Tax hike OK could restore some proposed school cuts

By Doug Funke
staff writer

No teachers would be laid off next year and participation fees for sports and other extracurricular activities would not be assessed on students if voters in the Plymouth-Canton school district approve a tax increase June 13.

The tax increase would be in the form of a Headlee override.

The school board Monday, acting upon recommendations of its administration, reached consensus on more than $2 million of previously identified spending cuts that would be restored next year if voters say yes to the override.

THE "BUY-BACKS" would include:

- Forty-nine teaching and certified staff positions — $1.1 million.
- A 50-percent reduction rather than a total spending freeze from initial budget projections on new textbooks districtwide — $157,000.
- A 6-percent rather than 29-percent cut in discretionary money allocated to individual schools usually used to buy extras like books and supplies — $144,000.
- A 13-percent rather than 33-percent decrease in aides who assist in classrooms, offices, playgrounds and lunchrooms at the ele mentary level — $114,500.
- A 32-percent rather than 40-percent cut in the major maintenance budget — $100,000.

THE HEADLEE override would allow continuation of an alternative Begindergarten Program and maintenance of class sizes in the Talented and Gifted Program at current levels.

Several other areas — alternative education, clerical and administrative support staff and aides at the secondary level — remain in flux.

"If the Headlee override passes, those four areas are going to get a good, hard look . . . a super scrutiny," said David Artley, school board president.

A sports and activity fee — $50 per activity with a maximum of $100 per student and $150 per family at the high school level, $30-$60-$90, respectively, at middle school — would be rescinded with the override.

Artley said he has been contacted by approximately 40 people since school officials started dealing with the 1988-89 budget.

"I THINK the process of review is extremely important. We're looking real hard at areas and we're going to achieve efficiencies wherever we can that don't affect the classroom.

"I was comfortable with the process," Artley said. "All things weren't unanimously agreed to. We were getting a variety of perspectives."

A committee formed to promote a tax-increase proposal that failed in March will be asked to reconvene and recommend a strategy for ensuring that the proposal passes.

"There's two schools of thought — whether you work very diligently at

Complaints keep Canton ordinance enforcers busy

By Diane Gale

A Canton resident recently called the building department wanting something done about her next door neighbor's habit of vacuuming too early in the morning. It was 8 a.m.

The department also fields about 20 calls a year from residents angry about their neighbors' sprinklers and their irritating swishing sound.

The callers want township officials to fix the problems. But there's no ordinance limiting vacuums or sprinklers. Still, the calls keep coming each year.

"You try to be as helpful as you can, but there are limitations on what you can enforce," said Miles Davis, Canton ordinance officer.

"Some people think ordinances cover everything there is."

THIS YEAR, Canton's building department will receive approximately 2,000 calls from residents complaining about neighbors or unsavory business practices, said Aaron Machnik, chief building official.

Most of the time, residents only need to have the problem pointed out and it is resolved. If neighbors addressed problems directly a lot of the calls to the building department would be erased, Machnik said.

"It's usually a personality thing," Machnik said. "They may say I don't like you standing on my property and telling me what to do, but I understand the rules."

A written warning from the building department follows an inspector's personal meeting. If all else fails, a ticket is issued. Machnik estimates that of the 2,000 complaints, only 50 will result in tickets.

"Each case is different," Davis said. "You try to find out what the problem is and work from there."

Machnik said the department's first priority is to deal with neighbor complaints. Nuisance and blight violations — like piles of junk in someone's backyard — are the most common complaints.

"If it's inside a home, we try to observe the principle that a home is a person's castle and we won't get a warrant to go in," Machnik said. "If folks aren't bothering neighbors, we try to let people alone if we can."

MOST HOME improvements require building permits. A general rule to follow, Machnik said, is if the work involves more than $200, the change probably requires a permit.

Local students battle against drunk driving

Auto accidents are the number one killer of teenagers in the United States and alcohol is involved in at least half the accidents, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Association.

At school year's end, when the weather finally turns civil and summer vacation is just a few tests away, parents, teachers and police worry.

For young people, it's party time. At Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, graduation and social calendars are full.

Students and staff at Centennial Educational Park are hoping steps they've taken will help prevent accidents and deaths this spring and summer.

A recently formed Plymouth-Canton chapter of Students Against Drinking and Drugs sponsored an assembly to help convince students that drunk driving kills.

Brian Moore, partially paralyzed in an accident his senior year, told students what happened to him.

"IT WAS very graphic to have him go across the stage with a walker," said Mary Vertrees, Canton High School service specialist who helped organize the assembly.

"He was a Bentley High School senior in 1978, and was drinking Molson Golden and driving with buddies when an accident resulted in him flying through the fiberglass roof. He was in a coma for more than three quarters of a year. He couldn't speak or move. Brian said his dad told him, 'We can get a new Bronco, but we can't get a new Brian.' "

Vertrees added, "We're very cognizant of the fact that scare tactics are not an effective deterrent for kids. But (relating) real-life experiences, particularly when it's an accident where kids were hurt, does bring it home."

Most students who have joined the SADD chapter at Centennial Educational Park "have had a significant person in their life, a friend or family member, involved with substance abuse," she said.

SADD members feel "there's no responsible use, although they invite other kids to join and want an open discussion."

Unlike their counterparts in metro Detroit, CEP's SADD chapter isn't sponsoring a "safe ride" campaign this spring. But students are participating in WCZY-FM radio's

Trial is set for resident

A Canton resident faces a jury trial on a disorderly conduct charge after a confrontation with a Canton police officer during the hot air balloon festival last year.

The charges stem from a confrontation Leo Medley had with a Canton officer working traffic control during the Mayflower Hot Air Balloon Festival.

Medley reportedly wanted the officers' name and badge number after being stopped by the officer. When the officer allegedly refused, Medley tried to take a picture. The officer then arrested Medley on disorderly conduct charges.

Resident in fight to save preserve

By Arlene Funke

"I bought this house because of the park," said Canton resident Cris Selden, who lives next to the William P. Holliday nature preserve.

Selden and her husband, Doug, enjoy listening to the many chirping birds who nest in the densely wooded nature park behind their lot. The couple stand in their yard and see small animals search for food.

But that pastoral setting near Koppernick, between Warren Road and Joy, is threatened by a proposal to turn part of the nature area into a public golf course.

"If I had wanted to be on a golf course I would have done so," said Selden, 33, publicity chairwoman for the newly formed Holliday Nature Preserve Association, a group fighting the golf course project. The association was formed in March, several weeks after the golf proposal was announced.

Selden, a full-time homemaker ("although I prefer the term domestic engineer"), formerly taught at the Washtenaw Community College day-care center in Ypsilanti.

"I LOVE it here," said Selden of her one-acre parcel. "It's relaxing. I find it very therapeutic after a busy day. I watch the birds. There are rabbits and raccoons. It's like being in the Upper Peninsula with all the conveniences."

The 500-acre nature preserve, which is owned by Wayne County, is surrounded by Canton Township and the cities of Livonia and Westland. It was created in the late 1950s from funds in the estate of the late Arthur J. Richardson and named after Richardson's late uncle, William P. Holliday.

The bequest stipulates that the land be used for park purposes.

The park has walking trails winding through tall stands of beech and maple trees. Naturalists have seen horned owls, and screech owls and other bird species in the preserve, Selden said. The tall trees are considered ideal for cooper hawks and warblers, which nest and breed there.

Westland Mayor Charles Griffin is spearheading the drive to develop an 18-hole golf course north of Warren Road and west of Hix. The plan calls for using part of the county-owned land and several acres of Westland property adjacent to the preserve. Under the proposal, the county would sell or lease its portion of land for the city-operated course.

"THEY WANT 99 acres in the prime part of this preserve," Selden said.

"There are at least 26 public golf courses within a 10-mile radius of the preserve," Selden added. "We're not opposed to golf. We're opposed to where they want it."

Selden, who grew up in Grosse Pointe and formerly lived in Westland and Ann Arbor, moved to Canton a couple of years ago. Husband Doug is employed by the General Motors Engine Plant in Livonia.

"I wanted an area with lots of trees," Selden said. "I walk this park two or three times a day. I found out about (the project) when I got a flyer in my mailbox."

The opposition group, which claims 150 members, has attracted the attention of nearby neighbors, nature-lovers and other concerned people. Selden doesn't claim to be a naturalist — just a devotee of the outdoors who enjoys gardening and cross-country skiing.

The Holliday Nature Preserve Association meets the first Wednesday of each month at Churchill High School, 8900 Newburgh, Livonia. Meetings are at 7 p.m. in the school's library.

THE GROUP has launched a big publicity campaign. A cleanup was held in the park in late March. Buttons and T-shirts will be sold.

In addition, the association is helping to arrange escorted tours of the park's trails. The next tour will be at 10 a.m. Sunday, May 22, beginning at the east end pavilion at Koppernick Road. Another outing is scheduled at 8 a.m. Sunday, May 29.

Members of the Audubon Society have furnished guides with information about wildlife in the preserve.

"We've met with three key people from the Wayne County Commissioners in Detroit," Selden added. "I think there is enough public interest and enough outcry that we have a very good opportunity to stop this."

Meanwhile, the Holliday boosters envision more cleanup projects, and they hope to develop ongoing programs with nature and scout groups.

"We want to get more people aware of this park," Selden said. "Many people aren't aware of the diversity of wildlife, birds, and flowers."

Resident faces trial after festival fracas reason Medley was going to his residence?" Medley questioned in a letter written to the Observer.

He said he was going home to take his medication and aid his mentally retarded cousin.

Medley is free on a $100 cash bond and faces a jury trial June 1 in 35th District Court before Judge James Garber. If he is found guilty, the maximum penalty is 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

"The jury will decide Mr. Medley's case and whether he was a disorderly person," said Sam Ayyash, his court appointed attorney. "Our position is that he wasn't disorderly," Ayyash said.

Medley, 66, has also complained about township expenditures — some $5,000 — for items like traffic control during the festival. He charges the Canton Township Board with violating local ordinances by allowing the festival.

ALSO IN the letter to the Observer, Medley questioned why Canton police blocked access to his and other residents' property? (More than 80 Canton residents signed a petition last year complaining about the festival.)

"Celebrate Summer Slogan Contest," said Vertrees.

"They want all people to know they can have a fun-filled summer without the use of mind-altering drugs."

THE SENIOR PARTY, a popular, all-night graduation celebration for both Canton and Salem seniors, has a dual purpose, said Ken Smith, Canton senior adviser.

"Here in Plymouth-Canton, it's been a tradition. It's totally sponsored by parents, just to congratulate students for a job well done. It does give them something to do during that time, and it does deter them from the screwy driving and impromptu parties in motels," Smith said.

"I can't say that they don't (take chances), but we try to discourage that as much as we can by having activities like this."

The community needs to share responsibility for helping make the graduation season safe for students, Smith said.

"Motel owners and members of the community really have to get on the stick and say we will not rent out unless the person is of age.

"The schools really have attempted to make it a safe graduation without personal tragedies," Smith said.

Fun is just as big a priority as safety at the senior party, an extravaganza featuring food and refreshments, door prizes, entertainment, and dancing but no drinking June 12, added Smith.

"The facilities are just opened up for the kids. It's an excellent activity for people from both schools who just want to have fun.

"We hope all the education and speakers we've had in will help young people realize this is a fun time, but a serious time to think about their behaviors," said Smith.

SANDI WOLF, employed by Mothers Against Drunk Driving, is president of Project Graduation.

Project Graduation, comprised of PTA members, school administrators, counselors, and other volunteers from southeastern Michigan, attempts "to help the lives of teenagers by reminding kids that friends are for life," Wolf said.

Project Graduation is sponsoring an awareness campaign with the help of SADD chapters, 7-Eleven stores, tuxedo rental companies and florists.

"Reminders on coolers and check out counters at 7-Eleven say 'Think before you drink.'

"White cards, paid for by MADD and being inserted in tuxedo pockets and flower boxes say, 'Friends are for life. Friends don't let friends drive drunk. Be a friend,'" said Wolf.

"Obviously, we'd like to see no drinking with high school kids," she added. "I think the greatest thing SADD does is empower the kids with the opportunity to make a change in the drinking and driving in their own schools. It gives them an opportunity to say we care; to pick a designated driver, someone who won't drink and drive."

End-of-year activities set

Reading, writing and arithmetic soon will give way to senior soirees at Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. On the agenda are proms, honors convocations and baccalaureate ceremonies.

It's a special year at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools, as the graduating classes of 1988 are the largest ever.

Here are some dates you may want to mark on your calendar if there's a graduate in the family:

Wednesday, May 25, at 7:30 p.m.: Salem Senior Honors Convocation for Plymouth Salem High School seniors, to be held in Salem's auditorium.

Wednesday, June 1, at 7 p.m.: Canton Senior Honors Convocation, Plymouth Canton High School Cafetorium.

Friday, June 3, 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.: Senior Prom for Canton and Salem seniors, Fairlane Manor, Dearborn.

Wednesday, June 8: Last full day of school for seniors.

Sunday, June 12: Baccalaureate services at area churches in honor of Canton and Salem graduating classes.

Sunday, June 12, 1:30 p.m.: Canton graduation ceremonies to be held in Hill Auditorium at the University of Michigan, 825 N. University Ave. at Thayer in Ann Arbor.

Sunday, June 12, 5 p.m.: Salem graduation ceremonies in Hill Auditorium.

Sunday, June 12, 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.: The senior party, featuring all the food students can eat, refreshments, entertainment, dancing and prize giveaways, will be held at Plymouth Salem High School. The party is open to Centennial Educational Park graduates only.

Although he is lenient about issuing citations against work done inside a home, he encourages residents who deal with electricity to get a permit. An inspection could prevent a hazard, he said.

"People always think if I get a permit my taxes will go up," Machnik said. He notes, however, that Canton's tax assessor usually visits neighborhoods and would probably notice new decks and other major improvements.

This time of year complaints are often called regarding recreational vehicles, including travel trailers, pickup campers, motorized homes, folding tent trailers and boats. Other recreational equipment includes snowmobiles, special terrain vehicles and utility trailers.

Recreational vehicles are prohibited from driveways, but are permitted in rear yards providing they don't take up more than 25 percent of the area. They're not allowed for living purposes and must be registered in the name of the homeowner where it is parked.

"When people live next to one another and do business with one another, there will be complaints," Machnik said.

the building level . . . as opposed to going to a grandiose, all-out campaign," said Superintendent John M. Hoben.

Trustee E.J. McClendon said that people who live in the district with no children in the schools still have a lot at stake in the upcoming election. If the schools develop a bad reputation, property values could go down, he said.

"For most people in my age group, the largest single investment is in homes," McClendon said. "You can lose that fairly fast, in my judgment."

A Headlee override would enable the school board to set an operating tax rate of $37 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value).

Without the override, the tax rate likely will be set at $34.17 for operations.

The difference to the owner of a house worth $100,000 is about $141 a year.

1st Kite Classic outing soars

Last weekend's Canton Kite Classic could be the start of something big.

The township's first kite classic proved popular among youngsters and oldsters, as the skies above the Canton Recreation Complex attested.

Kites were given away to more than 100 kids, and as many as 50 kites flying simultaneously decorated Saturday's baby blue skies.

Sponsored by the Westside Christian church group of Canton, the event was intended to bring families together to enjoy kite building, decorating and flying.

Westside Christian preacher Bob Girdwood pegged the crowd at about 300. Many came from nearby soccer fields after spotting the airborne kites.

"I asked one of the parents how the soccer game went, and she said, 'We lost. You know, I think they were watching the kites instead of the ball.'

"I haven't seen any irate coaches, so I guess everyone loves us," Girdwood said.

Lucas Markel of Canton went home happy. He won a 9-foot Delta Wing kite in a raffle.

THE CLASSIC "was definitely a success. We'll do it again next year," said Girdwood.

"Parks and Rec were very much interested in our results and wondered if we were interested in doing it again.

"We assured them that we are.

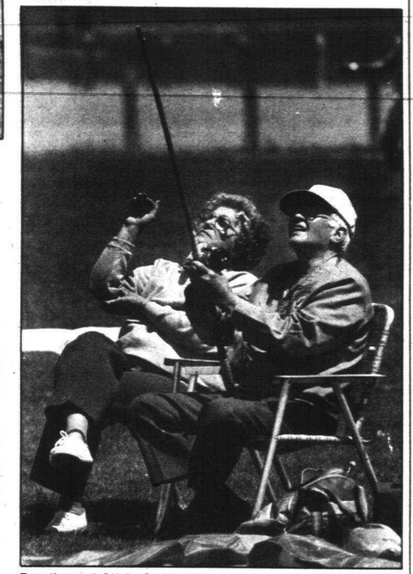
"We had a number of people, at least a dozen, that were there from a professional kite fliers club in the area," added Girdwood.

"They had some big kites up; one had a teddy bear with an American flag dragging from it. They had some real fancy combinations of varying kinds.

"One of the things that probably was the most interesting to me was the decorating," Girdwood said.

"We had 10 tables set up with white diamond kites we gave out. Kids colored pictures on them with markers and crayons. Prizes were given away for the best design. Some of the parents got into it, too. We had a raft of people up and down the tables coloring all different kinds of designs."

Folks at the classic also were treated to a stunt kiting show.



Dorothy and Clyde Smith relax and enjoy the kite-flying display.

Developers eyeing school land parcels

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Developers are wooing Plymouth-Canton school officials, trying to convince them to sell land in Plymouth and Canton Township.

Virginia Schneider, owner of the Versatile building in Plymouth, wants to build condominiums on two acres behind Starkweather School in Old Village.

The property fronts Edward Hines Park, and is worth an estimated $25,000 per acre, said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

S.R.L. Properties Inc. wants to buy six acres to build single-family homes in the southwestern corner of the 300-acre Centennial Educational Park site, east of Beck and south of Joy in Canton.

The land adjoins 32 vacant acres also targeted by S.R.L. for single-family homes.

The land is worth more than $12,000 an acre, Hoedel said. J.R. Jones Property Investments Inc. of Westland, which is representing S.R.L. Properties, is offering $6,300 per acre, the same price they paid for the adjoining 32 acres.

Neither site is necessarily for sale, Superintendent John Hoben said. Trustees have yet to consider formally either offer.

PLYMOUTH CITY manager Henry Graper also may be interested in the Starkweather property.

"I don't know what the topography is. If it's flat, or something near flat, it could be used for some type of recreational activity. I would be very interested and the city commission would be very interested in acquiring it.

"We're really starving now for recreational acreage and we don't have much down in the Old Village area," Graper said.

Graper is suggesting that the district offer local units of government the right of first refusal before selling land.

"The federal government has a program whereby if they have a piece of property within your city or township that's deemed surplus property for the operation of government, they offer it to you for $1. You have to use it for some purpose in perpetuity or replace it with other acreage you own.

"I'm not proposing they do that. I'm saying look at the fair market value and offer it to us at fair market value prior to putting it on the market to all other interested individuals," Graper said.

"What that (promotes) is a little bit better cooperative spirit among municipalities because we're concerned about how land is developed. I would do the same thing for them. I think there should be reciprocity. It's just common courtesy."

"Neither (Hoben) nor myself have any problem with that," Hoedel said. "The city is only two square miles and there's not a whole lot of land available for parks and recreation. But on behalf of the district and residents, we would want fair market value. We're having budget problems, so it would be foolish for us to give that away."

LITTLE CRITICISM can be found of the developers' plans.

The condominium "decks would face Hines Drive. It'd be very beautiful. Probably, it would make a very nice project," Hoedel said.

"I think condos are very viable in our community," Graper said. "There's an awful lot of them under construction. If you get in the right price range, they go like wildfire. Overlooking Hines Park is a prime situation. It's gorgeous. If we couldn't use it, the schools could sell and it could be put on the tax rolls."

Homesites behind CEP aren't a bad idea, Hoben said, but first the board needs to decide whether the land will be needed for a recreational site or a third high school.

"Currently, we're land poor, if you look at growth 20 years out.

"I don't want to pre-empt the board, we just got the offer a week or so ago," Hoben said. "But I indicated to them there is the potential of selling some of that land. But we need to hold onto it until we make some decision as to a third high school. As early as 1992, we'll have a projected 5,200 students and the need for another high school.

"Right now, we can't accommodate that many out there."

JUST ONE other school-owned site could be used for a high school: 40 acres behind Field School off Lilley, he said.

S.R.L. currently is building some 40 homes off North Territorial in Plymouth Township, said James Jones, J.R. Jones Propery Investments Inc. consultant and construction manager.

S.R.L.'s Canton development would feature 85 homes; 2.2 per acre, Jones said. The firm is going to the Canton Planning Commission tonight with a rezoning request.

Local science teams compete

Accolades are in order for the Science Olympiad teams of Plymouth-Salem and Plymouth-Canton High Schools.

Canton and Salem squads qualified to compete in the Michigan Science Olympiad at Grand Valley State University, last month, and came away with fifth and 17th place, respectively.

Team members were honored with a resolution by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education last week.

The proclamation praised students for "distinguishing themselves in regional and state competition" and for demonstrating "one of the benefits of living and learning in the Plymouth-Canton community."

