Legal costs hit $16,000 in group-home lawsuit

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

A lawsuit against two group homes for mentally ill moves into appeal with legal fees costing Canton more than $16,000.

Canton was victorious last month when Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Victor Baum ruled that mentally ill residents must be removed from two small group homes in the township because they are more likely to be dangerous "than the population at large."

The homes are on Raintree Court and on Forest Trails. Each is licensed to house up to six residents who previously were hospitalized in state psychiatric facilities.

The township filed a lawsuit against the state Department of Social Services (DSS) and operators of group homes last April, challenging the placement of small group homes in subdivisions. Officials were especially concerned about homes for mentally ill clients.

William Basinger, an attorney representing the DSS, says Baum's decision probably will be appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals. First, attorneys must hammer out who will pay an estimated $16,700 in witness costs and filing fees.

A hearing on that issue will be at 9 a.m. Friday, said Basinger.

"WE'RE STILL arguing over the wording of the judgment," added C. Gerald Hemming, attorney for the township. "And also whether the township gets reimbursed for witness fees and filing fees.

"We think we are entitled to costs," added Hemming. "We are trying to recoup these from the defendant (DSS)."

Once the ruling is entered, attorneys for the DSS will have 20 days to file an appeal.

"In all probability, an appeal will be taken," said Basinger, who works in the state Attorney General's Office.

Still undetermined is whether or not the group home residents will have to move out while the case is pending.

The township's costs were $16,700 through February, said finance director Mike Gorman. Hemming estimated the witness-fee portion at about $6,000.

BAUM'S OPINION addresses the issue of small foster-care homes for six persons or less in areas zoned for single-family residences.

State law allows foster-care homes for six persons without permission of the local government. The law allows facilities for aged, developmentally disabled (retarded), physically handicapped and emotionally disabled, said Baum.

However, Baum said the state Legislature never intended to allow mentally ill persons in the small group homes. Baum's opinion states he relied heavily on the testimony of Dr. Emanuel Tanay, a psychiatrist who testified for the township.

Tanay is president of the American Psychiatric Society and a professor at Wayne State University.

Baum found that mentally ill are "intrusive" to the community, and that they need greater medical attention than can be provided in a small group home.

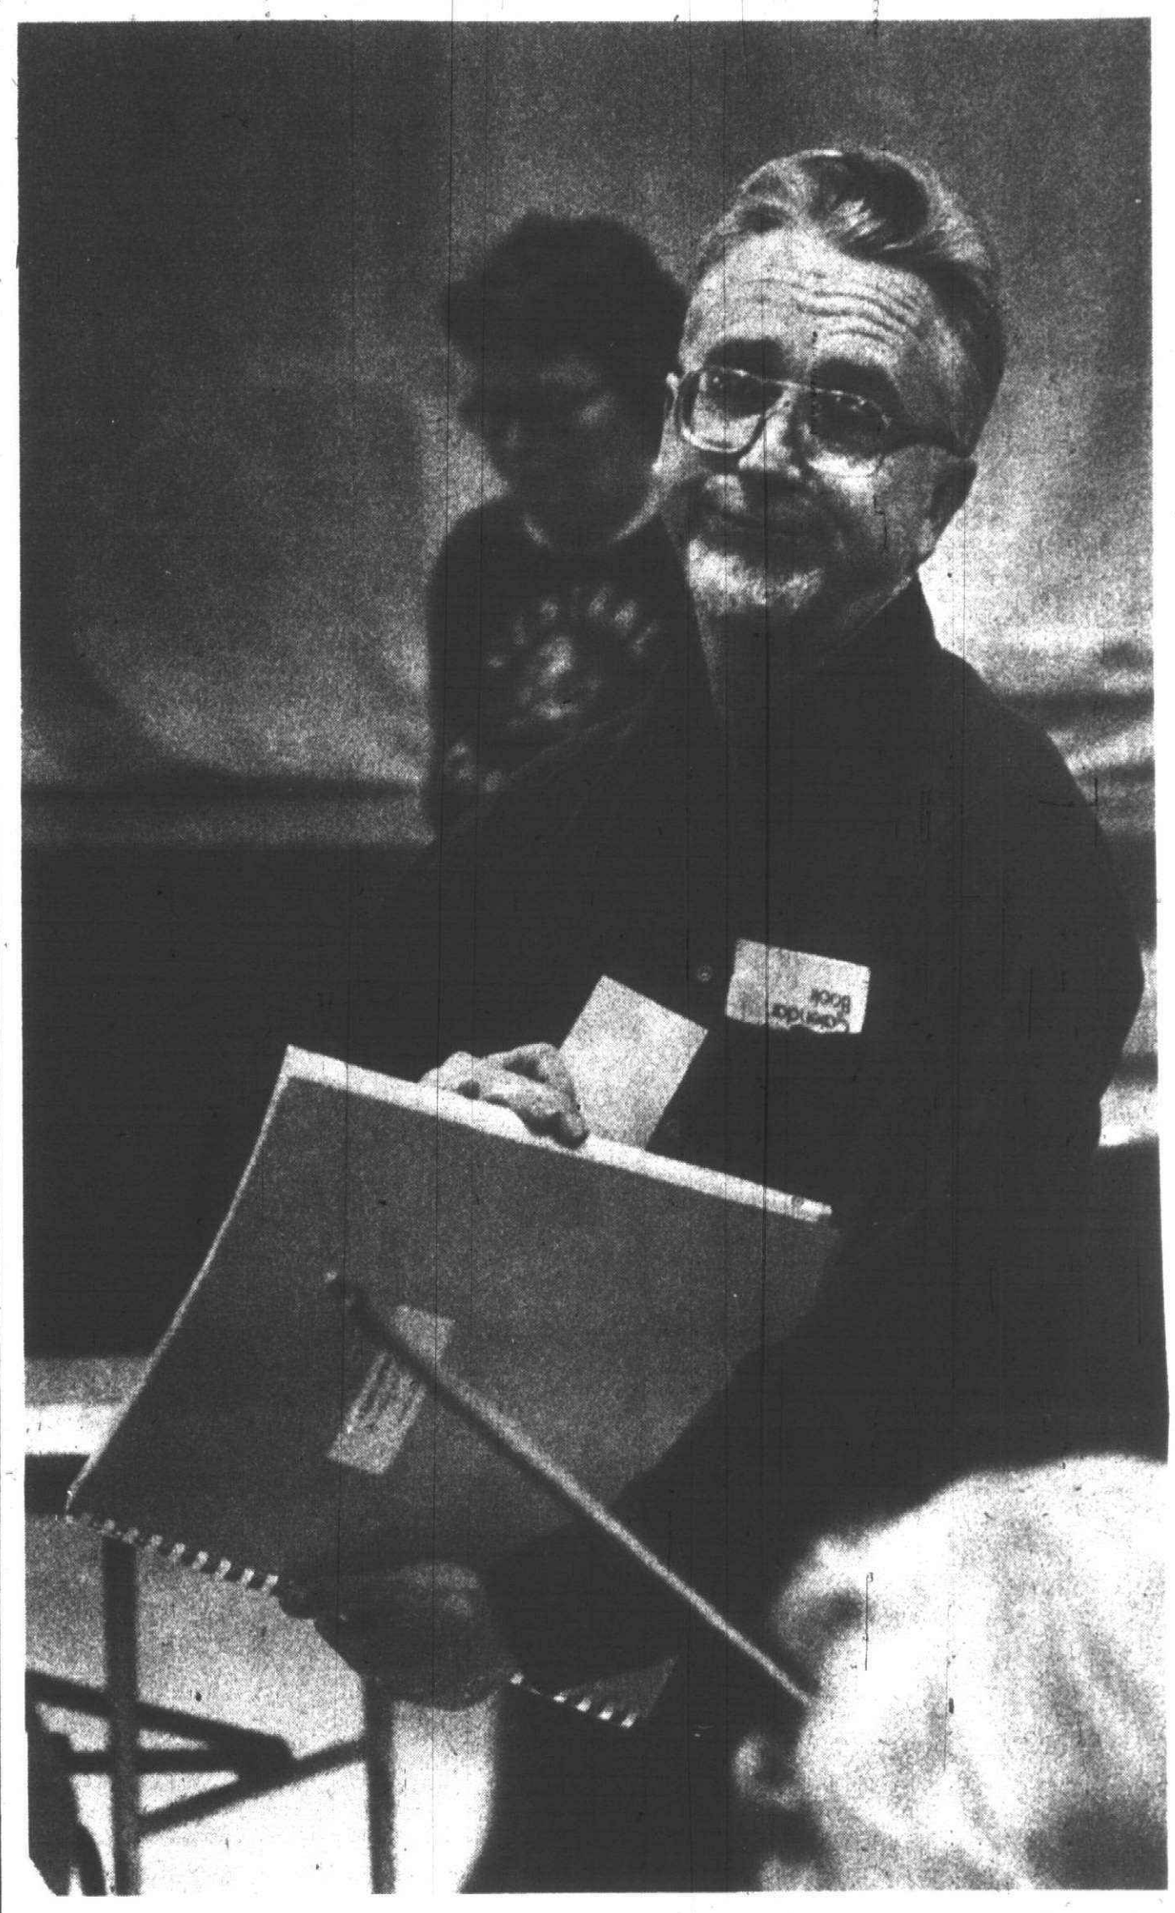

In addition, Baum said he found Tanay's testimony "persuasive" on the issue of whether mentally ill are more dangerous to the community.

The state earlier had contended that the residents previously had been mentally ill, but now were "emotionally disturbed" — a less severe designation.

Several other group home lawsuits now are pending in the court of appeals, Basinger said.

The cases involve group homes in Livonia, Southfield, Dearborn and Oxford Township, said Basinger. They include homes for mentally ill, mentally retarded, and facilities which combine both.

Basinger said another unresolved issue is whether a group home originally serving one type of client may switch to another — for example, change from mentally retarded to mentally ill clients.

Agency helps find jobs

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Looking for employment through Growth Works can pay off — literally.

Unemployed persons in Plymouth and Canton who participate in Growth Works' placement program are paid to search for a job while their interviewing skills get some polishing.

Growth Works, 271 S. Main, is a human service organization serving western Wayne County and participates in the Michigan Employment Program — a state-funded economic development grant.

Persons between 18-24 years old, who have been unemployed for at least three months, can participate in the placement program which pays minimum wage to job seekers.

However there is a catch. Participants are required to go through preemployability training and then make 60 job contacts a week.

"IT'S MUCH LIKE a state lottery, the more you try the better your chances are," says Judy Cavell, a placement coordinator.

"We're finding many of the people don't have the money to drive around and fill out applications. That's why we are willing to pay them while they look for a job," she says.

Growth Works served some 75 persons through the Michigan Employment program last year and anticipates to service some 100 persons in 1982.

Like similar agencies, such as Private Industry Corp. in Livonia and the Wayne County Extension Service in Wayne, Growth Works reports an increase in the number of younger persons seeking employment.

The latest figures from the Michigan Employment Security Commission for the metropolitan Detroit area listed about 530,000 persons out of work at the end of 1981. Some 27 percent of those unemployed were between the ages of 16 and 19.

"We're dealing with a great deal of discouragement. There's a lot of people who have been looking for a job for a long time and they just keep beating their head against a wall," says Cavell.

"THERE ARE JOBS out there, you just have to be flexible and willing to take anything. It might mean you'll have to work under a variety of conditions."

Growth Works has had a 90 percent placement rate, says Cavell.

"And these are jobs where the people stay, they aren't taking the job and then leaving four months later."

Part of the problem, according to Cavell, is many persons are looking for jobs which are high paying. The preemployability course tries to help persons understand they might have to change careers or take a lower paying job.

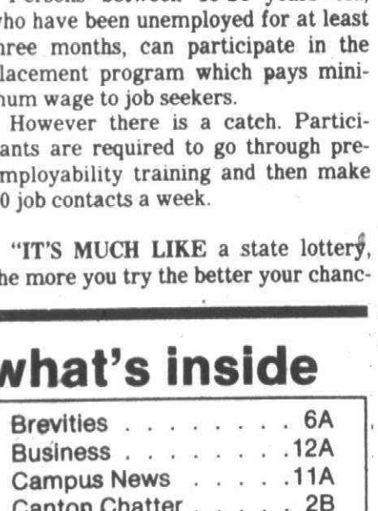

"Many people are looking for a higher paying job than they are qualified or trained for. We're trying to help them understand what is realistic.

"If they just want a job for the money, they're not going to be happy with it

Taxes are paid... now it's audit time

In the next few weeks some taxpayers will be receiving notices from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) telling them their 1982 income tax return will be audited.

Some two million tax returns will be audited nationwide this year, according to Walter Dunnigan, a public affairs officer with the Detroit office of the IRS.

"The point to keep in mind is the purpose of an audit is to check the correctness of the return. There's usually a reason to believe the return isn't correct when an audit notice is sent," says Dunnigan.

The IRS conducts four types of tax audits:

- A mail audit — done to obtain substantiation for a particular item on the return, such as asking for verification on church donations.
- An office audit — conducted in an IRS office with a tax agent verifying certain items on the return with the taxpayer.
- A field audit — usually done for business returns. A tax agent will go to a corporation's office because of the amount of records needing verification.
- A taxpayer compliance measurement program (TCMP) audit — done in an IRS office, with every item requiring substantiation.

"Receiving an audit notice could just be the luck of the draw, it doesn't mean you've done something wrong," says Tim Yoe, a certified public accountant with the Sutherland and Yoe firm, 1095 S. Main, Plymouth.

A TCMP audit is done on a random basis to aid the IRS in determining norms for certain income categories, says Dunnigan.

A TCMP audit will cover every item on the return, in detail. Once completed, the IRS will compile the other TCMP returns in that income category and compute norms to check other tax returns.

"We develop a profile of what people in your income tax bracket should look like. Deviation from those norms is used to select people for audits," he says.

All audits, except the TCMP audit, are based on differences from the norms. Each of the items on the return are given a plus or minus weighted numerical value.

"Your tax return is then measured against a statistically valid formula for your type of return. The higher the score the better chance for an audit," says Dunnigan.

"The more complex your return is the better your chances are to deviate from the norm and get an audit."

Generally persons will receive notification of which items are being questioned when they receive their audit notice.

"Read the audit notice and find out what information is being asked of you. Then attempt to see if you have the information you need to substantiate the items," says Yoe.

"The time to prepare for an audit is when you are preparing the tax return. If you have the information, you won't have any problems going through the audit."

Most of the IRS audits center on a specific item, asking for substantiation, says Yoe.

"Many times audits intimidate people when that should be the last thing it should do. I guess it's mostly a fear of the unknown.

"Everyone likes to tell their horror stories about the IRS. I don't believe that's true. They're not out looking to make life uncomfortable for people," he says.

"Once people realize how easy it is to go through an audit, it becomes all in a day's work."

Today's tax agents are usually college graduates and tend to be very human when dealing with taxpayers, he says.

"Most of the agents are very helpful to the taxpayer. When they haven't claimed everything they should have, or taken advantage of everything they should have, the agent will many times suggest it. The agents are very helpful and cooperative.

"The fear factor is something the media has tried to play down yet people still have it stuck somewhere in the back of their heads it's something to be afraid of."

Taxpayers being audited can bring along their accountant or tax return preparer. Yoe suggests many times the taxpayer can handle the audit on their own if it's only to substantiate an item.

Other times an audit will focus on items where judgment is involved.

"In between right and wrong there is a lot of gray area. Many times there is judgment involved in an audit."

An example would be deductions on a taxpayer's car which is used for work and personal driving.

"The question comes in determining what percentage of the mileage was used for business and what percentage was used for personal pleasure. Those are the types of questions which are challenging," says Yoe.

In such cases it would be advisable to have an accountant go to the audit, he says.

Yoe also advises persons now is the time to prepare for next year's income tax return. Keeping track of receipts and bills now will help reduce the work next spring.

"It's important to hang on to the tax information after filing the return. Many times it's a year later that you have to go to the audit."

The 1981 income tax return had to be filed by April 15, 1982 and for some the audit won't come until sometime in 1983, says Yoe.

"It gets kinda hard remembering things at that point. It's much easier if you hang onto the tax return information."

Cops investigate highway robbery

Canton police are investigating a reported armed robbery outside a phone booth on eastbound Michigan Avenue at Belleville Road.

The victim, a 22-year-old Belleville resident, told police he was in a phone booth about 9:30 p.m. Monday when he was approached by two men. One was armed with a handgun, according to the report.

One man asked the victim if he "had a joint (marijuana cigarette) to sell," according to the report. The victim was struck by the men, and they scuffled on the ground.

The Belleville man was robbed of $44 and his driver's license, according to the report.

The assailants escaped westbound on Michigan Avenue in a green two-door Ford, according to the report.

Canton neighbors react to group-home lawsuit

By Arlene Funke
staff writer

Michael O'Malley of Raintree Court believes the "middle class" is the winner in a lawsuit against group homes for mentally ill in Canton.

"Finally, individual rights (are) being heard in Michigan," said O'Malley, an insurance agent. "The guy who is paying for the taxes is the guy who is holding things together."

Mary Jane Weidenbach of Hanford has mixed feelings about the lawsuit. But she believes the state of Michigan will be forced to define more clearly the term "mental illness," which will greatly clear up confusion on the group-home issue.

CANTON TOWNSHIP filed a lawsuit against the state Department of Social Services (DSS) last year, seeking to stop the placement of two small group homes in subdivisions.

As the lawsuit progressed, it focused on group homes for the mentally ill. Last month, Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Victor Baum ruled that mentally ill residents must be removed from two Canton homes because they are more likely to be dangerous than the average person.

The DSS is expected to appeal the decision to a higher court. Meanwhile, the residents continue to live in the homes, on Raintree Court and on Forest Trails.

O'Malley is part of an unrelated lawsuit filed by some neighbors of the Raintree Court group home. Their case tackles subdivision convenants, deed restrictions, and zoning issues.

"The state is coming in and telling us that we didn't have any property rights to zone — to decide what kind of neighborhood (we) are living in," said O'Malley, who lives next door to the Raintree Court group home.

O'Malley said a group of about 20 persons in the area have formed a core group, chipping in for legal fees. He said about "150 others have given verbal support.

"Many of us come from a working-class background," said O'Malley. "We have aspired to get further ahead than our parents. We've sacrificed. We aren't talking about discrimination. There is nobody who has more feeling for these people (group-home residents) than our group."

O'Malley believes the state is using group-home residents as "pawns," putting them into a home where they will receive less care, and easing the financial burden of the state.

MRS. WEIDENBACH and her husband Ed have been members of a neighborhood advisory group to smooth the entry of the foster-care home into the neighborhood. The group was formed by Michigan Human Services of Ann Arbor, the non-profit corporation which operates Raintree Court home.

Mrs. Weidenbach supports moving patients out of large institutions and into smaller group homes, but she has mixed feelings about how the plans are implemented.

She believes more clearly defined guidelines are needed to allay concerns about different degrees of mental illness.

"You cannot quiet the negatives, or the negatives will be carried out in court," she added.

The state is motivated by "fiscal concerns, not humanitarianism," she said, adding that she also thinks people should refrain from responding strictly on a "selfish level."

"The home had an open house during the holidays," said Mrs. Weidenbach. "We were the only ones in the entire subdivision to show up."

MEANWHILE, the Raintree group home has been plagued by petty incidents, said James Minder, executive director of Michigan Human Services. He believes it may be nearby residents.

Minder says people call the police or the DSS when group home residents go outdoors. On Halloween, a small "shack" was placed on the street with a sign calling the structure "Minder's Nut House."

"They (incidents) haven't hurt anybody," said Minder. "They cause a certain amount of anxiety among the clients."

O'Malley said reports of harassment are "poppycock."

"Who put the sign there, I don't know," said O'Malley. "The Halloween house is always there," he added.

Exploring satellite lunches

By Dennis O'Connor
staff writer

The never-ending dilemma of trying to make the school lunch program profitable now has reached the "satellite" stage.

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are studying an elementary school satellite program which could save the district approximately $30,000.

No formal decision has been made on the program.

All food items which need substantial preparation would be cooked at the Plymouth Salem High School kitchen and then transported in vans to all 13 elementary schools districtwide, under this proposed plan.

The labor cost savings would be $65,242, according to a report prepared by Interstate United Corp., a national food vendor which provides service to Plymouth-Canton schools.

