Canton man held again in bike path assault

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Darrell Paul Morey of Canton, still awaiting trial in a Plymouth court on charges of criminal sexual conduct, surrendered to Van Buren Township police Tuesday after he was identified from a police lineup by an assault victim.

Morey, 35, is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond and will face a preliminary examination Monday in 34th District Court, Romulus.

According to Morey's attorney, Seymour Berger, Morey was accused of attacking a woman on June 17 on the same I-275 bike path where other assaults took place.

The woman claims she was assaulted June 17, while Morey was free on bond, according to Leonard Keller, Van Buren police chief.

"The (sequence of events) began May 13, 1985, when the suspect was pursued on foot following an attempted CSC (criminal sexual conduct)," said Keller.

"We called the Canton Police Department, where Morey was processed on four cases there. Then, on June 17, another assault occurred behind Wayne County Community College along I-275. The alleged victim came in and later identified Morey from a physical police lineup. A warrant was issued for his arrest Monday and his attorney turned him in Tuesday," said Keller.

The four Canton attacks occurred last summer.

THIS IS the highest bond set so far for Morey. Previous amounts were $250,000 and $85,000, which the suspect was able to make.

Morey was required to post 10 percent in cash for each of the bond amounts. He was unable to come up with the funds for the latest amount, $500,000.

He has been arraigned in Wayne County Circuit Court and so far has pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The women who claimed they were attacked on the I-275 bike path last summer detailed the attacks, all of which occurred during daylight hours. All four identified Morey as their assailant during the examination.

Morey is married and belongs to the Church of the Nazarene. His employer, Service Master Corp., has, in the past, put up the cash bond for the accused.

Following a yearlong investigation of the cases, Canton Police Department personnel indicated they were discour-

John Santomauro was named Canton police chief by the township Board of Trustees.

New Chief

Santomauro is top cop in Canton

By Diane Gale
staff writer

John Santomauro came out the winner Tuesday night in the long, painstaking race to Canton's police chief seat.

Supervisor James Poole nominated the 36-year-old director of public safety for Pittsfield Township, and the board gave unanimous approval. He nudged out Ed Glomb, police chief for the Village of Franklin and Bingham Farms, who was among the three finalists. The third candidate, who asked that his name not be made public, was unable to attend a board interview last week and was eliminated from the running at that time.

"There were many, many candidates who were qualified," Poole said before announcing the winner. "It's been a long time, and a few dollars have been spent to reach a decision. I can only nominate one."

SANTOMAURO REPLACES Jerry Cox, who resigned in January 1985 following a study citing the department as being in a "crisis" situation. The report — prepared by Rod Bartell of the Pennsylvania consulting firm Bartell and Bartell — said the police department needed a "strong, management-type of person" with a dominating influence, a high energy level and an aggressive, assertive style of management.

Santomauro, who was among 162 applicants, will be paid $38,000 annually. A $500 moving expense also was awarded at Tuesday's meeting.

In 1969, Santomauro began his police career in Farmington after serving 13 months as a Marine in Vietnam. He earned a Navy Commendation Medal, the Vietnam Cross of Gallantry and the Purple Heart Medal.

He climbed through the ranks and was appointed Farmington's deputy public safety director in 1976 when he was 27. By taking that newly created post, he was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant.

Meeting on clerk's suit results in a stalemate

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Both sides appear to be standing firm in the dispute between Clerk Linda Chuhran and Supervisor James Poole.

A closed meeting was held Tuesday between the Canton Board of Trustees and and Chuhran's attorney, Alan Helmkamp, to discuss the clerk's lawsuit against Poole.

The meeting was the result of a letter from Helmkamp requesting that Poole meet to settle the suit out of court. The trustees maintain that Chuhran must withdraw the suit before negotiations begin.

"The board doesn't want to spend anything, but they don't want to negotiate with the gun at their heads," Poole said after the closed session.

Board members and Helmkamp agreed on one matter following the 40-minute discussion — that little if anything was accomplished during the session.

"I went there in a spirit of compromise and not one of confrontation," Helmkamp said. "They had one thing to say: 'We're right, you're wrong and we will spend what it takes to beat you.' "

THE BOARD HAD previously ap-

Nursing home is building a ramp

Canton Care Center hopes it leads to licensing

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A ramp is being constructed at Canton Care Center, according to the facility owner. The lack of a ramp has been cited as one of the major remaining reasons that the facility hasn't received a permanent license.

An informal meeting was expected today for discussion on the ramp and other problems preventing Canton Care Center — a nursing home plagued with health code violations since 1976 — from recently receiving a permanent license from the Department of Public Health. Instead an "intent to deny license" was issued July 10. The notice follows the granting of a six-month temporary license — from Nov. 30, 1984, to May 30, 1985 — issued with conditions that corrections were to be made on specific problems.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT investigators reported the home, licensed for 91 patients, failed to build a ramp for wheelchair-bound patients to travel from one area of the building to another. Shortages in trust funds and inadequately following therapeutic diets were among other problems that weren't corrected, according to health department reports.

The ramp itself has been built in the last few weeks, and other related construction is planned, said facility owner, Brian Suter, Tuesday. When Suter bought the facility in December 1984, he changed the name from Dion Memorial Nursing Home to Canton Care Center and the health department gave him a six-month temporary license.

"I think the meeting will be very positive," Suter said. "A lot of the problems that were there in the past have been taken care of."

Ron Styka, assistant attorney general, said if the ramp had been constructed during the probationary period, the intent to deny license "might have been handled much more informally" with a correction notice.

"The allegations are far less serious than in the past," Styka said. "At the conference, the department and facility will discuss the various allegations in an informal setting so the facility can show the (health) department that perhaps the investigators were wrong, or that changes are being made.

"It's a chance to settle this verbally," Styka said. "I'm really hoping it can be

This is one Ewing who fulfills her contracts

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sue Ewing is the 35th District Court's new chief probation officer.

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Sue Ewing isn't related to J.R., she doesn't run an oil company, nor does she live at the Southfork Ranch.

However Ewing, whose last name is synonymous with TV's popular "Dallas" show, is the recently appointed chief probation officer at the 35th District Court in Plymouth.

The 31-year-old is responsible for operation of the court's probation department, which serves the communities of Plymouth, Northville and Canton.

"We are the eyes and ears of the judge," Ewing said during an interview this week. "Probation is a contract between the judge and a client that he or she will follow certain rules established by the court.

"Our job is to provide reinforcement that they are fulfilling that contract and we are pleased they are doing that. It is also our job to report it to the judge if they are not fulfilling the contract.

"It's a difficult hat to wear because we want them to trust us, yet you still are the person who can send them to jail if they don't fulfill the contract," she said.

It's for that reason Ewing doesn't believe probation is "getting off easy."

"The hammer is always hanging over them while they are on probation. You don't want them to go around in fear all the time, but we want them to remember what happened."

BUT THAT'S not where the probation officer's responsibilities begin or end. As the "eyes and ears" of the judge, probation officers perform a variety of tasks.

"We are misunderstood a lot. Probably the most common misconception is that we work with juveniles," said Ewing, also president of the Michigan Association of Probation Services (MAPS).

There are three types of probation departments or officers: juvenile, district court and circuit court.

Is Heintz posturing to take on Sen. Geake?

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Bert's daughter says she's "doing what I was raised to do" — and a good bit more.

Bert's daughter is Northville Township Supervisor Susan J. Heintz, who is also a board member of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority — and chair of the Rouge River Watershed Council — and an executive committee member of the SEMCOG — and a Republican Party leader.

And a potential primary rival to state Sen. R. Robert Geake of Northville.

BERT IS Bert Vande Vusse, a longtime mayor of Mount Clemens. He's now retired in Birmingham, but still a strong influence on his daughter.

"He took me to planning commission and zoning board of appeals meetings when I was nine," Heintz said. "I was raised as a political person. We had political arguments at the dinner table.

"I became known as 'Bert's daughter.' This is kinda what I was raised to do. For the Dutch, it's an honor to be elected to an office. We see it as a responsibility to the community to serve it," said the Kalamazoo native.

Heintz didn't complete the work for a degree in English at Western Michigan University in the '60s. When she and her husband lived in Indianapolis, she worked for then Mayor (now U.S. Sen.) Richard Lugar.

AFTER MOVING to a Northville Township condominium, Heintz began attending township board meetings, representing 600 residents with street problems.

When a trustee suddenly moved away, the township board looked for a replacement, someone familiar with the budget process. "I had been sitting in the audience a long time," said Heintz. She won the appointment.

In 1980, with dissent between the supervisor and clerk, Heintz announced her candidacy for clerk. The incumbent withdrew, and Heintz got the job unopposed.

Last year Supervisor John MacDonald left his post to run for district judge. Heintz announced for supervisor. Others took out petitions — but never filed them. Heintz was unopposed in both the Republican primary and the general election.

"IN THE '70s I went back to college and got my degree — and this time I decided to do it right. I got my degree in political science," said Heintz, whose sheepskin on the wall is dated 1980.

Virtually every college teaches political science, but Bert's daughter chose the University of Michigan-Dearborn, which emphasizes state and local government.

Best-known faculty member is Bernard Klein, former controller for the city of Detroit. There also are experts in revenue sharing, political use of computers, the legislative process and an intern program.

Heintz served her internship with Sen. Geake.

Politically she became active in the GOP, attending most state conventions and serving as an alternate to the 1984 national convention. She describes herself as generally moderate but a fiscal conservative.

PHYSICALLY SHE commands a lot of attention. First is her height — six feet.

Second, the clothes — not dark, severe business suits, but light-colored though businesslike dresses. "I don't do the 'dress for success' thing. When I shop, I always take my father.

"When you present yourself, especially as a woman — people want to see a standard and feel comfortable. I wear what will look good in a work environment. I seldom wear dark colors."

Susan refers to husband Robert, a General Motors engineer, as "The Phantom" because he won't attend political functions with her. The feeling is mutual because she won't attend GM functions.

Parents of a son and daughter, they keep peace in the family because "I talk about nothing political, and he doesn't talk about GM. Once a year, we go to the others' functions."

HEINTZ'S STAR is rising outside the upper middle-class hills of Northville Township.

- After becoming supervisor, she left the post of director of the Conference of Western Wayne, a staff job for a gathering of 17 mayors and township supervisors.
- The township bloc of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments elected her to the SEMCOG Executive Committee, which makes policy monthly.
- She's the new chair of the Rouge River Watershed Council, covering 33 communities. "I was a big advocate for dissolving it because I saw no benefit. But we hired someone (as staff) who was strong not just in education but in mediation skills." The group is a watchdog over river quality, focusing on the so-called super sewer project.
- "The day after the county executive (William Lucas) became a Republican, the executive's office called and asked me to accept a SEMTA appointment. (Four suburban Wayne County residents are appointed by the executive. After a good deal of hesitation, I accepted."

Why the hesitation? "First, there's a mess. I asked myself, why am I jumping on the Titanic? Second, Northville Township doesn't get any SEMTA service. And the bottom line is, where are they going to get their revenue?"

THEN THERE'S the question of higher office.

Geake, a senator for nine years, is the target of criticism in the 36 square miles of Plymouth and Northville because the state has just located its fourth prison there. Other chunks of prime industrial and residential property are occupied by the Mental Health, State Police and Natural Resources facilities.

The loud whispers are that Geake, though a tireless campaigner who is popular in anti-abortion circles, lacks clout in Lansing, and that Heintz ought to run against him in the 1986 primary.

How about it?

A laugh. A pause. A second laugh and a second pause. A third laugh and pause.

Finally, Heintz replied, "Tim Richard, you are a bad person."

Another laugh and pause. "I'm going to get you for that."

Then seriously she answered, "There's always a lot of talk. I don't know if there's a movement. I don't know how serious it is. The big thing people are talking about here is county executive.

"Everyone has backed off."

Later, during a tour of her township hall, Bert's daughter added, "I'm doing exactly what I want to do."

Susan J. Heintz raised for politics

Triathlon: A race for the hearty

The short-course triathlon, which combines a 9-mile swim, a 24.8-mile bicycle race and a 6.2-mile run, is not an adventure for the once-a-week athlete.

Only the hearty and bold dare race in one of the nation's newest forms of adult recreation. As one amateur competitor shouted in the transition area after each segment of his race Sunday at the Pontiac Lake Recreation Area: "Is there more?"

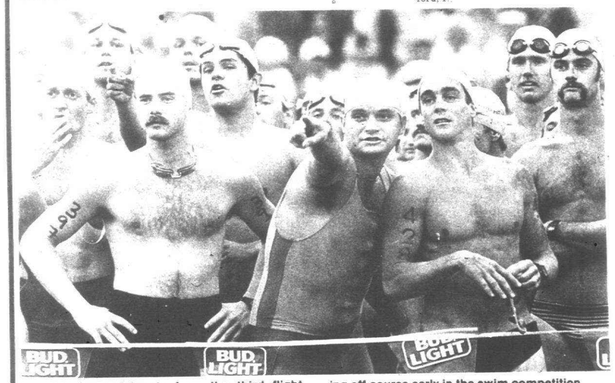
That's the type of athlete who participated in the first Bud Light United States Triathlon Series short-course race (opposed to the ultra-distance triathlon of a 2.4-mile swim, 112-mile bike and 26.2-mile run) ever held in the Detroit metropolitan area.

More than 900 athletes ventured in quest of personal athletic triumph.

Following is the breakdown:

OAKLAND COUNTY: Birmingham-Bloomfield, 29 participants; Troy, 14; Farmington, 12; Rochester, 11; Southfield and West Bloomfield, 8.

WAYNE COUNTY: Livonia, 7; Plymouth, 5; Canton, 4; Westland, 2; Garden City and Redford, 1.



SWIMMING: Participants from the third flight point out that second-flight triathletes are veering off course early in the swim competition.

resolved in the informal conference.

SUTER SAID when he bought the facility the trust funds were already delinquent. The shortages were reported at $8,253 by Styka earlier this month.

"They (the trust funds) have a problem with the former owner owing money," Suter said.

A payment plan to correct the trust fund shortages is expected to be discussed at today's meeting.

"The trust fund (shortages) was another problem that was there when Suter bought this (the facility)," Styka said. "The obligation was on the seller, and now he (Suter) is the owner, and he does have an obligation. But, he (Suter) has documentation that shows the seller had to do it (pay the shortages)."

Suter said Canton Care was cited as "inadequately following diets," because a diabetic patient had food exchanged from one meal to another without it being recorded on the menu. The health department investigator was not present to see that a piece of bread that was added at lunch was eliminated from the dinner meal, Suter said.

BY SEPTEMBER 1984, before Suter became owner, the facility was cited for numerous health code violations. Complaints included tying a patients' hands to bed rails while the patient tugged to shoo away flies from an open bed sore and allowing patients to remain in their own urine and feces for extended periods of time, according to health department reports.

An Ingham County Circuit judge ordered the home closed at that time, because the conditions had deteriorated. Suter was administrator of the home for a year-and-a-half before the purchase. He bought the home and the temporary license was issued.

To correct problems in the home, Suter said he has supported a Patient Care Advisory Committee — composed of representatives from Citizens for Better Care (CBC), Union Local 79 representatives, facility employees and himself — that meets monthly to discuss "any problems" at Canton Care. CBC is a state and federally funded advocacy group for nursing homes.

"It's good to have an outside group to get different points of view, and, frankly, we have used them (suggestions) to improve procedures and ways of doing things," Suter said. "I don't want to hurt these old folks. I'm going to protect them the best way I can."

Country Festival Board needs more organizers

The Canton Country Festival Board has slated its annual election of members for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 31, in the Canton Public Library's meeting room. New board members are needed to plan, organize and direct the annual communitywide Canton Country Festival.

On July 31 nominations will be accepted and members will be elected. Widespread participation is needed to make the event a success. If you are willing to serve or know someone who is, you may call Larry Bowerman, 453-6610, for details or attend the election July 31.

aged with what they considered to be low bonds.

CANTON POLICE Lt. Alex Wilson said he believed Morey "is dangerous to the community and shouldn't be released on bond."

Wilson said he feared the women who had previously identified Morey could be in danger, if the suspect found out where they lived.

Last year, between June and August, seven women said they were sexually assaulted while jogging or riding on the bike path.

The first suspect in the incidents, Jeffrey Clair Gruber of Flat Rock, pleaded guilty to one count of assault and battery and was sentenced to 30 days at DeHoCo and 18 months probation by 35th District Judge James Garber.

Bond generally is set at $1,000 for each year of the maximum sentence for an offense. Criminal sexual conduct could bring a sentence of life imprisonment, with a possible release from jail in 20 years.

