Home school couple may appeal

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Canton couple found guilty in a truancy lawsuit by 35th District Judge John MacDonald has no plans to modify its home school, despite MacDonald's order, said their attorney, Leonard Mazor.

John and Sandra Bennett, ordered Friday by MacDonald to immediately retain a certified teacher, will consider appealing his ruling, Mazor said.

The Bennetts began teaching their children at home in 1985 after a falling out with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

They later were sued by the school district for failing to send their children to a state-approved school.

State law permits home schools as long as they offer 180 days instruction and make use of a certified teacher and a curriculum comparable to that of public schools.

In Michigan there are between 7,000 to 10,000 home schoolers, according to Clay Nuttall, president of the Fundamental Christian Coalition of Michigan. Estimates are that in Plymouth-Canton there are about six home school families.

AFTER A two-day trial, the Bennetts were found guilty of a misdemeanor, fined $50 each and ordered to:

- Contact the local district and "comply with any requests for testing of the home-schooled children . . . to determine their academic achievement and grade placement, and

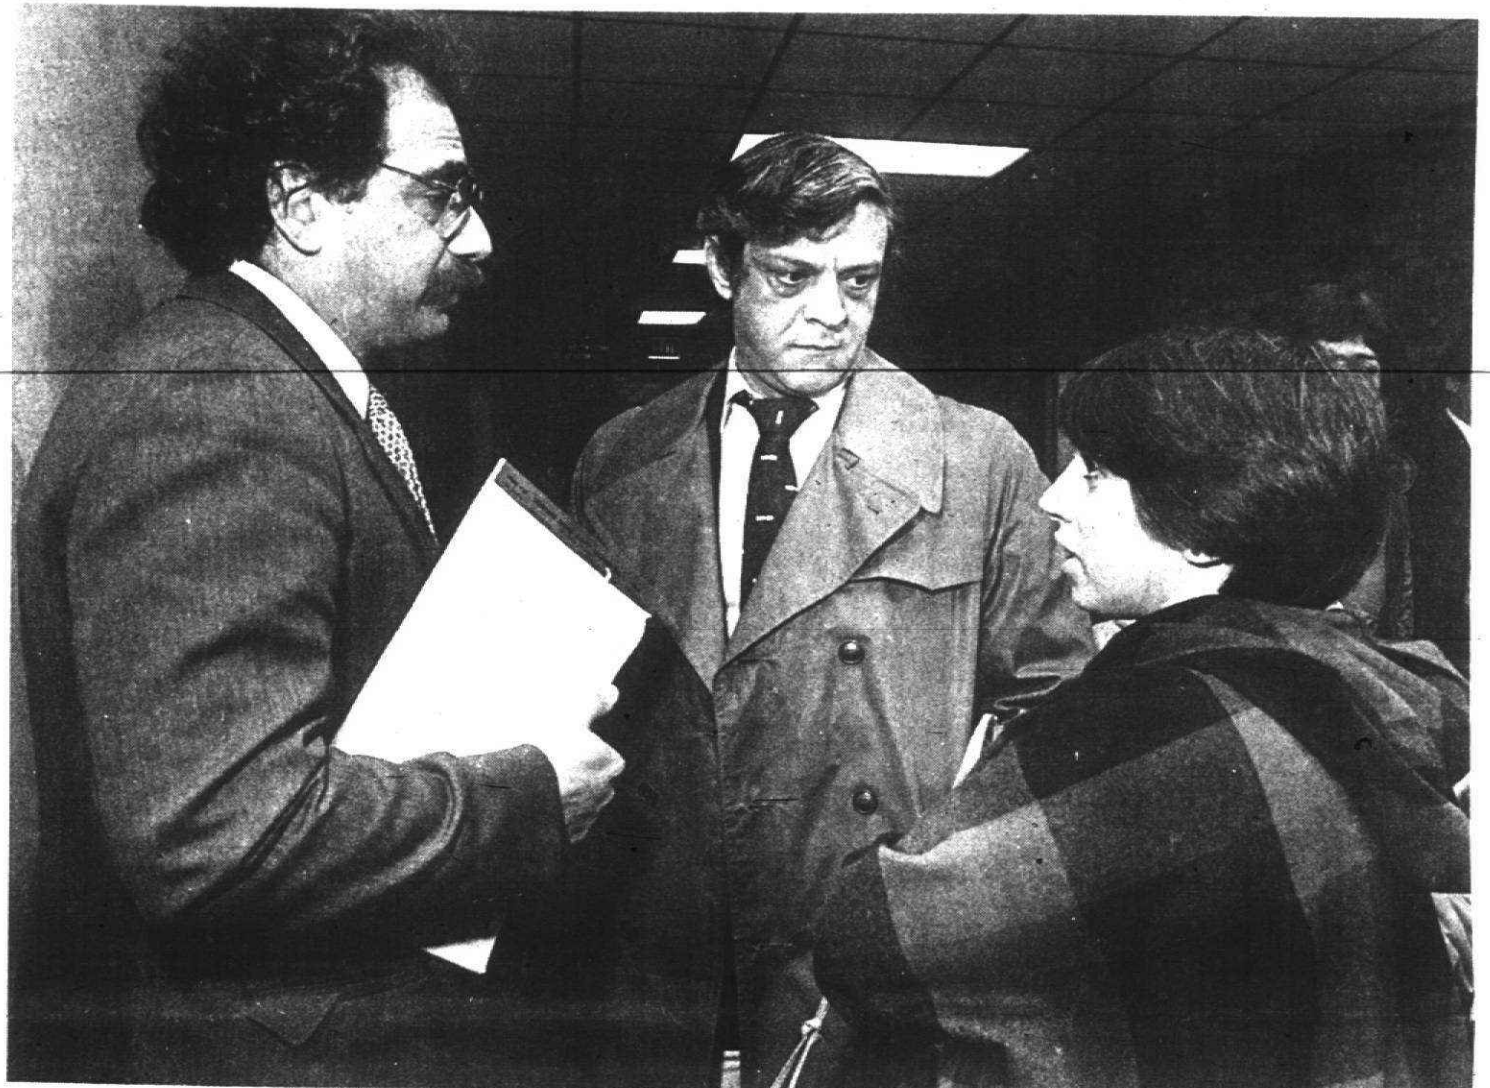

- "Immediately arrange for instruction . . . to be done by or under the supervision of a certified teacher." Fines and costs are suspended provided the order is fulfilled within 90 days, MacDonald added.

It looks like fines and costs will be added to the $5,000-plus in legal expenses the Bennetts have incurred.

"As to this year, I don't think there's any doubt they can stay in their home school," said Mazor, citing a decision involving Clonlara School of Ann Arbor by Ingham Circuit Judge Thomas Brown. The Bennett children are among 1,200 enrolled in Clonlara School's Home-Based Education Program.

Brown recently exempted Clonlara and its students from some state requirements. Part of his ruling stated that home schoolers must employ certified teachers anywhere from "one hour per year to 900 hours per year."

Educators debate financing

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Attorney Gary LeBret, prosecutor in a home-schooling case involving a Canton family and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, was doing a little math during a break at 35th District Court.

He figured that if Ann Arbor's Clonlara School has 600 students enrolled in its Home-Based Education Program, and each pays $300 in tuition, that Pat Montgomery "has 180,000 good reasons" to attend truancy trials.

Montgomery, Clonlara director, assists home-schooling families who are sued by school districts. Most recently, she testified in a truancy lawsuit brought against John and Sandra Bennett of Canton by Plymouth-Canton schools.

(Judge John MacDonald, 35th District Court, decided that case Friday, ruling that the Bennetts, who've taught their four children at home since 1985, were guilty of a misdemeanor. He fined each parent $50 for failing to meet state school laws.)

SUPERINTENDENT JOHN Hoben questioned the motives of those assisting home schoolers at a state public hearing on home schooling recently.

"The majority are exploiting a correspondence school approach basically aimed at monetary gains and not particularly concerned about student advocacy," said Hoben.

Hoben was speaking on behalf of the Michigan Association of School Administrators at the hearing in Plymouth.

Montgomery, who has a doctorate, degree in educational leadership, administration and alternative education, takes exception to what LeBret and Hoben say.

Fire unit revisions designed

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton's fire department will undergo a lot of changes in 1987, said Police Chief John Santomauro, who is expected to be named public safety director early next month.