Additional equipment and transportation costs for vans, gas and metal food containers would cost $36,021, not including depreciation savings over the years.

Skeptics of the satellite plan question the freshness, taste and nutritional value of the food after it's transported to schools, some of which are more than six miles from Salem.

JACK CHANDLER, Food Service Director for Interstate, presented the plan to the Food Service Advisory Committee at the group's monthly meeting Tuesday at Eriksson Elementary School.

Staff photos by Gary Caskey

The committee, which includes parents, teachers, cafeteria employees and students, sampled a "satellite meal" at the meeting, which was prepared at Salem and driven to Eriksson.

Only food items which require a high degree of labor to prepare, such as chicken or spaghetti, would be cooked at Salem, Chandler stressed. Vegetables, hot dogs and hamburgers, for example, still would be prepared at each individual kitchen.

The food is transported in electric, hot-food containers set at 140 degrees, which could keep food warm up to three hours, Chandler said.

Only four containers were moved to Eriksson for the sampling, and one container slipped during the ride. A full truckload of containers would be more secure, Chandler said.

Menus would not change under the satellite system, Chandler said. The only items which might be deleted next year would be the unpopular ones, Chandler said.

Gallimore and Geer elementaries have had lunches delivered from Salem since March 1. Food was sent to these schools from Pioneer Middle School earlier this year.

THE LUNCH PROGRAM has received criticism in recent years because it loses money annually — and this year is no exception.

The schools lost $5,038 in February, bringing the 1981-82 school-year total loss to $53,725, according to a financial report submitted to the committee.

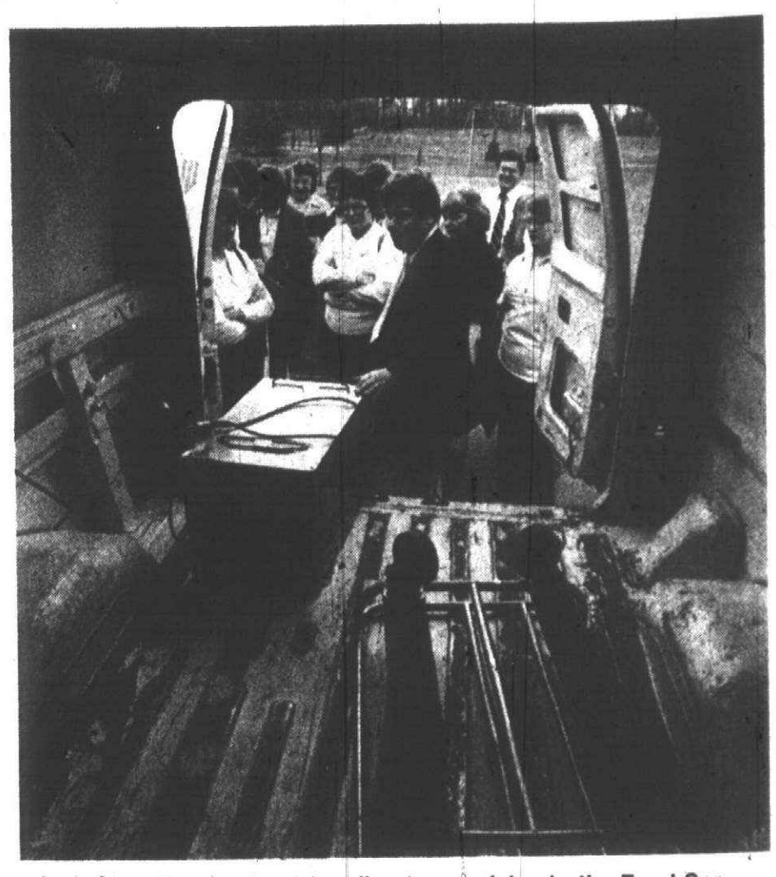

Labor costs were higher in February, compared to other months, because workers were paid for snow days in January and February when school was not in session because of bad weather, Chandler said.

"But we wouldn't have been in the black (a profit) anyway," Chandler added.

Dan White, executive director of finance, said it is a question of economics versus nutrition when forming menus which attempt to generate revenues for the lunch program.

"We may have to serve hamburgers every Monday and hot dogs on Tuesdays and Thursdays if we want to break even at some point — we're still losing money," White said. "We're back to deciding what we want. Do we want to serve students what they want, or what we think they should have?"

Hot dogs, hamburgers, pizza and juices — not milk — are the most popular food items, according to Chandler.

Jack Chandler, food service director, explains to the Food Service Advisory Committee how food is stored for trips from Plymouth Salem High School to the elementary schools.

Under the proposed satellite food system, items are prepared at Plymouth Salem High School stored in electric hot-food containers and transported to different elementary schools in vans. Four persons are shown here helping put the food in the van outside Salem.

TV viewing habits shift

Experts predict marketing trends

By Tim Richard
staff writer

For decades, television has been known as a "mass medium."

No more. With the advent of subscription cable TV, the market will become fragmented. No longer will one or two or three broadcasters dominate the market.

Advertisers will have a tougher time reaching a mass audience. But those who know how to "target" their audiences will do well.

Americans will watch more hours of TV each day. They will pick and choose freely between commercial network and subscription cable channels.

THAT PICTURE of trends in the 1980s and '90s was painted this week by an advertising specialist and a network vice president.

Edward N. Ney, chairman of Young & Rubicam, which places millions of dollars of commercials each year, and Frederick S. Pierce, executive vice president of ABC, told the Detroit Economic Club it was easier to spot trends than to put number values on them.

"Cable TV is in 30 percent of the homes in America," said Ney. "At this time, there are no — sob! — commercials on pay TV. The operators and producers of those services swear that 'twill ever be thus.

"We say different. At Y&R, we think that pay cable . . . will ultimately go the historic way of all informational and entertainment media and accept advertising in some measure."

Pressed by newsmen for a date when advertising would come to cable TV, Ney rolled his eyes and answered, "1986."

THE ADVERTISING executive raised three questions facing marketers watching the growing number of communities with cable TV:

- "Will technology create so many new channels of information and entertainment that the homogeneous mass audience, as we know it, will be significantly fragmented? Yes.
- "Will that same technology force advertisers and agencies to devise new market profiles, media standards, cost measurements and quality evaluations? Yes.
- "Will creative techniques have to be invented to match the new interests of the new customers? Yes."

Asked for examples of these "creative techniques," Ney said cultural and arts programs would be poor vehicles for detergents but better for TV sets and Lincoln autos. Commercials on such programs would be longer, contain more facts and be lower-key.

Y&R already has found that movie house advertising must play to a younger audience — 18 to 30 — than TV ads. Movie house ads "must be lively, should contain some humor and can't be stuffy," he said.

CABLE TV will bring a whole new market of viewers, Ney said.

"Those (homes) with just basic cable watch 6 percent more (hours) than the average U.S. television home. But those with pay-cable watch 22 percent more.

"And just to stretch credulity, try this statistic: In late-night fringe time, homes with pay cable watch 48 percent more than the average non-cable household."

But if the news was good for viewers, it was bad for advertisers. Ney went on:

"Advertisers may, unfortunately, wind up paying more for less — in copy testing, audience research and product information. But they may wind up trading efficiency for effectiveness."

IF A COMMERCIAL network should be running scared, ABC's Pierce wasn't admitting it.

"The networks will have a smaller share of a larger viewing pie," he predicted. Thus, if ABC-TV has 10 percent of all households an any hour of the day, that share may shrink to 9 or 8 percent by 1990. But the number of households watching TV will be significantly larger.

Network programming will have to de-emphasize repeats and come up with more original programs. Major offerings such as "Rich Man, Poor Man," "Holocaust" and "Winds of War" (the last scheduled for next season) will lure viewers away from pay-cable to commercial networks, he said.

ABC IS hedging its bets, he said, by offering two cable services itself.

One is "Arts," which has three hours an evening of cultural programming. "These audiences may be smaller," Pierce said, but the demographics can be beautiful. Sixty percent of the arts audience are college graduates — four times the national average. Almost half have incomes of more than $30,000 a year. And one in every six among the arts viewers has published books or articles.

"Cable is clearly a demographic medium and uniquely able to meet specific program and advertiser needs," he said.

Party will raise funds for new-school study

The Plymouth Knights of Columbus is sponsoring a wine and cheese party Saturday to help raise funds for a parochial-school study.

The party will be from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Plymouth K of C Hall, 150 Fair Street, Plymouth. Tickets are $5 per person.

The study will help develop plans for a new parochial elementary school to serve the parishes of St. John Neumann and St. Thomas A'Becket, both Canton, and Divine Savior of Westland.

The proposed school would open in fall 1983. Guidelines of the Archdiocese of Detroit require a demographics study of the community before the project can begin. The study is expected to cost about $10,000.

A NON-PROFIT, voluntary group called Canton Community Catholic School conducted a survey of 3,000 area families last summer. Nearly 600 indicated they would send one or more of their children to a a parochial school, said Judith Ranta, public relations coordinator for the group.

The organization is looking for volunteers to work on formulation of school policy, curriculum and staffing procedures. For information, call Bill or Sandy Place at 981-6397.

Carlson to challenge Ford

Gerald Carlson is in a hurry to campaign against U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, in the Aug. 3 primary.

Carlson, who ran against Ford as a Republican two years ago, is the first announced challenger against Ford even though the reapportionment of the congressional districts hasn't been completed or approved.

The challenger, 39, of Wayne, gained national attention in his campaign two years ago because of his white supremacist views and their impact on American society.

Carlson said in a statement that "I have become more moderate in my views on the race question."

Rather than criticizing the blacks, "I am going to concentrate on trying to gain equal rights for what I call the 'white minorities,' " referring to European ethnic groups which he said aren't getting "a fair shake in this country."

CARLSON WAS a surprise winner in the Republican primary two years ago, upsetting a Woodhaven police chief who was the favorite of the party leaders.

Carlson received 32 percent of the vote in the general election.

He said last week he feels the congressional reapportionment is being delayed to discourage potential challengers from running against incumbents.

Carlson is assuming that regardless how the reapportion ment boundaries are drawn, Wayne will probably still remain in the middle of the existing 15th District.

He feels sure of that since Ford has his district office in downtown Wayne.

The district now includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township, and the southeastern corner of Livonia,

After his 15th District campaign in 1980, Carlson was unsuccessful in congressional races in southwestern Michigan and in Pennsylvania.

CARLSON STRESSED he has never been a member of the Ku Klux Klan or Nazi Party as some daily newspapers claimed during the 1980 election.

He admitted attending some of their meetings and receiving their literature but never joined the groups.

In touching on his campaign platform, Carlson said that he will try and draw attention to the "plight of my people, the European ethnics."

He said that while 30 million blacks are considered a minority, 13 million Irish and three million Greeks aren't.

Library to sell its used books

The Friends of the Canton Library will hold its annual used book sale this weekend at King's Row shopping center.

Members of the Friends of the Library are eligible to attend a private preview, 4-7 p.m. today.

The sale will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Proceeds will benefit the Canton library.

King's Row shopping center is at Lilley and Warren roads.

Two men charged in car-strip case

Canton police are charging two Plymouth men with receiving and concealing stolen property.

The suspects were arrested April 12 in a field south of Joy and east of Ridge, according to Lt. Larry Stewart of the Canton police. A dismantled truck reported stolen from Ypsilanti was nearby.

Michael D. Massengill, 18, of Joy Road, and Michael Allen, 17, of Sutherland, were arraigned April 13 before 35th District Court Judge James Garber.

THE COURT entered innocent pleas in their behalf. Bond was set at $5,000 for Massengill and $2,500 for Allen.

Preliminary exam will be held in district court on April 22.

According to Stewart, police were tipped off by a resident who noticed the stripped-down truck being pulled away.

Police have recovered some additional auto parts — doors, fenders, etc. — in a Canton garage. Officers are continuing their investigation, and there may be more arrests.

Receiving and concealing stolen goods carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

very long. It's not just a matter of finding a job, it's also keeping the job for a long time," she says.

Growth Works has serviced persons who were high school drop outs and persons who were college graduates. They have placed workers without experience and workers with several years of experience.

"IN THESE TIMES finding a job might mean changing careers or settling for a job which is paying.

"It's hard to change careers after you've put a year's worth of experience in a field you want to work in and then find it isn't marketable in this area."

The pre-employability training also tries to help persons adjust to a new career or drastic change in pay.

"It's better to be working than not working. We tell people they have to come to terms with themselves. They will have to realize they will have to settle for less," says Cavell.

Growth Works also encourages employers to hire the younger persons they service.

"We help reduce the risk of turnover with the training, we will reimburse part of the person's wages during training and do a limited amount of training ourselves," she says.

Growth Works will pay up to 50 percent of an employee's wages (not exceeding $10 an hour) for the first three months of training.

Persons or employers interested in more information about Growth Works or the Michigan Employment Program can call 455-4094.

Growth Works also participates in the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) through the federal government. Persons wanting information about CETA programs can call 326-6130.

Publisher denies reports of troubles

Reports that Associated Newspapers could cease publishing at the end of April has brought a sharp denial from Publisher David Willett. "There is no basis for the rumors that we're going to close or come up with some big payment by the end of April," he said. "There is no crisis, no imminent deadline."

In fact, Willett contends, "someone is working hard to make that happen." He added that the rumors were "potentially damaging at a time when we're walking a wire, winding our way through some problems."

Instead of an impending crisis, the newspaper group will announce a reorganization plan within several months, according to Willett, who publishes weekly newspapers in Westland, Wayne, Inkster, Romulus, Belleville and Canton Township,

Willett said that under the plan, the newspaper group "will emerge" from Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

Associated Newspapers had filed under Chapter 11, a means of preventing bankruptcy, in September.

Willett said he wasn't ready to specify what shape the plan would take. He added that the newspaper currently is experimenting with different formats but was still producing "individual newspapers with individual names."

Disputing Willett's statement is Donald Kummer, administrative officer for the Detroit Newspaper Guild who sits on the creditors' committee established under Chapter 11.

"There is no reorganization plan," said Kummer, adding that such a plan is needed under Chapter 11. "There has to be hope in order to keep it going through the court."

There currently are 16 guild members working at Associated Newspapers.

According to Kummer, "court records show that (Willett) owes a sizeable payment of $90,000-plus at the end of April. That deadline has been extended once."

If Willett was unable to make the payment to John McGoff, former owner of the newspapers when they were part of the Panax group, McGoff's "intentions were to close the place," added Kummer.

Willett emphatically denies that view.

Kummer said that although there are some labor problems at the newspaper group, none of them involve financial matters.

"He (Willett) refuses to meet with us. He's operating in his own little world," Kummer said.

He said that the guild is reluctant to pursue problems in court due to the added cost burdens that would place on the newspapers.

Willett said that grievances filed were nothing more than what are normally experienced by most newspaper management groups.

"There is no story right now," he said.

Local grad has big responsibilities in Navy

Mark A. Battle of Plymouth runs a 35-man construction company which works on 10 projects at a time.

He is responsible for $1 million worth of heavy equipment, another million in tools, repair parts, and supplies, and operates with a $100,000 budget. Battle is age 25.

That may sound like a heavy responsibility for a young man but it's routine for Battle and other officers in the U.S. Navy's civil engineer corps.

Lieutenant Battle is the officer in charge of Naval Construction Battalion Unit 412 in Charleston, S.C.

"This is probably the best job in the whole Navy," said Battle, son of Patricia and Sam Battle of Five Mile Road, Plymouth Township.

"Not many lieutenants handle the whole show. There's a lot of satisfaction in that.

"My job entails a lot of budget analysis, preparation of plans and technical guidance in the construction process. I'm also responsible for the people in my command and the normal paperwork flow. I'm basically an engineering manager."

BATTLE'S UNIT is involved in new construction, alteration, repair and non-recurring maintenance at Charleston Naval Base and surrounding military installations.

The unit also provides on-the-job training for men who have recently completed Navy schools in the construction field.

"Some of our current projects include constructing a storage building for the officers' quarters, renovating the waterfront, building a naval station marina — boat ramps, piers, seawall renovation and a new marina building — and three road-paving jobs plus working at a recreation campground," he said.

"I'd never want to sit at a drafting table and do designs. I like managing people. It's hard to find a job like that in the civilian world.

"A good naval officer listens to his people. He sets the example. He can't tell his people to do something and just walk away — he has to establish communication."

THE MEN WHO work for Battle are seabees, a nickname given to the Navy's construction corps.

Constructions battalions, or CBs, earned their nickname and a remarkable reputation for building advanced bases during World War II.

Today the seabees still are trained in combat and are capable of "mounting out" to a trouble spot within 48 hours with tons of heavy equipment, tools and materials.

"I'm proud to call myself a seabee," said Battle. "They are a good bunch of people to work with. I'd say the seabees today are better than they wre during World War II.

"The quality of the individuals is high. Most have trade school training or a year or two of college."

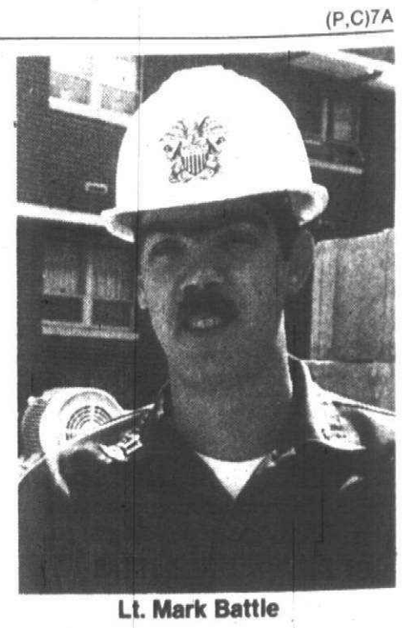

The 1974 graduate of Plymouth Salem High decided to become an engineer when he was in junior high school. He reached that goal in 1978 when he graduated from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. He was a member of the Navy ROTC at U-M.

"During high school I worked for Plymouth Construction Equipment, and I always wanted to be at a job site. That's helped me with this job.

"Being in ROTC has helped me too," added Battle. "It gave me a head start on other civil engineering officers. I know more about ships and being a line officer. That sets up a trust with the people I deal with. They listen to my advice more."

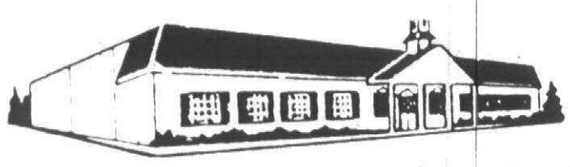

After attending civil engineer corps officer school in Port Hueneme, Calif., Battle served three years with Amphibious Construction Battalion Two in Norfolk, Va. He was in charge of a 30-man detachment deployed to the Mediterranean Sea for 5.5 months aboard

Nelson retiring as choir master

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

It will be farewell to Fred Nelson Sunday morning when the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth tenders him a reception to mark the official end of 35 years of faithful service as organist and choir master.

He is looking forward to it with mixed emotions as it will provide him with the opportunity to greet many former students and old friends and, at the same time, realize that he no longer will be sitting at the organ on Sunday mornings.

Nelson has submitted his resignation but is carrying on until a replacement is found. He hopes that will be no later than July 1.

As he looks forward to the reception, Nelson and wife Betty recall that they came to Plymouth in September 1947 and have been on the job since.

A GRADUATE of the University of Minnesota in Duluth, Nelson took over as the music teacher at Plymouth High School and used the position to continue his work in music. As he often tells it, "It was the only job I ever had."

During his teaching days at school, he developed a fine chorus and the concerts of the group became an interesting part of the school system.

Admittedly a lover of the three "Bs" — Bach, Beethoven a and Brahms — he also was pleased with modern day music.

He often confided that he learned about modern music from his students and nothing pleased him more than the public response to the concerts given in Kellogg Park.

At the time he was credited with being the "old guard" as he was the oldest teacher in point of service.

As he looks back now, he recalls the pleasure it was to lead the Civic Chorus which provided the music for the Plymouth Symphony's presentation of " The Messiah," the Brahms Requiem "The Childhood of Christ" and an opera " Down in the Valley by Kurt Weill." He was in the chorus when the latter was presented.

OF HIS CAREER Nelson has said, "It has been a joy to make a living making beautiful music."

He will be renewing acquaintances with many of his former pupils at Sunday's reception.

He always felt — and still does — that he had an advantage over teachers of the more conventional subjects. His reasoning was that when a student elects vocal music, it is because he wants to be there.

