Anderson, Artley were top spenders

By Susan Buck
staff writer

The two top vote-getters in the June Plymouth-Canton school board election, David Artley and Robert Anderson, each listed more than $5,000 in total expenditures, making it one of the most expensive school board races in the school district's history.

Artley, who expected to spend more than $5,000 on his campaign, placed first in every precinct. A planner and fund-raiser, Artley received 6,168 votes and was elected to a four-year term.

"All the donations were important," said Artley. "There was a whole lot at stake in this election. I feel good that I got that kind of support. . . ."

Four years ago when he ran for election, Artley said, he spent less than $500.

This year he beat six other candidates.

Robert J. Anderson, a financial planner backed by the Citizens for Better Education, a group of Christian conservatives opposed to the use of certain teaching materials in the district, came in a distant second. Anderson won 3,166 votes.

Artley listed $6,173.75 in total receipts; $5,507.37 in total expenditures and $261.53 in total in-kind contributions. No debts and obligations were recorded.

Among Artley's largest contributors were: Dean Swartzwelter, $500; Dave Denski, $400; J.A. Block, $200; Ray Buckman, $190; Carol Rundio, $172; Jim Jabara, $100; Clarence DuCharme, $100; and Sheryl Koury, $117.53.

Political Action Committee donations were: 2-A PAC Plymouth-Canton (Mary Ann Freydl), $200; Farmington Coordinating Council PAC/MEA/NEA, $200; School Community Organization to Promote Education, Livonia-Northville (James S. Carlson), $200; Ray Buckman, $190; Carol Rundio, $172; Prescott PAC (Tom Tyblinka), $150; Sheryl Koury, $117.53; Clarence DuCharme, $100; S.O. PAC S.Lyon (David Stafford) $100; 2-D Political Action Committee (Robert Spenke), $100; and Avondale-Rochester PAC (Thomas Fette) $50, South Oakland PAC, $50, and Pontiac Council (Lee Longfield) $25.

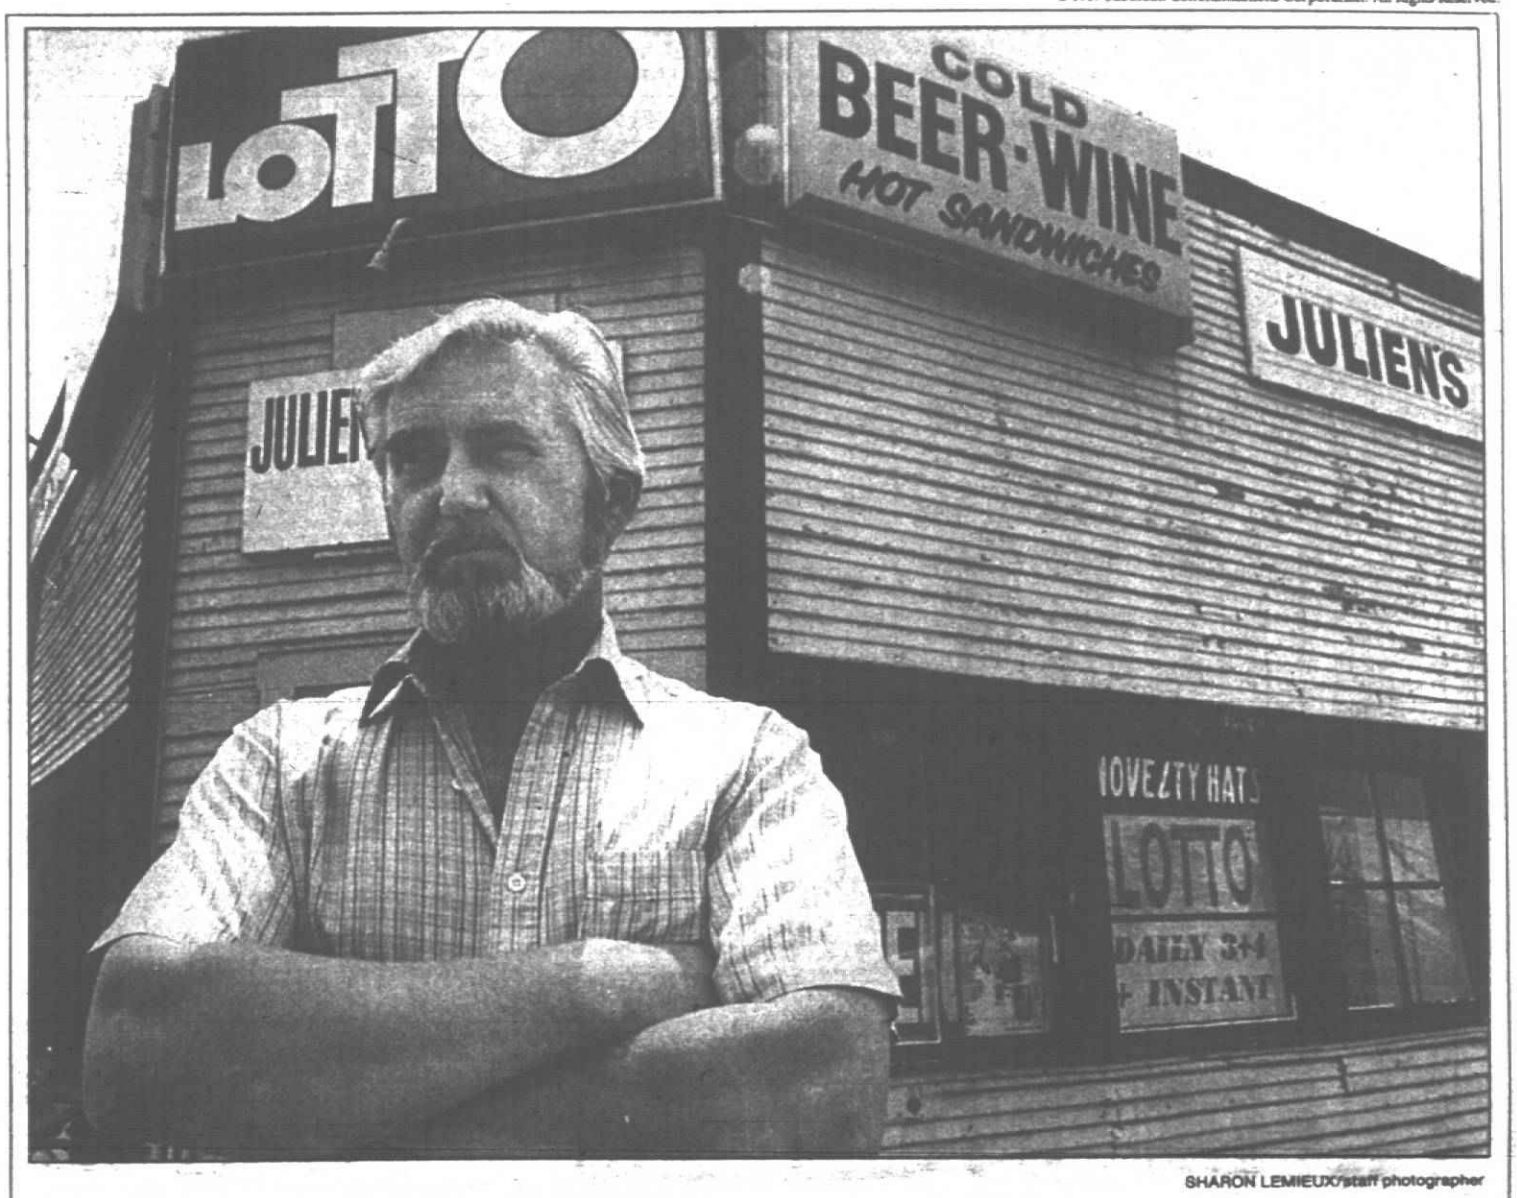

An open house was held at Sheryl and Michael Koury's residence.

Anderson listed $5,458.37 in total receipts; $5,340.87 in total expenditures and zero in-kind contributions. He recorded $2,000 in debts and obligations.

That was generated from two separate $1,000 loans on June 6 and June 14 from Diane Daskalakis, who heads CBE. The group claims the school district encourages devil worship and shows R-rated movies. Daskalakis made a direct $500 contribution on April 22, according to election records.

Anderson also benefitted from a garage sale held at Daskalakis' residence on June 5 that raised $624.12 and flower sales on May 11 that netted $1,743.25. The rest of the contributions came from small cash donations.

Other candidates filed a reporting waiver because they received or spent less than $1,000.

Store helps Canton retain rustic image

Canton at the crossroads

Bob Julien, 48, holds his hand two feet off the ground to show how tall he was when the family bought the Canton landmark store at Ford and Canton Center roads.

It was 1943 and his dad, James, paid $8,500.

"And now the taxes (yearly) are that much," said Bob Julien, a Westland resident.

IT'S HARD to explain why his store is usually busy. You can't call it a convenience store, because the aisles are narrow and cluttered. And there's a bigger selection across the street at Meijer.

But then you can't buy the friendly, almost country atmosphere, Julien is offering.

Authority will take over district court

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Everything is in order for the city of Plymouth to be replaced as the sole leasee of the 35th District Court.

And the 35th District Court Authority will take its place.

Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township — all served by the court — will have total control of the building after all debts are paid in an expected 16 years.

THE NEXT STEP is for the city of Plymouth to sign off the lease, which is expected within three weeks, said Judge James Garber.

The city has served as the leasee of the court building at 660 Plymouth Road in Plymouth for the eight years the court has been in operation at the site.

"As far as the operation of the court on a day-to-day basis, the effect is no effect," Garber said.

"There will be a significant effect on the future of the land, the building and that kind of thing," he added.

The five communities recently agreed to creating the 35th District Court Authority, which will include one member from each community and will handle all business operations for the court.

The agreement requires that the communities be responsible for the lease payments needed to retire the bonds previously held by the city of Plymouth.

An authority, like the one recently adopted, was considered in 1979 when thoughts of constructing the court building surfaced.

"The decision was not to do it because we really didn't know if the court would be in the red or black," said Garber, adding that if it did become self-supporting an authority would be adopted.

THAT TIME has come.

Last year the court generated $2.2 million, and this year it is expected the court will generate up to $2.5 million, Garber said.

Costs to run the court are $1.5 million. Most of the difference between costs and revenues is returned to the communities.

"Last year we returned about $800,000 to the communities," said Garber. "I would guess this year it would be about the $800,000 range."

The extra money is generated from an increase in the number of cases.

Last year the average caseload statewide for district judges was 11,200 and in 35th District Court the two judges saw about 17,500 each. In the past five years, the number of cases the local court adjudicated increased 55 percent.

"We're starting to build the slightest backload," said Garber, adding that the figure is still manageable.

"But if it continues to grow, a year from now and two years from now, we will have a backload," Garber said.

The court advisory board agreed to add a third judge on July 18. Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen and Plymouth attorney Ron Lowe abstained from the vote. It is rumored that both are seeking that post.

Approval from the state legislature is needed before the third judge will be added. Most of the salaries for district court judges are paid by the state.

Teacher was 'outstanding and dedicated'

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Susan Roberts Moore, a 33-year-old Plymouth-Canton Schools teacher, died Saturday from an illness that was discovered during the delivery of her last child 7½ months ago.

Moore, of Farmington Hills, died of non-Hodgkins lymphoma, diagnosed November 1988 while she gave birth to Robert, now 7 months. Her lung collapsed and it was discovered she had a large tumor, said Cheryl Johnson, Moore's supervisor in the district's talented and gifted program at East Middle School, where Moore last taught.

"She was an outstanding and dedicated teacher," Johnson said. "And one of the original teachers who started the talented and gifted program."

HER ABILITIES were even seen by people who didn't know her, Johnson said during a eulogy before family and friends, including former students and their parents.

Johnson said she liked to take visitors through Moore's classroom to show how TAG worked. One visitor asked what the secret of the success was. Johnson recalled saying a lot of it had to do with the teacher. The visitor said he didn't have any teachers quite like Moore, Johnson said.

Her husband Jeffrey Moore, described her as "very valiant," and "an extremely great mother of her two children."

"She was a very optimistic person who woke up with a smile on her face and went to bed with a smile on her face and that was true with the way she went about things," Moore said.

"She was just a real vivacious young person with a real mature head, said Tom Workman, East Middle School principal.

Moore was described as 'very valiant' and 'an extremely great mother of her two children' by her husband, Jeffrey Moore.

"She set rather clear goals for herself and worked to achieve those goals," Workman said. "She would have been successful in any teaching job, because she was a natural teacher."

Besides her assignment at East Middle School, she worked for two years in the Jenison Public Schools, according to Dick Egli, Plymouth-Canton school spokesman.

Moore taught at Miller Elementary School as well as Field and Bird elementary schools, Egli said.

Matthew Wood

Matthew, a ninth grader at Pioneer Middle School, has been named Carrier of the Month for July by the Canton Observer.

Matthew, 14, is the son of Dale and Jane Wood.

His favorite subjects in school are science and math. His hobbies are stamp collecting, rockets, radio controlled cars and models. His most outstanding achievement was a Presidential Academic Fitness Award and a Band Director Award.

He plans on attending college.

He said he likes his paper route because his customers are friendly and the route can be done in a reasonable amount of time.

The route taught him to deal with people. He said other young people could benefit from a route because it would teach them to be responsible and to get the job done when it needs to be done.

Police investigate fondling incident

A woman told Canton police that a man fondled her child while the little girl sat in her lap during a movie at Canton Cinema 6 July 16.

The woman said she was with her son and daughter, 7, watching "Batman" when she noticed someone standing in the front of the theater, walk toward the rear and open the door.

A man, about 30, sat next to the girl, the mother told police.

She told police she was uneasy about the man, and she placed her daughter on her lap. After a few minutes she felt a hand touching her daughter, and she grabbed the man's hand and asked what he was doing.

He ran out of the theater.

GUN WIELDER: A 27-year-old man driving west on Michigan Avenue at 8:45 p.m. July 15 reported that a Ford Astrostar pulled up next to him and two men were in the front seat pointing a black pistol at him.

The vehicle passed his car and turned right on Geddes. The driver followed the two men and got a license plate number.

BOLD ROBBER: A Honeytree Apartment resident reported that while he was upstairs in his apartment at 10 p.m. July 15, a boy, who appeared to be 15, entered the front door. It was closed but unlocked.

As the resident descended the stairs, he said, he saw the boy run off. An $80 money clip and $230 were reported stolen from the kitchen table.

GARAGE THEFT: A garage in the 8000 block of Elmhurst was broken into and more than $2,000 worth of goods were stolen last weekend.

crime watch

Some of the items listed stolen include a wheel barrel, tool box, miscellaneous tools, golf equipment and a rain coat.

EQUIPMENT HEIST: A construction trailer on Haggerty near an addition at American Yazaki Corp. was broken into last weekend.

Stolen were a fax machine, reportedly worth $2,000; two cameras valued at $435; a $100 answering machine; two telephones valued at $250 and a $2,000 word processor. Damage was listed at $50.

SHOPLIFTER OBSERVED: A shoplifter at Meijer's was seen taking two radar detectors last weekend. However, the security person who chased the man was unable to catch him. The suspect was believed to be 16-20. A man described to be 18-20 acted as the look-out for the robber.

PURSE SNATCHED: A purse was reported stolen from underneath a car seat parked at Canton Cinema 6 July 16. A woman's watch, valued at $120, was also reported stolen.

CAR STOLEN: A 1989 Chevrolet S-10 pickup was reported stolen at 11:15 p.m. July 15 from the 900 block of High Ridge.

It was parked in the street before it was taken.

Items that were reported in the pick-up include seat covers, 36 cassette tapes valued at $350, a stuffed animal, spark plugs, a jacket, a baseball glove, tennis shoes and sun glasses.

BANK FRAUD: A theft from a car lead to the thief reportedly using the victim's bank card to withdraw $35 from the victim's bank account, police reported.

The car was parked in the Plymouth-Canton High Schools parking lot.

A wallet, in the glove box, with $40 also was reported taken. However, a broken radar detector that was in plain view was not stolen.

These are some of the incidents recently reported to the Canton Police. For emergencies call 9-1-1. Police and fire business calls are taken at 397-3000.

Woman held in drug robberies

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

A 33-year-old Canton woman has been charged with two counts of armed robbery in connection with robberies at two Livonia pharmacies and demanding drugs.

Bond was set at $50,000 for Beverly A. Hopfner, who pleaded not guilty at her June 29 arraignment.

Hopfner was arrested June 24, a week after holdups were reported at the Perry Drug Stores on Farmington Road at Seven Mile and on Grand River at Eight Mile, according to Livonia Police Detective Jesse Bartlett.

Wiltse's Pharmacy in Plymouth was also robbed by a woman on June 17, and Arbor Drugs on Middlebelt in Westland was held up the following Monday. But Hopfner is not a suspect in those cases, Bartlett said.

Bartlett said Hopfner does match the description given of that suspect, but he said "It's a possibility there could be two out there."

IN ALL of the incidents, a woman who said she was armed demanded drugs from the pharmacists. The woman asked for Percocet, a pain killer, and Xanax, a muscle relaxant.

All of the victims described the robber as a white, 5 feet 7, with shoulder-length blond hair, wearing a denim jacket.

Bartlett said Hopfner was picked up after another Livonia officer "had a hunch" and gave him a photo of Hopfner from a previous arrest.

Judge James McCann has not set a trial date.

Hopfner has been in the Wayne County Jail since her arrest.

She earned both her bachelor's and master's degrees at Michigan State University and student taught at Allen Elementary School, Plymouth.

"She was highly regarded by not only the students in the classroom, but equally by staff members and parents she served," said Workman. "Everyone who knew Susan spoke of her liveliness and zest for life and how she enjoyed every situation that she was in.

"Her calm but enthusiastic enjoyment for living was always the thing that impressed me the most," Workman said. "She was always very calm and quite mature for her age, I thought, even as a student teacher."

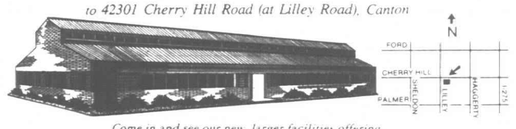

Besides Robert and Jeffrey, Moore is survived by her son Andrew, 3; her parents, John G. and Virginia Roberts; two sisters, Dr. Nancy Roberts and Karen Roberts; her grandfather, Herbert Keller; and two uncles, Dr. Norman Keller and Arnold Keller.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the McCabe Funeral Home, Farmington Hills.

Canton at the crossroads

SURVEY - SURVEY - SURVEY - SURVEY

Canton is a developing city at the crossroads. Businesses are moving in at a rapid rate. Developers are eyeing property west of Canton Center Road with visions of subdivisions dancing in their heads.

But what kind of community should Canton be? Should it be another Livonia? Another Southfield? Should the township plan a downtown area? Should more recreation areas be developed? Should it try to retain its rural character?

There are lots of questions. We're asking Canton residents for some answers. We'd like to hear what residents would like to see their community become. Include your name and telephone number if you choose. Don't feel obliged to do so.

The Observer will publish the responses during August as part of a month-long project called "Canton at the Crossroads." We will be looking at development and social issues Canton faces as it grows.

Julien's has been around since Canton was 'nice'

He greets almost everyone by their first names. And the ones he doesn't know he said he can learn "real fast."

"If they come in more than once I can get them," said Julien with the line at the cash register growing longer.

"The people who come here have been coming forever," Julien said. "I know pretty well everyone who has lived here for years. I try to treat people the way I want to be treated."

Julien said the store was there when Canton was "nice."

You know, before the strip malls, sprawls of subdivisions and industries awakened the sleepy township.

"A lot of old customers moved away to find what they used to have here. They all moved out to Pinckney. Actually they're creating the same thing they're moving away from."

Julien notices the difference between his store and the new ones coming in a stone's throw down Ford Road. The building "needs some help," he said.

It's got an old feeling inside and out. But then that's what separates it from the strip malls.

"People say it looks like a store up north," said Julien, adding that his business would probably increase as much as 40 percent if he remodeled.

He said some people are turned off by its rustic look.

HIS SON, Rick, who goes to college, helps out now and then for extra money. And wife Bonnie chipped in recently when he was in the hospital. But Julien predicts the family legacy will end with him.

"I told my kids they better get an education and learn something or I'd burn it down," he said, adding that he works 12-hour days and he wants his children to have an easier life.

Julien said he'd sell the family store — for the right price, that is.

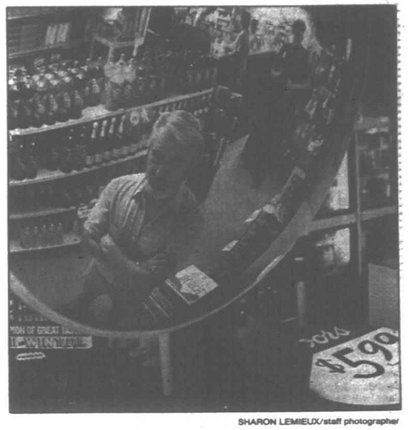

"Everyone wants this store. I've got a ridiculous price for this place, but I might just get it," said Julien. "I've got business cards that would choke a horse."

So far when the real estate agents and business people hear his going price they "put their tails between their legs and run off."

A middle-aged woman interrupts a conversation to ask for an 8-pack of Classic Coke. Julien brings it out from the back room.

Despite his grumblings about long hours and low pay, it looks like Julien's store will be around for awhile.

"My dad said something awhile back about buying a full-page ad to thank everyone for trading with us for 40 some years," said Julien. "I told him we'd wait until 50."

9 protestors found guilty, 24 acquitted

By C.L. Rugenstein
staff writer

After almost five hours deliberation a Livonia jury found nine pro-life demonstrators, including two Plymouth residents, guilty and acquitted 24 others Monday of disorderly conduct in an April anti-abortion protest at a Livonia abortion clinic.

The nine could face up to 90 days in jail, a $500 fine and court costs for the misdemeanor conviction at the Sept. 15 sentencing set by 16th District Court Judge Robert Brzezinski.

THE NINE demonstrators convicted were:

Earl D. Amyotte, Windsor, Ontario; Jesus Garza, Flat Rock; Donald W. Fifield, Plymouth; Jean C. Fifield, Plymouth; John J. Donnelly, Jr., Ypsilanti; Craig E. Mc Glassion, Ecorse; Antoinette J. Moriarity, Sylvania, Ohio; James M. Moriarity, Sylvania; and Daniel Strauch, Brighton.

No appeal is planned at this time, according to a spokesperson at defense attorney Mark Hibbs' Detroit office.

"It's a hollow victory," said pro-life spokesperson Lynn Mills of Livonia, "We need to be able to state to the jury that human life is in danger and it was necessary to trespass."

Judge Brzezinski had denied the use of the "necessity defense," which essentially holds that saving a life is more important than what they believe to be minor ordinances, like trespassing.

Despite Mills' reservations, however, Hibbs' representative, who declined to be identified, said they were "generally pleased" with the trial's results.

"Up to now we've had a great deal of difficulty getting anybody acquitted in these cases," he said. "This is one of the first times, the first people who've gone to the jury who've gotten acquitted."

But while Brzezinski formally denied use of the "necessity defense," Hibbs' representative said in this case he did allow defendants to state more of their motives. It was not "as ugly as the trial of the 'Livonia Seven'," he said.

IN THAT trial before Judge James McCann, seven pro-life protestors who acted as their own attorneys weren't allowed to state their motives.

"Everything they tried to say in their own defense was cut short by the prosecutor or the judge," the representative said. McCann sentenced them in June to 18 months probation, 25 days on a community work program, and about $1,000 in fines including supervisory fees for the work program.

