The Canton Connection

PLANS FOR the second annual Canton Parade, as part of the Canton Country Festival, are under way. Dr. Jim Gillig, chairman of the 1982 parade committee, is looking for volunteers to help in the preparation. Anyone interested in helping plan Canton's parade should call Gillig at 459-1660.

THE FIRST "Canton State of the Township" address takes place at 7 p.m. Thursday at Township Hall, on Canton Center south of Cherry Hill. Supervisor James Poole invites the public to this question-answer session about township activities. Some of the topics to be discussed include: property taxes, road maintenance, future costs and township services.

ICY CONDITIONS postponed the annual "Groundhog Day" softball tournament, scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Griffin Park. Softball manager Bob Dates, of the Canton recreation department, says the tourney will take place on Saturday, Feb. 13. Game time for the day-long activity is 8:30 a.m. — weather permitting, of course.

BOY SCOUT Troop 1738 from Hulsing Elementary School in Canton recently braved the cold weather to go on a 10-mile hike. The scouts had a great — but cold — time.

SENIOR CITIZENS are helping other seniors and disabled persons with property-tax rebate and home-heating credit forms. Appointments will be scheduled every half-hour from 1-3 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays during February at the Canton Recreation Center on Michigan Avenue at Sheldon.

Separate sessions for Canton residents of Royal Holiday mobile park will be from 1-3 p.m. Wednesdays at the park's clubhouse.

Seniors should bring yearly income statements from Social Security, pensions or other sources, monthly rent payment, tax statements, medical insurance payments and social security number. Volunteers for the project are Milt Roettger, Maude Truesdell, Harold Beattie, Isabel Hale, Mary Woods and Grace Hanning.

Appointments are necessary. For more information, call 397-1000, Ext. 278.

BOB CARD, owner of McDonald's on Michigan Avenue in Canton, recently donated $400 for the support of the Ronald McDonald House at Children's Hospital in Detroit. Ronald McDonald House is a home for families of seriously ill children, enabling them to remain close to the sick child.

JOHN FALKIEWICZ, son of Canton Township Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz, was one of four members on the "Apocalypse" rock band, which won the Battle-of-the-Bands competition at Plymouth Canton High School.

Other members of the band are Bill Taft, Karl Schwartz and Mark Kesson.

TOWNSHIP EMPLOYEES may not be in the dark, but the hallways and offices at the administration building are a little dimmer these days.

A large number of fluorescent lights have been removed, in an effort to cut costs. Reducing the lighting was one of the suggestions made at a seminar attended by Tina Pratto, secretary to Supervisor James Poole.

Anyone interested in submitting information about Canton Township for "The Canton Connection" column should send the item to Canton editor Dennis O'Connor, 461 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. We ask that you type or print the information and include your name and daytime phone number in case we have any questions. Column items should be received at least 10 days before publication date. The column runs every Monday.

Drive begins for Catholic school

By Dennis O'Connor
staff writer

A group of Canton residents are interested in forming a Roman Catholic school for its youngsters.

But when — and where — the facility will open still is a big question mark.

Parents from Canton's three Catholic parishes, St. John Neumann, St. Thomas A'Becket and Divine Savior (in Westland), recently met with officials from Plymouth's Catholic school — Our Lady of Good Counsel — to get advice on starting a school.

Currently, Good Counsel has an average waiting list of 50 students per grade (kindergarten through eighth-grade), said principal Jim Dyer. Counsel has problems meeting the scholastic needs of the people in th its own parish, let alone children from Canton.

KATHY SIKORSKI, speaking for St. John Neumann, said parents have formed finance committees to begin fund-raising efforts.

"It's impossible for the parishes to give us money for schools because they are paying off debts on their own buildings," Ms. Sikorsky said. "We're looking into fund-raisers, gift donations or portable classrooms."

Parents have contacted the education offices of the Archdioceses of Detroit, she said.

"I think we've convinced them (the archdiocese officials) that there's a need," she said.

There may be problems opening up a new school, however, because the archdiocese puts its priorities on reopening buildings that have closed down, she said.

Canton parents now are looking into vacated school buildings in Livonia, hoping to rent a facility for their children.

Livonia, experiencing a declining growth rate, has closed 15 schools in its district. The closest school to Canton is Clay Elementary School near Six Mile and Newburgh, which closes in June. Perrinville Elementary School, at Ann Arbor Trail and Farmington roads, also closes in June.

DYER ADMITS his school has trouble meeting the educational needs of Counsel and St. Kenneth, another Catholic parish in Lake Pointe Village, Plymouth Township.

"Our problem is we can't even serve our own parish," Dyer said of the the city of Plymouth school. "We have problems serving Plymouth proper, let alone Plymouth Township, because our parish has grown so much.

"We very seldom get a request outside our parish because it's difficult to get in."

Now is a good time for Canton families to begin thinking about getting another Catholic school in the Plymouth-Canton community, Dyer said.

"You get people moving out to St. Neumann's, Thomas A'Becket or Divine Savior, and they can't get in," said Dyer. "They come from a Catholic education, and they want to continue it. That's why you're getting that kind of discussion — and that's good.

"Now's a good time to discuss it because they have the numbers — there's no doubt about that. It's just a question of a facility."

Oooops!

Canton police were on the scene when it took about two hours to clear away a disabled truck that spilled firewood onto the roadway, snarling traffic near Canton Center, south of Joy, at the Centennial Educational Park Wednesday afternoon. The truck, owned by Mike De Jarlais (inset photo), was delivering the firewood from Curran (southwest of Alpena) to a customer on Canton Center. Jarlais, who said he hadn't slept for 2½-days, said his truck broke down. Canton police called two tow trucks to help the Curran resident move his truck, but that was a nightmare. According to Jarlais, the tow trucks couldn't move the truck, jarred it, forcing the firewood to fall off, and then sped away with the $30 towing charge. Jarlais eventually had to move the wood off the road.

Planners eye rezoning west area

Neighengen, Daly receive commission appointments

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Eugene Daley and Dianne Neihengen have set their sights on rezoning western Canton.

Daley and Mrs. Neihengen were appointed Tuesday to three-year terms on Canton's planning commission.

Both said the major task facing the commission is the rezoning of western Canton, now restricted to agricultural use. Voters in November rejected a bid to increase taxes to preserve farming areas.

"Farmland preservation has been turned down," said Daley. "The entire western half of the township has to be looked at. The eastern half is pretty much set."

Both Daley and Mrs. Neihengen waged unsuccessful campaigns for township trustee in 1980. Their philosophies about western Canton have been quite different.

DALEY, 58, is a retired lieutenant with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

He served as a Canton trustee from 1976-80 and sits on the zoning board of appeals — a post he plans to resign. A 30-year resident of Canton, Daley has been on record as opposing farmland preservation.

Mrs. Neihengen, on the other hand, was a member of the farmland preservation committee and stumped hard for the unsuccessful tax campaign. She is 34, a full-time homemaker and a member of the planning commission since September 1979.

Her term expired in December 1981.

SUPERVISOR JAMES Poole first nominated Daley, who replaces former planning commissioner Thomas Carman, who moved out of the state. He then named Mrs. Neihengen.

Both nominations won the unanimous approval of the township Board.

Daley sees his new role as an opportunity to make an impact on zoning considerations at an earlier point, he said. The zoning board is the "last resort" for people appealing decisions of the planning commission, he said.

"I found through the (zoning board of appeals) there are some areas of the ordinance which have to be modified," said Daley.

MRS. NEIHENGEN said she was surprised but pleased at her nomination by Poole. The two had been at odds since last year's heated farmland preservation vote.

Poole said it wouldn't be worthwhile to lose Mrs. Neihengen's expertise and desire to serve.

About 5,000 acres in western Canton, now restricted to agricultural use, are likely to be open to future residential and commercial development.

"The one goal we all have is an equitable master plan for the western half," said Mrs. Neihengen. "I wish it wasn't the goal, (but) I'm glad I will have an opportunity to participate."

Canton makes smart move

Violation bureaus close

Canton officials apparently were on the right track when they decided against opening a violations bureau in Township Hall for people to pay traffic tickets.

The 35th District Court, which serves Canton, Plymouth and Northville, opened a new courthouse in Plymouth last September.

Three of the other municipalities — Plymouth Township, Northville Township and the city of Northville — opened satellite violations bureaus, so people could pay ticket fines in their own communities. Canton did not.

The local bureaus have been nothing but a headache, said George Wiland, 35th District Court administrator.

As a result, the other violations bureaus were closed Feb. 1, and tickets must be paid in person or by mail at the new courthouse on Plymouth Road near Haggerty.

"IN THEORY, it was a good idea," said Wiland. "But in practice, it fell short. We have closed the bureaus, and sighed with great relief."

According to Wiland, 75 percent of the people prefer to pay fines in person.

Wiland had pushed for the local violations bureaus, which accepted payments of fines for civil infractions, primarily traffic offenses less severe than reckless driving.

Local bureaus would be more convenient for residents, argued Wiland, and would provide immediate revenues for the township. Previously, the court disbursed fine collections to the communities once a month.

BUT CANTON'S Township Board disagreed, voting unanimously against opening a bureau in Township Hall last August.

Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz said it would be too much extra work for her already-short-staffed department, and would create traffic problems in the hallway. All of Canton's traffic violations were handled at the new courthouse.

Despite a training program, the local violations bureaus didn't work out, said Wiland. There were mix-ups, improper collections of fines, duplication of work, etc.

The result, often, was inconvenience to the ticketed drivers, and extra work for the clerical staff.

"I can appreciate the problems of the municipalities," said Wiland. "Violations will always take a backseat. We gave it four months. I think that was time enough."

Junior hoops!

Players, parents thrive on action

PLYMOUTH-CANTON'S Junior Basketball Association, one of the soundest volunteer groups in the area, began its 18th season of action last November.

The organization prides itself on promoting sportmanship and fellowship by providing organized recreational basketball for all Plymouth-Canton area boys and girls, grades 3-12.

The philosophy of the league is based on two goals: strive for an enjoyable season, and improvement of basketball skills.

MORE THAN 850 youths participate in the association — including more than 200 girls.

Each team plays at least one game per week. Most teams also practice once a week.

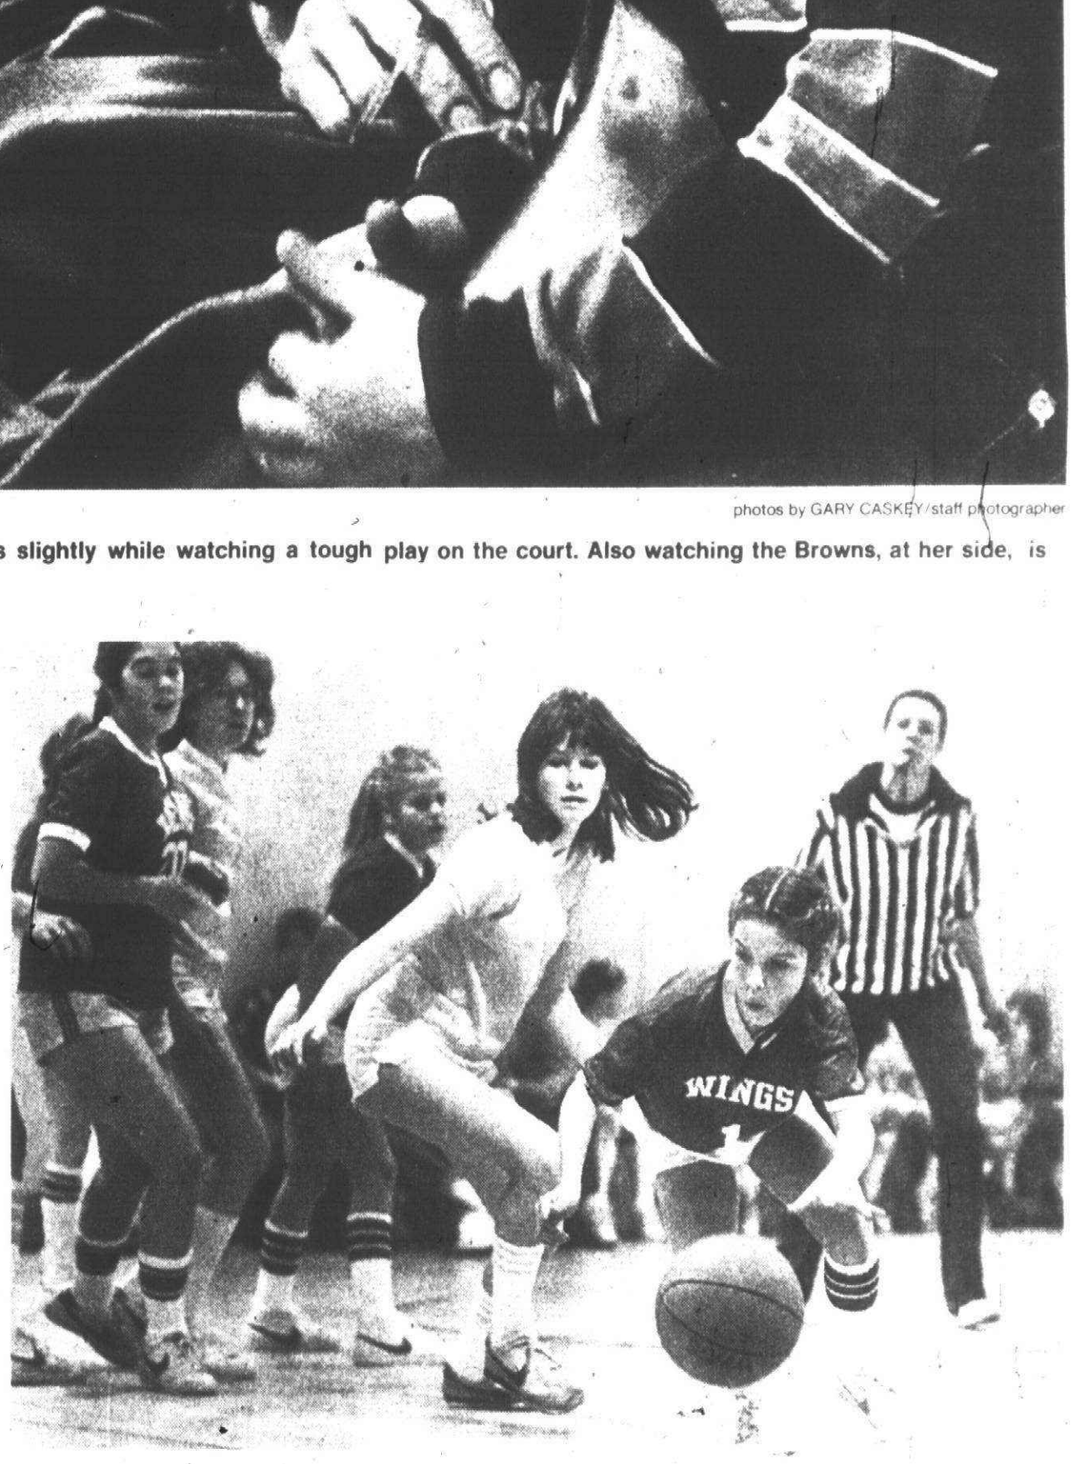
Participation — that's one of the keys to the association's popularity over the years. Each player must compete at least one-fourth of the game. No player can compete in more than three quarters of a contest, as well, adding to the competive spirit — and balance — of each division.

