Community center will go on ballot

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Taxpayers will be asked in the November general election to vote on whether they want to pay for a new multi-use community center in Canton.

Questions about how the township will pay to operate the $8 million facility were raised at Tuesday's board meeting.

Earlier, trustees approved a ballot question asking August primary voters to decide whether to approve 1 mill to build the recreation complex. It didn't address operating costs.

"I have concerns about the project," said Gerald Brown, Canton treasurer.

'We'd like to get as many people to vote on this as possible, and the general election will do that.'
— Trustee John Preniczky

HE ASKED whether the ballot question should include operating costs.

Operating costs are estimated at $335,000 — $130,000 for utilities; $100,000 for personnel; $90,000 for repair, maintenance and custodial fees; $8,000 for phones and $7,000 for operating supplies, according to a study prepared by the Recreation Advisory Committee.

Those operating costs should be offset by revenue estimated to range from $100,500 to $167,500 a year.

If approved by voters Nov. 8, the building will be behind Canton Township at Canton Center and Proctor. It would include a pool, gym, senior citizen center, health and exercise area, banquet rooms and running track.

"The intention from the start is to try and do what the people want," said Mike Gouin, recreation superintendent, referring to a 1987 survey asking residents about the complex.

OF THOSE surveyed, 73 percent said they wanted a multi-purpose community center. The swimming pool was the most popular item wanted.

Putting the question on the November ballot, instead of the August primary, gives the board time to work out the operating millage questions. Should it be included in the ballot question? If so, should there be two separate questions? Can the operating costs be absorbed by other funds?

"We'll be looking at different methods to finance the operating costs," Gouin said.

Tax hearing draws light crowd

By Doug Funke

Seven people gave their two cents in the form of public comment to the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday during a truth-in-taxation hearing on its 1988-89 tax rate and budget.

They questioned how the tax rate works and complained about high property assessments and the cost of hot lunches and milk.

The school board, by a majority vote of its members, is now expected to set the operating tax rate at $34.17 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of a property's market value).

A rollback of the tax rate to $32.94 per $1,000 of SEV would have been required by state law without the hearing.

The tax rate and an operating budget with expenditures of $55.3 million will probably be adopted Tuesday.

WHAT DOES IT all mean to individual taxpayers?

The owner of a house with a market value of $100,000 would pay school operating taxes of $1,709 at $34.17 and $1,647 at $32.94 — a difference of $62.

(The tax rate for debt retirement for the '88-89 budget year has been projected at $2.60 per $1,000 of SEV. Last year, it was $3.)

The administration and school board already have identified about $4.4 million in spending cuts and participation fees that would be implemented next year with a tax rate of $34.17 per $1,000 of SEV. The cuts and projected savings are:

- The layoff of 49 teachers, creating a savings of $1.1 million on initial 1988-89 budget projections.
- A 40 percent cut in the major maintenance budget, resulting in Julie M. Gischia, 14, of Canton packed a lot of activity into the year and a half she lived in the community since moving from the Upper Peninsula.

Miss Gischia died Sunday while participating in a youth sleepover at the Livonia Family Y, sponsored by St. John Neumann Catholic Church.

"She was a very special child," said Kristin Gischia, Julie's mother.

"She was born with a heart condition. She was very strong. We didn't limit her and that's the way she lived her life. She died being with her friends doing what she wanted."

"She had a lot of friends," said Judy Stone, principal at West. "She was a quiet student, did what she was supposed to and was well-liked by the student body."

"She never wanted the spotlight," said the Rev. Thomas Belczak, associate pastor at St. John Neumann. "When she sang, she really put her heart into it."

In addition to her parents, Miss Gischia is survived by brothers, William and Jeffrey; a sister, Leslie; and grandparents Ethel Anderson of Westland and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gischia of Negaunee.

Memorial contributions may be sent to the cardiology unit at Children's Hospital of Detroit.

Kent and Lolita Buikema, retiring from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools after 17 years, are looking forward to living in North Carolina golf country, starting a consulting business, visiting family, and finally skiing the Alps.

But Kent, executive director of secondary education, and Lolly, principal at Miller Elementary, leave with tangled emotions.

Sitting in kid-sized chairs at a table in Miller's library, the college sweethearts shared their thoughts as the school year drew to a close.

They reminisced, talked about education, and laughed about some of the lighter moments they've enjoyed along the way.

KENT WAS LIVING in suburban Chicago and working as a consultant with Westinghouse Learning Corporation when Superintendent John Hoben lured him to Plymouth-Canton to help launch a new high school. Lolly was hired as a teacher the same year.

"Seeing Canton become a true high school was among the highlights for me," said Kent, former Canton principal. "We started with ninth and 10th grades and we struggled for a while. When you're located that close to an established school (Salem), you're trying to live down comparisons."

Another highlight was "working with students and staff, and seeing the achievements of high school students — both academically and with co-curricular activities — because that's professionally rewarding."

Lolly appreciates having been "able to grow professionally. This district has offered us so many opportunities to stretch our understanding of how kids grow, and to be in a position to help teachers.

"The critical part of education is the interaction between teachers and students. A principal's job used to be making sure the grass was cut; the nuts and bolts.

"But the more important task is finding strengths in every teacher, building on them, applauding them, and then getting out of the way. Hopefully, I've been able to give teachers every bit of encouragement and support possible."

TO YOUNG people pondering a career in education, the Buikemas say, "Get involved. Plan on it being a

Trial dates set in Hulbert case

Trial dates have been set for two Ypsilanti Township youths charged with open murder in connection with the shooting death of a Canton Township girl.

Steven Stamper,17, will stand trial Monday, June 13, before Washtenaw Circuit Judge Henry Conlin.

Christopher Machecek, 17, will be tried by Conlin Tuesday, July 5.

The body of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13, was found in a Superior Township field in January 1987. She'd been shot seven times.

According to court testimony, the boys blame each other for the girl's death. In taped statements to police, the youths said Hulbert thought she was pregnant by one of them.

They took her to the field intending to shoot rifles into the air, frightening Hulbert enough to induce a miscarriage. An autopsy showed Hulbert was not pregnant.

Stamper and Machecek are being held without bond in Washtenaw County Jail. They were bound over for trial as adults in circuit court by Washtenaw County Probate Judge Judith Wood after a 17-week evidentiary hearing. Stamper and Machecek were 16 at the time of Hulbert's death.

Another benefit of putting the question on the general election ballot is more people vote during the general election than the primary.

"We'd like to get as many people to vote on this as possible, and the general election will do that," said trustee John Preniczky.

Trustee Bob Padget said he didn't believe it was necessary to include the operating millage on the ballot.

Supervisor James Poole disagreed.

"Anytime people vote for a millage, they should vote for what will sustain it," Poole said.

less construction and more patchwork maintenance ($460,000);

- A virtual freeze on new textbook purchases ($315,000);
- An 11 percent cut in administrative support positions ($306,000);
- An 83 percent cut in staff development programs ($250,000);
- Elimination of the school board's contingency fund ($205,000);
- A 29 percent cut in discretionary funds to individual buildings in the district to be used for extras like books and supplies ($177,500);
- Cuts in the alternative education program for troubled students ($162,000);
- A 33 percent reduction in educational aides at the elementary level ($142,500); and
- A participation fee for sports and other extracurricular activities for high school and middle school students. Revenues have been projected at $80,000.

ADDITIONALLY, hot lunches next year are expected to increase from $1 to $1.30 at the elementary level and from $1.35 to $1.65 at the secondary level. Milk bought separately would rise a nickel to 30 cents.

The increase in lunches and milk is the first in six years.

Voters will decide June 13 whether to allow the school district to levy operating taxes at its maximum rate of $37 per $1,000 of SEV, formally known as a Headlee Amendment override.

If voters say yes, the school board has said it will rescind more than $2 million in cuts. No teachers would be pink slipped and no participation fees would be charged.

Cuts in many other areas, including books, elementary aides and discretionary funds to buildings, would be partially restored.

A Headlee override would make the truth-in-taxation hearing moot. The school board would amend next year's budget to reflect the restorations.

The owner of a $100,000 house would pay operating taxes of $1,850 with a tax rate of $37 per $1,000 of SEV.

Schools are in bind

Cuts in state aid of about $5 million and the legal necessity of lowering the operating tax rate to partially offset soaring property values have left Plymouth-Canton schools in a financial pickle, administrators say.

"We can handle one or the other, but not both," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

Revenue for the 1988-89 school year is projected at $53.6 million. The breakdown with '87-88 revenue projections in parenthesis for comparison are:

- Local property taxes — $47.4 million ($43 million).
- State aid — $4.5 million ($9.5 million).
- Federal/special projects aid — $1.7 million ($1.7 million).

The '88-89 property tax revenue figure assumes a tax rate of $34.17 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

The difference in anticipated revenues and expenditures — $1.7 million — would come from fund balance leaving $2.5 million in fund balance as of June 1989.

100 percent job," said Kent.

"Don't go into it unless you have a real mission," said Lolly. "If that isn't your feeling, please do something else. You'll be hurting children unless you enjoy making that commitment."

What's it like working in the same profession?

"Wonderful," said Kent. "Frankly, I get a lot of my solutions by talking about problems with my wife. I often ask her, 'How would you handle this one?' We've been able to share, and build on each other's professional experience."

Lolly, who said it takes a day to quit talking shop at the beginning of a vacation, adds "the district deserves credit for not discriminating against me when they hired my husband. They looked at me and at what I could do. If they got guff (for hiring spouses), I'm unaware of it. But they took it."

The Buikemas, who have two sons, arrived highly qualified. Lolly is a Phi Beta Kappa scholar. Kent has published several articles and is listed in "Who's Who in American Education." Both hold master's degrees.

What troubles the Buikemas' most about education are its financial and public relations dilemmas.

"We need to figure out a way to finance education," said Kent. "I don't have a solution, but if we brought a think tank of people together, I think we'd be able to figure out a way so that we're not so dependent on property taxes.

"Equally important is the image of public education," said Lolly.

"Critics indict all schools equally. I wish we could have a communication program to share effectively what we're doing. I see a strong need for the status of the teaching profession to be raised so that we're attracting high quality people.

"I can't think of anything more important to the future of our country than education. Yet the profession is relegated to service status in the minds of most people."

Miller staffers threw a farewell party for Mrs. Buikema at the Roundtable Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

"We're all upset about losing her," said Miller teacher Sheri Weiss. "She's wonderful. And I don't think anyone on the staff would disagree."

Administrators say they'll miss the Buikemas.

"KENT BROUGHT a wealth of background, information and experience with him when he came here," said Hoben. "Kent really was the technician of the (Centennial Educational) Park. He was able I think to produce a great deal of progress in several areas and to help give us a strong secondary program.

"When he came downtown, he brought that experience to promote middle school and high school in the district. He has done an outstanding job for the district for 17 years, and his service will be greatly missed."

Hoben said Lolly "has been a very progressive principal in the elementary educational scene at Miller, which is an outstanding school due largely to her efforts. Her service certainly will be missed.

Miller students aren't happy about losing their principal.

"I don't want her to leave, because she's nice, and I know the next principal is probably going to be a jerk," said Kerri Davis, 10.

Candidates review override options

This is the second of a four-part series detailing the views of the 15 candidates running for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. The election is Monday, June 13.

If the Headlee override fails, how would you balance the budget?

Transportation is one of the areas under budgetary review as the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education waits for voters to decide whether to override the Headlee Amendment.

Annette J. Remsburg — A strong commitment by the school board as well as the community is essential at this time. Restructuring in order to most effectively utilize available resources — both financial and otherwise — will be necessary, as will exploring creative funding possibilities such as business/school partnerships. In addition, early identification and intervention of students at risk should be seen as a direct savings to the district, possibly preventing the need for additional services.

Mary M. Roberson — We must not continue to treat our teachers like yo-yos, fired one month, hired the next. The teachers are the roots of a strong school system. As such, they must not be torn out. Branches of the tree can be pruned, but the roots must remain strongly in place if the tree is to grow and be strong.

Lester W. Walker — As a board, we have painstakingly reviewed the budget and identified the reductions necessary to balance the budget with available dollars. I personally participated in the painful decision on each reduction. This budget will be adopted before the election. If the voters approve a Headlee override, some of these reductions will be reversed or decreased in scope. If the override fails, we will move ahead with the budget reductions as adopted on May 31. Unfortunately, for the future, the areas that are cut will undoubtedly stay cut and be accompanied by more reductions in the next school year and beyond.

E.J. McClendon — Very much along the lines, we as a board, have already indicated by the "straw" vote we took at the budget workshop.

Kent A. Jensen — The budget balancing task is difficult at best, and at times, like now, requires actions that are not going to be pleasant and will be directly adverse to programs, students and employees. The school board has identified a good "shopping list" of specific actions that will be necessary in the short term to balance the budget. When elected I will review the school programs and their costs on a cost effectiveness basis with the intent to add to the "shopping list" of reductions/cutbacks. Improvements should be under consideration at all times, not just when there is a potential budget overrun.

Leon R. Watkins — If the override fails, my first priority is to maintain sound educational programs. The classroom delivery systems should not be interrupted. If you have trouble with the family budget, you throw out the pop and chips, not the main meal. If we are unable to fund our educational system, the initial cuts need to be made in extracurricular and caretaker activities, not in qualified teachers, creative programs and textbooks.

Mark Beauchene — First, we need to assure that the mainline education available in the district is hurt as little as possible. The money we spend should end up where it has the most effect, in the classroom. Second, we should form a citizens' committee to study the situation and communicate its findings to the community. If cuts need to be made they should be in administration and special programs as much as possible. Activity fees for non-mainline programs may help. Third, the availability of state and federal funds needs to be continually pursued.

Milan Emanuele — I propose that a starting point would be to create an advisory group consisting of not more than 20 members, with representatives from the administration (two), teachers at all three levels (three), the unions (three), the board (one) and the community at large (11). This group would examine the current financial records of the district, examine current programs, services and positions, as well as gaining input from the community and report back to the board on recommendations that would allow the district to continue to provide educational services for next fiscal year with the minimum of disruption to the students and staff.

Barbara G. Graham — If the override fails, in order to balance the budget I would favor the elimination of paid teacher aides, and call on the community for volunteer service. Using the business community as an example, the first cut would come from personnel, and those remaining on payroll would have to assume the added responsibilities.

Frank Riley — Instead of, for instance, casually throwing out the school attendance program, I would reduce spending in areas that least affect the children. To know how to prioritize any reductions I would seek the information through a grassroots approach consulting with teachers, staff, workers, students.

Mary Dahn — The current recommendations of the superintendent appear to be adequate.

Richard W. Sumpter — I would use $3,790,700 of the fund balance leaving only $309,300 as a 1989 fund balance. This would allow for minimum reductions of teaching and teacher support staffing. The major reductions would be in the following areas: 1. $51,741 in block grants; 2. $65,000 in capital outlay; 3. $499,000 in major maintenance; 4. $205,000 in board contingency; 5. $200,000 in staff development; 6. $306,000 in administrative; 7. $516,000 in certified staff; 8. $34,000 in the closing of the Central pool. If elected and monies became available I would insist these monies be put directly into programs that directly affect the students' academic and sociological development.

Janet C. Drass — Cut administrative staff, clerical staff and support service positions. Delay major maintenance and construction projects. Eliminate high school attendance office. Cut staff development.

Allen C. Kinsler — The Headlee Amendment allows for increased revenue equal to the rise in the CPI. The immediate priority is to justify budget increases in excess of this rate of rise. If certain increases are necessary, to increase quality or safety, the board has several short-term options. These include setting fees for participation in extracurricular activities (such as the board has already proposed); contracting for food and janitorial services; and consolidating the high schools. Longer-range revenues must include taxes on new housing to fund new school capacity required, and taxing new construction regardless of the completeness of the subdivision.

Man is accidentally shot

A 17-year-old Roscommon man was shot in the hand and groin Monday while helping his friend's girlfriend move from a mobile home in Canton.

The victim and witnesses said the incident at 1:20 p.m. in the 400 block of Locust Court at Holiday Estate Mobile Park on Geddes appeared to be an accident, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

In the process of packing, a 21-year-old Warren man found and began to play with a .22-caliber revolver.

He pointed the gun at the 17-year-old and pulled the trigger twice apparently thinking the weapon was unloaded, Boljesic said.

The third time he pulled the trigger, Boljesic said, the gun fired and a bullet went through the Roscommon man's right index finger and lodged in his groin.

The victim's girlfriend took him to McAuley Health Center, on Ford Road. He was later taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and was listed in good condition earlier this week.

"According to the witness, it was accidental and the victim said he felt it was accidental," Boljesic said.

Crew needed to clean river

Canton residents are needed to help with Rouge Rescue '88 on Saturday, June 4.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. while the cleanup is scheduled 9 a.m. to noon. Locally, cleanup efforts will be concentrated on the Lower Branch, between Sheldon and Canton Center roads, south of Palmer.

Participants are asked to meet at Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center. A shuttle service will take participants to the river.

Refreshments will be provided throughout the morning and McDonald's will sponsor lunch for participants at its restaurant, 40241 Michigan Ave.

For more information, call the department of community and economic development, 397-1000.

Vandals still targeting vehicles

The rash of breaking and enterings in cars parked in Canton continues. Radar detectors and other property left in cars are targeted.

Earlier this month, 20 cars were vandalized and other items stolen in 20 cars during a weekend period.

The following weekend, at least 17 cars were reported damaged and items stolen during a three-day period.

Eleven cars were broken into in various places throughout the township earlier this week, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

The time of the incidents varied and began after dark.

A two-door 1985 Pontiac Trans Am was stolen earlier this week from a driveway on Sussex, west of Morton Taylor north of Warren.

There are no suspects at this time.

Free pamphlet offers pet travel tips

Pet owners who feel like they're "in the doghouse" when vacation time rolls around can forget their worries when traveling with Fido or Fluff by obtaining a free "Pets on the Go" pamphlet at any AAA Michigan office.

The 20-page pamphlet — produced by AAA and ALPO Pet Center — includes trip tips ranging from how to prepare your pet for travel to what to do when an owner must leave his or her pet in a parked car.

As the "dog days" of summer arrive, hot-weather travelers should be aware of several who-what-when-and-how pet-care concerns, including:

- Which are the best-suited dogs and cats for travel.
- What pet-care items should be brought along, including a first-aid kit.
- When to feed pets or give them water.
- How to encourage pets to travel.

Pamphlet readers will learn that Pepto Bismol isn't just for humans and, with activated charcoal tablets, it makes an excellent addition to the pet owner's first-aid travel kit.

Parents hear cutting remarks

Interested moms pay close attention to the demonstration.

Some Canton area youngsters are glad their parents attended a recent program at the Canton Public Library.

Now the cereal bowl will be used for breakfast and not for cutting hair.

The library invited stylist Richard Asztalos of Charisma Salon, Livonia, to demonstrate some of the fundamentals of cutting hair.

"We had a program in February that was packed, and we turned away some people," said Claire McLaughlin, adult services librarian. "So we decided to do it again."

About 40 people showed up for the demonstration and came away with some tips about hair cutting.

"Some of these people have tried cheap and nasty" hair-cutting firms, Asztalos said, and "found out they could do a better job."

The program was aimed at parents who have children 2 to 10 years old and included demonstrations on a boy and girl.

"WE TRIED to show them some fundamentals," he said. "We'd rather teach them how to give a good haircut so they can appreciate a good haircut."

The session also included questions and answers about common hair-cutting problems parents face.