He emphasizes the fact that today's students are more creative than they used to be. They ask questions about why things have to be done a certain way and they are eager to learn new things, he noted.

Many of these thoughts will return Sunday morning as some of these students, now grown parents, greet him at the reception in Fellowship Hall following the morning service.

"I am sure going to miss a great many of these kind friends" Nelson said.

But after 35 years, thoughts of retirement hold their own light, melodious charms, he smiled.

Ending Navy career

the tank-landing ship USS Spartanburg County.

The battalion built causeways for amphibious landings and ship-to-shore refueling systems. During deployment Battles visited Spain, France, Italy and Turkey.

"Traveling gives you insight that there's a whole other world out there. You can experience other peoples' cultures and traditions, and learn about their values. As different as they seem, I think people are basically the same everywhere.

"It also was interesting to see the different architectural styles. It's hard to see a building in the U.S. that's more than 50 years old. In Europe you see buildings made 500 years ago."

Battle also served as the assistant operations officer and facilities officer with the battalion and became officer in charge of Naval Construction Battalion Unit 412 in July 1980.

"The most challenging part of this job is handling the whole project from design and planning to execution. It's satisfying to build something which will be here for years."

Although Battle likes his job, he plans to leave the Navy this summer and become an associate engineer with Consumer's Power in Michigan.

Battle and wife Donna have a six-month-old son, Jason.

"Going back to Michigan also will give us a chance to be around our families. I miss winter sports like skiing and snowmobile racing."

Battle plans on returning to U-M for a master's degree in engineering and expects to enter the Naval Reserve program.

"People who graduated from college at the same time I did have nowhere near the experience I've had. It's given me confidence in my abilities as a manager and as an engineer."

Brickley vs. Headlee and Patterson on taxes

By Tim Richard
staff writer

James Brickley, Richard Headlee and L. Brooks Patterson agreed on one thing: One of them would be a better governor than the UAW-endorsed James Blanchard or any of the other Democratic candidates.

After that, however, the three top contenders for the Republican gubernatorial nomination split on nearly all 15 questions asked Tuesday by the 300 members of the Bloomfield Republican Women's Club.

In general, Brickley found himself defending Milliken administration policies while Headlee and Patterson took a more conservative tack, attacking taxes and spending.

State Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, the fourth contender for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, did not attend.

Here is a sampling of questions and the candidates' answers in the order in which they spoke:

WHAT SPECIFIC proposals would you make to increase the number of jobs in Michigan?

Brickley, 55, lieutenant governor from 1971-74 and 79-82: "First, change the philosophy of the Michigan Legislature of the last 10 years, a philosophy which has systematically eroded jobs. . .which has not been concerned about the job climate. Second, diversify the economy. High technology is the most obvious area."

Headlee, 51, president of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills and chairman of the board of Oakland University: "Make business-people who are here feel welcome. . . . Revise the single business tax to put in a profit floor . . . Get in advocate in the governor's office for private enterprise. Business and jobs are synonymous. If you're anti-business, you're anti-jobs."

Patterson, 44, prosecutor of Oakland County for 10 years: "I own a small restaurant in north Oakland County that employs 15. Every Friday we have to meet a payroll after workers comp, unemployment comp, single business tax, franchise fee and now more income tax. The costs of doing business in Michigan are prohibitive. I would repeal the single business tax — not modify it like my two friends here."

DO YOU AGREE with the package of tax increases and spending cuts advocated by Gov. Milliken?

Headlee: "Lower taxes and more jobs, not higher taxes and no jobs. Say 'no' to the big spending lobbies. The package contains no true spending cuts."

Patterson: "No question there's a fiscal crisis. I was poo-pooed by the Department of Mangement and Budget for saying that in February. . . . Freeze state hiring and attrition out 11,000 jobs (minus 2,700 'critical' jobs such as prison guards). Eliminate welfare fraud. Ten years ago, I wrote a book proposing 53 ways to stop welfare fraud. The legislature ignored it."

Brickley: "I'm doing a lot of economic development work — talking to business leaders in high-technology, robotics, molecular biology. Not one of them raised a serious question about taxes in Michigan. . .It's that (increase the income tax) or watch us slip below a tolerable level of services in this state."

POTHOLE JOKES are no joke. What would you do about our deteriorating roads?

Headlee: "The gas tax has been a major source of revenue. The state is not managing your money well. There are 200 freeway design engineers in the Michigan Department of Transportation who haven't designed a freeway since the mid-'60s." Headlee frequently said "management" was the key to holding down spending and improving services.

Patterson: "We were told to conserve gas, and we did. The thank-you we get is a proposed one percent income tax hike. If you think it's 'temporary,' then you believe in the tooth fairy. . . . Freeze wages. . . . There's plenty left in the coffers for road maintenance."

Brickley: "This is how you tell who's in government and who's out. (Referring to Headlee's "management" plank,) 75 to 80 percent of our highway money goes to private contractors in the private sector. We've got to tell the truth. We need more revenue. Al Quie, a Reagan Republican, ran for governor of Minnesota and said 'better management.' He said he wouldn't run again if taxes had to be increased. Within 12 months he had a $1 billion deficit. A tax increase was passed. He is not running again."

HOW DO you feel about the proposed Woodward corridor subway?

Patterson: "Absolutely not. Unnecessary. It would squander taxpayers dollars. It would go nowhere and carry no one."

Brickley: "I don't think there's enough money to build it. But this region does need some fixed rail, or urban sprawl will kill us. We are the only metropolitan area in the nation trying to do it all with autos. I was surprised at SEMTA's subway recommendation, but I doubt we have the funds."

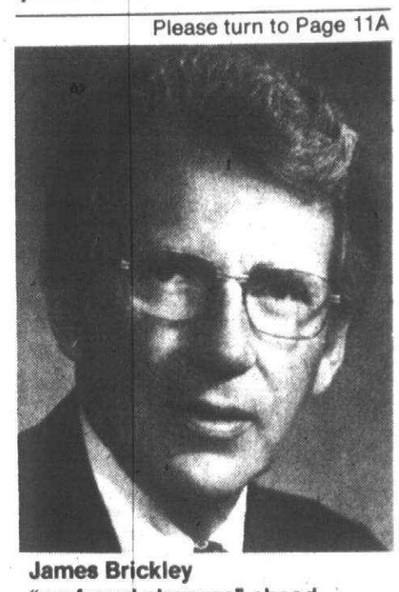

Headlee: "The subway is an ego trip for the mayor of one of the worst-managed cities in the world. Mayor Young says, 'Headlee is deadly.' That's worth 200,000 votes for me in other parts of the state. Detroit is a classic example of what happens to a city whose bonds mature its mayor. The $15 million spent on engineering a subway would better have been spent on potholes and fixing roads."

WITH THE Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture and Public Health, and the Toxic Substances Control Commission, are all these agencies neede to protect the purity of our food, water and air?

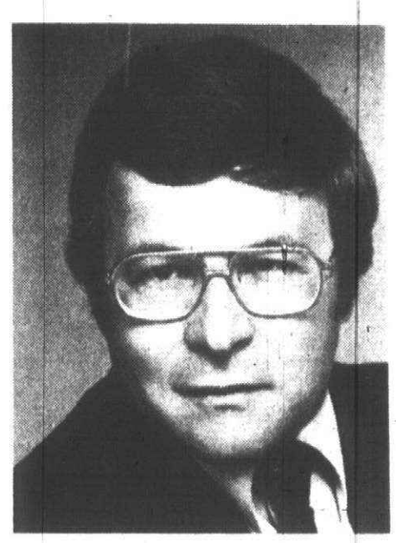

Patterson: "There is too much over-regulation — a massive entanglement that needs an overhaul. . . . It goes to a willingness to say 'no' to officials. Less government is the best."

Brickley: "With 20 percent of the world's fresh water, with a state covered 53 percent by forests, with agriculture and tourism, we have more to protect than anyone else. It's important that we have stronger environmental regulations than anyone else. There is nothing we have done that wasn't laudable. But we did too much too fast. Job producers couldn't bear the burden."

Hopefuls debate taxes

Headlee: "We have the 'snail darter syndrome' — trying to protect every amoeba. . .But in the PBB case, government was so bureaucratic and so bg that it moved too slowly. There is duplication even within DNR. I would run the state like a business — putting persons in charge and holding them accountable."

DO YOU SUPPORT with the early release of state prisoners because of prison overcrowding?

Brickley: "I don't have an alternative, so I have to support it."

Headlee: "We have a penchant for worrying about criminals. Murderers, rapists, hardened criminals — lock 'em up and throw away the keys; the purpose of prison is not rehabilitation. Don't put psychologists and social scientists in charge of prisons."

Patterson: "I'm gonna appoint Dick Headlee as director of corrections when I'm governor. There are alternatives. It's not uncommon (in other states) to put two men in a cell — we could double our capacity tomorrow. Michigan has artifically-created overcrowding. (Proposing the former Kinchelor Air Force Base as a prison site, he criticized Perry Johnson), "the director of corrections, who says Sault Ste. Marie is too far for families to go to visit prisoners."

WHY SHOULD you be governor?

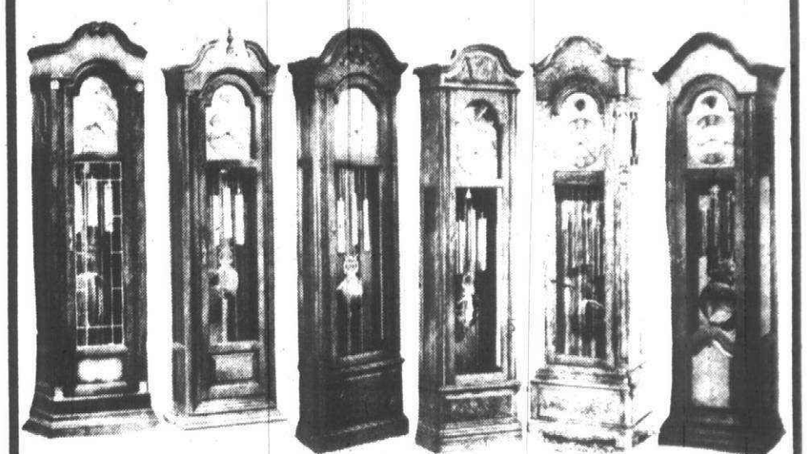

Brickley: "I'm going to pin the Democratic candidate on the philsophy of a legislature that has booted business out of this state. Organized labor has made it clear they're not going to let the people decide who the Democratic nominee for governor will be. . . . This state is going through profound changes. I understand those changes. . . . I know what government can do and what it can't do."

Headlee: "There's going to be one fella on the ballot who doesn't work for government: Dick Headlee. . . . I'm a no-nonsense businessman. I will take the best of the Romney and Milliken administrations and build on it. Around the state I've met peole who are smarter, harder-working and better-looking than I am, but none of 'em are running for governor."

Patterson: "Twice I recognized problems (welfare and drunk driving) years ago and got no response from the legislature. I worked three years and made 600 speeches to get one change in one law (parole reform). I'm frustrated. I can't wait three years to make one change in one law . . . . It's a tough job that requires tough decisions. I can say no to the state employees and the state legislature. Unlike the other two up here, I'm strongly in favor of capital punishment."

Plymouth's Red Roof Inn wins quality award

The Red Roof Inn in Plymouth Township has won the company's Central Division Single Highest Inspect Award.

The motel is located on Ann Arbor Road at I-275.

Announcement was made by Kenneth J. Bednar, senior vice president of operations, of corporate headquarters in Columbus, Ohio.

"The award is based on the highest of at least four unannounced visits made by corporate inspectors in 1981," explained Bednar.

The Plymouth Red Roof Inn staff earned 97.3 out of a possible 100 points.

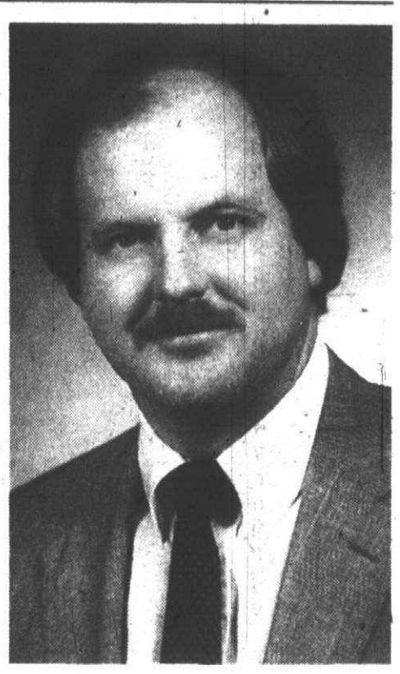

The inspections cover every detail of motel operation, said Bednar, from inspection of the rooms for cleanliness to a review of overall upkeep of the entire property for maintenance and asthetics as well as a complete audit of the front desk accounting procedures.

Red Roof Inns is the largest privately-owned and managed motel chain in the country. The Plymouth Township inn has been opened since June 1975. Kathy Simmons, manager, has operated the motel since May 1976.

Mutual respect should be goal

To the editor:

Over the past few weeks several articles concerning Carroll Nichols, principal at Tanger Elementary, have been included in both local newspapers.

Additionally, letters from parents and teachers have addressed the issues of discipline, behavior, and respect in the educational community. Of course, nothing is "like the good old days."

The letter which intrigued me the most was from John F. Vos III, attorney, and Carol Vos, a former Tanger teacher (who incidentally did not mention she was not at Tanger during Nichols' administration).

The Voses contend that "right or wrong, the principal and/or teachers should have the full support of all parents." Did the Voses really intend to perpetuate the ideas and principles, or lack thereof, that caused the massacre at My Lai? Right or wrong?

Do we as parents not have a duty and responsibility to act wisely and to teach our children to act in a rational manner — to be aware of their environment, to respect the rights of others, to make judgments?

This philosophy of the Voses is precisely one of the major flaws in our public school system in Plymouth. The district does not prepare students to think for themselves, to organize their daily, weekly or monthly objectives, to prioritize, to make judgments.

When the students are released at age 16 ot 18 from their mandatory schooling, they are not prepared to participate as adults in society. It appears that the Voses support this type of training.

Secondly, Vos signed as an attorney. He, of all people, should respect the right of access to the courts. If he had personally reviewed this case, aside from the newspaper articles, he would have realized that the facts exhibit an excellent action in negligence against the district and the principal.

Lastly, I neither condone nor promote disrespect for authority. I, however, resent the position that the district placed me in last year, when I had to choose between my better judgment and supporting Nichols actions.

I resented having to explain this aspect of human frailties to my 10-year-old daughter who attended Tanger. And I resent paying taxes to a public school system when I was compelled to withdraw my children and place them in a private school where respect is mutual between the students and the administration.

It is unfortunate that this thing called "respect" has been addressed for the past three weeks by all those who have not taken the time or the interest to know the facts and address the issues, as opposed to the personalities at Tanger.

Don't remove school paddle

To the editor:

I would like to commend Carrol Nichols on his actions. When I was in school the teacher was there to instruct and she was in charge from the time we left home until we arrived home.

The classes and study halls were for that purpose and not for recreation periods. We have taken the paddle out of the teacher's hand, next we will be taking the gun from the police officers.

Go into the shopping malls and public places and see the respect you get from some of the school-age people. You readily can see the ones who have been instructed in their homes compared to the ones that their homes are in turmoil. I have seen young people hold doors open for others and act like very good citizens, and others were ill-mannered in every way.

No, I think it is time we returned to the old-fashioned way before our students that want to get a high school education becomes a very small minority, and "mother's little darlings" become uncontrollable.

J.L. Morrow

Darwin theory is challenged

To the editor:

So Clarence Moore (April 15, Plymouth Observer) is challenging Darwin's theory of evolution.

According to historians of medieval times, there was a faction of animal husbandry experts who put forth that it was the environment, not the parents, which produced our animal population.

Thus frogs were purported to have been produced by the mud puppies from which they sprang, and lambs created from the sod which nourished the sheep.

I thought that theory had largely been debunked, until I read the headline on your front page: "Yews deliver lambs in 3s and 2s." It seems Moore has not only revived and proven that ancient theory but given it an industrial-age twist.

After all, it would be quicker and easier to pick the lambs off shrubs (yews) than to dig them out of the sod. Also, it would save considerable wear and tear on the mothers (ewes) of the now-harvested lamb crop.

Congratulations to Moore for his startling breakthrough in animal production. Kudos, also, to W.W. Edgar for his scoop of this earth-shaking event.

Toxic substance unit sets hearing for public views

Michigan's Toxic Substance Control Commission will hold a public hearing for southeast Michigan area residents at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 306 J-Building of Oakland County Community College's Orchard Ridge campus, I-696 at Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

This is the second of a series of hearings being conducted around the State by the commission in an effort to assess the concerns and the needs of Michigan's residents of environment and public health issues, said Dr. Larry Holcomb, executive secretary.

The main topic of discussion at Monday's hearing will be protection of groundwater, surface water and soils from contamination by toxic substances to prevent threat to health and the environment.

DISCUSSION AREAS to be covered are:

- Is the problem of contaminated water being addressed satisfactorily?
- Which state agency is responding?
- Is there a need for consolidation of toxic substance control programs for efficiency and accountibility?
- For every dollar spent on environmental protection, what percentage should be used for current regulatory programs? What percentage for cleaning up mistakes of the past?
- Should the state construct a hazardous waste facility or depend upon the private sector?

THE HEARING is also intended to provide an informal forum to answer residents' questions regarding the use and control of toxic substances and to make the public aware of what can be done at the local level to prevent crises of the future.

In addition to commissioners and staff, agency representatives from the Departments of Public Health, Natural Resources and Agriculture have been invited to participate. Area legislators also have been invited.

The commission is coordinating hearing efforts with educational associations; environment groups; hazardous waste industry; institutions of higher education; Michigan Association of Counties; Michigan Chamber of Commerce; Michigan Manufacturer Associations; Michigan Municipal League; Michigan Township Association; League of Women Voters; local health departments; U.S. congressmen; sportsmen's groups; local elected officials; and local citizens.

Following the hearings, the commission will provide a series of recommendations to legislators and the governor to improve the state's ability to effectively respond to toxic substance problems.

THE MICHIGAN Toxic Substance Control Act requires that people report toxic substances problems to TSCC. To help the public respond, the agency has installed a toll-free number, 1-800-292-0528.

This is not to duplicate the Department of Natural resources' PEAS (Pollution Emergency Alert System) number, 800-202-4706, which is to be used to report environmental emergency.

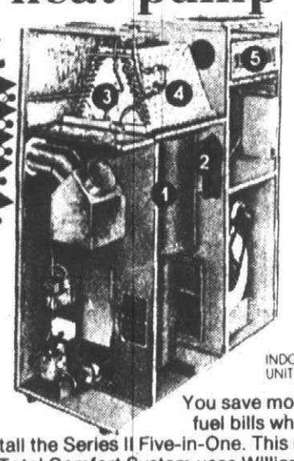

The TSCC toll-free number is for the reporting of toxic substance problems or to ask questions related to that issue.

CEP administration must be restructured

THE NUMBER of school administrators is a hot, and sensitive, issue which residents are sure to watch closely — especially with an estimated $2.2-million deficit on a proposed $41-million budget for the 1982-83 school year.

The issue is so tender that residents, board members and administrators now break the "administration" category into those who directly affect students and those who indirectly affect students.

Residents, of course, want to see a reduction of administrators who "indirectly" affect students, while those who "directly" affect education — principals, assistant principals and special project coordinators — keep their jobs and run the schools and special programs.

Superintendent John Hoben doesn't apologize for the administrative structure, saying the number of administrators ranks below the average cost per student compared to other Wayne County school districts.

BUT ONE ADMINISTRATION structure has been overlooked in these times of massive budget cuts.

That structure is at the two high schools at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP). It's an administrative structure that should make school officials blush because of ineffectiveness and inefficiencies in handling discipline and instructional problems.

The weakness? Area coordinators. That's the glorified term for assistant principals. Eight area coordinators exist at the two high schools. Have you ever heard of four assistant principals at a high school?

It's an area of school spending that seems to "directly" affect students, but really doesn't.

It's time to reorganize administrative duties at the CEP. And the number of area coordinators easily can be reduced from eight to four.

WOULD THIS REDUCTION cause a problem? Not really. Frankly, not many people know what an area coordinator does.

Oh, a list of 15 responsibilities are reported in the 1980 North Central accreditation report, but these duties easily could be handled by teachers, counselors or secretaries.

