World Peace is the theme for this year's student competiton in the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular which opens today. Shown here are Oakland Community College culinary arts students working on a major piece which utilizes 65 blocks of ice to create a peaceful underwater life scene. For information on the student competition, which includes high school students from Canton as well, see Page 2A of today's edition.

Judge's ruling on key issues in murder trial due Monday

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Two youths face open murder charges in the death of a 13-year-old Canton Township girl. The judge will rule whether to try them as adults.

A Washtenaw Circuit judge is expected to decide by Monday whether two Ypsilanti Township youths charged in the death of Mary Anne Hulbert of Canton Township should be tried as adults.

Washtenaw Circuit Judge Henry Conlin also is scheduled to decide Jan. 11 whether the taped confession of one of the boys, Christopher Machecek, is admissable.

Machecek and Steven Stamper, both 17, face open murder charges. They've been imprisoned in Washtenaw County Jail since June, when Washtenaw County Probate Judge Judith Wood ordered them held without bond after a 17-week evidentiary hearing.

Wood also ruled that the two be bound over to circuit court.

Conlin heard appeals last month from the youths' court-appointed attorneys who argued that Wood erred in ordering circuit court trials.

Stamper and Machecek were juveniles at the time of Hulbert's murder in December 1986.

Machecek's circuit court trial is scheduled for March 7. Stamper's is slated to begin late next month. Not guilty pleas were entered at the arraignments of Stamper and Machecek, both 16 when Hulbert was killed.

Wholesale water rate increase to raise local bills

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Wholesale water and sewer rate increases on the order of 5 percent have been proposed for the city of Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth Township.

Those rates, as recommended by the Detroit Water and Sewage Department, would take effect July 1 if approved in a two-step hearing process by the Detroit Board of Water Commissioners and the Detroit City Council.

Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor, and William Graham, finance director for the city of Plymouth, projected that the wholesale rate increases will be passed on to consumers in their communities.

John Spencer, Canton's finance director, speculated that that board will continue to absorb the wholesale increases through a local surplus water and sewer account of about $15 million.

THE PROPOSED water rates by community with current rates in parenthesis are:

City of Plymouth — $4.69 per 1,000 cubic feet ($4.46).

Canton — $5.84 per 1,000 cubic feet ($5.55).

Plymouth Township — $5.90 per 1,000 cubic feet ($5.62).

Detroit recommends raising wholesale sewage rates to $4.17 per 1,000 cubic feet of water used from the current $3.95 for all three communities.

(A cubic foot of water is about 7½ gallons.)

Wholesale water and sewer rates from Detroit make up only a portion of water bills sent to individual consumers.

All three municipalities tack on additional charges to Detroit's wholesale rates to maintain and operate local water and sewer systems.

The city of Plymouth and Canton also include bond debt retirement costs, which financed construction of their systems, in bills to consumers.

Additionally, Wayne County charges communities to maintain connector sewer lines.

Currently, when all water and sewer charges are added, Plymouth Township users pay $13.77 per thousand cubic feet, Canton consumers $18.56 and city of Plymouth users $24.94.

Detroit's Water and Sewage Department estimates that Detroit households use on average about 1,333 cubic feet — or almost 10,000 gallons — of water per month.

THE LAST TIME individual consumers received a rate increase in Plymouth Township was March 1983, in Canton, October 1984, and in the city, last July.

Even if the wholesale increases proposed for later this year were to take effect, sewage rates still would be less than charged three years ago to all three municipalities, said William Carney, financial manager of Detroit's Water and Sewage Department.

Proposed wholesale water increases this year are still lower than those charged to the city of Plymouth three years ago and to Canton two years ago, he added.

Reduced sewage rates were made possible the last few years by cutting operating costs, Carney said.

"But of course there's an end to that," he said. "You can only pull so many rabbits out of the hat. The trend has reversed. Costs are up.

"With water, it's a bit more complex," Carney added. "The formula is based on 11 variables."

Major factors include how much water communities buy, amount used at peak hours, and distance and elevation water must be pumped.

Car rolls off blocks, crushes youth working below

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

David Rea, 16, of Canton Township was an 11th grader at Plymouth Canton High School, where he was leader of the stage crew.

A student at Centennial Educational Park died Monday at C.S. Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

David L. Rea, 16, of Canton Township was fatally injured while working underneath his car at his parents' home on Brookline.

Canton Police said Rea's Ford Mustang rolled off the blocks it was hoisted on, crushing the youth's chest. Rea was taken to Canton Oakwood Hospital about 4:30 p.m. Saturday, then transferred by helicopter to Mott.

He died at 8:45 a.m. Monday. Rea would have celebrated his 17th birthday Jan. 28.

REA WAS A popular and well-liked 11th grader at Plymouth Canton High School, where he was leader of the stage crew. He was an outstanding student in both electronics and computer design and repair, said his teachers and counselors.

A drummer, Rea also was associated with the Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps.

"David had been working for several years as a crew leader," said Jim Kaiser, electronics instructor and auditorium manager at Centennial Educational Park.

"I put him in the most responsible position a student can hold."

Because the school's auditorium often is used for community functions, "David had to deal with the public, clients and management. He had to be technically competent in lighting and audio.

"David was one of my electronics students, and he excelled consistently. He was an A and B student, mostly A. He had found his niche. I saw real potential," said Kaiser.

David had a "good sense of humor and was very personable," he added.

"There's a tendency to sugar coat a person at a time like this. But all that's being said is all quite accurate, as witnessed by the fact that he held the top position on the stage crew and that so many people cared about him. The technicians are placing a memorial plaque in the auditorium booth. They wanted to honor him in a permanent way."

ETHIE HAZELWOOD, area coordinator at CEP, described Rea as a "very nice young man. He was polite and sweet."

Pat Myers was Rea's counselor. She said Rea "was always very happy, personable and friendly. He got along well with adults."

Funeral services are scheduled for 3 p.m. today at Schrader Funeral Home with burial at Riverside Cemetery. Officiating will be the Rev. Headley Thweatt.

Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of the donor's choice.

Rea is survived by his mother, Wanda S. Rea; sister, Penny Parrish; and brothers, Danny and Ted, all of Canton.

Man returns to pay back clinic, is arrested

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A man suspected of stealing drugs from Canton's McAuley Health Building returned last weekend to pay what he said he owed, according to a pharmacist who detained him until police arrived.

Frank Monsour, 36, of Redford Township was arraigned on one count of armed robbery Monday, Jan. 4, before 35th District Judge John McDonald.

Bond was set at $300,000 cash. A plea of not guilty was entered on his behalf.

He's also linked to robberies in Livonia and Redford.

The FBI has a warrant for Monsour's arrest involving a robbery at Standard Federal Bank on Farmington Road in Livonia, said John Anthony, FBI special agent.

REDFORD TOWNSHIP Police plan to hold a lineup next week in connection with two armed robberies at Metro All Care Pharmacy on Grand River and Traditions Ice Cream, according to Redford police.

The McAuley pharmacist said Monsour approached him about 5 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 2, and handed him three $20 bills. He said: "This is what I owe you for last week," the pharmacist told Canton police.

The pharmacist said he recognized the man and tried to detain him after he pressed a holdup button. The pharmacist said he'd have to check the computer to see how much was owed.

"The subject said 'Hurry up, I'm out of here in 30 seconds,'" Canton Police information officer Dave Boljesic said. "The man became nervous and tried to leave."

The pharmacist, another employee and a customer held him until police arrived.

"He was resisting violently," Boljesic said.

More than $200 and three types of drugs were reportedly stolen from the pharmacy about 5 p.m. Dec. 21 when a man told the McAuley pharmacist he had dynamite in a manila envelope he was carrying.

A Canton officer was responding to the robbery report when the squad car he was driving collided with a Chevrolet driven by a 17-year-old Canton girl. No citation was issued.

IN A SEPARATE case, the FBI has a warrant for Monsour's arrest in connection with a Dec. 8 robbery at Standard Federal Savings on Farmington Road in Livonia, Anthony said. The robber left with just less than $2,000.

About 3:30 p.m. a man approached a teller and asked for a $50 dollar bill in exchange for 50 $1 bills. The exchange was made and the man reached under his coat and simulated having a weapon, Anthony said.

"He said if you don't want me to use this give me the money," said Anthony.

Culinary arts students create tasteful sculptures

Culinary arts students at nearby community colleges have a special assignment this week: to create a world peace theme in ice for the sixth annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, which runs through Jan. 17 in Kellogg Park.

Creative ideas have been pooled, the display defined and blueprints and templates finished for the sculptures by students of Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills, Monroe Community College, and Macomb Community in Mt. Clemons.

"This is their big chance to create major sculptures and work with the huge blocks of ice at the same time," said Ted Wakar, an instructor at Schoolcraft. The 10 students in his Saturday class plan to capture the theme of peace in the tranquility of a wildlife setting, featuring birds, small critters and other creatures in a natural setting, complete with rock outcroppings.

Using about 40 blocks of ice (each weighing about 440 pounds), Wakar's students will create the display, which will be about 12 feet tall, 15 feet long, and four feet wide. It will be on display this weekend.

Wakar's students, who have been involved in the festival since its inception in 1982, also will carve some individual sculptures, which he will incorporate into a major display.

AN ILLUMINATED world globe will be the creation of the students of Macomb Community College.

Using about 50 blocks of ice, they will carve the globe of the world and outfit it with interior green and blue lights. Set on a graduated pyramid base and featuring flags from around the world, the globe also will include trees and doves — symbols of peace.

"It will really be spectacular at night," said instructor Jeff Wolf, who will bring 20 students into Plymouth to create the massive sculpture and participate in the student competition.

In previous events, the Macomb students have created a bridge with a train carrying animals and a 30-foot Statue of Liberty. Last year, they entered a carousel sculpture made of 160 blocks of ice.

"I encourage my students to participate in this," said Wolf. "It's the best way to get experience with so many blocks."

OCC STUDENTS will use 65 blocks of ice to create a peaceful underwater life scene.

"It will be like looking at an aquarium," said instructor Jim Stawara. The sculpture will include fish, seaweed and other denizens of the deep, along with ducks swimming on the top.

Stawara said that between 35-40 students will be involved in the creation of the piece with instructors on hand to offer advice.

An oversized chess set was the sculpture created by the OCC students last year. In the past, they also have created a dragon and carved three antique autos.

Perhaps the most timely peace theme sculpture will be the work of students from Monroe Community College. Based on the recent summit talks, the students plan to create a replica of the White House and Kremlin, flags of both nations — which may be done with colored ice — a mountain representing the summit, and a pedestal with an open-book treaty document. This piece will be created for display the last weekend of the festival.

IN PREPARATION for these major sculptures, the instructors have taught the basics of ice carving as part of their culinary arts training.

All the community colleges offer two-year degrees in culinary arts. According to Kevin Thomas, first-year instructor at Monroe, the students see demonstrations, filmstrips, learn how to use the tools, and practice, practice, practice.

"Events like the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular give the students the chance to practice their techniques and style in a big way."

In addition to their participation in the major display sculpture, many of the same students will participate in the student competitions scheduled for 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. They will compete for scholarships, merchandise from Highland Appliance and ice sculpture tools.

Sculptors on the high school level also will display their talents.

Under the direction of Richard Teeple, students from Livonia Public Schools will create about 20 ice carvings from five tons of ice. These creations will line the streets of downtown Plymouth.

The art department of Plymouth Salem High, under the supervision of Chris Darby, also will create individual carvings for the event.

Ice fest open house

Visitors to the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular are invited to come in out of the cold for hot cider and folk music in the Arbor Health Building, 990 Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey, Plymouth, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10. Musical entertainment will be provided from 1-5 p.m. both days by Chris and Bill Barton of Ann Arbor who will offer Irish and American folk music on a variety of instruments, including a hammered dulcimer, banjo, fiddle, recorder, lap dulcimer and guitar. The Bartons have performed numerous times in The Ark.

Key murder case rulings due Monday

Jan. 7, 1987, ending a search that began Dec. 30 when the student attending Stevenson Junior High in Westland failed to return home.

According to testimony, the youths have blamed each other for the 13-year-old's death.

Hulbert thought she was pregnant by one of the boys. She was taken by Machecek and Stamper to a field where the boys intended to shoot rifles into the air, scaring Hulbert enough to induce a miscarriage. An autopsy showed the seventh grader was not pregnant.

Circuit court trials were to have begun last October. They were adjourned because it took longer than expected to transcribe 5,000 pages of testimony presented during the probate court hearing, said Norman Fell, Stamper's attorney.

CONLIN'S IMMINENT ruling, said Fell, will answer several questions:

- whether Washtenaw County sheriff's deputies acted properly in questioning the boys after the shooting;
- whether sheriff's deputies had the right to tape interviews with the boys; and
- whether the youths immediately should have been turned over to the juvenile court system.

"If, in fact, the police didn't follow the law in obtaining the interviews, their statements are the product of an illegal action," and therefore inadmissable, he said.

"The prosecution is arguing that the boys were not held against their will at all," added Fell.

Conlin also will decide whether there is probable cause to believe a crime was committed and that the suspects committed it.

Dr. Bernard Naylor, a Washtenaw County deputy medical examiner, testified at last summer's hearing that Hulbert died after a bullet ruptured her heart. Using his own body, Naylor indicated where seven bullets entered Hulbert. The teenager was shot in the left collarbone, left shoulder, chest, and in her right and left side, Naylor testified.

Scratch marks and leaves and twigs stuck to Hulbert's skin led Naylor to believe her body had been dragged through a field.

"The whole case is a tragedy," said Fell. "Stamper is just a kid — being in jail is not easy. His history isn't any better or worse than a lot of others."

In late November, a security guard noticed that a man was acting suspiciously outside the bank.

The man got in a car with a bag over its license plates, Anthony said. The security guard followed him, waited until the man left the car and copied the license number. It was traced to Monsour.

The information was given to the FBI and linked to the robbery committed Dec. 8.

A preliminary examination date to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial charging Monsour for the McAuley holdup is Jan. 15 in 35th District Court.

Sculptors from area high school warm up for local annual ice show

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Suburban high school students spent their Christmas vacation at school.

But their efforts were of an artistic rather than academic nature.

Nine culinary arts students were at Franklin High School, which includes Westland pupils, for two weeks, practicing their artistry with chainsaws and chisels to prepare for the sixth annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

The show, expected to attract an estimated 500,000 visitors, is scheduled for Thursday through Jan. 16.

"I don't mind getting cold," Rob Parmenter said, while he took a break from shaping a full 450-pound block of ice into an eagle in flight. "I like the weather and this is the going thing to do. This is the next winter sport after skiing."

Parmenter was in the competition last year and found it inspirational. He was using the first week of practice to hone his carving skills, since he'll be expected to make the eagle in three hours' time during the spectacular.

As he decided where to make his next cut, he said the small sculpture took two practice sessions and he even took it home to work on it.

The students selected their pieces from Japanese books filled with ice sculptures. After drawing the figures on paper several times, they tried their hand at carving a 225-pound block of ice into that shape.

By the end of last week they will have made 40 ice sculptures. Twenty are on display on the steps of the school district's administrative offices on Farmington Road. The remainder will be used to decorate the streets of downtown Plymouth.

THE STUDENTS are under the tutelage of culinary arts instructor Richard Teeple, who has been involved in the competition for several years.

In addition to coaching the students on their carving skills, he has been busy helping set up guidelines for the judging and making sure the students' projects aren't duplicates of ones selected by students from Oakland and other community colleges.

"The more they draw the figure on paper the easier it will be for them to carve in ice," he said, watching their progress.

CYNTHIA HALSE is making an angel fish with seaweed in motion for the festival. A veteran of the competition, she's excited about the prospect of competing against other high schoolers during the spectacular.

This is the first year that a high school division has been offered in the competition.

"This year I have a lot more confidence in myself and this year we have our own division, so I'll have a better chance of placing," Halse said.

Placing in the competition could mean culinary arts scholarships or complete sets of ice sculpturing tools for the high school students.

Darren Wendel will be in the competition for the first time. He had wanted to compete last year, but didn't have the time. After hearing Halse's description, he decided to find the time this year.

"My first piece — a deer carved from a half block of ice — was a big flop," he said. "This one looks a lot better."

THE STUDENTS spent six hours a day for 11 days working on their sculptures before moving to Kellogg Park in Plymouth, where this week they will construct a major ice sculpture for the spectacular, Teeple said.

Finished sculptures were stored in a refrigerator truck parked at Wilson School until they were delivered to the school board offices and downtown Plymouth.

"I don't feel intimidated by the competition of the fact that others have done it before," Jason Dushan said as he shaved ice off his sword fish sculpture.

"I wanted to know what it was like, so I just decided to do it."

Bac Tran is a study in concentration as he chisels out the facial features of his ice sculpture.

Agency's bankruptcy ruins vacation plans

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Two area couples are among the estimated 1,400 Michigan residents who won't be vacationing this month, even though they've paid for their trips.

Al and Laurel Bronick of Canton Township were looking forward to celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary aboard the New Amsterdam, visiting ports of call in the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas. Instead, they're out $1,798.

Meredith Travel & Tours, which booked the cruise with Holland America Cruise Lines of Seattle, filed for bankruptcy last month.

The Pontiac company is being investigated by the Michigan attorney general's office.

"This particular cruise advertised in your paper fell the day before our 35th anniversary," Laurel Bronick told an Observer & Eccentric reporter. "We planned a vacation and went to the Plymouth YMCA Oct. 19 to get our tickets through the Y Travelers.

"Two days later we received a receipt from Meredith travel agency. Later, we talked to the cruise line and they hadn't heard of us."

The whereabouts of agency owner Joyce Meredith of Keego Harbor are unknown. Her business phone has been disconnected.

Meredith filed for Chapter 7 protection in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Detroit. Chapter 7 involves total liquidation of assets and the distribution of assets to creditors.

A creditors' meeting has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 21 in Room 115 of the U.S. Courthouse and Federal Building, 231 W. Lafayette, Detroit.

A CANTON couple who requested anonymity lost $1,833 they paid for a Caribbean cruise and trip insurance.

"Our anniversary is at the end of January, and this would have been our first cruise," said the woman, who works for Canton Township.

"My husband has a medical problem so we bought cancellation insurance. We sent a letter to the cruise line but we haven't heard anything.

"At this point we don't know what we will do."

As a good will gesture, Holland America Cruise Lines and area travel agents are offering would-be vacationers a $600, seven-day tour to any destination in 1988.

"That's not any special deal. What they're offering is hardly anything. You still have to pay for transportation to Florida. After you dish out $2,000, do you want to dish out another $1,200 plus a plane ticket?"

The woman booked her cruise, as did seven or eight seniors citizens, through Virginia Melcher of Belleville. Melcher ran a Belleville office for Meredith and owns a company that sells tours.

Melcher says Meredith owes her more than $2,000 in back pay. An assistant Meredith hired was paid with coupons "that were to be used on Meredith trips," Melcher said.

"The paper dollars are worth nothing because she can't produce any trips," said Melcher, adding that Meredith also failed to pay office rent. Melcher said seniors in Wayne and Monroe also booked Meredith trips. So did senior citizens from Redford Township, Birmingham and Royal Oak.

Melcher said she has known Meredith for four years.

"I had no doubts at all about her, or I sure wouldn't have gotten involved. I've lost time, not cash. The seniors have lost money, and you can't replace that."

JANET LUCE, executive director of the Plymouth Community Family YMCA, says this is the first time the Y Travelers have experienced problems with Meredith, which it has used since last summer.

"Others just swore by them. We talked to people who all thought Meredith's trips were great. We try so hard to bring services to the community, and then something like this happens."

Unfortunately, the non-profit Y isn't financially able to reimburse the Bronicks, said Luce. "We have proof that we didn't keep a cent," added Luce. "We just act as a go-between. We were absolutely innocent."

The Bronicks said the Y "doesn't feel at all responsible for it. They don't want to deal with it at all."

Said Luce, "We didn't say that. We told her how badly we felt, and that we've done all we could. She didn't know which way to turn, and I did all I could to help her."

Detroit attorney Al Calille sits on the Y's board of directors.

He said the Y plans no legal action at this point.

"I don't think the Plymouth YMCA would have any standing to sue Meredith Travel. On a more practical level, a class action lawsuit could be filed against Meredith by potential creditors, people who've signed up for tours but have not been reimbursed or provided the tour.

"But the likelihood of recovering any money from such an action would probably be remote," said Calille. "It's reasonable to assume creditors are not going to receive their entire amount, because almost by definition a company that files for bankruptcy doesn't have sufficient money to pay off its debts."

Witness sought in robbery

Canton police are searching for a woman who bought two packs of Kool cigarettes — during an armed robbery at 9:20 p.m. Tuesday in the Dairy Mart on Warren and Morton Taylor in Canton.

The unidentified woman was in the store unaware the cashier was being held up. Police want to find the woman, hoping she will be able to aid in the investigation, said Canton police information officer Dave Boljesic.

