The Canton Connection

River rescue

Canton Township has been offered some money to help rescue the Rouge River.

Supervisor James Poole said a company is willing to donate $10,000 for a cleanup and an individual will chip in another $1,000 to clean the waterway.

And Poole is looking for some suggestions on how to spend that money. He asked the township board for ideas.

A suggestion has been made to use the money to improve four acres of land on Haggerty north of Ford next to I-275, Poole said. Nature trails would be included in plans there, he said.

Another idea was to use the cash for 12 acres on Sheldon and Warren in order to create sidewalks, grills and a pond. The pond, Poole said, also could help alleviate runoff for the Willow Creek.

Lions share

The Canton Lions Club has decided how to spend money they raised during White Cane week.

The group decided to donate the $2,850 to a number of charities including the Rochester Leader Dog School, Penrickton School for the Blind, Michigan Eye Bank, Beaumont Silent Children and some other worthwhile organizations.

Money also was raised during the Christmas holiday through the purchase of candy canes, and refreshments bought during a recent open house.

Inflated hopes

Brandon Cresman was just helping his grandmother Joyce Crawford plant some shrubs around her Canton home.

He did not expect to get a long-distance message from Indianapolis. But the message came from the sky in the form of a balloon note sent by Jaime Johnson in Indiana.

The balloons were launched April 25 as part of a writing pals program. Brandon said he would write his new pal a note detailing how he found the ballon.

Winning writers

Hats off to the staff of "Voices," a creative arts magazine published by students at Plymouth-Canton Centennial Educational Park.

Voices received a certificate of merit from the Michigan Youth Arts Festival competition. It was one of 14 magazines honored statewide.

Two writers also received awards. Senior Lysa Townley received an award for her poetry, and senior Chris Gorham received an honorable mention for poetry.

"The award was due to the quality of work contributed to the magazine that made last year's magazine an outstanding example of student work," said Phyllis Mann, "Voices" adviser.

Computer connection

The Plymouth-Canton school board bought 16 computer systems for $25,796 at a recent meeting. Purchased from the Wayne County Intermediate School District at a 3 percent discount, the units will equip Hoben Elementary, scheduled to open next fall. The computers are being paid for out of bond-issue money.

Stressed at the session were the cost effectiveness of schools entering partnerships with business, advances in compact and laser technology, leasing vs. buying computer equipment, and classrooms of the future.

Officers see benefits of citizen form

By Diane Gale
staff writer

About 75 times each year a written complaint is made against a Canton police department employee.

And when you're angry, you want answers.

That's where the Citizen Complaint form comes in.

WHEN THE IDEA surfaced 2½ years ago, officers were against it. Now, they see the process can work to their benefit, too.

"The officer is entitled to have an allegation disproved if it's false and the only way you can do that is through an investigation," said Bill Keppen, Canton Police Officers Association president.

"You certainly can't have it ignored," he said. "We don't have a problem with it."

Recently a Canton woman filed a complaint regarding a call she made requesting service about cars parked on both sides of a street. A dispatcher refused to give his name, was rude and hung up on her, the complaint said.

The internal investigation found: "The dispatcher receiving this call for service did not handle your complaint in compliance with departmental policy," a report said. Names of those making complaints and employees were kept confidential.

"This matter has been discussed in full with the dispatcher involved, and corrective action has been taken," the report said. John Santomauro, Canton public safety director, declined to specify what action was taken.

AFTER A FORMAL complaint is filed, the employee's supervisor interviews the person complaining and the employee. Information from the interview is used to support or deny the allegation.

If it's substantiated, disciplinary action could range from a note in an employee's file to suspension or dismissal. No firings have resulted from the complaint forms.

"The real test of police officers is their capabilities on the streets," Santomauro said. "The citizen's complaint process is one mechanism that allows us to review the performance on the street."

Some of the program benefits are good public relations and a method to check patterns, he said.

The complaint is filed by the officer's name and by the name of the person making the complaint. If an officer repeatedly receives similar complaints, a psychological evaluation or a test for fitness of duty may be warranted, Santomauro said.

On the other hand, the system could exonerate the employee, he added.

Santomauro writes a letter to the person who filed the complaint, explains the findings and also sends a copy to the employee.

Soccer kickoff is big in Canton

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Soccer takes on a whole new meaning this time of year in Canton.

The sport is featured on almost every field in the township Memorial Day weekend during the Canton Soccer Club Invitational Soccer Tournament.

The township will host 208 teams from Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Canada during the sixth annual event, said Phil LaJoy, tournament director.

ALMOST 4,000 PLAYERS, 9-19 years old, will converge on Canton fields. About 20,000 people are expected to be drawn to the community including coaches, spectators and family members, LaJoy said.

"With over 200 teams it's one of the largest tournaments in the state," said Bob Dates, recreation supervisor.

"For the kids it's got to be exciting," he said.

The invitational tournament will kickoff at 5:30 p.m. Friday, May 27. Games will be played through Sunday, May 29. Monday, May 30, is designated a rain day.

The games will be played at the Canton Recreation Complex, Canton Center and Proctor behind Canton Township Hall; Flodin Park, Saltz between Sheldon and Lilley; and Griffin Park, between Canton Center and Sheldon north of Cherry Hill.

"The tournament will have a positive affect on business," said James Glinski, Canton Chamber of Commerce president. Hotels and restaurants will be affected the most, he added.

A pancake breakfast will be hosted by the Canton Soccer Club from 7-11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Canton Recreation Complex.

Each player will be given a Canton Soccer Club Tournament T-shirt.

"When I was in Disney World last year I saw a kid with a tournament T-shirt," Dates said.

Woman, church agree on rights

OK to distribute pamphlets

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Church and police officials have agreed to uphold the rights of a Plymouth woman to distribute on church grounds pamphlets that are critical of sex education teachings in area Catholic schools.

The dispute first developed earlier this month when a Canton police officer ordered Dorothy Leahy to leave the premises of St. John Neumann Church in Canton, saying she did not have a permit to distribute her material.

Leahy met Friday with local priests and John Santomauro, Canton's public safety director, and was guaranteed the right to distribute material from her group, Concerned Catholic Parents. The organization opposes information and excerpts from "New Creation" and other sex education programs used in Catholic schools.

(St. John Neumann is not affiliated with any Catholic school. It was one of several churches selected by the group as a site to distribute the pamphlets.)

"IT (THE meeting) resolved it from our part," Leahy said. "The priests can't call the police to get us out. That's all I wanted resolved. I feel real good."

"We are not against sex education completely," Leahy said. "We are against improper and imprudent sex education like New Creation and others."

The issue of distributing literature and police actions were also discussed at the meeting.

The Rev. George Charnley of St. John Neumann said the discussion "went very well.

"There's no problem," Charnley said. "They're going to come out and they're going to pass their things out."

One restriction, Santomauro said, is that the flow of traffic must not be impeded by the protesters, Santomauro said.

"THE QUESTION becomes: Does the public have inexclusive rights to the church?" Santomauro said. "The public has a right to go to and from church. The church also has a right to restrict the hours people may do that and they may restrict who may be on that property.

"We did not get involved in a discussion of any philosophical beliefs of the groups. We talked about the rights of people."

'There's no problem. They're going to come out and they're going to pass their things out.'

— The Rev. George Charnley
St. John Neumann

If Canton police are called to deal with protesters distributing leaflets, "we're going to make sure that it happens in the confines of the law," said Santomauro. The incident involving a Canton officer mandating a permit is "under investigation."

The group planned to distribute fliers at St. Thomas A'Becket, also in Canton, and St. John Neumann over the weekend.

Library work ahead of schedule

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Construction of the new Canton Public Library is running ahead of schedule, according to library director Jean Sebestyen-Tabor.

"The target date was originally mid-November but with the nice spring we've been having it's been moved up to mid-August,' said Sebestyen-Tabor. "Barring any unforeseen problems, we should be all moved in by mid-September. We won't go over the budget."

The brick work on the new library, south of the Canton Township Hall, is almost completed and installation of windows was scheduled for Wednesday, she said. The skylights still need to be installed.

"They have almost completed the storm sewer and water main and soon they will be starting on the sanitary sewer," said Sebestyen-Tabor.

The new library's total cost is $4.5 million, she said.

Counselor lobbied for civil rights act

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Plymouth Salem High School counselor is enjoying the fruits of victory in the wake of an override of a presidential veto of the Civil Rights Restoration Act.

The override, passed by just 11 votes, means that institutions receiving federal funds may not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, age or disability.

William Heath was lobbying in Washington with other members of the Michigan Education Association just before the recent override.

"We really felt that without the teachers operating that day, it wouldn't have happened," said Heath.

"Some people before were very iffy, feeling they had to stick with the president."

Heath said he was unaware of discrimination in local schools and institutions, but was concerned "about the potential for it to happen."

Federally funded institutions "would have been justified under that court ruling to forget about guarantees for minorities and women in sports, or in any kind of program that receives federal aid.

"WE DON'T have as many (federally-funded programs) as we used to, but there are Title IX kinds of things, special education, and some kinds of lunch programs that are affected."

The override restores provisions of Title VI and Title IX, statutes outlawing discrimination based on race and sex.

The U.S. Supreme Court weakened the laws in 1984, ruling in the Grove City College vs. Bell decision that to receive aid, federally funded institutions no longer had to prove they were completely non-discriminatory.

Justices ruled it was necessary to prove only that the particular department receiving aid didn't discriminate.

Lawmakers, civil rights and women's groups have worked ever since for the passage of the Civil Rights Restoration Act.

"I THINK the people who drafted the original legislation were aghast at having it interpreted that way," said Heath.

"This was a sharp restriction of four statutes which ban discrimination."

Heath and fellow educators visited U.S. Representatives William Ford, D-Wayne, John Dingell, D-Trenton, and Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

Ford and Dingell voted to override President Reagan's veto. Pursell "voted for the initial thing the week before. But he changed to support the president, I'm sure," said Heath.

Pursell voted to uphold Reagan's veto because he saw the need for amendments to the legislation, said Gary Cates, spokesman for Pursell.

"Carl voted to sustain with an eye toward bringing the legislation up again before Congress."

Lawmakers were "inundated by telephone calls and telegrams," Heath said. "Most of them said they received more than 3,000 contacts — all from the extreme right — saying, 'We don't want this overridden.'

"It was dumb of Reagan to veto it, because there was such a large majority voting for it. He vetoed it anyway. We couldn't believe it," said Heath.

Heath described his seventh trip to the Capitol as "the most dramatic experience that I've had so far in Washington. It was thrilling."

TEACHERS ARE becoming more politically astute, Heath said.

"They are more aware than they used to be. They realize that all decisions affecting education are made politically. They all are and I don't care what level we're talking about. It doesn't matter.

"I just think teachers are going to be more involved as they recognize how important it is to them. And also, it does matter. They can make a difference."

Heath was nudged into action after hearing an MEA leader 20 years ago who said, "Teachers don't have to become involved in politics. They can keep on losing.'

"That kind of rang the bell for me," Heath said.

IF THE COMPLAINT is a criminal allegation — like stealing — the department conducts the review and refers the incident to the Michigan State Police. Less than five criminal allegations have been filed, Santomauro said.

Those not satisfied with the results may contact Canton's supervisor or file a lawsuit. Displeased officers may grieve through their union. Keppen said he couldn't recall this ever happening.

"When you deal with traumatic types of incidents, like auto accidents or shootings, some of the niceties that you normally use you don't have time for," Santomauro said. "The officer might have to give blunt directions or answers to questions about what happened.

"I don't want to discourage people from coming in and making a complaint," he said. "The worse scenario is a complaint we can't investigate."

Power of caring

Reading instructor counsels students

By Arlene Funke
special writer

Plymouth Township educator Donna Sudik remembered a former student who had been mislabeled "mentally impaired."

It turns out the young woman — far from being retarded — was doing poorly in her studies because of "negative impressions" about school. She had poor self-esteem stemming from a long illness that left huge gaps in her education.

However, the student blossomed after receiving specific, intensive tutoring and career counseling.

"She successfully completed college," Sudik said. "She certainly wasn't retarded. We pigeonhole and label people. How unfair that is. Encouragement is so important."

Sudik believes in the power of caring assistance, coupled with hard work. She brings this attitude and years of experience to her new position as reading instructor at Schoolcraft College, Livonia.

She is to develop a program in effective reading. Portions of the curriculum will be implemented during the semester beginning in September.

"THE RESPONSIBILITY will be to provide reading and study skills," said Sudik, 39. "It's efficiency and effectiveness. (Students) will develop effective study strategies. It will enhance the skills of the students so they can be more successful in college. Good communication skills — that is the goal."

The new position is "part of a general push across the nation for excellence," she said. The aim is to give students skills that will reach far beyond college.

"I don't think Schoolcraft as an unusual problem," Sudik said. "There are students who have difficulty reading. I can't deny that. But that isn't the bulk.

"It's to enhance the skills of the students so they can be more successful," she said. "You're going to see (similar projects) at all colleges."

Sudik, a former elementary school teacher in the Melvindale-Allen Park district, received her bachelor's degree in elementary education from Wayne State University. She has a master's degree in reading from Eastern Michigan University.

She tutored at the elementary level and worked in a reading clinic at Madonna College, Livonia. She joined Schoolcraft in 1979 as a professional tutor and later was the assistant coordinator for Schoolcraft's Learning Assistance Center.

"I REALLY like working with adults," Sudik said. "I find they are highly motivated."

Poor study habits or other problems may become apparent at the college level, according to Sudik. A bright student who breezed through lower grades may experience difficulty with the heavy work load and competition.

Sudik has helped workshops at Schoolcraft to teach students effective notetaking and studying for exams. She developed a tutorial program and designed and taught credit courses in study skills and learning theories.

In her new duties Sudik will work closely with the Learning Assistance Center.

The services of the college's Learning Assistance Center are free to Schoolcraft students and available to non-students for a fee, Sudik said. Many young pupils in grades K-12 have used the center's resources.

"I really do think it needs to start in K-12 and in the home," Sudik said. "Some (college) people aren't prepared to be in control over their learning."

GOOD STUDY habits need to begin early, Sudik said. Parents and teachers need to help younger children develop effective ways to prepare for learning, and to be held accountable.

"Parents, employers and teachers have such power, it's scary," Sudik said. "Nurturing brings out the best in people. What do you do when you don't know? It's OK to make a mistake and to not know.

"I don't want this to be an attack on the schools," she said. "I think the schools are making some headway. It has to continue."

Students who read with difficulty, or who don't enjoy reading, should begin with short stories or stories on a favorite topic, Sudik said.

"You want to get the feeling of completing something," she said. "You want it to be positive. Then the student can advance to more challenging material.

"If students are thinking about going to college, they should — in high school — begin to examine their homework and preparation," Sudik said. "They need to begin to think about what they need to do to prepare."

Sudik's own tastes in reading run to the fast-paced, racy melodramas of popular novelist Sidney Sheldon. She also enjoys reading about politics and science in daily newspapers and Time magazine.

During her free time, Sudik enjoys aerobic exercise, tennis and spending time with daughters Amy, 13, a student at West Middle School, and Andrea, 10, a pupil at Bird Elementary.

Soccer big business in township

PATO MARGETIC, a former Detroit Express team player and presently with the Chicago Sting, will conduct a clinic for the players at 5 p.m. Saturday at the complex.

He also plans to participate on a team composed of coaches from Michigan. They play against the Marauders, a Michigan senior men's soccer team.

"The tournament has grown well over three times the size since the first year — it's really taken off," LaJoy said.

The Canton Soccer Club made almost $25,000 last year during the tournament.

"All that money goes right back into the township," LaJoy said.

Last year most of the money was targeted for a sprinkler system on the soccer field and for field repair.

The tournament is sanctioned by the United States Youth Soccer Association and the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association.

Candidates discuss Headlee override

Fifteen people are running for the two, four-year terms on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The election is Monday, June 13. In addition to voting for the candidates, residents also will decide whether the school district should be allowed to override the Headlee Amendment and collect additional property taxes.

This is the first of a four-part series presenting the candidates' views on important school issues.

Do you support or oppose the Headlee Amendment override request that will appear on the June 13 ballot? Why do you feel that way?

Allen C. Kinsler — I am adamantly opposed to even placing this question on the ballot, as taxpayers have already spoken in opposition. The fact is that there is no relation between required school financing and changes in the State Equalized Valuation. The Headlee Amendment allows for increased revenues in proportion to the rate of rise of the Consumer Price Index, which includes increases in labor and material costs. I think that if the board were to present a specific proposal to improve areas of instruction or training, the taxpayers would be willing to meet that commitment.

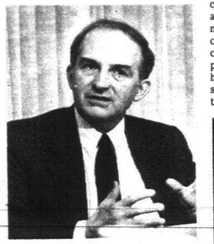
Janet C. Drass — Oppose Headlee Amendment override. It takes away the voter's right to determine the level of school funding.

Kent A. Jensen — It's important to understand and remember the reasons why the people of the State of Michigan, including those in the Plymouth-Canton community, voted for the Headlee Amendment. However, I support the right of those same people to override the amendment as it applies to the school board millage. I personally do not support the override. There should be a relationship between cost increases, if all we are doing is maintaining present programs, and the rate of inflation. If cost increases exceed inflation then the programs being added need to be properly identified/justified to the community for their override support.

E.J. McClendon — I support the Headlee override 1) because of the devastating effect these severe budget cuts would/will have on the education of children, 2) because these are not tax increases but only permits the schools to collect the taxes the citizens have already voted for, 3) because poor schools will bring about a reduction in the value of homes, usually the largest investment most citizens, especially older citizens, have.

Annette J. Remsburg — Although I recognize that obtaining the full allowable 37 mills will not provide this district with the funds needed to even maintain the current level, I support the override. If the electorate chooses to support this minimal request, it will prevent some potentially damaging budgetary cuts. This district has the potential for some fantastic growth and development, attracting people to the area by providing creative educational alternatives. However, if the programs for students are permitted to decline, residents will leave. I am anxious to serve the schools at this critical juncture.

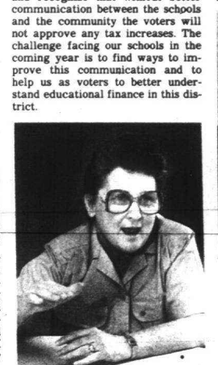
Mary M. Roberson — I strongly support the Headlee Amendment override request. If the schools were to be more aggressive in their public relations, this second election would not be necessary. Colorful, concise memos should be coming home with the schoolchildren. These memos should graphically and in simple terms display the cold facts regarding state funding vs. property taxes and assessments. Our school board, in conjunction with the many other affected communities, should initiate a formal protest with the state of Michigan regarding this relationship.



Lester W. Walker — I support the override request and voted for it as a present board member. The significant reductions required in many areas to balance the budget will have a serious impact on each student in the district. This impact will be compounded in the years ahead. I do not believe the voters have fully understood the gravity of this situation and feel obligated to give them one last chance to be heard. With a budget for next year adopted before the election, each voter can see exactly where the scheduled reductions will be made and how they will be affected.

Leon R. Watkins — I support the Headlee Amendment override. It is my understanding that the purpose of the Headlee Amendment is to limit increases in local property tax to equal inflation. Because our school district relies on state funds to operate the schools, a dollar limitation on local revenue does not equate to a dollar limitation in state support. Indeed it results in greater reduction in state funding for Plymouth schools. The net result is reduced money which ultimately means reduced programs for kids. Therefore, I will vote for the Headlee override.

Mark Beauchene — This is a short-term solution for a long-term problem. The best we can do today is pass this proposal and search for a longer-term solution. This will provide the fupds necessary to maintain our educational system. We must remember the recent millage defeat and recognize that without better communication between the schools and the community the voters will not approve any tax increases. The challenge facing our schools in the coming year is to find ways to improve this communication and to help us as voters to better understand educational finance in this district.



Barbara G. Graham — I oppose the Headlee Amendment override that will appear on the June 13 ballot because too many students are being graduated from the school system with elementary school level education, which does not qualify them for even minimum-wage jobs. It is a proven fact that throwing money at a problem seldom provides a solution.

Frank Riley — I support the Headlee override. School boards need flexibility to deal with legitimate needs, and develop the individual school programs of their own community without being forced into pre-planned formulas that the state has imposed without adequate consideration of the individual community.

Milan Emanuele — Under no circumstances am I able to lend support to the overriding of the Headlee Amendment. The voters of the Plymouth-Canton School District have soundly defeated this proposal. The voters' mandate is on record. It is an insult to the voters to rehash an issue that is so clearly against the wishes of the community. All too often this school district tries the approach of wearing the voter down by putting a defeated millage question on the ballot over and over again within weeks of one another. Let's start taking the voters at their word and work together to find a viable solution to the financial dilemma facing this community for 1988-89 school year and beyond.

Mary Dahn — My support or non-support is of no consequence. It is not even within the scope of my duties as a school board member if I become one. This decision rests totally with the public and I believe it is going to end up being a question of "Do they want more taxes?"

John E. Thomas — I do not agree with the theory behind the Headlee Amendment. In fact, I generally do not agree with the idea of having arbitrary prohibitions which restrict the ability of elected officials to perform the job for which they are elected. If citizens are unhappy with the actions of their elected representatives then they should vote them out. Therefore, on a philosophical basis, I would normally be inclined to support an override request to the Headlee Amendment restrictions. I have not, however, carefully examined the specifics of the present board budget. Thus, I would reserve final judgment as to how the school budget problems should be handled.

Richard W. Sumpter — With the information supplied by the administration I would have no choice but to support the Headlee override. The cuts that would be made, although I do not agree with the proposed cuts, take too much out of the educational process.

Baby-sitting story not sad one at local libraries

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Libraries are not baby-sitting services.

Throughout the country, librarians are wringing their hands as they search for solutions to a recurring problem — parents dropping their children off at a library rather than seeking out a baby sitter, latchkey program or day care center.

It's difficult for librarians to determine whether a child is there merely to bide time until a parent can pick him or her up.

For many parents, the quiet neighborhood library seems an ideal, safe place to leave a child. But these same parents fail to realize that library staff simply is not big enough to supervise children in this respect adequately.

Librarians at both the Canton Public Library and the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth said this is an infrequent problem.

"OCCASIONALLY IT is a problem. It's a big issue in the library profession itself," said Jean Sebestyen-Tabor, director of the Canton Public Library.

"Occasionally we have children running up and down stairwells, but we have building monitors that supervise. Kids can't walk home from our location. Most of the time our kids are pretty good."

Sometimes parents misjudge the time, forget what time the library closes or get stuck in a grocery line. That's understandable, Sebestyen-Tabor said.

A librarian or building monitor will sit with a child if he has to wait for his parents after closing time or the child's parents are called.