"I was really impressed," with those attending, Asztalos said. "I would like to see some of them cut hair."

And that chance could be coming when the new library opens. A hands-on program where parents bring in their children and then cut their hair with professional supervision is being discussed, he said.

Police seek to toughen bus safety law

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

The Michigan State Police want to see tougher standards for buses operated by church and civic groups.

The state police, in charge of school bus inspections, have drafted a proposal and are working to get legislation introduced in Lansing before the end of the current legislative session.

Of the 2,015 privately owned school buses on Michigan highways as of last Aug. 31, 792 were manufactured prior to April 1, 1977 — before enactment of tougher federal bus safety standards.

The state police action was prompted by the May 14 crash of a church bus in Kentucky in which 27 people were killed after a head-on collision with a drunk driver.

THE VINTAGE 1977 bus did not have a cage around its gas tank, as mandated today by federal law. It also had foam-padded seats. Fire and smoke inhalation stemming from the foam seats were cited for the number of deaths.

"Most accidents occur with church buses," said Dale Goby, who oversees the Plymouth/Canton school district's fleet of 120 school buses.

"They buy old buses or buses with heavy maintenance costs."

In addition to a cage around the fuel tank, federal standards enacted after 1977 include a roof-strengthening requirement and passive-restraint system — higher seat backs for students so that the shock of an accident would be absorbed over a larger part of the body, Goby said.

Yellow and black school buses are subject to the most stringent safety requirements, he said.

"If a bus changes color, it just has to meet basic requirements. And chances are more than likely it will never be inspected."

A church bus carrying kids and parents from a field trip careened off a narrow road in north central Pennsylvania May 19, injuring 59 passengers. That is in addition to four bus crashes across the nation since the Kentucky tragedy, leaving 32 people dead and many more injured.

"WE'RE DRAFTING new legislation to include (church and civic) buses under the motor carrier safety act, the law pertaining to trucks," said Sgt. Carl Schembri, head of the state police school bus inspection unit in Lansing.

Inclusion would mean greater scrutiny of all bus equipment, he said. As is current policy, buses not in compliance would be "red tagged" and must have all defects corrected before being allowed back on the road.

Public school districts update their fleets annually, selling old buses to church and civic groups. State police and local school administrators agree annual inspection of Michigan's 12,000-14,000 public school buses is comprehensive and doesn't need revamping.

"When they are sold, most of the school buses are worn out, otherwise they wouldn't get rid of them," Schembri said.

A school bus tragedy in Kentucky is prompting calls for stricter standards here.

Schembri recalled a case in the early 1980s in western Michigan, where a child fell through rusted floorboards of a church-owned bus and was run over by its wheels and killed. He could recall no other recent fatalities due to faulty buses in the state.

SOME AREA church groups have registered opposition — or at least question the motives behind stricter guidelines.

Rev. Truman Dollar of the 10,000-member Temple Baptist Church in Redford Township said his church operates a bus barn to maintain its fleet of buses, including 10 leased buses and four buses the church owns.

"We are sympathetic to controls for the safety of children. To do otherwise would be foolhardy," Dollar said.

"I do think we respond with a paroxysm of emotion to incidents irrelevant to legislation, such as the Kentucky accident which occurred because of a drunk driver, not because the bus was faulty.

"We are particularly vulnerable in these matters being a private institution. We insist that our buses are in proper condition. I don't oppose whatever is safe for children. There may come a time when (regulations) become so stringent we can't afford to comply."

The state police go through each unit with a fine-tooth comb. Of course the fallacy with that is like with a car, something could go wrong tomorrow," he said. "The state also monitors the driving records of all bus drivers. Each driver is on a master computer list in Lansing. Once a driver receives seven points, he/she is revoked from driving a bus. That's very strict."

GLORIA LEONHARDT, who oversees Wayne/Westland's 65 daily bus routes, said the inspection program checks "brakes, lights, tire tread and everything in between."

Al Loukx, head of the garage for Redford Union Schools, said the district's 32-vehicle fleet is mostly vintage 1984 and newer, with just two 1980 models.

Charlotte Bromley, who oversees South Redford's 17 regular buses and six spares, said the district has one 1976 model "rarely used" and the rest are from 1982 to 1986.

George Richards, transportation director for Garden City Schools called the state police inspection program "one of the strongest for safety regulations." The district has 26 buses, three of which are used as spares for athletic events and field trips.

Grover Lewis, transportation manager for Clarenceville Schools called the state inspection strict. The district has 11 buses on regular runs and a few spares.

Livonia Public Schools operates 87 buses, average age 4 years, according to Charles Ritter, transportation administrator.

"The state police go through each unit with a fine-tooth comb. Of course the fallacy with that is like with a car, something could go wrong tomorrow," he said. "The state also monitors the driving records of all bus drivers. Each driver is on a master computer list in Lansing. Once a driver receives seven points, he/she is revoked from driving a bus. That's very strict."

Estimates for 20-year Rouge cleanup decried

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Area elected officials describe estimated Rouge River cleanup costs in two words: too high.

But officials from SEMCOG, the agency that compiled cost estimates, say they'll explain community projections in a series of meetings with local boards and commissions.

"That's the next step," said SEMCOG spokesman Jim Rogers. "The plan is to meet with them from July through September."

Cleanup was estimated at at least $900 million — and possibly twice that much — over the next 20 years. Annual community shares range from as high as $40 million (for Detroit) to as low as $1,000 for financially strapped Ecorse.

Rogers knows he'll have much explaining to do. "We've already heard from people for whom it will be very difficult," he said.

SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, released cost projections May 11. Projections were based on an annual payment over 20 years and included reductions from combined sewer overflow points, where storm and waste water is dumped into the river during heavy rains.

Since the figures were released, even financially secure communities have been raising objections. Livonia, for one, finds it hard to understand its estimated $3.6 million annual projected share, Mayor Robert Bennett said.

"IT'S DIFFICULT to understand what they're talking about when we substantially reduced our combined sewer overflows many years ago," Bennett said.

Westland Mayor Charles Griffin also was critical.

"My initial reaction is while it would be nice to clean up the Rouge, we're already paying millions for the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley (sewer) Interceptor," Griffin said. "Unless there's hundreds of millions of federal funding the rest won't get done. People can only pay so much."

Westland's annual share was estimated at $2.8 million without federal aid.

The giant North Huron/Rouge sewer line has been called the "grandson of super sewer," and its costs were added to community projections, SEMCOG said.

Projected cleanup figures don't include potential federal grants, as well as design options that could reduce community costs, Rogers said.

Communities not part of the super sewer plan were also critical of cost projections.

"If they're talking about $3.1 million a year from Canton Township — that's my budget," Canton Township Supervisor James Poole said. "How on earth are they going to come up with that kind of money from anyone?"

'We've already heard from people for whom it (paying Rouge River cleanup costs) will be very difficult.'

— Jim Rogers
SEMCOG spokesman

Canton, like Plymouth and Northville townships, long ago opted out of the super sewer, preferring to ship waste to Ypsilanti for treatment.

"IF THEY want to cut costs, that's easy," Poole said. "First, they should give us a couple hundred thousand to hire people to pull the debris and junk out of the river."

Then, Poole said, treated water from the Ypsilanti plant should be pumped back into the Rouge. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has yet to approve sending township wastewater to Ypsilanti, Poole said.

"If you pump 15 million gallons a day into the river, that's going to improve its flow," he said. "And that's a problem now — no flow."

Other community leaders said they would be hesitant to approve any Rouge projects without a vote of the people.

"As long as it is referred back to the people, as long as it's there for us to understand what they're talking about we have a chance to vote on it, then we have no problems," Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said.

Plymouth Township's annual cost was estimated at $2.1 million.

Still other communities are hiring outside contractors to examine costs.

"Right now, we're not in a position to say whether this is good, bad or indifferent," Redford Township Supervisor James Kelly said.

Redford is hiring a consultant to examine "super sewer and a couple of other projects," Kelly said. Redford's share was estimated at $3.8 million.

Garden City is undertaking a few treatment projects of its own, city manager Jon Austin said, though the greater Rouge projects "have been the focus of much discussion yet." Garden City's annual share was estimated at $1.8 million.

Still, Austin knows from past experience that wastewater treatment can be costly.

His previous employer, San Antonio, Texas, recently built a treatment plant at an estimated cost of $300 million.

"It's not cheap," Austin said.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Incumbents file for county posts

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

K. Beard D-Westland

M. Mack D-Canton

S. Heintz R-Northville

R. Manning D-Redford

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano and former undersheriff Richard Novak are both announced candidates for the four-year sheriff's post. However, only Ficano had filed with the county elections division as of Tuesday.
Elsewhere, incumbents in both judicial and county commission races, were generally filing early — and without opposition.
Three of the Observer area's four county commissioners — Kay Beard, Milton Mack and Richard Manning — have all filed for re-election as of Tuesday. No primary challengers have surfaced for the three Democrats, nor have any Republican candidates yet filed for the posts.
All 12 incumbent Wayne County Circuit Court Judges have also filed for re-election. No challengers have filed in any court race.
Candidates have until 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 31, to file for election and to have their names on the Aug. 2 primary ballot.
THE SHERIFF'S race could hold particular interest for area residents. Both Ficano and Novak are Livonia residents. The sheriff oversees an estimated $55 million annual budget. The salary is $68,850 per year.
A brief description of commissioners seeking re-election follows:
● Beard, 12th District, has been a commissioner since 1978. She is chairwoman of the committee overseeing the county building; vice chairwoman of the audit committee; and a member of the health and human services and special enhanced 9-1-1 committees.
The district includes Westland, Garden City and Inkster. Beard is an Inkster resident.
● Mack, 11th District, has been a commissioner since 1983. He is chairman of the solid waste implementation committee; vice chairman of the special committee on drains; and a member of the audit and economic development committees.
The district includes Canton Township, Wayne, Romulus, Belleville, Flat Rock, Rockwood and Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships. Geographically, it is the largest of the 15 commission districts. Mack, an attorney, is a Wayne resident.
● Manning, 9th District, has been a commissioner since 1970, longest among the current board. He is vice chairman of the health and human services committee and a member of the drain task force and public safety and judiciary committees.
The district includes Redford Township and a portion of Detroit, west of Evergreen Road. Manning, an attorney is a Redford Township resident.
NO CANDIDATES have currently field for the 10th District seat. The district, including Livonia, Plymouth, Northville and Plymouth and Northville townships, is currently represented by Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township. Heintz said she would announce plans for re-election today.
Commissioners earn $26,426 per year for the two-year post. Beginning next year, they will earn $29,750 annually.
Circuit Court Judges filing for re-election are: William Leo Cahalan, Robert Colombo, Michael Connor, Sharon Tevis Finch, John Hausner, J. Phillip Jourdan, James Mies, Michael Stacey, Cynthia Stephens, Paul Teranes, Kaye Tertzag and Helene White. Jourdan is running to fill an unexpired term. The others seek new six-year terms. Circuit Court judges earn $92,000 a year.

Congressional candidates few

The 2nd District U.S. congressional race is expected to be one of the most hotly contested races in Michigan this year, with two Democrats announcing challenges to incumbent Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.
As of Tuesday, however, only state Rep. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, had filed for the two-year seat. Dean Baker, who announced his candidacy for the Democratic Party nomination last year, had yet to file.
Candidates have until Tuesday, May 31, to file. The congressional salary is $89,500 a year.
Baker unsuccessfully challenged Pursell for the seat in 1986. Pursell, a former Wayne County Commissioner, was first elected to the seat in 1976.
The district includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, as well as other communities in Wayne, Washtenaw, Lenawee, Jackson, Hillsdale and Branch counties.
IN THE 15th District, U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, has filed for re-election. Ford, a former member of the state Senate, was first elected to Congress in 1966. Ford's only announced challenger is Eric Blankenburg, a Westland resident, running as a Libertarian Party candidate.
The district includes southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton Township, as well as other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.
No candidates have filed in the 17th District, though incumbent U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, will be filing "any day now," according to staff members.

Incumbents file early for seats in Legislature

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Only one challenger has emerged thus far in Observer area races for the state legislature though all incumbents have filed or have said they will do so by the Wednesday, June 1, deadline.

Democrat Dwight Douglass has filed against incumbent Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, for the 36th District Michigan House seat.

Law was first elected state representative in 1982. He is vice chairman of the state affairs committee and a member of the insurance, judiciary and public health committees.

The district includes Plymouth, Northville and Plymouth, Northville and eastern Canton townships.

Other incumbent state representatives filing for re-election include:

Lyn Bankes R-Livonia

Justine Barns D-Westland

John Bennett D-Redford

Bill Keith D-Garden City

Gerald Law R-Plymouth

James Kosteva D-Canton

• William Keith, D-Garden City, in the 33rd District. Keith was first elected state representative in 1972. He is special administrator to the speaker, chairman of the education committee and a member of the colleges and universities, corporations and finance, economic development and energy committees.

The district includes Garden City and Inkster.

• John Bennett, D-Redford Township, in the 34th District. Bennett was first elected state representative in 1964. He is a majority whip and chairman of the legislative retirement board and corporations and finance committee. He is a member of the insurance, tourism and recreation committees.

The district includes Redford and a section of eastern Livonia.

• Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, in the 35th District. Bankes said she would file Thursday. She is minority vice chairwoman of the urban affairs committee and a member of the colleges and universities, corporations and finance, education and senior citizens and retirement committees. The district includes most of Livonia.

• James Kosteva, D-Canton Township, in the 37th District. Kosteva was first elected state representative in 1984. He is a majority whip, majority vice chairman of the taxation committee and a member of the legislative council and conservation and environment, education, towns and counties and transportation committees.

The district includes Canton, Wayne, Belleville, Romulus and Van Buren Township.

• Justine Barns, D-Westland, in the 38th District. Barns was first elected state representative in 1982. She is the majority caucus vice chairwoman and chairwoman of the senior citizens and retirement committee. She is a member of the legislative retirement board and the constitution, interstate and federal relations, consumers, corrections, education and public health committees.

State representatives serve two-year terms. They earn $39,881 per year.

In state court races, incumbents John Gillis and Roman Gribbs have filed for seats on the Michigan Court of Appeals. Y. Gladys Barsamian, a Wayne County Probate judge, and Gary Edward Gardner, a Dearborn Heights-based attorney, have each filed for one of the two newly created First District appeals court seats. The district includes Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston and Monroe counties.

Bill tightens ban on school smoking

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Many Michigan teachers have until New Year's Day of 1990 to give up smoking under a bill which cleared the Michigan Senate last week.

"While some people may object, I believe the health and welfare of our children outweigh any inconvenience to the adults," said Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of SB 698.

"Children spend a large part of their day in schools and day care centers, so they are exposed in a captive environment if smoking is allowed," said Geake.

In K-12 schools, the board of education may allowing adult smoking in lounges that are physically separated from non-smoking lounges.

IN DAY CARE, nursery and juvenile detention centers, smoking would be totally banned.

If it becomes law, the bill would cover both children and adults, both in the building and on school grounds within 100 feet of the building.

Private schools are unaffected. "They were in the original bill. But the private school people are purists about allowing in any state inspectors," he said.

The bill passed on a 24-12 Senate vote and goes to the House of Representatives. All Observer & Eccentric area senators supported it except George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn, who was temporarily out of the room. Hart supported Geake on an earlier amendment.

THE BILL was defeated May 12 but won a week later on reconsideration. The bill tightens the Clean Indoor Air Act.

Sen. Art Miller, D-Warren, minority leader, objected that "employees should have a say in working conditions." Miller said smoking lounges should be a negotiable working condition between school boards and employees' unions.

"The state is dictating beyond its authority," added Sen. Ed Fredricks, R-Holland.

But Geake replied, "No union representing food handlers can negotiate to exempt itself from the health laws."

Discipline

Tighter rules needed at CEP

A LINE NEEDS TO be drawn on what will be ~~acceptable student behavior at Centen-~~nial Education Park.

And this is a perfect time to start planning for a new look and sound for next fall as the year winds down for the class of '88.

If the message is clear and the consequences known, there will be less confusion.

Foul language must be out. The hallways should not look like a teenager's bedroom. And the students should not dress as if they're going to a beach party.

The rules, which need to come from the board office, should be simple but direct.

YOU VIOLATE one of the above — by cussing, depositing the remains of your lunch on a window sill or wearing clothes more appropriate for swimming than studying — you are punished.

YOU VIOLATE one of the above — by cussing, depositing the remains of your lunch on a window sill or wearing clothes more appropriate for swimming than studying — you are punished.

Student handbooks at both high schools outline appropriate language and dress. A three-day suspension is the last-resort disciplinary action taken.

Consistent enforcement has to be the bottom line in the future.

Next year, let's make it a simple, no-nonsense message. First the students get a verbal warning. If the behavior continues, a written warning is issued to the students and their parents. Finally, if all else fails, more extreme action follows. This penalty should be anything but a suspension.

Community service — like cleaning school grounds or working in a nursing home — is a good alternative.

Finding a way to implement this is the key. A volunteer program by teachers and parents would be ideal, but might not be realistic.

Regardless, suspensions shouldn't be the penalty of choice, because you'd find kids swearing, littering and coming to school dressed inappropriately to get the privilege of time-off.

THE PLAN might meet some resistance at first. But if the students see that violation of the rules won't be tolerated, a new air and look will permeate the hallways.

If the Centennial Education Park remains status quo, it's going to be a rude awakening for students when they start looking for jobs. They'll finally learn what's tolerated and what's not.

The district can be proud of most of its students. They work hard. They conduct themselves appropriately. Unfortunately, though, their image is tainted by the rude minority.

It's hard to see the inoffensive students when you're distracted by foul language, litter during lunch hours and beach attire.

The slate should be wiped clean at the start of the 1988-89 school year. A general meeting should be held or a public announcement should be made.

These changes can be implemented at little or no cost to the district and should not be an issue — pro or con — when considering the upcoming millage request. Let's tap parental or teacher volunteer energy.

But any kind of behavioral/organizational changes that come from the schools must be supported by the board and parents.

They'd have to follow through with supporting the disciplinary actions. This is true especially since the directive probably won't be taken seriously at first.

Using appropriate behavior in a public place might be one of the best lessons the kids at CEP learn next year.

Regional jails

Privatization could work here

OUR POLITICAL leaders must put aside their jurisdictional jealousies and think on a regional basis for the design and construction of a private jail to serve several counties.

Most leaders are reluctant to think of solving regional problems on a regional basis. But the increasing problem of what to do with hundreds of people awaiting trial has created a need to do something — and quickly.

Actually, county and city officials have sometimes combined talents and money to solve a local problem on a regional basis.

In recent years, Oakland County communities have banded together to gain cable-TV franchises for their residents.

In western Wayne County, small- and medium-sized cities and townships have combined to create governmental authorities to build and run public hospitals, incinerators to burn trash, and provide a dial-a-ride transportation system for older people and physically handicapped people.

The need to operate a private jail on a regional basis is more critical.

People — ranging from taxpayers to public leaders and police officials — want defendants off the streets.

While local police and county sheriff's departments are arresting more people, defendants usually spend little time behind bars because there isn't enough space to hold them until their trials.

Because of the space problem, those people are warehoused in county jails before being released.

Under the suggestion of Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy, jails would be staffed by private corporations and run under the direction of the counties involved.

Important backing has come from Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

The concept of privatization for several counties has numerous advantages. The jails would be designed and built for a regional base, not just for one county. That alone would make the jails more cost-efficient.