The incidents have occurred on the I-275 bike path near Honeytree Apartments, the I-275 bike path between Ann Arbor and Ford Roads, on the I-275 bike path behind WCCC.

In the May 13 incident, a 21-year-old woman was riding a bicycle on the I-275 bike path near Ecorse. She said a man pushed her off her bicycle and forced her to stay on the ground.

The assailant left the scene when motorists stopped and chased the man. Van Buren police later found Morey in a nearby field.

Lightning strikes house

A family on the 1400 block of Morrison in Canton Township had a rude awakening July 14.

During an early morning thunderstorm a bolt of lightning struck the chimney of the house. Debris fell into the bathroom of the home and blew apart ceramic tile in the room. An estimated $2,500 in damage was reported by the Canton Fire Department.

The family — parents and two children — who were in the home when the lightning struck were not hurt.

No other major incidents due to the storm were reported in Canton Township. The heavy winds and rains caused an array of damage and electrical outages in neighboring communities.

Parks and Rec offers supervised play time

Canton kids are invited to visit the township's parks this summer where recreational activities are in full swing. The hours of supervision at each park are printed here for residents to clip and save.

Probation officer regards job as fulfilling contracts

Juvenile departments deal with offenders younger than 17 years of age. The district court department deals with offenders 17 and older, convicted of crimes less than felonies (less than one year in prison). Circuit Court departments handle offenders 17 and older, convicted of felonies.

The type of people a district court probation officer typically deals with are those convicted of drunk driving, shoplifting, minor larcenies, indecent exposure, and assault and battery, Ewing said.

"We don't deal just with juveniles or with hard-core people. We deal with everyday citizens, which makes our job even harder — these are people who are not typically criminals.

"But the nice part of district court probation is that our clients should never be back before the judge," she said.

"We want to leave our clients with their integrity, with their feelings of self-worth."

ANOTHER MISCONCEPTION Ewing encounters relates to the purpose of the probation department.

"Many probation departments in the past have kept a low profile. MAPS is trying to get us recognized as an important part of the judicial system."

Because of the low profile, Ewing said, the public has received the impression probation departments are there to serve violators.

"Our major purpose is protection of the community and of secondary importance is helping the people who need to learn how to control themselves," she said.

"Once I feel the community is protected, then I can move on to treating the person who made the mistake."

But probation officers get involved with cases even before a probation period begins.

Before Judge James Garber or Judge John McDonald pass sentence on an offender, they usually refer the case to Ewing's department for a presentence investigation.

At that point, a probation officer interviews the person, checks on the person's employment, family background, substance use history and prior offenses.

"We sometimes also check with the victims on whether they want restitution," Ewing said.

"The presentence investigation also includes a recommendation on sentencing," she said, adding that the judges follow the recommendations "eight out of 10 times."

EWING'S APPOINTMENT to the $25,500-a-year chief probation officer's job follows the resignation of Carol Nalepka.

Court Administrator George Wiland said he met Ewing while working on a selection committee in Livonia. Ewing was one of the finalists for the chief probation officer's job in the Livonia District Court.

"I was very impressed with her. She was a finalist from a field of more than 40 applicants," Wiland said.

Ewing most recently worked with the probation department in the 12th District Court in Jackson and holds a bachelor's degree in human services from Southern Illinois University.

She also worked with a probation department in Coldwater, Mich.

"We pretty much have given her her lead with the department," Wiland said.

In the 35th District Court, the probation department includes full-time paid and volunteer probation officers. The department handles about 1,500 cases a month and needs more volunteers to handle cases, as well as volunteers just interested in clerical work.

Ewing is in the process of restructuring her department and recently eliminated the night reporting sessions.

The decision to drop the night sessions didn't reflect on the job of the night volunteers, Ewing said. Instead, she's trying to maximize resources.

"I came in to evaluate the department and found that we were giving full services to everyone and were not utilizing all the choices we had."

Ewing hopes to utilize phone and mail reporting for some probationers required to make monthly reports, instead of in-person reports.

"I would love to have the night volunteers back if we went back to night reports. It was not a reflection on their abilities," she said.

Another thing Ewing hopes to improve is her department's relationship with other agencies in the community — such as the prosecutor's offices and police departments.

Also, Ewing reminds residents that probation officers always are willing to hear what family members, friends or neighbors might have to say about a case — whether it is positive or negative.

Persons interested in making such comments, or persons interested in becoming volunteer officers, should contact Ewing at 459-4740.

Police chief appointed

IN JANUARY 1982 Santomauro was named police chief of Pittsfield Township, a community south of Ann Arbor. Two years later he was appointed Pittsfield Township public safety director, and was responsible for a 90-person consolidated administration. That was his last position before taking the Canton post.

Santomauro earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice at Madonna College in Livonia. He taught "various police-related courses" at Detroit Criminal Justice Institute, Washtenaw Criminal Justice Center, Oakland Community College and Washtenaw Community College, said Dan Durack, Canton personnel director.

Glomb also served in Vietnam and was a Green Beret. He has worked as Village of Franklin and Bingham Farms police chief since March 1982. From January 1971 through March 1982, Glomb, 38, rose through the ranks at the Wayne County Sheriff's Department from deputy to sergeant and finally lieutenant, Durack said.

Chuhran lawsuit a stand-off

proved an expenditure of at least $5,000 for attorney fees to defend Poole in court if the suit should reach that point. On July 19, Poole said he had not yet retained an attorney.

"We didn't accomplish anything at the meeting," said Trustee Bob Padget. "My position is that the lawsuit is premature, inappropriate and she hasn't provided us the courtesy of explaining what she preceives as the problem. If she has a problem with the supervisor, the first place to go is the board.

"If she wants to resolve this, she should withdraw the lawsuit and show in good faith she is willing to discuss this. And then if she's not content with the results, she can file the lawsuit," Padget said.

The problems needing discussion, as outlined in the letter dated July 9 from Helmkamp to Poole, are the following:

- Determine areas of responsibility and procedures in the township's accounting system, including ledgers and vouchers.
- Place the township receptionist under the day-to-day authority of the clerk.
- Provide backup information for all board meeting agenda items.
- Follow policy of non-interference with all elected officials.

"I'm not about to build an empire for the clerk," Trustee Stephen Larson said. "She's asked for no interference in the clerk's office. What does that mean?

"I'm not willing to spend any amount of money," Larson said. "But, on the other hand, it's a case that has to be defended, because we can not let this go unopposed in a court and allow a judge and attorney to reorganize the township."

Larson said it is important that township officials avoid setting a precedent of filing a lawsuit and saying: "OK, I filed a suit, now let's talk about that. That's not team building, it's heavy-handed."

Helmkamp said he was meeting with Chuhran today to discuss options to the suit, and it's a "matter of what the clerk wants to do."

Riegle listens but withholds own tax views

By Teri Banas
staff writer

If western Wayne County residents expected U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle Jr. to tell whether he'd oppose or support President Reagan's tax reform proposal, they didn't hear it Monday night.

The Democratic second-term senator from Flint was cautious, saying he came to listen to their views.

"It's a complicated plan, and I think it has to be discussed. And that's why I'm here today," he told an audience of 400 in Livonia's Bentley High School.

IT WAS HIS last stop — and biggest turnout — in a four-week, nine-city series of "town halls." Stops in Detroit and Allen Park the same day drew audiences almost as large.

About 70 persons spoke in Livonia, some of them waiting almost four hours for a chance to stand next to a U.S. senator and take the hand microphone.

Riegle, 47, doffed his suitcoat, rolled up his shirtsleeves and spent almost 10 hours on his feet before Monday's three forums.

Besides Monday's three stops in Wayne County, Riegle heard testimony in Southfield, Warren, Ann Arbor, Flint, Jackson and Traverse City.

THE SENTIMENTS heard Monday in suburbia were echoed around the state. Many are fearful Reagan's plans for simplifying the federal income tax and cutting rates will overburden the middle class.

"The feelings are just about the same everywhere in the state," said Michael Smith, a Riegle aide. "People are approaching the tax proposal with great caution. They see some possible inequities.

"While the tax rate is going down, they see some pitfalls like in the (elimination of the) deductibles, local property tax deductions, (and the addition of) taxes on the fringe benefits."

Reagan proposes dropping many deductions in order to lower tax rates. Reagan would replace 14 tax brackets with three — taxed at 15, 25 and 35 percent.

"THEY FEEL this tax proposal may harm the middle income and may be unfair to the middle class," Smith said. "So, they feel Sen. Riegle should do all he can to oppose any efforts to place the burden on the middle class."

A second prevalent opinion was that "people want to see an end to government waste and abuse," Smith said.

Smith added, "He is going to weigh all the input before making up his mind on the issue . . . The senator wants a tax bill that has real tax reform and will be an equitable system."

On Capitol Hill, Riegle, who has degrees in economics and business, serves on the Senate Budget Committee. Action is not expected on President Reagan's tax package until later in the year.

A MIDDLE-AGED woman who works as a self-employed tax preparer, told Riegle: "We're not wealthy people, and on mine (tax statement) the difference is not $400 or $500. It's more like $2,000 more that we'll be paying."

Then she told the senator: "I hope what we're saying, you're listening. And I hope it'll affect your vote."

"I'm listening as hard as I can," Riegle answered.

Not everyone opposed the plan. Don Longeway said, "Based on the information I've gathered so far and having three kids, I'd make out ahead."

THOUGH EVEN-HANDED in his comments on the tax proposal, Riegle did share opinions on other economic matters:

● On the national deficit, he told one questioner, "First of all, I don't think when you talk of cutting $600 toilet seats from the Pentagon budget you're cutting the defense budget. The best way to make savings is through some kind of across-the-board cut, with the exception of Social Security. I've led that fight in the Senate, but we haven't run them off on Medicare yet. Otherwise, if you don't cut across the board, you'll end up with a dog fight."

● The country's economic woes are complicated by not one kind of deficit but five. Besides the federal government deficit, he said, Americans are faced by the $150 billion trade deficit, a consumer deficit that is now up to 72 percent of one's annual income, corporate deficits, and the imbalances caused by foregn nations' debts to American banks.

ON THE PROBLEMS of foreign competition, he relayed two eye-witness stories that illustrated the problems American companies face.

● In a meeting with RCA's Thorton Bradshaw, he was told of workers earning $1 an hour in a Korean computer board factory. The women laborers Bradshaw saw were kneeling on cold, concrete floors to build computer boards. The factory temperature was kept to 42 degrees — and it was "that high" only so the oil would run.

● Allied Chemical's Ed Hennessy bemoaned the use of $1-a-day workers in a Pakistan chemical factory.

"That points out what we're competing against," Riegle said. "The dilemma is, how do we compete against these wage rates? These Pacific countries with their low standards of living are going to pull us down. And I tell you that has a lot of implications for communities like Livonia."

Salem humanities program honored

Plymouth Salem High School has been selected as a finalist in the Centers of Excellence program of the National Council of Teachers of English.

The Task Force on Centers of Excellence has chosen a Salem High humanities program as a finalist from among 700 applicants.

The application, completed by teachers Cynthia Burnstein, Ruth Tonner and Maribeth Carroll, cited the kinds of questions and activities which take place in humanities classes at the school.

The three said the humanities program is based upon the philosophy that for a student to gain the richest appreciation of western culture, the student must undertake a serious study of its master works as well as to actively employ the concept.

They pointed out the course stresses high level discussion based on readings of key literary works and activities of an individualized, exploratory nature such as writing a 1985 version of Dante's "Inferno," carving a piece of alabaster, or learning a Renaissance dance.

The program is team taught by three to five members of the English department working with highly motivated collegebound seniors in the areas of history, arts, philosophies and the religions of western civilization.

John C. Maxwell, executive director of the National Council of Teachers of English, said: "You and the teachers involved are to be congratulated for the excellence of the program described in your application" in his letter to Salem Principal Bill Brown.

The follow-up activities for the program include a person coming to the school to observe the program on a one-day visit.

Legislators say they did well by education

Following up on the recently ended session of the Michigan Legislature:

FOR ALL their partisan wrangling, Michigan legislators think they did a good job on funding education, and the state's chief educator agrees.

John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, majority leader in the Republican-controlled Senate, said the Senate influence is apparent in the $5.9 billion budget, which he said is "still too high and demands major cuts next year."

Nevertheless, higher education has new programs for job opportunity, technological training, research and developement and incentives for excellence, Engler said.

With a 19-18 majority (one Republican seat is vacant because of a death), Engler said the upper chamber has been "a more cohesive body than it has in years."

HOUSE SPEAKER Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti, boasted the budget bill "provides an 11.7 percent increase in direct state funding of the schools, after the record increases reported in fiscal 1983-4 and 1984-5."

Owen credited economic recovery for the continued improvements.

He said four-year colleges will receive an increase of 15.7 percent to $970 million. The 29 community colleges will receive $16 million more for a total of $17.5 million.

Republican Engler said the Senate produced "innovations" in building competition to the medicaid program, containing health care costs and providing research-and-development incentives to attract industry. He also cited reform of the Essential Insurance Act and new taxes for Detroit's expansion of Cobo Hall.

Democrat Owen cited a $53 million outlay to begin construction of five new prisons. He also praised a 29 percent increase in the Natural Resources budget, much of it was for toxic cleanup.

STATE SCHOOL Superintendent Phillip Runkel called the budget — which gives $2.5 billion in state funds to public schools — "the best school budget bills" in his five years in Lansing.

Direct school aid is $1.8 billion, up $192 million. It is distributed to local schools on a formula based on local property values, millage rates and enrollment.

Other elements are: $147 million for special education, $96 million for transportation, $28 million for remedial reading and math, and $26.5 million for vocational ed.

The gifted-and-talented program received a hefty 55 percent increase — to $2.1 million.

Runkel said the bill contains incentives to reduce class sizes in kindergartens, first grades and later in second and third grades. Districts will receive an extra $8.35 per pupil if they keep class sizes at 25 or fewer or reduce class sizes at least 5 percent.

Surplus state land becomes township park

Northville Township will soon begin construction of a local park on surplus state land, according to state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

The site will be on a 39-acre parcel previously part of Detroit House of Correction property. The state has taken over DeHoCo for use as a prison. The 39-acre parcel was transferred to the township for $1, Geake said.

Local voters have approved spending $1 million for development. Plans call for soccer fields, baseball diamonds, community building and restrooms.

Cobo taxes split local delegation

Two tax increases to fund a $180 million expansion of Detroit's Cobo Hall were opposed almost on party lines by Observer & Eccentric area legislators. Most Democrats supported them and most Republicans were opposed. Here are the votes:

● Liquor tax — increased by 4 percent. Current rates are 8 percent by the glass and 9.85 percent by the bottle.

The Senate vote was 20-15. Supporting it were Democrats William Faust of Westland and Patrick McCollough of Dearborn Heights. Opposed were all four Republicans — Doug Cruce of Troy, Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield, Robert Geake of Northville and Rudy Nichols of Waterford — along with Democrat Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills.

The House vote was 56-43. Supporters were Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, Maxine Berman of Southfield, William Keith of Garden City and James Kosteva of Canton, plus Republican Judith Miller of Birmingham.

Opposed were Democrat John Bennett of Redford and Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, Gregory Gruse of Troy, David Honigman of West Bloomfield, and Gordon Sparks of Troy.

Not voting were Republicans W.V. Brotherton of Farmington and Gerald Law of Plymouth Township.

● Hotel tax — increased by varying rates depending on number of rooms. Applies to most hotels and motels in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The Senate vote was 19-14. Democrat McCollough of Dearborn supported it. Opposed were Republicans Cruce of Troy, Fessler of West Bloomfield, Geake of Northville, Nichols of Waterford, and Democrat Faxon of Farmington Hills. Not voting was Faust of Westland.

The House vote was 56-42. Local representatives voted the same way on the liquor tax as they did the hotel tax except Justine Barns, who voted for the liquor tax but against the hotel tax, and Gerald Law, who did not vote on the liquor tax but voted against the hotel tax.

Auto insurance revision passed

Both houses finally approved revision in the state's 1981 Essential Insurance Act after strong criticism from insurance industry. The current law ties suburban rates to Detroit's, resulting in what the industry and suburban customers call a massive subsidy of Detroit customers.

The revision would put a ceiling on annual premium hikes in Detroit. The Detroit City Council is urging Gov. Blanchard to veto it.

The Senate vote was 25-6. Supporters included Democrat Faust of Westland and all four area Republicans. Only Democrat McCollough was opposed. Democrat Faxon of Farmington Hills did not vote.

The House vote was 74-29. All area Republicans supported it except Brotherton of Farmington who did not vote. All Democrats supported it except Berman of Southfield.

