Schools ponder less class time

By Dennis O'Connor
staff writer

Should the length of the classroom day be reduced? Should the student/class staff ratio be increased?

These are two major issues facing the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education as it copes with an estimated $2.244-million deficit in the 1982-83 school year.

Different philosophies and proposals were discussed at Saturday's budget workshop. These two issues clearly are the biggest "savings" in the school budget because it means a reduction of the district's teaching staff.

Certified teachers account for more than $17 million, or about 42 percent, of the 1981-82 budget. There are 658.5 certified teachers in the district. Approximately 16,878 students attend Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

RAY HOEDEL, assistant superindent for business, and Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, presented the board with different options on these issues.

Hoedel's presentation was strictly financial, offering four levels of cuts ranging from $400,000 savings to $2,445,000 savings for grades K-12. It included reduction in teaching staff, as well as support services (librarians, media aids, etc.).

Staff cuts could range from 2.9 percent to 17.7 percent, according to the report. It also included an increase in the classroom staff/student ratio by one or two students at all grade levels.

High-level reductions are based on shortened school days at both the middle schools and high schools, Hoedel said.

Enrollment figures were based on 1982-83 projected figures — more students at the middle school level and less at elementary schools.

HOMES' PRESENTATION was more philosophical.

He supported maintaining full support services, which he believed important to all students. He said said ratios still must be increased at the elementary level because of classroom space limitations, despite projected enrollment figures.

The "trade-off," according to Homes, is to reduce the middle school day from seven 47-minute periods to six 47-minute periods.

This proposal would keep the high school day at six 55-minute periods and maintain support services in grades K-12.

"This is a serious implication," Homes said. "It does reduce the instruction time. But what that does is give up the potential to go to 30-1 and maybe 29-1 (classroom ratios) and still maintain support services — reading teachers, counselors and librarians."

There were many questions on the feasibility of this plan. There are teacher-contract implications and an effect on transportation and special education schedules.

GARY FABER, Lowell Middle School principal, and Carl Taylor, East Middle School principal, supported Homes' proposal, if cuts had to be made. They said the biggest effect is on the middle school elective program.

"The quality of the program would be there, but there would have to be an adjustment in the elective program," Taylor said. He added some students wouldn't be affected because they elect one period of study hall.

"A six-period day is still a healthy opportunity for kids," Faber said. "They would still get a well-rounded curriculum." He added a concern for quality — not quantity — of the program.

A cooooooold, snowy tourney!

Griffin Park was covered with 20 inches of snow, but that didn't stop 13 teams from participating in the third annual Canton "Groundhog's Day" softball tournament. It was nothing close to spring weather Satuday morning, as falling temperatures — and falling players — covered two softball diamonds. Paul Lougne broke an 8-8 tie with five runs in the sixth inning to win the championship game over McMurray Insurance, 13-9. Don Kanelos knocked in the winning run, while teammate Gordy Ferguson batted 4-for-4 with three runs batted in. Tampa Bay and Do-Wa-Ditties Boys reached the semifinal round. A team of Canton Township officials, managed by Recreation Supervisor Bob Dates, did not survive the first round.

School survey ends

The school-budget survey is finished, but the tabulations have just begun.

The Observer office has been flooded with more than 1,600 responses from Plymouth and Canton residents who got their chance to prioritize budget cuts and comment on Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Due to the overwhelming response on this important local issue, we must delay publishing results until Thursday, Feb. 25. We just can't tabulate that quickly.

We do, however, have the first set of comments ready for publication. You can find selected comments on page 3A.

SPACE LIMITATIONS do not permit us to publish all comments. We tried to select those which represent the majority of the respondents. We plan on publishing more comments in future editions.

School administrators estimate a $2-million deficit in the 1982-83 school year. And that figure does not include any projected increases from labor negotiations. All seven labor contracts for school union employees expire this fall.

The school board is expected to make initial budget decisions at its next regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the board office, 454 Harvey, one block south of Ann Arbor Trail, in Plymouth.

There are 21 different items involved in the budget-cut process. The board is expected to act on elimination of Extended School Year (ESY) programs in four elementary schools at Monday's meeting.

New housing! Condos end building drought

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Models are open at the first new multiple housing complex in Canton since 1979.

Construction of Foxthorne Condominiums on Saratoga Road — off Lilley and Warren — began last fall. Twelve units will be ready for occupancy in 60 to 90 days, said Dick Schram, executive vice president of Foxthorne.

New building starts plunged after 1978 when Canton led southeastern Michigan with 1,577 new housing starts. Then inflation, construction costs and rising interest rates began to take their toll.

In 1979, only 661 single-family building permits were issued in Canton. Ten permits were issued for multiples — including seven buildings at Winds Condominium on Haggerty.

Only nine single-family permits were issued in 1981.

"We aren't setting the world on fire with single-family housing starts," understated Aaron Machnik, chief building officer for the township.

For the past four years, development in the western portion of the township was plagued with uncertainties because of several farmland preservation proposals. Canton voters rejected farmland perservation plans in both in 1978 and 1981, removing those development uncertainties from that portion of the township.

THE FOXTHORNE price range is $49,000 to $59,000, with a five-year "balloon" mortgage. Schram believes these condos, totalling about 1,000 square feet, will give people a chance for attractive, affordable housing.

"People have big homes, but they don't want them anymore," said Schram, a West Bloomfield resident. "They like the idea of reducing their costs by stepping down (in size and responsibility)."

Condominium is a form of ownership for clustered housing. Residents own their individual units, and pay a monthly charge for exterior maintenance, grounds-keeping, water and insurance on common areas.

Schram believes the units will have appeal for "empty nesters" — older couples whose children are grown, and for apartment-dwellers who want tax advantages of ownership.

Foxthorne, headed by developer Sanford Perlman, is no stranger to Canton. The Southfield-based firm built Parkwood Estates, a 400-home subdivision along Saltz south of Ford, during the 1970s.

This is the company's first venture into new construction of condominiums. Schram said the current prices are "introductory." He said 200 units will be constructed and prices may rise.

"TO BE in the real estate and the building business, you have to be an optimist," said Schram. "Real estate runs in curves, like a roller-coaster (and) you have to roll with it.

"Of course, we have never seen it this way," added Schram. "That's why I think this is the market place, because people can handle it."

Foxthorne is one of 16 "idea" homes, a promotional effort by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan to precede the Builders Home Flower Furniture Show, March 6-14 at Cobo Hall.

To participate, the builder must construct, furnish and decorate at least one model home which incorporates new features.

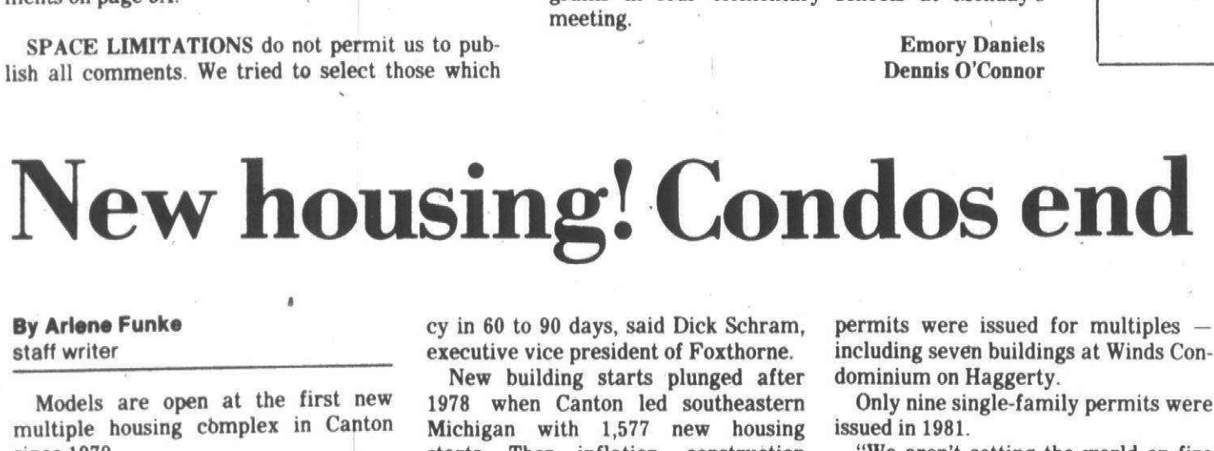

Each Foxthorne unit has two bedrooms with partitioned garage and private entrance. Safety features include heat sensors, fire extinguishers, two smoke detectors and a fire-alarm system that interlocks to the other units in a building.

Ranch and colonial styles have attached garages, basements, 1½ baths and fenced patio. A carriage-house style places the home above the garage with balcony and laundry room.

All units carry a 10-year warranty policy.

THE COMPANY is offering a five-

Popular pastor

Walch dead at 76

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

The soft, sincere voice of the Rev. Henry Walch that endeared him to the members of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth for 28 years has been silenced forever.

The popular pastor who retired from the pulpit 11 years ago succumbed to a series of heart attacks last Saturday at his home on Crestwood in Plymouth Township.

He had been in ill for some time, and spent quite awhile in St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, before he finally was confined to his home after suffering another attack.

Memorial services will be held in the church he served so well on Sunday, Feb. 21, with the Rev. Thomas H. Cook officiating.

Mr. Walch, who was considered a very convincing speaker, came to Plymouth in 1943 after serving pastorates in Oakfield and Rochester, N.Y., before coming to Detroit and then to Plymouth. Aside from those positions he served as chaplain at Presbyterian Village from 1978-80.

FROM THE TIME he became a resident he became a vital part of the Plymouth community and for years served as chaplain of the Plymouth Rotary Club.

Born in Rochester, N.Y., on April 7, 1905, Mr. Walch had a colorful career. After leaving high school in his native city, he attended school at Elmhurst Academy in Elmhurst, Ill., the University of Rochester and the McCormick Theologial Seminary in Chicago. Later he received his doctorate at Alma College in 1947.

A great student of the Bible he often was called upon by the Plymouth Rotary Club to relate the significance of many of the biblical stories and he responded in such a manner that the members had a clearer idea of the roots of Christian teaching.

Aside from his seriousness, Mr. Walch enjoyed leading the Rotarians in their weekly songfest. His favorite was "Home, Home on the Range." When he was called upon to lead the group, the members started singing his favorite before he ever reached the speaker's place at the head table.

Apportionment plan appealed

Political leaders in three suburban cities have gone to the state Court of Appeals to fight a Wayne County Commission redistricting plan.

The current ("Holly") plan splits Canton and Plymouth from each other.

Westland City Council member Justine Barns, Dearborn Heights Mayor Robert Bishop and Dearborn Mayor John O'Reilly want the court to set aside the so-called "Holley plan," which splits their individual cities, as violating the state reapportionment law.

And they are asking the court either to adopt the "staff plan" of Wayne County Clerk James Killeen or tell the five-man Wayne County Apportionment Commission to do its work over again.

The related cases won't heard by the Circuit Court of the county. Instead, the intermediate appellate court, under state law, hears the appeal. No briefs have been filed and no hearing date could be set last week because of Friday's legal holiday.

THE BARNS-Bishop petition charges that both Westland and Dearborn Heights were split unnecessarily into three county commissioner districts when the Apportionment Commission looked at the 1980 census and reduced the number of districts from 27 to 15.

Under the plan, which won 5-0 adoption, Westland had 2,287 residents in District 10 (with Livonia, Northville and Plymouth), 17,869 in District 11 (with Canton and the western townships) and 64,447 in District 12 (with Garden City, Inkster and part of Dearborn Heights).

The same plan splits Dearborn Heights into Districts 9, 12 and 13.

Not mentioned in attorney Dale A. Jurcisin's petition is the fact that incumbent Commissioners Tom Presnell of Westland and Kay Beard of Inkster would have to face each other in the Aug. 3 Democratic primary.

Under the "staff plan," Westland would dominate a district that would include southern and western Livonia. And Dearborn Heights would be part of a district with Garden City, Inkster and a corner of Dearborn.

O'Reilly's case objects that Dearborn is "unnecessarily divided into two county commissioner districts. . .with no majority in either district."

BOTH PETITIONS charge "partisan political considerations" were unlawfully used in drafting the "Holley plan."

The brief quotes Michael Legg, Republican Party representative on the Apportionment Commission, as saying the GOP would have good chances to win two districts under the "Holley plan."

Republicans calculate the board might well go 15-0 Democratic under the "staff plan."

The case will be watched carefully by political leaders in Plymouth and Northville. Under the "Holley plan," they are part of a district with Livonia that probably is safely Republican. Under the "staff plan," Northville and Plymouth join the western townships in a district.

Adoption of the "Holley plan" caused County Commissioner R. William Joyner, D-Plymouth, to declare he wouldn't seek re-election

Survey comments reveal resident's frustrations...

The following comments are selected from more than 1,600 responses to the Observer's school budget survey.

Space limitations do not permit publishing all comments. The results of the survey will appear in next Thursday's edition. The Observer will publish more comments in future editions.

• Double administration cut — $400,000 or 24 percent. Make cuts that don't affect direct student education. Our ordinary, average students are tomorrow's citizens and taxpayers. They are the students that should receive top priority in education — especially when cuts must be made.

• Throughout the entire system cut out the waste, the overlapping and the politics!

• Special Ed is over-administrated, and we don't need a (public relations) person at central office; there is much waste in the central or district maintenance crew. They milk the overtime terribly. The TAG program as it now exists is a waste of time. It will take much more money to properly service these kids.

• My four TAG children went through Plymouth Schools in the days when they had the money in hand before the spent it.

• As with any survey, the information does not cover all of the facts so these answers are sketchy at best.

'My husband works at Ford and hasn't had a raise in four years, has had his vacation cut by seven days and now will only get straight time for overtime. I think everone ought to give some so we all will benefit. If only a few give, then it hurts.'

• Let's return to the three Rs and let pro teams pay to develop their own talent and parents for extra school activities.

• I believe cuts should be made in administration and clerical before disrupting students.

• Put the schools back into the business of education. Make the parents responsible for all other things.

• Eliminate some of the waste of children when they destroy books or supplies; make them pay and don't replace (materials) unless (students) do pay.

• Why not have school employees go without raises as the auto industry people have for the last two years? I will petition for a tax reduction. (My taxes) went up 28 percent this year. Its time for the rest of the world to face up to the realities that the auto industry is facing — cut out the fat.

• Along with cuts in administration, I would recommend omission of any out-of-town conferences for administration.

'Improve discipline and quality of education in order to build our confidence in the school system. We are not confident it's a good system.'

• It's like voting against motherhood and apple pie, but I just can not afford any more taxes.

• I think the schools should get down to teaching reading, writing and arithmetic. My kids are grown up and married. They didn't have all the goodies the kids have now. The schools are there to teach, not entertain.

• I don't think increasing the class size should affect the teaching quality of the classroom administrators.

• Very difficult to decide priorities and be fair to all sections of the school population.

• Improve efficiency — eliminate waste.

• We do not need assistant principals in middle schools. We do not need two secretaries in middle schools. Take away the car the superintendent receives — he makes enough salary to supply his own car.

• I have taken my children out of the district because of severe dissatisfaction with teaching and administrative procedures.

• In these financially troubled times, the increasing of an already heavy property tax burden must stop. Only when the three Rs are threatened will I consider a tax increase.

• We must eliminate the liberal programs and get back to the basics of education.

• There are too many teachers sitting home and collecting unemployment, particularly maternity leave. Taxpayers shouldn't foot the bill because someone has a baby!!!

• Cut down on number of classes offered at high schools. Also, eliminate some area coordinator and counselor positions.

• Eliminate assistant principals, assistant counselors and aides — district is top heavy.

• Cuts are always made at the student level; it's time to cut the administration staff down to reasonable size and stop punishing students for the school board's mistakes.

See related editorial on Page 12A

• Cutting the length of the classroom day should only be temporary. They need all the education they can get.

• Taxes last year were increased by 24 percent base on 33 mills; new money equal to or the same as if eight new mills were passed.

• Raises should be based on merit only. Pay the good teachers and administrators well. Underpay the poor ones so they will leave (since you can't fire them).

• Eliminate "glamour" courses. Reduce everything proportionally. Would a single "Centennial High School" save cuts? Would districtwide all-year school save cuts? (Not necessarily structured like current ESY).

• I sincerely hope they eliminate the extended school year.

'I wonder if the school board will pay any attention to this survey or do what they want anyway?'

• Teachers should be tested and requalified yearly.

• This survey is misleading. I would do away with TAG, but (I) think that we should have enrichment classes, would eliminate after school activities at elementary level (because they go home and watch TV) but feel it is imperative to have them at high school level, would eliminate extended school year ONLY if there were room in the other schools without overcrowding, would eliminate art, music, phys ed.

• Improve discipline and quality of education in order to build our confidence in the school system. We are not confident it's a good system.

• Elective such as West Middle School "Games, Games, Games" — such things are non-foundational, and pure waste of time.

• Look at administration and see where you can cut before teachers.

• Taxes out of sight.

• My husband works at Ford and hasn't had a raise in four years, has had his vacation cut by seven days and now will only get straight time for overtime, I think everyone ought to give some so we all will benefit. If only a few give, then it hurts.

Cutting the classes isn't the answer. These children need all the education they can get. By shortening the hours they will only be out on the streets with no jobs, and some will get in trouble.

Let's publish salaries of school officials and teachers. Show people where tax money is going. We alone paid $1,600 this year to schools. It seems our schools should be in better shape than most and not asking for cuts. Trim the fat and stick to the budgets as we all do in these hard times but don't do without the necessities.

• Eliminate outside food management service (Interstate).

• Special Ed and TAG programs need every penny they have (which is not much) now.

• Administration should take a 10-percent cut — our family has. Same for clerical, teachers and custodial. Students' education and activities should be kept at a high standard. The inflated salaries of all school personnel can be deflated as well!

• Class size should not be increased! Already I know of several kindergarteners that have 30 or more in a class (not 26), so when you give ratios, please give the public the exact class sizes and not the ratios which count specialists, etc., and not what is actually in our district classrooms.

• School board stinks — no millage from us ever again. I already pay over $2,000 in taxes, $1,500 of which goes to the schools and have gotten no satisfaction from present school board. I'm waiting for Catholic School to be developed so I can get my kids out of Plymouth-Canton Schools.

• Our taxes increase while the quality of the system drops, and the administration rates a 7-percent raise.

