The Canton Connection

THE OFFICIAL total now is in on the recent Canton Chamber of Commerce chicken barbeque. Chairman Art Ederer and his committee served a record 1,700 chicken dinners to help aid the Chamber Community Fund. In addition, 23 half barrels of beer were sold at the Chamber's beer booth during the Canton Country Festival weekend.

CANTON WILL host the annual meeting of the Rouge River Watershed Council (RRWC) at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21 at Township Hall, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill. Election of officers will take place at this meeting. The guest speaker will be Lee Botts of the Great Lakes Basin Commission. He will speak on the status of the commission and update the federal outlook for environmental programs.

MILLER SCHOOL has a new sandbox — and it's shaped like a hexagon. In a never-ending effort to cut costs, teachers Jon Childs and Tony Corrigan decided to build an outdoor sandbox for children at the elementary school.

The teachers worked on this project as part of their in-service time to the school. The outdoor sandbox (shown above with Childs) is made from oak and is 64 feet around. The sandbox supplements the indoor playground equipment at Miller.

"We're hoping to keep the costs down, and by building our own equipment we get exactly what we want," Childs said. " This way we don't have to settle for someone else's design."

THE TOWNSHIP Board will not conduct a regular meeting this week. The board will meet next week, however, at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, at Township Hall. The Canton Board of Trustees regularly meets on the first, second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

HAVE YOU ever noticed that Canton is not identified on the official state highway map? Well, Supervisor James Poole let John Woodford, the director of the state Department of Transportation, know about it. In a letter to Woodford, Poole expressed his concern for Canton, saying that local residents and businesses have complained about travelers and/or deliveries having "great difficulty reaching their destination in Canton utilizing the state map."

Poole feels that Canton's status as the fourth-most-populous township, with 48,000 residents, should support the township's appearance on the map.

THE CANTON Chamber of Commerce will hold a special membership meeting at 6 p.m. tonight at the Roman Forum Restaurant, on Ford Road, west of I-275. Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m. before a buffet dinner at 7 p.m. Supervisor James Poole will be the guest speaker. Cost is $7.50 per person. For more information, call the chamber office at 453-4040.

Anyone interested in submitting information about Canton Township for "The Canton Connection" column should send his/her item to Canton editor Dennis O'Connor, 461 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. We ask that you type or print the information and include your name and phone number in case we have any questions. Column items should be received at least 10 days before publication date. The column runs every Monday.

Township cuts tiny slice from tax rate

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Call it a symbolic act — a tiny blow against spiraling taxes.

The Township Board last week set the millage for Canton's general operating fund, paring it slightly to 2.32 mills ($2.32 per $1,000 assessed property valuation).

Residents still face a property tax hike. But the township has trimmed the average householder's boost by a slight amount — $6.50.

That may not make many people jump for joy, but trustee Robert Padget sees the lowering as a "good faith offer."

"I think this is a good faith offer — that we're doing what we can (to cut taxes)," said Padget, who pushed for a lowered millage rate. "I have long been an advocate of everybody doing a little bit to reduce his or her portion (of taxes)."

The proposed budget for next year had called for keeping the rate at $2.39 mills, the same as last year's rate.

Finance Director Mike Gorman said the township's portion of taxes will go up about $48, largely because of inflation and changes in the state tax law.

"WE DON'T want anybody to think taxes are going down," emphasized Gorman.

The general operating fund budget for next year is $4.1 million, said Gorman. That fund pays all township expenses except police, fire and public works (DPW).

The board last month voted to keep the same millage rate on a special assessment for police services, and to reduce the rate slightly for fire protection.

Gorman said the average householder will receive a total saving of about $6.56 on the township's portion of taxes.

Inflation and changes in the state tax law are boosting taxes for Canton residents an average of 16.6 percent, said Gorman. Taxes are computed by a complicated formula which includes property assessments, millage rates and a multiplying equalization factor.

THE LARGEST portion of taxes — about 67 percent — goes to the school district, explained Gorman. Other allocations go to the township, Wayne County, Schoolcraft College and others.

Board members wavered between sympathy for taxpayers and fears of providing services with shrinking revenues.

Two votes were required to set the operating millage.

An original motion to approve the same rate as last year was defeated because of a tie vote. Supporting that motion were Clerk John Flodin, Supervisor James Poole and Trustee Carol Bodenmiller.

Voting no were trustees Loren Bennett, Steve Larson and Robert Padget. Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz was attending a seminar and absent for from the meeting.

Padget introduced a subsequent motion to reduce the rate. That motion passed 5-1, with Mrs. Bodenmiller dissenting. Mrs. Falkiewicz provided a written memo in which she outlined concerns about cuts in state taxes and in federal revenue-sharing funds, resulting in dwindling revenues to the township.

"You budget from need and set the budget to provide those services," pointed out Larson. "There is an awful lot of uncertainty about revenue-sharing and the State Equalized Valuation (SEV)."

There is a distinct possibility that Canton will have to pick up the slack," added Supervisor James Poole. "Services aren't getting any cheaper."

Mrs. Bodenmiller said she couldn't support a lowering of the millage because of high inflation and uncertainty about future funding sources.

Gorman said the township can "work around" the millage cuts. He said the fire department budget will be trimmed $47,000 and the general fund pared $34,000.

Gorman said those cuts will come out of contingency funds set aside for emergencies.

"There will be no real cut in services," he added.

Classes help topple language barriers

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Jeannine Laramee of Plymouth Township grew up in the largely French world of Quebec, Canada.

Now that her children are a little older, Mrs. Laramee has time to work on her reading and writing skills in English.

Wing and Macky Cheung, brother and sister, came from Hong Kong to Canton Township about five months ago. Both want to improve their English.

Bhagu Panchal of Canton recently arrived from India. He's has a bachelor of science degree in chemistry; he's friendly and articulate.

But he admits to an obstacle in job-hunting: "(People) think I talk fast. I think they talk fast."

THESE FOUR persons are typical of the persons who currently are enrolled in a Plymouth-Canton school district community education class to teach English skills to foreign-born persons.

Many are newcomers to the United States; others have been in this country for several years.

"We have every (nationality) from soup to nuts," said Carol Rodwell of Canton, who has been teaching the class for the past five years.

The class, held in a portable classroom at Central Middle School in Plymouth, is a mini-United Nations in a one-room schoolhouse setting.

Currently, there are about 10 adults in a morning class and about 16 in an evening session. Both classes meet twice a week for three hours.

MRS. RODWELL smiles, chats and jokes as she goes about her teaching. The current crop of students have been born in Korea, the Philippines, Quebec, Saudi Arabia, Ecuador, Iraq, Pakistan, India, Finland, Taiwan, and others.

"The thing that makes this difficult to teach isn't the language backgrounds," explained Mrs. Rodwell. "It's the skills levels that get you.

"We have everything from people who can't speak their own names to the ones who can read and write but can't speak English well enough to be understood."

The students eventually are separated into groups according to their skills levels. Individual needs are emphasized, and classes are conducted totally in English.

Some students need to learn a list of what Mrs. Rodwell calls "survival" words or phrases ("Where is the bathroom?"). They memorize names, addresses, phone numbers and emergency information such as police and fire.

"Understanding and speaking come first," explained Mrs. Rodwell. "Reading and writing come later."

AT FIRST, Mrs. Rodwell found it difficult to find materials which were

Schools ponder millage bid

Administrators of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are considering a special election this January to ask voter approval of additional operating millage.

The idea of a special election in January has been discussed by the central administration's budget committee and has not yet been reviewed with the school board.

Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, is considering asking the board's approval for a Jan. 21, 1982 special election.

In explaining the budget committee's thinking, Hoedel says: "It was generally felt that the annual June election is too late in the planning stages for an additional millage request."

A strong commitment from the school board in favor of the request must be present, Hoedel stresses, because it will take an all-out effort and strong campaigning to obtain passage of an additional millage request.

The budget committee also feels that voters should be told the cutbacks which would be made if the millage was defeated and the cuts which would come even if the millage passed.

"Persons should know what the school board will have to do in order to balance the budget if the millage is not successful."

Hoedel adds that the school district does not have any current millage which is up for renewal in 1982 and so a request for added millage would be the only school tax proposal to go on the ballot in '82.

AT THE LAST budget committee meeting on Sept. 23, Hoedel reported that the July 1, 1981, fund budget of $1.95 million will be reduced to about $500,000 by June 30, 1982.

One of the reasons for the tightening budget picture, he said, is that Plymouth-Canton Community Schools now is facing the first enrollment decline in its history.

As of Sept. 23, the district had about

Drug arrest nets cocaine, cash

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Police officers from Canton and Livonia are working with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) in a "multi-state" cocaine investigation.

DEA officials, accompanied by the two local police departments, arrested five persons last Wednesday evening at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, said Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart.

Stewart said officers confiscated about three pounds of cocaine and $50,000 in cash from pieces of carry-on luggage.

Arrested and charged with possession with intent to deliver cocaine were Sterling Waiters, 46, of Miami; Emilio Blanco, 27, of Caracas, Venezuela; and Miriam DeVenturo Zarate, 26, of Peru. Stewart said the three had arrived moments earlier on a domestic flight from Miami.

TWO 27-year-old men, one from Canton and the other from Garden City, were arrested and later released, said Stewart.

"This is a very large operation — a multi-state ring," added Lt. Richard Ericson of the Livonia police. He said there may be more arrests. Waiters, Blanco and Zarate appeared before a federal magistrate in Detroit Thursday and later were sent to a federal detention facility in Milan, Mich., in lieu of $150,000 cash bond each.

Jerry Seay, a DEA supervisor, said a preliminary examination in federal court to hear evidence usually takes place within three weeks. Possession with intent to deliver cocaine is a federal offense which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in jail.

Canton and Livonia police have been working with the DEA on the case for at least a month. Stewart, who declined to be more specific, said there have been a couple of trips to Florida during the investigation.

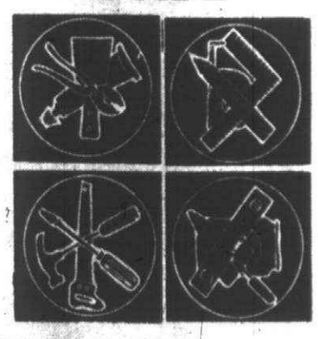

"I was impressed with the cooperation," said Stewart. "This was exceptional, well worth the three or four weeks involvement."

Enough to feed a navy

Resident chef serves 1,300 daily on ship

Terry A. Ward

By Gary Palermo
special writer

As long as amphibious warfare training experts continue trying to develop the "man for all seasons," they will need such men as Petty Officer Third Class Terry A. Ward of Canton to serve aboard the Navy's largest "ship for all reasons" to support their missions.

In response to a world situation which requires a continuing show of U.S. naval presence, Ward (a mess management specialist) recently deployed to the western Pacific with the amphibious transport dock ship USS Ogden.

Operations there tested the ship's ability to transport combat troops to any spot in the world and to support them once ashore.

Ward, 21, is the son of Norma and Robert Ward of Hanford Road, Canton Township.

THE OGDEN was designed to serve functions which formerly required four ships.

She can carry more than 900 combat equipped Marines at speeds of more than 23 mph and use amphibious landing boats and helicopters to put troops on hostile shores.

As one of the ship's cooks, Ward helped provide for the Ogden's crew plus her embarked Marines.

"We had about 900 Marines plus a crew of 425 to serve in each two-hour meal time," he said. "That adds up to about 1,300 people each time. It involved a lot of hours."

Ward mentioned that on some days he worked as long as 14 hours.

During the deployment, which included port calls in Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, Okinawa, Hong Kong, and Korea, Ward considered himself a morale booster.

"We help make things a bit easier when chow's good, everything's warm, the line flows easily and the crew can sit down, relax and have an enjoyable meal."

WARD GRADUATED from Plymouth Salem High School in 1978, where he participated in wrestling, and joined the Navy that same year.

Besides the chance for career enhancement, explained Ward, a family tradition provided him a motive for joining.

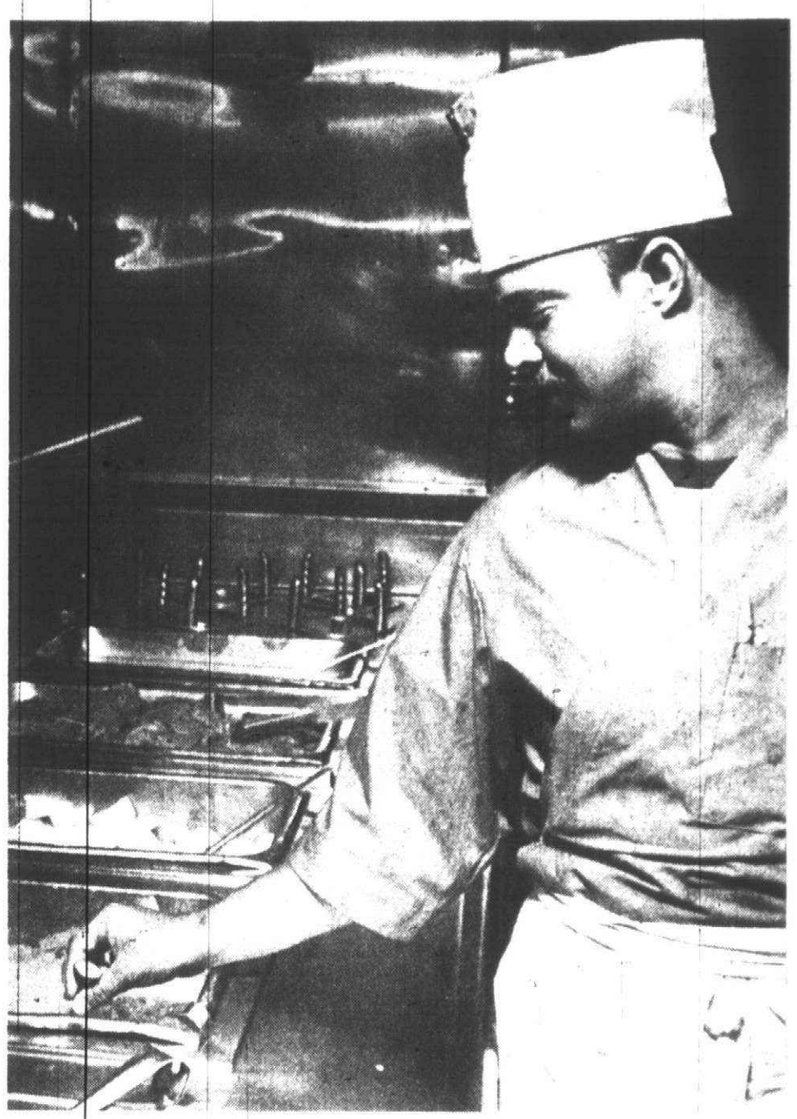

"My father was in the Army for two years and my grandfather died in World War I. So, I felt it was my duty to serve my country.

"Also, I wanted to get my own education. My dad offered to pay my way through college, but I wanted to pay for it myself. So, I went into the Navy."

He qualified as a mess management specialist through the Navy's basic mess management specialist school and recently was selected for advanced training in that field.

"The Navy helped me grow up, to set my values straight, set my goals, and be a little more stringent with myself."

Ward now plans to finish college in pursuit of the culinary arts degree he already has begun.

State men's prison is planned nearby

Plans by the state to build a prison at Five Mile and Beck will be presented to the public at an informational meeting on Oct. 1.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Northville Township Hall at 41600 W. Six Mile.

The state plans to build a 548-bed men's prison on 38 acres of state-owned land bounded by Beck on the east and by Five Mile to the south.

The prison would be largely occupied by medium security prisoners with other facilities for "close custody" and minimum security inmates.

The Michigan Department of Corrections has proposed the facility to increase prison capacity because overcrowding has become a problem in Michigan in recent years.

The regional jail has been planned for some time and is the second of a three-phase project in the area.

The state owns some five acres in the area where the prison would be built.

Formerly the site of the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo), some of the land now is used for the medium security Phoenix Correctional Institution immediately west of the site of the proposed regional prison.

