Township restricts drinking in parks

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A new local law prohibits drinking in Canton parks except for special events.

Non-profit service clubs and organizations that have a state liquor license and approval from the superintendent of parks and recreation will be allowed to sell beer and wine for special, previously approved events.

Before the change earlier this week, there was no restriction on drinking any alcoholic beverage in township parks.

"Certainly anytime you have a municipality and alcohol there's liability," said Mike Gouin, Canton recreation superintendent. "A second reason is that alcohol is not necessary for a recreational facility."

CANTON TOWNSHIP Board of Trustees voted 5-2 Tuesday to amend the township park ordinance.

Trustees Bob Padget and Loren Bennett voted against the restrictions. Supervisor James Poole, Clerk Linda Chuhran, Treasurer Gerald Brown and Trustee John Prenizcky voted in favor.

"No, we haven't had any serious problems with alcohol at this point," Gouin said. "But the purpose of the ordinance isn't to react to a problem. We want to prevent a problem."

"History shows in most communities it's a problem, because it's a liability problem," he said. "There's a lot of youth activity, and that's why I don't see that those two mix."

Poole, who called for the vote, said: "I don't think we should allow drinking in the parks."

"Maybe you don't have a serious problem, but if you had some people come in and start drinking you couldn't stop them, because you don't have anything to stop them," Poole said. "I haven't had polio, but I took my vaccine. I don't want to have a problem (with drinking in the park)."

THE TOWNSHIP'S liability insurance carrier, Risk Management, supported the change "to reduce liability of the taxpayers for drinking-related incidents that may occur in our local parks," said Dan Durack, Canton personnel director.

"This has been an ongoing concern for municipalities for a number of years," he added.

Padget said: "It has not been a problem in the community, and there has not been a problem so far as rowdiness. I see no reason to outlaw couples from having a few beers and going out and playing baseball."

Linda Chuhran: "It would be nice to say drinking is restricted to family uses, and they were having one or two beers. I think the abuses are more prominent than a family going out and having a picnic.

"It's going to be the kids and those who are going to abuse it. We're young (as a community) and growing and it's probably time to set the rules," she added.

Township parks include Canton Recreation Complex, behind township hall on Canton Center south of Proctor; Griffin Park, on Center Center and Sheldon north of Cherry Hill; and Flodin Park, on Saltz at Morrison.

Salem senior killed in crash

Julie A. Monte, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, was memorialized as a quiet young woman and a good student who took delight in cheering her teammates on the gymnastics team.

Miss Monte, 18, a Canton resident, was killed Tuesday morning in an automobile accident in Plymouth Township.

"The kids are just terribly broken up because she was so loved," said Diane Pomish, a counselor at Salem.

"I've known Julie since the sixth grade and she didn't have an enemy in the world," said Tonya Bullard, a classmate.

"She was one of those team kids you loved to have around," said Gary Balconi, athletic manager at Salem. "She pulled for everyone else."

Miss Monte, who had advanced to French IV in school, had hoped to live in France for a year after graduating.

"She was a very good student. Her last report card was all A's and B's," Pomish said. "It didn't come easily for her, but she was willing to work for it."

MISS MONTE was a passenger in a car driven by her brother, Craig, westbound on Ann Arbor Road. Their car was struck while turning left at Canton Center Road in front of an eastbound vehicle, police said.

Miss Monte, who wasn't wearing a seat belt, was pronounced dead at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. Craig was treated and released from Oakwood Hospital-Canton Center. He was wearing a seat belt.

The driver of the other vehicle wasn't seriously injured, police said.

'Cubbyhole' is student haven

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Most students would say the room where the unruly kids go has a bad reputation.

But for the kids who end up there, it's a chance for a new beginning.

The cubbyhole without windows on the second floor of Canton High School with ripped carpeting and ragged posters hardly looks like a haven.

But don't say that to the kids who are sent or voluntarily visit the In-school Suspension Center used for both high schools at Centennial Education Park.

Even the ones who are "written up" by the counselor defend the program that's on the chopping board if budget cuts are enacted.

MARTIN AUTHIER, Inschool Suspension counselor, is casual with the kids.

"Kids come in and Authier defines their problems and shows them different solutions on how to fix those problems," one student said.

But Authier said you have to look for the reasons causing the bad behavior.

"The bottom line is that you can't separate home from school," Authier said.

He recently discovered why a student insisted on using foul language and was kicked out of class.

"The bottom line is that her mom and dad are going through a divorce," he said. "She's sending

Library volunteer honored with Flossie Tonda award

By Diane Gale
staff writer

David Cwikla will appreciate the extra space at Canton's new library.

The 38-year-old Canton volunteer uses a battery powered chair to squeeze through the tight aisles often blocked by book carts in the library on the top floor of Canton Township Hall.

"I realize how big the machine is and how wide the aisles are," Cwikla said smiling. "That's why I'm looking forward to the new building. It will be easier to maneuver."

THE SOUND of construction workers pounding next door are harbingers of the November opening. It will be twice the size of the present library where Cwikla volunteers 25 hours weekly.

"I have an obligation to do a fine job," Cwikla said. "It makes me feel good. I'm self-satisfied. I hope they're satisfied."

The staff showed Cwikla they were more than satisfied last week when they gave him the Flossie Tonda Award for "invaluable service to the Canton Public Library."

His philosophy: "Have patience and try to maintain a positive attitude about life. I've been saying this for ages . . . even more so after being handicapped.

"I notice people who have problems and complain about their lives," he said. "I don't have a lot of sympathy for them. They have to stop and realize that things in life could be much more difficult."

CWIKLA'S LIFE took a drastic turn at 26 when he was diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis. He later learned he had encephalitis.

Now he's confined to the battery-powered chair and his vision, speech and balance are impaired.

"You have to watch where you go," he said. "Some things that you used to do you have to come to grips that you can't do anymore."

He used to play more sports than he could easily name. Now even being a spectator can be tough.

The Western Michigan University graduate has a degree in business administration and in 1975 worked in management training at Michigan National Bank.

"I had no idea I would end up working in a library," he said.

Tall, with a full brown beard, Cwikla has a quick wit, listens carefully and smiles with understanding eyes.

He lives alone in a handicapped equipped apartment and doesn't pursue a paying job because it would jeopardize his government and health benefits.

"When you have certain limitations it's difficult to get a full-time job," said Cwikla adding he couldn't make it financially on part-time pay.

"I do 95 percent of everything on my own," he said. He needs help lifting heavy and awkward items.

"People are very understanding about helping out."

out a message. That particular girl right now can go either way."

An 11th grader, in the suspension room Monday, has been grounded by her parents since the seventh grade.

When she first started seeing Authier she had a 0.028 grade point average. That translates to all Es and one D. Now she earns mostly Bs.

HER MOTIVATION to change is a "contract" she entered into with her parents. Authier is the mediator.

The girl and her parents made separate wish lists and if they disagree they go into binding arbitration.

If they agree on something from her list — like the use of a car — the parents get two items on their list.

When she achieves something her parents wanted, she gets something from her list. If she breaks the contract the parents take something off her list.

If the parents break the contract, she takes something off their list.

"We try to predicate this on perfect attendance and upgrading their grades," Authier said.

He's an obvious ally to the kids, and they seem casual and relaxed around him — even talking about times they've used drugs.

Authier wrote up two of his biggest supporters. "He doesn't let us get away with s—," one of the girls said.

"I CAN'T have kids in here who break the rules," he said.

Why can Authier deal with the kids that teachers need to remove from the classroom?

Simple, one of the students said: "In here you have no rights. You have to earn privileges."

But not every case has a happy ending. "Some make the wrong turn," Authier said.

"If you have feelings, talk about them," Authier said. "Don't go out and get drunk or beat a wall. Talk about it. That's what I try to do — to get them to use their mouths."

Authier said he sometimes gets tips from students saying other kids have threatened to commit suicide.

Beautifying Canton

Sprucing up for spring.

Canton's Beautification Committee is sponsoring a program for businesses and residents to donate trees, shrubs, flowers/flower beds, welcome-to-Canton signs and other landscaping materials.

The first donated tree — a red maple — was planted last weekend between the Historical Museum and Canton Township Hall on Canton Center south of Proctor.

Mark VanNetten of Davey Tree Co. on Ronda in Canton said he wanted to return something to the community that supported his business.

Beautification Committee members suggest residents may want to donate the landscaping as a memorial.

THE WELCOME sign is $1,000 and a landscaping plan must be submitted with an agreement to keep it up.

"I have a hunch that once the first welcome sign goes in others will be interested," said Geri Wojcik of the beautification committee.

Jack Demmer Ford is donating a welcome sign and flower arrangement at Joy and Sheldon. The display is expected to be completed in a few months.

Markers/plaques will be placed on tree guards and posts designating who donated the individual trees, evergreens and flower beds.

Bronze markers will be 6 inches square and priced at $65. Anodized aluminum markers will be 4 inches square and priced at $30.

"Community beautification of its public land extends beyond its visible attractiveness," according to a note from the committee to the board of trustees.

"It creates a positive atmosphere that overflows to homeowners, business owners and visitors," the letter said. "We know that Canton is a special place to live and work and we want others to see our community pride."

Those interested in participating in the program can call Mary Beth Moss, in Canton's department of economic development, 397-1000, Ext. 252.

FOR MORE THAN a year he has boarded a bus four times weekly and heads toward the library. Previously, he volunteered with Easter Seals in Inkster.

"With all the considerations that I have, this presents the best opportunity for me — health wise and personally," said Cwikla, who processes incoming magazines and newspapers at the library. "People realize I can do more than I'm given to do."

"Quite a few people think you get magazines and put them on the shelves — it doesn't work that way," he said shaking his head.

Cwikla said he's an avid reader, "but not because of the library. I've always been that way. I'm curious about ideas."

"I'd rather be working here than doing something at home," he said. "I'm not too domestically oriented — like dusting or washing the dishes. While I have to do it, I don't like to.

"The employees value volunteer work," he said. "This library depends on it, and it's important, too."

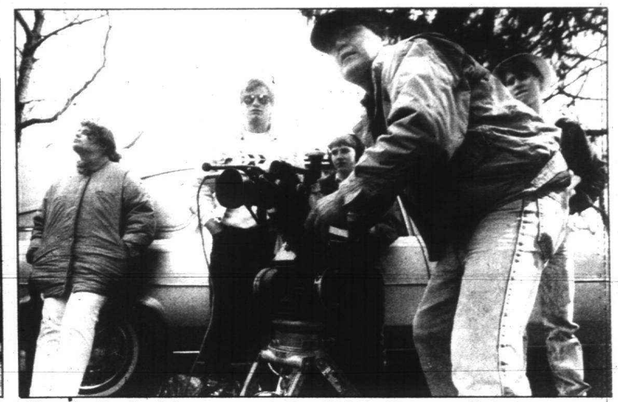
Mike Stevens, who plays the dead student's brother, grieves over the grave as sound man Harlan Singal holds a boom mike.



Film maker Tom Van Dyke sets a scene in Maplegrove Cemetary for his anti-drug film. Watching him are sons Mark, 19 (with glasses) Adam, 20, and Walker, 13.

Man's movie about drug abuse not just for show

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

In the war against drugs, Tom Van Dyke plans to haul out some heavy artillery.

His forces include a production crew, script and a cast of more than 300 high school and college actors and three adults.

Van Dyke's uncommon effort may be thwarted by a common stumbling block. His bid for a federal grant has been rejected and he's running out of money.

He is seeking corporate and private funding for the half-hour film he estimates will cost about $160,000 to produce.

By the time he realized that a federal grant wasn't coming, he already was committed to the film. "By that time, I realized by my research and involvement we really do have serious problems about educating youth regarding substance abuse," Van Dyke, a Plymouth resident, said.

He formed "Young Star Productions" specifically to produce the program. The script won support from Education and Prevention in Communities, a program of the Addiction Research Institute at Wayne State University and from Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano. Distribution to schools and drug abuse facilities will be handled through WSU.

"I HAVE a real concern that the people who most need it aren't going to afford to get a copy," Van Dyke said. He would like to see businesses, public service clubs or private contributors donate copies of the video to such facilities.

Through a series of vignettes featuring actors in their teens and early 20s, the film shows different aspects of substance abuse. It deals with the consequences of a drug culture: suicide, death and unwanted pregnancy. Deborah Trapp, who is in charge of alternative education at Plymouth Salem High School, advised Van Dyke on the script.

Opening with the funeral of a high school boy who died from his involvement in drugs, the film focuses on victims and their friends.

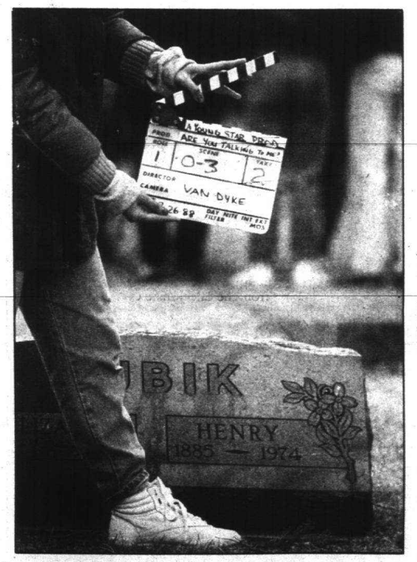
"It's very realistic. It's an accurate portrayal and characterization of the fabric that supports drug abuse," he said.

Audiences won't see a lot of drug paraphernalia. Instead, Van Dyke's script concentrates on bringing into focus different personalities, basically likeable teens who have made dangerous choices.

Van Dyke isn't another committed crusader turned amateur film maker. For 18 years he has written and produced industrial training films, public service announcements and public relations materials.

LAST YEAR his film, "Are You Talking to Me?" produced for the UAW-Ford employee substance abuse program, won several awards, including those presented by the National Education Film and Video Festival and the International Television Association. That attention led to his involvement in the film geared to a younger audience.

"There's little appropriate material being made, produced and distributed for junior high and high school kids," Van Dyke said. "There's a hole you could drive a truck through."



Production assistant Val Sklar uses a clapper to identify a cemetery scene.

Before shooting a scene, Van Dyke instructs student actors.

Bonds sold for school repairs

The sale of $12.9 million in bonds to pay for repairs and purchase equipment at all 34 Wayne-Westland school buildings was approved unanimously by the school board recently.

The bond proposal was authorized by voters in a special election Jan. 22.

Bonds will be sold to Merrill Lynch Capitol Bidders, a subsidiary of the national financial firm.

Merrill Lynch turned in the low bid for the bonds, asking for 7.721 percent interest for the 25-year issue.

Other companies bidding for the bonds were Shearson-Lehman and the regional firm of Griffin, Kubek, Stavens and Thomspson, said Amanda Van Dusen, the attorney who solicited offers for the bonds.

THE BOND sale means numerous renovation projects should be under way soon, said superintendent Dennis O'Neill.

A task force including members of the administration, building principals, representatives from employee unions and others has been working since early February to help work out details of the various projects.

Wayne-Westland School District

The district serves southeast Canton.

The projects with the highest priority include repairing a leaking roof and repaving the parking lot at John Glenn High School, according to O'Neill.

IN OTHER action last week, the board approved new contracts for three employee groups and a renegotiated contract for a fourth group.

Receiving new working agreements were cabinet members (top administrators), the Wayne-Westland Central Office Administrators Association and the Wayne-Westland Building Administrators Association.

The agreements, which run for three years, include wage and fringe benefit improvements similar to those approved for the district's teachers last September.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10:15 a.m. Friday from the Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home, Plymouth, and at 11 a.m. from St. Thomas A'Becket Catholic Church, Canton. Burial will be in Glen Eden Cemetery, Livonia.

Unruly crowds tie up park

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The last couple of years it was cruisers in downtown Plymouth.

This year, unruly crowds of young people have been congregating and making mischief in a portion of Hines Park that winds through Plymouth Township, maintains Carl Berry, police chief in the township.

"Haggerty Road west to Wilcox (on Hines Drive) is out of control," Berry said. "It's drinking, blocking roads, smoking dope, traffic, illegal parking — generally tough behavior.

"I've been looking at it the past month. Every time it's a warm day, it gets out of control."

A majority of the crowd appears to be 12-22 years of age, said Berry, who added that he's starting to get complaints from people who live near the park.

SHERIFF Robert Ficano, whose department is responsible for patrolling Hines Park, disagrees with Berry's assessment that things are out of control.

"This is not abnormal. It happens every spring, prom time and in September when school starts again," Ficano said.

"They will pick different parts of the park each year. We increase our patrol. We don't plan to let it get out of control."

Last Sunday, sheriff's deputies issued 70 tickets, most for parking offenses, made nine arrests, towed 10 cars and responded to six accidents throughout the 17-mile length of Hines Park, Ficano said.

Those numbers are higher now than they'll be later in the season because warm weather is drawing people outdoors after winter, the sheriff added.

More than 20 deputies worked the park Sunday.

Haggerty Field was closed at 2:30 p.m. to get a better handle on traffic flow, Ficano said.

"AT THIS point, if there's a problem, we'll step up enforcement," he said.

"The bottom line is we're not going to tolerate anyone taking over the park. If there's any type of narcotic, we arrest. We don't tolerate that. We check IDs for drinking.

"We've had the park family-oriented the last five years," Ficano said. "We don't want it to get to the point where people control the park. We'll want to control it."

Things have been relatively quiet this spring as far as cruising activity in downtown Plymouth is concerned, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"I think we're on the right track — high (police) visibility and fair, firm enforcement for all ages," he said.

"We're obviously pleased that cruising activity has maintained at very minimal levels."

Men, boy arrested in station holdup

Two men and a boy were arrested in connection with an armed robbery at Hop-In Gas Station in Canton last weekend.

Charles Miller, 21, of Ypsilanti and Antonio Pittman, 19, of Ann Arbor were arraigned by Judge Robert Brzezinski in Wayne Out County Court.

The adults were each charged with one count of armed robbery and one felony count of carrying a firearm.

Pleas of not guilty were entered. Both men were held on a $10,000 cash bond.

A 14-year-old juvenile was taken to the Wayne County Youth Home.

A female employee, working by herself, said at 5:45 a.m. May 1 three people entered the station at Michigan and Canton Center.

One walked toward the cashier and pointed a shotgun at her, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

A second man, also wielding a shotgun, stood behind the first man. The third suspect walked up and down the aisles in search of patrons, police said.

They forced the woman to open the cash register and stole the $62 that was there.

The men ordered her to lie on the floor while they fled. The woman called the Canton police.

A Van Buren police officer who heard the police broadcast stopped a car and arrested three people, Boljesic said. He also recovered two shotguns and money.

A preliminary examination is scheduled Monday in 35th District Court to determine if there is enough evidence to hold a trial.

The annual May Canton Township cleanup continues.

Residents can dump trash from their spring cleaning projects from 9 a.m. to dark Fridays and Saturdays throughout May at Canton Recycling, 5757 Lilley, north of Ford Road.

Participants in the cleanup period must show proof of residency and complete a form at Canton Recycling that shows the type and amount of refuse to be dumped.

Residents can dispose a total of five cubic yards of trash during May. They can make a maximum of four trips to the recycling center.

A total of four tires can be discarded at Canton Recycling under this agreement. Wood can be a maximum 6 feet long. Tree stumps are accepted only if they are light enough to be carried by two men. Any type of steel or metal will be accepted.

TRASH CAN'T be dumped from trucks. Residents are limited to using cars or pickups with trailers a maximum of 12 feet long. While Canton Recycling won't take brush, it accepts bushes.

Residents who want to dispose of more refuse can call Canton Recycling to discuss fees, 981-4222.

Canton DPW accepts only brush from residents between 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays at the DPW on Sheldon, south of Michigan Avenue.

Residents can dump household toxic waste such as paint thinner at Canton Recycling. Those with an address ending in an even number can dispose of toxic household items on Saturday, May 14. Residents with an address ending in an odd number can dispose of these items on Saturday, May 28.

Worker training program booms

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

'We're attempting to bring the highest-quality training to participants with no financial obligation for the school districts.'
— John Graves, executive director

A year ago a consortium of local school districts and colleges banded together to provide the corporate world with educational and retraining services.

It appears the so-called Metropolitan Education Commission has struck gold.

"There is a tremendous need," said John C. Graves, executive director of the commission. The commission is housed in the Garden City School District administrative offices.

More than a dozen businesses, including the Big Three automakers, McClouth Steel, Meadowdale Foods (which owns Great Scott! Supermarkets) and Nationwide Security have used the commission to improve worker job skills.

And the list is growing daily.

IN ADDITION, the commission operates a computer training program for laid-off workers and high school dropouts.

"Our computer classes are different than adult education classes. Most schools can't afford to keep up with state-of-the-art technology," Graves said.

"We contract out to private vendors."

The commission started a program with OE Learning last fall to pick up laid-off people and dropouts and give them up-to-date computer training without charge.

"WE ADVERTISED and hoped for 80 (students)," Graves said. "We had 500 respond."

The commission was able to accommodate 388. Students attended classes full-time at one of three sites in Dearborn and Garden City. At the same time, participants were able to earn high school diplomas.

"People came in with no high school diploma, no job and left with a diploma and job training. The governor picked this program as an example of what the private sector can accomplish in cooperation with school districts and community-based organizations."

Ford Motor Co. hired operators "right out of class," Graves said.

Barsamian, Hilbert to receive honors at SC graduation

Garden City School Board member Armen Barsamian and former Redford Union Superintendent of Schools Russel Hilbert will receive honorary degrees Saturday during Schoolcraft College commencement ceremonies.

More than 850 students are eligible to receive degrees from the Livonia-based community college this school year.

Also receiving honors will be Livonia City Councilwoman Laura Toy, a former Schoolcraft College trustee, and Bruce Lantto, the general manager of the L.A. Turowski Funeral home in Livonia.

Toy and Lantto will receive the Schoolcraft College Distinguished Service Alumni Award at the commencement ceremonies.

Toy received an associate's degree in arts from Schoolcraft. She served a six-year term on the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees. She was re-elected to a new term last June but resigned in November when she was elected to the Livonia City Council.

Lantto, a longtime member of the Livonia business community, was recently selected as the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Small Business Person of the Year.

Ceremonies begin at 6:30 p.m. in the physical education building on the college's main campus on Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Armen Barsamian, a member of the Garden City Board of Education and a Wayne County Intermediate School District trustee, will receive an honorary associate's degree in arts and sciences Saturday from Schoolcraft College.

MICHIGAN State University President John DiBiaggio will deliver the commencement address. DiBiaggio is a former president of the University of Connecticut and has held various administrative posts at the University of Detroit, University of Kentucky and Virginia Commonwealth University.

Barsamian is also a Wayne County Intermediate School District trustee and has been a member of the Michigan PTA Board and president of the Garden City PTA Council. He is a longtime Schoolcraft College Foundation member, having served as the private fund-raising organization's president 1973-75.

Hilbert was among the local superintendents who helped promote the need for a Western Wayne County community college in the early 1960s, though Redford Union decided ultimately against joining the Schoolcraft district. He also served as administrative head of the Sebewaing and Romeo public schools in a 43-year education career that ended in 1967.

AREA STUDENTS who will receive Phi Beta Kappa honors during Saturday's commencement include:

- Livonia — Vicki Jo Caruso, Debra Dietrich, Frank Fitzgerald, Marjorie McKnight, Debra Lee Reel, Barbara Roth and Barbara Carol Spiess.
- Westland — Elizabeth Dawn Caplis, Stanley Chelsea, Thomas Furie and Zoraida Trott.
- Plymouth — Debra Ann Lamay, Kyle Lendel and Ruth Hoon.
- Canton Township — Cathy Verna Yount.
- Garden City — Ellen Marie Karosa and Craig Whipstock.
- Redford Township — Brian Martinuzzi, Portia Carson Reuben and Barbara Tremblay.

Schoolcraft offers associates degrees in arts, science, applied science, engineering and general studies, as well as educational certificates in selected fields of study.

Area's MSU graduates honor school president

Area Michigan State University alumni will hold a reception Saturday in honor of MSU president John DiBiaggio.

The reception, sponsored by the MSU Alumni Association of Western Wayne County, will be held from 4-5:30 p.m. at the Novi Sheraton, I-96 at Novi Road, across from Twelve Oaks Mall.

DiBiaggio will be in town that day to speak at Schoolcraft College commencement activities.

Western Wayne alumni have created two scholarships for Schoolcraft students who complete their studies at MSU.

Scholarship applicants sought

Applications are available for this year's Schoolcraft College Foundation Scholar Award.

The tuition grant applies to the 1988-89 school year.

Applications can be obtained through the college Financial Aid Office, on the main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. Applications must be returned by Monday, May 9.

Police investigating canceled concerts

STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

Debbie Modetz of Livonia peeks into the Omni Star Theatre Box Office on Monday morning, looking for someone who might be able to issue a refund to her. With her are sons Christopher (left), age 4½, and Gregory, 2.

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Livonia Police are waiting to find out, from people representing Paul Anka and Dionne Warwick, when the performers' concerts at the Omni Star Theatre were canceled.

Knowing that, police then can determine if any tickets to the two shows were sold after the cancellation dates, said Livonia Police Lt. Bobby Duren. If so, the sold tickets could show an intent to defraud, Duren said.

Joan Rivers apparently has not yet canceled the contract she had with Omni general manager Ed Morelli.

DUREN SAID it would be a "long, drawn-out task" for police to investigate the financial troubles and downfall of the Livonia theater, which failed to open its doors on the Monday after the Temptations' show ended.

"We're talking to employees now," Duren said.