Plymouth-Canton Olympians included Robin Blair, Marc Holdwick, Jay Laney, Pam Penland, Ron Rojeski, Chris Way, Even Yeung, Alex Chien, Dan Gorsich, Jim Hartnett, Cathy Yeung, Mike Abesamis, Charles LeFurgy, Brian Shu, Steve Wesner and their coach, Steve Rae.

Vandals hit vehicles

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A vandalism and theft spree involving vehicles in Canton cost residents thousands of dollars in damage and stolen property.

From Friday, May 13, through Monday, May 15, at least 17 Canton residents reported their vehicles damaged. Radar detectors were the most commonly stolen item.

The weekend before there were more than 20 larcenies from autos, said Dave Boljesic, Canton information officer.

Canton police are without suspects, he said.

"We strongly urge people who choose to own radar detectors to take them out of view of passersby," Boljesic said. "If they don't it's an open invitation to have their windows smashed. Radar detectors are expensive and easily sold. It's just a hot item."

SOME OF THE incidents reported to police follow:

- The passenger window of a two-door 1987 Dodge Charger was smashed May 15 while the car was in the driveway of a home in the 5600 block of Fordham Circle. A radar detector, valued at $250, and a $25 rear-view mirror were reported stolen, a police report said. Damage to the passenger window was valued at $150.
- A garage door opener was taken May 15 from an unlocked red 1988 Chevrolet parked in the driveway of a home in the 2400 block of Brookfield. It was valued at $50, a police report said.
- The driver's door window of a white 1987 Honda Prelude parked in the 42000 block of Amhurst Court was broken May 15 causing $250 damage. A radar detector, valued at $60, was stolen.
- Owners of a blue 1986 Ford Taurus reported a smashed car window May 15. The damage was listed at $100.
- A rear-view mirror, valued at $150, was stolen from a 1987 Ford Aerostar Van May 15 in the 41000 block of Bedford, a police report said. The driver's door window, valued at $150, was also damaged. It is believed the rear view mirror was mistaken for a radar detector.
- Vandals caused $130 worth of damage May 15 to a passenger side window on a 1984 Mercury Topez parked in the 6900 block of Foxthorn. A $40 radar detector was taken and a $25 rear view mirror was damaged.
- Unknown people stole more than $1,000 worth of boat equipment May 15 from a white 1972 boat parked in the 6300 block of Clarendon.
- A rear window on a brown 1983 Chevy parked in the 8000 block of Brook park was smashed May 15. The damage was listed at $250 on the police report.
- About $500 worth of damage was done to a school bus parked on the 7900 block of Sheldon May 15. Police arrested two youths caught shooting rocks with sling shots at the bus.
- Owners of a 1978 brown Pontiac Lemans reported $200 worth of damage by vandals who smashed a window May 15.
- A $100 CB radio was reported stolen May 14 from a 1977 GMC pick-up. The driver's window was broken. Damage was listed at $100.
- A car phone and briefcase were taken from a 1984 Mercury Topez parked in the driveway of a home in the 7500 block of Embassy May 14. Damage to a window was listed at $175. The briefcase was found in a ditch in Plymouth Township.
- A $200 radar detector and almost $600 worth of water ski equipment were reported stolen May 14 from a 1988 maroon Pontiac Grand Am. Police speculated the car window was broken with a BB gun.
- A $150 radar detector was reported stolen May 13 from a four-door maroon 1987 Cadillac. A police report said the owner of the car went into the Kroger store, on Sheldon and Ford roads, for five or 10 minutes when the theft happened. Damage to the window was listed at $100.
- Almost $1,000 worth of camera equipment was reported stolen May 13 from a 1984 Mazda pick-up parked in the driveway of a home on the 6100 block of Courtland.

Cruise control

Young drivers keep police busy

By Doug Funke
staff writer

They're back.

Cruisers, that is.

Last weekend was the busiest of the year for city police grappling with traffic congestion caused by young people driving into downtown Plymouth looking for a good time.

Large numbers of motorists, noise and alcohol-related offenses, like minors in possession, were evident — especially on Saturday, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

A couple of fights broke out Friday night at Oliver's Pizza, 1070 S. Main.

"It was a weekend that proved to be nowhere near proportions it was a year ago at this time, but still it was very active," Sincock said.

Pedestrian-related problems, trespassing and loitering in business parking lots haven't materialized yet, he added.

NEITHER SINCOCK nor Police Chief Richard Myers could provide an exact number of cruise-related tickets issued. At least six speeding violations were handed out last weekend, Myers said.

Police were shorthanded due to quirks in scheduling, Myers said. That probably resulted in the writing of fewer tickets than might have been expected.

However, five temporary officers hired for the warm-weather months are to begin patrolling tomorrow.

Also, enforcement will begin this weekend for a residents-only, on-street parking program where petitioned on a block-by-block basis.

So far, a majority of homeowners on two sections of Dewey, two on Ross and one on Hartsough have asked that only themselves and guests be allowed to park on the street from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

VIOLATORS RISK a $25 fine and/or towing, Sincock said.

The parking program was established to keep cruisers off residential streets.

"Once we begin enforcement, I anticipate we'll have additional streets requesting information," Sincock said.

No traffic control devices, like barricades limiting flow on Main Street or access to parking lots, have been used this spring.

"That is strictly going to be a response to a particular condition that has to exist," Myers said. "Basically, that's the formation of gridlock and inability of us to get emergency vehicles up and down Main Street."

Motorists got bogged down at times last weekend, Sincock said.

"Traffic was backed up trying to make a left turn from southbound Main to eastbound Ann Arbor Road for several blocks.

"We also noted the right turn lane from westbound Ann Arbor Road to northbound Main filled up the entire right turn lane and beyond," he added.

A RATHER cool spring and word getting out about how the city responds to cruisers has kept traffic down until now, Sincock said.

"We have a very public campaign. While people are encouraged to come out any time and drive up and down the streets and walk up and down the sidewalks, they have to do it in a lawful manner," he said.

"The rules are the same for everyone — firm, fair, consistent enforcement."

Judges in 35th District Court last year levied penalties and fines of more than $200 for disorderly conduct-type convictions and guilty pleas stemming from cruising activity.

Libertarian in race for Congress

The district includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton Township, among other communities. The seat is held by Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor.

Blankenburg said he would run a "hard-hitting, grassroots campaign." He criticized Ford's stand on taxpayer and U.S. Post Office issues and criticized area Republicans for failing to successfully challenge the veteran Congressman.

Blankenburg, 29, is a computer consultant to the automotive industry. He is a former Republican party district delegate.

AS CONGRESSMAN, Blankenburg said he would move to privatize government services and cut waste from governmental departments, including defense.

He also said he favors Libertarian Party positions calling for abolition of the federal income tax, elimination of welfare programs and gradual phasing out of Social Security.

Blankenburg also called for an end to foreign aid, though he said he supports allowing citizens to privately assist the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and other similar groups.

On other issues, Blankenburg said he opposes Medicaid abortion financing, a military draft and farm subsidies.

Ratings by special interest groups give voters an important yardstick for measuring where individual lawmakers stood on the year's major House and Senate roll calls.

Here's the lineup of local legislators

Here is the lineup of area members of the U.S. House of Representatives:

- 2nd District — Carl Pursell, 55, R-Plymouth, elected in 1976 after service on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and state Senate. District includes northern two-thirds of Livonia.
- 15th District — William D. Ford, 60, D-Taylor, elected in 1966 after service in the state Senate and as a delegate to the state constitutional convention. District includes Garden City, Westland, Canton and southern third of Livonia.
- 17th District — Sander Levin, 56, D-Southfield, elected in 1982 after service in the state Senate and as Democratic state chairman. District includes Southfield and Redford Township.

U.S. Senators are Donald W. Riegle Jr., 50, a Democrat from Flint, elected in 1976 after five terms in the House; and Carl Levin, 53, Democrat from Detroit, elected in 1978 after two terms on the Detroit City Council.

Democratsstress harmony, victory

Michigan Democrats wrapped up their presidential delegate process last weekend at a meeting heavily sprinkled with calls for party unity and an all-out effort to regain the White House this fall.

"The big question is not who goes to the national convention, but who goes to the White House," said state party chairman Richard Wiener, who added Democrats were unified about "electing a Democratic president and ending the Reagan Revolution once and for all."

The main business of the state committee meeting was to fill the delegate slots won by Jesse Jackson of Illinois and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis in the March 26 caucuses.

MICHIGAN WILL be sending 138 committed delegates to the July 18-21 party convention in Atlanta. At-large delegates were chosen last weekend, others were chosen at local district conventions May 7.

Of the state's delegation, 74 will be pledged to Jackson, 55 will belong to Dukakis and nine to Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt, who quit the race two days after his poor showing in Michigan.

Locally, Jackson gained eight delegates; Dukakis five and Gephardt one.

- 15th District — Jackson: Ethel Howard, Ypsilanti, and John Sedluck, Taylor. Dukakis: Benjamin DeHart, Westland. Gephardt: Harless Scott, Taylor. Howard is district vice chairwoman, DeHart is a Westland councilman. Patricia Hough, Westland, is a Jackson alternate.

The 15th District includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton Township, among other communities. It is represented in Congress by William Ford, D-Taylor.

- 2nd District — Jackson: John Kircher, Hillsdale, and Maria Ringo, Ann Arbor. Dukakis: Jim Douglas, Saline, and Ann Graham, Jackson. Bunyon Bryant, Ann Arbor, is a Jackson alternate. Barb Johnson, Livonia, is a Dukakis alternate.

The 2nd District includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, among other communities. It is represented in Congress by Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

- 17th District — Jackson: Arnessie D. Evans and Anne Harp, both of Southfield, Larry Lewis, Detroit, and Hilliard Hampton, Inkster; Dukakis: Maxine Berman, Southfield, and Paul Massaron, Oak Park. Berman is a state representative. UAW official John Dewan is an alternate Dukakis delegate. Freeman Hendrix, head appraiser in the Detroit city assessor's office, is a Jackson alternate.

The 17th District includes Redford Township and Southfield, among other communities. It is represented in Congress by Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

JACKSON'S VICTORY in Michigan temporarily put him in a tie with Dukakis in the delegate hunt, but Dukakis has racked up a string of victories since then. According to the latest delegate count by The Associated Press, Dukakis has 1,599.2 delegates to Jackson's 944.1. It takes at least 2,081 to wrap up the nomination.

With Dukakis closing in on the nomination, Joel Ferguson, the chairman of the Jackson campaign in Michigan, made a pledge of unity.

"All those individuals that we have (in the Jackson delegation) are committed to two things. One is to support Jesse Jackson and his positions throughout the convention. Two is to work for the nominee, whoever he is," Ferguson said.

"We feel that we're going to Atlanta pretty much together, and we're going to come out of Atlanta very much together."

Congressman Dennis Hertel, the head of the Dukakis effort in Michigan, echoed those comments.

"This is the last time we're going to divide up in the state of Michigan. When we come back after the convention, we will all be unified, like Joel has said. We'll all be working together," the Detroit Democrat said.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Interest groups rate our legislators

By Richard G. Thomas
special writer

Many of the nation's capital special interests have issued vote ratings for the 1987 session of Congress. They give their constituents an important yardstick for measuring where individual lawmakers stood on the year's major House and Senate roll calls.

Eight of these ratings are presented in the accompanying chart, which shows how frequently Observer area lawmakers cast votes for or against an interest group's policy goals.

Four groups are from the left side of the ideological spectrum, and four represent the right.

TO THE EXTENT that lawmakers can be judged by the company they keep on key legislative issues, the chart should prove useful to voters weighing whether incumbents deserve their support in this year's congressional elections.

Interest groups already are getting mileage out of their ratings. They use them not only to plan endorsements but to direct the flow of campaign contributions. They also provide their memberships a listing of friends and foes on Capitol Hill.

AS HELPFUL as "The Ratings Game" can be in sizing up federal lawmakers, its limitations as an evaluation tool should be kept in mind.

Ratings do not monitor voting in committee, cover only a small fraction of House and Senate floor votes, and fail to reflect the numerous times lawmakers help to kill or advance legislation without casting record votes.

Nor do interest group ratings help constituents answer other questions bearing on whether an incumbent deserves re-election, such as whether he is diligent or lazy, a straight-shooter or a falsifier, respected or ridiculed by capital insiders, his or her own person or a pawn of campaign contributors, a substantive legislator or merely a headline-hunter.

What the ratings unquestionably contribute is a candid look at one aspect of congressional performance that lawmakers and their image specialists cannot easily misrepresent — their publicly recorded yeas and nays.

Nowhere else can busy constituents cut so easily through the complexities and deceptions of Capitol Hill and find their lawmakers reduced to a number for ready reference on election day.

HERE ARE descriptions of lobbies represented in the accompanying chart.

- AFL-CIO: The collective, powerful voice of organized labor.
- Americans for Democratic Action: A respected liberal lobby now in its fifth decade.
- Consumer Federation of America: A left-of-center lobby that uses a broad definition of consumerism in picking issues for its voting report card.
- National Council of Senior Citizens: A labor-funded group that advocates federal programs for the aged.
- American Security Council: A hawkish lobby whose National Security Voting Index authoritatively measures sentiment toward military spending.
- American Conservative Union: A 24-year-old group that calls itself "the oldest and most influential conservative lobbying group in Washington."
- Chamber of Commerce of the United States: A powerful and respected business lobby.
- Christian Voice: A right-of-center group that rewards lawmakers who vote conservatively on international issues and "key moral issues such as abortion, drug abuse and AIDS."

Fire pact depends on departments' good will

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Twenty-two fire departments are bound by the Western Wayne County Mutual Aid Agreement, including those in the Observer area.

But when it comes to assuring emergency assistance, there's something even more important than the document itself: good will.

By design, the 21-year-old aid pact allows member departments broad discretion in giving aid to other departments in need. And face-to-face interaction among area chiefs could be the surest guarantee aid will be given.

Firefighters in all departments agree aid must be given during major catastrophies. Some would leave it there.

"That's really what it's for," Vern Beach, president of the Livonia Fire Fighters Union, said.

Others believe in a more liberal interpretation.

"IT DOESN'T have to be a major catastrophe. It can be a routine emergency where all your equipment is tied up," Garden City Fire Chief Keith Nims said.

Still others have settled for a compromise position.

"It's used for something a little more than routine calls," said Dearborn Heights Fire Chief Errol Lewis, who oversees the pact as president of the area's chiefs association.

Multidepartment response to last summer's passenger jet crash at Metro Airport underscores the system's strength.

So do less dramatic emergencies. "All our units were tied up on a condominium fire last week, when we received another call," Plymouth Fire Chief Al Matthews said. "We wouldn't have been able to handle both without mutual aid."

But a recent dispute between fire officials in Livonia and Westland — with Livonia officials crying foul over the number of "routine" Westland calls they've been asked to handle — points out its inherent weakness.

"There is a lot of discretion. It's all in interpretation of the pact," Beach said.

Under a new agreement with its firefighters union, Westland agreed to close as many as half of its four fire stations, for as long as a day at a time, to assure emergency vehicles contain at least two firefighters.

"SAFETY STANDARDS tell us it's better to have more men on fewer pieces of equipment than fewer men on more pieces of equipment," Westland Chief Larry Lane said. "We're looking for public safety and to do that we had to change the contract."

Westland, a city of 85,000, has 54 firefighters.

Livonia firefighters, at least those in that city's union, are hopping mad over the new Westland policy.

"Ultimately, it's going to lead to more calls for help," Beach said. "We feel our city, our department, is going to be subsidizing Westland, and we don't like it a bit. What I like to see is our firefighters stop responding to those (routine) calls."

Livonia City Council members are reviewing firefighters' complaints.

"We've asked the mayor and fire chief to compile a report," council president Fernon Feenstra said. There is no deadline for the report's completion, Feenstra said, nor is the council conducting its own investigation.

Westland officials say they aren't exploiting anyone.

"Over the last 13 months we gave aid 65 times and asked for it 15," Lane said. "If that's abuse, I don't know. I suppose we would have to give aid 100 percent and not receive at all for it not to be abuse."

Though Garden City also assists Westland, the new policy "poses no problem for us at this time," according to Garden City Chief Nims. "They're not eliminating fire fighters, just reassigning them," he said.

A survey of other area departments found disputes are rare.

"MUTUAL AID has worked very, very smoothly over the years," Lewis said. "I attribute that to a good deal of personal contact between the chiefs."

The pact contains no guidelines for airing disputes and no mechanism for ending them.

That, Lewis said, can informally be done at weekly chiefs' meetings.

"We're almost all on a first-name basis," he said.

The Livonia/Westland dispute aside, area firefighters say they're pleased the system works as well as it does.

The 22 member departments contain a mix of full-time, urban departments, like those in Livonia, Dearborn and surrounding communities and smaller, more rural volunteer departments in southwestern Wayne County townships.

Because of that, the nature of assistance varies from community to community.

"Most of our calls are emergency runs," Canton Township Fire Chief Melvin Paulun said. "We're a new community, and most of our buildings have been built to modern fire codes. So fires aren't the problem here they would be elsewhere."

The nature of services vary. While firefighters generally provide direct aid, they sometimes serve as on-call backups. That was the case last year, when Redford Township fire fighters manned Dearborn Heights fire stations, Redford assistant chief Mike Pattee said, while that city's firefighters participated in a massive training exercise.

Redford, in fact, provides services as a visiting agency it doesn't provide in its own service area.

Area firefighters pull together when major blazes and other disasters hit. But their mutual aid pact depends more on professional good will and cooperation more than strictly worded requirements.

"WE DO everything they do," Pattee said. "Including providing EMS transport (to the hospital). We don't normally do that, nor would we expect any department helping us to do it, either."

Created in 1967, the mutual aid pact has withstood massive community growth and weathered one major recession. Still, some chiefs worry that disputes could come more frequently if another recession forces the return of tight budgeting.

"It's stood for 25 years, but it's going to get tougher because communities aren't hiring additional men," Nims said.

Whatever its future, few fire fighters believe mutual aid should be abandoned.

"No city could do without it," Lewis said.

Survey shows support for death penalty

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Most people living in Michigan support capital punishment, based on a recent computer-assisted telephone poll, and the majority of those who do are white Catholics who earn more than $30,000 annually.

Of those who do so, nearly half say it is because capital punishment is the only just punishment for murder. Lethal injection is the favored method.

A total of 101 residents in Wayne County were polled. Seventy-eight people said they support the death penalty, 18 oppose it and five were undecided.

In Oakland County, 44 residents were polled. Thirty support the death penalty, 10 oppose it and four are undecided.

On the issue of abortion, the majority of all those who were polled say they support the right of women to have abortions but less than half feel the state should pay for them.

If U.S. presidential elections were held today, Democrat Michael Dukakis would handily beat Republican George Bush. But if Bush were to run against Democrat Jesse Jackson, Bush would easily win.

THE FINDINGS are the result of a poll conducted earlier this month by Electronic Sales Professionals in Livonia. The firm was initiating a new computer-assisted interview system that enters data while the respondent answers, reducing the time it takes to print results and minimizing the possibility of error.

"The subjects are of personal interest to me," said the firm's research director, Michael Curtis, in explaining how capital punishment, abortion and political candidates were selected for the survey.

Of the 406 state residents 18 years and older who were surveyed, 145 live in Wayne and Oakland counties. Of this number, the majority were female (54 percent), white (69 percent) and Catholic (35 percent).

Blacks constituted 30 percent of those who were polled in Wayne and Oakland counties and protestants constituted 41 percent.

Thirty-five percent had graduated from high school, 28 percent attended college and 19 percent were college graduates.

The majority, 41 percent, have annual incomes of $20,000 or less, followed by 27 percent who have annual incomes of $40,000 or more.

SEVENTY-SEVEN PERCENT of all those who were polled said they favor capital punishment. Eighty-one percent of the total number were white, compared to only 54 percent of black respondents who said they support capital punishment.

Eighty-three percent of the total number were Catholic and 82 percent earn more than $30,000 annually.

Nearly half, 46 percent, said capital punishment is "fitting" punishment for murder, commonly adding such comments as "just desserts" and "an eye for an eye."

One-third of the respondents see it as a deterrent to crime and slightly less than one-fourth said it is cheaper than paying for life in prison.

Sixty-one percent said anyone who commits murder should be given a death sentence and another 26 percent believe the sentence is appropriate for rape.

Lethal injection is the favored form of execution by 37 percent of the respondents, followed by electrocution, which is favored by 23 percent. Comments on the subject ranged from "the individual should choose" to "whatever is most painful," according to Curtis.

Of those who oppose capital punishment, 36 percent do so for moral or religious reasons and another 22 percent feel it is cruel punishment.

"CURIOUSLY, the majority of those who support or oppose capital punishment do so for value reasons," Curtis said.

Two questions about abortion revealed that 55 percent of respondents favor it and 34 percent oppose it. Fewer, however, believe the state should continue funding abortions, with 48 percent supporting the practice and 52 percent opposing it.

Questions about political candidates indicate there is a big swing factor among white voters in Michigan. Forty-two percent said they would vote for Dukakis over Bush, 39 percent of them white voters.