Residents can ask questions and express concerns which will be added to an already prepared environmental impact statement written about the site.

Security for the prison will consist of two 12-foot-high cyclone fences, special razor wire and an electronic detection system.

The projected cost is $35 million, and the prison would employ about 250 people. Estimated construction time is three years.

Wilson's best seller hasn't changed 'boy next door'

By Lynn Orr
editor

BOB WILSON IS an ordinary guy.

He smiles a lot and likes to talk and certainly doesn't look like a writer who vividly portrayed bones crunching and legends brewing in one of the last forests in the Lower Peninsula.

He just turned 30, the same age as his father when he penned a book about World War II. But he doesn't act like a guy who's flirting with fame — writing the screenplay for his best-selling first novel, "Crooked Tree," and collaborating with "Exorcist" director William Friedkin to bring his grandfather's namesake, Axel Michelson, to the screen.

And he has no plans to move to the Hollywood Hills or a New York penthouse. Redford Township suits him fine.

He seems barely touched by every writer's dream — a smashing first novel and the nearly instantaneous return to the best-seller lists with the paperback edition this summer.

IF THERE'S ANY sturm und drang pummeling Wilson's psyche, he reserves it for his imaginative literary efforts.

He likes to golf and play softball, which he does with his former colleagues at the Wayne County Prosecutor's office. He nibbles on cheese crackers when he's not on the Scarsdale diet, and he drinks Stroh's.

He sees a lot of his relatives, his parents who live in northwest Detroit where he grew up, and his in-laws, Ted and Esther Corombos, who live a few streets away in Redford.

There's no sign of new wealth in the '50s tri-level he moved into last October with his bride, Jeanne Corombos, a Redford Union High graduate and research analyst.

There's a pot of marigolds and a worse-for-wear green frog in the yard, a University of Michigan mug next to a wax bear perched on the mantle and a "Welcome to the Mortgage of the Month Club" ashtray on the endtable.

It's the kind of home where Sancho, the couple's doberman, roams freely and flops next to a bean bag chair in front of the console television.

WILSON'S DEN shows the only signs of an author at work.

It's there where he pounds his typewriter, transcribing from yellow tablets filled during excursions up north. He usually writes at his family's cottage in Grayling, where he spent all his summers until he graduated from Catholic Central High. He just returned last week from a few weeks there working on his second novel, another suspense thriller set on a particular piece of Michigan terrain.

"I make a reference to it in 'Crooked Tree,' " is the only hint the author reveals, partly to tantalize prospective readers, partly because Wilson doesn't like talking about a work in progress.

But he's happy to gab about anything else, from the James Bond-type book he wrote in ninth grade to Saturn pictures to why Michigan will always be his home base — "It's green."

A mammoth white pine, its top hooked by the westerly winds, marked the new home of the Ottawas. The tree served as a beacon for Indian canoeists traversing the choppy lake waters in their fragile birch-bark craft. The Ottawas called the area wau-go-naw-ki-sa, "the land of the crooked tree." Like the Anglicized Ottawa name for the area, the crooked tree survived, miraculously preserved from the crosscut saws of the lumberjacks.

ONE MORNING last week he shared breakfast with a doctor who wants to try his hand at fiction, and during this interview he stopped more than once for a phone call from an aspiring writer.

He seems almost grateful to get away from the solitary life of a writer he's pursued since he left the prosector's office earlier this year so his "next book wouldn't take four years."

Despite the many lectures, public relations tours and meeting with writers' groups, "Crooked Tree" remains a favorite topic.

"THE IDEA CAME just a couple days before I took the bar exam," he said. "Any time I have an idea I'll jot it down. It was just one of my ideas, but it came at a good time."

He had just finished law school at Wayne State in June 1976 and had a few months to kill before the bar exam results were scheduled for release in November. He began researching "a reason for taking the bears out of their natural character," a motive for the normally tranquil black bear to attack humans.

He knew nothing about the bearwalk and the Algonquins of the region, but he was familiar with the transmigration of souls into animals. After the research, he secluded himself in Grayling and came back with about 40 or 50 pages. By then he had the bearwalk documented.

It's called the bearwalk because the bear was the most respected of all the animals. It looks so much like man, especially when it walks upright, that the Ottawas consider it their cousin. To inhabit the body of a bear is like the highest sacrament of the art.

"I took liberty," said Wilson, "to the extent that the bearwalk never included a human being," which irritated a few tradionalists among native Americans who believe very strongly in the legend. That surprised Wilson, who's since "gone out of my way to meet with some of the people who feel that way."

BY FEBRUARY, he was working diligently in the prosecutor's office and found little time to write.

"I didn't touch the book for about a year and a half," he said. "You've got characters taking on a life of their own, but you always have to concentrate on exactly what you're doing, while keeping the threads of the story in mind. I couldn't do it by picking it up once a week or once a year."

In 1978 he applied for a leave of absence and finished the first draft that fall with about a week to spare before he was scheduled to be back in court.

Using that time to compile a list of agents, he systematically began mailing them three chapters and chapter summaries. The first agent wasn't interested; the second was but didn't have room for a new client. She suggested another agent, who Wilson decided to try before returning to his list.

Diane Cleaver, a new agent but a 16-year veteran of the publishing business, was enthusiastic. When she wanted to see the whole novel, Wilson told her he only had a rough draft. That was enough. After one look she wanted to send it to publishers.

He wrote his second "draft and a half," as he called it; and began the tour of publishing houses in June 1979.

"As it turned out, they all wanted it," he said. He and Cleaver went with Putnam's and the president took on the line-editing, while Wilson distributed copies to friends and relatives.

LACKING MAJOR changes, the book was sent off, and seven months later the galleys came back for a "weekend review." Two days later, bleary-eyed but determined to get about 150 minor corrections made, he shipped the galleys back to New York to meet an April publication date.

Wilson's agent had the foresight to go over the standard contract to eliminate the usual items such as the 50-50 percentage on the paperback and book club rights and all the foreign and movie clauses.

"The first thing an agent does is cross most of those off," said Wilson.

The rest is first-novel publishing history. Putnam was ready to sign Wilson for a second and third book, but he wasn't ready for that. He's not even sure there will be a third book.

He might go back to law or get more involved in a movie of "Crooked Tree" or try out one of the 101 different things he finds fascinating.

It's clear he doesn't intend to sit around and collect royalties.

"AND THIS whole movie business kind of breaks the monotony of writing, of being a solitary figure all the time. Writing every single day of the rest of my life isn't what I want to do. It's a lonely profession."

He wrote the "Crooked Tree" screenplay last summer for David Gentile, a documentary film director, and Sidney Glazier, a veteran producer. They got a nibble from Friedkin, who had just finished filming the controversial "Cruising," a dark portrait of the seamy gay dock life in New York.

Friedkin scouted locations in Michigan last summer but was lured away by United Artists to film Gay Talese's best-seller "Thy Neighbor's Wife." By that time Wilson was interested enough to form a production company with the original Gentile-Glazier team in the interests of making a quality picture, filming it in Michigan and being fair to the Ottawas.

He wasn't fond of the paperback peek-a-boo cover and hopes the movie will buck the blood-and-gore mainstream.

"It's one thing to read about it, like the canoe business (where two campers face two black bears in the river). It's another thing to portray it visually," Wilson said. "Gory movies take a shortcut to frighten the audience by relying on shock.

"What I don't like is where they focus on the gore, on the gruesomeness of it. That's the only technique they use to scare people."

But he also admits that some white-knuckle scenes from the book may be hard to bloodlessly portray.

Slowly he opened his eyes and stared at the crumpled fabric in his hands. There was something wrapped inside. Something pliable. He delicately pulled the corner of the handkerchief. His eyes reluctantly peered into the unwrapping cloth. He felt he was intruding, intruding in someone's privacy, prying into a personal tragedy. The stained handkerchief crinkled crisply as it opened.

"I hadn't thought about that one," Wilson said.

'And this whole movie business kind of breaks the monotony of writing, of being a solitary figure all the time. Writing every single day of the rest of my life isn't what I want to do. It's a lonely profession.'

— Bob Wilson

Parents can help children read

By Jeanne Whittaker
staff writer

Dr. Linda M. Clinard, a former reading specialist at Ericksson Elementary School, is a reading consultant who makes her career sound more like an avocation than work.

A woman who has her doctorate in curriculum and instruction, the dark-haired Farmington resident is a graduate reading lecturer and consultant through the Michigan State University extension program located at the Birmingham Center for Continuing Education.

When she talks about good reading habits for young children, Clinard is animated and frequently apologizes for speaking too fast and too much. There is reverence in the way she holds a book.

These days, however, Clinard is handling a different sort of book than ones usually associated with children's reading. This one, titled "The Reading Triangle," is her own work. It presents, she said, her philosophy that parents, children and teachers working together can help Johnnie and Janie be successful readers, whether they are infants or into their teenage years.

The book, she said, contains ideas, examples, experiences and problem solutions she has gathered during hundreds of conversations and consultations with parents who are concerned about their children's reading abilities, with teachers of students with reading difficulties, and the children themselves.

Clinard added that the book has been purposely held to under 150 pages, and its price to $5.95 so that it won't intimidate people she wants to reach with her information.

"It was the beginning of what was supposed to be a far larger book of 400-500 pages," she said. "But, I realized parents wouldn't be able to afford it or have the time to read it. I have enough material left over for 10 more books."

The material she selected for inclusion, she said, was chosen, "because I wanted people to realize that this reading thing is complex, but it is also understandable."

CLINARD SAID that her interest in children with reading problems developed almost by accident. While teaching a fifth-grade class on Okinawa during the height of the Viet Nam conflict, she said she volunteered to teach the school's low-level readers.

"I was the only one who volunteered, so I became the school's reading specialist. You can visualize the problems these children had. They came from schools all over the globe. Each one had his own problems. I wanted those kids to succeed. That's where it all began."

Clinard said that she became so excited by what she was able to accomplish during that year on Okinawa that she decided to pursue the subject further in graduate school.

After completing the master's degree program in reading education at Indiana University, she enrolled in the doctoral program at the University of Michigan from which she received a degree in curriculum and instruction.

Since then, she said, she has taught in the Farmington Public Schools and now in Birmingham. The birth of two children forced her to curtail her professional activities, so she said she decided to use her time writing a book to help parents, teachers and children work together to master the child's difficulties with reading.

"This book evolved out of the years of experience I have had in my work," she said. "The book is separated into two parts. The first part tells parents how reading goes together and cannot be separated from the rest of the child's development. In it I tell a lot of stories about children and parents, and I include practical illustrations for applying these concepts."

The second half of the book, she said, provides guidelines to parent, teacher and child that will help identify the specific problem and the child to succeed in reading.

Parents and teachers who are interested in obtaining "The Reading Triangle" will find it at a number of area bookstores, including the Birmingham Bookstore, iBrowse in West Bloomfield, The Children's Bookshop in Southfield, the Plymouth Book World, All for Learning in West Bloomfield, The Little Professor in Livonia Mall and Children's Bookmark stores at Oakland, Twelve Oaks, Lakeside and Fairlane malls.

Copies are also available at the M.S.U.-Birmingham Center in the Birmingham Center for Continuing Education, or by writing to The Reading Triangle, P.O. Box 2862, Farmington Hills 48018.

The author will also be available for questions and to discuss the book during an autograph party on Sept. 26 at the Children's Bookshop, Applegate Square, Southfield.

Schools eye millage bid

400 fewer students than it did a year ago. The income prediction in the budget on state aid, he explained, was based on a "break-even" enrollment of 17,300 students.

If the official student count ends up to be 16,900, said Hoedel, the district will receive about $800,000 less in state aid than was budgeted.

The administration now anticipates two executive order cutbacks in state funding for schools from the governor. The first state cutback deducted from October's state aid payment is expected to be $171,604. The amount of the next cutback order is not yet known.

One bright spot in the current budget is higher interest earnings than budgeted. Earlier the district borrowed some $14.5 million in tax anticipation notes and had budgeted $1,080,000 interest earnings from investing parts of that note until needed. With the higher rates in the market, the district instead will earn $1,291,000, or about $211,000 more than budgeted.

Right now the district is over-staffed by about 8 to 10 positions, Hoedel added, because of problems of guessing the number of people moving in and out of the district to arrive at an accurate headcount for budgeting reasons.

THE CENTRAL administrative cabinet is beginning to discuss the idea of placing a budget freeze on the 1981-82 school year funds.

For the coming fiscal year ('82-83), Hoedel said, the budget committee will attempt to generate a potential list of cutbacks for ranking and prioritizing of about $5 million.

Hoedel suggested that if additonal millage were approved, the actual cutbacks necessary for the coming fiscal year would be $2 to $4 million, depending on the amount of the added millage and other factors.

No decision has been reached yet by the budget committee on how much added millage to request. The committee hopes to recommend the amount of millage to be asked for by the Nov. 23 board meeting.

Without added millage, Hoedel belives it will be necessary next year to reduce the hours of instruction down to the state minimum of 900 hours.

Polished skills topple language obstacles basic but not too juvenile — stuff which she describes as "cutesy — bunny rabbits with bow ties." Students use tape cassettes and several books which are written in basic English. They practice pronunciation and learn about vowels, consonants and personal pronouns.

David Dursum, assistant director of community education for the school district, said the program fills a small but definite need. He sees the classes as a "community service."

The school district relies on word-of-mouth advertising, because many potential students don't read English-with ease. In addition, pamphlets are placed in ethnic restaurants.

According to Dursum, the program has serviced about 125 adult students over the past five years. A program organized last year for children grades K-12 has helped about 70 youth.

HIGH SCHOOL students currently may take the class as an alternative to a regular English class. Tutoring for other grade levels is on hold because of funding cutbacks.

Currently, school officials are lobbying with State Rep. Thomas Brown, D-Westland, for assistance in obtaining renewal of a state grant to pay for the K-12 tutoring program, said Dursum.

Last year, the school district received a grant of $16,000 from the state under a special bi-lingual program, explained Dursum. However, he said increasing emphasis is being placed on areas with "pockets" of ethnic populations, he added.

"THIS IS disturbing to me," said Dursum. "We don't have enough of any particular nationality to hire a bilingual teacher or aides. We do have people out there who need our services."

Linda Minsterman of Canton is one person who thinks the program should be retained. She and her husband, Alan, adopted three Korean-born sisters who knew no English when they arrived in Canton in early July.

Board taps administrators

Wayne-Westland schools

The district serves southeast Canton.

Wayne-Westland board members recently approved four administrative appointments in the district.

Two of the appointments involve moving teachers into the district's assistant principal intern program, a training program used to help promote staff from within the district.

Under that program, Wayne Memorial teacher Marie Pleuss becomes an assistant principal at that high school and Donald Chastain becomes an assistant principal at Adams Junior High.

The board also named Paul Poledink, who has served various functions in the district since 1974, as director of the special projects department.

Robert Schultz, formerly director of accounting at Eastern Michigan University, has been named comptroller for the district. An Ypsilanti resident, he has a bachelor's degree in business administration from EMU.

Poledink is working on a degree as an educational specialist in administration and supervision at Wayne State University. He also has bachelor's and master's degrees in English from the University of Detroit. Poledink previously taught English at John Glenn High and coordinated several projects in the curriculum department.

Mrs. Pleuss has taught business education in the district since 1966. She has bachelor's and master's degrees from Eastern Michigan University.

Chastain has been a history teacher in the district since 1974. He received a bachelor's from Michigan State University and a master's in counseling from Eastern Michigan University.

Rising above the facts, it's Blanchard by a mile

Tim Richard

Sometimes you just stumble across life's most important lessons. As a young city hall reporter on an outstate daily paper, I was headed out the door for lunch one noon when I passed the state editor having an argument over the phone.

The state editor deals with what we call "country correspondents" in such towns as Otsego, Paw Paw and Gobles. One particular correspondent was phoning in a city council meeting story. The state editor could be overheard saying, "No, no, stick to the facts. We can't print that, stick to the facts."

