Will farmland like this remain in Canton?

Farms or development?

New officials want taxpayers to decide

By DARLENE STINSON

What will become of some 6,000 acres of farmland in Canton's western half?

Will the land remain agricultural — even after homes, stores and industry dot the surrounding area? Or will the land succumb to development pressures and become just another part of suburbia?

The majority of the new Township Board — in office now for only six weeks — says a decision is needed soon on the final fate of Canton's farmland-preservation program and the public purchase of development rights.

At least five members of the seven-person board favor asking voters within the year for a development-rights millage.

If a millage request fails a second time, officials said that the preservation program in its present form could be doomed. The idea of preserving farms could be dropped altogether or modified to include a smaller amount of land.

The Township Board is scheduled to meet at 7 p.m. today (Monday) to discuss farmland preservation and set a course for the resolution of the five-year-old proposal. The study session will be held at Township Hall on Canton Center at Proctor.

TRUSTEE ROBERT PADGET, who requested the study session, said "you can't keep a community in limbo forever."

He joins four other board members — Supervisor James Poole, Clerk John Flodin, Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz and Trustee Loren Bennett — in the belief that voters should be asked within the year for a development-rights millage.

Padget envisions a small millage request — substantially less than the four mills ($4 per $1,000 assessed property valuation) narrowly defeated by voters in November 1978.

"Our community has gone on with this so long that other things are lacking," Padget said of the farmland-preservation proposal. "A community can't handle just so many major issues at a time."

"I'm a supporter of the program itself," he said. "But there's no such thing as Santa Claus when it comes to this program. The funding has to come from local sources."

Funding of a development-rights program has held up final implementation of the township's farmland-preservation proposal.

Some 6,000 acres west of Canton Center already have been zoned permanently for agricultural use. But the Township Board feels legally — and morally — obligated to reimburse landowners for their lost right to development the land.

Under a development-rights program, landowners would receive the difference between the fair market value of farmland and the potential price paid by developers for the land. The cost of the program was estimated at $16 million in 1978.

Township officials searched for non-local funding sources following voter defeat of a four-mill tax request in 1978. The search for federal and state funding as well as grants from private foundations ended in defeat.

A resolution adopted by the old Township Board stipulates that another vote on a development-rights millage will be held by May 1981 unless alternative funding is found.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the new board question the binding nature of the resolution on them. Several balk at the cost of a special election on

Issue touts long history

Residents who have followed Canton politics since 1975 probably consider "farmland preservation" a household term.

The program has stirred controversy and evoked anger among some of the landowners involved. As one of the few programs of its kind in the nation, it has gained national and state-wide acclaim for Canton Township.

Since the mid-'70s, farmland preservation has topped the township's list of major political issues.

The program became a topic of public discussion under the administration of former Supervisor Robert Greenstein, who held the township's chief elective post from 1974 to 1976. He served as a township trustee from 1978 to 1980.

Concern for aesthetics, growth control and the nation's dwindling farmland sparked the proposal.

During Greenstein's term as supervisor, the Canton Planning Commission adopted a master land-use plan which reserved most of the land west of Canton Center for agricultural use.

The Wayne County Planning Commission, which reviewed the plan prior to its adoption, said Canton legally was obligated to reimburse

Survey results: People dislike strip shopping

By ARLENE FUNKE

Canton residents give fairly good marks to their stores for prices, variety and quality of merchandise.

But many prefer the one-stop shopping found at giant malls in neighboring communities.

A shoppers' survey questionnaire which ran in several recent editions of the Observer prompted 104 Canton residents to respond to questions about their shopping habits. Names were kept confidential.

The results will be turned over to the Canton Township Business Task Force, which is researching problems of local businesses. The task force, which is meeting Monday evening (today) in Township Hall, eventually will make recommendations to the Township Board on possible solutions.

THE OVERALL tally showed that about 60 percent of the respondents "usually" find desirable attributes such as good prices, variety, quality and favorable location with Canton stores.

But when asked to make suggestions for improvements, a comment by a resident of Orhan Street was typical:

The resident she recently did the bulk of her Christmas shopping at Westland and Livonia malls "because there are many stores under one roof." It must be noted that the survey is is an informal sampling of shopping habits, rather than a scientific study. Often, persons who are satisfied tend to remain silent, leaving comments to a small, vocal groups.

MANY Canton merchants have complained that a township ordinance which limits size and type of signs hampers business. Others say they are hamstrung by strict zoning and occupancy requirements. The following is a list of questions and answers:

• Circle the three main reasons why you shop at any given store (variety, product price, product quality, brand names, courtesy, return policy, store attractiveness, attractiveness, location, hours, visibility-signs).

Ranking highest with 82 first choices was product price, followed by variety and quality. Store location and courtesy also were important.

Store visibility (larger signs) ranked least in importance.

"Quit bickering over the stupid signs," complained a Hanford resident. "Try to create a feeling of good will and togetherness, like Plymouth seems to have done."

• Do you find the three attributes you circled in Canton stores? (usually, seldom, not at all)

About 60 percent said they usually find those attributes in Canton, often at large stores such as Meijers or Kmart.

About 40 percent said they "seldom" do.

A Holmes Drive resident said he usually finds what he needs in Canton, and likes the "close location and familiarity with (Canton) stores."

"I would like to see a large department store, but I don't want to see any more signs," he added.

A woman said "Harvard Square needs some well-known or unusual clothing stores."

A resident who "seldom" finds satisfaction at Canton stores suggested that Canton business needs "personality." "Create a little bit of Plymouth in Canton," urged the respondent. "Small stores are too spread out."

• Check the type of merchandise you usually shop for in Canton (appliances, groceries, hardware, clothing, restaurant, party store goods, service industries, professional, gift items)

Ninety-eight percent of shoppers said they do their grocery shopping in Canton. Also ranking high, in order of preference, were party store goods, hardware, professional (doctors, dentists, banks), hardware, restaurant and clothing.

Garnering less interest were gift items (boutiques) and appliances.

Drunks stayed off road

Cops enjoy light holiday

Maybe Canton residents are making resolutions to be more careful about drinking alcoholic beverages.

Not a single Canton resident took advantage of the police department's offer to provide transportation on New Year's to persons who overindulged in spirits. But that didn't seem to have a bad effect on traffic figures, said Police Lt. Larry Stewart.

"For the type of (snowy) road conditions we had, the accidents weren't bad at all," Stewart said. "We had four or five, and that isn't out of the ordinary (even) for a dry day. People apparently adjusted their driving accordingly."

THE POLICE department earlier had announced that residents who partied too much and were unable to drive could call police and request a ride. A similar offer had been made — and also ignored — on Christmas.

While accidents were light on New Year's, there was a hit-and-run incident about 9:30 p.m. on Dec. 30. A 16-year-old Canton girl was struck as she walked on Haggerty Road north of Palmer with two friends.

The girl, who was taken to Wayne County General Hospital, was listed in fair condition several hours after the accident, Stewart said.

The dark-colored car left the scene, and police still are investigating, Stewart said.

CRIME during the New Year's holiday was highlighted by the arrest of a youth in connection with the setting of fires at two Canton houses and the breaking of a store window.

According to the fire department, there was a house blaze at 7533 Corbett about 10:40 a.m. on New Year's Day.

Capt. Arthur Winkel, the fire marshal, said ashes from a fireplace had been deposited in a box in the basement. The smoldering ashes apparently erupted into open flame, causing structural and smoke damage.

No one was injured in the Corbett fire.

Youth faces arson rap

Footsteps in the snow have led to the arrest of a 16-year-old Canton youth on charges of arson and malicious destruction of property.

Police Lt. Larry Stewart said the teen was arrested about 10:30 a.m. Jan. 1 and sent to the Wayne County Youth Home in Detroit, pending action by juvenile authorities.

According to Stewart, two house fires and a window-breaking at a Quik Pik grocery at Warren and Lilley roads had occurred within a 2-hour, mid-morning period New Year's Day.

REPORTS indicate police Off. Carl Heinzman and fire department officials followed fresh footsteps in the snow through a subdivision and around the store.

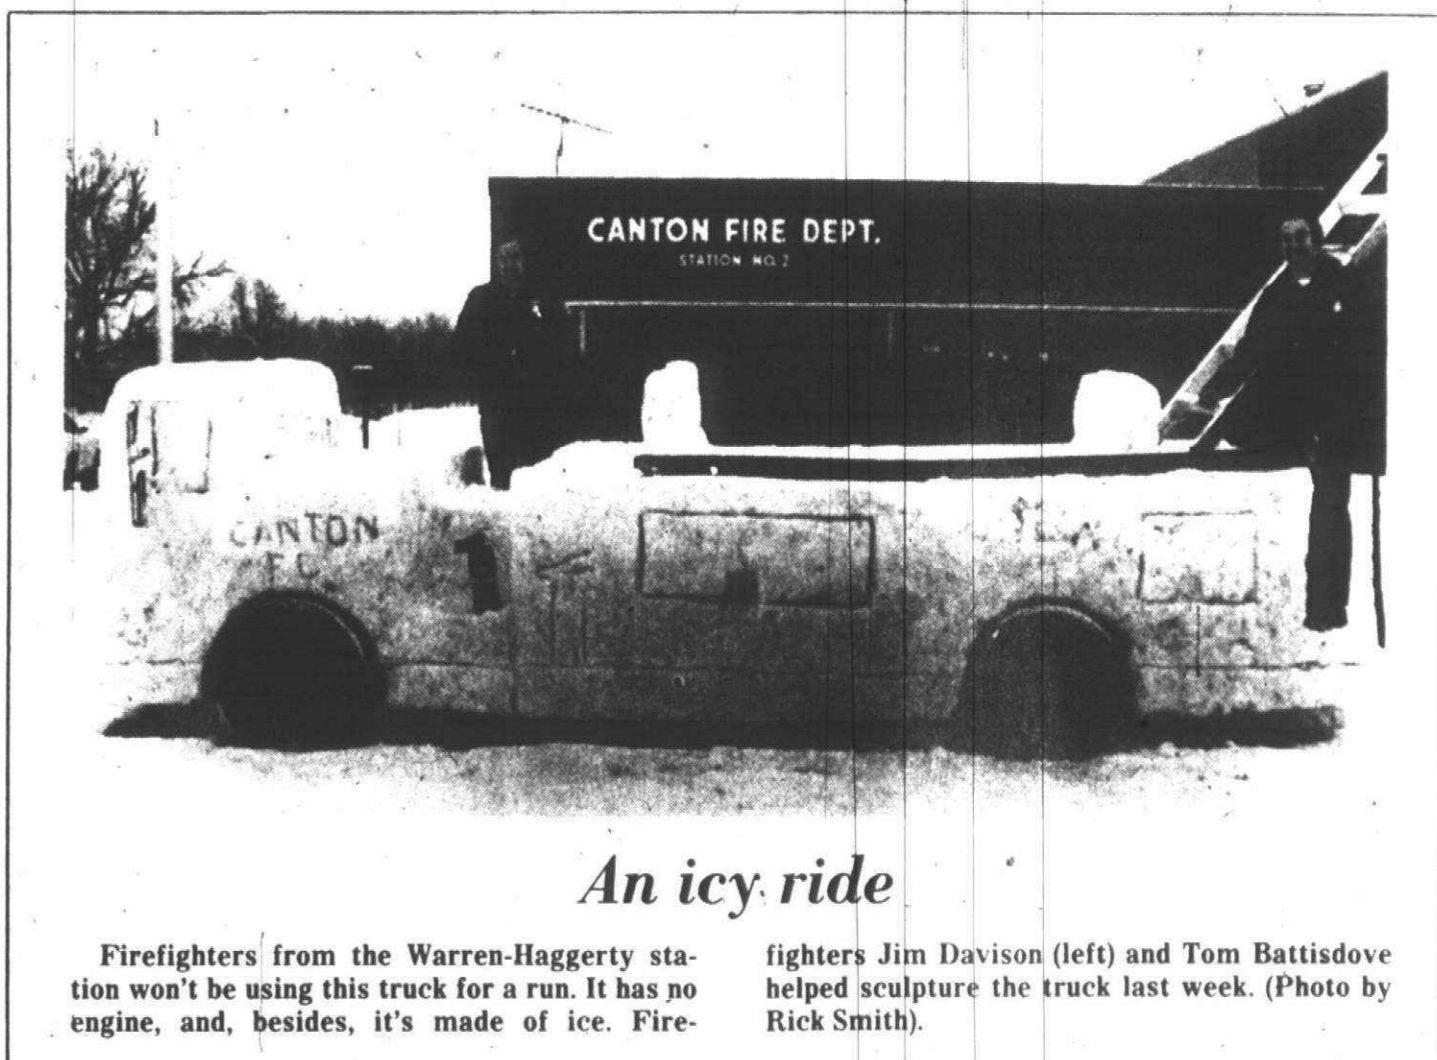

Stewart said the first incident came with the breaking of the window of the store. A short while later, a Fleet Street resident called the fire department after discovering a morning newspaper lying ablaze in a doorway.

Two doors were scorched, and there was some smoke damage, according to the fire department.

"We (firefighters) backtracked the footprints" to a house on nearby Versailles, explained Capt. Arthur Winkel, Canton's fire marshal.

There, a similar fire apparently had gone out by itself, said Winkel.

"Those people weren't even aware," added Winkel. "We woke them up."

An icy ride

Firefighters from the Warren-Haggerty station won't be using this truck for a run. It has no engine, and, besides, it's made of ice. Fire-

Plymouth movie airs Tuesday

By TERI BANAS

Will Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs ever find happiness again in her civic duties after appearing in a television movie?

Will three local teens return to the Centennial Educational Park unnoticed?

Will Plymouth ever be the same small town again after going Hollywood?

The answer to these questions and more will come out only after the viewing of "Word of Honor," a CBS television production that dressed up the town for two days in September.

"Word of Honor" will be featured as the CBS Movie of the Week tomorrow night at 9 p.m. on Channel 2 in Detroit.

And you can bet nothing will shake some folks who participated in the filming from watching.

The production stars Karl Malden as a small-town newspaper reporter who becomes embroiled in an issue testing the protection of the First Amendment.

The information he withholds from authorities concerns a murder case. A murder is committed, involving an abducted young woman, and Malden has the key to what could clear the police of an illegal search warrant rap. Complicity would mean revealing from whom he received the information that led to the finding of the body.

The movie deals with Malden's decision making and other aspects of his personal life, such as the marriage of a daughter and a beauty pageant that features another daughter.

Specifically, the production in Plymouth Sept. 19-20 called for a cast of 500 locals, which included some faces that may or may not be visible on screen Tuesday. It all depends on the final editing.

What some local residents may recognize in the beginning of the movie is a festival scene that was shot in Kellogg Park in Plymouth.

GEORGE W. LEE

Services for George W. Lee, 83, of Canton Township, were conducted recently at Casterline Funeral Home in Northville.

Mr. Lee, a retired University of Michigan Hospital employee, died on Dec. 20 at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

He was born in Canada on Sept. 16, 1897. Survivors include his wife, Wava, and three sisters.

Services for the 35-year Canton resident were officiated by Pastor Gary Ohlemacher of Grace Baptist Church in Belleville. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery.

JAMES STEWART

Funeral services for Mr. Stewart, 75, of Plymouth Township were held recently at Schrader Funeral Home with burial in Parkview Memorial Gardens in Livonia. Officiating was the Rev. Carl Allen.

Mr. Stewart, who died on Dec. 26, is survived by his wife, Helen; son, Charles of Bay City; sisters, Margruite Herbert of Bay City and Alberta Coffell of Flint; brothers, Tim, Jack, Robert and Fred Stewart of Flint; 12 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

MADELINE BARRY

Funeral services for Miss Barry of Plymouth Township were held recently at Holy Redeemer Church in Detroit with burial at Holy Cross Cemetery. Officiating was the Rev. Gary Lauenstein.

Miss Barry, who died on Dec. 29, is survived by a sister, Marguerite Barry.

Rachel Hilbert dies in Florida

Rachel McKinstry Hilbert, a former Redford civic leader and Livonia teacher-librarian, died Dec. 29 in Florida.

Mrs. Hilbert, 80, was instrumental in building the Redford Township Library and served on the Library Commission. She was active in the Business and Professional Women's Club of Redford Township and was named Woman of the Year by the Redford Jayettes. Mrs. Hilbert also assisted in the founding of the Redford Town Hall series.

She taught in Livonia schools for 20 years and started the libraries at both Bentley and Franklin high schools.

She and her husband, Russell, superintendent of the Redford Union School District for 20 years, lived in Redford from 1948-68.

After his retirement in 1968, the couple lived in St. Petersburg, Fla., and Brighton, Mich.

The Rev. George E. McKullough officiated at services in Schrader Funeral Home, and burial was in East Elmwood Cemetery, Whalen, Mich.

