Report offers prescription to curb sewer backup

An engineering consultant firm may recommend construction of a $5 million sanitary sewer improvement project to curb the danger of backup during the next 20 years.

If the system is not built, raw sewage could "find its way out of the deficient sewer system into storm sewers, drainage ditches and streams," says a voluminous report submitted by Wade, Trim & Associates.

"This surcharge would cause basement flooding for many residential, business and industrial areas within the township."

The prediction is based on population projections of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), which forecasts a Canton population of 61,000 by the year 2005. The 1980 census lists a population of 48,000 for Canton Township.

According to engineer Robert Wade, the sewer predictions take into account "Super Sewer" construction which is expected to begin this year. The $76,000 facility plan study, financed with a $60,000 federal grant and $16,000 in local funds, focusses on deficiencies in Canton's present sewer system, Wade said. He expects to submit a final recommendation on a sanitary sewer improvement project following a public hearing on the book-like report. The document was submitted to the Township Board last week.

The public hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 8, in Township Hall at Canton Center and Proctor.

The report outlines seven sewer improvement alternatives, ranging in cost from $5 million to almost $8 million.

APPROVAL OF THE REPORT itself by the Township Board, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the federal Environmental Protection Agency will qualify Canton for future federal grants, Wade said.

Under a 1970 federal law, EPA grant money for sewer construction is available only to communities with approved facilities plans.

Wade said availability of EPA sewer grants is questionable for next year because of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts.

However, the engineer may recommend submission of a grant appiication for one of the report's sewer improvement alternatives in hopes of winning a grant when monies again become available.

At this point, Wade said he favors "alternative seven" — the least expensive of the seven project proposals. Under that plan, new sewer mains would be constructed on Cherry Hill from Haggerty to the township's eastern line and on Morton-Taylor from Joy to Warren.

Both mains would connect to "Super Sewer" — a regional trunk line which will cut through Canton near Hannan Road.

According to the Wade, Trim report, 75 percent of the project's $5 million cost could come from a federal grant with 5 percent coming from state monies. Canton would be responsible for 20 percent of the cost if such grants are approved.

"The purpose is to correct problems — not to extend sewer lines," Wade stressed.

Road work:

Sheldon widening tests motorists' nerves

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Driving through the Plymouth-Canton community these days has become a test of one's patience. Since the start of the widening of Sheldon Road, traffic tie-ups along city and township streets have become commonplace, culminating in frayed nerves and overheated car engines. But some relief is in sight. The Wayne County Road Commission, responsible for widening the two-lane north-south road into five lanes, plans to complete a short stretch of the road between Ann Arbor Trail and Joy by mid-July.

With at least the east side of Sheldon paved, some travel through the area will pick up.

In the meantime, however, there are inconveniences that daily greet residents. Among them:

- A local postal carrier, whose route includes Sheldon between Ann Arbor Trail and Ann Arbor Road, tried delivering the mail one day recently but couldn't find the residents' mailboxes. Counyt road crews had removed them.
- Access to some Sheldon Road residences was blocked when residents found they couldn't enter their driveways. Most parked their cars some three blocks away. This happened after road crews earlier insured the free access of local residents. The city interceded on behalf of one semi-invalid man, who couldn't walk the three blocks.
- An extra 5,000 vehicles a day are traveling on Main Street, which parallels Sheldon to the east. The city's engineering staff presently is studying the impact on other roads.
- The residents of one condominium complex at Ann Arbor Road discovered their only access driveway was blocked by roadwork. The city interceded on their behalf and the inconvenience was corrected within a few days.

"In order to have improvements, they're going to have to put up with some inconveniences," said Robert Kania, a road commission construction engineer. "Our policy has been to keep the road open for at least local traffic." The entire Sheldon stretch is expected to be completed and open to traffic by Nov. 1, said Kania, but it will take a month longer to finish the landscaping touches. Once the road is widened to five lanes (including a left turn lane), traffic flow in the area should be improved, although it's not expected to increase traffic, as feared by some residents, he said.

AS OF MONDAY, road crews began paving the east side of Sheldon between Ann Arbor Road and Ann Arbor Trail. Project engineer Norbert Zelasny estimates this stretch will be open to traffic in mid-July. By the end of the week, crews will move south to pave the west side of Sheldon between Joy Road and Ann Arbor Road.

Paving the other side of those stretches is expected to begin in mid-August. By the time the project is completed, three main intersections — Ann Arbor Trail, Ann Arbor Road and Joy Road — will have turn lanes at each side of the four-way crossing.

Among the residential streets which intersect Sheldon, these will be closed in the near future: Pinetree, Marlin, Mark Trail, Albert Drive, Mayville, the north side of Joy, Brookline, and the south side of Ann Arbor Trail for about two weeks. Most motorists familiar with the surrounding territory have changed travel schedules to avoid the Sheldon work. But according to one city official, the road commission's planned detour to the construction makes no sense at all.

"IT'S NOT working," said city engineer Ken West of the plan to detour traffic off Sheldon Road to the I-275 Freeway to the east. The freeway, in some parts, is almost two miles away.

Police-dispatch squabble nears settlement stage

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

It looks as though a squabble between Canton and four other communities over a joint police dispatch system will be settled amicably.

The state has extended until July 1 the deadline for the communities to clear up problems over an operating budget for the shared communications system.

Grants coordinators for the state department of management and budget earlier had said money given to the communities to buy equipment and set up the system would be taken back unless the system was in operation by June 1.

Since then, there have been several meetings in an attempt to resolve the difficulties. Canton's portion of state and federal reimbursement would be at least $18,375 and could go as high as $26,100, Finance Director Mike Gorman said.

AT ISSUE is a joint dispatch system called Western Metropolitan Emergency Communications Network (WMECN).

Members are the city of Belleville and the townships of Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren. A nominal member is Huron Township, which has its own central police and fire line.

Equipment for the dispatch system was installed last September in Belleville, which has a radio frequency. In recent weeks, the communities had argued over how operating costs would be divided and where the communications center should be located.

Working closely with Canton Supervisor Jim Poole on this issue has been Justin Emerson, mayor of Belleville.

"We expect to have (the system) operating by July 1 or before," Emerson said. "If it isn't, we might as well forget it.

"It has been quite a struggle (but) it seems to be falling into place," he added.

EMERSON SAID he received a phone call on Tuesday about the extension from Russell Webb of the state department of management and budget. A letter is to follow.

In the meantime, other arrangements are being made to clear up about $19,000 which the state and other communities owe to Canton, the funding agent for WMECN.

The cooperative effort dates back the the mid-1970s, when largely part-time police departments in the communities were struggling to provide adequate protection. In recent years, Canton formed a full-time department, while other communities have cut back police service.

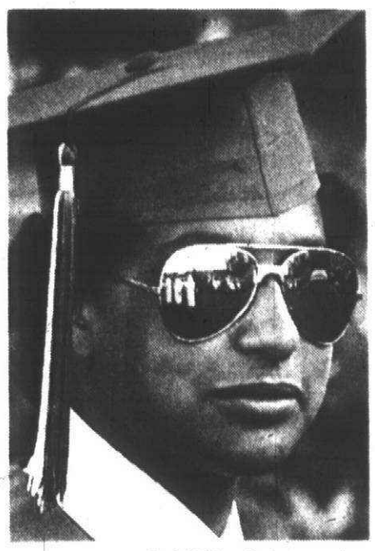

The WMECN agreement calls for financing from the state, federal and local units of government. The participating communities are supposed to split costs based on 1975 census figures.

That funding agreement has sparked much of the controversy.

Most of the communities, including Canton, recently approved a WMECN operating budget of $133,000 which is based on the 1975 formula. Under that plan, Canton's share would be $57,000.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees won't allocate its $57,000 share of the budget until the issue is settled. Gorman is recommending that the

They're scouring land for cow chips

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Give Art Winkel a job to do and he jumps in, feet first.

Winkel, Canton's fire inspector, has been spending his Saturdays looking for cow-manure patties.

The "patties" will be used during the First Annual Cow Chip Fling during the Canton Country Festival on Aug. 8. The festival also will feature a queen who will ride on a renovated manure spreader.

A SMALL group of dedicated searchers last Saturday went to a farm at Ford and Napier and gathered about 100 pieces of cow manure. They are now drying in the driveway of Winkel's western Canton home.

The group plans to strike out again this at 10 a.m. this Saturday. Traveling on a hay wagon, they use shovels and gloves to scoop up the manure.

"It's lots of fun," said Winkel. "My wife didn't like it at first, but now she loves it." While that scouting expedition continues, Winkel also has been busy writing letters inviting elected officials to the cow-chip fling.

Recently, Winkel received a letter from Gov. William Milliken declining an invitation to attend what promises to be a "memorable" event.

Milliken said participating in a cow chip fling would "perpetuate a stereotype of politicians."

"I have something else on my schedule," said Milliken. "And if I don't, I soon will have.

"Thank you for thinking of me, although I cannot see why," continued Milliken. "Feel free to proceed without me."

Winkel has written another letter, urging Milliken to reconsider.

A reply hasn't come yet from Winkel's invitation to President Reagan, but "we're sure he will respond."

Board re-instates Machnik to building post

Aaron Machnik has won back his old job as head of the Canton Township building department.

Machnik, chief building official since 1979 and a township employee since 1975, resigned in April to accept a job with the city building department in Palm Beach, Fla.

Personnel director Dan Durack said Machnik recently telephoned Canton Township Hall to request reinstatement as Canton's chief building official. According to Durack, Machnik is disappointed with his new position in Palm Beach.

At a special meeting Wednesday night, the Township Board voted 5-2 to reinstate Machnik. Pat Murphy has been working as acting chief building official since Machnik's resignation.

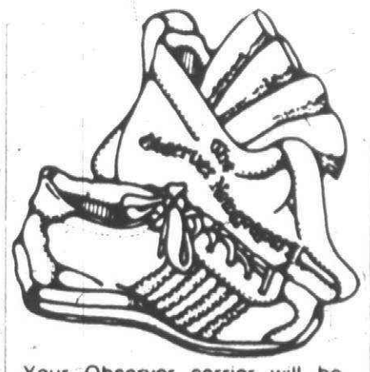

Voting against the rehiring were Trustee Carol Bodenmiller, who questioned Machnik's "loyalty," and Trustee Stephen Larson, who proposed considering Machnik after seeking other applicants.

"I don't want any employee to feel they can't look for another job," said Supervisor James Poole in response to the concerns raised by Mrs. Bodenmiller. "I would like to feel we have good people here who can go on to bigger and better things.

"There was self-respect involved in asking for his old job back," Poole said.

Big classes bring change

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

The large classes that caused the switch in the ceremonies from the high school auditoriums to the athletic fields have brought about a great change in the high school commencement exercises.

There was a time when the classes were small, and the seniors and their parents were treated to all sorts of speakers, who attempted to impress upon the seniors the type of world they were facing.

But those days are gradually disappearing, said Kent Buikema, principal of Plymouth-Canton High School, while sitting in the hot sun supervising the rehearsal of his 1981 class.

"Now that we switched to the athletic field, most of the folks think they are on the football field looking at the game — even though they come to see their children graduate." he said. "The graduates these days are not in the mood to listen to any spellbinder. That's why we did not invite an orator for our exercise.

"Commencement night has become a night of frivolity to the graduates, and they want to get their diploma, hear their names mentioned over the loudspeaker . They would pay little heed to a long-winded speaker."

PRINCIPAL BUIKEMA, who admits that he has only a slight recollection of his graduation exercises from Calument High School in Chicago and from the University of Illinois in 1953, can't even remember any part of the orators' messages from his graduation.

"And you can't blame them for being a bit bored," he said of present-day audiences. "When you have a class of close to 500 eagerly waiting to get their diplomas there is little chance for an orator to make an impression. "By the time you listen to the members of the Board of Education, the class officers and the principal speak, they have had enough.

While he can't remember much of his graduations, he has fond memories of the Canton High School's commencement in 1975.

"It was the first class from the Canton school, and it was my first as the principal," he said. "Those things leave lasting memories. The only other commencement I recall was some years ago when someone, eager for a joke, unleashed a white rat among the girl graduates and the excitement it caused was the highlight of the exercises."

Then he smiled and said, " no one remembers the name of the orator who spoke that night."

Police find bicycles in stolen van

Canton police are looking for two men in connection with the theft of a van loaded with pilfered bicycles, lawn mowers, mini-bikes and snow blowers.

According to police Cpl. Rob Cripe, the case began about 2 a.m. Tuesday when a resident of the Ford-Sheldon vicinity called police to complain that somebody was loading bikes into a van.

OFFICERS saw the van traveling south on Sheldon near Cherry Hill, and took chase.

The van cut into a subdivision, driving across lawns. On Harsdale, two men jumped out of the van and ran away, Cripe said. A police track dog was unable to pick up the trail of the pair, Subsequent investigation showed the van had been stolen May 15 from Smith Furniture Co. in Ypsilanti. Inside the vehicle were about 10 bikes, two lawn mowers, a mini-bike and a snow blower, Cripe said.

Police believe the men had been driving around Canton, stealing items from residential areas.

"A lot of the bikes have been identified and returned to the owners," said Cripe.

Officials print reference book for residents

It won't be called "Canton Confidential."

But a handy reference book containing information about Canton services, organizations, ordinances, etc., is in the works. It will be printed and distributed through homeowners' associations, clubs and service groups.

Canton's Township Board approved the plan, setting a limit of $1,000 for printing and distribution.

WORKING ON the idea for several weeks have been Supervisor James Poole, Finance Director Mike Gorman and other administrators.

Poole said the information would be "non-political."

The booklet originally was to be titled "Canton Confidential." But that title was rejected by board members.

Officials graduate from arson classes

Like high school students, police officers and fire fighters sweat out final exams and celebrate graduations.

Public officials, families and friends turned out to applaud recently as eight Plymouth and Canton police officers and fire fighters graduated from a nine-week course sponsored by Schoolcraft College and Force Five, a five-community arson investigation unit.

This second graduating class had 14 students.

During arson cases, Force Five pools the talents of the police and fire departments of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township.

In October 1980, Plymouth Fire Chief Roy Hall developed the course, which has drawn interest from Inkster and Wayne, cities outside the Force Five area.

Recent graduates are:

Donald Belsky of Plymouth, Daniel Carpenter of Plymouth, Michael Gardner of Plymouth, Keith M. Lazar of Canton, Thomas Lenaghan of Plymouth, Alan Matthews of Plymouth, Karen Paulun of Canton and Frederick Pytell of Canton.

Sheldon work tests drivers' nerves

"I think only a stranger in the community would take the detour they've suggested," he added. "When you see a heavy semi-truck going down Canton Center Road (unpaved in Plymouth Township and through Hough Park Subdivision, you know the detour's not effective."

In addition, West says the construction is causing "abnormal traffic problems in the city." He estimated that the city streets hardest hit are Main, Harvey and Ann Arbor Trail.

"The wrost part of it is increased maintenance," West said. "We're getting more chuckholes and the streets are cracking." Mayor Mary Childs recently complained about the construction to West, he said.

"One day she had to wait three changes of the light at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey to get thorugh," he recalls. "Traffic was clogged for two blocks." A resident of the Crestwood Condominiums at Ann Arbor Road and Sheldon described how other senior citizens in the complex meander around the construction work when it completely shuts down travel between Ann Arbor Road and Ann arbor Trail. The shutdown was attributed to reconstruction of a drain midway on the two east-west roads.

"We had to take Ann Arbor Road to Harvey, and Harvey to Ann Arbor Trail, and then east to Sheldon," described Thomas Binder. A 10-year retiree, he now describes himself as a "sidewalk engineer."

"That's what they call people who stand on the sidewalk and watch the project being done. Just for something to do, we spend a lot of hours out there."

Area squabble nears settlement money come from the police budget and from federal revenue-sharing money.

Van Buren Township also has agreed to go along with that plan, Emerson said. Van Buren earlier had been holding out for a funding plan based on 1980 census figures and usage — which would have substantially reduced its share.

Van Buren uses the joint system 18 hours a day when its part-time police department is in operation, Supervisor Patricia Cullin said. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department patrols in that community the remaining six hours of each day.

The Belleville City Council was to hold a special meeting on Wednesday to consider advancing $13,200 to Canton to cover outstanding grants owed by the state, Emerson said.

And a discussion of a total of about $5,900 owed Canton from Sumpter and Van Buren townships for other expenses also was expected, said Emerson.

IN THE MEANTIME, Canton Township Board members have been lukewarm, at best, to remaining with the joint dispatching system.

It would be easier and more efficient if the equipment were moved to the Canton police department, which has a full-time dispatch system and officers trained on the system, Supervisor Jim Poole said.

flooded hundreds of basements throughout Canton during periods of heavy rains. Engineers believe the bulk of that problem has been corrected through repair of manholes and other work.

However, Wade believes widespread basement flooding could return if SEMCOG's population predictions prove correct and improvements to Canton's sanitary sewer system are not made during the next 20 years.

Judge OKs Wayne County sewer hikes

By Mike Scanlon
staff writer

After months of court hearings and negotiations with the Metro Detroit Water Board, Oakland County's problems with next week's scheduled July 1 sewage rate hike are just about over.

But for heavy Wayne County sewage users, the problems may be just beginning under a Tuesday order by U.S. District Court Chief Judge John Fiekens after a closed chambers session with attorneys.

Due to take effect Wednesday is a complex system of sewage rate hikes which vary substantially throughout the huge, 76-city water system.