Blanchard

After hanging up, the state editor turned to me and sighed:

"Tim, I've told the readers more damned lies by sticking to the facts."

THE TRUTH is probably that U.S. Rep. James Blanchard of Pleasant Ridge will sew up the Democratic nomination for governor in 1982.

It appears that the party leaders and money sources will get in line behind him. He will have to work for the nomination, but his primary victory — if indeed he still has any oppositon by then — will be decisive.

That seems to be the truth. It is not, however, a fact. There is no set of news sources any reporter can call, get a firm answer from, and quote. It shouldn't be reported in the news columns but is all right in an opinion piece. Jim Blanchard at the moment is the ordained one.

This kind of thing has happened before.

In 1975, the UAW and some informal party leaders spotted a state representative who had been elected to a state senator and began grooming him for governor for 1978. They gave Bill Fitzgerald a nice platform as Senate majority leader.

Things didn't work out, however. Senate Democrats dumped Fitzgerald as their leader after two years. But that didn't stop the money sources and the informal party leaders from pursuing the promotion of Fitzgerald as governor.

I covered a couple of panels of the primary candidates — Fitzgerald, Zolton Ferency, Sen. Patrick McCollough, Public Service Commissioner William Ralls and Oakland Sheriff Johannes Spreen. Listening to Fitzgerald, a lot of Democrats in the audience shook their heads. The guy just wasn't bright.

Yet it was well known Fitzgerald had the money and would be the nominee. And in the primary, the ordained candidate collected 240,000 of the 605,000 votes cast, winning the right to be gunned down by Bill Milliken the ensuing November.

BUT LET US not stretch the similarity of Fitzgerald and Blanchard too far.

I heard a lot about Blanchard before talking to him. The 18th District congressman has won deep respect in his party that is difficult to express in words. Politics aside, my own impression is that he is smart, enjoys zinger-type jokes and has no pomposity about him. Politics aside, some women swoon over him.

In other words, if he is the ordained one, then the Democrats in 1982 will be in better shape than in 1978.

Five members of the Michigan Senate, which is coming to be known as the House of Governors because it is spawning so many candidates, may have other impressions. David Plawecki of Dearborn Heights, Kerry Kammer of Pontiac, Gary Corbin of Clio, Ed Pierce of Ann Arbor and William Faust of Westland are interested in the big job. So are Ingham County Commissioner Zolton Ferency and Shiawassee County Drain Commissioner Robert Tisch.

Well, it's a free country, and they are entitled to run for the Democratic nomination for governor. But I have a hunch one or more are thinking of cutting a deal with Jim Blanchard to be his running mate as lieutenant governor.

And that, to the best of my knowledge, is the truth.

As the nation goes, so goes marriage

Bob Wisler

I couldn't help wondering the other day how well marriages would work if the principals conducted their family affairs as the government conducts its domestic and foreign affairs.

I mean I can see some value in adopting the Reagan posture. When the wife asks for some help in getting things out of the car, the husband can lean back, put a big smile on his face and say, "Really dear, for your own good, I'm going to have cut out all this help. It merely maintains a plateau of failure. You can't learn to help yourself, if you make yourself dependent on the government, er me, all the time."

"Perhaps you can get some help from the volunteer fire department. That's the American Way," the husband could say.

I talked this over with friends Stan and Jerry the next day at lunch.

Jerry said that, in fact, he had for years been operating on the basis that a maintaining a marriage is like conducting the affairs of government.

"You must be very clear about what is in your own national interest and realize that anyone who doesn't recognize your interests must by considered a potential enemy who will be cut off from aid, trade and protection."

His own policy, he said, is patterned after John Foster Dulles' policy as secretary of state under Eisenhower.

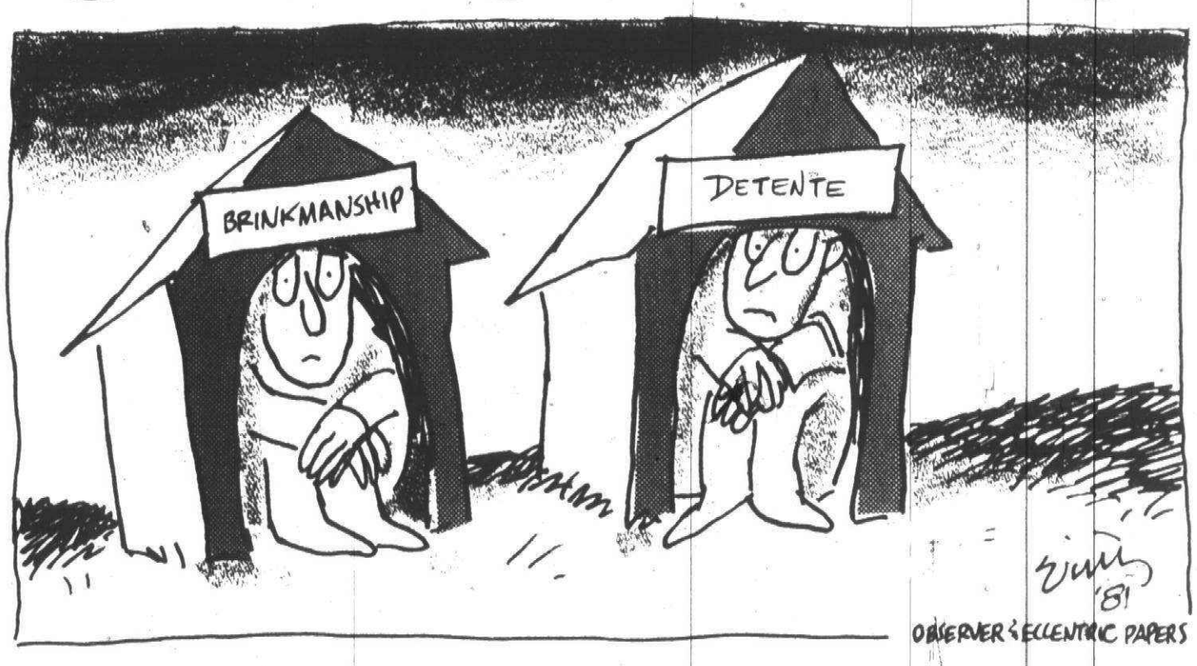

"I'm a firm believer in massive retaliation and brinkmanship," said Jerry. "The way to win at marraige is to take the offensive to show 'em who's got the big bombs.

"Like if I stay out one night with the boys, I don't wait until things escalate. I start defensive bombing. I immediately go home and start yelling about the way the joint looks, what kind of food's in the ice box, the laundry gap, deficit spending and whatever else I can find to complain about."

"If I get any lip, I start talking about cutting off all domestic aid," Jerry said.

"After a few days of brinkmanship, where we each are threatening to go to the lawyers, things start cooling down," he said. In this way Jerry protects his territorial imperatives, he said.

"If you don't maintain your territorial integrity, the wife will start chipping away at your privileges, and one will go and then they'll all fall, just like dominoes."

Stan, who is considered a weak-kneed jellyfish by Jerry, said he doubted the validity of the domino theory.

"I'm a believer in negotiations to attain peaceful coexistence," he said. "I think detente is worth achieving."

Stan said he and his wife send each other signals the same way the state department sends signals to foreign nations. "If I don't like the kind of dinners we have been having, for example, I send her a signal that she can interpret as meaning some dissatisfaction," he said.

"If detente is so great, how come you can't go out with the boys on Friday nights anymore," butted in Jerry.

"It's not that I can't — we negotiated a settlement in our disarmament talks," Stan said. "I gave up my high-level flying and getting bombed Friday nights and she gave up attacking me Saturdays and Sundays."

"She brought you to your knees," said Jerry.

"I call it peace with honor," said Stan.

"Both approaches sound interesting," I said, "but does either really work?"

"To tell the truth," said Jerry, "the wife recently filed papers and I had my lawyer file papers too. The only thing is, my lawyer tells me that if things keep going like this, I'll be lucky to be able to visit the dog every third weekend, let alone see my house or kids.

"I'm thinking of an agonizing reappraisal of the situation."

"And how about you, Stan?"

"Well," he said, "I think somehow I'm missing the boat. The wife just got a new sports car and I can't afford to drive — I'm taking the SEMTA to work."

"What really bugs me, though, is her wardrobe. All of her paycheck and half of mine are paying off the charges. Yesterday, she came in telling me she had to have a new punk-posh wardrobe which involves buying pre-ripped T-shirts. My charges are so high, I can't see the light at the end of the tunnel."

As the luncheon ended Stan was asking Jerry how to conduct a policy of defoliation of a wardrobe.

Maybe it's not too good of an idea to conduct marital business the way we conduct our national business. I don't know if we can live through it.

Nancy Walls Smith

Soaps? Who me? Maybe sometimes

Garth died last week, and I didn't even know that he was sick.

For that matter, I don't even know what he died of. Maybe he was stabbed or something.

That's the trouble with soap operas. If you miss one week, something interesting always happens. But if you manage to watch them every day, it seems like you just hear the same conversations over and over and over again.

On each soap opera there seems to be at least 100 main characters. And every time something happens to one of them, we get to see each of the others (in sets of twos) sitting around, walking around or driving around — discussing this momentous event and how they feel about it.

Their feelings may vary from rage to envy or from compassion to grief.

Mine tend toward boredom.

IF I HEAR one more pained discussion about why evil John Dickson won't give wimpering Dee a divorce, I think I'll gag.

Actually, I know that the soaps aren't meant to be watched all that thoroughly, and that's exactly how I watch them — out of the corner of my eye. Those programmers know what they're doing.

We housewives are busy ladies. We seldom have time to sit down and watch a movie straight through during the day. (The last time I did that was in 1974 when I was pregnant with my first child).

The programmers developed an ingenious form of entertainment that only requires about one-fourth of your attention and the minimum daily requirement of thought.

And these soaps are addictive — that's the insidious part.

Two years ago a friend explained a few of the basic plots on "The Young and The Restless." Because it came on right after "The Price Is Right" (which also must be taken in small doses), I found myself getting involved in the storyline.

I WAS surprised, and maybe even a little ashamed of myself, because I had always been one of those snooty people who groaned disdainfully whenever the subject of soap operas came up. But I figured if I kept my viewing down to half an hour a day, I could keep my new vice a secret.

Then the network pulled a dirty trick. They extended "The Young and The Restless" to an hour. Not only that, but because I leave the TV set on for most of the day, I found I was getting involved in the plot of "As The World Turns." Lisa Coleman was staying at a very spooky inn. It was fascinating.

So today I'm hooked on "The Young and The Restless," and "As The World Turns," getting involved in "Search for Tomorrow," and developing a mild interest in "The Guiding Light."

There's obviously no hope for me now.

I've heard that "General Hospital" and "Ryan's Hope" are much better shows. And sometimes I get so fed up with the ones that I am watching that I need a barf bag.

But if I change channels and loyalities, that means I'll have to get acquainted with about 200 new characters whose backgrounds I know nothing about.

It's taken me two years to get this far. The prospect of starting all over again boggles the mind.

I'll just continue on with my old friends, the rich and wrinkled Mrs. Chancellor, the evil and dashing James Stenbeck, the memory of the late Garth, and overly-freckled, sweetie pie, Morgan.

By the way, if anybody in the world knows whatever happened to Derek Thurston, please write me in care of this newspaper. (Why isn't he married to Mrs. Chancellor anymore? The man just virtually disappeared)

I'd appreciate it — a woman needs to know these things!

Carrying the community torch

Shirlee Iden

Long before presidents invented "safety nets," societies looked after their poor and provided services that individuals couldn't obtain for themselves.

Whether you call it being your brother's keeper, a good neighbor or a bleeding heart, private giving has long been the American way.

The concept of united giving is newer. There are those among us who can still remember the multitude of appeals that once were visited on citizens each year.

Now it's streamlined. A donation to the United Foundation Torch Drive is funneled into channels that branch out and help about 150 agencies of all kinds.

Take children for instance.

Life just isn't fair. This year's torchlighters for the drive, just 4 years old, are a pair of bubbly, blond-haired twins with a problem.

The girls have cystic fibrosis, a genetic disease that affects the lungs, clogging them with a thick mucus that makes breathing difficult. The disease also affects digestion.

IF KRISTIE and Kimberly Pearce had been born more than a decade ago, they probably would not be alive today. Until 1969, most children born with cystic fibrosis died before age 5. Today the life span has been lengthened to about 21 years.

To enjoy these added years, the twins have to be regularly checked and daily medicated, something children so young should not be bothered about.

Torch Fund dollars work at Children's Hospital of Michigan every day. Cystic Fibrosis is just one of a litany of cruel ailments that afflict children and are treated at the hospital. Of course, people of every age encounter sickness and accidents that require extraordinary care. Often Torch Drive dollars and equipment are the answer.

Torch Fund dollars pay for services to physically and mentally handicapped persons and assist with social problems as well.

Scouting programs, senior citizens programs, recreation are provided by the pennies and dollars raised.

A little green and white booklet, printed by the United Foundation, is a primer for help for victims of domestic violence.

BATTERED SPOUSES and their offspring can start with a counselor who will speak to them on the phone at any time of day or night and be directed to the proper place for help.

Agencies such as Common Ground, Oakland Crisis Center, Women's Survival Center and the Rape Counseling Center, all United Foundation affiliated, are listed.

Emergency shelter for those with no safe place to go, counseling for the problem drinker, and help for the hungry are just a few needs torch fund dollars can help to meet.

All this from one slim booklet published with UF monies.

A few weeks ago, many of us pitched in and helped the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon, in an effort just short of miraculous.

Despite swollen unemployment rolls and the critical state of the economy in our area, more than $2 million was raised, nearly equaling the record-breaking dollar amounts of previous years.

Now they're here again. People who want your money when you're hurting financially already.

This time it's not for one group of neuro-muscular diseases, but for many causes. Carrying the community torch is the way to be your brother's keeper, and your sister's, and your parents' as well. It's the kind of giving that only hurts for a minute and leaves a happy afterglow.

● After a number of Birmingham residents reported sighting four erie red lights Aug. 15 and 20, the Birmingham Eccentric asked whether area residents believed in the existence of UFOs (unidentified flying objects).

Of the 25 persons who responded, 18 said they believed in UFOs and 16 said they had actually seen UFOs. One woman said the UFO she saw years back was "surrounded by red, green, blue lights. Its charcoal gray metallic body was dark against the night sky. It had a tower that looked like a lookout station and receded as the vehicle accelerated its speed."

No truth to the rumor the object was an American car before the car companies started downsizing.

● Detroit Edison has mailed out notices to its customers informing them the utility will discontinue fixing portable appliances. The company says fewer people are bringing appliances in for repair since the cost of repair is often higher than the cost of buying a new portable appliance.

It's a trend that we've noticed in manufacturing circles. The next thing, it will be cheaper to buy new washing machines, TVs, etc. than to repair them. A yearly car repair and maintenance bill could become more costly than the car payments.

Tisch urges a time limit for lawmaking sessions

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Radical? Bob Tisch?

The enemy of state government and property taxes said "there's nothing drastic at all" about his proposal for a part-time legislature, "'cept they're supposed to work."

Making a conscious effort to limit the number of times he says "damn" when talking about Lansing, the new Tisch and fellow tax-cut advocate Dick Jacobs distributed petition forms for their two drives Thursday in Westland.

They spoke to 75 people attracted to a Libertarian Party meeting, raising the question of whether the Libertarians would also support Tisch if he runs for governor.

NOT LIKELY, said Ben Bachrach, Libertarian state secretary.

"We would encourage our members to work to put the proposals on the ballot. He's for limited government. He's moving in the right direction," said Bachrach. "But he's not a Libertarian."

The Libertarians are to convene in May to nominate their gubernatorial candidate while Democrats, as a major party, would nominate at the polls in August. Thus, he said, if Tisch lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, it apparently would be impossible for him to turn to the Libertarians for a nomination.

