Parents find fault in school proposals

"I believe most of the people here are against ESY," said a woman whose child may attend Fiegel School next fall on the year-round schedule.

A round of applause came from about half the parents in the East Middle School gym. But the other half shouted their disagreement and mumbled among themselves that the Extended School year (ESY) holds merit.

About 100 parents from Plymouth Township, Canton and the city of Plymouth attended the first of four public hearings Monday on a series of school board proposals to handle student growth.

The last of the four hearings is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight at Pioneer Middle School on Ann Arbor Road west of Canton Center.

THE PROPOSAL selected by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education for hearing purposes aims to alleviate overcrowded conditions at the high schools and some elementary buildings.

Called Plan 3, the proposal expands ESY to two additional elementary schools — Fiegel and Bird — and transfers ninth-graders from the high schools to middle schools. All elementary schools in the district would house grades K-6 with the exception of Eriksson, Fiegel, Field and Miller. The K-5 configuration would remain at those schools.

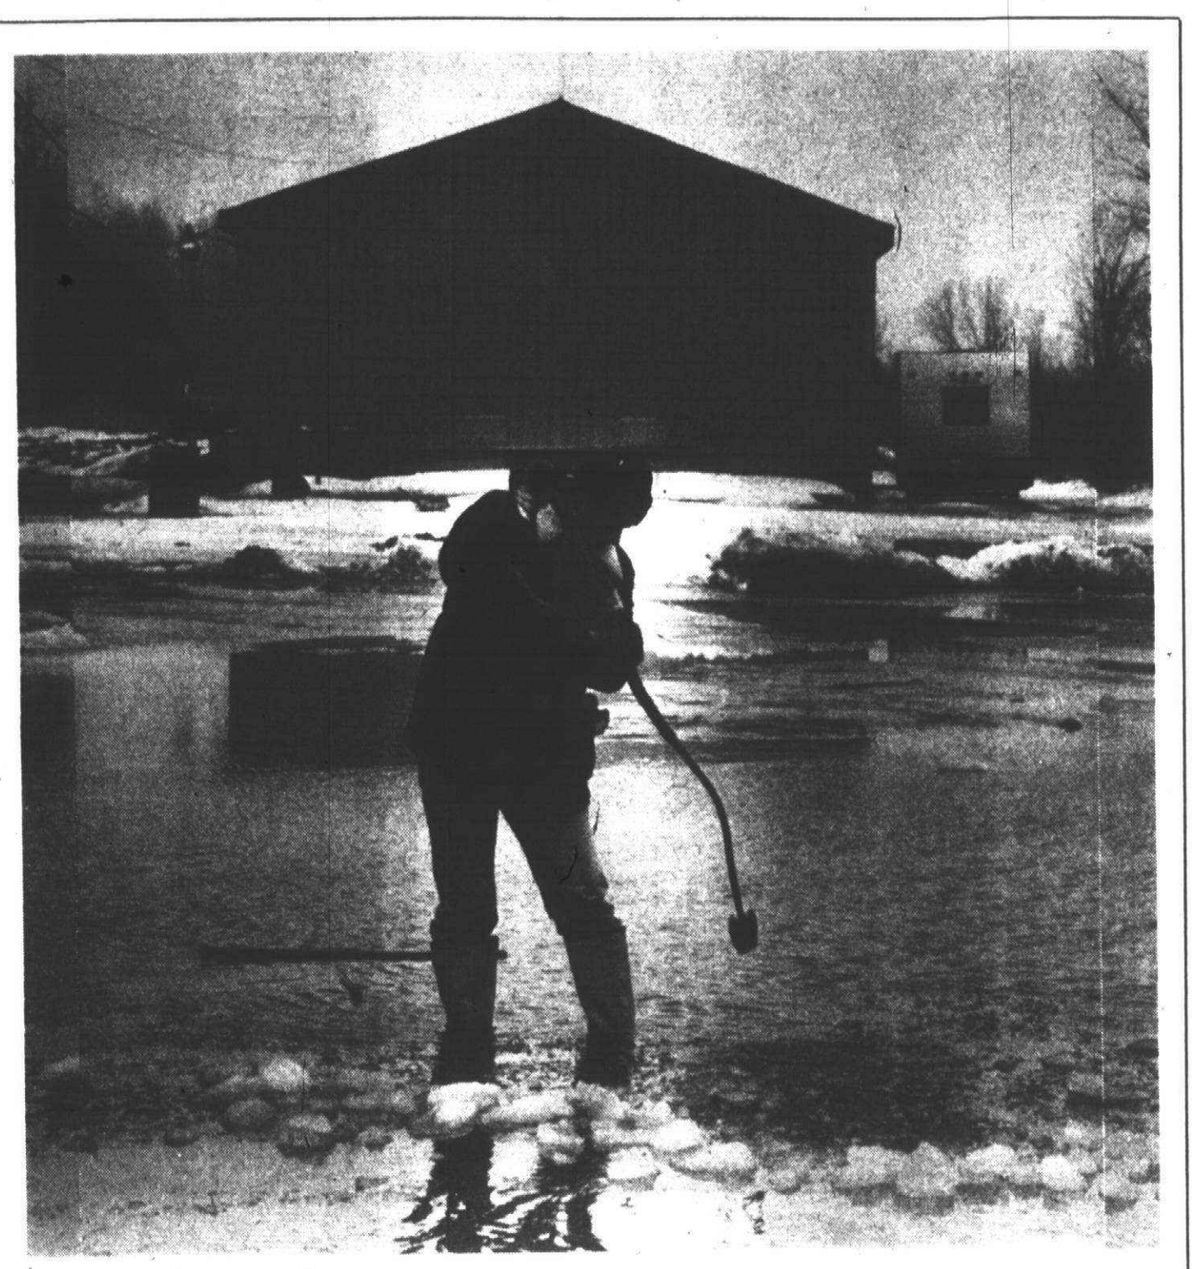

The plan also shifts school attendance boundaries. About 2,300 of the district's 17,300 students would be affected by that change, according to Mike Terzen of Ecosystems — a consulting firm which addressed the district's growth problems.

Board president Carol Davis told parents at Monday's hearing that a final decision on the proposed changes probably would be made by the end of February or beginning of March. That would give parents and students ample notification of the changes before the start of the 1981-82 school year, she said.

"Our major problem is with the high school," said Mrs. Davis in explanation of the proposal's rationale. Built to house 4,000 students, the two high schools at the Centennial Educational Park show a current enrollment of 4,800.

She attributed increased vandalism and student fights to overcrowded conditions at the high schools.

Computer buy promises to ease heavy cop load

By ARLENE FUNKE

Despite Supervisor Jim Poole's objections, the police department soon will have a mini-computer and one new cadet on staff.

These additions are expected to ease ever-increasing mounds of paperwork and improve police investigation.

Poole was the lone dissenter as the Township Board Tuesday voted 6-1 to allocate $69,600 in federal revenue-sharing funds to purchase the specially-developed computer system.

In a separate identical vote, the board approved the hiring of one new cadet and continued funding of four other cadets. Money for the salaries will come from an unfilled sergeant's position and cadet slots which already had been budgeted, according to police.

Police Chief Jerry Cox had proposed that a "package" of computer service and additional staffing would ease a time and paperwork crunch.

"WE'RE GREATLY understaffed," said Cox. "These people are working at their capacity. We have young people who are aggressive and eager to do a good job. They're overwhelmed — bombarded with paperwork."

"It's belt-tightening time," said Poole in his dissent. "Every time I hear a presentation like this, it's doomsday all over again."

Poole suggested that the cadet issue and the computer purchase be lumped together in one vote. But Trustee Steve Larson made two separate motions to approve.

"I find myself in a predicament," said Larson. "We're charged with providing for the health, safety and welfare of the community.

"As much as I would like to say, 'Gee, we can't spend the money,' I can't see any reasonable alternative," said Larson.

The cadets will do many of the routine office chores and assist the sworn officers. Four of the new, full-time cadets already have served in part-time or federally-funded slots for a couple of years.

With their addition to the payroll, effective March 1, Canton will have 24 sworn police officers, 10 cadets and 12 part-time officers.

STILL TO BE WORKED out is a contract agreement for the mini-computer. A committee of police officials, board members and others will work on that project, to make sure that adequate service in is provided.

Police Lt. Larry Stewart said only one company — Data General, with offices in Southfield — has proper equipment for the POSSE system. In addition, the firm could provide local service.

The $69,600 allocation will cover purchase and installation of the computer equipment, plus $10,000 for adjustments and contingencies. Police hope to have the system in operation by September or October.

The software, or program format, is called POSSE (Police Operations Support System Elementary). It would be available at no extra charge.

Firm clears billing mishap, eyes EDC

By DARLENE STINSON

A firm which mistakenly sent more than $600,000 in unpaid bills to Canton Township last year has renewed its request for $500,000 in EDC (Economic Development Corp.) financing.

A public hearing on Farm House Foods' request will be held during the township board's regular meeting of Feb. 24.

Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz, who handled last year's billing mix-up, said the request places the Township Board in an uncomfortable position.

"The question is when do you forgive and forget?" she said of the stack of Farm House Foods bills and the angry phone calls from the company's suppliers.

"We want industry in this township, and I don't want to sway them away. But the aggravation (from the billing mix-up) was terrible."

JOHN SWEET, vice president of the Wisconsin-based Farm House Foods, called the mix-up "an embarrassing situation" at a recent meeting of the township board.

Last April, his firm withdrew its request for $500,000 in EDC financing because of the billing problem.

Sweet now insists that the mix-up has been unscrambled in a second request for EDC approval. Mrs. Falkiewicz admits that no additional Farm House Foods bills have come to the township treasurer's office since last spring.

Sweet attributes the billing error to an attorney's erroneous interpretation of Michigan's EDC law and mistaken advice on ways to avoid state sales tax payments. Sweet said the attorney no longer is employed by Farm House Foods.

The firms received township approval for $4.7 million in EDC bonds three years ago.

The money was used to construct the firm's warehouse at Van Born and Haggerty in Canton. Officials at the food distribution company now are requesting additional EDC financing for construction of a maintenance garage and the purchase of equipment.

Michigan law allows municipalities to establish Economic Development Corporations for purposes of luring industry. Banks sell low-interest bonds through the EDC to companies which have been approved by the municipality. State law protects the community against financial obligation in case the firm defaults on payments.

The fact that municipalities hold title to the project until all bonds are paid led to the mistaken advice of a Farm House attorney on ways to avoid sales tax payments, Sweet said.

The attorney told company officials to name Canton as the owner of the warehouse at Van Born and Haggerty on purchase orders for construction equipment and supplies, according to Sweet. Municipalities are exempt from sales tax obligations.

According to Canton officials, the attorney overlooked another Michigan law which requires companies with EDC financing to pay sales tax.

The result was a flood of unpaid company bills to the township treasurer's office.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Falkiewicz, the firm's unpaid bills began pouring into Township Hall in the spring of 1979. At first, township employees simply returned the bills to sender.

In the fall of 1979, Mrs. Falkiewicz — who then served as deputy treasurer — took over supervision of purchasing operations.

People open new horizons with shifts in career

By ARLENE FUNKE

What do you want to be when you grow up?

For Diane Pomish, a career and guidance counselor at Plymouth Salem High School, that question never has a final answer because new job choices keep coming along.

On April 3-5, Ms. Pomish will be an instructor at a statewide workshop for women educators at the Michigan Inn in Southfield.

The women will attend the workshop to learn ways to analyze their skills and set goals.

Later that week, on April 7, Ms. Pomish will be busy with career training seminars for students at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools. Business persons will come in to talk about their jobs.

"PEOPLE SHOULD THINK not in terms of a (single) career," said Ms. Pomish, a Southfield resident. "There should be other options.

"Think in plural career choices," she added. "What do I want to be when I grow up?"

The Michigan Inn workshop is the result of a training seminar which Ms. Pomish attended in Washington, D.C., last November. It was sponsored by the National Education Association Women's Concerns Task Force.

Ms. Pomish has been a member of that task force at the state level since 1979. The project was developed in 1972 to establish leadership training and promotion for women educators.

A survey by the National Education Association in 1976 indicated that women and minority groups often lack confidence in making decisions and mapping strategies for moving ahead.

Ms. Pomish describes the Women's Concerns Task Force as a "watchdog" on the Michigan Education Associa-

Women make job strides

Women traditionally have been active members of school boards and parent-teacher groups.

But are females becoming principals, department heads and directors of special projects? Are they moving up through the administrative ranks of school systems?

Figures show that Plymouth-Canton compares favorably with neighboring school districts in numbers of women who have attained top slots.

Plymouth-Canton was compared with the Livonia and Wayne Westland school districts, all of which have a similar number of students.

While none of the districts have a woman principal at the middle or high school levels, many serve in that role in elementary schools.

Women carry hold the majority of seats on the Plymouth-Canton school board. And females head up a variety of other programs in all three districts.

Currently, Plymouth-Canton has 17,235 students housed in 23 buildings. Wayne-Westland has 18,200 pupils and Livonia has 22,434. Livonia has 32 schools while Wayne-Westland has 31 (including four special education facilities).

However, only Plymouth-Canton currently is growing. While the student population in this district has climbed about 700 per year since 1975, schools are being closed in the other two communities.

FOUR WOMEN now serve on the Plymouth-Canton school board, as compared to two each for the other districts.

Carol Davis is president of the Plymouth-Canton board.

One woman — Shirley Spaniel — is a member of the district's "cabinet" of top level administrators. Ms. Spaniel is director of elementary education, said Richard Egli, community relations director.

School district records show a total of 24 women administrators, icluding coordinators and executive secretaries.

The Plymouth Canton district has four women elementary school principals, six assistant principals at the ele-

A 'clean-house' law?

Officer favors ban on residential blight

If Canton's chief ordinance officer had his way, the township board would adopt a "clean-housing" ordinance to spruce up run-down areas.

Bruce Phillips, director of ordinance enforcement, believes such an ordinance has merit. He also believes that federal block grant funds should be set aside to assist persons who cannot afford to repair or paint their houses.

Currently, Canton has an anti-blight ordinance which forbids the accumulation of junk cars, old refrigerators and piles of refuse. The ordinance, however, has no jurisdiction over peeling paint or other factors that contribute to the run-down appearance of a dwelling.

"We ring the doorbell (on a blight call) and it turns out to be a welfare mother or a senior citizen," said Phillips. "They just don't have the funds (to fix up).

"Penalty — that isn't the direction I'm coming from," said Phillips. "This is a community service-type ordinance."

"To go further, the neighborhood runs down," he continued. "Possibly we could dedicate block grant money to a fund that (people) could use to bring the property into compliance."

PHILLIPS SAID he would pattern his proposed housing ordinance after a similar one enacted in Bolingbrook, Ill., 30 miles southwest of Chicago.

In that Illinois community, inspectors and police officers are cracking down on owners of houses with broken windows, weeds, junk piles, peeling paint, unmended fences and sagging TV antennas.

The ordinance — adopted in 1976 — was seldom enforced because it was feared some residents would be unable to comply because they couldn't afford to make repairs. However, that problem was overcome recently when a homeowners' association chipped in $5,000 for renovation grants.

Residents are granted a four-day period after the first warning. Then, they may be ticketed $25. Second offenders receive a $35 ticket.

SOME CANTON houses already are being fixed up with federal funds received from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

However, the work is confined to specified "target" areas in the township. In addition, most of the jobs are for inside work such as plumbing, wiring, etc., according to Phillips.

Any funds allocation or housing ordinance would have to be approved by the board.

Firm straightens billing mix-up

"We were getting these bills everyday, and I thought something had to be wrong," she said. "It was really bad. We had bills for $20,000 and $50,000."

Canton police, who were asked to investigate Farm House Foods for possible fraud, turned over the case to the Michigan Treasury Department after the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office labeled the mix-up a civil matter.

A spokesperson for the state agency said last March that all delinquent sales taxes had been paid. At the time, Canton police estimated the amount of the delinquent taxes at $25,000.

Although the error was discovered in the fall of 1979, Mrs. Falkiewicz said Canton kept receiving the company's bills until April of 1980.

Sweet maintains that the company never intended Canton to receive its bills in the first place. Company purchasing agents listed three parties on order forms: Canton as the owner of the building, the warehouse as the shipping destination; and the company's Detroit office as the bill-paying agency.

Sweet attributed the continued error in billing to the inability of vendors' computers to handle three addresses.

"It's very difficult for me," said Mrs. Falkiewicz in reference to the firm's request for additional EDC financing. "I'm not sure which way I'll go.

"The problem was we couldn't get these bills to stop. I spent hours and days trying to get this situation straightened out."

Counselors wage war on bias

tion's (MEA) hiring policies. The committee also is monitoring the role of females in textbooks.

"THERE HAS BEEN an uphill fight to get equitable representation," said Ms. Pomish. "The MEA is pretty much male-dominated."

She also is aware that changes "create problems for people who are going to be affected." She was reluctant to talk to an Observer reporter because she prefers to keep a low profile.

"I don't want to project an interest only in women," said Ms. Pomish. "Women don't have exclusivity on problems in the job market. I care about both men and women.

"We're counseling for people to get to the best career they're suited for, not limited by gender," she added.

Ms. Pomish is an example of career-changing. She started out as a swim coach and physical education teacher, later shifting into guidance and career counseling.

Prior to joining the Plymouth-Canton school district four years ago, she spent three years in Farmington schools and 16 years in Detroit.

While in the Farmington school system, Ms. Pomish was appointed to a statewide task force on Title IX.

Title IX is a law which forbids sex discrimination in educational programs which receive federal financial aid. It guarantees the same access — for both boys and girls — to sports, classes and counseling and placement.

Ms. Pomish said she was amazed to note that, in the Farmington school system, elementary school teachers were mostly women. Yet, principals more often were male.

"It (the principal) was like a man with a harem," she said. "There wouldn't be a need for affirmative action (hiring quotas) if that hadn't happened."

As a career counselor, Ms. Pomish works closely with Harold Gaertner, director of vocational education for the school district. Both believe the most important ingredient for success in a career is matching skills with interest, regardless of gender.

HELPING Plymouth-Canton students make choices is a career center housed at Plymouth Salem High School.

Ms. Pomish spearheaded the development of the center, and she coordinates its activities..

The center funded with a $12,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education, may be used by students, alumni and the public.

It contains books, manuals and a computer which matches students' interests and skills with job choices and education.

The grant money is used up, said Ms. Pomish. Additional funds will have to be found in order to continue buying supplies and manuals for the career center.

IN THE MEANTIME, a committee of teachers and counselors in the school district has been working to eliminate books which contain stereotyped references, such as male doctors and mechanics, and female nurses and homemakers.

Also coming under change have been some course titles. For example, "bachelor living" class was changed to "single living" after it failed to attract female students who associated bachelor with male.

"Counselors have to be very careful about how they counsel," said Ms. Pomish. "You shouldn't limit the horizons.

"What I hear from girls is, 'I don't want to put in the time for a more advanced career," she added.

Some resistance to change is being overcome. Still, says Gaertner, "it's tough" to overcome the bombardment of stereotypes from television, parents and peers.

Getting persons into satisfying careers should begin at kindergarten level, when children begin learning what they enjoy doing, said Gaertner. Those skills later can be developed.

"For the young folks, it's extremely important," said Gaertner. "(But) change takes money. I know this is one of the things that will be put aside unless we put it in proper perspective. "We should make some concerted effort without throwing in a lot of funds."

Women gain jobs

mentary and middle school levels. The director of libraries and several other program supervisors are women.

There currently are no women principals or assistant principals at the high school levels.

These figures show a jump from 1975, when there were 15 women administrators and 23 schools. In 1970, there were 18 school buildings and seven women in administrative positions.

In contrast, the following information was obtained from the Wayne-Westland and Livonia school districts:

- Each district has two women currently serving on the school board.
- In Wayne-Westland, two women are members of the cabinet. One is assistant superintendent of curriculum and the other is administrative assistant for long-range planning.
- Wayne-Westland has four female elementary school principals and three special education principals. In addition, there are several executive directors in the categories of special education, student relations and continuing education.

A woman assistant principal at Wayne Memorial High School recently was re-assigned to other duties because of cutbacks in the school district.

THE LIVONIA district has 49 principals and assistant principals — eight of which are women. Most are at the elementary school level.

A woman currently serves as principal of Bentley High School in Livonia.

In addition, five women serve on the Livonia district's 18-member cabinet.

Hearing airs views on school shifts

Terzen said some of the proposals are aimed at alleviating overcrowding at the elementary level.

"The problem is you have the capacity problem in the south, and the schools are in the north," he said.

THE GRIPES and complaints at Monday's hearing centered on all facets of the school board's proposal.

The most common complaints came from parents whose children will be transferred to other schools next fall as a result of the attendance boundary shifts.

"I have lived in this area almost three years. My daughter would be transferred three times," said Lillian Berlin, a resident of Trailwood subdivision in Plymouth Township. Her daughter, who now attends Smith School, would be transferred to Bird School next year.

"I think that's a lot for a small elementary school child to swallow," said Mrs. Berlin. About 100 of her neighbors signed petitions opposing the change.

"You're talking about minimizing transportation," said Ernest Rumsby of the Fellows Creek apartment complex in Canton. "You're not minimizing transportation at all." Rumsby's daugher now attends Hulsing School — a few miles from their home. Under the proposed plan, she would attend Farrand in the extreme northern portion of the district.

Other parents expressed concern about the proposed transferring of ninth-graders from the high schools to middle schools. They feared that the quality of the ninth-grade program would suffer as a result.

But Mrs. Davis insisted that the quality of the district's secondary-education program would remain the same. Ninth-graders may have to wait until high school to take some courses, she admitted.

Tax board sets meetings

Canton taxpayers who wish to protest their 1981 property assessments are asked to make an appointment to appear before the township's Tax Board of Review.

The tax board will begin meeting on March 3 and continue holding sessions until all petitioners are heard, according to Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz.

The three-person tax board is empowered to change inaccurate property assessments and lower assessments for taxpayers with financial problems.

Mrs. Falkiewicz advises property owners to multiply their 1981 assessments by two to determine accuracy. The assessment may be inaccurate if the product exceeds the estimated market value of the property.

Assessments are used in the computation of tax bills.

Persons who wish to appear before the tax board should contact Peggy Farrell in the treasurer's office, 397-1000. Mrs. Falkiewicz said the tax board will hold day-time sessions Monday through Friday and an evening session on March 9.

Persons dissatisfied with the tax board's action may appeal the decision to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

Members of the Canton Tax Board of Review are Jerry Williams, Jack Blumenshine and Dick Palmer.

A Way to Grow for Tomorrow

Certificates of Deposit are one very real way that Plymouth's Bank can help you plan for tomorrow today. Starting at $500, they pay a highly competitive interest rate and are F.D.I.C. insured. With amounts over $5,000, interest may be paid monthly by check or added to your account.

Money Market and 2½ Year Variable Rate Certificates. Money Market Certificates match the average rate of 6-month U.S. Treasury Bills and require $10,000 minimum 6-month deposit. Variable Rate Certificates (from $500) pay a fixed yield ¾% below 2 year government securities with interest compounded continuously.

Grant will train librarians on cable

A grant has been made to help finance the training of local librarians in cable television programming and on how to test cable television transmission of automated library services.

