Charter group tunes ear to gripes on county

What are your gripes concerning Wayne County government?

Are you upset with the condition of dirt roads in Canton and Plymouth townships? Do you feel that your county tax dollar is well spent?

Residents of the 27th District, which includes Canton, the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, will have an opportunity to air their concerns and complaints at a meeting tonight (Thursday) of the Wayne County Charter Commission in Canton Township Hall.

The commission is charged with the writing of a new charter for Wayne County government.

Tonight's meeting is the first of 11 public hearings scheduled by the charter commission in local Wayne County communities.

The hearing itself is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in Township Hall at Canton Center and Proctor. But Bart Berg, charter commissioner for the 27th District, also has invited the public to attend the commission's regular meeting, which begins at 6 p.m.

Michigan Lt. Gov. James Brickley, who chairs the State Task Force Commission on County Reorganization, is scheduled to make a presentation during the regular-meeting portion of the agenda.

BERG EXPECTS complaints from the 27th District to center on the condition of dirt roads, drains and other matters.

According to Berg, the 27th District is the largest and most populated of all districts in Wayne County. The district includes Van Buren Township, Sumpter Township, the city of Wayne and parts of Northville and Westland in addition to the Canton and Plymouth communities.

"It's the only district with 400 miles or better of dirt roads and miles of open drains," said Berg.

In writing a new charter, the commission may reorganize some county departments to improve services and reflect the concerns of citizens, Berg said.

The commission will write two charter proposals for county reorganization. One will provide for an elected chief administrator. The other will call for an appointed administrator.

Voters will have an opportunity to approve one of the charters or reject both at a county-wide election, to be held sometime during the coming year. Berg expects the election to be held in late 1981 or early 1982 The charter election could be held in concurrence with Detroit's August primary or general election in November. Berg said he will oppose scheduling the charter election at either of those times unless out-county communities can place "a real hot potato" on the ballot.

Otherwise, Berg says, the charter issue may be decided by a heavier outpouring of Detroit votes.

The charter commission must submit drafts of a new charter to the Michigan Attorney General's Office by June 16.

Protests blast new law hiking residential tax

Suburban state legislators from Wayne County face an uphill battle and heavy odds in their effort to delay a new state law that will sharply increase residential property taxes.

But the man who sponsored the law, state Rep. Roy Smith, R-Saline, scoffs at talk of a three-year delay. "They've already had two years to put their houses in order," Smith said of suburban assessors.

"What have they done (since the law was passed in 1979)? Absolutely nothin'!" Smith said.

SMITH'S PUBLIC Act 114, which takes effect this year, was aimed at assessing property in four classes — agricultural, residential, commercial and industrial. He explained, "Commercial and industrial don't go up much. Homes and farms go up due to inflation."

In Canton Township, residential assessments are scheduled to increase 19 percent this year as a result of the law's implementation.

Assessments of industrial property will increase only 7 percent, while commercial assessements will drop 3 percent, according to Township treasurer Maria Falkiewicz.

While most agricultural assessments will increase across the state, those in Canton are expected to drop 18 percent, Mrs. Falkiewicz said. That's because of Canton's new agricultural zoning, which places farmland in permanent agricultural-industrial and agricultural-residential districts.

On Tuesday, the township board passed a resolution requesting a delay in the implementation of Smith's bill. Hundreds of homeowners complained of the tax hike to the township treasurer's office.

Business people argued that under the state equalization process, commercial and industrial properties were having their assessments — and taxes — multiplied too much, while homes and farms were multiplied too little.

PA 114 is aimed at correcting that. Smith says the corrections are needed in just a few outstate towns but mainly in the industrialized suburbs of Wayne County — notably Dearborn, Redford Township and the downriver communities.

Normally, residential prices increase about 10-15 percent a year. This year, if PA 114 is unchallenged, residential property will leap 49 percent in Dearborn, nearly 30 percent in Redford, more than 26 percent in Westland and so on.

STATE REP. John Bennett, D-Redford, has offered House Bill 4044, calling for a three-year moratorium on implementation of PA 114.

Virtually every Wayne County suburban lawmaker is a co-sponsor.

Coping with ESY

Child care, amusement top parents' concerns

By TERI BANAS

As more parents are faced with the impending possibility of their children going on an extended school year (ESY), lessons learned by some Canton families are becoming increasingly valuable.

In the weeks ahead parents of elementary children attending Fiegel and Bird schools will brace themselves for a proposed change in their lifestyles.

Since ESY was introduced in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, primarily Canton families have thus far been affected. But in 1981-82, it's the turn of parents from both Plymouth and Canton.

The most prominent question remains: "What do you do with a child (or children) when they're in school for some nine weeks straight and return home for three or two-week blocks at a time.

CHILD CARE, particularly for working parents, is the most critical consideration.

A check of local nursery schools and child care centers in the Plymouth Canton community reveals not all are equipped or even licensed to accommodate those children over six years of age.

And while some center directors readily admit they're willing to respond to the "demand," others say they'll only accommodate elementary school age children when several are enrolled at the same time; otherwise, "it's not fair to the older children to be housed along with nursery-school age children," said one director.

SINCE THE start of ESY in Canton elementary schools, the community has responded to the question of "how do you entertain a child during the day" through parks and recreation programs, and art classes through the Plymouth Community Arts Council, for example.

The Plymouth Family YMCA, however, says director Janet Luce, would like to do more but furnishing space for activities targeted at ESY kids is not easy — that's because school buildings, used by the Y for its activities, are in use during the day.

Space problems are not new to the Plymouth-Canton community.

In fact, it's this critical issue that gave birth to the ESY plan back in 1975. Faced with a rather unusual problem of increasing enrollments, the district discovered that extending a school year could increase school space by 33 percent without having to build new schools.

AND SO it goes in the 1980s.

Next year, proposes the school board, hundreds of students will join the ranks of those already on the plan ESY plan.

Just last week a group of Bird parents protested the board of education's announcement of a plan to shift their children from a traditional September-to-June school year to an ESY one with a litany of objections that mirrored those raised by another group of parents in the mid-'70s. Those parents were from

Moms tell family impact

A change in family lifestyles will be one of the first concerns faced by Fiegel and Bird parents when and if the proposed extension of ESY enters the Plymouth Community Schools.

Vacation plans, employment opportunities primarily for mothers, and planned recreational activities will all need close study by these families.

As experience is one of the best indicators of what to expect, here are some comments from two parents who already have children on the ESY year-round plan.

Elaine Kirchgatter, a member of the Plymouth Canton Board of Education and mother of two ESY attending children, says the availability of schools breaks throughout the year has opened up opportunities for her children that might not otherwise be there.

"PARTICULARLY IN the winter, there's different types of opportunities that aren't there in the summers," she says.

While an active member of various community groups, Mrs. Kirchgatter does not hold a full-time job outside the home.

"We've done things like make a whole day of visiting the Science Center in downtown Detroit on weekdays and have gone cross country skiing at Maybury Park at times when there aren't a lot of people there.

"It also isn't uncommon for the whole family to go to a movie during the week and stay out a little late."

During the cold, dreary winter months, she says her children become involved in projects at home like needlepoint and sewing.

ONE OF the nicest pluses, she says, are visits with grandparents and other family members for one-week and two-week breaks during the traditional school year.

Arlene Protulis, a Canton mother of four, tells it differently, however.

"To me it's a hardship," says the mother of a second-grader at Ericksson Elementary, an ESY school.

"When it first started, it was sort of pushed down our throats, but everyone in my neighborhood decided

Poole attempts ousting planner

By DARLENE STINSON

Canton board members have quashed an effort of Supervisor James Poole to oust a citizen from an appointed post on the planning commission.

Poole said his recommendation to cut short the term of Thom Carman was based on the planning commissioner's "unacceptable" attendance record at meetings. Poole specifically noted Carman's absence at five consecutive planning commission meetings from Oct. 27 through December.

Carman, who ran unsuccessfully for trustee in the August primary, said at a hearing before the board Tuesday night that his absence at those meetings was unavoidable.

Carman, a cable television engineer for Maclean-Hunter, was assigned to House fire attributed to resident

A fire that damaged an adult foster care home in Canton on Jan. 29 apparently was started by a retarded resident of the home, said Fire Chief Mel Paulun.

The 52-year-old man has been transferred to the Northville Residential Training Center (NRTC), where he will live indefinitely, said Rich Bennett, an area administrator for Alternative Services. The firm operates the home on Roundtable Drive, which opened in July with six retarded adults.

Fire officials pinpointed the starting point of the fire, which broke out shortly before 11 p.m. Jan. 29, in the upstairs bedroom of the man, Bennett said. Officials are uncertain of the circumstances surrounding the fire, or if it was set accidentally.

No one was injured in the fire, which caused an estimated $6,000 in damage to the home.

The five other residents of the home are staying at the NRTC until repairs can be completed in one or two months. Those five residents will be moved back to the home along with a sixth person. Bennett said.

At the time of the fire, three residents — including the 52-year-old man — were believed asleep, Bennett said. A male supervisor and three other residents were making lunches downstairs for the following day.

The supervisor called the Canton Fire Department and evacuated the home after the fire was discovered, Bennett said.

The fire began during a change of shifts when only one staff member was on duty. Two people usually supervise the home.

ESY expansion prompts parents' concerns

the first school to enact the ESY plan — Miller in Canton Township.

Shared concerns included:

• Children transferring out of an ESY school to a traditional school year school in another district could fall behind upon arrival in their course work.

• Child care would become a problem for working parents and family lives would be disrupted in such areas as vacation planning.

SHIRLEY SPANIEL, then principal at Miller School and director of elementary education today, agrees vacation plans, particularly for those families with summer cottages, would be disrupted. However, she disagreed that transferring children would be harmed by an ESY experience.

"In a traditional school year teachers spent all of September and parts of October reviewing the past year's instruction. In ESY, that's not the case. "

Likewise, she believes children transferring from an ESY school generally do not experience readjustment problems because they're actually ahead of their TSY counterparts by some six weeks.

In an evaluation of the ESY program in 1978-79, elementary students preferred a TSY program to an ESY one by 62.6 percent while middle school children preferred TSY schools to ESY ones by 72.7 percent.

AS FOR whether students preferred the three-week breaks to a summer long vacation, 60 percent of the middle school students said they didn't like it as compared to some 30 percent of the elementary school children.

When ESY was first instituted at Miller, school officials, recognizing that children would be idle during the off-weeks, organized a committee comprised of parents, teachers and school administrators to work out daytime programming.

Spaniel said the group organized lists of available sitters, as well as recreational activities supervised by parents.

"Since then the community has really turned out," she says. "The recreation departments, the art council, all packaged programs during break times.

"WHAT WE did was pave the way for a real awareness in this community. Having lived with it, we've proven it isn't all that bad and you can adjust to it."

Mike Gouin, director of parks and recreation in Canton, calls accommodating ESY schedules "a critical area we have had to address.

"We don't have that many activities geared to ESY because schools are in use during the day time and we don't have a community center."

What his department does offer is weekly daytrips to such areas as circuses, museums, and bowling alleys.

"Members of the Canton board have agreed that a multi-use center is important but you're talking about a $2-$4 million building," he said.

Asked if local government should have the responsibility of offering daycare for these children, he said:

"WE SHOULDN'T be in that role but it certainly would be a help for the parents. And people at board meetings have said that recreational services should be a priority of government."

In the city of Plymouth, where there is a center available for daytime activities — the Cultural Center — ESY children are more easily accommodated.

"Before it was easier for us to operate the center," said recreation director Chuck Skene, "now it's almost a year-round operation."

A big advantage to the center is its ice rink.

"When ESY started in Canton we ran daytrips for them until Mike Gouin stepped in. We still provide special skating rates for ESY students that will continue when Plymouth kids get into ESY."

SKENE BELIEVES that "for ESY programming to work" those three-week breaks should be useful for children, which is why he plans to meet with school officials to map activities his department can undertake when ESY moves into Plymouth schools.

Additionally, he believes the cultural center business also will improve during the day.

"Personally, I'm in favor of ESY because I'm opposed to overbuilding so if there's any way we can help out, we will."

Meanwhile, the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) has been another avenue for parents to consider in terms of keeping their children busy with with interesting activities.

Classess in painting, drawing, dance are some of the highlights offered to ESY kids. But space limitations and the availability of instructors are some of the problems that plague the programs, said Elaine Kirchgatter, a group member.

"THE RESPONSE has been overwhelming," she said. "Now, for the most part, we have waiting lists for our classes. Obviously, as more students go on ESY we'll be offering to try it. It was suppose to save taxes."

Families face changes under ESY

Soon afterward, they realized what those hardships would entail.

With some of her children attending ESY schools and some on traditional school year (TSY) plans, vacations were difficult to coordinate.

"BECAUSE OF my husband's work, he can't take a vacation in August when the school had its three-week summer vacation," she said.

"So we are always pulling someone out of school.

"But one of the hardest things was — how do you put a child to bed in the summer, when he has school the next day, when it's still daylight out? How do you tell him while other TSY kids are still playing outside that he has to go to bed?"

Joan Campbell, a neighbor of Mrs. Protoulis, had similar arguments.

Her family moved to Canton five years ago, and she says she's "up to my eyeballs in disgust."

With two chldren attending Eriksson, a second-grader and a fifth-grader, she's been somewhat fortunate until now. Because she is a working mother, her mother-in-law watched the children.

NEXT YEAR, it will become complicated for the Campbell family.

Her elementary school-age children will be split, according to the newly proposed plan, between Ericksson and Lowell where sixth-graders from Ericksson are proposed to be moved.

Lowell, in Livonia and recently leased by Plymouth Canton schools, will be a TSY schools. In the same year, Mrs. Campbell's mother-in-law will move to Florida.

"Where do you get a baby-sitter? Most of my neighbors work — and have to — to pay the taxes here. And nursery schools won't take anyone over nine years. And high school students, well, they're in school during the TSY week — I think

"But I guess Darlene is worse off. She has four children in four different schools. The whole thing is mismanaged.

"It's like musical chairs — except with children."

2 ways of life for the retarded

Group home living: a new way of life for retarded 'family'

By LEONARD POGER

Giovanni (everyone calls him Johnny) pointed to the bread tray at dinner and grunted.

Janice Allen, a former remedial reading teacher, reminded him to say "bread."

He pointed again and said, "bre-ee-aa-d."

"Say 'please,' Johnny," Ms. Allen said.

He said "pul-eeze" and the bread was passed around the table. Johnny remembered to say "thank you" when he received the bread tray.

This might not be unusual for a small child learning table manners, but Johnny is 39.

The problem is that he is severely mentally retarded as are the four "brothers" and "sisters" with whom he lives — all mentally retarded adults in their late 20s and early 30s.

They have the mental age of, at the most, 1- or 2-year-olds.

And as much trouble as they might have now assimilating the skills and manners of a polite society, these adults had bigger problems when they were in state institutions.

Then they had no language skills. Their coordination was minimal.

The difference in their present skills — which include setting the dinner table and clearing it afterwards — is attributed to their living in a group home for the retarded for just the past four months.

THE GROUP HOME is at 30800 Wentworth in the Merriman-Puritan area of Livonia. It is one of the numerous homes the state mental health department has helped open in the past year.

The state's policy is to "deinstitutionalize" the large facilities which have been described as "warehouses" for the retarded.

Group home supporters feel that the smaller settings, located in single family homes with supervision, can help the retarded better develop their skills.

I spent 25 hours at the Wentworth home to get a better understanding of the retarded. I started out with breakfast at 6:30 a.m., watched the residents dress themselves, make their beds, and prepare for the weekday workshop instruction — all very similar to a family getting ready for jobs and school.

I rode with the residents to a workshop in the Schoolcraft-Inkster Road area run by by the United Celebral Palsy Association, took part in their nut and bolt assemblies, talked to their instructors, lunched with them, returned home, and took part in their leisure-time activities before dinner was served.

THE GROUP HOME concept has been controversial since the state started moving the retarded out of large institutions and into single family homes run by private, non-profit organizations.

Many horror stories have been imagined by angry homeowners at suburban city council meetings and in letters to newspapers.

There are fears of children being molested, property being vandalized, and values of nearby homes dropping.

What really goes on in a home for the retarded?

In the 25 hours I spent in the Wentworth, I found that the activities were typical of any family of six children.

Actually, it was a bit quieter than most homes with children since the six persons I stayed with have few language skills.

As with most families, members get up at different times.

When I arrived at 6:30 a.m., Sharon and Carol were in the middle of their fried eggs, sausage and toast. I joined them, thanks to the quick kitchen help of Theresa Hendershot, an employee who was graduated from Garden City East High School five years ago.

Linda, Johnny and Gary got up a short while later for their breakfast.

Theresa, who worked the night shift that morning, and co-worker Susan Rutter, who handles part of the morning shift, said the residents dress themselves and make their beds — a major improvement from their years in a state facility.