Libertarians are fond of quoting Thomas Jefferson. They sound like conservative Republicans when talking economics and like liberal Democrats when talking civil rights.

EARLIER LAST week, Tisch told a reporter almost casually he would run for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"I made that announcement because I thought Congressman (James) Blanchard would become a pawn of you-know-what," he said Thursday.

Tisch, whose two tax-cut proposals have been defeated and who almost lost his 1980 re-election bid as Shiawassee County drain commissioner, said he's looking for a top economist to be his running mate.

"The lieutenant governor can be the director of the department of commerce, asking and seeking employers to come to Michigan, including tourism. In Indiana it works awfully well," he said, adding:

"Let's get a lieutenant governor who's a salesman — not one who just looks pretty on television."

The latest Tisch proposal grew out of the state Republican and Democratic leadership's Proposal A, which voters on May 19 rejected by a 70-30 margin. Tisch and Jacobs had opposed it because it called for a sales tax increase to partly offset a property tax cut.

UNDER TISCH III, if it gets on the 1982 ballot and is approved by voters, the Michigan Constitution would be amended to:

Robert Tisch limits his "damns"

- Require the Michigan Legislature to get its job done in 90 working days, or by the third week in May, rather than allowing it to meet all year. "They used to get the budget passed by April." They could meet longer only at their own expense.
- Allow legislators' to return to their private jobs at session's end by giving their employers five days notice. "It would be like service in the National Guard," said Tisch, responding to criticism that only the well-to-do could afford to be state legislators.
- Pay legislators $100 a day "only for the days they show up. We've been up there and seen only 30 or 40 of the 110 (representatives) on the floor conducting business. . . . If they show up 80 percent of the time, they'd get $90 a week for the rest of the year." Top possible pay: $14,430, or $2,000 more than the U.S. average.
- Permit the governor to reconvene the legislature for an extraordinary session of up to 30 days. Lawmaking would be limited to the purposes for which the session was convened.
- Cut 40 percent of legislators' operating expenses. He put the legislature's own operating costsat $165,000 per representative and $350,000 per senator. Tisch cited radio tapes, TV film clips and newspaper columns which legislators send to their local media. "We have a career legislature who tells us how damn wonderful they are and how they would get better if we paid 'em more, and they don't get better, they get worse."
- Prohibit former state officials from serving on the State Officers Compensation Commission and limit top officials' pay hikes to 7 percent a year.

Under coaching by public relations man Bill McMaster, Tisch has sought to limit himself to 12 "damns" when talking about Lansing and actually used 10.

JACOBS, A soft-spoken manufacturers representative from Grand Blanc, was executive director of the Tisch II tax cut plan in 1980.

His tax cut plan would reduce revenues by $1.2 billion to "those devils in Lansing" — an 11 percent cut from a $10 billion state budget — and would protect spending on education at the expense of social services.

Eliminated entirely would be the single business tax, which in the mid-1970s replaced seven business taxes, including the corporate income tax, financial institutions income tax, corporate franchise fee and personal property (machinery) tax.

Jacobs' plan would roll back the personal income tax rate from 4.6 to 4 percent, a reduction of 15 percent, and raise exemptions.

AN UNUSUAL feature of the Jacobs plan, compared to the Headlee and Tisch plans, is that it would limit growth of such government fees as tuition, licenses and user fees.

Jacobs blistered University of Michigan regents for raising UM-Dearborn campus tuition 22 percent and Michigan State University trustees for raising theirs 12 percent.

Easy yet elegant entertaining

THE EASY MODE of summer living takes on a new zest with the brisk, crisp days of fall and winter, and entertaining becomes more elegant. This dinner was designed to keep the best of both seasons — the ease and the elegance.

Teamed with easy-to-do rotisserie duckling are dishes made from the ingredients on the pantry shelf. The rice pilaf combines packaged rice and some well-chosen herbs and broth, tossed with shredded Monterey Jack cheese. Frosty salad toss, canned cling peaches tossed with crisp greens, is served with blue cheese frosty salad dressing, and dessert is a fast version of a fruit cobbler. Versatile fruit cocktail is topped with quick biscuits to make an elegant fruit cobbler that can wait, and all of this can be prepared while the duckling turns on the rotisserie.

Conveniently available in supermarket freezers, duckling is elegant and certainly easy when roasted in this fashion. With the open hearth broiler/rotisserie, the duckling is salf-basting, the drippings drain off and there's no smoke or spatter. Only the aroma escapes. The shelves of the same supermarkets are stocked with a plentiful supply of cling peaches canned as halves or slices, and there's an economical variety of sizes to meet individual needs, as there is for fruit cocktail.

There's no waste with such a wide range from which to choose, and preparation time is at a minimum.

ROTISSERIE DUCKLING

1 (4 to 6 pound) duckling, defrosted
1-1/2 tablespoons seasoned salt
1-1/2 teaspoons ground thyme
1-1/2 teaspoons rosemary leaves, crushed
Dash pepper
6 sprigs parsley
1 onion, cut in half

Preheat open hearth broiler/rotisserie. Mix together salt, thyme, rosemary and pepper. Sprinkle half of mixture in duckling cavity, then add parsley and onion. Insert spit through duckling so that both pronged forks are tightly inserted; tighten screws. Balance duckling on spit, tie legs together and make sure string holds neck firmly to back and wings to body. Place spit on spit supports. Adjust supports so duckling is as close as possible to heating element without touching it. Attach motor and turn on. Rub remaining salt mixture over skin of duckling. Roast about 2-1/2 hours or until drumstick is fork-tender. Makes 4 servings.

Note: To cook 2 (3-1/2 to 4 lb.) ducklings double ingredients. Place ducklings on spit so legs of first duckling overlap onto breast of second duckling and vice versa. The ducklings can be no longer than 12 inches. Tie them to spit securely. Cook 2-1/2 to 3 hours or until done. The last 15 to 30 minutes of cooking, prick duckling around thighs to make sure all drippings have been released. Makes 8 servings.

FROSTY SALAD TOSS

1 can (29 ounce) cling peach slices
1 bunch (about 1 pound) spinach
1 head Romaine lettuce
2 heads Bibb or butter lettuce
Frosty Salad Dressing

Drain peach slices, saving syrup. Refrigerate. Wash spinach leaves and remove from stems. Wash lettuce and tear into bite size pieces. Refrigerate until serving time, then toss salad greens and peach slices with Frosty Salad Dressing in chilled bowl. Makes 8 servings.

FROSTY SALAD DRESSING

1/2 pint dairy sour cream
1/3 cup blue cheese
1 tablespoon crumbled bacon bits
4 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup peach syrup

Combine all ingredients in bowl or jar and mix well. Chill.

RICE PILAF

6 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (8 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 cup uncooked rice, not instant
2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
1 large tomato, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

In 10-1/2-inch fry pan melt 4 tablespoons of the butter over medium heat. Saute onion and mushrooms for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove onion and mushroom mixture to bowl. To fry pan add remaining 2 tablespoons butter and melt over medium heat. Add rice and cook until lightly browned, stirring occasionally, 5 to 10 minutes. Add onion mixture, chicken broth and salt; continue cooking, covered, for 12 minutes. Remove cover; stir in tomato, green pepper and cheese and cook about 10 minutes longer or until rice is tender. Makes 8 servings.

QUICKIE FRUIT COBBLER

1 can (30 ounce) fruit cocktail
1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
1/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
4 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
12 unbaked biscuits
Sour cream
Melted butter
Whipped cream

Drain fruit cocktail syrup into saucepan. Add brown sugar, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; bring to boil. Combine cornstarch with water; stir into boiling syrup with lemon juice. Cook, stirring until thickened; add fruit cocktail. Heat through. Cut 12 biscuits from prepared biscuit mix using sour cream in place of milk. Turn fruit cocktail mixture into 9-inch baking pan. Dip biscuits in melted butter and place on top of fruit mixture. Bake in 425 degree F. oven 12 to 15 minutes until biscuits are done. Serve with whipped cream.
Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Wholesome sailing with beef and squash

Individual meat loaves are cooked in boats of acorn squash.

IF YOU'VE been anchored down to the same budget-stretching ground beef recipes, a dining adventure awaits with beef-stuffed squash boats. They are a beef and vegetable combo that is easy to prepare and sure to satisfy.

Riding in the squash boats is a meatloaf mixture that's flavored with chopped onion, chopped green pepper, ketchup and a hint of dill weed. The beef is mounded in acorn squash halves that have been precooked. Near the end of the cooking time, the meat is brushed with ketchup to give it a nice glaze and extra flavor boost. The recipe features two preparation methods — conventional and microwave.

While helping to keep the food budget in line and adding variety to menu plans, this novel entree also contributes valuable nutrients to the family's diet. Ground beef, although economical, provides the same nutrients found in more costly meat cuts. Its protein is very important for it is complete; that is, it contains all the essential amino acids needed by the body every day to build, maintain and repair tissue and resist infection and disease.

BEEF-STUFFED SQUASH BOATS
1 pound ground beef
2 small acorn squash
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dill weed
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 small onion, chopped
⅓ teaspoon cup chopped green pepper
⅓ cup soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoon ketchup

Cut squash in half lengthwise, remove seeds and stringy portions and parboil in boiling salted water 12 to 15 minutes. Remove squash and invert to drain. Sprinkle salt, dill weed and pepper over ground beef. Add onion, green pepper crumbs and 2 tablespoons ketchup, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Divide meat mixture into 4 equal portions.

Pierce pulp of each squash boat several times. Place one portion of meat mixture in each squash half. Place on rack in roasting pan and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 45 minutes. Brush remaining ketchup over ground beef and continue baking 5 minutes or until meat and squash are done. Serves 4.

Microwave directions: Place squash, cut side down, in microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave at high 10 minutes rotating dish ½ turn after 5 minutes. Turn squash cut side up; fill with meat mixture. Cover with waxed paper and microwave at medium (325 watts) 10 minutes, rotating dish ¼ turn after 5 minutes. Rotate squash, placing center portion of each to outside of dish; rotate dish ¼ turn. Continue cooking at medium, covered, 5 minutes. Brush ketchup over top; continue cooking 3 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Dipping for pleasure

There's nothing like a cool after-dinner dip to make a party a success.

Particularly enticing is a dessert tray of blushing, red fresh nectarines and ripe, juicy Bartlett pears circled around a mix of cream cheese, blue cheese and citrus peel. Add a saucer of mixed sliced almonds, flaked coconut and sesame seeds. Then, let your guests dip the succulent fresh fruits into the cheese mix — coat with the nut mix and revel in the praise you receive for a simple, healthful yet scrumptious summertime dessert.

BLUE CHEESE DIP WITH PEARS AND NECTARINES
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
3 tbsp. blue cheese
1½ tsp. grated orange peel
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup milk
Tropical Mix
Fresh Bartlett pears
Fresh nectarines

Combine cheeses in a small mixing bowl and soften. Add peels and salt. Gradually blend in milk, mixing until smooth. Turn into a serving bowl and top with a sprinkling of additional orange peel, if desired. Turn Tropical Mix into a serving bowl. Cut pears and nectarines into wedges and arrange on a tray with the bowl of dip so guests may dip fruits first in cheese dip, then in Tropical Mix. Cheese dip makes 1⅓ cups.

Tropical Mix: Combine ½ cup flaked or shredded coconut, ½ cup sliced almonds and 2 tablespoons sesame seeds in a shallow baking pan. Toast in hot oven (400-degrees) about 5 minutes until lightly browned. Makes 1 cup.

Rise and shine?

It's September. It's the morning after.

The alarm goes off and the sun you haven't seen for what seems like months has again skipped town for the shores off Monterey.

It's a day when pancakes and sausage or brunch with Bach would only aggravate an already grating situation.

What's for breakfast? Try this:

½ cup orange or other fruit juice
(freshly squeezed preferred but optional)
½ cup tonic water
1 raw egg
1 tsp. honey

Mix in blender until frothy. Drink down. Go back to bed.

'There is no excuse for a husband not to fix a meal'

Bill Ross

THE ROLE of the husband as a kitchen helper has progressed from dishwasher to a full-fledged partner in the cooking process. More and more husbands today are finding it both necessary and enjoyable to help with the preparation of family meals.

This is partly a reflection of the changing role of the working woman. Increasing numbers of wives are entering the job market as full-time wage earners. This obviously leaves the job of keeping house one that must be divided between spouses if it is to get done at all.

In my case, I help with meal preparation because of several factors. For the first seven years of our marriage, Kathe worked full-time as a dental hygienist. She often worked late hours, making it necessary for me to at least start the evening meal. This presented no problem because I enjoy cooking almost as much as I enjoy eating.

My enjoyment of cooking duties most likely stems from my early childhood. I can vividly remember sitting on the kitchen countertop watching my mother prepare the family supper. The smells and sounds of my mother's tiny kitchen are forever etched in my senses.

Mom worked "by ear," almost never using a recipe. She would just throw the dishes together, and they invariably would have the same great taste time after time. She still amazes me with the zest and enthusiasm she has for cooking a great meal for a large family group. She seems to thrive on it. I guess some of that enthusiasm rubbed off on me because I also get excited about cooking for a group of people.

Many of my male friends are awed that I would ever attempt to make spaghetti for a group of 25 people. "How do you do it?" they ask. "Where did you learn?" These are all men with college educations.

My pat response has always been: "If you can read and follow simple directions, then you can cook a delicious meal easily." There are so many excellent cookbooks on the market today for the working couple that there is no real excuse for a husband not to be able to fix a presentable meal.

My cooking skills were sharpened by many hours of practice during college. In my last years of schooling, I lived in apartments with as many as four roommates. All of them eagerly took advantage of my interest in cooking, and I always was unanimously voted resident chef. I agreed as long as my "contract" stipulated no dishwashing.

I can think of numerous anecdotes resulting from these years of cooking for the guys, many of which I will share in future columns.

I still believe that one of the reasons Kathe married me was because she knew I could cook. One of our first dates was a lasagne dinner I cooked for her birthday. She kept asking where I was hiding the little Italian grandma who did the cooking.

I kid Kathe that she decided to marry me after that lasagne dinner, but I am not kidding when I say that sharing the kitchen chores has probably done much to help our relationship mature and remain a loving, sharing one.

In fact, most men I talk to who help with the cooking share these same feelings. So, guys, give it a try. Pick one specialty that you may have already cooked at some time and start with that. Then expand your skills slowly. Before you know it, you will look forward to "your-turn-to-cook night."

Italian cooking is my forte, probably because I grew up with pasta being served as least twice weekly — always on Sunday and Thursday and whenever else we could convince mom to cook up a pot of sauce. There is something about mom's spaghetti sauce that I find hard to match in my own kitchen. Maybe it is the pot she used (the same one that she has used for over 30 years) or just the special magic touch that only a mother has.

Because she has never used a specific recipe, my older sister and I have attempted to "put into words" the magic of Mom Ross' spaghetti sauce. While mom's is consistently excellent, I find mine varies from pot to pot — always good, sometimes even coming close to the Mom Ross magic.

I find that one of the most important things in cooking is experimentation. Take a recipe such as this sauce and "do your own thing" to give it your own special touch and flavor.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE WITH MEATBALLS

Sauce:
- 1 15 oz. can of tomato sauce
- 1 10½ oz. can tomato puree
- 1 12 oz. can of tomato paste
- 3 cups water
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. pepper
- ½ tsp. oregano
- ½ tsp. garlic powder
- 1 medium size bay leaf
- 1 tsp. parsley flakes
- 2 tsp. sugar

Meatballs:
- 1 lb. ground chuck
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- ¼ tsp. garlic powder
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- ½ cup seasoned bread crumbs

Combine all the sauce ingredients in a dutch oven or 4-quart saucepan. Stir thoroughly.

In medium mixing bowl, combine meatball ingredients. Mix together well with hands. Roll into one-inch balls and drop into the sauce.

Bring sauce to a boil. Place lid loosely on pan to allow steam to escape (if the lid is on tightly, the sauce will be watery).