"In the last year the police department has gone through a complete revision on policy development and implementation," Santomauro said. "The police department has had a tremendous influx of technology and equipment and the fire department has not."

"It's unfortunate that in many public safety situations the fire department is put aside. That won't happen in Canton."

IF SANTOMAURO meets the Merit Commission qualifications he will be named director. He was the only Canton employee to apply and given his experience it's likely he'll qualify.

"It's a matter of formalizing the process — he'll be named public safety director," said Dan Durack, Canton personnel director.

The public safety director concept — calling for separate police and fire departments with a single administrative head — was the result of a fire department study identifying organizational and administrative problems.

Under the new format, Mel Paulin would remain Canton fire chief; however, he would report to the public safety director.

Santomauro, a Vietnam war veteran, will retain his duties as police chief. Canton hired him in 1985 after results of a police department study revealed similarly poor results. Bartell and Bartell Ltd. of Pennsylvania conducted both studies.

A MAJOR benefit of public safety is to eliminate competitiveness "that usually exists" for equipment and other expenditures between police and fire departments, Santomauro said.

Santomauro addressed concerns, previously repeated by firefighters, that disciplinary action in the department seemed to depend on popularity.

"It's important that written policies are established down there," Santomauro said. "It's important that the employee know what's expected of him or her."

Insurer consolidates in area

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The private company that administers the largest municipal self-insurance authority in Michigan plans to relocate to Plymouth Township.

Governmental Risk Managers Inc., principal adviser to the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority, intends to consolidate operations from two sites in Livonia to one here.

Plymouth Township, Canton Township, the city of Plymouth and about 1,000 other governmental units belong to the authority.

"We're looking at Metro West Technology Park at Beck and M-14," said Wade Waterman, founder of Government Risk Managers and risk manager to the authority. "We are moving ahead with DeMattia for building and design. We hope to be there within a year."

"WHAT WE looked for was freeway access," he said. "We wanted to be near I-275 and M-14 if we could because it seems to be a good link."

A good link also might describe the banding of individual municipalities into the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority. It started in 1980 with Redford Township and Ishpeming.

Canton and the two Plymouths climbed aboard in 1981. Canton and Plymouth city basically are responsible for the first $50,000 of each claim against them. Plymouth Township, for a slightly higher premium, would be stuck for a maximum of $25,000.

The Michigan Municipal Risk

Management Authority purchases extra umbrella coverage, conducts risk-loss seminars, provides legal counsel and invests premium dollars.

"What we do is we assist them determining how much money they should put in the self-insurance fund . . . and we arrange extra coverage," Waterman said.

He looked into organizing a municipal insurance authority in the late 1970s.

Insurer plans relocation

GOVERNMENTS at that time were assigned high insurance costs not on risks but because private insurers were in trouble financially," Waterman said.

The move into the authority has proven to be a cost-effective one for communities.

Plymouth paid nearly $110,000 for $3 million worth of insurance coverage in its 1980-81 budget year just before joining the authority, said Carol Stone, purchasing agent who coordinates insurance matters for the city.

Its first-year premium in the authority was $70,446, she said.

Currently, Plymouth's annual premium is $82,128, raised last July to meet a deficit in its "deductible fund," said Gordon Limburg, city clerk/finance director.

Plymouth Township now pays $50,000 annually for $10 million coverage, Breen said, adding that its "deductible fund" is at $50,000.

Canton spends $107,222 annually for $10 million in umbrella coverage, said John Spencer, finance director. Its fund balance to meet $50,000 claim deductibles is just over $102,000.

PREMIUMS are based on such factors as a municipality's size, number of employees, budget, previous claims history and coverage desired.

Stone and Spencer occasionally check private insurers just to make sure they're getting the best coverage for the dollar.

"Even now, we find that government liability insurance is extremely difficult to get," Stone said.

"We know the insurance industry is high now," said Spencer.

Most insurance claims against municipalities arise from police activities — "excess force or violation of constitutional rights," Waterman said.

It's possible but not likely that premiums for umbrella coverage could rise sharply for authority members in the future, he said.

"Because of buying power of all communities together, we don't expect that anymore," Waterman said.

Fire revisions formulated

Public safety offers a "more uniform approach" to police and fire policies.

Another change will be computerizing fire department data.

"Our police department is on a sophisticated computer system, and our fire department is on a manual system," Santomauro said. "We will be able to computerize fire records without purchasing another computer."

Santomauro said there are no plans to increase staff.

The Merit Commission will discuss at its meeting today whether a test for the public safety director will be given. The supervisor and board of trustees will make the appointment by the Feb. 10 board meeting, Durack predicted.

Santomauro, who graduated from basic state firefighting training, said

Canton seeks block strategy

Canton Township will receive $200,000 in Community Development Block Grant money to be used for projects to benefit low- and moderate-income residents.

The seven-member CDEG Advisory Council is seeking suggestions for projects. Resident and groups are invited to respond. The deadline for proposals is Feb. 16.

Send suggestions to Gerald Martin, Department of Community and Economic Development, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton 48188, or call 397-1000, Ext. 238.

The grant money is provided by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Among the projects that have benefited from the program are the acquisition of properties for industrial rehabilitation in the Dye Brothers subdivision south of Michigan Avenue, improvements to the senior citizens' recreation building, drainage improvements, and support for community agencies such as the Salvation Army and Growth Works.

A major ongoing CDEG program is housing rehabilitation, which provides major home repairs to meet building code requirements.

The advisory council includes: Frank McMurray, chairman, Jack Ryan, Lorraine Engelder, Michael Hoben, Rev. Kenneth Gruebel, Gary Ley and Dale Nelson. All members are chosen by the township supervisor.

Couple may fight ruling

THE BENNETTS, filling out of a packed courtroom, were visibly disappointed.

Judge MacDonald "understood absolutely nothing," said John Bennett, a draftsman with a high school education.

"I think he was mistaken in his judgment," said Sandra Bennett, a licensed practical nurse who has been teaching Scott, Erika, Jason and Krista in their Canton home.

Shirley Waters, Plymouth-Canton schools attendance officer, refused comment on the advice of the district's attorney.

Erika Bennett, 12, munching on Fritos and ducking away from the glare of TV cameras, said, "I'm disappointed. I thought for sure we were going to win."

Her sister Krista, 8, nodded in agreement. "I don't think he made the right decision. I think we learn more at home than in school."

Clonlara director Dr. Pat Montgomery, at the Bennetts' side since the case began more than a year ago, said while awaiting MacDonald's decision that the lawsuit boiled down to money.

The reason school officials are in court is because of money, said Montgomery.

"They're not there for the education. That's obvious. It's $2,000 to $4,000 a head they're losing in state aid. The children are doing splendidly, and they weren't before."

IN RENDERING his six-page opinion, MacDonald said:

"The Bennetts have failed to supply a qualified, certified teacher... There is no proof of comparative curriculum that is offered by public schools" and "there is no evidence that the Bennett children were provided with a minimum of 180 days and 900 hours of instruction."

Mazor said he thinks an appeal is feasible, "and there certainly are grounds for it. We're going to have to wait and see. The Legislature has never even really considered home schools. The law was not drawn with home schools in mind. It's like trying to fit a round peg into a square hole."

Sandra Bennett (center) signs in for probation while her children Erica (right), 12, and Jason, and Alice Haas (left) watch.

Another 1,200 pupils in seven countries take classes through Clonlara's home-based program.

Clonlara is a tax-exempt, nonprofit "until it hurts" corporation whose only source of income is tuition, Montgomery said.

Its four on-campus instructors are paid $10,900 annually.

"It's what we can afford to pay. We have no church or business supporting us," she said. Clonlara receives no state aid.

Clonlara's home-schooling families are charged $300 annually, regardless of the number of family members enrolled. That sum is discounted after the first year.

"Our program is one of the least expensive in the country and we do that deliberately because we don't want this to be available only to those with means," Montgomery said.

Educators debate financing

CLONLARA KEEPS on file the names of about 300 teachers. Their addresses are given to inquiring home-schooling families.

As payment teachers, and Clonlara, have received sailing lessons, roofing and carpentry services.

"We have a woman in the extreme end of the southwestern part of the state who exchanges house cleaning with us. She drives four hours to come and clean these buildings. Is Mr. Hoben paid with Jamaican rum?"

Clonlara also offers group rates and other types of discounts, she said.