No one showed up at the theater Monday to give refunds for the three canceled Anka performances, as Morelli had promised the theater would do.

Upset ticket holders lingered in front of the box office. Many told of contacting the theater numerous times to get a refund.

"I came here every day last week. Then I read in the paper I should come today for a refund," said Ellen Jones of Plymouth, who had bought four Anka tickets.

No one showed up at Livonia's Omni Star Theatre Monday to give refunds for three canceled Paul Anka performances, as had been promised.

Duren said the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office is researching an "obscure" law on ticket sales, to "see if the facts here fit that statute."

Tradesmen who were not paid for renovation work at the theater might not recover their money, said Terry Kulick of Samoyed Plumbing Co. in Plymouth. Kulnick said Morelli owes him $25,000 for work done just before the Wayne Newton concert.

"I spent 24 hours there for nine days," Kulnick said. "Now we're hearing from our attorney that we're not home free with a lien, if they file for bankruptcy. Leins won't stand up against the owner of the building. The owner here winds up with a brand new theater and we're left holding the bag. The construction people are getting the short end of a very dirty stick."

THE BUILDING, leased to Morelli, is owned by Louis George.

Morelli estimated he had $600,000 worth of work done at the theater. Three-fourths of that amount is still owed, Morelli said.

In another business deal, Don Hesse of Don's Vending Service, 37037 Schoolcraft, Livonia said he loaned Morelli $5,000 in 1984 to equip a new bar at 418 Main Street in Belleville.

Hesse said he got a promissory note from Morelli but that Morelli never repaid the loan.

"He wanted to put in equipment and needed an advance," Hesse said. "He was so smooth. I believed everything I heard. He had craftsmen come in and they gutted the pizzeria, remodeling it into a bar. Then they went there one day, nobody was there and they couldn't get in. The fellow who owned the building took a beating; the contractors took a beating."

Morelli has said the Omni Theatre would file for bankruptcy if it couldn't get an infusion of money from new investors.

Morelli said he had a "commitment" for the $150,000 needed to reopen the theater. But first, he said, he needed to buy the original investors out.

He said he offered to buy the existing stock from the investors for $30,000. He had put the investors' original investment at $100,000.

Schools, colleges working together on job retraining

In another case, a woman laid off from a production job reported to her former boss with her newly acquired skills and was rehired as a computer operator.

'The advantage to business is that working with the schools is much less expensive than working with the private sector.'

— John Graves executive director

ANOTHER COMPUTER training course is scheduled to begin in July and run six months. High school dropouts, people with a general equivalency diploma (GED), or anyone recently graduated from high school between 18-19½ is eligible for the free comprehensive computer training program. Call the commission at 425-4275.

Also in the works — a plan to offer training in a new occupation: electronic machine controls design. Right now, training is offered solely at General Motors in-house.

"We're attempting to bring the highest-quality training to participants with no financial obligation for the school districts," Graves said.

Twelve founding districts and colleges each paid $9,000 to get the commission rolling last year. The western Wayne County districts include South Redford, Redford Union, Plymouth-Canton, Wayne-Westland and Garden City Public schools. The University of Michigan-Dearborn, Henry Ford Community College and Wayne State University also are members.

"THAT MONEY was used to generate $1.2 million in contracts our first three months," Graves said. Graves had worked as national director of training for GM and Rockwell International among other companies. He also worked in public education as an administrator.

The surplus was rolled back into the budget. The commission's fiscal year runs to Sept. 30, when more districts will join the commission. Those scheduled to join are Oakland Intermediate Schools, Van Dyke Public Schools, Ferndale Public Schools and Highland Park Community College. All fees have been waived since the effort is now self-supporting, Graves said.

The only grant money the commission received was used to pay for a study of the education and training needs of business and industry in Wayne County.

"WE FOUND THAT a number of businesses want to work with education but have never been contacted," Graves said.

"Private training beats the devil out of public education."

That's a trend Graves would like to see reversed.

"Public education can give a broader-based training, including basic skills upgrading along with the technical training.

"The advantage to business is that working with the schools is much less expensive than working with the private sector."

Training that the schools are not equipped to provide is contracted out to private companies. The commission, however, is not obligated to use just public schools.

"WE'VE HAD a couple of companies come to us to help them hire. We have a computer system that takes a job task, loads in learning objectives and produces a test that is job specific, then gives us individual profiles. It is very specific, pinpointing the skill upgrading necessary."

One client currently is looking for workers who can type 65 words per minute and speed write 85 words per minute. Job seekers meeting those qualifications may send resumes to the commission at 1333 Radcliff, Garden City 48135.

Graves would like to set up a center to match employers with jobs.

"We're doing some things nobody has done before."

The commission is the brainchild of Gerald Dunn, executive director of the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation. Dunn envisioned the commission as one-stop shopping for employers to take care of their employees' educational needs.

Dunn believes the commission will be a way for member school districts to generate revenue in addition to local property taxes and school state aid.

Exec: Jail system needs overhaul

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County shouldn't merely build a new jail, county executive Edward McNamara said Monday, it should also rebuild its approach to crime and punishment.

Speaking before a citizens task force on jail issues, McNamara called for a county corrections department, privately operated jails, home incarceration and greater use of alternative workforce programs.

"We should be looking at the whole jail system," he said.

At the same time, McNamara said a tax increase "might be inevitable" to pay for a new jail building, if federal or state money isn't available.

The county needs space for at least 600 additional prisoners, according to a report filed by jail monitor Vincent Nathan of Toledo.

Though he stopped short of recommending a tax increase ballot proposal, McNamara said any request should include money for operation as well as construction.

"The mistake that was made with the 1976 jail millage was it didn't include anything for operation," he said.

JAIL OPERATIONS should be administered by a county corrections director, McNamara said. Jails are currently the responsibility of the county sheriff.

McNamara, however, urged task force members to consider recommending a corrections director who would report directly to the executive.

Because of its size and the number of prisoners held, McNamara said, Wayne County needs a "paid professional" to oversee its jail system.

Private jails could be used for misdemeanor offenders, McNamara said. McNamara said he believed private jails could be built more rapidly and operated more efficiently than public jails.

Home incarceration could keep selected offenders off the streets by forcing them to wear electronic monitoring devices, making court officials aware of their whereabouts at all times, McNamara said. He called the system "ideal" in holding drunken driving suspects.

Alternative workforce prisoners are currently cleaning county highways, under assignment from district court judges. The program should expand, McNamara said, though he cautioned task force members that additional sheriff's deputies may need to be hired to keep an eye on prisoners.

PRISONERS SHOULD know they're going to receive punishment, McNamara said, even if they aren't directly sent to jail.

"The certainty of punishment is absolutely essential if we're to be effective," he said.

Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair, who also appeared before the task force Monday, explained and defended his office's restrictive plea bargaining policy.

As policy, county prosecutors don't plea bargain in most trials involving murder, armed robbery, rape, drug transactions over $50,000 or break-ins of occupied dwellings.

"If you read about a plea bargain, it was a case we didn't feel was winnable," O'Hair said.

Though increased plea bargaining has been discussed as a means of speeding court dockets thereby getting prisoners out of the county jail system, O'Hair defended his department's policy.

"Courts say plea bargain more, but the public says don't plea bargain at all," he said.

Task force members were appointed by the county commission. They are expected to make recommendations on the county jail system to commissioners in August.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on May 18, 1988, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. DST at the Board Room the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft College will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1988 of an estimated additional proposed millage rate of 0.235 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Trustees has the complete authority to establish that 2.27 mills be levied in 1988 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1988 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by an estimated thirteen percent (13%).

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the latest estimate of state equalized valuation of property located within the College District. In the event that state equalized valuation as finalized is for any reason higher than the estimate used for this hearing, the Board of Trustees must hold another public hearing before levying millage on any higher valuation.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Trustees may approve all or any portion the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by the Board of Trustees.

Matters of life, death

Symposium at hospital examines medical ethics

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Who lives, who dies and who decides are some of the ethical dilemmas facing physicians, hospitals and families in caring for terminally ill patients.

With medical technology, expertise and costs growing at phenomenal speed, Americans must make life and death decisions never dreamed of by their ancestors.

One question medical personnel ponder daily is: "Will the decisions I make regarding this patient prolong and improve the quality of his life or will I simply prolong his death?"

AT ST. Mary Hospital, Livonia, 200 physicans, nurses and allied health professionals involved in caring for critically and terminally ill patients gathered Saturday for a daylong symposium called "Death and Dying — Care of Terminally Ill Patients, Medical, Ethical, Legal and Social Implications."

The ethics committee of St. Mary Hospital in conjunction with the Michigan Society of Critical Care Medicine presented the program.

Course directors were Dr. B. Babu Paidipaty, director of critical care medicine at St. Mary Hospital; Dr. James Kruse, director of the respiratory care unit at Receiving Hospital; and Dr. Jeff Kyff, associate director in anesthesia and critical care unit at the University of Michigan Medical School, in Ann Arbor.

In the last 20 years, hospital ethics committees have targeted their roles first, as education bodies who provide a means for members and institutions to study troubling issues and, second, as a vehicle to examine specific cases, said Weber.

"The purpose of ethics committees is to promote moral conversation within the institution," said Leonard Weber, in his talk about the "Role of Ethics Committee."

Weber is director of the ethics committee for Mercy College of Detroit.

"The best ethics committees allow anybody, not just physicians, to bring forward a case," said Weber.

He said families should be urged to talk with the physician handling the case, first, rather than immediately trying to go before the ethics committee.

"In the last two years, the majority of cases brought to the ethics committees have been for overtreatment of patients and are brought by the physicians. That's a reversal," he said. "Ethics committees are not decision-making bodies."

In adopting policy, Weber cautioned against institutions automatically adopting a policy from another institution. Slow, careful study is best, he said.

ALLOCATION OF resources and the AIDS problem also were topics of discussion.

Several members of the audience expressed statements reflective of their concern and hesitancy in treating AIDS patients.

"I don't know if you're coming from institutions that have AIDS patients but if you don't, you will very soon," Weber said.

Medical personnel in the audience questioned both why they should be subjected to the AIDS virus because of "innappropriate sexual behavior" that precipitated contraction of the disease and whether referral to another physician would be considered unethical.

"I hear you saying that if you're not the surgeon, don't make judgments about the surgeon. You could remove yourself from the situation as long as you don't abandon the patient.

"You should not refuse to treat patients with AIDS. It's unprofessional to make that decision. I understand appropriate concern for your own health," Weber said.

Religion important in decisions

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Physicians who treat patients must also consider religious beliefs in making decisions.

That was the point expressed by three speakers in a discussion of Eastern/Western religion and medical beliefs during a symposium called "Death and Dying — Care of Terminally Ill Patients, Medical, Ethical, Legal and Social Implications" held Saturday at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

The symposium drew 200 physicians, nurses and other allied health professionals.

Speakers included: Dr. Abot Alo, a Toledo surgeon who spoke about Moslem beliefs; Dr. Sai K.R. Sista of St. Mary Hospital, who spoke of Hindu beliefs; and the Rev. Walter Markowicz, who spoke about the Western religions' points of view.

THE KORAN guides Moslems in their beliefs.

The Rev. Walter Markowicz, speaking about the Western religions' points of view, said that treatment decisions are often the shared decision between patient and physician and a matter of life and death.

"It is believed that if you kill one person it is as if you have killed the entire human race," said Alo. "If you save one person, it is as if you saved the entire human race."

In Islam, a human being is considered both a soul and a body. There is a clear distinction between human life — where a person is competent and can make decisions, and vegetative life where they cannot.

"You can't withdraw life support when there is any sign of life like the heart beating," said Alo. "The question of no CPR — that is, if a person has a hopeless condition and he develops a heart attack — means that it is not necessary, according to Islamic law, to put a person on a ventilator. It's up to the family, the patient or the medical doctor to make the decision."

Hindus believe life is an ongoing process of birth, subsistence, growth, transformation and death.

"Intellect makes human beings unique," said Sista in speaking about Hindu beliefs. Knowledge, personal experience, books and teachers comprise that intellect, he said.

"The spirit is eternal, a universal spirit. To grieve for the soul is foolish," said Sista. "We can always say that death is inevitable but when it happens to our own kith and kin we grieve a lot."

DEVOTION AND duty are equally important to Hindus.

Sista gave a concise example of the force and power of life. "After death, the body has to be carried by six persons while it was carried by one before."

Rev. Markowicz, speaking about the Western religions' points of view, said that treatment decisions are often the shared decision between patient and physician and a matter of life and death.

"Just because a person is this or that (religion), that doesn't mean that that will be how they decide. Sometimes that decision may be non-treatment and those consequences."

Residents hear dissident's pitch for SDI

By Filip Fracassa
staff writer

A three-tiered, $60-billion civil-defense system would make nuclear intrusion into the United States unsuccessful, an ex-Soviet physicist said in Westland Friday.

Support for the plan is not widespread, however, because the American public is underinformed, claims Russian dissident Dmitry Mikheyev, a frequent speaker for Washington-based High Frontier, a special-interest group which promotes world peace through defensive civil defense.

MIKHEYEV was invited to Westland by Michigan for the High Frontier, a statewide conservative coalition of High Frontier chapters formed last December.

Hoping to heighten interest in the much-talked-about Strategic Defense Initiative, Mikheyev said the Soviet Union's 13,000-plus nuclear missiles can be stopped cold with U.S. jet rockets launched from the ground, orbiting satellites that hurl thousands of bullets per split second and the high-profile "Star Wars" laser technology.

Mikheyev said the ground defense system would cost $2 billion, the orbit system $3 billion and the Star Wars system another $55 billion.

"We do not have to have this high-tech laser technology right now to defend ourselves, but we could have it soon enough," said Mikheyev. "We could have the ground system within 18 months and the orbiting satellites within three years, and it would cost just 5 percent of the present military budget."

Mikheyev, who spoke before 70 people from throughout western Wayne County, Farmington Hills, Dearborn, and Flint, at the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland, calls laser defense "not futuristic." He believes the Star Wars concept is likely to come about in time because of American scientists' thirst for better technology through research and development.

A CONSULTANT to the Central Intelligence Agency and all branches of the U.S. armed forces, Mikheyev said America's present defense system is offensive instead of defensive and does not adequately protect its citizens.

He called the armed forces' $12 billion policy of moving MX missiles to strategic points around the country wasteful because the measure is retaliatory instead of preventing attacks.

That alarms A.C. Fuhrmann of Westland, who was among those quizzing Mikheyev during the four-hour program.

"I can't figure out why our congressmen are not defending us," he said. "We're paying our congressmen to keep us safe; apparently they're spending uselessly and don't know where to cut the fat.

"I have learned a whole lot more about how our government is not taking care of us, and I'm convinced SDI is a good idea because the only way the Soviets will stay at peace if if they do not have the upper hand. With a strong defense, we'll have that."

GARDEN CITY resident Jim Falk realized nuclear war "is a real possibility and could be a real mess" if not properly averted with a defensive system based on deterrence through defense rather than counter-attack.

"Unless we live in Montana, which is not a prime site for nuclear attack, the attack will hit most of us, and that could prove worrisome, destructive and inescapable," said Falk. "Nuclear war is a real possibility, and by coming here I am realizing anything is possible."

For Dennis Fitzsimmons of Livonia, executive director of the Citizens for Constitutional Freedom, a statewide special-interest group, Mikheyev fortified his contention that wholesale changes should be made in Congress.

"Our congressmen simply are not listening to us, and that's very clear," said Fitzsimmons. "We strengthen our enemy every day by selling wheat to (the Soviets), loaning them money and giving them ball bearings for their machinery.

"Our congressmen aren't realizing or don't want to recognize that the Soviets will not compromise on their objectives unless they are not in a favorable position. By helping them grow, we are dumb enough to help put them in that favorable position."

HENRY KROES finds any contribution to the Soviets "treasonous."

"Subsidizing the Soviets is just plain dumb, and we keep doing it," said Kroes, a Livonia resident. "It is essential to take steps to defend ourselves. The cost is negligible if you stop giving our money and goods away.

"I am not supporting a policy of offensive response to a Soviet attack. I support defending ourselves without retaliation, and we'll have to make that happen by translating our beliefs into votes for the right people."

For Robert Sulkowski of Westland, Mikheyev's messages were clear: "I was not aware that the U.S. was really undefended. I was not aware the technology was available. Right now we're in sad shape."

Mikheyev said the Soviets regard Americans as too trusting, people who will believe anything if an idea is put on paper or said with a smile.

"I don't believe anything the Soviets say," Sulkowski said. "It's just a lot of hot air most of the time."

Under SDI, Mikheyev said the United States would need nine rockets to fight off every three nuclear missiles from the Soviet Union.

"SDI is engineering more than a science because it means having an extra number of defenses," he said. 'SDI is simply playing the percentages to defend ourselves."

At present, no single arm of the military is in charge of blunting a nuclear intrusion, said Mikheyev.

"The Pentagon resists SDI because it does not want to shift our strategy from offense to defense," he said.

MIKHEYEV predicts it will be necessary for SDI to be realized so the United States can remain a world force.

"Unless totalitarianism is replaced with a democratic society in the Soviet Union, the Soviets and Eastern European countries will always be patient in their effort to attain total dominance, regardless of the cost," he said."

Drug aid a 'hollow promise,' says Faust

The state Senate has dumped a political hot potato into the lap of Gov. James J. Blanchard. It's a popular bill to give low-income senior citizens free prescriptions, but there's no state money to pay for it.

"It is a hollow promise," said Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, in protest. "The seniors of Michigan are not well served by this body or by the House of Representatives by not providing funding for this very vital program." Faust voted against the bill.

"A bill that promises relief in the area of prescriptions is only as good as the dollars we put behind it," added Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, who voted for the bill but against giving it immediate effect.

THE BILL was passed in the Senate on Senior Power Day, with some 6,000 of the elderly rallying in the Lansing Civic Center across the street from the Capitol Building.

A year earlier, the House had passed the same bill — also on Senior Power Day — and sent it to the Senate.

But the bill languished in a Senate committee and was pushed out only in time for Senior Power Day. Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, gave the Republican version of the hot potato game:

"The House, under the leadership of its (Democratic) majority, turned down efforts to tie funds or to appropriate dollars directly into this program.

"The argument at the time (1987) was that the govenor's office would make it a priority in the budget. They (Blanchard administration) failed to do that."

In fact, said Senate Republicans, not only did Blanchard fail to fund the program in his budget message, but he didn't even mention it in the State of the State address.

Cost estimates range from $20 million for the first year to $150 million a year in a decade.

THE BILL to set up the program passed 32-4, with Faust the only Observer & Eccentric area senator voting against it. Three outstate Republicans also voted no.

Supporters were Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy, Richard Fessler of Commerce, Robert Geake of Northville and Rudy Nichols of Waterford; and Democrats Faxon and George Hart of Dearborn.

The motion to give the bill immediate effect failed, getting just 24 of the needed 26 votes.

Cruce, Fessler, Geake and Hart voted for immediate effect.

Faust and Faxon voted against, and Nichols did not vote, which had the same effect as a no vote.

All bills take effect 90 days after the Legislature adjourns — about April of the following year — unless the Legislature specifies an earlier date.

IT'S CALLED an "entitlement" program because it promises help to anyone who is entitled to it rather than appropriating a fixed amount.

Eligible are Michigan residents older than 62 who aren't covered by Medicaid (medical assistance to the poor). It's limited to individuals with an annual income up to $9,000 and assets up to $15,000 or couples with incomes of $12,000 and assets of $20,000.

Excluded from the assets are a house, a car, personal belongings, furnishings and life insurance.

More than 600 students will receive degrees during Madonna College commencement ceremonies Saturday at Ford Auditorium, Detroit.

Gary Hawks, interim state superintendent of public instruction, and Sister Rosemary Donley, executive vice president of the Catholic University of America, will receive honorary degrees from the Livonia-based liberal arts college.

Hawks has been chief administrator of the state Department of Education. He is also chairman of the Michigan Higher Education Assistance Authority. In that role, he oversees student financial aid programs at state colleges and universities.

Sister Donley, a trained nurse, is president of the National League of Nursing and has been active in the American Association of Colleges of Nursing. This year is the 25th anniversary of the Madonna College nursing program.

Area graduates of note in the college's 41st graduating class include:

● Thomas Welsh, a Livonia resident, graduates with a bachelor of science degree in marketing. Welsh received the Meta and Bernard Landuyt Award for High Achievement, the college's highest honor for business and computer students. He also twice received the Macabees Mutual Insurance Co. Scholarship for academic excellence. Manager of Salem Lumber, Livonia, Welsh plans to pursue a master's degree in marketing from the University of Michigan.

● Judith Fuoco, a Westland resident, will receive a bachelor's degree in accounting. Fuoco received the college's Division of Business and Computer Systems High Achievement Award in 1987. She was also a nominee of the college honor society and a member of Delta Mu Delta, the National Honor Society in Business Administration. Formerly corporate staff assistant to the president of Suburban Communications Inc., publisher of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, she will begin a new position as the firm's accountant and benefits administrator.

● Marilyn Chapoton of Livonia, a 52-year-old grandmother, received a 4.0 grade point average while earning a bachelor of science degree in allied health management. Chapoton is head nurse at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

● Patrick LaFave, a Farmington Hills resident, will begin working at the international accounting firm of Seidman and Seidman, after receiving a bachelor's degree in accounting.

● Etherine Heiden, a Livonia mother of nine, became a member of Kappa Gamma Pi, the college honor society, while earning a bachelor's degree in nursing. Heiden currently works on-call at Ardmore Center Psychiatric Hospital, Livonia.

● Guy Ricketts, of Redford Township, will leave for New York City with hopes of becoming a professional comic book artist, after receiving a degree in commercial arts. His sketches, water colors and commercial art pieces were recently displayed at the college exhibit gallery.

Area students receiving a master's degree from Madonna include Steven Balasia, Farmington Hills; Iora Haglund, Farmington; John Love, Canton Township; Steven Nuccio, Livonia and Mary Poskie, Canton.

More than 4,000 students are currently enrolled at Madonna. Madonna offers a master's degree program in administration, bachelor's programs in arts, science, applied science, medical technology, nursing and social work and associate's programs in arts, science and applied science.

More than 600 students will receive degrees during Madonna College commencement ceremonies Saturday at Ford Auditorium.

Seniors

Housing project is good step

SOMETIME NEXT SPRING or summer, the first residents of a subsidized senior citizen complex will unpack their bags and settle into their new home.

And that will represent a major accomplishment for Canton Township.

Gaining the approval for the 118-unit apartment complex and finally having the federal subsidy come through for Canton Place shows what a dedicated effort will do to accomplish a much-needed goal.

A number of elected officials and area residents fought long and hard for the federally funded project and can share in the sense of accomplishment when the facility opens.

This does not represent a solution to the senior housing problem. More of these facilities will be needed in the years ahead.

THE APPROVAL of Canton Place is a good first step to serve this ever-expanding portion of our population.

But this does not represent a solution to the senior housing problem. More of these facilities will be needed in the years ahead.

The U.S. Census Bureau estimates the population 85 and older will increase from 2.7 million in 1985 to 16 million by 2050.

Locally, 1986 figures show Canton has 2,457 seniors. And those in need of specialized residential services have very few options from which to choose.

One option is Carriage Park, a privately developed senior housing project, planned for the east side of Canton Center south of Ford.

Already, hundreds of people have requested places in Canton Place even though the project is not even in the ground yet.

Canton's seniors lobbied hard for this project. More than 10 years ago, residents circulated a petition seeking this type of facility.

BUT GOING from the petition to construction has been a long process.

Back in 1984, the township's application was rejected even though it was rated a second priority. The Department of Housing and Urban Development passed over Canton's request and selected others of lower priority.

Then, one year later, Canton received word it would receive money for a scaled-back version of the project. Back then, the project was targeted for completion in late 1986 or early 1987.

However, the project was delayed and delayed until word came this year that everything was settled and construction should begin late this summer or early fall.

The complex, on the southwest side of Ford Road between Sheldon and Canton Center, will cost more than $5 million.

IT WILL be run by the non-profit group National Church Residences, which operates similar projects throughout the United States.

The group has not accepted any applications and plans to announce later in the construction process exactly how it plans to select residents for Canton Place.

But they have indicated Canton residents will have the first shot at living in the facility.

To be eligible for the complex, people must be 62, handicapped or disabled with certain income restrictions. Residents will pay 30 percent of their income to live in the facility.

While local officials and those supporting the project can sit back pleased with their efforts they must not rest.

The length of time it took to get this project off the ground should remind everyone concerned about senior housing to look far into the future and make plans now to serve this segment of our population.

Academic All-Stars honored

IF THIS IS truly a nation whose educational system is at risk, there are nonetheless plenty of bright young stars who can shine light on a hopeful future.

Many of these leaders of tomorrow are featured in today's newspapers as the Observer & Eccentric presents its fourth annual edition of the area's Academic All-Stars.

The format is different this year because for the first time a six-page special section details the achievements of not only the 15 Academic All-Stars from Observer-area high schools, but also those of 27 highly qualified runners-up. For the first three years, the All-Stars were featured on a regular page of the paper, which left less room for the runners-up.

The format is different but the selection process is the same. The All-Stars are chosen on an objective academic basis that is determined by a combination of grade point averages and national college test scores. The tabulation of scores and selection of All-Stars is done by a committee of area high school principals.

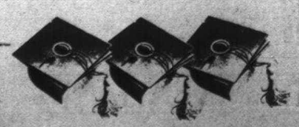
Chairing the committee again was Dr. Robert W. Schramke, principal of Redford Union High School and the man who four years ago came to the Observer & Eccentric newspapers with the idea for Academic All-Stars.

