Canton's jail will likely be used by western Wayne County police as a drop off point for prisoners bound for Detroit's Wayne County Jail.

County may use Canton's jail

Official says plan would save money

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton's jail may become a clearinghouse for Wayne County prisoners.

In a proposed plan, officers from 17 western Wayne County communities, would take prisoners to the Canton lockup, where a county sheriff's deputy would transport them to the county jail in Detroit.

Saving communities manpower and transportation costs is the main feature of the proposal, according to John Santomauro, Canton public safety director. Another benefit is that the sheriff's department would also book, fingerprint and photograph prisoners, work now done by Canton officers.

DISCUSSIONS ABOUT the plan between Western Wayne County Chiefs and the sheriff's department have been going on for more than a month, said Santomauro, spokesman for the chief's association.

However, the plan has not been finalized.

"We've been talking about this project with Canton as the satellite," said Santomauro.

Communities involved include Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Redford, Livonia, Westland and Garden City.

"I hope it will go through and believe it will go through," Santomauro said. "It will be a tremendous benefit from the sheriff's department to our communities. It's long overdue for Wayne County."

'It will be a tremendous benefit from the sheriff's department to our communities. It's long overdue for Wayne County.'

— John Santomauro
Canton public safety director

Santomauro said he would present the idea to the Canton Township Board of Trustees for approval.

"I've already gone to the (police) union and they've tentatively agreed," he added. "The law enforcement agencies have developed the plan and now it's up to the sheriff's department to see if it will occur."

A SHERIFF'S deputy would be assigned to the Canton lockup and the township would no longer have to staff it with Canton officers. Santomauro estimated that the township spends between $7,000 and $8,000 annually to transport prisoners.

"And for all practical purposes, we would turn our lockup (over) to the sheriff's department," he said. "Local arrests would still be our prisoners, but processed by the deputy at the facility."

Other departments also are expected to save money under the program.

"It will save for us (Canton) not having to assign a person to transport, but also booking, fingerprinting and photographing," he said, adding that it takes about one hour per prisoner to complete those tasks.

"We'll have them (officers) on patrol where they should be."

District court wants a 3rd judge by next year

By M.B. Dillon

Area voters could be electing a third judge to 35th District Court in 1990.

The court was notified by the state Supreme Court approximately two years ago that, based on its caseload, it qualifies for a third judgeship.

"We weren't thinking about it, but we knew business was up," Judge John MacDonald said.

"We've kept an eye on figures and ran stats from 1984 to 1988. Our total caseload is up 39 percent.

"Our caseload continues to go up at a rate of about 16 percent. On a per judge basis, that makes us one of the highest in the state," MacDonald said.

A COMPARISON of area district courts shows that the Plymouth's District Court, which services 150,000 people in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township, carries a relatively heavy docket.

It ranks with district courts in Romulus and Dearborn carrying more than 40,000 cases per year.

Dearborn's caseload in 1988 was 48,864. The court serves a population of 90,000, staffs two judges and no magistrate.

Romulus, serving parts of five communities and a population of approximately 79,500, adjudicated 41,464 cases last year with two judg-

Why home was forced to close

By C.L. Rugenstein

After a valiant fight to bring the facility up to state health department codes, the financially troubled Canton Care Center closed its doors April 19.

Owner Brian Suter filed for bankruptcy in June 1988, saying he could no longer pay the bills. State failure to reimburse the Canton Care nursing home for state Medicaid patients undermined his finances, he said.

"The state, historically, does not pay to take care of its own patients," he said. "The majority of our patients were state welfare patients."

According to David Rector, in the licensing and certification office of the state health department, Canton Care was licensed for 91 patients. The number had dwindled to 50 when the facility closed.

THE REMAINING patients were transferred to other facilities in a joint effort by Canton Care and the Department of Social Services.

The DSS has some responsibility for helping find new facilities and assisting with the transfers, Rector said. And while their major responsibility is to the Medicaid patients, they "basically deal with all patients," he said.

An engineering report filed about the structure in January 1989 added to Canton Care's problems. It was one of the reasons for closing the facility, said Rector, administrative assistant to licensing division chief Evelyn Jones.

They're called condos, but the housing development that got township board approval recently is far from the typical conglomerate of dweller-owned apartment complexes.

The Rolling Woods Estates Condominiums are being built on 110 acres off Ann Arbor Road between Napier and Joy. The 76 single-family detached houses will sit on lots that average 1.4 acres. And prices will start at around $275,000.

"It will be one of the nicest developments in Canton at this time," township clerk Loren Bennett said. "You could not, by looking at it, possibly know that the type of ownership is condo ownership."

THE DEVELOPER, Plymouth Woods Estates, is using a cluster design option, which incorporates open spaces into a development.

"In this particular instance it was used as a method to preserve the natural features of the land, which is very hilly and extremely wooded," Bennett said. "So everybody will have back yards that will go down into wooded valleys. It's going to be gorgeous."

The condominium association will be responsible for building roads and water lines through the area. Residents will be charged an association fee that will cover

Decision gives states more abortion control

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

The battle over a woman's right to an abortion has left the nation's capital for the lawmaking bodies of each of the 50 states.

With its announcement that Roe vs. Wade is intact, but that states can regulate the circumstances under which a woman may obtain an abortion, the Supreme Court has effectively absolved itself of the responsibility to regulate abortions on a local level.

Pro-choice and pro-life leaders in Michigan were still discussing the complex decision, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services, hours after it was released by Chief Justice William Rehnquist. The high court ruled 5-4 for Webster.

"IT'S VERY COMPLICATED, but one thing is clear — the rights of women have been diluted," said Douglas Fraser, chairman of the Milliken Committee, a statewide pro-choice organization. The former president of the United Auto Workers said the ruling has great potential to limit abortions, depending on how states react to the decision.

"If this trend continues, you could conceivably see the reversal of Roe vs. Wade," Fraser said.

Barbara Listing, director of Michigan Right to Life, said, "we're very pleased and not at all surprised" by the decision.

"We're especially pleased that the court has upheld the preamble to Webster — that life begins at conception," Listing said.

PRELIMINARY READINGS of the decision indicate the court did not directly rule on viability — the time at which a fetus is viable outside the womb. However, the court abandoned Roe's trimester framework, which said a woman, without intervention, could have an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Now, through Webster, the court has said a state can intervene any time after conception.

"It's a signal to the states that you can legislate in this area," Listing said. She sees no immediate effect of the ruling in Michigan, but said she will be "sitting down with pro-life legislators soon."

At the top of her agenda is a mandate to nullify a minor's right to an abortion without parental consent, Listing said.

Pam Dooley, executive director of the state branch of Planned Parenthood, based in Novi, said her "initial reaction (is that) it's a real step backward.

AAUW, BPW respond to ruling

Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision regarding abortion was watched closely by some area residents.

"We're going to have to work hard concerning this whole abortion issue, I'm sure," said Marilyn Johnson, president of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women.

AAUW HAS, at its state and national levels, taken a pro-choice stance. Johnson was planning to study the court's decision more closely.

"It certainly is an issue that AAUW is concerned about," she said Monday. "I think there will be a push from some of the major organizations, including AAUW, to work at the state level."

Johnson acknowledged that work would be difficult for pro-choice forces.

"We've got an uphill battle," she said. "I think Michigan tends to be somewhat conservative on this issue, especially outstate."

Johnson, a Plymouth Township resident, wasn't surprised by the court's decision in the Webster vs.

No deal

Massey Cadillac sale rumors denied

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Cadillac dealer Don Massey is denying reports that Ann Arbor pizza magnate and Detroit Tigers owner Tom Monaghan is buying his auto dealerships.

Massey owns Don Massey Cadillac Inc. on Ann Arbor Road; Capitol Cadillac Sterling in Lansing; Don Massey's Discount Lot in Wayne and dealerships in Colorado.

Area business people, including Massey employees, have said Massey sold his dealerships and will announce the deal this month. A Detroit Free Press columnist also published speculation about the deal.

"There are no deals pending for anyone to buy my stores. This rumor breaks out about once a year," said Massey, one of the nation's leading Cadillac dealers.

"People are people, and they like to talk. I sold Tom Monaghan my house, but I don't know anything about my dealership being sold."

Monaghan could not be reached for comment. Officials at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor Township said there has been no sale.

Massey said he sold his Ann Arbor home and 500 acres, where he raised 400-500 cattle, after a recent family crisis.

"A number of people would like to buy our operation. Few people in this business could buy it," said Massey, also a Rolls Royce and Sterling dealer.

"With an organization the size of ours, the potential buyers get fewer and fewer.

"I plan to be here another 10 years."

The dealership was recently rated as the 50th largest in the nation by Ward's Auto Dealer magazine, which said the dealership has sales of $95 million.

Massey said he's planning to build Saturn dealerships in Plymouth and Farmington Hills. He said details can't be released until he's received planning commission approval from the local governments involved.

He denied reports that he's received an offer exceeding $50 million.

"When an announcement comes, it won't be $50 million. The only way it could be 50 is if it was from someone settling my estate. And then it would be some airhead. If it ever happened (a sale), it will far exceed that."

John Schott, president of Capitol Cadillac Sterling, denied that his dealership has been sold. "I don't know anything about it," Schott said.

Court could add 3rd judgeship es and one part-time magistrate.

Plymouth, whose two judges are assisted by a full-time magistrate, handled 40,635 cases last year.

That total is higher than caseloads in Livonia, Dearborn Heights (35,686), Westland and Redford Township.

The numbers may be somewhat misleading, as courts use a variety of methods to record criminal and civil cases.

ACTIVITY IN 35th District Court is increasing at a rate that "parallels the growth in population, plus the addition of police officers to community," MacDonald said.

Population in the five communities the court covers is close to 150,000, MacDonald estimated.

The state Legislature has the responsibility to add or subtract district courts and judges. It can add judgeships with approval from the local governments involved, said Herb Levitt, regional administrator for the State Court Administrative Office.

MacDonald said he and fellow Judge James Garber agree a third judge is needed.

"The legislators who represent these communities, Bob Geake, Gerry Law and Jim Kosteva, have to consent to it. As as far as we know, they're in agreement and are prepared to put legislation in in the fall for next year," MacDonald said.

IF A judgeship is approved, a primary will be set for August 1990 and a general election for November.

Potential candidates whose names are surfacing include Bruce Patterson, an attorney who ran for 35th District Court in 1984; Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen; 35th District Court Magistrate Eric Colthurst; and Plymouth city attorney Ron Lowe.

To accommodate another judge, $250,000 to $300,000 would be needed to remodel the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice, MacDonald said.

The state would pay the bulk of the judge's salary.

Adding a judgeship wouldn't be a financial burden, MacDonald said.

"I have no reason to believe we wouldn't generate more revenue. I think the communities would recoup their expenditures very quickly," MacDonald said.

The court returns a total of $800,000 in revenues to five communities.

On the drawing board is a plan to establish a building authority for 35th District Court. The authority, which would replace the court's advisory group, would increase efficiency by dealing directly with problems, MacDonald said. The authority would be responsible for managing the building and handling debt payments. It would not have the power to tax.

lems with the building itself," Rector said. "It was 35 years old, the layout was not functional."

Rector said some of the problems were with the utility rooms, that no provisions were made for adequate day room and dining room space, and that nursing stations were not an acceptable distance from patient rooms.

"In the opinion of the engineer, to bring the structure up to modern standards would have cost too much," Rector said. "I strongly suspect it played a large part in Suter's decision."

Two health department inspections in November 1984 cited improvements that had been made.

THE BANKRUPTCY court has since sold intangible assets of Canton Care to the Chi Group, parent company of Chi Systems and International Health Care Management Inc. in Ann Arbor, according to company representative Evelyn Grindstaff.

The facility, known as Dion Memorial Nursing Home before Suter bought it in 1984, had been cited with major health code violations since 1976 under the former owners. Two health department inspections in November 1984 cited improvements that had been made.

Suter said he spent $18,000 to build a required ramp for wheelchair-bound patients to get from one part of the building to another.

"One thing about long-term care, you get close to the residents and staff," said Suter, now working as the administrator for Van Buren Nursing Home in Belleville. "When you have to close, it hurts. I kept trying, but I couldn't any more. I got tired of fighting."

the cost of such services as plowing streets, shoveling sidewalks and mowing lawns.

Bennett said those services might appeal to couples with adult children who are no longer living in their parents' home.

"A couple in their 50s, do they really want to do yard work? I'm not in my 50s and I'm tired of yard work," Bennett said. "That's a desired method of living for some people."

THE CONDO development fits in with the township's master plan, which calls for larger lots on the western side of the township.

"People want the opportunity to have an upscale subdivision . . . and that just currently isn't being offered. That's what we are trying to accomplish," Bennett said.

Trustees also approved a smaller condo development at last week's meeting. That project, called Charrington Park Condominiums, is being built on Warren Road just east of Oakwood Hospital. Approximately 16 detached houses will be built on 5.5 acres.

In both projects, the houses will be individually contracted.

Reproductive Health Services case.

"After the flag thing, I wouldn't be surprised by anything," she said, referring to the court's ruling upholding burning of the U.S. flag as a constitutionally protected freedom of expression.

Nancy Zimmerman, state president of the Michigan Federation, Business and Professional Women, was surprised the court chose to issue its decision Monday. She had thought the justices would do so when they reconvene in the fall, after further debate.

"It's very positive that they didn't overturn a ruling they had made in the past," said Zimmerman, a Farmington Hills resident who works for Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

BPW FAVORS freedom of choice in issues of reproductive health, although the organization isn't as active as some others on the issue, she said. Not all BPW members feel the same way on the abortion issue. Zimmerman declined to indicate her own feelings on the abortion question.

BPW is more concerned with issues directly affecting working women, she said, including pay equity, job opportunities, child care and adult dependent care.

"Those are issues that are of concern to BPW," said Zimmerman, who is a member of the Canton Business and Professional Women.

Parade, ceremony mark Fourth

Rami Farhat, Collin Wood and Tony Mosti march along dressed as characters from "The Wizard of Oz."

Pam Conn of Plymouth, an Academy Award-winning film maker, was grand marshal for the Fourth of July parade.

Tuesday was a day for patriotism in Plymouth.

No fireworks were held in Plymouth this year, but the annual Fourth of July parade gave visitors plenty to see. The community's parade, sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees, featured marchers, bands and floats.

Participants assembled at East Middle School, proceeded west on Hartsough and then north on Main to Central Middle School. The route, reversed from that taken in previous years, gave viewers an opportunity to see the sights.

Children on festively decorated bicycles and cheerful clowns added to the festivities. Pam Conn of Plymouth was grand marshal for the parade. Conn won an Academy Award in 1988 for her work on the documentary "Young at Heart."

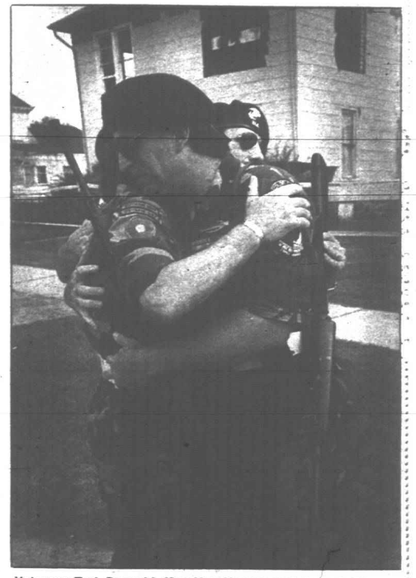
Groups appearing in the parade included the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, the Michigan Scottish Pipe and Drums, Plymouth Salem Rockettes, Plymouth Canton Chiefettes and Fred Hill Haberdashers' Marching Briefcase Drill Team.

ALSO JULY 4, a couple hundred people attended emotional ceremonies dedicating a memorial to soldiers in the Plymouth-Canton Community who served and died in the Korean and Vietnam wars.

Vietnam veterans stood guard. It was a solemn moment for families of those who died. And for the small group — the Plymouth Vietnam Veterans Association — which formed for the sole purpose of erecting the memorial.

Several speakers attempted to put the memorial in perspective.

But the 16- by 6-foot granite structure did fine speaking for itself.



Veterans Ted Gagacki, Ken Van Hooser and Joseph Stumpo embrace after their shift as honor guards.

A contingent of kids on bicycles led the parade.

Plymouthrock Saloon site draws businesses

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

The padlocked Plymouthrock Saloon has attracted the attention of a deli/restaurant, two bar owners and a bar/restaurant, all of whom have expressed interest in doing business at the site, according to Plymouth Township police Chief Carl Berry.

The bar's license was revoked this week by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. Licenseholders Peter Elefterio and Donald Vargo also were fined $3,200 for allowing minors to buy and consume alcohol. The violations took place last winter and involved five minors, two of whom were 16 years old.

The township asked the LCC to revoke the license on grounds that the Plymouthrock had become a public nuisance.

In December 1986, a Canton woman was killed in a head-on crash on Joy Road near the bar by a then-underage Westland woman who had been drinking at the Rock.

The Plymouthrock countered the township's efforts with appeals before the LCC and in court, operating until several months ago when the bar was closed for non-payment of rent.

Some township officials would like to see something other than a bar open on the site, in an industrial area on General Drive west of I-275.

THE PLANNING commission "absolutely would be opposed to" a business like the Rock, commission chairman Richard Gornick said.

"The previous owners were a source of undue concern and expense to the township and the community ever since the bar's inception," Gornick said. "We will not repeat that same mistake."

Gornick favors "something that would support and service the surrounding industrial district," such as a medical or dental clinic, accounting office or a "family, cafeteria-type food operation."

Plymouth Township trustee Ron Griffith feels the same way.

"I think we have an adequate number of bars in the community. It would take some convincing for me to agree to another bar or lounge there," Griffith said.

