It's still summer

So what if school's started already? Geoff Perpich and Nicholas Range, both 8-year-olds from Canton, make time for summertime fun, catching crayfish in a creek between Plymouth-Canton and Salem high schools.

Bics burst; store closes

By Keith Postler
staff writer

It wasn't exactly a blue-light special, but it did cause some commotion at K mart in Canton Township last week.

The light was created when about 250 Bic butane lighters expoded in the store on Ford Road near Sheldon, according to Canton police.

The store was evacuated for about an hour Wednesday afternoon, said Canton police officer Pat Nemecek. No one was injured.

Three youths are suspected of sparking the blast, authorities said. The cause of the blast was unknown.

The incident occurred around 4:10 p.m., said assistant store manager Richard Trongo, when two shelves of disposable Bic butane lighters were ignited. The lighters, on display in an aisle behind the deli counter, began to burn and pop, he said.

Linda Brenner, 47, of Westland, was working at the customer service counter when she looked up and saw flames shooting up behind the deli counter.

"Before that, I had seen three boys coming around the corner and going out of the store quite fast," she said.

Brenner said the incident happened so fast she could only describe the boys as being about 10- to- 12-years-old. She said she did not know if they ignited the butane lighters.

Paul Lazar, a K mart security guard, was in the security office when he received an emergency call that there was a fire near the deli counter.

"I ran toward the front of the store as fast as I could and started hearing the pops from the lighters and saw the flames going up about two or three feet above the counter," he said. "I grabbed the first fire extinguisher I could find."

Lazar, along with K mart home center manager Roger Whitehall, put the flames out before Canton fire fighters arrived at the scene.

"It all happened so fast you couldn't really tell what was happening," Lazar said.

Canton fire fighters arrived shortly afterward and evacuated the store while they cleared smoke from the building, Nemecek said.

The butane lighters were valued at $700 and the shelves at $300, police said.

When the incident occurred, Trongo said the store was not crowded. Trongo could not estimate how much damage was done by the fire.

"We don't know how much damage was done," he said. "We're still cleaning it up."

Trongo also said that the store reopened Wednesday about 5:05 p.m., less than an hour after the fire was reported.

Nemecek said the incident is being investigated as an arson.

Blanchard signs aid bill at 'very special school'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard picked "a very special school" to stage the signing of Michigan's $2.6 billion school aid bill, emphasizing the small items to improve quality rather than the megabucks.

"This focuses on at-risk children, wherever they are — Wayne-Westland, Detroit, Saginaw, Marquette or Bloomfield Hills. Every community has children at risk, some more than others," the governor told a crowded library in Vandenberg Elementary School, in Wayne.

"The principal, teachers and parents worked more closely together here to develop a plan to improve the school, to enhance this very library, to involve the community in goals for the school," said Blanchard.

THE GOVERNOR'S helicopter created a mild sensation as it landed in the playground for the Wednesday morning ceremony, in which he signed House Bill 4336 into law.

Besides a healthy 7 percent boost for K-12 schools in an era of 5 percent inflation, the bill contains a batch of specific measures to give schools incentives to improve.

Among them: $2 million for redesigning schools to improve student performance, $2.5 million for "school improvement plans" that will be publicized to the community, and $5 million in achievement incentives in math and reading.

"There are a growing number of children from disadvantaged families where, if we don't intervene early before they get to school, we're afraid they'll never — ever — succeed in school, stay in school, have a good job to have a good life," said Blanchard.

HIS STAFF spent several days picking the ideal school for the signing. They finally settled on the racially mixed, blue-collar neighborhood school south of Michigan Avenue that had used trickle-down university grants to improve reading skills (see related story on Page 2A).

Blanchard told the youngsters he grew up in a less-than-affluent suburb called Ferndale and gave away boxes of ceremonial pens.

Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, and Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, along with officials from the school district and two cities and teachers, crowded the back of the room, applauding when the governor said, "In seven years, we've raised education (funding) 89 percent while the rate of inflation has increased 25 percent."

But his real message was school improvement to make the state more competitive in a world economy.

"WE'VE HAD to redesign our factories. Now we need to redesign our schools — to give teachers and administrators power to decide how best to teach kids.

"Not everybody learns at the optimum rate by sitting in a classroom for six hours a day in 45-minute segments. There are a lot of other ways — field trips, hands-on experience, student involvement, writing papers, participating in plays and debates.

"There are a lot of measures (of school success) besides just test scores — reducing dropouts, reducing teen pregnancy, increasing attendance, reducing violence, improving employability."

He plugged Proposal A on the Nov. 7 ballot. It would increase the sales tax 0.5 percent to 4.5 percent and generate $400 million in new revenues, including $135 million for

Power outage closes 5 Plymouth schools

An early-morning power failure Tuesday gave some students in the Plymouth Canton school district an extended Labor Day holiday.

Classes were called off at Canton and Salem high schools, Pioneer Middle School and Isbister and Gallimore elementaries, said Richard Egli, community relations director for the schools.

Students and teachers are expected to return Wednesday, he said.

"Some transformers malfunctioned," said Carl Berry, Plymouth Township police chief.

"Wires are down. About 1,400 customers are affected," said Lorie Kessler, an Edison spokeswoman.

The affected area was bounded by Ann Arbor Road, Sheldon, Joy and Canton Center Road, Kessler said.

The outage occurred at about 6:10 a.m. Some people reported seeing flashes and hearing explosions.

No injuries were reported, Berry said.

"They told us it shouldn't be more than a couple of hours once they started working on it. That's so indefinite, we had to close," Egli said.

Coins are a good investment, but watch for sharks

By Keith Postler
staff writer

For "Larry," a 34-year-old businessman from Pinckney, the proposal seemed too good to pass up: Spend $3,000 on an investment that was almost guaranteed to double in value in less than three years.

Or so he was told.

He spent $3,000 in 1988 on a $1 1873 U.S. gold coin, and later found out it was really only worth approximately $1,300. He also spent $2,600 on an 1892 Colombian coin, when it was only valued at $1,300.

Imagine an investment so good that for a decade, it outperformed all others — from oil and U.S. Treasury Bills to U.S. stamps — compounding annually at a whopping rate of 25.7 percent.

ENTER RARE U.S. coins, the investment rage of the '90s.

"I know what I'm doing now that it won't happen to me again," Larry said recently. "I just assumed everybody was playing by the same rules, but apparently they weren't."

Larry knew of the potential for appreciation, but wasn't aware of some of the rules involved when buying rare coins. Like millions of others, he was the victim of less-than-ethical business practices bordering on fraud.

In Larry's case, a Miami, Fla., rare coin gallery sold him a number of coins that were improperly graded and overpriced. He has gotten some of his money back, he said, but will be more careful in the future.

LARRY'S STORY is not uncommon, said Charles Jarrait, president of Richard Charles Rare Coin Galleries in Plymouth.

"When you find an area that is really blossoming, you find con men who come into the business to take advantage of people, and rare coins are no exception," he said.

The market for rare coins has been blossoming since the turn of the century, Jarrait said.

The reasons for the surge in popularity, he said, are twofold. Truly rare, high-quality coins are available in a fixed, limited supply only, while the number of collectors and investors continues to grow.

In the late 1950s and early '60s, for instance, Jarrait estimated that 500,000 coin collectors were in the United States. Today, that number has ballooned to 18-20 million, he said.

School wins praise for improving reading

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Many schools should follow Vandenberg Elementary School's lead in improving reading and convincing parents and kids that it's important.

"They're ahead of where we are statewide," said Don Beemis, state superintendent of public instruction, who joined Gov. Blanchard in praising the 235-pupil school tucked away in a Wayne neighborhood between Michigan Avenue and Van Born Road.

"They're sketching out a three to five-year plan on where they want to go, on involving the community. It's kind of a prototype, a model of what we want to do statewide as far as restructuring schools and utilizing technology in the classroom.

"We know certain things work," said Beemis, adding the money for Vandenberg's experiments came through last year's higher education bill. Many of its experiments can be repeated across the state with special program money in the new state state school aid law Blanchard signed there last week.

PRINCIPAL David Gracy is still amazed that "of our six goals, we accomplished 5½ in just half a year."

Parental involvement is the goal only partly met. Gracy said teachers, who "read good literature to children daily," next will videotape their readings. Youngsters will be able to take the tapes home to play for their parents.

The computer lab soon will be open after school for parents and kids to use together. That's another element of parental involvement.

Gracy said the changes were made with a $6,000 CSIP grant — that stands for collaborative school improvement process — beginning last school year.

"FIRST WE moved the library from the smallest room in the school to the biggest. That was to emphasize the library as the most important room in the school," he said.

The computer lab takes up one side of the library. Children's book characters perform in the library.

"I don't want to even have a class called Reading," said Gracy. He and the nine teachers integrate reading into all subjects.

For example, they use a technique called "semantic mapping," which is simpler than the jargon sounds: "If we're going to read a story on bears, the kids put on the board what they know about bears — their colors, the woods where they live, the rivers and streams. They start the story with a broad vocabulary," he said.

OTHER TECHNIQUES that placed Vandenberg ahead of the state pack:

- A preschool program was started last November.
- All teachers meet twice monthly to achieve a consensus on goals, speakers and other programs.
- Through creative scheduling, teachers concentrate for three hours, three mornings a week, for reading comprehension. That was difficult at Vandenberg, where many youngsters are in special education while others take art or music.
- Teachers run lunch time programs for children of alcoholics or with divorced parents.
- It was the first to ask the city of Wayne for an after-school recreation program.

Gracy has been principal for four years. After nine years as a high school teacher, he spent several years in career education, adult education, and teaching employability skills to ADC mothers. Then he was an assistant principal at two junior highs.

He is also certified in special education and as a social worker.

Be cautious about coins

vestment if you just follow the rules," Jarrait said. "It's just like any other investment, but people just don't know the rules involved with rare coin investment."

JARRAIT SUGGESTED the following rules:

- Make sure the coins have been graded and certified by one of the major independent grading services. The services are the Professional Coin Grading Service, 1-714-250-1211; the Numismatic Guaranty Corporation of America, 1-201-984-6222, the American Numismatic Association Certified Service, 1-719-632-2646; and the Numismatic Certified Institute, 1-214-742-2200.

The PCGS is the industry standard for grading rare coins and can provide a list of authorized PCGS dealers in the United States and Canada, said Mike Saum, a rare coin dealer with Richard Charles. Of the four services listed above, the NCI is generally viewed as more liberal, Jarrait said.

- Buy quality. Low-grade coins, as a rule, tend not to perform as well as high-grade coins.

Why is a high-grade coin so rare and valuable? There is no one answer, Jarrait said. Rare coins are more valuable because fewer were minted and even less are in circulation today. Some are high quality because of the detail and the artisans who handcrafted them; others are rare because of their metal content and bullion value.

- Don't bounce in and out of the coin market. Coins are normally considered long-term investments (three to five years). If you don't think you will hold the coin for a minimum of three years, don't buy it.
- Buy coins that are special and unusual. When looking at rare coins as an investor rather than a collector, you only want high quality rare coins, not high quality old coins.
- For your protection, deal only with a dealer that is a member of the Coin and Bullion Dealer Accreditation Program. CABDAP is an independent, voluntary and industry-wide program of self-regulation, like the Securities and Exchange Commission is to the securities industry.

"As long as people are knowledgeable and people know the rules, coins can be a tremendous investment, and have proven to be a tremendous investment," Jarrait said.

"I think the more we are able to alert the public, it piques people's curiosity about what is going on and how they can protect themselves from getting ripped off," Saum said.

Drunk driver has 2 accidents

crime watch

A 27-year-old Westland man was cited by Canton police for operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor in connection with two traffic accidents that occurred two minutes apart Wednesday morning on Michigan Avenue near the Haggerty Road intersection.

In the first incident, which occurred at 1 a.m. Wednesday, the man passed one car while traveling at a high rate of speed east on Michigan, then swerved into that car as he continued toward Haggerty Road.

In the second incident, minutes later, the man disregarded a red light at the Haggerty Road intersection and hit a second vehicle as it was turning onto southbound Haggerty.

The other drivers were not injured in the accidents. The driver of the first car was treated for an arm injury at Oakwood Hospital and released for further treatment.

STEREO EQUIPMENT TAKEN: Approximately $310 worth of stereo equipment, including an AM/FM stereo cassette player and two cassette tapes, was taken from a Volkswagon, the owner told police Wednesday.

The 29-year-old Canton resident told police that when he came out to his car Wednesday, he discovered the right rear window had been pried open. The man also found that the dash board had been damaged, as had the window frame. He estimated the damage to the window at $50.

Canton police have no suspects or witnesses in the incident.

BIKE STOLEN: A 42-year-old resident of the 7917 block of Kaiser told police Tuesday that someone stole his 8-year-old daughter's bike out of the family garage Tuesday afternoon.

The girl told police that after riding her bike, she placed it in the garage around 3:30 p.m. The father discovered the bike missing around 8:30 p.m.

The garage wasn't locked, he told police. The girl also stated that she didn't give anyone permission to take her bike.

The father told poltce the 10-speed blue bike cost about $160.

MONGOOSE LOOSE: A 20-inch mongoose, not to be confused with the rodent-eating, ferret-like animal, was taken from the front of an Arbor Drug store in Canton Tuesday evening.

The owner of the Mongoose brand men's bicycle told police the bike was taken sometime between 5:30 p.m. and late Tuesday night. He estimated the bike to be worth $200.

In an interview, Blanchard said he wouldn't support Proposal B, a 2 percent increase tied to property tax reductions. "Proposal A has more money for education. B has property tax relief, but it's not permanent. People will be disappointed when they find that out," he said.

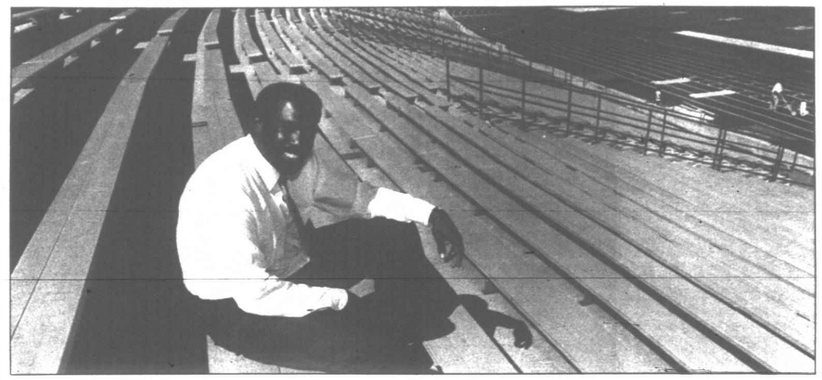
Winning attitude: Athletic director sets track to boost EMU involvement

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer



SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographer

There's no keeping Eastern Michigan University athletic director Eugene Smith down. Since taking the helm at EMU, he's spurred a hapless football team to a conference championship and tripled attendance figures.

You might think an athletic director who parks his shiny Taurus on the cement five feet from his office door would be too busy to bother with day-to-day little things.

Not so with Gene Smith.

The Eastern Michigan University athletic director is as likable a guy as you'd ever want to meet. The Canton resident greets people, be they friends or strangers, with a championship smile, his large brown eyes looking dead into theirs.

EMU's athletic offices, open, airy and alive with friendly people, reflect Smith's personality.

One of just two black athletic directors at Division 1 schools in the country, Smith injects Eastern with energy and enthusiasm he's harbored since his days as an all-state football and basketball player and track man at Shanel High School near Cleveland.

Given the obstacles he's had to hurdle, that's saying something.

Times were tough in 1984, shortly after Smith left a coaching job at his alma mater, the University of Notre Dame, to become EMU assistant athletic director.

"We were almost being dropped out of the conference," he recalls. "We (Eastern's football team) were 0 and 27, with the longest losing streak in the country.

"We were fortunate enough to be able to come back and create enough enthusiasm to bring our average attendance up from 5,000 to 17,000 with an extensive marketing and promotion plan," said Smith, who wields a $3.5 million budget and oversees 18 sports programs for men and women.

"We brought in the Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders at half time — that was exciting, a laser light show out of New York; we had fireworks after the game, and raffles at half time. We gave away a donated 1984 Cougar. We did a lot of things to create a family atmosphere."

It worked.

The Hurons were conference champions in 1987 and went on to win the California Bowl. Last year, EMU finished second in the Mid-American Conference. Enrollment has mushroomed to 26,000. "We're busting out at the seams," said Smith.

"Our goal for our athletic programs is to have all our sports compete in the top third of our conference," he said. "We hope to do that this fall, and position ourselves for the 90's."

SMITH HOPES CANTON and Plymouth-area residents get in on the fun — on special days in particular.

"Plymouth-Northville Night" at Rynearson Stadium is set for Sept. 9, when the Hurons battle Youngstown State.

"Canton Night" will be Oct. 14, and "Belleville Night" Oct. 21.

"These are feeder areas for students, and we have a large number of alumni in these communities. We decided we needed to do a better job reaching out to them," Smith said.

"We're hoping people will come prior to the game and tailgate.

"Part of the revenue from ticket sales are going to a scholarship fund the Canton chamber will create for a student from Canton.

"We realize there are a lot of MSU and U-M fans in these areas, we're not competing with that market. But there might be people interested in our family."

Smith's convictions on family took root at Notre Dame, where, with the class of 1977, he was a linebacker under Ara Parseghian and Dan Devine. The Fighting Irish clinched a national championship Smith's freshman year.

As a 6-foot-2, 245-pound 17-year-old, Smith was recruited by more than 100 schools, including UM, Southern Cal and Ohio State.

"I fell in love with Bo the first time I met him," remembers Smith. "It wasn't the schools, it was the people I paid attention to. I ended up narrowing it down to Notre Dame because of Parseghian. He treated you like a man. You had responsibility, and he held you accountable."

"Notre Dame had a very small campus and just 8,000 students," he said. "I realized I could get individual attention in the classroom there."

Smith stayed on at Notre Dame, coaching kickers and defensive ends under Devine from 1977 (another national championship year) through 1981 when he went to work for IBM.