PARENTS AND VOLUNTEERS keep the organization going each year. All coaches, scorers, time keepers and league officials are volunteers from the community who work together — for no pay — to keep the league running smoothly.

In fact, the only paid persons in the organization are the referees, who are teen-age students trained by the organization.

The association plays all its games in gymnasiums provided by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Most games are on Saturday in middle school and high school gyms. Anyone may attend any game. Admission is free.



Missy Smith (above) starts a drive from the top of the key in hopes of getting a layup for the Wings. The statistical accomplishments of junior basketball players are recoreded thanks to volunteer parents such as these two scorers — Dave Seaman (left), scorer, and Cecil Waldron, timer, who are shown in the middle picture intently watching the action. In the picture at far left, Stephen Reger, 5, asks dad Ron Reger to explain some of the finer points of the game so he'll be ready when it's his turn to get on the court in a few years.

Group plans seminar to give economy tips on family health care

A free workshop on how families can improve their health-care services will be offered Saturday, Feb. 20, at St. John Neumann Church, Warren Road between Canton Center and Sheldon.

The workshop will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. It is co-sponsored by the Metropolitan Detroit Health Education Council, a Torch Drive Agency, and Oakwood Hospital Health Care Center.

It is billed as a seminar on "self-care to save costs," and geared to the health needs of young people.

"OUR EXPERIENCE has shown that parents show a high degree of enthusiasm for this type of program," said Suzanne Antisdel, director of the council.

The program is a pilot project. Topics will include selecting and talking with a physician, obtaining free or low-cost services, dealing with family stress, use of prescription drugs, and prevention.

A film on child auto safety will be presented. Participants are encouraged to bring a brown-bag lunch for a casual rap session.

Registration is open to everyone and may be made by phone or mail to Metropolitan Detroit Health Education Council, 777 Livernois, Ferndale 48220, phone 541-8386.

Hartwig guilty of murder

Ronald J. Hartwig was found guilty Thursday in the death of Stacey Ann Hurrelbrink.

Ms. Hurrelbrink was beaten to death Aug. 23.

A Wayne County Circuit Court jury found Hartwig guilty but mentally ill on the first-degree murder charge, which carries a mandatory life sentence.

Circuit Judge Joseph Giovan is expected to sentence Hartwig within the next three weeks, said John Thompson, a Wayne County Prosecutor's Office spokesman.

"We are delighted with the result. Assistant Prosecutor Herbert Roberts did an excellent job under trying circumstances," Thompson said. Roberts was given the case after the original prosecutor developed medical problems.

Hartwig, 32, was arrested by Plymouth police 30 minutes after Ms. Hurrelbrink's body was found. Further investigation lead to the discovery of a hammer, suspected to be the murder weapon.

The hammer was introduce into the trial as evidence linking Hartwig to the murder.

Hartwig was a resident of the Old Village Inn at 886 Mill.

Man yells 'foul' in freeway arrest

By Teri Banas
staff writer

A Plymouth Township man who was arrested after he had a flat tire on I-275 last Sunday claims he was unjustly arrested and harrassed by Livonia Police because of his Middle-Eastern heritage.

Waleed Orow, 38, said he was trying to repair his car's flat tire Jan. 24 on the shoulder of northbound I-275 near the Jeffries interchange when Livonia Police arrived.

Orow, a naturalized U.S. citizen of Chaldean descent, thought police had stopped to help. However, within 5 minutes police impounded his 1978 Cadillac and he was strip-searched and charged with interfering with a police officer.

Orow was later released on a $50 cash bond. On Monday, he paid $25 for the return of his car from a local towing company.

Police said Orow was arrested because he became "irate" and refused to cooperate with officers.

A hearing on the charge is set for Feb. 18 in Livonia's 16th District Court.

According to police reports, officers patrolling the freeways were under orders to impound all abandoned vehicles on I-275 because of a motorcade carrying Vice President George Bush to the Super Bowl at the Pontiac Silverdome.

POLICE ALSO reportedly were alerted to check out anyone of Middle Eastern descent because the Secret Service believed that recent alleged Libyan death threats against U.S. officials were valid, according to a Livonia police report about the incident.

An official in the Detroit office of the Secret Service told the Observer his department issued no "specific" orders about Libyan terrorists threatening Bush's arrival in Pontiac. Special Agent Radford Jones said that despite a "general suspicion" of possible terrorist groups working here, his department never advised local police to impound disabled or abandoned vehicles along the Bush motorcade route.

Orow, who has lived in the United States since he was 12 years old and worked at the General Motors Ypsilanti plant for the past 19 years, said he is still baffled by the events that led to his arrest.

Orow, who has been a tinsmith for GM for 19 years, gave this account of the incident:

His car developed a flat tire on I-275 in Livonia at about noon last Sunday while he and his 7-year-old son, Lance, were going to visit his mother in Farmington Hills. After spending about an hour trying unsuccessfully to inflate a spare tire, he said, he left to call his wife, Loral, for help from a nearby Plymouth gas station.

When Mrs. Orow arrived at the scene, so did Officer James Work of the Livonia Police Department.

"I thought he stopped to help us out," said Orow. "I said, 'Officer, it's OK, my wife is here now.'"

Orow said the officer told him the vice president's motorcade, which included Bush, a cabinet officer and presidential aide Edwin Meese, was expected to pass in 20-25 minutes and his car would have to be towed away.

"As I tried to explain to him, he said, 'Now you stop right there and listen to me.' Before I knew it, he said 'you're under arrest.' He pushed me against the car, in front of my wife and kid, and in 30 seconds five others (patrol) cars arrived on both sides of the freeway."

OROW SAID he then heard the officer remark "he looks the part" and he was searched.

"I said, 'What do you mean I look the part?' the whole time asking them what I'm charged with."

Orow said he was taken to the Livonia jail, where he was fingerprinted, mugged, strip searched, and later released on a $50 cash bond. Mrs. Orow and their son followed them to the station. Orow claims he learned of his charge at the police station. Work refuted that saying he informed Orow of the charge at the time he was arrested.

"I missed the Super Bowl being in jail," Orow said. "I was just treated like a common criminal. They went through the whole criminal act (booking procedure) just for having a flat tire."

"How did I interfere? I didn't say you can't tow my car. I just said I can get it out faster," recalled Orow.

Officer Work, offered this account of the incident.

Work said he was under orders to tow the car. The order was issued by his supervisor, Captain Lee Grieve, head of Livonia's patrol bureau, he said.

The officer reported that local police were working in conjunction with Michigan State Police in clearing the roadway of abandoned cars.

Work reported that it was his "intention" to have "the suspect" leave the area with his wife until the motorcade passed and then ask state police to check the car.

"No sooner had I said the word 'impound,' but the suspect became very irate, yelling that he had been sitting there an hour and was trying to fix the tire and that I couldn't impound the car," Work wrote in his report.

Work said he threatened to arrest Orow after Orow interrupted him and tried to "walk away."

Grieve said Work didn't intend to "harass" Orow. He said Livonia police impounded four other vehicles on the freeway that day.

Joyner names campaign staff

William Joyner of Plymouth has announced a series of appointments of honorary campaign managers for his campaign efforts, whatever they may be.

Joyner, now Wayne County Commissioner representing Canton and Plymouth, is considering running for a seat in the Michigan Legislature.

"It is our intent to reach a cross section of local community leaders — people who will personify the grass roots effort we are looking for," said Jan Keller, campaign manager for Joyner.

Agreeing to serve as honorary campaign managers are: Tom Notebaert, immediate past supervisor of Plymouth Township; Bud Martin, mayor, city of Plymouth; Dave Pugh, mayor pro-tem, city of Plymouth; Karl Gansler, Plymouth City Commissioner; Slyvia Stetz, secretary, Plymouth-Canton Board of Education; Tom Yack, trustee and past president, Plymouth-Canton Board of Education; Doug Ritter, Canton Library Commissioner; John Schwartz, Canton Library Commissioner; Laura Toy and Paul Kadish, trustees, Schoolcraft College; Carol Bodenmiller, Canton trustee; and Maria Falkiewicz, Canton treasurer.

"Each of these people have recognized the vocal leadership given the Plymouth-Canton community by Commissioner Joyner," adds Mrs. Keller, "For that reason they are willing to help Bill out whether he runs for reelection or for the Michigan Legislature."

Joyner also announced several community campaign managers.

Mary Ellen McKercher of Roosevelt Street, a member of the city of Plymouth Planning Commission, will head up the city of Plymouth campaign effort.

Bill Zachery, a Detroit Public Schools teacher and resident of the Trailwood subdivision, will direct the Plymouth Township campaign.

Diane Neihengen, a Canton Planning Commission member who lives on Lowell, will head up the Canton campaign, and Liz McCarville will direct the Northville Township effort.

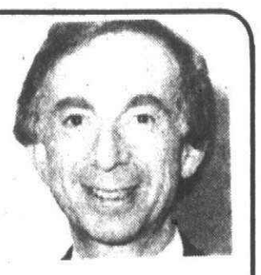
Views on Dental Health


Philip Meizels, D.D.S., P.C.
QUACK DENTAL CURES
According to the American Dental Association, Americans spend an estimated $2 billion a year on health quacks and quack products. Denture (false teeth) construction and repair is one of the areas abused by quacks.
Dentures fitted by unqualitified persons and mail order dentures, if not properly fitted, can damage mouth tissues. Some damage, such as excessive bone loss, is irreversible. Constant irritation from an ill-fitting denture, if continued over a long period of time, may contribute to the development of open sores and other serious lesions such as tumors.
Persons in extreme discomfort from the ill-fitting dentures tend not to use them. This is not only a waste of good money but could lead to shrinking gums which will make the fit even worse and eating without teeth can lead to digestive problems.
Poorly-fitting dentures can cost you more in the long run when the damage they cause has to be corrected. For your health, comfort, pleasure and appearance, go only to professionals when it comes to your dental health.

It's a tossup — do we clean or move?

Nancy Walls Smith

I've got it narrowed down to two rather drastic alternatives — either I give the house a really good cleaning, or we move.

One's about as appealing as the other.

This is the longest we've lived in any one place, and I've discovered a very disconcerting fact: If you don't clean behind your stove for five years, the dirt starts to ooze out after you.

My philosophy, with regards to house cleaning, has always been: "What your mother can't see when she comes to visit (and inspect) can't hurt you."

I was wrong.

Well, maybe it isn't hurting us, but it makes one feel rather slovenly when the dust balls under the heavier pieces of furniture have reached capacity level and are slowing working their way to daylight.

I THOUGHT I was doing so well, finally conditioning myself to feverishly attacking cobwebs once every four or five months — and even wiping fingerprints off the walls when they start to obscure the original paint color.

But I've always thought that whatever finds its way under the couch or behind the refrigerator is entitled to sanctuary. An escaped convict could hide under our family room couch and be as safe from discovery as he would if he were to leave the country. If he could manage to exist under the cushions, he'd be set for life.

It must be time to start thinking about spring cleaning. I love to think about spring cleaning. I hate to do it. But I love to think about it.

SPRING CLEANING, of course, takes place in the spring. That's the nice part about it. It's encouraging in the midst of a gloomy February to ponder washing windows with the bright spring sunshine blazing through them.

It makes me look forward — longingly — to those warm lovely days when breezes waft through the screen doors as I rid our home of all the dust, dirt, and grime that has settled in throughout our winter hibernation.

Like I said, it's fun to think about.

Getting it done is where I run into problems.

My first step in tackling such a mammoth task is to make lists — lots and lots of lists. I may not get much accomplished, but at least I'm very organized about it.

Last spring I taped my "Kitchen Cleaning List" to the side of the refrigerator. It consisted of about 26 unpleasant tasks that were required in order for our kitchen to, once again, shine like I know it should.

It wasn't until late October that I noticed that my list was beginning to yellow with age and the kitchen still was in its same sorry state. It's simply amazing how many diversions can pop up just as you're all set to clean the oven.

THE CHILDREN'S bedrooms present another humungous challenge that I'm rarely up to. How can I polish the wooden floor when I can't even see them.

Frequently, I find myself spending four or five hours in each son's room just picking up and putting away toys, clothes, shoes, papers, books, etc. Unfortunately, as soon as I leave each room it quickly returns to its former state of chaos.

All that cleaning is good for about 15 minutes of neatness.

'Tis frustrating, to say the least!

I won't even mention the work that has to be done in the bathrooms. You don't want to hear it — believe me.

In fact, as I sit here looking at our vast array of complicated cobweb formations, it occurs to me that perhaps it would be easier to just move.

Nancy Walls Smith, a Canton resident, writes a column twice a month for the Plymouth and Canton Observer. Her column appears on Mondays.