Red ink Lucas blamed for budget woes

Executive calls for sweeping changes, 6A.

Western Wayne County commissioners put the blame for an estimated $292.5-million county deficit squarely on the former county executive.

They said William Lucas, former Wayne County executive, ignored charter government provisions and in so doing, created the deficit.

They also said the press ignored mounting evidence the deficit was much worse than stated by Lucas.

"I'm not at all surprised (by the amount of the deficit)," commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said. "I knew the previous figures were not true and I said so often."

Mill Mack criticizes Lucas

COUNTY EXECUTIVE Edward McNamara announced Wednesday the county deficit is estimated to be three times larger than originally thought. He placed the deficit at $292.5 million. The figure includes an operating deficit of $115.4 million, long-term debts amounting to $127.1 million and $50 million for settling lawsuits.

McNamara said there are things that can be done. Employee layoffs, early retirements and a freeze on hiring, increasing user fees and refinancing the long-term debt are possibilities.

He also said increasing the tax base in Wayne County through economic development is essential.

Raising taxes is, McNamara said, a "last step."

"It is not a matter of declaring bankruptcy," he said.

McNamara said the Lucas administration ran up annual deficits of $16 million to $33 million each year, in addition to using complicated accounting practices that disguised the true nature of the long-term deficit.

BEARD SAID she was alerted to accounting inconsistencies that suggested mounting deficits from reports submitted to commissioners by then-County Auditor General Lester Robinson.

When the figures were questioned by commissioners, Beard said, they were not given all the facts by Lucas administrators.

Beard, whose district includes Westland and Garden City, said the Lucas administration did not work together with commissioners to achieve solutions.

Dennis Nystrom, an Oakland County attorney who was Lucas' chief of staff from January 1983 until February 1986, said Lucas had an open-door policy with the press.

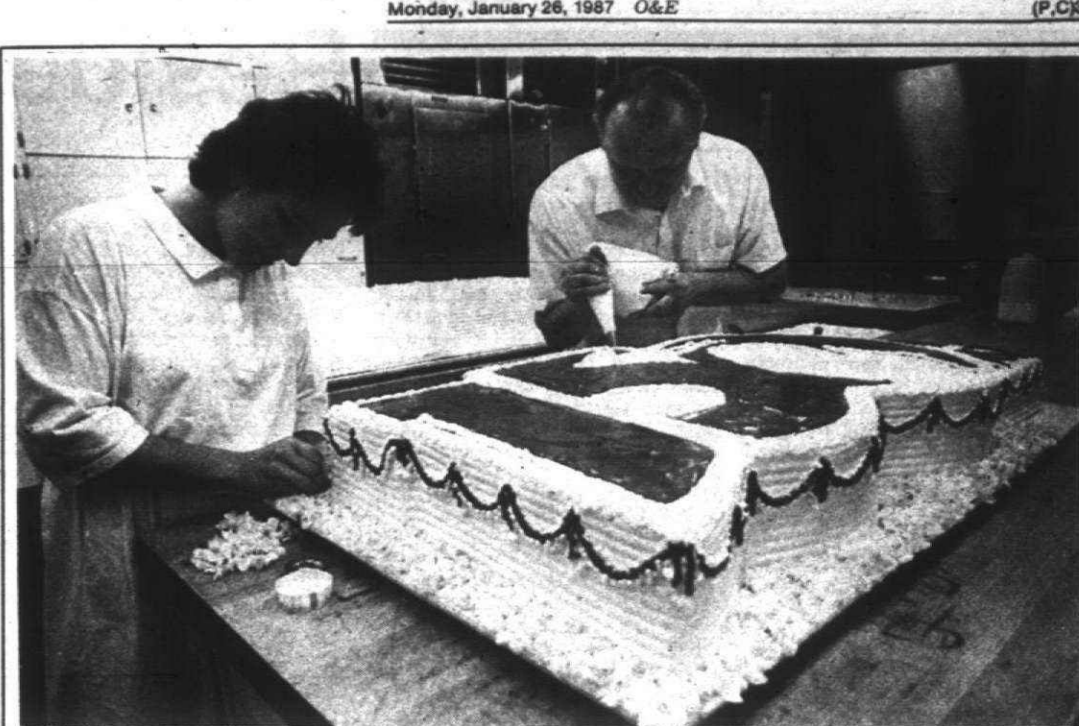

"He was very assessable. He felt it was better to get information out to the public," Nystrom said.

Nystrom also said Lucas was assessable to commissioners. "He initiated the policy of weekly meetings with the chair and four other leaders." The meetings were discontinued, he added, after deep rifts developed among the commissioners.

Commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford, used the word "secretive" to describe the Lucas administration.

"Commissioners had a 'litany of evidence' that deficits were mounting," he said. "We could tell it was happening because figures from our own auditor general didn't match."

"But the evidence could not be confirmed. We couldn't get into the Catherine Steyaert of Plymouth and Larry Witucki of Canton Township decorate one of the two cakes Awrey Bakeries made in honor of Michigan's sesquicentennial. Steyaert is adding silk aspic blossoms, the state flower. The cakes, weighing a total 350 pounds, are in the shape of Michigan's sesquicentennial logo. They will be unveiled at balls at the Detroit Institute of Arts and in Lansing.

Bakers celebrate birthday by cooking up state cakes

CELEBRATING Michigan's sesquicentennial is a piece of cake.

Just ask Awrey Bakeries Inc. of Livonia, which made two multiple-layer cakes designed after the state's sesquicentennial logo. The cakes, each consisting of alternate chocolate and yellow layers, will be unveiled Monday at balls in Detroit and Lansing.

"Yellow and chocolate seem to be the perennial favorites," said Larry Witucki, assistant manager of research and development and quality control at Awrey's.

THE CAKES were made in some three days. Baking alone took four to five hours.

"We don't have pans anywhere near that large," Witucki said. "We made them in sheet cakes and put them together."

The smaller cake will be transported in the rear of a station wagon, while the larger one will be taken in a van.

"The size (had to be) so it would fit out the door," Witucki said.

ONE CAKE will be delivered to the Detroit Institute of Arts. It was made out of 80 pounds of sugar, 60 pounds of flour and 480 eggs, finished in red, white and blue icing and highlighted with silk aspic blossoms, the state flower.

icing on the cake is a combination of 65 pounds of sugar and 50 pounds of butter and shortening. The cake, measuring 5 feet by 2 1/2 feet, is eight layers high on the average. It was built in multiple, varied layers. The five-layer cake for the Lansing ball is a scaled-down version of the DIA cake.

"The first thing you have to deal with is what the design is going to be," Witucki said. "You have to determine how you can make that cake. The larger the cake, the thicker it has to be."

MICHIGAN'S "150" sesquicentennial logo incorporates the "mitt" area of the Lower Peninsula in the "0" of the "150." The dates 1837-1987 are to the right of the "150."

Making anniversary cakes is nothing new for Awrey Bakeries. It was founded in 1910. The company moved to its current location in Livonia in 1987.

Awrey uses more than one-half million pounds of flour, 12,000 eggs and 6,000 pounds of chocolate in an average week's production.

Resident held in abuse case

By Diane Gale staff writer

A Canton man, considered like a "grandfather," is being held without bond on nine charges of sexually abusing three Redford Township children who he met through church and took on outings.

The charges include alleged assaults against a 9-year-old boy and girl and their 12-year-old brother. Lorance Lee Watson, 59, was arraigned Jan. 23 in 35th District Court on six counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct and three counts of second degree.

A plea of not guilty was entered for Watson by Judge John MacDonald. He ordered Watson without bond "because of the seriousness of the offense."

The suspect would pick up the children for a social activity and act in some way of the capacity of a grandfather, a police report said.

The mother said Watson picked up her children on weekends and took them to a movie or some other activity. Often times they spent the night in his house and attended church with him the following day.

The maximum sentence for first degree criminal sexual assault is life in prison. Second degree carries a maximum 15 years in prison.

A preliminary examination to determine if there is enough evidence to hold a trial is scheduled for Feb. 2 in 35th District Court.

Watson is in the Wayne County Jail awaiting preliminary examination.

Nature center is nearby winter getaway

By Penny Wright special writer

Looking for something different to do on a winter day? Here are two suggestions:

Visit Oakwoods Nature Center in Oakwoods Metropolitan Park near Flat Rock (take I-75 past I-94 junction and exit at South Huron Road). Oakwoods is one of 13 parks run by the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA). The center boasts spectacular views of the Huron River.