TRUSTEE Smith Horton wouldn't mind "some kind of food establishment," he said.

"A restaurant would be reasonable because it is an industrial area. But I don't know how they can do that very well and avoid the problems they had with alcoholic beverages. What do you do in the evening? Do you become a bar? If you do, then you have the same problem.

"We don't want to go through what we've gone through in the past."

"My understanding is that it's in the master plan not to have any facility there serving alcohol," trustee John Stewart said. "I'm not anti-alcohol. I don't have any objections to it; it's kind of a natural for a well-run neighborhood bar."

"I definitely would not be interested in seeing another restaurant/lounge. The Plymouthrock was a mistake," trustee Abe Munfakh said.

Munfakh would like to see the space converted to office or light industrial use.

THE SITE is zoned for special use subject to special conditions.

Elefterio is part owner of the River Place bar on Franklin in downtown Detroit. Vargo owns Detroit's 1940 Chop House on Jefferson Avenue.

Their liquor license was valued at $75,000 to $100,000.

Eloise study says court freight and auto firms

Citing the area's "excellent access to highways, rail and airports," a consultant group last week recommended specific ways to market the Eloise site in Westland as an industrial park.

Specifically, a consultant who prepared the study urged that freight forwarders, auto suppliers and trucking companies would be attracted by development of the property and that public officials should concentrate their efforts on these type of firms.

The study, commissioned by the Eloise Task Force and presented Tuesday afternoon by Harry Foden and Pamela McNamara of Arthur D. Little Inc. of Cambridge, Mass., also recommended that the city and county should consider rezoning part of such a park for heavy industrial use.

The property consists of more than 300 acres of county-owned land on both sides of Michigan Avenue west of Merriman. The task force include officials of cities which border the Eloise property, mainly Wayne, Romulus, Taylor and Inkster.

But Joseph Benyo, consultant to Westland Mayor Charles Griffin and a task force member, said he would prefer light manufacturing firms, like those in electronics or computer software, on the site because they wouldn't generate air pollution.

"Any research and development facitilties would be ideal for the area," he said in an interview.

Benyo noted that the city has already had some inquiries about the property, but the task force has yet to act on recommendations by the study.

HE SUGGESTED during the briefing that the task force meet by the second week of July to come up with a definite plan.

Part of that plan will deal with improvement and building of access roads to the airport, a key recommendation of the study.

"You gotta get them in, and you gotta get them out," Benyo said of the potential developments and traffic generated by them.

"Within two weeks we want to start planning a road map," he said.

How to pay for the proposed roads is a problem the task force will have work at, he said.

Bonding for the roads is one possibility, Benyo suggested. He also said he'd been notified by Wayne County that the paving and expansion of Merriman to a five-lane road south of Michigan Avenue would be completed in the fall.

The second recommendation was that the task force continue to cooperate and work together as a group, rather than as individual communities. The consultants advised them to form a marketing action committee to come up with an aggressive package of marketing materials. They also recommended continued cooperation with Detroit Metropolitan Airport in their expansion plans, a major key to creating new economic development opportunities for all the communities.

The Eloise Task Force was formed in 1986 by members of Westland's Economic Development Advisory Council. It expanded to include seven surrounding communities, Wayne, Romulus, Inkster, and Taylor, who contributed to the $65,500 cost of the study.

CANTON Township, Huron Township and Van Buren township are non-paying supporters of the project, according to Benyo. State and County grants, mini grants from the private sector made up the bulk of funding for the study.

Public officials from the affected communities attended the Tuesday meeting, held in Westland's Bailey Recreation Center.

Also present were economic development representatives Larry Gormezano from the Michigan department of commerce, Ron Hill from Detroit Edison, and Marjorie Whittemore, from Wayne county.

Abortion decision
Will Lansing eye Missouri-style law?

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

A pro-life supporter prays during a protest at an area abortion clinic earlier this year. Pro-life groups are taking Monday's Supreme Court ruling as a victory, since it will allow states to regulate how a woman can get an abortion.

"We'll probably see a scramble in the state Legislature to restrict" abortions, Dooley said. She said she expects the impact of the decision to be felt immediately, and added she'd already heard at least one state representative was drafting language to make Michigan's abortion laws parallel those of Missouri.

THIS LATEST challenge to Roe vs. Wade began April 26, when the court heard arguments in the case of Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services. Webster stands out among other challenges because the Bush administration and anti-abortion groups had joined forces and asked the court to use it to overturn Roe vs. Wade.

Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services focused on a challenge to a Missouri law that states life begins at conception and that unborn children have "protectable interests in life, health and well-being."

The Missouri law also makes it more difficult for a woman to get an abortion after 20 weeks of pregnancy and forbids the use of public hospitals or employees to assist in abortions not necessary to save the mother's life.

One key issue of the Missouri law is the notion of viability. In Roe, the Supreme Court held that at the point a fetus is viable outside the womb, the state has an interest in its life and can halt an abortion.

Webster, however, said viability is an arbitrary point and the state has a compelling interest to protect life at all stages of a pregnancy.

Ultimately, Missouri argued that the Constitution does not guarantee a fundamental right to an abortion.

THE 8TH CIRCUIT Court ruled against Missouri and through Webster, the state appealed to the Supreme Court. The high court reaffirmed a woman's right to abortion

'We'll probably see a scramble in the state Legislature to restrict' abortions.
— Pam Dooley, executive director Michigan Planned Parenthood

Monday, but let states decide how that abortion may be obtained.

Missouri's law differed from Roe vs. Wade in several ways. In the 1973 landmark decision (which has been challenged several times — see accompanying story), the Supreme Court based its view on the pivotal point of a woman's right to privacy and said that right extends to and protects her decision to end a pregnancy.

The court said a woman, without governmental interference, may terminate a pregnancy any time during the first trimester. After that, the court said the state has a compelling interest in a woman's health and could regulate an abortion.

An interesting point in Missouri's case is that it says with modern technology, a fetus may be viable outside the womb at a much younger age. Part of Missouri law requires physicians to perform tests on fetal gestational age, weight and lung maturity if the physician thinks the mother is 20 or more weeks pregnant.

However, the American Medical Association, which neither opposed nor supported Roe vs. Wade in its brief to the court, said those fetal-viability tests increase the risk to the mother and fetus without providing significant information about viability.

Congress eyes path vs. abortion

Even before the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in this latest abortion case, both sides agreed the outcome would only embolden anti-abortion activists in Congress.

"THERE HAS already been an erosion of Roe (vs. Wade) in Congress and in the minds of the people," said Rep. Christopher H. Smith, R-N.J., co-chairman of the House Pro-life Caucus.

Smith has said that he and his allies would continue pressing a constitutional amendment banning abortion no matter how the high court ruled. In 1983, the only time either chamber of Congress has voted on such a measure, the Senate rejected the proposal 49-50, 18 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed.

The pro-choice side, outvoted on abortion-funding issues, has been less active in Congress, relying on the court to uphold abortion rights.

But in recent years it has become more organized in the face of strong anti-abortion sentiment from the Reagan and Bush administrations. Its members count as a victory the 1987 defeat of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, an abortion opponent and a critic of Roe.

AT LEAST 10 abortion-related measures have been introduced in the 101st Congress. Most seek an outright ban on abortion, further restrictions on federal funding for the procedure or limits on the use of fetal tissue obtained from abortions.

The lone exception is HR 857, introduced by Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y., which would require abortions to be made as available as other pregnancy-related services under all programs that receive federal funds.

The pending anti-abortion measures include:

- S 73 — by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would bar the use of federal funds for all abortions except those necessary to safe the life of the mother and would prohibit federal funds from being used to encourage or counsel abortion.
- S 162 — by Helms, would disallow a personal tax exemption for a child born alive, or who subsequently dies, after an induced abortion.
- HR 162 — by Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., would prohibit using federal funds for abortion except when the mother's life is endangered.
- HR 620 — by Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., would bar abortion in federal prisons except when the mother's life is endangered.
- HR 621 — by Dornan, would bar Medicare or Medicaid payments to anyone who provides or counsels the use of abortion drugs or devices.
- HR 623 — by Dornan, declares that fetuses are entitled to certain constitutional guarantees and would prohibit abortion in any case.
- HR 624— by Dornan, would deny tax-exempt status to organizations that perform or finance abortions.
- HR 625 — by Dornan, would restrict the transportation and use of fetal tissue obtained in abortions and calls for licensing of facilities that would store such material.
- HR 1351 — by Rep. Clyde C. Holloway, R-La., would restrict the use in research fetal tissue obtained from abortions.

Court decisions on abortion rights

Following are the most significant previous U.S. Supreme Court rulings on a woman's right to an abortion:

- 1973 — Roe v. Wade, 7-2, legalized abortion nationwide. The court ruled that the constitutional right of privacy includes a woman's right to terminate a pregnancy. The court said that during the first trimester of pregnancy, the decision may be virtually free of state interference. After the first trimester, the state has a compelling interest in protecting the woman's health and may regulate abortion to promote that interest. The court also said that at the point the fetus is "viable" outside the womb, the state has an interest in its life and can restrict abortion.

Doe v. Bolton, 7-2, struck down a Georgia law requiring physician concurrence in a woman's choice to have an abortion in her first trimester of pregnancy.

- 1976 — Planned Parenthood of Central Missouri v. Danforth, 5-4, held that states could not require a husband's or parent's consent as a condition for abortion.

Bellotti v. Baird held unanimously that states could not allow parents to veto abortions sought by their unmarried daughters under 18, the case was remanded to the Massachusetts courts for interpretation of a statute that required consent of both parents but allowed consent to be waived by a judge for "good cause shown." The case returned to the high court in 1979.

Park show is drawing card for lovers of art

"Art in the Park" brings thousands of art lovers to downtown Plymouth each year.

"We really have everything," said Dianne Quinn of Plymouth, show director. "I don't think we're missing any form of art or craft."

The ninth annual show will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 15-16, in the area around Kellogg Park. It will feature the work of at least 220 artists and craftspeople.

Artists come from throughout Michigan and from Indiana, Florida, Ohio, Arizona, Illinois, New Jersey, and Ontario, Canada.

"It's growing every year," Quinn said. "The city is packed for two days.

"We have a beautiful community. Everybody loves to come to Plymouth, of course. We have a very large turnout for the show."

OIL AND watercolor paintings, folk art, photography, leaded glass, wood work, jewelry and clothing will be featured. Many artists will demonstrate their work, in addition to offering it for sale. Admission to the show is free of charge.

Assistance in coordinating the show is provided by the city of Plymouth and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, although the show has no specific sponsor. The event is self-supporting, with participating artists paying an entry fee.

Food and entertainment — including folk music and clown performances — will be part of the fun at "Art in the Park."

A poster coloring contest is held each year prior to the art show. Students from area schools color the posters, which are then used to promote the upcoming event.

Chris Konovaliv of Plymouth was the winner of this year's contest. He received a $25 cash prize. The runner-up, Jennifer Smith of Plymouth, received a $25 gift certificate from an art store.

Quinn, a calligrapher, is looking forward to participating in this summer's show. She has a line of greeting cards and poster-sized pieces.

"Seeing the whole thing I've been working on for a year" come together is rewarding for Quinn.

NEA's new leader has ties to metro schools

The new president of the nation's largest teacher's union can boast strong ties to suburban Detroit schools.

Keith B. Geiger, 47, was elected president of the 1.9 million-member National Education Association during balloting Monday at the organization's national convention in Washington D.C.

A former Livonia resident, Geiger taught high school mathematics and science in the Livonia Public Schools during the 1960s and early 1970s.

"I always valued my teaching experience there," Geiger said. "The schools in Michigan in general, and Livonia in particular, are good schools because people in Michigan value education."

Though he won't directly deal with Michigan's controversy over per-student spending differences among rich and poor districts, Geiger said long-term NEA policy might help.

"Our priority is to return funding for federal education programs to pre-Reagan era levels," he said. "While that only affects special programs, it should still help."

Promoting collective bargaining among teachers in right-to-work states and continuing the NEA's "learning laboratory" program — in which one school district in each state could be given free reign to develop innovative educational programs — are among the organization's other goals.

While in Livonia, Geiger served as president of the district teacher's union, the Livonia Education Association, from 1970 to 1974. In that role, he led the union through the district's first, and, to date, only teacher's strike.

Geiger served as president of the Michigan Education Association in 1974 and 1975 and from 1977 to 1983.

He has been the NEA's sole vice president since 1983.

Geiger will begin his two-year term as the organization's president Sept. 1. He is eligible for re-election to successive terms in 1991 and 1993.

His election came during the annual NEA convention in Washington D.C., where 8,500 delegates represented rank-and-file union members. The NEA calls itself the largest professional association and labor union in the nation.

ELECTION AS NEA president highlighted Geiger's 25-year education and union career. In addition to his responsibilities as vice president, Geiger has worked in numerous professional, political and negotiating capacities. He recently served as one of 50 outside observers who monitored a recent plebiscite election in Chile.

Friends and former colleagues, interviewed at the time of Geiger's October 1988 visit to Livonia, remembered him as a good teacher with strong organizational skills, as well as an effective, charismatic union leader.

"I honestly don't feel he's changed; he's still the dynamic person I remember," said Tom Lang, a Livonia teacher whose friendship with Geiger began in 1964.

GEIGER WAS a member of the NEA's 1976 Presidential Screening and Endorsement Committee and has been a delegate to two Democratic National Conventions.

In addition to his union duties, Geiger is an executive committee member of the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, a labor committee member of the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission and a director of KIDSNET, a computerized clearinghouse for children's television and radio.

In 1988, he served as a judge for the USA Today's All-Academic Team, as well as the National League of Cities Innovations Awards Competition.

Born in Pigeon, in Michigan's thumb area, Geiger attended high school there and earned a bachelor's from Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., and a master's from Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. He has extended his post-graduate studies at the University of Michigan.

Geiger, wife Janet, and two sons live in Fairfax, Va., a Washington, D.C. suburb.

It's gaining support in area

IT'S A SMALL STEP toward solving a big problem.

Composting is a process by which grass clippings, leaves and other common yard waste is mixed with dirt and placed in piles, eventually to decompose into fertilizer.

It's also a concept that has been gaining increasing support in the Plymouth-Canton area.

In Canton, a pilot program is already under way. For the past several weeks, residents of five township subdivisions have separated yard waste from other garbage, for transport to compost piles.

At the same time, the city of Plymouth is considering a voluntary test program that could begin as soon as next month.

The purpose is clear. With space running out in existing landfills, and opposition mounting against new landfills, we must seek waste disposal alternatives.

WE SUPPORT both plans, but we hope the issue doesn't die there.

We'd like to see composting become a routine operation in the Plymouth-Canton area.

The purpose is clear. With space running out in existing landfills, and opposition mounting against new landfills, we must seek waste disposal alternatives.

True, composting is not a final answer in itself. At best, yard waste accounts for only 15 percent of the total waste stream — that combination of used or no-longer-useful items we continually ship to landfills.

Nonetheless, composting is an important first step. It's one most area homeowners could take with a minimum of difficulty.

After all, who could complain about storing yard waste in separate bags from other household trash? Most homeowners are probably doing just that right now.

Ten years ago, we were asked to take a similar step — return pop bottles for a deposit. That plan worked well.

Now, area residents may soon be asked to separate yard waste for composting. that, we believe, should work well, too.

Each represents only a small step toward solving the solid waste crisis. but each step brings the solution that much closer.

AAA move

We hope it's not a local trend

THE RECENT MOVE by AAA out of Plymouth may seem like a minor inconvenience for some members. It's not all that far to Livonia, where the new office is located.

However, it's a small chink out of the small-town feeling that exists in Plymouth. And it's something we hope Plymouth doesn't lose.

Plymouth right now is a real town. There's a hardware store, paint store, barbershops and other things that people need. The AAA travel service is another.

Our fear is that Plymouth will become like another, Birmingham with all the glitz, fashion and trendiness that you can stand on a walk through downtown.

As Birmingham has become more fashionable, the old-time stores that sold such mundane items as hardware have hit the road. All Birmingham is left with are trendy stores. You can't repair your house with anything from the Ralph Lauren store.

But Plymouth is different. And we like it that way. Let's just hope that the AAA move is an isolated case and not part of a trend.

Supreme Court

Abortion: war within the states

THE UNITED STATES Supreme Court has made abortion the issue of the '90s.

Abdicating its responsibility to interpret the Constitution, the court has triggered a war over abortion rights; a war destined to be fought in each state.

In Michigan, the question is bound to divert attention from the crucial educational equity issue, which will go before voters in November. It also threatens to turn the 1990 gubernatorial and legislative contests into one-issue races.

This newspaper has reported pro-choice/pro-life confrontations in front of clinics in Livonia, Farmington Hills, Southfield and Troy.

Some of these were to call attention to last November's statewide proposition in which voters said the state could no longer fund abortions for those who could not pay for them.

BUT THAT ISSUE actively involved only a fraction of our population; now it is destined to involve us all.

The Supreme Court has once again placed under public scrutiny the highly personal, agonizing decision a woman, and often her partner, must make.

Women of all ages and economic status have always had abortions. What Roe v. Wade did was allow them to end a pregnancy without breaking the law. As a result of Roe v. Wade women have been able to have safer, more affordable abortions.

This newspaper has consistently taken a pro-choice position.

But it will take more than lip service to head off and defeat the well-run, well-financed pro-life forces in Michigan which firmly believe they are the advocate of the unborn child.

Pro-choice residents of the our suburban communities are well suited to take a leadership role. Blessed with education, resources and political savvy, they can help convince state government that the constitutional right to have a child, or not, must be retained for today's young women and those to come.

Flag, execution laws conflict

NEVER were the divided attitudes of the American people so evident as in recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings on the flag and the death penalty.