A numbers problem: How much is a trillion?

W.W. Edgar

How much is a trillion dollars?

This question was asked in low voice around the Rotary Club luncheon table when U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell mentioned that figure as the amount of our national debt during his annual report on the State of the Union.

No one seemed to know. At least they didn't have the answer on the tip of their tongues. But the question still persisted long after the meeting was ended.

So, always delighted to meet a challenge, The Stroller decided he would get the answer some way or another. So he set about a research program and with the most amazing results.

In his search among the numbers with a string of zeroes he got to a billion. Fine, a billion is a thousand million. And so the zeroes began to string out.

DIGGING INTO the research, he found that a billion years ago, the earth was still hot. A billion months ago would take you back 83,333,333 years. And a billion weeks ago is equal to going back 19,230,797 years.

No mention was made of the figure Filbert who came to these conclusions, but the search became more and more surprising.

A billion days ago would put you back 2,739,726 years or the age of the dinosaurs.

But let's go on.

A billion hours ago is equal to 114,155 years — before recorded history.

A billion minutes ago takes us back to the time of Christ, and it would take 32 years to tick off a billion seconds.

THAT PUTS us back to the days right after the end of World War II.

But in the terms of our federal budget about which Pursell was speaking with the emphasis on dollars, the government spends about 1.6 billion dollars every day or a billion every 14 hours.

The figures become dazzling — at least The Stroller found them so — when you realize that a trillion is a thousand billion.

Whew, what string of zeroes The Stroller now has run into in the research for the answer to the question of "How much is a trillion?"

In one of the financial papers in which The Stroller was doing his study, he came across these astounding lines:

If gave your wife a trillion dollars and told her to spend it at the rate of a million dollars an hour it would take her 41.66 plus years working 24 hours every day of the year. And along with that she would have the added problem of interest on the unspent portion.

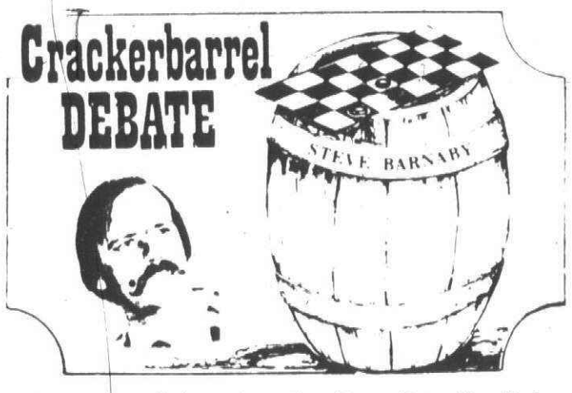
IT STAGGERS the imagination to realize that it would take that long to spend a trillion dollars if you spent a million dollars an hour, 24 hours a day for more than 41 years.

Now just imagine this — our national debt has reached the trillion dollar figure for the first time in history.

Don't ask to name the date when the debt will be paid, but Mr. Congressman, it was interesting to do the research brought about when the question was asked:

"How much is a trillion dollars?"

Bookburners are back; fires galore in suburbia



The boy walked into his English class with Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms" tucked in with the rest of his books. He thought nothing of it.

After all, it came from his father's library, and he always was told he could read anything on those hallowed shelves.

The English teacher wondered about that.

"I want to talk to you after class," she told the ninth-grader with a stern look in her eye.

He wondered why. English class always had been easy for him.

"Do your parents know you are reading that book?" she asked.

Gazing at the stack of volumes, he guessed to which book she was referring. He answered honestly:

"I don't know. It's one of my father's books. I just took it."

A long silence followed.

"You see, my parents think it's all right for me to read what they read," he continued.

She fumbled with a pencil.

"OK, you may go," she said with a faint smile masking a look of bewilderment.

That was back in 1961 when, up until last week, I thought the world was more naive and lacked the sophistication and self-confidence to let its children think.

But, I was wrong. Educational leaders still are caving in to the hysteria of the book-burning mentality.

TAKE THE CASE of the Bloomfield Hills Board of Education, which recently exhibited the courage of Pontius Pilate. Like Pilate, it washed its hands and refused to make a decision that clearly was its to make.

A few district residents, one in particular, objected to a ninth-grade social study text entitled "Street Law."

Among its shortcomings, according to critics, was that it is anti-free enterprise, anti-American government, anti-American family unit, anti-religion and anti-God.

In truth, it is none of the above. It is an above-average textbook that encourages students to think and deal with the real issues confronting everyone in society.

The board skirted the issue by assigning some poor deputy superintendent to make the decision on the book's fate. Naturally, this beleagured bureaucrat took the road of least resistence and reduced the book's status from a basic text to a supplement.

We all know how well supplementary texts are used.

But one's faith in our belief in progressive education and free speech is shaken when a community that prides itself in being a leader caves in to such reactionary claptrap.

Other communities in the area also have met resistence to this text. Some have taken an even more intellectual cowardly route. They refuse even to discuss using the book, even as a supplement.

AROUND THE NATION reactionary forces are having a field day banning books from our schools' shelves. Bernard Malamud, Kurt Vonnegut, Philip Roth, Langston Hughes and, yes, Ernest Hemingway have gotten the ax in recent days.

We're the winners

'Super' economic results

Nick Sharkey

After all the thousands of words were written, it was left to a cartoonist to say it best. His cartoon depicted a football field strewn with streamers and clutter with the words underneath: "Michigan Won."

Finally, Super Bowl week has come and gone. The whirlwind events are over. Perhaps a few final comments are in order.

Super Bowl was a public relations coup for this area and state. But it was not without its headaches.

EARLY IN the week, much controversy centered over the "negative" stories being written about the Detroit area. Paul Zimmerman of Sports Illustrated was the target of local criticism about sports writers. Zimmerman told the viewers of a national morning news show that Detroit reminded him of covering the Olympics in Moscow, "only in Moscow the security guards were friendlier."

(It's easy to forget that cities hosting Super Bowl are often found wanting. In the past, Los Angeles has been called "too spread out," New Orleans was rapped for "too much congestion downtown," and Miami was just "too hot.")

In the middle of the week, there was the tragedy of the Super Pub crawl. In this dumb activity, hundreds of inebriated people were herded onto crowded buses, which delivered them to bars in town.

It doesn't take much to see the danger in a pub crawl. Unfortunately, a Bloomfield Township man and Livonia woman were killed when the back door of a bus accidentally opened and they fell out.

Also, the roads near the Silverdome were jammed with cars as the kickoff neared. Traffic was so congested that the Oakland County Sheriff's Department reported some people were abandoning their cars and walking to the stadium.

NOW FOR the good part:

The fear of a winter snow storm on Super Bowl weekend that would paralyze all modes of transportation never was realized.

In general, the publicity about Detroit was positive. On Sunday, an estimated 100 million people in the United States viewed an event taking place in our back yard.

They saw smiling faces, parties and exciting sports action. They saw people obviously enjoying themseleves.

The national commentators' words supported the pictures. As CBS sports anchorman Brent Musburger said before Sunday's game, "It's cold outside, but the people are warm."

No one event by itself can improve the image of a city. But many of them can. Last week's activity only gave more support to the good feelings generated by the 1980 Republican National Convention.

People who visited this area last week learned about warmth and friendliness. Hopefully, that will help Detroit in the months ahead.

As Brent Musburger gave his introduction to the game on Sunday, a large white banner could be seen over his shoulder. It said, "Say yes to Michigan."

Many people did say "yes" to this state last week.

Van de Merwe picks Plymouth Symphony's gems as soloists

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Good research, they say, confirms what you already knew.

And conductor Johan van der Merwe's program confirms what some of us Plymouth Symphony Orchestra fans have been saying for a while: Some of the finest players are in the winds sections, and several deserve to be soloists.

Applying his vast musical knowledge, Prof. van der Merwe came to the identical conclusion. At 3 p.m. next Sunday in the Plymouth Salem High auditorium, six of them will be featured in two concertos.

As chairman and chief executive officer of the Kristy Meretta Fan Club, I am awe-struck every concert at the principal oboeist's opulent tones and perfect phrasing.

WHILE IT'S more sociable to sit on the main floor, I have taken to the balcony, the better to watch and pick out some of the performers in the middle and rear chairs.

That's the great thing about a live performance. On even the best records, you never really hear those little passages in the works of Brahms, Wagner and Berlioz that display the inner voices of the orchestra.

Ms. Meretta, a relatively new orchestra member after a career in Battle Creek and Kalamazoo, sits in a group I call the four gems: clarinetist John Mohler, a long-time favorite of everybody; bassoonist Jennifer Kelley, another relative newcomer; flautist Glennis Stout, another veteran of the musical world, and Ms. Meretta.

To this group, van der Merwe is adding Louis Stout, French horn, and Allen Warner, another flautist.

My admiration for the Plymouth Symphony's winds does not mean I have foresaken the Roth Clan, Jean Braun and all my pals in the strings. Rather, the wonderful Salem auditorium gives one a chance to grow up musically and concentrate on other instruments.

MS. MERETTA, Mohler, Ms. Kelley and Stout will be heard in the Sinfonia Concertante, which may or may not be by Mozart.

I learned that from getting an advance copy of Rex E. Hatt's program notes.

"This score, which turned up during the 1860s, seems to be a careless copy or even an adaptation of a lost Mozart original . . . . If the K. 297b is not authenticated Mozart, it remains a delightful and enchanting work," he writes.

By day, Rex Hatt is a mild-mannered retail advertising salesman for these newspapers. At 5:30, he turns into one of the most knowledgeable classical music buffs you'll ever want to meet. He's so knowledgeable that he doesn't refer to Mozart works by the long titles — like Symphony No. 40 or the Violin Concerto No. 4, the way you and I do — but by the Kochel number.

Meet him after a concert and he'll say, "Hey, Tim, wasn't that a great 488?" or "Boy, that was a fantastic reading of the 367!"

MS. STOUT and Warner will follow with the Concerto for Two Flutes by Franz Doppler, a 19th century Viennese composer and performer.

Then it will be on to Franz Liszt's "Les Preludes" (which actually was heard more in the old "Lone Ranger" radio program than Rossini's "William Tell" overture) and Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" fantasy overture, works that will test this orchestra as an ensemble.

And if anyone can spot even a single flaw in Kristy Meretta's oboe playing, well, I'll buy you a cup of coffee at intermission.

BACK IN WHAT used to be the greenhouse area of Heide's in Old Village is the Children's Bookshelf, a real find if you're looking for reading materials for the small fry in your life.

Pat Raymo has owned The Children's Bookshelf since September. She thinks it fills a need for the community and for herself. A graduate of Northern Michigan University, she was a teacher in the Taylor Schools for eight years. Then, she was pink-slipped because of school millage failure.

The bookshop has been the perfect answer — Pat is back in the world of children and their books.

She also has a storytime twice a week. Children, ages 3 through 5, gather at 10 a.m. Tuesdays and 1 p.m. Thursdays for stories and finger-play songs.

"And they always make something to take home," said Pat. "It's usually something pretty simple that just requires gluing and coloring, but they enjoy it."

GREAT REJOICING at Plymouth Salem High School when the winner of the second Big 50-50 prize was announced.

Hank Rupert, head of the custodial department at the school, won $100. Hank is a loyal Rock fan so it seems only fitting that he should benefit from the Athletic Boosters Club fund-raiser.

There are 18 weeks more to go in the Blue Chapter's Big 50-50. Winners are announced each week at a school sporting event.

PAT COLLINS, who had male lead roles in two all-school musicals, is now a freshman at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. Pat is a member of the Dartmouth Glee Club and already is doing solo work in the glee club.

HOWARD GRIFFORE and Luella Cook had high scores at last week's party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

ERIKA ODOM, a freshman at Eastern Michigan University, has the part of Frau Fahrenkopf in the EMU Player's production of "The Night of the Iguana."

The Tennessee Williams' drama will open the winter theater season for the players. First presentation will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 2. It will run through Sunday, Feb. 7, when curtain time will switch to 7 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 for the general public, $3 for EMU students and $1.75 for children. They are available at the Quirk Theater box office from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and until curtain time on performance evenings.

Set in the jungles of Mexico in the 1940s, the play deals with the loneliness experienced by a group of adults, how they cope with it, and where this loneliness leads them. The main action takes place on the veranda of a rustic hotel in the mountains. Early in the play, an iguana is captured and tied by its neck under the veranda.

Erika, who was active in drama during her high school years, is majoring in theater at Eastern. She plays Frau Fahrenkopf in "The Night of the Iguana."

She is the daughter of Gerald Odom of Ranier Street, Canton Township.

THE NATIONAL Grange sewing contest, the largest in the nation, is in full swing in Michigan. The contest, sponsored for 23 years, is open to anyone, including adults, both male and female.

There are separate categories for adults, teenagers and children. Prizes are given for winners at the state and national levels.

But is all starts at the local level. Persons who wish to enter the national contest first submit their entries to the Plymouth Grange.

A call to Louise Tritten at 453-6387 is the first step. She has the complete set of contest rules, one of which stipulates the use of a Simplicity pattern.

Mrs. Tritten says the Plymouth Grange encourages entries from members of 4-H clubs and from students who are learning to sew in home economics classes at the schools. The local Grange usually confines its state entries to 15 to 20 items.

Deadline for submitting items to the Plymouth Grange is April 15.

There were more than 500 entries in Michigan last year and more than 250,000 nationally. We may have a national winner in Canton or Plymouth.

Know your own powers, psychic advises

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

The psychic life of Irene Hughes began when she was 4.

She went into a trance, and coming out, informed her mother she was soon to get some beads and a doll. That seemed out of the question for a poor Tennessee family living in a log cabin. But the gifts materialized, from a source that could not have known of the prediction.

That's the account given a Livonia Town Hall audience last week by the little Tennessee country girl who grew up to become a bigtime psychic.

She writes columns, is interviewed on radio shows and gives lectures around the country, and in her local appearance she offered many predictions, gave on the spot readings for members of the audience and tried to inspire her listeners to listen to their psychic selves.