However, if Bush ran against Jackson only 28 percent would vote for Jackson, 22 percent of them white voters.

Results are subject to a plus or minus error factor of 5 percent.

Helping out

RICK SMITH/staff photographer

Members of the Western Wayne Plumbing Association gave their time and talents last weekend, helping perform plumbing overhauls for needy area residents. Mike Antczak (left) removes old pipes, sinks and other debris from a house on Stark Road, Livonia. Inside the house, John Antczak (below) connects a new hot water heater. Association members donate their time each year under a program called "Everything Including the Kitchen Sink." Workers from the 30-member association also repaired plumbing for a 75-year-old Westland woman. Sites are recommended by area city officials.

Area high school students bullish on Rouge cleanup

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Student leaders are bullish when it comes to cleaning the Rouge River.

Students say the Rouge should be cleaned — as quickly as possible.

More than 150 student leaders met Saturday at Martin Luther King High School, Detroit, to recommend Rouge solutions.

"Some of the things they recommended were storing water in sewer systems, making developers pay to clean up the Rouge and making a greater effort to educate young people, especially middle school and elementary school students," said Rouge education coordinator Mark Mitchell, who supervised Saturday's program.

Students from Garden City, Livonia Churchill, Plymouth Salem, Redford Union and Wayne Memorial high schools were among those participating.

Throughout the school year, student science classes analyzed Rouge River water, though that project has come to an end.

Some individual classes may still be conducting tests, Mitchell said, though there is no coordinated effort as this time.

GETTING STUDENTS to participate in Rouge cleanup projects is a long-term goal of Friends of the Rouge, the volunteer agency that will coordinate Rouge Rescue '88 on June 4. Many of last year's volunteers were students.

"We want to get them thinking about the Rouge River," Mitchell said.

Toward that end,, Rouge history has been incorporated in social studies classes at several high schools, including Plymouth Salem.

Students seemed to have a good grasp of Rouge issues, Mitchell said.

"They were aware that the combined sewer overflows (CSOs) are the biggest problem," he said.

Parks

Liquor ban is right approach

CANTON HAS ENACTED a good ordinance for not the best of reasons.

The issue involves drinking alcoholic beverages in township parks.

Before the change earlier this month, there were no restrictions on drinking in Canton parks.

Now, the new law prohibits drinking in the parks except for special events sanctioned by the township.

The main reason for this change in attitude and policy is because of insurance concerns over liability.

By allowing drinking in the parks, Canton is put in a weaker legal position if some park user drinks too much while on township land and then gets into an accident or hurts someone else.

Sure, liability is a concern, especially considering the huge settlements handed out in the courts.

And limiting liability by prohibiting alcohol in the parks is not a terrible reason for such a ban. But there are more important reasons than economic ones to prohibit drinking in public places.

The real reason drinking in parks should be banned is because the two uses do not mix. The abuses associated with drinking in parks far outweigh the advantages of allowing people to have a beer or two while playing softball.

THE REAL reason drinking in parks should be banned is because the two uses do not mix. The abuses associated with drinking in parks far outweigh the advantages of allowing people to have a beer or two while playing softball.

The parks are designed for family-type activities and having drunks running around ruins the whole atmosphere for those wishing to take advantage of the great outdoors.

So far, Canton has not had that many problems with people getting out of hand while drinking at local parks, according to Mike Gouin, recreation superintendent.

Things could be a lot worse. Take a look at Hines Park where beer is allowed.

Young people 12-22 years old have been creating problems by drinking and generally causing trouble for those wishing to enjoy the park in a more peaceful way.

Also, what kind of message is being sent to youngsters who see their peers and adults drinking, causing trouble and then driving home inebriated?

Canton residents should be pleased with this ordinance and concentrate on the societal benefits associated with an alcohol ban rather than the financial and legal advantages.

Rouge River

Cleanup cost can't be ignored

IT'S GOING to cost hundreds of millions of dollars over the next 20 years — including hundreds of dollars out of our own pockets — to clean the Rouge River.

While the cost is high, we simply cannot afford not to clean the Rouge.

Decades of neglect have turned this once-beautiful river into nothing more than an open sewer that cuts across the heart of our communities.

For too long, we've ignored the environmental time bomb that is the Rouge. Once, it flowed freely. Now, a variety of pollutants, including PCBs and human waste, choke the life out of our river.

We can't blame far off industrial polluters, either. Not this time. This time, the problem rests at our own door steps. The bulk of material clogging the Rouge, experts say, is household waste.

Certainly, we'd like to see the federal and state government assist with the estimated $900 million cleanup cost.

It's not as if they don't have a stake in this, too. After all, the Rouge isn't just Michigan's problem. It empties into the Detroit river, which empties into the Great Lakes, which carry Rouge pollution as far south as Ohio and as far east as New York State. That alone should prompt the federal government to release the $133 million Rouge advocates say is owed for preliminary improvements.

Within the next 20 years, we can leave our children a river — or a sewer. It's our choice. If we wait, it could be too late.

As for state responsibility — nearly one-fifth of Michigan's population, including most of its biggest residential and corporate taxpayers make their homes within the Rouge basin.

But we cannot close our eyes to our own responsibility. Even with federal and state help, some 60 percent of cleanup costs must be borne locally. If we aren't willing to protect ourselves, if we just don't care, how can we expect government to contribute its share?

GOOD INTENTIONS alone aren't enough. We support Rouge Rescue '88, the third annual volunteer cleanup. But let's be honest, a thousand Rouge Rescues wouldn't alone be enough to clean this river.

That is going to take new sewer lines and reduction of spillovers from combined sewer overflows, outmoded municipal pipes that dump human and industrial waste into the river when they back up.

SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of governments, has drafted a 20-year action plan to reduce the Rouge's potential environmental danger. It calls for new sewers, including giant "super sewers" to eliminate backups and minimize overflows.

It's a prudent plan, one that encourages communities to use flexible and cost-effective methods rather than imposing an iron will.

Already, it has gained much heavyweight backing. Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is a supporter. So are SEMCOG leaders. That kind of local backing doesn't happen overnight. It may never happen again.

Nor is there time to waste in gathering federal support. After the 1990 census, it's a near-guarantee Michigan will lose at least one Congressional seat. That makes it essential we begin lobbying those representatives we do have — men like John Dingell, D-Trenton, arguably the Midwest's most powerful congressman; Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a strong advocate of a 1970s Rouge cleanup; and David Bonior, D-Mount Clemens, a champion of environmental causes among Michigan's delegations.

The momentum is there, but the clock is running.

Within the next 20 years, we can leave our children a river — or a sewer. It's our choice. If we wait, it could be too late.

More help is needed to beat tobacco lobby

Steve Barnaby

Your support could make the legislation even stronger than now written. Some recent legislation has passed. Some essential bills need yet more support to reach the governor's desk.

AFTER YEARS of standing alone, state Sen. Jack Faxon must be feeling pretty good today.

Persistence really does count for something. And we should all be thankful that the Farmington Hills Democrat stuck to his guns.

For as many years as I've known Faxon, he's been crusading against smoking. For just as many years, he has met with derisive cat-calls and looks of bewilderment from colleagues and constituents alike.

After all, the tobacco industry had a constituency the numbers of which outpaced even the National Rifle Association. Not too many years ago, just about everybody smoked.

Television, newspaper and magazine advertisements were chock full of celebrities, even Ronald Reagan, toting the virtues of lighting up.

And year after year, Faxon's attempts at getting legislation passed to ban smoking in public places would get trounced. Admittedly, Faxon's shenanigans didn't always help his cause. Although incredibly smart, he is known more for his idiosyncratic behavior, long-winded speeches and eccentric sense of humor.

But now the worm has turned. Smoking is under seige. Ads have been banned from television. Few celebrities lend their names to endorse the products and millions have dropped the habit.

And millions are calling for the action to rid public places of a disgusting and unhealthy addiction.

FAXON IS NOW surrounded by a horde of Johnny-come-latelies who are scrambling to jump on the anti-smoking bandwagon.

And finally this week U.S. Surgeon General Everett Koop has given official sanction to the idea that cigarettes are just another drug — addictive and life-destroying.

Thanks Surgeon General Koop. We needed that. Now maybe we can get serious about this move to restrict smoking even more.

Faxon's state Senate colleagues are doing their part in seeing we reach that goal. Your support could make the legislation even stronger than now written.

Some recent legislation has passed. Some essential bills need yet more support to reach the governor's desk.

Senate legislation passed and now headed for the house would:

- Increase the maximum penalty for selling tobacco to a minor from a $50 fine and/or a 30-day jail sentence to a $1,000 fine and/or 90 days in jail.
- Require shopping malls to offer non-smoking sections in common eating areas.
- Ban smoking in hospitals, doctors' offices, clinical laboratories and other health-care facilities.
- Require outdoor signs advertising smokeless tobacco to carry a warning about the health danger of chewing tobacco and snuff.

Thanks largely to Faxon, we already have some laws restricting smoking. One prohibits lighting up in all public buildings, education facilities, meeting rooms, auditoriums and theaters, except where expressly allowed.

A bill was defeated that would have prohibited smoking in schools both by faculty and students. Another attempt will be made to pass that legislation.

But the politicians in the state Legislature need your encouragement. They will be lobbied heavily by the tobacco industry. And not all of them are as determined or persistent as Jack Faxon.

Meals needs volunteers

To the editor:

My compliments to M.B. Dillon, staff reporter, for an informative article on April 21 on the volunteers who deliver meals to the homebound elderly in Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

She and staff photographer Bill Bresler were able to capture the two-fold purpose of the Home-Delivered Meals Program: the importance of that personal contact each day and the nutritive value of the hot meals for persons who are frail and debilitated. It was apparent that the volunteers provide both.

The focus of the Home-Delivered Meal program is to assist the frail elderly in remaining in their own homes and to remain as independent as possible. Without the commitment of the many volunteers who help to package and deliver the meals, there would undoubtedly be many older people who would be unable to continue living at home.

The Plymouth Council on Aging and the City of Plymouth have also taken an interest in this program and assist with the delivery of meals to eliminate a waiting list for services. However, the need for additional volunteers to deliver meals is ongoing. We welcome any inquiries about volunteering and suggest calling the Nutrition office at 453-2525 between 8:30 and 5 p.m.

We appreciate the Observer's interest in the Home-Delivered Meal Program and are proud of the service provided by Out-Wayne County Human Services Inc.

Patterson editorial was disrespectful

To the editor:

I found your editorial opinion regarding L. Brooks Patterson extremely insensitive, disrespectful and in very poor taste.

The observations made in that article are irresponsible and untrue. They demonstrate that you obviously have some sort of personal vendetta against Mr. Patterson which, in my opinion, any professional news writer would not use the need to thrust upon the general public.

Hopefully, in the future you will enlighten your readers (of which there are now several less) with more accurate, positive information regarding our public officials.

Brooks Patterson has dedicated 16 years of his life to making Oakland County a more desirable place to live. He is the best government that Oakland County has ever had or ever will have. He is one of the most sincere, conscientious people I know. It's a real shame that you are not able to appreciate his efforts.

Next November we will be electing a new prosecutor in Oakland County. It would be great it we could replace Brooks with someone of the same caliber. Unfortunately, we can never "replace" L. Brooks Patterson.

There must be a law (or maybe we should enact one) against writers of "fiction" portraying themselves as newspaper reporters. I'll have to talk to Brooks about that . . .

Where was coverage?

To the editor:

As a Canton resident, I have always looked to the Observer for announcements and information of local happenings. I thought that was the purpose of a major community news publication.

My confidence was shaken recently when you refused to cover, or even mention, the production of "Oklahoma" by several very hard-working sixth through ninth graders and their two talented faculty directors at Pioneer Middle School, April 20 and 21.

Casino gambling

This issue's hot on the west coast too

Fred DeLano

METROPOLITAN Detroit isn't the only place in America where casino gambling is a hot political topic this year; in San Francisco the citizenry actually will vote on such a proposal June 7.

Proponents there even know exactly the area they hope to convert into a gambling den, namely the 22 acres of rugged terrain sitting in the middle of San Francisco Bay and known as the island of Alcatraz.

At the moment this column is being written, the Detroit picture is much more clouded because Mayor Coleman Young's 63-member Casino Gaming Study Commission has yet to make its report. Whenever it reaches his desk, the report and recommendations are bound to stir debate.

Also, there seems to be confusion as to whether Detroit voters will get their say on Aug. 2 regarding a citizen-initiated ordinance to ban gambling.

I wish we folks in the suburbs could vote too. My ballot would be in favor of the ban — not on gambling per se, only to prevent development of casinos.

On the other hand, I think it would be a great project for a site as isolated as Alcatraz, also known as "The Rock" during the many years it served as a supposedly escape-proof federal prison.

I lost my enthusiasm for casinos last month in Las Vegas, not because of financial losses but rather at the depressing sight of armed security officers at every turn in an atmosphere where time stands still. There are no clocks. The action at the bars and traffic around the gambling tables and slots continues 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Maybe you love Vegas; I think it's "sleazeville" despite big-name entertainers and free booze. Detroit is bad enough now without going that route.

What finally got me was being ordered to keep both hands in plain sight, whereas it's often my habit to walk with one hand in a jacket pocket. I had to prove to this guy that I really wasn't fingering a weapon. But that's how wary they are.

Reno isn't as bad because as a city established 120 years ago by railroad interests it has a solid business base. However, Nevada's real area of class (shared by California) is Lake Tahoe up in the High Sierras.

As you may know, the boundary between Nevada and California runs through the lake, and so the numerous hotels and casinos at both the north and south ends are on the Nevada side. In fact, at the famed Cal-Neva Lodge the state line runs straight through the lobby and swimming pool.

We all realize that even if casino gambling gets majority backing from Detroiters, it won't come about without changes in the law by the State Legislature. Just for starters, consider that under present law alcoholic beverages cannot be sold between 2 and 7 a.m., not until noon on Sundays, and not at all on Christmas Day.

Out of curiosity I asked one casino manager what such restrictions would mean in his case and his reply was quick and blunt: "We never would have opened in the first place." I also asked if he would consider operating in Detroit if the chance comes, but I can't print his reply. Let's just say it was negative.

But let's assume that all obstacles are overcome and casino gambling becomes a Detroit reality. I was searching the mind for a way to describe such an eventuality when I came across these paragraphs in the San Francisco Chronicle a few weeks ago:

"Ever since the convicts checked out 25 years ago, there have been plenty of interesting ideas afloat concerning Alcatraz.

"Jello Biafra, poet, ex-lead singer of the Dead Kennedys, (suggests), 'I think people should finally admit how San Francisco is really run and relocate City Hall where it belongs.'"

Try reading that last sentence with Detroit substituted for San Francisco.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Cleaning up the Rouge: will we share the cost?

Rich Perlberg

DO WE really care about our kids? Or do we just want to brag about their cuteness and brilliance?

If you think that's an easy question to answer, read on. And please reserve your judgment until you are finished.

Last week our newspapers published an article about cleaning the Rouge River. The price tag is staggering: $1.8 billion over 20 years in cleanup and financing costs.

But take a closer look. It breaks down to $35 a year for every Wayne and Oakland County resident living in the Rouge watershed. That hardly seems an exorbitant cost when the alternative is an open sewer running through town.

To be sure, $35 a head is unspeakably steep for a low-income household already strained to the limit by bills and payments. But for the majority, the payment hardly covers a night at the movies. Are we willing to trade one night out for our children's future?

Before you answer, take a quick look at the nation's deficit. On second thought, a quick look won't do. It takes a long time just to count the zeroes.

Our children and our grandchildren are going to pay for this deficit, but most of us today are more concerned about reaping the rewards of this robust albeit deceptive economic surge.

Litter and junk will be removed from the Rouge River at annual cleanup days. But there's a larger cost of cleaning up the Rouge, which most communities have not yet agreed to bear. This scene is at Edward Hines Dr. and Northville Road.

In this regard, it seems only fair that there be a Truth in Elections law that requires incumbent congressmen to include in all campaign literature a figure that approximates how large the deficit has grown during their term in office. Incumbents like William Broomfield, R-Birmingham, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, and Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, might then like to explain if they are part of the problem or just ineffective in finding a solution.

To be fair, it's not wholly fair to blame Congress. After all, how many incumbents lose elections because they ignore the deficit? Not many. Compare that with the number who win because they heed the siren's call of special interest groups whose appetite for more money is never sated.

Is it inconsistent to favor Rouge River cleanup money and to criticize increased government spending in the same breath? Not at all. The Rouge cleanup suggests finding a source of income to cover the cost, not adding spending without thinking about revenues.

The complaint about the budget centers on a fiscally irresponsible society reflected by a government that won't face the need of priority spending.

It comes down to a simple although seemingly-hard-to-swallow concept of paying for what you need, before buying what you want.

A place for learning

By Julie Brown

WORKERS AT the Ford Motor Company's Sheldon Road Plant don't have to travel far to go to school.

The Learning Center at the plant offers a variety of classes for Ford workers. Gary Rushford, an epoxy operator, is taking classes in math and speed reading. In the past, he's taken basic classes in computers and electricity.

"I think it's good," said Rushford, a Canton resident.

"Personal knowledge, that's about it, really," he said of his reasons for taking classes.

Judge Smith, who works in the radiator tank build-up department, has also taken classes at the center.

"I took just about every class they had," said Smith, a Detroit resident. "I got my GED."

SMITH IS now working on his high school diploma through the Learning Center.

"It's much easier this way." Over the years, Smith had tried to get his GED and his high school diploma.

"You go for a while, then you stop. You get tired."

Attending classes at the plant takes only a couple hours a day for Smith; it doesn't cost him anything.

"You need it out there," he said. Classes in such subjects as computers and math help workers keep up with changes.

Although Smith is only about 10 years away from retirement, he still needs to keep up with technological changes.

"If you don't know what you're doing, you might as well get out of the picture," Smith said.

Workers at the plant, part of Ford's climate control division, aren't the only ones who benefit from the Learning Center, Smith added.

"This is a great advantage to the company, too."

The project is funded through the UAW-Ford National Development Training Center. On Thursday, May 12 staff members at the Learning Center held an open house.

"To get people to see the new facility, to encourage participation, and basically good PR," program director Karen Bossieux said in explaining the reasons the open house was held.

LAST WEEK'S open house was primarily for plant employees, members of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education, school district administrators, and Ford administrators, she said.

Learning Center staff members moved into their facility in late Jan-

Literacy volunteers honored for efforts

Community Literacy Council volunteers do a lot for the Plymouth-Canton community. Last week, it was time to say "thank you" to those volunteers.

An appreciation dinner to honor those people was held the evening of Thursday, May 12 at Starkweather Center in Plymouth.

Among those attending the dinner were members of the Plymouth-Canton Community School Board of Education, school administrators, educators, adult students, tutors and others.

"We really couldn't begin to pay for what they've done for us in dollars and cents," Mary Kay Frey, tutor coordinator, said of the volunteer assistance.

The Community Literacy Council was formed in August 1985. Carolyn Burns is president of the council. The local literacy initiative started with 12 tutors and 12 students.

A total of 83 tutors have now been trained and nearly 200 students have been helped, Frey said. The volunteers give a combined effort of more than 60 hours per week.

Tutors work one-on-one with adult students, helping them learn to read or to improve their reading skills.

STUDENTS WHO have worked with the volunteer tutors have acquired many new skills, Frey told those at the appreciation dinner. Those students can now fill out job applications, write notes to their children's teachers, read greeting cards, and read to their children, "things they couldn't do when they started."

'We really couldn't begin to pay for what they've done for us in dollars and cents.'

Two students, Patty Sills and Iwona Fromchem, spoke during the dinner, describing their classroom experiences. Fromchem, who is Polish, is an English second language student.

uary. Classes have been offered on site since September 1983.

The center started in a lunchroom in the plant, and then moved into trailers inside the plant. The center now has five rooms, including a computer room with nine Apple computers.

Program director Bossieux is employed through Plymouth-Canton Community Education. Among the many courses offered at the Learning Center are classes for GED and high school completion.

"This year has been our biggest year," Bossieux said. In the programs she supervises, approximately 160 workers have been enrolled in the last year. That represents more than 10 percent of the plant's personnel.

"A lot of them want to build up their math skills." Many of the workers get technical manuals when they're out on the plant floor; to understand the technology, they need to keep their skills current.

Others come into the Learning Center to work on their reading skills; some don't have the reading skills needed to understand materials on the job.

"Some of these people are not reading at that level," Bossieux said.

THE PLANT'S Learning Center also offers a book exchange for workers and their families. Employees bring in books; they can also take books home to borrow or to keep.

"It's to encourage reading," Bossieux said. "They just take what they want."

The course offerings at the Learning Center don't stop at the high school level; college courses are also offered.

In the fall, a sheet metal class will be offered at the center through Washtenaw Community College. Continuing education unit classes are also offered through Washtenaw Community College, said Gloria Wickens, life education adviser at the center.

A series on injection molding is being offered; those who complete the series will receive a certificate in plastic technology through Washtenaw Community College. Classes are also offered at the center through Schoolcraft College, Wickens said.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Education courses available at the Learning Center also help the students taking college classes, Wickens said. The college-level students can get help with tutoring "in order to be successful in college."