THERE IS nothing new to the concept of having a private company operate a governmental service. Our suburbs do it all the time with other governmental services. In that way, the owner of the business has the headaches of getting equipment and employees to do the job.

If the company doesn't do a good job, it loses the contract.

A private company also can respond faster to problems without the required delays faced by governmental agencies.

THERE ARE 30 federal, state and county jurisdictions in which private companies have been hired to build and operate correctional facilities. The phenomenon started in the early 1980s.

Murphy has a good idea in trying to combine two good notions — find a private company to operate a jail for three counties — Wayne, Oakland and Macomb.

The counties would then pay based on the number of inmates they send to the jail. The counties would pay just for those people they housed.

Since most sheriffs have little experience designing and building jails, a private company can bring in experienced people — and does — and it can learn from its own history.

The need for more Wayne County jail space is made clear in a professional analysis ordered by Richard Kaufman, chief judge of the county circuit court. The report recommended a minimum of 2,775 jail beds — a 50-percent increase above the 1,879 current figure.

Without a big cut in the length of the court docket to 90 days, 3,517 jail beds would be needed — double the current capacity, Kaufman said.

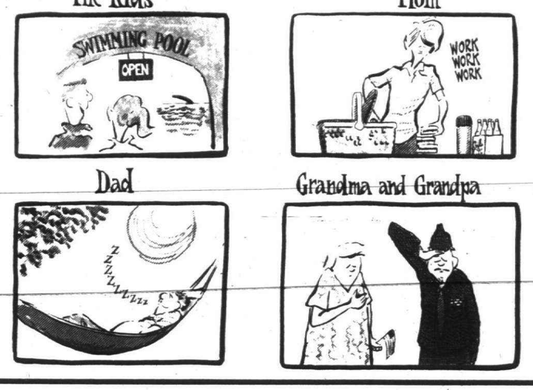
A KEY ELEMENT of the study is that people arrested for misdemeanors would be placed in privately run facilities and separated from those charged with felonies.

An important step in the process is a series of bills sponsored by state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, which would allow the privatization concept to be legalized.

We urge legislators to support the bills so the needed jail space can be obtained.

With defendants off the street, people would gain more confidence in their court system and feel safer in their homes and on the streets.

THINKING WHAT MEMORIAL DAY MEANS TO:



Closed campus success means including students

Most important, the students, instead of just being told, were included in the planning process. It's sure to be a success.

Steve Barnaby

MOST ANY tradition having to do with spring is one to cherish. But one, born in the permissiveness of the late '60s, is dying a welcome death — well, welcome to almost everyone.

Finally, after more than a decade, high school administrators are taking back control of their turf. One school district after another is shutting its doors to what is familiarly known as the open campus.

The days of students running around town in the middle of the day, unsupervised, will soon be history in most school districts.

Closing a high school campus, taking away a freedom from students who have seen their older brothers and sisters enjoy, is a sensitive issue, the success of which depends on the skill of a world-class diplomat.

But it's a diplomatic initiative that every school district should take.

FOR TOO many years our affluent suburbs have irresponsibly allowed children to roam the streets with too much money to spend and with little else to do but get into trouble.

Many teachers can tell you the horror stories of students coming back to class so drunk or drugged they disrupt the concentration of the students who want to learn and the motivation of the educators who want to teach.

After all, it's tough to be in a classroom where even one student is sleeping off a "high."

Just as disturbing are the students who leave and simply don't come back for the rest of the day.

One of the diplomats extraordinaire in school administrative ranks is Garden City High principal Geraldine Keissel. Other administrators should take a lesson from her.

At present, 900 kids from Garden City High hit the streets between 11:40 a.m. and 12:10 p.m. Beginning next fall, they will be eating and socializing within school boundaries.

To make it more palatable to students, district officials have instituted a committee of parents, administrators and students to plan the new cafeteria. Students have been given tours of other schools with cafeterias. A bond proposal, approved by voters last year, will finance the new cafeteria with an improved kitchen and eating facilities.

THE GYMNASIUM will be kept open during lunch hour, and officials are pondering the possibility of installing a jukebox.

Rapidly, the cafeteria is becoming a mark of pride for everyone involved. Most important, the students, instead of just being told, were included in the planning. It's sure to be a success.

Other districts have yet to make this sensible move. The Farmington school district still lets its high school students roam. Clarenceville does the same.

Birmingham allows 11th and 12th graders to go unsupervised. Southfield is phasing in a grade each year. But seniors will still be allowed to roam.

Plymouth/Canton has a closed campus policy but is struggling with what to do with all the students. Some actually eat in the hallways. Unlike Garden City, the district hasn't planned efficiently. And that's too bad.

It takes some sweat to make a closed campus a successful concept. But it's worth the effort.

Group home series provides leadership

To the editor:

I recently had the privilege to read the articles which were published in the Observer during March concerning the impact of group homes in western Wayne county.

I want to commend you for your leadership in preparing this wide-ranging portrayal of the many facets of this important social development. I also want to commend your writers Julie Brown, Tedd Schneider, Jackie Klein, Bill Casper, Mary Rodrique, M. B. Dillon and Wayne Peal as well as the photographers Bill Bresler, Art Emanuele and John Stormzand for their sensitive and respectful portrayal of the lives of persons who live in group homes and use public mental health services. They managed to give a very realistic picture and did not skirt the issues or fail to tackle the controversial pieces. Still, the reader gains a measure of comfort from the straightforward discussion of a well run beneficial service.

In my work, I have opportunities to observe human services programs not only throughout the state of Michigan, but in many other states. I believe that the people of Michigan, through their local and state governmental structures, have sought to develop programs and services which permit all citizens to have access to community living and educational and employment opportunities in the mainstream.

While much work remains to be done, notable accomplishments have been made. I am glad to see your newspaper publish those so that people can be aware of and celebrate their accomplishments. I know only too well that people living in other states would like to be able to write such a series of articles about programs and services in their own communities. Sadly, they do not yet have them in place. The kinds of living arrangements and vocational opportunities your staff have described are still on the drawing board in many other locations.

It is important that Michigan continue to move forward in its plan to give full citizenship opportunities to all individuals living in our state. A series such as that printed in the Observer will help to maintain the achievements of the past and spur the development in the future.

Thank you again for devoting so much space to an important story.

Paper's view is perceptive

To the editor:

Your recent article concerning L. Brooks Patterson was rewarding, indeed, to read.

Congratulations for your perceptiveness and further congratulations for your willingness to print what many people observe to be the truth.

You have obviously taken a closer look at the roots of crime than those who respond only to what they see or hear on the local media. Regardless of what the masses choose to believe, statistics are on your side.

It is true that longtime problems require long-term solutions, but your views are at least in a more sane direction than L. Brooks Patterson's.

Street Scene prompts calls

To the editor:

I am writing to thank the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and staff writer, Carolyn DeMarco, for featuring Ann Arbor in the Street Scene section on Monday, April 11. On that Monday, the phone at the Ann Arbor Convention and Visitors Bureau rang off the hook.

To date, we have filled 150 requests for information and are still receiving calls. We have been tracking those calls by inquiring where the caller has heard of us in order that we might estimate the impact of that article. A conservative estimate of inquiries attributed to the Street Scene article at this time is 200 plus.

I believe the overwhelming response we have received at the bureau is a true indication that your readers value and trust your newspaper. Additionally, your publication obviously provides a needed and utilized service by offering an informative section like the "Street Scene".

Teenage parties test skills of chaperones

TOM, DICK, Ken, Bill, Jim and two Bobs were at the table for a recent ~~session of our~~ Happy Hour forensics club, gatherings which often are exercises in argumentation. But this time there was unanimity of thought right from the opening conversational gambit, perhaps because all are parents and all have served at one time or another as chaperones of youth functions.

It was mentioned by one of the group that his daughter is about to graduate from high school, and he was asked what her crowd's party plans were, recent news stories about kids renting hotel rooms and running amuck being fresh in all our minds. That led the whole discussion down the avenue of parental control.

Four at the table have coached kid basketball or baseball teams and two are former police officers. All have joined with their wives to supervise parties and even out-of-town, overnight outings in which their sons and daughters have been part.

ALTHOUGH WE'RE currently in the peak period of prom and graduation parties, there was no seasonal aspect to the experience my friends related, varying from winter ski trips to summer church camp.

"Put a bunch of boys and girls together, ages ranging perhaps from 14 through 17, maybe away from home overnight for the ~~first time~~ in such a group, and I'll guarantee they're going to let off steam; they're going to test the waters," remarked Bill. "But you can't let them go over the edge."

"Always plan for that one kid you'd never expect to violate any of the rules," warned Jim.

"Some are pros who have been on trips before. They know how to smuggle beer in and how to get to the girls' rooms."

Bob I said that in his experience the best pattern for maintaining control had been to maintain a definite ratio of perhaps one adult for every five young people, and Bob II answered, "Yes, but even so there will be some who will try to see how far you'll go. That's what kids are supposed to do."

"We tested our parents and our chaperones when we were that age," commented another, "and I don't think this generation is any different. But there have to be rules. There have to be limits. However, if you want to see that limit get pushed, just tell a kid not to do it. Some will consider that a challenge."

IT WAS mentioned that someone we all know is planning for a graduation party at home and is considering having alcoholic drinks just for the adults, restricting the high schoolers to soft drinks.

"It will never work," said Dick, with which we all agreed. "She's just asking for trouble."

"Parents who give parties have to think seriously about allowing kids to have even beer," spoke up Bob I, "but if they are going to drink at all, I'd rather have them do it at home than sneak off in the park with a bottle. In fact, my wife and I used to insist that any kids who were drinking had to stay the night and to tell their parents so."

"Thirty years ago some of our high school bunch went to Tawas for a weekend f tobogganing and hayrides," recalled Bill. "It was a huge group, including boys and girls both, and my parents were among the chaperones.

"We snuck some beer in and a couple of kids got caught. Now I'm trying to enforce the same rules."

"Yes, there have to be rules, and the kids have to have supervision," agreed Dick, "but then they read of what happened with the Red Wings and how some professional sports teams allow alcohol in the locker rooms, and that makes enforcement all the tougher."

The conclusion: If you're among the chaperones, it's better to have too many than too few.

Memorial Day worth your family's attention

"Those who expect to reap the blessing of freedom must undergo the fatigue of supporting it."
— Thomas Paine

SURE THERE are other lures — sleeping in, stoking up the barbeque, working around the yard, cleaning out the garage, heading to the beach, going on a picnic.

But there's something else worth doing on Memorial Day Monday, May 30 — yes, a day off from work but not your typical holiday.

It's a day to remember America's war dead and war veterans, lest we forget their contributions to the freedom we take for granted.

Since Thomas Paine's fiery patriotism during the American Revolution 200 years ago, nearly 1¼ million Americans have died in battle protecting the U.S. Constitution.

Memorial Day is a time to honor their memory. It's a time to pay homage to those who paid the ultimate price — who gave their lives — in defense of "the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Their supreme sacrifice opened the gates to 43 million immigrants from around the globe — many of whom are our forebearers.

The day also provides an appropriate springboard for evaluating our commitment and our role in all overseas conflicts.

FOR Steve Barnaby, now Observer & Eccentric Newspapers managing editor, Memorial Day is "a time to reflect about something I'm proud I did."

A Vietnam veteran, Barnaby says he's not a wild flag waver. But the day does give him cause to "stop and think" and every once in a while "sneak up on a parade."

He called his two years as an Army machine gunner, squad leader and acting platoon leader in the late '60s a pivotal crossroads. He went in a shy, retiring, unmotivated 20-year-old and came out a confident, determined, persistent man.

"Life has more meaning for me now," he said. "My experience made me realize how fragile life is. I now try to make the most out of life, to make the best out of everything."

Every day has been a bonus since March 1969 — when he came home from the jungles of southeast Asia. "I saw so many men die instantaneously at a young age. It makes me kind of wonder why I didn't."

Memorial Day also serves to remind him about life's simple joys — a warm bed, a hot meal, a roof overhead.

Memorial Day is a time to remember America's war dead and war veterans, lest we forget their contributions to the freedom we take for granted.

IN MAPPING family plans for next Monday, here's a list of memorial services and parades scheduled throughout the Observer area:

- Plymouth's annual Memorial Day Parade begins at 10 a.m. Marchers leave from Theodore Street and parade south on Main to Kellogg Park. Wreath-laying ceremonies will follow. Marching bands, a mounted sheriff's patrol and a flyover highlight the day.
- The Westland Memorial Day Parade begin at 10 a.m. in the K mart parking lot at Wayne and Cherry Hill roads. The parade heads north on Cherry Hill then west on Ford Road to city hall. A brief ceremony follows.
- Garden City will hold at memorial service to commemorate the day at 4 p.m. in front of city hall, Middlebelt Road, between Warren and Ford Road.
- Livonia will hold a wreath-laying ceremony at 10 a.m. in Veteran's park, Five Mile and Farmington roads.
- Redford Township will honor America's war dead with a parade on Sunday, June 5 at 2 p.m. The parade begins at Six Mile and Beech Daly and ends at township hall on Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile. More than 80 organizations will participate.
- The Farmington Area Veterans Council's Memorial Day parade and service in downtown Farmington begins at 10 a.m. This year, the U.S. Navy will be specially honored.

The parade route is along Grand River. There'll be band playing, formation marching, memorial floats, antique cars, fire trucks, maybe even a military flyover. You also can look forward to a short but moving memorial service at the Veterans Memorial.

The activities scheduled in remembrance of Memorial Day should lift your spirits and more important, provide meaning for a truly special holiday.

Bikers to pedal for MS

Riders from throughout the state will participate in the Michigan MS 150 bike tour June 11-12.

Sponsored by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society's state chapter, the bicycle tour begins at Schoolcraft College in Livonia for Detroit-area riders. Other riders will begin in Grand Rapids.

On Saturday, the tour stops in Holt, near Lansing, where participants can enjoy dancing, volleyball games or movies.

The tour concludes Sunday with a celebration in Jackson.

Rest stops are planned every 12-15 miles. Meals, snacks and fruit will be provided. Air-conditioned buses will transport riders back to their starting point.

Medical care will also be provided. Support trucks will be available to give rides to weary cyclists.

To enter, participants must raise $150 in pledges and pay a $20 registration fee. Participants are eligible to win prizes based on the amount of pledges they raise. The bicyclist bringing in the most pledge money receives a two-day trip for two to San Francisco. Prizes include a new bicycle, compact disc player and limited edition bicycling jersey.

Sponsored by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society's state chapter, the bicycle tour begins at Schoolcraft College in Livonia for Detroit-area riders.

To register, or for additional information, call 1-800-247-7382. Information is also available at bicycle shops throughout the Detroit area.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, progressive disease of the central nervous system. It is usually diagnosed in people ages 20-40. MS can impair coordination, stamina and vision. Nearly 200 new cases are diagnosed nationally each week.

Contributions will be used for research and family support programs. The Michigan MS chapter is a United Way member agency.

Cyclists tour state shores

Openings are still available for the Shoreline Bicycle Tour of Michigan, although more than half the 500 openings have been filled.

The registration deadline is Tuesday, May 31, according to the League of Michigan Bicyclists, though registration could end earlier if all 500 spaces are filled before that date.

The July 31 through Aug. 6 tour was first held last year as a Michigan Sesquicentennial event. It assists the league in developing a marked bicycle route around the state's perimeter.

The more than 350-mile course covers most of the Lake Michigan shoreline. It begins in Three Oaks, northwest of South Bend, Ind., and concludes in Traverse City.

The tour covers 50-60 miles per day. Support vehicles will carry riders' baggage and tents.

Riders proceed at their own pace. Riders camp on high school grounds, where community groups provide meals. Stops will be in: Three Oaks, July 30; South Haven, July 31; Holland, Aug. 1; Montague, Aug. 2; Ludington, Aug. 3; Frankfort, Aug. 4 and Maple City, Aug. 5.

Cost is $135 per adult and $60 for children under 6. Optional return transportation to three Oaks is $25 per person. Meals, maps and a tour T-shirt are included in the fee.

Auto theft dips in county

Wayne County auto theft has decreased 71 percent since 1986, according to figures released last week by Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Intergovernmental cooperation played a key role in reducing auto theft, the sheriff said.

Auto-related theft has decreased 47 percent at Metro Airport over the same period, Ficano said.

The sheriff's department received a $79,000 State Auto Theft Prevention authority grant in May 1987.

"The grant will allow law enforcement to beef up efforts with training and additional personnel," Ficano said.

The grant covers a period extending to December 1988.

Tour covers history

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THE PLYMOUTH Historical Society's architectural tour will feature sites most people don't see every day.

The tour, scheduled for 1-5 p.m. Sunday, June 5, will include nine historic structures now housing area businesses. The Plymouth Historical Museum, featuring a quilt exhibit, also is on the tour.

"So we get to show off the quilts one more time," said Beth Stewart, programs and exhibits chairwoman for the Plymouth Historical Museum.

In choosing sites for the tour, Plymouth Historical Society members decided to avoid retail businesses.

Ticket price for the architectural tour is $10. Tickets are available at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main.

Tickets are also available at Beitner Jewelry and at Little Professor on the Park, both in downtown Plymouth.

THE TOUR on Sunday, June 5, will feature a variety of buildings on Main Street and the surrounding area. The sites will be:

- Century 21 office, 188 N. Main;
- The Bennett Estate, 134 N. Main;
- Dietrich, Bailey & Associates, 107 S. Main;
- Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main;

Canton Seniors display crafts

MEMBERS OF the Canton Seniors had an opportunity to show off their artistic talents last week.

The Canton Seniors held their sixth annual "Craft Show-Off" Wednesday, May 18, at the Canton Recreation Center.

The annual event was held "to display what they've made," said Dianne Neihengen, senior citizen coordinator for Canton Township.

The crafts on display were made in non-credit classes offered through Wayne County Community College. Those classes are held at the Canton Recreation Center.

Among the classes offered are those in ceramics, quilting, needlework, painting and woodcarving, Neihengen said. The "Craft Show-Off" was held to display work done by the Canton Seniors and also to attract new students for the classes.

"Tremendous talent," Neihengen said in describing the work on display. "And there's such a variety."

Anna Huffmaster was among the Canton Seniors participating in last week's event. She had several items on display, including a lap afghan she'd made for a fellow club member.

"We come every Thursday morning." She takes an arts and crafts class that includes knitting, quilting, crewel and needlepoint.

"It's just getting out, for one thing." Huffmaster is active in the Canton Seniors' Zesters group.

Canton Seniors member Mary Harberts had a variety of items on display at the "Craft Show-Off," including pillows, wall decorations and other needlepoint items. She takes needlepoint and punch embroidery classes at the center.

"I like it because it goes quite fast." She enjoys working on needlepoint and other crafts projects.

"I crochet a lot, too."

Harberts gives away some of the things she makes as Christmas gifts.

"They just like it because you made it, I guess."

Claude Truesdell, a Canton Seniors member, has been taking woodcarving classes for about three years. He had a variety of items on display at the "Craft Show-Off."

Truesdell hadn't done woodcarving in his younger days. He enjoys taking classes.

The tour won't be done in any particular order, the Plymouth Historical Museum's Stewart said. Instead, participants may visit the sites in whatever order they choose.

The tour will include both the interior and the exterior for all sites. At each site, two or three members of the Plymouth Historical Society will be available to answer questions.

At some sites, owners will also be available to answer questions, Stewart said. Those owners have restoration stories to tell; some will have photos available, showing their restoration efforts.