Gary was formerly in Plymouth Center for Human Development while Carol, Linda, Sharon and Johnny came to Livonia from the state Oakdale facility in Lapeer. (We were prohibited from getting any information about the sixth resident, a woman, because her parents declined to grant permission.)

About 8:30 a.m., when most kids are preparing to leave for school or adults for their jobs, the Wentworth residents climb into a Chevrolet station wagon for their trip to the Celebral Palsy workshop.

AT THE WORKSHOP, the residents learn simple tasks — separating individual sticks, assembling nuts and bolts, putting puzzles together.

Part of the celebral palsy program involves academics. A man about 60 is finally learning to print his name, phone number, and address. He is substantially ahead of four of my housemates from Wentworth who are still working on putting nuts and bolts together.

Other classes are held in personal grooming and basics that other people don't have to take a lot of time to think about.

For example, in cold weather, the "students" are taught to wear warm clothing and given descriptions of warm clothing.

But slow progress

Northville: a clean, functional existence

By LEONARD POGER

With persistent training and help, they take weeks or months to learn simple things like eating effectively, putting on matching shoes and taking care of themselves and their clothes.

The day starts early for Curtis Young. His shift starts at 6 a.m. when he has to help eight profoundly retarded men wake up, get dressed and make their beds.

They are in his charge for the rest of his shift. This means Young helps them eat and mops up their chins and tables after their breakfast and lunch.

He works with them the rest of the day, most of which is spent at workshops.

Young, 34, is a residential care aide, or attendant, in J Building (which houses 37 retarded men), Northville Residential Training Center in northwest Wayne County. He has an associate degree in mental health from Wayne State University and wants to get a bachelor's degree in recreational therapy for the retarded.

For 25 hours last month, I joined his group to try to understand what life is like in the Northville center.

What can the profoundly retarded do?

Not much.

With persistent training and help, they take weeks or months to learn simple things like eating effectively, putting on matching shoes and taking care of themselves and their clothes.

More difficult things are done for them. They are shaved by attendants using electric razors and are aided in their showers.

THE PROFOUNDLY retarded are at the bottom of the four major levels of mental retardation. At this stage they have the physical coordination, the social skills, the vocabulary of only small children, six months to perhaps two years.

Most residents in J Building don't have any language skills, but they do understand "eat" for mealtime and "workshop" for the instructional periods in the morning and afternoon.

One workshop instructor, Derrick Freeman, 28, said that simple skills usually take weeks and sometimes months to master.

This includes such things as distinguishing round and square objects, putting the same objects in trays, and assembling nuts and bolts.

One resident finally mastered the nuts and bolts assembly but is having troubles taking it apart, said Freeman, a Livonia Stevenson High School graduate who now lives in Garden City.

Freeman said special treats, like cigarets, are given to residents for completing tasks on time.

ONE RESIDENT in my ward who was substantially more advanced than the others was David. In his late 20s and with a lanky frame, he resembled a high school basketball player.

While the other residents sleep in open wards across the hallway, David has his own bedroom. He can perform intellectually like an 8- or 9-year-old. That means he can just barely print names and numbers.

David keeps in practice by keeping a list of attendants' telephone extensions and home numbers. With advance permission, David phones them.

How is the food in a state institution?

In my case, two out of three is pretty good.

The quantity is substantial.

Breakfast is served in two shifts starting at 7:30 a.m.

The residents are served two disposal containers of Kellogg's Frosted Flakes, soft boiled eggs, tomato juice and coffee. The eight men in my group were grouped at two tables.

Lunch was a bologna sandwich with rice salad, tomato soup, jello and milk.

Most of my "roommates" were neat but Young has to clean up after one or two.

I just didn't like dinner.

It was slices of roast beef and scallopped potatoes which were not hot.

Dignity for retarded

Retarded persons represent about three percent of the nation's population, according to U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare statistics.

That amounts to six million persons.

In Michigan, there are about 278,000 retarded persons with 90 percent, classified as mildly retarded. Those considered mildly retarded have language skills, ability to communicate, physical coordination and social skills on the same level as elementary school age students ten years old and under.

The other retarded fall into one of three categories: Moderately retarded — language skills, ability to communicate, physical coordination and social skills on the level of children 4 to 5 years old. Severely retarded — skills and abilities on the level of children 1 to 3 years old, extremely limited vocabulary. Profoundly retarded — the same skills and abilities on the level of children six months to 18 months old, vocabulary of only a few words, if any.

Nearly 98 percent of Michigan's retarded live outside of institutions with the balance of 5,000 still in institutions.

A mental health department wrote the Observer & Eccentric last year that the purpose of community living, such as in group homes, "is to give every mentally retarded person the opportunity to progress at his or her maximum level of functioning. This is not possible in the segregated, abnormal confines of an institution. It is possible, and has been successfully accomplished in the normal, home environment of a group home."

The state representative added that a "normal' child's development would be hindered if kept in an institution.

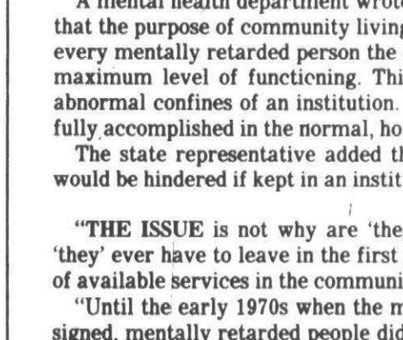
"THE ISSUE is not why are 'they' coming back but rather why did 'they' ever have to leave in the first place? They left because of the lack of available services in the community.

"Until the early 1970s when the mandatory special education act was signed, mentally retarded people didn't even have schools to attend. The institution was the only answer."

Retarded persons people "are more like us than not like us," the state has said.

"They have feelings, needs and goals, just like we do. Their potential for growth and learning is hindered and limited when confined to an institution — just like ours would be if we were 'put away.'

"The goal for the retarded is not to become normal or independent. The goal is to give the opportunity for growth and to secure the human rights of mentally retarded people to live in the community."



POGER

An inside look

Leonard Poger, an Observer & Eccentric editor, has written extensively about the controversies involving proposed homes for retarded persons in residential neighborhoods. Poger visited a group home for severely retarded residents (mental age: one to three) and spent 25 hours with them to get a better look at how they live in a group home setting. To get another view, Poger spent a similar period with a group of profoundly retarded male adults (mental age: six to 18 months) living in a typical institution — the Northville Residential Training Center.

Northville: Taking months to learn

IN MID-AFTERNOON, I was a "victim" of Danny, about 30, who has the build of a professional athlete. But he is also deaf and has mental illness problems.

During the afternoon workshop session, Danny rapped another resident with the back of his muscular arm. He was quickly removed.

When I returned to my dayroom, Danny got a second wind. He gave me a gentle whack and then tried to bite the arm of another resident.

Again he was taken away, probably to the "quiet room," a small room off the dayroom which has no furniture or equipment in it.

A short while later, a mental health department residents' rights advisor stopped by to find out how I was doing. I was told several days later that a required report on my "incident" was filed.

THE MEN TAKE showers in a group. Attendants helped them get soaped, rinsed, shampooed, dried and powdered.

I spent most of my evening hours watching a color television in my dayroom and chatting with attendants about their jobs.

The attendants want to do a good job for persons who need special help.

But they seemed frustrated by the announcements of layoffs of mental health employees.

They don't support the concept of group homes for the retarded, saying that most of the homes' employees are paid only the minimum wage or slightly more.

(A NRTC spokesman said residential care aides in state institutions are members of a union and start at $5.54 an hour in the lowest classification and can work up to $8.59 per hour in higher classifications and seniority levels.)

One attendant who formerly worked at Plymouth Center for Human Development, said that if the same equipment provided in group homes — like kitchen appliances — were installed in state facilities the residents would improve their skills just as fast.

J Building has a staff ratio of one attendant to eight residents.

There will be 26 employees in all levels of NRTC positions laid off this week.

But the administration said the staffing ratio will remain the same since 56 of the 65 J Building residents to be placed in group homes by Aug. 31.

At that time, the building will be closed.

Curtis Young, my daytime attendant, will have his layoff begin this week.

What does he plan to do?

"Return to Wayne State University and get my degree," he said.

A group home: For some, it's like having a new family

In other classrooms, physically handicapped persons in wheelchairs have a "model" apartment with beds and kitchen where they learn how to live independent of help.

TERRY BAKER, a workshop instructor from Dearborn Heights, works with the five Wentworth residents and about five others who have serious learning problems.

Sharon is an exception but she has a short attention span and is constantly out of her seat — but she gets the puzzles done quickly.

Gary is still learning how to handle sticks individually instead of grabbing a dozen and throwing them on the table.

The center, funded by the state, is headed by Jude McCutcheon.

Most of the Wentworth residents have a full schedule at the workshop: mornings and afternoons assigned for communications skills, grooming, self-care, and mobility, or the improved coordination of arms and legs.

WHILE THE RESIDENTS are in the workshop classes during the weekdays, Michael Brown, 25, of Garden City, handles the paper work needed to run the group home.

Brown is the business manager of Domel, Inc., the private, non-profit organization which manages the home, hires, and supervises its six employees.

He is the son of Dorothy Brown of Livonia, who is formed the group last year and is executive director.

The Browns and all employees have gone through the required 120 hours of training at Northville Residential Training Center in northwest Wayne County.

While supervisor Rose Merucci prepares the meatloaf dinner in late afternoon, the Browns and employee Janice Allen help the residents to play with puzzles and Legos (plastic building blocks) and other toys which improve coordination.

The Browns talked about the progress their residents made since moving from state institutions into the Wentworth home in late September.

Gary still needs the one-to-one employee attention but is progressing, the Browns said.

He is getting his own food and dressing himself.

Johnny was passive and quiet when he first moved into the group home last fall. He is now gaining language skills and once blurted out "hurts like the devil."

Sharon is the most advanced of the five residents described to us. Her vocabulary is improving, she sets and clears the table and she has longer attention spans. She previously was "very fidgety."

When Carol first arrived from Oakland, she had never spoken. Her first word, uttered in November, was "telephone." The Browns said her mother cried in learning that her daughter can say something.

Linda is usually lethargic but loves to accept new responsibilities, the Browns said. One major improvement since moving out of a state institution is that she is not suffering as many seizures as before.

There were 22 seizures in 1979 at Oakland, 11 in 1980 before moving into the Wentworth home. Since then, there have been only two, both minor ones at the workshop.

ALTHOUGH some group homes are the center of neighborhood controversy, the Browns have had a solid ally in Fred Keerle, a real estate man who lives on the same block.

Another good "friend" is St. Paul Presbyterian Church, on Five Mile near Inkster Road, which had 25 of its Girl Scouts drop in two months ago to decorate the home for Christmas, help the residents hang the decorations, and share in drinking punch.

The church's Sunday school staff later brought Christmas gifts and ice cream to enjoy.

AFTER DINNER, the residents bath and prepare for bed with their lights turned out before 9 p.m.

During the night shift, employee Cindy Stafford works by herself and handles the laundry, vacuuming and preparing of sandwiches for the next day's workshop lunches.

Property assessment law triggers protests

But one key man Bennett hasn't lined up is Rep. William Ryan, D-Detroit, chairman of the House Taxation Committee and one of the most influential members of the Michigan Legislature.

"Bill Ryan raised hell with the communities," Bennett reported glumly after a meeting in Lansing last week. The odds Ryan's Taxation Committee will report Bennett's bill out (of committee) are slim.

Meanwhile, said Bennett, there is a Feb. 15 deadline. That is when the books officially close on assessments for next Dec. 1's property tax bills. Any moratorium must be enacted by the legislature and signed by Gov. William G. Milliken by that deadline.

"If we can get it reported out of committee," said Bennett, "we can get it passed in the House and through the Senate.

"If Ryan sits on it, we'll ask for a discharge petition," he said. A discharge would force a bill out of committee for floor action. It is rarely used and, in Bennett's words, "very difficult" to accomplish.

SMITH WORKED a long time to get equalization of property by class.

Bennett charged, "Burns Stanley, Ford Motor Co.'s chief tax man, wrote it. Smith sponsored it. Dick Young (D-Dearborn Heights) and I led the fight against, but the governor and the Democratic leaders got the votes."

Bennett charges that property tax bills rising by $400 to $1,000 will backfire against the state. Senior citizens, he said, will gain state income tax exemptions, and state revenue will be drained off to pay back those property tax rebates.

Smith has been working six or eight years on his bill, Bennett said, and had been defeated until 1979. The bill was enacted that year with implementation delayed until 1981.

Bennett said that if he is successful in getting a three-year moratorium, his next step will be to seek repeal entirely of PA 114. "I don't believe his industrial assessment figures," he said of Smith's presentation.

SMITH SAID suburban Wayne County assessors "are worse than the Mafia" in assessing property and have done "a blatantly poor job. . . The assessor has been stealing from one class to give to another."

Ford Motor employees living in the Ann Arbor area have compared assessments with Ford people living in comparable houses in Dearborn. They found houses in Smith's suburban and rural Washtenaw County district assessed for $40,000 while the same size house in Dearborn was assessed at $4,000.

"Dearborn hasn't been reassessed in 45 years," Smith charged. "Washtenaw County has been studied several times by the State Tax Commission (which sets assessing policies), but Wayne County has never been studied by the State Tax Commission.

"The Westland assessor said business exists for the (tax) benefit of the homeowner. He shouldn't have passed his exam if he says things like that," said Smith, who was Ypsilanti Township supervisor (and assessor) before his election to the legislature.

If suburban Wayne County were assessed at the full 50 percent of market value, as required in the State Constitution, Smith said Wayne County government wouldn't be facing a $19 million deficit, and "not a single sheriff's deputy would need to be laid off."

Board squashes bid to oust appointed official

system design work in New Mexico during that time period.

"It was not of my choosing to be absent from those meetings," said Carman. "I apoligize for the fact that I had to go out of town."

Carman was appointed to the three-year term on the planning commission in December 1979. The planning commission submits recommendations to the Township Board on site plans, rezonings and other land use matters. Members of the seven-person commission receive compensation of $40 per meeting.

ACCORDING TO POOLE, state law allows a township supervisor to remove a citizen from government duties. Board approval is needed following a hearing on the case.

But board members refused to second a motion of Poole Tuesday night that would have removed Carman from the planning body.

Current township policy fails to stipulate attendance expectations for appointed officials at meetings.

Poole said he has instructed the planning department to draft a policy proposal on attendance. The policy will be submitted to the Township Board for consideration.

Several board members objected to Poole's proposal for dismissing an official on grounds that rules not yet established had been violated.

Others criticized an idea of Trustee Robert Padget — former chairman of the planning commission — to place Carman on some kind of "probation."

"I don't think Mr. Carman is guilty of anything except that his livelihood called him out of town," said Trustee Carol Bodenmiller.

"(Probation) implies a willful wrongdoing, which I don't think occurred in this case," added Trustee Stephen Larson.

"In Canton, we have a very small pool of talent that is willing and able to serve on commissions. Many of those people, like Thom (Carman), work for companies that make demands on their time."

Planning commissioner Dianne Neihengen pleaded with the board to establish rules that would inform commission members of the township's expectations.

"I'm uncomfortable, and I wonder what will happen next," she said.

POOLE BEGAN scrutinizing the attendance record of appointed officials shortly after taking office last Nov. 20.

"A couple of them was were unsatisfactory to me. One of them was Thom Carman," said the supervisor.

Poole said Carman has missed other planning commission meetings in addition to those missed last fall during his New Mexico stay.

But Carman maintained that he has missed only 11 of 81 planning commission meetings held during his tenure as an appointed official.

According to Carman, he informed the planning commission of his business trip to New Mexico before leaving for the Southwest on Oct. 27. He bagan receiving packets of planning commission material at his request following the November election and communicated with commission members regarding his feelings on agenda topics.

"Perhaps I should have requested a leave of absence," he said.

Carman submitted to the board communications sent by Poole regarding his absences at planning commission meetings. The first was dated Dec. 2.

"How the hell are ya?" said the letter sent by Poole to Carman in New Mexico.

"Let's kill some rumors and get something done.

"Because you have been out of state, you have missed several planning commission meetings. I hear you will be back — 1. next week, 2. April, 3. July, 4. never.

"How about sending me a note letting me know your intentions and-or suggestions, i.e., coming back and want to stay on, not coming back, etc.

"If you are not coming back or if it will be a long time, how about including a brief resignation.

"Enclosed is a self-addressed, stamped envelope."

Carman said he now is back in the Detroit area permanently.

'Pioneers' map plans to rout fears toward group homes for retarded

Community placement for the mentally-handicapped is a program just completing its first decade in Michigan.

In Canton Township, eight homes for mentally retarded adults and children have been licensed by the Michigan Department of Social Services, according to records of Clerk John Flodin.

Conceived with the idea that the group home provides a more normal life than a large institution, and mandated by legislation and court order, it has made the state tops in the nation in its programs for the retarded.