As examples, southeast Oakland County residents will be charged $4.23 for disposal of each 1,000 cubic feet of sewage compared to the old rate of $3.40. Most Wayne County residents will pay $5.81 per thousand cubic feet — 7,500 gallons — under the new rates.

William Hampton, an attorney representing Oakland County, said the two biggest problems involving the water board and the county have been solved by replacement of a faulty sewage measuring meter in the southeast corner of the county and an agreement to average stormwater flows over a 10-year period.

SOME PARTICIPANTS among the baffling array of plaintiffs, cross-plaintiffs, defendants and cross-defendants involved in the sewage rate hike suits agree the biggest remaining stumbling block is who will pay for a sewer collapse in the Edison Corridor line near Sterling Heights.

The issue pits the odd allies of Detroit and Oakland County against Macomb County. Detroit and Oakland want Macomb to pay for the sewer main break. Macomb wants the costs divided among all customers of the water board.

Participants agree the issue is likely to be settled only in a lawsuit.

Meanwhile, big Wayne County water users will be hit with a 31 cent-per thousand cubic feet pollution surveillance surcharge under Fiekens' order. The charge was suspended for all water board customers except those who are served under subcontract by the Wayne County Department of Public Works (DPW). Some of those DPW users will also be subject to added charges of 1.6 cents per pound of pollutant when levels of certain kinds of pollutants exceed certain complex floors. Most likely to be subject to the 1.6 cent charge will be bakeries, restaurants, manufacturers, dry cleaners and laundromats.

JOHN BREEN, director of legal services for the DPW, argued on behalf of the added charges. He expects them to produce about $250,000 annually in revenue, which will be used to study pollution and identify its sources.

"Wayne County, unlike the other suburbs — Oakland and Macomb counties — had previously opted to be a participating agency as permitted by the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency). What that means is our forces will be doing the surveillance of the industry users in the Rouge Valley system. We had an agreement with Detroit implementing this surveillance, so we had the cost of the program to recover."

DPW customers include just about every western Wayne County community. They are the townships of Redford, Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Novi and Van Buren, and the cities of Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, Wayne, Romulus, Inkster, Novi, Northville and Dearborn Heights.

New law puts stop to water rate subsidies

By Lynn Orr
staff writer

Gov. William Milliken is expected to sign into law a bill that will eliminate water rate subsidies to Detroit and some Oakland County communities while lowering rates to other municipalities.

The bill, passed by the state Senate yesterday, proposes elimination of a $3½ million subsidy to Detroit customers, as well as $1½ million in subsidies to outlying customers such as Farmington Hills, Bloomfield Township and West Bloomfield.

Water rate charges in West Bloomfield would be doubled, while the Metro Detroit Water and Sewerage Department would be forced to reduce rates to 36 other communities under the provisions of the bill.

The bill eliminates a 1917 law that banned the city of Detroit from charging more than double the water rate charged to city residents and requires every municipality to be charged the actual cost of service, rather than minimum rates.

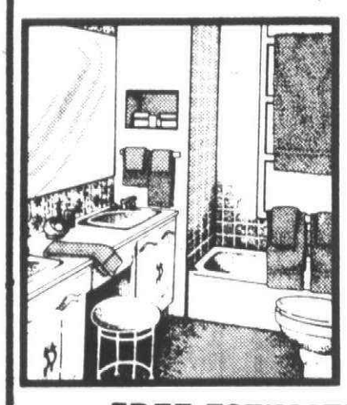

The bill, expected to be delivered to Milliken within a week, is a culmination of a five-year fight by state Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, who said he is confident Milliken will sign the bill.

Answering questions at a press conference moments after the Wayne County Charter Commission gave final approval to two proposed charter documents is commission President George Ward (seated at center). Seated in the foreground are Justine Barns, D-Westland, vice chairman, and Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, treasurer. Standing are (from left) William O'Brien, executive director; Tracy Salisbury, D-Ecorse, and David Geiss, D-Taylor.

County charter lawsuit postponed

A hearing on a lawsuit filed by two Wayne County Charter Commission members and two Detroit ministers was postponed Monday after a closed-chambers session before Circuit Judge Victor Baum.

The suit sought to halt delivery of the proposed charters to Gov. William Milliken and Attorney General Frank Kelley, who must approve the charters before voters are asked to consider them Nov. 3.

But the charters were delivered to Milliken Friday, and Baum ordered a rewritten complaint submitted next Monday.

Leon Jenkins, a charter commissioner and the attorney representing the suing parties, sought a preliminary injunction against the charter proposals. He claimed the process used to draw up the documents was defective, and that the documents themselves would result in discrimination against racial and language minority groups.

The suit also questions the legality of some parliamentary procedures used in the charter drafting process.

THE SUIT followed claims by black charter commissioners that an unscheduled vote to reverse the commission's earlier decision creating a 27-member county board of commissioners was illegal.

In that special meeting, charter commissioners voted 15-0 with two abstentions to reduce the nunber of board of commission members to 15 after every black charter commissioner left the meeting in protest.

With a 27-member board, each commissioner would represent 86,000 persons. With a 15-member board, each would represent 155,000.

Plaintiffs in the case include Commissioners Charmie Currie and Alonzo Bates, both of Detroit, and two Detroit ministers.

The Charter Commission has approved two virtually identical charter drafts. The only difference between the two documents is that one would install an elected executive, while the other calls for an appointed county manager.

Should Milliken and Kelley approve the proposals — and barring an intervening court ruling — voters on Nov. 3 will choose either the elected executive, the appointed manager, or choose to reject both proposals.

CHAIRMAN George Ward, D-Detroit, said he is positive the charter will be approved by voters.

Quality goods save energy dollars

energy

Barry Jensen

You can save energy by what you don't buy.

Near the top of the list is poor quality — but inexpensive — merchandise, be it shoes or ships or sealing wax.

One pair of quality $60 shoes may last twice as long as a pair of $30 shoes. If the more expensive product is of a better quality, you will get more than your money's worth.

What do you do with an old pair of shoes? If they are still in good shape, although badly worn, you can have them resoled or reheeled and wear them when working around the house, in the garden or when running errands.

But if the shoes were of poor quality, they probably can't be repaired satisfactorily or they have worn out in a difficult-to-repair area. Then they will be consigned to the trash bag and will give no more service.

BUYING QUALITY holds true for all other clothes and appliances, too.

Don't buy flimsy merchandise; buy products that will last. More durable products save the energy that would be required to manufacture the merchandise in the first place, and you're not having to make an additional trip to buy them saves even more.

On major purchases, installation charges must be figured in when computing the true cost. Why buy a short-lived widgit if you have to pay someone to install the darn thing in the first place, then pay again for installation of the replacement?

Inexspensive appliances may not be. Always buy energy-consuming equipment on the basis of initial cost plus operating costs rather than on purchase price alone.

Often, products that are energy efficient cost more to buy. But over the lifetime of the equipment, you wll more than make up the difference in lower operating costs.

DON'T BUY products made of materials that can't be recyled. It's difficult to buy a ballpoint pen without a plastic refill. But do you really want plastic soda bottles?

Materials that can be recycled — steel, aluminum, paper and glass among others — can be energy savers. More energy is used in the production of products from virgin materials than from recycled or reclaimed materials.

Do you really need lots of clothes that must be washed in hot water? Many fabrics can be washed in cold, or at least, warm water.

The same goes for ironing. Don't buy a lot clothes that must be ironed. Besides being hot and time-consuming, ironing uses a lot of energy. Again, many fabrics need no ironing or at most a touch-up.

Give gifts with year-round benefits. Toys that last only a few weeks, or hours, are not much of a gift. Appliances that wear out quickly and use a lot of energy while doing so make second-rate gifts.

Ecuadorean diary

On to the Avenue of the Volcanoes and the real home of Panama hats

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

WE ARE on our way down the Avenue of the Volcanoes, with a map of Ecuador spread out on the seat of our minibus. During the next two days, we will drive 300 miles southward from Quito through the Andes Mountains to Riobamba and Cuenca, with stops at several colorful markets and at the only Inca ruins outside of Peru.

On a relief map, Ecuador is three vertical stripes on the northwest coast of South America between Columbia and Peru: coast, highlands and jungle.

The coast to the west is humid, tropical land edged with white sand beaches; here the boats leave for the Galapagos Islands. The dense jungle to the east is the remote Upper Amazon, which has been under territorial dispute for centuries.

Between jungle and coast are the temperate highlands, two north-south ranges of the Andes with a great green valley between them. The floor of the valley is more than 9,000 feet above sea level. The capital city of Quito is set like a jewel in the northerly end of the valley, and the Pan American Highway runs more or less through the middle of it.

ALTHOUGH QUITO is only 20 miles from the equator, it has a perpetual spring-like climate because of the altitude. Temperatures in the city never rise above 75 degrees in the daytime or drop below 65 degrees at night.

Several volcanic peaks, mostly dormant, some snow-capped, can be seen on both sides of the valley as we travel south. Hence the name "Avenue of the Volcanoes." The soil is black and rich, and the crops are lush but not tropical. The farms stretch from horizon to horizon, forming a green patchwork quilt in the crystal-clear atmosphere.

In the past, wealthy patrons owned all the bottomland, and the Indians owned the high harsher slopes. Ecuador's four-year-old, very fragile democracy may change this; but the Indians still grow corn and potatoes high up the mountain sides, in their colorful ponchos and their dark fedora hats.

The story of the hats is incredible. Europeans brought various kinds of hats to South America, and Indian tribes eventually used them as a tribal identity. They are worn almost universally by men, women and children. The most common is a felt fedora, chosen because an Italian hatmaker founded a hat factory in Ecuador in the 1920s.

Now the fedoras are literally everywhere: on city streets, in town markets, on high mountain fields, beside the highway. As we drive south, we will see other hats — the flatter white hats of Riobamba and the straw hats around Cuenca, known to us as Panama hats.

There has been a great resurgence of Ecuadorean crafts in recent years. One of our stops is in the village of Salasaca, where American Peace Corps volunteers have helped develop the native weaving into a secondary industry as a supplement to farming.

The wall hangings are spread over the walls and floors of the display room between huge hand looms. Outside, tiny children, who already look like miniatures of their mothers, watch us curiously. The woolen wall hangings are good quality and inexpensive, about $11 for a four-by-six-foot piece.

THE SUN IS setting on us when the conical splendor of Mount Chimborazo bursts skyward 21,000 feet through a cap of clouds. The farmers heading home from the fields make picture postcard scenes: women in multiple dark skirts, ponchos and men's hats leading sheep; a man in a bright red poncho racing a horse down an asphalt road; two women wrapped in turquoise wool, knitting on the top of a hill; two women carrying buckets; two men in fedoras and ponchos riding bicycles.

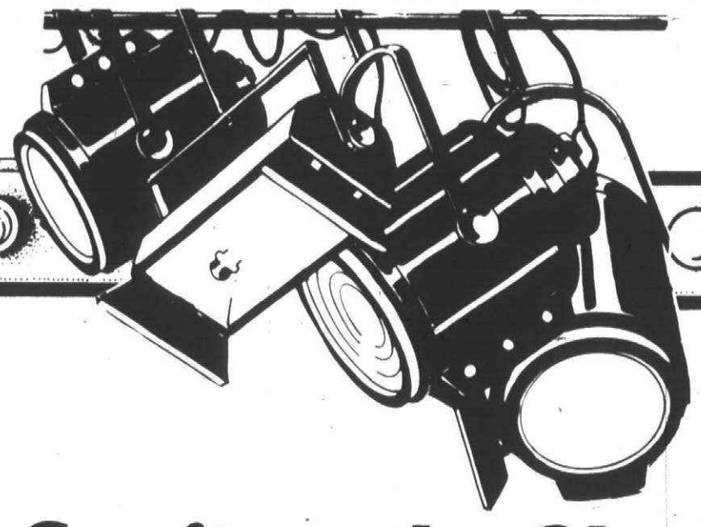

The fields that climb the high hills are sidelighted by the sun now, making ridges that bend and curve up the green hillside.

We stay overnight at a two-story, motel-like hotel in Riobamba. Ecuador is just developing its tourist trade, so hotels are of uneven quality around

New 'club class' — filling in the air class system

IS THERE a life after first-class? Or is it all downhill from here?"

The voice belongs to Doris Scharfenberg of Farmington Hills, who is flying with me to London aboard British Airways Flight 276.

We have lucked out. We were scheduled to fly club class, and we have been unexpectedly upgraded to first-class. As any aristocrat will tell you, once you have tasted luxury, it is hard to go back to your old ways.

THE CLASS SYSTEM on airplanes is not based on what family you were born into or what school you attended, but how much you or your employer paid for your ticket. These first-class seats from Detroit to London cost $1,580 one way, which is more than I paid for a three-week European vacation in 1969.

The regular economy ticket is now $588, the new super club class is $860; and you can get discounted fares as low as $244 for standby and $488 for Apexfare, depending on advance booking and season. All prices are one-way; double them for the cost of a round-trip ticket.

This first-class cabin and service is vaguely reminiscent of what all air travel was in "the good old days," although nobody had this much room for their feet, even then. In those faraway days, air travel was for the relatively wealthy among us, a situation which changed dramatically in the 1960s and 1970s, but may very well be coming true again.

AS LARGE NUMBERS of Americans flowed to Europe for the bargain travel of the 1960s, air fares got lower and lower, especially on charter flights. The deregulation of airlines ended the heyday of charter flights, but it began the battle of the airline discount.

That and spiraling fuel costs, as well as other costs, including the devaluation of the dollar, made big changes in the size of your seat and the services provided.

Economy fare buys one of three seats across near the window, or one of five abreast in the center section of a jumbo jet. Most of us buy those seats, unless we are on expense accounts or are fairly wealthy, even though we are a little cramped for space.

Club class was introduced to satisfy the businessman who is paying the full economy fare but getting the same service as the vacationer who paid much less for a discounted ticket. (You must buy in advance and deal with certain limitations in flying times to get a discount, and business people can't always do that.)

IN CLUB class (Pan Am calls it clipper class), the business traveler gets some of that first-class attention, a choice of meals and more leg room. From Detroit to London, British Airways offers their Super Club service with two-abreast seating for $850 each way. For many people, the extra comfort is worth the additional cost. However, it's still a huge jump in cost and quality in moving from club class to first-class.

Airlines give it different names; but any way you look at it, it's more room and more money. Airline flights across the Atlantic are only six to eight hours, so very few people are willing to pay the high first-class fare for that short a time. Airlines have therefore piled on the luxuries for those few who do.

We are sitting in huge seats with ample space in front of us for our feet and for the reclining chair to stretch out almost horizontally when we are ready to sleep.

THE CHAMPAGNE begins as we board in Detroit at 7 p.m. and is still being served on the breakfast tray as we approach England.

There are three cabin attendants for 20 people, and they lavish us with attention: drinks, hors d'oeuvres, beef Wellington served from a trolley, a selection of wines, strawberry Romanoff. Anything our little hearts desire.

And when it's time to sleep: soft socks, eye shades and a reclining seat. I could get used to this if it didn't cost more than $3,000 round trip for the pleasure.

IRIS AND MICKY JONES

Whole pigs, roasted to a glistening brown, are spread on tables for market day in Riobamba (left). Strollers stop and buy a serving of meat cut from the side of the pig.

Ecuador

Growing corn in the mountains

the country: first-class hotels in the cities, one or two smaller hotels in most of the towns, a few roadside hostelries and government-approved paradors being built in many areas.

Riobamba is a predominantly Indian town. Here the white rounded hat, reminiscent of a bowler hat, traditionally tops a bright red poncho. It is here that we are first introduced to Ecuador's wonderful marketplaces.

There are actually several markets in Riobamba on market day: the meat market, craft market, vegetable market and others, spread across adjoining squares. Whole pigs, roasted to a glistening brown, are spread on tables. Strollers stop and buy a serving of meat cut from the side of the pig.

Everything is sold here — sacks of monkeys, striped sisal carrying bags, the ikat tie-died ponchos with white fringes that are popular in certain areas of the south, used and new embroidered blouses, blankets, and great mounds of fruits and vegetables. This is a local market, Indian selling to Indian.

WE CLIMB HIGH into the Andes now for the long drive to Cuenca. Here we see the highland grass used to thatch houses. As we climb into the dry hills, the adobe houses with thatched roofs look like brown haystacks. They are windowless, designed to retain the warmth of the sun during the chilly nights.

A brief stop at Balbanera, the oldest church in the country, and another to watch a woman selling hot food from a coal fire beside a scenic lookout; half a mile below, a gleaming mountain lake shimmers in the sun.

Here the mountains rise in brown ridges of highland grass to the blue and white sky. These are barren green hills without crops or houses, although occasionally two wrapped women make a skyline on a hill or a cluster of brown and white cows patch a slope.

From a gravel road high in Canari country further south, we look down at bright green fields and stone fences sloping to the bottom of the hills and climbing steeply up the other side. There are clusters of red tile roofs, the bleating of sheep, splashes of color as the men and women move across the fields.

Finally, after many hours, the ruins of Ingapurca rise on a distant hill. Llamas graze beside the road. This is more than the sound of music; this is a whole symphony of light falling down the Andes. At twilight, the Inca ruin makes a circular silhouette against the sculpted green hills, with farms and large white, red-roofed houses patching the hills on either side.

This is the only Inca ruin visible outside of Peru.

IT IS LATE now, and we are eager to get to Cuenca, where they are celebrating the 424th anniversary of the city in the square with firecrackers. The spectacle of lights rises above the Old Church on one side of the square and the New Church on the other. The "new" one is only 200 years old.