Smith sold computers in the South Bend area for two long years.

"I realized my heart wasn't in it," he said. "My heart was in athletics. I put my name out, and before long I got a call from Paul Shoults, athletic director at Eastern. Paul was my defensive coordinator at ND when I was playing."

Smith became assistant athletic director in 1983, and succeeded Shoults when he retired in 1985.

"I'm pretty fortunate. I never aspired to be here," said Smith, who with his wife Paula has three daughters, all of whom attend Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"I love it here," said Smith. "Probably the biggest thrill is to see a fresh person develop over three or four years. They pretty much have it together, but I talk to them about what they're going to do. And it's gratifying to see them win."

See them, he does.

It's no big deal for Smith and his family to catch a swim meet, a wrestling match, gymnastics meet and two basketball games on a given Saturday.

"It's time consuming, but it's fun. I think it's important for student athletes to see administration involved and interested. And it's good for my daughters," he adds with a smile.

SMITH FINDS that because he's black and holds the position he does, he often is sought out by students, people affiliated U-M sports administration and others.

"It just kind of happens. I make sure I'm as visible as possible among the minority population," he said.

While racism "is out there," few of the nation's athletic directors are members of minorities because of "a situation with the profession itself. Most administrators have been there 15-25 years, so the only way opportunities can occur is through attrition," said Smith.

"Schools now are looking for athletic directors with marketing and promotion skills because athletics has become more of a business. Blacks who are interested have to have these skills. We realize we're pioneers, and we have to set an example," said Smith, the son of an electrical contractor and a retired nurse.

Winning at all costs isn't the object at Eastern, despite the trend at other schools, said Smith.

"At a national level, things have gotten out of proportion. We don't expect to be national champions. Our goal is to help students with their personal development. We work hard at making sure students have a valuable experience, win or lose. No. 1 is academics."

What's ahead?

"We have to improve our facilities. We have good coaches and programs. But a major goal of mine is to go to 30,000 (on football Saturdays), and improve our basketball facility and practice areas."

Beyond that, "I don't do any long-term planning.

"There are good people here, and we live in a good area. The kids love it.

"If something comes along, I'll weigh it."

Huron fans can see their team in action Saturday nights beginning Sept. 2. For a schedule or ticket information, call 487-2282.

General admission is $7, and reserved seats $8 (a good deal compared to prices at that other stadium in Washtenaw County, eh?).

Adult foster care ruling remembered as victory

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

It is the anniversary of a revolution.

Ten years ago last week, 833 people institutionalized at the Plymouth Center for Human Development were ordered into group homes.

The federal District Court order meant the end for the controversy-plagued mental health facility.

But it meant much more than that, said those who brought suit to free center residents.

For those placed behind center walls, for Wayne County communities and for Michigan itself, the consent decree issued by Federal District Judge Charles Joiner served as a ringing endorsement of the then-new concept of adult foster care.

"IT HAD a major impact," said Alice Saules, president of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens. "The wording (for adult foster care) was there but there wasn't much being done, at least not in Wayne County."

The judge's comments, contained in the consent order, made it clear change was on its way.

"All mentally retarded individuals can and should live in the more normalized environment of the community and do not require institutionalization," wrote the judge.

Just one year earlier, state lawmakers had adopted a law permitting small group homes in residential neighborhoods. The consent order put that law into action.

Plymouth Center was considered one of the worst of the state's "snake pits" — cold, impersonal places where mentally impaired individuals were stored, then ignored.

"The doors swung only one way," wrote a Detroit newspaper. "Institutionalization was a life sentence."

Saules, however, said the problem was even more severe.

"There was abuse, both physical and mental," she said. "Beyond that, there was neglect. Often, you'd go in and there would be 25-50 people in a ward with only one staff person. While many staff people would try, others wouldn't. You'd see them off somewhere away from the patients."

Patients often sat, naked in their own excrement, said Elizabeth Bauer, a mental health care specialist brought in to oversee Plymouth Center staff training in the wake of the consent order.

"The feeling, on at least some staff members part, was why clean it up — that person would only wet themselves again tomorrow," she said.

Still, Bauer didn't blame the staff as much as the system.

"IT'S HARD to say whether Plymouth Center was better or worse than any place else," she said. "But what was clear was that institutionalization wasn't working.

"The prevalent philosophy was, 'You're sick and I'm here to treat you.'

"But the mentally retarded aren't sick, like everyone else they need their independence."

The ruling, Bauer said, was a "booster rocket" to the growing movement toward adult foster care.

"It didn't create the movement," Bauer said. "But it put it into overdrive."

Plymouth Center, which at one time housed as many as 1,200 adults and children, saw its population dwindle to zero over the next five years. On June 15, 1984, it closed for good.

The ruling came in an atmosphere of controversy. The 1978 state law sparked a reaction as divisive and emotional, as that currently surrounding abortion.

Just as Judge Joiner's ruling threw open the doors of Plymouth Center, Livonia saw a short-lived and unsuccessful recall movement mounted against then-Mayor Edward McNamara and its seven city council members for supporting a group home in that neighboring city.

"IT WAS a frightening time, but very exciting, too," Saules recalled. "I think what got people's attention was that the parents of retarded people were finally coming out of the woodwork."

Though passions have cooled, adult foster care still remains controversial.

In Oakland County, Troy Police recently arrested a group home resident who wandered, uninvited, into a neighboring home and helped himself to a pot of coffee.

While that incident rekindled old fears about the safety of adult foster care facilities, Saules said changes wrought by the 1979 ruling have been overwhelmingly positive.

"What you have to remember was that was an isolated incident, what doesn't make the news are the many cases where there's been a positive relationship between the group home and neighbors," she said. "Our clients have shown they are much more responsible than anyone thought they could be."

Ten years later, the Plymouth resident is still involved in the fight for dignity for the mentally impaired.

"I JUST became president of the Plymouth ARC again," she said. "I guess it's ironic. I was president at the time of the ruling and during the implementation period. Now, here I am again."

Bauer is now executive director of Michigan Protection and Advocacy for Developmentally Disabled Citizens, Inc., a statewide advocacy group.

Judge Joiner is still a member of the federal bench for eastern Michigan, though on "senior status."

"You could describe it as semi-retirement," a court spokeswoman said.

What of the people themselves, those whose lives were changed by the ruling?

Wayne Community Living Services, the agency that eventually supplanted the Plymouth Center, has kept track of many formerly institutionalized individuals.

Some 420 former Plymouth Center residents now live in WCLS-supervised facilities. Of those, 114 now live in western Wayne County.

They include:

- Delcina Crawley, 26. Now a resident of a Garden City foster home, she recently completed her education and is a light assembly worker at Comprehensive Services for the Developmentally Disabled, Livonia.
- Leslie Huntsman, 20. Adopted by foster parents nine years ago, she attends Bryant School in Livonia.
- Richard Morrow, 35. A Comprehensive Services employee and 22-year Plymouth Center resident, Morrow now lives in a home in Dearborn and hopes to eventually move to a supported independence apartment.

Their feelings may have been best expressed by Mary Caruso, a Livonia resident, transferred to an adult foster care facility several months before the 1979 ruling.

"I have dignity, education, self-esteem and love," Caruso said in a recent WCLS newsletter. "What I have acquired since leaving Plymouth Center is most commonly known, simply as, life."

Henry Ford's mills, history preserved

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Since first built 126 years ago on a sloping hill in what is now Westland, the Nankin Mills have come full circle.

When founded in 1826, the mills were a focal point in the community, a place where farmers gathered following bountiful harvests to grind grain and "bull whack," catching up on local news.

Today, the site is again a community center. An old structure serves as administration offices for Wayne County parks where leisure activities for the entire family are planned and implemented.

The mill's role as a community center is a piece of Americana long overlooked except by such devoted history buffs as Palmer Werner of Redford Township who has toured and photographed some 600 mills throughout the country, including 200 in Michigan.

"After you've seen a few, there's something about them. You can spot 'em a mile a way. When you run across a mill in fair shape, that's what I'm looking for," said Werner, a retired professional photographer whose original love of covered bridges led to his present interest in mills.

Nancy Watkins' interest in mills developed more recently when two years ago developers attempted to purchase the historic Plymouth Mills and tear them down.

"WE'RE JUST NOT cognizant of the historical significance in our own back yards," said Watkins, an amateur historian who spends her days amid the dated ambiance of the Nankin Mills as an employee of Wayne County parks.

When Watkins speaks of efforts to raze the Plymouth site, her eyes roll upward. It was appalling, she said, and it galvanized her into action. She has applied for historical designation for all area mills, protecting them from future development efforts.

"I poke my nose into a lot of places," Watkins said, "because my goal in life . . . is maintaining and promoting Wayne County's history, preserving it's heritage."

Donn Werling, director of the Henry Ford Estate and a connoisseur of historical detail, sympathized with Watkins effort and offered this idea. Why not, he querried, develop the mill heritage into an additional tourist attraction in Michigan, educating the state's residents and resurrecting a nearly forgotten slice of the past.

Watkins' vision and Werling's guidance culminate Friday, when Werner and hundreds of others - members of the Society for the Preservation of Old Mills, Ford Motor Co. officials and area historians travel into the past on an inauguration trek of the new Rouge Valley Tour.

The tour, one of three included in a trio of new Ford Heritage Trails, highlights such landmarks as the Phoenix Mill.

ONE MORNING in 1905, the citizens of Phoenix, a tiny community that is now part of Plymouth Township, awoke to a fiery disaster. Their mill, a huge wooden structure that for 65 years had dominated the center of town, was engulfed in flames.

The mill, originally a gristmill and later Matthews Distillery, was abandoned when it burned. The blackened remains sat unattended another 17 years, until Henry Ford purchased the site and coverted it into a factory, providing much needed jobs in the area.

Phoenix became part of a bold experiment by Ford, known as the village industry plan. During the 1920s and '30s, he purchased 18 former mill sites along the Rouge, Huron and Raisin rivers and converted them into industrial plants.

Phoenix was particularly unique because it employed women only, one of the nation's first factories to do so. A woman, called simply Mrs. Sullivan, managed the plant, permitting the women two daily rest periods (compared to one for men) and supervising maidens who produced electrical parts, voltage regulators and switches.

"Mr. Ford believed women had superior hand dexterity and were particularly suited to small, electrical assembly," said John Stewart, a Wayne County parks historian who has been ferreting out such nuggets of information for two years.

Ford also had other notions. Only unmarried females were hired because, he reportedly said, married women had more important duties than working.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Swapping history about area mills are Palmer Werner of Redford Township and Nancy Watkins of Plymouth at Newburgh Mills in Livonia. Werner, a history buff who has toured about 200 mills, and Watkins, who works for Wayne County Parks, are among the many enthusiasts preserving Michigan's rich history of mills, a slice of Americana that until now has been virtually overlooked. During the 1920s and '30s, Henry Ford converted 18 mill sites into village industries, providing work close to home.

RALPH, A DISABLED World War II veteran who lost a leg in Europe, was just learning to walk with crutches when he slipped and fell on the polished maple floor at Cherry Hill, a village industry plant in Canton that offered training and job placement to disabled vets from 1944 to 1950.

Ralph's colleagues, young men ravaged by the war and suffering terrible physical and mental disabilities from the horrors of battle or torture as former prisoners of war, gathered around him.

Nobody moved as Ralph struggled to get up, a tense moment in time that Frank Reaume, then 28, has never forgotten.

"Talk about people working together, the encouragement we gave him," said Reaume, who from 1945 to 1947 was an assistant manager at Cherry Hill, "an ideal spot" for handicapped vets to readjust to civilian life.

Many were reluctant to return home because "they weren't like they were when they left" for war, Reaume said, in his first public comments about Cherry Hill.

Mike, for example, had "lost his spirit and had a mental attitude" problem from prolonged torture as a prisoner. Reaume unfairly assigned him latrine duties two days running, an unpopular chore shared by the 50 or so men who lived and trained at Cherry Hill.

When Mike complained about the additional duty, Reaume "nearly cried with joy. It was the first time Mike objected to someone abusing him."

Ford checked in twice monthly, sharing lavish breakfasts prepared by Ford Motor Co. chef Burnell Anderson who had been ordered to spare no expense in "feeding the beat up boys" and thereby nursing them back to health.

Most, Reaume said, returned to society, skilled tradesmen able to care for themselves, their experience at Cherry Hill remaining virtually unchartered history until now.

"We were told never to speak to the press. Mr. Ford did not want a lot of people around listening to war stories, recreating the war. He encouraged the boys to forget and get well."

Walking the trail: History lives in area's backyard

The following sites are included on the Rouge Valley Tour, one of three self-guided motor tours included in the new Ford Heritage Trails.

The tour begins at Fair Lane, the Henry Ford Estate in Dearborn where the family lived from 1915 to 1947. The home is powered by a hydroelectric plant that was a prototype for the village industry mills. The tour proceeds to the following mill sites.

● Nankin Mills - Built in 1863 in what was then Pike's Peak, the mill was purchased by Ford in 1918 and restored into a factory that produced stencils for marking auto parts until 1948. It is now the administration offices of the Wayne County Park System. Located on Hines Drive west of Merriman in Westland.

● Newburgh Mill - Originally the site of a cider mill, the mill's damn was constructed in 1934 by Ford, the Wayne County Road Commission and a federal New Deal program. The following year, a factory began producing twist drills. Donated to Wayne County in 1948, it is at Hines Drive and Newburgh Road in Livonia.

● Plymouth Mills, Wilcox Yard - Formerly the old Hardenberth Mill, Ford purchased the facility in 1920 and replaced the delapidated building with a new factory that for 25 years produced generator cut-outs and taps. Donated to Wayne County parks in 1948, it is at Hines Drive and Wilcox Roads in Plymouth.

● Phoenix Mills - Erected as a gristmill in 1840 in the now extinct village of Phoenix, the old wooden structure burned to the ground in 1905. In 1922 Ford bought and rebuilt the dam. In 1922 he opened a factory that until 1948 produced electrical parts, voltage regulators and switches. Donated to Wayne County parks in 1948, it is on Northville Road, north of Five Mile Road, Plymouth Township.

● Waterford - The site of Michigan's largest gristmill, Mead Mill, the structure was destroyed in 1865 by fire. Purchased in 1920 by Ford, he opened a factory in 1925 that until 1955 manufactured high precision gauges. The building is now owned by Adistra Corp. and is used as a warehouse facility. Located on Mill Road in Northville Township.

● Northville Mill - Erected in 1827 as a mill employing crude grinding stones of split boulders, the facility later served as a saw mill, producing wood pulleys and church furniture. Ford purchased the picturesque site featuring a water wheel in 1920 and founded a factory that produced engine valves. Mill Race Village, located on the mill pond, is now an outdoor museum. The accompanying Northville Spring Park is also open to the public. Owned by Ford Motor Co., the facility is reportedly for sale. Located on Main Street in Northville.

● Cherry Hill - A small village that flouished between 1840 and 1920, Ford purchased the mill site in 1940 and opened a factory in 1944 that produced car locks and drain valves until 1950. Now owned by Rantom Corp., the facility remains a working plant producing engine cylinders. Located at Cherry Hill and Ridge roads in Canton.

Other Ford Heritage trails include the Huron-Raisin tour, featuring mill sites in 10 different locations, including the ghost town of Rawsonville and the communities of Saline, Manchester, Sharon Hollow and Dundee.

The final Ford Heritage trail is a tour of the Boston-Edison Historic District.

Friday's inaugural trek visits five sites, including the Nankin and Waterford mills, and a stop at the Plymouth Historical Museum. The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) will unveil a new roadside sign highlighting the new tours that will be erected at 18 area visitor centers.

The trail has been created as a joint effort between Wayne County Park System, MDOT and the Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

For tour information, call Nancy Watkins, 261-2034, or Donn Werling, 593-5590.

HEEL PAIN
Movement focuses on taking a step. If the heel striking ground causes pain, then ambulation turns to disarray.
Only rarely is the discomfort caused by heel spurs. These spurs, which occur in many people who have no complaint of painful walking, represent calcification of the tendons that anchor into the bone of the heel.
In most cases, heel pain is the result of past injury to the sheet of tissue just under the thick skin of the sole. This injury often occured in the forgotten past, and is activated by an otherwise trivial twist of the foot. X-rays show little, as the bones of the foot are not involved.
Treatment by injection into the heel requires finding the exact site of injury; such precision is difficult to achieve. No medication by mouth has proved consistently effective, nor is operation usually in order. The trauma it causes often is greater than the original insult that began the pain.
Usually heel pain clears with time, heat, and rest. It is best to wait before turning to other measures, as they may interfere with nature's way of healing.

Harvest Moon due Sept. 15

Raymond E. Bullock

THE FULL MOON that occurs at 7:51 a.m. on Sept. 15 is a very special one. It's called the Harvest Moon. But since we have full moons every month throughout the year, what makes this one so special?

Because the moon is in orbit around the earth, it appears in different parts of the sky from night to night. Generally the moon will rise about one hour later each night. But in autumn the full moon is located at the part of the moon's orbit that has the least tilt with respect to Earth's horizon. The moon seems to skim along the horizon, rising at about the same time each evening, in about the same part of the sky. In fact, for the four evenings starting with the Sept. 13, each moon rise occurs within 25 minutes of the previous night's.

The light scattered by the full moon was a help to farmers, allowing them to continue their harvesting after sunset. Hence it was called the Harvest Moon. The full moon that follows the Harvest Moon was said to be a help to hunters. You can figure out what that full moon is called.

People occasionally wonder if the phase of the moon has any effect on humans. It really shouldn't be expected to have any effect at all. We see different phases of the moon depending on what part is being illuminated by the sun. The moon is always somewhere near the earth, so any effect it should have should be a constant one, not dependant on which half is being illuminated.

LOOK FOR THE moon in the east northeast, three and one-half hours after sunset, on the Sept. 19. It is located in the constellation of Taurus the bull. Above and to the right of the moon is the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster. Looking like a tiny dipper, this star cluster will be difficult to see in the light scattered by the moon. Binoculars will help in locating the Pleiades.

