Canton approves funds for Super Sewer

Canton board members weren't happy about it, but at midnight Tuesday, they took a deep gulp and committed $307,000 of township funds for the design of the project known as Super Sewer.

Trustees Robert Greenstein and Stephen Larson were the dissenters in the 5-2 vote that authorized the administration to sign an interim finance agreement with the Wayne County Board of Public Works.

Other board members said they were forced into the decision.

"I don't like it — it's like castor oil," said Treasurer Jim Donahue. "But we're over a barrel. We can't grow industrially or any other way without signing this agreement."

THE PROPOSED Huron Valley System — otherwise known as Super Sewer — promises to increase sewer capacity for Canton and 17 other communities in the far-western and downriver regions of the metropolitan area.

But the system, which will cost Canton Township at least $3.3 million to construct, will be owned and operated by the Wayne County Board of Public Works instead of the communities it will serve.

The lack of local control over rates and operation was one reason why board members delayed signing the agreement until the last possible minute Tuesday night.

Duane Egeland, an engineer with the public works board, said the system would not include any communities which did not sign the agreement by Tuesday. According to Egeland, the county must award the contract for the design of Super Sewer by Feb. 1.

As of Tuesday five communities, Canton, Van Buren, Trenton, Walled Lake and Commerce Township, had not signed the agreement.

Egeland assured board members that a commitment for $307,000, Canton's share of the design costs, would not bind the township to participation in the system. He added, however, that the money will not be refunded if Canton makes a final decision to withdraw.

Egeland also said that Canton's share of the total construction costs could rise well above the current estimate of $3.3 million if inflation continues at its present double-digit rate and communities north of Canton are not included in Super Sewer plans.

Two alternatives for Super Sewer are currently being considered. Under the interim finance agreement, community funds will pay for a study of the two alternatives as well as design costs.

Under one alternative, proposed by the county board and approved by the majority of communities involved, the system would stretch south from Oakland County's White Lake Township to Sumpter Township, where it would turn east to Brownstown Township, Gibraltar and Trenton.

Under the other alternative, approved by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the system would end at Joy Road at its most northern point. Plymouth, Plymouth Township and other communities north of Canton, eliminated from the EPA alternative, would be served by existing sewer systems.

Egeland said Canton's financial share of the project would increase if the smaller system is built because of economy of scale factors.

THE BOARD'S authorization to sign the interim finance agreement stipulates that two memorandums of understanding will be attached to the document.

One commits a sewer capacity for 60,000 users to Canton and outlines an option to purchase more capacity in the future.

Planning board members named

The complexion of Canton's Planning Commission was altered Tuesday, as one township planner was reappointed, while another lost the seat he had held since 1952.

Reappointed to a three-year term on the board was Robert Padget, chairman of the commission. Long-time commissioner Bart Berg lost his seat to John Burdziak, a former member of the township's Zoning Board of Appeals.

Burdziak's appointment was approved by a 5-2 vote of the township board. Trustee Eugene Daley and Clerk John Flodin dissented. The vote to ratify Padget's appointment was unanimous.

Township Supervisor Noel Culbert nominated both men to the planning board, which makes recommendations to elected officials on site plans, rezonings and other land-use matters.

The planning commission currently is working on a proposed zoning ordinance, which designates thousands of acres west of Canton Center for agricultural use. Flodin pushed for farming community representation on the planning commission in view of the board's work to preserve agricultural land.

"State law says the planning commission shall consist of members who represent major interests, such as farming, industry and schools," Flodin said.

"It's proposed that 25 percent of the township be reserved for agriculture. In this stage of the township's development, I think farmers should be represented."

But Culbert told the board that none of the five applicants who submitted resumes for the planning job are active farmers.

Burdziak is treasurer of the Windsor Park Community Homes Association, a member of the township's recreation advisory committee and president of the Canton Goodfellows.

Political observers theorized before the township board vote that Berg would not be reappointed to the planning commission, because his views are often more conservative than those of the township board.

Board members agreed to draft a resolution honoring Berg's years of service as a township planner.

Agency on Aging break?

Local agency considered

Suburban communities may take a cue from the city of Detroit and consider secession from the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging.

The county agency, which allots federal and state senior citizen grant money to municipalities, has been widely criticized by communities over the distribution of funds.

Leading the rebellion to form a new suburban agency is Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara. McNamara recently invited officials from 13 surrounding communities to attend a Jan. 17 meeting in Livonia to discuss the creation of a local agency.

The 13 communities invited to the meeting are: Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Westland, Garden City, Inkster, Wayne, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville, Northville Township, Redford Township and Livonia, according to the mayor's staff.

McNamara's letter to various community officials said in part, "The city of Detroit has now expressed its intention to withdraw from the Detroit-Wayne County AAA, effectively eliminating the present AAA.

"It is not at all clear what this change would mean to funding levels of programs in suburban Wayne County, as well as to whom we would apply for senior citizen dollars.

"One method of protecting our interests and simplifying the administration of senior citizen grant programs would be the creation of our own local area agency on aging for the 13 communities of northern and western Wayne County."

The community leaders were asked to notify McNamara by Jan. 11 whether they would attend. Canton Township Grants Coordinator Terry Carroll and Supervisor Noel Culbert said they would attend.

Canton is one of five communities which filed for a grant in order to begin a joint senior citizens home services program.

The AAA allotted the five communities $3,000 rather than the $48,000 requested.

Carroll said the township supports the idea of a local agency, but would not support the plan if Fred Ferris, present director of the AAA, is involved in the local agency.

"Canton will not have anything to do with it if Ferris is at the helm," he said.

Culbert, in a letter of response to McNamara, said he supported the plan, but did not think "the current AAA will be eliminated by the Detroit withdrawal.

"The possibility of the state redistricting the boundary lines of the planning and service area and retaining the current AAA, and its staff, is still an option."

Detroit's move to withdraw from the current AAA is currently under study by the human resources committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The proposed auto care center would offer the services of mechanics such as David Wilson, a certified master mechanic who has worked with the company for the past six years.

Auto co-op seeks to expand

By DARLENE STINSON

"Cooperative" has become a household word in recent years for an inexpensive way to buy food and other items.

But an Ann Arbor corporation, which is seriously considering expanding into Canton Township, is among the first in the nation to combine the co-op philosophy with auto repairs.

Dave Friedrichs, general manager of Cooperative Auto, Inc., said his firm has curbed auto repair costs and anxieties for members durings its seven years of operation near the University of Michigan football stadium.

The company sees Canton Township as a desirable location for expansion.

The firm has begun looking for a construction site in the north-central section of the township, Friedrichs said. He envisions construction of a $500,000 building that will include 15 service bays and employ 25 people.

The facility would offer reduced repair costs to stock-holding members, he said. Other offerings include classes on auto maintenance and do-it-yourself repair programs under the supervision of certified mechanics.

Families buy $10 worth of company stock to become members. The fee entitles members to a voice in the company's operations and future dividends, Friedrichs said.

CANTON SUPERVISOR Noel Culbert has pledged the township's support in finding a suitable construction site for Cooperative Auto. He said the project may receive money through the township's Economic Development Corporation, which makes loans to businesses at lower interest rates.

The township's efforts to help the Ann Arbor company is part of a new campaign to aggressively seek industries and businesses which are needed in Canton, Culbert said.

"The average resident either lets his car fall apart, or he goes to Plymouth, Livonia or Westland for repairs," said the supervisor.

"I don't think the number of auto repair facilities in Canton can even be counted on one hand."

Cooperative Auto was considering sites in Jackson and other communities surrounding Ann Arbor to meet its goal for expansion, Culbert said. But Culbert, who visited the Ann Arbor business with other township officials some weeks ago, convinced the firm to come to Canton.

"I just told them, 'If anyone needs you, it's us,' " Culbert said.

The supervisor stumbled across the idea of coaxing Cooperative Auto to the township accidently.

A story about the company appeared in a recent edition of a national business magazine. Culbert said he recognized the name of Friedrichs — a classmate in junior high and high school — and decided to give his old friend a call.

BUT CULBERT says his interest in the auto co-op is not based on an old friendship. He likes the cooperative nature of the business.

"The average person distrusts mechanics," the supervisor said. "This organization is very consumer-oriented."

The company's plans to come to Canton are based on consumer response to the cooperative idea. The firm will not make a commitment to build in the township unless 250-500 families sign membership forms, said Friedrichs.

Friedrichs plans to ask members of the Canton Chamber of Commerce or a civic organization to serve on an interim board of governors and supervise the company's membership drive. Members will be asked to buy $100 worth of stock in the company. Legal documents will guarantee refund of the money if membership goals are not reached.

Consumer ownership is the idea behind the company, Friedrichs said. His eventual membership goal for the Canton facility is 2,500-5,000 families — a number that the township facility would adequately serve, he said.

Culbert is confident that the initial goal of 250-500 members can be easily reached.

"I bet we could initially get 500," he said. "You could probably sit outside one subdivision for an hour and get a few hundred subscribers."

FRIEDRICHS SAID the benefits behind membership in his company include lower repair costs, better mechanic accountability and long-range recordkeeping for individual cars.

Although the company will repair cars of non-members, members pay $4

Services for Mrs. Paskevich, 80, of Canton Township, were held recently at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church with Rev. Kenneth MacKinnon officiating. Burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery. Arrangements were made by Schrader Funeral Home.

Mrs. Paskevich, who died Jan. 2, was a homemaker and lived on Beck Road since 1937. Survivors include: sons, Alexander of Texas, John of Canton; daughters, Frances Kellogg of Royal Oak, Bernice Wietecha of Canton Township, Sonja Watts of Canton Township, Jeanette Bunk of New Mexico; brother, Peter Ortman of Detroit; sisters, Lucille Horian of Dearborn, Clara Boyer of Fenton; nine grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

Rep. Bob Law abruptly quits; surprises colleagues in House

In a move so abrupt it astonished even his closest Republican colleagues, Robert C. Law resigned Tuesday from the Michigan House of Representatives effective Jan. 15.

The 32-year-old Livonian, considered a hot prospect for higher office, instead said he will return to private law practice.

Law sent letters and a copy of his news release to close associates at the same time he made his announcement to this newspaper, indicating he consulted no one besides his wife before ending his political career.

Gov. William Milliken will call a special primary and election, probably in late winter, for the 36th House District, which covers southwestern Livonia and northern Westland.

LAW WAS half-way through his second term. What made the announcement doubly surprising was that he didn't wait for a year to finish his term — a move likely to hurt him if he should decide to re-enter the political arena.

"It doesn't make sense to me," said Marvin Pridgeon, Livonia school board trustee who urged Law to make the House race in 1976 when most thought Democratic floor leader John Markes was unbeatable. Pridgeon noted Law had recently held a fund-raiser, indicating he planned to seek re-election in November.

In 1978 Law wrestled with the idea of challenging state Sen. R. Robert Geake in the GOP primary but finally backed away from an intra-party contest. He won re-election to his House seat by a 3-1 margin that year.

Political speculation began immediately Tuesday on his successor, with discussion centering on Pridgeon, Livonia and Westland councilmen and Schoolcraft College trustees.

What Democrats thought of Law was summed up by Westland Councilwoman Gail McKnight, a possible candidate: "We considered Bob Law to be a continuing presence around here. He put in so much effort, almost to the point of being inhuman. I've never seen anyone who could be in so many places."

Civic leaders in Plymouth, outside Law's House district, made the same observation.

"I'm shocked," said Westland Councilman Robert Wagner, a possible Republican contender. "Why would he do that? He was going places. I can't buy the reason given."

A WORKAHOLIC with no known hobbies, Law was due to make $27,000 this year as a legislator. The Laws have no children, his wife is a teacher, and they have no known financial problems.

Polish by ancestry, Catholic by religion, a moderate who got on well with labor and Democrats, Law had ticket-balancing qualities to offer the GOP as well as ability. He was a prospect for the 1982 state ticket, perhaps as lieutenant governor if James Brickley were to move on.

Law's selection in 1978 as one of the Jaycees' five outstanding young men in Michigan, his appearance as top freshman legislator in a Detroit News poll and his experience as chairman of the Michigan Federation of Young Republicans gave him statewide contacts and recognition.

Local Democrats speculated Milliken would soon nominate Law as state insurance commissioner in place of Thomas Hemmings, who was rejected by the state Senate.

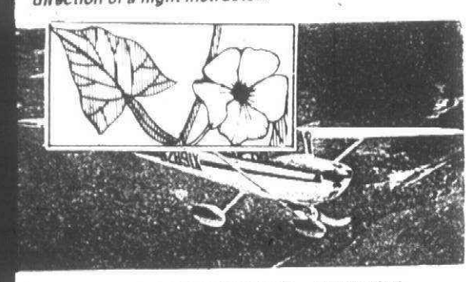

But Al Sandner, the governor's press secretary, said Law's name was not under consideration. "I just found out about it (the resignation) an hour ago myself," said Sandner.

IN CONVERSATIONS with three Observer staff members, Law would say only that he wanted to return to the less an hour in labor costs than the average rate in car dealerships, Friedrichs said. A shuttle bus service will transport members to a reasonable distance from the facility when they bring their cars in for repairs.

On Saturdays and Sundays, members can rent service bays for $4 an hour. Certified mechanics sell parts and assist in do-it-yourself repairs.

But the company's programs do not end with the actual servicing of automobiles. Members elect representatives to a board of governors, which makes operational decisions for the company.

Each month, the company offers a series of four classes on the functioning of automobiles, repairs and preventative maintenance. The classes, which cost $20, are geared to an individual's own car. Private tutoring is also available on weekends on an appointment basis.

In addition, the firm sends newsletters to members that encourages the formation of other cooperatives to buy such items as firewood.

A Canton branch of Cooperative Auto would employ eight certified mechanics, Friedrichs said. Four would specialize in foreign car repairs, while the others would handle American and four-wheel-drive vehicles.

FRIEDRICHS helped found Cooperative Auto seven years ago after becoming involved in several co-op efforts in the Ann Arbor area.

"I think people were concerned about reliability and accountability — what gets done to your car needs to get done," Friedrichs said. "They wanted a one-to-one rapport with their mechanics."

The company has been doing well at its Ann Arbor location, said Friedrichs, who received an economics degree from Michigan State University in 1968. The repair facility grossed $700,000 last year and reported a membership of nearly 2,000. -30-

Police arrest teens

Three teenagers have been charged with breaking and entering in connection with a slew of home robberies which occurred in north-central Canton last month.

Police believe the youths are responsible for 22 of the 61 breaking and entering complaints filed with the department in December.

Lt. Larry Stewart said $250 to $500 worth of goods was stolen from each home. Only a small amount of the stolen property has been recovered.

According to Stewart, two of the youths are 15, and one is 16. All three are friends.

A hearing on the charges is yet to be scheduled in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Two of the boys were arrested by Canton police last Sunday after Juvenile Court officials issued petitions for the trio's arrest. An arrest petition for the third youth, who recently moved from Canton Township, has been forwarded to police in his new community of residence.

Board OKs funds

The other stipulates that the Wayne County Board of Public Works will set user rates for the system. It demands county negotiations with the township on the composition of the public works board.

According to Royce Smith, director of the county board, the commission now includes the Wayne County drain commissioner and six representatives of suburban communities. But only one suburban representative comes from a municipality which will be served by Super Sewer.

Canton officials want at least three members of the public works board to come from Super Sewer communities in order to increase accountability on rates.

Despite the township's efforts to address its concerns, Larson and Greenstein stood firm in their opposition to the Super Sewer plan.

The trustees supported staying with the present Rouge Valley System despite questions concerning the township's ability to purchase additional sewer capacity. The township has already exceeded its purchased capacity in the system. More capacity is needed in order to develop the township industrially and decrease the tax burden on residents.

"WE HATE TO COME out threatening," said Egeland. "But we have been on the brink of an area-wide sewer connection ban for the past couple years."

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is empowered to place a moratorium on sewer connections if a system is operating above capacity. At the present time, the DNR is threatening a moratorium on Plymouth Township. The community north of Canton has exceeded its purchased capacity by a substantial margin, according to the DNR.

"But there are so many ifs in this (Super Sewer) situation that I couldn't possibly support it," Greenstein said, referring to the uncertain cost and rate-setting powers.

"Excuse the expression, but I don't know who gives this board the authority to throw $300,000 down the sewer."

Other board members shared the trustee's concerns. Donahue said he was "gambling $300,000" by voting to sign the interim finance agreement.

The Plymouth Children's Nursery is taking applications for membership for the fall of 1980-81. The nursery admits students of any race, color, national or ethnic origin. For more information, call Nancy Sullivan at 455-5916

SENIORS OIL PAINTING

Jan. 10 — Registration for an art class in oil painting for senior citizens at Madonna College will be held throughout the day. The classes will be from 1-3 p.m. Thursdays and cost $40. At least 10 students must sign up in order for the classes to be held. The course will run the winter term at Madonna. For information, call Sister Angeline in art class at 591-5000.

CANTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Jan. 10 — The Canton Historical Society will meet at 7 p.m. in the Canton Township Hall, 1150 South Canton Center Road. Of special interest will be the presentation of $4,000 to the society from the Canton Rotary Club.

RADIO BASKETBALL

Jan. 11 — WSDP, the student-run radio station operated by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, will feature the Plymouth Salem Rocks versus Dearborn beginning 8 p.m. The station is at FM 88 on your radio dial.

AUSTRALIAN PORTRAIT

Jan. 12 — Plymouth Kiwanis Foundation will present a free program on "Portraits of Australia" at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High. The presentation by Lee Cavanagh is part of the Kiwanis' regular Travel and Adventure Series. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

JUDO AND KARATE

Self-defense skills and self-confidence are stressed in judo or karate classes offered by the Plymouth Recreation Department. Classes are offered for children and adults who are beginners or advanced students. All classes are held Thursday evenings at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The fee for these 10-week sessions is $15 plus an administrative fee for non-city residents. For more information, call the recreation department at 455-6620.

DISCO CLASS

Jan. 14 — Six weeks of disco classes, for beginning and continuing, and a ballroom dance class will be held in the Canton Township Administration Building. Beginning disco will meet from 7-8 p.m. Mondays, continuing disco from 8-9 p.m. Mondays, and ballroom dance from 9-10 p.m. Mondays. Instructors are from the Continental Dance studio. Fee is $16 per person. Registrations are accepted by Canton Parks and Recreation at 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

SENIOR CITIZEN EXERCISE

Jan. 14 — The Plymouth Recreation Department, in cooperation with Schoolcraft College, is offering a senior citizen exercise class to be held at the Plymouth Cultural Center twice a week. The fee for this 10-week class is $3. For more information, call the recreation department at 455-6620.

TRACK B FIELD TRIP

Jan. 15 — All 45-15 students on Track B are invited to a field trip to the Ann Arbor Natural History Museum. Vans will leave 12:30 p.m. from Canton Township Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, and the fee is $1 per person. There is a limit of 20 people so students should register as soon as possible with Clinton Recreation, 397-1000.

WINTER STORY TIME

Jan. 15 or Jan. 16 — Story time for children ages 3½-5 begins at 10:15 a.m. either day in Plymouth's Dunning-Hough Library. Registration must be made by from 10 a.m. to 9 a.m. Jan. 8. The story programs last six weeks and runs from 30-40 minutes each time. Programs are limited to children who are residents of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton who had not been in the fall session.

FLOOR HOCKEY

Jan. 16 — The registration deadline for floor hockey clinics sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department ends at 5 p.m. The program is sponsored in conjunction with the Canton Extension YMCA and is open to children in second through fifth grade. A four-week clinic begins Jan. 28, with a six-week game schedule starting March 1. The cost is $12 per child. The clinic is held at various schools, and the Saturday League games will be at Field Elementary School. All players receive a T-shirt. Volunteer parents to be coaches at the Saturday games are also needed. Call 397-1000 for further details.

CHILDREN'S DISCO

Jan. 17 — Canton Recreation Department is sponsoring six weeks of children's disco lessons from 4-5 p.m. Thursdays in Eriksson Elementary School. The lessons, at $9 per person, are taught by Continental Dance Studio instructors. Children age 3-8 are welcome to join — no experience needed. Registrations are being accepted at Canton recreation office at 1150 Canton Center Road.

CROSS COUNTRY SKIING

Jan. 17 — The Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department begins open cross country skiing clinics from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the Canton Township administration building and surrounding fields.

The classes cost $5.50 per person, which includes skis, poles, boots and instruction; or $3.50 if the person supplies his or her own equipment. All lessons are given by certified ski instructors from "Sportventure" in Plymouth. The clinic is limited to 50 people. Two other clinics are scheduled for Jan. 29 and Feb. 13. Register at least two days in advance of the clinic at the recreation department in Canton Township hall.

Chrysler fire contained

A fire in the back room of the Colony Chrysler-Plymouth Dealership, 111 W. Ann Arbor Road, resulted in $1,500 damages to the building Friday night, said Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth. Groth said the fire was triggered by a spark in the ventilation system in the paint room. The back room was empty by the time the fire broke out, and no one was injured. The fire was reported about 6:30 that night by several people who were in the front of the showroom. Fifteen firefighters were dispatched. According to Groth, the fire had looked more severe than it turned out as firefighters saw flames leaping out the roof. It was contained, however, within five minutes of their arrival. Lawmaker resigns office legal profession and was considering several possibilities.

He had practiced only three years before being elected to the legislature.

"There is no magical answer," Law said. "There was no single event or thing that made me resign. I felt a need for a change.

"From the day I was elected, I never wanted to be totally in a situation where I felt I had to be in public office. I took time to think about this. I was extremely careful in making a decision. Finally over the holidays, I decided that, for me at this time, a change would do some good."

WHY QUIT IN mid-term? "I don't like people who sit out a term and don't do a good job . . . No, I'm not burned out. Do you think I am? It's funny, you know — I kept hearing people say I would burn out if I kept going like I was. I enjoyed what I was doing. The change is necessary.

"My colleagues on both sides of the aisle were great to work with, and the experience was extremely satisfying because I was able to help people solve their problems," said Law.

Law could return to a practice with Charles Bokos, Westland city attorney, who lists Law on his stationery as "of counsel." He could join the Farmington Hills law firm of his brother, Thomas, a West Bloomfield Township trustee. (Another brother, Gerald, is a Plymouth Township trustee.)

THERE IS NO shortage of potential candidates.

Republican prosects include: Pridgeon, who at 51 could accept an early pension from Michigan Bell Telephone Co. in August; Harry Greenleaf, 2nd Congressional District chairman and board chairman at Schoolcraft Community College; Len Wozniak, a Schoolcraft trustee; Wagner, Westland councilman; and Sylvia Skrel, Law's political godmother and an aide to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell.

Democratic possibilities include: Mrs. McKnight; Westland Councilwoman Justine Barns; former councilman Richard Stempien; Robert Ficano, a Livonia attorney who ran an aggressive campaign for the Schoolcraft board; and David Callanan, son of the Westland district judge and an aide to Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland.

Law considers the 36th district marginally Republican although it was carried by Democrat Markes for two terms when it was created in 1972. Law upset Markes in a door-to-door campaign at a time when Markes was considering himself a shoo-in.

"I AM PROUD of my work and accomplishments," Law said, and officials in his district echoed that assessment.

Timothy Dyer, superintendent of Wayne-Westland School District (and a Democrat), said of Law, "He was everywhere. He'll be missed. He was on the appropriations committee, and he was a good link with the minority."

Westland Mayor Tom Taylor, another Democrat, called Law "the best young legislator to come along in my experience. He's been the hardest working and most accessible. Combined with (Rep.) Tom Brown, he gave us a one-two punch to both sides of the legislature and to the governor that we've never had before. His is the best kept political secret I've ever heard of. But knowing Law, I doubt it was a quick decision."

Rep. Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia, Law's carpool companion and Lansing roommate, said, "I'm generally shocked. He left me a personal letter and copy of his press release at my home Tuesday morning. He gave 1,000 percent."

Sen. Geake called the announcement "a surprise. He seemed to enjoy his job as a legislator."

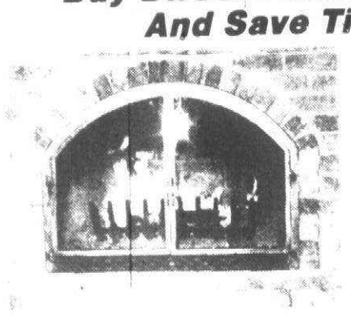

Attorney Bokos said, "I don't believe it. I talked with him just several days ago, about his career . . . He seemed to love it."

Greenleaf said, "We're losing a great deal of talent in the legislature — able and dedicated." The GOP leader added a candidate would be sought who has 1) good name recognition, 2) ability, and 3) the interest and availability.

A PROBLEM SOLVER by reputation, Law was particularly interested in the problems of school funding and declining as well as increasing enrollment.

Electricians install lighting fixtures and outlets this week at the Teledyne Building.

Work in progress

Construction on the Teledyne Building, adjacent to Plymouth Township Hall on Ann Arbor Road, was still ongoing early in the week with final completion expected in the next six months. Earlier in the week, workers were putting up the panel to cover these bare skeleton walls. Things weren't much better Tuesday night when the township board held its regularly scheduled Tuesday night meeting there, but most folks were understanding. It just got a little cold as township Trustee Barbara Lynch attempted to adjust the heating system to warm things up. Meanwhile, temperatures outside dipped into the low teens. The building, once completed, will house township offices and will contain a corridor leading to the old township hall directly next door. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Business Briefs

Cole Bakery to close down

Cole Bakery in Canton will be closing its doors in April.

Cole Bakeries Inc. of Muskegon announced it is closing retail outlets in 70 Michigan supermarkets, effective April 6, including the one in Meijer Thrifty Acres at Ford and Canton Center Roads.

Announcement was made on Jan. 6 by company president Wesley S. Devon who also announced that Cole's would be discontin uing its production of more than 100 varieties of fresh bakery foods and then will expand into total production of frozen bakery food products.

"This major move in our operation is purely economic," said Devon. "We are faced with changing market demands and experiencing more sophisticated, educated customers who have become 'freezer oriented' in selection of foods.

"Also, with fuel costs escalating, our daily deliveries around the state could be in jeopardy, and we will not compromise the quality or freshness of our fresh food products."

Increasing prices of bakery supplies was another important factor in the decision, he added.

L. Carroll Cole, board chairman, said the firm has suggested to supermarket managers that they consider hiring employees at the sites of Cole retail outlets as they are familiar with the individual store's operations and know many customers by sight. The company, he added, will be working closely with MESC and will survey other area bakeries to help employees find other jobs.

Cole Bakeries has retail outlets in Ionia, Kalamazoo, Canton, Flint, Ypsilanti, Jackson, Holland, Battle Creek, Greenville, Pontiac, Lansing, Muskegon, Grand Rapids and Grand Haven.

CREDIT UNION BENEFIT

The 87,162 credit union members in Michigan's 2nd Congressi onal District have an important stake in a bill being sponsored by U.S. Rep. Carl D. Pursell, R-Plymouth.

The bill (HR 4986) would give congressional approval to a credit union program known as share drafts. Share drafts are used like checks to pay bills but, unlike checking accounts, share draft accounts pay interest.

There are some 34 credit unions in the 2nd District, which includes Plymouth, Livonia, Northville, Ann Arbor Arbor, Ypsilanti, parts of Washtenaw County, and Monroe County.

SALESPERSON OF MONTH

Billie D. Massaro has been named Salesperson of the Month at McKeon Real Estate, Inc. in Plymouth for this past month.

Mrs. Massaro joined the McKeon staff in May 1979, adding a new dimension to her life. She has been employed as a dental hygienist with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools fluoride program for the past five years and continues to serve the schools in this capacity on a part-time basis.

BILLIE D. MASSARO

Mrs. Massaro is an active member of Timothy Lutheran Church and presently is serving as the stewardship secretary of the Detroit Conference of the American Lutheran Church Women.

Growth funding measure now law

A special grant of $5 million in revenue sharing funds will save Canton Township nearly $275,000 in state monies it otherwise would have lost.

Governor Milliken has signed into law the Grants and Transfers bill, without vetoing the special revenue sharing funds.

Canton, which has experienced rapid growth in the last nine years, received the special funds through an allocation made by the House Appropriation Committee.

Plymouth Township also will gain revenue through the special revenue sharing funds, noted Rep. Bob Law, R-Livonia, Westland, when announcing the measure's passage.

CANTON WAS in a critical position, explained Law, because its population had quadrupled since the 1970 Census.

Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert had contacted Law when the House Apppropriation Committee had approved the original revenue sharing funds which would have cut $275,000 in state aid to Canton.

"I took his concern to the Appropriations Committee and we were able to approve an additional $5 million to cover similar situations throughout the state.

"Plymouth Township also will receive additional funds, although it was not in a loss situation."

The population of Canton Township has increased from 1[illegible],000 to about 45,000 since 1970, when the last census was taken.

"Their revenue sharing funds were based on the 1970 population figure, and that's what caused the funding problem. Of course the community is still required to provide police and fire protecti on and other services for 45,000 people with funds enough for only 11,000.

"Because of the problem, Canton took a special census which qualified them for additional dollars."

THE STATE'S REGULAR revenue sharing is mandated by the state constitution, Law explained.

NOTICE
ANNUAL MEETING
PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY FUND

In accordance with Article II, Section 2, By-Laws of the Plymouth Community Fund, the Annual Meeting will be held on Tuesday, January 15, 1980 at 8:00 P.M. at the Plymouth Township Meeting Room in the former Teledyne Building, 42340 Ann Arbor Road, next to the Plymouth Township Hall, Plymouth, Michigan. The purpose of the meeting is to elect persons to the Board of Directors, to hear reports from the President, the Secretary, the Treasurer and to hear reports from some of the Agencies receiving support from the Plymouth Community Fund.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Sam Hudson tells how Seeing Europe inexpensive

(Sam Hudson of Plymouth, local historian and author of "Plymouth Past & Present," is wintering in southern France. The column below is another in a series of how senior citizens, or others, can travel throughout Europe on a limited budget.)

By SAM HUDSON

We first heard of the Hotel D'Orsay in Nice from Arthur Frommer's book, "Europe on $5 a Day."

That was some time ago. The 1979-80 edition is called, "Europe on $15 a Day." It sells for $5.95 and is a must if you want to travel on a tight budget.

The large French window of our third floor room at the D'Orsay opened on a quiet inner court. I was pleased to see a reading light over the bed and to discover that the mattress was firm. An alcove contained a wash basin, a mirror and the ubiquitous bidget.

The D'Orsay has an Otis elevator. There is a TV room on the main floor across from the breakfast room. But the toilet and shower are down the hall. The water never got as hot as I prefer it when I shave. And the timed light switches at each landing on the stairway are a nuisance.

But the clean, cheery room for two, including continental breakfast, was only 50 francs ($12.50) per night.

At breakfast of scrumptious croissants, crusty French bread, butter, marmalade and hot cafe au lait, we talked to two young men who had just arrived in France.

One, from British Columbia, was on his way to study in Florence. The other was from Winnipeg. They both found the D'Orsay through Frommer's book.

One of them recommended the restaurant LeProny, referred to in Frommer. It was two blocks away so Jessie and I had dinner there. A good four course meal cost us $6.25 each.

Jessie had roast chicken. I had fish. I still don't know what kind. I can't find it in my French dictionary. Does any reader know what "Colin" is?

ON SUNDAY morning, two days after we arrived, we attended services at the nearest church, the Basilique Notre Dame, on Avenue Jules Bredicin. The first thing that caught my eye as we entered was a display of Christmas drawings by children, age 10.

Women took an active part in the service. One read announcements, a nun led some of the singing, and several women took up the collection.

The program indicated that the congregation had recently sponsored a refugee family from Indo China.

After the service, we walked down to the Promenade des Anglais, a magnificent sidewalk bordering the beach on the Bay of the Angels. Facing the bay are Nice's luxurious hotels, private villas and public buildings.

The Promenade was begun in the early 1800s by money collected from the English colony. The English made Nice and Cannes famous as resort towns.

There are pedestrian push buttons that enable you to stop traffic when you want to cross the street here. They have an interesting feature when you press the button. A sign lights up reading: "Your call has been registered." It has a calming effect on the impatient.

The temperature was in the 50s, and a brisk wind (the mistral) was blowing when we reached the Mediterranean. It was not sun bathing weather.

That did not deter a woman who walked down to the water wearing a bathing suit. As we watched, she dropped the top of her bathing suit and splashed herself with sea water. After her ablution, she wrapped herself in a towel, under which she doffed her bathing suit, and walked back to her hotel.

Lunch of beer and a good ham sandwich at a sidewalk cafe cost us $2.50 each. The sandwich was made from ½ a baguette, the long, slender French loaf baked without the mushy softeners that American bakers insist on using.