This is a city of about 120,000 people, and the El Dorado Hotel is one of several modern hotels here. The market is busy on Sunday morning, but we are heading briefly south to two village marketplaces, Gualaceo and Chordeleg.

This is the land of the so-called Panama hat, which doesn't come from Panama but from Gualaceo and Chordeleg. During the early days of the Panama Canal, this distinctive straw hat was sold in large quantities to the canal workers; thus the misnomer.

People here, who are called Chola, wear the Panama hat everywhere, although there are still lots of fedoras in evidence. Women wear them over embroidered blouses and wide, pleated skirts, bright blue or red or green with embroidery at the edges.

The hat is made from toquilla, which is actually a tropical plant from the coast, but it is traditionally made in these mountain villages.

From the edge of the market at Gualaceo, the church tower and high patchwork mountain fields make a backdrop for the Sunday market. The shoeshine boys line the edge of the square. The old man and the child carry live chickens for sale under their arms. A crowd gathers around the man selling wooden bowls. A long row of whole roasted pigs glows bronze beside a butcher whacking a carcass with a huge ax.

There are gleaming mounds of pastry. The lottery man goes by. The church bells call the faithful to Mass. The children run barefoot between vegetable stalls. Paint it all with bright skirts, bright ponchos and every kind of hat — Italian fedoras, Panama straw hats and white felt bowlers.

At Chordeleg, a few miles down the road, the people gather in colorful laughing groups around the pretty little square beside the tall white church.

THIS IS THE history of Ecuador at a glance. The great green mountains, with trees falling darkly down their sides from the very tops. The Indians, who have been here thousands of years, are in from the fields because it is Sunday and almost every Indian in Ecuador is Catholic.

For information about Ecuador, write to Direccion Nacional De Turismo, Box 2454, Quito, Ecuador; or Adventure Associates, 5925 Maple, Suite 116, Dallas, Texas 75235, (214) 357-6187.

Local political leaders see U.S. bias against Midwest in report on cities

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Southeast Michigan political leaders are alarmed at what they consider an anti-Midwest, pro-Sunbelt report put together in the closing days of the Carter Administration.

"Can anyone really believe in sending people to jobs?" asked Michael Glusac, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, in a conference sponsored by the Metropolitan Affairs Corporation.

The object of concern for big-city, small-city, business, union and black leaders is a report called "Urban American in the Eighties," a 110-page report by Jimmy Carter's President's Commission for a National Agenda."

A panel of regional leaders met on Monday for three hours to grill the report's chief staff man, Donald A. Hicks, who has a doctorate in sociology from North Carolina and is on leave from the University of Texas-Dallas. Answering questions by long-distance telephone were two of the panel's five members: Robert S. Benson, president of Children's World, Inc., Evergreen, Colo.; and Pastora San Juan Cafferty, professor of social service administration, University of Chicago.

NO LONGER will big cities be the centers of manufacturing and population they were in the first 70 years of the century, the report says.

"The city will be a much narrower institution, serving people who reside in and near it with a narrower range of services," Hicks said.

These services will be governmental, cultural, educational, financial and recreation (including conventions). Residents will tend to be young, single, professional and married but without children.

'What we have is a fight reminiscent of the Civil War . . . Should we target older cities or build new programs for the South and Southwest — water projects, highways?'
—U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell

"It's unlikely the city will be all things to all people," Hicks said. "Cities might be smaller and might have fewer jobs. But it (the national trend) is not the decline of the city or the death of the city. It's the change of the city."

Rather than using federal policy and dollars to buck the inevitable, Hicks urged civic leaders to understand the trend and look for new ways for urban areas to be viable.

U.S. REP. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a leader in the Northeast-Midwest Coalition of congressmen, told the panel his group had a "head-to-head debate" with Hicks. "We went after him," Pursell said.

"What we have is a fight reminiscent of the Civil War. This kind of study has profound implications. There is a federal budget of $780 billion a year. The question is, Should we target older cities or build new programs for the South and Southwest — water projects, highways?

"Wouldn't it be cheaper to hold up old areas (of the nation) and create jobs there without asking people to move out and relocate?"

"WE DON'T ask people to move," Hicks answered. "There is already much movement. There is some movement within metropolitan areas.

"But the federal budget is relatively insignificant and impotent" in helping cities. "Public investment is small vs. private investment.

"You have come to believe public policy is the determinant of things. . .Our political system depends on people representing turf, on boundaries."

Aiming at Pursell, Hicks said, "I do not appreciate that kind of divisiveness in urban policy debate."

"You're coming out of Texas," Pursell shot back. "We know that. People of the Northeast-Midwest are in one helluva fight. We're talking about big money."

Hicks answered, "I was born in Buffalo, N.Y., and raised in South Bend. I don't appreciate the arrogance of the South and Southwest."

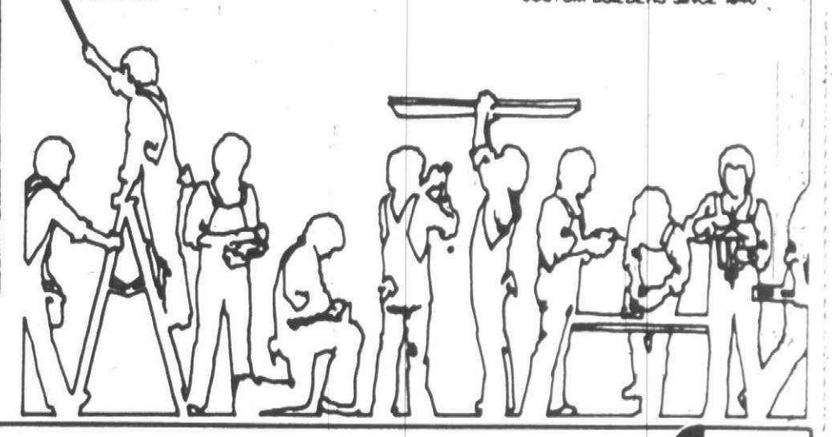

THE DEBATE revolved around the importance of the federal budget in determining the fate of Northern cities.

"I would trade an urban grant for a Kennedy Space Center any time," said Roy Levy Williams, president of the Detroit Urban League.

"We're talking about not just revitalization but where the federal government puts jobs. We in the Northeast have been subsidizing the Sunbelt for some time."

Hicks replied that although initial defense contracts go first to Western states with high-technology industries, "Those federal dollars don't just go there and stay. They bounce back to the Northeast through the subcontracting process."

Visit the Capp Homes Open House this weekend...
And discover how your finishing touch can give you more home for the money!
Since 1946, CAPP has made quality, custom-built housing affordable for more than 60,000 families. And the reason is our unique, "Finish-It-Yourself House" concept.
CAPP Homes are not pre-fab or modular. We build our homes the traditional beam-by-beam way, with the finest materials, on the lot and foundation you provide. When our carpenters leave, your custom-designed home is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish. Or, you can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead. Either way, you'll get a home that is uniquely yours—one that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.
But don't take our word for it. Come on out this weekend and see for yourself. Look at the quality of the construction material. Feel the wood... knock on the doors... slide open the windows.
Most of all, talk to the buyers of this home. They'll be here to answer any questions... while they work. You'll see them actually finishing their home. Folks just like yourself. We think you'll discover how you, too, can save money on a CAPP Homes "finishing-it-yourself."
CAPP Homes. Your finishing touch means quality... and savings... for you.
Come on out. We'll be there rain or shine.

'Trooper of the Year'

Dreams come true for state cop

By Mike Scanlon
staff writer

When folks call the Northville State Police district headquarters, they usually want to talk to a cop.

They seldom, however, want Trooper Robert C. Garcia specifically.

One of those seldoms happened recently.

"Somebody from Lansing called, and I happened to be working the desk. They asked for me, and I happened to answer the phone," says Garcia.

And that explains how the 33-year-old Redford Township native found he was this year's winner of the Michigan State Police Trooper of the Year Award, also called the Gerstacker Community Services Award.

GARCIA IS the 20th winner, chosen this year from a field of 17 nominees. That's more competitors than have ever vied for the title — and the $1,500 cash award that goes with it.

"I was quite surprised. I knew I was a nominee, but with all the different guys around the state, I really didn't feel that I'd be winning," said Garcia, a four-year veteran of the state force.

Garcia said he thought about being a state trooper for a long time, but it was sort of like dreaming the impossible dream.

"I've always, even when I was in high school — I went to Thurston — looked up to the state police.

"I had an opportunity to join due to the fact they lowered the height requirement. I'm 5-8. It used to be 5-9 or 5-10. So I thought I'd give it a shot.

"In my estimation, they're the best."

AMONG OTHER things, the state police cited Garcia for:

Business crime prevention programs; promotion of better liaison with the 5,000 students at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools; organizing an annual hockey tournament to benefit the Ann Arbor Burn Center; chairmanship of the Redford Youth Commission — he worked as director of the commission before becoming a trooper; serving as a certified paraprofessional drug counselor in Redford; promotion of community activies as a Redford Jaycee including co-chairmanship of the club's Walk for Mankind for three consecutive years.

How does Garcia feel about being a state trooper?

He feels the way a recruiting campaign sounds:

"Well, police always like to say that they are professionals. I feel the state troopers really are professionals because of the trainining we get in recruit school — our school is regarded as one of the toughest to get through in the nation, and we're highly regarded around the nation as a top outfit. I'm proud of it. We're all proud of it."

Garcia and his wife, Beverly, have two children.

What does he plan to do with the $1,500?

"Bank it."

What's better — natural or synthetic vitamins?

Editor's note: The Observer recently ran an article which touted vitamins as the key to a balanced diet. A reader, Georgene McKenzie, who works for a food supplement manufacturer, had this response.

Ideally, we should be able to get all the nutrients we need from the food we eat. However, studies show that the quality of our food is changing and may not be providing the nutrients that it did 40 or 50 years ago.

Nutrient losses occur because of soil depletion. Because of chemical fertilizers being used, very few elements are being returned to the soil. If the soil does not have the nutrients, our food will not have it; therefore, our body does not get it.

There are several other causes of nutrient loss: picking food before it is ripe, transportation and storage, processing and refining food for longer shelf life, and imitation foods. These are just a few. We do need to supplement our diet.

The government's Recommended Daily Allowances for each nutrient recognized as essential for human health are based on amounts needed to prevent deficiency diseases only.

Quoting from Dr. Richard Passwater's "Supernutrition" book, "They (RDA's) are not reliable, are changed often, and are influenced by prejudice of scientists on the committee.

"They can't consider individuality, differences in life style, environment, height, weight, occupation, temperament, emotional stress, illness, metabolism, bad habits, activity, etc."

A FACT ABOUT food supplements is that organic food supplements are nutritionally superior to synthetic vitamins.

Synthetic vitamins are the most common and least expensive. They are a by-product of the petroleum industry and derived from coal tar. They have never been part of food.

There is very little absorption by the body of synthetic vitamins. Because they stimulate our cells instead of feeding them, synthetic vitamins cannot build health.

Natural vitamins only have to be 10 percent from a natural food source to be labeled "natural," according to government law. The other 90 percent may be synthetic filler.

The vitamins are extracted from food by pressure, heat, and then put together according to someone's recipe.

For more information call Ms. McKenzie at 464-0671.

Shakeup seen on new SC board

By Tim Richard
staff writer

There could be a political shakeup on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees — if anyone is interested.

With two new members, the board will meet at 8 p.m. July 6 to elect officers for the next two years. Treasurer Len Wozniak was elected last week to preside over the election.

In recent years, the old Democratic-Republican splits have been smoothed over as the seven trustees learned to operate as a team. But for the benefit of vote-counters, there has been a change in the balance of power to a 4-3 advantage for Democrats.

RICHARD HAYWARD, a nonpartisan with Republican instincts, was defeated for re-election June 8. Trustee Mark McQuesten, a Democrat, retired.

They were replaced by Democrats Paul Kadish, a former board chairperson, and Laura Toy, a former Schoolcraft student.

That turned a 3-1-3 board into a 4-3 board.

Known Republicans are Chairman Harry Greenleaf, Wozniak and Trustee Michael Burley. Known Democrats besides Kadish and Ms. Toy and Vice chairwoman Nancie Blatt and Trustee Rosina Raymond.

In the late 1960s and early '70s, there were frequent 4-4 partisan splits which Kadish, from 1975-79, and Greenleaf, since 1979, have patched up. The splits were over board officers and issues involving the Faculty Forum, the faculty union.

THE LAST time any partisanship showed up was in 1978, when there was a vacancy on the board.

Many Democratic leaders from around the state called Mrs. Blatt to urge her vote for known Democrat Jack Bologna. She backed Hayward, thereby incurring the wrath of her fellow partisans.

Historically, the Schoolcraft board has been a good jumping off point for persons seeking other political offices. State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and county Commissioner Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, are former Schoolcraft trustees. Kadish and Mrs. Blatt also have run for the Michigan Legislature.

Faust state library plan praised

A plan to legislate a state copy of the U.S. Library of Congress was outlined by its sponsor, state Senate Majority Leader William Faust, in an eight-city television broadcast Tuesday.

Faust's two bills would upgrade the State Library by making it answerable to the Michigan Legislature, a plan modeled after the way the federal Library of Congress functions. The library is now part of the State Board of Education.

Faust's broadcast news conference, part of a live Michigan Library Association conference on "The Future of Michigan Libraries," originated at WTVS-TV, Channel 56, in Detroit and was beamed to public television stations in Bay City, Mt. Pleasant, East Lansing, Marquette, Grand Rapids, Flint and Elkhardt, Ind.

Faust's Senate Bills 200 and 201 — which pass or fail together — have been strongly supported by the Michigan Library Association.

That association praised Faust at its state convention in May as "the single most significant legislator for libraries ever to make the scene in Michigan."

Libertarian Party sets meeting

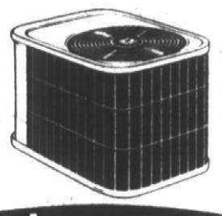

There will be an organization meeting for Wayne County Libertarians at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Christoff's restaurant in Dearborn.

Libertarian Party members, who advocate minimal governmental role in society, and those interested in the group are invited.

The business meeting is expected to be short. Food and drink will be available both before and after the meeting.

The restaurant is on the north side of Michigan between Greenfield and Schaefer. For information on the political group, phone Keith Bilby in the evening at 277-6152.

Financial trauma reaches up to university level

Tim Richard

The first school closings in any K-12 district are a major trauma, sometimes followed by political bloodletting. After a few closings, however, the process, at least in civilized districts, is still painful but no longer traumatic.

The closing process has worked its way through elementary schools, junior highs and even into high schools. It has now reached the university level.

Moreover, it has reached the universities at a time when the Michigan economy is in a depression, when the outlook for an entire decade is dismal.

No institution is exempt, not even the University of Michigan, the supposed cultural center of the universe. An entire issue of the Michigan Alumnus magazine was recently devoted to the trauma.

CENTER OF attention is the phase-out of the department of geography in the College of Literature, Science and the Arts. Geography has nine tenured faculty and five non-tenured faculty. They teach 800 students a year, including 36 seeking graduate degrees and 22 with undergraduate majors in geography.

Department Chairman John I. Nystuen and faculty members feel almost insulted. They raised charges that the university administration lacked good data in deciding to eliminate the department, that their degrees are under attack and that students will be left feeling they have worthless degrees.

In a news release prior to last Friday's Board of Regents meeting, Bill E. Frye, vice president for academic affairs, said, "The scholarly quality of the department . . . has slipped seriously . . . . The productivity of the department is weak in terms of scholarly research and publications . . . . The department has not established itself as having a strong central or essential role in the college . . . ."

EVEN LARGER questions are at stake, however.

One is research vs. teaching. U-M President Harold Shapiro, a brilliant economist in his own right, said that the public may put research "a distant second" in its thinking.

"However, if you take a look at the university historically . . . I think you will find that this knowledge-creation component is extremely important and perhaps equally as important as the training function," he said.

A second question is whether $11.1 million in cuts in a $150 million budget should mean across-the-board parings instead of dropping some programs. As one geography student put it, "Amputation is a poor treatment for obesity."

Shapiro's answer: "In order to maintain quality, the U-M will have to concentrate on doing less and doing it better." Some parings and shavings will take place, but some entire departments or programs will face the ax in the 1980s.

A third question is whether different Michigan colleges should divvy up academic programs to avoid duplication.

Won't work, Shapiro said. "You cannot, for example, have a program in psychology without having chemistry or biology," he said. "You cannot have engineering without physics; you probably cannot have philosophy without history."

NO ONE should demean the geography department any more than one should demean the parents of the kids in the first elementary school to be closed in the early 1970s. Their charges of "unfairness" or "poor data" or "a stacked deck" are made under great stress.

But it's tough to argue with President Shapiro's logic. Maintain quality while reducing enrollment from 35,000 to 30,000; maintain research as well as teaching.

This decade is going to be rough, and we had better get used to it.

Life goes on without baseball

As the major league baseball strike drove on, we suddenly have become a nation divided.

There are those who go about their daily tasks as if nothing happeped and the game that once was called the national pastime is the furthest from their minds.

On the other hand, there are fellows like two of The Stroller's friends who don't hesitate to say, with some degree of alarm, that life won't be the same without the activity at Tiger Stadium and the opportunity to follow their favorite players through the columns of the daily press.

