Court upholds new trial order in murder case

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Dr. Charles Fisher, formerly of Canton Township, will be tried a second time for the murder of his wife as a result of a Michigan Supreme Court decision.

Wayne County prosecutors had hoped to have reinstated the guilty verdict handed down in a 1986 jury trial before Wayne Circuit Judge Claudia House Morcom.

After Fisher was convicted of first degree murder, a crime punishable by mandatory life in prison, Morcom set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial. The newly elected judge based her decision on what she termed "improper conduct" by Wayne County assistant prosecutor Doug Baker.

Unsuccessful in the Michigan Court of Appeals, prosecutors petitioned the state Supreme Court for a review of Morcom's ruling. All seven Supreme Court justices voted last week to deny prosecutors the right to appeal the verdicts of trial judges unless "clear legal errors" can be shown, said Timothy Baughman, chief of appeals for the prosecutor's office. That means Morcom's order for a new trial stands.

FISHER REMAINS free on 10 percent of a $250,000 bond and is believed to be in Missouri, where his family lives.

Ella Maria Mercado-Fisher, 32, was bound and gagged during what police and prosecutors theorize was a staged break-in at the Fishers' Thornwood home.

Mercado-Fisher, a registered nurse, was working for a medical temporary help agency and seeking a graduate degree in transcultural nursing at Wayne State University at the time of her death.

The couple was having marital problems, and Mercado-Fisher wanted a divorce, according to testimony.

Fisher was consumed with jealousy over an affair he thought his wife was having with her cousin, Baker argued.

Fisher, who was working as a microbiologist at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Ann Arbor, said he and his wife were knocked unconscious by intruders who bound, gagged and robbed them. He told police he was able to free himself and eventually his wife, whose head was wrapped in duct tape.

Baker maintained that Fisher staged the attack, and then tried to save his wife in an effort to appear to be her rescuer. Fisher hoped this would dissuade his wife from divorcing him but the plan went awry, Baker said.

Mercado-Fisher died five days after the assault.

FISHER'S SECOND trial is expected to be heard by Wayne Circuit Judge Thomas Foley, probably around the first of the year.

Baker, a trial attorney with the prosecutors' repeat offender bureau, will again try the case.

Baker anticipates a two- to three-week trial requiring "the expenditure of a tremendous amount of resources.

"Finding witnesses and bringing back witnesses is going to occupy the

CEP band puts title on line at home

The 166-member Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Marching Band will be defending its state championship title on Saturday, Oct. 24, at the CEP Stadium.

The marching band has won the state title in three consecutive years — 1984, 1985, 1986.

And this will be the seventh consecutive year the Michigan Competing Band Directors State Championship Marching Band show has been held at the CEP Stadium on Canton Center just south of Joy.

This year some 33 bands from Michigan and Canada will be competing for top honors. Appearing in exhibition will be the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps and the Central Michigan Marching Band.

BECAUSE OF the large number of participating bands, the preliminary competition for Flight III bands will be held at Central Middle School athletic field in Plymouth with preliminary competition for Flight I and II bands held at the CEP Stadium in Canton.

Following the daytime preliminary events, the top four bands from each flight will compete for the state title.

Flight III opening ceremonies will begin at 11:30 a.m. at Central with the first competiton at 12:15 p.m. Flight I opening ceremony at CEP will begin at 12:45 p.m. with the first competition at 1 p.m. Flight II bands will compete at CEP 3-6 p.m. The finals at CEP will begin with the Fife & Drum Corps in exhibition at 7 p.m., feature CMU at 10:30 p.m. followed by the Awards Ceremony at 10:45 p.m.

Flight III bands include Grand Blanc, Petoskey, Wyandotte, St. Charles, Montrose, Woodhaven, Livonia, Avondale, Clio, Fenton, Flint Southwestern, Kenoha Hills, Trenton, Hartford, and Royal Oak Dondero.

Flight II bands are Port Huron Northern, Clarkston, Southfield, Ithaca, Wyoming Park, Linden, John Glenn, Milford and Algonac.

Flight I bands are Flushing, Southgate, Durand, Lakeland, Plymouth-Canton, Lakeview, Novi and the Scarlet Brigade.

Tickets for the show are $4 presale and $6 at the gate. One ticket will server as admission for all day, at either or both show sites. Advance tickets are available in Canton at the Book Break in New Towne Center, Ford and Sheldon, and in Plymouth at the Trading Post on Ann Arbor Road and at Sideways on Forest Avenue.

CAPTION AWARD trophies for each flight will be given for best percussion, best brass and winds, best marching and maneuvering, best color guard and best drum major. All 33 competing bands will receive participation plaques.

Judging is based on a 100-point system that awards 10 points for music effort, 30 points for music ensemble and music field, 10 points for

Rock Saloon case decision pending

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Liquor control commissioner Alex Laggis is expected to issue a decision this week on 12 violations charged against owners of the Plymouth Rock Saloon.

Race car driver Donald Vargo and Detroit restaurateur Peter Elefterio, owners of Var-Ken Inc., are charged with counts including selling alcohol to minors, serving visibly intoxicated persons and allowing intoxicated individuals to consume and loiter.

The saloon owners face a possible suspension or revocation of their liquor license and fines of up to $12,000, according to Verna Foote of the LCC.

The Plymouth Rock Saloon is on General Drive near Joy Road east of Haggerty.

ON SATURDAY, Dec. 13, intoxicated Westland resident Yvonne Marie Hillier, 20, drove from the bar parking lot and sideswiped a car on Joy east of Haggerty, in Plymouth Township.

Hillier continued to drive on the wrong side of the Joy with the lights off, and hit head-on an eastbound car on Joy at the I-275 overpass.

In that car, driven by Bruce Aumann of Canton, wife Dorcas Aumann, 67, was pronounced dead at the scene, about 7:30 p.m.

Hillier was sentenced to five to 15 years in prison Sept. 30 after being found guilty of manslaughter in a jury trial before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Vera Massey Jones.

"I think about this night every day," said Kathy Rene Paananen of Westland at a LCC hearing Monday, "I wish it had never happened."

Paananen rode as a passenger in the car Hillier was driving at the time of the accident.

Lee Battle weighs, sections tubes for samples and then packs the blood for shipment to the processing facility.

Nurse Battle serves patients, Red Cross

By Susan Buck
staff writer

American Red Cross nurse Lee Battle has what a lot of other nurses probably wish they had.

Willing patients.

Battle, a Plymouth Township resident and registered nurse, embarked on her career in the Red Cross Blood Services division in 1983 at the prompting of a friend.

She works flexible shifts with some days spent drawing blood at the Ann Arbor sub center, a permanent site. On other days, she can be found in a mobile blood van parked outside a business, church or other establishment that signs up for a blood drive.

"It's a different kind of environment to work in,' she said. "You're dealing with people who want to give blood and not people who don't want to be in the hospital. Only about 5 percent of the population gives blood. A lot of our blood drives are repeat blood drives."

American Red Cross services 85 hospitals in five counties via 12 mobile van units and nine sub centers.

"We'd like to draw a thousand pints a day but we've been drawing about an average of 800 pints a day."

Battle began her nursing career recently.

"I was always interested in nursing, but I got married young and had three children right away. When my youngest was in the third grade, I went back to school."

During her nursing studies at Schoolcraft College in 1981, and before starting work with the Red Cross, Battle was employed as a nurse's aide on the midnight shift at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

She recalls doing her grocery shopping at the end of her "day" and arriving home before any family member was even awake.

"I would sleep three or four hours and then get up. I'm not the kind of person who requires a lot of sleep. If my kids had anything going on at school, it wasn't a problem to attend. Nobody does anything at 11 at night."

Her family consists of husband, Anthony, who was raised in Plymouth and is an east-side Chrysler employee; daughters, Tiffany, 20, a Northwest Airlines reservationist and Kim, 19, a dental assistant student at Schoolcraft College; and son, Tony, 17, a Plymouth Salem senior.

BATTLE CAME to the area in 1965, when her father, a Navy officer, was transferred to Michigan. Her parents returned to Virginia but Lee married in 1966 and remained in the area.

Battle spent part of her childhood in Cuba. "We lived right on the base. We were down there during the Castro-Battista revolution and had a maid who spoke Spanish. Everybody had maids there. I think it was a way to give the local people jobs.

"Then when the revolution came, that stopped. By mutual agreement of both countries, the maids weren't allowed to come on base.

"We went to a school that was run by the military and learned to speak Spanish."

Battle also spent part of her childhood in Virginia and Maryland.

Today, she is a nurse who must deal with the problems of the '80s. One such problem is AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome). "It scares a great many people, and I don't blame them. One thing I must stress is that people cannot get AIDS from giving blood.

"Red Cross nurses are starting to wear rubber gloves. If we have any cuts on our hands, we must wear gloves. If our skin is intact, it is our choice."

The blood from every donor is tested for AIDS. If there is any question about its content, the blood is discarded, she said. People with positive readings are notified.

Only about 90-100 people have tested positive for AIDS in southeastern Michigan since 1985, said Battle. "That doesn't mean that they have AIDS or will get it, but that they have been exposed to someone who has it.

"The blood the public is getting is very safe."

for percussion, 20 points for visual effect, 10 points for visual ensemble and 10 points for visual field.

The seven judges are located on the field and in the press box. While judging they make their comments into a tape recorder with the tapes then given to band directors to assist them in improving the band's performance.

The Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters are the host organization for the show. Under the direction of state show chairman Dale Behringer, the booster group is responsible for everything from bus parking, to food, to soloists for both the Canadian and American national anthems.

Other committee members are: Jackie Heilman, services; Vickie Cotton, administration; Rick Gartner and Gordon Kisabeth, facilities.

More than 200 music booster volunteers are needed to handle the 5,000-plus marching band fans.

THE PLYMOUTH-CANTON musicians will be tuning up for the state finals this Saturday with their final regular season competiton at the Durand High School Invitational.

After the state competition, the band will apear at the Western Michigan University Cavalcade of Bands on Nov. 1, and at the Marching Bands of America National competition Nov. 6, 7, at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

Musical selections for this year's competition were written by George Gershwin and Ralph Johnson. They include: "Swanee," "Fascinatin' Rhythm," "I Got Rhythm" and "Rhapsody in Blue."

Brad Flowers is the field commander-director, Allison Lamb is color guard captain, featured dancers from the color guard are Allison Laub, Shelle Bertell and Danielle Mirto, and saxophone soloists are Jeff Behringer and Bill Schnoes.

The young people dressed in black on the field who help with percussion and color guard equipment are Kevin Clough, Cathy Gartner, Sandy Miller, Melissa Solberg and Daniel Wharton.

THE BAND'S new uniforms, purchased by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, were designed by Michael Cesario who is an associate professor of costume design in the professional training program at State University of New York.

Cesario's work has been seen on television, in Broadway musicals, and on regional repertory stages across the country.

The new uniforms feature a red, white and blue coat for football game performances and parades, and a yellow and white coat for competition. Both coats are worn with black high-waisted trousers.

Cesario selected the red, white and blue combination to represent the colors of Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools. Yellow was picked for its high visibility and visual impact during competition performances.

time of the court, staff, prosecutors, defense attorneys and the police department."

While additional evidence will be of help, "delays almost always work to prejudice the prosecution," added Baker.

"Memories grow dull and people scatter and die. It gets harder and harder to put the case together. And it becomes easier to impeach witnesses because there's a record of everything they said years earlier."

MORCOM HAS declined to elaborate on her decision.

According to the prosecutor, Morcom said Baker "created error" in his closing arguments by quoting from a Carl Sandburg poem.

"It was a quote from his trilogy about Abraham Lincoln. Entitled the 'Prairie Years,' it was about Lincoln as a young man," said Baker.

"The part I used said something like, 'He looked into the dark woods and saw distant lights and tall rainbows.'

"I took that passage to mean that Lincoln was an optimist. He was in a dark woods, yet he saw hope. That was his character.

"I'm not trying to put Ella Marie on a pedestal, but she was struggling to get independence of Fisher," Baker said.

"The marriage was suffocating her and she was trying to prove herself, follow her interest in the field of nursing.

"She was trying to reach out and see a better life for herself. She was in a miserable situation but saw a distant light and rainbows."

LEGISLATION is being introduced that would expand prosecutors' right to appeal, Baughman and Baker said.

"We are working hard to get the law changed," said Baughman. "I would criticize a system that doesn't allow the review of trial judges' decisions by anybody. I don't know why setting aside a verdict should be unreviewable."

"The Supreme Court agrees with us in principle, but under existing law, we don't have that option. Hopefully it's forthcoming," said Baker.

Fisher's court-appointed attorney could not be reached for comment.

LCC ruling nears in Plymouth Rock Saloon case

Paananen testified that she and Hillier arrived at the Plymouth Rock Saloon about 3:30 p.m. and sat down at a little table in front of the TV, where they joined Mark Hayes.

The three are employees of Johnson Stamping and Fine-Blanking Co., 9120 General Drive, located near the bar, which Johnson employees frequent, according to testimony.

Three pitchers of beer were ordered, in succession, which were consumed by all three occupants of the table, she said.

RESPONDING TO a question from LCC Assistant Attorney General Richard Rubin, Paananen said that the waitress serving them did not ask her for age verification.

Eventually, she said, another bar patron paid for shot glasses containing a drink which tasted like Tequila. That patron had the same waitress deliver the drinks to her and Hillier.

Brian and Janice Behan of Canton, who were at the Plymouth Rock for an hour during the same time period, also testified. Behan said that he saw the two girls in the bar both before and after he and his wife left.

"It was pretty hard not to see them," he said. "The one gal who is not here today was pretty loud and obnoxious and using profanity."

Following Behan's testimony, Rubin told Laggis that there was "a small problem." Rubin moved to adjourn the hearing to obtain a deposition from Hillier which, he added later, could be inserted into the testimony.

Laggis denied Rubin's request for several reasons: the case is almost a year old, the hearing has been postponed two times before, LCC dockets are full, a delay would result in a January hearing date and witnesses' recollections deteriorate with time.

"Then I rest on what I have," Rubin told Laggis.

FOLLOWING a five minute recess, Rubin changed his mind and called Janice Behan. She said that Paananen was very loud and walked with an unsteady gait to the jukebox and "almost fell backward."

Her husband commented on Paananen's behavior to an unidentified waitress serving them, she said.

Nicholas Ponke, another Johnson Stamping employee, said that he was in the bar two times previously with Hillier. Paananen and other employees. They were each asked to produce ID, he said. He saw them reach into the purses and pull out something but he couldn't see what it was, he said.

The lone balloon in the Plymouth to Plymouth race (left) is prepared by workers who are securing its tethered net.

Lone race entry misses East Coast

Although the event did not turn out as planned, the promoters still were pleased with the venture as it was the first gas balloon flight in Michigan in about 50 years.

The first Plymouth-to-Plymouth Gas Balloon Race ended up not being a race and did not end up in Massachusetts as hoped.

Instead the gas balloon piloted by Gordon Boring and co-piloted by Scott Lorenz landed in Kentucky after a flight of almost 20 hours.

Although the event did not turn out as planned, the promoters still were pleased with the venture as it was the first gas balloon flight in Michigan in about 50 years.

ABOUT 50 spectators were at the Central Middle School athletic field when the balloon left Plymouth shortly after 9:15 p.m. Monday.

The balloon landed at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Somerset, Ky., less than 50 miles north of the Tennessee line.

The launch climaxed more than six hours of preparation at the site, which started when the set-up crews arrived at 3 p.m. By 7 p.m. the balloon was half-inflated and by 8 p.m. the wicker basket (gondola) was in place and filled with sandbags.

In the final hour, Lorenz, Boring and his crew went through final check-points to make sure all was in order. The crew supervisor, who conducted the inflation procedures, was making sure navigational aids, food, water, liferaft and other equipment were in the right place, while Boring was on the phone with Metro Airport to get a clearance on the launch time.

Some 36 hours earlier the helium tanker truck arrived in Plymouth from Kansas and was in waiting until the fuel was needed Monday afternoon.

The Mayflower Hotel's hot air balloon was inflated on the field and tether rides were given to entertain spectators waiting to watch the launch.

BORING'S GAS balloon, the Windsong, left the ground at about 9:15 p.m. Monday, went straight up and left a trail of falling sand emptied from bags before the craft was seen drifting into the dark night sky and heading toward the east.

Crew chief Bill Arrandale (left) and pilot Gordon Boring Tuesday afternoon spread out the envelope of the balloon on a circular canvass carefully swept clean of all sand and debris.

At about 8:30 a.m. Tuesday Boring and Lorenz were drifting over Cincinnati, off-course from their hoped-for destination of Plymouth, Mass. By about 10:30 a.m. the new destination was set for the bluegrass fields surrounding Lexington, Ky.

Word then reached the Mayflower Hotel Tuesday afternoon that Boring and Lorenz were looking at a landing at about 5 p.m. somewhere in Kentucky.

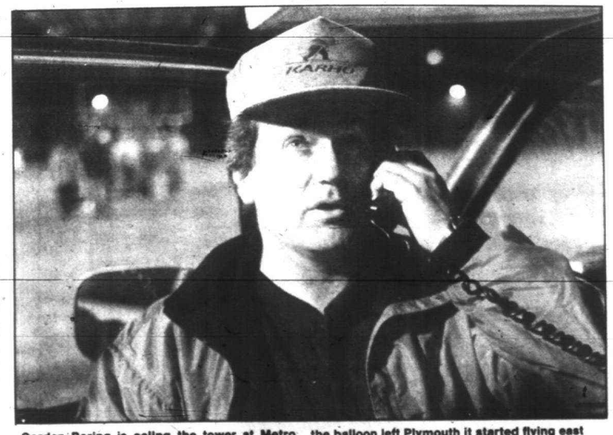
Although the launching went smoothly, the event was a disappointment in that other gas balloonists were unable to attend and so the flight did not involve a competition.

Three other pilots had committed, and a fourth made a tentative commitment, but a competition in Europe and illnesses prevented the pilots from arriving. The delay in take-off from Friday to Monday may also have been a factor.

Boring and Lorenz originally hoped to depart at about 7 p.m. Friday but weather conditions were unfavorable. They were on-hold over the weekend at the Mayflower, in touch with their flight meterologist from Bedford, Mass.

Because of the touch-and-go nature of the launch, most residents were unaware that Monday was the time of departure and so the 50 or so who gathered were mostly people who had just happened to walk or drive by and saw the large yellow balloon being inflated.

Aboard the Windsong was the commemorative balloon mail which upon landing was sent to the nearest post office to be cancelled and mailed back to purchasers and to the Mayflower Hotel which will then sell them at $10 each as a fundraiser for Straight, Inc., in Plymouth.



Gordon Boring is calling the tower at Metro Airport to file a last-minute flight plan. When the balloon left Plymouth it started flying east and then headed south.

Sidewalk petitions pave way to success

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Two Plymouth Township women, who 13 months ago petitioned Supervisor Maurice Breen for sidewalks along Sheldon Road, soon will see some concrete results for their efforts.

The township board Tuesday accepted a bid of $24,632 to construct about 1,500 feet of sidewalk on the west side of Sheldon from Pine Tree to Brookside and from Governor Bradford to St. John Episcopal Church.

The sidewalk, to provide a safer route for walkers to Smith Elementary School and West Middle School, is expected to be installed this fall, said Michael Bailey, engineering consultant for the township.

That work would make a sidewalk available on Sheldon from Ann Arbor Road to Ann Arbor Trail.

"THEY'RE TALKING about getting it in right away," Bailey said of the winning bidder, Al Norment Construction Co. of Detroit. "You're probably talking a week and a half of work."

Gail Wehby and Elizabeth Clement launched a drive for sidewalks in September 1986. Both eventually served on a sidewalk study committee with trustees Smith Horton and Abe Munfakh.

They are ecstatic that work apparently will finally begin.

"I think it's great we can count on the community to do this for the kids," she said. "I'm thrilled to death. This is great.

"At first, it didn't seem anyone was interested. Liz and I kept going to meetings. We were willing to go with them (township officials) side by side. We felt this was really important."

"I was just so amazed and pleased with the response we've gotten," Clement added.

'At first, it didn't seem anyone was interested. Liz and I kept going to meetings. We were willing to go with them (township officials) side by side. We felt this was really important.'
—Gail Wehby

MONEY FOR the sidewalk will come from the contingency fund in the township budget, Breen said.

The winning bid was 44 percent lower than what had been estimated by the township's consultant.

"He had people available to do the work. They felt that was a good price for them," Bailey said.

The township board authorized Bailey to ask Al Norment Construction Co. to build a sidewalk along about 2,000 feet of Ann Arbor Trail from Spicer to Haggerty roads at the same unit price as was bid for the Sheldon walkway.

If the contractor were to agree, the Ann Arbor Trail project, originally estimated at about $42,000, would actually cost about half as much, Bailey said.

Senior transportation subsidies geared up

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A new senior citizen transportation program for Plymouth Township residents will base subsidies for rides on the income levels of users and emphasize referrals to existing services.

The proposal, developed by Empa-Care IV, Inc., a company that provides home health care services, was adopted by the township board Tuesday.

Participants must be at least 55 years of age.

"The main objective is medical appointments within a 30-mile radius," said John Fusik, president of Empa-Care.

Transportation also will be provided for shopping and leisure activities, but medical appointments will have top priority.

SUBSIDIES will be based on income.

- Full payment (total subsidy) up to $60 for a round trip if married household income is less than $10,000 per year or single household income is less than $8,000.
- Partial payment — 75 percent — up to $45 for a round trip if married household income is $10,000 to $14,999 annually and single household income is $8,000 to $12,499.
- Partial payment — 25 percent — up to $15 for a round trip if married household income is $15,000 or more per year and single household income is $13,000 or more.

Empa-Care will apply $8,000 of the $12,000 set aside by the township for the program to transportation services, with $4,000 going to consulting fees and administrative expenses.

The proposal allocates $4,000 for low-income participants and $2,000 each for medium and high-income riders.

Information about available transportation services will be provided without regard to income levels.

Fusik and Catherine Broadbent, administrative assistant to Supervisor Maurice Breen, both spoke glowingly of the referral aspect of the proposal.

"The problem is there is no central data center for that kind of information," Fusik said of various transportation providers already in business.

"There are a lot of providers out there," Broadbent said. "It's just a matter of coordinating it so you can get the most for your money. That involves a lot of paperwork and time."

FUSIK PROJECTED that about 25 seniors in the township would use the service on a regular basis, which he identified as twice a month.

It probably will take effect in January.

Township officials started looking last summer for an alternative transportation program when complaints surfaced about a dial-a-ride cab service.

Credits from the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority previously allocated by the township to the cab service were reassigned to the Plymouth Community Van.

General fund money, previously used to pay for community van operations, will finance whatever new transportation program the township adopts.

Relaxation, art can aid memory

AP — The average person loses about 30 percent of memory between ages 20 and 75, but a program using relaxation and impressionistic art can help cut back the loss, according to a psychiatrist.

A two-week class at Stanford University for up to 30 people ages 55 and older teaches how to develop a childlike perception, according to Jerome Yesavage, a geriatric psychiatrist at the California university.

Such a perception will lead to an improved memory, he said.

"The average older person does not do what a younger person does spontaneously — organize thoughts and visual images," said Yesavage, who talked about the program Sunday during a four-day conference of the International Psychogeriatric Association.

"The problem for older people is that they don't ask questions like younger people do. They don't dream as vividly and they cannot see the images."

MEMORY LOSS beginning around age 20 is considered inevitable, and no one knows what causes it.

"It could be partly psychological, or partly chemical," he said.