With the court shifting allegiances in 5-4 rulings each time, shock reverberated throughout the country. On one hand the justices ruled that, despite the esteem in which we hold the red, white and blue, an avowed communist had the right to burn the flag at the Republican convention in 1984.

In the other conservative ruling, the justices ruled that teens aged 16 and 17 and mentally retarded adults can be executed.

Supporting the flag ruling were justices Anthony M. Kennedy, Harry Blackmun, Thurgood Marshall, Antonin Scalia and William Brennan in the majority.

The majority ruling on the death penalty decisions were Scalia, Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Byron White, Sandra Day O'Connor and Kennedy.

THE LIBERAL decision on the flag was based on the freedom to dissent for political reasons. It unleashed a backlash of dissent to the opinion itself from veterans groups to congressmen. The decision literally spanned both sides of the political spectrum.

Finally President Bush called for a constitutional amendment opposing flag burning, something that would take two-thirds approval in both houses of Congress and by 38 state legislators.

Despite their sincerity, these protests are misguided. When we say we honor Old Glory as much as anyone else, we honor not a swatch of cloth but the meaning behind the flag. That meaning is the liberty inherent in our doctrine of freedom of speech to burn the very symbol for which it stands, even if the protester is a complete jerk for doing so.

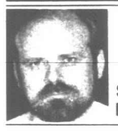
We are, however, still reeling from the court's decision that teens ages 16 and 17 and mentally retarded adults can be executed.

Scalia, the only justice to vote in the majority on both decisions, wrote: "In determining what standards have evolved, we have looked not to our own conceptions of decency, but to those of modern American society as a whole."

The diverse American society bows its head in shame.

A healthy environment:

That's the bottom line



Steve Barnaby

LIKE MANY of you, I frequently get a little more than irritated at how the real war to save our civilization is moving along. And this hasn't exactly been a banner year for the good earth, the only home we have.

No, I'm not talking about the phony war against communism. I'm talking about the struggle to save the environment. The battle does get to be a personal matter after a while.

Recently I ate what I believed to be a healthy meal of fish. Last week I opened the paper to read the type of fish I had consumed, trout, will very well increase my chances of contracting some sort of death-threatening cancer.

Every time I go by the apples in the fruit market, I cringe to think about all those shiny red orbs that at one time contained Alar, which also heighten the risk of cancer.

And anyone who cares at all about the environment is shocked that four times in less than a year, major oil spills have polluted our waters, killed countless numbers of wildlife, poisoned the food chain and ruined, for decades to come, some pristine wildlife areas.

ON AN EVEN more personal note, I, along with tens of thousands of my comrade Vietnam veterans, wonder when the time bomb will explode and release the ravages that Agent Orange will visit upon our bodies and those of our offspring.

And closer to home for all of us in the metropolitan area, we watch as waste management becomes unmanageable.

Our garbage piles up, polluting the water we drink and the vegetables we grow in the family garden. In our attempts to get rid of the endless tons of garbage, we have resorted to building furnaces that spew the waste into the air and recycle through our lungs.

The list of the assault goes on and on. I'm sure you've got many examples.

BUT MAYBE hope does exist. Maybe the people of America really are getting sick of this mindless destruction.

Recently U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Canton Township, Garden City, Westland and part of Livonia, took a survey of his constituents. The results were hopeful.

For the first time in the 25 years he has been reading the pulse of the voters, Ford found that environmental concerns outweighed our paranoid-based defense spending, the drug war, education and the federal deficit.

"I was especially impressed with the strength of this response because the question assumed that tackling this problem might require an increase in the federal budget deficit," Ford said.

Ford's constituents threw heavy support toward recycling programs that would: increase the proportion of garbage that is recycled to 25 percent, encourage development of markets for degradable plastics, and provide money to promote waste reduction techniques by industry.

His district very much reflects the attitudes of middle America. Perhaps the rest of the country will follow suit and force American business to turn its back on short-term profits so we all may benefit from a healthier environmental bottom line.

Thanks go to parents

To the editor:

During the last eight months the parents of the Class of '89 at the CEP worked together on the Senior Class Party, Flight 89, that followed graduation on June 11. Hundreds of parents worked through the year and at the party to ensure success. Nearly 900 or almost 80 percent of the Seniors had a tremendous final experience together that night. They were well behaved and are an asset to our community.

Thank you to all those parents who worked so hard to make this party the terrific success that it was. The committee chairpersons should be recognized specifically because without their coordination efforts the party would not have happened. A special thank you to each of the following: prizes — Judy Skeppstrom, Bob and Marilyn Thams; tickets — Jackie and John Binder; entertainment and games — Kathe Allison; chaperones — Judy and John Lore; refreshments — Nancy and Dean Swartzweiler, Linda and Gary Nielson; decorations — Joyce Dean and Phil Hazlett; publicity — Mary and Joe Uhl; finance — Elaine Kirchgatter.

In addition, all of us thank the community businesses who supported the party with their financial and gift donations. Without their sponsorship our success would have been more difficult.

The custodial staff and the security personnel at the CEP were an absolute joy to work with. They adjusted well to the changes we made to our plans and were willing to accommodate our needs. They did everything we asked and made sure that the facility was in tip-top shape. Thank you Dan McGuire (head custodian at Salem) and Jim Collins (head of security) for the support and help you and your staffs gave us.

Mary and Roland Thomas,
Senior Party Committee

All helped in 'Family Day'

To the editor:

I am the Michigan Education Association consultant who is charged with providing assistance to the Plymouth-Canton MEA unions. The governing body of our organization is called the 2-A Coordinating Council and is comprised of the following Plymouth-Canton Unions: Custodial/Maintenance, Food Service, Paraprofessionals, as well as Teachers.

On behalf of the 2-A Coordinating Council, I would like to thank Ms. Kotcher for her kind words about School Family Day. While we appreciate the recognition, we would like to clear up the misunderstanding. School Family Day could function so well only because of the cooperation of all the MEA units in Plymouth-Canton, as well as the participation of the transportation union. All groups had a hand in making the day the success it was and all deserve recognition for their efforts.

We, like Ms. Kotcher, are hopeful that more community members will participate when the 2-A Coordinating Council sponsors the activity next year.

We are truly a family, from the cafeteria workers who prepare and serve nourishing food, the custodial/maintenance workers who keep the physical plant clear and safely maintained, the drivers who transport the children to school, the paraprofessionals who assist the teachers with clerical duties, maintain order and assist with instruction, as well as our teachers, who do such a fine job in instruction.

All of our members are an integral part of education here in Plymouth-Canton, and we hope next year, more community members will participate in School Family Day to observe first-hand, the fine job our members do.

Senators scrambling during capital work

Tim Richard

THIS SUMMER the Michigan Senate is meeting in an historic, ornate but cramped committee room while its chamber is being renovated.

So far the senators and their presiding officer are taking the bad with the good.

"I felt there was something funny about this, and there is," said Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths as senators strained to hear. "This is the first time I've been able to see everybody's ears at the same time."

There were groans at this Marthaism. The 78-year-old president of the Senate is known for chiding members the way Schoolmaster Dobbins used to chide the inattentive Tom Sawyer.

THE TEMPORARY Senate chamber is the third floor Senate Appropriations Committee room.

In an earlier generation, it was the Supreme Court chamber. Etched glass over the door still proclaims "Supreme Court."

The long wooden table where the committee met has been replaced by 38 tables — stalls, really — for the senators. The spectators' gallery has only a handful of chairs.

A single closed-circuit television camera carries the proceedings to a larger committee room on the fourth floor. There is only one microphone for senators, so that if someone talks from the floor he or she can't be heard over TV.

"They told me it was furnished like a K mart blue light special. It turned out rather well," admitted Sen. Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie, no fan of Senate Majority Leader John Engler.

THE DOCTOR — Sen. John Schwarz, M.D., R-Battle Creek — asked special consideration for Sens. Harmon Cropsey and Joe Mack, who have hearing losses.

Responded Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor: "We have some who are sight impaired, some who are hearing impaired, and some who are just impaired."

Groans from the gallery.

Pollack suggested, seriously, a blackboard be used to chalk the bill number that is under discussion. Nods of agreement.

INSTEAD OF having two minutes to turn on a green (yes) or red (no) light, senators now must answer an oral roll call. A moment's lapse, and one misses a vote.

That happened to Sen. Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, who stepped into the hall to talk to an aide.

"I ask to be recorded as voting yes," DiNello told Griffiths later. "The rule says you have to call a second time."

"Sen. DiNello," replied the presiding officer, "if you will sit — down — and pay — attention — you will be able to vote."

A moment later Griffiths gave the Schoolmaster Dobbins treatment to shush Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills. "Sen. Faxon — you — haven't — been — recognized."

Much laughter.

FOR THE PRESS, the result is a mixed bag.

It's easier to record roll calls because each member's name is called out and his or her vote repeated for closed-circuit TV.

But with only one microphone and bad internal acoustics, senators are under pressure to make fewer and shorter speeches, providing the press with fewer quotes.

In the corridor, there is no P.A. system as there is in the Senate lobby, so newspeople can't interview senators during lulls for fear of missing something important.

In the fourth floor viewing room, newspeople share seats with lobbyists and legislative staffers, whose conversations can drown out the TV.

Girl friends' paths cross numerous times

Judith Doner Berne

THIS IS A COLUMN about friends. Let's call them Jenny and Shelley.

They met in first grade when Jenny moved to West Bloomfield from out-of-state. They went through elementary, middle and high school together — at one point close enough to go away to camp together; at another, latching on to other best friends as they went through the stages of adolescence.

At 16, they celebrated their confirmation at a double ceremony, as seniors in high school, they co-captained the varsity tennis team.

When both decided to attend the University of Michigan, they made a conscious decision not to room together — opting to branch out to room with new people, make new friends.

BUT OF ALL the dormitories at that sprawling university, they somehow ended up in the same one — and on the same floor. So it turned out they made friends with one another's roommates and hallmates, growing closer, not farther apart.

At the end of that freshman year, they gathered some of these new, mutual friends together to take an apartment, later a house for their three remaining years in Ann Arbor. And, here they shared the ups, downs and routine of college life.

As graduation approached, both opted for graduate school.

Shelley applied only to Harvard's School of Education which had the program she wanted to pursue. And she was accepted at the prestigious Boston-area school.

For Jenny, it was applications to at least 10 schools, mostly in the Midwest, to get her master's degree in English. But her best offer turned out to be a teaching fellowship at Northeastern University — guess where.

They celebrated their graduation together at a dinner given by their families. And then, last fall, the two of them packed up their belongings and headed in their U-Haul truck to Boston — once again to share an apartment.

THERE'S MORE.

They had a mutual friend from U-M, who had returned to his Boston roots, and he and Shelley began to date. Then his roommate — his friend since kindergarten — began to date Jenny.

In February, Jon and Jenny became engaged. They will marry next June. Two weeks ago, Shelley and her boyfriend, also named Jon, became engaged. They will marry next May.

Two childhood friends marrying two childhood friends. It's happened before and it will undoubtedly happen again.

Nice.

Are teachers overpaid?

Q: I think teachers are overpaid. Am I right?

A: Some teachers should receive double their salary, some teachers should receive what they presently are receiving, and there are a few who should have to buy a ticket to get in the front door.

The same can be said for a few doctors, lawyers, college professors, journalists, clergy and other professionals I have dealt with in my lifetime.

Indeed, there was one doctor more interested in his tennis game then marking down on my record that I was allergic to penicillin, which almost wiped me out at one time in my life.

HOWEVER, MOST of the doctors I have dealt with are truly professional people. The same is true of most teachers with whom I have been associated.

Doc Doyle

Parents need to realize the advanced training that teachers obtain beyond the four years of college, working toward master's and educational specialist's degrees. Many teachers work long evening hours sponsoring clubs, grading research or term papers and preparing lesson plans on a daily basis.

Furthermore, when one compares the salaries of other professionals, I do not believe that, in most cases, teaching salaries are out of line.

It is unfortunate that some parents had or have a problem with one particular teacher and then generalize that situation to the total teacher population concluding that all teachers are "that way and don't deserve the pay they are receiving."

The dedication and commitment of most teachers that I have dealt with is outstanding.

Court rulings vary on abortion rights

• 1977 — Beal v. Doe, Maher v. Roe and Poelker v. Doe, all 6-3, uphold the right of states to refuse to spend public money for abortions that are of an elective or non-therapeutic nature.

• 1979— Colautti v. Franklin, 6-3, struck down a Pennsylvania requirement that a physician try to save the life of a fetus whenever the doctor had reason to believe that the fetus might be able to survive outside the mother's body.

Bellotti v. Baird, 8-1, held that requiring parental consent burden's an individual's right to an abortion. The court found the Massachusetts law unconstitutional and ruled that, without prior parental consultation, a minor must have access to a confidential proceeding before a judge to argue that an abortion is in her best interests.

• 1980 — Harris v. McRae, 5-4, held that it is constitutional for the federal government to permit Medicaid funding only for abortions necessary to save the woman's life. Since 1977, Congress has denied federal Medicaid funding for abortions under the Hyde amendment, named for original sponsor Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill.

• 1983 — City of Akron v. Akron Center for Reproductive Health, 6-3, struck down a city ordinance requiring that all abortions after the first trimester be performed in full service hospital and an "informed consent" provision requiring the physician to tell patients that the fetus is a human being from the moment of conception, to describe the fetus' physical development and to list all possible physical and emotional consequences of the abortion.

Until Monday's landmark ruling, the U.S. Supreme Court had generally struck down state laws restricting a woman's right to an abortion.

The court also ruled unconstitutional a city ordinance requiring a woman to wait 24 hours between consenting to and receiving an abortion.

Planned Parenthood of Kansas City, Mo. v. Ashcroft, 6-3, struck down a requirement that all abortions after the first trimester be performed in a hospital. The court also upheld, 5-4, provisions of a Missouri law requiring "unemancipated" minors to obtain parental or judicial consent for an abortion. This requirement was permissible while a similar one in the Akron ordinance was not, because Missouri's requirement spelled out a judicial-consent alternative for a minor who could not or would not obtain parental consent.

Simopoulos v. Virginia, 8-1, upheld a state law requiring that second-trimester abortions be performed in a hospital. the court distinguished this hospitalization requirement from those struck down in the Akron and Kansas City cases because the Virginia law defined licensed outpatient surgical clinics as hospitals.

• 1986 — Thornburgh v. American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, 5-4, struck down a state requirement that the doctor use the same degree of care in aborting a fetus as he would if delivering it and that he use the abortion method providing the best opportunity for the fetus to be born alive. The court ruled Pennsylvania's informed-consent requirement unconstitutional, saying it was an attempt to dissuade women from an abortion, and struck down a reporting requirement on the ground that it would violate confidentiality of medical records.

Blanchard signs college aid bill

AP — Mike Goecke is neither rich nor poor — and that's his problem.

The 16-year-old senior at Stevenson High School in Livonia plans to attend Kalamazoo College, but until recently he was unsure where he was going to get the money.

When he watched Gov. James Blanchard sign a measure establishing a college loan program for middle-income families, Goecke decided his financial worries were over.

"It's going to help a lot of kids like me from Livonia who can't afford to go to college. I really think it's great," he said.

Goecke and more than 900 other participants in the American Legion Boys' State program watched June 21 as Blanchard signed the bill to help students from families with incomes of more than $30,000.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Hickner, D-Bay City, authorizes the Michigan Higher Education Student Loan Authority to sell tax-exempt bonds to make low-interest loans.

Blanchard said the bill fills a void created when the federal government reduced its student loan programs. Families with incomes of $30,000 or more found themselves cut out of federal loan programs but lacked the funds to finance college expenses on their own, he said.

Blanchard proposed the idea in his 1989 State of the State message.

"It's just one way we're trying to help everyone pursue the American dream, provide for their future and have opportunity in the great state of Michigan," he said.

State Superintendent Donald Bemis said as many as 30,000 students a year could apply for loans under the program.

Many details, including the maximum allowable income for participants, remain. But the Department of Education estimated Michigan families who are not eligible for federally subsidized students loans could seek as much as $25 million in loans each year under the program.

Department officials said they expect minimum loans will be $2,500 and that interest rates will be favorable because loans to families with proven ability to pay represent a low risk to lenders.

Default rates on state programs in other areas of the country average 2 percent or less because the loans are issued to families with higher incomes than those served through the federally subsidized program.

Stuntwoman appears at air show

Former Michigan resident Lori Lynn Ross will be a featured performer in the annual Wayne County Air Show benefiting the county's Easter Seal Society, Saturday and Sunday, July 29-30, at Willow Run Airport, Belleville.

Ross, a professional stuntwoman, high diver and mountaineer, will perform wing walking on a plane piloted by Eliot Cross. For the first time, she will also perform headstands on top of a wing of a plane in flight. Ross previously appeared at the county air show two years ago.

A graduate of Southfield High School, and a liberal arts major at California State University, Northridge, Ross has appeared as a stunt woman in such films as "Karate Kid II" and "Phatasm II," and has doubled in stunts for such actors as Julianne McNamara and Kay Lenz.

Ross and Cross will be joined by performances of the Blue Angels, the Holiday Inn Aerobatic Team and others.

Advance tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for children ages 5 to 11. Tickets at the door are $10 for adults and $7 for children. Children under age 5 are free. Tickets are available at all TicketMaster locations or by calling 482-8888. There is a $2 parking fee.

Park's alive with sound of music

LISTENING TO the sounds of summer is an enjoyable pastime in Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

The park, at Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street, is the place to go for summertime concerts. The Plymouth Community Band performs in concert at 8 p.m. Thursdays, through July 27.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council sponsors a "Music in the Park" series of concerts from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays, through Aug. 23.