It was an excellent idea. Newspapers, including this one, regularly tout the all-star teams of numerous high school sports. Why not do the same for high school academics? Why not indeed.

The task is difficult because of the huge number of qualified candidates for the list. But it is a rewarding type of difficulty. To see the accomplishments of these young men and women and to read of their bold and confident plans for the future is a call for optimism.

There are still obstacles, to be sure. But the Academic All-Stars is proof of the many motivated students who are greatly assisted by concerned parents and dedicated school systems.

We congratulate them all.



Here are the 1988 Observer All-Stars in order of ranking:

Suzanne Stokes of Bishop Borgess High School, Redford Township; Brendan Carney of Stevenson High School, Livonia; Minal Hajratwala of Plymouth-Canton High School, Canton Township; Heather Burrows of Churchill High School, Livonia; Robert Gibson of Lutheran High School, Westland; Douglas Donaldson, Plymouth Salem High School; Canton Township; Alexander Ballios, Stevenson High School, Livonia; Mary Strimel, Mercy High School, Farmington Hills; Neal Blatt, Harrison High School, Farmington Hills; Peter Hanish, Churchill High School, Livonia; Gregory Baise, Redford Union High School, Redford Township; Anna Lisa Raymundo, Mercy High School, Farmington Hills; Laura Porterfield, Plymouth Salem High School, Canton Township; David Burke, Redford Union High School, Redford Township; and Katherine Kretler, Farmington High School.

Runners-up include: Stanley Abraham, Detroit Catholic Central, Redford Township; Brian Raney, Detroit Catholic Central; Stanley Koss, Thurston High School, Redford Township; James W. Nelson, Wayne Memorial High School, Wayne; Annette Chang, North Farmington High School, Farmington Hills; Catherine Cloutier, St. Agatha High School, Redford Township; Donna Dorr, Garden City High School, Garden City; Craig Draheim, Garden City High School; Daniel Ford, John Glenn High School, Westland; Pamela G. Columnist will miss other side of Brooks

Steve Barnaby

It's not always easy to write critical things about a public official who you think is an all right person.

SITTING AT the editor's desk and reading letters has got to be one of the better parts of the job.

The letters can make you smile, laugh and sometimes cry. But they almost always are interesting and worth the time reading. Frankly, I appreciate letters even more than phone calls. They demonstrate that someone cares enough to take the time to write — a rapidly diminishing skill. Both, I'm talking about — writing and taking the time.

I want to share a letter with you today that made me laugh.

You might already have read it in our letters to the editor's section. It was a response from outgoing Oakland County prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

In recent weeks the Observer & Eccentric ran a less-than-flattering farewell editorial about the flamboyant prosecutor who has decided to go into private practice after his many years as an elected official.

NEEDLESS TO say, Patterson has a lot of supporters in Oakland County, having been re-elected several times. And our mailbox reflected that support with some venomous attacks on our editorial view and equally ardent support of Patterson.

I was particularly interested in reading these letters because I had a hand in sculpting the editorial. We have a group here at the Observer & Eccentric that spends time researching issues and discussing editorial stands.

We do a lot of debating after which someone who feels very strongly about the subject at hand is assigned to actually write the piece. I felt strongly about the Patterson years, so the onus fell on me.

Patterson responded immediately. And that response shows a side of the man a lot of folks don't know because of his militant public persona.

It went like this: "Based upon your recent editorial, can I assume that I won't be doing your legal work come January 1, 1989? Sincerely, L. Brooks Patterson"

SHORT AND sweet. But I loved every word. It's a letter I will keep among the collection of letters I enjoy the most.

It shows the private side of Brooks Patterson, the side I'll miss. It shows the wit and restraint under fire it takes to be a public official. For years now, I've done a lot of Brooks bashing. But it's only his public performance that has been noted, not his private personality.

Years ago I adopted the code that a public person's private life was their own, and I wouldn't criticize someone because of a personal quirk or idiosyncracy. Obviously lots of journalists don't agree. But that's my code.

It's not always easy to write critical things about a public official who you think is an all right person. And I'm sure it's even tougher for public officials to read the criticism about themselves.

In all these years, Patterson, on the occasions that we bumped into one another, would always just smile, maybe slip a crack or two in to make you smile, just enough to make you feel comfortable. Then he would go on to discuss some other issue.

That's the private side of Brooks Patterson, the side I've always liked and appreciated.

I just thought you ought to know.

Privately run jails are not the solution

To the editor:

Pending legislation to authorize the construction and operation of private jails is a simplistic and ill-conceived answer to the very real problem of maintaining adequate space to house criminals.

Assertions to the contrary, the experience of privately run jails and prisons elsewhere indicates a variety of problems, which have led other states to discourage privately run jails.

Consider this sample of articles which have appeared in the New York Times within the past three years:

- "Judge's Order Removes Inmates from a Bankrupt Private Prison"
- "Privately Operated Prison in Tennessee Reports $200,000 in Costs Overrun"
- "Experts Foresee Adverse Effects from Private Control of Prisons"
- "Private Prison Operators: The Benefits Promised are Dubious"
- "Curb on Private Jails Voted by Pennsylvania Lawmakers"

In addition, it is an absolute fallacy that private jails would somehow imprison only "low-risk" criminals. As Wayne County Circuit Chief Judge Richard Kaufman has recently written: "As many of us involved in the criminal justice system know, today's misdemeanant is either tomorrow's or more likely, yesterday's felon."

Also we can expect our local governments to be sued into submission for the mistakes made by the private operators.

A recent study in the Journal of Security Administration states the point: "This industry will give the law an opportunity to demonstrate the classic meaning of negligence. It will showcase private corporations trapped in a foreign territory, prison control . . . If the states do not know the answers to prison problems, how does private industry solve what has perplexed many experts before them?"

Further, what good is a reimbursement (hold-harmless) guarantee given to our local governments by a private company that goes bankrupt?

Everyone supports the need for more jail space. But let's let our elected officials do the jobs they were elected to do and keep private profiteers out of their way.

Strip malls are a problem

To the editor:

I would like to address a topic which I feel is becoming a problem here in Canton, and which to my knowledge has not been addressed as of yet. The problem — strip malls. They have fast become a popular alternative to individual businesses within the last five to 10 years, and their growth has increased greatly.

I do not cast out altogether their advantage to shoppers, who can purchase many needs in one general location. But, to be frank, there are just too many under construction or already existing whose lease space is not presently filled and probably never will be.

Therefore, we in Canton have too many strip malls that house only a few stores and continue to stand vacant for sometimes more than a year. So my question is: Why do developers continue to build these with such fervor when they're not even needed?

To further justify my point, what is showing up in these malls are video rental shops, beauty salons, and coney islands. How many establishments of this sort do we really need within our boundaries? Definitely not as many as we have now.

I recommend we bring in, and think we are highly in need of, nice sit-down restaurants and larger stores. Such businesses as these would be certain to attract greater numbers of customers as well as help make Canton a more inviting and thriving community.

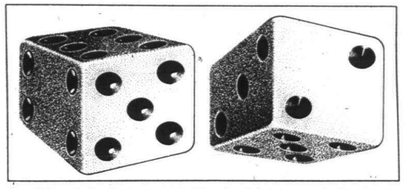
Stories flow like money in Atlantic City



Gambling. Is it a lucky proposition for this area or do the cons outweigh the pros? A special commission will make its recommendation on the gambling issue May 15.

Carol Azizian

GUILT.

Pure unadulterated guilt, the Armenian Orthodox variety, the "I came to this country and worked 16 hours a day, six days a week, to support you kids just so you could throw your money away?" type of super ego.

It haunted me through the late 1960s, when I had an uncontrollable urge to spend my entire allowance on Beatles records and tie-dyed clothes, through the 1970s and '80s when I discovered unlimited pleasure in using charge cards and freely wrote checks to nearly every charity that sent me a plea in the mail.

So when I tell you it was guilt that prevented me from tossing my last quarter in the slot machine in Atlantic City, N.J., the odds are you'll have no trouble believing me.

I traveled there on one of those $99 junkets, the kind where you get up hours before dawn and come home hours after sunset.

MY VISIT followed closely on the heels of Mayor Coleman Young's Detroit Casino Gaming Study Commission.

They discovered the pros — more money for the state, higher property values, more conventions — and the cons — more alcoholism, more prostitution, a negative city image. On May 15, they'll give the mayor their recommendation.

An organization called Citizens for Detroit's Future has gathered enough petitions to hold an Aug. 2 referendum, which will ask whether casinos should be built anywhere in the city, including Belle Isle.

"I prefer Belle Isle because you can control who can get to it," a West Bloomfield attorney told me before boarding his plane.

(Patrick Meehan, the chief backer of casino gambling on Belle Isle, realized the idea is a long shot and backed out of the deal.)

"I think it's here to stay," the attorney continued. "People want to gamble. If we don't have it here, they'll have it in Chicago. Why shouldn't we benefit from it?

"Crime? It can't be any worse than what we've already got."

This attorney, by the way, isn't a gamblin' man.

"I've never gambled. It doesn't interest me. I'm going to Atlantic City for a stag party. My friend's getting married. I'll probably walk the boardwalk, have dinner, relax."

A GROUP of women, in color-coordinated outfits and jewelry, isn't worried about sacrificing a few hundred to the casino gods.

"We gamble just for fun," stresses Lillian Obad of Farmington Hills. "We have a limit."

She'd rather spend that limited amount in Atlantic City or Las Vegas than Detroit.

"Anywhere but Detroit," Obad says. "If we have it here, it will (attract) the people who can't afford to go. I don't think it will create more jobs. The casinos will bring in their own dealers.

"If they really want casinos here, they should be private clubs, like those in Europe, where people pay dues."

I've never been to Europe. But I've been to Atlantic City and Las Vegas. I imagine casinos are classier in Europe.

In this noisy, crowded Atlantic City casino, Steve, my photographer/friend, wants to try his luck at the slots. I'm game.

NO SIGNS of guilt yet. Whew! I'll just play a few quarters and see what happens. After all, the travel agency gave us $25 to blow on gambling, a bonus with the junket.

I'm winning a few here and there. Wow! There's a bunch of those silver things streaming down like bullets.

Darn. Not my machine. Steve wins $20. I end up with about $23. Not bad.

Let's try something with higher stakes.

Guilt demons: "Remember that expensive dress you bought before your vacation to California? Who's gonna pay for it, huh? And how about that Mother's Day present you have to buy? And, don't forget, there's a child in Thailand who needs your $21 support check this month . . ."

It's research, OK, just research.

"Hey, Steve, I think I'll sit this one out, you play."

Steve was like a regular card shark. Seven or eight black jacks in a matter of 30 minutes.

"I haven't had a black jack all day," complains the woman sitting next to him. "I come here two or three times a week. Win some. Lose some. My husband plays craps. Just won three grand last week. That's the game to play."

IT WAS EITHER his common sense or my nagging that drove Steve away from the table as soon as he had won about $50. We split the winnings (what a guy!).

During dinner at a high class Italian restaurant, a waitress tells us she "hates" casino gambling. Most of the employees are from out of town, not New Jersey, she claims.

People fall into traps, too, she adds. Her cousin, a cocktail waitress at a casino — she was married and had a couple of kids — fell in love with a high roller and left her husband.

On the plane, we hear a rumor about a woman who won $3,000 and told her husband she was staying another day. Watch out for those high rollers, lady.

The West Bloomfield attorney — the non-gambler — lost a couple hundred in an hour, then walked the boardwalk three times. An intoxicated man claimed he dropped $15,000. Obad came out ahead.

I came out ahead, too, thanks to my Armenian Orthodox super ego and a lucky photographer/friend.

Court checks tug of war in government

Tim Richard

TRUE OR FALSE: The U.S. Constitution provides for three levels of government — federal, state and local.

False is the correct answer, which may surprise you. The Constitution recognizes only federal and state governments.

Local governments are creatures of the state, deriving their powers either from state laws or state-granted charters. But American tradition recognizes and honors "grass roots" government.

THE CONSTANT tug of war between the state and its creatures bothers legislators all the time.

Ann Arbor, Southfield and Detroit have actively considered rent control ordinances in response to local problems. Ann Arbor's proposed ordinance even went to the ballot last month and was trounced by something like 2-1.

The state Senate passed a bill prohibiting such local activity, but the House sat on it in order to await the Ann Arbor outcome.

Conventional wisdom holds, correctly, that price controls don't work. They didn't work for the Romans in 301 A.D. when the edict of Diocletian placed price ceilings on 900 commodities, 130 grades of labor and many freight rates. They didn't work for President Nixon in 1971.

An economy is too complicated, the methods of getting around price controls too diverse, the stifling effect on trade too onerous for controls to last long. Prohibit price controls and forget them — that likely will be the answer.

CITIES ALSO can be laboratories of experiment from which the state can learn.

Case, in point: anti-party ordinances aimed at curbing teen drinking in homes and motels. Farmington Hills in 1985 was first in line to attempt the ban. A whole swarm of cities followed.

The ordinance had its shortcomings. Officials in Farmington Hills and in little Saline, south of Ann Arbor, found kids would meander outside the municipal boundary for a beer blast. The ordinance applied only to the city limits. Saline appealed to surrounding townships to pass similar ordinances, but the townships declined.

Last week the Senate Judiciary Committee reported out a bill making it a violation of state law for anyone 17 or older to serve alcohol or drugs to a minor. The bill is likely to sail through both houses, even though some townships around Saline don't want it.

Such is the nature of the parent-creature relationship.

THERE IS A classic case where the Michigan Legislature did go too far in regulating one of its creatures, the city of Detroit.

In 1871 the Legislature passed a law replacing the city's own board of water and sewer commissioners with a public works board picked by the Legislature. Justice Thomas M. Cooley, for whom a law school has since been named, roared down from the Supreme Court bench:

". . . the question, broadly and nakedly stated, can be nothing short of this: whether local self-government in this state is or is not a mere privilege concurred by the legislature in its discretion, and which may be withdrawn at any time at pleasure? . . . I can conceive of no argument in support of the legislative authority which will stop short of this plenary and sovereign right."

And so saying, Cooley wrote an opinion declaring the state law unconstitutional.

The moral of the story is that, although the state is the parent and local government is the child, the Supreme Court will prevent child abuse.

Spring fashions take center stage

PLYMOUTH Business and Professional Women members and guests recently combined an evening of fun with a show of support for a worthy cause.

Plymouth BPW members presented their "Spring Fling" fashion show the evening of Monday, April 25.

Proceeds from the event, held at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, go to the Plymouth BPW scholarship and education fund.

Models for the spring fashion show were Plymouth BPW members; member Barbara Pedersen was the fashion commentator for the evening.

Fashions for the "Spring Fling" were provided by Plymouth-area stores.

"We've been working on it for months," said Barbara Yorch, co-chairwoman for the "Spring Fling" with Marty Maxwell. "A lot of work goes into it."

It isn't difficult to recruit Plymouth BPW members who are willing to be models for the fashion show, Yorch said.

"No, they love it." Some of this year's models were first-time participants, while others had modeled in previous BPW fashion shows.

STAGE FRIGHT wasn't much of a problem for the models, said Yorch, who was one of the models for the "Spring Fling" event and has modeled in previous BPW fashion shows.

"We had two good rehearsals, so it wasn't so bad."

Survey finds interest in latchkey services

By Julie Brown
staff writer

A recent survey conducted by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools revealed a need for latchkey services for elementary school children.

"I think the survey proved there is a need," said Larry Masteller, director of Plymouth-Canton Community Education. "It's a good alternative for the kids.

"As a parent, you enjoy knowing where your kids are and what they're up to."

"Latchkey" refers to before- and after-school child care services. The self-supporting service would be for elementary school children.

The survey was distributed to parents of elementary school students. Completed forms were returned to individual elementary schools.

"I think we got a fairly good response," Masteller said.

Survey results include a rank order indicating which elementary schools in the district are most in need of the service.

THE SURVEY showed Eriksson Elementary School had the greatest number of students needing the service, with 129. Hulsing Elementary School was second in that category, with 125 students shown as needing the service.

For families needing the service, Hulsing was tops, with 83 families, followed by Eriksson, with 82 families.

In the survey, parents were asked if they need such a service. Among those responding, 631 indicated they would; 639 said they would not.

The survey asked about:

- The number of children needing the service and their ages;
- What days of the week care is needed;
- For what session(s) care is needed (before or after school, with drop-off and pick-up times indicated);
- If they would use latchkey services if a program were available in a school location and at an affordable price;
- If they would pay $1.75 per hour with a minimum charge of $2.50 per day for latchkey services;
- If they would prepay services a month in advance, based on a predetermined contract and monthly schedule.

THE MINIMUM fees and hourly rate are uncertain, Masteller said.

"For some time, we've toyed with the notion." It's been at least four years since he and other administrators visited the Utica Community Schools to check on that latchkey program.

"We looked at that." Masteller also has looked at programs offered in other area school districts. In the Plymouth-Canton district, the possibility of offering a latchkey program has been discussed with elementary school principals.

Lack of space has been a major concern in the Plymouth-Canton district, Masteller said.

"You have to have space to bring in equipment and have some storage. Obviously, that was our number one concern."

The added responsibility of running a latchkey program was also a concern.

District administrators are looking at the possibility of running a pilot program at a couple of elementary schools in the district next year, he said, to "see how it goes from there. That's about where we are now."

Students honored for achievement

Winners of the 1988 Book Bowl, sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and the Canton Public Library, have been announced.

The winning team, from Allen Elementary School, includes Nita Bharti, Greg Wu, Denise Riley and Maria Grainger.

The runner-up team, from Isbister Elementary School, includes Melinda Sofen, Phil Mitchell, Sadra Ross and Keri Forbes.

The Book Bowl was for students in fourth and fifth grades. Students chose books to read from among 25 titles selected by school media specialists and a Canton Public Library representative.

"They read as many of the 25 books as they want to, as they can," said Judy Teachworth, department head for children's services at the Canton Public Library.

Teams from 12 Plymouth-Canton elementary schools participated in the eighth annual Book Bowl.

STUDENTS STARTED their reading during Children's Book Week in October and continued to read through National Library Week in April.

Teams participated in the event in the elementary schools. Winning team members then came together during the Book Bowl, which included semifinals and finals.

Book Bowl participants were required to answer questions about the books they'd read, Teachworth said.

Goals of the Book Bowl are:

- To motivate students to read;
- To expose students to a variety of good literature;
- To encourage students to improve their reading comprehension skills;
- To challenge students to retain facts when reading.

"It also gives recognition to the children who read," Teachworth said. "I think it does encourage others to join in too."

Survey covers latchkey care

If the latchkey program operates in 1988-89, it wouldn't necessarily be based at the elementary schools showing the highest need in the survey, Masteller said.

"If it's still a go situation, then we'll hopefully make a decision by some time next month."

'I think the survey proved there is a need. It's a good alternative for the kids.'
— Larry Masteller

UNCERTAINTY ABOUT the school district's finances is a factor. The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education expects to adopt a 1988-89 budget on May 31 with spending cuts of $4.3 million.

A Headlee override proposal — asking voters to allow the district to levy property taxes at the authorized rate of $37 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation for operations — will appear on the June 13 ballot. State equalized valuation represents half of market value.

District voters have turned down two Headlee override attempts and a millage increase proposal since February 1987. A "yes" vote on the Headlee override probably will mean cuts, although those cuts would be smaller.

"It's still not a definite by any means," Masteller said of the latchkey program.

The details of what kinds of programs would be offered haven't been determined yet. Other school districts that offer latchkey services include a variety of leisure-type activities for youngsters, Masteller said.

"They don't just treat it as a baby-sitting service," he added.

Activities could include outdoor/gym activities, classroom projects in arts and crafts, and others.

"It depends on what the resources are and what's available."

Ideally, the service would be offered at children's grade schools. If that's not possible, the service could be offered at centralized locations, Masteller said. Busing students to the latchkey site would then become a concern.

"So I don't know how practical that is," he said, adding that would involve more details and expenses for parents. "That's more complicated to deal with, but that is an option."

Masteller received a small number of responses from people opposed to the idea of latchkey services. A few people believed schools shouldn't be involved in such a program; some believed children belong at home with their mothers during their free time.

"It was a very small minority," he said.

Seven Things A LASER CAN & CAN'T DO FOR YOUR EYES

A laser can't remove cataracts. But laser beams can be used to clear up hazy vision after a cataract has been removed.

A laser can't permanently cure the common form of glaucoma. Even though laser beams can open clogged fluid drainage channels within the eyes, regular eye examinations are required to make sure that abnormal fluid pressure within the eyes does not reoccur and cause damage to the optic nerve.

A laser can't replace the need for eye medications. Some adults falsely believe that since they underwent laser treatment they don't have to take their eyedrops anymore. While laser treatment may eliminate the need for glaucoma controlling medicines, most of the time laser treatment only reduces the need for eyedrops.

A laser can perform an eye operation without surgery. In laser eye surgery no instruments touch the eyes. There is less trauma to the eyes and the eyes heal faster.

A laser can be used to delay or prevent loss of vision from diabetes. Weakened blood vessels on the retina at the back of the eyes can be sealed closed with a laser beam.

A laser cannot cure or help most cases of Aging Retinal Disease. Once loss of vision has occurred from this eye malady, it usually cannot be reversed. Visual loss is permanent. In 15% of cases, if detected in time, rapidly progressing blood vessels which threaten to grow over the visual center of the eyes are treated with a laser beam. The result is a delay or prevention in the loss of sight.

Laser can be used to remove eyelid tumors, and open fluid channels in the iris of the eye when acute glaucoma occurs.

Oh, here is one important last thing that a laser can do — save you money. There is no hospitalization or anesthesia required.

Now here is one thing you can do. Call our eye center today for an appointment. Good vision is worth protecting.

Medicare can help cover expenses

Nora Anderson
Carol Munsell

One of the first questions facing a patient and family, when someone is terminally ill, is how to pay for the escalating expenses that they had incurred since the beginning of the illness.

Recognizing that many terminally ill patients are 65 years of age and older, since November 1983, the Medicare (Part A) hospital insurance program has included hospice care as a benefit.

This means that a terminally ill patient can continue to live in their own home, or the home of a family member or friend, and receive a full scope of medical, nursing and supportive services.

As we discussed last month, hospice is a concept of care for terminally ill patients and their families which places an emphasis on palliative care (the relief of pain and other distressing symptoms) related to the illness.

Covered under Hospice Medicare is physician services, nursing services, medical appliances and supplies (including medication for the symptom and pain relief related to the terminal illness), home health aid, physical, occupational and speech therapy, medical social services and bereavement counseling.

EIGHTY PERCENT of the care must be done in the home and only 20 percent of the aggregate can be done in an inpatient facility. There is no deductibles or copayments except for limited cost sharing for drugs or biologicals for pain relief and symptom management and for inpatient respite care in some programs.

To qualify for hospice Medicare benefits:

(1) The patient must be eligible for Medicare (Part A) hospital insurance.

(2) The attending physician and/or hospice medical director certify that the patient is terminally ill with a prognosis of six months or less.

(3) The patient signs a statement, choosing hospice care instead of standard Medicare benefits.

(4) The patient receives care from a federally funded Medicare certified hospice program.

Hospice services can be provided by a public, private or non-profit organization that is primarily furnishing care to terminally ill people and their families.

The organization must be certified by Medicare to provide hospice services, even if it is already approved by Medicare to provide other kinds of health services.

A patient can receive hospice care for two periods of 90 days each and one 30-day period for a lifetime maximum of 120 days. The patient may revoke the hospice benefit once during each of the periods and resume standard hospital and medical benefits.

IF CANCELLATION is made before the end of a hospice period, any days left in that period are forfeited, but the patient is eligible for any remaining hospice periods. A patient can change from one hospice program to another once during each period without canceling the hospice care.

If the patient needs services after the 210 days in the benefit period, the hospice must continue to provide care unless the patient no longer wants hospice services.

The four levels of care covered under Medicare include routine home care, continuous home care, inpatient pain and symptom control and inpatient respite care. The Health Care Financing Administration allows a separate rate for each of the services, based on the location of each hospice.

Medicaid hospice is a covered benefit for individuals who presently qualify for Medicaid. The application procedure is the same as for Medicare hospice.

For individuals, who are covered by Blue Cross/Blue Shield, the same benefits as Medicare are offered. However, each individual must check their particular policy to ascertain to what extent the hospice benefit is offered. Policies vary according to the benefits available and/or chosen.

WITH THE growing awareness of the hospice concept of care, hospice benefits are offered by many third-party payers. But again, to be an informed consumer, each person must check with their individual carrier specifically regarding in-home hospice care.

Be aware that while hospice is not a new concept, you may need to inform your insurance carrier, if in truth this benefit is not addressed in your policy.

Many hospice programs offer their services on an ability to pay schedule, including those without an ability to pay, which is why many programs rely heavily on gifts, memorials, donations and fund-raising efforts.

Nora J. Anderson is executive director and Carol Munsell is volunteer coordinator for Hospice Services of Western Wayne County. For more information, about hospice care, call 522-4244.