Hibbs' office filed an appeal for the "Livonia Seven" on July 18.

The 33 defendants were part of a larger group arrested in the April 29 protest at Womancare of Livonia, 27634 Five Mile east of Inkster Road, for blocking access to the facility by sitting in front of two doors and not heeding police warnings to leave the premises.

Fifty of the April protestors who pleaded no contest were immediately sentenced by Brzezinski to three months voluntary probation and court and state costs of $125.

Brzezinski said jury selection for the remaining defendants to be tried will begin July 25.

BASIS FOR the Monday acquittals and convictions hinged on whether the 33 actually heard the police warning. A video taken of the incident was part of the evidence presented.

"Naturally I was disappointed" with the verdict, said assistant city attorney Catherine White, who prosecuted the case.

White felt that sufficent evidence in testimony and on the video was given that people at each door were warned. But sound on the video was faulty, she said.

It appeared the police sergeant was giving the required warning, and he testified to that fact, but "the audio just didn't pick it up," White said.

Those acquitted in the trial that began July 14, were: David Armstrong, Detroit; Betsy Cavnar, Ann Arbor; Kimberley Cramer, South Lyon; William Curry, Ann Arbor; Mark Freer, South Lyon; Howard Gardella, Novi; Robert Hoey, Troy; James Howell, Ann Arbor; Beverly Keeler, St. Clair Shores; Evelene Kenny, Pontiac; Joseph Klee, Plymouth; David Koester, Holly; Donna Kurcz, Jackson; Douglas Lasch, Monroe; Elaine Mathis, Troy; Sr. Lois Marie Mitaraj, Livonia; Michelle Moore, St. Clair Shores; Georgia Phillips, Wixom; Ann Rock, Livonia; Keith Rork, Wayne; David Turner, Ortonville; James Vardas, Livonia; Greg Widdle, Oxford; Ellen Wilder, Dearborn Heights; and Stephen Wiliams, Monroe.

Reward offered in shooting

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

A $10,000 reward has been offered in the June 19 shotgun killing of a 67-year-old Livonia man, Ezavor (John) Giller.

The family of Giller is offering the reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who fired a shotgun blast at Giller around 10 p.m. outside Giller's house on Seven Mile Road.

Anyone with information should call Livonia Police at 421-2141.

POLICE HAVE determined that Giller fired his own handgun at least once before he was felled by a shotgun blast to his chest. Giller's own handgun lay on the ground next to his body.

"He had time to react," said Sgt. Donald Vandersloot.

Police also believe the men who broke into Giller's home knew him.

"We don't think it was a random burglary," Vandersloot said. "But did they intend to shoot him? Tie him up? Find out where his money was?"

Police believe, but are "not 100 percent" sure, that the killer took guns from Giller's home. Police also suspect that Giller, a gun collector, might have been shot with one of his own guns.

Giller and wife Catherine, 64, had just returned from a shopping trip when the shooting took place. It appears the Gillers surprised burglars who were in the house.

As Catherine Giller walked into her house she was hit on the head and knocked unconscious for an unknown period of time.

FOR SOME reason, Giller walked around the side of the garage and had almost reached the backyard when he was shot, apparently by someone standing near the front yard.

Catherine Giller told police she saw two white males in the house.

Police said a basement window had been smashed and the home ransacked.

County commission chief speculates on his future

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Arthur M. Carter was destined for politics.

The 49-year-old chairman of the Wayne County Commission grew up in an atmosphere of political activism.

His godmother is Detroit City Council president and mayoral candidate Erma Henderson.

His mother was involved in the Young Republicans in the '30s, before switching party allegiance during the Roosevelt administration. His dad and uncles, all members of the United Auto Workers, had spirited discussions on their union.

And young Arthur soaked it up in his house on Detroit's near east side — the current site of Joe Muer's Restaurant parking lot.

Although there are probably days Carter would rather be cruising down the Detroit River on his charter boat Renaissance Queen, his main love is politics.

"I've devoted a great deal of my life to county government. There's still a lot of work to do here. There are things I'd like to pursue," said Carter, a Democrat whose district covers a big chunk of northwest Detroit including Outer Drive, Rosedale Park and Mt. Carmel and Sinai hospitals.

"ONE OF MY goals would be to one day be county executive. That's a very definite goal."

Earlier this year there was some speculation that Carter would jump ship to the beleaguered Detroit Public Schools administration. But he shrugs off that possibility.

"I haven't really talked with anyone in several weeks now," he said.

Carter, who has represented the 7th district since Jan. 1, 1975, is six months into a second two-year term as chairman of the 15-member board, which is the legislative branch of county government.

He was unanimously elected chairman by his peers — a historical first.

"This is the best commission in Wayne County history," Carter said unabashedly. "We're very diverse, but we work together very well.

"I've seen division between Detroit and the suburbs dissolve. The lines aren't drawn at Telegraph Road. We've really tried to work together whether it's a park issue — all the county parks are in the suburbs, or indigent health care."

Although Wayne County still has budget problems, Carter said the situation is a far cry from the early 1970s.

Wayne County Commission Chairman Arthur Carter said his future includes a run for county executive, but whether that run comes in 1990 or at some later date is not yet clear.

Auditors report county finished '88 in the black

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

'This is a very happy moment. The county is operating like a true business.'
— Edward McNamara, county executive

For the first time in some 14 years, Wayne County has balanced its budget and closed its own books for the year.

"This is a very happy moment. The county is operating like a true business," announced a smiling Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara at a press conference Tuesday.

The county ended fiscal year 1988 last November with an operating surplus of $433,000, based on a recently completed audit by Ernst & Whinney.

"Tremendous," said Wayne County Commissioner Susan Hines, R-Northville Township, who credited the balanced budget to the county's 1987 solvency package. "It put us on the right foot."

McNamara said the budget surplus, while insignificant in a total budget of $227 million, was "symbolic. It means we took in slightly more than we spent," the result of an austere budget.

In early 1988, some $2.6 million was trimmed from the budget, including $200,000 from mental health services, $220,000 from the county clerk's office and nearly $300,000 from the county sheriff's department.

McNamara maintained that county services have not suffered as a result of the trimming. "If anything, we're giving better service," he said, citing highway maintenance and trash pickup.

"TO ASSURE a balanced budget this fiscal year, McNamara said "We are still in a truly austere period." A limited hiring freeze continues to be implemented and department budgets are under close review.

Of greatest concern is the county's portion of the Child Care Fund for abused, neglected and delinquent youth. Budgeted for $32 million, costs are rapidly escalating, causing budget concerns.

"There are some complications here," McNamara conceded.

There are no plans to increase revenue by selling off county-owned property, aside from the sale of the former Child Development Center, a 1,000-acre plot in Northville Township.

Any additional income from this source would likely be used in upgrading such existing services as the Hall of Justice or the Wayne County Morgue, according to McNamara.

Earlier this year, the county's financial recovery received a major boost when Moody's, a Wall Street credit rating agency, upgraded the county's credit rating to "investment" level for the first time since 1979.

When McNamara assumed office in 1987, the county had a $134 million deficit and was on the verge of bankruptcy.

DSO talks about Lansing bailout

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Lansing's ears should be burning. People at the nearly bankrupt Detroit Symphony Orchestra are talking about state government as the leader in an $18 million bailout.

"I've talked to the budget director, and they agree something should be done so they don't have problems," said state Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, the Legislature's chief supporter of the arts.

"I intend to do something again," said Faxon, who despite his minority party status has a major role in getting state money for the arts.

DSO LEADERS announced Monday there is "no way" they can meet this week's $200,000 payroll. They are asking 97 musicians and 58 staff members to accept half pay.

Board chairman Steve Miller said the orchestra needs $18 million in pledges over four years to remain solvent. A source close to the DSO was quoted as saying the state had been asked for half or more of that sum.

Faxon, an Appropriations Committee member, said the state provides DSO $2.5 million currently.

"There is also lurking in the Senate and House a 'supplemental' appropriations bill," said Faxon. The $500 million bill has yet to be acted on by a joint Senate-House committee. It would supplement the current year's budget.

A SPOKESMAN for Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, said there was no plan to consider more DSO money until the next budget year.

Another Appropriations member, Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said "I haven't heard any discussion" of more money for the DSO.

Faxon said he met two weeks ago with Deborah Borda, DSO's executive director and chief staff person. "I indicated my concerns and gave her some suggestions. She has a lot of energy. She knows her business."

BUT FAXON said that except for brief social encounters he hadn't met with Miller, the Chrysler executive who took over the reins at the DSO board last year.

"I don't know him that well. I don't know where he's going," Faxon said.

The Oakland County senator said Miller brought DSO "tremendous adverse publicity — national and international" — when he caved into pressure from two black legislators and hired a second black musician.

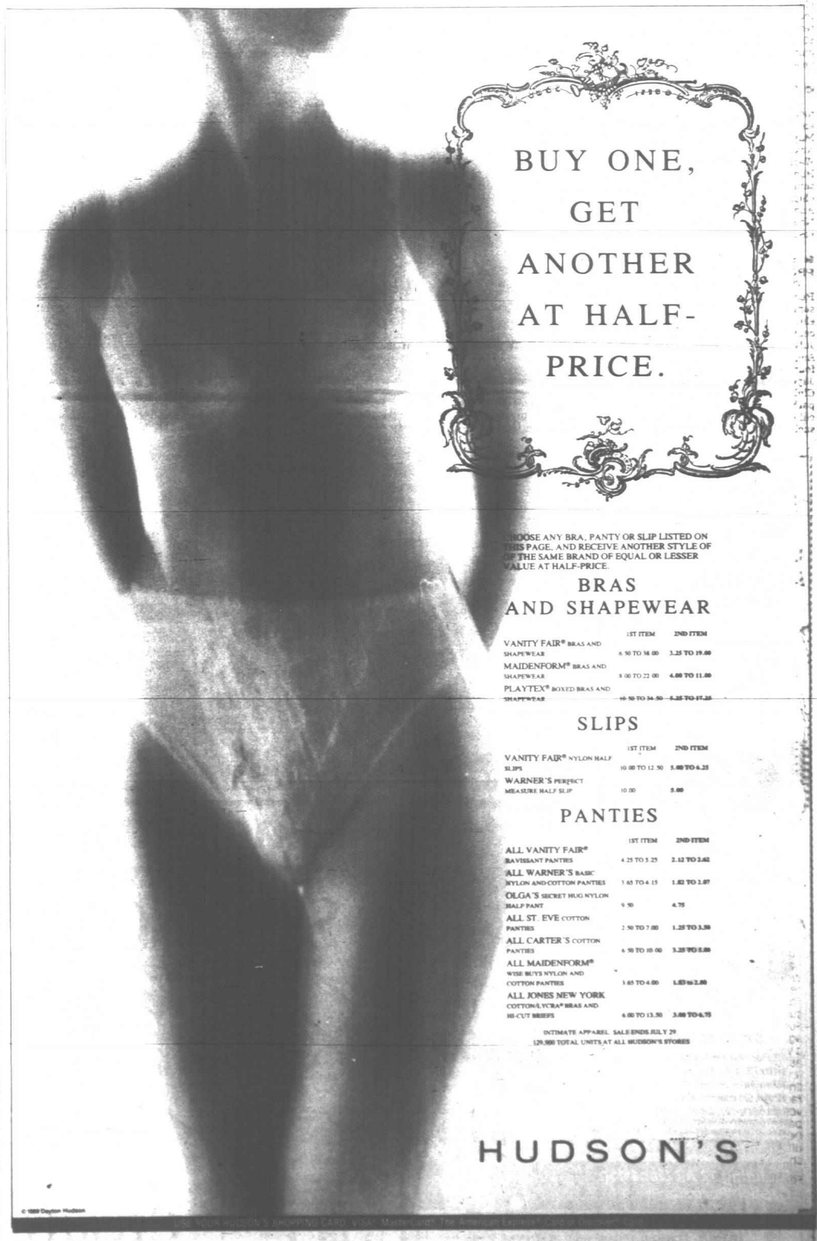

"She (Borda) believed if this wasn't done, they (the DSO) weren't going to get their (state) money. It just wasn't true," said Faxon. His unspoken message was that Miller should touch bases with him on legislative protocol.

"If someone were holding a gun to me, I'd want to find out who my friends are," Faxon said.

FOUNDED IN 1914, the DSO has been in trouble several times.

During World War II, it suspended activities. In 1949-51 it suspended its entire seasons.

In 1962 the musicians went on a nine-day strike. In 1967 there was a 12-week work stoppage when management sought to impose an 11-percent pay cut.

Scout leader inspired adults, teens

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Schrader Funeral Home for Mrs. Mae Lewelling, 57, of Plymouth.

She died Sunday after a long illness.

Mrs. Mae Lewelling

Mrs. Lewelling, a homemaker, was active in her adult years in Girl Scouts. She served on the board of directors of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. She had been a cadet troop leader and an adult trainer for other leaders.

Mrs. Lewelling had "a real gift for working with older teens," said longtime friend Peggy Seery. "She was also very helpful to other adult leaders, giving them support and confidence. She taught them that they could accomplish anything. That was her strong suit."

The Girl Scouts had honored Mrs. Lewelling with a 15-year pin, an appreciation pin and the council's highest honor, the "Thanks Badge."

Mrs. Lewelling, who was born in Detroit, came to Plymouth from Westland in 1966. She attended Taylor University in Indiana and had worked at Grace Hospital in record keeping.

She was currently a member of Aldersgate United Methodist Church, Redford Township. She had also been a member of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth where she was active in Methodist Women.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Robert F. Davis, a family friend from Grand Rapids.

Commission chief sets sights on executive post

"WE'RE ON our way out of the mire and muck. We're healthier, stronger, more responsible to the citizens. We can't cure all the problems overnight. We still have significant problems, but I'm very upbeat. Government leaders have to be somewhat futuristic."

What worries him most is the rising cost of health care for indigents and the cost of caring for abused and neglected children — two areas the county is responsible for by law.

"These are two major hurdles to the financial solvency of Wayne County," said Carter.

The legislative and executive branch have locked horns on many issues, most recently child care for county employees. KidSpace advocates (with the blessing of County Executive Edward McNamara) crammed a recent board meeting to demand action on the day care proposal.

But Carter questions the fiscal responsibility of offering a limited option (KidSpace would be licensed for up to 90 children) to a few employees out of Wayne County's 4,500 worker pool.

"The fact is we are running a deficit," Carter said. "I've seen money spent on good programs in the past, but that's why we're in dire financial straits now. I'd be the first to support (Kidspace) with outside funding."

Carter believes controversy is a good thing in politics. "I NEVER shy away from a meaningful fight," he said. "It's healthier than the good ol' boys sitting in the back room cutting deals."

A project dear to his heart is creation of a youth camp where non-violent juvenile offenders can get education and training that can turn them away from a life of serious crime.

"The Wayne County Residential Youth Academy would be an intervention tool," he said.

County voters approved a millage last August that includes funds to develop the youth work and learn facility. Carter said he hopes the project is under way by September.

The program will be based on the highly successful Glen Mills schools in Concordville, Pa.

"After seeing Glen Mills and witnessing how these aggressive young men are being transformed into motivated citizens, we are filled with hope and conviction that something positive can be done about juvenile crime in Wayne County."

Carter, a graduate of the now defunct Eastern High School, received bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from Wayne State University. The degrees are in special education, counseling and educational psychology.

'We're (Wayne County) on our way out of the mire and muck. We're healthier, stronger, more responsible to the citizens. We can't cure all the problems overnight. We still have significant problems, but I'm very upbeat. Government leaders have to be somewhat futuristic.'

— Arthur Carter, commission chairman

Carter began his career teaching mentally retarded students.

"Politics was an avocation. But I had a family to feed," he said.

His offspring include a 25-year-old daughter, a 21-year-old son who just graduated from Harvard, and another son, an 18-year-old college sophomore. He and his second wife, Deborah, assistant to the provost at Wayne County Community College, have a 3-year-old son and the family also includes Deborah's 15-year-old daughter from a previous marriage.

Carter has also been on staff at Wayne County Community College the past 17 years. He heads enrollment planning.

When he's not at the county building on Randolph Street or the downtown WCCC campus, he's apt to be cruising down the Detroit River on his 41-person charter boat, giving historic tours of the Detroit waterfront.

"The (Freedom Festival) fireworks display is our biggest night of the year," he said.

He also enjoys reading science fiction or viewing a good science fiction films away from the pressures of the office — a continuation of an interest begun in childhood.

The biggest source of his excitement regarding Wayne County is the prospect of an intensive $1 billion airport expansion to be carried out over the next decade.

"It's going from a local to a major international travel complex. The hotels, conference centers and office buildings will become a major part of our tax base. We can use the revenue to enhance other programs. I can see that happening."

Director aims to boost parks' image

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Call it the birth of a salesman.

Hurley Coleman is out to sell area communities on a product they've had for 70 years — the Wayne County Park system.

"It's been here practically forever, yet we're finding that many people still aren't even aware it exists," said Coleman, the county's new parks director. "We've got an image problem."

To boost the parks' image, he's starting with a simple premise:

"If, all of a sudden, people were to lose the county parks, would they know what they've lost?" Coleman said, describing the question that will guide him during his tenure as county parks chief.

"Right now, there are city softball leagues that use our diamonds," he said. "If they weren't there, these teams would have no place to play. This is the kind of thing we hope to stress."

ON THE job three weeks ("And what a three weeks it's been"), Coleman has begun meeting with city, township and county officials to sound out their perception of the county parks.

It's not that the county parks system is in danger of disappearing, but the direction county parks might take in the future could emerge after Coleman's sessions with area officials.

"I'm trying to ascertain what kind of community support there is for the county parks," he said.

Part of his job could be in building a county "parks community," he said.

"While the people I've met so far have been very warm and very interested in the parks, it appears people in one community generally aren't aware what goes on among their neighbors," he said. "What we need to do is have people look at the parks as a package."

FOR ITS part, the county parks system is considering offering services to local recreation agencies.

"This is still in the planning stage, but what we'd like to do is to offer something, at least in the way of expertise, that the locals couldn't provide on their own," he said. "In some cases, we could even come in and run programs.

"We have a very dedicated, capable staff, all the way around," he said. "That's one of the things that's impressed me most."

Fees from local municipalities would ensure the outreach programs paid for themselves, Coleman said.

Beyond that, he said, the program could strengthen ties between the county parks system and the communities it serves.

A canoe launch, near the Nankin Mills recreation area, is another top priority, he said. County officials hope to be able to allow canoeing at least along a portion of the Rouge River by next summer. A canoe storage area is being targeted as a special Michigan Youth Corps project, he said.

IN ADDITION to participating in the Rouge Rescue last month, Coleman has traveled to Washington, D.C., to help gain financing assistance for the parks.

"This is one of the oldest parks systems in the United States, and in many ways it's a role model for the federal system," he said. "What we'd like to see is at least some kind of historic designation for the parks."

Money, he acknowledges, has traditionally been tight. Nor is any movement afoot for a county parks tax.

"I don't see it for the forseeable future."

Coleman, however, is convinced he can work with county commissioners and other officials to help secure more money for county recreation.

"When (Wayne County Executive) Ed McNamara selected me for the job, it sent a message that here is a young person with a commitment to parks and with the ability to get along with people," Coleman said. "I think that's important."

COLEMAN, 36, spent the past four years as recreation administrator for the city of Saginaw. There, he oversaw installation of a wave-action pool and water slide.

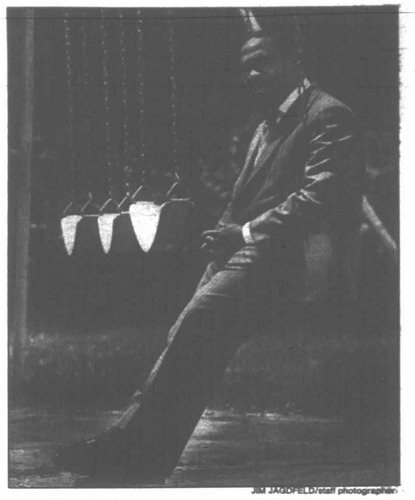

McNamara praised his ability to maintain parks services despite cutbacks in city financing.

As Wayne County parks director, Coleman will oversee nearly 4,500 acres of open space, a 36-hole golf course and a boat launch and marina, in addition to Holliday Nature preserve in Westland and Canton Township.

In addition to his county duties, Coleman is chairman of the Governor's Recreation Advisory Committee and is president-elect of the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association.

Married and the father of three, Hurley said he and his family are definitely "parks people."

"If my wife and I want to make our children happy," he said, "all we have to do is tell them we're taking them to the park."

Bridge work

Newburgh project detours drivers

This is the view of construction work on Newburgh bridge from Ann Arbor Road looking north.

FOR THE past six weeks, motorists who once drove Newburgh south of Hines Drive have been forced to take alternate routes because of a construction project.

Gary Clark, assistant city engineer for Livonia, said the $1.5 million project that includes revamping the Newburgh bridge at Newburgh Lake should be completed by early November.

The project, being performed by Greenfield Construction Co., also involves widening Newburgh from two to five lanes between Plymouth and Ann Arbor roads.

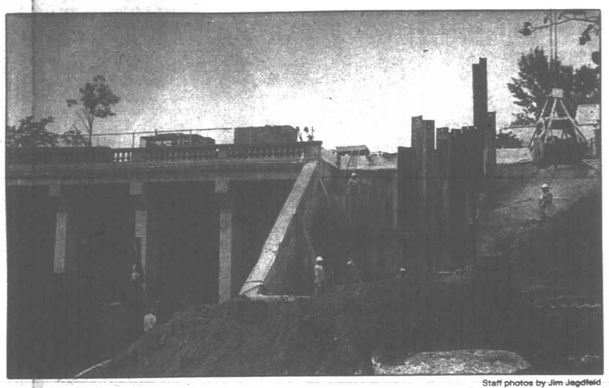

Clark said the project, paid for mainly through federal funds and with help from the city and county, was sparked by traffic concerns.

A further widening of Newburgh from Ann Arbor Road south to Joy will likely begin next year, Clark added.

During construction on the bridge, northbound traffic is being detoured east on Plymouth Road to Levan while southbound traffic is being diverted east on Plymouth Road to Ann Arbor Road and west back to Newburgh.

Abortion battle

Stage is set for hot debate

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Look for a donnybrook at public hearings over state pro-life bills in September and October.

That's when chairman Fred Dillingham's Senate Human Resources Committee is likely to take up four pieces of legislation in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision allowing states greater powers to regulate the termination of a pregnancy.

"It's a committee designed for terror," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, who is pro-choice.

"It's a double-stacked committee," said Faxon after the Senate rejected pro-choice Sen. Lana Pollack's effort to send the measures to the Health Policy Committee.

"Dillingham pledged a full opportunity for hearings," countered Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, a member of Dillingham's panel.

Look for a donnybrook at public hearings over state pro-life bills in September and October. That's when the Senate Human Resources Committee, one of the most conservative and pro-life in the Michigan Legislature, is likely to take up four pieces of abortion rights legislation.

THE SENATE HUMAN Resources Committee is one of the most conservative and pro-life in the Michigan Legislature.

Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, has his name on efforts to cut state spending for abortions. Geake, a psychologist, is pro-life.

Other members are Harmon Cropsey, R-Decatur, a religious fundamentalist; Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, the Senate's most conservative Democrat; and John Cherry, D-Clio, who is pro-life.

"Pollack moved to send it to the Health Policy Committee, which she thought would be friendlier," said Geake. Health Policy is headed by moderate Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, and includes a physician, Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek.