'Thank for your interest, but past history shows the school board doesn't listen to taxpayers — it does what it wants to anyway. Lots of luck.'

• Let's quit taking away direct services to students (i.e. teachers) and take away some top-heavy administration.

• The cuts must come from administration and special programs.

• Last year, before cuts were made administration gave themselves a 7-percent raise. Start with community relations person in administration, clerical in administration office. TAG only services 590 of the school population.

...with school district

• Why not just an across the board cut? A flat percentage from the total budget to equal anticipated revenues.

• The teachers in this system are overpaid and underworked. They are not teaching, just babysitting. Increase the class size and length of day and make them start teaching. The extended school year is terrible. The kids have to relearn their study habits every time they go back.

• Lunch program is a total waste. I've worked in the cafeteria and see children throw out entire lunches day after day. Many of these students are minority children and perhaps this food is foreign to their taste. Many parents are too lazy to pack a sandwich for their child but the same child has money to buy candy, gum, etc. Every taxpayer should observe this waste of their money.

• When many of the working citizenry are facing layoffs, pay cuts, and foregoing pay increases, it is time to draw the line. The highly overpaid and underworked administration and educators of our school system are going to have to make the same personal sacrifices which the people of this community are making now. These naive prima donnas are no longer sacred, if they do not wake up soon, they may have no one to administer to or educate.

• Please don't raise class size.

'The teachers in this system are overpaid and underworked. They are not teaching, just babysitting. Increase class size and length of day and make them start teaching. The extended school year is terrible. The kids have to re-learn their study habits every time they go back.'

• We don't need athletics to educate. Especially with new requirements giving equal opportunity among girls and boys — too expensive to continue at this time.

• Turn off 50 percent of the lights outside and in hallways.

• Thank you for your interest but past history shows the school board doesn't listen to taxpayers — it does what it wants to any way. Lots of luck.

• Eliminate area coordinators in the high schools. Eliminate area directors and cut Hoben's staff by two-thirds (Hoben's build-up of the central administration staff is unconscionable). Cut counselor staff at the high school by one-half.

• We are a wasteful society and schools are the worst — especially in free textbooks. Supreme Court should reverse its ruling and make students responsible for their supplies. The Observer editors are to be highly commended for constructing this survey form.

Eliminate area coordinators in the high schools. Eliminate area directors and cut Hoben's staff by two-thirds (Hoben's build-up of the central administration staff is unconscionable). Cut counselor staff at the high school by one-half.'

• I can't understand how the schools and the state could be facing a deficit when taxes (property) have increased over 100 percent in eight years. Certainly inflation has not eaten up these increases in property taxes.

• I would also like to see teachers rated as to their performance statistics (how well the students are doing, if they are dropping their class, etc.). When students consistently perform poorly under a certain teacher, it may very well be the teacher.l

• Are you trying to start a war between those benefiting from schools and those who pay for them without direct benefit?

• Plymouth-Canton administrators and teachers are treated like prima donnas — spoiled!

• I am particularly upset at the prospects of eliminating the TAG program, when the need is just as great and the budget already much smaller than mandated Special Ed.

• Busing — 1.5 miles a little rough in winter and why not start lower, say one mile this next year.

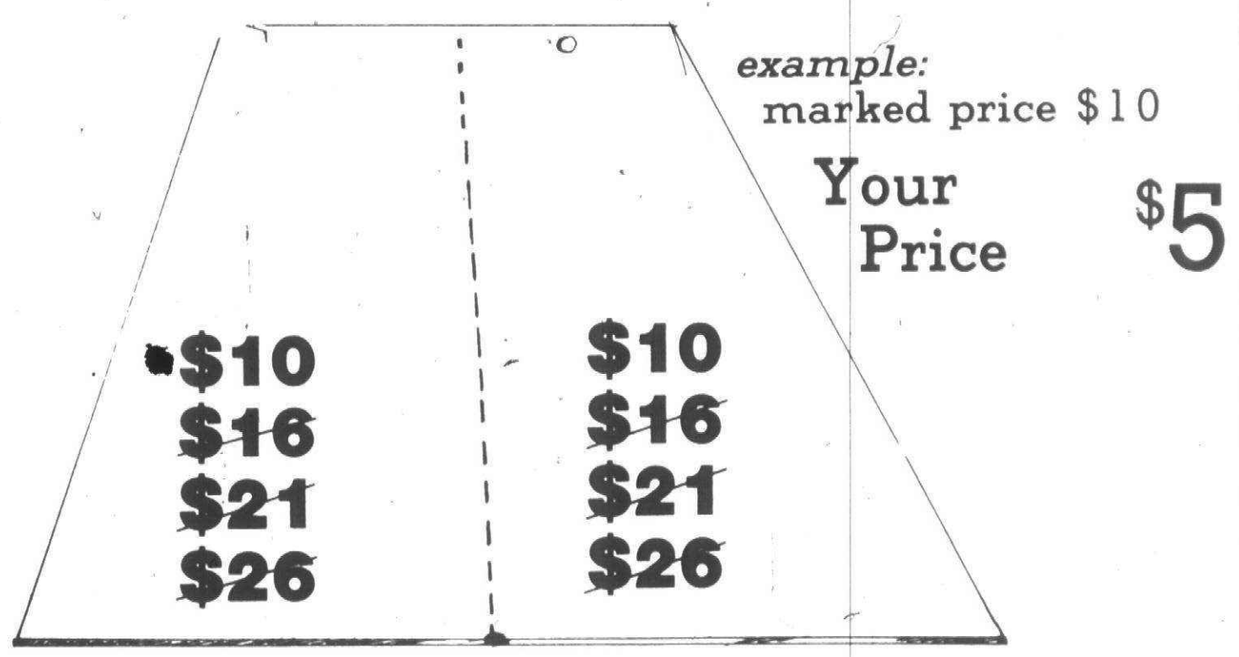

• The school's job or function should be to educate children, not provide them with lunch, athletics, etc.

• Freeze all raises until economy picks up and it will. Clamp down on teaching staff and make them concentrate on teaching students and community would not lose so many students to private schools.

Presbyterian pastor dies at home

He also was a great storyteller and often liked to tell the story of the first sermon he ever preached. In recalling it he claimed it was his most memorable service.

AT THE TIME he was a student at the Theological Seminary in Chicago where often the students were sent out to small country churches to help out and gain experience. On this occasion he drew a small town in northern Wisconsin. He said he never could remember the name of the town, but that he never could forget the people.

They met him at the station with a horse and sleigh and took him to an old farm house and gave him a room upstairs. Then he was called down to an old fashioned chicken dinner and later retired to get some sleep.

He said the room was most charming with old fashioned furniture, but the biggest surprise came when he got in bed and found that it was a feather mattress. He often smiled and said it was the best night's sleep he ever had.

The congregation was silent during most of his sermon the next morning. But afterwards they all walked to the church graveyard — a custom in those days — and everyone stood in silence.

It was the Christmas season and after the benediction the young seminarian made an honest confession. "I learned the real meaning of the old hymn 'The Church in the Valley by the Wildwood' " and he never failed to repeat the words, "When the parting hymn shall be chanted we shall weep by the side of the tomb." He often said that experience would live with him forever.

He is survived by his wife, Geraldine Klix; children, Ralph of Mountain View, Calif., Sandra Sergent of Richmond, Ind., and Beth Walch of Plymouth; brothers, Albert, Raymond and Louis; sisters, Carolyn Sabin and Mary Frank, all of Rochester, N.Y.; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

year mortgage with rates which escalate. Down payment is 20 percent, said Schram.

Interest rates begins at 10⅞ in the first year, rising to 13⅞ in the fourth and fifth years.

"At the end of the fifth year, they have to pay off the mortgage and get a new (one)," explained Schram. "It's called a balloon mortgage."

According to Schram, a mortgage of $35,000 on a unit costing $48,990, calls for a monthly of $330.02 for the first year. He said tax deducations can reduce the effective interest rate.

There are no plans to build a clubhouse or pool, said Schram. But Foxthorne has made arrangements to join with Willow Creek Park subdivision association, which has a park nearby.

"We find most people used (the pool) for a year or two, and then they get tired of it," said Schram. "They get annoyed if they have to pay for it."

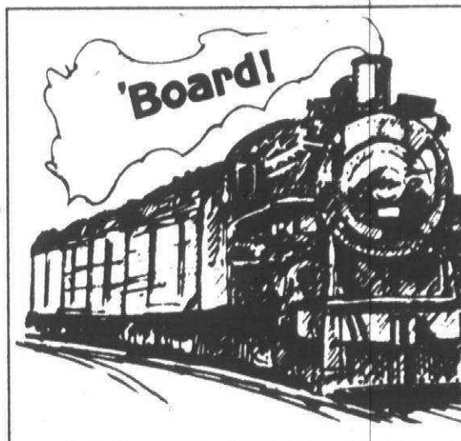

The model units are open from 1 to 6 p.m. daily and Sunday. They're closed Thursday.

backgammon

Michael Kloian

of the American Backgammon Club

● HIT AND SPLIT OR TEMPO PLAY

Jacqueline W. of Plymouth writes:

I have been learning a lot of stretegy about backgammon thanks to your weekly column. I never realized how much skill is involved in the game. For instance, in the following example, I (white) rolled a 3-2.

After much deliberation, I moved from the black 1 to the 4 point so I could chase the open 9 point checker on the next roll. I hit black with the 2 roll from the 12 point. I'm not sure how it happened, but black eventually wiped me out. Do you agree with my 3-2 move?

In order to select a proper move for any situation, one must look over the entire position and see what's going on. I understand why you made the hit and split play, but was it necessary?

First of all, coming out to black's 4 point to chase-hit the 9 point blot is wrong. With the 7 point open, white should have little to worry about escaping from the 1 point. The hit and split play is good, but in a different circumstance where black has a good 4- or 5-point prime (a continuous blockade of closed points) and where white wishes to go up to the front of the prime to escape or to put pressure on an open blot.

Since you are hitting black, at least your split move is tentatively safe. Black will waste half a roll to re-enter from the bar, so he will be unable to crush your open blot on the back 4 point (except with a 2-2).

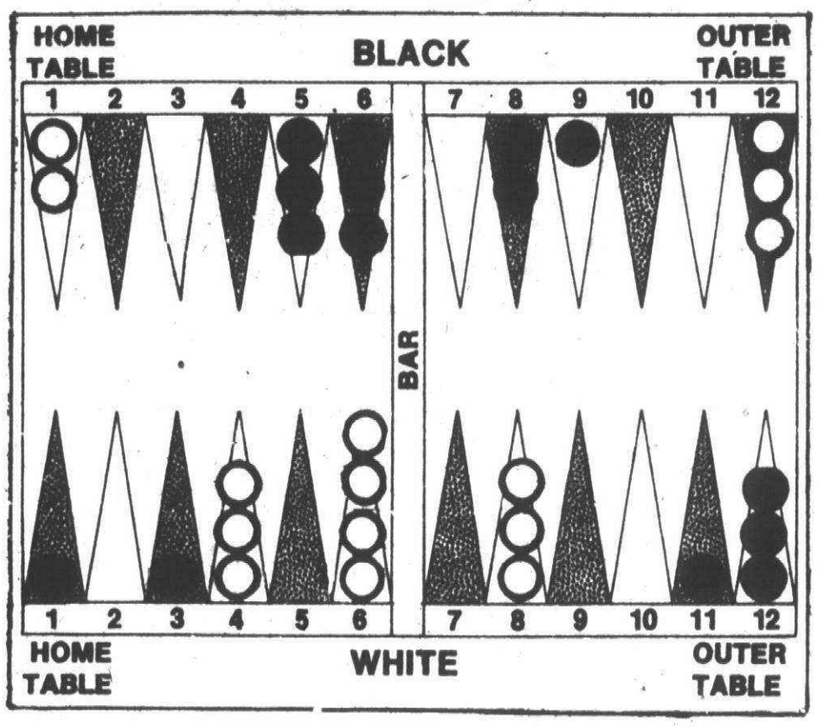

However, why even hit black's 11-point blot? Black now has an opportunity to establish the 3 point as a base or to roll a 5-4 or 5-2 for the 5 point forward anchor.

Personally, I'd hate to have my opponent sit on my 5 point.

There is one move you may have considered but discounted since it appeared irrational. By moving from the 6 point to the 3 point, then to the 1 point, white has acomplished much by hitting black twice. This tempo play will keep black off balance for at least one full roll, if not two rolls. The extra time will allow white to build up his home board, run his back runners up, and hit the 9 point or 11 point blots.

I would suggest this tempo play because black has four loose blots and this is white's chance to blitz.

For more information concerning backgammon, contact the American Backgammon Club at 455-7798, or write to Box 599, Plymouth, MI 48170.

'Good Man'

Charlie Brown takes stage

Chris McCrory and Lisa Andres recreate a familiar "Peanuts" scene, with young pianist and admiring listener.

A LOCAL contingent of amateur theater enthusiasts is donating time and talents to stage a production that offers not only entertainment but a big boost for the Easter Seal Society.

Actors, musicians and stagehands from Livonia, Plymouth and other area communities — working together as the Century 21 of Michigan Players — will present five performances of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." They hope to raise some $2,000 for the 1982 Easter Seal Campaign.

Performances are scheduled as follows:

- 7:30 p.m. Feb. 26 at West Middle School, Ann Arbor Road off Sheldon Road, Plymouth.
- 8 p.m. Feb. 27-28 and March 6-7 at the Schoolcraft College Auditorium on Haggerty, between Six Mile and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children age 12 and younger. All proceeds will go to Easter Seals. Tickets will be available for purchase at the door for each performance and may be reserved in advance by calling 358-2300.

"WE CALL ourselves the Century 21 of Michigan Players because the production is under the auspices of Century 21 of Michigan, Inc.," said Lisa A. Andres, the play's organizer and director.

This is the third such benefit production in the last four years under the direction of Mrs. Andres, who is a secretary at Century 21 of Michigan's central offices in Southfield and a former drama student and instructor at Churchill High School in Livonia.

This year's Easter Seal Telethon to climax the annual fund-raising drive is scheduled for March 27-28.

Theater guild struggles with challenging show

Performances of the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" drama by Brian Clark continue at 8:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday, 7:30 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 p.m. Feb. 26-27 at the Theatre Guild Playhouse, 15138 Beech-Daly Road, just south of Five Mile Road in Redford.

review

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Once again, the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford has mounted an ambitious and impressive production in its cramped quarters on Beech-Daly in Redford.

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" Brian Clark's warm and literate discussion of the right to die, opened last weekend and runs through Feb. 27.

Directed by Dennis Broadhead, "Whose Life" examines the moral and medical questions faced by a permanently paralyzed sculptor, Ken Harrison, played by Warren Reinecker. His assertion that he has the right to die, the only logical course given his helplessness, runs counter to the medical interests, represented by the Intensive Care Unit's chief physician, Robert Closson as Dr. Emerson.

The doctor's obligation is to preserve life, no matter what the cost.

THEREIN LIES the crux of the play, and its problems, too. While there are several emotionally charged scenes, scenes which represent the best theatrical emotion, a good part of the first act drags as the moral concepts and interpersonal relationships are established. A difficult problem every drama of ideas faces.

Warren Reinecker deserves great applause for his superb control as he remains on stage for the entire show, moving only his head. That mandated immobility, unfortunately, slowed the dramatic pace early on. Reinecker's immobility affected his vocal projection.

His use of British pronunciation coupled with a habit of dropping his voice at the end of the line made it difficult for the audience to hear adequately.

Theater Guild struggles with challenging drama

While the cast did a remarkable job in sustaining British accents, the accents did interfere. It's hard to say whether it was worth it, even though the British quality of the show is important and was enhanced thereby.

Marion Tournaud as Sister, Roberta Pullum as Night Nurse and Claudia Hill as Dr. Scott enriched the evening with their effective portrayals, as did Stan Taylor playing Judge Millhouse.

THE SECOND-ACT trial scene was dramatically fulfilling. It was then that the emotionally charged elements fused and provided the kind of sparks for which one goes to the theater. A similar, though much briefer, moment came earlier when the hero's attorney, Mr. Hill, played by Joseph Guest, crossed swords with Dr. Emerson over the legal/medical morality involved.

The set, ably designed by the director and the star, and executed by almost the entire company, was an excellent platform for this complex production.

ON THE TOWN

Chateaubriand is not a fine wine.

It's an extraordinary entree served for two. A center cut of beef tenderloin amid a bouquetiere of vegetables. Sauce Bernaise. Carved at your table. But like vintage wine, Chateaubriand is at its best when shared.

Easy to spot deer on a quiet hike

By Lem Mesee
outdoors writer

outdoors

We — that's the wife and I — just had to get out of the house last weekend. Cabin fever was starting to take hold.

There were no doubts as to where we were headed, either — Kensington Metropark, just off I-96 in western Oakland County.

Kensington, like all of the metroparks, is usually crowded during summer with young people who flock to the beaches and picnic areas for a day in the sun. Parks can get mighty crowded on weekends May through August.

Well, last Saturday, quite a few others seemed to have the same idea we did — yet there were no hordes of people.

Ice fishermen were scattered on Kent Lake, and a large, friendly gathering was clustered at the toboggan and sled runs. Adults, teens and young children were getting along magnificently.

A fire was roaring in the shelter near the sled hills. Some families were even picnicking, roasting hot dogs on sticks over the open fire.

Cross country skiers and ice skaters were enjoying one of the finest days we've had for outdoor activities since the first of the year.

We like to take leisurely walks on nature trails on the west side of the metropark. This time, we saw two white-tailed deer, a gray squirrel, cardinals, blue jays and chickadees.

We were the only people on the Aspen Trail, one of several at Kensington.

A naturalist at the center told us it's a lot easier to spot deer along nature trails during winter months than in summer. We've never been disappointed on the Aspen Trail. There's a large herd in the western hills of the park property, but most people never see a deer.

You have to walk gingerly, hold talking to a minimum and keep a sharp lookout. All the deer we've seen were on the first half of the 1¼-mile trail.

It helps to stop every now and then just to take in the overall scenery — hear the winds rustling through trees, see empty bird nests perched in tall oaks and maples, spot deer tracks in the snow and observe small animals scampering in the underbrush.

A naturalist at the center said this has been the harshest winter in several years. The pond near the nature center where Canada geese and ducks winter has frozen over, even though the underwater aereator has been working.

That's how cold it has been and how much snow we've had.