A lone male entered the store and approached the cashier with a butcher's knife.

"Give me all the money you have," the man reportedly said. He took about 100 instant lottery tickets and $270 cash.

THE ROBBER also reportedly took the 19-year-old cashier's wallet and forced him in the back room of the store.

"The suspect was walking behind the victim and slighting poking him in the back with the knife to move him along," Boljesic said.

Police described it as a superficial cut.

The man was described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 185 pounds, with a mustache, stocky build and dirty blond hair. He wore light brown wide rim glasses, an orange hat, black boots, navy blue waist length coat and dark pants.

Anyone with information is asked to call Canton police at 397-3000.

Car stolen, another is recovered

A successful auto theft, an unsuccessful attempt and the recovery of a car stolen in Detroit were logged during the past week by Plymouth Township Police.

A red and gray Cavalier was reported stolen from the K mart parking lot at Haggerty and Ann Arbor roads between 12:40 and 1:10 p.m. Sunday.

A dog, which had been left in the car, was released and later recovered.

Someone tampered with a Trans-Am parked at the Plymouth Hilton over the weekend but apparently couldn't get the vehicle started. A passenger window was loosened and the steering column was damaged.

A Metro Passbook left in the car was reported stolen.

A Buick Century, which had been reported stolen in Detroit in October, was recovered in the parking lot of the Plymouth Hilton with two flat tires and a damaged steering column.

SC taps Kirksey

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Jack Kirksey gains seat

Recent Livonia mayoral candidate Jack Kirksey is the new Schoolcraft College trustee.

Trustees appointed Kirksey by a 4-2 vote on the first ballot. His seat expires in June 1989. He said he would consider running for a full term at that time.

Board president Mary Breen and trustees Michael Burley, Harry Greenleaf and Wendell Smith supported Kirksey. Trustees Rosina Raymond and Jeanne Stempien supported Pamela Kosteva, a Northville businesswoman. None of the other 14 candidates received any votes, Raymond, however, previously asked board members to consider Garden City resident Nancy Kitzman, citing the lack of a Garden City representative on the board.

KIRKSEY SAID his top educational goal would be "trying to meet the changing needs of students and the changing needs of society."

He replaces Laura Toy, who resigned after winning a Livonia City Council seat in November. Kirksey lives on Barkley in Livonia. He was born in Atlanta in 1928.

Kirksey is director of community education services for the Livonia Public Schools. He holds an educational specialist, master's and bachelor's degrees from Wayne State University.

He stressed his educational background during Monday's interview with trustees. "Most of my life has been spent in education," he said.

His job as Livonia's community education director caused some concern for trustees, particularly Raymond, during the interview process. Kirksey, however, indicated he would abstain from voting on an issue that appeared to cause a conflict of interest between Livonia schools and Schoolcraft objectives.

Trustees interviewed applicants Monday and Wednesday evenings.

IN ADDITION to other civic activities, Kirksey is president of the Schoolcraft College Foundation board. The organization oversees the Schoolcraft Foundation, a private non-profit fund-raising group that helps underwrite scholarships and programs at the Livonia-based community college.

Kirksey, a Republican, represented the Livonia area in the state House of Representatives between 1977-85. Though the post is non-partisan, Kirksey's appointment would appear to give Republicans a clear majority on the Schoolcraft board.

He failed in his mayoral bid during last September's primary, trailing eventual winner Robert Bennett by a scant 94 votes.

County will trim winter programs

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Most winter programs won't resume at Wayne County Parks, officials said, even though later park programs were saved by legislative action last month.

Winter activities are being curtailed, aside from a few selected events, R. Eric Reickel, parks director, said.

"By doing this, we aren't being nasty, but our budget was reduced by some $300,000 even without the financial crisis."

The parks budget stands at $2.2 million for fiscal 1988, Reickel said. Toboggan and skating areas won't be maintained, he added.

Despite the program cut, cross-country skiing will continue at Warren Valley Golf Course, Dearborn Heights.

"RIGHT NOW, it's a Wednesday-through-Sunday schedule, but we hope to bring it up to seven days a week," Reickel said.

Cross country trails are also expected to be added at Elizabeth Park, Trenton.

The park system's Winter Olympic festival will also continue despite the cut. The Jan. 16 event includes snow bound volleyball, sledding and snow sculpture contests.

"It's a family-oriented event," recreation manager Victor Chiasson said.

Parks programs would have been cut further if the state Legislature hadn't approved a series of taxes and fee increases to benefit the county.

Reickel said winter programs were curtailed to provide more money for spring and summer programs.

"What we'd found was that winter programs cost an awful lot with very little return on the investment in terms of people using the parks," he said. "Our primary seasons are spring through fall."

Parks workers are currently repairing picnic benches, painting garbage cans and clearing trees, Reickel said.

"We're getting ready for the return of our 'Saturday in the Parks' program in April," he said. During that program, a section of Hines Drives is closed to through traffic for use by bicyclists and joggers.

Park system will host winter olympics Jan. 16

Wayne County Parks will sponsor a winter olympics Saturday, Jan. 16 at Warren Valley Golf Course in Dearborn Heights.

Events are planned for the entire family. Activities begin at 12:30 p.m.

The schedule for adults includes coed team competition in events such as closest to the pin golf contest (using orange golf balls), human bowling (sliding down a hill in saucers to knock down orange cones), volleyball in the snow and human shuffelboard.

Events for children include snow sculpture, snow piling, belly boppin' (how far can you slide downhill on a saucer) and snow races (running, hopping etc).

Cross country ski lessons and limited rental equipment will be available on a reduced fee basis.

Warren Valley is on Warren Road between Beech Daly and Inkster roads.

For more information, contact Vic Chiasson at 261-1990.

S'craft literary magazine sponsors poetry contest

The MacGuffin, Schoolcraft College's literary magazine, is conducting its fifth annual poet hunt through Feb. 7.

A $100 first prize, $50 second prize and $25 third prize are offered. Winners will be announced March 22.

The contest is open to all Michigan residents except MacGuffin staff members and their families.

Poets may submit up to five poems. Poems should be 50 lines or less and be typewritten on standard typing paper. A name, address and daytime telephone number should be contained on a standard size index card submitted with each entry. Names shouldn't be placed on the poems themselves.

All poems must be original, unpublished works.

Entries may be sent to: Poet Hunt, Liberal Arts Building, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, Mich. 48152.

There's still time to register for winter term classes at SC

Students can still register in-person for classes beginning Jan. 11 at Schoolcraft College.

Registration is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. today, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to noon Saturday and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the registration center on main campus, 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

The college is offering more than 950 classes for the winter semester. Day and evening classes are held at the main campus in Livonia as well as at centers in Garden City and Plymouth-Canton.

For more information or a free copy of the winter schedule, visit the admission office on campus or call 591-6400, Ext. 217.

Salary often food for Plymouth area preachers

(Last in a series)

Following is the conclusion of the remarks of pioneer John Tibbits about life in Plymouth in the 1800s.)

The first ministers of which I have any recollection were Elders Swift, Colclasier, Pilcher, Collins and Gilruth, all of the Methodist persuasion.

These ministers would travel about the country on horseback, and would always come into meeting with their green leggins and their saddle-bags on their arms. Their preaching was mostly of the sensational order, and very well suited to the times. Their meetings were for the most time held in the woods during the summer, and camp meetings were frequent.

At one of these meetings, during an unusual awakening, a brother, more noted for zeal than knowledge, prayed most earnestly, that the Lord would come down and weigh off glory to them with hay scales.

There were also a few local preachers, and my second brother, now living at Coldwater, was one of this description. I once heard him say he preached for 15 years, and all the salary he ever received was a pound of tea, worth 75. He used to get up Sunday mornings, travel 12 miles down to the McCarty neighborhood on the Rouge, preach a sermon in the afternoon, escort one of the ladies home after service, set up with her till midnight, eat a piece of pumpkin pie, and then foot it home and be ready for work by daylight.

Tonquish tales

Helen Gilbert

THE FIRST FRAME barn and house built in town was erected by my father, and all the town meetings and elections were at first held in the barn, and it has been the theater of many a youthful sport.

A tragical scene was enacted there one day, which came near proving fatal to myself. At the time Simmons was hung all the the independent military companies were warned out as a guard. Among the rest two of my brothers had to go. On their return they described very minutely all the scenes of the hanging, and my youthful imagination drank in all the details.

One day a nephew and myself were in the barn, and we concluded we would play hang. A long ladder was standing from the floor to the beam overhead, and this was used for the gallows. Two barrels were placed side by side and these were to be the scaffold. A leather halter was obtained from the stable and the strap was made fast to one of the rounds above, while the throat-latch was buckled around my neck. While I was adjusting the halter my nephew shoved the barrels from under me and down I dropped. If there were ever two balls of fire as big as a bunk bottle that came out of a person's eyes, they came out of mine. Fortunately for me the throat-latch broke.

The first sheep brought into town was a flock of 40 which my father had driven in from the East. In one night 16 of these and two fine calves were killed by the wolves. All of our clothing was manufactured and made up in the house. Instead of the piano and organ was heard the music of the spinning-wheel and the clatter of the loom. Many is the day I have quilted for my mother while she was weaving, and helped her pick in pieces and make harnesses for the loom.

Our summer clothing consisted of a low frock and tow pants, and our winter garments were the inevitable red flannel underclothing and good, strong fulled cloth for our outer garments. The women wore their plaid flannel dresses in the winter, and the copper-colored, check-lined dresses in the summer, all made, even to the carding, by hand. The tailor and shoemaker always came in the fall, and made up our winter's supply of clothing. This was called 'cat-whipping.' I was upwards of twelve years of age before I ever wore a purchased garment.

How the women of those days managed to do all the carding, spinning and weaving and cooking for their large families, has always been a wonder to me. Their cooking, however, was simple compared to what it is at the present time. Usually bread enough was baked in one day to last a week. For a luxury, however, we occasionally had a johnny-cake, baked on a board before the fire. And of all johnny-cakes commend me to one baked in this way. The mode of baking was to prepare the meal in the usual manner, and place it about an inch thick, on a whitewood board, some two feet long by ten inches in width, and set it before a good strong fire. After one side had been nicely browned, the cake was turned and baked on the other side. It fairly makes my mouth water now when I think of these good old-fashioned johnny-cakes, though I presume many of these good old-fashioned things, which many of us so much sigh after, are enjoyed more in imagination than they would be in realization.

TWICE A WEEK a large three-pail kettle was filled with meat and vegetables, and the inevitable bag-pudding, and this usually sufficed for the whole week.

There was but little money in circulation in those days, and commerce was usually carried on by 'barter.' The printer, the doctor, the grocer and the merchant were all paid off chiefly in truck.

Labor was cheap and the price of produce very low. Good farm hands could be obtained for from eight to 12 dollars a month. And young men usually managed to lay up enough money in a year to purchase an 80 acre lot of land, which is more than many young men do nowadays. Plenty of girls could be hired then for six shillings to a dollar a week, all 'boarding around,' of course.

Day goods and groceries, however, were very high. I once saw an old lady give 20 pounds of butter, in the Village of Plymouth, for a pound of tea, and she brought the butter three miles through the woods to make the trade. Butter was then worth but sixpence a pound, and tea ten shillings.

It was much more difficult to raise three of four dollars then to pay our taxes, than it is to raise 50 or 75 now. A man with two or three thousand dollars then was looked upon as being rich. My father brought with him $3,000, and he was thought to be immensely wealthy. Had he followed the advice of General Call, and invested part of his money in the City of Detroit in real estate, and kept it, he and his family might have been wealthy. He could have bought an acre of land where the City Hall now stands for $400 dollars, and the General offered him 15 acres of land, right in what is now the heart of the city, with a very good frame house on it, for $1,500; but my father said he would not take it as a gift and be obliged to live on it.

BEFORE CLOSING I must relate two or three incidents connected with the history of Van Sickle, spoken of before.

After working a year and getting a lot of land he brought on his family and settled down on his farm. But times being hard and money scarce he was occasionally driven to extremities to raise the 'wind.' Whenever he was hard pushed to raise a few shillings he would invite the neighbors to a 'quilting,' and after the quilting he would invite the young folks to stay in the evening to a dance. The only musical instrument in his possession was a Jews-harp, but he was a mighty player on this instrument, and declared he could play every tune in the 'decalogue.' After discoursing music to them till near midnight he would lock doors and refuse to allow any one to leave without each gentleman paying 50 cents.

Van Sicle was hard on the English language. He had a son who was very sick at one time, and the old gentleman went up in great haste for the doctor, telling him to 'hurry up, as Reube was struck with aguafortis, and could not live ten minutes.' He came down to the city in 1832, during the prevalence of the cholera. On his return he told his neighbors he had 'insulted all the doctors in the city, and found the cholera in the telescope,' meaning the atmosphere.

In those early days we had no matches for lighting fires, no soda and saleratus for cooking, but instead pearlash was used, made by burning cobs in an oven, and dissolving the ashes in water and using the solution.

The reaper and mower and hay rake were unknown. The sewing machine and knitting machine were unthought of, and had any one predicted at that time that in less than a quarter of a century the steamship would cross the ocean, our cities would be lighted with gas, railroads would connect all parts of our country, and that intelligence would be sent with lightening speed all over the civilized globe, he would have been considered little less than a mad man.

And yet it may not be altogether presumptuous to suppose that even greater improvements and discoveries will be made in the next half century than have been made in the last.

It was under such difficulties and privations as have been related above that the early pioneers settled up this Western country. Go where you will now one cannot find as many hardships nor privations to encounter as the early settlers encountered here.

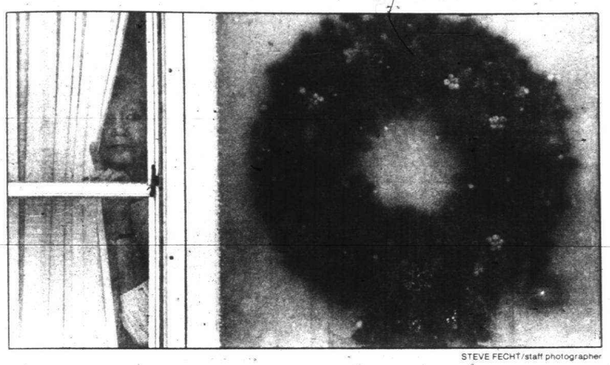
YMCA battles those dreary winter blahs



STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

The holidays are over and winter has set in. That's when depression often sets in, too.

Family Service and the Livonia YMCA will co-sponsor a free program to help people suffering mid-winter depression.

The program — limited to 20 participants — will be held for seven weeks, Friday evenings at the Livonia Y, 14255 Stark Rd. Evenings will be divided into two parts — a discussion group guided by a Family Service counselor and an exercise session led by a Y staff person.

"It's directed at people who aren't in enough crisis to seek counseling but are too out of it to motivate themselves to get into regular Y programs," said Lucile Cantoni, manager of the Livonia office of Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County, and a social worker. She will lead the group discussion.

Participants will meet 6:30-9:30 p.m. beginning Jan. 15. To enroll, call Cantoni at 427-9310.

"Anyone can be affected by mid winter depression," Cantoni said. "It has to do with losses suffered recently. People who have suffered much loss over a lifetime are most susceptible."

Depression covers a wide range of conditions, from the mild discomfort which everyone experiences sometimes to major depressive illness which, untreated, can lead to psychosis or suicide.

"A number of studies have shown winter is a time of depression. One theory is that if we were an agricultural society, we would have to slow down in winter. It may be a normal phenomenon. But in our culture we are expected to maintain the same lifestyle, regardless of our metabolism.

"Another theory is tied to light. Some people are able to overcome depression if it is very bright in the morning. Lack of sunlight may be a major part of it.

"THE MAJOR thing we'll address is that we don't do as much in winter. We become couch potatoes. We feel down, want to stay inside. Physical inactivity leads to depression. Moving around increases our metabolism; we begin to feel better."

Rick Durei, senior physical education directos for the Livonia Y, said the group activity will be fitness related. We'll have volleyball and wallyball — which is volleyball in a racquetball court — and swimnastics. We're assuming most participants aren't very active, so the pace will be slow."

People need to recognize how they're feeling, Cantoni said. Even though class size is limited, she hopes people simply recognize the need to take charge of their life. Cantoni offers these tips.

- Exercise. Move that body.
- Other people. Start relating to others.
- Talk. Instead of clenching teeth, relax the jaws and talk.

Apathy assassins

Those who battled indifference

While apathy may reign, there are a few singular warriors who have fought city hall and made a difference.

ANYBODY can complain. But it's people who take the bull by the horns, rather than those who throw the bull, who get things done.

People like Gail Wehby, Liz Clement and Diane Oatley. People like Jane McCourt and Loraine Potochick.

None of those are exactly household names in the Plymouth-Canton community. Rather, they're individuals who perceived a need and refused to take no or indifference from governmental officials as a final answer.

They did more than complain. They acted.

WEHBY AND CLEMENT campaigned for sidewalks in Plymouth Township. They wrote letters and attended board meetings. They agreed to serve on a study committee. It seemed like their energy finally moved a majority of the township board to seeing the need for sidewalks.

The result — sidewalks are in along Sheldon Road and next spring more will be installed along Ann Arbor Trail.

Oatley was the sidewalk lady of Canton Township. She prepared her argument and persevered in spite of repeated rejection from "officialdom." The result — a promise for sidewalks along Morton Taylor Road just south of Joy.

McCourt, fairly new to the community, saw a need for a community pool in Township Park. Plymouth Township officials were cool to the proposal.

That didn't daunt McCourt. In less than a week, and while seven months pregnant, she coordinated a petition drive that obtained enough signatures to get the issue on the November ballot.

Potochick spearheaded a similar effort to get a parks land purchase proposal on the ballot by petition initiative.

Although both issues were defeated at the polls, the efforts of both women to even get the proposals before the electorate were inspiring and worthy of recognition.

OTHER INDIVIDUALS — Stella Greene and William McAninch, who opposed expansion of Plymouth city's downtown development authority district, and the Rev. Stanley Jenkins, administrator of Central Baptist School who objected to state licensing of private school teachers — also come to mind.

Although we may have disagreed with their positions editorially, we applaud their involvement.

A few words of thanks should be directed toward unsuccessful candidates for local office. People like Robert Anderson, Barbara Graham, Mary Dahn, William Brown, Brenda Anderson and Chris Robison who sought to unseat the incumbents on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

People like Gregory Green and Jean Morrow, who bid for city commission seats.

All candidates offer a point of view and choices, which ultimately makes our system of government work.

There's agony and ecstacy in taking a public stand.

"I prepared myself before the meeting for them to say no," Oatley said of her bid to persuade the Canton Township Board of the need for sidewalks. "And I told myself I'd just have to find another way."

Listen to Potochick. "At least I tried," she said in defeat.

Few express regret about getting involved.

Great things often are accomplished by ordinary people willing to step forward and lead the charge. Or at least join the brigade.

We owe a lot to the Wehbys, Clements, Oatleys, McCourts and Potochicks of the community. May more join their ranks this year.

Primaries

It's time voters got them back

Regardless of party affiliation or place on the political spectrum, we all deserve more of a voice in how our president is chosen. Primaries give us that voice.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, folks. It's now 1988, the year we elect a new president.

But let's say it right here, right now: Michigan's presidential selection process is a mess. It must be changed.

Need proof? Take a look at the GOP goings-on in western Wayne County's 2nd District, which includes Plymouth and part of Livonia. There, supporters of Vice President George Bush and members of a Jack Kemp/Pat Robertson coalition can't even stand to be in the same room with each other. A few days from now, they will hold separate district conventions — leaving a potentially nasty credentials fight to determine who gets to sit inside at the state convention later this month in Grand Rapids, and who gets left out in the cold.

DISTRICT conventions are supposed to be grass-roots politics at its best. But this is grass-roots politics at its worst.

Ignored in all the wrangling over this one national office are many items closer to home. Republicans have a U.S. Senate candidate and a slew of local candidates to nominate. Think the 2nd District GOP is giving any thought to them these days?

Regarding the presidential process itself, all this maneuvering and fine print reading of party bylaws is downright scary. It could wind up delivering a sizable number of national convention votes — and possibly the nomination — to a presidential candidate who couldn't beat his party rivals in a head-to-head test among Michigan voters. How's that for democracy?

Not that the Michigan GOP or its 2nd District branch is much worse than any other political organization.

MICHIGAN Democrats didn't exactly cover themselves with glory with their confounding 1984 presidential selection process. Remember that closed, less-than-secret-ballot process helped produce a standard-bearer with appeal so broad he carried just one of the 50 states.

It's time for a return to the primary system.

So primaries leave a bad taste in some people's mouths around these parts. So the memory of GOP pranksters crossing over to vote for George Wallace in the 1972 state Democratic primary still rankles. So what?