Give her a Mother's Day gift close to her heart!
Show mom how much you care this Mother's Day with a heart-wise gift: a blood cholesterol test. Having her cholesterol level tested is the first step toward ensuring a healthier heart.
What is cholesterol?
Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in your body tissues and blood. Significant amounts of it come from the foods you eat, and the rest is produced by your body. High total cholesterol levels can lead to heart disease and heart attacks—and these high levels tend to run in families.
Cholesterol tests
Blood cholesterol tests are available during May and June at McAuley Urgent Care in Canton. The test takes just five minutes and the cost is only $5 ($4 with this ad). Nutritionists and other health professionals from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor will be on hand to give you suggestions for becoming "heart healthy."
A Mother's Day gift
Bring mom in for a cholesterol test—and have yours checked, too. And as our way of saying Happy Mother's Day, all moms get a free cholesterol test on Saturday, May 7.

moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

Mom doesn't have any easy job today

A mother is a woman who, one Sunday in May, is presented with a ruffled blouse. Or perfume. Or flowers. Or breakfast in bed — A phone call anyway. Proclamations read, "Mothers remain the heart of the American Family."

What else are they? Sometimes, as far as their children are concerned, they are the only game in town. Nearly 20 percent of all American households are maintained by women only. Married or single, more than half of those with children under 18 work — and, contrary to legend, they work simply because they need the money.

Many of them are mothers by choice; others are not. Some have a talent for child raising; others don't. But those who do everything right may turn out ungrateful children, while those who do everything wrong may be rewarded with jewels.

I believe that every woman holding her newborn baby makes a silent vow, "This will be a perfect child and I'm going to be a perfect mother." Sooner or later, she's faced with the fact that she hasn't quite earned the gold medal, the "E" for excellence.

The moment of truth may come the first time her 5-year-old howls, "You're a mean mommy. I hate you." It may come when a teenage daughter ends an argument with a furious, "Well mom, I certainly don't want to be like you!" Or it may come at the end of a long day when a hard-pressed mother realizes that, despite all her good intentions, she has been irritable and impatient once again.

IT'S NOT easy being a mother. Depending on the decade, mothers are told to consult the experts or follow their instincts; to show their feelings or to conceal them; to demonstrate love by sacrifice, or to concentrate on their own growth and development.

No matter which route a mother chooses, she is never quite sure the other wouldn't have done better.

Mother's Day reminds us of fundamental truths. Let us reaffirm our respect for the job of mothering. In our largely success-oriented culture, motherhood is sometimes made to seem less important — at any rate, less impressive — than running a corporation or practicing law or engaging in research. But no job is more demanding, or creative, or ultimately worthwhile than nurturing a healthy, self-actualizing child.

The second truth is that a good mother is good on her own terms, not anybody else's. If you love baking bread and hooking rugs, it should not matter that Mrs. Smith next door has a professional career.

If you like the feeling of being in the world, you have a right to enjoyment that uses your best talents — you shouldn't feel guilty about serving store-bought cookies. The more you do what makes you happy and fulfilled, the better the chances that you'll be a successful mother.

There is only one thing a mother can ever know for sure, and that is that her children will talk about her all their lives. "My mother," they'll say, "was a kind woman who . . ."

United Methodist Church works on identity crisis

By By George W. Cornell
AP Newsfeatures

United Methodists worked at their governing conference this past weekend toward sharpening up their image.

It was a sensitive, doctrine-shaping process that would not be settled until later in the meeting, but a legislative committee grappled with the phraseology.

Pressing the need for the new, doctrinal summation, the Rev. William Quick of Detroit said:

"The crisis in our church is an identity crisis. We don't know who we are. In our attempt to be all things to all people, we have lost our moorings in the Wesleyan tradition."

He referred to Methodist founder John Wesley, an energetic, 18th century British Anglican priest who fired the movement with discipline, spirit-filled dynamism and concern for neglected working classes.

But with the U.S. denomination now more than 200 years old, with social complexities magnified and with a diversified membership of about 10 million, concern has grown that the church's distinguishing features have paled.

In an attempt to define its character more firmly, a new doctrinal summary was being developed for consideration at the 11-day conference held in St. Louis.

Bishops strongly support the firmer platform, as voiced in an opening, joint episcopal address delivered by Bishop Jack M. Tuell of Los Angeles.

HITTING AT the emphasis on pluralism in the church's present doctrinal statement, he said, "There is no evangelistic appeal to join a group whose principle identifying mark is that everyone disagrees with everyone else."

He partly blamed that factor for the church's loss of about 2 million members in the last 22 years — a slide it is trying to reverse with greater stress on evangelism.

The proposed new doctrinal summary would displace an accent on variety, emphasizing unifying elements, mainly Scripture as the "central source for authentic Christian doctrine and witness."

But objections by some that the new statement was overly regimenting prompted a legislative committee to a phrase affirming "theological diversity" to assure room for scholarly inquiry.

MEANWHILE, THE church's bishops last Friday saw "elements of hope and deliverance" in the "disastrous and seemingly hopeless" conflict between Israel and Palestinians.

"Beyond the deaths and destruction of recent months, we see an opportunity emerging — an opportunity for listening generously and for speaking out powerfully," the bishops said.

Without blaming either side for the persisting violence, the bishops said it can't be halted by arms, but by "negotiation and mujual recognition of each for a respective homeland."

Some "form of autonomous partnership is possible for the region," the approximately 100 bishops from across the nation said. They said the solution should include Arab recognition of Israel and Palestinian statehood.

Diverticulitis: an emergency

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

My mother (age 72) lives with me. My reason for writing is to find out more about her most recent health problem. She has diverticulosis that periodically leads to diverticulitis.

Would you please discuss these two conditions in your column?

T.J., Victoria

Dear Miss J.:

Diverticulosis occurs when tiny pouches or hernias form in the bowl. For the most part this condition (which is not a disease) does not have any symptoms.

Diverticulitis, on the other hand, is the inflamation of these pouches. The symptoms of acute diverticulitis are similiar to appendicitis, and emergency medical treatment is needed. Chronic diverticulitis, experienced more often by people your mother's age, presents with symptoms of constipation and periodic gripping abdominal pain. Over time, for some, the wall of the bowel thickens, which can produce a bowel obstruction — also a medical emergency.

Diverticulosis is pretty well a problem of older adults. It is rarely seen in persons under age 35, while one in every 10 persons over age 40 has the condition, and about one in two are affected over age 60. It is unfortunate, but since the condition is so common in the older age group, many diagnose themselves — a practice that is dangerous for any health problem.

To head off diverticulitis, it is important that your mother avoid getting constipated. The best way to do this is to eat a diet that is rich in fiber. Her daily diet should include the recommended daily amount of dietary fiber (30 to 45 grams) — found in fresh fruit, raw vegetables and wheat bran. Generally, laxatives are not recommended for either of these conditions because they are too irritating to the bowel.

Miss J., diverticulosis is something that most people your mother's age learn to live with. So with some help and support from you with her diet, she should do well.

Dear Jo:

All my life I've had low blood pressure. It has stayed at around 90 over 50 for as long as I can remember. My question is: Can low blood pressure be as serious as high blood pressure?

Mr. S.C., Healthy Senior (I Think)

Dear Mr. C.:

Low blood pressure, also known as hypotension, is not in itself a disease. Sometimes, but rarely, it can be a symptom of an underlying medical problem.

Having low blood pressure is something to be proud of. Many people like you, Mr. C., maintain a low blood pressure throughout life and have no ill effects. In fact such blood pressure readings seem to go along with good health and a long life.

Readers can write to Jolayne Farrell at 11 Cynthia Crescent, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4E 1J3.

Back to the 5 & dime

Downtown Rochester's D&C has stood the test of time by continuing to delight shoppers with its inventory of small-ticket items.

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

What with the shrinking value of a buck and the ever increasing competition from chain discount stores, you might think the traditional American dime store was rapidly becoming a thing of the past, soon to be as relegated to fond memory as penny candy and cherry phosphates.

After all, Kresge's, certainly an institution in Detroit, where the first store was built, has been out of business for more than a year now. And what can you buy for a dime, anyway?

But the dime store is doing just fine, thank you, even if it takes a couple of quarters to buy a candy bar at the checkout counter, and despite stiff competition from such chains as K mart, Meijer's, Target, Perry Drugs and Arbor Drugs.

"The dime store is alive and well," said J.F. Carroll, vice president of public affairs for the F.W. Woolworth Co.

Dime stores are often smaller in size now than they were a generation ago to reflect current trends in retailing, but the niche they serve is the same one Frank Woolworth carved out in 1876 when he opened the first dime store in America in Lancaster, Pa. (Actually, it was a nickel store; it wasn't until 1879 that the upper price limit was raised to a dime, a limit that wasn't raised again until 1931, when the company thought it could take a chance and sell some things for as much as 20 cents.)

THERE HAVE been some concessions to modern retailing in the variety store business. Woolworth opened an experimental store in Flint last October called Woolworth Express. At 6,000 square feet it is a third or fourth the size of the traditional store, to better meet rental costs at suburban malls, and has a narrower product mix; universal product codes and laser-scan checkout counters.

It was so successful that another store is planned for Flint and 15 will open nationally before the end of the year. Because of current lease negotiations, Carroll wouldn't say if any Expresses were planned for the Detroit area, but Jeanne Hildebrandt of Livonia Mall said she has just signed a lease for an Express store, which should open by September.

There are 1,140 traditional Woolworths in the U.S., with six more planned for 1988. The company has no intention of sacrificing the traditional stores as its Express stores take off, Carroll said. There are Woolworths in Livonia at the Wonderland Shopping Center and at Plymouth and Evergreen in Detroit.

'A lot of the chains have moved away from the dime store concept, so the market is wide open for us.'
— Alan Barrington

"Woolworth is part of Americana; it's as American as apple pie," said Carroll. "We have a customer base that is so loyal it is unbelievable. . . . You get your money's worth."

Woolworth also reflects the complex system of the current American business trend to divisions, conglomerates and wholly-owned subsidiaries. The dime stores — and company officials stress they love to have them called dime stores — operate as U.S. Woolworth, a division of F.W. Woolworth Co.

Over the last three years, U.S. Woolworth has shown sales increases, with sales of $1.938 billion in 1985, $1.954 billion in 1986 and $2.026 billion in 1987. Carroll refused to divulge net income for the division, though the parent company showed respective net profits in those years of $177 million, $214 million and $251 million.

F.W. Woolworth Co. has 6,799 units in North America, including 1,000 Footlocker stores, 336 Lady Footlockers, 197 Afterthoughts accessory stores, 1,815 Kinney Shoe Stores and 173 Richman Brothers clothing stores.

PAT HOBAR, director of public relations and marketing for the Center Companies, which manages Northland, Eastland, Westland and Southland, says there has been a declining importance of the variety store in the operations at her shopping centers.

"In the beginning, they were a major part of the centers, serving almost as anchors," said Hobar. Some of them were as large as 50,000 square feet, a size that is no longer viable with leasing as expensive as it is today.

Creaky floors greet shopppers

There are different ways to skin a cat, or to keep from being skinned by the relentless fat-cat competition of the national and regional chains.

Woolworth is doing battle with the K marts and Paces and Meijers the modern way, by opening a division known as Woolworth Express, with streamlined product mixes, universal price codes, laser-scan checkout counters and mall locations.

McCrory is doing it with a mix of the old and new. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of a privately held conglomerate but serves a traditional clientele in traditional ways. It bought 76 Kresge stores in 21 states when K mart decided the variety stores that begat the current corporation no longer fit into long-range market strategies.

D&C Stores Inc., a Michigan chain of 53 dime stores — and, yes, you can still buy things there for a nickel or a dime — is thriving on its terms. Like the guy on the TV ads says, they do it the old-fashioned way. What worked for the generation that founded the stores in 1926 still works today. It will, says the grandson of one of the founders, work tomorrow, too.

'We sell a pound of candy, a pack of envelopes. There aren't any big-ticket items in the store. We just nickel and dime 'em all day long.'
— Louis Tisch

STEPPING INTO the D&C store in downtown Rochester is like stepping into the past. Wooden floors creak loudly beneath a painted tin ceiling. Model planes and cars line one wall. Sales clerks call customers by first name. Bulk candy sits there sweet and beckoning behind glass, with metal scoops ready to give you what you need, as much as you need.

But this is no mere museum of nostalgia. This, too, is the way things are working and will continue to work for the Stockbridge-based chain, whose expansion plans include new locations throughout mid-Michigan.

"The chains don't affect our store," said Louis Tisch, manager of the Rochester store, a D&C employee since 1953 and the son of the first person hired by the Dancer brothers when they opened their first three stores, in Romeo, in Mason and Rochester.

"Oh, if one was to park right next door to us, it would hurt us," said Tisch. "But we nickel and dime 'em. We sell a pound of candy, a pack of envelopes. There aren't any big-ticket items in the store. We just nickel and dime 'em all day long.

Editor boosts small business

By Susan Coppa

As the magazine has done for the past two years, the May issue of Michigan Business features this year's "Michigan's Top 100" small businesses. But what won't be shown along with that list is that the magazine's editor, Ronald Garbinski, also has reason to hold his head a bit higher.

Garbinski of Birmingham is being honored as the Michigan Media Advocate of the Year for 1988 by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

In a written statement announcing the award, Raymond L. Harshman, Michigan district director of the SBA, said that Garbinski "has enthusiastically advocated for small business and has worked for greater recognition of the contributions small business makes to Michigan's economy."

The SBA couldn't have found a better cheerleader for the state's majority of employers. A conversation with Garbinski results in nothing less than an emphatic "Say Yes" to the Great Lakes State's commerce.

GARBINSKI'S INTRODUCTION and promotion of the Michigan Private 100, which is tied in with Michigan's Small Business Day in Lansing on May 18, includes extensive coverage in the magazine's following issue.

Dime stores

They've changed to meet times

For example, when K mart closed its Kresge store at Westland last year, the space was carved up for five new stores.

"To compete, now, they had to get the size down," said Hobar.

K mart folded some Kresge stores, particularly those close to K mart outlets, including the outlet at Livonia Mall. The Woolworth Express going in at Livonia Mall will occupy some of the space of the old Kresge's.

Seventy-six Kresges in 21 states were bought by McCrory Five and Ten, which renamed the stores and continues to operate former Kresges at Northland in Southfield and in Wayne on Michigan and in Redford on Grand River.

"There's still a need at the centers for stores that sell sundry items," said Hobar.

McCRORY SHARES a similar background with Woolworth. Both started in Pennsylvania more than 100 years ago. McCrory, headquartered in York, Pa., was founded in 1883. "They may be older than us but we're bigger than them, now," said Alan Barrington, manager of communications.

McCrory is a blend of the old and the new. They have kept the old concept of the variety store and aim to serve the traditional customer in traditional ways, but they have done it in the modern corporate setting.

McCrory is a wholly owned subsidiary of the privately held Rapid American Corp., which also owns Faberge and McGregor Sporting Goods. McCrory has more outlets than U.S. Woolworth, with about 1,300 in 38 states and the District of Columbia, but sales were a bit less last year, at about $1.8 billion, according to Barrington.

"A lot of the chains have moved away from the dime store concept, so the market is wide open for us," said Barrington. The firm has recently opened six stores in New York as well as a store in Oklahoma, one in Ohio and one in Houston. Barrington said lease negotiations are under way for a major expansion in the next year.

"We fill a need that is not being met by most other chains," he said. He said that business had been flat for a couple of years, but sales are up this year. "We have not been real excited until recently. Since the beginning of the calendar year, we have been very happy."

He would not release profit figures.

SPOKESMEN FOR the dime store companies admit that the recent rapid expansion of chains has hurt, but they say that any dramatic damage is limited. Such an influx of competition has been particularly heavy in the Detroit area in the last year.

"The Detroit market has been very positive for a number of years, but we're adversely affected by the Targets and Paces," said Murray, director of U.S. Woolworth's midwest operations in Des Plaines, Ill.

"However, many of our stores are insulated in malls and have not been dramatically affected . . . The old customers come back after an immediate dropoff. We get back our niche."

Chuck Bumpus, vice chairman and controller of the Michigan-based D&C variety stores (see accompanying story) agrees with Murray.

When new chain stores open and send out their flyers, "our customers go once or twice and come back to us," said Bumpus. "It affects us the first year, but our people come back. They (the chains) are new and nice and a novelty, but I think there will always be a place for us."

Said one variety store executive, who asked not to be named, "Let's face it, you go into a Target or you go into a K mart, and what's the difference? What's to make you choose one over the other? We offer people a choice."

Creaky floors greet you

"You know, people are so pleased to find a dime store in town, they come here from Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Oxford, Royal Oak — places where they don't have dime stores."

TERRY KING was proof of that. She had driven in from Lake Orion to pick up a few things. "I'm here because I know all the girls," she said, referring to the sales clerks. "Basically, this is a neighborhood store, isn't it, Alpha?"

Alpha Albertson, the head clerk and a 14-year employee, was stocking a rack two aisles away. "That's right, Terry. The regulars, we call 'em by their first name. And the retirees, they get lonely and come in to shop when they're lonely."

Pat Michrina of Rochester was browsing across from the paint-by-number display. "This is my favorite store in all of Rochester," she said. "Every time I come in here, I find what I'm looking for."

You can get purple zippers for 85 cents, or a quarter pound of candy corns for 40. A bag of just popped popcorn, its smell reaching out across the store and grabbing you by your taste buds, goes for 39 cents. Hula hoops are 99 cents, First Little Golden Books, the kind you read when you were a kid, are 79. There are even glass jars filled with Bazooka gum (5 cents a chew), Tootsie Rools (3 cents) and Super Square Suckers (10 cents). From bathroom tissue to folding chairs to baby's T-shirts to charcoal to the great big box of 64 Crayolas sitting in four neat rows that you always coveted but never had — it's there at D&C.

The one thing you won't see in the store that you might have seen a few years ago is the green carpet they thought would spiffy the place up a bit. The help hated it, the customers hated it, and the wood floors are back in view, talking to you loudly and cheerfully as you move around.

CHUCK BUMPUS is the grandson of Herb Dancer, who founded the stores with his brother, Paul, and Cap Collins. He started working in the company during summers and is now the comptroller and vice chairman.

He said the Rochester store, which is 6,700 square feet, is one of the top 15 revenue producers in the chain. A smaller store (4,100 square feet) on Venoy in Westland "has shown slow, steady growth the last five years."

Slow, cautious growth is his plan for the future, away from the malls and strip centers, and in towns with viable downtowns. "It's tough today for the individual. We've gotten stores in the last couple of years from the mom and pop operations. They can't keep up with buying in the quantity they need. We're large enough we can get purchasing power.

tional Trade Administration, the winner is, again, featured in a summer issue's cover story. This year the award will be presented during the Great Lakes Export Convention May 22-24 in Southfield.

"We're bullish on state economy," he said. "As we diversify, we're going to grow. Not just one area, and not just one section of the state."

At Southfield-based Michigan Business magazine, Garbinski recognizes, and promotes, small business.

"The magazine is really an advocate for small business," he said, "but that doesn't mean we're probusiness.

"Encouraging a platform of business, labor and government encouragement is our editorial mission."

THIS MISSION is narrowly directed to those in control of the state's business "Davids," and not from the local newsstand. The magazine has what Garbinski calls a controlled circulation of approximately 32,000 issues each month. More than 80 percent of the subscribers are chairmen of the board, owners or chief executive officers for state businesses.

Garbinski said that he spends one-third of his time talking with business and government leaders "to get the how and why of Michigan business."

"I travel a lot and served at the governor's conference on small business in February (one of a series of statewide meetings with delegates from throughout Michigan). I sit on board of directors of Society of American Business Editors, so most of my participation comes in presentations to various groups as spokesperson for small business."

EDITOR SINCE 1984, Garbinski came into the publication's fold about six months after the magazine began.

Memories produce legends that defy logic

Dan McCosh

Since I test new cars for a living, I'm vulnerable at any public gathering to the same sort of thing that happens to lawyers and dentists, which is the quick solicitation of free advice.

Not that I'm reluctant to give it, since I don't work on a fee basis anyway. But most people ask after they just bought a new car, not before, which puts me in a spot something like passing judgment on the looks of a new baby daughter — "Um, yeah, that's a great car," or something like that.

The polite dodge is the only safe move in the face of fevered passion. I've come to the conclusion that no other inanimate object is as likely to bring an otherwise rational human being to the edge of heart-thumping emotion as a car, preferably a new car.

BUT EVEN worse is an old car, the one that lives in memory like some old lover. The Car. The one that was solid, dependable, fun, cute . . . loved, even.

With me, the misty eye and faraway look that precedes The Car stories usually starts after I dodged the one on the new car. And more often than not, the car lodged in the deep recesses of warm memory is a Volkswagen Beetle.

Volkswagen stories are full of statements of implied mechanical superiority that mainly leave unanswered questions.

"You know, you could change a VW engine in 20 minutes." Yeah? Why do you have to change a VW engine so often, anyway?

"You could drive them flat out all day long." And never exceed the speed limit?

"It was so strong, if it rolled over, it would roll right back up." Rolled over? And so on.

EARLY VWs were a rolling textbook on unwritten safety legislation, demanded service unheard of since the introduction of the Ford Model B and were so marginal in the basics of heating systems, windshield wipers, headlights and brakes the fixers created a street lore of their own, like the pliers commonly left rusted on the heating duct underneath the car so it could be turned on in the fall, off in the spring.

Regardless, the VW had a capability of ingratiating itself that even today turns strong minds to mush when the memories rush in.

All of which came to mind when yet another "What's a good car?" question came up the other day. It's the kind of question worth billions in national advertising and has spawned such pseudo-scientific studies as the J.D. Power satisfaction index, which finds, not surprisingly, that a car on the market for a year has had less chance to aggravate its owner than one that has been around for a while.

BUT IT'S a different kind of question today. Underlying it isn't the same kind of soulful search for a road companion that once drove me the length of Livernois with $800 in summer job money clutched in my hand.

In fact, this business of looking for reliability and satisfaction prior to purchase sometimes mystifies me. If reliability is the criterion for satisfaction, why the misty-eyed Beetle stories? The legend grew out of an obstinate fondness for the car, a legend that defies logic, but persisted nonetheless.

We may, in fact, have legislated and designed ourselves out to pasture, where generic cars have so little personality any minor flaw emerges as a pea bumping up an otherwise smooth mattress.

I'm not altogether unhappy with the situation. I generally appreciate the ability to drive today's cars for long miles with little maintenance, with far better efficiency than any car I owned in the past. I don't have any time anymore to remove the whole ignition system on a rainy morning and pop it in the oven to dry before I could go off to work, as I once did with a Beetle.

On the other hand, while we are talking cars, let me tell you about my old Triumph. She was bright yellow, and when I first saw her . . .

New type of investment avoids GNMA pitfall

Part II

finances and you
Sid Mittra

In my last column I pointed out that a GNMA is created when a banker puts together a pool of mortgages of the same coupon and maturity.

The disadvantage of such an arrangement is obvious: A significant drop in mortgage interest rates can trigger a wave of refinancing, thereby quickly liquidating a GNMA with a long-term maturity.

In such a case, investors who had counted on long-term interest payments are suddenly forced to reinvest their money at much lower rates.

CMO: An Overview

The problem of a premature liquidation of a GNMA is solved by the marketing of a new type of investment known as collateralized mortgage obligation or CMO. A CMO is a bond floated by a private issuer — an investment bank, thrift or the financing arm of a home builder — using mortgages (both government-backed and otherwise) as collateral.

These bonds have short (2-5 years), intermediate (7-12 years), and long-term (15-20 years), maturities. Like other good-quality bonds, CMOs are generally rated AAA and make principal and interest payments semi-annually. An added attraction of CMOs is that the minimum denomination is just $1,000.

Attractive features of a CMO

A CMO retains the safety, high yields and dependable cash flows of GNMAs but reduces their major drawback. Your CMOs are a lot less likely to dump on you huge amounts of cash to invest just as rates are plummeting.

As mentioned, CMOs are issued with several separate maturity ranges. Each range or group is called a tranche, from the French word for slice.

Mortgage payments initially flow into the first tranche, usually held by institutional investors. Upon completion of principal payments to the first tranche, the second tranche starts receiving principal and so on until all tranches have matured.

In technical terms, since the shorter tranches must be retired first, the longer tranches have a significant degree of call protection. Thus, if you are looking for a safe, dependable flow of income for the long term, you may prefer a longer tranche CMO over a regular pass-through GNMA, which has no call protection at all.

There are drawbacks, too

The major drawback of a CMO is that it is a relatively new instrument and all the bugs haven't yet been worked out. Another disadvantage is that you can't unload a CMO as readily as a treasury bond or a GNMA.

On balance, however, CMOs offer an attractive alternative to GNMA and are worthy of your serious consideration.

Looking can be the key

Every time I visit Manhattan, I gain a renewed sense of the competitive spirit that exists among the city's small business population.

With companies literally situated next to, beneath and on top of one another for miles and miles, the competition is nothing short of fierce.

After talking to several of the city's business proprietors during my stay, I found that many rely on a simple tool to obtain competitive data, a tool that is available to any small business owner regardless of the business.

AND WHAT is this "secret" that can help any new or existing businesses keep abreast of and act on changes regarding competitive activity?

Observation.

It doesn't take a genius to observe successfully how competing businesses operate, but many owners avoid this activity. The reasons include claims that the owners are "too busy" to evaluate competitive activities on their own, or don't want to if they are known by their major competitors.

In this type of situation, a company designate may be used to observe competitive activity instead of nothing being done at all.

WHAT KIND of information can a business owner expect to obtain through observation? A wide range of operational activities going on both inside and outside the company can be monitored.

"When I visit a competitor I think of myself as a roving reporter," says one Troy-based business services consultant. "What I can't see with my own eyes, I find out about through conversations with clients or employees I meet on the premises.

"When I'm not at the company, I'm busy checking through local publications to see when and where they're advertising, what they're saying through advertising and look for other promotional activities they may be pursuing such as seminars or workshops."