Don't worry, though, because there are a couple of small openings where the waterfowl can drink.

Attendance has been down since the first of the year, the naturalist said, but that isn't all bad if you like solitude on your nature walks.

Then, too, there aren't that many people warming around the fire in the nature center after completing their walk.

FISHERMEN have a saying about winter: "First ice is best."

That's true this year, as our DNR reports indicate. The heavy snows and thick ice have slowed most fishing to a slither.

"Poor" is the word the conservation officers have for activity on Lake Erie. "Extremely slow" is the word from Oakland County lakes, except for Heron Lake in the Holly Recreation Area which is producing crappies and bluegills. "Very poor" is the message from Lake St. Clair.

In the heavy snow, rabbit hunting is difficult, and few gunners are out.

The best time is being had by snowmobilers. Some years they have only 10 good days. This year has been one long field day.

We were, however, distresed to see some field damage by snowmobiles in the Island Lake State Recreation Area.

Road board ouster on back burner

A move to remove two members of the Wayne County Road Commission is on the back burner.

The County Board of Commissioners' general government committee has postponed a decision on whether to try to remove Michael Berry and Grace Hampton from the three-member board while a court case is in progress.

Berry, meanwhile, revealed this week he may retire from the powerful post he has held for 15 years.

Berry and Ms. Hampton are under fire for approving a six-year labor contract which critics call a brazen attempt to circumvent the new county charter coming into effect in January 1983.

UNDER THE contract, 74 managmerial persons would be protected from possible job changes allowed by the charter.

The committee decided to await the outcome of a pending lawsuit on the issue being heard by visiting Circuit Court Judge David C. Vokes. The suit was filed by County Commissioner George F. Killeen, D-Detroit, state Sen. John C. Hertel, D-Harper Woods, George E. Ward and Justine Barns, chair and vice-chair, respectively, of the Charter Commission.

In committee last week, Commissioners Ervin A. Steiner, R-Grosse Pointe, and William J. Runco, R-Dearborn, were against removal of the two road commissiioners. "We have no factual charges of wrongdoing or illegality. All they did was establish a union and agree to a contract, so we should dismiss the matter," said Steiner.

"WE CERTAINLY ought to guard carefully against conducting a witchhunt," said Runco.

Commissioner Arthur M. Carter, D-Detroit, agreed that no evidence of wrongdoing existed but advised not to kill the issue in committee. "At this point, I say wait and not now show preferential considerations to either side," he said.

Group objects to refuse plan

To the editor:

(An open letter to the Plymouth Township Board.)

As concerned citizens of the Charter Township of Plymouth, we have followed with great interest the current discussions regarding a consolidated contract for solid-waste disposal in Plymouth Township. We are opposed to this action.

Our community (87 residences) in Glenview Subdivision has purchased refuse-disposal service from Wayne Hornback for approximately 20 years. Mr. Hornback has consistently provided a service for which he can justifiably be proud — he is reliable, courteous, punctual, accommodating and one with whom we are pleased to deal.

We applaud and appreciate any and all efforts to reduce costs. We also recognize that "you only get what you pay for."

While you are wrestling with this issue, we urge you to consider the following:

1. If discussions were prompted by a "problem" area or contractor, exhaust all efforts to resolve the problem between present parties before introducing a new cast of characters and creating new problems in other areas.

2. Do not accept cost data unless they are comparative — e.g., are administrative costs considered in each price?

3. Will the cost of administration through government offices be less costly than through independent contractors?

4. Can cost reductions be accomplished by working with each current contractor to arrive at optimum (not necessarily minimum) cost?

5. Are the citizens of the township desirous of a change?

6. Should not this matter be presented to the populace for a vote?

7. Because the township is serviced by 11 contractors, should not the vote be taken by precinct?

This letter was prompted by a discussion of this issue at a recent meeting of the Glenview Homeowners Association. For your information, it was unanimously declared that we object to government establishing an "umbrella" contract and oppose any effort to eliminate "our" contractor from providing us with refuse disposal service.

To the editor:

In the Monday, Feb. 8 issue of the Observer, you carried a front page story with regard to snow removal, and mentioned several subdivisions in Plymouth Township who employ private contractos for this purpose.

Our subdivision was not included — we are a development of 360 condominium units, and a sizable amount of our yearly budget is allocated to snow and ice removal.

We feel that our service is as good, possibly better, than that afforded to other residents of the township, but I feel certain we are helping to pay the cost for this service in our taxes.

I might add that we also hire our own trash removal service; it is excellent, but again, we are paying for a service which the township could provide, but for our own satisfaction, our residents have elected to contract for our own pick-up.

Survey gives schools some needed guidance

AFTER A TWO-DAY, 10-HOUR workshop, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education must digest a wealth of information before deciding to rank budget cuts for the 1982-83 school year.

The board faces a deficit estimated at $2.2 million. Its task won't be easy.

School administrators presented 21 different areas to the board which may get the ax. There are four separate levels of cuts for each item — a possibility of 84 options.

After the workshop, board members looked at each other and seemed unclear in starting the process. They wanted advice from persons in the Plymouth-Canton community before making important, and extremely political, decisions on items such as length of the classroom day, administration, talented and gifted programs, athletics and busing.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS at this workshop never mentioned asking voters to approve a property tax-rate increase to cover the deficit. That's encouraging. It is our feeling that Plymouth-Canton voters would not approve a millage increase.

Although we don't envy the board's task, we are pleased to give the board some needed guidance through our recent school-budget survey.

The results of that survey will appear in next Thursday's Plymouth and Canton Observers.

While the response and feedback from our survey have been overwhelming, some school officials scoffed at the idea.

In fact, one administrator took the trouble to copy an article called, "Let's Outlaw the Shotgun Readership Survey," which says a shotgun survey "almost invariably produces unreliable and misleading results."

Of course, this same administrator didn't blink twice when he responded to our survey, saying administration should be the LAST area to be trimmed.

OUR SURVEY, which ended Monday, simulated the same priority procedure which now faces the board. It also offered persons a chance to comment on the school-budget deficit. (Some of those comments appear in today's edition on page 3A.)

Our survey was not scientific, and it never was intended to be. It would be foolish to say any readership survey reaches everyone or reflects all opinions in a community.

In our survey, only those who chose to respond did so. Those opinions do not represent a random sample.

It was impossible to give our readers all possible facts involved with this budget-cutting process. We tried to give as much direction as possible in this simulation.

There also were many variables involved. For example, an error occurred in one item of our survey, "Elementary Support Services." This item does not include elimination of reading classes, but that was not reflected in the survey for one edition.

OUR SURVEY PROVES one thing, however. It tells us that this community is concerned — and upset — with its school system and the budget-cutting process. People are frustrated, but appreciative, that the Observer gave them an opportunity to voice their concerns.

Remember, we are not talking about 40, 100, or 200 responses. We are speaking of more than 1,600 persons who took the trouble to respond and to address what they feel is an important local issue.

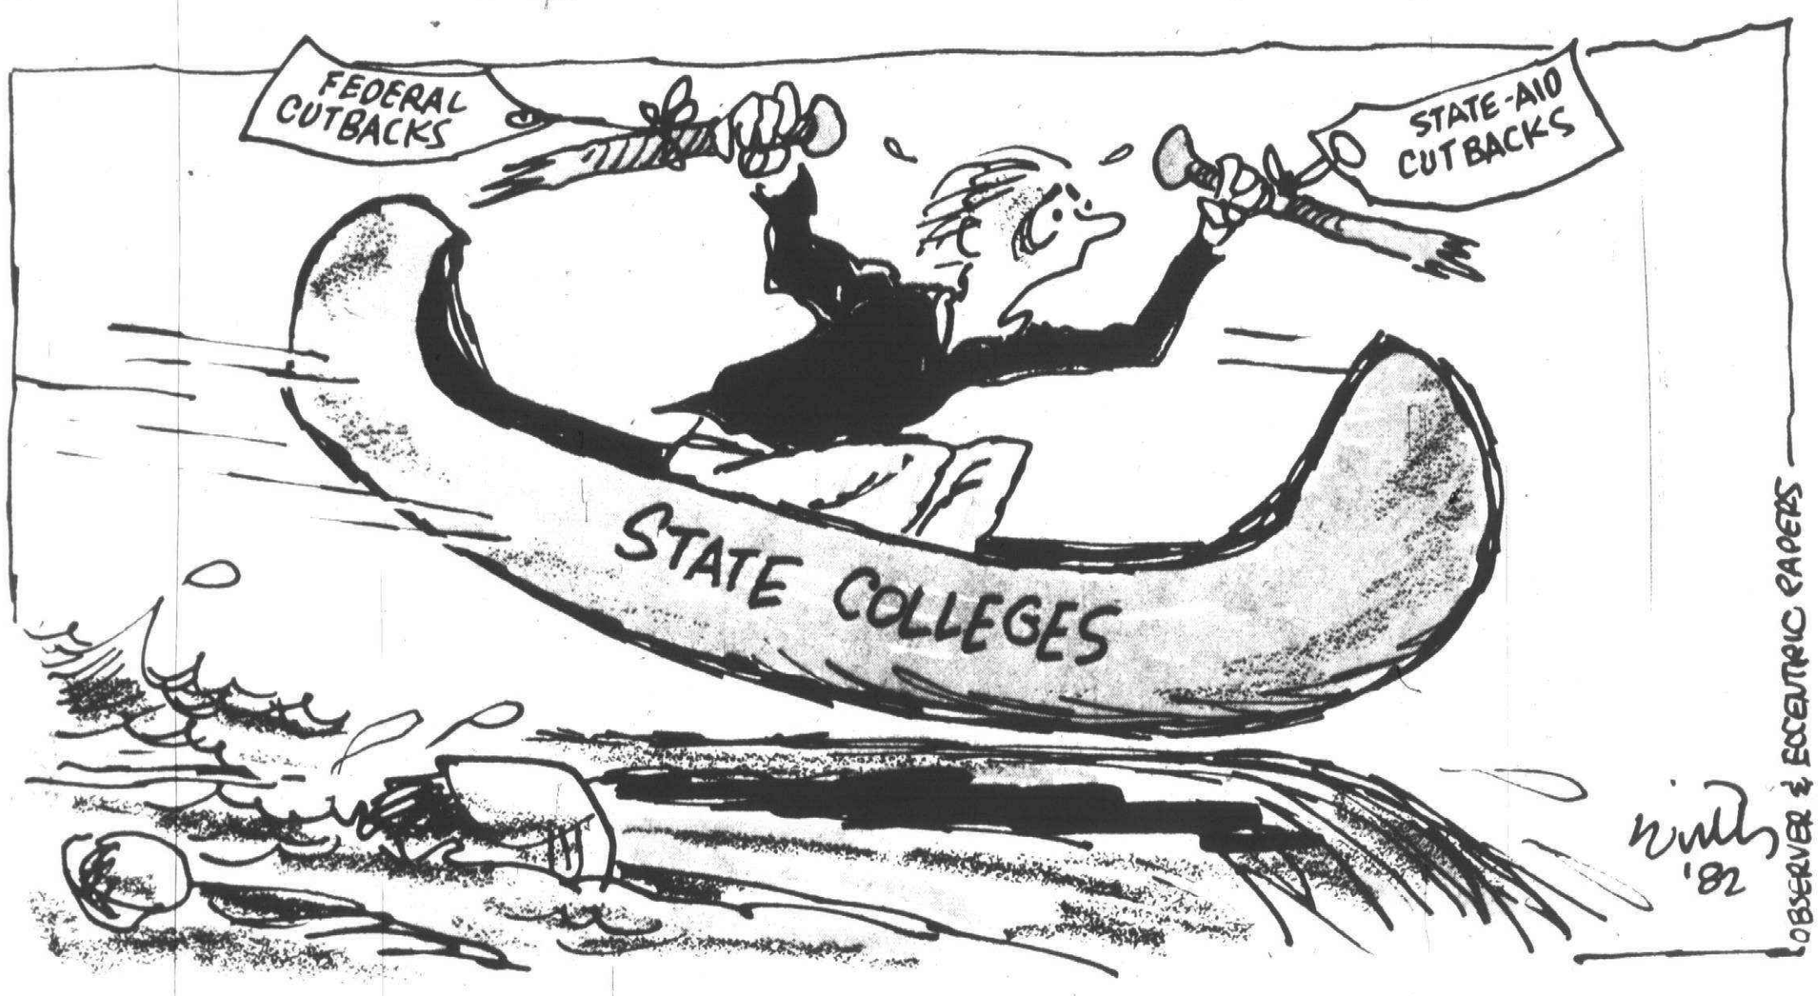

Despite the scoffers, we feel this survey has somewhat bridged the gap between school officials and the public.

Scientific or not, 1,600 responses must be recognized by the board when seeking direction on budget cuts.

The board wanted advice, and the community was pleased to respond.

Maybe the board would prefer to digest the opinions of 1,600 persons attending a public hearing in the auditorium of one of the high schools. A hearing also is an unscientific poll, but it's direct.

Collegians nailed from 2 directions

Organized college students are beginning to raise a little Cain about educational financing cuts. I can't blame them.

So far, their target has been the Reagan Administration's new federalism and its proposed cuts in educational spending. A better target might be a fellow a little closer to home, Richard Headlee of Farmington Hills.

But let's get these matters in focus.

The new federalism means returning certain domestic programs to the states. This would leave the federal government freer to concentrate on what the U.S. Constitution says it should be doing — keeping up our defenses, regulating interstate commerce, coining (less) money and the like.

In turn, the states would share some federal revenue, but this would be gradually phased out. The states at some point would have to pick up the tab. Logically, that means state taxes at some point must rise as federal taxes fall.

THE FLY in the ointment is Michigan's 1978 tax limitation amendment. It ties state taxes to a percentage of personal income.

It's sometimes referred to as the "Headlee amendment" because its chief sponsor and defender was and is Richard Headlee.

Headlee has another little organization going. Its purpose is to defend Ronald Reagan's presidency. Whenever Reagan proposes something or takes some heat on Capitol Hill, Headlee pushes a button at the McMaster PR outfit, and a press release issues forth.

My point is that there seems to be a terrible conflict between Reagan's new federalism and state tax limitation. I fail to see how Michigan can have both.

ONE VERY important flaw we at this newspaper saw with the Headlee tax limitation amendment was that it limited only one form of government revenue — taxes.

It didn't limit fees for the hundreds of licenses state and local governments issue. It didn't limit charges made by such governmental agencies as zoos and parks. And especially it didn't limit college tuitions.

College tuitions, if you've been watching the papers, have been zooming since the mid-'70s. Even Oakland University, where Headlee is chairman of the board, has raised tuitions faster than the rate of inflation. Ironic, isn't it?

One wonders how the offspring of the middle class even make it through college.

IN A WAY, the concern over soaring tuition rates has been academic until this year. The reason is that so many young people were going to college on various scholarships, grants and loans.

The federal government is either cutting out or reducing such programs as basic educational grants, guaranteed student loans and Social Security benefits for college students who have lost a working parent.

What Michigan should be doing is raising college appropriations, not reducing them and transferring more of the burden to students.

And if that means a state tax increase — so be it. According to one of Headlee's press releases, the Reagan tax cuts means we in Michigan will have a few hundred millions extra rattling around in our pockets.

College students from the middle class are caught between a rock named Reagan and a hard place named Headlee. If I were them, I don't think I would throw the rock at Reagan.

Have you read a book with your child?

Nick Sharkey

Read to your children. That's the advice reading specialists and educators are now giving parents.

Full-color posters in libraries, bookstores and schools ask, "Have you read a book with your child today?" Reading to youngsters is this year's theme of the Children's Book Council.

Reading to children conjures up images of a time long ago when a family would gather in front of the fireplace after dinner. In a few minutes, the father would bring out a book and start to read.

THAT DOESN'T relate well to modern life in the suburbs. How can reading together compete with video games or the Dukes of Hazzard on television?

Even if there were the interest, who has time? Every day it's hustle and bustle. Children must be driven to dance and music classes. Basketball practice comes after that. At night, mom goes to aerobic dance classes while dad has his racquetball game.

Many nights, the family doesn't even have time to eat together.

Yet it's important to read to children. Educators like Jeanne Chall, professor of education at Harvard, say: "Reading to children can enhance their language development, expand their vocabularies and give them more advanced understanding of grammatical forms."

I'm not sure about all that. But I believe it enriches their imagination. It also lets them appreciate the rhythm of good writing, something lost while reading silently alone.

A children's librarian once told me, "There are only about six years when you can read to a child, when that child is between 6 and 12 years old. So take advantage of it."

AS A STRONG believer in the value of the printed word, I have always encouraged my children to read. They started going to libraries soon after they could walk. They have fallen asleep looking at books in bed before they could even read.

But when it comes to reading to children, I have had only mixed success. I've run into all the problems mentioned earlier in this column.

So far, we've finished one book, "Huckleberry Finn." I'm now on my third renewal from the library of the second book, "Treasure Island." Some weeks we don't have time to read one word from the book.

It's difficult, but I have learned a little about reading to children.

Make sure the story is interesting and full of action. Children will not sit still for a slow-moving story.

Also, try to establish a regular time without the normal distractions of the week. Sunday evening is usually a good time. School vacations or periods between sports seasons usually give more time for reading together.

If you are interested in starting to read to a child, check with your local children's librarian. People like Christine Abbatt at the Noble branch of the of the Livonia library and Denise Albrecht and Jill Locke of the Farmington library will be happy to give you ideas.

If you don't have time to read yourself, local libraries have story hours.

For now I'm going to continue to try to find time to finish "Treasure Island." I know I'm enjoying Robert Louis Stevenson's classic.

Reading to children may not make a difference in their lives, but then again it may.

'Walk-ons' were fun in spring training

the stroller

W.W. Edgar

In a few days, baseball training camps will open in the Sun Belt, but they will be a far cry from what they used to be before big money changed the rules.

In the days when The Stroller travelled the baseball circuit, much of the fun in the training camps was centered on the "walk-ons" — the carpetbaggers who moved from camp to camp seeking tryouts. They never failed to produce plenty of laughs.

Today, carpetbaggers don't have a chance. Teams bid for young players while they still are in college. At times, the price becomes high.

NOT TOO LONG ago, Dick Wakefield, a Detroit lad who was doing well at the University of Michigan, was the target of club owners.

Walter O. Briggs, then owner of the Tigers, passed the word that he wanted Wakefield with the Tigers no matter what it cost.