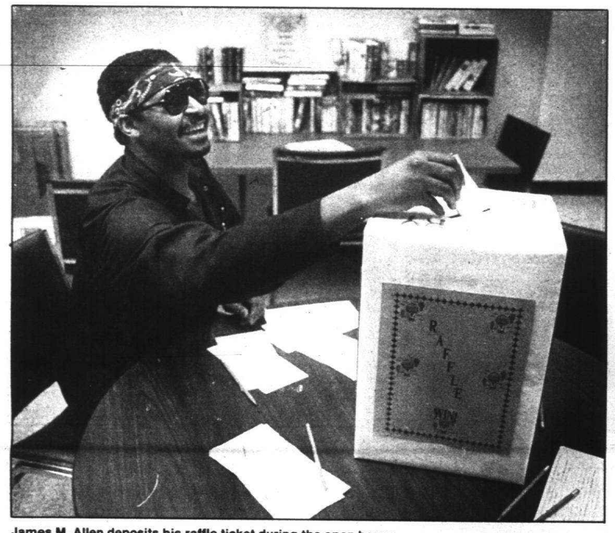
Learning Center staff members do interest surveys periodically, to see what's interesting to employees at the Ford plant.

"It's a real mix. We're seeing all areas of the spectrum."

Some employees come in to work on a high school diploma or GED, Wickens said. Others are interested in getting a college degree or learning a new skill.

Some employees come in to improve their reading skills, or to learn to read, Wickens said.

"Sometimes it takes a little bit of encouragement."



James M. Allen deposits his raffle ticket during the open house at the learning c enter.

Local volunteers lauded for efforts includes approximately 50 students from a variety of countries, according to Dodie Beckman, ESL coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Community Education. She and her colleagues would like to expand the Community Literacy Council efforts, to provide tutors for the foreign-born students.

During the appreciation dinner, volunteer tutors and others received bookmarks, made by members of the Resurrection Lutheran Church in Livonia. The evening also included entertainment provided by a Japanese choral group and by the Geneva Convention quartet.

The volunteer tutors and others also received certificates of appreciation.

"We have a lot to be proud of in Plymouth-Canton," said Sharon Strean, assistant director of Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

THE PARTNERSHIP between the local schools and others has made it possible to help many adult students.

"Honestly, neither one of us could have done it alone."

The Canton Rotary Club is planning a literacy effort, including a late summer "Read Better Week," Strean said.

Other organizations have also been helpful, she said. During the appreciation dinner, Barbara McAllister of the Plymouth Newcomers Club presented a check for $7,300 to the Community Literacy Council. The contribution came from the club's art auction, held in March at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The support of such groups, businesses and people has been a tremendous help, Strean said. Contributions of money, time and talent have made all the difference.

"We're really, really blessed in this community."

Woman celebrates 100th birthday

The sounds of "Happy Birthday to You" were music to the ears of former Canton resident Julia Ribar, who was the guest of honor at a recent 100th birthday celebration.

Friends and relatives gathered at the Martin Luther Home in South Lyon, where she now lives, for her 100th birthday party, given by her son Joseph Ribar of Livonia and daughter Helen Goebel at the Martin Luther Home in South Lyon.

Married to the late Louis Ribar, she also had two other sons, Louis and Stephen, who are deceased. She also has 14 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and nine great, great-grandchildren.

Born in Josvafo, Hungary in 1888, she came to New York City alone at the age of 13. She spoke no English and worked as a domestic servant during the day. She used her evenings to learn English, studying the words and meanings she had heard during the day and scribbled on a tablet she carried with her.

She knew her late husband in Hungary and had corresponded with him for seven years before he wrote asking her to marry him. He had come to America at the age of 17 and had found work as a coreman at the Detroit Steel Casting Co.

Braces

They're not just for kids anymore

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Kids like to call it a "tin grin" or "metal mouth," those insidious wires hooked to teeth which eventually will create straight teeth and a perfect bite.

Kids hate them. It's a struggle to get them to wear their head gear and keep from chewing gum.

Just the opposite, however, seems to be case for adults.

During a marathon race in Detroit late last fall, Dr. Daniel Gilbert, a Livonia orthodontist, who was a race official, made an unusual observation.

Of the several thousand adult runners crossing the finish line near where Gilbert was standing, many were fitted with complete mouth braces.

"I'd estimate at least 100 of them had full braces," said the surprised orthodontist, who speculated as to why.

"The same people interested in the self-discipline and overall health benefits of recreational running, want to improve themselves in all areas," Gilbert said. "Self-improvement in any form is generally admired in society today. People accept and admire someone who is wearing braces."

Gilbert's observation reflects the typical patient load of today's orthodontist.

"I'VE ALWAYS had adults, but in the past they were very limited in number. Today they comprise about 25 percent of my total practice," said Gilbert, who has been a dentist 30 years. He has specialized in orthodontics for 12 years.

Other dentists in the area say their figures are similar.

"I've seen the number of adult patients go from zero percent when I started my practice to as high as 40 percent today," said Dr. Eugene Zylinski of Garden City. Zylinski has been a dentist 32 years and has specialized in orthodontics for 27 years.

Dr. Michael Behnan has orthodontic offices in Livonia and Mt. Clemens. He estimates 25 percent to 30 percent of his patients are adults.

"They're coming out of the woodwork, anybody and everybody, those in public positions, those who are not," Behnan said.

An estimated 25 percent to 40 percent of all orthodontic patients are adults, primarily men and women 25-35 who have always wanted to align their teeth and now finally have the money to do so, according to the Detroit District Dental Association.

Braces have become acceptable for adults who are unhappy with their appearance or who need treatment to correct a bite that is painfully out of alignment.

"Think of misalignment as a piano that is out of tune," Zylinski said. "If all the parts aren't in place, there's no harmony."

THE CONDITION can cause headaches, backaches, unconscious grinding of the teeth while sleeping and deterioration in the jaw bone. In extreme instances, the jaw may even appear to be growing sideways, according to Zylinski.

Often, when patients want braces for purely aesthetic reasons, they also have alignment problems, according to Behnan, who said the two situations normally go hand in hand.

Behnan treats many patients 50 years and older in his Livonia office who have been referred by regular dentists. These patients are in need of bridges and other restoration work that cannot be completed until the teeth are first straightened, he said.

Refined appliances, improved new braces that have been developed in recent years, have made the straightening process easier, faster and less unsightly.

Braces can now be attached on the back side of the teeth, out of sight, and new ceramic braces are transparent. Wearing time can vary from months to years, depending on the condition.

Cost ranges from $75 for a simple appliance used for less than a year to as much as $4,000 for comprehensive therapy. Costs are normally budgeted over the course of treatment.

moral perspectives
Rev. David Strong

The key is to find our child's talents

Some things you remember for years.

I remember a statement made by the author Raymond Rogers in his book, "Coming into Existence." Rogers speaks of what he believes is the greatest gift that a parent can give their child.

"The parent talks of what the child is, what he can be and what he might become. 'I can see that you're going to be able to get along with all kinds of people'. He mentions possible goals and directions. 'Can you imagine how it would be to fly an airplane? How would you like to be able to cure people who are sick?'"

The role of the parent is to help a child or young adult find himself, discover his or her special talents.

The worse thing that parents can do is to push their child to get a job simply to earn money or become successful. I meet many people who hate the work that they do. Others, I believe, are truly successful because they find their work meaningful and satisfying.

If a person is afraid of not being able to earn a living, or of not fitting into a secure niche in society, they may never find out what they are gifted to do.

In religious terms, we believe that each person is unique. God plants in each a unique set of gifts and interests. A parent gradually realizes that each of their children are different. The most important thing we can do is encourage, support, indeed help to call forth this unique person.

THERE IS A great debate going on about the quality of education in America. Part of the motivation for this examination of education is our concern about competition from Japan.

Would we want our children to be educated in the same manner as children in Japan? My answer is no.

Education needs to be practical. The religious core of education, however, is the belief that each person is a unique creation of God. Our task is to encourage, feed and develop the capacity to be productive in our unique way.

My wife teaches special education. Her students are below normal IQ. She sees each of these students as unique. She tries to draw out their full, although limited, capacity. Often she tells me of the strengths of her limited students.

Her goal is twofold — to help each develop as much as is possible of their unique self and to prepare them for a job. She works hard at both goals.

God gives us gifts. Some can be seen clearly. A few are buried. All of our gifts need to be identified and encouraged. Too often, even in the church, we ask someone to do a job, not because we want to encourage that person's unique contribution, but because we want the job done. This is wrong.

In Elizabeth O'Connors's words, we need to see ourselves as co-creators with God. God plants a unique set of abilities and interests in each of us. We are here to discover these gifts and make them bloom.

I HAVE TWO sons on the verge of deciding their life work. I am tempted to think of such things as security, high wage, getting a job as soon as possible. These are not worthy goals. They may or may not be the secondary results of each son's discovery of their gifts and talents.

We must hold true to these values. It is easy to be caught up in society's success mode and forget about gifts, talents and the key to personal happiness.

God gives us our unique gifts. We are to discover and nourish them. Then we are to give these to others. This is the true source of happiness.

The Rev. David T. Strong is pastor of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church, Livonia.

Computers for churches is focus of conference

Bethel Missionary Assembly of God Church started in 1942 as Bethel Chapel.

Bethel Assembly of God marks 45th anniversary

Bethel Missionary Assembly of God Church recently celebrated its 45th anniversary with special services during the weekend.

The church, which is at 8900 Middlebelt in Livonia, began in 1942 with 12 Sunday school children and two women ministers. The Rev. John Roy, pastor of Bethel Missionary, hosted the anniversary celebration.

Among those returning for the anniversary were Naomi Darabin and Martha Kangas, who started the church in 1942.

Also coming back to celebrate the anniversary were the Rev. Jacob Trout, who was pastor at Bethel for 31 years from 1950-81, and three former youth pastors, the Rev. Michael Tyler, the Rev. Roger Thomassen and the Rev. Ed Bradley.

The church was known originally as Bethel Chapel. Members met in a small cement block chapel.

As the congregation grew, Alta Hodge and Ruth Rose replaced Darabin, who left Bethel Chapel. The first permanent structure was completed in the fall of 1949.

Traub followed Hodge and Rose in 1950. He led the steady growth of the congregation through four building additions before retiring in 1981.

Under Roy, the church established the People That Love Center that distributes food and clothing to the needy the past six years.

Burning reduces solid waste, doesn't recover energy

Fourth in a series on the solid waste crisis.

Incineration of solid waste can be done with or without energy recovery.

But while incineration alone reduces the amount of solid waste going into landfills, it does not conserve any resources or recover energy.

We shall deal with energy-recovery incineration.

Large-scale burning of waste to generate energy is not new technology. Between 1890 and 1910, energy recovery incinerators were put into operation in three European countries and New York. Today, there are more than 368 large-scale facilities in operation worldwide — nine in the U.S.

THE BURNING of solid waste to produce energy depends on three variables: the amount of waste available, markets for the energy produced and technology.

There are two types of furnaces used to burn solid waste for energy recovery:

In refactory-lined furnaces, a type of heat-resistant brick lines the furnace wall. Heat recovery occurs downstream of the furnace in waste-heat boilers. In this system, the temperature is controlled by combustion air.

Waterwall systems have tubes of water in the walls to control the temperature of combustion. The tubes absorb the heat and generate steam, which is high enough quality to generate electricity.

Terry Gibb

IN MICHIGAN, incineration with energy recovery is in operation in more than 22 industries.

Industry uses waste-to-energy facilities for two important reasons:

1. To generate a relatively cheap source of energy in place of more expensive purchased energy sources.

2. To reduce increasing solid waste disposal costs. Both of these reasons are major components of municipal budgets, too.

Incineration techniques always bring forth environmental concerns. Until recently, these concerns have always blocked new incineration facilities from being constructed.

THE PRIMARY environmental concern involves whether waste-to-energy facilities can meet air quality standards.

The primary air pollution is generated in the incineration bunkers. The bunker air contains large amounts of dust and strong odors.

This air, however, is drawn into the furnace as its primary air source. This prevents the dust and odors in the area surrrounding the incineration facilities.

Electrostatic precipitators are also used in the U.S. to control emissions. In Europe, new units also require that a scrubber unit follow the precipitators to remove acid-forming gases from entering the atmosphere. The EPA also requires scrubbers on new incinerators, but not on previously approved plans, such as in Detroit.

ANOTHER ENVIRONMENTAL concern is the conflict between recycling and incineration.

Because our solid waste contains many non-renewable natural resources, recyclers feel that these materials should be separated out before incineration for recycling rather than burning them to be lost forever.

Studies have indicated that after separating out recyclables from the waste stream, there will still be enough solid waste generated to run incineration facilities to capacity. This separation would also eliminate harmful plastics from being burned and creating toxic gases.

The fear that citizens will need to create waste to run incinerators is groundless, based on current solid waste generation figures.

CITIZEN participation in solid waste disposal will require little adjustment.

With incineration, households will still put their garbage at the curb for usual pickup.

If recycling is combined with incineration, households will be required to separate the recyclables out for separate collection. This separation takes 10-15 minutes a week.

Incineration has several positive aspects that landfilling does not. First, incineration eliminates the potential for groundwater contamination. Second, incineration will provide relatively low-cost energy in the form of hot water, steam or electricity.

Finally, it would have a positive effect on Michigan's economy because several Michigan businesses are involved in the manufacture of incinerators.

FAMILY FINANCES

By Alan Ferrara
and Dan Boyce

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the person profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. Providing a nest egg for those golden years is always a good idea, but care should be taken not to put all your eggs in one basket. This month's profile centers on Katherine J., a 67-year-old single woman, who lives in Beverly Hills.

Katherine has a substantial asset base but is concerned about having sufficient liquid assets to provide for in-home care should she ever need it on a continuing basis. She is also questioning the adequacy of some of her insurance coverage and thinks a review is in order.

Katherine is retired and receives a pension of $5,400 per year in addition to Social Security payments of $8,800 per year. Her unearned income, from dividends and interest, is about $31,000. She currently saves about $12,000 per year from this income after paying all of her living expenses.

Katherine has a significant estate, but a large portion of it is PPG stock purchased long ago, with a low basis for tax purposes. The stock is relatively low yielding, at about 1½ percent per year.

KATHERINE'S situation has both financial strengths and weaknesses. She has no protection against long-term, in-home care costs, which is one of her primary concerns. Certified financial planner Dan Boyce, of the Center for Financial Planning in Birmingham, suggests that Katherine should consider purchasing one of the long-term care policies now available. These pay a certain dollar amount for each day she is in a facility (regardless of whether skilled or custodial care is needed). But if Katherine is in poor health, this coverage may be difficult to obtain.

After reviewing her asset picture, Boyce indicates that even without this coverage her assets should be sufficient to provide for these costs. The current average annual cost of long-term care is $30,000 to $35,000 per year, and this could easily be generated with her asset base. Any medical costs (which are above and beyond this type of care) are covered through Medicare and Blue Cross supplement policies she carries. A long-term care plan may be a good "peace of mind" investment for Katherine.

Alan Ferrara, an attorney with the Southfield law firm of Couzens, Lansky, Fealk, Ellis, Roeder & Lazar, notes that Katherine's residence appears to be underinsured and suggests that she check with her agent about bringing the coverage up to replacement cost of the home.

Ferrara is also concerned about protecting Katherine's assets against possible liability. "Because Katherine has substantial assets to protect, she should definitely consider buying an umbrella liability policy to cover contingencies. Her property and casualty agent can provide her with a quote on the cost of coverage."

AFTER REVIEWING her financial position, our advisors recommend diversification of her invested assets.

"I have a major concern about the concentration of her assets on one company's stock, and this would be true regardless of the quality of the company," Boyce said. "Any significant problems in that corporation could cause a major reduction in her asset base and available income. This is a risk which she cannot afford to sustain at this time in her life."

Boyce offers two approaches to diversifying assets. One way is simply to "bite the bullet" regarding income taxes and sell a good portion of the stock. She should set aside a portion of the proceeds to pay the future taxes on the gain. The second method is

Learn to love the customer

Charlie Mouser

'Customers don't leave us; we drive them away with indifference. In droves.'

— Charlie Mouser marketing consultant

Retailers need to do a lot more courtin' in order to perform a "marriage at the cash register," and that courtin' includes taking checks, expanding hours and even accepting returns that might not have been purchased at the retailer's store.

Advertising-marketing consultant Charlie Mouser describes retailing as the "lovemaking business," but he suggested that most retailers are rapists, not lovers, to a seminar audience Tuesday at Schoolcraft College.

"Customers don't leave us; we drive them away with indifference. In droves," Mouser said. "In love if I do what my partner wants to do, we call that a fantastic love affair. If I do what I want to do when I want to, we call that rape.

"What business are we in in retailing? You're in the lovemaking business. To create love affairs. That means there has to be some hand holding. That means I've got to do a lot of courtin' if we expect to perform a marriage at the cash register.

"How many merchants do you know are lovers or rapists? I think most of them are rapists. (Retailers say) 'I know what you need, and I'm going to give it to you.' "

The Mouser seminars were sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and local chambers of commerce. He appeared throughout the week before audiences in Canton, Farmington, Livonia, Birmingham, Troy/Rochester and Southfield.

Mouser is the founder and publisher of the Mouser Report, the world's largest retailing report. In 1985, he started the Virginia-based Mouser Institute, which provides classroom training.

MOUSER TRACED the evolution of retailing and recalled the time when all it took was air conditioning to get shoppers into stores. But what has worked for the last 40 years is not going to attract shoppers today, he said. And a big part of the change has resulted from women entering the work force.

"In the next 10 years, of all people entering the work force, 64 percent will be women. What does that mean to you? Simple. If you're only open 9 to 5, you'll only cater to the unemployed. And you're not going to do any more business if you only cater to the unemployed.

"The working woman today puts more value on her time that she does on her money. A working woman gets more done on her lunch hour than six men can do in four days."

He predicted that by 1995, stores will be open 24 hours a day.

Shared phone services profit tenant, landlord

By Filip Fracassa
special writer

'With a long-distance carrier carefully chosen, we can provide fantastic services to a tenant and get a large profit potential to the building owner.'

— Michael Miller

Operators and tenants of office buildings in Michigan are trimming costs and reaping profits through shared phone services.

The "shared tenant service" concept, developed by Howell-based Communication Technologies, promises to upgrade office buildings, benefit tenants through cost-efficient telephone use and turn profits for building owners while improving a competitive edge in the market.

"The concept benefits both sides," said Michael Miller, president of Howell-based Communication Technologies, at a meeting of the Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Detroit in Southfield's Michigan Inn last week.

"A building owner can enhance service to tenants and tenants can make a profit."

The system is geared toward office buildings that house several small businesses. Those tenants are unable to take advantage of higher-quality telephone services because of burgeoning capital costs, Miller said.

"They just can't afford the features that a large telephone system can provide," said Miller who launched his company in 1983 and now has five employees.

"The building owner can offer his or her own system and provide a service that's unavailable elsewhere."

Shared tenant services can provide a tenant with telephone equipment, local lines, long distance services, voice mail systems, automatic attendance systems, message centers, automatic route selection, speed dialing, call waiting, three-way calling and network data equipment without the use of modems.

"The building owner can sell the telephone equipment at a one-time buy, or rent it monthly," Miller, a former AT&T and Michigan Bell executive, said. "The typical size system is also designed to be a profit center for building owners. Through renting or selling the systems, owners can also rent long distance services and recover equipment costs, receiving a healthy return on the investment.

"If the building owner chooses, he or she can see profit within a few months of installation of the system," Miller said. "We caution all our customers, however, that it's very important to monitor and assess the system monthly."

The concept requires building owners to go through several steps before installation.

Both the telephone equipment and installation must be borne by the building owner, along with initial installation costs for local, near zone and long distance carriers. In addition, there must be staff to administer and market the tenant system.

"There is an extensive needs analysis we complete with the building owner," Miller said. "It determines to gradually liquidate a portion of the stock over a number of years, paying the capital gains tax only at the time of sale.

Single stock endangers older woman's estate

Either way, the proceeds after payment of taxes can be used to diversify the portfolio. Because the stock has a relatively low dividend yield, Katherine should be able to increase her income while decreasing her risk by diversifying into higher yielding and more stable assets.

Boyce stresses that asset diversification for Katherine should remain very conservative. Her stated risk tolerance is low, and conservative investments such as certificates of deposit, Treasury bills, Treasury bonds, deferred annuities, high-quality bonds and utility stocks are all appropriate assets for her at this stage of life.

Ferrara believes that one of the strengths of Katherine's situation is that she already has a will. But she might consider additional steps in estate planning.

"While a will is a good start, it does not prevent probate of the estate or protect a person in the event of incapacity prior to death. Katherine may want to consider setting up a living trust arrangement and funding her assets into the name of that trust. The advantage of this type of trust is that Katherine, as trustee during her lifetime, will have total control over the assets for her benefit, yet because the assets are titled in the name of her trust, at her death there will be no probate of the assets in the trust."