There are ways to prevent that from happening again. The best way is to have spirited, competitive primaries for state offices. Races like that would keep Republican and Democrats in the fold even if their party's presidential primary became a walkover.

Regardless of party affiliation or place on the political spectrum, we all deserve more of a voice in how our president is chosen. Primaries give us that voice. But primaries won't happen unless we make them happen.

We can write state party leaders demanding a return to primaries or we can sit idly by while the boys and girls in the smoky back rooms twiddle their thumbs — and play fast and loose with our future.

Kiddie tax authors cheat entire family

Steve Barnaby

OK. SO NOW they've really gone and done it. You know, our esteemed leaders in Lansing.

In all of their collective wisdom, they have enacted a law which only the likes of Ebeneezer Scrooge could possibly approve.

In one of their more silent moments, the state Legislature sneaked through a law that forces children making more than $1 a year to pay state taxes. Our boy governor, Jim Blanchard, recently signed this "tough" legislation into law.

Now I'll sure bet your state lawmaker didn't use his/her franking privileges to brag about this ingenius little gem.

You may very well be in the dark on this baby. So let me explain.

Your little Johnny or Mary now must sock away a portion of their fortune from baby-sitting, delivering papers or washing cars to pay off Uncle Jim and his cronies in Lansing.

THE PREMISE is almost too ridiculous to imagine. But our state leaders have gone one step beyond in creating a magic kingdom of their own. So imagine we must.

The best part for Mom and Dad, of course, is now they have to fill out another tax form — their kid's.

The sorry part is that the majority of parents in this state want to teach their kids honesty — to obey the law and to pay taxes. But let's face it, this absurd provision of the tax law is going to make criminals of us all.

Stop and think about how much money your child made this year mowing lawns or baby-sitting. Think about whether they have any of it left to pay taxes.

That's right, the same folks who brought you the Zilwaukee Bridge (the bridge that nobody really needs) have figured out a way to dig down deep in your pocket and steal some $40 million for who-knows-what kind of government boondoggle.

You can bet your bottom dollar, if you've got one left, that the kids of Michigan don't have $40 million. Their money goes for the life extras we want our kids to enjoy, or for room and board at college.

IN REALITY, state officials have figured out another way to get you to pay more taxes. Unless, of course, you want to steal the money from your kid's candy jar.

But apparently that's what state treasurer Bob Bowman would have you do. No wonder the guy was reluctant to run for Congress. Nobody would ever vote for somebody who takes money from kids.

The state has introduced an entire segment of society into the underground economy. It has created a tax system that is impossible to respect or to enforce.

Imagine state troopers raiding the local play yard to round up a bunch of kids for tax evasion. "You have the right to remain silent."

Imagine the judge who would have the gall to say, "You have been charged with evading taxes in the amount of $3.50. How do you plead?"

Imagine the jailer yelling "OK, you punks quit talking to your Barbie dolls, lights out."

Imagine recalling the bums who thought up this idiotic provision.

This has got to be the biggest joke delivered from the biggest bunch of jokesters in the annals of American political history.

Let them know how you feel.

Reader urges cable boycott

To the editor:

Omnicom Cablevision has for the second year in a row raised the price for its basic service. Since September 1986, Omnicom has raised its basic rate by 40 percent.

Omnicom is a business and has every right to make a profit; however, it also has a monopoly market without the natural controls of competition. Until recently our Township Board had the ability to moderate price increases. This ability ended in 1986, and the result has been these outrageous price increases.

The only method of control left to Canton residents is to vote with our feet. If enough of us cancel our subscription with Omnicom, their good business sense will cause them to reconsider price increases. They need volume to make a profit. Let us deprive them of these numbers before they deprive us of more dollars.

Consider what your annual cable rate is (basic is $174.00) and donate that amount to a worthy cause or take your family out for a wonderful get away weekend, but let Omnicom know that even monopolies canpot do whatever they want.

We canceled our basic subscription, and found our own antenna provides better reception than our $174.00 cable. With a rotor you can even pick up some great programing from Ann Arbor currently not available on local cable.

Join us in sending a message to Omnicom!

Column gave sound advice

To the editor:

My congratulations and thanks to Bill Bresler for his excellent commentary on the importance of investing time, and not just dollars, in our children.

Bill's comments were an important and appropriate message to those of us with the most vital of all jobs — the raising of children.

Writing about responsibility is one thing, and living it is another. I've worked with Bill's wife, Sue, for many years, and know his family. I'm aware, therefore, that Mr. Bresler follows his own advice and does as he advises us to do. For that I congratulate him even more.

May peace always prevail

To the editor:

A vision of peace became a reality in Plymouth last August when the Michigan Peace March dedicated a Peace Pole to the city of Plymouth.

The support and encouragement from the citizens demonstrated the strong feelings that we are all responsible in some way for peace in our lives and in the world.

Sometime in early November the Peace Pole was removed from the city of Plymouth.

The pole is gone but its absence will not remove the dedication to peace expressed by those present last summer.

Something good happened in Plymouth last summer. Let us not forget why it happened and continue to "Wage Peace" in our daily lives.

Make this New Year a new year for peace initiatives in your life.

We have the whole world to gain.

May Peace Prevail on Earth.

State hides new jobs

Tim Richard

THE HOMELESS . . . the hungry . . . the million Michiganians on some kind of governmental assistance.

Bad news is news, in this business, and one of the most breathtaking stories of 1987 hardly got covered.

It was Michigan's record number of people with jobs.

At a time when our population is leveling off after a period of shrinkage, the number of jobs grows healthily. While our 1987 average level of 8.1 percent jobless still doesn't look exciting, you have to keep in mind that the number of jobs is growing far faster than the work force.

IT'S HARD TO dig out the story from the statistics issued by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

I've looked at MESC reports from director Richard Simmons Jr. for some years now, and my strong impression is that his office paints as negative a picture as possible.

Here, rearranged in a more positive light, are MESC's year-end figures combined with the U.S. Census Bureau's year-end report:

- A record 4,158,000 of us are at work, compared to 3,616,000 in the recession year of 1982. That's a 15-percent increase in employment. It means 542,000 more jobs.
- In the same five-year span, unemployment "dropped from 661,000 to 366,000 — a decrease of 295,000.

Compare those two bottom lines: 542,000 more at work, 295,000 fewer out of work. It means more people are coming seeking jobs and getting them.

OUR POPULATION, meanwhile, has been virtually stagnant. It was 9,262,000 in the recession year of 1980, then down to 9,139,000 a year ago and an even 9,200,000 for '87.

Here's a sentence buried in the MESC report: "Total employment statewide rose by 151,000 during the year, a 3.8-percent increase."

Compare that to the population increase of 61,000. Michigan employers are hiring at 2½ times the rate that our population is increasing.

Recall the nuclear family of "Leave It-to-Beaver" days — dad worked, mom kept house, Beaver and Wally went to school. One job for four people, right?

Well, today an incredible 49 percent of Michiganians are at work.

Nationwide, according to one national report I read last year, more than half of all Americans have paying jobs. It's a proportion unheard of in the history of the industrialized world.

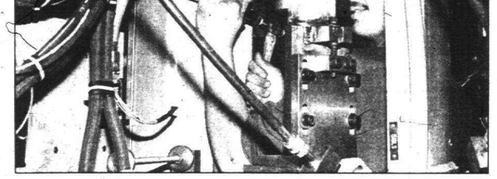
THE INESCAPABLE conclusion: If our jobless rate still looks bad, it's because so many of us are demanding — and getting — so many jobs.

You all know the reason. Not since the beginning of the industrial revolution in late 18th-century England have so many women held paying jobs.

Whether you want to give credit to Gov. Jim Blanchard (D) or President Ron Reagan (R) is your choice. I'm inclined to credit both.

As for the trade union gibe about "McJobs," consider the source. The mere fact that the growth wasn't in union jobs doesn't disprove anything.

It's too bad the positive performance of our private economy in hiring folks gets obscured by our concentration on the unemployment rate.



At a time when our population is leveling off after a period of shrinkage, the number of jobs grows healthily.

This 'mantel' no star

Fred DeLano

THERE WERE at least 500 words in the "Through Bifocals" column as printed in Dec. 17 editions, and one of them was spelled incorrectly. Just one, mind you, but it resulted in a delightful letter from sharp-eyed Marion Kay Overholt, assistant city clerk for the city of Orchard Lake Village.

She snipped the column, marked the mistake plainly and included it with her letter. In speaking of a trophy display on the shelf that goes over a fireplace, I had spelled this platform mantle, it should have been mantel.

"I hope that you will excuse and understand my compulsive editing," she wrote. "I do this all the time, according to my complaining co-workers and children. My compulsion for correcting spelling stems from terms of service as a high school English teacher and other assorted jobs as an editor and reporter."

My answer to that, dear lady, is that I wish the world had more like you.

IN APPRECIATION of Mrs. Overholt's background, I am sure she knows that the workplace often is the scene of interruptions and distractions, be it classroom, newspaper office or even the seat of government. Actually, I do my writing at home, but obviously not always with total concentration.

Had I been that mentally disciplined, I would not have spelled mantel mantle, as in Mickey Charles Mantle, born in 1931 at Spavinaw, Okla., and later an outstanding home run hitter in the lineup of the New York Yankees, a baseball enterprise of some note.

Perhaps this is an admission that I know more about baseball than I do about fireplace structure. So be it. By dint of serious research, specifically by knowing where to look in a dictionary. I also have learned that mantle is more than a man's name.

THE NEXT time I feel compelled to use it will be in my description of the skinlike organ of a mollusk that is responsible for the secretion of the shell and often serves largely for respiration. Had it not been for the "voice of Orchard Lake," this gem would have escaped me.

I decline to comment on how far honesty will carry this jady in governmental circles, although it is an almost universally praised character trait. Nonetheless, she did confide, "I, too, suffer spasmodic attacks of forgetfulness and lapses of uncertainty (no, that should be certainty) and commit frequent typos."

Despite the fact that she identifies herself as "a contemporary of yours," she politely avoided accusing me of senility. I read her letter three times to make sure.

This business about compulsion struck a tender vein because, with my treasured Mother Goose in the lead, I often am the target of barbs because of my dedication for keeping floors of living rooms, hotels, saloons et al free of specks and scraps.

ONCE UPON a time when our children were but goslings, I took them on a tour of a residence in Washington, D.C., in which we all share ownership, known as The White House. Velvet ropes kept us from stealing trinkets, although I sorely wanted to straighten some of the pictures on the walls. But it was in the state dining room that I truly was aghast. Good God, the candles were crooked! (I won't tell you who was president).

Letters from people such as Mrs. Overholt are a delight to those who write more for entertainment and to share experiences than to tell you how to vote. Whether they speak well or ill of the writer isn't the key issue. What's truly important — and the basis of all newspaper circulation — is whether the carrier put your paper inside the storm door.

LETTERS OF late from Alfreda Page of Southfield, Jessie Hudson in Plymouth, Ed Schwartz of Birmingham, golfer Ben Hogan down at Fort Worth, Marie Farrell-Donaldson at the City-County Building, Bea Laible — daughter of my late, lamented friend Bill Hartmann, former Livonia Bentley High School teacher Bill McQuesten of Sun City West, Ariz., Lee Sales of Farmington Hills, Frank J. Fisher, whose horse was such a hero in the Bloomfield Open Hunt horse show, Cynthia Holt Cummings, who is so well known to all of you in Birmingham and the Bloomfields, Russell Kirk at Mecosta and even-former Plymouth mayor David Pugh and wife Sharon in Sao Paulo, Brazil, all have served to warm this cold heart.

Marion Kay Overholt was excessively kind in writing, "I am a steady reader of your entertaining column," and then adding: "Keep up your exploration of interesting topics and I'll keep up my faithful reading."

How interesting she'll find today's. I know not. But just remember: If two people always agree, one of them isn't thinking.

Agency, worker settle firing suit

An out-of-court settlement has allowed Wayne County Associations for the Retarded to withdraw from bankruptcy, an agency spokesman said.

The agency filed for bankruptcy in September, after a jury awarded $785,000 to an agency worker in a wrongful dismissal suit. Spokesman Ronald Krzesniak said the agency agreed to a $90,000 settlement and returned the employee to his job.

Creditors will be paid in full, Krzesniak said.

There were no cutbacks in service or layoffs during the bankruptcy period, he said. The agency filed for Chapter 11 protection to prevent its assets from being garnished to pay for the jury award, Krzesniak added.

The agency provides placement and training services to more than 800 disabled adults at six Wayne County sites, including one in Livonia. Related associations include Association for Retarded Citizens-Plymouth and Association for Retarded Citizens-Western Wayne.

Non-entry 'sharpens' election

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

State Treasurer Robert Bowman's non-entry into the 2nd District Congressional race turned a potential adversary into an ally for one Democratic challenger, while "sharply focusing" the race for the other.

Bowman won't run

Bowman announced Sunday he wasn't entering the race. Instead, he threw his support behind State Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor. Pollack faces a primary challenge from former party nominee Dean Baker, also of Ann Arbor.

Bowman had long been considered a potential candidate for the 2nd District seat even through he lives outside the district. The seat, currently held by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, among other communities.

Pollack said she wasn't surprised by Bowman's non-entry but was pleased to gain his support.

"HE'S A STRONG man, a strong person, with good name recognition," Pollack said. "I didn't look forward to a primary against him."

Political insiders speculated Bowman's move could boost Pollack's standing among moderate-to-conservative Democrats. Rival candidate Dean Baker said Bowman's support of Pollack wouldn't affect his own grass roots campaign.

"It doesn't make a large difference," Baker said. "It still shapes up as a grass roots campaign against a big money campaign. This only sharpens the focus."

Baker lost to Pursell in 1986 after pulling an upset in that year's Democratic primary.

A spokesman for six-term incumbent Pursell speculated Bowman withdrew because he didn't figure to defeat Pollack.

"Bowman was looking at a primary situation and he probably felt he couldn't win," Pursell spokesman Gary Cates said.

Bowman, however, denied that assumption, calling the seat "eminently winnable".

"I DIDN'T base my decision on any 'winability factor,'" the 32-year-old state treasurer said. "This seat is eminently winnable for the right Democrat."

The decision, Bowman said, was based upon his allegiance to Gov. James Blanchard.

"My allegiance is with my current job and employer," he said. "My feeling was that I could best serve the people of Michigan — all the people of Michigan — by staying on as treasurer."

By staying on the job, Bowman lends stability to a Blanchard Administration ma rked by transition. Chief of Staff Steven Weiss, budget director Shelby Solomon and legislative liaison William Kandler have all joined the administration in the past year.

Bowman, however, didn't rule out a future attempt for elective office.

"Someday, I would like to run for office. But I couldn't say what that office would be at this time," he said.

Pat Bechdol gets a hug from Jamie, who is 2½. The family, including Pat Bechdol's wife, Liz, and 5-year-old Patrick, spent some time on the slopes at Plymouth Township Park last week.

It was back-to-school time this week for Plymouth-Canton area students.

The great outdoors was the place to be for some of the students on vacation. Doug and Kathy Jost were among the kids who enjoyed sledding last week at Plymouth Township Park.

"It's fun," said Doug, a fifth grader at Bird Elementary School. Kathy, a third grader at Bird Elementary School, agreed it's fun to be on vacation.

"You don't need to work," she said.

Jay Perko, a sixth grader at West Middle School, enjoyed his time sledding at Plymouth Township Park. Jay was out sledding with his friend Jim Beesley, also a sixth grader at West Middle School.

"It's fun," Jay said in describing vacation. "It's better than school."

For Jason Ray, "No homework" and "Not having to get up early in the morning" are among the enjoyable aspects of vacation. Jason, a seventh grader at Our Lady of Good Counsel School, was out sledding last week at Plymouth Township Park.

JASON WAS sledding with Denny Mullally, a seventh grader at Our Lady of Victory School in Northville, and Joey Mullally, a first grader at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Arts groups had an active year

By Julie Brown
staff writer

For Plymouth-Canton area arts organizations, 1987 was a busy and productive year.

Musical sounds were heard throughout the year, courtesy of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, the Plymouth Community Chorus, the Plymouth Community Band and other groups.

For the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, the year was one of change. Russell Reed replaced Leon Gregorian as music director and conductor. Reed is professor of music and director of the symphony at Eastern Michigan University.

"We're very pleased with the new conductor," said Carolyn Burns, president of the Plymouth Symphony League. "He's very personable. I think that's a real asset with a community orchestra."

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra has been performing for more than 40 years and presents a variety of concerts each year. The 1987-88 series has included a November concert and a December series of holiday concerts; remaining performances will be in February, March and April.

REED'S INTEREST and expertise have been assets, Burns said. He and his wife have been accessible to symphony supporters, including members of the Plymouth Symphony League. The league is the fund-raising arm of the symphony.

"I think that has really helped," Burns said. "That's a good feeling, I think, in this community orchestra. It's just a good feeling all the way around."

Symphony supporters heard some good news in 1987. The symphony received a $13,000 staffing grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts; the grant is to be used to hire a general manager to handle fund-raising and other business responsibilities.

Symphony supporters also benefited from the donation of office space on South Main Street in Plymouth. The office space was donated by Dr. Roger Bookwalter, a local orthodontist, and his associates.

"That's working out very well," Burns said. "It gives a home office for the (Plymouth Symphony) society."

The office isn't staffed 40 hours a week, Burns said, but it has provided a central location for symphony operations. The music is filed at the two-room office.

IN 1988, the symphony will seek additional corporate/business support, Burns said.

Sources of potential funding wouldn't be limited to Plymouth-Canton, she said; because the symphony serves nearby communities, other sources would also be looked into.

At the Plymouth Symphony League's Christmas dinner/dance in December, league members gave a $6,000 check to the symphony.

"We will give much more than that," Burns said. "That was a portion of our overall contribution."

Kiyo Morse, president of the Plymouth Symphony Society board of directors, agreed with Burns that it's been a good year. Concerts have been well-attended, Morse said, and "everything seems to be working out."

Morse has found that Reed is working out just fine as the music director and conductor for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

"He's just a dream to work with. It seems as if all our groups are working well together." Morse appreciates the support of Plymouth Symphony League members and others.

In 1988-89, symphony supporters would like to add one concert to the season, Morse said. They'd also like to look for additional corporate support.

Year was a busy one for local arts organizations

A member has been added to the symphony's board, she said. Tony Ruda knows about corporate funding and is interested in "helping us to get some of that."

IN YEARS to come, symphony supporters would like to expand the audience to include communities along the I-275 corridor, Morse said. That would cover the area from Canton north to Novi and would include the Farmington/Livonia/Westland area.

"That's one of the things we're aiming for." Each year, the symphony presents a concert in Novi; one is scheduled for March at Novi High School.

"I think it went pretty well, so far," Morse said in describing the year. Symphony supporters are concentrating on starting their planning and scheduling earlier. They're already busy planning for the 1988-89 concert season.

Other Plymouth-Canton area arts organizations also were busy in 1987. The Plymouth Theatre Guild presented a variety of plays. Members of the Three Cities Art Club kept busy in 1987, as did people involved in other arts organizations.

The year was a productive one for the Plymouth Community Arts Council, said Pat McCombs, PCAC president. The council's hiring of an executive director, Susan Froelich, represented "the culmination of a long, hot summer's work," McCombs said.

Froelich, the PCAC's first executive director, started work on Oct. 1. Her hiring was part of a three-year strategic plan created by PCAC members working with arts consultants.

IMPLEMENTING THAT three-year plan is an important development for the PCAC, McCombs said.

During 1987, the PCAC created a new membership category for businesses. A business advisory committee was also formed.

"A lot of firsts," McCombs said in describing the year's activities.

Those include a dollhouse raffle project, a Christmas card project and preparation for the statewide Fine Arts Competition, to be held in conjunction with this year's Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular Jan. 7-17.

PCAC members were busy in 1987 bringing the Artrain to Plymouth for a visit. The train/museum, filled with treasures from the Cranbrook Academy of Art, visited Plymouth in early April.

The Follies performances in October, featuring the varied talents of area residents, were a highlight for the year, McCombs said. The Artists and Craftsmen Show and other fund-raising projects were also highlights.

Those are "our mainstays," the PCAC president said. "It's what keeps us in business."

The year was a busy one for the Plymouth Community Band, which has approximately 55 members.

"It's been a very successful year for us," said Carl Battishill, conductor of the Plymouth Community Band.

JOHN STORMZAND/staff photographer

The past year has been a busy one for the Plymouth Community Arts Council, said Pat McCombs, PCAC president.

BAND MEMBERS performed their usual series of summer evening concerts in Kellogg Park. The free concerts have been held since 1960, Battishill said.

Band members also present five or six concerts each year in the Little Theatre at Plymouth Canton High School.

"That's been very rewarding for the group," he said. "The people in the group really enjoy those concerts."

Band members have more rehearsal time for those concerts and are able to present more challenging work. The summer concerts are also enjoyable, he said, although the weekly schedule means there isn't as much time to rehearse.