The Stanford course, funded through federal grants with private and community support, is offered free to older participants. Their only commitment is the two-week class time.

Danielle Lapp, a memory training specialist who teaches the course, decided to use 19th-century impressionistic paintings to help the participants improve their memory because the art is colorful and interesting.

Her students are asked to look at a scene, close their eyes, then describe what they see. She asks them to analyze details and give their emotional reactions. By actually studying the paintings, they remember details about them.

"At the end of the course, you see some people who are auto mechanics talking about impressionistic art," Yesavage said. "But it has nothing to do with art. It has to do with increasing their visual imaging ability."

Exec: County running out of landfill space

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

'Clearly, a crisis situation will occur if we do not take action now.'
— Edward McNamara, county executive

Wayne County, like New York City, could be reduced to towing its unwanted garbage from port to port, county executive Edward McNamara said Tuesday.

The county will run out of landfill space in less than four years, McNamara told an Engineering Society of Detroit audience.

"Clearly, a crisis situation will occur if we do not take action now," McNamara said.

Slightly more than 17 million cubic yards of unused landfill space remains in the county, McNamara said, adding that more 4 million cubic yards are filled each year.

"There's 3.7 years left," McNamara said.

Though other estimates, including a recent county economic development report, placed the figure at 6-10 years, county commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, agreed the 3.7-year figure was accurate. Mack, whose district includes Canton Township, is chairman of the county's solid waste implementation committee.

While two planned incinerators will handle a portion of county waste, McNamara said they won't handle it all.

McNamara told ESD members the controversial Detroit Incinerator would be able to handle 35 percent of the county's household waste. A proposed Central Wayne Sanitation Authority incinerator could handle another 10 percent, McNamara said. That incinerator would serve Westland and Garden City, among other communities.

Mack, however, said he doubted the incinerators could handle more than 25 percent of the county's 17,500 tons of daily waste.

Waste management is a key to county development, McNamara said.

"It is as important to developers as is railways, roads, sewer and water," McNamara said.

Communities are being asked to develop waste management plans of their own, Mack said, for inclusion in the county's revised waste management master plan.

Both McNamara and Mack said a premium would be placed on recycling plants and other creative solutions, as the county evaluates new waste disposal sites.

"What we don't want is to have 95 percent of our waste handled through landfills," Mack said. "But new landfill space may be necessary."

Under state law, the county has until Jan. 6, 1989 to update its solid waste master plan. Mack, however, said potential new sites could be selected before then.

"We're looking at being done a year before the state deadline," he said.

GOP delegate flap is headed for court

AP — More than 60 Republicans have gone to court to fight their state party — the latest round between backers of Vice President George Bush and a conservative coalition led by Pat Robertson supporters.

David McKeague, the Lansing attorney who filed the suit in Kent County Circuit Court, said the Republican State Committee has five days after it's served with the lawsuit to decide whether to hire an attorney to fight it.

McKeague said the lawsuit asks for a hearing as soon as possible.

The lawsuit asks Judge George Boucher to strike down a party rule adopted Sept. 15 that bars about 1,200 GOP officeholders and unsuccessful candidates from serving as at-large delegates to Jan. 14 county conventions.

"MY COMMENT is that it's strictly political. It's the Bush supporters trying to salvage the Bush campaign here," said David Waters, who heads Robertson's Michigan effort.

"They will not be successful. What else can I say? The party has made its decision. Precedence is on our side. I believe state law is on our side."

The lawsuit points out that the 1,200 nominees were told they would be seated automatically and the rule change unfairly takes away their ability to participate in the party's presidential nominating process.

McKeague predicted the lawsuit will end in a clear victory for his clients.

A BUSH spokesman said, "We have nothing to do with it."

"But the vice president and the Bush campaign stand foursquare behind the rights of the elected officials and nominees. We strongly support their position," said John Long, executive director of the Bush effort in Michigan.

State GOP chairman E. Spencer Abraham said, "The prospect of further litigation involving the Michigan Republican Party is unfortunate. However, this decision comes as no surprise, as the intention to follow through on this matter was made public following the action of the state committee on Sept. 15."

"On the advice of counsel, I have no further comment to make, pending a resolution of this issue."

The delegate dispute has split the Michigan Republican Party into warring factions. The moderates, mostly Bush supporters and party veterans, are squaring off against a conservative coalition of Robertson backers and supporters of U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

The coalition, which controls the 101-member state committee, prevailed in the delegate vote, dealing a setback to Bush's effort in Michigan.

The delegates to the county conventions will select about 1,800 delegates to the Jan. 29-30 state convention, at which the first 77 delegates to the GOP national convention will be chosen.

"Having not seen the actual document, we would say we would believe the suit is groundless," said Dick Minard, Michigan campaign manager for Kemp. "We would look forward to our position prevailing and possibly the case being dismissed.

"This is part of a continued desperate effort on the part of the Bush campaign. I guess the sad thing about the conduct of the Bush campaign is they have a philosophy that the majority should rule as long as they're the majority."

County lobbies for debt help

Bill package sought

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A financial rescue package for Wayne County could be in place by Friday, according to county executive Edward McNamara.

McNamara said he and his staff are lobbying state legislators this week for a package of bills that would help the county repay over $100 million in debt. Most of the debt is owed the state, primarily for health care payments.

The county seeks a loan, as well as a number of new revenue sources to pay off its debt. Many proposed sources, including surcharges on lottery and traffic tickets, require the state legislature's authorization.

"What we want is money out of Lansing," McNamara said. "We don't call it a bail out, we call it equity."

Insiders said the county has a number of pre-drafted bills it is shopping to individual legislators hoping they would introduce them to the full Legislature.

MCNAMARA IS expected to meet with Wayne County legislators at noon today to discuss his plans.

In addition to fee increases, the county seeks to reduce its share of indigent health care payments. County officials consider indigent health care payments the primary reason for county debt.

Under a previous agreement, the state limited its share of health care payments to $19.5 million annually. The county is repsonsible for the rest of the tab. The county's share could soon reach as high as $40 million a year, according to a county commission study group's estimate.

The county already owes the state an estimated $60 million in health care debts, roughly $26 for every county resident. The health care debt continues to rise as new claims are filed.

"We're still bleeding daily," McNamara said.

McNamara, however, has given county health officials permission to slash health care payments in half if an agreement with the state isn't forthcoming.

"If there's no agreement, we'll begin paying 50 cents on the dollar," McNamara said.

FEE INCREASES would pay off the debt, as well as interest on the loan. In addition, McNamara has told county commissioners at least $9 million is needed to balance next year's budget. McNamara's proposed 1988 budget includes the parking fee increase and traffic ticket surcharge.

The county is required to approve a budget by Dec. 1. Agreement is still pending on the state budget.

Provisions calling for the $5 ticket surcharge and 25 percent airport parking fee raise would soon be introduced in the state Legislature, McNamara said.

Other proposals, including a surcharge on lottery tickets, are expected to follow.

McNamara said he was confident state legislators would approve the financial aid package.

"I can't imagine the state letting its biggest county fall into receivership," he said. "Like Wayne County, the state is trying to attract new businesses. How would that (Wayne County receivership) look?"

Fee increases for a variety of county services have been presented to the county commission.

Indigent care: county's big budget drain

Indigent health care has been Wayne County's biggest financial headache. Wayne County, alone among Michigan counties, is required to pay some of the health care costs for those who cannot pay for themselves.

A timeline of the indigent health care crisis includes the following dates:

- 1979 — Public Act 216 alters the payment formula, limiting county input. The new formula, still in effect, requires the Michigan Department of Social Services to pay county hospitals directly for health care, while charging the county its share of the cost.
- 1983 — Wayne County's share of unpaid health care costs runs as high as $150 million, according to estimates. Debt is fixed at $89.5 million the next year, in a settlement arranged by then-county executive William Lucas.

The agreement projects indigent health care costs won't rise above $32 million a year, caps annual state payments at $19.5 million and leaves the county responsible for the rest.

- 1986 — Because health care costs continually rise above the annual $32 million projection, county officials find they owe the state more than $100 million in unpaid bills, including the balance of the 1983 settlement.
- October 1987 — County executive Edward McNamara announcing unpaid debts could bankrupt the county, seeks an agreement with the state to renegotiate the payment formula. Lacking that, McNamara says the county will begin paying 50 cents on the dollar for indigent health care bills.

Baby boomlet: Boomers' kids are school age

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

The lean years of public school enrollment — so prevalent in the 1970s — finally appear to be waning.

Figures compiled across Michigan last week suggest an upswing by 1990, with state education officials forecasting more pupils in the next decade as children of the baby boom generation enter elementary school.

"The rate of decline has leveled off during the last four years," said Robert Nelson, supervisor of the state Department of Education's accounting program. "There are expectations that enrollment may start to go back up again by 1990."

One local district appears to have a jump on things. Plymouth Canton Schools has shown a steady increase in student enrollment over the past few years, said accountant Ginnie Murdoch. She expects the trend to continue.

The kindergarten through 12th-grade roster has 15,668 names. That's 152 more than last year.

"IT WAS definitely anticipated — mostly at the elementary level," she said. "(Enrollment) probably will be going up now. People are out there working, they're out buying homes."

Despite the trend, the peak year for the district was 1980-81, when enrollment reached 16,888 pupils, then dropped the next few years before the current swell.

Another district that's beginning a turnaround is Garden City, which lost a mere 48 pupils in its annual fourth Friday of the school year count. That's in sharp contrast to the past 18 years when annual decline has ranged from 200 to 700 pupils.

This year's count of 5,826 is just a dent off last year's enrollment figure of 5,874. It reflects a slight increase at the elementary level. In fact, the kindergarten enrollment was 40 students above administrators' projections.

Still, the district's enrollment today is a far cry from 1968, its peak year when enrollment stood at 14,000 students.

In neighboring Wayne-Westland, enrollment continues to fall "but at least the loss isn't as great as it has been in the past," said Tom Svitkovich, associate superintendent for finance.

The district has 16,945 pupils — down 341 — which translates into a 2 percent loss. Like many other school districts, Wayne-Westland recorded its sharpest decline in the late 1970s.

Enrollment in Livonia Schools continues to fall. The district lost 263 students — not as many as projected by staff.

"WE'RE STARTING to bottom out," said Charles Ritter, assistant director of operations for the district. "We won't start to level off until incoming kindergarteners equal the number of outgoing seniors, probably in 1991. The big baby boom is still moving through. They're in 10th, 11th and 12th grades now."

From 1970 when it contained 39,500 students, the district has dwindled down to its current pupil load of 16,068.

South Redford Schools experienced a slight gain for the second year in a row. Its 2,975 students represent a gain of 22 pupils. Neighboring Redford Union Schools counted 37 more students this year for a total of 4,755. Although less at the high school level, junior high and elementary schools are showing the gain.

Redford Union Superintendent Kenneth Erickson suggests the latest figures might signal an end to the decline for that district.

Officials expect the unaudited statewide enrollment count for this year by mid-December at the earliest. The final, audited figure is due next summer.

The counts taken on the fourth Friday of the school year are used in a complex formula taking into account tax bases and school millage levies to help determine state aid for each district.

Last year's enrollment across the state totaled 1.67 million, a drop of 8,954 pupils, or half a percentage point, from 1985-86, according to state figures.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Elks select high school students of September

Heidi Riggs and Christopher Horne have been chosen as Plymouth Canton High Students of the Month for September by the Plymouth Elks Lodge.

Heidi, daughter of Sandra and Daniel Riggs of Plymouth, has been active at Canton High as a cheerleader (captain), and member of the CEP Psychology Club. She has been on the principal's honor roll every semester in high school.

Her outside activities include conducting cheerleading clinics at local nursery schools, and making commercials for television. In her spare time she enjoys water sports, working with computers and attending poetry lectures at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

She maintains a 3.4 grade point average and is applying to Michigan State University and the University of Michigan. She hopes to earn a degree in engineering or psychology.

CHRIS, SON of Janice and Donald Horne of Canton, has been involved in the Student Assistant Program for two years, working in the counseling office. He has been an algebra and geometry tutor in the community.

He is involved in church activites as president of the Sunday School teen classes, and has participated in choir and teen newspaper.

He has maintained a 3.75 grade point average and plans to apply to the University of Michigan, Eastern Michigan University or Georgetown University to pursue study of pre-law or foreign language.

Both were selected on the basis of achievement, character, leadership and citizenship qualities.

Bill aims to curb control of private schools

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

To certify or not to certify, that is the question.

The state House Education Committee is studying a senate passed bill that calls for relaxing state control of private schools.

More than 10,000 demonstrators — predominantly young people bused in by fundamentalist churches — rallied on the steps of the state Capitol late last month in support of the measure.

Under current Michigan law, all schools must employ state certified teachers. A fundamentalist school in Saginaw last year challenged the law, but it was upheld by the state Supreme Court.

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, one of 22 senators who voted in favor of Senate Bill 116 last June, said that it is already in practice in many cases.

"The principal argument was that only six states still attempt to regulate parochial schools," said Geake.

"CHURCH SPONSORED schools feel their primary mission is religious instruction.

"In practice, not even the public schools have all state certified teachers when you consider substitute teachers and temporary fill-in employees," Geake added. "The state could, in practice, close such schools but it has never gone that far."

Redford Union School Superintendent Kenneth Erickson defended state accreditation as "the one standard we have."

"In light of the tendency of groups to toughen standards, it wouldn't be consistent to relax them. In fact the state has just tightened up certification for junior high instructors. We're happy to see standards increased," said Erickson.

Administrators from several local parochial schools are confused by the pending legislation.

Donald Bradley, principal of Bishop Borgess High School in Redford Township, plans to attend an Oct. 27 conference of the Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools in Lansing to cut through the mire.

"From what I read of what went on (during the Lansing rally) I was not overly impressed," Bradley said. "I couldn't get a handle on what they were doing."

Bradley is anxious to meet face to face with legislators during the MANPS conference, to address the education issue first hand. Bishop Borgess is an accredited school, he added.

Sister Mary Alexander, principal of Livonia's Ladywood High School, also accredited by the state, said she will go along with whatever is decided.

"It is kind of hurtful, though," she added. "Our people pay taxes, yet they cannot get what others in the public schools receive. It seems we get nothing from the state and yet we have to go along with whatever (legislators) decide," said Alexander.

The Rev. Stanley Jenkins, administrator of Central Baptist School in Plymouth, has attended two Lansing rallies in favor of the pending legislation. The first rally was prior to the June 4 passage of the bill in the Senate by a vote of 22 to 14. The bill was stalled from further action by summer recess.

"SENATE BILL 116 states that our young people will be tested by nationally recognized companies to show they are getting an equal education," said Jenkins, whose nine-year-old school is not state accredited.

Most of our teachers have bachelor's degrees, some have master's degrees and some may even be state certified, but we don't send in their papers," said Jenkins.

It's not in our teachings to be licensed by a secular organization. They have no understanding of our laws. Our children are getting a superior education. We can exercise more discipline, we provide more time for study without the dangers students in secular schools face.

"If we can prove to them through our testing that we have qualified teachers, what's the problem? The bottom line is money. Every child that comes to my school takes away thousands of dollars from the local public school."

Five proponents to address the Michigan House Committee on Education last week, included Dr. Rene Oullette of Bridgeport Baptist Academy in Saginaw, the school that unsuccessfully challenged the law in court last year.

Scheduled to speak in opposition to the bill were representatives of the state Parent Teachers Association, Michigan Education Association, Michigan Association of School Administrators and Michigan Association of School Boards. The Michigan Federation of Teachers and the League of Women Voters were also slated to speak against the bill.

Airport expansion threatened

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Hoping to salvage airport expansion plans, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said he would try to sit down soon with disgruntled Northwest Airlines officials.

"We'll be back talking to them," McNamara said Tuesday, after a dispute between the county and Minneapolis-based airline was made public.

Northwest indicated it would cut off payment on airport expansion bonds in a dispute over expansion and asbestos removal plans at L.C. Smith terminal in an Oct. 6 letter to McNamara.

Northwest representatives were unavailable for comment on the letter.

Northwest is the airport's largest commercial airline. The Smith terminal is also the airport's largest. The jeopardized $166 construction bond issue would pay for asbestos removal at the Smith terminal as well as increase terminal size. A new runway, boarding areas and transit system are also planned.

McNamara blasted the airlines decision as an indication, "safety isn't as big a priority as the all mighty buck."

"Their long range goal is to have such a monopoly that other airlines wouldn't come in," McNamara said.

The airlines were to have financed the airport's expansion. County officials pledged to complete expansion projects without a tax increase.

The Smith terminal would be closed for two years, beginning in Sept. 1988. A temporary aluminum and fabric terminal would be constructed southeast of the Smith terminal.

Passenger transportation to the new terminal has been a bone of contention between the county and airlines since expansion plans were first announced.

Expansion plans are subject to airline approval, airport officials said, but asbestos removal plans aren't.

Asbestos, once a widely-used fire retardant, has been linked to lung cancer and other respiratory disorders.

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Unemployment is down, both nationally and in Michigan, however, local jobless rates increased from the same period last year.

While unemployment rates for western Wayne County communities were below the state average, joblessness increased slightly in local cities and townships.

Unemployment was at 7 percent in Westland during August, the last month for which Michigan Employment Security Commission figures are available. Westland's unemployment rate had been 6.4 percent in August 1986.

In Livonia, the August unemployment rate was 4.3 percent, a 0.4 increase.

Joblessness also rose in Redford Township, 5.2 percent, up 0.5; Canton Township, 4.5 percent, up 0.4; Garden City, 6.8 percent, up 0.6; Plymouth, 3.4 percent, up 0.3 and Plymouth Township, 3.8 percent, up 0.3. (See accompanying chart for details.)

In all, there were an estimated 10,300 unemployed adults living in local communities during August. But the number of adults with jobs also increased.

"Overall, employment was up over one year ago," MESC analyst Bruce Weaver said. "In Livonia, for instance, there were 54,745 people working, compared with 51,725 last August. But there was still enough loss of jobs to make the percentage of unemployed go up, too."

Manufacturing jobs have steadily decreased, Weaver said.

"IF THERE'S one thing you can point to, it's manufacturing," he said.

There are 32,000 fewer manufacturing jobs in metropolitan Detroit than there were in August 1986, according to MESC figures.

Metro area automotive industry jobs fell from 203,000 to 182,000 in the same period, Weaver said.

Michigan's statewide unemployment rate fell from 8.8 percent to 7.8 percent over the 13-month period ending Sept. 30, according to U.S. Labor Department figures released last week.

"Jobs are up in all areas except manufacturing," Weaver said.

—Michigan unemployment peaked in August from a low of 7.4 percent in January.

Despite the decrease, Michigan's unemployment rate was second-highest among the nation's 11 most industrial states. The statewide rate was exceeded only by Texas' 8.5 percent unemployment rate. Illinois, 6.4 percent; California, 5.8 percent and Pennsylvania, 5.6 percent were also in the top five.

Parents back state college tuition fund

Nearly two-thirds would participate

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

An estimated 63 percent of parents of preschoolers are willing to invest more than $3,000 to cover their children's college tuition through a state fund, a commissioned survey found.

Although 95 percent of those polled are concerned about rapidly rising tuition and expect their offspring to attend college, only 30 percent have begun saving. And 75 percent think the state can do a better job investing their money.

The survey was commissioned by the Michigan Education Trust fund and involved 950 Michigan households. Data was collected Aug. 6-25 by CRW Associates, a market research firm in Detroit.

"Part of the program's intent is to encourage secondary education," said state Rep. Jim Kosteva, D-Canton, the law's sponsor.

Kosteva, a member of both the House Taxation and House Education committees, says he was tapped by Gov. James Blanchard to sponsor the measure, which was a priority of the state executive.

"THE PROGRAM would guarantee tuition in 14 public state schools," Kosteva said.

If a child decided not to go to college or went to an out-of-state university, refunds would be granted under terms of the contract.

Although Michigan became the first state to propose a guaranteed tuition program back in January 1986, parents haven't been allowed to invest in MET yet because a clause in the legislation requires officials to obtain a favorable Internal Revenue Service ruling on the program's tax-exempt status. That ruling is expected within the next two months.

State Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford Township, called the IRS delay "unconscionable. They should quit monkeying around and make a decision one way or the other."

Like many other legislators in suburban Wayne County, Bennett feels MET will benefit his constituents — working class young families.

"State Treasurer Robert Bowman has done an outstanding job the last five years," Bennett said. "The state pension fund has gone from $8 billion to $16 billion because of investments he has made. I think he could do the same thing for the tuition program. In 10 or 15 years, the money could be tripled or quadrupled."

State Rep. Bill Keith, D-Garden City, who added the amendment on the IRS deduction, feels it will give parents the incentive to participate.

"Even if (parents) have to borrow $4,000 to guarantee a college education for their child, if that money is not taxed as income, it provides a tremendous incentive."

He likened it to Individual Retirement Accounts, which carry a maximum $2,000 deduction.

"In reality, we don't do these kinds of things. That's why I fought so hard for the tax exemption," Keith said.

IF THE IRS decision is negative, Bowman said he will ask the Legislature to remove the clause that required the program to be tax exempt. He said he's convinced the program will be popular even if invested earnings are taxed.

That would stir more debate in Lansing.

"If people feel strongly about it and it doesn't hurt anyone, then as a representative of the people, I think we should give them what they want," said state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

"However, we will have to look hard at expanding the role of the state treasurer. I find that very bothersome."

State Senator R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sees no point in providing the program if it's not tax exempt.

Added state Rep. Judy Miller, R-Birmingham. "There are plenty of programs in the private sector that do the same thing. This program was pirated from the private sector. The state should not be involved in guaranteed tuition programs; it has more pressing needs."

Miller said her father created educational trust funds as part of his investment business 40 years ago.

"Private firms can tailor the investment to suit the individual. The state program will be unable to do this," she said.

A few Michigan colleges, including the University of Detroit, Hillsdale and Hope, have tuition guaranteed programs in effect. A myriad of private investment firms offer educational trust programs.

"Anything that guarantees a college education, I'm for it," Livonia Rep. Bankes added.

"Last year my son's education cost $9,000 at Michigan State. The state program doesn't cover room, board, books or other fees — just tuition."

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Torchlighting honors Ford

The 39th annual United Foundation Torch Drive began with the lighting of the torch at the foot of Woodward Avenue in downtown Detroit.

The ceremony was dedicated to auto giant Henry Ford II, who was instrumental in founding United Foundation in 1949.

According to Alfred R. Glancy II, chairman and chief executive officer, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and Torch Drive general chairman, Ford was "an outstanding humanitarian and philanthropist who cared about his community."

"It was his leadership and initiative that provided the groundwork for effective fund raising and serving the residents of Metropolitan Detroit," Glancy said.

"HIS SENSE of community pride and determination to make the tri-county area a better place for all of us carries on through the efforts of Torch Drive volunteers and contributors."

The ceremony opened the reporting phase in 111 communities throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Led by Glancy, the campaign runs through Nov. 5. Purpose is to raise operating funds for 153 charitable organizations.

"Local needs are greater than ever before," Glancy said. "In order for the United Foundation to meet this increased demand for services, we need a Torch Drive victory. With the community's support, I am confident the campaign team will have a successful final report."

"We face a great challenge in raising $59 million, which will be used to provide services throughout the tri-county area," Glancy said.

ALSO PARTICIPATING in the Torchlighting were the six 1987 Torchlighters, tri-county residents who have received help from Torch Drive-supported organizations.