On Wednesday morning, the Pleiades, the moon and the star Aldebaran (al DEB a ran) form a large triangle high in the southwest. Aldebaran represents the bull's eye.

Last Quarter Moon is at 10:10 p.m. on Sept. 21. It is at the last quarter of its orbit around the earth. The moon will rise in the east northeast at about midnight.

Jupiter is four degrees south of (below) the moon on the morning of the 22nd. Look high in the southeast about 45 minutes before sunrise. The two "twin" stars to the east (left) of Jupiter are Castor and Pollux, each one representing a head of the Gemini twins.

Autumn officially begins at 9:20 p.m. on Sept. 22. But what is it that determines that precise moment? It's a combination of the earth's orbit and its tilt.

Earth is divided into a northern hemisphere and a southern hemisphere by an imaginary line called the equator. If this equator is extended out into space it cuts the sky into a northern and southern hemisphere, but now the imaginary line is called the celestial equator.

Our earth is tilted 23½ degrees above the celestial equator or 23½ degrees below it. When the sun is at its highest point in the sky north of the celestial equator, in June when the days are long and warm, we have summer. When the sun is at its lowest, in December when the days are short and cold, we have winter.

Obviously there are two points where the sun must cross over the celestial equator. Once when going from above the equator to below, and another going from below to above.

The precise moment of crossover, going from north to south, is when autumn officially begins for the northern hemisphere. A person standing on earth's equator at local noon would see the sun directly overhead on the celestial equator. The sun will rise due east and set due west. The length of the day and length of night are about equal, so this is called the equinox.

Although we may be facing the start of autumn, people below the equator face the start of spring.

THE MOON, Castor and Pollux form a triangle on the morning of the Sept. 23. Notice how far the moon has moved in just one day. The moons daily motion is very easy to notice when it passes bright stars and planets.

Mercury is officially at inferior conjunction on September 24. The planet is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible. (When Mercury is located beyond the sun, as seen from the earth, it is called superior conjunction.)

Regulus (REG u lus), the "heart" of Leo the lion, is the bright star five degrees below the waning crescent moon on the morning of the 26th.

Mars is in conjunction with the sun on the 29th. Mars is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth, and is not visible. New Moon is at 5:47 p.m. on Sept. 29.

Raymond Bullock is the former coordinator of the planetarium and observatory at the Cranbrook Institute of Science. He now works for a Troy-based company that specializes in laser displays and effects.

Apples: the crop is healthy

With summer winding down and fall creeping in, many of the state's orchards will be gearing up for what will inevitably be one of the biggest apple harvests ever.

There are about 7,500 assorted apple varieties grown around the world, with more than 2,500 varieties alone in the United States. These vary with size, sweetness, aroma and crispness, not to mention color, which can range from a deep ruby red to a bright yellow or green.

In Canada and the United States, 18 to 25 varieties comprise the majority of the commercial crop, though many other varieties are available, many in home gardens. Nearly all the varieties grown today originated as chance seedlings (mutations) before 1900. Apple trees grow just about everywhere except in the very coldest and very hottest climates of the world. They do not thrive in the tropics because apples need a period of cold and dormancy to grow properly.

The commercial-type apple is native to Western Asia and Eastern Europe. Apples were grown by the Greeks as early as the fourth century B.C. Supposedly, the Romans took cultivated apples with them when they conquered England, and apple growing became common in England and other parts of Europe.

DURING THE 1620s, colonists introduced the apple to North America. Then, as the frontier moved westward, apple trees followed. Some followed with the help of a man named John Chapman (1774-1845), better known to most people as Johnny Appleseed. He carried apple seeds and sprouts with him wherever he traveled and planted them in newly settled areas of the country.

Gradually, the apple was spread by explorers, Indians and pioneers. American growers developed new and improved varieties and soon apples became an important part of the economy.

Thirty-five states, along with parts of Canada and Mexico, produce the main assortment of apples for North America. In the United States, an average of more than 4.5 milion tons are produced each year, with Washington, New York State and Michigan leading in productivity.

Apples destined to the fresh market, or those that are not processed immediately are picked by hand. Apple pickers start on the lower branches and use very long, tall ladders to eventually reach the top.

Pickers must be very careful not to bruise apples when hand-picked or the fruit will spoil easily. Picking apples with their stems still intact is a good practice, mainly because of the higher grade and longer storage.

Unfortunately, the art of apple picking is falling by the proverbial roadside mainly due to the introduction of the mechanical shaker and catchers introduced in the early 1900s. Apples picked mechanically are destined for use in juice, sauce, cider or other products.

FOLLOWING PICKING, apples begin almost immediately to spoil. After picking and prior to storage, many apples are rapidly cooled to low temperatures to increase their shelf life. In addition, for longer periods of storage, apples can be subjected to storage with decreased oxygen in an airtight room that is usually refrigerated.

After apples are placed in the room, it is sealed and the oxygen content is slowly removed, with the percentage of carbon dioxide increased. This combination of controlled atmosphere and reduced temperatures can keep some apples in storage for up to 12 months, which can maintain an apple supply in all major markets through the year.

In her kitchen, where she prepares family meals for her husband and three young sons, Birmingham resident Betsy Brethen has learned to make quick, yet tasty, dinners. She will share her ideas — and ask readers to share theirs—in a new column, "Family-Tested Winner Dinners."

Mom meets challenge

'Family-tested' dinners wanted

By Arlene Funke
special writer

BETSY BRETHEN of Birmingham compares the challenge of preparing creative family meals to "fighting a battle, sometimes."

Is there any cook who doesn't occasionally become firmly wedged into a mealtime rut? Quick — whip up a batch of spaghetti or grill a steak, and be done with it.

Brethen, full-time homemaker and mother of three sons, is brimming with fresh ideas for quick, easy menus. Her new column, "Family-Tested Winner Dinners," will debut Monday, Sept. 11, in the Taste section of all Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

"What I'm attempting to do is make family cooking a little more interesting," said Brethen. "It's so easy to get locked into the same thing."

The column will, for several weeks, feature meals that draw raves in the Brethen household — such as sauteed chicken breast with rice or oriental pork stir-fry.

She is calling on readers to submit some of their own cherished "children-tested and family-tested" meals for publication. Starting Monday, Oct. 16, a local cook's special meal will be featured weekly in Taste. He or she will receive an apron with a "Winner Dinner Winner" logo.

"I'M NOT LOOKING for exotic menus," Brethen said. "I'm open to any family favorites. I want the complete meal — that's the crux of this."

Each menu submitted should include recipes, or instructions for preparing the entree, side dishes, salads or desserts. Brethen will prepare a shopping list for the meal.

"They can make their grocery list and it's all planned," Brethen said.

Brethen's mission comes from her sense of adventure about cooking and eating, her interest in people and her experiences while working, studying and traveling in Europe.

"I love to eat and I love to cook, but I don't cook fancy meals," Brethen said. "I love to know how people in other countries live and eat."

Brethen, who was born in Chicago and grew up in Indiana, graduated from Purdue University in 1973 with a bachelor's degree in elementary education and French. She studied in Strasbourg, France, and taught English to Italian students at the British School in Milan, Italy.

While in Europe, Brethen traveled extensively and took cooking classes.

"I fell in love with the culture and cuisine of France and Italy," she said.

She married her husband, Charles A. Brethen III, known as Chip, in 1975. He is president of Silver Bear Entertainment of Bloomfield Hills.

THE BRETHENS have traveled several times to Europe. Over the years, children of their European friends and business acquaintances have spent summer vacations visiting the family in Birmingham.

Brethen spends most of her time caring for a household of busy adults and children.

Son Charlie, 12, is in the sixth grade at Cranbrook Middle School. He plays hockey and tennis and takes drum lessons. David, 10, a fifth-grade student at Brookside School Cranbrook, plays soccer, hockey and tennis and takes music lessons. Geoffrey, 7, is in the second grade, also at Brookside. He plays baseball, soccer and hockey.

Delights of Hunan-style, or Szechuan

The House of Hunan in Southfield is at the intersection of two major arteries, in the midst of a busy business community and within a stone's throw of several good — and often crowded — restaurants. But you could drive past it time and again without ever knowing it exists.

It is hidden in the Franklin Savings Centre office building on the northeast corner of Twelve Mile Road and Northwestern Highway. Despite its camouflage, it is a good restaurant, which loyal customers seem to have no trouble finding. Among loyal customers are many Orientals, attesting to the authenticity of the meals and quality of the preparation.

The atmosphere is comfortable, with a constant murmur from guests talking. A few years ago owner Joe Chue added the House of Hunan's most striking feature, a 1,000-gallon, oval, salt-water fish tank. The tropical fish swimming around now provide a focal point for the dining room — and block the view customers used to have of the kitchen.

The fish tank provides color against a beige-and-burgundy backdrop, wood paneling, burgundy tablecloths, and beige vertical blinds letting light filter through the tinted windows.

ON THE MENU are meals that represent cooking styles from the northern and western regions of China. Meals cooked Hunan-style hail from the northern area of China and are richly spiced and heavier on the garlic and ginger. The Szechuan entrees, from the western area of China, are medium-spicy by comparison.

You can find a meal to suit any preference, on this menu. While the most popular item ordered by Chinese and American customers alike is a chicken dish prepared Hunan-style, there are virtually spiceless entrees like a lemon chicken dish, which we found particularly good. In both cases, the chicken was moist and plentiful. The lemon sauce was light and gently flavored.

Another chicken dish, prepared with peanuts in a hot sauce, was somewhat disappointing. The chicken was dry and the hot sauce lacked zip. The scallops in hot garlic sauce, tasted on an earlier visit, was good, with the scallops tender and the sauce mildly flavored with garlic.

The soups are very good, especially the won ton and the hot and sour soups, which are preferred by American customers, according to Chue. Chinese and Japanese customers "know how to appreciate" the Szechuan pickle pork soup and a shark's fin soup with crabmeat added, he said. Not many Americans try these, he said.

IN ADDITION to egg foo young, fried rice and the usual variety of sweet and sour entrees, the House of Hunan offers an interesting variety of meals: Hunan smoked ham, red fish, an orange-flavored beef dish, frog legs, and bean curd with shrimp. Another popular selection, according to Chue, is one in which you can combine two items from either beef, shrimp or chicken and have each prepared differently.

Details: The House of Hunan, 26400 W. Twelve Mile Road (in Franklin Savings Centre), Southfield, 352-7740.

Prices: $4.95-$14.95. Visa, MasterCard, Diner's Club, American Express, Japanese Central Bank.

Value: Good food for the price, an adventure in Chinese dining.

The many varieties of apples differ widely in appearance, flesh characteristics, seasonal availability and suitability for different uses. For good eating as a fresh fruit, the commonly available varieties are Delicious, McIntosh, Stayman, Golden Delicious, Jonathans and Winesaps. Tart or slightly acid varieties include Gravensteins, Jonathans and Newtons that can make the world's best pies and apple sauce. For baking, the firmer-fleshed varieties including Spy, Rome Beauties, Greenings and York Imperials are widely used.

EACH APPLE contains about 85 percent water, and each three-and-a-half-ounce apple contains about 60 calories. Calories in fresh apples are derived mainly from the naturally occurring sugars which, in turn, give the apple its sweet taste.

There are many apple orchards in our area that offer everything from baskets of the delicious beauties to homemade cider, doughnuts and hayrides, and many include homemade provisions packed with love and care. A few of the Janes Gang favorite orchards stock ample supplies of apple jelly, apple butter, apple pies, apple strudel, candy apples and this writer's favorite, caramel apples.

Don't let the fall season pass by without a visit to one of the state's best naturally occurring resources.

Bon appetit!

APPLE BUTTER

5 pounds apples, pared and cored
3 quarts apple cider
2½ pounds sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Cook apples with cider until the fruit is soft, stirring frequently. Pass through a colander, then through a fine sieve to remove all fibrous material and to give a smooth consistency. Return apple mixture to a heavy saucepan and add sugar and salt. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly to prevent burning, until thick, at least for 30-45 minutes. When butter is thick, test by pouring a small quantity on a cold plate. Cook apple mixture until no rim of liquid separates around the edge of the butter. If desired, stir in 2 teaspoons of cinnamon. To preserve, pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal. Use as a sandwich spread or as a dessert sauce.

HOMEMADE TAFFY APPLES

1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup boiling water
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup cream
2 tablespoons butter
6 apples
6 wooden skewers

Pass through a colander, then through a fine sieve to remove all fibrous material and to give a smooth consistency.

Melt ¼ cup of the sugar over a direct flame. Add the boiling water and cook to a smooth syrup. In a separate pan, cook the cream with remaining sugar and butter to a soft ball stage or to 236 degrees Fahrenheit. Combine the two syrups and cook until drops of syrup will form a hard ball when dropped into cold water or to a temperature of 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Cool syrup to lukewarm. Place apples on the skewers and twirl them in the syrup. Dip immediately in ice water to harden the caramel.

APPLE CRISP

4 cups sliced apples
¼ cup hot water
½ cup butter
½ cup flour
½ cup sugar

Arrange apples in a buttered baking dish. Pour water over the apples. Cream the butter, add flour and sugar and blend to form crumbs. Sprinkle this mixture over the apples. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 40 minutes or until apples are tender and top is browned. Serves 4.

Chef's note: This is one of Momma's old hand-me-down recipes, but I think it's even better with a little cinnamon and nutmeg sprinkled over the apples before the crumb topping is added.

Peanut butter in creamy pie

AP — So delectable and so easy. Just whip the ingredients for this creamy pie together and spoon into a prepared crumb crust. Chill in the freezer about 15 minutes or until the filling is firm but not frozen. Pass chocolate-flavored syrup to spoon over each serving, if you like.

PEANUT BUTTER CREAM CHEESE PIE

one 8-ounce package cream cheese, cut up
½ cup peanut butter
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
2 tablespoons milk
one 4-ounce container frozen whipped dessert topping, thawed
1 chocolate-flavored crumb pie shell or graham cracker crumb pie shell
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped peanuts
chocolate-flavored syrup (optional)

In a large mixer bowl combine cream cheese and peanut butter; beat with an electric mixer until combined. Add powdered sugar and milk; beat until combined. Fold in whipped topping. Spoon into the pie shell. Sprinkle with peanuts. Cover and chill in the freezer for 15 minutes. Cut into wedges; top with chocolate-flavored syrup, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

'Family-tested' dinners wanted

"All three boys are on the swim team at Orchard Lake Country Club and they also play junior golf," Brethen added.

Brethen plays tennis and is the vice-president/treasurer of the Mothers Council at Cranbrook Middle School.

"Our lives are busy today," Brethen said. "I don't have time to cook fancy dinners that take an hour-and-a-half to prepare."

Brethen decided to launch her column after hearing a motivational speaker urge his listeners to fulfill their "natural aptitude." One of Brethen's talents, determined after an intensive series of tests, is "creative problem-solving." She decided to focus that problem-solving strength on meal-planning ideas.

"WE'RE ALL GROPING for new ideas," Brethen said. "When I do plan meals for a week I find I save so much time and money. I feel like I'm more in control of the kitchen. And I feel better about myself because I'm organized."

Eventually she hopes to write a cookbook or two featuring easy, practical, family-tested menus.

Brethen said her sons enjoy simple dishes. They aren't particularly fond of casseroles.

"One of my sons, especially, doesn't like his food mixed up," Brethen said.

What the family does go for in a big way is boneless chicken breast, which has been sauteed with herbed rice, steamed broccoli and fruit salad.

The chicken breast menu will be featured in an upcoming column. Brethen has a passion for pasta, and one of her easy, tasty favorites is a dish called spaghetti a la carbonara. It is cooked noodles bathed in a rich, creamy sauce of cooked and diced bacon, parsley, eggs and parmesan cheese.

Chip Brethen has contributed a pizza variation, which uses pita bread, covered with tomato sauce and mozzarella cheese. Family members can select their own meat and vegetable toppings.

The pita pizza is placed under the broiler until the cheese melts.

"It is so simple and delicious," Betsy Brethen said. "When kids get involved with their toppings, they seem to eat better because they have a choice."

ADVANCE PLANNING allows for a calmer dinner hour and sidetracks costly trips to the deli or fast-food restaurant.

"With the advent of fast food, people are eating things that are not good for them," Brethen said.

Brethen is looking forward to testing the menus submitted and has recruited some friends to be tasters. In a playful spirit, each will be provided with a bell and a kazoo. Delicious, "winning" dishes will be saluted with a resounding ring of the bell, while not-so-great ones will get a blast from the kazoo.

Brethen's philosophy is summed up in a line she attributes to the famous Broadway play, "Auntie Mame": "Life is a banquet and we should enjoy every course."

"It's something fun to try," Brethen said. "I have to cook anyway. If all else fails, I will have a good source of recipes. I feel, hopefully, this column will facilitate feeding families and children."

Readers should submit their recipes for meals to: Winner Dinners, Observer & Eccentric, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012 clarification

Sheila Foley's recipe for Miniature Pecan Tarts with Cookie Crust that appeared in the Monday, Aug. 28, edition was incorrect. The correct recipe follows.

MINIATURE PECAN TARTS WITH COOKIE CRUST

Cookie crust
½ cup margarine
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups flour

Blend margarine and sugar and beat well. Blend in egg yolks one at a time. Blend in almond extract and flour. Press dough into miniature tart pans. Bake at 400 degrees 8-10 minutes or until lightly browned. Set aside.

Filling
½ cup margarine
½ cup dark Karo syrup
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1 cup chopped pecans

Combine margarine, Karo syrup and confectioner's sugar in a saucepan and bring to a gentle boil. Stir in pecans. Spoon into baked miniature tarts and top with half a pecan. Bake again for 5 minutes at 350 degrees.

Bob Mounsey's recipe for Gazpacho Aspic, which ran in the Monday, Aug. 28, edition, did not specify the exact amount of gelatin to use. Here is the complete recipe.