The grant of $102,475 was made by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek to the Wayne Oakland Library Federation (WOLF).

The grant was announced recently by Leo T. Drinan, director of WOLF which is Michigan's largest public library cooperative.

The Canton Public Library and the Dunning-Hough Memorial Library in Plymouth both are members of the 72-library cooperative serving Wayne and Oakland counties.

WOLF is evaluating proposals for an automated system, linking a common data base of the 3 million books owned by its member libraries.

The location of any book will be known immediately through cmputer terminals located in member libraries, says Dinan, and messages will be sent on line to transfer to libraries where readers use them.

Part of the Kellogg grant will go to utilize cable facilities now installed in the WOLF service area for library data transmission.

A pilot program will test the value of access to the WOLF data base from specially modified television sets located in homes, schools and government offices.

As an incentive for smaller libraries to participate in the automated system, WOLF plans to use $51,000 of the grant to partially underwrite entry costs for about 17 libraries.

The remainder of the grant will be used to train librarians in cable television programming and access channel operations.

The training will include internship experiences with local cable companies.

"The arrival of cable television technology and automated library technology in our service area is practically simultaneous," says Dinan.

"The Kellogg Foundation's assistance will enable us to prepare our libraries to take full advantage of both."

In 1976 the Kellogg Foundation awarded WOLF libraries a grant of $167,800 which was used to prepare library collection records for conversion to automated handling.

The Foundation is among the largest private philanthropic organizations in the nation, and has made grants over the past five decades of more than $500 million in the areas of health, education, and agriculture.

State plans budget study in Mayflower

Governmental budgeting is the topic of a seminar to be held by the local government services division of the Michigan Department of Treasury in Plymouth.

The seminar will be held March 10-11 in the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth, with other seminars planned Feb. 25-26 at the Mt. Clemens Holiday Inn and March 18-19 at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

The seminars will offer municipal officials a chance to familiarize themselves with the elements of planning a comprehensive budget, and preparing revenue and expenditure estimates, and will expose them to basic accounting and other requirements vital to budgeting controls.

The seminars are being sponsored by the local government services division through an ITA grant under provisions of the Uniform Accounting and Budgeting Act.

Cost of the seminar is $70 per participant. Interested persons can contact Ruth Consterdine at 1-517-373-0232.

A sweet proclamation

Township supervisors and mayors sign thousands of proclamations each year, but last week an unusual proclamation was signed at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP). The proclamation for Vocational Education Week (Feb. 8-14) was written on a cake by the CEP's culinary arts students and then given frosting signatures with a decorator by the heads of government. The cake was then donated to a senior citizen home in the area. From left are: Canton Township Supervisor James Poole; Harold Gaertner, director vocational education Plymouth-Canton Community Schools; Carey Schwartz, commercial food instructor who helped make the cake; Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs; and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen. (Staff photo)

Scout week is observed

Boy Scout Week was observed in Plymouth recently with four troops participating in a flag ceremony to open a meeting of the Plymouth City Commission.

Participating were Boy Scout Troop 781 of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, Troop 1531 of the Plymouth Kiwanis Club, Troop 1534 of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, and Troop 1540 of Isbister Elementary.

Each troop was presented with a proclamation which declared Feb. 8-14 as Scouting Anniversary Week in Plymouth. The presentation was made by Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs.

Ross Lyons, a scout from Troop 1540, was chosen by the Detroit Area Boy Scouts to represent the Plymouth Boy Scouts during the anniversary week on "Scouts in Government Day."

In 1981 the Boy Scouts are celebrating their 71st anniversary and the Cub Scouts are observing their 51st anniversary.

Business is seminar topic

A seminar conducted by and for women in small business management will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 28 in Rackham Memorial, 60 Farnsworth in Detroit's Cultural Center.

Dear Dr. Forrest:
My son's dentist suggested he have a "sealant" instead of a "filling" on a back tooth. I really don't understand why?
Edna Pitt

Dear Mrs. Pitt:
When a tooth is prepared for a silver filling, all the decay is removed, and then tiny cuts are made into the healthy tooth to hold the filling material.
Your son's tooth is not actually decayed, but catches can be detected by his dentist. Left untreated these imperfections will become decayed. The "sealant" used to protect the tooth surface is a plastic coating, hardened by an ultra-violet light. This can be done without drilling into the tooth, and can prevent the need for a silver filling for several months.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey H. Forrest DDS

SEMTA urged to step into small bus strike

Spokesmen for 1,200 riderless senior citizens and handicapped persons want the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority to take a more "visible" role in settling a four-month-long small bus strike in suburban Wayne and Oakland counties.

The strike is against Transit Management Inc., which operates the small bus service under contract with SEMTA. SEMTA officials have not been involved in negotiations, said Michael Dewey, the authority's small bus systems manager.

The strike, which began in early October, has shut down SEMTA's OCART and WAYCART systems. The two small bus systems carried mostly elderly and handicapped people to work, recreation centers, grocery shopping and other appointments.

Dial-A-Ride systems in the suburbs have not been effected.

On strike are 105 drivers and clerks represented by Teamsters Local 247.

"MANY SENIORS were totally dependent on OCART," said Ellen Biernes, a senior volunteer coordinator for the city of Southfield. She was among a group of five who asked the SEMTA board Tuesday to take a more active role in settling the strike.

The two sides have not met since late January when a near settlement "fell through on us," said Ron Barnes, general manager of Transit Management of Wayne and Oakland County.

David Schuler, the Teamsters negotiator, said he refused to take a proposed contract to a membership vote late last month because management had ommitted or changed some items.

Barnes said "that's not the case," but both declined to provide details.

THE SEMTA board discussed the apparent stalemate in a closed session Tuesday.

A SEMTA advisory group called the Regional Elderly & Handicapped Service Development Committee asked the board to consider seeking a court injunction to provide service while negotiations continue. It also asked the SEMTA board to develop other plans to operate the small buses should the strike continue past July 1 when SEMTA's current contract with Transit Management expires.

A SEMTA official said both actions would probably be illegal.

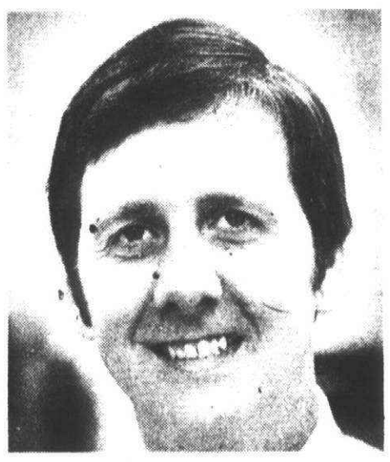

The group urged the SEMTA board to "become more urgently and visibly involved" to settle the strike. "In this regard," the group said in a written statement, "we've noted that the SEMTA updates don't even mention the strike, all the while noting the new buses obtained to bring the fleet to full size. Parked buses nonetheless."

Sharkey named managing editor

Nick Sharkey, 36, has been appointed managing editor of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, effective immediately. He was previously editor of Birmingham-Bloomfield edition of The Eccentric.

"Nick was selected from an excellent group of candidates from throughout the county," said O&E General Manager John Reddy, who made the appointment. "The fact that he has been with Suburban Communications Corp. since 1971 gives him a rich background.

"Running an editorial department serving 12 newspapers with five offices in a suburban setting is a complex and demanding job. Our entire management team has confidence that Nick and the excellent editorial staff working with him will continue to deliver the quality our readers expect."

NICK SHARKEY
A rich background

SHARKEY, WHO is married and has three children, joined the company in 1971 as editor of the East Lansing Towne Courier. From 1973-75 he was editor of the Southfield Eccentric and since 1975 has been editor of the Birmingham-Bloomfield edition of The Eccentric.

He served in the U.S. Army from 1969-71 as an information officer in Saigon, Vietnam and Fort Jackson, S.C., emerging with the rank of captain.

As managing editor, Sharkey will be responsible for the appointment of community editors (including his own replacement in Birmingham-Bloomfield), the departmental budget, and the overseeing of staff activities to make sure they meet the needs of their communities, Reddy said.

The group includes the Birmingham-Bloomfield, West Bloomfield and Troy editions of The Eccentric, the Rochester Eccentric and the Southfield Eccentric, and the Observers in Canton, Farmington, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Westland.

Sharkey succeeds Tom Riordan, who resigned last month to enter the printing business.

Truck fire extinguished quickly by firefighters

The fire could have been much worse than it was.

Early Monday morning a bus maintenance truck caught fire at the bus garage of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The damage wasn't serious, however, because the truck was isolated from the school bus fleet as it was parked in the wash bay of the bus garage on Mill north of Ann Arbor Road.

The damage also was contained to the vehicle because city of Plymouth firefighters pulled the truck out of the bay as soon as they possibly could to prevent the fire from spreading.

City firefighters got the call about 1:31 a.m. Monday and found the bus fleet's service truck on fire. The truck contains an air compressor, spare tires, a set of batteries with booster cables, and tools.

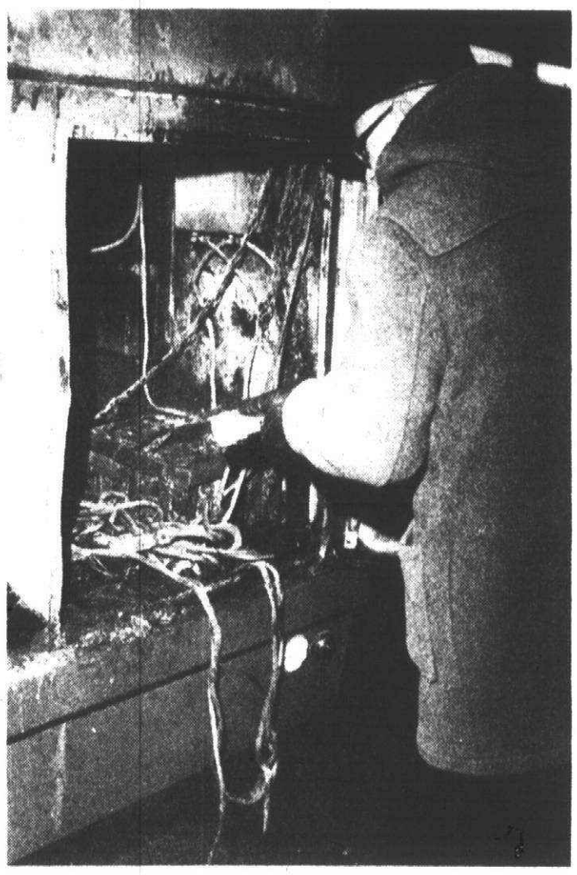

The vehicle goes out to service buses when they are broken down on their routes.

Captain Paul Sanders said Tuesday he believed the fire started at the battery booster system — probably because of a short in the cables.

Dale Goby, director of transportation, said the bus mechanics repaired the vehicle themselves and he expected it to be back in use by the end of this week.

The city responded with two fire trucks, as it does for all calls, but only had to use one. Also as a matter of routine, members of the Force Five arson squad were immediately on the scene to investigate possible cause.

Officials Tuesday, though, were certain arson was not involved as the cause of fire had been isolated to the battery jumper equipment.

Plymouth Police Chief Tim Ford, head of Force Five, examines the battery cables believed to be the cause of the fire.

Firefighters relax a bit after the fire in the service truck was extinguished. The truck had been inside the wash rack (Bay 6) but was pulled out by firefighters to prevent damage from spreading. (Staff photos by Bill Bresler)

'Lock-outs' increasing

"In all of my police career I never have seen anything like this," Plymouth Police Chief Tim Ford chuckled as he listened to another call over the speaking system on the desk.

He was referring to calls coming day and night from people who have locked themselves out of their cars. Many of them are excited calls because the keys were left in the car with the motor running — quite a luxuary with the price of gasoline what it is.

As Ford talked, two calls came in — and it was mid-afternoon. As a matter of fact, he said, these lockouts are about 10 percent of the total calls made to the police station.

Dates set to protest land value

The city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township have set hearing dates for their tax boards of review.

The boards of review meet each year in March to give residents and businesses the chance to appeal the tax assessments on real and personal property.

Any taxpayer who feels his/her property has been unjustly assessed can appeal to the local board. The decisions of the local boards of review also may be appealed up to the Michigan Taxation Commission.

The Plymouth Township Board of Review will be meeting from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2-5 p.m. on March 3 and March 10, and from 2-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. on March 9. Commercial, industrial and multiple owners make appeal their tax assessments by appointment and appear from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2-5 p.m. on March 19.

Taxpayers in Plymouth Township wishing to protest their assessments must file a petition with the township supervisor, Maurice Breen, who also is secretary of the board of review.

The board of review for the city of Plymouth will meet from noon to 6 p.m. March 3 and from 3-9 p.m. on March 4. The petition to protest may be obtained from the office of the city assessor, 201 S. Main, Plymouth. Taxpayers are encouraged to arrange for a conference with the city assessor before appealing to the board of review.

Plymouth Township anticipates a state equalized value (SEV) factor of 2.0186 for agricultural property, 1.4299 for commercial, 1.5052 for industrial, 2.0186 for residential, and 1.00 for personal property.

In Plymouth Township, according to the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation, agricultural land is assessed at almost 25 percent of true market value, commercial land at almost 35 percent of market value, industrial at some 33 percent, and residential at almost 25 percent of true market value.

The city of Plymouth is anticipating SEV factors of 1.00 for personal property, 1.3245 for industrial, 1.4258 for commercial and 1.5070 for residential.

For the first time in 1981 taxable properties are adjusted by class with the SEV multiplier which attempts to bring local assessments up to 50 percent of true market value.

1980: fewer miles driven, less deaths

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin told the State Safety Commission recently that recession and inflation make Michigan's traffic safety efforts look better than they really are.

Austin, chairman of the commission, said that the 1,760 traffic fatalities in 1980 were the lowest in 17 years. There were 1,869 deaths in 1979. The 20-year average is just over 2,000 per year, he said.

According to Austin, while the drop in deaths makes traffic safety efforts look good, miles driven dropped 5.5 percent (64.9 billion to 61.5) in 1980. This drop is the major explanation of the drop in deaths, he said. The rate of 2.9 deaths per hundred million miles drive in 1979, however, continued through 1980, he said.

RICHARD AUSTIN
Secretary of State

Although incomplete for 1980, statistics on all accidents appear to have dropped 5-10 percent.

Austin warned that 1980 budget cuts in police patrols, highway maintenance and construction, driver education and testing, driver improvement and school bus transportation mean trouble for highway safety.

In an effort to counteract these cuts and lighten the $1.3 billion burden traffic accidents place on the state's beleagured economy, Austin said he will make mandatory safety belt legislation and infant restraints major 1981 legislative goals.

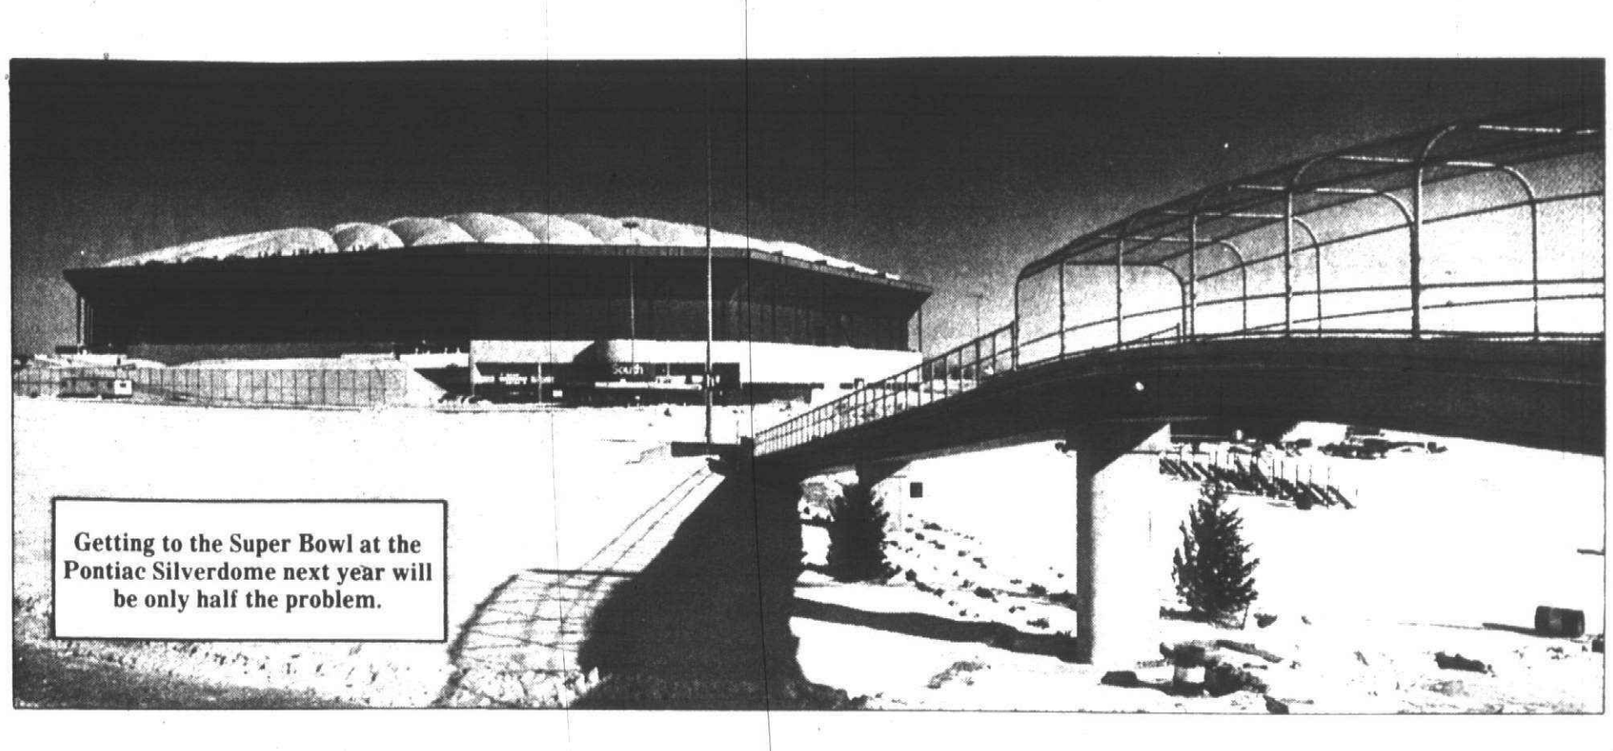

Safety belts already required in cars cost little or nothing to use. At least 280 of the 1,760 traffic deaths in 1980 could have been prevented by the use of seat belts, according to conservative estimates. These 280 unnecesssary deaths cost the people of Michigan more than $100 million.

In addition, safety belts and infant restraints could reduce or eliminate many crippling and expensive injuries, reduce human misery suffered by victims' families and reduce insurance premiums now levied on all motorists to cover insured losses. he said.

Austin said he will support the present 55 mph speed limit and will continue to oppose repeal of the motorcycle helmet law.

Sew what?

The first sewing machine patent of any record in the United States was granted to James Greenough of Washington, D.C., on Feb. 21, 1842, for his short stitch machine, which proved neither profitable nor simple. Later versions by Elias Howe and Isaac Singer gained greater popularity, as can be seen in the Home Arts Collection of Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, which includes examples of an 1852 Grover and Baker sewing machine and several 1854 Singers.

Getting to the Super Bowl at the Pontiac Silverdome next year will be only half the problem.

Expect a full house for Super Sunday

By CARL STODDARD

Virtually all hotel and motel rooms within 75 miles of the Pontiac Silverdome are already claimed for the week of the 1982 Super Bowl.

Many of the rooms — from Toledo to Flint and Port Huron to Lansing — have been committed to Super Bowl XVI since 1979. The 12,800 rooms were contracted by the Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau (MDCVB), an organization that woos conventions to the area and arranges services for the visitors.

MDCVB sales manager Rick Moses said there's "a good chance" that one of the football teams in the championship match will be staying at the Troy Hilton. The other team, he said, will probably stay at one the larger hotels in Southfield.

A final decision on the teams' lodgings won't be made until this summer, Moses said. It's virtually certain, however, that the teams will opt for the larger hotels. Each team requires 400-500 rooms for players, coaches, managers, team officials, family members, friends and other VIPS.

Tentative plans also call for the National Football League (NFL) officials and team owners to stay at the Detroit Plaza Hotel. Many of the 2,000 members of the visiting media will be housed at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn.

Quarters also must be obtained for the CBS crews who will be televising the game for some 100 million home viewers.

DURING THE GOP convention last summer, according to a survey by the GOP Civic Host Committee, about $44 million was spent in the Detroit area by delegates, party officials, visitors and members of the media.

By all accounts, Super Bowl XVI will kick off an even bigger spending spree.

"It's impossible to get a handle on all the spending," Moses admits. But even the most conservative estimate, he said, calls for more than $50 million to pour into the area during Super Bowl week. More optimistic projections put the figure as high as $120 million, he said.

Most hotel and motel rooms for Jan. 21-24, 1982 have been claimed by the MDCVB. If you want to rent a room for friends who will be visiting during that time, arrangements must be made through the visitors bureau.

If you want to reserve a room, write Rick Moses, Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau, 100 Renaissance Center, Suite 1950, Detroit 48243.

Not all lodgings in the area are under contract with the visitors bureau. Many smaller hotels and motels may have vacancies, Moses said. As happened during the GOP convention, many private homes also may be available for rent to visitors.

Super Bowl XVI will be the first in a northern climate.

"Where Fit is Foremost"

The alarming facts of home break-ins

The increased sophistication of electronics and the continued threats of residential theft and fire have brought new home security systems on the market. The alarms can protect family and property, the Better Business Bureau believes, but be sure to know the options before making a buying decision.

According to the FBI, a burglary takes place every 10 seconds, and few stolen goods are ever returned to their owners. While common sense actions like a well-lighted home can deter some thieves, a reliable alarm system can go even further.

There are many mechanisms to choose among including.

a) switch sensors which attach to doors or windows and trigger an alarm when tampered with;

b) pressure mats used to protect specific areas or possessions; these are hidden under a capet and activate when stepped upon;

c)ultrasonic motion detectors which an inaudible sound wave pattern, which trips an alarm when distrubed by an intruder; and d)infurared photoelectric sensors a light beamed between two points, usually at an entry, which sets off an alarm when the beam is interrupted.

ALSO DECIDE whether a burglar alarm system will be local or remote. the former only signals at or near the home. Its aim is to frighten away the burglar or alert neighbors to call the police.

A remote alarm sends a prerecorded message or signal through telephone lines to a designated security company neighbor or relative.

In few areas today do police allow these automatic alrms to alert them directly, because of the frequency of false alarms.

Smoke detectors are generally less complex than burblar alarms and most models now on the market are designed to allow the homeowner to install them easiy.

Those purchasing buarglar alarms or conbination burgalr smoke alarm systmes might consider having them installed by professionals. They may be able to minimize the wiring needed and place the sensors most effectively, taking into account any unusual architectural features in the home.

While a good smoke detector can be obtained for about $25, burglar alarm systems can range in price from several hundred dollars to thousands. In addition, a remote alarm system can involve a monthly service fee. It's worthwhile to get price quotes on the equipment and the installation. Also consider leasing versus buying, to learn which option is better.