One dyed-in-the-wool fan whom The Stroller has known for years is Ralph Voorheis, who had the misfortune to lose one of his legs and now depends on the daily sports pages to follow the game.

"LIFE SURELY won't be the same for me," he moaned the other afternoon. "I virtually devour the sports pages and follow every figure detailing their performances. Now what can I do? The days in my wheelchair sure will be long without my chance to keep track of my favorite ball players."

It was the same with Bernie, the major-domo of the Famous Men's Wear Shop. He confessed at lunch that the only thing he reads daily in the papers is the sports page; and now, without baseball, the paper will mean nothing to him.

Well, The Stroller can't help feeling sorry for these fellows, but at the same time he can't help smiling at their so called losses.

There was a time when he was a member of the press covering the Tigers, and the day came when he asked to be relieved because he had tired of them. And now he doesn't miss them too much, as witness the fact that he sees only a few games each season.

But other things have happened which were as terrible at the time as his friends' being denied baseball.

THERE WAS the night in the doctor's office when The Stroller was told he had better give up smoking. At the time, he puffed away about two packs a day, and the first two fingers on his right hand were stained a deep yellow.

In those days, he felt he couldn't give up smoking. But would you believe it? He tossed his package of cigarets at the doctor and hasn't had a puff since. And that was close to 30 years ago.

And the odd part of it is that to this day, he hasn't missed the habit of years ago.

It was the same when he was asked to give up condiments. The Stroller thought life would be odd without a plate of oysters covered with pepper.

But he listened to the doctor and hasn't seasoned a bit of food for more than three decades. So a fellow can get along without things he thought he could not live without.

THIS IS A reminder, too, of an odd moment in The Stroller's life. He had gone home to the Dutch country for a visit and went downtown on a shopping tour with his mother.

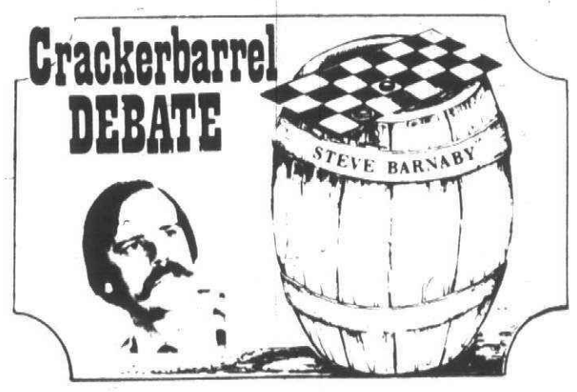

As we walked along, mother asked if he recognized the woman in front of us. She was a rather tall woman who was built along the same slender lines of a C&O box car.

When he confessed that he didn't know her, mother said, "That's funny. That's the girl you once thought you couldn't live without."

So you see, we can learn to live without things. The Stroller's two friends will find this out as the baseball strike lingers on.

Rebuild Jackson? A waste of money

The last time I saw my friend, he was worn out and emaciated. As a youth he had been outgoing, always smiling, eager to pull a practical joke.

But this day he looked disillusioned and frightened. Everyday living had become a grim experience for him. His only interest seemed to be chain smoking and telling of his recent experience.

"It makes you hard — real hard. You just wouldn't believe the crap that goes on up there," he said, his eyes blankly staring at the ground.

My friend had just been released from Jackson State Prison after having served time for armed robbery. He pulled the job to support his drug habit.

It felt strange talking with this person who, just a few years earlier, had been a high school buddy. We had sat next to one another in classes, gone to the same dances, dated the same girls.

He didn't seem like a criminal then. And although he looked older and very haggard, he didn't seem like a convicted felon as I stood talking to him that day.

"You've got to play along with the rest of the prisoners or you don't get along. But once you catch on it isn't bad at all," he continued.

"DOPE WAS EASY to get, easier to get than on the street, sometimes. I got along real good," he said.

That was 13 or 14 years ago. I never saw my friend again. Never really found out what happened to him.

But I'll always remember the way he looked and acted. I remember thinking what a waste his life had been turned into. His stay at Jackson certainly hadn't improved his chances.

At that time, Jackson prison was just a place you read about in the newspaper. I had never known, up until that time, someone who had served time there.

Places like Jackson prison shouldn't exist. They are a waste of taxpayers' money in more ways than one. But for some inexplicable reason, many taxpayers would rather throw good money after bad when it comes to prisons.

Rebuilding Jackson with millions of dollars is like throwing money down a rat hole. We spend these millions and still are tethered with the same problems.

Better we spend our tax dollars on more, new and smaller prisons where better-trained guards have a fair chance at doing their jobs.

We need more prisons so criminals who should be retained for longer times won't be released because of overcrowding.

WE NEED new prisons where persons like my high school friend at least have a chance to survive without the social pressures from hardened criminals interfering.

Many want new prisons, but they don't want them in their communities. They would rather gamble that crime won't touch their lives. Every day the odds lean more against that gamble.

We must lift our heads out of the sand and see to it that this problem is addressed responsibly.

Otherwise we will be throwing more millions of tax dollars to the winds.

Why gold-silver bill takes back seat

Nick Sharkey

This started out to be a column deploring the inaction of the Michigan Legislature in approving a proposal to curb gold and silver thefts.

In the past two years, the rates of these thefts have skyrocketed as prices of gold and silver quickly escalated. Fly-by-night operators have set up shop in suburban motel rooms and asked no questions as they purchased gold and silver. An easy accessibility of willing buyers has made it attractive for thieves to sell their merchandise.

Suburban homes have been easy targets for both professional thieves and local youngsters anxious to cash in on high gold and silver prices. For example, last year the value of silver and gold thefts was $2.9 million in Southfield, $224,754 in Birmingham and $333,574 in Troy. Police agencies report gold and silver thefts rates are even higher this year.

OBVIOUSLY, Michigan needs stiffer laws for the reselling of gold and silver.

After much publicity, legislation was introduced in Lansing in January. It was widely supported by police departments and homeowner groups.

The proposal sailed through the state House with little difficulty, drawing only five dissenting votes.

It was then sent to the state Senate, where it has languished. Finally, last week there were reports that it may be in trouble.

As I read those reports, I was disturbed. It reminded me of attempts at a national level to register hand guns. After every attempted assassination of a national figure, a great cry goes out for improving gun laws. But nothing ever happens. Everyone seems to favor the idea, but powerful lobbies (in the gun case, the National Rifle Association) thwart any new legislation.

I WAS ANGRY when I called the gold and silver bill's author, State Rep. Ruth McNamee, R-Birmingham, to find out what went wrong.

To paraphrase Mark Twain, McNamee said reports of the bill's death had been greatly exaggerated. In fact, she hopes the bill will be approved by the Senate this week and sent to the governor.

"It's been very slow moving through the Legislature because there's been other items taking the attention," McNamee said last week. She said the Legislature has been working on state economic problems and the Detroit income-tax package. Her gold and silver bill has taken a back seat.

"Many lawmakers are waiting to see how the Detroit election goes on Tuesday," she said last week. "Hopefully, once that's over, my bill will be approved."

If the proposed law is passed, it will require dealers to be licensed in the area in which they operate. A thumbprint must be made of any person selling gold or silver. Items must be held by the dealer for seven days after purchase before they can be resold or melted. Minors cannot deal in gold or silver.

"The whole process will build a trail of evidence for tracking down stolen goods," McNamee said.

Although she is optimistic about the bill's chances, McNamee keeps her fingers crossed. "I'm at the mercy of the (state) senators now," she sighed.

Suburban homeowners anxious about protecting their valuable during summer vacation months will have to wait, too. If this proposal is not acted upon soon, it may be a long summer in the suburbs.

Many ways to capture summertime flowers

photography
Monte Nagler

One of the most abundant, colorful and beautiful summer subjects available to your camera is flowers.

So plentiful are flowers that variety of choices as well as presenting them photographically can be challenging. You might, for example, select the close-up shot revealing the innermost heart of the flower, the delicate texture of the stamen, minute drops of moisture, or a single petal that becomes a complete picture in itself.

Or, you may prefer to show the character of a single whole flower, or a grouping, or even an entire field of flowers. Whatever your choice, photographing flowers can be rewarding.

THE BEST TIME to photograph flowers outdoors is in the morning when they are freshest.

Avoid shooting in the afternoon when it is hot because flowers become limp and look wilted. Furthermore, strong sunlight will produce harsh shadows and may spoil the perfect shape of the flower.

Diffused sunlight coming either from behind or the side is best; it will give your flower intimate texture and full color saturation. Fill-in flash will also add extra sparkle.

To fill the viewfinder with a single flower or part of a blossom, you'll need close-up equipment such as close-up filters, extension tubes, or a macro lens. All work well and will give you pleasing results.

Because often you'll need a small aperture to maximize depth of field, a tripod and cable release are a must to keep your camera steady during the long shutter speeds you'll require.

WATCH YOUR backgrounds!

Every photographer knows a distracting background can ruin a picture. So be sure to check yours out after composing your shot.

Look over the entire viewfinder and use your camera's depth of field preview to check out the background. Many times, the background will be so out of focus that it will appear a soft blur in your picture.

Better still, take a small piece of black poster board in your camera bag and place it behind the flowers. The background will go totally black, resulting in greater impact in your finished photos. The poster board can serve the dual purpose of being a windbreaker to stop the swaying of flowers on a brisk day.

IT'S EASY to shoot flowers indoors at any time. A trip to the florist in winter will make spring seem not so far away.

Inside, you have complete control of lighting and won't have the problem of flowers swaying in the wind. Set up reflector photo-lamps to simulate back or sidelighting and add to fill light at camera position to lighten the shadow areas.

Try some innovative techniques, too. Shoot a group of flowers, focusing on only one so that the rest become complementary blurs of color. Or move in close and focus on only the stamen, letting the petals be out-of-focus blurs. Also, try sprinkling the flowers with droplets of water to give them a fresh, natural look.

Capturing the colorful world of flowers on film is truly exciting and will reward you with many proud photographs.

Walleyes lure local anglers

By Lem Mesee
special writer

So you want to catch walleyes? No need to travel to the Canadian north. You can learn how — and actually catch 'em — right close to home.

Walleye fishing has been improving with warm weather in Lake Erie. Take I-275 and I-75 south to Sterling State Park near Monroe and head for the Detroit Edison Co. plant on Brest Bay.

The bronze beauties are supposed to be hitting on lime green Hot 'n' Tots, according to DNR officers who checked out the place.

Other techniques and spots: Bolles Harbor and night crawler harnesses; Detroit River northeast of Mud Island, crawler harnesses. Other popular baits are nuggets, Erie Dearies and minnow-type lures. Check local bait shops if you're not equipped.

FOUR SEASONS Family Fishing Club will present a program on walleyes at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 1 in the Concourse G community room of Livonia Mall, Seven Mile at Middlebelt. It's open to visitors.

A captain from the Don Fox Charter Service, Newport, will discuss walleye techniques. And what should be the water under discussion but Brest Bay?

Club spokesman Tony Brehler says this is the spot to learn walleye techniques not found in the books.

The club is having a July walleye tournament and an August perch expedition.

Brehler relates the woeful tale of club member Cliff Simo of Livonia who caught what should have been the third prize bass in the recent bass and pike tournament. Simo assumed his catch was no lunker and fileted it without registering it. "A tough break for Cliff," said Brehler, in a magnificent understatement.

NATURE programs coming up at Huron-Clinton Metroparks:

- "Nocturnal Sights and Sounds" at 8:30 p.m. Friday, June 26, at Kensington, near New Hudson. Naturalist Mark 5zabo will show 30 minutes of slides and lead a stroll along the trails. Call the papk office at 685-1561 to pre-register&
- "Nature by Bike" at 9 a.m. Sunday, June 28 at Kensington. Bring your own bike for this 90-minute tour. Call to pre-register.
- "Now That's Inedible" at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 28 at Oakwoods, near Flat Rock. Naturalist Bob Wittersheim will discuss hemlock, wild black cherry, buttercup, nightshade, Mayapple and other poisonous plants on a two-hour walk. Call the park at 697-9181.

The programs are free, but there is a vehicle entry permit of $2 for the day or $7 for the year.

County planner

Francis Papke of Livonia has been appointed to fill an unexpired term on the Wayne County Planning Commission. A private consulting engineer for 20 years and vice-president of a Livonia consulting engineering company, Papke is also a former city engineer of the city of Farmington. He is a registered professional engineer in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. He was appointed by the county board of commissioners to fill the vacancy created by the death of Clyde Palmer, whose term expires in May 1983.

THERE WERE 370 who came to dinner and they didn't want to go home. Members of the Plymouth High School class of 1971 met Saturday evening at the Plymouth Hilton Inn for their 10th reunion. They asked the orchestra to stay on and play another set and when it was over, they wanted more.

This crowd could have danced all night. There had been talk of a 20th class reunion, but as the evening wore on, there was a change in plans. They didn't want to wait another 10 years. They would have a 15-year reunion and Stuart Delaney was commissioned to organize the party.

Steve Williams emceed the program. As with all class reunions, there were awards.

Leona Mainville had traveled the longest distance to the reunion. She came from the Virgin Islands where she works for American Motors and also is a scuba diving instructor. Chip Jacobs had the shortest trip to the reunion.

A Number Ten bar of soap was Linda Ahland's prize for the woman who had "changed most for the better." Don Johnson was winner in the same category for the men. Mike McKee was named tops in the most hair division. Brian Watkins submitted the most unusual resume and Greg Slovic's was the most surprising. Greg is now a nuclear engineer in New York State.

About 40 classmates and friends of the class joined the party after 9 p.m.

This was the first high school class to attend the brand new building that is now Plymouth Salem High School. They had spent their first three years at the old high school on the corner of Main Street and Church. And because there was no Plymouth Canton High then, they were PHS graduates.

Commencement exercises were in the gymnasium which was packed to the rafters. It's hard to realize 10 years have gone by since your youngest graduated from high school.

THE DEDICATION of the Stations of the Cross Saturday at St. John's Episcopal Church on Sheldon Road was everything — and more than — had been anticipated. The ceramic pieces by sculptor Gawaine Dart were blessed in a solemn high Eucharist conducted by the Rev. Robert Shank. They were dedicated to the memory of Sue Martin who died suddenly in August 1980 of toxic shock syndrome. Friends, neighbors, family and church members gathered for the noon ceremony. The Bell Choir and the regular choir performed in the 1½-hour mass.

More than 175 persons attended the luncheon that followed in a large yellow and white tent on the church lawn. Jack Martin (widower of the late Sue Martin) arranged the centerpieces for the tables. He had gathered the baskets of yellow daisies from his garden.

It was a busy day at St. John's. The dedication crowd still was there when guests began to arrive for a 4 p.m. wedding. There was a service at 5 and another wedding at 7.

SANDY DALY, a freelance artist and teacher who lives in Canton Township won a merit award for her portrait of "Lisa" in the annual juried exhibit of the Detroit Society of Women Painters and Sculptors. Her work is on display through June 27 at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association show in Birmingham.

Mrs. Daly has lived in Canton for two years. She teaches small private classes for children and adults in her own studio. She has won numerous awards and has published illustrations. Her work is in private collections across the country.

GERALD MCKENNY received the Archibald Alexander Hodge prize in systematic theology at commencement exercises at Princeton Theological Seminary. He was the top scholar in the "middler" class at the seminary.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen McKenny of Ivanhoe Street, Plymouth. Gerald graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1975 and from Wheaton College in 1979. He is president of the middler class at the Princeton seminary which graduated its 169th class earlier this month.

BJ's brown eyes light up and he responds with a friendly smile when he recognizes a member of his family.

Linda Jutras and BJ use his conversation board to discuss his day at school.

BJ thrives in family environment

By Anne Harter Jones
special writer

Eleven-year-old Bobby (BJ) Johnson is a special child who lives with a very special family.

Small for his age, he moves his thin arms and legs with the characteristic awkwardness of a cerebral palsy victim. But his appealing brown eyes light up and a spontaneous smile appears when he recognizes a friendly face.

For 2½ years, he has been surrounded by the friendly faces and loving care of his foster family, Linda and Bob Jutras and their three natural children Bob Jr., 12, Randy, 11, and Jason, 6. They live in a pleasant ranch-style home in a quiet Canton subdivision.

For most of his life BJ lived at the Plymouth Center for Human Development, but today he is one of the 75 lucky children for whom family placement has been found in one of the 60 licensed area foster homes. Presently 35 developmentally disabled children aged 12-17 still await such placement.

The success of the Jutras family's involvement with BJ is demonstrated by their having been approved for the care of a second child with the same disability. Jerry Pieh, case manager for the Plymouth Center, who visits the family every 30 days said, "This speaks highly for Linda's skill as a provider and for the family's effort." Their second foster child will be moving in soon.

MRS. JUTRAS talked enthusiastically about the progress BJ has made within their family environment.

"When we first got him we called him Little Bobby," she said, "but there are already two Bob's in the family; and when he started at the Morainne School in Northville, there was another Bobby in his class. So we all decided to call him BJ, and he likes the name.

"He can't talk, but he communicates very well with the use of his conversation board. He knows over 100 words. At school they are working with him on a talking computer."

BJ's conversation board is a large tray attached to his special chair. It is laid out in a grid with squares containing symbols and words. BJ can communicate his needs by placing his fist on the appropriate square. Mrs. Jutras said he can read the words.

At one point, BJ indicated he wanted to go to the bathroom. Mrs. Jutras was immediately aware of his need and took him. She left him alone for a few minutes. Then went and got him when he called for her.