Doc's corner

The two main tasks of an area coordinator center on evaluating teachers and handling student discipline problems.

Clearly, discipline at the CEP is non-existent and beyond any grasp of any area coordinator. The discipline problem, itself, calls for an administrative shake-up and reevaluation.

Besides, any discipline problems now are initially handled by teachers or the 10 counselors at the CEP. The attendance policy, for example, puts this aspect of discipline initially on the teachers.

As for teacher evaluations, many opinions of area coordinators are not respected. Area coordinators have been out of the classroom too long to give teachers proper evaluation.

The CEP should adopt a department chairperson structure to evaluate teachers. Using this method, the department head then evaluates other teachers — sharing instructional goals.

This structure was recommended by North Central in 1980, but school officials have not acted on it for nearly three years.

IT ISN'T EASY to make budget cuts — especially when it means the end of someone's position. But Plymouth-Canton board members must try to reduce financial waste which does not "directly" affect students.

Restructuring administration at the CEP — and eliminating area coordinators — will accomplish this goal. If the restructuring is done properly, then it also may improve the effectiveness and efficiency of reaching disciplinary and instructional goals.

Schoolcraft hosts pioneer celebration

SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE will be able to boast about something this weekend that even Oxford University lacked when it celebrated its 800th anniversary and the University of Michigan was missing when it celebrated No. 150.

Schoolcraft's founders will be present at a 1 p.m. reception Saturday in the Waterman Campus Center as the community college celebrates its 20th anniversary.

The college was founded within the lifetimes of a majority of its 10,000 students. Most of the citizens who worked for its approval at the polls, many of the first elected trustees and vast numbers of the original faculty and staff are still around. They are literally pioneers in an era when most pioneers we know about are in history books.

April 24 is the official observance of Schoolcraft's founding. People with vision began drumming up suport for a two-year community college in the 1950s. The first ballot plan was defeated because of Redford's opposition.

Then on Oct. 24, 1961, voters in the Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia and Plymouth school districts approved creation of a college district. On June 10, 1963, Northville voted to join.

PIONEERS TELL stories of the first board of trustees meeting in an old school building infested with wasps' nests.

The board hired Dr. Eric Bradner from Delta College to become the first president and selected farmland on the east side of Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile roads for the campus.

"Northwestern Wayne County Community College" being a cumbersome title, the board chose to name the institution for a scholarly Michigan pioneer: Henry Rowe Schoolcraft (1793-1864). Schoolcraft was a geologist who discovered copper in Michigan, an Indian agent whose collected stories inspired Longfellow's "Hiawatha," the leader of the expedition which discovered the source of the Mississippi, the chronicler of Gen. Lewis Cass' expedition around the Great Lakes, a member of the Michigan Territorial Legislature, a University of Michigan regent and one of the founders of the Michigan Historical Society.

THE FOUNDERS then proceeded to create a college worthy of being named after one so distinguished in practical science, ethnology, history and letters. Since the college opened its doors in 1964, nearly 100,000 persons have studied there.

Many have gone on to earn bachelor's degrees at four-year colleges; others have acquired vocational skills; still others have tapped Schoolcraft's programs to re-enter the worlds of work, college or personal development. Schoolcraft is affordable, close to home and a college for all manner of backgrounds and ambitions.

The hiring of C. Nelson Grote as the college's second president in 1971 resulted in a strong effort in the vocational-technical area. The hiring of Richard McDowell in 1981 is resulting in a program of "outreach" as Schoolcraft takes part in Michigan's struggle for economic diversification and re-development.

SATURDAY'S FESTIVAL will open at 1 p.m. with the founders reception and sneak preview of the new Culinary Arts addition.

From 2-4 p.m. visitors will tour the campus and seek laboratory demonstrations, poetry readings, musical entertainment, athletic exhibitions and drama. Those are free.

From 4-8 p.m. in the main gym, Michigan all-state basetball players will play a series of games against the Ontario Basketball Association. At 9 p.m. the anniversary ball will be held in the Waterman Center featuring the Jimmy Wilkins Orchestra.

Everyone will agree the achievements are breath-taking, considering that only 20 years ago Schoolcraft College was merely a cornfield and a pioneers' dream.

Modern library is a busy, fun place

Special "weeks" are proclaimed with such regularity that most newspapers cannot keep up. Hardly a day goes by that a newspaper office does not receive a call asking for a reporter to cover the signing of a proclamation naming this Such-and-Such Week.

Because of the many requests, most have to be ignored.

Usually, several "weeks" are going on simultaneously. For instance, this is Secretaries, Remember the Holocaust, Bike Safety, National Volunteers, Private Property and National Library weeks.

I'M GOING to make an exception today for National Library Week.

Maybe it's because I make my livelihood with the written word, but I've always had a soft spot in my heart for libraries.

I found out about National Library Week last weekend while visiting my suburban library. I was accompanied by my 4-year-old daughter and my father. That in itself says something about libraries. What other activity could attract three generations at the same time?

Libraries have changed dramatically in the past few years. They are exciting places to visit.

Sometimes, I think maybe they have become too much fun. At my library, there are so many people talking that at times it's difficult to concentrate on reading. High school students seem to use it as a place to congregate and meet their friends.

Maybe that's not all bad. It's better than the stodgy image of dusty books and old maid librarians.

Modern libraries are total information centers. A visitor will find cassette tapes, microfilms, magazines, newspapers and art exhibitions next to shelves of books.

Important papers can be copied. Reading clubs are designed for children. Story hours attract the toddlers. Movies and records can be borrowed. In some libraries, art works can be rented.

IT'S EASY to trace my life through memories of libraries. I can still remember looking at books at a small, neighborhood branch library before I could read.

I'll never forget the day I was old enough to get my first library card. My younger days were filled with borrowing sports and Hardy Boys books from the library. In high school I received help from friendly librarians in working on those dreaded term papers.

The favorite bar near my college campus was called The Library. More than one collegian comforted his parents by telling them he was spending all his time at the library.

Later I returned to graduate school after adding a family. Unable to find a quiet place at home, I turned to the library.

EVEN IN TODAY'S era of tax revolt, few people begrudge the money spent on municipal libraries. There's not a better value for the tax dollar.

Finally, I love libraries because they're continuing to be called "libraries." School bureaucrats, with their love of confusing jargon, now call libraries "learning resource centers." It's reassuring to know that the functions of a library can be dramatically expanded, but the name can be retained.

This week, a lifelong friend of mine will be honored. Visit your local library and you may find a new friend.

Baseball has the most loyal fans

From time to time, baseball's right to be called the "national pastime" has been questioned.

With capacity crowds squeezing into college football stadia and the Detroit Lions performing before near-capacity crowds of 80,000 in the Silverdome, baseball was considered in many quarters as having had its day.

But the right to be rated the national pastime no longer can be questioned — not after the turnouts at the opening of the major leagues season in what was close to Siberian weather.

WHEN THE weatherman played tricks for the early opener, causing the Tigers to postpone the entire opening series, it was claimed that would be a real blow to the team, and that for the first time, the team might be playing to a lot of empty seats.

That was not the case. When the call came to "play ball," the stands were well filled. It was a signal that even though the team's strength is questionable, the Tigers would again be well on the way to a million fans before the campaign closed.

If this was not a real signal, then what happened in Cleveland, just across the lake, would end all questions to baseball's place in the sports world. With a team ranked no better than sixth, Cleveland drew more than 62,000 fans for the opener. They sat

the stroller

through wintry winds to see the Indians make a real attempt to improve their rating.

It was the same in most cities. Of course, Toronto was an exception. During the Tigers' visit, cold weather kept thousands away. But one must remember baseball is not a Canadian game, and any number of fans braving the weather can be considered a great sign.

FOR YEARS, Detroit fans have been rated as the most loyal in the major leagues. No matter where the team was in the standings or what type of weather prevailed, they always could be counted on.

One of the most memorable reactions of the fans came some years ago when the Tigers traded "Gee" Walker, one of the most popular outfielders the team ever had. Fans howled in protest, vowing they never again would pass through the gates of what was then Navin Field.

The daily newspapers carried full pages of protest letters. The campaign went on for the better part of two weeks. So strong was the protest that even the Tiger officials began to wonder just how badly attendance would be hurt when the next season opened.

What a surprise all of us received! When the cry came to "play ball," every seat in the stands was taken, and opening day established a new attendance record.

ANOTHER GREAT sign of fans' loyalty came in the early 1930s, when the city was still trying to shake off the effects of the Great Depression.

So great was the demand for seats during the entire season of 1934 that Walter O. Briggs, then the "angel" of the Tigers, led the drive to have the stadium enclosed. There wasn't time to build a regular stand, but Briggs insisted on something to satisfy the fans.

As a result, Cherry Street was closed, and the steel structure was put in place in time for the '34 world series.

So don't ever sell Detroit fans short, or even dream of denying baseball's right to be rated the nationl pastime.

How to get exciting wedding photos

Monte Nagler

Weddings are very important occasions in our lives. And to get good wedding photographs, you don't have to be a professional with elaborate camera gear.

Your basic camera and a little imagination are all you need to get exciting wedding pictures that will be remembered for a lifetime.

CAMERAS: Your 35mm. camera and normal lens are versatile and especially good for candid shots.

A wide variety of lenses is normally not required, but a medium focal length telephoto can be helpful for filling the frame and for reducing distortion in faces when you use your normal lens up close.

Remember that basic rules of composition. Use a vertical format when appropriate to add more impact to your shots.

ELECTROINC FLASH: Often a flash will come in handy at a wedding. Use one that has a fast recyling time (under five seconds) or many picture opportunities will be missed.

Use an inexpensive "L" bracket that will separate the flash from the camera, thereby eliminating "red eye" in your pictures.

Try bounce flash in some of your shots to obtain more natural lighting effects.

FILM: Today a wide variety of films is available for wedding photography.

When you use a flash, Kodacolor 100 (ASA 100) is a good choice. It is very sharp, has good contrast, and reproduces colors very true-to-life.

When you don't want to use flash and need a faster film to shoot in available light, Kodacolor 400 (ASA 400) is a good selection. Some churches may object to flash during portions of the ceremony, making 400 speed film an ideal choice.

PICTURE SITUATIONS: Many picture locations are used at the typical wedding, and a good photographer has to be prepared to handle all situations.

A wedding photographer has a special responsibility to produce a pictorial record that captures as much of the excitement as possible.

If you can, begin in the bride's home, showing preparations for the wedding day.

At the church, remember to get a shot of the ring exchange, the all-important bride and groom kiss, and the trip down the aisle. Rice or confetti throwing keeps a sense of gaiety throughout the pictures.

At the reception hall, be sure to get photos of the head table, and cake-cutting ceremony, the bride and groom dancing, and the throwing of the bride's bouquet.

A picture of the "getaway car" should not be missed, either.

TODAY, MOST people prefer a "natural" look rather than a formal pose in their wedding pictures.

©1982, Monte Nagler. Monte's next class series begins May 12 in the Farmington Community Center. Phone the center at 477-8404 for registration information.

DON URQUHART never did see the ruins of Urquhart Castle on the banks of Loch Ness in Scotland. But relatives and friends kept him posted on the state of his ancestral home in the Highlands with paintings, post cards and family crests. Don had a lively interest in the past and the present as well as the future.

His analytical mind loved a puzzle, a conundrum, a challege. A new interest or hobby was explored in depth — Don became an authority on the subject — and his enthusiam was infectious.

When he taught a class on religious art at First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, his research was was worthy of a doctoral degree thesis. His involvement in photography led to a first prize in national competition. Fishing was not just dangling a plug in a stream; it was "the compleat angler" routine with Don tying his own flies.

Years ago, he experimented with growing plants in water. He loved books and music and his libraries in each grew accordingly.

The duplicate bridge sessions at the Plymouth Cultural Center were a source of great pleasure. He also enjoyed a good game of party bridge and wasn't above filling in as a substitute in wife Betty's bridge club.

Donhad many a skirmish with his latest chess antagonist, an elctronic wizzard named Boris. When one of our young editors became entranced with the game, "Go," and couldn't find anyone to play with, he was invited over to the Urquharts' for a game with Don.

Don was 75 when he died Sunday at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor after a lengthy illness. Our sympathies go to Betty; to their son Jim and his wife Carol; to twin grandsons, Andrew and Matthew; and granddaughters, Cynthia and Monica. Don was a long-time supporter of Starr Commonwealth Schools for Boys, where Jim teaches. That is why the family chose the schools as a recipient of memorial tributes.

ANN MOOR and Cathie Boster, both of Plymouth, are being honored this evening for their volunteer work at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. Honors at the volunteer awards dinner in the museum go to volunteers who contributed 50 hours or more during 1981.

Volunteers at the museum run the Knoxville Post Office, usher at the Museum Theater, speak to civic groups and assist in the curatorial and education departments.

GINA MASSARO, a junior at Eastern Michigan University, will represent the state of Michigan May 1 at the National Interstate Oratory Competition at Wayne State University.

Gina is a Canton Township resident. She is a member of the EMU forensics team which came in first at the Michigan Intercollegiate Forensics State League meet at Central Michigan University.

DON'T FORGET the Three Cities Art Club's annual juried show and sale today through Saturday in Westchester Mall on Forest Avenue, Plymouth. Some of Canton's and Plymouth's finest artists will have their works for sale. Some unframed paintings also will be offered for sale. A painting by Dorothy Koliba will be given away as a prize.

'Plymouth Symphony' premieres

Composer Robert Jones (left) and conductor Johan van der Merwe engage in an animated discussion during rehearsal for Sunday's premiere performance of "The Plymouth Symphony."

By Tim Richard
staff writer

For 36 years Plymouth has had a symphony orchestra. Now it has its own symphony.

"A Plymouth Symphony" by Robert W. Jones will receivé its premier performance at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 25, by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Schoolcraft College Community Choir, directed by Johan van der Merwe.

"Calling it that — 'A Plymouth Symphony' — is being economical. It's about the group and the life of the community," said Jones, an instructor in music theory and history at the college. "A good chunk of my life has been in Plymouth."

THE SYMPHONY is "fondly dedicated to the memory of Oliver Wagner, a good person, a lover of music, and a mentor of the arts," according to Jones' inscription on the score.

"This can't add a cubit to Ollie's life, but I hope it expresses some feelings in his memory," the composer wrote on the title page.

A board member of the Plymouth Symphony Society, Wagner died of cancer March 13, 1981, at the age of 47. A guidance counselor at Whittier Junior High in the Livonia school district, Wagner found time to accompany students in recitals, choruses and festivals.

Wagner was organist and choir director for the former Greenfield Methodist Church in Detroit and First United Methodist Church in Plymouth.

The entire symphony is about people, Jones said, with the fourth movement — the requiem, using words from the Catholic Mass for the dead — summing up the character of Oliver Wagner in a single word: "dignity."

THE FULL choir is heard only in the fourth movement. The women's voices are heard humming in the lyrical second movement.

"The chorus is there because someone has to sing the requiem," Jones said. "The fourth and second movements had to be written first so they could be extracted to start training the choir."

Despite the dedication, "A Plymouth Symphony" is far from being a totally somber work.

The opening movement, the overture, is "stately on the outside and sprightly, with strings and harps, on the inside," said Jones.

"The second movement is lyrical, totally melodic. It is one of my favorite vocal forms — a melancholy, languid mood derived from a Sicilian folk-song rhythm and called, strangely enough, a 'Sicillienne.' The women of the chorus join with the orchestra in an instrumental rôle, wordlessly humming like a delicate, treble pipe organ," he said.

THE REAL Bob Jones emerges in the third movement. "I saved the third movement for dessert," he said.

"The funniest ones are easiest for me to do. It's totally crazy, jocular, funny.

The new "The Plymouth Symphony" is dedicated to the memory of the late Oliver Wagner.

"Since my fourth movement was to be cast in a slow tempo, I decided that I'd better place the tempo off the third somewhere between the minuet and the scherzo.

"So I settled on another of my favorite dance forms — the waltz. Not just any waltz but a jazz waltz."

With a $2,150 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, Jones wrote "A Plymouth Symphony" over a period of about six months. The time was lengthy because he had to teach school, raise a family in northwest Detroit and write other works for vocal and chamber groups.

"It wouldn't happen like that if I were starving in a garret," said. "Then I would have had it done in six weeks."

JONES' LIST of musical titles covers two pages. Most are choral, organ and chamber works. This is his first symphony.

"People usually don't give their first symphony a number," he said. "They give it a title. It's unlucky to number it.

"They're never sure there will be a second symphony. I might never again write a solid symhony, period."

Born 49 years ago in Oak Park, Ill., Jones started studying piano at age 6 and organ at 11. He has studied at four colleges, served in the U.S. Air Force, built a harpsichord and plays it frequently while accompanying wife, Anne, who plays the viola da gamba.

IN 1972 Jones was brought to Schoolcraft College as composer-in-residence by Wayne Dunlap, then head of the college's fine arts program and musical director of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Jones' first local composition was a "Serenade for Four Winds" which opened a concert that season. A typical Jones jocosity, it was performed by four wind players, each standing symbolically in a corner of the old high-school gym.

SC choir joins orchestra for season's last concert

A Mass too big for a church will open the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 25.

Marilyn S. Jones will conduct the Schoolcraft College Community choir, four soloists and the orchestra in Beethoven's monumental Mass in C Major.

The Beethoven Mass "is unthinkable as a liturgical accompaniment. It would dwarf rather than enhance the rite," said program annotator Rex E. Hatt.

The work will be a challenge to the voices. Writing in 1812, Beethoven was becoming increasingly deaf, resulting, said Hatt, in a "forgetfulness of the limitations of the human voice."

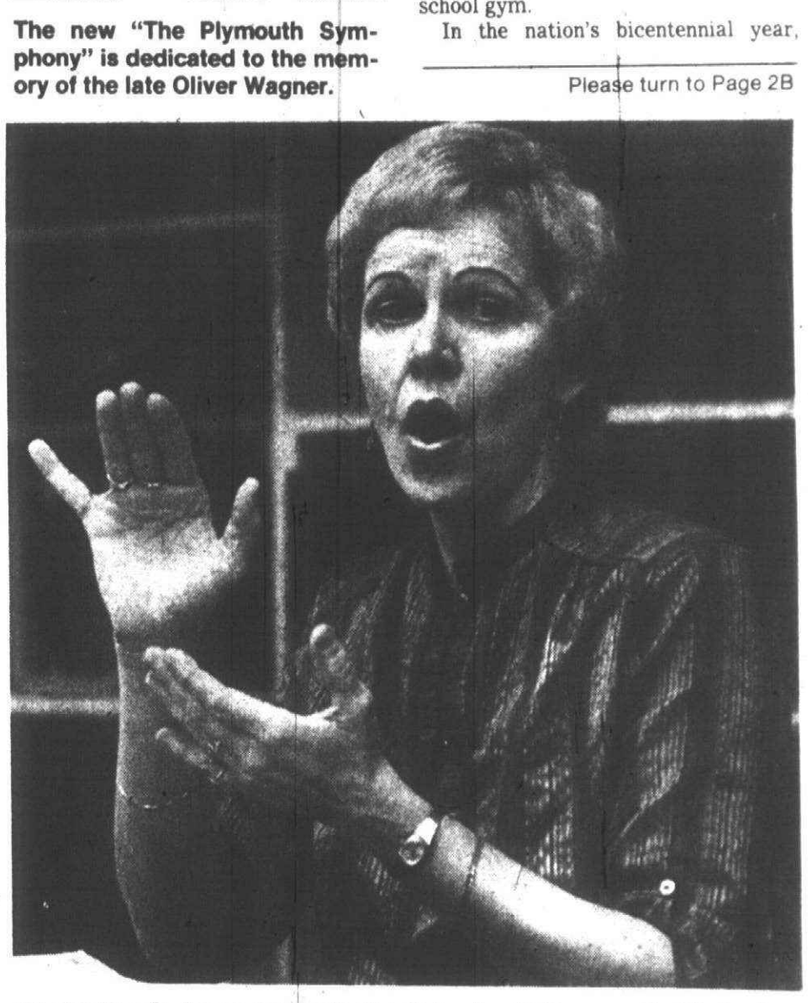

THE MASS will be the companion work to Robert W. Jones' "A Plymouth Symphony" in the concert at Plymouth Salem High School, Joy west of Canton Center roads.

Marilyn Jones (no kin of the composer) has been director of the Schoolcraft College Community Choir, a collection of singers from campus and community, since 1975.

