Tempers flare at school board meeting

Barbara Graham
school board member

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

It wasn't on the agenda, but name-calling took up a major portion of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education meeting Monday.

A crowd of parents, teachers and students packed the board room and bandied about terms such as "neo-Nazi," "anti-Christian," "McCarthyism" and Marxist "propaganda."

The topic was a recent visit to a high school classroom by school board member Barbara Graham. The classroom teacher took offense because Graham did not identify herself to students and reportedly made derogatory comments about the classroom.

About 20 people — including the teacher, Barbara Masters — addressed the incident during the citizens' comments portion of the meeting.

Reading from a prepared statement that she said was a letter to a newspaper editor, Masters said: "The issue is whether Mrs. Graham had a right to enter my room without identifying herself, interrogate my students in a hostile manner, appropriate materials and make disparaging remarks about my room."

Graham has acknowledged calling the decor of the room "depressing," and removing a copy of the Metro Times, a free weekly newspaper published in Detroit.

Several speakers expressed support of Graham and criticized the availability of the Metro Times.

Diane Daskalakis, chairwoman of Citizens for Better Education, read an advertisement from the "romance" section of the newspaper. CBE, a group of Christian conservatives who are opposed to teaching materials they say promote the occult, witchcraft and homosexuality, supported Graham in her campaign for a board seat last year.

Over snickers from the crowd, Daskalakis read an ad that said: "Gay white male, 31, 6 feet, 180 pounds seeking clean professional masculine gay white male."

"This entire page is filled with this," she said. "This is the type of trash that's coming out of our schools."

Mary Dahn, another CBE member, said by backing the use of certain teaching materials, the board is "taking a moral position that is anti-Christian."

Danielle Walquist, a high school senior, defended Masters and the reading of the Metro Times.

"I do not believe that we should be hidden from those sorts of things," Walquist said. The young woman said she has "several homosexual friends, and they are all wonderful people."

Another student, Catherine Yeung, called Masters "an excellent teacher" and said she "doesn't try to indoctrinate. She tries to open our minds."

Pat Williams questioned whether Graham asked for the names of students who have read the newspaper, as has been reported.

"I do wonder what the purpose of a list would be because it seems to reek of McCarthyism at its worst," William said.

Elena Martian, who identified herself as a former student of Masters', said the articles the teacher handed out "were propaganda for socialist and Marxist views." Her remarks prompted applause from CBE members and supporters.

Daskalakis said some students' religious beliefs "have been trampled on in this district."

She told the board: "The schools belong to us and we are not going to give you guys any more

Woman killed in car accident

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A 42-year-old Canton woman's death in an accident on Ford Road west of Ridge Road on Monday was the seventh fatal vehicle-related accident in the township this year.

The woman, Patricia Cox, was driving a 1984 Plymouth Horizon east on Ford Road at 10:42 a.m. when her car crossed the center line and struck a car driven by John Wilson, 21, of Westland. He was in critical condition in St. Joseph Hospital, hospital officials said.

WITNESSES AND Canton's police investigation team, which recreates what happened during accidents, couldn't explain why the woman crossed the center line, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer.

Cox's car struck the 1977 Cutlass driven by Wilson, who was westbound on Ford. Wilson swerved before the impact and his car was struck in the drivers' door.

Canton police and fire rescue units removed the victims from their cars, Boljesic said.

Cox was taken by helicopter to St. Joseph Hospital and was pronounced dead at 1:30 p.m.

OF THE SEVEN fatal accidents in Canton this year, five have occurred in the past six weeks.

- A Canton couple was killed April 13 at Cherry Hill and Lotz roads when a 58-year-old Belleville woman driving west on Cherry Hill at Charterhouse drove across the center line and into the couple's vehicle.
- Two people were killed March 24 in an accident at 4 a.m. on Michigan Avenue just west of Beck Road. The late-model Ford Mustang they were driving was heading west when it left the roadway and struck a tree.

It was a one-car accident and alcohol is believed to have been a factor, Canton police said.

- An 8-year-old Canton boy died March 11 when he was struck by a car on Sheldon, south of Ford Road.
- A 28-year-old Canton woman was struck and killed by a car at 10 p.m. Jan. 9 as she attempted to cross Ford Road at Beck.

"It's really hard to say why there's so many of them," Boljesic said. "The ones on Cherry Hill and Ford roads, the roads were fine and the weather decent. They're just two accidents that we have yet to explain why the vehicles crossed the center line. They're just unfortunate and unexplainable accidents so far."

'Hard worker' killed on job

Billy Steiner of Canton Township grew up in a friendly neighborhood in southern Farmington Hills and pole-vaulted to great heights for Farmington High School.

He had a bright future with his wife, Torey, their 3-year-old son, Dustin Lee, and their second child — yet to be born.

The 28-year-old Navy veteran died Monday when an early-morning explosion ripped through an underground sewer tunnel at the Ford Motor Co. Rouge assembly complex in Dearborn.

"He was a real hard worker," his father, Fred Steiner of Farmington Hills, said. "He worked all the time, day and night to support his family. He was a strict father."

Steiner's high school track and field coach recalled him as "one of our leaders."

Housing project priorities listed

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If you fit into at least one of three categories you'll have an edge on the more than 1,300 people inquiring about a Canton apartment complex for elderly and handicapped people with low incomes.

The federally subsidized 118-unit complex on Ford and Sheldon roads is scheduled to open in September and must comply with a 1988 Housing and Urban Development federal preference rule.

THE RULE says first priority should be given to people fitting the following requirements:

- People involuntarily displaced by fire, demolition of their housing and other crisis situations.
- People who pay more than 50 percent of their income to rent and utilities.
- People living in substandard housing.

"A problem is that you can have a two year waiting list with no federal preference holders and someone with a federal preference could walk in and get an apartment right away," said Richard Wears, chief of the assisted housing management branch of HUD.

"Since most of the preferences deal with an emergency housing carrier of the month

Canton

Joe Sullivan

Joe Sullivan, an eighth grader at Lowell Middle School, has been named Carrier of the Month for April by the Canton Observer.

Joe, 13, is the son of John and Linda Sullivan.

His favorite school subjects are art, science and gym. Among his achievements are a scholastic art award and various hockey championships.

In the future he plans to study architecture or archaeology.

The customers and the extra spending money are what he likes most about his route.

He said the route has helped him learn basic accounting and how to work with and treat customers. He said other youths could benefit from a route because it teaches responsibility.

ton with the Rev. Terry Purvis Smith officiating. Burial will follow at Glen Eden Cemetery in Livonia.

BILLY AND Torey recently bought a home in Redford Township, according to family members.

While Billy served on the U.S. Navy 6th Fleet during the Beirut and Grenada uprisings, his family nervously waited back home for word of his well being. "We were watching TV all the time, wondering if he'd be all right," Fred Steiner said.

Billy survived each time.

On Monday morning, however, Steiner and another man, 57-year-old John Hatch of Detroit, both employees of Doetsch Industrial Services of Detroit, were working underground when the explosion occurred. The maintenance workers were killed when a water-line break flooded the tunnel. Divers searched for the men after the tunnel was flooded with 4 to 6 feet of water. Their bodies weren't found until that evening.

The cause of death for both men was drowning, a spokeswoman from the Wayne County Medical Examiner's office said Wednesday.

FORD SPOKESMAN Jay Meisenhelder said the company does not expect to know what caused the explosion until later in the week. The water-line break and flood delayed investigations, he said.

"I certainly don't remember anything of this type happening in 10 or 15 years," Meisenhelder added.

Steiner was involved in high school football, wrestling, track and pole vaulting. He joined the Navy after high school, served for eight years, joined the Veterans of Foreign Wars and landed a job with Doetsch.

"He's worked ever since he's been out of high school and he worked while he was in high school," Fred Steiner said.

Grace Noble of Redford Township described her grandson as a "good boy."

AL LANIGAN, principal at Larkshire Elementary in Farmington Hills where Steiner and his siblings attended grade school, remembered Billy well.

"I sure remember Billy," he said. "It was just a shock when I saw what happened.

"He just was a very wholesome, all-American boy. The last time I saw him a couple of years ago, I remember thinking, other than bigger, he hasn't changed. He was always helping. He would never say anything negative about anybody."

Steiner attended Farmington Public Schools throughout his childhood, including Larkshire, East Junior High School and Farmington High School, from which he graduated in 1980.

DAVE CATHERMAN, head track and field coach when Steiner was a student, said all the Steiner children were "thought of very highly. Bill in particular was one of our leaders." During his three years as a varsity pole vaulter, he led his field in the Observer area.

"He was a very important part of picking up the team goals, the loyalty and the commitment. He was a great example of that," Catherman added. "He was one of our most loyal kids."

Steiner is survived by his wife, Torey, and his son, Dustin Lee, of Canton Township; his parents, Fred and Dorothy Steiner; his sister, Kimberly Ann Steiner; and his brother, James Steiner, all of Farmington Hills.

Other survivors include his grandparents, Helen and Herb Steiner and Grace Noble, all of Redford Township; his parents-in-law, Gary and Tonna Gilbert of Greenville, Ohio; and his grandparents-in-law, Myron and Margaret Brown and Giles and Annabell Gilbert of Ohio.

Priorities listed for new project

need, they may not be able to wait," he added.

Other eligibility guidelines for the apartment complex include:

- A person must be 62 years or older, physically handicapped or disabled.
- A single resident's total income must not exceed $13,950.
- A couple's total income must not exceed $15,950.

Residents must be capable of living independently in their own apartments. However, various activities and community services will be available for the residents in the eight-story high rise under construction.

NATIONAL CHURCH Residences, a non-profit organization that will operate Canton Place, has been deluged with telephone calls from people interested in living in the Canton complex.

NCR spokesmen are asking people to inquire by mail, 2335 North Bank Drive, Columbus, Ohio 43220.

A priority list has not yet been established, according to Mimi Kinard, NCR regional coordinator.

Anyone who inquires now would be in the same position as someone who had inquired one or two years ago.

"In some markets we have to market our facilities, but that's not the case in Michigan," said an NCR spokeswoman referring to the large numbers of inquiries.

Calling local state and U.S. representatives about providing more federally subsidized housing is more effective than calling NCR, Wears said.

"There hasn't been a lot of new (federally subsidized) construction and that's a problem," Wears said.

"I think this administration is more in tune with what's going on and more sensitive," he said. "Individuals have more power than they know. Letter writing is very important."

Canton would have a better chance of receiving more subsidized housing if a housing commission were formed in the township, Wears added.

Belleville man arrested

A 17-year-old Belleville man was arrested early Tuesday after a brief auto chase with Canton police during which speeds reached 100 miles an hour.

The chase ended when the man lost control of the 1986 pickup truck at Canton Center and Sheldon Center and it rolled over, police said.

The man was taken to Canton Oakwood Hospital where he complained of back pain and later was transferred to the University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor.

The chase stared when a Canton officer noticed the pickup traveling erratically at 2:30 a.m. east on Michigan near Beck.

It was swerving from lane to lane and traveling down the center of the road, said Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

When the car approached Belleville Road, the pickup went into the right lane as though turning right. The officer tried to stop the car at that time.

money." That was an apparent reference to a 4-mill tax increase and an 8-mill renewal the district is seeking. CBE has come out against both ballot issues.

The Christian group took its lumps from people who expressed support for Masters.

"As far as I can tell, there is an organization in this town that really wants their own way about what gets done in the district," said Michael Khoury. He said the situation "brings to mind the neo-Nazi skinheads."

High school teacher Maribeth Carroll said educators "really do" want board members and parents to visit the schools "because we are doing some fabulous things."

But she said to Graham, "You were looking for evil things and that's, of course, why you found them."

Sheryl Khoury, a substitute teacher who was filling in for Masters the day Graham visited, also read from a prepared statement.

She said CBE is "devoted to the destruction of public education in Plymouth" and that the group is "the major reason why millages fail."

Graham was asked by one audience member to respond to the debate, but she declined. The board did not take action on the matter.

Young visitors sample life on farm

Students in the Kiddie Kampus program of the Plymouth Canton schools got a taste of life on the farm this week when they visited Sugar Bush Farms in Canton Township.

The children, ages 3 and 4, spent their time taking hay rides, milking a cow, feeding the animals and watching sheep being sheared.

The Kiddie Kampus program teaches high school students how to care for children. The teachers in the program are Frances Marinos, Nancy McDowell and Sandy Baxter.

Amnesty plans vigil

By Doug Funke
staff writer

What do members of the Plymouth Salem High School chapter of Amnesty International hope to accomplish tomorrow at a candlelight vigil in Kellogg Park?

"I think we have to open our minds and see the world for what it is," said Heidi A. Neuroth, a student member. "Plymouth is quite a conservative area. We're kind of separate from what's going on."

Maribeth Carroll, an English teacher, founded the Amnesty International chapter at the school nearly four years ago and continues as sponsor today.

"We support prisoners of conscience, people put into prison for what they say, what they believe," Carroll said. "We support prisoners who never have used or advocated violence."

THE VIGIL is scheduled for 7-10 p.m. tomorrow. It will be held Saturday in the event of rain Friday.

Testimonials from prisoners helped by Amnesty International will be read, literature will be available and bands will play.

"The purpose is to educate the community about human rights and, secondly, it's an inspirational evening for members of our organization," Carroll said.

It takes a special kind of young person to get involved in a group like Amnesty International, she said.

"Students we have in the organization are students who can see beyond their own sphere of influence — school, prom — to see the needs of people in the world around them," Carroll said.

"They can understand that trying to defend the rights of people around the world is a way to defend our own rights," she said.

About 15 students belong to the group. They meet weekly for about 45 minutes after school.

THEY WRITE letters to the heads of state and law enforcement authorities where prisoners of conscience are detained, Carroll said.

"In addition to letters, we decided it's our goal to educate students on human rights abuses, especially torture," she said.

School administrators were reluctant to sanction a student chapter when the concept was proposed, Carroll said. "I think they wanted to see what we were going to do," she said.

The Amnesty International chapter has since become an official school activity.

Stacia Bannan, a student member for three years, said she considers herself to be a mouthpiece for prisoners of conscience.

"I get a sense I'm helping people who can't help themselves," she said. "We want to communicate what we're doing and get other students involved."

Amnesty International claims that 80 percent of those on whose behalf it campaigns worldwide are either released or have the conditions of their imprisonment improved, Carroll and Bannan said.

Rape attempt thwarted

A 20-year-old Canton woman told police a man pulled her off the road early Saturday and told her he had planned to rape her and cut her throat. The suspect kissed the woman before she was able to escape, police said.

The incident occurred at approximately 4:45 a.m. as the woman was driving south on Haggerty Road and noticed someone flashing headlights behind her. When she stopped for the traffic light at Cherry Hill, the man pulled his car next to her, said there were sparks coming from under her car and warned her that the gas tank might catch fire.

The woman told the suspect she lived just around the corner. He followed her onto Palmer and then Heritage, where she pulled over, the police report said.

The suspect approached the woman's car and told her she should look under the vehicle. She got out and did so, but didn't see anything unusual, police said. The man then offered to drive the woman home in his car, but she refused.

When the woman got back in her car, the man reportedly told her, "I was going to rape you and then cut your throat." He also told her he had a gun, police said.

When the woman tried to close her door, the man held it with his body, telling her she was a nice girl and [illegible] so go, but you shouldn't stop for anyone." The man then told the victim he wanted a kiss and reportedly grabbed her head and kissed her. The woman was able to push him away and drive off.

The assailant was described as white, approximately 35 years old and "scrubby in appearance," with unkempt, medium-length brown hair, a beard, a mustache and a "beer gut." He was driving a newer model red Renault Alliance.

Police said if apprehended, the suspect would face a charge of second-degree criminal sexual conduct.

crime watch

LOADED CAR STOLEN: A 52-year-old Canton man lost more than his mode of transportation when someone stole his 1986 Pontiac last Thursday night. Approximately $7,000 worth of his belongings, including a $5,000 coin collection, was in the vehicle.

The car was found in Detroit early Sunday, minus its tires and wheels as well as the items inside the vehicle, Canton police said.

The stolen items include a diamond ring, two clocks, a blanket, a bedspread and pillows, earrings, a jewelry box and an air compressor. The coin collection included early American coins as well as pieces from Mexico and Austria.

The car had damage to the steering column, dashboard and driver's side door lock, police said.

MORE BOWLING WOES: A car was broken into in the parking lot at Superbowl on Ford Road last week.

Police said a Canton man reported the theft of a $1,500 compact disc player and 50 compact discs, worth $1,000.

The culprit gained entry to the vehicle late Friday by smashing a window. A $40 wallet and $30 in cash were also stolen, police said.

It was the second such incident in the parking lot within a week and the seventh at the site since late February.

These are some of the crimes reported recently to Canton police. If you have information on these or other illegal activities, call 397-3000.

Spring concert Saturday in auditorium

The Plymouth Community Chorus will present its' annual Spring Concert, entitled "Tribute," at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 29, and at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 30, at the Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium, Canton Center and Joy Roads in Canton.

This is the 15th anniversary concert by the Chorus. The theme "Tribute" is derived from the performance by the chorus of the works of outstanding composers, from the traditional greats such as George Gershwin and Irving Berlin to the contemporary compositions of Barry Manilow and Andrew Lloyd Webber. Such favorite selections as "Someone To Watch Over Me," "We've Only Just Begun," "Don't Cry For Me, Argentina" and the title song from "The Phantom of the Opera" are included.

Instrumentalists from the University of Michigan Music Department will accompany the Chorus. On Saturday evening, April 29, the chorus will present the winners of its' 1988-89 Student Scholarship Program as follows: $500 to graduating senior Joan Zaretti of Plymouth Salem High School, $250 to sophomore Mark Teich of Livonia Churchill High School and $250 to eighth-grader Rebecca Darga of Plymouth East Middle School.

Organized in 1973 with less than 25 members, the Plymouth Community Chorus now consists of 125 voices from the Western Detroit Metropolitan Area. The chorus is under the direction of Michael Gross.

Tickets for "Tribute" may be purchased at Sideways in Plymouth and the Gitfiddler in Northville as well as from any Chorus member. Prices are $5 for adults and $4 for senior citizens and children. Group rates are available. For more information, call 455-4080.

"It's a tornado safety presentation with the intent of showing people how to be safe in their homes, how tornadoes develop," VanVleck said.

Plymouth Mayor Karl Gansler II and city manager Henry Graper will get some radio exposure tomorrow, Friday, on Lou Farrell's weekly show "What's on Your Mind?"

The one-hour program airs at 1 p.m. on WCAR AM (1090).

Listeners may call in (525-1090) with comments or questions.

Possible topics of discussion include downtown cruising and a stricter sign ordinance recently enacted by the city.

Woman's condition critical

Vivian Rittenhouse, 76, of Plymouth, was in critical condition on Wednesday in Botsford Hospital, Farmington Hills, after she was involved in an automobile accident Monday in Novi.

Rittenhouse, westbound on 12 Mile Road, struck an eastbound vehicle about 3 p.m. while turning left onto Novi Road, said Novi police Capt. Richard Faulkner.

The accident report indicated that Rittenhouse wasn't wearing a seatbelt, Faulkner said.

Counselor aids teens on their road to recovery

JUM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Crystal Noftz, a Livonia school psychologist, conducts an experimental rehab program for recovering addicts. It's run like a group therapy session, with gripes aired, support and solutions offered.

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Prior to 1985, Crystal Noftz knew little about chemical dependency.

Since then, however, Noftz, a Livonia school psychologist since 1969, has made it a crusade to learn everything she can to fight what she says is "a more insidious drug problem."

Although a nationwide survey conducted by the University of Michigan reported a decline in drug use among high school seniors, alcohol use remained unchanged from previous years. And Noftz believes today's young substance abusers are more cunning.

"There are less kids using drugs stupidly in the maniacal heavy experimental way of the late '60s and early '70s," she said. "It's more a solid part of their lives. They know when to use, when not to use."

Noft subscribes to the theory that drug use "is more determined by family history and genetic predisposition — not poverty. And availability, which is just as great anywhere you want it," she said.

Only three out of 430 students treated by Noftz did not have a family history of alcoholism or chemical dependency, and two of those three were adopted.

Noftz is the coordinator of Livonia Franklin High School's two-year old experimental program dealing with substance abusers. Because of its success — better grades for participants, less absenteeism and early intervention with freshman identified at risk — the district is considering expanding the program to its two other high schools, Churchill and Stevenson.

Noftz is an energetic woman who commutes from Birmingham to Livonia daily, then often attends meetings in Ann Arbor before returning home. Three days a week she attends Alanon meetings — a support group for families of alcoholics.

"I go to the meetings because it helps me deal with the kids. I get support because I am living with more addicts and alcoholics than most people," said Noftz, who serviced a number of schools across the district before her current appointment. Prior to that, she was on staff at the former Wayne County General Hospital.

In her small office in the school's counseling center, she is constantly dealing with students who casually drop in to say hello. She is clearly an anchor for her brood, behaving more like a mother than a counselor, lavishing praise and giving hugs.

"The kids know me as a special counselor," she said. "I also deal with other crisis. As a clinical psychologist, I'm trained to handle suicide threats, sex abuse, child abuse, pregnancies, whatever."

In fact many of those major traumas go hand in hand with substance abuse, she said.

She's proud that 70 percent of her referrals now come from students rather than administrators or staff. And staff has been very supportive of the program.

"There are a lot of 13-year-olds who don't know how to have fun on a Saturday night without drugs," Noftz

A student's long battle back from drug addiction

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Adam, 18, is a good looking high school senior. He's polite, soft spoken, a former football player with a loving, supportive family. He's also a recovering cocaine addict.

No one would suspect it, but cocaine and marijuana almost cost Adam (not his real name) his life two years ago. No one would suspect the young man with good grades and a spot on the school football team of smoking up to 25 marijuana cigarettes a day. But Adam says he did.

Adam started using drugs at 13 — later, he says, than many of his peers.

"I started doing cocaine at the beginning of 10th grade," he said.

Adam quickly became addicted. "From the first time I used it until I started selling was two or three weeks."

He was supplied by co-workers at his after-school restaurant job. Adam's habit was three grams of coke ($240 worth) every three days. He sold the drug to support his habit.

"I WOULD sell to anyone — kids at school, anywhere," said the local high school senior. Then he'd usually get high with them.

Adam and other students who have used drugs agree that the high school smoking areas (abolished in recent years in most western Wayne County school districts) were often used for drug trafficking.

"A lot of the activity in school lessened since the smoking lounge closed," he said.

Adam's life was absorbed by cocaine, something a local high school counselor called his "drug of choice."

"I slept every couple of days. I didn't eat. My weight went from 145 pounds to 125," he said. "When I stood up, I'd kind of black out."

Plymouth Canton program garners top recognition

Nick Cooper has been involved with the Plymouth Canton Schools substance abuse program since its inception in 1980.

Cooper, a former counselor who is an alternative education teacher, said the program has been recognized nationally as one of the top programs in the country.

"We've had 25 school districts come look at our program this year — even with the cuts," he said.

A failed millage request has resulted in the loss of an alternative education program in the middle schools. Growth Works, an out-of-school program for kids who have experienced serious drug or alcohol problems, also got the ax.

But there is still a lot in place.

At the high school level, there are classes for recovering students, dealing with coping skills and readjusting to life without drugs or alcohol. There are student service centers for students at risk of developing serious problems.

"We also run student assistance groups for stress, new students, concerned persons which includes children of alcoholics, and a stop smoking group," Cooper said. "Parental permission is required for (participation in) all but the stop smoking group. We've also done sessions on divorce."

The 10-week sessions run one hour per week during a different rotating hour of the day so participants don't miss much from their regular school schedule.

"We began a modified program in the 1982-83 school year," said Cooper. "Part of that is implementing a progressive discipline policy in the middle schools and high schools. We keep track of the kids from early on. Three offenses result in expulsion for sale or possession of drugs or alcohol. And the sale or distribution (of drugs or alcohol) counts for two offenses at the middle school level."

There is also an intervention program. At the middle school level, for example, those caught with drugs or alcohol are mandated to attend special monthly meetings. There are also special programs for those with behavior or attendance problems, and drug prevention programs. By next year, Plymouth Canton hopes to adopt the Michigan Health Model prevention program for elementary students.

THE WAYNE WESTLAND district also has a number of programs in place to curb substance abuse.

There is a substance abuse task force in each of the seven secondary schools (junior and senior high), according to Ron Somers, executive director of secondary education for Wayne Westland.

"Each secondary school has a core team of five staff — three teachers, a counselor and an administrator," Somers said. "We are running groups for kids on self esteem, children of alcoholics, groups for new students, and support groups for recovering addicts."

Students are also referred to the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, supported by both the Livonia and Wayne Westland school districts and the cities of Livonia and Westland.