LATER, AS WE strolled through a monoprix department store, we saw a Baskin-Robbins ice cream counter. All of its signs and flavors were in English. A large single dip, in a sugar cone, cost us 75 cents each. C'est Bon!

Speaking of costs, pan-bagnat, the round loaf filled with salads Nicoise, which we paid 75 cents for three years ago, has risen to $1.50 or more, depending on where you buy it.

Regular gasoline sells for $2.90 a gallon in Cannes. Scotch will run you $10 to $12 a fifth (I'll tell you later where you can buy it for ½ that price in nearby Italy). And I had to pay $1.45 to mail the manuscript for my first column from Cannes to the U.S.

We were able to walk to the University of Nice, but had to go by train to Cannes, a distance of 19 miles west.

Before we bought our train tickets, we purchased two Carte Vermeils at the railroad station. If you are a woman 60 or older, or a man 65 or older, a Carte Vermeil is one of the best buys you can make in France. (To be continued)

Special gym class to begin

A gym class for children with special needs, led by James Glasgow of Northville, will begin Jan. 17 in Farrand Elementary School in Plymouth.

The Perceptual Motor Gym Class is designed for elementary and junior high students in need of help in motor development coordination skills, increased attention span, perceptual development, self-image, awareness in space, reversals, left-right discrimination, and visual/auditory perception.

Registrations will be accepted Jan. 14, 15 for residents of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and Jan. 16, 17 for non-residents.

Persons may register in the Community Education office, Room 130 of Plymouth Canton High on Canton Center Road just south of Joy. Questions may be directed to the director, Larry Masteller, at 459-1180.

Two sessions will be scheduled, one at 5 p.m. and one at 6 p.m., in the Farrand gym which is located at 41400 Greenbriar in Lake Pointe subdivision, Plymouth Township. The fee is $36 and each class is limited in size to 15 students.

Community Education registration hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday.

Nancy Austin

I now know that I practice what I preach. The proof was in the pudding, well, more accurately the ice cream, at a recent family gathering.

Allow me to share with you an evening of dinner, ambiance, and unintentional stinginess.

My parents invited their children and families and a couple of friends for dinner as a kind of finale to the Christmas season. Just good times, conversation and fun.

Italian spaghetti, meatballs, sausage, tossed salad, bread, and selected wines. Sounds like a great meal, which it was, and one on which a calorie counter such as I, had to use a great deal of discretion. Yes, I eat everything, just eat less of it.

I WAS SATISFIED with coffee after dinner rather than dessert, a choice of ice creams. However, for the others who wanted the ice cream, I volunteered to scoop the servings. I'm sure that's the last time I'll ever be chosen for that select job.

I had approximately eight dishes to serve. One by one I scooped what I considered proper portions. One by one, they were carried from the kitchen into the dining room to those eagerly awaiting the final course. Then a strange thing happened. One by one, those same dishes of ice cream reappeared in the kitchen in the hands of those for whom the scoops were intended.

The first time it happened, I was surprised to see friend Doug return to the kitchen, capture the ice cream carton, and start scooping more ice cream into his dish. I had dished what I thought was an ample portion. From the disdainful glance, it was apparent that he disagreed.

Then it was my son who quietly stole into the kitchen and asked if he could have some ice cream. "But, Mom, there was hardly any ice cream in the bowl!" he complained.

MY BROTHER Jim had been holding his bowl for a few minutes, before the realization set in. Finally, peering at his near microscopic portion, he asked, "What is THIS?"

Everyone burst into laughter — I most of all. Tears rolled down my cheeks when I realized that I had scooped portions the size I would have taken. Which, I guess, means that miniscule portions were what I thought everyone else should have.

Then the entire family chorused, "At least she practices what she writes!"

Yes! And I'll probably never be asked to scoop ice cream again.

Here's how to stay in shape this year

A number of physical fitness classes and activities are being offered by the Canton, Northville, Plymouth Family YMCA to help people get in, and remain in, shape.

These offerings include Fitness Fun (Slim & Trim), Slim Living for adults, and Cardiovascular Fitness for adults.

The first session of cardiovcscunar fitness will begin Jan. 14 and run through Feb. 22.

The activity is at Dance Unlimited in downtown Plymouth from 11 to 11:45 a.m., noon to 12:45 p.m. and 1 to 1:45 p.m. Mondays, from 2 to 2:45 p.m. and 3 to 3:45 p.m. on Thursdays, and from 11 to 11:15 a.m., noon to 12:45 p.m. and 1 to 1:45 p.m. on Fridays.

Special evening sessions are scheduled for Mondays from 6:30 to 7:15 and Thursdays, same time, at Starkweather Elementary School in Old Village.

The six-week program will be repeated starting Feb. 25.

SLIM LIVING is an eight-week program for adults starting Jan. 15 in West Middle School.

The sessions will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays in the home economics room of the school.

Slim Living is an official program of the National Council of the YMCA aimed at improving weight control, personal appearance, health and self image.

Fitness Fun (Slim & Trim) is a six-week program for adults which begins Jan. 14 in Ephiphany Lutheran Church. Classes will meet from 9:30-10:20 a.m. on Monday and/or Friday.

Babysitting will be available for 2-year-olds and up at 75 cents per child or $1.25 for two or more children.

Burial costs are increased

The charges for burial at Riverside Cemetery were increased Monday night by the Plymouth City Commission.

The 8 percent increase for burial costs cemetery owned and operated by the city was the second hike within a 12-month period.

The increase covers the expense of opening and closing graves, explained City Manager Henry Graper Jr., who recommended the hike to offset rising labor costs.

The last rate increase in June 1979 was approved to recoup a $6,000 subsidy from the general fund to the cemetery fund.

This increase is designed to recover increased labor costs from the contract negotiated with the DPW union in the fall of 1979, but effective July 1, 1979.

The higher charge was first suggested by the Cemetery Board and DPW Director Ken Vegras last month.

editorial opinion

Canton should enter a new decade with goals

A decade ago, Canton had just begun to see the stirrings of growth that would so dramatically shape its destiny in years to come.

Since 1970, Canton's population has almost tripled. Its problems include overcrowded schools, bad roads, inadequate police and fire protection, water and sewer overloading, insufficient industrial development and poorly planned business and residential placement.

These are the things Canton is attempting to deal with as it enters a new decade. But 10 years from now, the township's problems could be entirely different.

Factors such as an uncertain economic future, the poor housing market, and the increasing gasoline crunch could all contribute to slowing growth even without such programs as a proposed farmland preservation through the purchase of development rights.

Many of Canton's problems could be eased if there was a set of concise goals for the township in existence. What does Canton want to become? Only by making this decision and instituting appropriate action can the township shape its own future, rather than continue trying to adapt to the results of other's actions.

These goals should be formulated by Canton's Board of Trustees after it has gathered the suggestions of other township boards and commissions, civic groups, school officials and organizations, business interests and private individuals. Probably few goals will gain the support of all groups; but the goals that are adopted should reflect as broad a base of the citizenry as possible.

We also offer our own goals for the community:

Canton should attempt to draw more industry. Without industry, the township's tax base will continue to fall on the shoulders of its residents. Other communities are already beginning to take active and aggressive steps to draw industry; Canton must take the same stance in order to compete.

Canton should incorporating to become a city. City status would give the township control over its roads, a responsibility now carried by the Wayne County Road Commission. Township roads are in poor shape, causing Canton to consider paying part of the cost of paving a portion of Haggerty. Better roads would help in the bid for industry, as well as being a welcome change for residents who drive on them.

Farmland Preservation should be a top priority. The proposal to save some 500 acres of farmland in the western portion of Canton has been kicked around for a number of years. There are drawbacks to the program, such as the legal questions of whether it can be done, but preservation of the dwindling agricultural land in this area is a worthy and necessary goal.

Canton should consider developing a "downtown" section. The problem with many new suburban areas is that they do not have a center for business, shopping and community involvement. Urban sprawl does not aid a community in establishing its own identity. A real downtown section, such as in Plymouth, does.

Growth control should remain a top concern. The key word is "control." Growth is not necessarily bad. When growth is allowed to happen without careful planning, it becomes uncontrollable, unaesthetic and unpleasant. Fast food restaurants are fine; fast food restaurants glutting the strip along Ford Road are undesirable.

Canton should continue to strive to establish a community identity. We need to make ourselves and everyone else aware that Canton is a community unto itself. Communities pull together. Loosely connected subdivisions do not.

These are just a few of the goals that can be considered as 1980 dawns. Goals can be changed, but they should be constantly kept in mind while they exist.

The only worthwhile goals are those that are kept.

Issue involvement urged

People's Podium

("People's Podium" is designed to promote an exchange of views. Please type, hold to 600 words and mail to: Editor, Observer Newspapers, 461 S. Main, Plymouth, 48170)

The past decade was one of explosive growth for Canton Township. From empty fields and woodland springs one of the most thriving communities in the State of Michigan.

Canton's emergence hasn't been without a steep price. the township has developed without character or personality. It is a clone of its predecessor communities across the country.

Rows of tract houses and a business strip are packed into a land area inadequately serviced by roadways and utilities. Population has grown beyond the capacities of police, fire and education.

Perhaps worst of all, it is a new community, administered by an amateur government.

Fortunately, the new decade brings hope, and with it the opportunity to remedy present ills as by devising plans to avoid future problems. All residents of Canton owe it to themselves, their families and their property to incisively reflect upon the direction they intend for the township in the coming years.

My purpose in writing this article is to briefly discuss certain topics of concern to myself and Canton residents of my acquaintance.

One of its main goals is to stimulate a wider interest and involvement in Canton's affairs by all residents and hopefully to motivate those among us, capable in skill and character of leading the township into the future, to come to the fore.

AMATEUR GOVERNMENT

The weekly township meetings are all too often parodies of comic opera. Indecisiveness, petty politics, personality clashes and uninformed officials abound. This condition has contributed to the township's characterless development; residents can ill-afford to allow this situation to continue.

A major goal for the '80s must be the installation of professional government in Canton. In the next election, we must all be very sure we are voting for more than hair styles, teeth and promises. Candidates for the next township board must be scrutinized for credentials and character. Incumbents should be measured on their records.

Voters must ensure that those who would hold office deliver what they're selling.

ROADWAYS

The current township board favors paving portions of Warren Road, east of Lilley Road; and Haggerty, North of Warren Road as an incentive for industrial development. This paving project would take precedent over possible projects involving dirt roads in both north and south Canton, roads that either abut or run through densely developed residential areas. I contend that roadways that service our homes, churches and businesses deserve paving priority over roads that would be paved to serve hypothetical industrial development.

Note also that the board would leave roads paved for industrial development that presently feed into roads (Joy and Lilley) which are now barely adequate to serve the current traffic burden. Bringing industry into the area would lead to horrendous traffic problems and their attendant hazards.

FARMLAND PRESERVATION

Township voters rejected in a past election a millage directed to purchasing development rights to farmland. In my opinion, a wise choice. Townships should not be in the real estate business, but rather the business of real estate use — to the community's benefit.

There is no way that the creation of a privileged property class is warranted in Canton. If a farmer wants to sell his land for profit, let him do so. If the township wants the land to sustain its agricultural character, then let it do so through stringent zoning. I for one find it deplorable that any member of the township board would consider creation of fiefdoms within the township's borders.

Paying off farmers so that they won't sell their land to developers is an absurd proposition, particularly with my (our) tax dollars. Let the state buy the land and convert it into farms for the folks who dreamt up farmland preservation.

Note: As is usually the case when the popular will runs contrary to governmental wish, government generates a law. There's one now pending in the state Legislature that would grant townships the right to — guess what — purchase the development rights to farmland. Given this discretion, wonder which way the current township board would go?

SUBSIDIZED HOUSING

Naive as I am, I was really surprised when developers sprang the Forest Trails and Pickwick PUD projects on Canton. I was equally surprised when the township board claimed ingnorance of the PUDC's and blamed their execution on Harold Stein's (past supervisor) regime.

I thought township officials would be intimately familiar with planned land uses in the community they serve. The limit to which the township resists developer greed and chicanery will come clear in their handling of the Pickwick court case.

Thank Bart Berg, a current member of the planning commission, for supporting subsidized housing projects in Canton. He expressed his view on this matter recently, saying he felt low-income homes should have been constructed between all those "big" subdivision houses.

Berg said he felt that association with owners of "big" houses would teach low income inhabitants property responsibilities.

Berg has been in Canton since the 1940's.

Did you notice that the "Canton — A Planned Community" signs have been removed from township borders? Little wonder.

The Harpies vs. Romney

Tim Richard

George Romney's first mistake was being born a white male.

Romney's second mistake was crossing the Harpies among the supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment.

As a prime mover for a new state constitution in the early '60s and as governor from 1963-68, Romney is one of the most distinguished men in Michigan history. As president of American Motors Corp., he is one of the most distinguished men in industrial history.

Romney didn't simply hold offices. He made changes. He was always years ahead of the pack in his thinking.

A natural, you would think, to fill a vacancy on the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

BUT ROMNEY'S first mistake — his color and sex — raised political eyebrows, for the person he replaced, the late Dauris Jackson, was black and female.

I was taught that if a person is qualified, color and sex don't matter. But that view appears to be old-fashioned. And the fact that he, like Gov. Milliken who appointed him, is a Republican is just part of the political game.

But Romney's appointment caught heck.

Next Romney, speaking as a Mormon on his church's opposition to ERA, made the mistake of giving too much prominence to the role of homosexuals in the ranks of ERA supporters. Homosexuals may be there, but so what? ERA deserves discussion on its merits.

Does the Vatican destroy Michaelangelo's art because he was inclined that way? Do we remove "Swan Lake," "The Nutcracker" and the first piano concerto from the repertoire because Tchaikovsky (harrumph) didn't like girls?

I happen to support ERA, and I think Romney made a mistake.

BUT HE DOESN'T deserve what the Harpies, a strident minority of ERA supporters, are doing to him.

They want him to resign, as if he had failed a blood test. They're equating him with Hitler. They're vilifying him cruelly.

This is the man who fought to create a state Civil Rights Commission in the constitution. This is the man who appointed such excellent persons to it that many became judges. This is the man who fought the good fight for open housing legislation. This is the man who took on the Birchers.

He didn't deserve vitriol for his ERA mistake.

Romney said something more important than the ERA remarks at his party's convention last summer. I've been saving my notes for the proper occasion, and this is it.

"I THINK OUR country is in bad economic circumstances. Our exports are declining, our imports are increasing, the value of the dollar is down.

"We haven't been addressing the basic problem of inflation . . . We must rally the forces of the nation if we're going to redirect the course of things.

"The dominant political influence is not either political party. It's special interests — and bureaucracy. And congressmen who get re-elected by taking care of special interests in their state . . .

"We have to band together as citizens to deal with the problems of inflation."

In Greek mythology, the Harpies were goddesses of storms and whirlwinds. The Romney approach comes from the Socractic philosopher-king. It's no wonder the Harpies disapprove.

If you get involved, you may miss the train

Blood is the same color despite the hue of the skin serving as a container. I was nearly 20 when I discovered that simple fact.

It was a typical New York rush hour. As I made my way down the stairway of the Times Square subway station, it became evident everyone was making a slight pause when approaching the bottom step and gingerly sprinting over something.

Too soon I saw the reason for delay. A black woman lay on the subway platform, just at the foot of the stairway. Her eyes stared vacantly into a world we cannot see since she no longer lived in this sphere. Blood, a vivid, red streamed from her fractured head.

"Do something!" I screamed as people pushed passed me into the waiting trains.

"Are you crazy?" someone retorted. "And miss my train?"

"What's wrong with you?" another yelled. "Don't you know better than to get involved?"

MOMENTS ELAPSED that seemed like hours.

Finally, a policeman heard my shouts above the roaring trains, and he began to prevent traffic from stepping over the body while he radioed for assistance.

More than 20 years have passed. My 20-year-old daughter, Evelyn is now a student at New York University, riding the same subway trains.

Recently, as she sat on the subway, a man about the same age as herself, rose from his seat with an abruptness that signaled a problem. Rhythmically, he began to throw himself back and forth against the glass window. His body increased its intensity and each thud became louder.

Horrified, Evelyn watched, knowing any second the glass would shatter and he would be able to hurl his body from the speeding train.

All around, people continued to read their newspapers, oblivious of the young man banging himself to and fro against the glass. They continued reading despite the sound of glass bursting into fragments and the screams of agony the man now emitted.

In an instant, he would gain the final momentum to throw himself into the narrow concrete tunnel streaking by.

A STUDENT sitting beside my panicking daughter, leaped from his seat and grabbed the emergency cord.

"Don't do that!" a woman shouted. "That's only for emergencies!"

Brakes screeched, jolting passengers from their seats. Now no one read the paper.

"Do you know you're going to make us all late for work, young man?" a middle-aged man garbed in uniform grey flannel yelled at the student.

Evelyn observed the same fact as I had years before. Gushing down the dark-skinned arms of the victim was bright red blood. Everyone bleeds the same.

A subway conductor entered the car to find the cause of the emergency stop.

"Since you stopped the train, you'll have to give me permission to resume," he told the student. "He'll bleed to death if we don't get to the next stop for medical assistance."

Permission granted, the train moved on. They all returned to reading their newspapers, ignoring the hysterical, bleeding man.

MY DAUGHTER CAN be proud of her generation. They risk involvement.

Meanwhile, those of us over 40 must remember the question asked in the beginning days of humankind, the days of Adam and Eve.

"Am I my brother's keeper?"

The answer hasn't changed. Unfortunately, neither have we.

No — neither have we.

A short course in 'Supermarket Psychology'

When you go grocery shopping with your children, you are automatically enrolled in a course called Supermarket Psychology. Just having a baby in your wagon entitles you to free lectures from anyone you meet in the store.

Some topics that will be covered include use of a pacifier, toilet training, and breast-feeding and bottle feeding. Not only will this type of information be given freely, but you and your child will be fully scrutinized. Questions and general recommendations will be shared, from sex to surgery.

I am blonde and our daughters all have dark hair. This makes me an ideal candidate for Supermarket Psychology. With each baby, these public specialists have asked, "Where did she get that dark hair from?" (Funny, the nurse who prepped me in the hospital never asked that question when she visited us in the nursery.)

When queried, however, I just answer, "I dye her hair brown."

Once I actually was asked, "What is the nationality of the father of that child?" To that I simply replied in a whisper, "I don't know, there were so many!"

IT IS IMPORTANT not to be intimidated by the many well-meaning strangers who give free advice. It is also important to be prepared with answers.

If you choose to reply in a humorous vein, I suggest you smile a lot, always remembering such retaliative weapons as raw eggs and frozen roasts are easily available.

When asked, "Why does that little girl still have a pacifier?" I have answered (smiling, of course), "She was born with it and I didn't know I was supposed to take it away."

If your heir is still in diapers, it's difficult to avoid a confrontation on this subject when your wagon is full of toddler-size disposables and your darling's bottom resembles an overstuffed pillow.

Of course, you can always sneak out at night and murmur something about how great they are under newspaper while you are paper training your puppy. Since it is a known fact that a generation ago most infants were toilet trained before today's babies can even sit up, it's best to be prepared with a statement on this matter. The one I used is, "As long as she changes her own diapers, it's no problem."

BREAST-FEEDING AND bottle feeding, are leading topics in check-out lines. When one of our infants developed skin allergies as a reaction to most foods, our pediatrician recommended breast-feeding until our daughter was 2 years old.

I asked him if he was aware of any psychological problems from older breast-fed children. He told me of a little boy who went up to the wrong mother in the supermarket and started unbuttoning her blouse. As far as he knew, it upset the woman a lot more than it did the boy.

When my daughter was 2, I weaned her onto a bottle. (Why a bottle? Because a 2-year-old can't pour a Thermos in the car.)

A few months later, when confronted with "How long are you going to keep that big girl on a bottle?" I simply mused, "But she's only been on it for three months."

West view not broad

Editor:

Let's clear up an ambiguity in the West Middle School Coordinating Council resolution, published Jan. 3, which states, " . . . the staff, students, and parents at West Middle School would find it very difficult to support any millage proposal which does not provide for the continuance of middle schools. . ."

The impression that their resolution has broad based support from West Middle School parents is unsubstantiated and refutable. The parents of West School students were never invited by the Council to participate in an open discussion of the issue nor were our opinions solicited in any way.

If the Coordinating Council will amend its published statement, I will be grateful, if not I trust that parents and taxpayers throughout the district will not accept this resolution as representing all West parents or authoriative in any way.

As a concerned parent I urge all of us to take an active part and become atuned to the responsibilities of our schools so that special groups will not be inclined to "speak for us."

La Leche is defended

Editor:

Jocelyn Krieger has a strange sense of humor and I protest her remarks concerning LaLeche League in her recent column, "The Wonder of A Child . . . of a child . . . of a childnn." (Thursday, Dec. 20).

She implied things which are not ture. La Leche League does advocate baby-led weaning, but we never presume to tell a mother how long to nurse her child. That decision is left strictly up to the individual nursing couple.

If Ms. Krieger feels locked into an intolerable situation, she should take steps to change it. Nursing a toddler while resenting it is not healthy for either the mother or child.

La Leche League leaders have done a marvelous job in this area in recent years, helping mothers who want to nurse their babies to do so. They also help in special situations such as premature babies, sick or hospitalized babies, and those who may have an allergy to formula or a host of other problems. Some babies owe their very lives and health to the help and generosity of La Leche League's nursing mothers.

I feel Ms. Krieger owes an apology to La Leche League, which is truly a selfless oragnization, dedicated to good mothering through breastfeeding.

Schultz tells about Vico switch from making auto to tractor parts

By W.W. EDGAR

There are no framed mottos on the wall of his office at the Vico Products Co. on Ann Arbor Road.

But Leo Schultz, president of the company in Plymouth Township, believes his peers may need some morale boosts usually offered by such epigrams in the dark days ahead in the automobile industry.

"Our business is away down, " he confided the other afternoon. "And things don't look bright in the auto industry. If anything it is going to get worse. But you can't let it get you down."

Then, with a wry smile, he explained that his company, one of the many small parts manufacturers in the metropolitan area, will turn to the farm. In the future, the company he organized in 1942 is going to concentrate on supplying parts for such equipment as tractors, plows and other types of farm machinery.

He explained that he isn't planning to sell to the major companies such as John Deere, Massey Ferguson or Caterpillar, but he will attempt to line up suppliers of parts for the equipment.

"We have checked through the south and are contacting all the firms that do business for the manufacturers. It seems to me that the farm is the place to look to keep the plant going."

Why did he turn to the farm for hope to combat the economic ills?

"That's the natural place to look for survival. A fellow can get along without shoes. He can walk bare foot to where he is going. But he's got to eat at least every few days. And the farm supplies the food.

"Sure, the days of the horse-drawn plows are gone. But there is plenty of machinery on the farm. The machines are bound to need parts. And that's where we can come in."

About the future of the automobile industry?

"Look at the figures. The foreign cars have taken over 22 percent of the sales in this country. General Motors supplies slightly under 50 percent. Ford is away down at 27 percent and Chrysler is listed about 15 percent.

"What's more, the foreign cars are going to cut deeper into the market. They are better built and are going a better job on gas consumption, so naturally, in this energy crisis they are the favored cars.

"Our companies have to try to catch up, but it may take a while."

SCHULTZ BLAMES the attitude of today's workers for some of the problems.

"They no longer take pride in their work. They wait for quitting time and don't much care if their work passes inspection or not. And they demand high money for their efforts. You don't find that in the foreign company plants."

He leaned back in his chair and said, " It's a matter of confidence. If a fellow makes up his mind to do something and feels that he has the ability, he'll do it.

"That's what we going to do here. We have the confidence that we can — and will — survive by means of switching our main efforts to farm implements instead of the automobile industry."

His confidence comes from his youthful days in Wisconsin where he got his start battling the odds.

"When I was only 7 years old, " he said, "I repaired my mother's spinning wheel and I even learned to make my own socks. I still have the wheel.

"It was just a case of making up my mind that I could do it. I became interested in mechanics rather than milking the herd of cows we had on the farm."

Graper's pact to be finalized

The contract with the new city manager was expected to be signed by Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs before the end of this week.

City commissioners were given copies of the final contract for review Monday night.

The mayor had earlier been authorized by the commission to sign the contract and was expected to as soon as the review was completed.

To expedite the signing, Mayor Childs said each commissioner would talk with her individually after reviewing the document and she would sign once a consensus had been reached.

The contract is effective Dec. 1, 1979, and will expire Nov. 20, 1980. Some of the major provisions, announced earlier, include:

- An annual salary the first year of $37,500.
- A review of the salary at the end of each contract year to determine if performance justifies a merit increase.
- A monthly car allowance of $175 with provision that the manager must purchase his own car and maintain it, and obtain his own insurance rather than driving a city-owned vehicle. The manager shall be reimbursed for expenses incurred while out of the city on city business.
- A contribution toward the purchase of a private retirement or deferred compensation. The city contribution will equal seven percent of base salary.
- Fringe benefits received by other non-union city employees including life insurance in the amount of twice the annual salary.

Ypsi speeds past Rock cagers, 66-57

Monk scores 32

By BRAD EMONS

An explosive third quarter carried Ypsilanti to a 66-57 basketball win Tuesday night over Plymouth Salem.

It was the first loss of the year for Salem, which had gained a No. 9 state rating in the Detroit News and a No. 10 spot by the Detroit Free Press.

Trailing 32-27 at halftime, the run-and-gun Braves took command in the third quarter.

Salem was outscored 24-12 in the period as the Braves turned numerous Salem mistakes into baskets.

Ypsi guard Fred Cofield got things rolling with his deadly jumper in the second half. His shot with 4:10 to go in the third quarter gave the Braves their first lead of the night, 39-38.

Salem never recovered after that despite some golden opportunities in the final minutes.

"This is as good of team as we've played," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We didn't deal very well with Ypsi's strengths.

"We seemed to be a step behind. Their offensive board game hurt us and we didn't deal with their zone.

"We didn't lose because of a lack of effort. We just didn't stay in our framework of what we can do and execute."

YPSI COACH Dick Ouellette credited a diamond press with bringing his team back.

"We were getting beat back a lot," explained Ouellette about his team's play in the first half. "So we changed our press in the second half and that seemed to move us up.

"We got better position in the second half and kept (Howard) Monk off the boards. Salem is a good, aggressive team that is well disciplined."

The loss spoiled a fine effort from Monk who scored a career high 32 points while grabbing seven rebounds. His hard-nosed play in the second and third quarters kept the Rocks close.

Ypsi stretched its lead to 51-44 at the end of three quarters and seemed to control the tempo until the final three minutes when Salem made a last ditch charge.

Monk's two free throws with 2:17 left cut the Ypsi lead to 61-55. Five seconds later Salem guard Mike Sharp stole the inbounds pass and was fouled. He failed to convert his one-and-one attempt, but Salem stole the ball again. A Rock turnover, however, killed any hopes of a comeback.

Ypsi reserve Buddy Powell then scored the next three points to put the game away.

"We played well for 30 minutes," said Thomann. "I think our young guys really learned a lot from this game. We didn't get the ball inside against their zone and played a perimeter passing game."

NOW 4-2 OVERALL, Ypsi shot extremely well from the field hitting 31 of 60 for 51 percent. Salem connected on just 17 of 48 for 35 percent.

Salem held an edge in team rebounds, 25-24.

The Rocks looked solid in the first quarter taking a 14-12 lead. Two free throws by Sharp with 2:07 left in the second quarter put Salem up 30-23, their biggest advantage of the night.

But Cofield started hitting his patented jumper in the final minutes to pull Ypsi back to within five, 32-27.

Monk scored Salem's first 10 points of the third quarter but the Braves kept creeping back.

Ypsi forward Ron Washington stole an errant Salem pass and converted it into a slam dunk which ignited the Braves with 3:46 left in the third quarter, 41-38.

Cofield, who missed practice the day before after being stranded in Oregon on a football recruiting trip, paced the Braves with 22. Washington and Darryl Tipton added 12 and 10 respectively.

Krueger pleased with showing

Salem grapplers burn up mats

By BRAD EMONS

Plymouth Salem captured its own wrestling tourney for the first time Saturday.

The Rocks dominated the 16-team field with 205 points. Westland John Glenn was second with 154½ followed by Trenton (146) and Farmington (5).

Salem coach Ron Krueger was all smiles as a result of his team's fourth straight invitational title this season.

"Our kids rose to the occasion," said Krueger. "We wanted to win our own tourney. I'm surprised and pleased. This is the best we've done this year."

Salem had the tournament wrapped up even before the finals, which drew a large crowd.

Jim Schultz (21-2 record) of Salem won the 107-pound weight class with an 11-6 decision over Farmington's David Denny. Schultz had pinned three of his previous opponents enroute to the title.

Salem had two other individual winners — Jerry Valchine (140) and Steve Szilagyi (169).

Valchine downed Keith Briggs of Bay City Western in the finals while Szilagyi gained revenge by beating Plymouth Canton's Dave Vaughan, 3-1, in dvertime.

In the Canton Invitational two weeks ago Vaughan decisioned Szilagyi in the finals, also in overtime.

"SZILAGYI beat three real good kids," Krueger said. "He did a super job in this tournament."

Canton coach Dan Chrenko was not happy with the officiating in the Szilagyi-Vaughan match which ended in a 7-7 tie during regulation time.

Chrenko said Szilagyi gained a takedown point while Vaughan was adjusting his mask.

"I don't want to take anything away from the Salem wrestler," said Chrenko. "But I thought the officiating was poor in that match. Dave's mask popped off and he went to adjust it. He then was taken down."

The loss snapped an 11-match victory string for Vaughan.

Salem had three other wrestlers in the finals.

Farmington's John Murphy raised his record to 15-3 by decisioning Salem's Jeff Brown in the finals, 5-3, at 121 pounds.

Dave Drouillard of Dearborn Heights Annapolis won an 8-3 decision over Salem's Mark Ross at 128 pounds. Ross' record dropped to 22-2.

Farmington's Greg Lemanski took the 187-pound division with a cradle pin against Salem's Jeff Powers at 4:29. Both wrestlers have only two losses between them this year.

JOHN GLENN had two individual champs — Gary Balack (200) and Ken Hodges (157).

In the final match of the night, Black defeated Bay City's Bob Rugenstein, 5-3, while Hodges lifted his record to 12-3 with an 11-2 decision over Trenton's Steve Pierce.

"We felt we did a pretty good job," said Glenn coach Bob Lusk. "This was a well-run tourney with a lot of good individuals. Gary (Black) did a good job. This is only his first year on the varsity."

Another Glenn finalist was Pete Bologna (100) who lost to Al Prusac of Annapolis, 7-0. Prusac showed some quick moves in winning the championship.

Bloomfield Hills Lahser, which finished ninth overall, got good performances from John Segula (114) and Joey Levier (134). Both won titles.

Segula beat North Farmington's John Donoven with a 10-6 decision in the finals while Levier edged Glenn's Greg O'Neil, 1-0. Levier also got by Southfield-Lathrup's Allan Oppenheim in the semifinals, 1-0.

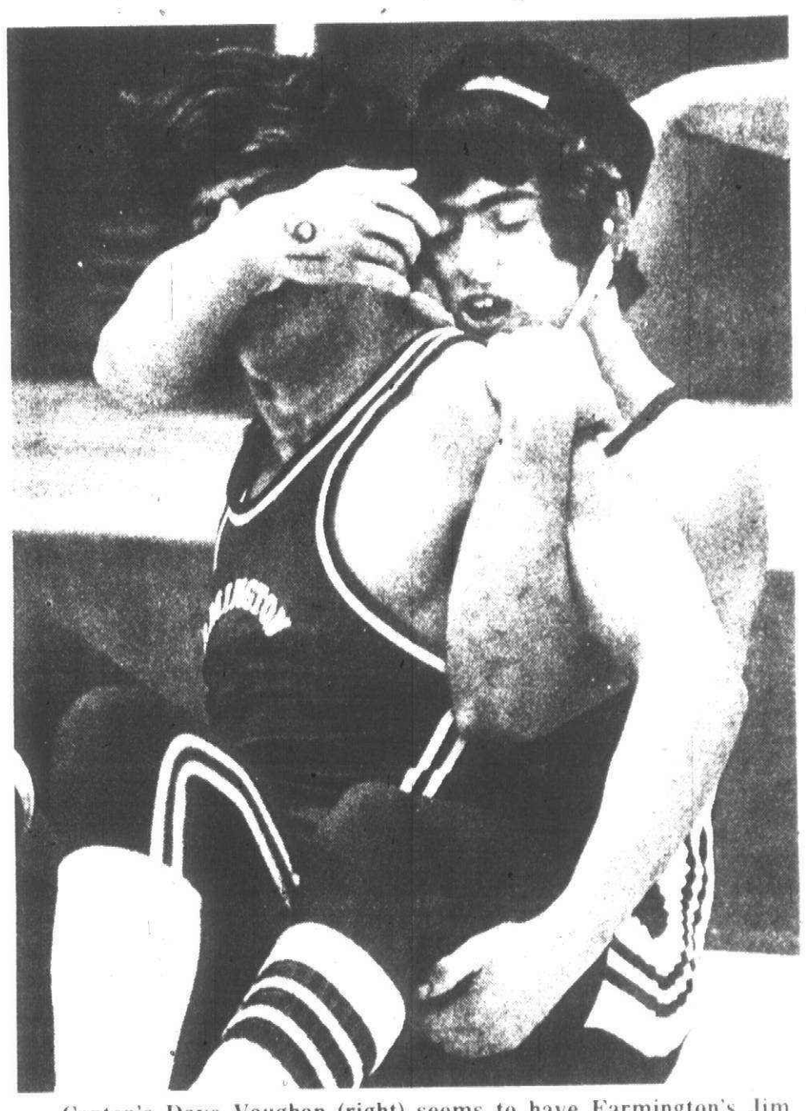

Segula, who placed sixth in Class A last year, now sports a record of 13-2.