Jones is also director of instrumental and choral music at Renaissance High School in Detroit and instructor of choral-conducting techniques at Wayne State University.

SOLOISTS will be:

- Linda Mohler, soprano. With bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan, Mohler has performed five roles with the Comic Opera Guild of Ann Arbor and another at the Red Barn Theater, Saugatuck. She has been soloist in area church performances of Masses and liturgical music. Her awards include a voice scholarship from the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs and Michigan district prize in the Metropolitan Opera auditions.
- Claritha Buggs, alto. With two degrees in vocal performance from the University of Michigan, she has been organist and choir director of the Russell Street and 12th Street Baptist churches in Detroit. She has performed in Graz, Austria, with the American Institute of Music Studies. Among her instructors have been Elizabeth Schwarzkopf and Elly Ameling.
- Richard Fracker, tenor. With two degrees in social work, Fracker spent several years as a family therapist and juvenile probation worker before re-entering the University of Michigan to work on a music degree, which he expects to receive next year. He has sung roles in Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" and Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi."
- Douglas Cox, bass. A medical doctor with a practice in pediatrics and adolescent medicine in Northville, Cox sings in the Schoolcraft College Community Choir. He is senior choir chaplain of Calvary Baptist Church, Canton, and has sung in other area churches.

Dr. Marilyn S. Jones conducts the Schoolcraft Community Choir at a rehearsal in Central Middle School.

Springtime is party time in Canton

Canton Chatter

By KATHY FREECE 981-2027

Just about this time last year, plans were set for the first surprise birthday party of Patti Cappuccitti's life.

Marlene Birchmeier was the hostess of the bash and she just happened to give birth to her baby daughter the day of the party. Needless to say, the party was cancelled with mother and baby doing just fine.

Here we are again, same time next year, and Marlene and Patti's husband Mike pulled it off with great success.

Patti opened the front door to rooms full of friends and neighbors in tune to "Happy birthday." She immediately broke into tears of happiness and surprise.

I must also take this opportunity to wish happy first birthday to Libby Birchmeier.

SEVERAL weeks ago we read of the total destruction of the home of Nancy and Dave Luik by the Addison Avenue Irregulars.

There were so many guilt feelings on the part of the perpetrators, they decided to make amends by throwing a surprise 30th birthday party for Nancy.

After a lovely dinner with her husband Dave, she innocently walked into the home of Tami and Gary Kistemaker for a late evening chat.

Many of the people who enjoy the Luiks as neighbors were on hand to share the evening with her. Herb Maxwell, Betty Simons, Kathy Buchhop, Tom and Carol Luelleman, Betty and Joe Hellmers, Carol and Mike Dugan, Marilyn and Ray Jolly, Loretta and Joe Sobditch shared the fun evening along with other friends of Dave and Nancy. Some people say the best surprise is no surprise but Nancy didn't think so, her party was a nice touch beginning a new decade.

To add a litte humor to the evening, Tom Buchhop devised a poster-size sympathy card signed by all of the guests.

ROGER AND JOANNIE Chene are on their way to the great city of Grand Rapids to make their new home. They both have family residing in that part of the state and are very excited about their move. Many of their friends and working companions met at the Steak and Ale in Plymouth to bid farewell.

As the party grew and grew, they had to leave their private room and spread to the lounge. Cheryl Grimm of Plymouth worked closely with Roger and had many kind words for him to share with the group.

Larry Danna, Bill Stridiron, Fred Bailey, Laura Meli, Mike O'Leary Larry Lemieur, Fred Bailey, Helen and Mike Wesner and many other friends make the going-away celebration a time Roger and Joan will long remember.

HANK AND SANDY Naasko, Barbara and Art Bakewell gave a lovely afterglow party for many of their friends. Hank is the musical director and Art is the drama director of Churchill High School. They recently put on the stage show of "Bye Bye Birdie." The quality of entertainment the audience experienced at every performance was phenomenal.

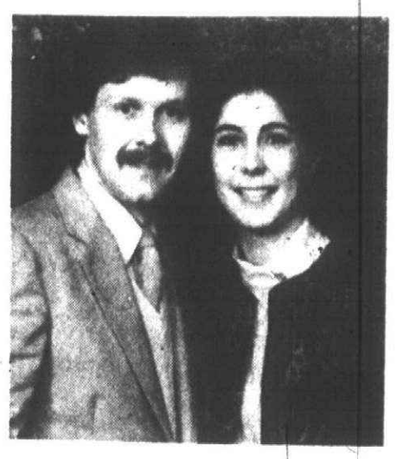

The high level of talent we have in our area high schools is almost comparable to the New York stages.

Fellow teachers, friends, and family — about 70 in all — attended the lovely afterglow at Hank and Sandy's home. Emerald punch and open house punch were served to the guests as a refreshing beverage. There were 17 varieties of hors d'oeurves to please the palate of the showgoers.

Several young children, who enjoyed the live performance, were treated to chocolate ice cream sundaes at the open house.

Hank's sister, Mary Schladorn, flew in from southern Florida to share the exciting evening with her brother. Jim and Shannon Monro Bob and Carolyn Phelps, Linda and Hans Neurath, Jan and Darrell Brawn, Sherm and Mary Moore, Sue and Art Lawrence, Kathy and Bob Spencer, Bill and Diane Soules, Bobbie and Mike Ryan are a few of the area residents who enjoyed the wonderful show and the party afterward.

Art and Hank are mult-talented men who give their best in their work, church and time with their friends.

Lucas-Moran

Duane and Diane Lucas of Canton Township announce the engagement of their daughter, Bridget, to Patrick L. Moran, son of Thomas Moran of Redford Township and Edythe Moran of Traverse City. The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She is employed by the Observer newspapers. Her fiance is a graduate of Elk Rapids High School. He is employed by High Performance Machines, Troy.

They plan a June wedding in St. John Neumann Catholic Church, Canton.

Jones' symphony debuts

1976, he wrote a folk ballet called "The Burning Tree," which the Plymouth Symphony performed.

Another major work was a liturgical lyric drama called "Pilgrimage," written for the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

DURING INTERMISSION of Sunday's concert, coffee will be served by the Plymouth Symphony League. Free baby sitting also will be provided during the concert.

A bus will pick up senior citizens at 3:15 p.m. at Tonquish Creek Manor in Plymouth and return them after the concert.

General admission tickets are $5. Tickets are $2.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students. Students through 12th grade are admitted free.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance from Beitner Jewelry in Plymouth, Arnoldt Williams Music in Canton, Four Seasons in Northville, or Plymouth Book World and Heide's Flowers in Plymouth.

The concert is aided by grants from the Michigan Council for the Arts, the Plymouth Symphony League and the First National Bank of Plymouth.

Finalist

Maria Psychogios, 15, a sophomore at Plymouth salem High School is a finalist in the Miss Michigan National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held this weekend at the Plymouth Hilton Inn. Visit with Jeffrey Bruce Jeffrey Bruce, private beauty consultant to some of the world's most beautiful women, is coming to Plymouth. An Evening with Jeffrey Bruce will be Wednesday, April 28 at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, sponsored by the Plymouth Newcomers Club.

The evening will begin at 7 p.m. when an elegant French dessert and coffee will be served to club members and guests. Bruce will speak from 7:30 to approximately 9 p.m. and has promised to answer questions.

He will discuss the latest techniques of skin treatment, applying make-up and retaining that finished look throughout the day and into the evening hours. He also will tell how color can enhance a total look.

Those who have watched Bruce on television, as a frequent guest host of Kelly & Co., enjoy his entertaining stories about his famous clients.

HE HAS CULTIVATED the classic mystique of of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Lauren Bacall, Dina Merrill and Catherine Deneuve.

At his Philadelphia studio, women come by appointment to share in the secrets of New York's most expensive and exclusive make-up artist. A staff selected and trained by Bruce, takes her history, gives a personalized make-up lesson, and records it step by step so she will be able to follow the exact procedure.

"I prefer a natural, unmade-up look. I never mind knowing that a woman is wearing make-up, but if I can tell what she has on, she has lost the illusion and defeated her purpose," says Bruce.

His line of cosmetics is competitively priced because he has avoided elaborate packaging. It is created, he says, for the working woman and will last from early morning through an after-work dinner or theater date.

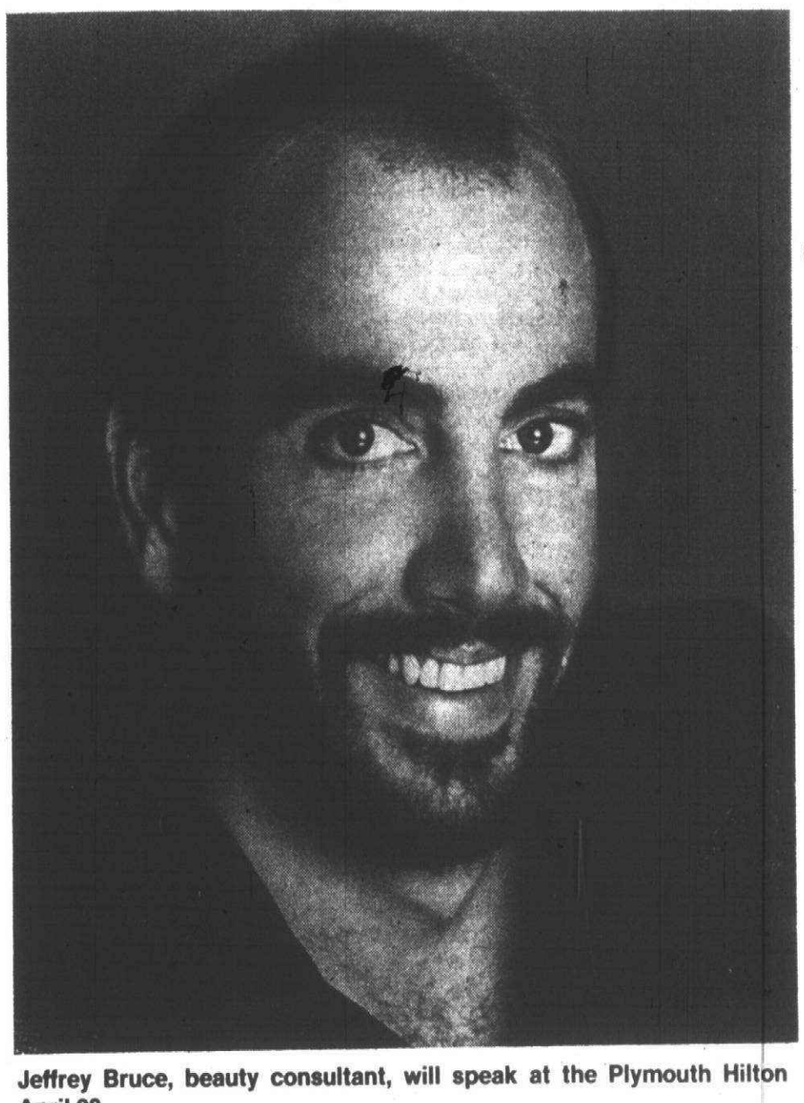

BRUCE WAS 18 when he graduated from the University of North Carolina with a bachelor of science degree in personnel management.

The job market did not welcome him with open arms. Corporations weren't about to hire an 18-year-old to do their hiring and firing. A friend, who knew he had taken art courses in New York, suggested he audition as a make-up artist for Kenneth of New York.

As first make-up artist for Kenneth, he gained as clientele what he describes as "Jacqueline and the Kennedy galaxy, and others of New York's creme de la creme."

From there, he went to positions with Estee Lauder and Charles Revson of Revlon. He moved to California to become Ann Margret's personal make-up artist until her accident. He was Raquel Welch's personal make-up artist for six months.

The Newcomers Club has opened its Evening with Jeffrey Bruce to the public. Reservations must be made in advance by sending a check for $5 and a stamped self-addressed envelope to: Carole Townsend, 46192 Quail Ridge Court, Plymouth, Mich. 48170. Tickets will not be sold at the door.

Jeffrey Bruce, beauty consultant, will speak at the Plymouth Hilton April 28.

Normally expensive New York theater tickets can be had for a fraction of the price — even for Broadway productions such as Duke Ellington's 'Sophisticated Ladies' (left) — if you know where to look.

Doing as natives do: an insider's trip to New York

contributing travel editor

NEW YORK CITY: Out-of-towners pay $13 taxi fares from La Guardia Airport to midtown Manhattan and $40 for Broadway theater tickets. Most of us have never heard of off-Broadway treasures like the Manhattan Theater Club.

New Yorkers pay $6 for the same cab ride, less than $20 for the same Broadway theater ticket, and they know how to explore new plays by lesser-known authors on the off-Broadway circuit.

You can save money while enjoying the theater scene here if you follow local customs. When in New York, do what the New Yorkers do.

Take Share-a-Cab service from the airport. Buy your Broadway tickets half-price at the TKTS booth. Call the Manhattan Theater Club for last-minute reservations to a new kind of small theater experience.

SHARE-A-CAB: It pays to know your way around an airport, especially in New York City. If you fly into La Guardia, the nearest airport to Manhattan, follow signs to the taxi stand outside your terminal, where a sign will read "Share-a-Cab" or possibly "Group Ride."

Tell the attendant where you are going. He will put you and three others in a taxi and charge you $6 or $7 to midtown instead of the regular $12 or $13 fare.

You will always find other people waiting from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday to Friday, and often at other times. These cab-sharing services are particularly economical during the morning rush hour, when slow traffic is likely to run up the meter on your cab even more than it would at midday.

This service is also available from John F. Kennedy Airport, but there's a catch. The regular taxi fare is higher from JFK and you save more, but JFK is an international airport so your riding mates are likely to have a lot of luggage.

YOU CAN'T always get four people's luggage into one cab, so the best you can do might be to share a ride with one other traveler, at $16 each.

"Group ride" is also available weekdays from the World Trade Center, in Wall Street, to La Guardia, from noon to 6 p.m. and from some hotels; ask your concierge.

Otherwise, you must pay full fare back to the airport or take advantage of the Carey bus service. The bus leaves the East Side Terminal, on First Avenue between 37th and 38th Streets, every 20 minutes for La Guardia. It costs $3.50.

THEATER TICKETS: Those kind of "smarts" can save you the money you need to go to the theater, especially if you buy your ticket at TKTS. TKTS is a service run by the non-profit Theater Development Fund, which has booths at 47th and Broadway, in Times Square, and at 100 William St. in the Wall Street district.

TKTS sells most Broadway and some off-Froadway theater tickets for half price, plus a small service charge, on the day of performance. The names of available shows are listed up front, but you will not know what seating choices there are until you get to the ticket window with your cash or traveler's checks (no credit cards accepted).

You must usually stand in a 15- to 30-minute line at the Times Square booth, which is open from 3 p.m. to the 8 p.m. showtime, and stops selling off-Broadway tickets at 7 p.m. because it could take you an hour to get to the off-Broadway theater.

The wait is usually only five minutes at the Wall Street booth, which opens at 11:30 a.m. and stops selling off-Broadway at 1 p.m.

To give you an idea of the money you can save, I wanted three tickets to "Sophisticated Ladies," a popular Duke Ellington musical.

My hotel concierge called his theater agent and quoted me a price of $40 for an orchestra seat. That includes a commission for both the hotel and the agent. The theater box office sells the same tickets for $35 each.

I stood in line at TKTS for 15 minutes and bought the same orchestra seats for $18.50 each, a saving of $21.50 per ticket or $64.50 on the three tickets purchased. That's quite a saving. That's how New Yorkers do it if they are willing to take the good chance that seats will be available on the day of performance.

OFF-BROADWAY tickets are often available from both places; the best in off-off-Broadway is seldom available, but those tickets are only half as expensive anyway. If you are as confused as I was about these terms, here is a brief explanation:

There are 40 Broadway companies, with 800- to 1,000-seat theaters, and 350 off-Broadway and off-off-Broadway companies with smaller, more intimate theaters. Both Broadway and off-Broadway performances are produced under union contract, and last as long as the public will pay for tickets.

At off-off-Broadway theaters, the union permits "showcase performances" to be produced at non-union wages if the show has a limited run, usually 4-5 weeks.

There are at least 20 off-off-Broadway companies, the best of which are Joseph Papp's Public Theater, which has seven theaters under one roof; CSC, which produces the classics; Circle Rep and the Manhattan Theater Club, which produce modern original plays.

The non-profit Manhattan Theater Club (MTC) was established in the early 1970s to encourage new playwrights and develop new plays in an intimate theater setting, where the production is not expected to make a profit.

The club's goal is not to develop plays for Broadway, but three of its productions have moved to the commerical theater there just the same: the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Crimes of the Heart" and "Mass Appeal," both of which are still on Broadway; and "Ain't Misbehavin'," which is now on the road.

Well-known producers and actors are sometimes eager to work with the MTC, because it gives tham a chance to do things they cannot do in the commerical theater.

What this means to you is that you can be part of the inside group that buys season tickets for such performances, but you must know how to get them.

Broadway plays are reviewed as soon as they open, but a play at the Manhattan Theater Club runs three weeks before it is reviewed and is open for only a week or two after review.

You are not likely to hear about it outside New York, and even New Yorkers have limited viewing time between the reviews and the closing of the show.

Season ticket holders practically fill both the 100-seat Upstage Theater and the 150-seat Downstage Theater, so out-of-towners should either put themselves on the mailing list, or call 472-0600 in New York City.

Tickets range from $14 to $24 and are only occasionally available through TKTS. Theaters like this have an influence on theater trends throughout the country.

WHEN IN New York, do what the New Yorkers do, except for one thing.

New Yorkers seldom visit the Visitors Bureau, but that bureau is your best friend. They'll give you lists of hotels, restaurants, theaters, museums and other things to do.

Smart travelers use all the help they can get. For advance information, write to the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, 2 Columbus Circle, New York, NY 10019.

. . . and some hints on finding planes and hotels

On Republic flight 545 from New York:

Barbara Streisand said it just right. I was in a New York State of Mind. The air fare wars have forced airline prices down to $49 and $59 one-way so there's no better time to go to New York City.

New York Air started the price wars but at least four other airlines now fly inexpensive flights to New York — Republic, American, Northwest and Pan Am. The airline you choose depends to a large extent on where you are going in the city.

The cheapest flights are to Newark airport in New Jersey. Northwest and New York Air both fly three times a day to Newark for $49 midweek, $59 weekends. If you are going to Staten Island, it makes sense, but consider that it will cost you more time and money to get to Manhattan from Newark than it will from La Guardia.

If you are going to Manhattan, Republic and American fly four daily flights into La Guardia for $59 midweek, $69 weekends.

You can also fly a daily $59 flight on Pan Am but it will take you to JFK airport, twice the distance away.

I flew Republic flight 540 from Detroit because I liked the idea of leaving Detroit at 8:10 a.m. and getting to La Guardia at 9:33 a.m. My friend Julie Candler of Birmingham flew, the same day, on American, because she liked the idea of leaving at 10 a.m. and getting in about 11.

As it turned out, my flight was delayed, so we arrived at the same time, which is a possibility that every traveler should always be prepared for. See the accompanying story for a discount method of taxiing from La Guardia to midtown Manhattan.

WHERE DO YOU STAY when you get there? I stayed at the beautifully restored Halloran House at 49th and Lexington, built by Arthur Loomis Harmon seven years before he designed the Empire State Building.

The 34-story hotel, built as the Shelton Hotel, was an exclusive private residence for men, and then the tallest hotel in the world. It has the polished wood-and-crystal ambience that we so often associate with grand old hotels.

The Halloran House starts at $108 a night for two; a weekend honeymoon package costs $155 for two nights. Old grandeur dominates this corner: The Waldorf Astoria rises across the street at $105 a night for two; the plain but still habitable Doral Inn is on another corner for $76.

The weekend package is the most cost-effective way to buy accommodations in New York City. The New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, 2 Columbus Circle, NY 10019, will send you a selection of weekend hotel packages on request.

Travel writer Mary Augusta Rodgers of Birmingham has another good suggestion for those who would like a personal touch: the excellent bed-and-breakfast possibilities in New York City.

For information, contact Urban Ventures, 322 Central Park West, New York, NY 10025, which offers 80 rooms and apartments in the city for $35 to $45, double room, or $56 to $100 for an apartment.

The Bed and Breakfast League, 2855 29th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008, has New York City accommodations for $20 to $40 double.