From Battishill's perspective, 1987 has been a good year for the arts in the Plymouth-Canton community. He's seen a renaissance and new ideas during the year.

"That community feeling is very important," said Battishill, who is band director at West Bloomfield High School.

In 1988, Plymouth Community Band members will try to broaden the organization's focus. They'd like to perform for those who don't ordinarily hear the group.

Performances are planned at nursing homes and at the Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital, the band conductor said. Those performances will be "an important part of our function."

"We try to provide music for people who ordinarily wouldn't hear that kind of stuff."

DURING THE next year, the Plymouth Community Band will continue to present performances at the Plymouth Canton High School Little Theatre and at Kellogg Park during the summer.

McCombs, the PCAC president, also has some ideas for 1988.

"Doing more community projects. Right now, we're concentrated in the school system," she said. "I think more concentration on community events."

PCAC members will seek additional grant support in 1988, she said, including applying for a Michigan Council for the Arts grant.

"We will start looking into more monies and more memberships, active or non-active."

Having an executive director will make the PCAC more visible, McCombs said.

"She'll be able to be in the forefront."

McCombs agreed that the community is one that supports the arts; she's grateful for the support of PCAC volunteers and others.

"I think Plymouth is extremely supportive of all organizations. I don't think you could get a better community."

Area businesses also support the arts, she said.

"If they have it, they're willing to share it. And the arts overlap here, too."

PEOPLE DON'T have to be "arty" to be involved in the arts locally, she said.

"We've really moved along," McCombs said of the PCAC, which was founded in 1969. "We really have come a long way and, hopefully, will continue to do so and to grow."

PCAC supporters would eventually like their own building, she said. The council now has an office at 332 S. Main St. in Plymouth, above the stores on Main Street.

A building would provide a better facility for classes and shows and would be more accessible to the handicapped and older people, McCombs said.

"Ideally, it would be with other arts organizations. We can all support one another."

A better facility is also a concern of Dorothy Koliba, president of the Three Cities Art Club. There isn't really an ideal spot for the club to hold its shows.

"There's just not the facility to have those." The club, which has 30 to 40 members, needs a facility with sufficient space and good lighting for the shows.

Three Cities Art Club members were busy in 1987. They held a spring show in Plymouth; club members also participated in the Fall Festival.

"Quite a few of them do." The club meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Monday of each month at Plymouth Township Hall.

The year was in some ways a sad one for club members; their treasurer of 30 years, Frank York, died. York was one of the original members of the club.

Kids enjoy vacation

Older Plymouth-Canton students kept busy during the winter break. The halls of Centennial Educational Park weren't too crowded last week, but there were some students at CEP.

"Playing basketball," Denny said in describing fun aspects of vacion. He and the others weren't too eited about going back to schoolhis week; on the other hand, ey weren't dreading the returt to school.

"A little bit," Denny said. "I tnt to see my friends, though."

Older Plymouth-Canton studts also kept busy during the wier break. The halls of Centennial Educational Park weren't too crowd last week, but there were some adents at CEP.

During the break from school, tdent athletes held practices at CP. Other students also were at e school during vacation.

Amy Schmidt and Shelle Berl put their time to good use during e winter break. The two, both 1graders at Plymouth Salem High School, were busy last week practicing for the upcoming "Variety Is" band show.

Performances of "Variety Is" are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 29-30, at the Salem auditorium. Amy and Shelle are planning to audition for the show; they've created a dance routine and were busy practicing in the halls of Salem last week.

"I think it's nice that it's open," Amy said of her school. "At least we can use it." Amy's on the "Variety Is" committee this year.

THE TWO students had most of their routine done last week, although they still had to work on the ending. Shelle is a bit nervous about trying out for "Variety Is."

"A little bit," she said. "It's so far away, though."

Amy and Shelle have studied history and other subjects during winter break. Sleep is also high on the list of preferred vacation activities for CEP students on break.

"A lot of kids go skiing over break," Amy said.

Neither of them had any major objections to returning to school this week.

"No, it was long enough, actually," Shelle said of winter break.

"It's something to do every day," Amy added.

The two CEP students plan to try out for the "Variety Is" band show. "Variety Is" performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 29-30.

Warranty to be translated

Motorists long irritated by the gobbledygook and technical jargon found in many automotive warranties have something to cheer about this year in the conversion into plain English of at least one automaker's warranty.

Industry observers believe some consumers feel the jargon is chosen to give the auto companies loopholes to escape from vehicle problems should they occur. But clear writing, short paragraphs, abundant white space and bulleted lists were used by the Document Design Center of Washington, D.C., in creating for Ford Motor Co. a new booklet replacing its tightly printed, 12-page warranty folder.

Ford officials were concerned that the legalistic appearance of the old warranty booklet scared off readers.

But in the new booklet, automotive and technical jargon are replaced by plain language, and when legal terms are required, explanations have been inserted, such as:

"You may have an implied warranty of merchantability (that your car is reasonably fit for the general purpose for which it was sold)."

The move by Ford is expected to set a trend in the auto industry for more plain language consumer documents that are easy to read and understand, according to Lee Gray, deputy director of the Document Design Center, which is part of the American Institutes for Research.

Divorce has a lingering effect

Parents can agree to amicable divorces, but their children can never bring back the days of lost opportunities.

Rev. Lloyd Buss

I did not recognize her. And I should have. I might not have ever envisioned her as a waitress, and could have been surprised at meeting her in a restaurant, but this was more than a surprise. I simply did not recognize her.

She had been an active member of the parish I serve. She attended worship regularly with her parents and brother, and she was active in the activities of the youth group. I remember clearly, the insightful questions and articulate expressions of concern over matters of faith and practice. I remember wishing I had had her overall sense of purpose and grasp of reality at that age of life.

Then came the day when her parents announced their intention to divorce. It was a jolt from the blue. It was something I had simply not associated with them. Their marriage had not been without its stresses, but it appeared stable and appeared stable and purposeful. Whatever their moments of strains, they were committed and determined in their life together.

The marriage covenant that had bound her parents together for over a decade and a half was ended. They sought conversations of counsel and concern, but the decision for divorce had been made long before. They had grown apart. They needed space to find their own lives.

I ASKED about their children. Shortly after, both parents moved out of town. Their son and daughter lived with each parent for different lengths of time. I would think about them every once in a while, and remember the anguish I felt for that experience in their lives.

A goodly number of years have passed since then. Time itself molds changes in our lives that alter how we appear to one another. But it was more than the passage of time that had worked in the life of the young woman who had to tell me who she was.

We didn't have much time to talk. It was a busy lunch hour. She was back in school. She was living in a nearby community. Her brother had gone to a university for a semester, and was planning to re-enroll next fall. Her parents were in good health.

HOW COULD I have walked by her without recognizing her? I remembered only the years of her delight and passion for life lived in the confidence of security and support. I remembered her probing of proprieties and her challenges of the conventional. I remembered her exciting explorations of thought and practice. I remembered the unlimited opportunities opening before this person of potential and gift.

Divorce has been increasingly regarded as harmless. The effects of divorce are considered resolvable. It is insisted that life's fulfillment should not be denied to anyone. It is maintained that our skills of life and counsel can make that happen.

Life's fulfillment should not be denied to anyone. That is why I did not finish my lunch the day I did not recognize the young woman in front of me. I grieved for all the years she had lost, and all the years we had lost together in the unfolding of that fulfillment. Parents can agree to amicable divorces but their children can never bring back the days of lost opportunities.

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor at Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester.

Lutherans mark new year with merge

On Sunday, 11,000 Lutheran churches across the United States officially became part of the 5.3-million member Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. Many churches in the area marked the event Sunday.

The Southeastern Michigan Synod of ELCA has 162 congregations with a baptized membership of 76,000. In Livonia, there are eight congregations of the new church.

The ELCA is the result of a merger between the 110,000-member Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, the 2.3-million member American Lutheran Church and the 2.9-million member Lutheran Church in America. The merger was approved by the conventions of the three churches, which in 1986 voted almost unanimously to unite by 1988.

The new church headquarters is in Chicago. Although the Lutheran church is a denomination with German and Scandinavian roots, it is a church with a growing membership from all ethnic and racial backgrounds.

The new church debated the inclusion of the word "evangelical" in its name since the word has often been taken to mean "fundamentalist." Literally the word means "good news," and in the name ELCA, it refers to the denomination's commitment to proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ.

The recent merger was even more special for the 25 families of the Servants of Christ Church in Omaha.

Servants of Christ is one of about three congregations in the nation that will hold an inaugural worship service during the first two weeks of 1988, said Lowell Almen, secretary of the ELCA in Chicago.

The "pioneer" churches will begin their history without ties to the Lutheran Church in America, American Lutheran Church or the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, he said.

Many on hand as ALC headquarters close

AP — Thanking the Lord for the worship life they had shared, about 250 people jammed a tiny chapel and adjacent cafeteria to mark the closing of American Lutheran Church headquarters.

Members of the American Lutheran Church included Ascension Lutheran Church in Livonia, Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Westland, Sword of the Spirit Lutheran Church in Livonia and Timothy Church in Livonia.

"There are so many things to be thankful for and certainly that ought to be the hallmark of a gathering of this group of people, even on this last day," ALC Bishop David W. Preus told church employees.

The merger of the ALC with the Lutheran Church in America, with headquarters in New York and Philadelphia, and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, with headquarters in St. Louis, took effect at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Chicago was selected earlier as the national headquarters of the new 5.3 million member church, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

"BROTHERS AND sisters in Christ: let us give thanks for the worship life we have shared as members of the national staff of the American Lutheran Church," Kathryn Baerwald, a Minneapolis lawyer who served as general secretary of the ALC, said in her opening prayer.

Preus praised the work of the ALC and the 450 employees at church headquarters. About 30 to 40 of the employees are being transferred to the new church headquarters, according to Herb David, ALC director of communications.

"The Lord is bigger than any hurts or sorrows or griefs and, indeed, can fill your heart with thanksgiving as you reflect on what has been in your life here in these offices," said Preus.

"I'm just proud of the work that has been done by people here in these offices," said Preus, who becomes bishop emeritus and a professor at Luther Northwestern Seminar in St. Paul.

The ALC ministry has had a worldwide effect, he said. The ALC was formed in 1960 through the merger of three Lutheran churches.

ABOUT A dozen employees who had served on the ALC staff during its 27 years of existence were honored at the end of the service.

Madonna College offers telecourse on civil rights

Why not examine the civil rights movement as one of the most significant and far-reaching social phenomena of contemporary history, which gave rise to a host of other movements that have changed the face of American culture?

Offered this winter semester as a college course, via television, is "Eyes on the Prize: History of the American Civil Rights Movement."

This television course offers a comprehensive history of the people, stories, events and issues of the civil rights struggle in America from World War II to the present. Class meetings are Wednesdays, Jan. 6, Feb. 3, March 2 and April 6, from 1-4 p.m.

Other telecourses scheduled this winter at Madonna College are health care organization, "The Business File," "The Business of Management," "Introduction to Computers: The New Literacy," "Economics USA" and "Introduction to Humanities: Quality of Life."

These courses are offered over WTVS-TV Channel 56, and/or the College Cable Channel. Videotapes of the programs can also be viewed in the Madonna College TV studio, or can be checked out in the college library.

Students earning credit through television courses are required to view the weekly program and also attend up to six group discussion sessions with assigned faculty. The courses range from two to four college credits.

Persons wishing to enroll for these courses or other courses offered at Madonna College this winter should contact the Admissions Office at 591-5052. Telecasts begin the week of Jan. 6.

Volunteers needed to help the poor

Whether a Garden City organization that provides food, transportation, shelter and other emergency services to the poor can continue to function will be discussed at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1, at a meeting at the Garden City Presbyterian Church, 1841 Middlebelt.

The organization, FISH of Garden City, was founded 13 years ago. It is in desperate need of volunteers. Unless more volunteers are recruited, the organization probably will die.

Anyone may attend the meeting.

Divorce recovery to focus on children

Ward Presbyterian Church Single Point Ministries will conduct a Children's Divorce Recovery Program, starting Thursday, Feb. 4.

This program is designed for children from kindergarten through grade 12 to help them understand and communicate their feelings, and deal with some of the common divorce issues.

It will be held concurrently with the adult Divorce Recovery Workshop, which starts Feb. 4. Pre-registration will begin Sunday. A $10 donation is asked for the Children's Workshop. For more information, call 422-1854.

Special commission to survey veterans

Detailed information about the state of health of an estiamted 161,000 veterans of the Vietnam Comflict living in Michigan is presently being gathered by representatives of Michigan's newly formed Agent Orange Commission.

The survey, believed to the be most comprehensive ever conducted, asks questions about the health of the veteran and his or her children and exact locations of where the veteran served. Those who served in any parts of Vietnam, Thailand or Cambodia will be surveyed.

Findings from the survey will be used to conduct further research on Agent Orange or dioxin.

Fourteen members served on Michigan's Agent Orange Commission, including 11 veterans, nine of whom sereved in the Vietnam Conflict.

For more information about the survey or the commission, call 332-4136.

Nominations accepted for service award

Nominations for the Project Independence Award, an annual honor bestowed by Michigan's Office of Services to the Aging for providing outstanding services to senior citizens, can be submitted to regional area agencies between now and Friday, Feb. 6.

One award each is presented to an outstanding rural and urban facility which demonstrates it provides services which promote the dignity and independence of senior citizens.

Winners will be recognized during Senior Power Day festivities in April.

For more information, call (517) 373-8230.

Two good films for seniors club

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

Are there any new films out on aging? I am setting up some educational sessions for the seniors' group at our church.

Mrs. D.B., Peterboro,

Dear Mrs. B.:

Two excellent, current films on healthy aging are "Staying Active: Wellness After Sixty" and "The Sixth Sense,"

"Staying Active: Wellness After Sixty" presents material that is vital to maintaining optimal health in the later years. Professional advice is given on maintaining a proper diet, coping with stress, starting an exercise program and developing a positive outlook on life.

"The Sixth Sense," narrated by Arlene Francis and presented by the National Council on Aging, takes a new and creative look at the changes that go along with growing older. The result, healthy adaptation, is what they call the "sixth sense."

Both films can be rented from your local film rental agency.

Dear Jo:

In a previous column, you advised one of your readers to purchase a book called "Success Over Sixty" by Albert Myers.

Could you please let me know where I can get this book?

J.A. Mc., "Over Seventy"

Dear Mr. Mc.:

This book is not on the shelf in most books stores so you will have to special order it. The bookseller will have to know the name of the book, the author and the publisher.

"Success Over Sixty" is published by Summit Books, New York. The order will probably take about six weeks to arrive.

Dear Jo:

I am in my 50s and feel old. All my social contacts are my age or older. I would like to associate with younger people but rarely have the occasion to be with them. Can you help me?

Mrs. W.S.

Dear Mrs. S:

You can help yourself by looking for opportunities in your community to be with people younger than you. Go where young people are — schools, clubs, political meetings, university courses, etc.

Don't ignore your own family. Do you have nieces and nephews that you could invite over for dinner?

I am surprised that a person in her 50s feels old — you've got a lot of good living ahead of you. Good luck!

Readers can write to Jolayne Farrell at 11 Cynthia Crescent, Richmond Hill, Ont. L4E 1J3.

Don't spoil nature . . . leave only footprints.

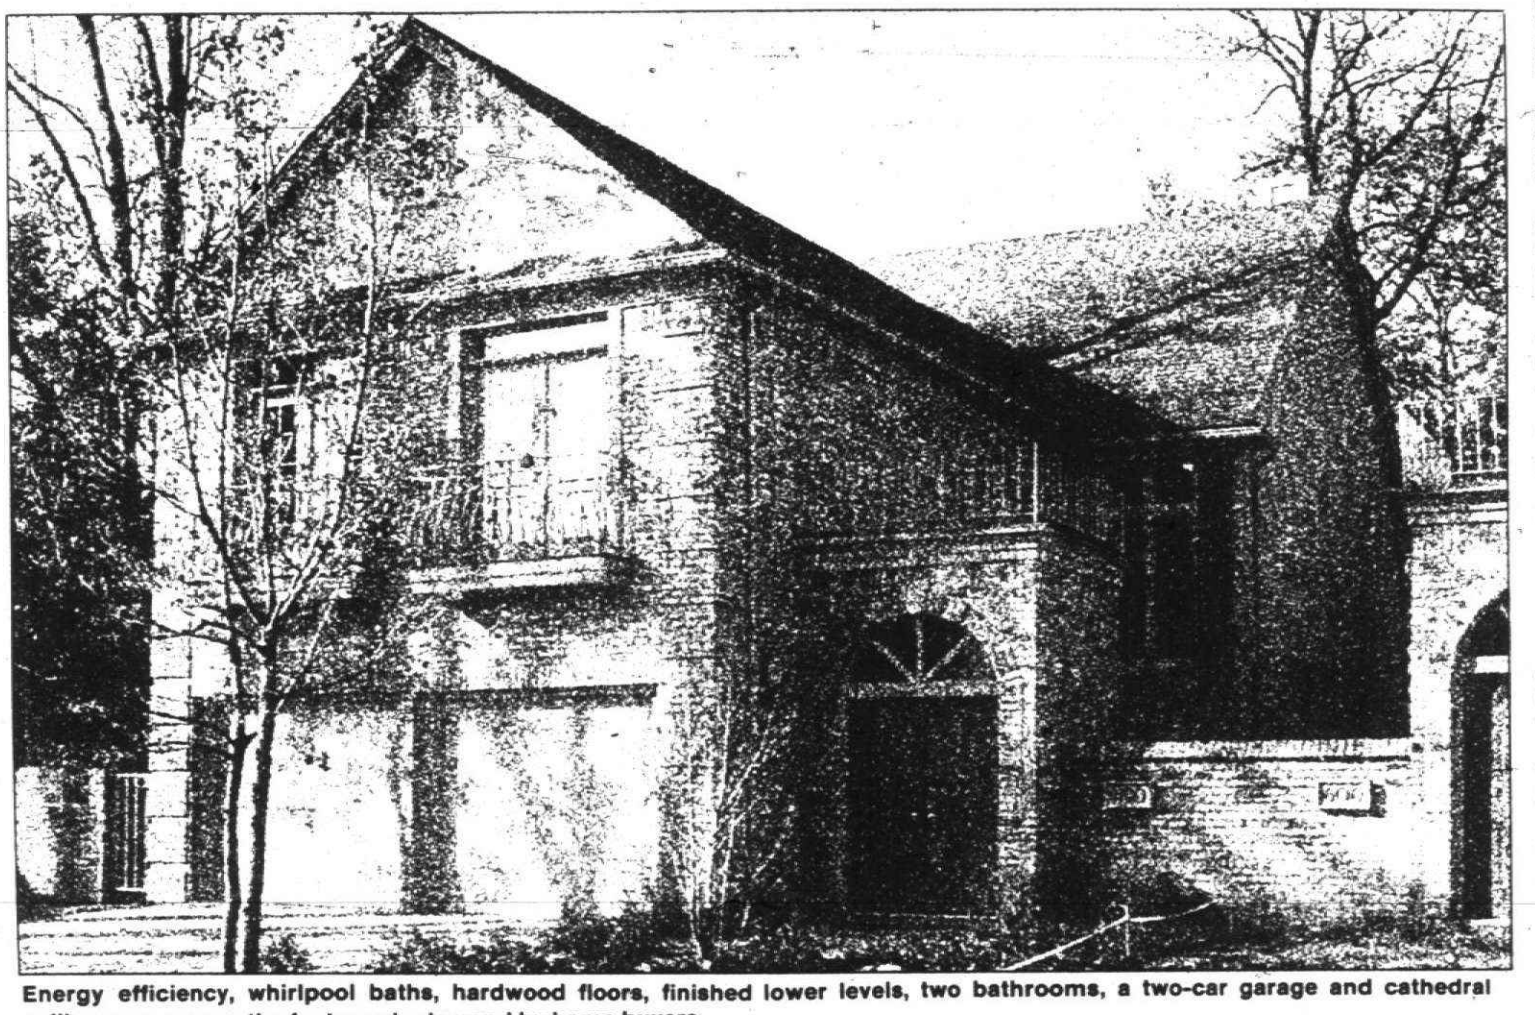
Bullish builders

'Moderate' homes pegged at $160,000



Energy efficiency, whirlpool baths, hardwood floors, finished lower levels, two bathrooms, a two-car garage and cathedral ceilings are among the features in demand by home buyers.

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Low interest rates, adjustable mortgages, and consumer demand will keep new home construction a healthy industry for 1988, predicts the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM).

"Those of us active in residential construction see a continuation of the strong sales and building activity for 1988," said Herbert Lawson, new BASM president and president of Herbert Lawson Inc. of Southfield.

Lawson and the new BASM officers made their comments during the organization's annual market outlook press conference at the Michigan Inn in Southfield Tuesday.