The tournament's most valuable wrestler, Scott Rechsteiner (147) of Bay City was impressive in the finals as he pinned Ypsilanti's Mike Marsh in 5:33.

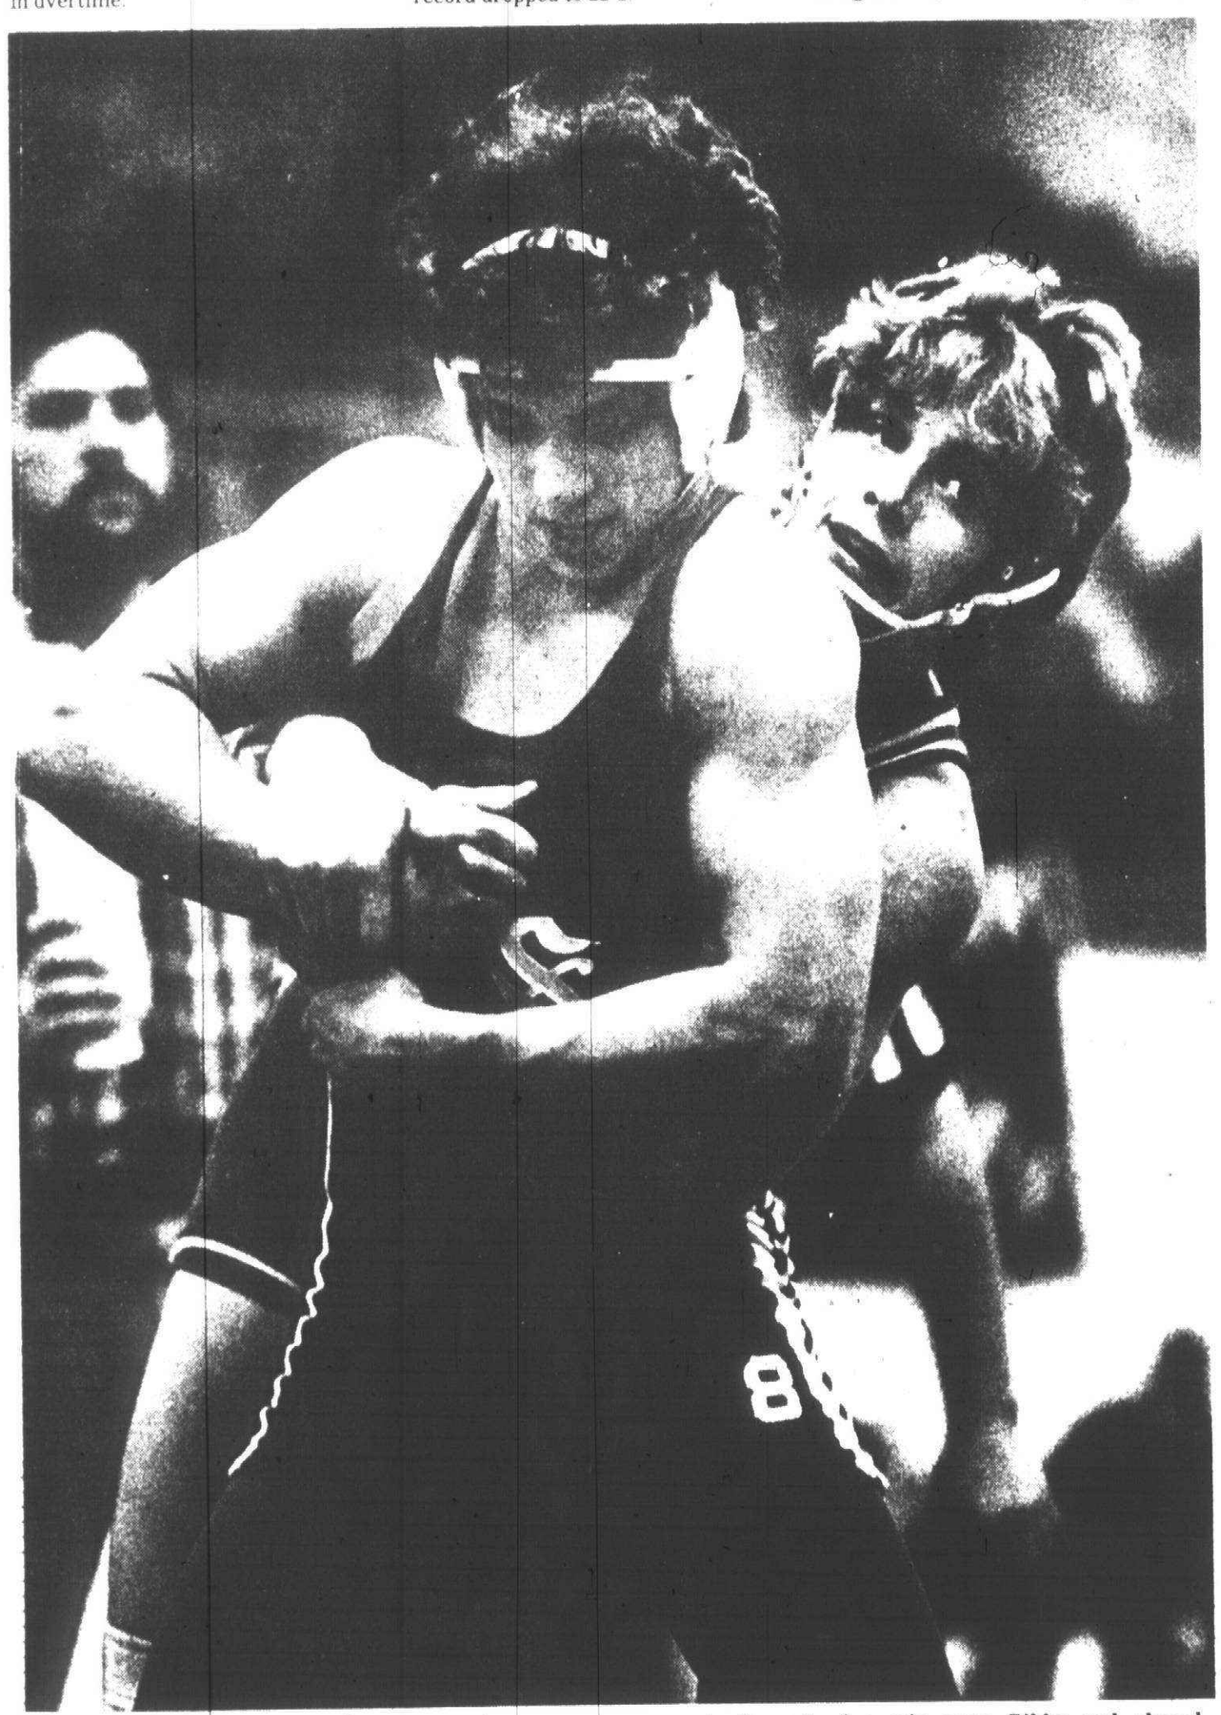

THE HEAVYWEIGHT final went to Ypsilanti's Scott Slusser who kept his unbeaten streak at 16 in tact with a 5-2 decision over Mt. Clemens' Shawn Thacker.

'Our guys really wanted to win their own tournament.'

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL

Flashback

In January of 1974, Plymouth Salem Coach Fred Thomann promoted a young lanky 6'6" sophomore to the Varsity basketball club. Prior to January he had been playing with the JV's. All the tall transfer from Peoria, Illinois did on January 9, 1974, was lead the Rocks in scoring, rebounding and assists as Salem drubbed Farmington Harrison 64-44. The victory boosted Salem's record to 6-2. The player was Jim Ellinghausen, now a member of the Big Ten leading Ohio State Buckeyes.

Chiefs drop 4th straight

Farmington stuns Canton, 65-48

By STEVE GRAY

Farmington took command from the opening tap and cruised to a 65-48 non-league basketball win Tuesday night over Plymouth Canton.

The loss left the Chiefs with a 2-4 overall mark while Farmington upped its record to 2-4.

The Falcons never trailed in the game as they jumped out to a quick 10-point lead and carried a 20-10 halftime advantage into the dressing room.

The Chiefs could come no closer than eight points twice in the second half when junior forward Sean Houle made a layup early in the third quarter and when teammate Dave Visser canned a 20-foot jumper toward the end of the period.

Farmington, however, stretched its lead back to 14 points in the final quarter to win.

This was by far the worst game of the young season for the Chiefs, who had four starters in the doubles figures.

Senior guard Scott Adler led with 12 points followed by Visser, Houle and Weston who all netted 10 apiece.

Jeff McGrath, a 6-4 forward, paced Farmington with 17 while teammate Jerry Liphardt added 13.

"We didn't come ready to play," said a dejected Canton coach Craig Bell.

"THERE'S NO way you can win if you don't prepare," he said.

"Thinking about what you're going to do and doing it are two different things. We've got to meet the challenge as players and as a team.

"Tonight we didn't do that."

The loss was especially disappointing to the Chiefs because it's their fourth in a row. They now face Farmington Harrison on the road in the crucial Western Six League game tomorrow at 8 p.m.

"We have to get ready right now to play in the Western Six," Bell said. "Now we're going to find out what tough parts we have left as a team."

Bell said that he doesn't know about any possible lineup changes for Friday night, but he maintained there will be a definite re-evaluation of personnel before the Harrison game.

'We have to get ready right now to play in the Western Six League.' — Canton coach Craig Bell

Farmington coach Rich Roy was pleased that his team started 1980 with a victory.

"We kind of blitzed them right off the bat," he said. "Our point guard Bill Lehman made three baskets right at the start. Everything just went right at the beginning of the game."

The Falcons shot 26 of 50 from the floor for 52 percent and hit of 18 from the line. Canton hit 10 of 11.

Farmington had an edge on the boards as McGrath hauled in 13 rebounds and Liphardt had 10.

Chief spikers trip Northville

The Plymouth Canton girls' varsity volleyball team started its season Monday night by defeating the Northville Mustangs 15-7, 15-7 in the season opener.

After overcoming the opening game jitters that gave the Mustangs a fast 5-0 lead, the Chiefs shot back with the control that landed them a second place finish in the Western Six Conference last year and a first game victory Monday night.

"We needed to concentrate more on serving in the first game as well as our positioning on the court although the coverage was much better than I expected," said Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein.

During the second game the consistent serving from seniors Mary Reardon and Mary Fidler proved to be the strong points in the Canton game plan.

Reardon and Fidler also lended their talents to the squad offensively with many well-placed spikes as did senior Claudia Williams.

"We're still having problems with our sets but Debbie Dickenson did a good job for the first game," said Burnstein. "Defensively both teams did a good job, but I think we moved faster and with more confidence."

Northville had lost its main power from its starting six players because of graduation and haven't yet built up a team that could overcome the Chiefs, said Burnstein.

Although the varsity managed to earn the league win, the Canton junior varsity wasn't as lucky, losing to the Mustang reserves in the best two-out-of-three match, 16-14, 7-15, 9-15.

Canton's next match is scheduled for Monday night against Livonia Churchill, the Western Six League defending champions. Game time is slated for 7 p.m. with the junior varsity and the varsity match at 7:45 p.m. The game will be played at Churchill located on Joy and Newburgh roads.

Salem divides swim meet

Redford Catholic Central came out on top in a triangular swim meet Tuesday at Redford Union.

The Shamrocks rolled up 126 points to Plymouth Salem's 97 and host RU's 58.

The split leaves Salem with a 2-1 overall mark. The Rocks will host Redford Thurston Thursday at 7 p.m.

Bruce Harwood was the only individual winner for Salem. He took the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:02.00.

Salem also won the 200-yard medley relay with a clocking of 1:48.00. The team consisted of Harwood, Jeff Stella, Dave Hopper and Kirk Albert.

Gaining individual second-place finishes for the Rocks were Joe Rudelic, diving, 163.9; Albert, 100-yard butterfly, :57.1; Stella, 100-yard breaststroke, 1:06.5; Russ Shaffer, 100-yard freestyle, :52.6.

Taking third places for the Rocks were Tim Harwood, 200-yard individual medley, 2:12.3; Hopper, 50-yard freestyle, :24.2; Joe Hulack, diving, 159.0; Steve McKenna, 100-yard breaststroke, 1:08.9.

Softball tilt set

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department will host its first Groundhogs Day Slowpitch Softball Classic, Feb. 2-3 at Griffin Park.

The first eight teams which submit entries will be accepted into the tourney. Teams are limited to 18 players with a maximum of four non-Canton residents allowed.

Each team must pay an entry fee of $20. The fee includes softballs, umpires and team trophy.

Registration will take place at the Canton Township Parks and Recreation office, 1150 South Canton Center Road. The entry deadline is Friday, Jan. 25 at 5 p.m. The drawing will take place on Monday, Jan. 28.

For more information call 397-1000.

SKI CLINIC SLATED

The Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department will host three cross country ski clinics Jan. 17 and 29 and Feb. 13.

The clinic will be held at the Canton Township administration building, 1150 South Canton Center Road, and fields immediately adjacent.

All three clinics will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The cost is $3.50 per person with your own equipment and $5.50 per person which includes skiis, poles, boots and certified instruction from the Sportventure staff in Plymouth.

Each class is limited to 50 persons. All spots must be reserved two days prior to each clinic.

For more information call 397-00.

BOXING TOURNEY SET

The Ann Arbor Boxing Club and the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) will host a Golden Gloves District Tournament in March.

The tourney will cover Monroe, Washtenaw, Lenawee and Livingston counties.

Those interested in participating should call Stacy McKinley at 662-6265 or 434-4540; James Horn (Adrian) (517) 263-8402; Joe Gramo (Monroe) 241-6623.

The Ann Arbor Boxing Club produced the 1979 Golden Gloves state middleweight champ, Mickey Womack.

The winners of the Ann Arbor tourney will advance to Detroit for the state finals.

TEEN SKI WEEKEND

A teen ski outing has been planned by the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department, Friday, Jan. 18 at Alpine Valley.

The cost is $8 with equipment and $14 without. Each participant must sign a waiver form upon registration.

The cost also includes transportation and supervision by the Canton Recreation staff.

Skiers will leave the Canton Township administration building parking lot at 5 p.m. with the return slated for 12 midnight.

For more information call 397-00.

Report best tank times

Swimming and basketball coaches are encouraged to begin reporting their best performances of the season to a couple of area coaches who have volunteered to keep track of the weekly listing.

Swimming coaches should contact Keith Wright, Livonia Bentley coach, Friday or Monday mornings at 422-3070. He will be charting swimming and diving efforts.

Basketball coaches should contact Fred Price, Livonia Churchill coach, noon to 2:30 p.m. Mondays at 261-7300 ext. 257. He will be charting scoring and rebounding leaders.

Coaches are reminded that the weekly listings, which will be published in the Observer Newspapers, will only be as good as their cooperation.

The following schools are eligible: Westland John Glenn, Garden City West, Garden City East, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Franklin, Churchill, Clarenceville, Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Detroit Catholic Central, Redford Union, Redford Thurston, Redford St. Agatha, and Redford Temple Christian.

Area basketball roundup

Eagles clipped in triple overtime

"We really had a barnburner over here tonight," said Redford Thurston basketball coach Gary Fralick, understating the emotion-draining 69-67 triple overtime loss to Dearborn.

The Eagles, now 3-2, had their chances for an upset over their taller non-league opponents. Thurston had a 57-52 lead with two minutes left in regulation time. Dearborn, with its back to the wall, rallied and finally tied the score at 57 at the end of 32 minutes of play.

The teams traded baskets in the first overtime and it was 59-59. In the second overtime, the Eagles again had a chance to win. Mark Maddock, the game's leading scorer with 22 points, was on the line for two free throws.

But Maddock missed both shots and the score remained at 59, leading to a third overtime.

Brad Trask ended the marathon game by sinking two free-throws in the final minute of the third overtime to give Dearborn its winning margin. Trask led Dearborn with 21 points.

Thurston had a well-balanced scoring attack. Along with Maddock's 22, Bob Simon had 16 points, Darren St. Ledger 12 and Rich Rudd 11. Six of Simon's points came in the overtime sessions.

Fralick was disappointed by the loss, but was proud of his troops for the fine effort. "It was probably our best ball game of the year," he said. "The kids played their hearts out. Bobby Simon played a tremendous game. We got a big lift from our bench, John McFarlan, Bruce Webb, Steve Polidori and Tim Fredericks.

"We put the ball in the hoop pretty well. We had a lot of patience on offense. If we could have hit some crucial shots at the end of regulation and in overtime, I think we would have won. I know we would have won."

The Eagles return to Northwest Suburban League action Friday, when they travel to North Farmington.

Thurston's JV lost its game 53-28.

LIVONIA STEVENSON came out from its holiday break with a vengeance, putting it all together with an 85-55 trouncing of city rival Livonia Franklin.

The first quarter ended in a 15-15 tie. Then, the Spartans started their fireworks.

Stevenson outscored the Patriots 26-12 during the second period to take a 41-27 lead at the half. The Spartans did more of the same in the third quarter and extended their lead to 62-35 as the reserves saw plenty of action.

The Spartan duo of Dave Hall and Evan Lyall was too much for Franklin to handle. Hall, the 6-4 center, devastated the Patriots with 24 points and 20 rebounds. Lyall, a 6-3 forward, followed closely with 19.

Franklin didn't place any scorer in double figures. Jeff Wojcik paced the Patriots with nine points.

"Our kids reallly hustled out there," said Spartan coach George Van Wagoner. "I have to give them a lot of credit.

"We're playing better defense and we're playing together more. Everybody played. Our kids really did a job."

The Spartans will face Inter-Lakes League foe Walled Lake Central on the road Friday.

Stevenson's JV took an 80-69 win over the Patriots.

CLARENCEVILLE evened its overall record at 2-2 with a 51-43 non-league victory over South Lyon.

The Trojans made up a 32-28 third-quarter deficit with a 23-point outburst during the final eight minutes.

Russ Ivanac scored 18 points and had six assists for Clarenceville. Dave Moscoe chipped in 14 points and Kevin Hearndon nine.

The Trojans will open the Metro West Conference portion of their schedule Friday at Woodhaven.

Defense lifts Rocks

By TOM ZAIBEK

Holding Farmington Harrison scoreless in the first period and allowing only six points the entire half, stingy Plymouth Salem's junior varsity basketball team rolled to their sixth straight victory Friday, 46-19.

Harrison was no match for the quick Rocks as Salem opened a 23-6 halftime lead with Jeff Hubert, Norm Haygood and John Kelliher doing most of the damage.

All 11 Salem players scored in the game.

Pleased with the victory, Salem coach Bob Blohm said, "The boys are working hard and playing well together."

Kelliher led the balanced scoring attack with nine points while teammates Geoff Baker nad Haygood each added eight.

CHIEF FRESHMAN WIN

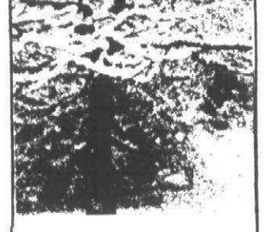

Mike Von Behren scored 18 points to power the Plymouth Canton freshman basketball team to a 55-38 season opening win over Farmington Warner Tuesday afternoon.

The Chiefs also got 10 points from Tim McFarland and nine from Mike Scarpello in the victory.

The growth of league bowling in the metropolitan area has been so great in the past decade that it has crowded out the keenest competiton the old game ever has known. It is the passing of the match game championships.

Years when the Stroh team dominated the game and had such rivals as the Paris Cleaners, Pfeiffers, E&B, and a few others, people flocked to the lanes Sunday to watch the big battles.

But steadily the leagues grew. No longer was Sunday a dull day. Finally, there was little room left for the top teams to vie for honors — and cash. It was the same with the doubles and singles match games. They are only memories now. they were great shows when we had them.

STEADILY Dave Hamilton, the Farmington youth who has been tumbling the pins, is building a great name for himself. With his steady shooting, he now is considered one of the best of the young bowlers.

During the past week he added another 700 series to his record. Bowling the doubles at Farmington Lanes he put together games of 265, 245 and 223 for 733. It was the second 700 of the week at Farmington Lanes as Kevin Holmstrom, who turned in a 716 in the mixed classic. He opened with a 265, followed with 239 and 212 to set the pace. His nearest rival was Dan Perko with 673 and Sandy Reed followed with 602.

In the Saturday league Berry Van Dike had a middle game of 243 for a 643 series to take scoring honors.

THERE WAS a real oddity last week at Bel-Aire Lanes when two bowlers, competing in different leagues, each came up with a 703 series. Lem Petroff did it in the Mixed league and had a high game of 258. Then, in the Classic, Bill Green had the identical figures with a 258 in 703.

SCORING FELL OFF a bit at Westland Bowl as only one 700-barrier-breaking series was posted. It was the work of Lee Snow in the Little Caesar Classic when he linked scores of 248, 236 and 265 for a 749. He far outscored Ken Kossick who landed second with 688 and Dick Beattie placed third with a 682.

On the ladies side Aleta Rzepecki showed the way with 593 and Denise Rathbun was the runner up with 575.

THOUGH SHE DIDN'T win a game, Lois Merriman took top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic. She won the series with 534-84—618. In the individual games Georgiana Kerwin won the first with 176-41—217, Marion Keath took the second with 187-32—219 and Ruth Case took the final with 180-33—221

LADY LUCK frowned on Jim Bowman in the Monday morning league at Westland. After piling up 11 strikes — one short of a perfect game — he left the 3-6-7-10 on his final ball and had to settle for a 296, and a 650 count.

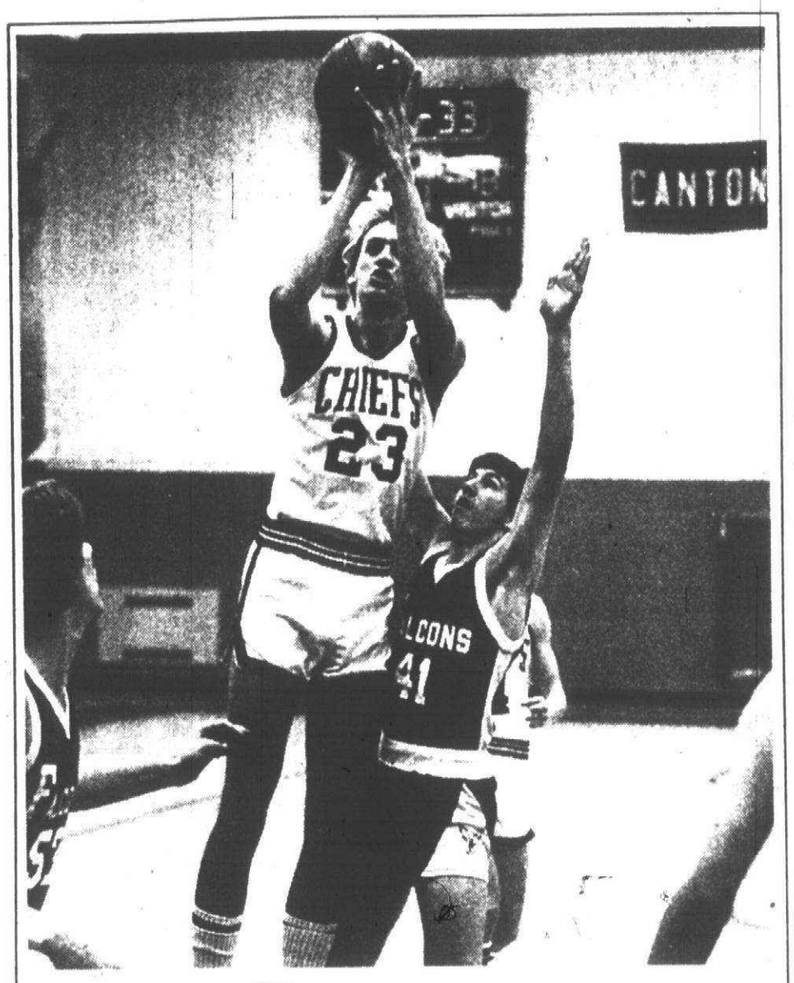

John Hurley was high man with a 278 in 680

WHEN IT COMES to close finishes you can't beat the one offered at Garden Lanes last week when only one pin separated the top three bowlers.

David Bozner and John Kenura tied for top place with 615 in the Friday men's league and Bob Baron was only one pin behind with a 614 to take runner-up honors.

In the Vinco League Robert Richard was top man with 622. That gave him a five-pin margin over Brad Lackey and John Tatalian who tied at 617.

SONNY MCCULLOUGH joined the 700 club at Woodland Lanes with his best bowling of the year. He started with a 223, jumped to 235 in the second and finished with a 247 for 702 in the senior house league. He needed that big closing game as Paul Clements was right behind with a 699.

Schoolcraft hosts mat tournament

Upwards of 275 high-school wrestlers will grapple this weekend for honors at the 10th annual Schoolcraft College Invitational, one of the largest meets of the season.

It will take the better part of two days to determine the overall champion.

Competition begins at noon Friday and will probably last until 10 p.m. Action will resume 11 a.m. Saturday and continue to near 5 p.m. The finals will begin at 7 p.m.

Admission is $1 for students and $2 for adults all day Friday. The same price will hold for qualifying rounds Saturday, with another admission needed for the finals, again $2 for adults $1 for students.

Twenty-eight teams are expected to compete. All four Livonia schools — Bentley, Stevenson, Franklin and Churchill — will participate.

Other Observer & Eccentric-area participants are Clarenceville, Garden City West, Redford Union, Redford Thurston, Westland John Glenn, Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Salem, Farmington, Farmington Harrison, North Farmington and West Bloomfield.

Farmington finished first last year with 141½ points, Fenton second, 139½, and Thurston third, 138.

Six mats will be used simultaneuosly during the qualifying rounds.

Churchill pins foe

Livonia Churchill needed some come-from-behind wrestling dramatics Tuesday to spoil Livonia Bentley's bid for its first dual meet victory of the year.

Dave Collier's pin over John Simon in the heavyweight class after 1:40 gave the Chargers a 39-32 win over the Bulldogs. Churchill had to win the last three matches to take the meet.

The Chargers won seven matches, four by falls. Aiding the Charger cause were Ray Bonya, 112 pounds, who pinned Curt Boyea at 1:15; Mike Halagin, 167, who pinned Bob Holstrum at 1:20; and Frank Kenney, 198, who pinned Fred Youclan at 3:25.

Steve Detlari was the only Churchill wrestler who won by decision. He had a 6-3 verdict over Bruce Young in the 126 class. Alan Clemens won by a void (forfeit) at 112 as did teammate Dave Clan at 185.

Arsenal quintet stays unbeaten

Speedy Printing captured its first victory in the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Adult Basketball League with a last second victory over Team No. 6 Monday night.

Keith Baughman connected on the winning shot to give Speedy Printing a 61-60 win. The play was made with three seconds left on the clock and Speedy Printing inbounding the ball from the far end of the court.

League leading Arsenal had little trouble whipping the Plymouth 76'ers, 76-60.

The 76'ers jumped out to an early 12-0 lead, but that advantage quickly disappeared when Aresenal center Kevin Kaseta entered the game.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

by ELLIE GRAHAM

JILL HALLIBURTON, daughter of Lou and Wilma Halliburton of S. Union Street, Plymouth, is in Aranphrathet, Thailand. She is a volunteer at a refugee relocation camp working under auspices of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees.

Jill is the one who was teaching in Japan. She and a friend, Danila, saved enough money to spend a year traveling throughout the Orient. The Halliburtons had heard from her in Singapore and knew she was going to Bangkok. When she wrote to tell her parents about her new undertaking, her first thought was to reassure them of her safety.

She wrote: "The camp, of course, is very safe and not in any danger whatsoever of any kind of attack from the frontier. There are too many nationalities involved in the camp so the Vietnamese know that if they ever tried to shell it they would be in international hot water." This to set her family's worries at rest.

SHE DESCRIBED her work among the refugees:

"I have been working with children in a hospital. It is called the Catholic Relief Service and we are involved in feeding the children who are suffering from malnutrition. There are feedings every two hours and each child is a special case.

"There are about 60 children in our ward suffering from different stages of malnutrition. Some have protein deficient conditions which is your classic extended belly and spindly legs and arms. Others are all skin and bones with hollow cheeks and sunken eyes. They are so weak that we have to lift them up to feed them.

"THERE IS ONE 14-year-old boy who weighs about 30 pounds. I have to hold him in my arms to feed him and he's too weak to even cry. But you can tell by the look in his eyes that it is too painful to even swallow a glassful of milk.

"All of us feel that we have won a major victory every time we get the children through their feeding. Some of the babies can't hold it down so they have to be fed through a tube up the nose or an IV in one of their veins. "I have never experienced anything quite like this. There is so much love and caring from everyone and from our babies and children and their mothers a deep feeling of gratitiude to us for helping them.

"They are really such special, special people.

"A LITTLE BABY in our ward has really won my heart. He is known as 'The bucket baby.'

He was brought into the camp about four days ago by his father who had carried him around in a metal bucket for about one month. At first, when he came to our ward, he couldn't stand up even though he is more than a year old. He is very protein deficient so he has a huge belly and thin arms and legs.

"The mother was killed so there is only the baby, his father, and another brother about 3 years old. The father doesn't know much about child care — he had 10 children but there are now only two. We are trying to teach him and now he washes the baby's clothes.

"He wants to put the children in an orphanage but the other day he asked the ward interpreter if I would take them since I have shown a special interest in them. If I can, I will try to get the two brothers adopted either by another Cambodian family or get them a sponsor in the states.

"It's hard not to become emotionally involved in this situation because you feel so much for these people. They have nothing and it makes you want to give of yourself."

Jill wrote from Bangkok just before Christmas. She was visiting a printer to get materials for posters which, through graphics, will illustrate health care — sort of a sign language procedure.

I've never met Jill Halliburton. But I know she is a very special person.

ED WITMER of Northville was the winner of the snowblower given away by the Canton Lions Club. Wayne residents won the second and third prizes of $100 and $50.

CARL PETERS and Ruth Sherman had high scores at the Jan. 4 party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

THE SCHOOL'S clothing bank is in need of volunteers to help size and mark clothing that has been donated. Call Flossie Tonda, 453-2534, if you can spend a few hours processing the clothes so they can be put out on the shelves and hung on the racks.

Mrs. Tonda said response over the holiday season was terrific, with the bank receiving stacks of new and as good as new wearing apparel. She has been spending every spare moment at the bank at Central Middle School but it is an almost insurmountable task for one or two persons.

Backgammon tournament Saturday

The American Backgammon Club's 1979 champion will be named Saturday night at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, Plymouth Township.

The club, founded in January 1979, will mark its first anniversary by hosting the elimination tournament beginning at 6 p.m. Jan. 12. Trophies and prizes will be awarded the top three finalists and the winner will be dubbed ABC champion for 1979.

A consolation round will be available for those losing their first three rounds.

A buffet dinner and cocktails will be served at 8 p.m. Following the dinner, many players who were not qualified to enter the championships will compete in a round-robin tournament with several top prizes at stake.

THE PUBLIC may join the birthday celebration and enter the round-robin tournament by making reservations with the club. Call 450-5776. A $25 ticket includes the full buffet dinner, a complimentary cocktail, tax and gratuity, and entry fee to the tournament. Fee for club members is $20.

Award ceremonies will take place shortly after midnight.