"I think Lech Walesa (Polish Solidarity leader) will die this year" was her only prediction that drew a groan of concern from her audience.

SHE PREDICTED Wayne Williams, on trial for the murder of Atlanta children, will go free. She believes at least five murderers are involved and that it's unlikely all will be found.

On the political and economic front, she declared that Castro's "storm troopers" will march into Central and South America, and that France and Greece will be in the headlines. Gold might cost $1,500 an ounce by August 1983, and rise to $5,000 an ounce in five years.

She warned her audience against flying, signing contracts or speaking too frankly between the dates of Jan. 24 and Feb. 15 because of an eclipse. Then she added that an eclipse "is supposed to be evil, but it doesn't need to be."

"If you have already started those things they will be fulfilled," she explained.

And how about Michigan? It's not dying, the speaker announced. "New things will rise up," she said, "and Michigan will be important in world history in the next two years."

THE CHICAGO psychic told about some strange situations into which her profession led her.

Invited to a houseparty reading, she said she found herself in the home of a man she described as a mobster. A young man there asked for a reading.

"In a light trance I told him he'd be murdered on April 23, a year from then," she recalled. "On April 21 he was found murdered.

"The FBI came to me to find out who did it. Right behind them were the men who did it." She added they they wanted to know what she knew, but "they backed off"

In her lecture and later at the Mayflower Meeting House celebrity luncheon, Mrs. Hughes talked a little of her work with police departments, including a trip to Atlanta during the child murder investigation.

Her work has led to her being threatened a few times, she told her audience, but added ""I am not going in fear."

She painted a bleak picture of the Atlanta murder investigation scene.

About 8,000 children live in the area involved, she said, and they run the streets at all hours.

"Most of the children are are involved with older men, and sell drugs," she told her audience. "We found a lot of mothers on drugs and alcohol. It was sad. I felt horrible. You can't work under conditions like that."

THE PSYCHIC said she sees pictures as she makes predictions.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Betty Murray (left) and Maxine Miller (right), both of Plymouth, talked to psychic Irene Hughes before the celebrity luncheon at the Meeting House.

"The atmosphere is loaded with vibrations," she explained. "Every individual gives off a stream of electromagnetic energy. The energy that flows out forms pictures my brain can see. It will always be the power in my life. It grows and grows throughout the year.

"Am I glad I have it? Yes, ma'am."

Only one time did she feel differently. Harold Hughes, then governor of Iowa, came to her for a reading.

"In a trance I heard myself saying that Robert Kennedy would be shot in six weeks," she said. "Exactly six weeks later he was shot through the head.

"That was the only time I hated being psychic."

THE SPEAKER was only partially successful in her attempts to analyze members of her audience after asking them their birth date.

She told one woman of a medical problem, and this was confirmed. She suggested that another get a second medical opinion.

And she told yet another listener she was in the middle of an emotional divorce, but not a legal one. "I think she's right," that woman said.

But on several occasions she drew a blank look.

"I feel Kansas about you," she told one woman, who could remember no connection with that state. The word Marshall she assigned to those sitting at two tables. No one could recall a connection.

"I know it's there," said the psychic.

Another woman was told her husband was ready to relocate and change his life style. She also saw a man who worked on the railroad in the woman's life, a man with a limp.

This drew no confirmation, but Mrs. Hughes was undisturbed. "The things are there. Maybe you don't see them, but I see them.

"You will."

Oberlin group performs 'Spoon River'

Seven student actors and musicians from Oberlin College will bring "Spoon River Anthology" to the Centennial Educational Park.

The group will spend Tuesday in the Canton Little Theatre, where they will perform Edgar Lee Masters' anthology featuring traditional blue grass and folk music.

In conjunction with their 50-minute dramatic performance, the Oberlin students will hold workshops in acting, classical chamber music, bluegrass, folk and contemporary music. Adam Isidore, student tour manager, will show a short film he directed and produced on the pressure and demands of college life.

The troupe is on tour of high schools in Akron, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton, Delaware, Elyria, Toledo and Ann Arbor. Ruth Tonner, humanities teacher at Plymouth Salem High School and a graduate of Oberlin, arranged for the local performance.

THE PURPOSE OF the tour is to get high school students excited about theater, American literature and music.

"Spoon River Anthology," Masters' 1915 anthology of blank verse, offers beyond-the-grave reminiscences of small-town Midwestern Americans who lived around the turn of the century.

The student production uses its own arrangement of such tunes as "Turkey in the Straw," "Times are Gettin' Hard, Boys" and "Sow Took the Measels" as a background musical commentary.

Musical director of "Spoon River" is Brian Dean, 21, a violinist and mandolinist. He is a junior violin performance major in the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music who sees the music as a way of riveting the students' attention on the play's language and message.

TEACHERS AT Centennial Educational Park will attend classes and workshops of interest to them. Michael Endres and Betty Weideman of the music department will attend the second hour segment on blue grass and contemporary music.

English teachers Dudley Barlow, Joan Claeys, Marj Goss, Sue Welker, Dwight Anderson and Sam Daas and drama teacher Gloria Logan will attend classes during the day.

Members of the troupe are staying in the homes of Oberlin graduates from the Ann Arbor area when in Michigan. They will give three performances in the state — Pioneer High School, Ann Arbor on Monday; Plymouth on Tuesday; and Greenhills School, Ann Arbor on Wednesday.

Residents of the community who would like to attend some part of the performance may call Ruth Tonner, 453-3100, for information.

Civitans announce essay contest topic

The Plymouth-Canton Civitan has announced the topic and the deadline for its annual citizenship essay contest.

The club also has announced an increase in the cash awards for the contest at the local level.

Topic for this year is "Influence in Government — Are your rights as a private citizen being threatened by special interest groups?" All interested high school juniors and seniors are encouraged to compete. Deadline for all entries will be March 15.

Cash prizes will be $100, first place; $50 second place; and $25 third place. The local first place winner is eligible for Civitan district competition. If successful at that level, the winner may go on to international competition. The international essay contest offers a top prize of $1,200 among numerous lesser awrds.

Contestant pamphlets providing necessary details are available from English teachers at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools and from Joe Henshaw, essay contest chairman, of the Canton High science department, 453-3100, Ext. 321.

Henshaw explained the Civitans' purpose in sponsoring the essay contest. "We want to encourage students to study the time-honored and time-tested privileges and responsibilities of citizenship.

"Hopefully, the student's knowledge may then be used to express in writing ideas which relate to good citizenship in the modern world."

Another useful objective is the improvement of basic communication skills, such as expressing oneself clearly and concisely, he said.

LOVE-LY FOODS SAY Happy Valentine's Day

Valentine's Day descended from a Roman feast called Lupercalia, celebrated on February 15. Young women and men chose partners for the festival, exchanged gifts and enjoyed each other's company long after the celebration. The date and name were later changed, and Valentine's Day became a joyful European custom with many romantic beliefs associated with this special occasion.

Although many of the old beliefs and superstitions have changed, the custom of giving candy, kisses or heart-felt sentiments to loved ones is still being practiced.

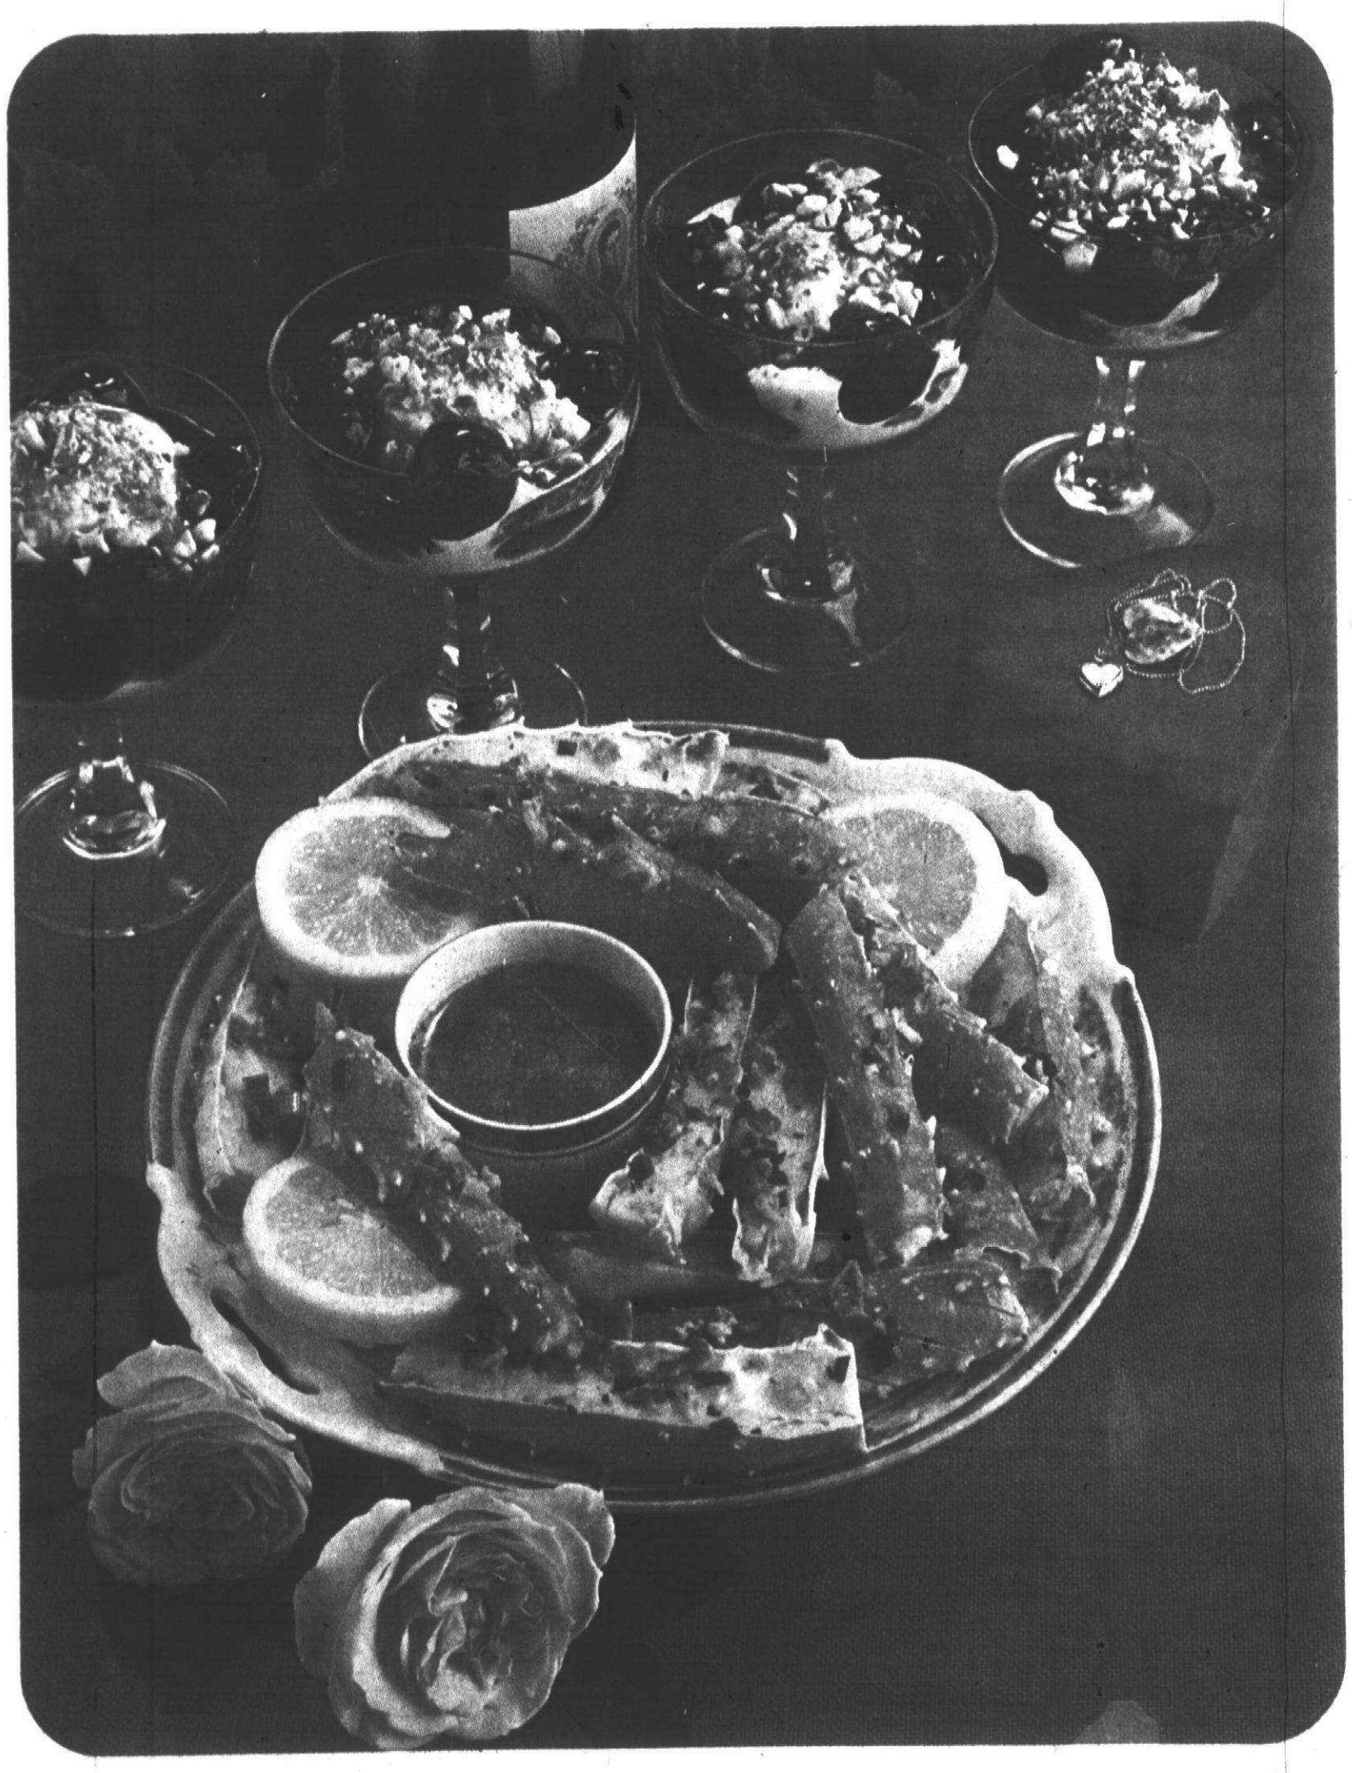
One of the most personal ways to express your sentiments for family and friends is with special foods, prepared with loving care. Two superb valentine dinners are featured here . . . a festive dinner for the family and an elegant company repast.