BUSINESS OWNERS can obtain additional operational data along these lines. Gaining access to client brochures, price sheets, annual reports or service proposals and contracts are examples.

"It's amazing what people will give you if you just ask for it, especially when the information is generally available to potential customers."

Of course, not all competitors are willing to provide information to current or prospective customers. In this case, the business owner may want to focus additional attention on reviewing printed documents that offer more in the way of competitive company data.

Next week, we will discuss what some of these documents are and how they can be obtained through a variety of independent sources.

Words on film

'Moontrap' is writer's first movie

By Anne Y. Meyers
special writer

'It is contemporary, not set in the far future or anything. It has to do with the space shuttle and astronauts.'
— Tex Ragsdale

A SCREENWRITER'S GOAL is to one day watch his characters come to life on the big screen.

Birmingham writer Tex Ragsdale is experiencing that excitement with the coming release of "Moontrap." The screenplay is his feature film debut, shot mainly in warehouse space in Troy and drawing from Detroit-area talent.

"It's exciting to sit there and hear them speaking your words," says Ragsdale, 44, of a recent preview of some unfinished parts of the film. "It's probably the most thrilling thing I've ever done."

The film is a project concocted by Ragsdale and local producer Robert Dyke of West Bloomfield. The two were childhood friends who lost contact with each other in their high school years.

"WE WENT TO kindergarten together," Ragsdale said. "After 25 years we met again. Bob was making commercials, and I was in advertising.

"We got together and decided to put something together. We kind of worked backwards. We were trying to think of what we could do that would cost little money and use Bob's experience in special effects."

Both men had grown up as fans of 1950s science-fiction movies. Ragsdale's writer's imagination, Dyke's special-effects expertise and a common interest in science-fiction films made the theme of "Moontrap" a natural.

"It is something interesting," says Ragsdale of his new screenplay. "It is contemporary, not set in the far future or anything. It has to do with the space shuttle and astronauts."

For this reason, the screenwriter asks that audiences keep an open mind about his film.

"I ask people not to think of it as a science-fiction movie," he said. "I ask people to come see the movie and give it a chance on its own merits. It's a good adult-interest movie."

RAGSDALE SAYS the film will have as wide an appeal as possible. He expects a PG or PG13 rating.

The screenwriter is optimistic about the film's popularity. "I expect 'Moontrap' to be moderately successful," he said. "Especially among science-fiction fans, which is why we chose the star, Walter Koenig. He is someone that will draw people to the movies with his built-in following."

Koenig is a veteran of the "Star Trek" television series and films. This is his first feature film outside of his identity as Chekov, the Russian, on "Star Trek." "Moonstrap" will be promoted at Trekkie (avid followers of "Star Trek") conventions, further drawing in Koenig's dedicated fans.

"All the people involved are good actors," says Ragsdale of the cast. Bruce Campbell, who co-stars in the Area talents create 'Moontrap'

By Anne Y. Meyers
special writer

"Moontrap" is a combined effort of some of metropolitan Detroit's greatest creative talents. Here, four of them give their impressions of the project.

Producer/Director Bob Dyke, a West Bloomfield resident, has been in commercial production for more than 12 years. His other feature film credits include effects for "Evil Dead II" and the Steven Spielberg production "Harry and the Hendersons."

Among Dyke's responsibilities with "Moontrap" was selecting much of the crew and cast. For this reason, many of those involved in "Moontrap" are acquaintances from the local production of "Evil Dead II."

"I'm very familiar with the talent here in Detroit and confident with those talents," said Dyke. "I wanted to give myself the best insurance I could by using people I knew were good."

"I'M PREJUDICED, but I think 'Moontrap' is great," he said. "We created a good piece of science-fiction entertainment. It's going to be a stretch. We used a limited amount of money, and it looks like it would cost as much as would be expected for this type of film."

Former Birmingham resident Bruce Campbell, now of Van Nuys, Calif., co-stars in the film. Campbell, 30, a veteran of the "Evil Dead" films and several other horror movies, is a producer/actor. "Moontrap" is his first non-horror film and the first where his role is actor only.

"I've known Bob for many years," Campbell said. "I was also comfortable with all the crew members, from the cameramen to grips and gaffers. I knew 90 percent of the people on it. It was an absolute pleasure working on 'Moontrap.'"

Campbell spent seven weeks in town on the filming of the movie, and as an added bonus he was able to enjoy a home atmosphere while staying with his father in Birmingham.

Joseph Loduca, a 32-year-old resident of Birmingham, is no newcomer to creating musical scores for feature films.

"This will be my sixth feature," he said. "We want to avoid all the traditional space-movie cliches."

HIS MOVIE CREDITS include "Evil Dead" and "Evil Dead II," "Crimewave," "Thou Shalt Not Kill . . . Except" and "The Carrier." Loduca also writes music for television and plays in a jazz band.

film, also has a dedicated following, from his horror films.

Ragsdale has written about a dozen screenplays, in his estimate. He doesn't stick to any one genre. Some police stories, some romantic comedies, adventures and a couple of others are science-fiction. Two are under consideration in Hollywood.

" 'MOONTRAP' HAS opened a lot of doors," he said. "We (Dyke and Ragsdale) are talking with the studio about a sequel and are working on another script."

Ragsdale stresses the boost this has been to his career and the great satisfaction it has brought him.

"The satisfaction is having a completed film," he said. "There are a lot of people trying to write movie scripts. I'm one of the few that has already seen their words up on the screen.

"This is the door-opener for other projects and something I'd like to make a career out of."

Detroit-area talents work on sci-fi movie

Emmy for TV," said Loduca, who is nominated for three entries in the original score category.

Loduca said "Moontrap" is an exciting project for him. "It's fun. It's hard work. It's nutty. I just love seeing my music go to pictures."

Acme Special Effects of Mount Clemens moved its office to Troy for the filming of "Moontrap." The company also is a veteran of the "Evil Dead" films, "Thou Shalt Not Kill" and "The Carrier."

Gary Jones, president of Acme, thinks the "Moontrap" alien creatures are like no other space-movie creatures.

"What we tried to do was to make them not look like something we had already seen," he said.

"In 'Moontrap,' we did the eight- to 12-foot-tall mechanical alien robots. We also did the pyrotechnics. We're excited about the movie. We've got a good look on these robots."

"Moontrap" is coming to Detroit-area theaters in late summer.

● MUSICAL HIT

The smash Broadway musical, "Don't Get God Started," currently on a national tour, continues a two-week run through Sunday, May 15, at Detroit's Fisher Theatre. The production is the first gospel musical conceived out of the spiritual beliefs of its creative team (playwright/director Ron Milner, lyricist Marvin Winans and scripture and vocal arranger Ronald Winans). The cast includes multi-gospel Grammy-winners Marvin Winans of the Winans; Vanessa Bell Armstrong; mother and daughter actresses Chip and Kim Fields; and star of the film "School Daze," Giancarlo Esposito.

● ANDY WILLIAMS

THIS YEAR'S REQUIRED READING FOR 1,000,000 COLLEGE GRADUATES

Welcome to Real World 101.
You'd be surprised how many college students go from highlighting textbooks to highlighting the classifieds. The fact is, a staggering number of graduates are unable to secure a career in their field of study.
That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in a crowded job market.
If you're a student, you should seriously consider the Co-op Education Program.
Because after years of studying in college, the last thing you need is another reading assignment.
Co-op Education
You earn a future when you earn a degree.

Mothers honored
Fresh flowers will be presented to women visiting the Kingsley Inn dining room in Bloomfield Hills on Mother's Day. Sunday dinners start at $10.95 and range from seafood to poultry and beef dishes. Sunday brunch is being served from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom. Cost is $14.95 for adults, $7.95 for children 7 and under. For reservations, call 642-0100.

Family style
Dinner will be served family style 2-7 p.m. Mother's Day at Brasserie Duglass in Southfield. Dinner will include prime rib of beef, lamb shanks, broiled whitefish and barbecued turkey, plus accompaniments. Also included is a "cher mere cocktail" (a darling mother's cocktail), consisting of champagne and melon. A glass of sparkling cider with melon will be offered to young people. Dessert will be Duglass' Mama Mia Strawberry Torte. Each mother also will receive a surprise gift from Duglass. Dinner is $25 per person, plus tax and gratuity; children under three feet tall are half-price. For reservations, call 424-9244.

Chocolate tower
Pearl Thouin, manager of the Machus Pastry Shops, spend 55 hours making a 45-inch-tall replica of the Cranbrook Tower, as well as the fountain in the Cranbrook Quadrangle, all in chocolate, for last Sunday's Le Gala de Cuisine at Cranbrook Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills. Thouin's chocolate creations were on display at the dessert table, along with Machus pastries.

For students
Applications are being taken from students in the culinary arts who need scholarship money. The Lark in West Bloomfield awards scholarships using money from the proceeds of its annual Chili Cookoff in the fall. Ten $1,000 scholarships will be awarded. To date, the Lark has awarded $37,000 to culinary arts students. This is more scholarship money than anyone in the state has given to culinary arts, said Patricia Willhite, who coordinates the cookoff. For more information, call the Lark at 661-4466.

Another Olga's
Olga's Kitchen has opened a 3,200-square-foot full-service restaurant at Wonderland Mall in Livonia. The restaurant has a 104-person seating capacity and carry-out service. The restaurant is the second of 10 new company-owned restaurants under development in Michigan.

Wins medals
Mark Kuzma, executive chef at Troy's Somerset Inn, won two gold medal Olympic awards for his cold food display work at the recent International Culinary Salon in Singapore. Chefs from all over the world displayed culinary creations there. Kuzma's medals are on display at Somerset Inn's West End and Crumpets restaurants. The Michigan Culinary Team, of which Kuzma is a member, brought home a total of 14 gold medal and three silver medal Olympic awards.

Soup-Off's best
Lynne Loren of Troy was awarded a trip for two to Chicago for her winning recipe for Cajun Chicken Fantasy in the "Great Detroit Area Soup-Off" sponsored by Wellington's restaurant at the Embassy Suites Hotel-Detroit/Southfield. Second place went to Marie Caruso of Livonia for Marie's Classique French Onion Soup and third place to Mary Coffman of Redford Township for Sausage and Bean Soup. The third-place winning soup was featured on the menu last week, the second-place soup is at Wellington's through Friday, May 6. The first-prize winner's recipe will be served Monday-Friday, May 9-13.

Pasta Poll
Charley's Official Pasta Poll continues through Sunday, May 8, at Charley's restaurants in metropolitan Detroit. Diners voting for favorite pasta dishes so far picked Leonard Linguine, followed by Federico Fettucini and Lido Lasagna. Votes in a Presidental poll at the restaurant show Bush in the lead, followed by Iacocca, then Dukakis.

Oliver's pizza
Arena guests and suiteholders at the Palace of Auburn Hills will be able to order pizza, delivered directly to their seats. The new facility opening in August will offer express pizza delivery by Farmington Hills-based Oliver's Pizza. Orders and deliveries will be made by runners equipped with headphone sets. The pizza franchise was founded by Dominick Oliver in 1980. A 14-year veteran of the pizza franchising industry, he began his own business with Oliver's, a 130-seat restaurant on Detroit's east side. The 21,000-seat Palace of Auburn Hills is the future home of the Detroit Pistons basketball team. The facility expects to host more than 150 events annually including major concerts, family show spectaculars such as circuses and ice shows, and collegiate and professional sporting events.

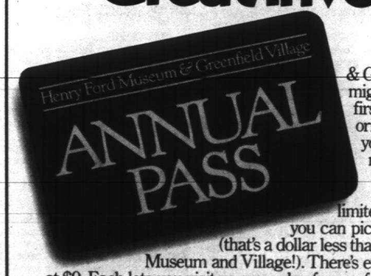
Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Presents Yet Another Great Invention.



The new Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Annual Pass might pale in comparison to the first Model T Ford or Edison's original light bulb. But, we think you'll agree, it's still a pretty nifty invention.
Not to mention a great deal. Because during our special limited time offer, from May 1-31, you can pick up an Annual Pass for $18 (that's a dollar less than one-time admission to the Museum and Village!). There's even a Pass for children priced at $9. Each lets you visit us every day for one full year, stay as long as you want and start saving money on your first visit.
And we guarantee you'll visit the Museum and Village again and again.
After all, there's more to see and do here than ever before. Including a completely new $6 million "Automobile in American Life" exhibition. The authentic Firestone Farm. And Edison's newly restored Menlo Park Lab.
That's in addition to our changing displays and a whole summer of special events.
So start thinking about buying an Annual Pass. And start dialing 271-9363 to order by credit card. Or start the car and head out to Dearborn for the great American museum that's also great fun.
Special Events This Summer:
• Muzzleloaders Festival June 18-19
• Colonial Music & Military Muster July 9-10
• Fire Engine Muster July 23-24
• Motor Muster August 13-14
• Old Car Festival September 10-11

Modern classic 'Harvey' still charms theatergoers

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Harvey" by Mary Chase continue through Sunday, May 15, at Oakland University in Rochester Hills. For ticket information, call the box office at 377-3300.

Wil Love plays a huggable Elwood P. Dowd, a man with impeccable manners, shiny-bright eyes and infectious bonhomie.

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

In an era of barbed Joan Rivers' humor and biting satire, Meadow Brook's winning revival of Mary Chase's open-hearted 1944 classic, "Harvey," comes as sheer comic delight.

In "Harvey," ingenuous eccentric Elwood P. Dowd strikes up warm friendships with everyone he meets, even with such unlikely sorts as phone solicitors and psychiatric nurses trying to lock him up. Dowd likes nothing better than "hoisting a few" with his good buddy, Harvey, an invisible, 6-foot, 3-inch rabbit.

There's the rub. Common sense, not to mention the accumulated wisdom of psychiatric science, says Elwood hallucinates Harvey; therefore Elwood must be "nuts." Irish legend puts one over on the shrinks, in this play, because Harvey is a pooka, the name given a fairy in the shape of an animal who's visible only to people favored by the spirits.

Wil Love plays a huggable Elwood P. Dowd, a man with impeccable manners, shiny-bright eyes and infectious bonhomie. Elwood leaves a trail of chaos in his wake because the world doesn't know quite how to deal with his trusting nature or his attachment to the invisible Harvey.

Elwood's sister, Veta Louise, tries to put him away in the looney bin outside of town because he hangs out with Harvey. She frets that Harvey will be the undoing of her aspirations to become a society hostess, and that he'll thwart her ambitions to marry her daughter, Myrtle Mae, to a suitable young man.

JAYNE HOUDYSHELL plays Veta Louise with a bustling way of walking and with fine command of comic detail. Cheryl Williams, as her daughter Myrtle Mae, imitates her mother's putt-putt walk and her matronly managerial ways. Excellent costumes by Mary Lynn Bonnell complement the cast's fine characterizations.

Director Terrence Kilburn skillfully brings out the idiosyncrasies of the playwright's characters and raises the gentle question whether Elwood's generous, kindly way of being "nuts" may not be so crazy after all.

At the sanitarium where Veta takes Elwood, he acts cool and relaxed; she gets teary and hysterical, so the good doctors mistakenly lock up Veta and let Elwood off to go bar hopping with his bunny friend. As head doctor at the clinic, Joseph Reed turns in an admirable performance as the pompous, yet vulnerable know-it-all psychiatrist.

To the audience's delight, Harvey strikes terror in the doctor's heart, a terror aggravated because the psychiatrist dares not acknowledge the big rabbit and risk being called crazy himself.

Set designer Peter Hicks creates comical pretentiousness in the library of the Dowd family mansion with its busily patterned green wallpaper waging fashionable war against other patterns in the room. The decor of the Dowd home contrasts nicely with the institutional austerity of the sanitarium where Dr. Sanderson (James Anthony) and pretty nurse Kelly (Judi Mann) carry on an on-again, off-again flirtation as they try to cope with the Dowd clan.

Meadow Brook's solid supporting cast includes Jeanne Arnold, Thomas M. Suda, Judy Dery, Roy Dennison and Phillip Locker. And don't forget Harvey. The inimitable rabbit gives a smashing performance.

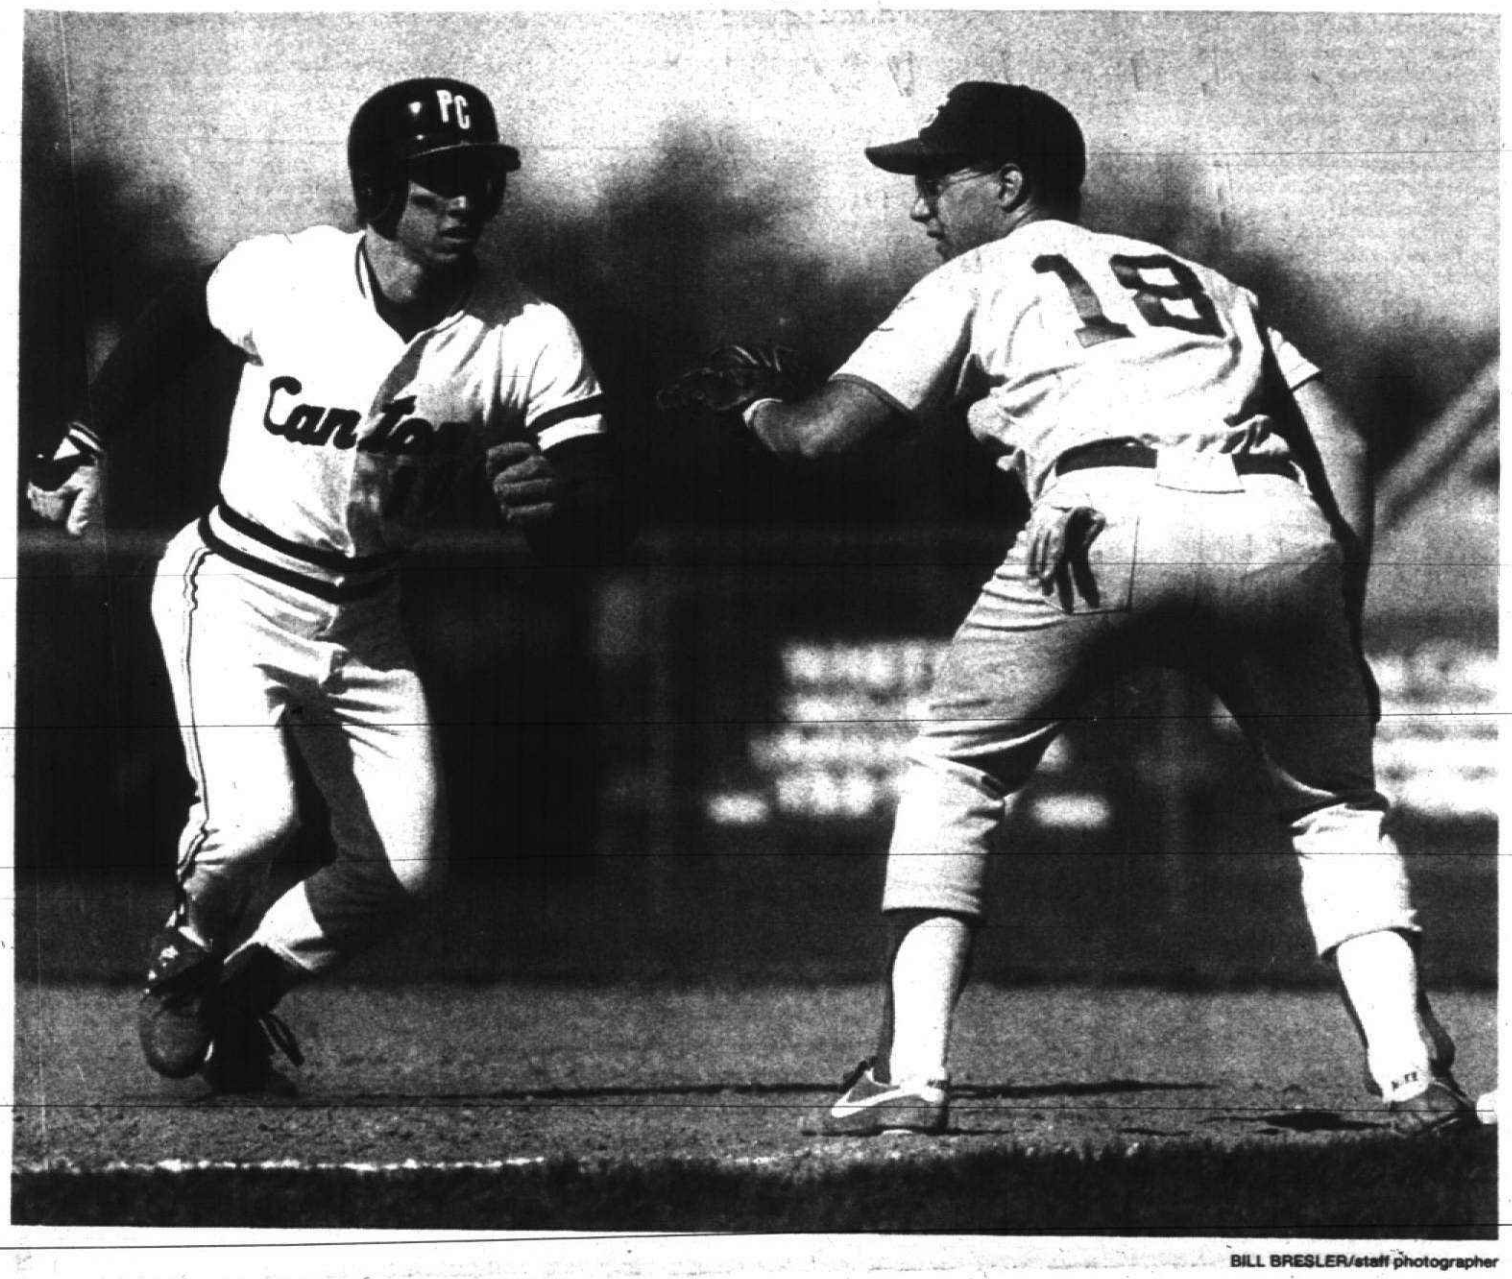
Canton sweeps twinbill from Salem



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Canton's Mike Sulak starts back to first base while Salem's Mike Stout awaits the pick-off throw. Sulak, who was awarded the base after being hit by a pitch, got back safely in the fourth inning. The Chiefs won two from Salem, 4-1 and 4-0.

Browne's double proves decisive

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Scott Browne used his bat to let everyone know he has fully recovered from off-season shoulder surgery Monday.

Plymouth Canton's left fielder, who missed most of the 1987 baseball season after being injured and had surgery last winter, slugged the game-winning hit as the Chiefs downed Plymouth Salem 4-1 in the first game of a doubleheader Monday.

Canton also won the second game 4-0; however, the result doesn't count in the league standings. The Chiefs are 5-2 in the league and 7-2 overall, Salem 5-3 and 5-4.

With the bases loaded and the score tied 1-1 in the opener, Browne drove the ball into left field for a three-run double in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Canton coach Fred Crissey said Browne, who also doubled and scored the team's first run in the second inning, has been pressing too hard lately.

"WE NOT ONLY made some technical adjustments, but we talked about his role and the fact it's a team game and he doesn't have to do it by himself," Crissey said.

"We did a lot of extra work on Saturday, and he's receptive to that. And it's nice to see him come back and have a good day."

While Browne swung the hot bat, teammate and pitcher Chris Kennedy managed to repeatedly avoid serious damage and registered a complete-game victory.

Kennedy, 2-0, held the Rocks to just four hits — the same as allowed by two Salem pitchers — and struck out four. He also walked six and hit two batters.

Kennedy dodged bullets on two occasions after the Rocks loaded the bases. He walked them full with two out in the first inning, though one was an intentional walk to slugger Todd Marion, but he got Erik Sheehan to ground out to first base.

IN THE FOURTH, two walks and John Woodard's bunt single loaded them again with one out. However, Kennedy quickly ended the inning on Steve Woodard's flyout and Mike Stout's tapper back to the mound.

"I thought he pitched real well, but he got himself in a hole all the time," Crissey said. "When we needed a strike or to make a play, he got it for us, and he has to get credit for that."

Salem's coach John Gravlin was disappointed in his team's lack of hitting. Though the Rocks had as many hits, they never came up with the big one like Canton did.

He pointed to the failure to capitalize on the bases-loaded chances, and Salem also threatened in the second and fifth innings.

Steve Woodard's RBI single put the Rocks in front 1-0 in the second, but the runs stopped there. In the fifth, they had two men aboard but couldn't bring them in. Salem left 11 men on base altogether.

Rocks to be pressed for Observerland title

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Plymouth Salem boys track coach Gary Balconi received a phone call Tuesday night from a reporter who wanted his impression of this Saturday's Observerland Relays hosted by Livonia Churchill.

But Balconi, who coached Salem to the Observerland Relays championship last year, asked the first question.

"Is Wayne Memorial coming or not?" queried Balconi.

Yes, they are.

"They just spoiled the meet," Balconi answered with a laugh. "We'll hold onto the title as long as we can, but I don't see any weaknesses on their team."

Wayne is considered a heavy favorite Saturday in the meet that begins at 3 p.m. with the field events, followed by the low and high hurdles at 6:30 and the running finals at 7 p.m.

Westland John Glenn was expected to challenge Wayne for the title, but 12 of coach Rich Gordon's top performers won't be able to compete because of the senior prom.

THAT LEAVES Wayne as the front-runner, with Churchill, Salem and Farmington Harrison expected to give the Zebras the most competition. There are 17 teams entered this year, with the addition of the three Farmington public schools and Plymouth Christian Academy.