The club which began with a small nucleus of local backgammon players early last year, soon attracted members from the entire southeastern Michigan area. Backgammon players from the downriver communities on the south, Oakland and Macomb counties on the north, Washtenaw County on the west, as well as metropolitan Detroit and out-lying Wayne County converged on Plymouth for the ABC tournaments.

PLANS FOR 1980 include:

- 6 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 27 — Elimination tournament in the Jolly Miller Lounge, Plymouth Hilton. Open, $8; Novice, $6. Win a weekend for two at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.
- 6 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 3 — Backgammon lessons, "Beyond the Basic;" Ladder competition play begins for 1980 at 6:30 p.m. at the Plymouth Hilton.
- 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 17 — First quarter American Backgammon Club Junior League Tournament at Plymouth Hilton.
- 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 24 — Round-robin tournament at Plymouth Hilton.

Also scheduled for the first week of February is a "learn to play" class at Plymouth Canton High School and Northville High School. In addition, Michael Kloian, club president, and Ken Wroblewski, vice president, will be instructing courses on advanced backgammon play ("Beyond the Basics") at Cranbrook Institute for the entire month of February.

The four-week course will be repeated at Plymouth-Canton High School in April. Mini-classes will be scheduled at the Plymouth Hilton.

LOOKING AHEAD to the summer months, an outdoor backgammon tournament is being planned for June 28 (or June 29 in case of inclement weather) in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

The club will organize Michigan's first Michigan Open Backgammon regional Tournament for September.

Persons wishing more information about club membership or the upcoming events can call Pamela Kloian, club secretary, 459-5776.

'Masculine privilege' may exact high cost

By SHERRY KAHAN

He had found success, so why was he feeling so miserable, so cheated?

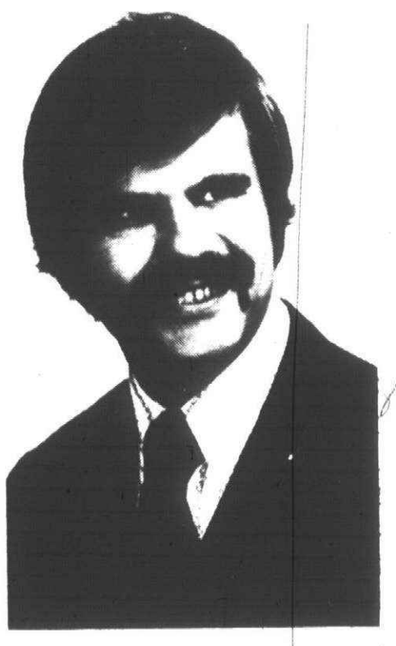

Clinical and educational psychologist Wayne Fisk could tell him.

"Men pay a price for masculine privileges," Fisk said in a recent talk for the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College.

"They become a pillar of strength and develop cardio-vascular disease. The male emphasis on competition and success is so ingrained it will take a revolution to get rid of it. If they are bigger and stronger, they believe they will win all the marbles.

"Men have impregnable armour plating. They seek to dominate and outperform their fellows. They don't question what they give up to win, such as relationships.

"It makes you wonder why, if males are in the favored position, so many complain of being lonely and unhappy."

WAYNE FISK

A LIVONIAN, Fisk is an educational psychologist for the Livonia school district. He also is a therapist at the Family Human Potential Service in Livonia, and has led men's consciousness raising groups at Sinai Hospital.

As Fisk sees Mr. Macho, he is not the muscle-flexing he-man who constantly beats his chest and confines the little woman to the kitchen and bedroom. Fisk's Mr. Macho could be Mr. Everyman occupying any position on the nation's table of organization. He pressing to move up.

He is the man who also must be dominant in the gym or the bedroom.

Fisk, who earned a Ph.D. degree at Wayne State University in clinical and educational psychology, calls masculinity "a short cut to self-destruction." In fact, the topic of his speech was "Is masculinity dangerous to health?"

"There is some malaise in men — we are so into success," he told a mixed audience. "We sacrifice everything getting it."

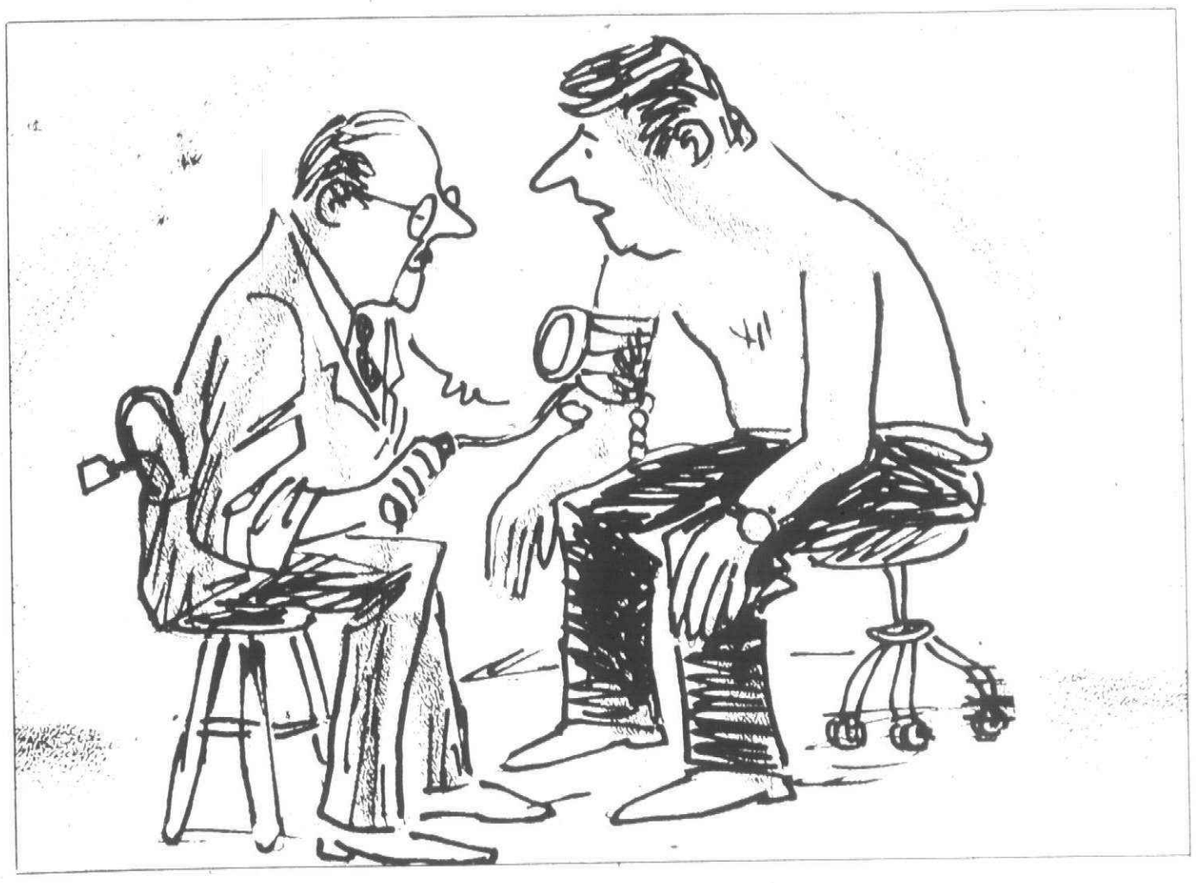

Alcoholism is one of the prices males pay to move ahead. Fisk called it "the broad medication used by men to cope with stress." Under its influence they can show their feelings, even cry. Later they can explain it away as the result of their drinking. They know "big boys don't cry."

"Twice as many men die of heart disease as women," he pointed out in an interview. "Twice as many die of alcohol-related diseases. Men's life expectancy is about 69 years, women's is 77."

HE EXPLAINED THAT men and women died at about the same rate until about 50 years ago, when women began to outlive men.

"We have to question more the way man lives than the way he dies," stressed the psychologist. "He is vulnerable to illness because he has lost the old sources of comfort and support. These would be the extended family, religion and a friendship network."

In their rapid move up the ladder of success, men leave behind their social support system. "Most men complain of not having any friends at all," noted Fisk.

And what has been their reward for knocking themselves out?

From what he has learned from men he has counseled, Fisk can draw a picture of the fate of Mr. Macho.

"He has worked all his life, postponing his own happiness and trying to be a good provider," he said. "Maybe his wife helped him through law school. He went with a good law firm, had a family and worked 40-80 hours a week to make it. When he was made a partner in the firm, he rushed home to tell his wife."

"I want a divorce," she tells him. "I haven't been touched or cared for by you for ages. The kids don't know you. I'll make my own life."

The man is stunned and then bewildered. "I've done everything I'm supposed to do," he says, "and I feel lousy."

MARITAL BREAKDOWN is the cause of cardio-vascular problems in many men, in his opinion. These breakdowns occur because of the attitude of men toward women and sex.

Men have to assume a dominant role with women, Fisk stated.

"Sex is an end in itself, not part of a relationship," he remarked. "It is important to win. The bedroom is another extension of the gym or the Ford Motor Co.

"Unwittingly, women are agents in endorsing this kind of masculinity.

Here are concepts a man can jettison

Psychologist Wayne Fisk has prepared a list of what he calls the 10 commandments of the male mystique. In his opinion, men should forget all 10.

By paying them no more attention, he said, men would be less tense and troubled, more tender. Letting them go might even mean fewer trips to the doctor to ask for help in overcoming stress.

The 10 "false" commanuments are:

- A man does not cry.
- He does not display weakness.
- He has no need for affection, gentleness or warmth.
- He should comfort, but not desire comforting.
- He should be needed but not need.
- He should touch but not be touched.
- He should be steel not flesh.
- He should always protect the image of manhood.
- He should stand alone.
- He should never fail in any endeavor, not play second.

Florida's citrus queen visits cold Canton, Plymouth

By ELINOR GRAHAM

Tom Cowan's workaday world is not exactly boring. Ask any member of the Canton Township Rotary Club. Cowan escorted the lovely Nancy Ness, the Florida Citrus Queen, to the club's Monday luncheon meeting at the Roman Forum.

From there it was a whirl of visits to television and radio talk shows from the early "Good Morning Detroit" through "Kelly and Company" and on to the afternoon shows.

Cowan lives in Sunflower Subdivision in Canton Township with his wife, Sharon, and sons, Scott, 14, and Todd, 10. They have been Canton residents for almost three years.

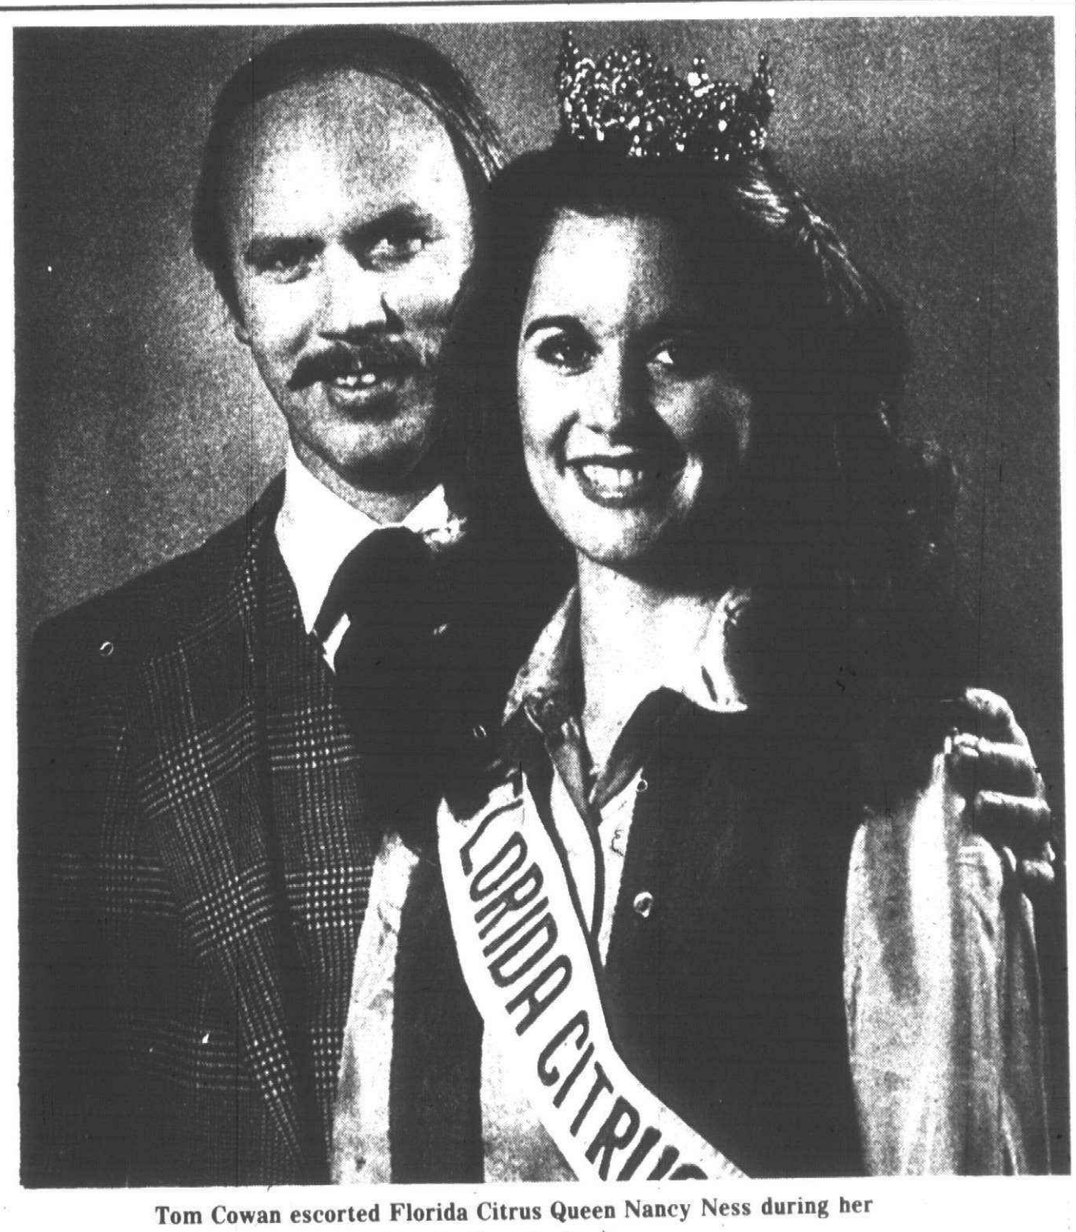

As a merchandising representative for the Florida Department of Citrus, Cowan's territory embraces the Detroit metropolitan area and as far east as Lima, Ohio.

The Florida Citrus Queen's sojourn meant a change of pace for Cowan, who said, "My usual contacts are the retail chains.

NANCY NESS, the 1979 Florida Citrus Queen, stressed that she was ending her reign. The 1980 queen will be crowned at the end of January.

When she headed for Michigan, she was hoping to see snow. Even the sparse sprinkling pleased her. But she wasn't perpared for the cold. For her visits to Plymouth and Canton she wore an old cheerleader jacket under her all-weather (Florida-type weather) coat.

Miss Ness is a student at the University of Florida. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ness of Orlando, Fla. She will complete her studies at the university looking forward to a career in educational television or public relations. She said she enjoyed the obligations associated with her year as goodwill ambassadress for the Florida Citrus Industry. She visited 18 states and "met many wonderful people."

Nurses' role vital in alcoholism treatment

The practicing nurse is in a key position to begin the process of change toward recovery in alcoholics.

That is the appraisal of Wayne Isbell, director of the alcohol education program at Madonna College, Livonia, where student nurses are being trained to accurately assess the symptoms of the alcohol dependent person and intervene appropriately.

Isbell stresses that assessment is the predominant theme of the three alcoholism modules being integrated into the nursing curriculum at Madonna College.

The individual alcoholism modules are designed to conform to the autotutorial format used by the nursing department and are integrated at the proper time into the sequence of courses, complementing the family-centered, episodic-distributive curriculum

IIN THE SOPHOMORE year, designed to be family-centered, the alcohol education modules focus on taking the drinking history of the family and learning to relate the influence of alcoholism on the family as a unit and the members as individuals.

It is in this context that the students deal with the drinking woman as mother, and in turn the effect of alcohol on the unborn fetus. The module also considers the relationship of alcohol to child and spouse abuse.

The junior year stresses the identification of alcohol dependent persons who are hospitalized under other diagnoses, usually complications of heavy drinking, such as gastritis, hepatitis, falls, or burns.

In the junior, or episodic, year, students also focus on the identification and management of the alcohol dependent person, dealing specifically with the acute withdrawal crisis.

Isbell said that one person in 20 dies of alcoholic withdrawal, as compared to one in 1,000 of heroin withdrawal. He cites the previous inability of health professionals to recognize the specific problems of the alcoholic in withdrawal as contributing to the high mortality rate.

The junior level modules help the student assist the patient in the context of the acute care medical ward and develop a plan for alcoholism therapy after the crisis in the medical setting.

THE SENIOR YEAR nursing students deal with the client in the community, as they emphasize the nurse's role in health promotion, disease prevention and leadership. They learn to identify alcohol problems as they are associated with other sociological and family problems, and connect the alcoholic/family with community resources.

The senior nursing student is trained as an educator and counselor, as well as community alcoholism prevention specialist.

In addition to dealing with the alcoholic as patient, student nurses at Madonna College must assess the potential problems they might experience with alcohol addiction as professional nurses. Of the 70 percent of nurses who drink on a regular basis, approximately 10 percent are alcoholics, if nurses represent the total population.

Isbell joined Madonna College in the fall of 1978 to begin the first of a three-year alcohol education program. He served previously on the National Council on Alcoholism, Greater Detroit area for 2½ years. He has worked with the City of Detroit Health Department, Bureau of Substance Abuse, in developing a citywide plan for controlling alcoholism.

Nursing is the second program at Madonna College to be modified to include alcohol education modules. The first, criminal justice, was integrated with alcohol education material to acquaint law enforcement personnel with the realities of dealing with alcohol problems on the job, as well as familiarizing them with the treatment facilities available to the alcohol dependent person.

In the third year of the program, students in the college's psychology or education major will be introduced to alcohol education as future teachers and students of psychology.

The goal of the Madonna College alcohol education program is to provide graduates of the career-oriented liberal arts college with the basic knowledge of alcohol problems relating to their field.

The project was initiated with the support of funds from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Canton Chatter

By SAM NICHOLS 397-0429

Italians out-sing the Irish

On the evening of Dec. 23, several couples from People's Church of Canton attended the second annual progressive dinner. Arriving at the home of Tom and Pat Meadows in Livonia, the hungry diners enjoyed punch and several varities of appetizers.

A bountiful do-it-yourself salad bar awaited the group at Elaine and Harvey Heneveld's in Canton. JoAnn and Jerry Hazel served the main course in their Canton home. To the delight of all, a succulent roast beef dinner, complete with rolls and vegetables, was the main entree.

Late in the evening, the group proceeded to the home of Randy and Kathy Barr to enjoy three choices of dessert and coffee. Happy and satiated, the couples then made their way home, anticipating next year's holiday progressive dinner.

Those enjoying the feast were: Ed and Julie Ervin, Harvey and Elaine Heneveld, Jeanne Smuda, Mike and Marty Sprecher, Jim and Ruthann Tromeur, Phil and Norma West, Art and Cheryl Nichols, Randy and Kathy Barr, and Jerry and JoAnn Hazel, all of Canton.

Other members of the People's Church of Canton who enjoyed the evening were: Dan and Bonnie Schripsema of Plymouth, Harry and Heide Noyes of Westland, and Tom and Pat Meadows of Livonia.

THE CANTON Lion's Club had a Christmas party and dinner in early December at Greenfield Village. The event was planned by the club's first vice president, Frank White and his wife Pam. Mrs. White also put her creative talents to work making party favors for all the ladies. Each of the women received a decorated glass jar full of peppermint candy.

Dinner was preceded by a horse-drawn carriage ride and a walking tour of five or the restored homes in the village. The homes the group toured included the Noah Webster Home, the Ann House, and the Edison home, which were all decorated for the holidays in the style of their times.

Club members and their wives enjoyed a delicious dinner of Cornish game hens with all the trimmings. Club treasurer Pete Peters and secretary Jerry Eicholtz took advantage of the occasion to promote the snow blower contest during the dinner. Their theory was that satiated and happy people don't even want to think about shoveling snow.

MUSIC BY A strolling violinist and accordion player added to the festivity of the occasion. The music also brought out the "Irish" in Bill Loughran when such favorite Irish tunes as "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" were played.

A singing contest developed when Italian club president, Frank Guzzo requested equal time for Italian favorites. Everyone present joined in the impromptu sing-a-long. Victory was finally claimed by the Italians when Frank Guzzo's Italian dance with Pat Peters went unanswered by the Irish group. The good natured contest was enjoyed by all.

Those enjoying the evening included: Joan and Gary Cady, Josephine and Frank Guzzo, Norma and Lew Johns, Doris and Dick Loftis, Joan and Bill Laughrin, Rosemary and Andy Smith, Irma and Bill Razor, the Don Rocheforts, Marge and John Mogelnicki, the Ed Bohanans, and Pat and Pete Peters.

CANDY CANE sales chairman Carl Munir also participated in the festivities, as did Pam and Frank White, the George Raubs, the George Bradleys, the Dave Glazirers, and Jeanette and Grant Campbell.

The Canton Lion's Club has a very serious side also. All money made from their fund raisers throughout the year go to aid the blind. The club recently presented a braile watch to Wilma Kuhn of Canton.

While their Christmas candy cane sales made a profit of approximately $1,300 for the club, they also used the candy to help others in the community over the holidays. The club donated 150 candy canes to the children in the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

The snow blower contest netted the club almost $400. While I purchased a ticket, unfortunately, I did not win. Oh, well, just knowing my dollar went to a good cause will help keep me warm while I shovel my driveway this winter.

Adults should eat better snacks, too

Adults, as well as children, could improve their snacks.

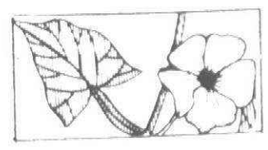

The typical morning coffee break is a case in point. And for some people, it's not just a break, but a breakfast, and a poor one at that. Coffee break snacks would be improved if they included items such as cheese wedges, oranges, fruit juices, milk, cottage cheese with fruit or ready-to-eat cereals.

St. Edith resumes lectures church bulletin

ST. EDITH CATHOLIC CHURCH, 15089 Newburgh, Livonia, will present the Rev. John Castelot of St. John Provincial Seminary in a new series of New Testament talks beginning Friday, Jan. 11.

The sessions, scheduled 9:30-11 a.m. and continuing for four weeks, continue a series Castelot began at St. Edith in the fall. Bob Popoff of the St. Edith adult education committee said his return had been requested by several of the participants in the fall program. Babysitting will be provided during the lectures.

Castelot is professor of scripture at St. John, an institution located in Plymouth Township. He is involved in adult education and continuing education for priests and currently is contributing articles to "Know Your Faith," a series that appears in 90 newspapers in the United States and Canada.

He also is working on a commentary on the biblical book of Revelation which will be published by Consortium Press of Bloomington, N.C.

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia, will install the Rev. Martin Seltz as its new assistant pastor during a service at 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 13.

Dr. Harold Hecht, president of the English Synod of Michigan, will be installing office and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. David Paap, pastor of All Saints Lutheran Church of Livonia. Amy Studt, director of music at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Livonia, will be guest organist, and other area clergy and members of Faith will participate.

A reception in the parish hall will follow the installation.

MARANTHA BAPTIST CHURCH, 44815 Cherry Hill, Canton, will present the SELAH, a mixed quartet from Grand Rapids Baptist College, in a musical program at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 13.

The group is one of six teams sent out by the school which offers a Christian liberal arts curriculum.

NATIVITY UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST, will hear a mission report from Bill and Jane Daniels, who served in China from 1947 to 1951, during its 10 a.m. service Sunday, Jan. 13.

FAIRLANE COMMUNITY CHURCH, Mason and Garrison, Dearborn, will present the Kuglin family from Owen Sound, Ont., in a week of concerts at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 13, through Sunday, Jan. 20.

Guitarist minister schedules concert

Rick Bonfim, classical guitarist and ordained United Methodist minister, will be featured in a concert at 6 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20, in Newburg United Methodist Church, Ann Arbor Trail and Levan, Livonia.

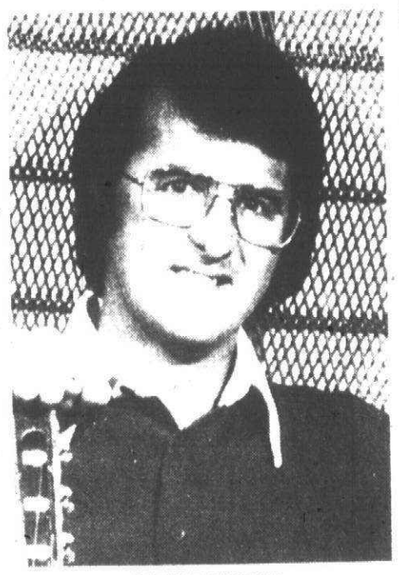

Youth groups from several area churches are planning to attend the event in which the guest will use special effects for a wide variety of musical selections.

The program is titled "Music and Media: My Commitment."

Bonfim, whose home is in Athens, Ga., has been touring the country for UMC visits for 15 years. A native of Rio de Janiero, he also is a composer whose work has been influenced by South Americans Luiz Bonfa and Enicios de Morais.

The visiting musician-clergyman also will lead Newburg worship services at 9:15 and 11 a.m. Jan. 20 and will put on a final program, based on the New Media Bible, following a potluck dinner at the church at 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21.

Bonfim has a degree in psychology from Valdosta College in Georgia and a master's of divinity from Emory University. He also earned a degree in journalism from the University of Georgia and is working toward a master's in speech communication.

RICK BONFIM

Minister to discuss world evangelism

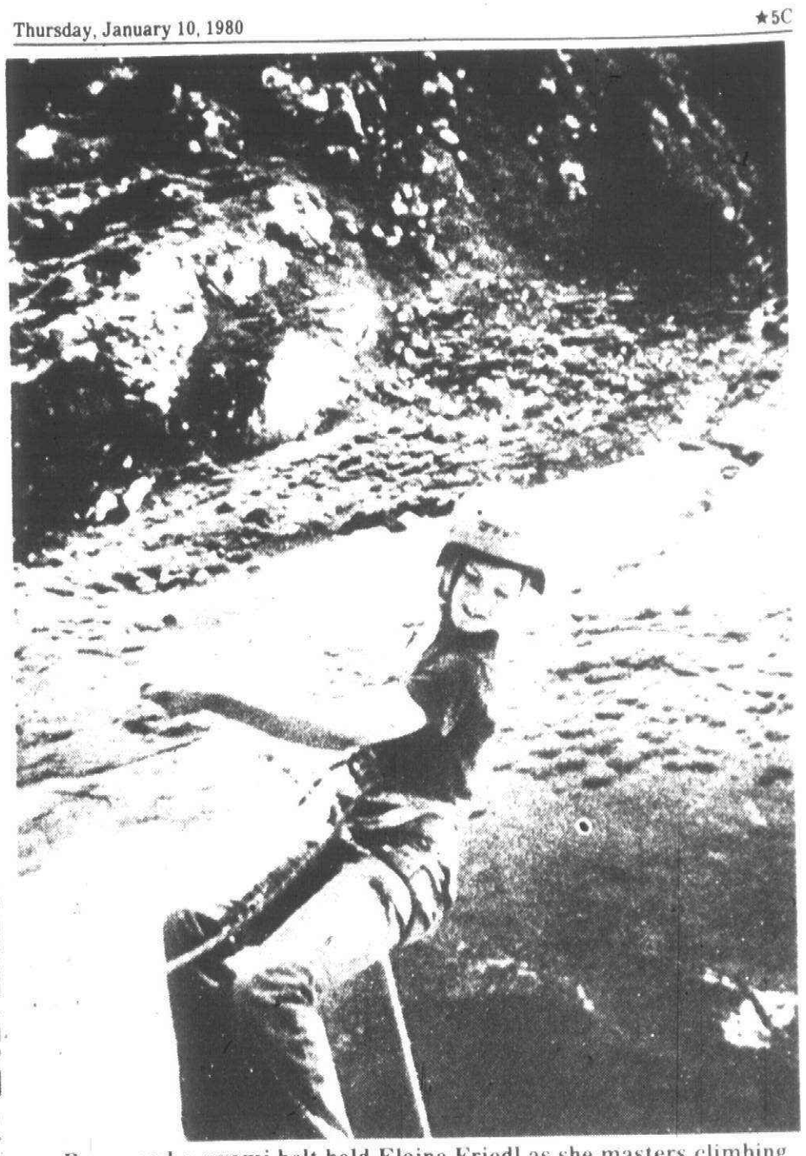

The Rev. Wallace Schultz, associate speaker on the Lutheran Hour, will speak at Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Farmington and Twelve Mile, at 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20.

Music for the service will be under the direction of Renee Beck, church music director. Adult and youth choirs will be augmented by a brass quartet and organ.

The churches of Circuit 20 of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod will participate in the formation of the choirs and worship. The Rev. Charles Boerger, counselor of the circuit, will participate in the service.

The Rev. Schulz has traveled to more than 50 countries in the interest of evangelistic work being done by the Lutheran Layman's League. The league is an auxiliary of the Lutheran Church composed of concerned men and women who support the work of the proclamation of the gospel through radio, televison, tracts and rallies.

A reception for the Rev. Schulz will follow the worship service.

Ropes and a swami belt hold Elaine Friedl as she masters climbing during a 23-day Outward Bound school course in Colorado.

Conquering the mountains, she confronted self

By SHIRLEE IDEN

When you're on top of a 14,000 foot mountain peak, you see so much.

Elaine Friedl saw the brilliance of the planets and even shooting stars. But mostly, she learned a lot about herself.

Ms. Friedl, now 17, took a three-part Outward Bound course in July which took her to the San Juan Mountains in Colorado.

"It was a 23-day course with phases beginning with training and going on to alpine and solo," she said.

"We learned basic mountain climbing, map reading, route planning, repelling and simply how to meet challenges and survive," the Southfield High School senior said.

She was the youngest of nine persons in the course. "Some were as much as 24 years of age," she said.

"We learned what it meant going down the face of a sheer cliff on a rope and also gorge climbing on a swami belt.

"I could turn over and look down into the gorge," she said.

The five men and four women in the group traveled with an instructor and not far from a sister patrol.

"Every day we'd wake up and begin to climb," Ms. Friedl said.

"During the solo part of the course, each person goes out alone for three days and three nights. You have no food, only water, a sleeping bag and a solo tarp, which is like a tent.

"SOLO WAS a time to think about the past, about the things that have made me what I am and think about things I could change," she said.

Fasting was no problem for her — she said she simply didn't think about food.

"But after solo, I ate and ate."

Ms. Friedl decided to try an Outward Bound course after seeing a commentary about it on television. "My Mom picked up some pamphlets for me and then I applied."

The course material says "Nearly everyone encounters some moments of fear, discomfort and self-doubt. The course is not easy, a lot of times it is accomplished with aching body and tension, a night spent in a downpour, a climb to the top of a ridge just so you can come down the other side."

Ms. Friedl found the most important thing was just finding you can do what you set out to do.

"One of my friends said: 'I can't picture you doing that. You're going to fall off the side of a mountain,'" she recalled.

BUT SHE found that building a self-image and learning to face stress were invaluable.

"If you can climb a steep mountain, you can pass a government test," she said.

Even her parents, Margaret and Charles Friedl, had mixed feelings about the experience.

"They encouraged me to go," she said, "but my dad had his doubts about my making it through the course."

In the 23-day endurance test, she lost more than 15 pounds, wore the same clothes each day and never took a bath.

"First thing I did when it was all over was to soak in the bath tub and then eat and eat and eat," she said. "For the next two weeks I couldn't stop eating."

When she isn't climbing mountains or crossing gorges on a swami rope, Ms. Friedl likes to play the flute and belly dance.

She's a member of the marching band at Southfield High and has studied belly dance in classes offered by Southfield Parks and Recreation.

"I also like to horseback ride and I used to play basketball and run track," she said. "And I'm a skiier too, have always been an outdoors person."

Although she hasn't decided where she'll go to college, she is thinking of studying astrology since her close look at the stars.

"I'VE ALWAYS had an interest in the stars," she said. "When I was little I always noticed changes in the moon. Lately I have seen the Northern Lights, but seeing the stars more clearly really defined my interest."

Her Outward Bound course cost $650, but that included a great deal of gear that was provided.

"All we had to bring was boots and everything else was provided," she said.