Health service changes name

Catherine McAuley Health Center's Minor Emergency Service has a new name.

The service will now be referred to as "McAuley Urgent Care."

"The new name — McAuley Urgent Care — says who we are, not just what we do," said Katy Derezinski, marketing representative for McAuley Urgent Care.

The name change, which went into effect July 15, soon will be reflected on signs at the Arbor Health Building, 990 Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey in Plymouth.

It is the same name used by similar CMHC urgent care offices at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor and at Maple Health Building on the west side of Ann Arbor.

All these services are under the supervision of the emergency department at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Only the name has changed, said Derezinski. The unit will continue to provide treatment for minor injuries and illnesses.

McAuley Health Care is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, including holidays.

Mystery of the failing heart

fitness
Barry Franklin

NOT LONG ago I met Irving, a 69-year-old gentleman who had undergone coronary artery bypass surgery eight eweeks earlier.

Reluctantly he had entered Sinai Hospital's cardiac rehabilitation program on the advice of his cardiologist.

Although Irving had not had a heart attack, over the last few months he had experienced chest discomfort on exertion. A series of medical evaluations of his heart led to the recommendation of bypass surgery for two blood vessels that were almost totally blocked with cholesterol.

WHEN I TOLD him he would need to follow a sensible program of exercise and would have to modify his lifestyle, he became obstinate and argumentative.

"You doctors are full of it," he said. "I've taken good care of myself all my life, and look where it got me — heart bypass surgery."

Indeed, he felt that fate had dealt him an unfair destiny.

"For many years now, I've religiously walked two or three miles a day, three to four times per week. I've avoided fatty goods and eggs, watched my weight, and have always had a normal blood pressure. A little schnapps (whiskey) now and then — that's about it," he said.

I NOTED that at 5 feet 11 inches, he weighed only 156 pounds. Clearly, he could not be considered obese.

His blood pressure that day was almost textbook normal, 126 over 80. His cholesterol level, 186, was also compatible with a low risk for heart disease.

As he left my office, I felt helpless and disappointed in my inability to offer him a reasonable explanation for his dilemma. Why didn't his healthy lifestyle protect him from heart disease?

I sat for a few moments, pondering this paradoxical case when I suddenly came up with one last idea. I jumped from my chair and ran down the hall to see if I could still catch up with Irving. He was waiting at the elevator.

"IRVING, DID you have any family history of heart problems?" I wishfully asked.

"Damn right I did," he responded. "My father had a heart attack at the age of 56, and my brother died of a cardiac arrest at 51."

I walked back to my office feeling like Sherlock Holmes. The mystery had been solved.

Perhaps Irving's lifestyle had been far more beneficial to him than he had ever realized.

A-bomb's effects to be discussed

"Forty Years after Hiroshima" will be the topic of two talks sponsored by the Detroit chapter of the anti-nuclear Physicians for Social Responsibility. They will be delivered at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 7, in Birmingham Temple, 28611 12 Mile, Farmington Hills.

The session is open to the public without charge.

Lexitel, Allnet in merger

Lexitel Corp., a Birmingham-based, long-distance telephone service company, has reached agreement to combine with Allnet Communication Service Inc.

The agreement was jointly announced by the two chief executives — Michael P. Richer of Allnet and George Vasilakos of Lexitel.

The combined company would have more than $500 million of annualized revenues. It would be the third-largest alternative long-distance carrier in the United States.

SHAREHOLDERS of Allnet will receive, pro rata, an aggregate $15 million in cash, $40 million stated value of 10 percent securities and 21.6 million shares of common stock of the combined company.

Shareholders of Lexitel will receive, pro rata, 21.6 million shares of common stock of the combined company.

Vasilakos and Richer, in a joint release, said, "We are very excited about the future prospects of the combined company. We believe that a number of consolidations will take place in the long-distance market during the next two years and are confident that, through this combination, we will continue profitably as a major force in our industry."

For the three months ended March 31, Allnet had net sales of $89.7 million and net income of $87,000.

Lexitel had net sales of $30.6 million and net income of $1.5 million.

VASILAKOS, president of Lexitel, will be president and chief executive officer of the combined company. Prior to joining Lexitel in 1983, Vasilakos was executive vice president of Sprint Communications.

Melvyn J. Goodman, a founder and president of Allnet, will be chairman of the board of the combined company.

The closing of the business combination is contingent upon the execution of a definitive agreement, a placement of approximately $43 million of securities convertible into common stock of the combined company, approval of the boards of directors and shareholders of Allnet and Lexitel, and all necessary regulatory approvals.

The companies anticipate the combination will be completed in November.

Horse betting best in 5 years — state

Pari-mutuel horse racing in Michigan is on the comeback trail, said State Racing Commissioner William S. Ballenger.

From his Plymouth office, Ballenger reported that state revenue and betting handle on horse racing so far in 1985 are the highest in five years. He said the trend would be upward as meets continue into summer and fall.

At DRC in Livonia, average daily betting handle during the first 88 days of this year's thoroughbred meet was $667,892 — almost even with the Hazel Park thoroughbred meet last year during the same period.

"THE LAST several years, Northville Downs has gotten the beginning of the racing season off to record-setting starts only to see deteriorating thoroughbred meets and uneven results at the state's harness tracks pull the annual figures down as the year wears on," he said.

"Great meets at Jackson and Saginaw, improving results compared to previous years at the Detroit Race Course, and most of all the rip-roaring success of the current Hazel Park harness meet are actually improving on the fine performance of Northville Downs earlier in the year. All indications are that this trend should continue late into the year."

At Hazel Park, average daily attendance this year for the first half of the harness meet is up 21.4 percent from the old DRC Wolverine meet, which opened last year during a comparable period.

AVERAGE DAILY betting handle during Hazel Park's first 84 days this year was $843,889 — up 24 percent from a similar period a year ago, when the old Wolverine harness meet opened at DRC.

As a matter of fact, the Hazel Park meet so far has been the third best in Michigan harness racing's 41-year history — only 1975 at Hazel Park and 1979 at DRC's Wolverine meet were better.

Meanwhile, Jackson Harness Raceway's spring meet attendance and handle were up 6.6 percent and 6.7 percent, respectively, from 1984.

Keep lakes stations open — House panel

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, took credit for a congressional subcommittee's move to keep all Great Lakes Coast Guard stations open.

Pursell, whose 2nd Congressional District includes most of Livonia, said he convinced the House Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee, on which he serves, to reallocate $5 million to maintain full operation of the 49 Great Lakes stations.

Ten stations have been scheduled for closing, including five in Michigan: Holland, Marquette, Harbor Beach, St. Clair Shores and St. Clair Flats.

Three, including Frankfort, Mich., have been scheduled to have their operations revised.

Pursell said the move is a shift in priorities and will not result in an overall increase in the Coast Guard budget. The $5 million is part of $1.8 billion for Coast Guard operating expenses.

One-year pact for OCC faculty

By Teri Banes
staff writer

Oakland Community College instructors, counselors and librarians have been awarded a 5.9 percent salary increase for the 1985-86 school year.

The increase will cost OCC a total of $540,000. It is part of a one-year labor agreement that was approved recently by the college board and the 300-member union.

The pact will replace a two-year contract that expires on Aug. 31.

UNION MEMBERS split 97-65 in ratifying the contract. Some opposition came from counselors, said local president Eunice Susskind.

She said some members opposed the removal of a formula that outlined built-in "overload," work which is done beyond the 30-hour week.

The new contract provides that "overload" will be based on heavy semester periods rather than student count, she said.

THE UPCOMING change in the college president's office was given as one reason for approval of a shortened contract, said college vice president Anthony Jarson.

Susskind said that besides both sides being unable "to come to terms on the second year," her members preferred to end bargaining early rather than continue talks with a new or transitional college president.

Currently, the college board is looking at three finalists for the job to replace retired president Robert F. Roelofs, who retired June 30. Jarson is serving as interim president until the selection is made.

County hunts Belleville Lake pollution source

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Wayne County commissioners approved in an emergency session last week a $60,000 plan by the executive's office to find the source of pollution at a popular western Wayne County boating and fishing site.

"This represents a clear and distinct threat to the health of the citizens of Wayne County," said Commissioner Arthur Carter of Detroit, in making the motion. Carter urged that the concern be extended to other water sources in the county that "also present a clear threat."

Commission action came three weeks after members of the county health department charted contamination levels at Belleville Lake in Van Buren Township and ordered it closed to swimming and water skiing. Boating and fishing are still allowed.

Local officials, however, said their own water samples contradicted the county's. They added that the local economy was being harmed by the lake's closing for swimming and water skiing.

THE ACTION, requested by County Executive William Lucas, will pay for the salaries of seven pollution investigators through October. Two positions are slated to carry over through August 1986 to help enact remedies.

Chairman John D. Hertel said it is a "first step" for beginning to review and revamp other programs.

Besides solving the immediate problem of finding the pollution and stopping it, the plan outlines a "long-term" provision for reorganizing the management of Belleville Lake to possibly include the adjoining Ford Lake in Washtenaw County and the feeding Huron River.

Present at Thursday's emergency session were officials from Van Buren Township, who brought with them water sample study results that contradicted the county's testing results.

According to the Wayne County findings, the lake contains counts of bacteria stemming from human or animal waste. Tests taken last week showed five times the state-allowed amount of fecal coliform bacteria per milliliter of water. The substance is an intestinal germ.

IN VAN BUREN Township, where the lake is considered "at the heart of the community," the local economy has suffered by the limitation on recreational activities, the local officials said.

"We're the victims," said township Supervisor R. Lynne Hamilton after the meeting. "Our community can't suffer this trauma every couple of years."

"We've got test results that were taken from the same locations on the same dates as the health department's and there are extreme differences," said township Treasurer Helen Foster.

Results from those tests, taken by Van Buren's parks and recreation director Mike Long, were delivered for the first time to county officials on Friday. Long said he used two independent laboratories, Analytical Lab in Garden City and another in Ann Arbor. Both showed that contamination was not at health-risk levels, he said.

To reconcile those differences, Glenn Brown of the enviromental health division of the county Health Department agreed to meet with Long and test the waters together. They said they would try to do that in the next couple of days.

THE LOCAL officials also criticized how the county handled closing of the lake. Some complained that they didn't learn of the county's anticipated action on Friday except through the media.

"It makes the local communities look like they don't know what's going on," said a sympathetic Commissioner Milton Mack of Wayne, whose district includes Van Buren Township. He urged a closer liaison by the county executive's office.

The discussion led to an amendment, offered by Commissioner Kay Beard of Inkster and supported by Mack, that would require the executive to keep local communities informed of related actions.

Commissioner Mary Dumas of Livonia asked that the amendment include a requirement upon the executive office to inform county commissioners of such developments.

BROWN SAID the county began taking samples from the lake once a week at the start of the summer and increased the samples to three times a week. So far they haven't found the source of the problem.

Brown said his department plans to investigate these sources as well as industrial sites, shopping centers and apartment complexs up river to find the root of the problem.

"We've been monitoring the water quality every summer but have not seen anything to this extent," he said.

As to the discrepancy between the county's and Van Buren's test results, he said differences can occur when samples are taken even a few feet apart or a few hours apart.

BELLEVILLE LAKE'S principal source is the Huron River, which also flows through the adjoining Ford Lake in Washtenaw County before entering Belleville Lake.

Hertel said one problem in finding the source of the problem is that a separate governmental unit has jurisdiction over Ford Lake.

Also flowing into Belleville Lake is Willow Run. In addition, 15-20 storm drains flow into Belleville Lake, Brown said.

The Washtenaw Country treatment plant, opened just a few years ago, also discharges into the lake.

Canton has capital chance at parkland

IF YOU'VE spent any time in or around Canton, you've heard people cry the civic blues.

The lyrics go like this: The township lacks identity. Helter-skelter development isn't fulfilling the needs and wants of residents. Locked in a war of one-upmanship with Plymouth, Canton seems to lose most every battle.

Another popular tune has it that, unlike its northern neighbor, Canton lacks a hub. True, trustees have designated a downtown district. With a little imagination it could prove to be an attractive business center replete with eye-pleasing buildings, boulevards, lamp posts, benches, green belts and flower pots. And Canton does have neighborhood parks and a recreational complex.

But missing is a "people place" that invites leisurely strolls through wooded areas, lunches alfresco, concerts in the park, and other recreational activities — say something on the order of (whisper) Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

What Canton does have is an abundance of undeveloped acreage. But development is like aging. It creeps along in small increments until one day you realize what time has wrought. And, like growing old, development is irreversible. Chop down trees, bulldoze, and the land's natural beauty is forever destroyed.

A master land use plan is on the drawing board at township hall. Though it was scheduled for public hearings and adoption this month, development projects pouring into Canton have kept township staffers so busy that the blueprint is gathering cobwebs.

The ubiquitous subdividing must stop until park space is fully developed, SEMCOG projects Canton's population to boom to 67,708 by 1995 — an infusion of 14,247 people in just 10 years. Canton real estate has not escaped speculators' notice, and struggling farmers who populate the area aren't unaware of their property's value.

SOMETHING that would enrich the quality of life in Canton — fiscally, physically, psychologically and aesthetically — is a large-scale "passive park."

A few hundred acres of natural area — perhaps along the Lower River Rouge that traverses Canton and extending south to Ford Road — could serve as "a citizens' country club" — a smaller version of Camp Dearborn in Milford.

Properly located and developed, such a park could provide an accessible haven enabling urbanites to get away from it all — to picnic, camp, hike, bike, run, toboggan, ice skate, cross-country ski, or simply soak up peace, quiet and fresh air. Years ago, Wayne County, surprisingly enough, purchased the Rouge waterways with recreation in mind.

When a similar proposal was placed before Canton residents some time ago, naysayers nailed it inside the coffin of things undesirable.

But put to a few experts, the idea was resurrected as viable.

Dearborn Finance Director Dr. Keith Archer:

"You (Canton) may be at the right place and the right time to do it. The further out from the metropolitan area you go, the less expensive land is. You need some politically astute leader to look at it."

Other Archer points:

Canton's topography lends itself to park development.

When homes and schools are built, they create a drain on municipal services not offset by the taxes they generate. But a park can be a break-even proposition. Camp Dearborn — purchased piecemeal from individual farmers with tax revenues — in fact has churned money back into capital improvements. Admission and user fees enable the city of Dearborn to finance its own park security and medical staff, and to pay Milford "X amount of dollars each year."

Dave Nicholson, Canton community and economic development director:

"It certainly does make sense that we should have part of the community where recreation is available. In and of itself, that means it should be fairly large area.

Widening a river has some potential. We have well-defined flood plains and flood ways with the potential for development of a lake. I'd guess the water is pretty good quality."

Canton Parks and Rec Superintendent Mike Gouin:

"In the Lower Rouge Parkway (we're proposing) a bike route and jogging trail possibly connected to the I-275 bike path and going up into the center of Canton through the Morton-Taylor . . . subdivisions. Part of the master recreation plan is to acquire property (for a large park.)"

Plymouth architect Eric Carne, who's helped the cities of Livonia and Wayne develop civic center outdoor parks:

"Passive park systems in other places are important."

Looking for a Pied Piper

Bob Wisler

THE NATIONAL Democratic problem, some Democrats say, is that two out of three white males voted for Ronald Reagan. The Republican problem might be that none out of three black voters voted for Ronald Reagan.

In Michigan, of the same black voters, none voted for Richard Headlee, Republican candidate in the last gubernatorial election. For 50 years, blacks have voted Democratic.

Nationally, Republicans are on an almost desperate push to try to convince black leaders that the Republican party is the party for them.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole is the latest of a string of GOP figures to try to work up some enthusiasm for the Grand Old Party before a black group. Speaking to the Urban League in Washington, D.C., he said, "If you don't like what you see in the Republican Party . . . the best way to bring about change is to join the internal debate."

REPUBLICAN FIGURES are keeping a close eye on what is going on in Michigan. They have high hopes that Wayne County Executive William Lucas can be the kind of black candidate who can convince black voters to give the GOP a try.

State Republican leaders are obviously willing to give Lucas a chance to see if he can lead the GOP back into power in the state.

The attraction of Lucas is undeniable. He has a public persona which appears to a casual observer to be almost flawless. He appears articulate, intelligent, cool yet intense, businesslike, optimistic, reasonable.

He has been given a great deal of credit by the media for turning Wayne County government around — from an ungovernable collection of union fiefdoms to a relatively cost-efficient service provider. His problems and drawbacks are the kind that don't faze most voters.

He would be, an attractive candidate even without considering his potentional for inducing blacks to vote Republican.