Surviving in addition to her husband are sons, James of East Lansing, Roger of Rockford, Ill.; daughter, Mary Fritz of Plymouth; sisters, Gretchen Ensign of Battle Creek, Mary Elizabeth Noverr of Battle Creek; and eight grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to St. Stephen Episcopal Church of Hamburg, Mich.

SEMTA adjusts bus routes on west side

Eight SEMTA bus routes will be changed in western Wayne County effective Monday, Jan. 5, according to Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority.

Routes affecting local commuters include:

• Route 185 — Ecorse, Dearborn, Westland: A bus will be added to the morning outbound trip. It will leave at 6:43 a.m. from Veterans Hospital with expected Westland arrival at 7:43 a.m.

• Route 815 — western Wayne Park and Ride: The route will be extended to serve residents of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, and Canton. An additional Park and Ride lot will be located at the Plymouth Church of Christ at Sheldon and Ann Arbor roads.

• Routes 810 (Plymouth, Livonia, Detroit Park and Ride); 820 (Farmington, Livonia, Redford; Detroit Park and Ride); and 835 (Ford Road Park and Ride) — Arrival and departure times will be adjusted to alleviate overcrowding on all.

For other information, call SEMTA at 962-5515 or toll free at 1-800-462-5161.

Sprinter turns school official

Telford recalls days as track star

Sitting behind the desk in his Plymouth-Canton School District office, John Telford, executive director of secondary education, turns back the pages and recalls the days when he was one of the nation's outstanding sprinters.

Laughingly, he recalls he once held the world record for the 500 meter run for exactly two weeks.

In telling this odd story, he says he ran the 500-meter, an odd distance, in 1.075 seconds in Chicago. At that time it was considered a record. But two short weeks later, it was broken by Lang Stanley, one of the world's top runners.

While he smiles at that chapter in his athletic career, Telford relates with considerable pride that he bettered 47 seconds for the 440-yard dash. It was the peak of his career.

It was this ability that earned him a place on the All-America track squad in 1960.

He also enjoys recalling his career at Wayne State University, where he was coached by the late David Holmes, whom Telford considers one of the greatest track coaches of all time.

While Telford was one of the stars on the university track team, he also furthered his education by earning a bachelor's degree, as well as master's and doctorate.

HIS EXPERIENCES also included running in many parts of the world. In rapid order he recalls races and then softly admits, "I never was beat in Europe." Then he adds that most of his victories were scored in dual meets.

While a student at Denby High School in Detroit, Telford never took part in other sports such as basketball and football. He said that a gym teacher at Denby once told him he was exceptionally fast and that he would make a good runner. So, his attention focused on track.

When his track days ended, he turned to an administrative career that has been his life for more than 22 years. He began his career at Southeastern High in Detroit and has also worked in Walled Lake, Berkley and at Macomb Community College. He came to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools four years ago.

Along the way he has learned a great deal about modern youth.

"We had a bad time in the '60s," he said. "The youth of those days caused a lot of trouble and seemed to care little about education. But today, the youth population is different. They are eager for education and use the athletic program for what it's worth — a means of keeping a healthy body."

He did take time to relate, as a proud father, that his daughter is one of the fastest runners in his area and she is certain to be heard from before she leaves school.

SC trustees OK culinary center

Assured of enough state funding to begin construction, the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees has awarded a $1.3 million contract for its long-awaited Culinary Arts addition of the Waterman Campus Center.

Crunk and Tocco Inc., general contractors, will start work early in 1980 and be finished by mid-1982.

The addition, on the north side of the Waterman Center on the campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, will enable the community college to double its enrollment in the popular culinary arts program to 130.

"IN SPITE of the worst fiscal condition faced by the state in the last 40 years, there will be a 1980-81 capital outlay bill passed by the legislature," President C. Nelson Grote told trustees Wednesday.

The capital bill is in different forms in each house. But even if the lower amount is passed, the college will have enough construction money to last it through the current state fiscal year, which runs to Sept. 30, 1981. Gov. Miliken has promised not to use his line-item veto on it.

"The state has never failed to meet its obligation in a project once the first installment has been authorized and paid," said Grote.

The college has some $632,000 in local money from a 1968 bond issue, plus the interest the bond money has earned. The state's share is about $700,000.

TRUSTEES voted 6-0 to award the contract, with Treasurer Len Wozniak absent.

The board added four alternates to the main contract which will provide parking for 10 handicapped persons, replacement of condensation units in the present building and power exhaust fans.

The addition will provide classroom, laboratory, office and demonstration kitchen space for the culinary program. The current cafeteria kitchen in the Waterman center doubles as a teaching kitchen.

Unwanted!

Sad ending awaits most abandoned pets

Several Observer reporters and editors gathered information for this story. It was written by Darlene Stinson.

They're taken to parks or a distant neighborhood and left to fend for themselves.

They may survive for awhile by scavenging through garbage bags, killing a smaller animal or begging tidbits of food.

But contrary to the hopes of humans who abandon them, most stray dogs and cats wind up dead.

In some areas of Wayne County, such as Redford, Canton Townships and Westland, the stray animal population has increased this winter despite a traditional decline during the cold-weather months.

Animal control officers in all three communities attribute the increase to the sour economy.

"People are out of work and they can't afford the food," said John Swalley, who spends five days a week rounding up stray dogs in Canton. "I'd say it's a pretty decent increase — maybe 15 or 20 percent."

Even in communities with no reported increase — such as Plymouth, Garden City and Livonia — an upswing in the stray population is expected following the Christmas season.

Pets that delight their new owners on Christmas morning often are turned out in the cold after the warmth of the holiday spirit has cooled.

"Usually, the dogs start coming in about Jan. 10," says Herman Pyrkosz, Livonia's animal control officer for the last 15 years. "The kids go back to school, and people don't realize how much work pets are."

Families who abandon their pets usually believe someone will offer the dog or cat a home. But animal control officers and spokespersons for shelters say few persons open their homes to a stray.

Ironically, abandonment usually means a death sentence.

At the Michigan Humane Society shelter in Westland, for example, most stray animals are put to sleep after a four-day waiting period. Animals with identification tags are kept three days longer.

Healthy animals brought to the shelter by owners normally are put up for adoption. But that's not the case with strays picked up by animal control officers.

Kathy Blauet, manager of the shelter, called adopting strays "a risk."

"We don't know what disease they've come in contact with," added shelter employee Vickey Ankenvrandt. "They may be fence jumpers or habitual runners."

The Humane Society shelter holds contracts with Westland, Canton, Livonia and Dearborn Heights for the temporary housing of strays. Most are put to sleep with injections of sodium pentobarbital.

Ms. Ankenvrandt maintains that many shelters sell stray dogs and cats to laboratories for medical experimentation.

In any case, stray dogs usually are taken off the streets by animal control officers if they're not first killed by a car or a larger animal. Communities without ordinances requiring confinement of cats usually do not pick up felines. Stray cats often are dropped off at shelters by residents. Plymouth Township, Garden City, Livonia, Redford, Canton and Westland all employ animal control officers and contract with some agency for the temporary housing of strays. In the city of Plymouth, police officers pick up strays and bring the animals to the Parkway Veterinary Clinic.

MS. ANKENVRANDT urges families which no longer want a dog or cat to bring the animal to the Humane Society. About 90 percent of the animals brought in by owners are put up for adoption.

Dogs, she said, have about a 50 percent chance of finding a new home. In November, 104 of the dogs brought in by owners were adopted and 105 were put to sleep.

The adoption rate for cats and kittens is worse. In November, only 20 of the felines found new homes of the 175 which were brought in by owners. Cats typically are put to sleep because of age or earmites, a common infestation.

A small fee is charged to owners bringing in an animal. But Ms. Blauet said the fee will be waived in cases of financial hardship.

Ms. Andenvrandt attributes the stray problem to "people's ignorance."

"They don't know what we're here for," she said of the Humane Society. "They think we're a slaughterhouse, so they put the dog out on the street. That's like putting a baby out in the cold."

She advises a halt to the practice of pet gift-giving. Pyrkosz of Livonia says people should give stuffed animals — instead of live ones — to small children.

"It's not a hand-painted necktie where someone says, 'Oh, wow,' and puts it in their drawer," he said.

Other animal control officers, such as Max King of Redford and Don Dennis of Westland, favor proposals to mandate spaying and neutering of dogs and cats.

"Eighty-five percent of the people don't deserve to own an animal," says Dennis. "They don't take care of them properly."

Officials favor farmland vote

farmland-preservation issue. But most say that an election should be held sometime in 1981.

"How long do you hold something like this in limbo?" asked Supervisor Poole. "This thing has been used as a political football."

But another board member — Trustee Carol Bodenmiller — said the township should hold back on a millage election until the present economy improves. Trustee Stephen Larson said he would support only a small millage request or one "that has a chance of passage."

Mrs. Bodenmiller concurs with the majority view of the past Township

Board, concerning a timetable for development-rights funding. She said no one can develop land in western Canton at the present time anyway because of poor economic conditions and the absence of water and sewer lines.

She is convinced that a millage request for development rates would fail if it is placed on the ballot in the near future.

"If times were good, I'm sure it would pass. But right now, I think it's an exercise in futility."

WHAT WOULD become of the farmland-preservation program if a second millage request were defeated? Township officials could renew their quest for non-local funding or request another millage at a future date.

Planner Jim Kosteva said officials could scrap the program and let western Canton develop in some other fashion. A third alternative would be to adopt a modified preservation plan.

According to Kosteva, a plan for the transferring of development rights could be adopted if only a small amount of acreage were involved. Under that type of program, homes could be built on a small portion of a rural, one-mile square. Zoning of most of the land, owned by the homeowners, would remain agricultural. The land could be leased to working farmers.

Most members of the Township

Board agree that the present farmland-preservation program holds merit.

They note a 1977 study of the Seidman & Seidman accounting firm which concluded that taxes would be lower in the long run if a farmland-preservation program were adopted. Municipal services would be kept at a minimum in western Canton if development were discouraged.

At the same time, officials see a need to decide the fate of the program once and for all. They recognize that a long quest for non-local money has failed.

"I like the program," said Supervisor Poole. "But I also like a Rolls Royce. That doesn't mean I can afford one."

Agricultural issue has long history

landowners for the lost right of development.

The county's statement spurred a proposal to buy landowners' development rights — a concept similar to mineral or timber rights.

A 1977 study by the Seidman & Seidman accounting firm concluded that the public purchase of development rights would increase residents' tax bills in the short term. But the study said that tax bills would be lower over the long run because of a diminished need for municipal services in the township's western half.

IN NOVEMBER 1978, voters were asked to approve a four-mill tax ($4 per $1,000 assessed property valuation) to fund the estimated $16-million cost of development rights. The ballot proposition was defeated narrowly.

The proposal's failure sparked a search for non-local funding. Greenstein testified before the Agricultural Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives on behalf of a bill that would have provided communities like Canton with a grant for innovative farmland-preservation programs.

Township representatives spoke with officials from the state of Michigan about possible funding. None was available.

During the last few years, Greenstein has applied for grants from several private foundations. The applications were denied.

In March 1980, the Township Board adopted a zoning ordinance that implemented the intent of the master plan to preserve some 6,000 acres west of Canton Center.

Two agricultural zonings were included in the ordinance.

Residents cite shopping habits

SEVERAL PERSONS attached extra sheets to explain their views on how Canton merchants can improve their business.

The comments ranged from many suggestions for an indoor mall, to more advertising, variety of merchandise and friendly service.

"Tear down row shopping centers," suggested one.

"Being convenient to a growing community isn't a ticket to success," said a Canton woman.

"You must work to offer good service and quality," she added. "Who wants a customer only because they are short of time and shopping there as a last resort?"

Views on Dental Health
Philip Meizels, D.D.S.

IF YOU CHIP A TOOTH

Billy was playing sandlot baseball. He was catcher — a brave one — without a mask. As fate would have it, the batter swung at a pitch and the backswing hit Billy in the mouth and chipped off two of his front teeth. This is a typical dental emergency which requires immediate dental care.

When injury exposes the tooth pulp, it can be serious since the potential for infection is high. The pulp is the innermost chamber of the tooth and contains nerves and blood vessels.

Temporary treatment of injured tooth pulp includes the use of a sedative dressing to cut down sensitivity in the area. If a pulpectomy (removal of the pulp material) is necessary, it will be followed by root-canal therapy, and the use of a crown or a cap if the tooth can be preserved.

Until you can get to a dentist following an injury, keep the mouth as clean as possible by rinsing it with a solution of salt water. If there are loose teeth, no food should be chewed until the teeth are stabilized in the jaw.

Joyner places 2nd on election spending list

Mary E. Dumas, R-Livonia, led in campaign spending this fall among five area Wayne County commissioners, according to recent campaign finance reports filed with the county clerk's office.

Mrs. Dumas spent $3,750 en route to re-election to a fifth term on the county board.

Her Democratic opponent, Karl R. Lukens, a Livonia attorney, received a waiver from disclosing contributions. Waivers are granted when the candidate doesn't raise or spend more than $500 on a campaign.

SECOND IN fall election spending among area commissioners was R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth. Joyner reported spending $2,028 to defeat Republican challenger Darrell F. Kress of Belleville. Kress, who received a disclosure waiver, neither spent nor received $500, according to reports filed with the county clerk.

Three commissioners — Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, Thomas Presnell, D-Garden City/Westland, and Kay Beard, D-Inkster/Westland — were re-elected without opposition Nov. 4. They spent nominal sums for the fall election but thousands to defeat primary opponents in August.

According to her post-primary election campaign finance report, Mrs. Beard spent nearly $7,000 winning a third term on the county board.

Presnell reported spending nearly $5,000 and Manning nearly $3,000 for the primary.

Joyner reported spending $2,274 for the primary. Mrs. Dumas reported spending $827 for the primary while raising $3,000.

CONTRIBUTING TO ALL five area commissioners were the United Auto Workers and Teamsters unions.

The UAW, through its southeast Michigan Political Action Committee (PAC), gave Beard $1,260 for the primary, Manning, $500 and Dumas, $450.

Joyner received $1,050 in UAW contributions during the election year. Presnell received $400, half from UAW Local 163.

The Teamsters, through its PAC called DRIVE, gave Manning, $600; Joyner, $550; Presnell, $200; Dumas, $120, and Beard, $190.

Two unions representing Wayne County deputy sheriffs, sergeants and lieutenants gave a total $670 to four area commissioners.

Presnell received $260 from Local 502 of the National Union of Police Officers, which represents deputies, and $100 from AFSCME Local 1917, which represents sergeants and lieutenants.

Local 1917 also gave Dumas $120 and Joyner $90. Local 502 chipped in $100 each to Beard's and Joyner's campaigns.

The county Supervisory Employees' Association, which represents all supervisors in county departments and the courts, gave Dumas $280 and Presnell $100.

Manning, who was a week late in filing the post-general election report due Dec. 4, was fined $70 by the county clerk's office. State law provides $10 a day penalties for late filers, up to $300.

AMONG CANDIDATES for the county Charter Commission, the fall spending leader was unsuccessful Democratic candidate Walter Hink of Belleville, in District 27, which includes the Plymouth-Canton area.

Hink spent $1,900, but lost to Hagar J. Berg of Canton, a Republican and retired nursery owner. Berg reported spending $1,444 to win the charter post.

Westland City Councilwoman Justine Barns reported spending $1,313 in her charter commission race and $940 in the primary. Her Republican opponent, Nancy McDonald, spent less than $100 in the general election after spending nearly $600 for the August primary. Ethelyn Banks, a Livonia Republican who upset former Democratic state Rep. Marvin Stempien for a charter seat, reported spending about $800 for her fall campaign. Stempien was granted a disclosure waiver for not receiving or spending more than $500.

Also granted a disclosure waiver was charter commissioner Timothy Manning, D-Redford Township, elected without opposition in November.

In case of emergency

Poole wants direct line to police

Supervisor James Poole wants a direct communication line between his car and township police and fire personnel.

Radio communication is needed in case of an emergency, Poole says. Township police and firefighters seek direction from the chief administrator in emergencies such as last July's wind storm, according to Fire Chief Mel Paulun.

Many telephone and electrical lines were down during that storm, which caused an estimated $5 million in damage.

Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz, who helped coordinate assistance programs during the July disaster, said the township's current radio system made communication difficult.

Many township vehicles — including the supervisor's car — are equipped with radio communication to the DPW, the building department and the ordinance department.

But police car radios can only communicate with police. Firefighters' radios can only communicate with fire personnel.

"It was very difficult," said Mrs. Falkiewicz. "Sometimes, radios are the only form of communication."

POOLE IS studying the possibility of installing crystals in all township radios to allow communication between all five township departments.