Don't fall prey to scare tacticsa aimed at selling more than is necessary.

Humane Society director boosts animal rights

By LOUISE OKRUTSKY

If David Wills is successful in his tenure as director, things won't stay the same at the Michigan Humane Society. The Detroit-based organization is evolving into a system which reflects Wills' animal-rights philosophy.

After last year's successful lobbying effort to have the state outlaw the killing of animals through decompression, Wills looks forward to the society becoming a more active protector of all animals.

"Think of what we could do if we had the facility (to assure animal rights)," said Wills of Beverly Hills, who is in his first year as society director.

The move to provide such a facility can be seen in the plans for the society's proposed North Oakland Shelter in Avon Township. The new complex will include veterinary services and a wildlife rehabilitation station.

In addition to providing veterinary services to the public, the complex will make it possible for the society to sterilize animals at its own hospital and take care of injured wild animals such as deer, raccoons and owls.

Animals treated at the hospital will be in an environment which resists the stereotype of a dog pound, according to Wills. Hospital standards of cleanliness, ventilation, soundproofing and care will be available to four-legged or winged patients.

"The physical and psychological needs of animals need to be cared for. It will be pragmatic and more aesthetic without the connotation of a dog pound," said Wills, noting animals can know fear, apprehension and boredom.

Instead of placing cats and dogs next to each other in the new facility, the two species will be separated, Wills said.

"Cats shouldn't be housed next to dogs. They need windows they can look out of. They shouldn't be in a cage without a scratching post. Their bowls should be washed separately from the dogs so the cats aren't scared by strange odors. You can't just throw an animal into a cage with some litter in it."

Wills added that space for dogs should be soundproofed against barking and exercise space made available for the dogs. Proper ventilation of the area will prevent airborne diseases from spreading, Wills said.

He said even in an area separated from cats, dogs still need to be carefully placed. A female dog shouldn't be placed in an area next to a large male because she'll spend all of her time in fear, according to Wills.

'Cats shouldn't be housed next to dogs. They need windows they can look out of. Their bowls should be washed separately from the dogs so the cats aren't scared by strange odors.'
— Humane Society director David Wills

"When a dog's scared, it crouches in a corner. If someone comes by looking to adopt a dog, they'll see this dog all crouched in this corner and pass it by. The area should bring out the best in the animals.

"There are pragmatic reasons for these things. We're not talking about putting in color TV for the dogs as some of our critics suggest," he said.

The new complex also will deal with animals which aren't domesticated. The plan remedies what Wills sees as a gap in the society's ability to care for animals.

Now if someone brings in an injured deer, barn owl or duck, the society can't easily care for the animals.

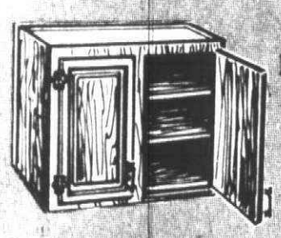

The new complex will be able to take care of these animals in its own hospital until they are well enough to be released into their natural surroundings or in some cases given to the Detroit zoo or Belle Isle zoo for permanent care.

The transition in the society's image away from dog pound status is part of Wills' concept of it as an animal welfare organization. Animals have rights which should be protected, Wills contends.

He likens the push for animal welfare to the struggle for children's and women's rights.

"Western civilization sees animals as being without souls. Man is supposed to have dominion over animals — they're seen as property which man can abuse. Man has abused children, races and persons of a particular sex. I'm trying to encourage a civilized attitude."

BEFORE YOU OPEN AN INTEREST-EARNING CHECKING ACCOUNT...

COUNT TO TEN.

If you think all interest-earning checking accounts are the same, you haven't been reading the fine print. Just one example. Major financial institutions in this area require minimum balances ranging from $500 to $2000 for such an account, in order to avoid monthly service charges. First Federal Savings of Detroit requires only $300.

So if you're about to open an interest-earning checking account, count the advantages you get at First Federal. You may get some of them elsewhere. But only at First Federal do you get all ten. Count 'em.

1. Your First Federal interest-earning checking account earns 5¼% annual interest.

2. First Federal compounds this interest continuously and pays it monthly, providing an effective annual yield of 5.467%.

3. There is no monthly service charge as long as you maintain a minimum balance of just $300.

4. First Federal offers overdraft protection. (You must apply for this benefit separately.)

5. First Federal gives you your first 50 personalized checks free. No strings attached.

6. First Federal returns your cancelled checks with each monthly statement. Free.

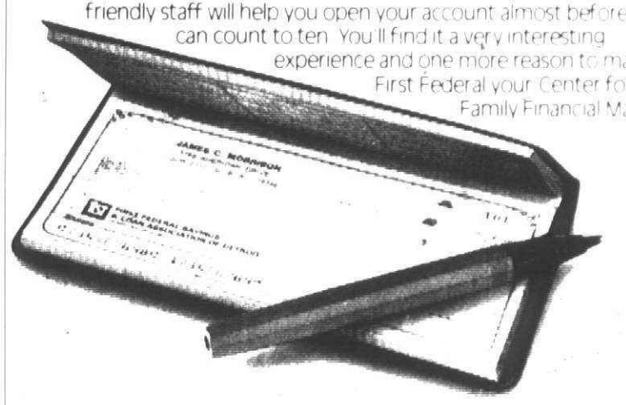

7. First Federal has over 60 offices conveniently located near where you live, work or shop. You can transact your First Federal business at any one of them.

8. First Federal provides fifteen 24-hour Night Owl Windows (automatic teller machines).

9. First Federal's Prestige* Emergency Cash feature entitles you to nationwide, out-of-town emergency cash withdrawals from your interest-earning checking account.

10. If you're at least 62 years old and sign up for direct deposit of your Social Security or other retirement benefit, you can have an interest-earning checking account at First Federal free of monthly service charges and with no minimum balance requirement.

Ten advantages that explain why thousands upon thousands have already opened their interest-earning checking accounts at First Federal. Join them. Just drop in at any First Federal office, and one of our friendly staff will help you open your account almost before you can count to ten. You'll find it a very interesting experience and one more reason to make First Federal your Center for Family Financial Matters.

Loiselle named to small business conference

Ronald Loiselle of Plymouth has been appointed by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, as a delegate to the Michigan Conference on Small Business.

The conference was announced by Gov. Milliken last May to learn directly from small business persons the actions state government might take to improve the state's small business climate.

Loiselle is a partner in General Business Services, 595 Forest Street in the Colony Office Plaza, Plymouth, which is a consulting firm to small businesses.

Loiselle says the formation of the conference is a recognition by the state of the importance of both the role small business will play in providing jobs and in giving input on issues affecting business growth in Michigan.

Some 12 forums have been held in 12 cities to discuss problems of small business in Michigan. After completion of regional conferences, including one in Detroit, the state conference will meet in Lansing May 11-13 to list priorities for proposals made by delegates at the regional caucuses.

Besides running the consulting business, Loiselle also is a member of the Plymouth City Commission.

The third book covers the Michigan straits area including areas like Petoskey, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Makinac Island, Saulte Ste. Marie, and Newberry.

One or all three of the directories may be picked up at Plymouth recreation office at 525 Farmer.

OPENS OFFICE

Dr. Raymond J. McCurdy, optometrist, has opened a second office of optometry.

The new office is at 39469 W. Joy three blocks east of I-275 in the Pine Tree Plaza. His second office is on S. Wayne Road north of Michigan Avenue in Westland.

Each office will handle eye examinations, contact lenses, and eyeglass fittings.

CASH MANAGEMENT

Cash Management Account, a new financial service from Merrill Lynch, is now available through the firm's Plymouth office in the Plymouth Landing building on N. Main near the C&O Tracks.

The new account integrates for the first time a variety of financial services into a single account. The cash management account program is primarily a brokerage account for investors to buy and sell securities, explains Tom Kelly, manager of the Plymouth branch.

The account also features automatic investment in shares of a money market fund and direct access to the cash redemption value of shares in the fund and to margin loans through the use of bank checks and a VISA card.

Kelly added that the new program will eliminate the many hours people spend keeping track of separate accounts. An investor can participate in the program with a minimum of $20,000 in securities and/or cash.

Cutting the ribbons are (from left) Supervisor James Poole, SEMTA representative Marvin Meltzer and County Commissioner Mary Dumas.

Park & Ride lot now open

The parking area adjacent to the Church of Christ of Plymouth, 9301 Sheldon Road, Plymouth, has been designated as a Park and Ride lot by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

Official ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held recently at the church.

Participating in those ceremonies were Canton Supervisor James Poole, Wayne County Commissioner Mary Dumas, and SEMTA Public Affairs Director Marvin Meltzer.

The new site provides free parking for passengers who use the SEMTA 815 Western Wayne Park and Ride service between Plymouth Township and downtown Detroit.

"We are extremely pleased to provide the residents of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships with this convenient service," said Meltzer.

"We could not have done it without the fine cooperation of the Rev. Gary Collins and the congregation of the Church of Christ of Plymouth."

Park and Ride service from the lot to downtown Detroit is available at 6:24 a.m., 6:49 a.m. and 7:19 a.m. on weekdays. Return afternoon service leaves Detroit's Renaissance Center at 4:35 p.m., 4:55 p.m., 5:15 p.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Additional 815 Western Wayne Park and Ride lots are at the Sheldon Center, Plymouth Road and Woodring; Wonderland Center, Plymouth and Middlebelt Roads; and Korvette's parking lot, W. Chicago and Telegraph.

Special puppets going to college

Four experts on parent education from the Infant Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP) of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will present a workshop on their special "Kids on the Block" puppet production at the 1981 Parent Educators' Conference.

The conference, sponsored by Eastern Michigan University, will be Feb. 19-20.

The four are: Lois Bass, social worker; and parents Pat Wise, Barbara Waters and Barbara Gusfa.

The conference, held at the Lansing Hilton, is arranged by the EMU Institute for the Study of Children and Families and Division of Continuing Education and will feature some 30 workshops on child development and behavior.

Workshops will address ways to get parents involved in programs, specific techniques to use in parent education, skills for working with specific types of parents, specific techniques in child management, ways to work with children with special needs, and community resources which can be used to support parent education.

A sampling of workshop titles includes "Children of Alcoholics: How They Survive, How We Can Help," "Working Parents: Effects on Children," "Helping Parents Use Children's Literature to Help Their Children at Home and at School," and "Working with Stepparents and Blended Families."

Workshop presenters will include parents and professionals in education, social work, nursing, home economics, and in child development.

The keynote address for the conference will be delivered by James Eddy of the Mott Children's Health Center who'll speak on "Management of Children" — concentrating on practical ways for parents to work more effectively with their children and on how parent educators can help parents improve their skills and increase their understanding of children.

Another feature of the conference will be a resource room which will include a multi-media center where participants can preview movies and film strips, a browsing library, and a book display where materials can be purchased.

There also will be an area for handouts and program displays.

"Kids on the Block" is a program featuring puppets with special handicaps and is aimed at raising the sensitivity of the general public toward what it's like to be handicapped.

Shocked when asked to leave

Editor:

What has happened to the charm of Emma's Restaurant in downtown Plymouth?

It is a sad day when two mothers treat their daughters to a special dinner and are asked to leave before finishing their meal.

This happened to us last Friday when at 7:40 p.m. we were asked to leave because a party of four were waiting for their table reservations of 7:30 p.m.

Shocked by this rude treatment, we left. Never were we told, when seated, that there was a time limit to our meal.

On our way out, we noticed that there was an empty table of four available and we did not see a party waiting. To be sure, Emma's has lost two families which were regular customers.

It's now time to compose ode to my '68 Charger

Nancy Walls Smith

If I had been born with an inclination toward poetry, right now I would be composing about 12 pages of blank verse, which I would entitle, "Ode To My '68 Charger."

Oh, how I love that car! And yet, sadly enough, I must face up to the fact that the old girl (or "boy" if you're a libber) is dying. Those constant and rather bizarre sounds that are issuing forth from it's rusted old green chassis can only be the automotive equivalent of a "death rattle."

That car has been so good to me. I love the way she accelerates so beautifully when I pull out into traffic (eight cylinders, ya know). My husband's car, though younger and less blighted in appearance than my own, sputters and chokes so when called to quickly accelerate that it always leaves me to wonder if I will be killed by the oncoming traffic or simply die of embarrassment. The quicker I can get out of the way of those other drivers, the more secure I tend to feel.

Not only is my old Charger lively, but she also steers so well. All I need do is point her in the right direction, and with only my loving hand resting ever so lightly on her steering wheel we glide ahead straight and proud.

Granted, she's not much on appearance. She once was a beauty, but the years have not been kind to her chrome. If rust were a virus, she would have succumbed long ago. Last summer my 6-year-old son stuck his finger through a rather large rust spot on the fender. My son was amazed at his own strength. I wasn't.

There's also a hole in the floor that allows for close scrutiny of the pavement if one is so inclined. I try not to look.

The air conditioning went a couple of years ago, but the radio plays great, so how could I complain? It would have been dreadful had it been the other way around. This car knows my priorities.

She is quite hard to start, but I'm not bothered by that. I know that she's going to stall on me at least three times before we embark on any journey, but she's polite enough to do it only in the garage — unlike other cars I've heard of who are rude enough to cease functioning in the presence of other impatient automobiles. We have satisfactorily worked out our daily ritual of starting and stalling each morning, after which I sit quietly and wait a few minutes while she warms up and gets in the mood. Once she's gained her composure, she never lets me down. She's such a good car.

But for the last week my dear car has been making noises I would have never thought her capable. Such grindings and scrunches and scrapping, coming from somewhere deep within her vast works, have me deeply worried. I'm not knowledgable enough about automotive internals to even guess what these strange noises might be (I know even less about cars than I do football), but I do know they're not good.

I asked my darling husband, mechanical wizard that he is, to please drive my car and give me a diagnosis. Naturally she made nary a sound as he drove her, so he returned to me with the verdict of "no problem!"

So I continue to drive my dear old Charger while she continues to make noises similar to those of that door opening on the old "Inner Sanctum" show; and I worry. I worry if I'm going to get where I'm going, and once I do, I worry if I shall return.

I've started having weird thoughts such as picturing myself sitting in the middle of Ann Arbor Road having fallen through her rusted framework.

Such worries do not make for pleasant driving. If things don't get any better, I may have to take her out behind the garage and shoot her. Put the poor thing out of her misery.

But if I do, I swear, I shall never love again as I have loved that wonderful old '68 Charger. Sigh.

Wise fiscal policy sometimes means spending

There's a time to be cautious about spending money.

But there's also a time when money should be spent for necessary items which only will cost more at a future date.

That view certainly has merit in tight economic times. Police and fire services and smooth operations at Township Hall should take precedence over recreational capital improvements.

That doesn't mean all improvements should be eliminated or that recreation should fall outside the umbrella of government services.

It doesn't mean that federal recreational grants should be rejected, just because Canton would be obligated to match the grant.

LAST MONTH, the Township Board rejected up to $75,000 in federal matching monies which would have been used for the purchase of a 40-acre site in rural northwest Canton.

In rejecting the grant commitment, the board maintained the proposed park site was not a good location. Residents of nearby Pilgrim Hills subdivision vehementaly objected to the proposal. Board members maintained that the site — proposed as a winter sports area — would not offer the type of activities most needed by residents.

Recently, the board earmarked a 45-acre site behind Township Hall as the topic of application for a federal park-development grant. That site, already owned by Canton, would be used for organized team sports, such as softball and soccer.

A disturbing undercurrent lies beneath the discussion of both park proposals.

In submitting the second grant application, some officials said they may vote to reject the grant — even if it is approved by the federal government. In rejecting the original commitment, several officials said that no township money should be spent right now on recreational capital improvements.

That attitude seems penny-wise and dollar-foolish.

MORE RECREATIONAL facilities are needed in Canton Township. Funding those improvements with a combination of township and federal dollars is a wise financial move.

Rejecting a commitment for federal funds simply moves those dollars somewhere else. It delays an expenditure which should be made someday — probably at a higher cost.

Three years ago, some political pressure was placed on the Township Board to reject a $2.2 million federal grant for construction of Canton's new administration building. Opponents to the grant's acceptance maintained that utility bills would skyrocket if government moved from old Township Hall (currently, the police station) to the new building.

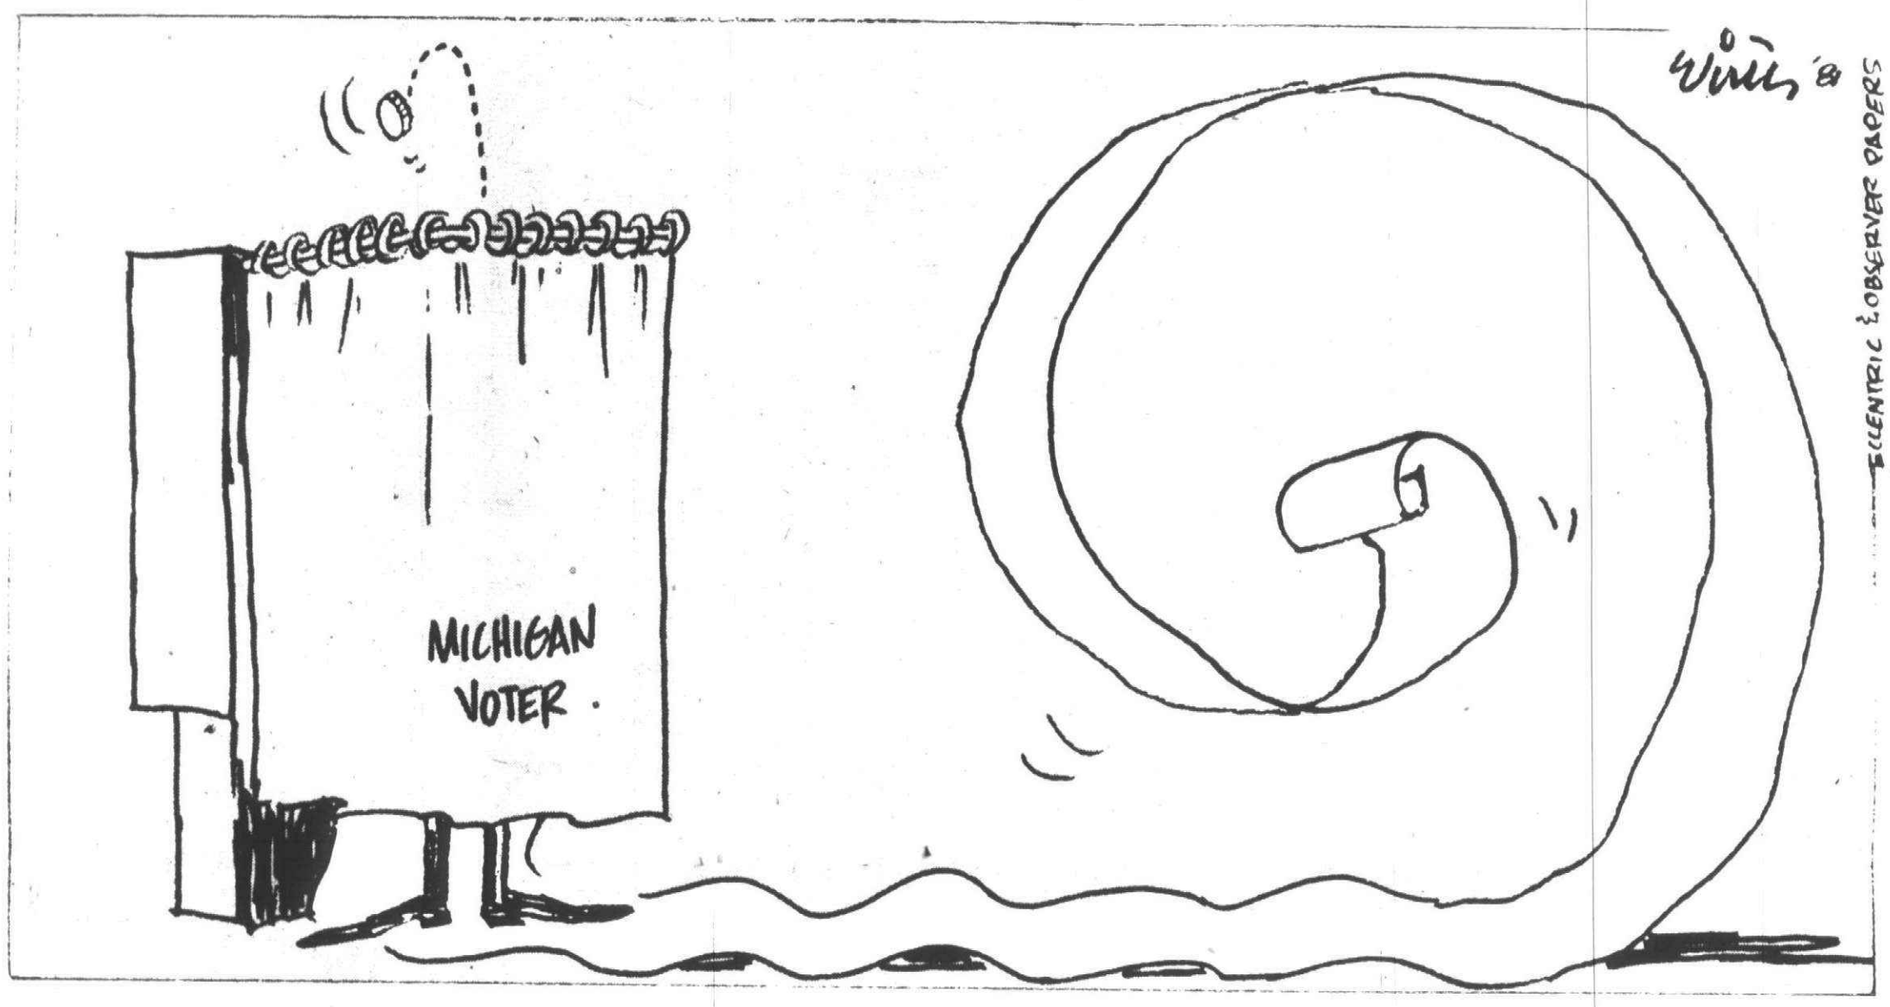

To some degree, that turned out to be true. But government could not have stayed in the old, cramped building for long. Rejecting the federal grant would have obligated the township treasury for the entire construction cost.

The comparison may underscore a moot point. Township officials already have rejected a federal recreational grant. A second one may not be approved.

But board members should realize that the wisest decision sometimes means spending money now.

Compared to some municipalities, Canton Township is in good financial shape. That condition can be credited to the board's tight-fisted spending policy.

But carrying that policy too far is much more foolish than wise.

OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC NEWSPAPERS

Our long, long, long, long ballot

Every four years, Michiganians develop ballot fatigue. They get tired of waiting in very long lines to vote on a very long list of candidates for a very long list of offices.

Some decide not to vote at all. Of the dedicated voters, particularly in suburban Wayne County, many respond by voting by absentee ballot through the simple expedient of telling the local clerk they expect to be out of town on election day. It's a little white lie, but no one checks up on you.

After election day, my colleagues and I write editorials and columns saying the more logical response is to have a shorter ballot. That will mean appointing rather than electing many officials.