The course members had to carry heavy amounts of supplies in their back packs including ice axes, ropes, stoves and their food.

"We walked over 250 miles during the 23 days," Ms. Friedl said. "And at the end you run for 10 miles.

"We had to tell time by the sun and I completely lost track of time," she said.

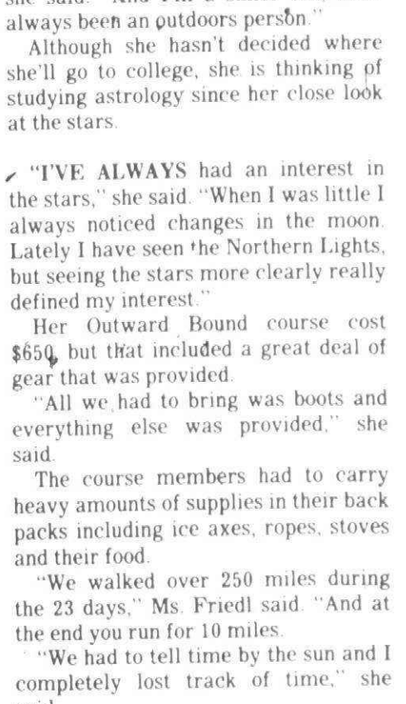

Outward Bound has come under attack from some critics who claim the course can be too rugged, that the lives of the participants may be endangered during some phases.

Would she do it again?

"If I had $650 in the palm of my hand," she said, "I'd go again."

Pastor speaks

The Rev. Ronald Thurner, co-pastor of Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church in Northville, will speak at a 7 p.m. dinner Friday, Jan. 11 to members of the Northville-Plymouth-Livonia Chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship in the Plymouth Hilton Inn. For information call the organization at 459-6950.

Police concerned

Novel based on Oakland child killings

By KATHY PARRISH

After months of writing and editing, author Patricia Welles is always glad to finish a book.

But winding up "Angel in the Snow," her novel based on the Oakland County child killings, was a real relief.

"I got upset as I wrote it," said the Birmingham resident, who recalls forcing herself through "grotesque" scenes she felt were needed to tell the story.

"I'm so happy not to write a book like this again."

Ms. Welles, who says she usually puts a book out of her mind once it's complete, is finding "Angel in the Snow" hard to forget.

As soon as the novel hit tri-county area bookstores last week, it caused controversy. Birmingham Police, who helped the author with her research, voiced concern that it's actual locations and realistic characters might make readers forget it is fiction.

'I didn't want to harm anyone. I knew the book would upset the parents of the abducted children, and I wouldn't recommend they read it.'

— Author Patricia Welles

"I didn't expect the controversy," insisted the author, saying she is baffled and "a little annoyed" by the police reaction. "Maybe I was dumb. Maybe that's my naivete."

Published by Pocket Books, the paperback tells the story of 10-year-old Johanna Miller's kidnapping by a wealthy Birmingham attorney and his friend Billy-boy.

In Ms. Welles's book, the men also abducted the youngsters believed murdered by the Oakland County child killer between February 1976 and March 1977.

"IT'S AS IF the murderers went on to abduct another child," the author explained. "I sprinkled bits of the Oakland County child killing throughout to give it a sense of reality."

It's that reality — locations of actual places in Oakland County — which has gotten her in hot water with the authorities.

"I don't want to be in an adversary position with the police," said Ms. Welles.

"They were very free about talking with me. I never dreamed they'd object.

"I didn't want to harm anyone," she added. "I knew the book would upset the parents of the abducted children, and I wouldn't recommend they read it."

The very serious nature of her latest book is a "departure totally" for Ms. Welles, whose six other publications were all humorously written.

She wrote detective stories as a child growing up in what is now inner-city Detroit, then later in northend Palmer Woods and Sherwood Forest. But she gave up writing when no one encouraged her efforts.

AFTER GRADUATION from Highland Park High School and a year studying English at Wayne State University, she studied acting in New York.

"But I couldn't stand the rejection," admits the animated brunette, who recalls being "more intellectual" then.

"I didn't talk much. Now I don't stop," she jokes.

Ms. Welles started writing again when she discovered she hated acting, but loved improvisation. "It really is writing; you make up your own lines," says the author of a play produced in London.

"I love writing dialogue. The most important thing to me is how people speak to each other; how they relate."

"Babyhip," her first book published in 1967, was about a rebellious Detroit teen. "It was just a story I wanted to tell," said Ms. Welles, who had no hope of getting the book published.

"I did it because I wished to do it and it just seemed to flow easily."

She met a book editor at a party, he liked the book, and it eventually was published in several languages. That "very lucky" break led to more books, her play and a novelization of the screenplay "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice."

ADMITTEDLY A "news addict," Ms. Welles's newest book grew out of her interest in the Oakland County child killings. She had returned to the Detroit area after living in London, Boston, Los Angeles and Spain.

"This is the worst kind of crime — a crime against a child," she explained. "An abducted child is a victim with a capital V. Children want to trust people. They cannot understand that all grownups can't be trusted."

She read everything she could find on the case and taped conversations with the Birmingham police — which she says now she's sorry she didn't keep.

She said she asked Birmingham Lt. Jack Kalbfleisch if he wanted to read the book. "He didn't seem remotely interested in the book. I wanted him to look through it and see if there were any problem areas."

Ms. Welles said she tried not to glamorize the fictional abductors, who she calls "damaged goods."

"I made them out to be as horrible as I could without making them inhuman — they are human beings." She thinks "Angel" has "hardly any sex in it at all."

"I refer to a boy being molested. You can read about that every day in the newspaper, unfortunately," she added.

And she believes the book is very moralistic. "If only it could have happened in real life the way it happened in my book," explained the author.

"PEOPLE THINK we live in a normal world, but we don't. It's a crazy world."

Ms. Welles, who says she wants a "low-profile personal life," is finding it hard to be anonymous these days.

"I'd like to be rich, but not famous," says the divorcee, who insists that at 18 cents a book she's unlikely to become wealthy from the sales of "Angel."

She refuses to talk about her life and the people in it. Admittedly, she's a little nervous about the Oakland County child killer, although she kids about the possibility of him (or them, since she believes two people commited the crimes) reading her book.

She's even vague about her age, saying only she's in her late 30s. "I don't like to lie about my age," she says with a smile.

"But the papers are so snoopy. Thousands of people will read the article and say, 'She's so old!' "

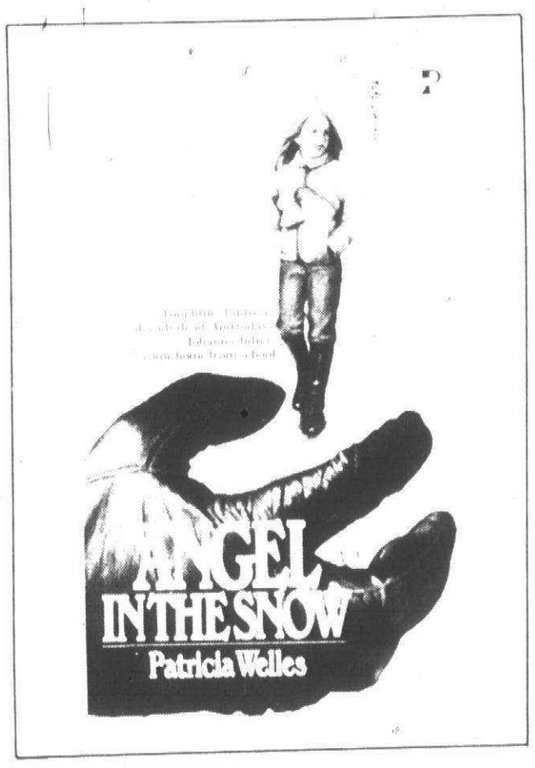

Though she feels the writer's life is insecure and very hard work, she's working on a new book — a humorous "who-done it" set in a Michigan country club. And she's thinking about a nonfiction book and possibly a children's book "with nothing that offends in it."

Meanwhile, she will continue to talk about "Angel in the Snow" — but only when she's asked, she says.

"I like promoting the book if people are friendly," she explained, "But not otherwise. I'm just not that hungry to sell my books."

Book's tale of murders recalls child-killer riddle

By ALICE COLLINS

"It's pure fiction and I hope readers take it as that," is a Birmingham police lieutenant's reaction to "Angel in the Snow," a just-published novel based on the unsolved 1976-77 Oakland County child killings.

Copies of the paperback book by Birmingham resident Patricia Welles are being sold in bookstores throughout the country. It is published by Pocket Books.

Ms. Welles' novel is set primarily in Birmingham. She uses many of the facts and theories surrounding the four kidnap-killings as a place to begin her fictionalized account of a fifth child's abduction.

"There are enough places and facts used in the book that I'm afraid people will start looking at the characters as factual," said Birmingham Lt. Jack Kalbfleisch. "And they certainly aren't.

"If I was in any way related to the families of those children who were abducted and murdered, I would definitely stay away from this book," he added.

KALBFLEISCH, a Birmingham officer involved with the actual case, said he hopes people won't confuse him with Lt. Kott, the Birmingham police lieutenant, who is a main character in "Angel in the Snow."

In an interview early this week Ms. Welles said the Lt. Kott is a composite of the various police officers she interviewed while researching her book "plus my own character."

Ms. Welles said she interviewed Kalbfleisch, Michigan State Police Lt. Robert Robertson, who headed a countywide task force that investigated the crimes, and "other members of the task force."

"Birmingham Officer Tim Gracey got permission to drive me around in a patrol car and describe some of the locations involved in the Timmy King case (the Birmingham boy abducted and murdered)," said Ms. Welles.

"So Kott is a composite of all of them, but more Officer Gracey than any of the others," she said. "He's a darling person who helped me a great deal. If the book is ever made into a movie, I picture Gracey as Lt. Kott.

SCENES IN the book take place at the Birmingham Police Department, at the victim's home in Birmingham, at a house on "Shirley near Linden Park" where two psychotic men imprison their young female victim, along Woodward and other recognizable locations and places throughout the Detroit metropolitan area.

However, names of people and many facts in the cases have been changed. The author has invented many characters to carry out the plot.

The four actual kidnap-killings that serve as a backdrop for the novel occurred between February 1976 and March 1977. The victims, two boys and two girls, were 10-12 years old, were abducted from one South Oakland community and their bodies found in other communities.

The slayings still under investigation are those of Mark Stebbins of Ferndale, found in Southfield in February 1976; Jill Robinson of Royal Oak, found in Troy in December 1976; Kristine Mihelich of Berkley, found in Franklin in January 1977, and Timothy King of Birmingham, found in Livonia in March 1977.

In "Angel in the Snow" Johanna Miller is abducted at a Birmingham candy store on her way home from school.

A major difference in the fiction and actual cases is that Ms. Welles' solves her case.

The reader knows from the beginning that the murderers are "a prominent Birmingham attorney" and his friend, a male nurse.

The author said she invented the two to fit in with theories advanced by police and medical experts as to who could be committing the crimes.

"I made them two deeply sick people. They're not in any way attractive or glamorous."

"ANGEL IN the Snow" is Ms. Welles fifth novel. She grew up in this area, lived several years in Europe, California, New York and Massachusetts, and returned to Birmingham 1½ years ago.

"I came back to the area for medical treatment in 1976 at the time one of the murders took place," she said. "And when Timmy King was murdered my father called me.

"I was horrified by the case and at first I wanted to write a non-fiction book about it," she said. "But the publisher wanted a novel. Now I'm glad it is fiction. That way I didn't have to interview the relatives of the victims. I would have never gotten over that.

"I hope the book scares people and reminds them to warn their children again," continued Ms. Welles. "It's normal for people to get lax. Just because the real killer hasn't struck in more than two years doesn't mean he won't do it again.

"And I found out when I was doing the research that there are so many potentially dangerous people living around us."

If the book is made into a movie, Ms. Welles said she whould love to see it shot in Birmingham.

Ms. Welles is writing her sixth novel, "about a murder at a country club. This one is a satire," she said. The fictional club is Crestwood Hills.

Asked if if will be based in the Birmingham area, Ms. Welles said, "Well, there are country clubs here."

Elliott tours will pay refunds

Elliott Tours Inc. of Farmington Hills has agreed to pay refunds to 30 customers as the result of customer complaints that the travel agency failed to abide by its advertisements.

Elliott also will pay $1,500 to the Michigan attorney general's office for an investigation.

The travel agency, with offices in Birmingham, Southfield, Livonia and Westland, agreed this month to pay refunds ranging from $30 to $800.

According to a statement from the attorney general's office, Elliott will comply with an "assurance of discontinuance" filed in Ingham County Circuit Court earlier this month.

THE COMPANY has agreed to:

- Confirm hotel reservations before chartered tours depart and no longer send tours to hotels which overbook.
- Revise its brochures to warn passengers of possible flight delays and inform tour participants if the agency receives advance notice of a flight delay.
- Assure that photos and information in travel brochures are not misleading.
- Make prompt refunds, in accordance with contract or Civil Aeronautics Board regulations. When the amount refunded depends on how far in advance a cancellation is made, the travel agency will begin counting from the day it receives oral cancellation.

ASSURANCES of discontinuance are legally binding agreements under the state Consumer Protection Act.

In signing the agreement, Elliott Tours does not acknowledge "any wrongdoing or misconduct," according to the attorney general's office, but "agrees to henceforth comply with all provisions of the law."

new voices

Michael and Annetta Murawski of S. Harvey Street, Plymouth announce the birth of their son, Nathan Patrick, Dec. 20, 1979 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. They have an older son, Matthew Kent, 3.

Grandparents are Eugene and Evelyn Murawski of Lockport, Ill. and Earl and Frances Crouse, Urbana, Ill.

Wotaszak-Rostamlo

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wotaszak of Sheridan Avenue, Plymouth, announce the engagement of their daughter Jane Marie to Vahe Rostamloo of Ann Arbor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Khrosro Rostamloo.

The bride-elect is a 1975 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, a 1977 graduate of Schoolcraft College, and plans to graduate in 1980 from Eastern Michigan University with a degree in early elementary education.

Her fiance graduated from Olume High School in 1972 and has served in the military for two years. He is a senior at EMU majoring in business management.

They plan an April wedding in Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church.

New breakfast idea

Need a new breakfast suggestion?

Try serving hot wheat cereal with a small scoop of ice cream and a little maple syrup. the flavor combination is delicious.

Replace toast now and then with buttered English muffins or coffee cake.

And for a good winter beverage, serve piping hot chocolate milk.

Two star clusters dominate skies

The year 1980 began with the earth at its closest point to the sun and with two bright star clusters in view, says University of Michigan astronomy Prof. Richard G. Teske.

"On Jan. 3, the earth, traveling along its ellipse-shaped orbit around the sun, will pass that place in the orbit that lies nearest the sun. We arrive at this point each year in early January," he says.

"Six months later, in early July, the earth is at the place on its elliptical path that is farthest from the sun. The differ ence in the earth-sun distance between the two dates is more than three million miles."

Also in January, Teske notes, two star clusters, the Pleiades and the Hyades, may easily be seen in the constellation Taurus.

According to Greek mythology, he says, the seven Pleiades and seven Hyades were half-sisters, the children of Atlas. Zeus rewarded the Hyades.

Police say it's 'pure fiction'

Women use men for their own self-approval."

For a man to experience passion, he must be intimate with feelings that make him feel vulnerable. Fisk said it is so difficult for some males to admit their vulnerability and their feelings that "many of them withhold the crucial information from their families that they love them."

Mr. Macho is tough on the outside, yet often scared inside, Fisk said. But it is next to impossible for him to admit he is scared and would sometimes like to be hugged.

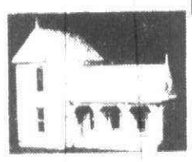

Fisk has little hope that men's view of their role in life could change in the immediate future. But he did receive a modicum of encouragement from a group of males in a men's consciousness raising class he led at Sinai Hospital.

Encore eases trauma of surgery

By NANCY AUSTIN

The American Cancer Society estimates that 1 in 11 American women will know the shock of breast cancer in her lifetime.

Those personally familiar with that data know it is an experience that leaves emotional as well as physical scars.

Some of them meet regularly as part of a program called Encore, sponsored by the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

The sessions, 9-11:30 a.m. Wednesdays and 7:30-9 p.m. Tuesdays, are held in the Wayne Westland YMCA, 827 S. Wayne, Westland, and involve a program in three parts — support discussion, pool exercise and gymnasium exercise.

About 35 women from Westland, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Canton and Dearborn Heights now take part in one of the two groups.

Leslie Frederick, Encore director, said the Western Wayne County Y was one of the first in the country to offer this kind of program.

It was developed, she said, because while mastectomy surgery has taken a turn away from the radical, any kind of breast surgery may leave a woman severly traumatized.

"ANY WOMAN who has had breast surgery is invited to join either of our groups," Mrs. Frederick said. "They can join us as early as three weeks following surgery with the written permission of their physicians."

The discussion part of each session gets into problems the participants may encounter or new developments in the area of breast surgery.

One matter currently being talked about is the new policy by Blue Cross/Blue Shield to cover breast reconstruction surgery.

Lawrence Gareau, spokesman for the hospital insurance group, said hospital costs, which can amount to up to $300 a day for about a week, now are covered under Blue Cross/Blue Shield plans. Surgeons' fees, which range from $500 to $600, are as of Jan. 1 covered for big three auto company subscribers, Gareau added. He said similar benefits are expected to be extended to other subscribers, possibly as early as February.

THE ENCORE program also offers aid to its participants through an advisory board with medical members, Mrs. Frederick said.

"We have speakers who give talks appropriate to the subject matter and we have doctors who can answer questions," she added.

Those interested should not worry about the pool part of the program just because they do not swim, the director stated.

"These are exercises done in shallow water and swimming is not a prerequisite," she explained.

Those who wish to join the Encore program may call Mrs. Frederick at the Western Wayne YWCA, 561-4110.

DR. JOSEPH J. WEISS

Arthritis is topic

Dr. Joseph J. Weiss, assistant professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan, will speak on arthritis research at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, in the Bailey Recreation Center, 36651 Ford, Westland.

The program will be sponsored by the Michigan chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

Dr. Weiss also is assistant director of rheumatology at Wayne County General Hospital and immediate past president of the Michigan Rheumatism Society. He plans to review the current investigation into the causies and possible therapies for rheumatoid arthritis, gout, osteoarthritis and systemic lupus erythematosis.

Call is out for tenors and basses

Calling all male vocalists: The Plymouth Community Chorus needs you.

Auditions are unnecessary for persons wishing to join the Plymouth Community Chorus which meets for rehearsal at 8 p.m. Tuesdays in East Middle School. Director Mike Gross will audition 18-year-olds and under. Those wishing more information can call Mickey Kivell, chorus president, 459-9894, or chorus secretary, Barbara Yamazaki, 455-1248.

The chorus performed its Christmas concert to a capacity audience in the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. This was in spite of a Sunday afternoon snowstorm that could have cut attendance to a bare minimum.

Rehearsals for the spring concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15.

DAVID BROMBERG

David Bromberg leads folk festival

By DENNIS ROSENBLUM

Folk music is alive and well and living in Ann Arbor this weekend for the town's third annual folk festival on Sunday.

Shows are at 2 and 7:30 p.m. in the University of Michigan's Power Center for the Performing Arts. Tickets are $7.50 per show or $12.50 for both, available at the Michigan Union box office or at the door.

Last year's performances sold out the day of the concerts. This year, advance sales have so far been light, according to spokesmen for U-M's Office of Major Events. Tickets should readily available.

Leading both shows is Philadelphia native David Bromberg, a guitar picker who was drawn to the genre by Pete Seeger at age 13, became a regular in New York's Greenwich Village for a few years and began recording albums in 1970. He has since moved both to San Francisco and to a more rock-influenced variety of song.

"I'm not married. I've got no kids," he said awhile back. "I spend my life on the road and I've no hobbies beyond playing guitar, fiddle and mandolin. There's nothing else in my life, so don't mess with it."

Bromberg will appear with accompanists but without the David Bromberg Band (which will be performing in Ann Arbor in April).

ALSO PERFORMING in the afternoon show are Leon Redbone, noted for his use of props and wit; the Red Clay Ramblers, whose music has been described as "the disco music of our forefathers"; and Owen McBride, who offers bawdy Irish songs and soft ballads.

The evening performance, besides Bromberg, will include John Hammond Jr., who uses electric rhythm and blues; Mary McCaslin and Jim Ringer, who have a country orientation; and Hedy West, who sings of the Georgia mountains.

The festival is a benefit for the Ark, a 14-year-old nonprofit coffeehouse in Ann Arbor. All performers have donated their fees.

The mirrored-glass Power Center is on Fletcher at East Huron streets, northeast of the U-M diag. For more information, call 763-5110 in Ann Arbor.

Tenor on tv

Luciano Pavarotti will perform with the New York Philharmonic at 8:30 p.m. Monday on Channel 56 in a 2½-hour concert from the Lincoln Center. Pavorotti will sing arias from Verdi's "La Traviata," Puccini's "Tosca," Donizetti's "L'Elisir D'Amore" and others. The Philharmonic will perform Beethoven's Egmont Overture and Respighi's "Pines of Rome."

A call to sing

The Suburban Chorale is looking for a few good women.

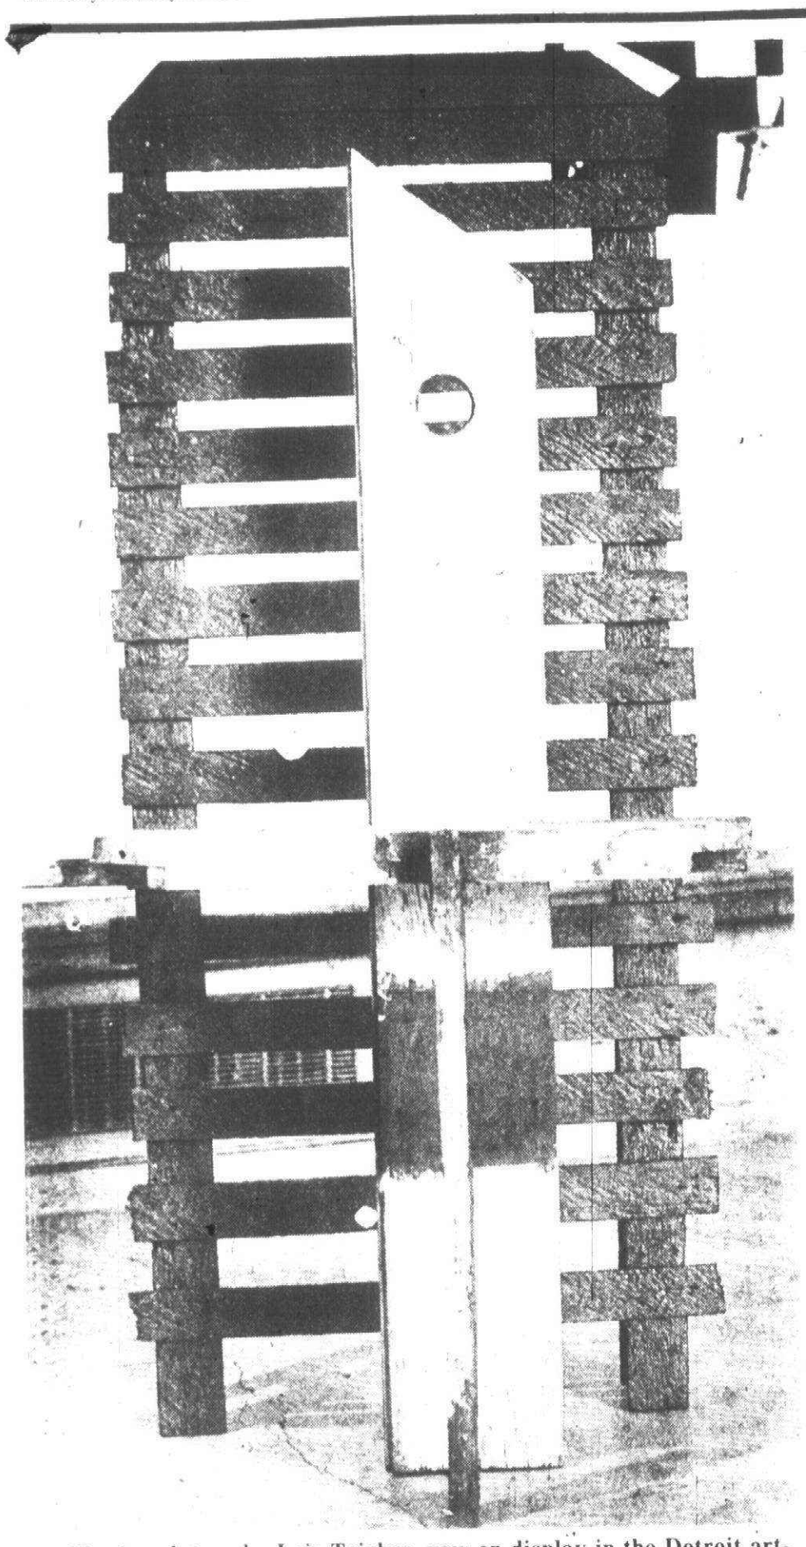

The group, sponsored by the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department, is open to women 18 and older in the Detroit area who like to sing. Members give two public shows each year and entertain at nursing homes and for various civic groups.

Rehearsals are held 7:30-10 p.m. Wednesdays at Clarenceville High School, on Middlebelt north of Seven Mile.

For more information, call Jeanne Thomas at 561-7944 or Eleanor Smith at 427-6804.

In Cranbrook show

An artist's sculpture reflects her views on the role of women

By CORINNE ABATT

The no-nonsense attitude that surrounds everything sculptor Lois Teicher says and does is apparent from the moment she walks through the door.

She creates an impression of positiveness with her trim jean-clad figure, short dark curly hair and classic features which are attractive without benefit of make-up. She speaks easily and fluently without unnecessary adjectives to muddy the ideas.

Mrs. Teicher is one of 21 artists in the exhibit of Detroit artists at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum through Jan. 20. Linking herself with Adam Thomas as "the two unknowns," she said, "I'm very proud to be in the show."

Now in her early 40s, Mrs. Teicher, long-time feminist, Southfield wife and mother of three children, is in the graduate sculpture program at Eastern Michigan University.

Married when she was 18, she returned to school at Wayne State University when her children were very young. She completed her bachelor's in fine arts at the Center for Creative Studies last year and immediately enrolled in the graduate sculpture program at Eastern Michigan University. She has her studio in Ypsilanti which she views as temporary until she completes her master's next year and can relocate her studio in downtown Detroit.

For although Mrs. Teicher is technically a suburbanite, she has a strong allegiance to the city both in background and artistic philosophy.

"I'm a native of Detroit. I was born in Detroit. I love Detroit," she said.

HER FEELING for the city and her commitment to the woman's movement are readily evident in her sculpture.

"I feel my art is very reflective of the times. I am using found wood from Detroit. The theme for both pieces in the show is the same. It's "Celebration of Women" — really a celebration of who you are — people need to celebrate themselves and it's reflective of my inner spirit."

About the wood, she said, "It's a recycling of wood. It's warped. It has a flavor, an essence, a history."

She spoke about the her two sculptures both of which carry the "Celebration of Women" title as if she were standing back looking at someone else's work.

"It's very positive and agressive — almost altarlike, there's a spiritual feeling about the work. The work is unique and it takes a lot of courage to be unique. Everyone is capable of it, but most people don't allow themselves to be creative."

But, as she began to describe the meaning of work, her emotional attachment showed. "I had mystical experiences while painting (the surface). When the piece is totally done, I paint it, but it's more activating the surface.

'It's very positive and aggressive. The work is unique and it takes a lot of courage to be unique. Everyone is capable of it, but most people don't allow themselves to be creative.'

"In a sense it's my response to the piece as a whole. The pink areas are all vaginal forms — women have allowed themselves to be abused. The red fence is protective. There is something protective and nurturing about that fence. The front piece is a very emotional expression. The fence, in contrast, is rational and on the formal side. There is tension between these two. I think it speaks to the times. I wanted it to be positive and strong. I wanted it to be a celebration."

Technically, Mrs. Teicher completed her work at the Center for Creative Studies with a major in ceramics. However, the larger portion of her time was spent working with wood because it was a material more suited to her temprament and the ideas she wished to express.

"WHEN I DID CLAY, it was all slabs and constructions," she said. "I think crafts are more concerned with with the beauty of the object than concept and I was more concerned with concept."

Her commitment to art and her strong feminist beliefs are so closely related than one can hardly be separated from the other — nor does Mrs. Teicher try to make them separate.

As she spoke about women, she said, "We need to believe in ourselves. We need to act — to tell ourselves than we can do anything. Don't be afraid to win. Don't be afraid to succeed. The woman's movement has been very important to me as a human being. I feel role models are important and I feel I'm becoming one. I feel I have to give something back."

Fortunately Leonard Teicher appreciates his wife's viewpoints. She reports that in her family all members share the work load in the household. Each children, Laura, 17, Noah, 16, Joshua, 10, is given responsibilities and husband and wife share the basic tasks of chauffering, shopping, cleaning and household maintenance.

She said, "I think women have to understand that they have a right to their own lives."

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Admission charge. For group tours, call 645-3312.

A big band is making a hit

By JIM WINDELL

The 16-piece Dick Murphy Band has been swinging as the Sunday night house band for 10 months at Angie's in Farmington Hills.

Both Dick Murphy and manager Mike Lipiloff are extremely happy with their relationship.

"They've been here for almost a year without publicity and we have many regulars," Lupiloff said. "People come from as far away as Warren every week to listen to this. We are very pleased to have them."

Lupiloff also pointed out he is receiving regular requests from singles groups and other community social organizations that want to sponsor a Big Band Night for their membership.

Dick Murphy added, "We scouted around for a place to play our music. We came over to Angie's to ask them to give the big band sound a try and five minutes after we walked in the management said, 'It's a deal.' "

"IT WAS FOUR months before we really began to catch on," said George Stone, business manager and saxophone player for Dick Murphy. "We know it was not a money-maker at first and we in the band were getting discouraged. But Mike (Lupiloff) kept telling us to hang in there. He gave everyone in the band a lift by his attitude."

Angie's had disco clientele and on other nights of the week does a brisk business with recorded music. However, people asked for live big band music. To the management, it seemed that all age levels were ready to go back to the music and dancing of a previous era.

George Stone said the band could tell when it was beginning to catch on.

"We could tell by who was dancing. At first, the disco crowd would remain seated. After a few months, they, too, were starting to get up on the dance floors. The over 30s were dancing all along. Now, people of all ages come to listen and everyone dances."

The music of the Dick Murphy Band is not just warmed-over dance band music from the golden era of the big bands. Murphy, who picks out the tunes his band will play, says the music covers a wide spectrum of sounds.

"We use modern arrangements," Murphy emphasized "and we don't stick to nostalgia. If big bands are coming back, it can't be based on nostalgia alone. To draw a modern crowd, a band has to play some contemporary songs and the style has to be up to date.

IN TERMS OF instrumentation, the Dick Murphy Band is traditional with five saxes, four trombones, four trumpets and a rhythm section. The rhythm section includes Murphy on drums, a string bass player and an electric keyboard.

One of their hour-long sets on a recent Sunday night started with works of Woody Herman and Glenn Miller.