Wayne is 5-1 in dual meets this year, losing only to Monroe, 66-64.

The Zebras are especially strong in the high and low hurdlers, where Corey Wilson and Steve Hearndon boast the best Observerland times, respectively. Wayne also has Tony Robertson, Tom Faison, Carlos Horne and Derrick Allen in the sprint events.

In short, for whatever Wayne suffers in the field, it makes up for on the track.

"Once they get on the track, Wayne is tough," Churchill coach Fred Price said. "They're hard to handle. They have enough distance runners and good sprinters."

GORDON ALSO placed the monkey on Wayne coach Joe Grasley's back. With many of his top runners lost to the prom, Gordon is taking a "wait-and-see" approach to Saturday's meet.

WHAT: 16th annual Observerland Boys Track Relays.

WHEN: Saturday, May 7. Field events begin at 3 p.m. followed by 110-meter hurdles and 100 dash preliminaries at 6 p.m. The finals will start at 7 p.m.

WHERE: Churchill High School in Livonia (Newburgh and Joy roads).

WHO: A record 17 participating schools including defending champion Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton, Plymouth Christian, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson, Redford Bishop Borgess, Redford Catholic Central, Redford Union, Farmington, Farmington Harrison, North Farmington, Garden City, Westland John Glenn, Wayne Memorial, Northville and Southfield-Lathrup.

TICKETS: $2 for adults and $1 for students (available at the gate).

ORDER OF EVENTS: Pole vault, shot put, discus, high jump and long jump relays start at 3 p.m.; 110-meter and 100 dash preliminaries start at 6:30 p.m.; followed by 6,400 relay; open 110 hurdles; distance medley; 800 relay; open 1,600 run; 3,200 relay; open 100 dash; sprint medley; shuttle hurdle relay; 400 relay; 1,600 relay.

Foremost of the losses to the prom are sprinters Marcus Lowe and shot putter Jeff Graham (the area's best in the shot put). The Rocket relay teams, including the area's best 3,200-meter team, also will suffer from the prom.

"We would have done real respectable, and probably would have been a big influence in who would have won." Gordon said. "I really think Wayne has four awesome hurdlers. We're going to bring a bunch of young kids and just going to have fun.

"The prom only comes once a year, and the kids already have made a commitment to go. It's hard for a coach to say 'no, you can't go' and end up breaking the kid's and girl's hearts."

WHAT DOES Grasley think of the predictions?

"I have to look at it as a compliment," he said. "The kids will have to respond to the challenge. When you go to a meet such as this one and you're the favorite, that makes it an even bigger challenge.

Though Wayne's strength lies in the sprints, Grasley doesn't think "We'll be embarrassed by our field events."

Wendell Smith is a good reason for that thinking. Smith's high jump of 6-4 is second in Observerland rankings to Churchill's Jason Belaire, who has cleared 6-7.

Price believes Churchill's field events will help determine how successful the Chargers are Saturday. Churchill's Doug Richardson is among the best in both the shot put and discus.

"We need to get points in the field — we can't mess up," said Price. "I'm not exactly sure where we'll get points on the track, so we'll have to score in the field to have a shot at the title."

Salem also expects to win points in the field events, where long jumper Lamar Crayton competes along with Jay Blaylock, the area's best discus thrower.

Harrison which won the Novi Relays last weekend and the Farmington city championship earlier this year, also expects to have some exciting moments.

Harrison has several of Observerland's best performers, led by sprinter Aaron Yaverski and high jumper Brian Soeder.

HARRISON COACH John Schumacher also expects to score well in the 1,600 and 3,200 relays and the shuttle hurdle relay.

Redford Union coach Jim Gibbons said the Panthers have a chance to finish in the upper echelon.

"We'd like to be in the top five or six," he said. "We'll be strong in the field events. We haven't had all our throwers together. John Glenn, Wayne, Salem and throw in Churchill — it's going to be a good meet."

Chargers tip No. 1

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Monday marked a first in girls high school soccer in this state.

On Monday, the statewide coaches poll was released. And, for the first time since such polls have been kept, no Livonia team was among the top 10.

Considering a Livonia-based team has reached the Class A finals every year since the state tournament began (1983), it seemed surprising. But the oversight shouldn't last long, not after Livonia Churchill visited Northville — unbeaten and ranked No. 1 in this week's ranking — Monday and posted a 2-0 victory.

It wasn't a great performance by the Chargers, now 6-2. After dominating the first half, they struggled in the second; their passing and possession-style of play was thwarted by Northville (7-1-2).

But they were good enough. Churchill's defense frustrated the Mustangs throughout, with fullback Rosemary Hally marking Northville's high-scoring left wing, Jenny Sherman, and sweeper Kelly Davis and stopper Andrea Szymanski plugging the middle.

THE CHARGERS also got solid goalkeeping from Monya Servi, who smothered the Mustangs' two best scoring opportunities, both in the first half.

Churchill got the only goal it would need midway through the opening half. Lori Place centered a pass from the wing to Nikki Johnson, whose hard shot was stopped by Northville keeper Kristi Turner. Turner, however, could not control the rebound and Place was in the right place to knock it in for a 1-0 lead.

The Chargers got their insurance goal with just 1:59 remaining. A long free kick carried to the Northville net. Turner let what should have been an easy save slip away and Churchill's Mandy Mase swooped in to tap it in.

Salem saddled with 2-2 tie

There aren't many soccer teams better than Plymouth Salem, but the Rocks, rated No. 2 in the state, have been frustrated several times while attempting to prove their superiority.

Salem, after taking a 2-0 lead, was forced to settle for a 2-2 tie in its game with Livonia Stevenson Monday night.

The Rocks, who beat the Spartans 7-3 last year, dominated play between goals but couldn't capitalize for a greater advantage.

"Last year they all went in," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "We don't seem to get that comfortable lead against the good teams. Of course, they're fired up, too.

"We played brilliant soccer for the first 25 minutes," he added, "but you have to score; you have to put the ball in the net."

Michelle Minton converted a pass from Missy Smith just three minutes into the game, and All-American Jill Estey scored at the 27-minute mark with an assist from Teri King.

Salem, 2-0-1 in the Lakes Division and 5-1-3 overall, dominated the early part of the game and had five near misses in between goals.

The Spartans trailed 2-1 at halftime following a goal by Sue Zatorski, and Stevenson, shutting out the Rocks for the duration, pulled even in the 60th minute of play on a goal by Karen Carney.

In a non-league game played Saturday, Salem blanked Brighton 6-0.

Estey and Minton did all the scoring with three goals apiece, and each had one assist.

Sarah Hayes, King and Rachel Thiet also were given credit for assists.

CANTON 8, HARRISON 0: Jenny Steinhebel and Chris Zawacki scored two goals apiece to pace the Chiefs, who are 7-2 overall and ranked No. 8 in Class A.

Zawacki scored both of hers in the first half as Canton built a 6-0 lead. Renee Rice, Michelle Fortier and Julie Stabnick helped the Chiefs gain control of the game in the opening half.

Steinhebel and Lynne Nichols added second-half goals. Most of the goal scorers also offered assistance to their teammates with Jenny Russell, Stabnick, Fortier, Ayana Nash, Nichols and Zawacki getting assists.

Jen Saul recorded her fifth shutout in goal for Canton.

MERCY 4, GALLAGHER 2: Mercy celebrated its appearance among the state's top 10 soccer teams Monday by winning its seventh straight game.

The Marlins, who broke into the Class A rankings at No. 10, chalked up another victory but needed a second-half rally to down Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher 4-2.

Not allowing the Lancers to get off a shot in the last 40 minutes, Mercy overcame a 2-1 halftime deficit.

Michelle Geyer tied the score 10 minutes into the second half, and Dana Lehmkuhl, who had given the Marlins a 1-0 lead earlier, scored her second and game-winning goal at the midway point of the half.

Stacy Nolta, who had assisted on Lehmkuhl's second goal, added an unassisted score with 10 minutes remaining. Geyer and Colleen Raftery also had assists.

"It was probably the worst game we've played all year," said Mercy coach Gene Fogel, adding he thought his players had been reading their press clippings. "Unanimously, it was a bad game for everyone in the first half."

Senior Kelly Beaudry and freshman Renee Larabell split time in goal, Beaudry playing the first half and Larabell the second.

The Marlins, 4-1 in the Catholic League Central Division and 7-2 overall, shut out Dearborn Edsel Ford 2-0 on Saturday.

Lehmkuhl, a freshman, scored both goals in the first half, and Geyer got the assist each time.

FARMINGTON 6, W. BLOOMFIELD 2: The Falcons, who dropped out of the state's top 10 but boast a 6-2 record, traded goals with the Lakers before shutting the door on their non-league opponent Monday.

With the game 16 minutes old, Farmington's Amy Trunk opened the scoring, and Jennifer Misaros later made it 2-1.

But West Bloomfield countered with a goal each time before Trunk and Carrie Maier scored the last two goals of the second half and put the Falcons on top 4-2.

Trunk beat a defender in a sprint to the goal and successfully outmaneuvered the goalkeeper. Maier, a sprinter on the track team as is Trunk, did the same in scoring her goal. Misaros assisted on both.

Margaret Martin, who was credited with assists on Farmington's first two goals, became a scorer in the second half, accounting for the final goals.

On her second, she lobbed the ball into the air from 40 yards out, and the wind got hold of it and dropped it behind the goalie.

The Falcons outshot West Bloomfield 8-3 in the first half and 11-4 in the second.

Chiefs sweep Rocks opportunity and didn't get the job done," Gravlin said. "In the big games, when you're playing (Westland John) Glenn and Canton, you have to capitalize on those situations."

Fidell Cashero worked 3⅔ innings and left without figuring in the decision. He held the Chiefs to two hits and fanned four, but he walked five and hit three batters.

In the fourth, he hit Mike Sulak and walked Joel Riggs and Derek Humphries, filling the bases with two out. Bob Files, the eventual loser, came on to end the inning with Kevin Learned's groundout.

"We didn't give (Cashero) any support," Gravlin said. "I have no complaints with what he did. His job was to keep us in the ball game and he did."

Crissey thought the key play occurred in the top of the sixth when Canton caught Salem's Andy Gee in a rundown between third and home. The Chiefs followed with their big inning.

GEE WAS AT third with one out, but the suicide squeeze went awry, resulting in Steve Woodard's strikeout and Gee being picked off.

"(Woodard) is known for being a good bunter, and Gee is my best baserunner," said Gravlin, adding he'd do the same thing again. "We were scratching and trying to get a run anyway we could.

"We could have scored three or four runs earlier if we had gotten one key hit. We have four losses, and a base hit in three would have made a difference.

"(The lack of hitting) is certainly a frustrating thing when we have an outstanding pitching staff," he added.

The Chiefs set the stage for Browne in the sixth when Sulak and Riggs walked, and Learned, the team's hottest hitter, was given an intentional pass with one out.

A FIELDER'S choice by Ed Hanna eliminated the lead run, but Browne stroked the ball into the outfield and cleared the bases.

"I thought Todd (Marion) had a chance to catch the ball initially," Crissey said, "but I think the ball hooked on him; he tried to adjust and slipped."

The Chiefs, who have been hurt by errors and fielding miscues in other games, corrected those problems and played an errorless game.

"(Monday) was not a hitter's day," said Crissey, referring to the rather strong wind blowing in from left-center field. "We've been scoring runs in bushels, and we got back to regular baseball. You win with pitching and fielding.

"We made the players cognizant of the fact their intensity level may be a bit stronger on offense and than it is been on the defensive end."

Hanna was the winning pitcher in the comparatively uneventful second game. Matt Metikosh suffered the defeat.

Heard's hits lift Wayne

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

On Monday, Mike Heard learned a new trick with a baseball bat, and on Tuesday the gimmick helped host Wayne Memorial defeat Wyandotte, 2-1.

In the batting cages Monday, Heard practiced the art of faking a bunt and on the same pitch pulling back and swinging away.

In the sixth inning Tuesday Heard did just that, when he laced a double down the left field line, scoring Billy Wicker with the winning run.

"We've been practicing it, but I didn't think I'd hit it that good," said Heard, who also hit a home run in the first inning. "I didn't think it was that much of a surprise, though. To them, maybe."

Wayne coach Jim Chronowski didn't see Heard square around to bunt. His eyes were fixed on Wicker, who opened the inning with a double down the right field line.

"If he did that I didn't know it, because I was looking at my runner so he wouldn't get picked off," said a surprised Chronowski. "So if he did it, the one day of practice came in handy. It was the first day we tried gimmicks."

baseball

THE ZEBRAS, who were ranked No. 1 last week in Class A, had lost two of their last three outings before Tuesday. The win over Wyandotte improved Wayne's overall record to 10-2, and tied the Zebras with Southgate Anderson for first place in the Wolverine A Conference at 5-1. Wyandotte fell to 5-6, 3-3.

Chronowski said the recent setbacks may have helped wake up Wayne and realize right now the No. 1 goal is winning the league title.

"The state ranking was nice, because in all my years we had never been ranked number one," Chronowski said. "So for one week we lived on the top of the hill, but our players found out that when you're there, they shoot at number one. Now we'll try to get back on top of the league."

Pitching on just three days rest, Dave Abner earned the win for Wayne. Abner's record improved to 4-1, as he scattered eight hits and one run, which was earned in the third inning.

Jay Erickson went the distance for Wyandotte, scattering five hits. He probably deserved a better fate, and would have if it weren't for two pitches he threw to Heard.

Heard opened the scoring with a mammoth homer to left-center field. It was his second of the year, and it came on a two-strike pitch.

"WITH THE COUNT 0-2 I just sat on the curve ball," Heard said. "He threw two fast balls in a row and I figured he'd come back with a curve."

"Heard had a couple of nice shots," said Wyandotte coach Dave Lange. "Without a doubt he can hit as well as anybody around. We were not going to pitch around him unless it dictated it. (On the game-winning hit) My pitcher was to pitch the ball outside, but he put it in the middle of the plate more than he was supposed to.

"That's a mistake that pros make, though, and they make a helluva lot more money."

Plymouth Christian loses 2 twinbills

Southfield Christian pulled no punches Tuesday in softball and baseball doubleheaders with Plymouth Christian Academy.

Southfield defeated the Eagles 14-1 and 18-0 in softball, and PCA dropped 19-2 and 9-1 scores on the baseball field.

The Eagles were the victims of a no-hitter in the first softball game. PCA got its only run when Tamara Tilly walked and later stole home.

Elaine Priebe was the losing pitcher but didn't allow many earned runs. While Priebe gave up seven hits and six walks — lows figures for such a high-scoring game — PCA committed nine errors.

Tilly had the Eagles' only hit in the second game. She also was the losing pitcher after facing the first eight batters. Priebe worked the next 2⅔ innings and Allison Schram finished up.

SHAWN SHELLNUT hit a two-run homer for Southfield, and Wendy McCoy had three of her team's eight hits.

The Eagles are 1-3 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and 3-4 overall.

In baseball, PCA managed nine hits off Southfield's Jeff Beard, but the pitching ace also struck out 12 and walked two.

Kevin Breier and Ben Odom were 2-for-3 for the Eagles. Odom, who stole two bases, and Manish Nandani had one RBI apiece.

John Pierce was the loser after going four innings, and Nandani worked the last inning.

In the second game, Bryan Davies was 2-for-2 with an RBI, and Odom and Breier had single hits. Dan Main was 2-for-3, including a two-run homer, for Southfield.

ODOM SCORED the team's lone run after doubling, stole third and scored on Davies' RBI single.

Odom went the distance in a game the coaches agreed would last only five innings. He struck out three and walked only two, but the winners got to him for 14 hits.

PCA is 1-7 in the league and 2-9 overall. Southfield, the MIAC leader, is 9-0 overall.

Canton nips Salem with umpire's help

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

While Plymouth Canton's softball team seemed destined to self destruct Monday night, it was a seemingly harmless lapse that led to Plymouth Salem's downfall.

The Chiefs, who kept their rivals in the game by committing seven errors, dodged a bullet and managed to win 4-3 despite their miscues.

Canton, however, got a timely assist from the umpires, whose enforcement of the rulebook led to the game-ending out and cut short a seventh-inning Salem rally.

Trailing by a run, the Rocks loaded the bases with one out in the seventh. When Missy Viele hit a ground ball back to pitcher Stacey Thompson, the Chiefs forced the lead runner at the plate.

THE FIELDER'S choice meant Salem had the same situation but with two outs now. But Viele removed her helmet after running past first base — an infraction of a rule meant to protect the player — and the home-plate umpire promptly called her out.

"It's an awful gutsy call," Salem coach Rob Willette said. "You shouldn't lose a game on an ump's call. But a rule is a rule, I guess."

Canton coach Max Sommerville would have preferred to win under more noble circumstances, but he was pleased to see his team improve its Western Lakes record to 6-1 nonetheless.

"You'd rather not win that way," he said; "but we'll take it any way we can get it."

Canton's errors — most of them dropped balls by outfielders in shallow territory — overshadowed a respectable pitching effort by Thompson. She tossed a three-hitter and struck out four while walking five and hitting a batter.

"WE PLAYED well at times and hit well," Sommerville said. "That's what I was pleased about, but we just couldn't catch the ball tonight.

"I don't know whether it was the lights or what. We were trying to give the game away.

"We've played pretty good defense all year," he added. "We haven't been dropping the ball like that."

The Rocks, also 6-1 and 7-2 overall, were presented with numerous opportunities, but failed to combine their gifts with a big offensive inning. Salem ended up leaving 10 runners stranded as opposed to two by the Chiefs.

Thompson walked the first two batters in the fifth, but the runners were doubled off when Tracie Robinson's sure-out fly ball was dropped in right field.

IN THE SEVENTH, luck appeared to be on Salem's side as the Rocks attempted to tie the score and possibly take their first lead. Ann Mundinger led off with a single, and Salem loaded the bases when the shortstop failed to make a play on Robinson's grounder and Kim Berrie's fly ball fell in left field.

That set the stage for Viele and Canton's unusual game-saving double play.

"We had plenty of chances," Willette said. "We had people on base; we just couldn't knock them in.

"They almost handed it to us. It was ours to take, and we didn't do it.

"The baserunning was not that good," he added, "but when the ball is being dropped the girls get a little confused, too."

In the fourth inning, Salem got within 3-2 when Berrie, the losing pitcher, scored on Sheryll Gildo's single, but Viele was cut down at the plate on a close play.

softball

'We played well at times and hit well. That's what I was pleased about, but we just couldn't catch the ball tonight. I don't know whether it was the lights or what. We were trying to give the game away.'
— Max Sommerville
Canton softball coach

WITH RUNNERS at first and third, the inning ended with Gildo also being called out attempting to steal home.

"You can look back at this game and pick out 20 things (that might have affected the outcome)," Willette said. "They were talking about throwing it down to second and didn't do it."

Canton jumped in front 2-0 in the bottom of the second with RBI doubles by Mary George and Cari Herron. The Chiefs had half of their six hits in that inning.

Salem's only errors of the game led to Canton's other runs, helping the Chiefs stay a run ahead at all times. Kim Schulte and Allison Flaskamp walked and scored on errors in the third and fourth innings.

Jo Wiklund scored Salem's first run when Thompson used an illegal pitch with the bases loaded in the third. Berrie's run made it 3-2, and Robinson made it 4-3 when Thompson dropped the ball after covering the plate following a passed ball in the fifth.

CANTON'S STACEY Arnold and George were 2-for-3, and Gildo had two hits for Salem. Berrie struck out four and walked three.

Thompson has made an obvious difference for Canton, which has won twice as many games as it did all of last year, but other veteran players have complemented her to make the Chiefs a solid ballclub.

"She just does the right things out there," Sommerville said. "She makes the right decisions on the field.

"It's definitely a team effort. It's just that added extra that has made us a much better team.

"I feel real good about the team," he added. "It's a lot better when you're winning and playing better ball."

● FOOTBALL SIGN-UP

Registration for the Plymouth-Canton Lions Junior Football League is scheduled for Saturdays, June 4 and 11, at McDonald's Restaurant on Ford Road.

Boys and girls, ages 9 to 14, are eligible to sign up for football or cheerleading. For information call Katie Bauman at 981-1496 or Kathy Milligan at 981-6406.

● PRO RALLY WINNER

Doug Shepherd of Plymouth won his second Production GT event of the season at Chillicothe, Ohio, on April 15-16 and took over second place in the Budweiser Forest Pro Rally standings.

Shepherd was behind the wheel of his Dodge Shadow-based turbocharged and intercooled Shelby CSX. The car approached its 120 mph maximum speed while covering the central Ohio forest trails in one-hour, 52 minutes and 14 seconds.

"It was a lot of fun, with the car running right and everything going like clockwork," Shepherd said.

Despite the fine performance of the CSX, Shepherd hopes to have a new car ready for the next Pro Rally in Wellsboro, Pa., on June 5. It will be a Dodge Daytona, also turbocharged and intercooled.

● GYMNASTS QUALIFY

One girl from Plymouth and another from Canton Township have qualified for the United States Gymnastics Federation state meet.

The girls are Rebecca Allison of Plymouth and Lindsay Crews of Canton. Allison is a Class I member, and Crews is a member of Class II. The two girls compete for the Gym America Gymnastics Club of Ann Arbor.

The state meets consist of four compulsory and four optional events over two days. Crews also qualified for the USGF Regionals.

Both girls also have qualified for the U.S. Association of Independent Gymnastics Clubs Regional meet in Jacksonville, Fla.

● WOMEN'S GOLF

A women's golf league, organized through the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, will begin play Friday, May 6, at Fellows Creek Golf Course.

The registration fee is $10 plus weekly greens fees. The deadline for entering is Thursday, May 5. Call 397-5110 for details.

● BIKING FOR MS

Biking enthusiasts looking for a weekend of fun, friendship and the challenge of completing 150 miles are invited to participate in the Third Annual Michigan Multiple Sclerosis Society Bike Tour slated for Saturday, June 11, and Sunday, June 12.

The two-day, one-way tour will bring together riders from throughout the lower half of Michigan on a route through the scenic Michigan countryside to benefit the Michigan Chapter of the National MS Society.

On Saturday, cyclists will leave from their home bases in Grand Rapids and Northville and arrive in Holt for an evening of entertainment including dancing, volleyball or a relaxing movie for those who prefer to rest.

On Sunday, it's back on the bicycles as the tour continues to Jackson where a final-day celebration is planned.

Riders will be kept comfortable throughout the event with fully catered meals, high-energy snacks and fruit, rest stops every 12-15 miles and a return to their point of origin in air-conditioned motor coaches on Sunday evening.

Registration information can be obtained by calling the Michigan MS 150 Bike Tour Hotline at 1-800-247-7382 or by stopping in at any local bicycle shop displaying the event brochure.

All money raised on the tour will enable the MS Society to continue to provide services to improve the quality of life for MS persons and their families. The Michigan chapter is a United Way member agency and receives an annual allocation.

Charger cage coach steps down

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Saying "other things have finally wore me down," Livonia Churchill boys basketball coach Don Albertson is stepping down after eight seasons.

Albertson, who compiled an 82-89 record with the boys including a 12-10 season in 1987-88, said he is stepping down "with great reluctance." The coach reached his decision after he made several proposals that were not accepted by district administrators.

Albertson submitted a one-page letter of resignation to Dr. James Carli, superintendent of the Livonia Public Schools, Churchill principal Bill McFarland and athletic director Larry Joiner.

"I wish I could say that I wanted to spend more time with my family, but that was not the case," said Albertson in the letter. "I felt like I was a nail in a block of wood. There were just too many negative factors that I don't wish to get into because I don't want to burn too many bridges.

basketball

'I felt like I was a nail in a block of wood . . . But after a number of poundings the nail just digs deeper . . . I was becoming part of the woodwork.'

— Don Albertson
former Churchill coach

But after a number of poundings the nail just digs deeper. It was just too tough to pry that nail out of that block of wood. I was becoming part of the woodwork."

Albertson threatened several times to quit during the past few years after becoming increasingly frustrated over what he viewed as the district's lack of commitment toward varsity basketball.

"I was putting more into the sport than what I was getting back," he said.

ALBERTSON SAID he met with Joiner and Carli about some of his concerns last week but decided he had enough after the meetings.

Albertson proposed to Joiner that he become both the varsity and JV coach. He also suggested the district create a "basketball technique" class to teach fundamentals, which he said are lacking because the school system does not provide interscholastic sports at the middle school level. He also wanted to have more of a say in the scheduling.

"When I met with Don he didn't come in ranting or raving," said Joiner. "But there were a lot of things weighing in his own mind.

"Whenever I can accommodate somebody, I'll do that. But I don't have control over everything."

Joiner said the job has been posted within the district.

"We need to get somebody on board soon," Joiner said. "We hope to get somebody with long-term experience either at the JV or varsity level. I'm sure there will be some interest in the job."

ALBERTSON SAID he learned many things during his stint as the school's coach. (He also coached the girls' team to a 33-71 mark in five years.)

"I worked with a lot of good coaches, guys like Fred Price, Roger Springsteen, Dan Freeman and Tom Lang," he said. "I appreciate what they did for me. Coaching has given me a lot of memorable times."

Albertson, who teaches math at Churchill, said he isn't sure what he'll do in his spare time.

"Maybe I'll just relax," he said. "Or now I'll have time now to watch my son (Mike) play next season if he makes the Plymouth Salem basketball team. I certainly have more time now to spend with my family."

Boxers win Gold Glove novice titles

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The Livonia Boxing Club came away with two titles Saturday in the Detroit-area Golden Gloves Finals at the Veterans Memorial Building.