Geake predicted the measures would probably pass the full Senate in fall but might have more trouble in the House and on Gov. James J. Blanchard's desk.

Judiciary Chairman Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, said the bills didn't belong in his committee because no constitutional issue involved.

DILLINGHAM WAS out of town and unavailable for comment, but an aide said the Human Resources panel has dealt with similar issues in the past.

"A great portion of the abortion issues are social services issues," said Jim Crawford, the aide.

"His committee has done a lot of health issues. It wasn't shenanigans" to send the anti-abortion issues to Human Resources.

"We've had a few pieces of mail already," he said.

THE MEASURES are:

- Senate Bill 513 (sponsored by Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo) — requiring parental consent before a minor (someone younger than 18) could have an abortion. But the minor could obtain a judge's consent under certain conditions.
- SB 514 (Welborn) — based on the Missouri statute upheld by the Supreme Court on July 3. It would prohibit abortions in hospitals associated with the state and require medical tests to determine whether a fetus could survive outside the womb. The Missouri act also contains a preamble declaring that life begins at conception.
- SB 515 (Dillingham) — a ban on abortion counseling by state employees.
- Senate Joint Resolution H (Dillingham) — a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion as a benefit in state employees' health care packages.

A two-thirds vote of both chambers would be required to place SJR H on the ballot, and voter approval would be required. Gov. Blanchard would have no veto power.

The three bills would require only a simple majority in both chambers, but Blanchard has threatened to veto them.

Infertility? Problem pregnancy? Oakwood specialists are here to help.

DR. MARIA HAYES
Director Oakwood's Division of Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility.

DR. FEDERICO MARIONA
Director of Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine.

Q. What is infertility therapy and who needs it?

A. Infertility therapy is an investigation into and the treatment of problems preventing conception. We evaluate women who have been trying to become pregnant for at least one year. If the woman is over 35 years of age, she is evaluated after six months of attempting to achieve pregnancy. We evaluate immediately a woman who has an obvious cause of infertility such as lack of menstruation or known damage to the fallopian tubes. In addition, we offer treatment for people who have had sterilization and desire reversal, for women who have had repeated miscarriages, and for women with uterine fibroids or pelvic endometriosis.

Q. What kinds of infertility testing does Oakwood offer?

A. Tests are conducted on both the husband and wife, beginning with the simplest tests. Included may be evaluation of ovulation by observing basal body temperatures in the wife, hormonal studies, a hysterosalpingogram (a test to determine if the fallopian tubes are obstructed), and semen analyses.

If these tests are normal, we conduct a postcoital test a few hours after intercourse to see if the sperm are surviving well in the cervical mucus. If this is normal, we do an endometrial biopsy to evaluate the lining of the uterus, to tell us whether it is developing well enough for an egg to attach. As a last step, we use a laparoscope (a telescope-like device with a camera) to view and evaluate the uterus, fallopian tubes, and ovaries through the navel.

Q. Once the cause of infertility is diagnosed, what can you do to correct the problem?

A. We prescribe medication (fertility drugs) to correct lack of ovulation. Blockage of the fallopian tubes is corrected by surgery. If the woman has a problem with her cervical mucus, we administer medication or perform artificial insemination with the husband's semen.

If problems with semen quality are encountered, medication, insemination with the husband's semen, or referral to a urologist for repair of a varicose vein in the scrotum (if one exists) may be used. If the semen quality cannot be improved, we offer artificial insemination with donor semen.

In vitro fertilization is offered in cases of irreparable tubal damage, severe endometriosis, uncorrectable cervical problems, and very low sperm counts.

Q. How long does a patient need to see an infertility specialist?

A. Until a successful pregnancy is achieved or we determine that a problem exists which cannot be corrected. A successful pregnancy is defined as being able to detect a fetal heartbeat in the uterus on an ultrasound. If the pregnancy is progressing normally, the woman is referred back to her obstetrician. If it is considered a high-risk pregnancy, the obstetrician may seek consultation with a perinatologist, such as Dr. Mariona.

Q. How do you determine if a pregnancy is "high-risk"?

A. We review the patient's previous obstetrical history and present health. A high risk pregnancy can occur in a young woman with a chronic disease, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, or heart disease; a woman with a history of past problem pregnancies, including multiple miscarriages; and/or a woman who is over age 35.

Q. What is the first step a woman fitting any of these profiles should take when considering pregnancy?

A. First she should come in for preconception counseling with her partner. During our initial meeting, we would discuss the couple's general health and medical history and determine what their risks are for carrying a baby to term.

Q. What services does Oakwood's Division of Maternal-Fetal Medicine offer for high-risk pregnancy?

A. We perform prenatal diagnosis on the fetus to give the couple appropriate information on the presence of a normal or abnormal baby. These tests include chorionic villus sampling (CVS), in which a portion of the placental tissue is examined for genetic abnormalities while the fetus is attaching itself to the lining of the uterus. This test can be performed as early as eight or nine weeks into the pregnancy.

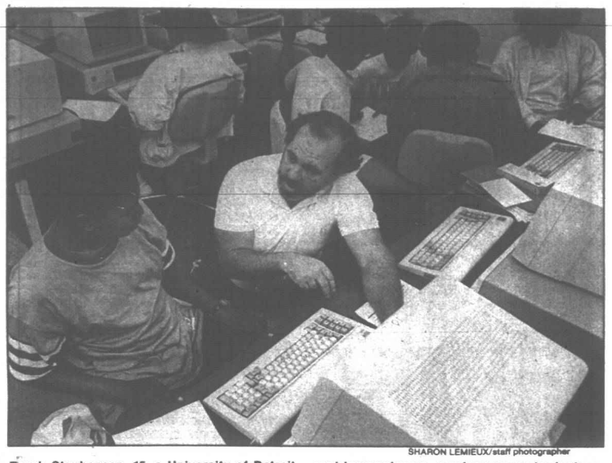

We also do amniocentesis when the fetus is between 13 and 15 weeks old. During this procedure, we obtain a sample of amniotic fluid that is then examined for genetic abnormalities.

If the pregnancy is further along, we perform ultrasound, in which high frequency sound penetrates into the tissue and bounces off the structure of the fetus to generate pictures that we can observe. We use various types of ultrasound to look at organs, how the organs are functioning, and how the baby's systems are developing. We then arrive at a total evaluation that tells us if the baby is normal, growing, and functioning as it should.

Later in the pregnancy, other observations are performed, including but not limited to electronic and biophysical observations of the developing fetus, along with continuous monitoring of the mother to detect or treat complications.

SC program encourages future scientists, engineers

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Bad Boy T-shirts, broad grins revealing shiny braces and giggles are representative of a handful of "bright" students participating in an enrichment program offered for the first time this summer by Schoolcraft College.

Twenty-five minority youths, ninth and 10th graders primarily from Detroit area public schools who aspire to careers in engineering and science, are enrolled in computer, math, science and communication courses. It's all part of an intense three-week engineering enrichment program offered by the college under the auspicies of the Detroit Area Pre-College Engineering Program.

"They're bright. Some of them are super bright," said Schoolcraft assistant dean Jeanne Bonner of the participants who have been selected on the basis of outstanding scholastic achievement. Bonner heads up the Schoolcraft program.

Jasmin Campbell, 13, who will be a ninth grader in Detroit's Martin Luther King High School, is typical. Jasmin, an excellent student, wants to be a chemical engineer. Jason Orr, also 13 and an entering ninth grader at Renaissance High School in Detroit, aspires to bio-engineering. Antar Salim, 14, a ninth grader headed for Harrison High in Farmington Hills, talks of becoming an accountant.

"I LIKE IT. It's interesting," said Che Patterson, 13, of the summer studies. Che, an entering freshman at University of Detroit High School, abounds with energy. "Interview me. I'm interesting," he teased.

On a more serious note, Jasmin said she expects the experience to "help me in high school." Antar also "figures" it will be useful later, in high school science and math classes.

Jason, who otherwise likes the program, dislikes "the long bus ride." Five mornings each week, his mother drives him to Schoolcraft, but he relies on bus transportation provided by the program for the return trip home.

Che voices an alternative to the daily commute. "Live on campus. I wanted to go to the University of Michigan so I could live in," he said.

Federal money sought for Rouge cleanup

The appropriations subcommittee on veterans affairs, housing and urban development and independent agencies has approved $500,000 for a demonstration project in cleaning up the Rouge River, according to U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township and portions of Livonia.

The funding must now be approved by the entire U.S. House and Senate.

The project consists of four parts, including immediate remedial action and longterm consideration of a primary treatment facility.

If aproved, the project will be implemented in four stages in cooperation with Wayne County, according to Ford.

"We face many years of hard work ahead. If approved, these monies will go a long way in helping local communities in cleaning up the Rouge River," Ford said.

The river winds through a 467-square mile area known as the Rouge River Basin. It includes 48 communities in three counties with a population of 1.5 million.

Of the five colleges and universities participating in this summer's program, Schoolcraft is the only school without facilities for on-campus living. The University of Michigan, Wayne State University, Michigan State University and the University of Detroit offer dormitory housing.

"It's impossible for us," Bonner said, because Schoolcraft is a commuter school. But in other ways, she added, the Schoolcraft experience is comparable. Schoolcraft has modeled its program after that offered by U-M and to compensate for an on-campus living experience, Schoolcraft provides two student assistants to help with homework, social or other problems.

"I TRY AND be a friend to them, assist them when there are problems and help motivate them," said student assistant Rohin Patell, 21, of Canton, a mechanical engineering major at U-M.

"Several are extremely motivated. Some aren't," Patell said of his charges.

Student assistant Garry Kaluzny of Livonia echoed Patell. "Some are not terribly enthused about being here."

A certain reluctance is understandable, according to Bonner. "This is quite an investment for these kids. It's their summer vacation and here they are working. Plus they have homework every night.

"But it's an investment in their future and they will be the better for it," she said.

Opportunity is one of the primary reasons DAPCEP was founded in 1976, according to executive director Kenneth Hills, who said the program has been nationally recognized as a model by the U.S. Department of Education. Funded entirely by private grants, the program provides exposure to minority students who are "historically unrepresented in engineering and science careers."

Of the 4,000 students who have participated to date, some 80 percent of those who complete college earn degrees in science and engineering.

KILEN JACKSON and Kwesi Hill both attended middle school at Go Lightly Educational Center, an alternative school within the Detroit Public School system. Math teacher Patricia Charters encouraged them to participate in the enrichment program.

Kilen, who is an entering freshman at Dominican, a Catholic high school, finds Schoolcraft classes "kind of easy."

But Edward Ware, who previously attended the Greater Grace Temple Christian Academy, describes Schoolcraft courses as "challenging and exhilarating."

To accommodate various skill levels, classwork is tailored to individual ability. Math, for example, is taught at three levels, ranging from beginning algebra to calculus.

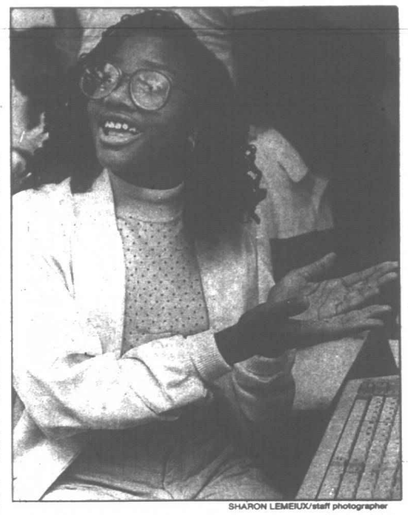

All three — Kilen, Kwesi and Edward — are lucky. Of the 350 students who applied for participation in the program, only 150 were accepted due to lack of space.

DAPCEP board president Harry Greenleaf recommended earlier this year that the program be expanded to Schoolcraft College where he serves as a trustee. The board is seeking additional participating universities, according to Hill.

In addition to the summer enrichment program, more than 500 high school students participate in Saturday programs, courses taught one day weekly at area universities, including U-M, Dearborn and Oakland University. Lawrence Institute of Technology will offer classes this fall.

DAPCEP also hosts the annual Science and Engineering Fair of Metropolitan Detroit, an event involving thousands of students in a variety of scientific activity.

Grants are available for wellness programs

Michigan has started funding grants for company wellness programs to help promote employee health and stem rising health-care costs for businesses.

Created by the Michigan Health Initiative legislation of 1987, the fund has grants available for up to $5,000 for public and private employers.

On-site wellness programs include stress tests, cholesterol checks, blood pressure and weight control screenings, stop-smoking help and information on safety and alcohol use.

Grant priority is given to businesses with fewer than 500 employees that involve employees in planning the program, offer programs to target more than one health risk and commit to continuing such programs after the grant ends.

The MHI says grant applications are brief, easy to complete and adds funds are readily available and usually awarded within 30 days of receiving a grant request. Its staff also helps plan wellness activities, complete applications and select approved vendors for wellness services.

MHI is administered by the Michigan Department of Public Health and the Michigan Department of Commerce. It serves Oakland and Wayne counties.

Grant applications and additional information are available by calling Joan Sheridan, 858-1284.

Canton survey

What should the future bring?

GROWTH IS the story in Canton Township. But what kind of growth and where it goes will determine what Canton will look like in five to 10 years.

Just looking at a map of the community tells part of the story. There are two Cantons, with Canton Center Road as the dividing line. Western Canton is still a world of farms, sturdy old farmhouses, two-lane roads and pickup trucks. But then there's eastern Canton, a world of offices, subdivisions, strip malls and vans.

We think Canton is at a crossroads. The community can either continue to grow unbridled across Canton Center Road and into the western portion of the township, or that development can be checked.

Now is the time to decide which way Canton should go. That's why the Canton Observer is embarking on a survey of its readers. We're asking you to tell us what you want Canton to be like in the future. (A copy of the survey is on page 1A.)

WE WILL publish those responses during August. Also during our project, we'll be writing stories about the changes going on in Canton. Some of those stories will involve taking the issues raised by our readers and asking public officials about them.

We'll also be asking public officials what they see in the future for Canton.

But while we'll be asking the public and officials about their ideas for Canton, we've got our own vision.

We'd like to see Canton retain its rural ambiance. But that's tough work for government. It means that, somehow, officials have to be just as responsive to the needs of the small farmer as they are to the needs of the large developer.

But the work would be worth it. Not only do farms produce a livelihood for their owners, but they also mean that there's land that isn't being developed. That open land not only helps a community retain its rural character, but it also provides habitat for birds and other animals.

Seeing open land and wild animals is much more pleasant than looking at strip malls and traffic. It's the atmosphere that draws people to the country.

Canton at the crossroads

And one way to retain that rural character is a Farmland Preservation Act. Such an act gives property tax breaks to farmers who keep their land in agricultural use. Canton residents rejected such acts in the 1960s and 1970s. However, there has been more development since then, and it may be time to look at such a proposal again.

Also, the township should look to protecting wetlands and woodlands. They are irreplaceable parcels of land that help give the township its rural character.

THOUGHT should be given to identifying certain parcels for purchase. Township money could be used, or the township could look into tapping state and federal money for such purchases.

Apart from helping the township preserve its rural character, keeping woodlands and wetlands in their natural state also provides places for recreational activities such as hiking, running and bicycling.

Because of that, we'd like to see recreation and conservation groups get involved in helping to preserve those lands.

Also, Canton Fest, with its focus on physical fitness, could be used to bring attention to the need to buy lands.

Canton has a lot of things already in place. Businesses are moving in and there are plans for more housing. The tax base is improving. But the township is at a crossroads.

What should it be like in the future? We've got our own ideas, but we want to know what you think.

Freeway fear

Time for drivers to fight back

AS A FREEWAY driver, how long has it been since you've laid on the horn and shouted at the jerk who's glided into your lane without signaling, nearly sheering off your front bumper?

Probably a long time. Freeway shootings have seen to that, and made us that much more paranoid in the process.

It's not healthy and it's not natural. Any doctor will tell you stress needs an outlet. Any driver will tell you navigating metro area freeways is stressful.

Yet we do nothing, fearful of having a bullet ~~squeezed off in our direction. People don't even~~ look at people in other cars, fearful that their facial expressions may prompt an act of hostility.

SO WE seal ourselves in our cars, stare dead ahead and let rage silently build inside us.

That's ridiculous. A few armed lunatics have made us afraid to honk a horn in the Motor City.

Honking off that blind fool careening across lanes is a time-honored tradition around here. It relieves stress. It directs frustrations where they should be directed and keeps us from taking it out somewhere else, on someone else.

So let's get together on this. Someone saw the guy in the Geo Tracker who took at shot earlier this month at a car on I-696 near Orchard Lake Road. Call the police and help prosecute.

Fight back. Call and write your legislators and tell them you want laws enacted specifically addressing penalties for those convicted of freeway shootings.

This is not some complex, abstract issue steeped in philosophical meaning that will require time and even-handedness to resolve. It is an immediate problem that affects every one of us every day.

After all, how many tombstones do we need bearing the inscription: "Here lies X, dead for committing the unpardonable sin of sticking his tongue out at the driver next to him."

Abortion debate

Other issues need our attention

WITH THE onslaught of the Michigan gubernatorial sweepstakes, voters can only hope there is more to political life in Michigan than the abortion issue.

Important, yes, but abortion shouldn't be the all to end all of political debate in the Wolverine state. Unfortunately, the danger exists that, with the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision giving states more latitude in limiting abortion rights, this very emotional issue will become the main focus of political debate.

Without a doubt, the pro-life forces will inundate candidates of all stripes with their litmus test of loyalty to their cause. And pro-choice forces will be forced to respond with equal fervor.

Neither politicians nor abortion activists, pro or con, can be relied upon to keep the ship of state on an even keel.

ONLY VOTERS, those out of the mainstream of power and special interest, can be relied upon to maintain a balance in the upcoming debate. Only the reaction of voters can ensure that all important issues will remain in focus.

While a militant group of citizens do feel that abortion is the most important issue, others realize that this state's leaders must address an agenda of political concerns.

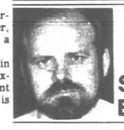

- The governor and Lansing lawmakers must resolve the dilemma of public education which is rapidly becoming a system of haves and have-nots.
- A plan must be molded to aid our socially and economically wounded cities.
- The state must take a more active roll in dealing effectively with the war on drugs.
- Highway expansion and repair must be sorted out before we are overwhelmed with clogged highways.
- Economic development still must be a number one concern of a state which still lags behind much of the rest of the nation in maintaining healthy employment figures.

The list could go on. But as easily can be seen much more than the merits and demerits of abortion need to be discussed.

The voters will decide if this is to be so.

A society's lifeblood depends on the arts

Steve Barnaby

LIVE THEATER, dance, music, the movies — they're all a reflection of the cultural patterns of a community.

No matter the demographics, a community needs the arts to live and grow. Without the arts, a community will eventually dwindle and perish.

I was thinking about that the other day as I was hosted to a tour through the Birmingham Village Players playhouse by members John Reddy and Art Underwood.

Many of you will remember Art as proprietor of the Little Professor Bookstore on Grand River in Farmington Hills. John is an editorial executive here at the paper who is reluctant to mix his activities. But because of my interest in the theater, he finally consented to a tour of his other life.

It was a delight.

THE VILLAGE Players, which has raised the curtain for more than 60 years, is one of the more successful local theater groups around. At present, the playhouse is being renovated to open for yet another season in September.

But they are not alone. The Village Players, and many other groups like them, reflect that sense of community that often is lost as our metropolitan area grows and thrives.

They are a spirited bunch. To survive, they have to be. Live theater, even at its most successful, is a struggling venture.

Many don't survive. But the arts in our area has always lead a fringe existence. As we can see by recent events in the metro area, the arts is a hard sell.

IN CONTRAST, anyone traveling to Toronto, North America's premiere big city, can see how support of the arts fits into the vitality of a community. Now whether it's a reflection of success or a cause of it can be debated. But it's there, an integral part of everyday life as are the streets full of people at all times of the day and night.

Metro Detroit isn't so lucky. Our symphony is struggling, unable to even meet the payroll. The quality of our live theater is spotty at best in comparison to other major cities.

When the going gets tough in school districts, the first things to go are music programs and library services.

CERTAINLY SOME hopeful signs of support do exist. We all owe a big thanks to pizza king Mike Ilitch for the renovation of the Fox theater, which is packing the 4,000-plus seat theater every night for showings of the four-hour "Lawrence of Arabia."

If you haven't seen it, make sure you do. It is a pleasure to experience a quality movie on a large screen as it was meant to be viewed rather than in one of these living room-sized theaters in the shopping malls.

Besides the movies, the Fox has brought in some top-notch live entertainment. Hopefully, the trend continues.

So take some time to see some of the great artistic offerings the metro area has to offer, whether it be your local community theater or some other art of your chosing.

Your support will make for a better community, and you'll have a good time while your at it.

Protect rights of the unborn

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the article in the July 13 issue of the Observer entitled "Catholic group seeking free choice for abortion."

In the article, Sandra Damesworth says that it disturbs her that "Catholics for Free Choice" finds itself at odds with Catholic leaders and states "it is appaling that a church which claims to be committed to social justice would withdraw from women the ability to make decisions about their lives."

Women do have the ability to make decisions about their lives: To conceive or not to conceive. It would be appaling to me if the church did not try to protect God's most defenseless, the unborn.

Even in the rare case of pregnancy from rape, the unborn baby in danger of abortion would be the innocent defenseless victim paying with his/her life for the crime of the father.

What about adoption instead of abortion? There are long waiting lists while babies are being killed by the millions. Hopefully future court decisions will honor the father's rights and also rights of parents over their minor children. But most important the rights of the unborn person should be protected against the ultimate child abuse, abortion.

Other issues deserve our consideration

To the editor:

President Bush should get off his patriotic perch and learn what real concerns are in this country. That goes for anyone else — legislators, congressmen, governors, citizens, etc. — who condemns the Supreme Court decision upholding the person's right of expression through flag burning.

I find it disconcerting that in an era when we have millions of people without access to health care, homes, jobs or good education, people are rallying behind the protection of a piece of fabric in the name of "patriotism." Don't they know that a flag is merely a piece of cloth that represents an idea? By itself, the flag is nothing. Protesters in Iran, Iraq, Libya and other countries have proven this by burning it in full view of the world. We knew then as we know now that the love we have for our country is embodied in our support for the freedoms we enjoy.

Yet, if many self-righteous people have their way, flag desecration — as they wish to call it — will be either in violation of federal law or the U.S. Constitution. Are these people insane or are they just stupid? Maybe both. I can't decide which.

How can a country that supports human rights also support condemnation of a person who wishes to burn the "symbol" of our country in protest? This just doesn't make sense. As a political democracy, this country has always supported the necessity for our citizens to criticize governmental action without fear of reprisal.

If it takes desecration of the flag as a national symbol to get the public's attention to our individual ideas, then so be it. We are already prohibited from inciting riots or carrying out other dangerous actions. But burning, shredding, or otherwise mutilating a flag is a harmless form of protest that is and should continue to be allowed by the most basic of our freedoms — freedom of speech.

Personally, I have no reason to desecrate our flag. However, that doesn't mean that I wouldn't have a reason in the future. But to prohibit such an action is a ludicrous step that many people are willing to do because they are afraid of being tagged "unpatriotic." Well, I'm not afraid. We must be willing to support unpopular positions in favor of our basic freedoms. Take public protests by the Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazis, for example. As much as I deplore these groups, I have to recognize their right to express their views. The flag-burning issue is no different.

This country has too many problems for us to waste time trying to erode our ability to express political ideas. Our leaders should do something worthwhile for a change rather than be afraid of taking a correct — yet unpopular — position.

