Haggerty paving running behind schedule

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Residents who live in the Haggerty Road, Cherry Hill area are being told to wait just a little longer.

Even though they're behind schedule, Alan Richardson, assistant county highway engineer, said he believes pavement of Haggerty between Cherry Hill and Palmer will be completed this year.

"I would guess we're about one month late at this point," Richardson said. "One of the reasons for the delay was that the gas company had improperly located the gas lines and we had to redesign the drainage system."

RESIDENTS IN the area have fought to get the gravel road paved. They've come to Canton Township Hall armed with signature petitions and have made telephone campaigns to county employees, township officials, state representatives and Wayne County commissioners seeking support.

Most recently there are rumblings about filing a lawsuit if the county doesn't pave the road this year.

Linda Cardwell, who has helped circulate petitions, said the poor conditon of the road and the high speeds drivers travel contributed to a young man driving up on her lawn last week.

The mother of two young children lives on the corner of Cumberland and Haggerty.

"Two minutes earlier a neighbor had just crossed the street with his dog," Cardwell said. "Children play out there all the time.

"If we get the road done the next thing will be stop signs. They can't use it as a drag strip."

HAGGERTY IS A county road but the bulk of paving costs has been earmarked for Federal Aid to Urban Systems money.

When the county applied for the grant it agreed the federal government would pay 75 percent of the cost and the county would pay 25 percent.

However, the township already has committed $500,000 for the road paving, said Tom Casari, Canton engineer. Therefore it's not expected the county will be kicking in money for the project.

The road will be constructed with concrete using Class A requirements, making it suitable for large trucks and heavy traffic.

The cost to pave the road is estimated at $1.9 million, which includes traffic signals and construction engineering, Richardson said.

About $1.5 million has been earmarked from FAUS funds and the local share will be $486,000.

Construction is expected to begin in fall, Richardson said.

For Canton artist, work is like play

For Canton's Sharon Lee Dillenbeck, work is like play.

Mornings at 8:30, she unlocks the door at D&M Studios quarters in Plymouth's Old Village that she shares with fellow artist and business partner Bladen McClelland.

All day long, young artists, paint kits in hand, come and go from the old white house on Mill Street. At newspaper-covered tables, Dillenbeck's students experiment with watercolors, tempras, and textures. On paper plates they create their own palettes.

"I feel excited when I walk in here, there's so much going on," said Dillenbeck, an oil painter just elected to the Plymouth Community Arts Council board.

"We paint along with the children, and provide them with the mechanics to understand how a particular medium works, and provide progressive instruction.

"We feel art is a universal gift. All children have it. You have to encourage them and make them feel like a star. Otherwise you kill the joy and cut their creativity right off."

PASTELS AND OIL paintings by Dillenbeck and McClelland brighten the pegboarded walls in the 600-square-foot studio.

In the collage of color are Plymouth scenes, European waterfronts and city squares, clowns, and kids.

As the summer, and students, progress more and more of the pieces will be replaced with the work of budding artists, said Dillenbeck, whose 4-year-old daughter Kristen is enrolled in the "Rembrandt" class for 5- and 6-year-olds.

Dillenbeck encourages students to take their easels and water buckets to the courtyard to work outside.

"Old Village is an ideal place for painting — to be free," said the Pennsylvania native, a train rumbling and tooting in the distance.

DILLENBECK AND McClelland, a former Ford Motor Co. designer, demonstrated oil and pastel techniques on the Artrain that visited Plymouth in April.

Their paintings are exhibited at Howland Designs, M-Care Health Center and the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

McClelland, who's studied with pastel guru Albert Handell, also has shown his award-winning work in galleries in Arizona where he attends workshops.

At D&M, Tuesday morning students, up to their elbows in buckets, brushes, salt and sawdust, are enjoying themselves on the second day of their texture class.

Tommy Price of Plymouth, 6, is busy mixing water colors to make silver and gray for the UFO he's about to paint.

"I like to paint because if I'm really bored, I take up time with doing art," said Tommy, a winner in the recent Isbister Arts Awards program of the PCAC.

Cliff Stewart, 7, of Canton, is on his sixth painting of the day. "It's Girl missing for 4 months stumps police

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It's been four months since Jacque Dudley left her Canton home for the last time.

Runaway reports are fairly common but police usually are able to find clues about where they've gone. That's not the case with Dudley, a student at Lowell Middle School on Hix in Westland.

Friends and family contacted by detectives haven't seen her since Feb. 17, the day her mother reported her missing.

"She more or less completely disappeared," said Canton Police Det. Charles Raycraft.

Jacque Dudley

RAYCRAFT SAID HE "doesn't see any evidence of foul play" but he's not sure if it is a runaway case, "or someone's harboring her or she's making a life for herself on the streets."

A friend, Scott Alan Simpson of Westland, was arrested for armed robbery the same day Dudley was reported missing. He said he was found not guilty of that charge and is now serving time in Phoenix Correctional Facility for breaking probation on drug and other previous charges.

"She always told me she didn't want to be there (at home) and to tell you the truth I think she found another guy," Simpson, 24, said.

Dudley is described as between 110 and 115 pounds, 5-foot-4-inches tall, blue eyes with brown to dark blonde hair.

Earlier in the day, her mother caught her trying to sneak out through a window.

DUDLEY LEFT through the front door about 3:30 p.m.

"When Jacque left there was no reasoning with her," her mother, Sandra Lacki said. "It hadn't been five minutes and I asked my husband to look for her but she was already gone. It was kind of a matter of being her own boss, and not being old enough to be.

"We just have to believe she's all right because I just couldn't survive any other way," Lacki said. "What I'd like to say is that if you're harboring a young person and they claim the situation at home is one way it might be, but find out.

"There has to be a way, if someone is taking in a child, that they can at least let the parent know if the child is all right. I'm not saying the child should be returned, because sometimes the child shouldn't be returned, but at least the family should know."

Dudley — who left without money or clothes — was last seen with a white man described to be in his 20s driving an older, white over dark blue Dodge Volare or Dodge Magnum.

SHE HAD LIVED for one year in Las Vegas with her father and moved back to stay with her mother in January 1987.

Lacki said she "kind of thinks in the back of her mind" Jacque is living with her father's relatives but has no evidence to support the idea.

"I know a lot of kids think they hate their parents but in the long run they realize they don't and they don't realize what it does to a parent," Lacki said.

The KENNY (Kids Everywhere Now Need You) Foundation, founded by Marie Edenstrom whose son Kenny Myers was kidnapped and killed two years ago, has had fliers printed providing information about Dudley. American Speedy Printing Co., provides free printing for KENNY fliers.

The number for KENNY is 398-3560.

Anyone with information about Dudley is asked to call Canton Police at 397-3000.

New cruiser controls are called success

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Limiting traffic on Main Street to one lane in each direction last weekend to provide better access for emergency vehicles was termed a rousing success by Plymouth city officials.

Seven police hires who spent their first weekend on duty also gave a good accounting of themselves, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

"They functioned superbly," Myers said. "We told them not to go out there and set any records this weekend, to get to know the system, become acquainted with Main Street and each other.

"Everybody that was on duty worked very well together."

With the center lanes of Main Street limited to emergency vehicles, five police cars were able to get to a burglary-in-progress call within minutes after it was received Friday night, Myers said.

THAT PROBABLY wouldn't have been possible earlier when cruisers clogged all four lanes of Main and fewer officers were assigned to crowd control.

"It provided us with an excellent, safe area for police officers to work in," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager. "It helped reduce noise generally caused by cruising."

Many city residents with whom he talked last weekend, especially those who live near Main, welcomed the barricading of the inside lanes, Sincock said.

"They felt very positive about the program. They felt this was a viable approach."

However, that feeling wasn't unanimous.

"I think there are some businesses who felt negatively impacted by the experience," Sincock said. "We tried to accommodate as much as possible left turns into open businesses but it was discouraged."

"Some residents were put out they couldn't use the most direct route," Myers said.

MOTORISTS generally could get off Main Street only by making right turns. Right turns weren't allowed from westbound Ann Arbor Road to northbound Main or Harvey streets.

The parking lots of businesses on Main that had closed for the night again were barricaded to discourage trespassing and loitering.

Power named to U-M board

By Susan Rosiek
staff writer

Creating a stronger bond between business and higher education will be a primary goal of newly appointed University of Michigan Regent Philip H. Power.

Power, chairman of the board of Suburban Communications Inc., parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, was appointed Wednesday to the U-M Board of Regents by Gov. James Blanchard.

The 49-year-old newspaper publisher will fill the unexpired term of his late wife, Sarah. The eight regents serve eight-year terms. He would have to decide in 1990 whether to seek re-election.

Power's father, Eugene, founder of University Microfilms Inc., served on the board for 10 years.

"I just hope I can be as good a board member as my father and Sarah," said Power, who graduated summa cum laude from the U-M in 1960.

POWER, a Democrat, said he did not seek the U-M appointment.

"The governor called and asked if I would be interested in serving. My immediate response was to think about it. It's a challenging job; it consumes a lot of time. I wanted to be sure I had the time to devote to it and the physical and emotional energy needed for the job," said Power.

U-M president Harold Shapiro, in a statement released by his office Wednesday, praised the appointment.

"Since his days as a student here, Phil Power has demonstrated an enormous capacity for leadership and a tireless commitment to the interests of the university and the state of Michigan.

"We can all expect to profit from his dedication, wise counsel and long experience in public affairs. His presence on our governing board will be a great asset to the U-M in the years ahead," Shapiro said.

Larry Good, associate director of the Michigan Job Training Council of which Power is a member, said:

Gas balloon race is scheduled

The first gas balloon race ever staged in Michigan will begin in Plymouth and end in Plymouth, Mass.

Five gas balloon pilots are being lined up to compete in a race beginning Friday, Oct. 9, in Plymouth. The winning pilot is expected to land in Plymouth, Mass., sometime Sunday, Oct. 11.

While Plymouth-Canton residents are quite familiar with hot air balloon races, the October event will be the first appearance gas balloons competitions have made in this area. Gas balloons can travel much higher at a faster speed over much farther distances than propane-powered balloons.

While a hot air balloon normally travels for an hour up to about 30 miles, a gas balloon can easily make the Michigan to Massachusetts trip.

The October race is expected to take a day and a night.

THE EVENT, also the first gas balloon race ever held across the Great Lakes, is being staged as a fund-raiser for Straight, Inc., the organization which helps young people overcome drug habits.

'I can just see us flying over Lake Erie or Lake Ontario. Or what about Niagara Falls?
— Gorden Boring

The promoters are the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth and the Governors Motor Inns in Massachusetts. The planners are Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel, Gorden Boring, president of the Wicker Basket Balloon Center in Plymouth, and Carl Faukner, president of the Governors Inns.

The significance of Faukner's involvement is that he owns two hotels in Plymouth, Mass., to provide the destination points plus a hotel in Rochester, N.Y., and Williams, Mass., which offer targets enroute.

Last week Lorenz and Boring traveled to Plymouth, Mass., to meet with Faukner to iron out more details of the race.

While there, Lorenz and Boring took an aerial reconnaissance of the Plymouth, Mass., area to identify suitable areas where a gas balloon could be landed. The airplane pilot was Chris Pitroskey, former Canton resident who was a partner in the Hillside Inn in Plymouth before moving to Plymouth, Mass., a couple of years ago.

BORING, one of the five competing gas balloon pilots, is well known in this area as co-sponsor with Lorenz of the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival — to be staged this year July 3-5.

There are only about 20 gas balloon pilots in the United States and only about 12-15 races each year in the nation, said Boring.

The five pilots will be in touch with a communication center throughout the race, and Boring and Lorenz will be in telephone contact with disc jockeys during the competition — beginning with J.P. McCarthy in Detroit continuing with DJs across New York and Massachusetts.

"This will be an exciting race," said Lorenz. "I can just see us flying over Lake Erie or Lake Ontario. Or what about Niagara Falls? I once said I'd never fly in a gas balloon, but now I'm ready."

The five balloons in the race will each carry 2,500 pieces of air mail. The commemorative envelopes will be sold for $10 each during the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival at the Centennial Educational Park site. People buying the four-color balloon mail will fill out their names and addresses on the stamped cover.

As each ballon lands in Massachusetts (hopefully), the mail will be taken to a post office to be post marked and mailed back to the purchasers.

The proceeds from the sale of the gas balloon race mail will benefit Straight, Inc., located in Plymouth on Ann Arbor Road just west of I-275.

Another fund-raiser for Straight will be the sale in September of a Buckley Moss oil painting of the Mayflower Hotel's new hot air balloon tethered alongside the Mayflower II in Plymouth, Mass.

Photographs of the two Mayflowers together were taken last week while Lorenz and Boring were in Plymouth, Mass. That original will be auctioned off at a $150-a-plate reception in September in the Meeting House.

Canton woman dies of accident injuries

A 25-year-old Canton woman died from injuries after being struck by a car while walking on Ford Road last Sunday.

Delores Pelarske was walking in the roadway on Ford Road west of Haggerty about 11 p.m. June 14 when she was struck by a 1988 GMC pickup driven by a 61-year-old Utica man driving east in the right lane, Canton Police information officer Dave Boljesic said.

She died at 7:40 p.m. Monday in the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor, according to Canton Police Det. Keith Lazar.

The woman, who had no identification on her, was identified by her boyfriend Monday evening, Lazar said. He had asked about her whereabouts with hospitals and Canton Police.

Man drowns in pond

A 29-year-old Ypsilanti man drowned in a pond in Plymouth Township Sunday night, township police reported.

The body of Rickie A. Dunn was pulled from Napier Pond east of Napier Road north of Ann Arbor Road by Wayne County Sheriff's Department divers at 10:53 p.m.

A police report indicated that a witness said Dunn went under water and re-appeared on the surface a couple of times before he drowned.

Dunn was fully clothed at the time and had been drinking, police accounts indicated.

Township police were called at 8:47 p.m. Sheriff's divers arrived on the scene at 9:53 p.m.

Canton seniors show off crafts

Margaret Oweil models a quilted vest she made.

PLENTY OF eye-catching arts and crafts items were on display Monday afternoon at the Canton Recreation Center.

The Canton Seniors held its fifth annual "Craft Show-Off" at the center. About 20 seniors displayed arts and crafts items, said Louise Spigarelli, assistant coordinator for the Canton Seniors.

"Then we had seniors coming in and out all day taking a look at what they had."

The crafts are from the Wayne-Westland Adult Community Education classes held at the center, on Michigan Avenue at Sheldon in Canton.

Wood carvings, oil paintings, quilting and assorted needle crafts were on display. The show also featured home decor projects, such as country crafts.

The "Craft Show-Off" event was combined with the beginning of registration for the Wayne-Westland Adult Community Education fall classes.

THE MONDAY afternoon event wasn't quite as successful as the previous "Craft Show-Off" events were, according to Spigarelli.

The Canton Seniors have been busy with a number of other activities in recent weeks. In mid-May, they participated in the "Follies" held at John Glenn High School in Westland. The event featured more than 100 seniors and had a sesquicentennial theme, "A Salute to Michigan."

More recently, the Canton Seniors participated in the Canton Country Festival parade. They had a float in the parade, which was held last Saturday.

"So they've been doing all kinds of things," Spigarelli said.

DILLENBECK is a retired J.L. Hudson Co. buyer/merchandise manager. Before resigning to have a family in 1983, she traveled 27 weeks a year to the Orient and domestic markets developing sportswear.

"I was always basically a designer. When you're an importer, you help with styling and coloring," said the Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate.

Now, Dillenbeck finds time for "weekly therapy sessions" — lessons with well-known Michigan artist Vicki Brett at Schoolcraft College.

And she's got the support of husband Larry. "He bought me a drawing table after Kristen was born with a card attached that said, 'To Mommy, from Kristen, so I don't take up all your time,'" said Dillenbeck.

Nor has the arrival of a second child, Erin, slowed Dillenbeck. At 2½, Kristen's sister already has dabbled in the arts. "She knows to put the top on markers so they don't dry up," said Dillenbeck.

While "you don't make a lot of money" in the fine arts, it's gratifying, agree McClelland and Dillenbeck.

"It's rewarding just to see a finished work — an interpretation of value and color so others can appreciate it. It's another way of looking at things," said McClelland.

"I think the arts are really special," said Dillenbeck.

"There isn't enough out there."

New controls called success

The center lanes of Main were blocked by city work crews Friday afternoon, opened Saturday morning, then closed again Saturday night.

The cost to rent construction barrels and the overtime to put them in place amounted to just over $2,000, Sincock said.

Police last weekend issued about 130 tickets, excluding parking citations, Myers said.

Nineteen were for seat belt violations and 19 for license, title and insurance infractions.

Fourteen tickets were handed out for unnecessary or excessive noise, 11 for minors in possession of alcoholic beverages, eight each for disorderly conduct and disobeying a traffic signal, seven for speeding and five each for improper turns and careless driving.

Power named to U-M board of regents

"His work here shows he works well with groups and has an excellent policy mind. He should serve the U-M well."

Power views his new appointment as a continuation of efforts to make Michigan an international competitor in higher education and economic development.

POWER BRINGS impressive educational and public service credentials to the board.

A Marshall scholar, he has bachelor's and master's degrees from University College, Oxford, England, where he studied philosophy, economics and politics. He did postgraduate work at the U-M.

Power is chairman of the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council and is a member of the Governor's Cabinet Council on Human Investment and Michigan High Technology Task Force.

He is often credited as being the catalyst behind the effort to reshape the state's job training structure and to re-evaluate statewide human resource policies.

He was a member of the Governor's Commission on the Future of Higher Education, which emphasized the vital partnership between the state's higher education system and economic development. As a result of recommendations from the commission, state government created a program of investment in research at the state's four major research universities. Called the Research Excellence and Economic Development Fund, the program allocates $25 million to research activities related to economic development.

Power called the U-M a "big, complicated place" and said that despite his background and close ties to the school, it would "take a few years to become familiar with all the issues."

AS A REGENT, Power said he'll be concerned with the broad issues.

"Regents don't run the university. They are like a board of directors. Regents are responsible to the state and the university in setting policy," he said.

No political harm in divorce

Blanchards split amicably at 21-year mark

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The pending divorce of James and Paula Blanchard will do minimal damage to his political career, but friends say it may explain why the governor has shown little leadership in his second term.

"I'm like an old father to him," said Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, former Senate majority leader, who would get Sunday phone calls from the governor. "I had no idea things were not going well.

"There has not been strong command from the executive office," Faust said. "Perhaps it (domestic problem) explains the slow pace."

"It has to affect him somewhat," said Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton. "But he's enough of a professional to devote his time to the office."

Another veteran senator, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, said he saw "no impairment" of Blanchard's recent performance.

"IT WILL NEVER cause him to win or lose an election," said Jerry D. Roe, Lansing public relations consultant and history buff.

Blanchard would be the first serving governor of Michigan to be divorced, and probably the only one ever divorced, said Roe, the state's acknowledged expert on gubernatorial biographies.

"Politics does it to a marriage," said Roe, former executive director of the Republican Party and himself divorced. "It's an unrealistic way of living. All of a sudden Joe Smith becomes 'the Honorable.' People are bowing and scraping.

"Then you come home at night to reality. No one is more honest than your wife."

Roe listed many political divorces — U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, state Senate Majority Leader John and Rep. Colleen Engler, House Speaker Gary Owen, and a long list of congressmen.

When Lt. Gov. James Brickley campaigned for governor in 1982, his divorce was never an issue.

In years past, said former Gov. George W. Romney, divorce may have been a political liability, "but not anymore."

"A SURPRISE to me," said Sen. Faxon, who marched with Blanchard in the Memorial Day parade in Ferndale, where Blanchard was born 44 years ago.

Paula Blanchard was not with the governor, Faxon recalled, but he hardly noticed at the time because "it makes better sense to me if spouses don't attend those things. Many times Bill Milliken (governor 1969-82) attended things by himself."

Faxon noted that Nelson Rockefeller was divorced while governor of New York, mounted a strong presidential campaign in 1968 and then was appointed vice president in 1974.

The last time divorce was discussed as a political issue was 1952, Faxon said, when Democrat Adlai Stevenson was defeated for the presidency. A Stevenson fan, Faxon doubted the divorce was a factor.

Rep. Kosteva said he had heard "not a word" about the breakup until Tuesday.

State Democratic chairman Richard Wiener is in the Soviet Union until June 30 and was unavailable for comment.

FOR MONTHS, newspaper columnists have criticized Blanchard for lack of leadership on major issues facing the state:

- Road funds — he opposes more taxes.
- Property tax reform — he advocated expansion of the homestead exemption, no major change.
- School finance reform — no position.
- Reorganization of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority — no position.
- Product liability.
- State court unification — no budget money.

Replied Tom Scott, Blanchard's press secretary: "People saying he had a mandate (from his 2-1 re-election victory) either 1) wanted to raise taxes, 2) are his political opponents or 3) wanted to see him stumble politically."

Scott said Blanchard's priority has been "an ambitious human investment strategy," denying the governor failed to show leadership.

RUMORS ABOUT possible marital difficulties between the Blanchards had circulated for a year in the state Capitol press corps, but not one had printed a word.

The news came the governor's press office, which left a pack of releases in the House Press Room during lunch hour Tuesday. It came during the busiest week of the year for the Legislature, scheduled to adjourn today for the summer.

The two-page release said that at 11:45 that morning, Paula Blanchard began a no-fault divorce action in Ingham Circuit Court.

Representing Paula Blanchard is Lansing attorney Camille S. Abood. Representing the governor will be F. Thomas Lewand, Birmingham attorney, Blanchard's one-time campaign manager and first chief of staff.

"Longstanding irreconcilable differences in their marital relationship compel this decision at this time. The decision to end our marriage has been made after many months of thought and discussion," their announcement said.

"It has been an extremely difficult decision to reach. We want our friends and supporters to know that we intend to continue an amicable relationship both personally and professionally."

THE BLANCHARDS were married June 18, 1966 — 21 years ago today — shortly after Paula, a Clarkston native, earned her teaching degree from Michigan State University.

Blanchard earned his bachelor's degree from MSU in 1964 and master of business administration degree in 1965.