"Like everyone else," she said, "he likes his privacy in the bathroom.

"BJ's a neat guy. He has fit in extremely well, and it's been a good experience for the other kids. When he came here from an institutional environment, there were things in an ordinary home he'd never even seen before — like the kitchen. He didn't know about a refrigerator and stove.

"He's good to take places. We went to an ice cream social recently, and he really enjoyed it.

"HE'D NEVER been around animals before. He was a little scared of our dog at first.

"One day we took him to some friends' house and a little kitten jumped up on his board. He was astonished.

"The expression on his face said, 'What is this? It looks like a stuffed toy, but it moves!' "

BJ does things now he couldn't do when he first came. He works wooden puzzles; he has more head and trunk control — is able to hold his head up longer; he can roll around and get around much better than before; he can go after toys and grab them.

"But without the support of the team, I think it would be impossible," Mrs. Jutras said. "Jerry is the best case manager we could have."

Pieh explained the kind of support provided to foster families by the Plymouth Home — both financial and personal.

"As case manager," he said, "I make sure objectives at school are the same as at home. The same ancillary services are provided in the foster home as in the institution.

"The team's psychologist and nurse consultants review and monitor particular areas of BJ's progress. He goes to Henry Ford Hospital for clinical work, but the nurse works with his physical problems, and the psychologist works with any behavioral complications."

SPECIAL NEEDS are contracted out to a contract agency the Plymouth group works with. For example, an occupational therapist works with BJ once a week.

The Department of Mental Health pays for the same services that apply in the home as well as at the Plymouth Center. State and federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) pays for BJ's room and board, but Linda is also paid for the contract services she provides. She has to submit documentation for all the services she performs.

"There is a lot of paperwork, but it's not bad once you get used to it. You have to keep it organized and use a systematic approach," Mrs. Jutras said.

"Some people are a little reluctant about the paperwork at first," Pieh added, "but it is valuable for them to see their accomplishments, and it satisfies our expectations and requirements.

"As an example of the kind of dedication we expect and have found in Linda — at a recent physical evaluation of BJ, we found a hearing loss. His adenoids were enlarged.

"Surgery had to be scheduled right away. I contacted his natural mother for permission.

"Linda contacted the hospital to set up when the surgery would occur. It was scheduled for May 19. She had to have him downtown by 7:15 a.m.

"Linda has provided super follow-through. She's very conscientious in meeting needs. She attends our training sessions every month."

MRS. JUTRAS also keeps in close contact with BJ's school.

"I have a lot of involvement with his teachers. I have become very good friends with them," she said. BJ leaves on the school bus at 8 a.m. and gets home at 2:43 p.m. The Morainne School in Northville is a regular elementary school with a special education department.

Kathy Kovach is a licensing worker for the Foster Care Development Program at the Plymouth Home. She talked about the need for qualified families to take in the 35 children now eligible for placement.

"These children are hard to place. The majority suffer from mental retardation, developmental disabilities, seizure disorders and behavior disorders," she said.

"We are looking for people with nursing or teaching backgrounds, but that doesn't preclude anyone who has a willingness to learn."

An eight-week, 30-hour orientation program is required before placement.

"We are not looking for people just to provide room and board. But it is not necessarily a full-time job. Some foster mothers are able to hold down a second job outside of the home.

"I want to stress that the support team is always available, but foster parents become quite independent."

THE LICENSING requirements for the physical home environment are strict. There are specific fire and safety requirements.

For example, the Jutras had to have smoke detectors and fire extinguishers installed before they could qualify. They also are expected to conduct fire drills every three months and submit a report. But these precautions can be of benefit to any family.

Minimum sleeping space requirements are for an 80-square-foot room for one child, or 140 square feet for two. In addition, Ms. Kovach says she makes a personal evaluation of the home and the family.

"I make sure the home environment is clean and safe. I go through it from the basement to the attic.

"I talk with the family to get to know the people. We want a normalized environment. The child's room should be pleasant and decorated, but that doesn't mean we expect something out of Better Homes and Gardens.

"We also require positive references from friends and employers, and we check for past criminal convictions."

It can be a long procedure, but the Jutras applied in October 1978 and received their license in December. By February 1979, BJ had been placed with them.

There is also a matching process between the family and child. The Jutras asked for a boy because, Mrs. Jutras said, "I have boys, and I'm used to boys."

The foster parents talk about the characteristics of the child with the workers, meet with the child in the institution and at his school, meet the child's natural parents, and finally, have him visit them in their home for several weekends.

Many of the children's natural families maintain close contact, said Pieh, "although some only drop a card at Christmas. All are given the chance to visit."

THE JUTRAS already have completed this matching process for their second foster child, another boy, and are ready for him to move in. Pieh believes it will be good for BJ to have another child in the home.

"He will learn to share. With a second resident coming, he won't be the only special child in the home," he said. Licensed homes can have as many as three children.

In an environment such as the Jutras', the chances for these children to develop their fullest potential is greatly increased, and the rewards are great.

"It's very important for these kids to have the same people around all the time," Mrs. Jutras said. "I think more people should do it. It's really rewarding, and it helps you appreciate your own kids more."

Families interested in the program — including single-parent families — may call the Plymouth Center for Human Development, Foster Care Management, 837-3560, or Placement Unit, 453-1500.

German Club awards grant

The German-American Club of Plymouth awarded its first educational grant to Mary Foster, a recent graduate of Belleville High School. The presentation was made at the July 18 meeting of the club in the Odd Fellows Hall on Elizabeth Street in Plymouth.

Announcement of the availability of the grant was made to area high school seniors. Miss Foster studied German all four of her high school years. She is an all-A student and a member of the National Honor Society, student government and Junior Achievement.

Applicants were asked to submit a short essay on German culture. Excellence in German, academic record, good citizenship and the essay were considered in naming the winner.

Miss Foster told members of the club that she intends to use the $200 grant to pursue studies in German and natural sciences at Michigan State University in the fall.

The club wished her continued success and "viel Glueck fuer die Zukunft."

The club meets in Plymouth the third Thursday of each month and its members are from Northville, Livonia, Westland, Canton Township and Plymouth. Annual celebrations are a Fasching party and and an Oktoberfest, both of which are open to the public.

Hedwig Giedeman, Erica Sizemore and Connie Fitzner, trustees of the scholarship fund, judged the scholarship applicants.

Classic cars at band concert

The 1981 summer park concert series begins tonight at 8 p.m. tonight in Kellogg Park.

The first band concert of the year will feature the Plymouth Community Band and displays of antique vehicles and their slick 1981 counterparts.

"You've Come A Long Way, Buggy" is the central theme of the festivities, sponsored by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

A century of progress will be highlighted with music, carriage rides, displays, and refreshments served at the Chamber of Commerce booth.

Although the concert begins at 8 p.m., the car and carriage displays will be open to the public at 6 p.m.

The "horseless carriages" will be provided by Plymouth car dealerships, each of whom will showcase several 1981 offerings.

Vintage antique buggies, carriages, and sleighs will be provided by Banbury Cross Horse & Carriage Rentals, a Plymouth business launched less than a year ago.

Two area carriage enthusiasts will display a variety of their horse-drawn vehicles. David Johnson, a South Lyon landscaper and collector, will provide several buggies in various states of restoration. Carl Holston, carriage craftsman from Canton, will display an 1890 Brougham brought back to its original condition.

The following concerts will be heard at 8 p.m. Thursdays in Kellogg Park: Battle Cry of Freedom, July 2; All That Jazz, July 9; Our Honored Sponsors, July 16; To a Special Friend, July 23; Thanks for the Memories, July 30.

Rec group ends season with picnic

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

Among the variety of classes offered by Canton Parks and Recreation is a men's recreation night that has been together for four years. This is quite unusual, due to the great number of transferred families in our area.

Priscilla Fountain instructs these dedicated fellows. She has other classes but there are always a few new faces each semester.

The men always end the spring season with a get-together.

Frank and Lynn Hazard hosted the picnic this year as in years past. Jesse Arroyo, Rene Montilla, Craig Good, Rich Hammerschmidt, Frank Vivano, Jim Mangan, Alan Davis and George Bills were a few of the early arrivals for the long and lazy afternoon. They soon were joined by the rest of the team — Steve Kellar, Andy Moundros, Thom Boze, Jerry Reynolds, Mark Wilcox and Bob Zavagnin.

There are plenty of fine classes forming all the time in our recreation department. These men were lucky enough to find the right one from them, and so can you.

BRIDGE IS a popular pasttime for hundreds of men and women in Canton.

Many of the groups meet twice monthly for a luncheon bridge, which starts about 11 a.m., breaks for a quick lunch and then continues until about 3 p.m. I can't think of a nicer way to spend an afternoon.

One of the luncheon groups decided to end its season with a special day. They decided that going to Dearborn Inn was the best way to top off their springtime before they break for summer.

Carol Rodes, Barbara Clemens, Barbara Hodson, Norma Heheman, Mary Ellen Roth, Judy Scipione, Barb Shimmel and Bobbie Ryan all had a super afternoon at the inn.

A room off the main hallway was offered for the ladies to induldge in bridge for a short while. They were escorted to the beautiful dining room, where they enjoyed a delicious lunch. Then back again for a little more of the world's most facinating card game. (That is just a personal opinion.)

Bea Schibley is a regular in the group but was unable to attend the afternoon activity due to illness in her family. I have had the pleasure of sitting across the table from most of these very fine bridge players and enjoy meeting the challenges they have to offer.

SOCCER IS a game that I have enjoyed coaching during the past two seasons. More and more parents and children are discovering why it is the world's most popular sport.

Last June, Ray Widdick and Ron Berglund drove their teams, with the assistance of several parents, to Canada to see the techniques used in that country. The two Canton teams were welcomed by crowds of cheering Canadians, along with bands and honor guards.

It is our turn to host the playoff this Sunday, at the soccer field in front of Canton High School. The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, as well as the VFW with the American colors, will be on hand.

Ray Widdick has put together the agenda for the day as well as all of the hard work behind it. There will be three teams in the playoffs this year. Phil LaJoy has the under-10 team with the most consistent winning record of the season. Steve Boyd will go with the under-12 boys team maintaining the same high quality. Ed Liuzzo has the under-14 boys team, which tied and won the most games in its class. This event will give the children and coaches an added experience outside their present realm of competition.

It will be an all-day affair, with activities starting at 12:30 p.m. and the games beginning at 1 p.m. There are no bleachers at this location so if you plan to attend, bring your own blankets and folding chairs. There will be a concession stand where you can purchase food and drinks. It should be an interesting event.

As we all know, there also are girls teams in these age groups. The Canadians do not have the same high level of competition with girls teams as they do with the boys. That is why there will be no playoff in this area. Maybe a possibility for the future.

Teenager finalists

Sharen Marie Bill (left) and Sheryl Rusu are finalists in the state Miss United Teenager pageant which will be at Adrian College, July 26. Contestants will be judged on scholastic and civic achievements, beauty, poise and personality. Swimsuit competition is not required. Each contestant will write and recite on stage a 100-word essay entitled, "My Country." Miss Bill, 18 is the daughter of Earl Bill of Canton Township. She is sponsored by "Friends of Plymouth." A graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, her hobbies are swimming, skiing, biking, reading and cooking. Sheryl Rusu, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rusu. She is a senior at Plymouth Salem High School and enjoys skiing, tennis, golfing, sewing and cooking. She is being sponsored by Tank Service Inc.

LOSE WEIGHT
I cannot begin to thank you enough for the effect your weight loss program has made on my life. In the past I have tried many fad and chemical reaction diets. At one point I even had my ears stapled! I then made an investment in Health Farm Visits. (this of course was unsuccessful). I developed a system of fasting and binging on food. Therefore, each attempt ended in failure and enormous frustration. For once in my life I have developed proper eating habits and have maintained my 22 pound weight loss with the help of New Development Hypnotherary Center.

Symphony Leaguers plan antique mart

Planning their annual antique mart is a year-round project for members of the Plymouth Symphony League. The league's 19th mart will be Sept. 11-13 in the Plymouth Cultural Center on Farmer Street. The three-day show and sale always is the Friday, Saturday and Sunday of the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Much of the responsibility for the overall quality of the show rests with the dealer committee of Barbara Brewer and Judy Dow and Sharron Davy and Helen Merrill, who are co-chairing the show. These women are antique mart veterans. Mrs. Brewer has served on the dealer committee for two years and Mrs. Davy and Mrs. Merrill are both former dealer committee chairpersons.

As soon as one mart is over, committee heads begin planning the next one and looking for dealers with interesting and unusual items.

AFTER MUCH searching, Barbara Brewer has found two fine new dealers for the show. Sally Zink, the "Lavender Lady," dresses in lavender and decorates her booth in lavender. Her miniatures are a delight to both young and old collectors.

Mary Morrison also will be doing her first Symphony League mart. She specializes in antique glass and new collectible paper weights.

The mart has gained the reputation of being "the best small show around" because of the wide variety of antiques on display.

Browsers will find primitives, trunks, furniture, accessories, jewelry, clocks, tools, silver, stoneware, pewter, quilts, coverlets and baskets.

Committee members for the 1981 mart are: Mary Bozell and Isabel Gerlach, dealer meals; Janet Repp and Judy Lore, publicity; Amelia Chan, treasurer; Judy Dahlberg, Georgia Theophelis and Fran Thormann, signs, flyers and programs; Peggy Jennings and Janet Crook, set-up; Susan Butzlaff, hostesses; Judy Moore, posters; Betsy Mazurkiewicz, costumes and decorations; and Eleanor Shevlin, Fall Festival committee representative.

LWV investigates

Bev McAninch of Plymouth, new president of the Michigan League of Women Voters, and Myrtle Cox of Ann Arbor visited an oil recycling plant in Redford Township. The tour of General Oil Co. on Beech Daly was part of a two-day LWV session on hazardous wastes. Representaives of the league, environmentalists and municipal officials learned how the thousands of gallons of waste oil pour through a processing operation to turn it into industrial oil. General Oil handles big batches of oil from auto and other waste generators, gas stations and from amateur drainers of crank cases.

Brunett will say the Catholic mass that will continue on Sunday the tradition of community worship at Livonia Spree celebrations. The two services of worship will be held at the mobile stage at Ford Field. Fr. Brunett, pastor of St. Aidan Catholic Church, will officiate for 8:30 a.m. mass and will be assisted by Gerry Graham as organist, Judge Patrick J. Duggan as lector and the St. Aidan Youth Choir. Dr. Hess will preach for the 10 a.m. Protestant service, and other participants will be organist Barry McKenna, soprano soloist Carol Bleich and Alex Drobish leading congregational singing.

He puts high signing on ministry

By Val Corbin
special writer

When Robert Dutton stood up before the congregation at Livonia Church of Christ wearing a Michigan Christian Youth Camp sweatshirt, a tie, conductor's cap, bright yellow gloves and waving a big lollipop, he said his intent was "to make it clear to all you folks exactly what my job is around here."

He explained he wanted to make it clear to the congregation that, after six months as minister, his work is in fact not one, but many, jobs.

One of two ministers at Livonia Church of Christ, Dutton, 29, was hired primarily to minister to youth. That responsibility includes developing spiritual and social programs for toddlers through teen-agers and supervising the church's growing bus program for children whose parents do not attend church services.

Dutton also has done some preaching and, most recently, has begun interpreting for deaf members of the congregation during church services.

VAL CORBIN

At Livonia Church of Christ, Robert Dutton (left) signs the sermon Ron Robinson is preaching.

DUTTON CREDITS his interest in young people with sparking his interest in interpreting for the deaf five years ago. In the course of his ministry to young teens at the Garland Road Church of Christ in Dallas, he met a 14-year-old deaf girl named Julia. Dutton convinced the church elders that the congregation needed an interpreter not only for Julia, but also for the deaf in the community who could be served.

He then was chosen to learn sign language and other skills for communicating with the hearing impaired. He studied at the University of Texas and at Eastfield College in Dallas, and by the end of his first year of interpreting, the number of deaf members in the congregation had grown to eight.

Dutton also was minister to the deaf at a congregation in Ohio before coming to Livonia with his wife, Jacque, 28, and two daughters.

"There's a tremendous need for interpreters," Dutton said.

"Two percent of the nation's population is deaf, but few churches serve the deaf."

To make attendance at church services and social functions even more meaningful for Livonia Church of Christ's deaf members, Dutton is teaching sign language to volunteers from the congregation.

HE ALSO HOPES his class will produce interpreters to share his interpreting schedule so that he can devote more time to his foremost concern — youth.

Bergmann to leave Westland church

The Rev. Allan L. Bergman, pastor of Grace Moravian Church in Westland, will leave the church July 12 to become pastor of the Mill Woods Moravian Church, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

After a vacation he expects to be installed at the church in late summer or early fall.

A native of Watertown, Wis., Rev. Bergmann is a 1969 graduate of Moravian Theological Seminary in Bethlehem, Pa. He was ordained a deacon in the Moravian ministery in 1968, and was consecrated a presbyter in 1975.