Beverage industry loses a round

Tim Richard

THIS TIME the beverage industry caved in fairly quickly.

The Michigan Legislature last week put the finishing touches on a pair of bills to deal with unclaimed deposits on beer, pop and wine cooler bottles and cans.

Those are the containers we all occasionally break and which some of us still discard along roadsides, woods and lakeshores.

Depending on whom you want to believe, those unclaimed deposits each year total $12 million (manufacturers and wholesalers) or $38 million (state Department of Natural Resources).

Under the new pair of laws, that money will be accumulated for 10 years in a state trust fund. Then for the following 50 years, the interest — maybe $50 million a year — will be used for toxic cleanups, solid waste disposal, recycling and enforcing environmental laws.

Without doubt, Gov. Jim Blanchard will sign the second bill as he did the first.

THAT VICTORY didn't come easily.

Let's note, at the outset, that Michiganians as a group take pride in their state's beauty. In contrast, note the trash-laden hillsides along I-75 or any other road in Kentucky. Michiganians want their state kept tidy. That is a given.

In 1976 the Michigan United Conservation Clubs asked the Legislature to pass a law requiring deposits on all beer and pop containers. No luck. MUCC and its allies used an initiative petition to place the deposit bill on the ballot.

There ensued a vicious campaign on the part of the industry, organized as the Committee Against Forced Deposits, though I prefer to call it the Litter Lobby. Its theme, essentially false, was that only a tiny fraction of the litter was due to beer and pop containers. Yeah, and I suppose my dog severed a tendon in his foot on a gum wrapper and not a busted beer bottle covered by a quarter-inch of snow.

The Litter Lobby coated the pages of newspapers with ads, but the public knew better. The deposit bill passed with nearly 70 percent of the vote, and the law took effect two years later.

Overnight, the litter on our landscape was reduced about 90 percent.

NEXT CHAPTER came in the mid-'80s as wine coolers came on the market.

The morning before the state Liquor Control Commission (LCC) held a hearing on whether to place a deposit on wine cooler bottles, I recall picking eight wine cooler empties off my lawn.

The industry's response was to question the patriotism of anyone who would place any restriction on wine coolers, a totally American product.

First the Legislature decided the LCC lacked authority to amend a voter-initiated law by a rule. Then the lawmakers dillydallied while the MUCC and its allies cranked up a second petition drive.

In the end, the wine cooler industry was defeated, and the Legislature, under pressure, gave three-fourths approval to an amendment to the deposit law covering wine coolers.

THE THIRD chapter is closing.

This time MUCC had to gather only 30,000 petition signatures of the 300,000 it needed in order to convince the Legislature it was serious about using unclaimed deposits for environmental cleanup.

If the industry had had its way, it would have given a fraction of that money to toxic cleanups and alcoholism programs.

As this chapter is written, I have no way of guessing what the next episode in the deposit story will be. But as it unfolds, I hope industry will have brains enough to grasp that Michiganians want a clean state and that the Litter Lobby will give in without an expensive, knock-down, drag-out fight.

Year-round school has some support

Doc Doyle

Q: The state of California is considering a year-round school program; specifically, the 45/15 — whatever that is. The article I read said that with such a program, buildings don't sit vacant all summer. Should Michigan look at the year-round school?

A: Some districts have looked at the program. Proposals for a year-round school program always seem to surface in states, such as California, or school districts in which an enrollment crunch packs school facilities.

A 45/15 program means children are in the classroom for 45 days and then have a 15-day vacation four times a year. There are four groups of students. Three groups are in class while the fourth is on vacation. Buildings are therefore used all year long and are not sitting idle from June to September.

The value to a school district is that existing buildings can house one-fourth more students, and that money is saved because the construction of new schools is not needed. The program is relatively easy to implement at the elementary level. Due to the type of scheduling at the middle and high school levels, it becomes extremely difficult and costly to implement a 45/15 year-round program. At the high school level, if a school district has one advanced placement physics class of 28 students in a 45/15 year-round school program, you could have only seven students in each of the four different groups. Instead of one teacher for 28 students, one teacher is needed for every seven students. This requires hiring additional staff and would drain a district's budget.

In Michigan, there is parental and teacher support both for and against the 45/15 concept.

Problems arise if a family with two or three children have, for example, a cottage up north. Their children could be on different cycles; that is, one child may be going to school in July and August when the other children in the family are on a break. Districts in Michigan that have used the 45/15 program worked diligently to schedule all students on the same 45-day cycle, i.e, February, March, April. However, it doesn't always work.

The bottom line is that most districts that adopt the program tend to return to the September to June schedule when enrollment levels off and facilities become available.

I personally favor the 45/15 schedule because teachers and children get a break every 45 days, facilities are used more and learning is more evenly distributed over the entire year. However, traditions and vacation habits are powerful and will probably never draw us away from the September to June school year, a model that originated during the agrarian era to allow youths to work the farm in the summer.

Dr. James Doyle is an assistant superintendent in the Troy School District. The answers provided here are the opinions of Doyle and not the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Racial attitudes need changing

Judith Doner Berne

WAKE UP.

That's the opening line from Spike Lee's new film, "Do The Right Thing." And right there, both in the opening and title, lies its ambiguity — and its brilliance.

In fact, at 8 a.m. Monday, on a cooler summer day than Lee depicts, in Birmingham, not Brooklyn, 25 people — suburban white and black people — showed up at The Community House to probe what indeed this amazing film is all about.

Who, in fact, is Lee asking to wake up? And what, in fact, is the right thing to do?

Lending a practiced eye as well as a wealth of background in film to the discussion was Lewis Beale, a Detroit Free Press reporter recently transferred from L.A. where he had been a film industry reporter for the Los Angeles Daily News. He and his wife are new residents of Birmingham.

And those he was leading were members of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Task Force on Race Relations and Ethnic Diversity. They are the concerned people who recently put on the community forum in response to the racial problems in Birmingham schools and who now are planning a fall communitywide conference on achieving a diverse community.

BEALE, WHO IS white, criticized the white media, particularly the all-important New York City white media, for misinterpreting the film, for seeing it as "a very New York picture" and a call to racial violence.

No, this is not just a New York City film. As Marcia Femrite, a white former Detroit teacher now from Bloomfield Hills said, "You don't have to go far from here to see that street. The rage is not surprising at all."

Said Dana Cunningham, a black woman from West Bloomfield, "I think Spike makes his pictures for black people." Her interpretation of "Wake up" is that black people need to learn to take care of themselves economically.

Black people haven't done what other immigrant groups have, she said. They haven't gone from the pushcart, to a bigger pushcart, to the stand, to a store. "Historically, blacks who have done that have been murdered, have been 'fired' out of business."

In the film, black people want the Italian pizza parlor owner to put up photographs of black people on the wall, and they taunt the Korean couple who owns a small fruit and vegetable store.

Beverly Knight, a black woman from Birmingham, says that in the neighborhood where she grew up the fact that none of the markets is owned by black people is "a constant issue."

GORDON MAY, the black director of Oakland Community College's Pontiac Center, sees the film as a call for corporate America to wake up. When the pizza parlor owner refuses to hang other-than-Italian celebrities on his wall, May extends that to: no minorities on the wall of corporate America.

When Mary Cay Dirks, a white Bloomfield Hills resident, responds that it's obviously in corporate America's best interest to hire and train minorities, Cunningham points out:

"It may be in corporate America's best interest, but we haven't seen enough of it," adding that business is one of the main opponents of Michigan's school finance reform.

Much of the discussion of what is indeed "the right thing" turned on the film's ending, which featured a quote from Martin Luther King urging non-violence followed by one from Malcolm X, ostensibly urging violence.

"The movie stands on its own. It doesn't need that benediction," said the Rev. Almus Thorp Jr. from Christ Church Cranbrook.

"To me, the movie is about ambiguity," Dirks said. "The movie is raising the issue."

Beale sees the film and the ending as stating that when you are attacked, you attackback.

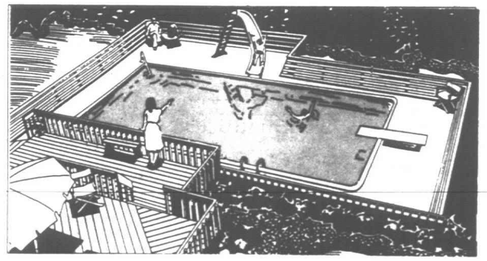

"DO THE RIGHT Thing" is "one of the most important films made in this country in the last 10 years," Beale says.

It well may be, for whatever your interpretation, the scenario it depicts is real — the growing rage of the young black community.

How the current backward march in civil rights will play into all of this is a clear question. But it's one we all, city dwellers and suburbanites, blacks and whites, had better attend to pretty quick.

Wake up.

After 16 years as Oakland County's prosecutor and six months in private practice, L. Brooks Patterson powers of elocution are still strong as ever.

Has civilian life changed L. Brooks?

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

Six months into civilian life, after 16 years as Oakland County's prosecutor, L. Brooks Patterson is still a man of carefully chosen words.

When asked if there was something he'd always wanted to say during those 16 years, but couldn't because he was prosecutor, Patterson didn't hesitate.

"— you, Judge Thorburn," he said with a big smile. Patterson and James Thorburn, who used to be an Oakland County Circuit Court judge, had several celebrated, loud disputes over cases and judicial procedure during Patterson's tenure.

Thorburn has left the Oakland County bench and Patterson is in the litigation section of Barbier and Tolleson, a Troy law firm. "I'm still on a learning curve. I was out of civil practice for 16 years," he said.

HE THINKS he left the prosecutor's office with a 90 percent success rate. He enjoys his new job. And he hasn't backed away from issues important to him.

"I'm looking for a petition in the fall," Patterson said in reference to Citizens Unfairly Taxed, a group that wants to decrease school millages to offer homeowners property tax relief. CUT would place the burden for replacing those funds on the state.

Patterson said he's really just acted as a facilitator for the group, bringing it together and helping give it direction.

He's also supporting U.S. Rep. William Schuette for the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. Carl Levin. Schuette is the stepson of the chairman of Dow Chemical in Midland, according to The Almanac of American Politics.

PATTERSON THINKS Levin can be beaten, but hasn't been yet because the Republicans have thus far supported lackluster candidates.

"Jack Lousma was still in the dugout by the seventh inning," Patterson said of the former astronaut's failed campaign. "But even then, Levin barely called it a victory."

Patterson said he has "no immediate agenda" regarding his own political career, but added "I'll never say never" when asked if he'd eventually make a run for the governor's office.

On other issues, Patterson:

- Said if he were a citizen on the county's newly appointed Judicial Selection Committee, which will interview candidates for the two circuit court openings in next year, the top three characteristics he would look for are "fairness, intellect and objectivity, in that order. I never wanted a judge who was so prosecution you knew it was going to be your verdict," he said, citing concern about a reversal on appeal.
- Thinks Richard Thompson, the Oakland County prosecutor who worked for him for 16 years, "has a nuts-and-bolts approach and extremely high integrity."
- Feels a slight "inability to make things happen. I had authority as a prosecutor. I could solve problems with a phone call. Now I file complaints," which he said is effective, but takes longer.
- Misses "the strokes the most." He said on his last day as prosecutor, while he was walking down the hall, a crying woman ran up, hugged him and thanked him for bringing her daughter home. Patterson said it was a case where the woman's divorced husband had taken their child out of state and he'd brought him back with two phone calls — one for a warrant and one to "the feds. I had the child back home within days."
- Expected the Supreme Court to overturn Roe v. Wade.
- Feels really cheated by only one case — a "classic," he called it, where a killer admitted, on videotape, that he'd murdered someone, but the judge ruled the confession inadmissible.

And what's it like to have Patterson working for you? "It couldn't be better," said Ralph Barbier. "He works harder than anybody in the firm. I'd love to find something negative to say about him, but I can't."

Road bills hit legislative snag

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State Sen. Richard Fessler's bills to raise the fuel tax 2 cents and float a $900 million bond issue for road construction have hit two snags.

"My bills were referred to the Senate Finance Committee," said Fessler, R-Commerce. He had hoped they would be referred to his own State Affairs, Tourism and Transportation Committee.

The Finance Committee is headed by Sen. Norm Shinkle, R-Monroe County. The referral was made by Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, the probable GOP 1990 candidate for governor.

Fessler guessed that Engler might be concerned about looking like a tax-raising candidate.

SO FAR, no public hearings have been scheduled by the Finance Committee. Fessler had hoped for public hearings this summer.

A Fessler aide said the prolonged legislative battle with Gov. James Blanchard over the budget and "supplemental" spending might make it difficult to schedule summer hearings.

The Senate is scheduled to meet only every two weeks throughout the summer.

Fessler's Senate Bills 488 and 489 would lift the fuel tax to 17 cents from the current 15 cents a gallon effective in 1991 and use the increase to pay off a $900 million state bond issue.

THE MICHIGAN Municipal League, an organization of cities and villages, is opposing one major feature.

"The League is strongly opposed to earmarking the municipal share of a state-issued bond," it said in a legislative report. "Cities and villages should continue to decide locally how much of their street money to allocate for maintenance and how much, if any, for bond issues for construction.

"If municipal governments need to bond for street projects, they have the authority to do so. The Legislature should not mandate it.

"Under the bill, the state's share of the increase is earmarked for a bond issue to construct seven specific state highway projects."

THE STATE Department of Transportation also opposes legislative earmarking of specific projects, although it agrees with Fessler's choices.

Among them are M-9 (Haggerty corridor), widening of M-59 in western Oakland and Livingston counties, and reconstruction of the Davison freeway in Detroit.

Games teach kids lessons for life

CHUCK HEINEY/staff photographer

Abraham Eanes gets some words of advice from Twins assistant coach Cary Black. Many local young people participate in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League.

Parents can set a good example

Most young athletes won't grow up to enjoy the success of an Isiah Thomas or a Martina Navratilova.

That's not to say participating in sports isn't beneficial. Such involvement can help young athletes learn the value of teamwork and honest effort.

"Obviously, all parents like to see their children succeed," said Bob Dates, recreation supervisor for Canton Township.

"I think the biggest thing it takes is patience," he said. "A lot of parents might expect too much of the kids right away. They forget the kids are just beginning in some of these things."

Chris Mroczka, treasurer and registration chairwoman for the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League, agrees that parents need to be patient. She and her husband have three sons, ages 11, 19 and 20. Their youngest son plays now and their older sons have in the past.

CHILDREN NEED time to develop athletic skills, she said.

"Every year, their coordination gets better." Games become more exciting to watch as athletes progress, she said.

'A lot of parents might expect too much of the kids right away. They forget the kids are just beginning in some of these things.'

Canton recreation supervisor

The baseball league includes more than 2,100 boys and girls ages 7-18. Mroczka, a Canton resident, hasn't seen much of a problem with overzealous parents.

Umpires at games have the authority to remove parents from the playing area if parents become too vocal. Parents are first given warnings, and asked to leave if they continue to cause problems.

"It's a pretty rare instance that a parent is asked to leave," she said. That happens maybe once or twice a season.

Old Village house suits them just fine

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The exterior of the Touhey house in Plymouth has a rather old-fashioned look. When you step inside, however, it's just about all modern.

Pat and Pam Touhey moved into the Old Village house in late March. They have title work on the house dating to 1865. The house has been added on to over the years. In the past it was used as a duplex.

The Touheys have enjoyed working on the 2,700-square-foot house. It includes five bedrooms, providing enough space for the Touheys and their children, 11-year-old twins Sean and Justin, 7-year-old Christopher and 1-year-old Megan.

The family moved from Plymouth Township, where they'd lived "in a small home that had a rural setting," said Pam Touhey, a massage therapist. "We kind of hated to give up the secluded feeling we had."

They lived in the Plymouth Township house, which backed up onto Hines Park, for more than 10 years. The family simply outgrew their 1950s-era house and decided to move to Old Village.

"It's the perfect house for having four kids," Pam said.

THEIR WORK included putting in drywall throughout the house on Holbrook, giving those walls a uniform quality.

The Touheys had the electrical system checked as well, making sure it was suitable for such appliances as a dishwasher, washer, dryer and air conditioner. That work included having new circuit breakers and panels put in, along with the addition of new outlets and fixtures.

They hired out the electrical work. That's generally a good safety practice, said Pat Touhey, a real estate developer. Codes change, and wiring that was acceptable years ago may not be now.

"Plumbing is an area that you should have checked," Pat said. "The plumbing was in pretty good shape."

They bought new fixtures, sinks and faucets.

"After that, it was just really flooring and wall colorings," Pat Touhey said.

THE TOUHEYS prefer a more contemporary look. This smooths out a room and gets rid of irregularities.

"Then you can decorate any way," Pat said. "You could put antiques in here just as easily."

They recarpeted throughout the house, choosing neutral colors. Those shades are ideal in that they blend with apple juice and peanut butter, Pat Touhey said with a smile.

They painted just about all the woodwork in their home. The Touheys chose track lighting fixtures.

THE TOUHEYS replaced the counter tops in the kitchen and the two full bathrooms. The couple had access to the home for approximately 60 days before moving in, giving them a head start on getting the work done.

Friends helped them do much of the work. Their sons were able to help out, too, and came to appreciate the work involved.

The boys helped with cleaning, pulling up carpet and taking down old wallpaper. Doing so "made them feel more comfortable when we moved in," Pam Touhey said.

Finding contemporary accessories and furnishings took some searching.

"Plymouth is such a country kind of place," Pam said. Many accessories in their house came from The Penniman Showcase in Plymouth.

THEY LIKE the architectural diversity of Old Village.

"A lot of these houses have been here for 100 years, built around the railroad tracks," Pat Touhey said.

The area includes commercial, retail and light manufacturing buildings. Residential buildings — single-family houses, duplexes, condominiums and apartments — are included.

"It's been good for the kids because it gives the kids a lot more independence," Pam Touhey said.

Their sons can easily walk to the fish market, the grocery store or the Dunning-Hough Library.

"Everything is right here, so we've got a lot more things available to us than we did out there," Pam said.

The trains don't bother them.

"I like it," Pat said. "At night, you hear a train whistle coming down. It makes me think of travel and adventure."

THE TOUHEYS did well on the sale of their previous house, giving them the flexibility to do a lot of work on their new house right away. Not everyone has that option, Pat Touhey said. It's possible to work on a house room by room.

Time to head home

Balloonists from the Peoples Republic of China went home this week with good memories.

"Everybody says their first impression is that everybody is friendly to us," said Qin Jianmin, interpreter for the group. "They showed us great hospitality."

The balloonists from Anyang arrived in Plymouth June 27 and left for home Tuesday. The Chinese came to Plymouth as guests of R. Scott Lorenz, co-owner and general manager of the Mayflower Hotel.

"It's been a fantastic trip for me too," Lorenz said. "It's been a very enlightening experience."

Lorenz was in China in October 1988. He met the balloonists and invited them to visit Plymouth.

THE GROUP included Zhang Jie, president of the Anyang Aviation School, Hao Dongshan, Zhang Futai and Qin Jianmin.

"We enjoyed ourselves very much," said Qin. "The American people are very friendly to us."

The balloonists flew a couple times over the Kensington Metropolitan Park area. The group participated in balloon competitions during their three-week visit, and found time to do some sightseeing.

Their first weekend in Michigan, the group traveled to Traverse City for a balloon competition. The weekend of July 7-9 they traveled to Howell for a competition.

The group arrived and left via airplane, rather than taking their balloon all the way from Anyang to Detroit. Their schedule included a visit to Greenfield Village and to Niagara Falls.

The Chinese men enjoyed learning about the automobile's history while at Henry Ford Museum.

"It's very educational, because it is studied from the origin of the industry," said Qin. They were also interested in the farming equipment at Henry Ford Museum.

"We think our Chinese agriculture is still very backward," Qin said. Some things on display at the museum are still used in China. Most farming in China is done by hand with simple tools, he said.

IT TOOK the group the better part of a day to get visas allowing them to enter Canada. The group visited Niagara Falls.

Their travels took them out west to Riverton, Wyo., for balloon competition and sightseeing. They enjoyed horseback riding and a visit to an Indian reservation. One of the group's sponsors, a private pilot, flew the delegation to Yellowstone National Park.

"It was quite a spectacle," Lorenz said.

The group members weren't concerned about returning to China.

"No, no. No problem," Qin said. Anyang is some 350 miles away from Beijing and the recent unrest there.

There were student protests in Anyang, the site of four universities.

"At the most, about 200 or 300 protestors, because all the universities in Anyang are very small," said Qin, 37.

Only one of the balloonists had visited the U.S. before. Hao Dongshan came to the U.S., including Battle Creek, Mich., New York and New Jersey, in 1985.

The visitors were proud to display their hot air balloon. The Chinese travelers were the guests of R. Scott Lorenz, co-owner and general manager of the Mayflower Hotel. The hotel's balloon has, appropriately enough, a Mayflower theme.

Delegation members enjoyed eating American food during their visit. They sampled pizza and the food served at backyard barbecues. "A fair amount of potato salad and corn on the cob," Lorenz said. The visitors were also invited to eat at various Chinese restaurants.

Food served at Chinese restaurants in the U.S. isn't just like that served in China, Qin said. The food's prepared with American tastes in mind.

The visitors, who stayed at the Mayflower Hotel, got a good sense of what life in the U.S. is like, Lorenz said. They went to a Highland Appliance store and were impressed with what they saw.

"It's very big," Qin said. "Great quantity of things."

They weren't able to buy things at the store; the electrical systems in China are different and can't accommodate appliances sold in the U.S.

The visitors were impressed with the American standard of living. They enjoyed watching television and noticed the great variety of programming available.

They also enjoyed such movies as "Top Gun" and "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade."

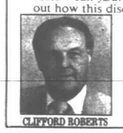

The group would like to visit the U.S. again. Lorenz would like to travel to China, but isn't sure just when that will be possible.

"We had a good time," Lorenz said. "We're all really tired, though. It's been a very hectic schedule."

Parents can help teach value of sportsmanship to think they're the ones participating," Mroczka said. "The baseball league is there for the kids to learn and have fun."

Carol Donnelly's children have had fun being involved in sports. She and her husband have six children ages 18 to 26 who have been involved in various sports, including ice skating, hockey, soccer and baseball.

Active participation on the part of parents is essential, said Donnelly, who works as senior citizens coordinator for the city of Plymouth.

"And we always tried to go to everything, one or the other of us, if not both of us."

MROCZKA HAS found that some parents tend to view games as a form of baby-sitting. Parents drop a child off for a game or practice and then leave. She likes to see parents attend games when they can.

Donnelly, a Plymouth Township resident, has some down-to-earth advice for parents of young athletes.

"Be active, take part," she said. "Also let the person in charge be in charge."

It's fine to talk to a coach about concerns, Donnelly said, although it's best to avoid doing so during a game or in front of athletes and other parents.

Approaching the coach or manager first is a good idea, Mroczka said.

"Don't go to him angry. I think you've got to approach him objectively."

If a problem can't be resolved by talking to the coach or manager, it's fine to contact an executive board member, she said. Offers to help are appreciated; the league depends on the help of volunteers.

Helping children practice at home makes a difference as well, Mroczka said. A parent can help a child learn how to hold the bat or catch the ball. Coaches don't always have the time to provide individualized attention.

"They need the parents behind the kids to practice at home." Parents can also teach their children that winning isn't everything, Mroczka said.

MROCZKA AND Donnelly said their children have benefited from involvement in sports. Mroczka's sons have learned the value of teamwork and sportsmanship.