Mrs. Blanchard taught fourth grade in Minnesota while her husband was earning his law degree, which he received in 1968.

Mrs. Blanchard had held an unpaid job in the Corimmerce Department promoting Michigan products. Several months ago she left it for a part-time position at MSU as director of Telstate, an audio and video production unit. She is working on a master's degree in telecommunications, which she expects to receive by fall.

The Blanchards petitioned for a temporary order for financial support. They agreed to joint custody of son Jay, 16. They expect to reach "a comprehensive and equitable financial settlement."

Mrs. Blanchard will reside in Okemos, a Lansing suburb, where Jay will be a high school senior in the fall. They will continue to have State Police protection.

Blanchard will continue to reside in the executive residence near the Red Cedar River southwest of the Capitol Building.

Finn fest

Schoolcraft is site of ethnic celebration

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Nearly 5,000 Finnish-Americans are expected to descend upon western Wayne County next weekend for Finnfest-USA '87.

The event will be held at Schoolcraft College, June 25-28.

Concerts, folk dancing, plays, lectures and exhibits are scheduled. Marchers in traditional Finnish costumes will participate in opening ceremonies at 5 p.m. Thursday, June 25.

"WE HOPE it's something everyone can enjoy," local coordinator Roy Jurva of Redford Township said.

A juhannus, meaning mid-summer festival, with a kokko, meaning bonfire, and sauna, no translation necessary, will also be featured.

"A juhannus is a mid-summer festival, literally it describes a day when the sun never sets," Jurva said.

Though it celebrates Finnish culture, the event is open to all people.

It's no mere ethnic festival, either. Panel discussions of the Finnish religious and cultural heritage are also planned. The role of Finns in the U.S. auto industry and the history of Finnish-American diplomatic relations are among discussion topics.

Softball games, a track meet and a golf outing are planned. A visit to Cranbrook Academy is also planned. The Bloomfield Hills academy was designed by Finnish architects Eliel and Eero Saarinen.

An art show featuring ceramics, paintings, woodcarvings and stained glass will be presented at Schoolcraft's Physical Education Building during the weekend.

The event coincides with the 70th anniversary of Finland's independence from the USSR and Michigan's sesquicentennial. Tributes to both occasions will be offered. Gov. James Blanchard and Finnish Labor Minister Urpo Leppanen are among the VIPs invited to attend.

Finnish language religious services will be held at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Livonia, St. John's American Lutheran Church of Farmington, Emanuel Lutheran Church and Apostolic Lutheran Church, Southfield.

Northwest Detroit contains the largest concentration of Finns in lower Michigan.

"ONE OF the reasons this area was chosen was because of its large Finnish population," Jurva said.

The Upper Pennisula contains the copper country "pesapaikka," or nesting place, perhaps the largest Finnish-American population in the U.S.

Finnish and Finnish-American films will be shown. Finnish-made goods also will be on sale.

The Detroit/Livonia Finnfest is the fourth of its kind. Previous festivals have been held in Minneapolis, Berkeley, Calif., Massachusetts and Hancock in the Upper Pennisula. It is directed by the Suomi Seura (Finland Society).

Information on daily and four-day registration fees are available by calling 348-1037.

Variety highlights festival schedule

Here's a schedule of events that will be featured at the three-day celebration. Most events will be held at Schoolcraft College, Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

Golf tourney benefits Our Lady of Providence

The Our Lady of Providence Center Golf Tournament will be held June 27 at Mission Hills Golf Course in Plymouth.

"It started out to be just a fun thing," said Russell Neumann, co-owner of the Lile Neumann Insurance Agency in Royal Oak, and one of the organizers of the tournament.

"We wanted to get some friends together, play some golf and have some dinner and some drinks. Then, as things grew, someone got the idea to use the outing as a way to raise money for charity."

PICKING Our Lady of Providence Center as the recipient of the group's good will was the easy part, said Neumann.

All of the friends became better acquainted with the center for developmentally disabled young girls because of one of their buddies.

Larry Wichman of Canton, an advertising and production manager for Business News Publishing Co. of Troy, and wife, Susan, had taken a young woman at the center to their home to live.

"We brought Paula into our home full-time in 1985," said Wichman, a member of the center's board of directors. "Before that, we brought her home on weekends."

Besides Neumann and Wichman, others organizing the tournament include Fred Chapman and Fred Gazel of Troy, Dick Hunt of Huntington Woods, John Michalak of Clawson, Bill Fain of Warren, Cliff Smith of Livonia, Jim Samoni of Birmingham, and Tim O'Connor of Royal Oak.

They already have sold out the 90-some spots for the charity tournament, even though none had ever organized a golf tournament before.

"It's been a learning process," said Chapman, sales office manager at DeVlieg Machine Co., Royal Oak. "But so far it's working."

THE GROUP hopes to raise more than $2,000 for Sister Theresa Tamburo, director of Our Lady of Providence Center.

"We've contacted several businesses and friends who have donated various prizes in an effort to ensure the tournament's success," said Neumann. "We have prizes ranging from golf balls to a set of custom-made irons."

Sister Tamburo said the center's 65 staff members provide a variety of educational and counseling services for the young women at a cost of about $100 a day.

"We could use about 10 golf tournaments," Sister Tamburo added. "More and more we are relying on grants and gifts. We are delighted with the golf tournament and hope it take root to become an annual thing."

The center was founded in 1957 and is licensed to provide residential care for 100 people.

'We are delighted with the golf tournament and hope it takes root to become an annual thing.'

SEMTA splits '88 grants

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

SEMTA trustees voted to split state and federal grants 65-35 percent with the Detroit Department of Transportation on Tuesday in a compromise designed to keep both agencies afloat.

Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority board members unanimously adopted a fiscal 1988 budget after lengthy debate on the city's share.

Detroit's share is $2 million below that sought by city officials. But exceeds the 62 percent share backed by some suburban SEMTA trustees. Detroit Mayor Coleman Young told trustees in writing the proposed 62-38 split was unacceptable.

With $2 million shifted to its side of the ledger, SEMTA will receive slightly more than $31.2 million for its tri-county transporation activities. A $538,300 surplus is included.

Detroit will receive $58 million to operate its bus routes.

As the area's regional transportation authority, SEMTA receives all state and federal grants, then distributes them to local transportation programs.

SEMTA HAD planned to ask the state for an additional $4.5 million subsidy, but the newly approved budget makes the request unnecessary, SEMTA spokesman Michael Niemann said.

SEMTA had planned to spend $19 million on major bus routes, a $2.6 million increase over last year. Transportation credits given to member muncipalities were to have decreased by $613,200. Both figures may be slightly altered to reflect SEMTA's final share.

SEMTA budgets need to be ratified by a two-thirds majority. But because three of Detroit's four representatives were absent, the budget needed to be approved by all 10 members in attendance. By law, SEMTA needed to approve the budget by July 1. That fact didn't go unnoticed by Macomb County delegate George Killeen.

"I voted yes, but it's a reluctant yes," Killeen said. "But we better get some fiscal responsibility here. Now they're (Detroit) going to say, it's OK because SEMTA voted yes."

Board members acknowleged television and newspaper accounts of alleged corruption in the Detroit system.

Tuesday's debate was indicative of the Detroit-suburban rift that has threatened SEMTA operations at various times over the past five years.

At least two bills are pending in the state Legislature to overhaul or abolish SEMTA.

Senate boosts school aid bill

AP — After rejecting an amendment to curb a program aimed at limiting high school dropouts, the Michigan Senate has approved three education budget bills for the coming fiscal year.

The Senate also passed a bill that would require lottery winners of $5,000 or more to pay any debts owed to the state from their jackpots.

The education bills now go back to the House for consideration of Senate changes. The bills are scheduled to be sent to joint House-Senate conference committees to work out final language.

The bills are part of the nearly $6.5 billion state budget proposed for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. They would finance Michigan schools, community colleges and the Department of Education.

SEN. HARMON Cropsey, R-Decatur, unsuccessfully proposed amendments to the Education Department and school aid bills to cut five department staffers and shift money from a program designed to reduce the dropout rate in Michigan schools. That change would have affected about $10 million.

He said that would provide more funds to let schools spend as they wished and needed. "The way to improve education is to put the money out on the front lines, in the local districts," Cropsey said.

Cropsey's amendments failed to gather even half of the 20 votes needed to adopt them.

● TRAINING MENTORS

Youth Development is a diversion program, in cooperation with the Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township police departments and Growth Works, for juvenile first-time offenders. The program is designed for both the youth and his/her parents as an alternative to the juvenile court system.

Growth Works trains volunteers to work on a weekly basis with the youth. The training covers communication skills, empathy listening skills, building and bonding relationships, alcohol and substance abuse, decision making, consequences of behavior, parenting skills, and crisis intervention. Training sessions totaling about 20 hours is open to all interested people willing to commit to at least six months of about three hours per week. For information, call Sue Davis, 455-4902 Monday through Friday.

● CANCER VOLUNTEERS

Anyone will to serve as a van driver or in another volunteer capacity in the Michigan Cancer Foundation office on Main Street in Plymouth may call the foundation's West Service Center at 336-4110 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Volunteer drivers last year logged more than 34,000 miles. Because radiation therapy and chemotherapy often require daily visits for several weeks, a patient often will have two, three or more drivers during the course of one week's treatment. Michigan Cancer Foundation is a Plymouth Community FundUnited Way Agency.

● AMATEUR PERFORMERS

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is updating its list of amateur performers who are willing to share their time and talent with students. The resource list is provided by the PCAC to all elementary teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Particularly needed this year are dancers, singers and musicians. If you or someone you know has a special skill they are willing to share, call Pat MacIsaac at 453-8051.

● FIRST STEP VOLUNTEERS

Anyone interested in volunteering for First Step, the western Wayne County project on domestic assault, may call Theresa Bizoe at 525-2230 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. "Our volunteers come from all walks of life. They are sensitive, caring people interested in helping families to see alternatives to living in violence," says Judy McDonald, executive director of the center in Westland. Volunteers provide services such as peer counselors, child advocates, 24-hour crisis line workers, night managers, fund-raising, community education.

Nankin Transit fares increase

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Cutbacks in federal and state funding have forced the Nankin Transit Commission to double its dial-a-ride fare and could mean an end of the service to area residents by next March.

But Charles Hunter, NTC executive director, has pledged to keep the system operating at the current level "until we run out of money."

The fare for a one-way trip will go from 75 cents to $1.50 beginning Wednesday, July 1.

The latest blow for the small bus service — which serves Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and Wayne — came last month when the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority informed the NTC that it was withdrawing its $400,000 contribution for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The SEMTA move was the result of that organization's budget crunch, Hunter said.

HE SAID SEMTA money amounted to 45 percent of the NTC budget.

The NTC director said the timing of SEMTA's decision was almost as bad as the move itself.

"They didn't give us enough time to go to the city or the community and raise additional money," he said.

The federal government has discontinued funding for small bus services as well, according to Hunter.

For the next eight months the NTC system, which provides local mass transportation for the elderly, handicapped and others, will run primarily on money collected through the fare boxes and from state gas and weight taxes.

Hunter said no cutbacks in service are planned though.

"The last time we faced a crisis (October 1983), we cut back our service. If we make any further cuts, the system won't be able to operate at all."

The NTC will continue to operate 12 mini buses and won't discontinue any of its current routes, Hunter said.

He said the system serves 425 riders per day.

The NTC director said there will be some "minor reductions" in the program's administrative cost to ensure that the service stays operational as long as possible.

NTC BUSES have serviced about 750,000 riders since the system was introduced in 1976.

Hunter said a last-ditch effort will be made during the next eight months to save the dial-a-ride service, but he said he didn't see much hope given the tight budget the Westland City Council approved this month.

"We're going to talk to the city, but barring a miracle, I don't see how we can continue with things the way they are now," he said.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH
MICHIGAN

An ordinance to amend Chapter 112 Fire Prevention Regulations of the Plymouth City Code entitled Fire Prevention Regulations by adding Sections 9.219 through 9.222 for the regulation of fireworks.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Commission of the City of Plymouth DOES ORDAIN:

Section 1, Chapter 112, Fire Prevention Regulations is amended by adding Sections 9.219 through 9.222, as indicated.

Definitions

Sec. 9.219 As used in this chapter:

(a) "Fireworks" means a device made from explosive or flammable compositions used primarily for the purpose of producing a visible display or audible effect, or both, by combustion, deflagration, or detonation. Fireworks includes class B fireworks and class C fireworks.

(b) "Class B fireworks" means toy torpedoes, railway torpedoes, firecrackers or salutes that do not qualify as class C fireworks, exhibition display pieces, aeorplane flares, illuminating projectiles, incendiary projectiles, incendiary grenades, smoke projectiles or bombs containing expelling charges but without bursting charges, flash powders in inner units not exceeding 2 ounces each, flash sheets in interior packages, flash powder or spreader cartridges containing not more than 72 grains of flash powder each, and other similar devices.

(c) "Class C fireworks" means toy smoke devices, toy caps containing not more than 25 grains of explosive mixture, toy propellant devices, cigarette loads, trick matches, trick noise makers, smoke candles, smoke pots, smoke grenades, smoke signals, hand signal devices, Very signal cartridges, sparklers, explosive auto alarms, and other similar devices.

Sale, possession, transportation, use, prohibited

9.220 Except as provided in section 9.221 and 9.222, a person, firm, partnership, or corporation shall not offer for sale, expose for sale, sell at retail, keep with intent to sell at retail, possess, give, furnish, transport, use, explode, or cause to explode any of the following:

(a) A blank cartridge, blank cartridge pistol, toy cannon, toy cane, or toy gun in which explosives are used.

(b) An unmanned balloon which requires fire underneath to propel it and is not moored to the ground while aloft.

(c) Firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, roman candles, daygo bombs, bottle rockets, whistling chasers, rockets on sticks, or other fireworks of like construction.

(d) Fireworks containing an explosive or inflammable compound or a tablet or other device commonly used and sold as fireworks containing nitrates, fulminates, chlorates, oxalates, dulphides of lead, barium, antimony, arsenic, mercury, nitroglycerine, phosphorus, or a compound containing these or other modern explosives.

Exceptions

9.221 A permit is not required for the following:

(a) Flat paper caps containing not more than .25 of a grain of explosive content per cap, in packages labeled to indicate the maximum explosive content per cap.

(b) Toy pistols, toy cannons, toy canes, toy trick noise makers, and toy guns of a type approved by the director of the department of state police in which paper caps as described in subdivision (a) are used and which are so constructed that the hand cannot come in contract with the cap when in place for the explosion and which are not designed to break apart or be separated so as to form a missile by the explosion.

(c) Sparklers containing not more than .0125 pounds of burning portion per sparkler.

(d) Flitter sparklers in paper tubes not exceeding ¼ inch in diameter, cone fountains, and cylinder fountains.

(e) Toy snakes not containing mercury, if packed in cardboard boxes with not more than 12 pieces per box for retail sale and if the manufacturer's name and the quantity contained in each box are printed on the box, and toy smoke devices.

(f) Possession, transportation, sale, or use of signal flares of a type approved by the director of the department of state police, blank cartridges or blank cartridges pistols specifically for a show or theater, for the training or exhibiting of dogs, for signal purposes in athletic sports, for use by military organizations, and all items described in section 9.220 used by railroads for emergency signal purposes.

(g) The sale of fireworks, provided they are to be shipped directly out of state pursuant to regulations of the United States department of transportation covering the transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles by motor, rail, and water.

9.222 Permit for use of fireworks; application; purpose of use; age limitation

(1) The City Commission, upon application in writing, on forms provided by the city Administration, may grant a permit for the use of fireworks otherwise prohibited by section 9.219, within the City, manufactured for outdoor pest control or agricultural purposes, or for public display by municipalities, fair associations, amusement parks, or other organizations or groups of individuals, if the applicable provisions of this act are complied with. The permits shall be on forms provided by the City Administration. After a permit has been granted, sales, possession, or transportation of fireworks for the purposes described in the permit only may be made. A permit granted under this section shall not be transferable, nor shall a permit be issued to a person under the age of 18 years.

(2) The City Commission, upon application in writing, may grant a permit, on forms provided by the City Administration, to a resident wholesale dealer or jobber to have in his possession within the City, fireworks otherwise prohibited by section 9.219 for sale only to holders of permits as provided in this section. A permit granted under this subsection is not transferable, nor shall a permit be issued to a person under the age of 18 years.

(3) Before a permit for a pyrotechnic display is issued, the person, firm, or corporation making application therefore shall furnish proof of financial responsibility by a bond or insurance in an amount deemed necessary by the City Commission to satisfy claims for damages to property or personal injuries arising out of an act or omission on the part of the person, firm, or corporation, or an agent or employee thereof, in the amount, character, and form the City Commission determines necessary for the protection of the public.

(4) A permit shall not be issued under this act to a nonresident person, firm, or corporation for conduct of a pyrotechnic display in this state until the person, firm, or corporation has appointed in writing a resident agent to be his legal representative upon whom all process in an action or proceeding against him may be served.

(5) The City Commission shall rule on the competency and qualifications of operators of pyrotechnic displays, as the operator has furnished in his application form, and on the time, place, and safety aspects of the displays before granting permits."

Section 2. This ordinance is deemed to be an emergency ordinance and therefore shall become operative and effective immediately.

Made, passed, and adopted by the City Commission of the City of Plymouth, Michigan, this 15th day of June A.D. 1987.

Local sites absent from EPA audit

No western Wayne County sites were included in the reportedly bogus asbestos inspections criticized in a recent Environmental Protection Agency audit, an EPA spokesman said.

The audit blasted inspection efforts in Wayne County as a whole. It concluded that 36 of 41 Wayne County inspections were "not bona fide," in some cases because asbestos was removed before the inspector's visit.

None of the reportedly bogus inspections occurred in Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth or Redford, Canton or Plymouth townships, EPA Audit Manager Lee Stevens said.

"None were in that area," he said. "They were primarily in Detroit."

The audit covered 1985-6 inspections of asbestos manufacturing and fabricating plants, asbestos-containing buildings scheduled for demolition, sites where machinery is sprayed with asbestos-containing fire retardants and asbestos disposal sites.

Asbestos removal was required in schools and other public buildings in the 1970s, after it was discovered to be a cancer causing agent. It was once heavily used as a fire-prevention coating and in sound-deadening material.

Widespread mismanagement of asbestos-removal programs in Michigan and Illinois was uncovered by the audit, a U.S. Congressman said.

Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., called Detroit and Chicago-area inspections too lenient.

"According to the audit, people who work or live near asbestos disposal facilities or buildings containing asbestos that will be demolished or renovated may well be exposed to cancer-causing asbestos fibers," Florio said in releasing the audit.

Inspections were inadequate, the audit said, because:

● Inspectors didn't or only partially observed removal efforts from specific sites.

● Removal notices weren't filed in time to schedule inspections.

● State and local inspectors used inadequate inspection checklists.

● State did too little or were too late in correcting deficiencies at asbestos manufacturing or fabricating plants. The audit reported 32 of 37 outstate inspections were inadequate. No sites were mentioned by name.

Grand Prix 'unsung hero' to be honored

Nominations are sought for "unsung heroes" of this year's Detroit Grand Prix automobile race.

The award honors individuals or organizations who made major, though unheralded, contributions to this year's race. Road crew members, reporters, cab drivers and city officials are among the eligible nominees.

Last year's award went to race chairman Robert Pierson of Farmington Hills.

Nominations may be made at David Wachler & Sons jewelry stores at 200 Renaissance Center, Detroit, or 100 S. Woodward, Birmingham. Wachler & Sons created the prize.

Nominations may also be mailed to: Detroit's Grand Prix winner, 111 S. Woodward, Suite 203, Birmingham, Mich. 48011

Group targets 'job training itch'

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

'Nationwide, $40 billion was spent on retraining and education programs by business last year. In this area, that translates into millions and millions.'
—Dr. John Graves
executive director

Dr. John Graves thinks local business has an itch that adult education programs need help in scratching. He thinks as executive director of the Metropolitan Education Commission, he can show local educators where the itch is and how deep they'll have to dig at it to make it stop.

The itch is the enormous — and potentially lucrative — need local businesses, big and small, have to constantly train and retrain their workers.

The scratch is programs designed specifically for individual businesses. Most of the time, the scratch these says is provided by public-sector companies who come in and train another business' employees. That scratch, said Graves, should be furnished by local adult education programs acting in concert with local business.

GRAVES IS a former public school administrator (assistant high school principal in Livonia) who has spent most of the last 10 years working for such firms as Chrysler and General Motors, helping them design and expand their training programs.

Having helped GM spend $200 million a year on retraining, Graves knows first hand that there is money to be made by local school districts, money that is now being made by private business such as Inacomp, which does computer training, for example.

The problem, said Graves, is that until now, most adult education courses have been for personal enhancement, with too little concern for the pragmatic questions of career advancement and practical training.

"I'm not opposed to private vendors," said Graves, who became the Metropolitan Education Commission's first executive director June 1. "They filled the void when public education didn't recognize the need. But my point is that I think public education can compete with private vendors and beat them in cost effectiveness.

"WE KNOW that it can be very financially rewarding for school districts and very financially rewarding for businesses. We want this to be a win-win situation for everybody. The mission of a school district is to provide educational opportunities for the community. All we're doing is expanding the definition of community to the factory population, expanding to business and industry."

The Metropolitan Education Commission is the brainchild of Gerald Dunn, a state lobbyist and the executive secretary for the Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation (MAISL).

It is a 13-member consortium of local school districts and universities, with Graves' task to expand their adult education programs through industry contracts.

"WE HAVE to survey the business and see what they need," said Graves. "It's the opposite of what school districts have done in the past, which is telling and selling. Instead of telling what the needs are, we'll identify them, then tailor the programs to fit the needs."

The commission's first-year budget is $117,000, out of which Graves' salary of $65,000 is paid. He has a small office provided by the Garden City Board of Education. Each of the school entities in the commission chipped in $9,000 for first-year operations. If a majority of the members decided after the first year that they didn't get their money's worth, the program will end.

"If we don't prove it works, we're out of business," said Gravs. "We'll generate at least enough to cover all costs and be able to represent our members (in the second year) without cost. I think that will be easy."