It also has caused widespread controversy as implementers seek to foster community understanding.

"We're involved in a pioneering effort," was how David Rosen, nationally known expert in the field of retardation put it nearly two years ago as he worked toward development of Alternative Intermediate Service (AIS) group homes.

"This is really the first time any state has made this extensive a commitment to its severely retarded.

"Our goal is to bring mentally retarded citizens to their maximum level of capability."

Michigan's Mental Health Code, passed in 1974, set the stage for the group homes that bring the retarded out of institutions. Even earlier, in 1971, establishment of the Macomb-Oakland Center began to put into practice the idea that the retarded could do well in decentralized locations.

And still earlier there was legislation mandating special education for retardeed persons up to age 25. That served to reduce the number of institutionalized because momementally-handicapped remained with their families.

KENNETH STOCKTON, community relations director for the state Department of Mental Health, said in 1970 the Michigan counted 11,775 developmentally disabled in instutions.

"Now that figure is less than 5,000," he stated.

Group homes started becoming reality through efforts of organizations like Community Opportunities centers, which established a home for 16 retardates in Plymouth in 1973 and opened one in Livonia last year. Private homes also were established in the last decade.

But the move toward had its big push when U.S. District Court Judge Charles Joiner, in an August, 1979 directive, ordered the Plymouth Center for Human Development to moved 500 of its 600 retarded residents into group homes by 1983.

In 1977 came laws regarding zoning regulations for group homes for the retarded. Essentially, this meant that homes for six or less mentally-handicapped persons could be established in places zoned for single homes. The laws also set forth regulations, inc'5Ing the requirement for 24-hour supervision and separation of residential facilities by at least 1,500 feet.

Three kinds of group homes can be found within these suburban communities.

The COC-operated variety need at least 16 residents to be cost efficient. They are built with money borrowed through the Michigan State Housing and Development Authority. Residents selected for such homes pay rent, using money they get through state allocations or through community or sheltered workshop jobs.

Vlcek named pizza chain VP

Heads firm

Thomas F. Rost, 36, of Canton Township, has been named president of the R. G. and G. R. Harris Funeral Home Inc. which has chapels in Livonia, Garden City, Detroit, and Mount Clemens. He succeeds Clarence R. Rost, who has retired. The new president was previously vice president and general manager, a post he has held since 1977. He is also manager of the Garden City funeral home.

Donald J. Vlcek Jr. of Byron, Plymouth, has been named vice president of Domino's Pizza Inc., of Ann Arbor.

Vlcek joined the company in 1978 as president of Domino's National Commissary Corp (DNC), a wholly owned subsidiary of Domino's Pizza, Inc.

DNC operates 14 commissaries throughout the country, supplying food and equipment supplies to a majority of Domino's pizza stores.

Before that, Vlcek had eight years experience in the meat and food industry and before joining Domino's was manager of Great Lakes Steak Company.

He graduated in 1972 with a B.A. degree in business administration from University of Michigan.

The pizza firm operates more than 400 stores in 29 states and had a total sales volume for 1980 of about $100 million.

BACK ABATEMENT

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce recently invited Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper to address a special board meeting on the topic of commercial redevelopment and tax abatement.

After completing an investigation of the commercial redevelopment tax abatement program, the board voted to support the concept of tax abatement with the understanding that each project will be dealt with on an individual basis.

Dear Dr. Forrest:
I've been told I need a root canal because of an abcessed tooth. I'm not in pain, can't I wait to have this done?
SAVA MOLAR

Dear Mr. Molar:
The root canal should be done before the pain and swelling become severe. When these symptoms are present, the dentist has difficulty anesthetizing the area around the tooth and the procedure can be very uncomfortable.
Root canals usually require 2 appointments. At the first appointment the nerve is removed and the canal is medicated. After about 1 week a second appointment is necessary to flush the canal and to fill and seal it to prevent the growth of bacteria which would further the infection.

School board's credibility is shrinking more

Editor:

The Plymouth-Canton school board and administration managed to establish a new low in credibility during the course of the Board of Education meeting held on Monday, Jan. 26, 1981.

Board President Carol Davis was very gracious at the start of the meeting with her welcome to the overflow crowd in attendance. She commended those present for their interest in the issues at hand. The board's arbitrary action in voting to implement ESY (Extended School Year) later in the meeting belied her earlier rhetoric to the effect the board was interested in citizen input.

Early in the meeting, Ms. Davis made it very clear that this particular meeting was not scheduled as a forum for the pros and cons of ESY and school boundary changes but that such a forum was tentatively scheduled for Feb. 16.

WITH THAT, the board did allow several people to present letters, petitions, comparable cost studies and points of view regarding some very legitimate negative factors relating to ESY. The board then promosed a written response to these points of view.

The response, unfortunately, came in the form of a unanimous vote for ESY later in the meeting. The particular plan that was adopted excludes the school attended by Ms. Davis' children.

The vote for ESY, in light of strong and valid objections by parents and teachers and considering the added financial impact, is irresponsible and reprehensible. Other and more viable alternatives are available and should have been researched in detail prior to making any decision.

The last paragraph in Monday's Plymouth Observer article on renewal of the millage tax states the need for more revenue next year — partially because of the added costs of implementing ESY. This school board and administration doesn't seem to recognize that you can only go to the well a limited number of times before the well goes dry.

THE BOARD in its capricious decision Monday night in effect told the voters that the board doesn't need to justify its actions and will do what it damn well pleases. That may have been acceptable in the past, but this board should not count on it being acceptable in the future.

In the near future, the board and administration will start bombarding the voters with one-sided propaganda and scare tactics about the vital services and educational programs that will be curtailed or eliminated if additional millage is not approved.

This board and administration not only has their collective hands deep in our pockets but are, in the process, making decisions detrimental to the quality of education in the community that will have an adverse effect on our children and the community for years to come.

Now is the time for us all to make our objections known and to follow through at board meetings and in the voting booth.

The people speak but government is deaf

Editor:

You've managed to do it again! Your facts and accusations are continuing to lead people down an untruthful road. I cite your Jan. 22 editorial (regarding farmland preservation.)

In a democracy when a vote is taken on an issue and the public speaks, that decision is accepted by the people and the government. In Canton, the people have spoken, but the government refuses to listen.

The immediate past administration (Culbert) refused to listen to the people's voice. This is probably why most of them were not re-elected. The Stein administration had the guts to put the issue on the ballot, but the people rejected his administration at the polls on the next election. The Greenstein administration, who started the whole idea, were defeated, defeated and defeated again at the polls.

Let's get a few of the facts straight. You wrote that a "1978 four-mill request was specifically designed for voter defeat by an administration opposed to the program."

1. "the four-mill request" was actually an up to four mills — quite a difference. The people decided that not even .01 percent of a mill was desired.

2. "specifically designed for voter defeat." I believe the records will show that many people had input on the language of the ballot. Some of these people were even on the committee for farmland preservation at the time.

3. "by an administration opposed to the program." Nowhere do I recall ever seeing Township Board action opposing the farmland issue in the form of a motion or resolution. So, therefore, this is only your opinion and your effort to change the public's mind about the issue.

4. When the zoning ordinance was passed in 1979, a condition that the planning commission insisted on was to incorporate a deadline that something must be done about the farmland preservation issue by May 1981. This was compromise that allowed the text to be approved after many years of delays.

Your comment, "the Township Board deserves credit for addressing the problems surrounding the program" further leads the public that they are wise and have courage, when in fact it was mandated in the zoning text. You have done these people an injustice by not citing the mandate that they must live with until a decision is reached.

So let us further explore the mandate. The zoning text cites, "that the Township shall deliver to the electorate a millage issue." Time is running out on the mandate and a decision to either comply or rescind the mandate has still to be decided. More money will be spent on this issue, that probably has exceeded $100,000 already to Canton taxpayers.

Saving farmland and preserving open spaces is like motherhood and apple pie. Who could be against it? The question still remains, who will pay for the dream? A colleague of mine has said it before, "This is too small of a governmental unit to foot the bill for the farmland preservation issue." If we can't or won't pay for the dream, then let's get on with other ways to cut taxes.

Your newspaper continues to fuel the farmland preservation issue.

I am sure glad you "back" those who believe it's still an issue. I only hope that you can come up with the millions of dollars to pay for the farms.

FRANK A. McMURRAY,
Canton

Mental health center calls for volunteers

To the editor:

Your community mental health center desperately needs assistance due to severe budget problems and resulting drastic reduction in client service. Volunteers are needed immediately for committee work, the board of directors and fund-raising activities.

The people who are being turned away may include members of your family, neighbors and friends. These people need assistance but are being refused service with no place else to go.

The staff and board of directors of Suburban West Community Center would appreciate any help you can give to bring back the lost service to the needy people in your community. We need you. Please call Marjorie Levine or Dr. Tom Herzberg at 937-9500 or 981-2665.

Suburban West Community Center, located at 11677 Beech Daly Road, Redford Township, provides counseling and special mental health programs to adult residents of Redford Township, Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Canton and the northwest side of Detroit (area bounded by Telegraph, Southfield, Warren and Fenkell).

A substantial budget cutback on top of an enormous deficit related to the moving into a more centrally located building to make it easier for clients to visit combined to produce a $220,000 shortfall for the 1980-81 fiscal year.

The only immediate solution to balance the budget was to lay off five full-time staff and three part-time contractual workers with the remaining 13 staff all being cut to four-fifths time. As a result, service has been drastically curtailed.

Approximately 300 clients will no longer be provided needed assistance with their emotional problems. Only top priority clients — those released from the hospital in the past year and persons in crisis or considered to be in danger of returning to the hospital — will be eligible for service unless the agency receives more funding.

Tom Herzberg, director,
Suburban West Community Center

BEFORE YOU OPEN AN INTEREST-EARNING CHECKING ACCOUNT...

COUNT TO TEN.

If you think all interest-earning checking accounts are the same, you haven't been reading the fine print. Just one example. Major financial institutions in this area require minimum balances ranging from $500 to $2000 for such an account, in order to avoid monthly service charges. First Federal Savings of Detroit requires only $300.

So if you're about to open an interest-earning checking account, count the advantages you get at First Federal. You may get some of them elsewhere. But only at First Federal do you get all ten. Count 'em.

1. Your First Federal interest-earning checking account earns 5¼% annual interest.

2. First Federal compounds this interest continuously and pays it monthly, providing an effective annual yield of 5.467%.

3. There is no monthly service charge as long as you maintain a minimum balance of just $300.

4. First Federal offers overdraft protection. (You must apply for this benefit separately.)

5. First Federal gives you your first 50 personalized checks free. No strings attached.

6. First Federal returns your cancelled checks with each monthly statement. Free.

7. First Federal has over 60 offices conveniently located near where you live, work or shop. You can transact your First Federal business at any one of them.

8. First Federal provides fifteen 24-hour Night Owl Windows (automatic teller machines).

9. First Federal's Prestige* Emergency Cash feature entitles you to nationwide, out-of-town emergency cash withdrawals from your interest-earning checking account.

10. If you're at least 62 years old and sign up for direct deposit of your Social Security or other retirement benefit, you can have an interest-earning checking account at First Federal free of monthly service charges and with no minimum balance requirement.

Ten advantages that explain why thousands upon thousands have already opened their interest-earning checking accounts at First Federal. Join them. Just drop in at any First Federal office, and one of our friendly staff will help you open your account almost before you can count to ten. You'll find it a very interesting experience and one more reason to make First Federal your Center for Family Financial Matters.

Ice fishing derby is held

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors writer

Sunday's damp snow, falling barometer and blustery drizzle may have hurt bluegill fishing during the first annual Newburgh Lake Ice Fishing Tournament.

But young Mike Sayyae of Redford Township was after northern pike. His 30-inch, 7-pound lunker was the largest pike of the day, the largest fish of the tournament, and the largest fish caught by an angler under the age of 17.

Sayyae also landed a 21½-inch, 3-pound pike.

"We caught smelt last spring, froze them and used them for bait," he said between shivers, as a damp wind blew across the Middle Rouge impoundment in southwestern Livonia.

The smelt were placed on a Swedish hook run through the dorsal fin. The big northern took the bait in three feet of water and was soon on the ice. In warm weather, a pike that size would have taken several minutes to boat.

The smaller pike struck about 8:30 a.m. and the monster at 11:30.

Mike's father, Lee Sayyae of Westland, like most of Newburgh's frequenters, has done most of his fishing there in the last two years, since state pollution control, planting and conservation efforts really began to pay off.

MIKE'S PIKE won him a Swedish auger, a three-burner propane stove, a pogo stick and a set of lures in the contest sponsored jointly by the Livonia Kiwanis Club and Western Wayne County Conservation Association of Plymouth Township.

Altogether, 237 anglers — fishing as individuals and as families — signed up, according to co-chairmen John Nichols and Hank Chruscial.

Top family prize went to Glen Matulevich and sons Glen Jr., 10, and John, 8, of Canton Township. Their story, which appeared in the Outdoors column early in January, did much spur ice fishing interest on Newburgh Lake.

Their heaviest stringer by a family won them an ice fishing chest and equipment. Unfortunately, the total weight can't be reported because, after the tabulations were made and the prizes awarded, the rain-soaked records crumbled.

"Next year we'll have them write on cardboard so it won't run," said Nichols, who is quite certain there will be a next year for the derby.

It's fair to say, however, that panfish were running pretty tiny compared to other times this season.

Heaviest stringer caught by one person belonged to Tom Mee of Livonia. His prize fish was a 26-inch, 4-pound northern pike which had the misfortune to dine on a live shiner for noon lunch.

HELPING award prizes was a one-time expert angler who later turned to politics — state Rep. Sylvia Skrel of Livonia. First-place winners by category and their prizes were:

Bluegill — Kelly Neuman of Livonia, a two-burner lantern.

Sunfish — Mark D. Merrill of Livonia, an ultra-light rod and reel.

Calico bass (crappie) — Phillip G. Ruff of Livonia, single-mantle lantern.

Largest fish by a female angler over age 17 — Laurane Forster of Plymouth, 20 visits to a suntan salon.

Largest fish by a female angler under age 17 — Kristen Soelz of Livonia, red, reel and set of lures.

Oldest female angler — Lorine Goebel, 68, of Plymouth.

The price tag for selfishness is now visible

The chickens have finally come home to roost.

For several years, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has had problems finding sufficient classroom space for its rising enrollment.

And for the past four or five years, the school board has tried unsuccessfully to address those problems with a series of bond issues.

Some were full-scale proposals involving construction of new buildings. Others were modest — requests for funds to buy portable classrooms and air conditioning units to expand year-round school use.

But voters have consistently denied bond requests in this district — in spite of the fact that enrollment was rising an average of 700 students each year and eventually space would run out. (The last bond issue to be approved was in 1974.)

Each bond election showed a clear pattern year after year. Canton residents voted in favor of bond issues while Plymouth residents consistently voted against spending any money for additional classroom space.

The reason: Most growth was in Canton, and most of the disruption resulting from the defeat of bond issues affected Canton children and Canton families. Plymouth voters, unaffected, continued to vote "no" on bond issues.

A prevailing attitude was that Plymouth taxpayers shouldn't be asked to finance new schools for Canton children.

That was a selfish attitude because for many years residents of Canton paid taxes to the school district to build new schools for Plymouth residents.

But that selfishness persisted, and now the chickens have come home to roost.

IT IS IRONIC that some of the "concerned parents" in Plymouth are urging the school board to drop its suggestions of expanding Extended School Year (ESY) to two schools within the boundaries of Plymouth.

It is ironic because the parents suggest as an alternative the use of portable classrooms. And when the board asked for portables in the last bond issue, Plymouth parents voted against that expenditure — thinking the portables would be used by Canton children.

The reason why the school board is forced to expand ESY to schools in Plymouth is because the defeat of bond issues has eliminated many other options to year-round school. With no money for physical space, the district can do little except turn to ESY (which expands a building's capacity by one-third).

In recent weeks, parents have addressed the school board about the hardships ESY will cause on family life.

The arguments are worthwhile and valid. But they are identical to the arguments made two and three years ago by Canton parents. The arguments have no greater merit today because they happen to be made by Plymouth parents.