Donnelly's children have had opportunities to travel, to meet new people and to develop athletic skills. Involvement in sports helped improve their concentration and school performance as well.

"Group participation, I think that's fantastic for kids," Donnelly said. She doesn't believe parents should push children into sports.

"It's got to be something they want to do."

Dates, Canton's recreation supervisor, believes young athletes should be allowed to discover what they want to play.

"I'm against competition at a young age." Athletes of all ages should keep the value of teamwork in mind and shouldn't concentrate just on winning.

"That's the philosophy that was passed on to me," said Dates, who has been involved in sports throughout his life. "I think it's a good one."

Dates favors not keeping track of standings for younger athletes. There's plenty of time for competition as athletes move into their teens.

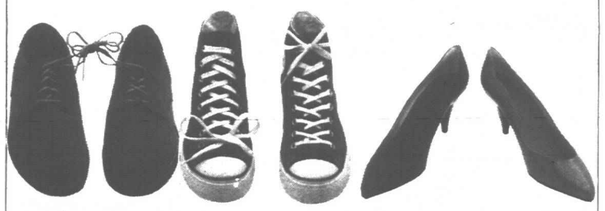

Suggestions for improvement directed at young athletes shouldn't be voiced harshly, he said. Harsh criticism can damage a child's self-esteem.

Dates, a Canton resident, doesn't like to hear 8- or 9-year-olds say they're no good at a sport. To him, that's a sign of too much pressure too soon.

"That's the worst thing that can happen. Let the kids enjoy what they're doing."

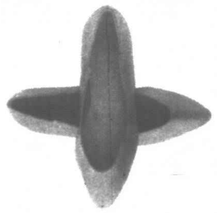

When Friend fell, he called for Help. But the only ones there, were Ignorance, Incompetence, and Indifference.

Kids enjoy summer concert

Singer shares musical magic

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Yarrow got things started by pointing out the different parts of a guitar and banjo. She performed a variety of songs, encouraging her young audience to join in.

Folk singer Yarrow has a simple goal when she performs for children.

"Really, my goal is to have them have a good time."

She encourages children to use their imaginations and to be creative.

"The main goal is to have them feel good, feel good about themselves."

Yarrow is D. Yarrow Halstead of Ypsilanti. She's known professionally as Yarrow, and came to Canton Thursday, July 13, for a performance at the Canton Public Library.

SHE PERFORMED for children in the "Reach for the Stars" summer reading program. The afternoon concert included music played on the guitar, banjo and harmonica.

Yarrow got things started by pointing out the different parts of a guitar and banjo. She performed a variety of songs, encouraging her young audience to join in.

A session of "Name That Tune" included such favorites as "If You're Happy and You Know It," "Frere Jacques" in French and Spanish, and "You Are My Sunshine."

The concert was one of several activity sessions planned for school-age children in the "Reach for the Stars" program. This was Yarrow's first time performing at the Canton Public Library.

YARROW, A Michigan native, has been performing professionally since the early 1970s. She attended Michigan State University and earned an associate's degree from Washtenaw Community College.

She's a preschool teacher who works at a private day care center in Ann Arbor. That center includes infants through sixth graders.

Working with children has helped Yarrow as a performer. She started out working with children at a women's crisis center in Arizona.

"You learn patience and you learn how to pace yourself."

She knows just how much leeway to give a young audience.

The youngsters were allowed to scream briefly during the July 13 concert. Yarrow didn't let them go on screaming indefinitely.

"So you're constantly making assessments like that. It takes experience. There's no substitute for experience."

SHE ALSO performs for adult audiences. Yarrow performs with a company, "Workers' Lives, Workers' Stories," affiliated with the University of Michigan Labor Studies Center.

Performers tour throughout the United States. The performances, including a combination of theater and song, tell the story of working people.

One piece is about health and safety issues workers face on the job; it includes reciting the names of Michigan workers killed on the job in the past year. Yarrow wrote a piece on day care workers that's included in performances.

PERFORMING FOR adults involves an element of drawing an audience out, but it's not nearly as interactive as performing for children.

"Working with kids, you constantly need to be a step ahead," said Yarrow, 34. "It's very different."

Yarrow played with Pete Seeger at a benefit and labor arts exchange program. She has also performed with Peter Yarrow of Peter, Paul and Mary.

Yarrow and Peter Yarrow aren't related. She performed with him in the early 1980s at an arts and music camp in New Jersey. She was working there and his daughter attended that camp.

HER PERFORMANCE at the Canton Public Library was well received by the young readers. The children have also enjoyed other activity sessions at the library, said Judy Teachworth, department head for youth services.

"It's very popular," she said of the summer program. "We have more children than ever signed up."

A total of 717 school-age children are in the "Reach for the Stars" program. An additional 366 preschool children are in the Read-to-Me program at the library in Canton.

"I think it's because the parents are concerned and encourage reading," Teachworth said. "The parents value reading and the children like to read."

Many parents and children come to the library together, she said.

THE SCHOOL-AGE children are reading many books this summer. Encyclopedia Brown books are popular, as are The Baby-Sitters Club series and mysteries. Younger children enjoy the Curious George and Amelia Bedelia books.

Children's classics such as E.B. White's "Charlotte's Web" are popular with young readers. Many children enjoy reading stories about horses.

The summer reading programs make for busy yet enjoyable days at the library.

"Sometimes it gets really hectic, but it gives us a chance to talk to the kids about books," Teachworth said. "We enjoy it."

Working on house provides rewards

Buying an older house and putting some work into it is a more acceptable alternative, Pat said, with the rising costs of new houses. The Touheys advise being careful in picking a house. The movie, "The Money Pit," served as a reminder that choosing the wrong house can be costly.

"Look at it as an adventure," Pam Touhey said.

She'd like to do more landscaping at the house.

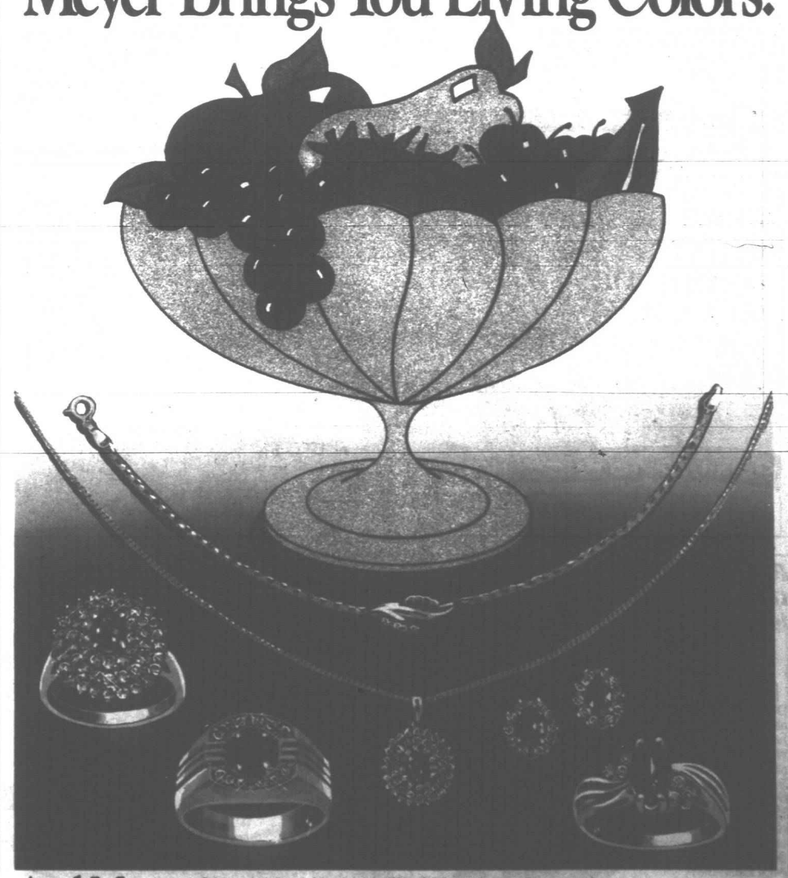

HIRING QUALIFIED people to work on a house is essential. It's best to deal with reputable firms that have been in the area for a while, Pat Touhey said.

He advises checking prices and getting references. Talking to previous customers gives homeowners some idea of what to expect.

They found it helpful to deal with local firms.

"It's a small town," Pat said. "If you're not going to do acceptable-level work, you're not going to be around."

Rev. Lloyd Buss

Ruling on abortion further divides us

It was the kind of insight that is developed through experience. I had never heard it in my 14 years spent in classrooms following high school graduation. (I might have missed it along with a number of other insights.)

He was a member of our church council and he said to me one day, "There are two important things to remember in all negotiations. You never leave the room and you never push the other person into a corner."

Genuine care and regard for his colleagues in the office and on the line made him an especially effective negotiator and personnel officer. He knew them as men and women with goals and dreams and hopes and skills. He knew many of them by name. The plants under his responsibility had higher productivity and fewer grievances than all the others.

His observations about negotiations included the two popular features of humanity that create the very ambiguity we experience in the center of our lives. We have the potential of destruction for ourselves and our fellow human beings. We have the potential for fulfillment for ourselves and our fellow human beings.

THESE TWO powers are constantly at work in our beings and seldom, if ever, are they totally distinct. It can easily happen that the fulfillment we seek is rooted in the destruction of others around us. To be number one means that another has to be number two.

Beyond knowing the truth of human character is the practice of love and care in that constant effort for true community. Some people have the ability of arousing another person's every evil intent, and others have the ability that the consequence is exactly equal to the intention.

The recent decision of the Supreme Court regarding abortion and the actions of many groups supporting this decision have pushed those who do not support this decision into a corner.

With a ruthless disregard for the very nature of community, the gift of human life has been turned into a political issue where one claims victory over another.

Choosing for or against abortion (the word itself is a political word and should not be used in public discourse except in carefully defined terms) is not a political issue nor even a legal one. It has been turned into one because the fabric of community life has been torn by contempt and neglect.

PEOPLE LOCKED in mortal combat have no time and space for that exercise of care and regard fundamental to societal well-being. The net effect of destroying community life in order to save it is a very real responsibility.

It has been said that one cannot choose family, but one can choose friends. Perhaps that is why the plan of Providence is to set the care of life in the midst of family and not in the midst of friends.

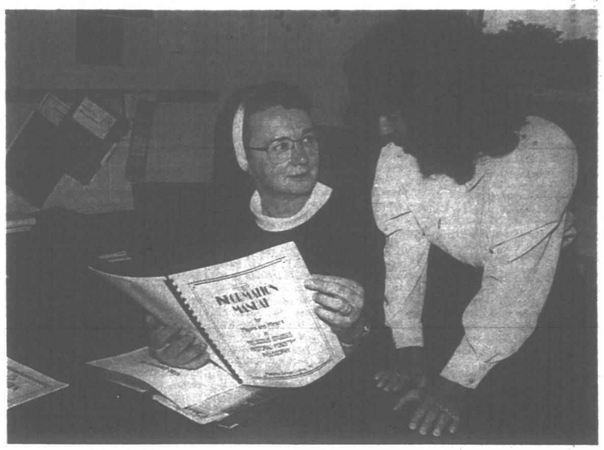

To cause the choosing of sides for or against abortion in the affairs of state is to reject the very relationship of life that was created to carry it.

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor of Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Program offers skills in ministry

Sister M. Ann Stamm, chairwoman of the Religious Studies/Philosophy Department at Madonna College, discusses the new Pastoral Ministry program with student Mariann Lupinacci of Canton.

Pastoral ministry is not for the chosen few, but those who chose it.

With the decrease in clergy, there is a large need for qualified laity to fill the bill. Madonna College has a new pastoral ministry program designed to help a few good people find out what they are good at.

Students can major or minor in the program, supporting scripture and moral/ethical courses with practical skills. People can specialize in criminal justice, gerontology, hospice, sign language or business administration.

In fact, Sister Ann Stamm can't think of one area where the pastoral ministry program wouldn't be applicable.

"This program is designed for people who have done a wide variety of things, but never pulled them together," said Stamm, who is chairwoman of the religious studies/philosophy department at Madonna College. "This program will take an awareness of what areas where the person is strong.

"You can't give what you don't have. But you have to know where your strengths are."

That, perhaps is what separates Madonna College's pastoral ministry program from others of its type. The program is individualized, finding a specialization and then applying it to everyday life.

FOR EXAMPLE, a retired police officer is enrolled in the program so he can help troubled youths. He can use his experiences on the street and enhance those with counseling and other skills taught in the program.

Mariann Lupinacci of Canton knows where her strengths lay. With this program, she hopes to make them even more into focus.

After graduating from Bishop Borgess High School in Redford, Lupinacci began taking religious classes. She had aspirations of becoming a nun.

Then she met John, who later became her husband.

Lupinacci, though, didn't marry away her willingness to help others. She has taught religious education at various parishes. She's also worked with victims of domestic assault and unwed mothers.

Her goal is to specialize in secondary education, perhaps venturing out in marriage counseling.

"This program allows me to be more of a professional," said Lupinacci, who met her husband in Stamm's religious class at Madonna. "It will take my experiences and apply them in other areas."

The program evolved indirectly from an internal study of Madonna's religious studies/philosophy program three years ago. In the course of comparing curriculum at other Catholic colleges in the area ,it was found there was a dire need for a pastoral ministry program.

STAMM THEN worked on a three-year study, looking at pastoral ministry programs across the country. The program is ecumenical and multi-dimensional with both long- and short-term goals.

The program can assist someone already in the ministry, who wants to become updated with some courses. Or, it can help someone tackle a new career with a purpose of help others in mind.

The later is particularly important. Along with the shortage of clergy, skilled lay people can bring experience to areas where perhaps a priest or a nun would be hard pressed.

"As a mother, she can bring a dimension to it that I couldn't," said Stamm, pointing to Lupinacci.

A little humor, some song and banter

Benefit bash stars comic Steve Allen

By Victor Swanson
staff writer

Tomorrow an entertainer's entertainer will be appearing at the Royal Oak Theatre, Fourth and Washington.

He's a man who had his first network television show in 1950, on CBS, has written 30 books, composed about 4,000 songs, and appeared on countless television programs.

He's Steve Allen.

The 8 p.m. event is "Comedy Cares for Seniors," a benefit for the Catholic Social Services of Oakland County, a non-profit social service agency.

On Monday, Allen was in New York, where he was about to host an event at the Plaza Hotel for the Italian Clothing designers, who were showing off the new fall line. He took a few moments before rehearsal to talk about the show at the Royal Oak Theatre.

ALLEN INDICATED that "Comedy Cares for Seniors" would probably consist of passing cards around to the audience and have them ask questions. He'd read the cards and answer the questions with the famous Allen flare, which he used to do on his television talk shows.

And he's scheduled to perform some of his famous songs, such as "This Could be the Start of Something Big."

Opening for Steve Allen will be magician comedian Jeff Hobson, a Detroit based performer.

The event also will give those who attend a chance to get Allen's autograph later in the evening, possibly on a copy of his latest book, "Murder on the Glitter Box."

ALLEN DESCRIBED the book as a "murder whodunit," which from conception has taken two years to be realized in print. The story opens on a television talk show, not unlike "The Tonight Show,"on NBC, of which Allen was the creator and first host. There's a guest host and wonderful guests and everything is going well. Then there's a murder - one of the guests keels over right on camera. The victim's been poisoned.

Of course, the remainder of the story is about finding out who the killer or killers are, all good fun for the amateur arm chair detective reading in a big chair on a dark night.

"Murder on the Glitter Box" is Allen's 29th book in print.

THE NEXT BOOK scheduled to come out is "The Passionate Non-Smokers Bill of Rights," which should be released in September.

Another book scheduled to be released soon is "Meeting of Minds," which will feature scripts from the interview show seen on PBS stations in the late 1970s and early 1980s, in which Allen interviewed great historical characters (that is, actors pretending to be such great historical characters), such as Ben Franklin.

In the 1980s, Allen has hosted and produced such shows as "Steve Allen's Music Room" and "Steve Allen's Comedy Room," both of which were series made up of six specials shown on the Disney Channel.

This season, Allen hosted another television interview show for syndication, and this summer WXYZ-TV, channel 7, has carried it.

It's "Host-to-Host," a set of 13 half-hour shows, in which Allen interviews the interviewers, such as Dick Cavett, Hugh Downs, Larry King and Joan Rivers.

No other television shows are in the works for Allen at the moment.

HOWEVER, ALLEN'S wife, Jayne Meadows, has worked on two pilot television shows over the last two weeks, both of which are comedies.

Allen does have a second record album for Yamaha scheduled to be released soon, consisting of 12 of his own compositions.

Over the last few years, Allen has put together many albums or other artists have recorded his material. Some of the albums are "Paul Smith Plays Steve Allen," "Ann Jillian sings Steve Allen," "Steven Allen's Hip Fables," and "Funny Fone Calls" and "More Funny Fone Calls," the latter two albums of which use material from an early 1960's television comedy-talk show of Allen's that featured such comedians as Mel Brooks, Carl Reiner, Louis Nye and Jack Lemmon.

Another of some 40 albums of Allen's is "Shakin' Loose with Mother Goose," with Jayne Meadows.

ALLEN MENTIONED that his wife was currently involved with giving lectures about powerful women in history and that his son, Bill, was doing well as an executive with MTM Productions, the television company that over the years has put together such shows as "St. Elsewhere" and "Newhart."

The Catholic Social Services states that last year 80 Foster Grandparents served 270 children in 16 sites, for a total of 74,000 hours and that for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, 390 volunteers chalked up 67,500 hours.

Tickets for "Comedy Cares for Seniors," at the Royal Oak Theatre, cost $25 and are still available.

Tickets are still available for Friday's show at the Royal Oak Theater.

Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows are the 1989 spokesmen for the American Cancer Society.

"Comedy Cares for Seniors" will benefit five programs: the Foster Grandparent Program, the Older Adult Counseling/Protective Services, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the Senior Companion Program, and the Sheltering Arms Adult Day Care.

CAMP SUN DEER
We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!
Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer,® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

It has been said that proper preparation prevents poor performance. This month's situation centers on Sheri Woods, who is trying to prepare for a solid financial future.

Woods, a single parent living in Farmington Hills, earns $24,500 as a legal secretary. Her income is supplemented by child support payments of $300 per month.

His short-term goals are modest — she would like to buy a new car this fall and do some home remodeling at a cost of approximately $3,500. Her long-term goals include preparing for her son's college tuition costs and beginning a program of retirement savings.

WOODS, 36, has been frugal with her money. Her only "extravagance" is sending her son to a private school at an annual cost of $1,000. Her son's education will continue to be a high priority for her.

Although she would like to be able to send her son to the college of his choice, she realizes that money constraints may require that he attend a college near home or perhaps a community college for two years to reduce costs.

Woods and her son should plan for this early. We suggest that when her son, who's age 10, enters high school, Woods should familiarize herself with college financial aid programs, talk with financial aid counselors and make use of the many excellent resources available at local libraries.

WE WOULD also strongly suggest that she involve her son in the process of selecting a college and financing his education. If possible, it may be a good idea to allocate a majority of the child support payments (beyond that being used currently for private school expenses) to a college fund.

In general, Woods' estate planning is in reasonably good shape. She has established a testamentary trust within her will. The trust takes effect on death and acts and part of her will.

Presumably the needs of her son and the eventual distribution of assets to him is taken care of under the terms of the testamentary trust. One concern to note here is that because the trust is established within the will, it will remain a part of the probate process under Michigan law until all of the assets have been distributed.

THIS MAY create additional cost and delay under the probate process.

At some point Woods may want to consider modifying her estate plan by executing a revokable or "living" trust to replace the testamentary trust. The living trust, because it is a separate document from her will, will not be a part of the probate process and therefore will not delay the closing of the probate.

TO THE extent assets are funded into the living trust prior to death, they can be controlled for the benefit of Woods and her son if Woods becomes incapacitated.

Except for disability insurance coverage, Woods' insurance picture is in good order. She currently has $50,000 of life insurance coverage that, with other assets, is sufficient to provide for her son's needs should anything happen to her.

She also has full coverage for her home and automobile, including at least $300,000 of liability coverage in each policy. She may want to review the collision coverage presently carried on her car.

BECAUSE IT is an older model (1983) with a value of just $1,500, she might find it advantageous to drop the collision and comprehensive coverage on this auto. After paying the $200 deductible on any claim, the maximum she could collect from the insurance company on this policy is $1,300.

The significant premium cost of this coverage may not warrant the limited potential benefit. Once she buys a new car, she should add collision and comprehensive coverage for that car.

As the sole wage earner of the household, Woods realizes the need to protect her income stream in the event of her disability or illness. If she has no disability coverage available through her new employer, she should consider buying a personal policy covering their income needs until age 65. At her age, the premium should be affordable, and this would fill a major gap in her insurance picture.

ONE FINANCIAL weakness we see is the credit card debts that Woods maintains, and the high interest cost associated with the debt. Woods may want to consider establishing a home equity loan to repay all the credit card debt.

The interest rate on the loan would be lower and would be fully deductible for tax purposes. Care should be given with this strategy, and she should pay off this home equity loan in a two- or a three-year time frame if at all possible. She should resist the urge to extend the period for repaying this loan.

ANOTHER OF Woods' concerns is planning for retirement because she alone is responsible for her long-term financial security. She should be commended for thinking about this so early.

She is fundamentally in good financial shape and because she has the desire to begin providing for long-term financial security now, with proper planning she has a good chance of meeting her goals.

Her most consistent method of saving over the most recent years has been to over withhold taxes from her wages. She then receives a lump sum tax refund and invests it.

THOUGH SHE knows that this is not the most advantageous way to save, it is a forced discipline that puts money aside that might otherwise be spent. Her refunds have been about $2,000 per year.

If Woods believes that this is the only way she can set aside money for the future, she should continue this practice. But there may be other ways to reach the same objective, such as direct deposit of a portion of her income into a separate savings account.

Another plus for Woods is the profit sharing plan that her new employer maintains. Over time this Avon calling.

Glamour and Gifts To Go, a modest shop off Middlebelt near Five Mile in Livonia, is the nation's first Avon outlet store, dubbed the "Avon warehouse" by founder and owner Chris Malinowski, 36. An Avon dealer, she conceived the retail shop idea after deciding the extensive traveling required of her as a door-to-door Avon saleswoman had to go.

"Every so often I come up with something innovative," she said of the idea that Avon corporate executives have called "ingenious."

Receiving Avon legal approval earlier this year, Malinowski launched the shop in April, slowly building a clientele of Avon aficionados who live in areas where there are no sales representatives.

Collectibles, limited editions of Avon ceramics, and a wide array of Avon-manufactured jewelry, cosmetics, scents and lotions are all available at Glamour and Gifts. "Wanted" boards assist in matching customers with coveted hard-to-find merchandise.

Malinowski also sells Avon's current items, including videos on such topics as successful fishing and Mary Hart's Shape Up to an new line of MTV paraphernalia.

"HAVING BEEN in the business (Avon door-to-door sales) for five years, I knew quite a few of the girls (other saleswomen), and I knew they each had quite a lot of extra stock," Malinowski said.

For many, disposing of old stock was arduous and financially unsound.