GAZPACHO ASPIC

Combine 4 packages unflavored gelatin with 4 cups V-8 juice, 1 green pepper, 3 celery stalks, 1 red onion, 2 cups cucumber and 2 tomatoes, all chopped fine, 2 cloves garlic, crushed; 1 cup hot salsa, juice of 2 limes, ¼ cup olive oil and 1 teaspoon salt.

Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup V-8, bring to boil. Add the other 3 cups of V-8 and mix with all other ingredients. Put in a mold and chill overnight. Unmold and decorate.

SOCIAL SECURITY?
MANY PEOPLE ONLY KNOW HALF THE STORY.

Social Security's rules for paying benefits to workers and their families, and for paying benefits to survivors of deceased workers, are complex. Some of the rules that affect how much you get back are based on how much you've paid in. Other rules are based on your family situation. Once you've worked and paid Social Security taxes for a while, you've earned protection for yourself and your family. To find out more, call us at 1-800-937-2000 and ask for our free booklet. Dear Cycling and Fitness Enthusiast:

Every once in a while an employee works for many years for a well established firm, then is given the opportunity to strike out on his own. Well, I'm proud to say that this has happened to me. For most of 30 years, I have helped guide a local bike shop into a multi-store operation. Earlier this year, I purchased what was known as Jerry's Bicycles - Livonia North on 7 Mile - (¼ mile East of Middlebelt). We are becoming

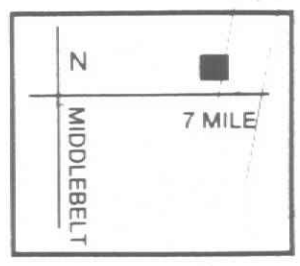
LIVONIA SCHWINN BICYCLE and FITNESS CENTER

As you can tell by the name change, we are putting more emphasis on fitness equipment. In fact, Schwinn's line of fitness equipment (one of the best already with its AIR-DYNE and BOW-FLEX® leading the pack) is expanding to include treadmills and stair machines BUT this doesn't mean we are putting any less emphasis on the full-service, quality, family-oriented atmosphere we strive to create. We still offer a full line of children's bicycles, young adult 10-speeds, adult styled bikes and all-terrain bicycles. Our "PRO" line features the SCHWINN aluminum models and the Kestrel carbon spectra models.

Our goal is to make you a satisfied customer. We plan to do this with fast, friendly and efficient service. Our pricing will be (as always) competitive and fair.

Thank you for taking a few moments to read this and I look forward to continuing to serve the cycling public for years to come. Please stop by soon!

Sincerely,



Larry Loiselle, Owner

Rocks open with win over Trenton

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Nearly everyone at Centennial Educational Park was surprised Friday when Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer called for an option pass on the first play from scrimmage.

Everyone, that is, except Trenton coach Don Warner.

Quarterback Rob Kowalski pitched the ball to halfback Ryan Johnson, who threw a 44-yard touchdown pass to Chris Tebben. Mike Cygan's extra point gave Salem a 7-0 lead, and the Rocks went on to post a 21-12 win over Trenton, its former Suburban Eight League rival.

The 6-foot-2, 216-pound Johnson is lining up at halfback this fall after sharing time at quarterback last year with Kowalski. That's why Warner wasn't surprised.

"It's not a surprise when you take a quarterback and put him at tailback," Warner said. "It's something we talked about in practice, but we didn't react to it."

JOHNSON SAID he has had to adjust to playing halfback in Salem's wishbone, but he is used to carrying the ball from any of the backfield positions. He's not so accustomed to throwing the ball from the halfback spot.

"It was a special play for Trenton; we've been practicing it all week," said Johnson, who then borrowed a phrase from Michigan State coach George Perles. "It's a great way to start. We've got eight more to go. We've just got to hit hard, keep our noses clean, keep our heads up and good things will happen."

The pass was the beginning of a memorable night for Johnson. By the second half, the Trojans were more in awe of his running ability.

football

Johnson scored on a 1-yard plunge with 3:46 left in the third quarter, and the next time the Rocks got the ball, he took a pitch and raced 75 yards down the sideline to finish Salem's scoring. The TD and Cygan's third extra point of the night gave Salem a commanding, 21-6 lead.

Johnson finished the night with 158 yards on 13 carries. Pat Bowie, who led Salem's stingy defense with two sacks, gained 58 yards on nine carries from the fullback position.

"He's a freight train," Warner said of Johnson. "He's a good football player and along with No. 30 (Bowie), that gives them a double threat."

OTHER THAN the nifty option pass, the season-opener wasn't a thing of beauty, with the Rocks turning the ball over five times. Trenton gained 292 yards in total offense but capitalized on only one of the turnovers.

Tailback Joe Surowiec was Trenton's biggest threat, gaining 90 yards on 24 carries and scoring the Trojans' first TD in the first quarter on a 5-yard scamper.

Greg Indre, who replaced starting quarterback Chris Mace in the fourth quarter after Mace suffered an injury, provided excitement late in the game. Trailing 21-6, Indre found Todd Hageman streaking down the sideline for a TD with only 1:12 left.

"We're lucky to have five turnovers and still have won the game against a team like Trenton," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. "That's quite an accomplishment. I've got the worst seat in the house, so I won't know who stood out until I look at the film. I know the defensive line did a nice job. We held them to six points until that desperation pass."

The Rocks held a 7-6 halftime lead, despite gaining only 55 yards and running only nine plays from scrimmage in the first half. Moshimer said the Rocks needed strong play from their offensive line, which includes seniors Casey Nichols, Brian Connell and Don Parrish.

"OUR GAME plan couldn't change; we only ran nine plays," Moshimer said. "I told our offensive line they had to do the job until the juniors are ready to play. We're basically an all-senior team, and it's a big step for a junior to play, especially on the line. That's the hardest job in the world."

The line opened holes all over the field for Johnson in the second half. Johnson gained only one yard in the first half but had carries of 33, 23 and, of course, 75 in the second half.

"I've got to give Chad (Johnson), (Brian) Burlison, Bowie and the offensive line credit," Johnson said. "On the 75-yard run, I just got out, saw Chad knock someone on his can, and so did Burlison."

Chiefs jolt favored Monroe

In what proved to be a convincing victory, Plymouth Canton made its 1989 debut by knocking off Monroe, a Class A playoff qualifier last year, 30-14 Friday night at Monroe.

With the score tied 14-14 at halftime, the second half told the story as the Chiefs outscored Monroe 16-0, thanks to Canton quarterback Carl Wukie's 2-yard touchdown run and 35-yard touchdown pass to Jason Riggs. Canton kicker Mike Krejcar added a field goal.

Wukie completed eight of 16 passes for 104 yards.

The Chiefs (1-0) will play host to Farmington, a 40-3 loser to West Bloomfield in its first game.

Veterans counted on to keep Canton on top

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton has been the class of Observerland in girls cross country for the last two years, and 1989 might be no different.

The Chiefs return four veteran runners, two of whom have been instrumental in Canton winning back-to-back championships in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Lori Penland and Missy Jasnowski, both seniors entering their fourth year of cross country, are two of the premier runners in the area. Farmington has Jennifer Kiel and North Farmington has Lisa Rives, but not many teams in the WLAA have as good a one-two combination.

Penland has been a member of the All-Observer team since she was a sophomore. She placed fifth in the league meet and 34th in the state last fall.

"Lori has been an outstanding performer for us the last three years," coach George Przygodski said. "With her talent and experience, she should be one of the area's top performers."

AS A JUNIOR, Jasnowski also made the All-Observer honor roll and was 10th in the league. She subsequently placed 55th in Class A competition.

"Missy has been a consistent performer over the last three seasons," Przygodski said. "For us to continue to be successful, Missy will have to have a great season."

While the return of Penland and Jasnowski are reasons to believe the Chiefs will do well again, Canton's graduation losses were considerable.

The Chiefs lost a pair of first-team, all-area runners in Cindy Spessard, who won a good many races, and Kris Marquard. Canton also graduated second-team, All-Observer selection Lynda Schendel.

cross country

But, in addition to Penland and Jasnowski, the Chiefs return senior Adrienne Garrow, who made much progress last season and earned a berth on the all-area second team, and sophomore Carolyn Way, who had an impressive first year of high school competition. Both will be expected to pick up some of the slack from the graduated runners.

Garrow blossomed as a high school runner last fall and placed 82nd in the state. Prior to that meet, she was 13th in WLAA competition.

"ADRIENNE IS an excellent competitor who has made dramatic improvements over the past two years," Przygodski said. "We will be depending heavily on her."

Przygodski also expects Way to have an even better second season and to help the team a great deal.

"Carolyn was an inexperienced runner last year who has worked extremely hard to improve," he said. "She has had an outstanding early fall so far, and she is going to surprise a lot of people in the area."

In addition to Penland, Jasnowski, Garrow and Way, Canton's top seven will probably include senior Kim Rice and sophomores Alicia King and Amy Smith.

Rice begins her third year on the team, and the Chiefs also return senior Michelle Miller and juniors Nicole Kozma and Reena Shah. Smith and King are first-year runners with no cross country experience. Junior Marisa Dersey and freshman Lara Antczak are newcomers whom Przygodski expects to contend for places in the top seven.

In four years of coaching the Canton girls, Przygodski's teams have won two Schoolcraft Invitationals and three Western Division championships in their half of the WLAA.

BESIDES WINNING those titles last year, the Chiefs were second in their regional and runners-up in the Ypsilanti and Redford Union invites. Canton moved up two places in the Class A meet from the previous year, finishing ninth.

"Our No. 1 goal will be to win our fourth consecutive division title," Przygodski said. "With our solid nucleus of seniors and returning lettermen along with our newcomers, we feel we will again contend for the WLAA championship.

"If we can remain healthy and continue to improve, we hope to improve on last year's finish at the state meet."

Skater's effort turns into gold

By Dan O'Meara

It was no fun early last month when Tiffany Tyra was spending countless hours each week practicing on roller skates.

It was no fun being secluded in the Riverside Roller Arena instead of socializing with her friends.

And it wasn't any fun spending her summer vacation sweating through workouts and doing repetitious routines when she could have been sun bathing or going to the mall.

But when the 15-year-old Canton girl stood on the awards platform in the Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth, Texas, to receive gold medals in two events at the national roller skating championships, it didn't seem so bad after all.

That was fun.

"WHEN YOU'RE up on the podium — and you have all the fame and glory — it's worth it," she said.

Tyra, who won the junior world class dance title with partner Philip Beuck and soloed to capture first place in figures, got a little emotional, considering all the time and effort that went into preparing.

"I started to cry, but I couldn't do that because we had to take pictures after," she said, "and that would have ruined all the makeup.

"It was real nerve-racking. When you're done, they show your score on a big, high board. It's just like the Olympics."

Speaking of which, Tyra and Beuck, who will move up to world class next year, have been invited to compete next summer in the Olympic Sports Festival in Minneapolis.

"We'll be skating against the best of the best," Tyra said, expressing skepticism about doing as well at that level right away.

"It takes time. They're not going to let a first-year team move up and place. Not that it's bad judging, but you kinda have to wait your turn."

All the hard work and long hours returned a dividend for Tiffany Tyra, who captured first place in junior world class dance and figures at the national roller skating championships. Her admiring mother, Onalee Tyra, owns and operates the Riverside Roller Arena in Livonia where Tiffany trains.

Offensive stars are North's hope

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Scoring points won't be a problem for the girls basketball team at North Farmington.

Coach Greg Capling knows exactly where the offense is going to come this year.

North, 14-9 last season, brings back 30 points per game in three returning starters. Senior Kim Gurecki and junior Eve Claar were the leading scorers a year ago with 12-point averages, and senior Vikki Seamons represents an additional six.

All three will play pivotal roles for the Raiders, who start their season Tuesday when they entertain Novi in a non-league game. And they are cause for North to be a realistic contender for the Lakes Division title.

Gurecki, a 5-foot-2 point guard and all-division player, begins her third year as a starter and, because she'll direct the floor show and provide scoring punch, could have the most important charge of all.

"I'M HOPING she has her best year ever," Capling said. "She definitely has to be one of the team leaders. If she has a good year, I think we'll have a good year."

Claar, a 5-7 swing player, had an impressive sophomore season and made the all-star team at the Traverse City summer camp recently. Much of the offense will come from the one-two punch of Gurecki and Claar.

"If (Claar) continues to improve, she'll be a dominating force in the league for the next two years," Capling said.

"She and Kim have to score for us. If they don't, we could be in a little bit of trouble because we're small again."

Since the Raiders have no more height than they did last year — Seamons is the tallest player at 5-10 — they again will rely on scrappy defensive play and an up-tempo offensive style. Capling also hopes a little more experience will mean a more aggressive team.

"We'll have to force other teams out from the basket and do a lot of trapping," he said. "We'll try to speed the game up, because when Kim gets the ball in the open floor she can cause problems for other teams."

girls basketball

THE FACT North will be a small team again makes Seamons a key figure for both rebounding and defense in the post. Besides her scoring, she was the No. 2 rebounder with nine a game.

Seamons also had arthroscopic knee surgery, and staying healthy will be just as important, Capling said, since the Raiders will have difficulty enough guarding big people.

North also returns 5-9 senior Amy Post, who will play forward. She had limited playing time last year but has improved quite a bit, Capling said.

Rounding out the varsity roster are four players off the JV team that won its last seven games and finished 13-7. The quartet consists of seniors Ginger Donoghue (5-9) and Carla Chelland (5-6), junior Dana Botwick (5-4) and sophomore Karen Seremet (5-6). All are guards except for Donoghue, who plays forward.

"We have only eight people on the team, so everybody will have to contribute," Capling said.

The Raiders lost guard Debbie Weintraub and forward Donna O'Brien, the leading rebounder on the previous team, to graduation, and Capling plans to rotate Post and the four varsity newcomers at those positions.

NORTH CAME within seconds and a few points of twice upsetting Western Lakes Activities Association power and Lakes Division champ Plymouth Salem last year. The Raiders, who finished 6-4 in the division, knocked off Walled Lake Central and West Bloomfield to get to the district final in November.

With three starters back, the coming season looks promising for the Raiders, Capling believes.

"I think we've got as good a chance as anyone else in the league," he said. "Salem should be favored to win (the division), but we should be right up there.

"We had a good team last year, but the competition was a little stronger. I think the league is a little more balanced this year. I don't see anyone running away and hiding."

- Promising newcomers: Natasa Hartman, 5-11 senior forward; Lisa Drum, 6-0 junior center; Connie Robinson, 5-8 senior; and Lisa Lass, 5-6 senior forward.
- Mann's '89 outlook: "Woodard is extremely talented. She's an excellent ball handler and shooter. She needs to concentrate on defense and she can be quicker. She's good at score, but she's also got to run the offense. We should be a good, physical team. We have good quickness at some positions."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD

- Head coach: Tim Jaskot, his first season.
- League affiliation: Catholic League (Central Division).
- Last year's overall record: 16-7.

- Promising newcomers: Mary Jo Kelly, 5-9 freshman forward; Tracy Maguire, 5-9 freshman forward; Tracy Przybysz, 5-8 freshman guard.
- Gasparovic's '89 outlook: "I think the team has a lot of promise. We have a lot of hard work ahead, but after we get under way with the season we should get much tougher. There's a lot of potential to work with."
- Jaskot on a controlled manner of the game.

REDFORD ST. AGATHA

"I expect this team to be much quicker and more aggressive than in the past."

LIVONIA CLARENCEVILLE

- Head coaches: Wendy Kelleher and Pat Fournier, first season for each.

- Kelleher's '89 outlook: "What we lack in height we'll make up in quickness. They have a very good attitude and they work very hard. They've accepted the leadership, but we're young. Some will have to play two positions.

GARDEN CITY

- Head coach: Marshall Henry, seventh season.

- Henry's '89 outlook: "We should be a decent team this year. An undefeated JV team will help, because the three starters on our schedule is fairly tough, so I expect to be at .500 or a little above.

"Our team philosophy will be to play aggressive on defense and offense. We will play both man and different zone combinations, depending on our opponents' strength and weaknesses. We will run the ball and have a disciplined type basketball.

Right now there is no clear-cut favorite between the No. 2 pulled and the No. 3 pulled. We have a lot of kids.

REDFORD TEMPLE

- White's '89 outlook: "Just found out last Monday that I was the coach. I'm excited. This is a young team that will make a lot of mistakes. It's going to be a learning experience. Any time you have a young team, you expect to be competitive because we have three players with experience.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

- Akerlson's '89 outlook: "We're looking to be a quick, pressing team. My normal philosophy is that your best defense is a patient offense, but this team will different. It's a pesky-type team that will be all over you. We hope to make things happen, pressing and scrambling all over the floor. But we want to take care of the basketball and not turn it over.

"Willems should be one of our top scorers. Daly is a good ball handler and Priebe is a defensive specialist. Garry should be one of our top rebounders."

- Promising newcomers: Jenny Sturm, guard; Jenny Reiner, junior forward; Christine Stepurski, guard.
- Hebestreit's '89 outlook: "We hope to be competitive. With such a young team, we'll probably preach patience a lot. We are quick and able to play defense.

"We are rather inexperienced, but we'll work with what we're working with at that time."

- Merton's '89 outlook: "We should be solid and strong. Our strongest point is our experience. The team has been playing together three years.

"We're very quick, a lot of speed. We'll be a running team, a pressing team.

"It should be interesting joining the conference for the first time. We have something to shoot for."

Rocks are ready for racing

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

girls cross country

Mike Krafchak has brought his Plymouth Salem girls cross country team as far he possibly can in preseason workouts.

Now the Rocks need to compete.

Krafchak, in his first year coaching the Rocks, has been working with an inexperienced team, and the next step in finding out where Salem stands is to face some opposition.

"They can handle the workouts now, and the key is to race," said Krafchak, who comes to Salem after coaching at Schoolcraft College and Redford Union. "Garden City and Livonia Ladywood before that.

The Rocks, who were 4-3 in dual meets and third behind Farmington and Livonia Stevenson in the Lakes Division, have seven returning runners, but only three are among the top 10 at this point.

Krafchak, who did some recruiting within the school, has seven first-year runners with no cross country experience who have earned their places in the preseason pecking order.