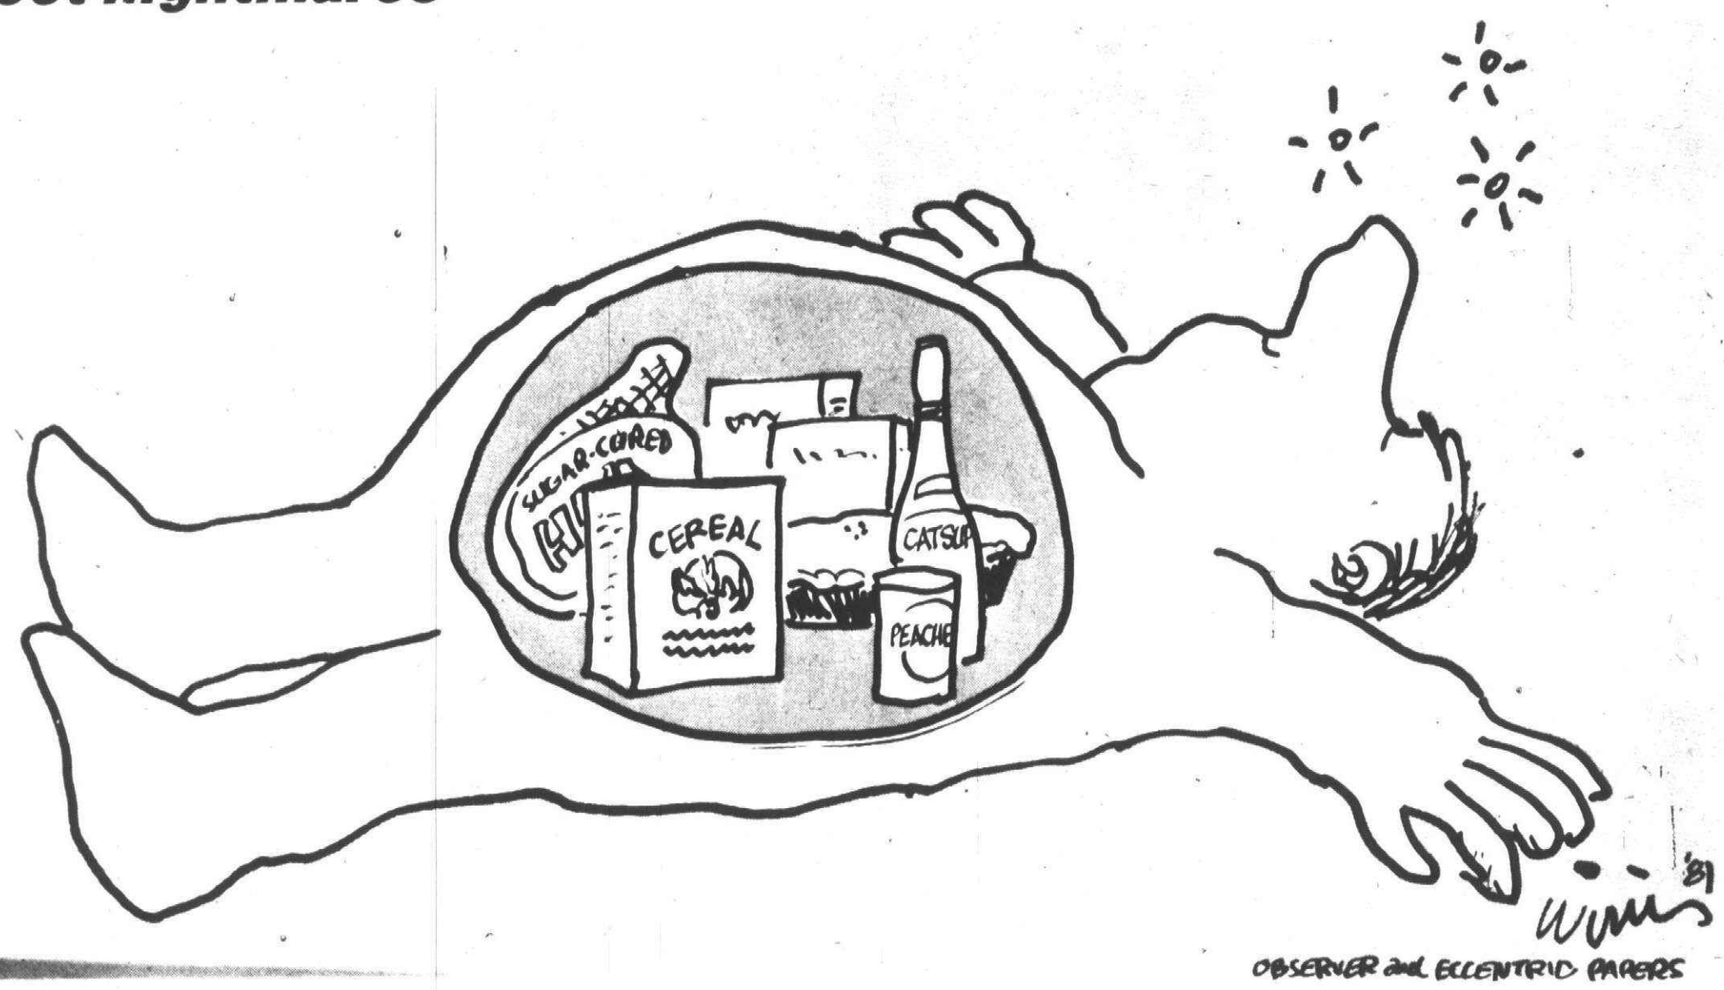
The concerns should be listened to by the school board. But Plymouth parents speaking to the board should be aware that their voices are nothing more than echoes of the past.

The lesson is that the Plymouth-Canton school district is a single community and school district. We cannot afford to be selfish and let municipal boundaries interfere with learning in the classrooms.

But we chose the luxury of selfishness, and now are beginning to feel the impact. Plymouth is not just an island surrounded by Canton. Plymouth and Canton are one educational community. What happens in one area should be of concern in the other.

We are each other's keeper.

Sweet nightmares



Mmmm, sugar, sugar, sugar, sugar, sugar

Tim Richard

John Smith thought of himself as an average American, and indeed he probably is.

One day at breakfast, he poured himself a bowl of cereal and laced it with sugar.

Lunch was a hot dog, grabbed on the run. He poured on catsup and sugar.

His main course at dinner was a pot pie, to which he added sugar.

Not enough vegetables, he figured to himself, so he opened a can of peas, heated them and poured on sugar.

Before going to bed, he had a snack of crackers and cheese. On the cracker he added a dash of sugar.

NEXT DAY John stopped at friend Al's house for lunch. They had a small pizza, purchased at the grocery store and quickly heated in the oven. John laced his with sugar.

For dinner John decided on fresh fish. He liked them rolled in bread crumbs and fried. Into the bread crumbs he poured some sugar. To enhance the flavor of the fish, at the table he added tartar sauce and sugar.

The third day he decided on soup at lunch. He opened an envelope of spring vegetable, emptied it into a cup, poured in sugar and added boiling water.

"Gotta have something more substantial than that," he said to himself and made a sandwich. On the lunchmeat he sprinkled sugar.

One of his favorite vegetables at dinner is creamed corn. He warmed a can and added sugar. He was also having barbecued ribs that night, so he spread the sauce on the meat and sprinkled on a heavy dose of sugar.

"GOTTA WATCH my weight," he said to himself next morning as he looked sideways in the mirror.

"I'll have just a salad for lunch," he thought. To liven the flavor, he added Russian dressing and a giant dollop of sugar.

"M-m-m-m, chicken soup," he said that evening, looking on the pantry shelf for a can. He poured the soup into a saucepan, added an equal amount of water, sprinkled on some sugar and warmed it to boiling.

Beef was the main course. John liked to give the beef some zip by dipping it into a little Old Style Sauce. He spooned some sauce onto his plate and added sugar.

AT THIS POINT, you no doubt think John Smith not only has a sweet tooth but is a wee bit daft.

You would be wrong. John Smith is an average American.

But in telling you about about four days in his life, I altered the details a trifle. John didn't really add all that sugar to his food.

The manufacturers added it. The reasoning is that consumer taste panels liked the recipes with sugar in them. It's not recorded whether the manufacturers told the taste panels which recipes were laced with sugar.

"Woof," said John's beagle Sherlock. John took out a couple of prepared burger-like cakes of dog-food wrapped in a cellophane envelope. He cut open the cellophane and broke the doggie burgers into Sherlock's bowl.

And then do you know what John Smith did before giving Sherlock his bowl? You're absolutely right. He added sugar.

Does anyone care to climb the mountain?

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

Several years ago, while attending a convention in the nation's capital, The Stroller had the good fortune to hear Arch Booth, then the president of the National Chamber Commerce, deliver a speech in which he emphasized that what America needed most was men to climb the mountains.

It was a stirring address. He pointed out that while the country faced many problems, some of them difficult to solve, solutions could be found if we had people with the courage and ability to climb the mountains.

The Stroller never forgot the various points Booth made and oftimes they come back to him as he listens to our national leaders tell of the mountainous problems this generation is facing and the need for American ingenuity to solve them.

ONE OF THE MOST difficult is the sickness of the automobile industry. There was a time when the United States ruled the world in transportation. It was right here in Detroit that Henry Ford started the move that put the world on wheels .

But now the industrious Japanese have taken over as the leading producer of autos and we are still trying to come out with cars that will bring back the leadership.

But how can it be done?

How can America build cars cheap enough to give the imports a battle if it must still pay the high wages of the men on the lines?

It is plain that something has got to give and what it will be—and when—means that we need people who will climb the mountain.

It is the same with energy. We have been going merrily along as though there never would be and end to the flow of oil. We paid little attention to George Romney some years ago when he sounded the warning that we had to get rid of the "gas guzzlers". Folks just smiled and went along building bigger and flashier cars than ever with little thought of the amount of gasoline needed to keep them going.

Now the time has come when we must pay the piper. And he can be paid only if we can find the men to climb this mountain.

WHEN AMERICA was riding high, little attention was paid to preparing for the future. We allowed the railroads, especially the passenger service, to virtually fade away. The old trolley car went the same route. We were so anxious to get rid of them that the time was not taken to remove the tracks from the streets of the cities along the line.

The trend was to have every family be the proud owner of an automobile. First there was one car, then it wasn't too long until we became two-car families and thee-car families. There was no thought of the gasoline supply—it could go on forever.

Now we are faced with that problem. And just how complex it is was revealed by President Reagan in his first news conference.

He took the lid off price control which means the cost of gasoline will rise and he hopes the demand will lessen. With less driving there will be a dip in the need for automobiles and the auto industry may linger in its sick state.

That is, unless as Arch Booth said long ago we can find the men to climb the mountains.

Group homes for retarded merit support

"Why can't those retarded be kept in a state institution where they will be safe and under professional care?"

"My property values will drop if there is a group home for the retarded on my street."

"What about the safety of my daughter?"

"The're putting a business operation in a residential zone."

Like a telephone recording device, the opponents of neighborhood group homes for the retarded make up the same arguments.

Most communities have been touched by the ongoing effort of the state Mental Health Department to place persons not severely retarded in the kind of neighborhood settings that bring the rest of us happiness.

We can answer the tired arguments with logic and with first-hand experience.

LOGICALLY, GROUP homes provide a specific benefit for retarded persons.

The home-like family setting allows a retarded person a chance to grow more as a human being than would be possible in a state institution.

Community living gives them every chance to progress to their maximum potential — regardless of what it may be. It's the American way.

That's the humanitarian argument.

A state Mental Health Department employee made an insightful observation last year: Retarded persons "are more like us than not like us. They have feelings, needs and goals, just like we do. Their potential for growth and learning is hindered and limited when confined to an institution — just like ours would be if we were 'put away.'

"The goal is not to become normal or independent. The goal is to give the opportunity for growth and to secure the human rights of mentally retarded people to live in the community."

IF TAX MONEY is your chief worry, consider that group homes' cost per resident is usually about 40 percent less than the cost of maintaing a resident in a state institution.

Before 1974 when the state mandatory special education act became law, retarded persons over 18 didn't have schools to attend. State institutions were the only answer.

Most retarded persons need some supervision outside a state institution. A group home provides supervision in addition to an improved chance of learning.

In group homes, residents can take advantage of the little things others take for granted: helping set the table for meals, making their beds, dressing themselves.

WE HAVE FIRST-HAND experience with both institutional living and neighborhood group homes.

Last month, an editor from Observer & Eccentric Newspapers spent 25 hours — eating, sleeping and therapy time — with 33 men in a state institution.

Then he spent a similar period with six retarded persons in a group home.

The differences in achievement were obviously in favor of the group home.

We don't contend all state institutions should be closed.

But we did prove to our own eyes that the state Mental Health Department's direction of humanizing the environment for retarded persons is positive and sound.

Did you know that when George Booth purchased the first 100 acres of his Cranbrook property in 1901, the sellers — Samuel Alexander and his wife Mesaih — expected Booth would carry out a program of fish culture? Instead, Booth started dairy activities. Churning butter replaced raising bass.

Why 'isometric' work forbidden heart patient

fitness

Barry Franklin

Question: I am 42 years old and have recently had a heart attack. My doctor is strongly against my returning to my former job as a furniture mover. He says the heavy lifting and associated "isometric exercie" is particularly hazardous for me.

What is isometric exercise and why is it so dangerous?

Is there anything I can do to reduce the stress associatied with this form of exertion?

R.T., Livonia

Isometric or static efforts involve muscle contraction with little or no movement. Examples: tensing one muscle group aginst another, or straining to push or lift a heavy object.

In contrast to rhythmic exericse, isometrics cause a sudden reflex rise in blood pressure, creating a tremendous pressure load on the heart. Consequently, most doctors caution their carciac patient to refrain from isometric efforts during occuaptional and leisure-time activities.

ISOMETRIC exertion is deceptive because the magnitude of cardiovascular stress is often underestimated. Two reasons are frequently given.

First, the excessive deamnds on the heart are dangerously camoflaged by the low metabolic requirements. Consequently, the usual warning signs of overexertion (e.g., rapid pulse, sweating and breathlessness) are absent.

Second, the magnitude of cardiovascular stress during static efforts may be unrelated to the weight of the load. The stress is apparently dependent on the weight of the load lifted relative to the maximal strength of the muscles used.

For example, lifting light loads with small weak muscle groups will result in approximately the same degree of cardiovascular stress as lifting larger loads with larger muscle groups!

THE HAZARDS of isometric exertion, particularly in persons with heart disease, are well documented.

President Eisenhower is said to have sustained a heart attack while attempting to open a stuck window, a task which involves a sustained isometric contraction.

There have been numerous reports of heart attack and sudden death occurring during snow shoveling and water skiing, two activites which incorporate intense forms of isometrics.

Other activities that involve a substantial isometric component include the carrying of heavy luggage or weights, certain forms of carpentry, and pushing against immovable objects (e.g. a car stuck in a snow bank).

Various mechanical assist and labor-saving devices are helpful in reducing the degree of isometric efforts in daily living. These include shoulder straps for carrying objects, and dollies or platform wheels for moving heavy loads.

The writer is co-director of cardiac rehabilitation at Sinai Hospital and on the faculty of Wayne State University. Send questions in care of this newspaper.

Many heart attacks and sudden deaths occur during intense isometric exercise — where a sudden reflex raises the blood pressure and puts a tremendous load on the heart.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

THE CITY OF Plymouth and Plymouth Township signed the agreement Monday evening, and the city's police department now is responsible for law and order in the township. Police Chief Tim Ford was responsible for the first official departmental act of the new regime.

It occurred on township soil, and in police vernacular could be referred to as "recovery of property."

Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs wore her boots and carried her shoes into Township Hall. Problem was, she dropped one of the shoes in the parking lot. Following the the signing of the agreement, Chief Ford spotted the lost shoe in the lot and returned it to its owner.

MORE THAN 900 persons turned out Monday evening to hear Dr. Lendon Smith, pediatrician and television personality, at Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

by ELLIE GRAHAM

The Canton Newcomers Club and the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities had co-sponsored his appearance. There had been some concern about whether or not they could swing it and they had estimated 600 paying guests as their break-even point.

In spite of the weather, the turnout was unexpectedly good. Each sponsoring organization should realize more than $1,000 in profits after expenses. Carol Bollman said all the books she had brought along were autographed by Dr. Smith and sold.

The audience loved his talk and he responded to more than 50 written questions as well as some from the floor. Carol, who had been chauffering Dr. Smith around all day from one radio or television appearance to another, invited him to her Canton home for dinner.

"He was very down to earth," said Carol. When her husband, Bill, asked if he had used his methods on his own five children, the doctor replied, "No, we didn't know enough then."

Newest and largest

Canton's new Business and Professional Women's Club received its charter Saturday evening and state and national BPW officers were on hand for the occasion. Marlene Danol (left), president of the Michigan Federation of BPW; Teresa Solak, president of the Canton club; Frances Gambina, president of Region 9 BPW; and Janet Richwine, president of Plymouth BPW, the sponsoring club, were among the 175 persons at the gala dinner in the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Phyllis Harrison, who will be installed as national BPW president in July, attended as well as officers from Sault Ste. Marie, Windsor, Traverse City, Houghton, Akron, Flint, Lansing and the metropolitan area. With 33 charter members, the Canton club is the largest newly organized group in BPW history. Murder trial drama opens in courtroom

The trial of Karen Andre, who has been charged with the murder of a Swedish financial manipulator, will open Friday evening in the courtroom of 35th District Court, Plymouth City Hall.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild is adding to the authenticity of the production of Ayn Rand's melodrama, "Night of January 16th" by staging the play in the courtroom. The play opened in 1935 in New York and has remained a favorite of small theatrical groups all over the world.