The Plymouth Community Band concerts have been held annually since 1960.

Chadd Neale, 3, of Novi checks out the fountain in Kellogg Park during a "Music in the Park" concert. He came to the concert with his mom, Elaine.

"The concerts include a variety of light classics, show tunes, marches," said Carl Battishill of Plymouth, band director. "We do have soloists. Occasionally, we'll do a novelty number of some sort."

At the Thursday, June 22, concert, the band performed the "Concerto for Madison Avenue." That number included many well-known advertising jingles.

THE PLYMOUTH Community Band, a volunteer organization, includes about 55 to 60 members. The musicians also perform during the remainder of the year.

"It's a really very pleasant experience," said Battishill, band director at West Bloomfield High School and music director at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. "The music is good. The price is definitely right."

Both concert series are offered free of charge.

The musicians enjoy performing in the park in the summer, Battishill said. They gather each Tuesday to rehearse the music for the upcoming concert.

"I think all of them really enjoy it. The music is a little bit lighter. It's intended to be entertaining in every way."

Entertainment's also provided by the "Music in the Park" series, said Christa Grix of Plymouth Township, coordinator of this year's program.

A total of 10 noontime Wednesday concerts are scheduled, with the final performance on Wednesday, Aug. 23.

"People bring their children," she said. "It's just a nice way to spend the afternoon."

The Plymouth Community Arts Council has sponsored a summer concert series for the past several years. The concerts attract shoppers, businesspeople on their lunch break, and mothers with young children.

"I think the only criterion is that you like music," Grix said.

THIS YEAR'S "Music in the Park" series includes some performers from previous years and some newcomers. Some Plymouth Symphony Orchestra members are among those performing.

The Arbor Winds Saxophone Quartet will perform Wednesday, July 26, that group's first appearance in the series. Percussionist Christopher Romanowski will perform Wednesday, July 19.

Romanowski is this year's winner of the Margaret E. Wilson Scholarship for the Performing Arts and the Joanne Winkleman Hulce Founder's Scholarship. Both scholarships were presented by the arts council.

The arts council concerts include many musical styles, such as pop, easy listening and classical. Vocal-

Richard Lee of Plymouth gives a rousing "Music in the Park" performance in Kellogg Park.

Concert performers enjoy summertime fun

PERFORMING AT "Music in the Park" concerts isn't just rewarding for the audience. Musicians also find the concerts enjoyable.

"It's very rewarding," said Richard Lee, the featured performer at the Wednesday, June 28, concert in Kellogg Park. "It was beautiful. The day was nice."

The concert series is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, with concerts held from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays. (See related story.) This is the third year that Lee, a Plymouth resident, has performed in the series.

"It's like a pure type of enjoyment." He enjoys playing for an appreciative audience.

Many children were at Lee's performance. Children don't come to concerts with any ideas of what music should or shouldn't be, he said.

LEE PERFORMS at nursing homes and convalescent centers as well.

"They have that same type of innocence where they listen and they feel." That's more rewarding than playing for 3,000 people who don't care about the music.

Lee is known by his stage name, D.L. Turner. He played the harp and guitar and sang for his "Music in the Park" performance.

He also plays the bass guitar, mandolin, violin, cello and other instruments. His performance in Kellogg Park included "Summertime" from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Music from more recent times was also featured. Popular songs by John Denver and the late Jim Croce kept the crowd listening during the hourlong concert.

Lee has performed at the Plymouth Fall Festival. He plays regularly at The Crow's Nest in the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

Lee spends about six months out of the year performing at the Mayflower Hotel. During the rest of the year, he's on the road performing, mainly at Mountain Jack's restaurants throughout Michigan and Ohio.

Lee is also the youth choir director at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. He works with The Way, a musical group including teenagers from that church. That group

Buster

Museum exhibit highlights character's past

Buster Brown has done a good job of standing the test of time.

Buster and his buddies are featured in an exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum. The exhibit's part of the collection of Art and Ruth Jacobs, Plymouth Historical Society members.

"We've been collecting this for over 25 years," said Art Jacobs, who worked for more than 40 years as a salesman for the Brown Shoe Co., selling Buster Brown shoes.

Some of the Buster Brown items were found in retail stores. Others were found while Jacobs and his wife searched at antique shows. Their friends know of the couple's interest and have helped expand the collection.

Some of the Buster Brown items were found in retail stores.

"He's part of the family, actually," Jacobs said. "He was our livelihood. We were very fond of him."

The museum exhibit includes several china cups showing Buster and his sister, Mary Jane.

"Those were part of breakfast sets," Jacobs said. They have a 15-piece child's set of china.

THE COLLECTION includes a statue of Buster Brown made of chalk. A metal bank and a burnt wood plaque showing the character are included, along with spice cans featuring Buster's likeness.

Jacobs, who's been retired for about five years, has a booklet on the life and times of Buster Brown. In 1904, the Brown Shoe Co. of St. Louis started using Buster as a promotional tool. Buster put in an appearance at the World's Fair held that year in St. Louis.

Buster was the creation of Richard Outcault, an artist who drew cartoons for The New York Herald and other newspapers at the turn of the century. He sold the rights to use Buster to various manufacturers.

In the earlier part of this century, Buster was used to sell spices, cigars, clothing and other items. The Brown Shoe Co. is still in business and uses Buster in its shoes; he puts in an appearance on the sock lining of each shoe sold.

The Gerber Co., based in Fremont, Mich., has a subsidiary that uses Buster in children's clothing.

Buster often appeared with his dog, Tige. Originally, the Brown Shoe Co. used midgets to represent Buster.

The midgets, accompanied by trained dogs, would travel by train throughout the country. They'd appear at shoe stores, entertaining the crowds.

SUCH ENTERTAINMENT was popular in years gone by. Crowds would gather at the stores to watch.

"It would be too entirely unsophisticated for today's children."

The midgets who appeared as Buster have all since died, Jacobs said. A statue of Buster was dedicated at the Missouri gravesite of one of those men.

Occasionally, Art and Ruth Jacobs present programs on Buster Brown for clubs.

"A lot of people remember it," he said. "It does create a lot of interest."

The exhibit will continue at the museum, 155 S. Main, through the Many concert-goers bring lawn chairs and or blankets to sit on. Insect repellent can come in handy, particularly for the evening performances.

performs original music and has recorded several albums.

HE'S RECORDED an album of his own, "Springtime." That album, on Par-O-Dice Records, was released in the early 1980s. Lee is continuing to promote his album.

Lee also does freelance work as an audio specialist for video productions. He's found local audiences are most appreciative of his music.

"Locally, I'm received better than anywhere else."

During his "Music in the Park" performance, Lee got some help singing from children in the audience. His 5-year-old daughter, Rosie, and other children joined in on several numbers.

Lee started performing at age 5 and is now 35.

"So 30 years of doing this, I've gotten pretty comfortable with it. It's always exciting when you get asked to be on stage."

He's found that adrenalin rush he feels before performances helps keep the energy level at concerts high.

"One aspect of playing music is sharing a part of your soul." That's like opening a door and letting your emotions out, something that can be challenging to do.

"You have to be confident."

Summer street dances provide toe-tapping good time for crowd

If you like a little dancing with your music, downtown Plymouth is the place to be Friday evenings.

Street dances are held 7:30-9 p.m. Fridays in the Penniman/Kellogg Park area. The dances are sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, Dick Scott Dodge and the Detroit Federation of Musicians.

Some of those attending choose to dance, while others prefer to relax and just listen to the music.

"We don't make them dance," said Mary Roehr, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. Many visitors bring along their lawn chairs instead of their dancing shoes.

The dances have been held for several years, with the first one this summer held June 23. Dances will be held each Friday through Aug. 25.

"It's a Big Band format." The band shell is set up on Penniman, giving dancers plenty of room to move.

"I think it's a nice activity on a Friday evening," Roehr said. "It's really a family activity."

SOME FIVE or six musicians perform at each dance. Vocal performers sometimes appear.

Roehr enjoys attending the street dances as often as she can.

"I like to watch the people. I think that's the most interesting thing. I'm not much of a dancer myself."

The dances have been held long enough that the work involved in coordinating them isn't difficult. Chamber of commerce staff members have a list of performers. There's never been a problem with no-show musicians, Roehr said.

Originally, the idea behind the street dances was to attract people to downtown Plymouth. The hope was that doing so would encourage people to shop locally.

Shopping certainly isn't discouraged, although the dances have become more of a community event.

"I think that people come just for the street dances," Roehr said.

There's no admission charge for the dances.

"It's about as inexpensive as you can get."

People from throughout the community are attracted to the dances, she said. They enjoy visiting a nice, safe area for an enjoyable activity.

"I think that it's really in keeping with the theme and people's opinion of Plymouth." Visiting the hub of Plymouth "kind of evokes some of those feelings."

Plymouth Fall Festival in September.

"I've had quite a few people come in and ask about it," said Beth Stewart, museum director. This is the first time the exhibit's been featured at the museum.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Buster Brown is often shown with Tige, his dog.

"It is something that kids will see right away," she said. The Buster Brown logo is appealing to today's children, just as it was to their parents and grandparents.

"I think that says a lot about it, that it sort of withstood the test of time," Stewart said.

An exhibit of wedding dresses from the 19th and 20th centuries is featured at the museum. The "Here Come the Brides" exhibit includes bridal accessories, lace items, shoes, and such Victorian wedding gifts as silver, cut glass and china.

Summer hours at Lee Plymouth Historical Museum are 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Admission price is $1 for adults, 50 cents for students ages 12-17 and 25 cents for children ages 5-11. For more information, call 455-8940.

Words can hit a child as hard as a fist.

What you say to children can determine how they feel about themselves. And how they feel about you. When you're upset, get hold of yourself. Stop and think about what you're saying. Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.

A priestly pursuit . . .

Rector doesn't see herself as trailblazer

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Earlier this year, the Rev. Margaret Silk-Young traveled to Sioux Falls, S.D., to see her grandson who had been born in April.

Silk-Young was proud to see her fourth grandchild. Her role during that visit wasn't just that of a proud grandmother, however. She baptized her grandson.

"This is the third time I've done it," said Silk-Young, associate rector at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth Township. "It's a thrill."

Silk-Young, 51, has been at St. John's Episcopal Church for about a year and a half. Most people there know her by her nickname, Marnie.

The Northville resident has been ordained as a priest for about three years and served as a deacon before that.

SHE COMES to Plymouth Township by way of Petoskey, Mich., and Chicago. While in Petoskey, she worked as an assistant and then as the priest in charge at that parish.

Silk-Young, a lifelong Episcopalian, did a number of different things in the Chicago area, where she lived for about 20 years. She worked as a chaplain in a retirement community and as an associate in another parish. While in the seminary, Silk-Young worked at a small inner-city parish on the south side of Chicago.

She'd worked as a social worker for a couple of years before entering the seminary, and had earlier been a school library secretary when her children were younger. Silk-Young started college in the late 1960s, and in 1980 earned a bachelor of science degree from George Williams College in Illinois.

In 1985, she graduated from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill., with a master of divinity degree.

As a college student, Silk-Young thought about a number of fields to enter, "none of which seemed to fit."

After a period of time, she decided to enter the ministry. Silk-Young doesn't consider herself a real trailblazer as a woman priest.

"To some extent. I'm not cut out to be one of those trailblazers in that sense."

Women have been ordained as Episcopal priests since the mid-1970s. Silk-Young considers herself more of a pioneer and part of the second or third wave.

HER GENDER hasn't been much of an issue at St. John's Episcopal Church. When she was in Petoskey and Chicago, it was more of an issue.

"It is very nice not to be out of the ordinary, which I was in the other two dioceses." When she goes to meetings of clergy now, Silk-Young sees other women priests.

Some people in her current parish were not convinced women should be priests; some of those parishioners have changed their thinking on that subject.

In working with the vestry, or parish board, at St. John's Episcopal Church, Silk-Young and parishioners tried to discern what makes the parish special. One of the many things mentioned was that the clergy is both male and female.

"It seems to be that it symbolizes a wholeness and through that symbol speaks to the people of the importance of all people."

She remembers the time when she first shared with her children her interest in becoming a priest.

"My son felt that was a natural since I'd been preaching to them all their lives," she said with a smile.

She has five children and four grandchildren. Her children range in age from 25 to 32. None have entered the ministry; three are teachers, one's a pilot and one works as a manager of customer services for a mailing firm.

Silk-Young, originally from Pontiac, moved to the Chicago area in the mid-1960s. She's glad she decided to become a priest and found her way back to the Detroit area.

THE MOST exciting part of her work is seeing people grow in their relationships with the Lord. She finds pastoral counseling rewarding.

"Liturgy, both the worship and the shaping of worship, are very high on my list of enjoyment." She enjoys preaching and helping people broaden their vision of God.

Paperwork isn't Silk-Young's favorite task.

"My desk sort of portrays that, I guess. It just always seems to be ahead of me."

She works with the Rev. Robert Shank, rector at St. John's Episcopal Church. Silk-Young usually spends one day a week on sermon preparation, typically early in the week.

Bible study with parishioners is part of her work week.

"Bible study is one of my joys." People are able to share how the Lord is working in their lives and to learn from one another through sharing.

Her work as associate rector at St. John's Episcopal Church is rewarding for the Rev. Margaret Silk-Young. "It's a good place to be," she said.

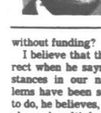
Silk-Young attends committee meetings and takes care of paperwork. Counseling, mostly with individuals, is part of her job as well.

Those seeking counseling need help with any number of issues, including handling problems with children, caring for aging parents, dealing with death and other losses, and coping with divorce or marital problems.

Silk-Young may move to another parish at some point.

"But I'm certainly not in a hurry to leave this place. It's a good place to be."

Community projects need commitment



moral perspectives

without funding?

I believe that the President is correct when he says that there are instances in our nation where problems have been solved. All we need to do, he believes, is find these examples and multiply them.

The idea is good. The translation of a program from one place to another is not simple.

CHURCHES HAVE tried to do this very thing. Some ideas can be moved to another site, but the program still needs to be built within a community.

I hope that President Bush is not just another Ronald Reagan, talking about an idea which will never come to be. We do need individuals who will volunteer to solve some of the serious problems of our nation. It will take much leadership and many experiments before such a goal becomes real.

The Rev. David Strong is pastor of St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

THE RENEWAL of society will only happen when it is born out of community. Individual persons cannot do the work nor can they sustain such a commitment.

The President's idea will remain only an idea until people are found and hired to build community among those who serve. It takes many skills and a great deal of commitment to create community.

The president could turn to the religious institutions to find leadership and experience for his program. The seriousness and difficulty of such a plan is beyond anything that we now see in his speeches. Wonderful things can be accomplished by committed volunteers. Wise leadership is required. How can this be obtained support them financially, and personally.

Cases of Lyme disease on the increase

Until a few years ago, Lyme disease was little known.

Now the Wayne County Health Department is advising residents that two cases of the disease have been reported in Wayne County this year.

Lyme disease is caused by an organism named Borrelia burgdorferi spread to humans from the bite of an infected tick. The disease got its name from the town where it was first identified, Lyme, Conn.

"The number of ticks increases during warmer months and are usually found in fields and wooded areas, especially where deer, wild rodents and other animals live," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, health department medical director. "People become exposed by walking or hiking in tick infested areas where they may be bitten by ticks."

Ticks latch on to exposed skin areas and obtain a blood meal from the person. It is during the tick feeding process that the organism is transferred to the human, Lawrenchuk said. Experts believe that the tick usually must be feeding on the individual for about 48 hours in order to transmit enough of the organism to cause the disease.

State records show that reports of Lyme disease have been slowly increasing since 1984, when the first case was reported. There were two cases in 1985, eight in 1986, six in 1987 and 30 in 1988.

ACCORDING to Keith Waite, director of the health department's disease Control Division, the two cases found in the county so far this year were probably the result of exposure to the organism in October or November of last year.

"Lyme disease in the past has been confined to areas of the Upper Peninsula and other states as Connecticut, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California and Oregon with a few isolated cases reported in several other states, but it now appears to be increasing in Michigan," he said.

The incubation period (time from exposure to the infected tick until symptoms begin) ranges from three to 32 days. The symptoms include achiness in the joints, nerve changes, cardiac involvement, rash, malaise (ill feeling) accompanied by fatigue, fever, headache, stiff neck and muscle achiness.

Serious chronic complications can occur in some people which may include arthritis and heart conditions, if the disease persists and is not treated.

Individuals can protect themselves from tick bites several ways, including:

- Avoid going into areas where deer are known to habitate.
- If you must go into those infested areas, wear long-sleeved clothing and tuck pant legs into socks so that ticks don't climb up the pant leg.
- Use insect repellents, if you go into infested areas.
- CHECK yourself and your children for evidence of ticks on exposed body areas. If ticks are present, remove them with tweezers in a safe manner.

Hunters should follow the above precautions while hunting and even during the meat processing of animals which may harbor ticks.

If the symptoms occur, individuals should seek medical attention. Blood tests are able to determine the presence of the organism and medications are available to treat the disease, Lawrenchuk said.

For more information about Lyme disease, call the Wayne County Health Department Disease Control Division at 467-3325.

OU professor warns against government 'manipulation'

By R.J. King
special writer

As China scurries to lure back foreign businesses that fled after the military crackdown on the democracy movement last month, the coordinator of East Asian studies at Oakland University warns it won't be business as usual for some time.

"I think the hard-liners have won the battle but lost the war," said Richard Stamps, an associate professor of anthropology and a Rochester Hills resident. "American companies should recognize that China is still maintaining an open-door policy, but things are not what they seem."

Stamps noted that Chinese government agencies are now inviting American executives back to meetings in Beijing, suddenly armed with favorable new terms or promising meetings with officials who had been unavailable for months.