Area chorus wins title

The Renaissance Chorus of the Wayne Chapter won the Pioneer (Michigan) District championship last weekend in a Battle Creek competition.

The chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America won the title Saturday.

The Wayne Chapter, which won district honors in 1985 and represented the district at international competition in 1988 at Hartford, Conn., placed first among 15 groups from Michigan and western Ontario.

The chorus has members from Livonia, Westland and neighboring communities.

The singers rehearse each Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Newburg Methodist Church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia.

"All men who like to sing and wish to join or get acquainted with this style of singing favorite melodies are welcome to come and see what we are about," said Walter Woloslewicz of Garden City.

Garden plots available

Garden plots are available on about 20 acres of land at Lilley and Palmer roads.

Interested Canton residents will be allowed one plot each for a $3 fee.

Even Adam's drug using friends began to tell him to ease off. Amazingly, his parents didn't suspect he was using drugs. Adam kept going to school and working as a busboy in a local restaurant.

Adam's downward spiral took eight months. The grandson of an alcoholic, he has a genetic predisposition to chemical dependency, according to his counselor. While predisposition isn't the only factor, children or grandchildren of alcoholics are four times more likely than other children to become alcoholics, according to experts.

WHEN HIS older sister came home from college for summer vacation, Adam warned her that he might come home drunk or high. His sister, with whom he has never been particularly close, told his parents he was using drugs.

At some level he knew he was near death," the counselor said. His heart was being stressed. He suffered some brain damage."

Through an employee assistance program offered by his mother's employer, Adam found out about the Huron Oaks Rehabilitation Center for Chemical Dependency, affiliated with St. Joseph's Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Forty-two days of in-patient treatment followed. The first half of the program remains a fog to Adam. All he recalls is suffering from lots of headaches and feelings of general weakness.

"I was drying out," he said.

Adam was part of an adolescent unit with 20 patients. He took part in group therapy, individual sessions and listened to formal presentations. There was a lot of role playing to prepare patients for what they would face on the outside.

ADAM RETURNED home in August 1987.

"I had to drop all my old friends. The first three or four months I didn't go out much," he recalled. At school he'd avoid the old crowd but still have to face them in classes or hallways.

Adam's counselor said the double-edged sword for recovering kids is that former drug pals see them as turncoats and non-drug users still see them as drug abusers. In either case, no one wants to associate with them.

Adam was fortunate. An experimental program working with substance abusers was initiated the fall following his treatment at Huron Oaks.

ADAM NOW works as a student assistant three mornings a week. He also talks to younger students identified because of declining grades and chronic absenteeism) at risk of abusing alcohol or drugs.

Like other reformed users, he believes "you've got to give it away to keep what you've got."

Regarding his parents, it took a long time to rebuild the trust, he said.

They were real scared and real protective," he said. "I never held a grudge against my sister, she saved my life.

With continued therapy, Adam slowly started rebuilding confidence in himself.

His school grades are improving and he's made plans to enter U.S. military service after graduation.

His social life still centers on others who have suffered the same fate. Adam's girlfriend is a recovering drug addict. So is his best friend.

Adam has been drug free since July 6, 1987 — never once relapsing since his first day of treatment. Clearly his story — a supportive family, his plea for help instead of denial and his stamina — isn't typical.

"I don't go to parties where there are drugs or alcohol," he said. "Except for weddings, and I can handle that. I'm sturdier now."

Symtoms of teenage alcohol abuse

- Abrupt changes in the personality, mood and attitude
- Sudden decline in work or school attendance performance
- Sudden resistance to discipline at home or school
- Strained relationship with family and friends
- Unexpected and unusual temper flare-ups (mood swings)
- Increased borrowing of money
- Stealing from home, school or employer
- Increased secrecy about actions and possessions
- Increased association with a new group of friends, especially those who use alcohol
- Inability to quit using alcohol
- Drinking in the morning to "wake up"
- Isolation from friends and family
- Deteriorated health, including tremors, hallucinations and weakness from malnutrition
- Excitation, hyperactivity, talkativeness and rambling speech
- Prolonged drowsiness
- Staggering, impairment in coordination and dizziness
- Confusion, panic and irrational behavior
- Inflamed, runny or unusually bright, shiny eyes

How can parents help prevent alcohol abuse?

- Close supervision of their children's activities
- Talk to other parents about their children's activities
- Tell children how they feel about the use of alcohol
- Tell children that the use of alcohol is illegal
- Lay ground rules about the use of alcohol by their children and the consequences of using it
- Stick to their guns when the rules are broken
- Be a good role model for children. Empasize the importance of using alcohol responsibly
- Show children that it is possible to have a happy, full life without the use of alcohol

Although a nationwide survey conducted by the University of Michigan reported a decline in drug use among high school students, alcohol use remained unchanged from previous years. Parents can help spot the symptoms of abuse in their teenage children and can be instrumental in preventing it.

School program can help students get back on track said. "Some kids start using drugs in third or fourth grade. They can't identify what's fun, they don't know."

Inspirational sayings are taped to the walls in her office, like this from Henry David Thoreau: "There is just as much beauty visible to us in the landscape as we are prepared to appreciate — not a grain more."

Noftz sees beauty in what others might consider hopeless.

The bottom line is that Noftz's students are not the academic all-stars. Many come from troubled homes. The grit is there — low grades, drugs, alcohol, suicide attempts, pregnancies, unsupportive families.

But Noftz concentrates on the positive. Many have overcome tremendous obstacles without reinforcement at home. Even those with supportive families have a lot to overcome. She finds good qualities in each individual, and she constantly challenges a student to be better, reach for higher goals.

A sixth hour class for recovering addicts is run like a group therapy session, with gripes aired, support and solutions offered. Everyone is encouraged to express their true feelings.

One boy who started using speed in the third grade and was formally banished from the school distict a couple years back is now a shining beacon in Noftz's class. She went to bat for him. Smart, articulate and clean, his goal now is to help other substance abusers.

Her work has made an impact with the kids and their families," said Dr. Kenneth Watson, Franklin principal. "It's been very helpful. She has become intensely involved with each one. That's not something a counselor with a caseload of 300 students can do. We're extremely appreciative. We have grown to depend upon the work she has done."

An evaluation of the program dated Jan. 16, 1989 reports that Noftz has seen 430 students. She has assisted with following in-patient treatment programs for 13 students and a handful of adults, including two parents of students. She has also assisted with placement and follow-up in 14 incidents of out patient treatment.

Because of her success, the administration will ask the board of education to expand the program to the other two high schools.

"We'd like to establish a person like her in each building," said Robert Laundroche, Livonia's director of secondary education.

Noftz, instrumental in shaping the program, is pleased.

"It's going in the direction I hoped it would," she said.

S'craft races bring large candidate turnout

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Three incumbents and nine challengers have thrown their hats in the ring, making the Monday, June 12, Schoolcraft college trustee election one of the most crowded in the college's history.
Voters will elect three candidates to six-year terms on the college governing body, choosing from three incumbents and two challengers.
Voters will also elect one of seven non-incumbents to a four-year board seat.
CANDIDATES running for six year seats include board president Mary Breen of Plymouth Township and fellow incumbents Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey, both of Livonia. Challengers David Tatman of Plymouth Township and Lawrence Whitmarsh of Livonia are also in the race.
Breen is a retired administrator for the Livonia Schools. Greenleaf is a management supervisor with Ford Motor Co., Livonia. Kirksey is community education director for the Livonia Schools. Tatman is a supervisor and Whitmarsh a manager at GM Hydra-Matic, Ypsilanti.
The crowded field for the four-year seat includes Ronaele Bowman, Richard Hayward, Thaddeus McCotter, Patricia Sacha, and M. Andrea Taylor, all of Livonia; Jeffrey Theodore of Canton Township and Thomas Davis of Northville Township.
Bowman is a trainer with Wayne County Youth Assistance, Northville. Hayward is a self-employed consultant specializing in steel. McCotter is a clerk with a Livonia-based law firm and a law student at the University of Detroit. Sacha is a retired media specialist for the Birmingham Schools. Taylor is a cafeteria supervisor for the Plymouth-Canton Schools. Theodore is an assistant Wayne County prosecutor. Davis is a supervisor with Ford Motor Co., Dearborn. Trustees oversee academic and financial issues at Schoolcraft. The 12,500-student community college serves the Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Northville public school districts, as well as a small portion of the Novi Schools.
Schoolcraft levies a 2.11-mill property tax in those districts. The tax translates to roughly $90 a year for persons living in homes assessed at $85,000.
MAJOR COLLEGE issues include development of college-owned land by private developers.
The college maintains a main campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. It also operates Schoolcraft College-Radcliff, 1751 Radcliff, Garden City and an extension center in the Plymouth-Canton Schools.
Rosina Raymond, the board's longest serving trustee announced last month she wouldn't seek re-election but died April 11 before her term expired. Trustees were to decide Wednesday whether to appoint someone to complete the remaining weeks of Raymond's term.

Courses offer tips on motorcycle safety

Three motorcycle safety courses are being offered this spring at Schoolcraft College, Livonia.
Courses teach motorcycle riding skills to beginning, intermediate and advanced riders. They include:

● Motorcycle Rider — The 18-20 hour course is designed by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation for inexperienced riders of any age. It provides classroom and riding experience. Motorcycles are provided. Weeknight classes will be held June 5-15 and Aug. 14-31. The August classes spend more time covering basic skills. Weekend classes will be offered May 19-21, June 2-4, June 23-25, Aug. 18-27 and Sept. 22-24. Weekend courses are considered more demanding and aren't recommended for those without previous riding experience.

● Performance Based — The one-day, eight-hour, course covers braking, counter-steering, turning, speed judgment and other safe riding techniques. Students must provide their own motorcycles. The State of Michigan motorcycle skills test will be administered at the beginning of the course. Students under 18 must pass to qualify. The course will be offered April 30, May 13, June 17, July 9, Aug. 27, Sept. 17 and 30.

● Experienced Rider — The one-day course emphasizes riding skills for large touring motorcycles and sport bikes. Students must provide their own motorcycles. Motorcycles must pass a safety inspection. Riders must also provide proof of cycle endorsement and insurance. The course meets June 23.
The fee is $25 per course. Students in all courses must provide a helmet, gloves, over-the-ankle boots, heavy-duty pants, a jacket and rain or cold weather gear.
Weekend classes begin 6 p.m. Friday and continue for a full day Saturday and Sunday. Weekday evening classes begin at 5:30 p.m.
Additional information is available by calling Schoolcraft, 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Oakwood Vs. Cancer

If you don't want to quit smoking, you won't. But if you want to quit, you can. And we can help.

You've seen and heard all the warnings. You know that smoking is harmful. People around you may even have started to reject you. Perhaps you don't even enjoy the habit anymore.

Well, it's never too soon to quit. And Oakwood Hospital can get you on your way, with the "Smokeless"* stop-smoking program. A stop-smoking program recommended in the Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health. It can save lives by changing the habits of people like you. We've seen it work. So don't put it off any longer. Come to our free introductory meeting. See how you can quit the smoking habit for good. Just call 278-5151 for details.

Another good idea in the fight against cancer: regular checkups with your physician. Early detection results in more effective and less radical treatment of most forms of cancer. Oakwood's oncology capabilities include state-of-the-art diagnostic tools—Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI), CT Scan, nuclear medicine, mammography, ultrasound, laboratory testing, chemical analysis and microscopic exams. If treatment is required, we offer advanced surgery, radiation therapy and chemotherapy.

But if you smoke, you can start your own campaign against lung cancer. Right now. Call the Oakwood Department of Community Health at 278-5151. And enroll in a spring session of the "Smokeless" program at an Oakwood center near you.

It costs $155 for seven classes, approximately 11 hours of instruction. But what it may save you is priceless.

College cost could rise; enrollment shrink

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Look for state university tuitions to rise nearly 10 percent next fall if Gov. James Blanchard's proposed 3.5 percent budget increase becomes law.

And get ready for enrollment cuts if state appropriations for 15 public colleges fail to keep pace with inflation.

"Very disappointed," said University of Michigan president James Duderstadt to a Senate appropriations panel.

"Inadequate," said Oakland University president Joseph Champagne, adding OU already has cut enrollment from 9,700 to 9,200 full-year equated students (FYES) in order to maintain quality.

"Regrettable," said UM-Dearborn chancellor Blenda Wilson, adding she is considering an enrollment cap and predicting a "quality gap."

BLANCHARD'S budget message, however, proposed a total higher education budget of $1.22 billion and proudly announced:

"From 1983 to 1989 (his time in office), funding from all state sources to our 15 state universities has increased 72 percent."

But the university chiefs told Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, and members that the 3.5 percent increase for operations failed to keep pace with a consumer price index (CPI) increases of 4.5 percent.

Sederburg and Sens. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit, journeyed to Madonna College in Livonia Monday for budget hearings.

University officials said Blanchard's early budgets were "catch up" increases to repair the damage of the 1979-83 recession. Michigan has slipped significantly relative to other parts of the country in its investment in higher education. Duderstadt said.

Champagne said the higher education price index (HEPI) actually runs 1 to 1.5 percent above the CPI because the HEPI marketbasket has a heavier component of health costs and library books, both of which are outpacing the CPI.

CHAMPAGNE, in an interview, predicted symphonies, art institutes and culture in general may be pinched as universities compete for donations just to operate.

There are only so many philanthropic dollars out there," the OU president said.

He predicted other universities would follow OU's lead in curbing enrollment in order to preserve the quality of programs and patch cracks in campus buildings.

Champagne forecast a tuition hike in fall of 8-9 percent for OU; Duderstadt, double digits for U-M; and Wilson nearly 10 percent for UM-D.

The only trustee to speak was OU's Patricia Hartman, who saw an inconsistency in the state's talking about economic redevelopment while failing to support OU, a major player in the county's high-tech boom.

UM-D's WILSON made much the same point about her school's position in the geographic center of southeastern Michigan's industrial manufacturing and service corridor.

"We are responding to the increasing need for professional retraining, particularly for practicing engineers, professional managers and administrators," she said.

But Wilson said UM-D continues to lag in faculty salaries for comparable institutions.

And she said the 17,000 FYES school's "academic environment suffers from an excessive reliance on adjunct faculty members, both at the undergraduate and graduate levels." Adjunct faculty work at other jobs and teach only a course or two.

"Adjuncts do not participate in curriculum development and are often not available for student advisement," she said, asking for $330,000 more to hire eight more full-time faculty with fringes and support staff.

BLANCHARD'S budget proposed a flat 3.5 percent increase for every institution.

University officials deplored that approach, agreeing with Sederburg that dollars should follow students and not institutions.

The governor asked $240.2 million for U-M; $16 million for UM-Dearborn and $32.9 million for OU.

Other requests are: $58.2 million for Eastern; $203.5 million for Michigan State and $166.7 million for Wayne State.

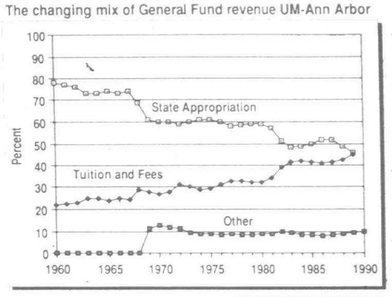
THE PRESIDENTS Council of State Universities asked an overall 5.5 percent increase for fiscal 1990, which would add $55 million to the budget.

For future years, they want 3.5 percent above the rate of CPI inflation, plus other amounts for buildings and equipment.

The presidents' figures showed that state appropriations tumbled from 76.1 percent of all college costs in 1966-7 to 61.7 percent last year.

In the same period, their reliance to tuition and fees rose from 21.5 percent of the total to 33.2 percent.

The changing mix of General Fund revenue UM-Ann Arbor



DAVID FRANK/graphics coordinator

Tuitions at the University of Michigan have doubled from 22 percent of the budget in 1960 to nearly 45 percent currently. President James Duderstadt blames state appropriations that have failed to keep pace, and 14 other state university chiefs tell much the same story.

S'craft class focuses on opera

Learning to understand and appreciate opera is the focus of, "Let's Go to the Opera," a program being offered by Schoolcraft College's continuing education services division.

The class will meet 8-10 p.m. Mondays, for four weeks, beginning May 1. The fee is $58.

The class prepares students to attend two upcoming performances by the Michigan Opera Theater at the Fisher Theater, Detroit. Tickets to Wednesday, May 3 performance of "The Marriage of Figaro" and the May 17 performance of "Carmen" are included. Additional tickets are available at reduced rates.

Additional information is available by calling 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Event seeks pure-breed dogs

Pure-breed dogs of all types are invited to participate in the fourth annual Spring Dog Fun Match on Sunday, May 7 at the 4-H Fairgrounds, Belleville.

The event includes obedience and weight pulling contests in addition to standard judging. It is sponsored by the Samoyed Association of Metro Detroit.

Event registration begins at 8 a.m. Pre-registration is also available.

Admission is free, though there is a fee to compete in each event.

The fair grounds are off I-94.

Pre-registration should be submitted on an official American Kennel Club registration form to: Mark Russell, president, Samoyed Association of Metro Detroit, 17232 Louise, Livonia, Mich., 48152.

Additional information is available by calling event chairmen Rick Karaschin, 421-6655, and Tony Cardin, 291-5447.

Millage

It's time to address the issues

THE COMMITTEE FORMED to push the passage of the 4-mill property tax increase and the 8-mill renewal for the schools is using the slogan "I Care" as a rally cry to convince voters to say yes on June 12.

It's a nice slogan. And the apple logo that it fits into is attractive. But it's going to take more than a logo and a slogan to persuade voters to part with their hard-earned money.

So far, the millage committee has focused its energy on holding pro-millage rallies.

Those types of events remind us of high school pep rallies before a football game. They attract hometown fans, but do little to win the football game.

The game is played on the field by two opposing teams, each with the object of scoring more points.

And that's what the millage committee should being trying to do. Instead of talking to people who would support a millage increase anyway, they should be out trying to persuade the opposition the millage is needed.

There is one school of thought that millage elections can be won by mustering the pro forces and hoping that the no voters don't go to the polls.

The quiet campaign can work, but not this year.

Plymouth and Canton residents have been hit with about a 15 percent increase in their property tax assessments and Citizens for Better Education has rallied voters against the millage.

The pro-millage committee is going to have to deal with those facts. Pep rallies aren't the answer.

The issues are money and what CBE says is satanism in the schools, and the millage committee is going to have to address those issues.

On the money issue, the committee needs to get its message out.

The cost of the 4-mill increase to the owner of a $100,000 home would be $200 a year in taxes.

That's $3.84 a week, less than many residents spend on cable television or rented movies for a videocassette recorder.

The pro-millage committee needs to find an effective method of communicating that to voters. The committee should look at ways of breaking down the cost to voters and presenting it to them in a way that's easily and quickly understood.

Members of the millage committee should go to property owner associations and subdivision groups with that information. People involved in such groups tend to vote. And getting the school message across to them is important.

If those groups are approached on a one-to-one basis, they would tend to feel involved.

What we're suggesting is just what any old time politician would do — go out and talk to people in their neighborhoods and living rooms.

Dealing with CBE and the satanism issue is another matter. The group has gained credibility by claiming that satanism, devil worship and the occult are being taught in Plymouth-Canton schools.

People in the community need to rise up and counter those charges.

That could include religious leaders. While our country separates church from state, there are times when a religious leader can help deal with issues.

This may be the time for such leaders to perform an exorcism on the school district to rid it of the satanism issue.

Let's just hope that the pep rally stage of the millage campaign is over and that committee members seek advice from those experienced at running a successful campaign.

There are six weeks until the school election. It's time to put away the apple and bring out the main course for voters.

City, suburbs

Programs foster understanding

WE KNOW people who've never experienced the joys of early morning at Eastern Market. And it's not fresh corn they're afraid of.

We know some who think the best way to catch a Major League baseball game is by flicking the TV remote. The Tiger Stadium bleachers would be OK, if only the stadium was in some distant suburb.

We know people who when traveling tell out-of-town colleagues they're from (fill-in-the-blank), "that's kind of near — but not really that close — to Detroit."

These are the symptoms of a "deadly" disease, Detroit Paranoia. If it continues to go unchecked, this virus could be responsible for killing off cultural enrichment and diverse friendships for the next generation of suburban adults.

It may already be too late to save the current one.

Many of us who were born and grew up in Detroit's inner ring of suburbs — Redford Township, Southfield, Garden City — have somehow developed a fear of the city in a way our parents couldn't have imagined. Crime and perceptions about crime are a big part of that. So is economic blight. And even though some refuse to admit it, so is racism.

FOR THOSE WHO grew up in or have moved to the second suburban tier — Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield, Troy, Birmingham, etc. — the mistrust seemingly grows in concert with the distance from Detroit's borders.

What's happened is that we've let the city's bad characteristics overshadow the good, blotting those out almost entirely.

Our Detroit-born parents don't have this problem. Sure many picked up stakes and moved to the suburbs, fearing deterioration of the city's public schools, crime and declining property values. But pleasant memories of their city neighborhood's childhood hangouts and family outings to city landmarks created equal, positive, impressions.

Detroit Paranoia is a relatively recent phenomenon.

The preferred treatment for the current generation of suburbanites would be to cram as many city experiences into their lives as possible. That's assuming of course that they can be convinced to put their fears aside.

But it's also time to start working on our suburban children, so that the country's sixth-largest city, and all it has to offer, becomes something more than a dark, evil planet for them as they enter adulthood.

Michigan Week, celebrated each May, would be the ideal platform to launch an intensive education effort between Detroit and its suburbs. Students in many communities take part in government programs, sometimes exchanging places with government leaders for a day. Creating student exchanges that cross city-suburban boundaries will help stop Detroit Paranoia from creeping any further.

WE NOTE THAT some communities are off to a good start in this respect. Last week, a second grade class from Gill Elementary School in Farmington Hills made the half-hour bus trip from their school to the Focus:HOPE Center for Children, an infant/toddler day care center in Detroit. The two groups of children drew pictures, sang songs and listened to a storyteller. Together.

This summer, a group of about 40 Detroit-area students will participate in the Michigan Coalition for Human Rights Freedom Tour, a trip through several Southern states that highlights this country's civil rights struggle. The trip will "be an opportunity for our youth to begin to break down the racial barriers that exist between the city and the suburbs," said Bernard Firestone, vice president of the Detroit Metropolitan AFL-CIO and a tour supporter.

Similar student exchange projects have been a common occurrence in Detroit and its suburbs for grade school to high school student during the past couple of years.

We applaud those efforts and we hope to see them expanded.

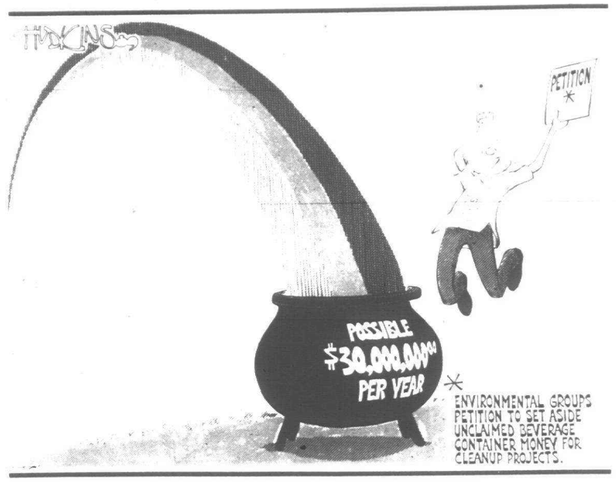
We urge suburban government and school leaders to broach this idea with their Detroit counterparts so that such a program can be in place in time for Michigan Week 1990.



Spring thoughts: Limit terms of office, greed

Steve Barnaby

SOME MISCELLANEOUS thoughts on an almost-warm spring afternoon:

We've got a big job ahead of us — you and I. We've been avoiding it for awhile, but the task just won't go away.

I got to thinking about this recently after a visit to this office from Republican U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell. The congressman, recovered from a hard fought re-election challenge from state Sen. Lana Pollock, came to visit and talk about Washington politics.

With all the scandals we're seeing with pseudo-hero Ollie North, Speaker of the House Jim Wright and John Tower, failed Defense secretary-designate, it might be wise for the us to pull in the leash on the boys inside the Beltway.

Pursell does better than most in staying in touch with the folks at home. But after listening to him for a time, it's obviously impossible for anyone, no matter his intentions, to avoid the suffocating traditions of Congress.

In describing congressional operations, the congressman inadvertently paints a surrealistic picture of powerbrokers more interested in protecting their turf on the numerous committees and subcommittees rather than statesmen who are concerned about doing the best for the country.

Certainly, Pursell being as close to the trees as he is, doesn't see all his colleagues that way. But anyone listening to him describe the scene can come to no other conclusion. Seniority, privilege and collecting money from PACs outweigh national concerns far too often.

