Kirchgatter named to township board

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Sidestepping a special election, the Canton Township Board of Trustees appointed Elaine Kirchgatter, past Plymouth-Canton school board member, to fill a vacancy on the board.

The 4-2 appointment was made Tuesday night. If the appointment wasn't made by the end of the month, a special election would have been called.

Treasurer Gerald Brown and trustees Bob Padget, Loren Bennett and John Preniczky voted in favor of Kirchgatter. Supervisor James Poole and clerk Linda Chuhran were opposed. Kirchgatter is in favor of continuing with the process of hiring a superintendent to handle the daily administrative duties at township hall.

THE SIX BOARD members were previously split on hiring a superintendent.

Padget, Bennett and Preniczky were in favor of the change. Poole, Chuhran and Brown were opposed. Trustee Steve Larson, who resigned his trustee post after moving to Hamburg Township last year, was the fourth vote in favor of hiring a superintendent when the board approved the change last year.

The move also called for cutting the clerk and treasurer posts. However, those changes recently have been given lower priority.

Kirchgatter, expected to be the swing vote on the issue, indicated she would vote in favor of hiring a superintendent. She said she was unsure whether she would run for trustee in the November election when Larson's term expires.

"I'm a team player and, as far as I'm concerned, the decision has been made by the board the people elected," said Kirchgatter, referring to last year's vote to hire a superintendent.

KIRCHGATTER, a member of the Canton and Plymouth Historical Society, said she hopes she can "rise above any pettiness on the board."

She said her main concern while serving on the board will be determining how Canton grows.

"I would like to see it done in an orderly fashion for the betterment of the community," said Kirchgatter, whose husband, Richard, is Canton's Planning Commission chairman.

Poole said he respected Kirchgatter and could support her during an election but he opposed an appointment by the board.

Chuhran said she voted against the appointment because it might have appeared she "cut a deal" if Kirchgatter agreed not to cut the clerk and treasurer posts. She also opposed the appointment because she is against hiring a superintendent.

"The third reason is that her husband is the planning commission chairman and the ties are too close."

Among Kirchgatter's extensive community involvement is eight years as a school board member, past president of the Canton Republican Club, member of the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women, Plymouth Symphony League member, Plymouth Community Arts Council and precinct district delegate to the 1988 state convention.

Canton resident Ralph Schufeldt addressed the board Tuesday before the appointment. He suggested letting voters decide whether to hire a superintendent.

"I would like to hear more people address their viewpoints on this issue, because it will directly affect them," Schufeldt said.

He argued that hiring a board-appointed superintendent and cutting the elected supervisor to part time will dilute the accountability a top government official will have to the people in the community.

These workers secure their places at the Toys R Us construction site earlier this week on a cold wintry day with temperatures dancing around zero. While many workers enjoy being outside year-round on the job, some days are better than others and Tuesday was a day for warm clothing and cautious, deliberate activity. School tax increase goes on March ballot

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Voters in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools District will be asked to approve a 2-mill tax increase in a special election March 22.

If approved, the owner of a $100,000 home will see his or her tax bill rise 3.5 percent to approximately $2,020, effective with the 1988-1989 school year. The owner of a $200,000 home would pay an estimated $4,040 in school taxes.

The school district would receive an additional $2.2 million each year under the 2-mill increase plan, which brings the total school tax to 40.4 mills.

Trustees unanimously approved the ballot proposal at Monday school board meeting.

A DECREASE in state aid and higher costs are making the election necessary, say school officials.

"With this type of a millage increase, we can operate our current programs on a break-even basis over the next two years," said Superintendent John Hoben.

"The 1987-1988 school year reverses the trend of past years concerning state spending," said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

"The budget adopted by lawmakers and signed by the governor in December shifts the burden of financing schools away from the state.

"The Plymouth-Canton school district was hit by both the Headlee rollback in the amount of $1.1 million, and the loss of $2 million in state aid in the same year," Hoedel added.

The Headlee Amendment requires school districts to reduce the tax levy when the assessed value of property (tax base) increases beyond the rate of inflation.

Auto thefts, assaults show 25-percent rise

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Serious crime in Canton increased 12 percent last year, with vehicle thefts showing a 25-percent increase.

In 1987, there were 369 vehicle thefts, up from 297 in 1986.

"A few years ago there was a tremendous increase in stolen bicycles, because there was a great market out there," said John Santomauro, Canton public safety director. "Now it's cars."

He attributes the high vehicle theft rate to Canton's proximity to Detroit, the convenience of local expressways and growth in the community.

The Detroit area has one of the highest vehicle theft rates in the country.

AN AUTO THEFT task force, involving area police departments, was created last year to try to reduce the number of thefts.

"The bottom line is that Canton has less major crime than the U.S. as a whole per capita, less than Michigan has per capita and less than metro Detroit area has per capita," Santomauro said.

Serious crime includes aggravated assault, burglary, criminal sexual conduct, larceny, rape, robbery, arson and vehicle theft.

Fatal vehicle accidents also increased to eight in 1987 from two in 1986.

Y director off to fast start

If you are already a member of the Wayne-Westland family YMCA, read no further.

If not, the Y's new executive director Janet Lockman is looking for you.

"I want to get out and meet the community," she said Monday, her first day of work at the center on Wayne Road, south of Cherry Hill.

She plans to accomplish that goal with more advertising and an April open house "with lots of things for kids."

Increasing membership from 857 families to 1,000 by the end of 1988 is a major objective for Lockman, 31, who comes to her new post from the number two spot at the Farmington YMCA.

"From there I want to continue to improve the quality of service to enrich the lives of youth in the area to a greater degree than in the past," she said.

Task force reviews school projects

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

A community-wide task force will help work out the details on projects to be completed with money from the $12.9 million bond issue approved by Wayne-Westland school district voters Friday.

The sale of the bonds will be used to pay for repairs and equipment at all 34 school buildings. The district includes a portion of Canton Township.

Formation of the task force was announced by Dennis O'Neill, superintendent, at Monday's school board meeting.

"There is no quick fix for our problems," said O'Neill, who added that implementation of the bond issue will be a two- or three-year project.

Deputy Superintendent Thomas Blacklock will serve as chairman of the task force. The group will include members of the administration, building principals, representatives from employee unions and others, O'Neill said.

He said the task force would review information on all the proposed projects and review bids for the projects prior to administrative approval and action by the school board.

O'Neill said work on the highest priority projects would begin next summer. Those projects include repairing a leaking roof and repaving the parking lot at John Glenn High School.

IN OTHER action, the much-delayed sale of the former site of the district's offices was approved by the board.

The site, on Williams Street in downtown Wayne, was sold to Korean American Community Housing Services, a Birmingham company that plans to build senior citizen housing on the site.

The company paid $235,000 for the site.

The 50-year-old building, which formerly occupied the site, was torn down in the early 1980s. It had housed the district's first offices and later served as a former high school.

The sale was delayed nearly four years while the buyer attempted to gain federal financing for its proposed housing project. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development agreed to help pay for the project late last year.

Default ruled in school information case

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Wayne County circuit judge has entered a default judgment against Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in the amount of $633.89.

The action stemmed from a request made by two teachers employed by Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

Lynn Ehrle, a Plymouth resident, and Melvin Straight of Westland asked for the names of Plymouth-Canton's administrative staff and the salaries and fringe benefits they receive.

WHEN THE request was denied, Straight attempted to receive the information under the Freedom of Information Act.

"I was told they did not have that information and had to file litigation in circuit court," said Straight.

Straight, who filed the lawsuit last April, eventually received a list of names and salaries in July from Superintendent John Hoben.

Despite receiving the information, Straight went ahead with the lawsuit in an attempt to recover court costs and $500 in punitive damages based on the district's "capricious and arbitrary" handling of the matter, he said.

Last week, Wayne Circuit Judge John Gillis Jr. entered the default judgment when no one from Plymouth-Canton schools appeared in court.

Richard Egli, district community relations director, said the request initially was denied because "the law says a public body is not required to create a list it does not already have."

THE LIST Hoben furnished "may have been something he had created for himself to work with. I don't know what it had on it."

Egli said he figured the lawsuit would be dropped once the list was supplied.

Straight said he "received from the superintendent a list reaching back to mid-year 1984-1985 and extending through the 1987-1988 school year complete with additions, deletions and deaths."

Straight, a counselor at Wayne Memorial High, sought the information for possible use as a bargaining chip in contract negotiations with Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

All other area districts were cooperative in supplying salary information, Ehrle said.

Ehrle addressed the board at its meeting Monday.

He said the district showed "disregard for the public trust" and demanded that Hoben pay the judgment "out of his own funds."

He objected to the three-minute limit the board imposes on residents who wish to speak, and to the placement of citizens' comments midway through the agenda. The rules "denigrate the educational process" and show contempt for citizens," he said.

Ehrle is asking that both policies be changed.

Services set for Leona Edgar

Funeral services for Leona M. Edgar, formerly of Livonia, will be conducted 1 p.m. Friday at the Schrader Funeral Home in Plymouth. The Rev. John N. Grenfell Jr. will officiate.

Visitation will be 2-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Thursday.

Burial will be in Parkview Memorial Cemetery, Livonia.

Mrs. Edgar died Jan. 24 in Eustis, Fla. She was 82.

Mrs. Edgar, widow of W.W. "Eddie" Edgar, was a longtime Livonia resident before moving to Florida in 1986. She was born in Starville, Mich.

Mrs. Edgar, a homemaker, loved to travel. She especially enjoyed visiting relatives and watching freighters roll along the St. Clair River.

Although her husband was well known for his newspaper wit, Mrs. Edgar often proved to be quick with a quip herself.

Mrs. Edgar also was musically inclined. She was an accomplished pianist and enjoyed singing in the choir at St. Matthew United Methodist Church, Livonia.

At one time Mrs. Edgar owned a printing shop in Lansing and regularly took a train from Livonia to check on how things were going.

Mrs. Edgar is survived by five cousins: Mildred Brunswick of Southfield, Clayton Beattie of Edwardsville, Ill., Virginia Baker of Marine City, Henry Beattie of Marine City and Wilbert Lankins of Leesburg, Fla.

Board OKs showing of 2 controversial movies

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education voted Monday to allow teachers to show two controversial films.

Citizens for Better Education protested instructors' use of "Winnie the Witch" and "What Friends Are For."

CBE was organized by Plymouth jeweler Diane Daskalakis. Daskalakis claims the district is violating citizens' First Amendment rights, and using books and films that convey messages contrary to the Bible's teachings.

Winnie the Witch is an animated cartoon filmstrip shown to kindergartners and first graders. Set in medieval times, it deals with a Lord Mayor who is incapable of running his town.

The inept mayor is bailed out by a witch who casts spells, conjures the dead and enlists the help of a black cat named Lucifer.

What Friends Are For, shown in middle school classes examining divorce, involves two girls whose parents are separated. One attempts to make her dad's new wife disappear using witchcraft.

Review committees upheld the conditional use of the films, and Citizens for Better Education appealed. Monday, the appeal was rejected 5-0-1 with trustee Jeanette Wines abstaining.

"I don't agree with Citizens for Better Education that the movie promotes Satanism or the teaching of the occult. But I don't think it (What Friends Are For) adequately addressed the divorce issue," said Wines.

". . . the movie seemed old," she added.

"Perhaps there is something more current regarding the handling of divorce that we could be using."

Development center is dedicated

About 100 community members and local dignitaries participated in dedication ceremonies for Madonna College's Education Development Center Wednesday.

The 12,000-square-foot facility will house a teacher education program and a children's learning center.

The center, built as an addition to the college's Administration Building, cost more than $1.2 million and took nine months to complete. Funding for the facility came from gifts, grants and a $150,000 challenge grant from The Kresge Foundation.

"The trustees, administrators and faculty and staff of Madonna College are most grateful for the loyalty and support of our friends," said Sister Mary Francilene, Madonna's president. "Due to their most generous contributions, Madonna College is able to continue its ministry to higher education."

Present for the dedication, among others, were Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett.

Part of the center will be used to educate teachers in response to the anticipated shortage of qualified instructors.

The children's center, for students in elementary, middle and secondary schools, is designed to help pupils who have difficulty studying and learning.

Also included in the center are college tutorial programs, conference rooms, staff offices and classrooms. The door to each room bears a plaque with the name of a benefactor.

Madonna College was founded 41 years ago by the Felician Sisters. It is the largest coed liberal arts college in southeastern Michigan. It primarily serves the tri-county area and offers bachelor's and associate's degrees in more than 50 academic areas.

Building blocked

Contract error sours dream home

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

So far, Kathy Laho estimates the mistake has cost her family an extra $40,000.

The mistake has Kathy and Paul Laho facing another court date in March. The mistake has caused a rift between the Lahos, Livonia building officials and a Canton builder.

And, because of the mistake, a home sits half-finished on Broadmoor Court in Livonia — a home that the Lahos had once hoped to occupy by Christmas 1986.

When the Lahos signed a contract with a Canton builder, Royal Palace Homes, for their dream home, they made the mistake of agreeing to obtain all the necessary building permits.

That agreement made the Lahos, not the builder, responsible for anything that went wrong in the building of the home. And, according to the Lahos, a lot of things went wrong.

"We didn't read the contract. It was a mistake," said Kathy Laho, a Detroit resident.

Many affiliated with the building industry agree.

"THE LAHOS did all of their investigating and questioning after the fact," said Jack Fegan, Livonia's director of building inspection.

Added Aaron Machnik, Canton's chief building official: "If something goes amiss, the person responsible for the project is the person who pulls the permit. It rarely occurs where a homeowner pulls the permit. Builders pull permits.

"People generally do less research on building a home than they do buying a car or a bar of soap. People are too trusting."

And, finally, Birmingham resident Lester Burton, former president of the Builders' Association of Metropolitan Detroit and of the Homeowners' Warranty Program, held up his own years of experience in explaining the Lahos' plight.

"I built over 10,000 homes and never had a homeowner pull a permit," Burton said.

The Lahos' predicament surfaced Jan. 7 in Livonia's 16th District Court. Paul Leho pleaded guilty to a charge of failure to complete construction, of a building, a misdemeanor punishable by 90 days in jail.

Judge James McCann gave the Lahos 60 days to clear up the violations lodged against them by Livonia's building inspection department. The Lahos face another court date in March to prove that the violations have been cleared.

To do so, the Lahos are now negotiating a contract with another builder and expect to have the home finished by June.

THEIR TROUBLES began back in February 1986, Kathy Laho said, because they wanted to build their home as cheaply as possible.

"People told us we could save money if we built it ourself," Laho said. "We wanted to cut expenses."

As first-time builders, banks wouldn't loan them money. Eventually, she said, they signed a $116,000 contract with Royal Palace Homes.

Under the contract, Royal Palace would build the shell. The Lahos would be responsible for most everything else, including the obtaining of building permits.

David Apel, a spokesman for Royal Palace Homes, did not return telephone calls for this story.

Because he pulled the permits, Livonia building officials considered Paul Laho, not Royal Palace Homes, the builder.

"We never had dealings with Royal Palace, only Laho," Fegan said.

So when Livonia inspectors noticed that trusses had been incorrectly cut for the frame, they slapped the violation notice against Laho. Fegan said the trusses have not yet been corrected.

— Other work couldn't begin until the truss problem got corrected. Eventually, work stopped on the home. Residents then called Fegan to complain that the building was just sitting there, unfinished.

The building department started court proceedings after the Lahos' building permit expired and no progress was being made on the building. The end of the road for the Lahos came Jan. 7 in court, when Paul Laho pleaded guilty to the violation.

Kathy Laho estimated that the contract so far has cost them $40,000 more than they anticipated, including legal fees.

"IF WE had it to do over, we would sign with a builder who would do it from start to finish," she said. "We are tapped out, financially."

Machnik said people can get into similar predicaments when they try to "save a buck."

"I understand the Lahos' plight," he said. "They're miffed because they couldn't get the house finished. Then the city takes them to court. But you get what you pay for. People try to save a buck. There should be a red flag when a builder wants the homeowner to take a permit."

Burton said home buyers get into these situations because of they are "naive and innocent."

"It's called 'sweat equity,'" Burton said. "A home buyer, trying to reduce costs, agrees to do some of the work. The builder frames in the house.

"Trouble comes when people who think they can do this find out they can't. They spend more than they had ever anticipated and eventually run out of money."

Burton said similar situations could be stopped by education.

"I would love to start a clinic and give information to prospective home buyers," Burton said. "We'd tell them what they need to know — before they sign the contract. But you know, I'm afraid no one would come."

U.S.-Chinese cooperation planned

AP — Work has begun at the University of Michigan on a project to establish long-range cooperation between the American and Chinese automotive industries.

The project is being supported for one year by a $500,000 grant from the Trade and Development Program, a U.S. government agency.

"The project has been designed to determine the basic foundation for long-term cooperation between the auto industries . . . and to take into account the diverse interests of the involved parties," says Kan Chen, Michigan professor of electrical engineering and computer science, who is project director.

Mutual exchanges of work teams and industry advisers will take place between China and Michigan during the yearlong study, he notes.

Tax increase goes on ballot

Twice last year, the school district asked voters to waive the Headlee requirement. Twice, by 3-2 margins, voters defeated the waiver.

"Revenues have exceeded expenditures slightly the past three years, beginning in 1984-1985 to where this year, it's starting to go the other way," Hoedel said.

"Expenditures will exceed revenues by around $400,000 this school year. Next year, projected expenditures will exceed revenues by $2.7 million, and for the 1989-1990 school year, expenditures will exceed revenues by $5.2 million, without changes in state financing of schools and/or more local revenues," Hoedel said.

The district, with a budget of about $53 million, has a balance of $4.3 million.

Expenses per month are averaging $4.5 million this year, said Hoedel.

According to total millage levied, Plymouth-Canton ranks 17th among Wayne County's 34 school districts.

Livonia Public Schools levies an average of 37.2 mills. Wayne-Westland Community Schools levies 48 mills.

Trustee Dean Swartzwelter said he favors the election because "the state seems to have shifted its emphasis from education to social services and correctional facilities.

"As those expenses have increased, it has meant a decrease in the amount of money available to schools. The experts in Lansing, the Michigan Education Association and the Michigan Association of School Boards and all other organizations associated with education see a continuing fight to maintain a foothold in state funding. . . I see no choice but to put this before the voters," Swartzwelter said.

Trustee E.J. McClendon agreed, saying action is required now.

"If any of the school financing reforms being discussed should come about, it will be a long time in materializing. We need to operate schools now, not on an if-come basis," he said.

Voters have until Feb. 22 to register with their city or township clerk in order to vote March 22.

THE ELECTION issue followed the consent calendar on Monday's agenda. The consent calendar groups together items to be acted upon with a single yes or no vote. Usually included are bills for payment, new hires and leaves and resignations.

Until board members balked, Monday night's consent calendar included vehicle and computer purchases totaling $42,874.

The purchases of an $11,160 Ford van and an $18,428 pickup truck eventually were approved as individual action items.

Approved under the consent calendar was the hiring of a clerk/secretary, five cafeteria aides and four custodians.

Hilltop Glen Golf Inc., the company operating the municipally owned Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton, is considering separating business operations of the golf course and the installation of golf course irrigation systems. Canton Township presently receives 50 percent of the course green fees and golf cart rentals — about $320,000 annually, as well as $23,000 annually from the club house rental. Canton's attorney is reviewing the effect on the township related to liabilities, including those from liquor sales at the club if there is a change in business operations.

New Y director looking for recruits

"I want to collaborate with other agencies, like the Westland parks and recreation department, to make better use of our services without overlap on things like youth leagues and arts and crafts."

THE Y serves Westland, Garden City, Wayne, Canton Township and Belleville. Swimming and fitness classes and special programs for preschoolers, including a long-established day-care center, are at the root of the organization.

Lockman gets to delegate authority among the 45 members of her staff. Most are part-time employees.

She praised them for keeping things operating during the seven-week gap between her arrival and the departure last November of Hwa Stacy, who took a similar position at the South Oakland Y in Royal Oak.

"The support staff has been tremendous," she said. A broken radiator and flooding in the day-care center were two obstacles the staff overcame before her arrival, she said.

"They even put my name up on the sign out front," she said.

A native of Muskegon, Lockman has spent all but one year of her professional career affiliated with the YMCA. After a one-year stint as public school teacher in Grand Rapids, she joined the Muskegon Y as aquatic director.

"I LIKE it because I like people — helping them attain their goals. Our mission is to enhance the lives of the community through Christian ideals, which might take different forms for different people. We encourage family units to work together," she said.

Another priority Lockman identified is an annual fund-raising project known as the "Invest in Youth" campaign.

She said she hopes the Y can raise nearly $15,000 through the campaign for scholarships. The money would be used to help financially troubled families and the handicapped get involved in Y programs.

An admitted early riser, Lockman began her first day with a 7:15 breakfast meeting with Y board chairwoman Gail McKnight to discuss the Wednesday board meeting.