O&E

Orthodox Easter

Easter was April 18 for Eastern Orthodox churches, and these members of the Nativity of Virgin Mary congregation in Plymouth Township made ready with traditional flowers. In preparations on Good Friday, they prepared the epitaphion (at left) to represent the tomb, and the wreath for the cross to represent Christ's crown of thorns. Ceremony to usher in Easter involved placing the cross with its wreath in the epitaphion and carrying it three times around the church grounds to represent the three days Jesus spent in the tomb. Back in the church, the priest then distributed the flowers from the epitaphion to members of the congregation. Pictured making the preparations are (left) Theodora Bageris, Freda Nicozisis, Mary Montes, Helen Polidis and Justine Merrill.

New pastor seeks ministry to neighborhood

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

A church for the neighborhood is the aim of the new pastor of Christ the King Lutheran Church of Livonia.

The Rev. Richard Martzolf has spent last few months getting established in the leadership of the church at 9300 Farmington Road. Succeeding the Rev. John Root, who retired late last year after 12 years here, he comes from an inner-city ministry that of necessity gave a great deal of attention to day-to-day subsistence needs.

"But I want to minister to the neighborhood here, too," the 37-year-old clergyman said. "It has always been a primary concern of mind to meet the needs of those who live in the shadow of the church I serve."

The church where Martzolf served 6½ years is Christ Lutheran Church, at Philadelphia and Third.

"We had about 200 members," he said. "The congregation is 95 percent black, and you have to remember that only about one percent of the Lutheran chuch members are black.

The serving of 35 Meals on Wheels each day and the conducting of special programs for youth were typical of the work he led in that congregation, Martzolf said.

"AT CHRIST THE KING, he comes to a Lutheran Church in America congregation which was established in 1955 and now has approximately 65 members. In the Livonia church he heads a more extensive range of ministries, but still sees the community aspect of his work as paramount. While wanting to increase the outreach of the church he also notes that "I see my job as building

Martzolf came into a pastoral career after majoring in economics and political science at Hartwick College at Olean, N.Y. Moving on the Columbia University for graduate study in economics, he was hired as a program budgeter for an administrative manpower program in New York City.

"I got to see a lot of the city," he said, "and it was a new educational experience. I began to really see the needs of people. I became an idealist."

HIS BROADENED VIEW led him to the Lutheran ministry. It wasn't a completely new direction, though. "I had always had the possibility of the ministry in the back of my mind," he explained.

Martzolf earned a degree in theology from Hamma School of Theology, then part of Wittenburg University in Ohio. The school now is Trinity Seminary and located at Columbus. He served a church in Syracuse before being called by the Detroit congregation.

The new pastor said his first impressions of Christ the King was the "warmth of the welcome" for him and his wife Mary and two stepsons. The family is expecting another child in September.

And is Martzolf still the idealist he became in his pre-seminary days?

"After 6½ years in Detroit I'm more realistic," he said. "But basically I'm still idealistic. And in a different way I'll need my idealism here too."

The Rev. Richard Martzolf is the new pastor of Christ the King Lutheran Church of Livonia.

Mountain Jacks Brings The Feast To The Fore

Anyone who feels it's been far too long since his last real beef delight should pay a visit to any one of the five Detroit area Mountain Jacks. A specialty of the house is an extravagant Beef Feast for Two designed to tantalize the taste buds of all beef lovers.

Mountain Jacks has combined the three cuts of beef that beef fanciers prefer—sizzling top sirloin, tender filet mignon and robust prime rib. Ample portions cooked to order are heaped on a platter for two, and complimented by horseradish, chablis wine-butter and au jus. Hearty appetites also will relish the accompaniments served with every Mountain Jacks dinner, including homemade soup of the day, a salad made from an array of fresh ingredients, fresh hot bread and creamy butter plus a choice of long grain and wild rice, home fries or a baked potato. Though one might expect to pay a king's ransom for a feast of these proportions, the Beef Feast for Two is priced at $9.95 per person.

For those who fancy a unique treat, tempting specialties await the hungry at Mountain Jacks. The Stuffed Filet Mignon combines savory seasoned mushrooms tucked inside a tender cut of filet mignon and wrapped in bacon, then charbroiled to order and served blanketed by more sautéed mushrooms. The Crab Stuffed New Yorker presents a delicious New York strip steak stuffed with crab and mushrooms, then charbroiled and served with mushrooms sautéed in brandied-butter.

Guests also may select a fresh fish of the day or choose one of the various beef and seafood combinations, while purists in the market for a very good steak may select from several cuts in sizes to please every appetite.

Carlos Murphy's Makes A Meal For Beans

SOUTHFIELD...With Cinco de Mayo (May 5th) fast approaching, Carlos Murphy's personnel have been busy preparing for the traditional Mexican celebration. Revelers looking for the excitement of a Mexican Fiesta will not be disappointed with the festivities planned at Carlos Murphy's for the entire month of May.

For those who wish to dine away the hours, Carlos Murphy's extensive menu offers savory hickory smoked specialties, cheesy quiches and crepes, beefy burgers and sandwiches, crunchy salads and, of course, spicy Mexican fare.

Anyone looking for his just desserts will strike it rich with the many Murphy's selections. The Monster Cookie, which threatens to conquer Detroit, begins with a not-so-humble-sized chocolate chip cookie, heaped with ice cream, slathered with chocolate fudge, piled with whipped cream, chopped nuts and topped with a modest cherry. Deep Fried Ice Cream is a marvel worth investigating, and the Apple Burrito is enough to make a bandito lay his revolver down.

Carlos Murphy himself could not be reached for comment on the exact details of the May events, but sources close to the little fellow say that Murphy's promises a real bang up celebration.

Schoolcraft College has come a long way since it started and wants the commnunity it serves, its graduates and students to celebrate from 1-4 p.m. Saturday on campus in Livonia.

It has been 20 years since some hardy folks stood in a cornfield on Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile roads and laid the cornerstone for Northwest Wayne County Community College, now called Schoolcraft College.

At Saturday's celebration, visitors may tour the campus. All building will be open for guests to see the new computers, data processing, learning assistance center, writing concepts lab, reading lab, library, Women's Resource Center and a sneak preview of the new culinary arts addition to the Waterman Campus Center.

There will be art exhibits, lab experiments, poetry readings, Madrigal Singers, piano recitals, a jazz band concert and dramatic offerings. The physical education building will offer paddleball, handball, racquetball, ersatzball, weight training, skin and scuba diving, swimnastics, gymnastics, volleyball, fitness and karate exhibitions.

THE CELEBRATION continues with the fifth annual International Basketball Classic consolation game at 4 p.m. and the championship game at 6 p.m. Admission is $4 in advance and $5 at the door for adults, $2 in advance and $3 at the door for students.

The 20th Anniversary Ball begins at 9 p.m. in the Waterman Campus Center. Dancing to the 16-piece Jimmy Wilkins Orchestra will be offered. Snacks and beverages from a cash bar will be available. Tickets at $6 per person are on sale at the cashier's office in the Administration Building.

Movies, stage and television have all seen the charms of Carol Lynley, who has been an actress since childhood.

Acting's a natural for Carol Lynley

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

ACTRESS CAROL LYNLEY has silky blonde hair and delectable facial features. She has a curvy figure that other women would envy and men admire, and she keeps it in trim through ballet and yoga.

She's co-starring with dashing Noel Harrison — son of the renowned actor Rex Harrison — in "Romantic Comedy," which has received the critics' acclaim locally, at the Birmingham Theatre through May 9.

Wouldn't all this be enough to make anyone a little bit stuck on themself? Lynley, however, doesn't seem to notice that she's a show-business personality. She's cheerful and talks about herself without any guile. She's free of any theatrical affectation.

She smilled, understandingly, when asked how she managed to avoid such "mannerisms," explainingly that it's only the actors without confidence who need such crutches.

A MODEL at the age of 10, she soon became an actress and was on Broadway at 12 and making movies at 14. Lynley enjoys the life she leads and makes herself at home onstage and off throughout the world.

She arrived for her interview at the Birmingham Theatre with her little dog, Zuleika, a Lahsa Apsa on a leash. The dog's name is that of a character in a book by Max Beerbohm, Lynly said.

Music festival announces Variety/ Pops

Vocalist Cleo Laine opens the new Saturday night Variety/Pops series June 26 at the Meadow Brook Music Festival, a cultural program of Oakland University near Rochester.

John Dankworth, Laine's husband, will conduct the Detroit Symphony Pops, as well as play the clarinet and take up his alto sax to scat duets with Laine.

In expanding the former Sunday Pops, Meadow Brook will bring back other former sellout attractions and give Saturday-night concert-goers a variety of shows ranging from Victor Borge to "Hooked on Classics."

The classical series with the Detroit Symphony, previously offered at Meadow Brook on Thursdays and Saturdays, this year will be presented Thursdays and Sundays.

ALL EVENING concerts at the 1982 festival will begin at 8 p.m. in Baldwin Pavilion on campus, with entrances on Walton Boulevard and Adams Road.

Second concert of the Variety/Pops series will star the Four Freshmen, the Four Lads and the Ink Spots, on July 3. A fireworks display will follow the program.

Victor Borge brings his blend of comedy and music to the summer festival July 10.

Duo pianists Ferrante and Teicher appear with the Detroit Symphony Pops on July 17, Kenneth Jean conducting. On July 24 will be two all-time-favorite big bands, Buddy Rich and his Band and Woody Herman and His Thundering Herd.

From "The Tonight show," trumpet-playing Doc Severinsen appears with the Detroit Symphony Pops on July 31. Tex Beneke swings in Aug. 7 with Helen Forrest, Johnny Desmond and the Modernaires, in a salute to big bands of the '40s.

ON AUG. 14, New Orleans Dixieland greats Pete Fountain and Al Hirt share the stage. The season winds up Aug. 21 with a program "Hooked on Classics" from the hit record, accompanied by a light show.

Other Meadow Brook Music Festival attractions will be part of a Friday Variety series, children's concerts and many non-series specials.

More than 7,000 people can be seated in the pavilion and on the lawn at Meadow Brook. Information on season subscriptions and a brochure are available by calling the box office at 377-2010.

New California labels arriving in Michigan

wine

Richard Watson

May is the time of year in Michigan when annual licenses are issued for wine distribution. As such, that month and the couple following usually see several new winery labels come onto our shelves.

And this year, because of a relaxation in our licensing procedures (no longer are our cottage industries in Paw Paw to be so pampered), we will see an unusually large selection of new California choices.

The group reported here is not comprehensive. Rather it reports on a few of the more select ones we will soon have available to us.

By far the most notable is Schramsberg Vineyards of Napa, makers of the most prestigious sparkling wine in California. With expanded new facilities, owner Jack Davies now has enough wine to send a small allotment to Michigan — blanc de blancs made from chardonnay and pinot blanc grapes and a blanc de noir from pinot noir.

BOTH ARE methode-champenoise style, vintage-dated and priced competitively with Domaine Chandon and comparable French champagnes.

Almost as significant is the arrival of Keenan Winery from the high Mayacamas Mountains above northern Napa Valley. An overnight success when the wines were first released in California a couple of years ago, Keenan is known chiefly for a luxurious chardonnay and a rich, herbaceous cabernet sauvignon.

Hopefully, we will also get its merlot and pinot noir, both of which are also highly acclaimed.

St. Clement Vineyards, a fast-growing name from Napa also, is the crafter of a chardonnay and a cabernet sauvignon. These wines are made in a winery not unlike that of TV's Falcon Crest, in the former Spring Mountain facility and are worth the comparatively high prices.

The last new label from Napa is Robert Pecota Winery, maker of some lovely and delicate wines: grey reisling, gamay beaujolais, flora and French colombard. But Bob's big wine is his extraordinry petite sirah, due somewhat later.

EACH YEAR a local artist is commissioned to produce the wine's unique label design. A most attractive package at an affordable prices.

Lovers of big zinfandels will welcome Lee Sobon's Shenandoah Vineyards into the state, back after a disastrous distribution of its earlier releases. Sobon, who recently appeared personally, locally, under the auspices of the Winetasters to show off his wines, makes massive red wines in typical amador style as well as a crisp chenin blanc and sauvignon blanc. Look also for his port and mission d'oro in the fall. Great dessert wines.

From Sonoma, we will soon get St. Francis Vineyards. Maker of Germanic-styled wines for the last two years, it has received mixed reviews.

Two additional wines are now on the probable list and will come along toward the fall. Both are from a handful of highly acclaimed new wineries that contribute greatly to the recently highly elevated status of California wines. Acacia Winery makes some of the finest pinot noirs and chardonnays from the Lotus Land, and Duckhorn Vineyards does things with merlot that make lovers of pomerol weep with envy.

Now all we need in Michigan are Trefethan (Napa) and Kistler (Sonoma). Local distributors have, so far, been unable to negotiate those for us.

A final new arrival soon will be the "negative" calorie red wine from Kalkaska Mountain Winery in northern Michigan, not subject to the import licensing that previously protected our industry in Michigan. It should be interesting when it arrives.

'Macbeth' to open Meadow Brook Theatre's 17th year

Terence Kilburn, artistic director of Meadow Brook Theatre, has announced seven plays and one musical to celebrate the theater's 17th season, opening Oct. 7 with William Shakespeare's tragedy "Macbeth."

George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber's satire "The Royal Family," about the First Family of Broadway, will follow Nov. 4 at Meadow Brook, on the Oakland University campus near Rochester.

The holiday season will be ushered in Dec. 2 with a new adaptation by Charles Nolte of Charles Dickens' classic "A Christmas Carol." Scrooge, Tiny Tim, Bob Cratchit, Mr. Fezziwig, Marley's Ghost and all the other colorful characters will come alive for the holidays.

A Detroit premiere, "Talley's Folly," will open Dec. 30. This play about a seemingly mismatched couple who triumph over their differences won for its author, Lanford Wilson, both the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Critics' Circle Award.

LILLIAN HELLMAN'S drama "The Children's Hour" will open Jan. 27. Two Hellman hits, "The Little Foxes" and "Another Part of the Forest," have been performed at Meadow Brook. "The Children's Hour" tells of the devastation caused by unfounded rumor, the lie and the smear.

Meadow Brook is hoping that a recent smash hit on Broadway, "Morning's at Seven," becomes available, to follow on Feb. 24. The play is an American comedy of small-town life, involving four inseparable sisters and the men in their lives.

The Agatha Christie hit "The Unexpected Guest" will open March 24. Set in a foggy estate in Wales, this mystery opens as a stranger walks into a house to find a murder has just been committed and the victim's wife is standing over him with a gun.

Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones' musical "The Fantasticks" has been playing in New York for 23 consecutive years. This story about two young lovers is peopled with a variety of zany characters and wrapped in hit songs. "The Fantasticks" will open April 21.

Theatergoers who subscribe to next season before June 10 receive an Early-Bird discount and may see eight plays for the price of six. After June 20, season subscriptions will be available at a discount of eight plays for the price of seven.

Orders may be placed in the lobby or by calling the Meadow Brook Theatre box office at 377-3300.

Puppeteers doing 'Sorceror's Apprentice'

Cleveland's Popinjay Puppets will perform "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" for Detroit Youtheatre's "Something Every Saturday" audiences at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. May 1 in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

Tickets at $2.50 for children and adults and $1.75 each in groups of 10 or more may be purchased through the museum ticket office (phone 832-2730) and at the door. A Youtheatre 10-ticket discount pass is available at the ticket office for $17.50.

"The Sourcer's Apprentice," a favorite childhood story, is being retold with a new musical score and giant hand puppets in the hour-long show.

This presentation is designed for families with children 5 years of age through adults. Children younger than 5 years will not be admitted to the theater.

Youtheatre rounds out its October-May season of live, professional musicals, plays, specials and films with birthday parties, Wiggle Club shows for families with younger children ages 3-8 years, free guided "Back Stage Tours," and salute days to focus attention on young people's service groups and community organizations.

Actress Carol Lynley takes naturally to stage

"She broke the hearts of all the men at Oxford. She's a heartbreaker," the actress said.

The interview progressed to the star's dressing room, where her name, but no star, was tacked on the door. When the photographer asked to check the setting with the best light for a photo, she swiftly moved beyond the sitting room into the dressing room with make-up table.

There she apologized brightly for the clutter that included an empty wine bottle and caviar jar. "Noel and I like to get together for a few minutes after the show and discuss the characters," she said.

IN THE PLAY, Lynley and Harrison are playwrights. He's a famous one, with conceit about his work and snobbishness about his London tailoring. She's a naive schoolteacher from Vermont, who wants to get her first play published. Her clothes look like whatever got pulled out of her closet first (Lynley declared that most of the crazy-quilt wardrobe she wears in the first two acts are her own clothes, purposely mismatched).

"The baseball hat is mine too," she said. The hat's a symbol of the young playwright's indifference to her appearance and surroundings in much of the comedy's action.

Like another Bernard Slade play where the female character metamorphoses into a more sophisticated woman ("Same Time, Next Year"), Lynley does have a chance to shine with an elegant Parisian look, and show off her real, unfrumpy, star quality.

Asked if she identifies easily with the character of Phoebe Craddock, Lynley said she doesn't have a problem relating to the roles she plays but that she does have some background in common with Phoebe.

"My mother's from Boston," she said. "My grandmother is from Vermont. I know the territory very well. I come from a long line of New England schoolteachers."

In "Romantic Comedy," the two playwrights collaborate on romantic comedies but don't really become romantically involved with each other until years after they have broken up their partnership.

LYNLEY HAS a fresh All-American look that has kept her in good stead through the years of performing in 34 films and six plays. At 12 she was on Broadway and on tour in "Anniversary Waltz" for Moss Hart.

"As a kid you're working adult hours and have all the responsibility and not as much fun," she said. "You grow up much later. Emotionally you grow up much, much later."

Lynley said her private life started in her 20s when she was living in London after working there. "I lived there in the late '60s and '70s. I've been in and out of England the last 15 years."

Lynley has a daughter in school in Vermont. "She's 20," she said with a fake whisper.

The actress has residences in California and New York. Keeping up houeholds on two coasts can be hectic, especially when things break down. She recalls one night when the electricity went out in her New York apartment and she had to go to a nearby deli and get "about 50 candles so I could read my lines to rehease."

"Sometimes things are breaking on both coasts. I'll get to L.A. and find the phones won't be ringing, and then I'll find the phones are broken," she said.

AMONG HER favorite film roles is the one she played in "Bunny Lake Is Missing." On stage, she likes to do comedy best. Her leading men would make a who's who of stage and screen, such stars as Kirk Douglas, Laurence Olivier, and Tom Selleck. "I worked with him (Selleck) a couple of years ago, before he became famous. I knew he would," she said of the Hollywood's newest heartthrob.

She is appearing in a remake of "The Cat and the Canary," with an all-star cast, which was shown recently on TV's Home Box Office. Last year the actress did a movie at the bottom of the Grand Canyon, with Peter Graves and Alex Cord. She has just finished a movie called "Vigilante."

After the production of "Romantic Comedy," which was put together especially for the Birmingham Theatre, she plans to go to New York, then France, New York and Los Angeles.

"I'm into Paris," she said. She attended the Deauville Film Festival last year and would like to do it again.

Having studied ballet since the age of 6, Lynley is a trained ballerina. "I played a ballerina on 'Fantasy Island.' They needed an actress who could perform on point, and there aren't too many of those," she said with a laugh.

"Wings" (1972), 8 p.m. Saturday at the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser at Grand River, phone 537-1133, $5. Running time 130 minutes.

Dennis James' presence at the theater organ makes the price tag on this silent-film showing a bit more palatable. The film itself is the predicitable story of World War I flying aces, Buddy Rogers and Richard Arlen, pals who compete for the love of the same gal, Clara Bow. Gary Cooper, age 26, also appears briefly in the film, directed by William Wellman. Winner of the first best picture Oscar, "Wings" is distinguished by its industrious dogfighting sequences, made authentic by Wellman's direction and the fact that the director himself was a member of the elite Lafayette Escadrille flying unit during the war. Rating: $3.

"Mr. Hex" (1964), 10 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 20. Originally 63 minutes.

Here's vintage Bowery Boys, those fun-loving thugs who ran loose on Hollywood back-lot versions of Manhattan's lower east side from 1937 to 1957. It's vintage boys because "Mr. Hex" is the first film made under that moniker by Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Bobby Jordan, Gabe Dell and Billy Benidict. Before 1946 they were the Dead End Kids (1937-40) and the East Side Kids (1940-46). The Bowery Boys would essay their roles well into middle age, and the films, understandably, would grow less and less funny as the series progressed. See them while they were hot. Rating: $2.50.