The 1987 Torchlighters and the organizations they represent are: Erika Burden, 14, and Camille Burden, 13, of Southfield — for the Arthritis Foundation Michigan Chapter; Adam DeFilippi, 5, of Roseville — Detroit Institute for Children; Ramon Mendez, of Detroit, Adult Well-Being Services, Inc.; Adam Niemeyer, 6, of Lincoln Park, Camp Fire, Detroit Area Council; and Leven Weiss, of Southfield, Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan.

The total amount raised through the 1987 United Foundation Torch Drive will be announced Nov. 5.

On the ballot:

Voters to decide 3 tax issues

TUESDAY, Nov. 3, voters in the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township will be voting on a request to increase property tax for the Plymouth District Library.

In addition, township voters will be asked to decide the outcome of two other millage proposals — one for an outdoor swimming pool, the other for a second township park.

The pool and the park proposals both ended up on the ballot at the requests of residents. The library tax is on the ballot at the request of library trustees — elected representatives of city and township residents.

The library board is asking for an increase of 0.4 mill (40 cents per $1,000 state equalized valuation) to finance the cost of extended library hours and the purchase of more books. Dunning-Hough Library now operates with 0.8 mill (80 cents per $1,000 SEV). If approved, the 0.4 mill increase would cost the owner of a home worth $100,000 an additional $20 a year.

The ballot issue, proposed by resident Jane McCourt, seeks up to 2 mills ($2 per $1,000 SEV) for one year to build a swimming pool in Plymouth Township Park, Ann Arbor Trail at McClumpha. That proposal would cost an additional $100 a year for the owner of a $100,000 house.

The third ballot issue, proposed by a group led by Loraine Potochick, seeks 3.5 mills ($3.50 per $1,000 SEV) for two years to buy a 31-acre parcel at Haggerty and Schoolcraft for a township park. Meijer Inc. has a purchase option on the property, which is owned by a construction company. The retailer wants to build a shopping center there. If the park proposal passes, the cost would be an additional $175 for the owner of a $100,000 house.

OF THE THREE requests the proposal with the least merit is 3.5 mills for a township park.

The park proposal was primarily motivated not by a desire for a park but by fear of a shopping center. The impetus comes from people living near Schoolcraft and Haggerty who don't want a Meijer's store there.

While The Observer is not endorsing the need for a large retail center at that site, we believe the park proposal was hastily conceived. We really don't know if there is a need for a 24-acre park in the township or if Schoolcraft-Haggerty is the best location.

In addition, development of the 24 acres would increase the tax base. Using the site as a park would remove the 24 acres from the tax rolls.

We urge residents to vote NO on the park tax.

The proposal for the swimming pool also is vague. It would have been better to seek a smaller levy for a longer term, say 0.5 mill for four-five years or at least 1 mill for two years. The logic of 2 mills for one year is unclear. Another fault is that the tax may not cover operating expenses. It may be necessary in the future to tap into the general fund as it's unlikely user fees will make the pool self-sufficient.

The Observer has no problem with government building an outdoor swimming pool if that's what residents want and are willing to pay for. The motive behind the proposal is a positive one, not defensive. Those who really feel there's a need for an outdoor pool should vote yes on the 2 mills.

But The Observer feels there are too many questions remaining to support the proposal. It's nebulous whether 2 mills actually are needed because cost studies have not really been done. For that reason, and concerns about covering operating costs, The Observer urges a NO vote on the pool.

ON THE OTHER hand, the library request specifies a millage amount based on study of actual and projected costs.

If approved, the 0.4 mill will continue current services including children's programming, large print books, service to senior citizens, microcomputers for public use, video and audio cassettes.

The added tax revenues would pay for opening the library on Fridays and adding Sunday afternoon hours. Reference sources for business and research would be expanded and full-time staffing would be guaranteed for the children's room and adult service desk.

The request is very reasonable, given what it costs other municipalities to operate a library. The 0.8 mill now levied for the library cuts the corner too closely. Canton is levying 2 mills now and most nearby municipalities levy 1 or more mills. The increase to 1.2 mills is not out of line.

The Library Board has demonstrated good stewardship in handling income generated by the 0.8 mill, and will be just as responsible with the 0.4 mill. The Observer urges a YES vote on the library tax.

Election day is not that far away. We urge our readers to study the issues, be prepared, and show up on Nov. 3. Remember, voting is our duty. And remember, also, every vote counts.

Tax overhaul

Schools must get top priority

SOMETHING HAS to change. Argue as politicians will over the details, it's crystal clear that Michigan's property tax picture is deteriorating.

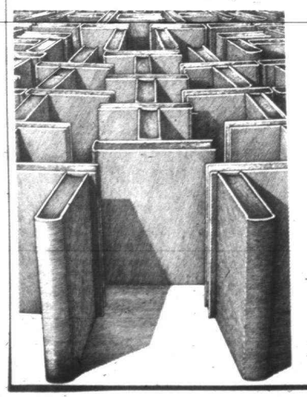
Folks have a gut feeling that property taxes are "too high." You see it in polls. You hear it in neighborhood conversation.

The so-called "Harden Commission," an advisory group to the state Board of Education, recently called for a major overhaul of school finance in Michigan. There will be lots of arguments over details. But before anyone issues blanket judgments, let's look at what direction Michigan should be going.

PROPERTY TAXES in Michigan are 133 percent higher than the national average. But averages are only statistics. Here are some hard realities.

- Big companies are getting concessions from cities and townships in the form of 12-year, 50 percent property tax abatements. If City A doesn't grant it, Township B will.

So those firms get abatements, whether they need 'em or not. But worse, the longtime resident — doing business at the same stand, supporting the chamber of commerce and band boosters for a generation or more — gets nothing.



- Homeowners get something called "circuit breaker" rebates. When their property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of household income, they get part or all of the excess rebated — to the tune of $600 million — when they file their state income tax returns.

That puts homeowners in an odd situation. Rebates give them an incentive to vote "yes" on property tax increases. But businesses pay property taxes, too, and they don't get circuit breaker rebates.

Both abatements and rebates have the same fault: They distort the property tax picture for particular groups.

- Auto makers and a utility are on the warpath over their industrial assessments. For the last few years, industry has been challenging those assessments before the state Tax Commission.
- The farm economy in central Michigan is in horrible shape, with foreclosures and falling assessments.

In short, Michigan's property tax system has become so burdensome and so complex that it's starting to unravel. It's much like the federal income tax law before the 1986 reform — high rates for some, loopholes for others.

- This system produces uneven resources for schools — $1,700 per student in some, $6,000 in others. There's a fairly wide consensus that we should be spending $3,000 per student minimum.

The unevenness grows worse as industry becomes more capital-intensive in the high-tech era. School districts with high-tech plants are richer than ever.

THOSE ARE the chief complaints, as we see them.

Solutions are being offered from every political corner. Most are complicated. At this point, it's too early to pass judgment on one over another.

Besides, we have a melting pot called the state Legislature where 148 fairly good minds will distill, balance, sift through and mold a solution that will probably have to be approved by voters.

When that happens, we will be able to vote "yes" or "no" on a specific constitutional amendment.

Meanwhile, this newspaper recognizes that good schools are the highest priority of most readers, be they parents or employers. We know how you feel about property taxes, because we pay them, too.

Our reporting will give school finance top priority in the months ahead. And you now understand the direction we are all headed.

1st grade class needs aide

To the editor:

We recently confronted the Plymouth-Canton school board with the problem of large class size at Farrand Elementary.

The problem exists in grades K-3, but we were especially concerned with first grade. We requested an aide to help the teachers with their classes: 31 students in one class, 33 in the other. The school board rejected our idea and put into action a plan of their own. Their plan disrupted seven classrooms by changing and rotating children.

We can't get an aide because they don't want to pay an extra salary. We have also requested a full-time librarian but because we don't have 500 students (we have 430), our children have to suffer and can only go to the library once every two weeks. It's very unfortunate that our school district is in such bad shape.

This district will not spend our tax money to benefit our children. They will not spend the extra money needed to provide an aide for the first grade or a librarian that is there full time. What are we getting for the school taxes we pay every year? Superintendent John Hoben, I suggest you take a serious look at the job you are doing and start doing things to benefit our children.

Reader against New Creation

To the editor:

Thank you for your Oct. 1 ad in The Observer.

There are so many of us loyal Catholics that are completely frustrated with this "Travesty on Sex Education" taught through using the New Creation series. Phyllis Johnson, chairperson for the Human Sexuality Committee at Our Lady of Good Counsel, please reconsider and listen to the words of the Holy Father, "We must not be pick and choose Catholics." I pray for you.

Jane Stachowski,
Redford

Parents can pick sex ed

To the editor:

This letter is written with concern about an advertisement that was run in your Oct. 1 issue of The Observer about sex education at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth. The ad does not present the whole issue of the text, sex education, or the local church's attempt to explain itself to Mr. & Mrs. Forton.

These parents have not taken the time to understand the overview and scope and sequence of the text. They have failed to let us know that this class is an after-school and total voluntary endeavor for children and parents. Also the classes are taught with the ideal of a moral and value system that is presently being taught in the Catholic Church today.

Our Catholic church also points out that parents have a right to protest or dissent on this issue for their own children, but it is not correct to impose their will on all the parents. Perhaps these parents would be better off to remove their children from a program which seems offensive to them.

As a parent of eight children, and having used the text "New Creation" at Our Lady of Good Counsel, I found it to be helpful to aid and facilitate the education process for my own child and those I taught at the church. I do thank you for listening.

Joanne Bellaia,
Plymouth

Reader backs sex ed class

To the editor:

(An open letter to Most Rev. Archbishop Edmund C. Szoka, Archbishop of Detroit, in support of New Creation program, Our Lady of Good Counsel School.)

Today children are bombarded with a disrespectful and casual attitude toward sex from TV, magazines and movies. We applaud Our Lady of Good Counsel School for implementing the New Creation series for sex education.

Contrary to what the paid advertisement in the Oct. 1 edition of the Plymouth Observer would have everyone believe, this program does not usurp the rights of parents.

These classes are not held during school hours, therefore any parent who objects to its content has full control over whether their child attends these classes at all.

Before enrolling a child in this program, parents are encouraged to carefully inspect the text that is issued. Parents are also encouraged to help their child prepare and discuss each chapter of the series before it is presented in class.

This class does teach children the correct names and functions of their body parts, and also strives to impress the beauty of these functions, and encourages children to cherish, respect and protect their sexuality.

We do not want to see this program removed from the school. Sex education is, indeed, the responsibility of parents but we feel that this series is a very valuable tool to help us accomplish this.

We, as Catholic parents and members of Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish, fully support this program.

Richard and Anne Craffey,
Plymouth

Urge 'no' vote on all issues

To the editor:

On Nov. 3rd Plymouth Township is going to hold a special election to approve millage for the purpose of increasing funding for the Plymouth Library, for the construction of a pool, and the acquisition of land for a future park.

Proponents of each of the above items claim that their project will result in only a minimal tax increase; however when you add all three together you will find that the resulting increase in the tax bill for the average homeowner will range between $300 and $400.

You can also look forward to further increases in taxes in the future as the swimming pool and the park will require sizable annual funds for maintenance, development and liability insurance. Add to this the taxes that will be imposed on homeowners due to inflationary increase in home values, you should consider the long range effects if these propositions are approved.

Those who wish to have a swimming pool should form a private club and fund it. Those who wish to acquire the land for a park knew when they purchased their property that the land was not zoned for residential development.

I'm a frequent user of the library, seldom do I find it crowded. There is also an increase in revenue for the library from the extensive new real estate and business development in the township.

Martha C. Suchanski,
Plymouth Township

Sex ed ad was misleading

To the editor:

It is unfortunate that Larry and Michelle Forton have chosen to take their objections with the "New Creation" program into the public forum.

It is even more unfortunate that The Observer did not take the time to check the accuracy of the statements made in the ad entitled, "Is Catholic Teaching on Sex Education and Chastity being ignored at Our Lady of Good Counsel School?"

The human sexuality program is not part of the curriculum in the parochial school but is a voluntary class offered in the evening. Even if Archbishop Hannan has difficulty accepting the idea that this series has an Imprimatur, it does indeed have one. It also has a Nihil Obstat. These are official declarations that a book is free of doctrinal or moral error. The New Creation program has also been approved by the Archdiocese of Detroit.

I encourage The Observer to be more aware of the truth in advertising laws.

Dorothy L. Morse,

High drama: court papers

Fred DeLano

If life can be likened to a pinball machine, it seemed to be on "tilt" last week. Maybe it was because of a full moon. Perhaps the over-lapping of baseball, football and hockey seasons can be blamed. It could even be that there was an after-effect from all the huffing and puffing during eight days in the rarefied air of the high Sierras.

For whatever reason, conversations seemed to take weird turns instead of staying in their neat, orderly and predictable rut.

For instance, possibly influenced by the argument over Judge Robert Bork, our marching and chowder society, which often gathers at the happy hour, became entangled one afternoon in a hypothetical protocol issue.

Out of nowhere one of the troops wondered aloud whether the chief justice of the United States Supreme Court or the nation's attorney general should be seated at the head of the table if two of them were to join us for dinner. You can see that we get into some pretty deep stuff in these discussions.

We left it up to Creon Smith, our house expert in these matters, and he restored sanity by saying that if the necessity arose, he would move us all to a round table and seat the two gentlemen from Washington side by side. It is doubtful that he will be put to such trouble.

Of more meaningful significance was a query from a couple of more elderly members, asking for suggestions as to what to do with their spare time now that the golf season is on the wane. Although they scoffed, I suggested they become part-time process servers and make an honest buck or two.

It's a tremendous conversational leap to go from the two foremost legal figures in the land to the oft-maligned role of process server in one sitting, but I was speaking from experience in saying it's not bad duty. Beside the fees and mileage rates, it teaches a person local geography while staying on the right side of the law.

If you're one of the uninitiated, among the numerous definitions of the word "process" is that of "a written command or summons to appear in a court of law." My dictionary also says a process server is a "a person who serves summonses, subpoenas, etc."

Simple, eh?

On the surface, it sounds as though all you need to do is find an attorney who needs some papers served, ring a few doorbells and hand the subpoenas to the happy recipients, fill out the proper proof of service forms and pick up you check. Any legally competent adults, male or female, can be retained for this purpose.

But perhaps I have a tendency to oversimplify and won't get into provisions regarding service by mail. Nor will I enlarge upon the moods adopted by recipients other than happy.

Please understand that I am speaking only of civil cases, not criminal matters, but even then, reluctance to accept service may be encountered, particularly in contested divorce suits. So keep your wits about you and park your car where you can exit in a hurry.

It's a field I discovered during one of the career interruptions and beats trying to sell used cars.

After proper identity information as to plaintiff and defendant, plus court address and nature of the action, a Michigan summons and complaints starts with the words; "NOTICE TO THE DEFENDANT: In the name of the people of the state of Michigan you are notified: 1. You are being sued."

There is more, but that suffices to show you that now and then plan on a reaction of shock.

Most anyone who has performed this legal function many times can relate some interesting, off-beat experiences. My friends didn't take me seriously, but it would broaden their horizons if they did and thus discovered human drama at their doorstep.

Midwest styles shock NY

Chuck Moss

I've always wondered how the other half lives and when I got the chance to squeeze across, I jumped. the occasion was a benefit bash thrown at a local store. Dress was something called "New York Fashions."

Now, when I'm in New York, I always wear blue jeans and a scruffy jacket. Still, I recognized that "New York Dress" didn't mean you were to dress like a New Yorker. I wore a tie, natch, though I didn't snug it up. I snug my tie for no man, because my grandfather once told me not to. "Chuck," he said, "you're in America now. Ben' yer knee to no foreign prince, and snug your tie for no man." Besides, as an expatriate San Franciscan, I don't give a damn what they do in New York.

Gawrsh! When they said Black Tie, they weren't kidding around. Black everything, bub! I saw more mink and rocks than Russia and South Africa can export in a decade! The guys were wearing tuxedos, yet.

I KEPT waiting for some fat lady with a set of opera glasses on the end of a stick to snub me, then they'd wheel in the cart loaded with pies, and Moe would turn to Larry and Instead I drifted over to the bar. People kept looking at me sideways. Heck, I thought, the dirty-dog look is wowing 'em in the Midwest. I plucked some champagne in a plastic glass and ambled about. Some folks looked suspiciously like the sons of prosperous store owners. Many of the women had that peculiarly simian visage that comes from too many face lifts. Others had their mouths frozen in a distinctive expression, a sort of pursed-lip smile. I turned to one of the store mirrors and began practicing that expression, but I'm afraid I just looked like a fish in a tank.

The munchies were great, though. Shrimp and crab and seafood dealybobbers, and little sushi noshes, all served by willing lassies with big eyes. They were passing around the caviar. Now I'm a sucker for fish eggs, and I took about a half-dozen of those and swiped a couple more.

BUT THE best was yet to come. Someone tapped me on the shoulder.

"Excuse me," said the toff, "but aren't you Chuck Moss, the writer?"

My God! Recognized! At a society bash, no less! A celebrity at last. Bingo! Payoff! Lifestyles of the Gauche and Famous, here I come.

"Ahh, yes," I intoned with my best fake uppercrust accent. I bowed.

"You wrote that piece of garbage about poodles. You're a real jerk. Now let me tell you, buddy, you're the stupidest #=$&& I've ever read."

I grinned and lit out like a felon for the entrance so I could exit. Suddenly, in walked a genuine celebrity. Real, live, and in the flesh.

She was a local lady photographer, done up in a leather suit and suede boots. I had seen this person's picture before, and she always looked very striking. Now I could see her picture was accurate, but it didn't tell the whole story. Her head was magnificent, but it was on top of a tiny body.

I WAS standing there, marveling at how such a big head could be on such a little body, when a skinny lady in gray came up to me.

"Are you looking for someone?" she asked, peering dubiously.

"It's OK, ma'am," I said in my finest Dan Ackroyd/Joe Friday voice. "I'm a journalist."

She was unconvinced. She stared at me for five full seconds, then raised one razor thin eyebrow. "Can I help you?" she said in that tone of voice that says Can I Help You, but means Get Yourself and Your Rusty Shopping Cart Full of Rags Out the Front Door Immediately. Before I Call Security. I nodded and looked back. More society swells were coming in and milling around and talking about society things, but I knew it was time to split. Society dos are fine, but like my granddad also said, "dirty dogs and poodles seldom share the bone."

Was this a real baseball season?

Marilyn Fitchett

Even Casey Stengel would agree: It's over.

Those of us in southeast Michigan who aren't used to having our Octobers taken up with Tiger baseball can get back to the more traditional offerings of autumn. You remember: raking leaves, sipping cider, picking apples, planting tulips, yes, maybe even watching football.

Those who had lost faith after the Tigers' 11-19 start were somewhat embarrassed by their success anyway. Those who were faithful from the opening pitch perhaps knew in their hearts that the World Series just wasn't in the cards this year. Somehow it just didn't feel like a baseball year this time around.

MAYBE IT was all that business with the free agents who found themselves even less free when the owners stuck together and refused to sign them. Maybe it was the strangeness of seeing Trammell as the cleanup hitter even though he performed better than anyone had a right to expect. Maybe it was all those home runs rocketing out of the ballparks the first half of the year and all that debate about a livelier ball.

MAYBE IT was the heat; when was the last time it was too hot to be consumed by the national pastime? Maybe it was all those predictions that the race wouldn't be decided until the last weekend of the season. Or maybe it was all those people who stayed home to watch the games on cable rather than flock to the corner of Michigan and Trumbull.

Nope, it sure didn't feel like baseball this time around. Even when the Bengals started to close in on New York and Toronto, Tiger fever registered a mere 98. Then it was into first — all by ourselves. But we never quite believed it — not when we could never pull away and establish a decent lead. Always, in the back of our minds was that nagging doubt that we weren't going to make it.

But make it we did, just as Sparky predicted, on the last day of the season. Maybe we believed all that talk that the real World Series was played on two alternating weekends in Toronto and Detroit. And that by virtue of being the best team in baseball, the Tigers didn't have anything left to prove.

Well, we were half right, they didn't have anything left.

So this year the fall classic will be played by a team that never played a single home game under the summer sun. As Casey would say, "Who would've thunk it?"

Sure didn't feel like baseball.

Owen ready for war with insurers

By Tim Richard
staff writer

House Speaker Gary Owen is prepared to fight a political war against the Michigan insurance industry.

The Legislature's top Democrat calls domestic insurers "a very powerful lobby (for) loopholes in the tax law" in order to achieve "a non-competitive environment."

"It has fought all attempts to make it competitive," said Owen of Ypsilanti Township. "They've become a very expensive luxury that most of society can't afford."

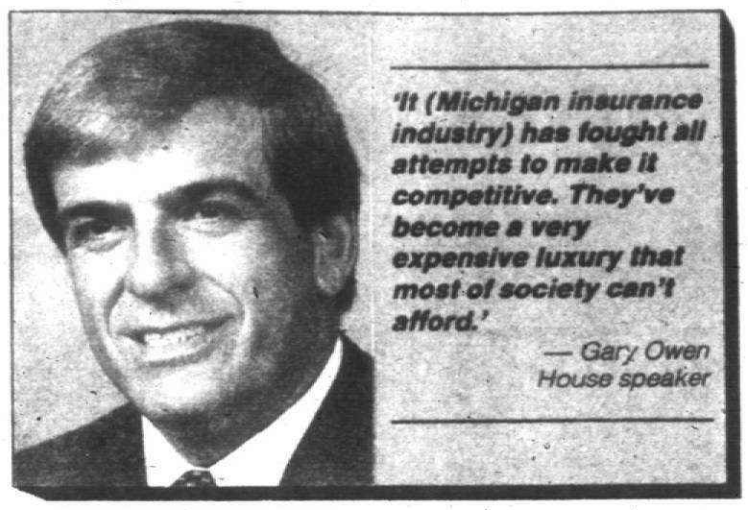
THE WAR Owen talks about is the effort by Gov. James J. Blanchard to tax premiums of "domestic" (Michigan-based) insurers at 2 percent, the same as "foreign" (out-of-state) companies.

"The governor has mentioned several times in the last two or three weeks he's prepared to take this issue to the ballot. I think he's very serious," Owen said during an interview on Channel 7's "Spotlight on News" program.

To Owen it's a highly emotional issue. "Domestic insurers have been subsidized by the people of this state. This subsidy has generated higher profits for insurers. They're highly profitable."

For years Michigan taxed "foreign" insurers' premium income at 2 percent but didn't tax domestic companies. In September the state Court of Appeals ruled the unequal tax treatment unconstitutional. To the anger of domestic insurers, Attorney General Frank Kelley declined to appeal to the Supreme Court.

IN LANSING the two chambers are arguing over how to equalize treatment.



'It (Michigan insurance industry) has fought all attempts to make it competitive. They've become a very expensive luxury that most of society can't afford.'

— Gary Owen
House speaker

Democrats like Owen and Blanchard don't want to lose $130 million in revenue through repeal of the foreign premium tax. The House twice has passed Blanchard's proposal to extend the tax to "domestic" companies and raise $60 million more.

Republicans in the Senate last week passed bills to repeal the foreign insurance tax and bring all insurers under the single business tax. The Senate bills would allow "retaliatory" taxing of foreign companies whose home states discriminate against Michigan-based insurers.

And the Senate bill is approximately revenue neutral.

Owen won't buy the Senate bills. "We need more revenue," he said when asked about money for education.

Said Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, "I think he should take this issue to the people. I'm sure the citizens would tell him that they do not support increasing any kind of taxes to fuel the House's pet spending projects. The speaker is only interested in raising taxes of al kinds to feed his party's expensive spending habits."