Talk to Oakwoods naturalist Glenn Dent or one of his colleagues. Huron-Clinton Metro Park naturalists are loaded with information about local nature happenings and if you have the interest and time, they are prepared to reveal all.

MetroPark naturalists consider turning on people to the delights of nature a number one priority. "We are not trying to turn everyone into a naturalist," said Dent.

Overlooking the backwaters of the Huron River, the 6,800 square foot nature center, building houses permanent live cold-blooded animal exhibits and seasonally changing natural science displays.

The center also contains a small auditorium used for programs involving school groups and the general public. Dent pointed to a chalkboard covered with numbers and bird names. "We have listed the birds sighted during the Christmas bird count." He said the Oakwoods bird count was part of national effort to determine changing bird populations across the United States.

"It is an annual event and we welcome anyone who wants to participate."

A varied menu of programs are offered at the center. One of Dent's favorites is called "Owl Prowl." "After dark we mimic owl calls and try to lure nearby birds to the nature center area. As they approach we shine our lights in their eyes, and have learned they are safer in the park than in the adjoining farmlands. The deer only venture out of the park after dark."

Oakwoods MetroPark was formerly part of a 4,996 acre reservation established for the Wyandot Indians in 1818. "By the mid-1800's the tribe was determined to be in the 'way of progress' and in 1867 the Wyandots along with other Indian groups from Michigan and Ohio were sent to reservations in Kansas and Oklahoma."

While digs are prohibited at Oakwoods, occasionally Indian artifacts are found by chance in the park.

Dent suggests people wishing information about the nature walks, special events, or workshops occurring at Oakwoods can call either the park at 313-697-9181 or 1-800-247-2575.

Do emotions play a role in arthritis? There is little doubt that the muscle tension associated with anxiety, depression, fear, or agitation will increase strain on anyone's joints. In arthritic conditions such as fibromyalgia, in which muscle strain is part of the condition, further muscle tension, whether from physical or emotional sources, will cause the fibromyalgia to flare.

Executive proposes $26 million in cuts

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Local county commissioners agreed with Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara when he said they face a tough job implementing the sweeping changes announced Friday in his state of the county address.

McNamara proposed cuts of $26 million, to balance the 1986-87 budget. He also plans to eliminate $10 million of an estimated $127.1 million long-term deficit he inherited from the Lucas administration.

Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said, "He's facing up to all the tough problems that require tough action."

To accomplish his goals, McNamara announced a three-part plan. It consists of:

- Immediate reductions in current expenditures. These include consolidation of the drain commissioner's office and elimination of the youth development program and the cooperative extension service. Also a freeze on all new hiring and reductions in the executive's staff and in fringe benefits for all employees.
- Reducing costs in the sheriff's department, the courts and indigent health care, areas that constitute 60 percent of the current general fund budget.

A national firm will be retained to perform an independent review of the sheriff department, addressing staffing, new facilities and elimination of the sheriff's road patrol.

McNamara will ask the state to address mounting indigent medical costs, which he termed "a county charge card."

- Expanding the tax base of Wayne County through economic development.

A department of economic development will be created. A task force for this purpose is meeting today under the direction of Dewitt Henry, former executive director of the Downriver Community Conference.

COMMISSIONER MILTON Mack said the point that most impressed him was McNamara's promise to meet informally with county employees to explain county policies and to hear what the employees have to say. Other proposed action includes a proposal for a regional automated fingerprinting system, an increase in awarding affirmative action contracts and formulating a sexual harassment policy.

McNamara also announced vendors doing business with the city will be paid in a more timely manner.

"I've ordered the payables office on overtime until they catch up," he said.

Commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville, whose district includes Livonia and Plymouth, said the tone among commissioners is, "It's going to be tough."

Mack believes, however, this commission is highly motivated now that they know the size of the county's deficit.

"We don't want a countywide Ecorse," he said, referring to the downriver community presently in receivership.

The Plymouth business scene 70 years ago

(Part 4)

Village President Louis Hillmer was not the only one of that name to have an advertisement in the Booster Edition of the Plymouth Mail in the spring of 1916. Two of his sons were part of the business scene that year and had ads in the same issue.

One of them was Davis Hillmer, who took most of the photos the Mail used to illustrate the edition. Davis ran an ad to promote his Hillmer Photo Supply Co. Located in the Daggett Building on Liberty Street, Hillmer sold photographic supplies and did photofinishing. In later years, he had a studio in Detroit where one of his customers was the J.L. Hudson Co.

Davis Hillmer's brother, Karl, also advertised in the March 3 special edition. On page 17, he promoted his Plymouth Laundry; on page 24 his fire, tornado and automobile insurance business. In neither case did he give an address. Karl, who later had his last name legally changed to Starkweather, because he was proud of his ancestors of that name, later worked for one of Henry Ford's village industry plants.

Karl Starkweather wrote a number of historical articles for the Mail. Many of them were about William and Keziah Starkweather who built the first home in the village, and about their son, George, the first child born of settlers in what is now Plymouth Township. Before he died in 1969, I had conversations with Karl about his boyhood recollections of Plymouth. He wrote me numerous letters that were of help to me when I wrote my book on the history of Plymouth in 1976.

ANOTHER advertiser in the Booster Edition was C.G. Draper, maternal grandfather of Dr. James Carney.

Draper's jewelry and optometry shop was located on Main Street near today's Schrader Funeral Home. In addition to selling jewelry and testing eyes and fitting lenses, Draper was an amateur photographer of some note. Several of the photos in my pictorial history of Plymouth were taken by him in the early 1900s.

A firm established in the preceding century by another perennial village president, Michael Conner, also advertised in the Mail's special in 1916. Conner, president of Plymouth at least 10 times prior to 1890, founded Conner's Hardware Store at the corner of Main and Pennington in 1857. By 1914, the store was being run by his son, William T. Conner.

Will Conner took over the store in 1895, the year his father died. The younger Conner, an able baseball player, played right field on a championship Plymouth team that played and defeated a highly touted University of Michigan team.

manager form of municipal government, adopted by Plymouth in 1917. Will Conner was elected village president in the spring of 1918. He was one of the original investors in the Ford Motor Co. of Canada. Conner lived to age 77, dying in June 1939.

CONNER's competitor in the hardware field was a firm founded by Edison O. Huston in 1894. Huston's Hardware was located on Pennington Avenue, a stone's throw away from the Main Street corner occupied by Conner's. Ed Huston, president of the Plymouth United Savings Bank, was the father of Ruth Huston. As Mrs. Austin Whipple she became Plymouth's first woman mayor in 1940.

On the same side of Pennington Avenue as Huston's was Schrader Brothers, which had stores in Northville as well as Plymouth. Schrader's advertised furniture, carpets and rugs. They were also funeral directors and had an ambulance on call. The Schraders, Frederick and Nelson, had started the business in 1904.

Frederick D. Schrader, who managed the Plymouth Store, was president of the Plymouth Improvement Association, whose purpose was to attract new enterprises to Plymouth. In the late 1920s, he was a key figure in the Plymouth Community Hotel Corp. which brought the Mayflower Hotel into being. He was a charter member of the Plymouth Rotary Club when it was founded in 1924, and a director and vice president of the Plymouth United Savings Bank.

Other officers of the Plymouth Improvement Association were Louis Hillmer, W.J. Burrows and Fred Dibble. The directors included Edvard Gayde, C.H. Rauch, George A. Richwine and M.H. Ladd.

ED GAYDE served on the Village Commission and as a member of the State Legislature.

Fred Dibble, a local merchant, was the husband of Nettie Dibble, who wrote a history of the village in 1931. Mark Ladd was Plymouth's postmaster in 1916, having been appointed to the post in 1908. During his administration, the local post office grew from third to second class. It became first class in 1917.

The post office managed by Mark Ladd in 1916 was on Pennington Avenue but opposite its present location. Today's post office was built in 1936 when Bert Giles was postmaster. It was built on the site of the residence of another Booster Edition advertiser — John H. Patterson.

Patterson advertised his well-known contracting and building business. Among the houses he built was the manse for the Presbyterian Church, which he constructed in 1911 when the church's congregation moved its minister's home from Union Street to Main Street opposite today's city hall. (To be continued.)