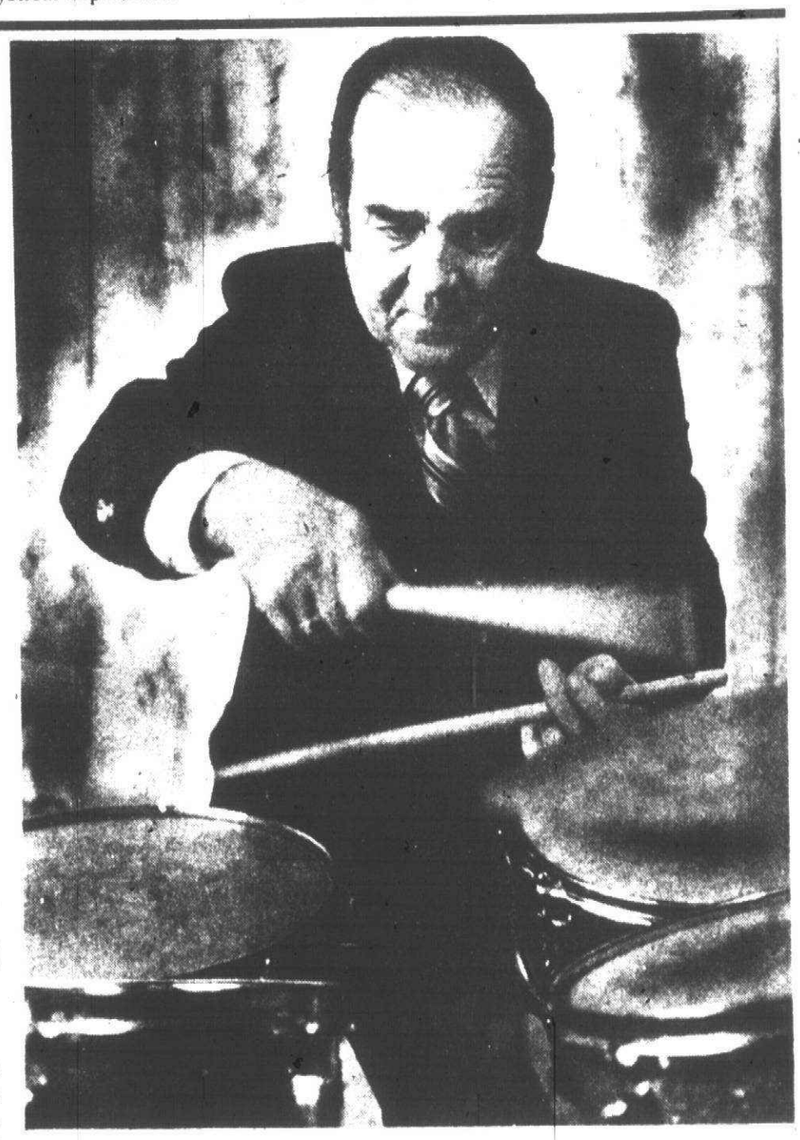

There was an original tune, "Small Talk," contrasted with "In the Mood." "Come Rain or Come Shine" eased into a swinging version of the "St. Louis Blues" and the set ended with couples gliding around Angie's dance floor.

Dick Murphy has been enticing people to dance with his music for some 39 years. But his present band was formed only six years ago. "I wanted to get big band music to the younger generation," he said.

"OUR BAND is the most progressive in this area. Not necessarily the best, but the most progressive."

And he is is proud that his band is a dance band. He believes that to attract the younger generation of people going to clubs, a band has to be modern and the music has to lend itself to dancing. Some of his tunes are strongly flavored by disco. He frequently features one of Maynard Ferguson's big hits such as "Rocky."

Lupiloff is always ready to tout his Sunday night house band: "Where else are you going to find a 16-piece band in this area? Sure, you could go to db's and hear Johnny Trudell, but you'll pay $10 per couple just to walk in the door."

MOVIES at the Redford Theater resume this weekend with "Around the World in 80 Days," the 1958 portayal of the Jules Verne story starring David Niven and Shirley MacLaine. Showings are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, preceded by a 7:30 p.m. overture on the theater's pipe organ. Tickets are $2 at the theater box office, 17360 Lahser at Grand River.

NIGHTCAP with Mozart continues Friday night with the finals in the program's glogg contest. The audience gets to taste the hot spiced wine concoctions from recipes by three finalists; the winning drink will be served at concerts for the rest of the winter. The concert, starting at 11:30 p.m., will have a chamber music trio performing works by Bach, Paganini and others. Tickets are $5 at the Birmingham Unitartian Church, 651 Woodward at Lone Pine Road. For more info, call 851-8934.

"ROBERT Browning's Dramatic Monologues" will be presented free at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday by Lloyd Van Valkenburgh, a speech instructor at Henry Ford Community College. It's at the Rosedale Communbity Players' Upstage Playhouse, 21728 Grand River near Lahser.

THE SECOND season for the World Adventure Series starts at 2:30 p.m. Sunday with "The Spell of Ireland," showing County Cork, the Blarney stone and lush countryside. Shows are in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium. For ticket info, call 832-2730.

THE GRINNING Duck Club is opening at 9 p.m. Friday with a fund-raising party at the club, a former restaurant at 4445 Second at Canfield in Detroit. Organizers of the club are hoping to have a friendly alternative to bars for music, theater, films and discussion. The Friday party will have rock music and dancing.

LIVONIA Artist Club meets at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Carl Sandburg Library, 30100 Seven Mile. Joyce King will do an oil portrait demonstration.

VARIOUS folk musicians will perform live at 12:30 a.m. tonight on the Band Pass program on WDET-FM (101.9). The program will run 2½ hours.

THE ARS Musica baroque orchestra will perform music of Bach, Telemann, Scarlatti and others at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the recital hall of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Tickets are $7. For more info, call the Institute ticket office at 832-2730.

CASS City Cinema continues with "Summer Paradise," a 1977 Swedish film about two women clashing over their views about children. It runs at 7:30 and 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the First Unitarian Church, Cass at Forest near Wayne State University in Detroit. Admission is $2. Enter through the red door on Forest.

SOME art exhibits around town:

- Michigan chapter of Artists Equity is holding its first members show at the Focus Gallery, 1010 Beaubien in Detroit, through Jan. 19. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.
- The faculty art show at the Lawrence Institute of Technology School of Architecture, including a variety of work, is open at the school's gallery through Jan. 31. The campus is at 10 Mile and Northwestern in Southfield.
- An exhibit of art and design work by students in on display through Jan. 25 in the main floor gallery of the Center for Creative Studies, on Kirby behind the Detroit Institute of Arts. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday.

Monday night

The eight-member Will-O-Way Improvs will perform "Generation," a work of improvisational theater emphasizing the differences among generations, at 8 p.m. Monday in the Waterman Campus Center of Schoolcraft College. The audience gets involved by calling out situations for the actors to create in skits. Tickets are $2, available at the college bookstore and at the door. The campus is on Haggerty Road north of Six Mile.

Museum gets Persian items

Three recently acquired reliefs from Persepolis (5th-4th century B.C.) now are displayed in the Detroit Institute of Arts, along with another relief of the same origin already in the collection.

The importance of these objects merited complete reinstallation of the museum's ancient Iranian art gallery (Gallery 205) by curator of ancient art William H. Peck and his staff. Together, the four form one of the nation's finest small groups of Persepolis reliefs.

Acquired with funds raised by the Antiquaries of the Founders Society and from the Robert H. Tannahill Foundation Fund, the three reliefs date from the powerful Archaemenid Empire founded by Cyrus the Great, which ruled the entire Middle East for three centuries.

Persepolis was its ceremonial and cult capital, begun by Darius the Great and completed by Xerxes and Artaxerxes. Here, kings received New Year festival tribute from throughout the vast empire.

The Art Institute's polished grey limestone reliefs once decorated stairways and banqueting halls at Persepolis. They represent Persian court servants bringing food to the royal feast, a Persian spearman and a Persian court official with staff ushering tribute bearers into the presence of the king. Influences from Assyria and Ionian Greece combinge in the reliefs to form a court style which is uniquely Iranian.

The Detroit Institute of Arts is open to the public Tuesday through Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Good news for the new year!

Your Detroit Bank-er announces three ways for you to earn more savings interest than ever before!

New 2½-year, $1,000 minimum Money Manager Certificates. An attractive alternative for savers with less than $10,000.

If you can afford to keep at least $1,000 on deposit for a full 2½ years, we think you'll find that our new 2½-Year Money Manager Certificate is an attractive alternative to $10,000 short-term instruments. A minimum deposit of just $1,000 earns an exceptionally high annual interest rate that is not only guaranteed for 2½ years, but is continuously compounded as well. Rates paid on new deposits are quoted monthly but remain in effect until maturity. Federal regulations require substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal. The rate on 2½-Year Money Manager Certificates for January, 1980 is 10.15% annual interest.

Now, all 90-day Time Deposit Accounts earn 5¾% annual interest rate.

All existing 90-Day Time Deposit Passbook accounts automatically earn our new 5¾% Annual Interest Rate as of January 1, 1980. Your money works harder for you when you open a Time Deposit Account with as little as $500 and add to it any time with deposits of $50 or more. Savings must be kept on deposit for 90 days or more; interest is forfeited for deposits withdrawn prior to the full 90-day period.

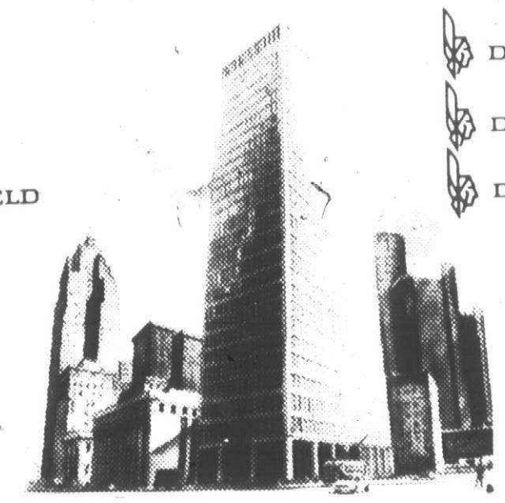

New higher rates are now available on new deposits to Individual Retirement Accounts.

We pay the highest annual interest rate that any bank or savings and loan can pay on deposits to Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's), and a new higher rate applies to deposits made after January 1, 1980. The rate paid on deposits made to IRA accounts during January, 1980 is 10.40%. Rates on future deposits may vary, and Federal regulations require substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from Individual Retirement Accounts, unless you have attained 59½ years of age or become disabled.

If you are a wage earner and do not participate in a company-sponsored pension or profit sharing plan anytime during a given calendar year, you are eligible that year to open your own Individual Retirement Account with us. IRA's are tax-sheltered and subject to limits established by the Federal government. Contributions to your tax-sheltered plan may be made anytime before the deadline for filing your Federal Income Tax return for that year.

Your Detroit Bank-er has all the details about tax-sheltered Individual Retirement Accounts and will be pleased to help you save for your retirement income.

tips from the Air Force Survival School

Snow blindness is caused by the exposure of the unprotected eye to glare on snow.

Suppose you are suffering the symptoms — burning, watering or inflamed eyes, poor vision and headaches.

WOULD YOU . . .

A. Protect the eyes by staying in a dark shelter or by wearing a lightproof bandage.

B. Protect the eyes by putting on a pair of sunglasses or goggles.

C. Protect the eyes by avoiding extreme light.

D. Do nothing. The snow blindness is only a temporary ailment and will disappear in a few hours.

TO SURVIVE . . .

Alternative A is the recommended treatment for snow blindness, according to survival experts. The eyes should be protected by staying in a dark shelter or utilizing a lightproof bandage.

Pain can be relieved by application of cold compresses if there is no danger from freezing, and by taking aspirin.

Alternative B is more of a preventive measure, to avoid snow blindness, than a treatment. The wearing of sunglasses or goggles will assist in the prevention of snow blindness and will be of only limited assistance in treating advanced stages of the ailment.

C does not incorporate definitive treatment.

While D is correct in stating that snow blindness is only temporary, to do nothing would only cause the condition to worsen, resulting in extreme pain and possible extenuating complications.

Skiing

Area slopes are full of 'real' snow

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

If the weather has left cross country skiing at a standstill, downhill skiing is going strong.

That's because southeast Michigan ski areas are able to manufacture snow for their clients.

"And don't call it 'artificial snow' or 'man-made snow,'" said Gene Hill of Mt. Brighton. "Those terms make one think of plastic granules and substitutes for snow.

"We make real snow, just as described in Webster's Dictionary. It's a fall or precipitation in the form of small white ice crystals formed directly from water vapor in the air at a temperature below 32 degrees F."

Mt. Brighton, Alpine Valley and Mt. Holly all have snow-making equipment, according to Sid Baker of the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association.

There's more enjoyable skiing on "some of those near-zero, freezing cold days when slopes aren't jammed," Baker said.

Mt. Brighton has 180 compressed air snow guns mounted at various levels up to 40 feet in the air, 20 snow machines with fans that can carry snow 200 feet, and six wheeled-snow fan cannons.

"Grooming is provided with a recent $100,000-plus investment in two snow tractors and grooming attachments backed up by two standbys," said Hill.

SKIING AT midnight? Sure, said Hill. His Mt. Brighton in Livingston County will host "midnite madness" events from midnight Saturdays until 7 a.m. Sundays through Feb. 2.

Following the 11 p.m. regular closing, the slopes are groomed and snow is added, if necessary. Skiing then resumes at midnight at special rates.

FOUR STATEWIDE contests are being held prior to the 1980 Detroit Camper Show by the sponsoring exhibitors.

The show is Feb. 15-24 in the Detroit Artillery Armory on W. Eight Mile. Deadline is Jan. 10 for campers to enter themselves or nominate someone else.

Entry blanks may be obtained from Dave Pickering, contest director of the Detroit Camper Show, at the Michigan Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute, 19045 Farmington, Livonia 48152 (phone 477-3434).

The four categories are:

• "Michigan RV family of the year" — any Michigan camping family which has made exceptional use of its vehicle and has participated in some type of community service.

• "King of the road" — a male Michigan resident of age 60 or older who owns and operates an RV; usage, activities and community service will be considered.

• "Queen of the road" — a female Michian resident age 25 or older who travels in an RV; usage, activities and community service will be considered.

• "Michigan RV club of the year" — A Michigan camping or RV club with at least 50 percent of its membership owning RVs. Planned activities and community service will be considered.

The sponsors' reasons for using an age 60 minimum for males and 25 for females were not revealed.

HAVEN HILL nature center and Proud Lake nature center are combing efforts to offer guided snoeshow hikes for youth groups. The centers are also open to the general public.

Haven Hill is south of M-59 in Highland Township, and Proud Lake is east of Wixom Road in Commerce Township, both in western Oakland County.

YOU CAN become a better fisherman by reading books. But you can't learn about fishing from scratch unless someone shows you.

That's why it's intriguing to learn that Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock will offer a special four-hour workshop on "Ice Fishing for Beginners." It starts at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19.

Veteran ice fisherman Carl Smith will share tips on equipment, techniques, safety and proper clothing for this rugged winter sport.

Register in advance by calling the Oakwoods nature center at 782-1255. The metropark entrance is from Willow Road and east of I-275 freeway in Wayne County's Huron Township.

Saturday night

The Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra will perform Strauss' Duet Concértino at 8:45 p.m. Saturday in the lobby of Michigan Theater on E. Liberty. Gourmet food and wine will be available during a lengthy intermission. Tickets can be reserved by calling 665-6665 and will be available at the door. Other works on the program include Schubert's Symphony No. 5 in B-flat major and the "Capriol Suite" by Peter Warlock.

New vineyard areas booming

wine

Richard Watson

For decades Napa Valley has been the most prestigious regional name to appear on a wine label.

Indeed, the suspicion has lurked around that the word alone on a label raises the cost of a bottle at least a dollar. And not too long ago Sonoma began to be touted by winemakers as another very fine origin for their product.

Until recently that has been it. Such origins as San Benito, Livermore, Santa Clara or San Luis Obispo have not been prominently displayed. No one seemed especially proud to name these regions as the homes of their wine.

But the recent arrival of two new labels on local shelves now confirms the importance of the Monterey County in the winegrowing business. Both of these proudly use the county name in their own — Monterey Peninsula Winery and the Monterey Vineyard.

Different as they are from each other, their presence highlights a growing tend. For several years such wineries as Mirassou, Wente, San Martin, Masson and Almaden have been securing large amounts of grapes from there and been increasingly acknowledging their origins on their labels. But now Monterey is not only a sourse of grapes but an acknowledged name of prestige to use as an appellation for wineries as well.

THE MONTEREY VINEYARD is located in a dismal town, Gonzales, well inland and east of the Coastal Range. Now owned by Coca Cola (along with Sterling and Taylor of New York) and funded by their monies, winemaker Dick Petersen is reducing the varieties he makes to a manageable number.

Still extensive, they offer roses made from Pinot Noir and Cabernet Sauvignon that are excellent. Their whites include Gewurtztraminer, Chardonnay, Chenin Blanc, "Gruner" Sylvaner and Johannisberg Riesling.

Additionally, Petersen has experimented with some late harvest white, inducing botrytis on white Riesling and Sauvignon Blanc grapes to produce rich, lush dessert wines.

They also offer Petite Sirah, Pinot Noir, Zinfandel and Gamay Beaujolais. All in all, a quite extensive line. Perhaps their most interesting is a late harvest Zinfandel, high in alcohol and powerful and chewy to drink.

With a storage capacity of 2,000,000 gallons this is a major winery. They offer good value for the money, most of their releases costing in the $4-$7 range here in Michigan.

By contrast, Monterey Peninsula Winery, in the flight path of the Monterey city airport, has storage for but 20,000 gallons and carries more of the aura of a boutique winery. Somewhat unstable in their releasing patterns, they have won the affection of their followers by holding a grape "stomp" each fall. Quite a party.

THEY RELEASED a "Stomp Zinfandel," but the authorities said this was unsanitary and its product couldn't be sold as wine. So they went ahead and sold it without paying the wine taxes on it.

While they occasionally make a Cabernet Sauvignon, a Pinot Noir or Barbera (depending on grape availability) this is a Zinfandel winemaker. Often releasing several issues in the same year, the grapes carry geographical designations or proprietal names (as "Big Jim's"). The style is big, the taste huge and the prices not too bad although our local distributor is adding a bit much for handling with this line. But worth a try.

Monterey, along with Mendocino, is one answer to the urban crush for wine growers. It provides space and a benevolent climate that will shape the industry for years to come.

Here's a great new book for all sorts of gardening

review

By CORINNE ABATT

For gardeners who even now long for the sight of the first crocus, Better Homes and Gardens' "Complete Guide to Gardening" could ease the agony of the months ahead.

The new 552 page, hardcover volume has 520 color pictures — a dirty and at the same delightful trick to play on us frustrated gardeners who are in the winter of our year. The book is almost, but not quite, as refreshing as a trip south — certainly cheaper, $19.95.

It's easy to follow for beginner as well as veteran gardener and covers all subjects that a person with a yard might want to know, from flowers, vegetables, landscaping, shrubs, trees, greenhouses, specialized gardens (rock, herb, wild, water, shady, desert, etc.) plus solutions to problems from climate to bugs.

CHARTS. ALWAYS IMPORTANT, in any book on gardening, are color coded for fast, easy reference and explanations on proceedures are illustrated with simple to follow drawings.

Charts for the care and feeding of houseplants would be of immediate use to us who live in Michigan. For those who happen to have greenhouses, there's a greenhouse plant guide and for the less fortunate, ideas on how to improvise and turn a southern, indoor exposure into a sort of greenhouse.

The color pictures are, in fact, so lavish, and well arranged that a person who couldn't hold his head up because he didn't know a geramium from a delphinium, will no longer be confused.

While one garden book may seen as good as another and the old ones as valuable as the new ones, there are some special things to recommend this one, aside from the attractive way it is assembled.

It's done with today's lifestyles in mind. Gardens for tiny areas as well as large ones, vegetable gardens for busy people who don't have a lot of time and many ideas for using outdoor containers for flowers and vegetables in conjunction with a total landscaping plan or by themselves or a small apartment patio or porch.

For instance, there's a diagram for a vegetable garden, 25-by-30 feet. This space, according to the book should produce enough to feed a family of four with ample left for freezing and canning.

Taking advantage of the suggestions for getting the most from this space, the reader will find he will do better with Swiss chard than spinach. Spinach production is limited, Swiss chard continues to flourish in warm and cool weather.

For the economy minded, broccoli is a wiser choice than cabbage because broccoli can be harvested a couple of times and cabbage only once.

These are the kinds of helpful bits of information which a lot of us figured out by trial and error and which can save the beginner time and effort. Mind you, nobody, is trying to kill spinach or cabbage, and if that's what you like, by all means, plant them.

IN KEEPING WITH new trends, much is done in the book using flowers and vegetables in outdoor containers in conjunction with a landscaping plan or by themselves as answers to an apartment dweller's yen to garden.

As a part of a large plan, pots brimming with growing things are shown on porch steps, patios, along walks and around the flower beds. There was a time when a pot or two of geraniums on the front porch was good enough. Not any more, not with this country's blossoming green thumb population.

There may be more answers than most readers ever thought of questions for, but "Complete Guide to Gardening" is certain to brighten the spirits of gardeners on long winter days.

He just loves being an actor

By CHRISTINE BURKLI-BERY

Richard Zavaglia says he did it all — office worker, hairdresser, truck driver and factory worker — before he found a job he liked.

"I love the theater," said Zavaglia. "I must put that up front. To have a job that you really love is something.

"I act — and this is going to sound corny — but it's really what I'm supposed to be doing. I'm lucky because I'm doing something I love."

Zavaglia, born and raised in New Jersey, is playing the role of Mr. Paravicini in Agatha Christie's murder mystery, "The Mousetrap." The play is at The Birmingham Theatre until Jan. 27.

ZAVAGLIA HAS BEEN in the theater for the past 14 years, acting and directing. He most recently appeared on Broadway in Neil Simon's "Chapter Two." He also appeared in "Galileo" which was described by Time magazine as one of the 10 best plays of 1978.

Wanting to direct as much as he acts, Zavaglia has directed about 30 plays and said he is "getting the urge to direct again." Among his favorite plays he has directed are: "A View From the Bridge," by Arthur Miller which he did in New Jersey, "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder?" and "Steambath."

"Cages," by Lewis John Carlino, is the latest play which he directed for Theatre XII in Manhattan. Zavaglia has lived in Manhattan for the past two years because "that is where the action is if you want to be an actor."

A graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, Zavaglia has been working full-time in the theater for the past year. For this he feels lucky because, according to him, out of 25,000 actors in the Actor's Equity Association 80 percent are unemployed.

Zavaglia said that he, along with the other cast members of "The Mousetrap," rehearsed for the play in New York for two weeks. They rehearsed once in Birmingham before appearing in front of an audience. He describes "The Mousetrap" as the typical 'whodunnit.'

"THE FIRST ACT ends with a murder and the second act we try to figure out who did it," Zavaglia said. "It is full of red herrings and has the classical surprise ending."

In talking about his part in the play, Zavaglia said, "From an actor's point of view, he is a broad kind of character. He is a charming, leacherous old man.

"You have to play this character a little bit bigger than real life. It is like spinning a top. If you don't spin fast enough, it will fall over on its side. You just have to get the character spinning."

Having played Dracula at one time in a regional theater, Zavaglia puts a little bit of the vampire into Mr. Paravicini.

"When I did Dracula I played him very sexy, very sensual," he said, "so with Paravicini I am very sexual. I immediately latch on to the lady of the house."

ZAVAGLIA IS very much at home in the Birmingham Theatre. He said it is similar to theaters he has worked in New York. The theater is big and that is what he's used to.

Birmingham is also to his liking: "I like the town of Birmingham very much. It seems like it's very well planned. Just the ambiance, the nice shops and good taste."

In "Chapter Two" by Neil Simon, Zavaglia played the main character's brother, Leo. Zavaglia said the play is autobiographical because it's about a man remarrying soon after his wife's death, and this same situation happened to Simon.

"It is the most personal, autobiographical kind of play," said Zavaglia. "It is a wonderful, very touching, funny play."

In the New York Actors Theatre production of "Galileo," Zavaglia played the role of Sagreado, Galileo's friend who tries to keep him out of danger.

"IT IS a political play," said Zavaglia. "We did it at Columbia University and it was the most interesting thing. The discovery of the atom bomb was made in the very room we did the play in."

Zavaglia has not only experience with acting and directing, but also with owning and managing a theater. Along with his brother, he ran a theater in New Jersey called the Cabaret Playhouse.

Put this sign on your lawn.

It won't kill crabgrass, but it gets rid of houses fast.

Between one mowing and the next, your house could change owners. And you know that's fast!

How can we be so sure?

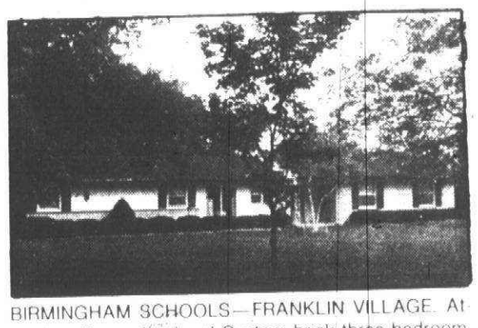

Because we're a member of the Homes For Living Network.

When our sign goes up a lot of things happen. With our exclusive Homes For Living magazine, a picture and description of your home can be available to home buyers in our area. And, through our 2,000 affiliated offices, we'll reach potential out-of-town buyers.

After all, they account for one-third of all home sales.

When you consider that our 25,000 Homes For Living sales associates have more than 10-billion dollars in home sales each year, you know we don't let any crabgrass grow under our feet.

SWEET DREAMS...

You've just pulled the shades, put the cat out, set the thermostat back to an energy-saving 62° and turned the electric blanket to "warm."

You slide under the covers and close your eyes with a sigh. You're determined not to worry about the washing machine that your wife says is making a "funny noise." Or the dentist bill. Or the grocery bill. Inflation and the fact that your weekly check can't seem to keep up with it isn't going to keep you awake—no sir!

Instead of counting sheep to take your mind off your troubles and get some well-deserved rest, you begin to count want ads. Observer & Eccentric want ads. You mentally rummage through the attic, the front hall closet, the garage. You come up with about $200 worth of things you can sell without even really trying.

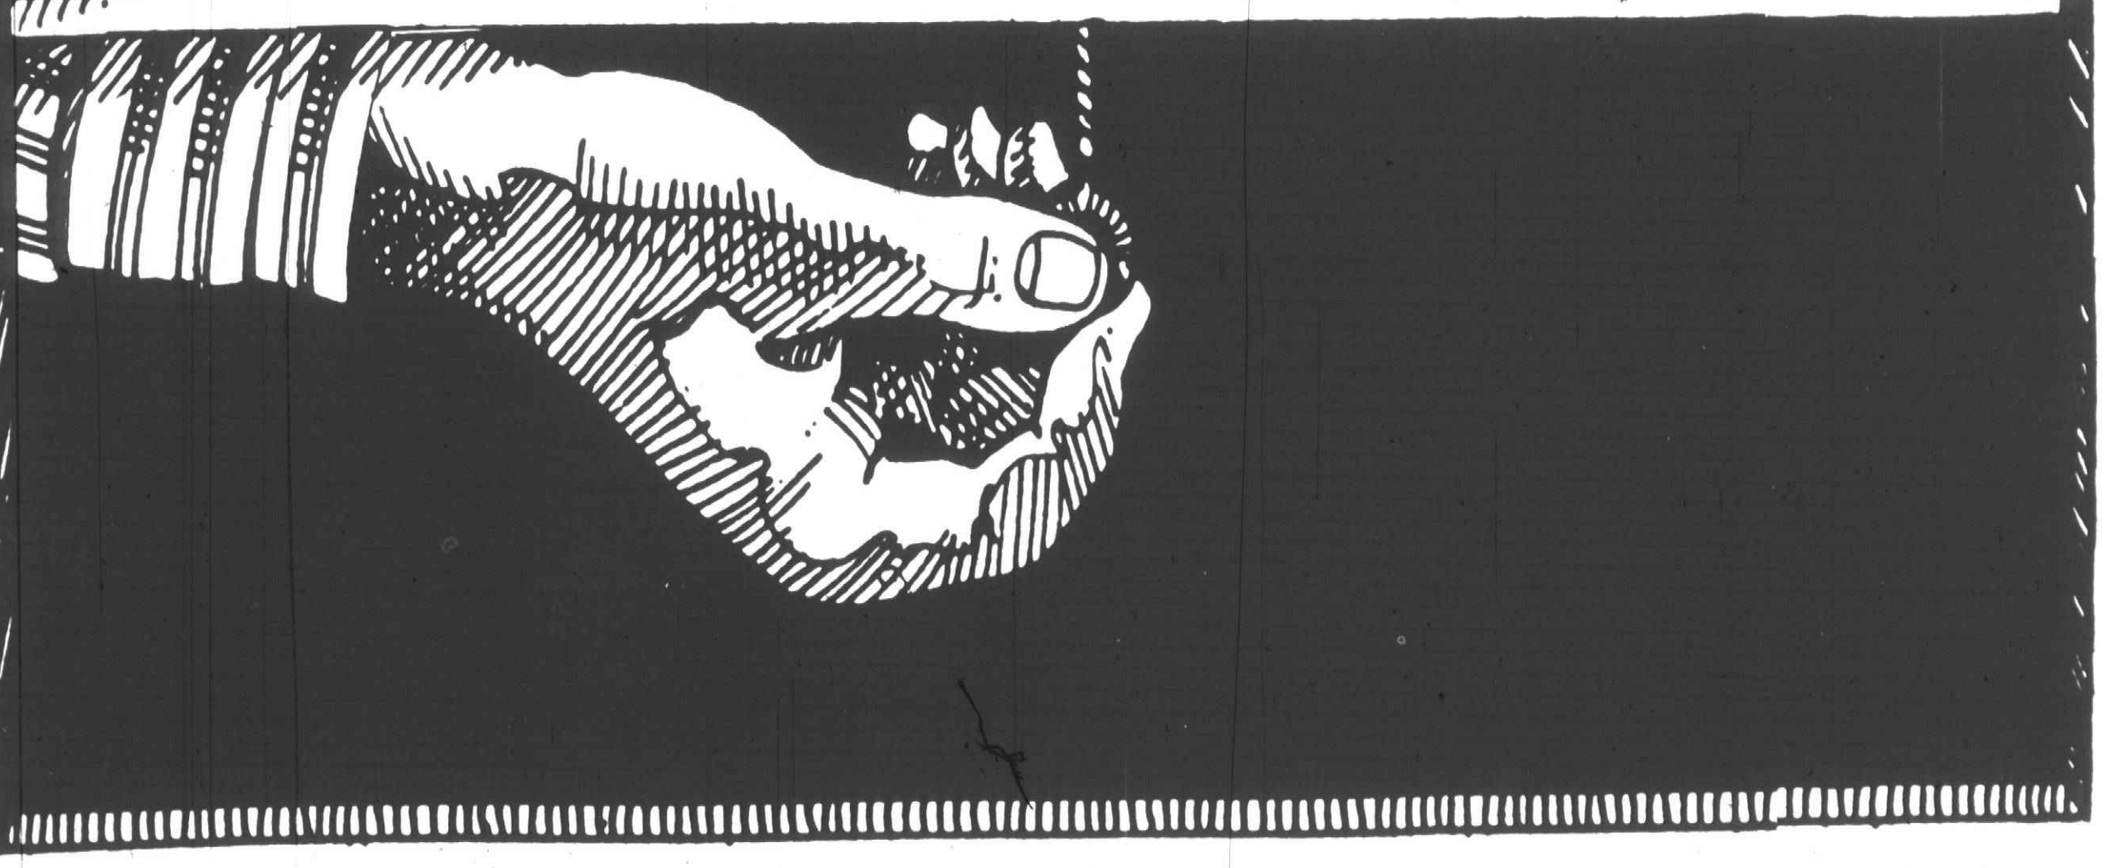

You drift off to the land of Nod planning to call your Observer & Eccentric Classified Ad Taker in the morning.

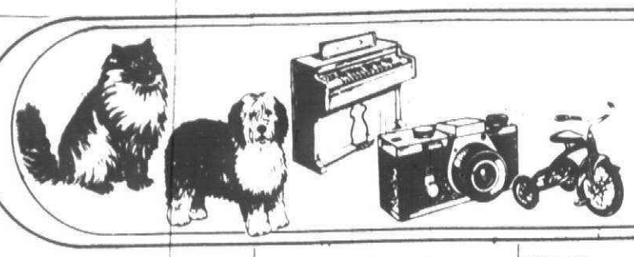

And she'll be here. Happy to help you put together a sweet dream of an ad.

BOB SAKS

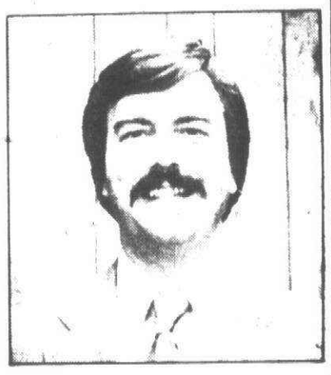

SALESMEN OF THE YEAR!

GENE DUFFY

Meet GENE DUFFY (left) new car salesman and JERRY BUREK (right) used car salesman at BOB SAKS OLDSMOBILE. GENE and JERRY were Salesmen of the Year for 1979 in their respective sales units. GENE DUFFY has won this award 3 years in a row. GENE has established a tradition of personal customer service. GENE'S customers soon learn that he will bend over backwards to make sure they are treated right. JERRY BUREK, a long time resident of Farmington Hills, has over 11 years of professional experience. JERRY has distinguished himself as a leader in sales and customer service which keeps customers and friends coming back to him for all their automotive needs. BOB SAKS would like you to stop in and congratulate these two outstanding members of his sales team, so for the rest of January, he's offering a special discount to anyone asking for GENE DUFFY or JERRY BUREK.