"We're hoping to hire a security person for the new library," Sebestyen-Tabor said. "We want the library to be a safe place where families are welcome."

Sebestyen-Tabor also feels comfortable knowing that the police department is nearby should a major problem develop.

A SIMILAR situation exists at the Dunning-Hough Library.

"It's not a major problem at this library," said Peggy Morgan, who has been a children's librarian there since January. "The only children I've seen here are kids who are doing their homework. Parents here are pretty responsible. Parents accompany their children to the library."

However, problems existed at her previous position at a main branch library in Jackson's inner city, Morgan said.

"Parents operate under the assumption that a library is a safe place. A library is also a public place. There are many different people who come to the library," she said.

Canton library board sought approval to levy 2 mills with the additional mill to pay for the construction and operation of a library more than three times the size of the present library.

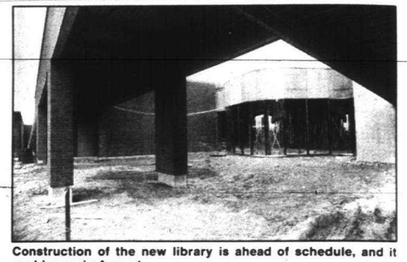
The library board had been limited to 1 mill by state law. But a bill co-sponsored by Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, allowed library districts to seek approval from voters to levy up to 2 mills.

Voters approved an additional mill in August 1986 by a sparse 28 votes.

The old library on the third floor of Township Hall has 9-10,000 square feet of space; the new library will have 31,500 square feet, said Sebestyen-Tabor.

The Canton Public Library has the sixth largest circulation in the 60-member Wayne-Oakland Library Federation (WOLF) system, according to Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin, assistant director. In 1987, the library circulated 383,500 volumes.

The library also has a collection of materials that includes: 90,000 books, 1,000 videocassettes, 4,000 records, 400 college catalogs, 100 seed catalogs, 75 educational toys for preschool children and 150 puppets.



Construction of the new library is ahead of schedule, and it could open in August.

Teen get-togethers promote racial harmony

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Born a decade after the Civil Rights movement, suburban and city teens are coming together for a better perspective on race relations — then and now.

Youth from Livonia, Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham church groups are among the 60 to 100 black and white teens, ages 12 to 17, who are meeting weekly at the Detroit Historical Museum. Sessions, sponsored by the Detroit Historical Department and Michigan Coalition for Human Rights, began April 10 and will end Sunday.

"It's been quite an eye opener, even for me," said Carol Copland, youth group director at St. Colette Catholic Church, Livonia.

Copland and a dozen parish youth have participated in the Sunday sessions. Recently she and a handful of participants talked about their involvement.

For Mike Tuller, an eighth-grade student from Meads Middle School in Northville, the movies, speakers and group discussions have dovetailed with social studies at school. But high school students, including a trio of juniors taking U.S. history, said the Civil Rights movement is given short shrift in textbooks.

"We didn't know about the freedom rides, or passive resistance, or what people went through," said Julianne Kirby, a Stevenson High junior.

"You didn't know about Emmett Till," said Copland, adding that Till was a 14-year-old black youth from Chicago lynched in 1955 for a verbal barb directed at a white girl.

BRIAN Stafford, a Stevenson freshman, said he has learned something different at each session. "It's very worthwhile, that's why I keep going.

"There's so much, it's hard to keep up with. It's incredible to think a whole race was treated like this because of skin color," he said.

Segments from "Eye on the Prize, America's Civil Rights Years" a television series chronicling the movement from 1954 to 1965, begin each session.

Speakers have included Margaret Ashworth, who spent 43 years in public service focusing on human rights; Clyde Cleveland, Detroit city councilman who ran the local office of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE); and Dr. Charles Anderson, physician and activist involved during the Albany, Ga., movement, where the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. tested the strategy of non-violence.

"Two of the sessions really shocked me," said Stevenson junior Tim Kasper. "I didn't know that much about (the Civil Rights movement). I learned a lot."

Amy Mier, another Stevenson junior, found that both black and white teens participating in the program had the same sketchy knowledge — most of it centered on the assassination of King.

"It's made all of us more aware," she said.

"It's like a class," added Kirby. "I was so inspired. You start with yourself and let other people know that (prejudice) is wrong.

"It didn't really change us," she added. "We already had the right attitude becoming involved."

"It's made us more aware," Stafford said. "It made me think about something from the book 'Illusions' — Don't ever stop loving, believing, or dreaming your dreams."

THE GROUP plans some joint activities with a similar, racially mixed teen group from Gesu Catholic Church, on Detroit's northwest side. Copland said she was planning the activities even before the coalition brought together city and suburban kids.

But at least one group, Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills, will get together with Bethel African Methodist Church of Detroit for social activities because of the sessions.

"We took a group of kids down for the kick-off day but didn't get back because of other commitments," said Mary Johnson, assistant rector, Christ Church. "But it opened some lines of communication for all of us. We have something in the works with Bethel AME, possibly to share worship services and some recreation afterward."

Benita Brown and Kim Kennedy, students at Mercy High in Farmington Hills but residents of Detroit, attended some of the sessions. The school's human relations council received an invitation.

"I went with the idea that I knew what was going on," said Brown, a senior. "But I learned a lot from the group discussions. I don't know if (suburban) kids are isolated, but stereotypes play a big role. You don't get much exposure, you think that's the way things are."

Added Kennedy, a junior: "More effort is needed. So many can learn from the city, from the suburbs."

The 25 church-based groups invited represented the city and suburbs about half and half. Not all of those invited were able to participate, including St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Rochester, or Holy Cross Lutheran, Livonia.

Copland of St. Colette's noted that too often "we do something for someone, but not with someone. We need to start involving each other. This has been one attempt to get together."

BECOMING IMMUNE TO ARTHRITIS MEDICATION

Even if aspirin or a similar drug is controlling your arthritis, you may be tempted to stop it because you heard that you could become "immune" to the medication. By stopping the drug you hope to avoid that problem, and have the medicine ready to work for you at a future time when you are in need.

Bacteria can develop drug resistance to an antibiotic if you take it for a prolonged period. However, aspirin and similar drugs are not antibiotics and do not lend themselves to drug resistance by the agent responsible for the arthritis.

When you have a flare, your physician is likely to increase the amount of the medication you are taking rather than dropping it for another one. Experience shows that acute episodes of arthritis are best controlled by increasing medicine that has helped in the past, and adding rest, heat, and intermittent injection. This combination of therapy would not enjoy success if the body developed a resistance to the medicine.

Arthritis medication works best when taken every day. Stopping medication or taking it intermittently permits inflammation to thrive, and gives you the erroneous impression that the arthritis has become "immune" to the therapy.

Flames

Sam Hudson

"WHEN WE answered the call," said Chief George Schoenneman, "we couldn't see any flames, and I knew we were in trouble. That's when I put in a call for mutual aid."

Fire in the Penniman Building was discovered on a Sunday afternoon 20 years ago (Jan. 7, 1968). Originating in the basement of Bode's Restaurant on Penniman Avenue, opposite the Post Office, the fire also consumed other businesses occupying the building including Minerva's dress shop, a barber shop, the office of Western Union and the Plymouth Draft Board. Next door was the Penniman-Allen Theatre. On the other side was Fred Hadley's paint store.

Responding to the chief's call for help, fire equipment from Plymouth Township, Canton Township, and the city and townships of Northville arrived on the scene. Later it was necessary to call in hook and ladder trucks from Ypsilanti Township and Livonia, and another pumper from Salem Township.

It was a freezing day. Water from the hoses festooned the front of the building with stalactites of ice. Conditions were hazardous. Four firemen, including Schoenneman, collapsed and were taken to St. Joseph Hospital, Ann Arbor. But they were back at work in a few days.

A WELDING torch used to repair a refrigerator in Bode's Corned Beef Restaurant was said to have been responsible for the fire, which not only destroyed the Penniman Building but led to the razing of the Penniman-Allen Theatre.

A fixture in Plymouth since 1918, the theater had a common wall with the burned structure. The theater was so heavily damaged that it was ultimately torn down.

Built by Kate Penniman Allen, and named the Penniman-Allen after her father and husband, the theater was the first real movie house in the community.

It was the focus of a community-wide controversy in 1922 when Mrs. Allen announced that she intended to show movies on Sundays. Church and school people led the opposition to the new policy, but Sunday movies won out at a referendum on March 13, 1922, when 746 yes votes defeated 507 no votes.

THE TWO most disastrous fires in Plymouth occurred in the 19th century before the fire department was organized. The first, in May 1856, destroyed all but two buildings in the business block on Main Street facing Kellogg Park.

Another in April 1893 was almost a replay of the 1856 fire. It destroyed all but three buildings on Main between Penniman Avenue and Ann Arbor Trail.

Plymouth gave up fighting fires with the old oaken bucket right after the fire of 1893. Leading the movement to get a good source of water pumped into the village was L.H. Bennett, father of Charley Bennett of Daisy Air Rifle fame.

Ironically, Bennett's Fanning Mill Factory was one of the first beneficiaries of the new system. On April 27, 1899, firemen responded to a fire at the factory, at the corner of Main and Union Streets. On the same day, they quenched a fire in the village jail.

The Judge Fuller residence, on the site of the present Mayflower Hotel, burned in 1910. Plymouth High School and the adjacent Methodist Cnurch burned in 1916. The Catholic Church, then on Union Street behind city hall, burned in 1932 when a Christmas tree caught fire.

FIRE BROKE out on a cold day in January 1936 in the First Presbyterian church. Two hours later, in spite of efforts of the Plymouth and Northville fire departments, assisted by firemen from the Detroit House of Correction, the 87-year-old building was in ruins. The church lectern and Bible were found intact amid the ruins — a fact later recorded in one of Robert L. Ripley's "Believe-It-Or-Not" cartoons.

In the 1950s, fire damaged the Daisy Air Rifle plant and another fire burned an apartment building across Main Street from City Hall. On September 19, 1971, fire destroyed the night club. Prior to its use as a night club, the building was well-known to local residents as the location of Norbert Lofy's Arbor-Lil Restaurant.

The Packaging Corporation's building on North Sheldon Road, near the C & O railroad tracks was destroyed by fire in the early morning hours of December 16, 1972. A new building has since been erected on the same site.

Today's modern fire-fighting equipment is our assurance against a repeat of the calamitous fires of 1856 and 1893 when all we had to rely on were buckets of water from Tonquish Creek.

Message to courts:

Hands off America's press

Tim Richard

HERE'S ONE kind of case: Coming home from work one December afternoon, I witnessed a two-car collision at Five Mile and Newburgh roads. Two young people in one car were injured.

I had an excellent view of the collision because, if my car hadn't stalled, it would have been a three-car pileup with maybe a third person injured.

I gave my card to the Livonia police officer and one to the drivers. Later I was subpoenaed to testify in Wayne Circuit Court in a lawsuit.

In such a case, I was glad to do my civic duty despite my occupation as a newsman. I had the best view of anybody of the collision.

HERE'S ANOTHER kind of case: A woman who apparently was tired of being beaten up by her husband did him in and was arrested.

Kathleen Stocking, reporter for the Traverse City Record-Eagle, asked the jail authorities and the widow's court-appointed defense attorney for permission to interview her in jail. Permission granted.

The widow had been sitting in jail for a week or so without a soul to talk to, not even her lawyer. The inmate poured out her soul to the woman with a notebook who visited her.

It produced a big feature for the Sunday paper, which was duly read by the prosecutor. Hm-m-m-m, reasoned the prosecutor, if this woman spilled her guts, maybe there is a confession quoted in the reporter's notes. So the prosecutor subpoenaed Stocking's notes.

The Record-Eagle's lawyers fight but lose. Stocking, though neither a witness nor participant, must turn over her notes.

Bad law, say we of the media.

THOSE CASES are from the 1970s, so let's take a current one. Reporters for the Detroit Free Press and News interview Alberta Easter and her three sons, all defendants in the shooting deaths of three Inkster police officers.

The Wayne County prosecutor subpoenas them, although they were neither witnesses nor participants. Dirty pool.

Judge Richard Hathaway orders Freep reporter Joe Swickard, one of those subpoenaed to testify, to leave the courtroom during the testimony of other witnesses. But Swickard is covering the trial for his paper. Where does a judge get off throwing a reporter out of a circuit courtroom? Double dirty pool.

Hathaway won't even listen to the Freep's lawyer and has him ejected from the courtroom. Triple dirty pool.

YOU MAY HAVE read the dailies' accounts of the last-mentioned case, but the Freep editors weren't firm enough in explaining their position.

The issue is a global one. In many communist and "Third World" nations, the press is considered an arm of government, like the army or the health inspectors.

In Western free-enterprise democracies, the press is independent. We are tools neither of the government nor the defense. A person in trouble should be able to talk through us to you, the reader, without fear that we will turn into government agents after the fact.

Hathaway — along with quite a few prosecutors, lawyers and cops — subscribes, either knowingly or ignorantly, to the socialist notion that news people are an arm of the government.

It's a notion that should be alien to freedom-loving Americans.

WHEN POLICE arrest someone, they give him his "Miranda" warning, which includes the words: "Anything you say may be used against you."

What's next? Should reporters give news sources a Miranda warning?

And after that? Will you have to be careful what you say around your spouse or kids because they might be considered tools of the prosecution, too?

Patterson's career merits more respect

To the editor:

Your editoral of April 21 concerning the retirement of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson missed the mark entirely.

Instead of slandering Mr. Patterson for taking stands on "emotional" issues, you should have praised his courage for leading the fight for the common man.

You dismissed his opposition to busing by stating that it had "few sympathizers and even fewer advocates." How soon you forgot those national crusades for creating racial cooperation and educational equality through forced busing in the 1970s. Racial harmony and equality are, of course, noble goals, but busing, for various reasons, is not the appropriate means. L. Brooks Patterson helped lead the fight against the foolishness of forced busing in Oakland County and, in doing so, he gained the respect of many of the common folks.

However, Mr. Patterson's legacy will focus on victims' rights issues. Throughout the decade of the 1970s, many legislators and legal minds pressured for more rights and protection for criminals.

In the 1980s, Patterson has led the fight in Michigan away from criminals' rights and toward victims' rights. People grew tired of convicted felons walking free without serving prison sentences. People also grew tired of all the government and legal protection given to criminals while innocent people were preyed upon daily.

He also led an attempt to allow for the administration of the death penalty for violent crimes. Although his push for capital punishment failed, Mr. Patterson helped to refocus the debate to extend past deterrence to emphasize the need for punishment to fit the seriousness of the crime.

As you pointed out in your editorial, L. Brooks Patterson pushed for mandatory sentencing for certain crimes. However, in the next paragraph you wrote that this "makes the situation worse" because of prison overcrowding. You conveniently omitted Patterson's recent pledge of support for a proposal to build a new maximum-security prison in Oakland County.

You stated that Patterson's solutions are "simplistic" and "emotional." In reality, his stances are based on thorough knowledge of today's legal problems and the courage to stand up for necessary solutions even though they may lead to negative editorials from many in the media who prefer to blame society as a whole instead of holding individuals responsible for their own actions.

Patterson, for nearly two decades, has been the voice of common men and women and he will be missed not only by the people of Oakland but by people throughout Michigan.

S'craft sets tax rate as assessments boom

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Schoolcraft College is expected to set a tax rate of 2.114 mills Wednesday, when its trustees hold a public hearing on next year's budget.

The college tax translates to slightly less than $80 for people living in $75,000 homes. It will be levied with 1988 property taxes.

The millage is slightly below last year's 2.221 mills college tax. Increases in home values, however, mean tax increases for most area taxpayers. A mill represents $1 in taxes for every $1,000 in assessed value.

The budget hearing is set for 8 p.m. in the Administration Building meeting room, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

The tax rate has been reduced under the state's Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment. Trustees held a truth-in-taxation hearing last Wednesday night to avoid losing more tax revenue under another provision of state law.

The Headlee reduction was mandated because property tax assessments in Schoolcraft's community college district rose faster than the rate of inflation.

ASSESSMENTS ROSE an average 14 percent, according to Adelard Raby, Schoolcraft vice president for business services. Inflation was estimated at 3.7 percent.

Property in the Schoocraft district is valued at $4.39 billion, an increase of more than $500 million from last year.

Area assessment figures are expected to be confirmed today by the Michigan Tax Tribunal. The college service area includes the Livonia, Clarenceville, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City and Northville public school districts, as well as a small portion of the Novi public school district.

Increased assessments also prompted the truth-in-taxation hearing. Without it, Schoolcraft would have been forced to cut its 1988 tax rate to 2.039 mills — a loss of $329,818.

TAXES ACCOUNT for roughly 40 percent of Schoolcraft's total revenue. Tuition and state aid accounts for the other 60 percent.

Trustees have already approved a 50-cent-per-credit-hour tuition increase for the 1988-89 school year. State aid is expected to increase by 1 percent.

Schoolcraft's proposed budget is $23.3 million, a 5.07 percent increase from last year.

School chiefs voice mixed views as tax reform falters

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Suburban Republicans and some school districts shed few tears last week when state House GOP leader Paul Hillegonds doubted out loud a school tax reform proposal would be on the ballot.

"I doubt think it's going to make it to the ballot," said Hillegonds, R-Holland, speaking Friday at a fund-raiser in Birmingham.

"The issue has become partisan. The governor is frightened at putting something on the ballot and having it get creamed," said Hillegonds.

Not only have its chances of getting on the Aug. 2 primary ballot almost vanished, but he added that Democrats don't want it on the Nov. 8 ballot either.

BUT THE 39-year-old rising GOP star said the issue won't go away. "Some school districts are in crisis," he said, pointing to rural districts without tax base.

Reaction among western Wayne County school districts was mixed.

Large, wealthy school districts, like Livonia, had cast a suspicious eye on plans to tinker with the distribution formula for taxes and state aid.

"It is not designed to help the Livonia Schools — make no mistake about it," superintendent James Carli said.

Smaller, less-well-off districts, like Redford Union, saw their hopes dashed.

"We're obviously very disappointed," superintendent Kenneth Erickson said. "We'd been talking about this kind of thing for years and it seemed no one was listening. But over the past year it seemed there were people listening. Now, it might not come up again for another two years or more."

The amount of spending per pupil is one indicator of district wealth. Per pupil spedning figures for Observer area school districts are: Garden City, $3,846; Livonia, $3,855; Plymouth-Canton, $3,243; Redford Union, $3,454; South Redford, $4,298; Wayne/Westland, $3,790.

The amount of state equalized valuation per pupil is, perhaps, a better indicator of district wealth. Buoyed by industrial development, South Redford boasted $121,810 in property tax valuation last year for each of its nearly 3,000 students. Redford Union's figure was $38,739. Figures for other western Wayne district were: Garden City, $36,937; Livonia, $105,174; Plymouth-Canton, $66,262; Wayne-Westland, $43,629. SEV is 50 percent of a property's market value. SEV is multipled against a school district's millage rate to produce school taxes.

Per-pupil spending and SEV figures were provided by the Wayne County Intermediate Schools.

Republicans and Democrats agree on cutting local school operating property taxes and shifting the burden to the sales tax by raising it from 4 percent to 6.

But Republicans want an overall revenue increase of $200 million while Gov. James Blanchard and House Democrats want a $600 million increase. Hillegonds said Republicans want to help poorer districts without hurting well-off districts, and to "make sure it's spent on education, not some other purpose." Earlier in his speech he said Democrats, particularly in the House, have made social services rather than education their top priority.

ONE QUESTIONER blistered both parties for wanting to shift to the sales tax, which isn't deductible from federal taxable income, while the property tax is deductible.

"As a state," replied Hillegonds, "we have been much more dependent on the property tax. It has caused the differences between the rich and poor districts."

He said House Republicans advocate tax-base sharing to the extent that five mills of business property taxes would be spread statewide.

Asked about Blanchard's advocacy of partly replacing the single business tax with a profits tax, Hillegonds said "it's hard to comment because we don't know the specifics."

But while SBT is unpopular, Hillegonds said it is nevertheless a stable revenue source in recession years. "It has protected the business community from the debate (during recessions) over hiking taxes." He said he has "qualms" about junking SBT entirely.

A YEAR OF work on school tax reform appeared all but dead last week after a House proposal fell three votes short of passage.

After the vote, House Speaker Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti, said he wasn't optimistic that a compromise could be worked out in time to meet the June 3 deadline for getting a proposal on the Aug. 2 primary ballot.

Owen called House Republicans "obstructionists" for blocking efforts to move the proposal into a House-Senate conference committee.

After a Democratic plan failed, Owen urged all House members to pass a stripped down bill lacking all the key elements of past proposals simply to move the tricky negotiations into a conference committee.

The vote on the blank bill was 70-39, three short of the two-thirds needed to pass a proposed constitutional amendment.

Sixty-two of the 63 Democrats and eight Republicans supported the move. Thirty-eight Republicans and one Democrat opposed it.

"A blank bill is a statement that, on this very important issue, the House doesn't have a position," Hillegonds said. "It makes me wonder just how serious we are in trying to get this issue resolved."

Sen. Dan DeGrow, a leader throughout the yearlong effort to reach a compromise, said it's up to Owen to work things out in the House.

"I can't believe Gary Owen can't get three more votes in the House if he really wants it," said DeGrow, R-Port Huron. "I've seen Gary move mountains. He can get three votes."

Guy Gordon, a spokesman for Senate Republicans, pointed out that the Senate considered 13 separate school finance plans before one finally passed on March 16 and that the House so far has considered only nine.

"Perhaps five more tries would do it for them," said Gordon.

He said Senate Republicans don't accept the stand by Owen and Blanchard that any school finance proposal must be on the August ballot to avoid politicizing the issue in the November general election.

THE SCHOOL finance issue would require a voter-approved amendment to the Michigan Constitution. Placing it on the ballot requires support from two-thirds of both chambers.

That has required Democrats and Republicans in the House to forge a compromise, something that usually isn't required to pass legislation in the House because Democrats hold a commanding 63-46 majority.

Area lawmakers support truck safety bills

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Sen. William Faust had a personal reason for forming a bipartisan team with Sen. Richard Fessler on truck safety.

"A couple, three years ago, a semi blew a tire, and it came back and hit me. The truck tire veered off the top of my car," said Faust, D-Westland.

"It did $1,000 damage to my new car. It was spooky," said Faust, who drives 50,000 miles a year between his western Wayne County district and the Capitol in Lansing.

About the same time, AAA Michigan, the auto insurer, began drawing attention to the danger of car-truck accidents. Faust joined Fessler, R-Commerce, chairman of the Senate committee handling transportation, on a three-bill package.

"It's not well known in Michigan yet," said Fessler, "but some states have a truck-driver shortage. You're getting younger, less-experienced drivers on the road."