She expects to be at the Y no later than 7:30 a.m., and will probably spend some time swimming in the large pool — a favorite pastime.

"I'm still trying to find my way around here."

Lockman, who lives in Farmington, plans to relocate to the Westland area by October.

Chorbagian to seek 2nd term on board

Kathleen Chorbagian will seek a second four-year term on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education.

Chorbagian, who announced her re-election bid Monday, was first elected to the board in December 1982, after the recall of four trustees. She was re-elected to a four-year term in 1984.

Two seats on the board will be filled in the June 13 election. Trustee Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek already has announced her candidacy. The district includes a portion of Canton Township.

The filing deadline for prospective candidates is 60 days before the election.

"I would like to continue serving the people of our community," Chorbagian said in her announcement. "Having been educated right here in my own back yard, I know I share a passion for this community."

The incumbent board member cited her accomplishments during the previous two terms and said she and her colleagues had succeeded in improving the quality of education offered to Wayne-Westland students.

CHORBAGIAN has served as board president and is currently the board's delegate to the Wayne County Intermediate School District board.

She said her election to the WCISD post last June has helped "improve my decision-making power because of the knowledge I am acquiring for Wayne-Westland."

Chorbagian also is a member of the Wayne County Association of School Boards and the resolution and bylaws committee of the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Chorbagian is a graduate of Wayne Memorial High School. She attended Cleary College of Business and the Bennett Hoyt Institute for Computer Programming and Data Processing.

A Wayne resident, Chorbagian has been active in PTAs and served as president of the Wayne-Westland Area Council of PTAs from 1980-1982.

Kemp supporters: Key to GOP convention

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Jack Kemp's divided supporters might not be able to secure a majority of Michigan GOP convention delegates for their candidate. But they are expected to play a major role in seeing how many delegates each candidate gets at this weekend's Republican state convention.

Michigan Republicans will meet in Grand Rapids to select delegates to this summer's national GOP convention in New Orleans.

A group billing itself as independent Kemp supporters says an agreement with Vice President George Bush's supporters will give first place to the vice president but secure a strong second place for Kemp, a New York congressman.

'We're working as hard as we can with the Robertson people. We don't want any part of a deal (with Bush).'
— Michael Legg
Kemp supporter

'There's a pretty firm commitment from Bush leadership and independent Kemp supporters.'
— Andy Anuzis
Kemp supporter

ESTIMATES HAVE given Bush 35 of Michigan's 77 delegates, Kemp 30 and 12 to former television evangelist Pat Robertson.

Meanwhile, Kemp supporters remaining loyal to a conservative coalition with Robertson's state supporters say they'll fight to the end to topple Bush.

"We're angry; we're taking it to the mat," said GOP 2nd District chairman Michael Legg.

Legg advised his fellow Livonia-Plymouth area Kemp supporters to remain in the conservative fold.

"We're working as hard as we can with the Robertson people," Legg said. "We don't want any part of a deal (with Bush)."

Other Kemp supporters say delegate numbers are all but cast.

"Kemp will get about 30 delegates," Andy Anuzis, GOP 17th District chairman, said. "There's a pretty firm commitment from Bush leadership and independent Kemp supporters."

Bush supporters agree their man will receive a plurality, but not a majority, of the state's national convention delegates to this the national convention.

"I don't think Bush will get a majority but it should be Bush first, Kemp second, Robertson third," said Daniel Piercecchi, chairman of the GOP 2nd district's Wayne County portion.

Anuzis, whose district includes Redford Township, was among the first Kemp leaders to cast his lot with the Bush camp.

Despite charges of betrayal from other Kemp supporters, including Legg, Anuzis said his faction acted in the candidate's best interest.

"WE ARE solid Kemp supporters who did strategically what was best for Jack Kemp," Anuzis said. "They're just crying over spilled milk, their coalition is going to be soundly beaten."

Robertson supporters, however, say they'll do whatever it takes — including bolting the state convention — to assure first place for their man.

"Fairness would involve giving 47 percent of the delegates to Pat Robertson," 15th district GOP chairman David Thompson said. Thompson based his estimate on Robertson camp delegate counts from this month's GOP caucuses.

The new Bush/Kemp coalition is designed to secure the vice presidency for Kemp, Thompson charged.

Anuzis denied the charge. "It's way too early to think about the vice presidency," he said. "We're still presenting Jack as the conservative alternative to Bush and (Kansas Sen. Robert) Dole."

Robertson supporters, however, call the Kemp/Bush agreement a major political error.

"I THINK the Washington Kemp people have miscalculated badly," Thompson said. "There are a lot of Kemp people who won't abandon the conservative coalition."

The 15th District, including Westland, Canton and Garden City, is considered a Robertson stronghold.

"I'd say 65 percent of our delegates are Robertson people," Thompson said.

Robertson delegates may walk out

The Republican State Central Committee is expected to meet today, one day before the convention opens, to check disputed credentials.

Supporters of former television evangelist Pat Robertson indicated they would hold their own convention at another site if they didn't approve of the affiliation of credentials committee members.

"I would say that's a real possibility," said David Thompson, chairman of the GOP's 15th District.

Supporters of George Bush supporters and their conservative Kemp/Robertson foes held separate conventions in many GOP districts earlier this month.

The state central committee is expected to decide which delegates to seat at this weekend's convention.

Among the issues the state central committee will decide is which of two 2nd District groups to allow into the convention.

Both Michael Legg and Daniel Piercecchi claim their group is the true Wayne 2nd delegation.

"We're going there, we're going to be seated and we're going to elect two Robertson delegates and one Kemp," said Legg, chairman of the GOP's 2nd District. "That's what everyone has known all along."

Piercecchi, chairman of the Wayne County portion of the 2nd District, said his Bush-dominated group will get the nod.

"There was only one legitimate convention," he said. "We have every confidence that the delegates (we) selected at the Plymouth Township Hall will be seated."

County awaits revenue boost

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A vote on increased circuit court fees, the last of the Wayne County revenue-raising proposals, could come within a week, area legislators say.

Fee increases would eliminate need for additional budget cuts, county officials said.

The state Senate is expected to vote on the increases within the next several days. "It (the vote) could come in about a week," state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said Monday.

County officials hoped the increases would have been approved by Jan. 1. Delays in their enactment were blamed, in part, for a $2.6 million budget cut approved last week by the county commission.

Legislation is also pending in the state House. There, a bill that would have allowed county commissioners to raise court fees themselves failed to get out of committee.

WAYNE COUNTY needs an estimated $2.2 million in additional revenue to balance its budget, officials said. County executive Edward McNamara, however, added he was confident the new court fees would pass.

Senate action has been held up by debate on whether the fees should be statewide or limited to Wayne County, Geake said.

Senators are leaning toward making it a one-county increase, said Sen. William Faust, D-Westland.

"I think, right now, the intent is just to have it go there (Wayne County)," Faust said.

In the House, some representatives favor shifting fee-increase responsibility to the county commission.

"At some point, we said 'uncle,'" Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, said. "We told them you guys have to do some of this work yourselves."

A bill setting circuit court fees is currently before the House Judiciary Committee but hasn't been acted upon.

"I WOULD assume it would pass," Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth said. "We made a commitment to the county for this package." Law is the only area legislator on the committee.

As presented, the bill would raise fees statewide. Fees would be raised to as high as $100 in Wayne County. Similar fees would be raised by lesser amounts in Oakland and other smaller counties.

A four-cents-a-pack cigarette tax increase and a tax on Metro Airport parking have already been enacted. McNamara said the fee increases and new taxes were necessary to balance future county budgets and pay off county debt, in addition to balancing this year's budget.

Even though they cut the original $229 million budget by $2.6 million, county commissioners said further cuts could be necessary if court fee increases weren't enacted.

"The revenue is still soft," commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said.

Executive named U-D's top alum

Wayne County executive Edward McNamara has been named the University of Detroit's distinguished national alumni for 1988.

McNamara will be honored at a dinner and reception Saturday, Feb. 6, at the University Center, 4001 W. McNichols, Detroit.

McNamara received a liberal arts degree in philosophy from U-D in 1959. He also completed 1½ years of law school at U-D.

He was elected county executive in 1986 after serving as Livonia mayor for 16 years.

McNAMARA made statewide headlines this past year in campaigning for a financial solvency package for the county. He listed eliminating county debt as his top priority when taking office in January.

The alumni association's Tower Awards will be given to: Rick Damman, president, Damman Hardware; Rosemary Kirt, district manager, Michigan Bell; Bob Koval, director of human resources, Price Waterhouse and radio personality Tom Ryan. The award is in recognition of support of and participation in university events.

McNamara was selected by the U-D National Alumni association.

Tickets to the reception and dinner are $20 per person. They are available through the U-D Alumni Relations Office, 927-1008.

The program also includes tickets to basketball games involving the U-D titans, Lady titans and the University of Dayton and a post-game alumni party.

Contra aid: Foreign policy comes home

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Even though Washington is hundreds of miles away, and Nicaragua even further, national policy toward the Central American nation is stirring local political passions.

President Ronald Reagan called for increased aid to Nicaraguan Contra rebels Monday in his State of the Union message.

But even before the president spoke, area members of a grass roots organization were campaigning against the aid.

AREA MEMBERS of Neighbor to Neighbor say they'll continue calling 2nd Congressional District voters in an effort to sway Rep. Carl Pursell's vote on the issue. Pursell, who supports the Nobel Peace Prize-winning Arias Plan (named after the plan's author Costa Rican President Arias Sanchez) for the region, is one of six legislators targeted by the organization. the district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township and northern Livonia.

"He (Pursell) says he's for the peace plan, but central to that plan is stopping aid to the Contras," said Bill McAninch, a Plymouth resident who has helped coordinate Neighbor to Neighbor activites in the area. Neighbor to Neighbor is a national lobbying organization with offices in San Francisco, he said.

"Carl is a very important person," McAninch said. "We believe he has the president's ear on Central American issues but he's not taking a leadership position."

Pursell, who visited Contra refugee camps as recently as last summer, said he's taking a wait-and-see position on further aid.

"I'd prefer no military aid at all," Pursell said. "But I told those good people I wanted to see no Soviet military aid there, either."

The U.S., he added, should continue pressing Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government to comply with the regional peace plan.

"I'm hopeful there's enough pressure to make the Sandinistas comply with the plan — and the key word is compliance," Pursell said.

The President didn't specify the amount of aid he sought in Monday's address and was expected to make specifics known this week.

'I'm hopeful there's enough pressure to make the Sandinistas comply with the plan.'
— Rep. Carl Pursell R-Plymouth

OTHER CONGRESSMEN said additional military aid to the Contras could have difficulty passing.

"If it's going to be lethal aid, then it's going to be in trouble," Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, said. A vote has been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 3.

One of Pursell's announced Democratic challengers in this year's Congressional race vows to make Contra aid a key campaign issue.

"It's an important issue and it's one I plan on raising as often as possible," said Dean Baker of Ann Arbor, who ran against Pursell in 1986. "I think there's a great deal of opposition to the Contras in this district."

State Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, another of Pursell's announced opponents, agreed there was heavy opposition to the Contras in the district. Pollack, however, said other issues could take precedence.

"The economy, the future of middle class families, these are more fundamental issues."

Pursell said his own polls have shown him district voters are more concerned with economic issues than foreign affairs.

"They're concerned with 'pocketbook' issues," Pursell said.

In addition to the phone network, Neighbor to Neighbor announced plans for anti-Contra aid television commercials. The ads will appear on Jackson television stations, and aren't likely to appear in the Livonia/Plymouth area.

"It was a simple matter of economics why we decided to target the Jackson area," Neighbor to Neighbor spokeswoman Pam Blumenthal said.

NEIGHBOR to Neighbor discussed the issue with Pursell in a November meeting at the representative's Plymouth office.

"From his conduct at that meeting I would say I was was pleased to have him represent the district," McAninch said. "However we don't agree with him on everything."

Despite virtual assurance the President will seek more military aid, McAninch said Contra foes have already won an important victory.

"I don't think he'll (Reagan) ask for as much as he has been asking for," McAninch said. "He's backing away from the issue; he's been backing away from the issue since August."

Pursell said he was "optimistic" the Sandinistas would adopt democratic reforms.

"I didn't think (former Egyptian President) Anwar Sadat would sign the Camp David peace accords. But it happened and I saw it," Pursell said.

State of Union reaction mixed

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Area congressmen on both sides of the aisle were quick to praise President Reagan's call for bipartisanship during Monday's State of the Union message.

But they differ on whether he will receive the unified support he seeks.

"The call for bipartisanship (Republican/Democratic cooperation) was appropriate but it sharply contrasts the past seven years," Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, said. "This has been an extremely partisan administration."

Levin, who represents Redford Township, said Reagan offered little direction for the country in his final State of the Union address.

"WE'RE GOING to be taking up catastrophic health care and there was no mention of that," Levin said. "With regard to welfare reform, he merely reiterated his old positions.

"There was also nothing on AIDS, though I understand something may come in his supplemental message to Congress," Levin added. "There was talk of compassion but this has been an administration short on compassion."

Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, was more upbeat in his assessment of Reagan's message.

"I think the call for bipartisanship was well-received," Pursell said. "I think the president offered many worthwhile programs."

Reagan's vow to veto any continuing resolutions — resolutions that keep government functioning while congressional budget proceedings drag on — earned high marks from Pursell.

"He clearly told us to get our act together on the budget," Pursell said. "It's a little late, but it got a great reception. These continuing resolutions don't receive a whole lot of publicity compared with other issues, but they are a bread and butter issue," said Pursell, whose district includes Plymouth and the northern section of Livonia.

"The INF treaty also received a great reception," Pursell said. The American-Soviet treaty would eliminate intermediate range missiles.

IN TODAY'S JOB MARKET EMPLOYERS WANT MORE THAN THE SAME OLD B.S.
Every year, over a million new college graduates put on their new blue suits and go job hunting.
All of them have degrees. Most of them have hearty handshakes. But very few have what employers want most – practical work experience.
That's why there's a nationwide program called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice.
So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in today's crowded job market. And that sure beats trying to B.S. your way into a job.
Co-op Education
You earn a future when you earn a degree.

James L. Elsman
Senate hopeful

Attorney makes GOP U.S. Senate bid

James Leonard Elsman, longtime Democrat turned "Robertson Republican," is running again for the U.S. Senate.

The 51-year-old Birmingham attorney last ran for the Senate in 1976, finishing last in a four-man Democratic primary that was won by Donald Riegle, now seeking his third term. Elsman called it "ironic" that he and Riegle switched parties in different directions.

Elsman will face former U.S. Rep. Robert Huber of Troy. Huber ran third in the four-man 1976 primary.

Another expected entrant is former U.S. Rep. Jim Dunn of East Lansing.

ELSMAN SAID he would work to be a "peacemaker" at this weekend's Republican state convention in Grand Rapids. Citing "Michigan's long tradition of dividing power" between the parties, he said voters are "tired of Sen. Riegle and desiring of a change."

Elsman said he switched parties over the abortion issue and "the movement to return to Judeo-Christian values."

While supporting Robertson, Elsman said he will seek proportional representation at the national convention for George Bush and Jack Kemp supporters.

HE SAID he disagreed with Robertson, the former television evangelist, on such issues as prayer in public schools. "I don't want some teachers telling my kids what to pray," he said.

Declaring Riegle would "beat himself," Elsman said the incumbent Democrat's "ultra liberal record, his ineffectiveness and his questionable campaign finances will do it."

But he added, "I'll have to concede him the ultra-liberal, homosexual and pro-abortion vote, but that is not the Michigan I know."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP PLANNING COMMISSION

TO AMEND TEXT: Purpose of Article XIX, and Section 19.1, Paragraph 2, and Section 19.12(b) by adding Paragraph (4), and Section 19.12, Paragraph 16.

DATE OF HEARING: February 17, 1988
TIME OF HEARING: 7:30 P.M.
PLACE OF HEARING: 42350 Ann Arbor Road

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission has received a request to amend Zoning Ordinance No. 83, Article XIX, PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT OPTION, by amending Article XIX, as follows:

A PROPOSAL TO AMEND PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 83, ARTICLE XIX, WHICH CURRENTLY READS AS FOLLOWS:

PURPOSE:

It is intended by the Community that uses of high intensity shall be located in areas which will not adversely impact the orderly development of existing or future residential areas. Commercial, office, research, testing and residential uses in structures beyond two (2) and two and one-half (2½) stories in height are more urban in nature and, therefore, could be in conflict with a specific development area and the general character of the Township of Plymouth, if not properly regulated in regard to location, relationship to adjacent land uses and development requirements. The Community has provided a MR Mid-Rise District to provide for locations for these higher intensity uses, separately or in combination, in areas which will not impact the existing or future land uses of adjacent properties and the Community as a whole. The Community, however, recognizes that within the C-2 Zoning District there may be sites which, because of certain existing and specific factors, could be developed beyond the 2 to 2½ stories without negatively impacting adjacent properties and the community as a whole.

It is further understood that said developments may be consistent with the planning goals of the community only in specific locations, under specific conditions, related to height, bulk and location of buildings in accordance with sound planning and Site Plan principles. It is therefore, intended that the Planned Unit Development Option is designed to permit flexibility in the regulation of land development, encourage innovation in land use and variety in design, layout and type of structures constructed, achieve economy and efficiency in the use of land, natural resources, energy and the provisions of public services and utilities, encourage useful open space, and provide better housing, employment and shopping opportunities particularly suited to the needs of the residents of the Township of Plymouth in C-2 zoning districts on parcels of five (5) acres or greater where the basic principles set forth in this article are met.

Ex-sunbelt driver adjusts to Michigan

Terry Gibb

Q. I just recently moved here from the Southwest. Can you give me some driving tips for Michigan weather?

L.M.,
Plymouth

A. With our weather prone to sudden changes, driving can become a real confrontation between you and the environment.

To reduce potential problems during bad weather, the American Automobile Association recommends a two-step driving approach.

First, make sure your car is in top shape to handle poor weather conditions.

● Check tires. Make sure that all four are in good shape and properly inflated.

● Check windshield wipers, belts, heater hose, antifreeze, oil viscosity and the defroster fan.

● Check that all lights are working properly. Make sure they are cleaned and clear before starting out and during the trip, if necessary.

● Keep an emergency kit in the trunk. Include a shovel, battery jumper cables, matches, candles or canned heat, a metal coffee can, plastic garbage bags, sand and a blanket.

● Check the battery.

Second set of steps:

● Be aware of the many changes in road conditions that bad weather can cause.

● Remember the most slippery conditions occur when the temperature is right at 32 degrees because it's a guess as to whether the road will be just wet or icy.

● Slippery conditions also occur when the temperature rises well above freezing. A light rain combined with oil on the road can result in a slippery film.

● Snow, fog and rain usually mean reduced visibility and less time to react because you don't see situations as soon as you normally would.

A poll victory

Winning strategy proper

Those who don't show up at the polls to be part of the process have little room to complain about election strategies used to generate a victory on the ballot issue.

WAYNE-WESTLAND school district voters, including those Canton residents living in the district, approved a $12.9 million bond proposal Friday to finance building repairs and improvements and buy replacements.

We're pleased that the proposal was approved.

While public apathy was one factor in the low turnout, there was an intentional move by school officials and their citizens' committee to avoid creating a big stir.

We're not surprised or bothered by that.

The reason is that they were following the classic pattern of alerting those who had a special interest in the bond proposal and giving minimal notice to others who may have had a good reason to vote against it.

The philosophy behind that strategy is that many voters have their minds made up about a ballot proposal long before it is announced.

In many cases, the reasons are personal.

IN SOME instances, low-income residents, or those employees who are worried about losing their job, will vote against any tax increase.

Others will oppose any tax boost just on principle.

On the other side of the coin are parents of school-age students who would be the most likely supporters of any school ballot proposal.

Those parents are probably PTA members who may serve as room mothers or volunteers in school programs and are in their youngsters' schools frequently.

Those parents may see building deterioration or equipment problems and are inclined to believe the school board and administration when they say that money is needed.

We don't see any ulterior motive in the scheduling of the election on a Friday in late January.

Just more than 4,700 voters, or 7 percent of those registered, cast ballots including 345 who voted by absentee ballot.

BUT FOR those with long memories, it was just 2½ years ago that a special election was held and less than 1,000 people voted on a millage increase to pay for improvements to a public incinerator.

The handbook that local school officials and campaign committee members followed was put together at least 10 to 15 years ago by suburban Republicans, who may have gotten the idea from someone else.

The goal isn't to make sure everyone knows all the facts about the ballot proposal and makes an intelligent decision.

Nonsense.

The supporters of any election proposal don't want an objective, neutral electorate.

They want to get their proposal approved and, in this case, gain the money to make important improvements to public schools.