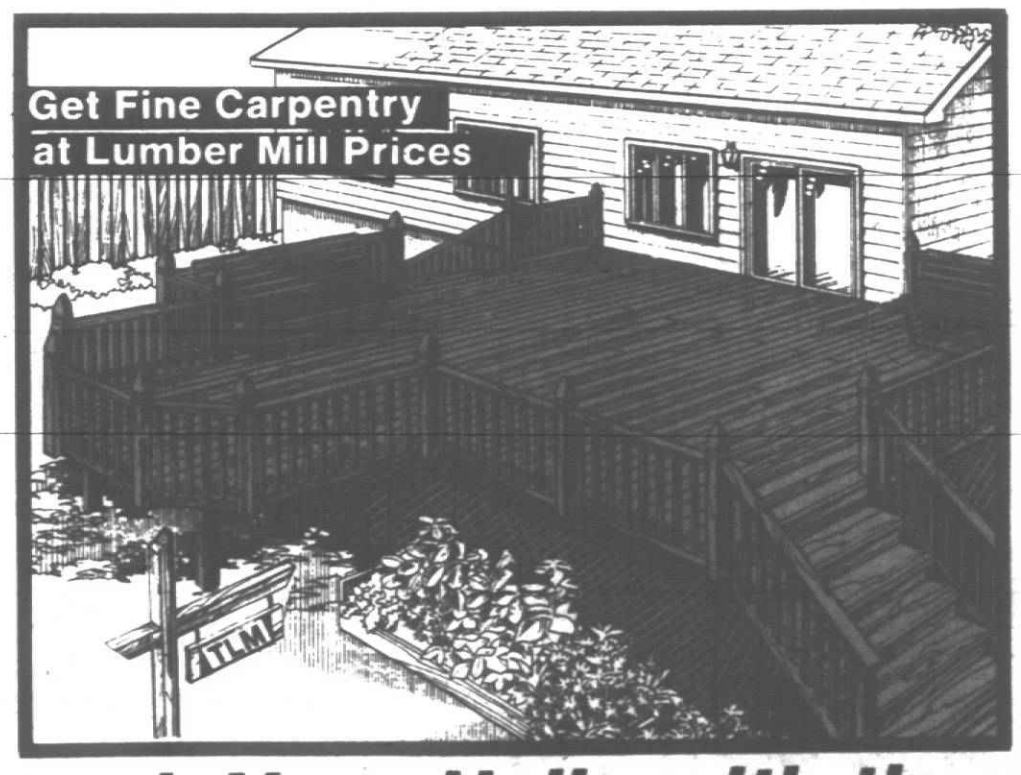

The idea of an outlet sprang to life at a party of Avon reps last Christmas in the home of Jan Allen of Farmington. Allen, who took over her daughter's Avon route four years ago, now works hand in hand with Malinowski.

Originally, Malinowski wanted to name the shop Chris' Avon To Go, but the idea was quashed by corporate officials. Now she has been given the green light to include "featuring Avon products" in all advertising.

"BUSINESS HAS been a little slow," Malinowski admits, but she expects things to pick up next month when Avon sales traditionally rev up in anticipation of the Christmas season.

Glamour and Gifts occupies 1,100 square feet of space in a storefront set back off Rayburn Street. The front of the shop features display cases full of such products as miniature Avon ceramics of Scarlet O'Hara or Elvis and bottles of Collagen Booster that ABC TV's 20 Minutes called one of the better aging products on the market.

One shelf area is devoted to Skin So Soft, a bath oil that discerning consumers realized early on was an excellent mosquito repellent. Sales of the potion have been brisk, constituting a major portion of Malinowski's business.

In the back of the shop, Emma's Hair Salon features only Avon products. Sales of Spritz, an Avon styling mist for $2.59 a bottle, have also been brisk.

"WHAT? AVON still exists?" an astonished guest said in the home of one of Malinowski's Livonia customers.

The comment, she said, is typical today because of the extreme shortage in door-to-door sales reps, particularly in high income areas like Birmingham and the Bloomfields or in areas of high crime.

"Places like West Bloomfield are wide open. I get calls from all over, people who want products but who don't have a rep. Somehow they got my name," she said, adding the most surprising call came from a restaurant owner in Romulus.

The firm's newest advertising campaign centers around direct phone sales by calling 1-800-858-8000. Phoned orders from metropolitan Detroit are forwarded to an area manager who passes them along to sales reps. If none are available, she places the order with Glamour and Gifts.

Malinowski and Allen continue to service clients door-to-door but both urge customers to utilize the shop in hopes of one day discontinuing in-home sales entirely.

IN 1886, David McConnell, a door-to-door book salesman in New York who gave female customers promotional bottles of perfume, realized the perfume was more popular than his books.

He founded the California Perfume Co., named for the romantic notion of a state he had never seen.

By the turn of the century, McConnell had in his employ a staff of professional perfumers who were busy manufacturing products that were advertised in monthly issues of Good Housekeeping.

From those humble beginnings grew Avon that in the first quarter of 1989 netted $704 million. The firm employ more than one million sales representatives both here and abroad.

"Our mothers and grandmothers have been using Avon products for 103 years," Malinowski said, and she aims to see future generations continue the practice.

Early start bodes well for goals could provide a considerable retirement nest egg at no cost to her.

BUT A weakness we see is Woods' low cash reserves. When possible, she should bolster these reserves. We would suggest a target range of $3,000 to $5,000 in a money market account. By adding $100 to $200 per month to this fund, this goal could be reached within a couple of years.

Woods' modest portfolio is in reasonably good shape. But her individual stocks are not well diversified. She should re-evaluate her holdings and liquidate shares where appropriate.

Proceeds might be allocated to more stable assets, such as treasury notes or high-quality corporate bonds. This would also provide her with some additional diversification.

BY PREPARING early and taking the steps necessary to meet goals set, Woods should be satisfied with the performance of her assets. She is well on her way to meeting her priorities of a good education for her son and a comfortable retirement for herself.

Dad's taste improved with age

auto talk
Dan McCosh

"No one in his right mind would pay $4,000 for an automobile" was one of those pronouncements my father would make now and then to cool my adolescent yearnings for a Porsche, which I had already figured out would only be obtainable if I convinced him to buy one, and then I would borrow it.

I started thinking about my father's Oldsmobile as I started to write something about cars I have owned, which is when I realized my dad owned many more interesting cars than I ever did.

Another reason I started thinking about the cars my father owned was because I had to listen to another of those tired pronouncements about how youth has rejected not only Oldsmobiles, but Cadillacs, and most American iron in general in favor of a yuppiemobile of choice — mainly high-performance sports sedans built somewhere north of France.

I REMEMBER when my father bought his first foreign car.

This was, in fact, after the Oldsmobile convertible, which was two-tone red and white, bought shortly after he found himself single in middle age. It seemed the right vehicle to start pursuing the opposite gender a second time around.

The Olds followed a series of Cadillacs, which were considered good road cars that held their value, which followed a couple of Chevrolets. He wouldn't buy anything built by Chrysler after trying it once and finding the only reliable mechanic was at the Jefferson Avenue plant — a fact he brought up 30 years later when I bought a Dodge.

"YOU CAN'T get service," he warned. But I digress.

My dad bought his first foreign car when a friend's son in the Army in Germany got a good deal on a Volkswagen and offered to bring it back for my father.

What came back wasn't even a run-of-the-mill Beetle, but one of the first six Karmann Ghias imported into the U.S. Somehow the bright red, weird-looking car sans gas gauge, with its 25-horsepower, air-cooled motor in the rear struck a chord in my father's engineering heart, and that was the end of the Oldsmobile.

After that, foreign cars reigned, including one of the few targa-topped Hilman Minxes seen on North Woodward. In an odd sort of way, the McCosh household was preceding the current fascination with imports by a couple decades.

UNNOTICED BY me, however, my father was aging. While I was driving the VW to school and getting called out of study hall to get it off the front steps where my classmates had a tendency to carry it in a coarse attempt at humor, the car's rough ride was getting him down.

Enter the 1965 Lincoln Continental, as big a reaction to the tiny foreign jobs as the VW was against the Oldsmobile.

The Lincoln had presence, mass, an incredible ride and more electronics than could be learned in an evening. It was the last car my father ever drove.

That wouldn't be so remarkable except he lived for another 20 years after buying that Lincoln. Eventually he owned three of them, all 1965s. As they aged, he repainted, reupholstered, and for a variety of reasons had to replace them, but always with a 1965.

MY SISTER, in fact, still has the last one, and still drives it when she isn't using her aging Japanese pickup.

Actually, the Lincoln wasn't the last vehicle my father bought. His stockbroker once related to me how he first met my dad, by then in his early 70s.

"He'd just come back from the beach, and he came roaring up to the office on that motorcycle," he said, without adding that by that time my father had trained his dog to ride on the back.

Now tell me again what car you are going to be driving after you retire.

Resume should hint at writer's goals focus: small business

Mary DiPaolo

Resumes serve many functions and should help employers identify and evaluate an applicant's career intentions, skills and experience.

The best resumes employers receive clearly communicate what applicants want to do and can do for the companies considering them instead of merely presenting work history information. Understanding this fact makes the resume screening process a lot easier and less confusing for small business owners and managers.

Lola M. Coxford, in her book, "Resume Writing Made Easy for High-Tech," says employers should expect resumes to serve as a concise fact sheet that advertises an individual's qualifications and experience prior to being contacted for a personal interview.

PHILIP MEAGHER, president of the Southfield Chamber of Commerce, agrees with Coxford and adds that a well-written resume is like an appetizer that encourages employers to find out more about the applicant once his or her resume has been reviewed.

"Simply put, a good resume clearly states a person's career objective and then presents the facts indicating how he or she has gone about achieving that objective through past and present activities," Meager said. "A recent college graduate may have little work experience in the field they hope to pursue but may belong to a club or volunteer group that is related to their area of interest. When this is the case, the information should be included in one's resume."

EMPLOYERS should also check for any inconsistencies that relate to an applicant's previous work experience. "If a person claims to have supervised 16 people but was employed as a clerk, there's good reason to be skeptical," Meagher said.

Before arranging for an interview, employers should make a point to call at least one of the referenced organizations or contact people listed on the applicant's resume. This gives the employer an opportunity to discuss a candidate's skills and qualifications in more detail.

"IT'S OFTEN easier to get information about an applicant from other small business owners or personal reference sources," Coxford said. "Larger corporations are now quite restricted about what can and cannot be said about former employees."

Typically, large organizations can only confirm a former employee's length of service, regardless of the circumstances surrounding a voluntary leave or termination.

For more information on applicant evaluation techniques available to small business employers and managers, call MarkeTrends at 474-1149.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!
CAMP SUN DEER
Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

RN'S & LPN'S

Do you remember why you wanted to become a Nurse? Have you forgotten - lost in the politics and frantic pace of a big hospital? At Physicians Court we haven't forgotten why people become nurses. We have openings for RNs and LPNs who want to remember the basic reasons for nursing.

We are a 129-bed long-term nursing center and part of Health Care and Retirement Corporation (HCR), the sixth largest provider of such care in the United States. Our nurses are exceptional people who enjoy knowing their patients well, which we like the even-paced routine of a long-term center and who genuinely enjoy working as a team.

We offer outstanding time management possibilities and routine work hours. We have a competitive salary structure, shift differential, a good benefit plan including vacation, health insurance, educational opportunities, a promotional from within ties, job satisfaction and pleasant surroundings. We also offer a no benefit option.

Craiger cruising

Craiger is closing in on a possible sixth straight first-place finish in the Plymouth-Canton Babe Ruth League. The perennial baseball power whipped Dry Clean Co. 21-4 Monday night for its 10th win in 12 games. Craiger's Scott Kapla slides into third for a successful steal and then scored when the off-target throw eluded the reach of third baseman Pat Adams. See Page 3D for story.

Hines Park wins; rain stops Caesars

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

The grass needed it, but Livonia Little Caesars baseball coach John Moraitis could have done without all the rain that fell Wednesday at Livonia's Ford Field.

Constant rain and mud halted Caesars game against Walter's Appliance with Caesars leading 6-0 in the third inning. The game, which will be made up in its entirety at noon Saturday at Ford Field, left the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff picture looking equally muddled.

"We've got to play it by ear, now," Moraitis said. "I felt we'd get at least five innings in. This is going to screw up my pitching rotation now."

Hines Park Lincoln Mercury, tied for first place with Caesars before Wednesday, defeated Duffy's Plumbing 12-1 earlier in the day to improve its record to 21-5-1 and take a half-game lead over Caesars.

Hines Park can win the LCBL regular season outright if it wins the season finale Friday at 8 p.m. against Duffy's and Caesars loses one of its last two games. Caesars plays Walter's Friday at 5:30 p.m. at Ford in its regular season finale before having to play Walter's again Saturday.

If there is a tie for first place after Saturday's game between Caesars and Walter's, Caesars and Hines Park will meet at 2:30 p.m. Saturday to decide who is seeded first in Sunday's four-team LCBL playoffs. The playoffs begin Sunday at noon.

Although Hines Park appears to have the upper hand, coach Dave Racer is taking the season's final innings one pitch at a time.

"One win don't mean a thing, if you don't win the next one," Racer said. "We're the little guy in this league. It seems everyone is pulling for Caesars. You read it in the papers — 'Caesars bombs someone, Hail Caesars.' We have to prove ourselves."

Hines Park proved it can back up the complete-game pitching of Dennis Szczechowski with timely hitting. Duffy's pitchers walked 13 batters and Hines Park got another banner day from Chris Sisler, who was 5-for-5 and drove in four runs. He has hit safely in 14 of his last 17 trips to the plate, a terrifying .824 clip.

"It's a good time for him to start," Racer said. "All the boys are hitting well. I hope it continues."

Szczechowski allowed only three hits and struck out five Duffy batters. Duffy's only run came in the fourth when Chris Mussat drove in Mike Siwajek with a one-out single.

Steve Young, the first of three Duffy's pitchers, suffered the loss, allowing three runs, three hits and eight walks over three innings.

Caesars also was the beneficiary of wild pitching. Walter's coach Mike Keller said two of his pitchers weren't in uniform so he started seldom-used Marty Wolfe, who walked six of the first seven Caesars batters in the first inning.

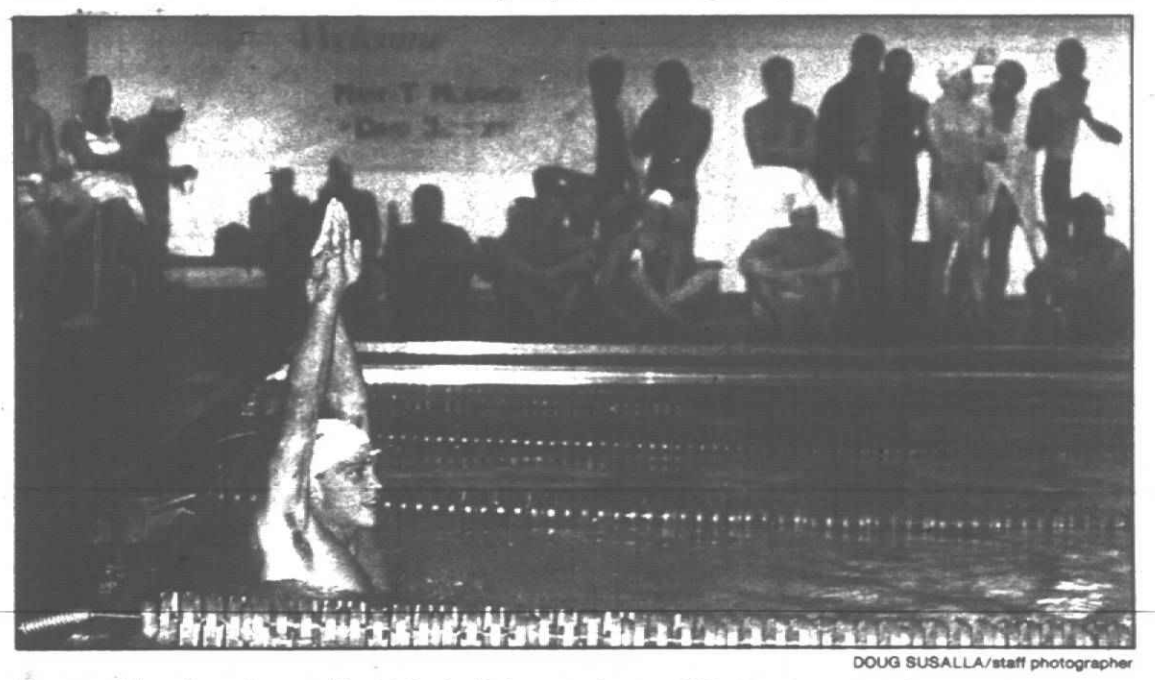

Caesars knocked Wolfe out of the game in the second, after Steve Malgay delivered the game's only real blow, a double down the left field line that scored Tim Napier from first base. Then came the rain. What a coincidence.

"We did a hell of a rain dance," joked Keller. "We feel fortunate. We'd like to beat them one of two. Hines Park sure would like us if we did and it would be gratifying."

Caesars assistant coach Ken Wandzel had the day's most clever idea while waiting through the rain delay.

"I'll tell you what we can do," said Wandzel. "We can all fly out on a jumbo jet and head to Toronto and have the Sky Dome down and play in no time."

Moraitis can't afford a team plane, but maybe Mike Ilitch can.

Former Olympic swimmer David Berkoff demonstrates his technique to a captive audience of aspiring young swimmers Tuesday at Farmington Hills Harrison High School. Berkoff was a gold medalist in the 1988 Seoul Olympics.

Olympic stars promote swimming to area youth

C.J. Risak

CALL IT an investment in the future.

Because it will be years from now — perhaps as much as a decade — before the results are in. Maybe it'll happen at the Olympic Games in the year 2000; a 21-year-old will climb out of a pool moments after a gold medal-winning performance and plunge right into a TV microphone, announcing to billions:

"When I was 10, I met Mary T. Meagher and Dave Berkoff, and that really inspired me."

At least that's what all those Northwest Suburban Swim League and Michigan Stingrays officials, coaches and parents are envisioning. They're the ones responsible for bringing in the two Olympians for a series of five clinics Tuesday and Wednesday in Bloomfield Hills, Beverly Hills, Farmington Hills and Lathrup Village.

Reasons for recruiting such distinguished athletes — Meagher, known as "Madame Butterfly," has won three Olympic gold medals and holds two world records; Berkoff won a gold and a silver in Seoul last year and has one world mark — to conduct several three-hour sessions can vary, from motivational to technical.

BUT THE REASONS don't matter any more than what the athletes actually said or did during the clinics. What really mattered was they were here. And in a sport like swimming, that is very important indeed.

First, understand the swimmer's dilemma. There are long (four or more hours a day), often boring, usually tedious, and mostly submerged workouts daily. Their only object seems to be to test an individual's mental and physical endurance.

And for what? There are no pro swim circuits. When college ends, so do most swim careers. Only the very elite swimmer (translated: Olympic gold medalists) can make money from swimming.

It is a sport requiring single-minded dedication to achieve national success. No other sport can interfere. There's no time for it. Top-grade swimmers train year-'round.

No sport requires so much of its athletes and offers so little in return. Which is why it is so important to have people like Meagher and Berkoff pay visits.

DON'T MISUNDERSTAND. Both believe they are ordinary people, like anyone else in the crowds that gathered to see them. But they aren't. Suffice to say that Oakland County, Michigan's best for swimming, has yet to produce a swimmer the equal of these two Olympians.

When they talk about how to prepare for big meets, or training harder than hard, the gap between them and ordinary people widens. Listen to Berkoff, a Harvard graduate, explain what he enjoys about swimming.

Spartans' win streak snapped hockey

It was a first for the Spartans and the Wolverines in the Metro Summer Hockey League.

When the Wolverines defeated the Spartans 10-7 Monday night, it was the Spartans' first loss and the Wolverines' first victory.

The Spartans, 5-1, retained their grip on first place in the Bakes Conference, however, and the Wolverines, 1-6, will need more wins to get out of the Eagle Conference cellar.

Chris Riffle knocked in two goals and teammate Matt Wiljanen assisted on four to lead the Wolverines, who rebounded from a 6-5 loss to the Broncos the previous night. They also received solid goaltending from Mike Janiak in the face of a strong challenge from the league leaders.

David Ward (one goal, two assists) and Gary Scott (one goal, one assist) paced the Spartans.

BRONCOS 6, LAKERS 3: The Lakers had the MSHL commissioner, A.J. Baker, on their side, but even a higher power couldn't prevent a Broncos victory Monday.

Baker, who also coaches the Lakers, suited up and played in the game since his team was shorthanded. The 30-year-old Baker did score a goal, by the way.

Neil Carnes had two goals and one assist to lead the Broncos, who overtook the Falcons and Huskies as the Eagle Conference leader.

Alan Carnes assisted on three goals for the winners, and John Potts had a goal and one assist. Craig Johnston had the same as Potts for the Lakers.

It was a rare contest from the standpoint no penalties were called, Baker said. The players evidently were on their best behavior, having the commissioner next to them on the ice.

BRONCOS 6, WOLVERINES 5: John Potts scored the eventual deciding goal early in the third period Sunday for the Broncos, who improved to 4-2 with their back-to-back wins.

Potts' goal gave the Broncos a 6-3 lead before the Wolverines rallied on third-period scores by Chris Nickerson and Brian Stover. Alan Carnes had two assists for the winners.

BULLDOGS 9, FALCONS 8: Vic Decina of the Falcons took individual scoring honors with a four-goal performance Sunday night, but the Bulldogs won the team contest behind Mike Jorgensen's three-goal, one-assist effort.

Sean Flynn contributed two goals and one assist, J.P. LaRoche one goal and three assists for the winners. Sean LaFere also scored once and set up three other goals for the Falcons.

LAKERS 5, HUSKIES 4: The Lakers nearly wasted a 4-1 lead, but Larry Pilut salvaged a victory for the No. 2 team in the Bakes Conference when he scored the winning goal late in the third period.

John Smith had two goals for the Lakers, and Joe Burton chipped in one goal and two assists.

The league standings are as follows: Bakes Conference: 1. Spartans, 5-1; 2. Lakers, 3-2-2; 3. Bulldogs, 2-2-1; 4. Wildcats, 0-4-1. Eagle Conference: 1. Broncos, 4-2; 2. Falcons and Huskies, 3-2; 4. Wolverines, 1-6.

Redford club plans review of talent

Following a busy off-season in the front office, the Redford NACE (North American Computer Equipment) Junior A hockey team has turned its attention to the ice.

The team, formerly known as the Redford Royals, will conduct a mini-camp for veterans, free agents and draft choices July 22-23 at the Plymouth Ice Arena.

The club has invited 112 players to the camp, including 32 veterans from its Junior A and Junior B (known as the Wayne Chiefs) teams, eight free agents and 72 players whose rights were acquired in last month's draft. Walk-on players are not invited to this camp.

Players will be divided into four teams for the two-day workouts that will enable the coaching staff to evaluate talent before the start of training camp on Friday, Aug. 18.

"What we'll be trying to do is determine where our strengths and weaknesses are, position by position," coach Kyle Krug said. "This way, when we go into camp next month and begin formulating depth charts, we'll have a better understanding of where we're at and where we need to go."

THE REDFORD NACE consists of 17- to 19-year-old players and will compete in the West Division of the North American Junior Hockey League. The acquisition of the franchise by NACE owners Larry and Marilyn Johnson and subsequent name change are part of a radical front office overhaul.

Rudy Cifolelli, president of MCN Computer Services, is the new general manager. His assistant is Eddie Mio, former NHL goalie with the Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers.

Krug, the new head coach, comes to Redford from the Compuware hockey program, where he coached Junior A and Midget teams for the past four years. Dave Rosteck, formerly head coach at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and Tim Zimmerman, currently the head coach at Grosse Pointe South High School, have been appointed as Krug's assistants.