When faced with the question of limiting congressional terms to say, 10 or 12 years, he hedged a bit but finally admitted it might not be a bad idea.

Actually, it's about time the American public insists on it. Our national leaders are losing touch with the nation. By limiting terms, more people would have a chance to serve the country with a much fresher perspective.

This is an issue worth getting excited about. A frequent change in national leadership will have an impact on how your tax dollars are spent and on the quality of your life.

Now all we need is someone to start the ball rolling. Don't expect the folks in Washington to take the initiative. They aren't prone to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

Sounds like a good idea for most any elective office in the country. We all need to get more involved.

LOOKS LIKE greed is getting the best of us when it comes to developing our suburbs. How many more strip malls, office buildings and condo developments could be on the drawing boards?

Everybody deserves a return on his investment, but the way developers are abusing the landscape with overdevelopment, it makes a body wonder if there is anyone left in that business who cares about planned, sensible development.

Must everyone strive for absolute maximum profit? If it continues, it will be our collective goose that is cooked.

Visit disrupted classroom

To the editor:

On April 20, the Observer published an editorial referring to an incident that occurred in my classroom April 7 when board member Barbara Graham visited on a day when I was absent from work.

The editorial claimed, "we all suffer when censorship occurs," and although I appreciate the support for academic freedom, the issue is not really censorship. We have a review policy which protects the schools from censorship.

The issue is whether Mrs. Graham had a right to enter my room without identifying herself, interrogate my students in a hostile manner, appropriate materials and make disparaging remarks about my room.

For the benefit of those who have not seen my room, most of the wall space is taken up by art reproductions that show the development of art from cave painting to the present. These reproductions are part of my course material and represent some of the greatest accomplishments of man. They are used to stimulate curiosity and imagination and help develop reading, writing and thinking skills.

The issue of "Detroit Metro Times" which Mrs. Graham appropriated contained an article about the destruction of the rain forests, which is being caused by people whose vision is very short-sighted. Our job as teachers is to produce students whose vision is shaped not by narrow self-interest but by man's finest accomplishments in the arts and sciences.

To tell students it is depressing to be in a classroom that acquaints them with man's great accomplishments in the arts or to say that these arts have a "psychedelic effect" doesn't seem to show concern for "better education." It seems especially strange when such criticism comes from someone who has never spoken with me about what I do in my classes. Instead, both teachers and students need the support of the community to continue the many fine programs our schools offer.

Barbara B. Masters,
Plymouth

Graham visit upsetting

To the editor:

It is upsetting to see that Barbara Graham, a member of the Board of Education, would stoop to witch-hunting in an effort to oust innovative teachers in Plymouth. I am a proud graduate of Canton High School. Innovative teachers like Mike McCauley and Barbara Masters helped point me in the right direction professionally. The classes I had with Mrs. Masters (introductory and advanced composition, English and British literature and Approaching the Arts) helped me tremendously in college (I graduated in the top five in my class in the School of Journalism at Michigan State University). I've also relied on those same skills in my position as marketing coordinator at Catherine McAuley Health Center.

The statements Mrs. Graham made in a recent article regarding Mrs. Masters' classroom were outrageous. I spent four years in that classroom and found it stimulating, not "psychedelic." And contrary to what Ms. Graham says, happy faces on the walls would not have improved my ability to learn. Anesthetizing students with a "Don't worry, be happy" philosophy would be both detrimental and insulting. Our schools should be teaching kids how to think, not what to think. We should be teaching these students how to learn. Mrs. Masters used to say that good writing means making connections — bringing together two or three different ideas to form another new idea. How can students be expected to make connections if they haven't read different books, been exposed to differing opinions, or seen a variety of films and plays. F. Scott Fitzgerald said that "the test of a first-rate intelligence is to hold two opposing ideas in the mind at the same time and still function."

Mrs. Masters is one of a handful of innovative, intellectually stimulating teachers at CEP. We can't let demagogues like Ms. Graham take away from the students one of the things they need to help them make intelligent choices later in life.

The battle's over

But victory remains in doubt

Jack Gladden

IT'S OVER.

The battle has been fought, a rather large victory has been won and the warriors are getting back to their normal lives.

Everyone should live happily ever after. But I suspect that won't be the case.

The "warriors" in this case are Darrell Dawsey and his followers, a small band of black students who took over and occupied the student services building at Wayne State University for almost two weeks.

Their complaint, as near as I can tell, is that they felt "oppressed." That's a great word to throw out, especially if you're black, because, Lord knows, blacks have known more than their share of oppression over the years.

From slavery to physical violence to almost total discrimination to just plain bigotry, this country does not have a particularly clean record in its treatment of black people.

MARTIN LUTHER King Jr. and his followers fought against that kind of oppression. They fought for the rights of blacks to sit at the front of the bus, for the rights of blacks to be served at the same lunch counters as whites and for the rights of young black students to attend the same universities as their white counterparts, so that they would have equal opportunities in the workplace and in society in general.

But Dawsey and his crew didn't want equal opportunity; they wanted special treatment.

Their protest, which, according to Dawsey, grew in part out of a "general dissatisfaction with American society" and a "developing of race consciousness," zeroed in on what they perceived to be a dismantling of Wayne State's Center for Black Studies.

They (students, mind you) decided that what the university should do was spend almost a million dollars to turn the center into a full-blown academic department with more black faculty members and a major in Africana Studies.

They threw in some other demands, like firing faculty they didn't like and setting up a university holiday to honor Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcolm X, but the focus was on the Africana department.

AND THEY CHOSE as their course of action not to campaign and work for such a goal, but to take over a building and demand that the university do what they want.

That isn't terribly surprising. For all their talk about "oppression" and "racism," these students were reacting like many other members of today's "gimme" society: "I want it, therefore you should give it to me."

In that sense they were no different from the surburban housewife who, when she sees something she doesn't want to watch on television, doesn't want to have to change the channel. She wants it taken off the air.

What is surprising is that the university gave in. WSU ironman David Adamany, the president who would be king, knuckled under. The tough guy, who only last fall ordered the arrests of some picketing university employees who were involved in a perfectly legal strike, gave in to these immature young protestors.

There was some bargaining, yes. No Malcolm X Day. No firing of faculty. Half a million instead of a million dollars for the first year of Africana studies. But Dawsey and company basically got what they wanted.

THAT'S SCARY. It's scary because their tactics, which Detroit Mayor Coleman Young called "heroic," were at best childish and at worst illegal and dangerous.

It's scary because, at a time when black students are becoming more and more militant at colleges across the state, the university's acquiescence to these spoiled young protestors could become precedent-setting.

And it's scary because whenever the specter of "racism" is mentioned, people seem to turn into quivering blobs, willing to give the protestors whatever they want, no matter how outrageous the demands.

Dawsey and his "warriors" (his word, not mine) may have won a temporal victory. But I'll tell you something, Darrell. You're no Martin Luther King Jr.

Throw in towel — for good cause

Philip Sherman

WE CAN WORRY later about who to blame for the Valdez oil spill.

For now, let's help the otters.

Four thousand otters — about a third of Prince William Sound's otter population — are presumed dead from petroleum poisoning. To save the rest, volunteer workers need towels to wipe the oil off the otters.

For those in our northern communities, a straight shot down I-75 will take you to the Michigan Humane Society (where the interstate intersects with East Grand Boulevard), 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit 48211. Those in the western suburbs can donate towels to the School of Natural Resources at the University of Michigan, 430 E. University, Ann Arbor 48109-1115.

Both places are accepting clean towels by personal delivery or mail. If they announce they've reached their towel limit, the humane society will ask for donations to ship the towels to Valdez.

THE OTTERS' NEED for help came across in a gruesomely vivid article by Charles McCoy in last Thursday's issue of The Wall Street Journal.

McCoy described an elementary school gym in Valdez that has been equipped with pens and is, in effect, a M*A*S*H unit for otters. It's staffed by marine mammal experts, veterinarians and volunteers.

There were 46 otters in the otter hospital at the time McCoy wrote the article. Sixty-eight already had died. Rather than give them names, the otters were given numbers.

Otter 76 was covered with oil, inside and out. With petroleum-coated lungs, she was straining to breath, foaming at the mouth and excreting crude oil. As she rocked with spasms, a veterinarian filled her full of antibiotics. Her spasms subsided. She died two days later.

McCoy also described the little otter pups, whimpering in separate pens. Not only were they covered with oil, but they wanted their mother's milk. However, researchers suspected the milk was poisoned. One mother and pup died within two hours of each other.

IT'S EASY — too easy, perhaps — to blame Exxon for all of this. Originally, I had visions of plugging the leaking ship with members of Exxon's senior management team. But then I started listening, and even environmental groups such as Greenpeace aren't heaping this entirely on Exxon's shoulders.

They're blaming it on all of us, for our dependence on oil.

But fight that battle some other time. There are lots of reasons to use oil and lots of reasons to leave it behind in favor of an alternate source of energy. We can always find an energy source, if we're determined enough.

However, there are only so many otters. We can't make any new ones once they're gone.

Ways to prep a child

Doc Doyle

Q: I have a three year old son. I do not want to pressure my son but do want to help him get ready for school. What are the most beneficial experiences a parent can do for a child prior to entering kindergarten or preschool.

A. The most valuable experience that a parent or a grandparent can do, in my opinion, for a young preschool child is to "read aloud" to the child. At the outset, you need to understand that there are two types of reading books for pre-preschoolers.

There are pattern books, for counting, identifying colors or letters of the alphabet. There are story books that, regardless of what age the book is written for, have characters (sometimes animals that act like people), some problem to solve and always a solution. Pattern books are fine for the little ones to learn numbers, colors and letters — to a point.

However, if every "read aloud" session with a child is pure memorization, drill and practice you may have a Fulbright kindergarten scholar that scores high on the kindergarten or first grade standardized test but who has little or no comprehension of life in his or her immediate environment.

Therefore, the reading should include a variety of interesting stories which are appropriate to the child's age.

The reading situation must be a natural, expected and anticipated experience, one to which the child looks forward. When you have created a situation with your child or grandchild that triggers in their mind that this is now the time for reading, you are on target. The child will get the books and bring them to you. A little encouragement is fine but don't force the child. Make the experience fun and the child will take to it as a natural part of life.

Although pattern books are important, you need to enhance a child's higher level thinking and problem solving skills by involving the child into the reading as opposed to the child being a passive receptacle for your words of wisdom.

What do I mean? Most children have special books that have special meaning to them. Instead of just reading the book over and over to them, talk to them before the reading about the characters, have them identify characters in the book, have them predict outcomes. If it is a book read previously, ask questions like — Do you remember who this person is? What is going to happen in this story?

Start with the characters. For instance, one of my favorite books for reading to kindergarten children is "Billy Goats Gruff." This is a book that presents a problem for the "Goat" family of how to get across a bridge under which an ugly, mean troll lives.

After a book of this nature has been read to a child over a period of time, key questions can be asked. What is this story about, what is going on? The child will pick up the story theme and in his/her own language and will amaze you in his comprehension of the story, of details, of the problem and the solution.

If we engender a love of books in preschoolers in this manner with, for example, "Billy Goats Gruff," the same principle can carry over in their lives when they read Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

Probably the most valuable benefit in reading aloud to a preschooler is the emotional bonding that develops between the adult and the child.

Sitting on the parent or grandparent's lap, sharing the story together, thinking through what is occurring is subtle yet a way to develop emotional linkages far and above treating the child to a double dip cone at the Dairy Queen.

Dr. Frank Smith of Ontario, Canada completed some major research regarding "reading aloud" to children and found that the more stories that children are exposed to the more their comprehension skills are developed.

He also found that reading a variety of different stories helped children develop a stronger vocabulary and greatly assisted them in grasping sentence structure.

To answer your question, what experience is most beneficial for preschoolers? Teach the child the love of books and the love of reading in a warm caring environment. This total experience is far more valuable than the parent who solely drills the child in the alphabet and numbers so that the parent can brag how his child can count to a hundred by age two.

As a parent, you are modeling behavior. Project to the child that reading is enjoyable and your behavior will pay great dividends in the child learning character identification, comprehension, vocabulary development, sentence structure, problem solving and critical thinking skills later in life.

Area firms assist in oil spill cleanup

Firms from Livonia and Farmington Hills are playing a role in cleaning damage caused by the recent Alaskan oil spill.

Crude Oil Recovery Corp. of Livonia has donated 1,600 pounds of oil absorbing material to assist in the cleanup.

The company bills the product, called QU1, as the most oil absorbent material available.

"What it is, is duck feathers compressed against a nylon mat," said James Magda of Crude Oil Recovery Corp., who arranged the donation. Feathers are obtained from ducks sold to supermarkets and restaurants, he said.

The Livonia-based company handles the product's distribution. The product is manufactured by Medbury & Sons Development Co. Inc. of Farmington Hills.

"We had the material and we felt an obligation to help," Magda said.

The material was sent to Cordova District Fishermen United, a 100-year-old Alaska-based environmental organization.

"WHAT WE wanted to do was place it in the hands of someone who was interested in helping, but who lacked the resources," Magda said. Magda said he was made aware of the Alaskan organization though a telephone call to Greenpeace, a worldwide environmental action group.

The donation was valued at $14,000, he said.

The material was flown to Alaska by a California-based air freight company.

The oil spill occurred March 24 when the oil tanker Exxon Valdez smashed into a reef in Prince William Sound, near Port Valdez, Alaska. the spill has since spread more than 100 nautical miles south, toward the Gulf of Alaska.

The spill has threatened wildlife, including fish, birds and water mammals, including whales, porpoises and sea otters.

Cleanup materials represent a small portion of company business, Magda said.

"Our primary function is to recover oil from tanks and wells," he said.

Commission seeks aid for blacks

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County commissioners have joined the Detroit City Council in calling on Congress to create a program to reimburse black Americans for indignities their ancestors suffered as slaves.

The commission resolution cites recent payments made to American Indian tribes, including Michigan's Ottawa and Chippewa tribes, as well as payments to Japanese-Americans interned during World War II as precedent.

Commission chairman Arthur Carter, D-Detroit, said the concept dates back even farther than those recent attempts.

"The concept dates back very far," Carter said, citing a 1866 proposal that would have guaranteed former slaves 40 acres of property and a mule.

The concept of reparations to black Americans was also endorsed at a summit meeting of African American leaders this past weekend in New Orleans.

THE COUNTY commission resolution states that slaves were denied wages and property, while the nation as a whole benefited from their labor.

While objectives are the same, there are differences between the county commission and Detroit council proposals.

The county commission proposal calls upon Congress to create a federal panel to establish damages and create a means to compensate those affected by slavery.

The panel would also investigate the elimination of "many other programs designed to right the wrongs of discrimination," including affirmative action programs.

The Detroit council proposal is more specific. It calls on Congress to create a $40 billion education fund to provide scholarships to Americans of African descent.

COMMISSIONER Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said she supported the commission proposal because her own ancestors faced discrimination upon arriving in America.

"I'm Irish and the Irish have also faced discrimination," said Beard, whose district includes Westland and Garden City.

Commissioners Milton Mack, D-Wayne, and Richard Mannning, D-Redford Township, also supported the proposal. Mack's district includes Canton Township.

Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, the board's vice chairwoman, cast the lone vote against the proposal.

"There wasn't anything in there about how the reparations would be paid," Heintz said.

Three suburban commissioners, Edward Boike Jr., William O'Neil and Edward Plawecki, abstained from voting.

Head Start workshops are set

"How Not to Go Bananas on a 24-hour Basis" is among the workshops being offered to parents of Head Start and compensatory education students at the Wayne County Intermediate Schools' annual parent conference, Friday, April 28.

The conference will be held 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Wayne County Community College downriver campus, 21000 Northline Road, Taylor.

Psychologist David Hall will deliver the keynote address, "Fun Begins at Home." Other topics include, "Handling Conflicts with Your Children," "How to Talk to Your Children About Sex," "How Children Learn," "Helping Your Child Become a Better Reader," "Family Myth Games for Kids and Adults" and "Communicating with Your Child."

A book fair is also planned.

The event is sponsored by the WCISD, the Out-Wayne County Head Start Program and Wayne County coordinators of federal and state programs.

Book lovers await annual sale

Pegge Stanley, an AAUW member, works on sorting books for the organization's used book sale. Stanley, a Canton resident, is in charge of setting up the book room at Westland Center.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

DON'T EXPECT the books at the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women book sale to be quite as well-organized as those you'd find at the library.

Some visitors to the used book sale expect the books to be set up just as they would be at a public library. They'll ask for a specific book and assume the sale volunteers know just where it is.

"We say you're on your own," said Pegge Stanley of Canton, an AAUW member who's in charge of setting up the book room at Westland Center for the sale.

The sale will be held Friday and Saturday, May 5-6, at the lower level of Westland Center, Wayne and Warren roads in Westland.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, May 5. The sale will continue from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, May 6, with books priced at half-off during those hours.

THE SALE will close 2-3 p.m. Saturday, and re-open from 3 to 5 p.m. During those two hours, books will be priced at $4 per bag.

Books are put into different categories, such as sports, hobbies, history, mystery and adventure.

"Children's books always are great sellers," Stanley said. "Paperback novels seem to go quickly. Westerns and mysteries, things like that, we never seem to have enough of."

This is the 35th year the Plymouth branch of AAUW has held a used book sale. In recent years, AAUW members have also sold paperbacks from a booth during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Visitors of all ages come to the sale at Westland Center. Some young readers have definite ideas of what they're looking for.

"It was so nice to see so many children there," said Fran Johnson of Canton, publicity representative for this year's sale.

Plymouth branch AAUW members have been hard at work in recent months, sorting and pricing books for the sale. That's being done at Tanger Elementary School.

Proceeds from the sale are used for scholarships and fellowships for women. In the past, the AAUW has provided financial assistance for students at Schoolcraft College, the University of Michigan, Plymouth-Canton Community Education, Wayne State University, Michigan

Bruce Richard, president of the Plymouth Historical Society, straightens one of the pictures in the exhibit. The grand opening for the Ford Village Industries exhibit was held Sunday, April 23.

Exhibit's rich in history

By Julie Brown
staff writer

In an earlier part of this century, the Ford Village Industries plants provided jobs for a number of local people.

"It was a fairly major employer in this area," said Bruce Richard, president of the Plymouth Historical Society. "There are quite a few of these folks still living."

A new exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main, tells the story of those small manufacturing plants. The grand opening for the exhibit, held Sunday, April 23, attracted a sizable crowd to the museum.

Work on the exhibit started in early 1988.

"When we went to Ford Motor Co., they became very much interested in it," Richard said. The Plymouth Historical Society, which operates the museum, had a trust fund drive going on at the time.

FORD, THROUGH its Sheldon Road Plant Community Relations Committee, contributed $15,000 to the historical society, $5,000 of which was to be used for the exhibit.

"This was their suggestion, to put up a permanent exhibit showing these plants and the history of them," Richard said.

The plants, some 20 in all, were the brainchild of Henry Ford. Ford wanted to integrate rural living with auto manufacturing; he believed plant workers could do farming during slow production periods and benefit from having a steady income during busier production times.

Operating the plants wasn't economically feasible, Richard said, and the plants stopped operating soon after Ford died in 1947.

Ford had the plants built near water, to generate hydroelectric power through the use of paddlewheels. The exhibit tells the story of the six plants along the Middle Rouge River: Northville, Waterford, Phoenix, Newburgh, Nankin Mills and Plymouth (Wilcox).

"The locals call it Wilcox," Richard said. "Ford Motor Co. calls it Plymouth."

Plymouth was home to the Phoenix and Plymouth plants. Other plants were in such current communities as the city of Northville (Northville), Northville Township (Waterford), Livonia (Newburgh) and Westland (Nankin Mills).

THE EXHIBIT'S exterior is designed to represent the building at Nankin Mills, which now houses the Wayne County Parks Division.

The story of the plants is told through photographs, artifacts, a videotape and other items. Most of the work, including construction of the room housing the exhibit, was done by Plymouth Historical Society members.

"All the cabinets and everything were done by our own volunteers," Richard said.

A topographical display of the area was commissioned by the historical society. It was created by Steve Veresh and his wife, Mary Ann, historical society members. The display shows the location of the six plants; when a button is pushed, the plant locations light up.

Written material helps to tell the story of the plants as well. A master's thesis in history, done by John Tobin at Eastern Michigan University, is included. Staffers from the Plant staffers took pride in job well done

Louis Norman remembers that winter when he went to work at the Newburgh plant.

"It was just plain cold down there and the frost was deep," said Norman, a Plymouth resident. "But they put us to work."

Newburgh was one of six Ford Village Industries plants along the middle branch of the Rouge River. Norman and others went to work there in the mid-1930s, constructing the plant.

Norman, a Plymouth Historical Society member, knew a few things about working for Ford; his father worked for the auto manufacturer for a number of years, and spent time at the Highland Park, Nankin Mills and Wilcox plants.

"Dad came home one night and said, 'Mr. Gallimore wants to see you.'"

Jim Gallimore was superintendent of the Wilcox plant at that time.

Norman remembers going with a friend whose father also worked for Ford to see Gallimore. The two young men were told they'd been hired to work at the Newburgh plant.

"We hadn't even heard of it," Norman said.

WHILE CONSTRUCTION of the plant was under way, Norman was in charge of tool checks. He'd keep an eye on the picks, shovels and other tools, making sure all were present and accounted for.

Construction of Newburgh took some time, Norman said. Few power tools were used; some of the construction work was done over and over again, until it was just right.

"They did it to create work, give people work," Norman said. "There were a lot of people that were mighty appreciative of that."

That was in the middle of the Depression, and many people needed work. The workers were interested in what they were doing "and took pride in it," he said. Workers weren't interested just in making lots of money.

"That wasn't the way people felt in those days. They took pride in what they made. They were just plain thankful they had a job."

After construction was completed, manufacturing started at the Newburgh plant.

"Mainly drills, but we made a lot of different things," Norman said. Aircraft engine parts were made at the plant during World War II.

The drill operations at Newburgh were moved to the Waterford plant in 1947. Norman later left Ford, and started his own excavating business.

NORMAN'S RECOLLECTIONS and those of other Ford Village Industries workers, are part of the exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum. A videotape, produced by Ford Motor Co. staffers, tells the story of the six plants along the Rouge River. Interviews with former workers are included.

A dedication ceremony for the exhibit was held Sunday, April 23, at the museum. Among those attending were former workers from the plants.

Current Ford Motor Co. employees also attended; Ford provided the funding for the project. A joint committee, including Plymouth Historical Society members and Ford representatives, was formed early in 1988 to work on the project.

"These plants were the product of Henry Ford's dream," said Larry Campbell, manager, molding operation, at Ford's Sheldon Road Plant.

Henry Ford wanted to increase productivity and stop the migration of rural dwellers to the cities, Campbell said. Changes in the industry meant his idea became outdated.

"The company was so successful that they were required to work in the plants year-round," said Campbell, a Commerce Township resident who has been with Ford for nearly 24 years.

Manufacturing cars also became increasingly complex, said Sy Kernicky, a Farmington resident who retired from an industrial relations position at Ford's Sheldon Road Plant. The buildings and equipment became obsolete, and manufacturing operations were consolidated at larger Ford plants.

"It just got too complicated," said Kernicky, who spent nearly 34 years with Ford. Although the scale of production changed, the basic concept of the assembly line stayed the same.

The plants had a strong influence on the local economy, Kernicky said, directly or indirectly providing jobs for nearly one out of four people.

"The area itself expanded because of the people working for the Ford Motor Co.," he said.

Ford Motor Co. staffers attending Sunday's dedication ceremonies were pleased with the exhibit.

"It's a nice replica of the plant," Kernicky said.

State University, Madonna College and others.

AAUW MEMBERS continue to seek donations of books for the sale. Books may be taken to the drop-off box at the Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main in Plymouth. Members will also pick up books at area homes.

Some books are deemed a bit too racy, and must be discarded before the sale. More often, books must be thrown away because they're in poor condition.

Carol Davis of Plymouth Township, an AAUW member, is in charge of the "old and special" books. That category includes older paperbacks, some older textbooks and some cookbooks.

"There are some that are really interesting," Davis said. Some books in that category are first editions; some have been signed by the author, or were copyrighted before 1910.

Some books are unusual in other ways; one, for example, has about 50 pages inverted in the middle. A couple of older papebacks came with dust jackets. Some older books for children and some with beautiful illustrations are included in the "old and special" section.

Those books are priced a bit higher than the others, Davis said. Dealers come to the sale each year to look for old and rare books.

Trees tell stories of long ago

Signs of spring are making their presence known at the woods. The site is owned by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools; many classes and other groups take walks through the woods each year.

If the sugar maple could talk, it would have many stories to tell.

The tree, at the Miller Woods in Plymouth Township, is some 200 to 250 years old, which takes it back to George Washington's time, said Evelyn Edgar, president of Friends of the Miller Woods.