HIS POTENTIAL to be a black Pied Piper makes Lucas particulary interesting to the national GOP.

And there the logic seems faulty.

Lucas, no doubt, will be able to get black votes. In his '82 Democratic election bid to become county executive, he got an overwhelming majority of the black voters in Wayne County. Black voters would be only too happy to see one of their own, finally, in government seat of such prestige.

In '82, Gov. James Blanchard beat Headlee by 192,000 votes statewide. Blanchard's margin in Wayne County, where blacks are 35 percent of the electorate, was 250,000.

If voting trends were the same in 1986 as in 1982 except for a big shift in the black vote to a Lucas Republican gubernatorial candidacy, Lucas could be elected. That would assume that other variables would remain the same, which they won't.

AND HOW can the Republicans expect that Lucas will appeal to black voters to such an extent that they will be willing to forgo traditional Democratic loyalty to vote for other Republican candidates?

Perhaps they think that it would be enough of a start to have one black Republican in a high office.

It seems peculiar that a national administration which has been particularly anxious to overturn such things as affirmative action programs in hiring feels that it can now appeal to blacks and is making such a public effort to woo Lucas into the GOP hierarchy.

Certainly it would take much more than the presence of one black candidate on a ticket to encourage black voters to even give Republicanism a listen, let alone a vote.

Week-old bread still tasted great

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

AS WE DROVE along the highway the other day, a huge sign came into view, and it was a real shocker. In big, bold letters it said: "Big Sale — Day Old Bread."

One couldn't imagine putting bread on sale when it was only a day old. It just didn't seem possible — and for a good reason.

When The Stroller was a young lad down in the Dutch country, his grandmother was rated one of the best bakers in our little town. And she baked only once a week.

Every Tuesday was baking day in her home. And she baked for the entire week. Not only bread, at which she was a leader, but pies and cakes and muffins and all other things she needed for her family.

MAKING IT more interesting was the fact that she made her own yeast and had a great time showing us young folks how the bread raised, when to put icing on the cakes and letting us help decorate the cookies.

There was something about the yeast she made that stood her baking apart. It was what she called potato yeast, and she sold it to the folks about town. But she never would tell how she made it.

We used to watch her, and when the bread started to rise, she would call us, and it was like going to a show to see the bread dough rising in the pan. This was always a real treat.

What made her baking days more interesting was the fact that she had a long shelf erected in her basement. And by the time evening came each Tuesday, that shelf was filled with all her family's needs for the week.

This meant that at times we were eating bread that was a week old. And we relished it. It was the same with cake and cookies.

LATER ON life changed a bit for the better. Mother was a good pie baker. She baked pies for our little lunch counter and in this way she helped raise her children.

After a time, she found that she had a regular line up of customers who wanted special pies every Sunday. We would go to Sunday school and then return home to help deliver the pies. We had special baskets that held six pies each.

It was the same with bread, just as our grandmother used to bake. We never heard of "sales" just because the bread was a day old.

But that wasn't the only surprise. In those days, pies were cut into four pieces, and each piece sold for a nickel.

In many cases we also had to deliver the bread that was baked on the past Tuesday. Folks didn't eat "fresh" bread.

AS THE STROLLER looks back, he often wonders why fresh bread was not eaten. We went up to our grandmother for bread and brought back loaves that often were a week old.

But times have changed. Now bread that is only a day old is a means for having a sale with big signs on the highway to attract attention.

Well, after many years of experience, The Stroller finds the older bread makes the best toast, and that's a good way to start the day.

Lawsuits flood into Wayne

Jim Ritz

SHOPPING for the best deal is as American as apple pie and motherhood.

Why shouldn't a person go where he or she can get the best price, whether it means crossing a state line or even a national border?

But when it comes to shopping for court judgments, it's time to pause.

That's just what we're doing in the face of a new threat from "the imports" — in this case, a wave of visitors descending on Wayne County to file suits in automobile-related product liability cases. Courts in Wayne have a well-earned reputation as one of the top three counties in the country for big jury awards.

One voice rising in protest is Don Shely, a leading attorney in the product liability area and a partner in the Detroit-based firm of Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow & Trigg. Shely, a Bloomfield Township resident, has been specializing in product liability cases for more than 15 years.

THE PRETEXT for out-of-towners filing suits in Wayne is that the auto companies are headquartered there. Shely says dozens of persons involved in auto accidents around the country are coming to the Detroit area to file suits in either federal or Wayne County courts.

Tourism is vital to the state, but we can do without those kinds of visitors.

Shely cited a case in which three persons were killed in a two-car crash in Essex County, Ontario. The children of the victims in both cars sued the automakers in U.S. District Court in Wayne County, asking a total of $7.5 million in damages, alleging a broken wheel bearing was to blame.

Shely admittedly represents a vested interest, but he makes valid points: The case occurred in a foreign country, but it was filed here on the simple basis that the auto companies are based here.

That carries the ring of speciousness. Wouldn't it make more sense to sue where the incident occurred?

SHELY SAYS a "legal war" is being waged on the issue of allowing foreign plaintiffs a to file suits in Wayne County.

Currently, the law is "discretionary," meaning that it permits a trial judge to weigh all factors and then decide whether the case stays in Wayne County. Recently, more and more judges have elected to keep the cases here.

First, Shely insists that venue shouldn't be discretionary, that cases should be tried where they occur.

Amen. Why should Wayne County residents — or those anywhere in the state — pay taxes to cover trial costs of "imported" cases? It would be like asking U.S. auto companies to pay freight costs for Japanese imports.

SECOND, IT'S difficult to prepare in Wayne for a case that occurred (say) in Tuscon, Ariz., since Wayne has no subpoena power over Arizona residents. Shely calls it "trial by proxy." Although again conceding he has vested interests, he's still right.

Third, if Michigan courts are presiding over suits from other states or outside the United States, it will contribute to a backlog of local cases and a delay in justice for local residents.

And fourth, if it's true that trial verdicts are higher in Wayne, why should a Wayne County party be subjected to a higher judgment at home than he would face away from home, where the alleged offense occurred?

Shely said he's encountered one foreign suit in recent weeks and says that if they're allowed, "We may be in for an avalanche of such suits."

Although it would be easy to color the issue with emotional arguments about foreigners, we'll resist the temptation to engage in that.

It's a simple issue: Right's right. Try cases where they occur.

House vote keeps 'sacred cow' EDA alive

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes July 11-17.

HOUSE

EDA — By vote of 98 for and 315 against, the House rejected an amendment to kill the Economic Development Administration by eliminating its proposed fiscal 1986 operating budget of about $206 million.

The vote occurred during debate on an appropriations bill (HR 2965) for the departments of State, Justice and Commerce that was passed and sent to the Senate.

The EDA is a Great Society-vintage agency that targets loans and loan guarantees to economically depressed areas. It is marked for extinction by the Reagan Administration but supported by the many lawmakers whose constituencies receive EDA money.

Sponsor Robert Walker, R-Pa., said "what I am proposing to do here is kick a sacred cow."

Opponent Jame Oberstar, D-Minn., said the EDA benefits areas of chronic unemployment that have been left out of the general economic recovery.

Members voting no wanted to keep the EDA in operation. Voting no were Democrats Dennis Hertel, Harper Woods, and Sander Levin, Southfield.

Voting yes were Republicans Carl Pursell, Plymouth, and William Broomfield, Birmingham.

Not voting: William Ford, D-Taylor.

SOVIET UNION — The House adopted, 302 for and 116 against, an amendment that cuts the $480 million U.S. contribution to the United Nations by $20 million — the equivalent of the amount of payroll that Soviet U.N. employees are said to have to kick back to Moscow.

The amendment was attached to HR 2965 (above.)

Sponsor Eldon Rudd, R-Ariz., noted that a high percentage of the Soviet staff at the UN deals in spying and said: "The American taxpayer should not be asked to finance Soviet espionage based (in) the United Nations."

Opponent Neal Smith, D-Iowa, said that if America does not want to live up to its financial commitments to the U.N., its correct recourse is to quit the organization.

Members voting yes wanted to cut the U.S. contribution to the U.N. by $20 million. Voting yes: Hertel, Broomfield.

Voting no: William Ford, Levin.

Not voting: Pursell.

CUTS — By a vote of 149 for and 266 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut $472 million from the fiscal 1986 appropriations bill for the departments of State, Justice and Commerce (above).

This was to have been an across-the-board cut of 4 percent in discretionary spending. It would have frozen 1986 outlays at the level set last year in the basic 1985 appropriations bill for the three departments.

Sponsor Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said that with House-Senate budget negotiations in disarray, the only way to attack the deficit was to hold down 1986 appropriations bills.

Opponent William Hughes, D-N.J., said a 4-percent cut would harm law enforcement agencies such as the FBI and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Members voting no were opposed to freezing 1986 spending for the State, Justice and Commerce departments at the level of last year's basic appropriations bill. Voting no: Pursell, William Ford, Levin and Broomfield.

Voting yes: Hertel.

SENATE

DISASTER LOANS — By a vote of 45 for and 52 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to keep farmers eligible for Small Business Administration disaster loans.

The vote permits a change in the law that designates the Department of Agriculture as the only agency providing disaster loans to farmers. This would end an overlap of USDA and SBA farm loan programs and cut SBA outlays by $817 million over three years, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

The vote occurred during debate on a bill (S 408) to extend the life of the SBA. The bill was passed and sent to the House.

Supporter Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said "the American farmer is on the endangered species list" and deserves loan support from the SBA.

Opponent Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said "duplicative farm disaster programs have caused many problems in the past . . . ."

Senators voting yes wanted to retain the SBA's authority to make disaster loans to farmers. Voting yes were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

rollcall report

SOUTH AFRICA — By a vote of 80 for and 12 against, the Senate passed a bill (S 995) to use economic sanctions to penalize the white-minority South African government for its policies of racial separation.

In part, the bill would end South Africa's status as a preferred American trading partner, ban new American bank loans to South Africe, prohibit the sale of South African Krugerrands (gold coins) in the United States and stop U.S. computer sales to the South African government.

The bill was sent to conference with the House.

Supporter Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said "we must show the black South Africans that we stand with them in their struggle to be free, not with their oppressors."

Opponent Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said he favors the administration's non-confrontational "constructive engagement" policy toward South Africa, saying it "will bring an end to apartheid without jeopardizing the security of South Africa or the United States."

Senators voting yes favored American economic sanctions against the South African government. Voting yes: Levin and Riegle.

SANCTIONS — The Senate rejected, 37 for and 57 against, an amendment to dilute the South African sanctions bill (above) by broadening it to impose similar economic penalties against the Soviet Union, Iran, Libya, Mozmbique, Cuba and other countries run by brutal authorization regimes.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

The EDA is a Great Society-vintage agency that targets loans and loan guarantees to economically depressed areas.

GH magazine: 3 top nursing homes in area

Three of the top 85 nursing homes in the country are in Livonia and Plymouth, according to the August issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

The magazine picked the top 85 based on a survey of 300 social workers, nurses and nursing home administrators in ten metropolitan areas.

Named among the best were the Dorvin Convalescent and Nursing Center and the University Convalescent and Nursing Home, both in Livonia; and the Hendry Convalescent Center in Plymouth.

Five Detroit and two other suburban nursing homes were listed in the top 85. The homes:

Detroit — Luther Haven (operated by Lutheran Social Services of Michigan), Bertha M. Fisher Home, Jewish Home for Aged, Borman Hall, Arnold Home and the Evangelical Home.

Grosse Pointe — Georgian East.

Dearborn Heights — Dearborn Heights Convalescent Center.

Questions asked in the survey included:

- Which homes have well-earned reputations for providing the very best all-around care?
- Which homes would you feel most comfortable suggesting to patients, or would you be most likely to use for your own parents?

He likes oysters.

She likes pearls.

U.S. space camp parallels real thing

Missions accomplished. Charlie Packard, 13, and Fred Seidelman, 14, have returned to Plymouth from their space odyssey.

The Central Middle School students spent a week at the Advanced United States Space Camp and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Ala. They were in a group of 40 students from Australia, Canada and the United States whose precise training and mission simulation paralleled that experienced by NASA's astronauts and space science teams aboard the space shuttle.

They flew to Huntsville on Sunday and were met by a bus that took them to the camp for registration and orientation.

"We didn't do much on Sunday," said Charlie. "The program really begins on Monday." Both boys had attended the camp last summer and were familiar with the setup under a huge bubble on the Alabama Space and Rocket Center. They were in the Level II training program.

ON MONDAY, Shuttle Operations Day, they were tested for positions.

'It's a lot of fun and you don't have to want to be an astronaut to enjoy it.'

— Fred Seidelman

Each student would have flight and ground duties.

Charlie made pilot for Friday and principal investigator for Thursday. Fred was flight director Thursday and payload specialist on Friday.

They became familiar with the shuttle cockpit and ground control simulators. The full-scale Spacelab module is derived from actual Payload Crew training model they toured at the nearby Marshall Space Flight Center, NASA's lead facility where payload crews train.

The Mission control center in Houston is reproduced to track simulated flights. And the shuttle cockpit is authentic, even to its six-directional capacity to maneuver while docking with a space station and landing on earth.

THE NEXT DAY, they were divided into Discovery and Challenger teams and began training for their mission assignments. Most trained simultaneously for crew and ground positions.

They studied various space suits as life-support systems and tried them on.

Wednesday was Mission Experiments Day with training for mission experiments — satellite deployment, pallets and operation of the large remote arm. They studied procedures required to dock at the space station.

As Charlie and Fred describe their experiences, mention of EVAs, MMUs, and 5DFs is puzzling to the uninitiated. They explain EVA (extra vehicular activity) and MMU (man maneuvering unit) were simulated by a large hydraulic arm. Seated on cushions of air, they achieved 5DF (five degrees of freedom).

"IT'S A LOT of fun and you don't have to want to be an astronaut to enjoy it," Fred said.

Thursday and Friday were mission days with a series of Spacelab flights. The dramatic countdowns and launches were monitored by mission control teams on a multi-screen system.

Payload specialists conducted actual experiments inside the spacelab module and on pallets under air-lock conditions to determine, for example, how certain plant growth is affected by centrifugal environment. Parallel control experiments on the ground enabled campers to draw conclusions on the results.

Each team experienced simulated weightless training, monitoring flights from the ground, and debriefings.

Wings and certificates were awarded Friday afternoon during graduation ceremonies.

After a week of space education, Charlie and Fred were home with their feet on the ground — Charlie on the golf course and Fred on the tennis courts.

THE SPACE camp is operated from March 10 to Labor day by the Space and Rocket Center, a non-profit government agency which operates the NASA visitor center and space museum.

The week-long program costs $400 which includes meals and dormitories. The boys said they ate in a cafeteria and although they weren't enthusiastic about the camp food, they said it wasn't bad. They had pizza one night.

NASA has a national program of free services to teachers, students and the general public. Michigan residents may write to Dr. R. Lynn Bondurant, Educational Programs Officer, NASA-Lewis Research Center, 21000 Brookpark Road, Cleveland, Ohio, 44135, for educational packets.

Residents evolve perfect block party formula

Canton chatter

Sandy Preblich 981-6354

Hello out there in Canton land! You are alive and active after all.

You have no idea how much I appreciate your phone calls keeping me advised, atuned, abreast and just plain up-to-date on what you're doing. Sunday evenings can be very scary when I have received no calls and have no idea what to write about. Then, if I'm real lucky, some wonderful, thoughtful, considerate, lovely person will call, tell about a party and in doing so, save my life and prevent an ulcer.

So, if you're ever sitting around thinking about what a great time you had today, yesterday, a week ago or last month, call me. I'd love to hear from you. Correction — I NEED to hear from you.

ON TO GLOUCHESTER.

I know, it's not a street name that many residents would have picked, but they have certainly made the best of it. This past weekend they celebrated their eighth annual block party. It was the old-fashioned kind we all dreamed of when we moved to the suburbs — the down-home, drop-everything, let's-pool-our-resources, knock-off-for-the-day and get-together-with-our-neighbors party.

And party they do. This really sounds like fun. It's well organized, not too much work, and each year different people take on the task of delegating the jobs.

This year the lucky ones were Rosanne Adamusik and Lynn DeLagarza.

First, every family pitches in approximately $4 for prizes for the kids. Nancy Anderson did the shopping chore. Then Barb Timmerman and Lynn DeLagarza wrapped the gifts and hid them. Each child will receive five gifts and they hide one of each type for each child at each house. For example, at one home they will hide a notebook for each child, at the next a squirt gun for each child, and so on, cleverly keeping the boys on one side of the street and the girls on the other. This allows for a more peaceful afternoon. It allows them to customize the prizes — the ever-popular plastic bracelets will not appear in multiples on girls' arms this summer.