It will mean less ballot fatigue and more chance for the voter to hold his elected officials accountable.

Finally, we have an ally.

Lt. Gov. James Brickley is advocating just such a constitutional amendment. He is asking the Michigan Legislature to put on the ballot a plan for gubernatorial appointment of state education posts and the two top courts.

If the legislature won't move, then he plans a petition drive to put it on the ballot. He should.

THE TYPICAL suburban county voter, over an election cycle, votes on at least 134 offices. Figure it out:

Federal government — president, vice president, two U.S. senators, one U.S. representative, for a total of four.

State partisan government — governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, eight members each of the State Board of Education, University of Michigan Board of Regents, Michigan State University Board of Trustees and Wayne State University Board of Governors, for a total of 36.

Legislature — a senator and a representative, a total of two.

Judicial — seven members of the State Supreme Court, six from a district for the State Court of Appeals, 36 for the Wayne Circuit Court, nine for the Wayne Probate Court and an average of two for the local District Court for a total of 60.

County government — prosecutor, sheriff, treasurer, clerk, register of deeds, drain commissioner, three members of the board of auditors, a member of the board of commissioners and a charter commissioner for a total of 11.

Education boards — seven trustees of Schoolcraft College, seven for the K-12 district board of education, for a total of 14.

Local government — typically seven members of a city council or a township board. In some cities, the mayor, clerk and treasurer are elected separately. In some townships, a parks board may also be elected, and some township residents are also in villages where a council is elected. The total could be as high as 21, but let's just use seven.

IT ADDS UP to 134, in new math or old. I didn't include the partisan precinct delegate, who is part of the presidential election process.

Can you name them all? I make my living covering government, and at best I might hit 60 or 70 percent.

The job would be even tougher if you were to ask me to summarize the judicial philosophy of the Hon. George N. Bashara Jr. or the Hon. Vincent J. Brennan, who make major decisions on the court of appeals.

It could be worse. You could live in Detroit where you'd have the additional chores of voting on a wad of recorders judges, common pleas and traffic court judges, a nine-member city council, a central school board and a regional (ward-sized) school board.

I vote yes on cutting the number of elected officials.

Toy trend points to truck demise

Being a trendsetter can be the pits — especially when you're 30 years ahead of everyone else.

Take this article in the Wall Street Journal the other day, for instance.

Tyco, a traditional manufacturer of toy trains, has announced it's turning its eye to, of all things, trucks. So, big deal, I thought to myself.

But after reading about Tyco's logic I gave it another thought.

Seems that years ago, at least according to Tyco moguls, the only thing a little boy wanted was an electric train.

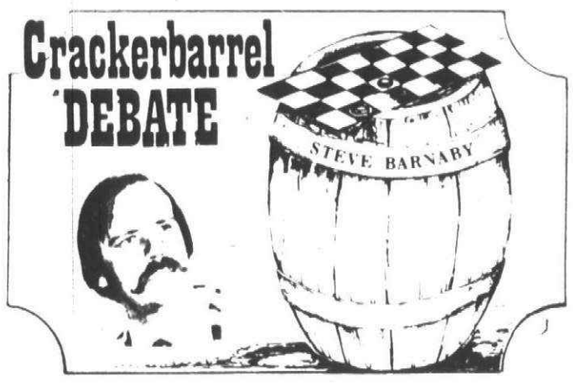

"Nowadays, I don't think that would even cross a child's mind," said Tyco president Richard Grey. Today, he said, kids love trucks.

With that philosophy in mind, Tyco is turning to manufacturing all sorts of electronically operated trucks — dump trucks, tractor-trailer rigs, shipping terminals, cranes, gravel hoppers and a plethora of paraphernalia.

These electric jobbies will retail for about $30.

Well, let me tell you something, Mr. Grey, trucks always were top priority on my gift list. Phooey on those dumb electric trains.

MY OLDER BROTHER was the keeper of the electric train in our house.

Looking back, I figure that as a youth I knew a trend when I saw it — trucks would be the major transportation of the future. Trains were on the way out.

I kept telling my brother how visionary I was but he didn't seem impressed.

Unfortunately, I completely missed the important part of the trend. Toys' popularity is based on two factors — the future and the past. Just look around the toy shelves. On one hand can be seen reams and reams of outer space oriented toys.

On the other is the nostalgia — trains, old-fashioned china face dolls and trucks.

And from the look of things, trucks will someday go the way of the train, a piece of American memorabilia to be remembered with fondness.

The other night I had a conversation with a guy who has been in the trucking business for a good many years. With the increasing cost of diesel fuel it's getting more difficult to keep those big rigs, which consume a gallon every three miles, in business.

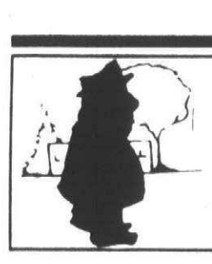

In the heydey of trucking, diesel fuel was dirt cheap. Just a few years ago, truckers were paying 35 cents a gallon. Those were in the days when gasoline was going for 75 cents.

BUT ALL THAT has changed. Today diesel fuel has reached the same levels as gasoline.

Sure, trucks aren't going to disappear from America's highways tomorrow or even in the next decade. But toy manufacturers have a keen sense for what sells.

Trucks have become a part of American folklore. They represent a time of unimagined wealth which, as we all know, is something else which is becoming just a memory.

Chrysler and 'free enterprise'

Every now and then as a fellow travels along life's bustling highway, he tends to forget that there are two sides to a coin.

When that happens, you usually are taken to task in no uncertain terms and are asked to take a look at the other side.

This happened to The Stroller a few days ago when he was called to account by a secretary employed by Chrysler Corp. for a recent column in which he bemoaned the lack of free enterprise, especially in the automobile industry where the government is being called upon for help.

In the column The Stroller related the story of free enterprise in our little town back in the foothills of the Dutch country in Pennsylvania and how his mother had met the challenge of a new restaurant by specializing in homemade pies. She won the battle for our little lunch counter that was the only means of support for our family. It was free enterprise at its best.

But the column struck a nerve in some quarters and in the mail came this very interesting denunciation of the tale that The Stroller thought was a bit heartwarming in these trying days.

THE LETTER SAID:

"I have never read a more ridiculous analogy nor one that reveals greater naivete on the part of the writer.

"Yes — we at Chrysler, too, believe in the free enterprise system, but —

" Did your mother have to pay top wages to anyone employed by her in the pie shop? —the dental bills of employees (and their families) —their vision needs (and their families)? their hospitalization and their families?

"Did your mother have to contend with the U.S. Government telling her how to bake her pies so that there would be no smog from the coal or wood stove to pollute the atmosphere ?

"Then, was she subjected to the installation of miscellaneous gadgetry to cut down on atmospheric pollution(?) in her kitchen and sundry other gadgets to appease 'Nader' hysteria?

'Did you mother have to contend with the diverse segments of humanity, among whom are those prone not toward quality work as a personal criteria, and all such incompetence defended by seniority rights so that firing is impossible?

"FREE ENTERPRISE — you've got to be kidding. The unions and the government control the 'free' enterprise system these days.

"I work at Chrysler — just a simple secretary — but I challenge your intelligence on the subject against mine."

And the letter was signed Elaine Hut.

Well, Elaine, first allow me to thank you for reading The Stroller column. You know, when a fellow sits down to write, he never knows where the printed word may go. When he recives a letter from a reader, it is a source of satisfaction to know that someone not only read it, but had taken the time to write a letter.

Did you know that last year in Michigan, soybeans ranked as the No. 2 cash crop, outranked only by corn? The economic value of the soybean crop in our state has increased 1,700 percent since 1960.

fitness

Barry Franklin

Who's the fittest of them all?

Question: Isn't it true that elite cyclists have the highest cardiovascular or aerobic fitness of any athletic group? My friend claims that cross-country skiers are the most fit athletes in the world. A six-pack rides on your answer.

M.B., Southfield

Cardiovascular or aerobic fitness is defined as the ability to take in, transport and utilize oxygen. It is determined by a test of the maximal oxygen consumption (VO2 max), preferably in a laboratory.

The laboratory test involves the estimation or direct measurement of an individual's oxygen consumption at peak exercise, usually on a treadmill or stationary bicycle.

Since a large person will generally have a large oxygen uptake, the value is usually divided by body weight so that people of various sizes may be compared.

This value is commonly expressed in milliliters of oxygen per kilogram of total body weight per minute (ml/kg/min). Obviously, the higher the score the higher the level of aerobic fitness.

The variation in maximal oxygen consumption (VO2 max) values for different athletic groups is shown in the figure. All athletes were males, of similar age, and considered to be elite or national caliber.

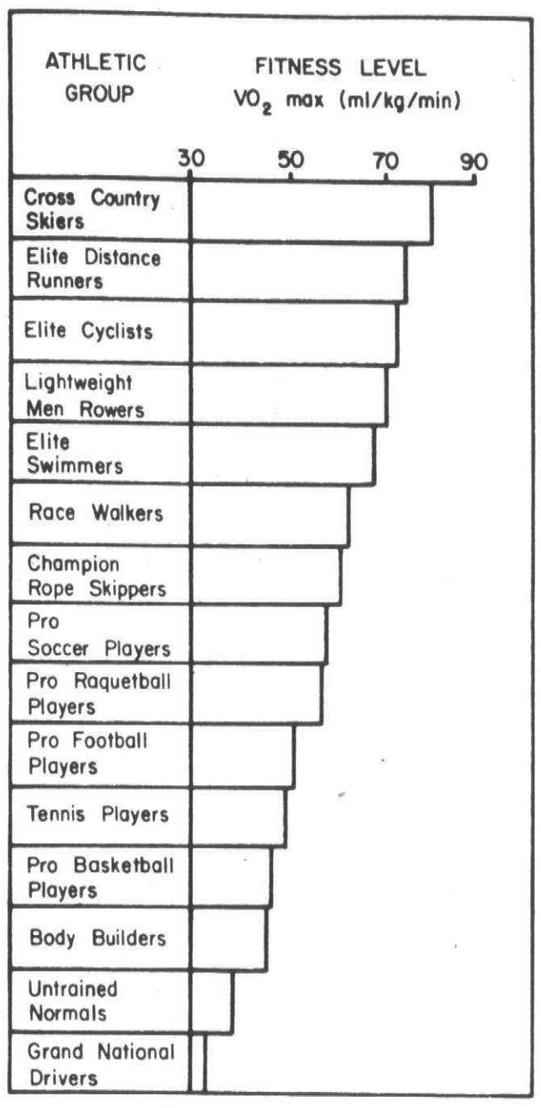

Note that the values are highest in those groups of athletes whose sport requires sustained rhythmic exercise. In contrast, lower values are noted in static or sprint-type sports.

It is interesting that grand national race car drivers have fitness levels actually below those found in untrained men!

The highest values of maximal oxygen consumption are reported for cross-country skiers, with long distance runners a close second. While elite cyclists have high levels of cardiovascular fitness, they tend to be slightly lower than those for skiers and runners.

Camper show packs it in; Oakwoods has Indian artifacts

By LEM MESEE

If you're one of the more than 24 million camping Americans, you'll want to mark your calendar to visit the 14th annual Detroit Camper and Travel Trailer show. This year's theme is "Family Camping: A Super Economy Plan."

Running through Sunday, the show is at the West Detroit Artillery Armory on W. Eight Mile Road, west of Northland Shopping Center. Hours are 2-10 p.m. today and Friday and noon to 10 p.m. on the weekend. Tickets are $3 for adults, $1 for children 6-12 and persons over age 62. Tack on another $1 for parking.

Perhaps the only industry hit harder than automotive at the time of the Arab oil embargo a few years back, the recreational vehicle industry is making a comeback based on more fuel-efficient campers, trailers and RVs.

Industry studies have shown that a majority of present RV-owners plan to purchase another RV, and most of those folks are planning to upgrade their present models even at a time when gas is approaching $1.50 per gallon.

Weight reduction, sleeker aerodynamic design and more fuel-efficient engines have just about sent the old RV that got about 8 mpg to the junkyard. Today many models boast 20 mpg, and the industry is eyeing the 30-mpg mark.

The Michigan Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute is touting a new mileage phrase, "pmpg" or passenger miles per gallon. Using the reasoning that persons hardly ever camp alone, they figure that an RV carrying four people on a camping trip would probably get 50 pmpg as opposed to a 30 mpg compact car carrying only one person.

The show will feature more than 800 RVs. Other items on view will be hitches, supplies and accessories, pickup trucks and cars equipped to carry or pull units, awnings, trail bikes, porches, toilets, suspensions systems, heaters and air conditioners, water heaters, transmission coolers and communications equipment. Information on campgrounds, travel, conservation clubs, financing, insurance and RV maintenance will be available.

Another show billing the great outdoors as the best and cheapest entertainment buy in Michigan is the 1981 Outdoorama Show Feb. 20-March 1 at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. More exhibitors of hunting, fishing and other outdoor specialties have signed up this year than in the show's 40-year history.

Films, clinics and a nightly big-buck contest will join old standbys like Victor the wrestling bear, lumberjack exhibitions and high-wire acts.

If you're in the mood for doin' instead of just lookin,' strap on those cross country skis for an evening tour at 6:30 p.m. Friday at Kensington Metropark near Milford. Interpreter Dave Moilanen, starting from the nature center, will lead the tour of some of the park's natural areas and a discussion of nature's night life. He will also attempt to attract some owls along the way.

Advanced registration is required for the two-hour tour. Rental equipment is available at the Ski Touring Center. Call 685-1408. To register, call 685-1561. Vehicle permits are required.

Indian artifact buffs are invited to "Arrowhead Show and Tell" from 2-4 p.m. Sunday at the nature center at Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock.

Visitors can bring their collections of Indian relics, like arrowhead spears, celts and drills, and have one of the members of the Michigan Archaeological Society determine the age, material source, usage, manufacturing techniques and users of these items.

For more information, call 782-1255.

Vehicle entry permits of $2 daily or annual senior citizen or $7 regular annual are required at all Metroparks.

Hard-to-store tools need a proper home

Shoe boxes, empty orange crates or your old army duffle bag simply will not do when it comes to storing hand tools, says the Hand Tools Institute, the association of U.S. and Canadian hand tool manufacturers.

Hand tools are valuable, precisely crafted products and should be stored properly in tool box, chest or cabinet, the institute stresses.

The most characteristic difference between the tool box, chest or cabinet is size.

Perhaps the most popular is the portable hand-held tool box. It may have five drawers, cantilevered trays that open automatically when the cover is lifted, or it may simply have a lift-out tote tray.

Quality tool boxes are of welded construction, have handles on both ends on the heavy-duty type in addition to the top cover handle, a catch or hasp at each end for a padlock or a built-in lock, and weather-resistant construction to keep the rain out.

THE BIG brother to the tool box is the tool chest. This is customarily heavier, stronger and larger, having up to 10 or more drawers.

The largest of the three types is the tool cabinet, normally found in professional surroundings and distinguished from the others by its large size and casters for rolling from point to point.

Look for drawers that can be secured by a locking front cover or a locking device, drawers that roll smoothly even with heavy loads, casters of ball bearing construction with two wheel brakes to prevent accidental rolling, bracing construction to prevent swaying when being moved from point to point.

When moving a tool cabinet, push it, never pull it.

WHICHEVER YOU use — a tool box, chest or cabinet — never use it as a stepstool, anvil, saw horse or place to store your lunch.

Here are some other pointers:

- Lightly oil moving parts, i.e. drawers, hinges, hasps.
- Use graphite, not oil, on locks.
- Drawers and trays that hold sharp-edged tools such as chisels, screwdivers, etc., should be lined with felt or scrap carpeting.
- Touch up rust spots. Pay particular attention to the bottom of the box.
- Wipe all grease and moisture from tools before storing.
- Never drop a tool box. Always place it on the ground or floor.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

EXECUTIVES were washing dishes; bank managers and doctors took the day off; waitresses donated hours of their time.

With everyone cooperating, the Canton Rotary Club's annual spaghetti/chicken dinner was a lot of work and a lot of fun. The final statistics are not complete, but Walt McCrae estimates that they served about 600 diners. Once expenses are paid, the club should have close to $500 to turn over to the Canton Historical Society.

Lee Halsted chaired the dinner in the Roman Forum restaurant. Greg Gato, fellow Rotarian and one of the owners of the Forum, spent 16 hours or so in the kitchen, cooking up a storm.

They started serving before noon; traffic was sporadic until dinner time when there was a line-up.

Even Rick Nadeau, president of the club showed up. They weren't expecting him when the word got around that his wife, Linda, was in the hospital giving birth to their first child. A 9-pound,

by ELLIE GRAHAM

9-ounce boy, Stephen Richard, was born at 4:06 p.m. in Garden City Hospital. Rick stopped in at the dinner about an hour later to share the good news.

"But he wasn't much help to us," said Walt with a grin. After 17 hours of labor and finally a C-section, Rick admits to being a little wilted and very relieved and happy.

The Canton Historical Society had a table set up in the entry way. Members of the society were on hand selling their scratch pads, note paper and large stationery. Bonnie Berg, historical society trustee; Dorothy West, president; and Ruth Wiles, secretary treasurer sold stationery and talked historical society and museum to the guests.

"Those Rotarians make wonderful busboys and hosts," said Bonnie. "It was a wonderful evening. We had one of our framed prints of the museum there. The limited edition prints framed in barnwood are $100 but because we are non-profit organization, it is tax deductible."

The dinner was a benefit with net proceeds going to the Canton Historical Society and the Canton Historical Museum.

ALSO ON MONDAY evening, the Plymouth Business and Professional Women, hosted their annual guest night.

Wayne County Sheriff Bill Lucas was honored guest and speaker. More than 90 persons attended the dinner meeting in the Margaret Streng Room of Hillside Inn. Several Plymouth Township officials and residents were there — Maurie and Mary Breen, Ken and Esther Hulsing, Carol Levitte, Bill Joyner and others.

The sheriff was introduced by Joann Delaney. He talked about the history of the Sheriff's Department and problems with the Wayne County Jail. He also discussed his stand on the road patrol in Plymouth Township.

Members of his audience wanted to know why prisoners weren't helping pay their way by doing road work and why the Detroit House of Correction isn't at least semi self-supporting.

He explained that prisoners in Wayne County Jail are awaiting trial and are innocent until judged guilty. He added that security for prisoners doing road work also posed problems. In reply to the query about DeHoCo, he said the old dairy barns, orchards and outbuildings are out of repair and a study several years ago determined they were not paying their way.

The sheriff said the first date on his calendar in the new year is always the Plymouth Fourth of July parade, an event he enjoys. Ruth Barney and Kathy O'Donnell, two of his former secretaries, were in the audience.

The new Canton BPW club was represented at the gathering. They presented a special thank you to the Plymouth Club for its support as sponsor and assisting in its charter night festivities.

ANTHONY BATTLE who lives on Five Mile Road, west of Beck, couldn't believe his eyes when he saw hundreds of robins in his yard Tuesday morning. "There must be 400 of them," said Anthony.

He threw out bread crumbs to encourage them to stay.

Can the 7 dwarfs save Snow White?

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will open at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 27 in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School. The perennial favorite was chosen by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women as its 21st annual children's play.

The live and exciting drama will be presented at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 28, and at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday, March 1. Tickets at $1 each are on sale at Del's Shoes on Main Street, Plymouth and Main Street, Northville, and at the Book Break in New Towne Plaza, Canton Township. More than 5,400 tickets were sold last year.

For many children, the annual AAUW play is their first experience with live theater. The drama always is presented in a way that makes the children feel part of the action.

Wesners create their own Las Vegas

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

You can be a winner without a pocketful of coins or a fistful of bills. Helen and Mike Wesner wanted to show everyone how to do this recently when they added a new twist to their party.

It started out to be a surprise party for their neighbor, Mike Travis, and ended up as a spectacular evening for everyone.

There was an old door in the basement that was turned into a crap table. Poker tables were set up in the family room. Black Jack tables were placed in the dining and living room.

At 8 p.m. guests started gathering in the kitchen. When 9:15 rolled around everyone scattered for the game of their choice. The snacks and hors d'oeuvres were plentiful since they were the only thing that people were told to bring.

CAROL SHAW sat down at the roulette wheel and never moved for four hours. She was determined that her number would come up sooner or later. Mary and Ron Cundiff, Jackie and Tim Westbay, Jerry and Pat Jorgenson, Jan Brawn and Mary Jane Travis were right along with Carol when it came to the spinning of that wheel.

The dealers for all of the tables alternated throughout the evening without any regularity. Jerry and Ron Shubnell, Judy and Bill Justice were all enticed by the hand Lady Luck dealt.

For some reason the crowd at the crap table is always the loudest. There must be some kind of magic in the roll of the dice to get everyone so excited. Delores and Tom Munson, Nancy and Dick Hale, Erica and John Ruacco, Shannon and Jim Monro, Bobby and Mike Ryan along with Darryl Brawn kept a sharp eye on every new shooter.

There are always a few who like the more physical games of luck.

LEO CARTER, Bob Shaw, Terry and Dick Cohen, Mary and Sherm Moore, Margaret and Jim Andrews, Bonnie and Ed Randolf, Mary Ellen and Bud Magaldi, Barb and Vic Gustason, Collen and Darrell Labombard, along with Kathy and Al Napolitano, disappeared for the entire evening. It seems that in the basement was the real challenge of the hard core enthusiast. There was a full size pinball machine set to play for free for the enjoyment of all. It was hard to wait your turn with all the high scores flashing in front of you.

The fast action game of football kept the players moving at a steady pace for score after score.

How could one household have so much in the way of entertainment? The Wesners have four sons; John, Jim, Mike and Mark to keep busy during these long Michigan winters.

Nobody lost because everyone had a fantastic time, due to the ingenious planning of the Wesner clan. A special thrill for Helen was that her parents, Jim and Kinky Murphy, came in from Chicago for the party. Kathy Parise supplied the birthday cake for the 33-year-old birthday boy.

TOM LUELLEMAN and his sister, Judy Kolp, had their special yearly celebration together again. Their family congregates this time in February because everything happens in one week: two birthdays and their parents' anniversary. The party gets crazier every hour that goes by. They are a very special family and have a great deal of fun.

I WOULD like to take this opportunity to thank all of my friends and neighbors for their support during my son's extended stay in the hospital. It brought me new insight to the helplessness we feel when there is nothing we can do but sit and wait. You want to be two places at one time — at home with the rest of the children who also need you and ever present in reach of your ill child.

Many people experience this situation month after month with members of their immediate family and the other people surrounding them are as needed as ever and always very appreciated.

new voices

Rick and Linda Nadeau of Canton Township announce the birth of their first child, a son, Stephen Richard, born Feb. 16, 1981, in Garden City Hospital.

Grandparents are Richard and Joann Nadeau and Elsworth and Margaret Stephens, all of Westland.

Woman's Club announces annual beneficiaries

Members of the Woman's Club of Plymouth distribute money each year to deserving organizations. Decision of how the money will be allocated is decided by a Civic Committee chaired this year by Mary Childs who was assisted by Marianne Garber and Dorothy Green.

The committee announced the recipients at the club's February meeting.