"WE ASKED A bunch of kids to come out, and one reason we did was because of athletic ability," Krafchak said. "So it doesn't surprise me those kids are doing so well."

Junior Parekh Payal is one of those and ranks as the team's No. 1 runner. Seniors Jenny Harris, a co-captain along with senior Alison Rybski, is right up there, too.

"It's clear (Payal) worked hard in the summer," Krafchak said. Harris, an outstanding high jumper in track, "has been coming on like gangbusters and learning how to make her body adjust to this, because she's basically a sprinter."

Rybski, while her progress in terms of time has come slowly, has been instrumental in building team morale, according to Krafchak. "Her attitude and leadership have been exemplary," he said.

Senior returnee Cathy Boyd has been impressive and newcomers Corey Gulkewicz (freshman), Jenny Marshke (senior), Theresa Giacherio (sophomore), Jill Czaplicki (sophomore), Sharon Bansel (freshman) and Carla Kehrier (sophomore) appear to be other top performers.

The Rocks also return seniors Erin Ryan and Kerri Slider and juniors Tammy Carlson and Holly Fody. Salem has 20 girls on the team presently, but Krafchak expects to add a few more once the school year gets under way.

"WE'RE YOUNG; we have only four seniors in the top 10," Krafchak said. "I think we'll do OK, it's just going to be late.

"Our big weakness is inexperience. In cross country, you have to be a natural talent or have experience doing it to know what you can accomplish in a race. I expect it will take half a season to get to the point we know how to race."

Krafchak also puts a lot of emphasis on the team concept, and the Rocks tried to develop that by spending time earlier this month at team camp in Lewiston.

The girls are adjusting to his coaching style and workout routines, and they have made progress in what Krafchak refers to as the educational aspect of cross country. But, ultimately, the real test will come in competition.

"If this team is willing to race — and by that I mean compete — we'll be in the hunt," Krafchak said. "If we don't have the kids who can handle the pain of a 5,000-meter race, we won't be.

"As far as conditioning, we've accomplished a great deal, and we're where we need to be."

Salem begins the season Thursday when it competes in the Ypsilanti Invitational.

Chiefs aim for another big season

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

The Plymouth Canton boys cross country team lost only one of its top five runners to graduation, so the Chiefs are looking forward to another successful campaign under veteran coach Jim Hayes.

Last year, Canton was 5-1 in dual meets, placed second at the Schoolcraft College Invitational and first at the Redford Union meet.

The Chiefs' season ended when they finished fifth at the Class A regional, but several returning lettermen lasted beyond that, competing in the state meet.

Among the state qualifiers were seniors Brian Beach and Matt Hall and junior Mike Ream. The other four returning runners figuring to be among Canton's top seven performers are Matt Boland, Jason Napolitano, Jim Carnes and Jason Crain.

JIM GALLAGHER, who ran No. 5 a year ago, is the lone casualty due to graduation.

Beach brings an impressive record into his senior season, having made the all-invitational teams at Schoolcraft and RU and finishing eighth at the Western Lakes Activities Association meet.

He was an All-Western Division selection, too.

"He had a real good year," Hayes said. "He's put in a lot of miles over the summer — a lot of kids ran all summer.

"He's at least at where he was, and I hope he makes improvement throughout the season. He works awfully hard, I can see that."

Hayes said he won't know where to rate his team until "he puts the clock on them," and that was to be Friday in the rain at Cass Benton Park.

"We want to be one of the top three teams in the WLAA and contend for the division championship," Hayes said.

HE PREDICTED defending champion Farmington, Plymouth Salem and Walled Lake Western would be the teams to beat in the WLAA.

Depth is important in being a contender, and Hayes hopes to get it from junior newcomers Chris Nelson and Ryan McClain. Hayes expected to have Nick Atwell in camp, but an injury prevented him from coming out for the team.

"(Nelson and McClain) are right in there in the next little pile," Hayes said. "I hope they can challenge the varsity. There's a lot of other kids I see in practice, but you never know until you put the clock on them."

Brian Beach is one of the top returning runners on a veteran Canton boys cross country team. The Chiefs, 5-1 in duals last season, anticipate another good year.

Hard work pays off in gold for Tyra

THE TIME HAD come, however, for Tyra to be recognized among her peers. A sophomore at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, she became a celebrity last week when her achievements were announced on the P.A. system the first day of school.

Tyra, who has labored in relative obscurity since she doesn't compete in an interscholastic sport, was standing in the lunch line at the time and admitted to being a little red-faced.

"People in other sports who know what it is to win nationals said, 'Wow, we didn't know you skated competitively,'" she said.

Tyra expressed shock at winning in both events, because the competitors never know what's on the minds of the judges. That uncertainty can give anybody a case of the jitters, but staying cool is part of the act.

"You have to be really cautious without looking cautious," Tyra said. "You could be favored to win and get blown out of the competition by making one mistake.

"You try not to think about being in front of five judges. You have to think about what you have to do."

WINNING IN figures came as more of a surprise than dance since Tyra and Beuck had been hearing how good they were all along.

"I was probably harder on myself for figures, because I thought I had to be much better than what I was," she said. "Obviously, I was good enough. I think I skated to my ability in both events."

In both dance and figures, the competition was trimmed to 28 couples and skaters in eliminations, and eight go to the finals in dance and four in figures. Tyra and Beuck were tied for first heading into the last round, and Tyra was second in figures.

"I wasn't sure we could pull it off during eliminations (in dance), because other teams look better to you," Tyra said. "But I'm not a judge who looks at all the technical stuff.

"In dance, I knew we could win, but it depended on how we skated. I knew we had the ability. The team that got second was more showy, but we were technically better."

Tyra's figure skating coach had told her she had a chance to win this year, but she had heard that before from other coaches and wasn't so quick to believe it anymore.

BUT AS THE season progressed and she began to place in various competitions, Tyra started to gain confidence and foresee possibilities.

Salem wins opener

Matt Gold's two goals helped boost the Plymouth Salem boys soccer team to a convincing 4-0 victory over Brighton last Wednesday.

Midfielder Jeff Gold added a goal and an assist, and Billy Joker scored the other goal for the Rocks.

Senior co-captain Matt Tudor stopped the Brighton attack in goal as he recorded the shutout.

"Matt played real well for us," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "But you have to give our defense a lot of credit. They played real well against a physical Brighton team."

The physical play of Brighton caused two of its players to be ejected from the game, leaving the Bulldogs with just nine players to finish the contest.

"I am sure the shortage of players hurt them down the stretch," Johnson said.

FARMINGTON 1, W. BLOOMFIELD 0: Scott Dolesh scored the game's only goal to lift Farmington to the victory. Mike Sheehy recorded the shutout in goal for the Falcons, 1-0.

Oil slicks

Lane application sends scores soaring

10-pin alley

Al Harrison

WITH LABOR DAY BEHIND us, just about all the local bowling leagues are back in action.

The lane conditions for this season are reportedly about the same as last year. The first 24 feet of lane surface is oil covered, with channel to channel application. This is the "short oil" type which first came into effect in 1986 and has been modified each year since.

Because of rising scores and averages, there have been cuts of the "short oil" condition, claiming it is too easy for a fairly good bowler to attain 800 series and near perfect games. The proponents of the "short oil system" laud the uniformity of lane conditions, and the near certainty that award scores will be approved by ABC when the lanes are inspected. They claim that bowlers are getting higher scores and averages because of better equipment and more sophisticated methods of fitting and balancing the ball. Also, they point to the fact that many of the good bowlers today have had better instruction in recent years, with the inclusion of instant replay video-aided lessons. If any has a comment on today's lane conditions, please write me. I would like to include your comments in this column.

• Dan Ottman of the Bowling Centers Association is offering a $500 reward to anyone who can come up with an old video tape of a show he appeared on at age seven in April, 1964. Ottman appeared on "Poopdeck Paul and Friends" show of what was then CKLW-TV, Channel 9 in Windsor.

This was a three-week segment of a bowling tournament in which Dan won and took home the first prize ... a bowling ball. In those days, it was common practice to recycle tapes, so the station did not have a copy of it. If you have a copy of either both of these shows in all of Dan Ottman appeared, call him at 459-8636.

• This the second season of Two Pin Alley, and I would like to thank all the wonderful people: managers of bowling establishments and league officers who contributed scores and stories to the column. People we Warren Teuber, Ted Kress, Bert Ty Heider, Ed Wright, Norm Kopka, Jeff Toner, Jo Brabant and Sandy Hardesty, who saved in scores for the last season.

• I welcome all bowling leagues in the Observer & Eccentric cities to call me with scores of any kind of newsworthy item. This column is all about people who bowl, and one need not bowl a 299 or 300 game to get in the paper. There are a bevy of tournaments held in the area practically all through the year and with the many, many events and tour events taking place, such as the Open, Classic, Bowl for Bread, Turning 40 at 15 Bowl, Super Senior, Junior Gold, Pro-Am, Invitational, a grand total of a seven-figure purse for the winter season. Key words to remember: Be careful not to over-bowl the lane conditions.

• Bowling is fun, even. Some weekends I have suffered and got away from the lanes for the whole summer. Be careful not to over-bowl the lane conditions.

Those of you who are regulars might have suffered and got away from the lanes for the whole summer. Be careful not to over-bowl the lane conditions. Don't you feel [illegible] Take days sometimes, with the time [illegible] as travel used to a while. I suggest that it keeps the [illegible] every paper handy. WRITE IT AND REAP!

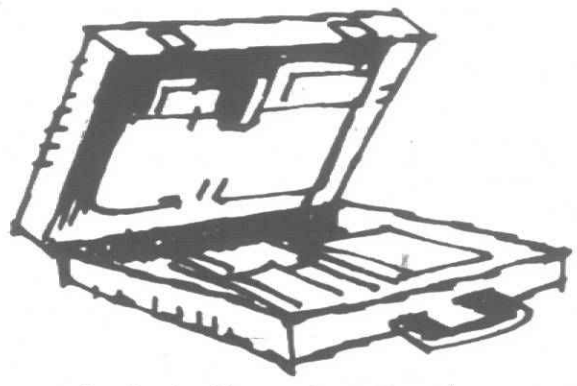
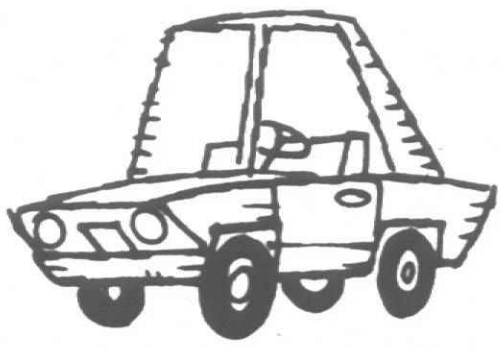
1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

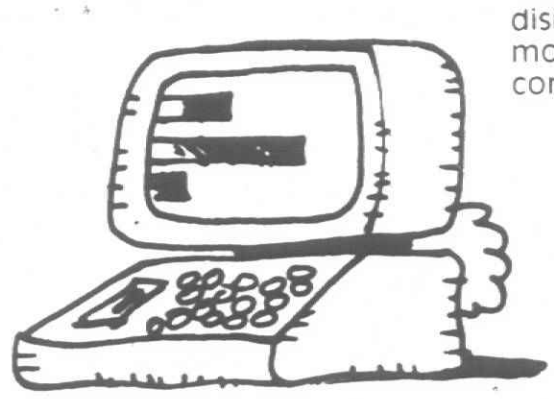


2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Romantic getaway

Don't be looking for the falls and a collection of tourist traps when you visit Niagara-on-the-Lake. While it may bear the name of the famous falls, it's attraction isn't water, but serenity mixed with a touch of romance and history. For more on this romantic getaway, see Page 6D

Avant-garde dress is a somewhat common sight along the streets of downtown Royal Oak.

Jim Moore, 28, an artist from Ferndale, turns heads in Royal Oak with his be-yourself statement of leather, air-conditioned blue jeans and earrings, trinket-laden jacket and whisps of chartreuse hair.

The real Royal Oak

By Sharon Dargay
staff writer

I admit it. I'm biased about Royal Oak. I've lived there for 35 years, and I like it.

But I'm a tad rattled by the increasing number of people who paint my hometown as a haven for the hip, trendy, avant-garde — a sort of Mayfield-cum-Birmingham — and nothing more.

"Royal Oak is a lot more than upscale restaurants, art galleries and kids with magenta-colored crew cuts," I inwardly hear the June Cleaver side of me fuming.

"It's families strolling the streets on summer nights, Dondero's homecoming parade decked out in blue and white, and sinking your teeth into a jelly-filled doughnut from Hermann's Bakery," I reason, shaking my hip violet tresses until my avant-garde earrings from Patti Smith's jangle like cymbals.

For a native Royal Oaker like me, the town is both as mundane as a trip to Ace Hardware store for garden hose and as offbeat as a shopping spree for leather whips and lace stockings at Noir Leather

IT'S A little schizophrenic.
But that's part of the city's charm.
The search for downtown Royal Oak starts with the people who work, live and shop the city.

I've always wanted to talk to a punk rocker, so one Saturday, I headed for the corner of Washington and Fourth.

Beth Miller, a member of Royal Oak's first family of publishing, mixed easily with others who sported leather jackets and neon-colored hair. Her uncle ran the town newspaper before the family sold out to a corporation several years ago.

BUT SELLING out definitely wasn't Beth's problem.

The 16-year-old Birmingham Seaholm High School junior held a red carnation in her hand and talked about her plans to ("Thank you, Lord") move back to her native Royal Oak.

Dressed in white stretch pants and a black Betty Boop T-shirt, Miller is a bookend to her best friend, Holly Drozin, who's 16 and a Dondero student, outfitted in black stretch pants and a white sweater.

Jeers and stares from passing motorists don't faze the pair, who prefer sedate picnics in Oakview Cemetery with their spikey-haired friends to shopping sprees at Benneton.

"I'm happy the way I am," she said. "I've tried many different ways to belong. I don't believe in preppy things. I don't like going out and drinking. I don't feel like I belong when I go out with people like that."

"THE BIGGEST thing is to be yourself. You don't have to be like the other girls," Drozin chimed in.

Their 28-year-old friend, Jim Moore, an artist from Ferndale, turned heads in passing cars with his be-yourself statement of leather, air-conditioned blue jeans and earrings. His painted, trinket-laden jacket jangled like wind chimes when he moved. Wisps of chartreuse hair, colored with ink and acrylic paint and baked by a crimping iron, were secured with feather and bone.

Like Moore, many of the punks are "artistic or musically inclined."

"People are just fed up with 9-to-5 jobs and tired of being clones," he said. "Most of us are really harmless."

Even so, Monica Breen, another Birmingham resident, cautioned against comparing her four-member band, "Dog Horn Cross," with punk musicians.

"I'D RATHER NOT be lumped in with that because we're a different kind of thing," she said, lingering near Cinderella's Attic, a vintage clothing shop.

"Can we say it's punk rock in so far as punk rock means fight bull shit?" added another band member, trying to be helpful. "Our music is not purely entertainment."

Corner Coney — that's entertainment. Nick Kahaian, its resident Johnny Carson, provides hot dogs, coffee and other lunch counter fare in the seven-seat diner he bought from "a nice Albanian guy" four years ago.

His continuous banter is an added bonus.

"Hey, I won the Oak-Apple run," he boasted, claiming victory in a recent town foot race.

"Yeah, he took a cab," quipped his eldest son, Jack.

DISHES CLATTERED like applause as Kahaian and his two sons filled plates and mugs.

"You know, we have an employee lounge in the back with tennis courts, a swimming pool, sauna and billiard hall."

Customers gulped down coffee and chuckles.

"I never look at another woman. I have a very jealous wife. I met her on parole."

Across the street, Mark Parton took a quick break in the kitchen of his 1950s-style diner, R and J Coffee Shop.

"It's like being at 'Cheers' here," he said. "You know how they say at the beginning of the song, 'Where everyone knows your name?' "

Mark and his brother, David, bought the restaurant from their father four years ago, continuing the 37-year tradition of Parton family ownership.

Doodlers delight in Crayola Club

By Joan Boram
special writer

The Detroit metropolitan area, like that of most large cities, can boast of several clubs whose select membership is based on social connection, family connections, school affiliations and/or net worth.

One of the most exclusive clubs is, fittingly, one of the most non- ostentatious. No charity balls, no regattas, here! Membership is strictly limited to 140 born-again children and is, for now, irrevocably closed.

We're referring to the Crayola Club at Les Auteurs, the popular 150-seat bistro in Royal Oak, one of Esquire magazine's best new restaurants in 1988.

In keeping with the bistro image, chef/proprietor Kieth Famie used shiny white paper to cover the tables. Providing architects, cartoonists, doodlers and graffiti artists with an assortment of crayons just naturally evolved.

LES AUTEURS attracts an arty group of gourmets, who raved about the mozzarella pizza and basil inguine, but complained when their periwinkle crayon was dull or burnt sienna missing.

Finally, a patron brought in her own box of crayons and requested that it be put aside for her.

Voila! The idea of the Crayola Club was born.

"It just took off," Famie said.

For an annual fee of $5.50, members get their very own box of 64 crayons. Each box is numbered and placed in the Crayola Vault. Each member's name and membership number is engraved on a brass plate that marks his or her crayons' location in the vault.

Soon, a "crayolier," bearing a sharpener on a silver chain, will go from table to table. "Would you like your magenta sharpened tonight, sir?" For now, staff members take

MOVING PICTURES

Michael Douglas plays a New York City detective who teams up with a Japanese detective (Ken Takakura) from Osaka in "Black Rain."

Holloywood cashes in on box office bonanza

Audiences are still lining up for summer blockbuster films, so September promises a slow distribution schedule.

But business is so good that Hollywood pundits now cautiously predict a $5 billion box office this year as the record-setting summer stats roll in. Practically every week this year has exceeded '88 performance.

By the end of July, last year's record domestic box office of $4.46 billion was well in sight as the number of tickets sold began to rise along with admission prices.

No new films are opening over this long Labor Day weekend, but several releases later this month appear promising.