In addition, the trust can make provisions for a successor trustee chosen by Katherine to manage any trust assets for her benefit in the event of incapacity. With a trust relationship established in advance, the cost and time delays of an appointment of a guardian and conservator can be avoided.

FOR THE SAME reason, Katharine may also want to consider executing a durable power of attorney, which would allow a trusted person to control her affairs solely for her benefit, in the event she becomes incapacitated prior to death.

If Katherine is charitably inclined, she may want to consider a "charitable remainder trust." Ferrara explained that "this type of trust will allow Katherine to have the use of assets placed in the trust during her lifetime. At Katherine's death, assets can be used for the benefit of other heirs and eventually be given directly to a charity or be used for the charity's benefit."

"If Katherine were to place her current low-yielding stock in the trust, the trust could sell the stock without being taxed on the built-in gain, and the proceeds could be reinvested to increase her income. In addition, a charitable income tax deduction could be received.

"If she were worried about losing an asset for her heirs, an insurance policy could be purchased on her life with the heirs as beneficiaries to offset this asset loss. This strategy may be particularly appealing to older clients who feel locked into investments because of potential capital gains tax on the sale."

One thing of note is that at Katherine's death, there will be Michigan inheritance tax and federal estate tax because Katherine's assets exceed non-taxable limits. To the extent that at her death the estate continues to exceed $600,000, any excess, after various deductions and credits, will be subject to Federal Estate Tax. If Katherine is so inclined, she may want to consider making current gifts to relatives in order to reduce her estate, thereby reducing federal estate taxes. As long as current gifts do not exceed $10,000 per recipient per year, there would be no federal gift tax.

One important aspect not noted yet is Katherine's modest living standard. This can be both a strength what type of image the owner would like to project with his or her tenants, such as a high-tech image or leasing through square footage only."

The analysis will determine whether the system would be a profit center or enhance the building to prospective tenants. After a determination is made, Miller and his staff begin setting general specifications, such as the number of telephones and telephone lines necessary.

The next step involves the profit level wanted by the building owner.

"This is actually the tricky part," Miller said. "We do a comparative analysis of surrounding prospective buildings and determine what the price ceiling of the system will be."

The comparative analysis provides a complete picture of what a tenant can provide, in the same building, with the same type of system, vs. what a building owner could provide.

"Many times, with a long-distance carrier carefully chosen, we can provide fantastic services to a tenant and get a large profit potential to the building owner," Miller said. "If the system is chosen, the competitive threshold can be a 20 percent discount to the tenant and get a nice profit to the owner."

After the analysis is complete and the high price and bottom line cost determined, the profit level is set somewhere between the two.

"The building owner may find, after all is assessed, that the costs may be higher than expected and his profit margin low. If that happens, he must decide whether to treat it as a loss as a marketing expense.

Miller said the most important aspect of the system's success involves the building owner setting up a management program to review the system's cost with regularity.

"We can provide that service through our company, but we stress the review must be done on a monthly or quarterly basis for it to be a success," Miller said. "The staff would see because of a change in costs and offering of service by different telephone carriers, that it may be better to change systems or carriers."

Customer loyalty must be earned signs frequently posted near cash registers that can destroy the courtship a retailer is trying to create.

The first says no cash refunds.

"How many of you would have gotten married if the rules had been posted first? At least that day you had hopes. But that sign on the cash register says 'We are right, you are wrong, that's it.' What happens is that we don't want to be lovers in business."

Mouser tested the audience by asking how many would refund $1,000 to a woman who brought in a dress that had been run over by a truck. No one would.

Then he asked how many would give a 5-year-old girl a second scoop of ice cream after she dropped her first. Everyone would.

"The margin of profit is exactly the same whether you sell a $1,000 item or a $1 item. You show me companies that succeed, and I'll show you companies that have only one interest in mind — the customer.

"How much does it cost you to be right? A lot more than it costs you to make a customer happy. Loyalty is a funny thing. We blame all the customers in the world for not having any loyalty. Do we create it? I don't think so. Because we want them to play only by our rules, and we don't understand that we have to make people feel better about our stores than anywhere else."

Mouser cited Wallmart stores as having done studies that showed that for every dollar they refunded, they received $1.70 back in sales.

THE OTHER sign Mouser referred to threatens to fine the customer $20 if the customer's check bounces. He describes this as "lousy economics."

"If you take Master Card or Visa, then you can afford to lose one out of every 25 or one out of every 33 checks you take and be equal to what (they) were by taking every 25 or 33 Master Cards or Visas.

Should you incorporate your firm?

One of the frequently asked questions by my clients is: "Should I incorporate?" My answer is always the same: "It depends."

The accompanying chart, prepared especially for my readers, is self explanatory. However, it is apropos to make the following observations:

- Proprietorship now offers many of the key advantages offered by a corporation. Therefore, incorporation is not generally advisable for small entrepreneurs.
- Incorporation does not protect an individual from a malpractice suite or a professional liability. Consequently, setting up a corporation does not necessarily limit one's personal liability.
- Comparable corporate-type qualified plan benefits are now available through Keogh Plans to unincorporated businesses.
- Some of the special features of incorporation, such as deferred compensation plan, are really for larger business.
- So, if you have the entrepreneurial spark and can hardly wait to paint Inc. on your mailbox, first consult your financial planner to make sure that it is indeed a shrewd move for you.

Probe provides small ray of light

By Dan McCosh
special writer

A friend of mine from Wyandotte made a stab at civic boosterism a few years ago by pointing out that shutting down all the steel mills and chemical plants had improved the air quality, even making the upwind side of Grosse Ile more or less habitable and improving the housing values.

But in a bar on Fort Street there is a sign: "Ecorse, Home of the Broke and the Brave," which is the kind of thing that comes to mind when you are on the wrong side of a real estate boom.

Puddling steel, smuggling booze, making Fords and living with the hope that a strong west wind would blow the toxic fumes over to Canada to clear the air for the weekend softball game pretty much made up life downriver until the whole thing collapsed in the mid-1970s.

That's when domestic car sales went into a tailspin with the energy crisis. That would have done enough damage. But the industry response was to cut car weight by a third, and that meant a third less steel. Engines went from 500 pounds of cast iron to a wimpy 200 pounds or so of iron and aluminum, and with the domestic auto industry already down to using about a quarter as much domestic steel and iron as they had in the 1960s, the big ships started to unload rolls of foreign cold-rolled.

A two-year-old Ford casting plant in Flat Rock was flat shut down before the walls got a chance to get dirty, and the big rolling mills, caught up in corporate acquisitions, bankruptcies and takeovers, started to get those three-letter corporate names that seem to be an early warning the gates are about to close.

LAST WEEK, we were downriver nursing our knees in a Japanese restaurant, one of those that don't cheat by putting a footwell under the table so you have to sit on your legs until they get numb during the tempura course. The occasion was the second grand opening of the new Mazda plant in Flat Rock, honoring the launch of the new Ford-designed Probe, which somehow seemed slightly less grand than the first opening last fall, when the Japanese participants in this joint venture first opened the doors for a plant tour.

Regardless, the majority of cars coming out of the Flat Rock facility will be Ford-marketed Probes. The engine and chassis are built in Japan, with the skin the result of the artful work of Jack Telnack's design staff. It's already the kind of hot car you can sense building a big reputation on the street, and the plant people are scrambling to get a second shift started. Tom Wagner, who recently took over at Ford Division, can put up with a couple of sore knees for this kind of car.

The Flat Rock assembly plant ultimately will employ more than 3,000 and turn out about 200,000 cars annually, including the new Mazda RX6 coupe and the Ford Probe. About half the components are imported from Japan, so the cars don't mean as many jobs as a hot car used to mean. Even the local Ford dealers, which haven't guaranteed the normal employee discount program that usually means a gold mine in unsolicited retail sales, don't see this quite like the old days.

But something better than 50,000 people lined up to get a job at Flat Rock, and one out of 20 succeeded.

It's probably the best thing that's happened in a long time to an area where the best news for the past 20 years or so has been one Miss America, one Playmate of the Year, one good country western song, and too much clean air.

Originality best strategy

Mary DiPaolo

Once business owners or managers gain access to competitive company data, the next question becomes: "How do we best take advantage of what we now know?"

Typically, any action taken is usually a "reaction" to what major competitors are currently doing or plan on doing in the future.

Examples among retailers include lowering prices on particular products or services in order to beat the competition (price wars).

Many imitate the advertising efforts of others to compete directly with one or more major competitors. In this situation, the advertising message(s), media used and frequency of the ads may be nearly identical, especially when the same or similar customer markets are being pursued.

Other examples include adding or dropping certain product lines along with the competition, following similar recruiting, hiring and training practices or spending the same amount of money by functional area of the business on an annual basis.

Retailers are not the only group that generally rely on reactive competitive strategies in order to compete effectively with the same or similar businesses.

Business service firms, manufacturers, wholesalers and others often depend on this type of strategy as well. Why? Because it is often easier to be imitative than to take an innovative or proactive approach when formulating competitive activities.

MERELY REACTING may be effective in dealing with short-term competitive activities among small businesses. But following this strategy does little, if anything, to help a company plan the best competitive strategy over time.

At the root of any successful competitive strategy is a firm's ability to meet regularly the current and future needs of its targeted customer markets . . . at a profit.

By being innovative, companies can structure their operation to help create its competitive edge rather than riding on some competitor's coattails. Customers are also very astute as to which competitors actively attempt to satisfy changing customer needs successfully. As a result, these firms get the business — and keep getting business over the long term.

Before a new or existing business begins reacting to what it knows about its competitors, it is recommended that the company also consider what it has done, is doing and plans on doing in the future to satisfy its own markets.

Next week we will look at how companies have successfully used their own as well as competitive data to become innovators in their industries.

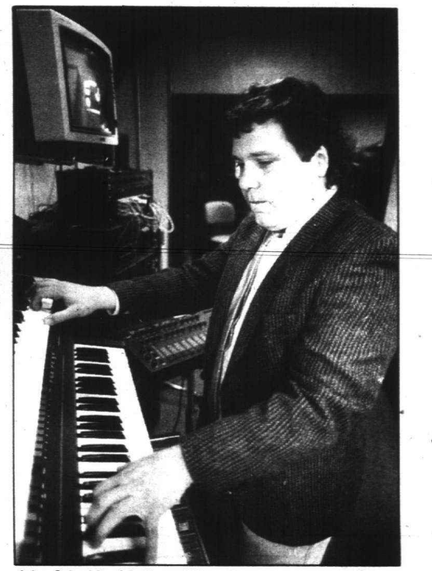
Original musical scores originate in rare penthouse

By Anne Lehmann
special writer

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer
Longtime advertising executive Selby (Sy) Cook of Orchard Lake is president of Penthouse Productions, which turns out musical scores for clients' commercials and other promotional endeavors. Company offices are in the only penthouse in Bloomfield Hills, in the Clausen Building.



John Schmidt of Lathrup Village is music director for Penthouse Productions. He and Cook started the company together, to take advantage of the fact that metro Detroit has a pool of top-notch musicians.

WHAT COMES TO MIND at the mention of Penthouse Productions? If it's anything other than a new, up-and-coming company that produces original musical scores for commercials, multimedia presentations or live shows, you're on the wrong track.

This modest Bloomfield Hills company takes its name from the penthouse it occupies in the Clausen Building on Woodward Avenue. Why all the fuss over a penthouse? It happens that it is the only one of its kind in Bloomfield Hills because of a zoning clause that prohibited building structures that are more than two stories high. Construction of the Clausen Building, however, preceded this clause. Hence, Penthouse Productions has something more to toot its horn about than the wonderful music it has been producing for the last year.

Formed by Detroit-area veteran advertising executive Selby (Sy) Cook of Orchard Lake, who created the well-known Mr. Goodwrench campaign, and composer/musician John Schmidt of Lathrup Village, the corporation was developed to fill a need they felt was being overlooked.

Schmidt, the company's music director, says, "Most music for commercials is done in New York and Los Angeles, but with Detroit being a potent talent base for the music industry and home to many major corporations, we thought we could become a local music supplier."

COOK, PENTHOUSE'S president, adds that because of the firm's proximity, things can be turned around with greater speed and efficiency. "Sometimes a client needs a commercial right now, and can't afford to take the time to go to New York."

How are works commissioned? For this seven-month-old company, it's basically been a word-of-mouth affair. Once the company is contracted, the clients specify what Schmidt calls "loose parameters" within which to work. "Part of our job is to put into musical terms, both lyrically and melodically, what we think it is that they want."

Cook and Schmidt have been struck by how challenging some of the assignments are. "It's really hard to create an inspired rendering for something like a fan belt or (other) automotive parts, but that's what we're sometimes called on to do," says Schmidt. "What keeps it fresh," says Cook, "is that every project is different from the last one."

Thus far, some of metropolitan Detroit's largest advertising agencies, and their clients (including Dodge, Whirlpool, National Bank of Detroit, Nike, Pontiac and Ford), and the City of Detroit (for its Cobo Hall expansion campaign), have worked with Penthouse Productions.

Part of the attraction is the highly sophisticated equipment they work with. Schmidt quips about the more than 30,000 sound effects they have on compact disks.

"We have everything from party day at Nuremberg to people having lunch atop Mount Everest. Actually," he concedes, "we have enough to do all the incidental sound effects for a feature film."

SOUND EFFECTS aside, most of the music put out by this company has a young hip quality. The reason? "The clientele has been younger," says Cook. But he is quick to point out that the studio, with its highly sophisticated musical equipment, is capable of producing any type of music. He rolls a tape citing the use of electronic instrumentation, with classical orchestration.

Because musical scores rely heavily on electronics, many discount the talent that goes into putting together a piece of music nowadays. Schmidt's response to this is, "It still takes a musician, composer and arranger to use the equipment. The equipment is wonderful but it's just an instrument.

"You see the results of your efforts more quickly and you can provide many different variations on something for a client, but the music doesn't write itself," he said.

Penthouse also has a phone patch, one of a few in the area, which allows singers in other cities to record long distance. "It's as though someone miles away were recording in our own studios," says Schmidt.

With all the work, equipment and creativity, what do these two hard-working individuals do with their free time? "I sell Amway and am an Elvis impersonator," said Schmidt jokingly. "Actually, it's a time-consuming profession. It's very demanding and the competition is fierce, so there is very little time for much else." Cook concurs.

Trinity's evening of improv is different and interesting

"An Evening of Improvisation" presented by THT . . . something explosive? continues at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday at Trinity House Theatre in Livonia. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

Bob Weibel

By Bob Weibel
special writer

If you are a playgoer in the mood for something a little different, you may want to consider "An Evening of Improvisation" presented by Trinity House Theatre's new improvisational theater group called THT . . . something explosive. It won't blow you away, perhaps, but you will experience a theatrical format not often attempted by amateurs.

And, for that, Trinity House is to be commended.

One of the delightful aspects of improv is that the audience contributes to the show. Each person is asked to suggest ideas for the performers (i.e. character, location, emotion, current event, object and an abstract concept). Notes on these ideas go into baskets, and then are drawn out by an emcee — and become the basic ingredients for a variety of short sketches.

It's great fun to see if your suggestions are used, and if so, what the performers do with them.

There were a few less-than-inspired moments, but the cast had more hits than misses. The group includes Gary Brda, Chuck Curmi, Debra Jackson-Burns, Mary Lewis, Sandy Liddell, Beth Patton, Paul Patton, Maureen Siler, Susan Vanden Brink and Summer Walters.

Some of the better moments included a montage of 48 cable-TV channels talking at once, a choral parody of soap operas, and a freeze-frame tableau wherein each performer continues a slice-of-life story from the same position as the previous storyteller.

ALSO RECEIVING generous applause was the clever use of body movement and vocalizations to imitate machines making Cheez Whiz and hair.

The best scenes involved an estranged couple at breakfast, lunch and dinner. Based on a work in progress, the performers present a more substantial story and more complete characters.

The cast (perhaps because of their youth and inexperience) had difficulties developing some scenes, for example, those with famous people such as Winston Churchill and Barbara Walters. Although one of the best retorts to meeting Churchill was, "Oh, yes, you and Popeye are two of my favorite people."

Nevertheless, director Laura Niesen has made a good first attempt and imbued her exuberant cast with that one great essential of improv — the spontaneity to drawn upon life's experiences to create a scene.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 yers in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

'Nobody's Perfect' is a wonderful duet, which points out the numerous faults of the two spouses.

By Rob McCabe
special writer

Director/producer Michael J. Klier and his talented production company, Theatre Arts Productions, present the third show of TAP's successful season at the Novi Hilton.

"America's Red, White and Broadway" stars a gifted quartet of performers — the effervescent Nancy Kolton, the appealing Kathy Blanchard, the suave, sophisticated Brett Blanchard, and the cohesive force that keeps the production together, the incomparable accompanist "Rebecca." This delightful evening of cabaret theater is a salute to the American spirit and the Great White Way, Broadway.

Following a rousing introduction of "What a Country," the singers perform a medley of songs in praise of great cities like "New York, New York" and "Chicago" and the state of California in "California, Here I Come."

Highlight of the evening is the presentation of scenes from the musical "I Do! I Do!" a comedic look at the institution of marriage and its trials and tribulations. Nancy Kolton is brilliant as the fiery Agnes, a woman living in a somewhat strained marriage with a vain, egotistical husband, played by Brett Blanchard. "Nobody's Perfect" is a wonderful duet that points out the numerous faults of the two spouses.

KOLTON'S RENDITION of "Flaming Agnes" is a guaranteed show-stopper. Blanchard's performance in "The Father of the Bride" is a comedic tour-de-force, which showcases his flair for comedy.

"Red, White and Broadway" also features a sing-along and a "Name That Tune" game, which has become a staple with Klier's productions. Other highlights of the evening are Kathy Blanchard's version of "New York, New York," where she definitely shines, and Kolton's rendition of Stephen Sondheim's "Send in the Clowns," which came close to bringing tears to this reviewer's eyes.

"America's Red, White and Broadway" is a fun show for the entire family.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Presents Yet Another Great Invention.
Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village
ANNUAL PASS
The new Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Annual Pass might pale in comparison to the first Model T Ford or Edison's original light bulb. But, we think you'll agree, it's still a pretty nifty invention.
Not to mention a great deal. Because during our special limited time offer, from May 1-31, you can pick up an Annual Pass for $18 (that's a dollar less than one-time admission to the Museum and Village!). There's even a Pass for children priced at $9. Each lets you visit us every day for one full year, stay as long as you want and start saving money on your first visit.
And we guarantee you'll visit the Museum and Village again and again.
After all, there's more to see and do here than ever before. Including a completely new $6 million "Automobile in American Life" exhibition. The authentic Firestone Farm. And Edison's newly restored Menlo Park Lab.
That's in addition to our changing displays and a whole summer of special events.
So start thinking about buying an Annual Pass. And start dialing 271-9363 to order by credit card. Or start the car and head out to Dearborn for the great American museum that's also great fun.
Special Events This Summer:
• Muzzleloaders Festival June 18-19
• Colonial Music & Military Muster July 9-10
• Fire Engine Muster July 23-24
• Motor Muster August 13-14
• Old Car Festival September 10-11

for the Chuck Muer Corp., Detroit. Among the amateurs is area resident Betty Stec of Farmington Hills. One meal from each category will be chosen in the finals and will be unveiled as a salute to Michigan Week, May 20-28. Announcement of the meals will take place Friday at Schuler's in Marshall.

Chefs' reception

Third in a series of five culinary receptions hosted by the 1988 Michigan Culinary Team will be 6:30-8:30 p.m. Monday, June 6, at the Somerset Inn in Troy. Team members will meet during the day to practice the pieces they will enter in the October World Culinary Art Salon in Frankfort, Germany. The chefs will display their creations at the reception and talk to guests about their work and the contest. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served. Tickets, at $30 per person, are tax deductible. To buy tickets, call Reid Ashton at the Golden Mushroom, 559-4230, or call the Somerset Inn, 643-7800.

Blue skies

She Interior Designs Inc. of West Bloomfield has been selected to design Al Mitchell's second Blue Sky restaurant, the Blue Sky East, 2464 Woodward at 12½ Mile, Royal Oak. Mitchell is a former producer of Ted Koppel's "Nightline" news show. He opened the first Blue Sky last year at 19471 W. 10 Mile, Southfield. The restaurant specializes in mesquite grilling.

Seafood fest

The Hilton International Windsor continues its third annual Maritime Seafood Festival 6-10:30 p.m. daily through June 5. Salmon, sea bass, scallops and shrimp are featured. Diners may choose from appetizers that include bay scallops with cumin vinaigrette garnished with asparagus, Matane bay shrimps in a creamy dill sauce, mussels steamed in a garlic chicken broth and lobster bisque. East Coast entrees include mosaic of salmon and halibut, panfried sea bass in lime butter sauce and steamed lobster in champagne sauce. When dessert time rolls around there's the Spring Heritage menu with imported and domestic wines, rich coffees and liqueurs. For reservations, call the Hilton International Windsor at 973-4225 or the Hilton in Detroit at 962-3834.

Last call to share your music festival memories

Meadow Brook Music Festival celebrates its 25th season this year. The occasion will be commemorated by a special section to be included in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers on Thursday, June 2.