It that idea sours, Poole wants a five-way radio installed in his vehicle which will allow communication with police and fire personnel in addition to the DPW, building and ordinance departments.

Poole estimates cost of the radio at $800 to $2,000, depending on quality. He brought up the possible expenditure at a Township Board meeting last week, but no action was taken on the matter.

"One tornado, and it will pay for itself," said Poole, who serves on the Governor's Emergency Preparedness Advisory Committee.

During a disaster, emergency personnel may seek authorization for action from the township clerk or treasurer in addition to the supervisor. But Paulun said direction usually is sought from the supervisor first.

"If we wanted to talk to (former Supervisor) Noel Culbert during the July storm, we had to go through someone with his (radio) frequency," said Paulun. "When you have an emergency and you want to talk to the head man, you should be able to get through fast."

"He (Poole) should have a radio in his car," Paulun said. Police Chief Jerry Cox — the township's director of emergency preparedness — was unavailable for comment.

THE DELECTABLE ACCENTS OF MEXICO

For many culinary explorers, one of the most delightful menu discoveries in recent years is the varied and tantalizing tastes of Mexico.

Over the centuries, Mexican cookery has become a rich tapestry of cuisines, deliciously woven from Aztec, Mayan and other native foods mingled with those of Spain and other lands. It is difficult to believe the foundation of the Mexican kitchen — corn, tomatoes, chilies and beans — was unknown outside the Americas before the arrival of Cortez in 1519.

Travelling through Mexico, the conquistadores discovered many new and wondrous foods that have become staples of our culinary world — pineapple, chocolate, peanuts, squash, vanilla, sweet potatoes, papayas and avocados.

While the explorers were more interested in conquest than cooking, they recorded their gustatory discoveries with surprise and pleasure. It is interesting to note that early Old World visitors to Mexico saw versions of tacos, tamales and tortillas offered for sale in the markets, much as they are today.

The savory, economical recipes on this page are adapted from favorite dishes enjoyed by our Mexican neighbors. An important accent in each dish is the sweet tangy flavor of canned pineapple, a naturally compatible ingredient with a great variety of Mexican food.

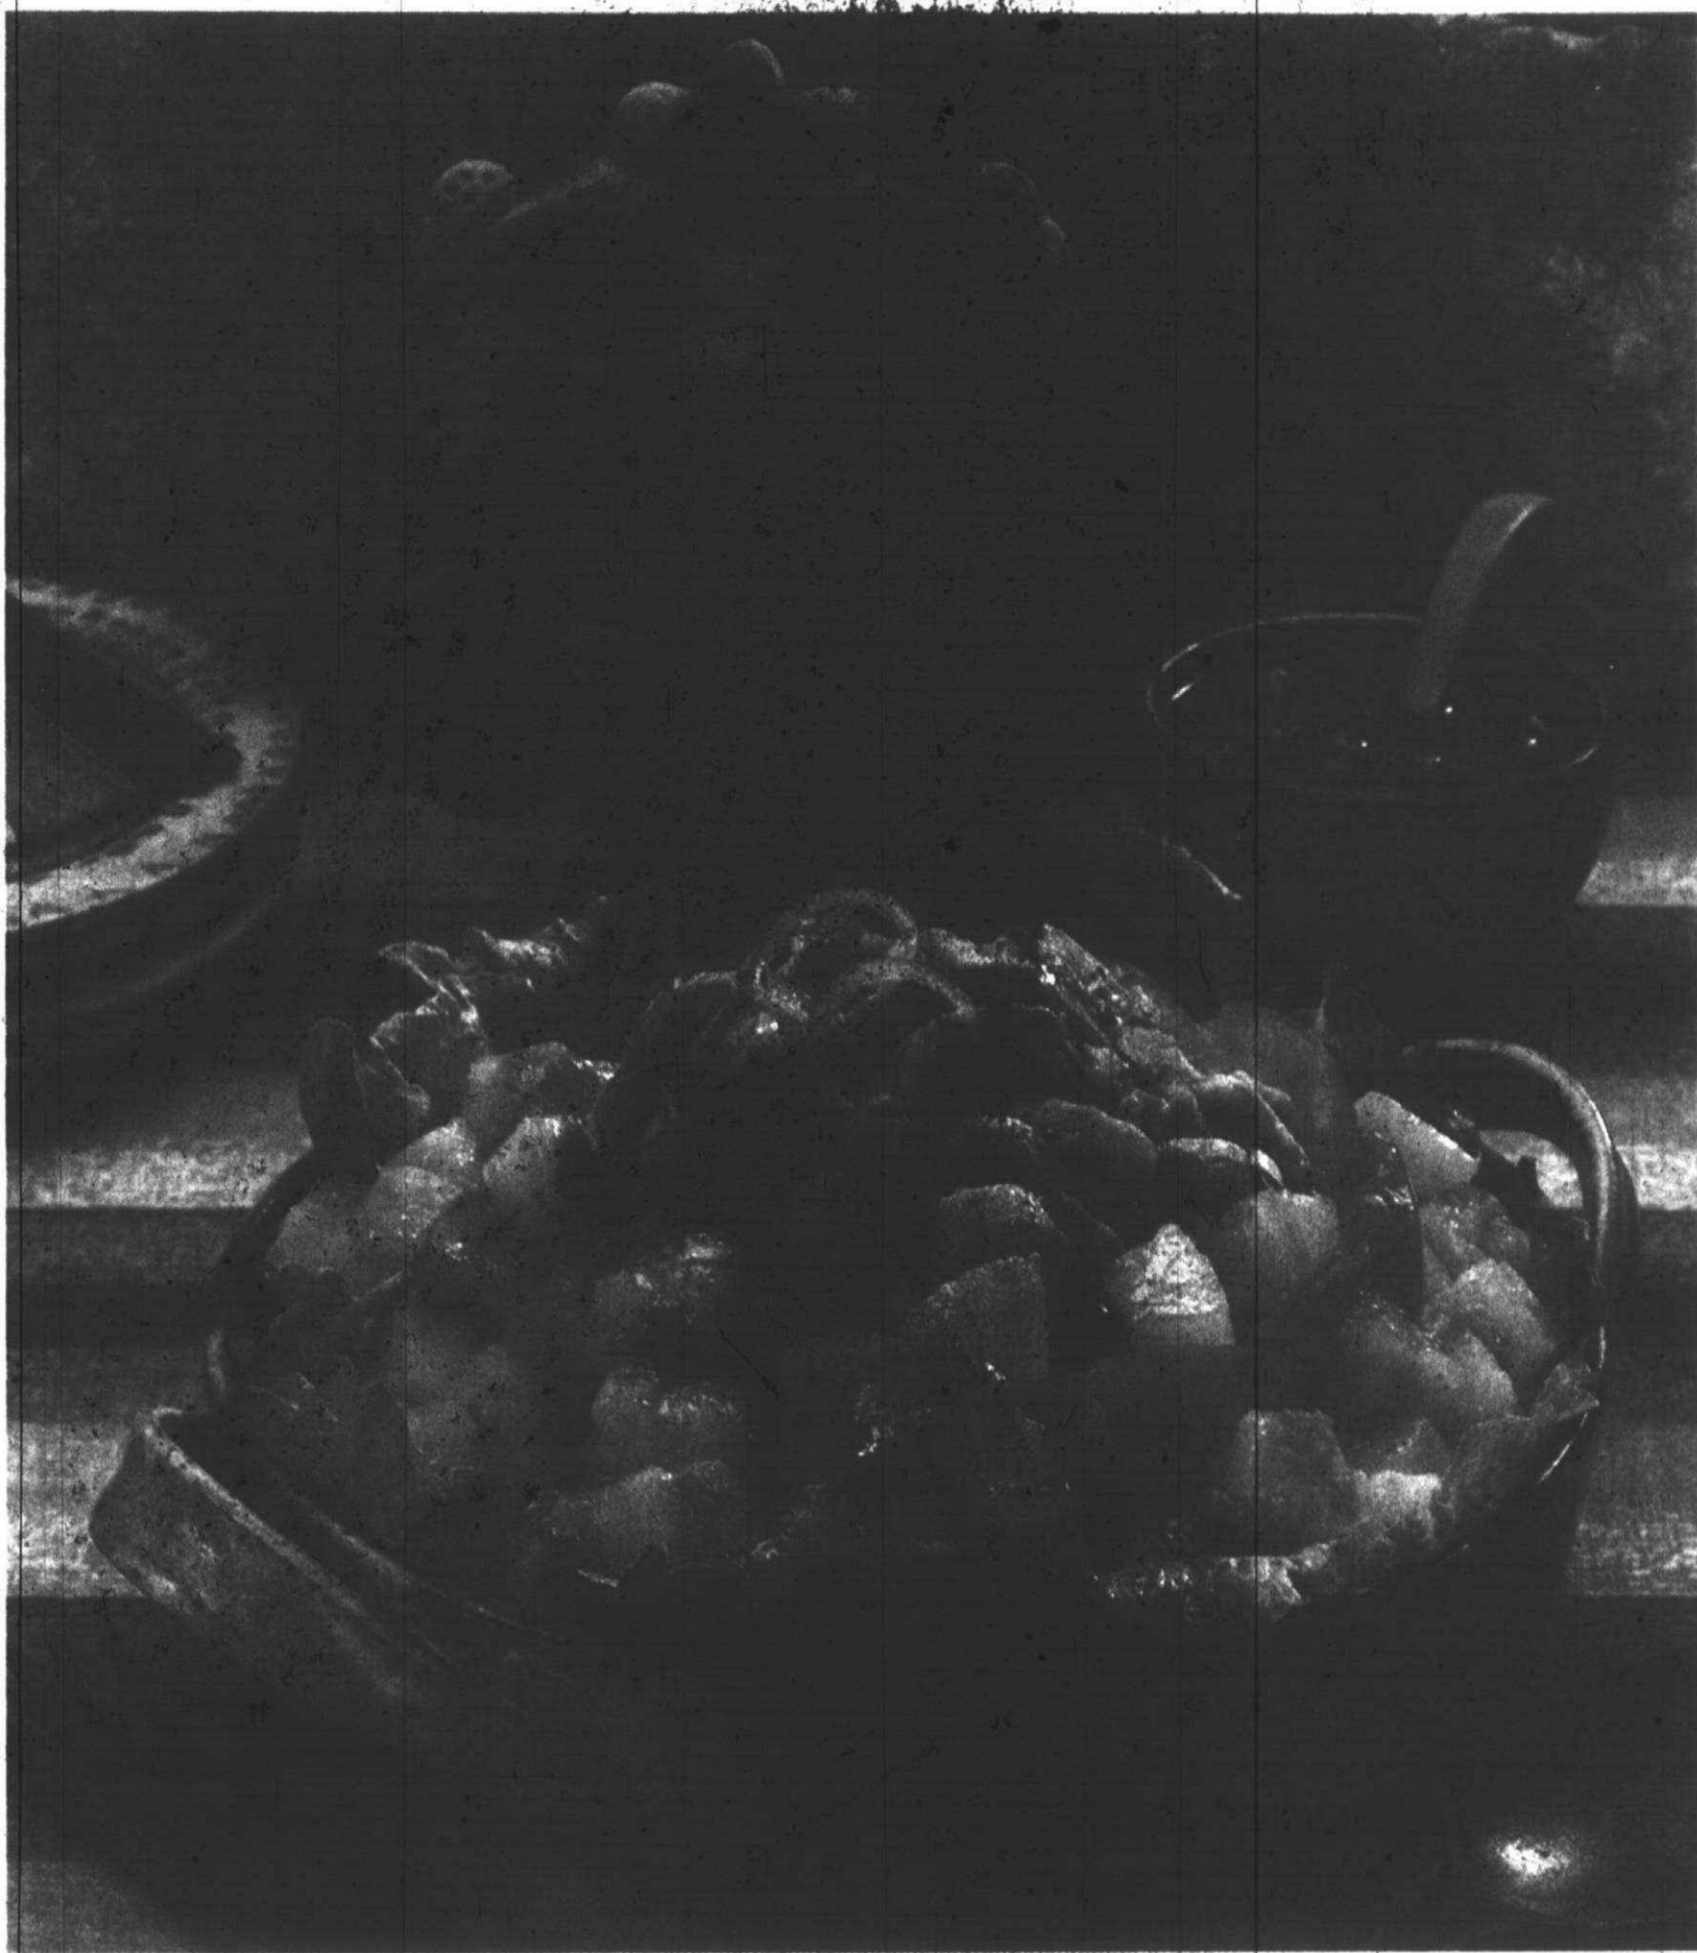

Serve these easily prepared dishes all at one time for a gala "Hawaiian Fiesta," or individually with other foods. However you present them, wish your guests "good eating" and buen provecho!

HAWAIIAN TOSTADA

A knife-and-fork, open-face sandwich, this Mexican favorite is a well balanced meal in itself. A nourishing combination of tastes and textures, "Hawaiian Tostada" is a savory way to make beef go further. Prepare a lot. Youngsters love them and everyone will ask for seconds.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|---|
| 3/4 pound ground beef | 3/4 teaspoon salt |
| 2 tablespoons oil | 4 corn tortillas |
| 1/2 cup chopped onion | 1 (8-1/4 oz.) can sliced pineapple, drained |
| 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper | 4 cups shredded iceberg lettuce |
| 1 clove garlic, minced | 1 cup shredded Jack cheese |
| 1 tablespoon chili powder | 1/4 cup dairy sour cream |
| 1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce | |

Brown beef in 1 tablespoon oil in large heavy skillet. Drain off excess fat. Add onion, green pepper and garlic to skillet, and sauté until tender. Stir in chili powder, tomato sauce and salt, and heat. Fry tortillas in remaining tablespoon oil until crisp; drain and keep warm. Add well drained pineapple slices to skillet, and sauté until heated and tinged with brown. To assemble, place 1/4 cup beef mixture on each tortilla, and cover with 1/2 cup lettuce. Repeat layers. Top each stack with a slice of pineapple, 1/4 cup cheese and a tablespoon sour cream. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings

CHICKEN SALAD AZTECA

This full-flavored entree salad, with its accents of fresh vegetables and canned pineapple chunks, is an especially appealing way to stretch left-over chicken. Ideal for warm weather, this economical salad is equally good on chilly days served with a bowl of steaming soup.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1 (7 ounce) can green chile salsa (2/3 cup) | 1/3 cup chopped green pepper |
| 1/2 teaspoon Mexican seasoning or chili powder | 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley |
| 2 tablespoons oil | 1-1/2 quarts shredded iceberg lettuce |
| 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar | 2 medium size tomatoes |
| 2 cups cooked chicken strips | 1/2 cup small rings sweet red onion |
| Salsa Dressing | 1/2 cup pitted ripe olives |
| 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks | |
| 1 cup sliced celery | |

Measure out 2 tablespoons green chile salsa and mix with Mexican seasoning or chili powder, oil and vinegar (save remaining salsa for dressing). Toss mixture with chicken, cover and refrigerate. Prepare Salsa Dressing, chill pineapple. When ready to serve, toss chicken with celery, green pepper and parsley. Line a chilled serving bowl with a few crisp lettuce leaves. Add shredded lettuce and arrange chicken mixture, drained pineapple, tomatoes, onion rings and olives on top. Serve with Salsa Dressing. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Salsa Dressing: Combine remaining green chile salsa with 1/3 cup each oil and red wine vinegar, 1/4 cup syrup from pineapple, 1/2 teaspoon each Mexican seasoning or chili powder and garlic salt, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Mix well. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

PINEAPPLE TORTA BORRACHA ("Topsy Torte")

This easy variation of the popular baba, drenched with a yummy pineapple-rum-orange syrup, may be made the night or morning before you plan to use it. If made ahead, heat briefly before serving. Accompany with MEXICAN COFFEE.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 2 (8-1/4 oz.) cans crushed pineapple* | 2-3/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| 3/4 cup sugar | 1 teaspoon grated orange peel |
| 1/2 cup milk | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1 envelope active dry yeast | 1/2 cup soft or melted butter |
| 3 tablespoons warm water | Rum Syrup |
| 2 large eggs, beaten | Orange Cream |

Combine pineapple with 1/2 cup sugar, and boil until syrup is reduced to about 1 tablespoon, stirring frequently toward end of cooking to prevent scorching. Set aside to cool. Heat milk to scalding; cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in warm water; let stand 5 minutes. Add cooled milk, eggs, remaining 1/4 cup sugar and 1 cup flour, and mix smooth. Set aside 1/4 cup pineapple for Rum Syrup. Stir remainder into yeast mixture, then stir in a second cup pineapple, mixing well. Cover and set in warm place until batter is doubled, 30 to 40 minutes. Stir down. Add orange peel and salt, then remaining 3/4 cup flour alternately with butter, beating well. Spoon into well greased 10-cup mold with tube center. Cover, and let rise until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake below center of moderate oven (350 degrees F) 50 to 55 minutes, until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Meanwhile, prepare Rum Syrup. Turn cake out onto serving plate, and let stand 15 minutes. Prick all over with slender skewer or cake tester. Slowly spoon Rum Syrup over, allowing first portion to be absorbed before adding more. Let stand until cool. At serving time, cut into wedges and serve with Orange Cream. Makes 10 servings.