Raul Julia ("Tequilla Sunrise," "Moon Over Parador," "Kiss of the Spider Woman") in the title role of "Romero" focuses attention on the continuing socio-economic and political problems in Central and South America. Oscar Romero, Archbishop of El Salvador, was a man of conscience who could not stand by and watch his country suffer. He was assassinated in 1980.

"Romero" is scheduled for Sept. 8.

The subject of politically active priests will be treated again later this fall with Ed Harris ("Abyss") in "To Kill a Priest," the story of Father Jerzy Popieluszko, the Solidarity priest murdered in 1984.

Peter Falk fans can look forward to "Cookie" on Sept. 15. Falk stars as ex-con Dino Capisco in a comic but tumultuous relationship with his daughter, "Cookie" (Emily Lloyd). Together they outwit both the mob and the law. Jerry Lewis, Brenda Vaccaro and Dianne Wiest also star in this film directed by Susan Seidelman ("Desperately Seeking Susan").

MANY OTHER major stars will appear this fall. Michael Douglas opens Sept. 22 in "Black Rain," an international thriller. As Nick Conklin, Douglas is a New York City detective assigned to deliver a Japanese killer to police in Osaka, Japan. When the prisoner escapes, Nick and his partner team up with a Japanese detective to recapture him.

Directed by Ridley Scott ("Alien" and "Blade Runner"), "Black Rain" promises exotic settings and fast action.

Kris Kristofferson, currently appearing in "Millenium," stars in "Welcome Home," another examination of Vietnam-engendered problems. Kristofferson appears as an Air Force flier believed killed in Cambodia 17 years earlier. His reappearance, of course, creates many problems. JoBeth Williams is his wife. Sam Waterston and Brian Keith also are featured.

Paul Newman, Dwight Schultz, Bonnie Bedelia, John Cusack and Laura Dern will open Oct. 20 in "Fat Man and Little Boy." Newman stars as Major General Leslie Groves, the man responsible for choosing J. Robert Oppenheimer (Schultz) to head development of the first atomic bomb in World War II's top-secret Manhattan project.

For a very different look at the good old days, "Harlem Nights" features Eddie Murphy, Richard Pryor, Redd Foxx, Danny Aiello and Della Reese plus an appearance by Arsenio Hall in a story of Club Sugar Ray's, a popular afterhours nightclub in 1938 New York City.

ROBERT DeNIRO and Jane Fonda are "Stanley & Iris," an unlikely couple in this poignant story of a widowed factory worker who develops a relationship with a co-worker. The Oscar-winning "Norma Rae" team, director Martin Ritt and writers Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank Jr., are back together for this production, which also stars Swoosie Kurtz, Martha Plimpton and Feodor Chaliapin.

De Niro will also team with Sean Penn in "We're No Angels," scheduled for December release. They're Ned and Jim, two petty gangsters on the run who wind up in a New England town well-regarded for its miraculous shrine. If anyone needs a miracle . . .

December also promises Jack Nicholson directing and starring in "The Two Jakes," a detective mystery written by Robert Towne whose "Chinatown" script won an Oscar for original screenplay. Harvey Keitel, Meg Tilly and Madeline Stowe also appear.

There's plenty more lined up to whet your appetite this fall as Hollywood continues to prosper with dreams and schemes on the silver screen.

STILL PLAYING:

"The Abyss" (D-) (PG-13) 135 minutes.

Despite excellent underwater sequences, this muddled and murky sic-fi sea saga sinks.

"Casualities of War" (B+) (R) 105 minutes.

Grim, gripping and graphically violent story of Vienam war.

"Cheetah" (D-) (G) 75 minutes.

Slow, cliched Disney-in-Africa epic that left its excitement at the airport.

"Dead Poets Society" (A+) (PG) 124 minutes.

Robin Williams' sensitive portrait of a fine teacher is complemented by excellent young actors as his students.

"Do the Right Thing" (B+) (R) 120 minutes.

"Eddie and the Cruisers II: Eddie Lives" (PG-13).

"Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" (B+) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

Good entertainment, but enough already.

"Let It Ride" (B-) (PG-13) 90 minutes.

Good performances in a wild day at the track.

"Lethal Weapon II" (B+) (R) 115 minutes. Glover and Gibson do it again in high, albeit violent, style.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

DFS: American made only

By John Monaghan
special writer

Where most film societies venerate the works of foreign directors, the Detroit Film Society prefers to screen American. For the past two decades, close to 400 dues-paying members have attended monthly screenings at the Detroit Public Library.

The new season, simply called "Tributes," begins this weekend with films about Hollywood. "A Star Is Born" and "Sunset Boulevard" share a double bill this Friday and Saturday nights, starting at 7 p.m.

The 1937 version of "A Star Is Born" stars Janet Gaynor as the small-town girl whose rise to stardom is almost as quick as her matinee idol husband's (Frederic March) drunken decline. It's still an insightful look at the movie world, with bits by some of the '30s best character actors.

"Sunset Boulevard" (1950), meanwhile, is Billy Wilder's cynical look at the dark side of Tinsel Town. Gloria Swanson stars as Norma Desmond, a grotesque former silent movie star desperately trying to make a comeback. William Holden is the handsome young script writer who fuels her fantasies.

The film especially fascinating for silent movie buffs. For Gloria Swanson, this was an uncompromising role, especially considering her sparse work in the sound era.

"I'M STILL big," Norma says dramatically. "It's the pictures that got smaller."

Buster Keaton and H.B. Warner appear as Swanson's card-playing cronies, "The Waxworks," while director Eric Von Stroheim adds a bizarre twist as Max, the butler. At one point, Norma screens a bit from "Queen Kelly" (directed by von Stroheim) and imitates Charlie Chaplin in one of the movie's few light moments.

The season continues with other worthwhile films.

Billy Wilder's "Witness for the Prosecution" (1957) is a tense Agatha Christie mystery starring Marlene Dietrich and Charles Laughton. It screens Feb. 9-10.

"The Pirate" (1948), running March 9-10, teams Gene Kelly and Judy Garland with music by Cole Porter.

Eash season the group welcomes guest speakers. On Oct. 18, DFS board member Rick De Croix discusses his recent book on silent film star Mary Pickford. Several rare clips will be screened along with a surprise Pickford feature.

JIM LIMBACHER, DFS president and author of "Sexuality in World Cinema," will lead a discussion on pre-Code films on Jan. 12. The night's feature, "Call Her Savage" (1932), sees a braless Clara Bow wrestling with a Great Dane and visiting what may be the screen's first gay bar.

Membership includes admission to 18 films plus the lectures for $25 ($23 for seniors and students). An added bonus is coffee and cookie trays during intermission. This is where the society socializes, swaps trivia about the good old days of movies and suggests titles for upcoming seasons.

Opossums: Lean, mean rock 'n' roll

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

There are no frills or amenities with the Opossums, a relatively new four-man outfit by way of Ann Arbor.

"That's Opossums with one p," said Marty Fletcher, kindly correcting the scribble on the reporter's notebook.

There are no frills or amenities with the Opossums, a relatively new four-man outfit by way of Ann Arbor. Not even an additional letter.

The spark that this band produces, though, is the musical equivalent of making a bonfire by rubbing two twigs together.

The Opossums recently released their first LP, "Marsupial Erupt™" (Picnic Horn). Two days were spent recording the project, yet band members believe they couldn't have done better if they stayed two years in the studio.

A listen to the LP bears this out. The Opossums certainly possess in their paws one of the best releases of year.

Some might call it dumb luck — not quite.

As three of four band members fill in around the table in the basement of the Heidelberg Inn (bass player Tom Dunham is fishing up in Canada), it easy to see this is a solid core of friends in perfect harmony.

No one interrupts the other while speaking, and one member dutifully pours beer into each empty mug without being asked.

DRUMMER RANDY Sabo, guitarist and singer Marty Fletcher, and guitarist Mark "Reno" Neff are all from Chelsea. Fletcher and Neff used to strum bluegrass numbers by the lake.

At one time, these fellows were teamed up with another Chelsea native, Frank Allison. After cutting a single together, they went their separate ways.

Sabo and Fletcher used to make up the Folkminers, an Ann Arbor group that disbanded last year.

"When we knew that we were going to talk to you, we decided we wouldn't talk about the Folkminers," Fletcher said. "We're a totally different band.

"We're sick of the bands where we were the kids and we had a mother (yelling) at us and telling us what to do. This is our own band, and it's working out fine."

Yeh, now Marty's the mother," Neff added.

The band is like family. More and more people are taking to the group. The Opossums began performing the Ann Arbor club circuit last December. Their reputation as a lean, mean rock 'n' roll outfit spread quickly.

With just 11 songs in their arsenal, they did something rather unusual. They headed into the studio. Most groups would perhaps wait a year or two before investing that type of money.

Not the Opossums, whose confidence belies their ages (band members are in their early 20s).

"WE HAD some songs that we thought were pretty good songs," said Fletcher, who handles a majority of the song writing. "We went in there and recorded it. It had a feel to it."

"I listened to it. I don't know what to make of it," Neff added. "I like it, but I haven't heard anything like it before."

The spontaneity of the event gave the record a live feel. The sound is basic American rock 'n' roll. Yet the Opossums don't sound like a revivalist band and comparisons to '80s punk also miss the mark.

Band members are not about to commission a study on it yet. Instead, they intend to use their debut LP as a calling card. Plans include releasing it in cassette form and possibly in CD later.

Presently, the band is resting up for what promises to be a busy fall schedule. The Opossums will keep Ann Arbor as a base for the time being, perhaps venturing to Detroit for a show or two. Also in the works is a tour of the Midwest cities such as Chicago, Milwaukee, Wis., and Minneapolis, Minn.

"We have to show our (stuff) now," Fletcher said.

The Opossums will perform on Friday, Sept. 8 at Club Heidelberg in Ann Arbor. For information, call 663-7758.

Spanking Bozos: Bit of this, bit of that

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Spanking Bozo is so urban. HUD director Jack Kemp could be the band's manager.

The four-member group, led by bass player and singer John Collins, mixes an unusual combination of rap, psychedelic, world beat and funk to make a sound that will put your woofers and tweeters into electronic convulsions.

When you say city, you say Spanking Bozo. So who better to play the 1989 "Dally in the Alley," which takes place Saturday, Sept. 9, in Detroit? The Daily features music, poetry, art and crafts demonstrations.

The event takes place three blocks west of Woodward Avenue, between Forest and Hancock. The Detroit Council of Arts, United Community Housing Coalition and WDET-FM are sponsoring the event. Proceeds from the sale of T-shirts, posters and beverages will help the homeless.

Another purpose of the event is to bring together those who make up the arts community in Detroit.

Musically, that's not too difficult. Spanking Bozo is part of burgeoning music community in the city, which tends to shun the pretentious suburban club scene.

Other bands in the community include the Blanks, Kuru, Forced Anger and Son of Sam to name only a few. All play different styles of music, but a common thread brings them together.

"THESE BANDS all pull for one another to make it," said Collins, who lives in Detroit.

'I grew up with funk all my life. I've trying to get rid of the soul sound in my voice for a while, but it never left.'

— Stefanie Dillard

Spanking Bozo has been making music for seven years. The group has endured personnel shakeups and a name change (They were Soviet Sex before finding out another band already had the handle).

The present lineup includes singer Stefanie Dillard, guitarist Derek McBride, and drummer Gary Vanderkerkow along with Collins. Spanking Bozo is featured one three compilation albums, including the recently released "Maniacs from the Motor City."

The biggest breakthrough didn't occur on vinyl, though. Instead it came with the addition of Dillard, whose soulful voice further enhances the Bozo's urban sound.

"I grew up with funk all my life," said Dillard, who is a technical engineer at WXON-TV Channel 20. "I've trying to get rid of the soul sound in my voice for awhile, but it never left."

Good thing for Spanking Bozo it didn't. Incidently, Collins said the band's name came to one member while watching television, which, perhaps further validates warnings about sitting in front of the tube for too long.

Dillard also has contributed in the way of some heady lyrics. But at this interview at the Original House of Pancakes in Southfield, Collins does most of the talking.

COLLINS SAID he's a devout Libertarian and a fan of the works of author Ayn Rand. He can swing conversation from the fellowship of bands in Detroit to a messed up tax system that penalizes small business, all the while sipping coffee.

Yet his music doesn't reflect any political views. The sound is much like the way he paints, another one of his artistic pursuits.

"I paint in an impressionistic style," Collins said. "Our music is very layered."

Psychedelic music appears to be the next big wave. Bands in England are already cultivating a new sound, combining the old with the new.

Collins is quick to defuse the notion that his group is a revivalist one.

"We were doing psychedelic music four years ago," he said. "I'm glad it's coming back though."

LIVING ON THE EDGE — Civilians

Yes, there's homelessness in this country, and the situation in South Africa does stink. Tell us something we don't know.

On that front, the Detroit group Civilians hardly breaks any ground. Here, it's not so much what's being said, but rather the way they say it.

The Civilians on "Living on the Edge" display remarkable musical depth on this seven-song cassette. There are some diverse elements here — mainly funk, rock 'n' roll and a little blues — that are strewn together to make for some rather enjoyable cuts.

Each of the seven songs is different. From the funk-tempoed "America" to the jug-band-flavored "The Whole World's Going to Hell," the Civilians show a willingness to stretch the boundaries.

One common theme brings these songs together — politics and its effects. Whether it's campaigning on the dance floor ("Politics of Motion") or for racial unity ("Brother to Brother"), the Civilians makes its platform known.

Sometimes the lyrics can be optmistic as in "Brother to Brother": "Here we stand together holding different colored hands/Wondering if we can really understand because it's brother to brother, sister to sister, too/If we have a chance to really love one another, maybe the world could dance."

Other times they can be bleak. After all, this tape does ends with the number "The Whole World's Going to Hell."

On a more upbeat note, the guitar work by Joe Mitchell on this tape is excellent. The soaring guitar work carries "Living on the Edge" into another dimension, and the bluesy lines on "Crossroads of Love" provides just the right touch.

Instead of living on the edge, the Civilians have an edge with this tape.

SWING THE HEARTACHE (THE BBC SESSIONS) — Bauhaus

This double album retrospective has been released probably in the hopes of riding on the coat tails of the success of Love and Rockets. Love and Rockets are Bauhaus without the dramatic vocals of super-ego singer Peter Murphy.

Bauhaus was a band that was the forerunner of that curious brand of music, Goth, that blends a heavy-metalish guitar sound with a peculiar mode of dress that has many young people, a majority of whom are girls, in England dressed in black Victorian garb.

The official reason for the release is the band's 10th anniversary. These recordings are from the British radio sessions for the noted DJs John Peel and David "Kid" Jensen' shows, and so are a little rawer than studio versions of the songs.

They also include numerous cover versions of songs Bauhaus used while sound checking — songs such as Marc Bolan's "Telegraph Sam," Brian Eno's ""Third Uncle" and David Bowie's "Ziggy Stardust."

Bauhaus is an acquired taste, which a lot of people have obviously acquired, judging by the Bauhaus T-shirts that are prominent at most gigs and by the fact that six years after they broke up, their back catalog is still selling well.

This release does not include their first single, "Bela Lugosi's Dead," which was a powerful and frightening song and notable for the fact that Peter Murphy had not succumbed to his "Junior Bowie" fetish yet.

Unfortunately, he had by the time of these recordings.

For the Bauhaus cognescenti or inquisitive Love and Rockets/Peter Murphy fans, this LP has 18 more songs to fill the need in you.

STEROIDS! — No Right No Wrong

Novi is hardly the music capital of the world. But No Right No Wrong could very well make it into the center for suburban new wave.

This talented threesome leans a little heavy on the synthesizer, but more than makes up for it with an abundance of energy and humorous lyrics.

The band has apparently been around for awhile, making this its fourth release. No Right No Wrong deems their music as the "next wave," combining rock'n'roll, punk and new wave.

And, yes, all those elements are here. This group's dance sound is somewhat reminiscent of the B-52s, but can veer off into different directions as this recently released nine-song cassette reveals.

The song subjects appear to be those that would most likely affect a suburban male on the cusp of adulthood. You know, jilted by a girlfriend ("Out the Door"), uncertainty ("Insecurities") and, of course, those nasty steroids.

Except No Right No Wrong takes a wry look at all those heavy things weighing on young people today.

Hey, and who's bitter? Nothing bothers us, not even a breakup as "Out the Door" suggests.

"I've see girls like you come and go,/so here's some advice that you should know/your pants are too tight for your mind to grow/so pick up your things and go."

The lyrics might inspire chuckles, but the test in which No Right No Wrong tackles their music sells the package. They burn from the word go and the musicianship is tight.

This is a first-rate production on any level. Fortunately, No Right No Wrong just happens to be right down the street.

STREET SENSE

It's hard for an adult to change

Dear Barbara,

My husband quit his job a year ago and moved out West. He has gotten another job in law enforcement and wants me to move there with our teen-age daughter.

Our marriage was not a good one, but I would prefer not to get a divorce. I have a good job here which I could not duplicate in another city. He tells me that he loves me, that he has changed and that he will support me financially although he did not in the past.

Moving would make such a final decision in terms of losing my job and therefore, my independence, but if he really has changed, that would be the best decision. But how can I trust what he says? I really need help.

Clarice

Dear Clarice,

Please indulge me while I read between the lines. You have been unhappy in this marriage but afraid of being alone. This fear motivates you to believe words that have never been supported by deeds. One does not have to be a trained professional to know how difficult it is for an adult to change.

Is it then that you want me to give credibility to his words? In that way, you could continue avoiding the painful decision you have avoided for years.

I am unable to do that for you.

Barbara

Dear Barbara,

I always look forward to reading your column. You give such good advice.

Is it better for a woman to talk with a male or female therapist or doesn't it matter?

What should the relationship between a person and the therapist be like? Should they like each other, feel like friends or feel detached?

Is it the responsibility of the therapist to keep the relationship on the proper level?

Curious

Dear Curious,

Your pseudonym is a mastery of understatement. You are very eager for answers. Thank you for your kind words.