Bird populations up, down in area

LA TE. IN December, 28 adventurous people spent the day driving in their cars and hiking the woods and fields to count birds. They were helping to conduct the 42nd annual Detroit Audubon Christmas Count.

At least five other counts are conducted in southeastern Michigan. Each encompasses a 15-mile diameter circle.

Individual birds of each species are counted and totaled for the area. Over the years, Detroit Audubon's count has tallied more than 300,000 birds, representing 120 different species.

THIS YEAR more than 6,800 birds were counted, and 59 different species were identified. For the first time, a greater black-backed gull was identified and recorded.

Analyzing the data for the past 42 years can provide some interesting facts about bird populations in our area. Periodic influxes of nomadic species can be graphed and averaged.

For instance, last year 106 pine grosbeaks were seen, but none was identified this year. If the average influx or peak numbers holds true, we will not expect record numbers for another five-six years.

Our graph predicts that next year red crossbills will be seen after a six-year absence.

RECORD NUMBERS of pine siskins were seen this year, but few tree sparrows were counted. Next to house sparrows and starlings, tree sparrows are our most common winter resident.

An average of 927 tree sparrows have been tallied on one day, but this year only 232 were seen. In 1963, almost 4,000 were seen in one day.

Though we generally associate spring with our first robin of the year, robins have been seen on 80 percent of all the Detroit Audubon's Christmas Counts. Crows have increased in numbers — markedly, since 1975 — while black duck and ring-necked pheasant populations have declined since the 1950s.

Christmas counts are one way that amateur birders can help science gather information to unravel some of the mysteries of nature.

Various species' populations rise and fall periodically. Red crossbills should be plentiful next year.

Lowest home mortgage interest rates in eight years!

It's a great time to buy a house.

At Standard Federal, we're offering 15-year and 30-year fixed rate loans at very attractive interest rates.

The interest rates shown on the chart are based on the payment of a 2% loan discount fee. You can obtain an even lower rate by paying a higher loan discount fee.

By acting now, you can take advantage of our competitive inter-

15-YEAR FIXED RATE LOAN	9.00%	annual interest rate
	9.50%	annual percentage rate (APR)*
30-YEAR FIXED RATE LOAN	9.50%	annual interest rate
	9.84%	annual percentage rate (APR)*

est rates to purchase that new home you've always wanted.

You can apply for a new mortgage loan at any of our conveniently located branch offices. Loan approvals usually take only 3-4 weeks.

Stop by and talk to one of our mortgage counselors about a new mortgage that will be just right for you.

Or it's a great time to refinance your present mortgage.

Even if you already own a home, you can take advantage of our low mortgage interest rates by refinancing your current loan. Chances are that we can save you thousands of dollars in interest and lower your monthly payment!

Here's an example of how much someone who obtained a 30-year loan for $50,000.00 at 12% (12.41% APR) interest in September of 1985 could save by refinancing that loan with a new 15-year loan at Standard Federal today.

The homeowners in this example had monthly principal and interest payments of $514.31. If they continue to pay on that loan until it matures, they will pay an additional $126,671.64 in interest. However, by obtaining a 15-year fixed rate loan now at 9.00% (9.50% APR) they will save $85,605.53 in interest. What's more, they will be able to pay off

	Current 30-Year Loan	New 15-Year Loan
Interest rate	12% (12.41% APR)	9.00% (9.50% APR)
Unpaid Balance on $50,000 loan (as of January 1987)	$49,736.69	$49,736.69
Monthly payment	$514.31	$504.46
Interest yet to be paid	$126,671.64	$41,066.11
Last payment due	August 2015	January 2002

*All of the annual percentage rates in the above example are estimated based on a $50,000.00 loan with a down payment of at least 20%. The term of the loan and all of the normal prepaid finance charges (including a 2% loan discount fee) were taken into consideration in calculating these annual percentage rates.

their mortgage 12 years sooner, and their monthly payment on the new 15-year loan will actually be $9.85 less than the payment on their old 30-year loan.

If these same homeowners wanted to reduce their monthly principal and interest payments even more, they could obtain a 30-year loan from Standard Federal at 9.50% (9.84% APR). In this case, they would reduce their monthly payments by $96.10 and still save $25,852.73 in interest over the remaining term of their new loan.

The interest rates shown above are subject to change. So, now is the time! Stop in at any Standard Federal office and talk to one of our mortgage counselors to see just how much you can save.

Domako shoots high in Big Sky

By Brad Emons staff writer

Apparently the Big Sky isn't quite the limit for former Livonia Stevenson cager Tom Domako, who is taking his game one step beyond these days.

The 6-foot-9 junior forward at Montana State could be going for an unprecedented third straight Player of the Week honor when the Bobcats play tonight at Bozeman against Boise State and on Saturday when they entertain the University of Idaho.

Domako is leading the Big Sky Conference in scoring, averaging just over 20 points per game. He also leads the team in rebounding.

He was named Big Sky Player of the Week after the Bobcats' home stand Jan. 8 and 10 against Northern Arizona and Nevada-Reno. Last weekend in a pair of road games, Domako came up with 26 points (9 of 16 from the field) and four rebounds at Idaho State followed by a 23 point-busting four of six 3-pointers, 10-rebound performance against Weber State.

But more importantly, Domako has Montana State leading the Big Sky alone in first place with a 4-0 record. The Bobcats are 12-4 overall.

MONTANA STATE COACH Stu Starnes can only hope that Domako and his teammates continue on the right road to an NCAA bid, a feat the Bobcats would like to duplicate after having tasted the tournament last year in an 83-74 first-round loss to St. John's.

"Anytime you win it's going to help your confidence," Starnes said. "But getting two on the road really helps."

Domako is also excited about the Bobcats' chances of winning their first Big Sky title since 1977.

"Everybody has a year's experience and the more experienced, the more everybody plays well," he said. "Weber State had good talent. They were picked to win the Big Sky before the season, so it was positive for us to get that win and a couple on the road."

Starnes is pleased with Domako's progress this season, to say the least.

"HE'S HAD A little slump rebounding, but that's an area the whole team has to work at — we all have to rebound," said the Montana State coach. "But Tom's offensive game has a lot of versatility. He creates matchup problems because he

Ocelots edge Madonna

The battle was a bit more intense than Bob Wetzel expected.

As a matter of fact, Wetzel had few expectations when his Schoolcraft College mens basketball team invaded Madonna College Thursday.

"I had no idea what they had," he admitted.

By the time Wetzel's Ocelots had polished off Madonna 99-87, he had a better idea. And he had more respect.

"They were real quick," said Wetzel of Madonna. "It seems the little teams give us more trouble than the big teams. I don't think we looked at them strongly, but I have more respect for them after tonight."

Mercy wins ski race

Farmington Hills Mercy placed six skiers among the top 10 finishers Thursday to knock off Birmingham Groves 12-24 at Mount Brighton.

Leigh Clancy and Lexi Davis paced the Marlins. Clancy posted a two-run combined time of 46:67 on the slalom course. Davis posted a 47:21.

Corky Frizzell (55:49) and Stephanie John (1:03:45) placed fourth and fifth. Beth McIntosh (1:07:7) and Kelly Garbin (1:07:9) came in sixth and 10th.

The Marlins, 2-1, take on Southfield at 4 p.m. today at Mount Brighton.

Dave Dameron, the former all-America wrestler from Plymouth Salem, is 23-10 in his freshman season at the University of Michigan.

Taking charge

Rookie Dameron making loud noises in Big 10

By C.J. Riasak staff writer

Life is full of surprises.

How many times you heard that? Then it should come as no surprise that Dave Dameron found college life to be full of surprises.

There are few times in life when a person has to make more adjustments than when he leaves home for four years of college.

Dameron was faced with more adjusting than the normal freshman, however. He's an athlete, you see. And as he headed for University of Michigan, he figured it wasn't just his classroom experience that was about to intensify.

So was the competition in his sport — wrestling.

"I'm really happy," said the former Plymouth Salem standout. "I thought it was going to be a big change. It really hasn't been as tough as I thought it would be."

WHAT'S THIS? A freshman in a major college program questioning the caliber of competition?

Well, not exactly. Dameron has a healthy respect for his adversaries. And if he sounds a bit boastful, well, after all, he is 23-10 and a starter for U-M's grapplers at 126 pounds.