Richard Stamps: 'narrow China market'

But the invitations turn out to be Communist propaganda campaigns, he said, where participants are filmed by Chinese television crews for use on the state-controlled news programs to promote the appearance of business as usual after the army's killing of students and workers in and around Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

"American companies should look out for the possibility of being manipulated by the Chinese government," Stamps said from his first-floor office in Wilson Hall. "However, there are targets of opportunity in the future, and businesses should try to maneuver for the right opportunity at the right time."

BECAUSE OF THE unpredictable political climate, Stamps said an annual China study tour he has led for the last six years was canceled. The three-week summer trip attracts area school teachers, students and retirees.

"Obviously there is a need to be very cautious in dealing with the Chinese right now," he said. "Companies should maintain their contacts and connections but should not make any rash decisions or jump to any conclusions."

Because of China's heavy reliance on foreign trade, which now accounts for nearly a third of its national income, Stamps said it is crucial for China to bring foreign businesses back, not only to legitimize the administration of Deng Xiaoping, the country's senior leader, but also to shore up a suddenly unstable economy.

For the first four months of this year, inflation has been running at an annual rate of just under 30 percent, according to the Washington D.C.-based U.S.-China Business Council. The council said a severe credit shortage has caused the Chinese government to abort some projects.

"The problems of China's economy stem from underemployment where perhaps three clerks handle what one clerk could handle very easily," Stamps said. "Another problem is that it is very hard to fire anyone because under the old system everybody had a job."

Addressing those companies that hold out future prospects of doing business in China, Stamps advised thorough market research and a complete understanding of the marketplace before driving stakes in Chinese soil.

Despite accounting for one-fifth of the world's population, "China has a very narrow market. You can't expect to sell a Chevrolet in every garage, and many American products are not appropriate to their economy. They don't really need luxury cars, but rather light trucks."

Stamps, who teaches in the cross cultural training program that helps Americans more effectively conduct business with the Chinese and Japanaese, said likely success in the Chinese market would come from investments in computers, telecommunications, energy production, machine tools, manufacturing technology and automation.

BUT FOR A Communist state that started experimenting with a free-market system 10 years ago, leading foreigners to believe in a more democratic China, Stamps said the recent killings by the Chinese army prove the country is still a tightly controlled Communist state.

"The Chinese are very proud people, and the one thing they can't stand is outsiders telling them what to do. They don't care what the world arena thinks about the killings — to them that is an internal affair.

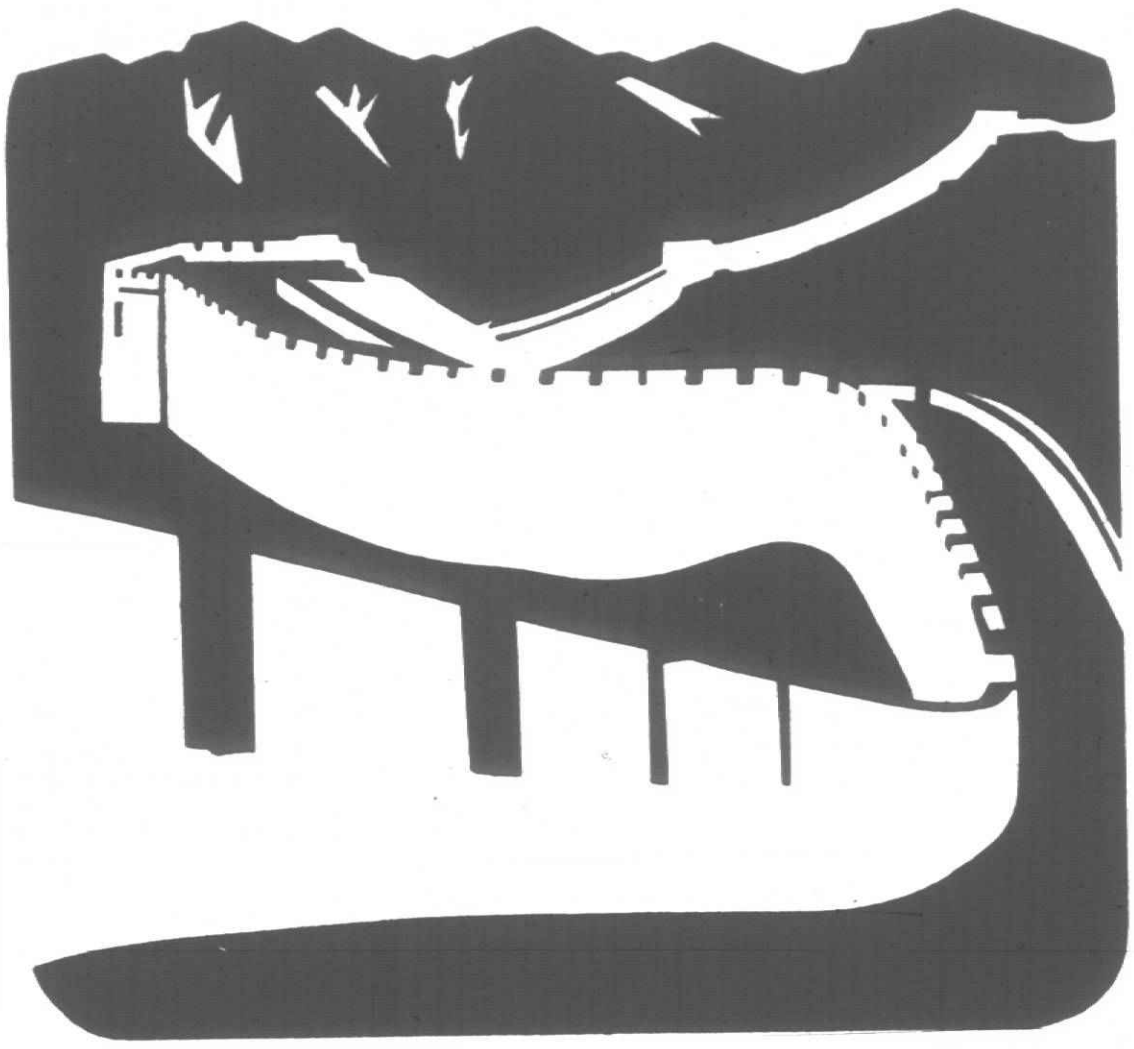
"It's their game, with their rules, and people have to recognize that you can't go over there and play their game with our rules."

As for the future business climate in China, Stamps believes American companies should approach the country with long-term development plans in mind.

"The Pacific Rim will be the biggest marketplace during the 21st century, and businesses should not write China off."

Businesses should also avoid quarterly-itis, he said.

"Companies need to back up from looking at quarterly profits and develop five- and 10-year plans. For any company that wants to establish world status, China has to be part of the picture."



Vickers' Chinese dealings on hold

A Troy company with offices in Beijing is adopting a wait-and-see approach before sending employees back to China.

"Our staff was removed to Hong Kong at the beginning of June just before the shooting started," said Jack Walrad, director of licensing for Vickers Inc. in Troy, which sells machine tools and plastics through nine licensing agreements with several Chinese factories. "Those people are still in Hong Kong and they won't return until after stability is restored."

Walrad suspected the company's representative office was "raped with gunfire from the street," but no one has been able to confirm the news. He was basing his assessment on reports from the U.S.-China Business Council, which has offices on the 22nd floor of the CITIC building near Tiananmen Square. Vickers has offices on the 11th floor.

While Vickers has maintained contact with Chinese officials, travel arrangements have been sharply curtailed, with only one-day trips available, he said. With $5 million in Chinese revenues last year, a small percentage of Vickers' total revenues of $800 million, Walrad said the company was proceeding slowly.

"China promises great potential, but we want to wait until operations are restored to normal before returning," he said. "But we do not want to cut off relations at this time.

Managers torn between party, Western techniques

Chinese middle managers who have been increasingly exposed to Western ways of doing business see those methods as a way to succeed in a global economy.

Even with the current turmoil in China, the government would have to close down all exposure to the rest of the world's business to reverse the trend toward adopting Western management methods. And that is unlikely, according to Herbert W. Hildebrandt, a University of Michigan business professor.

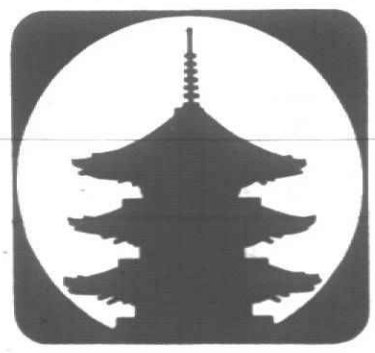
At the same time, managers will be thrown into greater conflict as they value both education and a role in the Communist party as the quickest ways to business leadership positions, he said.

"In the business arena, I think the current political disruptions in China are just that — temporary disruptions," Hildebrandt said. "The question will be to what extent the government wishes to harden its position in the economic scene.

"That will be increasingly difficult because the genie of education is out of the bottle. Enterprise managers know that being aware of modern management principles only will help them do a better job."

Hildebrandt surveyed 436 middle managers in 31 manufacturing industries from 1987 to 1988, focusing on their career paths, sociological patterns, lifestyles and education.

He said middle managers are a large class within the Chinese business community with many of them running the factories. In terms of the overall Chinese population, they are well educated. Two-thirds have high school or higher training. While their rate of college education is well below Western levels, half of the younger managers in Hildebrandt's sample, 51.4 percent, have college degrees compared with 20 percent of the managers who have spent more than 25 years with a company. The younger the manager, the more educated he or she is.



"THEIR EDUCATION gives them exposure to the rest of the world, and contact with countries where there is a lot of entrepreneurship and freedom," Hildebrandt said. "With Deng Xiaoping's earlier economic reforms and push toward modernization, there was a large student exchange program and seminars sponsored by universities from the United States, Japan, Germany, Canada and other countries.

When asked what they believed to be the best educational preparation for a management career, 60.4 percent recommended majoring in business administration at the undergraduate level, to improve overall managerial skills before turning to specialized areas.

At the graduate level, 87.3 percent recommended business administration with science and mathematics finishing a distant second at 6.8 percent.

"In the past, many people moved into managerial positions, not by studying business administration, but by virtue of seniority or because they were good at running the offices," Hildebrandt said.

"Now as Chinese managers receive more responsibility for profits and losses, they find that finance courses provide an essential foundation for decision making.

"SALES AND MARKETING skills were not of great importance when China's economy was tightly controlled at the center. In today's more competitive and export-oriented environment, the managers have learned to value skills in these areas."

But while 32.4 percent of the managers believed that majoring in general management/business administration is the quickest route toward job advancement, they chose politics as the second best way to get to the top. Chinese Communist Party secretaries are present in factories to oversee employees, communicate party instructions, and see that party principles are implemented and adhered to, Hildebrandt said. More than one-fourth, or 27.3 percent, of the managers surveyed picked the political/ideological path as the fastest route to a position of importance within a business.

"This means that middle managers will be increasingly torn apart," Hildebrandt said. "They recognize the importance of the party route and party support, but they also see the great progress made under Western managerial practices."

Hildebrandt does not believe China will take a giant leap backward in terms of business practices.

"I doubt they will ever return to the strictly controlled policies of the past. They have seen success of Western business principles. The group of middle managers I surveyed, with their exposure to the world, would be very unhappy if tight central control returned."

The 436 middle managers in Hildebrandt's study averaged 39 years of age; two-thirds were male, and they had jobs in factories with more than 7,500 employees.

The many types of trusts affect taxes differently

By Sid Mittra
special writer

Several years ago, I published a column of trust and taxes. It is time to revisit the topic.

The accompanying chart presents our updated version of the old table, incorporating the latest tax law changes. Clearly, estate planning is a highly complex subject and should be handled by a professional.

Seminar: "Retiring? What Are Your Best Financial Choices?" "Avoiding Medicare Tax — Is It Always Desirable?" "Stock Market — Is It Time To Get In or Out?" and "How Risky Are Safe Investments?"

The seminar, sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning, will be 7-9 p.m., Tuesday, July 18, in the offices of Coordinated Financial Planning, Sheffield Office Park, 3250 W. Big Beaver, Suite 440, Troy.

Call PIC if you are hiring employees

If you own a business, you probably know how expensive it can be to train new employees. But finding people who can begin working with little or no training can be almost impossible.

One of the most significant findings from a Crain's Detroit Business survey of state businesses was the concern over finding qualified employees. According to the survey, just 1 percent of high school graduates and 13 percent of college graduates were qualified to meet the skill requirements for entry-level jobs.

If you are thinking of hiring employees, it might be worth your time to check out the Wayne County Private Industry Corporation. PIC is financed by the Federal Jobs Training Partnership Act. Money is allocated to organizations across the country to provide training tailored to the needs of a target population. PIC can save you both time and money by recruiting, prescreening and training people you may be interested in hiring. As the employer, you retain control of all interviewing and hiring decisions.

Serving Wayne County, excluding Detroit and some downriver communities, PIC has helped hundreds of businesses recruit and train workers. They are able to tap an extensive recruitment and outreach network to identify those who may meet your company's skill requirements. PIC prescreens applicants before they are sent to your company for further interviews.

Lee Douglas is a Livonia marketing consultant whose column appears the first Thursday of the month.

auto talk
Dan McCosh

Big 3 didn't deserve brickbat

There are just three domestic auto companies buying magazine ads compared to 20 import automakers, which is one reason why the auto enthusiast magazines traditionally favor foreign cars.

I, for one, think most foreign cars are more fun than domestic cars. I also like women with foreign accents, which is why I married someone from New Jersey. But I digress.

I resist trying to justify my preference for foreign cars, but I freely acknowlege it as I struggle to maintain objectivity in automotive-type prose.

THE FOREIGN-CAR bias is a preference shared by most auto writers, many of whom remember their first love as a sadomasochistic affair with a British roadster.

Rarely, however, have I read such a one-sided barrage at the domestic industry as the three diatribes in the current issue of Car and Driver, all taking swings at the domestic industry's stand against raising the national corporate average fuel economy standard.

William Jeanes, Brock Yates and Tony Assenza gang up on Detroit as a reluctant dinosaur, building overweight gas-guzzlers, so technologically backward and callous about the environment that they refuse to see the benefits of a 40 mpb car in the future.

THE COLLECTIVE wrath was mainly aimed at the likes of Don Runkle, head of advanced engineering at GM, who claimed that a higher corporate economy standard in the face of current low fuel prices would mean a bunch of dull, slow cars at best, and a market heavily favoring the Japanese at worst.

Adding injury to insult, the magazine includes 10 car reviews, including a brushoff of Chevrolet's new Lumina, glowing praise of the new Nissan 300ZX, Porsche and Jaguar, then a couple of snide remarks about the Ford Escort.

C'mon guys.

I DID a little figuring and discovered that the average fuel economy of the issue in question was 25.4 mpg highway — two mpg worse than the current CAFE standards, let alone any proposed in the future.

More interesting, two of the three highest-mileage cars in the issue were domestics, the derided Chevrolet Lumina sedan, and the Escort — with the third the Chrysler-marketed Eagle Summit, engineered in Japan.

The Chevy ranked with the top three in mileage despite an automatic transmission and five passenger seats, and weighs less than the two-place 300ZX, as well as getting 5 mpg better fuel economy. Maybe Masrs. Runkle et al have been doing their homework after all.

THE "CRUDE" Escort turned out to be the lightest car tested in the issue, as well as the most economical. Heavyweights included two Japanese and one British sedan. Only Ford's Continental (which also had the worst fuel economy in the issue) made the list of the five heaviest cars tested, and two of the five were actually two-seat sports cars. Guess which domestic car impressed the editors the most.

Unnoticed to the performance-oriented enthusiast press, domestic cars have made the greatest gains in fuel economy and have surpassed imports in fuel economy per passenger carried for several years, while the imported sports cars and performance sedans favored by the magazines have been getting fatter and less efficient.

Typical is the the current issue of Car and Driver, where the most slavish praise is reserved for the least-efficient cars.

Based on its magazine average economy score, Car and Driver would be paying hefty gas-guzzler taxes right now. Any government legislation raising the MAFE would, of course, put them out of business far more quickly than raising the CAFE standard would hurt the domestic auto industry.

Attitude of some 3rd-class mail insults the reader

It used to be that Thursdays were junk mail days, but now it seems that almost every day is junk mail day for the small business owner.

Used as a means to promote a company's products or services, junk mail represented 30 percent of the total mail distributed in this country last year — up from 14 percent in 1985.

Junk mail are those pieces that are sent through the U.S. Postal Service third class. So these statistics do not reflect the distribution efforts of "tax-heads" and those who opt for first-class mail.

ALTHOUGH third-class mail represents a legitimate form of advertising for small businesses, it may have hit a new low with celebrity endorsements.

To add to the national disease of junk thinking, form letters from celebrities are included as another method to feed on your sense of flattery.

Louis Rukeyeser, investments analyst, said, "The idea that we're going to be so bowled over by seeing the name of somebody important on a letter machine-addressed to us and that we're going to fall into an awestruck stupor and buy whatever is being sold is ludicrous."

focus: small business

Mary DiPaolo

HE ADDS that when such mail plays fair with us it can have its uses. "But too often, as in the case of the celebrity form letter, it treats us with contempt and inspires the same in return."

For example, "valued Shuttle customers" of Eastern Airlines' frequent flier mileage program are due to receive a letter and bonus mileage certificate from Donald Trump if they fly a couple hundred miles on the new Trump shuttle.

In another, Grace Mirabella, former Vogue magazine editor, who has started her own magazine, suggests "I believe there's an important segment of the female population ... and you and I are a part of it ... that is not being served by the magazines that are currently being published."

SOUNDS PRETTY impressive except for the fact that Rukeyser received both letters and has neither flown the shuttle nor is he a woman.