Grants of $100 were given to each of the following: The Salvation Army Building Fund, Salvation Army Family Aid Service, Plymouth Student Artfest '81, Plymouth Historical Society, Plymouth Family Services, Growth Works, Plymouth Goodfellows, Plymouth Symphony Society, and Plymouth Opportunity House.

The sum of $75 was given to FISH.

Fifty-dollar grants went to Plymouth Youth Symphony, Plymouth Theater Guild, and to the city of Plymouth for a flag.

The club's main fundraiser, its annual luncheon, card party and boutique, will be at noon Monday, March 30, in First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Nursery school provides voc ed training

What are 3½- and 4-year-olds doing at Plymouth Canton High School? How do these preschoolers fit into a teenage world?

The youngsters attend Canton Children's Corners, the Centennial Educational Park's laboratory nursery school. High school vocational students, enrolled in the child care classes at CEP, receive two credits toward graduation when they complete the two-year program.

The center provides job-training experience for the students. It also is used by child development, health, psychology and sociology classes for observational purposes and to study behavior and developmental sequences.

Sue Visser, who heads the child care center, said that in the seven years that it has been in operation, she has seen high school students who were involved go on to careers in nursing, teaching, pediatrics and social work.

"They have worked in day care centers and also received training in parenting."

Nora Greeley, high school student, reads to preschooler Michele Jacques in the library corner of the laboratory classroom at Plymouth Canton High School. (Photo by Reid Scott)

THE NEED FOR parenting education at the high school level has become apparent to educators. Parent education classes are mandated in Iowa and Illinois schools.

Debra Barnewolt, a sociological researcher at Loyola University, recently completed an in-depth behavorial and attitudinal study, "Mothering: Nurturing in the '80s."

Her study indicated that today's family is smaller and more isolated, and parents have no one to turn to for guidance or assistance. "Parent education will help fill the void left as families become more nuclear, isolated and mobile," says Barnewolt.

"Fewer young parents have a support group on which to rely and grandparents are too far away to help. Parenting in the '80s will be substantially different from the past."

She predicts preparation for parenting will appear in three forms: required pre-parenting high school classes, new parent classes, and mass media educational programming. She expects adult education classes for young adults and parents-to-be to mushroom.

"The popularity of Lamaze training illustrates that expectant parents have the monetary resources and make the time to learn a technique recommended by their physicians," noted Barnewolt. "There is every reason to believe physicians will encourage parent education courses with as much, if not more enthusiasm."

THE PRESCHOOLERS in Canton Children's Corners attend the two-hour sessions two days a week, Mondays and Wednesdays, or Tuesdays and Thursdays. There are morning and afternoon sessions. Fridays are planning days for Mrs. Visser and the vocational students.

Students work closely with the children. Working on a one-to-one basis, a visit to "their" child's home is included in the class. They can watch the child's progress and share the victories.

The center's goals are to promote a positive self-concept in children; to teach the children to become independent; to teach the children to take directions from adults other than parents; to provide an atmosphere where children can experience many new things, sharing, socializing with peers, new materials and idea discovery; and to provide an atmosphere where children feel free to express their feelings and share their ideas.

SUE VISSER says one of the joys shared by the high school students and herself is watching a very shy child progress to the point where he or she contributes news items during the opening group time.

A one-way window allows the students to observe the preschoolers.

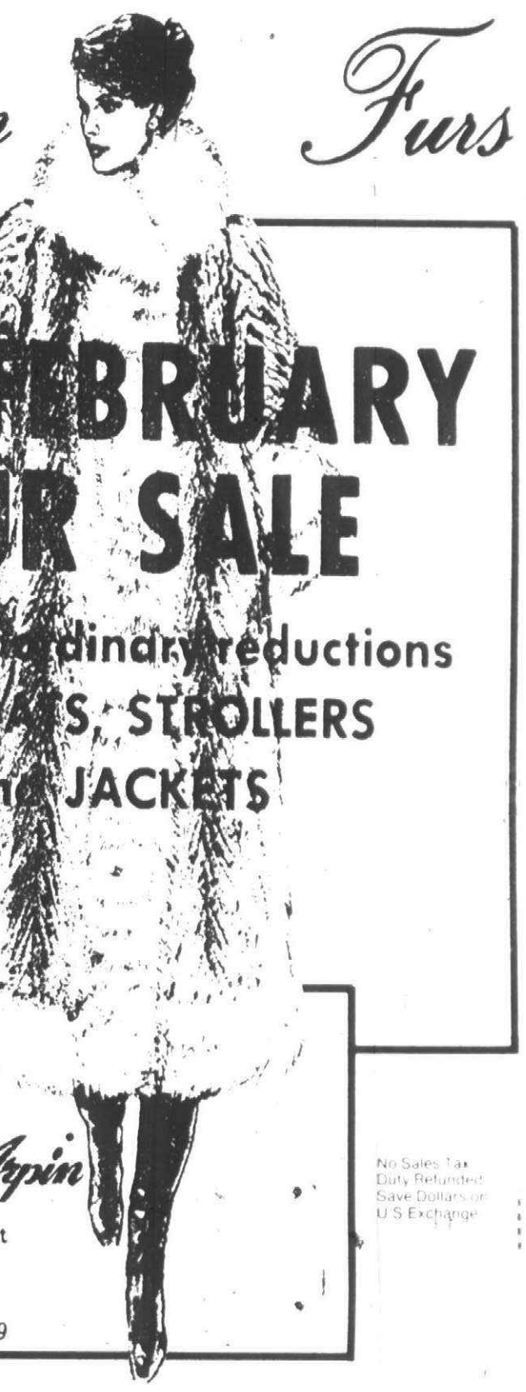

But most of their time is spent with the children who are unaware that they are part of a learning experience.

Recent open houses at the Children's Corners resulted in more applications for the 1981 fall classes than can be accommodated. Children who live in the Plymouth Canton Community School District are eligible to attend the laboratory school.

Elderly's problem: housing

The No. 1 problem of the elderly, according to John Keeler, is housing, not just the availability of units but the quality of life in a high-rise communal living situation.

Keeler, a therapist and supervisor for Oakland County Catholic Social Services, spoke on the topic recently at the winter conference of the state National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officers in Plymouth.

"We receive at least three calls a day about housing," said Keeler. "We have 24 high-rises in Oakland serving 5,000 elderly persons. But there are 100,000 persons in the county over 60 years of age. And we have 1,500-2,000 on the waiting lists for each high-rise."

Calls, Keeler said, come not only from prospective tenants but also from resident managers of housing facilities who are confronted with people accustomed to a way of life and finding that lifestyle altered drastically.

He said it was normal for a new tenant to be anxious and confused. "For some, it is the first new place they ever had, the first high-rise. Many are excited and happy."

There are some who continue to talk about their old home and wish to return there.

He suggested the need for therapy if this confusion continues for six or eight months.

"Be alert, don't shy away from it. What is the problem? Is this a cry for help?"

KEELER SAID that older tenants are not hard on the physical plant, "but the ideal tenant may not be that well off. The resident who begins to withdraw may have a serious problem. Friends and relatives die. As they lose friends, they make no attempt to make new friends.

"They have a narrow view of reality, and as reality shrinks, they develop a tunnel vision. They hear things, believe people are talking about them. They need interaction and the contacts necessary to bring reality into their lives.

"They all need support and they need to develop new friendships."

Keeler cited illness as another concern of the residents, who feel they will be forced out if they become ill.

"When they moved in, they signed a paper saying they were physically sound. When they become ill, they try to hide it. They don't want it known that they are having problems because they might have to leave."

This is another case when a therapist can ease their worries, said Keeler.

WHEN ASKED to comment on the failure on the part of the Legislature to pass Senate Bill 318, Keeler said, "Bill 318 will be re-introduced and ground rules will be established to protect adults who need a guardianship. I have a theory about why there has been legislation to protect children from abuse, but none to protect the adult, the elderly.

"Here's my theory: Either in fantasy or reality, as children we all believed that at some time or other we received abusive treatment. People can relate to that. So the child abuse legislation was passed. They can't relate to abuse of the elderly, they haven't been there."

Fran Yoakam, moderator of the program, speaking for the housing directors, said, "We do become involved in human services. A great amount of our effort and energy is expended in human services and that should be included in our job descriptions.

"But when HUD audits, our evaluations are based on our paper work. They do not address the human side."

Wary taxpayers give state another chance

By WARREN M. HOYT
Michigan Press Association

Anticipating yet another petition drive to get a property tax cutting constitutional amendment back before the voters, Gov. William G. Milliken and legislative leaders have wasted no time listing property tax reform as a top priority for the 1981 legislative session.

State government narrowly missed having the voters reduce property taxes 50 percent at the last general election. Such voter approval would have crippled state government's ability to provide basic human services.

Voters gave governmental leaders "one more chance" to do something about the spiraling property taxes with the defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment.

However, taxpayers will be closely watching governmental leaders. If they return to "business as usual" in Lansing, voters will probably reverse that decision in November 1982.

THE PROPERTY tax reform question is so important that Milliken decided to give a "reform" proposal special coverage and made his plan public two days before his all-encompassing State of the State address.

A $785 million homestead tax reduction proposal, which includes a $250 million reduction in state and local spending, was unveiled by the governor. He called upon the legislature to approve a special statewide election on June 8 to present the tax proposal only to the voters.

The proposal includes a sales tax increase of 1 percent, a provision that will replace $535 million of the $785 million cut in property taxes.

The $250 million not made up would be absorbed by $125 million in spending cuts by the state and $125 million in cuts by various local units of government.

Under the governor's proposal, the average Michigan household would see a cut in property tax bills of $335 in 1981, but would pay about $135 more in sales taxes, producing a net tax savings of about $200 per household.

THE GOVERNOR and his aides said they hope the net tax cut will help to both pass the proposal and to defuse any further moves for massive tax cut plans as have been before voters in both the 1978 and 1980 elections.

The Milliken proposal would include home property tax reduction of 35 percent, beginning with the July bills, up to a maximum of $1,400. Senior citizens would get a complete exemption on the first $1,400 of property taxes to be adjusted annually for inflation.

Renters would be able to credit 25 percent of their rent as property taxes, instead of the current 17 percent.

Scout week is observed

Boy Scout Week was observed in Plymouth recently with four troops participating in a flag ceremony to open a meeting of the Plymouth City Commission.

Participating were Boy Scout Troop 781 of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, Troop 1531 of the Plymouth Kiwanis Club, Troop 1534 of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, and Troop 1540 of Isbister Elementary.

Each troop was presented with a proclamation which declared Feb. 8-14 as Scouting Anniversary Week in Plymouth. The presentation was made by Plymouth Mayor Mary Childs.

Ross Lyons, a scout from Troop 1540, was chosen by the Detroit Area Boy Scouts to represent the Plymouth Boy Scouts during the anniversary week on "Scouts in Government Day."

In 1981 the Boy Scouts are celebrating their 71st anniversary and the Cub Scouts are observing their 51st anniversary.

Golden Lights PRESENTS two week TVentertainment

© Lorillard, U.S.A., 1981

A SCHEDULE OF MOVIES, SPORTS AND SPECIAL INTEREST PROGRAMING.

PROGRAMS SUBJECT TO CHANGE

movies

THUR., FEB. 19

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) GOLDIE AND THE BOXER GO TO HOLLYWOOD. A sequel to the popular movie of the same name. O.J. Simpson and Melissa Michaelsen star. Fleeing from a vengeful fight promoter and adoption authorities, boxing champ Joe Gallagher (O.J.) and his ten-year-old manager Goldie (Michaelsen), accept a Hollywood offer and that is when the trouble begins. Sheila MacRae, Jack Gilford and Stubby Kaye also star.

FRI., FEB. 20

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain) THE INTRUDER WITHIN. Chad Everett, Joseph Bottoms and Jennifer Warren star in this chilling tale. Men and women on an isolated oil rig become the prey of a primeval creature from the dark recesses of time.

SAT., FEB. 21

10-11PM NBC (9 Central/Mountain) THE GANGSTER CHRONICLES (Part Three). New series about the history of organized crime in the U.S. Michael Nouri, Joseph Mascolo and Brian Benben star.

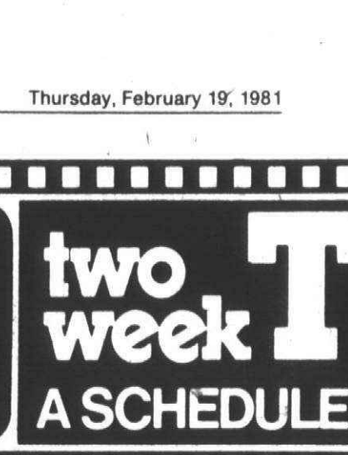

Kidnapping, a little torture, gambling, revenge. Sorry - no tiddle-winks. (This episode may be changed to another time)

SUN., FEB. 22

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) PROM NIGHT. A scarey one with Jamie Lee Curtis and Leslie Nielsen.

9-11:25PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain) NORMA RAE. Sally Field won an Oscar as Best Actress in this moving drama of a woman fighting the bosses of a Southern textile mill for better working conditions. Co-stars Ron Liebman. A good one to watch.

MON., FEB. 23

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) EVITA PERON (Part One). Faye Dunaway in the title role of this World Premiere movie about the ambitious peasant girl who rose to become one of the most powerful women known to man. She was idolized by millions of her people. James Farentino portrays Juan Peron - an army officer as ambitious as Evita, his mistress.

TUES., FEB. 24

9-11PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain)

Faye Dunaway in the title role and James Farentino as her husband, the dictator Juan Peron. Peron becomes president of Argentina and marries the promiscuous Eva, who couples political ambition and a smooth taste for high living with a deep concern for the poor and sick. "Santa Evita"!

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) FALLEN ANGEL. An impelling drama which explores the growing problem of child pornography. Melinda Dillon, Dana Hill, Richard Masur and Ronny Cox star in this not-so-pretty-picture. (This film, previously set for the 18th, was switched to this evening).

WED., FEB. 25

8-10PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain) ALOHA PARADISE. A romantic comedy series starring Debbie Reynolds as manager of a plush Hawaiian resort. This is a premiere with a special two hour episode.

FRI., FEB. 27

8-10PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) THE WIZARD OF OZ. Alas. The MGM masterpiece returns! The classic film which, more than 40 years ago, propelled Judy Garland "over the rainbow" and "down a yellow brick road" to stardom. Travel with her through Oz, among Munchkins, Flying Monkeys and witch bearing balloons along with Ray Bolger, the dancing scarecrow in search of brains, Bert Lahr as the Cowardly Lion who is afraid of a lamb and Jack Haley the Tin Woodsman who wants a heart. One of the greats from movieland.

9-10PM NBC (8 Central/Mountain) NERO WOLFE. William Conrad, who series has an appetite not only for food but for cracking open hard shelled mystery cases.

9-11PM ABC (8 Central/Mountain) MIDNIGHT OFFERINGS. Not a trick or treater - but cult powers.

SUN., MAR. 1

8-10:30PM CBS (7 Central/Mountain) THE AMITYVILLE HORROR. James Brolin, Margot Kidder and Rod Steiger star in this thriller - about a suburban dream house that turns into a living nightmare for its new residents. First time on network television - it's going to give you the willies. A number ten on the goose bump scale.

8-11PM ABC (7 Central/Mountain) MIRACLE ON ICE. All about the U.S. Hockey Team and their triumph at the Olympics. A movie all about that thrilling game on ice.

TUES., MAR. 3

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) THE PRIDE OF JESSE HALLAM. Johnny Cash, one of country music's superstars steps into the footsteps of a man who must come to grips with his illiteracy before he can make a better life for himself and his children. A battle with the three R's, readin', 'ritin' 'n respectability.

WED., MAR. 4

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) NO PLACE TO HIDE. A psychological suspense thriller starring Mariette Hartley, Kathleen Beller, Arlene Dean Snyder and Gary Graham. Threats and mystery.

specials

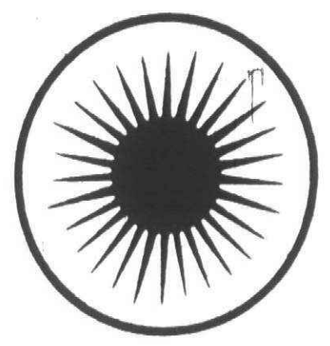

SUN., FEB. 22

2-4PM ABC (1 Central/Mountain) THE SUPERSTARS. This action-packed show will focus on a stellar roster of sports heroes battling it out for $122,000 in prize money. It's the men's finals, with, among others, Mike Schmidt, the 1980 National League Most Valuable Player.

WED., FEB. 25

8:30-9PM CBS (7:30 Cent./Mt.) FAERIES. Here's a little special. An animated fable based on the best-selling book about those elusive, magical capricious creatures who inhabit the world of Faerie. Hans Conried will be heard voicing the double roles of the King and his nemesis, the evil Shadow.

9-11PM CBS (8 Central/Mountain) THE 23RD ANNUAL GRAMMY AWARDS. A star-studded entertainment special where the Record of the Year honors will be handed out - live from the Radio City Music Hall in New York City. The celebrity performers include: Barbra Streisand, Barry Gibb, Anne Murray, Bette Midler, Barbara Mandrell, Irene Cara - and a host of other great talent.

Brotherhood: more than just a word

Story: SHIRLEE IDEN

If you see something wrong, you're obliged to try to make it right.

For Beverly Payne, that thought isn't something to simply give lip service to, it's a belief to act on.

"I was brought up in a home where no man is an island," said Ms. Payne, one of five persons being honored tonight by the Jewish War Veterans at a brotherhood program. "I was taught that brotherhood is taking care, not just of your own home or that of your next door neighbor, but those that need you, no matter where."

In her office adjacent to the Channel 2 newsroom in Southfield, Beverly Payne speaks of how she came to travel around the world to African Somalia late last year — and why.

"I saw this report dealing with world hunger last summer," she says. "Little children with shrunken faces; kids lined up in rows baying like lambs for a few drops of milk; a camp with 2,000 people and one doctor and one nurse.

"I wasn't aware of the refugee problem in Somalia. Those pictures reminded me of the concentration camps."

First, she watched in horror; then had occasion to report on her new knowledge of Somalia. But for someone who is obliged to try to make wrong things right, it just wasn't enough.

BEVERLY PAYNE, private citizen, followed Beverly Payne, television newscaster, into the fray.

"We got so many calls at the station and people said 'Do something.' I told myself I would try," she recalls.

And try she did. She spearheaded a drive to raise funds, food and supplies and she gathered facts about Somalia.

"I called the White House and the State Department and found it is strategic to us. So I asked why we couldn't get a Department of Defense plane to take food and supplies there," she says.

"I knew there are U.S. planes landing there but the State Department was secretive. I told them I only wanted to save lives."

By then Ms. Payne was aware that 64 percent of the Somalian refugees are children, 23 percent women, and the remainder old people who have somehow survived.

FROM JULY ON, Ms. Payne raised about $50,000 worth of desperately needed materials. For two straight months, she worked each evening after her duties at the station until 2 and 3 a.m.

"I wasn't much of a mother to my own three boys, but there was so much to do. I was determined to take that stuff to Somalia myself. I wasn't going to let it get into the hands of bureaucrats or something."

And the shrunken faces still haunted.

But no matter how many calls she made and how much effort was put forth, there seemed to be no way to get a plane for the relief mission.

"Finally, it was Coleman Young who made it happen," she says.

"I spoke to the mayor and through him to President Carter. He and Vice President Mondale cleared a special plane and I met it in Frankfort and went on to Somalia."

It had taken from July to Nov. 2 to get clearance for the plane.

Now Ms. Payne had eight hours to get 30,000 pounds of food to New York City.

"Some was in an office, some in New York, and some was stored in a church," she says. "We had a midnight deadline and you can't believe what we went through."

Once in Somalia, Ms. Payne and her companions found things were worse than they had believed.

Beverly Payne believes that any amount of effort is worth it if one life is saved.

"It is very cold at night in northwest Somalia," she says. "The refugees don't have blankets. If the children don't starve to death, they freeze."

Painfully, she realized they had brought 5,000 blankets when 75,000 were needed.

"And dying people have to have special food," she says. "The drought was worse than last summer and they were dealing both with that drought and a border war.

"You can't build a nation if all the children die."

MS. PAYNE spent nine days in Somalia. For her own family, they were anxious, painful days of waiting.

"When I phoned my mom from Rome on the return trip, I heard the audible sigh of relief in her voice when she realized it was me," she says.

Some day in the future Ms. Payne will return to Somalia, though she swears "never on a cargo plane" and she has a number of reasons.

"The State Department people think I'm crazy," she says. "But the Somalians were so happy to see ordinary Americans come to help.

"And the Somalian government is doing a superb job. I saw absolutely no corruption.

"This was never conceived as a one shot thing. There's already involvement with the Jewish community, the Islamic community and the student community.

"We could see the effects of malnutrition on the kids. What keeps me going is — the children still laughed, still smiled and still had hope.

"That shows the human spirit."

Missionaries attend Ward conference

Twenty-five missionaries have been participating in the Worlds Mission Conference which will continue through Feb. 22 in Ward Presbyterian Church, Livonia.

One of them, Georgalyn Wilkinson will speak at a noon luncheon Tuesday, Feb. 17. Dr. John Robinson will address the Friday night missions banquet, and missionaries will also be lecturing in 7 p.m.classes of the Wednesday Night School of Christian Education.

They will also visit both the day and evening meetings of the Women's Missionary Circles on Thursday.

Mrs. Wilkinson was engaged in radio work in Tokyo with the Far Eastern Broadcasting Co. for 20 years. Since 1979 she has served as assistant to the director of operations at mission headquarters in La Mirada, Calif.

Robinson, a former missionary to Zaire and Senegal, West Africa, is the newly appointed executive director of Missionary Internship, which has headquarters in Farmington. The goal of the organization is to provide a period of orientation and preparation for those planning to go into mission work.

Music for the Missions banquet will be provided by Common Bond, a vocal ensemble of Ward's Single Point Ministries. Tickets for the banquet and the Tuesday lunch are available at the church on Sunday morning and evening, and Wednesday evening. Lunch tickets are $2.50, banquet tickets, $4.50.

Missions coffees will be held in the church at 9:30 a.m. Thursday and Friday. Missionaries will brief participants on the world mission scene, opportunities for service and prayer and the culture shock they often experience.

"Kids in the Kingdom," a children's rally designed to give youngsters in grades one through six a feel for the missionary experience, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday. Lunch will be provided at 50 cents per child. No reservations are necessary.

Drawing the conference to a close, Dr. Bartlett Hess, Ward pastor, will talk on the "Prophet's Chamber" at 8:30, 10 and 11:30 a.m. services on Sunday.

The Rev. L. Edward Davis will speak on "What If One Says No to God?" at the 7 p.m. Sunday service.

ST. PAUL EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH, 17810 Farmington road, Livonia, will observe a Christian Passover at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25. The traditional three-hour seder service will take place in the gymnasium of St. Paul's school.