That's not the way life is supposed to be for freshmen athletes, not at any college, but particularly not at a school with the academic and athletic standards of U-M. The program is supposed to include a tough learning experience the first year with limited varsity exposure, followed by a gradual move up the depth chart toward starting status.

wrestling

Dameron hasn't followed that program. He's got goals, you see.

"I want to place in the top four in the Big Ten and go to nationals," he said. Sounds nice, for a junior or senior. But those are Dameron's immediate goals — for this season. As for the future...

"I'd like to win the nationals before I graduate," he said matter-of-factly, adding, "and someday I'd like to make the Olympics."

THAT'S PRETTY heady stuff. Thing is, Dameron believes he can do it. Why shouldn't he? At Salem, Dameron was a Class A state champ at 126 pounds with a 50-1 record as a senior. He rolled to a 148-34 career mark.

OK, so that was high school. But so far, Dameron's continued that success. What's his secret?

For starters, hard work. U-M's wrestlers started workouts three weeks after fall semester began. Two two-hour practices a day are common, sometimes there are three. And there is little actual analyzing and teaching during these sessions. That comes later. Practices are for getting on the mat and working.

"They don't give you much time to do anything but study and work out," said Dameron.

But wait—any collegiate wrestler with ambition works hard. There must be more to Dameron's success.

THERE IS. First, when he practices, he works with the best. U-M junior John Fisher is at the top of NCAA's pack at 134; assistant coach Joe McFarland was second in the nation.

Dameron uses this access to experience. He learns from his practice partners and from his opponents.

"It's incredible how much I've learned," he said. "Every time out, win or lose."

For example, Dameron faced Purdue senior Scott Hinkle, one of the best in the Big Ten, at the Sunshine Open and lost by a considerable margin. On Jan. 18, he faced Hinkle again, but this time lost by just two points.

In talking to Dameron, one gets the impression he won't make it three losses in a row. The freshman possesses all the necessary qualities: including talent, smarts and determination. The last quality can never be downplayed, particularly in wrestling, a sport that demands a constant battle against weight (Dameron had to drop 22 pounds to get down to 126).

And in addition Dameron has his goals, which, after his quick adjustment to college competition, must appear much closer to realization.

Future bright for junior skaters

By Brad Emons staff writer

Once teammates in the midwest ranks with the Little Caesars hockey club, Redford's David Burke and Westland's Mike Modano have gone their separate ways.

Both are talented 16-year-olds with unlimited potential.

Modano has an eye on a pro career, currently playing for the Frisco, Albert (Saskatchewan) Raiders of the Western Hockey League.

Burke, a junior at Redford Union High School, has his sights set on a college career. Considered by one scouting service as the No. 1 defenseman in the country for his age group, Burke is currently playing for Compuware of the North American Junior Hockey League.

The two crossed paths Dec. 29 through Jan. 3 in the World Cup Invitational Tournament in Chicago, hosted by the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States. The event drew teams from Finland, Switzerland, Canada and the United States.

Burke and Modano were among 15 players invited to try out last summer in Colorado Springs, Colo. for the Blue and White U.S. teams, which finished with identical 4-1 records in the tournament.

In head-to-head competition, Modano's White team prevailed, 7-1.

FOR BURKE, a 6-foot-1, 175-pound defenseman, the World Cup Invitational was time well spent.

"We learned an entirely new system and for the whole team it amounted to a new experience," Burke said. "Traditionally, defense men skate backwards and start in the other team's zone."

"In the tournament we were taught to be much more aggressive."

Not so for Plymouth Canton and Mary Jo Chyron Wednesday night.

There were a lot more open ice checks. We had to force teams out of the middle and that's normally something we can't do."

Burke, who has lettered in golf twice and ran track at RU, wants to play Division I hockey, preferably at a school like Michigan State, or with a well known college program in the east.

"I had an opportunity to play Major A (in Canada), but I turned it down," Burke said.

Modano, meanwhile, opted to live almost 1,200 miles away from home and finish high school in Prince Albert, a remote outpost in western Canada.

ALICE SHORT continues her stellar basketball career at Northern Michigan University. The senior guard from Farmington Harrison scored 26 points in the Lady Wildcats 71-67 win over Michigan-Dearborn, including a school-record 14-of-15 free throws. She leads NMU (11-5) in scoring with a 16.3 average.

ALYSE FORTUNE busted her own Tri-State University (Angola, Ind.) single-season basketball scoring record with a 24-point performance against Purdue-Calumet. The surge gave the Farmington graduate 336 for the season, bettering her own mark of 317 set last year. The sophomore is averaging 21 points per game.

FRAN WHITTAKER has been enjoying an outstanding season for Albion College's women's basketball team. The sophomore from Plymouth Salem is averaging 10.6 points per game (11.3 in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association), and her 4.3 assists per MIAA game is fifth-best in the league. Those statistics were compiled before her 26-point outburst against Adrian Wednesday.

CHRIS AND WENDY GILLES of Wisconsin both reached the third round of the Milwaukee Classic before being eliminated. Chris beat Marie Hibbard of Kansas (6-4-6-4) and Karl Bucholtz of Arizona (6-0, 6-4) before losing to Caroline Knudsen of Kentucky (6-1, 6-3), and Wendy topped Kristi Kim of Kansas (6-1, 6-1) and Pam Miller of Utah (6-1, 6-2) before losing to Joni Urban of UCLA (6-1, 6-1). The Plymouth Salem graduates teamed up in doubles and won their first-round match over Chris Hoffee and Nancy Rath of New Mexico 7-6 (7-1), 7-5 before losing to Rita Wineberger and Paulette Roux of South Carolina 7-6 (4-7), 6-4 in the second round. Chris is 10-5 overall in singles for Wisconsin; Wendy is 9-4.

Realism, comedy blend unevenly in Pryor's 'Critical Condition'

No doubt, Richard Pryor fans will appreciate "Critical Condition" (R) but I found most of it tiresome. Bathroom jokes can only carry a show so far.

The film's concept is reasonable, in fact almost clever, as small-time, impractical entrepreneur (Pryor) is nabbed in mob headquarters with a case of hot diamonds and suspect dollars just as he is about to borrow big bucks from the mob.

Why is he borrowing from the mob? With his track record no one else will deal with him. Why does he need the money? His latest venture: a 32-screen cineplex with 18 seats in each theater. Imaginative but nutty, the kind of character who could impersonate a doctor to escape a psychiatric ward where he landed on a fake plea to avoid jail.

Sounds ridiculous? Right, but that's just about what happens when Pryor cops an insanity plea to avoid jail with the mob chief who thinks Pryor finks on him.

Rachael Ticotin and Richard Pryor are happy to have survived a power failure, in this scene from "Critical Condition." Ticotin plays a hospital administrator and Pryor is a patient, on the lamb from the mob, whom she mistakes for a doctor.

THE LOCALE IS an island hospital not far from the World Trade Towers in Manhattan and the big storm of the season blows the power, followed quickly by the demise of the hospital's emergency generator.

Producer Ted Field notes that he has long been fascinated by hospital blackouts, and that may be part of the problem here. His five-year collection of stories and clippings about hospital blackouts divert everybody's attention from the basic comic premise of mistaken identity.

There's too much fancy stuff and irrelevant technology—using a helicopter to air-condition a hospital and blowing up a roomful of organs awaiting transplant to get at a power source—all that technology doesn't support the comic premise.

Humorous lines and funny situations are required but largely this production relies on technology, bathroom jokes and obscenities.

The truly funny but unrealized idea in "Critical Condition" is that an insignificant, impractical guy like Pryor escapes from the psychiatric ward during a natural disaster. Why escape? He failed his insanity test and doesn't want to go to jail where the mob will kill him. He's not so nuts after all.

It really is funny that the apprentice hospital administrator, Rachael Ticotin, mistakes him for the Emergency Room duty doctor while the storm rages.

BUT THE EXECUTION by Pryor and others just doesn't make it. Amidest all this hi-tech realism the way it's played, it's hard to believe that such an inept character could pull it off. Certainly Pryor's nightclub style does not inspire confidence.

It takes one's credulity to think that Pryor's impractical entrepreneur could suddenly mature sufficiently to motivate people to be their very best. In addition, Pryor's medical sleight-of-hand just doesn't ring true.

While Ticotin is pleasantly attractive and convincing as a young woman in a new position, the two villains, hospital administrator Chambers (Joe Mantegna) and an escaped police-killer (Joe Dallesandro), are flat and uni-dimensional. Taken with Pryor's heavy-handed style, clever satire turns ridiculous.