The tree's age was estimated a few years ago by a forester from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. It's among the many sights to see at the woods during the upcoming "Heritage Walks."

The woods are on Powell between Beck and Ridge. The nature study area is owned by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, a volunteer group. Friends of the Miller Woods, helps to protect and maintain it.

The annual spring walks are scheduled for 1-4 p.m. Saturday, April 29, and 1-4 p.m. Sunday, May 7. There will be guided tours of the woods, and members of the Friends organization will be available to answer questions.

Evelyn Edgar (left) and Emily Kemnitz enjoy the time they spend at the Miller Woods. Edgar is president of Friends of the Miller Woods, and Kemnitz is education director for the organization.

DURING A recent walk through the woods, Evelyn Edgar and Emily Kemnitz found many early signs of spring. Kemnitz is education director for Friends of the Miller Woods.

The harbinger-of-spring, an herb of the parsley family, was on display along the trails.

"In a little while, it'll be gone while the others are still blooming," Edgar said.

Hepatica, a small plant of the buttercup family, was also making its presence known recently. Trillium, a perennial plant of the lily family, wasn't out just yet.

"They are the most spectacular flower we have here," said Kemnitz, a Plymouth Township resident.

Animals such as skunks, raccoons and others call the woods home.

"We see deer tracks real often in here, but we don't see the deer," said Edgar, also a Plymouth Township resident.

The woods, a beech-maple climax forest, are in a constant state of change. As the seasons change, the woods change.

"You go a little ways from this area and you get a different kind of woods, because it's different soil," Kemnitz said.

The woods were threatened by littering and vandalism a few years back, so in the mid-1970s the Miller Woods Committee was formed to help preserve the woods. In 1987, the Friends of the Miller Woods group was formed.

A NUMBER OF school groups and others come through the woods for tours each year. One spring, some 1,200 students came through, in groups of about 30 each, Edgar said.

More teachers are able to bring their own classes," Kemnitz said. The Friends group holds training workshops for teachers, who are then able to conduct their own tours of the woods.

Kemnitz doesn't tire of the questions children ask. "How old is that tree?" and "What is that flower?" are among the many questions she hears. Both children and adults like to know the names of plants.

Miller Woods has benefited from the time and talents of Boy Scouts working on their Eagle Scout projects. The signs identifying trees and other amenities found in the woods were put there by Scouts.

Friends of the Miller Woods members hope people will participate in the spring walks, and hope participants will consider joining their organization.

Membership dues for the group are maintained in a separate account within the Educational Excellence Foundation of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Funds are used only for the woods.

The fund is administered by the Friends of the Miller Woods committee, which includes Evelyn Edgar, Herb Conant, Beverly Dobel, Charlotte Gaffield, Beverly McAninch, Jean Kee, Penny Wright and Doris Chatterley.

Dues are $10 for individuals, $25 and up for patrons. Dues may be sent to: Friends of the Miller Woods, Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth 48170. For more information, call 451-6423.

Area's rich in history

Wayne County Parks Division helped find photos and artifacts for the exhibit, as did former workers from the plants.

The exhibit covers a time span from 1920, when the Northville plant began operating, to the early 1950s, when operations were moved to larger plants, primarily Ypsilanti and Rawsonville.

THE FORD Village Industries plants were used for defense work during World War II, producing such things as aircraft engine parts. In the late 1940s, operations at some of the smaller plants, including Plymouth, Nankin Mills and Newburgh, were moved to the Waterford plant.

One map in the exhibit shows the location of the other Ford Village Industries plants, along the Huron River and Raisin River.

None of the plants along the Middle Rouge River manufactured complete cars. The work consisted primarily of manufacturing tools, such as gauges and dies, used in auto manufacturing.

The Plymouth plant made threading taps. The Phoenix plant made electrical components, and the Northville plant produced engine valves.

Originally, the Phoenix plant employed only single women and widows in its production ranks. That standard was relaxed a bit in later years to allow some married women to work. Richard said, although the plant's workforce remained primarily female.

Richard's wife, Doris, worked at the Phoenix plant during World War II; his mother also worked there briefly. Richard, a lifelong Plymouth resident, retired in 1979 from his position as resident engineer for Ford's Rawsonville and Ypsilanti plants. He spent 33 years with Ford, and never worked in the Village Industries plants, although he knows others who did.

Ford continues to operate the Northville plant, manufacturing fuel tanks. Adistra Corp. now owns the Waterford plant site, on Northville Road in Northville Township. Wayne County owns the other four plant sites.

Historical society members were pleased to see the exhibit come to life. It's the first major permanent exhibit built at the museum since the building was dedicated in 1973.

"We're enthusiastic about it, really," Richard said. "I am just extremely happy about the whole project, the whole idea."

(For more information, call the Plymouth Historical Museum, 455-8940.)

Club honors top seniors

THERE WON'T be any shortage of talent, energy or intelligence at the 1989 annual Invitational Scholarship Ball.

The event, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Plymouth, honors outstanding high school seniors from the Plymouth-Canton community. This year's Invitational Scholarship Ball will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at the Mayflower Meeting House in downtown Plymouth.

A total of 46 students will be honored.

"It's the largest number we've ever honored," said K.C. Mueller, a Woman's Club of Plymouth member who is serving as adviser for this year's event. Linda Courtney is chairwoman for the 1989 Invitational Scholarship Ball.

The event was first held in 1983, and was created to celebrate the 90th anniversary of the Woman's Club of Plymouth. Originally, the plan was to hold the event just that one year.

"It went over so well that we were asked to continue it," Mueller said. The Invitational Scholarship Ball has been held each year since that time.

ALL STUDENTS invited to attend will be recognized and honored at the ball. Many students will be further honored as recipients of scholarships and merit awards.

The event is supported by the Mayflower Hotel and the Observer Newspapers of Plymouth and Canton.

All students invited are in competition for awards. Recipients will be announced the evening of Saturday, April 29.

"We find out that evening, along with everybody else," Mueller said.

The number of recipients and the amount of the awards are determined by the support received from the community. Last year, a total of $4,200 was awarded.

Students participating must be planning to continue their education at a college or university in the fall of 1989. Their parents must live in or have a place of business in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district. Financial need is not a requirement.

Honorees represent both public and private schools. This year's honorees are from Plymouth Canton High School, Plymouth Salem High School, Catholic Central High School, Mercy High School and Plymouth Christian Academy.

A SCHOLARSHIP committee from the Woman's Club of Plymouth reviews applications and then invites the students who are the most qualified. An outside committee, not including club members, then selects the merit and scholarship award winners.

That committee includes people with experience in awarding scholarships, Mueller said. Committee members must understand school grade point systems and be able to compare systems used at different schools.

In selecting winners, 50 percent of the decision is based on academic achievement and 50 percent on service to school, community and place of worship.

"They do some outstanding things," Mueller said. "Choosing each year's winners is a tough job; all the students have outstanding qualifications.

"Sometimes, it comes down to the neatness of the application."

Mueller and other club members appreciate the support provided by local people and businesses. Couples and individuals sponsor students, sponsors pay for the dinner for the honored students and their dates.

Business sponsors have been generous in their support of the event.

"Every year, it's easier and easier," said Mueller, a realtor with K.C. Colonial Real Estate of Plymouth. This year, the club will award at least the amount given last year, $4,200, and "possibly a little more. We don't know until it's all in."

The evening includes a social hour, dinner, introduction of the honored applicants, the awards presentation and dancing.

"So it's a fun evening for them too," Mueller said.

Christian unity marks service

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Sunday worship services took on a slightly different form recently at the Canton Free Methodist Church.

A service of Christian unity was held at the church the evening of Sunday, April 16. Clergymen and members from a number of Canton churches participated in the ecumenical worship service.

"I thought it was very inspirational," said the Rev. Kerry Hettinger, pastor at the Canton Free Methodist Church.

This is the fourth year such a service has been offered by Canton churches. Each year's service gives worshipers a chance to learn about traditions and practices within different Christian churches.

"I think it's outstanding," Hettinger said. "We all are part of the body of Christ. To deny that is to hinder the work of Christ."

IN THE EARLY 1980s, Canton clergy representatives met for a dawn service held during the Canton Country Festival. Those services weren't well-attended, so participants decided an evening service would be better.

"Sunday is a day of dedication to God," Hettinger said. "Sunday evening is a way of ending it in worship."

Hettinger was impressed with the spirit of unity among clergy and laypeople found at the Sunday, April 16, service.

Within his own church, worshipers believe the altar of God exists within their hearts. That belief doesn't preclude exercising free use of the altar in the sanctuary during worship services.

During the service, some worshipers came to the altar for a time of intercessory prayer.

"It's a time to present concerns, burdens and also praises to God," Hettinger said. Within some Free Methodist churches, worshipers leave notes at the altar rail.

Each year's service includes some tradition common within the host church. Other Canton churches participating in the service were St. John Neumann Catholic Church; Cherry Hill United Methodist Church; St. Thomas A Becket Catholic Church; St. Michael Lutheran Church; Geneva Presbyterian Church; Christ Community Church (Reformed); Faith Community Church; and the First Baptist Church of Canton.

EACH YEAR'S ecumenical service is hosted by a different Canton church; the message is given by the clergy representative who will host the next year's service.

The evening service Sunday, April 16, included prayers, hymns and readings. A choir including members from different churches sang, and an offering was taken to support the work of the Salvation Army.

The message was given by the Rev. Kenneth Gruebel, pastor at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton.

Gruebel told worshipers that caring costs, in emotional involvement and in financial resources, "and it sometimes costs in the criticism of others."

Gruebel held up the log book kept by clergy representatives who provide emergency chaplain service at Oakwood Canton Health Center. Those clergymen face the pain of people who've lost loved ones; heart attacks, strokes, accidents and suicides take their toll on many.

"I am here to remind you of the lonely widows who cry themselves to sleep," Gruebel said.

Cancer patients, people going through divorce, unemployed neighbors, depressed people and others have needs, Gruebel reminded worshipers "of those who go to bed hungry not in Appalachia but in Canton Township. I am here tonight simply to say caring costs. And it opens us up to all kinds of criticism."

Christians come from different traditions; their beliefs and practices will continue to divide them.

"We are different and maybe that's not all bad," Gruebel said. A spirit of caring is what brings Christians together.

"This is what it means to be a Christian at its very best. This is what it's all about," he said. "It's in caring that you will know that your life has counted, whatever the cost."

The sea remains a mystery to us

Rev. Lloyd Buss

"Forty-seven sailors killed at sea. The battleship USS Iowa returning to home port following explosion in No. 2 gun turret. Cause of accident being investigated."

It was an announcement that stunned a nation.

It was the second tragedy at sea in recent weeks. A fire aboard a Soviet submarine had been the cause of her sinking in the Norwegian Sea. The number of Russian sailors killed in the accident was slightly more than the number of American sailors killed aboard the USS Iowa.

The total number of dead from these two tragedies does not change much the cumulative number of dead the sea has received in its years of life. Uncounted numbers of men, women and children have been received by the sea for their place of final rest.

It is likely that the cause of all their deaths is no better understood than the cause of 47 sailors being killed aboard the USS Iowa. We can describe what happened, but we seldom know why.

In the stories of life that shape and form our myths, in the stories that give thought and description to our origin and purpose, the sea is the ultimate mystery.

THE SEA is more than anything that mankind can not control or bring to submission. The myths of creation and life know that only a power beyond human power can "bade the mighty ocean its own appointed limits keep . . . bid its angry tumult cease."

And there is more. In the Psalms of the Judeo-Christian heritage, as in writings of other religions, the sea is the home of Leviathan, the serpent of the deep. Leviathan is the enemy of life, the adversary of God.

William Whiting speaks of the deepest yearning of humanity's soul when he concludes each verse of his hymn with "oh, hear us when we cry to thee for those in peril on the sea."

No reports of the accidents that killed our young men aboard the USS Iowa or the Russian submarine suggest that they were killed by the expansive power of the sea or any monster from the deep.

A flawed design, malfunctioning equipment, human error — in the end, a judgment will be made on the evidence gathered and the accidents will be joined to those who fill the sea with our loved ones.

We may not know what caused the fire aboard the submarine nor the explosion aboard the USS Iowa, but in a larger sense, we do know. It is what happens when people and nations determine to engage one another in mortal conflict. It is what happens when we conclude that one shall rule another.

HUMANITY'S earliest days of life are not lived in the sea, but in the very process of birth, we live it out. We learn how to breathe, how to walk, to talk, to live together in community.

No official report will conclude Leviathan as the cause of the accidents that killed the American and Russian sailors at sea. But until we become more intentional and deliberate in learning how to live in community, how to talk together in peace, how to walk together in peace, there will be more tragedies at sea.

The cost of our failure to do so is too high. The lives of young men and women are too precious to give them as offerings to the demons of the deep.

"Oh, hear us when we cry to thee, for those in peril on the sea."

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is with Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Responsibility shared in protecting food sources

Terry Gibb

Q. You've referred to many government agencies that play different roles in protecting and/or regulating our food. Can you describe these agencies and their roles? Thank you.

A. The responsiblity for protecting our food through monitoring, regulating the origin, quality, composition, safety, weight, labeling, packaging, marketing and distributing is shared equally by local, state and federal agencies.

The following is a short description of the major agencies and theirrelationship to each other.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE (USDA):

Through inspection and grading, the USDA enforces standards for the wholesomeness and quality of meat, poultry and eggs produced in the U.S. They are involved in nutrition research and in educating the public about how to choose and cook foods.

The USDA food safety activities include inspecting poultry, eggs and domestic and imported meats; inspecting livestock and production plants; and making grading (quality) inspections for grains, fruits, vegetables, meat, poultry and dairy products.

FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION (FDA):

The FDA is responsible for ensuring the safety and wholesomeness of all food sold in interstate commerce, except meat, poultry and dairy products, which are under the USDA's jurisdiction.

The FDA develops standards for the composition, quality, nutrition and safety of foods including food and color additives. It sets standards for certain foods and enforces federal regulations on labeling, additives, food sanitation and food safety.

The FDA also inspects food plants, imported food products and feed mills that make feeds containing medications or nutritional supplements for animals intended for use as human food.

The FDA is part of the Department of Health and Human Services Public Health Service.

NATIONAL MARINE FISHERIES SERVICE (NMFS):

As part of the Department of Commerce, the NMFS is responsible for seafood quality and identification. They sponsor a voluntary inspection program for fish products.

BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO AND FIREARMS (AFT):

ATF is an agency of the Department of the Treasury. It enforces the laws that cover the production, distribution and labeling of alcoholic beverages, except wine beverages containing less than seven percent alcohol, which are the FDA's responsibility.

CENTER FOR DISEASE CONTROL (CDC):

Also a branch of the Department of Health and Human Services, CDC is the protector of food safety, including responding to emergencies when food-borne diseases are a factor.

The CDC surveys and studies environmental health problems and administers national programs for prevention and control of certain diseases.

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY (EPA):

In the area of food, the EPA regulates pesticides. It determines the safety of new pesticides, sets tolerance levels for pesticide residue in foods, which the FDA enforces, and it publishes directions for the safe use of pesticides.

The EPA also establishes water quality standards which are used by the FDA to regulate bottled water sold in interstate commerce for human use.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION (FTC):

The FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection is responsible for the regulation of advertising of foods.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS:

State and local government agencies cooperate with the federal government to insure the quality and safety of foods produced within their borders.

State agencies inspect restaurants, retail food establishments, dairies, mills and other food establishments.

Each state "owns" the fishing waters within its jurisdiction which gives them authority over fish, including shellfish, taken from those waters.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS:

At least 40 nations are partners with the U.S. in ensuring food safety through a memoranda of understanding that covers over two food products.

Marketing firm has designs on diversity

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

For the most part, the client roster of the Livonia-based Richardson Media Design is what you would expect from a marketing communications and creative services firm.

There's the National Bank of Detroits, the Hotel Pontchartrains, the Arthur Andersons and the Elliott's Floral Designs.

But as you run down the list, you come across some rather non-corporate sounding names. Who are Tracy Lee & the Leonards? Or the Chenille Sisters?

They're a couple of the musical groups who've had their album covers or promotional posters done by Richardson Media Design. That might seem unusual for a company whose bread and butter is the conservative corporate world.

Then again, what do you expect from a company whose pipe-smoking founder and chief executive officer has a guitar and small amplifier sitting in his office?

"I think there's a creative connection," said John Richardson, who plays guitar in a band called The Desert Water Bags. "We find that we can communicate with musicians."

THE COMPANY'S entertainment base is an all-star lineup of Detroit-area musicians. The late J.C. Heard, Mark Braun (Mr. B), Dick Siegel, along with the Chenille Sisters and Tracy Lee and the Leonards, are clients.

So is Ann Arbor-based Prism Productions and the University of Michigan Office of Major Events, which promote concerts in the area.

Media designer and musician make for great partners in creativity — not financial gain.

"In order to survive in this business, you're not going to do it working with musicians," Richardson said. "We work with musicians because we like to do it.

"It's great for us because we get to make a much stronger statement. It allows us to stretch and stay fresh."

Along the musical route, Richardson Media Design has been honored for excellence in typographic design for its Von Leopold poster by the Type Directors Club of New York, which has been holding annual international competitions for 35 years.

Media design and music have been Richardson's two best friends. After receiving a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Toronto, he started a music magazine in Ann Arbor where he also played guitar in area bands.

Detroit Music Times was part-professional journal, part fanzine. The magazine didn't last long, but the friendships and connections Richardson made in the music field have.

BUT IT WAS BASEBALL, not music, that provided Richardson the right pitch for his big break. As president and co-founder of Local Color Productions, he designed a poster for the 1984 Detroit Tiger season.

At first, the print was designed as a promotional device. Bouyed by the Tigers' pennant drive and the design of the print, which featured a light from the heavens shining on Tiger Stadium, sales skyrocketed.

The print sold for $20 in poster galleries, but cost approximately $1 to make. With 20,000 copies printed, sales of the poster provided Richardson with the capital to start his own business in 1985.

"It was one of those lucky things," he said.

Richardson was in touch with Mike Griffin, with whom he worked at the Detroit Music Times. Griffin is now senior vice president and creative director at Richardson Media Design. He was also founder and president of Brainstorm Design, which later merged with Richardson Media Design in 1987. Griffin designed the award-winning Von Leopold poster to promote the 1987 release of Von Leopold's compact disc.

In the merger with Brainstorm, Louis King also joined the company. King is president and chief operating officer of Richardson.

The Richardson staff has grown to nine. And everyone including the office receptionist participates in the creative process, according to Richardson.

ALL OF WHICH he believes helps keep Richardson Media Design at the forefront in a very competitive industry.

The company provides consulting, advertising, design and public relations services to clients. Along with the entertainment, the group works with those clients in high-tech and financial services.

"When a client asks for something, we want to surprise them," Richardson said. "If a client wants a blue, round object that is six inches in diameter, we say OK. We'll see you in two weeks.

"If we come back in two weeks with a blue, round object that is six inches in diameter, the customer is disappointed. They think, 'Heck, I could have done that.' We show them something completely different."

Richardson Media Design plans to continue to keep a diversified client base. The music side will continue to have a place with the corporate work.

Although their work has primarily been with independent record labels, Richardson said he would eventually like to work with a major label with an artist. He is hopeful the company will eventually expand into other media such as television commercial work.

Whatever the medium or whoever the client, the goal is pretty much the same.

"When you cut to the bone, there's really nothing separating from something being good for a musician and something being good for a corporation," Griffin said. "If the idea communicates the message that it's intended to communicate, then it's worthwhile."

Managing growth key to long-term success

By Mary DiPaolo
special writer

Achieving growth is something every entrepreneur strives for. As companies attempt to get bigger, there is a natural assumption that they will also get better.

But the process of working toward growth has spelled doom for thousands of businesses.

Statistics show that last year, more than 57,000 businesses failed. More than half of these were in operation for more than five years, pointing to mismanaged growth rather than business start-up problems. Joseph W. Duncan, Dun and Bradstreet's chief statistician, believes overexpansion or overly ambitious plans play a major role in three of every four business failures.

So how do business owners manage growth before it becomes a monster? Jeffrey Caponigro, executive vice president with Casey Communications Management, was charged with that task. Since joining the Southfield-based public relations company in late 1984, Caponigro was part of a five-person operation focused on expansion.

"Sooner or later, a business has to decide how small it wants to remain or how large it aspires to be," Caponigro said. As an example, he told how Casey's aquisition by Shandwick plc , a British public relations company, "allowed us to reach clients around the globe while maintaining our autonomy here in the Detroit market."

conference speaker

For smaller businesses that may have ignored growth opportunities for fear of failure, Caponigro stresses the importance of where the company wants to be as an organization and then following through on the right opportunities at the right time. He also suggests to prepare for unexpected calamities such as economic downturns.

"There are several contradictions that face any growth-oriented company such as becoming too dependent on its business plan and then missing out on opportunities that require it to quickly change directions. On the other hand, spending too much money too soon can leave a company over-leveraged if the environment turns sour."

For Caponigro, the need to hire, train and evaluate large numbers of employees at the same time represented his greatest challenge.

"There wasn't any doubt that we needed good quality people to meet the growing demand for our services, but we also had to develop a strong system so we wouldn't lose them as time passed. We spent many hours designing policy handbooks, training seminars and evaluation procedures, all of which were crucial to our professional development effort."

Caponigro will discuss his experiences as a growth strategist and counselor to business as part of the daylong Professional Communicator's Business Conference Saturday, May 6, at Oakland University. His luncheon speech is called "Working Toward Growth and Handling the Monster Once it Arrives." Conference topics include presentation planning, legal requirements for starting a business, client-oriented financial relationships, marketing communications, desktop publishing, special events and working with the media.

Registration deadline is Friday, April 28. For information, call conference director Nadine Jakobowski, at 370-3120. Cost is $110.

Magazine fills small business niche

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Just as business is booming for many small companies, Entrepreneur, a magazine for the small business owner, is enjoying unprecedented success.

"People couldn't even spell entrepreneur 10 years ago. Today everyone wants to be one," James Fitzpatrick, vice president and associate publisher of the monthly publication, said during a recent visit to the area.

Luckily for the publishers, not everyone wants to sell magazines that deal exclusively with the ins and outs of small business. In the dozen years it's been in existence, Entrepreneur has carved itself a niche and avoided competition.

"Nobody recognized the small business market before," Fitzpatrick said. "I think it's a function of timing. Now small business is booming and the magazine is riding that wave."

In June, the California-based operation is hoping to catch a new wave. It is launching Entrepreneurial Woman.

"Four out of five new businesses today that are being started are started by women," Fitzpatrick said. "There's no magazine that addresses them."

Why start a publication geared to women?

"It's more difficult for women to obtain financing. The employer/employee relationship is different for a woman than it is for a man, just be-

Product must always be improving

"The product must satisfy customers — what they want is what they'll get."

As stated by E. Jerome McCarthy in his book, "Basic Marketing," developing the right product isn't easy, because customer needs and attitudes are constantly changing.

Before developing a product for sale or distribution, there must be a clear understanding as to what is meant by the word product. For example, how would you describe a new automobile?

WOULD IT be adequately defined as a certain number of "nuts, bolts, some sheet metal, an engine and four wheels?" And if someone is offering package delivery services, are they selling a specific amount of driver fatigue or wear and tear on the vehicle?

Of course not.

Rather, a product means the needs-satisfying offering of a business. In the case of a new car, all the customer asks is that the car runs efficiently, works well and looks good.

They aren't generally interested in the production process or in how many component parts the vehicle has. In the same sense, customers of a delivery service don't care how much out of the way a driver has to go or where he or she has been.

THEY JUST want their package picked up and delivered.

The idea of a product as potential customer benefits is very important.

A product is more than just a physical good with its related features. It includes "accessories, installation, instruction on use, the package, perhaps a brand name which fills some psychological needs, a warranty, and confidence that service will be available after the purchase if it is needed," McCarthy said.

And when product takes the form of a specific service, customer satisfaction remains a top priority.

JUST AS we have life cycles as human beings, so do products. All products go through their related product life cycles, which represent the stages a new product goes through from the time it is first introduced to customers to the time it "dies" and is replaced by newer and more advanced products.

The total length of a given product life cycle may be as short as 60-90 days (in the case of the Hula Hoop) to 90 years (automobiles). In general, though, product life cycles are getting shorter.

The increasing shortness of product life cycles suggests that entrepreneurs keep developing new products continuously. Next week, we will discuss the process involved in capitalizing on each of the life cycle stages of a new product to maximize customer satisfaction and company profitability.

woman than it is for a man, just because, traditionally, men have been the employers," Fitzpatrick said.

Entrepreneur is a thick, glossy publication that sells on the newsstand for $2.95. It is aimed at "relatively young" small businesses, that is, those that range from birth to 10 years old, Fitzpatrick said.