I've always wondered why the the opportunities you would like to take advantage of never seem to be included in the mail. For example, Canadian travelers under age 28 may stay free at one of 55 hotels throughout Denmark during Youth Travel '89, which runs until July 9.

It's curious that I know many young Canadians who would love to have received a notice about this program but haven't ... not even from the prime minister.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Woodpeckers — there's more than one kind nature

Timothy Nowicki

WHEN ONE thinks of a woodpecker what comes to mind is a black and white bird traveling up the trunk of a tree looking for food. In southeastern Michigan the downy woodpecker is the most common species of woodpecker seen. The black and white coloration is commonly seen at suet feeders placed in the yard.

A woodpecker frequently seen and heard in our area is the common flicker. Though it too likes to excavate insects from tree trunks, flickers are often seen on the ground eating ants. Their long tongue is thrust down into ant hills found in lawns, where they probe for ants and their eggs.

These 12-inch long birds are easily seen and identified. On their back they have black bars contrasting against a brown background. Many people see the small red patch on the back of the head which is found in both the male and female.

ONE OF the best ways to identify this bird is to watch it fly. As it takes flight, the wings feathers will expose a large white rump patch. While flying one can readily see the yellow colored feather shafts of both the wings and the tail — especially when seen from below.

At one time the common flicker was called the yellow-shafted flicker because of those yellow feathers. Recently, however, it was learned that the yellow-shafted flickers mated successfully with red-shafted flickers out west, producing "orange-shafted flickers" in the great plains. Those birds seen around our area are predominantly the "mustache."

As you watch a flicker feeding on ants in your lawn, look to see if it has a "mustache." Males have a black line which extends from the base of the bill below the eye toward the middle of the head. Females of course lack the "mustache."

Years ago a researcher captured the female of a mated pair and painted a "mustache" on her. He then returned her to the nest. When her mate returned he did not recognize her and immediately began to chase her away.

Areas where sandy soils and ant hills are common is where you will likely see flickers hammering into the ground for food. This behavior spawned the common name of yellow hammer.

The writer is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks Park in Oakland County.

BBSC finally gets Wolverine crown

Lightning runner-up in girls 16

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

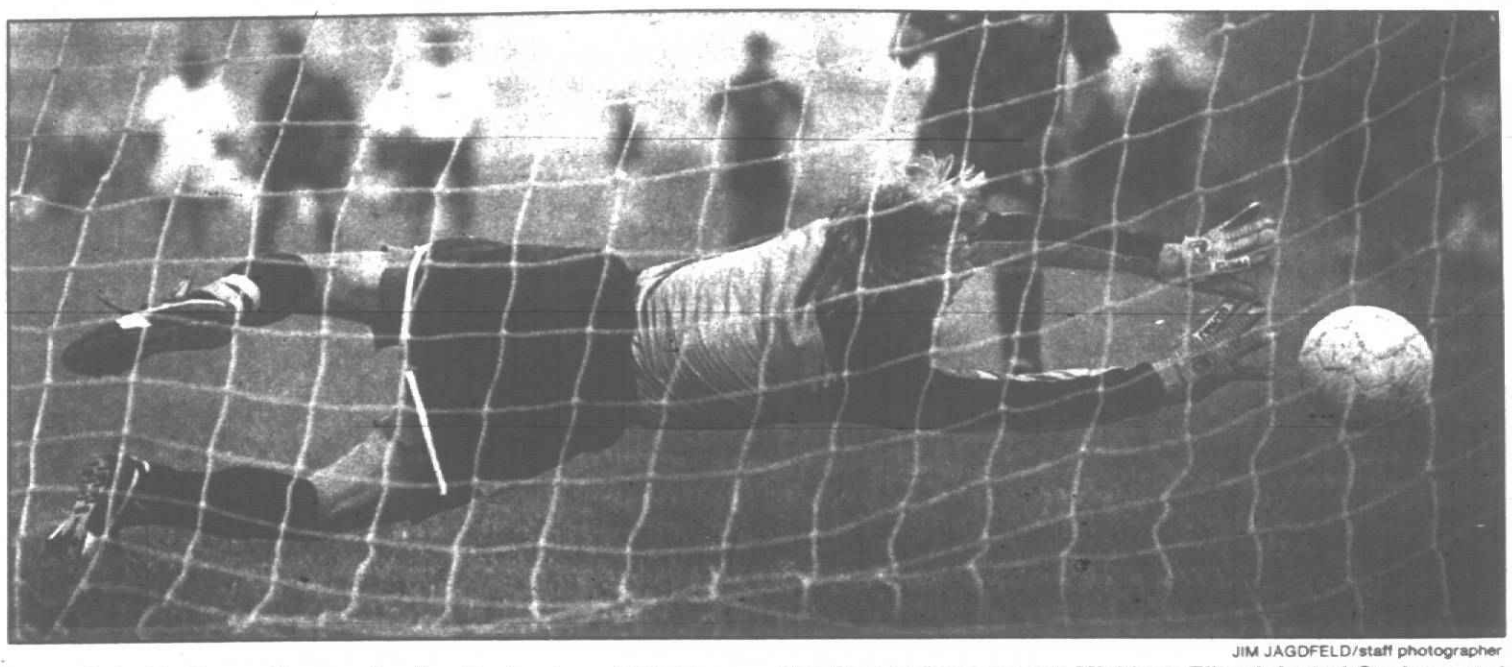
Twelve teams were crowned champions Monday at the 10th-annual Wolverine Soccer Invitational Tournament, but no one had more reason to smile than Birmingham-Bloomfield Soccer Club coach Harry Smith.

BBSC won the Under-19 boys division at Schoolcraft College, defeating the Rochester Maple Leafs, 4-1 in the championship game. The Wolverine Tournament title was the first for Smith, who has coached an Under-19 team at the prestigious tourney every year of its existence.

BBSC built a 57-6-1 all-time tournament record under Smith's guidance before last weekend's action, but the club was never able to grab the elusive Wolverine championship.

This time, BBSC took a 2-0 lead before the game was 20 minutes old and prevented the Maple Leafs from mounting a serious rally. BBSC outscored its five Wolverine Tournament opponents 30-2.

"THIS IS A very successful team," Smith said. "I knew it would be a great match, and I think it was. That first goal (by Jeff Forschey) really turned us on. Their goalkeeper made a mistake on it, but it was great hustle and a heck of a play, too by Forschey."



JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Larry Osiecki, the goalkeeper for the Canton-based Michigan Elite soccer team, makes a crucial save during a shootout in the final of the boys under-16 division Monday in the annual Wolverine Soccer Tournament. Michigan Elite defeated Saginaw and won the tournament championship when Joe Sebastyn connected with the deciding goal in the shootout.

Bob Boyle, Chad Okulich and Rick Sanchez recorded the other goals for BBSC. Khaled Zeidan, a recent Livonia Churchill graduate, notched the only goal for Rochester, which had to overcome several ankle injuries to some of its top goal-scorers.

Striker Lamarr Peters of Birmingham Brother Rice, who was named Mr. Soccer last fall, left on a stretcher late in the first half after suffering a severe ankle sprain. Also playing on injured ankles were Redford Catholic Central product Steve McCaul, Zeidan and Derek Williford of Livonia Stevenson.

"We were beaten up the whole tournament," said McCaul, who will play next fall at Michigan State University. "They're a good team, but they got lucky on the first goal and the second goal (on a penalty kick) is what really hurt us. The referee took the game away from us. Even the players on the other team said he was calling bad stuff."

IN ONE OF the day's most entertaining finals, the LYSC Michigan Athletics defeated the Livonia Wolves, 2-1 in double overtime to win the Under-17 boys division. CC's Bill Tarnacki decided the game early in the first overtime, as his penalty kick beat Wolves' goalkeeper Jerry Smolenski (Stevenson) on the right side.

The Athletics' Dave Poniatowski, of Milford, sent the game into overtime when his goal tied the score at 1-1 with five minutes left in regulation.

Churchill's Brady Ericson had given the Wolves a 1-0 lead before halftime, but they were forced to play shorthanded nearly the rest of the way because of four red cards.

LYSC received strong play in the nets from Plymouth Canton's Andy Collins and the Athletics played over an injury to CC's Mickey Hynes, who left with the game only five minutes old.

John Labadie (Livonia) and Todd Menko (Farmington) gave the Athletics strong play in Hynes' absence, coach John Hynes said.

ON THE GIRLS side, the '77 LYSC United team won the Under-12 division, beating the Troy Chargers 2-1 in double overtime.

Brighton's Amber Berendowski, who scored both United goals, scored early in the first overtime to break the 1-1 tie. Berendowski now has a team-high 42 goals.

The final was played Sunday evening and that was fine with coach Pat McCaul, whose team competes

This year's All-Observer squad is without peer.

A majority of the first-team picks come from the area's winningest programs.

Livonia Franklin placed two on the first team.

The Patriots were second in the Western Lakes Activities Association, but became the final survivor in the state tournament, losing to Taylor Center in the Class A regional final, 4-2.

Farmington Hills Mercy also placed two on the first team.

The Marlins reached the Catholic League A-B Division semifinals and lost to Franklin in the district finals.

Other schools represented on the first team include district champion Westland John Glenn, WLAA runnerup Plymouth Canton, Class B district champion Redford Thurston, Catholic League runnerup Livonia Ladywood, and Northwest Suburban League champ Garden City.

The Observer sports staff compiled information on the players with help from the coaches.

Thurston's Ron Lectka, who led his team to a 16-6 record, including a victory over top-ranked Taylor Center, as well as a district title, was named Observerland Coach of the Year.

"We were kind of skaky starting out and we had some green spots," said the 58-year-old Lectka. "It took some time, but once we got the prom out of the way, we didn't lose many more. Overall, this is probably the best team we've ever had."

Here is the 1989 All-Area softball team:

FIRST TEAM

Amy Edward, pitcher, Mercy: Making her second straight appearance on the first team, the senior was a steady performer again in 1989.

She finished with a 24-13 record, including 253 strikeouts and a 1.48 earned run average.

As a hitter, she batted .600 (63 for 105) with seven homers, 42 RBI and 47 runs scored. She also collectd seven doubles and five triples.

The All-Catholic League pick amazingly struck out only 10 times.

Lisa Allen, pitcher, Franklin: The 6-foot senior came on strong for the Patriots, particularly during state tournament time.

She posted wins over Mercy, Garden City, Plymouth Canton, while tossing no-hitters in three mercy-rule shortened games.

Allen dueled Taylor Center's Wendy Jamula inning for inning until the eighth when the Rams pulled out the regional final.

Sporting a 1.51 ERA and a 11-7 mark, Allen was described by coach Joe Epstein as "overpowering."

"Lisa was very unsure early, but as the season went along she got stronger and better," said Epstein of the Patriots' co-MVP.

Anne Marie Moss, catcher, Thurston: The senior catcher was the "heart and soul" of the Eagles 16-6 season, according to coach Ron Lectka.

"When people were on base, Anne Marie was most dangerous," said the Thurston coach.

Moss' statistics back that up.

She batted .506 after going 3-for-4 in the regional against Monroe St. Mary. Seventeen of her hits went for extra bases, including six homers.

Moss, a two-time All-Tri-River League selection, was the team's RBI leader.

"Just a great attitude and defensively she has an excellent arm," said Lectka. "She's a good all-around player. She played two years for us at shortstop."

Leslie Szaflarski, at-large, Franklin: The senior catcher had a season that could not be overlooked.

She batted .448 (34 for 77) and led the team in RBI with 33. Over the final four games Szaflarski went 7-for-13.

Said coach Joe Epstein of the All-WLAA selection: "Leslie was our leading hitter, the one I could depend on.

"Defensively, people got on base early in the season, but by the time the season was over, nobody was going to steal on her."

Szaflarski, who recently moved to Brighton, was the team's co-MVP along with Allen.

Jenny Kennedy, infielder, Ladywood: The senior third baseman was Ladywood's top performer, making All-Central Division, All-Catholic, All-District and All-Region.

She batted .433 (42 for 97) and collected 28 RBI, 35 runs and 28 stolen bases. She clubbed three homers, four triples and two doubles.

Defensively, Kennedy made only seven errors in 75 chances.

The Ladywood standout carries a 3.2 GPA and will attend Bowling Green of Ohio this fall on a basketball scholarship.

Christina Hoffman, infielder, John Glenn: The senior third baseman has been a consistent starter three seasons with the Rockets.

As a senior, Hoffman batted .463 (32 for 69) and knocked in 23 runs. She smacked six doubles and two homers.

While earning Glenn's offensive award, the all-WLAA selection was a defensive standout as well, making 19 putouts, 33 assists with only three errors.

"She's been very consistent," said Glenn coach Linda Jimenez.

Hines Park has share of lead

Derek Darkowski threw plenty of "dark ones" Friday, tossing a four-hitter as Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury moved into a first-place tie with Little Caesars in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League with a 4-3 victory at Ford Field.

Both teams are 14-4-1 going into the all-star break with nine games left to play. Hines Park leads the season series, 3-2.

Darkowski, a Plymouth Canton High product and starter at Michigan State University, struck out four and walked only one in raising his record to 6-1. All three runs were unearned as left-hander lowered his league-leading earned run average to 1.15.

"Dark' was on top of his game," said Hines Park coach Dave Racer. "He threw a great game for us. He was mixing his pitches very well."

Jim Miller, the Waterford Kettering All-Stater headed for MSU as a quarterback this fall, took the loss for Caesars. He allowed all four runs in 5⅔ innings of work.

Hines Park tallied the winning run in the sixth when Dennis Szczechowski walked, advanced to second on a walk, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a John Bonham's fielders choice.

Szczechowski, Bill Bannon and Mike Culver each had RBI singles for the winners.

Steve Malgay had two hits in a losing cause, while Tim Napier added an RBI.

WALTER'S APPLIANCE (12-7) stayed in the LCBL hunt with a pair of victories over Wendy's.

In a game played Thursday at Ann Arbor Huron, Walter's scored seven times in the top of the seventh to pull out an 11-6 victory.

Rick Rutledge, formerly of Redford Union High and Henry Ford Community College, knocked in the go-ahead run with a ground-rule double.

Rutledge, John Gotts (Redford Catholic Central and Eastern Michigan) and Damien Hall (Henry Ford CC) each collected two hits.

Walter's starter Joe Mackiewicz (Redford CC and Kalamazoo College) entered the game with a 3-0 record, but was rocked for two homers and five runs in two innings.

Reliever Steve Owens came in to slam the door, allowing just one run over the final five innings to even his record at 2-2.

Friday at Ford Field, Randy Buchler (Hillsdale College) worked five innings to pick up the win as Walter's gained a 10-3 triumph.

Buchler (3-2) gave up one run and only two hits, while fanning six.

David Houghtby (Stevenson High and Henry Ford CC) collected two hits to raise his average to .379, while Chris Day (Churchill High) added a pair of doubles.

DUFFY'S PLUMBING fell to 8-8-2 Friday as last place Tom Holzer Ford snapped a 17-game losing streak, earning its first win of the season with a 5-3 triumph at Novi High.

Pitcher Craig Bowman, a Ferris State student, scattered eight hits to pick up the win.

Jim Isso (Adrian College) and Rob Baumgartel (Western Michigan University) combined for all four Tom Holzer hits.

Baumgartel also cut out a runner trying to go from first to third base to end the game.

John Storm, who struck out four in four innings, was the losing pitcher. He was relieved by Joe Jentzer (Clarenceville High and Henry Ford CC).

Joe Lezotte (Redford Union), Mike Siwajek and Steve Michelz each contributed two hits in a losing cause. Mike Kaczmarek (Franklin and Henry Ford CC), Todd Fracassi (Stevenson and Henry Ford CC) and Michelz each knocked in a run.

In a makeup game Thursday at Canton High, Duffy's and Hines-Park battled to an 8-8 draw. Play was halted after seven innings because of darkness.

Joe Delfgauw (RU) belted a three-run homer in the first for Duffy's. Fracassi went 3-for-4, while Siwajek added two hits.

Joel Riggs (Canton High and Siena Heights College) led Hines-Park with three hits in five trips, increasing his team-leading average to .380.

Livonia Cosmos defender Kari Zabell (right) can't stop Julie Thomas of the Plymouth Lightning from scoring a goal in the Wolverine Soccer Tournament.

Cosmos edge Lightning

in the U.S. regional finals this weekend in Omaha, Neb.

"I was glad because the girls needed a rest," McCaul said. "I have only 13 on my panel (team) and was very happy we got the games over with fast. We have a good team and put on a good show. I'm happy to represent the state. The team is very well balanced.

"They're young girls and very easy to coach. They come to play. They're probably the best Under-12 team in Livonia in a long time."

IN A FINAL matching local teams, the Livonia Cosmos edged the Plymouth Lightning, 2-1, to win the Under-16 girls title. Jenny O'Meara's goal in the first of two overtime sessions broke a 1-1 tie. Jennifer Holowka, of Rochester, scored the Cosmos' first goal.

Ten of the 16 Cosmos' players were from Livonia and one, Amy Krajewski, hails from Plymouth. The Cosmos and Lightning played to a scoreless tie Saturday in the tourney's first round, and both teams won their next two games, setting up the final.

Tight games mark initial hockey play

Close games were the norm last week as the Metro Summer Hockey League kicked off a new season.

In four games, only one was decided by more than two goals, and that was a 6-3 victory by the Falcons at the Wayne Community Center. Aaron and Tim Pietila scored one goal and had two assists apiece Thursday as the Falcons defeated the Huskies. Curt Lawson was in the nets for the winners.

On Wednesday at the Plymouth Cultural Center, the Broncos edged the Wolverines 5-3 and the Spartans, in a high-scoring affair, shaved the Bulldogs 10-9.