The gist of the GOP campaign manual is to get a list of identified or probably "yes" voters. Those residents receive campaign literature and follow-up phone calls to make sure they vote. The phoning tactic has been especially effective for the Canton Republican Club in local elections.

Those people who are apt to support the proposal get a ton of campaign literature; others get the minimum.

In Friday's election, 49 percent of those casting ballots opposed the proposal — without organized opposition.

But 100 percent of the eligible voters had the chance to cast ballots. If they didn't, then they have no complaint afterward.

Stoddard

Sad end to banking career

As the U.S. attorney put it, Stoddard "failed to put his fiduciary duty to depositors above his own gain."

SUMMARIZING the defense case, attorney Neil Fink apparently meant to be funny when he told federal jurors of the 50th birthday present that employees gave to Stanford C. Stoddard. It was a T-shirt with the words:

Michigan National Bank
— sole proprietorship

Some joke. The jury convicted the former chairman of the board of defrauding the bank in a deal involving rent on a Jackson building of which Stoddard became owner. The judge on Jan. 8 gave Stoddard three years in prison. He's free on bond during an appeal.

Meanwhile, a federal administrative law judge last fall found against Stoddard in a case brought by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, regulator of national banks. The finding was that Stoddard should be banned from working for a national bank. The list of counts is long, but the gist is that the banker from Birmingham didn't know where the bank's interests left off and his own interests, his own property, his own church and his own family began.

THROUGH IT all, Stoddard maintained his innocence in an interesting way.

His defense cited elaborate calculations to demonstrate that the prices in the Jackson transaction were fair. What the defense didn't address was the propriety of his being on both sides of a bank transaction.

Stanford C. Stoddard

In the comptroller hearing, Stoddard's approach was best exemplified in testimony of a business associate, a manufacturer, who said, "The best way to get and keep a customer was to be a personal friend." The manufacturer thought it perfectly proper that Stoddard invited business associates to his daughter's wedding and had Michigan National pick up the tab.

Stoddard and his friends seem perfectly sincere that such practices are not only legal but proper. The average person, however, is appalled at the blurred line between personal expenses and business expenses.

And that appears to be the reason for Stoddard's downfall. As the U.S. attorney put it, Stoddard "failed to put his fiduciary duty to depositors above his own gain."

In other words — "sole proprietorship."

IT WAS A SAD end to the career of a truly historic figure. And Bud Stoddard will loom larger in history books as a worker of economic change than will the judge who sentenced him, the attorneys who tried him and the jurors who convicted him.

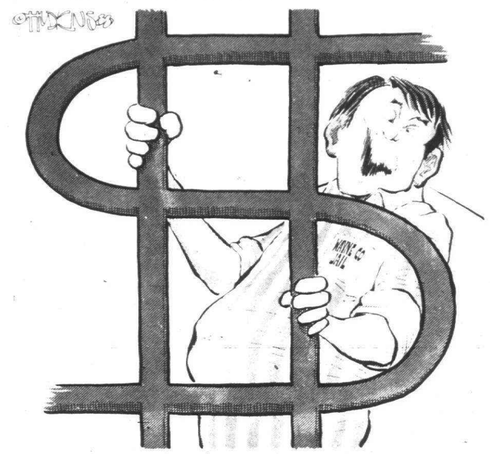
He pushed, pushed, pushed for statewide banking, a goal realized last year with a new bank law allowing holding companies to bring all subsidiary banks under a single charter. Now you can live in one corner of the state and cash on the other because it's all the same bank.

Stoddard pushed Saturday banking for the benefit of small customers and to the horror of stodgier members of the industry.

He pushed credit cards, and today Michigan National is reportedly the largest credit card issuer in the state. He saw automatic teller machines as the wave of the future.

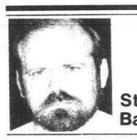
His father, Howard J. Stoddard, launched the business in the Great Depression of the 1930s with a single Lansing bank and expanded. Bud Stoddard took over in 1972, after his father's death, and expanded the empire across the state.

How to sum it up? One thinks of the lines about "the noblest Roman of them all . . . the elements so mix'd in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man!' " It was Antony's tribute to Brutus.



Cost of clean river is a murky notion

Mindboggling is the fact that our local officials have sat back for decades and let our communities develop in such a way as to destroy a river.



Steve Barnaby

SO PUBLIC officals are shocked. If you are the ordinary, everyday taxpayer you probably aren't shocked yet because you haven't noticed.

What we're talking about here is that long-range bill you're going to get in the mail to clean up that cesspool that many still call a river. You know, the Rouge, a stream that for most living organisms is uninhabitable.

Public officials say the figures to clean up the Rouge are "mind-boggling." A recent study by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments says we will pay an estimated $2 billion in the next 20 years.

The initial big step will be construction of what has been labeled "Supersewer." We'll pay a tidy $54 million.

Some communities could pay as much as $8 million a year to rid ourselves of what is nothing short of a public disgrace.

Wait a second, now. Hold on to your wallet. Sure the initial reaction to this kind of spending, especially when the government is involved, is mindboggling.

But avoid being deceived. Avoid being taken in by public officials who seem perplexed over this disaster.

Mindboggling is the fact this river was ever allowed to get in this kind of condition in the first place. Mindboggling is the fact that our local officials have sat back for decades and let our communities develop in such a way as to destroy a river.

You see, it's you and I who pollute the river everyday. Sure, industry does contribute. But you and I, the individual taxpayer, contribute the most. We've built our homes along the river and our raw sewage dumps into it every day.

Sure we didn't mean to do it. After all, we told ourselves, the river would always carry it away. And when the suburbs were sparsely inhabited, pollution was a minor problem.

But now we have a river that kills fish, plants and animals. We have a river that can harm human beings because of the pollution it contains.

Now $2 billion over 20 years spread across 50 communities in Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw counties really isn't that much money. With the help of the federal and state governments, the payments would be a lot easier to make.

After all, cleaning up a polluted river in our community really is more important than overthrowing a government with which we disagree.

We, as responsible taxpayers, really must pay more attention to what our government officials are doing. It's just not enough to make light of the fact that we don't think they do much.

Their actions of neglect can be just as harmful as any bill they might pass or ordinance they might enact.

Think about it the next time "mindboggling" comes to mind.

Urge 'no' vote on Contra aid

To the editor:

(An open letter to Congressman Carl Pursell):

It should now be obvious that President Reagan has no intention of "allowing" Central American nations the "luxury" of working out their own destiny. Scarcely was the ink dry on the recent accords when our president announced another infusion of tax dollars to the Contras, thus ensuring a continuing bloodbath in Nicaragua.

Never mind that the majority of Americans are opposed to this policy.

Never mind the World Court ruling declaring U.S. aid to the Contras a violation of international law.

Never mind that Central American leaders want to determine their own destiny.

Instead of encouraging hemispheric cooperation, you continue to vote additional money for a military solution to what is essentially a socioeconomic problem.

We, the undersigned constituents, strongly object to the misappropriation of our tax money, particularly when domestic programs continue to get deep budget cuts. We trust you will vote NO when the Contra Aid package is put to a vote.

Why ignore Dr. King?

To the editor:

I am motivated to bring an issue to your attention as a father of two teenage daughters at Plymouth Salem High and a fifth grader at Allen Elementary School.

We were at dinner the evening of the national holiday celebrating the life and contributions of Martin Luther King. My fifth grader was working on a battle scene of the Civil War which was in connection with a school assignment when he asked why I had the day off. My two teenage girls informed him of the holiday and all three realized at the same time that something was wrong. My son did not know who Martin Luther King was and how did this have anything to do with the Civil War. Among other things I told him that we were still fighting the Civil War, only now we do not use bullets.

Further, we discussed some of Dr. King's ideas (my wife and I had the privilege of being at a lecture of Dr. King's many years ago) and the fact that in many ways we had not realized Dr. King's dreams to any great extent. Some of the things we discussed around the table to prove this point were:

1. Why weren't our schools closed on this national holiday?

2. Why were none of the three children reminded of the day during their class session that day?

3. This became even more amazing when all three had some sort of government and history sessions that day and this subject matter could have made for interesting content.

4. Why are there no black teachers in the school system (at least my kids never remember seeing one)? Do no blacks ever apply? Does our school system purposefully seek some black teachers out?

Finally, I find it hard being a parent to discuss our country with pride sometimes with my children. I would have been so pleased to hear anything that would have countered the feeling around our dinner table. If only one had reported a classroom discussion around civil rights or maybe a moment of silence out of respect for Dr. King — nothing — nothing.

Terrence D. Lynch, Canton

Warm daubers may be key to yelling 'bingo'

Fred DeLano

I WAS attempting to mind my own business between ice cubes on a near zero-degree day earlier this month when one of my all-time favorite bartenders fueled my curiosity by mentioning that before she left work, she must not forget to warm her daubers.

Man and boy, I have spent enough time studying the skills of mixologists to admit I was stumped trying to identify any saloon tool that could be called a dauber.

Gentleman that I am, I didn't ad lib some smart-aleck retort, telling her only that after meditation, I still understood a dauber to be what guys use to smear polish on their shoes or to coat female wrestlers with mud.

Actually, she has found her own secret to a form of insider trading, becoming a veritable Ivan Boesky of Happy Hour. What this wee, pleasingly buxom lass had in mind was beating the gun off the starting blocks in her sprint against competitors at the bingo tables that evening.

IF SHE played golf, she probably would warm her nuggets before every round in a frying pan, it being well known to linksters that warm balls carry farther off the tee than cold ones.

Maybe she would even sink so low as to load the dice, mark the cards past-post a horse race, or even deal from the bottom of a stacked deck. Oh, the shame of it all.

Come to think of it, a stacked deck is not always dishonest. I have in mind a horse named Stacked Deck that turned in impressive performances in the 1978 and 1980 Detroit Horse Shows at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club.

In '78, Stacked Deck placed fifth in the North American Grandprix at BOH and the horse was second in the '80 renewal of that top-notch, Olympic-style event. Both times the bay gelding was ridden by Gigi Gaston, a Hollywood actress when she's not performing as an equestrian. Gigi turned 28 this past Oct. 20. She's good enough on a horse to have been invited to train with the United States Equestrian Team three years in a row.

Nor is Gigi the only young beauty to have added a touch of Hollywood glamour to the annual June hunter and jumper competition on the Bloomfield Hills heath. Last summer Paul Newman's daughter caused a buzz of excitement every time she was in the saddle, as did Linda Blair, star of "The Exorcist," a few years ago.

But back to bingo and fluorescent daubers.

Didn't I tell you they are fluorescent? Green, red and blue yet.

From what information I could extract, it is my guess that warming them before entering the bingo arena is merely a personal good luck superstition, comparable to the brown suit which I recall Coach Buddy Parker wearing on the sidelines back in the days when the Detroit Lions were championship stuff. Or aren't you old enough to remember?

TRUTH of the matter is, these daubers are used just when the lady plays in a game where paper bingo sheets are used. If she has a number that's called, she stamps the correct square on her sheet with a dauber that leaves a round mark about he size of a dime. The color depends on her mood.

For plastic cards, she has metal chips, also multi-colored. When a game ends, she brings out a magnetic wand and sweeps it across each card, the chips clinging to it like puppies cling to their mother at lunch time. I know how it works, the wand that is, because she gave me a demonstration.

The lady is a pro, no doubt about it. All her gear is carried in a colorful bingo tote bag and she's one of those ladies who likes to get to the hall an hour early so she can set up in a good location. It relaxes the mind. I have known many race track touts with the same philosophy although this lady wins much more often than those guys.

She thinks it's strange that in my own bingo career, the only thing I ever won was a scrawny chicken years ago when I was single and sharing an apartment with two guys who worked for the same newspaper. We served it with beer and radishes on the side, but not even the mud wrestlers we invited to share the feast thought it was much good. Or were they queens from the Roller Derby? Whatever, they never came back for another daubing.

When silence pollutes

Rich Perlberg

HARPER WOODS school district officials have finally spoken out about that nasty, perhaps racially motivated incident after a basketball game between Harper Woods and Cranbrook Kingswood.

There was shouting, pushing and shoving after the game. Cranbrook's varsity coach, Robert Rogers, was arrested off the team bus. A Harper Woods assistant athletic director was also arrested. Their court date is Feb. 1.

Cranbrook officials have said from the start that the problem brewed from racial taunts and slurs during both the junior varsity and varsity games. Harper Woods is all white. Cranbrook's ethnically diverse team is all-world.

Last week Harper Woods superintendent Arthur Toth mailed a letter to Harper Woods parents saying the incident was inaccurate and exaggerated. He said the Cranbrook version of the evening was wrong, and he blamed the press for overstating the story.

SUPERINTENDENT TOTH is correct in at least one respect. The stories, including those in The Eccentric, were one-sided. That's because Cranbrook officials talked to the press; Harper Woods officials, including Toth, would not.

Every day of the week following the incident, The Eccentric called Toth's office in search of a comment. Each time a reporter was told that Toth was the person to talk to but that he was in a meeting and unavailable. Each time a reporter left a message asking that he call. More than once, a reporter said that only one side of the story was being told, and we wanted to hear the Harper Woods' version. Not one call was returned.

Ditto for the police department where repeated calls got the same response. Only Chief Gary Ford could answer questions. He was never available. He never returned calls.

Perhaps if these officials returned calls, they could explain why Toth said the press exaggerated the story while the police thought the incident so serious that Rogers was originally charged with inciting a riot. Maybe riots aren't big deals in Harper Woods.

TOTH HAD every right to reserve comment until he had a firm grip on what happened. Cranbrook officials did not respond to press queries until Tuesday afternoon. By then they had a lengthy statement about their version of events.

But Harper Woods was silent, which is mystifying. Cranbrook officials essentially accused the school district of blatantly ignoring repeated racial slurs. Harper Woods officials say that's not the case, but their denial was two weeks in the coming.

If nothing else, an official could have said: We regret the incidents of last Friday night, but we do not believe our students were guilty of racial taunts. In fact, we wish to stress that our school openly welcomes any and all visitors. We will have a more complete statement after a complete investigation.

Instead they said nothing, which is unfortunate. Perhaps they were spending the last two weeks scouring the school for the full story. But their long silence will make some believe that they were busy preparing a whitewash.

That's not fair to anyone.

Directness not always appreciated

BUSINESS PEOPLE sometimes dislike news people because we come straight to the point.

"Taxes are up." "The chief exec was forced out."

As you study the following 200 words of business prose, which many folks received in the recent mail, ask yourself: What are they actually doing to the price I pay?

"TO MICHIGAN Bell Customers in the Farmington zone:

"This notice is to inform you of certain changes in the rates for telephone service in the Farmington zone which may affect you.

"Each exchange or zone of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is classified into one of several Rate Groups which determines the monthly rates for local telephone service. The Rate Group for each exchange or zone is based on the number of telephone access lines in the local service area of that exchange or zone.

"The Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) has authorized the reclassification of an exchange or zone from one Rate Group to another, whenever the number of telephone access lines in the local service area increases beyond the established limits, and continues above those limits for a period of 12 months.

"The Farmington zone is now in Rate Group E. However, as the number of telephone access lines in the local service area has been above the limits of Rate Group E for the past 12 months, we are now requesting authority from the MPSC to reclassify the Farmington zone to Rate Group F."

After the reader has waded through these circumlocutions, the company doesn't come to the point — it merely hints.

"The table on the enclosed sheet shows the rates for Rate Groups E and F, along with the month increase, if any, applicable to the various classes of telephone service."

A journalist's translation of this verbiage: Most of our telephone bills are going up. Some will remain level. Nobody's getting a cut.

THE ALL-TIME mealy-mouthed business news release was spotted and skewered by my crony Bob Lewis, now with the Booth-Newhouse Washington bureau. It came to mind a few months ago when he was in Detroit to speak to brother and sister news people at a Sigma Delta Chi meeting.

We were at the Kalamazoo Gazette when Lewis, then business editor, got a handout about a retirement of a relatively obscure employee at the Shakespeare Co. It waxed eloquent about good ol' Sam's beloved nature for several paragraphs, at the conclusion of which it was revealed that a certain fishing reel manufacturing operation was being shifted to Arkansas.

Lewis' journalistic translation: 400 Shakespeare workers in Kalamazoo were losing their jobs.

FOOTNOTE: Last year I went shopping for a new spinning reel, the better to attract the wily trout, and felt I should "buy American." Fat chance. I visited five stores, including one that specialized in outdoor sporting goods and another that specialized only in fishing tackle.

No one sold an American-made reel. No one even sold a European-made reel. All the reels, even those with the Shakespeare brand name, were made in Japan and Taiwan.

What do you label that? Retrenchment? Broad-based restructuring? Repositioning of resources?

I'd say a lot of Yanks lost manufacturing jobs.

"Please, my little girl needs blood."

Imagine if you had to ask for blood to save the life of someone you love. Next time the American Red Cross asks, give blood, please.

GIVE BLOOD, PLEASE

Do it for someone you love...

Marching Band members rehearse for the "Variety Is" performances.

Students take to the stage

STUDENT TALENT will take center stage this weekend during the "Variety Is" band show at Centennial Educational Park.

"Variety Is" performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 29-30, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, 46181 Joy Rd., Canton.

CEP students have been hard at work in recent weeks, preparing for this weekend's performances. Those rehearsals have given students the opportunity to put together a top-notch evening of entertainment.

"Blast from the Past" is the theme of the show, which features the talents of the Symphony Band, Concert Band, Marching Band and other CEP students.

Tickets are $2 for general admission, $3 for reserved seats. For reserved seat tickets, call Judy Lore, 453-5181.

This is the 23rd year for the band show. Students will perform under the direction of Jim Griffith, bar director at CEP.

Amy Schmidt leads the band through part of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." She shares conducting duties with Brad Flowers.

Picking a camp that's just right

By Julie Brown
staff writer

When the time comes to pick a summer camp, parents have plenty of choices.

Thousands of summer camps offer a variety of programs. It can be difficult for parents to know just what's right for their children.

It's best to start out by asking if your child is ready for summer camp, said Jim LeMonn, spokesman for the American Camping Association.

Some children hear about camping opportunities from friends. If camping is a family tradition, children are more likely to want to attend camp.

Generally, children younger than 7 or 8 aren't ready for summer camp. It's best if a child has had some experience with overnight stays away from home prior to leaving for camp.

"That's always a big psychological step," the LeMonn said.

The ACA is a non-profit educational organization. Its purposes are to educate camp directors on how to run better camp programs and to educate the public on what's available in camp opportunities.

AS PART of that effort, the ACA maintains an accreditation program, based on a review of factors including types of programs, personnel and sites.

LeMonn recommended that parents visit a camp ahead of time if possible. Some families arrange their vacations to allow for such a visit the year before the child attends camp. "We really encourage that for a number of reasons."

Visiting a camp and meeting with the camp director are important, he said. Some camp directors attend camp fairs; others will travel to meet with parents of potential campers.

"If they're local people, they're going to be available."

The camp director's role is an important one, in that he or she sets the tone for the entire operation, LeMonn said.

"They really are the heart of the camp. Camps are such reflections of their camp directors."

Kathy Treiber, director of camping and outdoor services for the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, agreed it's a good idea to meet with the camp director.

Parents should ask about the camp director's experience, she said. It's important to determine what the camp's philosophy is.

'They gain a little bit of independence, being away from home.'

— Kathy Treiber
Girl Scout staffer

IT'S ALWAYS a good idea to check on the camp's ratio of staff members to campers, Treiber said. For Girl Scout camps, those standards are set by Scouting's national organization "and we follow those very strictly."

Treiber also recommended asking about the age and qualifications of staff members. Waterfront staff members, for example, should have the appropriate training and certification, as should those who teach horseback riding.

Parents should check to see what the camp's prices include. There may be hidden costs, such as fees assessed for arts and crafts supplies or other materials.

"I'd want to know if the cost was all-inclusive."

Prices of summer camp vary widely, LeMonn said. Some camps offer financial assistance. For non-profit camps, the ACA cites a per-day price range of $1 to $30. For privately-owned camps, the general price range is $35 to $65 per day.

Other issues to check, as recommended by Treiber, include:

- What are the camp's hours and days of operation?
- Is the camp able to serve children with special health or dietary needs?
- How many other campers are the same age or close in age?
- Is the camp accredited by the American Camping Association?

Balancing varied roles keeps women running

JULIE BROWN/staff photographer

Women experience difficulties as they try to meet the demands of multiple and often conflicting roles, said Christeen Holdwick. Holdwick is director of psychiatric/mental health nursing for the Catherine McAuley Health Center.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Christeen Holdwick has "a full-time plus job." She and her husband have three children.

Sometimes, she finds it hard to say "no" to requests for help. Holdwick has felt guilty at Halloween when her children, who are in first grade, seventh grade and eighth grade, have worn inexpensive plastic costumes bought at a discount store.

Holdwick is director of psychiatric/mental health nursing for the Catherine McAuley Health Center. She has taught nursing and has worked in pediatric/adolescent psychiatric nursing and nursing administration.