THE SENATE last week gave 35-0 and 36-0 approval to their truck safety package (SB 700, 702 and 703) and sent it to the House. All Observer & Eccentric area senators supported them.

"We didn't anticipate the they'd go through that easily," said Faust in the capitol corridor after the votes. "The Teamsters and the Michigan Trucking Association supported them. They recognized they had a problem."

AAA Michigan President Jack Avignone presented senators — starting with Faust and Fessler — 75,000 cards from drivers asking the state to get dangerous trucks and truck drivers off the road.

"From 1982 through 1985, Michigan fatal accidents between trucks and passenger vehicles rose 41 percent while all fatal traffic accidents rose 10 percent," said Avignone.

HERE IS an outline of what the bills will do:

- On highways with three or more lanes, restrict trucks of 10,000 or more pounds to the two right lanes.

'We didn't anticipate the they'd (package of bills) go through that easily. The Teamsters and the Michigan Trucking Association supported them. They recognized they had a problem.'

— Sen. William Faust D-Westland

- On roads with two lanes, restrict trucks to the right lane only except when passing, in emergencies and for making left turns. "We added that amendment on the floor," said Fessler.
- Require truckers to cover loose loads with tarpaulins.
- Improve safety inspections, particularly for brakes.
- Tighten driver testing.
- Increase penalties for overweight trucks by 50 percent and deposit assessments in a truck safety fund. The per-pound overweight assessments had not been increased since 1951.
- Require a $10 fee for each domestic (Michigan) truck and $5 for foreign (out-of-state) trucks for the truck safety fund.
- Use 30 percent of the fund (at least $500,000) for truck driver safety education.
- Use the balance of the fund for special enforcement teams, spot inspections, research on truck accidents and improving local governmental truck safety enforcement.

FAUST STILL has more ideas for truck safety in the future.

"Michigan has the largest weight trucks in the nation. I would like to see that changed," he said.

Faust also talks about equipping trucks with a "little black box" similar to the ones on aircraft. They would record how fast a truck was going and how long since its last repairs.

These nibbles special

Here it is, getting close to a whole new season of showers, weddings, graduations, holiday parties and just plain old backyard get-togethers.

It might not be bothering you yet, but as an occasion draws nearer, you will probably end up agonizing over a few silly cookbooks looking for appetizer recipes.

I'VE DISCOVERED that my most- creative ideas come from taking something old and incorporating something new. I guess a classic example of this would be to take an old appetizer meatball recipe in a basic sauce. A meatball is a meatball is a meatball, right?

Well, take the ingredients for meatballs and, instead, wrap thinly around a thin bamboo skewer and you have a classic Indonesian-style appetizer.

Rather than serving the sauce, use it as a marinade or brush on during cooking. Serve the skewered meat mixture on a cake rack suspended over an electric frypan filled with fragrant sizzling onions, garlic and herbs.

Wrap green fronds, available at local florist shops, around the handle and base of the frypan to camouflage the utensil. Presto!

Now just about anyone can take a packet of dry salad dressing mix (i.e. Ranch, Italian) and stir it into a cup of sour cream. Still one of my favorite appetizer dips is a recipe I learned at a Cuisinart cooking demonstration. You place a bunch of green onions in a processor and chop finely. Add an 8-ounce package of room-temperature cream cheese and process until smooth.

THE RESULT IS a velvety, pale green dip that looks great in anything from a white bowl to the most sparkling crystal. OK, now what? Would you ever think of taking this basic dip and placing it in a pastry bag with a frilly tip? Go crazy over crackers, fill a bunch of celery, or my favorite is to take fresh pea pods (many produce stores stock them now) and split them open. Fill the pea pods with the cream cheese/green onion mixture and add a tiny sprig of parsley to garnish. Va-va-va-boom!

Even the ready-made products available at all major foodstores can be utilized when preparing different, yet elegant appetizers. (Notice how I kept mentioning appetizers, mainly because I can't spell hors d'oeuvres?)

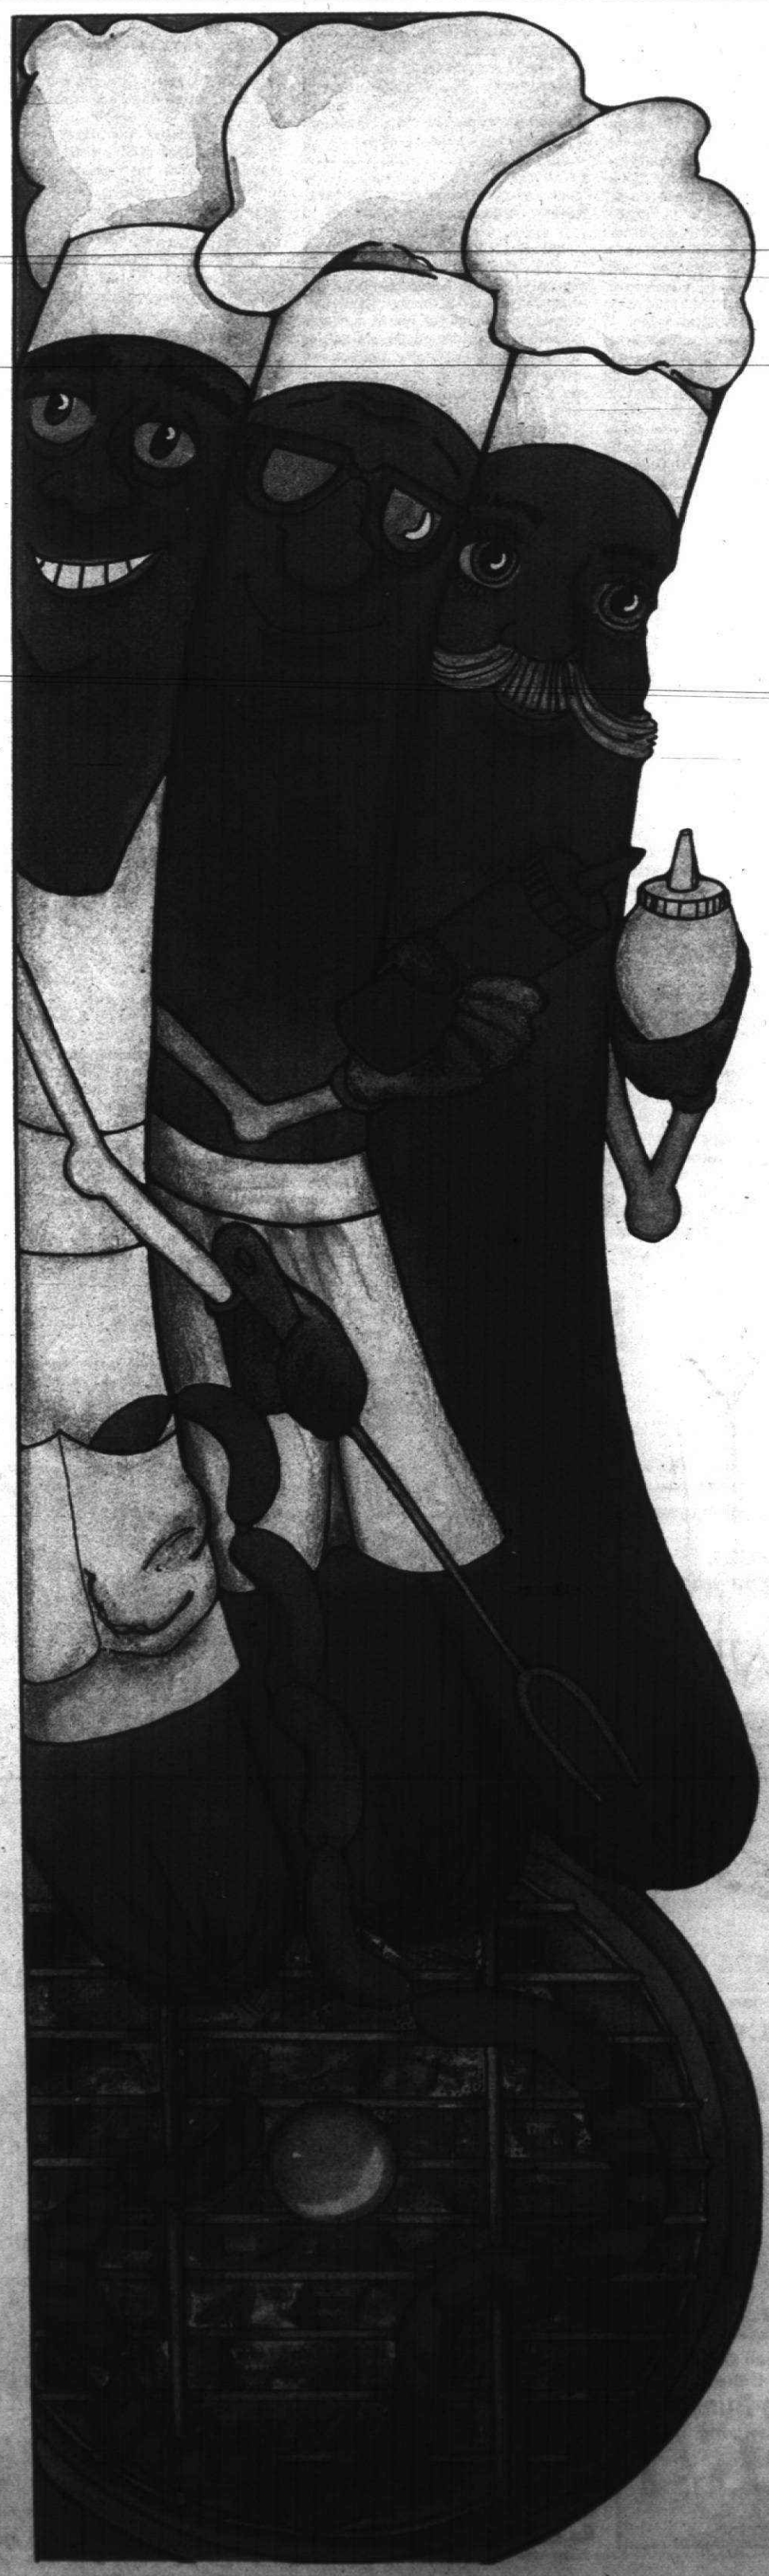
I am proud to say that a package of those refrigerator "pop" biscuits will never grace my kitchen. On the other hand, you can make a simple but elusive appetizer by taking the "pop" biscuits and cutting them into quarters.

Melt a stick of butter or margarine in a large skillet and stir in a packet of Ranch or French onion dry mix. Add the quartered biscuits (raw), toss to coat, then place them on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake them at 350 degrees for about 5-10 minutes or until golden. Mmmmmm good!

Simple vegetable trays featuring the mundane celery, carrot and broccoli routine can be jazzed up with Belgian Endive spears, thin asparagus, bok choy and pea pods. You don't have to spend a million to look like one.

So if you're anticipating a summer party, do a little planning now. Try these recipes and let me know what you think. If you have something you would like to share, drop it to me in care of the Observer & Eccentric (36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150) and I'll print the good ones.

Bon appetit!



DRESSIN' UP THE DAWGS

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

With Memorial Day weekend fast approaching, the barbecue grills are coming out of hibernation and hot dog sales will be going full tilt.

When one thinks of American fare, roast chicken with tarragon hardly fits the bill.

No offense to poultry lovers, but hot dogs — not trendy or terribly versatile — are as American as apple pie, baseball and the flag.

Fad foods and health-consciousness aside, hot dogs have been a dietary mainstay. With Memorial Day weekend fast approaching, the barbecue grills are coming out of hibernation and hot dog sales will be going full tilt.

"At the holiday season, sales go way up. The number of people who don't eat them is low. Most of us eat hot dogs," said Carl Gylfe, vice-president and marketing director for Hygrade, based in Livonia.

"Everyone says they're watching their calories, but look at the sale of potato chips," Gylfe added. "Everyone talks nutrition, but it (applies) to the other guy."

No doubt about it, consumers are definitely buying hot dogs. Hygrade turns out 200 million franks a year — that's 25 million pounds worth.

HYGRADE MANUFACTURERS both turkey and chicken franks in Chicago and exclusively chicken franks in Baltimore. The Livonia operation includes the famous Ball Park frank sold at Tiger Stadium (a mixture of pork and beef) and the all-beef wiener.

"Poultry (hot dogs) have been around since the '60s, mostly sold down South. In the late '70s, chicken franks were promoted on the fact that the taste was the same (as meat) but the nutrition was superior, with lower fat levels," Gylfe said.

"The sale of turkey and chicken franks goes up in ratio to meat franks regarding price. It's much less expensive than meat."

Grow Master chicken franks manufactured by Hygrade sell for as low as 79 cents a pound, compared to about $1.79 a pound for Ball Park Franks. A pound usually equals eight hot dogs.

Sales of poultry franks are usually static around the holidays, Gylfe said. Beef franks' sales soar, which shows the American preference for a meat hot dog. Hygrade sells twice the number of hot dogs in the summer.

"It's a waste of money to get off the mainstream," said Gylfe. "We do put cheese in one of our chicken franks."

How we eat them is a matter of taste.

"I PREFER MINE in Tiger Stadium, steamed," Gylfe said. "It's the whole ambiance. To me, microwaved is the least palatable. My son likes the toaster oven. It's a matter of individual taste."

While Kowalski Sausage Co. is known for Polish sausage, hot dogs, to the tune of three million pounds a year, are produced in the Hamtramck plant.

"I think hot dogs are going up in popularity," said Russell Herzfeld, Kowalski vice-president and general manager.

"The U.S. government regulates the fat and ingredient content. It's a convenient item. It comes in its own container and is instantly ready. And it tastes good," he said.

Kowalski sells hot dogs in supermarkets and in delicatessens.

"We have 900 accounts in the tri-county area, and outstate we're in Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, California and Ohio.

"We use an old-fashioned smokehouse. Our hot dogs are smoked over natural hardwood sawdust — we don't use water. The newer method sprays on the smoke. I think you can taste the difference. Liquid smoke has a bitter aftertaste."

Kowalski manufactures skinless franks, natural casing, cheese inside, foot-long, all-beef and cocktail-size dogs. The hot dogs are either all beef or a pork-and-beef mixture.

"WE USE ONLY imported spices, like white pepper, paprika and basil," Herzfeld said. "It's quite a group of basic spices — no oily resins. We use natural spices only."

Potato salad, chili or sauerkraut continue to be favored side dishes, he said.

"I prefer to eat it plain. Our hot dog is all meat, so I don't want to cover it up," Herzfeld said.

"Hot dogs are definitely not going out of style. Commercially they sell from 69 cents a pound all the way to $5 a pound for gourmet hot dogs out of New York. Once Memorial Day happens, sales will increase and stay through Labor Day, then begin to taper off after that.

"Hot dogs lend themselves to hot-weather eating."

Chicago-style dog leads to new career

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Call it a midlife career change.

For 30 years, Larry Freedman was an administrator with the Farmington Public Schools, the last 18 years spent as assistant superintendent.

Today he operates Hot Dawg! . . . & More, a Chicago-style hot dog joint in Farmington that's drawing crowds and rave reviews.

"I knew I wanted to leave the schools, but at 53, I was too young to retire," said Freedman, who resigned last May.

Already a fan of the Chicago-style hot dog — a pure beef wiener topped with mustard, sweet relish, onions, tomatoes, hot peppers and a dill pickle — Freedman did his research firsthand.

"I WORKED THE GRILL in a friend's shop in Chicago."

Freedman's son-in-law, Mike Glanzrock, a Chicago native who worked his way through college in hot dog joints, serves as his partner.

"In Chicago, there are 2,000 hot dog places, all independently owned," Freedman said. "It's not a chain. But they all serve the Chicago-style dog made with pure Vienna beef."

Freedman opened the doors last November in the Village Commons mall, on Grand River east of Farmington Road.

"We've sold approximately 15,000 hot dogs since November," said Mimi Freedman, Larry's wife and co-worker.

Transplanted Chicagoans from as far as Grosse Pointe drive in on weekends for the taste of home, Freedman said.

Gluckman Designs of Southfield, created the interior, which has seating for 60 at round and square tables. Peach, mauve, raspberry and turquoise pastels mix with black and white accents. Classical or jazz music plays softly in the background.

RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Larry Freedman, owner of Hot Dawg! . . . & More.

"We are using the best-quality foods," Freedman said. "Our hot dog is all beef, no fillers or additives.

"EVEN THE BUN is baked in Chicago and driven overnight to us. It's eggbread with poppyseed."

All the relish and condiments are from Chicago, as is the Vienna beef hot dogs.

Chicago dog leads to different career

"The Vienna Beef & Sausage Co. is one of the biggest in the world," Freedman said. "It's top quality."

Freedman's place can't be considered fast food because the fare is not prepared ahead of time. On the other hand, all items (the menu includes charbroiled, marinated chicken breast, cajun shrimp, sandwiches, soup and curly potatoes) are prepared and served quickly to accommodate the noontime work crowd.

The store has 12 employees and Freedman has visions of a possible franchise.

"The coney island in this area has been it. We're not afraid to compete," he said. "We're really a different product. We can put chili and onions on our dogs but once they've tasted it the Chicago way, that's it. A very tasty treat."

"This is home to us now," Freedman said. "It's been a wonderful experience, adding a new spark to life."

Hot Dawg! . . . & More is open Mondays-Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Kids' birthday parties can be scheduled. And the restaurant serves continental breakfast. Call 471-DAWG for more information.

cook's books

Geri Rinschler

My grandmother often said, "If you find just one good recipe in a cookbook, the book is worth keeping."

Now, that was in the '60s and '70s when the majority of cookbooks published were written by famous chefs, cooking teachers, food columnists and women's charity groups. More often than not, these cookbooks were collections of recipes with some advice on preparation technique.

Even a glance through a bookstore today will reveal a limitless source of cooking inspiration. There are books on food-processor cooking, microwave, pasta making, desserts, and ethnic subjects enough to confuse even a level-headed cookbook reviewer. Sorry to say, my grandmother's advice is no longer applicable in most cases, but some expert advice can make the task of selecting the best of the latest cookbooks seem effortless.

Burpee, the century-old seed company, recently introduced a pair of paperback cookbooks, "Burpee's American Harvest Cookbooks: A Guide to Growing and Cooking the Home Gardener's Seasonal Favorites," with one cookbook devoted to "The Spring Garden" and the other "The Early Summer Garden," by Perla Meyers (Simon and Schuster — a Fireside Book, 1988, $8.95 each).

Meyers, celebrated food authority, is also author of "The Seasonal Kitchen," "The Peasant Kitchen" and "Perla Meyers' from Market to Kitchen Cookbook." All three cookbooks were written based on using the freshest ingredients available. Recipes in these previous books work well as she is a knowledgeable cook and good recipe writer with excellent credentials.

MY INITIAL REACTION to "The Spring Garden" and "The Early Summer Garden" was based on my knowledge as a home gardener. Glancing through the list of contents indicated that most of the vegetables in the "Spring Garden" cookbook are not available to Michigan gardeners until much later in our growing season.

Keeping that in mind, both cookbooks do provide helpful gardening, planting and harvesting suggestions from the author. "The Spring Garden" cookbook focuses on asparagus, beets, broccoli, kohlrabi, salad greens, peas and spinach. "The Early Summer Garden" discusses snap beans, carrots, corn, cucumbers, peppers, chard, tomatoes and zucchini.

Both books include a nice selection of simple recipes. Most of them are based on vegetables but often contain meat stock, chicken, fish or veal. There are a few color photos and interesting sketches throughout both books. The recipes present some interesting combinations of ingredients that give a new twist to standards such as Mediterranean Stuffed Peppers ("The Early Summer Garden") filled with prosciutto and sausage or Corn Crepes with Steamed Asparagus and Spicy Salsa ("The Spring Garden"). Both books contain appetizing, healthy recipes, which I am quite anxious to try.

SPRING ASPARAGUS SOUP WITH PEAS AND LETTUCE
(from "The Early Summer Garden")
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed, and stalks peeled
6 cups chicken stock
4 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 ½ tablespoons all-purpose flour
½-¾ cup heavy cream
salt and freshly ground white pepper
½ cup cooked peas
1 heart Boston lettuce, separated into leaves garnish
tiny leaves of fresh mint, dill or tarragon

serves 6

1. Cut off the tips of the asparagus with a sharp knife and set aside. Slice the peeled stalks into ½ inch pieces and reserve.

2. In a 4-quart casserole, bring the chicken stock to a boil. Add the diced stalks, reduce heat and simmer, partially covered for 20 minutes or until very tender.

3. Strain the broth through a colander into a large bowl. Transfer the trimmed stalks to a food processor or blender, together with ¼ cup broth, and puree until very smooth.

4. Whisk the asparagus puree into the remaining broth and reserve.

5. Add the butter to the casserole and melt over medium heat. Whisk in the flour and cook for 2 minutes without browning. Add the asparagus broth all at once and whisk constantly until the broth comes to a boil. Whisk in the heavy cream, season with salt and pepper, reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes.

6. Add the reserved asparagus tips and cook for 5 minutes or until just tender.

7. Add the peas and lettuce and cook until lettuce just wilts. Taste and correct the seasoning. Serve hot in individual soup bowls, garnished with tiny leaves of mint, dill or tarragon.

Chef Larry's appetizers are tasty and different

JAVA PEANUT DIP
(vegetables never tasted soooo good)
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons hot water
1 tablespoon fresh lemon or lime juice
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon crushed fresh or dried hot red chile (optional)

Combine all ingredients in blender or processor and process until smooth. Bring to room temperature before serving.

CORN FRITTERS WITH CRABMEAT
1 12-oz. can corn, well drained
½ cup cooked crabmeat, flaked
2 shallots, thin sliced
2 eggs, beaten
2 green onions, sliced
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
¼ cup peanut oil

Combine corn, crabmeat, shallots, eggs, green onions, cornstarch, salt and pepper in a bowl. Blend well. Heat oil in a wok or fryer and drop one heaping tablespoon of the mixture into the oil. Brown on both sides, about 3 minutes. Drain.

You can make meatball appetizers ahead of time

AP — Stow a party's worth of make-ahead appetizers in your freezer. These meatballs can be prepared up to a month ahead and frozen until you want to serve them. Then add the sauce and vegetables and they'll be ready for the party in less than a half hour.

STOW-AWAY APPETIZER MEATBALLS
1 beaten egg
½ cup milk
½ cup corn bread stuffing mix
¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Dash pepper
¾ pound ground fully cooked ham
½ pound ground pork
1 cup maple-flavored syrup
½ cup vinegar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2 cups bias-sliced carrots or bite-size cauliflower flowerets
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
1 green pepper, cut into bite-size pieces

In a mixing bowl combine egg and milk. Stir in stuffing mix, celery, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and pepper. Let stand 3 minutes. Add ham and pork; mix well. Shape into 1-inch meatballs; place in shallow baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 15 to 18 minutes or until done. Drain on paper towels. Cool. Place on baking sheet and freeze. When frozen, place in moisture- and vapor-proof container or bag. Seal, label and freeze.