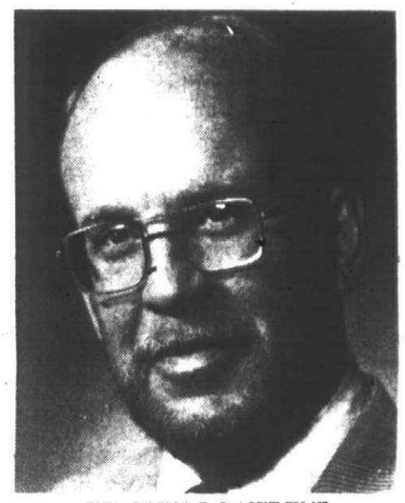

The meal will be prepared by the women of the congregation. The children of St. Paul's school will contribute songs and festive decorations. The family nature of the event will be stressed as participants gather around a dozen separate Passover tables.

Conducting the services will be Dr. John C. Lawrenz, president of Michigan Lutheran Seminary of Saginaw. A version of the haggadah was written by Dr. Lawrenz to acquaint Christians with the richness of Jewish custom and law which lies behind the passion of Jesus and the institution of the Lord's Supper.

The seder service will follow Jewish customs, both ancient and modern, and stresses the fullfillment of the Passover imagery according to Christian belief.

Dr. Lawrenz has a doctor's degree in Hebrew from Brandeis University, For the last two years he has been the leader of two archeological expeditions to Israel where a group of 40 dug for artifacts in historical areas near Tel Aviv.

Participation in the seder is by reservation only, and is limited to 200 persons.

ASCENSION LUTHERAN CHURCH, 35301 Five Mile, Livonia, has scheduled a concert by the Waldorf College Concert Choir at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 5. It will be directed by Adrian Johnson, who joined the Waldorf music staff in 1960, and was appointed choir director in 1967.

The 62-voice choir toured Scandanavia and East and West Germany in 1975, presenting concerts in capital cities of Norway and Sweden, and the Kaiser Wilhelm church in West Berlin, receiving standing ovations frequently.

During the 1980-81 season, the choir appeared with the Waterloo Symphony Orchestra in the presentation of Verdi's "Requiem." In April it will appear before the National Music Educators Convention in Minneapolis.

TRINITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, which meets in Isbister Elementary School, 9300 N. Canton Center, Plymouth, will presents at its Sunday classes Lisa and Gary Hopwood, who are affiliated with Sudan Interior Mission.

They will address junior high, senior high and adult classes. Hopwood will also bring the morning message during the 11 a.m. worship service.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood have been members of Ward Presbyterian Church since 1978. Hopwood, a graduate of Wheaton College who majored in Biblical studies and Christian education, served as youth director.

moral perspectives

Rev. Lloyd Buss

How best is U.S. foreign policy served?

Secretary of State Alexander Haig says the new policy of our country in international affairs is a defense against terrorism and a relaxation of our emphasis on human rights.

Instead of accenting the abuse of human rights by duly constituted governments, we have served notice of our international priority to combat terrorism and its use of violent power to achieve specific ends. Certainly no one would advocate the toleration or sanction of terrorism, but the decision to attend to terrorism at the expense of human rights creates a set of conditions that need our full attention and response.

Moving from an offensive position on human rights to a defensive one against terrorism simplifies the process because it narrows the field of activity. Since we are no longer concentrating on the exercise of human rights, we will be less concerned with the internal practices of other countries.

President Chun Doo Hwan of South Korea is a welcome guest in our country because he is a muscular leader and knows how to maintain order in affairs that involve us. His government's record on human and civil rights is ignored.

BUT TERRORISM is only another form of violating human rights. Insisting that we are concerned only when our rights are violated is to create a crisis and an opportunity.

The crisis will be created in countries either too small or too poor (in either natural or developed resources) to make any difference on the world scene.

I think here of Namibia, where nearly a million Namibians are imprisoned in mind and body by illegal occupation forces from South Africa. Ruled by a white minority that maintains apartheid policies, there is no opportunity for the development of the free exercise of life and thought by black Namibians.

The lack of self-rule creates a hostage-like environment. Namibia is a poor country and at present does not possess the natural developed resources that we need to make us interested in their well-being.

But that is to ignore the human dimension of Namibia. South Africa's calloused use of Namibian youth to quell the revolutionary activities of Namibians against South Africa's illegal presence in Namibia is also a form of a terrorism that bodes ill for all smaller countries.

If we wait until these flagrant abuses of human rights create terrorist activities against our interests, it will be difficult to distinguish the self-interests being violated and justice will be the victim.

THE OPORTUNITY presented by this shift in U.S. foreign policy operates in two directions. Justice is separated from political expediency, and political expediency is instructed by justice.

By separating the issue of human rights from international relations, the practice of justice will not be compromised for political gain.

At the same time, a responsible citizenry can continue to exert influence and pressure on its elected government to exercise justice in all its relationships.

It is precisely because the United States has so few "needs" from Namibia that its call for justice can be made with minimum strains on political relationships.

The end to racial oppression and the removal of the illegal South African troops from Namibia will not provide an economic advantage for the United States at the expense of others.

It will, instead, offer hope and encouragement to the human experience in the midst of self-seeking nations. At the same time, it is the insistence of the whole citizenry for the practice of justice that will instruct political expediency.

It is only as we insist on justice in Namibia that our government will seek those ways to make it so.

'Tribute' earns highest praise

review

By DAN GREENBERG

A "Tribute," indeed, but the accolades are due the Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford (TGLR) for its excellent production of Bernard Slade's "Tribute," which opened a three-weekend run Friday evening.

Featuring Howard Egan in the lead role, TGLR's production of the Broadway and film hit is a warm and pleasant experience, well worth venturing out to TGLR's intimate and attractive playhouse on Beech-Daly near Five Mile Road in Redford. Performances continue through Feb. 28.

In "Tribute" we meet (and soon love) Scottie Templeton (Howard Egan), a PR man and complete hedonist who gets the bad, and probably terminal, news from his doctor (Pat Sandbothe). Complicating matters are Scottie's ex-wife (Sandi Martin) and their son, Jud (Gary Andrews), with whom Scottie has had a disastrous relationship over the years.

So, here we have all the ingredients for a saccharine and annoying domestic melodrama that grates on the nerves, especially in a small theater where the audience is placed vis-a-vis the cast performing.

INSTEAD, THE deft direction by Marc McCulloch and the polished performances of the cast led by Howard Egan's virtuoso rendition blend into a superb production. The warmth and humanism of the personal inter-relationships and the pleasure of the fast-paced gag-lines delivered so well by Egan create an exciting theatrical evening.

There's no question: This play is a made-to-order showcase for an actor. Egan's performance fulfills the demands made by the fast-paced Broadway press agent patter and almost continual on-stage appearance.

What makes the evening so delightful is that the constant gag-lines, which our hero uses to avoid the difficulties of personal relationships, are not just a passel of one-liners. They include some pretty significant comments on life, death and getting along in the world.

("When a friend dies, you've lost a friend. When you die, you've lost all your friends." "I know what I am. The trick is knowing what I should be.") Egan's obvious understanding of these lines, as well as his delivery and timing, make the humor and the philosophy clearly evident and very enjoyable.

Although the production revolves around Scottie Templeton, the supporting cast help make him so very appealing. Sandi Martin has the proper warmth, maturity and weariness for the ex-wife caught between two of the men in her lives.

ANOTHER OF these men, Gary Andrews, as the estranged son, Jud, is properly diffident and removed from the father who has caused him so much pain. Andrews successfully avoids the bitterness that might mar the play's attitude.

His girlfriend, Sally, played by the pert and very attractive Ellen Atkins, has a terrific manner which aptly projects her role as the liberated model. Carole McNulty as Hilary, a "working girl" our hero has helped, and Pat Sandbothe as his doctor handle their parts effectively.

The entire production is well-framed by Norman Smith's performance as Lou Daniels, friend and associate, the man who is staging the Tribute Evening in honor of our hero, Scottie, the PR man par excellence.

MUSIC BY JOHNNY TRUDELL'S ORCHESTRA
HYATT REGENCY DEARBORN IN FAIRLANE TOWN CENTER

The Renaissance Brass Quintet will present a variety program at Schoolcraft College.

Brass Quintet presents concert

The Renaissance Brass Quintet will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday at Schoolcraft College in the Waterman Campus Center, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

The quintet performs extensively in the Detroit area, most recently at the Livonia City Hall.

The musicians present a program ranging from popular songs, rags, show tunes, jazz, novelty, movie themes and marches to classical and earlier works. Local arrangers and composers have taken an interest in the group and have provided literature not performed by other brass ensembles.

Beger, trumpet, founded the group with an approach using innovative material not usually identified with the classical brass quintet.

John Grose, French horn, has performed for Motown, Pine Knob and the Fisher Theatre. He is a Wayne State University graduate and teaches in the East Detroit Public Schools.

WILLIAM LANE, trombone, attended Cass Tech and Wayne State University and was trombone soloist with the Detroit Concert Band for 14 years. He is a member of the Austin-Moro Big Band, Tony Russo and Warren Concert Bands and the Warren Symphony Orchestra.

Al Yungton, tuba, is an arranger/conductor, specializing in production music for motion pictures, television and theater. He is a graduate of and was assistant professor of music at Wayne State University.

Roger Zacks, trumpet, is a graduate of Northwestern University. He has studied with notable performers of the Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit Orchestras. Zacks attended Clarenceville High School where he excelled as a soloist with the Junior High Jazz Ensemble during the era of the Big Band Series andd the Symphonic Band.

Tickets at $2 for the general public are available at the College Bookstoe and at the door. Schoolcraft students and senior citizens will be admitted without charge.

The Waterman Campus Center is off the north parking lot nearest Seven Mile Road. Those attending the concert should park in the North lot and enter the building by the southeast entrance (near the flag pole) on Chippewa Drive. Phone 591-6400, ext. 410, for further information.

In Showcase

Johnny Trudell and his Top Brass will appear at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at the Livonia City Hall. The concert is part of the Performing Art Showcase sponsored by the Livonia Art Commission. Trudell and his Top Brass are the house band for db's Club at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn. Trudell and his trumpet have traveled with such big bands as the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra directed by Sam Donahue, Bob Crosby's Orchestra, the Ralph Marterie Orchestra and the Quincy Jones Orchestra.

Bonstelle offers 'Miracle Worker'

"The Miracle Worker," William Gibson's drama about Helen Keller's early childhood, opens at 8:30 p.m. March 6 at the Bonstelle Theatre in Detroit.

It continues at 8:30 p.m. March 7 and 13-14, with two Sunday matinees scheduled at 2 p.m. March 8 and 15. A 2 p.m. matinee March 11 has been added in response to numerous requests from schools in the area.

Born in Tuscumbia, Ala., in 1880, Helen Keller was a normal child until, at the age of 18 months, she was stricken with a fever which left her blind, deaf and mute.

Four years later her distraught parents, still unable to communicate or control the child's wild behavior, sent for the help of Annie Sullivan, a 20-year-old teacher from the Perkins Institute for the Blind.

Miss Sullivan had been blind as a girl and after a series of operations regained partial sight. Because of her own experience, Annie was able to go beyond feeling pity for Helen and to teach her the meaning of words.

USING STRONG discipline and caring patience, Annie opened up Helen's world of darkness and gave her the gift of language. Helen later wrote, "The most important day I remember in all my life is the one in which my teacher came to me."

Written by William Gibson as a television script, "The Miracle Worker" proved to be his greatest success, moving to Broadway in 1959. The production starred Anne Bancroft as Annie, Patty Duke as Helen and Patricia Neal as Helen's mother. It was directed by Arthur Penn. In 1962 it was made into a movie.

A recent television revival starred Patty Duke Astin as Annie and Melissa Gilbert as Helen.

Leading the cast in the Bonstelle production are Grace Aiello as Helen, Linda Ramsay as Annie and Kathleen Brant and Robert Stormont as Helen's parents.

The play is directed by Anthony Schmitt, with scenery designed by Charles O'Connor, costumes by Jackie Durbin and lighting by George DeFalussy.

Further information and tickets for "The Miracle Worker" are available from the Wayne State University Theatre Box Office, Cass and Hancock, Detroit 48202. Reservations may be made by calling 577-2960.

Dinner paired with mystery

The Schoolcraft College Players have selected Edward Cope's mystery comedy "Agatha Christie Made Me Do It," for its dinner theater production March 13-14, 20-21.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. and curtain time is 8 in the Waterman Campus Center in Livonia. Tickets at $10 are on sale at the college bookstore.

"Agatha Christie Made Me Do It" is about police officer Hootspah, who is tired of being a cop and decides he can become rich and live a life of ease by writing a murder mystery. He has never written anything before and this depends upon a hypothetical book which contains Agatha Christie's methods as a mystery writer.

The bumbling officer endeavors to invent a murder, drag red herrings across the stage, develop a silly plot and create a cast of zany characters. Hootspah is inadequate for the task, but he pulls together a story with a barrel full of laughs and suspense.

THE MYSTERY comedy was presented in Houston as a dinner theater show in 1977 and ran for 48 performances. Cope has been active on the community theater scene in Houston.

The buffet includes assorted relishes, tossed green salad, jello molds, roast beef and gravy, smoked sausage, parsley boiled potato, new peas with onions, mostaccioli with meat sauce, assorted rolls and butter, beverage and dessert.

For further information call 591-6400, ext. 265. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile Roads.

Keyboard musician plays at Schuler's

Detroit musician Albert Glasier is being featured on the keyboards at Win Schuler's in the Pub in West Bloomfield.

He plays from 7 p.m. till midnight Wednesdays-Thursdays, 8 p.m. till 1 a.m. Fridays and 9 p.m. till 1 a.m. Saturdays, through February.

His selection of songs includes blues, ballads, rock and roll, and country; he plays Ray Charles, Jerry Lee Lewis, Cat Stevens, the Beatles and a dozen others. His keyboards sound like more than one person is playing.

GLASIER IS a graduate of Oakland University near Rochester. While attending a private school in Florida for his senior high school year, Glasier played with a band called the Royal Guardsmen and cut a hit recording "Snoopy and the Red Baron."

Glasier also has appeared with such bands as the Underdogs, and Bob Seger. backgammon

Michael Kiolan of the American Backgammon Club

● HITTING

Often during the course of a game, you are given an opportunity to hit your opponent. Most often it is correct to hit. But occasionally it is not.

Hitting, blocking and running is what backgammon is all about. There is much to learn about the concept of hitting.

In this position, black rolls double fours. How would you move?

Hitting white on the 10 point with a checker from the 3 point is a consideration, but not a priority. With this play, black does not improve his overall position.

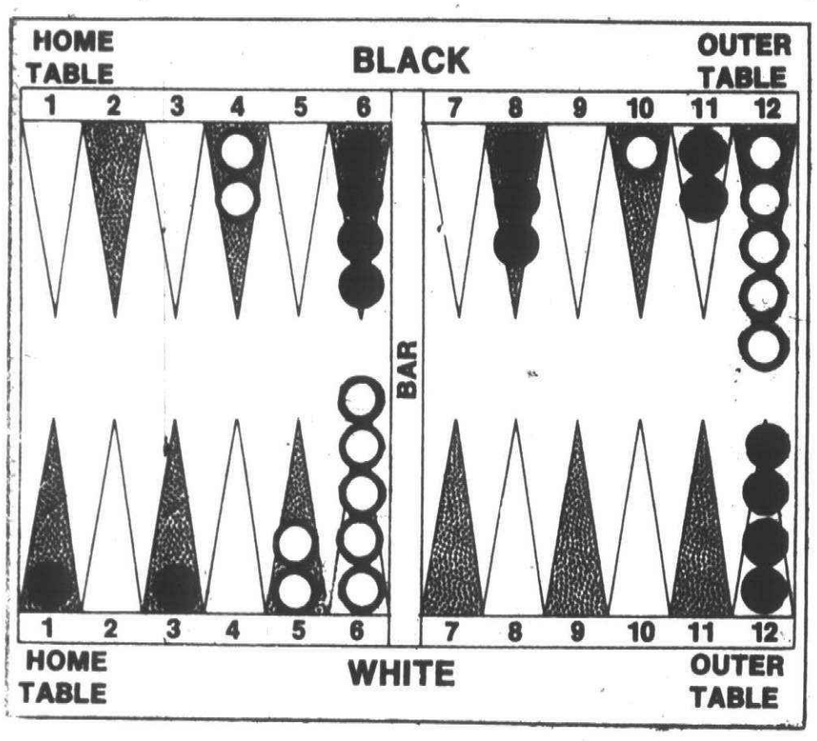

A more effective distribution is to move both checkers from the 11 to the 7 point, and two checkers from the 12 to the 9 point, creating a four-point black in front of white.

There are many sound reasons for this move. White has gained a forward anchor (4 point) and could have escaped with relative ease. Also, black has not yet made any home board points. This move should enable him to close the 5 and 3 points.

The four-point block is very effective in stopping white from running. Now if white decides to run a back checker with any 6, black has plenty of "ammo" to land on his head.

Another advantage to this move is that white still has a weak home board. With no builders (except the 6 point) bearing in on black, there is virtually no threat. Before white can do anything about rectifying this, black will have created a stronger position — hopefully, a position strong enough to double white out of the game.

For more information, contact the American Backgammon Club at 459-5776, or write to Box 599, Plymouth 48170.

John Wayne meets Archie Bunker second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"The Searchers" (1956), 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills, phone 645-3635, $5. Running time 119 minutes.

John Ford directed John Wayne in three films that form a western trilogy: "Fort Apache" (1948), "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" (1949) and "Rio Grande" (1950). In the films, Wayne — who ages with the American West — plays a cavalry officer understanding of Indian culture and tradition and abhorred by the ongoing slaughter of Indians.

In "The Searchers," Wayne's character is the antithesis of the cavalry officer. He's an embittered man who hates Indians — the renegade sort shown in the film and, by inference, all Indians and all non-whites. He would deny Indians peace in the hereafter. And he would rather kill his niece, who has been kidnaped by Indians, than allow her to return to white society, because he believes she has been "tainted" by the red man.

Some critics have called "The Searchers" a racist film, because it seems to glorify Wayne as a cutthroat bigot. Perhaps that's credit to the splendid direction of Ford, who doesn't resort to mood music or trite editing techniques to depict Wayne as a villain. Instead, Ford lets the action speak for itself. At film's end, Wayne is the one who is cast out of society, destined to be alone always.

"The Searchers" is part of the Cranbrook P.M./Encore Cinema series. Tickets, $5 at the door, include the film, discussion moderated by Elliot Wilhelm of the Detroit Film Theatre, and gourmet dessert with coffee served at 7:30 p.m. Rating: $3.95.

"The Blues Brothers" (1979), 7 p.m. today in Tirrel Hall, Room J-294, Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College, Farmington Hills, phone 476-9400, $1.

If Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi betrayed their Blues Brothers characters by not taking the roles seriously, this film would smack of "Amos 'n' Andy" and not be half so good. Fortunately, they do take themselves very seriously, which makes the movie that much better. Several musical scenes are outstanding. One has the dancing Brothers plus a church full of dancers keeping frantic time to a James Brown number, another features Aretha Franklin at her mellifluous best. Rating: $3.10.

"Laura" (1944), 8:30 a.m. Friday on Ch. 20. Originally 88 minutes.

Otto Preminger directed and Dana Andrews and Clifton Webb star, but it's Gene Tierney who fills the screen with a mystical radiance. A good mystery with lyrical score by David Raskin. Rating: $3.20.

"It's a Wonderful Life" (1947), 11:45 p.m. Monday on Ch. 9. Originally 129 minutes.

Frank Capra's tribute to the embattled little man is as optimistic and sentimental as any of his films. However, Jimmy Stewart, as a small-town banker who stands up against the ruthless town boss, overacts and is interchangably too ecstatic, then vitriolic. Capra needs a steadying force like Gary Cooper to anchor his emotional films. Donna Reed also stars. Rating: $2.80.

"Cat Ballou" (1965), 8 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 50. Originally 96 minutes.

Lee Marvin has had an amazing career. For years he played the heavy in such films as "The Wild One" (1954) and "Donovan's Reef" (1963). He got a shot at comedy with "Cat Ballou" and ever since has handled drama and comedy — even the musical "Paint Your Wagon" — very well. "Ballou" is a fun film, thanks, in part, to the appearance of Nat King Cole and Stubby Kaye as the wandring minstrels. Jane Fonda also stars. Rating: $3.15.

"Castle on the Hudson" (1940), 12:30 Wednesday night on Ch. 50. Originally 77 minutes.

John Garfield and Ann Sheridan are the quintessential '30s couple: ruggedly handsome (not pretty), gruff, been there and back. Here they team with Pat O'Brien in director Anatol Litvak's remake of "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." You'll cry for Garfield and Sheridan, but they won't ask for your tears. Rating: $3.05.

'Luv' will keep audience amused

By BARBARA MICHALS

review

Like a comic valentine, "Luv" tickles the funny bone while it assails human foibles. The current production by St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook offers lively, amusing views of love's permutations.

The Murray Schisgal comedy concludes its run with performances at 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday at St. Dunstan's Playhouse on the grounds of Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills.

Harry Berlin (Morris Weinner), a sort of wilted flower child, is about to jump off a bridge when he is spotted in the nick of time by his old college chum Milt (Keith Lepard). Catching up on their recent histories, Milt confesses that despite his prosperous appearance he is miserable because his wife Ellen (Bonnie Cook) won't give him a divorce to enable him to marry his new flame.

Since Harry confesses he has never known real love, and since Ellen would like a more enthusiastic lover, Milt decides he will solve all their problems by getting Harry and Ellen together. Despite the apparent success of his plan, the second act finds all three characters still feeling miserable.

WITH HIS woebegone appearance, rumpled hair and ill-fitting rags, Morris Weinner's Harry succeeds in personifying failure. Harry has roamed the world in a futile search for the answers to life's mysteries ever since the day a passing dog picked him out of a crowd, raised its leg and let him have it.

A born loser, Harry has no idea how to respond to love when it is handed to him. Though his marriage to Ellen is surely doomed to failure (they fall in love mainly on the strength of a mutual preference for flamenco guitar-playing over classical guitar), there is something appealing in his wide-eyed naivete.

Keith Lepard's Milt is all brass and bluster. A part-time dealer in second-hand bric-a-brac, Milt deals with love like it is a commodity to be bought and sold. He is selfish and grasping, the least sympathetic of the three, but Lepard succeeds in keeping Milt a comic bungler rather than a repugnant schemer.

As Ellen, Bonnie Cook's delivery is nicely polished, and she has a strong stage presence. Ellen is torn between her normal sexual desires and her superior intellect which makes her dissatisfied with every man she has ever known. Which she must submerge to satisfy the other part of her.

Co-directors William Everson and Nancy Scott keep the laughs coming smoothly, partly from some great one-liners and partly from the broad physical comedy of characters wrestling, bellowing love songs, and even jumping off bridges.

Everson also designed a strikingly realistic set. The lights of the Manhattan skyline form a background for the pedestrian walkway of a New York bridge, its pillars laden with graffitti.

A painful night

Canton forward Matt Thomas (right) winces in pain as he falls to the floor with an ankle injury. Dearborn cagers escape with last-second basket

By BRAD EMONS

Dearborn strengthened its hold on first place in the Suburban Eight League basketball race by edging pesky Plymouth Salem Tuesday night, 52-50.

John Hollis' rebound basket at the buzzer gave Dearborn the victory and an 8-1 record with three league games remaining. The Pioneers, 12-4 overall, also got some unexpected help from Trenton, which upset second-place Dearborn Edsel Ford (7-3) in overtime.

