking the last few steps to her mailbox. She was wearing that familiar, nondescript grayish-brown coat that ended a few inches above her ankle high boots. Her face,almost hidden by the scarf on her head, was parallel to the ground. The arch of her body resembled a fetal poistion.

As I passed by, I saw this old woman stand up as straight as she could and lifting up her face in an ageless gesture, she stuck out her tongue to taste the snow.

The writer, a resident of Orchard Lake, was born and raised in New York City. She is a speech pathologist and had a private practice. She is the mother of three daughters and is married to a patent attorney.

Every time there is a wave of high scoring, such as the numerous 700 series that have been bowled in recent weeks, a howl goes up that the lanes must be 'fixed." There are all sorts of protests that proprietors favor special leagues and that the lanes are treated differently from time to time.

But one important fact is overlooked. There are many more better bowlers now than the area ever had. Even the juniors are showing signs of stardom.

"And don't forget," Fred Hamlin, owner of Farmington Lanes, said, "the proprietors have learned to use more skill and with better products than ever before. So, if you consider the numerical growth of good bowlers and the modern methods of lane maintanance, it is easy to see that there would be higher scores."

THE SHARPSHOOTERS at Westland Bowl had another great week and when the final pin fell, six of them had shattered the 700 barrier. It was the highest scoring week of the season in the house.

The action started last Friday night in the Little Caesar Classic, when Bob Jawor put together games of 232, 246 and 268 for a 746. That was just a start. With the pins flying all over the place, Bob Goike followed with a 739 that included a closing 279. Behind him came Dick Beattie with a middle game of 268 to post a 728.

Then in line came Dave Pickett with a middle 274 for 724, Al Rizzo with a 265 in 713.

To continue the high scoring, John Hurley posted a 715 in the Monday morning league. This brought to 50 the number of 700 series bowled in the house this season.

Even the ladies went on a scoring spree and Julie Zimmerman fashioned a 640 with a 232 finisher in the classic.

WHILE THE CLASSIC BOWLERS were doing their thing, Dave Hamilton, the youthful star, continued his high scoring at Farmington Lanes. Bowling in the high school league, he linked counts of 244, 175 and 248 for 667. And in the mixed classic, Rudy Pearson ended the women's streak of winning high game honors when he paced the field with a 245 in 684.

UNUSUAL PERFORMANCES were the order of the day at Woodland Lanes. In the Tuesday Flyers league, Mary Borodny converted the "impossible" 4-6-7-10 split. In the Night Out loop, Joyce Jensan went 99 pins over her average with a 232 game and Karyn Brothers had a 217 in 635. And the closest finish of the year came in the Kings and Queens, when Chaz Dazerick posted a 235 to beat John Bommarito by a single pin. To top things off, Ray Chamberlain rolled consecutive games of 190 and finished with a 222 for 602 in the senior citizens league.

THE FEATURE of the week at Merri-Bowl was provided by an 11-year boy. Bowling in the Father and Son league, Fred Young rolled games 222, 158 and 218 for 598.

In the invitational doubles, Kay Buchanan showed the way with a 630. Linda Kendall was next with 555, one more pin than Dody Coiner. In the Golden Eagles loop, John Biegelson had 267 in 643 and Jim Bono had high game of 264 in the mixers loop.

THE HIGH SCORING found its way to Plaza Bowl during the week and two of the bowlers in the Hits and Misses league broke the 700 barrier. William Ray put together games of 288, 248 and 226 for 762, and Dennis Seeman had 277, 235 and 196 for 708. Behind them came Tony Collins with a 247 in 671.

Joining in the high scoring Jane Martin, who carries a 140 average, had a 247 in 514.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Marv Fox paced the Canton Classic at Super Bowl with 643, Bob Lamont was high in the senior house league at Garden Lanes with 664. Doug Zybinds was tops in the Vinco loop and Frank Pniewski showed the way in the TGIF loop, while Carrie Van Osdol had a 585 in the house league.

Keglers of the world, unite! Bowling is for everyone

Skittles. Bocci. Duckpins. Tenpins. Bowling. Whatever it's called, it's fun!