Reduce heat to low and cook for three hours or preferably reduce heat to simmer and cook all night (about 8 hours) as Mom Ross would.

Makes enough sauce to cover two pounds of spaghetti. Serves 6-8 people.

LASAGNE
- 1 recipe of spaghetti sauce
- 1 lb. package of lasagne noodles
- 1 lb. ricotta cheese
- ½ lb. brick cheese (thinly sliced)
- ½ lb. mozzarella cheese (thinly sliced)
- 2 cups grated Romano cheese
- 2 eggs

Instead of adding meatballs to the sauce, add one pound of browned ground chuck.

In a medium bowl combine the ricotta cheese, eggs and ¼ cup of the Romano cheese. Mix well and set aside.

Cook the lasagne noodles as directed on the box. Drain and rinse with cool water.

In a 9x13 casserole dish, place just enough sauce to cover the bottom. Then place a single layer of noodles on the sauce. Spread one-fifth of the ricotta mixture on the noodles. Cover the ricotta with sauce (for easier cutting, be sure to use the sauce sparingly). Next cover with a layer of brick cheese slices. Sprinkle with romano cheese.

Repeat this process four more times, alternating the brick and the mozzarella cheese slices.

Cover with foil and bake at 350 degrees for approximately 45 minutes or until the sauce is bubbling. Cut into squares and serve with plenty or extra sauce and grated Romano cheese on the side.

Turkey wings have plenty of meat for their price

What the world needs now is a high protein, main course meat, low in cholesterol and fats, that is easily digested and modestly priced. No such animal? Have you taken a look at turkey and turkey parts in your supermarket lately?

Depending on your family preference as to dark or light meat, you have a choice of turkey breast, steaks and cutlets, thighs, drumsticks and wings. Fresh or frozen, this wide variety of parts combines well with many other foods and can be used creatively in a number of favorite recipes.

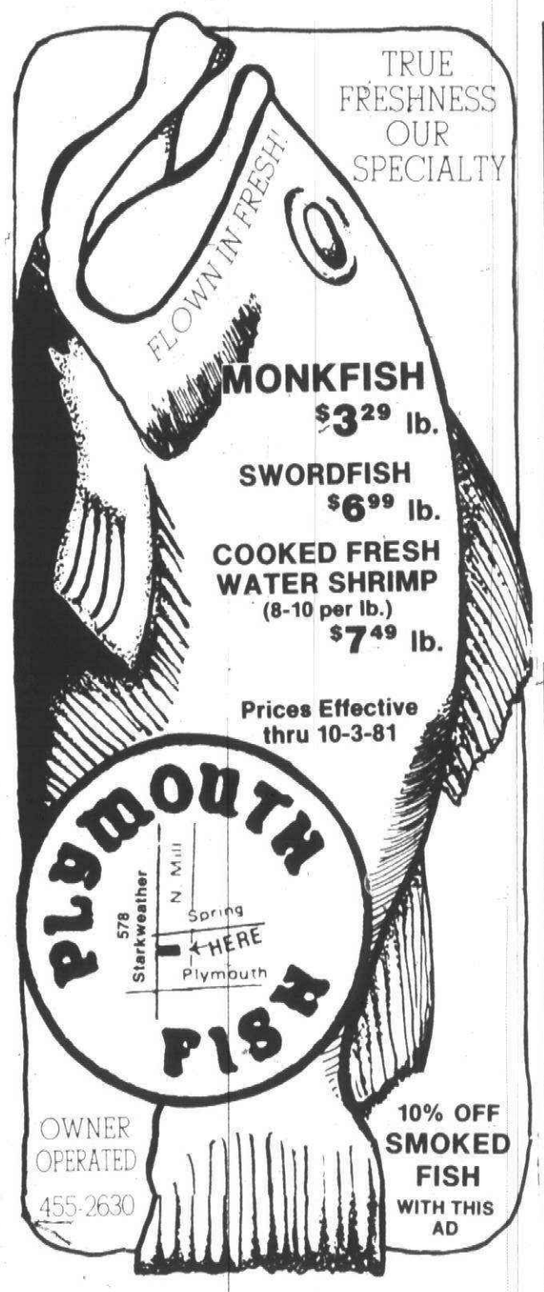

Turkey wings provide a surprising amount of meat for the cost. They respond best to long, slow, moist cooking to bring out flavor and tenderness.

Try serving Turkey Wings Fricassee on a platter over cooked, buttered noodles with glazed carrots and a tossed green salad. That is the kind of whip-inflation goodness we all appreciate when selecting convenient cut-up turkey parts.

TURKEY WINGS FRICASSEE
- 4 turkey wings (about 2½ lbs.)
- ¼ cup flour
- ¾ tsp. paprika
- ½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. white pepper
- 4 tbsp. butter or shortening
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 4 cups chicken broth
- 2 carrots, sliced
- ½ cup celery, sliced
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ tsp. rosemary
- ¼ cup cold water
- Wide egg noodles

Rinse wings and pat dry. Combine flour, paprika, salt and pepper. Roll turkey wings in flour mixture to coat. Reserve remaining flour. Melt butter in Dutch oven or large heavy pot. Brown turkey on all sides. Add onions and garlic; saute for 5 minutes. Add broth, carrots, celery, bay leaf, and rosemary. Cover and simmer for 2 to 2½ hours or until turkey is tender. Transfer wings to heated platter.

Remove bay leaf. Mix remaining flour with cold water to form a smooth paste; add slowly to hot liquid, stirring to keep smooth. Cook over medium heat about 5 minutes or until sauce has thickened slightly. Pour over turkey in serving platter. Garnish with parsley. Serve over cooked, buttered noodles. Makes 4 servings.

Haar Jr.- Rumberger

Carolyn Rumberger exchanged marriage vows with James Haar Jr. July 18. The Rev. Carl Leach performed the double-ring ceremony assisted by Deacon James Baughman of Our Lady of Good Counsel of Plymouth at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Ypsilanti.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rumberger. The bridegroom's parents are James Haar Sr., Plymouth.

The bride wore a Victorian gown with a high neckline. It was taffeta overlayed with an embroidered English net highlighted with Sutache and Venise lace coming to a pleated chapel-length train. Dorothy Spitz of Plymouth was the maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Laura Close and Marilyn Rumberger. They wore gowns in sea green with high Victorian necklines and chantilly lace ruffles at the bodice and shoulders with Quiana skirts. The couple plan to live in Plymouth.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. She is attending Schoolcraft College and is employed at Durr Industries in Plymouth Township. The bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and is a firefighter for the Charter Township of Plymouth.

tive skills as language, comprehension, auditory and visual-motor skills.

Mothers are taught sound development principles in order to teach children how to take care of themselves, deal with their emotions,develop positive self-concepts and attitudes and how to handle themselves effectively with their peers.

Home-centered groups of four to six children meet three times a month for a period of two hours in neighborhood homes. Each month the location of the home used is rotated, and a different aspect of educational need is concentrated upon.

Children and their mothers work on building and mastering such skills as painting, music, crafts, cooking and nutrition. These skills are taught in an imaginative way by utilizing puzzles, games and storytelling to capture and hold a child's interest.

For those children requiring more extensive and indepth personal attention, PLUS provides a school-based option for the program. Children attend once-a-week preschool sessions while parents meet concurrently with Title I teachers in adjoining rooms to work on skills to carry on at home.

Follow-up studies of PLUS program pupils indicates that PLUS instruction gives them an advantage over other children who first enter school cold, without any prior educational experience.

"Children's cognitive development actually reaches fruition much earlier than the age of five or six," Fritz said. "Working with the child early-on makes the whole educational process that much easier later."

An extra-added advantage of the PLUS program is that materials and resources utilized in the program are provided free of charge.

The PLUS preschool program is actively seeking new membership. Four-year-olds and their parents in the attendance areas of Field, Eriksson and Starkweather schools are eligible for participation. To register or for more information call PLUS at 453-8889.

PLUS gives tots an edge

Mothers' role as teacher is stressed

A much needed educational boost is being given to 4-year-olds free of charge by a federally funded preschool program known as Pupils Learning Useful Skills (PLUS).

The PLUS program, which is based at Central Middle School, was begun by Plymouth-Canton educators in the fall of 1974. The program was developed when a real need for early intervention in the formative preschool years was recognized.

The program is designed to better prepare pre-school children, both mentally, physically and emotionally, for their first experience in school.

READINESS TESTS are administered to prospective participants in an attempt to identify those children with the greatest educational needs, and to determine where those needs lie. The tests, which are part of the initial screening process, reveal where a child stands on a percentile ranking in terms of maturity and readiness for school. The tests also help pinpoint signs of early learning skill deficiencies in preschoolers.

Mary Fritz, director of the PLUS program, said mothers benefit as much from the program as their children. She said the program plays an invaluable role in providing support for and encouragement toyoung mothers.

"The PLUS program is an important social activity for mothers," Fritz said. "For lots of mothers in the program, it is their first experience in dealing with a small child. The program helps give them support and a feeling of comraderie, of having shared a similar meaningful experience with others."

The major objective of PLUS is to give the child an educational experience before school that will give them a head-start in their future academic endeavors.

One of the distinguishing features of PLUS is the emphasis on the role of the mother as teacher. Mothers are directly involved as teachers in the program, and are allowed to actively oversee every facet of the programs' execution.

This is accomplished by instructing mothers on how to educate their own children in their own homes. Home-centered preschool education is one of the innovative aspects of the PLUS program, and one of its most successful components.

MOTHERS ARE taught to educate their children in such necessary cogni-

Reception planned for ambassador

To inaugurate the funding of its new Swedish Cultural Center, the Farmington-based Swedish Club will sponsor a reception for the Swedish ambassador to the United States and his wife.

The reception for Ambassador Wilhelm Wachtmeister and his wife, Countess Ulla Wachtmeister, will be at 3 p.m. Oct. 3. Swedish Consul General Arne Thoren and his wife, Ewa Thoren, also will be guests of honor. The event will take place at the Swedish Club, 22398 Ruth, just west of Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills.

The Swedish Club intends to build its Swedish Cultural Center on a scenic piece of Farmington Hills property it recently purchased. The center will house the club and its activities. The club's members are native-born Swedes, those of Scandinavian descent and their spouses.

Marvin R. Anderson, Royal Swedish consul for Michigan, is the chairman for the upcoming reception.

Ernest A. Jones, chairman of the worldwide executive committee of D'Arcy-MacManus & Masius, Inc. and a symphonic conductor, is the co-chairman.

Swedish Club President Erik Johnson, and president-elect Richard Stoll also will serve as co-chairmen.

Inquiries will be taken by Karin Johnson, 645-1044, or Dorothy Lind, 476-4599.

A genuine, elaborate Swedish smorgasbord, which will be served in a tent on the lawn of the club, is being put together by Scandinavian Airlines System's Master Chef Gosta Pettersson, member of the ancient culinary fraternity of the Chaine des Rotisseurs.

THE MAN WHO controls what Scandinavian Airlines Systems (SAS) puts on board its flights from North America and cooks many of its dishes himself, Pettersson is considered one of the all-time great chefs of the company.

Pettersson left his home town of Roberfors in north Sweden as a youth to attend a cooking school in Venice; and he has been in the kitchen ever since.

His apprenticeship was served in the Stadshotellet in Vasteras and in the kitchens of the Grand and Gillet hotels in Stockholm. He was promoted to sous chef at the Grand and was capped as a full chef at the Bellmansro Restaurant in Stockholm in 1948.

For a time he operated his own vegetarian restaurant and in 1953 ran the kitchen of the prestigious Swedish Luncheon Club in London.

At that point, Pettersson went back to school to sharpen such other skills as economics and statistics, and in 1954 he joined SAS and came to its main North American kitchen in New York.

In 1958, he returned to the experimental kitchen at SAS headquarters and was then appointed production manager of 16 SAS kitchens in Stockholm.

DURING THIS time, he was instrumental in developing SAS's pioneering special-request meal service of 50 separate meals which can be ordered in advance by passengers with special medical, dietary or religious requirements. He had a hand in introducing printed in-flight menus, perfected the techniques for producing baked Alaska in an airline galley and wound up his time in Sweden by writing an SAS cookbook.

Pettersson spent the next 10 years in the Far East, where he was catering manager for Thai Airlines at Bangkok.

It was during this time that he developed expertise in cooking with a wok, the results of which show up occasionally on SAS menus.

In 1977, he accepted SAS's offer to move to New York to take the helm of its North American catering.

In the last few years, Gosta's found that passengers are requesting fish meals more often, and so he has indulged them by creating an entree called Salmon Mousseline.

Edsel aerial show spoils homecoming

Salem football rally too little, too late

By Jay Keenan
special writer

Dearborn Edsel Ford gave Plymouth Salem's homecoming scenario a rude awakening Friday night at Centennial Educational Park.

The Thunderbirds skyrocketed to a 14-0 first-half lead and went on to soak the Rocks, 28-14, in a wet and damp gridiron tussle.

Salem, now 1-2 overall, was never able to generate a score until the fourth quarter as Edsel stymied the Rocks' efforts in the first half.

"We were flat in the first quarter and we never got steamed up until the final period," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer. "We felt we could move the ball, but they controlled it most of the first half. And when you don't move the ball very far, you can't do very much.

"Our guys weren't sharp at the beginning of the game and maybe we just weren't that keyed up. It's my fault, because they should have been emotionally ready before the game started."

The Thunderbirds, though, appeared to have their offense intact throughout much of the first quarter.

Edsel took an early 6-0 lead on its first possession when Rick Wyka scored on a one-yard plunge at 1:32 of the period. The score was set up on a 31-yard pass from Wyka to Randy Gregory.

The Thunderbirds got their next TD on the opening play of the second quarter after the Rocks had fumbled the ball away on their own 19-yard stripe.