He predicted the final tally of single family building permits issued in the seven-county southeastern Michigan area for 1987 would reach 12,000, an increase of 647, or 5.7 percent, over the 1986 total.

"Consumer attitudes are upbeat. Home-A-Rama, which we produce, attracted a record 110,000 to see new homes in two locations last fall."

Lawson cited Governor Blanchard's efforts to bring new industry to Michigan as another factor in the strong housing market. Movements such as EDS leasing additional office space in Troy and bringing more out of state people into the area will result in increased demand for new housing, he said.

"There are 33 million more people in the U.S. since 1980. That translates into realistic density. We've got to provide housing," added Irvin Yackness, general counsel for BASM.

DENNIS DICKSTEIN, president of Ralph Manuel Associates, Realtors of Birmingham, and immediate past president of BASM, said the recent social trends toward family and marriage might produce another housing demand not unlike that brought on by the post World War II baby boom.

"Family life is in again. I expect to see a tremendous increase in the demand for housing," he said.

Dickstein of West Bloomfield said the new home market hasn't softened like the resale market.

"The resale market is a bit soft now, down by about 8 percent as compared to last year. Part of the reason is many homeowners take their properties off the market from Thanksgiving through the New Year. The holidays are always a slow time. New homes haven't experienced this downturn. A builder will come out on Christmas Eve to show a model home."

New homes continue to be a good value because while interest rates are down, labor and material costs remain steady, he said.

He characterized the housing market as stable, with neither the buyer nor seller getting an unfair advantage right now.

In addition to energy efficiency, the most important single feature new home buyers are requesting is the whirlpool bath, according to the builders.

"We've had a whirlpool bath in every home we've sold in the past six months," said James Bonadeo, president of James Bonadeo Builders of Plymouth, and BASM first vice president.

Hardwood floors, finished lower levels, two bathrooms, a two-car garage and cathedral ceilings are other popular features.

BUILDERS CONSIDER a moderately priced home one that sells in the $160,000 range. A modest new home would cost $110,000 to $120,000, they said.

One of BASM's goals is to better inform the buying public about the various kinds of mortgages and methods of financing new homes, Lawson said.

"The adjustable rate mortgage provides an extremely advantageous opportunity for a family to upgrade its housing objectives and still stay within its monthly budget," he said.

The best rate currently available is in the 7½-7¾ range with an annual or lifetime cap. It can be converted to a fixed rate loan without additional charge to the borrower.

"It's having the best of both worlds," said Robert Halperin, president of Crannie Inc. of Birmingham, and a BASM vice president.

"If interest rates continue to go down, with an adjustable rate mortgage, it lowers your payment," Halperin said.

Sixty percent of loans being closed currently are adjustable rate mortgages, he said.

Builders did not identify a single community as most active in new construction.

"The entire southeastern area is active — both east and west — consistently where there is land to be developed," Halperin said.

The cost of the land today makes up about 35 percent of the cost of the new home, according to Bonadeo. With less and less prime sites available, builders have to deal with wetlands and other environmental factors.

The new BASM president announced that the association would direct its efforts this year toward:

- working to modify government ordinances considered restrictive
- working with the national association to develop methods to reduce the federal deficit
- achieving closer cooperation between builders, suppliers and subcontractors who work to serve the housing needs of the area.

Builder of Year honor awarded to Frankel

Three area persons have been honored by the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan. They are Herman Frankel, Builder of the Year of 1987; Nancy Bonadeo, Young Builder of the Year; and David Sakwa, Realtor of the Year.

Award winners were honored at the annual BASM awards banquet on recently at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Criteria for the Builder of the Year award are demonstrated cooperation with associate members, an overall performance that promotes the overall objective of BASM, and a reputation for fairness.

For more than 25 years, the Herman Frankel Organization has been a driving force in the development of commercial, luxury residential, senior citizens, shopping center and condominium projects in the tri-county area, according to the BASM.

The organization was lauded for its commitment to the southeastern Michigan region. It has played an integral part in the area's growth and development over three decades.

Frankel served as a past president of BASM in 1982. The West Bloomfield Township resident has been the recipient of numerous business and civic awards. His community involvement is extensive.

THE ASSOCIATION selects its young builder from candidates who are principal officers or owners of licensed building companies that have built at least one home during the year. Candidates must also be members of the BASM Young Builders Committee.

Herman Frankel (right) was named Builder of the Year for 1987 by the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan. Congratulating him is Dennis Dickstein, BASM president for 1987.

Bonadeo, 29, is construction manager for James Bonadeo Builders of Plymouth. The family-owned business is known for the development of residential properties in the Plymouth area. The family has been active in the construction industry for more than 38 years.

Lawson named BASM president

Herbert Lawson, president of Herbert Lawson of Southfield, is the president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan for 1988.

Lawson of Birmingham served as BASM first vice president for 1987.

His company specializes in building condominiums and land development. The company has developed land and housing worth over $175 million in southeastern Michigan.

Lawson has served as BASM membership committee chairman, condo committee member and a member of the association's executive board of directors.

James Bonadeo, president of James Bonadeo Builders, formerly of Redford Township, was named BASM first vice president. Bonadeo recently moved his offices to Plymouth, where he also lives. He has been in business for 38 years.

Other new officers include Byrne Benson, president of Byrne Benson Homes of Pontiac, treasurer; and Melvin Rosenhaus, president of Uniland Corp. of Farmington Hills, secretary. Benson is a resident of Ortonville. Rosenhaus lives in Birmingham.

BASM named four vice presidents. They are Bernard Glieberman, president of Crosswinds-West of Novi; Robert Halperin, president of Crannie Inc. of Birmingham; Abraham Ran, vice president and partner, Biltmore Properties Inc. of Troy; and Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, president of Holtzman & Silverman Construction of Farmington Hills.

Glieberman and Halperin live in Southfield. Ran and Silverman are West Bloomfield residents.

Immediate past president is Dennis Dickstein, president of Ralph Manuel Associates, Realtors of Birmingham. Dickstein lives in West Bloomfield. Irvin Yackness is executive vice president and general counsel for BASM, located in Farmington Hills. He lives in Bloomfield Hills.

Lean, mean Chrysler grows complicated

Chrysler's Bob Lutz is beginning to look like one of those old variety show jugglers who tried to keep plates balanced spinning at the end of sticks.

Named executive vice president in charge of international and truck operations when he defected to Chrysler from Ford a couple of years ago, Lutz now adds Chrysler's Jeep-Eagle franchise to his responsibilities, which means his product responsibilities now stretch from central Wisconsin to the Italian Riviera, where Chrysler is doing a thriving business selling V-12 engines to Italian boat builders.

GETTING RESPONSIBILITY for Jeep is something of a cold shower for Lutz. Truck operations includes two of the best-selling vehicles in the country, as well as Chrysler's most profitable lines, the minivans and mid-size pickups.

International operations means supervising Lamborghini and Maserati operations. This means Lutz gets to start his presentation with reports showing how much money he is making, and finishes it off with a slide show of exotic Italian cars. Tough, huh?

It couldn't last forever.

Now he's charged with building a coherent product line to fill up Chrysler's new Jeep-Eagle franchise. Then Lutz, who once ran BMW sales in Germany, gets this idea he wants to sell Chrysler products in the Black Forest.

IF YOU'VE READ the Sayings of Chairman Lee, you know the way to success is cutting down extraneous foreign interests, rationalizing your product line to reduce manufacturing costs and closing surplus manufacturing capacity.

Now we see Chrysler spending the results of that formula on rights to a French car name, adding three partially used plants assembling components from offshore and trying to launch a brand new business exporting cars to Europe.

The individual elements of the strategy are convincingly logical. The new French-designed cars Chrysler inherits from AMC, particularly the new Premier, are being applauded as superb jobs of engineering.

THE JEEP name and vehicle have almost as strong a cult following as Elvis Presley. And the United States, thanks to last year's economic havoc, now ranks with the low-cost areas of the world as a manufacturing and export base.

On the other hand, Chrysler is now selling Jeeps, its own four-wheel drive vehicles, three divisions worth of passenger cars, pickups, a full line of Japanese cars, plus French-built imports. It's buying engines from Sweden, France and Japan, and is dabbling with two of the most esoteric of exotic imports plus cars made by independent car builder Carroll Shelby in California.

IT'S PROBABLY the most complicated structure in the auto business and has been built up in just the past two years. It's a far cry from lean and mean Chrysler that overwhelmed the doubters just a few years ago with a straightforward message to consumers.

There are too many good ideas in the package to discredit it. But it's going to take a lot of shaking out to make it work.

It's also likely that a few nameplates may fall in the process.

Dan McCosh is the automotive editor of Popular Science.

Frankel named builder of year

"Nancy graduated from Eastern Michigan (University) business school where she majored in computers," said James Bonadeo, her father and the company president.

BONADEO SAID he always wanted his daughter to enter the family business, but "she didn't want it to appear that she was stepping in because she was the boss' daughter," he said.

For six years, she worked in computers at ADP in Ann Arbor, where she was very successful, according to her father.

She went to work for her father three years ago.

"I'm a widower. Nancy would meet me for breakfast each Saturday. She came into a house one Saturday and just looked mesmerized. Later she asked if I would have a place in the company for her," Bonadeo said.

She started by cleaning houses, far removed from the business suit world of the computer business, her father said.

Bonadeo lives in Plymouth.

DAVID SAKWA of Wales Realty in Farmington Hills has been named Realtor of the Year.

Sakwa is the owner-president of Wales Realty, which specializes in the sales of vacant land to developers. Wales Realty has represented every major developer in the tri-county area.

Sakwa's company is family-owned. His son, Gary, is an associate with the agency. Sakwa attended Wayne State University and the Detroit College of Law. He lives in Farmington Hills.

NOVI'S Albert K. Marshall of First Federal of Michigan was named BASM's Associate of the Year.

Two special honors were also announced by BASM: James P. Babcock of J.P. Babcock Builders of St. Clair Shores and the late Harry Durbin were inducted into the BASM Hall of Fame in recognition of their accomplishments in the building industry.

Dennis Dickstein, 1987 BASM president, also was given a special award.

MasterCard helps out 6 charities

Mary DiPaolo

It's always nice to find out about organizations (both large and small) that are interested in doing more than just maximizing profits during the course of a year.

As business owners and managers, it's too easy for us to forget about the differences we can make by working cooperatively with one another for some common good.

MasterCard International is one organization that embarked on a unique marketing program that has generated the most enthusiasm in its 20-year history.

From Oct. 1 through Dec. 31 of last year, MasterCard ran its "Choose to Make a Difference" program that "represents a valuable new direction in private sector cause-related marketing," said Russell E. Hogg, MasterCard's president and chief executive officer.

THE PROGRAM was established to allow MasterCard's 80 million card holders to choose where more than $2 million would be donated among six national charities. The charities were selected after a year-long study conducted by The Cambridge Group, an independent consulting firm from Chicago that identified the causes people are most likely to support.

The charities selected for the program were the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, the National Association on Drug Abuse Problems, the American Heart Association, the AMC Cancer Research Center, and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

MASTERCARD DONATED three-fourths of a cent for each transaction made during the fourth quarter of 1987. A guaranteed minimum of $2 million was established by MasterCard, with the final results of the program made available by the end of this month, according to Deborah Hughes, director of public affairs at MasterCard.

Cardholders were able to select where donations would be allocated by completing ballots in Sunday newspaper supplements, national magazines and statement inserts at participating banks. MasterCard also used its fourth quarter advertising budget to promote the program with ads appearing on network and cable television, radio, newspapers and magazines, in-store radio, and shopping mall displays.

THE RESPONSE to MasterCard's "Choose to Make a Difference" program has been so great that the company will repeat it again this year and perhaps expand it over a longer period of time, Hughes said. The program indicates how contributions to charitable causes can become a cooperative (and successful) effort between an organization and its customer base.

Thank you, MasterCard, for choosing to make a difference.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.
Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight
New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss
BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.
No Dieting — Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."
There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).
Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.
Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.
"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.
The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.
Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W24, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800)527-9700, Ext. W24.

Mike Gentile (top) of Redford Catholic Central puts a headlock on North Farmington's Adam Cook in a 121-pound match at the Salem Invitational Tournament.

Shamrocks dominate Salem's mat tourney

Top-rated Redford Catholic Central gave its most awesome display of wrestling dominance to date when the Shamrocks overwhelmed the competition to capture first place in Plymouth Salem's annual invitational Saturday.

Catholic Central advanced its wrestlers to the final in 10 of the 13 weight classes, and the Shamrocks walked away winners in eight.

"That's the first time we've had so many in the finals and won," said Catholic Central coach Mike Rodriguez, adding his team hasn't reached its potential yet.

"We haven't even started to peak," he said. "Come the end of the month when we have our invitational, the kids should really be hot by then."

The Shamrocks will be host for their own tournament on Saturday, Jan. 16.

Catholic Central's Matt Helm, who won the 134-pound title, was named the most outstanding wrestler of the Salem meet. In the final, Helm scored an impressive victory when he pinned Portage Northern's Joe Latora, who had finished ahead of Helm in the state meet last year.

THE OTHER Shamrock winners included heavyweight Toby Heaton, Mike Gentile (121), Jay Helm (128), Brendon Rock (140), Chris Rodriguez (157), Chris Lemanski (169)and Lee Krueger (200). Heaton received a trophy for having the most pins, recording four falls on the day.

Rock and Lemanski celebrated their return to the lineup with championship efforts. Rock had been out with a separated shoulder, Lemanski with a case of pneumonia.

Novi came the closest to the Shamrocks, and the Wildcats were 132½ points behind in second place at that. Portage Northern and Central were next, and Plymouth Salem and Canton finished fifth and sixth, respectively.

Catholic Central and Novi went head-to-head in four of the final matches, and the Shamrocks won all four to build their advantage while putting the Wildcats in a deeper hole.

Jay Helm whipped Novi's Scott Brown in the 128 final, Rodriguez pinned Matt Brinker, Lemanski won a close decision from Ron Fritz and Krueger outpointed Brett Keir.

IN ADDITION to the Shamrocks' dominance, the Portage schools, Jenison and Novi combined for three titles. That meant the rest of Observerland had only one champion, Tom Flores of Plymouth Canton. He gave CC one of its few losses in the final, winning the 100-pound crown with a pin over Kevin Rowe. Flores had three pins during the tournament.

Livonia Stevenson's Dave Wojiechowski and Kurt Will were runners-up at 107 and 147 pounds, respectively, and Plymouth Salem's Jeff Delbeke was second at 114.

"We did about what I thought we could," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "We weren't in the top three category, but I don't think we could have beaten any of the teams that finished ahead of us.

Ypsilanti capitalizes on Salem turnovers

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Coach Bob Brodie wants to put a halt to a disturbing trend before it has a lasting effect on his Plymouth Salem basketball team.

The Rocks have been plagued by turnovers, that statistic coaches dread looking at when things are going poorly.

Salem committed 35 turnovers in its last game — a loss to Monroe — before the holiday break, and the Rocks had 41 Tuesday as they began the 1988 portion of their schedule with a 63-49 loss at Ypsilanti.

The game was going well for Salem, as it came from behind to take a 13-11 lead on a pair of M.J. Ewald baskets and Pat Rzepecki's free throw at the end of the first quarter.

But that early boost of confidence was suddenly deflated when the Braves got serious about applying a press in the second period.

EWALD, WHO led all scorers with 18 points, gave the Rocks a 15-13 lead with two free throws, but Ypsilanti scored the next 11 points and Salem was fighting to catch up the rest of the night.

"It's not so much that we're having difficulty against the pressure as it is making bad decisions at the other end, trying to rush things," Brodie said.

Compounding the second-quarter debacle was the success the Braves also had on the offensive boards. Besides scoring off the transition game, Ypsilanti made good on its second-shot opportunities, too.

"In the first quarter, we did a decent job of blocking out on the glass," Brodie said. "In the second quarter, they just exploded. "They must have had eight offensive rebounds in that quarter alone. You couple that with turnovers, and it's tough to beat a team when you're playing like that."

THE BRAVES took the lead when David Williams popped in a basket from alongside the key, and Derrick Pressley converted a turnover to make it 18-15.

A Salem timeout failed to stem Ypsilanti's momentum. Tevis Robinson scored on a rebound, and Pressley tallied twice, on a back-door layup and a long-court pass.

The Rocks got back to within 27-20 as Scott Hale used the glass for two, but Ypsilanti extended its lead to 33-20 at halftime on John Dignan's free throws, Joe Poole's jumper and Pressley's bank shot.

Salem endured a frustrating second half in which the Rocks were un-

Chiefs begin '88 with another win

The new year began the same way the old one ended for Plymouth Canton's boys basketball team — with a victory.

The Chiefs ran their record to 4-0 by trouncing South Lyon 68-52 on the loser's court in non-conference action Tuesday.

Canton, which had been idle for three weeks during the holiday recess, survived a sluggish performance and 30 turnovers to win a "very ragged game," according to coach Tom Niemi.

"We just didn't play with much intensity," he said, "but we're glad to get home with the win."

The Chiefs held South Lyon to just six points in the first quarter, but they had only a five-point lead at halftime, 29-24, after the Lions found their scoring touch in the second.

Canton turned the game completely in its favor in the third quarter, however. The Chiefs outscored their host 22-7 to establish a 51-31 advantage with eight minutes remaining.

Brian Paupore scored 13 points to lead a quartet of Canton players in double figures. Roger Trice and Mitch Fyke had 12 apiece, and Brad Carey came off the bench to toss in 10.

In addition, Jeff Anulewicz pulled down 10 rebounds and played an excellent game defensively against South Lyon's big man, Mike Cobb, who was held to nine points. Tony Sevakis and Mark Hoorn paced the Lions with 11 points apiece.

Canton plays archrival Plymouth Salem in the Rocks' gym Friday night.

Chiefs hope young team will spur future success

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Second-year coach Allie Suffety was planning ahead when he selected this year's Plymouth Canton girls volleyball team.

The Chiefs went 1-24 in his first year, and Suffety decided the way to mold a winning program was to give talented young players a chance to play and be patient while they developed.

Canton expects to do better in 1988; no one has written off a season that hasn't yet started. But, with a junior-laden squad, the Chiefs can't help but have an eye on the future, too.

The junior varsity had a winning record last year, and Suffety "wanted to build on that" by taking many of those players up to the varsity "on the premise of building the program for the next few years."

THE CHIEFS have only two seniors on the team, both of whom are counted among the four returnees from a year ago.

Carrie Pyhtila, a returning starter who is primarily an attacker, and Jodi Houdek, another attacker who will play a bigger role this year, are the lone seniors on the 12-player squad.

volleyball

'I think the prospects of improving are great. I'd like to see a .500 season or better, and I think we have the ability to achieve that.'

— Allie Suffety
Canton volleyball coach

Juniors Shannon Meath and Michelle Fortier started as sophomores and help provide Canton with a nucleus of varsity experience.

Meath, an attacker, begins her third season on the varsity, and Fortier is the main setter but can also attack when in the front row.

Suffety would like to see Fortier, who was the point guard on Canton's basketball team that was runnerup in the Western Lakes last fall, also assume another role.

"I'm still waiting for someone to emerge as a leader," he said. "I'd like to have the floor leadership come from a setter.

"I'M LOOKING for Michelle to be our floor leader in volleyball as she is in basketball."

Suffety has great hopes for sophomore Susan Ferko, a 5-foot-11 middle attacker. She played with the varsity in the district tournament last year and "is going to be an asset to the program," Suffety said.

The roster includes juniors Karen Keenan, Melinda Yergen, Erin MacDonald, Candi Jones, Alison Flaskamp and Rhonda Kibilko and sophomore Alissa Huth. All are attackers/blockers with the exception of Yergen and Huth, both of whom are setters.

The Chiefs haven't won a regular season game in three years, and Canton's only win last year came in the district. The Chiefs, who open the season Wednesday, Jan. 13, with a game at Plymouth Salem, hope to get that first victory — and then some — much earlier.

Suffety is encouraged by the fact the Chiefs are "working hard and starting to believe in themselves," he said.

'88 has rocky start for Salem basketball team

able to cut Ypsilanti's lead below nine points for the most part. Their best chance came midway in the final quarter when Salem got within seven, 52-45.

Todd Marion drilled an outside shot to make it 52-43, and the Braves proceeded to miss two 1-and-1 free throw chances. Ewald sank two at the opposite end, and the Rocks were still alive with almost four minutes left to play.

BUT YPSILANTI ran off seven quick points, again capitalizing on turnovers, to take the fight out of Salem and decide the contest.

"You expend so much energy to make up a deficit, and you know sooner or later there's going to be a letdown," Brodie said. "It's always difficult to allow a team a big lead like that and try to come back."

Salem, which has slipped to 2-2 after starting the season 2-0, had hoped to put the memory of the Monroe game behind it and start the new year off right.