It weaves an intricate plot that keeps the audience in constant suspense. The author also wrote international best sellers "The Fountainhead" and "Atlas Shrugged."

The outcome of the trial also is a mystery. At each performance, 12 members of the audience will be serve on the jury. This jury not only tries the case on stage, but determines the play's ending by its verdict. Until the jury returns after the last intermission, neither the cast nor the audience will know the verdict.

Cards will be available at the door for members of the audience to denote whether they would be willing to serve on the jury.

"NIGHT OF January 16th" will be presented at 8 p.m. Feb. 6, 7, 13, 14, 20 and 21 and 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15.

Admission will be $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for senior citizens and persons under 18. Group rates are available. Because of the size of the courtroom, the audience will be limited to 100 persons for each performance.

To assure seating on dates desired, tickets may be ordered by mailing check to: PTG, P.O. Box 451, Plymouth 48170, or calling Karen Groves, 420-2161, or Robin Galick, 261-2875.

Robin Galick of Livonia is producing the show. She serves on the PTG board of directors as vice president and is one of the guild's most active and dedicated members.

She produced "The Sunshine Boys," "Play It Again, Sam" and "Love Rides the Rails." She has served behind the scenes in every aspect of production and has chaired many committees.

DIRECTOR CLEMIE Cyburt of Canton Township has been involved with PTG for 14 years and is a lifetime member. She is recording secretary for the board and has been president and vice president.

She has produced five plays for the guild and has many acting credits. Mrs. Cyburt will be appearing in "Agatha Christie Made Me Do It" for Schoolcraft College in March. She studies speech at Schoolcraft and works in the library at Pioneer Middle School.

David Ide is assistant director and stage manager for the melodrama. He is chairman of the guild's script committee and has worked in almost every aspect of theater from set construction, lighting and crew to directing and acting on stage.

He was Schroeder in the PTG production of the musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Ide received the drama key for his work in theater at Plymouth Salem High School and was president of the International Thespian Society. He lives in Canton, works as a foreman at Chelsey Industries and works part-time as a model.

MEMBERS OF the cast come from all walks of life and varied experience in theater.

Dan Murray, as District Attorney Flint, will forcibly point the finger of guilt at the accused. He earned his bachelor of arts degree in advertising at Michigan State University and works for an advertising agency in Dearborn.

He has acted professionally with the Greenfield Village Players and on radio and television commercials. His first appearance with PTG was as Ben Silverman in "The Sunshine Boys."

Linda Pavey of Canton Township has the role of Karen Andre, the bold, impassioned woman accused of the murder. She graduated from Wayne State University in 1975 and is a member of the WSU Board of Directors.

Her previous theatrical credits include "Publicity Mad," "You Can't Take It With You" and "The Man of LaMancha." She is a pharmaceutical representative for Parke-Davis & Co. and her hobbies include playing the bagpipes and Scottish dancing.

DAVE DIXON of Canton is Defense Attorney Stevens, in whose hands lies the fate of the defendant. PTG audiences will remember Dixon as Dirk Sneath in "Love Rides the Rails."

He came to Canton from Jackson, where he appeared with the Rosier Players Touring Tent Show. Members of his family are singers and actors and have been active in the Gilbert and Sullivan Society of Jackson.

He is a guitar player and songwriter and his goal in life is to have his music published. His last appearance for PTG was in "Godspell."

The list of witnesses for the prosecution includes the murdered man's wife, Nancy Lee Faulkner, played by Patricia Troth; her banker father, John Whitfield, played by Donald Starr; Homer Fleet, a private detective, played by Jim Crawford; Magda Svenson, the Swedish maid, played by Maggie Hineman; Bookkeeper Sigurd Jungquist, by David Higginbotham; and dancer Roberta, by Karen Wendt.

PATTI TROTH lives in Northville. A longtime member of the guild, she has many acting credits and has worked as producer and backstage. She is a special education teacher in Inkster.

Donald Starr is making his stage debut in this drama. He is a management consultant with George Odiorne Associates and a research associate with the University of Michigan. His work takes him around the world.

He and his wife live in Plymouth and they have four grown children. His hobbies are photography and music.

ADINA RICE hosted members of Alpha Delta Kappa Monday evening at her Penniman Avenue home. Barbara Lockwood co-hosted the gathering of the local chapter of the international teachers sorority.

Special guests were foreign exchange students who are studying in the area. They were Carlos Cobiella of the Canary Islands, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School; Eva Sand of Sweden, a junior at Salem; Midori Yoshii of Japan, a senior at Salem; and Ilka Spiegeler and Kathraina Seiler, both from Hamburg, Germany, and both seniors at Plymouth Canton.

The students shared pictures, slides and postcards of their countries and compared American public education with that of their homelands.

All agreed that, generally speaking, American standards were lower. But they all said they liked the choices available to American students.

Joan Davis, chapter president, chaired the business meeting. Plans are being made for their annual fashion show and luncheon which will be March 21.

ANGELYN PROVOST of Erik Pass in Plymouth Township will make her stage debut next week. She will play the role of "The Woman at the Church" in the Oakland University Student Enterprise Theatre production of "The Mandrake."

The drama will open Feb. 12 in the Studio Theatre in Varner Hall at OU in Rochester.

JACK DORAN and Lonny Leach, both of Plymouth, have been working with the Theater Guild of Livonia Redford. They are members of the construction crew preparing sets for the production of "Tribute," which is scheduled to open in mid-February and run for three weeks in the theater on Beech Daly Road.

A home of its own has long been the dream of the Plymouth Theatre Guild. Maybe, some day.

THE COMMUNITY Arts Council has announced the date of its the sixth birthday sale in the art rental gallery. Mark the date; it will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. March 25 on the second level of the Dunning Hough Library.

Aproximately 40 original paintings and reproductions will be for sale at "very special prices." More about this later.

Janet Brass as Judge Heath and Dave Dixon as defense attorney Stevens discussed their roles during a break in rehearsal.

Mainstreaming to be explored

The pros and cons of mainstreaming will be discussed at a two-day conference Feb. 12 and 13 in the Plymouth Hilton Inn, 14707 Northville road, Plymouth.

Mainstreaming is the term used to describe the mingling in the mainstream of society of those with many kinds of handicaps: mental or physical retardation, hearing and vision impairment, emotional problems and many others.

"We hope to educate the public about mainstreaming," said Shirley Ritter, physical education director at the Livonia Family Y, one of 11 agencies collaborating on the conference.

"We wanted to bring agencies together who work with handicapped youngsters, people with emotional or physical problems, learning disabilities, whatever," explained Mrs. Ritter, a member of the committee planning the event. "Together we should be able to find out what our local resources are. It will be good for the representatives of these groups to interact."

She also hopes that parents of children with these problems will participate as well as members of the general public.

Cost of the two-day conference is $50, which includes materials and meals. College students may listen to the talks at $2.50 a day. Those wishing to attend may contact Mrs. Ritter at the Y at 261-2161.

Among those attending the seminar will be Grace Reynolds, director of Mainstreaming Activities for Youth (Project MAY), a federally funded program. The keynote speaker will be Julianne Stein, who is on the Project MAY staff.

State Rep. Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia, whose office has prepared a resource bulletin called "The Handicapper," will be another speaker.

An adaptive aquatic demonstration will be held in the Plymouth Inn pool. A puppet show called "Kids on the Block" coordinated by Lois Bass, social worker in the Plymouth-Canton school district, will also be on the program. Working with her as puppeteers will be a number of parents, several of whom have handicapped children.

Several parents who are members of the Association for Retarded Citizens/Northwest Communities will offer a parents' view. An evening period will be devoted to talks by handicapped persons describing their feelings and the problems they face.

Organizations helping to plan the conference include, in addition to the Livonia Family Y, the Association for Retarded Citizens/Northwest Communities, the Livonia school district, Plymouth Center for Human Development, Jewish Community Center and the metropolitan Detroit offices of the YWCA and YMCA.

Other sponsors are the American Red Cross, Camp Fire Inc., High Point Center and Mercy Center.

Snowmobile marathon nets $42,000

Jayne Doyle completed the 100-mile snowmobile marathon in Barrie, Ontario and said she'd do it again. The Plymouth Canton High School senior represented the state as Junior Civitan Governor of the Michigan District.

Jayne Doyle represented Michigan in the 100-mile snowmobile marathon at Barrie, Ontario.

The eight-hour snowmobile event took the 11 machines through some of the most scenic areas around Barrie. Each rider was sponsored for each mile that was completed and a total of more than $42,000 was raised by the Junior Civitans from the United States who competed.

Miss Doyle said her sponsors had pledged close to $1,500. All the money raised will go toward the Junior Civitan/Association for Retarded Citizens prevention campaign.

THE SNO-DO 100 was Jan. 25. Contestants were given three hours of practice Saturday morning.

Miss Doyle said the machines were provided by local snowmobile dealers. All were new 1981 models, except one, and there was a variety of makes. All completed the 100-mile marathon without breakdown.

"One stopped, but it was just the belt. It was put back on and they took off. The Barrie police escorted us, one in front and one in back — in snowmobiles."

She said the day was a beautiful — sunny and mild. She was well-dressed for the trip. "My feet started to sweat so I took off one pair of socks. There is danger of freezing when you perspire."

She said the countryside was beautiful with five or six feet of snow. Their route was laid out beside traveled roads and through woods and over fields. After four hours, there was a food stop.

"They had hot chili, and it was really hot, beef stew, sweet rolls and beverage. But I wasn't really hungry. There were two drivers in each snowmobile and we took it easy for about the first four hours. We went faster the last four. They measure distance in kilometers so I don't know exactly how fast we were going in miles."

The Junior Civitans have participated in the Great Canadian Challenge Sno-Do 100 for six years. During that time they have raised more than $250,000 for the campaign to prevent mental retardation. According to Jayne Doyle, it was an exciting way to raise money.

"I was happy just to sit on the bus ride home. I was exhausted."

Ma Bell hikes rates

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. is seeking state Public Service Commission (PSC) approval of a new charging method for local business calls.

Bell has proposed a charge of 6.8 cents for calls that last less than five minutes, with an added charge of 1.2 cents for each additional minute. Local business calls are now 7.3 cents each, regardless of length.

The new charging plan, which would not effect residence customers, was filed with the PSC last month. A commission spokesman said public hearings may be held in April.

Bell said the new charging method would not increase the company's total revenues. Bell was granted an inflation-based rate increase of 8 percent last fall and is expected to seek another increase of at least 7.5 percent this year, the PSC spokesman said.

The PSC has granted Bell three inflation-based "rate reopeners," with an option to seek a fourth. This year's increase would be the second of the three.

Most of its business customers would benefit from the new charging method, according to a Bell statement, which says 85 percent of all local business calls last less than five minutes. The average local business call lasts about three minutes, according to Bell.

The company estimates 70 percent of the businesses affected by the new method would save money, 10 percent would break even, and 20 percent would pay more.

The Bell plan also includes a 50 percent discount for local business calls made anytime on a Saturday, before 5 p.m. Sundays and after 11 p.m. daily.

Park-and-ride lot opens in township

A new park-and-ride lot for weekday downtown Detroit travelers has opened in Plymouth Township at Sheldon and Ann Arbor roads.

Sponsored by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA), the lot is in the parking area of the Church of Christ property.

SEMTA buses traveling to Detroit will stop there at 6:24 a.m., 6:49 a.m. and 7:19 a.m. each weekday. The fare for a one-hour ride stopping at the Renaissance Center on Jefferson Avenue is $1.60.

Buses will return to the church site at 4:35 p.m., 4:55 p.m., 5:15 p.m. and 5:45 p.m.

During the morning hours, downtown-bound buses will make three stops enroute to Detroit. Buses will stop at the intersections of Plymouth and Woodring roads, Plymouth and Middlebelt roads and West Chicago and Telegraph roads.

Although the church does not receive a direct payment for the use of the lot by SEMTA, the authority does agree to assume insurance liability costs for its use as well as snow removal costs, said Joan Kolodziej, a SEMTA spokesperson.

Other area park-and-ride lots are located at the Sheldon Ford Motor Co. Plant near M-14 and Five Mile and Newburgh.

Group on aging elects officers

The local "cluster group" of the Out Wayne County Area Agency on Aging recently met in Plymouth Township Hall to set up policy guidelines and fill vacancies on committees and on the advisory council.

The cluster group monitors local service providers for the elderly, proposes additional programs for the local area when funds become available and watches to make sure communities get their share of federal and state grant monies.

The findings of the cluster group are brought to the attention of the Area Agency on Aging which administers grants for 34 municipalities in western Wayne County.

Attending the recent cluster group meeting were Frank Millington, Walter Fletcher, Chester Budzynski, David Jones, David Lelko and Barbara Ebert. John Flodin of Canton was approved to serve on the group, pending his acceptance.

The group embraces the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton, Northville and Northville Township.

Harold Guenther of the city of Plymouth was appointed to the advisory council of the Out Wayne County AAA. Guenther previously was a member of the state advisory council and is a former mayor and city commissioner of Plymouth.

Fletcher, also a city resident, was approved as board director. He previously served as alternate director.

Traci Johnson, senior citizen coordinator for the city of Plymouth, was named as alternate director. Ms. Johnson also is director of the home-chore services for the elderly.

Persons wishing more information on services for the elderly may contact Ms. Johnson in her office at the Plymouth Community Cultural Center at 525 Farmer or call her at 455-6623.

Clergymen lend support to group home

By MARGARET MILLER

The moral test of a government is how it treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the aged, and those who are in the shadows of life, the sick and the needy and the handicapped.

Those words of the late Hubert Humphrey formed a guideline for Rev. Robert C. Grigereit, minister of the First United Methodist Church of Garden City, when bitter controversy erupted in his community over the establishing of a foster care home for the mentally-impaired.

"I feel that is what the church is to be about as well," said Grigereit.

So as president of the Garden City Ministerial Association, as a Christian clergyman and as a citizen of Garden City, he wrote to this newspaper, urging others in his community "to be supportive of this opportunity to offer a fuller life and new hope to those who need us."

"In a profound sense, we also need them," he noted in an early fall letter.

The Rev. Dean Beckwith, pastor of Good Hope Lutheran Church in the same community, agreed. "I am disappointed that some of our residents seem determined to exclude group homes for the mentally retarded from coming into our community," he wrote in his letter.

And the ministerial association, while deciding against formal action, moved to keep abreast of the situation and try to increase understanding.

In November the controversial home opened,and Grigereit and Beckwith are expressing high hopes for its success.

"From what I've seen its managers have been willing and eager to have people come to visit," said Gigereit. "I hope they do."

And Beckwith noted the tendency to speak of those in the foster care homes as "those people" — until they meet them. "Then we find we all are learning along the way," he said.

THE TWO CLERGYMEN have come by different routes to the understanding of foster care home residents that they feel is so necessary for Christians in their congregations and fellow citizens of their community.

"We have a family in our church that has for some time had six men in their care," said Beckwith. "They have been bringing these men to church for two years, and our people have come to know them and accept them.

"And I have two cousins who are mentally-impaired and have been in institutions. One was moved to a group home four years ago. I knew the situation before and after, and I saw how much better life is for him now.

"It seems to me these two circumstances represent the situation as it should be, and when it is not I have concern.

Grigereit, for his part, decided that once the controversial home became a reality "my concern was how to get them (residents) into the community."

In that area he was able to make an immediate contribution.

"The women in this group home have been coming to our church," he noted, "and the interesting thing, as far as the congregation is concerned, is that people have not been able to identify them, except when they meet them as individuals.

"To me, this points up the need we all have to see the individuality of these retarded persons — and the accent is on the word persons."

GRIGEREIT SAID he had recommended to his congregation a book titled "New Life in the Neighborhood," a work that describes the establishing of foster care homes.

"I wish everyone would read it," he said.

"People see these homes as a threat to property values. I don't think this is going to happen, but I see it as a real concern.

"But I see as more important the right of these people to have the opportunity to live and grow in a communtity. And I think Garden City will be a better place as it is able to grow and accept these kinds of people."

Grigereit has another quotation he couples with Humphrey's.

"This one is from Jesus," he noted.

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Sanders to speak at benefit lunch

Charlie Sanders, tight end of the Detroit Lions from 1968 to 1977, will be the guest speaker at the annual Valentine luncheon benefiting the Methodist Children's Village of Redford Township.

The event will take place at noon Feb. 12 in the Main Event restuarant in the Pontiac Silverdome.

Featured on the program with the Lion's former pass receiver will be the Meadowbrook Estates, singers, dancers and instrumentalists from Oakland University.

Funds raised by the luncheon will aid the residential treatment program at Children's Village. Fifty-seven boys and girls from 3-12, all emotionally impaired, live in cottages on the village campus. Most of them are victims of abuse and neglect and receive therapeutic treatment.