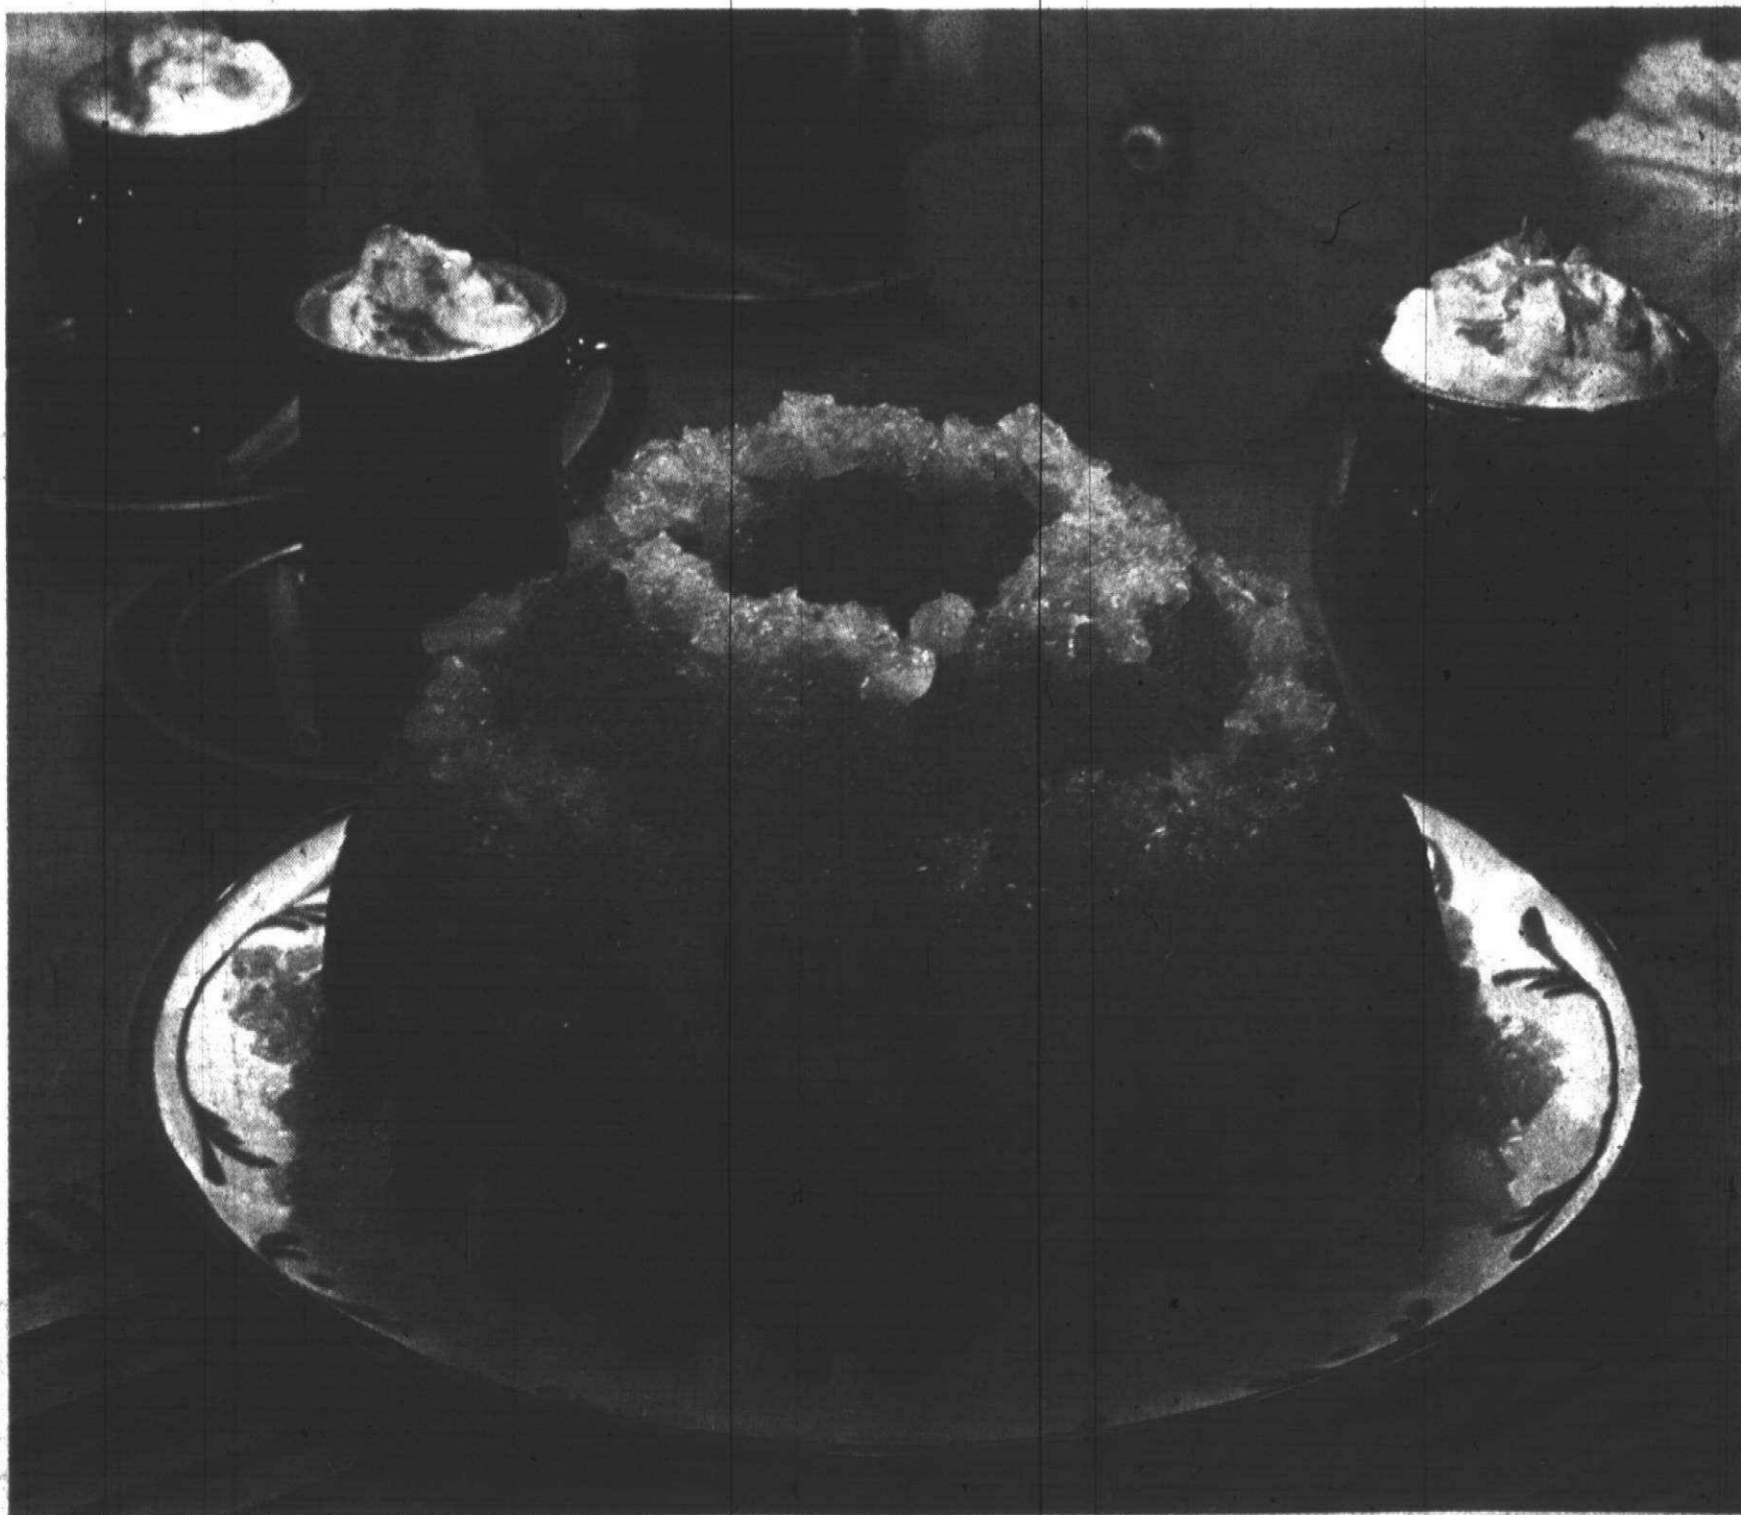

Rum Syrup: Combine a 6-oz. can unsweetened pineapple juice, 2/3 cup sugar and a 4-inch stick cinnamon in small saucepan. Stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves. Boil 10 minutes. Let stand until cold. Remove cinnamon. Add the reserved 1/4 cup pineapple, 1/2 cup amber rum and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Makes about 1-3/4 cups.

Orange Cream: Beat 1-1/2 cups whipping cream with 1-1/2 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla to soft peaks. Fold in 1-1/2 teaspoons grated orange peel. Makes about 3 cups, sufficient for 10 servings and topping for Mexican coffee.

*Or, 1 (15-1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple.

MEXICAN COFFEE

Heat 4 cups (1 quart) strong black coffee with 1 teaspoon cinnamon, sweeten to taste. Pour into small dessert cups, and top each with a generous spoonful of the Orange Cream served with the Pineapple Torte Borracha. (Or, beat 1/2 cup whipping cream to soft peaks with 1/16 teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon. Sweeten, if desired.) Sprinkle each serving lightly with cinnamon, and serve with a cinnamon stick for stirring. Makes 8 servings.

Tahini is acquired taste

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

This column is dedicated to all those who have acted on the advice in some circles to substitute tahini for peanut butter. I keep picturing these hapless people buying their first jar of tahini, bringing it home, spreading it on bread, topping it with jelly, bananas, or raisins, and sinking their teeth into their pseudo-peanut butter sandwich.

All I can think is that their hair must stand on end. Tahini (especially that made from unhulled seeds) looks somewhat like peanut butter. It has a very similar texture. It has a distinctly dissimilar flavor. While not unpleasant, it could probably be called an acquired taste. Like the first taste of olives or scotch, the initial experience is somewhat of a shock. Subsequently, the taste buds are braced for the experience and may find it pleasant or even addictive.

For those unfamiliar with it, tahini is a paste made of sesame seeds in the same way that peanut butter is made of peanuts. As is the case with natural peanut butter, the oil from the seeds rises to the top after blending and must be stirred back in before use. Unlike peanut butter, tahini does not taste the same as the seeds from which it is made.

THIS SOUNDS improbable and yet is true. It must be because we are unaccustomed to such a concentration of sesame seeds. We normally consume them sprinkled over the top of rolls, breads or crackers and think we know how they taste.

Pulverized into a "butter," they take on not only a different texture but an equally different flavor. The closest thing I can compare it to is eating a piece of fish sprinkled with salt and then eating a salt-encrusted anchovy. The first experience does not adequately prepare you for the second.

For those, then, who have decided that tahini will never replace peanut butter, the problem is what to do with the rest of the jar. Approached with appropriate expectations, tahini is actually a delicious food, loaded with protein.

One of the tastiest uses for tahini is an ingredient in Tahini Lemon Sauce from "The Moosewood Cookbook." I like to use this sauce on stir-fried vegetables but it can also be used to top baked eggplant, fish, your favorite grains or feta. By adding extra yogurt or buttermilk to the sauce, it can even act as a hearty salad dressing.

This is a good time to point up a nice feature of "The Moosewood Cookbook." Its index is set up as a cross-reference of main ingredients. This is particularly useful when you have tried a new ingredient, like tahini, and are at a loss as to ways to finish the remaining 15% ounces.

Listed under "tahini" are all the recipes in the books containing tahini. This listing would also be appreciated by anyone who has ever wasted time searching for a recipe like "pea soup" only to find it (if at all) listed under "H" for "herbed pea soup."

IN ADDITION to serving as the base for delicious sauces, tahini makes an intriguing sandwich spread which will probably not remind you of anything else you have ever tasted. Given the right mood, this is reason enough to taste something. A particularly good sandwich of this type is described by Anita Borghese in "The Great Sandwich Book." Appropriately called Oriental Wonder, this makes an unusual meatless lunch.

If you are near the bottom of the jar by now with only a few spoonfuls left, you might want to reserve them to use in Tofu-Egg Omelet with Mushrooms from "The Book of Tofu" by William Shurtleff and Akiko Aoyagi. I have made this omelet sprinkled with Monterey Jack cheese and rolled with nori seaweed. It is one of those dishes which is all the more delicious for being totally unconventional, an unlikely combination of flavors to which you keep returning because you can't quite believe it.

By now, your tahini jar should be empty. All you should be left with are almost-full packages of miso and hori. Good luck.

TAHINI-LEMON SAUCE

- 1 1/2 cups tahini
- 1 1/2 cups yogurt or buttermilk
- 1 medium clove crushed garlic
- 1/2 cup fresh-squeezed lemon juice
- 1/4 cup finely-minced scallions
- 1/4 cup finely-minced parsley salt to taste
- dash or two of cayenne
- dash or two of paprika
- 1/2 tsp. ground cumin (or more, to taste)
- dash or two of tamari

Beat well, using a whisk, wooden spoon or even electric mixer. (The more you whip it, the thicker it becomes. Follow your own personal designs.) Serve room temperature on hot feta or vegetables. Serve chilled on salad.

(from "The Moosewood Cookbook" by Mollie Katzen).

ORIENTAL WONDER

- 1/4 cup tahini
- 1 tbsp. miso or soy sauce
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 4 slices Westphalian pumpernickel
- 1 small apple, cored and cut into thin slices
- 1 cup bean sprouts
- 2 to 4 leaves Boston lettuce or other buttery-type lettuce

Mix together tahini, miso or soy sauce, and lemon juice. Mixture thickens when combined. Spread on bread slices. Arrange apple slices on two pieces of the bread and pile bean sprouts on top. Cover with lettuce and remaining bread slices. Makes two sandwiches.

Menu: Serve with glasses of cranberry juice and follow up with ripe bananas for a delicious meatless lunch. (from "The Great Sandwich Book" by Anita Borghese)

TOFU-EGG OMELET WITH MUSHROOMS

- 6 oz. tofu, pressed and diced
- 3 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 tsp. shoyu (soy sauce)
- 1/4 tsp. honey
- 2 tsp. ground roasted sesame seeds, sesame butter, or tahini
- 1 tsp. butter or oil
- 3 large, fresh mushrooms, cut into thin strips
- 2 leeks or onions, cut into thin rounds

Combine the first five ingredients in a large bowl; mix well. Melt the butter in a skillet. Add leeks and mushrooms, and saute for 2 or 3 minutes until fragrant and tender. Pour in tofu-egg mixture and cook over low heat. When omelet has an even consistency, fold and serve.

If desired, fill with grated cheese, cream cheese, or tomato wedges and minced parsley. Japanese chefs often cover omelets with several sheets of nori before rolling, then season the omelets with sansho pepper, green nori flakes, or Worcestershire sauce. Serves 2 or 3.

Note: To press the tofu, wrap it in a small cotton towel folded into fourths and set on a plate in the refrigerator for 1 1/2 to 2 hours or overnight. To decrease the pressing time, place a 2 or 3 pound weight on top of the tofu, and replace the damp towel with a dry one after about 30 minutes. (from "The Book of Tofu" by William Shurtleff and Akiko Aoyagi)

Byrd's Kitchen

Leftovers can be lovely

There are many ways to deal with leftovers, those unwanted, unloved vestiges of holiday feasting. With luck, by the time you read this, the last of them will be finished off at your house.

Obviously, the whole question of what to do with them could be avoided simply by not having any. A small turkey that can be polished off at one sitting costs less and takes less cooking time (you can conserve energy).

What's that? You think that would mean too little white meat for those "white-meat-only" fans at your house? Then take advantage of the availability of fresh whole or half turkey breast now on the meat counters in sizes as small as three or four pounds.

There is an advantage to having leftovers. The cook of the house who has just prepared that fantastic Christmas dinner gets a break from preparing food for a couple of days, certainly a deserved respite.