After a bit of dickering, Wakefield signed a Tiger contract and received a $52,000 bonus for coming to terms. The $52,000 bonus caused a lot of discussion, but the fact of the matter is that Wakefield's talent melted a bit under the sun, and he never lived up to expectations.

On the other hand, Jimmy Foxx, the one-time star of Connie Mack's Athletics, walked all the way from Easton, Md., to Philadelphia just to get a tryout with the A's. He didn't cost Connie Mack an extra penny.

Usually, the walk-ons were young men who arrived at camp with a busted travelling bag and a high regard for their own abilities.

Many were from small towns and farms, where they had played ball on makeshift diamonds, much like the ones Charley Gehringer, the famed second baseman of the Tigers, played on in Fowlerville.

Few ever made the grade in the major leagues. But they provided a lot of fun. And there were times when the club manager was one of the instigators of the hilarity.

ONE OF THE Stroller's fondest memories is of his trip to the 1937 Tigers camp, when manager Mickey Cochrane had a great time with the writers. Arriving at camp one morning, he introduced us to a young lad who was supposedly seeking a trial.

Mickey placed him at third base, and the lad showed real ability — for a time. His showing was so good that we writers began wondering if he would shove Marvin Owen, the regular third baseman, off the bag.

There wasn't a day that the newcomer didn't get attention from the visiting writers, and it was said the Tigers had a real "find."

Then came a morning when the "find" arrived at the training area with a packed suitcase to bid us all good-bye. We were stunned.

At this point, Cochrane broke out in laughter, identified the young fellow and admitted the joke he had played on us.

"He's one of Charlie Fisher's stable boys," Mickey said. "Mr. Fisher sent him down here for a bit of a vacataion and the chance to mingle with big leaguers. He never was here for a tryout. He is a horseman."

So the laugh was on the writers.

Things like that don't happen any more. That's why much of the fun is gone from the spring training grind.

Ward, Barns lack 'standing'

Road board wins round in court

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Backers of the new Wayne County home-rule charter lost a round when Circuit Judge David Vokes Monday dismissed their suit seeking to dissolve a union contract between the County Road Commission and its top administrators.

But several doors are open for further challenges, said George Ward, Charter Commission chairman and one of the plaintiffs. "We didn't get to the gut issue," he added.

The "gut issue" — as seen by two charter commissioners, a state senator and a county commissioner — is the road commission's attempt to circumvent county reorganization by signing a six-year contract with 74 of its highest-paid administrators.

As a road commission spokesman put it, however, the gut issue was the charter's failure to provide adequate civil service protection to loyal employees.

VOKES RULED the four plaintiffs lacked "legal standing" to file the suit. In an aside, he indicated that with the proper parties he would have jurisdiction in the case — a round for the plaintiffs.

The road commission and management union had argued only the Michigan Employment Relations Commission had jurisdiction.

Thus, Vokes will grant a motion by the road commission and the management union to dismiss the suit brought by Ward, Charter Vice-Chair Justine Barns of Westland, County Commissioner George Killeen and state Sen. John Hertel, who supported the revised county home-rule act.

Ward said, "Judge Vokes refused to follow the Kennedy holding, which said a whole legislative body did not have to act for an individual senator to file a suit."

He referred to a federal case in which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., successfully went to court to force printing of a law passed by Congress but given a "pocket veto" by then-President Richard M. Nixon.

Vokes distinguished between Nixon's attempt to nullify Kennedy's vote on an entire law and the road commission's alleged attempt to nullify only part of the implementation of a law whose enactment is unchallenged.

WHAT NEXT? Ward and attorney Milton Mack Jr. said the plaintiffs appear to have these options:

First, they could appeal Vokes' ruling to the state Court of Appeals. "His ruling presents appealable issues," said Ward.

Second, they could get one of the bodies — the state Senate, the County Board of Commissioners or the Charter Commission — to vote as a unit to pursue a suit. Ward and Mack agreed there was little chance the senate would act, but held out possibilities either the county board or the charter commission might vote to sue.

Three charter commissioners could request Ward to reconvene the body, he said. "I've already heard rumblings they might." A notice would have to be sent to the 25 remaining charter commissioers (one has died and another has been elected a district judge). A quorum would be 13 members. A majority of the quorum — seven — would be the minimum needed to pursue the case.

If either the charter commission or the county board voted to sue, Vokes could be asked for "a re-hearing based on correction of a defect" in the plaintiffs' case, Mack said.

A THIRD possible challenge of the road commission contract is less appealing to Ward. The scenario goes like this:

The new county executive, on taking office next Jan. 1, could replace the present three-member road commission with his own appointments. The new road commissioners could then nullify the contract with the management union. The management union would then have to sue to preserve its contract.

The disadvantage, Ward said, is that the contract is due to take effect April 1. By next Jan. 1, it would be eight months old and have "the weight of a fait accompli." The parties would have become used to working under it, and there would be a reluctance to overthrow it.

And so Ward is inclined to see if the charter commission wants to reconvene and fight the contract as a group.

MACK, WHO argued the case in circuit court, said the better chance would be to get a group of plaintiffs who would satisfy the judge they have standing. He quoted Vokes' opinion as saying:

"The court does not agree with the reasoning of the defendants (road commission and management union). At the proper time and place, and with the proper parties plaintiff, the circuit court would have the jurisdiction to inquire into and to rule on the matters alleged in the plaintiffs' complaint."

Mack summed it up: "He's saying I have jurisdiction with the right parties."

MEANWHILE, County Commissioner Killeen's attempt to remove two of the three road commissioners — Chairman Michael Berry and Grace Hampton — stalled last week in the county board's general government committee.

The committee decided to await the outcome of the suit before Judge Vokes.

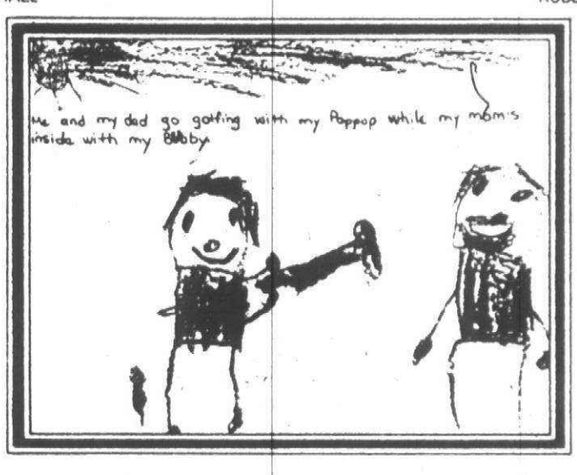

Commissioner Ervin Steiner argued against trying to remove the two, who had voted for the contract, because: "We have no factual charges of wrongdoing or illegality. All they did was establish a union and agree to a contract."

Commission William J. Runco added: "We certainly ought to guard carefully against conducting a witchhunt."

Student defends 'games' class

To the editor:

I am a student at West Middle School in Plymouth where all the controversy of D&D in the school has started. I am also a student in the elective class under question, "Games, Games, Games."

I have been avidly playing D&D for 1.5 years now and know quite a lot about the game. I disagree with the Rev. Gentry about D&D having a "negative spiritual influence" on students.

I believe strongly in there only being one god. A person playing this game is well able to separate fantasy from reality, and is as able to separate D&D gods, which are tied into the fourth grade teaching of myth, from the God he or she worships. The written character is the only one worshipping a D&D god, not the person playing that charactor. The player only says what he is to do. This is only a fantasy game involving the player's imagination.

I am a Presbyterian and so is my grandpa who has just retired after 50 years in the ministry. He has looked over and discussed with me the background and base information of D&D. He thinks this game is extremely educational and is not a threat to spiritual living.

If any major action is taken by the church to attempt to remove D&D from the schools, you can be sure that myself, along with other D&D players will, to the fullest extent of our rights as minors, work to counteract this removal of D&D from the schools.

Elective hurts average pupils

To the editor:

I shall not bore you with details of my reaction when I read in your Feb. 11 issue that West Middle School offers an elective course called "Games, Games, Games." Nor shall I cloud the issue by explaining how I feel about my property tax money supporting this type of course.

Considering the dismal decline of many public school graduates' ability to read clearly, think clearly, speak clearly, and write clearly, I do wonder what any elective courses are doing in the middle school system. I see the proliferation of elective courses in both middle schools and high schools as one of the chief factors leading to a semi-literate, semi-articulate society.

A few years ago, the Plymouth-Canton School Board approved a slate of "minimum requirements" for high school graduation. When I read the list, I thought it might be minimum requirements for chimpanzees qualifying to enter the Detroit Zoo.

But what really appalled me was the comment of one board member defending the list by saying that we must guard against elitism. I wondered whether I could even give the board member credit for ingeniously preserving elitism, by making sure that the majority of near-adults remain semi-literate and inarticulate.

My concern is for the "average" students, who undoubtedly represent the bulk of the public school population. I imagine that the "superior" students, the creme de la creme, are protected by such travesties as "Games, Games, Games" by their own judgment, by the watchfulness of their parents, or by their leaving the public school system altogether.

But the "average" students, with whom I have dealt for many years after their high school tenure, are being sorely shortchanged. They have a much greater potential to think, read, write, and speak than the public schools seem to acknowledge.

I am not particularly interested in a defense of elective courses in the public schools because, if all but mentally handicapped students received rigorous instruction in composition, literature, speech, science, mathematics, music, art, history, and geography, I cannot fathom how there would be time in the school day for "Games, Games, Games."

Geer School is defended

To the editor:

Why is it that today when something unique and good happens a force materializes to level it back to mediocrity?

My children had the good fortune of attending Geer School from 1975-79. During that time, it was a yearly battle to keep the school open. It was worth the effort.

Many people could not see what we found appealing about a tiny, old two-room school without a gym, library or cafeteria. But we found many advantages.

One advantage was an outstanding teacher, Rita McClumpha. Here is a teacher with the ability to make learning fun and growing up interesting. By having several grades in one room, the children not only have their learning reinforced but they also become adept at helping others with their own work.

The setting was conducive to learning confidence. By being in close quarters, they learned to solve problems and to take turns. These are only a few of the many pluses we found in this school. No one in our family ever discovered any minuses.

In fighting to keep the school open, we discovered that it costs no more — and possibly less — to operate Geer than any other school in the district. In addition, the parents always have been willing to work together to help rectify problems that arise with the use of an old building.

Instead of looking for ways to rid itself of Geer, perhaps the district should point proudly to a rare example of individualism and other schools could see if they can find ways to incorporate its uniqueness into their programs.

Bigger is not necessarily better.

STEVE BOGOLEA, 13, is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the new Crazy Horse stamps at the local post offices. The seventh grader at Central Middle School has a very special interest in the issue of the new 13-cent stamp. Steve is something of an authority on Crazy Horse and in the course of his research, has made a film about the Indian chief.

He and his family toured the West last summer and their travels took them through the Dakotas and the Badlands. They stopped at the Mt. Rushmore monument. But Steve was more fascinated by the statue gradually taking form on a mountain a few minutes drive from Mt. Rushmore.

"All four (Mt. Rushmore) heads would fit into the Crazy Horse head," he explained. "Two thousand men could stand on one of his arms."

His film is silent. His narration tells the story of Korczak Ziolkowski, the sculptor who, with the help of his five sons, is carving up a mountain.

"He (Ziolkowski) worked on the Mt. Rushmore heads," said Steve. "Standing Bear, a friend of his suggested he make a statue of Crazy Horse. He bought the land in 1947 and started to blast."

Steve says Ziolkowski first painted the outline on the mountain. He blasted with dynamite. "After that he used a bulldozer and moved more than 541 millions tons of rock. It's granite so it's hard rock. He was working on it when we were there but we were a mile away. He has a house there and we saw a horse he had carved out of an old stump."

The film was the result of more than a month's work — research and taking pictures of pictures. He made it as a project for school. His teacher was so pleased with his effort that she arranged for six or seven other classes to see it.

"It was a pretty good experience for making movies," Steve said. "I've been making little cartoons, too."

Does the young film-maker have aspirations of some day receiving an Oscar at the Academy Award presentations?

Not a bit of it.

He intends to become a brain surgeon.

PLYMOUTH LIONS and their ladies will celebrate the club's 35th charter anniversary Saturday evening. They are renting the city's double decker bus to transport them to Greenfield Village where they will have dinner. Later they will see the Greenfield Village Players' production of "Born Yesterday."

CARL PURSELL was in Grayling Saturday for a ribbon-cutting ceremony. An old friend of his, Ron Hees of Plymouth, was opening a new plant in Grayling.

Ron, Plymouth High School class of 1949, and Carl, PHS class of '51, played baseball together.

Because the opening of a new plant is good news in Michigan, Gov. William Millikin also was on hand for the event.

Gary Hees, Ron's son, will manage the new business.

STUDENTS AT Fiegel Elementary School celebrated A.A. Milne's 100th birthday last week. Librarian Dorothy Eden planned the program with the assistance of teachers and parents.

Anne Welch's first graders presented one of Milne's Winnie-the Pooh stories. Volunteer Janet Brass directed the production of "In which Tigger comes to the forest and has breakfast."

Children in Trudy Bradley's second grade class sang several songs including "Winnie-the-Pooh and the Honey Jar," and "Vespers," a Milne poem which has been set to music. Ruth Horn's first and fifth graders — Lynda Schendel, Jenny Pye, Lynne Mathews and Katie Vesnaugh — recited poetry.

Prizes were awarded to the winners of the Winnie-the-Pooh coloring contest. The judges named five winners in each grade. The prizes were Pooh buttons designed and made by Barb Schendel, volunteer.

All the students received special bookmarks as mementos of the occasion. The Eeyore bookmarks had heavy tails and the other design was a Winnie-the-Pooh.

There was no birthday cake and ice cream.

For refreshments they had warmed biscuits with honey. The beverage was cider.

Students who play violin, viola, cello, bass and harp should participate in their school music programs. Students in grades six through 12 may audition.

Canton couples comment on marriage commitment

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

Happiness is being married to the same person for 35 years.

Ruth and Alex Ross were introduced by Martha Laird of Plymouth at a USO dance in downtown Detroit. Ruth was a full time secretary but spent many hours volunteering at the USO hall. Alex was stationed in Chicago but was home on a leave to visit his family.

It was love at first sight.

Ruth and Alex moved to Canton two years ago after selling their home in Detroit where they resided for 28 years. It was hard to leave their Kentfield Street home because they were both active in block activities for many years. Alex was transferred from the Chrysler Highland Park Plant to the Chelsea Proving Grounds, the amount of travel time during the day was getting too tedious.

Is there a secret to a happy lifetime together? Alex answers that the wife is the backbone of the relationship. Ruth says her husband is very considerate and when the marriage was in jeopardy they had to rely on the strong commitment they made to one another.

Their three sons, Donald, David and Brian are all graduates of Michigan State. During their childhood, the boys had the support of their parents in every activity and they all went to the prestigious rank of Eagle Scout. It is fun to be with a couple that is so aware of each other's needs.

BONNIE AND MAS Miyazaki have a marriage that was created according to tradition. Mas is from Los Angeles and Bonnie was born in Osaka, Japan. Custom has it for special people to prearrange the marriages of the upper class in Japan. They met in New York City and have been married for 21 years.

They reside in Canton with their three daughters, Lisa, Debbie and Amey. Like many Cantonites, Mas is employed by Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn. Bonnie can be seen at the Canton tennis courts, weather permitting, strengthening her great backhand. She was an active member with the Canton Newcomers for the past four years.

True faith, love and trust are the key element for their long lasting marriage, according to Mas. Bonnie believes that the honesty shared throughout the years keeps their commitment alive.

CECIL AND JUDY Thomas joined with Carol and Mike Dugan and Nancy and Merrill Neal in celebrating their anniversaries at a Canton party.

Cecil and Judy have been married 14 years and now live in Canton. They are two Yankees who met at Linekin Bay Resort in Massachusetts where both were employed for the summer while working their way through college. On their first date Judy put plenty of money in her shoe to pay her way to the theater just in case it was going to be a dutch-treat date. She has been pinching pennies ever since. She is now the operator of a home-base company turning out handmade articles from handbags to quilts.

The Salvation Army Co-op was able to benefit from Judy's talents during the two years her daughter Amy attended the preschool. You often find Judy at Miller School in her son Eric's classroom volunteering her time and talents.

Carol and Mike Dugan are very close neighbors of mine. They met in high school, started dating after graduation and they are still on their honeymoon after 20 years of marriage. Mike claims that it just plain "LOVE" that keeps their marriage so interesting.

Mike is employed by the Endo Corp. while Carol spreads her time between the Library Committee and the Canton Women's Club. Playing a fast game of tennis along with visits to Vic Tanny keep her busy.

They have no children and are constantly on the go with friends and neighbors.

MERRILL AND NANCY Neal are newlyweds of two years. Bloomfield Hills was their former home. They moved to the Canton area with children from former marriages to start anew.

A comment made at the recent party was, "I never knew what happiness was until I got married, and then it was too late." It was spoken in jest of course. Congratulations to all of these lucky couples.

EVERYONE knows Sue Smith of Canton. She is celebrating another birthday this week. Please call her to wish her another happy 29th.

Grenada is fine, except the politics

Dr. John Watts, chairman of the Grenada Tourist Board, is a charming, intelligent man who swings from the casual hospitality of the islands to intensely expressed opinions about surviving on a Caribbean island.

Thirty-five years ago, he was a foreign exchange student at Michigan State University, and he loves to regale you with stories about being a tropical islander stuck in his first midwestern snow storm.

We were talking about that, and about politics in Grenada, over a dinner of guava juice, West Indian chicken and creole fish in a restaurant on Grand Anse Beach.

POLITICS IS on the mind of anyone associated with Grenada these days: the U.S. State Department, other Caribbean islands, the local people, but especially anyone associated with tourism. Tourism is a major industry in Grenada, and politics is keeping the tourists away.

In case you missed this particular revolution, the lush little island of Grenada, in the Windward Islands 100 miles from Venezuela, was a British island until independence in 1974. Grenadians celebrated Independence Day last Sunday, Feb. 7.

On March 13, they celebrate the day in 1979 when lawyer Maurice Bishop and six of his friends staged a bloodless coup one night while Premier Eric Gairy was out of the country.

The new government has been severely criticized for closing newspapers and refusing to name a date for new elections, but especially for the fact that Cuban soldiers are helping to build a new international airport at the southern end of the island.