SO FAR, the commission has no clients. But Graves has been in the post less than two weeks and is just beginning to set up meetings with area business leaders. He said he expects to have his first contract by the fall.

"Nationwide, $40 billion was spent on retraining and education programs by business last year. In this area, that translates into millions and millions.

Graves said basic computer training is one area where local school districts can help in businesses and factories. Another is something known as Statistical Process Control, a computerized plotting and graphing method of quality control.

He said other areas are employability skill training, where workers about to be laid off are trained for new jobs and shown how to write resumes and find jobs; explaining the Right to Know Law to businesses and helping them meet its requirements; and organizing expanded auto-mechanic or welding classes at area community colleges.

MEMBERS OF the commission are the Garden City Public Schools.

Senate OKs 3 education budget bills

THE SCHOOL AID bill, adopted 35-0, calls for $606.9 million in general fund money — the state's main checking account — and $2.38 billion in total spending for Michigan's kindergarten through 12th grade schools.

That is $35.5 million higher than the level for this fiscal year. It is $29.5 million over Gov. James J. Blanchard's recommendation.

The community college bill, passed 34-2, totals $198.8 million in state spending. That's up $11.4 million from current levels and $2 million from Blanchard's recommendation.

The Department of Education budget bill, passed 31-6, would provide $45 million in general fund money and $56.1 million in total spending, once federal funds are added. The general fund portion is up $7.7 million from current spending and $7.6 million from Blanchard's proposal.

In other action, the Senate passed, 36-1, and sent to Blanchard a bill to require the Bureau of State Lottery to find out if winners owed the state money before it awarded a prize of more than $5,000. The prize would be used to pay any liability.

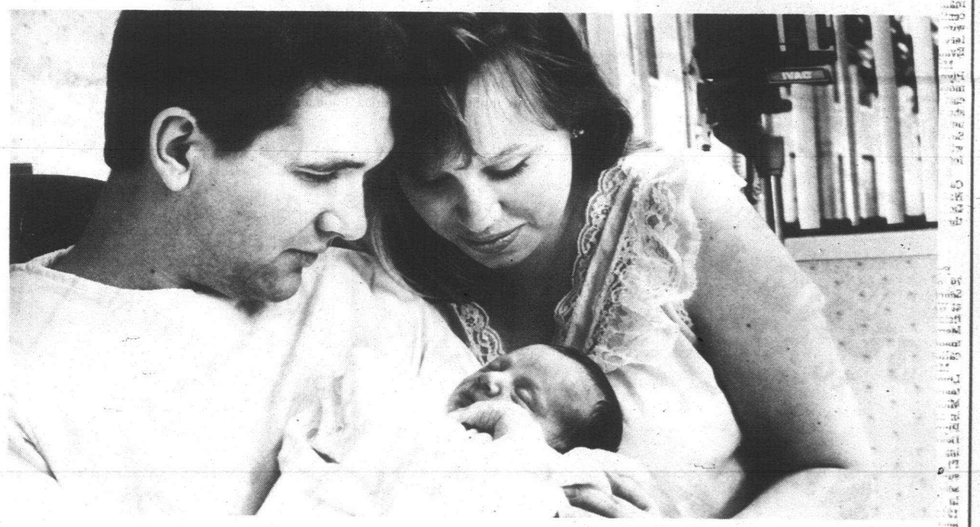
Oakwood's Women & Children's Health Care Center
Babies have a special place at Oakwood



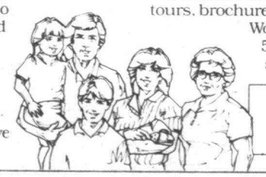
The most special place for a new baby is in the loving arms of its parents. We can't replace the personal care given by a mother and father. But we can give babies very special attention at Oakwood Hospital's Women and Children's Health Care Center.

Our expert group of physicians and nurses is specially trained in the care of expectant mothers and newborns, delivering more than 4,000 babies a year. And, for high-risk babies and mothers who need much closer attention, highly skilled neonatologists and obstetricians are on duty 24 hours a day.

In addition, we offer a range of services for expectant mothers — from prenatal testing and exercise classes to a birthing room that feels like home. And we haven't forgotten the little things, either — like classes for fathers in the fine art of changing diapers and gourmet dinners for brand new parents who want to celebrate in a special way.

Our care extends to women of other ages, too. We're concerned about general wellness — whether you're a grandmother, a teenager or anywhere in between.

For more information about our services — including tours, brochures or classes — call Oakwood Hospital's Women and Children's Health Care Center, 593-7694. We'd like to show you what special care is all about.



For a physician specializing in women and children's health care, call our physician referral service at 1-800-543-WELL.

House rejects GOP housing bill

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June 12.

HOUSE

HOUSING BILL — By a vote of 179 for and 246 against, the House rejected a Republican alternative to a bill drafted by Democrats (HR 4) authorizing housing and community development programs next fiscal year at a cost of $15.9 billion.

The bill, which was sent to conference with the Senate, funds more than 50 programs and goes nearly $6 billion beyond President Reagan's budget request.

This amendment sought to trim its pricetag by $1.7 billion, cutting spending for programs such as public housing and "Section 8" rental assistance for the poor. And it tried to eliminate a new $100 million "Nehemiah" program under which moderate- and low-income people would get forgiveable $15,000 loans for home purchases.

David Dreier, R-Calif., who voted for the substitute, called the bill "a menace to those who benefit from, administer and pay for our housing and community development programs."

Amendment foe Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., said the bill's outlay for housing is less than was spent before the Reagan Administration took office.

Roll Call Report

Members voting yes supported the GOP substitute. Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING — By a vote of 176 for and 249 against, the House rejected an amendment to eliminate language in behalf of collective bargaining from the fiscal 1988 omnibus housing and community development bill (above).

At issue was a requirement in the bill that existing bargaining agreements be preserved when management of a public housing project is transferred from a housing authority to a tenant-run corporation.

The bill enables tenants to take control of their complexes and hire new personnel for maintenance and other tasks.

Supporters of the amendment said the bill's collective bargaining language would make it difficult for tenants to manage their units efficiently and economically, while opponents said the requirement only preserves existing legal agreements.

Members voting yes wanted to strike the language in behalf of collective bargaining. Voting yes: Pursell, Broomfield.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford, Levin.

SENATE

CAMPAIGN FINANCE — By a vote of 52 for and 47 against, the Senate failed to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to end a GOP filibuster against Democratic legislation overhauling campaign finance laws.

This kept a freeze on legislation (S 2) to begin a system, voluntary for candidates, a public financing of congressional general election campaigns coupled with spending limits on primary and general races.

Public funds would be raised by a tax return check-off similar to the mechanism for public funding of presidential races.

Total political action committee (PAC) contributions to congressional candidates during an election cycle would be limited, even for candidates refusing public funding and the accompanying spending limits.

While Republicans generally opposed the bill's spending limits and public financing, most were sponsoring alternative reform bills, such as a GOP measure to prohibit PAC contributions directly to congressional candidates.

Most senators voting yes support public financing of congressional races and campaign spending limits.

Voting yes were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

BUDGET WAIVER — The Senate voted 46 for and 42 against to loosen fiscal restraints in the 1988 Congressional Budget Resolution to make room for $76 million in new spending expected if the bill (above) providing public financing of congressional campaigns becomes law.

Senators voting yes wanted to waive the congressional Budget Resolution to accommodate public funding of House and Senate campaigns. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

Summer piano camp scheduled

Summer piano camps for junior and senior high school students are being offered by Schoolcraft College's music department.

Camps will be held June 22 through July 3 and July 6-17. Classes include solo and duet repertoire, chamber music, music theory, music history, music appreciation, sight reading and key board skills.

Students must attend an audition to be admitted. Auditions may be arranged by calling 591-6400, Ext. 517 or Ext. 510.

Tuition information is also available by calling that telephone number. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty in Livonia.

Out of dust rises creative plan

CREATIVITY is the byproduct of necessity.

Often it is so.

Just this week, in Monday's issue, the Observer reported on a creative solution to handle a very practical problem.

Over the years, buildings in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have been storing equipment and furniture — stuff that's obsolete or too old to use, but too good to throw away.

Probably every school building in Michigan has places where desks, tables, old maps and books, and other equipment is stored. Most principals are protective of the taxpayers' investment and will store anything of value. Some principals, plainly put, are pack rats who store junk that no longer has value to the district.

THE PROBLEM is that building space, especially vacated classrooms, is too valuable to be used to store worn-out furniture and equipment.

That kind of storage is an inefficient use of space and only delays the inevitable — eventually, the unused items must go.

Central administrators, board members and most principals know this.

The problem is not disagreement whether the material must go but how to get rid of it.

A few years ago one principal, obviously fed up with the collection of junk in his building, decided to hold a rummage sale and sell desks, tables, etc. to parents and other residents. The money was to have been used for some project, now forgotten, at the school.

The central administration or school board, or both, canceled the planned sale because they felt the money earned by the sale should not go solely to that school.

The problem is that the unwanted property didn't really belong to that school but to the district at-large. All taxpayers bought the furniture when new, and so all taxpayers should somehow benefit from its disposal.

Another problem is that furniture often is shifted from one building to another over its lifetime. Should the only benefactor be the school where the furniture ended up when it was worn out?

School buildings serving growing subdivisions have to use every available inch of space for students. A school serving an established neighborhood may have room to store junk. Should the money go to a declining enrollment building to buy furniture or supplies when the rising enrollment building likely will be quite short of furniture and supplies?

IN ANY EVENT, the school board decided that it was incorrect for any single school to receive sole benefit from the sale of unwanted equipment, furniture and supplies.

Addressing the issue of equity, though, did not provide an answer for how to empty out the storage areas.

Just recently an interesting solution was proposed.

This week the school board announced that to get rid of old books, obsolete equipment, and other unused odds and ends that the district would conduct garage sales on an ongoing basis.

The school board voted to open a garage sale center at the gym in the Starkweather Community Education Center on Holbrook in Old Village. Up for sale will be such items as used desks, hand tools, arc welding equipment, machinery and books.

The grand opening has been set for 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 12, 13 — red letter days for garage salers. After the opening, regular business hours will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Tuesday. Special hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 10-12, during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Congratulations are due to the board and administration on this one. The plan certainly is a creative approach to levelling off the growing mountain of junk spread across the district. It's like getting stuck with a lemon and making lemonade.

'Macho' news: tax bills delayed

Tim Richard

I HAD TWO choices at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

In the Farnum Building, a Senate-House conference committee was taking up the 65 mph speed limit/radar detector controversy for the second time. The Lansing rat pack would be covering that like a bad smell.

In the fourth-floor stratosphere of the Capitol, the House Taxation Committee was pondering $378 million of our income and property tax money. I opted for the money story.

REP. MAXINE Berman, D-Southfield, was one of the early arrivals, and we got to talking about the radar detector issue.

"Macho," she said. Macho male types were the ones agitated about Gov. Jim Blanchard's proposal to outlaw Fuzz Busters because they feel some need to speed.

Well, you can bet I jumped down her throat for that sexist remark, yessirree, Bob. If I dared make a similar statement about a group of females, I would be battle-axed before I hit the office exit. But a woman figures she can scoff at "macho" males with impunity.

I told her I've been tailgated and cut off by speeding Yuppie women drivers along I-696 as well as by men.

Rep. Berman clarified her lighthearted observation.

"Women do it, too," she said, "but the men enjoy it."

She may be right.

BLANCHARD'S argument against radar detectors is straightforward: Their only purpose is to warn heavy-footed drivers when the cops are nearby so they can violate the speed laws the rest of the time.

It's much the same argument some lawmakers use against sale of "hash" pipes and hypodermic needles.

I don't understand the friends of Fuzz Busters. Their refrain is that there are other reasons besides breaking the law for owning one, though they can't cite a reason. They argue that the Fuzz Buster itself isn't evil — just its misuse.

Bull roar! And cow pies!

WHAT LAW-ABIDING driver cares if the cops are around?

When cops are on an emergency run, they use sirens and lights, and you can pull over and let them by. You don't need a Fuzz Buster.

If you need to call a cop, you can't do it on a Fuzz Buster.

The only use of a Fuzz Buster is to let speeders know when the cops are around so they can ease up.

Anyway, the Legislature finally passed a 65 mph speed limit for rural freeways without trying to ban Fuzz Busters.

SOME FOLKS ask if the manufacturers high-pressured our heroes and heroines in the Legislature.

Doubtful. State legislators watch their mail. They can tell the difference between an honest expression of public opinion and a lobbying effort. The "macho" drivers got across their message.

But not to me. I'd ban radar detectors. Also "hash" pipes. And I'd do it before even thinking about raising the speed limit.

OH, WHAT DID the Taxation Committee do?

No action. Blanchard's $200 million package of homeowner rebates and new business taxes is still sitting there. Ditto the $178 million income tax cut bill.

Maybe this week the important issues will be addressed in Lansing.

Remembering the legacy a crusader has left to us

Steve Barnaby

REMEMBERING LOU — it's a good way to stay honest and humble.

You may never have known Lou. He has been dead for just 10 years.

Detroit's never been the same since he left us suddenly one night in his sleep.

For 12 years on his TV show and in his newspaper column, Lou Gordon terrorized politicians, humbled the powerful, regularly parried with corporate giants and generally kept the establishment swirling in a state of perpetual dizziness.

Lou was a rare and precious breed of journalist — a muckraker of the first order. Few of his kind exist today. He was refreshingly irreverent and blessed with a healthy disrespect for those who were bloated with their own importance.

He never was a part of the establishment media, cozying up to the rich and powerful. The media never liked him and he kept haranging them about their bad habits, even after one of the Detroit daily newspapers hired him in hopes he would clam up.

It didn't work, of course.

EVERYONE, absolutely everyone, had an opinion about Lou Gordon. And whether you loved him or hated him (there was no in-between) you watched his program.

Slotted in prime time twice a week against the best the networks could muster, Lou teamed with his wife, Jackie, and consistently carried the highest ratings. He received thousands of letters every week from a public that was either adoring or hating him, depending on the subject.

All the time Jackie was at his side — sometimes launching a kick underneath the desk to keep him in line.

Recently, I had the pleasure of eating lunch with Jackie, who now works with Jacobsons.

We talked business, then we talked Lou.

After explaining to her that this column often was written with the spirit of her husband in mind, I launched into my best Lou Gordon imitation.

"You know Jackie, I told those people years ago . . . ," I said, waving my hands in the air. Lou was like that, you know.

Her eyes lit up, she laughed and regaled us with stories about an era long past — the night the show was taken off the air; his battle with the telephone company that brought thousands to a public hearing at Oakland Community College; and how he cared, really cared.

LOU HAS left us, journalists and readers alike, an important assignment — fight like hell for the people who can't fight for themselves. You'll never be very popular that way. You won't be accepted as part of the establishment.

You'll be a better person because of it. You will have left this world a better place.

Critics turn green over policy

Rich Perlberg

I AM A SOMEWHAT bemused observer (or am I an eccentric observer, I never have figured that out) of the flap about the number of out-of-state students attending the University of Michigan.

University officials defend the fact that 36 percent of its students are not from Michigan. Such an admissions policy promotes diversity, upholds the university's high standards and brings in better than $8,000 a pop, which is better than triple the tuition paid by in-state students.

Critics, including some publicity-seeking lawmakers (pardon the redundancy), say that's a lot of ivory tower equine manure. It's a snooty attitude, they say, for a public institution to block admission to the sons and daughters of in-state taxpayers (and voters).

THIS IS not the first time (nor shall it be the last) that those who see the world through maize-and-blue filters have been accused of being slightly caught up with themselves.

Remember a few years ago when a football coach, who was then losing games at Michigan State but who now loses games with the Detroit Lions, caused a riff when he referred to Wolverines as arrogant asses?

Many Michigan fans were outraged at such petulance but they were not all that offended by the allegation of arrogance. Of course they were arrogant; they had a right to be.

Anyway, this is one of the most serious legislative discussions since people wondered why the state and the university were so closely associated with an animal, the Wolverine, that cannot be found anywhere in Michigan. It is with some smugness (arrogance?) that I ask, how many Spartans or Tartars have you found in your latest demographic survey?

Likewise, I fail to get xenophobic about the New Yorkers, Ohioans and other foreigners feeding the Ann Arbor economy. Look at it this way: it's one of the few arenas where imports are making money for us.

MAYBE MY indifference to this squabble is due to the 17 years that separate my infant son from his first college tuition. My area of financial concern focuses on day care, the opposite end of the spectrum.

In that regard, munch on this: In-state tuition for the University of Michigan is about $2,400. If you live in a $150,000 home, your public school property taxes are at least $3,000. People squawk about the cost of public education, yet those fees pale next to the nearly $5,000 I pay in day care. And though it is a very fine day care center, it teaches my boy nothing about French or computers.

Obviously, my next step is to enroll my baby at the University of Michigan. He'd get a good education with a dose of arrogance and I would save $50 a week — unless he gets rejected in favor of some out-of-state baby.

Kiwanians also facing women entering ranks

Fred DeLano

IT WAS COLD that morning of Dec. 16 in the outskirts of Bastogne in the southern Ardennes Forest. An impossibly dense fog had settled over the areas as perfect cover for 38 German divisions whose last-ditch onslaught was unloosed that day by Adolf Hitler in his crazed hope to prevent the Allies from crossing the Rhine. The year was 1944.

You could have had odds of millions to one that it never crossed the mind of a Huntington, Ind., communications corporal named Gene Overholt that 43 years later, if he even survived what would become known as the Battle of the Bulge, one of his main concerns would be whether women should be allowed to join the Kiwanis Clubs.

BUT AS OVERHOLT stands on the threshold of becoming international president of a service organization whose 8,300 clubs have approximately 315,000 members in 70 countries, he says it will be the biggest issue that will come before the international convention when it opens two weeks from now in Washington, D.C.

We'll get back to this feminine activist cause in a minute, but first how did this Plymouth Township resident become only the fourth Michigan man to climb to the top of the Kiwanis structure?

Incidentally, the others were Ben Dean of Grand Rapids nearly 50 years ago, Walter J. L. Ray of Birmingham — now 90 years old — in 1952, and Robert Weber of Grosse Pointe in 1970.

After the war, attending Stanford University and marrying his childhood sweetheart, Gene spent 36 years in the Bell System, most of it in Michigan. When he retired in 1982 it was from an executive postition as a senior systems staff adviser, headquartered in Southfield.

Plymouth became the adopted hometown of these transplanted Hoosiers and it wasn't long before Gene's leadership abilities led him more and more often into volunteer community projects. Twenty years ago, helping to organize the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth was one of the offshoots.

In due time he became its president and inevitably his competency led to the governorship of the Michigan district. His accomplishments did not go unnoticed and in 1981 he was elected to the international board of trustees. Now at 63, he holds the office of treasurer. At $1 per year it is the board's only salaried position.

THE AUTOMATIC line of succession within Kiwanis means Overholt will be designated president-elect at Washington and he will take the reins as international president Oct. 1, 1988. It will be a just reward for dedication, service and leadership.

It also will reflect favorably upon local clubs in this area, which I count as 21 within the Observer & Eccentric circulation area: one each in Troy, Rochester Hills, West Bloomfield, Farmington Hills, Garden City, Westland and Canton, and two clubs in each of Plymouth, Livonia, Farmington, Redford Township, Southfield, Rochester and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills combination.

This thing about previously all-male service organizations accepting female members got big headlines recently when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Rotary International could not oust a California chapter because it admitted women. Now they're all arguing about sex discrimination.

"There's not doubt about it, the women's issue will bring the biggest debate at our convention," Overholt told me a few days ago, "because it has a bearing on the character of the organization.

"WE SUPPORTED Rotary in a legal brief submitted to the court, as a number of other private organizations also did.

"We've taken a vote in each of our last few annual conventions on the issue of admitting women but it was never given serious consideration as far as the vote goes until last year when we on the international board recommended an amendment to the delegate body to admit them.

"About 48 percent of the delegates voted for it, but to amend our constitution and bylaws, it takes 66 percent.

"This year there is a proposed amendment before us again to admit women and it makes it very difficult because the Supreme Court decision has no effect in our 69 other countries. We have to be very careful in the wording to let clubs in those 69 have the right of self-determination.

"The amendment that is proposed will specify that it applies only to clubs in the United States. The court decision did not take away all our decision on membership; what it says is that we can not base that decision on gender alone.

"We have set up ground rules to control the debate and hear both sides of the story. There will be a time for each speaker before the vote is taken. We will not try to control if from the podium."

Make seminary cultural center

To the editor:

Having heard about the Detroit Catholic Church's Archdiocese's decision to move out of beautiful St. John Seminary in Plymouth Township further convinces me of the need of a "cultural-commercial corridor" between our two progressive and vital communities.

Why don't the administrations of both Northville and Plymouth Township get together to discuss common interests of the area and the possibilities of cooperative or joint ventures in developing the "Twin Cities Corridor." St. John's could house a museum and cultural facility, or a concert hall or community activities center.

Couple this with the elimination of the old institutions — abandoned, blighted buildings on Sheldon Road — and in their place developing a commercial park, or possibly a large hotel, shopping mall and luxury condominiums and the possibilities and potential are endless.

Nearby Spinnaker Center and Executive Park and soon-to-be High Tech area in Plymouth will make that area a hub of activity and a real boost to our tax base, and still fairly remote to the majority of our housing developments, thereby not causing residential area traffic or other problems that go with busy commercial centers. Let's go for it!

Cutting budget not punitive

To the editor:

I was at the school board office awaiting the results of the school board election.

There were only a few people in the room at the time. Those in the room were anxiously waiting to see if the Headlee issue was going to pass. The totals began coming in, in favor of the "NO" vote.

School board members Dean Swartzwelter and Roland Thomas, who were just re-elected, were sharing their disappointment that the citizens did not want the increase. In a comment between the two, it was said that if the citizens wanted a cut, they'd give them a cut. This came from someone that we just entrusted with our votes?

With that remark, I don't feel confident that the board will try sincerely to budget in a satisfactory manner. The people filling school board positions should be competent to handle the taxpayers' money to the best of their ability, not by threatening to take things away before they have even had a chance to work out a solution.

Yes, the board is who decides where the cuts should be made, but they need to keep in mind that they are representing the people and need to make sound decisions.