Holdwick spoke at a Thursday, Jan. 21, meeting of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women.

Holdwick talked about "the Superwoman syndrome" at the AAUW meeting, held at the home of Pam Dean in Canton. Some of Holdwick's presentation was based on "The Superwoman Syndrome" by Marjorie Hansen Shaevitz (Warner Books Inc., 1984).

THE MODERN-DAY "Superwoman" is different from her 1950s counterpart, Holdwick said. The speaker read a column written by Ellen Goodman describing the 1980s "Superwoman."

Gone are the days when women were expected to be picture-perfect wives and mothers. These days, women are expected to combine household and child care duties with career and volunteer commitments — and to do so with little apparent effort.

AAUW members and guests took a "Superwoman" 'quiz during the meeting. The quiz included rankings for external and internal factors contributing to the "Superwoman" syndrome.

The women at the meeting also talked about different ways of coping with the demands of multiple and often conflicting roles.

is also a good practice, she said. "Most camps would probably let you do that," LeMonn agreed.

"Usually, other families will verify what kind of experience their children have had," he said.

Returning staff members at a camp are also a good source of information, he said. It's worthwhile to check what percentage of the staff returns each summer.

It's also important to ask how program staff members are selected, and to check on how those staff members are supervised and trained, he said.

Treiber and LeMonn said parents should check to see what agency runs a camp. Some camps are affiliated with churches or with youth organizations.

It's essential to look for a good match between your child and a camp, LeMonn said. Camps have different programs and philosophies; there's no one camp that's right for every child.

"Most parents want their kids to have a good time," he said. Parents also want their children to learn to socialize while they're at camp.

For younger children not yet ready to attend summer camp, day camp is an option, Treiber said. Girl Scouts generally start out as Brownies attending troop camp for a short time span.

LEMONN POINTED with pride to a study conducted by the University of California at Berkeley. That study found that children who attend summer camp become more self-confident.

Attending camp gives a child the experience of being out on his or her own, LeMonn said. Children learn to interact with their peers and with adults; doing so "can really have a wholesome benefit for the child," he said.

Treiber has found that "the fun stuff" — arts and crafts, swimming, nature activities and archery — is popular with young campers. She agreed that attending camp is a good experience for children.

"They gain a little bit of independence, being away from home. Children also benefit in the area of interdependence; they learn to get along with others in a small group setting.

The American Camping Association publishes a guide to camps for parents for $9.95. To order a copy, call 1-800-428-CAMP.

A copy of the guide may also be obtained by sending a check or money order for $9.95 to: Parent's Guide, 100 Bradford Woods, Martinsville, Ind. 46151.

Tips for choosing used car

AP — Some tips for buying used cars, from "The Used Car Book" by the editors of Consumer Automotive Press:

1. Don't expect dealers to tell you what's wrong with the car.
2. If you want a warranty, get it in writing.
3. If the contract says you are buying the car "as is," be sure to get promises in writing.
4. Don't be overly impressed with the looks of a car; be sure to rely on a mechanical inspection. Do it yourself or have a trained mechanic do it.
5. Test drive the car.
6. Ask early about the price to leave no chance that the salesman will later raise it.
7. Ask about the condition of the car and what, if anything, is wrong with it; if the salesman tells you something is wrong, assume he is playing the problem down.
8. Don't haggle over the price until after you road test the car and have it checked mechanically; to do so earlier might be a waste of time.
9. Be reserved when you bargain.
10. Be prepared for your first offer to be turned down.
11. Don't pay more than your maximum.

Superwoman

Modern-day life can resemble a juggling act

Women experience a variety of symptoms related to the "Superwoman" syndrome, Holdwick said. Those symptoms result from women trying to do it all and to do everything perfectly.

"It's very different from how men are." Men are more selective about what they choose to do well, she said. Some men may suffer from the "Superman" syndrome, but it's less prevalent.

"It's just not as pervasive as it is with women. With women, it tends to be everything. We have to do it all perfectly."

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS of the syndrome can include fatigue, heart palpitations or a racing heart. Psychological symptoms can include feeling overextended, irritable, angry, anxious or tense. "Superwomen" may also cry without reason, or may resent telephone calls and invitations.

In extreme cases, women may have suicidal thoughts.

"Superwomen" may blame others for their unhappiness or irritability. On the home front, they may hear complaints from their children about how irritable they've become. Women may also have increased sensitivity to noise or activity levels; they may see more conflict among their children.

At work, "Superwomen" may miss appointments or be late for work frequently, Holdwick said. They may have feelings of never catching up or difficulty concentrating; they may have conflicts with co-workers or experience thinking/writing blocks.

Women may also be unable to differentiate between major crises and more minor problems, Holdwick said.

Women are socialized to be helpful, collaborative and never bothersome, she said. Often, women are expected to keep up all of the family traditions and to be on call emotionally 24 hours a day.

More recently, the women's movement and social changes have created new challenges for women. More women now work outside of the home; divorce is also more common.

THESE DAYS, there's prejudice directed at women who don't work outside of the home, said Holdwick, who has a bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of Michigan and a master's degree in education from Eastern Michigan University.

Women experience conflict due to the lack of support available to help them make choices. The lack of quality day care is a major issue facing mothers who work outside of the home, the speaker said.

Holdwick's presentation included suggestions for making changes.

"That needs to happen." Changes are most likely to succeed if they're made slowly, gradually and systematically.

Women need to establish what's important in their lives, she said. They need to determine who's most important and what's most essential in their busy lives.

It's also important to set personal goals and a timeline, she added. Those goals could include a career change, such as becoming a lawyer.

"Start making plans now." Women also need to develop an action plan to reach short-term goals, she said.

Women need to learn to organize their time and resources, she said. A number of books are available on those subjects.

WOMEN NEED to learn to delegate some responsibilities, Holdwick said.

"Men are much better at delegating. We always have good reasons for not getting help with it."

AAUW members and guests gave last week's program high marks.

"I liked the presentation," said Lois Oldfield, an AAUW member from Plymouth. It's always good to get together with friends to talk things over "and come out feeling better."

Oldfield, a full-time mom, has three daughters, ages 17, 13 and 4. Having teenage children can be more stressful than having younger children, she said. There's much more information available on caring for young children than there is on teenagers.

Helene Lusa, the AAUW's vice president for programs, also enjoyed the presentation on mental health for modern women.

"We just don't take the time to talk about it," Lusa, a Livonia resident, teaches language arts and journalism at Garden City Junior High School. She also teaches child development at Schoolcraft College.

"That's for fun. I don't have to do that."

Lusa, the mother of four children, ages 13½, 11½, 9½ and 5, doesn't feel as much stress as she used to. She's always worked outside of the home, either part time or full time, and enjoys teaching.

Does a Cataract
ALWAYS CAUSE
POOR VISION?
Many people, especially the elderly, fear their doctor's diagnosis of a cataract (the clouding of the lens of the inside of the eye). The person immediately thinks of blindness, surgery and thick glasses. But, cataracts, even longstanding ones, don't necessarily cause blindness.
In the young person, a cataract may be a small dot (opaque) or a collection of vacuoles (air bubbles) in the posterior part of the crystalline lens. You can see "around" these cataracts; they may only be bothered in bright light when the pupil is small.
In people of all ages, cataracts may be due to injury. These lens opacities can appear as peripheral spokes or segmental opacities, out of our line of sight.
In the elderly, early catarats may decrease our distance vision, while our near vision remains normal, due to the cataract formation in the posterior (back) part of the lens. Paradoxically, you can have a mature ("ripe") cataract and have normal vision if there is a small "window" in the cataract.
The presence and progression of cataracts should not be feared. They may affect vision slowly over a period of years. And, cataract surgery with a lens implant is a simple, safe procedure performed with minimal discomfort using local anesthesia. If you don't have any other eye disease, your vision can be restored to the level required for driving a car in more than 95% of cases.
For more information on this and other eye diseases, please contact The Coburn Clinic.

Encounters can help find marital spark

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Marriage encounters usually don't offer the complete overhaul, just a tune-up.

"Everybody has the attitude (about marriage encounters), 'if it's not broke, don't fix it'," said Charles Dixon of Westland, who has been on two such encounters with his wife, Doris. "But you can oil it up a bit."

Marriage Encounter United Methodist will be there with the grease gun. The encounter weekend will take place Friday through Sunday, Feb. 12-14, at Livonia Holiday Inn.

The encounter works within the framework of the teachings of the United Methodist Church. But it's not heavy-handed in doctrine, according to regional coordinators Virginia and Ken Klein of Westland.

Baptists, Catholics, Presbyterians and Lutherans would feel right at home at the encounter, they said.

The main focus is the couple.

"The idea is for the couple to get away from their jobs and kids and concentrate on one another," said Virginia Klein, who is on the state United Methodist Board on Marriage Encounters.

And there's plenty of time to do that. At each session, a lead couple and a United Methodist clergy couple make a presentation or have an informal talk.

But the main thrust of the program is the dialogue sessions. This offers couples time by themselves to express their feelings to one another.

THE SETUP is structured and intense, but it gets results.

"On Friday, the couples' chairs are usually about a foot apart," said Virginia Klein. "Then on Sunday, everything is like this." (She hugged her husband to prove her point.)

One thing the encounter doesn't claim to do is solve troubled marriages. In fact, coordinators encourage people who are looking for a quick fix to look elsewhere.

Doris and Charles Dixon said they had a good marriage when they attended their first encounter five years ago. After all, they had been married 32 years.

Doris and Charles Dixon encounter participants

But the Dixons, who live in Westland and attend Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia, went to an encounter mostly out of curiosity.

Charles Dixon noticed a difference right away.

"I was on my way home from Okemos, where I work occasionally, and all of a sudden, I was very anxious," said Dixon, who is a dentist at Delta Dental. "I couldn't wait to get home to see her. It was nice to get that feeling back again."

The Kleins, who also live in Westland and attend Newburg United, have a similar story. They had a good marriage but were looking to enhance it.

But having two careers, they had found their marriage had become routine. The encounter helped them get that old "newlywed feeling" again.

MARRIAGE encounters are hardly new. The Catholic church has had them a number of years. But at a time when divorce and separation are running rampant, marriage encounters offer a chance for couples to nip potential problems in the bud.

Churches of all denominations now are having marriage encounters.

The things learned at the encounter are not just practiced for one weekend. The Dixons and the Kleins belong to a group, The Flame, which meets twice a month at Newburg United Methodist Church.

Members of The Flame have all been to an encounter. They gather to talk and share information about marriage.

"It's a continuation of what was learned during the weekend," said Doris Dixon, who heads the group. "It's a support group for those people who went through the encounter."

(For more information on the Marriage Encounter United Methodist, call 522-3473.)

Business travelers log fewer complaints; hotels next target?

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

The horror stories concerning air travel may have lessened, but disgruntled fliers have hardly become a vanishing breed.

Travel agents who deal with business clients note fewer complaints, and an informal survey taken at Metropolitan Airport found three business persons in agreement with the travel agents. But other frequent flyers thought the service was worse.

In metropolitan Detroit, mention flying and the company that comes to mind is Northwest Airlines, whose "hub" system dominates the market here.

"You'd have to say things are much better (with Northwest) since their merger last year. There are still people who don't want to travel on them, but things are looking better," said Janice Klein, a certified travel counselor for Elkin Travel.

"The flying public is getting better educated and more demanding."

Better educated, perhaps, but not happier in all cases. Richard Weekes, a writer who lives in Houston and was in Detroit recently, has been flying twice a month since June and thinks the service is lousy compared to last year.

"I just had my first experience with Northwest Airlines, too," Weekes said. "Everything has been late — two hours late — and now I have to wait until 5:30 p.m. for my connecting flight," Weekes said at 2:10 p.m. one weekend afternoon.

Mike Palumbo, petty officer, U.S. Navy, waiting for his connecting flight to Chicago, said Northwest hadn't lost his luggage but he was waiting until the end of his trip to praise or damn the airline. But he did have one complaint.

"Now that they're cracking down (on schedule and luggage problems) the rates have gone up. It's like the airlines are saying, 'We have to pay fines for our mistakes so we'll make people pay the fines.' "

Carol Diroff, general manager of Maritz Business Travel in Farmington Hills, also sees "definite improvement out of Detroit."

She points to personal experience to substantiate her remarks.

During a one-month period Diroff took 14 trips to different destinations on Northwest, Southwest, Midway, TWA, Continental and Piedmont airlines.

"On-time performance has been excellent. I have yet to be delayed more than 15 minutes on any flight. In fact, we left three minutes early once because everyone had already boarded."

Ralph Daulton of Orchard Lake, who flies out of Metro at least once a week for Volvo Automated Systems, agreed with Diroff. "The airlines are taking this publicity business to heart, and they're trying to do a better job," he said.

"I don't think delays are a big problem and I haven't seen any problem with luggage. I think people just like to tell horror stories."

Some travel agencies are offering specialized services just for their business fliers who tend to be more concerned about arrival times than vacation travelers.

Elkin, whose corporate clients include United Auto Workers, Diversey Wyandott Chemical and Shedda's Food Products, provides an emergency 800 telephone number which is manned 24 hours a day to help clients with canceled flights.

They also deliver boarding passes by hand to clients the day before a trip. The passes are generated by the company's computer system.

"Business travel is a completely different ball game from vacation travel," Klein said, adding "We operate at a high-service level."

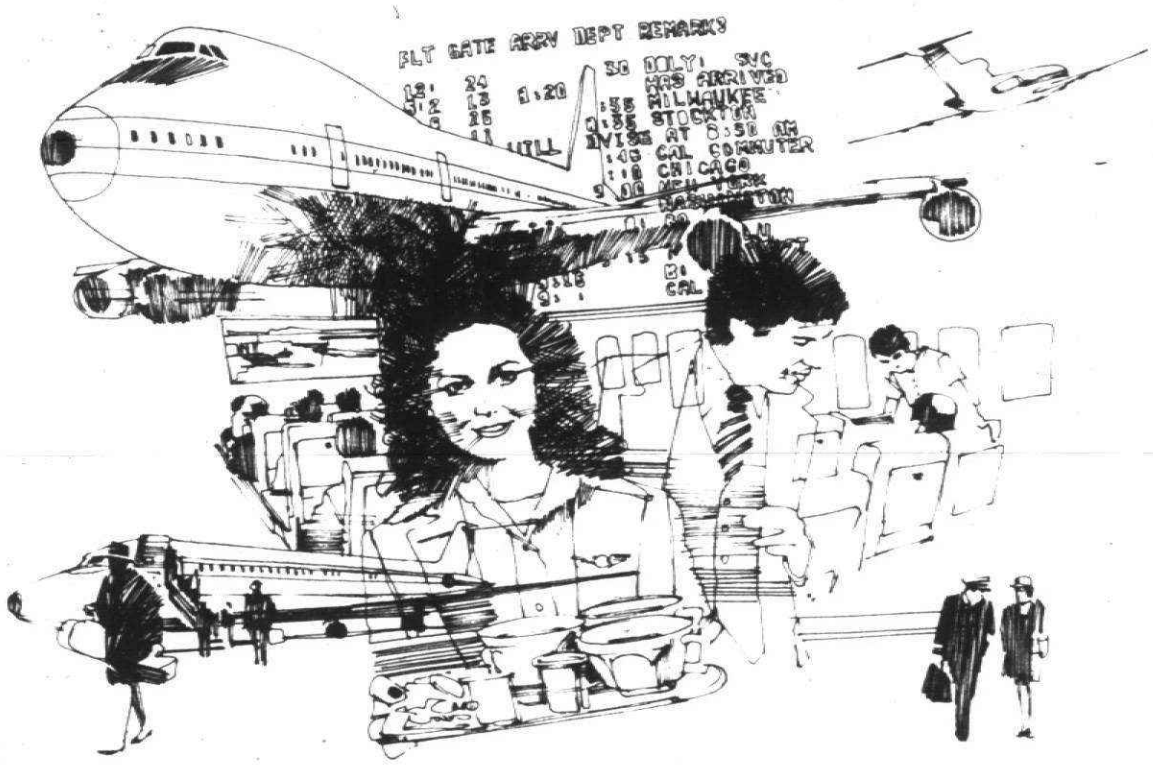
Diroff, whose company arranges an estimated 3,000 travel transactions each month, has concerns about travel in the future.

Shortages of space in airports for carriers who are expanding fleets and at hotels in moderate-sized cities like Troy, Columbus, Ohio, or Evanston, Ill., already exist and will continue to worsen, according to her.

"Available space is a continuing problem in most airports. Metro (Detroit Metropolitan) is already maxed out. The situation needs to be seriously addressed now," she said.

"The same can also be said of hotels, many of which are beginning to overbook like the airlines. It's happening increasingly in cities with limited numbers of rooms or where conventions are already booked," Diroff added.

Other predictions are more hopeful, including lower air fares generated from old-fashioned competition created by new "upstart" carriers who are servicing smaller communities that have been bypassed in recent years by larger carriers.



Tips to avoid travel foulups

Carol Diroff, general manager of Maritz Business Travel in Farmington Hills, offers these tips for successful air travel:

- Give yourself a two-hour "window," two hours of time between estimated time of arrival on the ground and final destination.
- Avoid traveling between the hours of 8-9 a.m. and 4-6 p.m.
- Avoid making plane changes in hub cities like Detroit, Memphis or Atlanta.
- Get to the airport at least 45 minutes before check-in time.
- Carry your own luggage whenever possible.
- Handle problems while still at the airport.
- If you feel entitled to something you didn't receive, make an argument for it, i.e. room accommodations in the event of a canceled flight.
- Most important, if the flight has been canceled, call your travel agent for rescheduling.

"The airline will reschedule you on their next available flight. We reschedule on the next available flight," Diroff explained.

Small businesses answer long-distance service call

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Marketing a long-distance telephone service is proving to be more of a challenge than anticipated for developer Richard Kughn, who founded Logicall last October.

So Kughn is developing a new strategy to attract customers, and this time the emphasis will be on small business operators instead of households.

Launched by a marketing campaign developed by a Kughn-owned company, Communique Telecommunications, Logicall automatically routes long-distance calls through the least expensive carrier. It is aimed at individuals and small business people who place at least $20 a month in long-distance calls. Depending upon the number of monthly calls, the service aims to save consumers up to 20-30 percent on their bills.

Some 6,000 customers have subscribed to the system. While the majority are individuals, nearly 2,500 are small business people, a fact that surprised Kughn and his associates.

"WE GOT GOOD response but not the kind we expected," Kughn said of the marketing strategy, admitting "we fell short of expectations. Now that we've had a chance to analyze our statistics, we found we're falling shorter in residential and doing better in business (than projected).

"In my opinion, the program is an absolute natural, but there is so much confusion out there (about telephone systems). People are confused and apathetic. I know if I get something in the mail about phone systems, I've received so many things, I glance at it and throw it away."

Moderate subscriber response to Logicall has Kughn, Vincent Murone, president of Communique Telecommunications, and others rethinking marketing strategy this week during three days of meetings at Kughn Enterprise offices in Southfield.

'People have to become aware of what it (Logicall) is. It's a different thing. What we're doing is giving them back (long-distance service) the way it used to be.'

— Richard Kughn

"We are about to launch an additional marketing program, attempting to penetrate deeper into the marketplace," Kughn said, adding changes will be aimed at "pumping subscribers up to 30,000 within the next two-three months."

While details are incomplete, it is likely the existing campaign, which sympathizes with confused consumers and attempts to offer them a simple, cost-effective alternative, will be dropped. A new message, heavily directed at small business people, will be delivered through mailings and advertising in area newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

THOUGHT IS ALSO being given to relocating the Logicall sales staff from California to Michigan for "concentrated direct sales." Logicall targeted area code 313, which includes metropolitan Detroit, as its test market.

"Detroit is the key to the whole thing. We must get marketed here, within the next five-six months. Once we get the job done here, we can move to other cities. Then I think we'll be able to get national publicity," Kughn said.

"People have to become aware of what it is. It's a different thing. What we're doing is giving them back (long-distance service) the way it used to be."

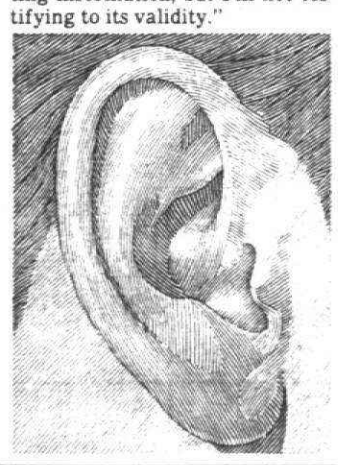
Ear to the ground puts managers in the know

By Philip A. Sherman
special writer

It's a long way from the mailroom to the executive suite. But when it comes to knowing what's going on in the company, don't discount those on the lower rungs of the corporate ladder.