The cost of the luncheon is $15 per person. It is open to the public. Reservations may be made by calling Mary Brincat at 534-5940 or writing her at the Methodist Children's Home Society, 26645 W. Six Mile, Redford Township 48240.

Among those involved in the project are Elizabeth Lee of Novi, Donna Anagnostou and Joan Guregian of Livonia and Evelyn Alix, Eleanor Griswold and Annette Carter of Bloomfield Hills. Other members are Ellen Horie of Westland, Eleanor Charett and Joyce Dornton of Southfield and Jean Holmes of Redford.

Grace Thorne, Ann Shaffer, Patricia Stoner and Betsy Taylor, all of Birmingham, are also volunteering their efforts.

Now let's remember other hostages

The weather has already begun to fade the yellow ribbons that hang tattered from trees and lightposts.

The networks have ceased to invade the living rooms of hostage families. Soaps and sports alike can return to top billing on the tube.

In short, it would seem that the crisis is over, and we can all go back to business as usual.

If indeed this does happen, then the entire Iranian experience takes on an added tragedy.

Kathryn Koob, when asked by reporters how her hostage experience related to her religious faith, said she was trying to understand the purpose of it all. Perhaps her struggle is one for all of us to consider.

At first sight, it may appear that there is no purpose. It would seem that the whole sequence of events was nothing more than a total travesty.

But for those who have eyes to see, let them see. The purpose may be blurred, but the lessons remain for those who would take a harder look.

WE CAN THINK in terms of a need to take a more honest look at the kind of foreign policy that leads to the rage that produces the pain. Then again we might be tempted to simply settle for a national condemnation of the barbaric practices of other nations.

We may also be content to blame one or another government, including our own. Perhaps we might do better to look first at ourselves — we the people.

We live in a world in which peopole are held as hostage everyday. Even as we watched the buses carry their precious cargo into Highland Falls, N.Y., there were other precious people in El Salvador and down the street who had no reason to rejoice.

The tears they shed are anything but tears of joy, but somehow they rate neither yellow ribbons nor negotiating teams.

The seeds of hostage crises are sown long before they made headlines on the evening news. Even as the 52 were being celebrated on the front pages, the events south of the border and in the city slums were serving to perpetuate pain and building the kind of hositility that leads to crises.

However such accounts were, as usual, tucked away in the inner pages where they receive as much attention as an uninteresting advertisement.

It is somehow more partriotic and perhaps cathartic to become enraged about results than it is to work toward diminishing causes.

NONE ARE QUITE so hostage as the uncelebrated. They starve in their squalor. They despair in their abandonment, and they die in their loneliness.

Some of them belong to groups and remain nameless. Some live in our neighborhoods, while other may be fogotten members of our own families.

With no yellow ribbons to invite them off the bus, they forget about us as we have forgotten about them. But then, it may take more than a ribbon to bring about their release.

One would like to believe that our celebrations of the 52 came from a concern for the lives of other rather than a need to blow off steam. However, such an assessment remains to be seen in the lessons we have learned.

The final exam will be in the form of our concern for and our willingness to celebrate the less-known hostage of this world — even if the networks do not give them center stage.

Brokensha's music spreads 'good vibes'

By JIM WINDELL

By day, he works for major industry firms. At night, however, the thoughts of Jack Brokensha, a Detroit mainstay on the vibraphone for some 20 years, turn to jazz and more congenially musical haunts.

Brokensha was in the renowned Australian Jazz Quintet for several years in the '50s. Today, he augments his thriving business that produces music and films for large companies by returning to John Laffrey's Vineyards Annex in Southfield.

The Jack Brokensha Quartet, featuring Matt Michaels, plays from 7:30-11:30 p.m. Wednesdays-Thursdays.

Based in Detroit since 1960, Brokensha came to the Motor City to work for "one year" as a studio musician with the Soupy Sales Show at WXYZ. He found the musical environment in Detroit compatible with his nature, not to mention his musical talents.

"THE SHOW went on for seven years," Brokensha said recently, explaining why he stayed in Metropolitan Detroit instead of returning to New York as originally intended, "and in the meantime, I discovered there were other things to do around here."

One of those things was his own night club, which featured the music of Bess Bonnier, Ursula Walker and his own vibes.

'Getting together with a nice rhythm section and playing good jazz is probably the nicest thing to do from a musical standpoint.'
— Jack Brokensha

"The club," he now maintains, "was a nice thing to do, and I enjoyed it. It was nice up to the time the city got a little funny (the city of Detroit's riots in 1967). We couldn't do that anymore after 1969."

Instead of operating his own club, Brokensha, a Township Bloomfield resident, found dabbling in the merchandising of Detroit cars to his liking.

His company, Jack Brokensha Musical Services, makes music for industrial and training films, puts on live musical shows and automobile presentations, and also provides the background music for radio and television commercials. While his roots may be firmly in the jazz tradition, his living now comes through music for industries.

"WE ARE involved in productions for American Motors, Ford, Lincoln-Mercury and some foreign car companies," Brokensha explained. "Production companies and advertising agencies call us in to handle the musical side of things.

"I have a nucleus of people in Detroit I work with. Like Matt Michaels (Detroit jazz pianist and piano instructor). We do anything from a quartet to a 30-piece orchestra and can come up with anything from straight-out classical music to country and western.

Brokensha and the talented people working with him can write, arrange and produce any kind of music or musical project to assist a company.

When he has an opportunity, though, Brokensha enjoys getting back into a club or a jazz setting. Last year, he and pianist Bess Bonier played at Tweeny's Cafe in Brimingham. Last summer, Brokensha made a spectacular appearance in the Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festival, where he and his quartet played hot jazz at Hart Plaza.

Brokensha plays a light and swinging vibraphone that was initially learned in Australia, where he was born and where, as a young man, he played with the Australian Symphony Orchestra.

HE BECAME a popular musician in that country through concerts and broadcasts before leaving to become an internationally known jazz performer with the Australian Jazz Quintet from 1954-1959. With the genteel, restrained, almost classical swing of the Australian Jazz Quintet, Brokensha recorded several albums for Bethleham Records.

"Getting together with a nice rhythm section and playing good jazz is probably the nicest thing to do from a musical standpoint," Brokensha said.

He has the chance to do that on a regular basis as he and Matt Michaels front a quartet two nights a week at the Vineyards. Brokensha is no stranger to the Southfield restaurant at 2930 Franklin Road.

"We were a permanent fixture at the Old Vineyards's," Brokensha said. "Then the restaurant was sold and it became a disco with flashing lights and mirrors. It was pretty garish."

Recently, the Vineyards was purchased by Detroit-area restaurateur John Laffrey. "John Laffrey is going to put some music back in the place," Brokensha said. "He's trying to make it into a nice room once again."

With Brokensha playing his vibes, Laffrey's job will be made a good deal easier.

Hollywood composer makes debut with symphony

"Music for the Movies" will be the theme as Hollywood composer Elmer Bernstein makes his Detroit Symphony Orchestra conducting debut in two "Weekender Pops" concerts at Ford Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Friday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

A special feature of these concerts will be the presentation of a 13-minute movie "Toccata for Toy Trains." This 1957 film is a celebration of toys, and the musical score is by Bernstein.

The program for the concerts includes a suite of music by John Williams from the motion picture "The Empire Strikes Back." The remainder of the program consists of music written by Bernstein from the following movies: "Toccata for Toy Trains," "Animal House," "Airplane," "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Walk on the Wild Side," "The Man with the Golden Arm" and "The Magnificent Seven."

The scores from the last four movies were each nominated for Academy Awards.

TICKETS FOR these two "Weekender Pops" concerts may be purchased at the Ford Auditorium Box Office. Visa and Master Card customers may order tickets by phone at 962-5524. In addition, Windsor residents may phone in orders (toll free) at 258-9499.

A musician with a diverse musical career, Elmer Bernstein has profoundly influenced the world of film music which has brought to him his major recognition.

Nominated nine times for music from his more than 80 film scores, Bernstein won an Academy Award in 1967 for "Thoroughly Modern Millie." He also holds an Emmy Award from 1963, two Golden Globes, and a Western Heritage Award for movie scores, and the 1958 Downbeat Award for best scoring of a short feature subject.

He has worked for all the major studios and with many prominent directors. Music for many television series is credited to him, as well as for documentaries, TV movies, TV specials and even some stage music. As a child, Elmer Bernstein performed professionally as a dancer and actor.

He began musical studies, which were to include the piano and composition, at the age of 12. While serving in the Air Force, he composed music for drama on the Air Force radio network, and after the war continued his interrupted career as a concert pianist.

HE DID HIS first film composition in 1950, launching a long and successful career. Of film composition, Bernstein says: "Music is really an art whose life begins where pictures and words leave off . . . Music is basically a fantasy, an emotional fantasy.

This is his first appearance with the DSO.

Muppets starred in musical show

Jim Henson's "Sesame Street" Muppets take to the road in the new stage production "Sesame Street Live."

The show produced by Bob Shipstad and presented by VEE Corp., in cooperation with Children's Television Workshop, will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 12-22 at the Masonic Temple Theatre in Detroit.

Tickets for "Sesame Street Live" are on sale at the Masonic Box Office and all CTC outlets. Tickets also may be charged by phone by calling 832-2232.

Opening night is "TV 50 Family Night," with all seats at reduced ticket prices. For showtimes and further information call 832-2232.

IN ITS DETROIT debut, "Sesame Street Live" is two hours of music, songs, dancing and comedy. Sesame Street residents Big Bird, Cookie Monster, Grover, The Count, Oscar, and Bert and Ernie, step off the TV screen in this musical theatrical presentation.

Action is centered on Sesame Street where one of the key residents seems to be missing. Everybody at 123 Sesame Street joins in the search, headed by two new Muppet characters, Inspector Fortescu Farquar and P.T. Barnswallow.

The Inspector, Barnswallow and the Seedy Birds were created especially for "Sesame Street Live" by Henson.

Jon Stone, former executive producer and head writer for the Emmy-Award-winning Muppet children's television series is responsible for the script of "Sesame Street Live," while Anita Mann is credited as director and choreographer.

Mann has choreographed by CBS-TV special "The Muppets Go Hollywood" and the second "Muppet Movie." Producer Shipstad was responsible for the overall production of Shipstads & Johnson Ice Follies for 14 years.

backgammon

Michael Kloian
of the American Backgammon Club

● PLAYING AGGRESSIVE

Here's the situation: Black is on the bar with one blot open on the 1 point. Black has a slightly formidable (but not yet threatening) home board, exceptional timing and ownership of the doubling cube (at the 2 level).

White now rolls a 2-4. What should white do?

Gather your senses and look over the entire position before deciding. The proper play here is not to move around the board passively.

In this and other similar positions, the only move you could make without thinking is hitting your opponent. Two checkers on the bar against a five-point home board is very powerful.

If you do not hit black on the 1 point (from the five point), he could easily roll a 1 on his next roll, cover his blot and aggravate white as he tries to run home. Bearing in and bearing off could be somewhat difficult. With black in possession of the cube, one lucky roll or a double 6 could put him in the driver's seat.

With two checkers on the bar, black could still roll a 1 and send white to the bar. But now black has to roll another immediate 1 to take the second checker off the bar and establish the 1 point. Black is an underdog to hit and get both checkers off the bar.

For an effective 2 move, white would do best to move from the black 7 to the 9 point. By leaving the blot on the white 7, white could easily roll a 9 (5-4) to cover the blot for a six-point prime or a 6 (17 ways) to close the home board.

Of course, this move is a calculated risk. The rewards, however, outweigh the risks.

Since black has six checkers in the outer board, white is a favorite to win a gammon. With the cube on 2, a four-point victory in any tournament is quite an edge.

"Macbeth" (1947), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Saturday at the Detroit Film Theatre, Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, $2. Running time 115 minutes.

The DFT is billing this Orson Welles' work as a "reconstructed 'Macbeth.'" Thirty minutes of film and the original soundtrack have been restored.

Welles made the picture in three weeks and based it upon his own, controversial adaptation of Shakespeare which takes great liberties with the original play. Though "Macbeth" exhibits a distinctly Wellesian flair, it's spotty at best and by no means as good as "Citizen Kane" or "The Lady from Shanghai," both earlier films.

Perhaps the "reconstructed" segments of "Macbeth" will add weight to an otherwise lean offering. Unrated.

"Cool Hand Luke" (1967), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 126 minutes.

Paul Newman hadn't buddied up with Robert Redford yet, but here's the first in a string of Newman movies which don't involve a girl. The new macho relationships were between men — notably Newman and George Kennedy in "Luke" — a far cry from the days when "blue eyes" teamed with Elizabeth Taylor or Piper Laurie. Kennedy won an Oscar and the late Strother Martin co-stars as the callous prison overseer whose big line is, "What we have here is a failure to communicate." Rating: $2.90.

"The Misfits" (1961), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 124 minutes.

Rarely have three star performers, a noted playwright and a fine director been brought together under such trying circumstances. Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe (in their last film), Montgomery Clift, Arthur Miller (Monroe's husband) and John Huston sizzled for weeks while shooting on location in the desert; Monroe and Clift were constantly drunk; Miller and Huston were often frustrated, Gable was dying. Ironically, the movie — in which Gable, Monroe and Clift portray characters much like themselves — isn't very good. But it certainly is worth seeing. Rating: $2.60.

"Buffalo Bill" (1944), 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on Ch. 20. Originally 90 minutes.

William Wellman said years later that directing "Buffalo Bill" made him want to puke. Tune in and you'll see why. Rating: 85 cents.

'Good luck' wish opens 'Luv'

"Break a leg!"

That traditional wish for good luck given to actors on opening night may take on an extra edge of meaning for the performers in "Luv" when St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook opens its production of the comedy on Friday the 13th.

On-stage antics involve falls and near-falls, abandoned dancing, over-the-shoulder carries and wrestling other characters to the floor.

"To say nothing about the leaps off our 'high bridge somewhere in Manhattan,'" said "Luv" director Bill Everson of Birmingham. "They must appear both purposeful and accidental and, so far, both our bridge setting and reasonably athletic actors are acccomplishing the illusion very well."

Open performances are scheduled for 9 p.m. Feb. 14, 20-21 in addition to opening night, at the playhouse in Bloomfield Hills. Reservations may be made by calling the automatic ticket phone, 644-0527, at any hour.

EVERSON SAID, "'Luv' is about love, of course, and just three actors provide enough comic variations on the eternal triangle to keep author Murray Shisgal's laugh lines coming fast through all that furious action."

Morris Weinner of Birmingham is cast as Harry Berlin, the nebbish loser in life who's trying to end it all. He's tried yoga, Buddhism, world travel and guitar lessons — and failed at it all. Including love.

Keith Lepard of Franklin plays his long-lost college friend, Milt Manville, who comes to the rescue just in time to con Harry into trying "love" one more time.

Enter Bonnie Cook of Birmingham as Ellen Manville, the distraught wife who knows she's being two-timed. Ellen is one of the not-quite-liberated women who feels trapped between her "soaring intellect" (which she delights in displaying) and her reasonable lustings after the flesh.

Nancy Scott is co-directing the show. Co-producers are Alec Fiesselmann and Deborah Cavanaugh.

The original Broadway production of "Luv" starred Alan Arkin, Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson, directed by Mike Nichols. The movie featured Jack Lemmon, Peter Falk and Elaine May.

"THE MOVIE was not anywhere near as funny" as the Broadway show, Everson said, "but that kind of casting should give our audiences a good idea of what to expect from 'Luv.' I'd warn people not to bring the kiddies, however. It isn't a show for pre-teens."

Benefit performances have been booked by the Hickory Heights Property Owners Association for Wednesday; the Royal Oak Shrine High School Mothers Club for Feb. 15; and the Bloomfield Hills Rotary Club for Feb. 19.

Admittance to those performances, all with an 8 p.m. curtain, is by special ticket only, available through the organizations involved.

'The Mandrake' opening at OU

Oakland University will present the Midwest premiere of Niccolo Machiavelli's "The Mandrake" as translated by Wallace Shawn in a 12-performance run opening Feb. 12.

Performances run through March 1 in the Studio Theatre of Varner Hall on campus near Rochester. Curtain times are 8 p.m. Feb. 12-14; 6:30 p.m. Feb. 15, 8 p.m. Feb. 19-21, 6:30 p.m. Feb. 22, 8 p.m. Feb. 26-28 and 2:30 p.m. March 1.

The bawdy comedy was written by Machiavelli in 1513. The translation by Shawn was first performed in 1978 at Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival Public Theatre.

The OU production is a collaboration between the Theatre Arts Program, the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Performing Arts.

THE OAKLAND University version is staged as a festival of comedy and manners, and period dance numbers have been substituted for the songs Machiavelli had added to the text after the original performances. The dances are used to embellish and expand on Machiavelli's satirical and humorous characters.