More than 7.7 million men and women belong to bowling organizations in the United States. There is one bowling center in Japan with 252 lanes!

Why is it so popular?

It is a game of great individuality that can be played by different sexes, different ages, and different levels of ability and still be exciting and challenging.

Because of its wide appeal, it is an especially good game to involve children in so that the whole family can participate together.

IF IT IS NOT possible to go out bowling, there is no reason that your child cannot still play at home and practice a bit of eye-hand coordination at the same time.

Just acquire a marble and six clothespins.

Some have flatter ends than others. There are special craft clothespins, especially designed for standing up, which work very well. Otherwise, test your clothespins for stability. Nothing is more frustrating to a bowler than watching his pins fall down before the ball even gets there!

SET UP THE pins in a triangle — three in the back row, two in front of these, and one at the head.

Take aim with the marble, and roll! Hopefully some pins will be felled. If not, try again.

There are no set rules to this keggling game. If your young bowler wisher to take many turns to knock down his pins, that's OK.

Score needn't be kept either. This game is for fun.

Patricia Bordman has taught elementary school and conducted workshops and lectures on education. While attending Oakland University graduate school, she became interested in photography. She and her husband have two daughters and live in Farmington Hills.

County seeks foster parents

An appeal for children's foster homes was issued by the Oakland County branch of the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"We urgently need foster parents who are willing to provide a loving family atmosphere and environment for children of all ages ranging from tots through teens.

"A critical shortage exists in Oakland county right now for foster homes for black children and for teenagers of all races," said Loretta Bruton, Supervisor Foster Home Licensing.

Foster parents provide care for youngsters for periods ranging from a few days to several months. The majority of the children are returned to their natural parents. Others await adoption or placement into a permanent home.

Prospective foster parents, she said, are no longer limited to couples.

"A single person can qualify too. We require that the person be of good reputation and financially secure with a stable income source of their own."

Mrs. Bruton said the State provides an allowance for the care and living expenses for each child, but the actual amounts do not leave room for profits. Medical and dental expenses are covered by the State's Medicaid program or other resources.

Contact Mrs. Bruton at her Pontiac office by telephone at 858-1619 to arrange for additional information regarding foster home programs and family home licensing.

Cameras roll...and a kid becomes a star

Detroit Country Day School student Curtis Yates plays 10-year-old Andre in the upcoming TV movie "Jimmy B. and Andre." (Staff photo by Stephen Cantrell)

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Thirteen-year-old Curtis Yates says he's "lucky I'm small for my age."

The slim, bright, poised youngster was cast as Andre in the movie for television, "Jimmy B. and Andre," starring Alex Karras as Jimmy B.

Curtis explained that movie-makers "like to pick people who are older. I play a 10-year-old in the movie."

The movie premiered in November at Renaissance Center as a benefit for the American Lung Association. It's scheduled to be seen on WJBK-TV (Channel 2) sometime next year. (The air date was postponed from mid-December.)

A student at Detroit Country Day School (DCDS) in Beverly Hills, Curtis has studied there from kindergarten through eighth grade. He lives in Palmer Woods in Detroit and has an 8-year-old sister, who is in fourth grade at DCDS.

"IT'S REALLY a lot of hard work," he said about his first movie experience. Curtis did get to "play around between scenes," however.

In a recent interview, George Prosperi, director of the Middle School, said Channel 2 contacted DCDS looking for a boy to play the role of Andre Reynolds.

Channel 2 wanted someone who was vivacious, creative and other superlatives. "His (Curtis') name popped into my mind right away," Prosperi said. "It seemed destiny was calling him. He was in a skit at the pep assembly that day. I played an ogre, and he played a DCDS wrestler."

Prosperi described Curtis as "very clever and bright, yet takes it all in stride."

Curtis claims he wasn't nervous during the movie-making. "I didn't have any reason to be nervous. Everybody around there I knew," he said.

Curtis said his classmates are behind him 100 percent. They pass along articles about him, such as a recent one in Monthly Detroit.