ONCE THE CHILDREN have completed their treasure hunt, it's on to some serious volleyball. Apparently this is an on-going championship game, played at each block party and continuing throughout the day. This is, primarily, an adult activity.

But who was out there in the water balloon fights? And who comes out on top in the squirt-gun fights? These are some of the unanswered questions of our time.

I should tell you who these fun-loving "real people" are.

In the best alphabetical order I could handle, parents first, children immediately after, they are: Rosanne and Tom Adamusik, Jenny and Kim; Nancy and Mike Anderson, Lynn, Karen, Laura and friend Jenny Varana; Pat and Gary Branock, Sam, niece Kelly and nephew Herbie; Phyliss Cebula, Cathy and Jenny, (husband, Leo, missed out due to business).

Also Sandy and Frank Chesla; Joan Craft, Grant, Shannon, and Shannon's son, Nickolas; Dan and Lynn DeLagarza, Danny, Mikie and Ann Marie; Pat and Steve DeMay, Paul, Mike and friend John; Bob and Bunny Gumber, Julie, Paul and Robbie; Caroline and Will McWarter, Sonya and Katie; Walt and Diane Samulski, Scott and Brian; Barb and Denny Timmerman, Greg, Jeff, Gina, and Barb's mom and dad, Marge and Ned Resignalo and Chris and Toni Vielle, Michelle and Cheryl.

There you have it.

Now these are truly old hands at this game for they opted to forego the fun hours spent heating up and maintaining a good strong fire to cook that magnificent barbecue chicken, or those fresh off the grill hamburgers and hot dogs. Yes sir, they even gave up that mouth-watering "do you want it rare, medium, or crunchy to the bite" steak?

These veterans each ordered a pizza from Maria's, brought them home and cooked one in their own oven. At the same time, add to that one salad dish to pass per family, and one dessert dish per family, and you've got a spread fit for a king. And with half the trouble and all the fun!

But does the fun stop there? NO WAY! These are Cantonites, those fast-paced city folks trying on weekends to be country. So let's go to the entertainment portion of our day. Gina Timmerman, 9, Jenny Adamusik, 9, and sister Kim, 7, presented their rendition of the Madonna song "Material Girl" in full costume, no less. This is a routine they have been practicing for three weeks. It seems they perform every year — not the same routine, naturally.

Their act was followed immediately by the Electric Breakdancers, Sam Branock, 9, cousin Herbie, 8, and Paul Gurner, 10, while Danny Delagarza, 7, and sister Ann Marie, 2, did their own thing in the world of breakdancing. Ann Marie, I am told, kept the whole group in stitches with what can best be described as cardboard belly-rolls. A unique idea, I'll grant you, but this was entertainment time and she did that beautifully.

I FORGOT to mention another major part of the plan. Each family puchased a large bag of candy to be distributed to the children.

Pat DeMay took lunch bags and divided the candy evenly. These were given to the children after dinner. Always thinking this group.

All good things must come to an end and this was no exception. But did it have to hurt so much? The day began around noon. At 1:30 a.m., you could still hear the moans and groans as they reviewed old movies of previous years' block parties and lamented over what seemed to be someone else's waistline.

"Who is that?" . . . hmmm "That's me!"

Could that little baby really be the 'thing" that eats at our table? My how they have grown, and grown, and grown! Ah, the beauty of those films . . . the fond memories, the frightening thoughts and the reality that with years of fertilizer the lawn still looks the same. So does the principle on the mortgage.

As the sun set on this happy group of people, we say so-long for another week. May you and yours have a moment to meet and enjoy your neighbors. After all, it makes the likelihood of a lawsuit much less.

See you next week with a fantastic vacation idea!

Pervasive rhythm exudes grace

graphology

Lorene Green

Dear Mrs. Green:

I have been following your column throughout the years with much interest but have always been reluctant to write until now.

I think I know myself quite well but I am eager to see what my handwriting indicates to you.

— M.T.
Walled Lake

Dear M.T.:

There is a pervasive rhythm throughout your handwriting which suggests your are a graceful woman and have an aptitude for music. This same rhythm also lends ease and speeds accomplishment in the things you do.

You have exposed yourself to some of the finer things in life and seek to improve yourself and your thinking. While your interests may be somewhat limited, you can get quite enthused about the things you really enjoy. And can even carry others along on your contagion. You can also be quite persuasive as you relate with others. On the emotional level, though, a conversation might slide into a little argument, occasionally.

Life must always provide challenges for you. And you can become aggressive with those who stand in your way.

In your personal goals and the things you can control you are an optimistic person. But there are times you need to retreat to your ivory tower to do do some daydreaming.

You are a woman with a sympathetic nature and can feel both for and with another. While you enjoy people and sharing your time with them, you also need to do things alone and not involve yorself in other people's concerns.

On the surface you present yourself warmer and friendlier than you may inwardly feel. Beneath is a person who has been hurt and some emotional scars do not allow you to be vulnerable to others any more.

A sensitive nature often causes you to be hurt by criticism. You sometimes expect it when none is even intended.

THE PICTURE of a private person begins to emerge as I continue examining your handwriting. You do not share your intimate feelings with many. The things you do not wish others to know you will evade, remain silent or cover up. Other times you can rationalize your behavior until you feel comfortable with the result. These are defense mechanisms which have probably served you well along life's pathway. Still there exists a tendency to stew about things. A little problem can keep you from relaxing or sleeping as you continue rehashing it.

Security needs are strong. Money and what it represents is important. Material possessions may serve as visible proof that you have arrived, so to speak.

Neat and orderly would describe both your household and your appearance. You like a place for things and things in their proper places. You are an organized person and can plan and implement your plans, as you strive for perfection in the things you do.

If you have a question about your handwriting write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, in care of this newspaper. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age and handedness are helpful. Feedback is always welcome. Green regrets that she can only answer letters through the column.

Tribes of Israel assemble

It's summer Bible school time at First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth and the 12 tribes of Israel have set up their tents on the church grounds. ## How to submit news items to newspaper

News of clubs, service organizations, engagements, weddings and wedding anniversaries are printed without cost in the Suburban Life Section of the Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer newspapers.

News items may be dropped off or mailed to the office at 489 S. Main St., Plymouth 48170. Special forms are available for club news, engagements, weddings and 50th wedding anniversary announcements.

Black and white pictures are preferred as they reproduce more clearly than color photographs. A self-addressed, stamped envelope assures return of the pictures, or, they can be picked up at the office a week after they have been published. Mail should be addressed to the attention of Elinor Graham, Suburban Life editor.

Activities of more major scope than regular club meetings may warrant more extensive coverage and a photograph. Call the newspaper, 459-2700, well in advance of the event to permit scheduling a photograph.

Breaking news stories (and we appreciate telephone calls on these these) like fires, accidents, etc., receive on-the-spot coverage.

Other events, planned for in advance, should be announced a week or so before the actual date.

new voices

Mike and Jan Lewis of Pittsford, Canton Township announce the birth of their first child, a son, Jason Michael Lewis, July 3 in St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

Grandparents are Bill and Dorothy Donnelly of Westland and Dallas and Pat Lewis of Alpena, formerly of Garden City.

Jim and Patsy Stevens of Sunset, Plymouth, announce the birth of their son, James E. Brennan Stevens, July 11 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. They have a daughter, Kelly, 2.

Grandparents are Bill and Audrey Brennan of Barchester, Canton Township, and Cecile Stevens of Dearborn. Great-grandparents are Oscar and Mary Cook of Virginia and Martha Brennan of Florida.

Reduce risk when moving

Your household goods face certain risks when moving. That's why it's a good idea to study the protection plans offered by moving companies to establish the amount of liability the mover is to assume while your goods are in his possession.

Some programs offer full reimbursement for lost or damaged items. Others consider depreciated values in any settlement.

If your goods are new or in excellent condition, you'll probably want the added security of "full value" coverage. If you're willing to assume part of the risk, some companies offer full-value coverage with deductibles.

If most of your goods have seen years of wear, you may want to purchase less expensive protection to avoid a coverage expense that could exceed the cost of a claim. The majority of claims are less than $200.

Madonna 'roundup' says thanks

More than 150 special friends of Madonna College — those whose gifts annually are of $1,000 or more — held a "round-up" recently to mark the close of another successful year.

Called the President's Cabinet meeting, it is an annual get-together which provides school administrators an opportunity to thank major benefactors.

The event was held this year at the Plymouth Township Saddle Ridge ranch of Madonna trustee Angelo DiPonio and his wife Marge.

Members of the President's Cabinet who attended were Bob and Betty Awrey, Lina and John DeiSignore, George and Julia DeDecker and Tom Celani, all of Livonia, George and Maiga Friess of Farmington Hills and Michael and Sue Gaskin of Grosse Pointe.

HONORED FOR five years of continuous membership in the President's Cabinet were Charles and Audrey Marino, owners of Exotic Rubber and Plastics, Farmington Hills; and Aline DeSeranno, chairman of the Cold Heading Co. of Detroit. They received plaques from Madonna president Sister Mary Francilene.

The "round-up" featured wagon rides, western music and an outdoor barbecue.

Sister Francilene took the occasion to announce that more than $350,000 in gifts had been raised this year from private sources to assist with scholarships for students, purchase of state-of-the-art laboratory equipment, supplement faculty salaries and assist in sign language interpreting services for deaf and hearing impaired students.

'Integrity keepers' is Witnesses' theme

The population of Pontiac will experience a sudden temporary growth in population when 40,000 Jehovah's Witnesses meet in convention Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 1 to 4.

The religious organization is believed to be the first group to officially use the Silverdome following the installation of the new dome roof.

Pontiac is one of 59 cities in the U.S. selected to host conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses during this summer. Theme of the conventions is "Integrity Keepers," and they are expected to draw more than a million delegates in all.

Robert Fennell, convention manager for Pontiac, commented on the convention theme. "There has been a gradual diluting of strict Bible laws and principles for many years so that now many people do not know what to believe," he said.

"For example, the Bible says God hates divorcing, but divorce rates have never been higher. It says to flee from fornication but the world is fleeing toward fornication. God's law stated that those causing an abortion must forfeit their life for the life of the aborted child. Crimes such as robbery, murder and rape are all in violation of God's commandments," Fennell stated.

"So those claiming to be Christians must rightly ask themselves if they are keeping integrity to God's stated will and commandments," he concluded.

Take time to smell the flowers

moral perspectives
Rev. Lloyd Buss

Bigger is supposed to be better. More is supposed to be an improvement. That's the theory of organizational development, or at least, its recent practice.

I want to challenge that theory and practice. More times than not, my experiences with expanded institutions have been frustrating and disconcerting. Banks turn tellers into malfunctioning machines, insurance agencies turn people into numbers, stores turn customers into markets, city officials turn neighbors into residents and churches turn men, women and children into sheep (the more alike they are, the better the potential fellowship).

People on the move like that kind of anonymous relationship. It reduces the amount of effort required to conduct the affairs of life. On any given day, if all the devices of public order are functioning well, it is possible to transact one's daily affairs without any meaningful human interaction.

An electronic banking device is neither courteous nor concerned about your presence. A large retail chain can hardly program the human dimension of hearth and home into its computerized operations, and if a pastor/priest/rabbi has never visited your home, he/she has missed knowing the hub of your life in this place.

ALL THIS obviously eliminates attention and care for the other's well-being, and it decreases the anguish and pain one experiences in relocation. Intentionally and carefully choosing and developing friends of similar tastes and styles is certainly less risky than sharing in the full range of human community. In the next community, only their names will be different.

Efficiency and productivity have been the rationale for growth. They, of course, are related to profit and loss, gain and institutional strength. Economic models have fashioned our public life, and we are the poorer for it (no pun intended).

The addiction of religious institutions to the "bigger is better" syndrome reduces the possibilities for a new course in public life. As long as religious institutions and their shepherds count up men, women and children as signs of success, there is little home for change from their participation in the public order.

Acquisitions, expansion, growth-industries, institutions advertising growth potential, et al, are part of the competitive life-style we have created. We are a people, a nation, a community on the move. For us, time is important because time is the category of existence wherein we make our living — money!

THE JUDEO-CHRISTIAN heritage (not always to be regarded as synonymous with its institutions) has often presented Evil as the Prince of Time and Hell as time without end. Eternity is a perfect and fulfilling presence.

It takes time to greet another and be interested and concerned in their well-being. But it probably takes less time, than the money we could earn in that moment of interaction, for that person's well-being through some impressive organizational "care. And besides, there are, other valid reasons to "reach out and touch" another person.

The distinct possibility that one's whole life could be consumed in the pursuit of economic well-being (or using all of one's time to make money), should be cause enough to take more time each day to make the present a perfect and fulfilling experience. At least, then there will have been a few moments of human interaction in life's journey.

Kits may be picked up in the hospital's main lobby, Huron at Johnson in Pontiac, or at the Waterford Ambulatory Care Center, Oakland Boulevard near M-59 in Waterford Township, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Test kits should be returned to either site between July 29 and Aug. 2.

A hospital spokesman said persons with positive stool blood tests will be referred to physicians. A positive test does not confirm cancer; it means that blood has been detected in the stool and could indicate a variety of problems — hemorrhoids, ulcerative conditions or bleeding of the gums.

Films, brochures and handouts on colo-rectal cancer are available at the hospital.

All-star honors lose their value

ALL RIGHT, all you all-stars, raise your hands!

C'mon now, the command is clear: Anyone out there who is currently, will be shortly or has been previously, in any way, shape, or form, whatever sex, size or sport, an all-star, signify by either raising your hand or turning on your porch light (whichever requires less energy).

Geez, don't tell me I'm the only one with my hands stuffed in my pockets and a dark doorstep. Has the old Sly and the Family Stone song finally come to pass? Everybody Is a Star?

To be honest, I wouldn't be surprised. Not after what I've witnessed. Sooner or later, a category will be created to suit even the most average, ordinary, run-of-the-mill kind of guy.

That is where we're headed, you realize. The very term "all-star" has become a contradiction.

THINK ABOUT IT. All-star should mean a star in all things. It means anything but that now. It's been divided by occupation, subdivided by region, then subdivided further by age and/or ability.

Of course, there had to be an all-star in sports, but the only guy the tag truly fit was Jim Thorpe. Somebody figured we should get a few more people involved.

So baseball all-stars were chosen. And football all-stars. And basketball all-stars. All sorts of all-stars in all sorts of sports.

But why limit it to a dozen or so in each sport? If major league baseball can have all-stars in the National League and the American League, why not carry it a step or so further?

You get the picture. Now we have all-state all-stars, all-league all-stars, all-area all-stars. Try visualizing just the best in high school baseball, and you'll end up seeing more stars than a punch-drunk prizefighter — or an insomnia-stricken astronomer on a clear night.

THE POINT IS, there are no all-stars anymore. Now all all-stars have certain justifications, to clarify which all-star belongs where.

Like the "Livonia Collegiate Baseball League All-Stars," who battled the "Detroit Adray League All-Stars from the First-, Third-, Fifth- and Seventh-Place Teams" Tuesday at Tiger Stadium.

(In case you're wondering, the "Detroit Adray League All-Stars from the Second-, Fourth- and Sixth-Place Teams" got a chance to play in Tiger Stadium, too, against the "Lansing Baseball League All-Stars.")

That's the problem with all-stars nowadays — you just can't be sure who the better all-star is, unless it's the American League vs. the National League in baseball. Everyone knows who's best in that match-up.

A close look at the program was all that was needed to determine who would win Tuesday's game at Tiger Stadium. The Livonia all-stars had 10 players born in 1966 and four more born in 1967. The Detroit Adray all-stars had four players born in 1966, none later.

Age means experience, and experience makes a difference.

IT DID TUESDAY. The Detroit Adray all-stars won easily, 9-4. Of course, it wouldn't have been so easy if the real Livonia all-stars had shown up.

Like Todd Krumm, the West Bloomfield graduate and one of the the league's top hitters and pitchers. He couldn't make it because he had to work. Starting outfielders Greg Ryba and Leo Lanigan were also absent, as was pitcher Bob Cox.

All-stars? Livonia coach John Moraitis would have welcomed almost any pitcher with a rested arm by the third inning. Indeed, 10 minutes before game time, Moraitis was counting heads, trying to figure how many hurlers he had available.

If it strikes you that some guys just don't care much about being an all-star, you're right. Who can blame them? Tuesday's game wasn't the first time they had been named all-stars of something.

We are being buried under an avalanche of all-stars. The term is steadily losing potency.