The tangled plot concerns an aged lord, his young supposedly infertile wife, and a young lover who uses a fertility potion and a disguise to win his way into the wife's bedchamber..

Christopher Howe, a junior communication arts major from Rochester, is the young lover and trickster Callimaco. Peter McBryan, sophomore theater arts major from Grosse Pointe Woods, is the ancient Lord Nicia and Patricia Ann Verellen, sophomore theater arts major from Romeo, plays the childless Madonna Lucrezia.

Livonia Stevenson grabs Plymouth volleyball title

All last season, Livonia Stevenson's big volleyball goal was to win a tournament. The Spartans came close on several occasions but never stepped into the winner's circle.

Many of those frustrations were forgotten last weekend, though, when Stevenson bested the field in the 20-team Plymouth Invitational.

The Spartans, coached by Lee Cagle, downed Wayne Memorial, last year's titlist, in the championship final, 18-20, 15-5 and 15-9.

Karen Kelley, a 6-foot senior, provided the major impetus for Stevenson.

"Karen was just fantastic at the net," said Cagle. "She was dominant. She was not handled at all by Wayne and Wayne is a very fine team.

"Lisa Cluett set to her (Kelley) and Lisa also played an excellent game," Cagle continued.

Stevenson's road to the final became a reality after the Spartans placed first among five teams in Pool C.

The Spartans won seven of eight games. They downed Trenton, Fenton and Berkley twice each. Their only loss was to co-host Plymouth-Canton, with which they split.

"We felt we could play with Stevenson," said Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein. "It was a rotten situation for us, because we lost our last two games to Fenton."

Canton went 5-3 but did not qualify for the next round. Trenton (6-2) advanced instead.

"Everybody that was called upon did a good job for us," Burnstein said. "I thought Mary Reardon, Marianne Pink and Debbie Dickinson all played well."

Stevenson downed rival Livonia Bentley in a quarterfinal match and then reached the finals by beating Trenton, the eventual third-place finisher.

CAGLE SAID his team was not down after losing the marathon first game to Wayne.

"No way did they defeated at all," said the Stevenson coach. "They were very confident. They knew they could win.

"Amy Lang did not play well all morning long, but in the final matches (quarterfinals, semifinals and finals) she finally got some offense going.

Cagle also cited the work of several other players: the defensive play of Marlene Igel, the all-around effort of Jill Heppner, Sue Firestone in the backcourt and Cathy Potter in the frontcourt.

Dhana Ponner served four points late in the deciding third game against Wayne.

Cagle said the 15-8 and 15-10 win over Bentley in the quarterfinals was almost as important to his girls as the victory over Wayne for the title.

"They're a rival, a neighbor and they always seem to beat us. Three times Bentley beat us last year but this year is a different story," Cagle said.

Co-host Plymouth Salem gained first among five teams in Pool A. The Rocks, who won five of seven games, advanced along with Dearborn Fordson.

Howell and Wayne advanced to the quarterfinals from Pool B.

Salem's bid at a semifinal berth was dashed by Howell, 16-14, 5-15 and 15-5.

The Rocks got a solid performance from 5-9 hitter Cheryl Sobkow, who was named to the all-tournament team along with Kelley, the only two area players to earn berths on the six-girl honorary squad.

"I can't complain, because we finished seventh out of 20 teams," said Salem coach Cathy Himes.

Michalik, Beale show way

Canton girls set record pace

gymnastics

Plymouth Canton set four school records Monday night in beating defending Class A regional gymnastics champ Ann Arbor Pioneer, 95.7-95.15.

The Chiefs, coached by John Cunningham, set a school mark for most team points.

Junior Laura Michalik set two records. She won the uneven parallel bars with a score of 8.7. Her all-around tally of 33.15 also set a new standard.

Michalik's junior teammate, Laurie Beale, broke the old mark in the floor exercise with a score of 8.8.

"The competition was excellent," said Cunningham. "It was an extremely close meet. It was a really scary meet. We were on pins and needles all night long.

"It was an exemplary performance with good judging."

In vault, Pioneer's Kathy Barry finished first (8.3) with Michalik right behind in second (8.25).

Michalik also gained second in the floor exercise (8.5).

In addition to her record-setting performance in floor exercise, Beale was first in balance beam (8.15) and fifth in both the vault (7.7) and uneven bars (7.5). Her all-around score was 32.15.

Beale's sister, Linda, a freshman, came through with an all-around score of 30.4, fifth overall.

Her best finish came in uneven bars, second place, 8.15. She also grabbed third spot in balance beam (7.8) and took fifth in floor exercise (7.95).

Other Canton gymnasts to place included Dana Wasiak, vault, eighth, 6.2; Lisa Lovich, floor exercise, eighth, 6.5; and Amy Albaugh, uneven bars, eighth, 5.2.

The Chiefs, now 5-2 overall, will travel to Westland John Glenn Monday.

Chief grapplers fall

Dan Chrenko feared the worst after his Canton wrestlers had posted one of the most significant wins in the school's eight-year history last week.

The Chiefs came out flat against non-league foe Livonia Stevenson Tuesday night, 37-22.

The dual meet loss, Canton's second of the year, occurred after the Chiefs had edged Walled Lake Western in a battle for first place in the Western Six League.

"I was hoping we wouldn't have a letdown," said Canton coach. "Now we have to regroup."

The Chiefs will go after their first league title Friday at Western.

Stevenson, also having its best season ever, ended its dual campaign at 13-3 overall.

"I've never seen a group of kids so fired up in my life," said Stevenson coach Larry Ruzsas. "This is the best record we've ever had."

Stevenson captured the final four matches, all on pins, to win the meet.

"They have a good team," said Chrenko. "I'm very impressed. They did a nice job and we were a little flat. They beat us where they had to beat us.

"They were aggressive and we were still back in Thursday. We needed a break and we just couldn't get it."

Mike Petouhoff (167 pounds), Alex Rahill (185), Mike Templeton (198) and heavyweight Kevin Niedwiecki all won by pins to clinch it for the Spartans.

Neidwiecki took just 24 seconds to down Alex Young while Rahill expended 37 seconds of energy to down Wain Yeung.

CANTON LOST a heartbreaker at 98 pounds when Stevenson's Jim Cousins scored a 5-4 decision over Todd Bartlett on a reversal move with two seconds left.

Groundhog batters heat up

The Cannons saw their own shadow for the second consecutive year by winning the Groundhog's Day Slow-Pitch Softball Classic Saturday afternoon at Griffin Park.

The single-elimination event, sponsored by the Canton Township Parks and Recreation Department, was contested by 12 teams who battled cold and snowy weather.

Despite near frost-bite, the Cannons won the title for the second consecutive year with a solid defensive effort.

In the championship final, the Cannons used a team effort to down Michigan Bell, 17-6.

Michigan Bell reached the championship with a 9-3 triumph over the Classy Chassis, as Joe Drivinski homered and added two hits. Teammate Tom Lewis went 2-for-3.

In the other semifinal game, Matt Scinski's two-run single was the difference as the Cannons downed McMurray Insurance, 7-6. The game was a repeat of last year's championship final. Tom Battistone's two-run triple wasn't quite enough for McMurray.

In the first game at 8:30 a.m., Harland blasted the Brewhogs, 16-½. The half-run was awarded to the Brewhogs by game umpires after a runner slipped and fell while rounding third.

Canton Township, a team composed of governmental employee types, won their first tournament game ever in the first-round by edging the Thunder Boys, 8-6, on Mike Gouin's two-run homer. That blast came in the sixth inning.

McMURRAY INSURANCE, which drew a first-round bye, nipped Harland in its opener, 3-2, on a homer by Battistone that scored Frank McMurray Jr.

The Cannons, formerly B & D Graphics, opened play with a hard-fought 7-3 victory over Gerry & Mike's. The winners, who also drew a bye, won the game on Larry Davis' two-run homer. Outfielder Jeff David also came up with some key defensive plays.

John Flynn's misfielding of a pop fly near pitcher's mound opened the gates to Michigan Bell's 13-0 defeat of Canton Township.

The Classy Chassis reached the semis with a 3-2 win over Buzz Bombs as Terry Lindle doubled home the winning run.

Bench comes alive in Salem win

basketball

The legacy of John Havilcek lives on despite his retirement.

Plymouth Salem's basketball opponents of late must be wondering if the former Boston Celtic great hasn't come back disguised in colors of blue and white.

The latest image of the famed sixth man appeared Tuesday night as Salem downed Suburban Eight League foe Belleville, 54-52.

Once again it was Salem's depth and bench strength which led to victory.

"Our bench was starting in the second half," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, whose team increased their league mark to 6-2. "In the first half we struggled, but in the second half we got some pretty good surges."

Non-starters David Houle, Scott Bublin and Norm Haygood combined for 28 points.

Junior Mike McBride, a starter, paced the Rocks with 14 points while Houle added 11.

Reggie Grantham of Belleville led all scorers with 21. Sam Villa chipped in with 14.

The Rocks, 10-4 overall, led by as many as 12 points in the fourth quarter.

Belleville, however, refused to quit, erasing that big advantage in the final two minutes.

With the game tied at 52-all and just six seconds left, McBride was fouled. He stepped to the line and made both free throws to give Salem its final margin of victory.

"We really have to work hard and expend a lot of energy to win games," said Thomann. "I thought Haygood and Bublin played well along with the two sophomores (Cohen and Houle).

"And McBride played with a lot poise. He's had some big games at the end for us."

HAYGOOD, a 6-foot-8 junior center, grabbed eight rebounds in addition to his nine points. Dave Miller, a starter, had six boards.

Cohen and Mike Sharp each had three assists to lift the Rocks.

Belleville, which made just eight of 26 free throws, held a 25-20 halftime lead.

"If they don't make those free throws, then we don't win," reminded Thomann.

Belleville dropped to 3-11 overall and 1-7 in league play.

Salem will host Dearborn Edsel Ford Friday in a league battle.

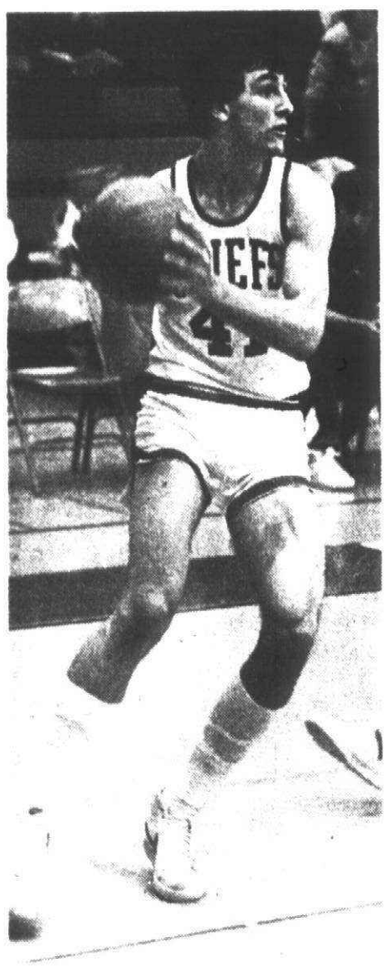
Chief cagers nip Stevenson, 46-43

Capitalizing on Livonia Stevenson's cold free throw shooting, host Plymouth Canton came away with a 46-43 non-league basketball triumph Tuesday night.

The loss dropped Stevenson to 9-5 on the year. The Spartans had trouble all night long from the line, making just three of 17 shots. In the fourth quarter alone, Stevenson missed all eight tries.



Sean Houle led the Chiefs with 18 points. The senior center has been Canton's leading scorer all season long.

Canton, now 8-6 overall, got 18 points from senior Sean Houle.

Bill Keyes, Stevenson's leading scorer, had 16.

"The tempo of the game went in our favor," said Canton coach Craig Bell. "We played a lot of zone and we got some good rebounding tonight.

"We did not want to give up second and third shots."

Forward Matt Thomas, a junior, sealed the game by hitting a free throw with five seconds left to give the Chiefs their final margin of victory.

With 11 seconds to go and Stevenson down by two, Thomas grabbed the potential tying shot.

Stevenson held a two-point advantage with 1:25 remaining, but missed four one-and-one free throw opportunities.

"It was kind of frustrating," said Stevenson coach George Van Waggoner. "We think we can play better than that.

"If we would have hit our free throws, it would have been our game.

"I would have to say that was the difference."

Canton led at halftime, 29-23, but Stevenson charged back to tie it going into the final period.

"WE CONCENTRATED on stopping Keyes," said Bell. "We respected him very much."

Steve Tuttle, Canton's 6-foot-6 junior center added nine points and Dave Malek chipped in with eight to support Houle.

Gary Biermann tallied nine for Stevenson. Pat Martin, starting in place of Rich Sanders, who moved recently to Texas, added eight.

"We miss Sanders not only on the boards, but scoring, too," said Van Waggoner, whose team will travel Friday to Waterford.

Canton will host Western Six League leader Northville, also on Friday.

In the junior varsity game, Stevenson posted a 52-40 triumph.

In Junior Baseball League

Registration dates set

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League (PCJBL) will hold registration for the 1981 season on three consecutive Saturdays (March 7, 14 and 21) in the Plymouth Canton High School cafeteria.

Registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

All boys and girls who will be 7 years old on or before July 31, 1981, and no older than 17 years on or before that date, are eligible to register.

Veteran players, those boys who will return to the same team as last year, should sign up from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, March 7 at Canton.

Only boys of the following ages can be classified as veterans: age 8, C League; 10, B League; 12, A League; 14, F League; 16 and 17, E League.

The PCJBL reserves the right to limit the number of players and teams in each age group.

According to a PCJBL spokesman, facilities are limited. Player placements will be determined on a first come, first serve basis.

A NEW GIRLS SOFTBALL program is being offered by the PCJBL at Allen School on Haggerty Road between Ann Arbor Road and Trail.

The program is available to youngsters ages 7-10, replacing T-ball.

The new alignment for the girls softball program is as follows: G (Instructional) League, ages 7-10, $14 registration fee; G Junior League, 10-13, $18; G Senior League, 14-17, $20.

Registration fees for the boys programs are as follows: C (T-ball) League, ages seven through eight, $14; B League, 9-10, $18; A League, 11-12, $18; F League, 13-14, $20; E League, 15-17, $20.

Volunteer managers, coaches and board members are needed by the PCJBL. Umpires, who will receive compensation for their work, are also wanted.

Those persons interested in volunteer positions should sign up on the registration dates or call Rich Madsen at 420-0223 for more information.

Canton spikers snap skid

Plymouth Canton snapped a four-match losing streak Monday night with 15-5, 15-9 non-league volleyball triumph over Redford Union.

The Chiefs are now 3-3 overall with the win.

Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein was not on the bench. She missed her first match in eight years because of the flu.

Junior varsity coach Pat Musselman replaced Burnstein and gained her first varsity victory.

Canton beat the Panthers with some pinpoint serving from Marianne Pink and Carolyn Barr.

Burnstein said Lori Erdelyi "had some very good defensive plays and really showed a lot of hustle."

Canton will return to action against Western Six League foe Northville Monday at home.

SALEM-BENTLEY

Teamwork was at a minimum Monday night as Plymouth Salem dropped a Suburban Eight League volleyball match to Livonia Bentley, 15-11, 15-5.

"The kids didn't play together," said Salem coach Cathy Himes, assessing her team's dismal performance. "Defensively we've been good the last couple matches, but our serve reception was lacking.

Himes, whose team dropped to 3-3 in the Suburban Eight, praised the play of Kelly Tucker.

"She (Kelly) made some dynamite saves for us," Himes said.

Steal seals victory

By THOMAS ZAIBEK

Sophomore guard Greg Trimm's steal with only 15 seconds left secured Plymouth Salem's 39-38 junior varsity basketball triumph over Livonia Bentley Friday night.

The junior Rocks, sporting an 11-2 record, trailed 23-17 at halftime before rallying.

Bentley's zone defense stymied the Rocks most of the first three quarters. Salem was held to only one field goal in the second period.

The Rocks came back in the final quarter and took the lead with 4:25 to go. They never relinquished that lose advantage.

Rick Berberet paced Salem with 13 points. Marvin Zurek added 10.

Beattie cited as top kegler

in the pocket/W.W. Edgar

There's no longer any doubt about Dick Beattie's right to be called the metropolitan area's best bowler.

The southpaw, who does a lot of his bowling at the Westland Bowl, removed any lingering doubts about his claim to fame over the weekend when he successfully retained the title in the annual Masters' tournament sponsored by the Greater Detroit Bowling Association.

He had an easy time of it, conquering Matt Troupe, of Detroit, 869-769 in the final match at Royal Recreation.

It was the third time Dick has paced the Masters' field and, at the moment, he is captain of the all-city team, one of the leaders in the all-star averages and the all around champion in the GDBA city tournament.

SCORING TOOK a dip around the western suburbs during the past week, with the result that only three pin-spillers were able to break the 700 barrier.