And so there is a stalemate in Lansing.

MANY POLITICOS are eager to reduce the state personal income tax by $170 million, either by cutting the rate from 4.6 to 4.4 percent, or by raising personal exemptions.

But Owen and Blanchard won't cut the income tax until the insurance battle is settled.

"It (income tax cut) is part of the equation," Owen said.

Michigan's income tax is expected to generate a $178 million "windfall" because of changes in the federal income tax law broadening the base. Michigan's tax uses the federal standards as its base.

If no bill passes, then the income tax rate stays at 4.6 percent and the foreign insurance tax is repealed by the court.

DOMESTIC INSURERS say they already are paying big taxes that foreign companies don't — high local property taxes, employee income taxes and high taxes in other states.

"A bad argument," said Owen.

"All those arguments can be made by every entity doing business in the state.

"We're either going to have to cut $170 million from education, from police, from social services and local units, or close that loophole.

"Nobody in my district is asking me to keep a tax loophole for the insurance companies at their expense."

OWEN PRAISED an Ingham County Circuit Court's ruling last week that the Michigan Accident Fund is a state agency rather than a private business, ending years of argument.

A conservative think tank, Heartland Institute, is touring the state to argue that there's no need for the state to be in the worker's compensation insurance business. It says MAF is draining state tax money to fight the case, and that there's plenty of competition since MAF writes just 10 percent of the workers compensation business.

"The state mandated workers comp (in 1912)," said Owen. It's healthy to have a state agency writing workers compensation under the same rules and regulations as the insurance industry.

Guide's a boon for busy parents

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Librarians Sally DeGraff and Mary Lou Curtin hope their efforts in recent months will help parents in their search for quality day care.

DeGraff is a children's librarian at the Canton Public Library; Curtin is a children's librarian at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth. They recently completed work on a day care/preschool guide for the Canton and Plymouth area.

"This was our first time, so we were experimenting," DeGraff said of their work on the booklet.

It includes information on day care centers, homes and preschool programs. It is available free of charge at the Canton Public Library and at the Dunning-Hough Library during library hours.

Information in the booklet was collected through questionnaires sent to local facilities.

"We discussed what we thought mothers and fathers would want to know about day care centers in the area," DeGraff said. The librarians also asked their colleagues who have children for advice.

WORK ON the joint project began with discussions involving Judy Teachworth of the Canton Public Library and Pam Rawlinson of the Dunning-Hough Library. Teachworth and Rawlinson direct children's services at the libraries; they'd seen similar publications done at other area libraries.

DeGraff and Curtin started collecting information for the booklet at the end of June. They asked respondents to the questionnaire to return the form to either the Dunning-Hough Library or the Canton Public Library.

"We got a pretty good response rate," DeGraff said. Some programs were not in session during the summer, so the librarians also used information gleaned from other sources.

The librarians started with lists of day care homes and centers licensed through the Wayne County Department of Social Services and the Michigan Department of Social Services. They also checked the Yellow Pages.

"We wouldn't recommend anything that isn't licensed," the Dunning-Hough Library's Curtin said. In the booklet, the librarians don't recommend specific programs.

"We'll let them make their own decisions," DeGraff said.

Information in the booklet includes: location, telephone number and contact person, type of school, hours, ages of children accepted, cost, adult/child ratio, program description, teacher qualifications, any transportation arrangements, field trip information and recommended time to apply.

THE BEGINNING section of the booklet includes a day care/preschool checklist. That list was taken from "A Parent's Guide to Day Care," a U.S. Department of Health and Human Services publication.

A total of 750 copies of the Plymouth-Canton booklet were printed. Printing, typesetting and layout were done by the Wayne Oakland Library Federation.

The Dunning-Hough Library's Curtin has contacted the Plymouth Newcomers, the administrative office of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce to check on additional distribution of the booklets.

The librarians are considering updating the booklet next year; the information is on a computer disc which will help them do the updating. They'd appreciate hearing from staffers of any local programs they missed.

It would have been helpful to have more detailed responses on the questionnaires, DeGraff said.

"We take it very seriously and we think readers do too."

Both librarians have experience that was helpful in putting the booklet together. DeGraff edited a literary magazine in Madison, Wis., while she was a student at the University of Wisconsin. Both women have master's degrees in library science, Curtin from the University of Pittsburgh and DeGraff from the University of Michigan.

CURTIN USED to license day care centers and homes in Kentucky. She was responsible for 17 counties with some 60 day care centers and homes. Her work included making announced and unannounced visits to the facilities.

Curtin and her husband are also the parents of two daughters, ages 7 and 12. A neighbor used to care for their younger daughter; they now manage by shifting work schedules and with the help of their older daughter.

"I've been very fortunate," Curtin said. "I know it's hard. People come in all the time telling me that."

DeGraff doesn't have any children just yet, but knows how difficult finding quality day care can be.

"I can empathize with other staff members how difficult it is to get good day care."

Parents should feel free to visit a child's day care facility or preschool, DeGraff added. Some day care staffers may not want parents to visit during nap time for logistical reasons, but parents shouldn't be banned from visiting.

Both librarians found that working on the project was fun. In addition to learning about local day care and preschool options, they learned about services at each other's libraries.

"We've shared ideas on our services," DeGraff said.

The lacemaking exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum includes a variety of items.

Lace tells tales of years gone by Lacemaking is an art form that has been around for a long time.

"Lace went way, way back," said Barbara Saunders, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum. "It was what you call cottage industry. That's how women made their money."

The art of lacemaking is the subject of a current exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main St.

The exhibit is scheduled to continue until the end of November, when holiday displays will appear on the scene. Some of the lace items may be left on display for the holiday season.

The lacemaking exhibit is being held in conjunction with the issue of a "Lacemaking U.S.A." stamp by the U.S. Post Office. The four stamp designs are based on lace created by Michigan lacemakers, members of the Great Lakes Lace Group.

Those designs, part of a series of stamps celebrating American folk art, are included in the museum exhibit.

AT ONE time, only the royalty and aristocracy wore clothing with lace, Saunders said.

Lace

Art form has a long history

"Then commercial lace came out and everyone could have it. As mass-produced lace became readily available, handmade lace became less and less common.

The museum exhibit traces the history of lacemaking and includes handmade and machine-made lace.

The lacemaking exhibit includes a variety of lace items, most from the museum's collection. Collars with lace, handkerchiefs, gloves and scarves are among the items on display.

On the museum's lower level, items on display — bobbins, bobbin winders and pillows for lacemaking — demonstrate just how difficult it is to produce handmade lace.

"If it's handmade, it's very expensive," the museum director said. Producing handmade lace also takes a great deal of time, particularly for more complicated patterns.

Saunders is among modern day people who know how to make lace by hand. She learned to make lace approximately 15 years ago.

"I can do bobbin lace. Unfortunately, I don't do much of it." She does enjoy working on lace when she has the time.

"It's a nice hobby. It's a fun thing to do."

(The Plymouth Historical Museum's hours are 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call 455-8940.)

Special services planned at Christus Victor Church

Christus Victor Lutheran Church in Dearborn Heights will have two special Sunday services, including one Nov. 1 to bid farewell to outgoing church pastor, the Rev. Michael Rothaar.

Reformation Sunday will take place Oct. 25 with the Rev. Milton Reisen as guest preacher. Reisen is the Lutheran Bishop-elect for Southeast Michigan.

Reisen will assume his office on Jan. 1, 1988 when the new Evangelical Lutheran Church in America is officially formed. The ELCA is the result of a merger of existing Lutheran bodies, which will unite the majority of Lutherans in the United States.

Sunday, Nov. 1, is All Saints Sunday. Also, it will be the farewell service for Rothaar, who has been pastor at Christus Victor Lutheran since 1974.

Rothaar, 41, of Garden City, has been named to the staff of the national office of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America in Chicago. He will be coordinating director for Congregational Needs Assessment and Planning in the Division for Congregational Life.

DURING THE 13 years Rothaar has been pastor, the congregation has accomplished a number of things. Building and property improvements, financial stability, and the development of new worship and education programs are some of the things achieved during his tenure.

Also, during that time, the church has opened a nationally-recognized preschool/day care program and has developed a Mission Partner relationship with an inner-city congregation.

Rothaar has also served on numerous committees, including the state governing board of the American Lutheran Church. He has been involved with the National Bank of Detroit in the Clergy-Corporate Forum and has participated in the Muslim-Christian-Jewish Dialogue through the Greater Detroit Interfaith Round Table.

Christus Victor's Congregation Council has arranged meetings with the bishop's assistant for personnel to begin the process of choosing Rothaar's successor. Rothaar is the fifth pastor in the church's 40-year history.

In the Lutheran system of governance, congregations choose their own pastor with the assistance and counsel of the bishop.

Services will be at 8 a.m. and 10:15 a.m. on Oct. 25 and Nov. 1. In addition to Reisen's sermon on Oct. 25, the Christus Victor Choir will provide some special music to mark the beginnings of the Reformation movement in the 16th Century.

moral perspectives

Competitive drive doesn't always display best side

THE TIGERS won the Eastern Division recently, one of the continuing news items the next day was the success of the Detroit Police Department in containing the crowd. The mounted patrol and additional units regard it as a dress rehearsal for the playoffs with Minnesota.

It's cause for concern. Not that the police were successful in containing the crowd, nor that the best judgments for order and safety anticipate a potentially unruly people for the playoffs. What really causes concern is civilized people acting in such an undisciplined manner.

A root cause of this type of behavior is our preoccupation with competition. In striving to be a winner, we also create a loser. And having been convinced that being a winner is better than being a loser, we celebrate the one and deplore the other.

It is said that unbridled competition and all its derivatives is good for business, but it's no way to build community. In fact, it's self-defeating. What good is winning, if its singular purpose is to have one dominate over another. Unbridled competiton may be business' ultimate downfall.

WINNING IS not bad. We just need to know what winning is all about. The Tigers won the game and the Eastern Division title, but the game of baseball itself was really the winner. It was a sport played to its highest level of skill and art.

One team ended up with more runs than the other, but neither should claim the victory, nor be assigned the loss. The Tigers then represented all that baseball means in the Eastern Division of the American League as they play those who represent all that baseball means in the Western Division of the American League.

Years ago, I watched coaches of hockey teams and baseball teams teach their young players the essence of sportsmanship. After every game they would line up and shake the hands of their opponents. One coach took it a step further.

He insisted that each player thank each player on the other team for playing the game with them. And he insisted that his players' parents do the same thing. It was the right thing to do, because it had to do with the way we care about one another.

The real problem with winning is the way it is celebrated. The public could have been better served last Sunday if there had been an obvious effort on the part of the Tigers to share the essence of baseball with their opponents for that game. Why wasn't there a Tiger-sponsored party for both teams and their fans that celebrated the game of baseball? Why isn't there a parade for both teams in the home city of the World Champions?

The Detroit Police Department is to be commended for being equipped and prepared to contain undisciplined crowds at sport events. The irony is that their best is most apparent at our worst. Surely we will want to think again over how we celebrate winning.

Tax planning aids couple's saving goals

Family Finances

a profile

By Alan Ferrara and Dan Boyce
special writers

Had they been putting 10 percent of their incomes into company-sponsored retirement plans all year, they would have saved more than $1,400 on their federal tax bill.

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers or the advisers interviewed. To receive a free financial planning brochure or obtain a questionnaire to have your finances reviewed in this column, contact the Center for Financial Planning, Dept. 100, 877 S. Adams, Suite 202, Birmingham 48011 or call 642-4000.

"The only certainties in life are death and taxes" was never so true as it seems today. Our family profile this month centers on David and Irene T. of Plymouth who are concerned about how the new tax law will effect their situation this year.

"We are unsure what our tax bill will be and what actions we should be taking. We're expecting the worst, but hoping for the best," they write.

A childless two-income couple, David and Irene are comfortable in their current lifestyle. David, 43, is a computer programmer with a utility company, and Irene, 41, is a nurse in a local hospital. Their salaries are $31,000 and $27,000 respectively.

They "have not been savers" in the past, but they are trying to make amends for past extravagance. Through careful planning, they have reduced their charge card balances by half over the last two years, and David is now putting 5 percent of his income into a company-sponsored 401(k) retirement plan.

Still they believe they are not getting ahead as fast as they would like. They have always felt that taxes were a major problem, and they are worried that the 1986 Tax Reform Act is going to make things worse.

Our advisers note some positive factors in their situation: two steady incomes; good auto and homeowners coverage along with excellent life, health and disability packages at work; and an adequate estate plan of simple wills and durable powers of attorney, which provide control of their assets in the case of death or incompetence.

Though they now are more careful in their spending habits, they are still unsure where their money goes. Some fixed outlays include a house payment of $520 per month; two auto payments of $240 each with one almost paid off; immediate payment of all new credit card purchases, plus $250 per month on the outstanding balance.

THE IMMEDIATE goals of David and Irene include paying off the remainder of their credit cards and beginning to build their assets for long-term financial security. They do not have a great deal of time to spend on evaluating investment alternatives, but they realize that they should not put all of their long-term money into a savings account.

"How and where are the best places to save for our retirement?" they ask.

Certified financial planner Dan Boyce in Birmingham recommends considering liquidating the relatively weak company stock that David owns. The proceeds can be used to pay off the remainder of the credit card debt and add to their emergency reserve.

"Without the $250-a-month credit card repayments, they now have the ability to save greater amounts toward retirement. The best place for retirement savings is the plans their employers offer.

"David should increase his 401(k) contribution to the 10-percent level, and Irene should start contributing to a tax-sheltered annuity offered through her employer. Both programs will result in immediate tax savings as well as tax-deferral on all earnings. "They should have an ultimate goal of saving at least 10 percent of both incomes for retirement."

When one car payment stops soon, they should allocate that money toward building their cash reserves. Rather than a passbook savings, Boyce suggests a money market account or fund. "It offers a somewhat higher interest rate with immediate access to the money if needed. The goal should be to accumulate three months' disposable income, or $7,000 to $8,000 in the account."

ATTORNEY ALAN Ferrara assesses the impact of the 1986 Tax Reform Act and strategies for the couple's use. An estimate of their federal tax due in 1987 is $9,200.

Ferrara agrees with the recommendation to increase contributions to their employer-sponsored retirement plans.

"Had they been putting 10 percent of their incomes into them all year, they would have saved more than $1,400 on their federal tax bill. Since they are not eligible for deductible IRAs (David is eligible for a pension plan, and their adjusted gross income is more than $50,000), the 401(k) and the tax-sheltered annuity are the most effective retirement savings plans for them."

Ferrara points out other items in the new tax law which affect them:

- The repeal of the two wage-earner deduction, which previously had given two-income families a tax break of up to $3,000.
- Only 65 percent of consumer interest (credit card and auto loan interest) is deductible in 1987, and this percentage decreases in future years, eventually to zero.
- Repeal of the itemized deduction for state and local sales taxes.
- Miscellaneous itemized deductions are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of adjusted gross income.

There are several tax strategies for David and Irene to consider:

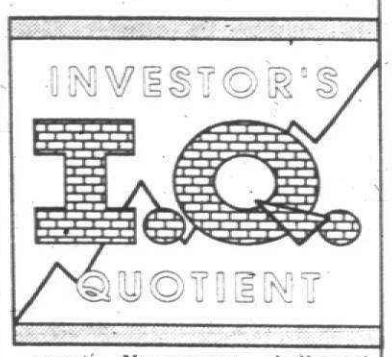
'Amateur' wins stock contest

By Marilyn Fitchett
staff writer



A 23-year-old former Farmington Hills man has won the National Association of Investor's Corp. stock contest, Investor's Quotient, on a stock he chose at random.

James Arrison of Falls Church, Va., selected Activision from the NASDAQ exchange to comprise his entire $1,000 fictional portfolio. The stock sold at 75 cents at the start of the contest and finished at 2⅝, boosting the wealth of his portfolio to $3,173.33 for a gain of 217 percent. Activision develops software for the home video game market.

Michael W. Lynn of West Bloomfield was second. His stock, Viratek, sold at 11 at the start of the contest and finished at 30¼. He raised the value of his portfolio to $2,722.50, a gain of 172 percent.

West Bloomfield's Robert Russette was third with Telesphere, which went from 2⅞ to 6¾. He closed with $2,342.25 in his portfolio. Frank A. Held of Farmington Hills was fourth. His Machine Vision International finished at 3 3/16 up from $1.60. He closed with $1,992.19.

Fifth place went to Cindy Stevens of Plymouth. She placed her money in two stocks, Activision and Maverick Restaurants. Maverick initially sold for ⅞ and rose to ¾. Her portfolio was worth $1,784.38.

ARRISON MOVED to Falls Church after entering the contest, put on in cooperation with Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, in June. He recently earned his master's degree in industrial engineering from Stanford and works as a consultant in Washington, D.C. Arrison calls himself "not much of an investor" although he did take finance courses in college.

"My brother (Tom) pointed out the contest, and when he wasn't going to enter, I said, 'I could do this.,' I thought the only way to do it was to find a penny stock and put all the money in it. I thought with any luck, it'll win."

Arrison "went through the NASDAQ" index, looking for a stock with "a big beta." Beta is a measure of market risk.

After entering, he forgot about the contest.

"I didn't monitor it until I found out I was leading," he said. "Then I followed mine and the one that was in second place."

At the end of August, Arrison led the contest, followed by Lynn.

And although his stock has won him a weekend for two in New York City, including airfare, accommodations and a tour of the New York stock exchange, Arrison said the win has not prompted him to try his hand in a real investment strategy.

"I'd probably rather not invest my own money in a penny stock," he said. "It's too risky. You can get lucky in a contest but probably not in reality."

NAIC AND OBSERVER & Eccentric Newspapers challenged readers to select a fictional portfolio of up to five stocks for a total worth of $1,000. The winning entry was determined by growth exclusive of dividends from the date of the entry to the end of the contest on Sept. 25. June 28 was the last day to enter. The contest drew 879 entrants.

Contest winners will be announced today as part of the NAIC's annual convention at the Westin Hotel in the Renaissance Center. The convention runs through Saturday and includes NAIC's 37th annual Investors Gallery, which gives individual investors a chance to speak with corporate officers or investment relations directors from 75 publicly traded companies. Hours for the gallery, which is open free to the public, are 2-6 p.m. today, noon to 6 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Second-place prizes of a weekend (two nights' lodging) at the Westin will be awarded to Lynn, Russette and Held. There are five third-place prizes of one-year subscriptions to Better Investing magazine, an NAIC publication, and five fourth-place prizes of one-year subscriptions to Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Here is how the remaining 24 of the 29 top investors fared. Final portfolio worth is in parentheses: 6. Bob Nelson, Livonia, (1,775.); 7. Louis G. Basso Jr., West Bloomfield, (1,767.57); 8. Marc Zupmore, Southfield (1,746.75); 9. Len Iden, West Bloomfield (1,744.18); 10. Debby DiLalla, Livonia (1,726.63); 11. Wayne Forehand, Bloomfield Hills (1,665.63); 12. Michael West, Livonia (1,625); 13. Tim Hopkins, Detroit (1,593.75); 14. Brian O'Neill, Livonia (1,589).

15. Joseph Borysiak, Redford (1,578.25); 16. Kelly Bezuutch, Westland (1,562.45); 17. George W. Hess Jr., Birmingham (1,542.75); 18. Joseph Margevicius, Farmington Hills ($1,536.71); 19. Tanya Lewis, Birmingham (1,527.50); 20. Richard Nalepika, Plymouth, (1,511.88); 21.(tie) John Cherrette, Birmingham (1,500); Janet Willard, Troy, and John Harris, Canton; 24. Carl Bardel, Canton (1,488.81).

25. Stanley Baca, Detroit ($1,478); 26. Mike Shirilla, Ann Arbor (1,460.63); 27. Linda Turner, Canton (1,462.88); 28. Terrie Hutchinson, Westland (1,460.37); 29. Randall Falk, Bloomfield Hills ($1,455).

Economist paints new face on trade deficits

By Tim Richard
staff writer

'Our trade deficit is literally our foreign investment surplus. They are the same thing.'

— Arthur Laffer

So the United States has a foreign trade deficit. Hey, great!

The jubilant view of the economy came from Arthur B. Laffer, the supply-side economist, who told Michigan National Corp. bank officials last week: "The Japanese are protectionist. They're silly. Japan's wrong — we're right."

No longer a university teacher, Laffer runs his own economic consulting firm in southern California and sits on a panel of private economists advising President Reagan. Laffer loves Reagan.

But about that "trade deficit". . . .

"OUR TRADE deficit is literally our foreign investment surplus. They are the same thing," said Laffer, concentrating on the dollars Japanese invest here rather than the autos and electronics Americans import.

"Does a growth company lend or borrow money? It borrows. If you were a borrower, would you rather see investors lined up trying to get into your country? Or get out?"

MNC officials nodded that they'd rather see investors coming in.

"We're the Bermuda of this planet — the biggest tax shelter in the world. We're pulling in capital. We're not a Mexico or a Brazil or an Argentina."

The reason the United States is attracting foreign investment is something Laffer had more than a little to do with. It's the low marginal tax rates in the new federal income tax code.

THE 45-YEAR-OLD Ohio-born economist is author of a graph called the "Laffer curve," which shows that revenue increases as high marginal tax rates drop, because so much productivity is stimulated. The Reagan-Kemp-Roth tax cut of 1981 was based on Laffer's reasoning.

"You can hang the ($160 billion federal budget) deficit on me," he laughed in an interview, "as long as you hang the unemployment rate on me and the inflation rate."

The jobs picture is a chief reason why Laffer insists the "trade deficit is not a problem. The American economy has created more jobs in the last seven years than the rest of the world combined — times three."

He fears protectionist legislation may come out of Congress, leading to the kinds of high prices that Japanese consumers suffer with.

"AN ABSOLUTELY spectacular 1988" is in store for both the American economy and federal budget, Laffer predicted. He cited three reasons:

- Smart taxpayers deferred much 1986-87 income to '88 to take advantage of the new, lower tax rates. "That makes '87 look slower than it really is." There will be "a huge bulge in growth and revenue" next year.
- Importers this year are doing much speculative buying to build up inventories, fearing protectionist legislation in Congress. That exaggerates the trade deficit.
- The new, lower tax rates will

- If possible, defer unearned 1987 income (such as a bonus) until after Jan. 1, 1988, since their tax bracket will fall next year from 35 percent to 28 percent. (They would want to accelerate income if their tax bracket would be higher in 1988 than 1987.)
- Shift itemized deductions (such as early property tax payment) from 1988 to 1987 since they expect their tax bracket to fall.
- Pay off credit cards and personal loans this year when 65 percent of the consumer interest is deductible. Next year just 40 percent of such interest qualifies as a deduction.
- Obtain a tax-deductible home equity loan or second mortgage to pay off consumer debts (such as auto and boat loans) that are not fully deductible.
- Calculate all anticipated miscellaneous expense in 1987 (such as tax and investment advice, union dues and license fees and safe deposit box fees). Since David and Irene fall somewhat short of the 2-percent level needed to deduct miscellaneous items, they may want to consider postponing such expenses until 1988 to the extent possible with the hope of exceeding the 2-percent level next year.
- Make sure that state and local income and property taxes are prepaid in order to take advantage of that deduction in the 1987 tax year.

David and Irene have taken the first steps toward gaining control of their financial future.

stimulate high natural growth and even accelerate growth.

Will liberals undo the Reagan revolution if they win the White House in 1988?

No, said Laffer, because "supply-side revolutions (Reagan's) are short-lived but deep. Counter-revolutions are long-lived but shallow."