Last year, just three days after the last millage increase, the board voted themselves a raise. Other then that, what else was done with the rest of that increase?

I would encourage and challenge all concerned citizens to make an effort to find out how your tax dollar is being spent.

Soccer tourney a big success

To the editor:

I would like to take a moment to urge the Plymouth-Canton community to recognize the outstanding effort put forth by Phil LaJoy, Stan Luke and the entire Canton Soccer Club along with the Canton Parks and Recreation Department and Canton Department of Public Works in staging their fifth annual invitational soccer tournament over the Memorial Day weekend.

LaJoy coordinated the influx and participation of more than 200 teams from all over Michigan and its neighboring states, and I am certain that several thousand people including players and parents left that weekend with the image of Canton that we all hope to portray. Without exception, visiting coaches praised the organization of the tournament and the hospitality of the community and expressed their eagerness to return in 1988.

That LaJoy, Luke and many others donated their entire holiday weekend to the enjoyment of our visitors and, indeed, as they do throughout the year, our own soccer players, is a measure of their devotion and commitment to Canton Township and its residents. My thanks to all of you.

Signs, signs, everywhere signs

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THIS TIME of year, they seem to be everywhere.

The chirping cicadas show up only once every 17 years. Construction signs, however, seem to pop up every year, joining the regular year-round variety of road signs.

Orange-and-black signs are used for construction or maintenance operations; those colors are used to distinguish the signs from regular signs.

"They're a reflectorized material that would allow them to show up day and night," said John Kanillopoolos, supervisor of the reflective systems unit for the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The construction signs are used to alert motorists to any number of potential dangers. The signs cover such areas as lane closings, low shoulders, construction or detours ahead or street closings. Signs are also used to warn motorists to be prepared to stop or to watch out for workers.

"Most drivers drive the same road day after day," Kanillopoolos said. That routine can mean that motorists don't always notice changes; using a different color helps those signs stand out.

THESE DAYS, signs are also more likely to use pictorial images rather than words.

"We're doing more of that because of the different languages that are being spoken," he said. "We want something they can see in a glance and recognize. We try to keep them very simple, easy to understand."

Placing signs along Michigan's highways and byways can be tricky. It's important not to have signs with conflicting messages.

Although some messages do need to be repeated, it's important not to have the signs too close together, he said.

"That is a concern we always watch for."

Road signs aren't the only signs that compete for the motorist's attention; billboards, some with flashing lights or other special effects, also send out their messages to passers-by.

"We are competing with other things that are taking the motorist's attention away from the signs," Kanillopoolos said. The road signs are designed with that factor in mind; some have backgrounds or other features designed to make them more noticeable.

SOME MOTORISTS who are involved in accidents may claim there wasn't a sign warning them of a potential danger. That claim is also made for speed limit signs. For that reason, records are kept of what road signs are posted.

"Those things we try to keep track of, especially on construction."

Information on the meaning of road signs is provided for driver's education instructors. A Michigan motorist renewing his or her driver's license will answer some questions about road signs and what the signs mean.

"It takes a while," Kanillopoolos said. "Education is a long, slow process sometimes."

Information on road signs and what they mean is included in the "What Every Driver Must Know" booklet, available at secretary of state's offices.

"No left turn" is the message of this sign.

The "Do not enter" message on this sign is short and easy to understand.

with its distinctive shape, is probably the one most familiar to motorists, Kanillopoolos said.

A study done a few years back found that the blue-and-white "H" sign — indicating the nearby presence of a hospital — was at times misunderstood. Some motorists thought it meant a hill was nearby.

"So there was some confusion on that."

Motorists participating in the study seemed to know the meaning of most of the other signs fairly well, Kanillopoolos said.

AMONG THE signs being used this year in construction and maintenance areas are the "smiling face" signs. Those signs show a frowning face at the beginning of a construction area; as the motorist drives through the area, the frown on the series of signs gradually turns into a smile.

At the end of the construction area, the sign shows a cheerful, smiling face.

The signs caused a bit of a flap a while back. Some federal highway administrators questioned the use of the signs.

"They felt we should have stuck exactly with the manual. They didn't want us to use them on the projects." That manual indicates national standards for roadway signs.

The "smiling face" signs are being used on some projects this year.

"We're not using them on every job." The signs are being used primarily on freeways for construction zones at least five miles long.

The signs are being used in areas where traffic is affected during weekends or holidays.

LAURA CASTLE/staff photographer

Handicapped parking signs are a common sight.

Motorists traveling with children found the signs helpful in keeping the kids occupied, Kanillopoolos said.

Some 300 people wrote letters supporting use of the signs, he said. There weren't complaints about the signs being a waste of taxpayer money.

"Really, they weren't very expensive and we felt they were doing the job they were intended to do."

It's up to motorists to know what various road signs mean and to be able to handle a car accordingly.

"Driving is a privilege," Kanillopoolos said. "It's not a right that people have."

Unlike some drivers, Kanillopoolos doesn't have much trouble with road signs. His job means that he knows just what the signs mean.

"I know the signs probably a little more than most people do."

He's glad he's a dad

By Julie Brown
staff writer

For Jeff Martin, Father's Day will have a special meaning this year.

Martin, 31, is a brand-new dad. He and his wife, Janice, 29, recently became the proud parents of Jennifer Christina Martin, their first child.

The Canton couple's daughter was born at 12:29 a.m. Thursday, June 4, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

"We've been planning this for quite some time," Jeff Martin said. "I don't think it's really hit me yet."

Martin is employed as a senior metallurgical engineer with Commercial Steel Treating Corp. in Madison Heights. His wife is a registered nurse at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The Martins went through Lamaze classes; Jeff Martin enjoyed the classes and was glad he was able to participate in the delivery.

"As a coach, you're depended on to keep things under control. Janice says I did very well."

OTHER FATHERS Martin has spoken with were also glad they were able to be in the delivery room. Being there helps with the bonding among the mother, father and baby, he said.

Becoming a dad is in some ways similar to getting married, Martin said. Some young bachelors have doubts about getting married.

"And then it kind of grows on them.

"It's been quite a changing thing. It grows on you. We've been planning it for quite some time."

The Martins are making plans, thinking about how to provide for Jennifer's future. Jeff Martin would be glad if his daughter followed in his footsteps and became an engineer; a nuclear physicist would be OK too.

"Just like our parents have taught us, to aim high."

Martin took some time off after Jennifer was born. He used a week of vacation time, planning to return to work this week "with lots of photographs."

The Martins are thinking about having another child.

"A little brother for Jennifer, sure." Having two children would be a good size for a family, he said.

"Hopefully, the cat'll stick around."

Canton Township's Janice and Jeff Martin are the proud parents of Jennifer Christina Martin.

JENNIFER WAS a few days late; she'd been expected to arrive on May 31. Janice Martin was in labor for 25 hours.

"She's worth it," the brand-new mom said. "I didn't know it then, though."

After Jennifer was born, Janice Martin joked that it would be a good idea to adopt the couple's next child.

The Martins don't have any special plans for Father's Day. They'll probably spend it with the grandfathers.

Jennifer's name was the topic of some discussion prior to her arrival.

"Actually, we had Amanda picked out until the car ride to the hospital," Janice Martin said. They'd been concerned that Jennifer might be a bit too common of a name, but decided to go with it. The couple's daughter will be called Jenny.

Jennifer's middle name, Christina, was chosen in honor of Jeff Martin's grandmother.

The Martins read some books on what to expect during pregnancy and delivery. The books they read also include information on newborn care.

Janice Martin read some of the books she'd used in nursing school. Her sister-in-law, a pediatric nurse at Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor, provided the couple with information "and lots of advice on the phone," she said.

THE CANTON couple also received information from their doctor on newborn care.

The Martins were all set for Jennifer's arrival. The nursery was ready for Jennifer and there were plenty of clothes and diapers waiting when she came home from the hospital.

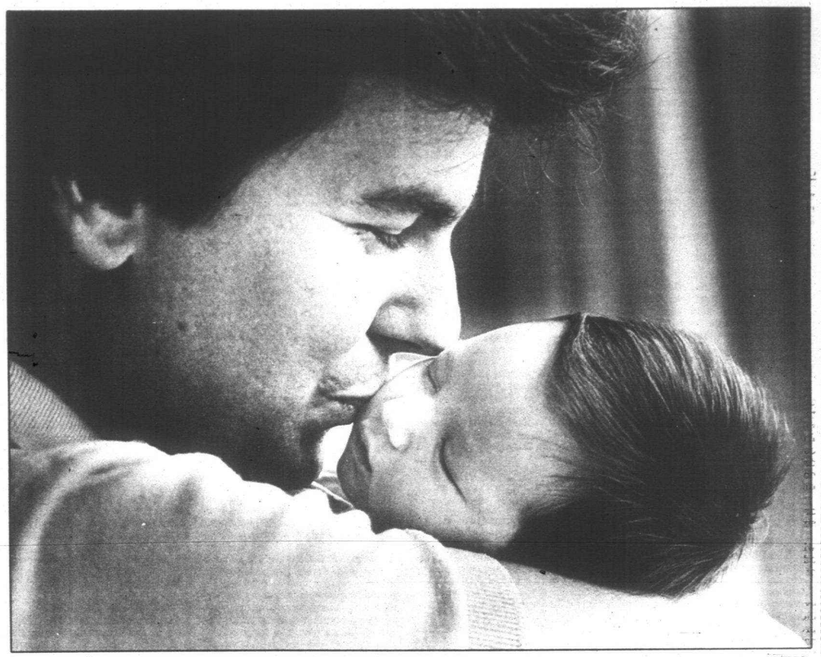
"She's been worth it."



When Jennifer Christina Martin came into the world, dad Jeff Martin was right there waiting for her. The Martins took Lamaze classes to prepare for their daughter's birth.

Jeff Martin would be glad if his daughter followed in his footsteps and became an engineer; a nuclear physicist would be OK too.

Baby Jennifer's yawn doesn't go unnoticed by her dad, Jeff Martin of Canton.

church bulletin

The church bulletin is published every Thursday in the Observer. Information for the church bulletin must be received in our office by noon the Monday preceding publication. Send information to Suburban Life section, Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

● READERS ELECTED

Gerald Stopper and Patricia Larkins, both of Northville, began three-year terms recently as First and Second Readers at First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Plymouth.

They succeed Frank Riley of Plymouth and Dawn Evans of Livonia.

Since Christian Science has no order clergy, members are elected democratically to fill administrative posts and to conduct services. The Readers carry the main responsibility for the Sunday and Wednesday services with their primary duty being to read the Christian Science lesson-sermon on Sunday.

Sunday services and Sunday school are held at 10:30 a.m. in the Plymouth Church, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

● JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES CONVENTION

The Watchower Bible and Tract Society of New York announces a three-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses Friday-Sunday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

The principle address of the convention, "In Our Fearful Times, Whom Can You Really Trust?" will be delivered by Dick Ciranko at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is free. There will be no collection taken.

About 52,000 people are expected to attend the convention, according to convention manager Jack Thomas.

The convention program consists of talks, discussions, true-to-life presentations called demonstrations and dramas with biblical settings and costumes.

There are 123 conventions planned in the United States this summer with more than a million delegates visiting 65 cities.

Jehovah's Witnesses number 3.3 million and function in 208 countries. There are 52,177 congregations, all working under the direction of a central governing body in Brooklyn, N.Y.

● HANDBELL RINGERS

The Carillon and Chapel Ringers, both youth handbell groups at Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, will attend the Ontario Guild of English Handbell Ringers Festival Thursday through Sunday, June 18-21, at Brock University in St. Catherines, Ont.

They will be the only group attending from the United States.

The group is under the direction of Lois Swanson. The handbell ringers have attended numerous festivals in Ohio, Michigan and Canada.

Those attending from Rosedale Church include: Heather Barnes, Anne Calhoun, Lori Delany, Michael Deming, Sarah Hiveley, Chris Swanson and Lori Swanson. They make up the Carillon Ringers, a junior high group.

Also attending are Jill Benton, Brian Deming, Chris Fife, Ann Maier, Michelle Maier, Jon McCloskey and Kerri Waldenmyer. They are members of the Chapel Singers.

● DIVINITY DEGREE

William Harp of Livonia recently received a Master of Divinity from McCormick Theological Seminary at its 153rd Commencement in Chicago.

● FLEA MARKET

Rice Memorial United Methodist Church will have a flea market from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 20, at the church, 20601 Beech Daly, near Eight Mile Road. For more information, call 537-7865 or 534-4907.

● SUMMER SERVICE

First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 701 Church St., Plymouth, has began its summer schedule of one service at 9 a.m. Junior Church will also take place during the worship hour for children age 3 through the fourth grade.

● AAL

Richard Johnson, a district representative for Aid Association for Lutherans, has qualified for membership in the Million Dollar Round Table, an annual award reserved for the top life insurance representatives in the world.

In AAL's last marketing year which ended Feb. 28, Johnson placed more than $8.2 million of insurance. He is an associate of the Patrick M. McDonald Agency of AAL, Plymouth.

Also, Richard Dane of Canton has completed the fraternal sales training program and has been awarded the designation of Fraternal Insurance Counselor (FIC).

AAL, the nation's largest fraternal benefit society, provides 1.4 million members in 6,600 branches with fraternal benefits and, through its affiliated companies, other financial services.

● FILM

"The Gift of Love," the second in a series of films from the Laity Film Series will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 24, at Ward Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia. The film presentation is open to the public.

● CONCERT

The Continental Singers & Orchestra will present their 20th Anniversary tour program, "Let There Be Praise," at 11 a.m. Sunday, July 12, at Calvary Missionary Church, 29850 W. Six Mile Rd., Livonia. The musical celebration will feature two decades of praise and joy from musicals, hymn medleys and contemprnary classics.

● BAZAAR

Nativity Church, Henry Ruff at West Chicago, will have its annual holiday arts & crafts bazaar Oct. 17. Applications for table rental are now being accepted. For more information, call 421-2429 or 427-1513.

● PRAYER BREAKFAST

The 7:01 Club will have its end-of-the-year prayer breakfast at 6:30 a.m. Thursday, June 18, at Denny's Restaurant, 7725 Wayne Rd., Westland. The 7:01 Club fosters and encourages Christian formation, development and fellowship among Livonia Public Schools staff members. For more information, call 523-9300.

● FELICIAN SISTERS

Some 37 Felician Sisters will gather on Saturday, June 27, to have its 13th Provincial Chapter. Elected by the sisters of the Livonia province, the delegates will discuss the congregation's charism as Felician Sisters and their response to the needs of the current and future church.

Preparation for the ecclesiastic event began in June 1985.

At the conclusion of the chapter, three representatives from the province will be elected to serve as delegates to the general chapter in Rome in 1988.

moral perspectives

Fatherhood means love, understanding

FATHERS, FATHER'S DAY: What do the words mean? All of us have a father. Each of us has a different view of what fathers are.

Conservatives define fatherhood by the admonition to honor and obey your father. They believe that fathers set the laws. Sons and daughters are to obey the rules or face punishment. They like to quote a letter by Ricardo Montalban to his son. "As long as you live in this house you will follow the rules . . . I am not your pal, I am your father . . . You will do in this house as I say."

A quite different approach begins with the fact that Jesus called God father. He used a word that literally means "DADA." Jesus shocked the conservatives by suggesting that our relationship to God is like that of a baby to a parent. The word stresses intimacy and immediacy. The story Jesus told that best defines fatherhood is the parable of the prodigal son. The focus is upon the father's attitude toward two very different sons.

This image of a father is not one of rules or of punishments. It is a father who loves, forgives and with both of his sons seeks their love in return. The theme of the story is to show two contrasting ways in which sons respond to the love and acceptance of their father.

THE TRAGEDY of the conservative view of fatherhood is that it coincides with destructive, cultural views of fatherhood. The current image of the male is that it is important to have children but not to father them.

According to Marc Fasteau, in his book "The Male Machine," "The image of a lawyer, businessman, or even a professor wheeling a baby carriage around in public is still jarring. Men who spend a lot of time taking care of their children — washing, dressing, feeding, teaching, comforting and playing with them — aren't doing quite what they should be." He adds, "It is a diversion from men's real work, the building of a successful career."

There are few models available today for rewarding relationships between fathers and their children. The images still suggest that women care for babies and children. Men build their careers and the closest they get to fathering may be with their dog.

The traditional, cultural role of fathers making rules and meting out punishments no longer works. Neither the children nor the father believes he has this authority.

I BELIEVE that most fathers want to be close to their children. Many lack the sense of how to do this. I believe that first and of most importance is our love for our children. Fathers are parents as much as mothers are parents.

I find that one important element of fatherhood is to set up expectations for my children. I tell them that I expect them to do the best and seek the highest goals in their lives. I try to live out in my own life what I teach them. I encourage my children by telling them that when they are motivated from within themselves I know that they will do well. I want them to become increasingly independent, but I also let them know that I am always here to support them.

Fathers need to do some spiritual and emotional evaluation of their own lives before they pass their unlovely characteristics on to their children. We know that many of us fathers have become victims of our own toughness and competition. Is this what it means to be a father?

Hopefully Fathers' Day will be a time to rethink what it means to be a father. Men and women alike need to assist in the changes that will make us men more like the father in the story of the prodigal son.

The Rev. David Strong is the pastor of St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

Just 10 days are left in investment contest

With visions of a trip to the Big Apple dancing in your head, you've made your plans to test your I.Q., but you just haven't gotten around to filling out the entry blank.

But time is running short. You just have 10 days left to enter the National Association of Investors Corp.'s stock market contest called Investor's Quotient.

In cooperation with Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the contest challenges readers to invest in the stock market using a fictional $1,000 portfolio. Winners will be those whose portfolios show the greatest growth (exclusive of dividends) over the contest period.

FIRST PRIZE is a weekend for two to New York City including round-trip airfare, hotel accommodations for a Friday and Saturday and a tour of the New York Stock Exchange.

Three second prizes of a weekend (two nights' lodging) at the Westin Hotel in downtown Detroit will be awarded.

The five third-place winners will receive one-year subscriptions to Better Investing magazine, the NAIC monthly publication. Five fourth-place prizes of one-year subscriptions to your local Observer & Eccentric newspaper will be given.

Tracking of the portfolios will be done by NAIC and begins with the date listed on the entry. Entries will be received up to midnight Friday, June 28.

CONTESTANTS MAY select as many as five stocks from the New York Stock Exchange, the American exchange or NASDAQ. Stock listings are available in most daily newspapers.

Contest results will be based on the published closing quotes of the stocks on Sept. 25.

(See accompanying rules and entry blank.)

How to enter

1. You have $1000 in your portfolio.
2. Select up to five stocks from the NYSE, AMEX, and/or the NASDAQ exchanges. (You may place your entire portfolio in one stock or distribute it among as many as five stocks.)
3. Multiply the number of selected shares of stock by the stock's closing price on your DATE OF ENTRY to determine your cost. (Total cost may not exceed $1000.)
4. Contest results will be based on the published closing quotes of September 25, 1987.
5. Individuals whose portfolios show the greatest growth (excluding dividends) from the DATE OF ENTRY to the contest's closing date are winners.
6. All entries must be postmarked no later than midnight, June 28, 1987.
7. Mail all entries to:

Fisher Advertising chief guides long-term growth

By Pat Walsh
staff writer

"There's a lot to advertising that isn't done in New York on the 15th floor of some building with plush offices."

Frank Fisher, president and owner of Fisher Advertising, ought to know.

He has guided Fisher Advertising over the last 18 years from a four-man operation to a multimillion dollar business with Big 3 clients, 30 employees, photographic studios in Troy, new offices in Livonia's Metroplex and plans to acquire a printing facility.

"I started out and starved to death for several years but just hung in there. It's not all glamorous. It's a hard, grind-out type of business."

FISHER ADVERTISING just wrapped up job No. 10,500. Typical of the "grind-out" features of the profession, Fisher described a project.

Foundry dust and 150-degree temperatures beset the crew working on a video for Rouge Steel. Outside temperatures of 15 degrees meant that sensitive camera equipment had to be warmed up slowly.

A canopy was erected to shield equipment from the dust. The only glamour was provided by narrator Mort Crim on the documentary-type film on the quality of American-made steel.

THERE ARE NO Christie Brinkleys in the Troy photo studios, only Ford tractors. Writers, photographers and mechanics work to tear down off-road vehicles and put them together again to develop overhaul manuals and training films.

Big jump seen for auto leasing

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Consumer auto leasing is expected to jump a whopping 50 percent over the next two years, according to the June issue of Ward's Auto Dealer magazine.

That would bring consumer leasing to 30 percent of all automobile deliveries.

"The biggest thing is that the federal tax law has changed, making it more advantageous to lease. The trend will continue," said Bob Saks, owner of Bob Saks Oldsmobile in Farmington Hills.

Saks described a program which now offers a loaded Cutlass Ciera on a four-year lease for $195 a month.

"The monthly payment to own the same car would be $300 plus a 10 percent down payment," he said.

The tax incentives are not specifically geared to make leasing more attractive. They just make buying a new car less appealing.

Effective Dec. 31, 1985, the investment tax credit was eliminated. That means those buying a new auto lose the standard deduction of 10 percent of the purchase price. This deduction was valid only for those claiming their vehicle for business use.

The second tax change impacts most of the car buying public — loss of interest deduction for people who borrow money and then deduct the interest paid on the auto loan.

"These changes would make leasing more advantageous," said Ron Tank, an accountant with the Detroit firm of Herman & McLean.

George Kousaris, leasing manager for Action Olds in Livonia, testifies to the new trend. His dealership leased 10 to 20 cars a month last year.

Leases can be had for as little as a year and as long as five years, with terms more advantageous on longer contracts.

"Ten years ago you could drive a car for $1,200 a year," Kousaris said. "Now you can't do that. The average cost of a midsize car is about $12,000 and they depreciate rapidly."

He said consumers can save $80 to $100 a month by leasing as opposed to buying a new vehicle on a payment schedule. And there is the advantage of no down payment on a leased car, he added.

"Insurance premiums don't reflect much difference (between buying and leasing)," he said. "Except that you need full coverage."

Mike Schrieber, sales manager of Bill Brown Ford in Livonia, doubts that auto leasing will replace consumer buying in the near future.