Both titles were captured in the Senior Novice A Division.

Stevenson High School student Rob Diffanbaugh, 132-pounder, scored a unanimous decision over Leon Hill of Windsor, Ontario. Teammate David Tartarian was also victorious in the 139-pound class, but the third-round TKO over Mitchell Hodge of Detroit Kronk proved costly, as he broke his hand.

Churchill High's Kevin Tripodi (156 pounds) nearly had a third crown for the LBC, but he lost a close split decision to William Fortune of Crowell Recreation Center.

In the 165-pound Novice Class, Joe Arella of Stevenson High went down in the first round to Gerald Jones of the Considine Boxing Club.

"We came away with two out of four, which isn't bad," said LBC director Paul Soucy, who was out of town with super-heavyweight Kermit Fitzpatrick.

SOUCY LEFT the coaching chores to assistants Greg Rice and Greg Owens as he and Fitzpatrick travelled to Atlantic City's Caesars Palace for a USA-Cuba confrontation.

Fitzpatrick, the 26-year-old state trooper from Highland Park, got a call earlier in the week to represent the U.S. against the Cubans after Robert Salters, the U.S. Amateur champ, pulled out. (Salters, a marine, beat Fitzpatrick at the U.S. Amateur Boxing Championships last month in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The U.S. lost 10 of 12 matches as Fitzpatrick was one of the victims. He was taken out at 52 seconds of the first round by 6-foot-6 Jorge Gonzalez.

"We got the call Tuesday and flew out Thursday . . . so we didn't have much of a notice," said Soucy. "Kermit lunged with one hand and he took a hard shot. He can take a hit, but he really got tagged."

Sabo proves to Reds he belongs

Brad Emons

'(Cincinnati Reds manager) Pete (Rose) is usually low key. As long as you're going well, he (Rose) pretty much leaves you alone. As long as you play hard there's nothing to worry about. He just tells me to play hard and make something happen.'

— Chris Sabo former CC player

CHRIS SABO is a riverboat gambler.

So it only makes sense that he's playing baseball for Cincinnati, a riverboat town.

The honeymoon with Sabo and the Reds may be over, but the marriage between the two should endure quite awhile.

If anybody fits Pete Rose's mold, it's Sabo, a squatty third baseman who sprays the ball to all fields and plays every inning and pitch to the hilt.

Sabo was a Pete Rose type before he hit the big leagues. His game hasn't changed much since his days at Redford Catholic Central High and the University of Michigan.

"Chris was a 'gamer' who loved to play," said Joe Chops, now CC's JV baseball coach and Sabo's teammate when the Shamrocks captured the 1979 state Class A championship. "Chris loved to be at the plate when the game was on the line. He was very confident in his ability. He'd dive through a brick wall for you."

SABO HAS FILLED in quite capably for the injured Buddy Bell.

He is among the National League leaders in doubles and stolen bases. He has handled the hot corner superbly, tying a major league record last month with 11 assists in one game.

In a weekend series with the Mets, Sabo's average plummeted nearly 80 points, going 1-for-12. But ironically, his only hit (a double) of the series came off the vaunted Dr. K, Dwight Gooden.

Was his confidence shaken? Has the reality of being in the big leagues sunk in? What's going to happen when Bell returns from the disabled list?

To hear it from Sabo, there's nothing to worry about.

"There's no anxiety," he said. "I made the team as a utility player. I'll be a starter down the road, maybe in two years. I'll be used in a number of games. How many guys play 162 games anyway? I'll fill in until Buddy gets better."

In the meantime, Sabo makes it known he can also play second base, shortstop and even left field — if needed.

SABO ALSO MADE it clear during spring training that he deserved a spot on the big club. Another year in the minors wasn't going to do him any good, he contended.

He backed up his words by playing his way onto the big league club after spending five years in the minors. His hot hitting in spring training continued into the first month of the season but has tailed off a bit of late. Ironically, the recent drought coincided with the Reds' five-game losing skid.

"People pitch the same all over," Sabo said. "I'm still going to hit to all fields. There's no reason to make any changes."

Frank Corej, the former CC coach, taught Sabo a few things about hitting.

"He (Corej) was a tremendous coach," said Sabo. "He's the one who taught me to hit the other way. He laid the ground work.

"Those were tremendous times at CC, playing with guys like Joe Chops and Mike Lewis."

Chops remembers Sabo was always trying to improve his game.

"In high school the scouts said his arm was suspect, but he worked on his weaknesses," Chops said. "He'd go down the basement and throw ground balls off the wall or take 100 swings. He'd do ever whatever he had to.

"He wasn't big physically, but he's built himself up. He's really bulked up."

SABO HAS gotten his share of publicity during his first month in the big leagues.

He was quoted earlier in the season, declaring: "I'd kill to score a run."

And then there was a recent trip to Atlanta where Sabo went out to get a haircut, but wasn't completely satisfied with his flattop, ultimately walking away from the chair with the job half-done.

And then there was the incident on a Continental Airlines flight from San Francisco to Houston where some of the Reds' players got a little rowdy, tossing food about the cabin.

Forget it. It couldn't have been Sabo.

"He was always quiet when he was around a lot of people," Chops said. "He liked to have fun, but when it was time for baseball, it was serious business. He just loved to play."

It's noon Sunday and the Reds are taking batting practice. Sabo stretches out with Eric Davis and Barry Larkin, his teammate at Michigan.

"I LIKE BARRY and we have good rapport," said Sabo of his sidekick at short. "But there aren't too many boozin' buddies in baseball. You can't get too close. You go your separate ways after the game."

Sabo quietly goes about his business, taking his cuts in the cage, running around the bases and fielding ground balls from coach Lee May. He chats with a couple of Mets during the interim.

Meanwhile, Rose is sitting in the dugout, talking to reporters about the wild game the night before where unruly fans littered the field with debris after he was ejected for pushing first base umpire Dave Pallone twice while protesting a controversial call in the ninth. (Mets' right fielder Darryl Strawberry earlier was ejected for charging out of the dugout after Reds' pitcher Tom Browning, who had plunked Tim Teufel with a curve in the back.)

"That's one of the strangest games I've ever played in," said Sabo. "I picked up a few quarters."

As for Rose, who was given at 30-day suspension Monday, Sabo says that "Pete's usually low key."

"As long as you're going well, he (Rose) pretty much leaves you alone," said the third baseman. "As long as you play hard there's nothing to worry about. He just tells me to play hard and make something happen."

DURING THE METS' series, Sabo nearly beat out two routine infield ground balls. His speed is something that was overlooked during his first few seasons in the minors.

"I was always stealing bases in high school and college, but for some reason they didn't let me run until last year," he said. "You'd have to ask the coaches.

"I'm an Astroturf player. I like to run, field and hit the ball on the ground and in the gaps."

Sabo's father Walter and his uncle Deac were in Cincinnati to see him play for the first time. And despite the Reds dropping three straight in front of his family, Sabo remains confident the team will come around.

"We're doing well, we're .500," he said. "We haven't gotten it going, but we're a good team and there's no reason we shouldn't win. We're capable of 10 or 15 in a row."

Judge remembers fresh starts he helped

By Arlene Funke
special writer

During his 25 years on the bench, Judge John Dillon has seen his share of murderers, robbers and thugs.

But the 61-year-old Redford District Court judge prefers to remember the teens and young adults who have made fresh starts after getting into scrapes with the law.

"I think I like working with young people," said the tall, white-haired jurist with smiling blue eyes. "I have received many letters from people who had appeared before me. They tell me they are back with their wives. They're working. They are productive again.

"When you see you have helped somebody turn around, there is a lot of gratification."

DILLON'S ACTIVITIES show him to be a caring, devout Irish-Catholic who attaches great importance to career, church and family.

When work is done, he relaxes by playing the harmonica while wife Janet strums a guitar, or by sharing a good laugh with friends.

His judicial tenure in Redford dates to 1963 when justices of the peace were the norm in townships. His tenure continued on after the establishment of the current 17th District Court. Those 25 years of municipal service are the longest of any elected official in Redford.

A native Detroiter, Dillon graduated from Catholic Central High School and earned undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Detroit.

The 6-foot, 4-inch Dillon was an avid basketball player. He played at college, and later in the Army he was part of a team that played games to entertain troops stationed in Japan.

"I was considered tall back then," said Dillon. "Now, I'm a little guy."

AFTER MOVING to Redford in the 1950s, Dillon established a law practice and handled negligence and personal-injury cases.

He and his family lived on Olympia and attended Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church. Then-pastor the Rev. Clare Berry suggested that Dillon run for elective office.

"Apparently he saw something and thought I should give it a go. My dad was involved in fund-raisers. I was always active in politics. I worked behind the scenes."

Dillon, running as a Democrat, was elected justice of the peace in 1963. He handled much the same duties as now — arraignments, preliminary hearings and trials.

"I don't like the abbreviation of JP," said Dillon. "I think it has a negative connotation. There were a lot of unqualified people. You didn't have to be an attorney."

IN 1969 the court system was revamped, and justices of the peace were eliminated. Dillon won election as a district court judge and has served continuously since. His current term will expire Jan. 1, 1992.

Dillon "has all the skills to move on to a higher judgeship, and he has had the opportunity," said Judge James Ryan of Redford, a circuit judge with the U.S. Court of Appeals. "He has chosen not to. He is genuinely interested in local judgeships."

Ryan was elected a Redford justice of the peace at the same time as Dillon. Ryan later became a Wayne Circuit Judge and served on the Michigan Supreme Court for 10 years. The two judges are neighbors, golf partners, attend the same church and belong to many of the same professional groups.

DILLON ALSO believes the Redford police officers have become better trained, well-prepared and more professional.

"Now I'd stack them up against anybody," Dillon said.

Some recent cases have disturbed Dillon. In October 1986 an assailant and accomplices forced their way into a Redford house seeking money said to be owed. The assailants killed one man, wounded two others and abducted a baby sitter before being captured.

"We didn't see that 25 years ago."

Dillon recently found the case of a woman charged with sexually abusing her two sons and putting them in pornographic movies "probably the most sickening."

Another distressing trend, according to Dillon, is the increase in drunk-driving and other alcohol- and drug-related cases among young people.

"I HAVE had many people who are alcoholics, and I'm talking under the age of 20. They are starting at 14 and 15 years."

It is these people in whom Dillon takes special interest. During probation they can be closely monitored while undergoing counseling and drug or alcohol rehabilitation.

In the words of one Redford woman, who asked to remain anonymous, "Judge Dillon is wonderful.

"My brother — he's now 32 and living in Texas — long around with kids on drugs during high school," she said. "There were a few people in the township who helped turn his life around. He's doing pretty well now. He said he really wishes he could find a way to say thanks."

DILLON INSISTS on proper decorum and respect in his courtroom, although "I see nothing wrong with a little humor occasionally.

Dillon attributes his success to working hard, while drawing on the strength of a close-knit family.

THIS YEAR'S REQUIRED READING FOR 1,000,000 COLLEGE GRADUATES

Welcome to Real World 101.
You'd be surprised how many college students go from highlighting textbooks to highlighting the classifieds. The fact is, a staggering number of graduates are unable to secure a career in their field of study.
That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in a crowded job market.
If you're a student, you should seriously consider the Co-op Education Program.
Because after years of studying in college, the last thing you need is another reading assignment.

Co-op Education
You earn a future when you earn a degree.

One of 22 black-and-white tempra on paper works to be on display at the show Sunday in which the artist will talk about his latest body of work.

Concerned Kozlow shows in 'Victims'

RICHARD KOZLOW is widely recognized as a painter of landscapes, seascapes, flowers and, on occasion, capricious fat ladies.

But this weekend, many who attend his show, "Victims," at Birmingham Temple, Farmington Hills, will discover that this artist has deep concerns about the state of the world and the cruelities people inflict on each other.

He will give a talk about this body of work at 8:30 p.m. Friday and a reception will follow. The public is invited, no charge. The exhibit will be on display noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Kozlow completed the series of 22 black and white paintings, tempra on paper, in a three-week period during the summer of 1986. The furious pace at which he worked surprised even Kozlow, who is still particularly proud of these works. His concern, from the beginning, was that they be seen. The question was where this strong statement on the injustice throughout the world could be shown to best advantage.

THE 25th ANNIVERSARY celebration of Birmingham Temple appeared to be an appropiate time to unveil these 26-by-40-inch paintings. This isn't the first time Kozlow has used the starkness of black and white to convey deep emotion. His limited edition series, "Of Man's Inhumanity to Man," done in 1965 is black and white as is a remarkable group of paintings on bull fighting which he did about 10 years ago.

Kozlow has been a major figure in Michigan art for many years. He was an Art Foundation of Michigan award winner in 1982. His paintings are in many national and international collections. He and his wife, Lois, live in Birmingham.

Birmingham Temple is at 28611 W. 12 Mile, Farmington Hills.

Penthouse preview

Richard Jerzy's work in special presentation

RICHARD JERZY is one of three artists whose works will be in a special show in the North Park Towers penthouse 1-4 p.m. Saturday, May 7, and Sunday, May 8. The others are David Levin and Muriel Jacobs.

Eve Garvin, interior designer, who is hosting this special showing will also have several works from the Ringling Art School of Sarasota, Fla. She said all three artists are longtime acquaintances whom she respects as outstanding professionals in their fields.

Jerzy is a painter who lives in Indian Village in Detroit and teaches three days a week at Center for Creative Studies. He studied at Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts (which later became Center for Creative Studies) with some of the best known teachers there, Sarkis Sarkesian and Charles Culver.

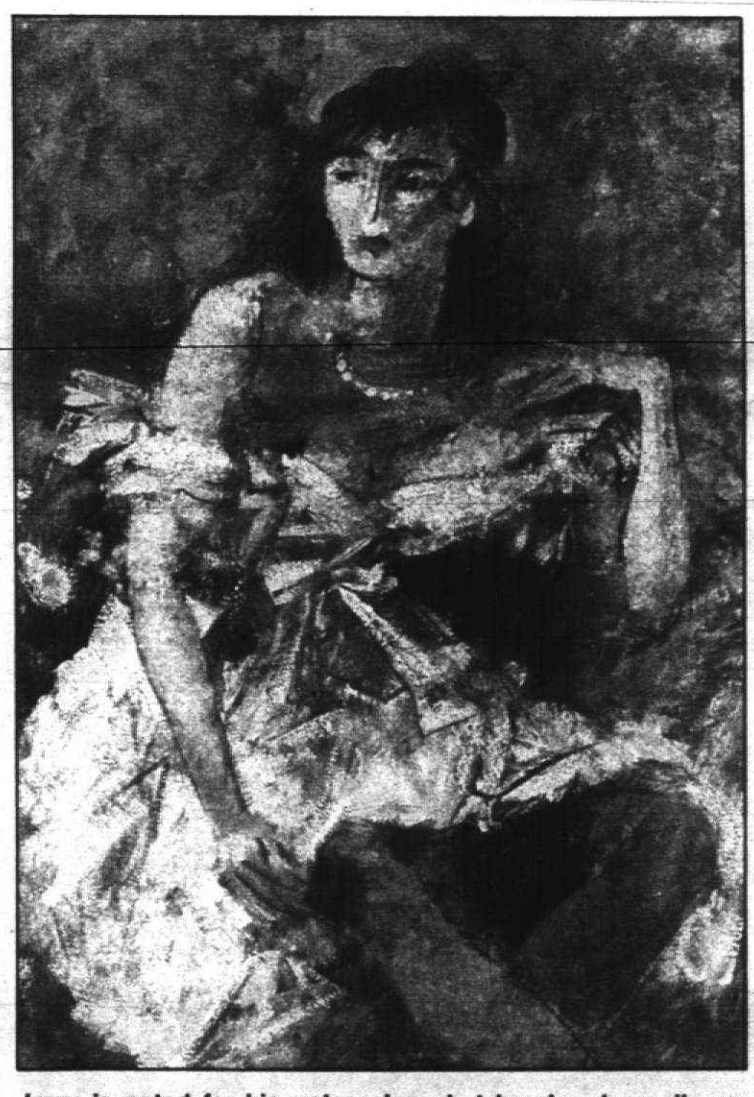
SAYING "I HAVE to live where I work," Jerzy led the way through his large antique and art filled home to his studio in the basement. He motioned toward the door leading to the backyard, "I do figures, landscape, flowers — I do everything from real life. I'm a gardener. I take all of this stuff on location into the garden," the sweep of his arm included, easels, paints and dog. "There's a back part of the yard is sort of private, I paint there."

And while he is especially well known for flower paintings in both watercolor and oil, he has done many other things. He recalled the painting trips he made to France in 1981 and the show which he had at Sheldon Ross Gallery of Birmingham as a result of that.

Levin, a photographer, has exhibited at Detroit Institute of Arts, San Francisco Art Institute Gallery, the U-M Graduate Library and U-M Rackham Library.

Jacobs is an award winning textile designer.

North Park Towers is at 1650 N. Park Drive, Southfield. Ask at the desk in the west building about going to the penthouse.



Jerzy is noted for his watercolors, but he also does oils as shown in this "Portrait of a Woman in a White Dress," which will be in the penthouse apartment exhibit.

Gallery gives basketry new look

By Arlene Funke
special writer

"People walk by and see the displays. Sometimes they say, 'I didn't like it at first, but it has grown on me.' That's a step forward."

— Kathleen Crombie
Tint and Splint owner

AWARD-WINNING artist Kathleen Crombie is carving a fresh niche in the world of basketry.

Crombie has added a gallery to her Garden City shop Tint and Splint Basketry. Each month she highlights the creations of well-known artists who use innovative combinations of natural materials.

"It's using basketry techniques as art," explained Crombie, 36. "It's a place that is committed to showing basketry as an art form. It's something nobody else is doing."

Crombie sells basketry supplies in her shop and through a national mail-order business. She has won numerous awards for her baskets made from fresh bark and unusual pieces of tree limb. She writes, teaches and sponsors weekend workshops featuring renowned basketry artists.

ALTHOUGH MUSEUMS AND galleries sometimes hold basketry exhibits, Crombie believes hers is the only full-time display devoted to that art form.

"There is a lot or room for personal statement," Crombie said. "We are trying to mix traditional and contemporary." The gallery, which debuted in March, displays the pieces on stands, bathed in the glow of special lights. Each reflects the tastes of the artists. A variety of materials — pine needles, roots, sticks, vines and paper are coiled and fashioned into both utilitarian and decorative pieces.

The display is located in a section of the shop, behind a large bay window that faces the parking lot of the busy Sheridan Square Shopping Center on Ford Road west of Middlebelt. Crombie believes that prime exposure will spark a awareness of the wide scope of basketry.

"It's called the Bay Window Gallery," Crombie said. "People walk by and see the displays. Sometimes they say, 'I didn't like it at first, but it has grown on me.' That's a step forward."

Crombie also sees her role as a bridge between "basketry the craft and basketry the art form." She believes her shop can fulfill the needs of crafts enthusiasts, artists and basket collectors.

"Since old, traditional baskets are hard to find, basket collectors are turning to the more contemporary pieces," Crombie said.

The two-day, weekend workshops start at around $100, and have attracted both local and out-of-state students. Often the gallery displays the pieces of artists who are teaching.

I LOVE costume parties.

I also love book parties. A while back I got to combine both when I was invited to attend the 10th anniversary of my literary agency, Writer's House, which was to be held at the Harkness Mansion in New York City. "Come dressed as your favorite literary character," instructed the invitation.

Well.

To be told to garb oneself as a literary character isn't as easy as it might sound, if you are female and want to look devastating for umpteen famous authors and influential editors, all of whom will surely be milling about in expensive rented costumes of Broadway-show caliber. I mean, something made of sheets and whipped up on my Singer just would not do.

I went to several local costumers and demanded to try on fluffy crinoline gowns a la Scarlett O'Hara. (I read "Gone With the Wind" nine times since third grade and I felt she qualified as a "favorite.") In the fitting room I struggled to zip a period dress, but somehow I kept popping out. By the ninth crinoline, I faced the brutal truth: Scarlett O'Hara was a size eight. Every costume was a size eight. I was not.

Back home, I paced the floor, wondering what to do now. Most of my second-best favorite characters also wore period costumes and were size eight, too. I always liked witches (one of my little-known talents is a wild, witchy cackle), but I shrank from the idea of presenting myself to the New York literary world with green guck all over my face.

I BOUGHT MY plane tickets, started packing my bag, and I still didn't know what to wear. Then, driving to my dance class, the idea hit me like a tap shoe over the head.

Salome!

Well, the Bible is considered literature, and Salome has been immortalized in other books and poems. I had taken belly dancing classes, the costume would fit, and if I hurried I could make it to a costume store I knew of on Groesbeck.

At home with the costume in a paper bag (it included a coin bra that went jingle, and a big, glittery paste jewel to hang in the middle of my forehead), I knew I wasn't finished.

Using an old Halloween mask for a base, I constructed the severed head of John the Baptist, adding marble eyeballs, a frowsy gray mustache and wig glinting with a suggestion of blood. When my boyfriend recoiled at the sight of "John" grinning on his plastic platter, I knew I had the perfect outfit. There would be something ugly and outrageous about the costume but it would not be me.

A FRIEND IN New York also attending the party picked me up in front of my hotel near Central Park, instructing me to "stand right there at the door because the traffic is so heavy and I can't park."

Carrying "John" in a paper sack, I followed her instructions, nervously hoping that she would hurry. People (OK, men) were staring at my lavish eye makeup, the jewel in the middle of my forehead, the gauze "veil" dangling from the hem of my trench coat.

I was afraid the doorman would think I was a Lady of the Evening and shoo me away, but he ignored me: apparently for New York I was nothing unusual.

Bambe arrived, waving frantically at me from her jeep to cross to the other side so she wouldn't have to turn around. I made the crossing as cabs honked and traffic blared. Suddenly I felt a presence near me, something breathing. I jumped and turned. From two feet away one of the Central Park carriage horses was leering at me, eyeing my costume as if deciding whether or not to munch it.

The party was everything I had dreamed of. A clown on 6-feet stilts leaned against a wall and made small talk from on high. Al Zuckerman, my agent, was a Sultan, his wife Scheherazade, and they had rented a basket full of live spider monkeys all gaily caparisoned. (They had considered renting a baby elephant but were worried there might be housekeeping problems.)

TWO COOKBOOK AUTHORS arrived dressed as lobsters. Novelist Ken Follett strolled past dressed as the randy nun from the Decameron, pausing to flash me a skinny leg embellished with a red garter.

Talk of floor bids and subsidiary rights and contracts sweetened the air.

I wandered around, introducing myself to Tinker Bell and Friar Tuck and Robin Hood and "The Spirit of the West Wind." John the Baptist, grinning evilly from his platter, was a huge success. Women took one look at him and said "Oh, how horrible!" I smiled, thanked them, and shimmied the five pounds of coins I wore.

The men pretended that "John" was a plate of hors d'oerves and mimed selecting his eyes as a snack.

But the capper of the evening were the Scarlett O'Haras.

Five of them.

Five people wearing the exact costume I had coveted, waist cinchers and hoop skirts, flounces, tucks, ruffles and lace. One of the Scarletts was six feet tall and boasted a plunging neckline that displayed a bony clavicle, and a frizzy mat of black chest hair. "She" was really a he.

On the crowded dance floor, the Scarletts were an event. They probably didn't do rock dances at Tara. Each hoop skirt took up about 25 square feet of space, buffeting other dancers, shimmying wildly, hems knocking over the drinks in plastic cups that people had set on the floor near the wall because there was a shortage of tables.

By 1 a.m. there were puddles of spilled wine everywhere.

The clown had come down from his stilts, the monkeys were back in their basket, and the four female Scarletts had loosened their stays. The male Scarlett had taken off his wig to reveal a black crew-cut, and was jovially blitzed.

I put "John" back in his sack and waited to be driven back to my hotel, feeling pleasently literary, and glad, for maybe the only time, that I'd been too big to fit into a size eight.

Gallery spotlights basketry

of Judy Mulford, a 50-year-old artist, teacher and lecturer from Los Angeles area. Her students learned to make a functional, coiled pine needle basket using several different stitches and a variety of pine needles.

The May display will feature the work of Betz Salmont, also of California, who makes paper baskets. Teaching in June, but bringing no display, will be New York basketmaker-horticulturist John McQueen, who will demonstrate experimental techniques of basketry.

OTHER UPCOMING DISPLAYS are random woven baskets by Judy Dominic of Harrison, Ohio, and pieces by Theresa Ohno of Plymouth, one of Crombie's early teachers. Examples of Crombie's tree bark basketry will be highlighted in July.

"Basketry is universal," said Judy Mulford, whose work reflects an eclectic background as basketmaker, loom-weaver, teacher and researcher who gathers material in Mexico and the Micronesian islands of the Pacific Ocean. Prices for her innovatively coiled pieces of basketry range from $30 to $125.

"Once you get beyond the basics you're looking for new expression," Mulford said.

Mulford said that basketry, which dates back thousands of years, has given woman a pivotal importance in her culture.

"You can't believe you have the pile of pine needles and create order out of chaos," Mulford added. "I'm trying to help other women to grow and take risks."

In addition to her gallery, Crombie is spotlighting basketry through a half-hour cable TV show, "The Basketmaker's Workshop." The show, which began in February, airs on channels 17 and 18 on the McLean-Hunter Cable system in Garden City. It is underwritten by a grant from the Garden City Cable Commission.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. Our condominium project has revised the bylaws. The question is should they be registered with the State in Lansing, or Wayne County.