Maybe your family loves leftovers, likes the turkey or club sandwiches you serve next day for lunch. Turkey divan, curried turkey or turkey and mushrooms in a bechamel sauce may be favorites at your house, eagerly awaited as part of the season.

EVEN AFTER those dishes are enjoyed, you can still throw the carcass with those last snippets of meat into the soup pot for stock. Or, add some vegetables and rice and serve up steaming bowls of soup on a cold day.

If roast beef is your Christmas or New Year's dinner favorite, leftovers turn easily into a stick-to-the-ribs hash. Again, bones can be added to the stock pot or used for soup.

Then you can give yourself some well-deserved applause for being so thrifty, a trait to be cultivated and valued in these economic times.

Below are turkey and roast beef hash recipes good enough to work into any household's year round menus.

TURKEY HASH

- 5 tbsp. butter
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 1/2 green pepper, finely chopped
- 3 cups diced turkey
- 1 cup cold stuffing
- salt and freshly ground pepper
- 3/4 cup pitted black olives
- 1/2 cup toasted almonds
- 3/4 cup heavy cream
- chopped parsley

Melt the butter and saute the onion, garlic and pepper until they are limp and just delicately brown. Add the turkey and stuffing and toss well with the onion and green pepper. Salt and pepper to taste. Allow the mixture to cook over medium heat until thoroughly warmed through. Turn and blend the mixture well and add the almonds and olives. Dribble the cream overall and let the hash cook down thoroughly until nicely blended and piping hot. Add chopped parsley and turn the hash out onto a heated platter or serve from the skillet in which it was made.

ROAST BEEF HASH

- 2 small onions or 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 5 tbsp. beef drippings or 3 tbsp. butter and 2 tbsp. oil
- 1 1/2 cups finely diced boiled potatoes
- 2 1/2 cups cold roast beef, diced with some fat
- salt and freshly ground pepper
- thyme
- chopped parsley

1/2 cup heavy cream (optional)

Saute the onion in the beef drippings until transparent. Add the potatoes and brown well over medium heat. They should begin to crisp at the edges. Add the beef. Season to taste, blend well, then cook down until the beef is brown and the mixture is crisp. The optional cream can now be added and the hash pressed down in the skillet. Raise the heat slightly and let the cream cook out, so that a crust forms on the bottom. Sprinkle with the chopped parsley.

Pudding

Make your own pudding mix without cornstarch. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to the International Food Storage Association (P.D.), PO Box 249, LaVerkin, Utah 84745.

Save energy

Your oven doesn't have to be an energy-eater. While the entree is baking, put vegetables in water in an ovenproof dish. Cover and pop in alongside the main course.

Coral rings

In some kinds of precious coral, such as black coral, annual rings exist in the skeleton and, as in trees, can be counted to gauge the age of colonies.

Michigan Youth Symphony, but the majority of the students are from Ann Arbor and the greater Detroit area. The concert will be free and open to the public.

BARBARA Saunders, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum, opened her Plymouth Township home for a holiday open house. Guests were personal friends and some of the faithful volunteers who keep the museum going.

Punch and stacks of Christmas cookies and other goodies were consumed between conversations.

Barb also entertained some of the museum regulars at a luncheon. The guests included Marge Mitchell, Carol Packard, Linda Daily and Betty Childs of the education program; Beverly Schmidt and Shirley Connors of archives; Ruth Jacobs of the gift shop; and Gerry Jablonski, Marilyn Norgrove and Doris Richard of the exhibits committee.

Rita Maly, who chairs the exhibits, was ill and could not attend.

YOU DON'T have to belong to belong to a club or organization to participate in holiday giving. Mary Jo Combe, 14, of Powell Road in Plymouth Township, formed her own group.

She organized friends and kids in her neighborhood and soon some of the parents became involved. They chose the West Trail Nursing Home as their pet project for the holidays.

The young people collected gifts and cakes for the residents of West Trail. The evening of their party, with Lloyd Combe in the role of Santa Claus, there were enough gifts for each of the West Trail residents. And there were enough extras for bingo prizes later on. Randy Zaibek played the piano while everyone sang Christmas carols.

Mary Jo's holiday cheer gang included Sally Watkins, Cindy Combe, Maria Combe, Paul, Sharon, Deanna and Mike Rodman, Kathleen Campbell, Charlie McGoldrick, and Frank and Carol Smith.

Bob Bowen to head Flagstaff Museum

By ELLINOR GRAHAM

Robert and Lee Bowen are on their way to Arizona with two teenagers, two dogs and two cars. Bowen has resigned as director and curator of anthropology at the Cranbrook Institute of Science to take over his new post as director of the Falstaff Museum.

"We always move in a rain or snowstorm," said Bowen of his parents' home in Plymouth. "It happens about every 10 years." He is the son of Neal and Gladys Bowen of Penniman Avenue, Plymouth, where they spent New Years Day before heading for the southwest.

Bowen is looking forward to his new position.

"It is a natural history museum,

Robert N. Bowen has resigned his post as director of the Cranbrook Institute of Science to become director of the Flagstaff Arizona Museum.

about the same as Cranbrook — same size, same staff and same budget. I heard about the museum 26 years ago but didn't see it until 10 years ago.

"Since we decided to go to Flagstaff, nine out of 10 people I've talked to say they have been there. It's on the route to Los Angeles and the Grand Canyon. Although its population is 34,000 persons, more than two million pass through there each year."

HE SAID the museum focuses on the Colorado plateau. They will be moving into a home that is part of the museum complex, "but a mile closer to town."

"It was built in 1936, at the same time as the museum and of the same Malpai lava rock, which is a porous rock with colors shading from dark chocolate brown to gray. The beams are Ponderosa pine."

He added, "We'll be 7,000 feet high in the snow out there, too." Their son, Tom, 16, is a skier, so he's happy about the new location. "And Karen, who is 15, loves horses. We'll be surrounded by horses so she's happy, too."

The Falstaff Museum is independent and privately endowed.

"It was founded by a Dr. and Mrs. Colton. He was a professor of zoology at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. They visited the southwest on summer trips and later, for health reasons, moved to Falstaff. With their own personal resources, they founded the museum in 1928 to house their collection of fossils and other specimens."

BOB BOWEN graduated from Plymouth High School in 1951 and earned his bachelor of science degree in zoology at the University of Michigan. He received a master's degree in anthropology from the University of Hawaii in 1961. During his years in Hawaii, while he was an instructor and working at the Bishop Museum, he had an opportunity to do extensive field work.

In 1956, he took part in the Alahaka burial survey of four burial caves in the City of Refuge, National Historic Park. The following year, it was the excavation of 88 pre-European Hawaiian burials on Oahu. He surveyed the Koloa Burial ground on Kauai in 1964 and made recommendations for future excavations.

His studies took him to Africa in 1967 where he did an ethnographic investigation of beggars in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. This research was for the U.S. Department of Education and Northwestern University. In 1973, he visited the site and researched the Anasazi culture in southwest United States.

He was back in Africa in 1976, leading a wildlife safari sponsored by the Cranbrook Institute. The three-week photography and art expedition in Kenya and Tanzania led to his meeting anthropologist Mary Leakey. He invited her to lecture at Cranbrook and she came to the institute the following March.

THESE MEETINGS resulted in Bowen being invited to join the Leakey Expedition two summers ago in the Oldvai Gorge in Tanzania. He was there when they discovered the footprints believed to be the oldest in existence made by upright members of the family of man. They were dated at 3.5 million to 3.7 million years ago.

Bowen is maintaining his research associate status at Cranbrook. His east African research account will be held by the institute.

And before he accepted the job with the Falstaff Museum, he discussed with the board there, his hope to return to east Africa again.

Bob and Lee Bowen spent Christmas and New Year's with his parents, Gladys and Neal Bowen of Plymouth, before leaving for Arizona. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

1980 in review

Storm, delegates, movie making cause stir

The big breaking news stories of 1980 continued to be the hostages in Iran, the economy and the presidential election. But life went on. Couples were engaged and married. Babies were born and birthdays and anniversaries were celebrated.

There were evening band concerts in Kellogg Park and the Fourth of July parade attracted thousands of viewers. Jack Wilcox was not here to water the parade elephants. He was off to the Philippines with a group of Youth For Understanding students.

Old Village merchants had their Gay Nineties in mid-July. The Peter Sparling Dance Company performed at Meadow Brook.

With the GOP national convention in Detroit, the Massachusetts delegation stayed in Plymouth Township at the Hilton and representatives of the media were lodged in Canton Township and other community hostilities. There was a welcoming reception at the Mayflower Meeting House for the delegates as the community gave the visitors the red-carpet treatment.

Big wind storm of July 16 left devastation in its wake with trees uprooted and residents without power for days.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council had its new postcards printed in time for the convention. Members of the group that traveled to Plymouth, England in 1970 had a 10-year reunion. The dinner party was planned by Doris Richard.

The summer theater production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" was a first for the community. Gloria Logan directed the musical comedy with a cast of present and former Centennial Educational Park students.

Teen-agers from two Growth Works groups built a new garage at the Plymouth Cultural Center. Kim Bissey, Greg Carol and Christine Bennett arrived home after spending a year in Europe as part of the Youth for Understanding program.

Varsity cheerleading squad from Plymouth Salem High School received first-place honors at summer camp in Midland. Mike Asquith of Canton returned from a year as an exchange student in Finland. Esther Scheppelle attained Life Master rank in the American Contract Bridge League.

● AUGUST

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Walch celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house.

Plymouth Newcomers Club entertained prospective members with an elegant old English tea in the Round Table Club. Canton Chamber of Commerce had its fifth annual Country Festival. Plymouth Colonial Kiwanis Club members hosted a group of 15 Japanese students and their chaperones. Members of the 4-H Club brought home stacks of ribbons from the annual fair at Belleville.

Helen Hopkins, president of the Plymouth branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, hosted a meeting of her board members to plan the new season. Second- and third-graders at Isbister Elementary School built a log cabin. Apple Run Garden Clubbers judged patio and balcony plantings in the Honeytree complex. Plymouth High School Class of 1940 had its 40th reunion at the Plymouth Elks Club. Ruth Ash Urton chaired the reunion planning committee composed of Roger McClain, Paul Keller, Edward Holdsworth and Edward Mulry.

Whole town turned out late Aug. 27 when a plane crashed on Ann Arbor Trail just east of Harvey Street.

● SEPTEMBER

Plymouth Fall Festival set new records for attendance with the weather cooperating for all four days. Plymouth Ex-Newcomers opened their season with Pat Stokes as president. Mary Ellen Gibbons chaired the Lake Pointe Garden Clubbers 20th birthday celebration. Kathryn Stepulla was named concertmaster of the Plymouth Symphony.

Plymouth High School Class of 1935 had its 45th reunion at the Plymouth Elks Club. Geer School celebrated its centennial.

Pat Centofanti and Martha Morrison chaired the Plymouth Symphony League's "Enchanted Evening of Fashions" in the Waterman Center of Schoolcraft College. In Canton, the Barchester Drive Beer and Steer Roast was hosted by Shannon and Jim Moore, Jan and Darrell Brawn, and Sue and Art Lawrence. New president of the American Association of University Women is Mary Uhl.

Alex Karras was in town for the filming of his movie for television, "Word of Honor." Great excitement as residents served as extras. Reception for Fr. Francis Byrne was planned by Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish as he marked 50 years of priesthood and 27 years at OLCG.

1980 had its lighter moments

Month opened with the annual Chick-en Flying contest. Symphony opened its 35th season on Oct. 12. Concert was followed by a gala reception at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Arts Council closed Symphony Week with "An Evening with Karl Haas" in the Canton High School Little Theater.

Dittrich's Furs brought $1 million worth of furs to town for the second annual Round Table Club luncheon and fur show. Pat Hann was named Distinguished Woman of the Year by the Plymouth branch of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Plymouth Police Officers Association had its 11th annual dinner dance at the Plymouth Hilton. Mike Gardner and Barbara Carpenter chaired the event. Adina Rice chaired the annual Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority tea honoring retired area teachers.

Members of the Plymouth Garden Club planted tulip bulbs in the Point Park, Mill Street at Starkweather. Goodie and Bill Grimmer entertained Rubens Barosso of Brazil who had lived with them as an exchange student 11 years ago. Plymouth BPW had a full house for its annual fall fashion show at the Plymouth Hilton. Elaine Love and Gerri Wireman co-chaired the popular affair. Sam Detrich is president of the Civitans Club. Women were working up a storm getting ready for bazaars and boutiques.

● NOVEMBER

Canton Rotary Club's talent show on Nov. 1 started off the month's activities. Plymouth Theatre Guild production of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" played for two weekends in Central Middle School. Bessie Sallow marked her 90th birthday on election day, Nov. 4. Char Towne chaired the Canton Newcomers Club's Millicent's Party in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Plymouth Canton High School Chiefettes accepted an invitation to the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Dec. 20. The squad is the top pompon team in the country. The "Who shot J.R.?" party was a sell-out at the Mayflower Meeting House. Women at Tonquish Creek Manor dressed dozens of dolls for the Salvation Army Christmas baskets. Pianist Louis Nagel was soloist at the November concert of the Plymouth Symphony.

Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter of the DAR celebrated its 54th anniversary with a luncheon in the Mayflower. The League of Women Voters entertained supporters and politicians at a wine and cheese party in the Art Gallery, Inc. The day of the Ohio State-University of Michigan football game dawned with Fred Hill having breakfast served in bed by Hank Graper and Mary Childs in Kellogg Park. They were paying of a WSDP radio auction debt. Teacher Rita McClumpha won the afghan at the Geer School Thanksgiving dinner and everyone was happy.

● DECEMBER

Friends of the Canton Public Library had a pre-Christmas sale of books. Members of the Mayflower VFW Post remembered Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, with a service in Kellogg Park.

The Symphony's sing-along "Messiah" Dec. 7 was a huge success as was the annual Symphony Ball the evening before. Canton's new Business and Professional Women's Club had its first Christmas party. The club will receive its charter in January. Jayne Doyle will compete in the Barrie Sno-Do in Barrie, Ontario on Jan. 25. She is Michigan District Junior Civitan governor. Peoples Church of Canton celebrated its first anniversary. Plymouth Newcomers Club members and their husbands decorated the park for Christmas.

Another first for Plymouth Community Chorus was the taping for television of its Christmas concert in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. Omnicom Cable Television taped the concert, which was shown twice before Christmas. AAUW members and their toured Landmark homes in the area before convening at the Plymouth Historical Museum for a tour and refreshments.

Margaret Stremich was honored at the Plymouth BPW Christmas dinner meeting when Betty Stremich announced that the main dining room of Hillside Inn would be named The Margaret Strang Room.

It was a white Christmas in the area. Churches planned special services, visitors trooped to the Plymouth Historical Museum to see the circus exhibits, and a refugee family from Laos had its first Christmas in the safety of the old Presbyterian manse on Church Street.

Jeanne Godroy and Dennis Charboneau, members of the Detroit Historical Museum, will talk about life in 1700 in Fort Wayne.

7-month-old attends reunion

Charlene and Wendell Richardson of Canton Township recently attended a graduate party at Children's Hospital of Michigan in Detroit. The "graduate" in their family was their son, Wendell Scott, 7 months.

Scott had been born 3 1/2 months prematurely. His birth weight was one pound, 13 ounces. He was on a respirator for 30 days at Children's Hospital because of hyaline membrane disease of the lungs. He underwent surgery when he was 10 days old to ligate a duct between the heart and the lungs.

His abnormally slow heart rate and irregular breathing were monitored constantly. Additional surgery was necessary to insert a tube in a neck vein to provide nourishment.

Scott now weighs 11 pounds and his mother, a neonatal nurse at another hospital, reports Scott is progressing well ahead of the projected schedule for a baby with his history.

THE RICHARDSONS were among other sets of parents, brothers, sisters, babies and grandparents who attended the party at the hospital. They were reunited with the neonatal staff that helped them through this critical period of their lives.

Now on the road to good health and normal growth and development, the babies had to overcome such problems as hyaline membrane disease, apnea (spontaneous cessation of breathing), severe jaundice, heart failure, brain hemorrhage, infection or feeding problems.

Some were born too early. Some had one or more life-threatening diseases that 10 years ago would have proven fatal. Some of the sickest babies are transferred, sometimes only hours after birth, to the neonatal intensive care unit, where the most advanced facilities and the most skilled care is available.

About 75 percent of the more than 500 infants admitted annually to Children's neonatal unit are premature. Their average length of stay is three months. Because of special equipment and medical expertise, 40 percent of even the smallest "premies" born today have an excellent chance for survival.

Parents, too, participate in the care of the smallest babies.

THEY ARE encouraged by the staff to spend as much time as possible with their infants — holding, feeding, bathing and loving them — to stimulate the bonding attachment between them. It also helps to relieve the parents' anxieties.