Oddly enough, Salem (7-4) is still mathematically in the running for its eighth straight crown. A bizarre set of circumstances could give the Rocks a share of the title.

Dearborn has league dates left with Livonia Bentley, Belleville and Edsel Ford. Salem has only one to go, next Friday at home against Trenton. Edsel Ford has two games — Allen Park and Dearborn.

The Rocks, 11-6 overall, put up a good fight, but fell short in the closing minutes.

Hollis, a 6-foot-3 jumping jack with slithery inside moves, burned the nets for 25 points to lead all scorers.

The Pioneers led most of the second half until poor foul shooting got Rocks back in it.

Salem's Mike McBride's hit two free throws midway through the final quarter to knot the score at 48-all.

With 1:30 to go, John Cohen hit his first free throw (49-49). He missed his second try and Dearborn's Dave Rucker was fouled on the ensuing scramble for the rebound.

SALEM COACH Fred Thomann immediately called timeout, then ventured onto the playing floor and was slapped with a technical foul. At that juncture it appeared Dearborn would come away with a win.

"I don't think I deserved a technical foul," said Thomann. "I asked them (officials) if the wrong guy wasn't going to the line to shoot.

"I never swore."

The Pioneers, though, failed to capitalize as Rucker missed his one-and-one attempt and Bob Schudlich hit one of two to give Dearborn a 50-49 advantage.

On the inbounds play, Dearborn turned the ball over on a travel. Salem's Norm Haygood was then fouled on the next out-of-bounds pass. During that exchange, not one second had elapsed.

The 6-7 junior hit one of two free throws to knot the game again, 50-all.

Dearborn took possession and worked the clock down to 28 seconds before calling a timeout. Another timeout was called with only 10 seconds left.

When play resumed, Rucker took a pass and dribbled down to the baseline, forcing a 10-foot jumper, which flew past the rim. Hollis, however, gobbled it up, missed his first attempt and tipped in the game winner.

Thomann rushed to the floor arguing that Hollis had committed a rebound foul, climbing the back of a Salem defender. The referees failed to show any sympathy.

"THAT HOLLIS," said Dearborn coach Gene Snell, "bless his heart.

"That's his finest game at Dearborn High.

The Rocks put the clamps on Dearborn's leading scorer, Dave Rucker, who hit just seven points, 11 below his norm. In Dearborn's 63-52 victory earlier in the season over Salem, Rucker pumped in 31.

"They triple-teamed Rucker so we went to Hollis inside and (Bob) Schudlich outside," explained the Dearborn coach. "The very thing we said before the game was take the ball inside. Anytime you have to help on a player, another one is open."

Hollis was just too quick for the Salem frontliners. He had three, three-point plays and missed his foul shot on another.

"He (Hollis) beat us with his inside cuts," said Thomann. "We were doubling up on the perimeter player."

Salem led at halftime, 29-28, but Dearborn came back with a 18-13 surge in the third quarter to take command.

"It was a great defensive game by both teams," said Snell. "Salem started their small lineup and did a real nice job against our pressure."

Thomann went almost exclusively with underclassman, starting three juniors and two sophomores.

David Houle, a sophomore, led the Rocks with 14 points, many coming on power layups. Norm Haygood, a junior, and John Cohen, a sophomore, each scored eight.

"We played good tonight and deserved the victory," said Thomann, "but we didn't get it.

"I'M NOT upset with the loss. I thought our guys played hard. We can't win the league championship now so we have to change our goals. We have to try to continue to improve. If we improve, then I'll be happy."

The game was marred by poor officiating on both sides. It disrupted the tempo of the game.

Salem will host Great Lakes Eight Conference member Lincoln Park Thursday. Game time is 7:45 p.m.

Salem girls bounce Edsel Ford spikers

Plymouth Salem evened its Suburban Eight League volleyball record to 4-4 with a easy 15-5, 15-6 triumph Monday night over Dearborn Edsel Ford.

The Rocks, who were blasted last week by Dearborn, got things going offensively against the hapless Thunderbirds.

In the first game, senior Mary Van Dusen served seven points, including one ace, to pace the offense. She got plenty of help from teammate Cheryl Sobkow, who had five spikes.

"Our offensive play was better and so was our defensive coverage," ex-

Junior lifters pull 'no show'

By BRAD EMONS

Weightlifting has yet to catch on in western Wayne County.

That was the indication given Sunday when just 13 athletes showed up for the state AAU Junior Weightlifting Championships at Plymouth Salem's gym.

"A lot of them showed up," said a puzzled Gene Baker, the meet organizer. "But they just came in, sat down and watched.

"I can't understand it because we had a preliminary meet to this one in December, and 41 competed.

"Some told me that they thought too many would enter."

Baker added that many of the potential competitors who came to watch were unfamilar with the "Olympic style" lifting.

"I hope next time we can maybe put on a clinic before the meet and get them interested so it can erase some of their fears."

Despite the low turnout, nine records were set — all in the 18-19 and 16-17 year-old division.

Plymouth's Pete Bundarin, a Canton High School graduate, won the 181-pound division (18-19) and established three marks. He broke his own record in the snatch by lifting 259 pounds. He came back to win the clean and jerk competition at 319 for a total of 578, another new mark.

Grand Rapids' Al Jakubowski, competing in the 165-pound division (18-19), set marks in the snatch (220), clean and jerk (275) and total (495). South Lyon's Greg Arledge was second overall with a total of 341.

Plymouth Salem student Wayne Craig, competing in the 220-pound divison (16-17), established records in the snatch (154), clean and jerk (187) and total (253).

Rob Grech, a student at Westland John Glenn, was the winner in the 123-pound divison (16-17). He lifted 110 pounds to win snatch and came back with 143 in the clean and jerk.

BRIAN SAVAGE, also of Glenn, finished second in the 148-pound division (167) with lifts of 165 and 192, respectively.

Weightlifting in this area, Baker said, has not taken off because of a lack of facilities to form a club.

"The people from the school's have been super," said Baker, who lives in Canton.

"Paul Cummings and Mr. (Larry) Masteller have been real helpful.

"We're looking for more kids. Right now, we're just getting together in small groups and working out in homes.

"If I had a facility to set weights on permanently, then I could come in two or three times a week and coach.

"I haven't made a big effort in the Plymouth-Canton area to find a place, but I'd say we could get at least 40 guys out from around the area — Livonia, Westland and Plymouth-Canton. The potential is there."

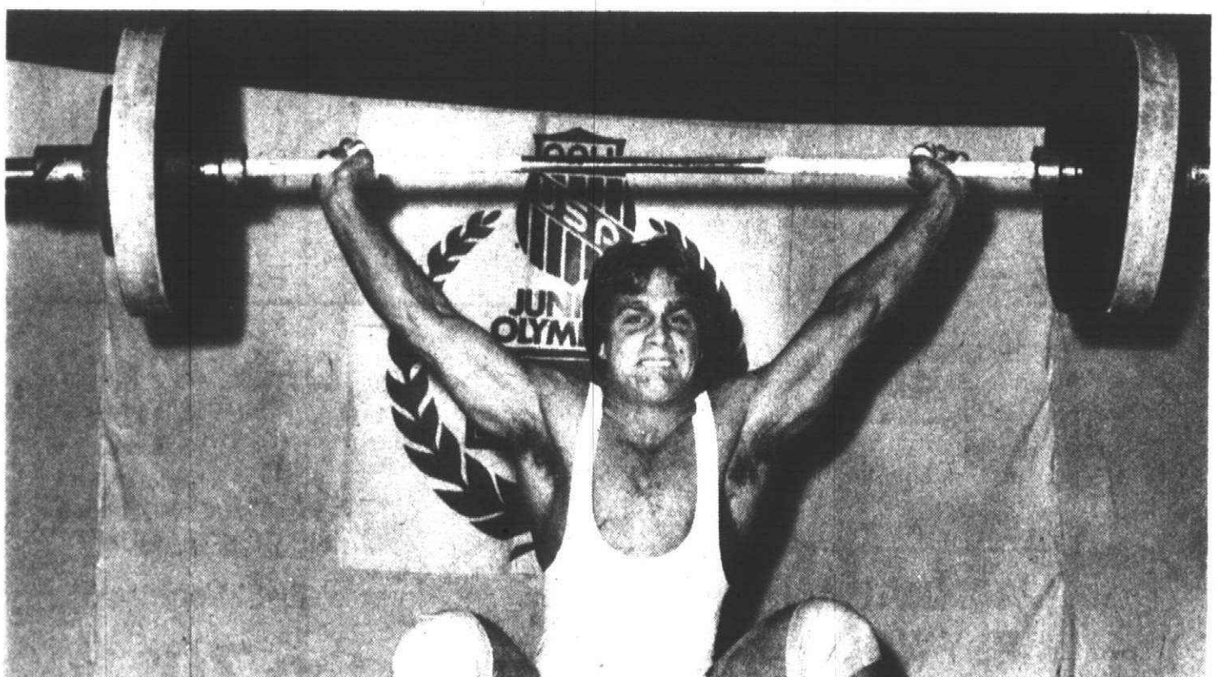

Baker, who lifts weights part-time while holding down a regular job, added, "It's just a matter of getting everyone together."

"We've tried to expose it as much as possible.

"The people in Royal Oak have a successful program and a good facility. It's located in the basement of a building. It's just a matter of knocking on a few doors."

Canton High School will be the site of the state AAU senior Weightlifting Championships on April 26.

Past Olympic competitors are schedule to appear at that meet, he said.

Cold spell hurts Christian

The Eagles of Plymouth Christian landed in the loss column Tuesday night as they were battered by Roseville Calvary Christian, 57-39.

Plymouth dropped to 10-4 overall with the defeat.

Cold shooting hampered the Eagles, who trailed at halftime, 26-17.

Plymouth Christian hit only 16 of 51 shots from the field for a lowly 31 percent.

John Koss led the Eagles in scoring with 10 points. His brother, Jim, added nine.

"The problem was the ball just wouldn't go in the hole," said Plymouth coach Butch DeRenzo. "They played well and we just couldn't score.

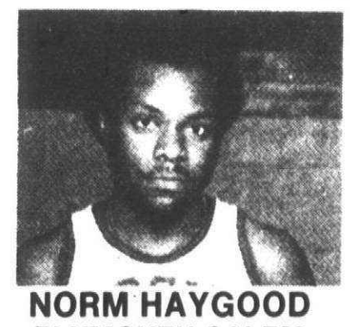

"We had real good shots, but they weren't going in the hole.

"And we couldn't rebound. They took away our running game."

Plymouth Christian travels Thursday to Fowlerville.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL
Flashback

In September of 1970, Plymouth Salem football coach Tom Moshirfier moved journeyman tailback Greg LaMirand, a 6'1" senior into the starting quarterback position against rival Northville High in the opening game of the 1970 season LaMirand, making his first start as Varsity QB, threw 3 TD passes to glue-fingered 6'4" senior Charley Wolfe. That performance plus the durable running of Capt. Ed Scott, Dan Chopp and Carl Huter enabled Plymouth to blitz Northville 36-8 and capture the Silver Bell emblematic of football supremacy in the rivalry between the 2 teams. It also marked the last time ever the Silver Bell was up for grabs.

RU 2nd-half surge rips Canton quintet

A second-half blitz enabled Redford Union to carve out an impressive 63-42 basketball triumph at Plymouth Canton.

The Panthers, co-leaders in the Northwest Suburban League, trailed at halftime, 26-24.

RU, however, got going in the final two periods with a full-court press which rattled the Chiefs.

"They really dominated the second half," said a dejected Canton coach Craig Bell. "No doubt we lost to a fine team, but I don't think we're that bad.

"We're going to have to do some soul searching and try to finish the season strong."

The Panthers, 12-5 overall, had a balanced scoring attack.

Jerry Burk, Todd Hillis and Rocco Rucinski each tallied 12 points for the winners. Bill Klotz added 10.

Sean Houle, Canton's 6-foot-5 senior center, led all scorers with 14 points, but he was seven below his average.

Forwards Matt Thomas and Steve Tuttle each chipped in with 10.

The loss dropped Canton to 9-8 overall. The Chiefs won the junior varsity game, 53-40.

RU exploded in the third quarter against the Chiefs with a 18-6 spurt. The Panthers then finished off their Western Six League foes with a 21-10 rush in the fourth quarter.

The Panthers enjoyed a fruitful night from the foul line, hitting 19 of 25 for 76 percent.

Canton will another co-league leader Thursday when it travels to Farmington Harrison. RU travels Thursday to Westland John Glenn. Both varsity games are slated to start at 7:45 p.m.

Counsel coasts

Duffy Kidwell provided the offense, and teammates Mark Pinto and Mike Burke supplied the defense as Plymouth Our Lady of Good Counsel downed St. Mel's, 35-25, in a boys' varsity game last week.

Dan Gollinger and Ed Ramirez lifted the junior varsity to a 33-22 triumph.

In the girls' varsity game, Leigh Loranger, Kendra Hostynski and Stacey Champagne controlled the boards as Good Counsel trounced St. Mel's, 36-21.

Canton battles despite defeat

Coach Cyndi Burnstein could find little fault with her Plymouth Canton volleyball team's performance Monday against Brighton.

"No one should be ashamed," said Burnstein, despite a 15-9, 11-15, 15-11 defeat.

"They fought for everything," she said. "It was a struggle for both teams.

"I'm not sure if we've ever played better. Our defense looked better than it has been all year."

The match lasted almost 1½ hours.

"The rallies went forever," added the Canton coach. "We had about a 100 serves and missed only two.

"We made more mistakes and the difference was their defense was a shade better than ours."

Burnstein said of Brighton: "We played them two games at the Howell Invitational and beat them. They're always really a good hustling team. It's generally been close between us the last three years."

The Canton coach praised the play of senior setter Marianne Pink.

"Marianne hustled like mad," Burnstein said. "She got in there and set everything she could."

Mary Reardon and Debbie Dickinson handled the spiking chores for Canton while Denise Wright, Polly Roberts and Kris Harrison spearheaded the defense.

The loss dropped Canton to 5-5 overall in dual meets.

THE CHIEFS won three of eight games in the 15-team Howell Invitational Saturday won by Livonia Bentley.

Canton was beaten twice by eventual second place finisher Birmingham Groves. The Chiefs lost a hard-fought match against Ann Arbor Huron, 15-11, 18-16. They split with Waterford Kettering.

"We really played well in our last match against Huron," said Burnstein. "We played them tough."

Canton's match with Western Six League leader Livonia Churchill has been rescheduled for 7 p.m. March 2 at Canton. The match was postponed Feb. 11 because of the snow storm.

District grapplers roll

Plymouth Salem advanced five wrestlers into the next round of the state Class A wrestling tournament over the weekend at Ann Arbor Huron.

Five Rocks will compete Saturday in the regional, also at Huron.

Rival Plymouth Canton, champs of the Western Six League, placed three grapplers into the meet.

Salem, coached by Ron Krueger, took second place overall in the district tourney. Belleville, a member of the Suburban Eight League, finished with 184 points to Salem's 126. Canton was fifth overall with 69 in the 13-team field.

The Rocks, who placed fourth in the state tourney a year ago, had four individual champions.

At 98 pounds, sophomore Jeff Vojcek won the championship by decisioning Canton's Todd Bartlett in a tough match, 2-0. Vojcek won four matches on the day.

Salem's Billy Ward, who has been "coming on of late," according to Krueger, captured first place in the 119-pound class with a 7-4 decision over Belleville's Dave Cook.

In another final, Steve Szilagyi won the 167-pound class beating an old nemesis, Jim Steiner of Farmington, 1-0.

The Salem senior, who has been hampered by a sore knee, rallied in his semifinal match to beat Steve Magyari of North Farmington, 6-5.

Heavyweight Marty Piper, a junior, downed Vince Candella in the championship, 6-5, after trailing early. Piper reached the finals with three consecutive pins, all under a minute.

He now has 28 on the year, just one short of the school record set last season by Jeff Powers.

SALEM'S FINAL qualifier was 198-pound Scott Wickens, who grabbed third spot with a 4-3 triumph over Ann Arbor Pioneer's Jerry Kirby.

Canton's best wrestler on the day was Bob Mullen (155), who lost in the final to John Minick of Pioneer, 9-3. The Chief senior reached the final with a 7-6 upset over Belleville's Lynn Kinsey, who took third when Salem's Rob Price had to withdraw from the consolation match because an injured ankle.

The Chiefs, coached by Dan Chrenko, also qualified Brett Haarala (126) and Bartlett.

Haarala got into the regional with a 7-1 consolation win over Pioneer's Mike Evans.

Canton's Tim Collins missed qualifying by one point. The standout freshman lost his consolation final at 112 to Ypsilanti's Kevin Frisbie, 4-3.

"I'm pleased," said Chrenko. "There were some great matches and I thought we gave a good account of ourselves.

"We wrestled about as well as we could. That's all I can ask.

"This is our best finish ever."

Craig Petoskey of Pioneer won the 145-pound weight class, considered the toughest division. He stayed unbeaten with a 5-1 decision over Ypsi's Mike Marsh in the final.

Canton's Bob Hamblin, a runnerup recently in the Western Six League meet, was beaten by Suburban Eight champ Lonnie Renfroe, 8-4.

Spikers draw 'wild card' plained Salem coach Cathy Himes.

She credited setter Diane Murphy for providing Salem's defensive surge. Murphy, a sophomore, recently was called up from the junior varsity team.

In the second game, defensive standout Kelly Tucker served six straight points and Sobkow added six spikes as Salem wrapped up the match.

THE ROCKS advanced to the quarterfinals in the Howell Invitational held last Saturday before losing to Howell.

Livonia Bentley won the 15-team event; Birmingham Groves was runnersup.

Salem advanced to the final eight as a wild card team. Howell ousted the Rocks in a special one game playoff, 15-12.

THE BMW 320i. AN EFFICIENT LUXURY CAR WITH 36 MPG.

If the words "fuel efficient" conjure up images of small, practical cars hopelessly encumbered by their own virtues, we suggest you consider the BMW 320i.

For, while the 320i (with standard transmission) delivers an impressive 25 EPA estimated mpg, 36 estimated highway mileage and, based on these figures, an estimated mpg range of 383 miles and a highway range of 551 miles, it also delivers the sort of performance one associates only with a sports car.

(Naturally our fuel efficiency figures are for comparison purposes only. Your actual mileage and range may vary, depending on speed, weather and trip length. Your actual highway mileage and highway range will most probably be lower.)

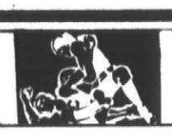

If you'd care to judge the 320i for yourself, phone us and we'll arrange a thorough test drive.

'Establishments' aid juniors

in the pocket/W.W. Edgar

Junior bowling, now on the increase in all sections of the country, has given bowling the greatest "farm" system of any sport. And the Detroit area is one of the top "hot" spots.

There was a time when the top bowlers came from the ranks of the pinsetters. It was from the pits that Joe Norris came to earn a place as the best bowler ever developed in these parts.

Then, about 20 years ago, junior bowling was introduced and the game took on new dimensions.

Most every establishment now has its junior leagues and the various cities sponsor bowling through the Parks and Recreation departments.

Among the leaders in the western suburbs are Merri-Bowl in Livonia and the Super Bowl in Canton.

The activity at Merri-Bowl has attracted 900 young boys and girls, while the Super Bowl in Canton has about 800 and Plaza Lanes in Plymouth another 350.

So, the adult leagues will never want for replacement as long as these juniors continue their enjoyment of trying to topple the pins.

GERI RITTER, a member of the Bonanza team in the ladies all-star leagues went on pin spilling spree Monday night at Luxury Lanes when she rolled the second highest 700 series of the season in the ladies ranks. She put together games of 243, 245 and 237 for 715.

Ruby Williamson is tops in the league with 780.

THE 700 CLUB opened its doors to admit two new male members during the week.

Bowling with the hydromatic men at Plaza Lanes, Tim Gardella found the range for games of 226, 258 and 248 for 732. And at the Super Bowl, Bob Gotts, a 168 average bowler, had a middle game of 289 for a 700.

FOR A CHANGE, there were no 700 series at Westland Bowl.

John Wodarski won the pace-making role with games of 258, and 235 in 690. Next to him came Ken Lang with a 279 in 684 and Bob Goike Jr. with 681.

In the women's section of the classic, Julie Zimmerman was high with a 257 in 612.

GLORIA MERTZ and Kay Know waged a great duel in the doubles at Merri-Bowl before Gloria landed on top with 594 that included a 199 game. Kay opened with 195 and closed with 220 for her 590.

In the handicappers league, Jerry Reymano was tops with a 278 in 678 and Mark Hoenshied had a 238 in 667.

DENNIS SEEMAN missed a chance for a 700 series in the pile drivers league at Plaza Lanes when he slumped to 190 finishing game after posting counts of 239 and 248. He had to be content with 687. Terry Cole was next in line with 670 and Tim Gardella took the third spot with 667.

THE BAZNERS had a field day at Garden Lanes when three members of the family took the top three places in the St. Linus league.

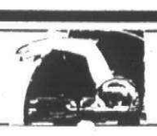

Art was tops with 648, David came next with 644 and Dave had 621.

In the women's classic, Pam Anderson walked off with top honors when she posted a 611 to beat out Virginia Nega by 15 pins. In the donut league, Rose Said showed the way with 590 as her main rival, Pat Tippier trailed by five pins.

IN THE JUNIOR house league at Super Bowl Jim Morawa used a 226 game to land on top with 637.

Admission is $1 for students, $2 for adults.

Wayne will be back to try and defend its championship.

Area squads which will be trying to dethrone the Zebras are Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Garden City East, Garden City West, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Stevenson, Clarenceville, Redford Thurston and Redford Union.

Diles offers candid opinions

By STEVE BARNABY

Nineteen years ago you couldn't have gotten Dave Diles to do anything for the community.

On Tuesday the ABC sportscaster stopped off at the annual Farmington Area Jaycee Prayer Breakfast and admitted just that to a gathering of civic and business leaders.

But two decades of personal ups and downs has taught him there's more to life than self-indulgence.

Back from a week of Super Bowl-commitments in New Orleans, Diles shared some thoughts about his change of lifestyle.

"Dan Pastorini is the personification of the word wasteful," said Diles, referring to the Oakland Raider quarterback who lost his starting job earlier this year through injury.

"There is no evidence that he cares for anyone but Dan Pastorini. He has elected to live for himself.

"I did that."

But divorce proceedings, helping a child who at one time was crippled and his father's death forced Diles to take another look at life.

"I CAN'T BE an extension of his life. But when you had L.B. Diles as a father, it is an almost impossible quest. It's not in me to be as good as my father," he explained.

Diles discounts wealth as the only measure of success, noting that his father never made more than $7,000 a year, raised five children, three of whom went to college.

"When I was 19, I knew it all," said Diles, who had graduated from college by that time. But his father helped to bring him down to size after one incident which Diles' mother called "licentious."

His father wrote him a letter, which read in part:

"If you were as low physically as you appear morally, a snake's hind end would look like heaven."

But his father's death was a turning point.

While Diles was making big plans for his father, who had just suffered a heart attack, the elder Diles stopped him in his tracks.