To a bank official's question on the stock market, Laffer declined to make a specific short-term prediction, but saw a Dow-Jones average of 4,000 to 4,500 in four or five years. Currently the market is about 2,500 after peaking at 2,700.

LAFFER SHIFTED gears to state and local tax policies.

"I'm worried about you in Michigan and Ohio. You're taxing yourselves to death . . . You've almost hit the basement. You've got a ray of light."

He accused Ohio's Democratic Gov. Richard Celeste of "West Virginia-izing my home state" with a hefty income tax increase, but refrained from direct criticism of Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

"Jobs and asset growth mirror state and local fiscal policy," said Laffer, seeing a cause-effect relationship between lowered tax rates (California's Proposition 13 and Massachusetts' Proposition 2½) and economic growth.

It's unnecessary, however, to change politicians or parties. "The same politicians who give you the demise — like (Massachusetts' Michael) Dukakis — can give you the rise — like Dukakis."

Duration rates bond's volatility

By Sid Mittra
special writer

A bond's rating measures a bond's default risk, but it does not measure a bond's volatility. Duration does.

In general, given a change in the interest rate, the longer the time remaining to maturity of the bond, the greater is the price fluctuation.

For instance, if the interest rates rises from 8 to 10 percent, the price of a five-year bond would drop by $76 to $924 whereas the price of a 20-year bond would drop by $170 to $830.

Duration is a measure of this volatility of bond prices relative to their maturity.

IN TECHNICAL jargon, duration is "weighted average of the time it takes to recoup your investment." Put differently, it measures the time it takes for you to recover your principal as well as the interest you expect to receive from the bond.

At the heart of the calculation of duration is the concept of present value, which is based upon the old cliche "a bird in hand is worth more than two in the bush."

For example, the present value of a $100 interest payment received today is of course $100. However, the present value of the same interest expected to be received 10 years from today is just $46.30, if the current interest rate is 8 percent.

In calculating duration, the present value of each coupon payment to be received in the future is first calculated. Then "an average" of all payments is estimated which, in turn, helps to determine the duration of your bond. This concept helps you find out how much risk there really is in the bond you own.

THE ACCOMPANYING table provides the basis for a clear understanding of the value of duration. Suppose you own a 20-year municipal bond with an approximate yield of 7.55 percent and a duration of 10.2 years.

This means that if interest rate rises by 1 percent, the bond would decline by 10.2 percent. If the interest rate falls by 1 percent, the bond would gain 10.2 percent.

The same concept can be extended to a bond fund. Say the ABC municipal bond fund has the following average maturities: long-term portfolio 10 years, intermediate-term portfolio 5 years, short-term portfolio 1 year. The long-term segment is twice as volatile as the intermediate segment, which has about five times the risk of the short-term portfolio.

- Duration is a measure of the payback period. Since higher coupons pay back faster, the higher the coupon, the lower the duration.
- For short and intermediate-term bonds with a maturity of, say, less than five years, the number of coupon payments is relatively small and the bulk of the payment is received when the bond matures. Consequently, the duration and maturity are almost identical.
- As maturities increase, so does duration, because it takes longer to recover your investment. Also, beyond 25 years, duration increases little as maturity increases, because the present values of coupon payments to be received after 25 to 30 years are negligible.
- For zero-coupon bonds, duration and maturity are identical, because there are no coupon payments in these bonds.

Gearhead takes over at GM

Dan McCosh

Generally speaking, you only have to turn your head to the right while seated at any bar in this town to find some guy who knows how to run General Motors.

Which is why when you meet the real thing, a tall, gangling, slightly balding guy with ears almost as big as Lyndon B. Johnson's, you're naturally a little skeptical.

On the way to becoming president of General Motors, Bob Stempel learned to buy the right corporate suit but still manages to wear a white shirt in that loose-collared way you learn in engineering school. In his case, it was Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1955 — an academic career beefed up 15 years later by a company-sponsored MBA from Michigan State.

BUT MORE than being an engineer, Stempel has that elusive aura delegated to a few in the auto-business that makes him a car guy — as opposed to a corporate guy, a finance guy or a marketing guy.

A true car guy starts life burbling notes like a glass pack muffler, cuts classes to work on cars, and if he survives academia, tinkers his way through the manufacturing establishment without losing a feel for well-working machinery. The best of them have a feeling for the Byzantine nature of big business as well as how all the deals and compromises find final expression in sheet metal.

SURPRISINGLY, or maybe not surprisingly if you listen to the guy on the next stool, GM hasn't had a car guy in top management since Ed Cole stepped down as president more than a dozen years ago. This is no great indictment of GM management since car guys hardly ever make it to the very top of any auto company.

The problem is that car guys are driven by the urge to make something. A car. The most dangerous want to make a great car, and you run the risk of ending up like Automobiles Delahaye, which produced the 12-cylinder 165 California in 1939, one of the most beautiful cars ever made. They sold two.

Stempel, who is fond of saying things like "people really want a car that doesn't give them any trouble," isn't exactly a loose cannon of the Delahaye sort. But he's had a lot of experience in getting GM to make things.

STEMPEL LED the engineering team that developed the transmission for the first front-drive domestic car since the Cord — the 1965 Toronado. That took the development of a new drive belt and restudying most of what engineers knew about a car's suspension and tires.

Then in 1973, Stempel led a special project team reporting directly to Ed Cole (wouldn't you figure that was GM's equivalent of the Manhattan Project? Two years later, the result was the platinum-based catalytic converter, an invention that cleaned up auto exhaust by about 90 percent while doubling a car's fuel economy. The magnitude of the project was such that eventually GM also became the world's largest manufacturer of small computers, getting their plant into operation in about a year and a half.

FROM THERE, Stempel moved to Pontiac where they were tossing out the basic frame and sheet-metal structure that had been a mainstay at GM for about 70 years. The plastic-bodied Fiero that emerged represented the first major change in automanufacturing since the invention of the assembly line.

As is true of all projects at a company the size of GM, it's tough to credit (or blame, an individual for what after all, ends up as a fundamental change in technology. But many projects Stempel became involved in were genuine upheavals in the technical base of auto design and manufacturing.

In the past few years, Stempel has been taking corporate giant GM through Europe and Chevrolet division en route to the presidency.

IT'S FORTUNATE that he arrives just when GM's biggest problem appears to be reinventing the apple, affordable car that Detroit used to sing about before the Romanians got there first.

At least that's what the way it looks to me says.

McCosh is the automotive writer for the Detroit News.

Planning matters, just ask Leonard (Mr. Bulky) Daitch

Mary DiPaolo

Where is your business going to be five years from now?

If you don't know, the worst that could happen is that you'll be out of business; the best, you won't be as successful as you could be.

Leonard Daitch, owner of Bulk International (Mr. Bulky), knows all about the importance of planning. When you listen to Daitch's story, it doesn't take long to realize how planning has played a key role in shaping the future of his organization.

At the time Leonard took over Bulk International, there were six Mr. Bulky bulk food stores; none of which was doing very well.

TO TURN the situation around, Daitch realized that he needed a plan that would establish a direction for the organization over a specified period of time — in his case, three years.

Working closely with a business planning specialist from the University of Michigan, Daitch was able to see clearly where the organization had been in the past and subsequently identify exactly where he wanted to be in the future.

Once that had been done, "getting there" allowed Daitch to "sleep nights." As opportunities arose and were evaluated objectively, Daitch was in a position to act, rather than react, in ways that were best for the future of his business.

"DEVELOPIONG A plan to guide our efforts at Bulk International was one of the best decisions I ever made," Daitch said.

Bulk International's plan is becoming a business reality right on schedule. By the end of 1987, there will be 35 Mr. Bulky outlets nationwide, located in regional malls. An additional 58 stores should be in place by the end of 1989.

Of these 93 outlets, about 25 percent will be corporate ly owned, with the remaining operated by Mr. Bulky franchisees.

EVEN THOUGH we may agree that planning is important, the unfortunate fact is that not everyone does it. Why is it that we don't plan? The reasons vary significantly.

Next week we will continue our discussion on planning for independent business.

Leonard Daitch will be available to meet with business owners and managers as part of Friday's business conference, "Beyond the Beginning ... Growth Strategies for the Going Concern" held at Oakland Community College, Highland Lakes campus. Also appearing will be Murray Pitt (Murray's Discount Auto Parts), Gerald Haynes (Gerald's Hair Salons), and Alan Tietel (Tietel Brokerage). To register, call Carol Lubin at 360-3082.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

David Opatoshu and Helen Beverly are co-stars of "The Light Ahead" (1939), a Yiddish-language feature film, with English subtitles, that has been restored and distributed by the National Center for Jewish Film.

Actor talks about Yiddish movie

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

DAVID OPATOSHU still sparkles with enthusiasm for acting — 52 years after his first, hesitant step into the profession at the Yiddish Workers' Theater on Broadway and 48th Street in Manhattan.

"Jules Dassin (director of "Never on Sunday") and I started the same night," Opatoshu recalled in a phone interview. "We entered acting class the same night. We held hands, as a matter of fact, saying, 'Who's going first?' Then he said, 'Let's hold hands and go together,' and we're still friends."

Opatoshu's first American theater appearance was in "Golden Boy" at the famous Group Theater. The production was directed by Elia Kazan, and we toured the Bronx, Brooklyn and Jersey."

Opatoshu, a California resident, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at Adat Shalom Synagogue in Farmington Hills. His appearance is in conjunction with a screening of the recently rediscovered Yiddish film, "The Light Ahead," in which Opatoshu made his first film appearance, in 1939.

The film program is open to the public free. The synagogue is at 29901 Middlebelt, just north of 13 Mile. For further information, call the synagogue office at 851-5100.

"THE LIGHT AHEAD" was the last Yiddish film made before World War II in a period when Yiddish theater and Yiddish filmmaking were thriving.

The film, Opatashu said, "was made in New Jersey. Edgar Ulmer was the director, an international director ... and it took about three weeks to shoot. It was done so quickly, at a low budget ... Ulmer was a very creative director, and everybody was working for peanuts."

Ulmer was a Viennese film director known for his Yiddish films shot in Poland and in the United States as well as for his work in Hollywood.

"It came out a wonderful film, a very socially conscious film," Opatashu said. The New York Times of Sept. 23, 1939, noted, "The Light Ahead ... seems particularly significant because of the reassuring message it contains for world Jewry."

The Light Ahead" was rediscovered a few years ago and Opatoshu recalls:

"I don't know why it was lost, but then this man (Herman Axelbank, a collector of Soviet films) found a print. I think in Holland, and brought it back to the United States."

The film was restored by the National Center for Jewish Film at Brandeis University in Massachusetts. The center acquired the print from Axelbank's estate after his death.

"The Light Ahead," in Yiddish with English subtitles, symbolizes the patient suffering of the Jewish people through countless centuries of European history.

IT IS THE STORY of "Fishke the Lame" — the film's Yiddish title — with Opatoshu in the title role. He is engaged to a blind orphan, Hodel (Helen Beverly). Their prospects indeed are lame.

The film's love story sums up much of European Jewish experience. Its treatment of suffering little people ignored by history strikes the same chord that Group Theater, the WPA Theater Project and the Yiddish Worker's Theater did. From the depths of the Depression, those institutions cried out for social justice, and that is where David Opatoshu began his career with Jules Dassin.

From that humble beginning, Opatoshu's half-century career has crisscrossed the world working with Dassin, Hitchcock, Pressburger, Preminger and Nicholas Ray, among many noted film directors, while appearing on stage with Paul Muni, Martin Ritt and numerous other stars. Opatoshu's theatrical work includes writing and directing a musical based on a Sholem Aleichem play.

His most recent film appearance as Judge Hoffman in the made-for-HBO cable film, "Conspiracy," received critical accolades.

Opatashu's television debut in 1949 was on "Studio One" and he has since appeared on "Playhouse 90," Alfred Hitchcock," "Star Trek," "Kojak," "Policewoman" and "Run for Your Life," among many others.

Saving his Hitchcock stories for the upcoming Adat Shalom presentation, Opatoshu recounted flying to Israel to appear in Otto Preminger's "Exodus."

"It was fascinating to do the film. I had a wonderful experience flying in from London. I got on a plane, on which Ben Gurion happened to take

2 out of 3 winners in Trinity House's 1-acts

Trinity House Theatre launched its 1987-88 season Friday night with a curiously uneven trio of one-act plays. The first is disappointing throughout. The others are winners in almost every way.

"One More Show Before You Go," directed by Laura Niesen and written by Gary Brda (a member of the Trinity House group) is one of those plays that can't seem to find its direction. Just when it appears to have made up its mind to be funny and even silly, suddenly its characters, on a darkened stage, are bending over a flickering candle and desperately discussing a suicide pact.

Then, when everything seems to have turned deadly serious ("I can't hope." "I'm too scared to live." "Shall I kill myself?") it turns out that one of the heroine's most insoluble problems are the braces on her teeth.

Sandy Kaiser appears too old for the role of Melissa, the young girl who is mourning the untimely death of her screen idol, Marilyn Monroe. Kaiser seems lost, too, but her character is as undefined as the play itself, so it's doubtful that anyone could succeed in such a role.

PERHAPS MELISSA is supposed to be pathetic and sad? Appealing and vulnerable? Innocent and unaware? What she comes out as is petulant and whining, to the point that you wouldn't be a bit surprised to see her stamp her pretty little foot the next time she threatens suicide.

As Melissa's brother, Tommy, Mark Barrera fares somewhat better in this two-character play. But then, his character is much more finely drawn and plausible, not to mention sympathetic, than that of Melissa.

Another big minus: a seriously bedraggled set that looks as if it may fall apart at any moment, as it almost does at one point.

In contrast, Ann Gerstenberg's "Overtones," is nothing short of delightful. A comedy vignette that runs only about 20 minutes, "Overtones" focuses on two turn-of-the-century "ladies" and their almost-out-of-control alter-egos. Performances by Sara Hope and Ann Pemberton (Harriet and Hetty), and Andree Chippi and Debra Jackson-Burns (Margaret and Maggie) are absolutely glowing.

Costumes and set are attractive and complement the play nicely, and direction by Susan Reno, who's taken care to pace things exactly right, is highly astute. In this version of Gerstenberg's clever little play, there's only one problem. Unless you can talk the audience into laughing more quietly, you're going to miss out on a lot of the hilarious repartee onstage.

TO CONCLUDE the evening, Trinity House offers Harold Pinter's intriguing "Dumbwaiter," also directed by Susan Reno.

Here are two Cockney hit-men, situated somehow in a small, windowless basement room, apparently waiting for — something. Ben (Ted Raimi) spends most of his time lolling on a cot, reading a scandal sheet, and telling his partner, Gus, to go and make some tea.

Gus, played by Jeff Hedeen, spends most of his time wondering aloud how many "jobs" they've done, talking about "that last girl," and questioning Ben on who cleans up after the two have done their dirty work.

Through a dumbwaiter in the windowless room, some mysterious person on an upper floor begins to send down orders for things like bean sprouts and macaroni dishes. Someone slips an envelope containing matches underneath his door. The men engage in apparently aimless, usually comic conversation.

What does it all mean? Just what is going on in this curious place with these odd characters? Whatever it is, it's enthralling and funny and vaguely sinister, all at the same time.

Raimi, as the senior partner in this grubby duo, is appropriately oily and offhand, a just-right complement to Hedeen's marvelous portrayal of the shuffling, slow-witted coincidence-stricken Gus. The two also do a consistently fine job with the various intricacies of their Cockney accents.

Costumes are on the mark, too — just what the appropriately dressed unwashed Cockney killer would elect to wear to work.

over the whole first class. Ben Gurion and his party, the Prime Minister of Israel.

"I WAS GIVEN the choice of taking another plane or being relegated to the economy class. So, I went to the economy class.

"I knew that Ben Gurion came from a town very near my father's birthplace in Europe. So I sent him a note in Yiddish: 'You took my seat away. Can I have the honor of meeting you?' I was escorted up there, and we spoke Yiddish for about two hours.

"Ben Gurion asked me why I was going to Israel and I said, 'I'm going to do 'Exodus.'

He said, "You know, it was an interesting thing. Suddenly there was an upbeat of tourism in Israel.

"Ben Gurion inquired and was told that this novel, 'Exodus,' was published and people were coming with the novel in hand and asking to be taken to these various places from the novel."

Ben Gurion sent his secretary for the novel, which he read. Then Ben Gurion said, "I'll tell you something, Opatoshu. It's a very good history of Zionism but as a novel, feh."

Instinct defeats logic in shopper value study

AP — Instinct can shove logic aside when consumers shop for noncomparable items, and marketing strategies should be tailored accordingly, a University of Michigan researcher says.

Marketing research traditionally focuses on how consumers choose among brands in narrow product categories, said Michael D. Johnson, an associate professor of marketing in the university's School of Business Administration.

But Johnson said abstract value judgments apparently can take consumers far afield from the items they're consciously considering.

"Rather than ask why people choose Coke over Pepsi, I wanted to know why someone who drinks both soda pop and beer would choose a Coke over a Budweiser," he said.

Johnson recently completed an 18-month study in which he examined 30 adult consumers and how they made choices among various appliances, according to a recent release from the university.

A major finding of Johnson's study was that consumers tended to use more abstract criteria in choosing among non-comparable products than in comparing comparable products.

The study presented subjects with choices among ordinary necessities such as toasters, clocks, smoke detectors and coffee makers, some of which the subjects already owned.

Meadow Brook recreates, colorfully, era of guys, dolls

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Guys and Dolls" continue through Sunday, Nov. 1, on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

The storyline is Pollyanna nonsense, but who cares when a good cast, perky music and fine pacing add up to a jolly evening's entertainment.

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

"Guys and Dolls" at Meadow Brook Theatre celebrates the glitzy underlife of the New York street world with rollicking style. The storyline is Pollyanna nonsense, but who cares when a good cast, perky music and fine pacing add up to a jolly evening's entertainment.

In this musical fable based on Damon Runyon characters, gangsters and pugs with muscular names like Harry the Horse and Angie the Ox are pussycats under the skin. When prim Salvation Army Sergeant, Sarah Brown, hooks up with a gambler named Sky Masterson, love conquers all.

Sky uses Sarah to win a bet, but in the end love makes him repent of his freewheeling ways. Love not only conquers every obstacle in sight, but leads, with tidy comic certainty, to marriage — two weddings in fact.

Not only Sarah and Sky tie the knot. After 14 years of dragging his bachelor feet, Nathan Detroit, impresario of the "oldest established, floating crap game in New York," weds his long-time squeeze, Adelaide, the Hot Box dancer.

RENDE RAE Norman plays Miss Adelaide with an endangering nasal twang punctuated with an occasional Ethel Merman roar. She's a delight. Wil Love as her honey, Nathan Detroit, is a bit of a patsy for a gangster. The guy gets pushed around by the cops and by Big Julie, a gangland tough from Chicago, and he gets nagged by the good-hearted Miss Adelaide who only wants "a home in the country with wallpaper and bookends" and maybe six kids in the bargain. Love plays Nathan as a pussycat in spats.

Sarah Brown, played by Heidi White, begins as a prim, square young lady. When Sky lures her off to Havana, she drinks too many rum concoctions and gets to giggling and squealing. White not only has a fine solo voice, she plays an endearingly tipsy Sarah. Thankfully in the end, it's love, not liquor, which smooths the sharp edges of Sarah's squareness to make her likable despite her righteous notions.

Paul Jackel plays Sky Masterson like a team player, a good player who doesn't hog the limelight from his teammates. Such consideration can be good for the show — up to a point — but a romantic lead with the part of a wheelin', dealin' make-things-happen fellow like Sky Masterson ought to radiate more irrepressible ego-vitality than Jackel does in the production.

Occasional technical difficulties couldn't stop the momentum of the good show once it got rolling. The orchestra hidden backstage was adequate but not memorable, and twice it nearly drowned out the lyrics (in the opening number and in the gentle loveliness of "More I Cannot Wish You").

THE LIGHTING CREW could stand to improve its aim with the spotlights, but the set, costumes and overall high humor of the production overrule occasional rough spots.

Set design by Peter Hicks uses bright Broadway signs to light the stage and snappy rotating modules to kept scene changes brisk. Flamboyant overstatement reigns in costumes for both the Hot Box Girls and the Cuban dancers — wonderful gaudy colors, enough glitz and shimmer to blind folk from the provinces. Director Robert Spencer flavors the script with humorous touches — subtle risque patter befitting the talk of seedy types out on the streets during the wee hours, as well as a bimbo Salvation Army cymbals player who's chronically out of step.

With good songs such as "Luck Be a Lady," "I'll Know" and "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat," Frank Loesser, creator of both music and lyrics, keeps toes tapping. The memorable backup cast features Joseph Reed as Nice-Nicely and Eric Brooks as Benny.

Cathie Breidenbach of West Bloomfield has always loved theater. A former high-school English teacher, she works in public relations, advertising and as a freelance writer.

Nancy Gurwin, talented cast sparkle in 'Gypsy' at JCC

Performances of "Gypsy," presented by Nancy Gurwin Productions and the Jewish Community Center, continue through Sunday, Oct. 25, at the center in West Bloomfield. For reservations call 661-1000.

Barbara Michals

True to its theme song "Let Me Entertain You," the Nancy Gurwin production of "Gypsy" at the Jewish Community Center is a highly entertaining show, filled with talented performers and great songs.

The Jule Stein-Stephen Sondheim musical is the biography of famed striptease artist Gypsy Rose Lee (Alison Mould) and her domineering stage mother, Rose (Nancy Gurwin).

Gypsy, originally known as Louise, grew up in vaudeville, playing the front end of a dancing cow in her sister, June's, second-rate act. June (Lisa Andres), with her long, blond ringlets, is the one Mama is determined to make into a star, while gangly Louise is largely ignored. When June eventually elopes, Mama feels compelled to try and turn her remaining ugly duckling into a swan.

"Gypsy" is the kind of old-fashioned musical where nearly every song is memorable and humable. With her usual enormous vitality, Gurwin belts out "Some People," "You'll Never Get Away from Me," "Everything's Coming Up Roses" and "Together Wherever We Go" and softens for a pleasing rendition of "Small World."

GURWIN'S MAMA Rose is in the classic stage-mother mold: loud, pushy, obnoxious. Yet her endless pluckiness is endearing as she holds her ragtag vaudeville act together against countless setbacks.

As Gypsy, Mould is a delight. She is touching as the awkward, neglected teenager, then blossoms into a poised star. Her strong, clear voice solos on the plaintive "Little Lamb," belts out "Let Me Entertain You" and holds its own in several ensemble numbers.

Andres is a perky June, patiently enduring her mother's attempts to keep her a juvenile forever. Like Mould, she demonstrates good song and dance skills throughout, especially in the amusing duet "If Mama Were Married."

Gary Lee Temple is effective as Herbie, the family's booking agent and Mama's perpetually forbearing boyfriend. Temple makes good use of his expressive face as well as his accomplished vocal skills.

Several supporting players do exceptionally fine work. Danny Gurwin, one of the chorus boys in the vaudeville act, does a very polished song-and-dance routine in "All I Need Is the Girl." Young Alicia Holbrook has a strong stage presence, a dazzling smile and good tapping skills as Baby June, while young Sara Denawetz is appropriately winsome and awkward as Baby Louise.

Jean Garringer as Tessie Tura and Rita Jury as Mazeppa are amusingly convincing and dynamic, playing the two experienced strippers who initiate Gypsy into the intricacies of their art. Brenda Colston's Electra, the third stripper, is pallid by comparison.