"We worked so hard over Christmas vacation," Brodie said. "That loss lies in your belly for so long, and you hope to come out with a victory.

"But we didn't get the job done. We'll step back in the gym tomorrow and go back to work."

THE ROCKS face undefeated Plymouth Canton in their next game Friday night at Salem. Brodie hopes that rivalry will see the Rocks overcome Tuesday's woes.

"Canton, I feel, is one of the teams to beat in the league, and I'm sure they'll be undefeated after tonight," he said. "And, hopefully, the (Salem) players will come ready to play the game."

Ypsilanti had only a 1-4 record going into Tuesday's game, but that was misleading since the Braves have lost to Highland Park, Lansing Eastern, Adrian and Inkster. They defeated Romulus for their only previous victory.

"It was a good win for us," first-year coach Bob Rowley said.

Rowley previously coached at Ypsilanti Lincoln and replaced the legendary Dick Ouellette, who retired at the end of last season.

"At times we really played up, and at times we really played bad. We have to be hustling and aggressive all the time.

"BUT WE just turn it on and turn it off. We turned it off in the second half and let them get back in the game. We don't have the killer instinct."

Ewald, who also had seven rebounds, was the only player in double figures for Salem. Marion and Smith added seven points apiece, Ryan Johnson six.

Poole and Pressley paced Ypsilanti's scoring with 17 points each, and Williams and John Dignan added nine apiece.

Player losses weaken Ocelots

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

When Dave Bogataj took the job as Schoolcraft College's mens basketball coach, he knew there would be problems. He was right.

The Ocelots started the season as a perimeter-oriented team, behind the scoring of guards Steve Hawley, Deon Frederick and Mike Sullivan. That has changed. Sullivan left the team a month ago because his grades were suffering, and last week Frederick left the team because his grades had suffered too much.

FREDERICK, THE team's second-leading scorer (19 points per game) and point guard, became academically ineligible at the end of the first semester.

"It's a major loss, a major loss," said Bogataj, whose team is 5-8 overall but 0-4 in the Eastern Conference. "We're really hurting at the guard position."

Considering the Ocelots were shorthanded in the frontcourt positions to start with, it's apparent the team's troubles have been compounded. "Now," admitted Bogataj, "we're hurting at both."

SC HAS EIGHT players on their team. Ryan Williams will move into the starting lineup, replacing Frederick. "He's going to have to hit the eight-to-10 footers and not turn the ball over," said Bogataj. "The kids have good attitudes and practices are going well, for what we're able to do."

With Frederick and Sullivan gone, Bogataj must search for points from his inside people.

basketball

'We're going to try to open up the inside game more, get Ladion (Tait) and Brad (Ridgeway) involved more. We've got to get the ball into the post.'

— Dave Bogataj
SC men's cage coach

"Our outside shooting is Hawley," he said simply.

That means getting the ball into 6-foot-8 Brad Ridgeway, 6-4 Andy Stephens, 6-4 Ladion Tait and 6-3 Mark Claiborne. "We're going to try to open up the inside game more, get Ladion and Brad involved more," said Bogataj. "We've got to get the ball into the post."

OF COURSE, with your point guard gone, passing the ball inside may be a problem. "That's going to make it real tough," admitted Bogataj. "Ever since break, we've been working on passing the ball in, getting the ball inside.

"We'll just play as hard as we can for as long as we can. You've got to play with what you got."

SC doesn't have much, and now Claiborne's status is questionable, at least for Saturday's 6 p.m. home game against Alpena CC. Claiborne received an incomplete in a class, leaving him short of credits for eligibility.

Alpena is in a situation similar to SC's. "They're as short as we are, they only have nine players, and they have trouble stopping people like we do. They like to run and gun."

Alpena is also 0-4 in the Eastern Conference, 5-7 overall. One other conference team, St. Clair CC, is winless (0-4). St. Clair is 0-10 overall.

SC has gone through the toughest part of its league schedule, losing to Highland Park CC, Mott CC, Oakland CC and Macomb CC. Highland Park is atop the conference standings at 4-0; Mott is 3-0, Macomb is 3-1 and OCC is 2-1. Henry Ford CC is also 3-0, but its wins have come against St. Clair, Alpena and Delta CC (1-2 in the conference, 6-7 overall).

SC plays four games in a week: After Alpena, the Ocelots meet Madonna, St. Clair and Henry Ford.

Even if the competition is easier, such scheduling could wear down a team with just eight players. Newest additions are guards Greg Good, from Northville, and Mike Wiktor, a Redford Catholic Central grad.

Hawley certainly will get a workout. So far the Westland John Glenn product has done exceptionally well, averaging a conference-leading 27.3 points per game. He hasn't gotten much support, however; Claiborne is scoring 11 points a game (12.5 in the league) and Ridgeway has improved to 10.5 in conference action.

There could be a couple of victories in the near future for SC — provided there are no injuries and Claiborne stays eligible.

● HOCKEY STAR

Brian DeYoung, a 17-year-old goalie from Canton Township, was named Little Caesars "Player of Tomorrow" and was recognized between periods of a recent Detroit Red Wings hockey game.

DeYoung, who attends Canton High School, plays for Little Caesars Triple A Midget team, which has such college opponents as Wisconsin, Princeton, Harvard, West Point and Northeastern on its schedule this season.

DeYoung, who began playing hockey at age 8 in a Plymouth-based league, has played for various age-group teams along the way. His career has taken him to Lake Placid, N.Y., where the United States Olympic Committee maintains a training center, on three occasions. DeYoung has a goals-against average of 1.55.

● YOUTH HOCKEY

Canton Parks and Recreation Department, in cooperation with the Wayne-Westland YMCA, will sponsor a floor hockey program for boys and girls in grades one through six.

The program consists of a five-week clinic beginning the week of Monday, Jan. 18, and a four-week league starting Saturday, Feb. 6. The cost is $18 per child.

Registration can be done in person or by mail at the recreation department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Mich. 48188.

The clinics will be given at the following sites and times: Mondays, Field School, 3:50-4:45 p.m. and 4:50-5:45 p.m.; Tuesdays, Gallimore School, 3:50-4:45 p.m. and 4:50-5:45 p.m.

League games will be played on Saturday mornings at Miller School. Emphasis will be on participation.

● SKI TRIP

Canton Parks and Recreation is sponsoring a teen ski trip to Alpine Valley Ski Area on Friday, Jan. 8. The fee is $10 for anyone with his/her own equipment, $17 for those without.

All fees must be paid upon registering, which should be done in person at the recreation department, 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton. All transportation and supervision will be provided by the department staff.

The group will leave from the Canton Township Administration Building at 5 p.m. Jan. 8 and return at approximately 12:15 a.m.

● SKI LESSONS

Canton Parks and Recreation Department is offering two sessions of the Learn-to-Ski program at Riverview Highlands.

Each session consists of two lessons per week for beginners and intermediate skiers. Each lesson will last 45 minutes, with free skiing after the lesson.

The fee is $35 per person, which includes four lessons, four lift tickets and four equipment rentals. The fee is $25 per person if the individual has his/her own equipment.

The second session begins the week of Monday, Jan. 18. Times are 7 p.m. for adults (16 years and older), 5 p.m. for juniors (8 to 15 years old).

Skiers must provide their own transportation to Riverview Highlands Ski Area. Call 397-5110 Monday through Friday for further details.

Skiers must register in person at the parks and recreation department, 1150 S. Canton Center, Canton, Mich. 48188.

Team balance key for Salem

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem will rely on its depth and quantity of talent as opposed to great individual ability in girls gymnastics this year.

The Rocks were eighth in the state last year when they had All-Americans Jackie Huff and Becky Talbot, both of whom have graduated.

It is well within the realm of possibilities to think Salem could finish that high again but the Rocks will probably take a different road to get there.

Salem was 11-3 in dual meets last year and second in the Lakes Division and Western Lakes Activities Association behind North Farmington, the No. 2 team in the state.

"We don't have a Jackie Huff with the excellent all-around gymnastics ability," coach Kathi Kinsella said, "or a Becky Talbot who could swing on the bars and make you gasp.

"BUT WE have excellent depth, more depth than we had last year. We don't have the flashy performers, but we do have a lot more consistent performers."

The heart of this year's Salem team consists of seven returning gymnasts, five of whom are seniors: Sharon Way, Amy Pastori, Debbie Drabek, Debbie Popp and Julie Monte. Juniors Dana Holda and Jennie Syria are the other veterans.

Kinsella has some flexibility in arranging her lineup, too, since several are all-around gymnasts, capable of doing a handful of events. Patori, Popp and Hilda are three such athletes, and Kinsella hopes to add Drabek to that list eventually.

Pastori has ability in every event, but the beam and floor exercise are her best. Furthermore, "she has matured as a competitor," Kinsella said.

Popp competed on the vault at the state meet last year. She began doing just that event and beam and has progressed to the all-around. "So she has improved a lot," Kinsella said.

gymnastics

HOLDA IS one of the team's better gymnasts and competes in the all-around at state. The bars are her best event, which is a plus for the Rocks, "because it's the weakest event for the team," Kinsella said.

Drabek specializes in the floor exercise, but is recuperating from a broken foot, which has sowed her early-season progress. She has "good upper body strength," according to Kinsella, and is therefore competent on the bars, too.

Way, a co-captain along with Pastori, gives the Rocks an excellent performer on the beam.

"She has more difficulty (in her routine) than anyone on the team," Kinsella said. "She does some hard and scary things."

Syria is another beam specialist, having qualified for state in that event, and Kinsella hopes to have her compete on the vault eventually, too. Montes specialty is the bars, but she has been slowed by a shoulder injury.

"I'M PRETTY pleased with them so far," said Kinsella, adding the team spirit is very high. "We've had injuries to contend with and a slow motivational period because of Christmas but you always have that.

"We have a lot of talent, a lot of talent. If we avoid injuries and get them peaking at the right time, we should do all right and could possibly go to state again."

Asfar is upcoming talent, a pair of sophomores, Jenny Krieger and Robin Breed, will help the team depth. Krieger competes on the vault and floor, and Breed does floor exercise and shows good beam potential, Kinsella said.

Freshman Kerry Savola (beam and floor) and junior Lisa Wietfeld (vault and beam) are other promising newcomers.

THOMAS ARNETT/staff photographer

Debbie Popp completes her routine on the balance beam during Salem's season-opening gymnastics meet with Farmington Hills Harrison Monday night. Popp won the vault, was second in floor exercise and scored in two other events.

Salem coasts past Harrison

gymnastics

Plymouth Salem began a new girls gymnastics season with a solid victory Monday, but it came at the expense of a former teammate.

The Rocks defeated Farmington Hills Harrison, coached by former Salem standout Jackie Huff, 118.9 to 71.9 in the latter's gym. Huff was a senior All-American while competing for the Rocks last year and has taken on coaching duties this year.

"It was a totally different position to be in," Huff said. "It was a real relaxed meet, and (Salem coach) Kathi (Kinsella) was real supportive."

The Rocks were led by Debbie Popp, Dana Holda and Amy Pastori. The latter won the floor exercise (8.5) and all-around (31.1), was second on the uneven bars (7.55) and third on the balance beam (7.1) and vault (7.95).

Popp won the vault (8.25), was second in floor exercise (8.3), third in the all-around (28.15) and fourth on the beam (7.05).

Holda and teammate Sharon Way tied for first on the beam (7.15), won the bars competition (8.2), placed second in the all-around (30.95), and vault (8.1) and was fourth in floor exercise (7.5).

IN ADDITION, Salem's Jenny Krieger was third on the bars (6.4) and floor exercise (7.8) and fourth on the vault (7.6).

Kinsella was impressed by her team's enthusiasm and support for each other, comparing the decibel level to that at a recent rock concert she attended.

"It reminded me of the Pink Floyd concert, because there was a lot of noise in that gym," she said. "The girls were really cheering for each other, and the captains have done a good job of stressing that. Team spirit will be important."

Jenny Rick had Harrison's highest scores in the vault (7.75), floor exercise (7.45), bars (5.05) and all-around (26.10). Julie Robbins recorded a 6.95 on the beam followed by Amy Solomon at 6.35.

The Hawks have a shortage of numbers and experienced gymnasts. While Huff didn't attempt to put a complete squad on the floor, many have shown a lot of improvement, she said.

"TO PUT them out there just to have a full team, I don't believe in that," she said. "Most have not competed before, and we did as well as could be expected."

Salem opens Lakes Division competition Monday with a home meet against Westland John Glenn at 7 p.m. Harrison entertains Grosse Pointe North next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

proving are great. I'd like to see a .500 season or better, and I think we have the ability to achieve that.

"I'm waiting for some greatness to develop, some players to reach their potential," he added. "We have to get good play from everybody, but I'm really pleased with where we are now and the team's willingness to work hard."

Suffety has no doubt the Chiefs have addressed a problem from last year and become a better passing team.

"You have to be able to pass the ball from serve to setter," he said. "That's something the (previous team didn't have to play a consistent offense. I definitely think that has improved.

"I also think we're going to establish an offense in which we can at least from a variety of areas where last year we weren't able to," he added.

The Livonia-area Hawks soccer team gained two for the price of one recently at the Total Soccer Indoor Christmas Tournament.

The Hawks, coached by Paul Dugan, captured both the Under-11 and Open girls divisions.

In the Under-9 bracket, the Hawks won four straight games before defeating the Livonia Crusaders in the final, 2-1, as goalie Brooke Gillespie was voted team MVP.

In the Open draw, the Hawks topped their first game before reeling off three straight wins, including a thrilling 3-2 victory over a team made up of players from National Junior College Athletic Association champion Scoolcraft College.

The Hawks won on a shootout as Kim Montgomery, Mary Pelbni and Carrie Maier scored for the winners.

Gillespie, meanwhile, stopped three of four penalty shots to ice the win. Jamie Kubacki tallied the lone goal for Schoolcraft in the shootout.

During regulation play, Mary Kay Hussey and Laurie McLachlan scored for SC, while Jackie Silagyi and Montgomery countered for the Hawks.

Other members of the Hawks, who earlier this season won the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association title and Illitch Division in the Little Caesars Premier League, include Patricia Boyle, Dana Dugan, Dawn Gabriel, Rosemary Hally, Margaret Kopmeyer, Chris Lamb, Natalka Litkewycz, Jennifer Misaros, Jenny Schuerman, Julie Stabnick, Christy Turner, Amy Trunk and Lisa Yderstadt.

THE MICHIGAN KICKS, a Livonia Y's Premier Soccer League club, recently completed a 14-0 season by winning the Christmas Classic Cup (Under-19 Boys) at Total Soccer's indoor facility.

The Kicks, led by Classic Cup MVP Jeff Petoskey, a native of Southfield, defeated the Michigan Metros with 12 seconds left in overtime.

Coach Bruce Thomas' Kicks qualified for the tournament by winning the Total Soccer West's Under-19 division with an 8-0 record, outscoring their opponents 53-14. The Kicks then captured the Total Soccer West Tournament with a 5-0 mark, outscoring their foes 22-3, capped by a win over the Livonia United team in the final. Goalie Chris Moore of Redford Catholic Central High was named the MVP).

Other members on the Kicks roster include Brian Thomas, Erik Thomas, Chris Speen, Chris Oxley and Phil Todino, all of Livonia Churchill High; Aaron Brown, Stevenson; Rob Orsucci, Dana Orsucci and Joe Arndt, CC; Jon Petoskey, Southfield; Rob Ludwig, Milford.

CC wrestlers win Ohio meet

wrestling

Redford Catholic Central successfully defended its title in the largest high school wrestling tournament in the state of Ohio.

The Shamrocks won the 32-team invitational in Medina, Ohio, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 28 and 29, with one individual champion.

Catholic Central's Lee Krueger won all five of his matches at 189 pounds by fall and was named the tournament's most outstanding wrestler.

The Shamrocks will not be going back to defend their title next year, however.

A change in dates and format will prevent CC from scheduling the necessary two days to participate, but the Ohio teams that have played second fiddle to the Shamrocks will not be disappointed at the absence of the perennial Michigan power.

"In fact, they told us they didn't like us down there, they didn't want us to come back," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said.

Krueger pinned Greg Reighard of Chanel at 1:35 in the final to complete the perfect tournament. That was preceded by falls over Kelly Fodor of Fremont (0:35), Tony Catalono of Solon (1:15), Matt Campbell of Elyria (0:45) and Todd Reinbolt of Lakewood (0:45).

The Shamrocks' Matt and Jay Helm were runners-up at 130 and 125, respectively, and heavyweight Toby Heaton won the consolation final after losing to the eventual winner, Chris Commer of Toledo Rogers.

Chris Rodriguez also was third at 151, Ted Rieple was fourth at 170 and Mike Gentile was fifth at 119.

Catholic Central had 170 team points, Solon 133, Lakewood 117, Alliance 116 and Chanel 106½.

Cardio fitness: What does it mean?

Dear Myrna: Could you explain what "cardiovascular fitness" means? I've heard the term used a lot lately.

— Michelle Grecu
Redford

Good question!

Our cardiovascular system's endurance is defined as the capacity of the heart to deliver blood to our working muscles. The term cardiovascular fitness is simply a measure of our cardio capacity.

One of the important elements of total fitness is the measurement of the ability of your heart and blood vessels to carry oxygen to your muscles. A fit person's lungs, blood vessels and muscles work much more efficiently and easily during exercise than do those of an unfit person.

Cardiovascular fitness can be determined in a few ways.

The most effective method used by doctors is the stress test in which you run to exhaustion on a treadmill or run up stairs. During this time important measurements are taken — your heart rate, amount of air you ventilate, amount of oxygen you consume and the amount of carbon dioxide you produce.

If you are interested in a detailed study of cardio fitness, I recommend you seeing a cardiologist.

Stevenson topples Dearborn

For the second straight year, Livonia Stevenson earned a victory against state boys swim power Dearborn.

On Tuesday, the visiting Spartans defeated the two-time defending state Class B champions, this time by a 44-39 score.

"They hadn't lost a meet in five years until we beat them last year so it was a great win (again) to beat a classy outfit like Dearborn," said Stevenson coach Doug Buckler, whose team is 2-0 overall.

Stevenson overhauled Dearborn with a 1-2 finish in event.

Joe Saunders, Jeff Murphy, Mike Goecke and Duane Flippo took first in 3:31.5. But more importantly, the foursome of Greg Jubenville, John Kochanek, Mark Gergley and Kevin O'Connell grabbed second in 3:38.4 to wrap up the win.

Individually, Saunders added firsts in 200 medley (2:05.2) and 100 backstroke (56.3). Other Stevenson winners included Jubenville in the 100 butterfly and Goecke in the 500 freestyle (5:07.7).

Stevenson returns to action at 7 tonight at Northville.

Here are the American Heart Association's recommendations for periodic health screenings for healthy adults:

- Routine examinations every five years beginning at age 20 and continuing to age 60, increased to every 2½ years between 60 and 75, and then annually.
- Physical exam and medical history at first checkup, updated at each subsequent visit.

Baseline information at first checkup and updated every five years on body weight, cholesterol, triglycerides and blood sugar. Other laboratory tests only if needed on physician's judgment.

- Blood pressure measurements at each five-year exam.

Ervin tearing up Albion foes

By C. J. Risak
staff writer

The way Tim Ervin talks, he's headed for trouble.

Trouble is something he's used to. Last season, Ervin and Albion basketball coach Mike Turner got into an argument after a loss and it cost Ervin a game of suspension.

"I hadn't been playing well," said Ervin. Albion split the two games he missed then Turner reinstated him for the game at Hope, leader of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Albion, with Ervin, won that game, but it wasn't enough to slow Hoe's title run. The Flying Dutchmen won the title; Albion finished third at 14-10 overall, 8-4 in the MIAA.

This season, the Britons are shooting to unseat Hope. They'll need Ervin, their 6foot-7 senior pivotman from Birmingham (Brother Rice). But, Ervin says, "There's no question in my mind we should be 8-2 or 9-1 right now. I'm not really playing up to my potential."

Uh-oh. Sounds like the same kind of effort that landed Ervin in hot water last year. But a glance at the stats would prove otherwise.

ERVIN IS leading the MIAA in scoring with 24.9 points per game. He's leading the league in rebounding with 11.9 an outing. He's hitting 67.6 percent of his floor shots (third in the MIAA) and is getting three assists and 2.5 blocks a game.

Those figures are commendable. But Albion is just 5-4, and that ranks Ervin.

"There's not a lot of talentin this league," he said. "That's why I said I didn't think I'd been doing so well. There's no one to challenge me.

"If you're over 6-6 and good, you're not going to come here."

Ervin is the perfect example of the kind of player that ends up at an NCAA Division III school. After graduating from Brother Rice, Ervin wasn't heavily recruited. In fact, he wasn't recruited at all. He averaged just four points a game for Rice, hardly enough to draw attention.

"I'M PRETTY much a different player now," said Ervin. "We had B.J. (Armstrong, now at Iowa) on my team at Rice. I just rebounded and got the ball to B.J.