In a saucepan combine maple-flavored syrup, vinegar and remaining dry mustard. Bring to boiling. Stir in meatballs; cover and simmer 8 to 10 minutes or until meatballs are heated through. Meanwhile, cook carrots or cauliflower, covered, in a small amount of boiling water 10 to 15 minutes or until just tender. Drain well. Combine cornstarch and water. Add carrots or cauliflower, cornstarch mixture and green pepper to meatballs. Cook and stir until bubbly. Cook 2 minutes more. Keep warm in chafing dish. Serve with wooden toothpicks. Makes about 25 servings.

There are many ways to use left-over hard-boiled eggs

AP — You can store hard-boiled eggs in the refrigerator for up to 7 days, and they'll be fresh for these dishes:

1. Tex-Mex Sandwich Filling: Stir taco seasoning mix into egg salad (1 tablespoon for every 3 eggs) along with a little sliced green onion and chopped tomato.

2. Eggs Benedict: Top a toasted English muffin half with thinly sliced ham, 2 hard-cooked egg halves and hollandaise sauce made from a sauce mix.

3. Green Bean-Egg Casserole: Stir 3 chopped hard-cooked eggs into the green bean-mushroom soup mixture. Top with crumbled cooked bacon.

4. Sunbeam Salad: Add chopped hard-cooked egg white to potato or pasta salad. At serving time, sieve egg yolks and heap in center of salad.

5. Scotch Eggs: Shape ground turkey sausage around hard-cooked eggs. Roll in beaten egg, then in crushed rich round cracker crumbs. Bake in a 375-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold with chili sauce.

6. Chef's Salad Dressing: Stir a finely chopped hard-cooked egg and a thinly sliced green onion into a mixture of half sour cream and half mayonnaise thinned with a little milk. Serve over vegetable salads.

7. Pita Breakfast Sandwich: Cut a pita in half crosswise; line each half with a thin slice of fully cooked ham. Stir together 1 chopped hard-cooked egg, 1 tablespoon dairy sour cream and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Spoon egg mixture into pita halves.

8. Tuna-Noodle Bake Plus: Stir 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs and 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento into your tuna-noodle casserole.

9. Potatoes and Eggs au Gratin: In a 1½-quart casserole, combine 3 cups sliced cooked potatoes, 3 sliced hard-cooked eggs, 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese and 1 envelope sour cream sauce mix prepared according to package directions. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a 350-degree oven about 40 minutes.

10. Green Vegetable Garnish: Top buttered cooked asparagus, broccoli, spinach or greens with chopped hard-cooked egg.

Variety of sparkling waters available

AP — If you find tap water dull, and ordinary soft drinks too sweet, you're probably among a growing number of consumers opting for seltzer or sparkling water.

However, not all seltzers and sparkling waters are the same. There are a lot of choices. How do you decide?

John Fayard, senior brand manager, Canada Dry, says, "Most people choose to drink seltzer sparkling waters as a healthy form of refreshment and because they are calorie-free. People tend to equate clear with healthy. But even among clear seltzers, there are important differences in ingredients and caloric content."

To help sort through the confusion, Canada Dry has developed an informative brochure: "To Your Health: A Guide to Sparking Water." To obtain a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Canada Dry Sparkling Waters Brochure, 1600 Broadway, Suite 501, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Potatoes are nutrient-dense

Patata, papa, tartuffo, erdapfel or kartoffel, or whatever you call it, a potato is a potato. They can be used as a hair darkener, for a therapeutic compress, a skin whitener and a wrinkle remover. We make crafts out of them, play games with them, but best of all, we eat them.

Why pick a potato? Potatoes are one of the most economical sources of Vitamin C, Vitamin B6, magnesium, folacin, copper and iron, plus other trace elements. They are also an inexpensive supplementary source of protein and some extra fiber. A potato is what is considered a nutrient-dense food, good nutritional return for the calories.

A medium-size potato (without a topping of butter) has only about 100 calories. There is much more to a potato in the diet than just starch. Besides the starch (complex carbohydrate) is important in the diet, for energy.

Buy potatoes that are firm and smooth, not wrinkled, wilted or having soft areas. Two large, three medium or four small potatoes equal about one pound. One pound of potatoes equals three cups peeled and sliced or 2½ cups peeled and diced or two cups mashed or two cups french fries. Two pounds of medium potatoes equal about six servings of potato salad.

POTATOES ARE allergic to light; it makes them turn green and sprout. The green pigmentation found on the skins of potatoes is a compound called solaine. Pare away the green before cooking. Sprouting potatoes can be used; however, they will not be top quality.

Store potatoes in a cool, humid, but not wet, dark place that's well ventilated. Ideally 45-50 degrees. Don't refrigerate potatoes. Below 40 degrees F. potatoes will develop a sweet taste, the result of the sugars. The increased sugar will cause the potato to darken when cooked.

Don't drown the potatoes when cooking. Cook potatoes in a heavy saucepan with a tight-fitting lid in about one inch of water. Leaving the skins or cooking whole will help preserve the nutrients. Prolonged soaking in cold water is not recommended as it can result in some vitamin loss.

Bake or boil potatoes in a microwave. Check the book, but generally it takes four minutes for a medium potato. More than one potato, additional time needs to be added. Turn the potato over halfway through the baking. The potato will still cook after removing from the oven so allow it to stand for five minutes.

To boil potatoes in the microwave, the process is similar to stove-top cooking. Pieces should be uniform in size and placed only a single layer in the dish. It will take about 10 minutes for two potatoes using this method.

VERSATILITY IS the word for potatoes and perfect for the busy cook. Frozen and processed potato products can be used to save time. Frozen potato puffs make great topping for casseroles, or use instant potato flakes to coat meat and poultry that have been dipped in a liquid, fry or roast to make crispy. To rescue oversalted food cooked in water, drop in a few slices of raw potato and boil until excess salt is absorbed.

Pizza potatoes are quick and easy to make. Start with hash browns, top with seasoned tomato sauce, cheese and favorite pizza topping, and put under the broiler to heat thoroughly. For a tangy change to french fries, shake on a mixture of grated cheese, salt, spicy chili powder and red cayenne pepper. Stir leftover mashed potatoes into homemade soup to add body and nutrients. Leftover mashed potatoes can be mixed with an herb vinaigrette with mustard and black pepper, then served as a dip for raw vegetables.

For a Chinese-American treat, top a baked potato with chicken chow mein and sprinkle with peanuts.

There are hundreds more ways to use potatoes for breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks, plain or fancy. It is no wonder that the potato is America's favorite vegetable. Not only is the potato a compact package loaded with important nutrients, versatile and economical, it is grown in Michigan.

Use woodruff for May wine

'Tis the lusty month of May.

Once again, spring has sprung, birds are singing, bees are humming, and everyone with even a bit of romance in his or her soul is singing along with Mother Nature.

In Western Europe and the British Isles, May is often celebrated by the drinking May wine, and eating honey cake.

May wine is made with a herb known as Sweet Woodruff or Master-of-the-Woods. In Europe, this herb is looked upon as the symbol of spring.

It has a fresh clean smell, much like new-mown hay. Housewives used it in sachets and potpourris.

By itself, woodruff may be brewed to make a relaxing, uplifting tea. Most health food stores carry dried, Sweet Woodruff in their tea section.

Here are two easy recipes for making your own May wine. Both are excellent, but the second one is quicker to make, and far more potent.

MAY WINE
(an old German recipe)

Place a small bunch of dried, Sweet Woodruff, five or six sugar cubes, and two slices each of lemon and orange in the bottom of a quart jar.

Fill the jar with Rhine wine. Allow it to steep for three to five days, tasting it daily.

MAY WINE RECIPE NO. 2
(my own favorite)
¼ cup dried Sweet Woodruff
¼ cup brandied sugar
¼ cup brandy
1 bottle of dry, white wine
Fresh strawberries, if desired

Mix the woodruff, brandy and sugar together. Cover, and let stand overnight.

Then strain and squeeze out the liquid. Don't waste a drop. Add this liquid to the white wine. Serve chilled, and garnish with fresh strawberries.

Drink this, and dance around the Maypole.

I have 10 different recipes for honey cake, all of which are very good. Here are two I especially like.

NEVER-FAIL HONEY CAKE
(this is a richly flavored cake that assures success)
1 cup honey
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cool, strong black coffee
2 tablespoons butter
4 eggs, separated
3 cups sifted flour

BLT salad relies on sandwich stuff

AP — Toss the flavors of your favorite sandwich in a side-dish salad.

BLT SALAD
6 cups torn salad greens
18 cherry tomatoes, halved
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 slices bacon, crisp-cooked, drained and crumbled, or 3 tablespoons packaged bacon pieces
¾ cup croutons
½ cup desired salad dressing

In a salad bowl place torn greens and tomatoes. Sprinkle with parmesan, bacon and croutons. Pour dressing over salad. Toss to coat. Makes 6 servings.

kitchen witch

Gundella

1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup white sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts
The grated rind and juice of one orange

Bring honey to a boil, and then cool it. Sift together the flour and other dry ingredients. Combine the grated rind, orange juice and vanilla.

Beat the egg yolks and blend into the honey mixture. Add the flour mixture, alternating with the coffee. Stir in the nuts.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold into the batter. Butter and flour empty soup cans, using them as baking tins, and spoon in batter until each can is ⅔ full.

Bake in a 350-degree oven, about 45 minutes, or until done, when tested.

Remove the cakes from the pans by opening the bottoms of the cans and pushing them out. These keep well in the refrigerator.

CHOCOLATE HONEY CAKE

A blend of honey and chocolate makes this cake rich, tender-moist, flavorful and fine-textured. It is very much like a chocolate cake but requires no icing.

3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1 ¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup butter
2 eggs
⅔ cups sour milk or buttermilk
⅔ cups honey
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup sugar

Melt the chocolate. Add the honey and heat slightly, to liquefy it. Mix until blended. Cool to lukewarm.

Sift flour, soda, baking powder and salt.

Cream butter thoroughly, and add the sugar gradually. Cream until light. Stir in the vanilla. Add the eggs, one at a time, and beat well after each addition.

Blend in the honey-chocolate mixture. Add the flour mixture, alternately, with the sour milk or buttermilk — a small amount at a time.

Spoon the batter into a buttered and floured 8 by 8-inch baking pan.

Bake in a moderate (325 degree) oven for about 40 minutes, or until done when tested. Watch carefully during the last 10 minutes of baking period to prevent scorching.

(This cake adapts well to microwave cooking. Watch carefully, as it cooks, since microwave ovens vary greatly in intensity and time needed to bake.)

You may contact Gundella if you have any questions about these, or other recipes. Call her at 427-1072 or write her at: Box 434, Garden City 48135.

The starling, after a fight, rode the flicker like a cowboy on a bronco and drove the defeated flicker from its nest hole.

Feisty starling takes rival's nest nature

Timothy Nowicki

A friend and I had been watching a pair of flickers excavate a nest hole in a dead tree limb.

Both the male and female threw so many wood chips on the ground that it was like falling snow at times.

We had been watching them work for about three days. Then we noticed one bird remaining very still perched outside the hole. My friend suggested the bird was admiring its handiwork.

NOT LONG afterward, we noticed a black-colored bird and the flicker fighting on the ground below the nest hole. At first it looked like a tumbling mass of feathers, but then we noticed that the black-colored bird was a starling.

After several tumbles, the starling ended up on the back of the flicker. It looked as if the starling were riding the flicker like a cowboy rides a bronco. The flicker was pushing himself forward with his wings outstretched to the side trying to dislodge it from his back.

After they traveled about 30 yards across the grass, they separated. The flicker went into the woods, and the starling took over the nest hole.

STARLINGS NEST in holes, but they can not excavate holes themselves.

When they find a suitable cavity, they will try to evict the owners and take over the hole. That is what we had just witnessed.

Starlings have developed very aggressive personalities in North America. Even though the starling is only two-thirds the size of the flicker, it was able to claim victory.

To illustrate how effective this aggressive behavior has been, the starling became established in California only 69 years after its introduction to New York city in 1890. Our native birds have been unable to cope with their aggressive nature, and many species, like flickers and bluebirds, have declined in numbers.

I had read about the aggressive nature of the starling, but I had never witnessed it.

It just goes to show you: An interesting event in nature can happen at any moment. So the more time you can spend outdoors, the greater chance you have of seeing something interesting.

Airport to get new security system

A $2.6 million security system has been approved for Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The system was approved Wednesday by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

The computer-based system will control 229 doors and four manned gates and can be expanded to control more than 700 additional access points.

The project includes a $2 million federal grant, $84,000 in state aid and a $582,850 county contribution.

Among other approved projects:

● A $29,500 land acquisition project was approved for Willow Run Airport. About 356 acres are needed to improve landing safety at Willow Run, home to the area's freight carriers. The project includes matching $14,750 state and county contributions.

● A $400,000 airport study was approved on behalf of the Southeast Michigan Council of governments (SEMCOG). SEMCOG will draft a plan for coordinated airport development in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, St. Clair, Livingston and Monroe counties. The last similar study was completed more than 30 years ago, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation. The project includes a $360,000 federal grant and $40,000 from SEMCOG.

Chiefs reclaim WLAA tennis crown

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

If the folks at Plymouth Canton High School want to talk about a dynasty in boys tennis, they've earned the right to do so.

The Chiefs claimed their second Western Lakes Activities Association title in three years Wednesday and fourth in school history.

Besides getting a much-needed assist from tournament host Livonia Stevenson, Canton helped its own cause by advancing to the finals in six of the seven flights and won three championships, two in singles play and one in doubles.

The Chiefs, who were runners-up last year and have won the Western Division crown three straight years now, unseated defending champ North Farmington.

THE RAIDERS, with a veteran team, were considered a good bet to repeat, but Jim Hayes, the only coach in the 15 years Canton has competed in tennis, knew his team would be in the running again.

"I thought we would be a pretty strong team," he said. "But you never know if you're going to be as good a team as we turned out to be.

"Everything worked out well and we had a good season. We are proud of the kids. They work real hard and take a lot of pride in what they do."

tennis

Canton was 10-1 in the league dual-meet season, losing only to North (11-0). But the tournament counts for 50 percent of the total in determining the overall winner, and the Chiefs had a comfortable margin with their strong, well-balanced showing.

Stevenson, third best in dual meets at 9-2, denied the Raiders a co-championship by edging out North for second place.

THE SPARTANS, who had the No. 1 singles winner in George Gerigk and a doubles champion, accumulated 14 tournament points, the Raiders 13. Stevenson was third in the final standings.

Canton's Jim Gallagher and Steve Schmidt won the Nos. 3 and 4 singles titles, respectively, and Tony Spagnoli and Chris Harper reigned at three doubles.

After winning a three-setter from Stevenson's Matt Downer in the quarterfinals, Gallagher bounced back to beat North's Jason Weiss in three sets in the semifinals. He lost the first 5-7 but won the next two 7-6 and 6-1.

Nothing came easy for Gallagher, whom Hayes said understands the work ethic because of his background in cross country, and he also went three sets with Franklin's Scott Smith in the final, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4.

"He'll stay out there as long as he has to in order to win," said Hayes, adding No. 3 singles saw the closest matches of the tournament.

SCHMIDT, WHO hasn't lost a match all season, is the unsung hero among the Chiefs, according to his coach. Schmidt gave Canton another edge in head-to-head competition with North, beating Joe Howitt in the championship round, 6-2, 6-1.

"We probably take him for granted," Hayes said. "We just figure Steve is going to win, and he hasn't let us down all year."

Spagnoli and Harper had to battle back to beat Harrison in the semifinals (4-6, 6-2, 6-2) and beat Stevenson in a two-set final. The Canton players have lost only one match, and that was to highly-rated Ann Arbor Huron.

In addition to the flight winners, two keys to Canton's success were Mike Burt's play at No. 1 singles and the contribution of the No. 1 doubles team of Rich Gurchak and Martin Kraft.

Burt gave the Chiefs a two-point swing with North when he defeated

Mike Burt, the No. 1 singles player for Canton, was runner-up in the Western Lakes tournament. His key contribution was a victory over North Farmington's Josh Hoffman, which produced one of the Chiefs' six finalists.

Salem opens defense of its state crown

The girls state soccer tournament begins this week, and many potential opponents will be watching to see what the Plymouth-Canton teams do.

Salem, rated No. 7 in the state last week, hopes to defend its Class A championship, but Canton, which held down the No. 4 rating a week ago, hopes to block the path to a successful repeat.

Both teams compete in the same district tournament and, barring an upset, should meet again in the final. The Rocks edged Canton 3-2 in overtime at that stage of the tournament last year.

In opening games Wednesday, the Chiefs play the winner of today's game between Ann Arbor Huron and Ann Arbor Pioneer at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in Ann Arbor. Salem plays host to Belleville at the same time on the same day.

THE FINAL WILL be played at 1 p.m. Saturday on the larger field at Concordia College, located on Geddes Road just west of US-23 in Ann Arbor.

The Rocks tuned up for the tournament by beating Dearborn Edsel Ford 4-2 last Wednesday, and coach Ken Johnson believes Salem, 9-3-4 overall, is ready for post-season play.

"I think we're just about where we were last year," he said. "We've got a lot of talent, and we're getting it together more than we did early in the year.

"There was a lot of pressure on (the players) at the start of the season.

"But we'll need a few breaks; you always need breaks," he added. "We've been hitting a lot of goalposts, and I don't think anyone has seen the real Salem team yet."

JILL ESTEY PACED the win over the Thunderbirds with a pair of goals, giving her 18 for the season and a total of 48 points, which includes 12 assists.

Michelle Minton, who also has 18 goals to go with four assists, and Sarah Hayes scored the other goals Wednesday. Salem led 2-0 at halftime before the teams alternated goals in the second half.

Tracy Krajewski, Teri King and Erin Harvey, a freshman whom Johnson brought up from the JV team for the tournament, had one assist apiece.

soccer

'I think we're just about where we were last year. We've got a lot of talent, and we're getting it together more than we did early in the year. But we'll need a few breaks; you always need breaks. We've been hitting a lot of goal posts, and I don't think anyone has seen the real Salem team yet.'

— Ken Johnson
Salem soccer coach

Johnson has no complaints about his team's season-long play, but the Rocks have been frustrated in their goal scoring much of the season. When Johnson says his team will need a few breaks, that means first and foremost putting a few more balls in the opposing goal.

"We just haven't been putting teams away," he said. "If this was basketball, we'd be shooting about 30 percent. But, from goal to goal, we're playing good soccer."

JOHNSON ALSO rested some of his regulars Wednesday to allow them to recover from minor injuries before district play begins. Midfielders Amy Krajewski (pulled thigh) and Rachel Thiet (sprained back) sat out the game, and fullback Maria Wordhouse (bruised toe) didn't play in the second half.

Canton raised its record to 11-2-1 by beating Trenton in non-league play last Tuesday. Kalamazoo Central, the team Salem defeated by way of a shootout in the regional final last year, was ranked No. 1 in the state in the latest coaches poll, and Western Lakes champion Livonia Churchill was No. 6.

Rocks close in on Lakes title

Plymouth Salem and Farmington Harrison kept pace with the competition and set the stage for a pair of boys track-and-field showdowns.

The Rocks will be going after the Lakes Division championship when they play host to Westland John Glenn on Thursday, and the Hawks will entertain Livonia Churchill in what could be the final step toward taking the Western Division crown on Wednesday.

Salem improved to 4-0 in the division and 4-2 overall by edging North Farmington 70-67 on the Centennial Educational Park track last Wednesday, and the Hawks also went to 4-0 in division duals after clobbering Plymouth Canton 86-51 the same day at Harrison.

Mike Park gave the Rocks first place in both hurdle events, winning the 110-meter highs in 15.35 and the 300 intermediates in 41.4.

Salem had six solo winners. In the field events, it was Jay Blaylock capturing the shot put with a 50-feet, 5½-inch throw, and Roger Parry scaled 6 feet in the high jump.

Matt Perrin sprinted 11.46 for a victory in the 100 dash, and Garrett Bowie churned out a 23.2 time in the 200.

Alan Rye completed two laps around the track with a first-place time of 2:04.9 in the 800 run, and Scott Stryker posted a 10:35.0 time in the 3,200.

Bowie also was on the winning 800 relay team, combining with Steve Burlison, LaMar Crayton and Masaki Sugimo for a 1:33.7 time.

The Raiders were led by Warren Johnson, who won the long jump at 20 feet, 1½ inches and the 400 dash in 52.1. Teammates Zaim Cummalaj and Tom Harnden were the best in the discus (143-5) and the 1,600 run (4:45.0), respectively.

boys track

North, 1-3 in the division and 1-4 overall, also won three relays, running 47.4 in the 400, 3:42.7 in the 1,600 and 8:42.4 in the 3,200. The Raiders pulled ahead in the 400 after Salem dropped the baton on the third and final exchange.

HARRISON 86, CANTON 51: The Hawks swept the relays and won all but one individual running event.

Aaron Yaverski led the way with victories in the 200 and 400 dashes and an anchor-leg run in the 800 relay. He was clocked at 23.5 and 52.2 in the sprints, and he followed Bob Conlon, Bob Beauchamp and Wes Wood in the relay for a 1:34.2 time.

His teammates were key men on other relays, too. Conlon and Beauchamp opened in the 400, and Joe George and Rich Esker finished to give the Hawks a 46.4 time.

It was Wood and Beauchamp again in the 1,600 with Chad Burgess and Chris Hart running the second and fourth legs. Harrison's foursome of Pat Runk, the 1,600-meter winner, Hart, Dave Foss and Rick Isbell ran 8:29.8 in the 3,200 relay.

Runk won the 1,600 run in 4:43.7 while Beauchamp dashed home with an 11.5 time in the 100. Conlon and Wood tied for first place in the high jump, both reaching 5 feet, 6 inches.

Harrison's Jeff Barringer was clocked at 10:17.0 in the 3,200 run, and Troy Soeder won the 300 intermediate hurdles in 42.1.

FARMINGTON 84½, STEVENSON 54½: Winning all four relays assured the Falcons of victory in this Lakes Division contest Wednesday.

Matt Smedley, Steve Walter, Don Sweeney and Brandon London started the trend early in the meet by winning the 3,200 relay in 8:51.5.

Dave Winey and Lamont Hardge had a hand in the 400 and 800 wins. Matt Nichols and Wes Tarkington got things started in the former, which saw Farmington finish in 46.2, and lead-off man Joe Crow and No. 3 runner Nick Maisel helped the Falcons post a 1:34.8 time in the latter. Hardge was the anchor runner in each event.