STEWART HAS been busy in recent weeks, doing research on the tour sites.

"Trying to find out histories around here is difficult." Tracking down tax records, now stored in downtown Detroit, isn't easy. Stewart found it helpful to talk to people at the Plymouth Historical Museum; doing so led her to information about the historic structures.

This is the first time the Plymouth Historical Society has sponsored an architectural tour.

"I'm hoping the interest will be there," Stewart said. "Hopefully, it'll be a nice day."

'Trying to find out histories around here is difficult.'

Plymouth Historical Museum

Members of the Plymouth Historical Society are considering holding another architectural tour in a couple of years.

Part of the tour's purpose is to show the importance of historic preservation, she said. That's related not only to links with the past, but also with providing a viable community here and now.

That effort is in keeping with Plymouth's promoting a certain image, "trying to be quaint and historic."

The tour is also being held to increase awareness of the area's architectural history.

"Architecture in small communities is always interesting," Stewart said.

In larger communities, many buildings were designed by well-known architects. That's not true in smaller communities; many of those buildings were designed by less well-known people.

Those builders included whatever they liked in their buildings. That mix of styles makes it difficult for researchers to do typology, "but it's also really interesting," she said.

Talent's on display at craft show in Canton

"It gives you something to do, it kills a lot of time." He likes having something to show for his efforts when he's done.

IT'S DIFFICULT for Truesdell to estimate how much time it takes to finish something he's made.

"When you get through, you're done. Time doesn't mean so much when you're retired."

Fellow woodcarver Paul Kitti also had items he'd made on display at the "Craft Show-Off." Among the many items Kitti had on display was a carving of the Canton Historical Museum.

Kitti, who's active in the Canton Seniors' Pioneers group, teaches woodcarving classes at the Canton Recreation Center, Royal Holiday Park and at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Kitti, a member of the Livonia Woodcarvers, has found there's a great deal of interest in woodcarving. The Livonia Woodcarvers group has about 300 members; approximately 60 attend the meetings Kitti participates in Thursday mornings.

The Monday class Kitti teaches at the Canton Recreation Center attracts about 20 people.

"We started with just a couple. They get so involved by making something with their hands."

Some women thank Kitti for getting their husbands out of the house and involved in a hobby.

"It creates a lot of interest."

(For more information on the crafts classes, call 397-1000 Ext. 278.)

Preacher takes pop trail to the pulpit

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The rock'n'roll road leads to many places. But the pulpit?

That's where the Rev. Paul Irwin finally landed after playing and traveling with a host of musical groups. Today the beard, long hair and jeans are gone. They are replaced by the short-hair, clean-shaven look of a clergyman.

But the music, well, that hasn't left. Irwin plays a little synthesizer once in awhile during Sunday services at St. Paul Presbyterian Church. He also does music videos with the youth groups at the Livonia church.

And, on occasion, one still might find him playing drums in a local nightclub with a band.

His past performances with such groups as the Platters, Eight to the Bar and Upper Eighties are reflected once in a while with such counter culture buzzwords as "cool."

Occasionally, Irwin pulls out the photo album from his free-spirited days. He's met with looks of amazement.

"The kids think anyone with a beard and long hair today isn't fashionable," said Irwin, 33, who's in his third year as a pastor at St. Paul Presbyterian Church. "They just go, 'ehhh' because it looks so grimy."

Irwin's turn to the ministry was natural, if not expected. Irwin is the fourth generation of Presbyterian ministers in his family. His mother, the Rev. Katherine Parker, is a Presbyterian minister in Chicago.

Paul Irwin played with a number of rock'n'roll acts, including the Platters.

Irwin now as pastor at St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

LIKE MOTHER, like grandfather and like great-grandfather, Irwin was groomed to follow in their footsteps. Except halfway through college, he took a detour.

Unsure of his faith, Irwin left to joined a rock'n'roll band. The experience, needless to say, was eye-opening.

"What they say about the rock'n'roll life is basically true," Irwin said. "It's a wild lifestyle . . . I sort of got into that.

"One day while we were in Connecticut, I saw this beautiful sunrise. I felt like God put his finger on my life. And I figured I had my time to mess around. Now it was time to get back and do my ministering."

Although Irwin jumped the tracks to the pulpit, he was still practicing. He would spend time talking to patrons between sets, listening to their problems.

Those experiences on the rock'n'roll road are something he wouldn't trade. He feels venturing outside his faith allows him to have insight, especially in his work as a youth minister.

"The kids, they can't shock me," he said. "I have seen the stuff that is out there."

Which, perhaps, is what sets Irwin and others like him apart. The new breed of pastor is more likely to be socially aware, mainly because they have had first-hand experience out in the streets.

After receiving a master of divinity from Columbia Seminary, Irwin worked with the homeless in Atlanta, Ga.

CURRENTLY, HE'S chairman for the Refugee Committee of the Detroit Presbytery. He's also a member of the Detroit-Windsor Refugee Coalition, a group that offers shelter for Central American refugees.

With his youth groups, Irwin tries to expose them to the problems of the inner-city whenever possible.

"I think the new guys are influenced by the late '60s counter-culture. Then there was the Jesus people movement of the late '70s," he said. "I was especially influenced by the Jesus people movement in the '70s."

"There's more compassion for people who have fallen, those who are divorced or are alcoholics," he added later. "Now there's more of an effort to get those people involved with the church. Whereas in the old days, those people would be out of the church."

Chances are Irwin would've had a hard time being accepted by members of the church in old days. Irwin said he's not ostracized by any clergy or church members.

His continuing to play in nightclubs hasn't caused any ill will either.

"Jesus Christ hung out with tax collectors and sinners," he said. "I'm not up there drinking or anything. I like playing music that people enjoy."

Rural junk has become a problem

Rev. Lloyd Buss

Driving through Michigan, Indiana and Illinois to visit my parents is a bittersweet experience, particularly in the springtime when the full foliage of summer has not yet appeared. One can see too much. The land is cluttered with junk.

It did not happen overnight. Our family has noted rusted farm equipment, dilapidated buildings and the ever-present debris from abandoned homesteads in our journeys through rural America for the past three decades. This past week, there seemed so much more than before and the junk of more recent vintage.

Disposal of worn out or broken beyond-repair farm equipment in the days of my youth was an easy task. What could not be traded-in, was either taken to the scrap dealer, or the deepest ravine one could find in the neighboring township which had that type of terrain.

I do remember leaving for college not having been able to dispose of two metal wagon boxes. The scrap dealer wasn't buying and they were simply too large for the ravines we were using.

The amount and size of farm equipment needed today is surely greater than in past years. Forty years ago, 10 to 15 farmers might harvest small grain together with one threshing machine.

TODAY, EACH farmer feels compelled to have a self-propelled combine. The narrow margin of profit and loss has not allowed farmers the two or three weeks needed to thresh the grain. One either has a combine or does not grow small grains.

Disposing of a large combine is not an easy task. Most will be traded in for newer models, but farm implement dealers with their rows and rows of used equipment are as much a part of the rural scene as the abandoned homestead three miles from the county road.

If cleaning up junk — in both rural and urban America — was a profitable venture, then we would have cleaned it up. It is "the bottom line" of cost over return that has persuaded us to clutter the landscape rather than create additional expanses for living.

What is missing in our computation of cost is the psychological influence our practice of abandonment and discard creates, and the loss of integrity in our failure to carry out responsible stewardship of creation.

Theologically, we are abusing God's creation on a massive scale. But thus far, neither our faithfulness to religious convictions nor our concern for mental well-being, has managed to rise above our pecuniary interests.

The problem is not rural America's problem. It is our problem. We will solve it, or it will overwhelm us. Powers of destruction seldom make any effort to abide by the sociological distinctions of culture. Junk simply doesn't care whose values of life it might offend.

ANTHROPOLOGISTS suggests that civilization was initiated when human life buried its dead. Cultural anthropologists observe direct connections between self-esteem, community well-being and care of the environment. Which is only to say that our cluttered landscape is making a powerful statement about the people who dwell in this land.

There are many reasons for cleaning up the junk littering our landscape. Theologically, morally, psychologically and culturally, we know what needs to be done in my lifetime unless there are more compelling reasons to do it.

(The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor of Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.)

1-stop car care revs up

Bays open at strip centers

By Filip Fracassa
special writer

Multi-tenant strip centers with automotive service companies are getting ready to open their bays with the hope of finding a market in one-stop car care.

Burgeoning in the Southwest and spurred by the one-stop concept and lower rents resulting from several tenants sharing the load, the idea is just getting off the ground in this area.

Mr. Car Care strip centers will open in Southfield and Novi in October, along with one each in Sterling Heights and Woodhaven.

Neil Gorosh, vice president of development for Southfield's LoPatin & Co., builder of the 15,000-to-20,000-square-foot Mr. Car Cares, said each center will have between four and six automotive-related tenants leasing space for $13-$15 per square foot.

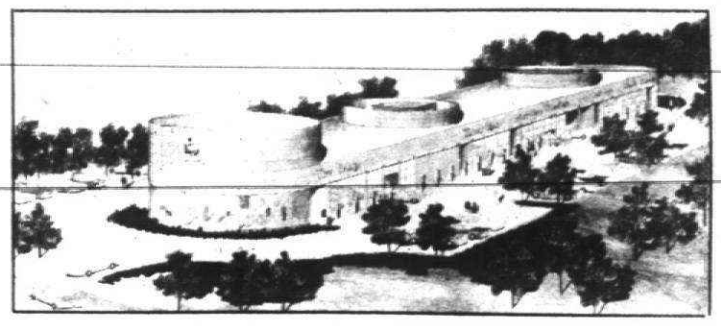
In Livonia, Ward Harriman Real Estate will open Auto Mall this fall on Plymouth between Farmington and Stark, and K&S Development is completing America's Auto Village on Middlebelt north of Plymouth.

HARRIMAN LIKENED the concept to a retail strip center that leases space.

"This started in California and Arizona," Harriman said. "It's a good concept because cities are having problems with garages stretched out all over the city that don't take care of their property. There's a problem with junk cars. This kind of center not only functions well but it looks good too."

Likely tenants are tune-up, muffler, brake, shocks and glass shops, quick oil changers, cellular car phone and alarm sales outlets and foreign auto service stores.

"A unified development . . . should generate some serious business traffic," Gorosh said. "The concept is right for its time because gas stations are closing, and good locations are cost prohibitive unless they're part of complementary developments."



An architect's drawing of Mr. Car Care strip centers.

TRANSMISSION AND bump shops are not part of the Mr. Car Care scheme because they could require overnight work, Gorosh said.

Mr. Car Care centers, which will cost $1 million to $1.5 million per development to build, will not have evening hours.

"We think this is a logical extension of the shopping center because our centers will be convenient and accessible for people who want their cars fixed while they're shopping," Gorosh said.

LoPatin's research indicates more than 60 percent of the strip centers' clientele will be women.

"Our development will not be the corner gas station where you stand by the pop machine while your car is fixed," Gorosh said. "That's the image we want to avoid, and that's what we're betting will attract more women customers."

WHILE THE $75 billion auto-service market continues to grow steadily, according to the Auto Aftermarket Business trade journal, the number of stand-alone service stations declined from a high of 225,000 in 1972 to 121,000 in 1986, the Service Station Dealers of America said.

Harriman said that studies show people are keeping their cars longer, requiring them to perform more maintenance functions.

This will mean a higher volume of business for the survivors, and developers are banking that strip centers will bolster tenants' sales because they can pool advertising and marketing from a single, high-traffic location.

The lead tenant for LoPatin is Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. Harriman's Auto Mall will house Meineke Muffler, Sparks Tune-up and Victory Lane Oil Change. America's Auto Village consists of Spartan Tire (now open), Ride Control, an alignment and suspension service, Tuff-Kote Dinol Appearance Center, Randy's Collision, A-1 Transmissions, Jiffy Lube and Foreign Car Connection.

Tiffany raises profile for local corporate gift-giving

By Catherine Trainor
staff writer

Tiffany & Co., the world-famous New York jeweler, thinks Detroit has arrived in the world of diversified economies and has given its seal of approval by opening a corporate division sales outlet in Bloomfield Hills.

"Tiffany & Co. chose to enter this market because we recognize the enormous vigor of the business community here," said Barry Dodson, Tiffany group vice president.

"The emerging diversification of the Michigan economy represents a unique opportunity for Tiffany's corporate division," he said.

"We bring a long-established tradition of exceptional design and craftsmanship of our products. With a fresh approach and a mission of excellence, Tiffany can provide an array of products and services to meet Michigan's growing needs for high-quality business gifts."

MANAGING MICHIGAN'S first Tiffany's will be W.F. Moigis, a Bloomfield Hills resident, who has been with the firm about seven months. Moigis previously worked for one of the Big Three automakers in advertising and market research.

According to Dodson, Moigis was hired because of his automotive background. Since many prospective clients are in the field, it seemed logical to put the local office in the charge of someone familiar with its needs.

Unfortunately for all those ready to head for Tiffany's to buy a little gewgaw for themselves, this office will handle corporate sales only. And Moigis doesn't think buyers will exactly stampede to take advantage of the Tiffany label's instant cachet.

"THIS IS missionary work," Moigis said. "We are dealing, in many cases, with long-term relationships."

But, he said, he will rely on three things to win clients over: "Design, quality, exclusivity."

Tiffany's is aiming for an upscale market, providing employee and sales recognition programs, corporate accessories, specially designed awards and business gifts, based on Tiffany's product collections.

While the jeweler can provide volume-type awards and trophies, Dodson said they believe many businesses are moving to a more personal kind of reward, the kind that won't be stuck in a drawer, never again to see the light of day.

"Most employers value the employee relationship," Dodson said. "And the more valuable employees are not measured economically — maybe they paid a premium to get them. . . . How do you reach and hold them?"

TIFFANY THINKS one way to do both is through the use of gifts designed especially for a specific person or circumstance.

For instance, suppose a sales person has just landed a lucrative contract. Of course, he or she will get a commission and maybe a bonus, maybe even a promotion, but how about a sterling silver putter, or earrings and pin designed by Paloma Picasso? Maybe the new customer would like a Tiffany clock, or a desk set designed especially for her.

These kinds of gifts will appreciate in value, add beauty where they're displayed and, not coincidentally, be a gentle reminder of the benefactor.

Besides providing gifts, Tiffany & Co. deals in "accessories."

DODSON SAID the company provided all the tableware when Merrill-Lynch in New York recently needed furnishings for three cafeterias, from the sterling in the executive cafeteria, to the stainless in the employee cafeteria.

The new Bloomfield Hills office has been open for several weeks, but the official kick-off was Wednesday at the Whitney in Detroit. Slated to welcome Tiffany & Co. were Erma L. Henderson, president of the Detroit City Council, and Barbara Goldman, director of the Michigan Council for the Arts representing Gov. James J. Blanchard.

The presentation included a display of products representing Tiffany's collections of jewelry, silver, china, crystal, scarves, leather goods, timepieces and fragrance.

ALSO DISPLAYED were a number of the trophies that Tiffany craftsmen have designed, including the Vince Lombardi (Super Bowl) trophy in football, the Virginia Slims Tournament trophy in women's tennis and the Woodlawn vase, presented to the winner of the Preakness horserace.

One of the oldest racing trophies in existence, the Woodlawn was created in 1860 and is now owned by the Pimlico Race Track. In 1983 it was appraised for $1 million, making it the most valuable trophy in American sports, according to Tiffany's. The trophy is never given to the winner; it is brought out each year, under guard, the winner gets his picture taken and then is presented with a smaller replica to keep.

In the case of the Super Bowl trophy, every part of it, including the nuts, bolts, and laces, is handcrafted of sterling, and the winner gets to keep it.

TIFFANY & Co. was founded in 1837 by Charles Lewis Tiffany and has had a long and varied history. Tiffany, the founder, liked publicity and frequently did things like sponsor scientific expeditions and in-store exhibits (the aluminum pyramid that caps the Washington monument was one).

Successors shunned publicity and in the mid-20th century the store developed a reputation as a staid institution. But following a buy-out by management a few years ago, Tiffany's went public, selling about $100 million worth of stock on the New York Exchange.

However, two things that Charles Tiffany instituted, which still, according to store executives, hold true are, one, all items in the store have price tags and there is no haggling (Tiffany shocked his competitors when he broke with tradition to do this) and, two, all customers are treated the same at Tiffany's, no matter how rich or not.

Dodson said he believes there are many small businesses that could avail themselves of Tiffany & Co. products, and they will have the same services available to them as will the president of a major corporation.

Affordable housing gives tax break

Sid Mittra

Not too long ago, tax-conscious individuals invested billions of dollars in real estate to shelter income, not to generate it. All of that changed with the passage of the tax reform act. The same legislation, however, created an attractive real estate tax shelter about which little is known.

The growing need for affordable, quality housing throughout the country is so important that the TRA of 1986 included a special provision to encourage individuals and corporations to finance these projects.

In order to encourage investors to provide the much-needed capital to finance these types of houses, the government now allows the use of annual federal tax credits, providing investors with dollar-for-dollar reductions in their federal taxes each year for 10 consecutive years.

The reason this added incentive to invest in low and moderate income real estate exists is simply supply and demand. There are more families who want to live in quality, yet affordable, apartment complexes than there are facilities to accommodate them.

With the cost of single-family houses increasing, a growing number of retirees and low-to-moderate wage earning Americans are in the market for multi-family housing. As a result, the federal government is encouraging the private sector put money into multi-family housing.

Federal tax credit vs. tax write-off

Let us differentiate federal tax credit from the traditional tax write-off. Say you invest $10,000 in two real estate partnerships. Partnership I provides a 15-percent federal tax credit, whereas Partnership II offers a 15-percent tax write-off. You are in a 28-percent marginal tax bracket. The difference in tax savings in these two instances is enormous. (See the accompanying table.)

ABC tax credit fund

Let me describe ABC tax credit fund (not a real name), which offers valuable federal tax credit. ABC is a public limited partnership organized to acquire a diversified portfolio of apartment complexes renting to quality tenants of low and moderate income.

The general partner has the responsibility for making sure that these apartments meet the criteria for earning the federal tax credit. Additionally, many receive rental assistance payments. The overall objectives of the ABC partnership are as follows:

- Direct federal tax credit benefits to reduce tax liabilities on a dollar-for-dollar basis.
- The opportunity for capital appreciation through potential increases in property values at the time of sale.
- Preservation and protection of capital contributions.

Tax benefits and limitations

According to the TRA, a $10,000 investment would generate federal tax credit of 15 percent per year, amounting to $1,500 per year, or a total $15,000 over a 10-year period. Qualified individuals whose adjusted gross incomes are below $200,000 per year, and who are in the 28-percent tax bracket, may use up to $7,000 in federal tax credit (that is, investment of up to $46,000 in ABC) each year to reduce taxes on ordinary income.

Any federal tax credit an individual can't use one year may be carried back for three years, but not prior to 1987, or carried forward for 15 years. Note, however, that federal tax credits cannot be used to reduce alternative minimum tax.

	Partnership I	Partnership II
initial investment	$10,000	$10,000
federal tax credit	15%	none
tax write-off	none	15%
marginal tax bracket	28%	28%
annual tax reduction	$1,500	$420

The law gives corporations a much better break. Corporations (excluding sub-chapter S) can use an unlimited amount of federal tax credit to reduce their federal tax liability, subject to the normal limitations of business tax credits.