"That's the most critical time in a business start-up," he said. "That's the time people need the information on what kind of computer they need, what kind of vehicle. We give them information on computers, legislation. We try to cover the whole spectrum of small business ownership." A "small" business is generally defined as one that employs up to 100 people.

Entrepreneur features standing columns by former pro football player Fran Tarkenton, who now runs an Atlanta management consulting firm, and Mark H. McCormack, author of "What They Don't Teach You at Harvard Business School." The May issue's cover story is a report on high-tech office equipment.

One thing the magazine does not provide is personality profiles on rich and famous business people.

Newfangled electronic map works, I guess

Dan McCosh

I never really trusted new technology after they took out the old Cinerama screen at the Music Hall, figuring that was final proof none of this newfangled stuff was going to last. Even my stereo still has real tubes.

Just when I'd gotten used to doing quick changes on the old 78s, I had a tough time getting used to long-play records.

Which makes me one of the last people to turn loose in the wilds of Los Angeles trying to find my way between Pasedena and Santa Barbara by navigating with a computer.

In fact, I was getting a dose of something called "technology transfer," one of those business buzzswords infecting the auto business these days. With some of the same kind of reasoning that had us investing millions in the space program to develop technology that someday was going to reach the common man, GM bought a half dozen or so of high-tech firms a couple of years ago with the intention of bringing some of this Silicon Valley (or is it Silicone?) stuff back to Detroit.

OF COURSE the main thing the space program left us was a few odds and ends such as high-temperature cookware and one rock star walking backward on stage. GM's acquisition of Hughes Aircraft, EDS Corp. and a smattering of artificial intelligence, robotics and other high-tech companies had loftier goals.

Like getting me to Santa Barbara without entering Nevada.

The doodad that was supposed to accomplish this is called the Etak navigator, a kind of miniature television set mounted on a stalk that displayed a tiny triangle, representing me and the Olds 88 I was driving, superimposed on a map of greater Los Angeles. As I drove, the map scrolled under the tiny triangle and the position of the car on the map changed.

IT WAS a fascinating concept, originally developed by a former sailboat racer who was having a tough time finding his marina. GM has high hopes for the Etak system, which already is in the hands of a few police departments and florists.

The actual navigation comes from a computer that records distance and the angle you turn the wheel, moving the display to account for every gyration of the car with uncanny accuracy. I was so absorbed in watching the tiny triangle move over the map it took a couple of polite taps on the horn of the Datsun I was running off the road to make me return my attention to where I was going.

The maps themselves were contained in a series of tape cassettes that had to be loaded into the machine as you crossed a particular territory. They don't sound like much on the radio, I discovered.

BUT ONCE the map was inserted, the little triangle dutifully recorded my aimless circling to find the Ventura freeway, and even a side trip into a McDonald's parking lot to get some chicken McNuggets. Cross street names on overpasses mainly coincided with the street names on the Etak map as I rolled along.

As it turned out, the Pacific Ocean showed up pretty much when the little triangle predicted it would, just as I was getting used to watching the little TV screen.

I was elated, feeling as if I'd experienced the future of the automobile and some of the conveniences that await the commuter of the brave new world.

Now I figure I'm ready to try one of those new little records with the big holes in the middle.

Variable annuity insurance meets some needs well

Part II

finances and you

Sid Mittra

Last week, we discussed several life insurance settlement options. Today we will deal with variable annuity options.

One of the major limitations of fixed annuity option is that it is, in effect, a savings account that earns a fixed interest rate for a specified period. Consequently, it does not provide a good hedge against inflation.

An alternative to fixed annuity is the variable annuity option. Simply stated, a variable annuity is a family of mutual funds within an annuity contract. Under this option, the insurance company offers an assortment of stock, bond and money market funds and puts the responsibility of choosing between them squarely on the shoulders of the policyholder.

Variable annuity contract values fluctuate with the fund's value. When annuitized, the annual payouts also vary with the portfolio's performance.

For a mortality and risk-free 0.8 percent to 1.4 percent of assets, most variable annuities provide a guaranteed death benefit (if death precedes annuitization) of the greater of the total purchase payments, less any withdrawals, or the value of the account.

The fee also guarantees that annuity payments will not be decreased should the insurance company incur adverse mortality experiences or increases in administrative costs.

The final option for the beneficiary is to leave the money at a stipulated rate of interest with the insurance company, which acts as a trustee. The interest rate offered by the company may vary, depending upon the prevailing market conditions.

However, the guaranteed minimum interest rate paid is always approximately 4 percent. This option is the least attractive and is generally not preferred by most policy holders.

Low-cost plan cuts broker commissions

today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

Is it possible to acquire shares in a sizable number of companies and add to the investment every month without paying commissions? I've heard it's possible to invest just $25 a month, but when I talked to a broker, he said it would be best to wait until I had $2,000 and then come back and see him.

Let me answer your letter by describing an actual case that one reader told be about. This reader said he decided he would like to invest $25 a month.

Rather than do it by himself, he got some friends together and formed an investment club. He could have done the same thing on his own. By March of 1988, they had met several times and decided how they would proceed. They decided to use the low-cost investment plan available through the National Association of Investors. More than 40 corporations make their stock available through that plan on an installment basis and pay most of the costs. They decided to begin with an investment in 12 companies as shown in Table I.

Note that they bought just one and a fraction shares of each stock. They owned shares in 12 corporations for just $580. They did have a service charge of $5 per company, or $60, to open the accounts.

Through the rest of 1988, the 16 people invested $25 a month, and each month bought additional shares in one of the companies. As the end of 1988, their holdings were as shown in Table II.

They have paid $7,564 of assets after just nine months of investing. They have paid just $60 in costs for all those transactions.

The program is open only to members of the National Association of Investors Corp. Annual membership for individuals is $30.

What's-his-name makes Firehouse fun

Minimalist band Firehouse features the newest member, Ed Crawford (left), along with more familiar faces, George Hurley and Mike Watt. Firehouse will play at 10 p.m. Friday at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

He's called Ed Who, Ed Whatjamacallit and Ed Fromohio. Compared to his fellow Firehose mates, guitarist Ed Crawford is quite an unknown entity.

So smack them upside the head with your American Express card or something. Tell 'em who you are, Edward.

My dad was the music director at our high school," said Crawford, introducing us to his family.

"He's probably a little baffled by it all. I can tell he's not too sure what's going on. He offers suggestions like, 'Why don't you use your picture on the cover of your album?' "

If Firehose did, people would point to the easily recognizable faces of George Hurley and Mike Watt and then say, "Who's he?" But without Crawford, the Firehose would have never unrolled into one of the most enjoyable minimalist bands on the circuit.

Hurley and Watt were two-thirds of the famed punk outfit, The Minutemen. A van accident killed the group's lead singer, D. Boon, and The Minutemen went into permanent mourning.

Enter Ed Crawford, a big fan of The Minutemen from Toledo, Ohio.

CRAWFORD WENT out to California and convinced Watt and Hurley to give it a second try under the name Firehose. With that, the band went into the studio and recorded "Fromohio" (SST Records).

Though he's a new face, Crawford fits right in. He sounds much like Watt and Hurley when discussing the music they play, which has been described as punk, though the latest album has a rural feel to it, at times.

"I have a hard time dealing with that handle (punk)," said Crawford, who attended Ohio State University.

"I think we share the spirit but music has nothing to do with it. Punk is not a particular genre of music . . . it's an attitude more than anything."

AN ATTITUDE that — for the exception of a few groups like Sonic Youth and Firehose — appears to have dried up. In Firehose's case, a fusion of jazz, blues and funk takes place on stage. Their

'Punk is not a particular genre of music . . . it's an attitude more than anything.'

Tension builds up in Farmington Players production

Performances of the Farmington Players production of "Pack of Lies" continue through Saturday, May 13, at the Farmington Players Barn. For ticket information call 538-1670.

By Bob Weibel
special writer

Suppose the FBI asked to use your home as a surveillance post to observe your best friends across the street? They don't give you many details. It's top secret. But your government needs your help. And they're very persuasive. Would you agree? If it develops that your friends are involved in some shady activity, how would you feel about betraying their trust?

The Farmington Players successfully explores these and many more thought-provoking questions in its production of Hugh Whitemore's domestic melodrama "Pack of Lies."

At times, one might wish for acting with a more natural quality. But generally, director Bill Salisbury's cast creates and sustains a tension that evolves from a family facing the moral and emotional dilemma of trying to continue a friendship, while at the same time allowing the authorities to observe their friends' every move.

review

"Pack of Lies" is based on an actual 1960s' cold-war spy case, involving the sale of NATO secrets to the KGB. The characters have been changed, but one essential element remains the same. Scotland Yard asks a family (the Jacksons) to help them collect information about their friends (the Krogers).

MUCH OF THE opening, cheery conversation designed to establish the friendship between the Jacksons and Krogers is a bit forced. But once the plot begins to unfold, the characters seem to ring true.

Ralph Rosati turns in a stellar performance as Bob Jackson, an ordinary London suburbanite — caught between his duty as husband and father and his patriotic obligations to his country.

Helen Jackson is played by Jan Salisbury. Although a little stagey at times, she is quite convincing as a happy homemaker who slowly breaks down because she cannot cope with the deception and the ever-increasing demands of the authorities.

Judie Rosati scores as the energetic and earthy Mrs. Kroger. Lucien Chocron, on the other hand, plays Mr. Kroger quite effectively as a laid-back type.

Michael Megerian looks and sounds perfect as the British intelligence agent, Stewart. One wishes, however, that there was a more manipulative side to his character — something in his speech or mannerisms that indicate he, too, is willing to deceive quite ordinary citizens in order to achieve his goals.

"The Fight of the Century" Seminar
May 7, 8, 9, 10

Robert Waggoner

Two generations agreed upon by researchers on our society are (1) that social disorder in our culture results from complete family disorganization, and (2) that the forces of disorganization arise primarily not from within the family, but from circumstances in which the family finds itself and from the way of life that is imposed on it by those circumstances.

This seminar discusses those circumstances. They are such obvious problems as divorce, homosexuality, pornography, abortion and many other evil realities of our culture. But the seminar does not stop there. It goes much deeper into the WHYS of those problems. It leads us to thoroughly examine the philosophies which have made our homes vulnerable, shows how those philosophies operate within our culture, and then gives us the knowledge with which we can BUILD BETTER CHRISTIAN HOMES.

If you want to know how Christian families are being attacked - what humanists believe, and how their beliefs change our society - what humanism is - who modern enemies of Christian homes are - how humanism dominates major professions, such as law, media, medicine, psychology, etc. - how public schools are used to teach humanism - how Christians suffer because of humanism - what Christians can do to oppose humanism - whether Christians will be persecuted in America - etc., THEN YOU SHOULD HEAR THESE MESSAGES!

music has been described as three guys on one continual solo.

In Firehose, less appears to be more. The band goes the stripped-down route to bring the real strengths in their music, like, for instance, Watts' thundering bass leads and Hurley's cannon-shot drumming. Certainly at the forefront of the Firehose sound is Crawford's snake-like guitar play.

Showmanship, though, is not a policy in the Firehose camp.

"Fans don't want to see chops all the time," Crawford said. "We're not a player's band. We're more than a guitar-magazine band. Beyond that, who knows."

FANS OF the Firehose do. The band has a strong following on the college campus. "Riddle of the '80s" off Firehose's latest album is in the Top 10 at WOUX-AM, the campus station of Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

With the current stagnant state of album-oriented radio, reaching an audience beyond the campus crowd appears unlikely.

"I think there's a lack of a real trend," Crawford said. "I think that's healthy. When there is a lull, that's when something new breaks. That's what happened in the late '70s with punk. I think some interesting things will sprout."

Firehose already has.

Firehose will perform along with Screaming Trees at 10 p.m. Friday at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit. Tickets are $12.50. For information, call 961-MELT.

The setting is tastefully done. Perhaps the most riveting scenes are the spotlighted soliloquies, in which the major characters tell us about themselves. Very well done.

● SUMMER FESTIVAL

Ann Arbor Summer Festival has announced the schedule for its sixth season of international performers and premiere presentations of music, dance and theater. The festival will open with singer Mel Tormé performing at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 24, in the Power Center.

Other stars will include Al Hirt and his New Orleans Jazz Band, Friday, June 30; Sonny Rollins and his quintet, Tuesday, July 11; vocalist Judy Collins, Sunday, July 9; the Platters and the Drifters, Friday, July 14; and the Chenille Sisters, Wednesday, July 5.

The American Repertory Theatre will present a new production of Moliere's classic "The Miser," Thursday-Saturday, July 6-8. Ann Arbor's Peninsula Productions, New York University's musical theater program and the University of Michigan will join to offer new one-act musicals "The Captain's Wife," "Back to Back" and "The Ugly Duckling," Thursday, June 29, to Sunday, July 2.

The Ann Arbor Civic Theatre will present "The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window," Friday-Sunday, June 23-25, and the Wild Swan Theatre will perform "The Emperor and the Kite," Saturday-Sunday, June 24-25. For children, Theatreworks USA will do "The Great Vaudeville Magic Show," Sunday, July 9.

For more information or a season brochure call 747-2278. Phone orders may be placed after Monday, May 15, by calling 763-TKTS.

● GREASE

The I Care Fund Raiser will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 4, at the Marquis Theatre, 135 E. Main, Northville. "Grease," the '50s rock 'n' roll musical, will be presented. Festivities begin at 7 p.m.; showtime is 8. For tickets at $15 per person call John Kowal at 425-8245 or Maryann McAllister at 525-7067.

● SPRING CONCERT

Plymouth Community Chorus will present its annual Spring Concert entitled "Tribute" at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 29, and 4 p.m. Sunday, April 30, at the Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium in Canton. The chorus will present the winners of its 1988-89 Student Scholarship Program on Saturday. Prizes are $500 to graduating senior Joan Zaretti of Plymouth Salem High School; $250 to 10th grader Mark Teich of Livonia Churchill High School and $250 to 8th grader Rebecca Darga of Plymouth East Middle School. Tickets for "Tribute" may be purchased at Sideways in Plymouth and the Giftdiddler in Northville, as well as from any chorus member. Prices are $5 for adults, $4 for senior citizens and children. For more information, call 455-4080.

● BRASS BAND

The Belgian Youth Brass Band "Kempisch Jeugdfanfare-Orkest" will perform Monday-Thursday, July 24-27, in the Detroit area. Approximately 70 musicians between the ages of 12-24 need accommodations during their stay. Limited transportation may also be required between the performance sites of Livonia and Grosse Pointe. Anyone interested in providing hospitality to one or more of the young musicians, or in receiving additional information on the group, should call Fran Marable at 776-8076 or 776-8500) or Carol West at Madonna College, 591-5044).

● MUSICAL 'CABARET'

The Performing Arts Department of Henry Ford Community College will present the musical "Cabaret" at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, May 11-13, and 2 p.m. Sunday, May 14, at Adray Auditorium of the MacKenzie Fine Arts Center, in Dearborn. The Broadway musical, set in Berlin in the 1930s before the rise of Hitler, stars Heather Capote of Plymouth as nightclub singer Sally Bowles. Jennifer Parlette of Westland plays Fraulein Schneider. Supporting cast members include Catherine Sweeney of Redford as the telephone girl. Among the Kit Kat dancers are Jeannette Pryciak of Redford and Tamara Riggs of Garden City. Catherine Sweeney of Redford portrays one of two ladies. Singing waiters include Charles Campbell of Redford. Tickets at $5 general admission, $4 HFCC students and staff, and $3 senior adults may be purchased at the College Store. For more information call Dr. George Popovich at 845-9634 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Mondays-Fridays.

upcoming

● CLEO LAINE

The smash Broadway production "Into The Woods," a musical fairy tale starring Cleo Laine, with the music of Stephen Sondheim, will appear Tuesday-Sunday, May 16-21, at Detroit's Fox Theatre. The show recently won two Grammy Awards, Best Musical Cast Show Album, and Best Instrumental Arrangement (accompanying vocal) for "No One Is Alone" sung by Cleo Laine. "Into the Woods" also was recipient of the 1988 Tony Award for Best Score, along with the New York Drama Critics' Award for Best Musical. Tickets are available at the Joe Louis Arena box office, the Fox Theatre box office and all Ticketmaster locations. To charge ticket by phone, call 645-6666.

● 'PLAZA SUITE'

Rosedale Community players will present a classic comedy, "Plaza Suite," by Neil Simon at 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays, April 28-29 and May 5-6, and Thursdays-Friday, May 11-12. Performances will be held at The Upstage in Detroit. For tickets at $6 per person call The Upstage at 532-4010.

● SPRING FESTIVAL

St. Patrick's Senior Center Spring Festival will be held from 2-9 p.m. Sunday, April 30, at 58 Parsons at Woodward (behind Orchestra Hall), in Detroit. For further information, call 833-7080. There will be continuous Irish entertainment on two stages. Admission is $3; children $1.1

Teresa Weiss of Monroe (left) is Letitia, Aaron Hunt of Detroit is Mr. Dimple and Linda Barsamian of Livonia is Charlotte is in the Henry Ford Museum Theater's current production of the musical "The Contrast."

● 'THE CONTRAST'

The musical comedy "The Contrast" plays at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through May 14 at Henry Ford Museum Theatre at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. This was the first truly American comedy. A matinee performance will be held at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, May 14. Tickets at $8 each for reserved seats are available daily at the information desk in the entrance to Greenfield Village, at the Museum Theater box office one hour before the performance, or by calling the Reservations Center at 271-1620. A combination dinner and theater package, at $23 per person, also is available.

● FOX THEATRE

Bob James, keyboardist and composer, will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 3, at Detroit's Fox Theatre. Accompanying James will be Alexander Zonjic and Kirk Whalum. Vocalist, performer and four-time Grammy Award winner Lou Rawls will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 4, with special guest Carmen McRae. Tickets for each show, priced at $22.50, are on sale at the Fox Theatre box office, the Joe Louis Arena box office and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge tickets by phone, call 645-6666. For general information, call 567-6000.

● AGATHA CHRISTIE

Meadow Brook Theatre will open Agatha Christie's "Murder at the Vicarage" at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 27, for a four-week run on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. One of Dame Agatha's most popular mysteries, "Murder at the Vicarage" has been dramatized by Moie Charles and Barbara Toy and is staged at Meadow Brook by Artistic Director Terence Kilburn. Paddy Croft, making her Meadow Brook debut as Miss Marple, has extensive Broadway credits including "Major Barbara" and "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," plus appearances in regional theater such as the Guthrie Theatre, Long Wharf Theatre and the McCarter. Tickets may be reserved by calling the box office at 377-3300.

● JAZZ CONCERT

Free Flight will appear Sunday, April 30, for two shows, at 8 and 10:30 p.m., at Baker's Uptown in Pontiac. Tickets at $9.50 in advance are available at the club and all Ticketmaster outlets. Free Flight is in heavy rotation on WVAE ("The Wave") and is in the Top 5 on all the respected jazz charts (including Billboard and Gavin).

● DRAMATIC PLAY

West End Productions presents "Extremities," a dramatic play by William Mastrosimone, and an explicit portrait of an attempted rape and a woman's desire to seek her revenge. "Extremities," will be presented at The Performance Network in Ann Arbor, Thursdays-Sundays, May 18-28. The cast includes Nancy Jamieson Valassis of Bloomfield Hills. Admission is $9 general, $6 students and seniors. For reservations call 663-0681 or 435-7859.

● VEGAS NIGHT

Ridgedale Players of Troy presents a Las Vegas Night, a "million-aire's party" from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday, April 28, at the Royal Oak American Legion Hall. The party will feature casino games including blackjack, roulette, craps and bang. A cash bar and food will be available. Admission costs $3. All proceeds go to the Ridgedale Building Fund. For more information, call Dawn Hooper at 288-0799.

Food, wine

A crowd estimated at up to 200 guests turned out the Hillside's second annual Gourmet Food and Wine Tasting on Monday at the restaurant in Plymouth. This was close to double the number who attended last year. New chef for this year's tasting is Matt Cooper, formerly with La Veranda and Sebastian's. Delicious offerings at the food stations were bluepointe oysters, gulf shrimp dipped in tempura; pheasant-filled ravioli; rouladen of beef; breast of duckling; marinated loin of lamb; octopus salad; curried venison sausage; chicken quenelles; escargots in phyllo; and almond-fried brie with raspberries. Special wines were served at each food station. Chef Cooper is planning some changes for the regular restaurant menu, but he said new dishes will be introduced gradually. He also wants to update the menu in the informal downstairs room, Bottom of the Hill.

ACLU warns of abuse in proposed wiretap bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State officials are looking at wiretapping to get at top drug dealers amid warnings from the American Civil Liberties Union that electronic eavesdropping can be abused.

"It's a new tool — not to deal with drug dealers on the street or drug houses, but middle and upper class drug dealers," Donald Reisig told the state Senate Judiciary Committee last week.

A former Ingham County prosecutor and circuit judge, he is now Gov. Blanchard's "drug czar."

In a public hearing, Reisig added, "The wiretap is needed to get up that ladder, to the middle and upper echelons, to the pipeline."

JUDICIARY commmittee chairman Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, not only likes the bill but is confident there are safeguards against its abuse.

"Misuse would be a felony. That should discourage improper use of a tap," Nichols said.

"It certainly should," agreed Reisig. "If I were in a prosecutorial position, I would prosecute those who misused wiretaps."

Sponsor of Senate Bill 125 is Nick Smith, R-Hillsdale County. The bill would "sunset" (automatically be repealed) after three years. Under it, a prosecutor would apply to a judge for authorization to wiretap for a 30-day period.

All wiretap applications would have to be reported to the attorney general, who would make an annual report to the Legislature and governor.

HOWARD SIMON, state director of the ACLU, opposed the bill as of doubtful constitutionality because "a wiretap picks up all calls and violates the specificity of the Fourth Amendment."

Simon doubted the bill's effectiveness, noting a federal wiretap law has been on the books since the 1960s. "In 20 years, the impact has not been to break the back of crime," he said.

Then he twitted Republicans Nichols and Smith. "Conservatives, I thought, have a healthy suspicion of governmental power."

Simon's heaviest fire was at a provision allowing a prosecutor to apply for a wiretap not only when other methods have failed but seem "unlikely to succeed."

THE ACLU chief also objected to the "ex parte" nature of the judicial proceeding — the potential defendant had no chance to argue in court against issuing the wiretap permit.

"That's the nature of it," replied Sen. John Kelly, D-Detroit.

"Ex parte justice is no justice," said Simon. "But an independent agency could be set up to challenge applications."

"An ombudsman?" asked Nichols.

"Right — a public defender, or our agency," Simon answered.

Simon also proposed the wiretap permit not be renewable after 30 days as Smith's bill would allow. "Drop it if there's no charge, or else it's a fishing expedition," he said.

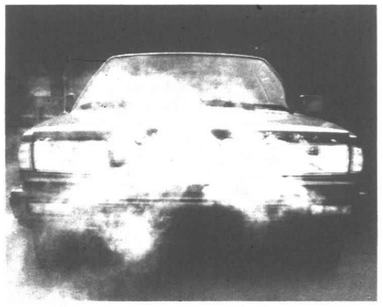
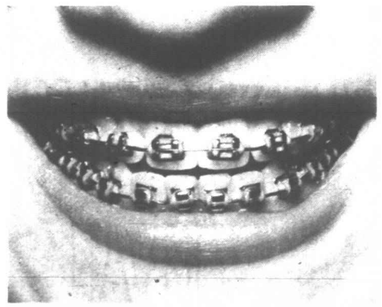
Nowadays, you're training just so you'll have the wind to blow out next year's candles.



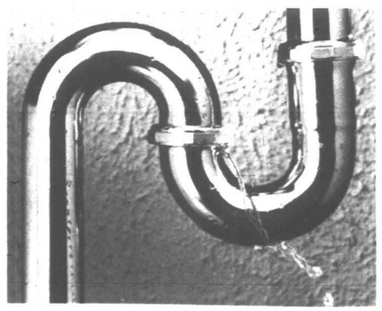
You've come to accept that every now and then your car needs to let off steam, too.

Even though six dozen socks have disappeared in the washer, the laundry pile always stays the same. Or even grows.



For years, every time your kid opened his mouth, you heard cash registers.

You've paid so many taxes, you feel certain that you alone financed the economic recovery.



More than once, you've discovered that your house is something of a liquid asset.

JUST AN IDEA OF WHAT PEOPLE HAVE TO GO THROUGH TO QUALIFY FOR OUR PRIME TIME ACCOUNT.

Because life is chock full of fender benders, bent braces, and unexpected visits from the in-laws, we now offer a reward just for wading through it all.