"I've been hearing this same prediction for the last five years," he said. "Leasing is gaining popularity, but there is still a belief that if you own your own car, you are better off.

"The consumer has to pick the right option for their circumstances," said Schrieber.

Bob Mosteiko, business manager of Fox Hills Chrysler Plymouth, says the biggest problem today is that if the consumer is unfamiliar with leasing, he or she is leery and doesn't consider it a serious option.

"A car goes down in value every month," said Mosteiko. "Say you take $10,000 out of the bank to buy a new car and let it dwindle away. It's ludicrous."

At the end of the leasing period, the customer has two options: to buy the car for a residual value (determined when the contract is drawn) or walk away from it.

Results of the annual Detroit Auto Show survey show that buying is still the favorite option with consumers. Fifty-five percent of those polled said they might purchase a new car in 1987, down from 62 percent in 1986. Conversely, 11 percent indicated they were leasing a car, up from 8 percent a year ago.

PIG can be a PAL if you have tax shelter loss finances and you

Sid Mittra

This is the second of three articles discussing the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and tax losses expected to be generated this year by the tax shelters we bought in earlier years.

Last week's analysis of passive activity losses (PALs) and passive income generators (PIGs) showed that tax shelters can still be valuable.

Last week we discussed PALs and PIGs. Here are some examples to clarify the concepts.

A simple illustration:

Say you participate in two "passive activities" — that is, a business in which you do not materially participate. In 1987, the first one generates a passive income of $11,000 and the second generates a passive loss of $17,000.

Here is the arithmetic:

Passive loss	$17,000
Less passive income	($11,000)
Unusable loss	$ 6,000

Transitional rule complications:

The transitional rules, which allow you to write off part of your passive losses, are as follows:

Year	Passive losses disallowed
1988	60%
1989	80%
1990	90%
1991	100%

The table shows that in 1987, 65% of your passive losses would be allowed (35% disallowed) to reduce non-passive income. However, this is not as simple as it seems.

The law requires you to add your passive losses and passive income before you arrive at the amount of tax loss disallowed. Here is an example.

Say in 1987 you have a passive loss of $20,000 and a passive income of $7,000. If you make the following calculation you would get a POKE in the eye:

passive loss	$20,000
65% allowed in 1987	13,000
passive loss disallowed	7,000
passive income	7,000
unusable passive income	0

The correct way to make the calculation is:

passive loss	$20,000
Less passive income	7,000
Net passive loss	13,000
65% allowed in 1987	8,450
Unusable passive loss	4,550

So you need an additional passive income of $4,550 to use all of the passive loss.

Although not necessarily the most economical strategy, your safest strategy might still be to match the passive loss with the passive income to avoid the wasted passive loss.

A further complication:

It seems clear that if you are able to generate $4,550 of passive income, then your worries will be over.

Right? Wrong.

The $8,450 passive loss that you used to reduce your active income (salary) is treated as investment interest expense. So you not only "used up" your investment interest loss, which otherwise could have been used to shelter your investment income, but this amount is also treated as a tax preference item and could trigger an Alternative Minimum Tax.

Educational seminar: "Your Investments, Your Taxes and Tax Reform." The seminar, sponsored by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning, will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 21, in the Baldwin Public Library, 300 W. Merrill, Birmingham.

For more information or reservations, call 643-3888.

Picking the right stock is more important than timing

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

Would you care to venture a guess as to when the stock market will start its next major move down?

I'm fully invested at the present time and have done very well, but I want to protect my gains and not see them melt away when the stock market starts going down — as it always does.

I would not care to venture a guess as to when the stock market will make a major decline.

Furthermore, I would add that I really don't care when it goes down. As you have said in your question — the stock market always goes down.

But you seem to have forgotten the most important part — that after the stock market goes down, it always goes up. Even more important, the stock market always goes up a lot more than it goes down.

The last major drop in stock market prices that most of us saw was in the 1970s. That drop in the market was 45 percent. That's a substantial and a scary drop.

HOWEVER, WHEN the stock market recovered, it set a record on the upside as it always does. The advance to 2400 was 128 percent from the previous high. It was up well over 300 percent, if you measure from the low to the high.

A check of major stock market cycles, which occur two or three times in the average lifetime, will show you that the same thing always happens. The down move is always substantially outpaced by the subsequent up move.

A great many people try to get out at the top of the market and hold their cash until it hits bottom. That's when they want to get back in. The reasoning makes the height of good sense. The logic is irrefutable.

The only problem is that practically no one is able to do it successfully.

A study made by two professors at Calgary University and paid for by Salomon Borthers shows that over the past 50 years, the investor who bought good stocks and held them through up and down markets did better than the investor who tried to move in and out of stocks and in and out of favored industries.

THE PROFESSORS found that, just to break even after paying commissions and taxes, the investor who tried to catch all the changes had to be right 70 percent of the time. Very few of us are good enough to be right more than 70 percent of the time.

The practice of being fully invested all of the time in good securities has been followed by investment clubs. Records of their earnings only go back 26 years, but they substantiate the findings of the Calgary study.

The records seem to suggest that it is much more important to pick the stocks you invest in carefully than to try to get in and out of the market at its lows and highs.

You will have times when you look pretty bad, but at the end of the line, you are more likely to be at the top of the heap if you forget about market timing.

Fisher Advertising chief guides agency's long-term growth

Table-top photography, done in Livonia, results in industrial advertising for Motorcraft and Autolite, which appears in trade journals.

About 65 percent of Fisher's work is auto-related. The agency also develops point-of-purchase displays and packages and corporate identity programs for other clients.

FISHER POINTS to company loyalty as one of his recipes for success in an industry that is known for its high turnover.

"Another very important part of this business is to surround yourself with a lot of good, competent people. A lot of people have been with me for a lot of years."

Fisher Vice President Richard Yesh of Livonia has been with Fisher for eight years. General Manager Susan Lang marks 16 years at the agency.

Yesh's background is in art and industrial design. He and Fisher attended Wayne State University and found themselves continually bumping into one another before they teamed up officially.

"ADVERTISING is more than selling," Yesh said. "It's total communications. Whether it be on a screen, in technical manuals, a reference manual, a product introduction piece."

Yesh likes to talk about the "profile of an idea" and walked through the initial stages of concept development. At the first client meeting, Yesh asks his "thousand questions."

"Where will the material be used? What type of clients? What is the sell nature? What is the size, scope, length of time, budget?

"How many directions can you go? What type of penetration? Who are you going to address? Is it a sell piece, an introductory piece? What's already out there?

"YOU CAN'T go in and scrap everything they've done for the last 10 years," Fisher added. "Maybe they've still got a whole back room full of widgets that they've got to get rid of as well as this new product.

"You have to know what their business has been about in the past and kind of pull something out of that."

Often clients look to Fisher Advertising for help in developing corporate identity programs.

"We produce a logo and a slogan," Yesh said. "If you notice, there is not a lot of change in auto industry logos. The strength of a lot of companies is that graphic image.

"WE LOOK in different directions, for different feels. Something strong, something light, something non-controversial. We may use a word and a shape rather than a nut, bolt or screw to avoid looking too industrial."

"There's also masculine and feminine to think about when generating an idea," Fisher added. "In a woman's magazine you're not going to have a masculine bold type. You're going to have something feminine with a flair to it."

"You can see how through words and shapes you can create this image," Yesh said.

ONCE CONCEPTS are defined, Susan Lang steps in. Whatever Fisher Advertising needs to get the job done Lang finds it. Finding sources for producing patches, decals or plaques are routine. What about some of the harder to find materials?

The right sales training program makes sense

Mary DiPaolo

"Employers pay for a sales training program whether they have one or not."

This is true for any firm with a significant number of untrained full- or part-time employees in contact with current potential customers.

Many times, these employees "chase away" business by being ill-informed, unwilling to serve or downright rude. As a result, sales are often lost in amounts far exceeding the cost of a good training and development program.

Employee sales training takes many forms to include attendance at sales seminars or conferences, short courses, supplier training programs and trade association programs. But the typical small business firm conducts what it knows as "on-the-job" training.

To conduct this training, firms have used video tape presentations, outside consultants, and senior sales personnel to teach employees the duties associated with order getting, order taking and the sales support functions.

Video tape presentations are especially popular as they may be structured to simulate the selling process as well as employee/customer scenarios requiring special attention or action.

Much of sales training and motivation is grounded on the basic steps of the personal selling process to include:

- The search for prospective accounts
- Planning the sales presentation
- Getting attention, creating interest and arousing desire in the firm's products or service
- Handling any objections
- Closing the sale
- Following up after the sale.

Although these steps may seem obvious, many firms fall short of putting the theory into practice.

Often a firm focuses training efforts on one area (such as closing the sale), without giving proper time and attention to the steps leading up to that point.

Others implement the wrong training practices altogether. For example, order takers should not receive training to seek out prospective accounts.

A recommended text on sales training and motivation is "Selling" by James F. Robeson, H. Lee Mathews and Carl G. Stevens. The book can be ordered through the publisher, Richard D. Irwin Inc., Homewood, Ill. 60430.

Next week, we will wrap up the series on personal selling as a key promotional activity or a new or existing business.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

Polka Virginia

Radio show host brightens day with ethnic melodies

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

MENTION POLKAS to most people and they'll think of the parodies like the Schmenge Brothers. Mention polkas to Virginia Janek and she'll reel off names like Big Daddy Lackowski and Eddie Blazonczyk.

For Janek, host of WCAR-AM's 6-8 a.m. program, "Good Time Polkas," early morning is as good a time as any for the sprightly music with homey themes. "If you wake up on a happy note, it makes your whole day happy," said Marylou Janiga, WCAR producer/account executive.

For Janek the program has grown into an avocation. Three years ago, the Canton Township resident had taken a disability retirement from Sears and was finding it difficult to adjust to her new life.

"I went from an active life to a dormant one," she said.

Cajoled by Janiga to try out for the polka program, a nervous Janek auditioned for WCAR program director David Johnson. "I was home about an hour and they called me and asked, 'How about tomorrow morning?' "

THE CRACK of dawn the Tuesday after Memorial Day 1984 found Janek sitting in the station's Garden City parking lot for about 20 minutes wondering, "Oh, my God, what am I doing here ?" Figuring she had gone too far to retreat, she walked into the studio and with shaking hands picked out that morning's records. Randy Carr, then the program's engineer, tried to make things easier by making her laugh. "It worked. I even came back the next day."

Since then, she's been answering the phones, talking to regular callers and newcomers, offering on-the-air congratulations for every occasion from births to selling the most Knights of Columbus raffle tickets.

Her on-the-air style has more in common with an old-fashioned talk over the backyard fence than with the glib chatter of pop music DJs.

Almost a family feeling has grown up among her coterie of regular listeners, many of them older women. If a regular hasn't called in a while, Janek dedicates a polka to them, wishing them well. Fans give her small homemade presents.

"For instance, there's Rita. I talked to her for two years and never met her. Then I met her at a polka party."

Her on-the-air style has more in common with an old-fashioned talk over the backyard fence than with the glib chatter of pop music D.J.'s.

'It's inborn,' said Janek of her unabashed love for polkas. 'I was dancing when I was a tot. My Aunt Helen taught me to dance.'

She keeps in touch with the music and its fans by attending events, from church fund-raising festivals to elaborate programs such as three days of concerts in Boyne. Her dedication has paid off in ways she couldn't have foreseen. Janek's unpaid position as polka D.J. has been a small homecoming in itself.

WHEN SHE grew up in the predominantly Polish neighborhood surrounding St. Hedwig Roman Catholic Church in Detroit during the Depression, English was a second language and polkas were the dance of choice.

"It's inborn," said Janek of her unabashed love for polkas. "I was dancing when I was a tot. My Aunt Helen taught me to dance."

But by the time she was working her way through St. Hedwig's high school as a waitress in a Stouffer's restaurant on Woodward, the wider world was already beckoning.

During the last years of high school, teachers exhorted the students to concentrate on their English language skills to make it easier to enter the working world. As they worked on assimilating, they put behind themselves appreciably portions of their ethnic upbringing.

"I walked away, and you forget. And when you return to it, you realize what you've forget."

Outdoor cafe

Bates Street Cafe, Birmingham's largest outdoor cafe, has opened for the fourth summer of serving lunches.

The cafe on the north lawn of the Community House across from Shain Park serves lunches from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. weekdays. Offerings include a variety of salads, sandwiches and cold soups. Among the most popular items are Chinese Chicken Salad at $5.95; brie, fresh fruit and french bread, $4.95; shrimp and crab croissants, $5.50; tortillini salad marinated with fresh vegetables, $4.95; Bates Street Le Dog (hot dog) with potato salad, $2.95, and gazpacho, $1.90.

The cafe is open for the "In the Park" concert series on Thursday nights throughout the summer. A buffet dinner featuring hearty salads and a chicken dinner and beverages is served beginning at 5:30 p.m. No reservations are necessary.

The cafe also is open evenings for private parties and offers a selection of liquor and wine. To reserve a date for a summer party, call the Community House at 644-5832.

The cafe is operated by the Community House, a nonprofit organization. Revenue from the cafe, along with funds raised from the community, allows the Community House to continue operating the activities center that serves the tri-county area.

Use garden herbs for tasty vinegar

Now is the time to sow seeds of perennials and biennials for next year's bloom. If you wait until August, the seeds don't have sufficient time to develop into flowering sized plants. Delphiniums, lupines, primroses and violas are some of the short-lived perennials to plant now.

June is also the appropriate month to take stem cutting from some of the perennials, after they have flowered. Cuttings are exact replicas of the parent plant, so you will be assured of the same plant by using this method.

Hydrangea, forsythia, dianthus (pinks), dicentra (bleeding heart), iberis (candytuft) are perennials that form vigorous solid-stemmed, leafy shoots are good candidates for this method of propogation.

Trim plants back about one half to a third and wait about two weeks for new, vigorous shoots to form. Take leafy stem cuttings, not shoots with flower buds or those which are part of the flower stalk itself. Some perennials form new side shoots on the flowering stems so they do not need to be trimmed severly.

A few hours before taking a cutting, water the plant thoroughly so that the tissues will be full of water. Early in the day is the best time to cut the shoots 3-4 inches long. Cut new firm growth, not woody portions. Generally the cut should be made directly below a growing point, where new roots will form. If the plant has side shoots, slice a thin shield-shaped piece of the older growth with that shoot. Plant these cuttings as soon as you can, to prevent moisture loss.

Strip off the leaves from the bottom node (the place on the stem from which leaves, buds or other structures grow). Any flowering portions of the cutting should be removed. As a rule it is best to keep one set of leaves and the tip of each cutting. If the leaves are large, trim them about one third to prevent moisture loss. A rooting hormone will assist the cutting to get a healthy start.

Pot the cuttings about an inch deep in a sterile medium that drains well. Stem cuttings need moist, warm soil so provide the necessary atmosphere for them. Silvery-leaved plants and wooly ones like to have dry leaves, while moisture-loving plants may like a mist now and then.

A cold frame in a shady spot of the garden may be a good place for these babies. They should be covered most of the time, but occasionally need a breath of fresh air. After several weeks, when roots have formed, they can be transplanted into individual pots. They need to get used to the garden climate gradually, before being set in a permanent location.

Tarragon is a perennial herb used for dishes, which need an anise flavor. When buying this plant, taste a bit of the leaf to be sure it has the anise taste. This will be French tarragon. Any other tarragon is just wasting garden space.

French tarragon is most often propogated by root division. It is best to do this in the early part of the season, since new plants should have time to develop a good root system. Tarragon will die down in the winter, but when spring arrives, the little shoots are a welcome sight.

Vinegar can be made by filling a glass jar two-thirds with the herb. (A salad spinner is an excellent way to remove excess moisture from the leaves after washing), and covering it with white vinegar (five percent acidity is best). White wine vinegar is excellent. Cap with a non-metallic lid and set in the sun for about a week.

Store in a cool, dark area for a month or so. Strain and bottle. A spring of fresh tarragon in the bottle (put it upside down) adds a nice touch.

Dixieland jazz is his mainstay

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

From his home in New Orleans, raspy-voiced trumpeter Al Hirt answered the phone to talk about his concert Saturday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Hirt and his three-piece rhythm section, along with Pete Fountain and the Dukes of Dixieland, will appear at 8 p.m. at Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills.

"I've been at Meadow Brook before, more than once," Hirt said. "It's a very nice place."

For his outdoor concerts, the upbeat music-maker always plays "Java," his Grammy-award-winning hit of 20 years ago. "It's short and tuneful. People still remember it," he said.

The rest of his program is mostly standards, along with the New Orleans music, or Dixieland, for which he is best known. He said he doesn't play with the regular Dixieland sound. "It's looser for me. I work along with just the rhythm section (bass, drum and piano). The traditional is clarinet and trombone."

He doesn't have a set format, Hirt continued. "I just let it go." He may play "Send in the Clowns" quietly, "then shoot out to something New Orleans-y, like 'South Rampart.' "

"IT'S ALL IN my head," he said of the Dixieland favorites he is likely to choose from, to play for his fans.

Although he has done other outdoor concerts, he said there aren't any he has played that are as nice as Meadow Brook. 'I've never played the Pine Knob pavilion, I was always booked already. I can't thik of anything I enjoy more than an outdoor theater like Meadow Brook."

Asked what kind of music he enjoys doing the most, Hirt replied, "I love it all. I get a charge out of anything I play. I develop a rapport with the audience and myself. I try to put showmanship with what I do. I try to get them to like me as a performer as well."

Hirt said the last time he was in the Detroit area was in 1986 for an appearance with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He and his group performed with the orchestra, then he and the jazz group played alone.

Many music-lovers have listened to Hirt's arresting horn at the New Orleans club he ran on Bourbon Street for 22 years. When he first closed the club in 1983, he missed it for a time, but now that feeling has passed.

Business had deteriorated on Bourbon Street and the economy had gone down, Hirt cited as the main reason for folding his club. "It's leased out now to a Ripley's 'Believe It or Not' museum," he said. The old club's site is on a corner only a half-block from his home on St. Louis Street in the French Quarter.

Also appearing at Meadow Brook this weekend will be Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, and the Four Tops, at 8 p.m. Friday. Ticket information for Mddow Brook concerts is available by calling the box office at 377-2010.

Al Hirt, a native of New Orleans, will play standards and New Orleans jazz in his concert Saturday night at Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Greenfield Village Presents Another Blast From The Past.

For our Muzzle Loaders Festival, we've invited just the right people to recreate the atmosphere and action of the Civil War: 3,000 Yanks and Rebs. They'll be facing off once again with some cannon-firing demonstrations as well as target shooting contests.

But you'll also get a bang out of their period costumes, their precise marching drills, and their military bands.

So call 271-1976 for more information.

The Muzzle Loaders Festival At Greenfield Village, June 20 & 21.

Temporary Clerical Opportunities

If you are a person who enjoys the flexibility and variety that limited time temporary work assignments can offer, Digital Equipment Corporation's Temporary Program is what you are looking for.

Digital has been an innovator in the computer hardware, software, and service fields for 30 years. Our innovative philosophies have been successful over time and it is because of this that we have decided to approach our need for temporary office personnel a little differently, too.

Digital is recruiting qualified, hard-working, dedicated temporary secretaries, word processors, receptionists, clerks, data entry operators, typists, and stockkeepers. Our Temporary Program provides Digital managers with personnel from an internal pool of these individuals for assignments ranging from a few days up to six months.

If you possess good skills and are looking for a challenging and exciting work experience, Digital is looking for YOU!

For more information about becoming a Temporary, call (313) 553-5603 Mondays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. If you are unable to call, please send your resume to Carla Papenfuse, Personnel Specialist, Dept. 0615-7231, Digital Equipment Corporation, 34119 West 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills, Michigan 48018.

We are an affirmative action employer.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything & show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my Loved One, in Your perpetual glory, Amen.

Pitchers set tone for honor team

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

all-area softball

It's a fact of girls fast-pitch softball that every successful team boasts one truly outstanding pitcher.

Thus, it requires no explanation why the pitchers on the 1987 All-Observer team — Shelly Malone and Kim Berrie — hail from Garden City and Plymouth Salem.

Those schools enjoyed the most success among Observerland ballclubs, and the teams' respective aces played vital roles.

With Malone on the mound, Garden City won its first 29 games, captured the Northwest Suburban League title and reached the semifinals of the state tournament. For Salem, Berrie won 17 of 18 decisions as the Rocks posted a 21-3 record, including a 16-0 slate in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Having enjoyed that kind of success, it is no surprise the Cougars and Rocks dominated the honor squad, putting players in six of the 10 first-team positions with three berths apiece.

Malone is joined by infielder Mikey Gorak and outfielder Karen Sandman; Berrie's teammates on the elite squad are first baseman Denice Tackett and infielder Marcie Walker.

Livonia Franklin, runner-up to Salem in the WLAA, placed two players on the first team, Farmington Mercy and Redford Union one each.

As a footnote to the selection of Malone and Berrie as first-team pitchers, Franklin and Mercy — the teams following Garden City and Salem in terms of overall success — produced the second-team hurlers in Patty Wixson and Amy Edward, respectively.

The individual accomplishments of those players whom area coaches voted to the All-Observer first team are listed below.

SHELLY MALONE, pitcher, Garden City: A senior who compiled a 17-1 record, Malone broke every school record for pitching. She posted a 1.18 earned run average, allowing 20 earned runs in 119 innings, and struck out 90 batters for coach Barry Patterson's ballclub. Opponents managed just 63 hits and 39 walks while she was on the mound.

For her career, Malone, who was 39-0 the last two years before losing a 2-0 decision to East Detroit in the semifinal game, had a 56-4 record with 329 strikeouts and a 1.33 ERA.

The Cougars' most valuable player the last three years, she also was a good hitter with a .408 batting average, 14 runs batted in and one home run. Her career average was .345.

"Along with being a good hitter, Shelly is one of the toughest competitors I have ever coached," Patterson said. "She possesses excellent knowledge of the game and is one of the best fielding pitchers around."

KIM BERRIE, pitcher, Plymouth Salem: If Malone overpowered opposing hitters, then Berrie's asset was her control, a statement supported by the fact she walked just 30 batters, threw only four wild pitches and didn't hit anybody.