Heading this trio were Mike Moceri, who paced the Pile Drivers League at Plaza Lanes with a 717 that included a closing game of 279, and Kevin Hibbs, who had a 285 in his 721 in the Mixed Classic at Farmington Lanes.

The third barrier-breaker was George Platukaf, who found the range for a 701 in the Handicappers League at Merri Bowl. One of the features of this barrier-breaker was that Platukaf was bowling against his two sons.

Lenny, the eldest, came through with a 647 and Gerry closed with a 221 for 611.

In the Friday Morning loop, Jim Kanya needed a 256 to close with 620 and top place in the loop, while Ann Trope won a close struggle with Dody Cornir in the Invitational Doubles.

Trope rolled a 593 to win by nine pins. Jeanne Drennan took high series single with a 237.

SCORING HIT a new low at Westland Bowl when Charlie Ripple won top honors in the high-scoring classic with a 659. It was one of the lowest winning series of the season.

In the Bowlerettes League, Arlene Wume had a 222 in 596 to set the pace. Her closest rival was Joan Porter with 580.

THE YOUNG bowlers are setting quite a pace in their circuits around the area.

For instance, Chris La Fave, 15, bowling in the Parent and Child loop at Westland Bowl, fashioned a 625 that included a 222 finisher.

Aother who took the spotlight was 16-year-old Cindy Isenegger. She rolled a 652 series at Mayflower Lanes. She put together games of 267, 181 and 204.

KAY MARKEL, bowling as a substitute, showed the way in the Mixed Classic at Farmington Lanes with a 659 series.

She finished three pins ahead of Chuck Bristol. Others in the thick of the race were Bill Weed, with 649, and Kevin Hibbs, with a 647.

In the Monday Noon Day classic, Myrna Hille used a 232 game to post a 603 and take first place.

In the Monday Men's League, Tom Murphy was top man with a 254 in 679, and in the Saturday League, Berry Van Dike was tops with a 611.

IN OTHER good performances, Fred McGrath had a 245 middle game in 669 at Merri-Bowl.

Jerry La Belle had 11 strikes in a 266 game at Woodland Lanes, and Chris Wisniewski had a 622 in the Catholice Central League at Woodland.

At Garden Lanes, Don McHugh was high man in the Moose League with 652, and Ron Beyer set the pace in the St. Linus loop with 650.

Schoolcraft sports

A gymnastics record at Schoolcraft College which had stood since 1972 has been broken by two Ocelot performers during the same meet.

Kevin Watson and Chuck Clifford, both Detroiters, compiled a score of 8.75 in long horse vaulting. The previous standard, 8.70, had been held by Mike McCammon.

Watson didn't stop with setting a record in vaulting during a three-way meet with Eastern Michigan University and Miami (Ohio) University.

The sophomore broke the record for all-around score by compiling a mark of 39.10. All-around is an aggregate mark for all six events.

Watson had just broken the all-around record two weeks earlier with a score of 38.85.

Cecil Woodruff, coach of the Ocelots, believes that Watson's record-setting days are far from over. "I think he's going to be setting records from here all along," Woodruff said.

Watson's all-around score was good enough to win against Miami and place third against EMU.

Eastern totalled 172.15 points, Schoolcraft 140.10 and Miami 92.95.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The Ocelots won twice at home last week, whipping Delta College, 104-67, and edging Highland Park Community College in overtime, 84-78.

Schoolcraft turned in a phenomenal shooting performance against Delta. The Ocelots connected on 62 percent of their shots from the field (37 of 60) and on 30 of 38 free throws.

Phil Blevins led the way with 22 points. Dennis Freeman added 20, Danny Brown 14, Mike Williams 13 and Jim Harkrader 10.

Defense provided the victory over Highland Park, as the Ocelots held their guest to 18 points under its season average.

Schoolcraft committed 31 turnovers during the game but unexpectedly rallied with five unanswered points during the last 1:45 to force a tie at the end of regulation time.

Blevins again was high scorer with 27 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds.

As a team, Schoolcraft snared 46 rebounds against Highland Park.

The Ocelots, 12-8 overall with the two victories, host Mott (Flint) Community College 6 p.m. tomorrow.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The Lady Ocelots are still having problems getting much going this season.

They were trounced by Delta, 96-24, and Macomb County Community College, 100-25.

Schoolcraft's Sherri Sikes scored 11 points against Macomb and eight against Delta.

When should a child start?

jogging

Recently, while jogging prior to dinner, I came along side a father-son team also busy at their daily run.

The boy, about 8 years old, was complaining about the long distance to be covered.

From the tone of their conversation, it appeared the boy's jogging activity was much like homework or a routine assignment of the day.

What I saw was an ongoing travesty — for this child will most likely drop jogging as soon as possible for the wrong reasons.

AS PARENTS, we can inadvertently impose our life style, our attitudes and our desires upon our children without really trying.

The consequences are often negative and frequently result in rejection.

My patients often ask me when their children should begin jogging.

In essence, this query has no particular age as an answer, but rather a set of criteria or prerequisites which indicate a state of readiness.

Obviously, the prospective young runner should be physically mature enough to handle the repetetive stresses and strains of jogging. Care must be taken in not pushing a child beyond his or her range of physical development.

In addition, the youngster should be mentally mature enough to cope with the various disciplines and the routines of running.

THERE IS MUCH more to jogging than merely running around a track or down a street.

The necessary level of physical and mental development is essential in allowing the child the capability of recognizing problems, overcoming stress and attaining new heights of maturity.

An attempt at shortcutting this stage of preparation will often lead to rejection of the activity and possible complications.

A SECOND MAJOR prerequisite to jogging readiness is that of adequate emotional maturity.

Jogging, by nature of its activity, is not a team sport, nor is it competitive with another person. Its primary benefits are personal gains which often require a keen and developed sense of perception.

The competitive and sociability factors, which are sound character builders so evident in most other sports activities, are absent in regular jogging.

The young runner must be emotionally mature enough to cope with this fact, or jogging might be the wrong activity.

THE THIRD and final prerequisite is perhaps the most important one of all — the factor of "inner desire."

It is essential that the youngster truly wants to jog — and not merely as a pleasing gesture to a parent.

All too often, parents unconsciously push our own desires and attitudes upon children. Distinguishing the difference between what a child says he or she wants and what he or she actually wants is often a difficult task.

However, I maintain the parent should exercise extreme caution in pressuring or coercing the child into an undesired activity.

JOGGING IS, in itself, a mental and physical discipline which requires lengthy periods of participation. It is a wonderful experience allowing personal competition and often referred to as a cleansing process for the body and mind.

The numerous benefits of this activity seem ideally geared for adults, and yet age is not the entry fee. Care must must be exercised so as not to push a child into jogging before he or she is prepared.

Rejection of this activity, and the total experience for that matter, surely will result without proper care.

The measure of a youngster's maturity level, as well as his actual desire, must be taken into consideration prior to exposure to jogging.

Good Counsel posts cage sweep

Plymouth Our Lady of Good Counsel made it a clean sweep last week against Westland St. Damian's in basketball action.

The varsity boys pulled off a 47-37 upset over the league leader as Mike Reynolds scored 13 points and controlled the offensive and defensive boards. Teammates Andy Rama and John Sacksteder chipped in with 13 and 12, respectively.

In the boys' junior varsity game, Good Counsel emerged victorious, 33-22, as David Lesz led all scorers with 11 points. He got plenty of help from defensive specialist Brian Dugas and Ron Ziemba, who contributed 10 markers.

The Our Lady of Good Counsel girls drilled St. Damian's, 35-21, as Jennifer Dyer and Lisa Venditelli tallied nine and eight points, respectively. Ann Lucchetti led the rebounders.

In the girls' junior varsity game, Suzanne Muneio tallied 14 points to power Good Counsel to a 33-16 conquest. Kristen Hostynski added six for the winners, now 7-0.

Nancy Koury and Nancy Rekuc also contributed heavily to the win.

Photographic dexterity, or getting what Adams got

Several Detroit-area camera bugs spent the weekend with writer/photographer/editor Ken Gouldthorpe recently when he was in town for a seminar sponsored by Writers Digest magazine.

He had some interesting things to say to travelers who pack a camera.

You may not recognize Gouldthorpe's name. It is not instantly recognizable like Ansel Adams. But Gouldthorpe has been in your magazine rack at some time or other over the past 30 years.

He emigrated to the U.S. from England and started his career as a photographer for the St. Louis Post Dispatch. He was picture editor and a St. Louis stringer for Life magazine when he moved into the big time.

After 15 years at home and abroad with Life, he started editing. Ken was editor of Signature magazine, Penthouse magazine and Adventure Travel magazine. When Adventure Travel moved its headquarters to New York last fall, Gouldthorpe decided to stay in Seattle as a publisher and consultant.

Here are some of his tips for traveling photographers:

1. Before you buy equipment, ask yourself how you'll use it and how often. If you take six months to finish a roll of film, buy a camera with one lens only.
2. If you use if often, buy a system: a single-lens reflex camera, a wide-angle lens (now considered a normal lens among professionals) and either a telephoto or a zoom. Pack a minimum of equipment.
3. Learn to use your equipment by reading, by practice, until your response is automatic. "Like a soldier, you must know how to use your equipment without thinking about it."
4. Explode the apathy that stops you from taking a picture because it's too much trouble.
5. Establish a rapport with photo subjects. Talk to them. Be polite, admiring. If there is a language barrier, use body language. Don't scatter shoot. Single out a person to photograph, but don't waste time if they object.
6. Shoot and talk at the same time, but don't fiddle with your equipment.
7. Carry candy or cigarettes. Coax if necesesary.
8. If you carry a Polaroid, give an instant photo to your subject, especially in a foreign land.
9. Get a shot of the person in his environment. Shoot vertical and horizontal pictures. Then shoot close up.
10. Offer to send a picture to your subject, and do it.

Mexico City

An itinerary to balance time budget

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

How do you tour Mexico City in a day when you don't know what to see first, and you don't know where you are going anyway?

That is the kind of problem faced by the stopover traveler, who has a single day in an unknown city while on the way to other destinations.

Mexico City claims to be the largest city in the world, with 15 million people in a metropolitan area that sprawls for miles across the Valley of Mexico high in the Sierra Nevada mountains. That may depend on how you measure the city, but by any measurement it is huge.

It was founded 167 years before Columbus and offers historic sights and contemporary attractions on every side.

How can you do it justice in a day? You can't, but you can get a lot of travel value for your time if you follow the first law of stopovers: Find an expert to show you the town. That expert might be a friend, a good guide or somebody willing to create an insider's itinerary.

Our expert was Richard Magruder, writer-photographer, author of "A Snob's Guide to Mexico City," and a man who lived there for years. With his advice, we did a brief tour of the center city, visited the Saturday markets in suburban San Angel, had a lingering lunch at a 300-year-old hacienda/restaurant, an evening diversion among the restaurants and shops of the Zona Rosa and a brief Sunday morning look at Chapultepec Park.

Of course, we missed the pyramids, the marvelous museums and several thousand other attractions, but the second and third laws for the stopover traveler are: always plan a day that is loose enough to be enjoyed and never worry about what you haven't seen.

OUR CENTER city tour began at Chapultepec Park, went quickly down the Paseo de la Reforma and Avenue Juarez to the Zocalo, the center of Mexico City and of Mexico itself.

Look back as you turn down Avenida Juarez, and you'll see the four arches of the Monument to the Revolution. Look ahead to where the workers clean the fountains in Alameda Park. There isn't time to visit, you can only hear your expert's voice:

"That's The Palace of Fine Arts, Wirth Galleries, theaters . . . the home of the Ballet Folklorico. That's the famous American drugstore called Sanbourne's, either the most elegant drug store or the most interesting small department store in the world."

San Francisco Church, Iturbe Palace and ahead through the Saturday morning mist, the Zocalo, site of the ancient Aztec city built in 1325. A huge flag is planted in its center at 6 a.m. daily.

The square is nearly empty on this Saturday morning, except for the colored clothes of worshipers and tourists in front of the National Cathedral. Through the doorway of the National Palace we climb the stairs past the Diego Rivera murals.

HERE, IN RIVERA'S broad brush strokes, is the great Aztec city with its pyramids and causeways built across a lake. Here are the Spanish conquistadores in their suits of armor.

But we only have a day, so we can't linger as we would like. We take a short subway ride to Pino Suarez Station, where the base of a small pyramid to the Aztec god of the wind was unearthed during construction. It sits now, in all its splendor, open to the sky.

The Saturday market, known as the Bazaar Sabado, is in full swing at the southern end of the city, and we must taxi there.

Fine quality crafts are sold in closed shops around a small plaza, where lunch is being served. Painters make a colorful clutter in the park outside. There is mariachi music everywhere.

A few yards away, the Indian Craft Market makes a riot of color as serapes climb in red and green and blue stripes next to embroidered dresses, woven wall hangings, baskets and belts. On the table tops, there are lacquer boxes, copper plates, carved puppets, and toys amid the murmur of voices cut off so effectively from the 20th century outside.

YOU CAN EAT well for $5 or $6 in the Bazaar Sabado, but we have promised ourselves the San Angel Inn, where strolling musicians and glorious gardens create an old colonial atmosphere a few blocks away.

Three hundred years ago, this inn was the hacienda of the largest ranch in the area. Later it was a seminary, then a school. American Richard Debler restored its mahogany beams and crystal chandeliers, its whitewashed walls and perfect gardens, as a restaurant setting.

The food is expensive but worth it if you cannot resist crisply breaded oysters, avocado soup, dover sole, ribs of beef, great meringe-laden dessert carts and often served in silver-lined copper pots amid the sound of music.

The food lasts us into the night to the moment when we are downtown again having coffee and cake in the area known as the Zona Rosa. This restored area of shops, restaurants and hotels begins off the Paseo de la Reforma at Niza.

The chained-off streets are full of people experiences: a mime encircled by a happy crowed, a band drawing music lovers to a treed square, tiny restaurants that look out on the streets.

It has been a long, glorious day, more than we have any right to expect from a stopover, and there is one more expereince ahead — Sunday morning in Chapultepec Park.

The roads are closed to cars, so people walk, jog, bicycle and roller skate between the trees, where colorful scenes are caught in patches of sun. A balloon man. An art show. A flower stall. On the lake, rowboats with dripping paddles make arcs against the fountains, as an ice cream truck's bells tinkle its wares and the black swans move close to the shore.

ABOVE: In the Bazaar Sabado at the southern end of the city, fascination with possibilities is enjoyed by the young and old: the essence of creativity in finished form is passed from one generation to another. BELOW: Chapultepec Park is typical of cultivated public spaces around the world, where people celebrate or contemplate life beneath a brilliant sun. (Photos by Micky Jones)

Nearby downhill bargains

Bargain-hunting downhill skiers can hit the slopes for pre-1970 prices and for free when they visit one of Michigan's 17 lesser-known ski areas, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Auto Club has compiled a list of ski hills, all in west and upper Michigan, where downhillers can enjoy their sport for $1.50 to $5.50 per daily tow ticket at 10 areas, and for no charge at seven others.

"While these areas offer the minimum in terms of ski lift equipment and amenities, they are less-crowded and inexpensive alternatives to the state's larger, resort-type facilities," Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph Ratke said.

Most of the areas listed are either county, township or city-owned. Sixteen offer rope tows, while one area has two poma tows to pull skiers to the top of the slopes. None have chair lifts.

Skiers can rent equipment at one area, learn to ski at four and use cross-country ski trails at nine facilities. Five list snack bars offering fast food and hot drinks.

All areas listed are open weekends and three operate Monday through Friday. Nine operate on a limited basis during weekdays and 10 offer limited night skiing.

Ski area names, locations, weekend lift fees and facilities offered follow:

OVER $2,000,000 IN SALES FOR JANUARY

Dear Friends:

It seems as though January of 1981 has roared in like a lion. With over $2,000,000 in sales and 70 additional listings, it appears that 1981 will be an excellent year for buying or selling.

If you decide ti do either, please consider the following: You need a large firm -- "that's us" -- 55 salespeople and 26 of them are $1,000,000, $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 producers. You need massive advertising -- "that's us" -- as evidenced by this full page ad. You need professionalism -- "that's us" -- our sales staff is trained and re-trained continually. You need action -- "that's us" -- we will guarantee our services in writing.

So if buying or selling real estate is in your immediate future, may I suggest that you call one of our professionals. We are "America's Number 1 Top Seller, Century 21". Good moving.

Is your budget house broken?

If you think there's no room in your budget for house payments ... or if financing fears are forcing your family's dreams out of the picture ...

We'd like to have a word with you.

Owning a house that's too big, too little, or too far from where you need to be, can be breaking your budget right now.
Or, if you're renting, it may be costing you more than owning—and leaving you with a lot less.
So even if you think your budget's house broken ... Break down and call us.

"ASSUMPTION BUYERS." We have funds to help you assume mortgages that may be too far to reach. Call for details.