The drawbacks

ABC is not for everyone. For one thing, it is a long-term (15-year) investment. For another, there is no assurance that the potential for cash distributions during the latter stages of the partnership will be realized. Also, part of the federal tax credit previously taken may have to be recaptured if an apartment complex ceases to meet the qualifications required during the 15-year term of the program.

Notwithstanding their inherent limitations, real estate partnerships providing valuable federal tax credits offer attractive opportunities for many investors. I urge you to contact your financial planner today for a complete evaluation of your needs and a detailed discussion of the best real estate partnership that fits your situation.

Innovation pays off big

Mary DiPaolo

Imitation may be the highest form of flattery, but innovation is the highest form of genius when it comes the developing successful competitive strategies for your business.

Being innovative does not suggest restructuring your entire operation in order to achieve or maintain long-term success and growth. Given identifiable customer needs and wants, a firm has control over which of those needs it will attempt to best satisfy on a regular basis.

The resulting action may involve no more than changing the package design for a product, offering seminars otherwise not made available by competitors or expanding your store hours to promote the convenience aspect of doing business.

WILLIAM AND Andrew Smith were the first to offer their Smith Brothers Cough Drops in prepacked boxes. By redesigning their package, the brothers were able to distinguish their product from its many imitators.

Prior to offering cough drops in boxes, they were sold in large glass bowls carrying the Smith Brothers' trademark at general stores and apothecary shops.

Soon unscrupulous competitors began capitalizing on the cough drops' popularity by filling the "Smith Brothers jar" with counterfeit drops and passing them off as the real thing.

It wasn't until the brothers marketed their product in "factory-filled" packages that the problem was solved.

A MORE recent example of innovative competitive strategy involves Nightingale-Conant Corp.'s offering of one- and two-day seminars throughout the country to its current and potential customer base.

As the largest audio cassette production facility in the country, the corporation was interested in breaking new ground to satisfy its customers' information needs.

"Our first test seminar is being held in Detroit in early June, and if we succeed in the Detroit market, we plan on sponsoring 5,000 seminars over the next five-year period," said Gregg Chappell, seminar director with NCC.

THE SEMINAR, "Power Communication and Persuasion" with Mike Wickett of Birmingham, reflects the needs of the market, according to Chappell.

"The Detroit market knows exactly what they want and where they're going both personally and professionally. When planning this first seminar, we knew how important it was to provide what was needed, as opposed to what was easiest for us to offer."

For more information on the seminar, call 1-800-323-5552.

Next week, we will begin our series on cable television as a means available to promoting small businesses.

auto talk

I drove at Indy once.

Not, of course, with 700 demonic horsepower pushing me by the grandstands, or even the 200 horsepower or so it takes the pace car just to get out of the racers' way. The occasion was one of those "press events" where the rubes . . . er, journalists . . . get to take a spin around the track in a convertible.

Still, coming down the back straight at 100 mph or so, the wall is oppressively close. It's almost as if you are driving underneath sections of the grandstands, and at the end of the straight the wall looms like a blank chalkboard where you will become some kind of graffiti.

It's almost impossible not to slow down at that point, and as the banked track eases the car into the turn, that now looks as wide as Northland's west parking lot, you ask how fast the racers would be going now.

"About 210 mph," says your host.

Americans have turned soccer into football, cricket into baseball, and treat auto racing, which was cultivated like a dueling scar by European nobility, into a circus of backalley myths such as how the best drivers got that way running moonshine whiskey.

The myths take over at Indy, where a million and a half bucks or so and enough nerve to head for the chalkboard flat out puts you into the center gravity of American car racing.

ACTUALLY, AS an all-American event, Indy is suspect. Indy cars mainly represent the best of British engineering. It's a trend that started 20 years ago when Ford perfected the art of hyphenated racing car with the Ford/Cogsworth V-8 racing engines that dominated Indy car racing two years ago, when Chevrolet put its corporate weight behind Britain's Ilmore Engineering to build a new four-cam V-8 that now sits on the pole at Indy as well as powering the rest of the cars in the front row.

Porsche also is new in the field this year, with its own engine in a British March chassis, which would make it the only major production-car manufacturer to build its own Indy car.

There is also one slightly Japanese entry, a modified Honda-block engine, which is a solid indication of more to come in the future. Indy car sponsorship is mainly corporate today, although Roger Penske, who used to run a Chevy dealership on Telegraph, is favored to win with, as they say, a little help from his friends.

The decal war at Indy is extremely important to Chevy this year, and by extension to General Motors, which sees the image of a winning race car as a way to offset the negative image projected by its falling market share.

It's only been a year or so that GM officially acknowledged the megabucks it spends supporting car racing, although Chevrolet historically has been less reticent about its involvement than other GM divisions.

Logically, the Buick-powered Indy cars, which unlike the Chevy's are based on production engines, should reflect the state of GM engineering more accurately than the specialized race engines commissioned by Chevrolet. Olds has contributed a pace car that uses a slightly more powerful version of the engine that powers a 1988 Calais. All these efforts seem closer to the kind of engineering that makes for a better car in the showroom.

But winning says it louder.

Put money on individuals, not on funds

today's investor

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

I was looking at two different lists of stocks. One shows the most heavily traded stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. The other was the list of 100 most widely purchased stocks by individuals published by the National Association of Investors. I am reasoning that if a stock is widely bought by a lot of people, there must be a lot of people who think the stock is good and therefore I could not go wrong if I bought a stock from one of those lists. Do you think my ideas is a good one?

Not necessarily. The stocks on the two lists you are looking at, The Most Heavily Traded Stocks on the New York Stock Exhcange and The Most Widely Owned Stocks by Individuals, can have very different characteristics.

For instance, the companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange are generally the biggest in the country and, just because they are so large, are very heavily traded. In their favor is the fact that generally these companies — as very large organizations — are well managed and stable.

Because they are so large, generally they are not among the most rapidly growing companies in the country.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT fact to keep in mind is that 60 percent of the trading done on the New York Stock Exhange is done by institutions and not by individuals.

As a rule institutions tend to have a much shorter time frame in mind for an investment than most individuals do. On the average, institutions in recent years have sold their entire portfolios every year.

This means that the people who are buying many of the stocks on the New York Stock Exchange are not planning on holding them very long. That, of course, is not true of every stock, but is a generality you should keep in mind.

THE LIST of most popular stocks bought by individuals who are members of the National Association of Investors is very different.

Most individuals whose holdings are shown in that list have bought because they expect to hold the stocks five years or longer and expect to see those stocks double in value at each successive stock market peak.

When I compare the New York Stock Exchange list as of April 27 with the NAIC Individual list, there is only one company on both lists — AT&T. This emphasizes the difference in the lists.

Whether either list can be of value to you as a source of investment ideas depends on your objective. If your purpose is to buy stocks that have prospects of increasing in value over a long period of time, the NAIC list would probably be the most valuable.

THE 15 TOP stocks in that list are Wal-Mart Stores, American Family Corp., AT&T, PepsiCo, Baxter Travenol Laboratories, Kinder-Care Learing Centers, Bruno's, Abbott Laboratories, Liz Claiborne, Pfizer, Shoney's, Wendy's, RPM Inc., Chyron Corp. and Walt Disney.

Lorna Luft is saloon singer Kate Fothergill in a revival of George Gershwin's musical hit "Girl Crazy" at the Birmingham Theatre. In the "I Got Rhythm" number, Kate is joined by the Dudeens, at the dude ranch. The girls are Lucille Naar (left), Gail Cook Howell, Patrice Pickering, Holly Irwin, Trish Gorman, and Jennifer Thorsby who, with the show, returns to her hometown of Birmingham. Thorsby plays the role of Tess Parker, exgirlfriend of an exiled New York playboy.

She's got rhythm

Lorna Luft stars in role that brought Merman fame

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

RED-HEADED Lorna Luft was low-key — her eyes still looking sleepy — one morning last week when she talked about her new show, over breakfast at Birmingham's Midtown Cafe.

When fruit plates arrived, ordered by others at the table for their early lunch, she declared, "That's too healthy for me!" And with gusto, Luft dug into her own big meal of two poached eggs on English muffins, along with hash browns.

Luft had a heavy rehearsal and performance schedule of the George and Ira Gershwin musical "Girl Crazy," which opened in previews last week at the Birmingham Theatre. Regular performances began Friday and continue through Sunday, June 19.

"Audiences are going wild. They love this show," she said. It's not a revival of the musical as first presented back in 1930. "It has been rewritten. The original was much too long, with too many subplots."

LUFT PLAYS the character of Kate Fothergill, "the role that made Ethel Merman a star," she said. In the show Luft gets to sing the song that became so closely identified with Merman — "I Got Rhythm" — as well as "Sam and Delilah" and "Boy, What Love Has Done to Me."

Was "I Got Rhythm" a tough song to do? she was asked. "The song was easy, the tap was tough," she replied.

Luft worked in Atlantic City, appearing at the Trump Casino, at the same time she was rehearsing "Girl Crazy" in New York. "I did two shows a night in Atlantic City, then got on a helicopter to fly into New York and rehearse 'Girl Crazy' in the daytime. And my last show was at 2 a.m."

Since arriving in Birmingham, "I still haven't had a day off," she said last Thursday. Luft was dressed casually in a red San Diego Zoo sweatshirt with a panda on it. She also wore sweat pants and athletic shoes.

Her short red hair was agreeably tousled, and she looked attractive even without her makeup. She didn't want to bother to put it on that morning, so had asked not to be photographed.

IN "GIRL CRAZY," she plays a saloon singer, the part that was written for Merman. Kate's husband, Slick, runs a gambling casino at the Arizona ranch that has been transformed into a dude ranch by an exiled New York playboy.

"My costumes are gorgeous," Luft said. "I make my entrance in a white suit with fur. For 'I Got Rhythm,' I wear a pink saloon dress with feathers. And I have a black dressing gown with more feathers.

"In the second act, I wear a teal blue slip for 'Samson and Delilah.'" I wear a Ginger Rogers dance dress with feathers at the bottom for the number 'Treat Me Rough.' I have a bright red, silver-fringed outfit near the end of the show, which is mine. I had it in my closet. It was just sort of perfect for the show."

She said originally she appeared in the scene in "a gorgeous black suit. But everyone else is in Western gear. So the costume was changed. That's why we come to rehearsals."

Luft and her husband, producer-songwriter Jake Hooker, have been married for 13 years and have a 4-year-old son, Jesse Cole (after Cole Porter). Hooker has written songs for "Rocky IV" and "Top Gun." She said she and Hooker never work together. "That's why we've been married 13 years."

THE TWO FIRST met in New York when she was 15, and he was living with Peter Allen's sister (Luft's sister, Liza Minella, who is 7 years older, was married to Allen)

'Girl Crazy' a show to go crazy over

Performances of "Girl Crazy" continue through Sunday, June 19, at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3533.

You'd have to be crazy not to be crazy about "Girl Crazy." The Birmingham Theatre's revival of this vintage Gershwin musical is a sure crowd-pleaser. It is almost impossible to leave the theater without those wonderful tunes resounding for days. Headliner Lorna Luft and the rest of the talented cast make it all great fun.

While successful musicals today are lucky to claim one hit song, "Girl Crazy" has four classics that have withstood well the test of time since the show debuted 58 years ago: "Embraceable You," "I Got Rhythm," "But Not For Me" and "Bidin' My Time." Most of the show's lesser-known numbers are delightful as well.

The breezy boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets-girl plot is no sillier than that of other '30s musicals and even more plausible than some other famous shows of the period.

Barbara Michals

Wealthy New York playboy Danny Churchill (Guy Stroman) has been exiled by his father to the family ranch in Custerville, Ariz. While Danny turns the forlorn property into a successful dude ranch and imports some of his Eastern pals, he falls head-over-tumbleweed for the local postgirl, Molly Gray (Liz Larsen).

Work by Mahler fit the occasion

Mahler's symphonies are viewed by some as prophetic. Some see in Mahler's symphonies a premonition of World War II and the Holocaust, events which took place decades after the composer's death.

The trials and tribulations of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra this season are, of course, not the scope of those other gruesome events. But, on a different level, one can find even these, with their charged emotional impact, reflected in Mahler's music. Thus, the selection of Mahler's Seventh as the concluding work of this season may have been more appropriate than originally intended.

The experiences of the DSO this season ranged from a work dispute resulting in a 12-week walkout to the recent shakeup of leadership, including the resignations of president Oleg Lobanov and chairman Walter McCarthy, and the departure of music director Gunther Herbig at the end of his present three-year contract.

MAHLER'S SEVENTH isn't his most pessimistic symphony — that designation is more appropriate for his Sixth. The Seventh, however, contains some of Mahler's most dissonantic passages. There is no musical Richter scale to measure the range of turbulence of a musical composition, but if such a device were available, Mahler's Seventh would most probably hit near the top.

Lorna Luft stars in Merman role

Luft married Hooker when she was 22.

Luft said she sees her sister frequently. "I stay at her house when I'm in New York." The sisters recently worked together at the Trump Casino in Atlantic City.

As a child, and the daughter of singing legend Judy Garland, "We traveled a lot. We went on the road," she said. Luft didn't think her life was unusual. "I used to watch shows like 'Leave It to Beaver.' I though that was bizarre," she said.

She appeared on a summer tour with her mother and her brother, Joe. Luft did her first Broadway show at 18, taking over for Shirley MacLaine in the musical hit "Promises, Promises." She has done numerous other stage musicals and plays, television and films. She played opposite Farrah Fawcett on stage in "Extremities." "I played a wimp," she said.

For two years, Luft was nurse Libby Kegler in "Trapper John, M.D." On the TV comedy-drama "Hooperman," she was cast as Peaches Markowitz (not Barkowitz) in an episode aired in December. Luft said the character may become a recurring one. "She was very sweet and pathetic." In that storyline, Peaches stole the ashes of a married man she had an affair with for 17 years, who had died.

THE VERSATILE star foresees the writers' strike continuing to September. "You're going to see a lot of reruns," she said. "That's why I'm in Birmingham."

She just put a new show together for club engagements. "You can't limit yourself nowadays," she said, adding that in addition to the writer's strike an actor's strike is on the way.

Luft also teaches apprentices at the Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre in Jupiter, Fla. "The whole theater is run by apprentices." Although invited to the recent wedding of Reynolds and actress Loni Anderson, Luft was unable to attend. "I was reheasing 'Girl Crazy.'"

Dynamic Lorna Luft sparkles as Kate, the plucky saloon singer hitched to a lovable loser. Her marvelous voice is best showcased in "Boy! What Love Has Done To Me!" and "Sam and Delilah," both using a more subdued orchestral accompaniment than the brassy "I've Got Rhythm."

PROJECTING AN all-American wholesomeness, Stroman is extremely likeable as Danny. He has a clear, pleasant tenor voice and a charming, disarming grin.

Despite his garish plaid suit, Jeffrey Blair Cornell isn't quite oily enough as Kate's husband, Slick, the gambler with the roving eye. However, he excels vocally, especially belting out his half of the "Treat Me Rough" duet.

Perky Liz Larsen is very believable as the unsophisticated Molly. Though her voice was uneven in Act I, by the second act it sounded rich and mellow in the wistful "But Not for Me."

Multitalented Oliver Woodall impresses with his vocal, dancing and comedic skills. He plays an improbable character with the improbable name of Gieber Goldfarb, the New York taxi driver who drove Danny to Arizona. Gieber stays on to become first a cowardly sheriff and eventually a local hero.

With his deep, deep bass and commanding presence, Barry Carl as Lank Sanders is the epitome of one very mean dude. Robert Oliver is hilariously silly as Lank's sidekick, Pete, his mouth ever askew at an incredible angle.

While the male chorus of cowboys both look and sound like polished professionals, the female chorus is decidedly lackluster. The chorus members' lyrics are drowned out by the orchestra at several spots in the first act. The portrayal of the Mexican characters, intended as camp, comes off as just plain amateurish.

No matter. "Girl Crazy" has got the unbeatable George and Ira Gershwin. Who could ask for anything more?

Barbara Michals teaches high school English in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 14 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York productions.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Presents Yet Another Great Invention.
Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village ANNUAL PASS
The new Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village Annual Pass might pale in comparison to the first Model T Ford or Edison's original light bulb. But, we think you'll agree, it's still a pretty nifty invention.
Not to mention a great deal. Because during our special limited time offer, from May 1-31, you can pick up an Annual Pass for $18 (that's a dollar less than one-time admission to the Museum and Village!). There's even a Pass for children priced at $9. Each lets you visit us every day for one full year, stay as long as you want and start saving money on your first visit.
And we guarantee you'll visit the Museum and Village again and again.
After all, there's more to see and do here than ever before. Including a completely new $6 million "Automobile in American Life" exhibition. The authentic Firestone Farm. And Edison's newly restored Menlo Park Lab.
That's in addition to our changing displays and a whole summer of special events.
So start thinking about buying an Annual Pass. And start dialing 271-9363 to order by credit card. Or start the car and head out to Dearborn for the great American museum that's also great fun.
Special Events This Summer:
• Muzzleloaders Festival June 18-19
• Colonial Music & Military Muster July 9-10
• Fire Engine Muster July 23-24
• Motor Muster August 13-14
• Old Car Festival September 10-11

Lake County becomes popular again

wine
Richard Watson

A scant five years ago this column could not have been written.

At that time about all we knew of Lake County, a dull and arid region immediately north of Napa, was that Fetzer had used grapes from there to make its least expensive zinfandels and cabernets. It was really not a known element in the California wine scene.

It had not always been thus. A hefty hundred years ago there were some 36 wineries in the country, with more than 7,000 acres planted to premium varietal grapes. However, Prohibition did them in during the 1920s, and the vineyards were turned into fruit and nut production, producing non-fermentable crops that kept the federal inspectors away and happy.

Now it seems it has suddenly come back to vinicultural life. While replanting began in the 1960s and the growth was strong, it is only recently that the region has gained favor from the public. Today there are some 3,000 acres under cultivation to grapes.

First action in the Lake renaissance began in the mid-1970s when 25 small area-growers joined together to form Konocti Winery and issue a 1974 cabernet and a 1975 riesling. The winery is still in business today, now in partnership with Parducci, and produces wines only from Lake County grapes. And it is proud.

ITS 1986 fume blanc, a consistent award-winner, is perhaps even better than its 1985 predecessor. In the last couple of years, the Konocti name (from the nearby volcanic mountain, which dominates the region to the south) has helped bring esteem to the county.

However, it was not until 1981 that a winery was bonded and alerted the nation to the true growth potential of the area. Hawaiian industrialist Orville Magoon (honestly!) established the Guenoc Winery (he originally named it Guenoc-Magoon but was fortunately dissuaded by some sensitive marketing people). The region he owns has the distinction of being a unique "appellation of origin," Guenoc Valley, the first single vineyard/single proprietor appellation in the United States.

Since the 1980 vintage, Guenoc has consistently produced high-quality chardonnay, cabernet, chenin blanc and a massive petite sirah, with sauvignon blanc added in 1982. The wines were initially made under the supervision of the Raymond family of Napa, a great pedigree. They are available here in Michigan, though their distribution has been less than aggressive over the years. Too bad. They are fairly priced and of substantial quality.

Three other wineries operating out of Lake are not available here: Cobb Mountain, transplanted (from the Bay area) Channing Rudd and Stuermer.

It has, however, been the winery-of-the-year story for the final Lake County winery that has made all of us take increasingly serious notice of the properties of the area. Kendall-Jackson has in the last year or so earned more prestigious awards than any other California winery, with gold medals beyond estimation, chiefly for its chardonnays.