"It was the week of my final exams and two weeks thereafter," he recalled, about the shooting schedule. He had a tutor and three exams after.

ASKED ABOUT how he does scholastically, Curtis pointed to the gold key on his blue school blazer. "I'm summa cum laude," he said. His grades average 93 or above.

Curtis claims he was not nervous during the movie-making "I didn't have any reason to be nervous. Everybody around there I knew," he said.

Curtis outlined the movie's plot: It's the story of Andre, a courageous black boy, who comes from a bad family. He shines shoes around the bar, the Lindell AC, and is adopted by Jimmy B., the owner.

Based on a true-life story, "Jimmy B. and Andre" was filmed in Detroit where the action happened. The real Andre has a part in the movie as Bubba Smith.

Locales were used in Detroit — Belle Isle, Indian Village, the Lindell AC, Renaissance Center, and a house on Commonwealth in the inner city.

"I LOVED IT," Curtis summed up the days on the set.

He'd heard of football player Alex Karras. "I knew he played with the Lions." Curtis thinks of Karras as "a real nice guy and a funny guy."

He enjoyed working with Karras' girlfriend, Susan Clar, who played Stevie, Jimmy B.'s girlfriend.

The movie ranged "from happy scenes to sad scenes." A happy one was when Jimmy B. took Andre to Belle Isle. "In one of the sad scenes, I found out my mother was dead."

Ms. Clark helped Curtis with acting tips. "She taught me how to cry," he said. She told him to think about something that had made him cry in the past.

Of the real Jimmy B., Curtis said, "He's a great guy. He loves to kid around. I'm glad he's the owner of the Lindell."

OF THE REAL Andre, he said, "He's 19 years old now. In the movie, I get kicked out of school. He (the real Andre) missed a good deal. Now he's in high school, and he's moving into an apartment.

"He's really funny. He's a great guy."

Andre also worked as an advisor on the film

Before starring in "Jimmy B. and Andre," Curtis Yates had appeared in "nothing professional, just school plays," he said nonchalantly. He's since performed in television commercials, has an agent and is under MGM contract.

Mastering the art of the organ is no small task

By MARY DOERR

Two years ago, Kirk in the Hills choir and an ensemble from the Detroit Symphony presented an unpublished oratorio, Psalm 103, written by the Kirk's organist, Dr. Frederick L. Marriott.

Marriott, internationally known composer, organist and carillonneur, has written a great deal of music which has not been published. Now a group known as the "Friends of Frederick L. Marriott" recently published his Service Music.

Last week, the group joined with Kirk in the Hills in releasing a record album titled "Frederick L. Marriott at the Kirk."

The recording includes Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, Widor's Toccata in F Major, as well as Marriott's own compositions on the organ, carillon and harpsichord.

MARRIOTT IS well known in the United States and Europe as the authority on improvisation, an art of composition so complicated that few have been able to master it.

"I try to teach it to my students but it is so difficult, they usually get to a certain point and become discouraged and give up," he said.

Improvisation, the art of composing at the organ, is associated with Johann Sebastian Bach.

For instance, jazz artists improvise but usually several people are involved. An organist has to play both the melody and chord components, requiring a complete knowledge of all keys as well as music composition.

At his concerts, Marriott always concludes with an improvisation on a theme submitted by his audiences, sometimes in a given style.

"In order to be an organist of the first degree, one would have to master the art," Mrs. Marriott said.

MARRIOTT LEARNED to improvise from Marcel Dupre, the French organist recognized as the greatest improvisationalist since Bach.

"Dupre was by far the greatest influence on my life," said Marriott about his longtime friend and associate. "Before he died his wife sent me the cuff links that he always wore when he performed."

The two men met in 1935, when the University of Chicago, at the request of John D. Rockefeller Jr., had sent Marriott to the world-renowned carillon school in Mechelen, Belgium.

Marriott completed the two-year course in three months and eight days to receive the school's highest degree, an event covered by the New York Times.

His teacher, Jef Denyn, insisted that he go to Paris to take a lesson with Dupre.