Parents also meet in groups with the staff to share information concerns and encouragement.

The "graduate" party is an outgrowth of these meetings. It was expanded to include children who are in the outpatient developmental assessment clinic where progress is monitored closely for several years after they are released from the hospital.

Once upon a coaxial cable

Being a first family has its ups and downs. Presently, the Jimmie Carters are mired in the downs with the upcoming Ronnie Reagans on the rise.

I can remember when my family was a first family. Oh, not the one that lives at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. in the large white house, just the first family with a television.

That is, the first family on the block, in the neighborhood or among our relatives to own one.

It was back in 1948 when television was the newest miracle, the magic box that could bring the world and all its delights into your home at the turn of a switch.

We came to have one of the earlier sets in the fall of 1948. It had been a bad time for the Rose family. My younger and only brother, Gene, 16, was stricken with polio that September.

It was a severe case. Ultimately, it left him with weakness in one leg, but when the illness struck, an iron lung was ominously stationed outside his hospital room door. And it was many weeks until it was taken away.

ONCE I remember walking, several miles to the hospital when he was a little better and waving to him through the window, and then walking back home. Since I was only 17, I was not permitted to visit.

For my parents, it meant hours spent in the hospital, miles of corridors walked and immeasurable worry. But after several weeks of crisis, we knew Gene would be all right. After even more weeks, he came home, to many months of physical therapy.

My father bought the television both as kind of a celebration of Gene's homecoming, and with the thought that it would help pass the hours since he couldn't be too active at first.

That first television set seemed to know it came into our life with a purpose, and it filled that purpose and others for a long time to come.

It was a 12-inch Crosley model that sat on a table.

I was dating Jack then, and he recalls "The thing that was amazing was we were watching an instantaneous spectacle — something somewhere else that we saw as it happened."

Not only did we think it miraculous, everyone did. Every evening, (there wasn't always programming) the house would fill with family, friends and neighbors.

MY COUSIN Ben lived with us, and he had dozens of friends, mostly, like himself, new immigrants who had survived the concentration camps, and they all came.

And my friends, and Gene's, and aunts and uncles and people we hardly knew who wanted to see television for themselves all came over as well.

The den in our home in northwest Detroit was not large, and I remember some evenings we could have used a shoe horn to fit the people in who wanted to see.

Sometimes, the commercials were as good as the scheduled programs. Since they were all live, advertisers took their chances. Like the roofing company that advertised how easy it was to apply shingles on a roof securely — only to have half a dozen unceremoniously fall off as the announcer watched open-mouthed.

Jack remembers that sometimes people who had never seen television would sit and stare at an ad or test pattern that didn't even move, fascinated.

After several months, and with a lot of hoopla, the coaxial cable was put in place and we got programs like Ed Murrow, Milton Berle, "Meet the Press," sports events, "Broadway Open House" with Dagmar and Jerry Lester, and "Your Hit Parade."

WE NEVER had much trouble with that first black and white Crosley 12-incher. It took us through television's early days up through the best performances of Pinky Lee, the beginnings of "Disneyland," and up to the era of the big quiz shows like the $64,000 Question and the subsequent scandals.

We saw television come through with great promise when the Kefauver hearings on crime were televised right from the U.S. Congress and the Army-McCarthy hearings as well.

When Jack and I married in 1949 and moved from my parents house the next year, we took that first television set with us. Though sets were larger with more impressive screens, our Crosley sufficed for us. And we watched reports of Americans boys fighting in Korea in an undeclared war labeled "police action."

When we could afford a new set, we bought it with the idea that "old steady" would go to Ben, newly married, to start him and his bride, Esther, off. And it did. Why not? It worked better than most newer sets.

After Ben used it for several years, he passed it back to Gene, who had a vested interest in the Crosley, if anyone did.

Today, the exceptional home is one without a television, or two or three, all in splendiferous color.

We don't even own a Crosley set today, and I wonder why, since that first "old steady" served us so well.

It was fun being a first family all those years ago. After all, even presidential first families owe a lot to television.

Want to watch a live history lesson?

For a student of local government, the next six months promise to be a fascinating time of historical importance. Mine is a minority view.

"I spoke to classes in the high schools, and they were absolutely bored," said Ethelyn (Lynn) Bankes, whose audiences snored out the majority view.

If Lynn Bankes' name isn't a household word, it's because she is a Wayne County Charter Commission member. A Republican from Livonia, Mrs. Bankes is one of 27 persons who will write a charter of self-government for one of the most populous counties in America.

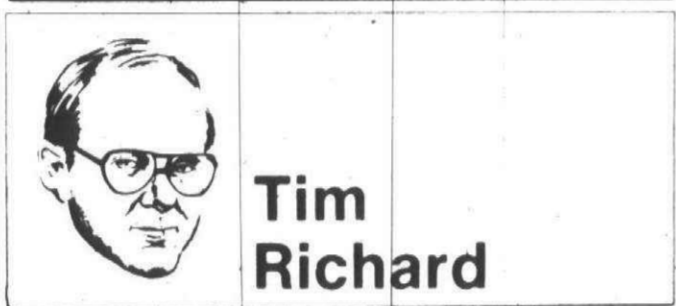

There never has been a county charter commission in Michigan. Cities have drafted and revised their charters by the score, and counties have had that option since 1966, but no other county has ever done it.

Myself, I think it's an exciting prospect. I'm looking forward to seeing the charter commission visit western Wayne County.

But as Lynn Bankes' experience shows, that is a minority view.

NO ONE FROM the outside attended the 1787 U.S. Constitutional Convention, when "Jemmy" Madison, Alec Hamilton, Washington and that crowd held forth. What we know about it comes from Madison's diary.

The Michigan Constitutional Convention of 1961-2 was an education. As a budding political reporter, I covered the campaign to change the ground rules, the campaign to call a con-con, the primary and the general election of delegates, the special Republican pre-convention gathering in St. Joseph's old Whitcomb Hotel, some sessions of the con-con itself in the Lansing Civic Center, a public hearing in a Farm Bureau hall on legislative reapportionment, and the campaign to adopt the new constitution.

Besides rewriting the state's basic document — and providing for county home rule — the con-con also spawned a whole new era of political leaders: Glenn Allen, Dick Austin, Garry Brown, Malcolm Dade, Bob Danhof, Tom Downs, Art Elliott, Jack Faxon, Bill Ford, Ed Hutchinson, George Romney, Dick VanDusen, Weldon Yeager, Coleman Young.

Some fascinating characters hammered a million raw ideas into hard proposals, filtered them through committees, voted some up, voted most down and finally shaped the morass into a constitution.

One day Faxon, then a 25-year-old former teacher who had been elected a delegate, took his students on a tour. Students don't get very many field trips like that in a lifetime.

It was stuff they had read about in books, and it was happening in front of their eyes.

A SIMILAR opportunity awaits today's young citizens.

Beginning Jan. 6, the Wayne County Charter Commission will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesdays and at 6 p.m. Thursdays.

Tuesday meetings will be held in a conference room of the Veterans Memorial Building on W. Jefferson in downtown Detroit.

Mrs. Bankes tells me, however, that Thursday meetings will be rotated — one in each of the 27 charter commission districts. She has put in her bid to have one in Livonia's elegant new City Hall.

I presume Tim Manning will seek a site in Redford Township, Justine Barns will propose one for Garden City or Westland, and Bart Berg will come up with a spot in Plymouth or Canton. That is, I hope they will.

The local politicians, the studious members of the League of Women Voters and just plain citizens will have a chance to promote their favorite theories. The Detroit delegation will learn that civilization doesn't end at Telegraph Road. To be sure, the suburban delegation, as it visits around, may find that the northwest suburbs are not the sole repository of human knowledge.

CAMPAINING FOR a spot on the charter commission, Mrs. Banks must have found her chief opponent was not the Democratic candidate but public indifference.

With four TV personalities and an environmentalist running for president, it was hard to get folks excited about something as musty, archaic and depressing as county government.

Well, if all goes according to plan, the Wayne County Charter Commission will be coming out to hear us, in the land where you don't have to spend $2.75 to park. It would be a shame to miss the show.

New Year resolutions can break you

Here it is Jan. 5, and I've already broken six New Year's resolutions.

All I had to do was smoke one cigarette to blow the first resolution I make every year. But after all, New Year's is more than blowing horns, wearing funny hats, eating canapes and waking up with a hangover. It's serious business — a new beginning — a second chance.

So in the vein of do what I say, not as I do, here are some resolutions I wish others would keep:

- To all media and business types — Let John Lennon rest in peace.

- To Twiggy types — Don't tell everybody you drink two milkshakes a day and you can't gain weight. You'll be an 80-pounder without a friend in the world.

- To Southfield Mayor Donald Fracassi — Don't be paranoid about talking to old friends who happen to be in cable television. Code of ethics or not, you can still say "Hello."

- To TV commercial writers — If you have any feeling for women's lib, stop ranting about ring around the collar, static cling and Tickle deodorant.

Jackie Klein

- To Detroit Mayor Coleman Young — Stop calling Ronald Reagan "pruneface." A foot in the mouth sure ain't laundered money in the bank.

- To Southfield developers — Refrain from telling residents you're building a $50 million high-rise complex two blocks away for the good of the community and the tax base.

- To candidates for City Council — Refrain from telling residents you're going to stop developers from building $50 million high-rise complexes two blocks away. Homeowners don't believe in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarves" either.

- To the Southfield City Council — Don't take it personally when you get bad press or no press at all. Just keep your sense of humor even if you're called "lackluster."

- To Southfield City Administrator Del Borgsdorf — Don't be 100 percent defensive. About 50 percent is par for the course.

- To State Sen. Doug Ross — Keep those legislative bills coming but not so fast. We haven't got time for all those press conferences.

- To President Jimmy Carter — Don't tell folks you can't do anything because you broke your left collarbone. You're leaving yourself wide open for the response, "You've haven't done anything in the last four years."

- To writers and speechmakers — Don't say "hugely unique," "quality of life," "impact on," "viable alternative," "within the parameters" or "I have something to share with you and conceptualize." It means nothing and nobody will know what you mean.

- To the gremlin that gets in my typewriter and makes me goof — "Nappy Yew Hear." Oops, the gremlin did a number on me again.

It's hard to compromise nature's gem

It is with a touch of sadness and anger that I read of the impending drilling for oil and natural gas in the Pigeon River County State Forest.

I've spent my entire life in the city and have spent almost all my vacations camping, so I've developed a fondness for the great outdoors. The way I see it, cities are great for living and working, but when it comes to vacationing, get me to some natural beauty.

The Pigeon happens to be among my favorites. My husband and I spent part of our honeymoon there. And it was there that I caught my first sight of that majestic beast, the elk.

But being a realist, I know that the energy squeeze is going to make compromisers of most of us. I am grateful that the 10-year battle for drilling in the Pigeon has at least guaranteed some safeguards will be taken to protect the area — safeguards which apparently have not been taken in areas like Kalkaska where residents are complaining of oil wastes seeping into their well water.

But I also can't be heartened by the fact that we're digging into one of the last remaining untouched wilderness areas in the state based on the idea that it's better to dig for the oil than to try to alter our wasteful ways of consuming energy.

But that's the way it is in our throw-away society.

So we allow and even encourage people to continue using energy as if our energy reserves were a bottomless supply. That's what I find puzzling and even ironic in the whole energy debate.

Do you ever wonder why we:

- Have to wear winter coats in the summer to comfortably shop in supermarkets, especially in the frozen food aisles where there are no doors on the cases to contain the frigid air?

- Have no incentive for apartment dwellers to lower their thermostats when the heat is part of the rent bill?

- Still see people who work in Detroit buying homes in Brighton?

- Allow builders to construct new homes which virtually make air conditioning a necessity because of the lack of windows to open?

- Allow, in this age of solar awareness, builders to construct homes which have no, or very few, windows on the southern side of the house?

- See parking lots aglow with lights even when stores are closed?

- Sponsor road rallies and progressive dinners as a form of entertainment which encourage driving and the waste of gasoline?

I suppose the list of my pet energy peeves could go on and on. I know I'm no energy saint. I have to admit that 68 is about as cool as I can stand it in my own house. But at least I've taken a few steps to cut down on the amount of energy I'm using.

That's more than I can say for some. And that's why it angers me to see places like the Pigeon River become victimized by drilling rigs when the local grocery store can't even put doors on its frozen food cases.

Cancelled check return may be cancelled

Banking is changing and one of the traditional services banks have offered — the returning of your cancelled check — may soon be a thing of the past.

In fact, some banks and those savings and loan associations that will be offering checking accounts in January have opted not to return their customer's checks.

And some financial institutions are offering the return of checks as an option, with a fee attached.

The non-return of checks is called check truncation or check safekeeping and has been very successful in some parts of the country, especially in Arizona. Bank of America, the world's largest bank, began offering check truncation as a voluntary program in November.

Until Bank of America introduced check truncation, Valley National Bank of Phoenix was the largest bank in the country adopting the system and its customers have adapted well.

Some consumers are, however, leary of not having their checks returned. They want that piece of paper returned to them. However, bankers throughout the country are telling their customers that due to rising costs of providing checking account services, it is becoming too expensive to return checks to their customers.

HERE IS HOW the non-return of cancelled checks works:

The bank provides a monthly statement including the date of entry into the system, the amount of the check and a list of the check numbers, in sequence.

If the customer needs a copy of the check for proof of payment, the bank will provide a paper copy of the check to the check writer within three days. In a number of cases, where the service is being offered now, banks maintain checks in vaults for 90 days, then destroy them. Microfilm copies of the checks are kept for seven years. Paper copies of the checks can be made from microfilm.

As a matter of fact, banks have been offering improved record-keeping systems, including IRS and court-acceptable microfilm copy for large corporations for many years. These corporate systems have been tested for speed, accuracy and acceptability by corporate treasurers.

Studies at banks offering the non-return option indicate that customers who need copies of cancelled checks during the year have used an average of three requests a year.

One of the important times cancelled checks would be required is if the checkwriter is undergoing an audit by the Internal Revenue Service and needs all of the checks returned. In that instance, most banks are offering that service free. Normally, photocopying three to five checks during the year would be at no cost to the customer. Above that number, banks would charge about $1 each.

Host Chief grapplers 4th, Salem 2nd

Lincoln rules Civitan tilt

By SCOTT ADLER

The Plymouth Canton Civitan Invitational Wrestling Tournament crowned a new champion Tuesday as Warren Lincoln outpointed defending champ Plymouth Salem 144-120½.

Birmingham Brother Rice finished third with 95½ points and host team Canton finished fourth, tied with Redford Thurston at 81½ points.

Rounding out the eight team tournament were West Bloomfield (74½), Dearborn (50) and Birmingham Seaholm (26½).

Drux Nelson, 112 pounds from Brother Rice, was named outstanding wrestler of the tourney. He defeated Marc Boyea of Dearborn in the finals, 7-1.

Plymouth Salem's Marty Piper won the heavyweight division with a pin of Chris Makdisi (Warren Lincoln) in the championship match at the 2:25 mark.

In the heavyweight consolation match, Scott Nero of West Bloomfield decided Canton's Craig Gearns, 12-2.

Rob Rourke (98 pounds) of West Bloomfield pinned Jeff Vojcek from Salem in 1:30 for the championship trophy and Thurston's Jeff Rouseau won the consolation match, 8-0, over Dennis Harrington of Brother Rice.

At 105 pounds, Ken Kercher of Lincoln decided Scott Pazner of West

Bloomfield, 6-2. Thurston's Kurt Kostegian was victorious in the consolation match, 4-2, against Pete Cuffe of Rice.

Finishing third behind Nelson and Boyea at 112 pounds was Bob Trandell of Lincoln who defeated Canton freshman Tim Collins, 9-1.

DEARBORN'S Dave Zacharias (119) blanked Harry Newton of Thurston, 7-0, in the championship battle. Jerry Bobchick of Lincoln was awarded third place on a criterion decision (most takedowns based on a tie after the three periods) over Canton's Kevin Decker. The score read 4-4 after regulation.

Tim Berry (126) was Seaholm's only champion with a victory over Darryl Weitzel of Lincoln, 8-2. Thurston's Bill Neil shutout John Beaudoin of Salem in the consolation match, 4-0.

At 132 pounds, Lincoln's Greg Bobchick pinned Kurt Campbell (Thurston) in the finals, 5:30. Canton's Brian Lee defeated Rob McDonald of Salem, 8-6, for third place.

Jerome Malczewski (Rice) was champion at 138 pounds with a victory over Jim Gerds (Lincoln), 2-0. In the consolation match, Kevin Santilli of Canton dined Randy Beaudoin of Salem, 4-2.