"Here, they look to get me the ball on the break and down in the post. There's no comparison between high school and now. When I was a senior at Rice, I had only been playing basketball two years."

Ervin has developed rapidly at Albion. He led the NCAA Division III in field goal shooting last season, and he thinks "I'm shooting the ball better this year than last year."

There are few inside players in the MIAA as good as Ervin. "My freshman and sophomore years, I just tried to dunk the ball," he said. "Now, I'm trying to do more things, more finesse moves."

It seems the only player who can stop Ervin is himself. The problems he had with his coach last season haven't been rectified.

"AS LONG as I play well, the philosophical differences will be overlooked," Ervin said. "I'll be on the team as long as I play well."

If Albion is to overtake Hope and Calvin, the preseason picks by MIAA coaches to rule the conference, Ervin will have to perform at the same level — or higher. Stats, though, don't concern him. A least not too much.

"I've had some personal success, but not much team success," he said. "Whatever I do personally won't make a difference as far as recognition is concerned. I just want to go out a winner."

But that's not all. There is one personal goal Ervin covets. "I want to get 100 dunks for my career," he said. "I have 88 now, so I should be able to get it. It's kind of a crazy goal I set for myself when I was a freshman. It's the only stat I keep track of."

Considering his prowess in the pivot, if Ervin can jam down enough dunks in the upcoming MIAA season, Albion may finish at the top of the league.

Shows draw theatergoers to Broadway

By Rob McCabe
special writer

Theater can be found anywhere in the world from the smallest town to larger metropolitan cities, yet there is no place in the United States that holds such a mystique for the playgoing public as Broadway.

For more than half a century, people have flocked to the mecca of creativity. For me, the theater has always been an intrinsic force in my life. As a child living in Riverdale, N.Y., a suburb just outside Manhattan, it wasn't unusual for my family to go to the theater. I was a theater child — and I was weaned on classics like Angela Lansbury in "Mame," Pearl Bailey in the first all-black production of "Hello Dolly!" and Anthony Perkins in "Equus."

The 1987-88 theatrical season offers quite a selection. The best way to purchase tickets is to call the theater's box office (see the New York Times for phone numbers) and reserve seats well in advance of your arrival.

Shows like the revival of Cole Porter's musical "Anything Goes" and Stephen Sondheim's theatrical extravaganza "Into the Woods" are practically sold out well into this year, but one never knows unless one tries.

ANOTHER WAY to go about purchasing hard-to-find tickets is to choose a day when you want to see a certain show, and stand in line at the box office. Many times there are last-minute cancellations, which then go on sale to the public. It's risky, but it does happen.

The new season is a promising one, especially with the wonderfully staged revival of "Anything Goes," starring the incomparable Patti LuPone in the title role of Reno Sweeney, and "Into the Woods," featuring Bernadette Peters as the Witch.

The revival of "Cabaret," starring Joel Grey in a reprise of his role as the Emcee, garnered excellent national reviews. But I found it quite disappointing. The acting is poor, and the show is an overall shoddy production with weak staging, choreography and costume design.

A new, easy way to order tickets to Broadway, Off-Broadway and Off-Off Broadway shows is with the recently launched 24-hour computerized telephone information service, NYC/ON STAGE.

Offered by the Theatre Development Fund, the service is reached by calling 1-800-782-4369 (1-800-STAGE NY) on any touchtone phone. Then, you receive instructions to push other phone buttons until you get the information on the show of your choice — where it's playing, performance dates and times, tickets prices and even a brief rundown of what the show is about and who's in the cast.

The next step gives you a phone number to call for ordering tickets.

Bernadette Peters is transformed from a grotesque witch into a vision of loveliness in Stephen Sondheim's musical fairy tale, "Into the Woods." The show is at the Martin Beck Theatre on Broadway. Tickets go for $30 to $47.50, depending upon performance.

It's sad to know that Patricia Ziprodt, who designed the costumes for this revival, won a Tony Award for the original production's costumes.

A relatively new musical, "Teddy and Alice," focuses on the close relationship between President Teddy Roosevelt and his outspoken daughter Alice, known to most modern Americans as Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Len Cariou and Alice Hume star in the title roles.

BRILLIANTLY STAGED, and with music by march king John Philip Sousa, "Teddy and Alice" is thoroughly enjoyable to watch because of its theatricality.

Plays like "'Burn This,'" "Fences" and "Breaking the Code" appear to be doing quite well.

For the more adventurous theatergoer, Off-Broadway offers more unusual fare. Shows like "Psycho Beach Party" and "Vampire Lesbians of Sodom" have been selling out their extremely small houses to enthusiastic crowds. Satirizing '60s beach movies, "Psycho Beach Party" has all the campiness inherent in that genre of films. "Vampire Lesbians of Sodom" consists of two farces: "Sleeping Beauty of Coma" and the title show. Utilizing minimal scenery and very little in the way of costumes, these shows leave the audience in stitches.

All in all, New York City and Broadway have quite a selection of shows. Whether your tastes lie more in musicals, experimental pieces or plays, there is no place where thespian-lovers can find such diversity than in the cradle of the American theater known as the Great White Way.

'Daring' 1960s live again in 'Promises, Promises'

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "Promises, Promises" continue through Sunday, Jan. 31. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

Barry Williams is Chuck Baxter and Sarah Combs is Fran Kubelik in the musical hit "Promises, Promises" at the Birmingham Theatre.

The Birmingham Theatre cheerfully revives miniskirts and 60s-style romantic dalliance in "Promises, Promises," the musical favorite based on the movie "The Apartment."

"Promises" recreates the year 1968 when women looked like overgrown little girls in skirts that showed off their legs — good and bad legs in the bargain. At the Birmingham, "Promises" comes off as a lively bit of musical nostalgia — certainly a good evening's entertainment, if not the year's most remarkable show.

With book by Neil Simon, music by Burt Bacharach and lyrics by Hal David, the luminaries of Broadway conspired for success on "Promises." It was the first time the team of Bacharach and David worked together. Songs "What Do You Get When You Fall in Love" and "Promises, Promises" bring back memories.

In 1960 when the poignant humor in "The Apartment" (starring Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine) won the Academy Award, the tale seemed more relevant than it does now after more than two decades of sexual revolution and women's lib. Then again some things never change. Rumor has it that corporate wolves still prey on sweet secretaries.

Barry Williams of "Brady Bunch" fame stars as Chuck Baxter, the ambitious junior executive who lends the key to his bachelor apartment to win points and promotions from philandering superiors who need a place to dally. With his Joe Namath-blue eyes and handsome looks, Williams makes it hard to believe his complaints that he bats zero with women.

He's almost too good looking to play a comic leading man — until he puts on a hat in Act II that makes his ears stick out. That one wonderful flaw enhances his comic credibility. Instantly he becomes funnier and more lovable, especially in the scene at a local bar when he gets playfully potted because his apartment is "in use" and he can't go home.

Alison Bevans is delightful as the bonkers lady in the bar wearing a ludicrous coat made of owl feathers and on the lookout for "companionship."

Sarah Combs plays the object of Chuck Baxter's affections, dressed as a confection in innocent pink. She sings wonderfully and recreates the magic of songs in the inimitable Dionne Warwick style that made them famous. Her perpetually pink costumes are a bit much, however. She wears short dresses with ruffles, and she ties cute bows in her Tricia Nixon blond locks. It's cloying even for the '60s to believe a Manhattan working girl would dress like Goldilocks. She can't help the miniskirt. It was the uniform of the time, but pink ruffles overdo the fairy tale innocence on a woman who already sounds like Little Red Riding Hood when she believes the promises fed her by a lecherous wolf in corporate gray.

Mark Jacoby plays the wolf with appropriate callousness. He's brittle and cold just as an inveterate cad ought to be. Four middle-aged executives with roving eyes, played by Tim Ewling, James Hindman, Robert Lydiard and Bill Tatum, caper around the stage to hilarious effect.

The only thing a kid should be getting in school is smarter.
Unfortunately, what too many of them are getting instead is drugs. With your help, it doesn't have to be this way.
There is a program called "Schools Without Drugs: The Challenge" that can help you deal with the drug problem in your community or school.
Find out about it. The smarter you are about what works against drugs, the better chance our kids will understand how dumb it is to take them.

All eyes on Cynthia Darlow as Rita, who becomes educated

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Educating Rita" continue through Sunday, Jan. 24, on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

Cynthia Darlow is utterly captivating in Willy Russell's two-person play "Educating Rita."

With effervescent energy and unparalleled mastery of the nuances of character and comedy, she ricochets around the Meadow Brook stage. All eyes follow her every move as she brings to life the vibrant Rita, a four-star character — forthright, uninhibited and full of boundless life. Rita's a 26-year-old English hairdresser who yearns for something more than shallow talk at the shop, where she works, and nights out at the pub.

To find out what she's missing, Rita signs up to take an extension course in literature and is assigned a rumpled, alcoholic professor named Frank as her tutor.

Local actor/director David Regal who is artistic director of the Theatre Company at the University of Detroit, aptly plays Frank as a disillusioned teacher and burned-out poet. Frank spends his days puttering in his office sipping scotch from a coffee cup and shuffling papers as he waits for the pubs to open. Then Rita catapults through his office door.

HIS OFFICE IS a grand, high-ceilinged room created on the Meadow Brook stage by set designer Peter Hicks. It's reminiscent of the huge, old libraries of English manor houses. If it seems too spacious for a minor professor at a lesser English university, it's nevertheless a splendid room, cozy with the warmth of nonchalant scruffiness and of books in scholarly disarray on every available surface.

The story takes place in the North of England. Rita's working class, north country accent is thick as it comes. Rita and Frank engage in a few rounds of repartee before American ears tune in to her lingo. After that it's sheer pleasure to hear Darlow's dialect peppered with local idioms and not-so-local expletives. Accents can be the downfall of even fine actresses, but the American-born Darrow's accent is so good she could likely fool locals hanging out at a pub in Beatle country.

Regal as Frank is a low-keyed foil to Rita, and he shows well the evolution of Frank's feelings. At first the professor is irritated at the hopelessness of the assignment to educate a dizzy woman whose idea of quality literature runs to Harold Robbins. He moves to bemused delight at the zest of her personality and comes to realize that beneath the explosive frazzled auburn hair, Rita has a quick, inquiring mind and an intense determination to carve a better life for herself.

By the play's end, Rita has Frank in the palm of her hand — which is not to imply that the play is a conventional romance, despite a few inevitable sparks between the electrifying Rita and the disheveled, charming Frank.

Willy Russell's play, best known to American audiences as a movie starring Michael Caine and Julie Walters, is a fine, meaty piece of theater full of laughter and meaning. The play doesn't succumb to sentimentality, and despite the fact that it's about the broad ramifications of art and class, it never condescends.

DIRECTOR TERENCE Kilburn wisely lets the inimitable Darlow run with her characterization in this superb Meadow Brook production.

This year, 15,000 cocaine users are in for a real rush.

The numbers speak for themselves. In 1985, 13,501 cocaine users in the U.S. were rushed to hospital emergency rooms for emergency treatment. Of those, 660 died.

That was two years ago. This year thousands more people, many trying cocaine for the first time, will get a similar rush — down a busy street or a narrow hospital corridor. They'll discover the truth about cocaine. Cocaine is not safe. Cocaine is not recreational. In any form, cocaine is a serious health risk with deadly side effects. And it's a drug more addictive than heroin.

So the next time you find yourself bending over a line or lifting a spoonful of cocaine, remember, you may be in for more than just a high — you may be in for a real rush.

The Meyer May House of Grand Rapids was Frank Lloyd Wright's first major commission in Michigan. It is a classic example of the Prarie style. Steelcase Inc. completed the total restoration of the house in two years. At right is the May house living room, illustrating how Wright used windows and limited walls so interior space has a feeling of flow and freedom.

Restoring Wright's architecture

By Dale Northup
special writer

TWENTY-NINE YEARS after his death, the architectural legacy of Frank Lloyd Wright continues to make itself felt on the American scene. The numerous newspaper and magazine articles about him have aroused public interest and inspired a third generation of Wright concious architects.

Auction prices of his works of art have skyrocketed, due in part to pizza king Tom Monaghan's acquisitions and interest in Wright.

Michigan holds a unique place in Wright's legacy. He designed 68 works in the state, 31 of these were built, rating it third after Illinois, where he practiced architecture in his early years, and his home state of Wisconsin.

Now receiving national attention are the Meyer May house in Grand Rapids (1908) and the Gregor Affleck house in Bloomfield Hills (1941). The latter is on the National Register of Historic Places and the former will probably follow suit. Both have been restored to their original pristine condition — the May house by Steelcase of Grand Rapids and the Affleck house by Lawrence Institute of Technology of Southfield.

Meyer May, a Grand Rapids clothier, was a visionary much like Wright. In Wright's designs, he saw something new, something different, something that might appeal in the fashion industry. Consequently, he commissioned Wright to design a house for him in 1908. The house also included furnishings designed by Wright because the architect felt that by controlling every part of the environment he could achieve harmony and unity.

Gregor Affleck commissioned Frank Lloyd Wright to design a family home in Bloomfield Hills. This photograph taken in 1969 shows how the architect adapted the building to the terrain.

THE HOUSE WAS COMPLETED in 1909. However, after three-quarters of a century, it had suffered the ravages of neglect. Steelcase initiated a restoration project after purchasing the house in 1985. It was a civic gesture to the city of Grand Rapids marking Steelcase's ties with Wright. As manufacturers of office furniture, their first big project was the production of furniture for the new headquarters of Johnson Wax in Racine, Wis., (1936) which was designed by Wright as a "total" environment.

The May house project was undertaken by Carla Lind former director of the Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Studio Foundation in Oak Park, Ill. Original details were lost with time.

But after perusal of 4,000 to 5,000 photographs the past was resurrected. Information was also found at the Frank Lloyd Wright and Prairie School Collection of the Milwaukee Art Museum.

Wright's May house had an atmosphere of the prairie with horizontal flow of the landscape echoed in the lines of the house. The large overhanging eaves sagged with age much like someone's face. The facelift involved 19 tons of structural steel with trusses and four vertical posts set into the house to withstand the cantilevered load of the roof extension.

Many of the original furnishings in the house were reclaimed from local sources in Grand Rapids. The original design of the carpeting was found in the Milwaukee archives as well as thread samples. The carpeting was rewoven by hand. It is considered one of the most perfect reproductions of floor covering in a Wright house. The refurbished warm ochre and light green colors of the interior, complemented by the golden oak molding, literally brought back to life a great work of art.

IN 1940 GREGOR AFFLECK, a chemical engineer, commissioned Frank Lloyd Wright to design his home in Bloomfield Hills. Affleck's ties with Wright go back to his boyhood home in Spring Green, Wis., where his aunt was a secretary to Wright. Being somewhat of an innovator himself, Affleck was enamoured of the uniqueness of Wright's designs.

The house Wright designed for the Affleck family is L-shaped with a bedroom wing adjoining the living area, all of which extends out over the side of a ravine.

Mr. and Mrs. Affleck saw drawings and renderings of Wright's famous "Fallingwater" in Pennsylvannia and fell in love with its soaring decks and oneness with the surroundings. Consequently, their house has a cantilevered deck atop a brick pier. The house is clad in brick and highland cypress. Wright referred to the latter as the wood eternal.

Affleck and his wife lived in the house until their deaths in the early 1970s. The house was rented until 1979 when the Affleck children donated it to Lawrence Institute of Technology. In those intervening years the house had fallen into a state of disrepair. The concrete deck developed scaling and hairline cracks which water seeped through causing the soffit below to rot. Part of the living room extended out over the ravine exposing the radiant heating pipes which were not adequately insulated, further adding to condensation in the soffit area.

The fascia boards also had considerable weathering and didn't prove to be the wood eternal.

Restoration was begun by the LIT staff and a group of "Friends" chaired by Ivabell Harlan in October of 1986. David Conlin of Birmingham was chosen as the architectural restorer.

Phase one involved replacing the soffit areas of the carport on north side of the house and the deck on the south side. One problem, however, involved the availability of highland cypress which the restoration team thought would be hard to find.

CARPENTER DON Louiselle meticulously took down and numbered each board with the expectation of sanding and reinstalling all of them.

In the meantime a supply of cypress was found in Arkansas and milled in Tennessee. It was of the same density as the original cypress and would serve to replace many of the boards that had rotted. Phase one which involved replacing four thousand lineal feet, was completed in February of 1987.

Phase two, began in June of 1987, was the replacement of the fascia boards and the wood on the parapets of the deck. This involved 2,000 lineal feet. When the wood was removed on the parapets, diagonal steel bracing was exposed and deemed not sturdy enough. Vertical steel rods were welded every four feet to the 12-inch steel beams which support the deck. The wood was replaced covering up the underlying superstructure.

What was left of the original wood was sanded by LIT students. The wood was then coated with Thompson water seal permitting it to weather a natural glow from within.

Now the wood and the Affleck house will become eternal for future generations to enjoy. When asked what was going to become of the original replaced cypress, restorer Conlin responded in jest, "We're going to sell it to Tom Monaghan." Monaghan is a devotee of Wright architecture.

The Meyer May house is open to the public for tours 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. For more information on the Affleck house, call LIT at 356-0200, Ext. 2800, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dale Northup is an architectural historian and professor of art/art history at St. Clair County Community College and adjunct assistant professor of art at the College of Art and Design, Center for Creative Studies.

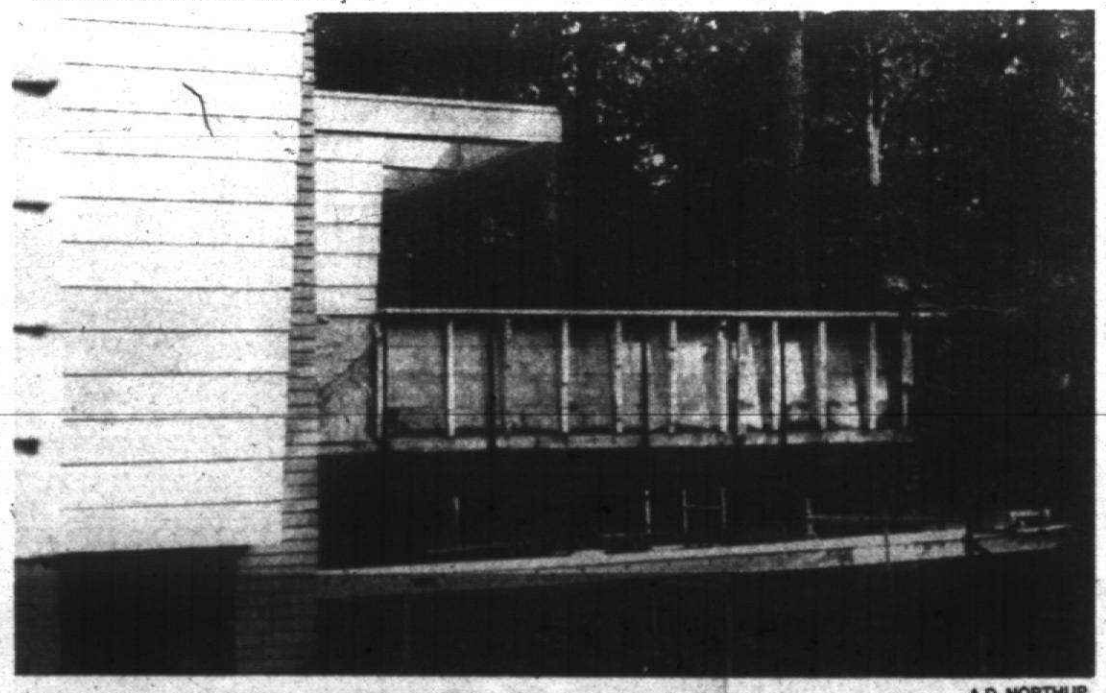
Affleck House repairs have been going on for several years. In this picture taken two years ago, the deck at right in the photograph had not yet been repaired and a source of new cypress had not yet been found.



A.D. NORTHUP

When the wood was removed along the parapet of the Affleck House deck, vertical rods were welded every four feet to strengthen the deck. What was left of the wood was either replaced or carefully treated by Lawrence Institute of Technology students so it would be weatherproof and permanent.

Monte Nagler

AS THE New Year begins and as you make your list of resolutions, don't forget to include your photography.

Here's my list of all new 1988 photography resolutions to help you usher in a photo-filled 1988.

Resolve to get those favorite shots of yours enlarged, matted, framed and up on the wall. You're still thrilled by that Lake Michigan sunset you shot last summer and that candid of Junior nestled in Grandma's lap, so what are you waiting for? A small investment to get them on the wall will pay off in enjoyable dividends.

Keep your eyes open for the many photo contests in the Detroit area for 1988 and resolve to enter some of them. Unusual photographs with high emotional impact often place well and, of course, if you don't enter, you'll never know how well that special shot might have done.