According to three local experts, the people in the mailroom may be among the most likely to know what's really going on. That's because they're plugged into the grapevine, something many managers aren't, and at least have the advantage of knowing there's a rumor going around pertaining to the company's quarterly standings.

"One can't be an ostrich. One must be aware of the impact of the informal system," said Dan Braunstein, chair of Oakland University's marketing and managing department. "The grapevine is highly efficient for transmitting information, but I'm not testifying to its validity."



No one really knows how rumors are started. Some employees play a hunch and put it on the rumor mill for verification, according to some studies. Others embellish factual information to appear better informed than they really are. A third reason was offered by Larry Bossman, professor and associate dean of the University of Detroit's college of business administration.

"There's a correlation between management groups and grapevines," said Bossman of Bloomfield Hills. "No communication fuels the grapevine and fills the gap left by management. This can be organizationally dysfunctional, particularly if it causes false rumors."

Small business answers long-distance service call

The complex switching equipment, which automatically routes the calls, was designed by Communique Telecommunications and was installed in the Renaissance Center.

The system, which Kughn said is "functioning very well," offers direct dialing without requiring the use of access codes. Logicall costs consumers an additional $2.50 a month plus 10 cents for each long-distance call after the first 15 calls. Subscribers are billed monthly by Michigan Bell and receive statements, which itemize each call and the carrier that was used.

"The concept was so obvious (following deregulation), an enhanced service industry which I think is going to become a very important thing I saw a window for this four years ago and began developing a product to fill it," Kughn said. To his knowledge, Logicall is the only company of its nature in business.

THE SYSTEM has been expensive to launch. While Kughn would not cite figures, his overall investment, including consultant fees, design and installation of the elaborate switching equipment and advice on whether the concept was legal under deregulation, has been "very large."

Will the system succeed?

"Who knows?" Kughn said. "I don't go into business unless I feel a niche in the marketplace that is of benefit to the consumer. I don't go into business just to go into business. It's absolutely important it succeed, not just for me, but for the consumer as well."

This philosophy was obvious two years ago when Kughn bought Lionel Trains in Mount Clemens, attracted to the failing business by a "romance" for the toy trains produced by the company.

"After taking a very serious look from a business point of view, I saw it as a great opportunity."

A recent proposal for a massive 200-acre Detroit riverfront development was rejected, according to Kughn, because he would not modify the proposal to fit 62 acres the city offered, believing that a smaller project was not workable.

Area code 313 was selected as the test market for Logicall because Kughn "likes Detroit and Michigan. It's a good place for test markets."

The business climate here, he said, has improved dramatically in recent years because "labor, management and the legislature have come closer together from the strife of several years ago."

Kughn has new projects under way. During an interview at his plush private museum called Carail, he juggled phones, arranging financing for one new deal. He declined comment on the project because "nothing is ready to launch. Since my portfolio includes real estate, business acquisition and restructuring, and launching new businesses, it's safe to say it's one of those."

An ear to the ground always helps wise business manager

THAT'S THE difference between being right and being effective, said Jim Brady, president of Management Focus, an Ann Arbor consulting firm.

To Brady, being right — knowing a rumor is false but not knowing how to disseminate factual information — isn't enough. Being effective means interacting with peers to give and receive information not available under normal circumstances.

Bossman gave an example.

"A U.S. Army general needed to get information out to his troops in an informal way. He called his chauffeur to drive him to pick up another general. The generals started to discuss the issue, knowing the chauffeur was listening and would put the word out. It was very effective," Bossman said.

Bossman, Brady and Braunstein don't necessarily think rumors are organizationally top- or bottom-heavy. "You'd be surprised at the number of executive personnel who tend to gossip," Bossman said. But all think that to some degree, gossip finds a more comfortable home with the rank and file because those employees have the last access to formal information.

"It's in inverse proportion," Brady said. "Top management values time differently, and a rumor won't be enough grist for an entire conversation." Conversely, the rank and file nail and overhaul every scrap of information while they search for the truth, he said.

"However, while managers and supervisors do know what's going on, those secretaries really really DO know what's going on. They're not given enough credit," Brady said. "If top management is smart, they'll use the grapevine."

Brady said management usually doesn't take advantage of the rumor mill because it doesn't want employees to jump to conclusions and is aware of the fact that situations may change. "But it depends on the personality of managers and supervisors. If they're very strong on survival instincts, they'll tie in and use it effectively."

Several good ways exist to kill rumors, use grapevines to load and fire information, or turn rumors around so they'll work for you like double agents. "The best way to battle a rumor is honesty. Ask the boss and get an answer. Then the peer group will carry the message back," Brady said.

OU's Braunstein agreed, adding it's also important to acknowledge the rumor's existence. "Then you have to be aware of its impact on formal work acitivities. Sometimes it's functional and sometimes it's dysfunctional.

"It's also necessary to have as many listening posts open as possible — don't be the last to know. At times, make yourself available where informal information is thrown around." Braunstein also said berating gossip is a maistake.

"Do that and you won't hear it. You want to reinforce people for making you a part of that communication link."

Engineers leave Big 3 for auto underground

Dan McCosh

Ted Louckes, chief engineer at Oldsmobile, is the latest Big Three executive to go underground, joining a significant trend that in the long run may do as much to change the business as the explosive growth in imports did in the 1970s.

Louckes credited with developing the Olds Quad Four engine, GM's first high-output, small-displacement power plant, is joining Creative Industries, an independent engineering company.

A dozen years ago, GM's divisional chief engineer had the most envied job in the auto business. It was about as high as you could go and do real hands-on car development work. Further promotion meant more committees, more personnel work, and a lot less fun.

NOW LOUCKES becomes the second of GM's five divisional chief engineers to take early retirement in the past few months. The other was Cadillac's Warren Hirschfield, who also left for an independent engineering company.

Aside from chief engineers, GM lost its chief of advanced car development, Hulki Aldu ackti. And several years ago Ford's Jim Capolango left as head of Ford of Europe, both to Detroit-area engineering shops.

If we are to believe Hal Sperlich, recently retired president of Chrysler Motors Corps., at the age of 58 he is going to go from working 20 hours a day plowing through the details of development engineering to taking long walks and playing golf.

I DOUBT IT. I would be willing to bet Sperlich soon will be added to the growing list of top-level auto executives joining the auto underground.

Independent engineering shops used to do the dirty work for new-car production programs, mainly producing reams of detail drawings needed to build production tooling. But today, they are the primary source of prototype cars, concept cars and market-ready design work.

A handful have progressed to where they are ready to do design work on entire car programs and even manufacture limited-volume automobiles.

IN CONTRAST, the Big Three have been gradually redefining their role in the auto business as financial holding companies and marketing-distribution groups. They have been paying for the work and defining the cars, but they have been cutting back on their in-house engineering staffs.

Lastly, the lucrative early retirement programs GM in particular has been offering executives in the prime of their careers has had the unwanted effect of making it attractive for their best people to jump ship.

Landing with an independent, while collecting the GM retirement package, means an additional paycheck that could well match their former salary, plus the ability to run their own show.

THE ULTIMATE irony is that the independents often end up with contracts to develop cars for the Big Three, and the same people end up on the same projects they left.

While I haven't seen any statistics tracking this shift in the engineering infrastructure, I would guess it has added 20,000 or so technical jobs in the area in the past five years, while the Big Three shrink their staffs.

It's also resulted in a new atmosphere of entrepreneurial new-car work, as companies such as Entech, Cartech and Creative get further along to doing the kind of work Europeans such as Lotus Cars Ltd. are famous for.

The down side is that the Big Three tend to erode t heir ability to define unique cars as they rely more and more on the outside "pool." It's a gamble that has been built into the restructuring strategies the Big Three have been following for the past five years or so.

Covered options reduce your risk

Part I finances and you

Sid Mittra

A former student of mine recently told me that she not only lost her entire investment ($200,000) by engaging in options but now owes an additional $100,000 to the brokerage firm as well.

Generally speaking, options entail the proverbial investor's risk: Total loss of investment accompanying the potential for making a fast buck. In fact, James Dean's famous words, "live fast, die young," may easily apply to stock options.

This column is designed for conservative investors who can improve their investment performance by writing covered call options (CCO).

A CCO does not expose you to the risk of losing your investment, nor does it offer a way to make a killing in the market. It merely provides current stockholders the opportunity to use their stock holdings to increase their cash flow and reduce the risks of investing.

How CCO works

Say you own 100 shares of IBM, which is currently selling for $110 a share. You bought the stock for $75 and are still comfortable with it. Obviously, you will stand to gain if the price goes up, but you would lose part of your gain if the price drops from the current level. So you decide to write a CCO as a way of increasing your investment return.

STEP 1. Contact your broker who would sell an IBM call option on your behalf. This option has the following features:

1. The life of the option is nine months (you could have sold a three or six month option but you won't make as much money).

2. You collect a premium of, say, $1,100. That works out to $11 a share.

3. Over the next nine months, the buyer has the option to "call away" 100 shares of IBM stock from you for $110 a share, regardless of the market price at the time the stock is called away.

4. You continue to hold the stock and collect dividends.

STEP 2. During the next nine months your stock would be called away at $110 a share if the market price increases above that price, you simply deliver 100 shares of IBM you own and collect $11,000 from the buyer.

It is important to note that if the stock appreciates, you don't lose out-of-pocket cash, just the opportunity to reap any gains, because your stock will be "called away."

Also, by collecting the $1,100 option money up front, you in fact technically sold this stock at $121 ($110 plus $11 call price) at a time when the stock was selling only at $110. So you don't even have an opportunity loss until the stock rises above $121.

Another important caveat: The option buyer doesn't have to wait for nine months to exercise the option. For instance, if the IBM stock hits $130 in two weeks, your stock would be called away. In that case, you would gain the same premium holding a contract for two weeks instead of for nine months, so it works out to be a higher annualized yield.

Sci-fi star plays a heroic role

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

'This guy Jason is in control. He leads an expedition to the moon in the late 1980s, discovers a hostile robot culture and takes the responsibility for protecting earth.'

— Walter Koenig

FOR THE LAST 21 years, Walter Koenig has been overcoming assorted evil aliens in outer space as Chekhov in the "Star Trek" TV series and in all four "Star Trek" films. Now the actor-writer is "in space" once again, to shoot a new science fiction film called "Moontrap" for Magic Lantern Productions, in Troy.

Koenig says of his science fiction niche in film, "I've been pigeonholed, but this is great fun. I like to expand my horizons and do different kinds of characters. 'Moontrap' is a very different role from what I've been playing."

For starters, he portrays an all-American NASA astronaut in "Moontrap" instead of the Russian, Chekhov, of the "Star Trek" series. And this time around he gets to be the hero, Jason Grant, rather than just a crew member on the Starship Enterprise.

"THIS GUY JASON is in control. He leads an expedition to the moon in the late 1980s, discovers a hostile robot culture and takes the responsibility for protecting earth," Koenig said.

Co-star Bruce Campbell, a fellow astronaut and his sidekick in the film, said, "Jason's the hero, you can always tell who's the hero. He's the one who gets the girl."

"Yea, I get the 14,000-year-old girl," Koenig shot back. In "Moontrap" his romantic interest is Mera, an earthling from a prehistoric earth colony played by newcomer Leigh Lombardi. She's freeze-preserved in a lunar crypt so she can warn future earthlings about the robots threatening to take over earth.

Her crypt looks like a cross between a glorified manhole cover and an ancient altar as it waits discovery on the lunar set. Most of the film is being shot in a converted warehouse on Rochester Road in Troy. Between takes, Koenig and the rest of the cast and crew wear surgical masks to filter out the dust that hangs in the air, a lingering special effect created by cement dust and a smoke machine used to recreate the arid lunar landscape. Behind the camera, they look like M*A*S*H* astonauts stationed on the moon.

KOENIG PLAYS the hero not as a superman but as a realistic modern man with inner anxieties and conflicts (not to mention the external difficulties he has with the race of malicious lunar robots). Back on earth he's separated from his wife and having trouble with his son. Out in space he faces private anxieties. Koenig says of the character, "Jason is in his early 40s and wonders with the encroaching years if he's still as capable as he once was."

A genuine attempt to be realistic lies behind the presentation of characters in the film and in the sets constructed by a team of carpenters working nonstop in another section of the warehouse.

Robert Dyke, the film's producer-director and the power behind Magic Lantern Productions, said, "Realism is what makes this film unique. My aim is to take a core sci-fi premise — spacemen go to moon, find beautiful woman, fight monsters — and translate it into a realistic tale."

Dyke says, "We try to keep the science as accurate as possible by trying to duplicate on our sets NASA photos of the moon's surface. We take the imagery of the moon that we've all seen for the past 20 years and introduce it into a fantastic storyline."

A WRITER as well as an actor, Koenig has a keen ear for good storylines. Besides working in film and in theater, he writes screenplays, TV scripts and novels. He has written episodes for TV shows "The Incredible Hulk," "Family" and "Land of the Lost" and for the animated "Star Trek" series. His second novel, "Buck Alice and the Actor Robot," is due out in March.

In real life, 51-year-old Koenig lives with his family in Los Angeles and divides his time between acting in films, working as a stage actor and writing. Dry spells between jobs are the bane and the reality of an acting career.

Asked whether he prefers working in film to working on stage, he said, "I like working. That's the prerequisite."

Then he admits, "I find theater most gratifying, but it pays the least. So between film jobs I try to do theater. I do a lot of theater in L.A. — comedy and drama."

He lists roles in "Steambath" and "The Deputy," as highlights, along with playing Pompeius with Lynn Redgrave and Timothy Dalton in "Anthony and Cleopatra."

Shooting on the 3.6-million-dollar film is scheduled to wrap up in February. The film will hopefully be shown at the Cannes Film Festival in May and be released nationally in August.

TWO PROJECTS wait in the wings for the conclusion of Koenig's other-worldly adventures in "Moontrap." He has written a screenplay, "When You Are Ready, C.B." which he hopes to see produced. He wants to play Tom Sawyer in a play called "The Boys in Autumn." He has no aim to pretend he's the tousle-haired kid Mark Twain invented but rather wants to play a grown-up Tom with a smattering of gray in his hair.

He says of the innovative production, "It's likely it's going to happen. The play will debut in L.A., then go on tour.

Meanwhile, Koenig wears an authentic replica of a NASA spacesuit and mans the controls of a Saturn rocket bound for a dangerous expedition to the moon. This thoughtful man of many talents for once gets to be the hero.

Koenig plays the hero not as a superman but as a realistic modern man with inner anxieties and conflicts (not to mention the external difficulties he has with the race of malicious lunar robots).

Trio sings songs of love in stylish musical revue

Performances of "Starting Here, Starting Now," presented by Nancy Gurwin Productions and the Jewish Community Center, continue through Saturday, Feb. 6, at the center in West Bloomfield. For ticket information call 354-0545.

"Starting Here, Starting Now" is a frothy musical pastiche loosely built around the theme of love. The Nancy Gurwin production at the Jewish Community Center is stylishly performed by a talented, very winning trio.

Ginger Freers and Rita Jury are both powerhouse singers with impressive range and lots of pizzazz. Danny Gurwin has a polished stage presence, fluid movements and a fine voice heard to best advantage when he solos.

Twenty-seven songs by Richard Maltby Jr. and David Shire make up the musical revue. The most memorable numbers are comic and allow for some character development.

In "A Little Bit Off" Freers is so topsy-turvy in love that she inadvertently crumples the photograph of her new heartthrob, then tries to smooth out her mistake.

"We Can Talk to Each Other" features a frustrated Greer unable to get a word in edgewise while boyfriend Gurwin boorishly monopolizes the conversation, singing the praises of the couple's communicative skills.

THE CLEVEREST wordplay is in "Crossword Puzzle" where a forlorn Jury laments that her beau has run away with another gal because he tired of her supplying all the answers to his Sunday crossword. Now she's left holding the puzzle for company.

Parodying department store makeup specialists, Freers boasts "I'm Going to Make You Beautiful" while doing a slapstick bit with bowls of loose face powder.

Martin Burwell provides excellent piano accompaniment for the vocalists, and Nancy Brassert has directed with maximum dramatic flair.

While the costumes are smartly sophisticated, the paltry strips of glittery fabric are ineffectual stage adornment. Better to have left the stage bare. The skilled performers and good lighting can carry it off.

Barbara Michals teaches high school English in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 14 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly watches up on all the New York productions.

Songs by Noel Coward receive good attention

Helen Zucker

"Oh Coward!" directed by David Pulce at the comfortable Smith Theatre is a pleasing arrangement of 22 Noel Coward songs.

The show is presented by Opera Lite in association with the theater on the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

It is whimsically divided into two acts and deftly sung by Betsey Bronson, Morgan Rice and Pulce, seasoned troupers all. There's not much that can go wrong. And nothing much does.

The performers are all in admirable voice, and if several of the songs seem to come from an era fast fading into the past, the fault lies with Coward's lyrics, not with the thoroughly professional production.

The era of bowler hats, canes and eccentric relations who swim away to become missionaries "among the heathens" seems to have dropped into whatever realm Jeeves and the Admirable Crichton now inhabit.

BUT COWARD'S ballads are alive and well. Betsey Bronson's clear, beautiful rendition of "If Love Were All" is a show stopper. And "Mad About The Boy" still smoulders. Sitting on a barstool in a pink, shimmering dress, her blond head tilted into the light, Bronson is in her element — blending sweetness and hopeless passion . . . a figure out of "Casablanca."

Beverly Labuta deserves double credit. Her work as music director is elegant. And her piano playing deserves special mention. Labuta plays with grace, polish and elan.

Morgan Rice and David Pulce are amusing, charming and satirical, displaying considerable acting talent as the revue goes on. Their voices have bite, wit and precision and do justice to "The Stately Homes of England," "A Marvellous Party," "Nina," "Mrs. Worthington" and "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" — the last two songs I never thought I would hear again in this life. Both singers manage to throw a bit of Benny Hill into their numbers.

Dale Anderson on string bass and Nick Bakos on percussion lend weight to the happy sounds.

Most of these performers will show up at the Smith Theatre to do "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Helen Zucker has many years of experience reviewing for newspapers and magazines in Michigan, New York and Massachusetts.

4-wheel steering to debut in '88 cars

AP — In the race to create the world's first true four-wheel steering system, the only two competitors — Japan's Mazda Motors Corp. and Honda Motor Co. — both won.

The systems turn the rear wheels to reduce the time it takes the vehicle itself to follow the front wheels on curves or lane changes at highway speeds and to ease low-speed maneuvering.

Honda's four-wheel steering debuts on its 1988 Prelude Si two-door coupe, while Mazda's will appear first on its 1988 626 Turbo four-door sedan.

Honda's system reached U.S. showrooms in September, breaking the finish-line ribbon only a few strides before Mazda. The two systems, both patented, accomplish the same end using different technology.

Honda uses a mechanical, steer-angle dependent system that responds to the distance he steering wheel is turned. If the steering wheel is turned slightly, the rear wheels turn in the same direction as the front wheels.

But when the steering wheel turns sharply, as in parking lot maneuvers, the rear wheels move opposite the front wheels. The rear wheels turn 1.5 degrees with the front wheels and 5.3 degrees against them.

The rear wheels are controlled by a rear steering box connected to a center shaft that translates the movements of the steering wheel.

Honda began its four-wheel-steering research in 1977. Mazda engineers first came up with the idea 25 years ago, but like Honda began intense work 10 years ago when tire and suspension technology began to make it appear possible.

Mazda's much more complex system is electronically controlled and includes duplicated speed sensors that act as a fail-safe. If both sensors don't get the same reading, the fail-safe locks the rear wheels straight and the car reverts to front-wheel steer only.

The same occurs in case of electrical failure.

The direction of the rear wheels is determined by the speed of the car. Below 22 mph, the rear wheels turn opposite and above 22 they move with the front wheels. At 22 mph, the rear wheels remain straight.

The rear wheels are steered by a hydraulic pressure cylinder moved, in turn, by an electric motor on the computerized rear steering box that eliminates the need for a center steering shaft.

Both automakers say the systems reduce the low-speed turning diameter and improve highway handling, performance and safety.

But Detroit automakers, not yet convinced four-wheel steering is a major improvement, are waiting to see whether the system proves itself before investing in the research and tooling to produce an American version.

Both the four-wheel-steering equipped Mazda and Honda models have base prices of more than $17,000.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything & show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my Loved One, in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Salem sophomore Ryan Johnson pushes the ball up court in Tuesday's Lakes Division contest with Farmington. The Rocks pulled away with a big second quarter and won 62-49. Farmington's Drew McDougall gives chase.

Hot-shooting Rocks crush Farmington

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Basketball coaches Bob Brodie and Bob Kaump had very different messages for their teams at halftime of Tuesday's game at Plymouth Salem.

Brodie told the Rocks, who carried an 18-point lead into the intermission, to keep up the good work and be on guard for a possible Farmington comeback.