Steve Hamblin (145) was Canton's only champ with a 9-1 decision over Dave Kazyck of Rice. Bruce Bachman of Salem was a 5-2 winner over Al Benequisto of Lincoln in the consolation match.

Barry Bausano (155) won his weight division for the second straight year with a victory over Canton's Bob Mullen, 11-7. Dave Wheeler of Thurston was awarded a criterion decision over John Woodchuck (Salem).

At 167 pounds, Salem's Steve Szilagyi was champ with a victory over Kevin Kadrich (Lincoln), 5-2. Mike

'We got some very good performances.'

— Canton coach Dan Chrenko

Toyneas of Dearborn whipped Allen Sparks (Rice) in the battle for third place, 12-2.

Rice's Mark Nichols (185) outpointed Steve Hodan (Lincoln), 6-3 for the championship. In the consolation match, Jim Marx of Dearborn decided Adam Golchuck of Salem, 10-4.

At 198 pounds, Scott Wickens of Salem pinned Nick Peeff (Thurston) at 3:30.

Canton coach Dan Chrenko, whose team finished third last year, felt this year's fourth place finisher was a little bit flat.

"We got some very good performances," said Chrenko. "Tim Collins did a super job for us, and so did Mullen. Hamblin had his best night as a Canton wrestler and Decker is coming along, but at the start we were a little bit flat, and that hurt us in the long run."

Ron Krueger, whose Salem team unsuccessfully defended its championship, is happy with his club's improvement.

"We still don't have everybody on the mat," said Krueger, "but the kids we did have did a good job. We placed 10 kids and that's an improvement over what we've been doing."

Chrenko said he would like to thank Civitan for sponsoring the tournament and providing all the medals, trophies and certificates.

Ready to challenge Churchill

Burnstein likes spikers

By SCOTT ADLER

Canton volleyball coach Cindi Burnstein hopes this will be the year her team doesn't have to play second fiddle to Livonia Churchill in the Western Six League race.

For the past three years the Chiefs have finished in second place behind the powerful Chargers, but this year Burnstein thinks things could be different.

"I certainly hope so (for Canton to win the league title)," Burnstein said. "They (the Chargers) are the only team we lose to in the league. I hope we come in first this year. We've been the bride's maid for three years now."

Canton's strength will lie in its experience and strong spiking and blocking.

Leading the way for the Chiefs will be three seniors, Mari-Anne Pink, Mary Reardon and Carolyn Barr. They are the only juniors on the team and are tri-captains.

Juniors who will be returning from last year's team are Debbie Dickinson, Ellie Wagner and Lori Erdelyi. Sophomore returnees include Denise Wright and Polly Roberts.

Juniors who played on the junior varsity a year ago are Kelly Arvin and Missy McMurray. Sophomore Kris Harrison played on the JV last year.

Two new players who moved into the community during the off-season and plan to play a major role in the team's success are junior Robynn Hudgens and sophomore Renae Edwards.

"We should be pretty good at everything," said Burnstein. "Our serving could be great, but it isn't yet and our defense needs some work. The talent is definitely there."

CANTON lost Mary Fiderler to graduation along with Claudia Williams and last year's Most Valuable Player, Sue Bonet.

One other player Burnstein won't have playing for her is Cindy Sovine. Sovine didn't graduate but chose to play winter basketball instead. She is center for the Chief girl cagers and was a varsity stand-out on the volleyball team last year as a sophomore.

"Cindy was a very good blocker and her serving and spiking were very consistent," Burnstein said. "We will definitely miss her."

Although no positions are definite, Burnstein says Pink will be a setter and because of their height, Dickinson (5-foot-10), Hudgens (6-foot) and Reardon (5-9) will be spikers.

Burnstein, whose club finished last year with a 14-4 record, says this could be her finest team in her eight years as Canton coach.

"It might very well be (her finest team)," said Burnstein. "It's too early to tell right now. But it very well could be."

Farmington Harrison and Walled Lake Western are improving every year says Burnstein, and she cites them as possible league contenders along with perennial favorite Churchill.

"This team gets along well," said Burnstein. "We have a good team. We have height and good spikers."

Burnstein hopes her team will use its strength to win the league championship.

Snowy softball?

Only "good weather" will prevent play of the second annual Groundhogs Day Softball Classic Jan. 31-Feb. 1 at Griffin Park.

That's the word from Bob Dates, assistant director of the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Eight teams participated in the tournament last year won by B & D Graphics, which upset McMurray Insurance.

This year's registration fee is $25 per team. That fee covers expenses for softball, umpires and team trophies. Each team must be limited to 18 players and every member must have at least one bat. Games will be held on a one-hour time limit.

The entry deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 23. Registration will be held at the Canton Township Parks and Recreation office, 1150 South Canton Center Road. For more information, call 397-1000.

Men's tourney scheduled

With an entry of more than 3,000 teams the men's state tourney is now under way at the Town and Country Lanes in Flint. From all indications it will be the most competitive in years.

The reason for this is the improvement of the bowlers from the out-state precincts and the inter-city rivalry that has been created during the past several years. The meet will run until May.

ACCORDING TO word from the American Bowling Congress, the membership will pass the 4.8-million mark for the first time in its history.

The final returns are not in for the month of December, but it is certain that the 1979 record of 4,799,195 will be bettered by a wide margin.

ABC officials expressed surprise as they expected a drop because of the many job layoffs around the country.

THERE SEEMS to be no way to stop the sharpshooters at Wonderland Lanes. Even during the holidays the 700 barrier was broken.

In the classic last Tuesday night, Fred Ringrose linked counts of 192, 269 and 268 for 729 to set the pace.

Several lanes away, Tom Earanski gave him a battle. Tom started with 249, then slipped to 215 but closed with 248 for 712.

Meanwhile, the K&S team put together games of 933, 1133 and 1122 for a 3182 to top the teams.

In the women's competition, Marilyn Wixson showed the way with a 641 made possible by a closing game of 249. Next to her was Lois Hamil with 628.

COMPETITION WAS keen in the Moose league at Garden Lanes. Al Zelek finally landed on top with 667. Next to him came George Moran with 642 and Nick Cawetzha was one pin behind him with 641.

In the St. Linus League, Gary Cave was high man with 642. Next in line came David Bazna with 621, Hank Murphy with 611.

But the bowler who stole the show was Ron Larkin, who converted the 4-6-7-10. And, like all others who topped this "impossible" split, he doesn't know how he did it.

A NEW NAME popped up in the invitational doubles at Merri Bowl when Lorie Demsky found herself at the top of the list with a 573. Dottie Goryca took the runner-up spot with 565 and Evelyn Salinas had a 235 in 561 for third place.

AT PLAZA LANES Joe Barbee, of the Pile Drivers league, was inducted as the latest member of the 700 club. He laced games of 256, 217, and 243 for 716 to beat out Chuck James by 42 pins for top place for the night. Three others — Ray Kuczajda, Jim Mc Cuin and Mike Schweizer — tied at 649 for third place.

Pat La France had her name written into the history books of Plaza Lanes when she rolled games of 214, 216 and 177 for 602. It was the first series over 600 bowled by a woman at the establishment since it opened some years ago.

She was bowling in the Our Lady of Good Counsel League.

DeRenzo builds cage program

Christian school gains ground

BY SCOTT ADLER

Did you know that the Plymouth Christian Academy has a varsity basketball team that is 4-0? Did you know that Plymouth's only private high school hasn't had a losing basketball team in the past three years? Did you know that Plymouth had a private high school?

If you didn't, don't feel bad, because not many people do.

But Plymouth Christian Academy, in the Cavalry Baptist Church on Joy Road between Lilly and Main Streets, is finally on the map.

The school has approximately 350 students in grades kindergarten through 11th. This year's juniors will be the first-ever graduating class next year.

Plymouth Christian has only 47 students in grades nine through 11. Because of this, most of the athletes play more than one sport at the Class D level.

"We're a very young school," said third-year coach and athletic director Butch DeRenzo, "and most of our kids play nearly all the sports. So we have some pretty good all-around athletes."

During the school's five years of existence, the basketball team, is finally competing against varsity opponents, and faring quite well. The last team to fall to Plymouth Christian was Southfield Manooagian (Dec 19), in overtime, 67-64.

This year's standouts include the team's biggest player, Steve Kiser, at 6-feet-2-inches, and junior guards John Koss (18 points per game) and Brad Mangan (16), the heart of Christian's offense.

LAST YEAR the basketball team played only junior varsity opponents and compiled a 10-8 record. That included winning the Association of Christian Schools International (ACSI) district title.

This year, DeRenzo's club has an 18-game schedule, which does not include the ACSI tournament in February. Plymouth Christian will return in March to an invitational tournament. The team finished third last year and DeRenzo hopes for more improvement.

"I think that we can do quite well," the coach said. "We're expecting to win it."

Plymouth Christian is not a member of the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA), but is hoping to join next year. DeRenzo also yearns to be a member of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference (MIAC) next year. That league includes such teams as Southfield Christian, Oakland Christian, Lutheran Northwest and Roseville Baptist Academy.

DERENZO SAYS that basketball is by far the school's most successful sport. His program, however, also offers junior varsity basketball (boys), junior high (grades six through eight) basketball, boys' soccer and girls' basketball and volleyball. In the spring, DeRenzo hopes to install track and baseball programs.

The home basketball games have been played at Pioneer Middle School, on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, for the past two years. Calvary Baptist Church has its own gym where the teams practice, but because of limited seating capacity, it is not the ideal location for fan participation. A new fieldhouse is in the planning stages, but that could be a ways off, according to DeRenzo.

"That's a million dollar question," he said. "We have the plans but that's a long way down the road."

Area netter earns Midwest Pro honor

By MARTY BUDNER

Judy Preston called it the highlight of her career.

It's more of a story about perseverance.

Preston, general manager and head professional at the Rochester Hills Racquet Club, last month was named as the Midwest 'Pro of the Year' by the United States Professional Tennis Association.

It's an honor that didn't come easy. The former Livonia resident was forced to halt her competitive tennis instincts five years ago because of persistent ankle problems.

Preston battled back in Bjorn Borg-like fashion to earn distinction as one of Michigan's top tennis teachers. The award was presented to her Dec. 6 in Chicago.

"The doctors told me it's either a matter of quitting or not being able to walk in 10 years," said

Preston, who has had ligament and bone chip damage in her ankles ever since her prep days at Livonia Bentley.

"I PLAYED with the girls' team in high school for two years, and I wound up playing with the boys' team my senior season because during the girls' season I was on crutches. I won a scholarship to Stetson University in Florida but I didn't accept it because of the injuries."

Consequently, the 24-year-old Preston geared her ambitions toward teaching rather than playing. She soon learned teaching was almost as cumbersome as playing.

"I used to make a living off of teaching, but now I have to make a living off of managing," she said. "I can't teach regularly any more because it's too hard to be on my feet all the time."

"I teach maybe 10 to 15 hours per week, whereas before it was a full-time job for me. When I couldn't play anymore I wanted to teach, and when I couldn't teach anymore I wanted to manage."

The morning finds this woman in the market at Cracow, sitting amid fluttering pigeons and a riot of color. (Photos by Iris Sanderson Jones)

In the rural village of Chocholow an old man with the face of a pope takes his sheep out to pasture.

For people accustomed to hardships, Poles are quick with a naz drowie

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Polish farmers have made the front pages the last few weeks, bargaining for an agricultural union. As I watch their faces on the television news, I think of other faces seen at the height of autumn harvest a few months ago.

No traveler can claim to know a country after only a few days of touring, but there are images collected in the mind:

The man and wife digging up potatoes in rich farmland near Warsaw; the younger man pulling a hand-held plow behind a horse, while an older woman, probably his mother, works nearby.

The huge tractors on the cooperative farms. Great laughter from a family pitching hay up to a loft. An old man driving sheep through a mountain village. A family roasting potatoes beside the road.

We had seen the lineups for food in Warsaw and heard the explanations of embassy officials from various countries: "There have been several years of bad crops; the potato crop is down nearly one-third, and the increase in grain is not enough to compensate. There is a meat shortage, but remember that Poles are among the highest meat-eaters in the western world."

Food wasn't rationed in October as it is now. You could easily spend two hours a day buying essentials but nobody was hungry; I suspect that is still true.

HOW WELL DOES a farmer live in Poland? The farmers who grow cabbage and potatoes near Warsaw are among the richest people in the country, especially if they have a greenhouse. The average farmer, with 15-20 acres of land further from the city, has a smaller income than other Poles. Many work in both farm and factory to earn a living.

Those are facts, statistics. What I remember, however, are the cheerful farmers we met along the road. Several times a day, on impulse, we stopped beside the road to talk to farmers. They were always welcoming, friendly, and they always laughed at the idea of being photographed.

Our tour guide, Ella, was a sophisticated young woman in a fashionable suit and high-heeled shoes. Her city clothes contrasted with the farm clothes and babushkas of the country. In Warsaw, many people speak English; here in the country, few speak English.

The farmers barraged us with Polish questions, which Ella translated. The most common question: Where are these tourists from and why are they taking our pictures? Followed by more merriment. Always they invited us to share anything they had, to stay longer, to send copies of our pictures after we got home.

On our first stop, just outside Warsaw, we spotted a man and woman sitting in a pile of potatoes at the center of a huge plowed field, with a small, trim house in the distant background. Ella stayed in the car, shaking her head with laughter at the crazy photographers wading across the muddy field.

The young woman in the potato pile was equally amused as we photographed her in her wide skirt and her head scarf. She piled potatoes into a sack while her husband carried the sacks to a nearby horse cart.

She gave us a laughing commentary in Polish, which none of us understood. Finally, she stuck out her hand and said something that included the word "dollars." We thought she wanted money for having her picture taken.

One of us gave her some coins, which doubled her up with more laughter. She laughed so hard she could hardly speak as she shook her head and gave the money back. It was only a joke, the sticking out of the hand. Didn't we know a joke when we heard one?

As we came back across the field, we could see a tractor on the other side of the highway. Only cooperative farms can afford tractors as a rule; most of the small, private farms use horse-drawn plows.

We were only a few miles down the road when we spotted the next farmer. Ella assured us that at this rate we would not make our destination by nightfall, but we didn't care.

A man of about 35 years left his horse and plow in the middle of a field and came to meet us at the roadside. His mother, whose face had permanent sun and smile lines under snow white hair and a babushka, followed him. She had been picking potatoes up out of the furrow, and she still held them in her basket.

One of the delightful things about travel is that you learn to talk with your hands and your feet. The old lady and I shook hands, smiled, nodded our heads, pointed happily at the sun, laughed at the horse and generally had a good time together.

Her name is Mrs. Tomaszow Mazowiecki, and I promised to send her a photo if one of them came out.

It was always like that, people aged too soon by sun and hard work, but friendly and hospitable. If you want to understand the economics of Polish agriculture, read Time Magazine, but if you would like to know a few more Polish farmers, meet:

- The wonderful old lady who brings her flowers in to the market square at Cracow every morning, where she sits in a sea of fluttering pigeons and a riot of colored flowers.

- The mother of the family pitching hay in a farm beside the road. Her children are fooling around so much in the loft, they lose half the hay being thrown up to them for storage. She grabs one of the men in our group and rolls him into the hay while everyone laughs uproariously.

- The old man in the village of Chocholow. He has just driven his sheep out of the yard near his house, and now he is enjoying a pipe as he herds them down the street toward the fields.

- A younger sheepherder on another slope of the Tatra mountains, shaking his head with disbelief as we race our cameras up the road ahead of him so that we can take his picture as he rounds the bend.

- Finally, as the sun goes down over the fields, I'd like you to meet the family misted in the smoke of a bonfire by the road's edge. Two young boys are stirring potatoes that cook in the embers at the edge of the fire.

Dad is smoking a pipe as he leans on the cart. Mother throws her apron over her head when she sees the cameras, but it is now too dark for photographs anyway.

Ella is shaking her head, "no, thank you" because we are, as predicted, much too late for our appointed evening destination, and we really can't stay and eat potatoes with the family or sit beside the road and talk any longer.

They wave as we drive away. We waved back. It is too dark for photographs, but the picture is firmly etched in my mind.

Mystery aplenty attends weekend with the butler

I have heard of some unusual travel weekends, but Alice Cromie's Mystery Weekend at French Lick, Ind., is the wildest idea I've heard for a long time.

I call it Alice Cromie's Weekend, because Alice is a friend of mine and I first heard of this weekend through her. But the trip is actually hosted by the French Lick Resort, and Alice is only one of several well-known mystery writers and other special speakers scheduled to attend.

The cast includes Mary Higgins Clark, author of "Where Are the Children" and "A Stranger is Watching," Judge Joe L. Hensley, writer of nine mystery novels; Stuart Kaminsky, author of the Toby Peters mystery novels; Arthur Maling, winner of the 1980 Edgar A. Poe Award; Ray Shlemon, inventor of MIMIC, an electronic device for identifying criminals; and Clarence Trausch, psychotherapist and lecturer in paraspsychology.