For a valentine entree to delight your family, serve Heart-y Salmon Patties, a delicious variation of an old favorite. Easy to prepare, nutritious canned salmon is flaked with a fork and combined with bread crumbs, hard-cooked eggs and seasonings. The mixture is shaped into heart-shaped patties, then fried until crisp and golden.

Convenient canned Bartlett pears carry out the valentine message in a delicious Sweetheart Pear Cake. The base is a packaged pound cake mix, accented with crunchy nuts and orange peel. After baking, the cake is topped with sweetened cream cheese and juicy slices of canned pears. A glaze of currant jelly adds a colorful hue. For a final special touch, cream cheese is piped around the edge with a large star tip.

Elegance is combined with convenience in a regal dinner for four. For the distinctive entree, thawed split legs of Alaska King crab are basted with a savory butter sauce as they are broiled. The remaining sauce, a delicious blend of melted butter, bacon, green onion, lemon juice, garlic and tarragon is served on the side.

In an easy-to-prepare version of Cherries Jubilee, Cherries Almondine combines ice cream, a sumptuous sauce of canned dark sweet cherries and almond liqueur, billowy whipped cream and roasted almonds in a brilliant dessert. The dark red Bings or heart-shaped Lamberts lend a festive mood to the occasion and an elegant end to a lovely evening!



HEART-Y SALMON PATTIES

1 can (7-3/4 oz.) salmon
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 hard-cooked eggs, very finely chopped or forced through sieve
1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup minced onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
Oil

Drain and flake salmon; reserve liquid. Combine salmon and reserved liquid with remaining ingredients except oil. Form into 4 heart-shaped patties about 3/4-inch thick; pan fry in hot oil until golden brown on both sides. Makes 4 servings.

Serving Tip: Patties are delicious served with chili sauce, seafood sauce or tartar sauce.

SWEETHEART PEAR CAKE

1 package (16 oz.) pound cake mix
1/4 cup broken nuts
1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 can (29 oz.) Bartlett pear halves or slices
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup red currant jelly, melted and cooled

Prepare pound cake mix according to package directions; stir in nuts and orange peel. Pour half of batter into greased and floured 8 or 9-inch round or heart-shaped cake pan*. Bake at 350°F. 25 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan and finish cooling on wire rack. Drain pears; reserve 2 tablespoons syrup. Slice pears if necessary; blot with paper towel. Beat cream cheese until light and fluffy; beat in reserved pear syrup until mixture can be easily spread. Spread half of cream cheese mixture over top of cooled cake. Just before serving, arrange pear slices over cream cheese. Spoon jelly over pears, coating evenly. Pipe remaining cream cheese mixture around cake, using a pastry bag and large star tip. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

*Remaining batter may be baked in one greased 8-1/2 x 4-1/2 x 2-1/2-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350°F. 35 to 40 minutes.

KING CRAB CASINO

1 to 1-1/2 pounds Alaska King crab legs, split
1/2 cup melted butter
1/4 cup crumbled cooked bacon
2 tablespoons chopped green onion
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon tarragon

Thaw crab if necessary; place on broiler rack. Combine remaining ingredients; brush crab legs with sauce. Broil 5 inches from heat 3 to 4 minutes; brush once with sauce. Heat remaining sauce thoroughly; serve with crab. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Sauce may be doubled, if desired.

CHERRIES ALMONDINE

1 can (16 or 17 oz.) dark sweet cherries
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash salt
1/4 cup almond liqueur
4 large scoops almond roca ice cream
2 to 4 tablespoons roasted, salted almonds, chopped
Whipped cream or topping, if desired

Drain cherries; reserve syrup. Combine cornstarch and salt; gradually blend in reserved syrup. Cook and stir until thickened and clear; stir in liqueur. Let sauce cool slightly; spoon over ice cream. Garnish with chopped almonds and whipped cream or topping, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

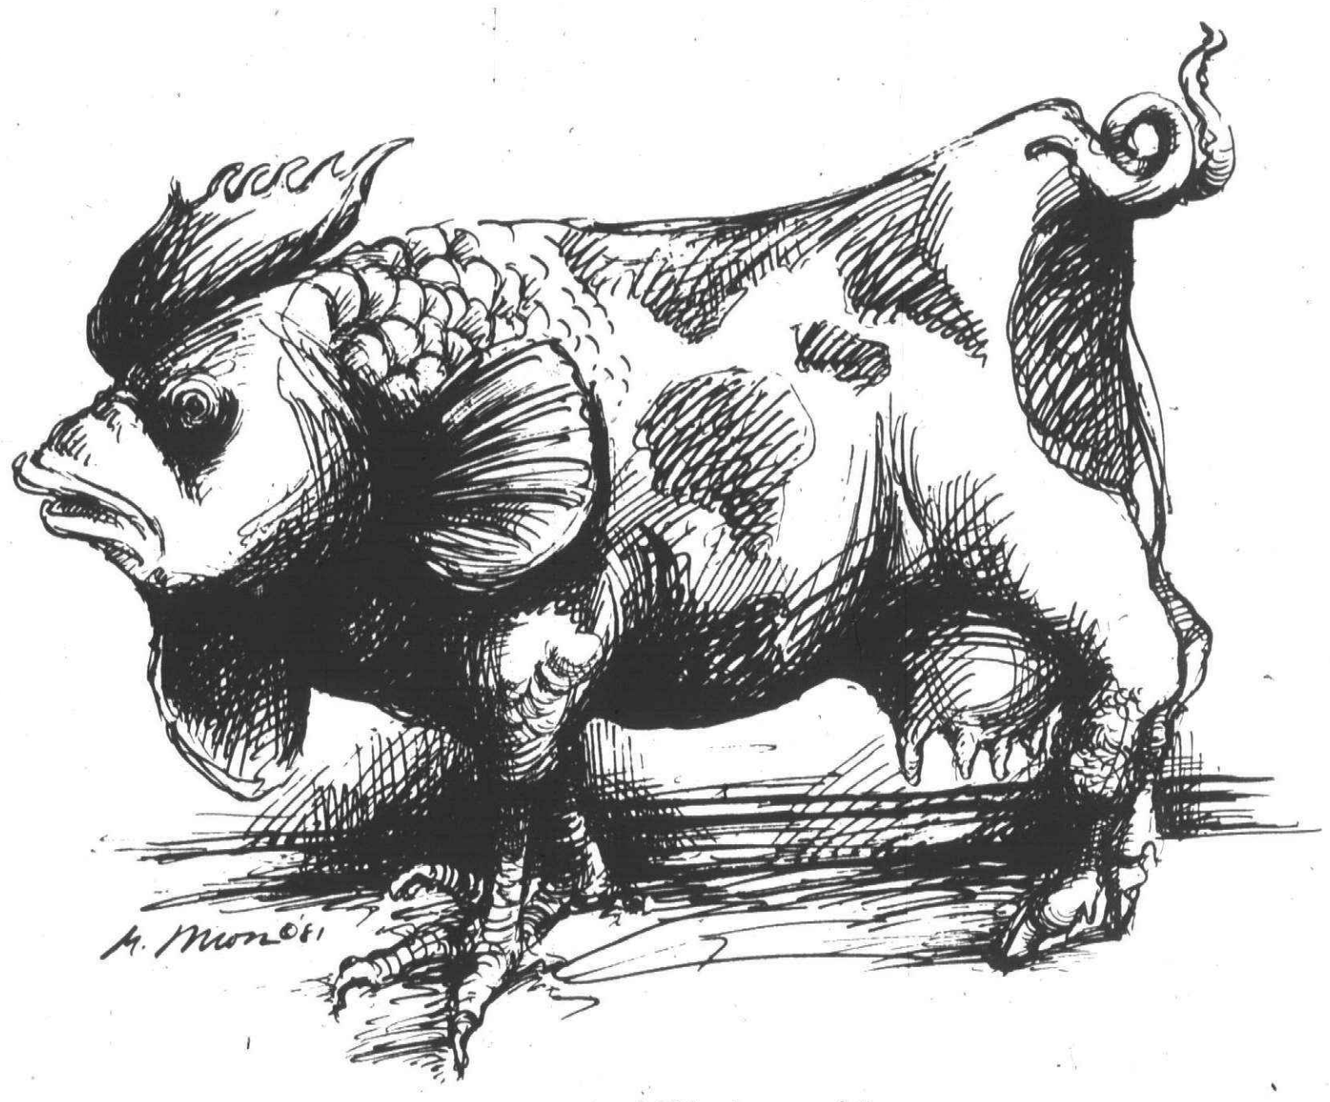
The changing American diet

How good for us are our eating habits?

This is the third in a series of 15 articles exploring "Food and People." In this article, Robert L. Rizek of the Agriculture Department's Consumer Nutrition Center discusses the changes in the American diet, some of which might be damaging to our health. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program of University Extension, University of California, San Diego, with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

1982 by the Regents of the University of California.

By Robert L. Rizek
special writer



At a time when fast-food establishments bombard us with rival claims for better burgers, chicken and filet of fish, it is easy to forget that these foods have not always enjoyed their current popularity.

Yet scarcely more than a generation ago, Americans ate more pork than beef, and chicken hardly competed with red meat at all.

food and people

The fact is that our food habits are changing. Although year-to-year changes are minor, there have been a number of major changes in the American diet since the beginning of the century.

These changes reflect such varied factors as declining birth rates, new methods of processing foods, concerns about health, and changing tastes and social patterns such as eating out frequently. Unfortunately, not all of these changes have been for the better.

As a nation, we are consuming substantially more meat, poultry and fish, and more dairy products other than butter, then we did in 1900. Our consumption of sugar and other sweetners, fats and oils, and processed fruits and vegetables also has increased.

On the other hand, we are eating fewer grain products and fewer potatoes, sweet potatoes and eggs.

These conclusions are based on data from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, including national food supply estimates and Nationwide Food Consumption Surveys (NFCS), conducted periodically from 1935 to 1977-78.

A NATION OF MEAT-EATERS

The striking per-capita increase in meat, poultry and fish consumption is due mainly to our greater use of beef and poultry. From 1900 to 1980, beef consumption increased by three-fourths, reflecting our preference for new, more tender grain-fed beef as well as a greater demand for ground-beef products that are featured by fast-food outlets.

During this same period, poultry consumption increased more than 3½ times, with most of the increase in the past 30 years. Around 1950, poultry became competitive with meat, and more recently, the ever-expanding fast-food establishments have become large users of broilers.

In addition, new methods of raising chickens have lowered production costs and made chicken an attractive buy in a period of inflation.

The 1977-78 NFCS showed the popularity of meat, poultry and fish. More than 90 percent of the respondents reported eating at least one food from this group on the day of the survey. The average daily intake of these foods, including mixtures containing them, was slightly more than seven ounces per person.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

Consumption of dairy products — other than butter — also has increased. Today, it is about one-fourth higher than at the beginning of the century, although almost 15 percent lower than at its peak in the mid-1940s.

There have, however, been dramatic changes in the mix of dairy products consumed. Currently, we eat more than four times as much cheese as we did in 1900 — a reflection of the growing popularity of pizza and cheese and crackers as snack foods.

In contrast, we have seen a continuing decline in the consumption of liquid whole milk in the past 25 years. This is probably a result of the declining proportion of children in our population.

Concerns about diet also may have played a part in this decline, as the use of liquid lowfat milks increased substantially during this period.

FATS AND OILS

Fat and oil consumption in 1980 was about 1½ times as much as in the early 1900s, and there have been dramatic shifts in the types of fats consumed.

We eat three-fourths less butter, two-thirds less lard. In contrast, we are eating eight times more margarine — a reflection of the improved quality of the product and its price advantage over butter.

The growing demand for liquid oil by food manufacturers, the fast-food industry and consumers alike also has led to a sharp increase in the use of cooking and salad oils in the past three decades.

AMERICA'S SWEET TOOTH

America's sweet tooth has continued to grow: Consumption of sugar and other sweeteners is up by one-half since the early 1900s. The use of refined sugars recently has declined, but this has been more than offset by a four-fold increase in the use of corn syrup.

Soft-drink consumption, which has tripled in the past 20 years to more than 38 gallons per person, accounts for almost one-fifth of our total use of sweeteners.

Please turn to Page 5B

Despite the urgings of generations of mothers to "eat your vegetables," our per capita consumption of fruits and vegetables has not changed much from the beginning of the century and is, in fact, down slightly from the peak levels of the mid-1940s.

Baked chicken with parmesan

Chicken can be prepared in an infinite variety of ways if the cook isn't "chicken" to try something new. Opening the oven to a new chicken recipe can be as magical as pulling a rabbit out of the hat, if there's a special ingredient involved.

Actually, chicken has had a mystical aura around it for hundreds of years. In the 16th century a cooked chicken was a symbol of abundance and plenty. During this time, King Henri IV of France reputedly said that he wished there would be no peasant in all his kingdom who was too poor to have a chicken in his pot every Sunday.

Today, King Henri's wish has been realized in a way. Poultry is one of the most reasonably priced, high-quality protein meats available.

Using a familiar ingredient in an unfamiliar way is the trick to this magical recipe. Parmesan is one of the best known of all Italian cheeses but not often associated with oven-fried dishes like the one with chicken below. Rather, this sharp, zesty cheese is commonly known as a kitchen must for soups, pastas, salads and stews.

OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN PARMESAN

½ cup (2 oz.) grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. paprika
½ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
2½ to 3 lb. broiler-frier, cut up
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tbsp. milk
¼ cup margarine

Combine cheese, flour and seasonings. Dip chicken in combined egg and milk; coat with cheese mixture. Place in baking dish; pour margarine over chicken. Bake at 350, 1 hour or until tender.

Is the food we eat harming our health?

But, while Americans eat more sugar in their processed foods and beverages, they are trying to cut back on their use of "visible" sugars. Our 1977 intake of sugar, syrups, honey, molasses, jellies and jams, and candy was only one-third to one-half what it was in 1965, according to the NFCS.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Despite the urgings of generations of mothers to "eat your vegetables," our per capita consumption of fruits and vegetables has not changed much from the beginning of the century and is, in fact, down slightly from the peak levels of the mid-1940s.

But there has been a remarkable shift from fresh to processed forms as a result of the introduction of freezing and improved methods of canning and dehydration.

For example, our per capita consumption of processed citrus products is 25 times as great as it was in the late 1930s, before frozen concentrates were developed. We now eat only half as much fresh citrus products as processed.

Our consumption of processed vegetables and fruits other than citrus has increased 400 percent since the early 1900s.

FOODS OUT OF FAVOR

In contrast to the increases in many basic foods, there has been a substantial decline in the consumption of grain products and of potatoes and sweet potatoes.

Americans today consume only slightly more than half the grain products and two-fifths the potatoes and sweet potatoes that we consumed in 1909-13.

As with other vegetables, however, consumption of processed potatoes has increased markedly and now represents about one-third of all white potatoes eaten.

Most of these are in the form of french fries, with the fast-food industry using about three-fourths of all frozen french fries packed.

Egg consumption, too, has decreased — only slightly from early in the century, but more than 25 percent from peak consumption in the 1940s. Changes in lifestyles, such as skipping breakfast, as well as research suggesting a link between cholesterol and heart disease, may account for the decline in average egg consumption.

Interestingly, though, this decline has not been uniform: Fewer people eat eggs now than in 1967, according to NFCS data, but those who do eat them eat more. The decline was particularly noticeable among men under 35.

DIET AND HEALTH

These changes in the amounts and kinds of foods that make up the American diet have altered the levels of nutrients we consume. Of greatest concern are the new higher levels of fats and sugar, which, in excessive amounts, have been associated with heart disease and other health problems.

These research findings and our changing diet led the Departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services to issue a set of Dietary Guidelines for Americans in 1980.

These guidelines included recommendations for reducing our consumption of fats, sugar and salt.

If Americans truly are concerned about their health, we are likely to see a turnabout in some of the trends that have been developing in the American diet.

There's no questioning value of new IRAs

What major changes did the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 make in IRAs and Keogh plans?

Most importantly, the Individual Retirement Account program was greatly expanded to cover everyone who works for a living whether they have pension or retirement plans at work or not. This is the so-called "universal IRA," which will make these retirement savings plans available to a vast new market. Formerly, only people who were not active participants in pension or retirement plans at work were allowed to have IRAs.

In addition, the new law increases the annual dollar limits on contributions to both IRAs and Keogh plans, which are for the self-employed. And it eliminates the percentage of income restriction that formerly applied to IRA contributions.

What are the new IRA contribution limits?

The new limits are $2,000 or 100 percent of compensation, whichever is less, for individuals. In effect this means anyone who earned $2,000 or more can contribute up to $2,000. Working couples who file jointly can now contribute up to $2,000 each, or a total of $4,000, but their IRAs must be separately maintained.

Contribution limits for so-called "spousal IRAs," where only one spouse works during the year, were increased to $2,250 or 100 percent of compensation, whichever is less.

What are the new Keogh annual contribution limits?

Up to $15,000 or 15 percent of self-employment income, whichever is less.

When do these changes take effect?

For taxable years after Dec. 31, 1981.

What are the benefits of an IRA or Keogh plan?

To begin with, contributions are sheltered from taxation. If you contribute $2,000 to an IRA or Keogh plan in 1982 and are in a 26-percent bracket, this reduces your income tax bill for 1982 by 26 percent of $2,000, which is $520.

Equally important, the money your IRA or Keogh plan continues to earn over the year is also sheltered from taxation until you begin withdrawing it.

What kinds of IRA and Keogh investments can people make?

Savings accounts and certificates at savings and loan associations and other depository institutitions, mutual funds; so-called "self-directed" plans buying and selling stocks, bonds or anything else not specifically barred by law; insurance annuities or endowment contracts, and individual retirement bonds, which are special bonds issued by the federal government.

What IRA and Keogh investments are specifically barred by law?

The new tax law, which went in effect Jan. 1, bars IRA and Keogh investments in self-direct plans that buy collectibles, such as any work of art, rug, antique, metal, gem, stamp, coin, alcoholic beverage or other item of tangible personal property. Any such investments made after that date will be considered distributions from the plan in the tax year in which the investments are made.

How long must people keep money in IRAs or Keogh plans?

Unless you are permenently disabled, the IRS will penalize you for making any withdrawals before you are age 59½. The amount withdrawn must be included in your ordinary income for that year. In addition, you must pay a 10-percent premature distribution tax on the amount withdrawn.

Can people with Keogh plans have IRAs, and can people with IRAs have Keogh plans?

Yes. Self-employment income qualifies for both types of plans. If you earned $100,000 from self-employment, you could contribute the maximum $15,000 ($100,000 x 15 percent) to a Keogh plan. Because you had earned more than $2,000, you could also contribute $2,000 to an IRA, for a tax-sheltered total of $17,000 that year.

Does money contributed to an IRA or Keogh plan have to come directly from compensation? Or can it come from savings or other investment sources?

Although the contribution must be based on elgible compensation, the actual dollar put in can come from any source, provided you don't borrow it, and then deduct the interest on your tax return. Interest on loans to make any tax-sheltered investment, including IRA and Keogh contributions, is not deductible.

When are taxes paid on money sheltered in IRAs and Keogh plans?

When money is withdrawn, it is taxed as ordinary income in the year withdrawn. If it is withdrawn in a lump sum, you may find it to yor advantage to use the five-year income-averaging rule. If it is withdrawn in installments, often you will be in a lower tax bracket than when you earned it.

What happens if I die before all the money in my IRA or Keogh plan is withdrawn?

The money that remains goes to your designated beneficiary or beneficiaries and will be taxed when withdrawn. However, beneficiaries have a number of options, and these should be discussed with a tax adviser.

How long can I continue contributing to an IRA or Keogh plan?

Until the year in which you reach age 70½, at which time you are required to begin withdrawing it, either all in a lump sum or on a regular schedule.

Between ages 59½ and 70½, can I continue contributing to an IRA plan even though I may also be making withdrawals from it?

Yes, provided you are earning compensation that qualifies for the contributions.

INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

How much time do people have left to open an IRA and shelter 1982 income from taxation?

Until April 15, 1983, or the date when they file their 1982 tax return.

How many IRAs can a person have?

As many as you like, just so long as your total contributions to all of them in any tax year don't exceed the $2,000 limit for individual taxpayers and $2,250 for spousal IRAs.

O&E

Are you required to contribute to an IRA every year?

As far as the IRS is concerned, no.

Can you move money from one IRA to another?

As far as the IRS is concerned, yes — provided you follow its rules.

You are allowed one rollover between IRAs every 12 months or more. With a rollover you can withdraw the money yourself and you have 60 days to invest the money in another IRA. If you fail to put the money in another IRA within 60 days, it will be considered a distribution.

Bear in mind, however, that there may be withdrawal fees or penalities charged by the sponsor of the IRA being rolled over.

Are there other kinds of IRA rollovers?

Yes. If you are given a distribution from a pension or retirement plan at work, you can shelter it from taxation by rolling it over into an IRA or IRAs within 60 days. Or if you wish, you would take part of the distribution into your income for that year (and pay taxes on it), and roll the remainder over into an IRA or IRAs.

What are the rules on withdrawing money from an IRA after you reach age 59½?

Between ages 59½ and 70½, you may withdraw as much or as little as you like. After age 70½, you must either take it all in a lump sum or take minimum annual payments based on your life expectancy, or the combined life expectancy of you and your spouse.

In addition to taking money out before age 59½, are there any other actions that can subject people with IRAs to IRS penalties?

Yes, and for some, the penalties can be even more severe than for a premature distribution. If you engage in what the IRS calls a "prohibited transaction," your entire IRA is disqualified and must be taken into ordinary income for that year.

In addition, if you are below age 59½ and are not disabled, you would have to pay the 10-percent premature distribution tax.

What are these "prohibited transactions?

Borrowing money from your IRA, selling property to your IRA, and receiving "unreasonable compensation" for managing your IRA.

Can you use your IRA as security for a loan?

No.

Suppose I contribute too much to an IRA?

You can avoid most penalties by withdrawing the excess contribution, as well as all the earnings, before you file your federal income tax return for that year. However, if you are under age 59½ and are not disabled, you will have to pay a 10-percent premature distribution tax on the earnings of the excess contribution.

As an alternative, under some circumstances you can carry the excess contribution forward into the following year. In this case, however, you would have to pay a 6-percent excise tax on it for each year it remains in your IRA until the excess is credited against an allowable future year contribution.

If I withdrew money from an IRA before I was age 59½, how would the IRS know about it?

The sponsor is required to report it to the IRS. You are also required to file a special tax form reporting it. The sponsor is also required to report all other distributions from your IRA, with information copies of the reporting forms sent to you.

What are the new contribution rules for spousal IRAs?

In addition to the higher limit of $2,250 (or 100 percent of income, whichever is less), it's no longer required that spousal IRAs be divided equally between two spouses.

What happens if the unmarried spouse gets a job or earns other compensation during the year?

In that case a spousal IRA contribution cannot be made. However, a regular IRA contribution could be made, governed by the more liberal rules for such a contribution.

Can a couple with a spousal IRA combine the money in a single account or investment?

No. As before, each spouse must have his or her IRA. However, if they wish each can name the other as beneficiary.

What happens if there's a divorce?

Under the new rules, a divorced spouse is allowed to use alimony along with compensaion as a basis for contribution to a "divorced spouse" IRA; if certain conditions are met.

The new rules allow contributions if an IRA was established for the divorced spouse at least five years before the divorce. Also, the former spouse must have made spousal contributions to the divorced spouse's IRA for at least three of the five years preceding the divorce.

If these conditions are met, contributions can be made up to the lesser of $1,125 or the total of the divorced spouse's compensation and alimony included in gross income. (If the divorced spouse has compensation of more than $1,125, however, a regular IRA contribution can be made up to the higher limits as long as no alimony is counted.)

Must working couples file a joint return if they both have IRAs?

No. They may file individual returns if they wish. (The requirement for a joint return applies only if a working spouse makes and wishes to deduct an IRA contribution for a non-working spouse.)

For married couples, would an IRA affect the new marriage penalty deduction in the tax law?

Yes. In 1982, a two-earner married couple filing a joint return may deduct from gross income up to 5 percent of the first $30,000 of income earned by the low-earning spouse. This deduction will increase to 10 percent after 1982.

If the lower-earning spouse has an IRA, the IRA deduction must be taken first. This will reduce that spouse's earned income for purposes of the marriage penalty deduction.

For instance if the lower-earning spouse earned $10,000 in 1982, the deduction without an IRA would be 5 percent of that, or $500. But if that spouse had contributed $2,000 to an IRA, the $2,000 would have to be subtracted from the $10,000 before calculating the marriage penalty deduction in this case 5 percent of $8,000, or $400, a difference of $100.

If you have an IRA, must you file any extra forms at income tax time?

Only if you owe a penalty tax for that year. In that case, you must file a form 5329, "Return for Individual Retirement Arrangement Taxes."

KEOGH PLANS

How much time do people have to open Keogh plans and shelter 1982 income from taxation?

Until Dec. 31, 1982. However, the full contribution need not be made until April 15, 1983, or the date when people file their 1982 tax return.

What are the major differences between Keogh plans and IRAs?

All Keogh income must come from self-employment or owning your own business. In addition, the annual contribution limit is now $15,000 or 15 percent of income, whichever is less. And if you have employees who have been working for you at least three years, you must include them in your Keogh plan.

As with IRAs, you are subject to the premature distribution penalty if you take money out of a Keogh plan before age 59½. However, where IRAs allow you to take as much or as little out as you wish each year between ages 59½ and 70½. With a Keogh plan, you must either take it all in a lump sum or start a regular withdrawal program.

Also, Keogh plans cannot be "rolled over" into other Keogh plans so you cannot change investments by handling the money yourself. To change investments, you must give written instructions and the money must be transferred directly from one sponsor to another.

Are the rules and penalties for premature distribution, excess contributions, and prohibited transactions the same for Keogh plans as for IRAs?

Substantially, yes. However, when the Keogh plan sponsor has employees, there may be other adverse tax consequences, as well. For details, consult a tax adviser.

Are you required to contribute to a Keogh plan every year?

Only if you have employees who are covered by the plan. Anyone with a Keogh plan has or is considering hiring employees should consult with a tax adviser on these rules.

NEW IRA/KEOGH RETIREMENT ACCOUNT

What is the new IRA/Keogh retirement account?

A new time deposit category available only to IRA and Keogh account holders. It can be offered by any insured financial institutions that are subject to federal supervision.

How does the new IRA/Keogh retirement account work?

It has a minimum term of 1½ years and is not subject to regulated interest rate ceilings. This means an institution may issue these accounts either with any fixed rate is wishes, or with an interest rate that floats (changes periodically).

May these accounts have terms longer than 18 months?

Yes. The 18 months is a minimum only. An institution may offer them for any longer term up to 10 years.

If the interest rate is to change periodically, on what basis can changes be made?

Either of two methods may be used.

In one, changes are controlled by movements of an index that must be readily verifiable and beyond the institution's control. Examples include interest rates on U.S. Teasury securities, commercial paper and other actively traded financial instruments.