Still, there's a few good laughs and Pryorites will enjoy their old master doing his thing again.

"Outrageous Fortune" (R) opens Friday, Jan. 30, with Bette Midler and Shelley Long as rival actresses on a cross-country comic chase of the man who two-timed them both. What begins for the girls as loathing ends in friendship. It looks like a lot of fun.

ALSO ON THE 30th, Richard Chamberlain opens in "Allan Quatermain and the City of Gold" (PG). From the preview point of view, this sequel to "King Solomon's Mines" appears entertaining. It also resembles a Harrison Ford adventure. But it can't be all bad with Sharon Stone and James Earl Jones.

February promises to be a big month, with at least five major motion pictures opening on Friday, Feb. 6, and three more on Friday, Feb. 13.

"Black Widow" (R) with Debra Winger, Dennis Hopper and Diane Ladd, directed by Bob Rafelson, is a psychological thriller about an investigator obsessed with apprehending a beautiful woman who seduces, marries and murders wealthy men.

"Light of Day" stars Michael J. Fox in a "contemporary drama" with music by Bruce Springsteen, while Mary Steenburgen and Roddy McDowall debut in "Dead of Winter," a suspense story about murder and blackmail.

Woody Allen's latest, "Radio Days," with Diane Wiest and Mia Farrow, is a sentimental story about the impact of radio music on a family in the late '30s and early '40s.

"From the Hip" (PG) features Judd Nelson, John Hurt and Elizabeth Perkins in a comic tale about an unorthodox young attorney. That rounds out February's first weeks of film festivities.

IF YOU'RE NOT all filled out by mid-February, Valentine weekend offers "Meatballs III" (R), Andrew McCarthy in "Mannequin"—shades of "Pygmalion"—and a new Stallone film, "Over the Top," about a cross-country truck driver out to win the world arm-wrestling championship.

Don't blame me, I just review them. I don't think them up. By the way, it's not true that "Rocky V" features Stallone in a roomful of mirrors mauling himself.

Share in the spirit of the Chinese New Year's festival this January 29th by planning a celebration feast.

This festive and easy to prepare menu uses classic Oriental seasonings and cooking techniques to transform American favorites—pork and rice—into a traditional Chinese buffet.

Our centerpiece entrée features elegant and distinctive "Glazed Pork Tenderloins." The glazing is deliciously easy with bottled Teriyaki Baste & Glaze. The Oriental flavor of these succulent tenderloins is heightened by the addition of crushed anise seed and cloves.

It's no surprise that versatile pork, nutritious and flavorful, is one of the favorite meats of China. Pork is now leaner and meatier with more protein and fewer calories. In fact, an ounce of lean cooked pork has only about 70 calories.

Serve hearty portions of tender and fluffy white rice with the main dish. Rice always plays an important role in every Chinese New Year's celebration. In fact, the Chinese set aside an entire day of the New Year to commemorate the first planting of rice.

Known for centuries as a symbol of good luck in China, rice is also recognized worldwide for its nutritional value. Rich in complex carbohydrates and low in sodium and fat, rice contains a mere 82 calories per half cup.

Following tradition, a "Mustard-Soy Dipping Sauce" is served with the pork. Be sure to try a small taste first. If hot mustard isn't for you, try a sprinkling of naturally brewed Soy Sauce right on the pork.

A graceful "Cucumber Fan Salad" surrounds the sliced tenderloins. The authentic Chinese dressing features sesame seed, cayenne, vinegar, and naturally brewed soy sauce. The taste of brewed soy sauce guarantees a spritely dressing so tantalizing you'll know why the Chinese have relied on brewed soy sauce as their premier condiment for centuries.

We've added another classic banquet dish, "Cashew Pork Stir-Fry." Preparation has been simplified by using bottled Stir-Fry Sauce. There's no need to measure or mix, because everything you need for an authentic taste is right in the bottle.

What New Year's feast would be complete without a fried rice dish? Try our favorite recipe for "New Year Fried Rice." A combination of crispy diced bacon, green onions, sweet red pepper, green peas, golden egg and cooked rice, it virtually sparkles with color and flavor.

Savor the happy ending of your feast and the beginning of the Year of the Hare with an adaptation of a famous Chinese banquet dessert. "5-Precious Rice Pudding" is named for its five key ingredients—rice, pineapple, raisins, ginger, and red cherries.

Happy New Year!

...and convincing as a young woman in a new position, the two villains, hospital administrator Chambers (Joe Mantegna) and an escaped police-killer (Joe Dallesandro), are flat and uni-dimensional. Taken with Pryor's heavy-handed style, clever satire turns ridiculous.

Still, there's a few good laughs and Pryorites will enjoy their old master doing his thing again.

"Outrageous Fortune" (R) opens Friday, Jan. 30, with Bette Midler and Shelley Long as rival actresses on a cross-country comic chase of the man who two-timed them both. What begins for the girls as loathing ends in friendship. It looks like a lot of fun.

ALSO ON THE 30th, Richard Chamberlain opens in "Allan Quatermain and the City of Gold" (PG). From the preview point of view, this sequel to "King Solomon's Mines" appears entertaining. It also resembles a Harrison Ford adventure. But it can't be all bad with Sharon Stone and James Earl Jones.

February promises to be a big month, with at least five major motion pictures opening on Friday, Feb. 6, and three more on Friday, Feb. 13.

"Black Widow" (R) with Debra Winger, Dennis Hopper and Diane Ladd, directed by Bob Rafelson, is a psychological thriller about an investigator obsessed with apprehending a beautiful woman who seduces, marries and murders wealthy men.

"Light of Day" stars Michael J. Fox in a "contemporary drama" with music by Bruce Springsteen, while Mary Steenburgen and Roddy McDowall debut in "Dead of Winter," a suspense story about murder and blackmail.

Woody Allen's latest, "Radio Days," with Diane Wiest and Mia Farrow, is a sentimental story about the impact of radio music on a family in the late '30s and early '40s.

"From the Hip" (PG) features Judd Nelson, John Hurt and Elizabeth Perkins in a comic tale about an unorthodox young attorney. That rounds out February's first weeks of film festivities.

Don't blame me, I just review them. I don't think them up. By the way, it's not true that "Rocky V" features Stallone in a roomful of mirrors mauling himself.

Pizza-like salad reflects trend toward light meals

Elegant stuffed chicken is easy to fix

Pizza Lovers' Salad is a colorful main dish salad that reflects today's trends toward homey flavors and light eating.

This prize-winning salad features favorite pizza toppings — salami, mozzarella cheese, onions, bell peppers, olives and mushrooms — tossed with tomatoes and crunchy romaine. To blend and complement flavors, the creative combo is "dressed up" with salad dressing.

PIZZA LOVERS' SALAD
1 cup salad dressing
2 tsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. Italian seasonings
2 qts. torn romaine
3 cups chopped tomatoes
1 cup chopped red or green pepper
1 cup mushroom slices
1 small red onion, thinly sliced

Combine salad dressing, parsley and seasonings; mix well. Add all remaining ingredients except croutons; toss lightly. Serve on salad plates; top with croutons. Makes 6-8 servings.

CHEESE AND HERB STUFFED CHICKEN
2 whole medium chicken breasts (1 1/2 lbs.), skinned, boned and halved lengthwise
5 oz. pkg. Boursin cheese with garlic and herbs, softened
1 tsp. all-purpose flour
1/4 cup shredded carrots
1/4 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
1/4 cup snipped parsley
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 tsp. grated Parmesan cheese
2 tsp. margarine or butter, melted

Place each chicken breast half, boned side up, between 2 pieces of clear plastic wrap. Using the flat side of a meat mallet, pound lightly, working from center to edges to form a 5 1/2-inch square. Remove plastic wrap. In a small mixer bowl beat together Boursin cheese and flour until smooth. Stir in carrots, walnuts and half the snipped parsley. Place one-fourth of the cheese mixture on each chicken breast half; fold in 2 sides and roll up jelly-roll style. Press edges to seal. In a small bowl combine remaining parsley, bread crumbs and Parmesan. Brush chicken rolls with melted margarine; roll in coating mixture. Place rolls, seam side down, on a wire rack in an 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with any remaining coating mix. Bake in 350°F oven for 40-45 minutes, until tender and golden. Makes 4 servings.