ITS VINTNERS Reserve and Proprietors Reserve have been most favorably received nationally. To date, only the lesser of the two has been available locally (the Vintners at about $10), but I understand the barrel-fermented Proprietors is due for local release soon. It is worth finding.

Origins of the Kendall-Jackson label were most unusual. The initial releases were to be marketed under the name Chateau du Lac, and the winery was known by that name. I have never been able to ascertain whether any wine under that name was ever issued. The only time I ever saw a bottle of it was at the winery in the early 1980s where it was literally dumping, bottle by bottle, its whole initial production of sauvignon blanc. The wine had apparently undergone a secondary fermentation in the bottle and, as such, was most defective.

The name Kendall-Jackson was begun as a second label. Such was its almost overnight success that it became the operative name of the winery.

For now, Kendall-Jackson is Lake County nationally. Look now for others in that area to use that appellation as a badge of respect. They all owe much to K-J for regaining the vinicultural respect due the area.

Pocket pagers hit in new Senate bill

A bill passed by the Michigan Senate would strengthen the hands of school boards in the war on drugs.

"The bill puts into law the right of school districts to prohibit student use of pocket pagers," said its sponsor, Sen. William Faust, D-Westland. Pocket pagers are believed to be used by youthful drug dealers in their operations.

"The American Civil Liberties Union threatened to take 'em to court because the power wasn't in law," Faust said.

He added that cases in Detroit and to a lesser extent in the Van Buren district of western Wayne County provided the impetus to the bill.

"Today, they (school officials) confiscate pagers. So far, they have not been taken to court," Faust said after last week's Senate vote.

The bill was passed 36-0 and sent to the House.

How the strider walks on water nature

Timothy Nowicki

When I was a young man walking along streams and ponds, there were many "water spiders" — or so I thought they were.

They were really water striders. But since they looked like a spider, and the name sounded like spider, I thought that's what they were.

Actually, I saw their shadows on the bottom of the stream first, and then I looked to see what was causing such a shadow.

WATER STRIDERS are still common insects along slow moving streams today. Their shadows still attract attention to anyone who takes the time to look. But what causes those shadows?

On the bottom of the middle and rear legs of a water strider are small hairs. These hairs trap air which allows the lightweight insect to remain on the surface of the water.

Just as a dry needle can float on water when the surface tension is unbroken, so can the furry feet of the strider keep a strider high and dry.

Where each foot contacts the water, a slight depression is formed. When sunlight hits this depression it casts a shadow on the stream bottom.

ALL INSECTS have six legs. But the water strider casts only four leg shadows. The front pair of legs are shortened, often tucked under the head, and are used for manipulating food.

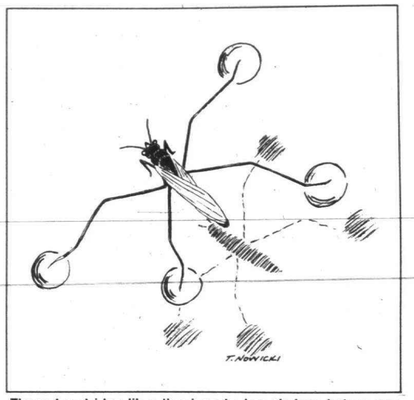
Long thin middle legs are used for locomotion all the time. Rear legs are used to steer most of the time, but can be used for rapid movement when needed.

Fine hairs on the feet of striders not only enable them to float on the surface of water, but they also perceive ripples in the water. Small insects eaten by water striders are located by following the waves they produce when on the water.

THIS ACUTE sensitivity to water vibrations is also used in attracting a mate.

Males produce vibrations of 10-30 per second with their middle legs to announce their intentions. Receptive females will then join the male at his chosen egg laying site.

It is believed that males produce different frequency signals to alert other males to stay away from their territories.



The water strider, like other insects, has six legs, but we see only four shadows.

THIS YEAR'S REQUIRED READING FOR 1,000,000 COLLEGE GRADUATES

Welcome to Real World 101.

You'd be surprised how many college students go from highlighting textbooks to highlighting the classifieds. The fact is, a staggering number of graduates are unable to secure a career in their field of study.

That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in a crowded job market.

If you're a student, you should seriously consider the Co-op Education Program.

Because after years of studying in college, the last thing you need is another reading assignment.

Co-op Education

You earn a future when you earn a degree.

Senate approves bills for court mediators

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Michigan Senate thinks there are faster, cheaper ways to settle disputes than going to court.

The Senate last week gave 33-3 approval to two bills to set up and pay for a system of trained mediators. Oakland County's Bar Association will be one of the first in line for a grant if the bill makes it through the House.

The only vocal dissent came from Sen. William Faust, D-Westland.

"There are only two dispute centers now in the state — in Washtenaw and Oakland counties. Yet this bill will assess $2 for every circuit court action from everyone," said Faust.

"And the decisions (of dispute resolution centers) are non-binding. This is poor legislation, and it's poor public policy."

Supporters, with their votes lined up, didn't bother to reply to Faust.

THE MEASURES are:

- House Bill 4823, which would set up a program of state grants to community groups who would train volunteers to resolve such disputes. Speakers said such problems as illegally parked cars and neighborhood eyesores could be resolved faster and more amicably with out-of-court procedures.
- Senate Bill 816, which would provide $700,000 for the program by tacking a $2 surcharge on all court filings. The law would "sunset" at the end of 1992 unless renewed by the Legislature.

The bills are tie-barred, meaning both must be passed before either one is enacted.

THE BILLS were reported out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is headed by two Oakland lawmakers — chairman Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, and Richard Fessler, R-Commerce.

Oakland Bar leaders had visited other states' alternative courts and came back with glowing reports. Attorney Marilyn J. Kelly of Birmingham; Joan E. Young, circuit court administrator, and Don Tucker, a Southfield attorney, chaired subcommittees that recommended the programs.

Rep. Richard Bandstra, R-Grand Rapids, sponsor of the House bill, said agencies in Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, Detroit and Flint are seeking to set up such centers.

Taking a problem to an alternative dispute resolution center would be voluntary, under the bill's provisions. A person could opt instead for the more expensive court procedure.

A $2 increase would go on top of these current filing fees: $40 to file a circuit court civil action, $20 for a district court complaint for recovery of premises, $30 for district court claims over $3,000, $20 for amounts of $601 to $3,000 and $10 for amounts up to $600.

IF ADOPTED, the bills would set up a fund in the state Treasury administered by the state court administrator.

An agency seeking a grant would have to provide neutral mediators with at least 25 hours of training in "conflict resolution techniques" and an internship approved by the court administrator.

Services would be free to indigents, but others could be asked to pay fees.

The agency would have to reject disputes involving violent felonies and drug-related prosecutions.

According to a Senate staff analysis:

"If an applicant met the eligibility requirements and guidelines and there were no other eligible applicants from the same count, the state court administrator would be required" to make a grant.

Unlike court cases, which are public, dispute resolution materials would be confidential during the process.

Rally to kick off Rouge cleanup

A rally and legislative conference Friday, June 3, at the University of Michigan-Dearborn will kick off Rouge Rescue '88.

The third annual volunteer Rouge River cleanup will occur Saturday, June 4.

Rouge 2000, a legislative conference, will be held 9:30-11:30 a.m. at Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane. A rally will be held noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Estate Powerhouse.

Both events are co-sponsored by Friends of the Rouge, the volunteer group coordinating the cleanup.

State and local elected officials will present details of a recently released remedial action plan for the heavily polluted river.

James Bredin, executive director of SEMCOG, the agency that compiled the plan, and Glenn Brown of the Wayne County Department of Health will discuss recommendations.

Other guest speakers will include Thomas Anderson, chairman of the Rouge River Basin Committee and author of the state's wetlands protection act.

UM-D is on Evergreen Road, across from Fairlane Town Center, Dearborn. Additional information is available by calling 593-5170.

Livonia middle schoolers fish for prizes

Bill Parker

LARRY RUZSAS enjoys fishing. In fact, he loves it. He loves the sport so much he wanted to spread the wealth, so to speak, and let some of his students at Livonia's Emerson Middle School in on all the fun.

Since Ruzsas can't take the entire Emerson student body out fishing by himself he did the next best thing — initiated the Fishin' Buddy Derby.

The derby teams one student with one adult — either a parent, grandparent or teacher — for a morning of fishing. This year's derby, the second annual, takes place Friday on Kensington Lake.

"I love fishing and it's a great sport for kids," explained Ruzsas. "I'm one of the student activity directors at Emerson, and I thought it would be great to take the kids fishing."

THE DERBY, features 35 teams, up from 12 teams last year, and runs from 8 a.m. to noon. The winning team is the team that checks in with the most combined weight of all the fish caught (Bass, of course, are ineligible since bass season doesn't open until Saturday). Prizes will also be awarded to the biggest fish of each species.

All participants receive a prize, ranging from a Zebco rod and reel and a $100 gift certificate from Hummingbird for first place team to fishing lures, patches and decals for 35th place. Trophies and ribbons will also be awarded.

This year, one of the students will team up with special guest Rick Collar, producer, director and host of PASS cable program "Fishing Michigan."

KENSINGTON LAKE is stocked full of fish ranging from blue gill, crappie and perch to carp, catfish, pike and walleye.

"There are some nice fish in that lake," Ruzsas said. "There are some northern (pike) in there over 20 pounds. They're (DNR) doing a nice job of stocking it."

Last year the biggest fish taken was a 26-ounce walleye. The winning team caught 52 ounces of fish.

"I like to get parents involved with the school activities," Ruzsas said. "Many parents don't take the time to take their kids fishing. This provides them with an opportunity to take the day off and take a kid fishing.

"Fishing is a great way to relax," Ruzsas continued. "You don't have to be 6-foot-5 and weigh 250 pounds either. Anyone can fish — man, woman, big or small."

A DAY IN THE PARK, a program to encourage minority use of Michigan state parks, began May 16 and will continue through Aug. 13 at four southeastern Michigan state parks — Pontiac Lake, Island Lake and Proud Lake recreation areas and Maybury State Park.

Along with providing recreation, the program will also help teach land and conservation ethics, promote environmental awareness and expose young people to the career opportunities available in the field of natural resources.

The "Day in the Park" program is open to any groups or organizations with primarily minority membership. There is no age restriction.

To register, contact Monica Terrell at (517) 373-1270.

SUSAN E. HENRY, a former employee of the Observer & Eccentric, has been appointed director of the Office of Public Relations of the Department of Natural Resources.

Henry joined the DNR in 1985 as community relations officer. She was promoted to chief of the Communications Section in July of 1986.

Henry served as federal liaison and grant administrator for Wayne County from 1983 to 1985. Prior to that she was a legislative assistant to former state Sen. Kerry Kammer.

She received the Special Conservation Award from the Michigan United Conservation Club in 1981 for her work on conservation and environmental legislation, including the Wetlands Protection Act.

MICHIGAN'S ANNUAL State Park motor vehicle permits are now available at all Meijer department stores.

The permits, which cost $10 and provide entry to all 86 state parks and recreation areas, are also available at state parks and recreation areas and the DNR Information Center, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing 48909 (517) 373-1220. The $1 senior citizen motor vehicle permit for persons age 65 and older, must still be purchased at a state park.

Most people call it "the yellow house."

But it's a must for single parents and working couples in Westland and Garden City.

The "yellow house" is really the Wayne-Westland Family Y's day care center where up to 40 preschoolers spend most of their day.

The center, part of the Y's complex of building on Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill, is licensed by the Michigan Department of Social Services.

Rose Mary Cartwright, the Y's program director, said the center also houses the Wayne-Westland school district's half-day kindergarten program for working couples and single parents.

The center occupies the entire building, which formerly housed the Y's entire program when the property was bought more than 15 years ago.

Besides Garden City and Westland, the children in the program come from as far away as Belleville, Romulus and Dearborn Heights.

Cartwright said the center is open from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. with the fee being $52 a week for Y members and $62 for non-members.

But no one is turned away because of lack of money, Cartwright said.

Most of the children in the center live in single-parent homes, she said.

Power outage tips offered

"Stormy Weather" may be the title of a classic love ballad, but this time of year in southeastern Michigan, the song takes on an entirely different meaning.

Stormy weather occurs frequently May through September, causing damage to electric utility lines, which results in temporary power outages. Detroit Edison has several suggestions to assure your safety and to minimize property damage and inconvenience while it is restoring electrical service.

- Always be prepared for an emergency. Keep handy a battery-operated radio, fresh replacement batteries, flashlight or candles and a first aid kit.
- If your electricity goes out, check circuit breakers and fuses to see if they need to be replaced or reset. Familiarize yourself with the procedures for replacing or resetting the devices. If there are no tripped circuits or blown fuses, see if your neighbors are without power and have reported the outage to Detroit Edison. If they haven't, call the number on your bill to report the problem. Be patient and try again if the lines are busy.
- Stay away from fallen poles and wires, hanging wires or anything the wires may be touching; report the problem to Detroit Edison.
- To avoid electrical overload when the power returns, disconnect appliances and turn off light switches. Leave one light switch on so you will know when the power returns.
- Keep refrigerator and freezer doors closed to avoid food spoilage. A well-filled freezer, if kept closed, will preserve food for two to three days.
- Dry ice will help keep food cold. Place the dry ice on cardboard on top of food packages in the freezer. Food also can be stored, with ice, in a bath tub, metal bushel basket, pail or insulated picnic hamper. Cover with newspapers, rugs or blankets. (Partially thawed food or food that still has ice crystals can usually be refrozen.)
- Stay out of flooded or damp basements. The water or moisture surrounding your furnace and/or electrical appliances may serve as a conductor of electricity.
- If you must leave your home for an extended period of time during a power outage, empty the contents of the refrigerator and leave the doors open. Turn off the main electrical and gas supply valves on your meter.
- When the power returns, wait a few minutes before turning on the lights and appliances and then turn them one at a time.
- There may be a low voltage condition, resulting in dim lights, a small television picture and appliances that operate slower than usual. Low voltage will not damage ordinary light bulbs, television sets or heating appliances. Motor-driven ap-

Chiefs scalp Huron

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Plymouth Canton shut out host Ann Arbor Huron 3-0 Wednesday in district soccer play, but coach Don Smith preferred to talk afterward about Saturday's district final against neighboring Plymouth Salem.

There wasn't much to say about Wednesday's game, which Canton dominated in raising its record to 12-2-1. Canton's Shannon Meath had more goals (three) than the River Rats had shots on goal (two).

Canton, the No. 5-ranked team in Class A, plays No. 6-ranked Salem at 1 p.m. Saturday at Concordia College in Ann Arbor.

The Rocks won their district opener Wednesday 7-0 over Belleville and are 10-2-4 overall. Salem's Jill Estey had four goals and Michelle Minton scored two.

"SATURDAY'S GAME with Salem will be up and down the field," Smith said. "They're not going to stay in the defensive end the whole game like Huron did today. It was hard to pick up the tempo today when nothing was going the other way.

"There is no comparison between Huron and Salem. Salem plays complete soccer, and we like to think we do, too. If we come out hustling Saturday, we'll be in good shape."

The Chiefs also will have to place their shots better than they did Wednesday if they hope to knock off Salem, said Meath, one of Canton's sharpest shooters.

Huron goalkeeper Heather Wall kept the River Rats close, stopping 26 of 29 shots. Wall stymied Meath and Jenny Russell five times each.

"Our shots were stinky," said Meath. "They were strong but right at her. It'll be a lot tougher Saturday."

RENEE RICE assisted on two of Meath's goals, and Russell earned an assist on Meath's other goal. Jen Saul played in the nets for Canton, which led 2-0 at halftime.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Becky Shankie controls the ball for Canton, a 3-0 winner over the River Rats.

Huron played a defensive game and never tested Saul. The River Rats, who finished the season at 10-10, knew they were outclassed.

"If we kept them under 10 goals I'd be happy," said Huron coach Brian Borde. "There was no secret about it. We played defensively to keep the game close. And it worked.

"They've got some good players, and I hope they keep up the good work. If they work as hard as they can, they'll beat Salem."

There's an interesting sidelight to Saturday's matchup with Salem. The girl Meath will try to put the ball by — Salem goalkeeper Ellen Schnackel — is Meath's best friend.

"We're all friends," Meath said. "My best friend is the goalie, but when we're playing, I don't think of her as my best friend. She's just another player on their team."

Salem sails past Tigers for easy win

Defending state champion Plymouth Salem aced its first test in the girls soccer tournament Wednesday, whitewashing Belleville 7-0.

The next one will be much more difficult, however, since the Rocks take on Plymouth Canton in a rematch of last year's district final.

Game time Saturday is 1 p.m. at Concordia College, located west of U.S. 23 on Geddes Road in Ann Arbor.

Salem won last year's contest 3-2 in overtime, but the Chiefs defeated the Rocks 2-1 when the teams met earlier this season.

"We're ready," Salem coach Ken Johnson said, alluding as much to mental as well as physical preparation.

"We played great soccer (Wednesday) . . . (Michelle) Minton, (Jill) Estey, (Sarah) Hayes. The passing was great."

Johnson suspects Saturday's game could again be decided by one goal, but he thinks Salem, 10-2-4, might have the edge with Jill Estey, who scored four goals and had two assists against Belleville.

"But you never know," Johnson said. "It'll be close; it'll be a good game, a real good final."

Minton, who had two goals and an assist, and Estey gave the Rocks a 2-0 halftime lead. Hayes accounted for the other goal, and Teri King, Amy Krajewski and Erin Harvey were credited with assists.

Goalkeeper Ellen Schnackel has eight shutouts this season and a school-record 26 for her career.

Miller advances to state in 400 dash, high jump

Angie Miller is the defending state champion in the girls high jump, but she set out to broaden her athletic horizons this year.

The Plymouth Canton standout's goal was to qualify for the Class A state meet in the 400-meter dash.

An excellent runner and not just a field-event specialist, Miller not only attained that goal Friday but did so in the difficult and highly competitive regional at Milford High School.

The Chiefs, as well as Plymouth Salem, compete annually in the same regional with such perennial state powers as Ann Arbor Pioneer, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor Huron — which, incidentally, finished 1-2-3 this year.

BUT MILLER rose to the top in that fast event and captured second place. Her time of 1:01.5 was just two 10ths of a second off the winning time recorded by a Huron runner.

"She's a competitor who's always looking for a new challenge," Canton coach George Przygodski said.

Miller, who will attend Western Michigan University on a track-and-field scholarship next fall, set up a possible repeat in the high jump, winning that event with a leap of 5 feet, 3¼ inches. She also anchored Canton's state-qualifying 800 relay team.

The Class A state meets, both girls and boys, will take place Saturday, June 4, at Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sherry Figurski anchored Canton's sixth-place, 3,200 relay team.

Miller ran in the relay before her first attempt in the high jump, passing on the starting height of 4-9. She cleared 5-0 and then went off to run in the open 400.

SHE RETURNED to the infield, jumped 5-1¼ and was the only one still alive in the high jump when she reached 5-3¼. Miller, who set the school record of 5-7¼ recently, then attempted another record-breaking feat at 5-8 but was unsuccessful.

Kristy Brugar, Heather Miller, Tricia Carney and Miller were second in the 800 relay with a 1:48.2 time. Ypsilanti was first in 1:44.2.

The Chiefs were fifth out of 16 teams, scoring 40 points to finish only six behind No. 4 Brighton. But going up against the Ann Arbor schools and Ypsilanti every year is something to which Canton must be reconciled.