Alice Cromie, author of both mystery and travel books, and columnist for the Chicago Tribune, is the coordinator of the affair along with Janine Warsaw, story editor of Quarterly Magazine.

WHAT'S A MYSTERY weekend? You start with an unfinished murder story called "Death Gets a Workout," for which you will have the opportunity to write a conclusion.

You'll spend the weekend solving mysteries by using clues planted by experts, and you'll get a chance to eat, drink and play with all those mystery specialists while picking their brains about how to write a mystery.

If you'd like to live with the whodunits Jan. 23-25, at a cost of $108 per person, double occupancy, contact French Lick Springs, French Lick, Ind. 47432, or call toll-free 800-457-4042.

The following weekend, Jan. 30-Feb. 1, is dedicated to photographers. Lots of camera-related events and information, led by Alex Sweetman, associate professor of photography at the school of the Art Institute of Chicago, and his wife, Barbara Jo Revelle, an artist-in-residence for the Chicago Council on Fine Arts.

This kind of themed weekend, set in the old fashioned splendor of a resort like French Lick, seems to me like a wonderful mid-winter diversion for travelers. Trust Alice Cromie to be involved in such a crazy idea. She and Janine Warsaw not only plotted the weekend, they recently co-authored a mystery called "House for Sale."

IF YOU ARE planning further ahead, and possibly further south than southern Indiana, here are some bits of travel industry information for your thinking cap:

- United Airlines has started new service to Mexico with nine weekly round-trip flights between Chicago and the Yucatan Peninsula. Detroiters traveling to Cancun and Cozumel can make on-line connections for the three-hour flights.

- Eastern Airlines now has non-stop service between Miami, Cancun and Cozumel, providing a direct connection with these Mexican resorts for the first time.

- Eastern has also increased the number of non-stop flights between Miami and St. Maarten in the Netherland Antilles, a service that started last September. You can also now fly to Fort-de-France, Pointe-a-Pitre and St. Lucia without a stopover at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

CC blasts Romulus

Detroit Catholic Central won its third basketball game in four starts Tuesday by easily defeating Romulus, 88-53.

The Shamrocks jumped out to a 20-6 first quarter advantage and led 50-26 at intermission.

CC continued the barrage in the second half with Greg Wendt leading the way.

Wendt, a 6-foot-5 senior forward, finished with 32 points and 16 rebounds. Sophomore Mike Meleski added 15 points for the winners and Dave Rodriguez tallied 12.

Bob Stewart paced Romulus with 14 points.

Preston, who began playing tennis at the age of 5, started her teaching career at the Livonia YMCA when she was 16 years old. She later moved on to the North-west Racquet Club of Livonia.

PRESTON assumed managerial positions at the Wimbledon Racquet Club in St. Clair Shores and the Ren Cen Racquet Club in Detroit. She worked as general manager of the Rochester facility for the past two years.

During that time she has assembled a staff of seven, including Judi Stiff who plays on the Avon Futures circuit (a "farm" league of the Avon Tennis circuit). She's also revitalized a number of other dormant programs.

"When I first started here the junior program maybe had 17 kids," said Preston, who coached the 1980 Junior Wightman Cup Team of Southeastern Michigan to a tennis championship earlier this year.

"We have almost 200 junior players now. I know what it takes to make a junior player good because I've had a lot of background in that area."

"I've brought some ideas to this club — some membership pleaser's like men's night — and I think I've made it a really active club. We brought in an exercise room. We're trying to provide more services for our members now."

"The ratio here is five students per one instructor, so you're getting a good experience," she said.

Preston credits Nancy Ryan, a tennis coach at Kingswood High School in Bloomfield Hills, and John Cook, a former associate at the Wimbledon Racquet Club, for giving her tennis inspiration and guidance.

"They (Ryan and Cook) made tennis a great experience for me, and I want to share that experience with other people," said Preston.

"I'm excited about winning the award. It's an honor to be recognized by your peers. I've had calls from people I didn't even know congratulating me."

"It means a little more recognition and more respect," she said.

Band benefits Michigan ERA

By LORAIN McCLISH

What Motown was to Detroit in the '60s is what Prismatic LTD will be to Detroit in the '80s. Anyway, that's the prediction of Carol Ann Payne, manager and president of the multi-dimensional band of musicians.

The six-member group first performed one of their own songs, "Let Everyone Be Equal to Their Own," at the symbolic house-raising for the ERA rally spearheaded by the national association of Women in Communications before the Republican National Convention in Detroit last summer.

Now they bring an entire concert as a benefit for Michigan ERAmerica at 8 p.m. Friday in Masonic Temple Auditorium, with music and lyrics by Plymouth resident Michael Colone.

The benefit was announced by Laura Callow, a Livonia resident who is co-chairperson with Helen Milliken of the Michigan coalition of more than 40 organizations supporting the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, and Ms. Payne, who manages the newly formed Farmington Hills-based Prismatic.

General admission tickets for "Aim for Victory" are $7.50 and $8.50 and are available at the Masonic Temple box office and Hudsons.

For special sponsor tickets at $25 each, and Matron-Patron tickets at $38 each (for the 38 states needed to ratify the ERA), write Michigan-ERAmerica, 32321 Shiawassee, Farmington 48024.

PRISMATIC musicians are Roberto Kuypers and Penaluni of West Bloomfield; Jeff Jurcisin of Livonia; David Reinstein and Tom Kalep of Brighton; and Colone.

"We must continue to go forth on the issue of equality of rights for everyone," Ms. Callow said. "The issue cannot, and will not, disappear. Human dignity is involved, and this concert will help us continue the fight."

Ms. Payne added, "The tremendous talents and energy of these six musicians are creating experiences that capture and focus in their music the sensitivities of men and women of all ages and backgrounds."

Prismatic offers its multidimensional music to benefit Michigan-ERAmerica on Friday in Masonic Temple. Standing are percussionist Roberto Kuypers(left); bass player and singer Jeff Jurcisin; leader, composer and guitarist Michael Colone; saxophonist David Reinstein and drummer Tom Kalep. In front is Penaluni, a purveyor of transmotion which is movement utilizing the dimensions of space and involving the emotions of those watching the performance.

"Their music is a reflection of what's happening here and now. It is multi-dimensional, because we are all multi-dimensional now, multi-faceted, because we all wear so many hats."

"They (the musicians) come from that same mother-lode of talent in the Detroit area that gave us Motown."

Since Prismatic's appearance last summer, the group deliberately took six months off to prepare for the concert and its simultaneous public release of an LP, two EP's and a cassette of Prismatic's original adult contemporary, rock and jazz music.

TITLES OF some of the songs concert-goers will hear are typical of what

Prismatic is all about: "Don't Invite Me to the Depression," "Everybody is a Victim," "What's it Gonna Cost Me," "I Will Be Somebody."

The group has been together since early 1977, exploring free-form progressive music realms.

They have worked in jazz clubs, rock clubs and on concert stages as the opening act for several internationally known artists and bands, including Peter Frampton, Jean-Luc Ponty, Spyro Gyra, Jimmy Cliff and Peter Tosh. Yet they are primarily known in Detroit's jazz world.

They teamed up with Ms. Payne last year to allow them time away from the business end of things to explore "any and all musical and non-musical directions," she said.

Ms. Payne is a resident of Farmington, a stock broker for a firm in Southfield, president of Women in Finance, counsels with divorced women in matters of finance for Birmingham's Women Center, and is director of the panel "Women Helping Women."

She uses office space in Farmington Hills new Johnson Building for much of her multi-faceted activities.

"It is not unusual for people to ask me what a stockbroker is doing with a rock band," Ms. Payne says. "Well, women are multi-faceted today, same as Prismatic. Maybe that's a barometer of the '80s."

Jane Fonda is a novice secretary in the comedy "Nine to Five," co-starring Lily Tomlin and Dolly Parton.

the movies Louise Snider

3 Working girls beat the system in 'Nine to Five'

Set your movie alarm for "Nine to Five" (PG). This comedy makes office routines look like a Marx Brothers' invention.

Although the emphasis is on the trials and tribulations of the working woman in the "pink-collar ghetto," many of the situations are familiar enough to be appreciated by anyone who has ever been an employee of a large corporation.

Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin and Dolly Parton form an unlikely alliance of secretaries who are steamed at their boss. Tomlin is the super-smart, been-there-12-years section head. The boss shamelessly steals her ideas and presents them as his. He gets rewarded. She gets to fetch his coffee.

Parton is the boss's personal secretary. When she is not taking dictation (and even when she is), she is fending off his advances.

FONDA IS the new woman in the office, recent divorcee going to work for the first time. She's a scared little rabbit lacking self-confidence or poise.

Dabney Coleman as the boss is the focus of their anger and the object of their revenge fantasies. Coleman gives a lot of individual color to a character who is basically a caricature. Among his resources is the innocent air he is able to maintain while saying the most devastating things. Charged with being a "sexist, egotistical, lying, hypocritical bigot," he looks up and admits he has a few faults.

Actually, Parton is the one who really is a surprise, the way she dominates so many scenes with just an easygoing presence — no mean task considering the competition.

When these three can't stand conditions in the office any longer, they work out a plan. Partly by design, partly by accident, they remove the boss and run the company without him.

The capable Tomlin, with the assistance of the others, is able to pull it off quite well. The question is, how long can they continue the deception?

ALTHOUGH "Nine to Five" becomes too extreme and far-fetched to maintain the satirical bite that was present initially, it's a very entertaining movie.

You won't be watching the clock, waiting for the end.

Neil Diamond performs dully as jazz singer

"The Jazz Singer" (PG) — recap, reread, redundant. Neil Diamond plays the role that featured Al Jolson in 1927 in the first talking motion picture.

The time has been updated to the present, but the story is very much the same, and it just won't hold up. The sentiment that appealed to audiences in the '20s seems ludicrous in the '80s.

In today's world of freer social and religious attitudes, we're given a story about a Jewish boy denounced by his religious father because he wants to be a pop singer rather than a cantor in a synagogue.

A batch of new songs has been written for "The Jazz Singer" and they are acceptable, although Diamond's non-singing performance is as dull as can be.

WORSE THAN THAT, however, is Laurence Olivier (after all, we expect more from him than from Diamond) is still another role with a quivering voice and shaky accent, as if "Boys from Brazil" wasn't bad enough.

Admittedly, older actors who want to continue their careers don't have a great many choices. Some of them, manage to maintain their dignity and reputation in a few well-chosen, well-acted minor roles — John Gielgud, for example. Why does Olivier demean himself so?

If you're not embarrassed by Olivier or why by Diamond and the out-of-date story, you might enjoy "The Jazz Singer."

what's at the movies

ANY WHICH WAY YOU CAN (PG). Clint Eastwood, Clyde (the orangutan) and team of "Every Which Way But Loose," united for more comic mayhem.

A CHANGE OF SEASONS. (R). Superfluous film about "changing values in adult relationships," but nothing about this is very adult.

THE COMPETITION (PG). Music and romance tangle in this bright film as Richard Dreyfuss and Amy Irving vie for first place in a piano competition.

THE ELEPHANT MAN (PG). Largely true story of grossly deformed man rescued from sordid life by compassionate doctor. Fine acting by John Hurt, Anthony Hopkins and John Gielgud balances out directorial shortcomings.

FLASH GORDON (PG). Campy space fantasy intersperses a lot of laughs among the adventures of the clean-cut hero, all to the music of Queen.

THE FORMULA (R). Mystery thriller about international cartel keeping formula for synthetic fuel off the market. Stars George Scott, Marlon Brando and Marthe Keller.

'Trocks' spoofs classical ballet

Ballerinas Tamara Boumdiyeva, Nadia Doumiafeyva, Margeaux Mundein and Tatiana Youbetyabootskaya are coming to town. So, too, are danseurs Jacques d'Aniels, Igor Teupleze and "Biff" Stroganoff.

They will perform at 8:30 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the Music Hall Center in Detroit, along with other members of their troupe, Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo.

The troupe, known by fans as "The Trocks," is an all-male ballet company which satirizes the tradition and pageantry of classical ballet and modern dance innovations.

The group has appeared frequently on television, spoofing the prima ballerina temperament and "sacred" classics such as "Swan Lake," and surprising audiences with its genuine ballet skill.

THE TROCKS were featured in Shirley MacLaine's 1977 award-winning special on national television.

Eleven men appear as both male and female ballet dancers. The comedy begins with the playbill, with descriptions such as the following, from the biography of Jacques d'Aniels:

"Jacques was originally trained as an astronaut before entering the world of ballet. Mr. d'Aniels is an expert on recovering from ballet injuries (including the dread 'Pavlova's Clavicle'). The list of great ballerinas he has

and all musical and non-musical directions," she said.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office, by phone (963-7680), using a MasterCard or Visa, and at all CTC outlets.

Many Surprises." The film will take viewers from Maine to Hawaii, highlighting beautiful, interesting and exciting places to be seen in the U.S.A.

The snow-capped mountains rising majestically and the desert in bloom are among the film's scenic attractions.

Ticket for the travel-film program are available in advance or at the door for $3.25 each.

Preceding the program, The Community House will serve dinner (by reservation only) from 6 p.m. Dinner is priced at $10.50 per person, including tax and service, and reservations can be made at The Community House, Bates and Townsend, phone 644-5832.

Travel film program changed

KEEP IT UP, AMERICA.
By driving less, planning trips more wisely and keeping our cars in tune, we'll keep saving gas. And money — because wasted gas is wasted money.
LITTLE BY LITTLE, IT ALL ADDS UP.

Mini-Vacations. Minutes Away.

Need to get away from it all? And SAVE GAS, jump into your car and drive to the Northfield Hilton for a super weekend fling at an un-super little price. Go ahead - spoil yourself. You deserve it.

LEGAL SECRETARIES

Did you experience job satisfaction in 1980? Did your income keep pace with inflation? Is your career progressing or is it leveling off? Are you tired of seeing the same old faces? Are you ready for a change in employment? We can have you discovering new opportunities and starting with a new employer in January, 1981! Wouldn't that be a nice way to start the New Year? We are seeking qualified individuals with excellent secretarial skills. For a courteous and professional evaluation of your skills as they relate to the marketplace, simply telephone or mail your resume. There is never a charge to you for our result-oriented placement assistance. Evening appointments are available. Call now for a resume review. Best wishes for a rewarding New Year.

Ever read an air cleaner?

Most truck owners do not realize that there are 34 labels listing information on emission controls, certification, fuel and fluid requirements, vehicle specifications and a host of other data.

"Trucks are rolling encyclopedias of automotive information," said Earle Stepp, Chevrolet chief truck engineer.

Many of the labels are concerned with federal controls, and some of them, as well as their placement on and in the truck, are required by law.

For example, the vehicle emission control information label is required by a law that also dictates its exact position on the truck (inside front hood, placed so print is legible from the front of the truck).

"THE AIR CLEANER is also good reading," Stepp said. "It has a vehicle emission control (tune-up) label, and a label that lists engine date of manufacture and the make and designation."

A label that attracts the most attention from the new truck (or car) buyer is the specifications label, with price, year, model and body style, plus a number of other bits of information.

On some models, the left front window has three labels, which list information on consentment under limited certification, origin of engine manufacturer and torque converter transmission.

The window may also carry other labels listing price, fuel economy, notice to buyer and mileage accumulations.

"The EPA fuel economy rating label has more than 20 items of information, including the vehicle identification number (VIN), the type of engine, carburetor and transmission, annual fuel cost, average miles per gallon and several 'type' listings such as model, car, truck, class."

The vehicle certification label lists information such as tire pressure, vehicle weight rating, gross axle weight rating for front and rear, rim and tire sizes and model designations.

INSIDE THE CAB are more labels including the air conditioner compressor label, engine starting procedure and emission control information.

On the instrument panel compartment are service part identification and truck camper loading information labels.

There's even a starting fluid label and auto jack usage label. And, of course, there is a label that tells the type of gasoline to use, or fluid to use, and there is a "glove plug" label for diesels.

For a vehicle destined to be exported, there is, naturally, an export label, and for Canadian vehicles, there are special vehicle certification, Canadian safety, cab chassis and reduced tire pressure labels.

If you finally run out of labels to read, open the glove box and you'll find more reading materials - owner's and driver's manual, warranties for truck and tires, maintenance schedule.

4-door Malibu

Chevrolet's 1981 Malibu Classic four-door sport sedan has a redesigned roof line and rear window area. Many power train functions, including the third-gear torque converter clutch in automatic transmissions, are now computer-controlled. A 3.8-liter V6 engine is standard on all models nationwide.