Through pictures and stories, the section will chart the festival's growth. It will feature interviews with folks who were in on the planning during the early stages, as well as profiles of the staunch corps of present-day volunteers who work diligently to keep the festival the top-notch event that it is.

But in planning the section, it's probably also true that there are hundreds of faithful concertgoers who have memories of their own they might like to share about why the music festival is so special to them.

It's Meadow Brook's 'Silver Summer,' but it's your golden opportunity to tell us just what the festival means to you.

We would like to include some of those special moments in the section. We are inviting readers to write and tell us about those memorable times.

If your letter is selected, you will receive a pair of tickets to one of the Meadow Brook concerts.

Send your comments to: Meadow Brook Memories, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Union program trains teens for repair jobs

Unemployed teenagers can learn home-repair skills under a test program operated by the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO.

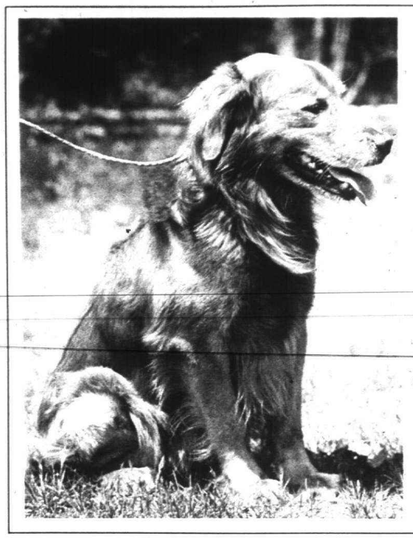
The AFL-CIO energy conservation and home repair program is affiliated with the Michigan Youth Corps. The program received an $80,000 Youth Corps grant Friday from Gov. James Blanchard.

Sixteen grants were awarded, totalling a combined $850,000.

The project's goal is to train unemployed young adults in weatherization, home repair and asbestos abatement techniques. It is coordinated through the Michigan Public Service Commission, Office of Services to the Aging, City of Detroit Employment and Training and the Wayne County Private Industry Corp.

Additional information is available by calling Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO representative Jeff Crause, 896-2600.

The Youth Corps expects to employ 15,000 youths this summer.



Pets of the week

Rocky, a 7-year-old golden retriever, and Kitty, a 3-year-old calico cat, need homes. Rocky (Control No. 207756) is house broken, good with other pets and children. Kitty (Control No. 207235) is described as affectionate and is good with other cats. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets, call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society. The center is at 37255 Marquetts, Westland.

Kim Mickel of Plymouth Salem hits a fairway shot en route to taking medalist honors in Monday's dual meet with Plymouth Canton. The up-and-coming Chiefs, however, took a 254-280 victory. Salem's Sara Andrews stands in the background. See Page 3D for details.

Salem rises to top in Midland tourney

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem was cast in the role of the underdog based on its pre-tournament baseball record Saturday.

But the Rocks made believers out of everybody, possibly even themselves, as they topped a field that included many of the state's powerhouse teams and won the annual Midland Tournament championship.

"This will be a confidence booster because we know we not only can play with the good teams but can beat them," Salem coach John Gravlin said.

The Rocks, who whipped Mount Pleasant 6-1 in the final, went into the competition with a 9-4 record while other ballclubs had reached or were nearing the 20-win mark.

TOP-RATED MIDLAND Dow, the runner-up to Redford Catholic Central in last year's Class A tournament, was 21-0 going in and unbeaten until losing 7-6 to Mount Pleasant in the semifinals.

Salem opened with a 4-2 win over Clio (19-8) and followed that with a 3-2 trimming of Midland (20-6). Including Alpena, four teams with Top-10 ratings were entered.

"Everyone up there had played 25 games," said Gravlin. "They kinda laughed at us. 'Coach, you've only played 13 games.' "

While most teams play doubleheaders regularly, the Rocks are largely restricted to playing single games against Western Lakes opponents. Because teams are limited to a certain number of playing dates, that resulted in Salem's comparatively meager record.

But the Rocks received excellent pitching, and that made all the difference. The cumulative effort was all the more impressive because senior Fidell Cashero, who threw a superb game Friday in Salem's win over Westland John Glenn, was unavailable Saturday.

THREE OTHER hurlers — senior ace Todd Marion, sophomore Rob Kowalski and Bob Files — came through in successive fashion, and quality pitching became the key factor in Salem's tournament success.

"The pitching staff at Plymouth Salem has been outstanding," Gravlin said. "The three kids who threw for us are as good as anybody we saw. Marion is as good as anybody you'll ever see.

"We know we can go into a game with confidence, knowing our pitching staff is going to keep us in the game.

"We can relax and concentrate on playing good defense and doing the things we have to do offensively to win the game," he added.

WHILE THE pitching was outstanding, Salem managed to pull off its tournament victory with just 19 hits in three games. On the other hand, the Rocks gave up only five runs, and four of those were unearned.

"We're still not hitting as well as we could," Gravlin said. "We miss a Tim Dowd (an all-state outfielder now playing at Central Michigan), who can carry you with the bat. We're going to have to score more in the state tournament."

Marion, who has allowed only two earned runs all season, went the distance and raised his record to 4-1 against Clio. The losers had seven hits, but Marion struck out 10 and didn't walk anybody.

"And he didn't have his good stuff," said Gravlin, adding the Mustangs had five left-handers in their line-up against the right-handed Marion.

Salem scored all four runs in the third inning and led 4-0. Marion helped his own cause with a two-run single, and Mike Howard's base hit brought in another. John Woodard's sacrifice and an error accounted for the fourth run.

THE SURPRISE of the day was Kowalski's pitching in the semifinals. Having been brought up from the JV team for the tournament, he held the Chemics to five hits over six innings, walked one and struck out three.

Furthermore, he hung in despite four errors by the defense. Marion worked the seventh inning for a save.

"We knew he would go out and throw strikes," Gravlin said, "but we didn't know how he would fare against good varsity hitters.

"We had to bring up one of the JV pitchers, and the JV coaches said he's been magnificent for them.

"We knew we would have to have it from him in the second game to win the tourney," he added.

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Mike Stout led off with a triple, and Chris Adams' sacrifice fly sent him to the plate with the winning run. Stout had an RBI single earlier in the game.

IN THE FINAL, Files saw his first action since breaking his left wrist May 2 against Plymouth Canton. Pitching a complete game, he scattered six hits and, otherwise, dominated the game, striking out nine and walking one.

"He won't be able to swing the bat for the rest of the year, but the way he's throwing, that won't bother me," Gravlin said.

Salem erased a 1-0 deficit with two runs in the fourth and wrapped up the win by adding four in the fifth. Chris Michalek's two-run single was the big hit, and Adams added an RBI double. Marion began the inning with a two-base hit.

Exhausted Rocks split WL twinbill

Plymouth Salem's winning effort Saturday in the tournament at Midland left its pitching staff exhausted, causing the Rocks to settle for a doubleheader split Monday with Livonia Churchill.

Salem, 13-4 overall and 10-3 in the Western Lakes, won the first game 11-8 and dropped the second 7-5.

The team's best pitchers, Todd Marion and Fidell Cashero, did not perform on the mound Monday, and for one game at least it didn't matter.

Howie Blanchard started Game No. 1, and the Rocks benefitted from his seven-hit, six-inning performance.

Salem had an 11-hit attack paced by Chris Michalek, who went 3-for-3 with three RBI. Mike Howard was 2-for-3 and had three RBI, and Jerry Heath had two hits and two RBI.

Chris Day had three hits and two RBI for Churchill, and Dale Coller collected a triple and single.

Churchill won the second game with a five-run rally in the fifth. A bases-loaded single by Day highlighted the rally for the Chargers.

Dave Walsh pitched the first four innings for Salem and suffered the loss.

C.J. Risak

'There's a lot of distrust that exists, both within the league and between public schools and Catholic schools. I think the idea is that if you're doing well, you're doing something wrong.'

— Ellen Sekerak Catholic League associate director

THE REVOLUTION is over. Title IX was its death knell. There was still plenty of fighting to be done for equality in womens athletics after its adoption, but the tide had turned. The law was now on the side of those battling for women's rights in sports.

Ellen Sekerak was not part of that original revolutionary tide. Sekerak, 36, graduated from Western Michigan in 1973 with hopes of becoming a physical education instructor. A lack of teaching jobs prevented her from realizing that goal until 1976, when she became a junior varsity girls basketball coach at Dearborn.

So, while Sekerak was not part of the original force advocating equality for women in sports, she was in the next wave. And now, Sekerak has become something more. She is the bridge.

There are casualties in every war. Many of the wounds languish for years, festered by bitterness.

THE SAME held true in the war for women's rights in sports. Wounds remain. With much of the old guard gone, drained by years of fighting, it's up to a new leadership to take control.

This new leadership is unlike the old. Instead of attacking the system, the idea is to work within it and, indeed, be absorbed by it.

Like Sekerak. Since her first year at Dearborn, she has steadily climbed the leadership ladder within the Catholic League, one of the state's most prestigious circuits.

From Dearborn High to Dearborn St. Alphonsus, where she served as softball coach and assistant athletic director, to Farmington Hills Mercy, where — for the past three years — she was athletic director, Sekerak has risen steadily.

Now she's ready for another step. Starting July 5, she will become associate director of athletics for the entire Catholic League, serving as Tom Rashid's assistant.

IT'S A MAJOR move, not just for Sekerak but for women in general. Finding a female in such a position a decade ago was unheard of.

Sekerak is acutely aware of her standing. Which explains why she wants to downplay it; the bridge, you understand. She must span any rifts which still exist among former opponents. Her role isn't to force change through her newly-acquired position, nor is it to serve as spokesperson for womens rights.

Her job is to prove women are capable of governing sports. That they, too, can lead.

There are changes she advocates, but Sekerak is careful when speaking about them — the "let's not step on any toes" attitude one must assume when taking a new job.

Concerning womens sports, she says, "I want to help what's been started, to keep it going." Then she adds, "I don't want to sound idealistic about this new job. I'm going to be on the phone a lot, doing a lot of the stuff nobody sees, the organizational and everyday type of things."

SEKERAK IS critical of the lack of women in leadership roles in sports. But she places the blame on women, not hiring practices.

"Girls nowadays, even if they're out in the business world or raising families, can come back and coach for a while," she insisted. "As far as the Catholic League goes, I'd love to see more women coaches, more women officials. That's something I'm going to continue to encourage."

But Sekerak refuses to limit her scope to women. "An athlete is an athlete to me," is her self-proclaimed creed. Her concerns include:

- The Catholic League image: "There's a lot of distrust that exists, both within the league and between public schools and Catholic schools. I think the idea is that if you're doing well, you're doing something wrong.

"It's never going to be resolved completely, but I'd like to have more communication with public schools. I'm very conscious of our interaction with public schools. Since I've been at Mercy, we've always had a great relationship with Farmington's public schools."

- Maintaining the quality of athletics: "I worry about the administration within the league. There's a real danger of burnout. Schools don't appreciate all the work that goes into (sports). But sometimes things don't get done because people just don't have the time.

"The secret of our success (as a league) is the strong leadership within the schools."

- And preserving the Catholic League's greatest asset: "We have a great tradition in sports. I think if you're going to a Catholic League championship, you know you're going to see a good game. A lot of the parents of players went to Catholic schools. Families at some schools go back three, four generations."

Solving problems like these are Sekerak's goals. But her personal ambitions — the kind most of us entertain when taking a new job — aren't all that will be served by her success. Women will profit, too.

● BIG MAC

Doug Martin, a freshman at Eastern Michigan from Redford Catholic Central, has been named the Mid-American Conference (MAC) pitcher of the week. Martin recorded a pair of 2-1 victories over Central Michigan and Kent State last week. He allowed 11 hits but did not walk a batter, registering 11 strikeouts.

For the season, Martin is 9-1 with a 3.39 earned run average. In 90⅓ innings, he has allowed just 74 hits and 22 walks, striking out 56. EMU entered this week at 32-21-1 overall, 18-10 in the MAC.

● SCHOLAR-ATHLETE

Linda Webb, a senior softball player at Central Michigan from Garden City, has been named to the All-Mid-American Conference academic first team. An honorable mention all-academic choice last year, Webb boasts a 3.24 grade point average in elementary education.

On the field, Webb, a shortstop, batted .299 and knocked in 29 runs for the Chippewas.

● ALL-GLIAC

Team honors escaped Wayne State's baseball team this season, but Kevin Schwanz, a senior from Redford Union, has piled up impressive individual credentials.

Schwanz has been chosen to the All-Great Lakes Conference first-team. For the season, Schwanz batted .396 with four home runs, 19 runs batted in and 21 runs scored. He led WSU in hits (38), total bases (57), slugging percentage (.595) and homers. He tied for the team lead in runs scored.

Schwanz has been nominated for All-America and GTE CoSIDA academic All-America honors. The Tartars struggled to a 15-19-1 overall record and were 3-15 in the GLIAC, finishing last.

● TOP DOG

Bob Tatro, a sophomore baseball player at Ferris State from Garden City (Dearborn Divine Child), saved his best performance of the year for when it counted most, and it earned him Bulldog of the Week accolades.

A catcher-first baseman, Tatro collected seven hits in 11 at-bats (.636 average) to lead his team to a double-header sweep of Oakland University and a split with Grand Valley State, enabling FSU to finish in first place in the Great Lakes Conference with a 14-4 mark.

Tatro cracked three doubles and a three-run homer, and stole home, in the four games. For the season, he is hitting .390 with nine doubles, one homer and 19 RBI. In GLIAC play, Tatro hit .567 and had a .867 slugging percentage. He was named FSU's most improved player.

● BEST IN DISTRICT

A pair of players with local ties were recently named to the NAIA All-District 23 baseball team.

Dan Zang, a senior pitcher at Aquinas College from Farmington, and Ed Dresilnski, a sophomore catcher from Redford Bishop Borgess, were both selected to the 16-member squad. Zang was one of four Aquinas players chosen.

Salem embarrasses Churchill; Chiefs lose pair to John Glenn softball

If it was a football game, Plymouth Salem would have scored eight touchdowns, kicked as many extra points and a field goal and added a safety. The defense, regardless of the sport, was superb.

But it was softball, and the line score read 27 runs on 22 hits Monday in Game No. 1 for host Plymouth Salem, 34 runs on 13 hits in the second game. Livonia Churchill managed one hit and no runs in the doubleheader.

Both games ended after five innings because of the mercy rule, and the nightcap saw Katie Vesnaugh pitch a perfect game.

Kim Berrie won the first game on the mound for Salem, 12-4 overall, 10-3 in the WLAA. In tossing a one-hitter, she struck out two and walked one.

Every Salem player collected at least one hit, including Sandy Oberliesen, who finished with four hits and three RBI.

Tracie Robinson and Missy Viele were 3-for-5 with three and four RBI. Berrie and Jo Wiklund were 2-for-3 with one RBI and Katie Vesnaugh was 2-for-5 and had an RBI.

Vesnaugh made her first pitching appearance of the season in the second game. In contrast, three Churchill pitchers issued 19 walks.

Ann Mundinger was 5-for-6 and drove in seven runs. Pam Austin cracked a three-run homer while going 2-for-2 with four RBI and Jenny Barr was 3-for-5 with four RBI.

Mundinger also scored six runs and Kelly Craggs five.

PLY. CHRISTIAN 2-17, BETHESDA 0-3: Elaine Priebe threw a pair of one-hitters Tuesday and won both games for the Eagles in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

She struck out eight and walked three in the first game. Kris Southward's groundout pushed across the winning run, and Missy Goodchild added an RBI single.

Plymouth, 5-8 overall, supported Priebe's no-walks, four-strikeout pitching with 11 hits in the nightcap. Priebe gave up one run all day, and that was unearned.

Priebe had two hits and knocked in three runs, including one on a triple, and Trish Tilly and Rachelle Oxley had two hits and two and one RBI, respectively. Kamie Rowe added a double.

GLENN 19-12, CANTON 4-5: The Rockets reached double digits twice Monday in sweeping host Plymouth Canton in a Western Lakes softball doubleheader.

Glenn raised its record to 16-3 overall, 11-2 in the WLAA. The Chiefs are 10-11 overall.

Beth Wilson won Game No. 1, which lasted five innings because of the mercy rule. Wilson surrendered seven hits and struck out five. Stacey Thompson lost both games for Canton, but was the hitting star in the first game with two safeties and one RBI.

Brenda Coots paced Glenn's 13-hit attack in Game No. 1 with three hits and two RBI. Wilson, Christina Hoffman and Denise Gumke had two hits each. Hoffman and Wilson drove in five and three runs, respectively.

Sara Morey tossed a five-hitter for Glenn to win the nightcap. Morey fanned 12 Canton batters, despite facing control problems with nine walks.

Morey benefited from a seven-run fifth inning in which Tracy Stockwell and Amy Gillette collected RBI singles and Michelle Martin drove in two runs with a double.

Hoffman, Myers and Martin had two hits each in the second game. Hoffman drove in two runs and Myers had three RBI. Tina McFarland hit safely twice for Canton.

Canton, Glenn at baseball impasse

CANTON 6, JOHN GLENN 6: Monday's scheduled twinbill was suspended after 11 innings of the first game with the score tied. The doubleheader will be completed, but a makeup date hasn't been set.

The Chiefs were down 5-2 going into the seventh inning when they rallied to tie. Ed Bardelli's two-run single with the bases loaded pulled Canton within a run, and Jason Demby's squeeze play brought in the tying run.

Canton, 14-4 overall, went ahead in the top of the 11th when Kevin Learned and Mikio Tanaka executed a successful walk-off steal. The Rockets, however, managed to tie with two out in the bottom of the inning.

Jeff Kugelman pitched 5⅓ innings for Canton, and Mike Sulak was on the mound when the game ended after a 5⅔-innings stint. Derek Humphries and Learned had two hits apiece.

On Saturday, host Livonia Franklin and the Chiefs split a doubleheader, with the Patriots prevailing in Game No. 2, 9-7. Canton won the first game, 9-4.

Steve Olson earned the win for Franklin, allowing 12 hits over 6½ innings. Olson encountered trouble in the seventh when Canton scored five runs, and that brought on reliever Paul Stratton, who picked up the save in relief.

Joe Ransley had a grand slam homer, two doubles and four RBI for Franklin. Scott Canfield had three hits and an RBI, and J.J. Swindall was 2-for-4 with an RBI for the Patriots.

Ed Hanna had three hits, including a bases-loaded triple in the seventh, for Canton, and Tanaka, Humphries and Jason Demby collected two hits apiece.

Canton's Chris Kennedy tossed a six-hitter in the first game, defeating his counterpart Ed Gruenwald, who started and lasted 5½ innings for Franklin. Kennedy walked four and struck out two.

Hanna, who was 5-for-6 with five RBI on the day, and Learned picked up two hits each for Canton. Hanna's two-run double highlighted a four-run seventh that put the game out of reach.

Franklin is 12-4 overall and leading the Western Division with a 7-2 record. The Patriots are 11-3 in the WLAA.

BETHESDA 12, PLY. CHRISTIAN 2: Warren Bethesda collected 16 hits off three Plymouth Christian pitchers Tuesday. Manish Nandani, the starter, went four innings and took the loss.

Ben Odom and Gavan Baish had run-producing singles for the Eagles, 5-12 overall.

Chiefs picking up speed

Plymouth Canton took its lumps early in the girls golf season, but the Chiefs are beginning to come around in the late going.

Canton, which came under fire against some tough opponents at the start, is nearing the .500 mark after beating Plymouth Salem 254-280 Monday at Fellows Creek Golf Course.

The Chiefs, 6-7 overall, were led by Kerry Kittleson's round of 62, but medalist honors went to Kim Mickel of Salem, who shot a 61.

Canton got support from Meagan Olesky and Stacey Broschay, both with 63s, and Sarah Beckman, who had 66. Sara Broschay (68) and Kelly Theisen (69) completed the team's six-person contingent.

FOR THE ROCKS, Sara Andrews shot 73, Mikki Mills 70 and Jennifer Burtka 76. Elizabeth Koehl and Jennifer Ott rounded out the competitors.

Seeing his team improve late in the season has given Canton coach Dan Riggs added cause for optimism. The Chiefs will lose only one senior, Stacey Broschay, to graduation. Most are freshmen and sophomores.

Canton won a pair of matches the latter part of last week, beating Salem 262-303 on Wednesday and Howell 244-277 on Thursday.

On the Falkwood Shores course Thursday, Olesky paced the Chiefs with a 58, and she was followed by Kittleson (60), Stacey Broschay (62) and Sara Broschay (64). Beckman (65) and Theisen (67) were not far off the pace. Tara Black shot 61 to lead Howell.

SARA BROSCHAY took her turn at leading the pack in the first Canton-Salem match, firing a 62 at Braeburn. Olesky followed with 66, and Stacey Broschay and Theisen carded 67s. Kittleson (68) and Jeannette Measel (76) had non-scoring roles.

For the Rocks, it was Mickel on top again with a 62. Andrews (72), Burtka (74) and Erika Suomela (85) rounded out the scoring. Tara Shamey and Koehl were the other competitors.