THE EFFECT is noticeable. Tuesday's game wasn't disruptive enough to distract Tiger Stadium's clean-up crew. They just kept hosing down the upper-deck stands (never mind the fans sitting in the lower deck), paying little heed to the game.

The groundskeepers figured it wasn't even necessary to wait until between innings to store the batting cage in center field. The umpires must have agreed, since play continued while workers roamed around the outfield.

Being an all-star has become so ho-hum. What was originally meant as an honor to a select few has been so disfigured it has lost its meaning. Great athletes deserve individual recognition, but remember: As the number of stars selected increases, the worth of the honor shrinks proportionately.

The definition has changed, from star above all others to we-are-all-stars.

Adray wins league crown

By Robert McElhaney

Like rock star Madonna, Livonia Adray is getting "Into the Groove."

Ron Hellier's ball club captured the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League regular season title with a 3-1 victory over arch-rival Redford Little Caesars in a showdown Sunday at Livonia's Ford Field.

"We are playing well and receiving some key hitting," said Hellier, who captured his sixth regular season title in seven years. "Our team is in good shape."

Getting into the groove for Adray Sunday included Jeff Price, who struck out seven batters and allowed four hits in a five-inning relief stint, and Greg Kuzia, who homered and drove home a pair of runs.

"It felt good to pitch for the title," said Price, a left-hander from Michigan State. "It made such a difference. We have momentum going into the season title in seven years. "Our team is in good shape."

Getting into the groove for Adray Sunday included Jeff Price, who struck out seven batters and allout of our hitting slump (in time for the playoffs)."

LCBL elite begin their quest for national title

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

A year ago, Redford Little Caesars stunned Livonia Adray and won the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL) regular-season title.

Caesars reign as king of the LCBL was short-lived, however. Michigan National Bank jolted them in the first round of the LCBL playoffs. That helped Adray win the league title, the All-American Amateur Baseball Association (AAABA) regional tournament and, once again, take the trip to Johnstown, Pa., for the AAABA World Series.

It was a bitter end for what was otherwise a bright season for Caesars. And, while Adray did win the playoffs and took its annual trip to Johnstown, Caesars regular-season championship had snapped a string of five-straight Adray titles.

So the stage was set when the LCBL season opened, with plenty of revenge motives for both sides.

Adray cashed in first, recapturing the regular-season LCBL title it had grown accustomed to possessing until Caesars victory a year ago. The Livonia team clinched it with a 3-1 victory over Caesars Sunday.

The win means Adray (24-5) will play either Northville (12-16-1) or Garden City (12-17-1) in the first round of the LCBL playoff. Caesars (22-7) has a more difficult task, facing the potent hitting of Walter's Appliance (19-9) in the opening round.

The double-elimination tournament starts at 3 p.m. Sunday at Ford Field.

There's more at stake than normal in this year's playoff. The winner gets an automatic berth in the Johnstown tournament.

"Pitching's the key," Hellier said. "It's a big difference to play nine innings instead of seven, too. That's helped us in the past because we've always had pitching depth."

"But Little Caesars has a lot of pitching. I think it'll be between us and Caesars. You might get an argument from Walter's, but I don't think they have the pitching depth."

Hellier called the Walter's-Caesars first round match-up "a classic because Walter's has the hitting and Caesars has the pitching."

Hellier will start Mike Wilkins in the first game. Wilkins, a Livonia Franklin grad, was 11-4 as a freshman for NCAA-qualifier Lamar University. Todd Krumm, 7-0 in the LCBL (0.64 ERA), will start the second. Jeff Price will be the long reliever and Rick Rozman will handle short relief duties.

At the plate, Adray is paced by Dave Austin (.425), Bill Ulle (.417), Krumm (.393), Jeff DePorter (.364) and Pete Rose (.343).

CAESARS PITCHING depth is equally split with left-handers Tom Liss, John Rogers and Dan Michaels and righthanders Derron Armstrong, John Nissen and Todd Wallace. Liss was the most effective hurler (6-0, 1.30 ERA). Michaels was 4-0 (1.46 ERA), Wallace was 4-1 (1.50 ERA) and Rogers was 5-2 (1.71 ERA).

But while Caesars is deep in quality pitching, its defense and hitting is

Swedish cage squad shows hosts a new way to play the game

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Imagine a state without high school sports.

No basketball tournaments, no football playoffs, no teams to cheer for on Friday nights. Without high school sports, our athletic system would collapse.

And yet, other countries survive without school sports. Countries such as Sweden.

While the Swedish system is different, the results are sound. That was evident Monday as a girls basketball team visiting Livonia from Stockholm trounced Dundee 51-37 at Schoolcraft College.

The pre-season exhibition also featured Livonia Ladywood against Westland John Glenn, a game Ladywood won handily 57-36. Ladywood played the Swedish team, known as Stockholm Central, last night.

THE SWEDES trip to Livonia was put into motion last summer, when Dennis Nazelli, director of Young Athletes Abroad (YAA), was visiting Sweden with his Livonia Cardinals basketball team.

"Our girls were one of the first teams to host one of his groups three years ago," said Orjan Engberg, the Stockholm Central coach, in near-perfect English. "We started talking about it and he said, 'Why don't you come to Livonia?' "

Engberg and his team went to work immediately to raise money for the trip. Using some methods successfully employed by the YAA, the Swedes financed "60 to 70 percent of the trip," according to Engberg, with fund-raisers ranging from baby-sitting to lotteries.

"We worked for a year on this," Engberg said. "We had great expectations (coming here), and so far we haven't been disappointed."

Working year-round on a goal isn't all that unusual for these Swedes, who play basketball eight months a year. Unlike the United States, their sports programs are not connected with the school system.

"In Sweden we have different clubs for different sports," Engberg explained. "If someone shows a talent for a certain sport, they will join that club."

THERE ARE 12 basketball clubs in Stockholm. Play is divided into divisions, with the senior, or open, division the most challenging. Each division also has different levels, with the first the most competitive and the sixth the least.

For younger athletes, play is divided by age group. The Swedish team that played Monday consisted of 15-16-year-olds. A group of 13-14-year-olds are also currently visiting.

Engberg's Stockholm Central squad is the second-best girls team in its age group in the country.

"Most of them have been together for five years," the coach said. The basketball season in Sweden starts in September and lasts until late April. Engberg estimated his team will play "60 to 75 games" a season.

Still, it is not an overly popular sport. "Basketball in Sweden is like soccer here," Engberg said. "It isn't nearly as popular as soccer or ice hockey."

Detroit Aday stars put crunch on Livonia

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The Livonia Collegiate Baseball League and the American League have much in common when it comes to all-star games.

The American League can't seem to beat the National League and the LCBL can't seem to beat the Detroit Aday League.

All-stars from Detroit Aday's first, third, fifth and seventh place teams defeated the LCBL all-stars 9-4 Tuesday at Tiger Stadium. It was the makeup of last Monday's rained out Aday All-Star Classic, an annual event dating back to 1945.

The Detroiters have now won six of the last eight meetings with the Livonia stars. But, just as the American League won't concede that the National is the superior league in Major League Baseball, the Livonians aren't totally convinced of Detroit's superiority.

"I DON'T think the score really indicates how much better they are," said John Moraitis of Redford Little Caesars who managed the Livonia stars. "They had a check-swing single that scored three runs. Wouldn't it have been a closer game without that?"

"Also, Todd Krumm doesn't show up (he was at work) and he's one of the best hitters in our league. And a couple of other guys don't show up. With Krumm and the others (Leo Lanigan, Greg Ryba and Bob Cox), I think it would have been a lot closer."

A point no doubt heavily disputed by the Detroiters.

The three-run check swing single highlighted a six-run Detroit outburst in the second inning.

With two out and a man on, Livonia pitcher Tom Liss from Caesars walked two batters to load the bases. He quickly got two strikes on Aday Photo's Scott Willis (Eastern Michigan). Willis, fooled by a Liss fastball, checked his swing but punched the ball in the hole between first and second. Two runs scored, and a third came home on a poor throw to third base by the right fielder. Willis legged it to third on the play.

MORAITIS WAS enraged not only by the check-swing hit but at the home plate umpire as well. Moraitis questioned the calls on the two batters Liss walked.

"He had the guy struck out," Moraitis said of David Sala who was the first batter walked by Liss. "The ump makes the call and we're out of the inning with no runs scored."

The three-run single was just the beginning. The next hitter for Detroit, University of Michigan's Tom Brock (Aday Sound), ripped a single to left to score Willis.

Then an EMU-Aday Photo player capped the inning. Chris Hoiles, a 6-foot, 185-pound catcher, hit a Liss pitch some 10 rows into the upper deck in left field — a monstrous poke.

Detroit also scored in the first, third and fifth innings, but the six-run second put Livonia under.

PAUL WENSON, a graduate of Farmington High and a junior at U-M, got credit for the victory for Detroit. He worked the first two innings, struck out three and didn't give up a hit.

"I had a lot of fun out here today," said the personable Wenson. "I felt great. It was really exciting."

His fortunes have improved greatly this summer. In his freshman year at Michigan he was plagued by control problems. Last year, an appendix operation set him back half the season.

But, toward the end of the college season, Wenson made sizable contributions to Bud Middaugh's pitching staff. And he's been most impressive for Aday Sound this summer with a 4-1 record — the loss being a 1-0 setback.

"I feel real good," he said. "I've been getting people out with my breaking ball. You can't get away with just a fastball at this level. You have to be able to throw something else."

LIVONIA DIDN'T muster a hit until the fourth, but managed to save some face with a four-run uprising in the fifth.

Walks to Deron White (Livonia Aday) and Gary Lizanich (Caesars) and a single by Mike Patton (Garden City) loaded the bases. Mike Betz (Caesars) unloaded them with a triple to right center off Sala. Betz scored on Chuck Morgan's (Walter's Appliance) sacrifice fly.

Detroit leadoff hitter Tom Hauck (EMU-Aday Photo) scored three runs, stole three bases, had two hits and a walk. He also scored from second on a ground out in the first inning. Hoiles also had a pair of hits for Detroit.

Livonia got four hits on the day, one each from Betz, Patton, Kevin Schwanz (Caesars) and Gordon Hassin (Westland).

IN THE SECOND game Tuesday, Detroit Aday (all-stars from the second, fourth and sixth place teams) defeated Lansing 6-3.

Detroit erased a 2-1 deficit with a three-run barrage in the third inning. The runs were scored on five straight hits, the last coming from former Plymouth Salem all-stater Dave Slavin, now with the University of Missouri.

Lansing was paced by Farmington Harrison grad (and MSU football star) Bob Waszczenski who went 3-for-3 with a run scored and an RBI.

Jeff Peterson, one of seven pitchers used by Detroit, picked up the win.

playoffs."

PRICE (5-1) relieved starter Mike Wilkins in the second innings after Wilkins' talented right arm stiffened.

Kuzia, breaking out of a batting slump, snapped a scoreless tie in the third inning with his homer over the right field fence off Caesars' starter, and loser, John Rogers.

"It was about time for me to get hold of a pitch," said the Henry Ford CC sophomore. "The ball was in my power alley."

Kuzia knocked home another run in the fourth, walking with the bases loaded.

"Kuzia is coming on," Hellier said. "It's a good time for him to break out of his batting drought."

Aday's third run was delivered by Mike Johnson, who doubled home Bill Ulle in the sixth. Dave Austin continued his torrid hitting pace with a 2-for-4 performance.

Rick Rozman came on in the seventh to earn the save for Aday. Rogers wound up surrendering seven hits and fanning three in 5⅔ innings before giving way to Derron Armstrong.

Caesars' lone run came in the sixth from Mike Betz's RBI single.

IN OTHER GAMES last week, Livonia Aday knocked off Garden City on Friday night 9-2 and Northville on Sunday, 8-0.

Aday used the home run ball to down host Garden City. Deron White, Dave Austin, Pete Rose (three-run shot) and Doug Kaiser all homered. White, Mike Johnson and Bill Ulle each had a pair of hits.

Rick Rozman picked up the win.

Mike Roffi absorbed the loss for Garden City. Doug Bolen banged out a pair of hits.

On Sunday, in the prelude to the showdown with Caesars, Aday got a splendid four-hit shutout from Todd Krumm. Krumm fanned 14 Northville batters in the game.

On road to Johnstown

shaky. The team committed 60 errors in 30 games and, other than Gary Lizanich, who leads the league in hitting (.434), no one else has been consistent at the plate.

"We've got the pitching this year," said Caesars coach John Moraitis. "But, definitely, our hitting has been lacking."

One player Moraitis is hoping will regain his batting stroke is Don Taylor, who led the LCBL last year with a .460 average but is hitting less than .280 this season.

Another problem for Caesars could be a broken hand Wallace suffered last week. He pitched in Tuesday's All-Star game, but his availability may be limited.

Swedes visit Observerland

BUT BASKETBALL'S appeal is growing, partially because of American influence. Engberg estimated that 50 percent of the best senior division teams are coached by Americans. Each team is also allowed one U.S. player.

"Almost every kid plays one sport or another in Sweden," Engberg said. They'll play hockey in the winter and soccer in the summer."

The cost to join the different sports clubs is minimal, about $10 a year. The clubs are also financed through taxes and whatever revenue each raises.

The style of play differs, too. "It's much faster," said Engberg. The quicker pace is helped by rules that eliminate out-of-bounds plays under the basket and the necessity of an official handling the ball on turnovers.

basketball

The Swedes are also allowed an extra step on moves to the basket. On Monday, they had to adjust and follow American style or be called for traveling.

THEY HAD few problems with Dundee, however. The Sal. Stockholm Central team bolted to a 17-7 lead after one quarter and a 27-12 advantage at the half. Dundee narrowed the gap to eight on six occasions in the final period but could draw no closer.

Carina Sundholm paced the Stockholm Central fast-break attack with 16 points. Char Wancue had 11 and Lena Mikaelsson 10.

The Swedish squad will play Bloomfield Hills Andover at 7 tonight at St. Paul's School in Livonia. On Tuesday, the Swedes will take on the North Farmington alumni and on Wednesday will play North's varsity. Both games will be at 7 p.m. at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington.

Trio-bowl seen as savior

Trio bowling has been the bulwark of play during the summer season. It is going to play a major part in solving a winter problem.

Most teams don't want to bowl late. For that reason, the final shift in most houses is being shunned. But by cutting the teams from five to three men, the trio leagues will now take up most of the late shift.

TOURNAMENTS: While she is preparing to represent the United States in the world games in London next month, Mary Mohacs (the Detroit Bowling Queen) still is piling up prize money.

She won third place in the July Open at State Lanes in Saginaw over the past weekend and came home $200 richer.

WONDERLAND: Steve Herich set a record in the trio leagues at Wonderland Lanes. To pace the field, he had a 279 game in a 998 series.

BEL-AIRE: Tony Stipeck rolled a 878 series to pace the trip leagues. Berry Van Dyke was next in line with 860.

PETERSON CLASSIC: James Hoffman paced the Michigan bowlers and landed in 14th place in the major division. For that he won one of the dozen $1,000 prizes. The winner was Paul Malzewski of Wisconson, who rolled 1654 to win the $45,000.

WESTLAND BOWL: Janet Jenks joined the winners circle in the Confusion league. She had games of 206 and 203 in 531. Next to her came Natalie Wnuk with a 203 in 523. In the Monday morning men's league, Tim Thornton was tops with a 217 in 529.

SUPER BOWL: In the battle of the sexes, Kay Gordon set the pace with a 245. Marcia Davison was next with 237. George Finerson led the men's section with a 276. He beat Chris Tilli by eight pins.

Canton hails superstars

More than 150 youngsters turned out for the seventh annual Canton Parks and Recreation's Youth Superstars competition, but JoAnna Wiklund and Jeanine Lenahgan stole the show.

The two tied for the top spot in the 13-15 age group scoring 56 points out of a possible 70. That total was the second highest in this age group in the program's history.

Wiklund won the basketball shooting and dribbling event and the soccer, while Lenahgan took honors in golf, running and baseball.

Anne Pawlowski placed second with 42 points.

IN BOYS 13-15, Tony Martinez won with a 38-point total. Dion Anton (30.2) was second and Pat Agius (27) placed third.

In 10-12 boys, Kevin Holmes (30 points) edged Mike Ross and Shawn Branum who tallied 21 points and Eric Cunningham 17.

Gwen Valentine amassed 56 points to win the girls 10-12 competition. Jackie Worosz was second (37) and Becky Jansen third (33).

Scott Wiklund won the 9-under boys event with 30.5 points. Chris Agius (28) and Brian Jansen (24.5) took second and third, respectively.