She struck out 50 and finished with a 1.30 ERA (22 earned runs in 118 innings). Berrie, a junior, started 19 games, faced 469 batters and allowed 96 hits. Her only defeat was a 1-0 loss to South Lyon, which also boasted an exceptional pitching talent in Andrea Nelson, in a predistrict qualifying game.

NICKI FRASER, catcher, Farmington Mercy: In addition to Edward's pitching, Fraser, another junior, was a reason the Marlins advanced to the regional final before being eliminated by Garden City.

Fraser, a three-year starter, hit .383 from the No. 9 spot in the Mercy batting order, stole 16 bases and had five RBI. She made 131 putouts and had a .960 fielding percentage.

"Nicki is an outstanding defensive catcher who will, nine times out of 10, beat the runner down to first with the back-up," coach Suzanne Brown said. "She is a great bunter with exceptional speed on the base paths."

DENICE TACKETT, first base, Plymouth Salem: Tackett was a "true power hitter" in the words of coach Rob Willette. While the Rocks could count on Berrie keeping them in every game, it was an awesome hitting attack, led by individuals such as Tackett, that usually turned games into routs and gave Salem's ace pitcher plenty of room to work with.

Tackett was Salem's RBI leader four consecutive years and finished her varsity career with more than 150. As a senior, she drove in 46 runs.

The Rocks' clean-up hitter, Tackett hit .524 and had eight home runs. She collected 19 extra-base hits, which included seven three-baggers, in 63 plate appearances. And, for being a power hitter, she struck only five times.

MARCIE WALKER, infielder, Plymouth Salem: As the No. 2 hitter in the Salem lineup, Walker's job was to get on base, which she did to the tune of a .400 batting average. She walked five times and struck out just once.

Walker, a senior who also sacrificed successfully on eight occasions and had 12 RBI, played the hot-corner position, which enabled her to use a good backhand move and strong throwing arm.

MIKEY GORAK, infielder, Garden City: Gorak's selection to the All-Observer team is evidence of another softball truth: All successful teams are strong up the middle. With Malone on the mound, Gorak at shortstop and Karen Sandman in center field, the Cougars possessed that quality.

Gorak hit .392 in her senior year and drove in 25 runs. Her team-leading 16 extra-base hits included three homers, five triples and eight doubles. She also walked 21 times and stole 17 bases.

"Mikey is a super hitter with good power," Patterson said. "Mikey has been a source of motivation for our team with her constant enthusiasm and aggressiveness."

Gorak, who was named Most Dedicated Female Athlete in Garden City's Class of '87, had a career batting average of .335, scored 87 runs, received 72 walks and stole 39 bases.

MARIA VASSELIOU, infielder, Livonia Franklin: With her .406 batting average and 23 RBI, Vasseliou helped lead the Patriots to the WLAA's Western Division championship (9-0) and a 13-2 record against league competition.

She completed her four-year varsity career with an average on the plus side of .400 after hitting .413 and .450 the previous two years, respectively. Vasseliou, selected as her school's Most Outstanding Female Athlete, committed only four errors and had a fielding percentage of .939.

"Maria has the ability to hit and field for any college she chooses to go to," Franklin coach Joe Epstein said. "I, for one, and Franklin as a whole will miss her presence on the athletic field."

Tournament format geared to suit coaches, not prep fans

Brad Emons

ERNIE BANKS WAS FAMOUS for coining the phrase, "It's a beautiful day, let's play three."

The Hall of Famer was only kidding of course, knowing it was impossible to play three games strictly under the sun in the friendly confines of Chicago's Wrigley Field.

Annually, the Michigan High School Athletic Association's baseball committee tries to top Banks's wishes by crying, "Let's play four."

Yes, the MHSAA tries to jam four state championship (Class D,C,B and A) games all in one day, but it rarely works. Conforming to starting times of 10 a.m., noon, 3 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. is just about impossible, taking into consideration that a lot of ballgames run longer than scheduled.

"They have to be played all at one site," pleaded baseball committee member Frank Sumbera, the successful head coach at Grosse Pointe North. "We've suggested starting the Class D game at 9 a.m."

Not a bad idea, but Sumbera doesn't like the suggestion of dividing the championship games into two sites.

"This is a baseball festival," he said. "People come here to watch all four games."

THAT MAY BE TRUE, but is this a "baseball festival" for the coaches, or the fans and players?

It got utterly ridiculous Saturday when the start of the Class A title game between Redford Catholic Central and Midland Dow, originally scheduled for 5:30 p.m. at Michigan State's Kobs Field, was changed to 7:45 p.m. at Lansing's Municipal

Whalers select area player

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

For Adam Burt, Rome could have been built in the time it seem to take for him to be drafted Saturday.

And on its second coat of paint.

The 6-foot 2-inch defenseman from Westland was brushed over for awhile in the National Hockey League Entry Draft at Joe Louis Arena. Waiting over two hours, he was finally picked by the Hartford Whalers late in the second round, the 39th player chosen overall.

The selection was surprising in that Burt was pegged by many scouts to go in the first round.

Also, it was a Caspar Weinberger draft with defense a high priority. Defensemen went in wholesale quantities (11 were picked in the first round). But Burt went unclaimed until Hartford called his name.

AND MORE THAN who eventually tabbed the talented defenseman was who didn't. The Detroit Red Wings had two chances but opted for two other blueliners instead, Yves Racine of Longueuil of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League and Gordon Kruppke of the Western Hockey League's Prince Albert team.

Adam Burt
Hartford bound

Even chants of "Burt, Burt" from the crowd didn't sway the Wings.

Burt wasn't noticeably miffed about being passed over in the first round and by the hometown team, quickly putting on a Whalers jersey.

"Wherever you get picked is really irrelevant," said Burt, who was the second U.S.-born player taken, not the first as predicted. "What you do with the opportunity is what matters. It all comes down to what you do in training camp."

HARTFORD CERTAINLY jumped on the opportunity to draft Burt, who is known as a homestead defenseman.

"I was surprised he was available in the second round," said Emile Francis, president and general manager of the Whalers. "Central Scouting had him rated No. 12."

Scouting reports lauded Burt for his ability to clear the front of the net and his aggressiveness. He's not exactly another Bobby Orr offensively, having four goals and 27 assists playing for North Bay of the Ontario Hockey League this season.

European ball right move for Shasky

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

A year ago, John Shasky's future was uncertain. The 6-foot-11 Birmingham Brother Rice graduate had blossomed into a solid college basketball player at the University of Minnesota.

But that guaranteed him nothing in the world of pro basketball. Before the National Basketball Association draft, Shasky was projected as a second-to-fourth round pick.

He didn't know when he'd be chosen. He didn't know by whom. And — in a sport in which second-round selections rarely make the team — Shasky didn't know what his chances were.

One thing he did know: He wanted to play in the NBA.

That's why, after a good showing in the summer pro league in Los Angeles and in the Utah Jazz rookie camp (he was picked by Utah in the third round of last June's draft), Shasky decided to — play in France?

> 'But as I got more and more into it I ... could see they had 14 veterans under contract and hadn't signed their first-round pick.'
> — John Shasky
> former Brother Rice star

AT FIRST GLANCE, it might seem ludicrous that, after a very promising rookie camp, Shasky decided to forego signing a lucrative NBA contract with Utah to play with a team in Cholet, France. But his thinking was actually quite sound.

"I played better than a lot of rookies (at the Utah camp)," he acknowledged. "Some people said I was doing really well. But as I got more and more into it, I talked to some of the guys and I could see they had 14 veterans under contract, and they hadn't signed their first-round draft choice (Dell Curry) yet."

Shasky is just four classes short of gaining his bachelor's degree in marketing from Minnesota. That type of academic preparation made it easy for him to outline his career choices. He figured he could:

- Give it his best shot with Utah, knowing they could carry only 12 players and that they had traded Adrian Dantley to Detroit for Kelly Tripucka and back-up center Kent Benson (Shasky's position);
- Play in the Continental Basketball Association (CBA), a junior league for NBA have-nots, where pay is minimal but there's a chance to catch on with an NBA team;
- Go to France and play for Cholet, where he would get paid $55,000 for eight months work and be given an apartment and car to use.

"I didn't think my chances were that great (at Utah)," said Shasky. "And in the CBA you're not going to make any money. I had a sure thing in Europe, and the team was stable."

IT SEEMED Shasky's decision was a good one. After his team moved up from Division II to Division I (France's best), it struggled through a poor first half of the season.

That performance dropped Cholet into the lower half of Division I where, in the season's second half, the team rebounded to finish tied for second and gained a playoff berth.

Cholet faced Monaco, France's second-best team, in its two-game, total-points playoff. Monaco won the first game at Cholet, but Cholet jolted the favorites by beating them at Monaco in the second. Monaco, though, outscored Cholet and advanced in the playoffs.

Playing an American game in a foreign land was "really different," Shasky said. "I'd say (French basketball) is a step above college basketball but a step below the NBA.

"It's just as physical there, but it's more mechanical than here. Players aren't as creative. They don't have the influence of playground basketball that they have here."

Cholet provided Shasky with what he sought. "It helped me career-wise. I got some money put away, so if I have to I can afford to play in the CBA."

Burt drafted in 2nd round

"He didn't fit into the banger mold," said David McNab, chief scout of the Whalers. "He's not an offensive player. He's just a solid two-way defenseman.

"We're thrilled to have him."

AT BURT'S AGE (18), he'll have at least one more year in juniors. Defensemen usually take longer than forwards to develop.

With another year in juniors likely, Burt might try out for the U.S. Olympic team.

"I'm going to leave that up to the Hartford Whalers' front office," he said.

That wait at least won't seem as long as the one Saturday.

Burt's family, including his brother, Noah, and sister, Laura, from Westland, waited nervously for his name to be called. His father, Harry Burt, was particularly on edge.

"It's hard," said Harry Burt, a bit disappointed that Detroit didn't take his son. "It's so up and down, waiting them to call his name."

Friends started the chant when Detroit's turn came up in the second round.

"I WAS TOLD before (the draft) that I probably wouldn't be going to Detroit," said Burt, "so I guess I was ready for it.

"I thought it was neat with everyone yelling. I got some chills up my back.

"You have a lot of things going through you're mind. You wonder, 'Is this team going to draft me?' or 'How would I like going to this team?' "

The defenseman picked ahead of Burt by Detroit in the second round is noted for similar qualities. Kruppke is also labeled as a stay-at-home type who plays an aggressive game.

Burt even had the edge offensively. Kruppke had two goals and 10 assists in 49 games with Prince Albert. Burt had 31 points in 57 games with North Bay.

Neil Smith, director of scouting for the Wings, said they debated between Kruppke and Burt. But Kruppke, he said, was rated higher on their list.

"The sentiment was there (in the crowd) to draft him," said Smith. "You try to draft a player by his ability, not his birthplace."

Smith added they probably would've taken Burt with their second pick in the second round they received from Philadelphia, the 41st selection overall.

ALL OF WHICH, of course, is moot. Burt was certainly glad to be drafted by Hartford, which had the fourth-best overall record in the regular season. Playing in the NHL has been a goal of his since playing Mite hockey as a 7-year-old in Redford.

And it became reality after his name was announced and official after a handshake by former Red Wing great Gordie Howe, now assistant to the chairman of the Whalers.

"I met him once when I really young," said Burt, whose father worked at Olympia Stadium when Howe played. "But I don't remember it."

Appliance salvages a victory

Walter's Appliance salvaged one victory during a weekend of play in Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

The Adray Kings, a Class A team, swept Walter's in their three-game series. But Walter's did manage to beat Tom Holzer Ford of Northville in a game played Friday at Livonia's Ford Field, 12-2.

Scott Curd was the winning pitcher for Walter's, allowing just four hits and one walk over six innings. He fanned five.

Dan Kopitzke took the loss for Tom Holzer.

Scott Papich and Mike Rudin each went 3-for-3 for Walter's, who mounted a 13-hit attack. Papich also drove in three runs.

But Walter's was no match for the older and more experienced Kings in the first game on Friday, losing 14-3.

Jim Rousseau went 3-for-4 for the winners to help give Kings pitcher Dan Zang the win.

Rudin went 2-for-2 and Chris Sisler belted a two-run homer in a losing cause. Pitcher Don Baker took the loss.

ON SUNDAY, the Kings swept Walter's, 12-1 and 8-6. Both games were played at Ford Field.

Walter's nearly pulled off an upset in the nightcap, scoring three times in the seventh inning to pull ahead 6-5. Rudin's two-run single ignited the surge. Keith Kucharczyk also scored on a wild pitch.

But the Kings' Jim Ross tripled in a run in the bottom of the seventh and Dean Fracassi won it with a two-run homer.

Fracassi also clubbed a two-run homer in the second inning after Rousseau had belted one out in the first.

Zang was the winning pitcher and John Knittel took the loss.

Tourney format doesn't work

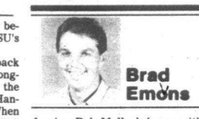
Park. The change was necessary because of the need for lights. MSU's field has no lights.

The Class A game was set back because of the late start and long-running game that preceded it, the Class B final between Bay City Handy and Battle Creek Lakeview. When that game was concluded, the "A" game couldn't begin until the umpires from the "B" game had arrived.

It just wasn't fair for the players and coaches from CC and Dow to wait around four hours until game time.

But to both teams' credit, they played one of the most exciting and memorable championship games ever witnessed in this state. The game was decided when Doug Martin walked with the bases loaded, forcing Bob Malleck home with the winning run to give CC a 4-3 victory in the bottom of the ninth.



Brad Emons

THE ONLY BASEBALL GAME I remember that could rival this one was Game No. 6 of the 1976 World Series between Boston and Cincinnati when Carlton Fisk won it for the Red Sox with a home run. But what I remember most was all the clutch plays made under pressure situations.

The Class A final was very similar, but you had to be there to appreciate the effort put forth by these two clubs.

"I hope somebody has a videotape of all this because there were so many great plays that I'll have to remember," said CC coach John Salter.

It was a blessing that such a fine facility like the lighted Lansing Municipal Park, the site of the Class A semifinals on Friday, was readily available and only minutes away from Kobe Field.

Next year the state finals will be in Lansing again. The sites rotate every two years. The talk around the diamonds over the weekend is that the University of Michigan's Fisher Field may host for the first time in 1989 even though Central Michigan University, which hosted the finals in 1981 and 1982, may already be the choice.

THE BASEBALL COMMITTEE needs to reach a solution soon on how to handle the problem about scheduling four games in one day without keeping the players and fans guessing about starting times. The next site should at least have a backup diamond with lights at its disposal to avoid any potentially messy situations.

I remember the unfortunate finish in the 1982 state final at Mount Pleasant (CMU) between Midland and Plymouth Canton. All of Saturday's games were washed out by rain and the teams had to drive back to play on Monday.

The Class A final ended practically in the dark. The situation was made worse when a vicious storm rolled in, making things almost impossible to see.

All I remember is Canton's Fred Rumberger striking out with the tying run on third to end the game. The poor kid never had a chance. He couldn't have seen a darn thing.

It was nearly the same scenario last year in Kalamazoo in the Class A final between Ypsilanti and Birmingham Brother Rice. It was pitch-black and rainy when the game finally ended.

TOO BAD THEY can't play baseball in the Pontiac Silverdome, the site of all four state football finals.

But old Ernie Banks wouldn't like that because baseball was meant to be played on grass and under blue skies.

I can't argue with Ernie, but I can argue with the MHSAA's baseball committee.

Cobras cap turnaround

The Canton Cobras, a 9-and-under boys soccer team, capped a yearlong comeback bid when they won their division championship this spring with a 7-1-3 record.

The Division IV Cobras were next to last in the standings a year ago, but they improved to third place last fall.

In post-season Cup play, the Cobras defeated Division III and IV teams in back-to-back games by 3-0 scores. In the final, they were beaten by a Division I outfit 3-1.

Cherie Mascarello Franklin

KAREN SANDMAN, outfielder, Garden City: An excellent fielder and good hitter, she was instrumental in Garden City being the solid ballclub that it was. She hit .387, collecting 36 hits in 93 at-bats, and had a .935 fielding percentage. Sandman, who also was noted for her bunting ability and had 13 stolen bases, was named to the coaches' All-State first team.

"Karen is an exceptional outfielder with a strong, accurate throwing arm and great speed," Patterson said. "Karen has been a real stabilizing force for the past three seasons."

For her career, the senior hit .348, scored 87 runs and stole 26 bases.

CHERIE MASCARELLO, outfielder, Livonia Franklin: The Patriots also were strong up the middle, the Wixson-Vasselicu-Mascarello combination being the strength of Franklin's team. Another center fielder, Mascarello had an errorless season while making 21 putouts and four assists en route to a 1.000 percentage in the field.

At the plate, she batted .333 and led the Patriots in RBI for the second straight year with 29 RBI. Nearly half of her hits went for extra bases as she collected five doubles, three triples and one homer.

"In my opinion, Cherie has been one of the best outfielders in the Observerland area for the past three years," Epstein said. "She has the best reflexes of any fielder I've ever had. She ranks with some of the best in the state.

"Cherie's batting power and great outfield skills will help to make her an asset to any college she plays for," he added.

ANDREA ROEDDING, outfielder, Redford Union: Roedding joins Tackett as the other power hitter on the All-Observer team. She had the highest batting average of the honored players at .529, and she clouted six home runs in addition to three triples.

She also had 29 RBI and only two strikeouts in 92 at-bats. She was 38-for-38 in stolen base attempts.

Roedding, the Panthers' MVP, led her team in nine categories: runs (36), hits (36), average, times on base (61), on-base percentage (.663), RBI, triples, homers and stolen bases.

"Andrea is one of the finest student-athletes I've had the privilege to associate with," Redford Union coach Gary DeRoche said. "Her speed helps her cover the outfield as well as anyone."

The CBA, of course, isn't where Shasky plans to be come fall. "I still want to play in the NBA," he said from his grandparents' home near Minneapolis, where he is taking classes at Minnesota. "I'd like to stay in the U.S. this year. I'm going to camp with Utah, and I'm going to play in the summer pro league in Los Angeles again."

BUT DON'T MISUNDERSTAND. Shasky's future is no more certain now than it was a year ago.

"I know Utah's big men (Benson and Marc Iavaroni) didn't have that great of years," Shasky said. "But you never know who they're going to draft.

"It's hard to say what's going to happen. Everybody's been asking me what I'm going to do. I don't know. I hope I'm playing in the NBA."

Shasky's situation is complicated further by the failure of the NBA and the players' association to reach an agreement on a labor contract. Both sides agreed previously to suspend all player contract negotiations until Oct. 1 or the signing of a new labor pact.

That means Shasky can't sign with Utah yet. And it also means he faces another decision: Should he try the NBA, knowing he might have to settle for the CBA, or head back to Europe?

"My preference is to stay here in the U.S. and play," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see."

BEING ON BETTER financial ground, Shasky said, should make it easier to risk a shot in the NBA, even if he has to settle for the CBA. Plus, there's the planned NBA expansion to consider.

Four new franchises are to be added in the next two years. That means 48 more jobs. And good big men are hard to find.

Shasky wants to be one of the "good big men" that find their way onto an NBA roster. "One thing that is important for me to work on is my range as a shooter," he said. "And I've been lifting weights — that's always important in the NBA. I have to work on my defense, too."

Should he fail to make it in the NBA, Shasky said he might look to play in Italy or Spain ("They pay better than in France"). And if that doesn't work out . . .

"There comes a point in time where you have to say forget it," he said. "Getting ready to go to camp is a lot of hard work. There just comes a point where you say to yourself you don't want to do that anymore."

But for now, that decision is still down the road for Shasky.

War clouds threaten the peaceful Ohio Valley

Helen Gilbert

Night crept in on silver slippers darkening the valley below Laurel Mountain as the young Col. George Washington and his little army of about 169 Virginians sought their rest.

Their camp was on the flat land between Chestnut Ridge and Laurel Hill at a place called the Great Meadows.

The meadow was surrounded by towering hills and a beautiful evergreen forest. The only sound was a rushing brook scurrying to meet Pennsylvania's Youghiogheny River.

It is about nine o'clock in the evening of May 29, 1754. If we look to the ridge in the southeast, we can dimly perceive a break in the forest wall where an ancient Indian trail bends down toward the meadow. A gentle wind from the west blows the fragrant pines.

Suddenly the primitive, lovely silence is broken by the shrill whistle of a strange night bird. The call is repeated several times. It seems to come from the southeast along the ancient trail.

Even Washington, at this time a novice in soldiering and in Indian lore, recognizes the sound as the signalled approach of an Indian trail runner.

A FEW MOMENTS later a dusky figure races out of the forest and heads straight for the tent under the flagstaff.

The runner is greeted with a friendly handshake by Col. Washington and delivers an important letter from Chief Half King or, as the British called him, Chief Monakaduto. The messenger was Silverheels of the Shawnee.

Half King had rejected the French because they had murdered his father. Although a Seneca — therefore, not allied with the Algonquin (Ottowa, Chippewa-Ojibwa, Pottowatomi) — Half King had no qualms about hiring a Shawnee to run his messages.

Readers of Tonquish Tales may recall that old Half King was loyal to Washington and late last year (November 1753) guided Christopher Gist and G.W. to Fort LeBoeuf near Lake Erie. There they met the commandant of the French and delivered an important message from the governor of Virginia. (A description of this historically significant journey may be found in Tonquish Tales, Vol. 2, Chapters 22-25.)

In less than a year the struggle for the valley has escalated to the brink of a shooting war. Before we read Half King's letter to Washington, let's take a moment to sketch some of the facts about Silverheels and the Shawnees.

The Shawnee controlled a vast, rich hunting land situated just south of the tribal lands of the Miami of Ohio. It extended to the Great Smoky Mountain country of the Cherokee and on to the southern hills of the Chickasaw. In other words, from Toledo and Fort Wayne south to Georgia and Stone Mountain.

THE SHAWNEE were great hunters, travelers and traders. Some were noted in Indian political circles — men of influence with other tribes.

Among these was Chief Tecumseh, a prominent leader whose influence extended into Michigan. In the museum at Fort Malden, Amherstberg, Canada, there are a few very interesting Tecumseh relics.