The United States government has severed relations with the island, and used its political and economical clout to discourage other countries from giving economic aid to Grenada.

I'M NOT qualified to be a political observer on this one, but every American "island expert" I know agrees with the American and Grenadian professionals who live on the island; they, like Dr. John Watts, believe the American reaction is inappropriate overkill.

Watts was an island politician for 25 years and he confirms what all of these other observers had told me: The previous government, although elected, was corrupt; Grenada has been trying for years to get an international airport; and Cuba was the first country that ever offered to help them.

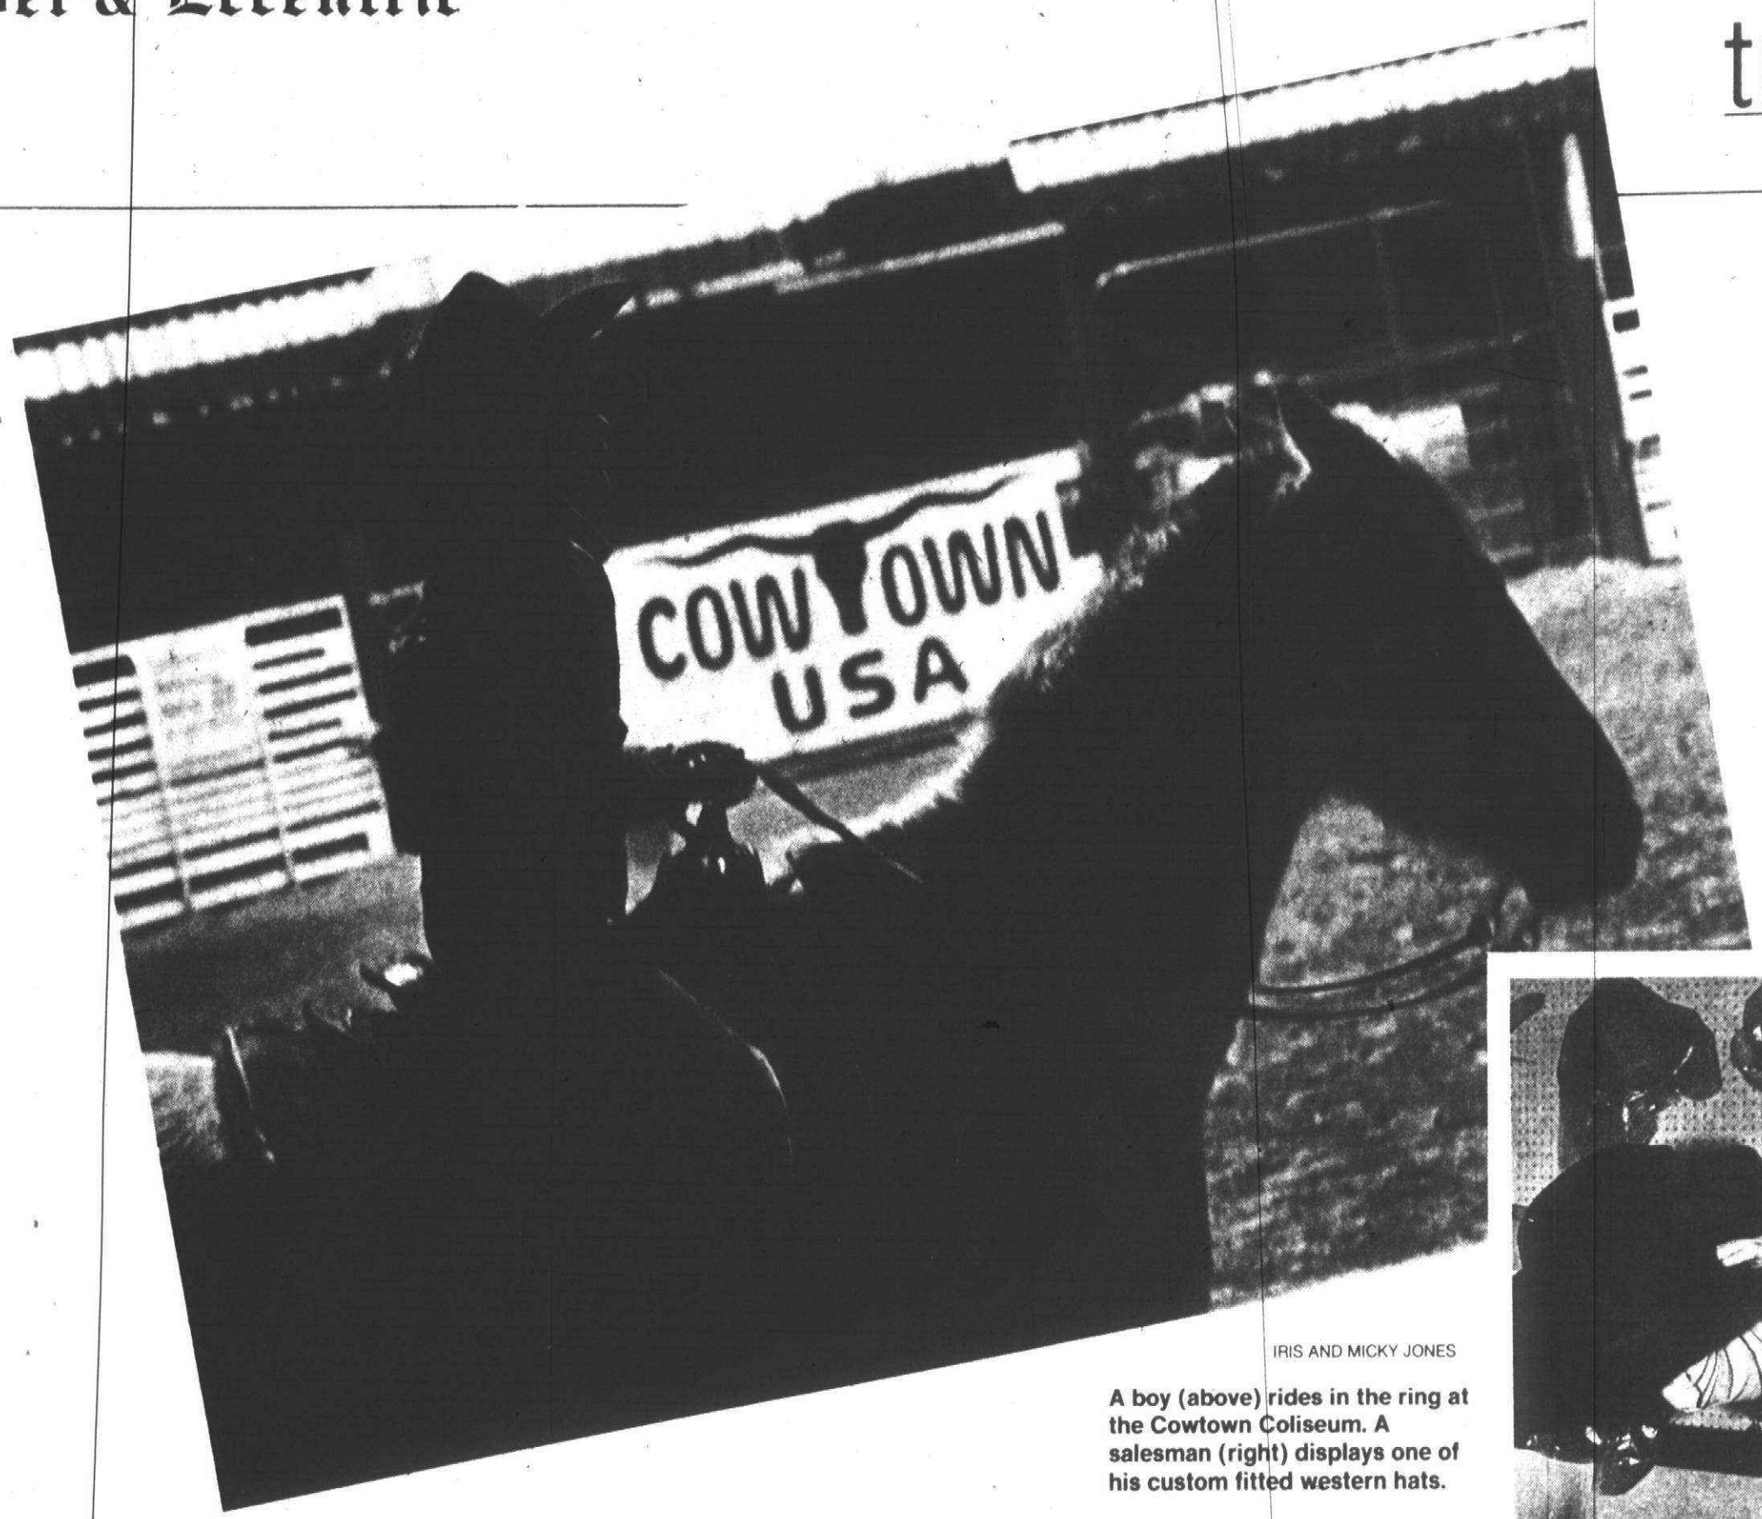

"Grenada is a 20th century country in a 17th century situation," Watt says. "The U.S. would do better to help us develop economically than to fight against us because of Cuba."

Whatever your view on all this, you should know that politics has absolutely no effect upon the tourist in Grenada. There are occasional road signs: "If you know, teach; if you don't, learn." There is rhetoric about Yankee imperialism in the remaining, absolutely dreadful, newspaper.

Otherwise this is a delightful tropical island, waiting, waiting for the tourists to come back.

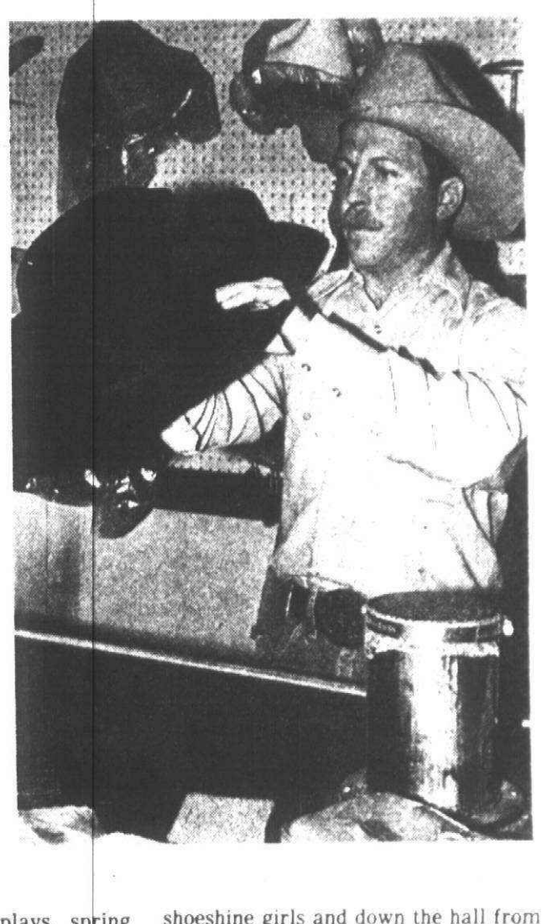

The people are hospitable and friendly. The food and accommodations are good. And the beaches are enough to make a winter-weary Michigan traveler start thinking about emerald seas.

Our story on Grenada ran on the Feb. 4 travel page.

IRIS AND MICKY JONES

A boy (above) rides in the ring at the Cowtown Coliseum. A salesman (right) displays one of his custom fitted western hats.

It may be the only city in the United States where the tourist can enjoy the cowboy culture, real and imaginary, without visiting a false-fronted Hollywood movie set.

Cowtown lives on

In Fort Worth, they're ridin' the night away

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

FORT WORTH, Texas: You can almost see the wild, wild West from here: longhorn cattle gone wild, real cowboys driving them to market, wagon trains, Indian raids and all.

Some people say it was invented here, 28 miles west of J.R. Ewing's Dallas and 100 miles east of John Wayne's Texas, by a man called Amon Carter, who sold Fort Worth, the 10-gallon hat and the pearl six-shooter to the world.

Nobody much cares at Billy Bob's Texas, where 7,000 pair of western boots do the Two-Step and the Cotton-Eyed Joe every night in the old Stockyard district. They don't ask you for credentials when they fit your boots or steam-crease your hat on Exchange Street.

Those are real Remingtons and Russells, in paint and bronze, in the museum district, and it is real cattle-and-oil money financing the renovation of downtown Fort Worth.

FORT WORTH is part of the Metroplex served by the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport but it has its own character. Dallas has been described as "an eastern city on a western plain" but Fort Worth is called Cowtown.

It may be the only city in the United States where the tourist can enjoy the cowboy culture, real and imaginary, without visiting a false-fronted Hollywood movie set.

The best way to enjoy all this is to understand where Hollywood ends and the west begins. Visit the Cattleman's museum any weekday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for a look at the real cowboy.

The cowboy lasted only a dozen years or so, through the 1870s and 1880s, gathering the longhorn cattle that had gone wild, driving them along the Chisholm Trail through what is now downtown Fort Worth, until barbed wire fences brought the cowboy and his herd to a belly-scratching stop.

Steve Murrin stumped to get the rodeo back into the Cowtown Coliseum.

Sometimes history looks like Hollywood. W.T. "Pappy" Waggoner measured a ranch in counties, not acres. Sid Richardson, who owned counties full of oil, left his money in a foundation to the Bass family. A little anecdote will show you how cattle and oil money renovates a city:

The Hunt brothers of Dallas, famous for trying to corner the silver market last year, spent $32 million converting the historic Hotel Texas into the contemporary Hyatt Regency-Fort Worth, which opened in 1981.

DALLAS MONEY in Fort Worth? The Bass brothers were so mad that they built the Americana Hotel, renovated a city block into Sundance Square, built two office buildings and are about to finish another big project called Action Place. High Noon on Main Street is a half-billion dollar downtown renovation, and more is to come.

Rich Fort Worth families also built the excellent museum complex, west of downtown, across the Trinity River, especially the classical European collection of the Kimbell Art Museum and the classical western collection of the Amon Carter Museum. Both have expensive, conservative collections in exciting contemporary buildings.

Carter was a poor boy from West Texas who became rich and powerful in Fort Worth, was a friend of both FDR and Will Rogers, and was known worldwide as the man in the cowboy outfit who "yippeed" for Fort Worth in unlikely places.

His museum faces Amon Carter Square and the Will Rogers Coliseum and Auditorium, where 12-year-old boys can still sell a champion bull for $25,000 and where the rodeo still plays.

THE RODEO ALSO plays, spring and fall, in the old Stockyard district to the north of downtown. This may be the most interesting area for tourists. It has been the heart of Cowtown activities since the turn of the century, and is the heart now of active Cowtown tourist attractions.

Cattlemen and good ol' boys have been having their hats custom fitted, and their boots and saddles made, on Exchange Street for decades. Five years ago, the stockyard area was desolate and abandoned except for those few shops; nowadays it's booming.

Joe and Carolyn Dulle renovated the White Elephant Saloon and the Lone Star Chili Parlor. Steven Murrin stumped and hollered until they got the rodeo back in what is now called the Cowtown Coliseum.

Steve is a familiar figure in Cowtown, a red silk shirt between his white hat and his knee-high boots. He looks like a dude, and he walks as if his feet hurt, but he grew up on a real ranch, and he may have replaced Amon Carter as the cowboy promoter of Fort Worth.

The Live Stock Exchange building is full of little shops now, and the Stockyard district is full of people, most of them on their way to a three-acre honky tonk called Billy Bob's Texas. No mechanical bulls here, just live bulls in the indoor rodeo arena, behind the shoeshine girls and down the hall from the pinball machines.

But Billy Bob's is for lovers of western music. Acres of music lovers move between the pillars, under the dim lights, around the 40 bars, with the country music thumping out of the stage and across thousands of tapping feet.

THERE ARE OTHER things to do in and around Fort Worth. There's a marvelous little train from the zoo, past the Botanical Gardens and the Log Cabin Complex in Trinity Park. There's Dallas, 28 miles away, and a growing complex of amusements in Arlington and Grand Prairie, between the two cities — Six Flags over Texas, Texas Sports Hall of Fame, International Wildlife Park, Southwestern Historical Wax Museum.

You can drive 30 miles to Courthouse Square and the Granbury Opera House in Granbury, both on the National Register of Historic Places, stopping along the way to see real longhorn cattle at the L.S. Ranch in Crowley.

The wild west is alive and well in all of these places. And if you listen carefully, you can hear the sound of a thousand hoofs thundering just beyond the next hill.

For information on Fort Worth, contact the Fort Worth Convention and Visitor's Bureau, 700 Throckmorton, Fort Worth, TX 76102.

Faith Lutheran bids Godspeed to longtime pastor

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

Faith Lutheran Church, which back in 1967 called a young man from the east as its assistant pastor, will bid farewell to him Sunday with a special worship service and parish dinner.

The Rev. Roger Schleef, who became the Livonia church's senior pastor two years after he arrived, is heading back east. He has accepted a call from St. Andrew Lutheran Church of Smithtown on Long Island, to serve its congregation as an associate in a team ministry.

The emphasis is on the team part of Roger Schleef's work, both in the landmark church on Five Mile that he is leaving and in the new situation.

At Faith he has developed, with the Rev. Paul Jaster and the Rev. Martin Seltz, a sharing of responsibilities that led him to point out that "while technically I am the senior pastor, in actuality we operate as a team."

"I'm grateful for that teamwork," he added, speaking of his fellow pastors' ability. "In my leaving I don't think the congregation is going to break stride. They may miss me personally, but they will keep right on moving."

'I think anyone who comes to Faith and Livonia will be blessed. I can't replace Livonia, and Faith Church is my life.'
—Pastor Roger Schleef

And at St. Andrew, he said, he will work in association with a younger pastor he knew as a parishoner when he served a Connecticut church before coming to Faith.

"This one definitely will be a team ministry too," he said. "Teamwork is going to be seen more and more in church leadership. More churches are calling for team ministry and ministers, while specializing more, are learning to pool their abilities."

SCHLEEF, WHO arrived at Faith to work with the Rev. Ronald Starenko soon after the congregation had built its ark-like sanctuary, was installed as senior pastor in September of 1969, six months after Starenko accepted another call.

His new post, he said, was not one he sought. "St. Andrew's senior pastor retired," he added, "and my wife has cousins in the congregation and I was known because I had served in Connecticut."