In the other, changes are made according to a predetermined earnings schedule. The institution may establish any predetermined schedule it wishes. For instance, it could establish one paying 12 per cent for the first six months, 12.5 per cent for the next six months and 13 per cent fo the third six-month period.

Are institutions required to accept additions during the term of the account?

No. Whether additions will be accepted is optional with the instituiton and is established in your certificate contract.

If an addition is made during the term of an account but the interest rate has changed, because of a change in either an index or a predetermined earnings schedule, which interest rate applies to the addition?

The rate in effect at the time the addition is made. Thereafter, of course, the rate on the addition will further change if there are further changes in the index or schedule.

What is the penalty for early withdrawl from the new IRA/Keogh account?

The loss of at least six months earnings on the amount withdrawn, calculated as a simple interest rate. The penalty applies irrespetive of how long the money has been in account.

What happens at the end of the account term?

If it contains an automatic renewal clause, it will be automatically renewed unless (1) it is withdrawn within a grace period of 7-10 days after maturity, as specified in the contract or (2) the institution gives notice that the account will not be renewed on its previous terms. In that case, the account coverts to a regular savings account and is paid the regular rate. If it is not automatically renewable, then it reverts to regular rate without such notice.

If the account is renewed, must the interest be paid on the same basis as when it was originally issued?

No. It can be calculated in a different way. But if the association changes the basis on which the interest is paid, it must give written notice to the account holder explaining the change at least 15 days before the maturity date.

— United States League of Savings Associations

The chart (below) shows how a $2,000-per-year IRA contribution would appreciate in value. At right, the growing black bar shows how much faster your money grows by not paying taxes on $2,000 saved per year. (Graph assumes 10-percent return and 25-percent tax bracket.)

Chiefs play keep away, but Stevenson triumphs

By Jay Keenan
special writer

Plymouth Canton found a substantial way Friday night to prevent Livonia Stevenson from running up the score early.

The host Chiefs, who were drilled at the outset by the Spartans in their previous meeting in the finals of the Plymouth Salem Christmas Classic, kept the score close until halfway through the third period with delaying tactics.

But the strategy went for naught when Canton went to pieces in the second half. Stevenson eventually rolled to a 49-26 non-league basketball win.

The Chiefs started out with guard Tom Harris doing a waltz with the basketball near the five-second jump line. The Chiefs led in the early going, 3-0, but the quick Spartan squad forced a few errors and answered with eight straight points. They increased their lead to 14-6 at intermission.

"I think he (Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner) stalled because he felt that with us, it was what they had to do in order to beat us," said Spartan coach George Van Wagoner, who beat his nephew for the third straight time. "They felt that slowing down the game was the best way for them to have a chance at beating us.

"But Canton worked hard, and you have to give them credit."

ALTHOUGH the Spartans had control of the game, Canton's stategy was working midway through the third quarter. The Chiefs trailed by only six, 16-10, after Mike Scarpello's second layup of the period.

But it was all downhill after that, as Stevenson's defense created several Canton turnovers.

Junior guard Gary Mexicotte pumped in all seven of Stevenson's third-quarter points to lead his team to a 21-10 advantage.

In the fourth quarter, Canton opened things up and began to falter, giving Stevenson the green light. The Spartans outscored their opponents 28-16, with 16 points coming from the free throw line.

During the final eight minutes, Canton was hampered by foul trouble, as Matt Thomas and Scarpello fouled out with five personals each.

Senior Pat Martin scored 13 points to lead Stevenson. Reserve Curt Ullstrom added 10, all coming in the final period. Mexicotte finished with nine.

Thomas and Scarpello each had six for Canton.

"I THINK we're really improving as a team," said the Spartan coach. The Spartans' record is now 12-1. "It's not a 'me' concept on this team. It's 'we.'"

Meanwhile, the other Van Wagoner remains optimistic despite his team's 1-12 record and the departure of center Steve Tuttle. Tuttle left the team earlier in the week for personal reasons and family obligations.

"I'm really happy with the way we played," he said. "The strategy gave us a chance to win.

"Stevenson had better players. It was to our advantage to stay as close as we could, and we did that by icing the ball and staying the game. We just didn't execute in the fourth quarter."

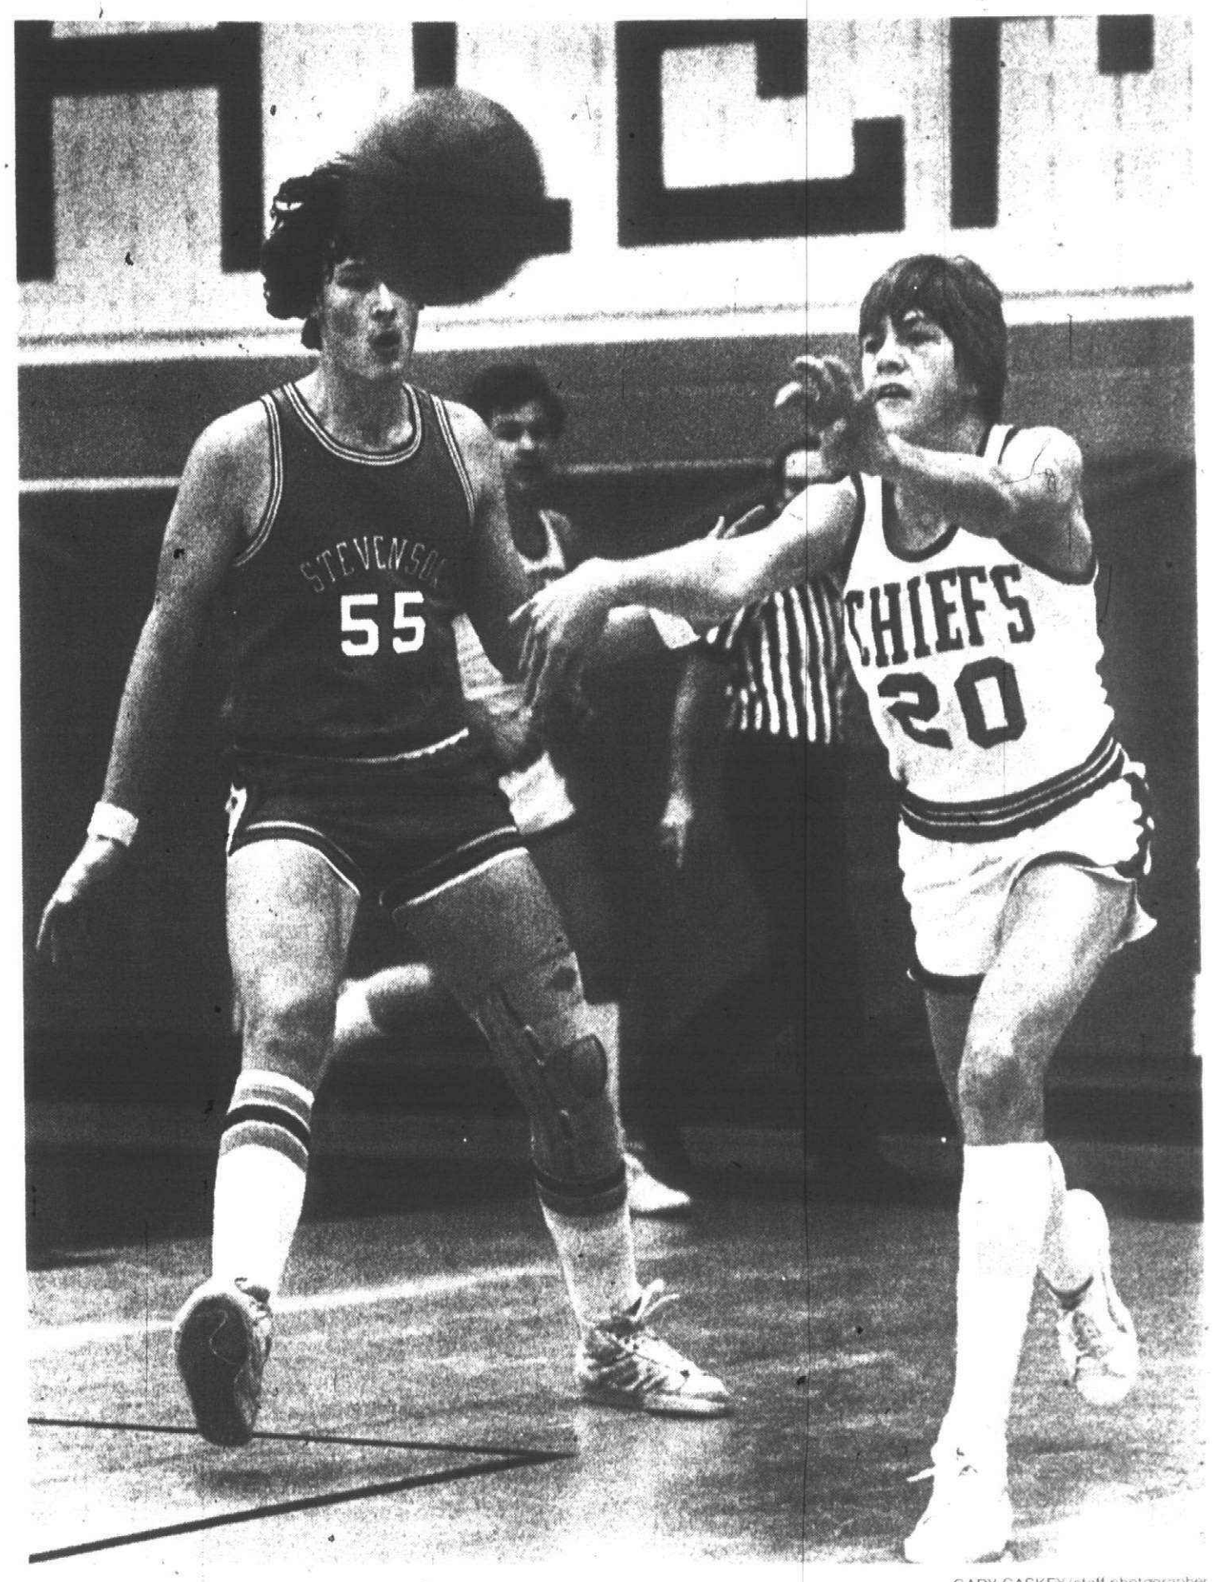
It was a game of cat-and-mouse as Canton guard Tom Harris demonstrates by dribbling back-and-forth between the five-second mark. Canton's stall tactics, however, failed against Stevenson, 49-26.



GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

Mark Bennett (right) of carries out his part of the Canton stall plan by passing back out to a teammate near the mid-court line. Stevenson's Pat Martin makes sure Bennett doesn't get any ideas about going to the basket.

Eagles soar in OT

John Koss stole the ball and scored on a layup early in overtime and Plymouth Christian never trailed after that as the Eagles bested Detroit Bethesda Temple, 55-51, Friday at Pioneer Middle School in Plymouth.

Plymouth Christian's full-court press forced the Temple turnover that led to Koss' basket. The Eagles had a chance to win it in regulation, missing a shot with eight seconds left and the score tied at 47-all.

Plymouth Christian's 27-23 halftime advantage disappeared in the third quarter as Bethesda Temple outpointed the Eagles, 14-8, to take a 37-35 lead.

Salem puts Belleville in cradle

The battle between wrestling unbeatens in the Suburban Eight League proved to be a big mismatch.

Plymouth Salem served notice that it plans to regain the league title it possessed two years ago by beating visting Belleville Thursday night, 55-10.

The Rocks, now 5-0 in league duals and 10-2 overall, dominated things most of the night.

"We still have to go against Edsel Ford Thursday," cautioned Salem coach Ron Krueger. "I wouldn't say we're the favorite yet."

In the feature match of the night, Salem's Marty Piper, fourth best in Class A last year in the heavyweight class, decisioned Melvin Richendollar, 4-3.

"Marty had two big wins this week," said Krueger. "He beat Calvin (Mike) of Temperance-Bedford (on Tuesday) who was second in the state, and beat Richendollar, who was sixth in the state (at 200 pounds) last year."

Four Salem grapplers won by falls — Bill Hall (107) pinned Jim Goff in 1:24, Rob McDonald (134) over Tony Luechli in 3:01, John Beaudoin (140) pinned Scott Brooks in 1:31, and John Woochuk (169) took down Ron Chudzinski in 1:05.

Cagers surge in 2nd half

Rocks cut loose at Trenton

Plymouth Salem exploded in the second half to nail down its sixth-straight Suburban Eight League basketball victory over host Trenton Friday night, 78-54.

The Rocks, who struggled in their own gym earlier in the season to beat Trenton, had problems again in the first half.

John Kelliher's shot at the buzzer gave Salem a 26-25 advantage.

But in the third quarter, senior Mike McBride got cranked up as he notched 10 of his game-high 26 points as Salem outscored the Trojans 23-12. Senior center Norm Haygood added three baskets during the outburst.

In the fourth quarter, Salem drilled in 29 points to win going away.

"Our defense was excellent in the fourth quarter," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We got the break going off of it and we were patient, getting the ball inside. We had some tremendous scoring opportunities and offensively we made some good cuts."

Kelliher, John Cohen and Scott Bublin combined for 31 points off the bench.

DAVE GALKO, a 6-foot-6 center, paced Trenton with 14 points. Devin Hart and Rod Scharboneau chipped in with 13 and 10, respectively.

Salem, now 9-3 overall, meets Livonia Bentley Tuesday at home on the first-ever Family Night. The head of the family pays $2 with the next person admitted half-off ($1). Accompanying children (two maximum) will be admitted free. Two high school students can be admitted for the price of one $2 ticket.

Prep swim clubs dunk opponents

Standouts Pete Stern and Ron Hurley were out of the lineup because of illness but it didn't matter as Plymouth Canton bombarded Farmington Harrison Thursday in a Western Six League swim meet, 108-56.

The Chiefs raised their season record to 6-2 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Canton swept two events.

Bob Lewelling took first in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:08.0, and right behind were teammates Pete Sickels (1:08.5) and Joe Gibbons (1:09.47).