Tecumseh's half-brother was the noted Shawnee Prophet, Tenskwatawa. With Greenville, Ohio, as his base camp, he ranged far and wide, spreading his unique interpretation of immortality and the life of the spirit.

Silverheels was not a maverick runner but was closely affiliated with the political forces in his tribe. His brother was Hokolaqua, principal chief of the clan, and his sister was Helma, a squaw chief in her own right.

So when Washington rose to shake hands with Silverheels and offer him firewater, he knew that he was greeting someone who could be exceedingly useful in the years to come.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Tonto of Lone Ranger fame was born Jayson Silverheels. He was a descendent of the trail runner.

I HAVE COPIES of several old treaties with the Shawnee and others, and the Treaty of 1809 which pertains, in part, to the settlement with Chief Tonquish, has several Shawnee names along with Tonquish. Names are in English translation.

The actual signing, of course, is a mark or symbol. Either the translator is wrong, or there were some Shawnees closely affiliated with Wayne County's Tonquish. Perhaps they wandered into the meeting to collect a share of whatever was available. It is certain that the specified boundaries meant little to Tonquish.

The 1809 Treaty signed by Thomas Jefferson grants all the land from a trail marker then at or near the place where Orchard Lake Road meets Grand River.

The anthropology department in Lansing has a large map which locates all the principal sites of "digs" in Michigan. A place on Warren Road, well within the Tonquish territory, is marked as a site. It is about where Fellows Creek crosses Warren.

The plaque erected by the State Historical Society in memory of Tonquish is, as you probably know, on the east side of Wayne Road near the intersection of Joy Road. Old timers who used to live in the area have told me that the Fellows Creek "dig" produced "tons of arrowheads."

But like the story of the old pots and beads that were supposed to have been excavated when they leveled the mound to build the Presbyterian Church in Plymouth, not one relic from this sight has ever been located.

These stories, surrounded by myth and repeated over and over, have the ring of truth. I believe my Sunday School teacher who in 1922 said that when they removed the bodies from the old cemetery in back of the church in Plymouth they found some Indians sitting up in their graves, surrounded by pots, beads, and other ornaments.

And I believe the Rev. Philip Rodgers McGee, present minister of this church, who says that he was told that they found several Indian relics when they excavated the basement for the west wing of that edifice.

And so it goes.

We have wandered a long way from Washington and Fort Necessity, the Great Meadows and the struggle for the valley. We will go back there next time.

Reporting poachers can preserve wildlife

Bill Parker

Fielding the facts—

Malicious destruction of our fine natural resources really gets me steaming! Especially when it's senseless and inhumane. And it should bother you too!

If all outdoorsmen and women would ban together and report the poaching and destruction of these resources we'd stand a much better chance of retaining and improving the resources we have left.

Hoodlums recently destroyed better than 500 nests of the Double-crested Cormorant on two islands in Lake Michigan off the Garden Peninsula in the Upper Peninsula. Nests were destroyed, birds were killed and eggs were smashed. For what purpose? Absolutely none.

The Double-crested Cormorant, which nests on islands in Lake Michigan and Lake Huron, doesn't bother man and is already struggling to survive.

In recent years Cormorants have been poisoned by toxins in the water such as PCB's and Phenyl chlorophenols (wood preservatives). Now their existence is being threatened by a thoughtless prank by some disrespectful fool.

The Michigan Audubon Society, along with other concerned environmental and conservation organizations, is offering a reward totaling better than $4,000 to any person or persons helping to convict the the guilty parties.

Anyone who saw anything suspicious or has any information about the incident should contact the Audubon Society at (616) 344-8648, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs at (517) 371-1041, or the Michigan Nature Association at (313) 324-2626.

• The United States Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed that the Kirtland's Warbler Management Area, near the Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge, should be opened for migratory game bird, upland game and big game hunting. The areas occupied by the endangered warblers will remain closed, posted and patrolled but the remaining area would be open to hunting. If OK'd by Bill Horn, assistant secretary of fish, wildlife and parks, the management area would be open according to legal hunting seasons as early as September 1, 1987.

• The Department of Natural Resources and the Consumers Power Company of Michigan are concerned with the illegal use of off-road vehicles (ORV) which is causing vegetation damage, soil erosion, disrupting wildlife and jeopardizing pedestrian safety.

Driving ORV's in non-designated areas in Michigan is a misdemeanor punishable by up to 90 days in jail and/or a $500 fine. Consumers Power Company wants all ORV owners to be aware that land under electrical power lines and over gas transmission lines is not public property and is not open to ORV use.

The DNR also points out that, aside from the Silver Lake State Park in Oceana County, all state parks, state recreation areas and wildlife/game areas are off limits to ORV use.

Michigan maintains over 1,600 miles of ORV trails in the Upper Peninsula and the northern part of the Lower Peninsula. Trail guides, published annually by the DNR are available at all DNR offices or by writing to the DNR Information Services, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan, 48909, phone (517) 373-1220.

The Synquarian Synchronized Swim Team of Garden City has qualified for three national meets this summer, including the National Junior Olympics, for which no Michigan team has qualified since 1978.

Danielle McKarge, Terra Morris, Jolie Loftis, Michele Gaza, Tracie Milligan and Cara Dominick are headed for the National Age Group Championships June 19-23 in Baton Rouge, La. They qualified at the sectional meet in Indianapolis this spring.

Dominick was first in the 10 and under solo, McKarge won the 11-12 solo, and McKarge and Jolie Loftis won in duets. In trio competition, Loftis, Milligan and Morris finished second. The girls were first in the team standings.

AT THE REGIONAL Junior Olympic meet last weekend in Canton, Ohio, eight Synquarians qualified for the national meet. In solo competition, Nancy Szeromski (15-16 age group) and Debra Pawelak (17-18) each placed third. McKarge (11-12) was fourth and Christy Carter and Dominick (9-10) were fifth.

In duets, McKarge and Loftis (11-12) were second, Heather Ford and Valerie Swisher (17-18) were fourth and Tracy Hill and Stephanie McKarge (17-18) were fifth. In trio, Loftis, Morris and Milligan (11-12) were fourth and Pawelak, Ford and Swisher (17-18) were third.

The six-member 11-12 team finished fifth in the region. The eight-member 15-18 team of Hill, Stephanie McKarge, Kristen Baker, Szeromski, Jaime Eisel, Swisher, Ford and Pawelak qualified for the National Junior Olympics by finishing third in the region.

The 15-18 Synquarian team also qualified for the Junior National meet July 6-11 in Omaha, Neb.

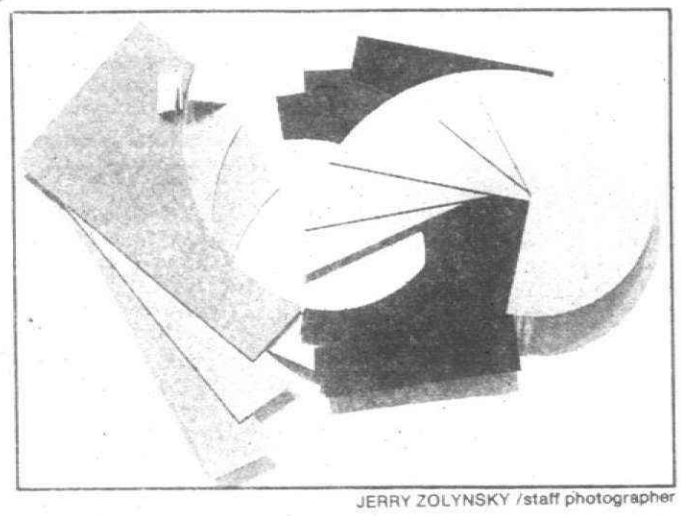
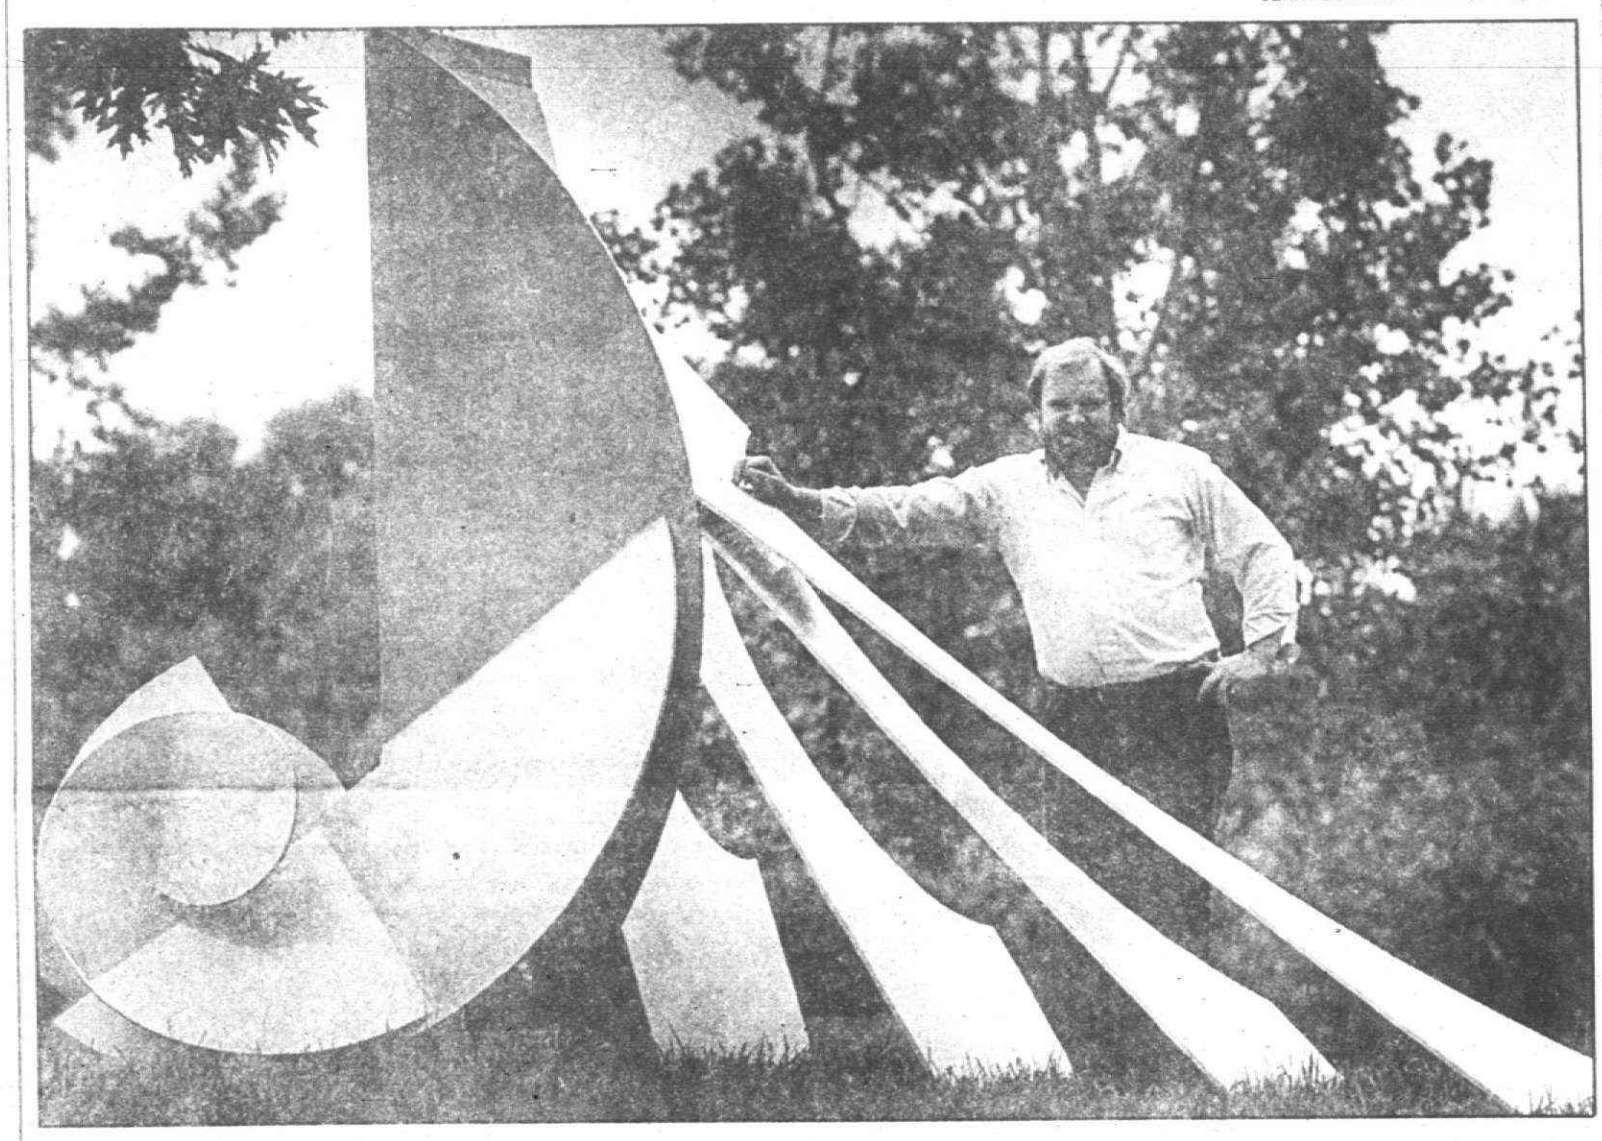
Sculptor's work corners the earth

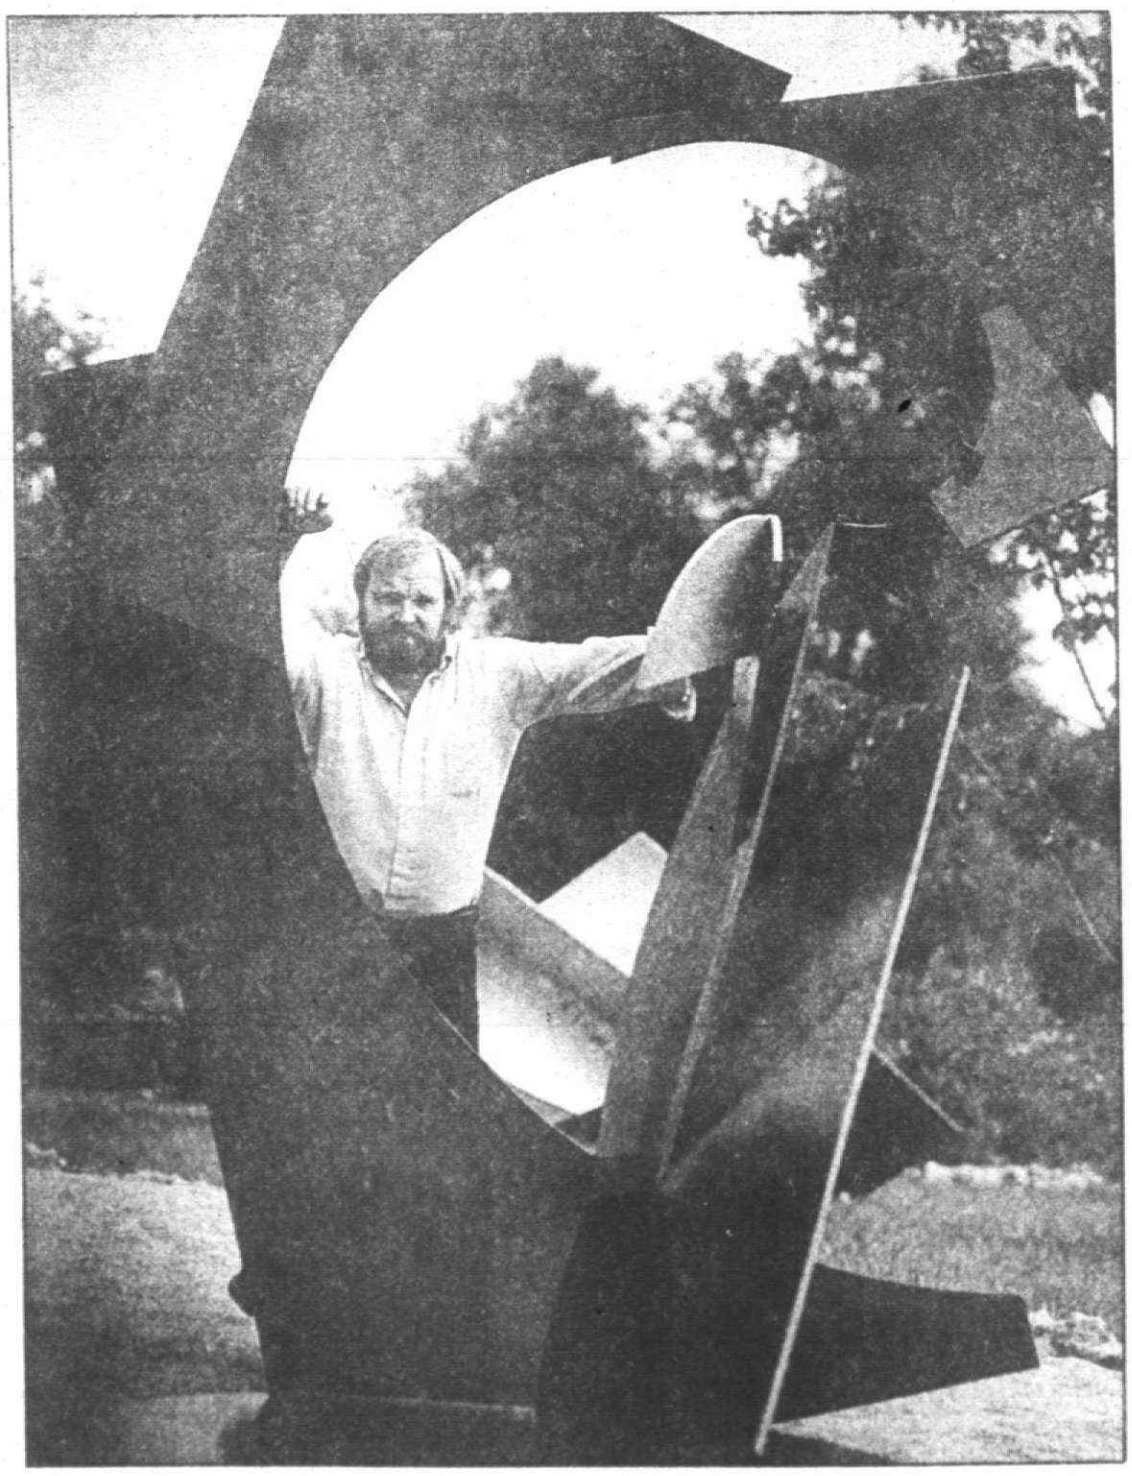
Barr is concerned about global issues and believes art can help unify humanity.



An example of structurist relief by David Barr. This and other similar pieces are on display at the Donald Morris Gallery of Birmingham. Hours of the exhibit can be found elsewhere on this page.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY /staff photographer





Artist David Barr with "Structurist Sculpture Number 9." The piece (above) and several others sit among the five acres that surrounds Barr's home in Novi. Barr attended Wayne State University and has taught at Macomb Community College since 1965. He works in three mediums: large sculpture like those that dot the land around his home; global, like the "Four Corners" project that took him around the world; and smaller reliefs, like those featured at the Donald Morris Gallery this month.

staff writer

DAVID BARR MAY return to Wales, Alaska this summer.

He is hoping the leaders of that Eskimo village, population 137, will allow him to place a sculpture there.

Barr wants to build two sculptures in Anchorage then ship them to villages on either side of the Bering Straits — in Wales, the other, on the Soviet side of the Straits, in Mys Peek, Chukotskiy, Poluostrov. The two frozen settlements are the geographically the closest America and the Soviet Union get.

"It is the hardest, harshest part of the world I've ever been in," said Barr.

While the village leaders in Wales haven't decided on the project, neither have they decided in Mys Peek. Barr has enlisted U.S. Sen. Carl Levin to help get permission from village and Soviet authorities.

The pieces, to be made of redwood and entitled "Artic Arc," will resemble an incomplete bridge and extended hand, and will align to the summer solstices.

Artic Art is the latest of Barr's project dealing with borders, and the latest work of "global art."

The largest such project was called "Four Corners,"a nine-year effort that Barr undertook unfunded and without grants. Barr envisioned a tetrahedron inside the earth, and he marked with small, marble tetrahedrons the four points of the image in Greenland, New Guinea, Easter Island and southern Africa.

It was a huge project and had a large impact on the artist. But he said he is vaguely annoyed by people who say it is his best work.

BARR DOES MUCH more than global pieces. There are two other aspects of his work: large sculpture, like those that dot the rural landscape surrounding his home in Novi; and smaller pieces, called reliefs.

A selection of reliefs shows through June 30 at the Donald Morris Gallery in Birmingham. Barr has spent more than a year creating the reliefs for the show.

He has been commissioned to build a large sculpture for the State of Michigan Library and Archives in Lansing in 1988. The piece, which will weigh several tons, is made of Michigan rock and is entitled "Polaris Ring."

"I don't want to make art that ends up only in the hands of collectors," he said.

Barr, 47, was born in Detroit has taught art at Macomb Community College since 1965. He is a structurist, and geo-structurist. He said he is interested natural patterns, in the relationship between color, form, space, light and time.

IN THE GLOBAL projects, Barr has worked with vastly different audiences. Four Corners took him to the earth's four corners and he dealt with politicians and tribesman and just plain folk. Often he needed their help or permission on a project.

"There are these wild swings of who you deal with," he said.

Barr said he tries to be open and honest, and has learned people opposed to his projects will walk away from them, while supportive people will lend a hand.

People told him he could never get government approval from New Guinea and Greenland. He did.

In New Guinea, young, natives asked him about break dancing. In Wales, Alaska, the young people are tuned in but locked out, he said.

"The young people walk the beaches — and down, up and down, up and down — wearing Walkmans," Barr said. The young people have nothing to do.

Barr said he is concerned about global issues, and believes art can help to unify humanity. Since he completed Four Corners, he has stayed in touch with people he met on various continents.

Art, he said, transcends politics.

"That, to me, in a troubled time, is a very important concept," he said.