After visits and interviews, the call came just before Christmas and he made his decision in January.

"I had to balance the needs here and the needs there and my skills and interests," Schleef said. "I decided the Smithton congregation, while slightly larger than Faith, is one that is facing some of the same situations I have been able to work through here.

"It is one facing a decline in the numbers of children in its Christian education programs. It is one in need of organization and additional lay involvement, and it is one anxious to extend its ecumenical activities and community involvement. These needs seemed to match my strengths."

THE LONG ISLAND church, he noted, is one which, like Faith, broke away from the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod in recent years. Faith now is affiliated with the English Synod and St. Andrew with the East Coast Synod, and both of those divisions belong to the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (AELC).

He also emphasized that the move is not related to his completing work last year on a Doctor of Ministry degree.

"I've made that point with the congregation," he said, "because I didn't want people to think advanced education means a move."

The Faith congregation probably will evaluate its needs before moving to find a successor, he said, adding that he has "great confidence" that the selection process will go well.

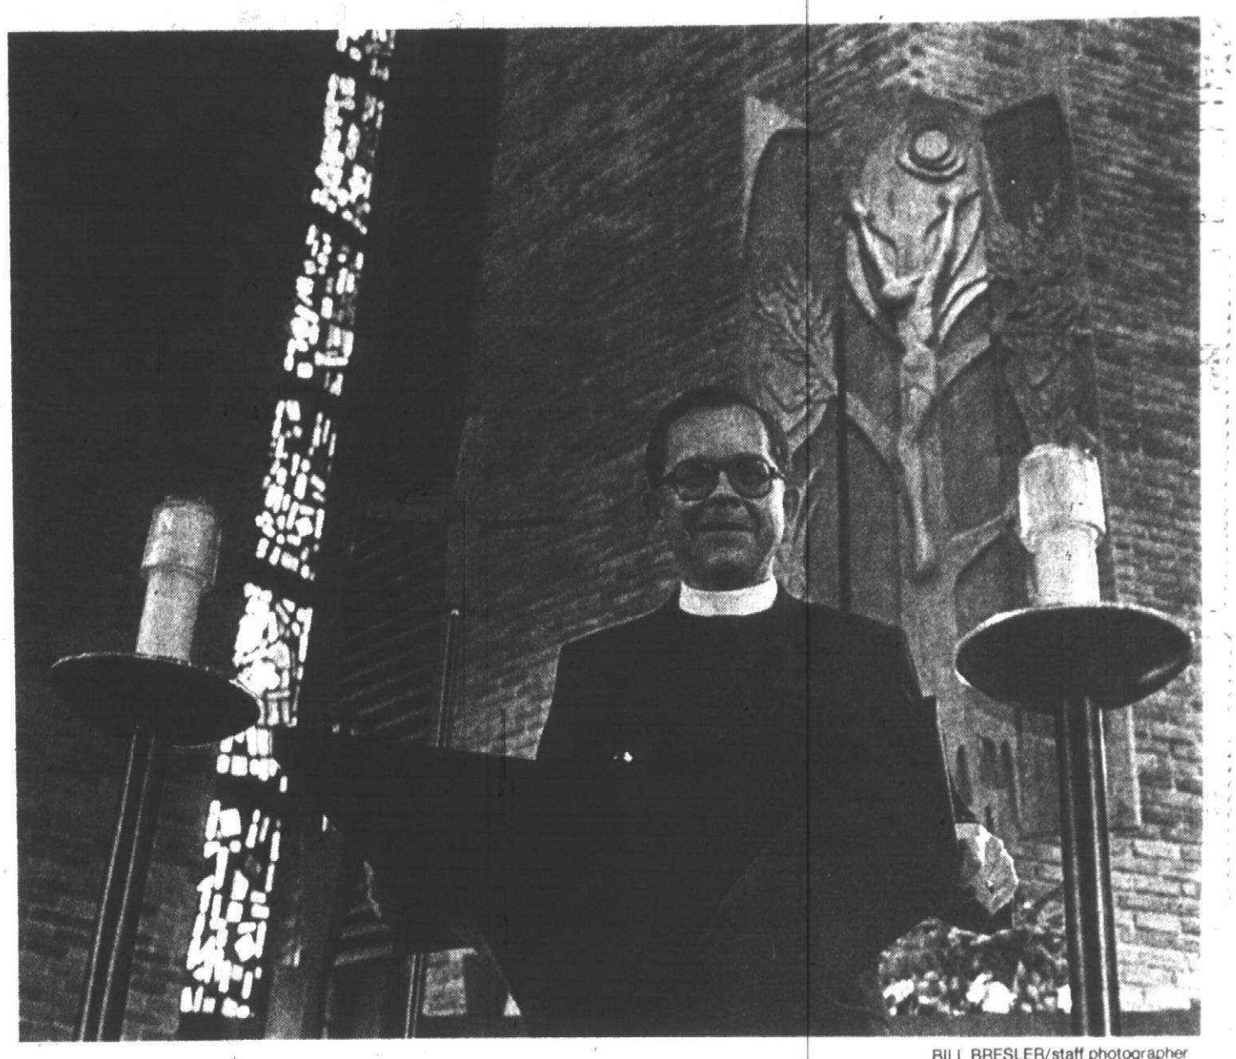

"Faith Church has had the character of being able to learn from the abilities of its pastors," he went on. "Ron Starenko was a very able theologian and he helped deepen the congregation's theological understanding."

His own contribution, lay involvement and community involvement, has been accepted and built upon, he said.

"I think anyone who comes to Faith and Livonia will be blessed," he concluded. "I can't replace Livonia, and Faith Church is my life."

SCHLEEF SAID his wife Elaine will remain here until their sons and daughter complete college and high school years. He also is continuing in plans to lead a group of travelers, including a number of Faith members, on a tour of the Holy Land in April and May.

The church is for Sunday a single service at 10 a.m. and the dinner at 11:30. Former members and friends are invited to participate.

Business keeps tabs on class reunions

The business of organizing class reunions and keeping tabs on fellow students after graduation has long been a nightmare for those persons responsable for those things. But a new national organization is changing all that.

It's called the National Alumni Association, and its purpose is to keep track of high school graduates and assist with the organizing of class reunions.

Founded in North Olmsted, Ohio two years ago, the NAA continues to sign up new members all the time, including entire graduating classes.

"It's an idea whose time has come," said company president and founder Arnold Kuenn. "It's very difficult to locate fellow class members after 10 or 25 years, especially if you're from a large class.

"PEOPLE MOVE all the time, get married and change their names. If you want to avoid a lot of problems later on, you have to track people continuously."

And that's what NAA does. Using computers along with periodic information requests to alumni, Kuenn's organization alleviates the task of tracing people. He has instant access to current information on all NAA members (provided, of course, they answer his request for facts).

"We can only keep track of alumni who want to make information about themselves available," said Kuenn. "We don't use any secret surveillance tactics or anything.

"Our information comes from the alumni themselves. Updates are requested about every two years."

Kuenn recruits members for NAA while they are still in high school. "We strongly urge the senior class presidents to sign up with us at graduation time," Kuenn said.

For more information, write the National Alumni Assoication at P.O. Box 38279, Cleveland, Ohio 44138

moral perspectives
Rabbi Irwin Groner

Our federal budget is a moral issue

Judaism and Christianity have demanded that moral values be applied to the practical problems of society.

"The earth and its inhabitants are the Lord's" is one of the quotations that shows how the prophets of ancient Isreal viewed the earth. They saw its resources and the wealth derived from them as a sacred trust to be shared justly by all.

The purpose of society and government is to provide for such sharing, to insure the security and rights of the disavantaged and the weak.

While we agree with many goals of the new administration — reducing the size and power of the federal bureaucracy, eliminating federal waste, controlling inflation and providing adequately for a common defense — we are sorely troubled by the policies of the federal government as they affect the poor, the needy, and the deprived.

THE 1982 BUDGET and the budget proposed for 1983 intensify the worst deficiencies of our current economic system. Its effect will be to increase the gap between the rich and the poor, between the advantaged and the disadvantaged.

Our economy needs to become more democratic, not less; more concerned with the fulfillment of human needs, not less; more equitable and fair to every segment of our society, not less.

The current thrust in budget cutting will strip the needy in our society of basic life necessities.

We shall soon encounter the specter of children without food, dedicated parents stripped of pride because they cannot provide for the basic needs of their young, the agonizing plight of the elderly, minorities, the handicapped, the unemployment and the ill-housed.

UNEMPLOYMENT continues to rise in Michigan, the state currently burdened with the highest unemployment rate in the United States.

It has been suggested that local governments and religious and business groups fill gaps left by federal cuts in social problems. But burdens on state and local governments, as well as non-profit organizations serving the poor, are increasing as the proposed cuts slash existing programs.

This creates additional frustration and may cause social turmoil in our city with all this portends for increased intergroup tensions.

The federal budget cuts being enacted by the Congress place an unfair burden on the most underprivileged and disadvantaged groups within our society. It is a false and repugnant idea that somehow the poor are the cause of our economic problems and that solutions at their expense are permissible.

The issues are not economic alone. They are moral and spiritual. It is therefore incumbent upon the religious community to call upon the government to reassess its economic policies.

We are concerned about the severe cutbacks in the areas of job-training, food aid subsidies, housing assistance for the elderly and disabled, loan grants for college student, Medicaid, funds for public education, and similar social programs.

We believe that the spirit of America and the moral teaching of our religious faiths require of us that we nat remain silent in the midst of injustice.

Salem, Canton rule league mat meets

Rocks boast 7 champions

By Jay Keenan
special writer

The song that poured out of the loud speakers before the individual wrestling finalists were introduced declared the fortunes of the Plymouth Salem team Saturday night.

The stereo kept uttering: "We are the Champions."

And the Rocks, rated among the top 10 teams in Class A by the Michigan High School Wrestling Coaches Association, racked up 202½ points to capture the Suburban Eight League title at Belleville.

Trenton finished second with 154½ followed by Edsel Ford in third with 110. Livonia Bentley was fifth. Complete results appear on page 4C.

It was Salem's third league title and final appearance in the Suburban Eight. The Rocks will join the 10-team, two-division Western Lakes Activities Association next season.

"I thought we could win the Suburban Eight," said Salem coach Ron Krueger. "I felt that we did a real good job. The kids who won at their weight classes really worked hard at getting it.

"This is our third Sub-Eight title, but this is the first season we were able to win all of our duals and the league meet at the same time," he continued. "We felt we were true champions this time."

No arguement here.

SALEM, however, didn't clinch the crown until the championship finals. The Rocks put eight wrestlers in the finals and came away with seven winners.

Trenton mustered up seven finalists, but only one champion.

"I think that was it right there," the Salem mentor said. "It that was a big night for us."

Krueger also said his team's ability to make weight was another vital element to victory.

"We had a couple of kids who were fighting to get down," Krueger explained. "If a couple of our kids didn't make their weights, it could have been a different story."

Marty Piper, who ran his record to 32-1, garnered the Rocks' first individual championship when he decisioned Belleville's Guy Wood in the heavyweight final, 6-0.

Rob McDonald, who normally wrestles at 134 pounds, dropped down to take the 129-pound division by virtue of a 13-6 win over Trenton's Scott Owen.

"It was beyond a shadow of a doubt that it was tough for Rob to get down," Krueger conceded. "We felt he'd be stronger there."

THE ROCKS' biggest onslaught, though, came in the middle and upper weight classes where they rattled off five consecutive victories.

Junior John Beaudoin, who appears to be state contender in the 141-pound class, pinned Trenton's highly touted Jeff Owen at 2:46. Owens moved up one weight class just for the league meet.

"Jeff Owen is a real tough wrestler," said Krueger. "I was really happy knowing that John is one of my tougher wrestlers."

Bruce Bachman, now sporting a 38-1 record, pinned Mike Ninichuk at 3:07 en route to first-place finish at 148.

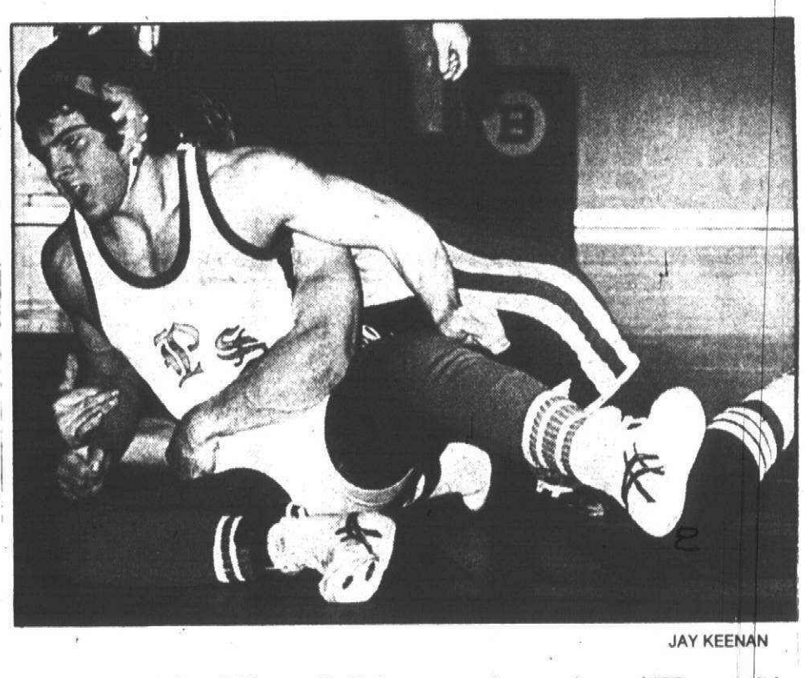

Another Salem senior Randy Beaudoin (158), trounced Edsel's Ken Lucas in the final, while John Woochuk (170)

Salem's John Beaudoin (top) had things under control as he pinned Jeff Owen of Trenton in the 138-pound Suburban Eight League wrestling final. Salem also captured the team title.

Randy Beaudoin of Plymouth Salem was also a winner (155 pounds) as he downed Ken Lucas of Dearborn Edsel Ford.

Chiefs bid farewell with strong showing

The final Western Six League wrestling mat will be rolled up and placed in the possession of Plymouth Canton.

The Chiefs captured their second title in as many years Saturday with a team total of 187 points. Season-long nemesis Walled Lake Western was a close second with 181½ followed by Farmington Harrison, 102½; host Northville, 100; and Livonia Churchill, 94. Complete results appear on page 4C.

Canton coach Dan Chrenko was proud of the way his team went out a winner. The league trophy will be retired in Canton's case. The Western Six League is breaking up next year and the five teams will join the newly-formed Western Lakes Activities Association beginning next fall. That conference consists of two, five-team divisions.

"It was a super day for us," said Chrenko. "It's a good feeling and fitting to end the Western Six that way. That's indicative of how we wrestled the last two years."

Canton placed nine grapplers in the finals and came away with six champions.

Junior Todd Bartlett (108 pounds) and senior Brian Lee (135) both successfully defended league crowns.

AND SOPHOMORE Todd Gattoni of Canton made a shambles of 101-pound division with a three pins on the day en route to the title.

Other Canton champions included Tim Collins (122), Steve Hamblin (148) and Marty Heaton (158).

Chrenko designated Collins as "our wrestler of the week." The Canton sophomore decisioned Walled Lake Western's highly-regarded Dale Fenzel in the final, 3-1. The victory avenged a 15-2 drubbing earlier in the year.

Second place finishers for the Chiefs included Scott Rodgers (115), Kevin Decker (129) and Brett Haarala (141).

"We got the momentum going early and kept it the rest of the day," said Chrenko. "The kids seemed to wrestle better and better. They came prepared."

Canton built a comfortable lead through the early weight classes.

"It was just like our dual meet with Western (34-33 victory)," said Chrenko. "Only this time we had it wrapped up and they came back to make it close.

"It's a tribute to the kids. Even with all the pressure, they knew what they had to do to win it."

CHRENKO WAS extremely pleased with the showing of heavyweight Alex Young and Wain Yeung (170) as both scored points with their first pins of the season.

Western made it close by garnering championships at 129, 170, 188 and 201. Northville also had two champs (heavyweight and 141).

Greg McCoy was Farmington Harrison's only champion. He won the 115-pound division with a 4-2 decision over Rodgers.

Canton will now compete in the state's toughest district tournament (Temperance-Bedford). Five of the top 10 Class A teams will be vying for honors.

Brighton girls bounce Canton

Brighton, a semifinalist in the Howell Invitational Volleyball Tournament over the weekend, continued its strong play Monday to beat Plymouth Canton 15-10, 15-6.

The loss dropped Canton to 5-3 overall.

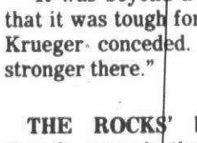

"I knew they'd be good," feared Canton coach Cyndi Burnstein. "They beat us last year.

"In the final analysis, they had a couple servers that gave us a lot of problems. Our service reception is not a problem usually, but we just couldn't get it back."

The Chiefs were sluggish in the 15-team Howell event, won by Westland John Glenn.

Canton lost two games in pool play to Livonia Bentley, the Plymouth Invitational runners-up. Burnstein's team finished with a 3-5 record after splitting with Hartland, Royal Oak Kimball and Birmingham Groves.

Parochial cagers set 'battle royal'

Marty Budner

My dear brothers and sisters in sports:

Today's homily concerns Catholic League basketball.

In four days we begin the celebration of "Catholic League Hysteria Week."

That's hysteria as in hyperkinetic high school basketball.

For brethren, when the popular Catholic League playoffs roll around, it's the faithful followers along with public school cynics who annually flock to the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall. There, believers and non-believers alike witness some of the top local prodigies in action.

The tournament begins Sunday with the "Divine Eight" representing the Catholic League's A-B Divisions.

At 2 p.m., Southgate Aquinas (13-3 as of Tuesday) opens the tourney against the undefeated Rustics (16-0) from Redford St. Mary's. Then Class D East Catholic (10-3) will play Class A state-title contender Birmingham Brother Rice (12-4).

DETROIT DE LASALLE (13-2), a surprising Class B team this season, plays Class C powerhouse Orchard Lake St. Mary's (12-2) at 6 p.m.

And, finally, at 8 p.m., Detroit St. Martin dePorres (11-5) plays the University of Detroit High School (14-1).