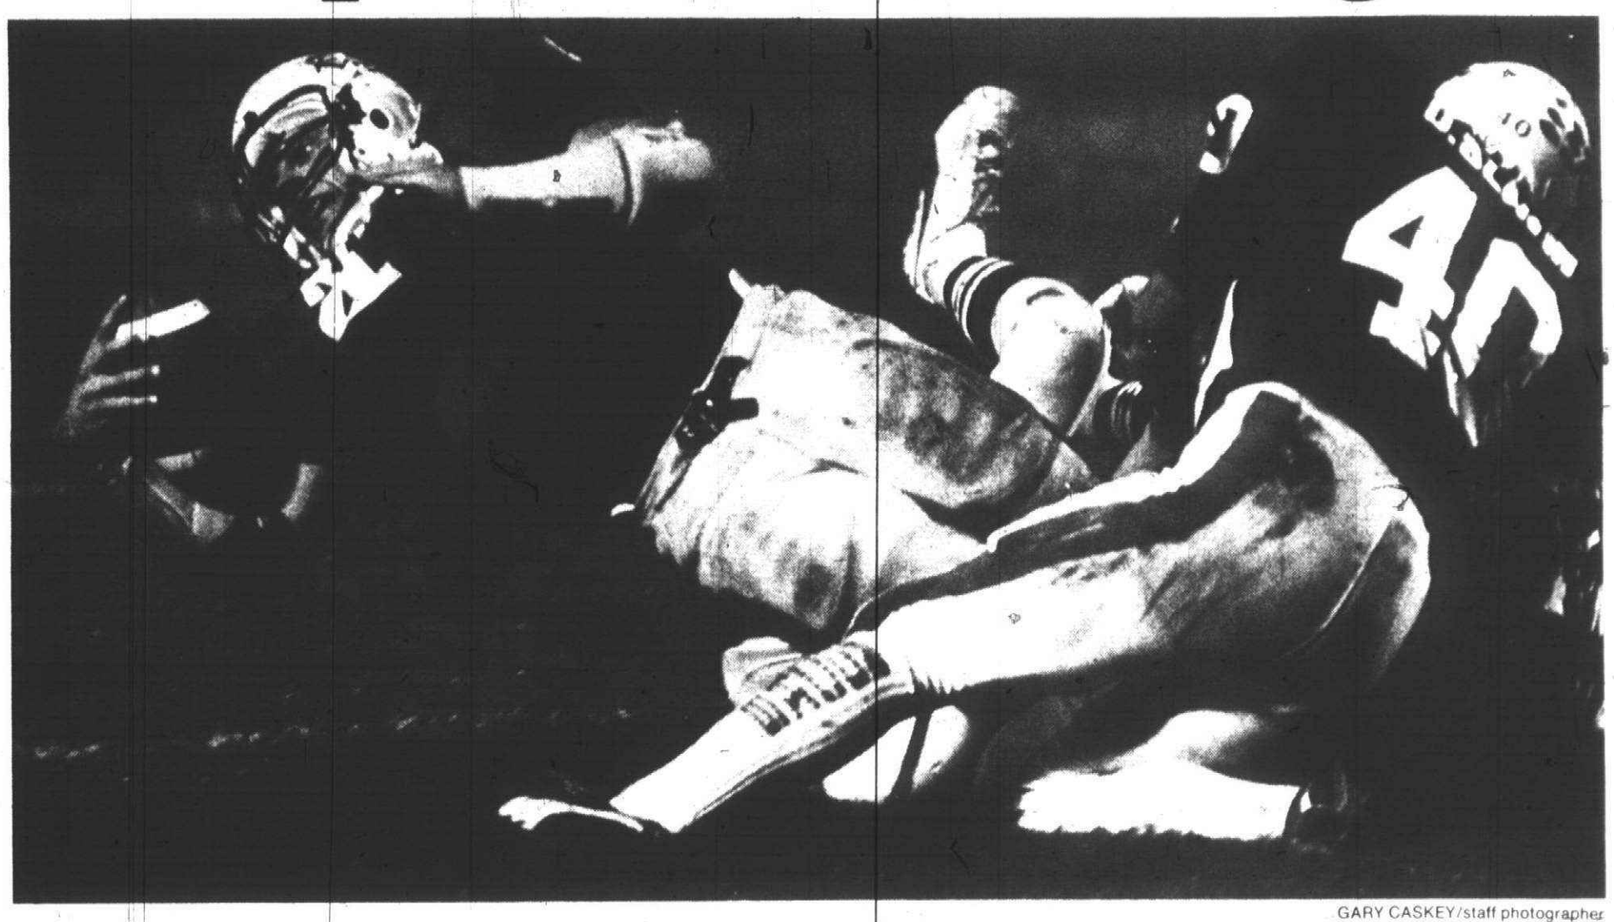

ROB RODRIGUEZ then ran the next two plays and scored on a six-yard jaunt with 11:12 remaining in the half. Mike Sanson hit Craig Hampton for two-point conversion to increase Edsel's lead to 14-0.

Salem drove to Thunderbirds' 39 at the end of the first half on a 14-yard scamper by quarterback Jeff Hubert, but the run was nullified when the Rocks were penalized for clipping twice on the play.

Wyka went to work again in the second half and put the Thunderbirds ahead 21-0 on a seven-yard scoring pass to Joe Musial.

Edsel nailed it down early in the fourth quarter on a 58-yard drive. The big play of the series came on a 35-yard run by Musial on a fake punt, giving the Thunderbirds possession at the Salem four.

Central harriers hurdle Chiefs

Host Walled Lake Central downed Plymouth Canton on Thursday in a cross country meet, 24-31.

The loss dropped Canton to 1-4 overall in dual meets.

Central's Scott Moyer and Jeff Rawlings finished first and second respectively with times of 17:48 minutes and 17:51.

Dan Henry of Canton was next with a clocking of 18:17.

Other Canton finishers included sophomore Tim Collins, fourth, 18:23; Tom Pasley, seventh, 18:41; Brian Lee, eighth, 18:43; Todd Gattoni, ninth, 18:47; Chris Albaugh, 14th, 19:24.

Patty Rising and Charlotte Thomas were Canton's top finishers in the girls' race. They crossed the finish line together in 23:26. Teammate Maureen Brophy was right behind in 23:42.

Earlier in the week, Canton notched its first win of the year by defeating Livonia Bentley, 27-29, at Cass Benton Park.

Henry took first place in 17:22, a season best. Collins was fifth (18:02) and Pasley sixth (18:12).

The Chiefs will meet Redford Thurston on Tuesday at home.

Stevenson gridders blank Canton

Livonia Stevenson's defense rose to the occasion Friday night as the Spartans shackled Plymouth Canton, 16-0, in a non-league game.

"We played very good defense tonight," said Stevenson coach Jack Reardon, whose team notched their first victory of the season. "Our secondary of Karl Hill, Mark Mueting and Tom Hamill did some good things for us.

"Scott Haeger (linebacker) and Wayne Probst (tackle) also did a fine job."

Stevenson held the Chiefs, also 1-2 overall, to 164 total yards.

Canton tailback Dave Simms, who rushed for 159 yards the week before, made just 37 yards in 12 carries against the Spartans.

Stevenson took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on a three-yard run by Haeger and Hamill's successful extra point.

In the second quarter, Stevenson went up 9-0 when Probst sacked Canton punter Mike Clayton in the end zone for a two-point safety.

Stevenson put the game away in the third quarter on a three-yard TD run by Mike Arakelian. Hamill's extra point ended the scoring.

Arakelian was the game's leading ball carrier as he rushed for 79 yards in nine carries.

STEVENSON outgained Canton in total yardage, 182-164.

Canton quarterbacks Chris Susock and Pat Murphy combined to hit six of 19 passes for 87 yards. Susock had five completions, all to senior flanker Jamie Chilcoff.

Canton was victimized by 65 yards in penalties compared with Stevenson's 35.

"I think Canton is a good football team," said Reardon, who happens to live in Canton. "In the first half they had us bottled up. We had trouble moving the ball in the first half.

"Mike Dougherty, our center, Jim Schoenle and Kevin Lech, our guards, gave us some nice holes to run through in the second half."

Barylski prepares for marathon

Triathlon tests human will

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Are you a six-mile runner?

How about biking? Are you capable of riding 25 miles?

Don Barylski of Livonia is. In fact, he's versatile — he can do both. But so can a lot of people, you say. What makes him so special?

How many people can do both, with a three-mile canoe race sandwiched in between, in a single competition?

The answer to that is at least the 70 or so athletes who competed in the first Michigan Triathlon, sponsored Sept. 19 by Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

The three-pronged race is an endurance test. Only accomplished athletes, those with some sort of sports credentials, were allowed to participate.

That's not to say all the competitors were racing to win. Like the dozens of runs sponsored in every community each summer and fall, there were those in the Triathlon who were just trying to finish.

Barylski was one.

THE WAYNE STATE University senior isn't a past high school cross country star, football player or track speedster. He didn't even compete in high school sports at Detroit Cody, where he graduated from in 1976.

"I was always working, so I never had the chance," Barylski said. But he wasn't idle.

"I was involved in karate," he explained. He has earned his brown belt and, perhaps more importantly, says that karate, which he studied under Jim Morrone of Detroit, helped him build determination and mental toughness.

"I like to test myself," he said. "Other than just having a sense of determination, I want to be as healthy as I can be."

Barylski didn't fare all that well in his first Triathlon. He finished about midway in the competition in three hours, 15 minutes.

He had the legs for running, he said. Last year, he ran the Detroit Free Press Marathon, his first such race. He plans on running this year's version Oct. 11.

He has also bicycled. He completed the Belle Isle Bike-A-Thon 200-mile race in 17 hours.

BUT CANOEING — that was something Barylski "had never done before by myself."

So he had problems. Heading into the wind, he paddled his canoe up on a bank and had to get out and push it off. With the six-mile run the last of the three events, Barylski finished the race with mud-caked shoes.

But he liked it. He isn't a win-at-all-costs competitor ("I really just like to participate"), but the Triathlon is an event he thinks he could do well in.

"I think I could win it," he remarked. "I really think I could.

"There are always a group of hotshots in a run or bike race who shoot way out in front. But in this, if you're good at just one thing, there are two others. That's why I think I could be good at this."

Barylski trains by running five to 10 miles a day (a mileage that has been increased because of the upcoming marathon), bicycling and lifting weights. He doesn't always have time for everything, with school and work. But the psychology major doesn't fret if he is forced to miss a day.

Rock girls saddle league quintet

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Plymouth Salem girls' basketball coach Bob Blohm gave his team mixed reviews after a 54-34 Suburban Eight League victory over Dearborn.

The Rocks, who have yet to be seriously challenged, won their sixth straight game without a loss.

"I'm happy with our intensity and I thought we played hard," said the Rocks' toughest critic, "but I'm not happy with our defensive transition. It has to get better.

"Tonight I thought we had good pressure at times, but we weren't consistent."

The Salem coach was not really nitpicking, but know his team to be sharper in upcoming games against state powers Livonia Bentley (twice) and Livonia Franklin.

The Rocks played well enough, however, to beat Dearborn for their third league victory.

Salem's hawking man-to-man defense all over the floor caused periodic Pioneer turnovers.

"We had one of those little spells, but it will come," said Dearborn coach Jim Vanderhull. "Salem has a nice club.

"Our rebounding hurts us and we're not as physical."

In the first quarter, Salem implemented a fast-break attack and built a 12-4 lead. The Rocks held Dearborn scoreless the final five minutes of the period.

Five different players scored in the second quarter as Salem went into the dressing room with a 26-10 advantage.

IN THE THIRD period, seniors Carol Ross and Eileen Moore combined for 11 of Salem's 19 points as the Rocks increased their lead to 45-18.

Both coaches cleared their benches in the final quarter.

Salem's scoring was once again balanced. Moore and Jacque Merrifield each had 10. Ross had nine and Ann Glomski, a junior leaper, added eight points off the bench.

Dearborn's Beth Fink, a senior, paced all scorers with 14 points. No other Dearborn player collected more than four.

Salem also was sharp from the free throw line, connecting on 16 of 18 shots for 88 percent. Dearborn, meanwhile, hit only 6 of 15, many one-and-one bonus attempts. Between the first and fourth quarter, the Pioneers missed eight straight.

Salem, which hosts Dearborn Fordson Tuesday in a non-league game, appears to be on another collision course with defending league champ Bentley, the state's top-ranked Class A team. The two teams will square off Thursday, Oct. 15 at Bentley.

"I think there is no comparision," said Vanderhull. "Bentley is No. 1 if they play up to their capabilities. They so physical, and I don't mean dirty. They're also a good team."

Canton cagers roll

Plymouth Canton overcame Livonia Stevenson slow-down tactics to post a 43-34 non-league girls' basketball win Thursday night.

"We weren't in the game until we slowed it down," explained Stevenson coach Jim George. "Near the end of the first half we slowed it to a walk."

Canton led, 8-2, after one quarter. Stevenson cut the lead to 16-12 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Canton tallied the first two baskets and went on to outscore the Spartans, 13-5.

"We felt we were in the game at halftime being down by only four," said George. "We picked up the tempo again and we got down.

"In the fourth quarter we got it down to five with some aggressive pressure, but they (Canton) ran a four-corner offense off and on and we were never able to get any closer."

THE CHIEFS, now 4-1 overall, were led by seniors Cindy Sovine and Reggie Ruggiero, who both scored 12 points.

Sally Chapin had nine to pace Stevenson. Kathy Finn and Debbie Jurczyszyn each added eight.

Stevenson collected 19 fouls to Canton's 20.

The Chiefs' Pearly Cunningham and Robyn Hudgins both fouled out. Bev Irwin and Chapin also exited in the fourth quarter with five personals each.

The free throw shooting was virtually even. Stevenson hit 10 of 17 while Canton made 7 of 15.

Canton will meet Walled Lake Central Tuesday at home.

Rock tennis team rips challengers

Plymouth Salem's tennis team proved unpatriotic Thursday afternoon.

The Rock girls ran their dual-match unbeaten string to 21 with a 6-1 triumph over Livonia Franklin.

Salem swept all three doubles matches against the Patriots.

Kristy Brandenburg and Beth Miller won easily at No. 1 doubles. Chris Corteg and Jane Ploughman (No. 2) and Kathy Pursell and Kathy Graham (No. 3) also were victorious.

Salem sophomore Chris Gilles ran her career record to 27-3 with a straight-set win at No. 1 singles. Other winners included Carol Hathaway (No. 2) and Lisa Maggio (No. 3). Julie Taylor was defeated at No. 4 singles.

Salem, now 6-0 overall this season, will face its most severe competition this week. The Rocks will travel Wednesday to meet Livonia Bentley in a Suburban Eight League showdown.

Salem's win streak will be on the line when Class B power Bloomfield Hills Kingswood invades Salem on Thursday. The match will begin at 4 p.m.

Kingswood, also unbeaten, smashed Class A contender Grosse Pointe South last week, 7-0.

SALEM 5 DEARBORN 2

The Rocks won their fourth league dual match Wednesday afternoon with a 5-2 victory over Dearborn.

Salem's Jeff Arnold (No. 34) tackles Edsel Ford receiver Randy Gregory during first quarter action. Dave Slavin (No. 40) comes up from his linebacking spot to help.

T-Birds ruin celebration

Reserve Mike Betz then ran into the end zone on the following play and Mike Bridges' extra point sailed through the uprights to give Edsel an insurmountable 28-0 lead with 11:39 to go.

Moshimer talked later about the fake punt: "We just didn't react quick enough on that play. That kind of put us away for good after that.

"We're making some mistakes, but they're typical junior and sophomore mistakes," he continued. "This team is young, but we're going to get better."

THE ROCKS finally got on the scoreboard when Hubert darted a low five-yard TD pass to Mickey Madsen with 8:39 remaining. Mark Blaesser's kick cut the Thunderbirds' advantage to 28-7.

Earlier in the drive, Hubert hit junior tight end Dave Houle with a 32-yard pass which helped Salem establish good field position.

Madsen gave the Rocks an added bright spot in the waning moments with a exciting 76-yard TD run with 2:28 remaining. Blaesser's kick ended the scoring.

"We came out and played error-free offensive football," said Edsel coach Jack Bridges. "We were able to do what we wanted to do and that was pass and run wide.

"It's a nice win for us, although I'm disappointed with the 14 points that were scored on us at the end. But I think that puts our helmets together tighter."

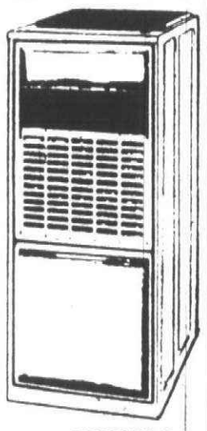

Moshimer said that Edsel threw the ball well.

"I think they have a great quarterback and when you give a kid of his ability time to throw, it hurts," he said. "We couldn't get him contained."

Craiger baseball team hailed

Series champs earn honors

Canton Craiger, National Amateur Baseball Federation (NABF) World Series (13-14 year olds) champs, were recognized recently in a banquet held by the Charter Township of Canton.

Township Supervisor James Poole was the master of ceremonies. Township Clerk John Flodin presented each player with a certificate of appreciation and a copy of a resolution recognizing their achievement.

The host Craiger team, which captured the crown last month, also received resolutions from the offices of state Rep. Tom Brown, D-Westland, and congressman William Ford, D-Taylor. Bob Law, Governor Milliken's assistant, was on hand to present a letter from the governor's office.

Keith Carroll of Canton Sports Shop gave the players commemorative t-shirts.

Coaches Gerald Ebmeyer and Larry Malek also presented the players with patches and duffle bags.

OTHER TOWNSHIP officials present included Treasurer Maria Sterlini-Falkiewicz, and trustees Robert Padget and Stephen Larson.

Ford, McKenny, Michalik, Moore, Sobditch and Briski were named to the all-World Series team.

"It was the highest scoring night we have had since our lanes were opened 25 years ago".

The speaker was George Bashara, owner of Wonderland Lanes, who was reporting that there were eight 700 series in the classic last Tuesday night and that the entire league averaged 206 across the house.