Without a pianist, Taylor was still able to sing a few of his favorite songs in the deep baritone voice he's known for.

Taylor fields questions from the Livonia Town Hall audience.

Taylor shares a laugh with Ellen Rowland of Westland after his Livonia Town Hall appearance Wednesday.

The show must go on

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

IF THE pipes are stopped up, the natural thing to do is to call a plumber.

But if you're a singing plumber, like "Fat" Bob Taylor, you wing it with more than 40 years of stage experience.

Taylor, who was the guest speaker at Wednesday's Livonia Town Hall, for the most part had a stopper put on his singing voice. His pianist, unexpectedly, was a no-show because of a family illness.

So, did the singing plumber pack in his wrench? Did he let his appearance go down the drain?

No. Taylor, who was a plumber at one time for 14 years, made it apparent to those present he packs more than a heavy baritone. He filled the hour with anecdotes — some about his farm near Ann Arbor stocked with llamas, donkeys and cats and his neighbors who have a pig with a wooden leg.

EVEN WITHOUT accompaniment, Taylor still managed to show off his enormous singing talent with selections such as, "Danny Boy," "A Song for Carol," and "Without a Song."

"Those things happen," said Taylor, 56, about the unexpected absence of his pianist. "That's show business. You have to go on with the show."

He knows. Taylor's experiences are what keep such valiant show biz axioms alive.

Many radio listeners know Taylor from his time at WJR-AM, or for his current morning show on WAAM-AM in Ann Arbor. Sports fans know him for singing the national anthem at Detroit Tiger, Piston, Red Wing and Lion games.

But in addition to that, Taylor is a man who, indeed, carries the credentials of a performer.

A singer, "for as long as I can remember," the Canadian-born Taylor fondly recalls performing as a 5-year-old in Kingsville, Ontario, during the Depression. He sang "The Sheik of Araby" with his dad's band and received a hefty $12 from the audience.

"Which was more than my grandfather made in two weeks," Taylor said.

HE REMEMBERS setting up entertainment shows for servicemen in the Korea War. Taylor, a member of the U.S. Air Force special services, coordinated appearances by Bob Hope and Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy to name a few.

He also recalls fulfilling a long-time dream of performing at the Metropolitan Opera in 1966.

"It was the scariest thing I ever did in my life," he said. "I didn't even have the lead role. I was one of the secondary singers in the back."

And, of course, there are the on-air phone calls to J.P. McCarthy, which led to Taylor eventually hosting his own show at WJR until last summer. Currently, he can be heard 6-10 a.m. during the week on WAAM-AM in Ann Arbor.

In addition, he's appeared on the Mike Douglas, Woody Woodbury, Bozo the Clown and Oopsie the Clown television shows.

AS A SINGER, Taylor has performed with many major orchestras, including the Detroit Symphony. He's also sang with the bands of Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Count Basie, and Duke Ellington.

And it's singing which he enjoys best. He has recorded two albums,

"Bob Taylor Celebrates Christmas" and "So in Love."

Taylor eventually hopes to cut an album of gospel hymns and another of patriotic songs, which he is especially adept at. His rendition of both the American and Canadian anthems are well known in the Detroit area.

The highlight of his career, in fact, was singing the national anthem with the DSO at the 1984 World Series in Detroit.

At the 1968 World Series in Detroit, Jose Feliciano's controversial rendition of the "Star-Spangled Banner" guaranteed Taylor's appearance 16 years later.

"I pray for him every night," Taylor said of Feliciano. "After that, anytime there was a nationally televised game I would get to sing the anthem. Jim Campbell (then Tiger general manager) probably never wanted to go through that again."

ONE SONG, though, stirs Taylor more than performing national anthems. Without a doubt it's "Without a Song," which he belted out at

Power's the key to achieving goals

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THERE'S NOTHING wrong with wanting power.

"You should want power," said Dr. Jan Zahrly, assistant professor at Wayne State University. "Everyone should want power. There's nothing wrong with that."

"All we have to do is appropriate it, reach out and take it. If we don't grab it, then we're still powerless."

Power is essential if goals are to be reached, Zahrly told those attending Thursday night's meeting of the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women. The meeting was held at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

"A strategy is important if you don't have the power to implement the strategy," said Zahrly, who teaches in the School of Business Administration at WSU.

Often, however, people shy away from appropriating power, thinking that it's just not the thing to do.

"This is particularly important for women," she said. "For so long in this society, we have not been a powerful group."

ALTHOUGH WOMEN in the U.S. and in other societies have traditionally had power within the home, their power outside of the home has been limited, she said.

Power has several bases, Zahrly told those at the AAUW meeting. Controlling resources is one source of power. Controlling a skill or a body of knowledge also provides power.

"Sometimes this body of knowledge is general knowledge. The knowledge doesn't have to be highly specialized in order to provide power, she said.

Formal authority, such as that of a president or governor, also provides power. Access to those who have power is another source.

"Many times, an executive secretary is tremendously powerful." Such secretaries control access to powerful people and thus have power in their own right, Zahrly said.

Charismatic power, based on emotional factors, is also a type of power. Charismatic power and power based on access to others aren't reliable sources, however.

"Charismatic power and access to power can be very fleeting," Zahrly gave the example of William Lucas, former Wayne County executive and GOP gubernatorial candidate, as that of a person no longer in a powerful position.

"Bill Lucas doesn't even have a job now."

ALTHOUGH HAVING power is necessary to achieve goals, it's not always an easy thing to deal with.

"Power's not always pleasant, particularly for women. Having power is a burden, a responsibility."

Allocating resources among people can be difficult, the speaker said.

"Those of you who are mothers understand this." Dividing up the supply of cookies among children can be a tough task.

Difficulties women have in handling power are based on childhood experiences, Zahrly said.

"We treat our children differently as they grow up. We give little boys more power than we do girls."

Boys are generally encouraged to play more rough-and-tumble games. They're trained to be more independent right from the start and learn to appropriate resources more than girls do.

Girls tend to play in smaller groups and more often with those their own age, Zahrly said. The "mentor relationship" built into groups of boys of various ages is lacking among girls.

Attitudes concerning relationships with others also influence people, she said. The three prevalent needs researchers have found — the need for affiliation, power and achievement — influence people's behavior in business and professional roles and in their personal lives.

RESEARCH HAS indicated that those with a high need for power, or the ability to influence others, make the best managers, she said. Those with high affiliation needs are the least effective managers and supervisors.

"You can be very polite, you can still be a nice person," Zahrly said of effective managers. It's important, however, that the need for power override the need for affiliation.

The need for power can be divided into two categories, the speaker said. Some people have a tremendous need for personal power.

"These are terrible people to work for. You'll never get any of the glory, you'll never get any of the reward."

Despite that group's shortcomings, they nevertheless make more effective managers than do those with high affiliation needs, she said.

The best kind of power is the need for socialized or institutional power, she said.

"It's what we like to think of people like ourselves as being." Having the ability to influence others, for example, has allowed Mother Teresa to achieve great things, she said.

It's only by constant reinforcement that attitudes toward power can be changed.

"It's difficult to change your needs. Those drives are built into us when we're very young."

IT'S HELPFUL to think of powerful words and of powerful actions in one's past, she said.

Managing one's image is also important, Zahrly told those at the AAUW meeting.

"I'm a business professor, so I have to dress the part. That's a power tool." Dressing and acting according to one's business/professional role is essential, she said.

Women should also try to stay out of the "female ghettos" within organizations, Zahrly said. In some organizations, women tend to be concentrated in one area, rather than being found throughout the workplace.

"You cannot always do it," Zahrly said. "Sometimes, you end up there."

Those who have control over their physical surroundings at work can use those surroundings to gain power. Placing a desk between yourself and a visitor provides you with some power.

The desk can also be moved forward to crowd the visitor just a bit.

"It's not really a cruel thing to do." Placing the furniture in such a way can help establish that you're in charge, she said.

In-and-out baskets and lamps can also be used to block off a desk, Zahrly said. Standing up during a confrontation is also helpful.

It's a good idea to look at your bases of power and to determine where you do and don't have power, she said. Other people can provide a support system to help people become more comfortable with handling power.

"Be aware of the power games that are played." Until women become more aware and learn to appropriate power, they will continue to be underrepresented in the ranks of business, politics and the professions, she said.

"It's time for us to appropriate more power."