The Catholic C-D semifinal games, which has Redford St. Agatha still in the running for a playoff berth, begin Feb. 23 with the final four.

The A-B semifinal games will be Feb. 25 starting 6:45 p.m. The finals for A-B and C-D starts 2 p.m. Feb. 28.

So, as you can see from these records, it promises to be exciting entertainment — possibly one of the most competitive basketball tournaments the Catholic League has presented.

As Brother Walt Bazylewicz, our Catholic League ruler, noted, the participating A-B teams have a combined record of 101-20. He also said six of the eight teams are rated among the top 10 in their respective classes.

He is naturally thrilled at the prospects of a great tournament — not just because of the financial rewards, but because of the anticipated competition.

Indeed, the teams truly present an exciting lineup. There is always some great basketball played in this tourney.

I know from personal experience.

IT WAS JUST 12 years ago, in 1970, that my team from Sacred Heart Seminary surprised everyone to win the Catholic League C-D title.

We defeated St. Ladislaus in our first game, 67-54. Then came the raging semifinal battle against state-ranked Orchard Lake St. Mary's, which was riding high on a 15-game winning streak.

And, yes, we pulled off the mighty upset. We shocked such Eaglet players as all-league Mickey Krogulicki and Mike Paciorek with a 74-68 victory.

Then in the championship game, we defeated St. Vincent for the third time that season. Our game was played prior to the A-B final that featured Detroit Catholic Central and its star Frank Tanana against old Austin High School and its all-league player Rick Woodbury.

Our captain and leading point scorer was Ken Bomberksi, who now lives in Bloomfield Township. Tim Maly, our 6-foot-6 center who lives in Plymouth, Tom Foley, Mark Skzil and Mike Houbeck were our other starters.

Joe Plawecki, now an assistant basketball coach at Detroit Country Day School, was also a member of our Maruader team. Our coach — Carl Castle — was voted Coach of the Year by the Detroit News.

It was exciting for us back then, and the tradition has continued.

Indeed, the thrill of the Catholic League cage playoffs is enough to make believers out of most anyone.

Amen.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

Plymouth High's baseball team came through with a one-hit vicotry in beating Noathville 6-1 on April 14, 1965. Dave Troutman and John Daniel shared the pitching for the Rocks. Troutman worked the first four frames and Daniel finished up, permitting the lone safety in the fifth when Northville notched its run. A walk to Curt Irish and a triple by Mark Sutton gave Plymouth its first run in the third inning. Then in the fifth, with the score tied 1-1, a single by Terry Cosgrove, walks to Gotro and Sutton and three errors helped Plymouth count five times. The game served as the only tune up for the Rocks before they began their Suburban Six League Title chase the following week.

Canton snaps losing streak at RU

By Ken McDonald
special writer

For the Plymouth Canton Chiefs, it has been a long time between wins.

For the Redford Union Panthers, the wait will be even longer.

Canton broke an 11-game losing streak Tuesday with a 64-61 victory over RU, extending the Panthers' losing string to 11. Canton is now 2-15, RU is 1-15.

Pat Murphy hit a turnaround jumper with 50 seconds left to break a 59-59 tie and give Canton a lead it never relinquished. RU's Dan Dwyer missed the first of a one-and-one free throw attempt four seconds later, crippling the Panthers' chances to catch Canton.

The Chiefs got the next three points on two free throws by Matt Thomas and one by Mike Scarpello, increasing their lead to 64-59. A Dwyer basket pulled RU to within three, but with just 12 seconds left it was too little, too late.

CANTON COACH Dave Van Wagoner praised his team's play but also felt luck played a key role.

"We did everything we had to do to win," Van Wagoner said. "We were fortunate tonight that the ball went in.

"Things just happened for us."

RU coach Bill Foley said Canton's speed made the difference in the game.

"We kept switching our defenses on them (but) we couldn't contain their speed," Foley said.

"It was a tough one to lose. I wanted to have this victory to spark us."

The game was close during the first half with Canton grabbing an 18-16 advantage after one quarter and a 38-34 edge at the intermission.

CANTON GOT hot in the second half, scoring the first eight points of the third quarter to build a 13-point lead, 53-40, with three minutes left in the period.

But RU charged back, scoring the final seven points of the quarter to narrow the gap to 53-47 with one quarter remaining. The Panthers tied the contest several times in the last quarter before the final minute.

Paul Crider topped all scorers with 21 points for RU. Dwyer added 20. Forward Matt Thomas led Canton with 18 points, with guard Tom Harris adding 15 and forward Ron Rienas picking up 12.

After 81-53 win over Allen Park

Rocks eye Sub 8 cage crown

Senior Mike McBride continued his hot scoring pace with 20 points, and teammate John Cohen came off the bench to add 13, as Plymouth Salem rolled to an 81-53 Suburban Eight League basketball win Tuesday over Allen Park.

Salem continues to lead the league with a 9-0 record. The Rocks are 13-3 overall. Allen Park is winless in 10 league starts and 1-15 overall.

McBride, a 6-foot-3 sharpshooter, has averaged 23 points per game in his last five outings. He also contributed in other areas, hauling in seven rebounds. Cohen was the team leader with eight.

Senior guard Dave Miller had six assists to go along with 12 points. Norm Haygood also chipped in with 12 points for the winners.

Don Goubis of Allen Park had 18.

It was Salem's pressure man-to-man defense that unraveled the Jaguars.

The host Rocks jumped out to a 16-7 first-quarter advantage and led at the half, 32-19.

"We defensed them better," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, whose team struggled in the first half and went on to beat Allen Park in a previous meeting.

"We put more pressure on the basketball," he continued. "We picked them up at half court."

IN THE THIRD quarter, Salem blew it wide open with a 28-14 scoring outburst. Thomann then substituted freely in the fourth quarter.

Salem committed 25 fouls with starter Glen Medalle fouling out. Allen Park, although outscored from the field, 32-13, prevented a massacre by hitting 27 of 40 free throws.

Salem can clinch its eighth league title in 10 years tonight with an on-the-road victory over second-place Dearborn (7-2).

"This is our biggest league game of the season," said Thomann. "We can win it outright."

HURON VALLEY 31
PLY. CHRISTIAN 29

John Briggs rifled in a 30-foot shot at the buzzer to give Huron Valley Lutheran a come-from-behind 31-29 basketball victory over Plymouth Christian Tuesday night.

Plymouth Christian blew a six-point advantage with less than three minutes to go by committing four costly turnovers.

The Eagles, who were routed in a previous meeting with Huron Valley (65-49) led by as many as five points heading into the final quarter.

"We spread our offense and slowed the game down," explained Plymouth Christian coach Butch DeRenzo, whose team fell to 8-10 overall. "We stayed with our game plan.

"We frustrated them. If we just could have handled the pressure at the end, we would have come up a winner."

Scott Henzi, who scored 37 against Plymouth in the first game, was held to seven points. John Briggs and Pete Ludetke each scored eight.

John Koss led the Eagles and all scorers with 13.

Shaffer, diving trio can't rescue tankers

Plymouth Salem suffered only its second dual swim meet loss of the season Tuesday night at Dearborn Edsel Ford, 88-84.

Edsel Ford's victory forces a three-way tie for first place in the Suburban Eight League. The Thunderbirds share the top spot at 4-1 with Trenton and Dearborn. Salem is 3-2 in league duals and 9-2 overall.

The Rocks were "touched out" in several races according to coach Chuck Olson.

Salem's Russ Shaffer, however, won two individual events and anchored a winning relay effort.

He was victorious in the 200-yard individual medley (2:07.4) and 100 backstroke (1:01.3). He also joined forces with John Thompson, Jeff Kleinsmith and Tim Harwood to win the 400 freestyle relay in 3:29.8.

Salem swept the diving event with Joe Rudelic taking first (248 points) followed by Todd Riedel (200.40) and John Henry (160.70).

"All year long that's been our strongest event," said Olson. "They're hard workers and it has paid off."

Ray Gosnell was a double winner for Edsel Ford as he hit the wall first in the 100 freestyle (49.8) and 200 freestyle (1:50.6). Teammate "Speedy" Smith was first in the 50 freestyle (22.5) and 100 butterfly (56.7).

THE ROCKS' only other individual winner was Ashley Long in the 100 breaststroke (1:06.7).

He was also a member of the Salem quartet which finished second in the 200 medley relay (1:49.0) along with Paul Neschich, Mark Roehrig and Bob Bowling.

Individual second-place finishers for Salem included Harwood, 200 IM, 2:09.2; Erik Kleinsmith, 500 free, 5:14.2 (personal best); Neschich, 100 backstroke, 1:01.4; and Roehrig, 100 breaststroke, 1:10.2.

Recording third places for Salem were Thompson, 200 free, 1:56.3, and 200 free, 1:56.3; Bowling, 50 free, 24.1; and Roehrig, 100 fly, 58.5.

Michalik, Beale lead gymnasts to victory

Laura Michalik and Linda Beale each won two events Monday to lift Plymouth Canton to a 114.90-105.95 girls gymnastics victory over Westland John Glenn.

Canton is now 5-2 overall.

Michalik was the all-around winner with a combined score of 31.75. She placed first on vault (8.45) and uneven parallel bars (8.05). The Canton senior was also second on floor exercise (7.85) and third on balance beam (7.4).

Beale, a sophomore, was second overall (31.15). She captured first in beam (7.55) and floor (8.1). She was also second in both vault (7.75) and uneven bars (7.75).

Glenn's Amy Montgomery was third in all-around with a score of 29.4. Her best finish came on beam (7.5).

"Glenn is the most improved team we've gone up against in a long time," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "They've really have a good group of kids."

But the Canton mentor was also happy with his team's showing after clinching a spot in the regional.

"I'M QUITE encouraged by this," he said. "We've gone beyond my expectations. Trout (Ruth Ann) and Lovich (Lisa) are competing for the first time all-around. They're making great progress."

Other Canton individual finishers included Trout, vault, fifth place, 6.7; Lovich, uneven bars, fifth, 5.85; and Theresa Wheeler, vault, sixth, 6.6.

700 club rolls in new members

in the pocket
by W.W. Edgar

For Cliff Vangall, it was almost but not quite.

Vangall, bowling in Merri-Bowl's Mixed League, started his series last week with a 195, then rolled a 234. His final game was one of his highest of the season, 270, but it was a pin shy of the magic 700 series. And his 270 didn't even earn high game-honors.

That went to Rob Durham who bowled a 273.

THREE NEW MEMBERS were added to the 700 club during the week. Dick Bond posted a 713 in the Mixed Classic at Westland Bowl, and Bob Grenier fired a 700 in the Monday's Men's League. Chuch Anderson, who carries a 175 average, opened with a 267 game and went on to a 722 series.

The Bel-Aire Classic averaged 212 for the night as Tony Stepcak led the way with a 269 finish in a 690 series.

OTHER GOOD PERFORMANCES: At Merri-Bowl, Al Blanchard paced the Mixed League with a 672, and Dot Holzheter posted a 600 to pace the women, while Lorrie Densky walked off with top honors in doubles by rolling a 258 middle game in a 635 series.

At Garden Lanes, Terry Chapman went 155 pins over average with a 560 series, Lucky Lau rolled a 250 game in a 590 series, and Jerry Kundrot paced the Vinco League with a 632 series.

At Westland, Renee Kropacket rolled a 599 to miss the lead in the classic at Westland by three pins, which was captured by Jane Martin with a 602.

And at Redford Lanes, 19-year-old Harris McBride rolled a 232, 214 and 234 for a 680 series.

Salem grapplers gain league hold and Scott Wickens (180) fattened the Rocks' lead with championship victories over Trenton matmen.

Salem's other finalist was Bill Hall, who was called up to the varsity ranks halfway through the season. He was beaten in the final at 108 pounds by Mike Budziak (fall 5:20).

BENTLEY'S Paul Doulette took the 101-pound crown. He has only one loss all year. Teammate Dave Steward won at 122 while Mark Brincat was a runner-up at 135.

Other Salem wrestlers who placed included Harry Walkley, third, 201; John Jeannotte, fourth 122; and Rick Bershave, fourth, 101.

The Rocks also got some unexpected assistance from Jeff Davis, who went into the meet with no varsity experience. He finished fourth at 135.

Salem defaulted at 115 because of an injury to Mike Doumanian (24-10), who suffered a neck injury in a recent dual meet. He is expected to return for Saturday's Class A district tourney at Temperance-Bedford.

"There's going to be a lot of tough teams coming in from all over the area," said Krueger. "And who knows? We might beat these kids. My main concern is how well my kids get to their weights."

Krueger said that Bachman and John Beaudoin will both drop down one division for the district.

Plymouth Christian '5' wins district

Post-season play couldn't be better for Plymouth Christian.

The Eagle cagers won the Association of Christian Schools International (ACSI) district championship last weekend at Benton Harbor with a 41-34 win over Baroda Grace Christian.

Plymouth now advances to the ACSI regional tourney Feb. 26-27 at Grace College in Winona, Ind.

"As of late we've played good basketball," said Plymouth Christian coach Butch DeRenzo. "We've eliminated the mental mistakes."

Plymouth put on a 21-13 scoring burst in the second half to put away the western Michigan school. The Eagles turned the tide with a spread offense after gaining the lead for the first time in the third quarter.

"We didn't want to play against a zone," said DeRenzo. "We were able to run four minutes off (the clock) before scoring."

Jim Koss and Brian Spicer led the winners with 12 points each. John Koss added 11.

Wayne Quigley topped Grace with 10.

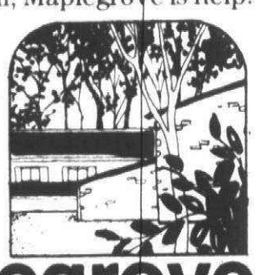

IN THE DISTRICT opener, Plymouth jumped out to a 32-21 halftime lead and never looked back in beating Lakewood Christian of St. Clair Shores, 60-40.

Jim Koss and Mike Routledge paced the winners with 13 and 12, respectively.

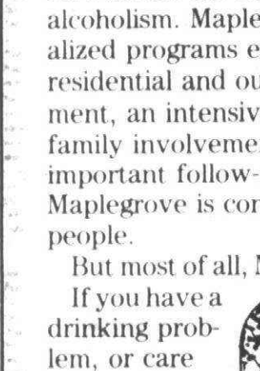

"Except for the final," DeRenzo added. "The competition wasn't what we're used to around here. But we're pleased."

Plymouth Christian, the Michigan district champ, will enter the four-team regional against representatives from three other states — Wisconsin, Illinois and host Indiana.

Austrian skiing: A touch of home

skiing

Barry ZeVan

MAYRHOFEN, Austria — "You're from Michigan? Our brother was there and he loved it!" the girl from Britain both queried and exclaimed.

It was an odd feeling to be talking about southeastern Michigan's ski areas while watching the mists rise rapidly froim the Zillar Valley floor below. Heart of Austria's Ziller Valley, just an hour east of Innsbruck, is the village of Mayrhofen.

Two challenging ski mountains, Penkenbahn and Ahornbahn, literally overshadow the village and dominate the winter activity in this Tyrolean trown with a winter population of 3,000. In summer, because of its "Sound of Music" atmosphere, the population triples.

Mayrhofen natives are proud of the numerous Olympic contenders they've produced — and rightfully so.

Their mountains, in addition to the dozens which surround them and support ski activity, are anything but a piece of cake for someone wishing to learn to ski where it all began, in an organized fashion, in 1901, in the eastern part of the country near Vienna.

I found, both here and in Innsbruck, that metropolitan Detroit visitors to these majestic mountains are not rare sights. I talked with people from Birmingham, Rochester and Bloomfield Hills who said that their visits have been numerous.

INNSBRUCK'S AREAS, which hosted the 1964 and 1976 Winter Olympic games, will provide a labyrinth of challenging runs for the more adventurous. The Igls men's downhill course will raide the goosebumps as high as mini-moguls. It is Innsbruck's most "awesome" area.

Skiers wishing to graduate from easy to challenging should try Axamer-Lizum first. It, along with it's four sister area surrounding Innsbruck, offers magnificent views of the city of Innsbruck (population 120,000, although it looks considerably larger from the heights).

The occasional light smog hovering above the city hampers the shutterbugs' view only minimally.

Hungerburg, Innsbruck's North Side, offers skiers the chance to transport themselves and their equipment via streetcar to an aerial tram still within the city limits. It will lift them to encounter sights at the top which defy description.

The panorama is truly spectacular, both below and above. Behind them is Europe's steepest ski run, an almost perpendicular affair which persuades many to stand in wonder, agape at its potential for speed and daring.

Not many attempt it. I decided to have weiner schnitzel and sauerkraut for a late breakfast instead. Noodle soup is another staple which many Americans, including this one, find irresistible.

INNSBRUCK'S OTHER areas include Mutters, on a par with Axamer-Lizum for its easier runs, and only about a 20-minute bus ride from downtown Innsbruck. Axamer-Lizum has more variety and was the site of the women's downhill in the Winter Olympic games.

Tulfes, the farthest from the heart of town, toward the east and the Ziller Valley offers a 10-mile run, longest in any of the areas nearest Innsbruck. I made it in 45 minutes. The complexities of its runs are recommended for only the most experienced.

Costs? Very comparable to major United States ski areas . . . about 10 years ago. Various ski pass packages are available, some for as little as $7 a day.

Another surprise: American music dominates local radio broadcasts from Austrian, Italian and German stations. Dean Martin was crooning "Corrina, Corrina" when I flipped the radio to "on" in Innsbruck.

Innsbruck's (and Austria's) first McDonald's restaurant, which opened in November 1981, offers Viertel Pfunders und Bier (quarter pounders and beer). American money is often accepted.

The saddest moments? Having to wait 2½ days to learn the Super Bowl results, via the International Harold Tribune.

Be creative in home financing

In the past, home mortgages had fixed interest rates and monthly payments running 20, 25 or 30 years. Now, interest rates fluctuate and monthly payments are far above rates common a short time ago.

That's why over half the homes sold today include some form of adjustable, so-called "creative financing." Not all of these adjustments offer comparable benefits, and some may not be as inexpensive as they first seem.

One common solution is to assume the seller's mortgage. A pitfall of assumable mortgages might be a large down payment. If you don't have the necessary cash, you might need a second mortgage, which could put the house out of reach. Also, assumable mortgages are not usually welcomed by the banks involved, because of low interest rates they sustain.