The Prime Time Account. With it you can consolidate a lot of your banking into one account, minus a lot of the fees. Take checking. It's free with Prime Time. So are personalized checks. You get a no annual fee VISA* or MasterCard*. Plus free traveler's checks, travel discounts and lots more. The Prime Time account is available to applicants of all ages. Kugelman KOs N'ville

Plymouth Canton senior Jeff Kugelman pitched a three-hitter and hit a three-run homer in the first game of a double-header Saturday in which the Chiefs swept two from Northville. Canton entered the week rated No. 8 in Class A but suffered back-to-back losses Monday and Tuesday. See story on Page 3D.

Salem boys take invitational crown

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

In Roger Parry and Scott Stryker, Plymouth Salem had the best one-two punch of the eight boys track teams competing at the Belleville Invitational.

Parry, who tied a school record in the high jump, and Stryker, a distance runner, combined to help the Rocks win the meet for the second time in three years Saturday.

Salem chalked up 84 points to better host Belleville, the runner-up with 77. Novi was third followed by Taylor Truman, Redford Union, Woodhaven, Garden City and New Boston Huron.

Parry was on first-place teams in the high jump and long jump, and he helped the Rocks finish second in the shuttle hurdle relay. Stryker won the open mile and was part of winning teams in the four-mile and distance medley relays.

Parry jumped 6-6 to tie the mark set by Scott Fuller in 1982. His previous best was 6-4, which he did last year and twice this season at the Elks Relays and a dual meet at Northville. Parry's teammates on the relay, Devang Desai and Jim Ramsey, each jumped 5-8.

IN THE LONG jump, Parry went 18-9, Leon Hister 18-4 and Bryan Neal 17-9.

"The conditions were not real good," Salem coach Gary Balconi said. "But those three could beat all the others, so that's all it took."

Parry was second in the 120-yard open hurdles at 15.7, and he combined with Troy Giacherio, Jim Ramsey and Carl Mills for second place in the shuttle hurdle relay at 1:07.9.

Stryker ran the opening leg of the four-mile relay and came back two events later to win the mile in 4:41. Sean Speakman was fifth in that event with a 4:57 time.

Dave Hamway, John Thomas and Brendon Masterson followed Stryker in the four-mile relay as the Rocks won that race in 19:22.5.

Stryker also anchored the winning distance medley unit, being the last to take the baton after Brian Burlison, Mills and Speakman. Stryker ran a strong anchor leg to complete the event in 11:31.

"Stryker was behind and had to play some catch up and did it," Balconi said.

'I tell the kids we'll nickel and dime our way through any meet, because it all adds up in the end. We try to spread ourselves out, so we can score as much as possible.'

— Gary Balconi
Salem track coach

THE ROCKS won six events, the last being the two-mile relay in which Bob Anzivino, Hamway, Thomas and Masterson posted an 8:38 time.

Salem also took third place in the shot put with Rick Van Domelen throwing the weight 43-4, Don Parrish 41-3 and Jack Lupo 36 even.

The Rocks scored in 12 of the 13 events, with the discus being the only one in which they were shut out.

"We're always trying to achieve that balance," Balconi said. "I tell the kids we'll nickel and dime our way through any meet, because it all adds up in the end. We try to spread ourselves out, so we can score as much as possible.

"Our jump crew and distance team really got us through, and the sprinters made their contribution where they could."

Salem had a trio of fifth places. Matt Perron ran 10.4 in the 100 dash, Mills, Hister, Pat Bowie and Perron went 46.4 in the 440 relay and Hamway, Todd Cimo, Anzivino and Joe Pawluska ran the mile relay in 3:41.

In addition, the 880 relay team of Pawluska, Cimo, Randy Fill and Perron captured sixth place in 1:37.8.

BALCONI SAID winning the Belleville meet doesn't necessarily make the Rocks one of the favorites in the annual Observerland Relays on Saturday, May 6, however.

"We have no false sense of security," he said. "We're a long ways from the Observer meet where you have 15-16 teams. That's a whole other meet, so we can't be looking ahead to that. We'll just feel good about winning this one."

Stevenson's depth helps win relay title

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson was prepared for adversity Saturday in the annual Lady Chiefs Relays at Plymouth Canton.

Ironically, the anticipation of such might have helped the Spartans overcome another setback early in the meet and eventually win the 15-team, 14-event competition.

Stevenson was minus nearly a dozen athletes, including its top sprinter, middle-distance runner and long-distance specialist, who had gone to Boston with the school choir.

"Things couldn't have worked out much better," coach Paul Holmberg said. "I told the team afterward 'The kids who weren't here today won't know the joy of winning this meet. They'll have memories of the choir trip to Boston, but they won't have the memories you do of this meet.' "

The Spartans, who were expected to battle Farmington for first place and edged the runner-up Falcons by two points, faced adversity again when the shuttle hurdle team was disqualified after one of its members started too early.

IN AN EVENT Stevenson was counting on doing well, the Spartans were stunned to come away with nothing.

"It was the second running event, so the meet was just getting started," Holmberg said. "Those were some big points we lost. When you're expected to be in the top three and get no points, that's a big setback."

Holmberg was impressed at how quickly the Stevenson athletes recovered from that disappointment, refusing to let it affect their performance in other events.

In the next one — the 800-meter relay — the Spartans finished third while Farmington, which is strongest in the sprint relays, won the race.

"Two (Diane Sherwood and Lisa Christensen) came off the shuttle hurdles, and I think they ran with a little more determination than some others (on opposing teams)," Holmberg said. "It seemed to make those two kids run harder and better.

'I told the team afterward "The kids who weren't here today won't know the joy of winning this meet. They'll have memories of the choir trip to Boston, but they won't have the memories you do of this meet." '

— Paul Holmberg
Stevenson track coach

"We're not really known for our sprinters, but we had some girls who ran well and had good relays," he added. Stevenson was fourth in the sprint medley relay, also.

THE SPARTANS later showed their hurdling skill by winning the 300-meter relay. Christensen, who had the best individual time of 48.1, Sherwood, Dana Carlan and Teresa Sarno comprised the unit.

Stevenson also excelled in the throwing events, taking first place in the discus and shot put and setting meet records in both. The Spartans had totals of 291-1 in the discus and 94-9 in the shot put.

Jessann Martin had her second-best throw of 113-10½ in the discus, and Debbie Wroblewski and Krista Sachs had career bests in both events.

In addition to the throwers and hurdlers, Jeanne Magoulick and Suzanne Moore were Stevenson standouts, according to Holmberg, who said Moore's assignment might have been the most grueling of all. She ran a leg of the eight-mile relay, participated in the 3,200 relay and did the mile as part of the distance medley.

"We asked some kids to do some things they hadn't done before," Holmberg said, "and some to do more than we had the right to ask of them in terms of the number of events."

Others who contributed under demanding circumstances were Carrie Creehan, Nicole Todd, Carlan, Jennifer Pfander, Jennifer Knapp and Becky Adamczyk.

PFANDER HADN'T practiced in a week due to injury, but she took the Spartans from seventh place to third in the 3,200 relay on a gimpy leg, Holmberg said. Adamczyk's event is the 100 dash, but she led off the sprint medley with a 65-second quarter mile.

Without the benefit of an outstanding jumper, the Spartans took third in the long jump through the combined efforts of "three kids who had respectable jumps," Holmberg said. Sherry Jahns, Sarno and Sherwood jumped in the 13- to 14-foot range.

"Two (Jahns and Sarno) had come down from the high jump where we had just bombed out," Holmberg said. "That's another case where we could have tucked out tails.

"Instead of pouting about it, they went down and turned in a real respectable performance in the long jump. That's the kind of thing that happened all day. We turned around and made it happen somewhere else."

Stevenson also was third n the 3,200 and 800 relays, and the Spartans finished fifth in the eight-mile relay.

"We could have won it if we had those kids (who were absent) or if we didn't get DQed in the shuttle hurdle," Holmberg said. "But we didn't have to say could have. We went out and did it anyways."

League's top teams collide in relays

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The one-two finish by Livonia Stevensen and Farmington in the Lady Chiefs Relays was a foreshadowing of things to come Saturday.

That's according to Plymouth Canton coach and meet director George Przygodski, who believes those teams will be in the lead at next month's Western Lakes Activities Association girls track meet.

Przygodski should be a good judge of such things since it was his Canton team that won the league championship last year.

"It was a great preview of the WLAA meet," he said. "Stevenson and Farmington went at each other right down to the end."

The Spartans had 58 points, the Falcons 56. Farmington Hills Mercy was fourth, Plymouth Salem sixth and the host Chiefs 12th.

"FIRST OF all, the dual with Stevenson is going to be real good," Farmington coach Bruce Brown said. "But you get in those big meets, and it's hard to tell what's going to happen.

"Our biggest problem as we get near the end of the year is that we're going to run into some conflicts with soccer."

Carrie Maier and Amy Trunk are key members of Farmington's sprint relays — its bread-and-butter events — and they play for the school's undefeated and No. 3-ranked soccer team, too.

"Stevenson is going to dominate us in the shot and discus," Brown said, "and we're going to hurt them in the sprint relays. But there weren't any open events Saturday. We have no idea how they'll do in the 100 or 200, so it'll still be kinda fun."

The Falcons set meet records with victories in the 400 and shuttle hurdle relays, and they also won the 800.

Jennifer Reed, Shelli Gaul, Maier and Angie Forge won the 400 in 51.4, and Maier, Nicole Tocco, Trunk and Forge captured the 800 with a 1:51.8 time, beating Ann Arbor Huron in both races. In the shuttle hurdles, Susan Davidson, Dawn Montrose, Marissa Ferrari and Gaul combined for a record 1:10.2 time.

"WE HAVE four pretty decent hurdlers," Brown said. "Most schools have two and then have to grab someone else named Jane to run it. I thought the kids ran really well."

Farmington was fourth in the high jump, but Julie Lawton had the best individual effort at 5 feet, 3 inches.

"That was the first time she's had any competition," Brown said. "Julie is pretty consistent. We can count on her to be anywhere from 5 feet on up."

Jennifer Kiel ran a 12:02 two mile in the eight-mile relay and then a 5:37 mile in the distance medley. Gaul ran "a great leg" on the shuttle hurdle team, Brown said.

The Falcons limited Reed's work to the relay and the long jump.

"Her legs have been bothering her a little bit, and we decided to back her off and rest her," Brown said. "Tocco is starting to run well again. She was ill but is starting to come back into shape."

IN PAST years, Farmington has gone to the West Bloomfield Invitational where it had to contend with the likes of defending Class A champion Ann Arbor Pioneer.

"This is the first all-relay meet we've been to since I've been coaching, and our kids really enjoyed it," Brown said. "The kids enjoyed coming down here and winning some events. They said they liked it, so I think we'll be back."

Mercy was the winner in the eight-mile relay, scoring 25 points based on the finish of its four runners. Kathleen Gerigk was fourth out of 36 runners, Heather Noll fifth, Carrie Walton sixth and Brigitte Dery 10th.

Nikki Wygonik had the best individual performance for Salem. All four of the relay teams she was on scored points. She helped the Rocks to second place in the shuttle hurdle, third in the 300 hurdles and fourth in the 800 and 400 relays.

"We scored in eight of 14 events, so I was pleased with the effort," Salem coach Mark Gregor said. "Any time you finish sixth, you look for places where you could have scored more points. I think there were three or four events we felt we had a chance and didn't score, and that's why we finished sixth."

Canton's best event was the eight-mile relay in which Kris Marquard (9), Cindy Spessard (11), Lori Penland (12) and Cathy McCabe (15) finished third. Przygodski also cited Amy Smith's split time in the distance medley and that of Kristy Brugar in the 1,600 relay, as well as Heather Spencer's high jump of 5 feet.

Mercy rolls

Farmington Hills Mercy routed Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher Tuesday 86-42 in a girls track meet at Farmington High School.

The Marlins, 2-0, won two field events, with Charese Sanders taking the shot put (34-9½) and Gail Murie winning the high jump (4-8).

Mary Beth Strand was first in the low hurdles (53.9). The Marlins dominated the middle distance events, getting wins from Lauren Hood, 400 meters, 64.4; Noelle Gates, 800, 2:41.0; Kathleen Gerigk, 1,600, 5:50; and Brigitte Dery, 3,200, 13.10.0.

Mercy also won the 800-meter relay in 1:54.1 and 1,600 relay in 4:27.9, respectively.

Members of the 800 team were Adanna Amanze, Yvonne Bostic, Nyasha Glass and Kim Cook. Gerigk, Hood, Gates and Heather Sullivan ran in the 1,600 relay.

Raiders unload on No. 8 Chiefs for 12-7 victory basketball

North Farmington batters hit everything Plymouth Canton threw at them Tuesday when the Raiders played their finest game of the season.

North, led by Jack Herberholz and Chris White, pounded out 17 hits off three Canton pitchers as the Raiders defeated the host Chiefs 12-7. North is 3-6 overall, Canton 5-2.

The victory over the No. 8-rated team in Class A came just a day after Farmington Hills Harrison clipped Canton 4-3 behind another solid pitching performance by Craig Murray.

"We've been losing some close ones but today we put it all together," North coach Irv Horwitz said. "I switched around the order and we just went nuts."

Herberholz was 4-for-4, scored three runs and drove in four runs. He hit a two-run homer and a two-run double, helping the Raiders build a 10-2 lead after five innings.

White also went 4-for-4, scored four runs and had one RBI. Joe Sturtz was 3-for-5 with three RBI, and Craig Garczynski and Steve Fitzpatrick had two hits and scored two runs. Fitzpatrick also had an RBI.

Sophomore Andrew Margolik went 6⅔ innings to get the victory. He gave up eight hits and seven walks, and he struck out two. Paul Anders pitched to one batter in the bottom of the seventh after Margolik got in trouble during a five-run rally by Canton.

Brian Paupore started and pitched four innings, taking the loss. Geoff Allen worked two innings and Jason Dembny one.

Canton's Ron Groh was 3-for-4 and scored three runs, and Jeff Kugelman was 2-for-4 with one RBI.

HARRISON 4, CANTON 3: Craig Murray has more than earned his title as the ace of the Harrison pitching staff, tossing a four-hitter and striking out 11 while going the distance.

Murray's victory over Canton comes on the heels of a 7-1 victory over North Farmington on April 14 in which he tied a school record with 15 strikeouts. Murray, who is 2-0 and has one save, didn't walk anybody.

Craig Murray did a great job," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "He's been real strong all year."

Murray outdueled Canton's Mike Sulak, who also struck out 11 and pitched a four-hitter. He issued four free passes in six innings. Geoff Allen worked the last inning.

"We would have liked to win on the road," Canton coach Fred Crissey said. We had a chance but didn't do it. They were the better club today."

The Hawks, 2-0 in the Western Division and 4-0 overall, scored what proved to be the winning run in the top of the seventh on Jason Lichtman's two-out double that scored Tim Horton.

Harrison's Jeff Skinner scored the first run in the second after he doubled and advanced on a bases-loaded walk to Gary Devine. The Hawks made it 3-0 in the sixth on Murray's RBI single and a double steal that plated Rob MacDonald.

Kugelman was 3-for-3 and had one RBI for the Chiefs, 1-1 in the division and 5-2 overall.

CANTON 10-10, NORTHVILLE 2-6: Jeff Kugelman was the winning pitcher and the big hitter in the first game of the double-header Saturday. Only the first game counts toward the division standings.

Kugelman pitched a three-hitter for five innings and helped his own cause by going 2-for-3 and knocking in three runs. He crushed a three-run homer for the game's final runs.

Mike Sulak relieved in the sixth and allowed one hit over the final two innings. Derek Humphries was 2-for-3 with two RBI.

The Chiefs trailed 6-5 in the second game until scoring five runs in the bottom of the sixth. That made a winner of Humphries, who followed starter Geoff Allen and Brian Paupore and pitched the last 1⅔ innings.

Dave Makara was 3-for-4 for the winners and had four RBI, and Sulak was 2-for-4 with two RBI.

STEVENSON 8, N. FARMINGTON 7: The Raiders scored twice in the bottom of the seventh, but the rally fell a run short Monday. North is 0-3 in the Lakes Division.

Joe Sturtz was 2-for-3 with two RBI and scored two runs. Jerry Hakala was 2-for-4 and also had two RBI, and Jack Herberholz was 2-for-4 with one RBI.

Tim McEvilly, 0-2, pitched 5⅓ innings and was charged with the loss. He gave up eight hits, walked two and struck out five.

Doug Wasserman put in 6⅔ innings to get the victory. He struck out 10 and walked five, but the Raiders got to him for 10 hits. Scott Kosikowski pitched out of a jam in the seventh to secure Stevenson's win.

Paul Namel had a solo homer for the Spartans. Rob Chanko was 2-for-3 and scored three runs. Kosikowski was 2-for-4 and stole two bases and Mike Dalimonti had three RBI, including a two-run single.

Rocks rally to beat Farmington

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Coach John Gravlin and his Plymouth Salem baseball team were long on endurance Monday.

That attribute almost cost the Rocks a victory in their game with visiting Farmington, but Salem eventually used it to its advantage.

In one of the most dramatic games of the young season, Salem survived an eight-run sixth inning by the Falcons and rallied to defeat Farmington 12-11 in 10 innings.

After the Rocks scored five runs in the bottom of the fifth, junior pitcher Rob Kowalski took an 8-3 lead into the sixth, but Farmington stormed back in its next at-bat to wipe out the deficit.

Gravlin stayed with Kowalski until Kevin VanOrd smashed a two-out, two-run double to put the Falcons in front 9-8.

"He's the only pitcher on our staff that we'd stay with," Gravlin said. "He didn't have his good stuff today."

GRAVLIN ADDED the pitching was stretched thin after Salem played a single game Friday and a double-header Saturday and still had games coming up Tuesday and Wednesday.

"We were hoping Robbie could go out there and throw seven," Gravlin said. "He's been known to get stronger. (Assistant coach) Dale Rumberger and I feel we did not coach the best game we could have today."

Chad Johnson relieved Kowalski and gave up three straight hits, including Eric Miller's RBI single and Chris Schmid's RBI double, before getting Geoff Childress to strike out and end the uprising.

Johnson settled down after that rough start and allowed no runs over the next four innings, picking up the victory in his first outing for the Rocks.

"He went to a different school last year, and I had no idea how he'd pitch," Gravlin said. "I was hoping he'd throw strikes, and that's exactly what he did. Johnson just threw off speed, and Farmington never threatened on him."

With the mound situation stabilized, Salem forced the game into extra innings with three runs in the last of the seventh.

Kevin Beals, who hit a grand slam during the five-run fifth, led off the inning with a solo homer off Schmid, who left in favor of Norm Celinske after allowing a single by Tom Noonan and walking Brian Connell.

Noonan was forced at third on a fielder's choice by Dave Mackowiec, and Brian Rudolph's sacrifice bunt put men at second and third. Connell and Mackowiec raced home to tie the score on Dennis Hanson's single to right field.

IN THE bottom of the 10th, Eric Sheehan doubled and scored the winning run when the Falcons tried to throw him out at third on Dave Noonan's sacrifice bunt, but the Farmington fielder threw the ball away instead.

"There are going to be games like that when the pitching lets you down," Gravlin said. "The impressive thing is that we swung the bats and hit the ball hard.

"I was pleased to see that never-say-die attitude. That establishes a belief in yourselves, a belief that you can always come back. That's in your plus column."

Kowalski worked 5⅔ innings, allowed 11 hits and two walks and struck out three. Johnson allowed only one hit after the sixth inning and walked one. Celinske ended up the loser.

Tom Noonan was 4-for-5; Beals 2-for-5 with five RBI; Sheehan 3-for-4 with three runs scored and Tim Lake 2-for-5.

Farmington's VanOrd, who tied the game 3-3 with an RBI single in the top of the fifth, was 3-for-6 with two RBI. Miller was 3-for-5, including a solo home run, scored three runs and drove in two. Scott Lakatos was 2-for-3, Green 2-for-6 and Schmid 2-for-5. Chris Adams contributed a two-run double in the sixth.

As of Monday, Salem stood at 3-0 in the Lakes Division, the Falcons, who are 4-2 overall, 1-2.

FRANKLIN 6, SALEM 5: The Patriots pushed across six runs in the second inning and held on to beat the host team, which pulled within one after scoring twice in the bottom of the seventh.

Franklin's Joe Ransley threw out Salem's Dave Mackowiec, who was trying to go from first to third on a single to end the game.

The Patriots did all of their second-inning damage with two outs. Ransley's three-run homer was the big blow, but Mike Werle added an RBI double and Tad Dennis and Kevin Douglas run-scoring singles.

Ransley was 2-for-3 and had two stolen bases, and Douglas and Darrin Lipton were 2-for-4. Salem's Tim Lake batted 2-for-4 and Tom Noonan 2-for-3.

Howie Blanchard went the distance and was the losing pitcher. Franklin had 11 hits off Blanchard, who walked only two and struck out four. Junior Jeff Graham was the winner, going 6⅔ innings before needing help from Dan Murray to end the game.

SALEM 3-6, N. FARMINGTON 1-10: Scott Rodgers celebrated his 16th birthday Saturday by striking out 12 and pitching a four-hitter for Salem in the first game of the Lakes twinbill.

In his first varsity start, the sophomore struck out the side in the second and sixth innings. He also walked four in six plus innings. Rob Kowalski finished up in the last inning.

Rodgers walked the first two in the seventh, at which time Kowalski took over. He walked the first batter he faced but then retired the side on a flyout to center field, a strikeout and an infield popout.

The Rocks scored all the runs they needed on five straight singles by J.P. LaRoche, Kevin O'Leary, Eric Sheehan, Tim Lake and Dave Noonan in the first inning. Sheehan and Lake had the RBI.

LaRoche was 2-for-4 and stole two bases. Sheehan 2-for-3 and Lake 2-for-4. North's Jack Herberholz, who was 3-for-4, made a diving catch in the seventh inning to take another hit away from Lake and prevent two runs from scoring. Chris White doubled and scored North's only run on Joe Sturtz's sacrifice fly.

In the nightcap, the Raiders broke a 6-6 tie with four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. North went ahead on Tim McEvilly's RBI single, and Mark Dorfman followed with a two-run double.

Salem had rallied with four runs in the top of the sixth to tie Kevin O'Leary scored two runs with a double. Chad Johnson singled home a run and LaRoche, in a pinch-running role, stole second, third and home.

The Raiders scored six unearned runs in the fifth, in which Dorfman had a two-run single. White had a pair of doubles while going 3-for-4. McEvilly and Dorfman were 2-for-4 and Sturtz 2-for-3.

White pitched the final 1⅓ innings to get the victory, and John Brannan, who worked the last 1⅓ for Salem took the loss.

Chiefs victim of late-game surge

8th-inning rally lifts North, 8-4

North Farmington made sure an apparent victory didn't slip away in the late innings Tuesday at Plymouth Canton.

After the Chiefs tied the score at 4-4 in the bottom of the seventh inning, North nailed down an 8-4 victory with a four-run eighth.

Debbie Weintraub won the pitching duel with Canton's Stacey Thompson and also contributed a two-run double to the win-clinching inning.

In the eighth, Eve Claar reached second on an error, and the Raiders had runners at second and third after Dana Botwick laid down a bunt single and stole second.

Two runs scored when Pam Gressler reached on an error, and Kelly Coulson's single was followed by Weintraub's double.

Coulson was 4-for-4 with three RBI and scored two runs. Weintraub, who was 2-for-4, had four RBI, and Botwick had five stolen bases. As a team, North stole 11 bases.

Canton's Karen Keenan hit a solo homer. Thompson's two hits were a double and a triple and Kim Schulte was 2-for-3.

In the seventh, Thompson's double knocked in one run, and Mary George singled to score Thompson with the tying run.

Weintraub was touched for seven hits, walked four and struck out three. The Raiders had nine hits off Thompson, who issued seven walks and retired eight on strikes.

MERCY 20-10, BORGESS 2-0: In a Central Division mismatch on Tuesday, host Farmington Hills Mercy routed Redford Bishop Borgess.

Mercy is now 12-5 overall.

In the opener, which lasted only four innings, Moe Paulin, Kim Reichard, Jenny Goindek and Jenny Shallal each collected two hits for the Marlins. Reichard knocked in four runs. Paulin threw. Goindek and Shallal two apiece.

Pitchers Amy Edward and Paulin combined on a no-hitter.

In the nightcap, Borgess also went hitless as Edward tossed six scoreless innings.

Kerry Sayers was 3-for-5 and Paulin 3-for-4 while Pam Thompson and Maura Pheney had two hits apiece. Pheney and Thompson each drove in three runs. Paulin two.

FRANKLIN 2, SALEM 1: Livonia Franklin sophomore pitcher Jenny Mayle held Plymouth Salem in check Tuesday, leading the Patriots to a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover victory.

Franklin is 4-1 overall, while Salem dipped to 3-4.