UNDER DIRECTOR Edgar A. Guest III, musical director Barbara Anne Gowans and choreographer Valerie Mould, "Gypsy" showcases its talented cast to maximum advantage.

While the simple sets are adequate, the 17 scene changes are executed tediously. Some costumes are so ragged they are actually distracting, spoiling the professionalism of an otherwise excellent production.

Barbara Michals teaches high school English and journalism in Southfield. A theater critic for the past 12 years, she is an interpreter/supporter who frequently catches up on the New York productions.

We're winning the race against Rheumatic Heart Disease.

Today, thanks partly to the efforts of the American Heart Association, the death rate from rheumatic heart disease has declined more than 70 percent since 1950.
For decades, the American Heart Association's educational programs have taught parents about the dangers and prevention of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease in young children.
The effort was worth it.

House wants DOT to regulate airline ads

Roll Call Report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Oct. 9.

HOUSE

AIRLINE ADS — By a vote of 246 for and 171 against, the House opted for transportation department rather than Federal Trade Commission regulation of airline advertising.
The vote left DOT as the sole regulator of such ads. It came during debate on an FTC reauthorization bill (HR 2897) that later was sent to conference with the Senate.
Under the amendment, the FTC was to have required publication of on-time performance records and more candor about discount tickets and frequent flyer programs.
Norman Mineta, D-Calif., who voted for the amendment, said consumers "are concerned about airlines. They are not complaining about advertising."
Opponent Rick Boucher, R-Va., said the FTC must step in because "unfair and deceptive airline advertising . . . have helped to earn this industry the American people's disdain and distrust."
Members voting yes wanted DOT rather than tougher FTC regulation of airline ads.
All area congressmen voted no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

FARM CREDIT BAILOUT — By a vote of 365 for and 49 against, the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR 3030) to keep the Farm Credit System, the nation's largest farm lender, from going insolvent.
Open-ended in its cost to taxpayers, the bailout is expected to cover FSC losses of $4 billion to $6 billion in fiscal 1988-92. It would rescue the FSC, a quasi-federal collection of 37 banks and 400 credit associations, from the consequences of bad loans to agricultural borrowers.
Key elements of the salvage effort are creation of a "Farmer Mac" secondary market for farm mortgage loans and a Temporary Assistance Corp. through which shaky FSC units will get appropriated funds.
Supporter Ed Jones, D-Tenn., said that without the bill "many farm system institutions face the stark reality of collapse."
Opponent Barney Frank, D-Mass., chided colleagues who want government subsidies for farm borrowers alongside a free market for farm exporters.
Members voting yes wanted to bail out the Farm Credit System.
Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin, Broomfield.

SENTENCING REFORM — The House rejected, 183 for and 231 against, a bill (HR 3307) to postpone the effective date of new sentencing guidelines for federal judges from this Nov. 1 to Aug. 1, 1988.
Developed by a special commission under a 1984 law, the guidelines will add uniformity to federal sentencing.
Supporter John Conyers, D-Mich., said more time is needed to instruct judges and court personnel in this "revolutionary change in the federal criminal justice system . . ."
Opponent Dan Lungren, R-Calif., said the measure would provide "a window of opportunity for those who are convicted criminals."
Members voting yes wanted to delay the sentencing guidelines for nine months. Voting yes: Democrats Ford and Levin.
Voting no: Democrat Hertel and Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

SENATE

ALIEN FAMILIES — By a vote of 55 for and 45 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to insure that children and spouses of newly legalized aliens also gain legal U.S. residency.
The amendment sought to prevent the Immigration and Naturalization Service from breaking up families, by deportation, in cases where not all members are eligible to seek residency under amnesty provisions of the 1986 immigration reform law.
It was proposed to the fiscal 1988 State Department authorization bill (S 1394), later sent to conference with the House.
The day after this vote the INS made administrative changes to accomplish the goals of this amendment. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to kill the amendment, said "just because one member of a family qualifies does not mean you have to bring in all members of the family."
Alan Cranston, D-Calif., termed the amendment consistent with President Reagan's call for federal policies to promote family unity.
Senators voting yes wanted to table the amendment. Voting yes: Donald Riegle, D-Mich.
Voting no: Carl Levin, D-Mich.

SALT II TREATY — The Senate adopted, 57 for and 41 against, an amendment to the fiscal 1988 defense authorization bill requiring United States adherence to certain limits in the unratified 1979 SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union, if the Soviets reciprocate.
Senators voting yes wanted to require Pentagon adherence to SALT II. Michigan's Levin and Riegle both voted yes.
The limits are on the number of intercontinental ballistic missiles the superpowers can mobilize against each other. The $303 billion defense bill (S 1174) was sent to conference with the House.
President Reagan threatens to veto a defense bill that dictates his arms policy as this amendment does. He also is upset over language in the bill defining the 1972 ABM Treaty so as to outlaw advanced testing of the "Star Wars" Strategic Defense Initiative.

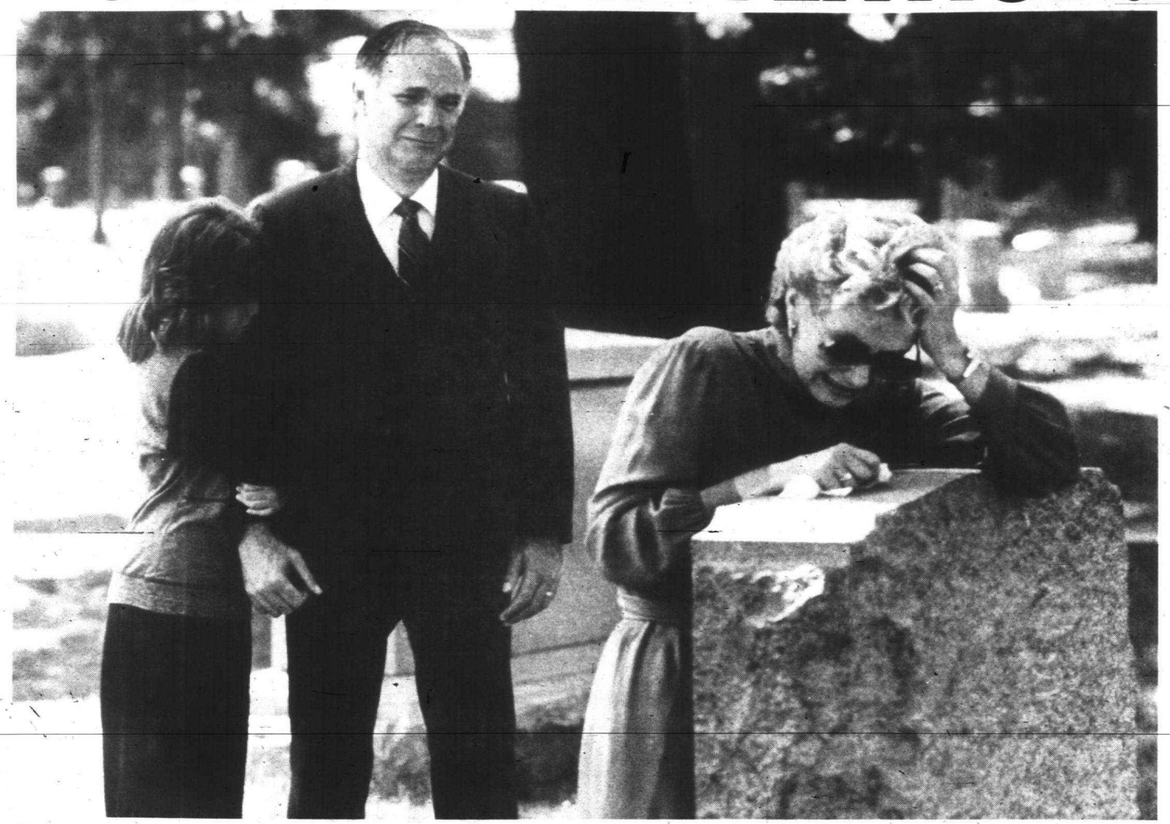
Growing to serve your health care needs.

IT COSTS A LOT TO SAY YES TO SUICIDE PREVENTION.



BUT WE CAN'T AFFORD TO SAY NO.

An alarming number of teenagers find life too difficult to cope with. More and more of them are taking matters into their own hands. To prevent these suicides, the United Foundation Torch Drive supports 21 agencies in the tri-county area that offer help.

Last year, you helped fund suicide prevention services with $6.1 million. This year, the need has grown. Your contributions must help more teens in need of counseling, shelter and crisis intervention.

So please give more to the Torch Drive and help fund 153 health and human service agencies in the tri-county area. Agencies that not only help troubled teenagers, but also provide services to the handicapped, the elderly, the unemployed, the abused and much more. It costs a lot to say yes. But, when it comes to teenage suicide, we can't afford to say no. GIVE...FOR ALL THE GOOD YOU CAN DO.

Chiefs, Rocks hoop winners

Plymouth Canton used some recycled strategy to beat Walled Lake Western again and win its seventh consecutive game in girls basketball Tuesday.

As they did earlier in the season, the Chiefs relied on strong interior defense to keep WLW's big players, sisters Diane and Michelle Hall, away from the basket and neutralize the Warriors' biggest threats.

Canton countered at the other end with center Karen Boluch's 19 points. She also had 13 rebounds and was largely responsible for holding Diane Hall to nine points. The 6-foot-1 senior had been averaging 20-some a game.

"Karen had a tremendous all-round performance," Canton coach Rob Neu said. "She got the scores when we needed them, but, most importantly, she went to the glass when we needed her to."

Michelle Hall, a 6-2 junior, managed to get 18 points, but she was the only player in double figures for the Warriors.

Her scoring total was hardly enough to carry WLW as Heather Miller, Candi Jones and Susan Ferko helped Boluch jam up the middle on defense for Canton.

Neu also was pleased by the play of guards Michelle Fortier, Amanda Bell and Jenny Russell. They took care of the basketball and made smart passes, helping to feed the ball to Boluch, he said.

"I really liked the team effort tonight," Neu said. "It was a real methodical game. Nothing flashy, just a real work-ethic type game.

"I guess you'd call it kind of a blue-collar game," he added.

Dena Head looks to pass here, but she was on the receiving end a lot Tuesday night, scoring 34 points as Salem whipped Walled Lake Central 82-41. Teammate Jill Estey had 15 assists.

girls basketball

The Chiefs led 21-15 at halftime and bumped the margin up to 31-18 with a good third quarter of defense.

"The third quarter was pivotal," Neu said. "Defensively, things kicked in for us. We had good ball pressure and forced them to play areas of the court they didn't want to play."

Bell added nine points, Fortier had eight points and five assists and Ferko grabbed nine rebounds.

The first-place Chiefs are 6-0 in the Western Division and 8-4 overall. The Warriors are 4-2 and 7-4.

"I like where we're at, but we still have a ways to go," Neu said.

SALEM 82, W.L. CENTRAL 41: The once-beaten Rocks hit their stride in the second quarter, posting 28 points to boost their halftime lead to 40-14 and lay the foundation for a sixth straight win in the Lakes Division.

Salem, 6-0 and 11-1 overall, was led by Dena Head, who scored 34 points and also had six blocks, 10 rebounds and four steals.

Keri McBride contributed 14 points and five rebounds, and Jill Estey added 12 points while registering 15 assists and four steals.

"Our team is playing very well," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "(Head) is getting a lot of scoring opportunities, and, with someone like Jill having 15 assists, at least 10 went to her.

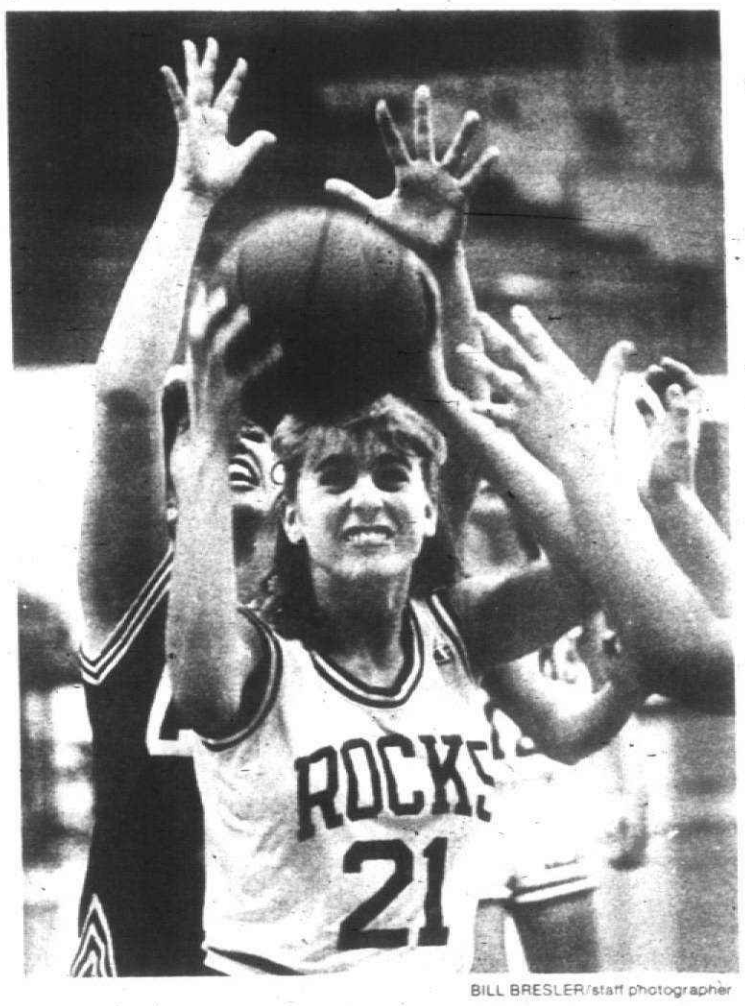
The Rocks matched their second-quarter total and increased their lead to 68-30 after three periods.

"In the second and third quarters, we really got our defensive intensity going," Thomann said, "and we didn't miss. We had a lot of scoring opportunities in the first quarter; we just didn't make them."

Kelly O'Hanlon scored 13 points and Leah Vlsides 12 for the Vikings, 3-3 and 7-4.



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Salem senior Kelly Craiggs tries to secure a rebound in Tuesday's game. The Rocks, ranked No. 5 in Class A and No. 1 in Observerland, stayed undefeated in the Lakes Division (6-0) and improved to 11-1 overall.

SOUTH. CHRISTIAN 50, PLYM. CHRISTIAN 29: Plymouth Christian was hurt by 41 turnovers Tuesday, a handicap the Eagles couldn't overcome in their loss to Southfield Christian.

The winner's press figured heavily in the outcome. Leading 5-2 in the first period, Southfield scored four quick points in the last 20 seconds, and it had a snowballing effect.

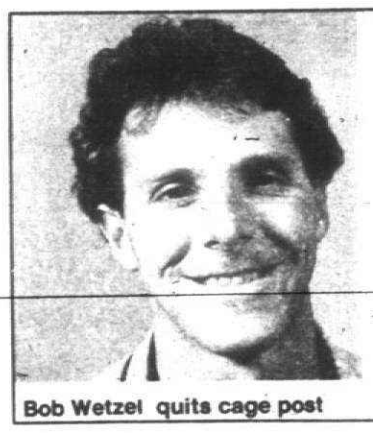
"They kept pressing and we never seemed to regroup," Plymouth coach Mark Brandel said. "We had a couple key players who had more (turnovers) than we've had in previous games."

Southfield, 6-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, led 23-10 at halftime and 31-17 at the end of three periods. Shawn Shellnut led the winners with 16 points.

Shelly Oxley scored 10 points — all in the second half — and Diane Benson and Elaine Priebe eight apiece for the Eagles, 4-3 in the MIAC and 5-6 overall.

Coach's resignation shocks Schoolcraft

By C.J. Risak
staff writer



Bob Wetzel quits cage post

'I felt it was a decision I had to make, not one I wanted to make. I didn't want to leave. I was hoping the problems would be resolved.'

—Bob Wetzel

Bob Wetzel is out.

In a surprise development, Wetzel resigned as mens basketball coach at Schoolcraft College last Thursday.

The move shocked everyone — players and administration included. It was completely unexpected, particularly considering:

- Wetzel had just completed his most successful recruiting class ever, signing Westland John Glenn standouts Andy Grazulis and Steve Hawley and Farmington Harrison's Brad Ridgeway, so even with 11 freshmen, success seemed certain;
- The start of the season is just six weeks away;
- Wetzel's basketball coaching ability had nothing to do with his decision;
- There was no other job offer to consider.

So why is Wetzel leaving, just weeks before what would have been the start of his third season?

"I felt it was a decision I had to make, not one I wanted to make," he said from his home in Monroe Tuesday. "I didn't want to leave. I was hoping the problems would be resolved."

WAS HE FORCED to resign? "You would have to define the term 'forced,' " was his reply. "Under the circumstances I was under, I felt it was a decision I had to make.

Wetzel's "circumstances" are financial. His position as SC's coach is part time. He needed some other form of income.

What Wetzel wanted was another position on campus at SC. "I expressed my desire to have a position within the college," he explained.

He applied for two non-teaching positions (he does not have a teaching certificate) he was qualified for, one a part-time job. He didn't get either.

There was another possibility, however. Marv Gans, the longtime athletic director at SC, left that position July 1 and was reassigned to other duties. The athletic director's job has yet to be filled. Lou Reibling, the dean of instruction, is filling the position on an interim basis.

IT SEEMED a perfect marriage, with Wetzel — who has a master's degree in athletic administration — combining his coaching duties with the AD's post. He met with administration officials to discuss just such a proposal.

"I had three meetings with the administration on that position," Wetzel said. "The last one was about four weeks ago. At the last meeting, they told me they'd get back to me.

"They haven't. I haven't heard anything from them."

In his mind, Wetzel could wait no longer. "I felt I had tried to hang on as long as possible hoping things could get worked out," he said. "If I had set a deadline I probably would have left earlier. Obviously, the farther it went, the worse it would be.

"I didn't want to leave. I was hoping it would be resolved. It's not like I had another job or something. I wanted to stay where I was at. When you like something, you don't want to let it go."

But Wetzel did leave, even though he had nothing else to turn to. "Right now, I'm unemployed," he said.

According to Reibling, Wetzel was offered a position combining the student-athlete support system, which oversees athletes and their academics, the athletic directorship, the summer camps program and his coaching position. But no agreement could be reached on job duties and finances.

"I really feel bad about his leaving," Reibling said. "He has really turned the program around."

Reibling added that the coaching job was posted Tuesday, and that the AD's position would be posted next week. He hopes to fill both quickly. His deadline for getting another coach is Oct. 23.

WETZEL DECIDED to tender his resignation last Wednesday (Oct. 7). He told his players he was leaving at an emotional meeting the next day. Since that time, the team has continued to practice under the supervision of Wetzel's assistant, Chris Theodore, a teacher at Wayne Memorial.

"It was a very difficult thing to do — the hardest thing I've ever done in my life," Wetzel said. Asked if he would consider returning if the athletic director's and his coaching jobs were combined and offered to him, Wetzel said, "I don't know. Those are the type of things we were talking about before and they didn't get resolved.

"They knew my situation before I resigned."

Already, his resignation has had repercussions. Grazulis has decided to drop out of SC at the end of the semester and enroll at Siena College in New York. He had originally planned on playing and going to school at SC his first year. Now, Grazulis won't play at all.

"I chose to go to Schoolcraft not because it's Schoolcraft but because of coach Wetzel," Grazulis said. "I really feel bad for coach. I won't be playing this year for Schoolcraft."

Hawks upend No. 5 Rocks

Considering the way Farmington teams have been coming on and playing good soccer this season, it seemed only a matter of time before one toppled a powerful opponent.

That stunning victory occurred Monday, and the team was Farmington Harrison.

The Hawks knocked off Plymouth Salem, the No. 5-ranked team in Class A, by a 2-1 count on the opposition's field.

"It was a real big win, because we had never beaten Salem," Harrison coach Glenn Bruehan said. "The kids were real ecstatic."

"We beat Franklin, and that started us upward again. We seem to get up for the good teams."

The Hawks, no slouch themselves since they're rated No. 10 in Class B, scored first when Craig Bailey, just two minutes into the game, capitalized on a broken play in front of the Salem net, with Pete VanVliet and Thierry Bersot assisting.

The Rocks pulled even after 27 minutes of play. Joe Cosenza's crossing pass went to Greg Christensen, who completed the play for the tying goal.

The score remained tied until midway in the second half when the rebound from Ron Leicht's came back to Scott Kay, who quickly fired it back for the game-winner.

"Scott just attacked the goal and was in the right spot at the right time," Bruehan said.

"We would have been all right if it had gone past the post," said Salem coach Ken Johnson, describing how the shot bounced back to Kay on the right wing.

Harrison, however, had to contain the Rocks for another quarter of the game to earn the victory, and Bruehan was especially pleased with his defense and the goaltending of Gary Wegner.

"Our defense has played superb," he said, acknowledging the efforts of Kay, VanVliet and fullbacks Chris Yoerg and Todd Whittemore.

Salem's major problem has been its inability to score goals, and the Rocks, who won a handful of close games earlier, have relied on a strong defense to keep them in every game. But Johnson made no excuses for the loss.

"We didn't have any bad luck; we were beaten," he said. "They were ready, and the (Salem) kids weren't up to it.

"In the second half, they really came to us. They were really hustling and getting to the ball, and their goalkeeping was very good."

Johnson noted Mike Ulaszek, a defender, has four of the team's winning goals, adding that shouldn't be the case. Randy Balconi, a centerhalfback, is the leading scorer.

"Our one weakness has been not finishing our chances," Johnson said. "We just can't finish it. Our intensity in front of the goal is lacking."

Meanwhile, Johnson hopes the Rocks, 6-2-2 in the Western Lakes and 10-3-2 overall, can develop some needed offensive punch with the district tournament coming up next week.

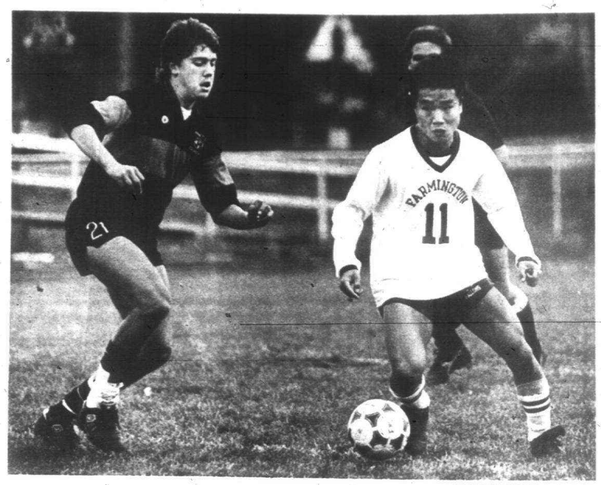
"All of them were pretty upset after the game," he said of his players. "Maybe it will shake them up and have a good effect.

"I hope they realize we have the (start of the state tournament) next week and it's not too late. We can't play Stevenson and Churchill well and walk around the lesser knowns."

Harrison, 5-4-1 in the league and 8-4-2 overall, hopes the stiff competition against Class A teams in the WLAA will prepare it for a strong run in the Class B tournament.

"I'd just as soon stay in the 10th spot (in the rankings)," said Bruehan, noting the Hawks slipped after being ranked second last year. "It seems to have some motivating effect.

"When we were ranked high, it seemed everybody was out to beat us. I think that happened (earlier this season) when Farmington beat us and we were 5-0.



RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Farmington's Steve Lee tries to maneuver around Livonia Churchill's Chris Oxley in Monday's Western Lakes soccer game. The Falcons lost 2-0 to the No. 4-ranked Chargers, but Farmington Harrison scored an upset in beating Salem.

'All of (the Salem players) were pretty upset after the game. Maybe it will shake them up and have a good effect.'

— Ken Johnson
Salem soccer coach

"We want to prove ourselves by playing the games rather than by what's printed on paper," he added.

CHURCHILL 2, FARMINGTON 0: The Falcons gave a good account of themselves but came up short against the Western Division champion Chargers and No. 4-ranked team in Class A.

Phil Tedino and John Gentile scored Churchill's goals, but Farmington outshot the Chargers 6-5 in the first half and 11-7 in the second.

"It was one of those games when you get your chances," Falcons coach Ed Bartram said, "and, if you can't put it in, you can't expect to win."

Farmington played without Pete Frauenheim, who was ill, and a couple players were nursing minor injuries.

"(Frauenheim) has really come along," Bartram said. "He's aggressive and has helped us in front. So it's not as easy to mark us and hold us down."

Forward Joey Crowe "gave it all he had tonight," Bartram said, and halfback Tom Hanson and forward Scott Yoder also played well.

"I won't take anything away from Churchill, because it looks like they have a real good team," he said of the Chargers, 10-0-1 in the league and 10-1-1 overall. The Falcons are 5-4-1 and 7-4-1.

"There's only been two games I felt bad about, when we didn't play as well as we could have," said Bartram, complimenting his players for their effort against the Chargers.

FRANKLIN 2, CANTON 1: The Chiefs scored first but saw the Patriots take a come-from-behind victory and hand Canton another frustrating defeat.

"We outshoot the people we play and lose, because they get more goals than we do," Canton coach Mike Morgan said. "If you can't score goals, you can't win the game."

Ocelots remain hopeful

It's not over yet.

At least not in Van Dimitriou's mind. The Schoolcraft College soccer coach still believes his team can successfully defend its Eastern Conference title, particularly after Saturday's 3-1 triumph over visiting Delta CC.

Such a task won't be easy. Even with Saturday's win, the Ocelots are only 2-2-1 in the conference, far behind unbeaten Macomb CC (5-0) with just three games left.

"We're approaching it like we want to win the next three games," said Dimitriou. "There's no question we should beat Lakeland and Cuyahoga at home. And if we play up to our potential we can (beat Macomb)."

Defeating Macomb won't be easy. SC lost at home to the Monarchs 3-0 in the first meeting. The rematch is at 1 p.m. Saturday at Macomb.

THE OCELOTS had few problems with Delta, although the final margin should have been greater. Dimitriou thought Ron Hammer opened the scoring for SC with a first-half goal; Bobby Neumann assisted.

But another in a long line of careless, open-field mistakes that have plagued SC all season cost it again early in the second half. A defender misshit the ball and it ended up on the foot of a Delta forward, who quickly drilled it into the SC net to tie the game.

Neumann put the Ocelots back in command with a goal at the 28-minute mark, on an assist from Tony Peruzzi. Errol Parks iced the victory with a goal with 10 minutes left. Neumann and Paul Burrill assisted.

"I'm seeing a lot of progress from these guys," said Dimitriou. He'll have to see a lot more if the Ocelots are going to bounce back to win the title.

Heart rate lower after swimming

Dear Myrna: I'm a swimmer and an occasional runner. I usually take my heart rate during swimming. Swimming is my first love, but I do not seem to get my heart rate up as high as I do when running. Could this be?

Yes.

The latest research I have read says that swimming does not increase our target heart rates as much as other aerobic activity such as running, speed walking, cross-country skiing.

According to exercise physiologist William McArdle of Queens College, N.Y., "If you swim for an aerobic workout, aim for a slower pulse rate than your landlubber friends."

This means using a different formula for target heart rate (your working heart rate).

The standard formula used in aerobic activity is as follows: 220 minus your age, times .70 to .85. This is standard procedure assuming you are a healthy, average-weight person.

If you are a swimmer, McArdle suggests that you subtract your age from the number 205 instead of 220 to make up the difference in activity.

Why?

Swimming is considered an aerobic activity.

Then what is the difference?

Swimming uses a smaller muscle mass because you use mostly your arms. Another interesting reason why swimmers have lower target heart rates is the position used. While swimming in a horizontal position, the heart pumps more blood with each beat. The blood doesn't have to move uphill. Therefore, it doesn't need to pump as fast as if you were standing.

Now keep in mind that the volume of blood the heart pumps is equally or more important in determining aerobic fitness than the number of beats per minute.

If you are swimming four to five times a week and loving it, great. Don't worry, you are achieving cardiovascular benefit.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Send your signed letters to Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.)

Ocelots struggle, but keep on winning

A fast start got Schoolcraft College's volleyball team rolling, but victory didn't come easily Tuesday at Macomb CC.

The Lady Ocelots did win, keeping their Eastern Conference record perfect through five matches. But after convincing triumphs in the first two games, 15-3, 15-5, they dropped the third by a 15-8 score before rallying to wip the fourth 15-11.

"In the first two games we were overpowering," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "Then we seemed to relax a little. (Macomb) was playing well, though. They had good blocking — not for points, but it set up a good attack for them coming back at us."

Macomb's counterattacks weren't enough to upset the conference's defending champion, however. SC got solid play from hitters Jill Ehlert (14 kills with two errors) and Marla Evans (seven kills with one error).

Nikki Stubbs added four aces among her 11 serves (no errors), and Chris Paciero's sets and the blocking of Tina Osantowski, Donna Wilhelm and Ehlert all contributed to the victory.

SC, 17-6 overall, travels to the seven-team Jefferson CC Tournament in St. Louis this weekend to battle defending NJCAA champion Miami-Dade and fourth-ranked Illinois Central, among others.

Several factors affect fishing

AP — Recent cold weather and high winds slowed fishing pressure, but action remained good in scattered sections of the state, AAA Michigan says.

The opening of deer archery season statewide and duck season in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula last Saturday also contributed to reduced fishing pressure statewide, the auto club said.

West Michigan fishing was best north of Muskegon, where Lake Michigan activity was good off Manistee for chinook and steelhead averaging eight pounds at 80- to 120-foot depths on Hot 'N Tots and Stingers. Off Pentwater, good numbers of 5- to 16-pound steelhead were taking spoons in 300-foot depths of Lake Michigan, the auto club said.

Fishing was fair off Frankfort for steelhead averaging 10 pounds at 400-foot depths. Some coho weighing 6 to 10 pounds also were being taken off Frankfort. Chinook results were poor off Grand Haven and Benton Harbor, where waves have been up to seven feet high.

On Lake Michigan tributaries, fishing was generally good. Best angling was on the Pere Marquette River fly section for chinook weighing 10 to 25 pounds and on the Pentwater River where good counts were being taken on the upper portion. Streamers, muddler minnows and flies work well on the Pere Marquette with ping-a-tees yielding good results on the Pentwater river, the auto club said.

Fishing also was good for chinook averaging 12 pounds and 7- to 8-pound steelhead on the St. Joseph River near Berrien Springs Dam.

Lake Huron fishing was fair to good for chinook averaging 15 pounds in the Harrisville and Oscoda harbor areas. Spawn and cleos work well.

On Lake Huron tributaries, the Ocqueoc River near Ocqueoc has good chinook action, while the Cheboygan River near Cheboygan was producing fair results. Catches weighed from 12 to 18 pounds, the auto club said.

Chinook from 15 to 25 pounds were taking spawn at 8- to 10-foot depths in late evening on the Tawas River. Tawas Bay was yielding good perch stringers running 8 to 10 inches.

The Au Sable River system was producing good hatches of midday blue-winged olive flies along the flies-only stretch for brown and brook trout.

The East Branch of the Au Gres River at the mouth was good for 2- to 10-pound brown trout on spawn bags and night crawlers. Chinook action also was good using J-Plugs to hook 6- to 20-pounders, the auto club said.

Farther south, Lake Huron pier fishing was excellent for chinook weighing 15 to 27 pounds using Cleos and spawn at 50-foot depths off Port Sanilac. Saginaw Bay perch fishing was fair off Charity Island at 15- to 26-foot depths. Poor weather hampered fishing elsewhere in the bay.

In southeast Michigan, perch were schooling on Lake St. Clair only during calm conditions. When there were no winds, schools were reported off the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, Nine Mile Road and the Spillway, the auto club said.

Action has been minimal on southeast Michigan rivers due to high winds, although the St. Clair River from Port Huron south to Algonac was producing fair walleye counts with minnows.

Wayne County's Belleville Lake near Belleville was producing good crappie action. Good perch catches running 7 to 10 inches were coming on minnows in 15-foot depths off Lake Erie's Brest Bay near Monroe, the auto club said.

In the Upper Peninsula, fair numbers of chinook averaging 12 pounds were being taken on the Manistique and Carp Rivers near St. Ignace. Spawn and plugs work well. West of Ontonagon, the Black River harbor and Iron River were yielding good coho and chinook counts with spoons.

Miller, Krumm influence victory

By Jim Toth
staff writer

Now wait a minute, are Todd Krumm and John Miller starters on defense or offense for the Michigan State football team?

After all, the Spartan media guide lists them as free safety and strong safety, respectively, but anyone watching Saturday's clash between the Spartans and their rivals from the University of Michigan can't be too sure.

The duo combined for six catches, or one more than Willie Bouyer, Andre Rison, Mike Sargent and Lorenzo White — all of whom are listed as offensive starters for the Spartans — put together.

Miller, a product of Farmington Harrison, and Krumm, a graduate of West Bloomfield, must have seemed like receivers to U-M quarterback Demetrius Brown, who tossed seven interceptions in his team's 17-11 loss to the Spartans. Miller picked off four passes, the same number as the Wolverines' top receiver, and Krumm two.

"IT'S ALWAYS NICE to go into a game like this and make some big plays because it's such a great rivalry," explained Miller, whose four pick-offs set an MSU single-game record. "We worked hard all week to prepare for them. We have a great defensive unit that we take a lot of pride in, and we just had a great defensive effort today."

"We knew we had a great defense going into the game, and if we all did our jobs, we could make it tough on them," echoed Krumm, whose interception in the final minute iced Michigan State's first win over the Wolverines at Spartan Stadium since 1969. "Michigan's offense is very basic because they have so many talented players they don't have to run all those trick plays. We just had a great effort out there."

Starting in the secondary is nothing new to Miller and Krumm, but starting at the safety spots is. Both were moved from cornerback to safety before the season began.

"It's been hard to make the change from corner to free because you have to be more patient now and wait for things to happen," explained Krumm. "Playing corner you have a person to cover and you have to stick with him. But at free, you have more time to react to situations.

"I'm real happy with the switch," Krumm continued. "I just wish I had another year back there with John because I think we work so well together."

"THE BEST THING that ever happened to me was to play safety with Todd," beamed Miller. "It's worked out so well because we can communicate back there and help each other out."

Miller swayed the momentum the Spartans' way with three interceptions in the second quarter. The first came midway through the period when he picked off an aerial intended for John Kolesar and returned the ball 15 yards to the MSU 33.

The swipe didn't result in any points, but it set the stage for what Miller called a dream come true.

His second interception came with 4:30 remaining and resulted in MSU's second touchdown and a 14-3 lead.

The third of the quarter ended U-M's bid to close the deficit at halftime. Miller stepped in front of Brown's pass to Chris Calloway and returned it 11 yards as the clock ran out.

Krumm made his presence felt in the third quarter with an interception of a pass headed for Calloway. Krumm caught the ball at the MSU 18 and returned it 12 yards as the offense took over at its own 30.

THE DRIVE stalled, forcing the Spartans to punt back to the Wolverines. Brown and company took over at their own 12 and six plays later it was Miller Time again as the 6-2, 189-pound junior recorded his fourth interception.

How can you explain something like this?" responded Miller to the same question. "It's something (four interceptions) you always dream about, and it's something an MSU team always dreams about — beating U-M.

"I have a lot of good friendships on that team and a lot of respect for those players."

Krumm's final pick-off ended Brown's daylong misery.

"When I get two interceptions, I hope John gets more," Krumm said. "Everyone played well, and we needed it to win. This is a great rivalry and a game that is every bit as good as it's built up to be."

Steelers frosh zap Meteors

Ahmande Grimes scored touchdowns on runs of 12 and 50 yards Sunday to lead the Plymouth-Canton Steelers freshmen to an 18-6 victory over the Westland Meteors.

The Steelers boosted their lead to 18-0 on Ted Barker's 25-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter.

The Steelers' varsity also won, 8-0, over the Meteors, and the junior varsity game ended in a scoreless tie.

Pat McManaman scored the lone touchdown in the varsity contest, and the Steeler defense held Westland in check and protected the lead. Jeff Nafe kicked the extra point.

Though the JVs couldn't light up the scoreboard, the Steelers' Jason Krueger had an impressive 104-yard rushing total.

The Steelers will be host to the Westland Comets at 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 18, at Central Middle School. It will be homecoming for the Steelers.

Perko lifts freshmen

Jason Perko scored two touchdowns and an extra point Sunday in the Plymouth-Canton freshman Lions' 19-13 victory over the Northville Colts. Jim Beesley got the scoring started with a TD.

The Lions varsity posted a 19-0 victory over the Colts. Matt Roney and Steve Hohl scored touchdowns, and Ron Horton kicked a 25-yard field goal and two extra points.

Northville scored a first-quarter touchdown and made it stand up for a 6-0 victory over the Lions junior varsity.

Hawks last unbeaten; 4 still in Lakes race

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara
staff writers

OBSERVERLAND is down to one undefeated football team with three weeks remaining in the regular season.

Farmington Harrison (6-0) is the only ballclub with a perfect slate after Westland John Glenn stopped North Farmington's streak at five last Saturday, 31-14.

Due to Glenn's victory, the suspense this week focuses on the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Glenn, North and Livonia Stevenson have the same 3-1 records, and the final round of division play will produce either an outright champion, co-champions or, like last year, tri-champs.

Harrison, the top-ranked team in Class B, locked up the Western Division title and will oppose one of those teams next week for the WLAA crown.

Redford Catholic Central is in position to claim the Central Division title and a possible playoff berth after toppling Birmingham Brother Rice. The Shamrocks (5-1) must get past Notre Dame and DeLaSalle to maintain their hold on first place.

The battle between prep prognosticators saw O'Meara (12-2) break a stalemate with Emons (11-3) last week. O'Meara is 66-21 after six weeks, Emons 65-22. Things could change this week since they disagree about the winner in five upcoming games.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Churchill at Ply. Canton: Churchill (3-3) can tie for second place with its Western Ivy winning, and Canton (2-4) can force a three-way tie for third if it's successful. Both teams are coming off losses, the Chargers getting steamrolled by Harrison and the Chiefs losing a squeaker to Franklin. Picks — Like England during the blitz, Churchill rebounds to victory, according to O'Meara. However, Emons sees Canton coming out ahead.

Ply. Salem at Liv. Stevenson: Tri-leader Stevenson (4-2) faces the roughest test in its hope of sharing the title. But the Rocks (4-2) can spoil those plans and tie Stevenson for third place, or maybe even force a four-way tie should the other tri-leaders also lose. Picks — A tough one to call, but O'Meara gives the Spartans and their defense the edge. Emons says the Rocks are a solid choice.

Wsld. John Glenn at Walled Lake Central: It would be a major upset if the Rockets (5-1), fresh from their stirring win over North Farmington, should lose to winless Central. The Vikings (0-6) have lost to fellow Lakes tri-leaders North and Stevenson by a combined 71-0 the last two weeks. Picks — Supposedly weaker opponents (the Minnesota Twins, for example) can rise to the occasion, but Glenn suffers no letdown.

Farm Harrison at Northville: Harrison (6-0) has whipped its four division opponents, three by shutout. The combined score against those foes is 143-15. So now the Hawks play last-place Northville (1-5). The Mustangs have given other teams trouble at times, but it's unlikely they can do the same to Harrison. Picks — The Hawks go into the Western Lakes championship game unbeaten.

Garden City at Romulus: The host Eagles are competing for the first time in the South Central Conference and taking their lumps from the likes of Ann Arbor Pioneer and Adrian. Garden City (0-6) has played a difficult schedule, too. Picks — The Chargers' string of bad luck comes to an end.

Wayne Memorial at Trenton: The Zebras (4-2) are just a game ahead of Trenton (2-4) in the Wolverine A League. The Trojans don't have one of their usual powerhouse teams, but it still held undefeated league-leading Fordson to a field goal in a 3-0 loss Saturday. Picks — It's rare when Trenton is picked to upset another team, but that's what it will be based on records, says O'Meara. The Zebras get a vote of confidence from Emons, however.

Harper Woods at Clarenceville: Not so long ago, Harper Woods (3-3) had one of the weakest programs in the state, but the Pioneers are playing respectable, .500 football. But Harper Woods is still no match for the Trojans (4-2), who could have a big night if things go right. Picks — The smart money says Clarenceville.

Redford Thurston at Taylor Center, 4 p.m.: The Eagles enter week No. 7 of the high school football season still looking for win No. 1. Victory eluded Thurston (0-6) in a 19-7 loss to Taylor Kennedy, and the Eagles will try their luck against another Taylor school this week. Picks — The Rams have a losing record at 2-4, but the Eagles are apt to remain winless.

Lutheran Wsld. at Cardinal Mooney: The host Mount Clemens team should not be confused with Youngstown (Ohio) Cardinal Mooney. That would be sending David out against Goliath. But the Warriors (2-3) have fared well in their first season. Picks — It may not have the reputation of its Ohio namesake, but Mooney gets the nod.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all 1 p.m. unless noted)

North Farmington at Farmington: After suffering its first lost, North can gain a share of the Lakes crown with a successful rebound effort. Farmington's lone victory was over Walled Lake Central. Depending on the outcome of this weekend's action, the Raiders could still end up in the WLAA championship game and/or the Class A playoffs. Picks — Ben Franklin once said: "The best offense is a good defense." "Didn't he say that? Anyway," the Patriots are the choice.

Redford Union at Dearborn, 1:30 p.m.: Both teams are tied for third place in the Northwest Suburban League, and one team will have it all to itself after this game. Dearborn (3-3) has the better overall record, but the Panthers (1-5) have played the tougher non-league schedule. Picks — RU puts one in the win column, in O'Meara's judgment, but Emons likes the Pioneers in this one.

Catholic Central at Harper Wds. Notre Dame, 2 p.m.: The Shamrocks (5-1) face the task of getting emotionally ready to play again after their big victory over top-ranked Brother Rice. The Fighting Irish (2-3) could present a problem if CC experiences a letdown. Picks — The Shamrocks worked too hard to get ahead, only to give it up the next week.

Bishop Borgess at Warren DeLaSalle (7:30 p.m. at Roseville Memorial Field): The Spartans (3-3) defeated Bishop Gallagher 14-3 last week for their first Central Division win. DeLaSalle (4-2) leads Borgess by one game in the division. Picks — The Spartans will be even with the Pilots after this game if O'Meara is correct, but DLS gets the nod from Emons.

St. Agatha at Redford St. Mary's (7:30 p.m. at Redford Union's Kraft Field): RSM is in its first season as a member of the Catholic League's C-Section. The Aggies (2-4) were blanked by first-place Waterford Our Lady 21-0 last week. Picks — St. Agatha finds the going a little more to its liking.

S'craft women receive nation's top ranking

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Nothing seems out of reach for Schoolcraft College's womens soccer team.

The Lady Ocelots have overcome a lack of depth (17 players on the roster), injuries (currently four of the 17 are sidelined) and the absence of a proven goalkeeper to not just keep their heads above water, but above everyone else in the nation.

That's right — SC is No. 1!

The Lady Ocelots proved it in a tournament at Nassau (N.J.) CC last weekend. The top four teams in the NJCAA were on hand, including No. 1 Farmingdale (N.Y.) CC, which earlier in the week had lost to No. 3 Monroe CC 3-1.

Monroe and SC met in Saturday's first game and it proved to be a dandy. The Lady Ocelots came back from the brink of defeat, tying the game with just 10 seconds left on a Jennifer Flowers goal and going on to beat Monroe in an overtime shootout for a 3-2 win.

SUNDAY'S MATCH with Farmingdale was much easier for SC — a 5-2 triumph that most certainly should propel the team to the top of the NJCAA rankings. It is believed to be the first time an SC team has ever been ranked No. 1.

"They were playing real well," was coach Nick O'Shea's description of his team's success last weekend. "They came into the tournament knowing if they won both games they would come back No. 1. They had two days to reach an immediate goal. And they played so hard."

The match with Monroe was a classic back-and-forth struggle throughout. SC dominated the early minutes and grabbed a 1-0 lead when Laurie McLaughlan put one in the net.

BUT MONROE tied it late in the half and then — even though the Lady Ocelots were dominating — Monroe went ahead with a quick strike down the field. With time running out, O'Shea shifted Flowers to a striker position and added forward Kelly Holzwart to the attack.

The move worked when Flowers got control of the ball 18 yards away and sent a drive into the corner of the net to knot the game at 2-2 in the closing seconds.

Two 10-minute overtimes solved nothing, prompting a five-shot shootout. Monroe connected on its first two penalty kicks, but Mary Kay Hussey (shooting second) and Jamie Kubacki (shooting fourth) tied it for the Lady Ocelots to force a sudden death shootout.

Monroe, shooting second, had a chance to win it on its fifth, sixth and seventh shots but failed. Its fifth attempt went wide and SC keeper Amy Weber made saves on shots six and seven.

LISA HYSKO won it for SC on the eighth shot. Monroe's attempt to tie sailed over the bar.

The win did not come cheaply for the Lady Ocelots. Weber suffered a severe wrist sprain and is expected to be out 10 days. McLaughlan re-injured her knee; her status is uncertain.

Neither played against Farmingdale Sunday, but SC was in command anyway. Flowers — who finished the weekend with four goals — scored twice in the opening half and Jennifer Huegli added a goal to give the Lady Ocelots a 3-1 lead at the intermission.

Kubacki and Flowers added goals in the second half to keep SC in command. Sue Abdilla filled in for Weber in the net.

The victories boosted SC's record to 8-1-2, with another big weekend trip coming up. The Lady Ocelots travel to St. Louis to play Florissant Valley CC Saturday and Meramec CC Sunday. There's a strong possibility four injured players — including McLaughlan and Weber — and Huegli will not play.

Turnovers were factor in CC victory over Rice

By Marty Budner
staff writer

It seems the most common fear among high school football coaches entering a big game is mistakes. Whether it be penalties, fumbles or interceptions, coaches dread the possibility of a turnover costing them the game.

Al Fracassa is that way. The veteran Birmingham Brother Rice coach constantly preaches the value of a mistake-free football.

Those fears were realized by Fracassa in the worst possible way for his Warriors Sunday in the 43rd annual Boys Bowl game, played before a large crowd at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium.

Brother Rice, on its first play of the second overtime period, committed its fifth turnover of the game. A botched backfield handoff resulted in a fumble recovered by Catholic Central's Chris Lemanski.

On CC's next play, Pete Elezovic booted a 27-yard field goal that gave the Shamrocks the emotional 10-7 double overtime victory. Catholic Central's fans and players celebrated at midfield while Brother Rice's players, dejectedly walked off the field to their locker room.

It was CC's third straight victory over Rice. The Shamrocks now lead the series between the teams, 14-11 with one tie.