Tom Wright topped the scoring with a 772 that included two counts of 268. Then, in line, came John Wodarski with 768, Mary Holly with 752, Dave Connell with 727, Jerry Hellstadt with 718, Bill Mull with 706, Al Colcer with 703 and Jack Bohn with 700.

In this unusual firing Livonia Trophy team posted games of 1123, 1127 for 3378.

ONE OTHER 700 was reported and that was the work of Dan Altizer who had a 263 in 700 in the Tuesday men's league at Super Bowl.

WHEN IT comes to unusual series it would be difficult to better one shot by Mel Koek Voezele in the senior house league at Merri-Bowl. He rolled a 287 game and would up with a 586. He dropped to games of 141 and 158 in his other efforts. The pacemaker in the league was Tom Troiano who closed with 238 for 638.

He had good company in Bob Tomaszewski, who had a 266 game and had to settle for a 484 series at Super Bowl. This was on the same shift in which Altizer posted his 700.

SCORING DROPPED a bit at Westland Bowl where Mike Leginski took top honors in the tri-city men's league with 669, made possible by a 279 closing game. His closest rival was John Adams with 650. In the Wednesday men's league Bruce Sanders was tops with 645.

IN OTHER GOOD performances, Tom Hudson was high in the Ford league at Woodland Lanes with 610, and Roger Kruger, a father, tops the Catholic Central Father and Son loop with a 265 in 579. He carries an average of 150. At Garden Lanes Alice Starr showed the way in the ladies senior house league with 605 and Jerry Bezner paced the St. Linus loop with a 631. And John Schlaff had an odd series at Plaza Lanes. Bowling in the St. Collett's league he opened with 248, dropped to 157 and closed with 244 for 649.

'Comeback kids' capture another soccer match

Plymouth Salem is new to the soccer scene and proving it belongs.

The Rocks, in their first year of high school competition, made it three straight in the young season with a 2-1 victory Thursday afternoon over Northville.

Trailing, 1-0, at halftime, the Rocks came back with two goals.

Keith Reynolds tallied the equalizer and with only three minutes to go, Matt Crook found the net with midfielder Dan Fisher getting the assist.

"In four of the last five games (including scrimmage matches) we've come from behind," said an elated Salem coach Ken Johnson.

CANTON 1
NORTHVILLE 0

The Chiefs took on Northville's club team and came away with a 1-0 victory Wednesday afternoon at Schoolcraft College.

Canton, now 1-1 this season, tallied the winning goal six minutes into the second half when Tom Wright scored on an assist from Ed Hintz.

Goalie Eric Becker earned the shutout.

"They played played much, much better than the first game," said Canton coach Tony Lonigro, whose team dominated both halves. "Most of the game was played on their side of the field. They had only three or four shots and we had all kinds of opportunities, but couldn't score.

"It was more of a team effort. We're working more and more as a team. We're passing more."

SALEM 8
YPSILANTI 1

The Rocks were in control all the way as Paul Neschich, a senior captain, and Tom Strobecki, a forward, each scored two goals in Wednesday's 8-1 rout.

SILVER AMALGAM FILLING
If dental decay has not done major damage to a tooth, it can normally be salvaged by one of the most common of dental restorations - the filling.
Essentially: (1) Decay must be completely removed, and the tooth prepared to receive the filling; (2) a soundly engineered pattern must be cut in the tooth to hold the filling strongly; and (3) the filling is then carefully placed in the tooth.
Many materials have been used to make fillings, but silver amalgam is probably the most common. Properly used, a very good material it is. Silver amalgam is formed by mixing a powder of silver (about 70%), tin, copper and zinc with pure mercury. The mercury dissolved the metallic powder, thus forming the solution. (An amalgam is, in fact, a solution of a metal in mercury.)
The filling is made while the mix is still in a plastic state and easily manipulated. It is carved and shaped as it is beginning to set. Patients are usually cautioned not to expose a new amalgam filling to strong biting pressures for four hours, until it develops its initial hardness. Full hardness wil be complete in 24 hours.

Ned Racine (William Hurt) and Matty Walker (Kathleen Turner) get caught up in a crime of passion and its aftermath in "Body Heat."

the movies

Louise Snider

Celluloid sizzles when 'Body Heat' pairs Turner-Hurt

If "Body Heat" (R) were in 3-D, it would steam up your glasses. Every scene rides on an electric undercurrent of passion.

This is the steamy, sexed-up melodrama that the recent remake of "The Postman Always Rings Twice" tried to be but wasn't. "Body Heat" takes the same kind of basics — adultery and murder, sexual obsession and conspiracy — puts them in a contemporary setting, instead of the '30s, and makes them work.

Lawrence Kasdan is the writer-director responsible. He's the hot talent this summer who also scripted "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Continental Divide." "Body Heat" marks his sensational debut as a director.

In it, he mixes some James M. Cain with some Raymond Chandler, updates the dialogue and weaves in a sensory tapestry of supporting details that make the movie vivid and the psychology intriguing.

THE SETTING is a small Florida coastal town where the heat and the corruption are equally oppressive. Cool jazz music floats through the night. An occasional light flashes, and a woman in a body-hugging white dress appears. All that's missing is a cynical voice saying, "The dame spelled trouble."

In this instance, the "dame" is Kathleen Turner. This is her first movie, and it's likely to be the first of many. She has the face, figure and voice that set her apart from the young actresses and make a lasting impression, like Bacall in her first film with Bogart.

Turner plays Matty Walker, the sultry, dicontented wife of a "small, mean" millionaire who amassed a fortune from shady investments.

William Hurt (who already has attracted considerable attention for his leading roles in "Altered States" and "Eyewitness") plays Ned Racine, a jailhouse lawyer who becomes passionately involved with her.

Hurt is the sexiest male to hit the screen in years, and between him and Turner, they could start a meltdown. What else is there for a couple like this to do but dispense with the husband and then hand around long enough for the settlement of the will?

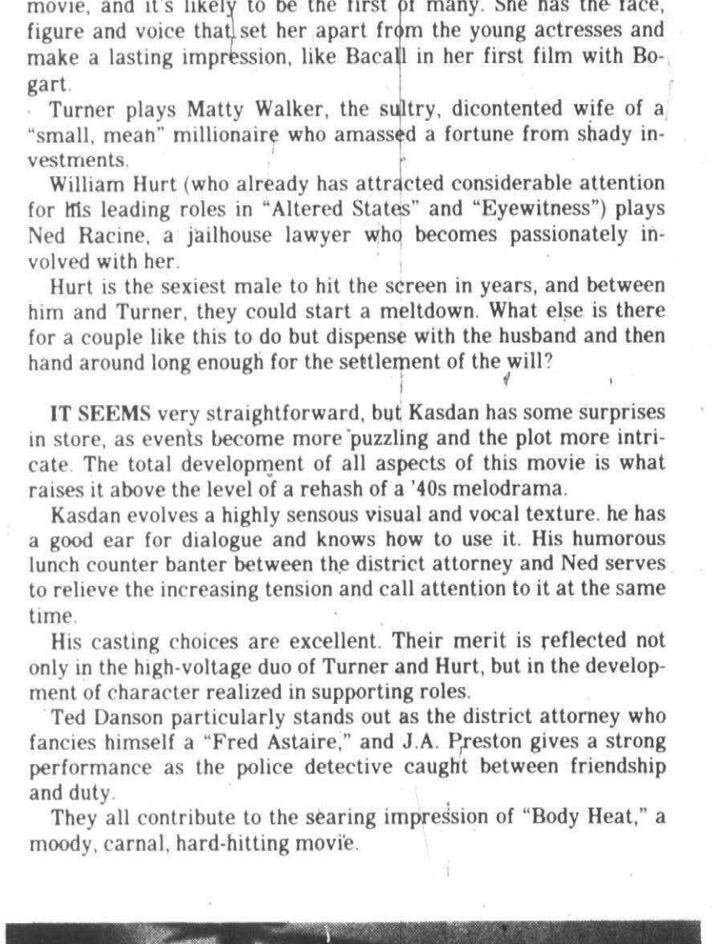

IT SEEMS very straightforward, but Kasdan has some surprises in store, as events become more puzzling and the plot more intricate. The total development of all aspects of this movie is what raises it above the level of a rehash of a '40s melodrama.

Kasdan evolves a highly sensous visual and vocal texture. he has a good ear for dialogue and knows how to use it. His humorous lunch counter banter between the district attorney and Ned serves to relieve the increasing tension and call attention to it at the same time.

His casting choices are excellent. Their merit is reflected not only in the high-voltage duo of Turner and Hurt, but in the development of character realized in supporting roles.

Ted Danson particularly stands out as the district attorney who fancies himself a "Fred Astaire," and J.A. Preston gives a strong performance as the police detective caught between friendship and duty.

They all contribute to the searing impression of "Body Heat," a moody, carnal, hard-hitting movie.

Attorney Racine chats with his friend, the District Attorney (Ted Danson), while Detective Oscar Grace (J.A. Preston) looks on.

Paxton and quartet head entertainment for benefit

Lenore Paxton and her Quartet, along with Destination Love, will headline the Plymouth Hilton's Entertainment Festival '81 on Sunday.

The inn will celebrate its sixth anniversary along with its first entertainment blowout.

Paxton is a composer, pianist and singer noted for her contemporary sounds.

Destination Love, a Top 40 and disco group, turns out tunes with its two girl vocalists.

Activities for the entertainment festival, in addition to music, are an antique car show, body building contests, caricatures, glass blowing and art shows.

It all takes place continuously from 11 a.m. until 2 a.m. There also will be a benefit dance in the Plymouth Ballroom featuring the Dittilies.

OTHER MUSICAL groups performing during the day and evening include Interiors, Magic, Q.T., Hush, Martini, Salem Witchcraft, Caledonia, Misbehavin', The Button Box Bunch and Duane Malinowski and the Polka Jamboree.

All activities take place in the parking lot — but in case of rain, they will be moved inside. All proceeds go to City of Hope.

Poet reading her work at Schoolcraft College

Louise Gluck's reading at Schoolcraft College at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Waterman Campus Center will be the poet's first appearance in Michigan.

The reading is presented by the college's Cultural and Public Affairs series and admission is free.

Gluck lives with her husband and son in Vermont. She has taught at Columbia University and the universities of Iowa, Virginia and North Carolina. Currently, she teaches at Goddard College.

Her awards include grants from the Guggenheim Foundation, the Rochester Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts. She is the recipient of a prize for poetry given in 1981 by the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters.

Her books include "Firstborn," which will be reprinted in fall 1982 in paperback; "The House on Marshland," Volume 5 of the American Poetry Series; and her most recent, "Descending Figure," Volume 20 of the American Poetry Series, which will be issued in paperback in October 1981.

Schoolcraft College is on Haggerty Road, just off I-275 between Six and Seven Mile. People attending the reading should park in the north parking lot, which is closest to the Waterman Center, and enter the center through the southeast entrance.

'Patent Leather' marks 6 months in Birmingham

The John Powers musical comedy "Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?" has celebrated the six-month anniversary of its run at the Birmingham Theatre.

It is the longest, continuously running Broadway-bound show ever to appear in Michigan and surpasses the record set by "Annie" at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit.

The musical, which explores the joys and surrows of growing up with a Catholic school education, debuted March 18 and has continued to attract capacity audiences. To date, approximately 200,000 people have seen the musical memories of eight graduates of the mythical St. Bastion's School.

Cast changes made Sept. 1 include Mary Callaghan-Lynch as Becky Bakowski, Tamara Jacobs as Sister Helen, G.J. Walsh as Father O'Reilly and Debby Watassek in the roles of the Secretary and Sister Thomas Aquinas.

Thomas Spiroff has been added as understudy for the roles of Mike, Felix and Louie.

Performance times are 8 p.m. Tuesdays-Fridays, 6 and 9:30 p.m. Saturdays and 2 and 7 p.m. Sundays. Ticket prices range from $10-$15 and may be charged over the telephone by calling 644-3533. Group rates also are available.

When out gathering firewood,

Energy-conscious home-owners are learning that not only is wood a space heating bargain, but also that it can be selected in much the same way you buy gas for your car; there is "premium" wood, "regular" wood and even a wood analogy to the "unleaded" principle.

"Premium" wood could be expected to provide the most heat for its volume. Transactions in wood are based on how much space it fills, not its weight.

So, a cord (128 cubic feet) of heavy wood will produce more heat than a cord of light wood, according to specialists at McCulloch Corporation, the chain saw maker.

"Regular" costs less

"Regular" wood might not provide as much heat as the premium varieties, but it usually costs less. Depending on your location, the lower cost of "regular" can make it an attractive bargain.

The wood counterpart to unleaded gasoline includes those types that produce the least undesirable by-products, in this case wood resin.

Creosote build-up

Resinous woods can produce accumulations of pitchy creosote that can ignite in a chimney or stovepipe with disastrous results.

White ash is a good example of "premium" wood. It weighs about 37 pounds per cubic foot. A cord of ash produces about as much heat as 165 gallons of fuel oil or 23,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Homeowners paying a dollar or more per gallon of fuel oil can readily recognize the potential savings.

Even "regular" wood compares favorably with fuel oil. Eastern hemlock weighs only 22 pounds per cubic foot, but still provides as much heat per cord as 96 gallons of oil or about 13,500 cubic feet of natural gas.

Hardwoods would generally fit into the "unleaded" category, because of their lower content of resin than softwoods such as fir, pine, cedar and hemlock.

To help avoid creosote build-up in chimneys, softwoods may be burned in combination with hardwoods. When used alone, softwood should be burned with enough oxygen to achieve good combustion. A smoky, smouldering fire will increase creosote build-up.

Good hardwoods

In addition to ash, woods such as oak, beech, birch and hickory are excellent hardwoods for wood stove or fireplace. Some regional favorites include sugar maple in the northeast, persimmon and pecan in the southeast, fruitwoods in the plains and eucalyptus on the west coast.

The Rocky Mountain region offers few hot-burning hardwoods. The hardwood aspen, for example, provides less heat per cubic foot than softwoods such as larch, Douglas fir or ponderosa pine. Ski resort condo owners should be aware that these same species are among the greatest creosote producers.

Almost every type of wood should be cured for several months after splitting

With today's fuel costs can you still afford to heat the outdoors?

Probably NOT! But you can fight back—Act NOW to increase the efficiency of your home.

Let us make your home more economical to operate by using applegate* insulation—proven safe and more effective than other types. Your home will be more comfortable and cheaper to heat and cool. Don't waste your money through another heating season.

Reduce heat loss by installing efficient interior storm windows

Most Americans respond to the cry "Save Energy!" by thinking of their cars and homes. These are two of the largest single investments they make.

Many of them know that in saving energy, they are saving money. They may also know that the biggest chance of saving energy is by heating or cooling their home wisely. But they may not know that more heat is lost through their windows than any other way.

According to a government report (HUD-HAI-2), more than half the money we spend on heating or cooling our homes is lost through infiltration.

And, of all infiltration (the engineer's word for air leakage), 80 percent of the heat is lost through the windows of the average house. Heat is also lost by infiltration around doors, vents, cracks or other openings in the walls and roofs.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," somebody said. This era of the energy crunch has brought about the technical development of the interior storm window. These are window kits specifically designed to stop infiltration through windows.

That's because the rigid plastic sheet of the storm window is fastened directly to the inside window frame. This means that all air coming through cracks in the window or cracks around the window pane is completely blocked.

This high efficiency was demonstrated by Plaskolite, Inc., Columbus, Oh., a major manufacturer of storm windows. Laboratory tests showed its rigid plastic interior storm window, called the In-Sider, cut heat loss through an uninsulated window by up to 88 percent.

While these results may vary depending on the house, its site and the specific window involved, the savings during a cold winter can be substantial.

For example, during the very cold winter of several years ago, a house tested in Boston showed savings of $252.20. A house in Philadelphia showed savings of $88.05, and a house in Dallas showed savings of $52.53.