With the meet already won, Farmington finished up by winning the 1,600 — Tom Hundt, Ron Smedley, Matt Walter and Maisel giving a 3:39.1 effort.

London added two individual wins, jumping 5-10 in the high jump and running 51.8 in the 400 dash. London posted an excellent time in the quarter mile for someone who usually runs the 800.

The latter event was won by Ron Smedley with a 2:03.4 time. Bill Lindbert also had two solo victories, those coming in the 100 and 200 dashes with 11.5 and 23.0 times.

In the field events, Farmington's Doug MacLeod won the pole vault at 11 feet, 6 inches and Jason Wright the long jump at an even 20 feet.

Stevenson's Nick Petouhoff, Jim Lenox and Jeff Lees also were double winners, Petouhoff winning the shot put (48-3) and discus (147-8), Lenox the high and intermediate hurdles (15.5 and 43.1) and Lees the 1,600 and 3,200 runs (4:39.0 and 10:21.3).

Farmington is 2-2 in the division and 4-2 overall.

Salem rips Stevenson on rebound

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

To make the 1988 season more memorable, Plymouth Salem softball coach Rob Willette asked his team to forget Thursday's 2-1 loss to Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The predistrict defeat knocked the Rocks out of the state Class A tournament. Willette was concerned Salem would consider the season done after the loss, and just go through the motions Friday at Livonia Stevenson, along with the upcoming season finale today at Walled Lake Western.

The Salem seniors, however, are not playing out the string. They responded Friday with a convincing 10-4 win over Stevenson in a Western Lakes Activities Association game.

The win gave the Rocks a share of the lead with Westland John Glenn for the best record in the Lakes Division of the WLAA at 8-2. Salem is 15-5 overall and 12-3 in the conference. Stevenson fell to 12-11, but lost a chance for a share of the Lakes, falling to 7-3. The Spartans are 12-11 overall and 9-6 in the conference.

Senior Kim Berrie tossed a six-hitter on the mound for Salem, proving she wasn't quite ready to call it a career.

"We talked among ourselves before the game and said, 'Yeah, we

Hawks no match for Canton

girls track

While the decisive dual meets in boys track are next week, the Western Lakes powerhouse girls teams settled things Wednesday.

In a battle of unbeaten teams vying for division honors, Plymouth Canton stormed past Farmington Harrison 92½-35½ at Centennial Educational Park in the Western Division, and Farmington knocked off Livonia Stevenson 70-58 in the Lakes Division on the latter's track.

The Chiefs, who play host to Northville in the dual-meet finale Thursday, lead the division at 4-0 and are 5-0 overall. The same is true of the Falcons, who sit atop the Lakes with the same records. Harrison and Stevenson are 3-1 in their divisions.

Canton, as it always does, had numerous contributions, but Angie Miller, as is usually the case, was leading the way.

She won the high jump at 5 feet and the 200-meter dash in 27.1, and she teamed up with Sherri Emery, Kristy Brugar and Tricia Carney for first place in the 800 relay at 1:51.4.

Sherry Figurski and Susan Ferko had double victories in individual competition. Figurski won the long jump (14-3) and 3,200 run (12:47.0), and Ferko dominated the weight events, winning the discus (96-4) and the shot put (31-2).

Missy Jasnowski and Kris Marquard also had two firsts, including their part in the 3,200 relay. After running with Lori Penland and Cathy McCabe to win the relay in the 10:44.6, Jasnowski came back to win the 1,600 (5:59.0) and Marquard the 800 (2:39.5).

Tonya Walaskay and Heather Meyer also chalked up first places, Walaskay winning the 100-meter hurdles in 16.6 and Meyer the 400 dash in 1:04.3.

Plus, Ifoema Okwumabua, Emery, Brugar and Katurah Reid carried the baton around the track to win the 400 relay in 53.1.

Harrison's triumphs came in the 100 dash and 300 hurdles. Kamala Maloshan ran 13.2 in the sprint and Maria Chalogianis 48.8 in the hurdles. The Hawks also won the 1,600 relay in 4:20.0.

FARMINGTON 70, STEVENSON 58: Carrie Maier won the 200 dash (26.5) and ran the lead-off leg on the winning 400 and 800 relay teams.

Kristi Devine and Jennifer Kiel were double winners in solo events, and Jo Fox and Amy Trunk won an individual event and were one of the successful relay squads.

Devine won the shot put (32-10) and discus (112-5), and Kiel captured the 1,600 and 3,200 runs with respective times of 5:41.3 and 12:30.0.

Fox was the 100 dash winner in 12.95, and she followed Maier in the 400 relay. Trunk won the 400 dash in 1:03.1 and ran the second leg of the 800 relay.

Angie Forge anchored both winning relay teams, and the foursomes also included Shelli Gaul in the 400 and Nicole Tocco in the 800.

Farmington had times of 51.8 in the one-lap event and 1:49.0 in the two-lap race. The Spartans won the 3,200 relay in 10:46.8 and the 1,600 relay in 4:31.0.

The Falcons also had a winner in the high jump with Julie Lawton achieving a height of 5 feet.

Stevenson's Lisa Christensen had double wins in the hurdles, Diane Sherwood won the long jump and Tracy Clark took the 800 run.

For its final division dual meet Wednesday against Walled Lake Central, Farmington will have to get along without Maier and Trunk, both of whom also star on the school's soccer team. The Falcons have a district game the same day against the winner of the North Farmington-Mercy contest.

N. FARMINGTON 74, SALEM 54: The Raiders overcame a triple-victory effort by Jennifer Harris and three relay wins by Salem in this Lakes Division dual.

North is 3-1 in the division and 4-2 overall, and the Rocks are 2-2 and 2-4.

Suzi Butcher, who set a school record in the discus, and DeDe Newman were instrumental in the Raiders' victory.

Butcher won the discus with a throw of 119 feet, 4 inches, breaking the mark of 115-5 set by teammate Cindy Cramer last year. Butcher also won the shot put at 34 feet, 9½ inches.

Newman tied the school record in the 100 dash, winning that race in 12.76 and thereby equaling the time established by Teri Spangler a year ago. Newman captured the 200 dash, too, with a 26.4 time.

North's Ginger Donoghue won the long jump (14-8), and the Raiders won five of six running events with Jennifer Stoe taking the 400 dash (1:04.8), Lisa Rives the 1,600 run (5:43.8) and Donna Chuba the 3,200 run (12:32.8). North's foursome ran 4:25.5 to win the 1,600 relay.

Salem's Harris prevailed in the high jump at 4 feet, 11 inches and continued her dominance in the hurdles. She was clocked at 16.45 in the 100 meters and 51.6 over the 300-meter distance.

Teammate Traci Thomas won the 800 run in 2:27.3, and the Rocks won three relays with times of 53.6 in the 400, 1:55.8 in the 800 and 10:58.4 in the 3,200.

Salem, JG share top spot

The chance was there. Farmington stood directly between Westland John Glenn and a third-straight Lakes Division baseball title when the two teams clashed Friday at Glenn.

Problem was, for five innings the Falcons did not present much of an obstacle. Glenn had a 5-1 lead. But in the sixth, Farmington exploded for four runs to knot the score and presumably steal the momentum from the Rockets.

Ah, but momentum is a fickle mistress. The Rockets shrugged off the Falcon rally with a flick of some very talented bats, scoring five runs in the bottom of the sixth to recapture what had been theirs, and they put ace pitcher Clint Straub on the mound to seal the 10-5 victory.

Straub was just one of several Glenn protagonists. A second was Chris Scheffer, who clubbed a two-run homer in the first inning and a three-run triple in the Rockets' five-run sixth. He added a double to complete his three-hit, five-RBI day.

The Falcons started their sixth-inning rally against Glenn starter Bryant Satterlee. Brian Townsley and Darin Magera had key hits in the comeback, Townsley doubling in two runs and Magera following with another double to bring in Townsley with the game-tying run.

But Magera, Farmington's starting pitcher, could not maintain the momentum. He took the loss, allowing eight runs on nine hits and two walks over 5⅔ innings.

Straub relieved Satterlee in the sixth and pitched a scoreless seventh to get the win, Glenn's ninth in 10 division games, matching Plymouth Salem's Lakes record. The Rockets are 14-3 overall and 13-1 in the Western Lakes.

SALEM 12, STEVENSON 1: Two grand-slam home runs and the two-hit pitching of Fidell Cashero kept Plymouth Salem in the hunt for the Lakes Division title Friday against visiting Livonia Stevenson.

Brad Wright got the Rocks' first grand slam in the third inning and put them in front 7-0. Tim Lake slugged the second in the sixth, making his first varsity homer a memorable one. Todd Marion put Salem in front in the first inning by blasting a three-run homer. Chris Adams had two singles for the Rocks.

Cashero gave up a single and hit a batter in the opening inning. With two outs, the Spartans then got their second single off Cashero, a base hit to right, but Wright threw the runner out at the plate. Cashero walked three and fanned eight in boosting his record to 4-1.

On Wednesday, Salem split a double-header with Farmington Harrison, losing the opener 8-6 and winning the second 19-1. The first game counted toward the WLAA record, so the Rocks slipped to 11-4. They are 15-6 overall.

Harrison scored eight times in the first three innings off Salem ace Marion (4-2). Jason Hicks pitched the final 5⅔ innings in relief for the Hawks, allowing two runs, to pick up the victory.

The Woodards did most of the damage at the plate for Salem. Steve Woodard collected a two-run homer and a single and John Woodard had a solo homer. Adams added an RBI single.

The second game was a five-inning mercy. Matt Metikosh surrendered just two hits in getting the pitching win. Steve Woodard again had a big game at the plate, slamming a three-run homer and a two-run double for five RBI. Eric Sheehan had three hits and Marion slugged a double and a two-run home run.

CANTON 10, CHURCHILL 7: Plymouth Canton scored 10 runs in the first two innings and held on to win at Livonia Churchill Friday.

Chris Kennedy went the first six innings to get the pitching win. Charger starter Mike Barnett was the loser.

Derek Humphries had a two-run homer and Kevin Learned had two hits to pace the Chiefs' attack.

Plymouth debuts in Adray League

The newest addition to the Livonia Adray League, Hines Park Lincoln Mercury of Plymouth, will open its season on Friday, May 27, at home against Livonia Little Caesars.

Game time is 8 p.m. at the Plymouth Canton High School field, the site for 13 of the team's 30 games. Fourteen games will be played at Ford Field in Livonia, one each in Northville, Ann Arbor and South Lyon.

Coach Dave Racer's 17-man roster includes many players whose names are familiar to fans of the high school game in the Plymouth/Canton and Observerland areas.

The hometown talent includes Dwayne Bennett, Chris Sisler, Tony Aiken, Tim Dowd, Jerry Sumner, Rob Adams, Dan Niemiec, Todd Robinson, Kevin Learned, Derek Darkowski, Todd Marion, Jeff Lyle and Michael Clark.

BENNETT PLAYS for the University of Detroit, and Sisler (first baseman) and Aiken (catcher/outfielder) recently completed their season at Kansas City Community College.

Dowd, Sumner and Robinson played for Salem High School last year before going on to college, and Marion, a pitcher/outfielder, is senior at Salem this year.

Dowd, an all-area outfielder, plays for Central Michigan, and Sumner is a shortstop at Ferris State College. Robinson is a former second baseman with the Rocks.

Marion was a first-team, all-area player as a junior, and he will play for the University of Michigan next year. Both he and Dowd hit better than .490 for Salem a year ago.

Adams batted .308 for Siena Heights College this spring, and Niemiec, an all-around player, earned all-state honors as a high school player in New York, according to Racer.

DARKOWSKI, A 1987 graduate of Canton, is a redshirted freshman pitcher at Michigan State, Lyle is on the Kent State ballclub and Clark plays for Henry Ford Community College.

One of the best pitchers in Observerland last year, former Westland John Glenn star Bill Barber, will offer his talent to Hines Park Lincoln Mercury.

Josh Hoffman in three sets in the semifinals, making up for a dual-meet setback. Gerigk, whose only dual-meet loss was to Burt prior to regional play Friday, won the title by beating his Canton opponent in three sets, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

"(GERIGK) CAN play any kind of game," Stevenson coach George Croll said. "He hits softer than you're normal No. 1, but he keeps the ball in play. He can hit hard if he wants."

Canton's top doubles duo has "been struggling all year," according to Hayes, but they avenged an earlier loss to Farmington Harrison's Rick Brockhaus and Sean Haines in the quarterfinals and beat a good Stevenson team in the semifinals.

Plymouth Salem stopped Gurchak and Kraft in the final, however, as Scott Hobbs and Matt Lore rallied to win in three sets, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Canton also was in the finals at No. 2 doubles, but Stevenson's Shawn Herbst and Bob Holycross won over Howitt (N. Farmington), 6-2, 6-1. Semifinals: Schmidt def. Jeff Stomber (Salem), 6-0, 6-1; Howitt def. Kevin Whalen (Churchill), 6-0, 6-3.

No. 1 doubles: Scott Hobbs-Matt Lore (Salem) def. Rich Gurchak-Jay Kraft (Canton), 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Semifinals: Hobbs-Lore def. Wesley-Sosgnelli (Northville), 6-3, 6-3; Gurchak-Kraft def. Bailey-Wagel (Stevenson), 7-6, 6-3.

No. 2: Shawn Herbst-Bob Holycross (Stevenson) def. Dan Nowicki-Brian Schmidt (Canton), 6-4, 0-6, 6-1. Semifinals: Herbst-Holycross def. Bannan-Fitzpatrick (Salem), 3-6, 6-3, 6-4; Nowicki-Schmidt def. Herremans-Sarsfield (Harrison), 6-3, 6-3.

No. 3: Tony Spagnoli-Chris Harper (Canton) def. Bob Dimitriou-Alan Paterson (Stevenson), 6-3, 6-0. Spagnoli-Harper def. Riggion-Rosenfeld (Harrison), 4-6, 6-2, 6-2; Dimitriou-Paterson def. Lance-McMinn (N. Farmington), 7-6, 6-3.

Final dual meet standings: 1. N. Farmington, 11-0; 2. Canton, 10-1; 3. Stevenson, 9-2; 4. Salem, 8-3; 5. (tie) Harrison and W.L. Western, 6-5 each; 7. (tie) Franklin and Northville, 5-6 each; 9. Farmington, 3-8; 10. Churchill, 2-9; 11. W.L. Central, 1-10; 12. John Glenn, 0-11.

INDIVIDUAL FINALS

No. 1 singles: George Gerigk (Stevenson) defeated Mike Burt (Canton), 7-5, 2-6, 6-3. Semifinals: Gerigk def. James Vanderhill (Farmington), 6-4, 6-1; Burt def. Josh Hoffman (N. Farmington), 7-5, 5-7, 6-2.

No. 2: Jay Graff (N. Farmington) def. Bob Barr (Salem), 6-1, 3-6, 6-2. Semifinals: Graff def. Wally Stroyan (Franklin), 6-0, 7-5; Barr def. Mike Wisiink (W.L. Western), 6-4, 6-4.

No. 3: Jim Gallagher (Canton) def. Scott Smith (Franklin), 3-6, 7-6, 6-4. Semifinals: Gallagher def. Jason Weiss (N. Farmington), 5-7, 7-6, 6-1; Smith def. Wade Garard (Salem), 6-3, 6-2.

No. 4: Steve Schmidt (Canton) def. Joe Dan Nowicki and Brian Schmidt. North's Jay Graff defeated Salem's Bob Barr in the No. 2 singles final.

While Hayes expected the Chiefs to put a quality team on the court this year, Canton got some help it didn't anticipate at the beginning of the year.

KRAFT, AN EXCHANGE student from Germany, allowed Hayes to move everyone in his lineup down one notch and make the team that much stronger, he said. Harper, a sophomore, moved into the community from Arkansas, and Brian Schmidt was a surprise contributor in his freshman year.

"I didn't know how good (Schmidt) was; I had never seen him play before," Hayes said. "Then he comes to practice a couple days and you say 'Oh, yeah, he can play.'"

CC's Campbell is league champ

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Redford Catholic Central's Steve Campbell won the individual battle, but Birmingham Brother Rice won the war Saturday at the Catholic League boys tennis finals at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

It was match strictly between the Boys Bowl rivals for the team championship as Rice, the defending state Class A champions, won five of seven flights to outscore CC 26-23 in the 10-team field.

Rice won everywhere with the exception of No. 1 singles, where Campbell avenged an earlier season loss with a 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 victory over Rice's Michael Herb; and at No. 3 singles, where Marko Habekovic, sporting only a 10-9 record, surprised Rice's Scott Micus, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Saturday's No. 1 singles final was a classic as Campbell, headed for Rice University in Houston, Texas, this fall, withstood the serve and volley tactics of Herb, who is bound for North Carolina State.

In the previous match between the two, Herb won in a third-set tiebreaker, handing Campbell his first loss in four years.

"I felt like I could beat him," said Campbell of the rematch. "The key was keeping my returns as low as I could and go for the 'passer.'

"He (Herb) has a tough serve when he gets it in. Today I was hitting good volleys, not necessarily winners, but my passing shots had to be right on the money."

CAMPBELL'S PINPOINT accuracy impressed Rice's first-year coach Mike Woody.

"Steve just played great and he was hitting the lines," Woody said. "For Steve to beat Mike he's got to play his best tennis. It's tough to beat a guy like Mike because he's constantly putting on the pressure. Mike played good tennis, but Campbell played great . . . just awesome."

It was Herb's first loss of the season, but it shouldn't hurt him when the seedings come out for the upcoming regional and state meets.

Both CC and Rice are expected to romp this weekend at their respective regionals. CC will host its own meet Friday at Schoolcraft College, while Rice travels to Warren Mott.

The state meet is June 3-4 in Midland with Campbell and Herb the top two seeds, barring any upsets in the regional. They will be one-two unless East Lansing's Todd Martin, a highly-ranked junior player, decides to enter the draw.

"If Rice doesn't win the state, something's wrong," said Catholic Central coach Frank Garlicki.

RICE'S DEPTH, displayed in the Catholic League finals, should bode well come Midland.

The Warriors' No. 1 doubles team of Dave Piazzon and Tom Boutrous remained unbeaten, romping to an easy 6-0, 6-1 triumph over CC's Don Moll and Mark Burnside.

"I don't feel the pressure of winning the state, but the pressure I feel is getting my people to play the best tennis they're capable of," Woody said. "If we're sharp we should do it, but in the next two weeks we're going to have to have good practices. On paper we should win, but that's only on paper. You have to go out and prove it. I don't believe in being cocky because I know everybody is eager to beat us."

Rice proved it on Saturday and it appears the only teams standing between the Warriors and their second straight state title are two outstate teams, East Lansing and Okemos.

Salem softball rips Spartans

lost yesterday, but we don't want to lose the rest of our games," said Berrie. "It really would have been depressing, especially for the seniors."

SAID WILLETTE: "We're out of the state playoffs, and out of contention for the league title, so I was leery how they'd react. I said, 'If there's anyone here who doesn't want to play today, go home.' It doesn't help to just go through the motions."

Actually, Salem went home 10 times Friday, but it was home that counts in the run column. The Rocks trailed 3-2 after three innings, but scored eight runs in the fourth and fifth innings to provide Berrie with a comfortable 10-3 lead.

Stevenson committed three errors in the fourth behind starting and losing pitcher Trish Kosikowski, and if it were not for an unassisted double play by first baseman Lisa Demore, Salem would have scored more runs.

Jo Jo Wiklund, Katie Vesnaugh and Berrie scored the three Salem runs in the fourth. Michelle Viele's two-run single and Pam Austin's two-run triple highlighted the five-run fifth inning for Salem. Vesnaugh, who started the fifth with a single, scored, as did Berrie, Tracie Robinson, Viele and Austin.

Robinson walked four of her five trips to the plate, and all told, Kosikowski walked eight Salem batters. Kosikowski also struck out nine Salem hitters, because of her fastball, but it wasn't one of her better performances. She also was the victim of 10 Stevenson errors.

"SALEM IS ONE of the better hitting teams; they're use to quicker pitching," Stevenson coach Pat Solarz said. "Our 10 errors is what cost us the game. We've never had that many in a game this season. It would be nice to take over those two innings (fourth and fifth). It would have been (our lead) 4-2 without them."

Stevenson led 1-0 after a double by Kim Prokes that drove in lead-off hitter Rocky Cibor in the first inning. Dianne Buszka and Tina Tinskey scored two unearned runs in the second off Berrie, when Robinson committed an error at third and shortstop Sarah Ruete made a throwing error.

Berrie didn't let that affect her the rest of the way, however, allowing only a single run by Krystyn Maxa, who scored in the sixth inning on a fielder's choice. Maxa was robbed of an extra base hit in the third on a diving catch by Besnaugh, the center fielder.

Eleven of Stevenson's 21 outs came on infield pop-outs or fly-outs to the outfielders, which is what Berrie hopes for. Unlike Kosikowski, Berrie isn't an overpowering pitcher.

"I try to pitch around the plate, instead of shooting down the middle," Berrie said. "I aim for the outside corner to get them to pop it up as much as I can."

And it made for a fond memory of Friday's game.

Pioneers edge Rocks

One of these years Plymouth Salem is bound to get a break in post-season softball play.

For the second year in a row, the Rocks drew a top-notch opponent in a predistrict qualifying game and lost by a one-run margin.

This year, the culprit was Ann Arbor Pioneer, which boasted an 18-4 record and claimed a 2-1 victory Thursday at Salem.

As the Western Lakes champions last year, the Rocks drew No. 1-rated South Lyon in the same game and lost 1-0. All-state pitcher Andrea Nelson threw a two-hitter and had the game-winning hit.

This time, Pioneer's Jody Ike tossed a three-hitter to beat Salem. She also walked four and struck out four in seven innings.

"She wasn't as overpowering as Andrea, but she pitched well enough to win the game," Salem coach Rob Willette said.

Kim Berrie, allowing six hits, walking two and fanning three, went the distance for the Rocks, who once again fielded a team capable of making a tournament run. Salem was 14-5 overall; the Rocks were 17-3 after their loss to South Lyon.

With the Pioneers leading 2-0, Salem scored its run in the bottom of the fourth inning when all three of its hits came in succession.

Tracie Robinson doubled, and the Rocks had runners at second and third after Missy Viele's single and an errant throw. Pam Austin's single scored Robinson, but Viele was thrown out at the plate.

On Wednesday, Salem had better results as it swept a Western Lakes twinbill from Farmington Harrison, 13-1 and 23-0. Both were five-inning, mercy games.

The nightcap saw sophomore Holly Hinzman throw a no-hitter in her first varsity game. She was working on a perfect game until, with one out in the fifth inning, she walked her only batter.