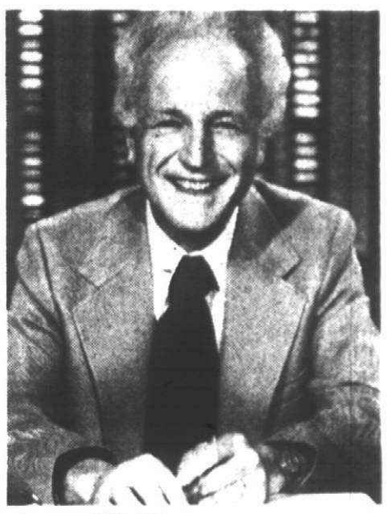

He served four years at the Daggett Moravian Church prior to coming to Grace church in 1972. He and his wife, Judith have three children, Dawn, 12; Scott, 10 and Candace, 6.

moral perspectives
Rev. Robert Schaden

Look in the mirror and see a neat person

Life's most refreshing lessons often come from the most unlikely teachers. One of my most memorable teachers was only 10 years old when he made his impression. He used a simple visual aid and probably did not know that he was teaching anything at all.

Actually the youngster was fulfilling an assignment given by his own teacher. He had been told to put on one piece of paper what he remembered most from the semester that was drawing to a close.

Instead of paper he chose cardboard, on which he pasted a small mirror. Under the mirror he printed in a bold purple crayon, as only youngsters can: "This is a neat person. God loves him."

We have all looked into mirrors and have seen a variety of things. We have noticed that the mustache is crooked or that the eye shadow is smudged. Perhaps the sight of a new wrinkle or a budding pimple has bothered our pride. It may be that we have seen little more than the toothpaste which has been splashed on the glass.

But have we ever really seen what we considered to be a neat person?

SOMEHOW the very idea of admiring our image in the mirror comes across as a bit bizarre if not terribly conceited. Perhaps we have looked into the glass on the wall and admired a new hairstyle or a renewed tan, but such perceptions are seldom more than skin deep.

And if this exercise in self-esteem happened to be in a public place, we probably covered our embarrassment by switching to some less attention-getting activity if someone came along.

Whether we enjoy looking in the mirror is, of course, not the issue. But the image we have of ourselves is very much an issue.

As a matter of fact, our preoccupation with the many surface things of life on which cosmetic companies make their money is an indication of our need to feel worthwhile. Such a focus also provides a distraction from looking deeper than our skin to discover the kind of beauty seen by the boy with the purple crayon.

When we can come to a realization of our own worth and believe it down to our toes, the cosmetic business may have to find a new pitch. When we can look into the mirror and see the beauty beneath the blemish no one will have to convince us to do worthwhile things, to relax, to enjoy life or to reach out to others in their need, because all of that will follow.

ONLY THOSE who doubt their own lovableness have a need to be conceited. Big heads are often the result of small or wounded hearts. Those who have sense of their own worth have no need to be conceited and are quite inclined to enhance the lives of those they touch.

It has been a few years since that boy pasted his mirror on the cardboard, and I have lost track of him, but I do hope that no one has tried to change his perspective.

With the message of his purple crayon, we can afford to look into the mirror and not go bananas over a threatening pimple or an unwanted wrinkle. We will know that it is only on the wrapper of a person whose beauty is far more than skin deep.

Chris rides along with surfing legends

By Marie McGee
staff writer

Riding the crest of new popularity, surfing's wandering minstrels "Jan and Dean" will bring their special brand of music to the area Monday in a one-night concert at Center Stage in Canton Township.

And traveling with the legendary duo is 21-year-old Chris Farmer of Livonia, who plays bass guitar and helps out with the vocals in the group's backup band "Papa Doo Run Run."

For Jan and Dean — back together after a couple of near-wipeouts, including a serious auto accident — it's a just another one of many stops on a four-month tour across the country that began in Lake Tahoe, Nev., and headed eastward.

FOR CHRIS, A 1978 graduate of Stevenson High School and considered one of its outstanding musical graduates, it'll more like "old home week" and a chance to show the local folks what he's been up to after "hitting it lucky" and landing a job with the group that made "The Little Old Lady from Pasadena" and "Deadman's Curve" household words in the early- to mid-'60s.

Chris said landing the job with the group was a lucky break that happened soon after he headed to the golden west after giving up a four-year voice scholarship at the University of Michigan. But his former music teacher at Stevenson High School said it was more than luck. It was plain old unadulterated talent — and a whole lot of it.

"Chris is one of the most talented students I've ever had," said Lowell Everson, who this year was named the state's outstanding music instructor. "He can do anything and play everything." That includes piano and guitar as well as singing and arranging music.

Everson recalled that Farmer started out by playing trumpet in junior high school and won a scholarship to Interlochen national music camp. In his sophomore year in high school, he switched to vocal music and won another Interlochen scholarship, which in turn helped him get a four-year scholarship to U-M.

CHRIS RECALLS those days, too. "It was interesting and I was enjoying it. I was singing opera and doing oratorical work" along with playing with the U-M jazz band (which eventually went on to play in the Montreux Jazz Festival).

"But then one day I figured I had done that for 1½ years and it was time to try something different, so I decided to head for California. I knew that Detroit is not the best place to try to break into the pop music scene."

After several months of odd jobs that included being a bank teller, a musician's contact service landed him an audition with "Jan and Dean."

"Frankly," Farmer confessed, "I didn't even know who they were. I checked with the agent who arranged for the audition and he told me what kind of music they played. I went out and bought an album." He had one day to get ready for the audition, he said.

It's easy for him to remember the day of the audition, too. His car was stolen and he had to hitch a ride to the studio. He was among the five finalists and eventually was asked to join the group. He's been with them since September.

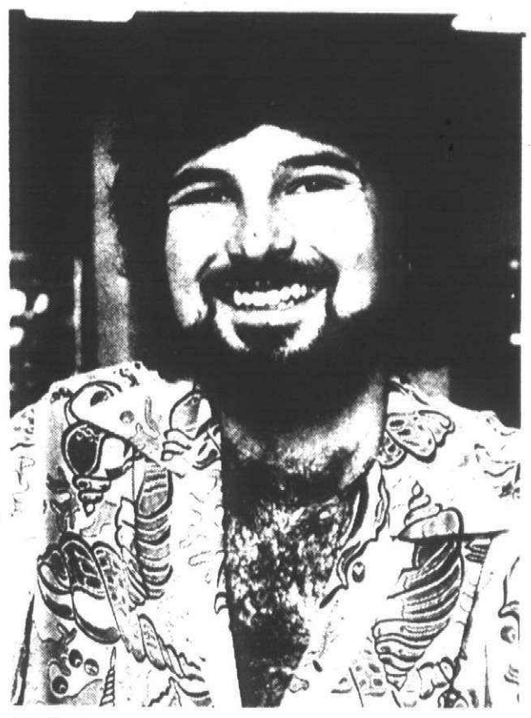

COINCIDENTALLY, he shares an apartment with a Livonian trying his luck at breaking into the movies. His roomate is Ed McClarty, brother of Jim McClarty whose band, 707, is gaining in popularity across the country.

Ed McClarty's talent as a stunt man has won him roles in two upcoming movies. One is Peter Falk's new flick "Vice Squad," and the other is "Death Wish II," with Charles Bronson.

"It's really nice because the McClartys lived down the street from us. We all grew up togther. In fact, Jim McClarty's success was my main motivation for leaving Livonia and going to California," Farmer said.

Farmer gets to solo on the old Jan and Dean standby, "Home in the USSR," but the smiles and showmanship won't all be for the hometown crowd expected to show up. A lot of it will be directed to the TV cameras from On TV that will be filming the concert for presentation later on the subscription network.

Tickets to the concert are available at all J. L. Hudson branches and CTC outlets at $6.50.

Sonya's holding her own as TV host

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

In the male-dominated world of talk show hosts, TV personality Sonya Friedman is establishing her own territory.

"Not many women host their own shows. It's the role of the man as host," she said in a recent interview at P.J. Clarke's, the Birmingham restaurant she owns.

"Not many women are permitted to have credibility. Who besides Barbara Walters can you name?"

"They're never going to love me the way they love Donahue!" she said with self-assessing candor.

The slender, attractive blond with the soothing voice always has a ready answer. That's one of the things that has made her so successful in her career as a psychologist.

FRIEDMAN'S credentials in the field of psychology are what helped her develop her radio and television career. A determined realist, she has worked hard to succeed and presently balances an afternoon radio show along with her daily TV show.

A West Bloomfield resident, married to a doctor at a Pontiac hospital, she still continues to see some clients at her psychologist's offices in downtown Birmingham near P.J.'s.

"I'm still married to the same man. We met when we were 14," she said when asked about her marriage. But Friedman doesn't dwell on the personal side of her life, instead preferring to explain her work and goals.

A highly organized individual, Friedman was busy addressing cards while waiting for the interviewer to arrive at the restaurant. She doesn't have too many sprare moments.

During the interview, she munched a bran muffin, one of the healthy, natural foods Friedman prefers and which her restaurant specializes in.

THE TELEVISION show "Sonya" started only six months ago on WDIV-TV, Channel 4. The radio program, in which she has a different role, has been going strong for 2½ years and is on another station, the ABC-owned WXYZ radio.

Talking about the distinction between the two shows, she said, "In one I'm an expert. In one I'm a host."

LINDA SOLOMON

Radio listeners get full-out advice from Dr. Sonya Friedman, who gives sensitive, practical help over the air to radio callers. No subject is too intimate to be discussed, but Friedman manages to be pointed with her comments without using any offensive, or overly clinical, language.

Describing the TV show, she said, "All shows on 'Sonya' attempt to problem solving." As host, she deals in "provocative subjects" including religion, sex, and violence.

"I try not to get into ratings," Friedman said. A WDIV-TV spokeswoman reports "Sonya" has more women viewers in the 18-49 age group than Phil Donahue.

"Donahue" and "Kelly & Company" are some of the heavy competition the show faces, but "Sonya" has steadily increased its share of audience, according to the WDIV publicity source.

The show, with celebrity and expert guests, is broadcast live before a studio audience. On camera, Friedman wears softly feminine dresses and casually sophisticated hairstyles.

OFF CAMERA, she's likely to be in her jogging suit mornings when she puts the show together and evenings when she winds up many workdays with a workout in aerobic dance at Vic Tanny's in Birmingham.

"I really don't find it a grind," she said simply of her schedule that could drive less-disciplined persons into a frenzy.

Asked how a typical day goes, Friedman said she gets up between 5:30-5:45 a.m. and goes to bed between 10-10:30 p.m.

Mornings, she packs lunch and makes breakfast for herself and her husband. A fresh salad and fruit is the lunch she enjoys because it keeps her energy high.

She leaves the house at 7 a.m. to arrive at WDIV in downtown Detroit, where she does her makeup and "someone helps me with my hair." She changes from her jogging clothes into what she calls "real clothes" for the show.

Before showtime, however, a meeting begins at 8:30 a.m. with other staff people involved in the production. The hour-long show starts at 9:30 a.m. and is followed by a meeting to go over the next day's show.

THEN IT'S OFF to WXYZ's studios in Southfield, where she eats her lunch and looks for story ideas in the newspapers she peruses daily: The Eccentric, the New York Times, the Detroit Free Press, the Detroit News and the Oakland Press.

The radio show is a three-hour stint, starting at 1 p.m., but she handles it with assurance and calm.

On Mondays, Friedman goes back downtown to a production meeting at WDIV-TV, Channel 4, which is over by 7 p.m.

As a psychologist in private practice, Friedman is not presently conducting any ongoing psychotherapy. "After 17 years I might be taking a sabbatical," she said.

She does have a few clients, whom she helps with problems of everyday living. "We work as a team. I don't see them as sick. I see them as people."

Friedman's dream is someday to have a clinic where she would counsel women who are struggling to achieve their independence but need help getting started. She believes many women in the Birmingham area would like such help and may not be able to pay for it.

HER SUCCESSFUL radio and TV career might enable her to offer this free service, Friedman hopes.

Always into many different projects, she is planning to introduce a line of Sonya T-shirts, which will bear "a group of Sonja-isms." She would like to have the T-shirt buyers wear a statement about how they feel.

backgammon

Michael Kloian

of the American Backgammon Club

● THINKING AHEAD

Kloian attended the recent annual World Amateur Championship Plimpton Cup Tournament in Las Vegas. For the next few weeks, he will discuss positions of interest from the tourney.

I observed this position in a fourth-round match between two amateur players. The score is tied 10-10 in an 11-point match. Winning the game for either opponent will win the match. The doubling cube has no power in this game.

White has a 6-3 to play. The race is close, with white ahead only three pips before moving. What is your suggested play?

Unfortunately, no matter how white plays the 6-3, he will leave a shot. So should he leave a direct 3 shot or a 6 shot?

The amateur player, without proper analysis, quickly moved a checker from the 10 to the 1 point. If black had less than two spare checkers in the outer board (especially on the 11 point), this would be a proper play.

However, what white failed to see is that if black misses the 10 point blot, white will surely safety this checker on the next roll. And, since white will have no spare checkers (unless he rolls a perfect double after that), he will be forced to leave black a direct shot with any roll of 6. Black has approximately two rolls before he will be forced to split his 7 point checkers with any roll of 6.

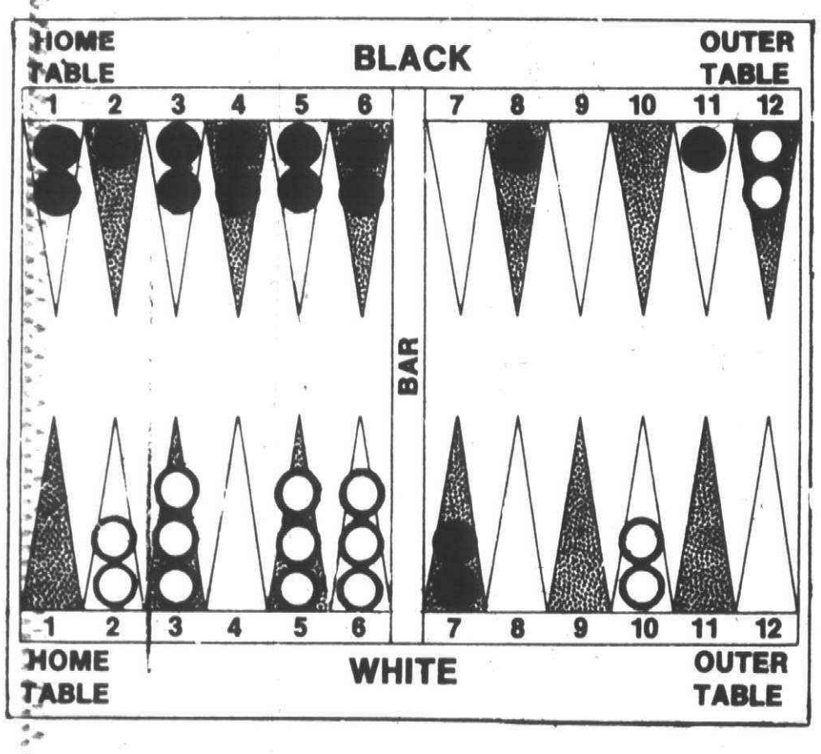

Black has slightly better timing than white. Black will, no doubt, have a closed home board and white will be a favorite to leave a direct shot anyway. I'm assuming white had hoped that black would miss, relying on the luck of the dice.

The best play for white, with this position and score, would be to run a checker from the 12 to the 4 point. This move conveniently duplicates the number 6, which black would need to hit white and cover his 2 point blot.

The sole purpose of this play is to win the race and game should black miss the direct 6 hit. Of course, if black hits and does not cover the blot immediately, white has a chance to hit back. With 16 ways to hit the 12 point blot, black has two bad rolls. The direct 3 shot leaves black 14 good rolls and 22 bad, a slight decrease in good rolls. The extra two shots, in this case, are not worth leaving two checkers stranded on the 12 point.

The end result of the game is not important, although white did eventually leave black a direct 6 shot anyway and lost the game and match. White could have avoided the inevitable and possibly won the game. Of course, had the amateur player rolled a perfect double immediately, he would have thought his 6-3 move was tactfully executed.

Masonic Temple offers 4 musicals on 1st season

Four musicals will headline Masonic Temple's premiere theater season opening this fall in Detroit.

"Camelot" starring Richard Harris, "The King and I" with Yul Brynner, "Madwoman of Central Park West" with Phyllis Newman, and a salute to Detroit's jazz festival, "One Mo' Time," are the offerings.

Subscriptions for the premiere season offer priority seating and reduced prices and, as a bonus, first ticket selection and prior notification for the American Ballet Theatre led by Artistic Director Mikhail Baryshnikov, playing the Masonic stage Oct. 19-24.

The bonus also will apply to "Sesame Street Live," which will play later this year.

The 4,000-seat-plus Temple Theatre will host "The King and I," "Camelot" and the American Ballet Theatre. The 1,500-seat Cathedral auditorium will be the theatrical setting for "Madwoman" and "One Mo' Time."

Masonic also will offer pre-show dining, cocktails and afterglow with dancing in its new restaurant, steps away from the theaters.

The subscription offer expires July 31. For further information on season's tickets call the box office at 832-2232.

Cleo Laine embraces James Galway, who shares the stage with her Friday night at Meadow Brook Music Festival's variety series opener.

Freedom Fest gets under way

The 1981 Detroit/Windsor Freedom Festival, Friday through Wednesday, will light up Detroit's Hart Plaza with more than fireworks.

The largest international festival in North America offers to both residents and summer visitors six days of entertainment, games and foods from Detroit and Windsor restaurants at the 12-acre riverfront park.

The festivities will begin on Friday with the Detroit River Opening Ceremony. Arriving at Hart Plaza at noon aboard the Coast Guard cutter Bristol Bay, Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and Windsor Mayor Albert H. Weeks will officially open the 10-day celebration amidst fanfare and hoopla befitting the 23-year-old festival.