I wish I could give succinct advice in response to your questions. However, they are so important and thought-provoking that they need at least an article or even an entire book to be answered meaningfully.

I will make some general statements that I hope will be helpful. Each patient and each therapist is so different and individual that writing what "should be" becomes meaningless. That is why male or female may or may not be significant.

Some research studies have shown that the patient's initial reaction to the therapist, his first impression, is often a good indicator of that patient's ability to learn from the therapist. Other studies have indicated that most important in helping a patient change is the therapist's expectations that he will change.

But even as I write this advice, I begin to think of elaborations, exceptions and clarifications for which there is not enough available space.

Beginning in therapy can be, for both patient and therapist, like a voyage into the unknown with all the accompanying excitement and fears. If you should decide to take such a voyage, work hard yourself to make it a meaningful one.

You'll find them rock 'n' rollin' in the Metropolitan Music Cafe and you'll find them standing outside the bar-restaurant and disco at night.

Royal Oak beyond the upscale facade

"HIS MOM USED to work here. His cousins, aunt, my sister, all his brothers," said sister-in-law Michelle, a waitress. "Many of our waitresses met their husbands here."

I linger, reading the Today's Special sign — meat loaf — hoping for a train to speed by. It doesn't. But at the trackside Hobby Attic, I'm in luck.

Tom Riley was showing me shelves jammed with models, railroad memorabilia and old photos when the signal gates swung into place.

"Here we go," he said, ushering me outside. "I had a store in Warren and one day a customer called me and said, 'Tom, look, I found your place. Just call the guy up and say you want the building. I did and it worked out great.

"What I've been thinking of doing is putting a great big transformer outside with the wires running to the track" (that runs next to his shop).

The train whistled as it approached the crossing at Fourth.

"IT'S AN automotive," Riley shouted as the engine roared by. "He'll pick up more cars along the way. He's going to Chicago. It's carrying all automotive parts."

"How do you know that?" I shout back.

"I know. I just know."

That's how Dave Hutzley buys collectible toys for his shop, Dave's Comics, on Washington. He "just knows" a hot item when he sees one.

"Everyone was turning their noses up at '50s and '60s stuff. I started hoarding it," said Hutzley, a Clawson resident who has been selling comics "on and off" since 1969. "At one point I had close to 500 Soaky Bubble toys. They're are all gone now except for a couple dozen."

Lunch boxes with 1960s sit-com designs are hot, too.

"I WAS ALWAYS a paper bag kid. I never had a lunch box. I'm looking for a Jetsons box in mint condition for myself. It's the only box I really want for my own collection."

Finding an old-timer to talk about the city was equally difficult.

Sam Pallis, whose family owns apartments and restaurants in the city, including Jimi's Coney Island, suggested a retired city employee who has lived in the same room at the Madrid Hotel for 45 years.

Pallis' family bought the old boarding house, located over a downtown kite shop, five years ago. His tenants share washroom facilities, a pay telephone and a sparsely decorated lounge.

Roy Abel, the retiree, answered the door in his T-shirt, not expecting company.

"Oh, excuse me. Well, I'll be glad to cooperate with you, but I don't know anyone around town any more," he said. "Could you come back sometime?

"I have a telephone here. If you call and no one answers, I'm probably out and around town killing time. I spend more time on the street than the police do."

SO DO PATRONS at the Metropolitan Music Cafe. I headed for the bar-restaurant and disco at night to find out why.

Two men stood at the end of the line that wound around the building.

"We thought we'd meet someone from the newspaper. That's why we're here," one teased, trying his best to be cute.

"We frequent trendy nightspots in the metropolitan area. Hey, these guys want to talk to you," he said, pointing to the beer-sipping newcomers at the end of the line.

"I'm here tonight because I probably wanted to get my photo in the newspaper," laughed Smart Alek #2.

"Hey, it all boils down to this," Smart Alek #1 continued. "We went to this trendy bar in trendy Royal Oak and now we're going to be in this trendy newspaper."

Thank god, they weren't hometown boys.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Older movies on video cassettes are one of the most dramatic ways to discover how much the world has changed in the last 30 years. Screening "And God Created Woman" (B, PG, 1956, color, 90 minutes) is one such opportunity.

It's hard to believe the sexual excitement Brigitte Bardot created 33 years ago in her first starring role, a pretty tame affair by today's standards.

With the miracle of modern dubbing, viewers don't even have to struggle with subtitles although the widely-available English version sounds tinny, a sound track in considerable contrast to the rich southern France settings (the movie was filmed in Nice). The track also fails to match the actions of Kurt Jurgens, Jean-Louis Trintignant and Bardot as well as the accomplished supporting cast.

The story is quite conventional, the sort of hokum associated with the '50s — and earlier eras as well. Juliette (Bardot) is an orphan living with a crotchety old woman and her crippled, but lecherous husband. The old woman resents Juliette's indolence and raw sexual power.

Down the road a piece is the deceased Emile Tardieu's dockyard run by his wife and three sons. Mother Tardieu is a pretty tough lady who is distressed that her eldest son, Antoine (Trintignant), who lives and works in town and when he's home weekends, is attracted to Juliette, the reputed town tramp.

Regularly sailing into port is wealthy, cosmopolitan Eric Caradine (Jurgens) who lusts after Juliette and the Tardieu property which he needs in order to build a hotel-casino resort.

WHEN THE conservative town threatens to have Juliette returned to the orphanage until she is 21, Michael, the second Tardieu son — who has long been enamored of her — marries her.

Juliette tries to be a good wife despite the town's attitude and her mother-in-law's animosity. But it is difficult, given her central position as the focal point of three men's love and lust.

The first third or so of the film is a bit slow and stodgy setting the situation but after Juliette and Michael marry, the action intensifies. The earlier part probably would work better, if the sound track were more professionally done. Nonetheless, it's still worth watching to see how things turn out.

Of course, the real reason to watch "And God Created Woman" is to enjoy the enduring seductiveness and considerable beauty Bardot projects. Her erotic and sensual appearance — long blonde hair, fine figure and good looks — particularly the pouting wide mouth — are still attractive. Unlike contemporary explicitness, "And God Created Woman" is now justifiably rated PG. There is no nudity or any explicit sexual encounters.

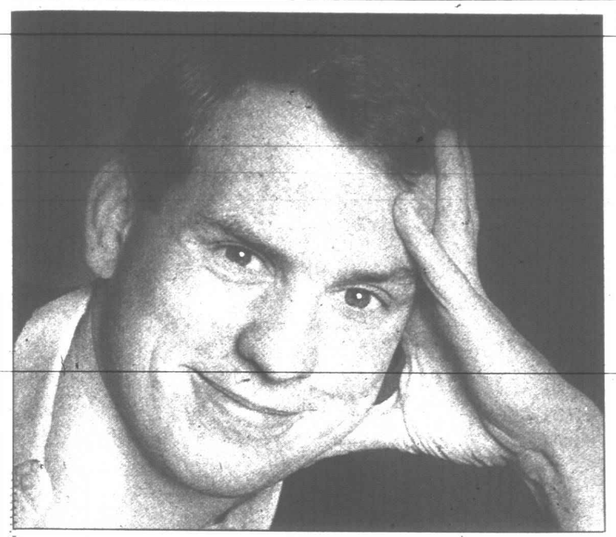
But the suggestiveness is masterful. Bardot covered projects more sensuousness than a year's subscription to "Playboy." Unless you realize how much the world has changed in the last three decades, it's hard to imagine the furor the film created in 1956 when it reportedly grossed more in the United States than the Renault Auto Company.

Times, indeed, have changed and this is an era when the X-rated values of the '60s — frontal nudity, graphic sexual encounters, detailed discussions of unusual sexual practices and explicit, excessive violence — have become accepted as routine R and PG-13 practices.

VIDEO CASSETTES have accelerated this process, given that materials for home consumption are even less regulated than the movies. It's ironic that films that used to be recut to "clean them up" for broadcast television are now re-cut the other way, to make them more explicit — and presumably more attractive — for the home market, competing with the porno trade while maintaining enough respectability for mainstream commercial distribution.

If there's any doubt, take a look at what's on the stands and pick up something like "Posed for Murder," the story of a centerfold model stalked by a psychotic. All the explicit violence and graphic sexuality imaginable within the R-rating range are there. That's but one of many examples where outrageous displays are included for commercial purposes.

STREET CRACKS



Taylor Mason doesn't mind sharing the stage with a puppet. After all, Romeo is a part of a comedy act that features observational humor.

Oh, Romeo!

He laughs it up with a puppet

By Susan Steinmueller
staff writer

'I studied agriculture and communications as an undergrad, which means I can talk to animals.
— Taylor Mason

Taylor Mason often shares center stage with a puppet, Romeo.

The act allows Mason to use the ventriloquism skills he has been honing since he was a child.

It also allows Romeo to be gainfully employed, said Mason, noting that jobs for puppets are hard to come by. Romeo, in the past, has been forced to work as a mannequin in a Sears window.

"There's got to be at least one puppet's job," Mason said he told Romeo. "He told me, Dan Quayle's already got it."

MASON, A comedian for six years, will appear at Chaplin's West this week, the second time he has appeared for the Chaplin's chain.

The New Jersey-based Mason travels all over the country to do his act. He has appeared in nearly 100 clubs coast to coast, including the Comedy Cafe in Washington, D.C., the Punchline in Atlanta and San Francisco, and Stand Up in New York.

He has also performed in theaters, including the famed Second City in Chicago and the Paul Sills Story Theater in Chicago.

His television credits include appearances on the "Today" show, and he has been seen in shows on cable and network television, including the Showtime Comedy Club network.

He has performed everywhere from "bikers' bars" to "Boy Scouts banquets."

"I like working little clubs," he said. "I really enjoy doing my act. I'd probably do it anywhere. I just like to work. I enjoy performing."

MASON, WHO holds a master's degree in advertising from Northwestern University, is a "well educated" comedian.

Upon graduation, he decided to write jokes instead of ads, because "I didn't want to write 'Nut'n'Honey commercials."

Nevertheless, his education has paid off.

"I studied agriculture and communications as an undergrad, which means I can talk to animals. This comes in handy when I play many of the so-called 'comedy clubs' in America," he said.

MASON STARTED to perform comedy while still in graduate school in Chicago, between 1981 and 1983. He performed on a regular basis at Second City, where many big names in comedy got their start.

There's a lot of big names that came out of Second City — but I'm not one of them," he said.

After graduation, he worked as an emcee at Zanies in Chicago, introducing comedy acts.

Mason and his wife, Marsia, then made a "career move" to New York, where he further honed his skills in clubs.

The couple then moved to New Jersey, where they have lived for two years.

IT'S A long way from Ottawa, Ill. Mason grew up in a town so small that he said "everybody got to be mayor."

He describes his style of comedy as "observational." That means that he makes jokes about "everything," he said. Lately, the economy has been the target of many of his jokes.

"You probably know that we have a $31 trillion debt. That's pretty bad. We couldn't even get a Visa card."

POLITICS ALSO provides fodder for many of his jokes. But Mason said he won't make fun of Barbara Bush, whom he admires.

Mason's show is spiced up with his ventriloquism act — "there aren't too many ventriloquists out there," — and he sings and plays the piano.

Mason plans to continue to travel the country doing comedy.

His wife is supportive, he said, although, "I don't know if either one of us knew how much time it would take."

He looks forward to appearing in Michigan again.

"I like Detroit," he said. "You can't beat Michigan — the giant hand state."

Taylor Mason will appear at Chaplin's West, 16890 Telegraph Road, Detroit, Tuesday-Saturday, Sept. 5-9. For reservations, call 533-8866.

A place for reviving (or arousing) romance

Serenity prevails at other Niagara

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

Niagara-on-the-Lake is not a destination to waste on children. Leave them home for a few days with the sitter, Popsicles and money for greasy fast food.

This clean and serene Ontario town is for hand-holding couples — a perfect spot for R & R, reviving (or 'rousing) the romance.

Niagara-on-the-Lake is on the shore of Lake Ontario where the Niagara River ends — a five-hour drive from Detroit and just up the river 20 miles from wonderfullly tacky Niagara Falls (the Canadian side).

Niagara-on-the-Lake town fathers call it the loveliest town in Ontario and it's hard to argue the point. The small, historic town has faithfully preserved the 18th century architecture and much of the leisurely ambiance that goes with it.

Most visitors come for the Shaw Festival, a showcase for the plays of George Bernard Shaw and his contemporaries. Professional theater is offered Tuesdays through Sundays from late April until Oct. 15 on three small stages — the Festival, Court House, and Royal George theaters. For ticket information call (416) 468-2172.

Staying overnight in town can be both frustrating and rewarding since there are no Holiday Inns or other hotel chains.

There are several small and often historic inns, including the Pillar and Post, Prince of Wales Hotel, Moffatt Inn, Oban Inn and Harbour Inn. Presently, the smallest has nine rooms, and the largest has just over 100 rooms, but a new hotel, Queen's Landing, is in the construction stage.

SUMMER weekends are often booked, warn Chamber of Commerce representatives, but they'll be happy to check out availability and make reservations for the dozen inns or the more than 55 licensed bed and breakfast guest homes for a $4 fee. The chamber of commerce can be reached by telephone at (416) 468-4263 or in person at 153 King Street 9 a.m.-7 p.m. weekdays, 1 a.m.-7 p.m. Saturdays or 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Sundays.

Pack your walking shoes. Once you find a parking spot, you'll want to keep it. Anyway, a stroll down Queen Street is a must. Queen Street shops offer, for instance, books, art, Christmas handicrafts, Scottish clothing, china, collectibles and antiques.

If you prefer to avoid the commercial areas, you can walk through the downtown area neighborhoods just to view the old-fashioned flower gardens.

On a recent walk, we found the Niagara Lawn Bowling Club's Saturday morning competition, a backyard gallery of sculpture created by Karoly Veress, a used book sale at the public library, the Apothecary Museum (erected in 1866) and the Fire Museum.

Other Niagara-on-the-Lake attractions are within walking distance of the town's center clock tower. For a walking guide stop by the chamber of commerce office. A few suggestions:

- A Niagara River cruise aboard The Senator. Sightseeing, pre-theater dinner and champagne brunch cruises are available.
- Fort George, built by the British in 1797. Officers quarters, barracks and other areas are open for touring from May to October.
- Simcoe Park, with its formal gardens, wading pool, bandshell and park benches for people-watching.

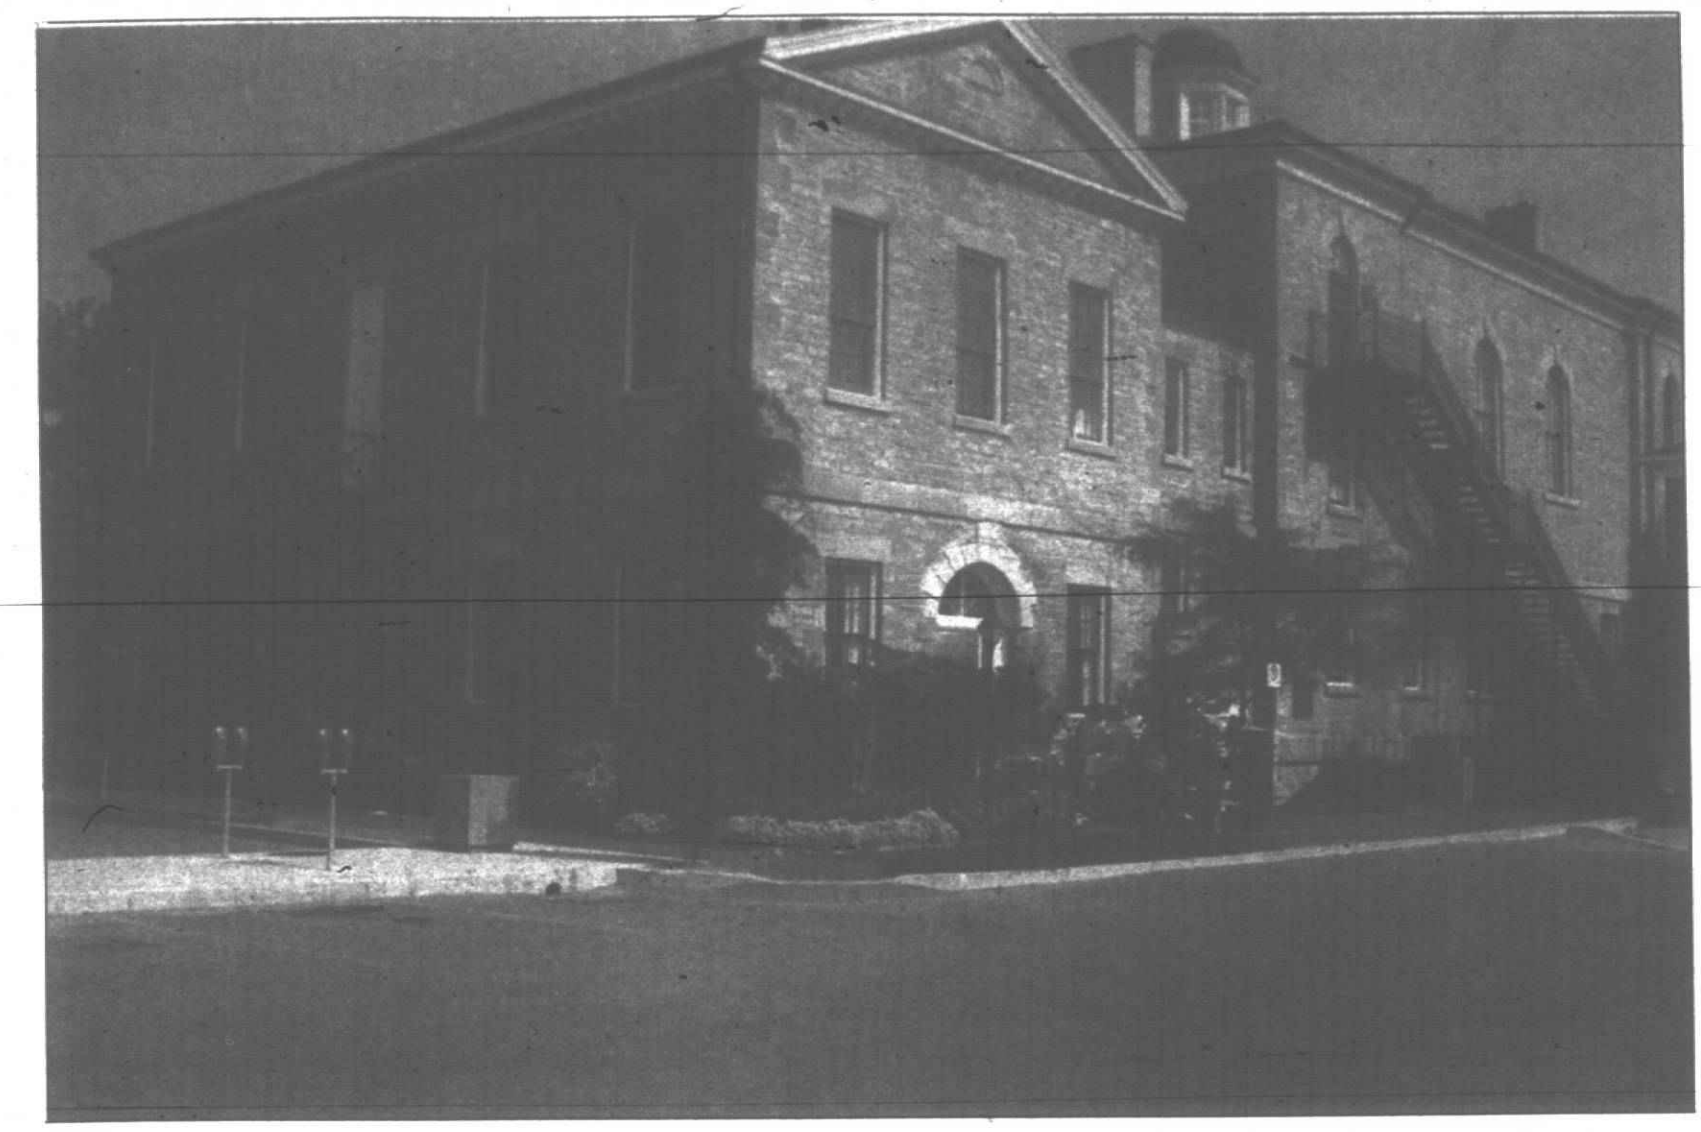
FOR A SMALL town, dining is varied, but as is the case in Canada since exchange rates have become less favorable to Yanks, expensive for the value received. The Buttery on Queen Street offers a Henry VIII Feast, a medieval feast served by costumed "merrymakers."