Salem's Melissa Holmes, Meg Foley and Jenny Jencks were 2-for-3. Holmes and Foley drove in three runs apiece and Jencks two.

Four Harrison pitchers issued 18 walks, and the Rocks scored eight runs on wild pitches. The same was true of the first game in which Salem also benefitted from 18 free passes.

The Rocks jumped in front with a seven-run first inning in the opener. Berrie slammed a solo home run and had two RBI, and Sandy Oberliesen had an RBI double. Karen Najarian was 2-for-3 for Harrison.

Berrie threw a three-hitter and was the winner for Salem, which had only five hits itself. She walked one and struck out two.

LUTHERAN NW 15, PLY. CHRISTIAN 11: Both teams recorded six hits Friday in a game played at Griffin Park, but Lutheran Northwest came away victorious in the Metro Christian Conference game.

Elaine Priebe suffered the loss for Plymouth, now 6-9 overall, 4-6 in the conference.

Priebe and Shelly Oxley had two hits each for Christian.

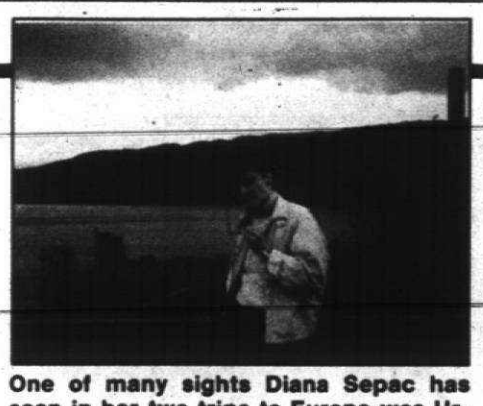
Sue Mason

A hostel land



One of many sights Diana Sepac has seen in her two trips to Europe was Urquhart Castle on Loch Ness lake in Scotland.

CHEAP, CHEAP, CHEAP!

It's Europe at a not-so-grand price

By Sue Mason
staff writer

I remember it like it was yesterday.

Kathy, my college chum and traveling companion, and I were waiting to chow down at the cold hors d'oeuvres table, when a woman seated nearby loudly announced to her luncheon companions that it was impossible to travel in Europe for less than $25 a day and the person who wrote those ridiculous books about doing just that was a lunatic.

Those were fighting words for Kathy and I. We were wrapping up our 3½-month tour of Europe aboard the TSS Olympia, a glorious 10-day transatlantic crossing from Greece to New York on an ocean liner owned by Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis.

The woman was dripping in diamonds and gold jewelry and she looked liked the kind of person who would consider staying in the Holiday Inn slumming. We set about telling her of our adventures — the Florentine prince's palace with frescoes on the ceilings, the German hotel room that had bear skin rugs on the floor and those snuggly down comforters on the bed.

She listened to our dissertation, but it was obvious we were talking to a brick wall. She was the kind of person who had a neon "sucker" sign permanently implanted on her forehead. She paid top dollar no matter what.

Let's get one thing straight. I haven't looked at one of those travel books since that grand tour in 1972. I'm well aware that costs were a bit less then than today. But no matter, we did Europe on the cheap and had a blast doing it.

Our transportation was a $165 one-way ticket on Icelandic Airlines to Europe and the cruise ticket, a mere $400.

We also invested in the $10 student identification card and a $275 student rail pass good for two months of unlimited train (second- or third-class) travel on the continent.

AT KATHY'S insistence, we also carted along Fodor's book, "Europe on $5 a Day." This book had the heft of Webster's dictionary and was as useful as discarded toilet paper. We used it twice to get rooms in London off Belgrave Square and Paris near the Sorbonne and the Bastille.

Ara Kabodian of Rochester Hills boated down the Rhine, slept on trains while traveling between European stops and "leaned" against a famous tower in Pisa, Italy.

By Tim Smith
staff writer

Traveling Europe can be a rich experience. It also can be done cheaply, say some who have made the cross-continent trek.

To do it, you'll need to lodge in a hostel instead of a Hilton, dine on the basics instead of prime rib, and pass up on all those frivolous expenses (you know, trinkets and tourist traps) that inflate the cost of domestic vacations.

Still interested enough to do Europe?.

Consider Rochester Hills' resident Ara Kabodian. The 23-year-old ripped through nine countries and $2,000 during a six-week span last summer.

"My objective was just to get a flavor of Europe, to spend a couple days in each city," said Kabodian, who traveled the first four weeks with his older brother Armen, then went solo. "It turned out to be probably one of the best experiences in my life.

"I'm planning to go back to the places I enjoyed most and spend more time there, and investigate new places, too."

Kabodian, like Troy's Diana Sepac, Royal Oak's Pat Schell and Pontiac's Bill Battiste, got started on his adventure at the Berkley-based Michigan Council of American Youth Hostels, 3024 Coolidge.

The information center tipped them off about everything the overseas traveler needs to know, right down to how to pack correctly.

ALL FOUR paid about $500 for a round-trip plane ticket to their favorite destination, bought various discount train passes and spent many a night in low-cost accommodations.

Kabodian admitted sleeping some nights between train stops to save lodging money, but all spent some time in dormitory-style hostels or bed-and-breakfast setups.

Going the bargain route for Schell, 50, and longtime friend Sepac — who went last summer to the British Isles for six weeks — meant cutting their cost in half, they said.

Some of the hostels could be found as cheaply as $3 per night, others up to $10. But the travelers said neophytes should know what they're getting into ahead of time in exchange for the low rate.

"You get what you pay for," said Battiste, 25. "In the Greek hostels, it was just a bed in a room with 30 other people. Some have hot water, some don't."

All have relatively early curfews, 10-11 p.m. or so, and are shut down during daytime hours.

"The lack of privacy (in hostels) would be a real problem for some people," said Schell, who along with Sepac also toured Europe on the cheap in 1984.

> 'You get what you pay for. In the Greek hostels, it was just a bed in a room with 30 other people. Some have hot water, some don't.'
> — Bill Battiste

But not all hostels are rustic, said the 25-year-old Sepac.

"The most elegant one I've ever been in was Pitlochery, Scotland," Sepac recalled. "It was an ex-hotel, very posh." Another was once a castle, she added.

BESIDES THE ability to beat the curfew and sleep with a group of relative strangers, hostel-goers are required to bring a sheet sleeping sack with them because bed linens are not provided.

Although some meals are available, the traveling companions said it is far cheaper to cook them instead.

Schell also suggested spending at least one night a week outside a hostel, particularly if late-night activities are planned.

Another option is getting to know the natives well enough to stay as an overnight guest, which Battiste said he did regularly along his trail through Germany, Austria, Italy and Greece.

"I was meeting them at trains, in parks. My goal was to get to know the European people, not just see Europe," he explained.

Freedom of choice is another key element for happy travels, some said.

It's better not to go on an organized tour, because "you can see parts of cities that are not touristy," Sepac said. Perusing poorer sections of towns helps Americans get a different perspective, she added.

Her friend, Schell, said they didn't rely on an itinerary, instead parlaying impulses into daily travel decisions.

"You always find a place to stay, just start walking the streets."

All the tourists agreed that one trip isn't enough to see Europe.

BATTISTE, WHO loved exploring the Greek island of Santorini ("My honeymoon's going to be there."), the Sumari Gorge in Crete and partaking a bratwurst and beer in Germany for $2, is intent on following up with an extensive tour of France and China.

AYH: Traveler's answer machine

By Tim Smith
staff writer

If you're one of those people thinking about finally taking that dream vacation to Europe, only to wonder if your organizational skills or bank account are adequate enough to pull it off, don't fret.

The Berkley-based Michigan Council of American Youth Hostels has enough answers to quell such worries.

"We have plenty of resources on hand, but it's up to the people to plan their own trips," said the non-profit federation's director Jeannine Lorenger. She helps organize workshops for budget travel to Europe at the Berkley Community Center.

Lorenger said the first thing those planning a low-cost overseas journey should do is buy a one-year membership card to American Youth Hostels. It cost $20. The card enables folks to stay in hostels — dormitory-style low-cost accommodations — in the U.S. and 64 foreign countries.

Other discounts are available for college students, who should pick up an international student identification card for $10, Lorenger said. The benefits it provides include cost cuts on overseas flights (only through a student travel agency), local transportation in European countries and entrance fees to museums and theaters, among others.

Jeannine Lorenger and the Berkley-based Michigan Council of American Youth Hostels have enough answers to questions to quell any worries about foreign trips. She also organizes workshops for budget travel to Europe at the Berkley Community Center.

> 'One of the best things about hostels is you meet a lot of people. You make friends from all over the place, people you want to visit and who want to visit you.'
> — Jeannine Lorenger

In addition, Eurailpasses are available at the center, Lorenger said. The pass is good for unlimited train travel in 16 western European countries.

THEY COST about $300 for two weeks per person, although Lorenger said some discounts are available for groups of three or more travelers.

"You have to be fairly sure that you're going to do a lot of traveling for that to pay off for you," Lorenger said. "If you're only planning a couple major trips, it wouldn't."

For travelers under 26, the hostel also makes available one-month Eurail Youthpasses for $320.

Lorenger said many people don't use itineraries while vacationing in Europe, although members can buy vouchers ($4.25 each) which reserve a sleeping space at a foreign hostel.

"If you want to make a reservation in advance, you can. But people walk in usually."

During the peak travel months of July and August, however, Lorenger suggested making those reservations, at least for the first and last nights. Those who don't "end up waiting in line outside the hostel until they open."

The organization also offers members a variety of tours, including "European Spotlight," designed for those who want to sightsee; and "Royal Rail," a train romp through the British Isles.

The former costs members $3,200 for 36 days and includes round-trip

Hulce provides an Oscar effort for 'Dominick'

the movies

Dan Greenberg

RECENT RELEASES

"Dominick & Eugene" (A+) (PG-13) 105 minutes.

"Carrier" (F) (R) 100 minutes.

Guys in plastic bags with axes, whacking away at one another over a bunch of cats that are inexplicably important in staving off the virus spread by the hero. Amateurish acting, hokey special effects and one of the axe wielders must have chopped up the continuity director.

"Consuming Passions" (*) (R).

Vanessa Redgrave in comedy about one man's rise up the corporate ladder.

"Rambo III" (C+) (R) 100 minutes.

Who sez they don't make "B" movies anymore? They do, but with "A" budgets. Stallone's macho heroics, destroying Russians in Afghanistan, are mistimed for release now as Soviets pull out. But not bad for what it is. Opens Wednesday, May 25.

"My Best Friend is a Vampire" (C) (PG) 90 minutes.

Cute, but does not bite, Jeremy (Robert Shawn Leonard) is seduced by a "vampiress." Result: Obviously, now he must learn to cope. Enter Modoc (Renee Auberjonois), fellow vampire. Movie is repeat of "Once Bitten" and "Teen Wolf." Scenes are inconsistent — for example, the boys take driver's ed, but in previous scene drove legally. Cute, but corny. Reviewed by Jennifer Morse.

"Shy People" (*).

"Willow" (A) (PG) 126 minutes.

Marvelous medieval adventure and romance, with dragons and trolls, brownies, elves, witches and wizards as well as a bunch of grown-ups. Excellent entertainment in the best tradition of Disney, George Lucas and Hollywood. You can even take the kids.

STILL PLAYING:

A ragged story filled with holes. Former special forces member, good guy Nico Tasconi (Steven Seagal), now a street-wise Chicago cop, he employs violence, martial arts and "tough guy talk" in film with more action than substance. Reviewed by Jeff Liimatta.

"Biloxi Blues" (B+) (PG-13) 105 minutes.

"Bright Lights, Big City" (B+) (R) 110 minutes.

Jamie Conway (Michael J. Fox) shows the dark side of a young man's life. Cocaine, alcohol and New York at night are his diversions to escape the pain of life and death. Fox finally appears in a mature role and does it well.

"Colors" (F) (R) 120 minutes.

Trite, racially offensive film about veteran cop (Robert Duvall) training rookie (Sean Penn) as they confront Los Angeles street gangs. Besides insulting stereotypes, the film rambles on and Penn's acting reaches new depths of ineptitude. Even the normally excellent Duvall is wooden and uninspiring.

"Five Corners" (B) (R) 90 minutes.

Picture the Bronx, 1964: Heinz (John Turturro) returns from prison after serving time for attempting to rape Linda (Jodie Foster). Set against civil rights and political action of those days, this interesting, entertaining film is not bad.

"The Fox and the Hound" (A) (G). 80 minutes.

"Good Morning Vietnam" (A) (R) 120 minutes.

"The Last Emperor" (A) (PG-13) 125 minutes.

Bernardo Bertolucci's stunning presentation of the epic tale of China's last emperor, Pu Yi. A fascinating story of survival through two world wars and Mao's Communist takeover of mainland China.

"The Manchurian Candidate" (B+) (PG-13).

They may not make movies like they used to, but they do re-release the old ones. This 1962 all-star espionage thriller features Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey, Angele Lansbury and Janet Leigh. Worth the trip to your local film house.

"Moonstruck" (A+) (PG) 102 minutes.

"A New Life" (A) (PG-13) 100 minutes.

Alan Alda's latest is a frank, intelligent romantic comedy about divorce, love and remarriage and all the other problems middle-aged people face.

"Permanent Record" (B+) (PG) 85 minutes.

Powerful, thought-provoking drama of teen suicide as family and friends come to grips with pain and confusion of such a useless death. Good acting in well-done script, but bring plenty of tissues. Reviewed by Kathy Guyor.

"School Daze" (D) (R) 120 minutes.

"Shakedown" (D+) (R) 90 minutes.

Colorful dialogue is good for a few laughs, but simple-minded plot must have been conceived during writer's strike. Peter Weller ("Robocop") is effective, but all the characters are sidelined for action-packed scenes and tidy, cliched ending. Reviewed by Brian Nichols.

"Stormy Monday" (B) (R) 90 minutes.

British import is OK action/romance about sleazy English night club operator fighting off takeover attempt by Mr. Big from Texas, U.S.A.

"Stand and Deliver" (D) (PG) 100 minutes.

Sit and be bored. Aside from slow pace and half dozen unexplained plot complications, this story of math teacher in underprivileged school is tedious.

"Sunset" (B-) (R) 105 minutes.

Clever idea teams Tom Mix (Bruce Willis) and Wyatt Earp (James Garner) in Blake Edwards' comic view of Hollywood decadence in the late '20s. Have no fear, our heroes clean up the town. Some entertaining, funny stuff, but pacing is slow and story, at times, is too confusing for effective satire or good farce.

30

"Beetlejuice" (*) (PG).

Michael Keaton and Geena Davis in ghost story with a twist: The ghosts are nice quiet folks and the people are noisy and pretentious.

"Bulletproof" (*) (R).

Dectective stuff.

"Casual Sex" (*) (R).

Changing social and sexual attitudes is the advertised topic of this film whose title should sell a few tickets.

"Dead Heat" (*) (R).

A little bit of everything from action to fantasy and comedy with Treat Williams, Joe Piscopo and Vincent Price, among others.

"Friday the 13th, Part VII — The New Blood" (*) (R).

Jason is back for number seven — the question is whether that is good luck for him, the audience or the producers who continue to rake it in with this series.

"Milagro Beanfield War" (*) (R).

Robert Redford returns to the director's chair in this story of a courageous New Mexican farmer. With Ruben Blades, Richard Bradford, Sonia Braga and Daniel Stern.

Salsa" (*) (PG).

If the son of La Bamba meets the daughter of Dirty Dancing . . .

"The Seventh Sign" (*) (R).

Demi Moore and Jurgen Prochnow in an occult, apocalyptic thriller.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect
B	Good
B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre
C-	Not so hot and slipping fast
D+	The very best of the poor stuff
D	Poor
D-	It doesn't get much worse
F	Truly awful
Z	Reserved for the colossally bad

'Man:' Southern humor at its best

By John Killeen
special writer

Yes, here we go again. Another — horror of horrors — Southern writer. And, as if it couldn't be any worse, a coming of age novel to boot.

Well, some of the best writing is coming out of the South. And, with the often off-center view brought to old stories, who better than a Southern writer to reinterpret the coming of age genre?

We're not talking a sensitive stroll through the forest of painful, budding emotions here. No way. We're talking about a loud, rude, swaggering stomp right down Main Street. We're talking enough bawdy jokes to lay down a considerable layer of blue air, and then some.

We're talking the Rite of Passage. That's correct. We're meaning THAT Rite.

Ed McClanahan is the perpetrator of this less than reverent look back. "State of Kentucky, County of Burdock, City of Needmore, population 6¾ when they're all at home" is the setting. "The Natural Man" is the work in question.

IT IS the late 1940s and Harry Eastep has come to this town with his parents from the big city, Dayton, Ohio, to be exact. The purpose of the trip was to bury his maternal grandfather, Elwood "Poodaddy" Biddle.

When the task is finished, they plan to stay just long enough to settle the affairs of the new widow, Miss Lute. That course of action is derailed when she informs them that she will leave her farm to African missionaries if she is forced out. They stay.

That is, Harry and his mother stay. Harry's father, a barber, returns to his chair at the Orville Wright Hotel. His half-hearted attempts at farming have proven to be too much for a man who was a "deep believer in the Power of Good Grooming."

HARRY IS the smart kid who is the outsider in town. With time on his hands, and puberty beginning to race around in his veins, he worries that he will be stuck at 15 forever. Worries that he will be left with "the most severe case of arrested development since Dorian Gray."

"There was a big secret called 'carnal knowledge' going around, and everyone except Harry was getting in on it."

Harry knows that his time will come. His first foray, with a girl named Ramona on a school bus following a class trip, is less than successful.

'She packed around more poundage just in double chins than most girls of Harry's acquaintance could claim in the places that really counted.'

"This little old boy is a-tryin' t'neck on me! This little old boy blowed in my ear!"

Undaunted, Harry sets his sights on the daughter of his employer, Nadine "Oodles" Ockerman. His reasons are practical. One is that she is "just real pretty in the face." The main reason, however, being that she would be grateful due to the fact that she will probably be an old maid because of the 225 pounds that go along with the face.

"She packed around more poundage just in double chins than most girls of Harry's acquaintance could claim in the places that really counted."

INTO THE middle of this steps one Monk McHorning, the natural man. The hulking, ugly product of an orphans' home, Monk is adopted by the basketball couch to help restore honor to a team that is routinely beaten by everyone, including a school for the deaf. This is too much for any school in Kentucky, where being a master of the hoop is next to godliness.

Monk is not anywhere near godliness. Or humanity, for that matter. His skill at basketball is less than polished.

"Monk McHorning played basketball approximately the way Pretty Boy Floyd played cops and robbers . . . Monk's style of play would have to be described as not merely dirty but psychotic."

Harry is assigned by the couch to tutor Monk. So begins his education by this most natural of men. Smoking, drinking, tattoos and a fair amount of lewd banter are the courses that Monk is most well-versed in. Harry thinks Monk has class.

THE BEST parts of this book must be withheld due to the family nature of this publication. Suffice it to say that the raw humor that Ed McClanahan brings to this tale is as joyous and wild as the language is earthy.

To keep some of the action fresh, I will only say that, yes, somebody does get the girl. And, yes, even the much-maligned Monk has a moment of incorruptibility. Miss Lute passes on. And Harry does finally leave Needmore.

Ed McClanahan's is one of the freshest voices in a long time. Although he has only published two books, his warmth and humor and talent are abundantly evident in his work. He is a natural storyteller who relishes a well-constructed tale liberally sprinkled with surprises.

Europe remembered

We were like every young person alive then. Europe was the "in" place. You hadn't lived until you got chased from the war memorial in downtown Amsterdam by police, using water cannons, or spent the night sleeping in Vondel Park. (We were wimps; we did neither — honest, Mom.)

We left Metro Airport with our tickets, $2,000 in traveler checks and two suitcases each. That was it. We had no hotel reservations, no planned itinerary. We only knew that after stopovers in New York and Iceland, the next time we touched ground would be in Luxembourg.

Our travel agent did two important things for us. He convinced to take the boat home from Greece and told us to forget about hotel reservations. European hotels overbook, especially during the month of August, when everyone goes on vacation.

Instead, he had told us to use tourist information booths that could be found in every European train station. The booths were great. We told them what we wanted and they found it, usually for a small fee — we're talking maybe 50 cents or so.

We stayed in a Danish home and had breakfast with our host family in Copenhagen, luxuriated in a $6-a-night room with adjoining bath, sitting area and a stocked, in-room refrigerator on Dusseldorf's poshest shopping street, and stayed in the spartan accommodations of a German convent just a block from the Vatican.

WE RAN INTO only one dive in Brussels. It was a Saturday and most rooms were taken. We ended up at a so-called $2-a-night student hotel, where most of the "students" needed to pluck their gray hairs.

And only one hotel reneged on the reservations. That was in Salzburg, Austria, and admittedly we looked pretty rough after 10 hours on the train from Zurich. They honored only one night of a three-night booking, but no sweat. The next day found ourselves a clean, quiet room in Mozart's neck of the woods.

By no means did we see Europe on $5 a day every day. Our accommodations ranged from $2 to $10 a night, depending on our mood.

The cost of seeing Europe on the cheap probably is $25 a day now, but it's the best way to see Europe. You meet new people and experience their cultures without being be smothered in the cocoon of an organized, 15-cities-in-16-days tour.

Doing it our way, we had a chance to dine with the commander and his officers aboard a U.S. naval ship in Barcelona.

STREET BEATS

A whole lot is happening to the members of Seduce. The current line-up includes Mark Andrews, bass and vocals; Chuck Burns, drums; and David Black, guitar.

Seduce ready to 'seduce' nation

'Touring is not the easiest thing in the world. What rips you down is a lack of sleep — fatigue. If you can build yourself up, you can run on your reserve batteries a little longer.'
— David Black

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Metal with hooks? Sounds like something you need a tetanus shot for before you listen to it.

Rest assured one doesn't have to worry about lockjaw by taking in Seduce's massive though melodic music. The Detroit band is going national with its own brand of metal music.

Seduce's first LP on I.R.S., "Too Much . . . Ain't Enough," is scheduled for a June release. In support of the album, the three-member Detroit outfit will embark on a year-long tour.

Also, the Motor City metal mavens will be featured in the upcoming motion picture, "The Decline of Western Civilization Part II: The Metal Years" and the movie soundtrack on Capitol along with Alice Cooper, Guns N' Roses, Faster Pussycat, Motorhead, Metal Church and Queensryche.

Needless to say, a whole lot is happening in the Seduce camp. The current line-up includes Mark Andrews, bass and vocals; David Black, guitar; and Chuck Burns, drums.

Black took time off recently from fixing his car to discuss the album, the movie, the tour and the group's quick rise to the national spotlight.