"This is the highest we've ever finished in that regional, the most we've ever qualified," said Przygodski, emphasizing the team accomplishment. "It's a fact of life; we live near Ann Arbor.

"We can go to any other regional in the state and be competitive. But if you're going to be the best, you have to go against the best.

"YOU HAVE TO be as competitive as where you have to go. That's the bottom line," he added.

Finals next for qualifiers

Plymouth Salem and Canton fared well in the Class A boys track and field regional at Milford High School.

Both finished in the top third of teams competing in the 15-school meet, which was dominated by Ypsilanti and the Ann Arbor teams.

The Rocks, who qualified for state in four events, scored 46 points and took fourth place Friday. The Chiefs, with two state qualifiers, got 36 points and finished fifth.

Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor Huron were pitted against each other in a struggle for first place Friday, the Braves edging the River Rats 111-108¾. Ann Arbor Pioneer was third with 62 points.

SALEM'S JAY Blaylock, one of Observerland's top weightmen, will be going to state in the shot put and discus.

He was the regional champion in the latter, having a best throw of 149 feet, 3 inches, and he was runner-up in the shot with a toss of 50-3.

Canton's Roger Trice captured regional honors in the long jump, soaring 22 feet, 7¾ inches over the sand pit. The Chiefs will also go to state in the 3,200 relay, after finishing second to Ypsilanti.

Roger Parry of Salem is another qualifier after placing second in the high jump at 6-2¾, the same height as recorded by the Ypsilanti winner. However, Parry made it on his second jump, the opponent on his first.

The Rocks will take their 400-meter relay team to Eastern Michigan University for the Class A meet on Saturday, June 4, after finishing second in the regional at 44.6. The foursome is Masaki Sugimo, Greg Pahl, Garrett Bowie and LaMar Crayton.

In a non-qualifying role, Salem's Steve Burlison, Bowie, Crayton and Sugimo still added to the point total by grabbing thi rd place in the 800 relay at 1:32.3. Bowie also was third in the 200 dash at 23.4.

Late-inning hitting lifts Salem past Borgess

Plymouth Salem used some clutch hitting in the late innings Saturday to salvage a doubleheader split in non-league baseball play.

After dropping an 8-4 decision to home-run-hitting Birmingham Brother Rice in the first game, the Rocks rallied from a 9-6 deficit to beat Redford Bishop Borgess 10-9.

Plymouth Canton also split with the same teams but did so in reverse order. The Chiefs suffered their only shutout of the season in a 6-0 loss to Borgess, but they broke even with a 7-4 victory over Rice.

Salem broke a 9-9 tie with Borgess in the bottom of the ninth inning when Tim Lake, who had four singles in six at-bats, delivered a two-out, bases-loaded hit.

The Rocks, 16-7 overall, needed two runs in the sixth to pull within 9-8. Mike Stout's pinch-hit, two-run single was the key hit. Dennis Hanson and Lake had hit safely, and Todd Marion walked to load the bases.

With its back to the wall, Salem scored the tying run in the seventh on Dave Noonan's sacrifice fly. Jerry Heath, running for Chris Michalek who had singled, stole second and was wild pitched to third.

In addition to Lake's big game, Steve Woodard had a home run, double and three RBI, Eric Sheehan hit a solo homer and Stout was 2-for-2.

Bob Files got the pitching win after entering the game in the top of the seventh. He held the Spartans to one hit and no runs over three innings, and he also struck out five against one walk.

Howie Blanchard started and was relieved by Scott Sanchez. Both worked three innings, allowing a combined 12 hits.

The Borgess attack included Charles North's three-run homer and Steve Coffell's bases-loaded triple. Paul Dreslinski had two singles, a double and one RBI.

The Rocks were victimized by the bat of Rice's John Timko earlier. He hit a two-run homer in the first inning, a solo shot in the third and a three-run blast in the fourth, helping the Warriors to an 8-0 lead.

Steve Woodard got Salem on the scoreboard with an RBI single in the fifth, and Andy Gee and John Woodard hit run-scoring doubles in the seventh.

Rob Kowalski was the losing pitcher, giving up eight runs in four innings. Sanchez worked the last three.

Canton, 16-5 overall, scored six runs in the bottom of the fifth inning and erased a 3-1 deficit in its game with Rice.

The bats were booming in that inning as Ron Grob, Joel Riggs, Mike Culver and Scott Browne slugged RBI doubles. Derek Humphries tripled and drove in a run, and Jeff Kugelman added an RBI single.

Groh, who drove in the first run with a third-inning single, and Browne were 2-for-3. Rice's Jeff Calcaterra hit two home runs for three RBI.

Canton's Mike Sulak was the winner, working three innings in relief of starter Brian Paupore. Sulak held the Warriors to two hits.

Borgess jumped on the Chiefs early with a three-run first inning. The 12-hit attack was keyed by Dreslinski, Loyd D'Angelo and Tim Pilut with two hits apiece, and Coffell hit a home run to give him 30 RBI for the year.

Riggs had two of Canton's three hits off Craig Karankiewicz, who pitched his third shutout in a row and fifth of the year. He struck out nine and walked three.

Geoff Allen was losing pitcher, turning in a complete game. He fanned three and walked four.

In a 10-7 win over Livonia Churchill last Friday, Kevin Learned, Humphries, Culver and Riggs had two hits apiece.

One of Humphries' hits was a two-run homer, and Learned had a two-run single. Mikio Tanaka and Browne also knocked in runs with a sacrifice fly and a single, respectively.

Chris Kennedy, 5-1, pitched six innings to get the win, and Sulak worked the seventh for a save.

In predistrict play Friday, Canton will be host to West Bloomfield, and Salem will play at home against Walled Lake Western. Both games start at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the teams will be co-host for the Plymouth Invitational. Ann Arbor Pioneer and Huron will pay a visit to Centennial Educational Park that day.

Plymouth Christian is just one game below the .500 mark after Tuesday's 22-11 rout over host Westland Huron Valley.

Elaine Priebe worked five innings to earn the win for Christian, now 8-9 overall.

Tamara Tilly had two hits for Plymouth, and Allison Schram, Tammy Rowe and Kathy Loomis collected one each.

Priebe also defeated Hamtramck Immaculate Conception 22-2 on Monday in a game played at Griffin Park.

This time, Trish Tilly led the hitting attack with two safeties, while Missy Goodchild and Tamara Tilly had one hit apiece.

PLY. CHRISTIAN 9, OAK. CHRISTIAN 4: Scott Seeley's bases-loaded hit was the game-winner as Plymouth Christian improved its record to 6-14 Monday.

Freshman Gavin Baisch and John Pierce were 2-for-3 with one and two RBI, respectively. Ben Odom, the winning pitcher, had a triple and an RBI.

Odom scattered eight hits over seven innings, struck out seven and walked two.

Jeff Vos slides into third base during Plymouth Christian's 9-4 win over Oakland Christian. The Eagles have struggled since losing Jeff Leach with an early-season injury but notched win No. 6 Monday.

Blazers advance to state predistrict

Livonia Ladywood earned its way into pre-district play, defeating Southfield, 14-4, in a pre-district softball qualifier Tuesday.

Ladywood, 15-12 overall, plays at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Farmington Mercy in a pre-district game.

Krista Campeau picked up five RBI for host Ladywood on one hit. Campeau was walked twice with the bases loaded.

Ann Marie Thomas was 2-for-3 with two RBI for the Blazers, and Dana Domanski's three-run triple highlighted a six-run second inning.

Shannon White struck out four, walked two and allowed three hits in five innings for Ladywood.

GARDEN CITY 12, LIVONIA CHURCHILL 0: Kristen Wasil tossed a one-hitter and fanned nine against host Livonia Churchill, in a non-league rout.

The Cougars' hit total of 12 matched their runs scored and their overall record improved to 16-7. Churchill remained winless.

Jennifer Williams, Amy Thompson, Stacy Felts and Wasil each collected two hits for GC. Wasil, Thompson and Felts drove in three runs apiece, and Williams knocked in a pair.

Garden City knocked off Taylor Kennedy, 3-2, Monday at home. The Cougars trailed 2-0 after 5⅓ innings, but Felts belted a two-run double and an RBI single by Kim Falkowski decided the non-league game.

Wasil again picked up the win, tossing a five-hitter.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN 11, FARMINGTON 5: An eight-run first inning Tuesday lifted host Livonia Franklin to the easy win.

Sue Stack earned her seventh win, going the distance on the mound for Franklin. The Patriots are 8-14 overall, 6-10 in the WLAA.

Lisa Rockafellow suffered the loss for the Falcons, surrenduring 10 runs on 10 hits in six innings of work. She walked eight.

Rose O'Bey, Kim Godfrey and Lisa Sherry had two hits each to lead Franklin's hitting attack. O'Bey and Godfrey contributed two RBI apiece and Sherry scored twice.

Plymouth Canton capped an outstanding week of tennis competition by placing third in the regional tournament at Ann Arbor Huron last Friday.

The Chiefs, who won the Western Lakes championship earlier in the week, were in with some of the Class A heavyweights, making their high finish an impressive performance.

Only state-ranked Huron (No. 6) and Ann Arbor Pioneer (No. 7) did better than Canton, which made its first appearance in the state rankings at No. 9 this week.

Huron had 24 points, Pioneer 21 and the Chiefs 16. Only the top two teams from each regional, however, advance to the state finals on Friday, June 3, in Midland.

"We might have gotten another one or two points," Canton coach Jim Hayes said, "but we had a real good season.

"WE ONLY LOST (in dual meets) to North Farmington and Huron, two of the state's best teams."

The Chiefs were in the semifinals at every flight and the finals at two. Jim Gallagher and Steve Schmidt were finalists at Nos. 3 and 4 singles, respectively.

The semifinalists were Mike Burt, one singles; Dan Orlandi, two singles; Rich Gurchak and Matt Kraft, one doubles; Dan Nowicki and Brian Schmidt, two doubles; and Tony Spagnoli and Chris Harper, three doubles.

Steve Schmidt and the No. 2 doubles team forced a third set before being eliminated in their final matches.

Graduation will take a toll on a team that has helped Canton win two of the last three WLAA titles. Hayes loses Burt, Steve Schmidt, Gurchak, Kraft and Nowicki.

"I'd like to keep all of them, but they have to grow up and move on," Hayes said.

Salem's league champions at No. 1 doubles, Scott Hobbs and Matt Lore, were beaten in the semifinals by Pioneer, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. In earlier matches, they beat John Glenn (6-1, 6-0) and Adrian (2-6, 6-1, 6-0).

Bob Barr also advanced to the semifinals at No. 2 singles, beating Bill Ryan of Temperance Bedford and David Burke of Brighton before falling victim to Huron's Chris Trumbull.

Salem girls finish 7th

In addition to the state qualifiers, the 1,600 relay team of Miller, Brugar, Heather Meyer and Carney was third and ran 4:13.0.

Carney was fourth in the 400 dash (1:02.3), Tonya Walaskay fifth in the long jump (15-9¾) and the 3,200 relay squad of Lori Penland, Missy Jasnowski, Marnie Smith and Sherry Figurski sixth.

Salem had 17 points and got seventh place in the Milford regional. The Rocks will send their 3,200 relay team to the state meet after meeting the qualifying standard of 10:16.4.

Only the top two in each event automatically qualify, but the foursome of Amy Hobgood, Jenny Sample, Kim Mishler and Traci Thomas recorded a fourth-place time of 9:59.8.

SHELLEY BOHLEN was third in the shot put and discus. She threw the shot 35-11¾ and the discus 109-5. The girls Class A qualifying distances are 36-7 and 114-7, however.

In addition, the Rocks were sixth in the 800 relay as Kim Plooucha, Vikki Neuhardt, Nikki Wygonik and Smith finished the race in 1:52.58.

Borgess league champ

Shelley Blanding set a Catholic League record in the discus with a toss of 125 feet Tuesday, leading Redford Bishop Borgess to its first girls championship since 1983 in a meet at Macomb Community College.

Borgess, which finished second three consecutive years, scored a team-high 120 points. Rounding out the top five was defending champion Dearborn Divine Child (83), Farmington Hills Mercy (76⅓), Detroit Benedictine (62) and Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher (33). Livonia Ladywood was ninth with 15.

Blanding, a senior, also won shot put, nosing out Mercy's Charese Sanders with a toss of 37-4. The Borgess standout also teamed up with Angie Ross, Philana Hooper and Kim Mitchell to win the 400 relay in 51.0.

Ross added a victory in the 100 hurdles (15.7) and also combined with Akoco Boubai, Lyshay McGowan and Felicia Bunton to win the 1,600 relay in 4:19.1.

McGowan also figured in two firsts, winning the individual 800 in 2:31.0, while teaming up with Boubai, Bunton and Mitchell to win the 800 relay in 1:48.4.

Borgess's Michelle Gayney captured the 1,600 in 5:33.3 and finished second behind Mercy freshman Carrie Walton in the 3,200 run. Walton was second behind Gayney in the 1,600.

Another high Mercy finisher was Jeannette Turner, who took second in the discus (105-6).

Ladywood's Rebecca Willey placed in the high jump. The Blazers' 1,600 relay team gained sixth.

Spartans going to state

tennis

Livonia Stevenson needed one point to get into the state Class A tennis championships, and juniors John Bailey and Jeff Wiegel delivered Saturday at the regional tournament held at Schoolcraft College.

Bailey and Wiegel, the Spartans' No. 1 doubles team, broke Redford Catholic Central's domination in the regional by defeating Don Moll and Shawn Matthews for the title, 6-2, 6-3.

As expected, Redford CC scored 27 of a possible 28 points in racking up another regional crown.

The win by Bailey and Wiegel, now 14-2 on the year, was important because it enabled Stevenson to tie North Farmington for second place with 16 points each (see statistical summary) and gain a berth in the state tourney, set for June 3-4 in Midland.

CC was missing Mark Burnside at No. 1 doubles, who sat out the tournament with the chicken pox. But Matthews, his replacement, and Moll, never got going against Bailey and Wiegel, who according to Stevenson coach George Croll, "just played super."

IT'S ONLY THE second trip to the state meet for Croll, now in his seventh season as the Spartans' coach.

"This is going to be a great experience for our kids because they're young," Croll said. "We have only three seniors and this is going help us for next year."

The top player in the tournament, CC senior Steve Campbell, captured his fourth straight regional crown with a 6-1, 6-3 victory (at No. 1 singles) against Stevenson senior George Gerigk, the Western Lakes Activities Association champ, who lost for only second time in 21 matches.

Campbell, who has only two losses in four years of high school tennis, reached the final with a 6-0, 6-1 win over freshman Lamar Gray of Southfield. Gerigk, meanwhile, upended North Farmington's Josh Hoffman in the other semifinal, 6-4, 6-4.

At No. 2 singles, CC's Tony Mikulec took the title with a 7-5, 6-3 triumph over North's Jay Graff.

At No. 3 singles, Marko Habekovic, the Catholic League champion, downed Livonia Franklin's Scott Smith in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2.

PAUL BOZYK made it a clean sweep for CC when he defeated North's Joe Howitt for the No. 4 title, 6-2, 6-0.

Although CC yielded the No. 1 doubles crown, the Shamrocks took Nos. 2 and 3.

Joe Derhake and Darin Wymer scored a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Stevenson's Shawn Herbst and Bob Holycross (No. 2 flight), while Matt Bartels and Kevin Brady took out the Spartans' Bob Dimitriou and Alan Paterson, 6-2, 6-4 (No. 3 flight).

In the semifinals, Stevenson won all three of its crucial doubles matches against Southfield-Lathrup, which finished fourth in the team standings with 11 points.

In other regional action, Redford Thurston's Dan Kanopsky reached the finals at No. 2 singles in the Class B regional Friday at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook before losing to Greg Artz of the host Cranes, 6-1, 6-0.

Cranbrook scored all 28 possible points to take the team title. Farmington Harrison was second with 19 followed by Warren Fitzgerald (12), Royal Oak Shrine (10) and Thurston (8).

Thurston's No. 2 doubles team, Mike Hight and Al Kohen were eliminated in the semifinals by Cranbrook's Bobby Kim and Dan Lyne.

JG's Wilson outduels Freimund for 1-0 win

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Pitcher Beth Wilson took the game ball home with her Tuesday after Westland John Glenn claimed the Western Lakes Conference softball title over host Northville.

Glenn defeated Northville, 1-0, in eight innings of a pitchers' duel that left the ball looking like new.

"I'm going to have everyone sign it . . . it doesn't look like it's been hit much," said Wilson.

A mild understatement. Glenn managed just two hits off Northville's junior pitching sensation Amy Freimund while Wilson surrendered four.

Still, the Rockets become WLAA champs for the first time, scoring an unearned run on a wild pitch in the eighth inning. Glenn tied a school record with 19 wins and will go for a milestone Friday when it hosts Dearborn Edsel Ford in a pre-district qualifier.

The Rockets are 19-3 overall and finished the WLAA season at 14-2. Northville, which failed to score with runners on second and third and none out in the sixth, fell to 13-3 in the WLAA.

Freimund baffled Glenn hitters much of the game, allowing only a single to Michelle Myers in the first and a bunt single to Tracy Martin to start the eighth. That's when trouble mounted for Northville.

softball

MARTIN WENT TO second on a sacrifice bunt by Kristin Beeny. Freimund then was her own nemesis, hesitating when she picked up a sacrifice bunt attempt by the next batter, Tracy Stockwell, sending Martin to third and making Stockwell safe at first.

Freimund, who walked none, uncorked a wild pitch to Brenda Coots, scoring Martin with the game's only run.

"When games are so close, that happens," said Glenn coach Linda Jiminez. "You hate to have someone lose like that. Their pitcher threw a super game. She was around the plate and threw the ball where she wanted to."

A conference crown was the last of three goals set by Glenn at the beginning of the year.

"Our number one goal was to be a team," said Jiminez. "Number two, we wanted to get 20 wins. And the third goal was, if we accomplished all of the above, we would be conference champs."

Jiminez gave credit to Wilson, who played second base last year, and Denise Gumke, who vacated an outfield position this year to fill the void at second left by Wilson.

"Pitching was a big question," Jiminez said. "We asked Beth to pitch, and she said, 'Anything to help the team.' And the same with Denise.

"WE'VE HAD people move into different positions without complaining."

Northville coach Bob Gerlach was pleasant afterward, even though the Mustangs could have, and perhaps, should have won this game in the sixth.

With Lisa Siemasz on third base and Jeannine Lagrad on second for Northville, Wilson retired three consecutive Mustang hitters.

A fly ball out by Corey Kincer ended Northville's hopes in the sixth.

"The fly ball came one out too late," Gerlach said. "And unfortunately, our first out in the sixth was a ground ball to their best athlete (shortstop Lolita Burgess).

"They won it. They deserved it. Give them all the credit. We won the West Division (9-1) this year, and we had never done that before, and here we are playing today for the conference title. And what's nice is we have Amy back for another year."

CC lacrosse champ

Despite being lowest seed in the upper bracket, Redford Catholic Central came away with the Midwest Lacrosse Association playoff championship last weekend in Cleveland, Ohio, defeating Sewickley Academy of Pittsburgh, Pa. in the final, 4-3.

Todd Hoffman scored the game-winner from Todd Sinelli. It was Hoffman's second goal of the game. Sinelli and Darren Murray also scored goals in the victory, while Chris Hojnicki contributed three assists.