Kaump, on the other hand, exhorted his charges to play harder and make up for a lackluster first half by challenging Salem more.

The Falcons did as their coach asked, but so did the Rocks, who shot 75 percent in the second quarter to build a 40-22 lead and held on for a 62-49 victory.

Salem snapped Farmington's two-game win streak and improved to 2-2 in the Lakes Division and 4-6 overall. The Falcons are 1-3 and 3-7.

"THE LAST thing I said to the kids at halftime," Brodie said, "was 'They're going to make a run. What you have to do is maintain your poise and not let that rattle you' — and we did that.

"That's one thing we haven't been able to do very well is keep our composure," he added.

As it turned out, the Rocks were never in any real danger after their demonstration of red-hot shooting in the first half.

Scott Hale scored 14 of his game-high 21 points in the first half, including 10 in the second quarter when Salem put the game out of reach.

With Hale leading the way, the Rocks hit their first seven shots and ended up 8-of-12 in that period. They were 14-of-27 for the half while Farmington was 7-of-23.

"I DIDN'T think they could shoot that well," Kaump said. "I knew (Todd) Marion (13 points) could shoot that well, but I didn't think Hale could."

Salem outscored the Falcons 27-6 during a stretch of playing time from the late first period until midway in the second. With that, the Rocks turned a meager, two-point margin into a 37-14 advantage.

Hale had 10 of Salem's first 14 points in the second quarter, including eight in a row that boosted his team's lead to 32-12. He hit a jumper from the wing and turned it into a three-point play, nailed a three-point field goal and sank two free throws.

While the Rocks had the hot hand offensively, their defense was sharp, too. They didn't give Farmington many shots and did well on the defensive boards.

Jason Brown and Mike Myers, a pair of 6-foot-5 juniors, had 12 and 11 points, respectively, to lead the Falcons, but Salem successfully nullified them at key times.

"THEY NOT only go to the basket, but they shoot well," Brodie said. "I think a lot of teams see the size of those guys and are not concerned about their perimeter shooting.

"I knew they could shoot the ball, so we crowded them wherever they were."

The Falcons dented Salem's lead, quickly cutting the margin to 10 points at the start of the second half, but the Rocks had too big a lead for Farmington to overcome.

"The only thing I told the kids at halftime was the intensity level to start the game was extremely poor," Kaump said. "We let (Salem) dictate what kind of game it was going to be.

"We got out of the zone defense and did a heckuva job in the man-to-man in the second half."

Baskets by Myers, Steve Quenneville and back-to-back field goals by Brown chopped Salem's advantage to 40-30 with the third quarter 1½ minutes old.

THE FALCONS got back within 10 on several other occasions, but they couldn't break the double-digit barrier until it was too late to offer any hope of winning.

"We had three chances to get it down to eight and missed all three," Kaump said. "I guess it takes that much out of you to come back that strong and keep it going."

Kaump said he planned to work on his team's intensity level and develop continuity between practices and games on that front.

"I don't see them yet saying 'Hey, here we are; we can handle them,'" he said. "We're still trying to get that positive, confident attitude, which you have to have in this league because everybody is so even."

Keith Smith added 11 points and 10 rebounds for the Rocks, who saw their shooting drop off to 7-of-19 in the second half. Bill Anderson had nine rebounds, Hale and Ryan Johnson five assists apiece.

Bridesmaid Salem spiked by Brighton

Only a perfect performance by Brighton's volleyball team stood between Plymouth Salem and the championship of the Plymouth Invitational.

After winning nine of 12 games to get to the final Saturday, the Rocks were runners-up to the Bulldogs, who didn't a lose game Saturday. Brighton took first place with a 15-2, 15-8 victory over Salem.

The Bulldogs won the junior varsity tournament a year ago, and many of the players off that team helped Brighton take the varsity title this year, Salem coach Betty Smith said.

Defending champion Birmingham Marian was Salem's first victim, losing the first match in pool play to the Rocks, 15-4, 15-11. The Mustangs still made it to the playoffs, but were stopped by Brighton in the semifinals, 15-1, 15-3.

Salem's Kara Cummings and Roseann Sumpter were named to the all-tournament team after having an outstanding tournament in different areas.

SUMPTER RECORDED 48 kills while going 72-for-83 as an attacker. In the semifinals against Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard, she had 19 kills out of 23 attacks, and she had 11 kills in the quarterfinal win over Northville.

Cummings did all of Salem's setting for the attackers, and she was 46-of-52 serving with 10 aces.

"The kids worked real hard at improving on their individual weaknesses and playing more cohesive volleyball," Salem coach Betty Smith said.

"There had been some hesitation in the back row, and Saturday the kids started getting to more balls and backing each other up. It was good for our confidence level."

In addition to Sumpter, Asaka Motoyama was 49-of-59 hitting and had 22 kills.

AS A TEAM, the Rocks served for 35 aces. Laura Porterfield had only one bad serve in 66 attempts and recorded nine aces, and Meg Foley was 49-of-54 serving with eight aces.

Aimee Hayden "did a fine job on defense and with serve reception," Smith said. "She was very consistent all day."

After beating Marian, the Rocks downed Redford Union 15-6, 15-8 and split with Livonia Franklin 7-15, 15-9 to come out of pool play with a 5-1 record. Marian was 4-2.

Other teams surviving the early rounds were Saline (5-1) and Northville (5-1); Gabriel Richard (4-2) and Dearborn Heights Crestwood (3-3); Brighton (6-0) and Dearborn (4-2).

In the quarterfinals, Salem went three games with Northville, winning 16-14, 14-16, 15-5. Marian beat Saline 15-6, 15-17, 15-0; Brighton whipped Crestwood 15-1, 15-3; and Gabriel Richard topped Dearborn 16-14, 13-15, 15-11.

THE ROCKS had to come from behind to eliminate the Fighting Irish of Richard in the semis, 5-15, 15-2, 15-9, while Brighton cruised past Marian.

Salem's second-place finish was its highest in four years when the Rocks also were runners-up in 1984. This was the 13th year for the tournament.

Without a doubt, Cox chooses MAC champs

It didn't take Chris Cox long to decide where he wanted to play college football.

The standout linebacker from Farmington Hills Harrison made only one of his allotted five visits to a college campus, and that was to Eastern Michigan University.

"I didn't go on any more after that, because I made up my mind right away," Cox said. "I liked the people; I liked the coaches a lot."

Cox has given a verbal commitment to the Hurons and will make it official when high school seniors can sign national letters of intent on Sunday, Feb. 14.

A number of other area players, including Plymouth Canton's Roger Trice and North Farmington's Todd Gesund, are still considering several schools. With the deadline approaching, some players are waiting to see if certain schools offer a scholarship or partial aid before making their decisions.

COX ALSO was recruited by Hillsdale, Ferris State, Saginaw Valley, Northern Michigan and Grand Valley, but EMU showed the most interest, he said.

The assistant who will be Cox's position coach at EMU was also the person who recruited him. Greg Satanski, the defensive coordinator

Salem wrestler 'outstanding' at novice meet

Plymouth Salem's Brian Burlison, 167-pounder, was named the outstanding wrestler in the sophomore division Saturday in the 23rd annual Garden City Novice Tournament.

Thirty-one teams were represented in the sophomore division and 33 more in the freshman division as over 360 wrestlers competed in the one-day event.

Bedford took the sophomore division team title with 200 points followed by Fenton and Salem, a distant second and third, respectively, with 125 and 116½ points.

Belleville reigns as freshman division champs with 201½ points. Bedford was second (127½) and Fenton third (107). Garden City Junior High was fourth with 91½. (See statistical summary).

Trenton's Marc Famularo (105) was voted outstanding freshman wrestler.

"ONLY BY AN outstanding effort by Stan Worrell, the school administration, parents of our wrestlers and Garden City alumni wrestlers can we put on a tournament of this size," said co-meet manager and head GC varsity wrestling coach Phil Freeman. "We have people coming back to help who haven't wrestled or had a child wrestle for us in five or 10 years.

"It's very satisfying to realize that so many people give up their time year after year to put on the tournament.

"Many of these Novice champs go on to place in the state meet during their wrestling careers. This is just a great tournament."

Copland uplifted for national finals

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Chuck Copland stands 6-foot-4. He weighs 350 pounds, wears a size 60 suit coat, and has bench pressed 440 pounds.

Needless to say, he has trouble even at a Big & Tall store, finding clothes — including that suit — big enough to fit him.

All these credentials might lead one to believe that Copland uses steroids to become bigger. Copland laughs at the notion because on Feb. 13 and 14 in Irving, Tex., Copland will compete as a super heavyweight in the United States Power Lifting Federation Natural Nationals Championships.

TRANSLATED, THE championships are for drug-free power lifters, who much like the American eagle have nearly become extinct.

Copland is proud to say he is a drug-free lifter.

Copland qualified for the nationals by placing fourth at the Mideast Regional Nov. 28-29 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"The accomplishments are so much more satisfactory, knowing that you're doing it naturally," Copland said. "In Michigan alone, there are about 100,000 registered power lifters and of that total, maybe 3,000 or 4,000 belong to the Drug Free Power Lifting Association."

"Usually, it's the guys that weigh about 175 or 200 pounds that see me in the gym and say to their buddy, 'Hey that guy's got to be on drugs.' But I'll be honest, if I started to take steroids today, in three years I'd be world champ."

Copland, however, prefers to practice his hobby drug-free.

COPLAND, A 1977 graduate of Westland John Glenn, began lifting weights in high school because it "went hand-in-hand with football and wrestling (sports he played at Glenn)."

He entered competition for the first time in 1982, placing third at the Grand Rapids Open Bench Press with a lift of 350 pounds. Copland has come a long way since then and is the two-time defending state champ drug-free power lifter. Also, his bench press of 410 pounds recorded at the Michigan state championships in 1986 is a drug-free state record.

Copland now has his sights set on some national honors. And he couldn't think of a better place to begin than in Irving.

At the nationals, Copland (currently ranked fourth nationally) will be judged on three separate lifts: the squat, the bench press and dead lift.

"I WANT TO lift 650 in the squat, 420 on the bench and 630 in the dead lift," Copland said. "That would give me a 1,700 total and enough to move me up to third."

Copland, who lifts four times a week, says lifting can be an escape from the daily routine. As difficult as it may seem, lifting 600 pounds is a relaxing experience for Copland.

"People say to me, 'How can you be relaxed lifting 600 pounds?'" Copland said. "But for me, it's an outlet. Whereas some people read books, or sew or knit, I lift. When the bills are piling up at home, or my wife (Kathleen) and I get in an argument, I can go to the gym and get away from it all."

It appears Craig Marshall of Salem has a pretty good wrestling hold on Darin Magera of Farmington during Tuesday's basketball game at Salem. Marshall's objective was gaining possession of the loose ball, however, and not a pin. The Rocks ended a two-game losing skid while halting Farmington's two-game win streak.

CC presses for share of 1st

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Warren DeLaSalle is one of three teams tied for first place in the Central Division of the Catholic League.

But DeLaSalle coach Gary Buslepp doesn't think the Pilots belong there. Buslepp thought his squad played like anything but a first-place team Tuesday night at Redford Catholic Central, losing 70-62.

It was a big win for the Shamrocks, who had plenty to do with DeLaSalle's losing effort.

"I told my team they are a third-place team because that's the way we played tonight," Buslepp said.

BUSLEPP HAD just watched CC steal the game from DeLaSalle, outscoring the Pilots 20-13 in the final quarter.

CC's match-up zone press caused numerous turnovers by DeLaSalle, including a pair of 10-second backcourt violations late in the game.

"CC is a very good team," Buslepp said. "They did a very good job on us defensively and we panicked. We threw passes wherever there were no Pilot players."

The performance came four days after DeLaSalle defeated Redford Bishop Borgess, 71-66, to take over sole possession of first place in the Central Division. After Tuesday's divisional game, DeLaSalle, Borgess and CC are tied for first with 4-1 conference records.

The Pilots fell to 7-3 overall, while the Shamrocks pushed their mark to 9-1.

ONCE AGAIN, it was a balanced scoring attack that led CC. Five players scored in double figures, led by Brian Dugas and Anthony Arrington with 17 points each. Terry Boykin had a steady game at point guard, scoring 14 points and Bill Vitti and Scott Hauncher added 10 points apiece.

DeLaSalle's burly 6-foot-10, 275-pound center Mike Peplowski dominated while he was in the game, scoring 25 points, grabbing 12 rebounds and blocking five shots.

Peplowski, who will play next year at Michigan State, scored 11 points, grabbed six rebounds and more importantly, had no fouls in the first half when both teams went into intermission tied at 31.

The Pilots scored the final 12 points of the first half to deadlock the game, and CC coach Bernie Holowicki did not feel comfortable having to face Peplowski — who had five fouls to give — in the second half.

"We went in at 31-up, but I tell you, we felt down, because they scored the last 12 points and with that Peplowski playing like he was in ," Holowicki said. "Peplowski is a tough kid. He runs the floor, is smart and plays with intensity."

PEPLOWSKI CONTINUED his dominance in the third quarter, scoring 10 of DeLaSalle's first 16 points as the Pilots took a 47-40 lead. But in the same time span, Peplowski picked up four fouls. He watched the rest of the third quarter next to Buslepp on the bench and by the time he returned for the fourth quarter, DeLaSalle trailed 50-49.

"When Mike picked up his fourth foul, that to me was the turning point," Buslepp said. "I'm not so sure he played intelligently in the third quarter. And then after he picked up his fourth foul, that made him reluctant to take the ball to the hoop."

The outside shooting of Dugas and Boykin carried CC in the fourth quarter. The two players combined for 12 consecutive CC points midway through the final period to give the Shamrocks a 62-56 lead with 3:05 left in the game.

DeLaSalle made the score 66-62 on a driving layup with 1:15 left by Peplowski. But Hauncher helped seal the outcome, nailing two free throws with 24 seconds remaining to give CC a 68-62 lead. CC outrebounded DeLaSalle in the fourth quarter 11-5.

"That fourth quarter was fierce," Holowicki said. "Hauncher's free throws were the key and we boarded with them pretty well."

Canton thwarts Patriots' rally

Livonia Franklin rallied at home Tuesday, but it wasn't enough as the Patriots lost for the ninth time in 10 outings to once-beaten Plymouth Canton, 62-59.

Franklin drops to 1-3 in the Western Division. Canton remains in first place at 4-0. The Chiefs are 9-1 overall.

Franklin trailed 49-41 after three quarters, before outscoring Canton 18-13 in the final quarter to close the gap. Mitch Fyke led Canton with 17 points and Roger Trice added 10.

J.J. Swindall had 23 points for Franklin, followed by 21 from Mike McCool.

Previously winless Northville defeated the Patriots last Friday, 55-53, in overtime.

SOUTH CHRISTIAN 75, PLYM. CHRISTIAN 58: A 22-6 first-quarter scoring spree by Southfield Christian ruined any victory dreams Plymouth Christian's basketball team might have entertained Monday.

"We pressured them and were able to get our break going," said SC coach Gordon Nickel. "We also controlled the boards."

Raider dies after basketball game

Matthew Leiter scored his first varsity basket in the final minutes of North Farmington High School's basketball game against Westland John Glenn Tuesday.

Shortly after the game's 9 p.m. finish, the 17-year-old from Farmington Hills lay on the lockerroom floor, having collapsed from apparent cardiac arrest.

Although he received immediate medical treatment, the North Farmington junior died shortly after paramedics took him to Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills. He was pronounced dead shortly after 11 p.m., police and school officials said.

Tom Negoshian, North's varsity basketball coach and a teacher at Warner Middle School, first met Matthew Leiter when he came to Warner as a student from Southfield.

"He's been a basketball junkie since he was a little kid," Negoshian said, adding that Leiter played basketball in middle school and was a junior varsity player at North Farmington. This year was his first on the varsity team.

"He was like a big brother to everybody," the coach added. "Quiet, yet smiling and funny. He was the guy that put his hand on the kids shoulders and said, 'It'll be all right.'"

NORTH FARMINGTON junior Jason Foland has been a close friend of Leiter since the second grade. "He was very funny, witty," Foland said. "He knew just what to say at the right times. Everyone liked him."

Leiter's uncle, James Wechsler of West Bloomfield, remembers his nephew as a "real sweet kid who was just coming into his own." The youth was preparing to start a job at a bank because he wanted to save money for a car. "He was very much into basketball — that was the formation of his life," his uncle said. "I was looking forward to having him grow up with me. Now he's gone."

Leiter had just returned from a family birthday party in New York last weekend. He was learning to live life to the fullest and was "really bonding" with family members, Wechsler said.

North Farmington principal Don Cowan said Leiter was "very interested in athletics" and had made "great strides" in all areas of his life during the past year. He had been a North Farmington student for the past three years.

His love of basketball prompted the high school junior to attend "high exposure" camp and other activities on his own time, his coach said. During the past year, the youth had blosssomed and his confidence level had increased greatly.

Results of a Wednesday autopsy indicating the exact cause of death were not available from the Oakland County Medical Examiner's office, a spokesman there said. Preliminary indications show he had an enlarged heart and fluid around the heart, Wechsler said Wednesday.

NOTHING DURING North Farmington's 55-42 loss to John Glenn signaled that Leiter was experiencing health problems. The team had a brief post-game meeting immediately after the Tuesday night contest. It was then fellow players noticed Leiter had collapsed and alerted Negoshian and assistant coach Dennis Mikel. They went to his aid initially thinking he might have had an asthma attack, and also called for Larry Birkett, who had officiated the game and is a Southfield Fire Department paramedic.

Birkett gave immediate cardiopulmonary resuscitation until firefighters and paramedics arrived. Paramedics continued attempts to revive Leiter en route to the hospital.

At North Farmington Wednesday morning, students, faculty and staff were extremely distressed at their loss, athletic director Ron Holland said.

Staff writers Casey Hans, Bob Skiar and Dan O'Meara contributed to this report.

Knuth says yes to Michigan

By Brad Emons

Chris Cox

Corey Ivey
opts for Toledo

Two more All-Observerland football standouts made verbal commitments Monday — Redford Catholic Central's All-State nose guard Erik Knuth will be going to the University of Michigan, while Redford Bishop Borgess running back Corey Ivey has opted for Toledo.

Both are scheduled to sign NCAA national letters of intent on Feb. 13.

Knuth, a 6-foot-2½, 233-pound two-way standout for the state Class A runnerups, informed coach Bo Schembechler of his decision by phone Monday night.

The Plymouth native said his decision boiled down to Michigan and Michigan State. He also made visits to Indiana and Boston College.

"I'm comfortable with the people (at Michigan) and they have a nice tradition like I'm used to at CC," said Knuth, rated one of the top five players in the state. "I also like the academic part in particular."

Knuth may be following in the footsteps of another CC grad, Mark Messner, who has become Michigan's most acclaimed defensive player.

"I MET SEVERAL of the players and they were helpful," Knuth said. "I talked with Mark, and he said it would be nice if I came up here, but that wasn't the total reason why I'm going to Michigan.

"It came down to Michigan and Michigan state ... those two. Coach (Tom) Mach (of CC) told me I'll get a feeling when I know it's the right place and I just felt more comfortable at Michigan."

Ivey, a heralded back who made All-Catholic along with Knuth, rushed for 751 yards, averaging 6.1 yards per carry for a 5-4 Borgess team. He missed two games because of injury.

Last weekend, the 5-8, 165-pound speedster made a visit to Toledo's campus and returned home sold on the Rockets' football program. He canceled an upcoming visit to Bowling Green, another Mid-American Conference school.

"I enjoyed their surroundings and what they had to offer," said Ivey. "They're building and they're a team on the move.

"A LOT OF schools looked at me as a receiver, but Toledo wants me as a running back. My goal is that I just want to play."

Ivey said he plans to major in either engineering or business administration.

Also on the recruiting front, CC's standout running back/defensive back Chris Kovath is leaning toward Holy Cross, but has not yet made a verbal commitment as was reported recently in the Detroit Free Press. The All-Catholic back will not make a final decision until he makes visits to Hillsdale and Ferris State.

Another CC standout, tackle Pete Dankert, will also visit Holy Cross this weekend.

No contest — Cox heads for EMU

who works with the team's linebackers, recruits the suburban Detroit area and got a first-hand look at Cox in action.

"That made it quicker for a scholarship offer since it didn't have to be reviewed," Cox said.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Cox was Harrison's leading tackler with 48 solo tackles and 81 total. He was a member of the Observer All-Area team and several Class B All-State squads, helping the Hawks achieve runnerup honors in the state tournament and an 11-2 record.

Cox joins an EMU program that has gone from the doghouse to the penthouse under head coach Jim Harkema.

LIKE GEORGE Perles at Michigan State, Harkema turned a losing program into a winner in five years. One could make a case for Harkema's accomplishment at EMU being more difficult and impressive than the more-publicized revival in East Lansing.