HE HAS LATELY been exploring the themes of borders with the Artic Art project, and another, called Sunsweep, along the United States and Canadian border, and another along the United States-Mexican border, which Barr has called "a border of suffering."

Barr said the global projects raise ethical problems.

He said he has wondered if he shouldn't instead be bringing food to these people. "But in the end, I can only do what I do.

"I am not powerful enough to intrude."

He said he is interested in native and tribal cultures, and has studied them. He has learned how to communicate with people whose language he couldn't speak.

He was once riding on a plane into Greenland with a rough and hard living bush pilot at the controls. It was a difficult flight because the weather was bad.

The pilot said he wasn't so enamored of Barr's art work.

"But he said 'I understand your passion,'" Barr recalled.

The non-profit Foundation for International Geo-Structurist Art seeks funding to support geo-structurist art projects, like Barr's, though not to support a particular artist or works that are for sale. For more information, write to the foundation 25927 Salem Road, Huntington Woods, MI. 48070.

Barr in his studio with a model of Artic Arc. Barr hopes to carve two sculptures based on the model in Anchorage, Alaska then place one in Wales, Alaska, and another in Mys Peek, Soviet Union. The two villages face each other along the Bering Straits.

Barr reliefs at Morris Gallery

David Barr's reliefs are showing through June 30 at the Donald Morris Gallery, 105 Townsend, Birmingham.

Barr, who lives in Novi, has been working on the reliefs for over a year. He works with color-form-light-time-space to translate what he sees as "nature's shifting realities."

The work is layered, multi-colored and seems both orderly and disjointed. All that is the intention of the artist, who celebrates nature's profound patterns.

"I invent passionate flowers, crystals, landscapes, which do not presume to compete with nature but which endeavor to achieve a parallelism to nature — as an airplane is to a bird," Barr writes.

Besides reliefs, Barr does large sculptures, and even larger, global works.

The Donald Morris Gallery's hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Contests, conferences keep writers busy

LYNETTE BROWN, public relations specialist for both the Baldwin and Bloomfield Township libraries, wants Bloomfield Township patrons to know that the library is open during regular summer hours. Brown says the construction at Lone Pine and Telegraph roads is keeping people away, and Bloomfield Township isn't keen on allowing the library to put up signs along the roadway. So pass the word, she says — they're open.

And speaking of libraries, the two main libraries in Livonia, the Alfred Noble and Carl Sandburg branches, are already registering kids for the summer reading clubs. They can register through June and, as members, be eligible for summer programs, including a synchronized swimmers meet, a talk by a Kensington Metropark naturalist, a storytelling session on legends of animals and Indians in Michigan, a traveling theater group performing a play about the Underground Railroad, and, last but not least, a birthday party for the state in August at Rotary Park. Prizes will also be awarded in August so register your children before the end of the month at either library.

The Livonia libraries belong to the Wayne Federation of Libraries (WOLF) as do many area libraries, including those in Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Southfield and Farmington. WOLF sponsors "Computer Pix" for junior and senior high school students, and, while it's not a new program, it's new to me and may be new to you as well.

Here's how it works, according to library director Michael Deller:

Students answer brief, simple questions concerning their tastes in reading and the information is then fed through WOLF's computers. Within a couple of weeks the student receives a personalized reading list with titles, author's names and a brief description of the story. Contact the young adult librarian at any WOLF library.

Livonians can expect completion of their new main library, the Civic Center Library, by next spring. At 50,000 square feet of library space and 10,000 square feet of meeting room and auditorium space, the new library will be twice the size of the two current branches combined.

And is this something new? Livonia libraries offer their annual report on a 15-minute videotape. Yes, you can check it out.

THE NEWEST contribution to the University of Michigan Press's Poets on Poetry Series is "A Concert of Tenses: Essays of Poetry," by Tess Gallagher, edited by Donald Hall, poet in his own right and a former UM faculty member.

Gallagher, who was in Ann Arbor last November for the UM Writers Series with ther soulmate, Raymond Carver, has had three books of poetry published, as well as a collection of fiction published this year by Harper and Row.

"A Concert of Tenses" is $22 clothbound and $8.95 for the paperback Contact Diane Piel at 764-4330.

THE MICHIGAN Council of the Arts Artist Update lists a creative writing competition open to all writers and looking for short stories, poetry, scripts and articles/essays. There is a $1 fee for entry, and the deadline for submissions is June 30. The first place winner receives $100. Contact: Annual Coptest, Freelance Watch, P.O. Box 1191, Meade, Md. 20755 or call (301) 672-1382.

Coming up in July — The Michigan Northwoods Writer's Conference (July 12-17) on the Leelanau Peninsula along the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore. The writer's conference is one of the enrichment programs the Leelanau Center for Education puts on every summer. Writers-in-residence include poet Jim Daniels, fiction writers Sheila Roberts (adult) and Nancy Stone (children's literature).

Daniels, at Schoolcraft College in March for a reading, announced the formation of a new "no-fluff" poetry magazine called "5 a.m." He's looking for submissions as well as subscribers. Write to "5 a.m.", 1109 Milton Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15218. Rates are $2 a year.

Former Michigan resident Sheila Roberts is now an English professor at the University of Wisconsin. Nancy Stone is associate professor of English at Western Michigan University. She has written juvenile novels including "Dune Shadow," published by Houghton Mifflin Co.

Popular freelancers Jim Hensley and Holly Miller will also be a part of the Northwoods conference. Tuition is $150 with accommodations ranging from $80 (meals only) to $$220 (for single dorm room and meals). Contact the Leelanau Center for Education, Glen Arbor 49636 or call (616)334-3072.

Softer point of view

About the nicest compliment folks can pay artist/photographer Jim Wesley is to say they like the soft, ethereal quality of his photographs. Wesley works hard to achieve that effect when he shoots what he calls "historic still life." Nor does the Livonia artist "manufacture" any of his settings. "They're just as you would see them. In fact, people are always telling me, after reading the identifying label on the picture, 'Oh, I've been there four or five times, but I never saw that,'" meaning the way Wesley has it pictured. An exhibition of his photographs in what he describes as "museum justified" — all with white matting and silver frames — is now open for public viewing at Baker Street Interiors, 16320 Middlebelt, Livonia through the end of the month, during regular business hours.

Q. I have just moved to this area and have been told that attorneys are not necessarily to be present at the closing. What is your recommendation as to the use of an attorney in a residential real estate purchase?

A. It is this writer's recommendation that an attorney experienced in real estate matters can be of assistance to a prospective purchaser of residential redl estate and should be called upon to assist the purchaser before any purchase agreement is signed.

There is a general misconception that an attorney is only needed for the "closing" of the real estate transaction. Rather, an attorney can be of great assistance in making sure that the purchase agreement, which reflects the terms of the sale, has properly protected the purchaser. Any purchase agreement signed by purchaser should have a provision which provides that it is subject to review by purchaser's attorney within a specified period of time, inter alia.

The attorney can also be of help in working with the mortgage company for the purchaser and insuring that the closing is in accordance with the terms of the purchase agreement.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. Questions should be directed to him at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

briefly speaking

● LIVONIA ARTS/CRAFTS

More than 200 exhibitors will be taking part at the 11th annual Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival again being held at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site at Eight Mile and Newburgh roads this weekend.

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday. There is ample parking off Newburgh Road. This year shuttle service from the parking field to the main festival grounds will be provided for those who have difficulty walking. There is no admission charge. Food and refreshments will be offered.

● ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCE SOUGHT

The Marygrove College Department of Dance (resident company of Dance Detroit) is offering a one-year artist-in-residence faculty appointment for a professional performer and teacher in modern, ballet or jazz.

Additional courses may be open in introduction to dance, composition, improvisation, ethnic dance, history of dance, or dance production.

Candidates for the appointment must be experienced in choreography, and be willing to participate in such activities as auditions and student advising. The compensation is negotiable. The position, which is effective Aug. 15, may be renewed for a second year. Applications, resumes and three letters of recommendation must be submitted by Aug. 1 to Penny Goldboldo, chair, dance department, Marygrove College, 8425 W. McNichols, Detroit 48221. For more information, call 862-8000.

● MIDSUMMER CELEBRATION

Detroit area residents of Scandinavian descent will hold a traditional midsummer celebration June 23-24 at the Swedish Club, 22398 Ruth, Farmington Hills. For more information, call 649-5837 between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

● FESTIVAL BUTTONS ON SALE

The Michigan Festival announces that festival buttons will be sold through Ticketmaster Outlets including Hudson's ticket office and many AAA offices. In addition, mail orders will be taken through the Michigan Festival offices.

The Michigan Festival Button, $6 when purchased before the festival and $8 during the festival Aug. 21-30, admits the bearer to more than 200 performances on 10 outdoor stages during its 10 days on the Michigan State University campus in East Lansing.

To order by mail, send a check or money order to: Michigan Festival Buttons, 4990 Northwind Drive, Suite 230, East Lansing 48823. Specify the number of buttons at $6 and include $1 for processing.

● OCC ART SHOW

The Oakland Community College Arts and Humanities Club is sponsoring an art show entitled "Mutual Transactions" at the Royal Oak campus through July 6. Fourteen entries will be featured. Each will consist of a collection of objects that was exchanged among participating artists. Display hours are from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays. OCC's Royal Oak campus is located in downtown Royal Oak on Washington Street.

● ART AUCTION

Residential Care Alternatives will sponsor an art auction at 7 p.m. Saturday, June 27 in the Plymouth Hilton. Excellent original signed etchings, lithographs, serigraphs, paintings and sculptures will be featured. The event is a fund-raiser for Residential Care Alternatives, a nonprofit, Detroit-Wayne County Community mental health agency. For more information, call 962-1460.

● RACKHAM CABARET

The 100-voice Rackham Symphony Choir with orchestra will hold its annual Cabaret Under the Stars at the Edsel and Eleanor Ford house on Lake St. Clair at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 20.

This year the choir will perform selections from Lerner & Lowe musicals, such as "Paint Your Wagon," "Camelot," and "My Fair Lady." Director is Frederic DeHaven.

Tickets are $10. For more information, call 882-1285. The Ford house is at 1100 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Shores.

● WANTED: TRAVELERS

The Detroit Public Library is looking for people willing to share their travel experiences in the library's fall '87 and spring '88 Get-Away travel series. Volunteers are needed with good 35mm color slides and entertaining, informative travel commentary sufficient for a 45-minute presentation.

The Get-Away series, now in its 15th year, is 9:30-11 a.m. on Tuesday mornings twice yearly at the Main Library, 5201 Woodward in the Cultural Center. The fall '87 series is scheduled for Sept. 22 through Oct. 27; the spring '88 series for April 26 through May 31.

People wishing to sign up for a presentation during either time period should call Bob Garen at 833-4049. A slide projector and screen are provided along with a modest stipend.

● DOBY EXHIBIT

Artistic creations by David Doby will be exhibited from June 7-30 at Madonna College in Livonia. Doby, a senior at Madonna, will display paintings and three-dimensional works in the Exhibit Gallery, in the college library wing. The gallery is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Friday; and 1-5 p.m., Saturday. For more information, call 591-5187.

● WATERCOLOR EXHIBIT

The Ann Arbor Hilton is displaying the work of art students from the University of Michigan School of Art. The artwork will be on display for public viewing in the gallery until August.

● VISIONS COMPETITION

"Transforming Visions" is the theme for a juried competition for two- and three-dimensional art, which expresses visions of war being changed into visions of world peace.

Awards totaling $1,000 will be given to winning artists. The competition is an official event of the Michigan Sesquicentennial.

Entry applications are available from Swords into Plowshares Peace Center, 45 E. Adams, Detroit 48226. For more information, call 965-5422.

● DESIGNER SHOWHOUSE

The Detroit Symphony Designers Showhouse will be held June 4-28 at 1773 Heron Ridge Drive, Bloomfield Hills (Square Lake and Telegraph roads). Hours are Tuesday through Saturday, noon to 8 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 6 p.m. Advance tickets are $6; at the gatehouse, $8.

Light Opera's 'Desert Song' at Marquis

Return again to the sands of Morocco and the sounds of Sigmund Romberg when the Light Opera of Michigan presents "The Desert Song" at the historic Marquis Theater in Northville beginning this weekend.

Artistic director David Pulice announces a stellar cast headed by baritone Mark Vondrak as the Red Shadow; Penny Kindraka as Margot Vonvalet; Mark Byars as Captain Fontaine; Jeffrey Woolley as Bennie; Ruth Lapeyre as Susan; David Jackson as Sid El Kar; and Windy Bloom as Clementina.

Musical conductor will be Southfield resident Don Daniels.

Vondrak is a frequent soloists in the metropolitan area in both state and oratorio and is a favorite performer with Michigan Opera Theater. In this production, he lends his commanding stage presence and vocal strengths to the challenging dual role of the dashing Red Shadow and meek Pierre Birabeau.

Kindraka, who performs with several regional opera companies and most recently with the Toledo Opera, brings to life the role of Margot Bonvalet with her sparkling voice and effervescent personality.

BYARS WAS LAST seen in Light Opera of Michigan's production of "Iolanthe" as the stuffy but delightful Lord Mountararat. Byars is a frequent performer at the Marquis in both musical comedy and opera.

Woolley debuts with the Light Opera of Michigan in the role of Bennie, bringing to the company a wealth of musical theater experience. Leading roles include Tony in "West Side Story," Hero in "Forum" and Mottel in "Fiddler on the Roof. Last Christmas, he appeared in the Greenfield Village production of "Babes in Toyland."

Jackson, a Michigan native, returns to the Detroit area from Colorado to sing the role of Sid El Kar. He has been featured with such groups as the Colorado Opera Festival, Colorado Music Theatre Festival, Birmingham, Ala., Civic Opera and Denver Chamber Orchestra. He has also been a Colorado district Metropolitan, San Francisco, Denver Lyric Opera winner and was a finalist in the prestigious Mobil Oil Meistersinger Competition with the Graz Opera in Austria.

Bloom, in the role of Clementina, also performs in the MOT Overture to Opera program. Her extensive repertoire includes a lead in the recent production of Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" at the Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor.

Performance dates and times are as follows: Saturday, June 20, and Friday, June 26, and Saturday, June 27, 8 p.m.; Sundays, June 21 and 28 at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 and $9 for senior citizens and students. They are available from Marquis Stores, 135 E. Main, Northville. Orders can be charged on VISA, MasterCard or American Express by calling 349-8110 or 349-0868. Tickets may also be purchased at the door. The theater is air-conditioned.

SPLENDID ISOLATION

If you're country folks - please read on.

The location is a half hour north of Rochester and a mile west of Rochester Road. The site is reached by winding, tree lined country roads. The setting is truly magnificent; over 20 acres of mature oaks, maples, cherries and pines rooted on severely ravined terrain. Literally hundreds of acres of like natural beauty completely surrounds and obscures the house area from outside view. Deer, grouse, fox, wood ducks - even bluebirds are in residence or transient, and are seen regularly. There is no lawn; the adjoining grounds remain in the natural state.

The house is 4 years old. Its style is country chalet; custom designed, sited and built by Dick Hamill of Grand Ledge, in the style of his Schuss Mountain designs. Perched on a ridge, it has great views from all sides - a wet land (great pond site) from one angle, and dense woods from all others. The exterior is cedar in its entirity; board and batten siding and hand split roof shakes. The three car detached garage is of identical construction.

The home interior is truly rustic. Walls are solid wood paneled and rough plastered. Doors are custom built of solid cedar with unique wooden hardware. All ceilings are beamed, about half with T&G planks supported by massive solid cedar beams, posts and shaped bracing. The great room has a soaring cathedral ceiling, with open stairway to the second level balcony. It opens onto a screened porch which is also accessible by French doors from the dining room. The other side cries out for a multi-level deck, which has not yet been designed. The future deck can be reached by French doors from the master bedroom. The kitchen is decidely country. On the upper level is a large bath and two bedrooms, one with its own balcony. The lower family room opens on one side to a covered brick patio and has unrestricted visibility from the other. The workshop area, completely exposed, is ideally situated for a 4th bedroom or large office.

The catch to all this is the price, as you might expect. The site preparation, wide drive, in ground power and phone lines and the house itself was expensive. Still, the asking price of $239,000 is reasonable, considering land and building costs today and the quality Dick Hamill built into the house itself. If you're interested further in this one-of-a-kind home, please call 1-628-6949 for additional information or an appointment. We love this place and would be pleased to show you around. Thanks.

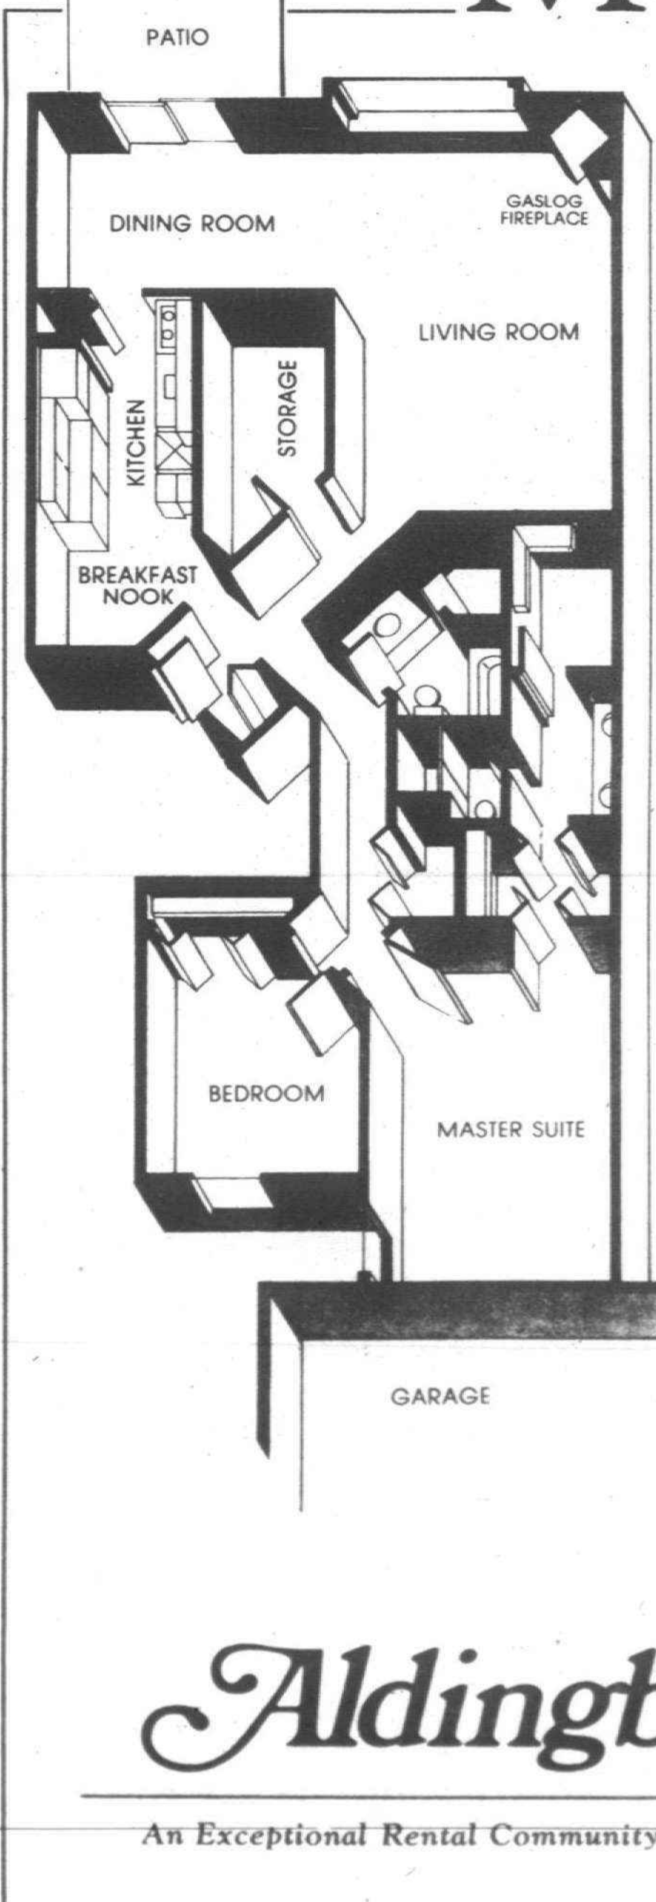
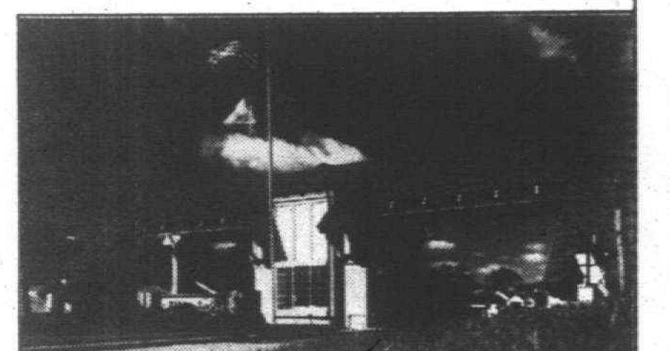
MORE



West Bloomfield's Best
Enter Aldingbrooke through its private entry gate and you've entered a world that abounds with "more" of everything.



More Space...
Notice the spaciousness of the Ingleside. The full living space, the generous storage space, the private patio or balcony, attached garage and the lush rolling terrain. Aldingbrooke residents strive for this space, so each Aldingbrooke unit is designed with their needs in mind.

More Lifestyle...
Aldingbrooke is more than an apartment — it's a community. A clubhouse with pool, tennis courts, walking/jogging trails, library, billiards and other activities galore. Aldingbrooke residents demand more than just a place to live, they demand a lifestyle — and Aldingbrooke provides it.

More Value...
Compare the Aldingbrooke community. The gracious 1,680 square foot Ingleside residence shown here is only $.55 per square foot. Where else could you get so much for one of the lowest costs per square foot around? We invite you to tour all of the beautiful 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of Aldingbrooke. Rentals begin at $610. We're located on Drake Road between Maple and Walnut Lake Roads. We know you'll see a community as unique as its residents.

Open daily until 6:00 p.m.
Furnished Executive Rentals available.