Mayle tossed a four-hitter. She struck out eight, walked three and hit one batter, outdueling Salem hurler Chris August, who also went the distance, allowing four hits and six walks.

Jenny fielded like a cat and we played good defense at the right time," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein, who watched the Patriots get out of a fifth inning bases loaded jam by turning a double play.

Franklin tallied both of its runs in the fifth.

Mayle led off with a single. Shannon Eberts and Dawn Warner each walked to load the bases. Mayle scored on a passed ball, and Eberly scampered home on Karen Brown's single.

Salem's Jo Wiklund and Katie Vesnaugh had two hits apiece. Wiklund scored the run when Kris Bradley walked with the bases loaded.

N. FARMINGTON 9, STEVENSON 3: On Monday, North Farmington pitcher Debbie Weintraub handcuffed host Livonia Stevenson on three hits to pace the Raiders.

Weintraub, who had a no-hitter through 3⅓ innings, allowed just one walk and struck out five.

Kelly Cotter suffered the loss. She allowed seven hits and walked nine.

North's Eve Claar had four RBI. Amy Fletcher and Dana Botwick three each. Fletcher's lone hit was a two-run double.

CANTON 23, HARRISON 12: Jennifer Vanootighem pitched a two-hit, complete game Monday for the Chiefs, who improved to 2-1 in the Western Division.

Vanootighem walked 14 and struck out seven, and Canton batters received 22 free passes from Harrison pitchers.

Kim Schulte paced the Chiefs by going 4-for-4 and scoring four runs. She also had two RBI. Allison Flaskamp and Beth Racer hit two-run singles and scored twice. Mary George collected four RBI on two hits and Stacey Arnold walked three times and scored three runs.

SALEM 20, FARMINGTON 0: Chris August pitched her second one-hitter in three days Monday as the Rocks mercied the home team in five innings.

August, 2-0, walked two and struck out the same. Salem had 11 hits off loser Lisa Rockafellow.

Ann Mundinger was 3-for-4 with two RBI. Tracie Robinson had three RBI while going 2-for-4. Jo Wiklund was 2-for-5 and drove in one run and Katie Vesnaugh went 2-for-4.

The girls who got all the hits are the top four in the lineup, Salem coach Rob Willette said, and they're the ones who will have to carry us if we're going to have a successful season. So maybe we're starting to come around a little bit.

Melissa Tisdale's double was the lone hit by a Farmington batter.

SALEM 3-1, LADYWOOD 1-9: August, making her varsity pitching debut, one-hit the state-ranked Blazers, who suffered their first loss in the opener Saturday.

August had a no-hitter going until Lisa Bielenda hit a two-out single in the seventh. She walked nine and struck out six. Shannon White was the loser, allowing five hits and two walks.

Salem took a 3-0 lead with two runs in the third inning. Mundinger had an RBI single, and Vesnaugh scored on a groundout. Robinson, who was 2-for-3, doubled and scored the first run on a second-inning error. White scored for Ladywood.

In the second game, White tossed a three-hitter over seven innings. She was the leader at the plate as well, going 3-for-3 with two triples and a double with three RBI. Sue Bisparon hit a two-run homer for the winners.

Holly Hinzmann pitched five innings and suffered the defeat. Lyons had a double, Mundinger and Sue Stegeman singles for Salem's hits.

Corsairs spoil Canton tourney hopes

Waterford Mott's softball team was the spoiler Saturday for both Farmington Hills Mercy and Plymouth Canton in the Novi Invitational.

The No. 8-ranked Corsairs won the championship by beating Canton 7-6 in the final, and Mott survived pool play at Mercy's expense, taking a 3-0 victory from the Marlins.

With the Chiefs leading 6-5, Mott loaded the bases in the seventh inning with a single, an error and a walk. A passed ball allowed the tying and winning runs to score as the ball caromed off the backstop and rolled up the third-base line.

Canton managed 11 hits off Mott pitching ace Julie Clarkson, who on the other hand struck out 10 and walked one.

Kim Schulte led the Chiefs with a 3-for-4 showing at the plate, and she scored two runs and had one RBI. Beth Racer and Bridgett DeRosa were 2-for-3, and Stacey Thompson and Racer had one RBI apiece.

Gail Svenkeseth had three hits, two runs and two RBI for the Corsairs, who had nine hits off losing pitcher Thompson, who walked just four and struck out two in seven innings. Kim Turpin and Clarkson contributed two hits apiece.

IN THREE straight relieving roles, Thompson was the winning pitcher in Canton's first three games. She had pitched Friday night against Northville, and coach Dave Racer was trying to conserve her arm strength since he knew the Chiefs would need her later Saturday. Thompson and teammate Allison Flaskamp made the all-tournament team.

Canton rolled over Wayne Memorial 17-8 and Lansing Everett 18-4 in its first two games.

Schulte hit a two-run homer, scored three runs and posted three RBI in the opener. Thompson was 2-for-3 with two RBI, and Flaskamp had a two-run single and also scored three runs.

Mary George and DeRosa had three hits apiece to lead Canton's 15-hit attack in the Everett game. DeRosa, a sophomore, also had three RBI and scored three runs, and George had two of each. Thompson had the softball version of the triple double with two hits, two runs and two RBI in that game.

The going got tougher in the next game, but the Chiefs eked out a 3-2 win over Novi, outhitting the Wildcats 10-4 in the process.

Novi scored twice in the fourth inning for a 2-1 lead, but Thompson's two-run single scored Flaskamp and Arnold and put Canton back in front. George also had a two-run single, and Arnold, Thompson and Rhonda Kibilko had two hits apiece.

MOTT GOT past the Marlins in much the same way it did Canton. Clarkson's RBI single gave the Corsairs a first-inning lead, but a short-stop error allowed two insurance runs to score in the fifth inning.

Clarkson pitched a two-hitter for Mott, striking out 10 and walking none. Mercy's Amy Edward hurled a four-hitter while walking one and striking out three.

"Amy pitched a good game, because Waterford Mott is just loaded with hitters," Mercy coach Suzanne Brown said.

In earlier games, the Marlins squeezed past an excellent Walled Lake Central club, 2-1, and defeated Hazel Park, 7-3, after scoring four runs in the top of the seventh.

Edward gave way to Moe Paulin after three innings against Hazel Park, but she was needed again in the fifth after the Vikings loaded the bases against Paulin in back-to-back innings.

Edward allowed four of Hazel Park's seven hits, walked three and struck out eight. The Vikings also were guilty of five errors.

Mercy's Maribeth Mrsan knocked in two runs with a bases-loaded single, and Edward was 2-for-2 with two runs and two RBI. Amiee Cox also had two RBI.

Edward tossed a two-hitter at Central while the Marlins supported her with nine hits. Edward had a third of them, going 3-for-4. Pam Thompson and Edward had back-to-back RBI singles in the sixth inning for a 2-0 lead. Kerry Sayers was 2-for-3 and scored a run, and Thompson was 2-for-4.

Canton, Salem crush Walled Lake ballclubs

Three days after getting beat by Plymouth Salem, the Canton girls soccer team took out its frustration on Walled Lake Western, walloping the host Vikings 7-0 Monday.

Jenny Russell led the scoring with two goals. Molly Menard, Sonia Malkhassian, Christina Reilly, Ayana Nash and Erin Morgan had one goal each for the Chiefs.

Jennifer Davis recorded the shutout for Canton, though she wasn't tested and didn't even record a save.

"I guess we needed a rest, and the coaches did, too," Canton coach Don Smith said. "It doesn't help the team much, but it's good for the girls to get some time who don't normally."

SALEM 15, W.L. CENTRAL 0: Plymouth Salem remained unbeaten and defended its No. 1 ranking in grand fashion Monday, routing the Vikings 15-0.

Salem is 5-0 overall, 1-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Jill Estey and Sara Hayes led the Rocks attack with four goals apiece, and Michelle Minton scored three. Estey and Minton collected two assists each.

Teri King had two goals and three assists for the Rocks while single tallies belonged to Mandy Drummond and Erin Harvey.

Recording her fifth shutout in net for Salem was freshman Jennifer Emmett.

FARMINGTON 7, N. FARMINGTON 0: The No. 3-ranked Falcons won their sixth girls soccer game of the season without a loss Monday, blanking North Farmington 7-0.

North, 2-3-1 overall, is hoping to attain at least six wins by the end of the season, and maybe finish with a .500 record.

We're still looking at a chance to finish .500 and that would be a real accomplishment," said North coach Matt Davis, who wasn't awed by Farmington. "They probably deserve their ranking in the state, but they don't deserve to be as high as they are. They've got a ways to go, as we all do."

Carrie Maier was a top-notch performer, however, for Farmington, scoring three goals. Kim Popyk had two goals, and Amy Trunk and Jody Perris scored one each.

Debbie Westerkamp and Kristen Soper shared the goalkeeper duties for the Falcons, who bombarded North goalie Leanne Adie with more than 20 shots.

Farmington coach Cathy Cole said the Falcons didn't play as inspired as she'd have liked coming off last Friday's thrilling 2-1 win over state-ranked Livonia Stevenson.

"I thought we were pretty lackadaisical in our play coming off the emotional win," Cole said. "But we played well regardless, and we learned a lesson — we can't take anyone lightly."

W. BLOOMFIELD 6, HARRISON 1: West Bloomfield led 5-0 by halftime, and the Lakers coasted the rest of the way to keep the Hawks winless at 0-3-2 overall.

Kelly Murany scored Harrison's lone goal, which came with about 10 minutes left and the Hawks already trailing 6-0.

Sandi Morelli was Harrison's goalkeeper, recording 15 saves. The outcome could have been worse without the strong play of fullbacks Shari Barnes and Korky Sharpe, Harrison coach Glenn Bruehan said.

"It was a very bad game for us," Bruehan said. "They were a decent team and we weren't organized (Sharpe) was one of the reasons they scored only one goal in the second half."

In a game played last Wednesday, Harrison fell to host Walled Lake Central 4-1 with Harrison's goal going to Cheryl Monahan.

Wildcats qualify for basketball finals

The 11-Under and 13-Under Western Wayne Wildcats AAU girls basketball teams have advanced to the state finals scheduled for May 12-13 at Plymouth Salem and Canton high schools.

Both units were one of three finalists to qualify out of regional play last weekend at Canton, Salem, East Middle School and Pioneer Middle School.

The 11-Under finals will be held at Canton, and the 13-Under finals will be played at Salem.

The other state finalists in the 11-Under group are the Brick City Bombers and Upper Thumb Lady Knights. The Waterford Lady Knights and Rochester are additional qualifiers in the 13-Under group.

Canton teams win soccer tourneys

The Plymouth Canton Soccer Club claimed not one, but two soccer championships earlier this month at the annual Dogwood Arts Festival in Knoxville, Tenn.

The 13-Under Canton Patriots and the 15-Under Canton Enforcers each swept four games en route to their respective titles at the University of Tennessee's Neyland Stadium April 15-16.

Teams from Florida, Georgia, Kentucky and Tennessee also participated in the tournament.

The Patriots earned the championship trophy by beating the Nashville Sting 2-1 in the title game. Eric Stoecklein and Brian Jansen scored the goals. The goalkeeper was Mike Kokoszka. The Patriots outscored their four opponents 13-3.

Jerry Gibbons was the head coach and his assistant was John Burrows. The team manager was Jack Austin.

Members of the team included Kokoszka, Stoecklein, Jansen, Scott Abbott, Chris Amina, Trevor Austin, Brian BoBo, James Bossieux, John Cochran, Andy Feierfeil, David Kapla, Ryan Ostash, J. Rozum, Joe Sisko and Greg Szydlowski.

The Enforcers defeated the Maratta (Tenn.) Express 4-1 in the finals to win their bracket. Brett Kearney, who scored eight goals in the tournament, scored two in the final game. As a team, the Enforcers lived up to their nickname, outscoring the opposition 25-1. Jim Bradley and Nick Dazer shared the goalkeeping duties.

The head coach is Pete Rogissart, and he is assisted by Verne Kirby.

Among the 18 players were Bradley, Kearney, Dazer, Todd Kearney, Owen Crosby, Scott Kapla, Brian Kirby, Jeff Kley, Ryan Kramer, Stu Levenbach, Brent L'Heureux, Brian McHenry, Jason Rupp, Ray Rogissart, Chris Saline, Dave Sudia, Gary Wiebe, Jeff Zeleji.

Pets of the Week

Baby, a 3-month-old mixed breed spaniel, and Sparky and Spank, a pair of tiger-striped cats, need homes. Baby (Control No. 232466) is nearly house-broken and good with children. Sparky (Control No. 232399) and Spanky (Control No. 232400) are both litter-trained and good with children. Both have been declawed and neutered. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets, call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

Auction gala raises $100,000 for scholarhips

Madonna College billed it as their "Around the World" auction, but a college spokeswoman said the results were out-of-this world.

Held Saturday, the first-annual auction raised nearly $100,000 for the Livonia-based liberal arts college.

"That was our goal ($100,000) and once expenses are taken out, we should come pretty close to that," college spokeswoman Andrea Nodge said. College officials were still totalling proceeds Wednesday.

Among the top prizes:

- A 6.40 carat amethyst ring and trip on the Star of Detroit floating restaurant brought a bid of $2,850.
- A blue fox fur coat brought a bid of $2,400.
- A Ford Tempo automobile was won by a Madison Heights man in a drawing held with the auction.

Among other prizes: a fishing trip with a college official drew a bid of $750. A Detroit Tigers baseball game viewed from club owner Thomas Monaghan's private box drew a bid of $500. A Labrador retriever puppy also drew a $500 bid.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett were among those attending the auction.

Money raised through the auction will be used for college scholarships.

"We'd like to continue this every year," Nodge said. "It's our hope to increase it by 10 percent each year."

Auction directors were Robert and Betty Jean Awrey of Awrey Bakeries, Inc., Livonia and Ray and Jean Shapero of Northville.

Area students are eligible for study program

Home study exchange programs in France, West Germany, Spain and the Ivory Coast are available to area students 13-18 through Nacel Cultural Exchanges.

Programs are open to students who have completed at least two years of foreign language study. Students stay with a designated family.

Students may sign up for one of three sessions. European sessions run July 3-31 and July 24 to Aug. 21. The Ivory Coast session runs June 7 to July 1.

Departure is from Detroit or Grand Rapids. Cost is $1,295 for the European countries; $1,765 for the Ivory Coast. A $200 scholarship is available to families who will receive or have received a foreign student through the Nacel program.

Nacel also offers study seminars abroad. Seminars include a four-week stay in Cambridge, England, or Dublin, Ireland. The program is open to students who have completed the 11th or 12th grade. Students live with families and study courses in literature, culture and lifestyle.

Additional information is available by calling state Nacel coordinator Evelyn Prince, 626-6641.

Scholarships available at SC

Schoolcraft College sophomores with grade point averages of 2.5 or better are eligible for the Julie A. Titmuss Scholarship, created in memory of a long-time college employee and supported by the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

The scholarship will be awarded to a student who is active in either college or community activities or both. The recipient must plan to enroll for at least nine credit hours in the fall 1989 semester.

The application deadline is Friday, May 5. Applications are available in the college's counseling and financial aid offices.

PROJECT HOME SALE

Church's has the only "weather-resistant" lumber in town!

EXTRA Wolmanized Weather-Resistant Lumber

It really weathers the elements!
Water beads right off Wolmanized EXTRA Weather-Resistant Lumber because it's got something "extra" — it's pressure treated with a special water repellent to prevent moisture penetration from rain and snow. All wood swells and expands when it absorbs moisture. As it dries, it releases moisture and shrinks. Constant expansion and contraction causes grain raising, checking, splintering and warping. Spray or brush-on water sealers just can't repel water like Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber — in laboratory tests Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber shows almost two-thirds more moisture resistance than pressure-treated lumber protected with a leading water sealer. Of course, this fantastic lumber is also pressure treated with chemicals for lifelong protection against termites, rot and decay. Don't settle for ordinary treated lumber. Insist on Wolmanized EXTRA!

And if You're Building a Cedar Deck . . .
Don't settle for common Cedar . . . Church's has Select Tight Knot Cedar!
Better quality for your outdoor projects! We now stock a premium grade Western Red Cedar. Our Select Tight Knot Cedar lumber is lightweight, stable and easy to work with. Western Red Cedar weathers naturally or it can be stained with a semi-transparent stain to allow its natural beauty to show through. We carry complete cedar deck kits, cedar accessories and all the hardware.
We can help you design the deck of your dreams! Don't forget Church's Exclusive "BUCK A BOARD" ($1.00) GUARANTEE!

Going buggy

Everything's 'cricket' in magazine artist's new job

By C. L. Rugenstein
staff writer

ONE OF the funniest fan letters Jean Gralley ever got was to an inchworm.

"Dear Marty," it said, "worms are my life." Gralley recalled the missive with a laugh. Writing and illustrating books for children is a lifelong goal, and with her recent addition to "Cricket Magazine" as staff illustrator, she draws for the monthly "Buggie" cartoon strip."

She's lucky for a number of reasons to have the "Cricket" job, she said.

"To be able to write and illustrate my own stories every month — not just illustrate someone else's ideas, but create my own and give it life — is the closest thing to book illustration," Gralley said.

Gralley inherited the Buggie strip from longtime friend Trina Schart Hyman, who originated it when "Cricket" began years ago as a successor to "St. Nicholas Magazine."

"ST. NICHOLAS MAGAZINE" is one of the oldest and best children's magazines, Gralley explained. "Cricket is like the heir to that magazine."

Her characters include Cricket, Ladybug, Marty (a girl, not a boy inchworm, as Hyman pointed out to Gralley when she first started), and some new additions created by Gralley to bring the "gang's" number to some 20-odd characters.

"The actual age-span for readers is creeping up," Gralley noted, of her audience. "It used to be 8- to 12-years-olds, but it's spreading at both ends to 6- to 14-year-olds now."

Every month Gralley creates a story that will involve the "gang." She draws them to scale, she says, in a strip a little more than an inch high. The story starts on the "Letterbox" page, with letters to the characters, has a half-page in the middle, and ends on the last two or three pages.

THE CHARACTERS ALSO appear in the margins of short stories in the magazine, to explain unfamiliar words, Gralley said.

The most important thing to her was acceptance by the readers as the new artist of the strip. But her worries were groundless, as another fan letter proved.

"One kid wrote 'Dear Gang, how does it feel being drawn by another artist,'" Gralley recalled. "I take that seriously, because readers do put a lot of belief in the characters."

As a protege of Maurice Sendak (author-illustrator of "Where the Wild Things Are") when she studied at Parsons' School of Design in New York, she learned to "really respect kids," Gralley said. "You can't be fake with kids. I always try to be real. I know they're already dealing with the highest kinds of fears and deepest joys in their lives," she said.

IN ANOTHER INSTANCE, one girl had written to Gralley asking for advice. Her boyfriend was pressuring her to have sex, "and here she was, writing to a cricket, a ladybug, and a firefly about it," Gralley said.

Gralley, at the recommendation of Sendak, began doing free lance for "Cricket" while she was still a student at Parsons.

During the course of the association, she met and became friends with Schart, a Caldecott award winner ("It's like the Academy Award for illustrators," Gralley said) for her book, "St. George and the Dragon."

> — Jean Gralley, illustrator

"We sent cartoons back and forth to one another, for about eight years," Gralley said.

Hyman was ready to give the "Buggie" strip a rest and go on to other projects, Gralley said.

"She'd remembered all the cartoon letters we'd sent back and forth all those years ago," Gralley said, "and thought I might be the person to replace her."

For Gralley, it was "like magic," she said.

She'd always wanted to be a book illustrator, but before taking on "Cricket's" Buggies, she'd put her goal aside to make ends meet.

"I fell into doing regular illustrating for 'The New York Times' 'The Detroit Free Press,' and J. Walter Thompson (ad agency) to pay the bills, Gralley said.

The offer from "Cricket" came just at the time when she'd decided she didn't want to put off her original goal any longer.

"When I took the job, we had a special ceremony (at the "Cricket" offices in Peru, Ill.,) Gralley said. "Trina passed on her Rapidograph (pens) to me,and a magic wand."

The wand — for inspiration — sits on the drawing board in Gralley's studio, a bright, cosy room in her Livonia home. A native New Yorker, the 37-year old Gralley found "New York was too frenetic" for her, and moved to Michigan eight years ago.

"Michigan is the place I really want to be. It's a nice balance, and I felt it was the place I could work," she said.

Recently, she served as a member of the Livonia Arts Commission and was instrumental in the commission's adoption of its promotional logo, "Let There be Art."

Gralley was once asked if every story she drew had a moral. She doesn't feel that's the purpose of writing for kids.

"There's so much unbelievable schlock out there for kids," she said. "If there's anything in the strip that teaches, if there are difficulties, there's always a plan to come out of them."

But her real purpose, she said, is to tell a good story. "The kind that finds a place to stay in you for a long time." And, she added, whenever it's done in a funny and original way. "That's a real accomplishment."

Art deco group attracts crowd of enthusiasts

By Joan Boram
special writer

It started as a social club. "Ron Steinberg and I just sent out 50 or 60 letters to people we knew were interested in various facets of Art Deco," says Ann Duke, current president of the Detroit Area Art Deco Society and co-founder and owner of Duke Gallery of Birmingham. "Some people were interested in costume, some in jewelry, glass or architecture. We thought it would be fun to get together and share our interests."

That was just three years ago. DAADS now has more than 200 members and their interests have grown and changed. The society has become a major force in cataloging and preserving Detroit's rich and diverse Art Deco heritage. The purpose and aim of DAADS is formally stated in their stylish (and stylized) newsletter, "The Modern:"

Education — To increase public awareness of the style and period;

Documentation — To do and preserve surveys, photography and research;

Design — Assist owners, contractors and architects with information on restoration and style preservation;

Entertainment — Communicate the sense of fun that characterizes the style and period through parties, shows and events.

"ART DECO," ALSO KNOWN as Style Moderne, is familiar to devotees of '20s and '30s Fred Astaire movies. "Top Hat," for example, was filmed against a sleek, sophisticated, Art Deco background. Ginger Rogers' costumes from the same movie were typical of the style. Sleek, sophisticated Jean Harlow is the personification of Style Moderne.

The intention of the movement was to create a sleek and anti-traditional elegance that symbolized wealth and sophistication. Frequently, industrial materials, such as chrome and plastic were used, but expensive materials such as crystal, ivory and silver were equally popular.

In any case, Art Deco was characterized by geometric shapes, smooth lines and streamlined forms. Detroit's Guarddian Building is one of the nation's most-outstanding examples of Art Deco architecture.

DAADS acted as an adviser in the restoration of the Elwood Bar in Detroit's revitalized theater district and assisted Preservation Wayne's benefit, "Celebrate the Fox," Nov. 5. DAADS volunteers conducted tours of the renovated movie palace and were responsible for a fashion show of vintage gowns from the 1920s and through the 1940s.

Last October, Duke was invited by the Art Deco Societies of America to represent Detroit at the 42nd annual National Trust for Historic Preservation conference in Cincinnati.

Speaking on "Society and the Deco movement," Duke said, ". . . Deco buffs think of themselves as preservationists, first and foremost. Our goal is to communicate the legitimacy of Art Deco as an American architectural style and to learn techniques about how to protect 20th century structures."

IN KEEPING WITH ITS avowed "education and entertainment" aims, DAADS offers programs for members and non-members. Recent members-only programs have included a bus trip to Domino's Farms for a tour of the National Center for the Study of Frank Lloyd Wright (yes, they did eat pizza, but it was sleek and geometric), and a lecture by Ric Emmett, of Coral Gables, Fla. on Art Deco glass. At the annual membership meeting to be held July 12 at Pasquale's in Royal Oak, there will be a discussion of Art Deco bronzes by authority Joe Delguidice.

To mark National Preservation Week, May 14-20, DAADS is sponsoring two walks to acquaint the public with Detroit's Art Deco architecture heritage.

Saturday, May 13, 1 p.m. — Downtown Detroit building tour will be conducted by Michael Farrell, associate professor of art history, University of Windsor, and adjunct education curator at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Farrell offers many and diverse art and architecture tours, local and worldwide. Registration for this tour is limited. Price for DAADS member is $5; non-members, $7.50.

Saturday, May 20, 1 p.m. — Palmer Park walking tour will be led by Greg Piazza. He wrote the prospectus for buildings in Palmer Park that are registered with the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Co-sponsor of this tour is the Palmer Park Citizen's Action Committee, which was reactivated as a result of last year's very successful tour. Price for members is $3, non-members, $5.

DAADS IS LOOKING for hidden Art Deco gems in the Detroit metropolitan area. The goal of the "Putting Detroit Deco on the Map" survey is to publish a guide to Detroit-area Deco architecture. So, take a good look at your bank or hardware store, if they're Art Deco, DAADS would like to know about it. There are even a couple of Art Deco, "skyscraper style" mausoleums in Detroit's Woodlawn Cemetery.