At their first meeting, a friendship quickly developed between the two musicians. Over the next 35 years, Marriott learned to improvise and Dupre performed Marriott's composition on his concert tours.

In 1967, it was Marriott who arranged for his personal friend to come to Detroit to dedicate the organ at Henry Ford Auditorium.

ALTHOUGH MANY of his associations have been with the French, Marriott refuses to be termed a representative of the French school of organ music.

He does recognize the French performers and quipped, "As it is so often said, it takes the Germans to write it, but the French to play it."

Marriott is a past president of the American Guild of Carillonneurs.

In 1960, he was the first American invited to participate in the International Carillonneurs' Festival in Hilversum, The Netherlands. At that time the city of Mechelen and the carillon school awarded him the degree Meritorius Laureate as one of Americas finest carillonneurs.

As an organist, Marriott was at the University of Chicago Rockefeller Chapel from 1928 to 1952. It was there that he met and played for many dignitaries of the world including the nationally broacasted convocation for Albert Schweitzer.

He has performed solos with the Chicago Symphony and was with the Detroit Symphony 12 years under Paul Paray and Sixton Erhling.

Marriott has composed for the organ, carillon, harpsichord, choir and orchestra. In 1951 and 1955, two of his carillon compositions won first and third prizes in Mechelen.

His "Moonlight on the Lake" won national acclaim when Marcel Dupre used it on a national tour.

MARRIOTT FIRST came to Detroit in 1952 to write to the specifications for the carillon and organ at the Kirk in the Hills. Drawing on his vast knowledge of construction of carillons and organs he oversaw the installation of both instruments.

The 77-bell carillon is the world's largest. The organ is a four-manual Moller.

Marriott has played over 4,000 concerts in his career. Each summer he returns to Europe for concert tours. In 1974, Pierre Cochereau invited him to play at Notre-Dame de Paris, a concert which was attended by over 10,000.

When asked about his most unusual concert, Marriott's sense of humor was evident.

"While I was dedicating the carillon at the Washington Zoo in Washington D.C., a giraffe was born," said Marriott. "He was a cute little thing."

Frederick Marriott on improvisational organ: "I try to teach it to my students but it is so difficult, they usually get to a certain point and become discouraged and give up."

The ice fishing season is starting. Bluegill is just one of the fish to catch for those who can brave the cold.

Through the ice

Die-hard fishing fans are bundling up in glee

Outdoors

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

"First ice. That's the time to catch 'em."

While tamer souls are still shopping or putting on their snow tires, my ice fishing buddy C.O. Jones is exploring the edges of ponds and lakes to see if the ice is thick enough.

His rule of thumb comes from childhood: "One inch — stay off. Two inches — one may. Three inches — small groups. Four inches — OK."

Ice forms first on smaller ponds and the backwaters of larger lakes. That's when C.O. is out there, hauling in the bluegills, crappies and perch.

Later on, when ice is thick, when the water is cold and the fish sluggish, angling won't be so good.

"Besides," he added ruefully, "those snowmobilers will be out when the ice is thick. Can't catch nothin' with those rackety tanks around."

JONES DRESSES for the weather, but he has the definitive answer to the question of how cold it gets.

"If you're catching 'em, you're never cold. If you're not, you're shivering even if it gets all the way up to 40 degrees."

Your feet and hands, the parts of the body furthest away from the heart, get coldest.

Insulated, waterproof boots are essential. Jones uses the Army kind called "Korean boots." Wool socks are underneath.

For the hands, he has an outside source of warmth — the old gasoline lantern. It throws an immense amount of heat, and he warms his hands frequently after baiting up, unhooking his catch or pouring a cup of java.

The real old-timers bring a heavy can with charcoal in the bottom and start a glowing fire. The young bucks have pocket hand warmers.

Otherwise, you can pretty much go by the old Scout Handbook in figuring out what to wear: Several thin layers of loose clothing, which trap the air, rather than a single, bulky garment; a hood or parka; thermal underwear.

THERE ARE THREE kinds of gear for fishing through the ice.