In the 9-under girls, Kirsten Heinrich won with 42.6 points, besting Andrea Dunmead (37.6) and Christina Seth (37).

Triathlon piece of cake for tour pros

Sunday's triathlon at the Pontiac Lake Recreation Area was like a full day's workout for the amateur athletes. For the professionals, it was a mere lunch break.

And it showed as 25-year-old professional Scott Molina waltzed ahead of the competition in a record-shattering time of one hour, 53 minutes and six seconds. Molina, who pocketed $1,200 for his efforts, was relaxed and headed back to hotel headquarters in Troy by the time the final competitor finished some two hours later.

"The first short-course triathlon (9-mile swim, 24.8-mile bicycle race and 6.2-mile run) held in the Detroit metropolitan area and sponsored by the Bud Light United States Triathlon Series was termed a success by race coordinator Charlie Blanchard of Birmingham.

The race, a scaled-down version of the ultra-distance marathon which consists of a 2.4-mile swim, 112-mile bike and a 26.2-mile marathon, was the sixth of 13 competitions sponsored nationally this year by the USTS.

Only the 59 professionals in the race were eligible for the modest monetary rewards ($5,000 split equally between the men and women) offered by the USTS.

Molina, A Californian who won nine of the 11 races on the 1984 USTS circuit and was the national USTS champion in both 1983 and 1984, trailed Marc Suprenant after the swim and bike competition. He didn't take the lead until the mile mark of the run.

Once Molina surged ahead, Suprenant couldn't recapture the lead and finished second in 1:54.35 — a time which also eclipsed the former record of 1:55.22 set earlier this year by Dave Scott. Ken Glah of Pennsylvania was third followed by Marc Dragan, an Australian now living in California.

"The course was fast, and the rolling hills on the bike ride helped to break-up the monotony," said Suprenant, a perennial winner in the ultra-distance Cape Cod triathlon. "These races are like a tune-up for (the ultra triathlons)."

In the women's division, Elizabth Baulman of Missouri won in 2:07.57. She was followed by Beth Mitchell, the defending women's national champion who hails from Williamston, Mich. Carolina Heins of Deep River, Ontario, and Laurie Samuelson of Southfield.

But the triathlon story didn't center around the professionals.

The success Blanchard spoke of resulted from the response of amateur athletes who helped swell the field to 961. As USTS marketing manager Mike Plant said afterwards, "to have 900 people for a first-year race is great."

There were a number of triathlon participants from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area. Following are how a few of them felt about being part of the festivities.

KATHY KUBICKI, AGE 18, (Rochester Hills): "I practiced very hard, and I thought I could get first place in my age division. Since I was in the 15-19 division, and I'm a college runner, I figured I could win against the younger people. When I started the running competition I saw the leader (in the 15-19 division). I just couldn't catch her. The gap did not change."

Kubicki, a 1984 graduate of Rochester Adams High School and a former swimmer with the Rochester-based Oakland Live Y'ers, was red-shirted on the track team this year at Bowling Green because of injuries. Kubicki's only other triathlon experience was a race at Bowling Green. She finished second Sunday in her age division.

JEFF JOHNSON, 28, (Farmington): "It (the race) looked like fun, and it was fun until I started the run. I'm not really a runner and that's what was the toughest part of the race for me. I was doing fine until I started running, then I just didn't have any legs. I thought the biking was the easiest part."

ROBERT LOVELAND, 24, (Southfield): "This was my third race this summer and sixth overall. I try to race every three weeks. My strongest event is normally the swim, but there were a lot of weeds out there. And they told us the bike course was relatively flat. I don't know what it was relative to — it wasn't that flat. The last half mile of the run is always best for me. When I get within earshot of the announcer you know it's almost over. You know the pop and watermelon are waiting."

Loveland's two other triathlon's this summer were in Columbus, Ohio, and at Burroughs Farms. He ran a 2:23 at Columbus and finished with a 2:24.30 Sunday. "The heat was a little harder on us here. It was very humid out there," he said. "This race was organized very well."

JAN A. JACOBS, 27, (Birmingham): "This is the fourth triathlon I've ever run and it was the most exciting for me because there were people from all over the country. The camaraderie is incredible. This was the largest field I've ever been in."

Jacobs, who has run four marathons, finished with a personal-best time of 2:30. She indicated the main difference between a marathon and triathlon for her is the various muscle extensions in the two types of races.

"In a marathon you're basically stressing the same muscles all the time. You're stressing different muscles in a triathlon. I feel better after (a triathlon) because I'm not using the same muscles all the time. I like how I can maintain my running ability, along with being able to maintain a high level of fitness with biking and swimming."

JOHN BURLEY, 30, (Troy): "This was my third race and I did much better today. At the Burroughs race I had a bike breakdown. My goal was to do between 2:15 and 2:20 (his estimated finish was 2:25). Swimming is the easiest part for me. I really have to work on my biking and running. I liked this course. It was challenging, fun and picturesque. It wasn't so difficult that the average person couldn't run in it. But yet, it's still challenging."

Act now, before any tax reforms become law

finances and you
Sid Mittra

Ronald Reagan's tax law is not yet a reality. However, you can take steps this year to maximize the benefits and reduce the pain of the tax changes proposed by President Reagan. Today, we will review those steps that might benefit you even if the package fails to pass.

The best-known of the proposed changes, and the one that would affect most people, is the plan to reduce income tax rates. Effective July 1, 1986, the top rate, for instance, would drop to 35 percent from the current 50-percent rate.

The strategy to take advantage of that change is the same as accountants develop each year-end to cut tax bills: whenever possible, accelerate deductions into 1985, when they are still allowable and rates are higher, and postpone income until next year, when the rate will be lower.

YOU SHOULD pay particular attention to payments of state and local income taxes and real estate taxes. Those payments would not be deductible at all beginning in 1986.

You want to make sure you have your payments in by Dec. 31, rather than paying property taxes next January or sending a check with your 1985 return next April.

This strategy won't work for people who pay their properety taxes to their bank as part of the monthly house payment. Nor will it work for people whose state and federal taxes are withheld by their employer.

If you are planning a big-ticket purchase, such as a car or a boat, you should consider doing so this year rather than next year. That way, you can deduct the sales tax, which would not be allowed under the Reagan proposal.

Also, if you are a regular contributor to charities, you may wish to make a couple of years' gifts this year. If you are one of those who do not itemize deductions, you may also want to accelerate contributions in 1985.

FOR SUCH people, the charitable deduction, which is 50 percent of contributions in 1985, would be eliminated next year.

Deferring income is usually more difficult than accelerating deductions. Probably the most common way is to defer payment of a bonus. Deferring income also is a less important strategy for coping with the tax proposal, because the lower rates would not take effect until the middle of next year.

Special Note: For an excellent summary of Reagan's tax proposal prepared by Seidman and Seidman, send a large stamped (50 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Sid Mittra, 3250 W. Big Beaver Road, Suite 540, Troy, 48084.

"REAGAN'S TAX Proposal: Your Survival Kit" is the main topic for the educational seminar to be conducted by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the Coordinated Financial Planning staff. Time: 7-9:30 p.m. Date: Tuesday, Aug. 13. Place: Kingsley Inn, Bloomfield Hills. An out-of-town guest speaker will present a tax shelter especially suited for 1985 tax planning. The seminar is free, but registration is required. Call 643-8888 for registration.

Booking bands
Jerry Ross has the action

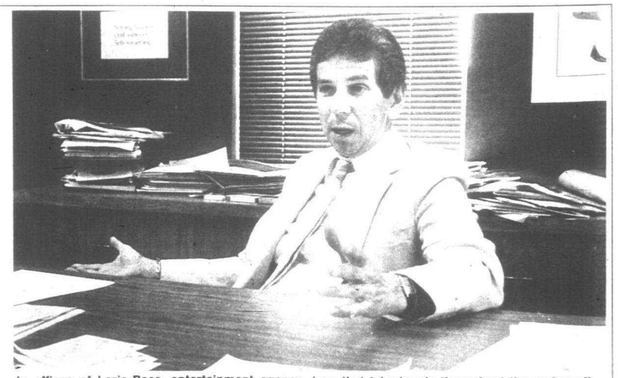
By Ethel Simmons
staff writer



In offices of Lorio-Ross, entertainment agency owner Jerry Ross discusses some of the bookings that take bands throughout the metropolitan area, the state, the country and beyond.

METROPOLITAN DETROIT has about 25 licensed entertainment agencies, but Troy resident Jerry Ross, president of Lorio-Ross in Royal Oak, figures his agency books more bands than any of the others.

"We are the largest band agency in the state of Michigan," he declared. He emphasized that other agencies may specialize in different areas but when it comes to bands, Lorio-Ross does the most bookings.

He also said, "I believe we're the most diverse agency in the state." Lorio-Ross exclusively represents about 45 band and books another 40 on a non-exclusive basis.

"There are two types of bands," he explained. "One plays single dates and the other is full-time bands, which work in lounges and hotels five or six times a week."

ROSS GOT into the agency business as an outgrowth of his own band, the Jerry Ross Band. "I was starting to go to various agencies to book my band. I thought about getting my band a lot of work."

Once he started booking his band, it was only a question of time before he took on other groups. Ross first worked with the agency Jack Reed Orchestras and Shows in Detroit for five or six years, then started his own agency.

One afternoon last week, Ross settled behind his desk to talk about the band-booking business. Joining the interview was his daughter, Julie Ross, the agency's secretary-treasurer who also is a booking agent and has her own band, Keepsake.

Among the bands represented by Lorio-Ross are such popular attractions around Detroit and suburbs as Rumplestiltskin, Pam Martin, the Loving Cup, Attractions and Strider.

"We also represent some of the biggest names — the Trinidad-Tripoli Steel Band and Alexander Zonjic," he said.

"MOST OF OUR business is with the lounges, the bars, the hotels. We book all over the state of Michigan — Holiday Inns, in Traverse City, Petoskey and Houghton Lake — and all over the country. We even have a band in Bermuda now and we're booking for Myrtle Beach." The agency also goes into the Toronto market.

In the Detroit suburban area, Lorio-Ross books bands for every place from the the northern suburbs' Southfield Holiday Inn, the Southfield Hilton and Southfield Ramada to the western suburbs' Livonia Holiday Inn and the Plymouth Hilton.

Bands that play single dates perform at weddings, country clubs, bar mitzvahs and concerts.

In downtown Detroit, the agency books bands for the outdoor P'Jazz series at the Hotel Pontchartrain. "For the last five years, I booked the concerts at P'Jazz," Ross said. "I brought in name entertainment — Lionel Hampton, Maynard Ferguson, Sypro Gyra."

The agency's diversity is shown in its other bookings. "We also book comedians, magicians, clowns - acts," he said. "One of the biggest is comedian-impressionist Joey Van."

ROSS STARTED his own agency in 1972. "I did have an office in Troy," he said, "but when the lease came up, I decided it was cheaper to buy this building." He owns the building at 505 S. Lafayette in Royal Oak in partnership, sharing the quarters with Sound Ideas, an advertising-public relations firm.

When Lorio-Ross first opened, Ross had a partner, Sam Locricchio. They took part of the agency name from a popular Locricchio group called Lorio. Ross bought out his partner four or five years ago, but kept the name because it was already established.

Because most people who request bands want a variety band, the Jerry Ross Band plays music to satisfy people from 18 to 60. "The same as with Julie's band, but her band emphasizes the current Top 40 more than we do," he said.

Ross plays the clarinet, saxophone and vibraphone. Julie is a drummer with Keepsake.

Having been in the band business for 35 years — he had one band for 16 years and another for 19 years — Ross has seen a lot of different musical trends.

"THERE'S A huge change," he acknowledged. "I hear so much about big bands are back. They never will be back as they were during the 1940s. The No. 1 reason is economics."

"The music business has changed so dramatically. Performers in lounges years and years ago . . . all they had to be was a good musician. Now they have to be good entertainers."

Vocals and stage presence are all-important. "Their musicianship is one of the least qualities we look for," he said. Julie, who added comments to many of her dad's statements, pointed out, "We expect them to have a certain level of musicianship. The other is frosting on the cake."

Ross continued, "I have a saying I try to interject to my bands: People hear with their eyes. They don't listen with their ears. They listen with their eyes."

Another big change is that music has gotten to be much more electronic. Bands have to have high-quality sound and lighting systems. "Like a piano player in a lounge group doesn't just sit his body down and start playing. Now they're expected to have $10,000-$15,000 of multi-keyboards (four to eight keyboards) stacked," he said.

SAID JULIE: "Some bands pay for their PA systems and lights just like a monthly house payment."

To have a fuller sound, bands may go into a studio, she said, and lay down extra keyboard or drum tracks. Ross said some bands eliminate actual musicians and have two or three instruments played by people not on stage.

"In the future, the only person on stage will be the entertainer, smiling and moving on stage," Ross believes. "If he just stands there like a totem pole, he won't stay around."

Bands are getting smaller in size. Ross recalled, "When big stars like Paul Anka and Barry Manilow used to play Pine Knob concerts, there were large orchestras behind them. Now, instead of a 40-piece orchestra, there's seven or eight musicians behind them."

Piano players will be taking over the role of many other musicians because the industry is coming out with keyboards that can be pre-programmed to make the sounds of various instruments.

second runs
Tom Panzenhagen

"The Main Event" (1979), 8 p.m. tonight on Ch. 7. Originally 112 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal come off surprisingly well in this boxing comedy. She plays a bankrupt businesswoman and he a washed-up fighter who suddenly finds himself thrust back into the ring game. Their unlikely roles blossom into an unlikely romance that's quite convincingly and humorously realized. Patti D'Arbanville also picks up any slack in a tour de forceful performance as O'Neal's beleaguered girlfriend.

Rating: $3.05.

"Billy Two Hats" (1974), 1 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 99 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Gregory Peck and Desi Arnaz Jr. star in this laconic western. Some may call it a slow-moving western, but we'll stick with "laconic" — meaning slow-moving but curious and with enough interesting characters and plot twists to hold one's interest. Jack Warden co-stars.

Rating: $2.90.

"California Suite" (1978), 9 p.m. Friday on Ch. 7. Originally 103 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

One episode of four is worth your time in this Neil Simon medley. Tune in the poignant and witty segment starring Maggie Smith and Michael Caine. Tune out the skits with Jane Fonda and Alan Alda, Bill Cosby and Richard Pryor, and Walter Matthau and Elaine May.

Rating: $2.40.

Ross books and performs with his own band, the Jerry Ross Five Plus Two.

Ross has the action

DESPITE ALL these changes, Ross said, "I feel there will always be a spot for live entertainment. You can't replace the personality of the entertainers."

Now that discos are gone from the scene, deejays playing canned music for dancing have lost a lot of popularity but they will be back, Ross thinks. "With digital compact discs, we will have fantastic sounds. It (canned music) won't every fade away."

Although Ross' schedule finds him working night and day, visiting clubs, booking bands and performing with his own group, he enjoys playing golf, tennis and skiing for relaxation.

A caricacature by Chuck Kohl hangs on his office wall. The sketch, which Julie said was a birthday present, shows him with a saxophone and some vibes sticks, as well as a variety of sports equipment.

Describing her dad, she said,, "He's very aggressive, but he goes after what he believes in. With everything he does, he does it 100 percent."

ROSS IS FIT and trim, and his vigorous good looks with a handsome head of dark hair make him hardly appear old enough to have played in bands as many years as he has. Brunette daughter Julie, her appearance accented by a black and red outfit, is a vibrant young woman.

Julie's band plays a lot of country clubs, weddings and bar mitzvahs. In the spring and fall Keepsake plays at Brownie's on the Lake in St. Clair Shores.

Among upcoming appearances by the Jerry Ross Band will be playing for the Capuchin Souper Summe Celebration at 8 p.m. Friday, July 26, at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights. The event is a fund-raiser for the Capuchin's year-round work with Detroit's poor. For more information call the Capuchin Center at 579-1330.

Ross' daughter, Julie, a Lorio-Ross executive, also has her own band, Keepsake.

'Forum' still keeps 'em laughing
Bob Welbel

Performances of the Summer-Stage production of the musical "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" continue thorugh Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Birmingham Theatre. Tickets are available at all Ticket World outlets and at the Birmingham Theatre box office. For further information call 373-4410.

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" is one of those shows you can enjoy seeing again and again. Perhaps it's because the bawdy, good humor of vaudeville and burlesque never fails to please. The current reincarnation at the Birmingham Theatre is a lively toga party of funny sight gags, earthy innuendoes, double takes and mistaken identities.