On the Plymouth ice Tuesday, the outcome couldn't have been any closer as a Rob Waters goal with nine seconds remaining enabled the Wildcats to tie the Lakers 6-6.

Tim Cole scored two goals and Jim Moule also turned in a fine netminding performance Wednesday for the Broncos. Bryan Krygier scored half of the Wildcats' goals Tuesday.

The Spartans were led by Gary Scott, who fired in three goals and assisted on two others, and Mark Issel, who contributed a goal and three assists. The Bulldogs got two goals and one assist from Scott Lock.

Elks best quality opponent

The Canton Elks pulled off an impressive victory with an equally impressive late-inning rally on Thursday, June 29.

The Elks scored four runs in the top of the seventh inning for a 10-9 victory over Ypsilanti II, which took a 6-2 record into the game. Canton, meanwhile, improved to 6-4 in the Little Caesars Connie Mack League.

In the last inning, Sean Branham's two-run single tied the score, and winning pitcher John Anthony knocked in the winning run with a groundout.

Jason Dembny, Jim Frigge and Ron Groh had two hits apiece. Dembny had two RBI and Frigge one.

Anthony boosted his record to a team-leading 4-0. He relieved starter Scott Kennedy in the fifth and pitched two innings, striking out four of the seven batters he faced. Geoff Allen retired the side in the seventh and earned a save.

The Elks split a double-header with Huron Valley on Wednesday, June 28, winning a suspended game 2-1 and being mercied 11-0 in the nightcap.

Craiger stays atop standings

Craiger maintained its hold on first place in the Babe Ruth Baseball Leragiue with an 11-3 victory over the Dairy Queen Express on Wednesday, June 28.

Craiger produced for a 13-hit attack led by Mitch MacDonald, Chris Tomas and Scott Kapla, the winning pitcher.

MacDonald and Tomas had three hits each, Kapla two. On the mound, Kapla scattered six hits and struck out six.

The Express was led by Brad Paskievitch and Todd Pniewski with two hits apiece. Other action saw the Dry Clean Co. squeak by Twist 'N Shake 6-5.

THE FIRST game was stopped because of rain on Monday, June 26, with the teams tied 0-0 after 2½ innings.

Allen, the winning pitcher, scored the winning run in the bottom of the eighth when Huron Valley's Brian Burger uncorked a wild pitch. Allen reached base on an infield error, was sacrificed to second and took third on a single.

Allen pitched the final 4⅓ innings in relief of Scott Kennedy, who struck out eight and scattered three hits in 3⅔ innings. Allen also allowed only three hits.

Aaron Adkins scored Canton's first run on Groh's sacrifice fly, but Huron Valley tied it with a Joe Gibson home run in the sixth. Adkins and Dave Makara had two hits apiece for the Elks.

Chris Kennedy was the starter and loser in the nightcap, having seven runs and seven hits charged to him. Winning pitcher Brad Ryan pitched a two-hitter as Makara and Scott Kennedy had the only Canton hits.

John Finley had two singles and two RBI for Huron Valley, and Craig Kirchner had a double and two RBI.

In assessing early-season performances, Elks coach Mark LaPointe cited Anthony and Allen for their pitching, Dembny for his play at catcher and Groh and Makara for outstanding work in the outfield.

O&E announces golf dates

Women's tourney first on schedule in August

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Same golf course, same ground rules, but the results could not be much more diverse than those provided by the Observer & Eccentric-Whispering Willows golf tournaments.

The women's tournament is a one-day, 18-hole event; one might think competition would remain close in such a short tournament, but three of the last four championship flights have been decided by five strokes or more.

The men's tournament, on the other hand, is a two-day, 36-hole affair, but the margin of victory in the championship flight in the last four has been one stroke — including two by sudden-death playoffs.

The two competitions have traveled different paths in popularity, too. Has golf become more attractive to women? If it has, it doesn't show in the O&E, entries have slid over the last four years, from 36 in 1985 and 38 in 1986 to 35 in 1987 and an all-time low of 22 last year.

WHICH PROMPTED some changes in the womens tourney. Instead of a Saturday playing date, the 89 tournament will be Wednesday, Aug. 23. Should rain interfere, it will be rescheduled for Friday, Aug. 25.

Lunch (a sandwich and a beverage) will also be included in this year's women's tournament.

The men's tournament has had no such problem. There has been a waiting list to play since '85; a shotgun start allowed 189 to play last year.

This year, the men will tee off Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 16-17, with a shotgun start. Since the response has been overwhelming, an early response is urged. Rain dates are a week later, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 23-24.

The 1988 men's tourney ended in dramatic fashion. As a thunderstorm swept toward the course, Jim Hedges of Birmingham outdueled John Smith of Plymouth and John Van Vleck of Farmington Hills on the third playoff hole to claim the title and the first-place prize of a $200 gift certificate.

A SHOWDOWN of similar dimensions was expected in the women's event last August, but it never materialized, even though the previous two champions, Erica Zonder of Farmington Hills and Ann Lauer of Birmingham, were both present.

In 1986, Zonder — then about to begin her junior year at North Farmington and playing her first O&E — folded down the stretch and allowed Lauer to edge her by a single stroke. Zonder avenged her loss in 1987, winning by five shots over runner-up Lauer.

Last year it was Lauer's turn for revenge. She pulled away from Zonder (who has just finished her freshman year at University of Michigan) to win by five strokes.

Other women's winners in 1987 were Betty Smith of Plymouth in first flight and Pamela Hirst of Farmington Hills in second. For the men, 1988 flight winners were Jeff Truax of Livonia in first; Dennis Drobicki of Livonia in second; and Jim Rozek in third.

Entry deadline for the women is 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 16. Entries for the men close at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, with a cutoff at 200.

Men's 36-hole medal play: Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 16-17. Entry fee is $48. Handicap maximum is 36.

Entries close at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9. Shotgun start on Saturday, Sunday mornings. For pairings and starting times, call 476-4493 after noon Thursday, Sept. 14. Rain make-up dates are Sept. 23-24. Tourney open to first 200 entries.

Hoffman recently moved to Grand Rapids and plans to play basketball at a nearby junior college.

Ann Mundinger, infielder, Salem: A four-year starter and making her second appearance on the first team is the Plymouth Salem senior, who is bound next year on scholarship to Western Michigan University.

As a senior, Mundinger batted .387 (29 for 75) with 22 RBI, 24 runs scord and one homer. The All-WLAA selection also collected seven doubles.

In her four years at Salem, Mundinger never struck out.

"She plays shortstop like nobody in this area does," said one rival coach. "If you're going to start a team, you start with her."

Stacey Thompson, at-large, Canton: The junior pitcher did it all for the much-improved Chiefs.

She finished with an 18-6 record with 85 strikeouts in 150 innings of work. She gave up 23 earned runs and 77 walks.

Offensively, Thompson was a one-woman demolition squad, hitting .443 (35 for 79) with 33 RBI and three homers. She also stole 10 bases.

all-area softball

Thompson was also named to the All-WLAA first-team as an at-large pick.

"She hits about as well as anybody in this area," said one rival coach.

Melissa Tisdale, outfielder, Farmington: It wasn't a banner season for Farmington, but it was for one Falcon.

Tisdale, making her second straight appearance on the All-Area team, was the team's leader in just about every offensive category including batting average (.431), hits (28), doubles (7), triples (6), RBI (23) and runs (22).

She played some third base but was most effective in the outfield.

The two-time Falcon MVP will be missed by coach Rich Roy.

"Melissa is as good as anybody I saw," said the Farmington coach. "She has a terrific arm and made some great catches this season that other coaches in the area can attest to.

"She's a four-year starter and she'll be hard to replace."

Kim Reith, outfielder, Garden City: The senior center fielder was a three-year starter.

En route to All-Northwest Suburban League honors, Reith batted .402 (35 for 87) with 25 RBI, 27 runs scored and seven triples.

She was also second on the team in stolen bases with 11.

"Kim started slowly the first third of the season, but once she caught on, I'd say the last half of the season she hit over .500," said GC coach Barry Patterson. "Defensively she's as good as anybody I've seen this year.

"She has a good throwing arm and good range.

Reith made 19 putouts, eight assists and committed only two errors.

Kerry Sayers, outfielder, Mercy: Started off as the Marlins' shortstop, but went back to the outfield.

Despite a broken hand, which hampered her all season, Sayers, a two-time All-Observer pick, made only three errors with 24 putouts.

Offensively, Sayers batted .381 (38 for 97) with 16 RBI and 21 runs scored.

She was a catalyst all season for the Marlins and a steady performer in the outfield, according to coach Suzanne Brown.

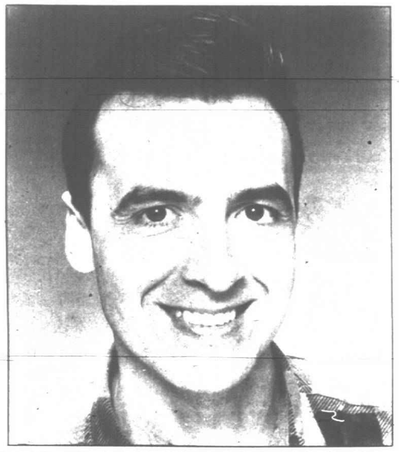
Happiness is

Actor's role intact with renewal of 'Midnight Caller'

By Victor Swanson
special writer



James King, who is originally from Livonia, returns to television this fall for a second season as Sgt. Ontine, sidekick to Lt. Zymak, on "Midnight Caller."

WHEN NBC-TV announced its fall prime-time schedule for the 1989-90 season, it was good news — great news, really, — for former Livonia resident, actor James King.

The network renewed "Midnight Caller," for Tuesdays at 10 p.m., the series on which King is a semi-regular, playing a police officer named Sgt. Ontine.

"What I like about it ('Midnight Caller') is that it's a crime drama, but there's never any gunplay — rarely," King said during a recent interview at his sister Peggy's home in Dearborn. "I think they did one episode where there was some hostages in a bank, so they had a shoot-out. But there's no car chases or any of that other stuff."

King had come back to Michigan for Peggy's wedding. He has 12 brothers and sisters, one of whom is Steve King of Steve King and the Dittlles, a band doing well in the Detroit area.

"MIDNIGHT CALLER" is the first television series King has ever worked on. Shooting for the new season begins in July, which is customary for prime-time series. How did he get the job?

"The casting director called me and asked me if I would be available to play a character, Sgt. Ontine, who was an inept police officer, a rookie, the sidekick of one of the regulars (Arthur Taxler's character, Lt. Zymak). They said it would be a comic-relief-type thing, where I would be the goof-up.' "

King, whose "favorite TV cop of all time is Barney Fife," recalled, "I jumped at the opportunity." Not long after, King showed up at the studio.

"I got the script, and looked through the script, checking for my scenes, and there would be like three different scenes where I'd get something to say or do, so I was really happy. I called my family and told them and everything. And so I got a revision. I was down to one scene. And so I got to the set. We did the scene. And by the time they got the final edit, I had half a line left."

For King, having his first scenes cut wasn't too unfortunate, especially since he became a semi-regular and got to work on more episodes.

KING MENTIONED that his wife, Victoria Skerritt (whose uncle is actor Tom Skerritt), wasn't so fortunate. She worked on one episode in which Joe Spano appeared, and her scene was completely cut out before the episode was shown.

About the series, which is set mostly at night, King stated flatly, "I think it really needs a little lightness. They've all been very hard." He added, "And hopefully over this rerun period, they've looked at the shows again and they'll decide it needs a little more lightness and then I'll get more things to say and do."

On working with Taxler (who was a regular on "Hill Street Blues," as was Spano), King noted, "He's a veteran, so I stick close to him and really watch him. He's another actor who really wants to be the best that he can. He will consult with the director or any of the other technicians when he feels like he can make something better."

As with most series, "Midnight Caller" usually has a different director every week. Last season, though, a couple of directors worked on several shows.

One of the directors King worked with was Eric Laneuville (who played Luther and directed a number of episodes of "St. Elsewhere," a show from the same production people as "Hill Street Blues").

"He's very good. He's very, very efficient. Great guy to work with. Never gets upset. Just always, everything's really mellow. Because he's an actor, he knows how to work with actors."

ANOTHER DIRECTOR King admires — though not one who worked on "Midnight Caller" last season — is William Dear, who directed the movie "Harry and the Hendersons." The film starring John Lithgow was King's first movie. On that set, King and Dear hit it off well, and today they are co-writing a comedy-adventure, a script that is already under development at Universal Studios.

"Rewrite is the name of the game (in Hollywood)," King said. He hopes to hear soon what is the latest status of what, for now, is titled "The Jimi King Project." "Every studio executive you talk to has a different idea of what they want it to be, so they say, 'Rewrite it!' "

Currently, King and his wife (who have been married about three years), live in the San Francisco Bay area, which they love. King said, "You can drive a few miles and be out in the country. Whereas, we went to L.A. It's like the traffic and air. You feel like you can drive for hours and you're still in the city."

King thinks it might be necessary to move to Los Angeles to complete the script. This would dissapoint him and his wife not only because of having to leave the bay but also because of having to quit operating a summer, performing-arts day camp for children, which they have run for several years at a YMCA in Berkeley.

This summer, the Kings will have two four-week camp sessions, each with about 50 children. "My wife and I write the shows. And at the end of the four-week session, then the kids act it out, and all their parents and grandparents come. We don't give them anything really difficult, but we do like them to stretch and make it a challenge."

He also conducts a regular story hour at three different bookstores in the bay area.

THINKING ABOUT how such musclemen as Stallone and Schwarzenegger have become big box-office names, King had this advice for aspiring actors: "Forget acting," he said with a laugh. "Join a gymnasium." He fell back in his chair and laughed even more. "Work out."

He was serious when he said, "It's (acting) a long, slow process. But I figure I'm in it for the long run. And hopefully, 10 or 15 years from now, I'd like to be in a situation where I can actually have more creative control than I do now."

'What I like about it ('Midnight Caller') is that it's a crime drama, but there's never any gunplay — rarely.'

Venus, Mars/l set to 'meet'

skywatch

Raymond E. Bullock

The moon is at First Quarter Phase at 8:19 p.m. on the 10th. The moon is one-quarter of its way around the earth. The bright star above and to the left of the moon is Spica (SPY ca) in Virgo. Where do you think the moon will be located, with respect to Spica, on the next night.

Venus is in conjunction with Mars on the evening of the 11th. Mars is 0.6 degrees to the lower left of Venus. Binoculars will give the best view of the conjunction. The last "meeting" between Venus and Mars was in August 1987. The next conjunction will be June 23, 1991. Astrologers (those who believe the stars and planets govern human life) will probably try to find some kind of significance to the meeting between planets named for the goddess of love and the god of war. To astronomers (those who study the stars and planets), the grouping is attractive to observe but not especially significant.

The moon is in Scorpius on the 14th. The star to the left of the moon is Antares (an TAR ees), the "heart" of the scorpion. The moon continues to move through Scorpius on the 15th.

ON THE 16TH the moon is in Sagittarius. The star above and to the left of the moon is Saturn. The beautiful rings of Saturn can be ssen in even a small telescope. Because Saturn has just passed opposition, it is fairly close (a mere 750,000,000 miles or so). That means it is also at its brightest. The light it reflects from the sun doesn't have to travel as far to reach us as it does when Saturn is at its greatest distance from us.

Mercury is at superior conjunction with the sun on July 18. It is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth, and is not visible.

Full moon is at 1:42 p.m. on the 18th. The moon is opposite the sun, as seen from the earth. It will rise and set just as Saturn did, with respect to the position of the sun, when it was at opposition. In fact, the Full Moon could probably be called a lunar opposition.

Venus is located nearly midway between Mars and Regulus on the evening of the 19th. In just four days Venus will be passing twice as far from Regulus as it passed Mars.

On July 22 Venus is directly to the left of Regulus. On the next night, Venus is 1.1 degrees above Regulus.

The moon is at Last Quarter Phase at 9:31 a.m. on July 25. It is beginning the last quarter of its orbit around the earth.

ON THE MORNING of the 27th, the moon forms a very close grouping with the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster. Looking like a tiny "dipper," the Pleiades marks the "shoulder" of Taurus. The grouping between the moon and the Pleiades will be a beautiful sight in binoculars. People observing from the west coast will be able to watch as the moon occults (covers) some of the stars as it passes in front of the cluster.

There will be a weak meteor shower on the morning of July 28. This is called the Delta Aquarid (a QUAIR id) shower, so named because the "falling stars" appear to radiate from the constellation of Aquarius. Binoculars will not help you observe meteors. The best way is to relax in a chair, use your naked eye and be very patient. An average of only 20 meteors per hour can be expected to be seen. Aquarius will be due south at 5 a.m. (A more impressive shower will occur next month.)

The waning crescent moon is 5 degrees above Jupiter on the morning of the 29th. Notice how much higher in the sky Jupiter is, compared to where it was at the start of the month.

Raymond Bullock is the former coordinator of the planetarium and observatory at the Cranbrook Institute of Science. He now works for Image Engineering Corp., a company that specializes in laser displays and effects.

Fluxus

Breaking the barriers to artistic freedom

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

THREE THINGS TO do this year
Go to the Fluxus exhibit at Cranbrook
Take the catalog home to read
Finish the catalog and go back again.

These four lines would look more like Fluxus art if they were handwritten along the edges of typed sheets of paper. This kind of casual, informal approach to art was part of the movement which began in the 1960s and directly affected much of the art we see and hear today.

Only Fluxus art, cryptic edge-of-the-page instructions say things such as "try to grow mushrooms on this page," "read this page aloud to your family on Thanksgiving Day" or "think of five interesting things to do with the next five pages."