Anything special we can look for off this new album?

"Hopefully, a first hit for a band from Detroit. Hopefully, the record will do well nationally . . . Nobody has made it from Detroit in a long time."

Was there a lot of pressure involved in recording your first album for a major label?

"Kinda yeh, kinda no. We were up for it. We spent four months negotiating the deal. We went out there (Granny House Studio in Reno, Nev.) with most of our pre-production stuff done. It was kind of weird going out of town to do an album. Most of the stuff we had done was at little studios in Detroit."

What was it like working with Paul Lani (Megadeth, Sanctuary, Marc Jordan and Pseudo Echo)?

"It was fantastic . . . We were talking with Paul about doing some of the stuff on our next tape. Paul was a dream to work with."

Are you doing anything special to prepare for this tour?

"Like working out and stuff? We all are. We're going to Vic Tanny, swimming, lifting weights, riding those stupid bikes — all of it. But that's to keep on top of it. Touring is not the easiest thing in the world. What rips you down is a lack of sleep, fatigue. If you can build yourself up, you can run on your reserve batteries a little longer."

Has anyone given you any advice on what to expect on the road?

"I think it's come up when we're sitting around partying. It's come up in conversation. The rules are pretty basic and well-defined. We've been out long enough to know what they are."

What are the basic rules of touring?

"Don't drink too much, get some sleep, don't (fool) around with strange girls, practice as much as you can and keep your head clear. Basically, if you party too much, it's going to take its toll. You can only run away from it for so long and play the next night with a hangover. It tears down a lot of bands. When I go see a band and they sound bad, I can tell they are (messed) up. We might have a couple of drinks, but we don't go out and get drunk every night."

What kept you going in the early days of the band when you weren't signed and there wasn't an album and a movie coming out?

"The fact we knew had something nobody around here had. It came to the point where we said, "If we quit now, we would spend the rest of our lives wondering what if. So we went for it."

Are you trying to define a Detroit heavy metal sound?

"No. Actually, I think that's what's cool about Detroit bands. They all sound different. When I go to California, all the bands sound the same. When I went to check out a couple of clubs there, everyone seemed to be into speed metal. The bands in Detroit each sound a bit different."

Heavy metal takes a lot of bashing in the media. Why isn't it deserved?

"I really don't consider us a metal band, so I don't take it personally when those type of attacks come up."

You don't consider yourself a heavy metal band?

"Not really. I think we are a hard, loud rock band. We have more hooks and melodies than heavy metal does. Heavy metal is more of a feeling where the songs are more ground out, simple in detail."

REVIEWS

ALL THINGS MUST PASS (CD)

— George Harrison

Beatles completists should rejoice over Capitol's decision to release this 1970 landmark triple LP on compact disc.

Listen to the Wagnerian-production of "What Is Life" or the driving force of "Art of Dying" without the snap, crackle or pop of vinyl. This is what CD dreams are made of.

And this double disc is the answer to the prayers (pun intended) of many graying Harrison fans, who grew up on "My Sweet Lord" and the hypnotic "Isn't It a Pity."

For those young whipper-snappers who helped 1987's "Cloud Nine" become a smash hit and who may want more of George, "All Things Must Pass" is a perfect bookend.

The boxed triple-album has been squeezed into two discs, with most of the 23 tracks on the first.

With the laser production, new life is brought to the beautiful opening cut, the Dylan/Harrison penned "I'd Have You Anytime." Harmonicas jump out at you on "Apple Scruffs," an ode dedicated to '60s Beatle groupies.

And then there are those hot, delicious guitar riffs on "Wah Wah" and "Awaiting on You All."

"All Things Must Pass," Harrison's initial solo offering, was the forum for expression the quiet Beatle long wanted but was unable to accomplish during his years as a Beatle, when he too often was restricted by the huge egos of Lennon and McCartney.

In fact, George has many times been accused of putting all his musical eggs in one basket — at least until last year's comeback.

But no matter what, "All Things Must Pass" is a classic that in fact should be timeless.

— Tim Smith

THIS IS THE PLACE

— Louise Goffin

Louise Goffin is the daughter of famed pop songwriters Carole King and Gerry Goffin. Like her parents, Goffin writes about finding love — on trains, beaches or merry-go-rounds — and losing it on cold, lonely city streets.

Although "This Is the Place" (Warner Bros.) was recorded in England, it reflects nothing of the anthemic rock or synthesizer-drenched technopop we've come to expect from the British Isles these days.

Instead, it's catchy, if somewhat lightweight, American pop.

Goffin recorded as a teen in the late '70s, but she's left the bubblegum behind.

"Bridge of Sighs," Goffin's dreamily seductive first single, is an unquestionably fine pop ballad, both haunting and memorable.

"In the Mood" bears no resemblance to the similarly titled Robert Plant tune, but it's a pleasant, upbeat tale of a woman who's ready for love.

The spunky "Banging on a Brand New Drum" might be a better bet for chart success, but it almost seems a toss-off after some of the better-crafted material that also appears on the album. "Like a barefooot contessa on the moon/Heads turned when she walked in the room" are hardly Goffin's best lyrics.

The album's major flaw isn't Goffin's writing. It's her thin, still-immature voice. She sounds like Rickie Lee Jones' little sister (or Debbie Gibson's big sister). After a half dozen songs or so, it gets wearying.

Perhaps she could learn a few lessons from mom, a singer who made up in wisdom and heart what she lacked in tonal quality.

A little work on the pipes and she could be a contender.

TRACY CHAPMAN

— Tracy Chapman

Women folk artists have finally made it back. We certainly missed you.

The latest graduating class of women folk is perhaps the best.

"Tracy Chapman" (Elektra sylum) is the most solid debut album as they come. Like Vega, Chapman writes and sings in a 1980s' theme. Segregation, growing up in an alcoholic home, poverty and addictive relationships are only some of the boundaries Chapman touches on this album.

It's one thing to write about social problems. It's quite another to convey them in a passionate way. And no one paints a more vivid picture than Chapman.

Her voice is something above a whisper, but it never strains nor does it lose track.

Chapman sings of desperation, wanting to escape from bleak surroundings. That feeling is certainly the hallmark of "Fast Car," a number which has garnered Chapman some airplay on MTV and VH-1. "Fast Car" is an apt metaphor since it offers only a quick way out. In reality, it's a fast car going nowhere.

While "Fast Car" is ripe with imagery, Chapman opts for the straight and narrow most of the way. For example, "Across the Lines," a number that deals with racism, is stark in contrast.

But Chapman gets to the point. Her lyrics are certainly not muddled in ambiguities as "Why?" attests. "Love is hate/War is peace/No is yes/And we're all free/But somebody's gonna have to answer/The time is coming soon midst all these questions and contradictions/There're some who seek the truth."

Chapman sings one number, "Behind the Wall," a cappella. As a result, the hopelessness felt living in the inner-city comes across with even more conviction.

In contrast to what she sings about throughout her debut album, Chapman's career looks quite promising.

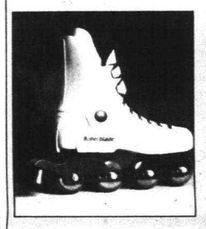
Can it, safely

Twelve-inch-tall metal canisters are decorated on the front and back to resemble your favorite sport and are filled with items you'll use. Choose from tennis, fitness workout, or golf. Inside, you'll find a sweatband, wristbands, elastic bandages, washcloth and a bar of soap. Perfect for keeping in the trunk of your car — just in case you decide to play on the spur of the moment. Cans are $9.60 each. Marmel Gifts, Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

Hot wheels



Rollerblade In-Line skates are a squealing success in toy/sports exercise summer lineup. Rather than a skate with a blade in the center, or wheels placed in different points on the bottom of a boot, Rollerblade is an in-line skate with four polyurethane wheels placed in the center of the bottom of a durable molded polyurethane boot — combining the look of an ice skate, the fun of roller skating and the excitement of skis. Available in black, the skates come in two styles — Lightening and Zetra, and are priced at $130 or $165. Don Thomas Sporthaus, Bloomfield Plaza, Birmingham.

Ancient elegance

Ancient Greeks welcomed guests into homes by washing vistors' hands with water from a pitcher like this. Today's hosts can serve wine or water from a reproduction of the ancient pitchers. Handmade in Greece, a pitcher is 12 inches high and hand-painted in 24-karat gold over a rich blue-black. Toga-clad figures circle its girth. 25th summer

The Meadow Brook Summer Festival is seeing silver this summer — its silver anniversary, that is. So, its 70 performances in the open air are extra special.

Jazz, oldies but goodies, classical, contemporary, folk and symphony music will be wafting across the lawn beginning with a Detroit Symphony Orchestra concert June 16.

Among the notables that will be stopping by this summer are Johnny Mathis, the Rovers, Herb Alpert, Bob Dylan, the Detroit Concert Band, the Pointer Sisters, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, Gordon Lightfoot and the Isreal Philharmonic.

Prices vary according to the concert and many of the performances are grouped in series. The festival box office will open June 9 and phone orders can be made by calling 377-2010.

By the light

It's a summer tradition — dancing the night away aboard the Boblo boat.

Yep, they're back. The Boblo boat's moonlight cruises have returned for yet another summer and the musical lineup features Detroit's top rock'n'roll, Motown, blues and pop bands.

Among the performers are Steve King and the Dittlies, Inversions, Detroit Blues Band, Regular Boys, RH Factor, Caruso, Flashback, Bop Harvey, Map of the World and Artie Wolff and the Pack.

This year's schedule includes three Sunday night moonlight cruises — May 29, July 3 and Sept. 4.

The cruise departs from the Boblo Detroit dock at the foot of Clark Avenue at 11 p.m. and returns at 1 a.m. General admission is $10.95 per person or $9.95 for groups of 10 or more with advanced reservations.

Tickets for the moonlight cruises can be bought at the Boblo box office, all Automobile Club of Michigan branch offices, CAA branch offices and TicketMaster outlets.

For more information, call 843-8800.

Festival fun

Speaking of music and what not, now's the time to order tickets for the Ann Arbor Summer Festival, June 25 to July 17.

The festival kicks off with a gala garden party and the music of the Count Basie Orchestra and continues on like a heat wave with the likes of mezzo-soprano Kathleen Segar, the Earth Players of Johannesburg, Marcel Marceau, the Dukes of Dixieland and the Circle Repertory Company in "Reckless."

The performances will be at the Power Center for the Performing Arts, Rackham Building, Lydia Mendelssohn Theater, First Congregational Church and Power Center rehearsal hall.

Tickets are available per concert or in passes — the festival pass (nine tickets for nine shows for $144), theater, jazz and dance passes and recital series.

You can order tickets by calling 763-TKTS or buy them at the Michigan Union and Power Center box offices in Ann Arbor or TicketMaster outlets.

Top guns

If music isn't in your stars this summer, consider airplanes. The Willow Run Air Show will have the "top guns come to Detroit" June 25-26.

In addition to demonstrations by military jets like the A-10 and F-16, the show will feature the country's top civilian aviation acts — Holiday Inn Aerobatic Team, Julie Clark and the wing-walking of Earl and Paul Cherry. There also will be an appearance by the mysterious Captain Midnight in his jet fighter.

A variety of other aviation attractions — hot air balloons, helicopter demonstrations, parachuting, World War II era aircraft and radio-controlled model aircraft flights and exhibits — will round out the show.

Advance tickets are available at TicketMaster outlets at $7 for adults and $5 for children under 12 years of age. Tickets will cost $2 more at the gate.

The gates will open at 9 a.m. for the displays, with the air show to start at 1 p.m.

For more information, call 482-8888 or write the Air Show, Willow Run Airport, Ypsilanti 48198.

A fun fair

Not into music or air shows? How about a fun fair?

Greg Theakston, publisher of Pure Imagination, Detroit's only comic book company, will host the Pure Imagination Fun Fair Memorial Day weekend, May 28-31, at the Troy Hilton.

There also will be special guests — 3-D expert and authority on the medium Ray Zone, Bill Loebs, creator of "Journey" and current scripter for "Johnny Quest," Mike Machlan, an all-around wizard of the ink pot, and Glenn Barr and Dave Higgins, illustrators of Studio "X."

There also will be a collectible flea market.

Admission is $6 per day or $15 for a weekend pass. Children under 10 will be free with a paid admission.

Sunglasses: Made for shade, style

"THERE'S GREATER interest today about UV protection," said Kim Dembrosky, optician. "Ultraviolet rays are known to cause cataracts."

Most sunglasses in display windows carry tiny stickers noting UV protection ranging from 100 percent down to 80 percent.

At Sun Skins, an indoor tanning salon in the Village Commons center in Farmington, "the wear and tear of sun on the eye is a growing concern. No one thought about ultraviolet danger a few years ago," said Leslie Caldwell, store manager.

The store's sunglass line includes Panama Jack, a designer brand from Florida, and 100 percent impact-proof skier glasses.

"Glass is an automatic barrier to ultraviolet radiation," said Dr. Howard Dubin, an optometrist in downtown Farmington. "If you have a glass lens, (protection) is automatic. A plastic lens needs UV coding."

If you're wearing shades primarily for driving, the windshield provides protection from radiation. Only plastic lens wearers who plan on spending lots of time outdoors — boating, golfing or sunbathing — need worry about UV protection, Dubin said.

Dubin sells lots of sunglasses, prescription and plain. The hot look now is the ronsir frame, "which has been around for 200 years and was typically for an 80-year-old," joked Susan Dubin.

The attraction? It's the Don Johnson look — plastic frames across the top, wire on the bottom.

"DON JOHNSON and Barbara (Streisand) were just featured in People (magazine) wearing these," she said.

"Americans like big and colorful. Sunglasses are meant to be fun," she said, sweeping her hand across the display of frames, some with inlaid fabric, marble tiling, gold applique, leather and wood — all a far cry from the nerd look of the '60s.

"Glasses are a fashion statement," she said.

At Jacobson's, which has stores in Birmingham and Livonia, model 3160 — an oversized frame in a variety of lens tints — is the most popular style. It's manufactured by Primetta of West Germany.

"We've had four reorders already," said Betsy Bindus, accessory buyer for the chain.

A sales clerk at the Livonia store attributes that to "good quality, flattering to most faces, and priced well at $20."

Tortoise shell and black are the hottest colors. And the long, sleek flat across the top look is very trendy. Jacobson's sells most sunglasses from February through June, when the season generally peaks.

Bindus said the shorter lead time in accessory buying as compared with ready to wear allows faster reaction to trends — four to eight weeks as opposed to three or four months.

"We can bring (sunglasses) in and get a reaction quickly," she said.

AND BUYERS aren't stuck in one mode.

"It's like jewelry. We still use the old pair from last year, but we add to the wardrobe, maybe pick up a new pair. There are sunglasses for different times — gardening and sports would require a different look than a patio party."

While stars often set the trends, "a side effect is that you get more awareness of the fashion aspect of sunglasses, and can modify that look to your needs," Bindus said.

Susan Dubin, who has worked in her husband's 21-year-old practice, noted another sign of the times — glasses tinted for computer screens, to cut florescent glare, and lenses that turn darker outside and lighter inside for light sensitive eyes.

"We're in a much glitzier era today," she said. "Everyone wants to look good."

AYH offers a cheap answer to costly trips airfare, lodging in hostels, meals and transportation while in Europe. "Royal Rail" offers the same benefits and costs $1,500 for 16 days.

Lorenger said a drawback of the tours is that people are on their own to get to the New York starting point.

"If you really want to meet them, go second class on the train. It's more crowded, but more fun."

And that's what any vacation should be about.

For more information about low-cost trips to Europe, call Lorenger at the American Youth Hostels, 545-0511.

TRAVELERS, WHO plan as they go, should cook their own meals for further savings, she added.

For all who go, Lorenger recommended travel books on sale at the Berkley office, "Let's Go: Europe," and "Let's Go: Britain and Ireland." Both cost about $12.

Traveling the hostel way helps Americans better understand foreigners and the cultures they live in, she said.

"One of the best things about hostels is you meet a lot of people," she said. "You make friends from all over the place, people you want to visit and who want to visit you."

And the budget travel specialist had another pointer.

Volunteer ushers: They're cheap seat 'connoisseurs'

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

They may not have the best seat in the house — but the price is always right.

In exchange for minimal responsibilities — arriving an hour before showtime, helping patrons find seats, passing out programs or ripping tickets — they get to see first rate entertainment free of charge.

They are volunteers who usher at theatres from Birmingham to downtown Detroit.

"It's been a broadening experience," said Connie Curto of West Bloomfield. "I wasn't familiar with the stage. With opera, yes, but not theater. I've learned a lot."

Once a month on Saturday night, Curto is stationed in the left aisle of the Birmingham Theatre, seating people, guarding exit doors during intermission and enjoying the performance. She is into her sixth year as a volunteer usher.

It began one snowy day, when she was asked to pinch-hit for an usher who couldn't make it because of hazardous road conditions. For Curto, the theater was close to home.

"The weather was terrible; everyone dreaded the drive," she said. "I signed up to usher and I've loved it ever since.

"I do it because it's in our area — I can't be running all over. And it's such a beautiful theater. The people are nice to work for."

LIKE MOST theaters, ushers at the Birmingham dress conservatively — black skirt and white blouse for women, dark suits for men.

Eleonora Prach and her son, Paul, of Birmingham, usher together at both the Birmingham Theatre and Masonic Temple. Eleonora has also worked at the Fisher Theatre and Meadow Brook.

"I wanted to see everything there is to see," she said. "Any other way it's too expensive."

Prach prefers working for the entire run of the show.

"At the Masonic, I'm there for all the performances," Prach said." I enjoy people. That's number one. I try to be pleasant and answer questions."

And there are perks.

"A couple of years ago when the Michigan Opera Theatre was performing at the Fisher, I had the privilege of picking up from the airport a main-role tenor from Iceland," she said. "We had a very nice conversation."

Another time, she brought a member of the clergy from Brother Rice High School to the theater to meet Carol Channing. They went backstage together.

"It was great. She was very nice and chatted with us."

While other ushers were a bit apprehensive about approaching Mickey Rooney before a performance of "Sugar Babes" at the Fisher, Prach said she "just went up to him backstage.

"He was very nice, straightforward, down to earth. They're just human beings like us all."

Jan Dillon of Redford Township has been ushering at the Fisher Theater and Masonic Temple for 10 years, initially brought in by a friend who asked her to substitute.

"NOW I'M A regular," she said, adding that her stint includes one performance per show, except for the unusually long runs. "I saw 'Annie' five times and I enjoyed it each time. Of course, there are some shows that aren't so great, but I didn't pay $25 or $30 for a ticket either."

Dillon, the wife of Redford District Court Judge John Dillon, ushers the Sunday matinee "to escape Sunday afternoon football" at home. She usually goes with a friend.

"There was the time we had a house guest from Cuernavaca; she didn't speak a word of English," she said. "I was just praying that no one would ask her a question. They didn't."

She recalls another time when a grandmother brought four youngsters — fresh in town from Arizona — to see "Annie," only the tickets were for the previous weekend.

"(The Fisher) was very accommodating. They put seats in the aisle for them."

For Mary and Thad Suchenek of Redford Township, ushering at area theaters has provided "a way to see lots of nice shows and concerts, make new friends, and it sure beats sitting home in front of the television."

"This is our fifth season at Orchestra Hall," Mary said. "We like classical music. Initially, I had heard from someone at work that Orchestra Hall needed ushers. I believe we found a form at the Palmer Park art festival, filled it out and they got in touch with us."

Once a week the Sucheneks don their conservative attire and drive to the hall, where they either take tickets, coats, work the concession stand, or work an aisle.

"WE HAVE TO seat late-comers and at intermission be available to answer questions and make sure no one brings drinks into the concert hall or smokes there," Suchenek said.

They've seen the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Chamber Music Society of Detroit, jazz programs, gospel singing and choirs.

The Sucheneks also usher at the Music Hall and the Attic Theater. They are both volunteers at the Detroit Historical Museum. Mary works in the Tavy Stone fashion library once a week, filing and helping students who use the facility. Thad works for the Bluewater chapter of the National Historic Railroad Society, restoring and keeping the model train exhibit in top shape.

New Ilford III paper is darkroom space saver

By John Dingman
AP Newsfeatures

camera angles

Many photographers like myself work in a temporary darkroom that must be set up and taken down each time it's used. Storage space is limited, but supplies are needed.

One of the most-economical ways to buy paper is in packages of 250 sheets or more. But if you need more than one different grade of paper — and most photographers do — then storage can be a problem.

Most negatives do fine on No.2 and No.3 paper, but there are times when anything from a No.1 to a No. 5 is needed. Five boxes of paper take up a lot of storage space.

I use a lot of variable contrast paper, for both storage and cost reasons. Kodak Polycontrast and Ilford Multigrade II have produced decent results. But neither compares with the new Ilford Multigrade III.

Ilford Multigrade III works like other variable contrast papers. You expose it in your enlarger in the usual way. However, with Multigrade III, colored filters are used to change the light and the contrast. The filters produce contrasts from Grade 0 through Grade 5 in half steps. Most of the time, I use a No.2 to No.3 1¼ filter. It's relatively easy to learn how to gauge what is needed by inspecting the negative.

ON THOSE OCCASIONS when the negative is less than perfect, it's a joy just to switch filters to get the desired contrast grade.

And, if you have an enlarger with a color head, you can easily dial in the equivalent of the gelatin filter.

I have worked up a little chart for the side of the enlarger, giving the settings for the various contrast grades.

Ilford Multigrade III produces some of the whitest whites and blackest blacks of any paper I have used, including graded papers.

With the proper grade filtration, the prints just leap out — great for prints for my personal use, and, more important, for the engraver who does my church magazine.

Exposure times are short, even with the filters in the enlarger, and except for the top of the scale, a change in filtration does not change exposure.

Ilford Multigrade III is a fast-developing paper. If you use the special Multigrade developer, the image snaps up in about 10 seconds, and the print reaches full development in about 60 seconds.

You don't have to use Multigrade developer — any good developer will work. But others are slower in the tray; about 30 seconds for the image to appear.