CC, which finished fourth in the in the 10-team league with a 6-3 record, opened the playoffs by upsetting No. 1 seed and regular season champion Worthington, Ohio.

Jerry Rioux scored his second goal of the game on an assist from Hojnicki, enabling CC to gain a 6-5 overtime victory.

Sinelli scored twice in the upset, with Murray, Hoffman and Stan Zajdel contributing goals. Hojnicki added three assists to finish with six for the two-game playoff.

Sewickley reached the championship against CC with an 8-7 win over Birmingham Brother Rice.

CC finished the year with an 8-3 overall record.

Wayne trackmen win league

For the third straight season, Wayne Memorial has captured the Wolverine A boys track meet title.

The Zebras edged rival Monroe, 155-154½ Tuesday in a thrilling meet that came down to the final relay event before being decided. Belleville finished a distant third. This also marked the third straight year that Monroe has won its own regional, but not a league title.

Wayne trailed Monroe by 1½ points entering the 1,600 meter relay, but the team of Tom Faison, Corey Wilson, Darnell Hill and Steve Hearndon clocked a 3:22.3 to win the title.

Wayne's 400 and 800 relay teams also claimed first-place finishes. The 400 team that finished in 43.9 included Aaron Allen, Shayler Barnes, Dave Rodriguez and Tony Robertson. The 800 team of Rodriguez, Wilson, Wendell Smith and Hearndon crossed the tape at 1:31.6.

Wayne also scored big in the 110 high hurdles, where the Zebras grabbed all but one of the top six places. Wilson finished ahead of the field in the high hurdles at 14.4.

VAAL show winners include Jeri Fellwock (left) of Farmington Hills and Dawn Johnson of Livonia. Fellwock captured a first in oil and acrylics with "Night Riders." Johnson's winning entry was "Adam's Apples," which won best-of-show honors. A reception Sunday, open to the public, kicks off a monthlong exhibit in the Livonia City Hall.

Reception opens VAAL art show

Quality work is the hallmark of the spring art show now on display featuring works by members of the Visual Art Association of Livonia.

That was the commentary by the show's judge, Leslie Masters, noted area art instructor, of the 100 entries in the annual VAAL show.

The exhibit, in Livonia's City Hall, continues through Thursday, June 9. A reception 2-5 p.m. Sunday will honor the artists. The public may attend.

Best-of-show honors went to Dawn Johnson for "Adam's Apples." Johnson also took an honorable mention in the oil-acrylics category for a painting, "Church Street."

Winners in the oil-acrylics category were: Jerri Fellwock, first for "Night Riders;" Marge Stock, second for "Flag Day;" Carol Jo Wharton, third for "Winter Hill." Honorable mentions went to Judy Gibbs, Stock with two, Mary Sharry, Fellwock, Edna Earp and Eve Samra.

TOP HONORS IN the watercolor-mixed media category went to Elbert Weber for his "1910 Buick." Second place went to Eileen Bibby for "Up, Up & Away." Marge Masek took third-place honors with "Money Plant."

Honorable mentions in that division went to: Judy Gresser, Shirley Ceasar with two, Audrey Harkins and Julia McGrath.

In the graphics-collage-drawing-pastels-pencil-pen-and-ink category, Norbert Davert took first place; Bladen McClelland, second; Yvette Goldberg, third. Honorable mentions went to Ellen Kallick, Davert, Goldberg, McClelland.

Johnson, who is a member of the pioneer Wolf family of Livonia, has a degree in commercial art, but "with three small children, not much time for artwork."

Color him bold

Art deco pieces has artist on fast track

By Barbara Ziemba
special writer

JOHN KIRITSIS and his wife, Toby, were carefully removing pieces of art from the walls of their Livonia home and shrouding them in old sheets prior to their exhibition in a recent art show.

"I just don't have enough pieces made to give them, so I have to give them ours," he explained apologetically.

A bailiff with the 36th District Court, Kiritsis is making a name for himself in the local art community.

He specializes in creating unique art deco style cars and colorful, ultra-modern wall hangings that are being snapped up by collectors almost as fast as he finishes them.

High gloss enamel paints are used in all of Kiritsis' designs, and his love of bold color is a hallmark of his work.

JUST AS IMPORTANT to this artist is the construction and versatility of his designs. Here, Kiritsis' no-nonsense, matter-of-fact nature is plainly evident, making for an interesting blend of whimsy and practicality.

Beauty may be only skin deep, and he devotes an equal amount of attention to constructing pieces that will stand the test of time. The cars have coil springs on all four wheels, and the wall hangings are glued as well as nailed together for maximum durability. Kiritsis proudly states that he made his pieces to withstand a good dunking in a washtub.

The Livonia artist began his second career out of a two-fold need. "When my wife and I moved into this house, we needed to redecorate because this house is modern, while the old house was Early American," he said. The couple visited local art shows and galleries, but they didn't find what they were looking for.

"I had been making these wall hangings for years so I told my wife, 'I'm going to experiment and try making some of these for us.' The first few I made I used for firewood," he said with a grin.

THE SECOND REASON for Kiritsis' budding career was his aversion to television. "I'm no couch potato" he stated matter-of-factly. "I've got to go downstairs and work. I can't just sit there." The wall hangings are slats of pine of varying lengths that are glued and nailed together. The colorful pieces are reminiscent of the childhood game "pick-up sticks." The frames on some of the pieces are camoflaged behind the sticks giving the work a free floating quality. On other pieces, the frame is visible through the sticks, and it becomes part of the art itself.

Another Kiritsis style utilizes blocks of brightly painted wood set in the wooden frame. Kiritsis designed both styles so that they could be hung horizontally or vertically, giving the buyers more options for their money.

Kiritsis' style flows easily from the modernistic wall hangings to the art deco automobiles, perhaps because the elements of bright colors and the materials used are the same.

When asked where he gets his inspiration for his work, the artist grinned and pointed to his forehead. "I've got so many ideas in my head it'll take five years to do them."

"MY PARENTS USED to buy me model kits, but instead of following the directions, I'd rebuild them. I can't stand following directions. You know, 'Put slot A into slot B,' " he laughed. "I made all kinds of things then."

Toby Kiritsis played an instrumental role in launching her husband's artistic careeer. She and a friend visited the Nawara Gallery in Walled Lake, and on a whim showed some of her husband's work to the gallery's owner, Lucille Nawara. Nawara loved what she saw, and Kiritsis was on his way.

BOTH HUSBAND AND wife exchanged rueful looks when asked how they thought of names for the pieces.

"That's not always so easy," admitted John Kiritsis while Toby noded in agreement. "I keep lists of names when they pop into my mind," she said with a smile.

Kiritsis' pieces have an uncanny way of practically walking out of galleries or the Kiritsis home.

"We have a 'day after Christmas' party one year, and (one of the guests) had to have the piece that was hanging on one of our walls. I made the piece especially for the room, but she had to have it," he laughed. Often, his works don't make it onto display at local art shows because patrons buy them before they are exhibited.

At a recent art show, Kiritsis said, "A friend of one of the volunteers told them, 'Don't hang that one up,' " he laughed. "They weren't going to let it get away by hanging it up."

BESIDES THE NAWARA Gallery, the Ariana Gallery in Birmingham also carries Kiritsis' works. They have also been exhibited at the Gryphon Gallery in Grosse Pointe and the Hooberman Gallery in Birmingham. Local art shows that have exhibited his pieces are the Sholem Aleichem Institute Art Show, a juried art show, and the Birmingham Temple Art Show.

Incredible detail — particularly in the paint jobs — is part of the reason John Kiritsis' work is being snapped up by collectors almost as fast as he finishes the art deco pieces.

Showhouse — a first

Birmingham Community Women's Center's first designer showhouse, "Gem of a House"in Carillon Hills on Long Lake in Bloomfield Hills, is open through June 12.

The use of gemstone colors as a theme for the rooms — including ruby, emerald, sapphire, topaz, aquamarine — may make a lot of people think or look twice.

Instead of the muted monochromatic backgrounds that are so prevalent, the rooms in this house by Bosco Building Inc., are done with brilliant wall coverings against natural wood paneling, cove molding, dental molding, fluted pilasters and six panel doors. It's more of a European look — a long way from the palette of California and Southwest styles.

Participating designers are: Joan Bawden of Joan Bawden Interiors, kitchen; Ann Brasch of Clutter Control, master-bedroom closet; Linda Bruce and Laurie Burt of Curiosity Shoppe Ltd., library; Pat Purcell of Englanders, dining room;

Also, P.K. Fields of P.K. Fields Interiors, bed and bath; Kaye Bauman of Jeff Fontana Designs, in-law suite; Mary Grimaldi of Inside-Out, powder room; Sheila Hall of She Interiors and Nancy Laube of Laube Interiors, designer retreat; Beverly Pierson and Kasey Pierson of Pierson Interiors, master bedroom; Kathy McCreight and Joe Bloche of Puffs Interiors, back hall, bath and utility room; and Pam Edwards and Carol Kulcher of Town and Country, living room.

The house is 4,500 square feet. It has four bedrooms, 5½ baths, living room, formal dining room and library. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are available at the showhouse, all Ticketmaster outlets or by calling the Women's Center, 642-1132. There is a boutique and a tea room. Art by members of the Creative Council is displayed in the foyer, in some of the other rooms and in the boutique.

Long Lake is closed west of Telegraph. Take Franklin Road to Long Lake, turn east, pass the no-through traffic sign and watch for Carillon Hills on the south side of Long Lake, opposite Kirk in the Hills.

Powder room, done by Mary Grimaldi of Inside-Out, is in sparkling jewel tones. The wall covering is shades of red and soft greens.

Photographers should train, too

Monte Nagler saw a lot in this late evening scene of Lake Tahoe. His eye, and ultimately the lens, caught a dramatic arrangement of shapes and patterns that make an exciting backlit landscape.

Photographers, like all creative artists and top athletes, require practice. A concert violinist works daily on hand and sound techniques. A gymnast practices routines constantly in order to perfect a performance. Photographers need their special kind of practice, too.

First, a photographer needs to practice the technical skills necessary to make a picture. You must know the operation of your camera thoroughly. Use of shutter speeds, aperture control, proper focus techniques, characteristics of different films — all these and more must become second nature to you.

Knowing what each of your lenses will do is important. Many shots that require spontaneity may be lost if you have to fuss and deliberate too long over the controls of your camera.

Second, and of utmost importance, is to practice seeing picture possibilities. A creative photographer sees picture potential in even the most ordinary of scenes. The creative photographer looks for the unusual, picks out small details, sees textures and shadows, responds to arrangements of color.

A CREATIVE photographer relates to his or her subject, even builds a relationship with the subject. You must learn to let your subject speak to you, and, in turn, you must learn to listen. Practice being open and receptive to the world around you.

Famous photographer Minor White once said, "The creative photographer must have a receptive state of mind, not unlike a sheet of film itself, seemingly inert, yet so sensitive that a fraction of a second's exposure conceives a life in it."

Practice looking at things in new ways. Study your subject from all angles and in different lighting conditions. An unusual camera or different lens may be just the thing to make your photograph stand apart.

FINALLY, to stay in practice, use your camera often. A tennis player, for instance, will keep his skills by spending hour after hour on the court.

Similarly, you must keep in top photographic shape, by taking camera in hand and practicing on the abundance of subjects around you.

All of your shots may not be masterpieces. Maybe only a few images per roll will satisfy you.

That's okay. The important thing is to practice with your camera and let yourself be moved by the subjects that excite you.

Pictures using a new photographic technique will be a highlight of the exhibit of work by O&E photography columnist Monte Nagler on Friday, June 3, at the Jacobson's store in Livonia, Six Mile and Newburgh roads.

While known primarily for his large-size images — which will also be on display — the exhibit will show a unique process Nagler has been refining.

Nagler will be present to answer questions.

Family entertainment will highlight the fair both days 1-4 p.m. Saturday has a country folk theme with the Cobblestone Fair Country Dancers performing with live music. Sunday afternoon will feature stylized jazz by Continuum. Food will be available. Parking is free. Tours of the restored 19th-century farm house will be offered from noon to 5 p.m. for a nominal charge. There is no admission charge for the fair itself.

● VINTAGE ARTISTS
"Vintage Artists of Michigan," an exhibition of older Michigan artists, sponsored by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging and the Michigan Council for the Arts, will be held at Madonna College, Livonia through May 29.

The free exhibit is in the Exhibit Gallery, Library Wing. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 1-4 p.m. weekends.

● DOLLS EXHIBIT
16 Hands Gallery of Contemporary Crafts will host an exhibit of dolls, featuring four contemporary dollmakers: Deborah Banyas, Constance Harper, Steward Wilson and Georgia Landau. The exhibit continues through June 25.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 1-8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The gallery is in downtown Ann Arbor at 119 W. Washington, in the Earle Building, and across from the Old German restaurant.

● ISRAELI ART
"Three Generations of Israeli Art" will be on exhibit at Gallery Yakir, 29080 Inkster, Southfield. Show hours are noon to 5 p.m. or by appointment. For more information, call 352-4290.

● GLASS EXHIBITION
Jean Sosin, noted glass collector, is the curator for the exhibition "Glass: Sculpture and Mixed Media" now in the main gallery of the Detroit Artists Market. In selecting work to be exhibited, Sosin has stressed works in which glass has been extended beyond the concepts of decor and function.

Among the 34 artists represented in the show are Herb Babcock, head of the glass department at the Center for Creative Studies; Richard Ritter and Sidney Cash, glass artists who helped develop the glass movement in Detroit and have since moved to other cities; Barbara Wallace and Albert Young.

The Artists Market is at 1452 Randolph in downtown Detroit's Harmonie Park, one block southeast of the Broadway station of the Detroit People Mover.

● CLASSIC STEINS EXHIBITION
A fascinating show of "Classic Steins: The Stroh Brewery Co. Collection" will be open to the public May 25 through July 10 at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The exhibits may be viewed Wendesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Guided tours are available at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. on the same days. Admission to the exhibit is included in the cost of the regular Ford House tours, which are Wednesday through Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Summer workshops are offered

The University of Michigan School of Art will sponsor a series of workshops this summer for students and professional artists. The workshops, scheduled for June 27 to July 8, July 11-29 and Aug. 1-12, will be available for credit or non-credit and will meet Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A highlight of the first session will be a workshop in frescos offered by Lucien Block and Stephen P. Demitroff, former assistants to Diego Rivera, modern master of the fresco form.

Other workshops in the first session will include "Papermaking: Theory and Practice," "Photographs after the Fact," "Computer Animation," "Graphic Design: Rhetorical Procedures and Devices," and "Life Drawing."

IN THE SECOND SESSION, Jim Hopfensperger, assistant professor of art at Pennsylvania State University, and Masako Hamaguchi of the Gerret Reitvelt Academie in Amsterdam, will lead a workshop in functional and non-functional metals and jewelry.

Other workshops will include "Clay: On and Off the Wall," "Aqueous Media," "Collage/Assemblage," "Computers for Artists," "Graphic Design: Corporate Identity" and "Mixed Media in Asian Art."

Japanese traditional woodblock printing will be offered in the third session by Akira Kurosaki from Kyoto, Japan. Kurosaki has lectured at Harvard University and exhibited worldwide.

New York Times illustrator Richard Mock also will present a workshop during the third session on "The Essence of Painting."

Other third-session workshops will include "Structure and Surface in Three-Dimensional Textiles," "Computer-Aided Design," "Photography," "Graphic Design: Advanced Typography" and "Figure Drawing."

The deadline for registration is three weeks before the first day of each workshop. Workshops with insufficient enrollment may be cancelled, so early registration is requested.

Regular school of art courses also will be offered during the spring-summer term. For a workshop brochure, application form or information about registration and fees, call 764-0397.

Robert M. Meisner

Q. I am in the process of forming a corporation for the purchase of real estate and am concerned about the benefits which I can get as a corporation as opposed to a partnership, not necessarily from a tax standpoint. Can you be helpful?

A. The major benefit to forming a corporation, under the state law, is to insulate the shareholders from personal liability for the acts and deeds of the corporation. Obviously, there are ways by which a creditor of the corporation can seek to pierce the corporate veil to obtain personal liability for the shareholders by saying it is a under-capitalized corporation and/or the officers and directors of the corporation have personally committed a wrong by which they should be personally liable.

A corporate form of government, however, does provide benefits by way of insulation from personal liability, in most instances, as well as many tax benefits still attributable to corporations.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law.

David Messing

MY THREE most favorite topics to write about are my family, art and food. Because I frequently write about diets, people often say upon seeing me for the first time, "Hey, you're not that fat."

I still don't know how to take that one. I need to lose 20 pounds to fit my doctor's height/weight chart.

I just tried a new diet where you listen to your body and eat what it tells you to eat. So I waited until I was hungry and then I just sat there and listened. It was 1 p.m. on a sunny day my body clearly said, "I need the cream in a Hostess cupcake. I require the chocolate cake in a Hostess cupcake (it does contain lecithin, you know) but pick off the white swirly icing from the top. I don't need the white icing today."

I followed my body's orders to the tee! Then it told me "Salt . . . . I need salt. That cupcake was an overload of sugar. I need meat and a pickle. Yes, fries and a burger with vegetables on it." After following the latest orders, I patted my tummy and thought, "Either I have a dumb body or this is a great diet."

I BEGAN to wonder when my body began to stutter. It just kept saying M&M's. . . . M&M's would be all I need until dinner. Finally, when my body said, "Cola with Nutrasweet," I knew something was wrong.

Later that night, I read over the diet plan and found that my body was supposed to say things like "I really want a stalk of celery. Then I want some fiber. Hey, let's go out and eat an evergreen bush and then graze in the backyard." Well, I now have 22 pounds to lose, but it was fun.

I get just as excited over new art forms, techniques on products. Let me stress that new means new to me. Sometimes I am thrilled over something "new" that has been out for years.

Here's one thing that's a lot of fun: compose a puzzle. These are puzzles with nothing on them. You, the artist, paint the picture on the puzzle blank. All the pieces are slightly attached so you can draw or paint your picture and maintain perfect registration.

The puzzle blanks range in size from five-by-eight-inch, eight-by-10-inch to 11-by-14-inch. A new 16-by-20-inch will be available soon. The number of puzzles blanks also range from 12 to 154 pieces. The smaller sizes are also available in pastel colors.

These make for wonderful gifts for both adults and kids. With all our students at the Art Store & More, we have had adults make puzzles for their kids and kids make puzzles for their parents.

My impression when first seeing the puzzle surface was that it was too slick of a surface for good artwork. However, after seeing over 100 puzzles in recent months I would say that watercolor Gouache, pen and ink, markers, air brush, films, dyes and acrylics work wonderfully on them.

SOME HAVE simply painted heart with an "I love you, Mom" on it for Mother's Day, while others do beautiful paintings. Simple or complex, 12-piece or 154 pieces, they all look great, are unique and most certainly are a well-received gift for a special holiday or occasion. They range in price from $1.50 to about $5.

Let me quickly hit on a couple other new-to-me items.

The makers of my favorite clay, Super Sculpey now have a clay that you bake in your home oven at 300-degrees for only 15 minutes. But instead of getting hard, it turns to a flexible rubber. It cost $8.50 for a pound and is difficult to sculpture with but it is neat.

We have workshops that are new to me: paper embossing, acid etching of glass and mirrors, paper marbling, creative calligraphy, paper pop-up cards and watercolor techniques.

These are short workshops and they are fun and informative.