O & E

Why choose a Diesel from a line of cars when you can choose a Mercedes-Benz from a line of Diesels?

Mercedes-Benz
BUILT TODAY WITH TOMORROW IN MIND!

For 1980, Mercedes-Benz builds 3 Diesel sedans, a Diesel station wagon and a Diesel coupe, 3 different Diesel engines and 2 transmissions—and no other car maker does. Such choice is only one benefit of a Diesel tradition 44 years long, and growing timelier by the day.

Like your time as you carefully examine the unique line of Mercedes-Benz Diesels.

Should it be the extraordinarily efficient four-cylinder 240 D Sedan?

Or is the potent five-cylinder 300 D Sedan more to your liking?

Many minds and hearts have been captured by the charm and utility of the 300 TD Station Wagon.

Those with a taste for the exclusive are much taken with the limited edition 300 CD Coupe.

And in a class by itself is the turbocharged performance Diesel—the 300 SD.

A delicious dilemma. Choose the one that precisely fits your needs. Then prepare to reap the engineering dividends that set Mercedes-Benz Diesels apart from all other Diesels, from all other cars.

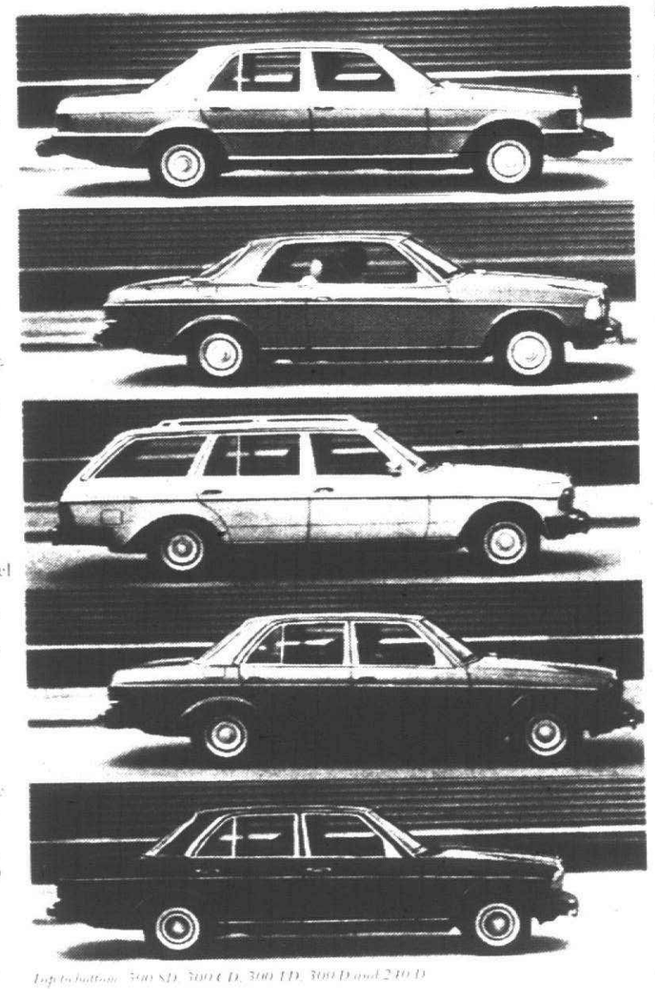

More power for 1980

Note that those dividends are enriched for 1980. New pistons, new camshafts and improved precombustion chamber design—fitted to various engines—help give the five Mercedes-Benz Diesels a strong performance boost, without spoiling their famous fuel efficiency.

For 1980, even cold weather performance is improved. An ingenious "pin-type" start device can get a cold engine going—even on a 32°F day—in five to seven seconds, and at 5°F, in about eleven seconds. With this timely advance, Diesel cold-weather starting pains should now be a thing of the past.

Economy a thing of the present

The 1980 Mercedes-Benz 240 D Sedan is a solid 1.5-ton automobile that happens to outperform every other compact, mid-size and large car on the road today in fuel mileage as listed in the official EPA fuel economy information for 1980, published Sept. 7, 1979. Figures for every Mercedes-Benz Diesel, in fact, may seem almost too good to be true for such capable, civilized automobiles. But the fuel estimates shown suggest that a car needn't be understized or underpowered to deliver heart-warming fuel economy. It simply needs to be efficiently engineered.

Top to bottom: 300 SD, 300 CD, 300 TD, 300 D and 240 D

1980 EPA fuel economy estimates

Model	Est. mpg	Est. range
240 D Manual	28	481.6 mi.
240 D Automatic	26	447.2 mi.
300 D	23	385.3 mi.
300 CD	23	385.3 mi.
300 TD	23	425.5 mi.
300 SD	21	529.8 mi.

Compare this to other cars. Your mileage may differ depending on speed, weather conditions and trip length. California estimates vary.

Efficient performance

Each Mercedes-Benz Diesel for 1980 comes fitted with technical features that stamp it more as a performance than a mere economy car. Fully independent suspension, for instance. Four-wheel disc brakes. Front and rear anti-sway bars. Gas-pressurized shock absorbers. Recirculating-ball steering.

On rain-slicked highways, on rutted back roads, in mountain bends—that silky list comes vividly alive. Economy needn't mean a dull driving machine, just as it needn't mean a Mercedes-Benz Diesel is a driver's car.

Above all, safety

It is also a safety-conscious car. There are 120 safety features between you and the road, every one standard equipment—whether Federal law requires them or not. The fact that more than half are Mercedes-Benz requirements reflects forty-four years of fanatic devotion to the subject of safety.

Quality service: reaffirmed commitment

With every new Mercedes-Benz comes a dual commitment: to provide unparalleled engineering in its cars, and to provide unparalleled service—through the unstinting efforts of over 300 authorized Mercedes-Benz dealers across the United States.

Last but not least

When you think about the Mercedes-Benz Diesel for 1980, you might do well to think ahead to 1983 and consider. Historically, a three-year-old Mercedes-Benz Diesel has been shown to retain nearly 80% of its value. A resale performance no domestic luxury car can even approach.

Efficient in fuel mileage, efficient in performance, efficient even in resale value. Remarkable cars, these Diesels. Just what you'd expect from Mercedes-Benz in times like these.

Dodge's entry in the personal car field is the Mirada, a mid-size personal luxury car.

The personal car: more than just wheels

With family wheels trailing only housing as the largest purchase most Americans make in their lifetime, the car chosen is almost always a personal matter — whether it's a stunner or a clunker.

But car makers mean something else when they talk about a personal car.

Dodge's 1980 entrant in the mid-size personal car field, the two-door Mirada, is designed for a particular kind of car buyer.

That's because personal car buyers like to have people stop and look at the car they drive. They put a premium on head-turning touches like front-wheel louvers, flat mirror, elegent quarter window tgreatment and sporty wheel covers.

Other entrants in the personal car field are Chevrolet's Monte Carlo and Mercury's Monarch.

The personal car buyers' interest, however, isn't just skin deep. They want luxury, as well as styling, and they're willing to pay for it. Personal car buyers have more income and are willing to spend more of it on their car than will the average consumer.

For their money, they want rich trim and niceties like illuminated entry systems for night-timne convenince, good-looking instrument panels, tinted glass and bucket seats.

They also want a bundle of options, colors and features to choose from so they can make their car expressive of their particular tastes and self-image.

People who buy personal luxury cars don't want cars that look like every other car on the road.

Personal car buyers are also knowledgeable buyers. They enjoy shopping, and they like to be up-to-date. That means, with the current and foreseeable emphasis on fuel economy, they don't want to be seen in a "gas hog."

64th Detroit Auto Show opens Jan. 12

A sneak preview of the exhibits at the auto show shows:

American Motors 1980 display will feature the four-wheel-drive Eagle passenger car & AMC's five-year no-rust-through warranty. One exhibit area encompasses AMC and Jeep products, the other Renault and its front-wheel-drive LeCar. Films will be shown on a large screen promoting the entire Concord-Spirit-Pacer lineup and AMC's 12-month/12,000-mile new car warranty.

Buick Division's major thrust for this show is an educational show on the front-wheel-drive concept, showing the advandates of Skylark, the division's X-body car that debuted in mid-1979. Also featured are the Electra Park Avenue sedan and the quality acoustics of a six-speaker Concert system option, a Regal coupe with leather interior and an Electra with a standard 4.1-liter V6.

Cadillac Division will feature its Seville Elegante with its newly styled "bustle-back" trunk that is reminiscent of the '30s, and also the Eldorado special-edition Biarritz with stainless steel roof cap. A wall display features the advantages of the new digital electronic fuel injection (DEFI) system in place of last year's non-digital system. A new line of high-quality radios will be featured.

Special events at auto show
Kids' Nights: Jan. 14-15 6-10 p.m.
Senior Citizens' Party: Jan. 16, 1-4 p.m.
Celebrity Night: Jan. 16, 7-10 p.m.
Auction Nights: Jan. 17-18, 8 p.m.

Chevrolet Division will show 25 vehicles, including the El Camino, Suburban and Sport Van, and 11 trucks, including a fleetside pickup with diesel engine. On the major turntable will be a Caprice and a Monte Carlo. The design concept car is a three-wheeler, Astro III, that looks like a jet airplane with stubby wings. In one display, the cab come off a Luv chassis, exposing a two-wheel drive display on one side, a four-wheel drive on the other. Also of interest will be the six- and eight-cylinder engine cutaway displays.

Chrysler-Plymouth Division will feature the new Chrysler Cordoba, resized from the Newport to the Le Baron chassis, with turntables giving the star treatment to Cordoba Corinthian Edition. Also highlighted will be the Le Baron Fifth Avenue Edition and New Yorker Fifth Avenue. A Colt and Champ exhibit will detail a cutaway of the MCA/Jet engine with color-coded components.

Datsun will show about a dozen cars, with a special light-duty truck display replacing one model. On a turntable, a narrator will describe the newest 200-SX, an all-new car for Datsun in 1980. The basic identification signs of last year will be back.

Dodge Division will offer a special show version of the Dodge Mirada, the mid-size personal luxury car, as well as the Dodge St. Regis, the full-size family sedan. Dodge truck features designer versions of trucks for work or fun, and large murals depict light-duty truck styling design studies. The light-duty D150 showroom pickup truck that won the Baja 1,000 race will also be there — complete with original dust and dents.

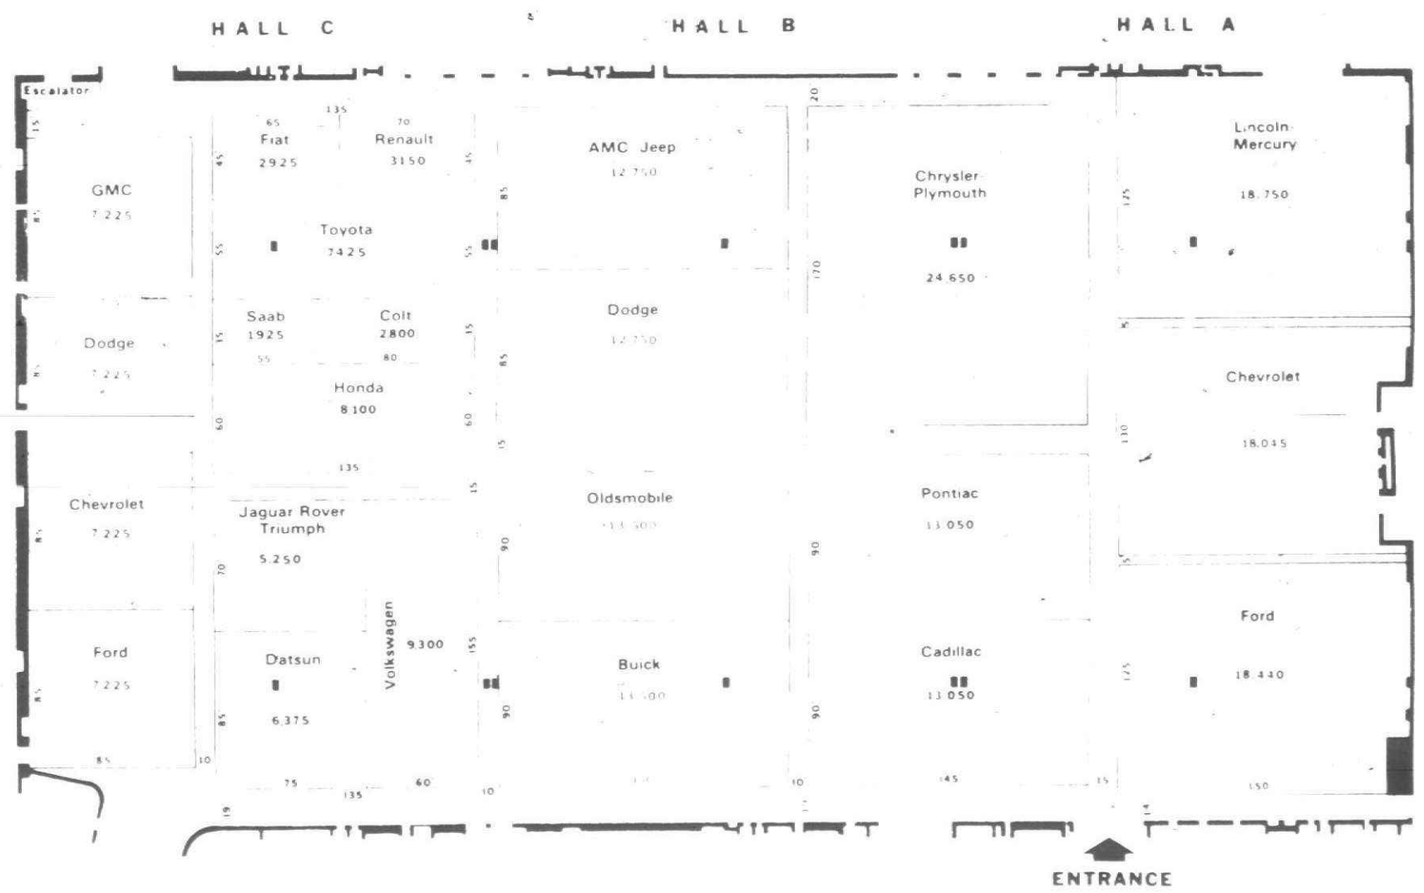

Fiat is back again as an exhibitor at the auto show, in order to introduce its world-wide car for the '80s, the Strada, along with Fiat family members Lancia Zagato, X1/9 and Spider 2000 convertible.

Ford Division features its new resized Thunderbird and its LTD in a new display. Ford's keyless entry system and a series of pushbuttons outside the driver's door will be explained, along with the new select-shift four-speed automatic overdrive (SSOD) transmission, optional on the Thunderbird but standard on Lincoln and Mark VI. An educational display at Ford Truck explains the workings of a truck twin-I-beam suspension.

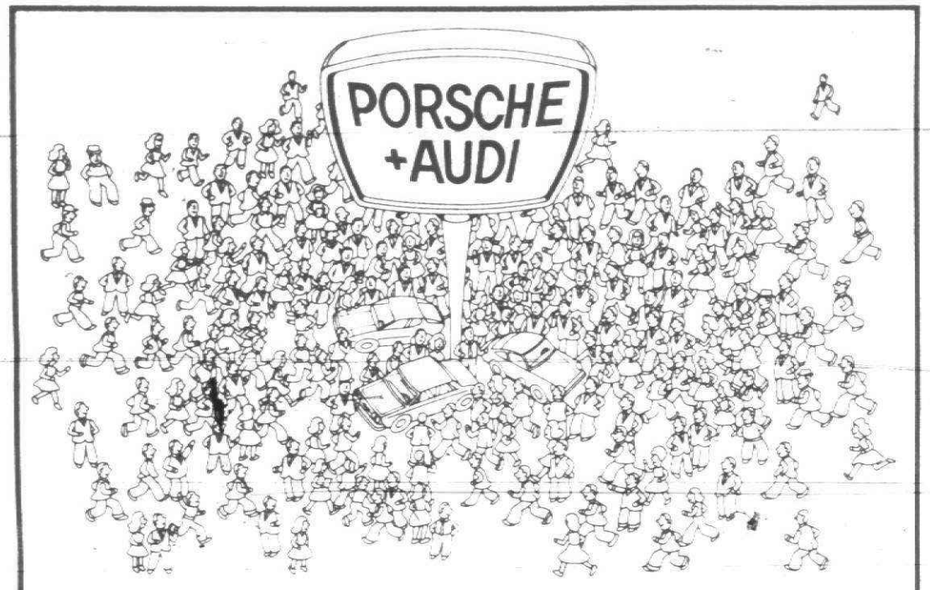

GMC Trucks will show off a light-duty lineup including a Cavalero, a Rally Van, a four-wheel-drive Jimmy, a Suburban and a couple of pickups, one with a snowplow application and a six-cylinder model. GMC may feature a diesel in the medium-duty category, and the heavy-duty truck, the General, is the feature performer. Exhibits will be built around an 8.2-liter medium-duty engine and a light-duty diesel engine.

Honda's turntable display will feature the new Civic GL model with the 49 EPA highway rating. Its new set is Detroit-built, featuring earth tones, browns and beiges, and "stone roads" on set, different from the usual flash displays. Preludes and Accords will have new color interiors for 1980. Honda will take more space this year, about 2,000 square feet of added floor display from the 1979 show, which ups its total car count to 16.

Jaguar-Rover-Triumph, British Leyland's newest name, will feature its full product line, with emphasis on the SJX V12 and SJ Series 3. Also featured will be the TR-7 convertible and the Triumph Spitfire on a turntable. Narrations have been developed around the Spitfire and the Series 3 Jaguar SJ.

Lincoln-Mercury Division will use TV cameras and monitors to transfer electronic data from its Mark VI to a huge screen on stage where a model will explain how the instrument panel goes through its checkouts. Four designer model cars, including Givenchy, Pucci, Blass and Cartier editions, will be featured again this year. Cougar XR7 also will be on a turntable, and Pat Derby's cougar and bobcat act will return with a "downsized" model. The cougar had a cub in 1979.

Oldsmobile Division's three turntables will feature a Cutlass four-door Brougham sedan, a Delta 88 Royal Brougham coupe and an Oldsmobile Toronado. The 1980 Oldsmobile display has running lights all over the place. Returning is Rodney the Robot, working off a six-foot-long go-cart-sized Omega. There will be drawings for several of these small Omegas during the nine-day show.

Pontiac Division will again show two dozen automobiles including its weight-efficient front-wheel-drive Phoenix in a structural exhibit that basically carries over from last year. The four turntables will feature the Indianopolis 500 pace car Firebird Trans-Am, an Sunbird Sport hatch coupe, a special entry target top 1980 Grand Prix and a Phoenix with a special paint treatment.

Saab will show off the Saab 99K, the Swedish car that won the Manufacturer's Production Class in the Molson's Rally Championship of Canada.

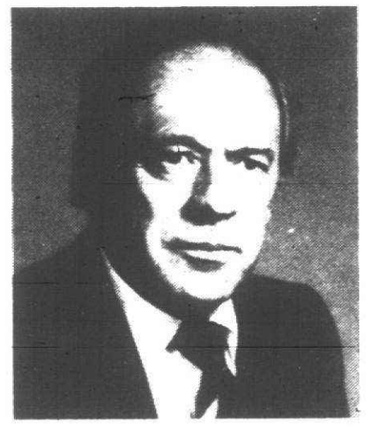

Toyota expects to display 18 vehicles for the show, and its major emphasis will be on its volume entry with the lowest price, the new front-wheel-drive Tercel, a three-door liftback. Also featured will be at least one upgraded pickup with some window innovations.

Volkswagen will display about a dozen cars in the exhibit area including a VW convertible, Rabbit, Scirocco, Dasher, pickup and vanagon. Two diesels, a Dasher and a Rabbit, will also be featured. Porsche and Audi will share about a third of the total display area, featuring a 928 Porsche on the turntable. VW also plans to exhibit a 924 Porsche and an Audi 4000.

AUTO SHOW - COBO HALL
JANUARY 21-20, 1980

Oldsmobile
WE'VE HAD ONE BUILT FOR YOU.

Chevrolet will show both cars, trucks

Chevrolet will highlight America's most popular selling car — the Caprice Classic — with a more sophisticated Corvette and a turbocharged V6 version of the Monte Carlo model as part of its auto show display.

Special exhibits at the show will include:

• The Citation cutaway, giving auto show viewers an inside look at Chevrolet's first front-wheel-drive car.

• The Astro III, a jet-styled, two-passenger idea car with a tricycle-type wheel arrangement.

• The Impala SE, which as broken the 20-mile-per-gallon barrier for full-size cars on the Environmental Protection Agency's estimated city schedule.

• The Luv mini-pickup with its entire cab raised to reveal engine and drive train components.

• A world champion rollerskating couple performing disco-skating routines.

Chevrolet's 1980 car lines are:

Caprie Classic and Impala — The model line includes the two-door coupe, four-door sedan and two- and three-seat station wagons in both series.

Coupes and sedans have 25-gallon fuel tanks, high-pressure easy-roll radial tires and a new 3.8-liter V6 standard engine with dualjet carburation.

Corvette — The sports car has new aluminum differential support housings, new lighter body panels and the industry's first fiber glass bumper structures to help reduce Corvette's curb weight by 238 pounds.

Corvette joins other Chevorlet models in featuring the torque converter clutch on automatic transmissions except in California.

Citation — introduced in April 1979 is Chevrolet's new front-wheel-drive car for the '80s. It is available as a four-door hatchback, two-door hatchback coupe, two-door club coupe and two-door coupe.

The Citation's EPA rated gas mileage for the standard 90-horsepower, four-cylinder, 2.5-liter engine with four-speed transmission is 24 miles per gallon in city driving and 38 miles per gallon on the highway.

Monte Carlo — Chevrolet's personal luxury car has added an optional turbocharged engine, new grille and interior styling changed for 1980.

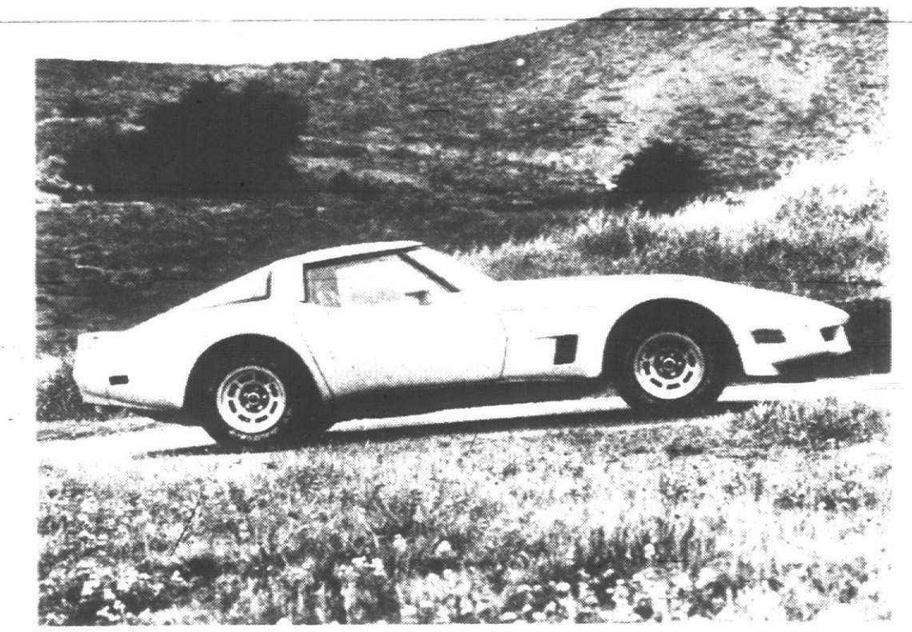

Offered in two models — the Sport Coupe and the two-door Landau Coppe — the 3.8-liter, turbocharged V6 engine delivers an estimated 170 horsepower with a torque rating of 265 foot pounds.

Chevette — GM's most fuel-efficient car features a new rear-end treatment with wraparound taillights, improved hatch glass mounting, new brakes and a new three-point passive restraint seat belt system. The new restraint system has been designed to accommodate both the GM child safety seat and the infant carrier.

Chevette models remain unchaged with a two-door hatchback coupe, four-door hatchback sedan and the popular Scooter version of the coupe.

Malibu Classic and Malibu — features new front and rear exterior treatments, new instrument panel and seat fabric accents, plus the same 3.8-liter V6 engine that is standard in Caprice, Camaro and Monte Carolo.

Camero — Chevrolet's sport line features a new grille and a new standard 3.8-liter V6 engine.

The sporty Corvette has a recognizably new, aerodynamic appearance plus extensive weight-reducing changes.

Camaro Sport Coupe derivations include the deluxe Berlinetta and Rally Sport, plus the high-performing Z28. All Camaros except the Z28 are also available with a 4.4- or 5.0-liter V8.

The Z28 is powered by a 5.7-liter V8 that produces 190 horsepower — up from 178 last year — with the difference mainly due to functional hood and air scoop and fender ports.

Monza — features a front air dam restyled to blend into the front fender wheel openings.

Monza exterior appearance is continued with minor changes. Grille center bars are now black. The emblem finish is new, and bumper guards are added as standard.

Monza's 2 + 2 hatchback model is continued as are the 2 + 2 regular hatchback coupe and notchback coupe. The Mozna station wagon model is gone. The Spyder sport option is offered with new hood decal and body striping.

Auto show founded dealers association

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association was formed in 1908 to organized the first auto show. However, the show was postponed until January 1909.

NAIFF H. KELEL
DADA president

The only years that didn't contain a Detroit Auto Show were a few years during World War II when Detroit car compnies retooled to make Detroit the "Arsenal of Democracy." Since then, the show has been an annual affair.

It has become the major showcase for the domestic auto industry. The show is the place where a car buff can see all the new cars on one floor, under one roof.

This year, vehicles from Jaguar-Rover-Triumph, Saab, Toyota, Renault, Fiat, Datsun, Colt and Honda will join the domestically produced cars and trucks at the show.

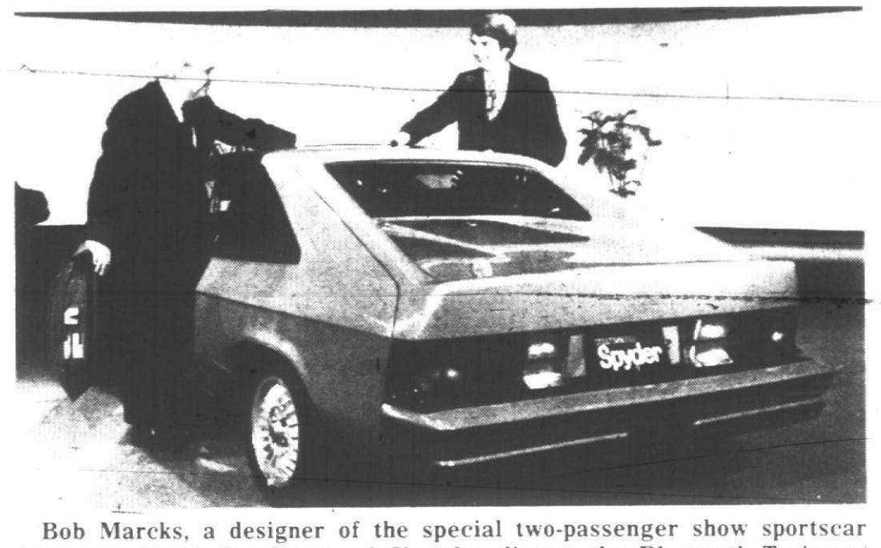

This year's chairman is Clarence M. "Bud" Shelton, a Rochester General Motors dealer.

CLARENCE M. SHELTON
Auto Show chairman

DADA executive vice president

Economical sports car to debut for Plymouth

A Plymouth Horizon with Turismo/ Spyder package will debut at the auto show as one of the first two-passenger prototypes for the fuel-conscious sportscar buff.

Show visitors will be the first to see the Plymouth Spyder show car that Chrysler Corp. could market as early as next year for the buyer seeking Italian styling without a high price tag.

"It could have an impact on the '80s like the Mustang had on the '60s," said Jack Withrow, vice president for product planning.

The Spyder (a generic term that means open car in Italy) is a contemporary roadster that features a mid-engine style hatch replacing the convetional rear seat of the TC-3, allowing additional storage space.

Befitting its name, the Spyder has a European red exterior with a T-bar roof, black moldings and louvered quarter windows. Like the basic two-door Horizon, its has a 23 mpg city rating. It is aerodynamically designed and has front-wheel drive for agile maneuvers on its 96.7-inch wheelbase.

Friday night

Auto show preview benefits 3 charities

The 1980 Detroit Auto Show committee endorsed three charities from the Detroit area to share in the proceeds of this year's Auto Show Charity Preview Night.

The charities are:

- Boys' Club of Metropolitan Detroit.
- Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.
- Northeast Guidance Center for Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Charity Preview Night will be 7-9 p.m. Jan 11. It is a "sneak preview" of the 64th Detroit Auto Show and the more than 250 new automobiles and trucks that will be on display in Cobo Hall during the auto show.

Thw show opens officially at noon Saturday, Jan. 12.

The $30-per-couple balck tie preview is the first major social event of the year in Detroit.

"The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults is the oldest and largest voluntary health agency of its type in the nation. It is dependent on donations such as this to continue its services with outpatient physical therapy," said Clarence M. Shelton, auto show chairman.

"Northeast Guidance Center is the only functioning mental health facility providing counseling and treatment, serving the northeast Detroit area, including Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes.

"The Boys' Club of Metropolitan Detroit is a youth guidance and character-building organization now in its 54th year.

"There are clubs in Detroit, Redford, Warren, Dearborn, Highland Park and other areas throughout the state."

After the grand opening at noon Saturday, ticket prices will be $3.50 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Auto show hours are 2-10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, 1-10 p.m. Wednesday, 2-11 p.m Friday; noon to 11 p.m. weekends, except for the final Sunday (Jan. 20); when the show will close at 10 p.m.

Charity Preview Night for the 1980 Detroit Auto Show not only helps local charities, but also is an opportunity to see the show with minimal crowds and to meet indstry leaders.

Co-sopnsors of the auto show charity preview night are:

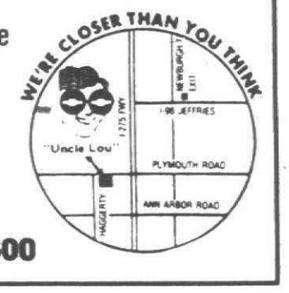

- Mr. and Mrs. W. Paul Tippett Jr., representing American Motors Corp.
- Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Bergmoser, representing Chrysler Corp.
- Mr. and Mrs. Philip Caldwell, representing Ford Motor Co.
- Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Estes, representing General Motors Corp.
- Mr. and Mrs. James McLernon, representing Volkswagen of America, Inc.
- Mayor Coleman Young, representing the city of Detroit.

THE VOLVO LUXURY SEDAN. IT DOESN'T GUZZLE ANYTHING.

A lot of luxury cars pamper you with soft leather seating, power windows and the like. Then they turn around and force you to live with uncomfortably low gas mileage. But what's worse is how much money you could pour out even before you drive one home.

To stop this drain on finances and energy, buy a Volvo 264. You'll get the comfort, luxury and performance you expect, and respectable gas mileage. Plus safety and quality workmanship that don't leave you feeling empty when it comes to getting your money's worth.

Stop in today. And test drive the Volvo 264 luxury sedan. You'll find you needn't be lavish with money. Or gas.

Chrysler products in largest exhibit

The exhibit's theme is "Quality Engineering for the 1980s."

An additional 1,400 square feet will accomodate the Plymouth import entries by Mitsubishi, featuring a cutaway model of the Fire Arrow.

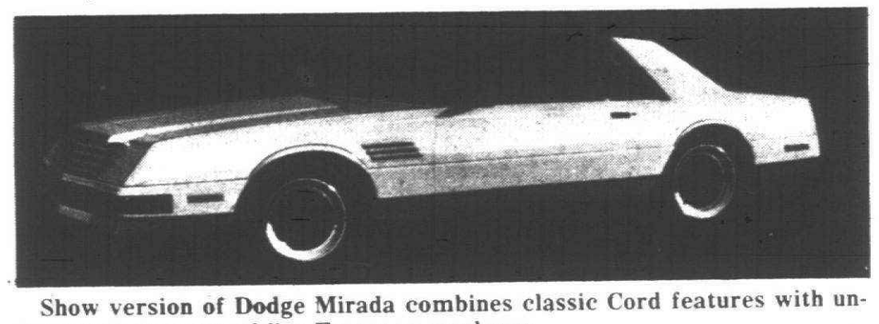

Featured on the four turntables will be two show cars — Cordoba de Oro and Turismo/Spyder — the Cordoba Crown with Corinthian Edition Package, and the LeBaron Salon with LS package.