C.O. Jones is a hook and line man. He has a three-foot rod with four-pound test line and the smallest hooks (No. 12) and jigs he can find.

"Don't need heavy line in winter. You're not going to catch a sturgeon.

"You're fishing still, so you don't have to worry about snags. Besides, you can handle a fish much heavier than the strength of your line if you play him right," he said.

He sticks to the hand-held rod and jiggles it himself every minute or so. Some rods on the market, however, have a button to press which "thums" the line for you.

The principle is that your bait needs to flutter like a live organism in order to attract the fish. Corn borers, mousies and wax worms — all white grub-like critters — are the panfisherman's best bets.

THE FELLOWS after northern pike are into tip-ups. That's a rig that stretches across your hole in the ice.

It has a reel and a flag. When the lunker hits your minnow, the flag pops up and the fun begins.

Pike fishermen usually have long waits between bites. Customarily, they walk around or take shelter in a shanty.

When the red flag pops into the air, you'll hear the shout, "Tip-up!"

Then everyone gathers around to watch the angler give the line a hard jerk, set the hook and haul it in.

The critical stage comes when you get the lunker near the surface. That's when most of them are lost. You have to be patient and play the fish in.

SPEARING IS the most rarely used ice fishing method.

You need a shanty. And since it's bothersome to take it on and off the ice, you need to put it on a lake where you can leave it.

Shanty fishermen get their heaters going and have so much heat built up that they sometimes sit in shirtsleeves and drink beer. Alcohol is out for other ice fishermen, though, as it gives only a temporary glow.

Artist family back in town with colorful, varied work

Story: CORINNE ABATT

In the three years since Russell and Susan Bolt had an exhibit of their work at Rubiner Gallery, things have changed — colors, especially. Instead of the blue and white porcelains which were almost a trademark with the Bolts, there's color flying in all directions.

The Bolts work separately and together for a major exhibition like the current one. Their colorful ceramics, all porcelain, are usually a combination effort. He builds the pieces and she does the designs — usually, but not always.

When two people, happily married and used to being around each other a lot, share studios and kiln, it's sometimes hard to separate who did what — the firing, glazing and watching the oven.

The Bolts, former Detroiters who still show frequently in this area, now live in a renovated grange hall near Charlevoix. The move to the less-hurried life of northern Michigan is evident in their work, particularly his. In his watercolors, Bolt takes his subjects from many of the things he sees as he travels his new home area — the old Charlevoix depot, the "really beautiful" old stove in the grange hall, a scene on the road to Ellsworth, a Bardrock rooster and the Jordan Inn in East Jordan.

Together the Bolts have managed to fill the walls and shelves of the gallery with an appealing array of porcelains, watercolors, collegraphs, etchings and mixed media.

Describing the collograph technique, Mrs. Bolt said, "It's a way of printing, but instead of a metal plate, take any kind of a surface that's soft (she frequently uses cardboard) and built it up."

For her build-up, she works with a substance similar to spakling compound. She cuts into her soft plate, grinds her own inks and when the plate is ready, puts it on the printing press.

While only about a dozen prints can be successfully pulled, Mrs. Bolt likes the process because "it's fast and immediate."

By immediate she's referring to the lack of mental distance between the artist and the work.

But, in addition to more color in the always attractive porcelain pieces with the naive charm, Mrs. Bolt has added texture and some unusual qualities to her paintings.

LORIE BOLT, now completing her bachelors in fine arts at the Cleveland Institute of Art, gets the credit for introducing her mother to a freer approach.

"She really loosened me up," said Mrs. Bolt. "She uses everything she can find and she started me painting like that and now I love to do it."

Everything refers to spray paint, crayon, charcoal, acrylics, watercolor — sometimes almost all in the same piece. Some of Mrs. Bolt's mixed-media pieces begin with silver spray paint with acrylic, chalk, crayon and pencil, possibly some other media added. Often with the spray as a base or partial base, she manages to achieve a lovely, luminiscent quality. Because of the directness of the collograph process and Mrs. Bolt's handling of it, the same exciting, intimate quality is present in them.