Pillar and Post Inn and Prince of Wales Hotel both serve brunches, lunches, afternoon teas and pre-performance dinners. After-the-theater dining, however, is almost non-existent.

The chamber of commerce offers no recommendations, but does list all restaurants and displays most of their menus.

Outside the small town of Niagara-on-the-Lake itself are a number of other attractions, still in keeping with the romantic mood. Many are on Niagara Parkway along the Niagara River, Ontario's beautiful and unusual park and highway combined. Try these spots:

- Queenston Heights Park and Brock's Monument, an expansive, treed park with tennis courts, walking tours and a wonderful restaurant overlooking a gorge.
- Winery tours and tastings at one of the dozen or more wineries in the grapevine and orchard region. Again the chamber of commerce can supply the map.
- The Spanish Aero Car, a 10-minute cable car ride across the Niagara River at the Whirlpool Rapids, 250 feet up.



The courthouse in Niagara-on-the-Lake is the site for staging Shaw plays during the town's annual Shaw Festival.

If you enjoy stories, visit national fest

By By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: I've been to several storytelling events in the Midwest and now I want to go to the national festival in Tennessee. Can you tell me when and where it is and whether its worth the trip?

A: There's a lot of tall tales down there.

Ray Hicks, a Tennessee mountain man who has been there since the first festival 17 years ago, will tell you about the day, as a child, when he stuffed his britches in the crack of a log cabin and the cow ate them.

Ephat Mujuru of Zimbabwe will tell you the traditional stories of Africa in both English and his native Shona.

Kathryn Wyndam of Alabama will scare the wits out of you with her crazy ghost stories, told around a bonfire on a dark and windy night.

They are just three of the many storytellers who will delight you at the 17th annual National Storytelling Festival Oct. 6-8 in Jonesborough, which is in the Smoky Mountains on the eastern edge of Tennessee.

It is definitely worth the trip for anybody who has fallen in love with the storytelling movement in America.

People all over the world have told stories to one another for thousands of years, to pass on family history and to entertain one another. It was a regular nightly pastime in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennesseee, where there was nothing much else to do and it was too far from what we laughingly call "civilization" for other distractions.

All this storytelling might have disappeared, if a teacher, called Jimmy Neal Smith, and his students had not listened to a tall tale on the radio one day in 1970. They decided to preserve the tradition.

Their first festival consisted of 65 folding chairs set up on the street of Jonesborough next to the Mail Pouch sign, with a hay wagon for a stage. Now it is a national event with storytellers from around the world telling tales in large tents erected at several site in the small mountain town.

RAY HICKS AND Doc McConnell were lured out of the hills for that first festival.

"I told stories all my life, before electricity and radios came into the mountain villages just 60 miles from Jonesborough," Doc McConnell told me when I first met him there in 1984. "We would be sitting on the porch and one of us would say 'Grandma, tell us about when you first came to the creek.'

"'I was just a little old girl when I got there,' Grandma would say and there she'd go, telling a story. Uncle Jeff would tell a tale about the Army. Daddy would spin that old yarn about the blind horse. Grandpa would tell about Wicked John and the Devil.

"There were haunt stories, we call them 'haint stories' and booger stories, how you spelled it depended on which holler you were out of. 'Jack and the Beanstalk' is a typical Jack tale, a dimwitted Jack who trades a cow for three beans and ends up with a pot of gold."

You will find more than a dozen featured storytellers at this year's festival. You can meet them at a pre-fesitval event 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Visitors Center. Register ahead for that event, which costs $70 and is limited to 250 people.

Well-known storyteller Ray Hicks entertains visitors at the National Storytelling Festival in Jonesborough, Tenn.

A ghost story concert will include chilling tales of the supernatural around a campfire Oct. 7 in Mill Spring Park. They used to hold that event in the old town cemetery, but I guess it got too big for the site. Fee is $4.

A potpourri of storytellers, representing 10 major regions of the U.S., will perform in the Exchange Place, where amateurs have traditionally been encouraged to sign up and do a little storytelling themselves.

THE FESTIVAL itself opens at 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6, and closes at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8. Fees are $30 for Friday, $40 for Saturday and Sunday, $35 for Saturday only, $15 for Sunday only, or $50 for the whole weekend.

You can just show up, but there is a small discount for registering ahead; for example, $42 instead of $50 for the weekend. Children's rates (7 to 12 years) are roughly half.

You should consider spending $25 to join the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling (NAPPS), which sponsors the event and has local chapters. Write to them at P.O. Box 309, Joneborough, Tenn. 37659 for a brochure or call (615) 753-2171.

NAPPPS lists Piedmont Airlines, now USAir, as the official carrier. I called them toll free at (800) 334-8644 and asked for rates leaving Oct. 4 and returning Oct. 8 — $135.85 round trip, non-refundable, to the Tri-city Airport near Johnson City. Refer to Gold File Number 236615.

Club keeps chef stocked with 'art' care of keeping the crayons razor sharp.

Patrons clamored for membership. In less than three weeks, the 170 slots in the vault were filled, and membership was closed.

Number one, fittingly, went to the patron whose crayons started it all — Peggy Daitch, Vogue's Detroit business manager. Number 170 was claimed by Ford Motor Co.'s CEO Harold Poling, who had his secretary call and reserve his spot in the vault.

Anyone wanting to join now has to wait for a member to die or get transferred.

AS FOR THE art . . . we're not talking stick figures here. Oh, sure, there's the odd game of tic-tac-toe. But talented members include nationally recognized artist Richard Kozlow and some remarkable artwork have been produced and left behind.

Chef Famie has used some to decorate his home and those that pay tribute to the waiters and waitresses are first displayed then given to the person honored.

A tongue-in-cheek list of complaints, labeled "Why We Don't Like Les Auteurs," includes "night manger Steve has garlic breath;" "Chef Famie should wear tighter pants," and " not open for breakfast."

Many of the objects d'art, providing they are not gravy- or wine-stained, are being rolled us and put aside. When a sufficient number of masterpieces has been collected, a members-only art show is planned. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres will be served and a good time will be had by all.

Can a friend use the crayons?

"Only if the member calls up and approves," Famie said.

"What happens in the case of a divorce?

"Don't mention it. The last thing I need is to get involved in a custody suit over a box of crayons."

And in a tribute to liberte, egalite and fraternite, Famie inaugurated the French Chapter of the Crayola Club July 8, when he and members of his staff presented a Michigan luncheon to 200 guests at the U.S. Ambassador's residence in Paris.

And, you may wonder, who was minding the store. Les Auteurs was closed during the 11-day trip.

Quelle sacrifice!

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q: We moved recently and I had such high hopes of getting our new home organized quickly and going back to work, but it hasn't worked that way. Our children have been sick constantly and I just can't seem to "get it all together." Do you have tips on how I can get organized soon?

A: Yes I do, but they won't be the ones you are expecting. A long-distance move can cause a great deal of family stress.

In 1967, Drs. T.H. Holmes and R.H. Rahe devised the Social Readjustment Rating Scale. They assigned value units to major life event changes. Death of a spouse rated 100; major business readjustment 39; taking out a mortgage 31; wife beginning or ceasing work 26; moving 25, etc. (The complete study can be found at the library.)

Almost 80 percent of those people who accumulate 300 or more life change units within a past year get sick in the near future. With 150-299 units, approximately 50 percent get sick and less than 150 units produced sickness in approximately 30 percent.

I REALIZE it is tough to live amid chaos and that you are anxious to re-establish your own career, but those things may have to be put on the back burner temporarily. Right now it is more important to get your family settled into your new community.

You see, physical organization is only a result of mental order. Depression can be a natural by-product of moving stress, and it's difficult to remain organized when you are depressed.

It is incumbent upon you, therefore, to create a relaxed atmosphere where you are patiently able to laugh at unpacked boxes in the garage, pictures yet to be hung and walls you are dying to paint.

Instead, take time to invite your children's new friends to play at your house (they don't care what your house looks like — trust me), attend Welcome Wagon or Newcomers groups, go to church — do some social things that will help you and your family adapt.

When your own mental attitude becomes less stressful, it will automatically reflect to your family and they will rebound quickly. Once your family has adjusted, your own thinking will clear and you really will be able to "get it all together." There will be plenty of time then to get your house in order and go back to work. Good luck.

Robert M. Meisner

Q. I was driving my car in a condominium development recently and was struck by one of the maintenance vehicles apparently operated by the condo association. I was badly hurt, having broken my right arm and having suffered facial cuts and scars. I have not consulted with an attorney yet, but I understand that no-fault may preclude me from getting "pain and suffering." Am I restricted because of the fact that I was on private property in a condominium?

A. The fact that you were injured on a private drive of a condominium development does not preclude you from pursuing your legal rights for damages sustained in the auto accident against those people responsible for your injuries.

Normally, in an automobile accident you would have a claim against the driver of the vehicle who was negligent in hitting you, presumably, as well as the owner of the vehicle.

You may also have a claim depending on the facts and circumstances against the person who designed the road and/or maintained it, if that had anything to do with the cause of the accident.

Based on your question, it appears that the driver of the maintenance vehicle was responsible for the accident.

It also appears that you have sustained "serious injuries" that might take you beyond the threshold necessary to establish your rights to "pain and suffering" and other damages beyond the no-fault remedies.

You are best advised to seek legal counsel to explain all of your rights to you, to investigate the case and, if necessary, to prosecute the claim against all entities and/or people responsible.

You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. WeedBlock

Company helps keep gardening easy

weeder's guide

Earl Aronson

AP — The back yard is becoming an outdoor family room. And families, especially those in which husband and wife both hold jobs, are looking for help in the garden — ways to save work and water, and reduce the use of chemicals.

This trend has influenced Dick Grandy and Joe Owens in the development of products for Easy Gardener, their aptly named company.

"Homeowners want attractive gardens and landscapes, but have far less spare time to devote to their maintenance," the affable Grandy said. "Similarly, professional landscapers, pressured by the rising cost of labor, need to cut maintenance time wherever they can."

Another reason, he said, is "the need to use less water — dramatically illustrated by several years of drought around the country — while maintaining plant health.

"MOUNTING PUBLIC resistance to use of toxic chemicals, especially pesticides and herbicides, has caused a few farsighted manufacturers to develop alternative products," he said.

Easy Gardener produces WeedBlock, a durable plastic landscape fabric designed for homeowner and professional weed control.

According to Grandy, the nonwoven, polyethylene geotextile ("vispore") is easy to cut, will not unravel, and controls 95 percent of normal weed growth, including nearly all broadleaf weeds and most grasses.

"It lets 95 percent of the water through," he said, "conserving soil moisture, dramatically reducing the need for supplementary watering."

WeedBlock reduces day-night temperature fluctuations and maintains lower daytime soil temperatures even in extreme summer heat, Grandy said, resulting in healthier, less-stressed plants.

"WeedBlock has no weak spots to break or tear and will tolerate 590-percent elongation or stretch," he said.

Its strength and give make it especially useful under heavy mulches, such as stone or gravel, and in areas that get heavy traffic, he said.

ANOTHER WATER-SAVER is Easy Gardener's Cloud Cover, an anti-desiccant (anti-transpirant) that, when applied to plant leaves and stems, reduces water loss by up to 80 percent, depending on temperature, humidity and wind, Grandy said.

"Their primary purpose," Grandy said, "is to prevent damage and stress from water loss and associated problems due to heat, sun, wind, frost and severe cold.

"They are used to protect nursery transplants from shock for fast recovery, to reduce water loss in landscape plants, especially evergreens in winter and summer, and all garden and container-grown plants in hot, dry weather or in storage.

"They are especially helpful for hanging baskets and potted plants, which tend to dry out fast, and for carrying plants better through your vacation absences."

Cloud Cover, a clear, non-sticky film, extends the indoor life of Christmas trees and wreaths. Organic, non-toxic and biodegradable, it prolongs the effectiveness of insecticides, fungicides and animal repellents; protects plants from salt spray, de-icing chemicals and air pollution; and helps protect certain plants from insect-borne fungal diseases.

Easy Gardener also produces Floating GroCover, a clear fabric so light it can be put on top of growing plants; Tomato Gro-Bags, pale-green plastic covers that fit over tomato cages, protecting plants from cold and insects; and SuperMulch, with thousands of tiny perforations that allow water to penetrate to roots in vegetable and flower gardens.

For more information, write Easy Gardener, P.O. Box 21025, Waco, Texas 76702.

Old West Side is house tour focus

A historical potpourri of architectural variances will make for an interesting old house tour sponsored by the Ann Arbor Old West Side Association.

Placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1972, the Old West Side Neighborhood provides tour goers with a pleasant Sunday afternoon in a setting once typical of the turn of the century Midwest.

This year's tour, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17, will include six houses and one commercial property.

Tickets are $3 for seniors; $4 in advance and $5 on the day of the tour. Advance tickets are available at a number of Ann Arbor businesses. Names are available by calling 665-4087 or 662-2187.

Oldest house on this year's tour is the classic Old West Side home of Dave and Denise Gilbertson, 537 Second, featuring a wraparound porch complete with swing and flowering geraniums. It was built in 1893 by Frederick D. Radtke Jr., a carpenter who outlived three wives and stayed in the house until just a few years before his own death in 1968 at age 98.

NEWEST HOUSE ON THE tour is a 1931 Tudor with double-peaked roofs, first lived in by German immigrants John and Bertha Buehler, and now owned by Dave Seaman and Helen Zylman, at 615 S. Seventh.

Built during the Depression, when those who could afford to build at all could get quality work and materials, the house includes many features that were state of the art for the time, including coved ceilings, stuccoed interior walls, laundry chutes (Zylman's favorite), and an ironing closet now used for spices.

A 1918 bungalow, now owned by Marilyn Williams and Janice Ware at 111 W. Washington, began as family headquarters for the Preketes family, proprietors of the well-remembered Sugar Bowl restaurant.

Three brothers from Greece opened the restaurant in 1913. Originally, all three lived in the house, but it eventually it became the home of Charley Preketes and his bride. The new owners have decorated the house with pieces of art acquired over the years, most demonstrating their Southern origins, such as baskets of cotton, or their interests, expecially relating to the women's movement in which they are active.

Tour headquarters are the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, at the corner of W. Jefferson and Fourth streets. Free shuttle bus service will be provided. Buses will make a continuous loop and will stop at each house to pick up passengers approximately every 15 minutes.

Homearama is under way

Homearama, the annual public showing of new idea houses built especially for public display by members of the non-profit Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, is currently under way with expanded viewing hours.

In the Hills of Oakland subdivision, on Adams Road just north of Dutton, north of Rochester, Homearama will be open 3-11 p.m. Monday through Friday, and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Admission is $5 per person. Discount coupons, good for Monday through Friday only, are available at Detroit Edison and First Federal of Michigan. They are also available at AAA metro Detroit offices.

The event runs through Sunday, Sept. 24. Ample free parking is available.

THERE'S TREASURE IN THE COVE.

Once off I-94, head south as the crow flies, then east on Huron River Drive. Under the McKinley flags, head straight for the Clubhouse, mateys. Walk 40 paces past the pool, past the jogging path, (don't go to Ford lake), up the hill and "X" marks the spot.

Here you'll discover a 1 or 2-bedroom apartment with newly remodeled designer interiors even Blackbeard would love. And the best in all-season lakeside activities: from sailing and jet or water skiing to snowmobiling and cross-country skiing. So set your sails, mateys for Schooner Cove today.