The Hurons had won only four games and endured a 27-game losing streak in the four years before Harkema's arrival. EMU saw its number of victories increase each year under Harkema until the Hurons went 10-2, won their first Mid-American Conference championship and upset heavily favored San Jose State in the first California Bowl appearance by a Michigan school.

Cox said he didn't get to see any EMU games in person, but watched the Hurons in two national television appearances on ESPN when they ripped Toledo and handled San Jose.

"Of course, it made a difference when they just came back from the Cal Bowl," Cox said. "I'd like to do something like that. It helped me make my decision a little quicker.

"I knew they had improved a lot, and I thought it looked good for the future," Cox said. "They have a good team, and I know they're going to continue to do well.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN has showed a lot of interest in Trice as a defensive back and/or wide receiver. He was used as a running back last fall at Canton.

The Chippewas appear to have put Trice on hold, however, and could be going down to the signing deadline before deciding to offer a scholarship. Saginaw Valley would "love to have him," according to Canton coach Bob Khoenle.

"I'm surprised more (schools) haven't gotten a hold of him," he said. "I'm surprised Michigan State or someone hasn't talked to him.

"I think he could make a fine wide receiver for someone. He has great speed and great hands."

Saginaw Valley also has expressed interest in Canton center Jerry French, who also is considering Ferris and Adrian. He might decide to walk on at CMU, however. Jim Crews, a tackle for the Chiefs, has been contacted by Ferris and Saginaw.

DEPENDING ON what transpires in the next few weeks, Plymouth Salem running back Garrett Bowie could receive an offer from Ferris or attend EMU as a walk-on.

A trio of Salem linemen are thinking about continuing their playing days as walk-ons. All-Area center Kurt Urban will decide between Hillsdale or Kalamazoo College, Jay Blaylock is considering a school in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association and Romolo Maura is taking a look at Adrian.

Gesund, a wide receiver at North, has visited Hillsdale and Grand Valley and must decide which school's scholarship offer he will take.

"I told (Hillsdale coach) Dick Lowry that Todd is a real sleeper," North coach Jim O'Leary said. "He hardly played last year, and he improved 150 percent and is only going to get better.

"He had a lot of catches, and he's got outstanding speed. He's a late bloomer."

SAGINAW VALLEY and Northwood have shown interest in North quarterback Scott Simon, and All-Area defensive back Vanoy Hill is undecided between Wayne State, Alma, Adrian and Albion.

North kicker Chad Henry might try to walk on at Auburn, O'Leary said. Henry's family is originally from the South, and his brother, a present member of the Southeastern Conference powerhouse, previously walked on.

Besides Cox, several other Harrison players plan to play college ball, but will do so without the benefit of a scholarship. All will attend top-rated academic institutions.

All-Area tailback Aaron Yaverski is headed for Albion College, wide receiver Steve Bissell plans to attend Kenyon (Ohio) College and defensive back Wes Wood is signed up at the University of Pennsylvania.

Joe Lichtenberger (tight end) and Jim Fowlkes (guard/defensive end) are considering Adrian.

Stevenson dropped; CC nets tie

For the Trenton hockey team, taking advantage of power-play opportunities meant the difference between winning and losing.

The Trojans scored three of their four goals on power plays Saturday to lift them past visiting Livonia Stevenson, 4-2.

The men in the striped shirts had a busy night calling penalties. This was a very aggressively played game on both sides.

"It was one of the most physical games I've seen in four years of coaching," Livonia Stevenson coach Matt Mulcahy said.

The Spartans started things off on the right track, scoring a goal off the stick of Lee Genovese in the first period. But they did not keep the lead for very long.

In the second period, Trenton scored three times to take the lead 3-1.

But the third period featured a goal by Chris Schultz of Livonia to cut the gap to 3-2, only to lose it with about five minutes to go. The Trojans scored another power-play goal to pull ahead of Stevenson for good.

Trenton boosted its record to 12-2 overall, while Livonia Stevenson drops to 12-3-3 overall.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL 5, COUNTRY DAY 5: Vasik Nedomansky, son of the former Red Wing, scored a hat trick and added one assist to force a tie Saturday on Central's home ice.

Jim Hubenschmidt, Keith Bozyk and Mike Lavasile all scored for Redford CC in the first period to give them a 3-0 advantage (Bill Baffy assisted on two of the goals.)

The second period started off with CC scoring at the 1:43 mark to make it 4-0, but Detroit Country Day of Birmingham came back with a goal of their own.

That goal by Nedomansky in the second period triggered two more plus an assist in the third period.

CC's Hubenschmidt scored his second goal of the night on power play, assisted by Bozyk at 8:15 to make 5-3.

Karl Moilanen cut the deficit to 5-4 and then with 4:05 remaining, Ken Prescoin tallied the equalizer for DCD.

CC, short-handed again, was missing three players because of illness — Chris Hojnicki, Larry Baharah and Matt Ronayne.

Roseann Sumpter had nine kills and Aimee Hayden played strong defense, according to Plymouth Salem coach Betty Smith, as the Rocks whipped Farmington Hills Harrison 15-4, 15-7 in a Western Lakes crossover volleyball game Monday.

Nina Norgaard, a Swedish exchange student saw action for the first time and played well, Smith said. Salem is 2-2 in the league, 6-3 overall.

CANTON 15-15, FARMINGTON 5-9: Shannon Meath served for 21 points Monday to lead the Chiefs past the Falcons.

Meath served for all but one of Plymouth Canton's points in the first game, and she added seven more in the second. She also had four kills in the second.

The Chiefs, 2-2 overall, had 11 kills out of 24 attacks in the first game.

SC bounced by league-leaders

Two basketball teams headed in opposite directions met last Saturday. Both stayed on course.

Macomb CC, tied for the Eastern Conference lead at 9-1 with Highland Park CC, hammered Schoolcraft College 106-69 at Macomb. The defeat kept the Ocelots in the conference cellar with a 1-8 mark; they are 7-12 overall.

"What speed," SC coach Dave Bogataj said of the Monarchs. "They're the best team we've faced all year. Oakland CC has more individual talent, but (Macomb) is the better team."

Bogataj's opinion was well-documented statistically. Six Monarchs reached double-figures in scoring: Anthony Bell and Clarence Rich (21 apiece), Eric Peplowski (18), Mike Allen (17), Brandon Neely (12) and Terry Koerner (11).

SC WAS AGAIN paced by Steve Hawley, who worked his way through Macomb's double-teams to collect 26 points, eight assists and four steals. Ladion Tait got 23 points and 11 rebounds and Brad Ridgeway scored 10 points.

But that was it for the Ocelots, who were without starting forward Mark Claiborne, the team's second-leading scorer. Claiborne and Bogataj argued over an ill-advised shot at the end of the Delta CC game last week and Claiborne left. He has not practiced nor spoken with Bogataj, who has tried to reach him at home several times, since.

That left SC with eight players against Macomb, most of whom were picked up after the season's start. As Bogataj said, "We're fighting with very few soldiers, and they're ill-equipped ones."

The loss started SC on its toughest stretch of the season. The Ocelots played at Highland Park CC last night, then host second-place OCC Saturday.

OU's defense anemic in loss

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Up-tempo.

That's what Greg Kampe, Oakland University's men's basketball coach, called the style of play his team would incorporate this season. Full-court pressure and fast-paced action, he promised.

What that has translated into, now that 17 games have elapsed, is an offense capable of averaging better than 100 points a game. Unfortunately for the Pioneers, their defense is as weak as their offense is strong. They proved it Monday night against visiting Hillsdale.

On the offensive end, OU was potent, putting 102 points on the board. But the Pioneers were equally inept at the defensive end, allowing a mediocre (at best) Charger team to post 116 points.

That's right: 116-102, a real defensive gem.

THE GAME was just the kind of offensive show the score indicates. It also followed a familiar pattern for OU. The score-consious Pioneers have too often this season resorted to trying to outscore their opponents. Keep running and scoring and, by game's end, gamble that you'll have more points.

It didn't work this time. OU had the lead most of the way, taking control on Andre Bond's three-pointer with 10:30 left in the first half and retaining it until Hillsdale's Jerry Tharp canned a three-pointer with six minutes to go, tying it at 91.

Now, from that point on, one would figure — Kampe certainly did — that the quicker, deeper Pioneer team would dominate. Wrong. The Chargers outpointed OU 19-4 over the next five minutes to ice the victory, only their second in six Great Lakes Conference games. They are 7-9 overall.

"We didn't play defense," said a frustrated Kampe. "We score 100 points, we should win the game.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I think Hillsdale would score 116 points in our gym."

UNFORTUNATELY FOR the Pioneers, the visiting Chargers made themselves right at home, particularly Tharp and Eric Allaire. All seven of Tharp's baskets were three-pointers; he finished with 23 points and 10 assists. Allaire poured in 35 points and hit four-of-six from three-point range. He also had five assists.

Terry Sines and Jim Bauer each contributed 16 points (Sines grabbed 11 rebounds), Greg Martin had 13 points and Scott Sly pitched in 11. Hillsdale connected on 58.6 percent of its field goals in the game, including 12-of-18 (66.7 percent) three-pointers.

The Pioneers' offense was triggered, once again, by Scott Bittinger. The senior guard poured in 41 points on 17-of-26 floor shooting.

Brian Gregory added 17 points, 16 assists and six steals, Bond finished with 16 points and eight rebounds and John Henderson chipped in 10 points and eight boards. The Pioneers made 47.1 percent of their shots for the game, and just six-of-18 (33 percent) three-pointers.

THE DEFEAT was costly for OU. It dropped the Pioneers to 11-6 overall and 4-3 in the GLIAC. With league front-runners Ferris State (at OU tonight) and Wayne State (at WSU Saturday) coming up, OU's chances for a league title are slipping away.

"I would say we're at a very pivotal point in our season," Kampe said. "We're going to have to win every game from here on out if we want to make the NCAA tournament."

The key to OU's chances? Defense.

"If you don't play defense, you don't win championships," recited Kampe. "We tried everything we had (against Hillsdale): press, man-to-man, we tried to deny them the ball, we tried to front their big men and we tried to play behind them."

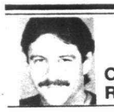
Domke enjoying life to fullest



C.J. Risak

HOW SOMEONE meets and handles the challenges of life determines success.

Believe that and you know why Tim Domke is smiling.

Domke is a basketball coach, which means he has faced on-court challenges several nights a week, every winter, since getting started in his profession in 1971.

He has faced those challenges the same way — optimistically. Indeed, his penchant for always finding a bright side, some ray of hope, in the dimmest of situations was almost sickening.

Domke's optimism was put to the sternest test of all last year. After spending nine years completely rebuilding the basketball program at St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake, Domke had decided to resign. A new job in another field, or a different coaching position, were his indefinite plans.

But by season's end, he was feeling ill. Two years earlier, Domke had surgery for testicular cancer. The tumor had been completely removed. It couldn't be.

But it was — cancer, this time in his stomach.

THE 40-YEAR-OLD father of two was faced with a new challenge, one that his life depended on.

How did he respond? "I was really lucky," he said Monday after guiding his current team, West Bloomfield High, through a 2½ hour practice. It was a typical Domke response.

"I was young enough and in good enough shape that they could use a really harsh treatment on me."

Treatment meant chemotherapy. Chemotherapy, basically, means injecting poison into the system. The object is to kill the cancerous tumor with as concentrated a dose of poison as possible, without killing the patient.

Domke was subjected to four five-day-long treatments over a four-month span. The treatments drained him completely — chemotherapy kills blood cells, making the patient extremely nauseated. It took a week after each session before he was strong enough to walk, and then, just as he started feeling better, back he went for another dose.

"It was unbelievable," Domke recalled. "One time, they took (my blood count) real low. I felt terrible. I had no will to live."

Untypical talk from Domke. But, ironically, the sicker he got from the treatment, the better the chances the poison would kill the cancer.

HIS FINAL round with chemotherapy was in September. He is recovering.

"I feel great now," he says. "I'm getting stronger every day. I could be 100 percent cured, or in remission. There's no way to be certain. The odds are I'm cured. I handled the treatment fine."

A struggle against a life-threatening disease can change perspective. Domke admits it did for him.

"Maybe it's from being sick, but I'm enjoying my life more," he claims. "I'm seeing my family more, and this (coaching West Bloomfield) has been fun."

With Tuesday's win over Birmingham Groves, Domke's Lakers improved to 4-5. It's not good enough, according to their coach.

But just as it was in his earlier stops — Domke previously coached prep basketball at Royal Oak Dondero (1971-72), West Bloomfield (1972-75) and Detroit Country Day (1975-76), and served as an assistant coach at University of Detroit (1976-78) — he knows it will take time.

BATTLING BACK from cancer treatment to tackle the challenge of putting together a winning basketball team would push any man's optimistic tendancy to the limit. Well, any other man.

Domke's supply seems limitless. It was given another jolt last August when Richard Zalenski, Domke's assistant and, last year, his co-coach — the man Domke chose to succeed him — abruptly resigned and left to coach Bristol (Tenn.) College.

Zalenski took three St. Mary's players with him, a move that resulted in the NAIA's suspension of Bristol's collegiate athletic program from all post-season play.

Understandably, this hurt Domke deeply. In his nine seasons at St. Mary's, he guided the Eagles to a 159-113 record and three NAIA District 23 playoff berths.

"I was crushed," he admitted. Domke has not heard from Zalenski since he departed for Bristol. "I really liked Rich. It shocked me."

THE FATE of the basketball program was in doubt. St. Mary's had a new president, Frank Anthonis, and with Zalenski's defection, the future was bleak.

"I didn't want to see it die," said Domke, a predictable reaction. "I thought they would (cancel basketball). The frustrating thing was, I didn't even know the new president, so I couldn't even talk to him."

Anthonis and the school's board of trustees opted to retain the program. The crisis passed at St. Mary's. And Domke hopes the same is true for him. In the span of 12 months, he came far too close to losing both his life and all he had worked for over the past decade.

But optimism prevails. Domke's still laughing, still smiling, and now in his return engagement at West Bloomfield, still building. The challenges keep coming, only to crumble beneath the weight of his impenetrable optimism.

St. Mary's whips Madonna

Madonna College is in the same position St. Mary's College of Orchard Lake was a decade ago — trying to build a basketball team capable of competing for the NAIA district 23 title.

Tuesday's game between those two proved Madonna, which plans to join the NAIA next year, has a ways to go. St. Mary's rolled to a 119-87 triumph over the home squad, with five players reaching double-figures in scoring.

Jerome Washburn was best for the Eagles with 22 points and 20 rebounds. Bob Bringman added 20 points, Safaa Qasawa had 16, and James Curtis and James Lakes contributed 14 apiece.

Congress votes more 'comfort' for self

By Richard S. Thomas
special writer

Members of Congress showed once again in 1987 that it's much easier for them to preach frugality for the rest of the country than to practice it.

While the great majority of members spent the year denouncing budget deficits and counseling their constituents to expect less from the federal government, Congress as a whole was going in the other direction — actually increasing spending on itself at a rate that outstripped inflation.

Congress last December passed a legislative branch appropriations bill, covering fiscal 1988, that was nearly 6 percent higher than the one it approved a year earlier for fiscal 1987. By comparison, inflation (as measured by the Consumer Price Index) rose 4.5 percent between December 1986 and December 1987.

THE NEW CAPITOL Hill housekeeping budget of $1.75 billion increased spending for personal and committee staff operations and support agencies such as the Library of Congress and General Accounting Office. And it provided fatter outlays for perquisites, retirement benefits, travel and other items that add comfort and security to the job of sitting in Congress.

House members and senators also acccepted two personal pay raises totalling $14,400 during the year, raising their salary to $89,500. Their collective payroll of more than $48 million is drawn automatically from the Treasury and not counted as part of legislative branch appropriations.

The $1.75 billion legislative branch price tag for fiscal 1988 appears certain to be increased in coming months as Congress approves supplemental appropriations to replenish dried up accounts. Last fiscal year's legislative branch appropriations bill, initially funded at $1.65 billion, grew to more than $1.8 billion by House and Senate add-ons during the year, according to Office of Management and Budget figures.

Constituents can decide for themselves whether Congress deserves its enlarged budget as a reward for a job well done in 1987 or whether, instead, it merits criticism for having gone on a personal spending spree while doing little to solve national problems.

Folks back home can also note how their House and Senate representatives stood during 1987 on issues relating to members' emoluments and internal Capitol Hill operations.

Here are capsule descriptions of the issues that make up Roll Call Report Syndicate's 1987 Comfort index.

Roll Call Report

HOUSE

1. FREEZE COMMITTEE SPENDING — By a vote of 127 for and 268 against, the House on March 19 rejected a proposed freeze in committee spending. It then voted to spend $47.9 million in 1987 on the "investigations and studies" budget that covers about half the cost of its 27 committees. The $47.9 million figure was up 9 percent over 1986.

A yes vote was for freezing this category of committee spending.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

2. CUT STAFF SALARIES — On June 29, the House rejected an amendment to cut nearly $6 million, primarily in staff salary outlays, from the House's $530 million share of the fiscal 1988 legislative branch appropriations bill. the vote was 155 for, 224 against.

A yes vote supported the $6 million cut.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Pursell didn't vote.

3. PROBE CORRUPTION — By a vote of 77 for and 297 against, the House on June 29 rejected an amendment to set up a bipartisan commission of private citizens to probe an alleged "ongoing pattern" of corruption within the House.

Robert Walker, R-Pa., a sponsor, said "I think we should be concerned about the fact that many of the American people regard this House as an ethical morass."

A yes vote endorsed the special probe. No area congressmen voted yes.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford, Levin, and Broomfield.

Not voting: Pursell.

4. CUT ELEVATOR OPERATORS — By a vote of 141 for and 235 against, the House on June 29 rejected an amendment to cut spending by nearly $81,000 in order to eliminate by attrition six jobs of House patronage employees who operate elevators that are automatic.

A yes vote was to eliminate the six jobs. No local members voted yes.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford, Levin and Broomfield.

Not voting: Pursell.

5. SUBJECT LAWMAKERS to independent counsel — By a vote of 169 for and 243 against, the House on Oct. 21 rejected an amendment to put members of Congress within the potential jurisdiction of independent counsels.

These counsels are apoointed by U.S. appeals judges to prosecute errant administration officials, on the theory that the attorney general is unlikely to vigorously prosecute his political allies.

Supporters of the amendment said an independent counsel is needed to watch over lawmakers because an attorney general may not want to prosecute individual members of Congress. Opponents noted many lawmakers have been prosecuted by the Justice Department throughout history.

A yes vote favored putting lawmakers within reach of independent counsels.

Voting yes: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

SENATE

6. TABLE COMMMITTEEE funding cut — The Senate refused to cut its committee budgets for calendar 1987. This occurred last Jan. 28 when it voted, 58 for and 36 against, to table (kill) an amendment cutting a $45 million comittee outlay by 5 percent.

A yes vote killed the cut.

Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

7. DISAPPROVE PAY RAISE — By a vote of 27 for and 66 against, the Senate on Jan. 29 rejected a proposal to disapprove a pay hike for members of Congress while allowing one for federal judges and high executive branch officials. Later the same day, the Senate rejected the additional pay for lawmakers. But the $12,100 pay raise took effect anyway a week later because of House action.

A yes vote opposed the $12,100 raise for congressmen.

Levin and Riegle voted no.

8. REJECT PAY HIKE — The Senate on Jan. 29 passed, 88 for and 6 against, a resolution rejecting a proposed salary increase for members of Congress from $77,400 to $89,500. Despite this vote, the $12,100 raise took effect when the House refused to join the Senate in killing it within the 30-day period allowed for blocking action.

A yes vote would block the pay raise.

Levin and Riegle voted yes.

Jo-Anne Westerby, daughter of the artist Robert A. Herzberg, and her niece, Tina Herzberg, have have done all of the matting, framing and preparation of the drawings, paintings and photographs for three shows of his work, two in the metropolitan area and one (group exhibition) in East Lansing. At right is one of Herzberg's many paintings of the circus.

Rediscovering a Michigan artist

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

A new generation of Michiganians is about to discover the art of Robert A. Herzberg. Certainly there are people around who recall seeing his drawings and sketches in the metropolitan area daily papers in the 30s and 40s. Others may have bought paintings, sketches and portraits from him and a few may have even seen his work in exhibitions at the Arthur Newton Gallery of New York City or at a retrospective at the Anna L. Werbe Galleries of Detroit in 1964.

But for all, those who haven't seen his art and those would like to see it again, there will be three different exhibits: Oakland County Galleria on the County complex in Pontiac, Feb. 2 through March 15; Kresge Art Museum, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Feb. 21 through April 10 where he is one of three Michigan artists featured in the exhibition, "New Deal Government Art of the 1930s and 1940s"; and the atrium of Detroit's Millender Center, "Detroit Memories, circa 1930-1940," March 11-30.