Another problem with assumable mortgages is their legality. Although all VA- and FHA-guaranteed mortgages and many written prior to the early 1970s are assumable, others carry "due on sale" clauses. However, there are court suits in over 20 states on the legality of these clauses. And Congress is expected to act on a bill that would eliminate the possiblity of assuming mortgages.

Costly mortgages result form high interest rates. To pay this interest to depositors, banks raise loan charges. Because inflation leads to volatile interest rates, lenders lose money with fixed mortgages.

Still available are low mortgage rates guaranteed for a few years, but a refinancing agreement would be at a higher rate. However, if you will have the lump sum when it falls due, these short-term loans may be your best bet.

Despite this, if your finances dictate a long-term loan, compare the different graduated mortgage rates offered. A graduated payment mortgage may define exactly when and how much your payments increase over the years. An adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) or adjustable mortgage loan (AML) usually ties the mortgage rate increase to an economic index.

Because of the restrictions on national banks, ARMs can rise no more than 1 percent every six months. AMLs from savings banks are not restricted at all. However, this could also work against you. If an index rises beyond the allowed rate increase, the difference may be tacked on to your principal.

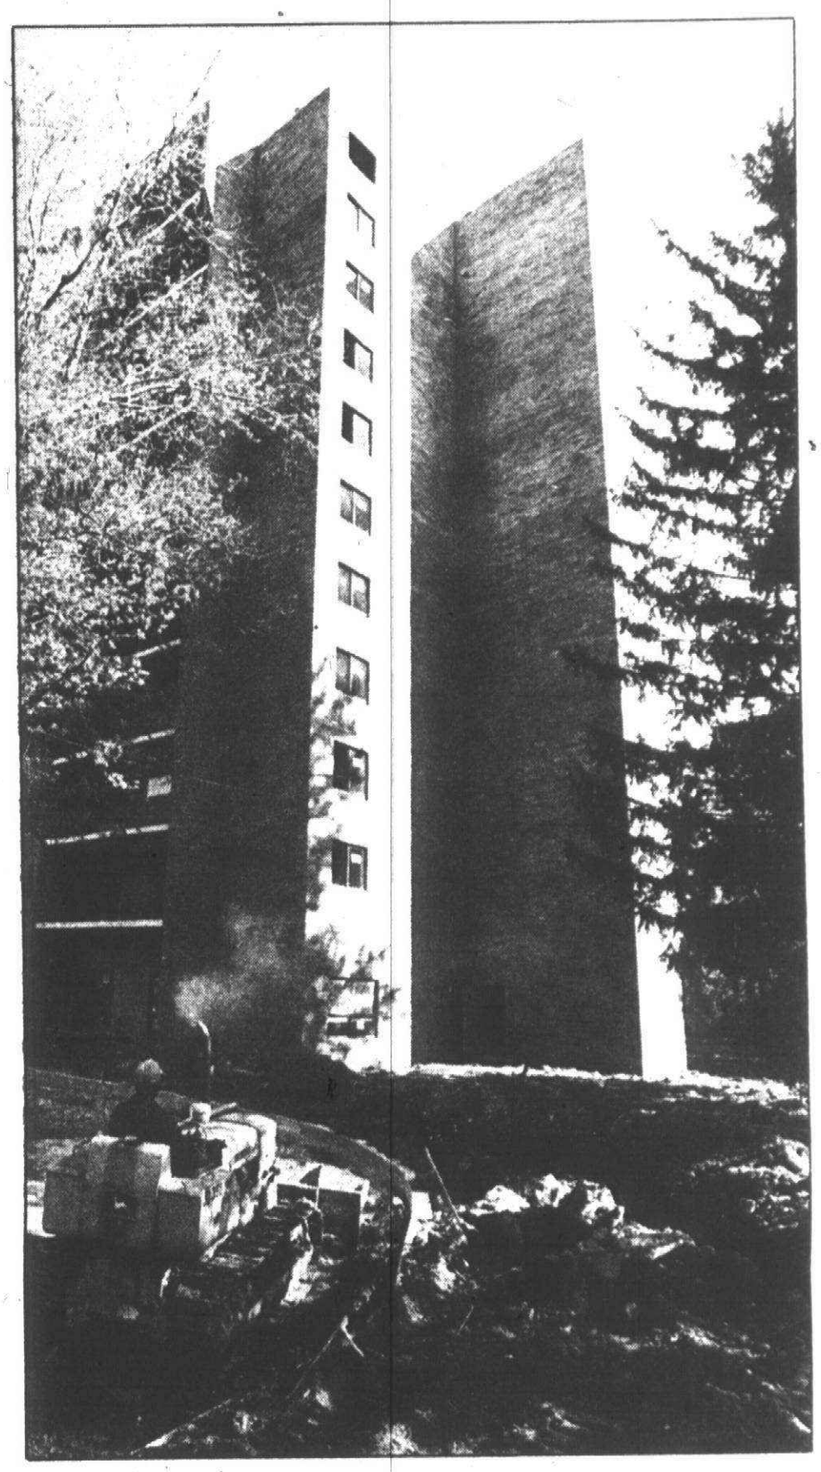

Some mortgages offer lower rates but require the loan to be paid back sooner. There are options, like the rollover mortgage, where the loan may be refinanced at the end of a determined period which can be as short as three years.

The new mortgages may seem simpler than they are. For example, if a rate is adjustable, how often will it be changed, how often can it be changed and by how much?

Short-term indexes are usually more volatile, and some tend to rise more than others, so know what index pertains. If you use a mortgage that requires balloon payments or has to be refinanced every few years, know how much money is due and when.

In addition to creative mortgages, there are other ways to hold down costs, such as a lease purchase agreement. You rent the house until you decide either to move or buy. In some cases, rent can be applied against the price. Or you might be able to buy the house but rent the land it sits on.

However, the payments are not tax-deductible as are house mortgage interest payments. Also, if you don't own the land, you may have trouble selling the house.

There are advantages to buying a home or renting an apartment. Which you choose depends on a number of factors including income and lifestyle.

Rent or buy: What's best for you?

The American dream of owning a home has become more elusive despite a tapering off in home prices. Renting, an alternative to buying, is not as inexpensive as it used to be. Which is the better, more affordable plan? There ae pros and cons to each situation including tax credits and deductions as well as the monthly payment you are able to budget.

These should not determine your choice to rent or buy, but they do make a difference in what you pay. The mortgage rate and term and your income compared with rental payments used to be a simple consideration. Now you have to include inflation and your tax deduction.

For example, let's use a $73,900 house. If you could get a $60,000 mortgage at a fixed 12½ percent and put down $13,900, your monthly payments would total $640 for 30 years. When you paid off your mortgage, you would have spend $230,472. If you could find a compagable living space to rent for $600 per month, after 30 years you would have spend $216,000. But his does not tell the whole story.

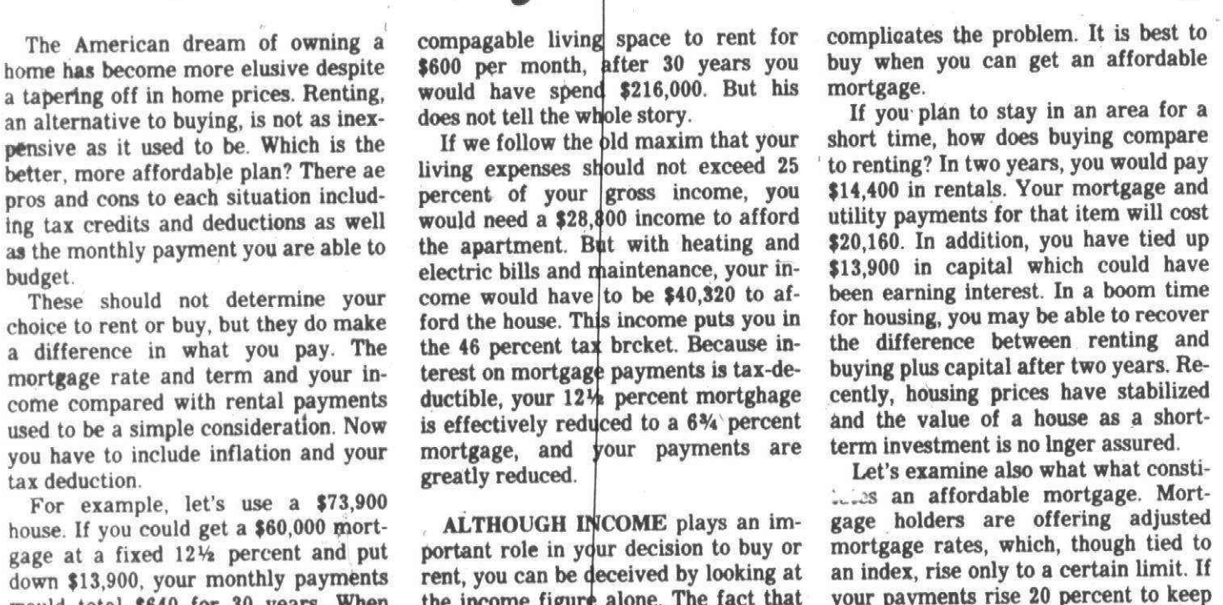

If we follow the old maxim that your living expenses should not exceed 25 percent of your gross income, you would need a $28,800 income to afford the apartment. But with heating and electric bills and maintenance, your income would have to be $40,320 to afford the house. This income puts you in the 46 percent tax brcket. Because interest on mortgage payments is tax-deductible, your 12½ percent mortghage is effectively reduced to a 6¾ percent mortgage, and your payments are greatly reduced.

ALTHOUGH INCOME plays an important role in your decision to buy or rent, you can be deceived by looking at the income figure alone. The fact that neither rents nor mortgage rates are likely to remain stable for 30 years complicates the problem. It is best to buy when you can get an affordable mortgage.

If you plan to stay in an area for a short time, how does buying compare to renting? In two years, you would pay $14,400 in rentals. Your mortgage and utility payments for that item will cost $20,160. In addition, you have tied up $13,900 in capital which could have been earning interest. In a boom time for housing, you may be able to recover the difference between renting and buying plus capital after two years. Recently, housing prices have stabilized and the value of a house as a short-term investment is no lnger assured.

Let's examine also what what constitutes an affordable mortgage. Mortgage holders are offering adjusted mortgage rates, which, though tied to an index, rise only to a certain limit. If your payments rise 20 percent to keep your payments ar 25 percent annually, your income should rise 20 percent to keep your paments at 25 percent of your income. If you have a fixed or unstable income, even today's flexible mortgages may be beyond reach.

Once you have examined the main factors, income, mortgage payments and rent, consider the incidental costs. If you rent, you need an initial cash supply for the broker's fee and the security deposit. If you buy, your initial expenses include closing costs such as the attorney's fee, a title search and appraisal. In addition, when you own a home, you are required to play real estate taxes. Like mortgage interest payments, this is tax-deductible. Whether you buy or rent a house, you will be responsible for grounds maintenance. Renting does relieve you of the responsibility of major repairs like plumbing, electrical work or a new roof. In an apartment, you don't have nay of these worries, and your utilities are usually less costly.

Condominium and co-op living offer an alternative to buying a home or renting an apartment. Knowing the different tax incentives each offer may help you decide which to pruchase.

Condos vs. co-ops: What's the difference?

Thinking about buying a cooperative or condominium?

If you are, then you should know how the two differ, what effect those differences have on your ability to borrow, and the tax incentives they might offer.

Tax incentives are a major reason why condos and co-ops are a fast growing segment of the housing industry. But taking advantage of the tax opportunities entails some careful decision making.

The main difference, is that you buy the condo unit itself whether it's an apartment, townhouse or separate residence. But when you buy a co-op, you only buy shares in the cooperative managing the building. This affects your financing and tax deductions.

Buying a condominium is less complicated than paying for a co-op. For example, with a condo you figure out your down payment, then apply for a mortgage to cover the balance. Those interest payments and any property tax are tax-deductible.

Because you don't actually purchase a co-op, there's no mortgage. A portion of the monthly payments is applied to the mortgage interest and tax payment of the co-op. The money applied to these expenses is tax-deductible.

AN ALTERNATIVE method of financing is often available for both co-op and condo buyers from developers willing to help you finance to help sell units. The money they use is loaned to them by the project's sponsor, such as a bank, pension fund or private company. Low interest rates they advertise are possible, in part, because they are not paying an individual's interest rate and, sometimes, because neither the rates nor the mortgage are guaranteed for extended periods of time.

Prospective owners should understand what's contained in a financing agreement.

If you finance through a developer, note the term of the mortgage and the length of the guarantee for proper planning. Today it might be necessary to borrow the money at an adjustable mortgage rate or to take a short-term loan expecting to refinance in a few years.

Another financing aspect to investigate is tax deductibility.

THE DEDUCTIBLE percentage of the monthly payment depends upon what percentage constitutes interest, your tax bracket, and how the money is used. If the seller mentions that a certain percentage is tax-deductible, ask if that is contingent on your tax bracket or because so much of the payment is interest and taxes.

Your second monthly payment, in addition to mortgage and taxes, covers community property maintenance. In a condominium, that may include tennis courts, a swimming pool, a community center, security or other necessities such as garbage collection. How high this maintenance fee runs depends on how much community property there is and how well it was built. Shoddy constucton could result in increased maintenance fees later.

In addition, maintenance fees are not tax-deductible.

A co-op also requires a maintenance fee. Because the entire amount must be collected, if one tenant faults, other tenants might be required to meet the difference. In theory, a single tenant, as a shareholder, could be responsible for the entire bill. Thus, the financial solvency of fellow tenants is important.

Cost of living varies

How much does it cost to live? Your expenses depend on how much you entertain, what kind of clothes you buy and your lifestyle. But your cost of living also depends on where you live. If you've been transferred or are thinking of relocating, you need to know about comparative costs of living.

Taxes are probably your largest expense. Personal and corporate income taxes constitute the largest revenue source for 30 states and the District of Columbia. State and local taxes are one reason why people with comparable income can't afford the same lifestyle.

For example, if you live in Texas, you won't pay a state income tax, but if you live in Wisconsin, you will. In New York, you may pay city taxes in addition to state and federal taxes. On the average, state and local income taxes take 12 percent of your personal income.

In addition to income tax, you should consider how much tax you pay for goods and services. According to recently published statistics, about $1 of every $3.50 spent on goods and services is tax. Some taxes are levied on luxury or entertainment items, but others are imposed on necessities like clothing, gasoline or tires for your car. Sales tax is levied by the state, so it might be economical to buy clothng and large items out of state where there is no or a lower tax.

To compare sales tax figures, you might check the IRS allowances for sales tax deductions on your income tax form. For example, a family or four in Connecticut might be allowed a $498 deduction for sales tax in one year. In Minnesota, the same family with the same income might be allowed $236.

AFTER TAXES, your largest expense is likely to be housing. Recent statistics show that the median house value last year was $47,200. The median rent was $198 a month, with rental costs sharply down in the South. Housing costs depend on the demand for housing. High inflation in real estate occurs when there is either a shortage of great demand for housing, as in a rapidly growing city. Eight of the 10 fastest growing U.S. cities are in the South.

Transportation, housing, income and sales tax account for 85 percent of the difference in cost of living across the country. Your state or city may not support a public transportation system, and this might lower your taxes.

For urban living, costs are lowest in the South, highest in the Northeast states like New Hampshire which lacks a state income and sales tax. That may allow you extra net income, but comparing costs of living requires you to factor in hearing and electric bills, clothing, food and recreation.

To compare your cost of living, use your current annual budget. Obtain average costs for other areas from the local chamber of commerces or the Municipal Center in Washington, D.C., which compiles cost of living data on 30 major U.S. cities.

Evaluate salary and benefits. While some companies may adjust pay scales to accommodate an area's high costs, many national companies are phasing out the policy.

There's no place like home for accidents

Each year more than 26,000 people die and another four milion are injured in a seemingly safe and secure place — the American home.

Falls are the largest single cause of accidental deaths in the home. To reduce the possibility of falls, make sure all rugs are securely fastened so they don't slip. Check stair landings both inside and out for stairs that are in good repair and for step surfaces that are not slippery. Stairways and entrance halls should also be well lit.

Check your medicine cabinet and remove all expired medicine. Make sure all potentially hazardous medicines are properly sealed and out of reach of children. Remember that sleeping pills and aspirin can be poisons in the hands of children.

LOOK OVER labels and special instructions on cleansers and other cleaning materials used around the house which might contain toxic chemicals. Too often they are kept in kitchen cabinets under the sink where a child has access to them. Be prepared for such an emergeny by posting antidotes for cleaning products where poisonous items are stored.

Teach members of the family the proper respect for electricity. Check lighting fixtures and appliances for frayed wires which should be repaired or replaced. Avoid overloading an outlet by use of multiple sockets. Never touch an appliance and water at the same time or you could be shocked with a fatal low voltage electrical charge if the appliance is not properly grounded.

IN THE garage and basement, make sure all power tools are unplugged and out of reach of children. Gardening and maintenance equipment should be cleaned and hung where children can't reach them. Throw out leftover cans of paint and paint thinners; they become extremely combustible.

Most fires happen when everyone is asleep.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, every home needs at least one smoke detector close to bedrooms to alert the family in case of a fire. Many deaths and injuries are actually caused not by fire itself, but by smoke and gas.

A "Home Fire Safety," gives vital information on preventing a fire disaster in your home. To get a copy, send $1.50 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 201K, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Each year, more than 6,000 deaths and nearly 30,000 injuries happen as a result of home fires. These fires start from many ignition sources, like gasoline, flammable fabrics in clothes, cigarettes and space heater. But, if you follow these tips, you can minimize the possibility of a fire in your home:

- Store gasoline outside the house well away from ignition sources.
- Store gasoline only in containers designed specifically for this purpose.
- Never use gasoline for cleaning clothing, machine parts or anything else.

TWO PLACES WHERE THE SAAB PERFORMS WELL.

When you drive to the supermarket in a Saab, the last thing you have to worry about is where to pack the groceries. The 3 door model has 14.9 cubic feet of trunk space. That gives you as much room as the biggest-selling luxury sedans in America.
If your needs demand even more space, just fold down the backseat and it turns into a roomy station wagon with a full 56.5 cubic feet of cargo space.
On the track, the Saab really performs. So well, in fact, that it's the car to beat in the Sports Car Club of America's Show Room Stock category.
So come test drive a Saab. Whether you want a car for picking up groceries or picking up speed.