The combined Art Deco Societies in the United States have embarked on a project to establish an Art Deco commemorative stamp. To accomplish this, it is necessary to petition the government nationally. If you're moved by the idea of "DECO"rative mail, stop by the Duke Gallery, 209 North Woodward, or Deco Doug, 124 S. Woodward, both in Birmingham and lend your signature to the cause.

Deco events planned

To join the Detroit Area Art Deco Society, contact Diane Reh, P.O. Box 21, Utica, 48087-0021 or call 263-4074. Membership for individuals is $15.

For information on the Downtown Detroit Building tour Saturday, May 13, call Elaine Gross, 557-4149, or Martha Dowling, 288-4455. For information on the Palmer Park walking tour Saturday, May 20, call Preservation Wayne office, 577-3559 or Duke Gallery, 258-6848.

To report a hidden Art Deco gem, send information on location and type of building to DAADS Survey, 9633 Joseph Campeau, Hamtramck, 48212.

To implement a "Deco" commerative stamp, sign petitions at Duke Gallery, 209 N. Woodward, Birmingham, or Deco Doug, 124 S. Woodward, Suite 12, Birmingham.

Livonia Artists Club winners

Audrey Harkins (center) won two awards, Evelyn Henry (left) won a third place and Ruth Ann Platt took a second place in the 28th annual Livonia Artists Club exhibit recently at Carl Sandburg library branch. Harkins won best of show and the Grumacher award for best use of color for her painting, "Dreams Come True." Henry's work was titled "Time and Space," and Platt's was "Garden No. 7." Other winners were Martha Barnes, first, with "Garden Steps," and Howard Dombrowski, fourth with "Garden Steps." Juror was Electra Stamelos. The club will be featured in an exhibition in the Livonia City Hall lobby May 1 through May 18.

Portfolio preparation takes time

David Messing

AGAIN I am continuing with the questions most often asked by the parents of my students. Parents would die if they heard what their kids tell the teachers and I'm sure I, too, would be mortified if I heard what they tell the parents about us.

Somehow, no matter how clear you say it, kids get things miscon-strued. One boy told his mom all we teach is colored pencil and then he told us that all his mom wanted him to do was colored pencil. That boy is probably smarter than all of us.

One little guy announced, "My mom says this cost her eight bucks 'n I gotta do a new picture every week!" Setting down a picture of his aunt, he said, "This week I have to do her portrait."

Well, I'll make a deal with you parents. I'll believe about half of what I hear if you do the same. Of course, questions from the parents are critical to the success of the student. Many of the questions seem to be identical so I thought we might as well share them with other parents.

Q. Why does my 12-year-old only do black and white artwork?

A. It's a matter of success. This was one of my problems as a youth and even as an adult. As a matter of fact, I graduated from college with a predominantly black and white portfolio. There are so many possibilities with color and only a gamut of grays in black and white. Even with the "push" of a teacher, it is difficult to persuade some to try full color.

Q. Why does my 16-year-old take so much time to do a single picture?

A. Some people can be such a perfectionist that it becomes a fault and even their undoing. Generally teens are desperately slow in their art. Most media are new to them and ironically the better their previous success, the slower they move in the present lesson, hoping to again be successful. This attitude, however, can freeze a student into being a one-media artist. The fear of failing in a new medium limits them to the one or two media they are comfortable with.

At its worst, this fear of failing can paralyze a student completely. They, in time, become bored with "their" media, yet their fear will not allow them to try anything new. Often, when I see a student at any age have four or five projects turn out great, I warn them that you can't know what success is unless you occasionally fail.

Q. When should my daughter start working on her portfolio?

A. I would say 14 years to 16 years old is an ideal time to start a portfolio. A portfolio should be a collection of a student's best work in as many media as possible. A good portfolio should show an ability to be expressive both in the fine arts and commercial arts.

In my portfolio preparation classes, I try to slant my students portfolios more into the commercial world. Most of the people "out there" are hiring artists to do commercial projects and not to draw pastel still life. We do take a break occasionally from commercial lessons to do more artistic creations.

My immediate goal for my portfolio students is to require more from them. If a student wishes to enter the portfolio program, I want to talk to the parents and make sure I have their backing. Then we will begin a series of 15 lessons that will guarantee a well-rounded commercial portfolio.

I have in the past been reluctant to ask for homework time and for me to assign a project was out of the question because I don't grade the students. But when you think of it, their portfolio is their grade and one of their best shots at getting a scholarship. So I am sending letters to my portfolio students and their parents to explain my new approach. I hope to install this program before summer, as students are off for the summer and could take a giant leap toward a very complete portfolio.

Plymouth author Jackie Dalton will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Friends of the Livonia Library at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 5, in Civic Center Library Conference Room A-B. The wine and cheese reception is open to the public. Dalton, who wrote her first novel at age 60, will talk about how important libraries are to writers — so important, she says, she dedicated her forthcoming book to librarians who aided her in research of that book, "Forbidden Treasure."

Eve Garvin

Chintz offers excellent service

Recently I wrote about the exciting things I saw at B. Altman in New York City. But don't shed a tear if you aren't able to make the trip. Many of the lines, such as Kittinger, Baker and Henredon, are available at the Michigan Design Center of Troy as well as Gorman's and Englander's.

The B. Berger and Campbell Louis showrooms at the Design Center have wonderful new patterns in chintz as well as other cottons. When lay people think of cotton, the impression is often of short term wearability. This isn't true; cotton will give you excellent service.

Accessories for the home will complete the look just as a handsome shirt and tie will set off a man's suit or jewelry does a woman's outfit. It's the appointments for your home that bring it all together.

What you choose to put on the walls of your home says something about you. What you may have loved 10 years ago doesn't necessarily please you now. Tastes change. Perhaps you feel you have grown and want another feel completely.

What is a REALTOR®?

REALTOR®

The terms REALTOR®, REALTORS®, and REALTOR-ASSOCIATE® and the accompanying block "R" symbol are registered collective membership marks that identify and may only be used by real estate professionals who are members of the National Association of Realtors®. Membership in the National Association, and the consequent privilege to use one or more of these marks, is available only to real estate professionals who are willing to be bound by the National Association's strict Code of Ethics. That Code of Ethics was designed to protect sellers as well as buyers and to encourage cooperation among real estate professionals in bringing buyers and sellers together.

By selecting a broker who is a REALTOR®, buyers and sellers avail themselves of helpful mortgage and market information.

The National Association of Realtors® is comprised of more than 625,000 concerned real estate professionals, active in civic affairs in their communities throughout the nation. They also monitor and assist in the legislative process, and represent the interests of property owners in the fight to preserve private property rights. REALTORS® are not just members of the National Association; they are valuable contributors to your community.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And—luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."

The Green Hill difference:

Do you come home to an apartment or a 75-acre estate?
Most apartment living measures 600+ sq. ft. Ours measures over 3,000,000 sq. ft. Green Hill residents enjoy a gorgeous 75-acre estate setting of park and woodland, peace and tranquility. You're right next door to the I-275 corridor, Michigan's multi-billion dollar explosive growth area and just minutes away from I-96, a direct route to downtown Detroit. See our 1- and 2-bedroom luxury apartments, terrace residences and country townhouses on 9 Mile, 1½ miles west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

LIVE AMONG THE RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.
Aldingbrooke — West Bloomfield's premier rental community — has always attracted its own special flock.
Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families.
Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community.
Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages.
All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month.
Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke.
It is indeed rare and beautiful.

Tips for getting and giving great gifts

YOU'RE ENGAGED. Everyone wishes you well, people throw parties in your honor, you start planning the big day.

Best of all, it's time to register for gifts.

Traditionally, bridal registries are a wonderful wish list of china, silver, crystal, kitchen, bathroom and bedroom items — all the goodies you and your beloved need to set up house.

With smart planning and the help of a good in-store bridal consultant, you just might end up with a host of useful, beautiful gifts you will cherish for years to come.

"The bridal registry also avoids the possibilities of many gift duplications and assures the couple of receiving things they want, in their taste," wrote Letitia Baldrige in "The Amy Vanderbilt Complete Book of Etiquette" (Doubleday).

"Most people like to have suggestions on what to buy as a wedding gift, and appreciate the chance to purchase something they know the bride and groom actually want and will use," she said.

IF THE world of bone china, sterling silver and fancy kitchen gizmos is a mystery, turn to the pages of Geryl Kramer's "Bridal Registry Guide" (Turnbull and Willoughby).

Kramer not only explains the whole process of registering, but also offers a crash course on what all this stuff is. (There really is a difference between bone china and earthenware.)

She contends that registering is not as complicated as it seems. In fact, she said, the process can be broken down into seven simple steps:

- Determine your lifestyle. Are you a busy two-career couple who will value time-saving devices? Do you plan to entertain a lot? In what kind of style?
- Determine your taste. Shop around, read magazines, learn what each other likes. Her preference for whimsical contemporary table settings can mesh quite nicely with his love of the traditional.
- Pick a general color scheme for your home. This will give it a unified look.
- Coordinate your lifestyle, tastes and color preferences with those of your fiance. For some couples this is easy; for others it takes some negotiating.
- Research and understand products carefully before making a selection. Learn the hallmarks of quality. Don't always assume that the most expensive or best-known brands are the best for you.
- Register at locations best suited to your needs. If your family and friends live in the same town, registering with local jewelers and specialty stores will do fine.

If you have a big family and wide circle of friends living far away, consider a department store with many branches and a computerized, interstore bridal registry.

- Work closely with a bridal consultant or store manager to make your selections.

The other wonderful thing about bridal registries is that the services of a bridal consultant usually come with it. Look for one who will make an appointment with you — registering can take several hours.

Once you have made your choices, simply leave it to friends and family to spread the word of where you are registered.

SELECTING CHINA, silver and crystal patterns is perhaps the most fun. You are starting your own family traditions.

Register for quality items that will have a place in your home for a long time. Mix ornate with simple, traditional with contemporary to create an eclectic, special look.

The prices and styles of china vary widely. Heirloom-quality imported china, such as Hutschenreuther from Germany or Wedgwood from England, tend to be more expensive.

Beyond that, patterns run the gamut from stately traditional floral and golden-edged dishes by Royal Doulton, Wedgwood and Lenox (very popular right now) to highly innovative and contemporary patterns from Swid Powell and Dansk.

You can register for both fine and everyday china, although most bridal consultants will encourage you to use your fine china as often as you like.

Next, select a silver pattern. Here again, the patterns run from very ornate baroque to simple and stately.

Romancing the lace for lovely brides

IF THERE was ever any doubt that weddings are romantic, those doubts were put to rest with the debut of this year's gowns.

"Wedding gowns today are more romantic than ever before," said Bride's magazine editor-in-chief Barbara Tober. "I think the most important thing to remember is that they're very, very feminine."

This season's silhouettes are simpler and more elegant than a year ago. Whereas last year the skirts of many bridal gowns cascaded with lace and overflowed with pearls, this year skirts are simplified.

"Many of the skirts are totally plain without any embellishments at all," explains Holly McMunn, director of public relations for Bridal Originals. "In fact, trains and skirts have unadorned fabric with just a touch of lace. The emphasis has really gone to the bodice of the gown."

Look for lavish hand beading and the use of appliques on both the front and back. Or, hand beading appears on sheer lace that covers flesh-tone organza, creating the illusion of a show-through look.

'Trains and skirts have unadorned fabric with just a touch of lace. The emphasis has really gone to the bodice.'

SOME GOWNS APPEAR lingerie-inspired, mixing lace and embroidery for a feel borrowed from intimate apparel.

Necklines receive new emphasis and this year there are innovative alternatives to traditional high-neck styling. The portrait collars, capelets, fichus and scarf-tied looks that appear in ready-to-wear also influence bridal clothes.

Also important this season are wonderful decolletage — off-the-shoulder looks," said Tober, "and unusual necklines that billow into sheer bishop sleeves."

When shoulders are bared, look for bows or fabric rosettes that draw attention to the shoulders.

There also is significant back interest this season. Keyhole cutouts, V-designs filled in with pearls and ruffled bustles keep eyes trained on the bride as she glides down the aisle.

Peplums are another point of interest — they're more prominent and architectural than they have been the last few seasons.

Waistlines are slightly higher, and in more fashion-forward gowns may even be Empire.

"The sheath is another gown shape that's enjoying a resurgence," adds McMunn.

And if skirts are full at the hip, they may be pegged at the ankle, creating a dome shape that looks fresh now.

ANOTHER STRONG trend this year is the use of color in bridal gowns. Blush pink and icy gray-blue show up in trims and overskirts, providing options to the classic ecru, ivory and white.

The traditional fabrics are still popular — silks, satins, taffetas — but they are joined by fluid fabrics such as chiffon and georgette and iridescent fibers that create a frosted look.

Bridesmaids, too, are more colorful and floral than before. This is the year of the cabbage rose. While the silhouette of bridesmaid dresses, like bridal gowns, is simpler, more ladylike, the fabrics burst into bloom with floral chintzes. Tulips and daisies also appear, as do polka dots.

Off-the-shoulder looks, ornamented with a simple ruffle at the neckline or a bow at the waist complete the English country feel.

As in ready-to-wear, the more classic single- or dual-tone attendant dresses are brighter than last year. Pastels are punched up. Look for brighter colors, such as mint and lemon ice, orchid, coral, turquoise blue and jade green.

These brighter gowns may have mini-ruffles on the skirt that create a tiered effect or an insert of matching lace on the bodice or at the bustline to enhance the design.

WHILE THE FLORAL brides-maids' gowns frequently are cotton or silk this year, the single-color dresses appear in classic taffeta and satin.

And what about the mother of the bride?

"They're in better shape and looking younger than ever," comments Tober. "We love to see them in chiffon dresses and beautiful, floating evening looks."

The perfect dress for the mother of the bride is one that reflects her per-

Bride's Guide to Fabric and Lace

It's helpful to know the differences in fabrics and lace when you are shopping for your gown and attendants' dresses.

Charmeuse. Classic charmeuse is made of silk. Polyester blends are also available. It is a soft, lightweight cloth that drapes beautifully.

Crepe de chine. Silk or blended fabric with a floating quality.

Faille. A full-bodied pure silk or polyester fabric often used for autumn or wintertime gowns.

Organza. Crisp sheer silk, often accented with appliques.

Taffeta. That silk or silk-blend fabric known best for its rustle — just like Mammy's red silk taffeta petticoat in "Gone With the Wind."

Tulle. Looks like veiling, and many brides use it on their headpieces. Also nice in layers on a dress.

Alencon lace. An expensive lace from France. Beloved for its delicate leaf and floral patterns.

Brussels lace. Rare, delicate lace with subtle designs. Imported from Belgium. Used on the finest gowns.

Chantilly lace. Also from France, it is known for its delicate spider's web pattern. Authentic Chantilly is identified by its soft feel.

Schiffli embroidery. Made in the United States, it comes in delicate patterns resembling more expensive laces. It is embroidered on the gown.

Today's look

Typical of the softer, simpler silhouette of this year's bride is this Jim Hjelm gown of white silk with chantilly alencon lace with basque waist. A bustle adds back interest. $1,600. sonality. And there currently are many flattering options in late-day and evening silhouettes.

"What they want to avoid are dresses that look mousey and don't have the presence of glamour," said Tober.

If you can't find a look that suits you in the stores, join the 38 percent of brides who either sew or have their gowns made each year. And as patterns become more sophisticated, that means up-to-the-minute styles are available in pattern books the same season they appear in the stores.

As in store-bought gowns, said Cindy Rose, fashion director for Vogue Butterick, this year's bridal patterns reflect a new interest in the neckline.

"Vogue and Butterick feature bare-shoulder looks, sweetheart necklines, and big bow detailing with bows at the shoulders and at the waist."

"ALSO NEW FROM Butterick, look for fitted gowns that hug the body to the knee, and then flare out at the bottom.

Sewing allows you to choose sequined lace or re-embroidered white lace that uses pale pink in the trim.

Another way to use pink — a very important color this year," said Rose, is as an underlining topped by sheer shute or ecru."

The headpiece a bride chooses should suit her taste, personality and hairstyle. Sewing offers a great flexibility, not to mention a great price break for the bride's headpiece and veil.

"This year, women are choosing single, double and triple layer veils in a variety of lengths," said Rose. "Silk fabric flowers and dried flowers are very important, as are sequin appliques."

And as more women move away from traditional wreaths to more free form veils, look for bows and layers of tulle that round out an ethereal, romantic look.

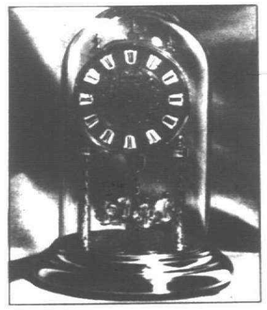
Consider this

Another version of this year's bridal look is this mirror taffeta gown from the After Six Bridal Collection featuring a pleated V-neckline, lace midriff and short "moulin" sleeves. The full skirt also has a semi-cathedral train. His Commodore tuxedo is by Henry Grethel for After Six Formals. The jacket, a short double-breasted with satin notch lapels, is worn with coordinating gray and black striped pleated trousers.



Wedding time

An elegant clock such as this domed anniversary model makes a timely gift for young marrieds, according to wedding consultants.

Raising a toast

The champagne toast is a special part of the bridal reception and now toasting glasses make it even more of an occasion. These full-lead custom-engraved crystal glasses, from the John P. Ellis Collection, have the names of the bride and groom and the date of the wedding on the rim, making them an important keepsake that can help commemorate the occasion year after year. $50. Jacobson's Bridal Registry. Allow three weeks for delivery.

How to work with wedding pros

TURNING wedding dreams into reality takes time ... and help.

When you're ready to start planning your wedding, you may suddenly find yourself in charge of a crew of professionals — from caterers to musicians — who are all looking to you for directions. It's crucial you let your helping hands know from the start that you're the boss.

Below, some tips from the editors of "Bride's" magazine to prepare you to talk — and work — with your wedding professionals.

● Discuss everything with your partner first.

The options can seem endless, so agree on the basics — such as where, when and how much you'll spend — together. Each decision will save time and headaches when you're ready to iron out the details with wedding experts. And there's an added bonus: Knowing that your finance supports your ideas will boost your confidence if you're faced with a stubborn florist or overly ambitious caterer.

● Investigate your options.

Ask anyone you know who has recently hosted a party to recommend musicians, caterers and party-planning consultants who were especially cooperative and talented. Or get names of recent clients from experts you're considering, and contact them for an inside account of the experts' professional skill and personal style.

● Anticipate what each pro will need to know.

Be prepared with as many details as possible: how many guests will attend, if guests will have any special needs (such as diet); the size and layout of the wedding and reception sites; the availability of parking space; changing rooms; electrical outlets; etc."

● Interview the professional.

Ask direct questions and demand clear answers. How much — and for what, exactly — will you be paying? Is all equipment included in the price, or will you find a bill for extra chafing dishes awaiting you when your honeymoon is over? Will the band play on if the guests want to dance all night, and just how much will they charge for those extra fox trots? If you suspect you're not being taken seriously, look elsewhere.

● Get everything in writing.

It's your only protection if friendly experts suddenly turn fiendish or simply "forget" your agreement with them.

● Trust the people you've hired.

Once you've signed the contract, expect professionals to act professionally. They'll do a better job without you anxiously checking up on them every 10 minutes, and you'll avoid extra stress.

Avoiding bridal woes: making it work

FALLING IN love was so easy. Saying "I do" can be another story.

It's not the nuptials themselves that have many prospective brides and grooms thinking about eloping, but an unending chain of bills, an ever-changing guest list and a host of other minor hassles, ranging from etiquette to emotion, that nobody ever mentioned before the engagement was official.

It is possible, however, to get married without taking out a major loan, alienating the in-laws or offending every acquaintance who can't be invited to the wedding. Here is a rundown of common wedding dilemmas and some tips for conquering them before they hamper prenuptial bliss.

You're giving your hand in marriage but are a bit uncertain about who will foot the bill? Once upon a time, the bride's family paid for just about everything, but changing attitudes toward the nature of marriage have blurred the lines that dictate who pays for what.

For the first time, there's a definite trend toward sharing the wedding expenses, according to the editors of Bride's magazine. The groom's family and even the bride and groom themselves are taking on the lion's share, or at least a good chunk, of the financial responsibility.

WHEN YOU CONSIDER the average cost of a wedding is at least $2,000, it's easy to understand why the bride's parents can't always be left standing with the bill. And since today's brides and grooms are older and established in their careers before they are married, they are more likely to plan the wedding of their dreams and then offer the financial support needed to pull it off.

Typical wedding expenses can be broken down into percentages: 30 percent for the reception; 30 percent for clothes and gifts; 12 percent miscellaneous, such as hotel accommodations for out-of-town bridesmaids; 11 percent for the ceremony; and 6 percent invitations and other stationery.

When dividing up the costs, many couples settle on specific expenses in advance, rather than splitting the cost of the whole wedding down the middle or into thirds. Another option is to let one family pay for the ceremony, while the other family picks up the tab for the reception.

It is, however, the prerogative of the bride's family to follow tradition and handle the bulk of the bill if they wish.

This still leaves the groom's family with a few expenses such as the rehearsal dinner, the bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, corsages for the mothers and boutonnieres for the men in the wedding party, and hotel accommodations for groom's attendants who live out of town.

Today's wedding couples want a memorable celebration without incurring a debt that will keep them and their families in the red until their golden wedding anniversary. To save money without scrimping on quality:

- Consider an at-home wedding and reception, or borrow the well-tended garden of a friend as the setting for your vows.
- Comparison shop to find the best values offered by caterers, decorators, photographers and florists. Get in writing a list of everything that will be covered by the bid, including gratuities. Check references.
- Set priorities. Maybe you want to serve a sit-down dinner at your reception, but don't feel as strongly about having an orchestra for dancing afterward. Go with the dinner, and limit the music to a harpist or strolling musicians to cut down on the cost.
- Shop early to avoid paying higher prices by default. You might, for instance, be forced into spending more on your wedding dress if the one you had your eye on ends up on some other bride. Likewise, you might get a sizable discount if you secure lodgings for out-of-towners in advance.
- Recruit the help of a professional wedding planner, who can offer practical, money-saving advice and often solicit discounts.

An alternative would be to invest in a planning guide such as "Affordable Weddings: How to Have the Wedding of Your Dreams on the Budget of Your Choice," by Leta W. Clark (Simon & Schuster).

You'll have 30 bridesmaids if you include all your friends and sisters in the line, and the guest list is becoming insurmountable because of your all-too-friendly mother-in-law. What's a harried bride-to-do?

While there's no limit on the number of attendants a bride may have, she doesn't want to wear her guests out with too many introductions before they reach the end of the receiving line, either.

Experts suggest the honored bridesmaid positions should be reserved for close friends and family members. Meanwhile, the couple can seek out creative ways to involve other friends.

A former roommate, for instance, could attend to the wedding book, several young cousins could pass out rice bags and a sister-in-law could act as wedding trouble-shooter throughout the day.

To eliminate a burgeoning guest list, the bride and groom should establish a feasible number before everyone gets out paper and pens. That number should be based first on the wedding budget, second in the degree of formality. Both sides of the family should be allowed to invite roughly the same number of guests.

If you're a second-time bride, you're not alone. Nearly 30 percent of all marriages today are remarriages.

Traditionally, remarrying couples faced strong pressure to keep their wedding a small, quiet affair. All that has changed, according to Bride's, and the emphasis is now on the importance of sharing a joyful new beginning rather than on time-worn rules.

Second or third-time brides can borrow from almost any tradition in the book, such as:

- Wearing an engagement ring and the dress of their choice. The bride is not banished to a plain cream-colored suit just because she's walking down the aisle again. But she should mix the veil, since it is a longtime symbol of youth and purity.
- Throwing a gala reception. The party can be complete with a receiving line, first dance and ceremonial toast if the couple wishes. Many choose to greet the guests themselves, leaving parents free to circulate.
- Having a prenuptial shower. Prewedding parties always are in order, even for remarrying couples. Many will even involve his or her children.

The only real difference for brides or grooms who have been married before is that they, not their parents, do the inviting, according to Copley News Service's etiquette columnist Letitia Baldrige. In most situations, the couple also picks up the wedding-day tab the second time around.

A wedding can be a joyful time for everybody — including the divorced parents of the bride or groom.

Of course, it may not be easy. No matter how friendly the divorce or how many years have gone by, the situation may still be awkward and uncomfortable for both parties.

To handle the situation with tact and compassion, the bride and groom must become diplomats. It's best to begin by discussing the upcoming event with both parents and finding out what they need in order to enjoy themselves at the wedding, suggests Bridal Guide magazine.