Sorting through a huge body of work in preparation for these shows are Herzberg's daughter, Jo-Anne Westerby of Troy, herself an artist, filmmaker and writer and his granddaughter, Tina Herzberg of Bloomfield Township, a marketing specialist. For the past five months, the two have been unpacking canvasses, sketches and drawings that have been stored at Westerby's house. She contacted her three brothers, the widows of two others and her sisters to see if they wanted some of theirs to be exhibited.

"I'm really anxious to see it altogether," Westerby said, adding that her father spent his entire life as an artist and the amount of work that was divided among his seven children is substantial.

As a result, Westerby is rediscovering her father and his art and Herzberg, who never knew him because he died in 1960 at 74, is meeting him via his art for the first time.

WESTERBY SAID, "He used to say I believe I was meant to be an artist and that's all he ever did."

She said he did open an art school, "The Detroit School of Fine and Applied Arts" in the Bonstelle Theater Building in 1922, and operated it for 12 years.

"Sarkis (Sarkesian) and (Zolton) Zepeshy were two of the teachers — but he wasn't a very good businessman."

From 1936 to 1942, Herzberg was an artist with the Detroit branch of the Works Progress Administration, and was allowed to go anywhere in the city and paint anything he wished. Many of his studies for murals will be in the County Galleria show, most depicting historical events. In some there is evidence of his interest in Diego Rivera and the murals, which he did at Detroit Institute of Arts.

Westerby said that Christine Nelson Ruby, curator of the "New Deal" exhibition at Kresge Museum feels her father was "more independent" than the other WPA artists. He also appears to be a visionary in the Rivera sense of the word.

Westerby said her father was especially happy during his five years with the circus. "He was in his 50s and he went specifically to paint the circus. In his school years (Chicago Art Institute and Art Students League of New York), he worked back stage as stagehand and set designer and he saw the large animal acts at the Hippodrome. He loved performing people and he worked there for the love of it. We didn't see much of him during those years, he was everywhere painting. He said you should only work at what you would pay to be allowed to work at."

MANY OF HIS CIRCUS paintings, done with a thin oil wash on canvas, will be in the show at the County Galleria. In the last five years of his life, he discovered Europe. Westerby said he would get free passage on the luxury liners for sitting by the pool and doing sketches of the passengers.

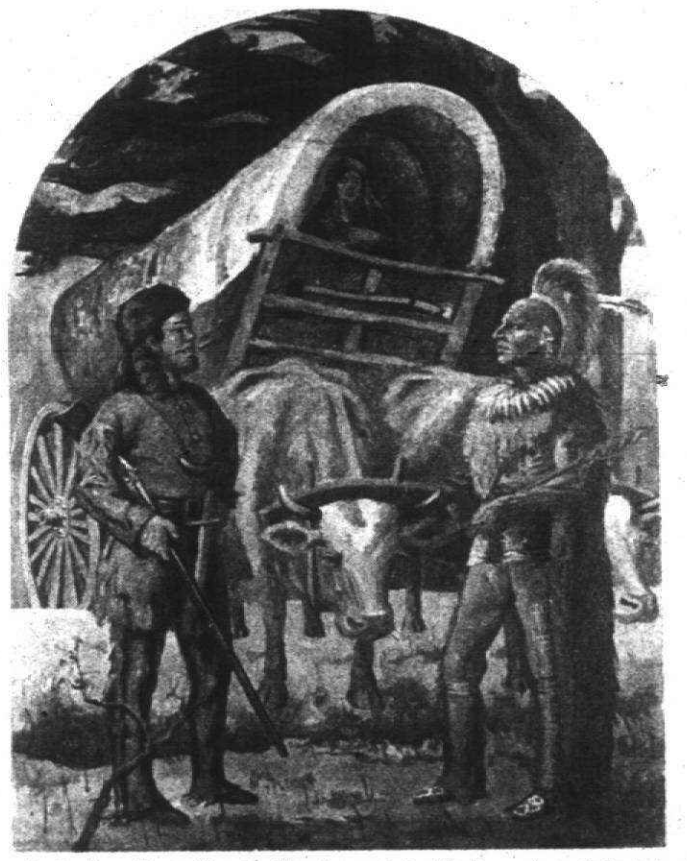
"He went to Spain and France and in Spain one summer, he abandoned his car and walked from village to village . . . . He connected up with Katherine Hepburn while she was filming "Summertime" and was actually in the movie as an artist sketching."

He sketched Hepburn and many other celebrities such as Milton Berle, Orson Welles, Gloria Swanson, Clare Booth Luce and Frank Murphy, supreme court justice and former governor. He did hundreds of portraits of notable Detroiters including a series in the 1930s on Detroit Business Women.

For the County Galleria show, Herzberg's mural studies will be on the first floor and his paintings, which depict "Circus Life In and Around the Big Top" will be on the second. At the 4-8 p.m. reception on Thursday, Feb. 4, one of Herzberg's granddaughters, who inherited a love a clowns from her artist/grandfather, will be in full clown costume.

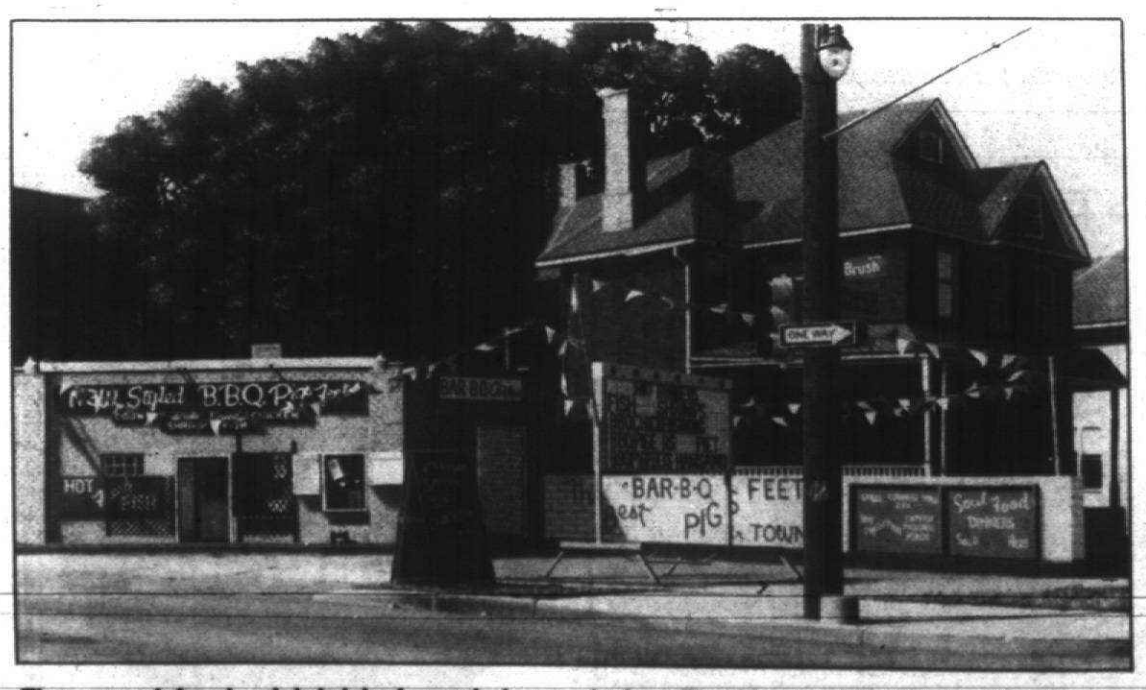
Some of the art will be shown from photographs made from Herzberg's original glass slides. Many of the pieces will be for sale.

The County Galleria is in the Executive Office Building on the complex at 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.



Mural study, oil on illustration board, isn't signed or dated, but the artist's daughter said it was done during the Depression.

Urban paintings done with warmth, affection



The now-defunct pink-bricked market on Brush and Bethune is the subject of this painting by Don Jacot. It is oil on canvas. 26 by 16 inches. The 38 year old artist has lived in Detroit for the past 12 years.

By Manon Meilgaard
special writer

It is interesting and somehow heartening that several of the artists in Xochipilli Gallery owner Mary Wright's talented stable have had little or no formal art training.

Desirable though a degree may be, Don Jacot's oil canvases and gouache drawings of urban Detroit are tangible proof that this is not necessarily a prerequisite. This unassuming artist freely admits that his training consists of two classes in drawing by Mel Rosas, instructor at Wayne State university and prominent Detroit artists.

Jacot's clarity of brushwork might seem close to, but should not be confused with, the more flashy genre of airbrush photorealism. His realistic, unglamorized subjects are painted with a precision of detail which no photographic enlargement could possibly match and which reflects a richness of visual stimuli within a historical framework.

Apropos the historical significance, Jacot wryly remarked, "It seems that shortly after I've painted a building it often gets pulled down."

As in Edward Hopper and Richard Estes's urban paintings, there is a sense of stillness in Jacot's work. The largest canvas, "Quiet City," 6-by-8-feet, is a Sunday morning scene of the corner of Congress and Randolph, where the tall buildings take on a lonely majesty, devoid of people or moving traffic.

ONE IS AGAIN reminded of Estes's use of light in "'Entrance to the Fisher Building," in which the dark tones of the cathedral-like interior are illuminated by pools of brilliant light.

Jacot has a penchant for discovering less familiar sites. Despite the tawdriness of scabrous walls and decay, there is warmth, affection and humor, as well as history, in the depiction of a now-defunct, pink-bricked market on Brush and Bethune selling soul food dinners and "The Best Bar-B-Q Pigs Feet in Town." This is true of the young man reclining on a tacky sofa outside the "Renaissance Resale" store on Cass and the outlandish Moorish architecture of the Albert Kahn-designed National Theatre rising like Phoenix between shuttered storefronts. His paintings are like tenacious wild flowers growing through the cracks of crumbling paving stones.

Born in Chicago 38 years ago, the artist has lived in Detroit for the past 12 years, working as a physician's assistant. He said that although he drew extensively as a child, his interest in art was revived about seven years ago when he saw an exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts featuring charcoal copies of, among others, photographs by Sheeler, Walker Evans, Lewis Hine and Berenice Abbott. He now makes the images from his own photographs.

"BUT I AM NOT a slave to photographs," he said. "Where necessary I add, subtract or alter perspective and color to interpret the image. I am not a very good photographer," he continued, "and I still have a lot to learn about art. Like Detroit, my work is still in a state of transition."

Such modesty is perhaps uncalled for. According to Wright, who immediately recognized his extraordinary natural talent, Jacot's works, still very reasonably priced, are sold before or as soon as they are hung.

Don Jacot's "Detroit Landscapes" continues at Xochipilli Gallery, 568 N. Woodward, Birmingham, through Feb. 20. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

Esquire mention for one of our own

Mona Grigg

MENTIONS of our Michigan writers turn up in the darndest places. For example, does our own Linda Lang Bartel ("Brianna," "Alyssa" and her latest historical romance, "Marisa") know that she is in the January issue of Esquire magazine? Well, she is — and I'll tell you the story in a minute, but first a few words about Linda's latest good news.

Her new novel, "Marisa" (Avon), is getting "wonderful reviews" in three trade magazines, Linda said. She's busy now completing "Brittany," her next for Avon, so that she can start on her next project — her most exciting to date, she said.

Just last Wednesday she learned through her agent that New American Library will buy "Caressa," a historical romance set in Renaissance Italy, for their new line, Onyx. "Caressa" is set in Florence during the time of Botticelli and the DeMedicis.

Linda, a former French and history teacher, is known for her meticulous research and good writing. Nonetheless, three publishers turned her idea down — including her own Avon. They couldn't see the appeal, mind you, in Renaissance Italy. They all complimented the writing but just couldn't see the setting. But I may forgive them because it's so exciting to be a part of NAL's new line," she said.

NOW TO THE story of Linda's appearance in Esquire. Here's how it happened: Esquire's "American Beat" columnist, Bob Greene, took to the road a while back in search of a convention that wasn't Democratic or Republican, but was what Greene considered "significant and historic."

What he found, to his delight, was the Linda convention in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

The Linda convention was the brainchild of a woman named Linda Pasvogel "for the purpose of having fun, celebrating our names, and sharing our interests," Pasvogel told Greene. One hundred and sixty "Lindas," from ages 23 to 73, showed up at the Sheraton Inn and they did celebrate.

They all wore nametags ("Hello, my name is Linda") sang "When I go to sleep, I never count sheep, I count all the charms about Linda . . . ", and honored Linda Darnell, the late movie actress whose charms they say accounted for "Linda" being the most popular new baby girl name in 1948.

They had invited some celebrity "Lindas" — Linda Evans, Linda Blair, Linda Ellerbee (no mention of Linda Lovelace) — but none of them had shown up by dinnertime.

AND NOW HERE'S where our own Linda Bartell comes in. Greene reports: "When I returned to the banquet room, dinner was being served. Simultaneously, Linda Pasvogel, on the dais, was giving away Linda-related door prizes. Linda Sinclair, 42, of Carlisle, Iowa, an exercise class instructor, found out that she had won a paperback book titled 'Alyssa' — written by an author named Linda Bartell . . . ."

Well, I was excited. I think Greene is one of our finest chroniclers of the American scene. I thought the column itself was fascinating. And a mention in Esquire ain't cold potatoes, you know.

THE U-M VISITING WRITERS Series just gets better and better, it seems. Just look at February's schedule of free readings:

● Feb. 4, Rackham East Conference Room at 5 p.m. — Lore Segal, novelist, essayist, children's and short story writer. Segal's novel, "Her First American," won an award from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and letters. She's a frequent contributor to the New York Times Book Review, New Republic and The New Yorker.

● Feb. 9, Rackham Amphitheater at 4 p.m. — Novelist and short story writer Richard Ford. Ford's latest novel, "The Sportswriter" put him at the forefront of Amercan authors, as does his recent collection of short stories, "Rock Springs."

● Feb. 17, Rackham West Conference Room at 4 p.m. Geoffrey Wolff reads from his novel-in-progress, "The Final Club." Wolff's stories, essays, profiles and reviews have appeared in Esquire, Atlantic Monthly, the New Republic, Saturday Review. He's the author of four novels and two biographies.

POETS, THERE'S money to be made — The American Poetry Association said $10,000 in prizes will be awarded to 151 poets in two separate contests this year. There will be two grand prizes of $1,000. Association editor John Frost said, "The poems are judged on originality and sincerity, and every poem is also considered for publication." The contest is free. Send up to five poems with no more than 20 lines each (name and address at the top of each page) to American Poetry Association, Dept. CN-40, 250 A Potrero Street, P.O. Box 1803, Santa Cruz, CA 95061-1803. The first contest runs Jan. 1 to June 30, with prizes awarded by Aug. 31. The second runs July 1 to Dec. 31, with prizes by Feb. 28, 1989.

(Poets: Are these contests legitimate? Are they sponsored for the sole purpose of selling you a high-priced book containing a page of your poetry? If so, is that all right with you?

Let me know what you think of them. I hesitate to run contest news simply on the basis of a press release.)

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. During our recent trip to Florida, we decided to buy a condominium. The broker said that everything could be done by mail and that there are "plenty of laws" in Florida to protect our interests. What do you recommend that we do?

A. It is true that there is a substantial body of statutory and case law which has been developed in Florida. It is, no doubt, because of the amount of condominium development as well as the abuses, which have taken place, in many instances, by condominium developers in Florida.

However, the same kinds of problems that relate to the purchase of a condominium here in Michigan would apply in Florida and you are well advised to seek competent counsel, either here in Michigan (presuming that the attorney is capable of assisting you with respect to the purchase of a condominium in Florida) or in the locale in which you purchased the unit, if that is convenient for you.

Buying an out-of-state condominium sometimes poses additional potential legal problems necessitating the assistance of experienced legal counsel.

Q. In 1977, I bought a condominium in Farmington and have since discovered that everyone pays the same fee, which includes heat, water, maintenance and insurance. Since there are many different layouts, I wonder if this is a fair fee to all. I feel that the fee should be based on whether there are one or two bedrooms or, perhaps, by square footage. More people naturally use more water and require more heat. I would appreciate your opinion on this matter as I would like to present it to the board and I would like to have some rationale as to my opinion.

A. It is impossible for me to tell you whether, in fact, you are paying the proper assessment without reviewing the condominium documents and, in particular, the condominium master deed, which sets forth the basis upon which assessments will be paid by the respective co-owners.

The master deed must establish some criteria for establishing percentages of value, which in 1977, was the basis by which assessments were to be allocated among various

Author becomes animal namer

By Leonard Kniffel
special writer

Birmingham poet Patricia Hooper unwittingly began her role as animal namer when she was a little girl and her mother bought her a jumper. "I knew what that meant," she says, "so I began jumping up and down when she put it on me. I was so angry when she told me I was wrong."

The incident is Hooper's earliest recollection in a lifelong fascination with words that culminated this fall with Houghton Mifflin's publication of "A Bundle of Beasts," and arresting combination of rhyme and nonsense that is as ageless and appealing as "Mother Goose."

Everyone has heard of a school of fish," says Hooper, the 47-year-old mother of two grown children, "but there are hundreds of other words which have been used to describe groups of animals over the years. I was looking at just such a list in a newspaper about three years ago, when I began to see the terms literally."

THE THOUGHT of fish seated studiously at their desks so amused her that she began writing a series of rhymes depicting groups of animals acting out their names: abandof gorillas blowing on their bugles and blaring their bassoons, a bed of oysters snuggled under the sheets, a crash of rhinoceros bumping about the kitchen. "I knew right away that this was a book I'd have enjoyed as a child, so I began writing for that part of me that's still 10 years old."

"A Bundle of Beasts" served as a kind of antidote to the publication in 1984 of her first volume of serious adult poems, "Other Lives." "I was obsessed," says Hooper, "I woke up in the middle of the night to write 'A Drift of Hogs.' I had to pull over to the side of the road on my way to the gorcery store to write 'A Building of Rooks.' "

Mark Steele's whimisical illustrations match the playful tone of Hooper's rhymes, though the two have never met. It was a marriage made at the publishing house. "I was prepared to be disappointed," says the author who was afraid as assigned illustrator "might not get the joke." Steele, a freelance illustrator from Boston accepted his first children's assignment with caution but feels confident that it worked — now that his two daughters, aged five or two, "keep asking me to read the book to them."

REACHING THE RIGHT BUYERS

It's true that today is a great time to sell your home. Financing is affordable and buyers are out in droves. Unfortunately, many sellers mistakenly assume that the difficulty in finding the RIGHT buyer for your home has decreased as dramatically as the outer-space interest rates. Not so. If you try to sell your home yourself today, you still must face plenty of difficulties. One of them is attracting the right people.

Can you weed out "Lookers?" It takes a seasoned professional eye to spot the truly interested and qualified parties. If you don't have one, you'll find yourself wasting a lot of time on people who are no more househunting than they are deep-sea fishing. They're just passing the time because—unlike you—they don't have anything better to do. Today's seller's market has brought them out in force. If you sell through a Realtor, you can be sure that the prospects he or she will bring will be really in the market for a home.

THERE ISN'T any way of knowing what these words meant originally, says Hooper, though she spent hours looking through the Oxford English Dictionary and such obscure tomes as "The Book of St. Albin," published in 1492.

"It's all fancy," she says, "I usually wrote about the first thing that I thought of. You have to associate to make connections — that's what imagination really is." She notes that the game works just as well when applied to people. Her recent favorites are a rash of dermatologists and a hive of allergies.

This is the first effort at a children's book for the Saginaw-born-and-raised author who at age 15 published poems in "New Directions in Prose and Poetry" and "The American Scholar," in the company of Henry Miller and Allen Ginsberg. She quips: "I guess I had to grow up before I could write a children's book."

Leonard Kniffel is an area free lance writer who is also on the staff of the Detroit Public Library.

'Experience Michigan' is book series theme

Area residents are invited to join in a spring book discussion program focusing on Michigan.

Entitled "The Michigan Experience," the series will be conducted by area college professors. Included will be books, both fiction and nonfiction, which lead the reader to experience Michigan in a first-hand, immediate way.

The discussion schedule is as follows

● "The Dollmaker," by Harriet Arnow, Tuesday, March 1, discussion leader will be Dr. Dorothy Lee, University of Michigan-Dearborn.

● "The Nick Adams Stories," by Ernest Hemingway, Wednesday, March 16, discussion leader will be Dr. Ernest J. Nolan, Madonna College.

● "The Loon Feather" by Iola Fuller, Tuesday, March 29 with Dr. Leo McNamara of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, as discussion leader.

● "Gales of November The Sinking of the Edmund Fitzgerald," Tuesday, May 3 with Dr. W. Patrick Strauss, Oakland University, as discussion leader.

All programs will be held from 7:30 p.m. in Carl Sandburg Branch Library, 30100 Seven Mile Road, Livonia. The branch has reserved copies of the books available for discussion participants. Interested persons may register at the library or by phone at 476-0700.