Joining the worldwide year for disabled persons, metro Detroit organizations that serve them will present exhibitions, entertainment and displays on the Hart Plaza Promenade and Pylon Square from noon to 8 p.m. on Friday.

SPECIAL Olympics sports competition, wheelchair slalom, wheelchair basketball, cerebral palsy sports, plus "Kids on the Block" (a puppet show) and a musical drama by the Unity of Hands Deaf Theatre will be presented.

While spectators gather at the Hart Plaza amphitheater, those who wish may join in the games presented by the Police Athletic League and the Stroh Brewery Co. from Friday-Monday.

A Frisbee toss, the Stroh Grand Prix, case stacking, a golf putting green and running races will be open to both adults and children. Baseball, basketball, boxing and soccer demonstrations by PAL teams and local sports personalities will be offered from noon to 8 p.m. during the four days.

The games and contests are a new feature of this year's Freedom Festival.

In a special salute to international friendship, local restaurateurs are joining forces to offer a taste of their foods to Hart Plaza festival-goers.

Murphy's Law according to Carlos Murphy. Law #3
"GO WHOLE MURPH, OR DON'T GO AT ALL."

The foundation of Western Civilization's entire concept of "having fun" was not built on being sensible. And we assure you, neither was Carlos Murphy's. Contrary to popular belief, exercising self-discipline is not a sign of good taste. In fact, all it's a sign of is one mealy-mouthed individual.
Let's face it—you've worked hard to pay your dues. Now it's time to get them back. And a great place to start is your stomach. So be rash with one of our mammoth Mexican Extravaganzas, or get reckless with a huge Hickory Smoked Spread. Then treat yourself right with one of Murphy's famous drinks.
Of course, if you insist on being prudent and going against everything that made civilization great, we have a variety of light delights from quiches and crepes to salads. So come in, and listen to Carlos. Don't cut back. Cut loose.

"Satan's Satellites" (1958), 8:30 a.m. Friday on Ch. 20. Originally 70 minutes.

You could skip "Raiders of the Lost Ark" because "Satan's Satelliets" is typical of the serials on which "Raiders" is based. Of course "Satellites" — an actual serial made earlier than its release date as a feature — has stereotyped action, cheesy special effects and a mundane plot. "Raiders," on the other hand, is a big-budget super-serial, an attempt to perfect the thrill-a-minute serial format. "Satellites" has a certain nostalgic value, though, and its action is constant, if not inspired. Look for Leonard Nimoy as a martian. Rating: $1.50.

"Red Planet Mars" (1952), 12:15 Friday night on Ch. 7. Originally 87 minutes.

What would happen if God broadcasted to earth from Mars? Would Russian peasants overthrow the Soviet government? Would the baseball strike end? Would Bill Kennedy get a question right? In "Red Planet Mars" only the Russian counterrevolution takes place. Made during the McCarthy era, the film is a striking example of the mood then gripping the country. Peter Graves stars. Rating: $1.90.

"The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders" (1965), 12:15 Sunday night on Ch. 7. Originally 126 minutes.

Kim Novak, poor cousin of Marilyn Monroe, never did make it. Here she's billed not only as MM's successor but as the female Tom Jones in this Terence Young film. Unfortunately, Kim lacked that certain spark, as does this film, which also stars Richard Johnson, Vittorio De Sica and and Angela Lansbury. Rating: $2.

"Tender Comrade" (1943), 12:30 Monday night on Ch. 50. Originally 102 minutes.

Sometimes the TV book blurb alone is enough to make you want to watch a film, as in this case: "Story about the working wives and sweethearts of men at war, and how they run their lives without their mates." Edward Dmytryk directed; Ginger Rogers and Robert Ryan star. Unrated.

Follow the bouncing ball

Canton Caesars shortstop Darin Weise makes the force out on runner John Blanchard at second base, but has trouble turning the double play in Tuesday's Connie Mack League baseball game. For more details, see Page 3C.

A & J softballers stun slow-pitch tourney field

A couple of firsts occurred in last weekend's annual Plymouth-Canton Softball Tournament at Massey Field.

Perennial power Massey Cadillac, a member of the Plymouth Recreation Class A League, failed to win. And secondly, A & J Softball Club became the first Canton Recreation League member to come away with the crown.

Because of a lack of entries, the field in the double-elimination event was reduced to eight. Seventeen teams participated last season.

A & J took home the first-place trophy with a 7-2 triumph over the defending champs.

A & J's Geno Kronkowski, an outfielder, was named the tournament MVP. He collected 13 hits in 18 at-bats, including four homers.

Massey managed only eight hits and led only once, 2-1, after three complete innings.

A & J tied the game up in the fourth when Kronkowski walked and later scored on a single by Al Jose.

With two out in the fifth inning, Bob Sny singled and Kronkowski followed with a two-run homer to give A & J a 4-2 edge.

In the sixth, A & J upped its lead to 6-2 on a two-run blast by shortstop Bob Fields. Pitcher Tim Kennedy then singled home the final run.

Tom Guilfoyle had three hits in a losing cause for Massey. Bob Fallow added two hits.

A & J posted victories over the Canton Jaycees, Primo's and Massey (twice).

The dethroned champs opened with wins over M.B.M., Finlan (twice) and A & J (loser's bracket). Finlan, a Plymouth Recreation team, captured third place.

Modified champs at Port Huron

Compuware wins again

Compuware, a member of the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Modified Softball League, last weekend won its third major tournament of the year.

Sponsor Pete Karmanos was all smiles as he watched his team win the fifth annual Pop Cocco Tournament at Knox Park in Port Huron.

Compuware outlasted the 17-field by winning five straight games, including a six-inning mercy rule 21-5 triumph over Zebra Bar of Port Huron in the championship game before approximately 1,500 fans.

The winners put a 16-hit attack to good use. The major contributor was Charlie Johnson, who went five-for-five with two homers, eight RBIs and five runs. For the tournament, Johnson went 12 for 21.

Compuware broke the game wide open in the sixth inning with nine runs. The big hit was Bill Lawson's bases-loaded double.

Jerry Staszel, who was the winning pitcher, scattered seven hits.

First baseman Wayne Hamilton went smacked two homers and had four RBIs to lead Compuware to a 22-5 opening-round win over Webster's Party Store.

Al White was the winning pitcher. He allowed four hits.

In the second round, Staszel tossed a five-hitter and Hamilton went three-for-four as Compuware slammed Morets 10-1.

White blanked Plymouth rival The Hummer on six hits and Jim Bedson added two hits as Compuware made it three straight with a 10-0 victory.

Compuware's closest game came in the fourth round.

THE POP COCCO champs overcame a four-run deficit to beat Zebra Bar 10-9.

Infielder Mark Falvo, who went two-for-four, tripled home the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Bedson's two-run single in that inning set up the heroics.

Ron Ray led Compuware with three hits. Bedson added two.

White, in relief of starter Staszel, picked up the win.

"It was a total team effort," said Compuware coach. "We played good ball. The people in Port Huron were pulling for us."

Compuware, leading Division A of the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Modified League (as of Monday), increased its overall season record to 22-2 with the five wins.

Oasis drills Merchants

Oasis Golf Center defeated last year's class C state champions Metro Merchants, 5-0, in a women's fastpitch softball game Friday at Livonia's Ford Field thanks to a fine one-hit performance by Jan Boyd.

Boyd, who pitched for Eastern Michigan this spring, allowed only two Merchant runners to reach base and lost her no-hit bid in the fifth inning on a single to center.

Oasis started out fast, scoring three times in the second inning. Two of those runs came on a single by Boyd. Vickie Forest hit a sacrifice fly to score catcher Julie Stafford for the final run of the inning.

In the sixth inning Dee Cifaldi singled home Jody Humphries for Oasis' fourth run.

The final run of the game came in the seventh inning as Allison Cole scored on a single by Stafford.

Oasis' next game will be against the Golden Eagles on Friday at 6:30 p.m. as part of the Livionia Spree Night activities.

Sports venture on winning track

Plymouth Canton's Sportventure Saints got back on the winning track Sunday with a 6-3 Great Lakes Women's Soccer League victory over Dearborn Calypso at East Middle School.

Despite dominating play in the first half, the Saints trailed 2-1 at intermission. Charlene Mrekvicska scored the only goal for Plymouth.

The Saints came out firing during the second period, as Mrekvicska, Sue Kasper, Cindy Hayes, Twila Kuffner and Stephanie Hancock scored consecutively to build up a 6-2 lead.

Birmingham Country Club assistant golf pro Jeff Roth spent a winter of content that's movie material.

The 23-year-old golfing phenom and Plymouth Salem graduate who recently won the PGA-Veterans' Administration championship with a record-equaling, 11-under-par 57, traveled to Florida to play on last winter's mini-tour.

Roth found some success in golf, but saw his life take a twist he hadn't quite bargained for.

"We met in Florida in November and fell in love right away," said Bloomfield Hills native Patti Jaaksi Roth, then a tennis pro working in Ft. Lauderdale. "We began dating every night."

"We got engaged a few days before Valentine's Day," said Jeff, who is working towards PGA Class A pro status, playing at PGA state events on Mondays.

"We decided to move back to Michigan and get married. Patti sold her house in March after just two days — everything worked out great. It was unbelievable."

EMPLOYMENT-WISE, things also fell into place. Patti, a three-year high school varsity tennis player and 1971 graduate of Bloomfield Hills Andover, looked up her contacts and quickly landed teaching jobs at Great Oaks Country Club and Rochester Hills Racquet Club.

Not that she needed any human resources. Patti's credentials would have sufficed very nicely. The 28-year-old played on the Junior Wightman Cup team when she was 17 and 18 years old, attended the University of Miami on a tennis scholarship where she achieved a No. 7 national ranking, and turned pro after her sophomore year.

Patti earned a degree in business administration and management from Florida International University and last year was ranked No. 1 in doubles and No. 2 in singles in Florida's state rankings.

"Now I want to establish myself in Michigan," said Patti, who's encouraging her husband to establish himself, too.

"She convinced me to try for my tour card this fall." said Jeff, who turned pro two years ago. "I was thinking of waiting till I'm a head pro. But by giving it a go now, I won't look back when I'm 30 and regret not giving it a shot."

But wasting time has always been a non-existent concept as far as Jeff is concerned. "When I was 8 (and growing up in Wauwatsa, Wis.), some buddies and me would ride our bikes with our clubs over our backs and go play a par-three course before school," he said. "We'd go back and play again after school."

The Roths moved to Farmington and joined Farmington Country Club when Jeff was a seventh-grader. It was about that time that the young golfer decided he was pro material.

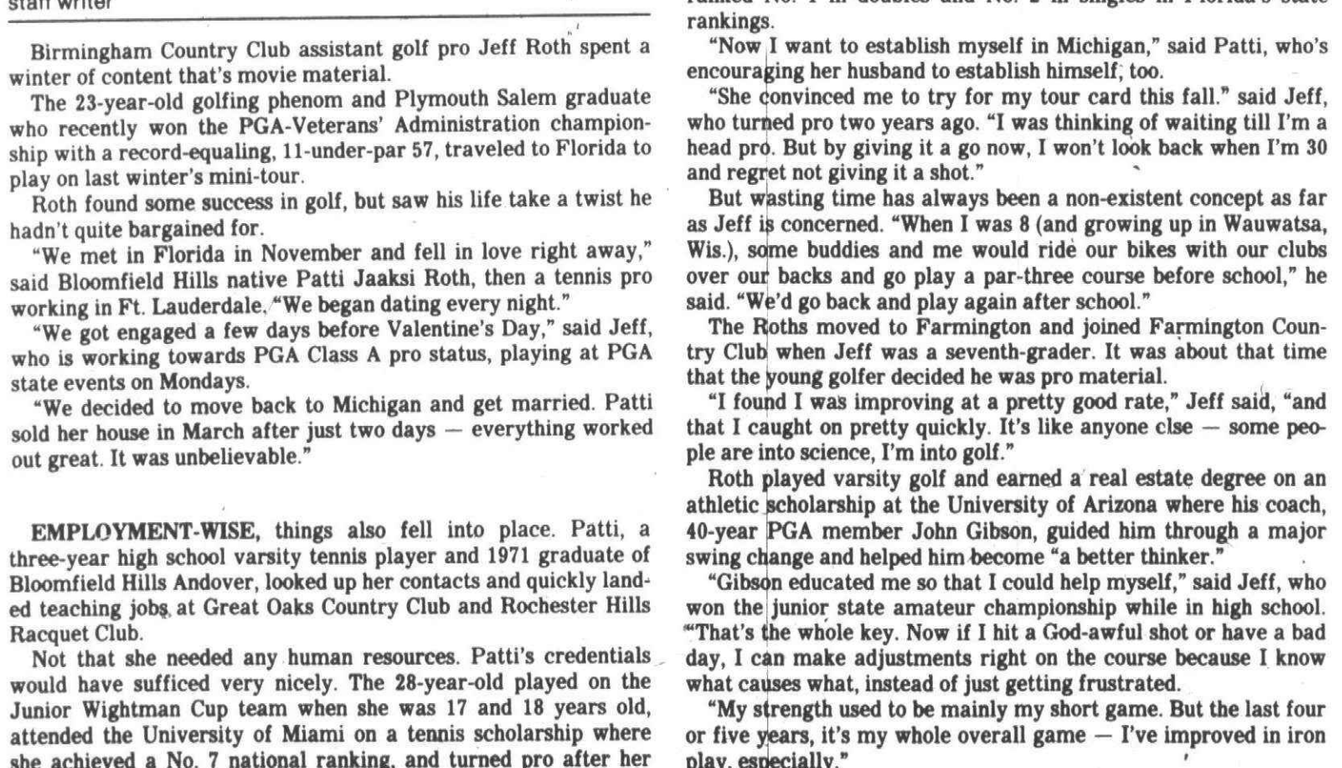

"I found I was improving at a pretty good rate," Jeff said, "and that I caught on pretty quickly. It's like anyone else — some people are into science, I'm into golf."

Roth played varsity golf and earned a real estate degree on an athletic scholarship at the University of Arizona where his coach, 40-year PGA member John Gibson, guided him through a major swing change and helped him become "a better thinker."

"Gibson educated me so that I could help myself," said Jeff, who won the junior state amateur championship while in high school. "That's the whole key. Now if I hit a God-awful shot or have a bad day, I can make adjustments right on the course because I know what causes what, instead of just getting frustrated.

"My strength used to be mainly my short game. But the last four or five years, it's my whole overall game — I've improved in iron play, especially."

North grabs Schoolcraft tennis title

Top seed lives up to ranking

Clare North, a teaching tennis pro from Ann Arbor, lived up to his No. 1 seeding last weekend by winning the Schoolcraft College Men's Open.

North defeated Ken Corba, also of Ann Arbor, 7-5, 6-1, for the championship.

The two singles finalists teamed up to capture the men's doubles crown with a 3-6, 7-5, 6-2 triumph over Mike Ware and Tim Ott, the No. 1 seeds.

Ware is a former Michigan State Open champ.

In four singles matches, North allowed only nine games en route to the final. Meanwhile, Corba, the No. 2 seed, outlasted Westland's Dave Farmer and Livonia's Glen Gwarda, both in three sets.

North, who likes to serve and volley, was impressive in his 6-1, 6-3 semifinal win over Warren's Mark Sobieralski.

Corba was equally as strong in his semifinal match, downing former Birmingham Brother Rice standout Terry Beale 6-3, 6-3.

Sobieralski, a student at Aquinas College, and Beale, the No. 2 netter this past spring at the University of Detroit, both went into the tournament unseeded.

Using a whip-like forehand and a big serve, the 6-foot-4 Sobieralski was a pleasant surprise. He made the NAIA tournament two years ago in Kansas City and also plays basketball at Aquinas. He was a high school cage teammate of U-D all-American candidate Joe Kopicki at Warren Fitzgerald.

"I was disappointed in the way I played against North," said the lanky netter. "I just wasn't on. I had problems serving into the sun."

BEALE, who played right behind Stevenson grad Dan Horvath at U-D this year, was happy with his results.

"I usually don't play too many men's tournaments in the summer," he said. "I play a lot of golf at Birmingham Country Club. I can't complain. I may enter more tournaments this summer."

Beale, who will be a sophomore this fall, plans to transfer to Notre Dame.

In doubles, Livonia's Pat Page and Jack Kingsbury reached the semifinals before losing to North and Corba, 6-1, 6-0.

DiPonio rolls, 15-0; Koufax teams win

Pitcher Rick Berberet tossed a seven-hitter and Mike Janovsky went four-for-four as Salem DiPonio defeated Windsor Riverside 15-0 in a Mickey Mantle League baseball game played Sunday.

Berberet struck out 10 and walked only two in seven innings.

Janovsky also had two RBIs. Teammate Dave Haut drove in three runs. Barry McNamara and Jeff Arnold also chipped in with two RBIs apiece.

DiPonio, 4-2 in league play, collected seven hits.

South Farmingham handed DiPonio a 10-7 defeat Saturday.

Pete Steyaert was the starter and loser. He was roughed up for eight runs on five hits. McNamara and Todd Riedel finished up in relief.

South Farmington never looked back after taking a 4-0 first inning lead.

Offensively, Bob DeBenedet and Ken Harmon led Salem with two hits each. Mike Cindrich belted a solo homer in the fifth inning.

SALEM KOUFAX 4
GARDEN CITY 3

Bob Moore doubled in teammate Jeff Smith the winning run in the seventh inning as Salem's Sandy Koufax League baseball team defeated Garden City Saturday afternoon 4-3.