Smith wins S'craft title

A week after Wimbledon, Schoolcraft College hosted its own tennis tournament — the Boys/Girls Junior Open.

The talent last weekend was no match for the prestigious English tournament, it's true. But the Schoolcraft tourney provided its own excitement.

In one of the day's closest final rounds, Matt Smucker won the 16-Under boys crown, beating David Koonp 7-6 (7-5), 6-3. Winning the 18-Under boys title was Paul Ripley, who ousted Rich Cundiff in the final, 6-2, 6-1.

Arvid Swan was declared winner of the 14-Under division after Chris Matson retired, falling behind 1-6, 0-1. Dan Eynon was the 12-Under boys winner, prevailing over Evan Hayes, and the 10-Under crown belonged to Bradley Adams, a 6-0, 6-0 winner over Dan Smokler.

In the featured match among girls, Plymouth's Missy Smith won the 18-Under crown, beating Charis Hunt, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. The 16-Under title went to Dee Geelhood, who beat Varisa Boriboon, 6-1, 6-1, in the finals.

Boriboon's sister, Anita, managed to take a first-place award home, winning the 14-Under crown, 6-0, 6-1 over Kelly Kirkpatrick. The 12-Under champion was Andrea Narvaes, who beat Cynthia Obsitnik, 6-3, 6-2 in the final round.

The Schoolcraft College Men's/Women's Senior Tournament begins Friday and anyone interested in playing should call Joe Brennan at 397-1537 or 462-4434, for more information.

Olympians motivate youth

"Money was never important to me. My happiness was important. And I was always happy in the water. Money shouldn't be a motivating factor to kids.

"To me, workouts are the greatest thing in the world. That's what I really miss. I don't miss the competing at all."

Does that sound ordinary?

When Meagher related her experiences with the pressure surrounding the Olympic Games to a bunch of kids by saying "To me, it was no different than it was when I won my first national (event) when I was 10" — who could possibly identify? How many will ever compete at a national meet, let alone win at one?

These are two athletes who experienced a greater degree of success by the time they were teenagers than most of their audience will in a lifetime. As Meagher admitted, winning motivated her.

While success may not have come easily to them, there's no denying it came more often. Certainly more often than the average person experiences.

SO THERE was precious little the kids in the crowd could actually relate to, at least on an Olympic athletic level. The gap separating the crowd and the Olympians was like the difference between an Escort and a Ferrari.

Even their advice on technique was too brief to be really useful. As Meagher said, "They may learn a few technical things, but I'd never take credit for a future butterflier. I don't expect to do miracles."

That's why their mere appearance outweighed anything they said or did. That's what made the gamble of bringing them into Detroit a good one for the NSSL and Stingrays.

A sport like swimming desperately needs ambassadors. It needs people like Meagher and Berkoff — and Rowdy Gaines, who appeared briefly at Farmington Hills Mercy earlier this year — as role models and motivators.

Even if the kids in the crowds can't identify with Olympic experiences, or imitate a Berkoff Blastoff and dolphin-kick on their backs 25 meters underwater, at least now they know such people do exist. They've met 'em, in the flesh.

And one day maybe, just maybe, one from the crowd will assume the ambassador's role.

SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

Scott Babut of the Dry Clean Co. considered stealing second base then had second thoughts and returned safely to first. Craiger's Kevin Goff got the throw too late to make a pickoff.

youth sports

Following are the results of the 10th Annual Youth Superstars Contest Saturday. The Cantons Parks and Recreation Department sponsored the competition.

GIRLS 13-15

First place: Stacy Movinski, 13, 46 points. Movinski demonstrated her versatility by scoring in every event. Her best were basketball and Frisbee — events she won — and she was not far off in golf and running, taking second in those.

Second: Lisa Lenaghan, 14, 45 points. Lenaghan made a strong bid to be the age-group winner, missing the top spot by a mere point. She, too, made a balanced showing and placed in six events. Lenaghan won the running and baseball events and was second in Frisbee and soccer.

Third: Jessica Bailey, 13, 41 points. Bailey also was champion in two events — golf and soccer — and, despite scoring in all areas of competition, had to settle for third.

BOYS 13-15

First place: Eric Cunningham, 15, 41 points. Cunningham captured top honors in Frisbee and baseball, and he was runner-up in basketball and golf.

Second: Brian Spuck, 14, 23 points. Spuck was the best in soccer and running in his age group.

Third: Mike Donhost, 15, 21 points. Donhost won the basketball competition and took second place in the Frisbee toss.

GIRLS 10-12

First place: Jessica Ghazal, 12, 38 points. Ghazal placed in all six events and was the soccer and running champion.

Second: Rita Ghazal, 12, 34 points. She scored points in each event, too. But her best was basketball in which she finished first.

Third: Alice Arvidson, 11, 32 points. Arvidson was the Frisbee toss winner and was second in baseball.

BOYS 10-12

First place: Doug Spuck, 11, 28½ points. Spuck was the running and baseball winner.

Second: Adam Cunningham, 11, 27 points. Cunningham placed first in the Frisbee toss, second in running.

Third: Mike Mezgec, 12, 25 points. Mezgec had a well-rounded performance, scoring in five of the six events.

GIRLS UNDER-9

First place: Jenny Storm, 9, 49 points. Storm placed in all six events, winning the basketball and Frisbee competitions.

Second: Jane Arvidson, 8, 34 points. Arvidson also placed in every event, finishing first in baseball.

Third: Chelsea Francon, 9, 28 points. Francon was first in running, second in basketball and soccer.

Craiger once again toast of P-C Babe Ruth League

Craiger continued to pound opposing pitching Monday and moved a step closer to winning a sixth consecutive championship in the Plymouth-Canton Babe Ruth League.

Behind an 18-hit attack that raised Craiger's total to 46 in its last three games, the team blasted Dry Clean Co. 21-4 at Flodin Field.

Craiger, having improved its league-leading record to 10-2, had a three-game lead over second-place Dry Clean Co. with four games remaining as of Monday. Craiger teams are 89-15 since 1984.

"We turned over nine players from last year's team," Craiger coach Bob Ruete said.

The team expected to lose five players because of age limitations, but four others decided not to return, leaving Craiger with some unexpected holes in its roster.

"WE HAD TO find some players and we did," Ruete said. "We've worked hard and managed to turn it around."

Kevin Goff, one of the few 15-year-olds on the current ballclub, was one of the major hitters Monday, going 4-for-6 and getting two RBI. Winning pitcher Scott Kapla was 3-for-5.

Matt Horn, John Lahti and Chris Tomas added two hits apiece and four, three and two RBI, respectively.

The 14-year-old Kapla, who has allowed just one earned run in his last three appearances (14 innings), tossed a one-hitter for five innings. Horn worked the last two innings. Rob Eyre went five innings for the Dry Clean Co. and took the loss.

Despite the lopsided score, Craiger had only a 3-2 lead after four innings but made a decisive move in the fifth, scoring 11 runs on six hits, three walks, a hit batsman and two errors.

With the bases-loaded, Horn bounced a fly ball off the center-field fence for a two-run single, and Lahti, Goff and Tomas also had two-RBI hits in that inning.

ON HIS SECOND trip to the plate in the fifth, Lahti singled home another run, and Sammy DiPrima added an RBI double.

Craiger got six more runs in the sixth. Kapla led off with a double, and Horn, Goff and Charlie Winstell hit singles that produced one run each.

On another front, a weather-shortened game between Twist 'N Shake and Craiger from Monday, June 26, was ruled a 6-4 victory for Twist 'N Shake. The game was stopped in the top of the sixth inning because of lightning.

Twist 'N Shake coach Al Turri subsequently sought a ruling from Babe Ruth headquarters in New York, and the national organization determined enough innings had been played to constitute a regulation game. The teams play again Monday.

Vince Turri, Jeromi Dennis and Jim Cunningham had key hits in that game, and Twist 'N Shake defeated Dry Clean. Co. 10-8 on Tuesday, July 11, behind the hitting of Mike McGregor and Ben Hendricks. Jim O'Doherty was the winning pitcher.

Craiger, meanwhile, chalked up a pair of victories last week, including a 14-3 defeat of Twist 'N Shake on Thursday, July 13. Craiger kept up its strong hitting as it pounded out 16 hits. Jeff Kley and Tomas had three apiece, and additional help came from DiPrima and Goff with two hits each.

CRAIGER USED the combined pitching of DiPrima, Tomas and Matt Horn to hold Twist 'N Shake to three hits.

On Wednesday, July 12, Craiger again used three pitchers — DiPrima, Tomas and Kapla — to limit the Dairy Junction Express to just five hits.

HP's Loomis hurls no-hitter

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

A no-hitter by Brad Loomis highlighted Hines Park Lincoln Mercury's double-header sweep Sunday of Walter's Appliance.

Hines Park defeated Walter's 1-0 and 12-8 in games played at Canton High. The sweep moved Hines Park's Livonia Collegiate Baseball League record, not including Wednesday's game against Duffy's Plumbing, to 20-5-1.

Loomis raised his record to 3-0, leading Hines Park to the narrow win in Game No. 1. The Northville resident who attends Siena Heights College, struck out two and walked only a pair even though his time on the mound has been limited this month.

"He hadn't thrown in awhile," Hines Park coach Dave Racer said. "He had been having a little arm trouble but came out and threw hard. I didn't realize he had a no-hitter going. I planned on using five pitchers.

An RBI double by Chris Sisler scored Joel Riggs, who had walked, with the game's only run in the bottom of the first inning. Sisler is 9-for-12 in his last 12 games, collecting 11 RBI and one homer during that span.

Hines Park needed more offensive production in the nightcap and got it again from Sisler, who had three hits and drove in six runs.

HINES PARK trailed 7-6 after 4¼ innings, but a six-run fifth gave Hines Park the edge.

Sisler delivered a two-run single, two-run double and two-run homer. John Bonham, Brad Wright, Kevin Learned and Chris Michalik contributed a hit apiece. Learned, who has coach Bonham scored four times and Learned and Michalik scored two runs apiece.

Bob Files, the second of three Hines Park hurlers, picked up the win although he was pitching when Walter's scored three runs in the fifth. Mike Sulak closed out the game, allowing one run.

Marty Wolfe, Joe Sturtz and Jeff Pendell had two hits apiece for Walter's. Wolfe, who doubled twice, drove in two runs and Sturtz had one RBI.

Hines Park escaped with a 2-1 win Friday over Tom Holzer Ford, as Learned's single in the bottom of the seventh drove in the winning run at Canton High School.

Sisler again led the hitting parade, going 3-for-3. The win went to Dennis Szczechowski, who got enough support to record his fifth victory in six decisions.

Holzer led 1-0 after 6¼ innings, but Hines Park scored two runs in its last bat to go home victorious.

Sisler opened the rally with a one-out single.

Pinch runner Scott Wladischkin stole second base, a wild pitch brought him to third and he scored on a suicide squeeze bunt by Dan Niemiec.

A wild pitch sent Niemiec, who was safe on the bunt, to second, and a two-out single by Learned brought him home.

DUFFY'S PLUMBING coach Ray Fracassi is excited about Sunday's LCBL playoff opener because "some teams are peaking" and he believes Duffy's is one of them.

Duffy's ran its winning streak to five games Sunday, sweeping a double-header from Wendy's, 9-4 and 14-7 at Ford Field. The sweep improved Duffy's LCBL fourth-place record to 12-10-2, and Fracassi is thinking his chances in the playoffs are as good as the first-place team, whichever that may be.

"The playoffs will be very tough," Fracassi said. "Some teams are peaking and some teams are dropping. We've won five in a row and six of our last eight — that's peaking.

"Caesars and Hines Park are the ones to beat because they have the older players. The rest of the teams are a year away, but the nine-inning (playoff) games make a difference. That way, no one pitcher can dominate."

Adam Havey's three RBI led the way in Game No. 1. Jason Hicks picked up the win, allowing three hits and no runs in four innings of work. Wendy's scored four runs off reliever Joe Jentzer. Lee Tappy was 2-for-3 for the winning team, and drove in one run.

A seven-run fourth inning lifted Duffy's to the easy win in Game No. 2. Tappy and Joe Delfgauw, both Redford Union graduates, had four RBI each. John Storm, now 3-2-1 on the mound, earned the win in three innings of relief. Duffy's was trailing 4-1 when Storm entered the game but he was the beneficiary of Duffy's heavy hitting.

Hicks and Jentzer combined on a two-hitter Friday, leading Duffy's to a 7-4 win Friday over Walter's Appliance at Ford. Hicks started and left after four innings though he had a perfect game going. David Houghtby, who allowed nine hits and seven runs over 6⅔ innings, suffered the loss for Walter's.

Mike Kaczmarek had two singles and a triple to drive in four Duffy's runs. Dave Crespi collected two hits and an RBI and John Gotts had an RBI double for the winners.

In action last Wednesday, Duffy's pounded Holzer, 10-3, behind the combined pitching of Steve Young (Bloomfield Hills and Vanderbilt University) and Hicks. Young was lifted after the fourth inning with Duffy's ahead, 9-1.

Kaczmarek again swung a big bat, clubbing three hits in four trips and one RBI. Todd Fracassi, Mike Fiwajek and Crespi stroked a pair of hits each. Fracassi drove in one run, Fiwajek knocked in two and Crespi had three RBI.

LIVONIA LITTLE CAESARS began play this week impressively, beating Tom Holzer Ford Sunday by identical 10-0 scores in a double-header played at Ford Field. Caesars was tied for first with Hines Park at 20-5-1 before Wednesday's game against Walter's.

Mark Thierry was the winning pitcher in Game No. 1, throwing a one-hitter and striking out six in going the distance. Art George (Redford Union and Evansville University), the LCBL's leading hitter, had three RBI and was 3-for-5. Chris Kloc had three hits in three plate appearances and Tim Napier and Eric Linck both collected two hits each.

Mike Boyd got credit for the win in the nightcap, a game that lasted only six innings because of the mercy rule. Boyd struck out six, walked four and allowed four hits.

Steve Malgay had three hits and Napier drove in two runs. Kloc, Miller and Jack Daniels had two hits each.

Caesars beat Wendy's 7-2 Friday at Ford as Kloc picked up his fourth win without a loss. Kloc, a Redford Thurston graduate, went the distance and surrendered seven hits, fanned seven and did not walk a batter.

Shawn Maloney, Napier and George shared the hitting responsibility. Napier drove in two runs on the win, Maloney had three hits and two RBI and George was 2-for-3.

Concours D'Elegance

Finally — automobile accepted as fine art

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

ARTIST PETE MAIER runs on as many cylinders as the vintage cars he paints and draws — Rolls-Royces, Duesenbergs, Packards, LaSalles, Mercedes and Auburns.

Maier, poster artist for the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook Hall on Sunday, Aug. 6, is a man with a mission. When he left General Motors as senior designer for the Chevrolet, Pontiac and Cadillac divisions in 1980, to become a full-time artist, he was determined "to bring the automobile as a subject into the realm of fine art rather than illustrative art."

To do this, he traveled a circuitous route. He concentrated on subjects such as animals and people and moved to rural Pennsylvania, convenient to New York City.

He established himself as a versatile artist who delighted in doing larger than life paintings of cows and horses and still lifes as well as cars. He eventually found two New York City galleries ready to handle his work and promote him widely — Louis K. Meisel Gallery and Gallery Henoch.

HE WORKS IN GRAPHITE, egg tempera, oil, acrylic air brush and printers' ink. PHH Fleet America recently bought one of his drawings for a record $30,000, a distinct improvement from what his drawings and paintings used to sell for at the Shain Park arts fair when he was living in Troy and working for GM.

When he works with classic cars as his subjects, he frequently will do the same basic subject in each of the five mediums in which he works, "Each one is handled in a different way," he said.

The size in which he works, the planning, detail and the techniques which he has developed since those early days of his career give him a special place in the art world. He has perfected a technique in his front views of cars of showing much more in seemingly perfect perspective than the human eye could possibly see.

This requires not only an intimate knowledge of the vehicle, but great technical and artistic skill as well. It's like a camera's fish-eye lens view or frog's eye perspective without any distortion. From a video which Maier made, it's clear that there's very little guesswork in this process.

"My auto paintings are the biggest being done in the world today. . . The fine art world has accepted my autos as fine art — but, boy, that took a while." The largest is 6 by 7 feet and he plans to do side views in the 8 by 25 foot range.

HE SAID HE HAS SOLD more than 400 paintings since he left GM in 1980, but he hasn't had a one man show — not because he hasn't been asked, but because everything he does sells so fast, he can't accumulate a body of work.

"It sometimes takes six to eight weeks to do one piece. The watercolor paper is imported from England on a roll. I build my own stretchers."

He said paper is affixed to the stretcher and every inch is wetted down before he begins.

His egg tempera painting for the Concours d'Elegance poster is 48 by 64 inches. He said, "I had a big frame made and I finished it up to sort of look like the architecture at Meadow Brook. It weighs 75 pounds." It will be sold at the special preview auction on Saturday, Aug. 5, before the Concours.

Maier builds his own frames as well as his own stretchers. He said that the big ones framed, properly set back and ready for hanging weigh 185 pounds each.

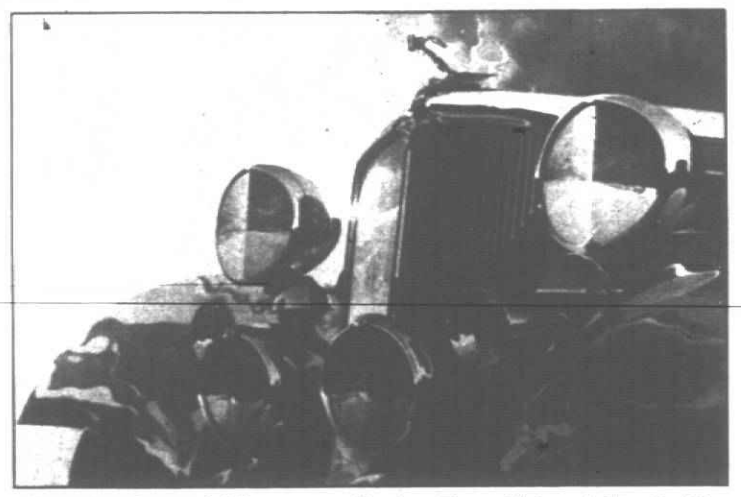

Maier won the award of excellence at the 1987 Concours and among his awards is the Gold Medal of Honor from the Allied Artists of America and the Edgar A. Whitney Award from The American Watercolor Society. Dick Kughn of Southfield, longtime Concour committee member, classic car collector and exhibitor, is one of Maier's biggest patrons and currently owns more than 30 of his major pieces.

Maier learned last spring that Automobile Quarterly will be doing a full color ten-page write-up of his art for next spring's issue. While the publication has done illustrators in the past, he is the first fine artist to be featured.

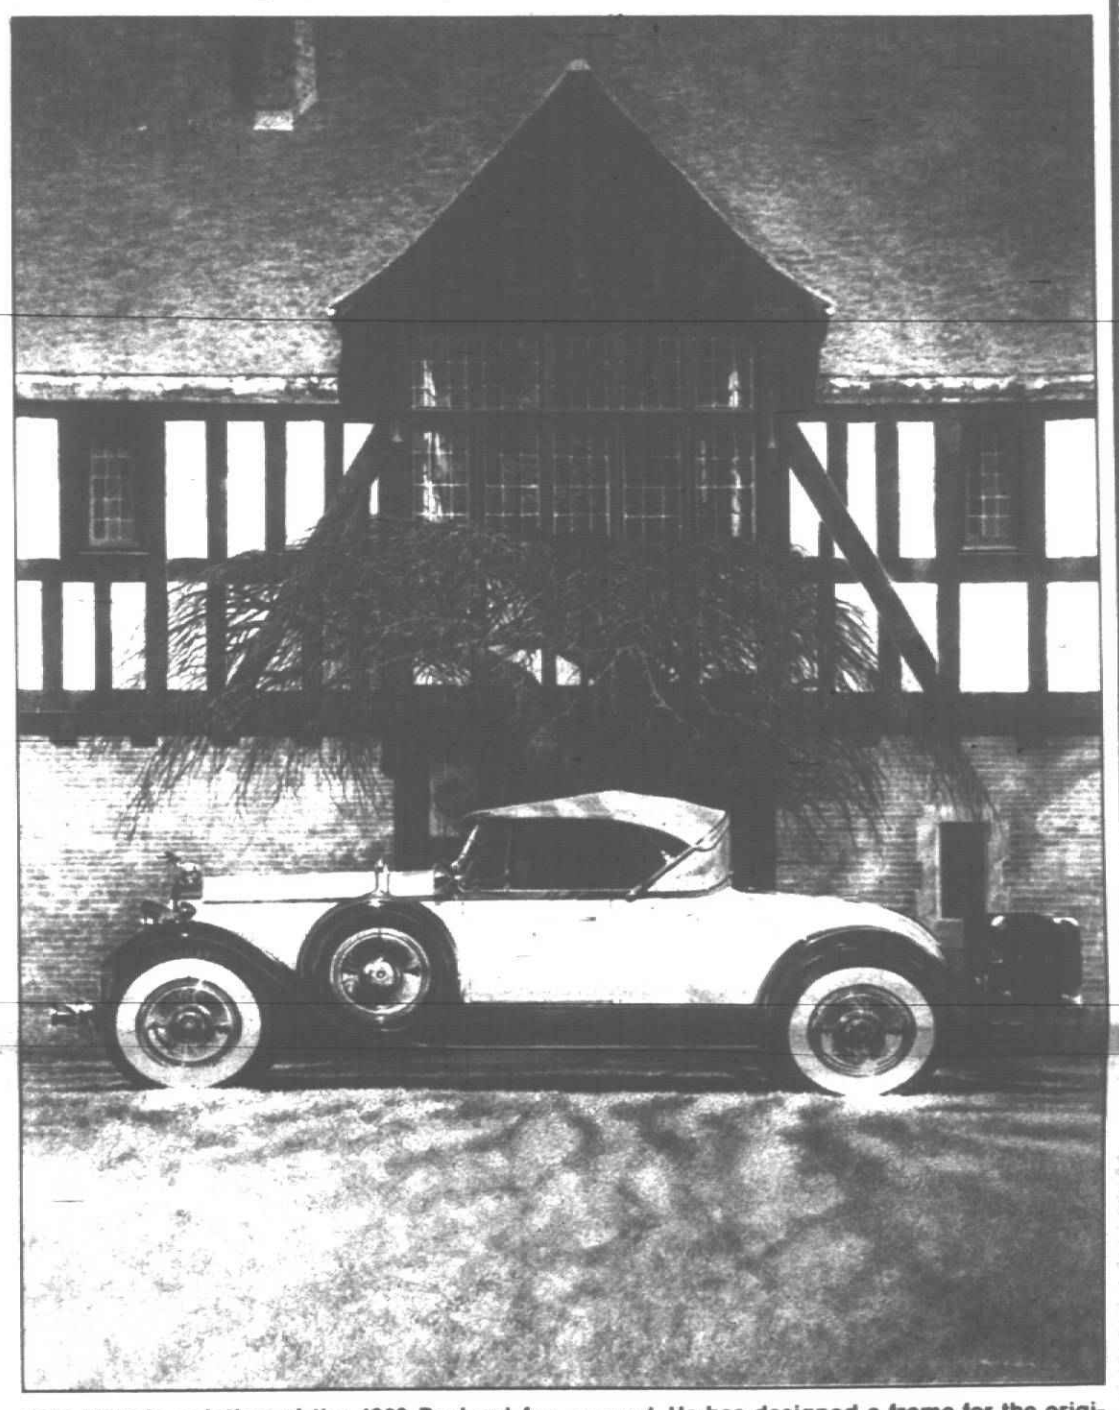

TOM HALE OF Northville, who was also a GM designer before he left to become a full-time artist, is chairman of the art exhibition. Hale, like Maier, not only does paintings of cars, but handles a variety of other subjects adeptly as well. He is one of 13 nationally recognized artists in this year's art exhibition at the Meadow Brook Pavilion.