"Boy, I don't think you understand me at all. I would really like to go to heaven and be with your mother."

A professed Christian, Diles admits life can be difficult.

"I don't have it all worked out. I have to work on it," he told the group gathered at Mercy Center.

Referring again to Pastorini, Diles says he personifies what is wrong today, not only in sports, but in American society in general.

"I see Dan Pastorini as the modern athlete who only cares about himself," said Diles, who believes many professional athletes are interested only in making more and more money.

"What has happened to sports?" asked Diles. The Super Bowl, he added, typifies what's wrong.

"You have 75,000 fans in various states of sobriety, and 1,300 media people. It has become like a war. You can't possibly cover it," he said.

"There is nothing artistic or creative. The game has become secondary to the presentation."

Some people's lifes have taken on the same meaning, he said. "They let things take priority over that which is important."

Junior baseball sets sign-up

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League (PCJBL) will hold registration for the 1981 season on three consecutive Saturdays (March 7, 14 and 21) in the Plymouth Canton High School cafeteria.

Registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

All boys and girls who will be 7 years old on or before July 31, 1981, and no older than 17 years on or before the identical date, are eligible to register.

Veteran players — those boys who will return to the same team as last year — should sign up from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, March 7 at Canton.

Only boys of the following ages can be classified as veterans: age 8, C League; 10, B League; 12, A League; 14, F League; 16 and 17, E League.

The PCJBL reserves the right to limit the number of players and teams in each age group.

According to a PCJBL spokesman, facilities are limited. Player placements will be determined on a first come, first serve basis.

A NEW GIRLS SOFTBALL program is being offered by the PCJBL at Allen School, on Haggerty Road between Ann Arbor Road and Trail.

The program is available to youngsters ages seven through 10, replacing T-Ball.

The new alignment for the girls softball program is as follows: G (Instructional) League, ages seven through 10, $14 registration fee; G Junior League, 10-13, $18; G Senior League, 14-17, $20.

Registration fees for the boys programs are as follows: C (T-Ball) League, ages seven through eight, $14; B League, 9-10, $18; A League, 11-12, $18; F League, 13-14, $20; E League, 15-17, $20.

Bulldogs win crown

Livonia Bentley, maybe, should venture in a northwesterly direction every weekend for volleyball competition.

The Bulldogs, which won the championship of the Howell Tournament last season, successfully defended that title last weekend.

In the process of competing in the semifinal and final rounds, Bentley played its best volleyball of the season, according to coach Dana Hardwidge.

"We were consistent, played as a team and were really fired up," Hardwidge said. "Although they were tired, they kept hustling and firing the ball at people."

The Bulldogs slipped past Dearborn Fordson 16-14 in a one-game quarterfinal, then knocked-off Fraser in the semifinals 15-6 and 15-8 and Birmingham Groves in the championship game 15-7 and 15-10.

The one-game shootout against Fordson was described by Hardwidge as "the most nerve-wracking game of the day."

Four times the Bulldogs had the serve for match point, but could not wrap up the victory. After Fordson tied the score 14-14, Ann Roy served two consecutive points to advance Bentley to the semifinals.

"We played extremely well, finally played together as a team," Hardwidge said. "Lori Swanson (5-11), was dominating at the net. Almost 50 percent of her spikes were aces.

"All of them played so good," Hardwidge said. "(Carla) Campbell, (Jeanette) Bartle, and Roy just had a balanced attack spiking. Miki Truchan and Lisa Waldock (setters) played good floor games."

The Bulldogs didn't look too impressive during round-robin pool play, Hardwidge noted. "They still couldn't get any kind of consistency," she said.

In pool play, Bentley won two games each from Ypsilanti and Hartland and divided two with Fordson and Fraser. Fifteen teams competed at Howell.

The Bulldogs will attempt to win their second title in as many weeks Saturday when they venture to the Schoolcraft Invitational.

Over 30 icers play on desire

By DOUG FUNKE

They may not be able to streak up and down the ice like Maurice "The Rocket" Richard could in his heyday, but the desire to lace up the skates and take their turns with hockey sticks in hand is still strong for these players.

Q: Do you ever get tired in the late stages of a game?
A: You get tired early in the game.
Another response: You get tired getting dressed.

Over-30 hockey leagues have been in vogue almost a decade now. In fact, they have become so popular in the Observer area that every community — Redford, Westland, Garden City and Livonia — has one.

You have to be over 30 years of age to even get into a league.

Most of the players seem to range between 30 and 40, but several "oldtimers" compete in all the leagues. Ten of the 96 players in the Livonia League, for example, range from 50 to 58 years of age.

THE GAME is the same except for a few rules changes to help cut down injures. Older bones, after all, are more brittle and take more time to heal.

The two basic prohibitions are no slap shots and no bodychecking. All four of the leagues have those stipulations.

Some leagues play 20-minute periods with continuous running time. Others play stop time (at the referee's whistle) for shorter durations, 10- or 15-minute periods.

It all adds up to enough action time for everyone.

Other than the minor rules adjustment and the expected slower pace of play, over-30 hockey is the same as any other brand.

Players are just as apt to go onto or leave the ice by climbing over the boards as through the doors at the benches. There is plenty of spitting.

Players talk quietly among themselves on the bench about strategy. There are shouts of encouragement. Some, though not many, even cuss.

FELLOWSHIP and exercise seem to be just as important as winning to most men involved in over-30 leagues.

"It's an awful good way to keep in shape," said Howard Flemming, president of the Wayne/Westland League. "It's more fun than jogging and shear terror keeps you going," he added with a laugh. "We try to keep it a fun thing and not take it too serious."

Flemming, 65 years of age, started playing hockey in his boyhood days, like many of his over-30 counterparts.

"The whole purpose is to enjoy yourself, get exercise, go out and have a few beers afterwards and talk," said Richard Spisak, 51, president of the Garden City League.

As for fellowship, all four leagues have post-season banquets. The Garden City League took its banquet on the road last year and enjoyed a three-day weekend at Schuss Mountain.

There seems to be no lack of players to fill rosters in over-30 leagues.

There are six teams comprised of 16 players each in the Garden City League. Spisak estimates that 80 percent are Garden City residents.

The Livonia League consists of six teams and 96 players — all Livonia residents.

There are eight teams and 112 players in the Redford League. Dick Gaffney, president of the league, said that approximately 90 percent of the participants reside in the township.

The Wayne/Westland League is comprised of 10 teams, 140 players, 90 percent of whom live in either of those two communities, Flemming said.

Several leagues have waiting lists with residents getting priority when an opening occurs.

In order to keep the leagues competitive, every player is given a skills level rating at the end of each sason. Then players are shuffled around and the teams balanced so that no team has an obvious edge.

Teams are likely to change as much as 80 percent from year to year.

Most leagues meet once a week (twice a week in Garden City) for approximately 20 weeks, then have a post-season playoffs.

It isn't really all that expensive to participate. Figures ranged from $100-$200 per person per year, with the cost going for ice time and officials.

SURPRISINGLY, there seems to be few serious injuries considering the vast ranges in ages of some players on the ice and differing skill levels.

In the combined history of the four leagues, one player has died of a heart attack while participating.

Spisak said that he has suffered two broken legs, but the quirk there is that he is the only player ever in the Garden City League to break a leg.

Dennis Carlsen, treasurer of the Livonia League, said the most serious injury in that league was a serious gash to his brother Paul. Paul recovered and continues to be active today as a goaltender.

Colonial trips Mark

Mark Realty, which finished first during the regular season in the Livonia Over 30 Hockey League, experienced some tough sledding — or skating — last weekend in the first round of the round-robin playoffs.

Colonial Camera tripped Mark, 7-2. Mack Carpenter scored two goals for Mark.

Kramer Carpet rallied for three goals during the third period, but they were not enough to catch Daly Restaurant.

Daly, which had built a four-goal lead going into the final period, won, 6-4. Dennis Elenich scored the three-goal hat trick for Daly and also drew an assist. Harry Swystun scored twice for Kramer.

Five different players notched one goal apiece for Bra-Con Industries during their 5-2 victory over D&G Heating.

Bob Barnesky, John Pendell, Bob Roskelly, Larry Cranston and Jim Berry all shot the puck into D&G's net during the game.

After four more weeks of round-robin games, the two teams with the most points will battle for the championship of the playoffs.

During the regular season, Frank Asadoorian, D&G, and Elenich tied for the scoring championship. Each picked up 36 points. Asadoorian had 25 goals and 11 assists, Elenich 16 goals and 20 assists.

Graham Board, Daly, was the goaltender with the best goals-against average. He allowed only 46 goals in 20 games.

Michigan's unemployment rate is the highest in the country. At Michigan National Corporation Banks, we're trying to do something about it. We believe you should receive a $500 federal tax credit for the purchase of a 1981 American-built automobile. Let's all help reduce unemployment and get Michigan's economy rolling again. Fill out the coupon and send it to your senator.

To start things rolling, we've lowered our prime interest rate. Again.
While other banks in this area are keeping their prime rate high, at Michigan National we're lowering ours. In fact, at the time of this writing, we have the lowest prime rate in the country. If you like our attitude, make your voice heard. Move your checking and savings accounts to Michigan National.

Plenty of sidetrips to enjoy, so what's your hurry?

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

I can hear them now, bragging about how they drive to Florida non-stop, speed all night to reach Atlanta or burn up the turnpike to Lexington for a long weekend. Fast living is an American specialty, and sometimes it is necessary to live in the fast lane. But you miss a lot.

If you are one of the thousands of Detroit-area travelers who will drive Interstate-75 north and south in 1981, consider this radical idea: Drive slowly, stop along the way, enjoy yourself.

Discover cities like Toledo, Cincinnati, Lexington and Atlanta. Visit hidden treasures such as the Neil Armstrong Space Museum in Ohio, Shakertown in Kentucky or Andersonville in Georgia. You might even have time to stop at places like the Golden Lamb, oldest inn in Ohio, the Kentucky State lodges, or Georgia's Callaway Gardens and Inn.

TOLEDO — Michigan and Ohio once fought a battle over who would own Toledo, and Ohio won. Sometimes it looks like the people of Michigan turned their backs on Toledo that day and never entered the city again.

Toledo is on the Maumee River, the largest river to empty into the Great Lakes. The city has a first-class art museum, a wonderful warm weather river ride for history lovers, and a unique art colony called Crosby Gardens. For winter travelers, the logical travel break is at the Wolcott House, run by the Maumee Valley Historical Society in the adjacent town of Maumee.

SOUTH OF TOLEDO — You may want to save your visit to Toledo for a warm spring day, but there are two stops worth taking on the way to the Ohio-Kentucky border. You have probably visited the Air Force Museum at Dayton, but you may have missed the delightful little Neil Armstrong Air and Space Museum at the astronaut's hometown of Wapakoneta, Ohio.

The entrance walk runs past landing lights to the eerily lit dome rising like a full moon beside I-75. A sign reads "Please don't walk on the building." The building is built around the balloon, the Toledo Two, and the small yellow Aronca Champion in which Armstrong learned to fly. You can explore space capsules, simulated space flight and nostalgic items like Armstrongs' boyhood bicycle.

If you like to eat, sleep and explore historic surroundings, detour off I-75 to Lebanon, 20 miles north of Cincinnati, to the Golden Lamb, the oldest inn in Ohio and one of the most attractive eating and sleeping places in the Midwest.

This was a log-cabin hostelry in 1802, and a social-political center during the War of 1812, the Civil War and most of the historic dates that followed. It contains an extensive collection of good Shaker furniture from the nearby Shaker settlement of Union Village.

Cincinnati is one of the finest, yet least-known, restaurant cities in the United States, but you may want to save the Queen City for your return trip, and stop instead in Covington, Ky.

COVINGTON, KY. — Just across the bridge from Cincinnati. Headlined in recent years because of the tragic fire at the nearby Beverly Hills Supper Club in Southgate. You could drive through Covington many times without realizing that it is a city of churches.

In Europe, you would not be surprised to walk off a city street into a majestic stone cathedral; in Covington, you will probably be surprised. Look for the blue towers of the Mother of God Church. Turn a corner for a full view of the nearby Basilica of the Assumption, styled after the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris.

All of this cathedral architecture was built by the German Catholic settlers who founded Covington, a religious and industrious people.

Covington also has a unique private museum, seen only by appointment, where a large collection of ventriloquist dummies is housed.

A major stopping place on I-75 is the Lexington area, where the state has built a one-of-a-kind museum-park called the Kentucky Horse Park at Iron Works Pike, where Kentucky's million-dollar babies are born and raised.

You can walk around the track and use picnic facilities free. A $5 ticket admits you to the museum, film, farrier and harness-making barns, and to the barns where students learn to raise and train horses.

Among the better-known horse-related attractions of Lexington is a lesser-known historic house, the Mary Todd Lincoln House, which opened with little fanfare a few years ago and is often missed by travelers.

South and west of Lexington are two of the state's most popular tourist attractions: Shakertown, a restored village where you can find food and accommodations straight out of the 19th century; and Bardstown, where Stephen Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home."

A 355-mile stretch of I-75 runs from Rock City in the northwest corner of Georgia to Valdosta in the south. There are two national military parks, Chicamauga-Chattanooga, near Rock City, where you will find one of the largest military gun collections in the world, and the Kennesaw Mountain National Battlefield Park at Kennesaw.

The Cloudland Canyon State Park is also off I-75 on the northern leg at Rising Fawn. Three other state parks are adjacent to the highway: Red Top Mountain in Carterville, Indian Springs in Indian Springs, and High Falls in Jackson.

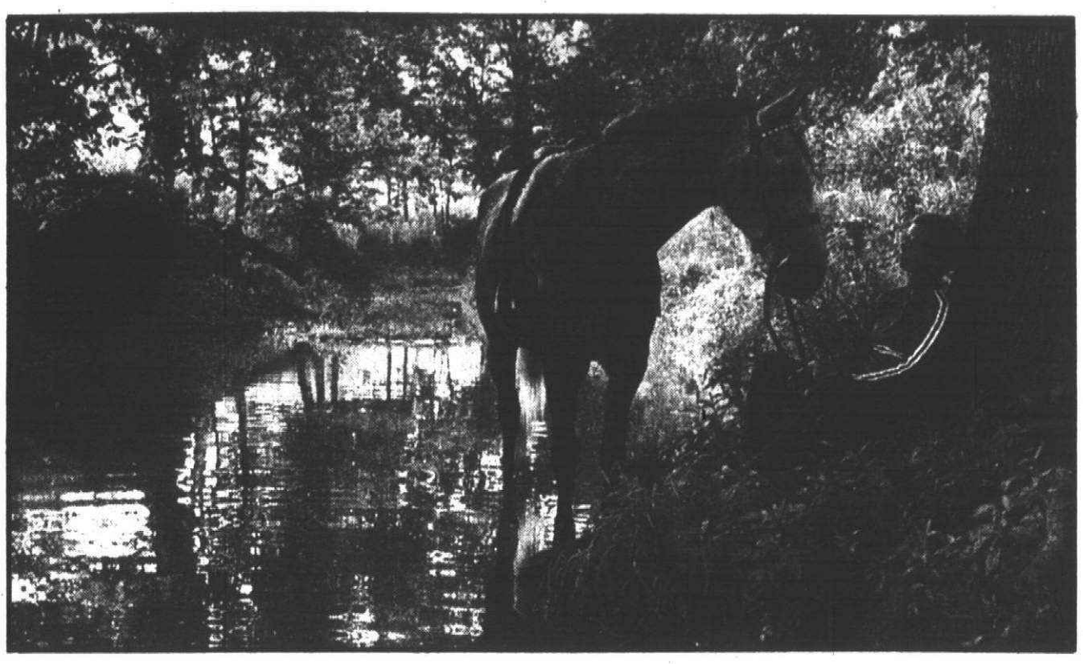

Just south of Macon, where I-75 turns south and I-16 breaks east for Savannah, you are approaching the turnoff into Plains country and the Andersonville Trail. The trail winds through the Camelia Gardens at Marshallville, the free Flint River Ferry (honk your horn for service), and Andersonville National Historic Site and the village of Andersonville.

A FEW MILES south of the point where you re-enter I-75, you will see signs for the town of Tifton, where 30 authentic farm village structures have been restored in a state historic site called the Georgia Agrirama. Take a detour to Pine Mountain on Highway 27 where a nature lover named Cason Callaway built Callaway Gardens.

Callaway Gardens is a non-profit foundation which offers greenhouses and natural woodland gardens as well as contemporary-if-woodsy motel with golf course, lake and a tiny chapel.

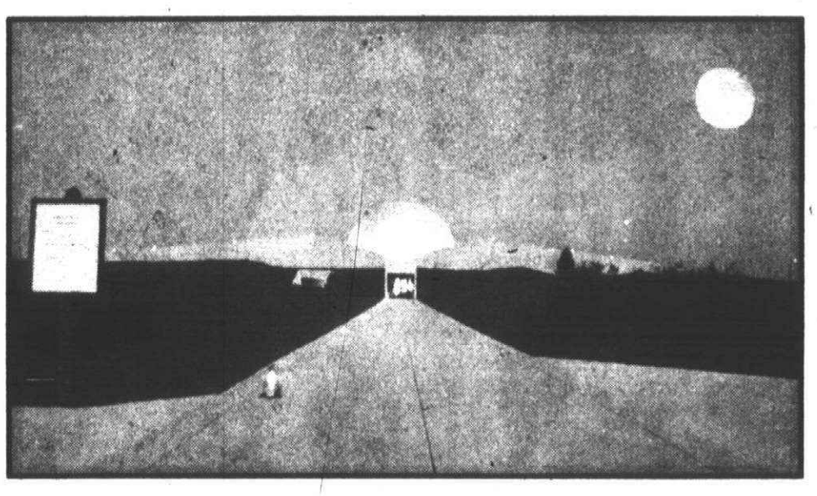

These are only a few of the sites you can see along the way if you take it slow along I-75 to Florida.

So, what's your hurry?

RIGHT: Covington, Ky., is a city of churches remarkable in their architectural styles. Seen here, illuminated blue towers rise majestically above the Mother of God Church. ABOVE: In the Lexington area are 1,032 acres of land where the horses that made Kentucky famous are born and raised. The tract is called the Kentucky Horse Park and visitors can roam at will. BELOW: The setting is not Washington, D.C., Patricia Neal is nowhere in sight, and Michael Rennie is not about to utter the unforgettable: "Klaatu barada nikto!" Still the Neil Armstrong Air and Space Museum in in Wapakoneta, Ohio, bears close resemblance to the craft in "Day the Earth Stood Still." (Photo by John Zwez)

● EASTER IN VIENNA

For the ninth season running, Orin Hood will lead a small band of followers to Austria for the WDET Easter Music Tour.

This year's waltz begins Friday, April 17, with an afternoon flight from Metro Airport and finishes Saturday, April 25, back at Metro. Sandwiched in between are cathedral tours, palace tours, Easter Mass, a Vienna Choir Boys concert, the Lipizzaner stallions, the Danube, the Alps, Swan Lake and Mozart's childhood home.

Accommodations are first class hotels with bath and breakfast. The tour price is $1,599. Singles, there is a $100 supplement required. A deposit will suffice for awhile but full payment is due Feb. 28. For more information, contact Hood at 577-4146.

● WHERE EAGLES FLY

If you've wondered where bald and golden eagles go to winter, wonder no further. It's to the Land Between the Lakes, a 170,000-acre peninsula in western Kentucky, where the neighbors include woodpeckers, chickadees, bluebirds, wild turkeys, deer and beaver roaming freely, undisturbed but for the occasional appearance of a human.

An Eagles Weekend (Feb. 20-22) has been set aside to observe this fowl gathering, and naturalists and specialists will conduct workshops during the time to help explain it all.

For information, contact TVA-Land Between the Lakes, Golden Pond, Ky. 42231, or Lake Barkley State Resort Park, Cadiz, Ky. 42211, 502-924-1171.

● CLOSER TO HOME

- Feb. 20-22: Michigan U.P. Snowmobile Association Ride-In and meeting of Iron Dog Brigade, Copper Harbor;
- Feb. 21-22: Ski jumping tournament, Pine Mountain, Iron Mountain;
- Feb. 28 to March 1: Ski jumping championships, Suicide Bowl, Ishpeming.

Getting firsthand look at the powers that be

Thirteen area students will travel to Washington, D.C., in March for a travel experience called the Washington Workshops.

The workshops are open to high school students nationwide, but as far as I know, the students of Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills are the only ones in this area who have taken advantage of it.

The Washington Workshops are sponsored by the Washington Workshop Foundation, which wants to give young people experience in government to complement the theory they learn from books.

Qualified students spend several days on the campus of Marymount College in Arlington, Va., with regular trips to the places in Washington where the federal government is a living reality.

The 13 Kingswood students will travel with government teacher Arlyce Seibert of Rochester, who has sent several of her students to the program for the past five years.

ON TYPICAL workshop days, the students will ride the bus into Washington, meet representatives from both the House and the Senate, sit in on congressional committee hearings, eat in the Capitol Building, tour the Treasury Department, interview someone from the Secret Service.

They will also, of course, sit in the gallery of both the House and the Senate while Congress is in session.

In the evening, students will have government guests on campus, possibly an ambassador from a foreign country.

Each day will close with disucssions called the Sense of the Seminar. The program ends with students creating their own model student congress.

THESE WORKSHOPS are enlightening, not only because of the experience, but also because students discuss government issues with their peers from all over the country, and are thus exposed to different regional viewpoints.

The Kingswood students will be in Washington March 8-15, but there are 10 of these programs held from January through June.

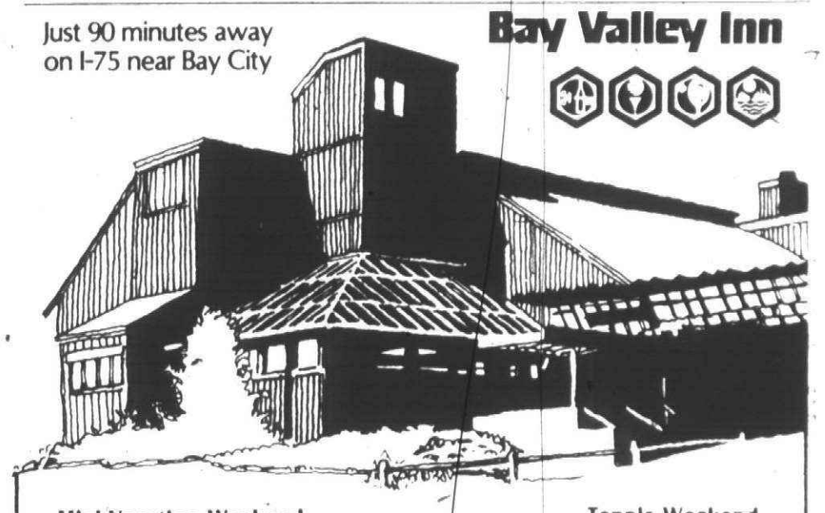

Any high school student is eligible for the workshop either as an individual or as part of a high school group. Interested students must be recommended to the workshop by a high school government teacher.

For more information, write to Cynthia Littlefield, director, the Washington Workshops, 3222 N Street NW, Suite 340, Washington, D.C. 20007, or call 202-965-3434.