The In-Sider is not only one of the best ways to save dollars spent on fuel - it is also one of the simplest. It is made up of a rigid, clear plastic sheet fastened to the window frame by vinyl moldings. These moldings have a self-adhesive which tightly binds them to the window frame or wall.

The sheet and trim are easily cut to fit the size of any window. The trim snaps open and shut for simple installation and removal for summer storage.

It is light, easy to handle and to install. It's relatively inexpensive and comes in five standard sizes. More information can be obtained from Plaskolite, Inc., 1770 Joyce Avenue, Box 1497, Columbus, OH 43216.

and stacking in order to produce optimum heat.

Moisture is measured in relation to the weight of fiber when the wood is fresh. White fir's measurement of 98 percent moisture means half the weight of green wood is water.

The least amount of curing time among hardwoods is required by white ash, at 46 percent moisture. The moisture content of softwoods varies from the 33 percent of eastern red cedar to 121 percent for bald cypress, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

Depending on variables such as the type of heating system used and accessibility to woodlands for "do-it-yourself" firewood gathering, homeowners in every area of the country can realize energy savings by using the only renewable resource that comes in premium, regular or "unleaded."

Wood's increasing role as an energy source

As other sources of energy disappear during the decades ahead, more attention will be paid to timber, the world's only major renewable resource.

With America embarked on an era of oil belt-tightening because of higher OPEC prices, the dangers of import dependency, and actual depletion of supplies, alternate source of energy are being scrutinized.

Timber is unique among the rest as it serves innumerable needs from heat to shelter, and is the only resource that can be replenished for future generations.

George P. Ramsey, Jr., Taylor-Ramsey Corp., Lynchburg, Va., president of Appalachian Hardwood Manufacturers, Inc., a trade association of lumbermen headquartered in High Point, N.C., says, "The potential of timber to solve future needs is enormous. Through careful management, government support and citizen awareness, forestlands can be increased and more timber produced than ever before in our history.

Most importantly, the technology to do the job has already been proven.

While America dominates the world in supplies of coal, technology to tap its vast reserves lags far behind.

It could be decades before coal can supply even a quarter of the nation's energy requirements. As far as wind, solar energy and the so-called syn-fuels are concerned, the situation is much the same.

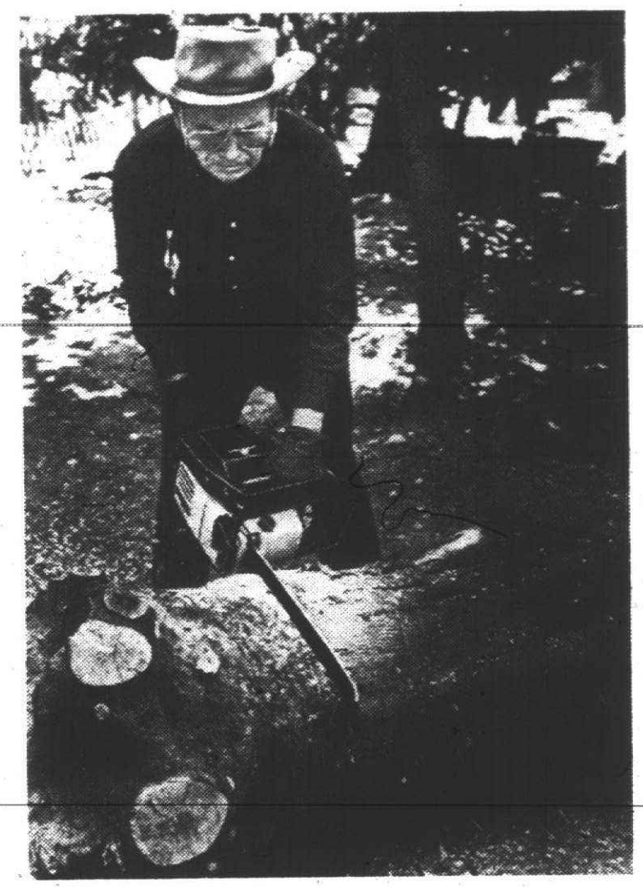

Nuclear energy, once thought to be the best long-range answer, is undergoing painful reevaluation after the Three Mile Island incident and may never play a dominant role in solving the problem.

Timber is quite possibly the only "ready and on stream" answer to the energy crisis.

"But won't we run out of forests?" is the anxious question voiced by those who visualize the doom of America's rich woodlands.

Ramsey answers, "This is unfortunately a common misconception. We

Solar Research Energy Options

Americans' high expectations for solar power in coming decades are reflected in greatly expanded programs for solar energy research.

In the electric utility industry, solar research and development increased 24 percent last year. A survey by the Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI) shows that 180 electric utilities are undertaking 735 projects involving more than 1,900 solar applications.

One of the greatest challenges in utilities' solar research involves integrating solar energy into power distribution systems. The technology for producing and distributing electricity from solar energy is still a long way from any major, economically feasible application.

Since interfacing solar devices with the existing power grid must be accomplished before solar power can become a significant energy source in the U.S., electric utilities have put special emphasis on this area of research. Many of these projects are carried out in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Energy.

Solar heating and cooling has attracted the greatest amount of research activity because current technology shows the most promise in this area. Eighty-five percent of the utilities surveyed by EPRI are involved in this research which includes water heaters; active space heating using air or water collectors; solar assisted heat pumps; and buildings with passive solar design.

One large-scale demonstration project, conducted by Long Island Lighting Company (LILCO), has a goal of selling and installing 600 energy efficient solar hot water systems for single-family homes.

Don't turn your thermostat down.

It's a lot easier than you think. All it takes is one Buck Stove. With the Buck Stove you can heat up to a 3,000 sq. ft. home with wood or coal. Small time, money investments pay off in lower heating costs

Small investments in time or money can help keep home heating costs under control, according to BDP Company, maker of Bryant, Day & Night, and Payne heating and air conditioning equipment.

- Take time to open draperies on south-facing windows. On sunny days you can take advantage of solar heat - for free. Close the draperies or shades when the sun is no longer warming the glass - it will help insulate the window area.
- Check furnace filters once a month. Replacing dirty filters is a fast job - if you have extra filters on hand. Even if your furnace is equipped with permanent filters, keep the throw-away kind around to use in the furnace while the permanent filters are being washed and dried.

Wash with water

In warm weather they can be cleaned with a hose in the driveway. Use the laundry tub after the hose is put away for the winter.

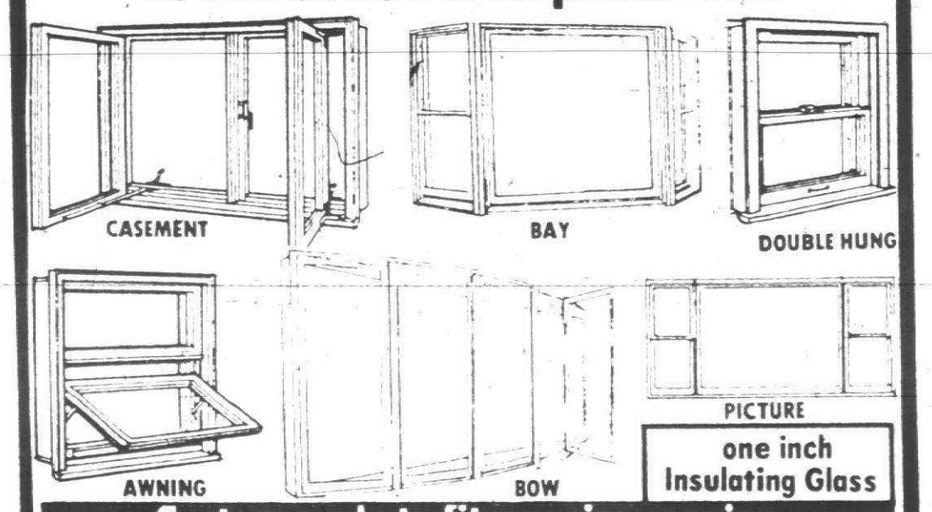

- Take a few minutes to trim the shrubbery near a heat pump. Landscaping may conceal a unit, but it also can reduce essential air movement. Leaves and twigs from nearby plants can cause damage if they are sucked into the heat pump.
- Don't let snow pile up around your heat pump. The heat pump should have been installed above the normal snow line, but snow isn't always normal.
- Close the overhead doors of an attached garage, even if you might be going out again in the next half hour.
- After the fireplace fire is out, close the damper.
- Set up a regular annual schedule with your furnace service dealer to check your heating system. Equipment that is running at its best uses less energy whether it is gas, oil or electricity.
- Ask your heating service dealer about a thermostat timer. If prospects of returning home to a cold house have prevented you from turning down the heat while gone all day, such a timer could solve the problem. It also can turn the thermostat down at night.
- Cover unused electrical outlets with type of plugs used to prevent children from playing with outlets. These caps will help keep heat from escaping.
- Caulk windows and doors. This should be an annual event.

Additional measures

If you are making major changes in your home, such as remodeling a kitchen or replacing the heating and cooling system, these are additional measures you can take:

- Adequate insulation and either double glazed windows or storm windows are extremely important.
- If your laundry equipment or water heater is in an unheated garage, consider moving it indoors. The heat these appliances generate can help warm your home - and they will probably operate more efficiently as well.
- Locate heating equipment in the occupied space of a house and run ducts in the occupied space whenever possible.

Wood

have nearly three quarters as much forestland in this country today as when Columbus landed—a surprising 753 million acres distributed nationwide.

In the south where climate and terrain are ideal for timber growth, some 198 million acres are classified as forestland. However, only about a third is near full tree potential.

More trees on less land is not a fantasy. Forest product industry land accounts for less than 10 percent of the total, yet through responsible scientific management, it produces 26 percent of the wood used for paper and wood products. The ramifications for future development are obvious.

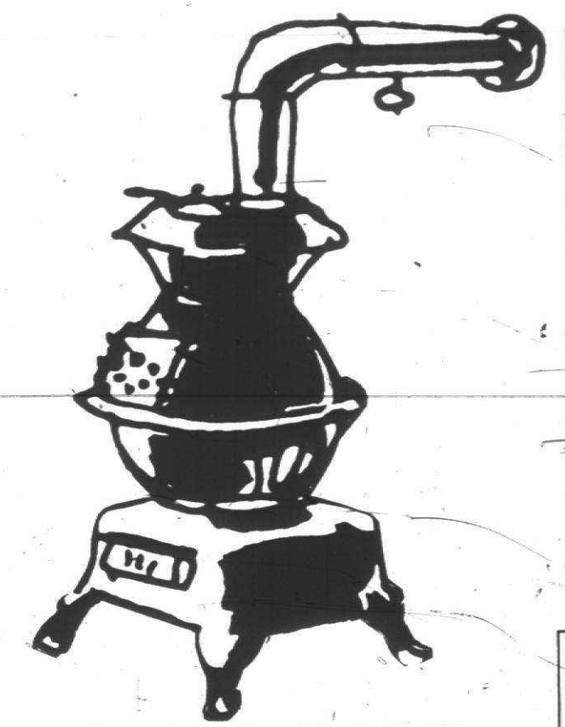

"Another misunderstanding," Ramsey continued, "is that commercial forests are not available for people to enjoy. In fact, private companies invite the public to use 67 million acres of land for fishing, picnicking, backpacking, camping, etc.

"Commercial forest provide not only watersheds and homes for birds and wildlife...most importantly, they supply 1.7 million jobs."

The environmental contribution of forests is more than recreation, employment and beauty. Every day, each person breathes oxygen production of at least one tree and each uses the equivalent of a 100 ft. tree every year in products.

In addition to housing, paper, furniture, utility poles, railroad ties, etc., some 12,000 products are derived from trees.

And, new ways that trees can serve new needs are constantly being explored.

For instance, the residual materials from sawmilling—sawdust, bark and woodchips—can be formed into pellets which can be burned to turn steam generators.

Extracts from wood fiber create burnable fuels, and gasahol is finally being taken seriously.

Plus, the return of the wood burning stove is helping many cost-conscious consumers to save on heating bills.

Ramsey concluded, "It's entirely possible that we have only scratched the surface of timber utilization. New technology and recognition of the potential of this natural resource which we can replace, could well lead to a significant and increasing role for timber in the years ahead."

New siding can save you the cost of periodic repainting

If your home exterior needs painting, look into re-siding instead. It will enhance its appearance, eliminate the need for expensive periodic repainting and save you money.

For instance, if it costs $1500 to paint the outside of your home and you repaint it now, and then every four years; you'll have a 13-year bill of $4500. That's at today's prices. But, an inflation rate of only 10 percent a year, low by current calculations, would raise that cost to over $11,000.

Contrast this to high quality aluminum siding finishes, which are now warranteed to last up to 40 years.

Over the last three decades, aluminum siding has been used to remodel over 12,000,000 homes. Increasingly, new homes are being surfaced with the metal because of its proven durability and resistance to corrosion and cracking. Aluminum siding is even being used to restore historical landmark houses.

In addition to freeing homeowners from the expense and chore of repainting, aluminum siding offers wide decorative choices. It comes in various styles to suit any type of architecture, and in a wide range of colors and textures.

Just make sure the style and color you choose are right for your house and that the house will blend in well with neighboring ones.

Aluminum siding comes in eight-inch panels, which are the most popular for contemporary homes, and in double-four-inch, panels (an eight-inch panel that has the appearance of two four-inch panels), which are well-suited to traditional Colonial-style architecture.

Both are available in smooth or textured finishes. Horizontal is most commonly used but, for variety, vertical aluminum siding can be effective.

Vertical siding can be used to accent the gables of Colonial-type homes or to give a board and batten appearance to modern or rustic type houses.

Colors in aluminum siding run the gamut from white and pastels to deep reds, blues, greens, dark browns and earth tones. Currently, ivory, cream and beige are the most favored, among homeowners, with yellow, gold, brown and blue close runners-up.

New, livelier colors, including blue-greens and bright yellows, have been introduced by aluminum siding manufacturers this year. The variety of these aluminum siding colors cannot be matched in vinyl plastic siding.

Because soffit, fascia and other aluminum trim are also available in a wide range of colors, you can either match them to the siding or choose a complementary color.

Beige or cream color siding with brown trim is very effective; so is brown, gold or blue siding with white trim. Color trim can also accent white siding attractively.

Color combinations are particularly pleasing in embossed siding, which has become as popular as smooth surface aluminum finishes.

There are textures which simulate wood grains so realistically that it is virtually impossible to distinguish the aluminum siding from wood without going up and touching it.

They are being used extensively in new homes surfaced with aluminum siding, as well as for remodeling older homes.

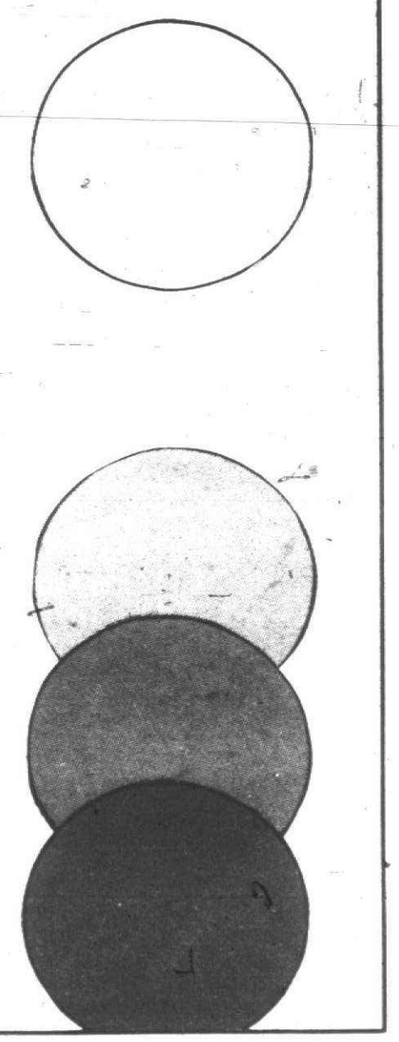

Wood-grain effects are achieved by embossing and by new two-tone coating systems which give a more pronounced wood grain appearance from a distance.