AFTERWARDS, Fracassa talked about the turnovers that cost Rice its first loss in six games. The Warriors uncharacteristically lost four fumbles and had an intercepted pass.

football

"Mistakes usually decide a game like this and that's what happened today," Fracassa said. "We lost (to Catholic Central) by 7-3 scores the last couple of years. We've been suffering the same kind of (close) losses the last three years.

"But we figured it would be a game like that," he said. "They've got a good defensive team and we have a good defensive team. Our offenses didn't particularly move the ball."

INDEED, THE defenses dominated as the teams struggled through four quarters of scoreless football. Catholic Central had only 70 total yards while Brother Rice managed just 136 yards.

Catholic Central had the greater scoring opportunities because of the Rice turnovers. In fact, after a fourth-quarter Rice fumble, Elezovic could have won the game in regulation time but his attempted 39-yard field goal sailed just wide.

Each team scored on its first overtime possession.

Catholic Central's Lee Krueger scored on a 1-yard plunge and Rice workhorse Jason Wolf scored from 3 yards out. Elezovic and Bob Fekete booted successfully kicked the extra points.

BROTHER RICE had first possession of the second overtime and fumbled the ball away. Elezovic didn't make a mistake in kicking his second field goal of the season.

The win not only cost Brother Rice its undefeated season, but also its No. 1 state ranking. Catholic Central had been ranked No. 1 earlier this year before falling to Ann Arbor Pioneer.

But CC coach Tom Mach said his team wasn't worried about rankings.

"When it comes to a game like this, ratings don't mean a thing," said Mach, whose team, like Rice, is 5-1 overall. "And I'm sure Al (Fracassa) would tell you the same thing. We don't worry about being No. 1.

"This game is always a great battle," he said. "The satisfaction is not in the rankings, but winning the Boys Bowl."

Despite the loss, Brother Rice remains in the hunt for a Catholic League Central Division championship and a Class A playoff berth. The Warriors play Saturday at Birmingham Groves against Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

"You just go out and keep doing the best you can," Fracassa said. "Like Sparky Anderson says, we're not going to die."

COUNTRY DAY 42, OAK PARK 0: Detroit Country Day School scored in all four quarters en route to this lopsided victory over Oak Park Saturday.

Regional tennis

Salem's Missy Smith uses a two-handed smash as she returns volley in her No. 1 singles match with Adrieen Edwards of Northville, which was host for the Class A regional. Smith, the No. 4 seed, defeated Edwards but lost to Walled Lake Central's Jackie Browne in the semifinals. North Farmington won the regional and will send its team to Saturday's state meet. In the Western Lakes meet, Canton's Alissa Huth won the No. 3 singles title, and Michelle Khurana and Sandy Bajer were runners-up at No. 1 doubles. Salem's Janet Turner was second at No. 2 singles.

Smoking poses bigger threat than AIDS — doctor

AP — Cigarette smoking is a worse epidemic than AIDS and physicians need to resort to unusual means, including sarcasm, to persuade American youths to avoid it, the head of a nationwide doctors' group says.

Dr. John W. Richards, president of the 5,000-member organization Doctors Ought to Care, told the American Academy of Family Physicians convention recently that tobacco smoking is an overlooked disease, not a moral issue.

"If you take all the people who died from AIDS from the day it was discovered until now, you'd have the number who were killed by tobacco in under three weeks," he said.

Richards said advertisements promoting cigarettes and other unhealthy products are "cannibalizing our young people."

To counter those ads, his "DOC" group created posters, T-shirts and billboard messages that mockingly promote "Barfboros," "Wimpstons" and "Emphysema Slims" — "You've coughed up long enough, baby."

RICHARDS TOLD about 1,000 people at the annual convention that trying to educate youths about health doesn't work, and statistics are boring to them. Americans are bombarded by a cigarette ad about once every five minutes during their waking hours, and physicians should join in the effort to turn the tables on Madison Avenue, he said.

"If I can show that instead of making you look macho, smoking actually causes impotence, which it does, then I might have a chance" to persuade youths not to smoke, Richards said.

"If I can show that instead of making you look glamorous, smoking actually makes you look like an idiot — that you burn holes in your clothes, you smell, you have zoo breath, you have yellow teeth — then I have a chance."

'If you take all the people who died from AIDS from the day it was discovered until now, you'd have the number who were killed by tobacco in under three weeks.'

— John Richards
physician

In addition to being president of DOC, Richards is an assistant professor of family medicine at the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta. DOC was founded in 1978 by Dr. Alan Blum of the same college, who remains chairman and is at the convention.

The doctors' organization also takes on products and ads that promote drinking and drug use. It turned the slogan "Miller Time" into "Killer Time" and has a billboard depicting a boat submerging alongside the words "Cutty Sank — People, like ships, sail better when they're not loaded." Another ad says: "VD: The gift that keeps on giving."

BUT ITS primary objective is to ridicule, satirize and parody the healthy, adventurous image projected by cigarette makers.

To DOC, Benson & Hedges is "Benson and Heart Attack," country fresh Salem is "Country Fresh Arsenic," "More" is "More-on," and Virginia Slims became "Emphysema Slims" or "Virginia Slime."

"Red Man" chewing tobacco became "Dead Man Chew," and the ad "I smoke for taste" was transformed into "I smoke for smell," showing a man with a cigarette up his nose.

Richards said the group's effectiveness is hard to measure, although he noted that cigarette use is down considerably in the past decade. But he said the unusual billboards never fail to grab motorists' attention. "We just count the skidmarks" to find out how much they are noticed.

The proposed Domino's Farms tower is shown with the Prairie House (headquarters) low-rise buildings designed by Gunnar Birkerts, architect, in the style of Frank Lloyd Wright.

Tower to dominate Domino's enclave

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

FEW BUILDINGS WILL generate more comment than the 435-foot tower to be constructed at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor Township. The tower, with a 15-degree pitch or cantilever, slated for completion in 1990, will have a bronze metallic skin, bronze glass enclosures and a copper roof. It will accommodate a penthouse, observation deck, lobby and 330 guest rooms.

The architect, Gunnar Birkerts of Birmingham, said at the announcement meeting at Domino's Farms, "This is a building you will never forget . . . . It's a dynamic sculpture."

He explained that in conventional skyscrapers, the forces go up and down. In the Domino's tower, the forces will go up and over like a cannon ball. Here, he said there will be two dynamic forces — one horizontal, the other vertical — reflecting the concept of Domino's Farms.

The tower is part of a planned $80 million, 400,000-square-foot corporate education conference center, which includes an 18-hole, Arnold Palmer-designed golf course, a 20-acre man-made lake and a low-rise building.

Tom Monaghan, founder, president and chairman of the board of Domino's Pizza, Inc., said of the tower, "I think we're creating a very rare piece of art."

And he is widely recognized for acquiring rare pieces of art, especially when they relate to American architect Frank Lloyd Wright.

HE SAID at the opening of the meeting, "Humanities was my favorite course in college . . . and architecture has been a lifelong passion of mine."

The corporate headquarters is on 300 acres and is being built in four phases. The final construction on Phases I and II, 467,000-square feet of low-rise offices, is almost complete. It is named "Prairie House" after Frank Lloyd Wright's designs (specifically the Robie House of Chicago). It is long and low with broad, overhanging eaves that reflect the terrain of the Midwest.

"The Prairie House was the third attempt at a design for the main headquarters building," said Monaghan. "It's one thing to shoot for the best as I try to do and another to accomplish it."

Birkerts said his challenge from the beginning has been to "keep the architectural balance between the desires of Mr. Monaghan and the architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright. We've taken the Robie House and projected it into the 21st century."

About the tower, he said, "It does not lean, it cantilevers. Buildings that lean are failures. The most extreme cantilever done by Frank Lloyd Wright was a 90 degree cantilever at Falling Water (a home for E.J. Kaufmann of Bear Run, Pa.)."

Monaghan said the entire Domino's Farms project was done "to make a contribution to the community — to have the best architecture in the world. My roots are here, both sides of my family are from here."

THE LOW-RISE BUILDING, which is part of the tower project, will have two 150,000-square-foot stores, meeting rooms, multi-purpose hall, an activities center with indoor tennis courts, a swimming pool, exercise rooms, a 320-seat dining room and a 100-seat gourmet restaurant.

Monaghan said the conference center is intended for use by many organizations and the rooms will be available to individuals on weekends when conferences aren't being held.

Phase III, a low-rise, will house the Domino's Pizza Classic Car Museum, the National Center for the Study of Frank Lloyd Wright, Detroit Tiger Archives, Prairie House Gifts and Domino's Pizza Archives & Special Collections.

When all of the phases are completed, the total square footage of the complex will be more than 1.2 million.

Birkerts, born in Riga, Latvia, in 1925, has won 48 major awards for his projects. He is professor of architecture at the University of Michigan. He designed the law library addition at U-M as well as the IBM Building in Southfield; the Corning Museum of Glass, Corning, N.Y.; the Duluth Public Library; St. Peter' Lutheran Church, Columbus, Ind.; Baldwin Library addition, Birmingham; and the Conservatory of Music Library addition, Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, among others.

Monaghan was born in Ann Arbor in 1937, served in the Marine Corps and attended University of Michigan after his discharge in 1959. He bought his first pizza store in Ypsilanti with $500 in 1960 and built the business into an empire, which includes the Detroit Tigers Baseball Club, which he bought in 1983.

Chamber players hold their own gong show

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Who'd compare a chamber music rehearsal to the floor of the Commodies Market?

Well, for one, John Thurman, cellist.

He, Hart Hollman, violist, Linda Snedden Smith, violinist and Joann Freeman, pianist and artistic director of the American Artists Series, were talking before a rehearsal at Freeman's Bloomfield Hills home.

The American Artists' season opens with a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6. On this particular morning, they had time to spare. The Detroit Symphony Orchestra was on strike and all Artist Series Chamber Players, except Freeman, are DSO musicians.

They, like their audiences, find Freeman's programming challenging as well as exciting. She consistently mixes works in the classical repertoire (this season, Brahms, Mozart, Ravel and Faure) with ones that for one reason or another are obscure.

But, this is a democratic group where everyone has a voice and a vote. So, when they 'read" (sight-read) the unknown music which Freeman, tracker of lost music, has found for them to audition, the comments fly as fast as violin bows.

It is in these "sight-read" run-throughs that the musicians decide if the work has value.

Hollman said, "We read through a ton of music."

"We have our individual gong show," said Thurman and Freeman added with a slow smile, "The sad part of it is that it sometimes takes me two years to find the music."

'We don't take a vote and if it's three to one, the three carries. If there's one dissenter, we try to work it out, talk it over, compromise. I don't try to foist something down a musicians's throat.'

— Joann Freeman, pianist

"And then we gong it," Smith said.

"That's what makes this series so unique, it may be the only one of its kind in the country," Hollman added.

ALL OF THEM AGREED with that and Thurman continued, "You can make a (musical) work better than it seems to be, but there is a line of quality beyond which you don't rescue."

Hollman said sometimes when they decide it's time to gong, Freeman will suggest they keep going and they will find values they didn't sense at first.

Thurman admitted, "My tastes are much wider than when I was a student."

He recalled they had "read" through an obscure oboe quartet by Arthur Bliss and pronounced it " a turkey."

"It sounded like the sound track from an old Lowell Thomas tour movie of the Blue Nile. I'm sure he (Bliss) has written good stuff, but this wasn't it. There are three (surviving) Brahms string quartets. He wrote 23 and torched 20."

On the other hand, all four remembered that the first time they played through a Frank Bridge trio, someone said, "What is this, it isn't even coherent." But, they kept going and Thurman recalled, "By the time we got through, we knew it was a masterpiece."

IT IS DURING THESE rehearsals, amidst flying notes and comments, that the atmosphere parallels that of the Commodies Market.

But once the music for the season is agreed upon, then other challenges have to be met.

"Balance," said Hollman, "is the most difficult — to blend, to sound like one instrument."

He said the sounds of their instruments must match and the approach to the music must be the same for all the musicians — cutting, soft, gentle or vigorous.

"That's what makes it so much fun, it's not like work."

They reported the give and take which they relish as members of the American Artists Series Chamber Players isn't possible in a 100-plus member symphony orchestra.

"We're friends and we enjoy making music together," Hollman said.

Freeman added, "We don't take a vote and if it's three to one, the three carries. If there's one dissenter, we try to work it out, talk it over, compromise. I don't try to foist something down a musician's throat."

AS A RESULT, these musicians, along with others who frequently perform with them — such as Donald Baker, oboe and Erwin Monroe, flute, Ronald Fischer, violin — have formed a close camaraderie that brings a special level of vitality and excitement to their performances.

The AAS Chamber Players will be performing at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6; 3 p.m. Sunday, March 6; and at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 1.

The Chestnut Brass will be the guests for the concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 24; and Douglas Campbell, back by popular demand, will bring his program, "Shakespeare by Request" at 3 p.m., Sunday, April 10. All programs are given in Kingswood/Cranbrook School Auditorium, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills.

For information on series and or individual tickets, call 851-5044 or 647-2230.

Music Club soloist

Schoolcraft College alumna Mary Morgan will appear in concert Wednesday, Oct. 21, under auspices of the college's Music Club. Open to the public free, the concert will be held from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Room F30I in the Forum Building. Morgan has been heard in opera productions, world premieres and as a soloist in recital and concert performances in Europe, Canada and the U.S. Born in Detroit, she attended Livonia schools and graduated from Churchill High School. Morgan has joined the Schoolcraft College faculty this year and will give private lessons in voice.

David Messing

I'M TRYING to buy a computer for our store. t-r-y-i-n-g that is. Every sales representative that comes to me assumes I know something about computers and brags about the company he or she represents.

After they leave I stand there with a full-color catalog in my hand, a toll-free number and the business card of a person I never met before but who called me Dave like he knew me forever. You see, terms like floppy disks, bite, bytes and hard drive etc., literally mean nothing to me.

I think the last guy said, "This computer is compatible with IBM. It has a hard-drive overload, a high-resolution output, and when coupled with our dot matrix high-speed something or other, your total output capabilities are unending." With my eyes crossed, I just say "Oh wow, that's really something." I need someone that will say things like "Here — see this button" or "Here's the on off button, it makes the screen show a bunch of numbers ... can you say numbers Mr. Messing" Hey, I wonder ... Mr. Rogers could show me a computer.

Well, in my world of art, I can sling some pretty heavy jargon myself. Often I make the same mistake that the computer reps are making with me. Here are a few names or terms that you may want to acquaint yourself with — especially if you would like to enter the three dimensional world of sculpture. Artone clay, latex, hydrostone, Super X and algenate.

WHEN IT COMES to sculpture, I find that even amateur artists have very little trouble working in three dimensions opposed to two-dimensional canvas or paper. Indeed, for many, it is much easier to simply make the object in its three-dimensional state than to create the illusion of the object on a two-dimensional canvas or paper. At any rate, it's always easier to sculpt the piece than it is to cast it.

Casting means making a mold of the original (clay, wax, wood, etc.) piece and pouring into that cavity a more permanent material. I like to work with "Artone," which is a brand name for a permanently pliable clay. There are many brand names, most are good, but in my opinion Artone is great. However, mold making and casting is, as my sculpture students will testify, a long and involved process.

When we, at the Art Store & More, make a mold, we use pure latex rubber. My students will also testify that latex rubber smells like a goat farm, but once your latex mold is completed, you can cast any number of pieces out of one mold.

We sell a red or pink latex, which is good for making molds because you can better see each layer of rubber as you build wall thickness. White latex, along with red, is a pure latex and you can color it with acrylic paint. White or pink latex is great for making rubber masks. You simply make the face in clay. Then make a plaster cast of the clay. Then paint in the plaster mold whatever color of latex you desire. When the latex cures, you simply pull out your mask and paint it. Masks and molds require about five to seven coats. Coats No 3 to No. 7 each require an overnight drying time.

WHAT IF YOU JUST want to do some little sculpture and don't want to bother with clay, rubber molds, plaster and etc? Blow the trumpets and sound the arrival of, super sculpey. Super sculpey is a very pliable type of synthetic clay that will not harden by air. It will do anything you want it to. Super sculpey will take and hold minute details and textures. And here comes the best part — you bake it in your home oven at 300 degrees. In 15 to 30 minutes your sculpture has not shrunk, has not cracked, and is shatterproof. Now let's say you did a little dog for your mom and everybody in the family wanted one. You could then make a rubber mold of the one finished in super sculpey and cast as many as you need in plaster.

"Plaster — now there's a subject. As soon as you say "plaster," people subvocally finish the sentence with "of Paris." Plaster of Paris is too slow in its setting time and much too soft. Molding plaster No 1 is as hard as you will ever need. But when I said, "cast in plaster," I meant casting plaster like hydrostone which cures to a rock-hard surface that can be painted or colored. Hydrostone is unbelievably hard, but they just came out with a hydrostone Super X. Hey, this stuff is super dense and the casting hardening approaches that of concrete.

Let's say you want to make a mold of an object or small art piece. You want perfect detail and you want it fast. What do you use? Algimate. This is that cruddy rubber junk that the dentist shoves in your mouth as you sit there trying not to gag as it oozes down your throat. Well, on artwork I don't mind it at all, except the peppermint smell, which does bring to mind some dental trauma.

Dave Messing has been an art teacher for 10 years. He is the owner of the Art Store & More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia.

'Pirating' some fun

Light Opera season opens this weekend

AFTER A VERY successful 1986-87 season, the Light Opera of Michigan will begin this year with the Gilbert & Sullivan musical, "The Pirates of Penzance." The rollicking musical will appear on the stage of the Smith Theater, on the campus of Oakland Community College at Orchard Lake Road and I-696. The season opens Thursday, Oct. 17.

A change in locations is the only major production change in the company, said David Pulice, artistic director. The group will no longer performing at the Marquis Theater in Northville.

The fast-growing company "seeks out the best professional talent that southeastern Michigan has to offer" in casting its productions, Pulice said.

This affords the theater-goer the opportunity to witness first-class entertainment at an easily accessible location that possesses wonderful acoustics, exceptional lighting capabilities, and every seat as good as the next.

HEADING THE CAST of "Pirates" in the role of the Major-General is David Jackson. A native of Michigan, Jackson has just returned from Colorado where he sang with the Colorado Opera Festival, Colorado Music Theater Festival and the Denver Chamber Orchestra.

In Colorado, Jackson learned this role under the direction of John Reed, the internationally known lead patter character in the D'Oyly Carte company in England.

His performance reflects this training, Pulice said.

The romantic leads will be Mabel and Frederic, sung by Ruth Lapeyre and David Troiano.

Lapeyre, who was seen as Susan in the Light Opera's production of "Desert Song," has an extensive operatic background, has soloed with many major symphony orchestras, has been a regional finalist in the Metropolitan Opera competition five times and won Maccabee's last vocal competition.

Troiano is a former winner of the AIMS musical competition and has appeared with the Michigan Opera Theater, Papagano Opera Chamber Company, and several other major companies. His last performance with the Light Opera was as Count Almaviva in last year's production of "The Barber of Seville." Troiano has also worked with Reed in Denver, as the tenor lead in many Gilbert & Sullivan productions.

IN THE SWASHBUCKLING role of the Pirate King is Mark Byars, who was last seen in the lead role of Captain Paul Fontaine in the Light Opera's production of "Desert Song" and as Lord Mountararat in its production of "Iolanthe."

Others in the cast are: Terry Bucher, in the role of the police sergeant; Rosemary DiDomizio, as Ruth; Tobin Hissong as Samuel; Denise Love, Chris Jones and Debi Sule Bardy as Mabel's three sisters, Edith, Kate and Isabel, respectively.

The show is being staged by Pulice, with Donald A. Daniels as conductor. Daniels recently conducted the Light Opera's production of "The Desert Song."

All tickets are $10, with a $2 discount for senior citizens and students with valid IDs. Subscriptions for the remainder of the season, which will run through May, are available at a discount rate by contacting the LOOM Opera Lite, P.O. Box 405, Dearborn 48121.

For ticket information, call the Smith Theater box office at 471-7700.

Monte Nagler

The air is chilled, football season is here and the leaves are beginning to change. Yes, fall is upon us and seldom is there a better time of year for photography.

Fall is truly a color spectacle, a painter's palette, and you with your camera become the artist.

Fall offers an abundance of picture taking opportunities and you don't have to go far from home either. Fall colors can be found everywhere as they creep gently southward. The countryside is dotted with lovely roads and trails that display rainbows of vibrant hues.

Here are some tips on how you can get better fall pictures.

Try to shoot in the morning or late afternoon. These times will produce maximum shadows and textures and will make your shots look more alive. Try to position yourself to get back or sidelighting.

Use whatever lens suits you best, keeping in mind that a wide angle lens gives a greater expanse to your shot, whereas a telephoto will "move you in close" to isolate a particular tree or capture a splash of color in a cluster of fallen leaves.

Do you have a macro lens or set of close-up filters? If so, you can highlight the veins in an individual leaf or detail any other intimate subject.

If you've been hesitant about trying slide film, now's the time to start. Slides will produce the most vivid colors.

Set the ASA about ¼ stop higher than recommended by the film manufacturer. Doing this will increase color saturation.

For black and white lovers, don't think the fall colors won't give you pleasing results. Under an overcast sky to reduce contrast, you'll be able to obtain exciting autumn pictures with a full tonal range.

Any filters? If it's a blue sky day, use a polarizer. The sky will darken considerably, making the vibrant colors of the foliage stand out even more.

As always, follow good rules of composition. Place your main subject off center for a more dynamic feel in your shot. "Frame" your pictures with overhanging branches.

Place foreground subjects in the viewfinder especially when using a wide angle lens. Use roads, streams and fences to your advantage, as "lead-in" lines.

Be aware of other fall picture taking opportunities. Cider mill activities, Halloween festivities and patches of pumpkins are a few. Turn on your photographic vision on a quiet drive through the country and you'll be pleasantly surprised at all the picture possibilities you'll see.

987, Monte Nagler

Real Estate
Nancy Ann Kennelly
REALTOR
WHAT GOES WITH HOUSE?
Real estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all of the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. The problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a fixture and does pass with the real estate.
There are three usual tests which must be satisfied. Has the personal property been permanently annexed to the real estate? Is it intended to become part of the real estate? And finally, what is the local custom? Usual fixtures might include shades, heaters, ranges, screens, storm windows, lighting fixtures, etc.
It is important that the seller spell out specifically in his sales agreement exactly what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate. This will save misunderstanding at the closing and sometimes save a sale.
If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop on at KENNELLY REALTY - 19000 Middlebelt - Ste 201 E. Livonia, MI 48152 - 471-0404. We're here to help!

Aldingbrooke

Superlative Living In The Hills of West Bloomfield

NEW lavishly large 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace ranch dwellings of unsurpassed size that are utterly extraordinary — up to 2,800 square feet and every amenity: private entries, attached garages, fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, designer kitchens with separate breakfast areas, master bedroom suites with dressing area, double vanities, double closets and walk-in closets too, in-residence laundry and storage, full carpeting, central air conditioning, patio or balcony.

Truly resort-like recreational facilities include oversized pool in a spectacular wooded setting, a manor home-like clubhouse — ideal for private parties — tennis courts and, of course, a 24-hour manned gatehouse with package reception services. There is even a private lending library. All on over 130 incomparable private acres for estate-like living.

Unquestionably the standard for beauty and luxury. For their size, design and breathtaking setting, YOU MUST SEE the 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of ALDINGBROOKE.

Travel Maple Road to Drake Road; turn north and drive through the woods, to the summit of the hill, and enter ALDINGBROOKE through the manned gatehouse on your left.

Note: Limited number of furnished short term executive rentals available