"Inherit the Wind" (1960), in two parts at 1 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday on Ch. 50. Originally 127 minutes.

The characters aren't named Clarence Darrow, William Jennings Bryan and H. L. Mencken, and it isn't called the Scopes monkey trial, but that is the substance of this Stanley Kramer film. Spencer Tracy, Fredric March and Gene Kelly star, along with Dick York and Harry Morgan. "Inherit the Wind" could be the story of the 1925 Scopes trial or the 1981 battle over creationism in the Arkansas courts. In other words: art imitates life imitates art. Rating: $3.30.

second-rate

"Beyond the Poseidon Adventure" (1979), 8 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 114 minutes.

"Sally Field and Michael Caine, risking their lives underwater for a fortune in salvage as they scramble through the twisted corridors of the still-floating Poseidon, face a human danger deadlier than the ocean's deeps in this sequel to one of the greatest disaster films ever made. Karl Malden, Jack Warden and Shirley Jones also star." Rating: glug, glug.

Lipizzan Stallions to perform

The Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at the Joe Louis Arena, Detroit.

Tickets are $8.50, $7.50 and $6.50, with a $2-off discount for children 12 and under, and senior citizens. Tickets are available at the arena box office, Hudson's and all CTC Outlets.

The Lipizzan Stallions are from breed's bloodlines: Conversano, Neopolitano, Pluto, Siglavy, Maestoso and Favory. It is said that Mongol ruler Ghengis Khan rode across Europe on an early ancestor of the Lipizzán.

backgammon

of the Cavendish North backgammon club

● DO YOU WANNA DANCE?

In positions where both players have men trapped behind an imposing blockade of enemy points, timing becomes important. Whichever side can keep the opponent blocked in longer will almost certainly win the game.

In the example, white rolls a 2-1 — one of his best numbers since he is not forced to break his prime (six points in a row). The 2 must be played from white's 6 to the 4 point. For the 1, we must either continue to our 3 point or move up to the black 2 point. Advancing one of the back men to the 2 point is mandatory for a number of reasons that all have something to do with timing.

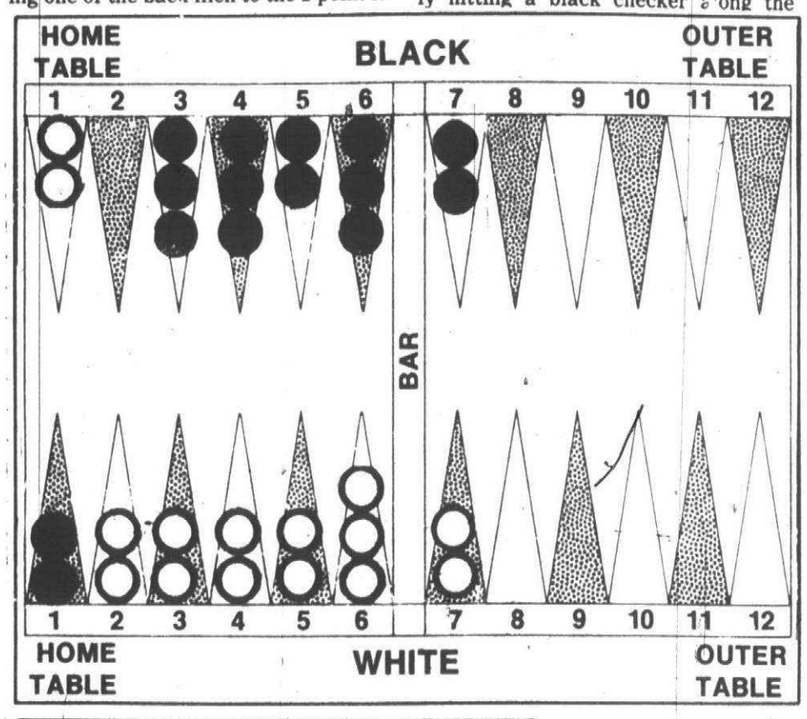

First, by abandoning the black 1 point, we make the opponent play 6s. If we keep the black 1 point and black then rolls 6-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 or 6-1, he will be able to maintain his blocking position as he would have no 6 to play. It would then be our turn to play and our position would deteriorate unless we throw 6-6 or 6-1. Instead, if we are hit with a 6, we will play our next roll from the bar.

From the bar, only two things can happen — we can re-enter, occasionally hitting a black checker along the way, or we can "dance" on the bar by rolling big numbers. Re-entering would leave us well positioned to escape since black would no longer have his 7 point. Remaining on the bar would be even better, for then our prime would remain intact as black advances.

The longer we dance, the better. Black would be forced to play — breaking point after point until we finally come in. With his board broken, black has almost no chance to win even if he is lucky enough to hit a shot during the white bearoff.

So by advancing to black's 2 point, we increase the numbers that play poorly for the opponent on the next roll. But what if he rolls a good number? Let's say black rolls 4-2, 4-1, 2-1 or 1-1 and makes his 2 point and a full prime at the same time. Then we are much better off being hit. Since black will have made a five-point board, the chances are better than 2-to-1 in favor of our dancing. Even if we are unfortunate enough to re-enter on black's 1 point, we can still keep our prime if we roll 6-1 or 2-1.

Backgammon is full of paradoxes. In prime vs. prime positions, the best chance to win the race is by going slowly. So it's little wonder that we slow down most effectively by advancing.

This bunt was a drag

Canton's Sue Gerke tries to surprise the opposition with a drag bunt. The strategy, however, didn't work as the ball popped right into the glove of Livonia Bentley catcher Julie Young for an out. For the story on Canton's opener, turn to Page 2C.

Ontario cagers take aim at 'Classic' championship

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Hockey is the national pastime in the Canada, but don't underestimate the country's basketball talent.

Some of Canada's top amateur prospects will be on hand this weekend at Schoolcraft College for the annual International Basketball Classic.

Opening round play pits the Detroit AAU squad against the Metro AAU team at 5:30 p.m. Friday. That will be followed by the Ontario Provincial junior men's team versus Michigan's blue-chip standouts at 8 p.m.

The consolation game begins at 4 p.m. Saturday. The championship will follow at 6 p.m.

The Michigan team is the clear-cut favorite. They can put up an imposing front-line with the likes of 6-foot-8 Marty Embry of state Class A champ Flint Central, 6-8 Paul Jokisch of Birmingham Brother Rice and 6-7 Ricky Buttrom of Ecorse.

The Ontario squad has "been together off and on for the last three weeks," said coach Jerry Brumpton of Windsor Lowe High School.

"We were in Montreal last weekend for a tournament, and we had a good game against the Massachusetts All-Stars," he said. "I think we'll be organized.

"I don't know about our quickness, but if we play good defense, we should be real competitive."

ONE OF CANADA'S top prep players is Peter Lambropoulous, a 6-2 guard from Lowe.

Lambropoulous participated last summer in the prestigious Kutsher's (N.Y.) All-Star games against some of the nation's top prep seniors. The seasoned sharpshooter is considering U.S. college offers from Central Michigan, Vermont, Maine and Akron.

Starting in the backcourt with the Lowe ace is Chris Jonsson of Ottawa, who is headed for Niagara (N.Y.) University next fall.

Mo Soufan, a 6-7 forward from Herman Collegiate in Windsor, also will start. He was member of the all-Ontario championship team.

He is joined by David Kipfer of Kitchener Cameron Heights, a rugged 6-7 forward with a soft outside shooting touch.

The other starting spot could go the the Classic's tallest player, 6-11 Randy Norris of Sarnia Northern. Tony Piazza, a 6-2 forward from Lowe, could also get the starting nod.

THE METRO AAU team, made up of several All-Observer and All-Eccentric peformers, has a good shot at making the finals.

The team has size with the likes of Ralph Walker, a 6-8 center from Southfield, 6-8 Tom Gomolak of Livonia Churchill, 6-8 Norm Haygood of Plymouth Salem, and 6-6 Eric Sink of Livonia Bentley. Jerome Walker, also of Southfield, lends help at the forward spot.

Mike Priest of Southfield and Jim Sibel of Redford Thurston made the Metro AAU team as guards.

The Detroit squad will rely on the backcourt strength of Kevin McAdoo of Saginaw and Alexander Newell of Detroit Murray-Wright.

Detroit AAU front-line players include 6-8 Anthony Palmer of Cass Tech, 6-6 Pete Hansen of Grand Haven and 6-5 Jeff Barnes of Monroe.

Tickets are available at the door each night at $5 for adults and $3 for students. Advance tickets are available for $4 and $2. For more information, call 591-6400, Ext. 480.

Chief batters bounce back

By Jay Keenan
special writer

Just two days.

That's how fast the Plymouth Canton baseball squad got its defensive act together. The Chiefs evened their season record to 2-2 by sweeping a doubleheader from Wayne Memorial Saturday afternoon.

Canton lost a two-game set Thursday to defending Class A state champ Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher thanks to some sloppy play in the field. However, the Chiefs bounced back to whip the Zebras in the first game, 8-3. The Chiefs fell behind early in the nightcap, but quickly rallied for an 8-2 win.

"It was a totally different effort," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "I think we started to put the pieces together a bit. I was pleased.

"Against Gallagher, I didn't think we got our socks beat off in either game. I thought mental errors did us in. On Saturday, we didn't make mental mistakes."

That they didn't. Canton fielders committed only one error over 14 innings and bunted successfully eight times.

In the opener, southpaw Jamie Chilcoff gave up four hits and struck out five batters in seven innings of work for the win.

CANTON started fast, scoring five runs in the first inning, the big blow coming off the bat of Mike Scarpello, who hit a two-run single.

Wayne, which handed the Chiefs one of just three defeats a year ago, sliced the gap to 5-3 in the next inning on the only three walks Chilcoff issued for the game.

But in the bottom half of the third, the Chiefs padded their margin to 7-2 on a bases-loaded single by Scott Bricker, who went three-for-three to pace Canton's hitting attack. Canton added another run in the sixth.

Dan Smith, who pitched the final four innings of the second game, struck out eight batters and yielded one run to earn the win.

The Zebras jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning off starter Mike Battaglia, who pitched the first three innings.

Canton came back to ti the score at one-all in the third on a double by Fred Rumberger, a sacrifice bunt by Steve Johnson, and suicide squeeze bunt by Bricker.

The Chiefs then went ahead for good with a run in the fourth. Bill Hanis started things off with a single, and Bryan Capnerhurst followed with a sacrifice. Don Dombey then doubled home Hanis to make it 2-1.

CANTON broke it wide open in the fifth by scoring six runs on five hits plus three walks.

Sox fan recalls Bob Elson days

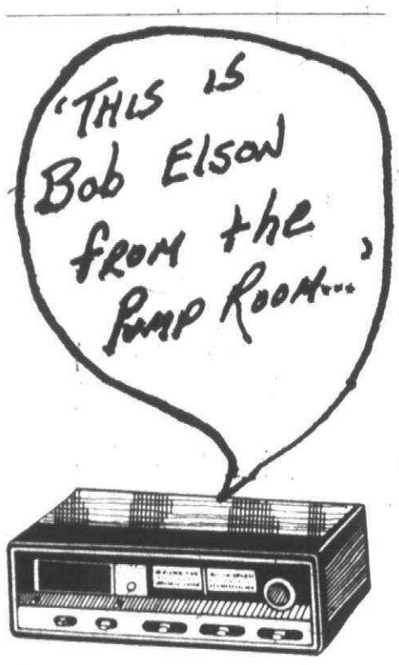

Tom Baer

Bob Elson died. It took 13 months for the news to reach me.

"Who's Bob Elson?" asked a co-worker after I'd proposed writing this little remembrance.

"Where've you been?" chided another, known for his clever remarks. "The first time I heard of him was 11 o'clock this morning."

OK, wise guys, have your joke. Bob Elson was from another place (Chicago) and another time (early 1960s). And the news of his passing — on March 10, 1981 at the age of 77 — stirred some memories of my formative years in suburban Milwaukee.

Bob Elson, for everyone's information, was a sports announcer with a long and storied history with the Chitown baseball teams.

He announced the Cubs games in the late 1930s, getting the commercial across by ordering his listeners to "Watch the Fords go by." By the time he got me for a listener, he was doing the White Sox games on WCFL, which used to bill itself as "The Voice of Labor in Chicago."

After the baseball season, Elson would do a daily and nightly interview show on "The Voice of Labor" from the Pump Room of the Ambassador East, a posh downtown hotel.

In 1979, he was inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

OF COURSE I listened to Bob Elson. Didn't everyone in "Chicagoland"? I was a member of a large (but devoted) group of Elson fans. We would have called ourselves Bob Elson groupies, I suppose, had that word existed.

We followed the Sox — winners of the 1959 American League pennant after a 40-year drought — more closely than the hometown Milwaukee Braves. And after the season we tuned in every night to see who Bob would be pumping in the Pump Room.

The thing about old Bob was his almost total lack of emotion in broadcasting. He always came across as the composed and dignified gentleman — never mind that Earl Torgeson had just clouted a ninth-inning homer to ensure Early Wynn's pitching victory, or that Luis Aparicio had just stolen his 50th base.

The man just would not get excited. In many ways, he was the exact opposite of the late Bob Ufer, who regularly went berserk on the air over the exploits of his Michigan Wolverines.

It was the same with the Pump Room program. After the theme music ("Around the World in 80 Days"), Bob would come on and say, "And now we're gonna talk to . . . ." His routine was so predictable.

"An article was written about him, and it mentioned his 'economy of style'," remembered Elinor Coughlin, an old friend in Chicago. "There was nothing unnecessary in his broadcasting."

Said an executive for Chicago's WGN, which employed Elson at the beginning andend of his career, "He had his own special style, and it marked him as one of the great ones."

IN A WAY it was fitting that Elson got to broadcast the White Sox during their glory year. The 1959 team was known as the "Go-Go" Sox — thanks mainly to Aparicio's 56 stolen bases — but it wasn't so "go-go," really.

The team was a collection of old-timers nearing the end. There was Wynn (age 39), Gerry Staley (39), Torgeson (34), Billy Goodman (33), Nelson Fox (32). The average age, I remember reading at the time, was somewhere in the early 30s.

The team was kind of like its broadcaster — not too exciting, kind of staid, really. But it got the job done. And it had a big following.

Another thing that was nearing the end in Chicago was baseball on WCFL. Sometime in the mid '60s, the station dropped the sport — and Elson — and went rock and roll.

I heard nothing from Elson until 1976 when I caught him on the car radio in western Michigan. He was doing a sports update on WGN. He sounded just like the old days, and I remember wondering if he still did the Pump Room show.

"He was 77 (when he died), but nobody believed it," Caughlin said. "He looked so youthful and always seemed to have so much energy."

Salem boys' thinclads open impressivley

Plymouth Salem boys' track coach Gary Balconi was Bublin over.

His Rocks, led by senior tri-captain Scott Bublin, who won two events and finished second in another, topping Redford Thurston Tuesday afternoon, 95-37.

"Scott had a good first day," said the veteran Salem coach. "He had a good time in the hurdles and almost won the next race."

Balconi, of course, was speaking of Bublin's performance in the 110-meter hurdles, where he took first with a time of 15.8.

Scott Smith recorded a time of 11.07 to Bublin's 11.28 to win the 100 dash. Bublin then came back with Smith, Mark Davis and Marc Tindall to win the 400 relay in 46.7.

Bublin finished the day by winning the 200 dash with another excellent time of 23.2.

Thurston's long distance performer, Robin Peters, stood out with wins in the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs with times of 4:56.0 and 10:32.5, respectively.

SALEM, MEANWHILE, racked up a number of firsts: Darrel Bartkowiak, discus, 122 feet; Pat Tortora, shot put, 43-9; Mike Perkowski, pole vault, 13-0; Scott Fuller, high jump, 6-2; Dan Lingg, long jump, 20-8; and Mike McBride, 800 run, 2:11.0.

The Salem quartet of Olaf Danielson, Smith, Geoff Baker and McBride won the 1,600 relay in 3:47.0.

"Our jump crew looks good right now," said Balconi.

Salem second-place finishers included Tortora, shot put, 41-9; Lingg, pole vault, 12-6; Danielson, 110 highs, 16.3, and 300 lows, 44.13; Brian Azelborn, 400 dash, 58.28; Smith, 200 dash, 23.78; and Frank Brosnan, 3,200 run, 10:44.3.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

On October 4, 1963, with 3 conference games left to go, the Plymouth football team defeated Redford Union 26-7 to maintain 1st place in the Suburban Six League. Coach Mike Hoben's team was out in front early in the game due to the superb offensive playing of fullback Dave Agnew. He crushed his way for almost 100 yards as the Rocks piled up 143 yards. 4 interceptions by Plymouth hurt Redford Union. RU's only points flashed on the scoreboard when they capitalized on a poor Rocks' pass from center. The closing touchdown came on a seven yard dash by the Rock's left halfback, Roger Toby.

Bentley comeback trips Canton girls in softball opener

By Jay Keenan
special writer

State power Livonia Bentley did what had to be done in rallying to beat Plymouth Canton 7-5 in a girls' softball opener on a windy, sunny Tuesday afternoon at Bentley.

The Bulldogs, who won 26 straight games a year ago before losing to Warren Cousino in the Class A state semifinals, trailed 5-4 going into the bottom of the sixth against Canton.

Laurie Day got things started in the sixth for Bentley with a double. Two walks loaded the bases for Lori Swanson, who was safe on an error that scored the tying run.

Deneen Clark drew a base on balls to get the go-ahead run across and pitcher Melanie Ynclan followed with a single for the final Bentley tally.

YNCLAN ALLOWED just one hit, a single by Renae Edwards in the sixth with Vicky Skeen on second. Skeen tried to score but was cut down on a perfect throw by left fielder Amy Carl.

Although limiting Canton to just one hit, Ynclan struggled after twisting her ankle in the second inning. She issued eight walks and hit two batters.

"We were kind of ragged for the first game," said Bentley coach Robert Dean. "We were short a few players. Several people went out of town during Easter vacation and aren't back yet. Three of our seniors aren't here, and two of them are pitchers.

"Our juniors came through."

Pearly Cunningham started and went all the way for Canton, absorbing the loss.

Bentley scored first on a single by Kim Archer and a triple by Swanson in the third inning. The Bulldogs followed with three more runs in the fourth, one scoring on a wild pitch and two more coming in on Carl's double.

BUT THE CHIEFS stormed back, scoring five times without a hit in the fifth. The first came home on a bases-loaded walk to Rhonda Stoner. Another came in when catcher Julie Young failed to hold onto the ball.

A walk pushed across the third Canton run, and the Chiefs tied it on Denise Wright's ground out. Cunningham swiped home to give Canton a 5-4 lead.

But it wasn't enough.

"We didn't play well defensively," said Canton coach Max Sommerville. "We made a lot of mental and physical errors.

"We didn't hit very well either. We only had one practice since Easter vacation, and that didn't help us. We were hitting well when we were in practice, and I thought we'd get a lot of runs on hits."

For Bentley, Carl, Swanson and Day each had two hits.

Rocks maintain perfect baseball pace

Plymouth Salem opened its Suburban Eight League baseball season with a bang, routing visiting Dearborn Edsel Ford Tuesday afternoon, 17-5.

Junior catcher Dave Slavin continued his hot hitting with a two-run double and a two-run homer, raising his four-game totals to three homers and 13 RBIs.

Center fielder Jeff Hubert also had a big day. He went three-for-three, including a double and triple, to go with four RBIs.

The Rocks outhit Edsel 14-6.

Salem put the game away early with five runs in the first inning and five more in the second.

Edsel touched Salem starter and winning pitcher Joe Humphries for four runs in the third inning.

Humphries, a senior, pitched the first four innings. He struck out seven, allowed four hits and walked three. Bill Culver pitched the fifth and sixth innings, followed by Brian Kelly in the seventh.

Joe Musial was the losing pitcher.

The victory increases Salem's record to 4-0.

SALEM 6
REDFORD THURSTON 4

Slavin's two-run homer in the first inning carried Salem to a 6-4 non-league win Monday over Redford Thurston.

The Rocks scored four runs in the first and added single runs in the third and fourth innings before holding off a late Thurston rally.