The Chiefs have as their low score of the season the 229 they shot against Ann Arbor Huron. As for individual totals, Stacey Broschay's 50 is the best to date. Beckman, a freshman who had a hole-in-one at Fellows Creek, posted a 51 and sophomore Sara Broschay 55.

Salem and Canton will be co-host for a 22-team regional Monday at Fellows Creek, their home course for practice and matches. The competition begins at 9 a.m. with a shotgun start.

RIG UP a couple extra fishing poles, dig up a dozen crawlers, round up the entire family and get ready for a weekend of FREE FISHING.

For the third year in a row, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is offering Michigan residents and non-residents an opportunity to fish on Michigan waters free of charge. Fishing licenses and trout/salmon stamps will not be needed on Michigan waters during Free Fishing Days, June 11-12. User fees will also be waived at all public access boat launching sites.

This is a great opportunity. If you have young children, you don't have to buy them each a $9.85 license to take them away for one weekend of fishing. And if your spouse doesn't understand why you jump at the chance to get up at 4:30 a.m. — on your only day off — throw your equipment in the car and race off to your favorite fishing hole, here's your chance to explain, without wasting a license on someone who may only accompany you once a year. And what about those out-of-state relatives who doubt your stories about the Great Lakes fishery? Now you can show them firsthand, without having to suffer the cost of an expensive non-resident license.

IF YOU'VE been itching to drop a line in the water but haven't been quite sure where or when to go there are a bundle of fishing events scheduled throughout the summer, several of which coincide with Free Fishing Days.

A couple of the events scheduled for Free Fishing Days near the Observer & Eccentric area include the Bass Blastoff on Cass Lake in West Bloomfield (624-0202) and the March of Dimes Fishing Tournament at Independence Oaks County Park in Clarkston (625-0877).

If you care to travel a bit, several other events will be taking place over Free Fishing Days including: Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament, Charlevoix, (616) 547-2101; Carp Carnival, Michigan Center, (517) 764-4694; Great Saginaw River Fishing Contest for Kids, Saginaw, (517) 776-1669; Fishing Derby for Children, Gladwin, (517) 435-9441; Children's Fishing Contest, White Lake, (616) 894-6054; Walleye Challenge, Hubbard Lake, (517) 736-6418; Steelheaders Tournament, Port Austin, 985-6266; The Northeast Great Lakes Bow Fishing Contest, Ossineke, (517) 895-8823 and the Lake Linden-Hubbell Fishing Derby, Lake Linden, (906) 482-5240.

AAA OF MICHIGAN has published a list of 74 fishing events scheduled for this summer ranging from a Carp Rodeo (June 17-19 in Union City (517) 741-3859) and a Handicapped Tournament (August 19 in Oscoda (517) 739-7884) to a Brown Trout Festival (July 15-24 in Alpena (517) 354-4181). For a copy of the AAA of Michigan Fishing Events Guide contact AAA at 17000 Executive Plaza Drive, Dearborn, 48126. The DNR will also be issuing a complete list of Free Fishing Weekend events later this month. Copies will be available at license dealers.

The DNR and the Department of Transportation will be setting up Fishing Information Centers, June 10-11 at the New Buffalo and Clare welcome centers. These centers will provide anglers with information on fishing and Free Fishing Weekend events.

ACCORDING TO the National Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame, many anglers consume trophy fish each week without realizing the dinner they just ate may have been a line class or even all-tackle record fish.

The hall receives calls each week from frantic anglers with questions about the size of record fish, many times after the fish in question has been eaten.

Now is the time to call or write to the Fishing Hall of Fame for the free rules, guidelines and application forms to establish a world record. The process is a free public service.

Records are kept in all-tackle (heaviest) and all-line classes (strength of the line used) for more than 100 species of fish.

Wenson gets high marks as Tigers farm prospect

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Paul Wenson doesn't need to watch "Sesame Street" to find out what the letter A means.

For the average baseball player, toiling in the depths of the minor leagues, the A takes on a whole new meaning. Simply, it's another jungle to conquer. And the more A's there are, the tougher it gets.

Wenson knows. He made the jump this season from single-A to the Detroit Tigers double-A farm team in Glens Falls, N.Y.

"Primarily, the difference between A ball and double-A ball is that you can get away with more mistakes," said Wenson, who is a graduate of Farmington High School. "Like throwing a fastball down the middle of the plate. In A ball, a batter might swing and miss or foul it off.

"Here, they hit your mistakes over the fence."

The fences have been safe this season with Wenson on the mound. In 21 innings of relief work, he's 1-0 and has a 1.29 earned run average, ranking him third among pitchers in the Eastern League.

SINCE SIGNING with the Tigers as a free agent after his junior year at U-M in 1986, he's shot up the minor league chain from Bristol (rookie), to Lakeland (single-A) and currently Glens Falls.

Let's see. After single-A, comes double-A and then there's triple-A. After that, we're talking the bigs with a locker at Tiger Stadium next to Guillermo Hernandez and Jack Morris, a Kroger commericial and, most importantly, a chance to borrow Jim Walewander's Dead Milkmen records.

Wenson slams on the brakes.

"I'm just concentrating on pitching here in Glens Falls," he said.

Things, nonetheless, are encouraging. Last season with the Lakeland Tigers, Wenson was 9-6 and had a 2.72 ERA. He ranked sixth among relief pitchers in the Florida State League.

Wenson's arsenal includes a lively fastball and a hard-cutting slider. This season, with the help of Glens Falls pitching coach Jeff Jones, he's added a straight change up.

But more than what he packs in his pitching repertoire, some say

Paul Wenson
ex-Michigan star

Wenson has the right frame of mind.

"The jump from single-A to double-A is the biggest jump for a player," said Ken Lipshez, general manager of Glens Falls. "It separates the men from the boys. What claims a lot of pitchers is a lack of confidence ... That's not a problem with Paul."

WENSON DIDN'T opt for the easy road. He had enough faith in his ability to sign after his junior year at U-M instead of waiting to see if he would be drafted in his senior year.

As a result, Wenson had to start at the bottom of minor league chain at Bristol, Va. College players that are drafted start at single-A or even double-A.

The minor league life for Wenson hasn't been the eternal exile its often painted to be.

"It's not as bad as they say it is," he said. "The money could be better.

"I'm moving up faster than I expected. A lot of the guys have been around a lot longer than I have.

"I just wanted to play pro ball," he added later. "The chance to sign was there after my junior year. I didn't know if it was going to be there after my senior year. So I took it."

Wenson is used primarily as a set-up man with the pitching-strong Glens Falls Tigers. Former Oakland A's thrower Dave Beard and Bob Link have been the closers for the Tigers.

Often the role of the middle relief man is to clean up the mess the starter leaves behind and set up the short reliever to come in, throw three pitches and get the save. Credit usually misses the mop-up man.

"EVERYONE HAS their role," said Wenson, who has never started a professional game. "It's a role I've been in before. It's not that new."

At U-M, Wenson was primarily used in relief. He had a perfect 6-0 record in his three years with the Wolverines.

Wenson had problems harnessing his wicked slider, often plagued by control problems. He settled down in his junior year, compiling a 4-0 record. He picked up a key win against Minnesota in the Big Ten tournament in 1986.

He's eight credits shy of a sports management degree, which he plans to complete in the fall.

His strength as a pitcher is certainly enhanced by the addition of an off-speed pitch. He said it's a necessity in double-A to keep the hitters off balance.

Wenson is keeping hitters guessing with a straight change instead of the nouveau split-finger fastball.

"I tried it (the split-fingered pitch)," he said. "I just can't control the thing."

RU clinches title share

For the second straight year Redford Union has at least a share of the Northwest Suburban League baseball crown.

On Tuesday, the Panthers gained a tie for the title with an 8-1 victory at Woodhaven. RU is 14-5 overall and 6-1 in the NSL. They can win the championship outright with a win Friday at home over Dearborn.

"It feels good to defend the title," said RU coach Stu Rose. "That was one of our team goals. But I have to admit I want to be a little greedy and win it outright against Dearborn."

RU senior right-hander Lyle Fegert raised his record to 5-2 by tossing a four-hitter. He struck out five and walked four.

Offensively, Lee Tappy went 3-for-4 and Mike Todd added two hits. Both Tappy and Todd each knocked in a pair of runs.

GARDEN CITY 10, DEARBORN 9: The Cougars kept their slim NSL championship hopes alive Tuesday with a wild victory over the host Pioneers.

GC is now 13-5 overall and finished 6-2 in the league. Garden City needs a Dearborn win Friday over RU (see above) to claim a share of the crown.

Dearborn scored nine times in the first inning off GC starter Gene Boyce, who gave up seven hits and was the victim of three errors.

But Ken Nelson came on to do a sterling job in relief, allowing just one hit over five innings to pick up the win. Jeremy Krol came on in the seventh to pick up the save.

GC scored four times in the seventh to win it, keyed by Krol's two-run double coupled with RBI singles from Jim Teter and Bob Stubbs (each with two outs).

Teter led the Cougars with three RBI. He had two hits along with Krol, Nelson and Jerry Noel.

WAYNE 13, FORDSON 3: On Tuesday, Wayne Memorial, the Wolverine A League leaders, scored four times in the first inning and never looked back, chalking up its 16th victory overall in 19 games at Dearborn Fordson.

State-ranked Wayne, now 9-2 in league play, used the three-hit pitching of junior right-hander Jayson Mitchell (5-1) to stall the Tractors.

Offensively, four Zebras collected two hits apiece including Doug Flora, Mike Cockfield, Dave DeSmet and Mike Heard. Flora and Cockfield each collected two RBI.

FRANKLIN 5, N. FARMINGTON 4: Joe Ransley's three-run homer highlighted a sixth-inning rally Monday for Livonia Franklin, which won the first game of a double-header, 5-4, played at North Farmington.

Game No. 2 was rained out.

Brian Whalen drove in the Patriots' final run in the sixth with a sacrifice fly. Steve Olson's RBI double in the fourth accounted for Franklin's first run of the game.

Matt Seifert picked up the win in relief of starter Dan Murray, who lasted 4⅓ innings.

North had a 4-1 lead after five innings, with Jay Marcoux, Greg Orman and Joe Sturtz collecting RBI singles. Jerry Hakala drove in North's other run with a sacrifice fly.

Andy Drake suffered the loss on the mound for North. Drake went the distance and surrendered six hits, walked four and struck out one.

REDFORD CC 3-5, DeLaSALLE 11-1: The Shamrocks made the Catholic League playoffs Saturday, earning a split in the regular season finale against Warren DeLaSalle in a twin bill at Redford's Capitol Park.

CC will meet Dearborn Divine Child (22-4) in Saturday's semifinals at Wyandotte's Memorial Field. (Game time is 3 p.m.)

Catholic Central, 19-9 overall and 11-9 in the Central Division, clinched Tuesday's piece with a 5-1 victory in the nightcap.

Mike Dorocak pitched seven strong innings for CC, allowing five hits, three walks to go along with seven strikeouts. He is 5-2 on the year.

Shortstop Kevin Rogers, who went 2-for-3, broke open a close game with a two-out, two-run double in the sixth.

Mark Staniforth went 3-for-3 as the Shamrocks outhit the Pilots, 10-5.

In the opener, DeLaSalle broke things open with two-out in the top of the seventh, striking for six runs on six hits and a walk off CC starter and losing pitcher Leo Hutchinson, who dropped to 5-5 on the season.

Chris Tomasi had two hits in a losing cause. Hutchinson added a two-run double in the bottom of the fifth to bring CC to within one, 4-3, before the Pilots added one in the sixth and six in the seventh.

Marian prevails in Catholic semis

Birmingham Marian had to work overtime, then battle back from behind in a soccer shootout before finally subduing Farmington Hills Mercy in Tuesday's Catholic League semifinals at Oakland University.

The final official score was 1-0 Marian, but it was the Mustangs' 3-1 advantage in a best-after-five-shots shootout that clinched the victory.

Marian (9-1-3) now advances to the league final against the Madison Heights Bishop Foley-Harper Woods Regina winner. That game will be played at 11 a.m. Saturday at Bishop Foley.

"It was a terrific game," said Mercy coach Gene Fogel, whose team bowed out of the tournament with an 8-4-1 record. "I couldn't have been more proud of my kids," he said.

PARTICULARLY THOSE charged with stopping Marian's attacks. The Mustangs outshot Mercy 9-6 in the first half and 16-14 during regulation. In the two 10-minute overtime periods, Marian had a 7-4 shot advantage. The two five-minute sudden death overtimes favored Mercy, 5-3, in shots.

Senior midfielder Colleen Raftery gave Mercy a 1-0 lead after the first round of the shootout. But the next three Marlins all missed.

Marian's Patty Boyle and Chris Lamb both scored, and Betsy Clement — the Mustangs' fourth shooter — clinched the victory with a goal.

In the nets for Mercy was freshman Renee Larabell, substituting for senior Kelly Beaudry, who was ill. Larabell stymied Marian for 110 minutes, with some strong defensive support from senior fullbacks Maureen Scullen and Stacy Nolta. Scullen, Nolta and Raftery were first-team all-Catholic League selections.

On Sunday, Mercy had two goals called back when officials first signaled for a direct kick, then changed their rulings to indirect after the scores. It proved to be the difference in the Marlins' 2-0 loss to Bishop Foley at Mercy.

In the upcoming Southfield district tournament, Mercy plays at North Farmington on Monday, May 23, at 4 p.m., and the winner plays host to Farmington High on Wednesday, May 25.

In the other bracket, Southfield plays Southfield Lathrup on Wednesday, May 25, and the Wednesday winners advance to the final at noon Saturday, May 28, at Southfield.

In Class B action, Farmington Harrison will have the home-field advantage against Bloomfield Hills Kingswood at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 25.

CHURCHILL 2, FARMINGTON 1: Western Lakes champion Churchill managed to stay on its guard Monday in this inter-divisional contest at Farmington.

The game was postponed a week after it was washed out on Monday, May 9.

Zebras eye regional title

By Brad Emons
staff writer

If results from last Friday's Eastern Michigan Invitational are any indication, Wayne Memorial is a serious threat to win the boys Class A track regional Friday at Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

A duel for the team title is shaping up between Wayne, the Observer-land champions, and Southfield. The field events begin at 2:15 p.m. followed by the preliminaries and finals at 3 and 6 p.m., respectively.

"These group of kids rise on every big occasion," said Wayne coach Joe Grasley. "I think we'll be very competitive. Our strengths are very similar to Southfield's. We're both good in the hurdles, sprints and relays.

"But we hope to score well in the distance events to offset their edge in the field events. It's hard to say how it will turn out."

Things turned out well for the Zebras at Ypsilanti in a meet where only individual results were recorded.

WAYNE'S FOURSOME of Steve Hearndon, Tom Faison, Dave Rodriguez and Carlos Horne clipped their own school record in the 1,600-meter relay with a time of 3:20.8.

Hearndon's 400-meter split was a blazing 48.7. He also won the 300 intermediate hurdles in 38.7 and finished third behind teammate Corey Wilson in the 110 high hurdles. (Wilson's time was 14.3 and Hearndon clocked a 14.5.) Hearndon then took a third in the 400 dash with a time of 54.0.4

"Steve had quite a day," said Grasley.

So did Faison, who was fourth in the 100 (10.9) and 200 (22.7).

Wayne also took a fourth in the 800 relay as Wilson, Faison, Rodriguez and Horne clocked a 1:30.8, while the Zebras' quartet of Darnell Hill, Ken Szymansky, Chris Wooley and Dave Richards added a fourth in the 3,200 relay (8:23.0).

Other Wayne individual finishers included: Hill, fifth, 800 run (2:01.2); Richards, fifth, 3,200 run (10:07.3); Wooley, sixth, 3,200 run (10:11.3).

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN is also headed Friday for Lahser and is expected to do well.

Like Wayne, the Rockets earned their share of firsts at EMU.

Glenn gained first in the 3,200 relay as Jerry Allen, David Ryan, Carol Lowe and Larry Zimba were clocked in 8:06.4.

Individually, Zimba won the 800 in 1:58.6 and teammate Jeff Graham took the shot put with a toss of 51 feet, 3 inches.

Other Glenn individual finishers included Marcus Lowe, third place, 200 dash (22.7); Greg Anderson, third, high jump (6-0); Carl Lowe, fourth, 400 run (50.7); Allen, fifth, 1,600 run (4:41.0).

The Rockets added a fourth in the 1,600 relay as the Lowe brothers, Steve Wiseley and Zimba were clocked in 3:28.0.

Livonia Churchill, meanwhile, is headed to Saturday's Class A regional at West Bloomfield High School. The field events begin at 9:30 a.m. with the finals starting at 1 p.m.

CHURCHILL WILL BANK on junior standout Jason Belaire, who was first in the high jump at EMU with a leap of 6-4.

Belaire also finished second behind Wayne's Wilson in the 110 hurdles at 14.4 and took a third behind Hearndon in the 300 hurdles at 40.1.

Other Chargers placing at EMU included: Don Montgomery, second, 3,200 run (9:55.2), and fifth, 1,600 run (4:37.1); Doug Richardson, third, shot put (48-7½); Mike Picha, sixth, high jump (5-10).

The Chargers also took a fifth in the 1,600 relay (3:29.7).

But most of the attention this weekend will be focused on a Wayne, which is enjoying its most successful track season in the school's history.

On Tuesday, the Zebras wrapped up an 8-1 dual meet campaign with an 89-39 triumph over visiting Wyandotte as Pierre Hixon captured the 110 and 300-meter hurdles in 16.4 and 42.6, respectively. Wayne showed its power last Thursday with an overwhelming 102-26 triumph over Trenton as Faison won the 100, 200 and 400.

"Our ultimate goal is to send as many as we can to the state meet (June 3-4 at EMU)," Grasley said. "But winning the regional is still our goal. We're optimistic."

Borgess girls drop dual meet to Braves

Redford Bishop Borgess should be the favorite Friday at the Class B girls track regional Friday at Ypsilanti Lincoln.

The Spartans are favored despite losing their first dual meet of the season Monday at Ypsilanti. The host Braves, one of the state's top teams in Class A, scored 95 points in a triangular meet against Borgess, which was second with 49, and Garden City, third with 19.

Borgess, which finished its dual meet season at 10-1, captured six events in the triangular meet led by Michelle Gayney, who captured the mile and two-mile runs with times of 5:33.1 and 12:52.0, respectively. Other Borgess winners included Shelley Blanding, shot put (36 feet, 7 inches); Kim Mitchell, 440-yard run (1:01.0); and Lyshaty McGowan, 880 run (2:26.0). The Spartans added a first in the mile relay (4:15.0).

ON SATURDAY, Borgess wrapped up the Catholic League Central Division dual meet crown with an 84-43 triumph in a meet at Redford Thurston.

Gayney and Blanding each won two events for the Spartans, who finished 5-0 in the Central.

Gayney was victorious in the 800-meter run (2:38.0) and 3,200 run (13:13.0), while Blanding took the 100 dash (13.1) and shot put (35-4).

On Friday, Borgess finished second at the seven-team Lansing Waverly Invitational. Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills was first with 114 followed by Borgess (111) and Adrian (106).

The Spartans took three events, including two relays.

Blanding, Mitchell, Angie Ross and Philana Hooper won the 400 relay in 50.6, while Ross, McGowan, Mitchell and Felicia Bunton captured the 1,600 relay in 4:06.9. Blanding also added a first in the discus (116-2).

Gayney was among the second place finishers, setting a personal best of 5:24.9 in the 1,600 to go with a 12:09.0 in the 3,200. Ross, meanwhile, finished second in the 100 hurdles (16.3).

LUTHERAN HIGH WESTLAND'S Jennifer Gerlach took firsts in the 1,600 and 3,200 runs at the Falcon Relays Saturday at Birmingham Groves.

Scoreless tie boost for Blazers

Livonia Ladywood battled state-ranked Birmingham Marian to a scoreless tie Saturday in girls soccer at Livonia's Bicentennial Park.

Both teams had their scoring chances. Marian, which advanced to the Catholic League tournament finals with an overtime win over Farmington Hills Mercy Monday, misfired on a penalty kick and Ladywood (4-3-1 overall) failed to capitalize on three solid opportunities.

"The girls are looking for some respect because the season has been so-so," said Ladywood coach John Ozog, whose team finished 3-3-1 in the league. "They stepped up to the challenge. We had our chances but couldn't put the ball into the net. But we held them off."

On Thursday, Cassie Ozog pumped in three goals and Gina Carozzo contributed two to pace Ladywood's 7-0 trouncing of Allen Park Cabrini at Bicentennial Park.

Maddie Verrino and Amy Boues also notched goals for Ladywood.

FRANKLIN 4, GARDEN CITY 1: Four different players accounted for the Livonia Franklin goals Monday at Garden City.

The Patriots (6-5-1) had a 2-0 halftime lead. Erica Sundeck, Sarah Bauer, Deanne Brda and Toni Stiglmaier scored for Franklin. Tina Gierucki got the Cougars' only goal.