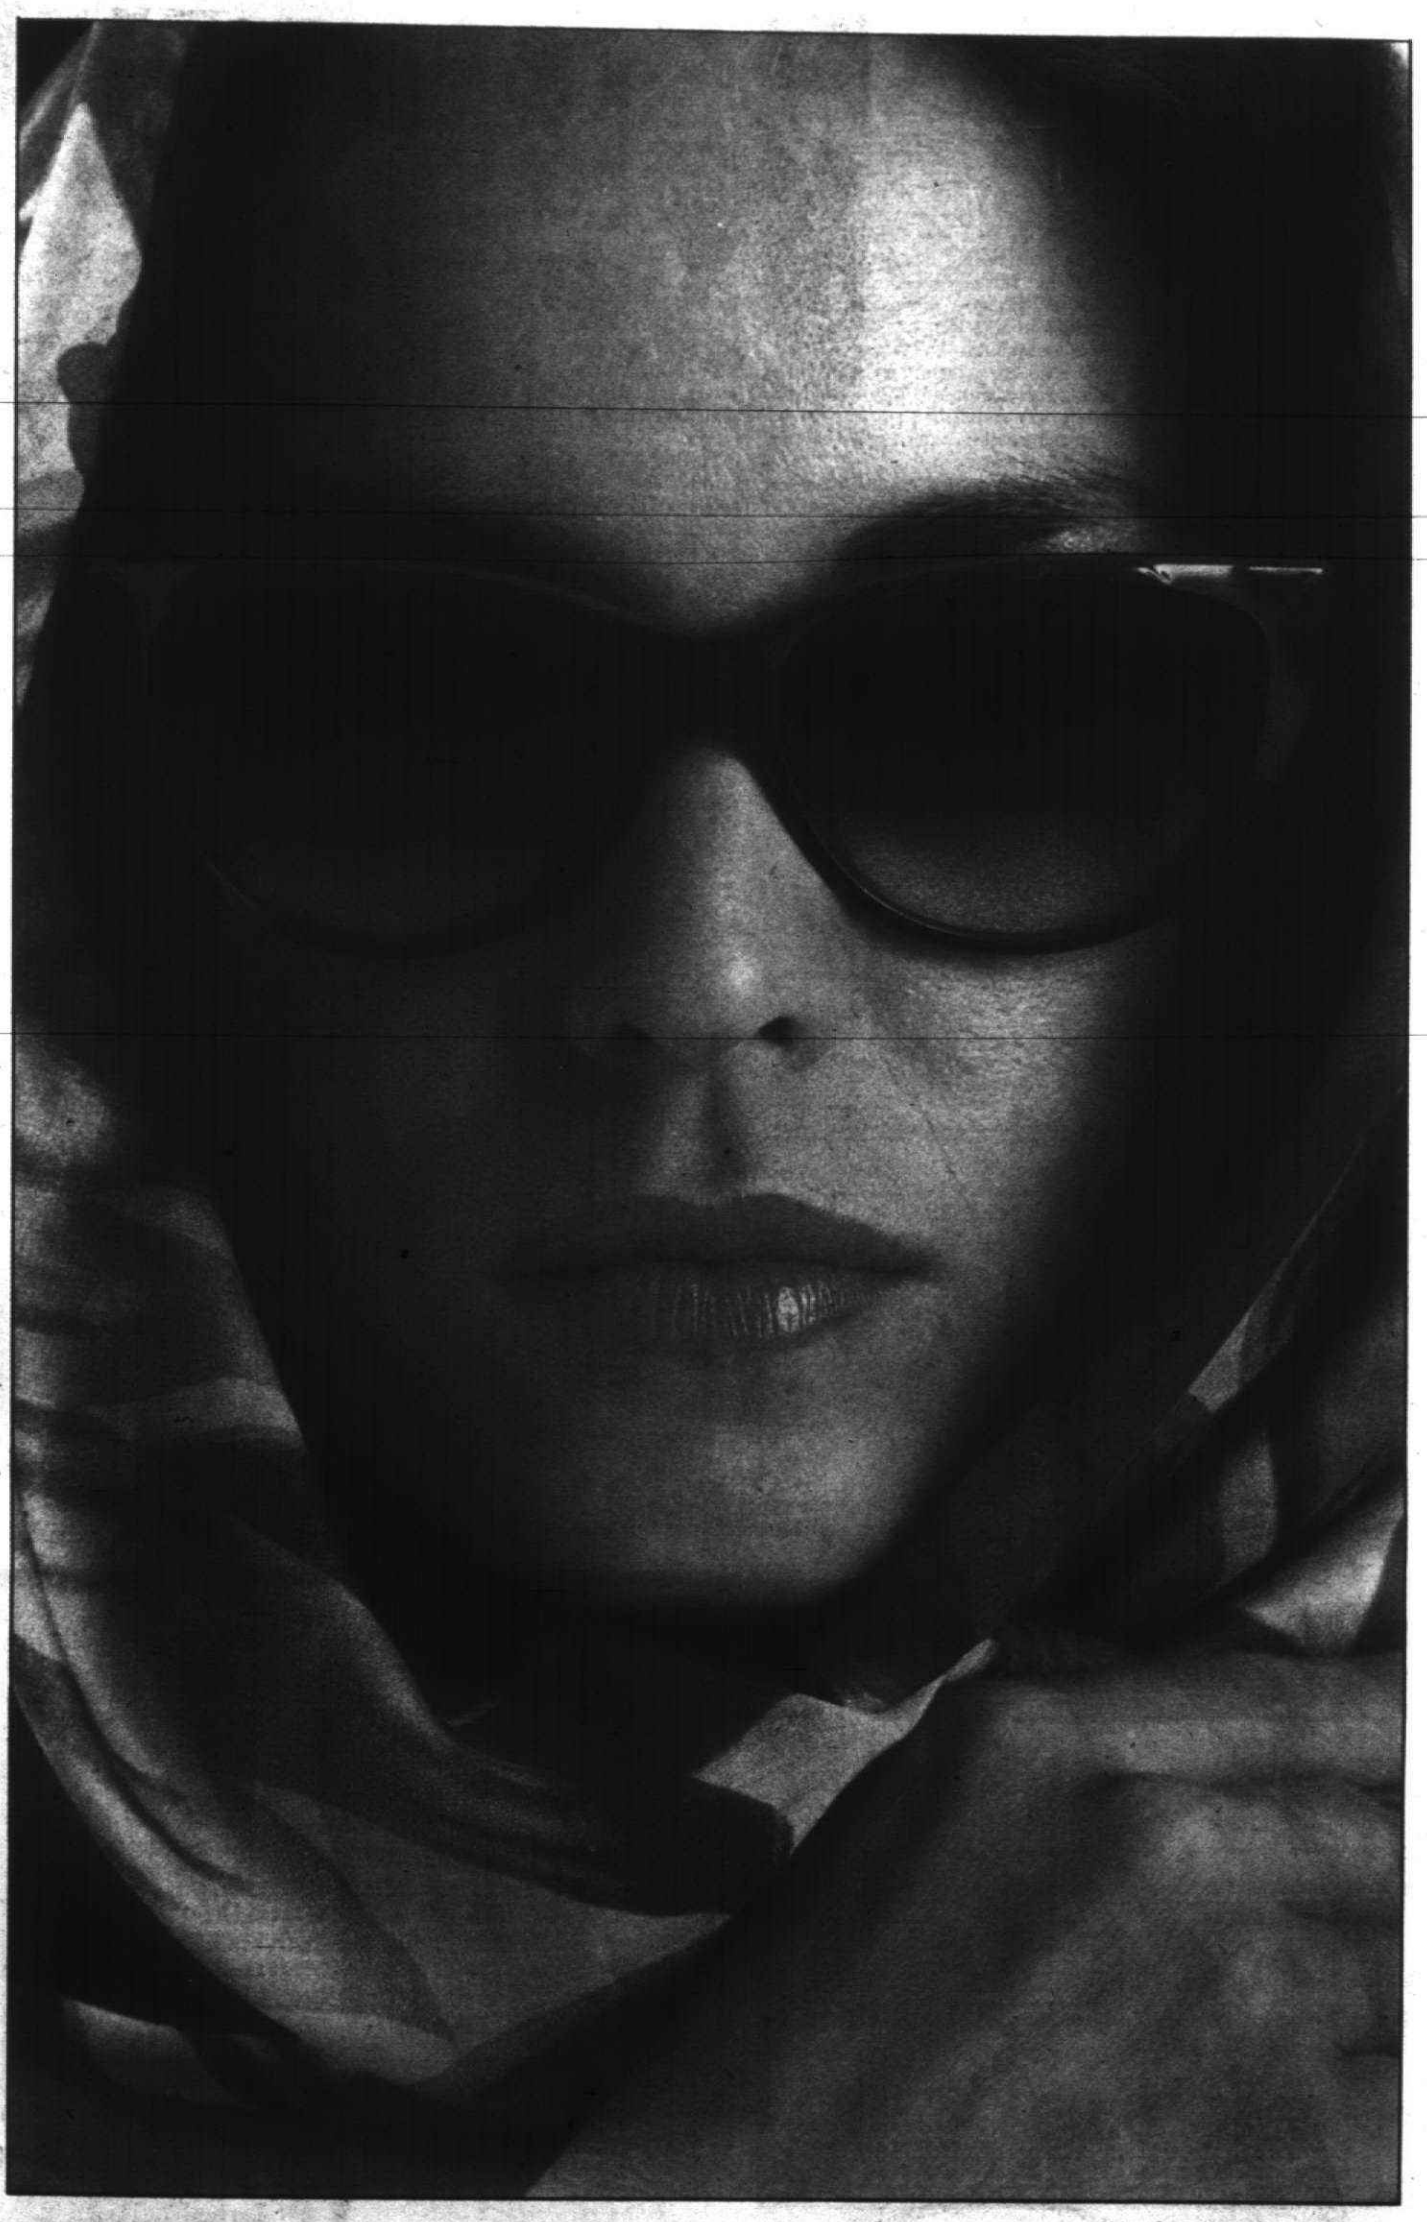
SUN GLASS CHIC



photos by RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Christian Dior paired up shades of purple, teal blue and red for its sunglasses ($86), a perfect compliment to an Ellen Tracer design scarf ($32) from Jacobson's.

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

They come studded with rhinestones, accented in leather and snakeskin, or Blues Brothers basic.

Bruce Willis, Jack Nicholson and Yoko Ono have done a lot for the industry.

Sunglasses — as conservative as green lenses in black frames, as outrageous as mirrored hot pink glass in cats eyes — go with summer.

"The high school kids like the pretenders," said Marge, a sales clerk at Hudson's Westland store. "They're clear glass, but UV (ultraviolet) protected."

The round clear glass in gold wire frames look early '70s hippie — popular at just about the time these customers were being born.

Stationed in men's wear, Marge noted that males spend "so much time with sunglasses and they pick a dress shirt much quicker."

Besides the Hollywood influence, sport glasses have a loyal following, she said. Jean Vuarnet, French gold medal downhill skier in the 1960 winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., has a popular line. Ditto Carrera, manufactured in Austria and Germany and billed as "the choice of Olympic champions since 1956."

Down the mall at Tuckerman Optical, designers like Andre Bouchard, Liz Claiborne, Christian Dior and Diane von Furstenberg are featured prominently in the display windows.

For a kicky look, try Ted Lapidos' red, black and gold sunglasses ($84) and a pair of gold hoop earrings ($45) from Jacobson's.

Feel adventurous? Jacobson's has just the thing — a pair of sunglasses by Zaqat ($110). The black frames with red and white wave accents match up with black and red earrings ($19).

B&B establishments: A 'home, sweet home' for the weary traveler

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: Please tell me everything you know about bed-and-breakfast establishments. We stay in them wherever we travel, but I also have an ulterior motive. My husband wants to buy a cottage, but I want to buy an old house, fix it up, move north and run a bed-and-breakfast of my own!

A: Everything I know about bed-and-breakfast places I have learned by staying in them in dozens of states and other countries. I've been in farm houses in New Zealand, country homes in Germany, manor houses in Ireland, historic homes in Baltimore and Savannah, Ga., and private homes in Michigan.

I love them all, especially waking up in a room full of beautiful antique furniture, with the smell of homemade bread in the air. I don't think I would have the patience to run one, however, not 24 hours a day.

The term bed-and-breakfast covers a lot of territory. A few states, like Wisconsin, have a legal definition — an owner-occupied place of lodging that has four guest rooms or less and serves only breakfast. It also has rules and regulations covering their operation.

Most of the places I have visited fit that definition, although small inns may have more than four rooms. It's a place where you rent a room and get breakfast, but has none of the facilities and services otherwise associated with a hotel.

Some of them, like the Admiral Fell Inn at Fell's Point, Md., are close enough to the size and style of a hotel to be private money-making business operations, although I don't think anybody would put the necessary time and energy into the restoration of one of those grand old houses, if they didn't love doing it.

Savannah, Ga., has the greatest collection of historic B&Bs I've seen, all of them spread among the elegant old restored homes of the historic district downtown. Some are small inns, some an extra bedroom in a private home, some offer a suite over a garage that was once a carriage house.

WHAT TIES them all together is that sense of being in a family home, a very special kind of family home. Most of us couldn't offer that setting, or that service to our friends who come as guests. Bed-and-breakfast homes are usually lovingly restored and furnished by people like you who want such homes for themselves. Sometimes the B&B arrangements are only a way to achieve that goal.

MICKY JONES

One version of a Michigan bed-and-breakfast is the Garfield Inn in Port Austin.

In Asheville, N.C., for example, I visited innkeepers Jack and Barbara McEwan at their beautiful Victorian inn, Cedar Crest. They both came from the cold north and once ran a hotel in Racine, Wis. They decided to "move south and open a bed-and-breakfast," the same idea that you have only in the other direction.

It took them 18 months to find it and 15 tradesmen spent several months restoring it. Barbara stripped off 13 layers of wallpaper. The family could regularly be found surrounded by turpentine and linseed oil. But you should see it now.

As you must know, there are several guide books dedicated to the bed-and-breakfast scene. "Country Inns and Back Roads" by Norman T. Thompson covers places like Stafford's Bayview Inn in Petoskey and the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills, as well as Michillinda Beach Lodge in Whitehall, all probably bigger than you have in mind.

TO GET DOWN to the nitty gritty, buy a copy of "Bed and Breakfast in Michigan" by Michigan writers Norma Buzan and Bert Howell, and you'll get everything from the Stuart Avenue Bed and Breakfast in Kalamazoo to Bea Bowen's Plum Lane Inn in Northport.

Your next best step is probably to contact Innkeeping Consultants, a fairly new team of people who will teach you how to restore, market, finance and operate a bed and breakfast. The consultants include Joe and Lynda Petty, who did just what you want to do.

Their next two seminars are June 19-20 and Sept. 18-19. Fees are $195 per person, $295 per couple. That doesn't include dinner and lodging, and I honestly cannot tell you whether it is worth it or not. Why don't you contact the Pettys at The Park House, 888 Holland St., Saugatuck, Mich. 49453 and ask for the names of other Michigan people who have taken their earlier seminars.

And just to put a word in for your husband, who doesn't know yet what you may be getting him into, here is a cottage suggestion. Call the Michigan Travel Bureau at (800) 5432-YES.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. I'm well organized but out of space. I have a small kitchen and limited storage for other things like linens, cleaning supplies, etc. Since I cannot afford renovations or a bigger house, are there any tricks to using my space better?

A. Yes, there are. Since you say you are well organized, I assume you are not a saver. Just the same, try first to pare down even more, following the No. 1 Storage Rule: Organize before increasing space.

That done, open your closet and cupboard doors, stand back and peruse the use of your space carefully. How much of the back wall of your storage area is visible? Storing short items on tall shelves — leaving lots of space between the items on the shelf above — is a waste of space.

If your shelves are adjustable, buy and install extra shelves. If they are, use step shelves. A step shelf is an extra shelf inserted between existing ones. These can be installed by several methods. A variance of the old "brick and board" trick can be used by placing bricks, blocks or tin cans to support a board at each end.

FOR SMALL SPACES, buy inexpensive vinyl-covered wire-rack step shelves in the housewares department of your local hardware or discount store. (I bought mine at Damman's).

Step shelves are especially useful for double-decking china, glassware, canned food, flat baking dishes, bowls, bath towels, sweaters, etc. On a deep pantry shelf, a step shelf can be placed across the back, for instance. Utilize under-sink cavities and other larger areas such as pantries or linen closets.

Plastic baskets can be used in conjunction with step shelves. On a closet shelf, for example, a rack can be placed across all or a portion of the width. Baskets holdings small items (perhaps gloves, scarfs, etc.) can be placed on and/or under the step shelf.

This also works well for storing potatoes and onions, first aid equipment, pet supplies, tape, cosmetics, sewing notions, carpentry supplies or numerous other small items kept in large undivided areas.

Gardener finds pesties are for the birds

By Jane Wilczewski
special writer

WHEN I SEE a tomato horn worm, my first impression is "Oooh, yuck." Since I'm squeamish about crawling things, my second impression is one of fear. I act upon that fear by digging up my whole tomato plant and dumping it into the nearest garbage can.

Next, I usually pour a bit of gasoline on the contents of the can and attempt to rid the tomato plant and myself of that caterpillar forever. A bit drastic, I'll admit, but that was my routine until recently.

Not wanting to use harmful poisons on my backyard garden, I often encountered those repulsive creepy crawlers. I knew that my tomato plants were doomed when I heard the clicking sound of the tomato horn worm in the garden. Yes, tomato worms do make clicking sounds!

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH, I'd decided. Between insects and worms, if I was going to sample the fruit of my labor, I had to find a natural way to rid my plants of such pests. Primitive man followed nature's ways, and he survived without insecticides. I'm sure he observed and used all the clues that nature had to offer. I decided to try and do the same.

My investigation led me to the value of birds as one of nature's clues. They are better than insecticides at removing insects. Birds can reach under the leaves of plants and other places that sprays miss. Since most birds are insect eaters, I began to try to attract and keep them around our yard.

I discovered that bluebirds prefer caterpillars as food. They also eat locusts and other insects, and they injure nothing.

SWALLOWS HELP form a protective barrier over the garden. They scour the sky for nocturnal bugs and make sweeps just above the ground for others. The swallow has a larger throat than most birds, so their open mouths, like a net, trap insect life in the air.

Probably the greatest friend to the home gardener is the purple martin. Long ago, the American Indian discovered the value of these birds in controlling insects that plagued them. The Indians hung gourds with openings about their camps for martins to use as nesting places.

The birds must have liked this arrangement, because now they choose bird houses in preference to natural places. They love those community-type bird houses. Thirty of more martins will nest there on flies, wasps and other unwanted insects.

Once spring arrives, you might look for the bright black and orange oriole. Their basic diet is caterpillars, pupae, and moths. These birds are a friend to trees also. The oriole will feed their young those large tent caterpillars that defoliate trees.

THE FLYCATCHER also picks caterpillars and eats thousands of aphids.

The birds I've mentioned so far are skittish when man is around. However, there are some varieties that are very friendly to the gardener. Foremost of these are the wrens. Wrens like to eat insects that belong to the order of Hemiptera, which includes leafhoppers, plant lice, scale insects, whiteflies, and true bugs. The wrens, being small themselves, find it worthwhile to pick up the tiniest of insect eggs. Wrens are cavity-nesters and will take to boxes or bird houses placed in fruit trees where you want them to work.

If you want to attract birds to your yard, you must remember that only a small number of birds are attracted to artificial bird houses. However, all birds are attracted to water. Some birds like to flutter and preen in the shallows of a birdbath. Others, like the brown towhee, are like the Baptist who insist on total submersion. Another extreme is the bluebird who won't wet his feet but likes to bask in a fine mist.

IF YOU WANT to attract birds to your garden, just remember to vary the water supply. You can't depend on stagnant water in a basin or birdbath. Birds have favorite times for their bath and drinking. Doves, for example, take all of their water supply at sundown. The gardener who wants to attract more birds than his neighbor, should have some form of water available at all hours.

It's good commom sense to encourage helpful birds by giving them some food during the winter months.

There are a few undesirable birds to have around your garden. The house finch may be destructive in large numbers. It is responsible for more fruit damage than any other bird. Jays eat fruits and nuts and drive away other birds. They will destroy the nests and eat the eggs of useful birds.

If you want to attract birds to your yard, you must remember that only a small number of birds are attracted to artificial bird houses. However, all birds are attracted to water . . . just remember to vary the water supply . . . have some form of water available at all hours.

Observation is the best tool to determine a working relationship with birds. Also the members of your local Audubon Society will help you in identifying the beneficial birds that frequent your garden.

Now, if there's such a thing as a helpful caterpillar, FORGET IT!

Jane Wilczewski is a free-lance writer who lives in Westland. She's also been a backyard gardener for years and is familiar with the problems they encounter.

Here's a new-home inspection checklist

OUTSIDE

- Grading: Does the ground around the foundation slope away from the house? Does water accumulate in puddles? Are there signs of erosion? Is the shrubbery placed at least two - three feet from the foundation? Are the basement window wells clean and graveled?
- Roof structure: Are shingles flat and tight? Is flashing secure in place? Do gutters, downspouts and splash blocks drain away from the house? Exterior Appearance: are all windows and doors sealed and protected by weatherstripping? Are trim and fittings tight? Are there cracks? Does the paint on surface and trim cover smoothly?

INSIDE

- Doors/Windows: Are all doors and windows properly sealed? Do they operate easily? Are the doors and windows the type specified in the contract? Is all glass in place and not loose or cracked?
- Finishes: Is painting satisfactory in all rooms? Even closets and stairways? Is trim and molding in place?
- Floors: Do carpet seams match? Is the carpet tight? Are there any ridges or seam gaps in vinyl title or linoleum. Do the floors squeak? Are the wooden floors properly finished?

GEORGE GERSHWIN said it first — Oh, springtime in New York.

For me, there's no place more exciting. I'm going to tell you about some of the places I make regularly when I am visiting the city.

The "Soho" area, which is the south end of Manhattan, has wonderful galleries where you can make a purchase for several hundred dollars or thousands of dollars. Marvelous accessory items for the home — china, linens — are to be found.

On Saturday and Sunday, there is an open air market on many of the streets. Buying and bargaining is a little game you play. It makes me think of the Chinese. They're offended when you don't bargain. It is their pleasure to give you a "good" buy.

Sotheby's at 1334 York is exciting, particularly if they are having an auction. Here, you may see collections of the rich and famous being auctioned. There is usually a sale in the morning and one in the afternoon.

THE WALLACE Wentworth Gallery, 100 United Nations Plaza, is a must for the sophisticated collector. Here, you will find a large variety of original art: Chagall, Picasso, Andy Warhol, Clyde Linds.

At the Castillion Fine Art Ltd., 159 Madison, you will see an impressive collection of French and American original lithographs at very reasonable prices.

The Broadway Gallery at 2087 Broadway is open seven days. So if you have spent time doing other things, Sunday is available to you to see the work of Raphael Soyter, Miro, Calder, Agam, Neiman and many more.

University Place is a street a few blocks long with many antique furniture and lighting galleries. All the shops are open week days — many close on Saturday and Sunday.

The Kentshire Galleries at 37 East 12th, between Broadway and University Place, is internationally recognized as one of the finest dealers in antique furnishings.

Now, when you plan your visit to the "Big Apple," take this article with you. I promise you, you are going to love making these stops.