Mickey Madsen walked in first to start things off. He came home on Slavin's homerun. Humphries then walked, and John Blanchard was hit by a pitch. Both runners came home on Dan Carlson's double.

Thurston cut the lead to 6-4 in the sixth and threatened in the seventh.

Salem reliefer Barry McNamara walked the first batter he faced, but walked the next three to load the bases. He got out of the jam with two straight strikeouts.

Ken Vermeulen, the starting pitcher, was the winner. He pitched four shutout innings. He allowed two hits, three walks and struck out three.

John Queen was the starter and loser for Thurston. He lasted five innings.

Slavin and Hubert each had two RBIs.

Tim Soucey, Thurston's lead-off man, had two hits including three-run homer off Greg Chappell in the sixth inning.

Late-inning heroics lift Salem girls, 6-5

Sarah McKenna hit a game-winning, two-out single in the top of the eighth inning to lift Plymouth Salem to a season-opening 6-5 softball win over host Dearborn Edsel Ford.

It was also the Suburban Eight League opener for both teams.

Dawn Henning, who scored the winning run, started the rally with a single. She went to second on Amy Fidorsky's sacrifice. Mary Kay Mundinger then singled, setting up McKenna's heroics.

"We played real well for the first game," said Salem second-year coach Rob Willette. "We made a couple of mental mistakes, but other than that, I was real pleased."

McKENNA LED the Rocks' hitting attack by going three-for-four. Kelly Strautz and Henning each chipped in with two hits.

Salem trailed 4-2 after six innings before rallying in the seventh for three runs. Shortstop Jenny Papa put the Rocks ahead 5-4 with a two-out, two-run single.

Pitcher Diane Murphy hurled all eight innings for Salem. She allowed six hits, walked six and struck out seven. She was charged with two earned runs.

Football vets wanted

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Football Association (PCJFA) will hold its registration for veteran players and cheerleaders for the Steelers, Lions and Warriors units from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Canton High School Phase III gym.

All players and cheerleaders who participated in the 1981 season are encouraged to register so a position can be guaranteed for the 1982 season.

Bundarin wins 2 events

Canton's Lisa Bundarin was Canton's only double winner — shot put (28-feet-6½-inches) and discus (75-2½).

The Canton foursome of Lisa Wood, Pat Brennan, Moe Brophy and Lori Shufeldt won the 800 meter relay in 1:57.6. Wood, Charlotte Thomas, Ida Williams and Brophy were second in the 1,600 relay (4:47.2).

Other Canton individual second-place finishers included Vicky Wood, shot put, 25-7, and Michelle Perrot, 3,200 run, 14:02.6.

Third-place finishers for the Chiefs included Brennan, long jump, 14-4½, 110 hurdles, 18.6, and 200 hurdles, 35.8; Perrot, 1,600 run, 6:17.5, and high jump, 4-7; Shufeldt, discus, 68-2; Williams, 800 run, 2:42.6; Linda Mrowka, shot put, 19-6½.

Brophy earned a pair of fourths in the high jump (4-4) and 400 run (1:09.2).

BENTLEY was led by Ann Stewart, who won the long jump (15-11½), 100-meter dash (13.17), and 200 dash (27.3).

Teammate Shawn Abraham took the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs with times of 6:11.3 and 14:01, respectively.

Bentley also won the 400- and 1,600-meter relay events.

Boxer's camp finds decision a big Payne

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Craig Payne was not deterred.

He was back training vigorously this week after losing a controversial decision April 14 to Tyrell Biggs of Philadelphia, Pa., in the quarterfinals of the U.S. Amateur Boxing Championships in Charlotte, N.C.

"I have this little saying when I'm running or working out," said the 20-year-old Livonia boxer. "You have to take the lumps with the bumps to get over the humps."

It appeared Payne had finally gotten over the hump in his bout with Biggs, the undisputed No. 1 ranked superheavyweight in the eyes of national television.

BIGGS IS a veteran of eight international bouts. The last time out he was the only American to win a match against the Cubans. The fight was seen on ABC television.

Payne, a finalist last month in the National Golden Gloves, took the attack to Biggs, and the Charlotte audience loved it. But after three rounds, Biggs was declared the winner. A chorus of boos followed.

"The fans were on Payne's side," said Jody Meacham, who covered the bouts for the Charlotte News. "Payne was the underdog, and he went the distance. He threw a lot of punches, but judges felt most did not score.

"I'm no expert on boxing, but I thought Biggs got by with a minimum of effort. Payne is a gutsy fighter. It was definitely the most controversial decision of the whole thing."

PAYNE'S COACHES, Paul Soucy and Dick Quiton, were disgusted with the lopsided ruling on all five cards. They have filed a formal protest with the American Boxing Federation. They claim the judges were influenced by Biggs' high standing and did not render a fair appraisal of the fight.

The coaches also hope to obtain a video tape of the match.

Payne has been overlooked as an alternate to the Olympic Training Camp in which Biggs is preparing to compete in the Munich Cup in Germany next month.

Al Evans of Chicago is Biggs' backup or alternate. Payne decisioned Evans in the semifinals of the Gloves Tournament.

"I felt Payne gave Biggs as much trouble as anybody," said Meacham. "I can see why he (Biggs) would want to duck him. He'd have plenty on his hands."

"It hurts down inside," said Payne, after a workout at the jam-packed Livonia Boxing Club earlier this week. "I can't change it. There's nothing I can do about it. Maybe it will help me more by losing this fight.

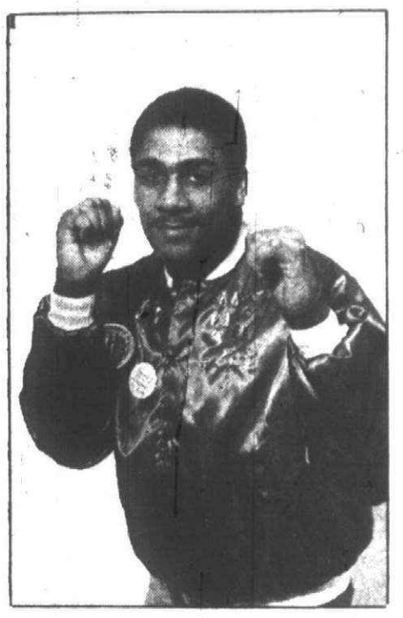

"But it's time for a new champ when we meet again. I've proved to myself and to the people that I can fight with the best. It's just going to take time and patience to knock him off his throne."

"BIGGS IS THE best right now, but you won't convince me he won this fight," said Quiton. "Bob Sirken, a world judge, told me the first round was close, Craig won big in the second round, and in the third round he couldn't tell. They went toe-to-toe."

Payne's next test will come in July at the National Sports Festival in Indianapolis.

"It's back to the basics," said the 6-foot-1, 219-pound slugger. "I have to bring my weight down and work on the jab. If I get both working, I'll be a better fighter.

"There's no slacking off now."

Weigh factors when initiating a program

Dr. Charles R. Young

A subject which is frequently raised by prospective runners concerns the primary benefits of a jogging program.

In short, what changes can the participant expect to gain from the activity?

Although a complete discussion of the actual benefits would be too lengthy for this article, the following is a summarized version of what I consider to be the most common and significant ones.

Perhaps the most important benefit of a judicious jogging program is that of respiratory and cardiovascular improvement.

In essence, the lung capacity, level of oxygen consumption and total oxygen delivery system are made to function more effeciently. The heart increases in size and strength and becomes a more effecient pump.

The overall vascular system functions better allowing improved tissue perfusion by blood and oxygen. Obviously, these body alterations take time and result from long periods of physical training.

I do suggest that an individual not used to physical exercise, who is overweight and/or afflicted with certain systematic diseases, undergo some sort of medical evaluation before jogging.

A SECOND benefit of jogging might be less spectacular but nonetheless noticeable.

The overall muscle tone of the lower extremities is vastly imrpoved, as is the flexibility range of the various muscle groups. Improving flexibility is important in both the prevention of injury and minimizing injury disability time.

It should be emphasized that jogging alone will not significantly change muscular flexibility. Adequate exercising in conjunction with running is necessary to attain this benefit.

Nowadays, we are constantly hearing about, reading about and concerned about weight loss. The overweight individual is forever seeking new and better ways to fight obesity.

Jogging is not a cure-all.

However, in combination with more adequate food intake, a serious jogging program can and will aid in weight loss. One can readily understand the cumulative effects of long-term jogging if he tabulates the total caloric output vs. the approximate daily dietary input.

After considering the response to normal daily metabolism, it is clear how one can lose weight in an effective manner over a period of time.

WE HAVE ALL heard the comment by our jogging friends of how good they feel, how young and active they seem and how they feel ready to take on the world. This feeling or improved outlook on life is a real one and most definitely a tremendous benefit of jogging.

But, what is more important, in my opinion, is the emotional and psychological release afforded the jogger.

During the run, many people find a sort of cleansing experience, a time when personal thought and contemplation takes over and replaces fatigue and boredom.

For those persons capable of such an experience, jogging soon becomes a wonderfully beneficial program.

Nothing in the world is more comforting than being able to set aside the problems and tribulations of daily life, and for a few moments, enjoy oneself in a sort of utopic environment. The feeling is good and benefits are priceless.

We have discussed some of the more important benefits of a jogging program. Regardless of one's expectations or reasons, the activity can be most beneficial and only an additional aid toward health improvement.

For looking better, feeling better and functioning better in our daily lives, a jogging program is certainly and inexpensive price to pay.

Sports demonstrations slated

Demonstrations of various physical education activities will be held from 2-3 p.m. Saturday as part of Schoolcraft College's 20th anniversary.

Exhibitions in weight training, skin and scuba diving, indoor racquet sports, swimnastics, gymnastics, volleyball, fitness and karate are open to the public.

Mike O'Toole will conduct a volleyball demonstration at the Auxiliary gym. The first 20 minutes will show an abbreviated practice session, covering basic training skills. Schoolcraft players and alumni will then take part in an game situations. That will be followed by a question-and-answer session.

Mike Medved will lead a weight training clinic, showing exercises for men and women, in the Exercise and Weight Room. Medved will demonstrate proper lifting techniques (free weights, weight machines and barbells) with an emphasis on muscular endurance, strength, cardiovascular and pulmonary endurance, speed and flexibility.

AN INDIVIDUALIZED fitness demonstration, performed by students, will also be held at the Exercise and Weight Room. Ruth Kocab is the instructor. At the pool, Jim Millen and former student Jay Smith, now part-time welding instructor, will demonstrate a "James Bond-type" underwater sled for skin and scuba divers. The "Bail Out" technique of ditching and donning scuba gear, and basic skills, are also on the agenda.

Also at the pool, a swimnastics demonstration, led by Esther Friedrichs, will cover progressive exercises and rhythemic activities in the water designed to improve flexibility and circulation. Other topics include simple water activities to promote relaxation and enjoyment and exercises beneficial to those with arthritis.

RACQUET SPORTS such as handball, paddleball, racquetball and Ersatzball will be demonstrated at the paddleball courts under the direction of Tom Roncoli. Eratzball is a new game that combines the skills and rules of handball, paddleball and racquetball. The main difference, however, is the use of a volleyball.

Ex-pro umpire promotes new book

By Jim Hughes
staff writer

It only takes one word to get Ron Luciano talking: Baseball.

Given the lead, the former American League baseball umpire will ramble for hours on end.

Luciano, who was en route to the Oakland Mall in Troy to promote his newly released book, "The Umpire Strikes Back," stopped in the Observer & Eccentric's Birmingham office Monday to talk about the sport which made him famous.

Luciano currently is on the eastern tour. He will visit Chicago, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, New York and Atlanta before he goes west to perform the same functions.

The 6-foot-4 ex-umpire, who gained much publicity as baseball's most eccentric non-playing participant, is known for his unusual antics on the baseball diamond. During his career, which spanned from 1968 to 1979, Luciano talked with players, fans, managers, and virtually anyone who would lend an ear.

In lieu of calling base runners out, he shot them out with an index finger held like a hand gun. Instead of twirling his finger in the air to signal a home run, he'd jump up and twirl his massive frame in a spinning motion. If a ball was foul, Luciano would let everybody within hearing distance know the ball was indeed foul.

HE IS AS outspoken about baseball as Ralph Nader is about the automobile industry. But now, after years of conversations with players, countless rhubarbs with Baltimore manager Earl Weaver, and flight after flight from one city to the next, Luciano is traveling to help push the sale of his book.

"Traveling is easy," the 44-year-old New York native said, "because the pilot drives. I just get on the plane, have a few drinks, and I don't worry about a thing. That's the easy part.

"It's hard to sell my own book. If you ask me if it was hard to write it, yes, it's very difficult, because you had to get up at 9 o'clock and say 'OK, now I'm going to write a chapter.' I wrote the thing — and I'm a great journalist, just super — 600 pages, and it had one period. It was the world's longest sentence."

Needing help, Luciano contacted David Fisher, an author of 16 books, who worked in the baseball commissioner's office. Fisher co-wrote the book to give Luciano the direction he needed.

"Then it was easy," Luciano recalled.

"And the tour is easy, mostly because I'm talking about baseball more so than the book. And every time I talk about baseball, my eyes light up, and I get all excited. It's a natural high for me.

"I sold insurance for a while, and I couldn't get excited about selling a million-dollar policy. I taught school for a few years. . .see, I played football for so many years, and when I taught school, if the kids got a 30 (percent), I gave them 100 (percent), because that's the way we did it in football. I couldn't get excited about school work.

"BUT IF Detroit comes into Cleveland, right? And they're trailing by four runs going into the top of the ninth, and somebody hits a grand slam, that's exciting. That's baseball. So that's why I wrote the book. Just to tell the good part about baseball. I'm sick and tired about reading the bad things about it."

The end result of Luciano's labor is a lightheartedly look at the national pastime. He did not intend to stir controversy. He aimed to glorify baseball not create waves as Jim Bouton did in his book, "Ball Four."

"The one thing I didn't want was another 'Ball Four.' I didn't want anything controversial. I didn't want it to hurt anybody," he said. "The book makes Reggie Jackson look good. Do you know how hard it is to make Reggie Jackson look good? The other thing was, that it made ex-president (Richard) Nixon look good. And it's the only book (written) in 15 years that made Nixon look good.

"I didn't want to hurt baseball by writing it. Like they said on 'Saturday Night Live,' 'Baseball been bery, bery good to me.' And it has. It's been super."

The lone regret Luciano said he has about the book concerns letting the catcher call the balls and strikes. In the book, Luciano said there were times when he came to the park after burning the candle at both ends and was in no condition to call the game.

He said he is unsure whether that should have been brought out in the book.

"What I should have put in was that this was never done in a Detroit-Yankee game that meant something in September. It was usually done in Seattle and Toronto, or California during all those years when they were in last place in the west, and they'd be playing Cleveland, who was always in last place in the east. Who cares?

"I'D GET SO drunk the night before, and I'd come in with a headache. Six balls are coming in, and I'd never pick out the right one. The one thing I should have said is they were never important games. But I think that came across in the book. And I said that I did it, not the other umpires.

"There's no hurts in the book. I just wanted to tell the good side of baseball."

Although Luciano tells his view of the good side, some people, including Detroit News sports editor Joe Falls, say he tells a distorted view. In a column dated March 22, Falls accused Luciano of inaccuracies, including his recollection of being involved in a trade which sent Lion quarterback Bobby Layne to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"Joe Falls makes his living by knocking everybody," Luciano said. "I mean, if God came down on earth, he'd say He came too late. He picks something wrong with it. There's no way he wouldn't do it.

"He said I wasn't involved in the Layne deal. I WAS involved in the Layne deal. I tell everybody it was Layne for Luciano. Now you know that isn't right, because there were 17 people involved, plus Layne, plus millions of dollars, plus six draft choices.

"I was one of the six draft choices. It was a choice Baltimore had given away to Pittsburgh two years before, and nobody wanted it. They said, 'Here, you take it.' But as far as I'm concerned, it was Luciano for Layne. That's literary license. I can get away with that, and I tell that in the book."

LUCIANO ALSO explained his reason for shooting players when he called them out on plays at the bases.

"Baseball can be very dull at times," he said, "especially, let's say, Toronto and Seattle. To watch a shortstop pick up a ball and throw someone out by 40 feet is not my idea of excitement, OK? So I'd stand there and go 'Bang, bang, bang,' or else I'd get 'em with a machine gun. One time I pulled a hand grenade out.

"Now that made it exciting for me and for the fans at the same time."

Although Luciano was the umpire's version of former Detroit Tiger pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, Luciano refused to draw a parallel.

"He's flaky. I'm not flaky, I'm nuts," Luciano said. "Fidrych talked to the ball because he wanted it to do good things for him. I talked to the fans because I didn't want 'em to boo me. And I talked to the players and managers because I can't keep my mouth shut for 2½ hours."

In "The Umpire Strikes Back," a chapter doesn't pass without mention of Earl Weaver. Luciano jokingly said there's no animosity between him and Weaver, just hatred.

"No, you can't really say we hate each other, because I respect his managing," Luciano said. "He doesn't respect my umpiring. He never has. There's no hatred, though. There's an understanding that we both dislike each other."

Just like fights in a hockey game, heated verbal exchanges between an umpire and a manager are inevitable. Luciano explained:

"What happens to an umpire is what side of the bed he gets up on in the morning. Some days you feel great, and you do a helluva job. Other days, you come in with a hangover, and I don't care who it is, you don't want 'em to yell too loud.

"I KNOW THAT. Weaver is going to get thrown out. So he comes out and says 'Ahh,' and that's it. I'm going to throw him out because if he hasn't done anything bad, he's going to. So I might as well get rid of him before he does.

"Now you walk out there with Tony LaRusso from Chicago (White Sox). The guy's a lawyer. Do you think this guy's going to make a mistake? No. He comes out and says, 'The trajectory of the ball was rather high. Don't you think the velocity of his arm coming down could possibly precipitate a safe call rather than an out?' I'd say, 'What are you talking about?'

"You're not going to throw him out, you can't. But some umpires get so involved with themselves that they're stuffed shirts. And if you talk to them after the game, and they blew a call at first base, you say, 'What happened?'

" 'Called it the way I saw it,' they say. What are they talking about? Tell somebody, 'I looked at the broad in the third row, and I missed the play.' "

McSurely, Johnson shine

Tuesday was a day of firsts for Plymouth Salem's girls' track team.

The Rocks had their first dual meet and first Suburban Eight League competition of the season. And they came away with their first win, 64-59, over Trenton — the first time in five years Salem has defeated the Trojans.

"It was a real satisfying win," said Rock coach Scott Kurtz. "We've got some good sprinters and that helped us take 1-2 in some events."

Salem's depth proved decisive, as Trenton placed first in eight events to seven for the Rocks.

Cindy McSurely and Dawn Johnson each won a pair of individual events for Salem. McSurely's firsts were in the high jump (4-10) and 110-yard hurdles (17.3). Johnson, a sophomore, captured the 100 (12.0) and 220 (27.7) dashes. Johnson's victory in the 220 clinched the meet for the Rocks.

Other Salem winners were Karen Tanski in the discus (85-7), Linda Lybarger, Kelly Bemiss, Mary Dazer and Ann Glomski in the 880 relay (1:57.4) and Johnson, Bemiss, Glomski and Dazer in the 440 relay (54.7).

With your help, we'll find it.

Most business is good business. And with good reason. The best way for any business to keep you as a customer is to keep you happy.

But, as in every field of endeavor, there are a few rotten apples in the business barrel. We're the Better Business Bureau and it's our job to help you avoid or deal effectively with those bad apples.

This week is "Better Business Bureau Week" and we think it's an appropriate time to rededicate ourselves to our task. And to invite you to continue using us for your own good.

Permit us to tell you a little about ourselves. We've been sifting through the old apple barrel in Detroit for over 60 years now. Currently, over 2,000 businesses in Metropolitan Detroit are members of the Bureau. And it's working; we successfully resolve literally thousands of disputes annually between customers and businesses and between business people themselves.

Basically, what we do is encourage business people to adhere to a code of business ethics that protects both the legitimate business person and the buying public. With your help, we detect fraud schemes of a wide variety. If you think you have a problem with business, write us and let us handle it. Better yet, check with us before you deal with an unknown company, because a well-informed consumer is his or her own best protection.

Our services are absolutely free to you, the consumer. So remember: if you suspect you may be about to deal with a "bad apple" in the business barrel, call or write us—before you bite. Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan Detroit, 150 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226. 962-7566.