"Fluxus Selections from the Gilbert and Lila Silverman Collection," organized by The Museum of Modern Art and now at the Cranbrook Museum through Oct. 6, is at the very least bewildering; at the very most compelling and enlightening.

JON HENDRICKS, curator of the Silverman collection who organized it along with Clive Phillpot, director of the MOMA Library, was here to install the exhibit. He said, "The movement started in 1961. Few people realized something important was going on, but it was very ephemeral, very fragile."

The name was chosen by George Maciunas, a New York-based small publisher who intended to put out a quarterly by that name. That quarterly, Phillpot says in the catalog, "might have provided a very interesting overview of a culture in flux."

While Maciunas was plagued with money problems and poor health and couldn't carry out all of his plans, his leadership did foster events and happenings in many parts of the world that would effect change.

He explained in his "Manifesto" and letters to friends how Fluxus would "purge the world of dead art . . . abstract art, (and) illusionistic art . . ." In its place would come concrete art such as the ready-made objects of Marcel Duchamp. the ready-made sounds of John Cage and the ready-made actions of George Brecht and Ben Vautier.

Fluxus, he said, was against the art object and the artist who sold it and made a livelihood . . . "against the artificial separation of a performer from audience, or creator and spectator, or life and art . . ."

What then did these artists stand for, this group which, in addition to Brecht and Vautier included Yoko Ono, Nam June Paik, Henry Flynt, Daniel Spoerri and La Monte Young and s host of other free spirits?

They wanted to replace art with functionalism, to rid all forms of art of illusion, to reestablish totally natural sights and sounds and to get everyone involved. That might mean kicking the piano on its underside rather than manipulating the keys into waltz form or considering a rotten tomato at leisure rather a painting of a perfect one.

EVEN NOW, YEARS AFTER, some of minimalist happenings seem outrageous — concerts where the same chord was held for hours; the Fluxfest advertising "12! Big Names!" which treated the audience to 12 names flashed on a large screen; and four performers putting on masks in front of an audience and remaining perfectly still until the audience laughed.

Yet many of the Fluxus publications — books, posters, music, instructional sheets with graphics — strange and minimalist as most of them are, remain aesthetically pleasing. They stand impressively as functional art within the context of the philosophy of the movement.

Some of the plans for festivals such as the one for Wiesbaden, Germany, included in the catalog, show how comprehensive Maciuness and company intended it to be.

His plans for publications and happenings, whether or not they ever materialized, are in themselves works of art of historical significance. Many of the concerts and happenings are documented on tape and film, and in Europe they often drew huge crowds — testimony to a hunger for change and new thinking.

The movement is generally dated at 1961-1978, a few feel is is still going on.

Hendricks said, "Fluxus ended 10 years ago. It had a need for being. Maybe it has a need for being now, but it would carry with it all the baggage from before."

Fluxus didn't rid the world of object-art or artists who make their living creating same and that's probably just as well. What they did do was open the way for acceptance and enjoyment for many, more forms and shapes of artistic expression and experience.

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday.

Jon Hendricks, curator of the Silverman Fluxus collection, is one of the main reasons why it is extant and is becoming a significant part of contemporary art history.

Collector remembered blue

Gilbert and Lila Silverman's Fluxus collection came into being through a strange series of coincidences and a fine collector's eye.

Silverman, a Southfield resident and well-known builder/developer, said, "As you know, I have an interest in way-out or avant garde art. In 1970, I bought a painting in Tokyo by Geoffrey Hendricks, 'Sky and Two Pair of Pants' with a very unusual blue."

Then, eight years later when he was walking the streets of the Soho district of New York City, he spotted a street vendor selling plastic and painted bags of the same blue."I want up to him and said 'Those bags have got to be by Geoffrey Hendricks' and he said yes."

Silverman said he bought out the whole show. The vendor was Brian Buczyk, "a very good artist," who grew up in Detroit and died last year.

The traveling exhibition is a way of broadening knowledge about this elusive but important art movement.

— Gilbert Silverman

From Buczk, he found out that Geoffrey's brother, Jon, ran a small gallery next door. He met the artist who told Silverman the bags were being sold ($2 each) to raise money for a medical fund for a George Maciunas.

Silverman said the bags "were very interesting — like Dada — but I couldn't afford Dada." He found Jon Hendricks was selling Fluxus art "and I started buying.I told myself, I'm in on the ground floor. I could end up with the biggest collection in the world." And he did.

The traveling exhibition is a way of broadening knowledge about this elusive, but important art movement. Silverman said people will say they are aware of Fluxus, but admit they really don't know what it is.

He said he and his wife have enjoyed collecting it, they particularly like the idea of the traveling exhibition which helps people understand what it's all about.

"Violin in Bird Cage" by Joe Jones, 1965 was made by the artist for a special Fluxus event. The metal bird cage contains a plastic violin, battery, motor and equipment to create a sound from the strings, albeit not as sweet as Isaac Stern.

Scanga comes with color

Strong color and design are very much a part of the works by Italo Scanga through July at Susanne Hilberry Gallery, 555 S. Woodward, Birmingham. The multi-talented artist, who once lived and worked in the family business in Garden City, recently received two awards from his alma mater, Michigan State University. One was the 1989 Distinguished Alumni Award. A book on the artist, published in Italy, will soon be available at the gallery. Shown at immediate left is a painted wood head done about two years ago. The other is earlier. Also in the gallery are a large group of small monoprints and large paintings. Hours are 11 a.m to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

The original negative is long gone, but Monte Nagler was able to borrow a print from his sister, Barbara, (pictured here with Monte more than 45 years ago), so he could make his own copy of a treasured moment of sibling harmony.

Making copies of old photographs

Have you ever visited that special family relative, sat down with the photo album, looked at forgotten pictures of yourself as a toddler and wished you could have copies for your very own? But, alas, the negatives have long since vanished and you ask how you ever going to get copies?

Well, don't give up hope. It's easier than you think to obtain copies of those treasured family shots. And best of all, you can do it yourself.

For starters, you'll need a tripod or copy stand to keep your camera rock-steady. A copy stand is a simple device consisting of a flat baseboard, a vertical shaft and an adjustable horizontal support on which to mount your camera. The camera aims straight down on the baseboard where you place the photograph to be copied.

If using a tripod, carefully tape the picture you're going to copy to a wall and move in close with your camera.

You'll need close-up filters, a macro lens or any other means you have to move in close and fill the frame with the image you are copying. This is very important to maintain a quality reproduction.

I PREFER using inexpensive tungston lights bounced into reflecting umbrellas for a soft, even light source. But it will have a noticeable effect with color film. If shooting by windowlight, use a daylight balanced film. If shooting in a tungsten-lit room, use an indoor balanced film.

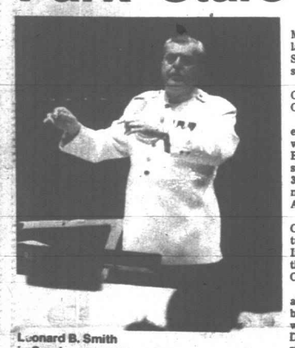
And speaking about films, I recommend T-Max 100 for black and white and either Kodacolor 100 (for prints under daylight) or Kodachrome 64 (for slides under daylight). For color copies with tungsten light, Ektachrome 50 can't be beat.

Pay particular attention to any glare reflected off the photo you are copying. Most often, a slight adjustment in the lights or a repositioning of the picture to be copied will do the trick.

When using black and white or color negative film for copy work, one exposure is all you should need. When using slide film, it is wise to bracket exposures. That is, take three shots in total; one at your camera's meter reading, a second at one stop over and a third at one stop under.

There you have it. You'll find it fun, easy, and satisfying to make copies of those memorable and valuable family photographs. It's a real snap.

Park 'Stars' series opens



Leonard B. Smith in Sunday concert

After a rousing start featuring the Max Davey Singers and Orchestra last week, Livonia's Music Under the Stars summer program is in full swing.

Site of the weekly programs is Civic Center Park in the Livonia City Hall complex area.

And Sunday's event promises to be every bit as lively as the opener when the famed Detroit Concert Band holds court on the City Hall steps. That concert will take place at 3 p.m. and is an "extra" on the summer lineup presented by the Livonia Arts Commission.

Co-sponsored by the Ford Motor Co., the concert, of course, will feature Leonard Smith as band director. In the event of inclement weather, the concert will be switched to Churchill High School.

After the Detroit Concert Band appearance, the concerts will switch back to the Thursday night schedule with the big band sound of the Bob DuRant group taking over the bandstand on Thursday, July 13.

THE THURSDAY, JULY 20 concert promises to be an outstanding night as the Livonia Symphony takes over, followed the following Wednesday, July 26 by the special appearance of the Belgian Youth Brass band, "Kempish Jeugdfanfa Orkest." In the case of rain, the concert will be held in the Madonna College activities building.

The next two musical events, Thursdays, Aug. 3 and 10 will be performed in the pastoral setting of historic Wilson Barn, Middlebelt and West Chicago roads. Featured will be the New McKinney Cotton Pickers and Tom Saunders' Surf Side Six dixielanders.

Final two concerts of the season will take concert-goers back to the city hall site to hear the Hamtramck Concert Band and a program of ethnic music on Thursday, Aug. 17 and again Thursday, Aug. 24 for the Renaissance Chorus barbershop chorus.

All the concerts start at 7:30 p.m. and run to 9 p.m. They are open to the public.

Mike Cortis of Farmington Hills is the first person to sign the giant card the Sokol Czechoslovakin Cultural group hopes to cover with a record number of names and mail to the new U.S. ambassador Shirley Temple Black. Adding authenticity in native garb are Cortis' parents, Walter and Marilyn of Livonia. The card will be at the Czech ethnic festival this weekend in Wyandotte where all the Cortises will be helping out.

Giant welcome

Czech community welcomes ambassador

It has all the earmarks of a Hollywood production, but it's really an attempt to break into the Guiness Book of World Records.

That's what members of Sokol, Detroit, the Czechoslovakian Cultural Center, have in mind in publicly acclaiming former child movie star Shirley Temple Black as the newly appointed U.S. ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

Led by former Livonian Mike Cortis, who now lives in Farmington Hills, the center has come up with the idea of a giant 8-by-8-foot congratulatory card they will have on display at the group's annual ethnic festival in Wyandotte's Yack Arena this weekend, July 7-9.

Everyone stopping by will be asked to sign the card, which bears a computer likeness of the star.

"At the end of the festival, we'll put the world's largest card with the most signatures on a card (we hope) in the world's largest envelope and mail it to Shirley in Washington," said Cortis, with fingers crossed behind his back.

Pen and ink: interesting sidelights

artifacts
David Messing

What makes a good pen and ink drawing? I'm sure there are as many answers as there are artists. But to me a good pen and ink drawing should have a full range of grays, black blacks and white whites. It should also have a variety of line lengths, line widths and line direction. Perhaps pointalism here and there, all adding variety and interest.

And interest of viewers is what most artists crave. There is no one out there who can tell me he resents an "oooh" or "aaah" when his works are being viewed. It is twice as nice when you create your piece to express yourself, not caring if anyone approves, and still find approval. What a blessing it is to be an artist.

You look and study everything around you, where others only see their surroundings. You as an artist can express a feeling, and that expression will outlive yourself. Others ventilate their feelings in conversation which perhaps is soon forgotten. You as an artist have an ability, and though you have refined it and nurtured it, still it is a gift of God.

YOU AS AN ARTIST have the choice to use the gift, or not to use it. for example: you as an artist may choose to be an electrician, but an electrician cannot choose to be an artist. If you feel you have even the slightest amount of ability, it is your choice to pick it up or lay it aside. Even if you pick it up later in life, it's nice to know it's there.

We have a waiting list for most of my art classes but the classes which rarely have openings are all the adult classes. Many of those students have said, "I haven't drawn for 20 years," and they are thrilled with what they can produce.

To begin with, it is best to draw from pen and ink drawings. It is especially difficult to do pen and ink from photos. Pick subjects with lines on them like wood barns and shacks, trees, furry animals and etc.

Action figures in comics and magazines have given many young artists a head start in pen and ink drawings, because interest develops ability at a more rapid rate than instruction. Aside from the problems that the human figures pose, I notice in my classes the teenagers do very well in the media. A teenager with some good pen and ink drawings in his or her portfolio can land a good full or part time job.

PEN AND INK plays a major role in commercial art. Many young artists have an idealistic dream of doing art shows and selling paintings to make a living. I have never desired to be a "starving artist." There is certainly no need to.

Of course, I love to sell my paintings and drawings, but in between those sales I make a regular income by designing symbols and logos for businesses, cartooning, signs, illustrating, camera-ready artwork etc. All are in some way related to pen and ink.

Materials are not important to begin with. Any smooth white paper will do, a fine felt-tip pen, a pencil and an eraser. As you improve you should try other materials. A quill pen tip is my favorite for cartooning, it tends to flood the paper anytime you momentarily stop. This causes tears of frustration to new artists, but if you stick with them you can enjoy the varied line widths and fluid lines they produce.

Their drawback is that you constantly have to keep dipping the pen into an open bottle of ink. Also an open bottle of ink has a way of getting knocked off the table. I'm still apologizing to Mom about her white curtains and the carpet in the dining room.

Now about the ink. Pelican has been my favorite for years, but the Higgins Company has come out with Black Magic, and it has my vote. Black Magic is very, very black. It is terrific in a brush and fantastic in a quill pen. Also very free flowing in a technical pen. The only problem you face with good pen, ink and paper is that you have no excuses. But then again maybe you don't need excuses.

Dave Messing has been an area art teacher for many years. He is also the owner of the Art Store & More in Livonia.

Festival winners announced

A "buying crowd" is the best reward, but cash awards for an outstanding display/craftsmanship isn't hard to take either.

That's what the various winners of the recent Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission at Greenmead in Livonia found out.

Winners were: pottery: first, Larry and Becky Rotter of Sodus; second, Beverly Pew of Drayton Plains; glass: first, Tom McEwen, Muskegon; second, Scott and Judy Cunningham, Plymouth; metal/jewelry: first, Nancy Dorfman, Farmington Hills; second, Brad Benson, Grant; fine arts: first, Theresa Politowicz, Northville; P. Hatala and R. Boitos, Farmington.

Wood: first, Jack Stiles, Manchester; second, Wayne Otto, Livonia; textiles: first, Janet Pray, West Bloomfield; second, Sandra Rooney, Mount Clemens; folk/country/floral: first, Jeanne Fitzgerald, Battle Creek; second, Keith Rife, Paw Paw.

First-place winners received a ribbon and $300. Second-place winners received a ribbon and $100.

Despite a chilly start Saturday, weather conditions for the annual festival were ideal and drew record crowds, an arts commission spokesman said.

briefly speaking

To me, plants and cut flowers are as essential in the home as doors and windows.

For just a few dollars fresh cut flowers are available at your neighborhood supermarket. A bunch of daffodils in a vase, when there is still snow on the ground, is a wonderful thing to see. It sends the message that spring is just ahead.

Whenever a large bowl of flowers or a large plant is placed, a focal point is created. Whatever the cost or the scale, flowers in a home should be primarily welcoming and secondly, a clear statement of personal style.

Odd angles and curious recesses that are too small for any human purpose can be filled with plants or flowers.

Large plants can serve as building blocks — separating one activity area from another. Placing plants around and in front of a windowsill brings the greenery of outdoors into the interior and intimates a pleasant landscape outdoors where none exists.

The cost of a plant or flower is irrelevant to its inherent beauty. A great deal of money can be spent on an ugly plant or flower arrangement or very little on a lovely one.

A centerpiece for parties or everyday pleasure can be a wicker basket or brass bowl filled with a variety of African violets.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And--luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."

Aldingbrooke—West Bloomfield's premier rental community—has always attracted its own special flock.
Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families.
Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community.
Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages.
All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month.
Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke.
It is indeed rare and beautiful.

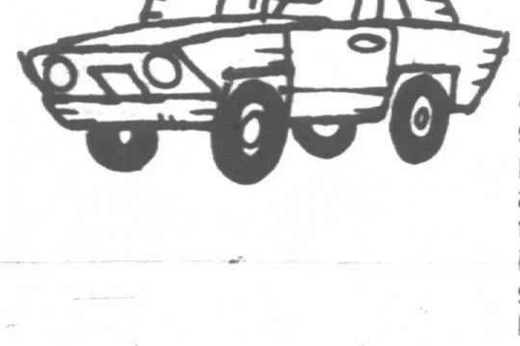
WRITE IT AND REAP!

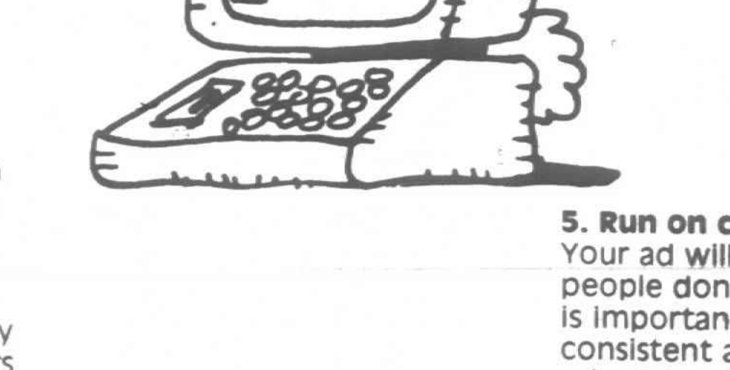
1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

That's why, at the Michigan Group, you are paid the maximum portion of the commissions for which you work so hard. The day you join us, you are on a 50-50 split with the company, until you earn $14,900.00. After that, until the end of your contract year, you keep 100% OF EVERY COMMISSION YOU EARN, minus $25 for our Legal Defense Fund. Unbelievable, but it's true.