Chris Belhart was the winning pitcher. He walked two and fanned five.

Salem out-hit Garden City, 6-5, with Paul Makara getting two hits for the winners. Jim Rorabacher and Moore each drove in two runs.

Salem is 5-3 in league play.

CANTON KOUFAX 12
CRESTWOOD 2

Pitcher Tim Michalik tossed a three-hitter and helped his own cause with a triple and two singles to lead Canton Craiger to a 12-2 Sandy Koufax League victory over Crestwood Thursday.

Michalik, who faced 21 batters, struck out nine and walked only one in seven innings.

John Longridge added two doubles and two RBIs for the winners, now 6-2 overall.

Earlier, Michalik and Tom Moore hit for the cycle (home run, triple, double and single) as Canton blasted Novi, 21-4. Michalik had a grand slam and six RBIs. Mark Kinsel was the winning pitcher.

Team lends support

Roth said he "cashed $2,800 on the mini-tour. I came in third in a tournament, fourth in a tournament and placed in the top 10 a couple of times.

"I missed qualifying for the Doral by one shot and the Inverary by three strokes," added Roth. "There were 160 players going after only eight spots.

"The competition is pretty stiff in golf. It's almost like running a sprint. You have to go for the gusto."

THOSE WORDS HIT home with this sportsminded couple.

Patti said, "we work long, strange hours, so we try to play as much tennnis and golf together as we can.

"We respect each other for being good in our respective areas," Patti said, "and we pull for each other.

"But when we play tennis or golf together, we're not really competitive, we do it for fun. Last night we played 18 holes of golf, and I shot 92. That's the nice part — we enjoy each other's sports and we enjoy being outside. I think that'll help keep us together in spite of our crazy hours."

JEFF HAS a plan that could help alleviate that scheduling problem.

"I told Patti that when I have my own pro shop, I'll build her a tennis shop inside," he said.

Patti has plans to help Jeff out, too. "When he goes on tour, I'll have to cut back a little on the number of lessons I give," she said. "But I've been playing so much I won't really mind.

"I think he's got the talent and I think we'll be better off if I try to support him while he tries to make it."

If that's not going for the gusto, what is?

Roth continued his stellar play Monday by winning the Michigan Professional Golfers Association tournament for assistant pros at Chemung Hills CC in Howell.

The former Salem golfer won in a sudden death playoff over Rocky Schooley, an assistant at Point O'Woods in Benton Harbor. Both were tied with 146 totals after 36 holes in regulation play. Roth won the $800 first prize on the fourth extra hole.

He will now represent Michigan in the PGA national tournament for assistant pros in Brockton, Mass.

Canton Caesars stay unbeaten in Mack loop

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

Scoring Salem's second run on this play was Bill Culver (No. 7), who got past the tag of Canton catcher Bill Hanis. Salem's lead evaporated in the fourth inning as Canton posted a 7-3 victory.

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Not a lot has changed since school let out.

Canton's baseball team, with a few new faces, continues to make winning a habit in the Connie Mack League (16-18-year-olds).

Little Caesars, which sponsors Canton in the summer, ran its record to 6-0 with a 7-3 triumph Tuesday over rival Plymouth Salem, currently known as the Elks.

Canton, which went all the way to the Class A semifinals and finished 28-3, has bolstered its already strong pitching staff with the addition of lefty Dan Funkhouser, a freshman at St. Clair Community College, and North Farmington's Kevin Shaw.

Funkhouser, who graduated from Canton a year ago, lasted only two innings. He was removed by coach Fred Crissey because of a sore elbow. Prior to Tuesday's start against Salem, Funkhouser had won two games, including a no-hitter.

Shaw hurled the third, fourth and fifth innings to gain credit for the victory. He allowed one run. The team's ace, Dan Smith, then came in relief and held Salem hitless over the final two innings.

"I have to be pleased at the way we're playing," said Caesars coach Fred Crissey, "but our intensity has been lacking a little.

"It's not going to be easy down the road. Willow Run is going to be tough. We're not out of the woods yet."

CANTON, the league favorite, fell behind 3-1 after three innings before rallying.

Caesars tallied four runs in the fourth inning. The big hit was a bases-loaded triple by pinch hitter Steve Johnson off Salem pitcher Bill Culver. Johnson then scored on Keith Stone's sacrifice fly.

Canton added another run in the fifth when catcher Bill Hanis clubbed his fourth homer in four games.

Smith singled home the final run of the game.

Salem, 4-3 in league play, took a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Dave Slavin singled, advanced twice on wild pitches and scored on a Funkhouser balk. Lefti fielder John Blanchard, who had two hits, singled in the other run.

Barry McNamara, Salem's original starting pitcher, left the game after facing only batter because of a sore shoulder. Culver, who suffered the loss in 4⅔ innings of work, was replaced in the sixth by Brian Kelly.

Steve Schumacher and Jeff Stemberger each had two hits to lead the Canton offense.

IN OTHER MACK games, Canton drilled Redford Thurston 18-1 in a game called after five innings Monday because the league mercy rule.

Todd Bergman, who worked three innings, was the winning pitcher. Dave Malek hurled the final two innings.

Hanis belted a three-run homer in the fifth.

On Saturday, Canton swept Bishop Borgess, 7-3 and 12-2.

Salem, meanwhile, split its double-header Saturday with Willow Run.

The Elks won the nightcap 8-1 as Joe Humphries, the winning pitcher, socked two homers and had five RBIs.

He was equally as impressive in the mound. The young right-hander faced 26 batters, allowed four hits, two walks and struck out seven.

Teammates Mickey Madsen and Todd Riedel each had two hits. Pete Steyaert and Dave Haut added two RBIs apiece.

In the opener, Willow Run edged Salem, 4-3, in 10 innings as Dave Phillips and Culver both went the distance.

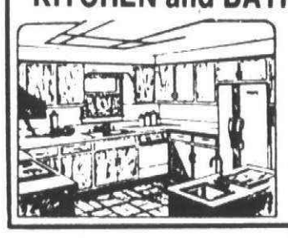

A wild pitch allowed the winning run to score from third base with two outs.

Phillips struck out 10 and did not walk a batter. Each team collected nine hits.

jogging

Dr. Charles R. Young

Leg-length variances may hamper runners

Differences in the length of your legs may or may not be of medical concern.

The effect of leg differences depends upon the body's capacity to compensate for the difference and the amount of running you decide to attempt.

In normal walking, leg-length variances of up to about one-eighth inch are common and not a problem. Such a difference rarely is identified by screening procedures.

With running, however, seemingly minor differences in leg length can, and often do, cause the limb to function improperly and may lead to medical problems.

Structural variety exists where actual skeletal or bone changes have occurred, causing shortages in a segment.

There are three basic types of variable limb lengths.

The first type, the main source of structural limb-length differences, includes those differences that are congenital or birth defects and those caused by a traumatic injury. A skiing or football injury involving a fractured leg may, following the healing process, result in a leg-length difference. Again, this is not to imply that such a difference will necessarily produce symptoms, but the alteration may be a problem.

THE CONGENITAL GROUP includes those cases which either have an underlying explanation, such as disease, or no apparent explanation, such as birth defects of unknown origin.

A second basic category of limb-length difference and perhaps the most common is the functional group.

Here limbs appear different but demonstrate no actual structural difference. Examples of this type include excessive biomechanical faults on one side, postural alterations such as back deviations or a shoulder tilt, muscular imbalances resulting in faulty mechanics and limb dysfunction and prolonged running on slanted roads or tilted tracks without altering directions.

It is interesting that the majority of running problems affect one side or limb while approximately 80 percent of the reported symptoms occur on the short side. It is my feeling that a good number of these cases probably are functional limb shortages and certainly deserve further investigation.

A THIRD TYPE of limb-length discrepancy is the mixed or combined variety. In this case, we have both an anatomical variance and a functional difference.

Proper identification must be made in order to adequately manage and predict the response to therapy and continued activity.

From a clinical standpoint, this category is encountered the least and often is the least understood.

Ohioan captures Teen Man event

Erick Iskersky may play tennis for the rest of his life around the Detroit area. He's been pretty successful in local tournaments so far.

The 23-year-old netter from Toledo won his third prize-money tournament since returning from Europe by beating former Detroiter Maurice Hunter, 6-3, 6-3, in the finals of the Teen Man Open held Sunday at Detroit Tennis and Squash Club in Farmington Hills.

The men's singles champion graduated a year ago from Trinity University (Texas) and is ranked No. 224 in the world. He traveled throughout Europe during the spring playing in $25,000 pro events. He gained valuable experience on the satellite tour. The stout right-hander even got to play Guillermo Vilas and lost, 6-4, 6-0.

Iskersky pocketed $2,000 for winning the event, sponsored by Angel Flight Sportswear. Hunter, who played in the Italian Open in April, won $600.

"I've been doing pretty well this month," said Iskersky. "I've won three tournaments here and made $3,700. Too bad I can't do that every month."

Iskersky, a former NCAA doubles champ, had little trouble adjusting to the Har-Tru (clay) surface. His backhand passing shots were too much for Hunter.

"Playing on this surface is nice," said Iskersky. "The red clay over in Europe is much slower. Today I returned his serve pretty well and I was happy with my passing shots.

"I wish I could have won the match sooner, but on a surface like this, you don't go to the net as much."

ISKERSKY plans to go back to Europe again this week and will try to qualify for the U.S. Open in Flushing Meadows, N.Y., in late August.

Hunter, who transferred from Mumford to Hollywood High in Los Angeles for his senior year, said his serve was ineffective.

"It wasn't so much him playing so well," explained Hunter, "I just didn't get into position to execute the shots. I missed a combinatation of things. I got in a hole and couldn't get it going."

Hunter's drop shot was way off. He missed seven during the match.

The 23-year-old Hunter, who played three years at Pepperdine University (Calif.) will try to qualify next month for the Washington Star and U.S. Pro tournaments, both ATP Grand Prix events.

In the semifinals, Hunter blasted former Cranbrook and University of Michigan star Jeff Etterbeek, 7-5, 6-2.

Another former U-M netter, Jon Hainline of Birmingham, lost his semifinal match to Iskersky, 7-6, 6-2.

Iskersky, who failed to lose a set in five matches, defeated 14-year-old Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe Woods, 6-3, 6-3, in a quarterfinal match.

SOUTHFIELD'S Leonard Brose won the men's 45 singles with a three-set triumph over Jim Zeron of Windsor, Ont. West Bloomfield's John Sahratian lost in the semis to Brose, 6-0, 7-5.

It was an all-Birmingham final in the men's 55 singles. Bill Mitchell, unseeded, beat No. 1 seed Jim Tobin, 6-2, 6-3.

502 Help Wanted Dental-Medical

Why the eyes of the medical world are focused on the heart of Detroit.

How can we provide the finest, most comprehensive medical care possible, and yet somehow hold the line on soaring medical costs?

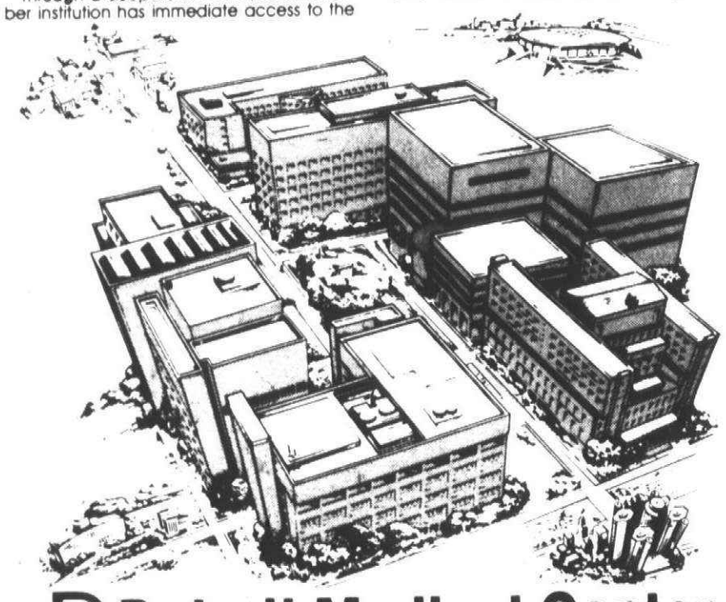

This is the critical question facing every major health care facility in the country and the world today.

The answer is best exemplified by the innovative, unique complex in the heart of the Renaissance City: The Detroit Medical Center.

Through a cooperative effort, each member institution has immediate access to the newest, most technically advanced diagnostic and treatment facilities. By sharing personnel and sharing services, each institution can concentrate on its specialties–without having to make major capital expenditures for auxiliary equipment and resources.

Each institution maintains its own character. Each institution continues to perform important clinical research in its fields.

But each institution is committed. To each other. And to the finest medical care possible.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

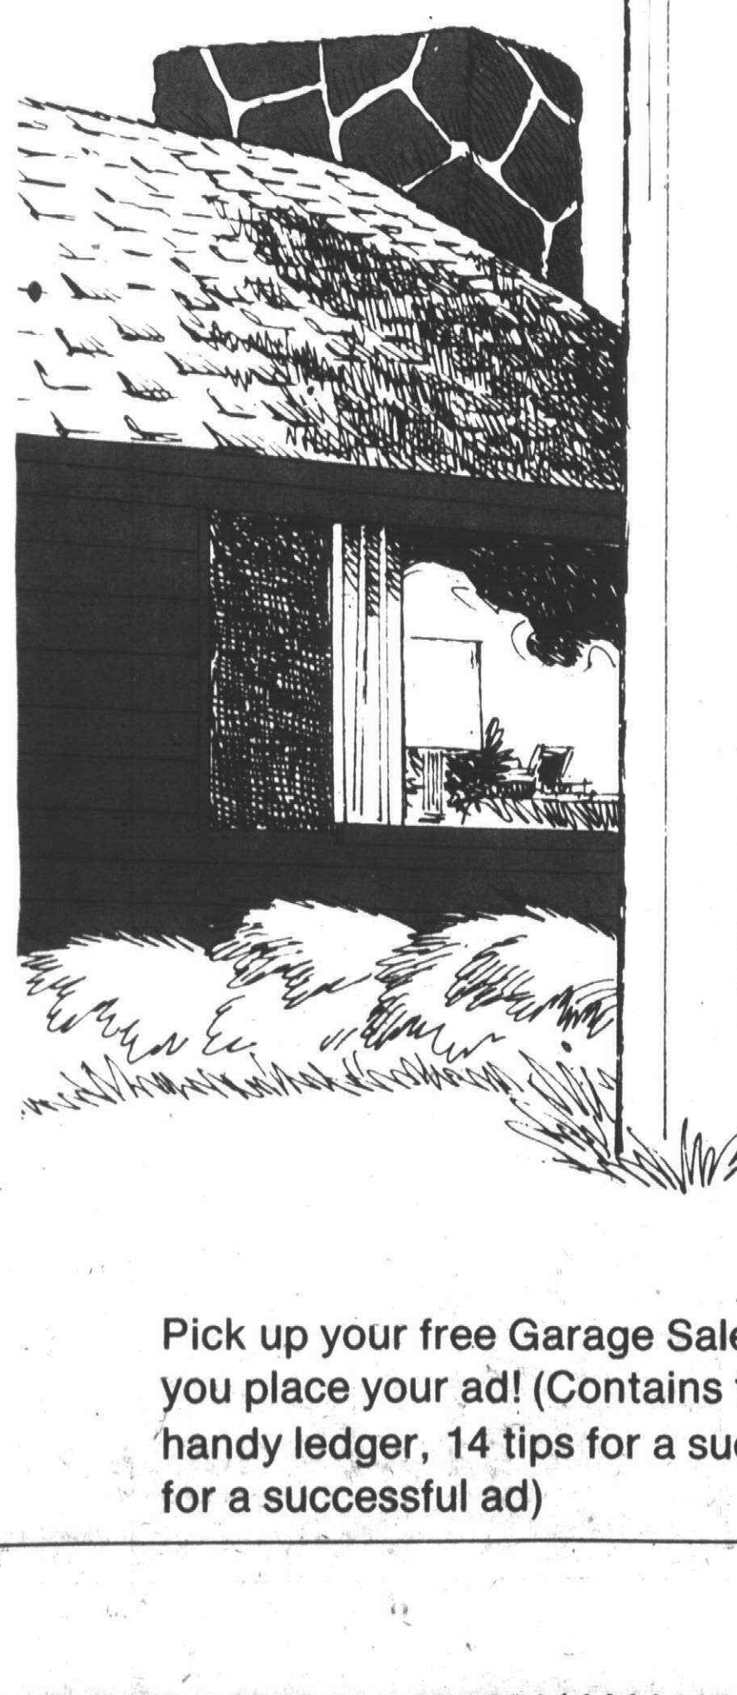

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

FAIRMONT PARK

You can get into Muirwood for $365 a month. But only through the 24-hour, manned gatehouse.

The peace and security of a round-the-clock manned gatehouse and electronic door entries are unheard of in apartments priced this reasonably.
But then, Muirwood has so many creature comforts you just won't find anywhere else for the money.
So much light, so many windows, so much room. Covered attached parking. Windows in most kitchens. (Eating space, too!) Lots of storage, huge closets. Incredible pool and clubhouse. A balcony or patio in each residence. Great architecture, great setting: ponds, rolling hills, even a private 12-acre nature trail.
12 different 1 and 2 bedroom plans from which to choose.