On the floor will be a pair of LeBaron Fifth Avenue and New Yorker Fifth Avenue Limited Editions in deep mahogany metallic, as well as a value center focusing on the Plymouth Volare Special Value Package and other value leaders among Chrysler and Plymouth car lines.

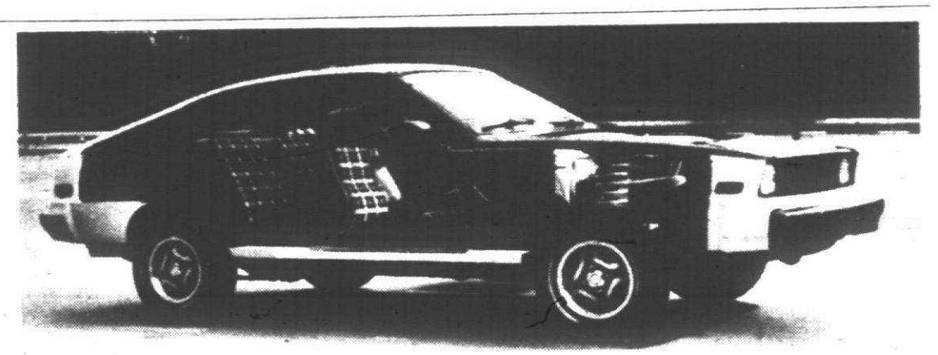

Also, the 1980 LeBaron Polycar, consisting of experimental components of reinforced plastics and other lightweight materials, will be displayed with a panel identifying the part, its weight savings and its use on the car.

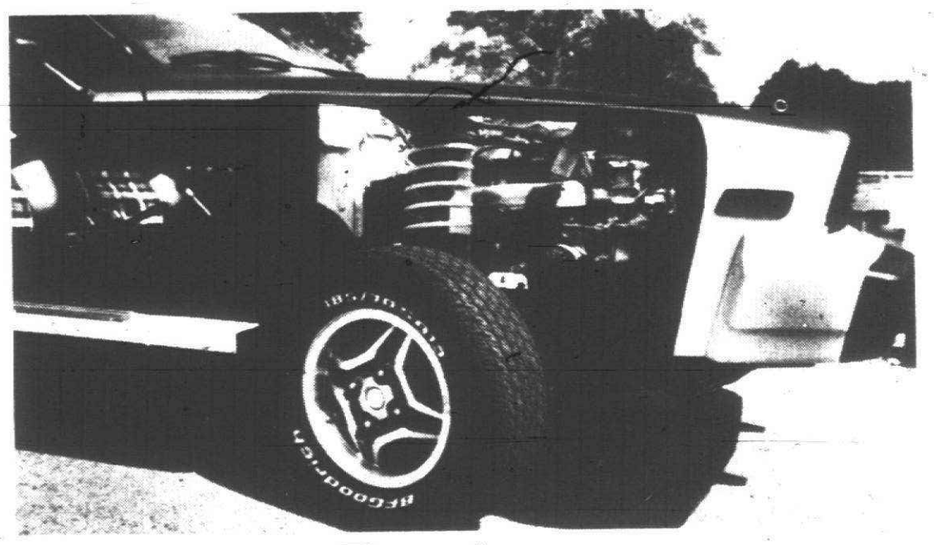

This model will be shown to the public for the first time. In the past, it has been available for viewing only by engineers and the automotive trade.

The full product line-up includes Chrysler New Yorker, and Fifth Avenue Edition luxury entries; Chrysler Newport; Chrysler's new contemporary classic, Cordoba; Chrysler's redesigned LeBaron; Plymouth Gran Fury, the family car; Plymouth Volare value entrees; Plymouth Volare value entrees; Plymouth TC-3 and Horizon, with front-wheel drive and fuel-stingy engines; Plymouth Voyager and Trail Duster wagons for versitile transportation, and Plymouth imports by Mitsubishi including Fire Arrow, Champ, Sappora and a specially customized Arrow pickup.

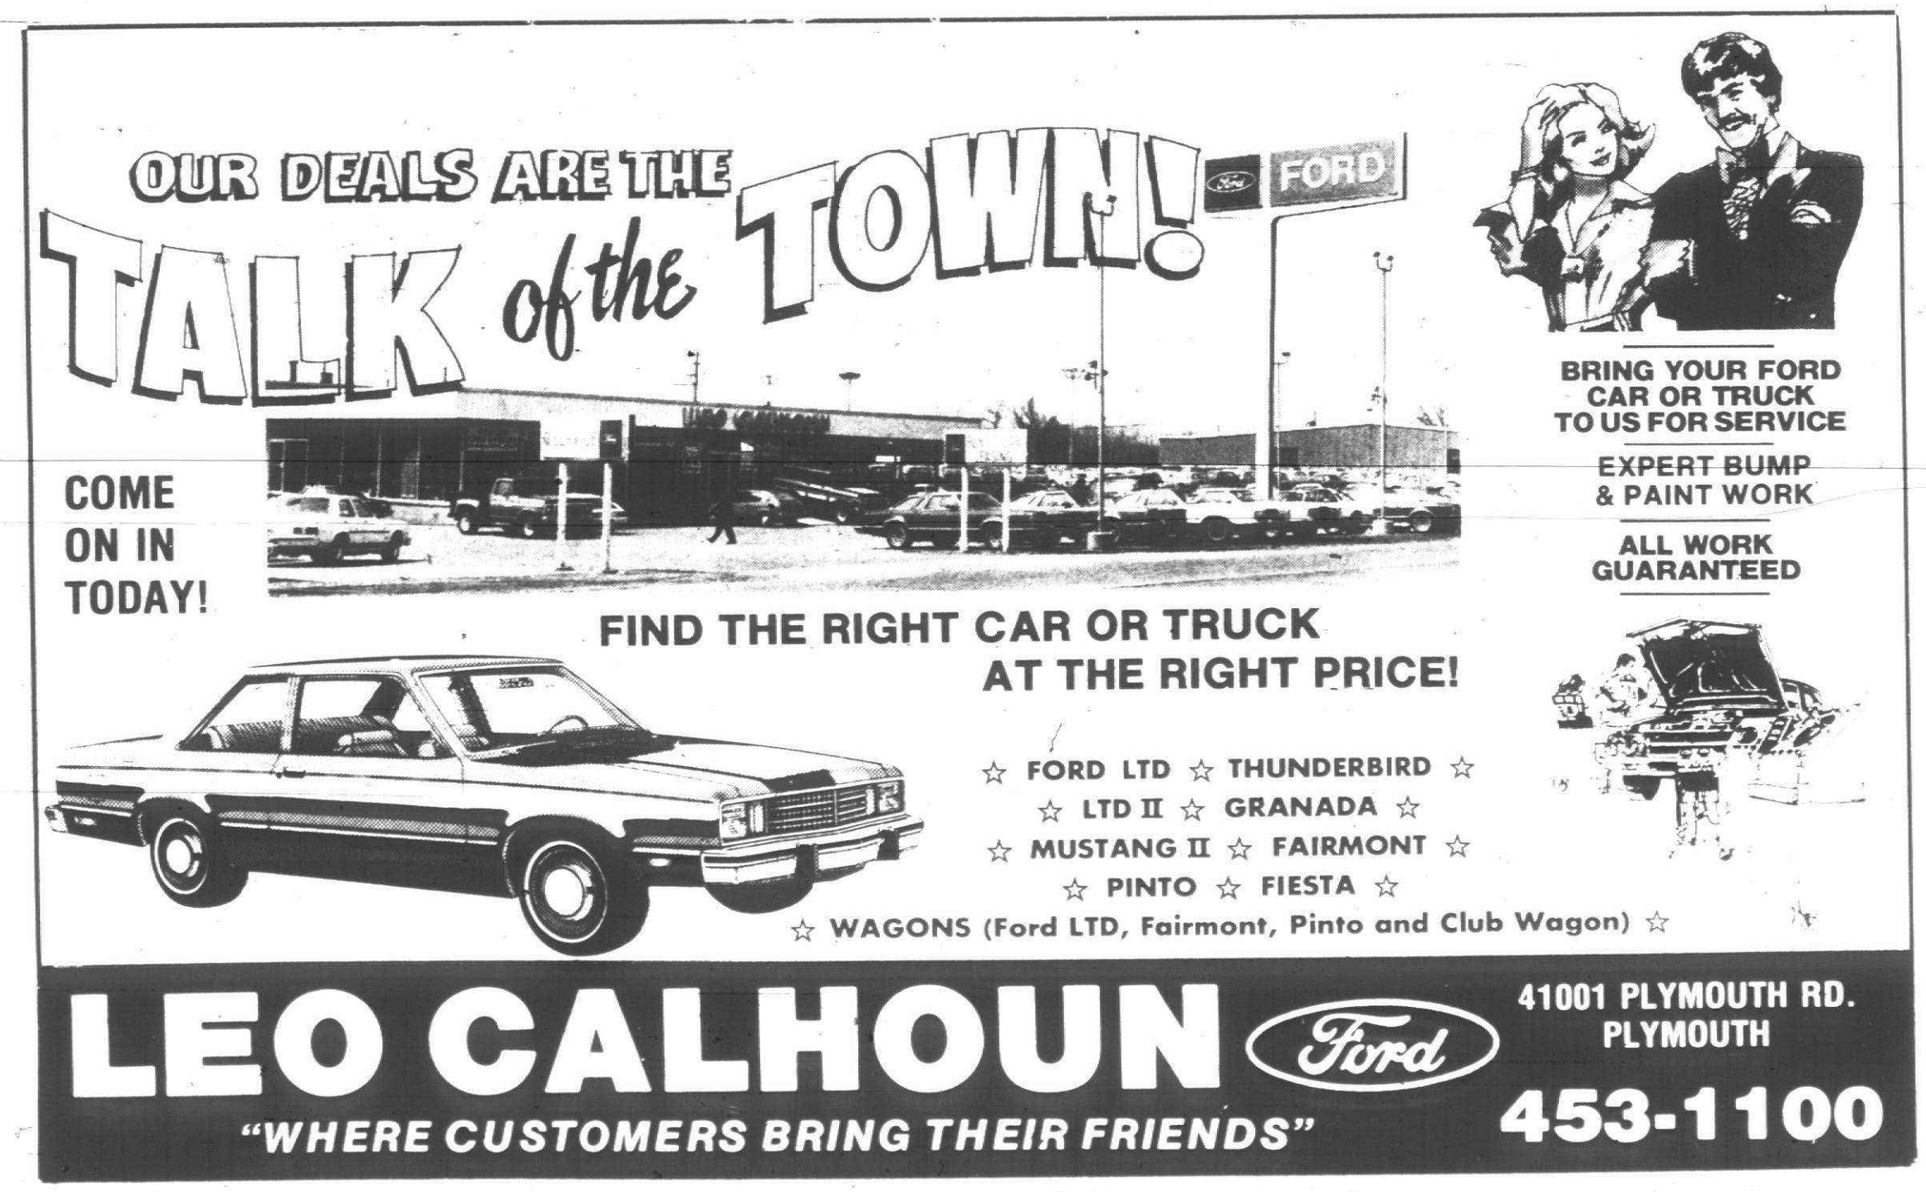

Show version of Dodge Mirada combines classic Cord features with understated elegance of fine European road cars.

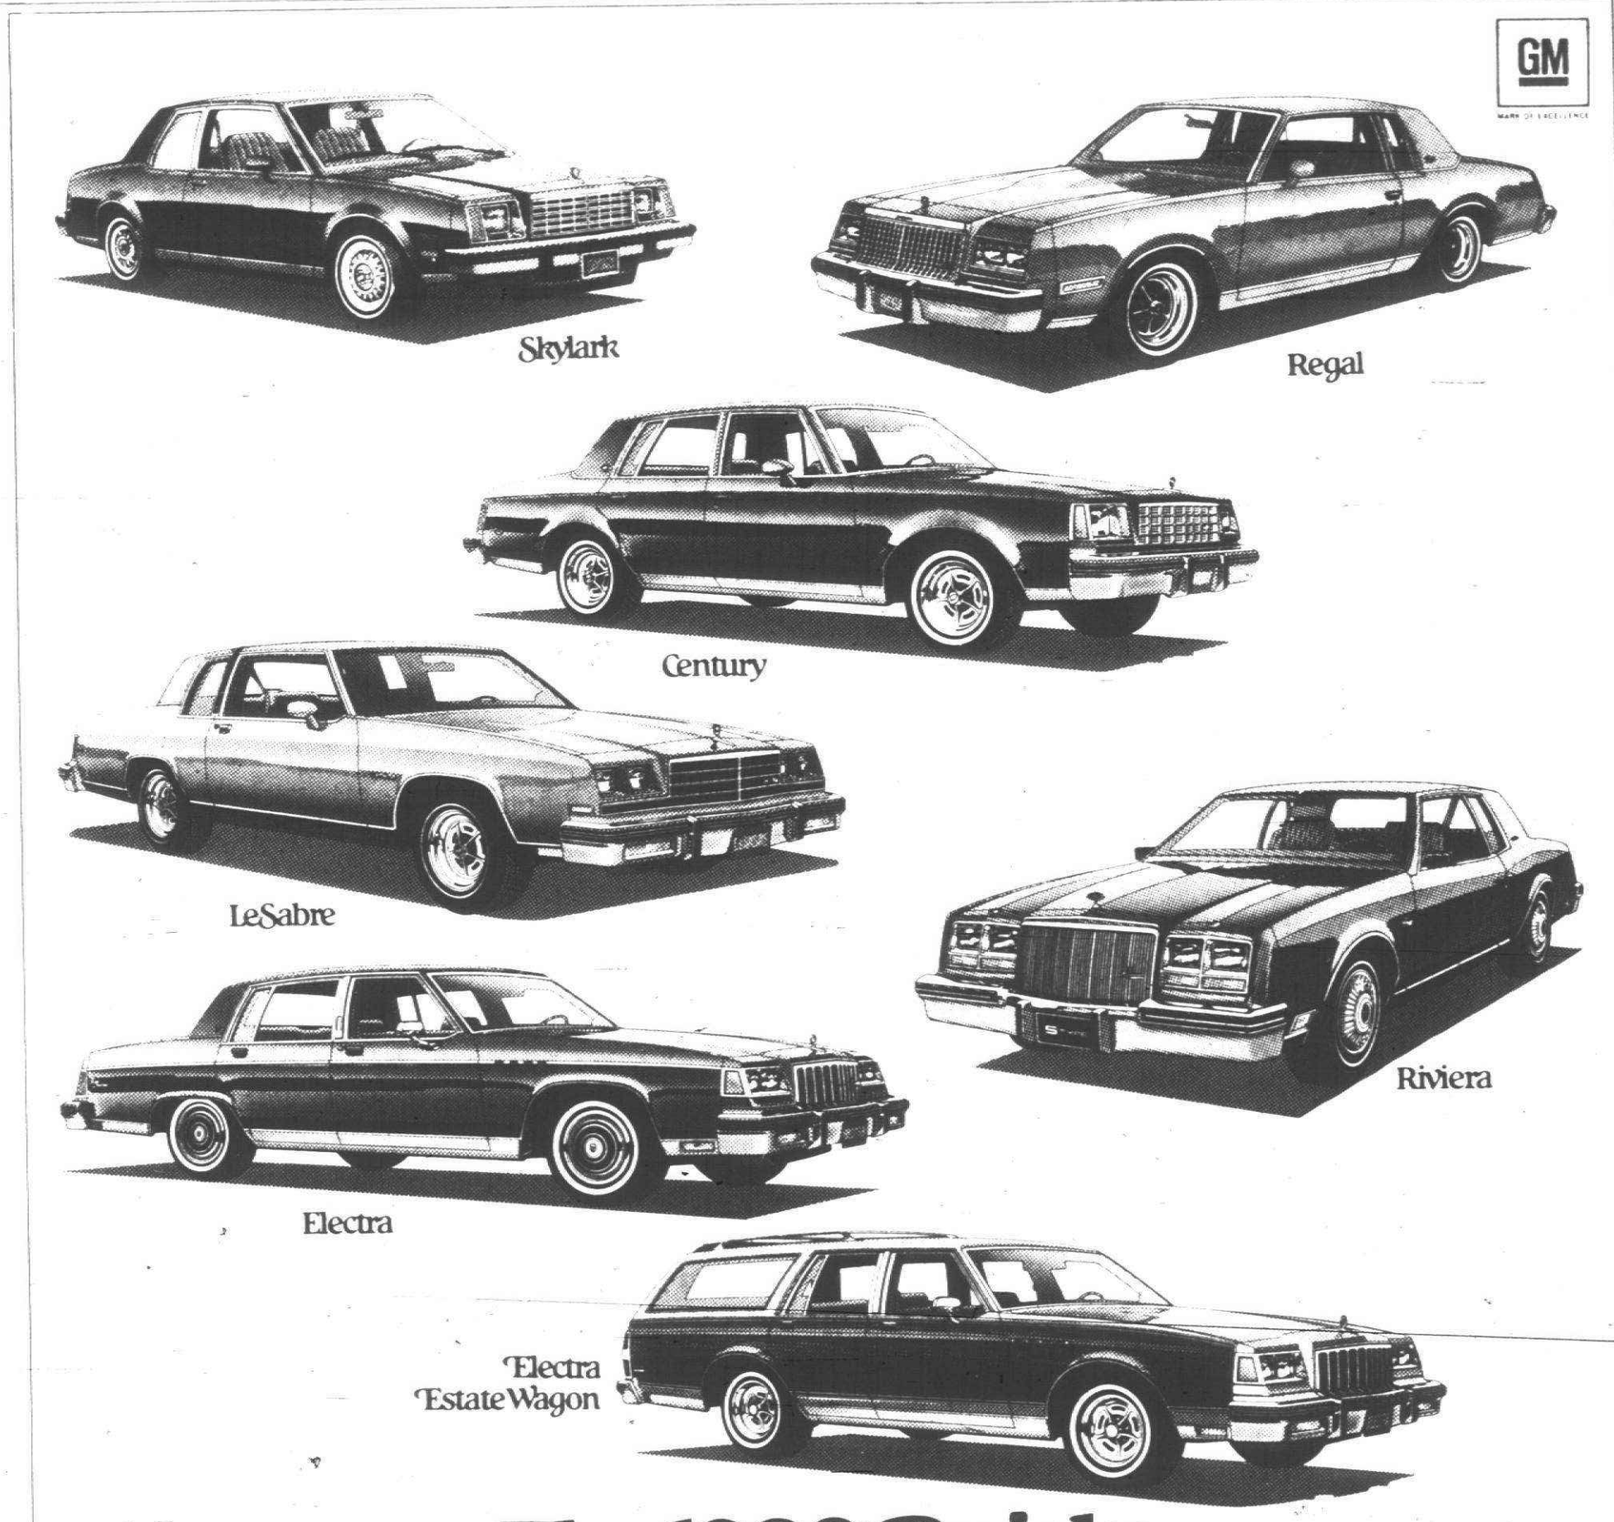

Fire Arrow

A specially built model of the 1980 Plymouth Fire Arrow, which was used in network television commericals, will be the feature attraction in the import display section of the Chrysler-Plymouth exhibit. Engine components, such as the McPherson-strut type suspension and fuel-efficient MCA jet engine, are color coded for improved identification by the auto show visitor. Other Mitsubishi imports in the exhibit are Plymouth Champ, Sapporo and Arrow pickup. In all, more than 30 models are on display in the largest display at the auto show.

The 1980 Buicks. Some very nice cars and some very good thinking. But then, we wouldn't have it any other way.

Cars today have to be more than just roomy, luxurious and pretty. They have to offer answers to a whole range of new concerns.

We at Buick have responded. By offering a selection of cars that provide solutions for your own particular needs.

From Riviera and Electra to Skyhawk and Skylark, we've put some very good thinking into some very nice cars.

They're innovative. Attractive. And always comfortable. Exactly what you'd expect from Buick. We simply wouldn't build them any other way.

And they're all on display at the Auto Show. See the Buick exhibit.

Ford feature

The resized Thunderd will be featured at this year's auto show. The car offers improvements in fuel economy and is roomier inside, although it is more than 16 inches shorter than last year. The Town Landau (above) has a padded half-vinyl roof and wrapover roof appliques. Among its standard features are a new 4.2-liter V8 engine, air conditioning, tinted glass and an electronic instrument cluster.

200-SX

Datsun' 1980 lineup (and its auto show display) will feature the sports/luxury 200-SX. The 200-SX is totally redesigned and, for the first time, offers both two-door hardtop and hatchback models. With its new NAPS-Z (Nissan Anti-Polution System) fuel-injected engine, the 200-SX gets 27 mpg in the city.

1980 AUTO SHOW

COME SEE WHAT MORE AMERICANS WILL BE DRIVING IN 1980

THE NEW CHEVROLET
We made The New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala right for the 80s . . . right for you.

CITATION
It's a whole new kind of compact car. With room for five and front-wheel drive.

MALIBU
A fresh new slice of apple pie. Loaded with the kind of value Chevy is famous for.

MONZA
Your kind of features. Your kind of fuel. That's the 1980 Chevy Monza in a nutshell.

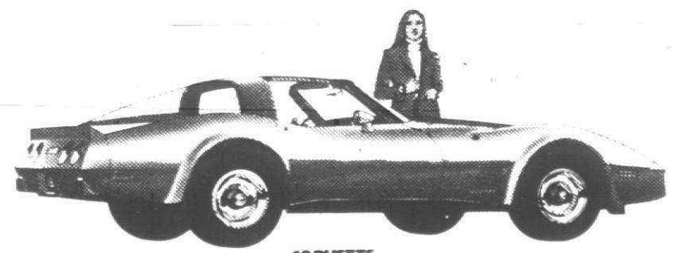

MONTE CARLO
The only Chevrolet with an available turbocharged engine. You've never seen the likes of it before.

CAMARO
With the kind of roadability that creates legends. Camaro continues to live up to its proud nickname. The Hugger.

CHEVETTE
A lot of car for a lot of reasons. At a price that's easy to handle.

CORVETTE
America's only true production sports car. There's nothing else like it on the road.

FLEETSIDE SILVERADO PICKUP
A tough truck from the ground up. And built to stay that way.

DETROIT AUTO SHOW • JANUARY 12-20, 1980 • COBO HALL

For more than cars . . .

This year, the auto show has several special events in addition to the cars and trucks on display.

The first of these is Charity Preview Night. This is a preview with the proceeds for the evening going to help the Boys' Club of Metropolitan Detroit, the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and the Northeast Guidance Center for Emotionally Distrubed Children.

Tickets for the $30-per-couple preview are available from the charities.

The official opening of the show is at noon Saturday, Jan. 12. American Motors will open the show with its new four-wheel-drive Eagle, accompanied by Miss Detroit Auto Show and officials from the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, such as DADA president Naiff Kelel, a Detroit AMC and Dodge dealer.

Kids' Nights, Monday-Tuesday (Jan. 14-15), will feature, in addition to the show itself, television personalities such as Sir Graves Ghastly, Mona and Yolanda of the Hot Fudge Show, Mr. Whoodini, and clowns, lead by Oopsy, Willie T., Sparky and Sparky Junior, plus Dexter, who doesn't like to be called a dummy but is one. In addition will be a number of facsimile characters for the children.

Senior Citizens Party, 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 16, is expanded this year to include games and contests, like "The Old Auto Quiz," "Name the Mystery Tune" and "Quick Draw." This large senior citizen's party should attract 4,000-5,000 people. Senior citizens get in free and will receive free food and refreshments, thanks to Peschke Packing, Rosen's Bread, George Miesel Co. and Vernor's Ginger Ale.

More than one radio station will provide a remote broadcast for the party, and there will be prizes donated by local businessmen. These include a sewing machine, a rug kit, a man's suitcase, a woman's overnight case, a drafting table, record albums and gift certificates.

Later that same day from 7-9 p.m., show sponsors will repeat Celebrity Night. Celebrity Night will bring a wide assortment of sports figures and celebrities to the show, giving visitors a chance to meet athletes, writers and broadcast personalities and get their autographs.

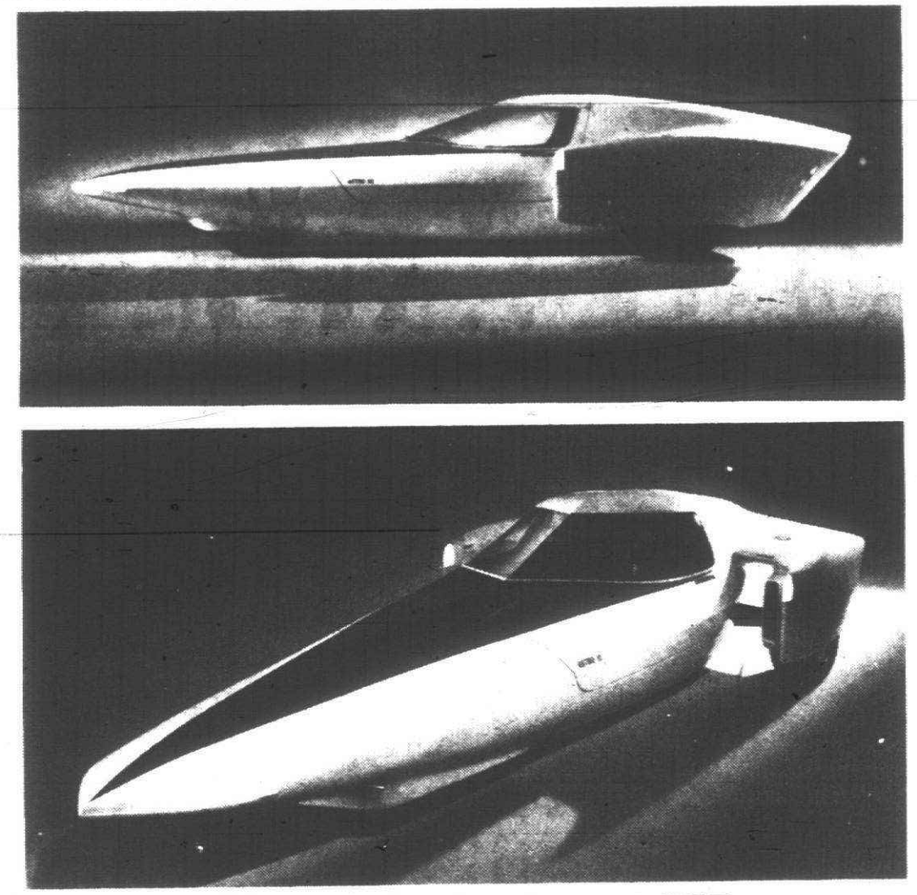

New car auctions will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday and are traditionally one of the most popular highlights of the auto show. Vehicles to be auctioned Thursday will be by the following exhibitors: Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler-Plymouth, Ford, Jaguar-Rover-Triumph and Datsun.

Friday's auctions will be by American Motors, Dodge, Lincoln-Mercury, Olds, Pontiac, Volkswagen and Toyota.

A complete list and description of each auction car will be released prior to the show, and most of the cars will be on display at dealerships prior to the show.

"It's a great place to get a new car at a very low price," said Dan Hayes, executive vice president of the DADA.

"Last year, an AMC Spirit, a Capri, a Trans-Am and an Olds Cutlass went substantially below dealer cost in these auctions."

Chevrolet's Astro III

The Astro III is a jet-styled, two-passenger idea car with a tricycle-type wheel arrangement. It is intended to test the possibilities for turbine-powered automotive travel. The Astro III is envisioned as a high-performance car suited for travel on restricted-access or computer-controlled highways. A power-actuated canopy moves forward and upward from the passenger compartment for easy entrance and exit. Closed-circuit television, with a viewing screen mounted on a console between the seats, provides rear vision.

Olds to show off in futuristic display

An all-new futuristic display will greet visitors to the Oldsmobile area at the auto show. A Delta Royale coupe, a 1980 Cutlass Brougham sedan and Toronado diesel will rotate on turntables in the area.

The Delta Royale coupe is medium camel metallic with a camel tan interior. Like other 1980 Oldsmobile Delta 88s, the featured car has a lengthened front end and shortened rear. Park and turn lamps are in the bumper and allow a lower front end for reduced aerodynamic drag.

The featured Cutlass sedan is black with a camel tan interior. The model is one of three new notchback sedans to join the Cutlass lineup for 1980. The display car feature optional opera lamps, available for the first time on 1980 Cutlasses.

A third turntable car is the fuel-efficient diesel-powered Oldsmobile Toronado. The featured model is light gray with claret leather interior and an electric astroroof.

The 1980 Toronado has shed up to an additional 111 pounds over the redesigned 1979 Toronado to help improve fuel economy.

A diesel engine cutaway is also on display at the show. The engine, with moving parts, provides visitors to the division's display a look inside this power plant.

Two other special interest cars are featured in Oldsmobile's 13,500-square-foot display. They are a 1980 Cutlass Calais with the simulated convertible top and a Cutlass Supreme with a custom appearance package.

The convertible is designed to look like a rag top, and this new top is available in four color choices — white, black, beige and dark blue. The display car is white.

The custom appearance package featues a stainless steel roof band covering the sail panel, a brushed aluminum molding forward of the rear quarter window and a stylish grille treatment. The display car is medium camel with a medium camel interior.

In addition to the featured cars, Oldsmobile is exhibiting a wide selection of 1980 models including the Omega, Cutlass, Eighty-Eight, Ninety-Eight and Toronado.

A popular show attraction at previous Oldsmboile displays, Rodney the Robot, is scheduled for daily appearances at this year's show. Rodney will be touting the entire Oldsbombile lineup for 1980 and will be assisting the Detroit dealers in presenting eight mini-Omegas during the show. The miniature Omega is powered by a three-horsepower engine. Entry blanks can be obtained from Detroit metropolitan Oldsmobile dealers.

Auto Show on the air

Five radio stations will be conducting live broadcasting from the floor of Cobo Hall during the 1980 Detroit Auto Show: WXYZ, WCAR, WJR-FM, WMJC-FM and WLBS-FM.

WXYZ will broacast its nightly 6-8 p.m. Sportstalk show live from the auto show. Sportstalk hosted by Ron Cameron, is Detroit's only call-in sports show and features guests from the world of sports who can be questioned directly by callers.

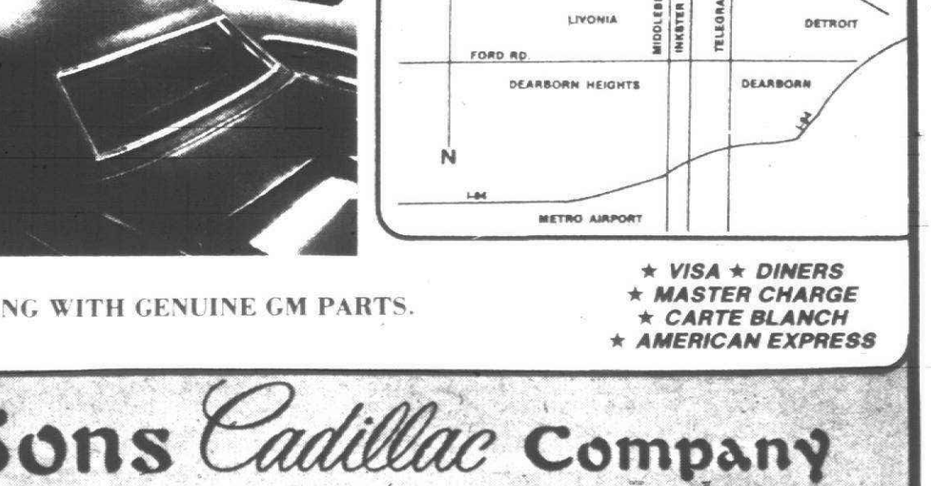

Visitors to the auto show will have a chance to see Cameron and his guests "live" and ask them question on the air right from the show.

WCAR, formerly WIID, is Detroit's ethnic station with much broadcasting in languages other than English. Among the station personalities broadcasting live from the auto show will be Bob Allison and Jack McCarthy.

WJR-FM is a "beautiful music" station. When you visit the show, WJR will offer a "Place to Relax."

WMCJ-FM's radio personalities at the show will include Eddie Rogers, Craig Hunt, Rod Prahin, Steve Trella and Tom Force. The station will sponsor a "Magic Mystery Car" contest. Models will be on hand along with station personalities.

WLBS-FM will have its broadcasters sending disco music from the floor of the auto show.

A new front-end appearance highlights Oldsmobile's 1980 Toronado. The car is 147 pounds lighter than the 1979 model.