The gallery, 621 S. Washington, Royal Oak, hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday; and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Do your homework to master wine list

wine

Richard Watson

It is written that one of man's greatest inhumanities to man occurs in that moment when he is confronted with the restaurant wine list.

It need not be so. By doing a bit of homework, remembering a few rules and then applying them in a dispassionate manner, you can amaze your friends and hold your head up to even the haughtiest sommelier.

First the homework. Learn the usual attributes of the wine varieties so that you can order one that will complement the entree. Even better, select the kind of wine you want to drink and then select a food to go with it.

Also learn the shelf prices of the wines you are apt to order. Restaurant prices shouldn't be more than double the shelf prices. And that ratio produces a profit of around 125 percent to the restaurant. Certainly generous enough.

Now a few rules, and these pertain to the service of the wine. Brought to the table, it must be the appropriate temperature — cool room temperature for red; white and roses well chilled. Icing at the table tends to keep wines too cool for optimum flavor development.

BE SURE to check the label to be certain the wine is what you ordered. Many a slip occurs at this point.

Now the bottle may be opened — never accept an opened bottle. The reasons for this should be obvious. Check for a moist, springy cork. Dried out, the wine may be spoiled because air has leaked in.

The pouring — no one likes the thought of rejecting a wine at this point. And you rarely will need to. And it is an experience when you do. We all have tales to tell about this.

Much of this necessary ceremony can be avoided, of course, by ordering the house wine. Beware. The prices charged for this often indifferent, open-for-who-knows-how-long brand of usually dull stuff can be deplorable. Many a restaurant charges $4-5 for a liter and $1.50 the small glass for wine that is purchased for $3-3.50 a gallon.

On many wine lists there are cork-finished wines for $6 a fifth that represent far greater value. Don't presume house wines are always a safe, easy and inexpensive way out.

A FURTHER observation — I have long been impressed by the parallel between the quality of the stemware a restaurant uses and the quality of wine service and selection.

It makes sense that a place that uses reasonably thin and large glasses for its wine is making the extra effort, one that isn't seen in the too many places that use those thick, dishwasher safe 6-ounce beasts.

Personnel hint — when the server's answer to your guestion, "What are the house wines?" is "burgundy, chablis and rose" and he/she doesn't know the vineyard of origin, don't ask for a recommendation.

tips from the Air Force Survival School

It is 0 degrees Fahrenheit with an accompanying 15 mph wind. This results in a wind chill factor of -30 degrees F.

You are some 45 minutes from the warmth of your camper and have been hiking in these elements for over two hours. You have experienced numbness on the exposed parts of your hands and face.

WOULD YOU . . .

A. Stop and build a temporary shelter.

B. Do nothing except continue on to the camper.

C. Pick up the pace and reach the camper as soon as possible.

D. Protect the exposed skin areas and rewarm as needed. Continue on to the camper.

TO SURVIVE . . .

D would be the most appropriate. Provided you are adequately clothed at the beginning of your hike, simple application of a warmed hand to cold ears or cheeks, and/or placement of cold hands in the armpit or groin areas should preclude any severe frostbite from occurring. The conditions described may cause exposed flesh to freeze within one minute.

A would be a suitable alternative if conditions worsened. The additional factor of snow or rain would almost necessitate stopping, but not under the current conditions described.

C would be acceptable if D were incorporated, and the increased pace did not result in perspiration that could reduce the insulative qualities of your clothing.

B is the least acceptable alternative. To do nothing could result in severe frostbite.

Music and stage series announced by marquis

Woody Herman, "Fiddler on the Roof," and "An Evening with Cole Porter" are offered on a new subscription series at the restored Marquis Theatre in Northville.

The series will open at 8 p.m. March 16 with "Fiddler on the Roof," produced by the Performing Artists Unlimited. Bill Premin of Performing Artists says,"We are bringing this show back to the Detroit area due to popular demand."

On Friday, April 18, the world-renowned Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd will perform at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

To wrap up the series, "An Evening with Cole Porter" will be presented on Saturday, May 16, at 8 p.m.