A. The fact that you have asked me this question is of great concern since it would appear that perhaps the association did not get legal advice from a condominium expert in regard to drafting the bylaws since the Department of Commerce of the State of Michigan is no longer in the business of regulating condominiums. Accordingly, notwithstanding what your documents might say, the bylaws cannot be filed with Lansing. Rather, they should be properly approved in accordance with the condominium documents presently in effect, recorded with the Register of Deeds of the County in which the condominium is located, assuming that they need to be recorded, and a copy of same should be submitted to each member of record of the association.

Of course, if the bylaws are revisions to the association bylaws which need not be recorded, the result is different. It is obvious that you need expert legal advice for your association.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. Questions should be directed to him at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

HOME EQUITY LOAN LOOPHOLE

QUESTION: Is it true that I can borrow money on my home equity, deduct the interest on the loan and use the funds to purchase a car, vacation or other big-ticket item?

ANSWER: This is one of the unabashed loopholes provided to homeowners. Although the Tax Reform Act phases out the deductibility of interest on car loans, credit cards and other consumer borrowing, you can get around this restriction with a home equity loan. Interest on such borrowing remains deductible, regardless of how you spend the money, as long as the total borrowed on your first and second mortgages and home equity loan doesn't exceed the purchase price of the home plus the cost of any improvements.

More good news. Interest on a home equity loan used for educational or medical expenses is FULLY deductible if it does not exceed the current MARKET value of the home less other outstanding mortgages. Also, interest on such a loan taken out on or before August 16, 1986 is fully deductible.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at KENNELLY REALTY - 19500 Middlebelt - Ste. 201 E., Livonia, MI 48152 - 471-0404. We're here to help!

THE Observer & Eccentric

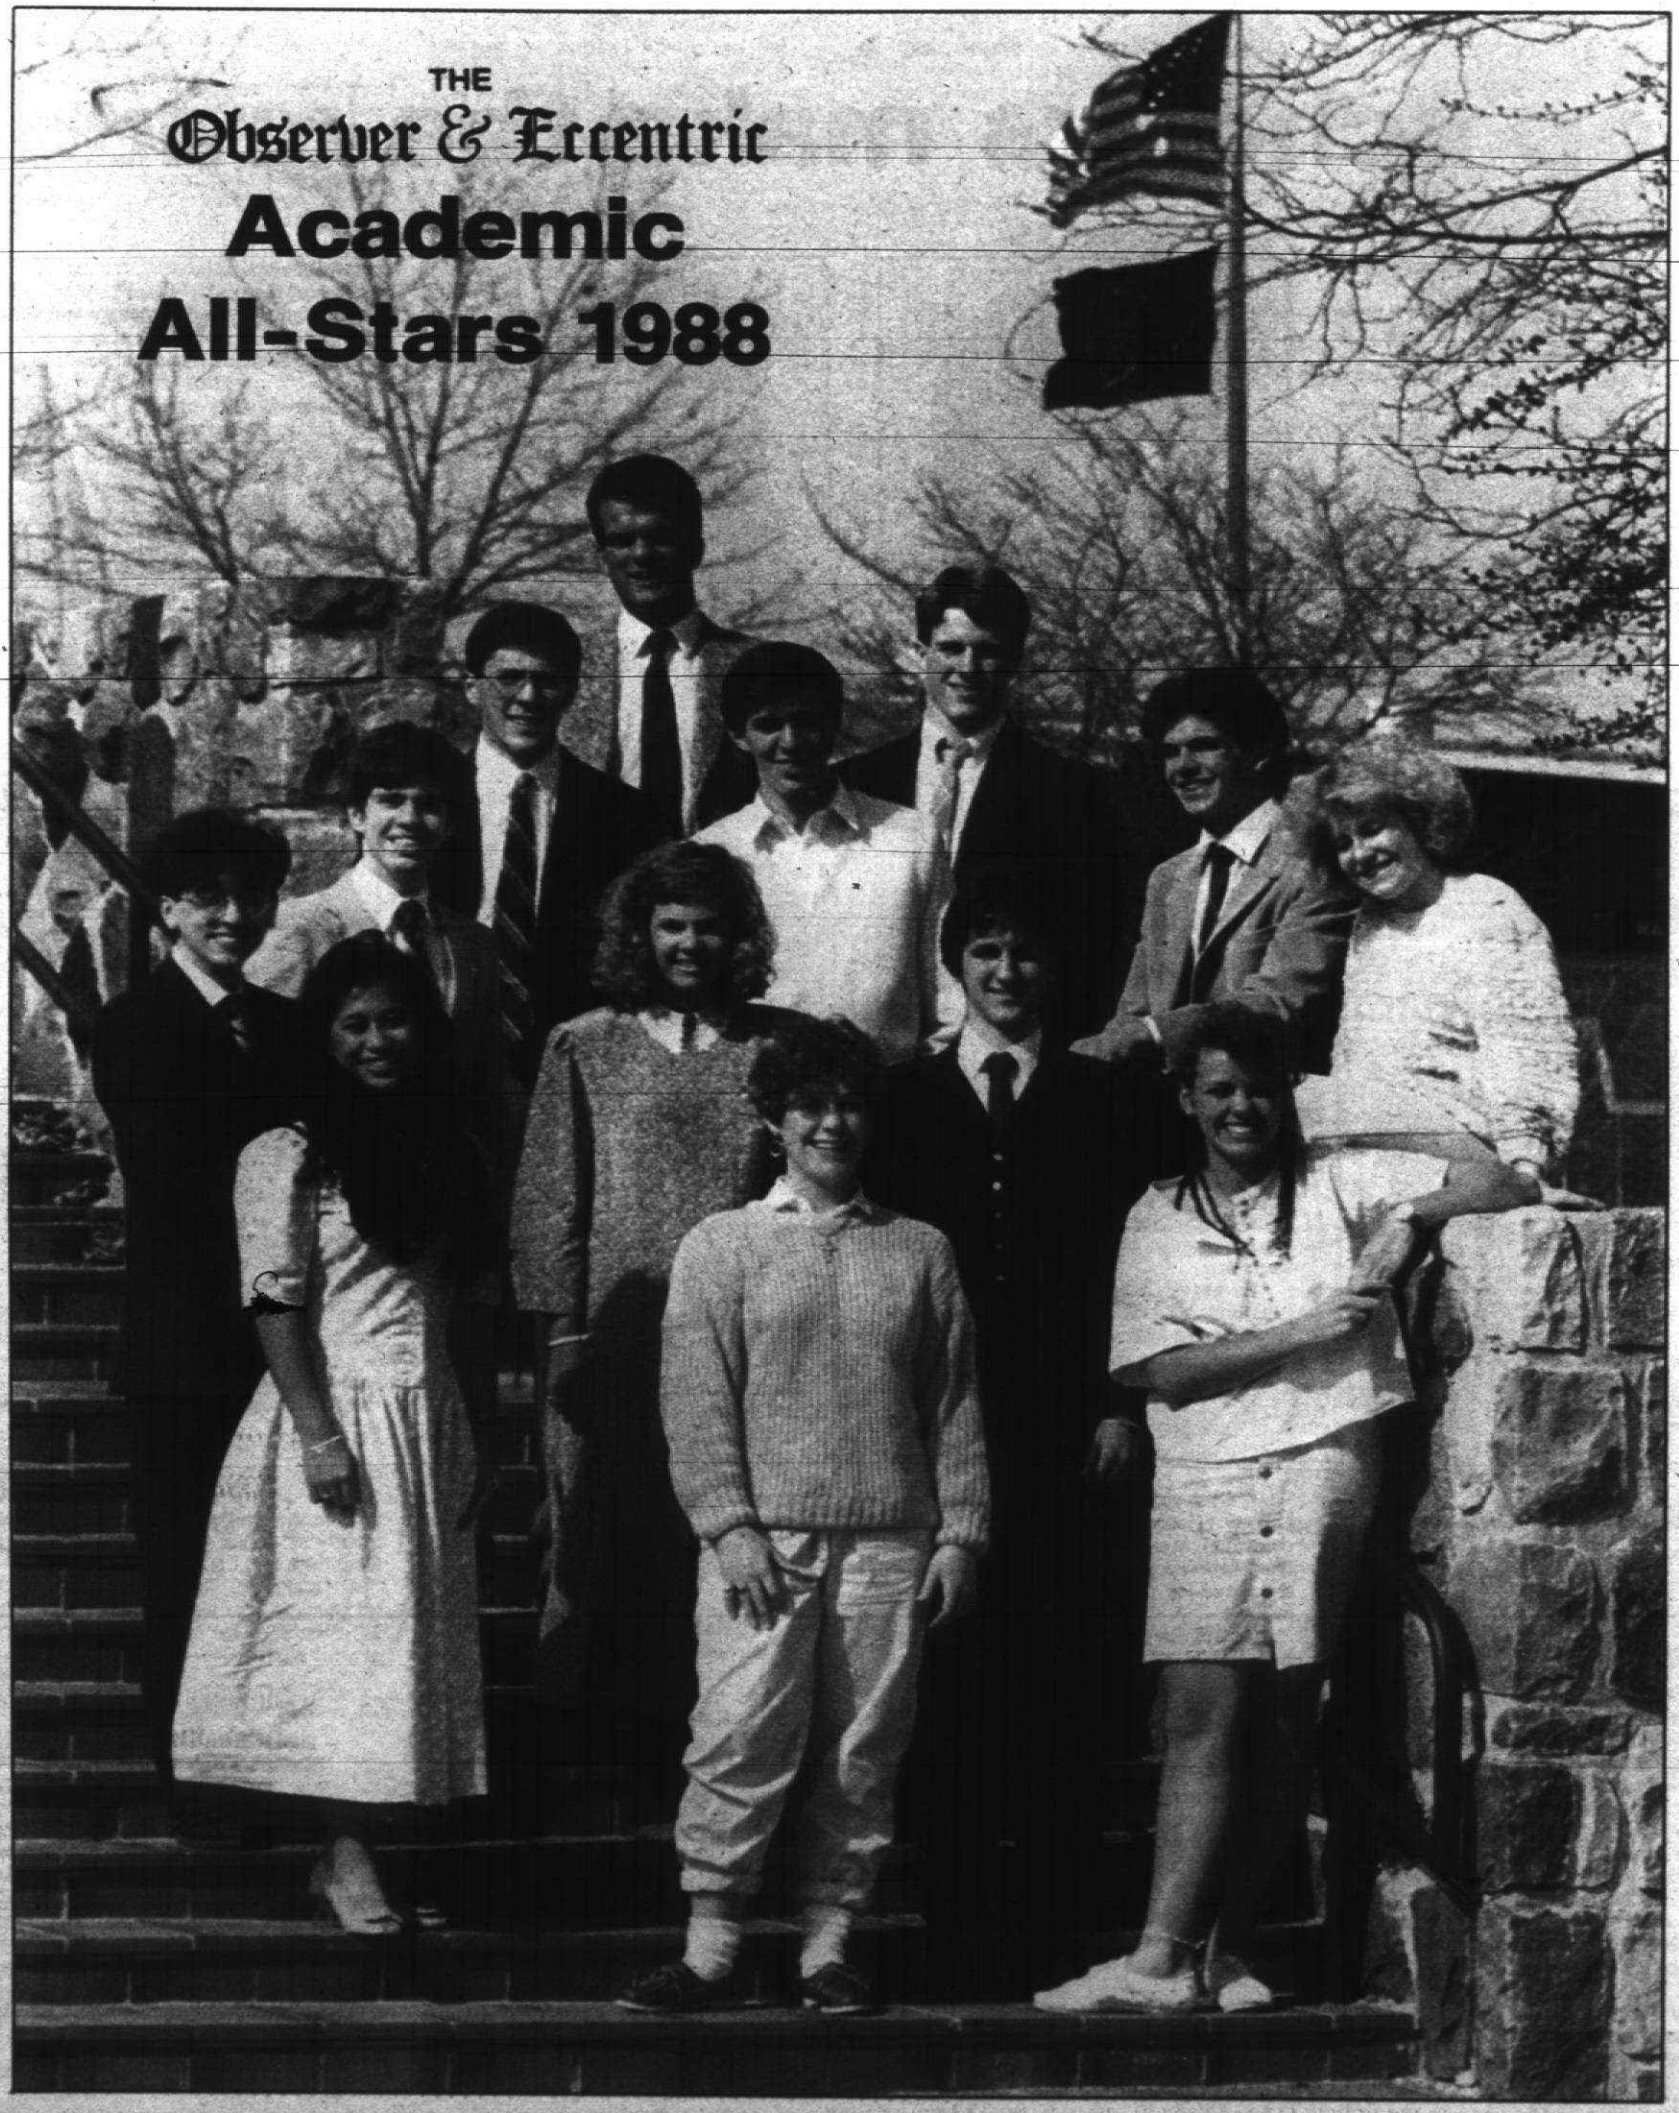
Academic All-Stars 1988



Top scholars make the grade

Kids don't want to learn anymore? Schools can't teach? Bah, humbug.

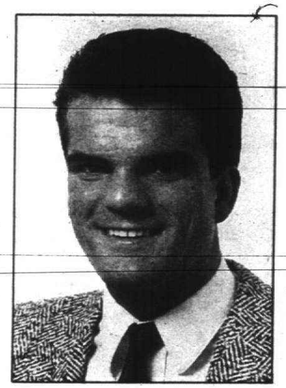
The people saying those things never had to pick the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Academic All-Star team. This year, the team is especially deep, filled with the best and brightest of 23 responding public and private schools in the Observer area.

Places like Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Michigan and Cornell will get these stars for the next four years. After that, their chosen fields will be richer for their addition.

The 15 members of the fourth annual Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Academic All-Star team were selected based on high school grade point average combined with national test scores.

Twenty-seven students were honorable mention. Academic All-Stars in their own right, they missed out on the first string only because of the depth there.

Here are this year's academic all-stars in order of ranking.



Brendan Carney

Minal Hajratwala

Suzanne Stokes

Heather L. Burrows

Robert Gibson

BRENDAN CARNEY
Stevenson High School, Livonia

Carney is a leader. He has led his class with all A's, and he has been captain of the varsity basketball and soccer teams, in addition to heading the Quiz Bowl team. When not immersed in athletics, he sings well enough to be a member of the Village Singles, a vocal ensemble.

Uncertain of a major, he will attend Michigan and plans to earn at least a master's degree. A National Merit finalist, Carney credits his father for much of his success.

"He never pushed me to excel," he said. "Instead, he gave me a living example of what the benefits of hard work are."

MINAL HAJRATWALA
Canton High School, Plymouth

An all-A student, Hajratwala plans on a career in journalism and is a good enough communicator to have appeared on an NBC television show last year to discuss the issue of dress codes in public high schools.

Hajratwala is a National Merit finalist, a member of Who's Who in the United States, a former Plymouth Rotary student of the month, a first-place winner in the Civitan essay contest and a Rensselaer medalist in science and math from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Extracurricular activites include managing editor of the school paper, National Honor Society, Quiz Bowl membership, Model United Nations, ski club, French club, Plymouth Youth Symphony (violinist) and three Indian cultural organizations.

SUZANNE STOKES
Bishop Borgess, Redford

It's on to the Air Force Academy for this all-A student, where she plans to major either in aeronautical or astronomical engineering while learning how to fly.

Stokes plays the piano, skis, is active in a variety of volunteer community groups and somehow found the time to work part time at a local restaurant. In addition, she was co-president of the sophomore class and the Spanish Club.

Honors include the Madame Curie Award, the National Honor Society, being named a National Merit semifinalist, the All-Catholic Prep Bowl Award and a recital award by the Livonia Piano Teachers Forum.

Thanks is due, said Stokes, to Judith Bellovary, a teacher who influenced her academic career the most.

HEATHER L. BURROWS
Churchill High School, Livonia

Burrows has been awarded a scholarship from Kalamazoo College, has been nominated for a scholarship at the University of Michigan and is awaiting word on acceptance from Harvard and Northwestern. Such are the awards for a high school tenure that included all A's, track, cross country and the National Honor Society.

She was also a member of the YMCA synchronized swim team, took piano lessons for five years, was active in church, a member of the Michigan Sesquicentennial Committee and the statistician for the basketball and football teams at Churchill, all of which makes her a two-time member of the All-Star team, and one of just two students returning for a second year of Observer honors.

Goals? To major either in biochemistry or to double major in biology and chemistry, with a doctorate eventually and a career in scientific research, possibly genetics.

She credits her parents, Denise and Major James Burrows, with having the biggest influence in her academic career.

"My parents have always supported me in my endeavors. They have encouraged me to take demanding classes and to strive to do my best in all that I can do," said Burrows.

ROBERT GIBSON
Lutheran High School Westland, Westland

An all-A student, Gibson plans on a career in nuclear physics and computer science.

Well rounded, he played varsity baseball, has acted in eight plays and directed one and was president of the Thespians, sang in the concert choir and with a community chamber group and was vice president of the National Honor Society.

A National Merit finalist, Gibson credits his seventh- and eighth-grade math teacher, Allen Stoll, for instilling in him his love of mathematics.

DOUGLAS DONALDSON
Plymouth Salem High School

A B-plus as a freshman is all that kept Donaldson from an all-A high school career. A heavy and productive school work load didn't keep him from extracurricular activites — he was active in church, the Model United Nations, the National Honor Society, the Quiz Bowl, the Science Olympiad, the Spanish Club and was on the staff of the school radio station.

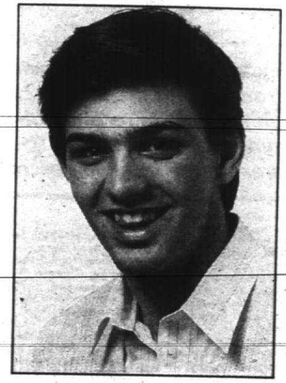
Honors include Plymouth Elks Club student of the month, a score of 100 percent on the Michigan Education Assessment Program test, Canton Rotary Club student of the month, National Merit letter of commendation and honors in the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

He will attend the University of Michigan, where he will major in engineering. The person who most influenced his academic career? Scott Beaman, a social studies teacher at Salem. "He has shown me the meaning of the word determination (and is) a model from which everyone can learn," said Donaldson.



Douglas Donaldson

Mary N. Strimel

Alexander Ballios

Neal B. Blatt

Peter D. Hanish

Gregory J. Baise

ALEXANDER BALLIOS
Stevenson High School, Livonia

One lone B in honors English when he was a sophomore kept Ballios from a perfect record. All those other As and an outstanding ACT score of 33 put him on the first team.

Ballios is as rounded as a globe of the earth. No mere bookworm, he is a Boy Scout Explorer, an American Cancer Society volunteer, an Atari computer buff, a member of a band who plays the synthesizer, a track and cross country enthusiast, conversant in Macedonian and a National Merit finalist. Ballios plans on earning a doctorate in electrical engineering at the University of Michigan.

"Although my teachers have had extreme success in my education, my parents are the most influential people in my life," said Ballios. "Their encouragement and inspiration always make me want to continue learning and experiencing over and above what the 'normal' day offers."

MARY N. STRIMEL
Mercy High School, Farmington Hills

Strimel, an all-A student, isn't sure where she will go to college, yet, but she plans on majoring either in international relations or something related to one of her loves, writing.

Another of our well-rounded All Stars, her extracurricular activities included the Spanish Honor Society, Mercy chamber orchestra, National Honors Society, forensics team and Amnesty International.

Academic honors included being a National Merit finalist, the National Council of Teachers of English Achievement in Writing Award, advancement to level II in the Michigan Math Test and being named to the All-Catholic League academic team.

"My parents have influenced me the most because they have given me ambition and the ability to work hard for my goals," she said.

NEAL B. BLATT
Harrison High School, Farmington Hills

Blatt scored a 32 on his ACT test and managed a perfect grade point in his years at Harrison, where he was president of the National Honor Society and a member of the marching band. In fact, he was musically talented enough to play cello in the Oakway Symphony Orchestra.

Though Blatt was one of the top 100 scorers in the Michigan Math Prize Prize Competition, he is unsure if he wants a career in medicine or one of the sciences. He plans on attending the University of Michigan.

Blatt credits his parents for influencing his academic career, thanking them for "not pressuring me into areas that I am interested in" and for "always making sure I maintain a proper perspective."

PETER D. HANISH
Churchill High School, Livonia

When it comes to extracurricular activities, Hanish puts the accent on extra. Only one B as a freshmen mars his all-A record, a remarkable achievement considering his varied interests.

Hanish ran track and cross country; was a member of the Michigan Sesquicentennial Committee, the German Club, the Physics Club, the stage crew for the school musical and the National Honor Society; and was photographer for the school paper. In addition, he is an Eagle and Explorer Scout, active in church and a National Merit finalist.

Hanish plans to attend the University of Michigan and wants to earn an advanced degree in electrical engineering.

GREGORY J. BAISE
Redford Union, Redford Township

Baise plans on attending Harvard, with a career in writing. Nearly an all-A student, he was editor of the school paper, secretary of the student council and captain of the Quiz Bowl team.

Academic honors, besides regularly making the honor roll, included being named a National Merit Scholar finalist and receiving the National Quill and Scroll gold key.

Baise also was a member of last year's Observer Academic All-Star team.

"My parents (Edith and Greg Baise) have given me much support, yet they have fostered my independence as well," said Baise.

Anna L. Raymundo

ANNA L. RAYMUNDO
Mercy High School, Farmington Hills

Raymundo plans on a career in medicine. The only question for this all-A student is whether she will continue her studies at Harvard, Yale or Michigan.

Academic honors include being a National Merit finalist, the Bausch and Lomb Honorary Science and Math Award, an award for her excellence in Spanish, and a bronze medal in the regional Science Olympiad.

Extracurricular activities include the Model United Nations, the National Honor Society, Spanish Honor Society, piano, violin, basketball, water-skiing, math team, computer team and a choral group.

"My academic career has been most influenced by my parents, who have encouraged (but not pushed me) to do the best I can in everything I do."

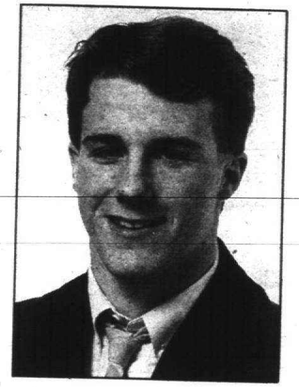
Laura J. Porterfield

LAURA J. PORTERFIELD
Plymouth Salem High School

Corporate law for an international firm is Porterfield's dream. She will continue to pursue it at the University of Michigan, where she plans to major in economics and minor in foreign studies.

Well rounded, this all-A student has studied piano for 11 years and in school was senior class president, manager for two years of the men's track team, an officer in the National Honor Society, member of the German Club and a two-year member of the varsity volleyball team.

A National Merit scholarship finalist, Porterfield credits her sixth-grade teacher, Lenore Goshorn, as her strongest influence. "(She) believed very strongly that children should be allowed to learn at their own pace, something that was very exciting and stimulating to me . . . I am still awed by the number of keys she gave me by sharing her wisdom with me."



David A. Burke

DAVID A. BURKE
Redford Union High School, Redford

Talk about Mr. Versatile. The toughest thing is trying to decide if Burke is a better student than he is an athlete. He has a perfect 4.0 grade-point average and will attend Cornell University, where he will major in engineering and play hockey on the Division I hockey team there.

Burke won a Free Press writing competition for 1984-85, the Princeton Book Award in 1986 and the RPI Math and Science Award in 1987. This year he won a National Merit Commendation and was chosen Phi Beta Kappa.

He also played with the nationally known Compuware Junior A Hockey Team and was on Team USA as a 16-year-old and was a member of Team Michigan in 1987. Future plans include a Rhodes Scholarship, the National Hockey League draft next year, the 1992 Olympic team and graduate school in business.

Burke also lettered in golf three times and in track and was a student council representative as a junior and senior.

"My parents have been most influential in my academic career," said Burke. "They expect no less than my best, and I have come to expect it, too. They have encouraged me to develop my talents and challenge myself."

Katherine Kretler

KATHERINE L. KRETLER
Farmington High School,
Farmington Hills

An entire list of Kretler's activities would take up enough space to require a special section. She did everything but drive the school bus. She was president of Students Against Driving Drunk, Student Council senator, freshman class president, National Honor Society, and a member of the marching band, the forensics team, the Latin Club, the track team, school plays and talent shows.

Honors include National Merit finalist, the Rensselaer Medal, the Madame Curie Award, a Farmington Musicale scholarship, membership in the Michigan State Fair honors band (she plays saxophone, piano and clarinet) and first place in a limbo contest. She even found time to work part time as a prep cook at a restaurant.

Plans include an undergraduate degree in psychology and a career in international law.

Educators tap stars

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers presents its fourth annual Academic All-Star team in this special publication. The 15 highest achieving high school students from the communities served by the Observer & Eccentric are featured.

The students will receive the latest edition of the Webster's New World Dictionary, a certificate of recognition and a copy of the Academic All-Star special tabloid.

Our thanks to those public and private schools who nominated students. A note of thanks also goes to the committee of Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals, who volunteered its time to select students.

Principals serving on the committee were Dale Coller, Stevenson High School; Dr. James Myers, John Glenn High School; Clayton Graham, Harrison High School; Maralynn Keil, Lahser High School; Dr. Gary Faber, West Bloomfield High School; the Rev. Dennis Andrews, Catholic Central High School; and Dr. Robert W. Schramke, Redford Union High School.

Schramke came to the Observer & Eccentric four years ago with the idea of publicly honoring students for academic achievement in the way students have been honored for sports. Thus, the Academic All-Star team was born. Schramke serves as group chairman.