THURSTON 4, CRESTWOOD 3: The bench was the difference for Redford Thurston Tuesday at Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

Chris Crosky, a freshman, and Cherise Gable, a sophomore, both non-starters, accounted for all of the Eagles' scoring. Thurston built a 3-0 halftime advantage as first Crosky scored with Gable assisting, then Gable knocked in two goals, with Crosky assisting on the first.

Crestwood battled back to tie it at 3-3 in the second half, but with two minutes left Gable sent the ball through to Crosky on a breakaway for the game-winner.

Two other bench players, midfielders Bonnie Duffy and Bobbi Kaljan, were also instrumental in the victory. Gail Batke was in goal for Thurston (7-6).

Marty Budner

Right from the start it was a dazzling show.

Ice skating fans fortunate enough to cram into a jam-packed Joe Louis Arena last Friday experienced a post-Olympic night to remember.

With the Olympic theme blaring through the speakers and the colorful Olympic rings encircling the ice, the pumped-up crowd roared as the skating stars were introduced. And the enthusiasm never waned.

The exciting first half of the show featured Olympians Jill Trenary, Christopher Bowman, who made immediate friends as he skated dressed in a Detroit Red Wings jersey, and Birmingam's own bronze medal winners Jill Watson and Peter Oppegard.

As they began their routine, Watson and Oppegard waved to their friends from the Birmingham Ice Arena located in a corner of the stadium. They performed delightfully (despite a fall by Watson on a double-loop jump) and were given warm applause.

The second half of the show was spectacular. One by one they came out to perform.

First, it was American bronze medalist Debi Thomas, who appeared almost embarrassed as she accepted a thunderous standing ovation. Charismatic Canadian silver medalist Elizabeth Manley, sporting her white Calgary cowgirl hat, entertained with style. And the shrieks grew louder as Canadian star and silver medal winner Brian Orser jumped and glided through two marvelous routines set to a pair of hit tunes of Neil Diamond.

Then it was the gold medalists.

Soviet ice dancing stars Natalia Bestemianova and Andrei Bukin were magnificent. But the crowd nearly blew off the JLA roof with its hearty reception for American gold medal winner Brian Boitano. His spirited performance concluded with a portion of the U.S. national anthem and the crowd rose to its feet.

East German sensation Katarina Witt capped the evening with a trilogy of routines, including a wild rendition of Michael Jackson's Bad.

All the skaters — Witt in a Red Wings '88 jersey — came out for a crackling finale. The crowd loved it.

"It was great, wasn't it?," offered Rita Lowery, who coached Watson and Oppegard the past four years. "The electricity in the air was fabulous. And it was so nice because the crowd seemed to know everyone.

"When the Olympic theme came on with Debi Thomas, it was such a delight," she said. "I get goose bumps just talking about it."

And what did she have to say about Watson's fall?

"I think they just got too close to each other as they got down to the one end of the ice," she said. "She went into the jump at a difficult angle. Plus, I think not really being used to skating without lights (most of the routine was done in the dark, accompanied only by spotlights) had something to do with it."

The Detroit gig was the ninth stop on a whirlwind tour that will take the skaters through 22 cities in 29 days.

I noted in last week's column that Watson and Oppegard's homecoming to Detroit may be their last amateur area appearance. That wasn't quite correct.

Watson and Oppegard performed Friday's skating show technically as professionals. Most of the money gained from the sold-out tour goes back into a United States Figure Skating Association fund. A few bonuses are paid to the performing skaters, which gives them professional status.

LONG-DISTANCE KARA: Bloomfield Hills Andover girls track coach Steve Price may have another Laura Matson in the making.

A young distance runner named Kara Bruce is raising a lot of eyebrows around the junior high track circuit. Bruce, an eighth grader at West Hills Middle School, ran a time of 5 minutes, 37 seconds in winning the mile race in a recent meet against Bloomfield Hills Middle School.

That time is not only outstanding for her age, but would put her among the leaders in the Eccentric's weekly listings of the top high school girls track performers. West Hills Middle School coach Dave Baird said Bruce ran a time of 5:50 last year which was less that a second off a state record for seventh-grade girls.

Bruce is undefeated in her two meets this year and is the defending county junior high (seventh and eighth grade competitors) champion.

"She's a super kid," said Baird, the school's long distance coach. "It's nice to have someone that good who's really devoted to the sport. She's very coachable.

"She's improved a lot and I wouldn't be surprised if she doesn't lose (a race) this year," he said.

Besides the mile, Bruce runs the mile relay and participates in the long jump for West Hills.

AMBROSE/ECCENTRIC RELAYS: The 21st annual Ambrose/Eccentric Track and Field Relays will be held Tuesday, May 31, at Southfield High School.

Medals will be awarded for the first four places; ribbons for fifth and sixth. All schools from The Eccentric coverage area are invited and encouraged to participate. Entry deadline is May 27. There will be four field-event relays and 14 track-event relays, including a heavy men's relay.

Any track coach needing further information can call me at 644-1101.

REGIONAL TRACK TIME: Bloomfield Hills Lahser and West Bloomfield high schools will play host this weekend to a pair of Class A boys and girls Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) track and field regional meets.

Lahser's meet, which takes place Friday, involves 18 schools. Undefeated Southeastern Michigan Association (SMA) champion Southfield has to be one of the favorites to win the boys crown.

The participating teams include Berkley, Birmingham Brother Rice, Birmingham Groves, Birmingham Marian, Birmingham Seaholm, Bloomfield Hills Andover and Lahser, Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy, Garden City, Southfield-Lathrup, Livonia Franklin, Redford Catholic Central, Redford Union, Royal Oak Dondero and Kimball, Wayne Memorial and Westland John Glenn.

Marshall Fredericks stands beneath the towering (28 feet high) plaster of Christ, at left. Above, he and his wife, Rosalind, talk about the gallery as it neared completion for the opening.

Lasting tribute to Fredericks's art

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

WHY A Marshall Fredericks Gallery out in the beet fields north of Saginaw, you ask yourself heading north on I-75? Why not in the city? Why not in the suburbs north of Detroit where he lives? Why here?

Well, the 10,000-square-foot Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery and adjacent outdoor sculpture garden, dedicated last Sunday, is in the Arbury Fine Arts Center on the Saginaw Valley State University campus because a lot of people went into action and raised a lot of money.

Fredericks said, "I gave my work and people came along and they paid for the castings and the bases."

Ned and Dorothy "Honey" Arbury of Midland have ties with Cranbrook as well. They have been involved with the university since it was established as a private institution in 1963. As she watched the final touches being put together for the Sunday opening she said, "We wanted something that would inspire the students, that they could see from the windows (on two floors) of the hall as they went by, or when they came in."

AND WHILE the university's fine arts program is still in the development stage, there's plenty of inspiration in the gallery and wonderful classroom space. The entire 66,000-square-foot building was designed by the architectural firm of Ralph Calder Associates, Inc. of Detroit. Hideo H. Fujii of Beverly Hills is chief designer.

The ceiling in the gallery is almost 30 feet high, making it possible to display many of Fredericks's large works in the original plaster. The original plaster of "Freedom of the Human Spirit," a bronze of which was recently erected in downtown Birmingham and the "Christ," both at 28 feet, just clear the ceiling.

There will be at least 12 bronzes installed in the outdoor sculpture garden. The bronzes, "Night and Day," Night is female and Day is male, were installed in the black marble pool, just waiting for the water to be put in.

Also installed in the sculpture garden were the "Boy and the Bear," so familiar to Northland shoppers and "The Lion and Mouse," at Eastland. Inside the gallery are the original plaster of "Night and Day" and "The Lion and Mouse."

While the gallery atmosphere is breathtaking, it does more than simply delight the eye. With the displays in the cases such as the sculptor's tools, the examples of a single sculpture in different sizes, illustrating how the artist worked from small to large and the wall of photos, comes an understanding and appreciation of process.

A SMALL BRONZE of the 20-times life size "Spirit of Detroit," that Fredericks made and installed in a lovely wooden box for President John F. Kennedy, is in one to the cases. Kennedy died before the artist mailed it.

The design of the gallery is outstanding. The travertine marble walls and floor add a special dimension.

John King of Fine Arts Sculpture Centre of Clarkston, which did the casting, applies patina to one of the bronzes.

Rosalind Fredericks put it well. "There's something about the plasters with this travertine. Everything seems to be floating, it's very etherial." Fredericks said he had been working and planning the gallery for five years. In the month or so before the dedication, he and his wife drove the 200 mile round trip almost every day. But, things won't come to a stop after the dedication. There is a special restoration area at one side of the gallery where reconditioning work will be done. Fredericks has carefully documented his work over the years, so exhibits will change and grow.

In the midst of all the preparations, when he had been on his feet and busy for a long time, Fredericks said quietly looking all around, "There's nothing in comparison to this anywhere else."

He is known throughout the world as an artist who can do huge outdoor sculptures that are carefully integrated into the architectural plan of a building. This gallery pays tribute to that special ability as well as to his artistic vision and his great skill.

To reach Saginaw Valley State College, turn off I-75 at exit 160 and follow the signs.

Why a Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery at Saginaw Valley State University? A lot of people thought it would be great to have it there.

The bronze "Boy and Bear" is part of the sculpture garden adjacent to the new gallery.

The building was designed by Ralph Calder Associates of Detroit.

Ragdale: Chapter 2 and no ending in sight

Mona Grigg

MANY THANKS to my friend Julia Grice for writing a superb guest column while I was out of town. Julie, an extraordinarily prolific writer, is the author of 11 (yes, that's 11!) long and meticulously researched historical romance novels and two non-fiction books — "How to Find Romance After 40," and her latest, "What Makes a Woman Very Sexy."

So is it any wonder that Julie is this fearful, procrastinating writer's inspiration? Whenever I think to myself, "I can't do this," (and I'll tell you what "this" is in a minute), I think of my friend Julie, who writes and will continue to write, no matter what. Who says, "Yes, this is work — hard work — but it's the work I've chosen, and I choose to do it well." And who never gave up, even after writing six full-length novels that went unpublished before she finally hit it big with "Lovefire" in 1979.

Since then she's had her share of ups and downs, but still she smiles, still she says, "Just do it," to those who complain as we struggle — and still she goes on doing it herself.

YOU'LL GET A sense of Julie's warmth and sense of humor in her latest book, "What Makes a Woman Very Sexy" (Dodd, Mead — Hardbound, $17.95). Drawing on sources as diverse as Psychology Today, Playboy and Ms as well as on dozens of interviews and the results of a questionnaire distributed to more than 70 men, Grice explores the topic of sex appeal in a new, fresh way. What makes a woman very sexy? The surprising answer seems to be "confidence," or so say most of the men Grice interviewed. Not youth, not beauty, not gorgeous gams, but a good, rich sense of self. Or so they say.

OK "This" (as in I can't do "this" — see above) is a novel I've been working for nearly four years now. When I started this book, I gave myself a year to finish it. A year seems like a more-than-adequate amount of time in which to finish a book of fiction, for heaven's sake. I even have an idea for a second novel, once I've finished this one, and the research file gets heavier and heavier, waiting.

Nearly four years ago, my novel began with one line: " 'You should cry,' they said," and an idea about a crazy double funeral. It moved from there to a naive but mostly sincere quest to unsully a famous but dead actor's name. Now it is nearly finished (but I've said that before) thanks to the patience of family and friends and the generosity of the folks at the Ragdale Foundation, an artist's colony in Lake Forest, Ill.

I'VE JUST RETURNED from any second springtime stay at Ragdale, and, as I recall, this same book was "nearly finished" last year at this time. This is where my admiration for Julia Grice comes in.

When Julie says her book is nearly finished, she know that for a fact. That's because Julie is a "plotter." She knows where her book is going before she even begins, and if there are unscheduled detours along the way, they are dealt with quickly and surely, with hardly a hitch in the original trip plan.

I, on the other hand, see those detours as scenic routes. They draw me away from my original plan (if there ever was one), and reroute me to natural but diverting wonders, to new and interesting but demanding character, and more often than I care to admit, to dead ends.

Still, I love this book (which, some people might say, is reason enough never to finish it. Then I never have to let it go), and I love my characters — even the bad guys. And if those wild and crazy people lead me astray now and then, sending me off on wild goose chases before wiser heads (ultimately mine) prevail, who must I blame? It's what I get for trying to 'History of the Body' is rooted in urgency

By Leonard Knifiel

review

A history of the Body by Linda Nemec Foster, Coffee House Press, 18 pages, $7.50.

THE TEXTURE of the pure white "Masa" Paper makes you want to run your hands over it. You can feel the impression of the handset type on the fibrous surface. The illustrations by Kathleen G. Van De Mark are printed in rich blue. Everything about "A History of the Body," by Michigan poet Linda Nemec Foster, makes you want to pick it up and hold it.

Writer's block resulted in poems

But care in book production never guarantees quality within. You open such a book praying for the best. And here, you find it. The 15 prose poems inside are more exquisitely produced, more stylishly crafted, than the physical object itself.

Though she calls them prose poems, Foster's creations are as poetic as anything in contemporary literature. The poems read like one great gasp, as if Foster were holding the reader by the lapels, saying, "Listen. You must hear this." Her voice is as urgent in print as it is deep and vibrant when she talks.

It should be no surprise from the title poem, written for her daughter, the narrator says she cannot offer anything so perfect as a bird or a star, but "I can give you something better: Your body, which is your life. And the fierce love of it that no one can take away."

THIS POEM, THE last in the book, is the key to "The History of the Body." Each of these poems takes a part of the human body — the heart, the eye, the lungs, the bones, even the toenails — and uses it as the jumping off point for an avalanche of images all connected to the ways in which we as human beings must make our way in the world inside the bodies we are given.

Linda Nemec Foster was born near Cleveland, moved to Detroit in 1968, and married her physician husband in 1974. In 1982, they left Detroit for Big Rapids an shortly thereafter settled in Grand Rapids. They have two children: Brian, 8, and Ellen, 3.

Foster has been writing poetry for 14 years. A graduate of the creative writing program at Goddard College in Vermont, she is also the recipient of a 1984 Individual Artist Grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. The grant gave her the time and the motivation to complete "A History of the Body."

The original manuscript was 24 poems, but money constraints caused Foster's publisher to make her choose 15 for inclusion in the book. She is already planning for the day when a larger book will be able to include all the poems in the series.

There are a lot of awards and contest around for poets, says Foster who is suspicious of many of them. Though she won the $1,000 first prize in the American Poetry Association's 1986 competition, she says, "After a while it's like the lotto." Her winning poem was published in the association's anthology, but she recalls that it was a mess of a book. "But let's face it," she growls, "a thousand dollars is a thousand doollars. And they actually paid it." Clearly, her work has found better treatment with Coffee House Press.

"A History of the Body," says Foster, is the direct result of a phenomenon known in the trade as writer's block. "I had just completed the MFA program," she says, "and I couldn't get any work done. I just sat there and thought: Now what?" Her pregnancy gave her the answer. "Your body takes over when you are pregnant," she observes. "It's out of your control."

The poems started as an exercise, a response to the changes in her body during pregnancy. Then it got to be fun, and "then I realized these weren't just practice pieces that I was going to throw in a drawer somewhere."

FOSTER IS CURRENTLY making the rounds of conferences and readings in Michigan. She was a featured speaker at the Michigan Poetry Festival in St. Clair on April 9 where she and two other women poets (Elizabeth Kerlikowske and Miriam Pederson) presented "Bred in the Bone: The Poetry of Kinship," a program in which familial themes in their own work and the work of other contemporary poets are explored.

During April, the Race Street Gallery in Grand Rapids featured a reading of her work and an exhibit of the drawings for her poems by Van De Mark, including many not in the chapbook.

"A History of the Body" has been published in a limited signed edition of 400. It won't last. Order it immediately from Coffee House Press, P.O. Box 10870, Minneapolis, Minn. 55440. Send $7.50. A little closer to home, it's available at Border's book store in Southfield.

Though she calls them prose poems, Foster's creations are as poetic as anything in contemporary literature. The poems read like one great gasp, as if Foster were holding the reader by the lapels, saying, 'Listen! You must hear this!'

Bob Perrish of Livonia was named a winner in the Ward Foundation's 1988 world championship wildfowl carving competition held recently in Ocean City, Md.

The 18th annual event brought together more than 900 carvers from around the world, who competed for $65,000 in prize winner. Approximately 2,100 wildfowl carvings were entered in this year's competition.

Perrish received awards in the following categories: decorative lifesize floating waterfowl division — second in marsh duck category or his widgeon, and first in species — widgeon.

play God. Even God must shake his head now and then at the shenanigans of his greatest creations.

BUT ON TO HAPPIER things. While we're on the subject of trips, a delightful book called "Kids and Cars: A Parent's Survival Guide to Family Travel" is hot off the presses (Melius & Peterson Press — large softbound, $8.95) and just in time for summer travel. Co-authors Ellyce Field (she writes the "Kid Stuff" column for the Detroit News) and artist and art therapist Susan Shlom have put together a compendium of facts and fun reached "through trial and error (they have five children between them) and the practical suggestions of over 200 parents who responded to a survey," they say.

Besides packing (they encourage even very young children to help pack) and safety tips, they look into "expectations" (which of the adults should be the baby bouncer, the shower sergeant, the potty patroller, the schlepper) equipment, car food, games, quiet times, and even re-entering (coming home) and readjusting.

Yes, they know about bratty kids (the Provoker: He pinches his older sister and smiles contently when she shouts. He hides his younger sister's pacifier and listens angelically to her screams. He eats his brother's snacks, then apologizes loudly to the unsuspecting sibling.)

They even find room to describe the unusually loving, understanding, responsible parent, AKA Roboton, the Scheduled Avenger (He glues his foot the gas pedal, enters a trance-like state), Fressella, the Food Maestro (orchestrating the trip into a food symphony, he doles out fruit, doughnuts, etc.) and Backseater, the Complaining Aggravation ("I knew we'd get lost").

If I have one minor, sniveling little quibble, it's about one line in an otherwise informative press release. Somebody says, "It just might be the only book parents needs to read this summer!" I say, "Wait a minute here!"

The Children's Book Shop, Applegate Square in Northville, is the location for the "Kids and Cars" autograph party from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, May 26. Field and Shlom will be there.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. One of the board members has asked me, as an attorney, whether or not the association's attorney was doing the right thing when he started a foreclosure action against a co-owner joining the first mortgagee of record in the lawsuit. The board hired the attorney because apparently he represents a number of condominium associations and he is "cheap."

A. The condominium statute gives the first mortgage holder of record a priority in regard to the claims of the association for back assessments. Accordingly, it is not necessary to join the mortgagee unless there is some question as to the priority of the mortgagee's interest against the association.

Accordingly, joining the mortgage company may be a way of embarrassing the co-owner and could result in the co-owner suing the association and its board of directors for abuse of process and/or slander of title. It may also be an unnecessary expenditure of legal fees and costs and, accordingly, the funds of the association. Here may be an example where the so-called "cheap lawyer" may actually be causing the association to expend more money unnecessarily.

Q. The developer of our condominium project claims to be selling units "as is" even through he is doing extensive renovations. The salesperson has indicated that these renovations will be of top quality and will be all encompassing throughout the condominium. I am wondering whether to believe the developer's sales agent. Do you have any recommendations?

A. There is an implied warranty that the renovations will be done in a workmanlike and satisfactory fashion. To the extent possible, do not accept any documents which relieve the developer from that responsibility. Also, confirm the representations made by the sales agent in writing if at all possible. Be wary of the situation where the developer says one thing orally through his sales agents and says another thing in writing in the document.

Earl Aronson

A weed is a plant out of place. And weeds can spoil a lawn.

Lawns were maintained at least 5,000 years ago in China. Today, in America, an attractive lawn is a therapeutic, recreational, physical and economic asset for millions of homeowners.

A dedicated homeowner can handle some steps toward analyzing lawn problems. Other measures are too complicated, requiring professional help.

Why is an attractive lawn a necessity for many city and suburban dwellers?

Answers from the Professional Lawn Care Association of America include:

"In many communities, enforceable, noxious weed laws and intense peer pressure on neighbors make sure citizens take good care of lawns; therapeutic and recreational value of an attractive lawn is an important asset for families with two busy wage earners; housing prices are slowing or falling in some metropolitan areas, particularly in the high-priced Northeast and California.

"So it's vital for sellers to get the best price possible for their home. An attractive lawn is an important asset to your home. Good landscaping adds an average of 14.87 percent to the value of existing homes, according to a nationwide (Gallup) poll of homeowners."

"Healthy turf controls water erosion and mud, wind erosion, dust, diminishes sun glare, noise and build-up of heat," says Dr. Leonard T. Flynn of Summit, N.J., a member of the American Council of Science and Health.

"TURF RARELY sustains fire. Open grassy spots around homes discourages burglars, vandals and unwanted animals such as snakes, rodents and ticks. Turf provides a cushioning effect for sports and active play. Well-kept lawns reduce allergies and the likelihood of trouble from plants that poison and insects that sting," he says.

Dr. Roger S. Ulrich, the Department of Geography, University of Delaware, reports that a nine-year study shows hospital patients with a view of landscaped areas spent only 7.9 days convalescing compared with 8.7 days for those who did not have a view.