Hale said the proceeds for last's year's auction, which lasted about 30 minutes, were more than $60,000. He predicts this year's will top that. Part of the proceeds from the preview auction will benefit Meadow Brook Hall.

The Concours is the largest annual single-day fund-raiser for Meadow Brook Hall.

"Chrysler Imperial," an acrylic by Tom Hale of Northville, chairman of the invitational art exhibition at the Concours, will be in the art show along with works by a dozen other artists.

Pete Maier's painting of the 1929 Packard for this year's Concours D'Elegance poster is set against a Meadow Brook mansion-type background. He has designed a frame for the original, to be auctioned, that also suggests that type of architecture.

Concours d'Elegance features art events

The 11th annual Concours d'Elegance benefiting Meadow Brook Hall, a cultural institution of Oakland University, Rochester, will feature an invitational automotive fine art exhibition and sale on Sunday, Aug. 6, as well as a variety of art activities throughout the weekend.

Starting with a Friday evening preview in the Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion sponsored by Autometric of Royal Oak, more than 2,000 collectors will be invited to examine and purchase featured art show pieces prior to the Concours opening.

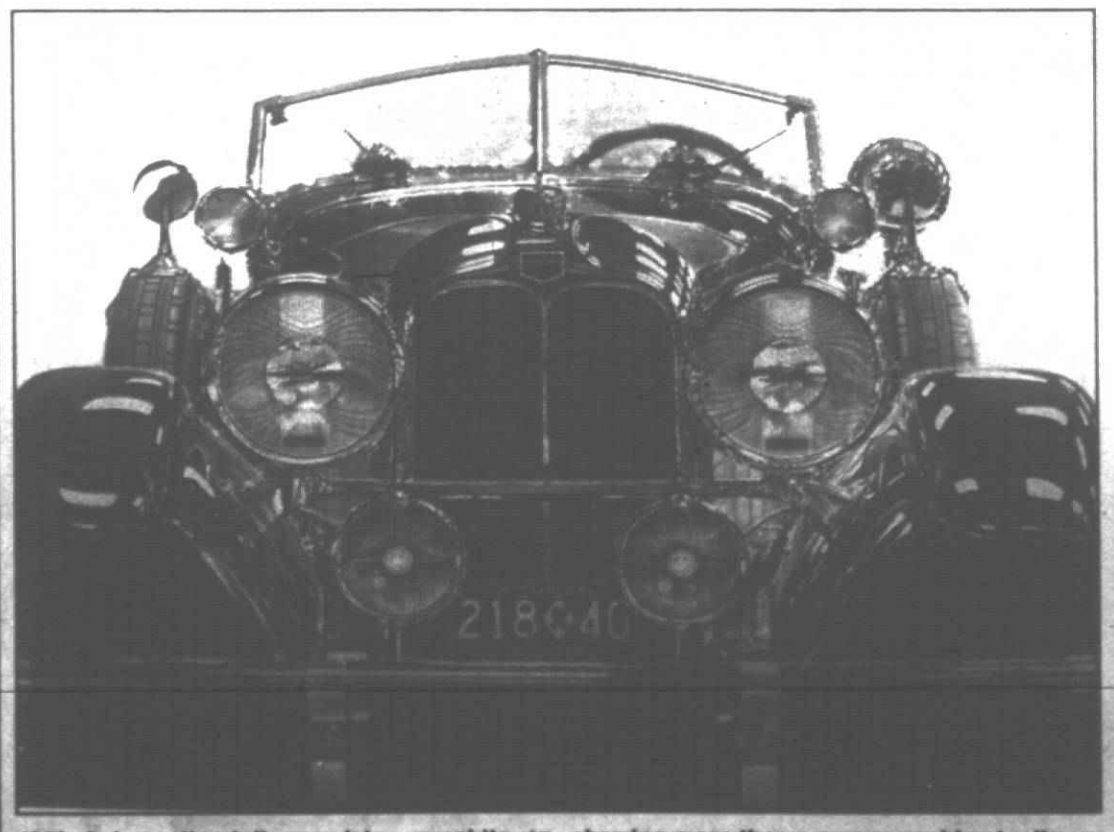

The art show judging will take place at the preview reception and three winners will be announced at the end of the evening. Art show judges Alf Bogusky, director of the Art Gallery of Windsor, Jan van der Marck, curator of 20th Century Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts and Charles Jordan, vice president, GM design staff, will present three Awards of Excellence. Each award of Excellence includes a $1,500 cash prize.

Saturday's itinerary will feature a formal banquet for Concours participants, committee members and invited dignitaries. The official poster painting for the Concours as well as a piece by each exhibiting artist will be auctioned during the banquet to benefit the Hall.

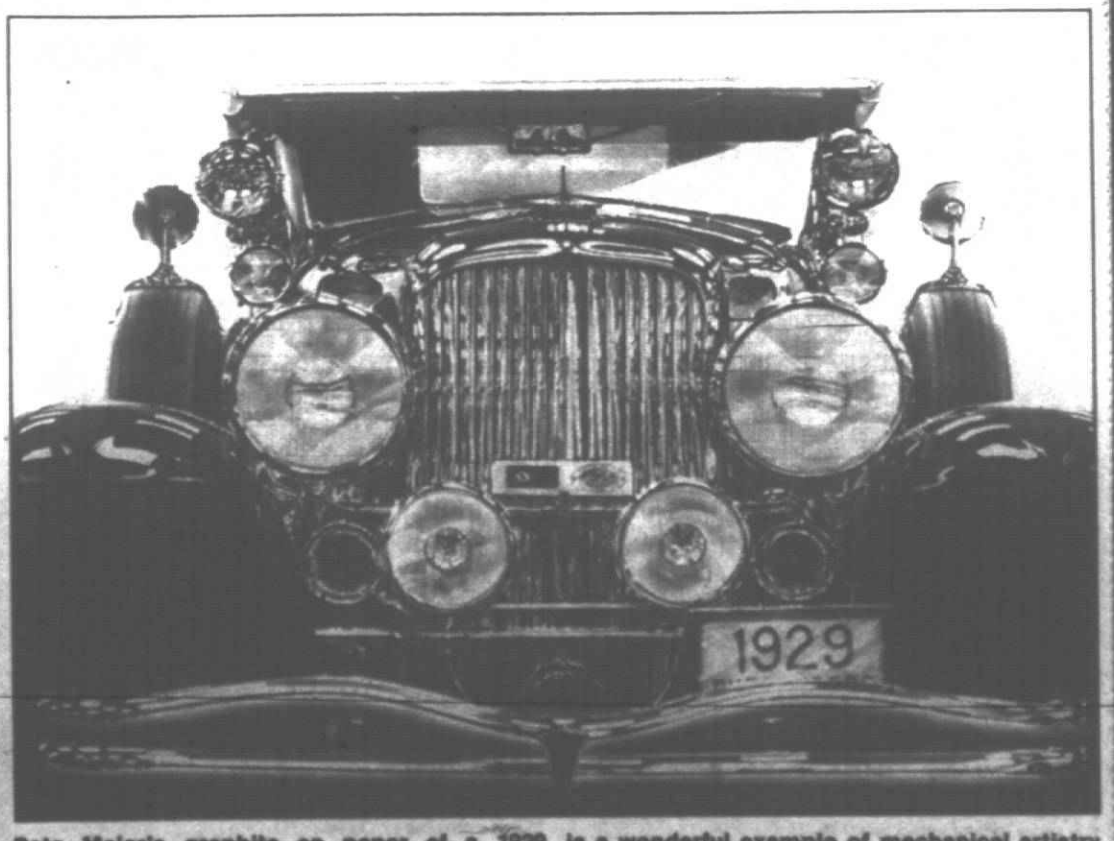

All the invited artists will attend the art show and auction, including poster artist Peter Maier of Buck Hill Falls, Pa., and Dennis Brown of Claremont, Calif., the poster artist for Meadow Brook Historic Races, the Concours sister event. The art show brochure will be provided by Thompson Advertising of Farmington Hills.

Invited artists include Jorge-Ferreyra-Basso of Bischofsheim, West Germany; Larry Braun of Loveland, Colo.; N. Gray Counts of Clarkston,; Ken Dallison of Toronto, Canada; Ken Eberts of Temecula, Calif.; Dennis Fritz of Chelsea, N.Y.; Tom Hale of Farmington Hills; Bill Neale of Dallas, Texas; J. Paul Nesse of Minneapolis, Minn.; Thierry Thompson of Toronto, Canada; and Stanley Wanlass of Astoria, Ore.

The Concours is open to the public 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 6. Admission is $10 for adults, $5 for children ages 5-12 years. Children four years old and younger will be admitted free. Call Meadow Brook Hall at 370-3140 for details.

1929 Auburn (boattail speedster, graphite on paper) illustrates how Pete Maier keeps everything in seemingly perfect perspective while showing more than a person could actually see at a single glance. It is 72 by 87.5 inches.

Pete Maier's graphite on paper of a 1929 Duesenberg (dual cowl Phaeton) is in a private collection in Virginia. It is 72 by 87.5 inches and is a wonderful example of mechanical artistry and design in reality and on paper.

Mystery writers on panel

Three of Michigan's best known mystery writers will discuss their works and writing at 6 p.m. Sunday, July 23 in Borders Book Shop in Novi.

Loren D. Estleman, author of "Silent Thunder," Tom Kakonis, author of "Michigan Roll;" and William X. Kienzle, whose latest novel is "Eminence," will participate in the panel discussion.

Space is limited and those interested in attending should register in advance by calling Borders at 347-0780.

Kienzle

Kakonis

The author of several private-eye novels as well as westerns, Estleman's stories are often set in the Detroit area. "Silent Thunder," his latest novel, is the tenth book featuring detective Amos Walker. In the story, Walker finds himself thrust into the illegal munitions scene in Detroit, where he is caught between the police and the gun dealers.

Also set in Michigan is Kakonis' first novel, "Michigan Roll." When professional gambler Timothy Waverly, a former college professor, returns to Traverse City he is soon on the run from two vengeful, sadistic killers. Kakonis is himself an English teacher, whose writing has often been compared to that of Ross MacDonald and Elmore Leonard.

WHILE ESTLEMAN AND Kakonis' novels feature tough, street-wise heros, Kienzle chronicles the detective work of amateur sleuth Father Robert Koesler. In Kienzle's most recent book, "Eminence," Koesler investigates a curious fivesome, a priest and four religious brothers, who have reportedly been performing miracles in a converted downtown bank building. Kienzle was a Catholic priest for 20 years, and since leaving the priesthood has written 11 novels featuring Father Koesler.

University of Michigan English professor Dr. James Gindin, who has recently taught a course on the mystery genre, will serve as moderator for the panel discussion. Borders is located in the Novi Town Center.

Background can heighten impact photography

Monte Nagler

Even though the person will invariably be the focal point, don't allow the background to dominate. The environment should always complement the subject.

In past columns, I've mentioned the need for simple, plain backgrounds that don't distract from the main subject in your photograph.

Plain backgrounds direct the viewer's attention to the subject and normally result in greater impact in your shots.

But there are times when using the environment as a background will add extra dimension to your pictures, especially those of people.

A background can add information to a photograph of a person, particularly when the surroundings form his or her natural environment. A background can tell us something of a person's interests, job or social status.

Even though the person will invariably be the focal point, don't allow the background to dominate. The environment should always complement the subject, not overpower it.

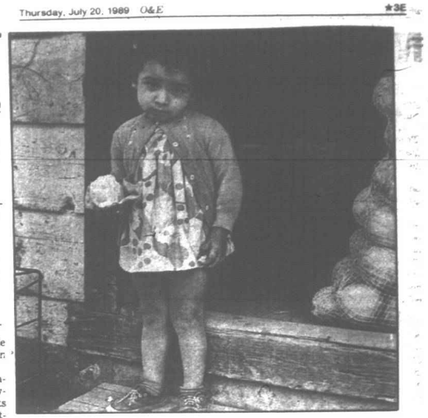

Try placing your subject in the middle or near foreground for pleasing size proportions. For good composition, don't center the subject in the viewfinder and be sure your aperture is small enough to place both the subject and background in the camera's depth-of-field.

The photograph shown here was taken in Matamoros, Mexico. Notice how the little girl is without doubt the focal point of the photograph, but see how the surrounding elements help create the mood and setting.

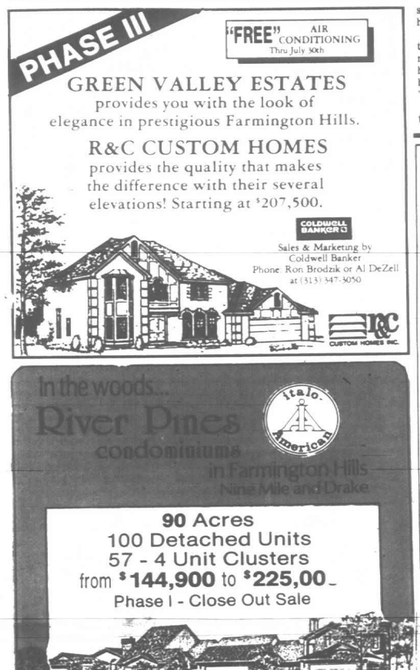

In this case, the impact of the photograph is derived from the complementary background. Notice, too, how much information is conveyed by the background, how it helps to "tell the story."

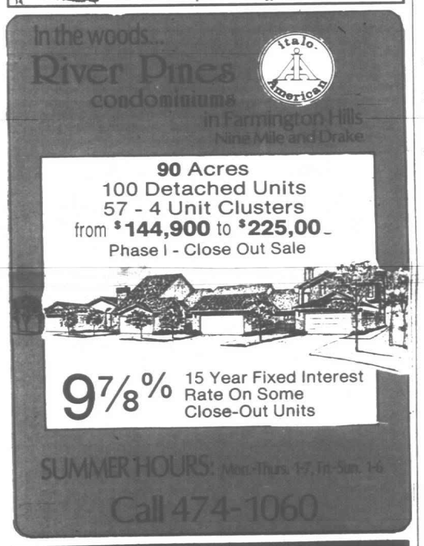

As in all good photography, pay attention to lighting and camera angle and choose the lens that will enable you to include all that you want in the viewfinder.

Internationally known photographers Yousuf Karsh, Arnold Newman and Annie Leibovitz are experts at photographing people in their natural environments. A look at books by these masters will be a valuable and rewarding experience for you.

This photograph of a Mexican girl by Monte Nagler gets its strength and impact from the background, which complements rather than overpowers the subject.

Seth Smathers, National Chairperson

'88 plates-of-the-year performance tracked

Plate of the Year and Market Performer for 1988 have been announced by Michelle Suttle, of Georgia's Gift Gallery, an information center for the Bradford Exchange, the world's largest trading center for limited-edition collector's plates.

Limited-edition plates are initially sold to collectors at issue price on the primary market. After an edition is closed, plates are bought and sold from one collector or dealer to another on the secondary market, where prices rise and fall depending on supply and demand.

After entering the secondary market in May 1988, "Pao-chai" — the first collector's plate from the People's Republic of China — generated a record level of trading activity and appreciated 165 percent in value to $74 by the end of 1988, according to Suttle. This performance earned it the title of Market Performer for 1988.

ARTWORK FOR THE plate was created by Zhao Huimin. Produced by Imperial Ching-te Chen Porcelain. "Pao-chai" was the initial issue in the "Beauties of the Red Mansion" series.

Plate of the Year was "The Pintail" from Knowles China. This honor is bestowed on the collector's plate posting the largest secondary market gain in active trading during the preceding year. "The Pintail," which appreciated 310 percent over its issue price of $19.50, was trading at $80 by the end of 1988.

At the left, "Pao-chai," first issue in Beauties of the Red Mansion series. At the right, "The Pintail," first issue in Living with Nature: Jerner's Ducks.

● OUR TOWN EXHIBITION

Michigan artists are invited to submit their interpretation of "Our Town," any hometown and its meaning to them as part of competition held in conjunction with the Our Town Exhibition and Sale benefiting the Birmingham Community House.

Works may pertain to, but are not limited to, the following: Michigan landmarks, architecture/city, nature/landscape, people portraits and still life. Art work must be two-dimensional wall pieces, any medium, ready for presentation, wired for hanging and not previously shown in the 1986-87 or '88 "Our Town" exhibition.

Entries will be juried from 35mm mounted slides. A maximum of four works may be submitted from each artist. Slides are due Monday, July 31 with the completed entry forms. To receive a form, call the Community House, 645-5832.

Shuttle will get you to fair

The Ann Arbor Art Fair is taking place now through Saturday. The fair is 900 artists, artisans and craftsmen, outdoor entertainment and restaurants, sidewalk sales and displays — all in the small university atmosphere of Ann Arbor.

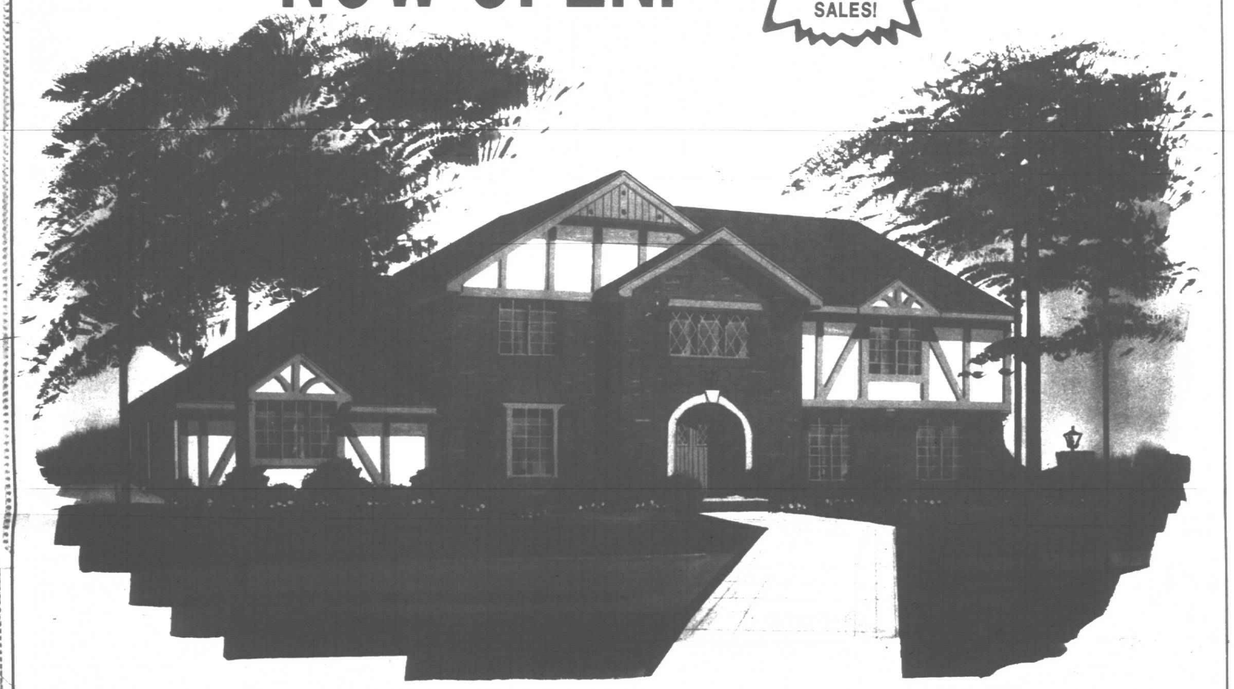

It is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The best way to get the fair — and some say the only way to get to the fair — is the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority shuttle bus service operating from the Briarwood Mall and Pioneer High School parking lots.

The shuttles operate every 10 minutes

Inuit exhibit offers glimpse of Canadian Arctic

An exhibition of Inuit prints at the University of Michigan Museum of Art will offer a rare glimpse of one of the world's last traditional hunting cultures and celebrate the 30th anniversary of printmaking by the Inuit.

"A New Day Dawning: Early Cape Dorset Prints," on display through July 23, will exhibit 20 prints from the first five years of printmaking in the Canadian Arctic, featuring 16 artists.

> 'The artists represented form an important group, and the images are diverse in nature . . .'
> — Graham Smith

"The artists represented form an important group, and the images are diverse in nature, illustrating the day-to-day activities and the mythologies of the Inuit peoples," said Graham Smith, interim director of the museum of art.

"Many of the early Cape Dorset artists were women, and their vision provides a particular insight into the lives and beliefs of the Eskimo peoples."

Prior to 1959, the Inuit had a long tradition of carving in ivory and stone but no knowledge of printmaking. Canadian artist James Houston introduced printmaking into the Arctic and, under his encouragement, the Inuit produced carvings and later prints for exhibition throughout the United State.

Along with Houston, U-M regent emeritus Eugene B. Power encouraged the Inuit to pursue printmaking and and established Eskimo Art Inc., through which the Inuit could distribute and market their works.

Power and his wife have donated two prints from their personal collection to the U-M Museum and loaned others for the upcoming exhibition.

Marion Jackson, associate dean of the U-M School of Art and expert on Inuit Art, assisted the museum in organizing the exhibit. She has written the catalogue for the exhibit.

Tips on curtain care designing ways

Eve Garvin

Q. We are building a new home. The house will have 4,000 feet of living space. Our ceilings are nine and 10 feet high. The floors will be marble. We like a contemporary look.

We now have two navy blue leather sofas in our living room. Can we use them in our new home with marble floors? Our interior designer has suggested raised panel doors, crown moldings and various trims. Are these appropriate for our new home?

A. You may use your leather sofas with the marble floors. However, since you have used them in your living room, why not change and try them in your library or family room? I agree with your interior designer on the various trims for architectural detail. The sleek lines of modern or contemporary are a wonderful surprise with the traditional trim.

Q. My under curtains in my living and dining rooms are dacron-polyester. I was told the fabric is machine washable. Should I try to do them myself?

A. If your curtains have a rod pocket you should have no problem handling them. If they are pinch pleated, I suggest sending them out. I personally have sent my curtains and draperies to the Custom Drapery Cleaners in Hamtramck. They do a wonderful job — they not only remove them, but rehang them as well.

Very frequently I am asked how long one should wait to have curtains and draperies cleaned. My answer is that unlined curtains should be done once a year. Lined draperies that are vacuumed frequently can go for two to three years.

Dance Collective classes, auditions

Detroit Dance Collective will offer day and evening workshops for the serious student and professional dancer.

Three weeks of intensive study will be offered 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Mondays-Thursdays, July 31 to Aug. 17.

Contracts for male and female dancers are available for a 26-week season. Dancers must be 18 or older, experienced performers and trained in modern dance and ballet.

STONEBRIDGE

Meet Mr. Seth and Mrs. Lindsey. Two friends sharing a moment that just might be remembered for the rest of their lives.

It's a scene that happens at a family community like Stonebridge, every day. On sidewalks where children play. At get-togethers where neighbors meet and talk. And in West Bloomfield schools where education is still a priority.

Stonebridge is much more than just quality homes. It's large bedrooms and family rooms, luxurious bathrooms, seven different floorplans, vaulted ceilings and European kitchens. But most of all living at Stonebridge is the start of something beautiful.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."

"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And--luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."