And to help you prepare for that contest, how about resolving to take one of the many excellent photography classes or workshops that are given in the area? Or treat that certain friend or budding young photographer in your family to a class to keep the photography juices flowing.

DIDN'T FIND the wide angle lens you've been longing for under the tree on Christmas morning? Well then how about pleasing that special person, yourself, with an after-holiday gift? Buy it for yourself and enjoy it throughout the coming year.

Resolve to photograph subjects different that what you've always done or perhaps done in a different way. For starters, how about a photo-documentary? Photographg a year in the life on one of your children or document the old oak tree in the backyard as it appears during the different seasons throughout the year. Put your photographic hat on and you'll think of many subjects you can photo-document.

Resolve to take in more photography exhibits this year, look at more photography books and closely study and analyze photos you see every day. In short, begin in earnest to look at photographs. If you do, you'll be pleasantly surprised at how much you can learn.

And finally, does the winter weather keep you and your camera in hybernation? If so, then resolve to bundle up and head outdoors to capture some of winter's fantastic scenes on film. You'll be glad you did!

Nagler's winter class series begins Jan. 12 at the Farmington Community Center. For information, call 477-8404.

Museum offers Saturday morning adventures

The Children's Museum Friends will be offering a series of Saturday Morning Adventures for children 11 to 1 • years of age to acquaint them with various cultural, performing, communication arts and civic institutions within the Metropolitan Detroit area.

A tuition of $20 a month, or $55 for the complete series of three months, will enable a youngster to visit four institutions in January, March and May on a Saturday morning getting into the seldom seen "backstage" areas. Directors and other employees of the establishment offer insights into the work and educational requirements involved in obtaining that particular job. The visits are also geared to take the edge off the unfamiliar and encourage attendance and participation in Detroit's cultural institutions.

The series begin 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Jan. 9, with the Cultural Arts at the Children's Museum, Detroit Institute of Arts, Afro American Historical Museum, Center for Creative Studies College of Art and Design.

The series continues 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, March 5, with the Communicating Arts Series, and 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, May 7, with Performing Arts at Attic Theatre, University of Detroit Theatre Company, Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Center for Creative Studies Institute of Music and Dance.

For reservations, additional information, call the Children's Museum on Monday or Tuesday during regular business hours, 494-1223.

Robert M. Meisner

Q. We are a wealthy condominium project where the units are in excess of $400,000. The board, however, is unwilling to hire a management consultant, seek legal advice or have the books audited by a CPA firm. They basically have what I would call a "country club" mentality. What can I do to convince them otherwise?

A. Perhaps these affluent but naive directors should be reminded of the liabilities attendant with serving on a board of directors of any corporation, be it for profit or not for profit. Ask these directors whether they would run their own businesses or professions without the benefit of legal counsel, or certified public accountant and/or managerial assistance and consultation where necessary.

Remind them also that they are personally liable for the acts or omissions of the board of directors of the association and they can be sued and held liable for their misdeeds, actions or omissions. Remind them also that they have fiduciary reponsibility to operate in the best interests of the association and that their misguided penuriousness could come back to haunt them.

Q. We have purchased a building on a land contract and wish to close on it in the near future. When we purchased the property, the land contract seller said that it was not necessary to give us title commitment but that would be done when the land contract was paid off in three years. Was he correct?

A. It is important that you understand that status of title when you sign the land contract, particularly in regard to any other underlying mortgages or other encumbrances on the property. It is possible, of course, that you could be paying the land contract seller monthly payments when there is an underlying mortgage and or other claimed interest in the property which are either prior to or are in excess of the balance owed to the land contract seller by you.

You should immediately get a title search made to ascertain that status of title of the property in question.

REDUCING TAX ON SALE PROFIT

If you are selling your home there are ways to reduce the federal tax from any profit you make. If you buy or build a new residence within a period of two years before or after selling your home, the entire gain may be deferred if the purchase price of the new residence exceeds the adjusted sale price of the old residence (gross sale price minus the costs linked to selling the house — like the broker's commission).

Also a taxpayer at least 55 years old is eligible for a once-in-a-lifetime exclusion of up to $125,000 of gain on property used as a principal residence for at least three years of the preceeding five year period.

Another method of reducing the federal tax is to establish a higher tax basis for the home being sold. The tax basis is the original cost plus capital improvements. Examples of capital improvements are added rooms, a remodeled kitchen, a new roof, central air conditioning, or a new swimming pool. Keep receipts for all of these improvements.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at KENNELLY REALTY - 19500 Middlebelt - Ste. 201 E. Livonia, MI 48152 - 471-0404. We're here to help!

The art of following through at all levels artifacts

David Messing

DIANE, YOU look great!" I said. "Gee, I haven't seen you for several months. Did you lose a few pounds?" I asked. "Well," she said "I want to thank you for helping me lose weight."

I am sure I had a puzzled look on my face because she followed with "You know your article . . . the one about you turning 40. Don't you remember? You said you couldn't help turning 40, but you could help turning fat and 40."

I blushed and mumbled, "Er, um, yeah, I remember," while hiking up my pants and pulling down my bulky knit sweater. "You know," she followed," that is what I said to myself every time I got hungry. And it worked. So I owe it all to you. Thanks."

Now that was so sweet and nice of her to thank me. But that is not why I blushed. The reason is that after my determination to not turn fat and 40 . . . I went on to gain 10 pounds. Yes, you read it right — gain 10 pounds. Some follow-through, huh?

BUT I CAN follow through in art. The basic elements of my artistic follow-through principles are:

1. A good idea or subject.
2. The technical skill to rightly represent the idea or subject.
3. The presentation of the well-executed idea or subject.

The lack of any one of these three will result as a flaw in your follow-through. A good idea rendered poorly is no better than a poor idea rendered well. Even a good idea rendered well is halted if it is poorly presented.

So first off, I would like to briefly hit some of the top 10 road blocks on your highway to successful follow-through.

In watercolor, the easiest way to stifle your follow-through is to do too much. Over-painting or scrubbing in watercolor causes the beautiful bleeds to flatten out into boring shapes of solid color.

NEW STUDENTS in watercolor should "play" with bleeds" or "wet in wet" techniques until they feel comfortable. Try with one brush or just wet the area you wish to color. Then with another brush full of color touch into the wet area. Enjoy the bleed and flow of color and resist adding in more color until the bleed of color has stopped.

Most new students just keep brushing or scrubbing the area and end up with a flat color. In pastels I tell my students that the first road block to their follow-through is that of over bleeding. I think there is something therapeutic about rubbing our fingers on pastels. Maybe it goes back to when we used to rub the satin ribbon on our "nigh-nighs" or "blankies."

Whatever the reason, most students, if not warned, will rub their pastel pictures so much that the details are lost under a misty cloud of multicolored dust. It may help produce a better pastel rendering if you do not blend with your fingers as much and simply use the different colors of pastels to rub into each other and therefore, blend with each other.

THIS TECHNIQUE in pastel will produce rich colors and relatively clear images. Charcoals and graphite renderings are usually flat because they do not span the gamut of grays to black. If your charcoal is not black enough, then try using soft compressed charcoal to produce rich blacks and emphasize the grays. Likewise in graphite, use softer leads like 6B.

Pen and ink shortcomings are usually due to lines that are not fine enough. Even in some pen and ink "learn-to-draw" books, it looks like the artist should retire his quill tip in lieu of a technical pen. There are plenty of times I use quill tips and dip them in black magic ink. But for most of my realistic pen and ink, I prefer the regularity of a good technical pen.

For beginning pen and ink, you should have a "2-by-0-inch" and "4-by-0-inch" and work your drawing no larger than 11-by-14 inches. Air brushing has plenty of opportunities to stumble. One common goof is over- spraying your frisket or template. So much so that you see the light line of the outer limits of your template misted across your artwork.

Another common shortcoming is when you have a large dot or "grainy" spray pattern. This is always caused by either too heavy a consistency of paint or too little air to rightly atomize the paint. A dirty tip may cause a similar grainy spray.

ONE LAST WARNING: When peeling frisket, be sure you peel up all you planned to. Because frisket is transparent, it is very common to not see some little section of frisket. Then when that overlooked piece is painted, it begins to show up. To better see your frisket, tip the illustration board so that the light reflects off the surface of the frisket.

In gouache or opaque watercolor at its best, I feel, keep your paint thin and start out with a transparent wash effect, then move towards opacity. The biggest drawback to realistic coloring is that students do not carefully study the many shades and tints even in solid colors. Every color is affected by its surrounding colors and light source or reflected light from other objects.

Many first-time scratch boards seem to find their way into the circular file. Perhaps the fate of many could be changed if only the artist kept their lines tiny and accurate, and in addition learn how to sharpen a scratchpoint drawing which may require from three to 10 sharpenings.

The presentation is the final step in follow-through. Presentation merely means how you present or show your work. All artwork should at least be matted for protection from the fingerprints of adoring viewers. Of course, artwork is even better presented when framed.

There is just something about the clean edge of a mat, the make of the frame molding and the flatness of the glass that truly finishes a piece of artwork. So use the "follow-through principle" in all you do. Even in a diet . . . I guess.

briefly speaking

● MOTIVOTIONAL AUTHOR TO SPEAK

Livonia author Stanley Mann will be guest speaker at the 7:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday, Jan. 12 of the Friends of the Livonia Public Library at the Carl Sandburg branch, 30100 Seven Mile Road.

Mann is a certified psychiatric social worker, family therapist, transactional analyst, hypnotist, marriage counselor and teacher for over 15 years at the VA Mental Health Clinic in Allen Park and in private practice in Livonia.

He will discuss his recent book, "Triggers: a New Approach to Self-Motivation." The meeting is open to the public.

● NATURE PHOTOGRAPHY

Nature photography by Novi artist Robert Fritz will be on display at Carl Sandburg and Alfred Noble libraries in Livonia during the month of January. All of the photography will be in color.

● MUSIC SCHOLARSHIPS

The Marygrove College Music Department will hold a series of auditions for three music scholarships leading to a music degree beginning in the 1988 academic year.

Selected students in voice, organ, piano, or guitar will be awarded either one $1,000 scholarship renewable over a four-year period, or one of two $500 scholarships, also renewable over four years.

Auditions will be held in the Liberal Arts Building on campus, 8425 W. McNichols at Wyoming Feb. 20, March 17 and May 14. Applications should be submitted at least two weeks before the desired audition date. For more information, call Sue Vanderbeck, 862-8000, Ext. 316 or Elaine Grover, at Ext. 354.

● DANCE CLASSES

Marygrove College opens new sessions of ballet, modern, jazz, tap and historical dance beginning this month. All levels are welcome. For a free brochure or for more information, call 862-8000, Ext. 240.

GUARANTEED!

We at Real Estate One Training Center think we offer the best pre-license and post-license real estate training.

OUR GUARANTEE!

We want you to pass the state real estate exam the first time. We prepare you to do just that, but here's our guarantee. We know that adults learn at different rates. Some people can sit through a 40 hour course and still need more help. We guarantee that if you don't pass our state approved course you can come back again for any or all of the classes until you do - at no extra charge. We also guarantee that you can still come back to any day or evening classes or review courses to enhance your ability to pass the state exam - again, at no extra charge to you. Our goal is to prepare you to pass the state exam the first time. If you need more help, we offer it and there's no extra charge. We are ready to help. Please join our class.

$99.00 Includes:

- 40 hours of class
- Quizzes every class
- 14 hours of extra help (bonus classes)
- 2 exams
- Completely new 617 page text-book covering all topics
- The best instructors anywhere

CLASSES BEGIN MONDAY, JANUARY 25th, 1988
CALL 356-7111
ask for ERIN WALSH
or call any manager at your neighborhood Real Estate One office.

1. Approximately 1,900 people go through our 40 hour state-approved real estate pre-license course every year and we have taught this course for over 15 years.
2. We are the biggest and best school because we have established a teaching staff and policies to help each student.
3. We offer at no extra charge 14 extra hours of review classes for people who just want a little extra time to study math, Michigan law, and general real estate topics.
4. We offer the students quizzes at each and every class to get them prepared for the state exam.
5. We have 2 exams which act as a help and study guide.
6. We offer classes in:
   - Wyandotte
   - Novi/Northville
   - Macomb County
   - Doner Building (I-696 at Lahser)
   - Ann Arbor
   - Brighton
7. We offer a chance for students to come to either day or evening classes or both if they want extra help.
8. Our instructors go through extra training themselves every month to keep up-to-date with new laws and details which affect real estate here in Michigan.
9. We have just published a new 617 page manual which each person receives in the course to enhance self study.
10. We genuinely care about every person who enters our pre-license course. We want you to complete and pass our course and pass the state real estate exam. Please join our class.

P.S. WE INVITE ALL BROKERS TO SEND NEW POSSIBLE ASSOCIATES TO THE TRAINING CENTER FOR THIS COURSE.

ATTENTION ALL LICENSED REALTORS
LAST CHANCE - JANUARY 15, 1988
TO RENEW YOUR LICENSE FOR 1988!

We are offering our last 6 hour Continuing Education Course for 1988 license renewal... We think it's the best course anywhere!

1. Four different instructors:
   - Vice President of Education - Claudia Cauley
   - Attorney - Don Welday
   - Head of Mortgage Services - Vic Miller
   - Senior R.N.M.I. National Instructor - Bill Barrett
2. It's only $20 for the entire 6 hours.
3. Complete 55 page student outline.
4. All brokers and salepeople from all companies are invited.
5. 8:30-4:30 P.M. at Real Estate One Training Center, 26711 Northwestern Hwy., Suite 124, Southfield.
6. Just call Erin Walsh at 356-7111 and sign up now!
7. License renewal requires an approved 6 hour course.
8. Please join our class.
9. Don't miss it!

Spectacular

The best in ice in town for free 10-day festival

Picturesque Plymouth will be transformed into a winter wonderland during the sixth annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular scheduled for Jan. 7-17 at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

The town's normal tranquility will be replaced with a bevy of activity from early morning until midnight as artisans from Detroit and around the U.S. create about 200 ice sculptures for spectators to enjoy. Nearly 500,000 people are expected to visit the spectacular over the 10-day period.

Professional chefs and ice sculptors, attracted to the nationally known event from across the country, will compete for airline tickets to England via British Airways and luxury merchandise from Highland Super Stores, now headquartered in Plymouth.

Students of the culinary arts at Oakland, Macomb, Schoolcraft and Monroe community colleges will demonstrate their budding skills, competing for scholarships. The student competition is 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Jan. 9, at The Gathering across from Kellogg Park next to the Penn Theatre.

The professional sculptors will create their masterpieces on Saturday, Jan. 16, at the same times and location. Judging and awarding of prizes will take place in the afternoon.

According to R. Scott Lorenz, co-chairman of the event, this year's spectacular will be the best yet. "We're going to showcase the incredible talent of American sculptors. There will be Japanese influence in the artwork itself, as many of the techniques and styles exhibited by the sculptors have been learned from the Japanese, but the American carvers have become prominent in world competition."

ONCE AGAIN, the Midwest Ice Company will provide the huge blocks of ice — about 1,000 blocks — each weighing 440 pounds.

Nearly 220 tons of ice will be carved into glistening sculptures that will line the streets and Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. Each sculpture will be set on concrete blocks festooned with red, white and blue bunting.

Cartoon characters, Super Heroes, animals and other critters that appeal to children will be abundant. "We try to do a lot of carving for the kids," says Jim Ryder of Midwest Ice. "This whole thing is basically for the kids."

In addition to the ice carvings created by the local carvers and the competitors, students from Livonia Public Schools and the culinary arts department at Plymouth Salem High School will exhibit their talent with ice.

Mallard ducks rising from a marsh was the theme of the grand prize winner of the professional competition last year. It was created by Master Chef Milos Cihelka of the Golden Mushroom Restaurant in Southfield.

CARVING a huge block of ice is not all that easy, explains Chef Cihelka, who will enter his fourth competition this year. "You must have an eye for form and shape and a whole lot of patience. It is a long process."

Cihelka first comes up with the idea, then translates that vision onto a stencil which he transposes onto the block of ice. Using a chain saw to carve out the basic three-dimensional form, he whittles at the basic form then moves to smaller tools to chisel out the detail.

In past events, major sculptures included a giant chess set, Puff the Magic Dragon and a pawing Unicorn, among others.

Last year, one of the outstanding sculptures was a giant replica of the state of Michigan, the "Symphony on Ice" done for the sesquicentennial with a grant from the Michigan Arts Council.

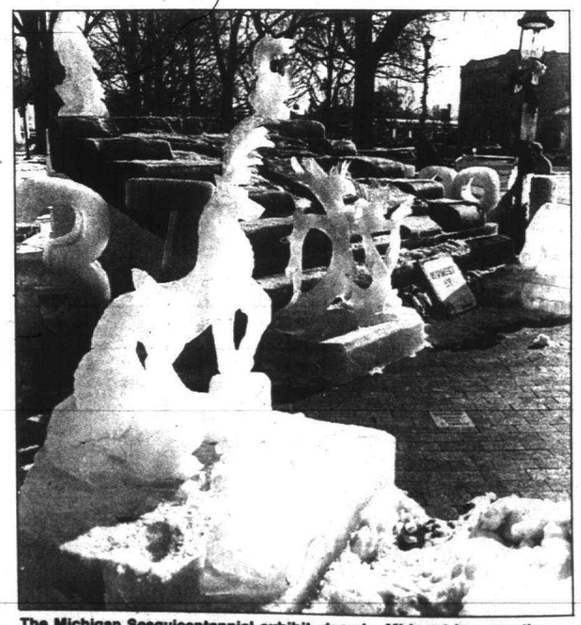
The glistening scuptures will be highlighted by colored lights, making a tour of Plymouth at night a special experience, notes Lorenz.

IN ADDITION TO the ice sculpture display, an art exhibit showcasing the talents of Michigan artists will take place in The Growth Works at 271 South Main.

In this juried show, 35 pieces will be hung, representing all forms of mediums (oil, watercolor, sculpture, photography and pottery). The pieces will be on display from noon to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays and noon to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The art show is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. For more information, call the Arts Council at 455-5260.

The Plymouth Winter Antique Show also will be open to spectators at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer, on the last weekend of the ice sculpture event. Antiques from 21 dealers will be on display from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. For more information, call the Cultural Center at 455-6620.



The Michigan Sesquicentennial exhibit, done by Midwest Ice, was the major piece in the 1987 Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

Serious stuff

Student and pro carvers are earnest competitors

Cold is beautiful, especailly to the 500,000 visitors who will come to Plymouth, Michigan next Jan. 7-17 to marvel at the more than 400 ice carvings gracing the streets of this picturesque community for the 6th Annual Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

The cold will be even more important for the artists who create the fragile masterpieces in frozen water — the famous ice carvers from Sappora, Japan and the many chefs from hotels and restaurants throughout North America who come to enter ice carving competition.

In its brief history, the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular has become the best-known, national ice sculpturing competition. Located on the west side of Detroit, near the junction of the Old Ann Arbor Trail and Interstate 275, Plymouth uses its unique "village-style" central park and business district to provide visitors with streets full of flashing, icy entertainment. Anchored by the Mayflower Hotel, one of the top-rated inns in the United States, the many gift shops, galleries, specialty foods services and general stores provide a perfect backdrop to ice sculptures that range from giant unicorns to full orchestras to scenes from the 'Nutcracker.'

Visitors can wander through the sculptures 24 hours a day, with the best viewing often at night when the scuptures are dazzling in reflected light. As in the past, the Spectacular is free to the public, including the ice carving contests that take place in Kellogg Park on Saturdays.

The professional chefs compete for the right to represent the United States in international ice carving competition in Sapporo in February, as well as for free vacation trips anywhere in the United States. A student chef competition finds students from colleges in Michigan and Illinois competing for scholarships to continue their education.

All of this icy splendor to marvel at for free, the many awards for carving competition and the student scholarships are made possible by sponsorships coming from local Plymouth businesses, Detroit area businesses and major corporations.

Northwest Airlines, for example, flies the Sapporo ice carvers to the U.S. and back and provides the trip to Sapporo fopr the Plymouth Ice Sculpture professional contest winner, and the runner-up vacations. Other sponsors present sections of the vast display of ice carvings.

According to Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel and co-chairman of the event, visitors come from several states and Canada to watch the carvers at work.

"While the largest percentage of the 500,000 visitors come from the Detroit metropolitan area," Lorenz said, 'we get many people coming in from as far away as Milwaukee and Cleveland for the day or the weekend. Because some of our best carvers are from Chicago, several tours start from there. We also have people coming in from Ontario, Indiana, Iowa and other communities in Ohio and Illinois."

Lorenz expects the 1988 Spectacular to be even more, well, spectacular. "We are planning to add more attractions, like a laser light show that will really make Plymouth light up at night. We should also have even more professional chefs in competition, which means more great sculptures to see."