Jim and John Luce finished one-two in the 100 breaststroke with times of 1:06.9 and 1:11.7, respectively. Greg Schnurstein was third in 1:12.3.

Other Canton firsts were recorded by John Simone, 200 individual medley, 2:09.13; Jerry Fleisher, diving, 169.0 (points); and Matt Krawzak, 100 freestyle, 56.6.

The foursome of Lewelling, Jim Luce, Schnurstein and Gibbons took first in the 200 medley relay (1:55.90). Sickels, John Luce, Simone and Simrak took second (1:56.17).

Canton also won the 400 freestyle relay as Simrak, Krawzak, Glenn Plagens and Scott Simmons posted a time of 3:44.89.

Second-place Canton finishers included Plagens, 50 free, 25.1; Sickels, 100 fly, 1:02.2, and 100 back, 1:08.5; John Luce, 100 free, 59.1, and 100 breaststroke, 1:11.7; and Craig Vanderburg, diving, 149.0.

SALEM 100½
BELLEVILLE 65½

John Thompson captured first place in two events and anchored the Rocks' winning 400 free relay team in a 100½-65½ Suburban Eight League swim victory Thursday over Belleville.

He teamed up with Erik Kleinsmith, Scott Anderson and Tim Harwood to win the relay in 3:34.9. Teammates Jeff Walker, Jeff Neschich, Chuck Eudy and Tim Ahlgren were second in 3:57.1.

Thompson was victorious in the 200 free (1:56.7) and 100 free (52.6).

Other Salem swimmers gaining first were Harwood, 200 IM, 2:09.3; Joe Rudelic, diving, 280.5; Jeff Kleinsmith, 100 fly, 58.1; and Russ Shaffer, 100 backstroke, 1:00.3.

The Rocks were also best in the 200 medley relay with a clocking of 1:46.5. That team consisted of Paul Neschich, Ashley Long, J. Kleinsmith and Shaffer.

Salem, now 8-1 overall, also had a host of second-place finishers — Long, 100 breaststroke, 1:06.3; E. Kleinsmith, 500 free, 5:25.4; Harwood, 100 free, 53.0; Todd Riedel, diving, 206.35 (career high); Bob Bowling, 50 free, 24.3; and Shaffer, 200 IM, 2:11.4.

Canton grapplers tough

Four wrestlers scored pins Thursday as Plymouth Canton won its final dual meet in the Western Six League with a resounding 52-18 decision over Farmington Harrison.

Canton bows out with nine straight wins in the league, which will dissolve at the end of this year. Next fall it will become one division of the newly formed Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Chiefs, now 11-3 overall, will close out their dual-meet season Tuesday at home against Livonia Stevenson (14-3).

"We still have the league meet (Feb. 13 at Northville), but it's good to go out a winner in your last dual," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko. "This is the second year we've been unbeaten."

Canton won the first nine matches before Harrison was able to score.

Four Chiefs recorded falls — Todd Gattoni (100 pounds) pinned Dennis Romps in 3:01, Kevin Decker (128) pinned Don Stewart in 3:47, Brett Haarala (134) downed Marty Dugas in 2:50, and Steve Hamblin (147) slammed Curt George in 2:39.

OTHER CANTON matmen gaining victories were Chris Cifaldi (107), who decisioned Rob Davis, 13-0; Todd Bartlett (114) defeated Greg McCoy, 8-2; Tim Collins (121) decisioned Steve Timmons, 9-2; and Marty Heaton (157) beat Dave Dickson, 16-3.

Canton's Rich Bardelli (140) and Wain Yeung (169) won by default.

Harrison winners were Dave Blackmer (187), who toppled Don Page, 12-2; Eric Wemyss (200), who pinned Paul Fletcher in 1:24, and Jerry Eizen (heavyweight) who won on a fall in 3:27 over Alex Young.

Earlier in the week, Canton spilt a double-dual meet at Wayne Memorial. The Chiefs were beaten by Harper Woods Notre Dame in the opener, 33-30, but came back to beat Catholic Central in the nightcap, 52-18.

Canton winners against CC were Gattoni, Collins, Decker, Brian Lee (134), Haarala, Hamblin, Heaton, Young and Fletcher.

Gymnasts win dual

Plymouth Canton turned out to be the most prepared team in a 111.5-97.0 girls' gymnastics victory over Wayne Memorial Wednesday.

Because of some scheduling uncertainty, both teams were informed about the event less than 24 hours prior to the Wednesday's starting time.

"Gymnastics is not a sport where you say 'Oh, we have a meet tonight,'" said Canton coach John Cunningham. "Our girls found out the morning of the meet and Wayne Memorial was told the night before.

"We just weren't mentally prepared. It takes a couple of days to gear up."

Despite the tardy notice, Canton missed qualifying for a spot in the regional by only five-10ths of a point.

The Chiefs, now 3-1 overall in dual meets, swept the first five places in vault led by Laura Michalik's 8.1 score. She was followed by teammates Amy Albaugh, second, 7.9; Linda Beale, third, 7.9; Ruthann Trout, fourth, 6.8; and Theresa Wheeler, fifth, 6.0.

BEALE captured the uneven parallel bars event with a score of 8.0. Michalik was second, 7.0; Wheeler, third, 5.9; and Trout, sixth, 5.4.

Wayne's Tammy Rumple won the balance beam and floor exercise with identical scores of 7.8.

Trailing Rumple in the beam were Beale, second, 7.7; Michalik, third, 7.2; Lisa Lovich, fifth, 6.0; and Amy Albaugh, sixth, 5.7.

Michalik and Beale were second and third, respectively, on floor with scores of 7.7 and 7.5. Albaugh was fifth (6.9) and Lovich was sixth (6.8).

Chiefs 'spike' Harrison

Plymouth Canton spiked its way Wednesday to a 15-2, 15-2, Western Six League volleyball triumph over host Farmington Harrison.

The Chiefs are now 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the league.

Harrison, in another rebuilding year, was unable to cope with the spiking of Denise Wright, Polly Roberts, Missy McMurry and Debbie Dickinson.

Kelly Arvin started for Kris Harrison and did a creditable job, according to coach Cyndi Burnstein.

ALLEN PARK 14-15-15
SALEM 16-8-10

Plymouth Salem had its chances Wednesday but victim to host Allen Park in a Suburban Eight League volleyball match, 14-16, 15-8, 15-10.

"We didn't receive serves well," said Salem first-year coach Jeanne Martin, whose team slipped to 2-2 overall.

It's YOUR Money
by Charles H. Williams, C.P.A.
KEEP MORE OF THAT SECOND INCOME
The new tax law is going to make it more worthwhile to bring a second income into your home—whether it is a job for the wife or a new sideline business. If in the past years it "didn't pay to work," look again.
Two changes will permit a working wife to keep more of what she earns. The new rules for Individual Retirement Accounts will, starting this year, allow a person to put away (and deduct) as much as 100 percent of income, up to $2,000 a year. The new marriage penalty relief provisions permit a couple to deduct up to five percent of the income of the lower-earning spouse, up to $1,500 in 1982; after that, the deduction will be raised to ten percent or $3,000. Uncle Sam helps the working mother further with child-care credits.
Several tax law provisions help you with a sideline business. There will be faster depreciation of equipment and other business property, and slightly lower tax rates for the corporation that earns less than $50,000 (as most sideline businesses do—at least at first); if that business is not incorporated, then lower personal income taxes should help.
That second business may also enable you to hire your spouse (it has to be real job with real duties, though), enabling him or her to qualify for retirement account deductions and possible child-care credit, too.
There's another plus for the self-employed—the chance to open a Keogh plan tax-deferred retirement account, now with more generous provisions. Indeed, when all the provisions in the new law for tax-deferred retirement accounts go into effect, it will be possible for a worker to have a corporate pension plan on the job; a Keogh plan account for his sideline, second-income business; and an Individual Retirement Account for extra savings.

British athletes competing in the 1924 Paris Olympics are spotlighted in "Chariots of Fire," an inspirational film.

the movies

Louise Snider

Elevating theme marks true story of Paris Olympics

When did you last see a movie with a hero you cared about? Someone who acted on principle? Someone who followed his conscience?

And when did you last see a movie that left you feeling better about the human race?

"Chariots of Fire" (PG) is such a movie. The true story of two British athletes who participated in the Paris Olympics of 1924, it is so far superior to the usual sports-inspiration movie that there is scarcely a point of comparison.

Insights into character, absorbing drama, action, humor and astute observations of manners and social class are just some of the film's qualities. To those you can add incisive, and at times very moving, dialogue.

The impact of "Chariots of Fire" is even more surprising when you consider that this is not a movie about underdogs. Any movie can win over an audience to root for the underdog — "Rocky" is a good example of that type. The protagonists of "Chariots of Fire" are special people who heed special callings.

HAROLD ABRAHAMS (Bob Cross) is a Cambridge law student and the son of a wealthy Jewish businessman. He runs from a desperate need to prove himself in a Gentile world. His response to the invidious anti-Semitism around him is a fierce competitiveness that drives him to distinguish himself.

He is not content to be the fastest runner at Cambridge, or even in England. He must be the fastest in the world. His desire is so great that even victory may not quench it.

Eric Liddell (Ian Charleson) hears a different calling. A devoutly religious Scotsman, he comes from a family engaged in missionary work. He plans to go to China with his sister to operate a mission there, but his plans are interrupted.

"God made me for a purpose," he says, "but he also made me fast."

Like the artists of an earlier age, Liddell regards his ability as a God-given gift he must honor by using. This very faith, however, which compels him to run also works against him.

His sister reprimands him for putting secular activities ahead of missionary work. British officials argue with him to put aside this religious conviction and run an Olympic heat on the Sabbath.

THE MOVIE cross cuts between both men as each finds his own way. There is an unbending determination about them that might almost put one off, if the director Hugh Hudson didn't also show us how engaging these two runners could be.

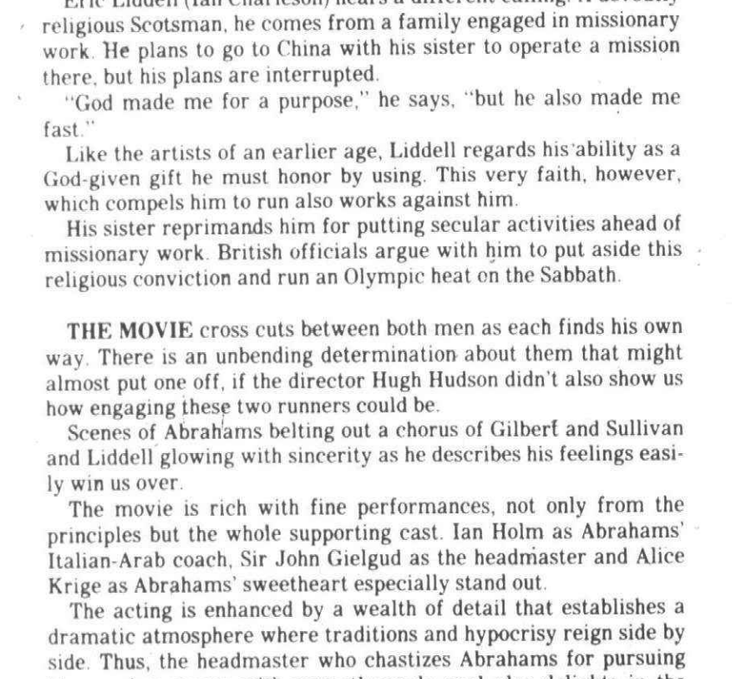
Scenes of Abrahams belting out a chorus of Gilbert and Sullivan and Liddell glowing with sincerity as he describes his feelings easily win us over.

The movie is rich with fine performances, not only from the principles but the whole supporting cast. Ian Holm as Abrahams' Italian-Arab coach, Sir John Gielgud as the headmaster and Alice Krige as Abrahams' sweetheart especially stand out.

The acting is enhanced by a wealth of detail that establishes a dramatic atmosphere where traditions and hypocrisy reign side by side. Thus, the headmaster who chastizes Abrahams for pursuing his running career with ungentlemanly zeal also delights in the reflected glory from his student's successes.

The snobbish elitism of the establishment makes a stunning contrast with the blunt honesty and dedication of Liddell and Abrahams.

For all these reasons, "Chariots of Fire" is a movie to thrill to and to savor. It says something about running, but it says much more about the human spirit and the inner fires that drive individuals to excel.



The human spirit is captured in this movie about runners who pursue their calling for different reasons.

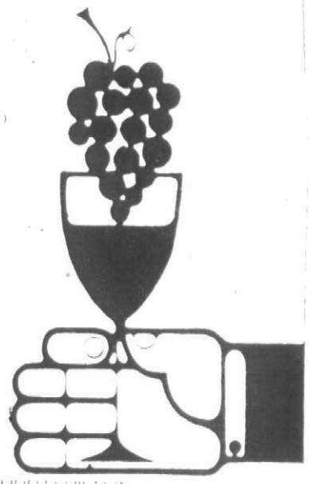
Chateaubriand is not a fine wine.



It's an extraordinary entree served for two. A center cut of beef tenderloin amid a bouquet/tiere of vegetables. Sauce Bernaise. Carved at your table. But like vintage wine, Chateaubriand is at its best when shared.

THE MOST UNUSUAL FEATURE ABOUT THE 1982 SAAB MAY BE ITS 1981 PRICE.

In a year when most car prices are being raised from Detroit to Tokyo, Saab is keeping its prices exactly the same.

Saab has always done things a little differently.

From the very first one that rolled off the assembly line over thirty years ago, with front-wheel drive.

To our 1982 line, with four-wheel disc brakes, energy-absorbing bumpers and roof and mechanically controlled fuel injection. As well as one of the first turbocharged engines to leave the track.

But the biggest difference has always been the way a Saab drives. This year, in fact, the editors of Road & Track magazine thought enough of that difference to unanimously select Saab the sports sedan for the eighties.

Saab was always an unusual car. Now it just has an unusual price.

SAAB
The most intelligent car ever built.