The opening song, "Comedy Tonight" sets the evening's agenda for this farcial musical. Shortly, we're in the courtyard of three Roman homes — one of which is a brothel. Among its courtesans is a beautiful young girl — newly arrived. And yes, you guessed it — she's a virgin.

Well, now, it turns out that a certain slave can gain his freedom by delivering the virgin intact to his master's son. But, alas, she has been purchased by a self-centered captain in the Roman Army. But wait. There's more. She is desired by the slave's elderly master.

There's still more, but the plot's not really important. You know the virgin will end up in the arms of the master's son. After all, his name is Hero. And he has never known a woman.

Kelly Williams plays Hero with appropriate innocence, and Coleen Downey is delightful as the virgin.

AT THE CENTER of the evening's fun is Jeffrey Bruce as Pseudolus, a slave to Hero. While no Zero Mostel (who is?), his Pseudolus is still clever, quick-witted and fast on his feet. In short, he knows all the moves.

Mike Evans is convincing as Lycus, the brothel keeper. And Karl Schmidt looks marvelous, simply marvelous, as Miles Gloriosus, the in-love-with-himself warrior.

Facial expressions are Gael Barr's main forte, as the frantic slave, Hysterium. Though his best moments come when he dresses to impersonate a young virgin.

Center offers Italian festival

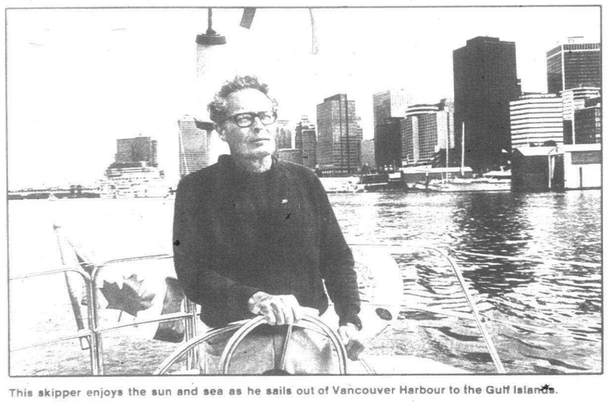
Gulf Islands, B.C., is haven for sea lovers



This skipper enjoys the sun and sea as he sails out of Vancouver Harbour to the Gulf Islands.

Ships stack up in the Vancouver Rowing Club's part of Vancouver Harbour. A Canadian Goose calls one dock home. She happily hatches her eggs in a life preserver.

Homebound Impressions

GULF ISLANDS, British Columbia — There are eagles and cormorants, seals raising their shining heads out of the sea and killer whales standing by in unexpected places, but in the end it is the seagulls that tie the Gulf Islands together.

The seagulls are there when your ferry or pleasure boat follows a slack tide from the Strait of Georgia into the warmer waters of the islands. They circle your boat in the sunset waters of a small bay or caw their way in a wing of sound above the wharfs and waterfront shops of a funky little island town.

Ferries sail several times a day from the mainland of British Columbia, near the city of Vancouver, to the Gulf Islands, which hug the coast of Vancouver island two hours away. There are also regular ferries from the mainland of Washington state, near the city of Seattle, to the San Juan Islands, which are separated from the Gulf Islands only by an invisible border of water.

The people of both cities use their island groups for fishing, sailing and cottage colonies, and to pleasure themselves on a summer day. They also take regular ferries from either the U.S. or Canada, through the islands, to the city of Victoria on the tip of Vancouver Island.

I consider this northwest Pacific coast to be one of the most beautiful settings in the world — humped green-tree islands rising out of the sea in a glory of beautiful mountains. There is always a skyline of water vessels on the horizon: sailboats, motor boats, ferries, tugboats hauling log booms, fishing boats pulling salmon out of the sea, container ships, anything that floats.

THE MAP will tell you that this body of water is the Strait of Georgia, but the people who live on or around it call it "the gulf." I have sailed across the gulf dozens of times on the ferry that winds through the Gulf Islands to Vancouver Island, but this time I was lucky enough to sail with friends who know how to raise a jib, sail wing-on-wing across a glorious sea or share a gin and tonic at sunset.

It was a wet chilly morning run from the Vancouver Rowing Club, in the heart of downtown Vancouver, past Point Grey and Point Atkinson (where a whale was stranded on the beach this morning) and across the twenty miles of strait to Porlier Pass, which runs between Galiano and Valdez islands.

There are five passages into the Gulf Islands: Porlier Pass, Active Pass, Gabriola Passage, Boundary Pass and Dodd's Narrows.

WE WENT through the passage on slack tide at 2:30 in the afternoon, past a few fishermen waiting for the salmon to follow us. As soon as we were through the pass we could see that the rain was gone; it is always sunnier here in the islands. The warm air polished the sea, and whipped cream clouds hung heavy above us.

There are hundreds of tiny little bays like this, where a sailboat can drop anchor and hide from the world. There are also easily identified red government wharfs open to the public in many of the popular docking areas in the Gulf Islands. There are cottages clinging to almost every island shore, but the ferry services only the main islands: Pender, Mayne, Galiano, Saturna and Salt Spring Island.

Salt Spring is probably the most populated and well known of all these islands on the Canadian side of the U.S.-Canada border. Artists, island lovers and retirees live in the houses clinging to cliffs over the beaches, each house built with its own glorious view.

THE TOWN of Ganges, on Salt Spring Island, is a popular stopping place for boaters in search of arts and crafts or a little island shopping. This is the place to stock up on groceries, buy wine or spirits from the local liquor store, or have dinner in one of the many tiny seaside restaurants that dot the island.

It is also a good place to find a house for the summer. Real estate agencies seem to be the most popular commercial establishments in town. Many an islander has stopped for dinner and stayed there for the rest of his life, although the ferry trip to either the mainland or to Vancouver Island can be a nuisance if you want to go into the city to dinner and the theater.

There will be a lot of tourists and sailors in British Columbia and here on the islands in 1986, when Canada hosts EXPO 86 in Vancouver. That world fair coincides with the hundredth birthday of the city of Vancouver and of Canada's transcontinental railway lines.

There were three other boats and a flurry of seagulls in Glenthorn Passage, a curve of bay where we anchored for the night at the end of a long arm of water. Cottages could be seen through the trees, clinging to the rocky edges of the islands. A ferry made a silhouette against the crimson sunset sky. And the seagulls settled down a few feet from our hull to share dinner with us.

THE SEAGULLS have been amusing sailors for a long time in these waters. They were certainly here when the Spanish sailors nosed through what is now the Strait of Juan de Fuca in the sixteenth century, and when captains Cook and Vancouver named many of these tree-mounded islands in the eighteenth century.

Early in the morning, when the sky was trying to make up its mind what to do, the VHF marine radio crackled through the sound of birds to report the weather and the "hazards to shipping." This water world is a new experience for Great Lakes sailors, who must learn the tides and currents, and where to find the thousands of unmarked rocks and shoals hidden by high tide.

There is something very special about the smell of bacon and eggs rising from the galley, especially when the ocean is licking up and down a seaweek-covered shoreline in a bowl of green trees and water.

Michigan vacation cost up 5.9%

The average cost of a Michigan summer vacation for a family of four rose 5.9 percent from last year's cost to $150 per day, according to AAA Michigan.

The cost is based on a family of two adults and two children who eat three restaurant meals a day, stay in a hotel or motel and travel 300 miles daily by car.

This year's suggested budget allows $72 for meals, $57 for lodging and $21 for 300 miles of travel. The cost of meals excludes tips, cocktails and snacks.

This summer's state vacation budget is up more than $8 from last year, but is $14 below the nationwide average.

VACATIONERS should expect to spend seven cents per mile for gas, oil and car maintenance. Fuel expenses are based on a car averaging 23 miles per gallon.

Lodging at Michigan's 503 AAA-approved establishments averages $57 per night for a two-person/two-bed room. That price includes an average of $5 per night for each child. But some properties waive charges for children under a specified age.

This summer's state vacation budget is up more than $8 from last year, but is $14 below the nationwide average vacation budget. AAA's national survey shows vacation costs for a family of four to be $164 per day — $143 for meals and lodging, plus $21 for car travel.

The survey also shows meals and lodging may cost 30 percent less in small towns and rural locations, and 80 percent more in large metropolitan areas and at resorts in season.

The vacation budget does not include road tolls, souvenirs, entertainment and recreation costs and emergency funds.

TRAVELERS CAN reduce costs significantly by camping and eating at fast-food restaurants, picknicking or having the main meal at midday to take advantage of lower lunch prices.

State park campers pay an average of $8 daily for a site in Michigan with electricity — $1 more than last year. Rustic site fees at state forest campgrounds range from $1 to $4. The average cost for a campsite at a private park is about $8.50.

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA NEVER CHANGE.

In Ansel Adams' eyes, America's wilderness is its most precious national treasure. Through photography, he immortalized the unspoiled beauty of Mt. McKinley for all to see. Some things never change.

But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7½%.

SOME DO.

But some of the best things about Bonds haven't changed. The interest earned is still exempt from state and local income taxes. Still cost as little as $25. And can be purchased at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Like the wilderness, they're another part of our proud heritage.

For the current interest rate and more information, call toll-free 1-800-US-Bonds.

Artist cuts and grinds glass into delicate art

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

'I liked working with glass. As you work with it, there are more and more things you can do with it, the more involved you get into it.'

— Dorothy Denner

You might not think of cutters, grinders and soldering irons as instruments of an artist.

But they play another tune in the skilled hands of Dorothy Denner, when she uses them to make works of stained glass. Her "art glass," as she calls it, includes jewelry, frames, boxes, lamps, room dividers and skylights, in a variety of colors and types of glass.

"You can do a lot of things with (stained glass). It's not limited," said Denner, who works on her art glass from a room in her Canton house. "It's not just for windows.

"The colors change morning and night," she said. "If it's real cloudy, that has a different effect."

DENNER'S STAINED-GLASS artworks will be seen at the juried Dearborn Homecoming Art Fair Aug. 2-4, and will be featured at a show in Meadowbrook later in August. One of her works can be found in the offices of a supermarket chain in Southfield. This artwork, representing different foods, measured 30-by-30 inches and consisted of more than 700 pieces of stained glass.

Denner's art seems to fill every room in her house. A stained-glass divider stands at the kitchen counter. Mirrors have stained-glass frames. Stained-glass designs hang in a living room window.

"Some of the things I make are kind of practical: jewelry, (pieces for) the coffee table, card holders," the artist said.

THE FIRST step in making the artworks is drawing the design. One tracing of the drawing is used as a pattern. Another is cut up and each of its pieces attached onto glass with cellophane tape.

Denner cuts around the pieces with a glass cutter and grinds their edges so they will be smooth and fit together better.

"You can only work at cuttting for two hours straight," Denner said. "After a while you get tired and you have to take a break."

Copper foil is wrapped around the pieces, giving them a copper edging. They are arranged to match the original drawing, fitted like a jigsaw puzzle, and soldered in place.

DENNER PREFERS working with antique glass, a handblown variety that resembles translucent marble. Among the other types that she uses is opaque glass, which lets light in but can't be seen through.

Sometimes, the artist also uses natural materials. The cover of a glass box may feature a pressed flower, a feather or a leaf. She has put foil around seashells and soldered them in an arrangement in a stained glass frame.

"If it foils, then I can solder it," Denner said.

Denner's subjects under glass include flowers, buildings and words. Prices for her art glass depend on the type of glass used and the intricacy of the design, and can range from $25 (for a 5-by-5-inch box) to $200 (for a divider).

DENNER STARTED making stained glass eight years ago, after taking a class in the subject at Schoolcraft College.

"When you first start out, you start out with scratches," she said.

"I liked working with glass. As you work with it, there are more and more things you can do with it, the more involved you get into it."

Stained glass has grown in popularity, according to Denner. When she began working at the art, she had to go to Ann Arbor to buy the glass. Now many local supply stores sell it.

Also, the tools of the craft have improved, the artist says. Denner's original grinder shot pieces of glass all over the room, and her first glass cutter had to stand in oil. Her present grinder wets the particles to keep them from flying out (but goggles remain a necessity), and her new cutter is self-oiling.

YOU CAN learn more about stained glass than just how to cut the glass, Denner says.

"There aren't that many machines around that make bevels. That's a real art itself," she said. "There are new techniques learning how to bend glass. There's always something else that you'd like to try or to learn."

The Dearborn Homecoming Art Fair will take place at Ford Field on Monroe, north of Michigan Ave. in Dearborn. It will open at 2 p.m. Aug. 2, noon Aug. 3 and 10 a.m. Aug. 4, and close at 8:30 p.m. each day.

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. By David Messing special writer

In your prayers this week remember the unfortunate lady who runs the Wonderland Weight Watchers. "Unfortunate?". . . Why? Because I will be joining. I'm coming Thursday morning. I'm coming hungry and I'm coming 20 lbs. overweight. You see I am a guy that likes powdered sugar on the syrup . . . on the butter . . . on the pancakes. And I'm not happy unless the mixture runs onto a half dozen sausage links, all looking like a minature log jam. I am afraid this is only the beginning of my list of weight-watchers no-nos.

Cold chocolate, now that's good stuff. I would probably break the law for a frozen Kit-Kat and it almost a holy moment when I am peeling the foil from off a cold Reeses Peanut Butter Cup. Gee, I have to stop thinking this way. I wonder what a frozen carrot tastes like or will I ever really savor the flavor of a leaf of lettuce?

Liz, no more M&M peanuts (slightly chilled). Mom, no more mint surprise cookies. And no more of my mother-in-law's banana split cake. Goodby to eating as I know it. My goal is to someday wear a "half shirt." But right now, I would be showing the worst half. Well, I'm just carrying too much extra baggage around. With my schedule getting heavier, I must make myself lighter.

I'LL TELL you one place you sure don't want to carry extra baggage and that is on vacation. Whew . . . When my family takes a little trip we always pack too many things in too little of a suitcase. Our normal ritual is that I sit on the suitcase as Sandy tries to flip the latches. So the last thing you need to lug along on vacation is a ton of art supplies. Pitty the poor artist who hauls his or her oil paints, palette, easel and other paraphernalia . . . and doesn't use it.

Usually on the return trip the non-artist spouse reminds him or her of that fact. So what should you take on vacation, that won't take up too much room and is no big deal if you don't even use it.

Number one on my list would be the most overlooked medium there is — the lowly pencil. I love the warm grays of graphite, and no other medium can produce photographic realism with so few supplies. We recently participated in Plymouth's "Art in the Park" and easily nine out of ten people who passed by stopped to give a close look at Shawn Carson's 30-by-40 pencil portrait of Linda Grey. "Just pencil?" everyone asked in amazement. "You mean, yellow pencil with an eraser on the end, kind of pencil?" they would further inquire. Well Shawn uses about three or four hardnesses of pencil and blends photographic shades of gray by using a piece of cheese cloth. Of course some of the magic of Shawn's work comes from this third generation piece of cloth that after 20 years of use looks like it was peeled from off a mummy's wrappings. So if you haven't inherited one from your artist parents then you'll just have to start seasoning your own blending cloth or buy a paper stomp.

I recommend you carry a 6B, 3B, HB, H, 4H, 6H and 9H pencil. I guarantee you will need them and they won't make much of a bulge in your suitcase.

PAPER IS another consideration. Probably the best "take with you" paper is bristol board. Bristol board comes in three or four weights but most pads are either one ply or two ply. The choice of finish on the paper is vellum (regular finish) or plate (smooth). Now all you need is a kneaded eraser and the time to sit down and draw, and, surprisingly enough, that does happen. While sun bathing in Florida, I once was shocked to see, hear and feel a sea gull land right at my feet. He gave me a motionless profile as I carefully withdrew my paper and pencil from the beach bag. He didn't budge a feather nor turn his head until I had signed my name on the finished drawing. Then just like that he was gone. He probably left thinking, "that cheapskate, ain't gonna feed me nothing.

Next on the "take with you" list would be pen and ink. Since it wouldn't be wise to pack a bottle of ink with your best travelin' clothes, I recommend a felt tip pen. I have always recommended Alvin's pen stick "eef" because of the India ink density. But now they have the Alvin tech liner which creates the tiniest hair line.

You just can't pass it up at $1.50 each (No. 0.1 to 0.5). Another good feature is that a pad of bristol board is best suited for pen and ink, also. So now you have some pencils and a few tech pens and one pad of paper, all of which takes up less room than one folded shirt. If your vacation drawings aren't that good then you can redraw them later. If they turned out great, pen and ink or pencil drawings are exceptionally beautiful when framed. What a perfect remembrance of your vacation. Next week I will talk about what to take on vacation when you want to work with color and I will relay how I lost 20 pounds in one week . . . I hope.
